	A BILL TO BE ENTITLED
AN ACT	TO AMEND THE LAWS PERTAINING TO C	HILD CUSTODY TO INCORPORATE A PRESUMED SHARED PARENTING STANDARD.
The General Assembly of North Carolina enacts:
SECTION 1. G.S. 50-13.2 reads as rewritten:
"§ 50-13.2. Who entitled to custody; presumed shared responsibility; terms of custody;
visitation rights of grandparents; taking child out of State, State; visitation by electronic communication.
(a) At	n order for custody of a minor child entered pursuant to	this section shall award
the custody	of such child to such person, agency, organization or	r institution as will best promote the	interest and welfare of the child. In making the deter-	mination, the court shall consider all relevant factors including acts of domestic violence between the parties, the safety of the child, and the safety of either party from domestic violence by the other party and shall make findings accordingly. An order for custody must include findings of fact which support the determination of what is in the best interest of the child. Between the mother and father, whether natural or adoptive, no presumption shall apply as to who will better promote the interest and welfare of the child. Joint custody to the parents shall be considered upon the request of eith	ner parent.
It shall be	the policy of this State to:
(1)		•
	parenting agreement development while reducing	needless litigation over child custody matters.
(2)
	the expectation that parenthood will be a s

	of raising their child, even after dissolution	of marriage or unwed
	relationship.
(5)		_
	presumption of shared responsibility unless it has b a preponderance of the evidence that one of the pare	ents is unfit or obstructs a healthy relationship with the other parent.

- (a1) For purposes of this section, the following definitions apply:
 - (1) Joint parenting agreement. A plan crafted and mutually agreed upon by parents addressing matters concerning legal and physical custody of a child.
 - Presumption of shared responsibility. The presumption that each parent will share as close as possible to an equal amount of time with the child, but not less than thirty-five percent (35%) of the amount of time with the child.
- (a2) An order for custody of a minor child entered pursuant to this section shall award the custody of the child to the person, agency, organization, or institution as will best promote the interest and welfare of the child. The best interest of the child shall always be the primary consideration of the court in determining the issues of custody of and access to the minor child. In making the determination, the court shall consider all relevant factors, including each of the following:
 - (1) That it is in the best interest of the child to presume both parents are fit, and fit parents act in their child's best interest.
 - (2) That it is in the best interest of the child and consistent with current research that the child have the maximum relationship possible with both parents.
 - (3) The best interest of the child is served when both parents retain substantial decision-making responsibility for the child.
 - (4) As between the mother and father, whether natural or adoptive, no presumption shall apply as to who will better promote the interest and welfare of the child.
 - (5) The best interest of the child shall be presumed to be shared responsibility, absent (i) a mutual written joint parenting agreement of the parties, (ii) extraordinary circumstances, or (iii) a determination that one of the parents is unfit based on a preponderance of the evidence. In the absence of a mutual written joint parenting agreement, the court may consider any unilateral written parenting agreement submitted by at least one of the parents. However, if presented with two plans, the court shall presume the plan that maximizes the child's involvement with both parents in the area of decision-making responsibility and physical time sharing as the plan in the child's best interest.
 - (6) The individual circumstances for each child as to the practicality of any given custody schedule in determining how to best attain presumed shared responsibility goals in accordance with this section.

The court shall consider other relevant factors, such as acts of domestic violence between the parties, the safety of the child, and the safety of either party from domestic violence by the other party and shall make findings accordingly. However, the court shall not consider the inability of the parents to cooperate effectively and consistently as determinative in making custody decisions contrary to the presumption of shared responsibility. An order for custody must include findings of fact that support the determination of what is in the best interest of the child.

(b) An-After considering the presumption of shared responsibility as described under subsection (a2) of this section, an order for custody of a minor child may grant joint custody to the parents, exclusive custody to one person, agency, organization, or institution, or grant custody to two or more persons, agencies, organizations, or institutions. Any order for custody shall include such terms, including visitation, as will best promote the interest and welfare of the child-child based on the presumption of the shared responsibility standard. If the court finds that domestic violence has occurred, the court shall enter such orders that best protect the children and party who were the victims of domestic violence, in accordance with the provisions of G.S. 50B-3(a1)(1), (2), and (3). If a party is absent or relocates with or without the children because of an act of domestic violence, the absence or relocation shall not be a factor that weighs against the party in determining custody or visitation. Absent an order of the court to the contrary, each parent shall have equal access to the records of the minor child involving the health, education, and welfare of the child.

- (b1) An order for custody of a minor child may provide visitation rights for any grandparent of the child as the court, in its discretion, deems appropriate. As used in this subsection, "grandparent" includes a biological grandparent of a child adopted by a stepparent or a relative of the child where a substantial relationship exists between the grandparent and the child. Under no circumstances shall a biological grandparent of a child adopted by adoptive parents, neither of whom is related to the child and where parental rights of both biological parents have been terminated, be entitled to visitation rights.
- (b2) Any order for custody, including visitation, may, as a condition of such custody or visitation, require either or both parents, or any other person seeking custody or visitation, to abstain from consuming alcohol and may require submission to a continuous alcohol monitoring system, of a type approved by the Division of Adult Correction of the Department of Public Safety, to verify compliance with this condition of custody or visitation. Any order pursuant to this subsection shall include an order to the monitoring provider to report any violation of the order to the court and each party to the action. Failure to comply with this condition shall be grounds for civil or criminal contempt.
- (c) An order for custody of a minor child may provide for such child to be taken outside of the State, but if the order contemplates the return of the child to this State, the judge may require the person, agency, organization or institution having custody out of this State to give bond or other security conditioned upon the return of the child to this State in accordance with the order of the court.
- (d) If, within a reasonable time, one parent fails to consent to adoption pursuant to Chapter 48 of the General Statutes or parental rights have not been terminated, the consent of the other consenting parent shall not be effective in an action for custody of the child.
- (e) An order for custody of a minor child may provide for visitation rights by electronic communication. In granting visitation by electronic communication, the court shall consider the following:
 - (1) Whether electronic communication is in the best interest of the minor child.
 - (2) Whether equipment to communicate by electronic means is available, accessible, and affordable to the parents of the minor child.
 - (3) Any other factor the court deems appropriate in determining whether to grant visitation by electronic communication.

The court may set guidelines for electronic communication, including the hours in which the communication may be made, the allocation of costs between the parents in implementing electronic communication with the child, and the furnishing of access information between parents necessary to facilitate electronic communication. Electronic communication with a minor child may be used to supplement visitation with the child. Electronic communication may not be used as a replacement or substitution for custody or visitation. The amount of time electronic communication is used shall not be a factor in calculating child support or be used to justify or support relocation by the custodial parent out of the immediate area or the State. Electronic communication between the minor child and the parent may be subject to supervision as ordered by the court. As used in this subsection, "electronic communication" means contact, other than face-to-face contact, facilitated by electronic means, such as by telephone, electronic mail, instant messaging, video teleconferencing, wired or wireless technologies by Internet, or other medium of communication."
