A SPECIAL MESSAGE FROM Chief Justice Paul Newby

I am pleased to present the Annual Report for the North Carolina Judicial Branch fiscal year 2024-25.

When I look back at our last fiscal year, I am amazed by the resilience of our courthouse personnel, and I am proud of the hard work of all the dedicated and talented members of the Judicial Branch.

In September 2024, Hurricane Helene had a devastating impact on western North Carolina, including the courts. Local courthouse personnel worked tirelessly to find ways to keep the courts open and accessible in the aftermath of terrible flooding of historical proportions. The North Carolina Administrative Office of the Courts (NCAOC) stood ready to assist and equip our local courthouses as they navigated these unprecedented challenges.

The NCAOC Technology Services Division (TSD) monitored the hurricane's impact on the network infrastructure in real time. At peak, nine core data center infrastructure circuits and the Asheville data center were offline. In addition, 27 judicial office locations were offline, including 11 courthouses.

Maneuvering around downed power lines, washed-away bridges, and impassible roads, TSD focused on finding a solution- Starlink satellite internet service and a small generator. Within six days, TSD procured and successfully tested this solution and readied it for deployment at any site regardless of power or internet connectivity. Five days later, the Mitchell County Courthouse became the first courthouse to return to full operation during Helene using the Starlink satellite system.

During this fiscal year, the Judicial Branch has continued the work of the Chief Justice's Task Force on ACEs-Informed Courts, an effort launched in 2021 to better understand the impact of adverse childhood experiences and environments of children who engage with our court system. I am pleased to report that our efforts have garnered national interest, and North Carolina has already partnered with the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania to conduct ACEs training for Pennsylvania.

We have also recently implemented another recommendation from the ACEs Task Force, "Safe Babies Court," a comprehensive approach to reducing the time children spend in foster care by expediting permanency outcomes for infants and toddlers. Safe Babies Court connects children ages 0-3 and their families involved in the child welfare court system with intensive support and services designed to promote healthy child development while working to ensure a safe and timely permanency placement.

North Carolina's Safe Babies Court pilot program officially began accepting families this summer in Mitchell, New Hanover, and Yancey counties. This rollout is part of a three-year, five-pilot site initiative. The pilot sites include Brunswick County, Durham County, Mitchell and Yancey counties, New Hanover County, and a fifth site to be determined.

Over this fiscal year, we have continued our work to modernize our courts by fully implementing eCourts across all 100 North Carolina counties. By April 2025 we had completed the conversion in 73 counties with expansion into western, southern and coastal North Carolina, with plans to be entirely statewide by October 2025. In just a few years, we will have moved the North Carolina court system ahead in remarkable ways. As of October 2025, we will reach a historic milestone: North Carolina will lead the nation with electronic filing in all courts in every county, becoming the first state in the nation to do so.

This year we will celebrate more historic milestones – most notably, the 250th birthday of our nation and North Carolina's part in our founding history. On October 25, 1774, fifty-one women in Edenton pledged to boycott British tea, making the Edenton Tea Party one of the earliest organized women's political actions in our nation's history. On May 20, 1775, North Carolinians become the first early Americans to declare their independence from Great Britain in the Mecklenburg Declaration of Independence. The Judicial Branch looks forward to more celebrations in the upcoming year and the occasion to reflect upon our founding principles.

Over the year I have had the opportunity to travel throughout the state and continue to be inspired by the public servants in the Judicial Branch. None of these accomplishments would be possible without each of them. I am grateful for the opportunity to serve them and to serve our state.

Sincerely

Chief Justice Paul Newby
Supreme Court of North Carolina

A MESSAGE FROM THE DIRECTOR

This year, the North Carolina Judicial Branch celebrates a theme that reflects both the scope of our work and the ambition of our mission: “100 Counties Strong.” From the peaks of the Blue Ridge to the tides of the Outer Banks, the 7,600 officials and staff of our Branch have worked tirelessly to deliver fair, independent, and accessible justice to every corner of our state. That work reflects a simple but vital promise: that the law and our courts will serve every North Carolinian. I am proud to report on a year defined by meaningful progress, expanded access, and an unwavering commitment to the citizens we serve.

No account of this year would be complete without recognizing the extraordinary courage and resilience displayed by Judicial Branch officials and staff in the wake of Hurricane Helene. When the storm struck western North Carolina in September 2024, it left devastation across entire communities by destroying homes, severing roads, and disrupting every aspect of daily life in the very counties our courts serve. Yet in the face of that destruction, the men and women of our Branch rose with remarkable resolve. Clerks, judges, magistrates, district attorneys, public defenders, law enforcement, and other courthouse staff worked in extraordinarily difficult conditions, many having suffered personal losses of their own, to ensure that justice did not stop. Their dedication in those darkest hours exemplifies the highest ideals of public service, and on behalf of the entire Judicial Branch, I extend our deepest gratitude and admiration to each of them.

Modernizing our courts for the digital age remains the most significant undertaking of the Judicial Branch. We expanded electronic court access to 46 additional counties, connecting the mountains to the coast. In May 2025, Guide & File celebrated a landmark achievement: more than 100,000 court filings generated through the platform since its launch. This free, user-friendly tool has become a vital resource for self-represented litigants seeking access to our courts. We also completed the Courtroom Audio Visual Experience (CRAVE) project, which provides state-of-the-art videoconferencing technology in over 200 courtrooms across our state. This technology allows detainees, expert witnesses, and other parties to make virtual court appearances to expedite adjudications and increase public safety.

Addressing the needs of our most vulnerable citizens remains a cornerstone of our work. Safe Babies Court, a comprehensive initiative to reduce the time infants and toddlers spend in foster care, has expanded to seven counties, with new sites in Brunswick, Durham, McDowell, and Rutherford counties. This program stems from the recommendations of the Chief Justice’s Task Force on ACEs-Informed Courts, whose final report charted a path toward trauma-informed practices throughout our system. North Carolina’s 84 recovery courts, now operating across 45 counties, continue to provide critical pathways for individuals whose challenges with behavioral health and substance use have brought them into contact with the justice system. We remain focused on these issues knowing that early, effective intervention can change the trajectory of a life.

This year also brought noteworthy changes in judicial leadership, including the appointment of Judge Michael L. Robinson as Chief Business Court Judge and the investiture of three new appellate jurists. The Chief Justice’s Commission on Professionalism recognized five outstanding recipients of the 2024 Professionalism Award — a fitting tribute to the culture of excellence that defines our Judicial Branch.

Indeed, the strength of the North Carolina Judicial Branch resides in its people. The combined effort of all Branch officials and staff in every one of our 100 counties make it possible to administer justice without favor, denial, or delay. We are grateful for their dedication and honored to serve alongside them in fulfilling the promise of equal justice under the law.

BUDGET AND PERSONNEL

NCAOC partners with the National Center for State Courts to develop methodology that is used to determine staffing needs for district court judges, superior court judges, clerks of superior court staff, magistrates, assistant district attorneys, and legal assistants. Using the same case weight-based approach, NCAOC has conducted workload studies for family court case coordinators and custody mediators.

This information is used to advise the General Assembly about needs for staffing and other resources. Whenever the fiscal situation does not permit the filling of all vacancies, this information is the basis of the vacancy management system. In addition, the workload information is used to reassign vacant resources to needier offices throughout the state.

The court is led by a chief judge, who is appointed by the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of North Carolina. The Court of Appeals reviews the proceedings that occurred in the trial courts for errors of law or legal procedure; it decides only questions of law—not questions of fact. The court decides if the trial court correctly applied the law, or if there was prejudicial error in the conduct of the trial.

LANGUAGE ACCESS SERVICES provide court interpreters for 92 different languages. Court interpreters are an essential public service, assuring due process for limited English proficient individuals.

SAFE BABIES COURT

Safe Babies Court (SBC) aims to reduce the time a child spends in foster care before reaching a permanent, safe home, preferably through reunification. The approach seeks to improve the long-term well-being of children and families involved with the child welfare court system by providing (1) information about the unique mental health and developmental needs of infants and toddlers and (2) case oversight. SBC connects babies, toddlers, and their families with intensive support and monitors services designed to promote healthy child development while working to ensure a safe and timely permanence. SBC includes frequent judicial status conferences and family team meetings to provide additional oversight and ensure the family’s needs are met and the case is not lingering in the court system. JUDICIAL BRANCH PODCAST NCCOURTS.GOV/PODCAST

All Things Judicial

All Things Judicial is a podcast about the important role of the North Carolina Judicial Branch in state government. With each episode, you'll hear interviews from recognizable figures in our judicial communities and learn about topics you may not have realized were related to what we do every day — human trafficking prevention, civics education, and the modernization of our courts, just to name a few.

eCourts

EXPANDING ACCESS TO JUSTICE

In May 2025 eCourts Guide & File had helped the public generate more than 100,000 court filings. The application allows users to create and file the most common legal actions through assisted interviews.

Guide & File launched statewide in August 2020 and eFiling options began in February 2023. The free online service is available to help self-represented litigants and attorneys prepare court documents online to file for certain case types. Working much like popular tax preparation software, this online tool guides users through a series of questions (an interview) to generate court forms that are ready to be filed.

As more counties went live with eCourts, users were able to eFile these forms for certain case types. The forms may also be printed and filed at any courthouse. Civil domestic matters, complaints in summary ejection (eviction), and small claims complaints were the most frequently generated Guide & File case types across the state.

SAFE BABIES COURT OFFICIALLY BEGAN ACCEPTING FAMILIES IN MITCHELL, NEW HANOVER, AND YANCEY COUNTIES

Safe Babies Court, a comprehensive new approach in North Carolina to reducing the time children spend in foster care by improving permanency outcomes for infants and toddlers, officially began accepting families in Mitchell, New Hanover, and Yancey counties.

Establishing a Safe Babies Court program in North Carolina was a recommendation of the Chief Justice’s Task Force on ACEs-Informed Courts in its final report issued in December 2023. Specifically, the Task Force recommended implementing Safe Babies Court through a three-year, five-pilot site initiative. The pilot sites included Brunswick County, Durham County, Mitchell and Yancey counties, New Hanover County, and a fifth site to be determined.

Safe Babies Court connects children ages 0-3 and their families involved in the child welfare court system with intensive support and services designed to promote healthy child development while working to ensure a safe and timely permanency placement. There are frequent judicial status conferences and family team meetings to provide additional oversight and ensure the family’s needs are met and the case is not unnecessarily delayed in the court system.

"Safe Babies Court presents an incredible opportunity to significantly reduce time to permanence for children in foster care ages 0-3, to positively impact the brain development of the youngest children in foster care by strengthening supportive relationships and providing therapeutic services, and to reduce the risk of further trauma in the child’s life. We have the opportunity to reshape child welfare practices for how we respond not only to the youngest children in care, but for all children in care," said Chief District Court Judge Jay Corpening.

eCOURTS KIOSKS DEPLOYED TO N.C. COURTHOUSES WITH SCANNERS, PRINTERS, PAYMENT SERVICES FOR THE PUBLIC

"These kiosks are the next step in ensuring robust public access to the court system," For those without internet access, kiosks are a convenient way to access the court system and take advantage of the tools that eCourts provides."

eCourts kiosks are now available at courthouses in Alamance, Buncombe, Cabarrus, Cumberland, Durham, Guilford, Harnett, Johnston, Lee, Mecklenburg, New Hanover, Onslow, Union and Wake counties. The kiosks will provide on-site access to eCourts applications for users to search court dates and case events, file documents electronically, make payments, and use a scanner, printer, or other service available through the Judicial Branch's digital case management system.

In addition to printers, scanners, and payment services, the kiosks provide public access to eCourts' primary applications for search (Portal), filing (File & Serve), and user-assisted interviews to help create common legal filings (Guide & File).

In the counties using eCourts, the public can file and access court records and make payments online from anywhere with an internet connection. Prior to eCourts, most North Carolinians could only access court records and case events at a clerk's office or at public computer terminals located inside courthouses.
