REPORT ON ACTIVITIES OF 2013-14

As directed by the North Carolina Nature Preserves Act (GS 113A-164.1-.11), the North Carolina Natural Heritage Program (NCNHP) in the Department of Environment and Natural Resources has prepared this report to summarize program activities occurring during calendar years 2013 and 2014.

NCNHP is the North Carolina component of a national network of natural heritage programs that reaches from Canada through the United States and into much of Latin America. Members of this network share a common methodology and a commitment to document occurrences of rare species and significant natural areas. The 80 programs that comprise this network are affiliated through NatureServe, a private, nonprofit organization based in Arlington, VA.

Established in 1976, NCNHP is housed in the Office of Land and Water Stewardship, within the Office of the Secretary of the Department of Environment and Natural Resources. The majority of support for all except two positions is funded with an appropriation from the Clean Water Management Trust Fund (CWMTF).

NCNHP works in partnership with a variety of state and federal agencies, private organizations, individuals and corporations to: 1) identify the most significant natural areas of North Carolina and 2) share information about these significant natural areas so that future generations can enjoy the enhanced quality of life afforded by the full diversity of North Carolina's natural heritage.

Program activities of 2013 and 2014 are summarized in this report under the three major program areas of NCNHP: Information Services, Inventory, and Conservation Planning and Natural Area Protection.

INFORMATION SERVICES

North Carolina is fortunate to have a variety of outstanding naturalists working independently or as part of state and federal conservation agencies, in academia, as independent consultants or in private conservation organizations. Working as part of this informal network of exceptional naturalists, NCNHP consolidates the information collected about rare species, high quality natural communities, and natural areas and makes it available for use in private, statewide, and regional initiatives for a variety of land uses, including conservation and development planning. The information is also used to weigh the ecological significance of various sites and to evaluate the likelihood and nature of ecological impacts. This information supports informed evaluations of the possible impacts of development projects before plans have been finalized. Finally, this information facilitates the establishment of priorities for the protection of North Carolina's natural areas.

Compiling biological information from a wide variety of sources is a complex process. That process is crucial to developing the information needed for wise conservation and development planning and to the environmental review function required by the national and state environmental policy acts. Equally important is sharing that information with a wide variety of agencies, corporations, and individuals.

Information Requests

New online tools were added to the website for NCNHP in November 2014. The new tools include a map viewer (the Natural Heritage Data Explorer), which allows users to view locations of natural heritage records, and a project review feature, which generates tables of records occurring within specified project areas. The online information database also generates reports of rare species, high quality natural communities, natural areas, and conservation managed areas, summarized by county or by USGS quadrangle. In December 2014, NCNHP staff began conducting a series of workshops to educate partners about the array of services NCNHP now provides online. Workshops will continue into 2015 and will be tailored to specific user groups, including government partners, private consultants, land managers, and conservation grant applicants. This web-based information system has been well received, both by partner agencies and the public. This service is updated quarterly and is expected to reduce the workload for staff while allowing easier access to the most requested information. Due to technical and financial limitations, NCNHP anticipates charging a modest annual fee to users to help recover the costs associated with providing the data online. Rule-making for setting the fees is anticipated in the 2015-2016 biennium.

During 2013 and 2014, NCNHP provided 1,440 written responses to individuals, federal and state agencies, consulting firms, academic institutions, conservation organizations, and city and county governments, and responded to an uncounted number of telephone inquiries.

Publications

NCNHP produces four reference publications (listed below). These publications are used by staff of numerous federal, state, and private agencies, including the Department of Defense, the N.C. Department of Transportation, the N.C. Wildlife Resources Commission, the U.S. Forest Service, and various corporations, as well as environmental consultants, academic institutions, and public citizens. The publications are provided at cost upon request. In addition, NCNHP provides digital files of these publications on the website (<http://www.ncnhp.org/>).

Natural Heritage Program reference publications:

- Natural Heritage Program List of the Rare Animal Species of North Carolina;
- Natural Heritage Program List of the Rare Plant Species of North Carolina;
- Classification of the Natural Communities of North Carolina;
- Priority List of Natural Areas.

Copies of county natural area inventory reports or rare species accounts are available upon request. A database of publications is searchable online at: <http://ncnhp.org/web/nhp/searchable-publications>. A list of all NCNHP reports in 2013 and 2014 is included in Appendix A.

INVENTORY

NCNHP natural area inventory efforts are conducted as part of a comprehensive effort to identify the highest quality sites for conservation action. Natural area surveys are also conducted when possible for protection-focused projects on behalf of partners such as the N.C. Division of Parks and Recreation, the Nature Conservancy, or any of several local land trusts. Inventories are also conducted with partners for particular rare species or natural communities.

2013-2014 Regional Natural Area Inventories

A Natural Area Inventory is a systematic search for the best examples of natural communities and locations of rare species throughout a predefined location, typically a county. The identification of these natural areas is a fundamental step in the effort to conserve our state's biodiversity. The conservation of these natural areas can greatly enhance the quality of life for the citizens of North Carolina.

Inventory reports include map and descriptions of the most important natural areas and their ecological significance. This information benefits a wide range of users, from individual landowners to various government agencies. Private consultants and permit applicants use these inventories to determine what species are likely to be involved in development applications. State agencies and local land trusts rely on Natural Heritage data to make informed decisions about land and water use and site conservation. For example, the Tar River Land Conservancy was awarded a grant from the Clean Water Management Trust Fund (CWMTF) in 2014 to create a nature preserve adjacent to Fishing Creek in Nash County. The site provides a riparian buffer for the aquatic habitat, which hosts a number of rare and endemic species found only in the Neuse and Tar River drainages. In 2014, the CWMTF also awarded funding for the N.C. Division of Parks and Recreation to protect large, privately held tracts within the Bat Cave/Bluerock Mountain natural area, a site highlighted in the 2006 Rutherford County Inventory. These tracts will be added to Chimney Rock State Park. See Table 1 for a list of county inventories conducted in 2013-2014.

Neuse River Waterdog, salamander endemic to North Carolina, protected at Fishing Creek tract by Tar River Land Conservancy

Bluerock Mountain, to be added to Chimney Rock State Park

Funding for natural area inventories is provided in large part by the CWMTF. Whenever possible, matching funds are secured from local governments or raised by a partner, such as a land trust. The commitment of the CWMTF board and partner agencies to natural area inventories and to local conservation actions is greatly appreciated.

2013-2014 Rare Species and Natural Community Inventories

In addition to county-focused inventories, NCNHP inventories the distribution and habitats of rare species of the state and the remaining high-quality or rare examples of natural communities. Many of these inventories are conducted in cooperation with partners who are interested in setting aside land for conservation, including the Wildlife Diversity Program of the N.C. Wildlife Resources Commission, the Plant Conservation Program of the N.C. Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services, and the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service. Other partners include the N.C. Museum of Natural Sciences, the Albemarle-Pamlico National Estuarine Partnership, and the Carolina Vegetation Survey. Table 2 shows inventories conducted during 2013-2014.

Table 3 provides an overview of the Natural Heritage database that contains the core of NCNHP information. This database summarizes information about the occurrences of rare species, significant natural communities, and natural areas in North Carolina. An Element Occurrence is an area of land or water that is currently or was historically occupied by rare plants or animals, exemplary or unique natural communities, or important animal assemblages.

CONSERVATION PLANNING AND NATURAL AREA PROTECTION

Conservation Managed Areas

NCNHP maintains a dataset of lands managed, at least partially, for conservation. Knowledge of the extent and location of these lands is crucial for implementation of the North Carolina State Wildlife Action Plan and for the preservation of the state's biodiversity. The majority (88 percent) of land in North Carolina is privately owned. Lands in public ownership include 63 state game lands, 59 state parks and state natural areas, 11 national wildlife refuges, 9 state forests, 4 national forests, and numerous county and city parks. There are also at least 21 private land trusts acquiring land and easements throughout the state. The GIS files for all conservation managed lands in North Carolina are provided to the N.C. Center for Geographic Information and Analysis for the NC OneMap Initiative and to the USGS Protected Areas Database, following national standards.

Conservation Planning Tool

The North Carolina Conservation Planning Tool identifies and prioritizes both the essential high quality natural resources and the crucial land gaps among ecosystems across the state. The methods used are both strategic and scientifically based and provide a vision for a green infrastructure network of supporting ecosystems. The Conservation Planning Tool has been presented in workshops with N.C. Wildlife Resources Commission staff to a range of audiences that includes partners from federal, state and local agencies, regional planning organizations, academia, and nonprofit conservation organizations. The accuracy and usefulness of the information provided in the Conservation Planning Tool has been widely accepted and in many cases incorporated into local and regional planning efforts.

2013-2014 Dedications and Registries

The NCNHP encourages conservation and stewardship of natural areas through two programs that create Dedicated Nature Preserves (DNP) and Registered Heritage Areas (RHA). Dedicated Nature Preserves, owned by state agencies, local governments, or nonprofit conservation groups, are permanently protected through a legally binding agreement with DENR to manage the land for conservation of its natural heritage values. State-owned land can only be removed from dedication upon approval of the governor and the Council of State. Owners of Registered Heritage Areas have also signed a voluntary, though nonbinding, agreement with DENR demonstrating their commitment to protecting the natural heritage values of their property. These landowners may also receive management recommendations to help ensure survival of the rare species or natural communities on their property.

During this biennium, NCNHP has worked with partner agencies, including the State Property Office, to dedicate natural areas under the Nature Preserves Act (GS 113A-164). In all, 4,809 acres were designated as State Nature Preserves in the last two years. Of this, 1,592 acres were dedicated as new nature preserves, while the remaining acreage was added to existing preserves or were corrections of technical errors (see Table 4).

Overall, 161 properties totaling 409,027 acres have been designated as Dedicated State Nature Preserves.

Table 4. 2013-2014 New Dedicated State Nature Preserves

State Agency Ownership	Dedicated Nature Preserve Name

N.C. Wildlife Resources Commission	Uwharrie Game Land DNP (176 acres)

Changes were made to 14 existing Dedicated State Nature Preserves. These are listed in Table 5. These changes added 3,217 acres.

A total of 21,425 acres were designated as Registered Heritage Area during 2013-2014. These are listed in Table 6. To date, 727,270 acres at 311 sites are designated as Registered Heritage Areas.

Table 6. 2013-2014 Registered Heritage Areas

Landowner	Registered Heritage Area Name
Private (Highlands-Cashiers Land Trust)	Satulah Mountain Summit
Private (130 of Chatham, LLC)	Box Creek Wilderness expansion, NC 902 Laurel Bluffs and Upper Rocky River Aquatic Habitat, Yellow Mountain/Raven Cliffs, Sheepback Knob, Simms Hill/Little River Uplands, Rocky River Basalt Bluffs, Ore Hill
Private (6 landowners of 5 tracts)	Lower Rocky River Dragonfly Riffles
Private	New Hope Springhead Swamp
Private	Overton Rock
U.S. National Park Service	Cape Hatteras National Seashore, Fort Raleigh National Historic Site

During the past two years, NCNHP has continued to provide assistance in the selection and nomination for registration or dedication of natural areas. We are especially pleased private landowners have maintained their interest in setting up agreements with the N.C. Department of Environment and Natural Resources to protect and manage natural areas for their natural heritage resource values. In the past two years, there were a number of owners of natural areas that voluntarily entered their properties onto the Registry of Natural Heritage Areas. Some of these ecologically important areas were not large, while others, such as the Yellow Mountain/Raven Cliffs natural area at 6,738 acres, are extensive. In addition to the rare species and natural communities found on Yellow Mountain/Raven Cliffs, the site forms an important part of a growing corridor of protected land that extends from Yellow Mountain to the Roan Mountain Massif. Another exciting project accomplished this past year involved several landowners who each owned portions of a natural area on the Lower Rocky River. These landowners appreciate the natural heritage resource values of the site, and they expressed their interest in working together to conserve the natural area by each entering the portions of the natural area they own onto the Registry.

NCNHP also has a Memorandum of Understanding regarding management of power line corridors supporting rare species populations. The MOU recognizes 33 locations in the Piedmont and Coastal Plain formerly managed by Progress Energy. In 2013 and 2014 NCNHP staff met with Duke Energy Progress to develop the MOU that would continue to recognize the conservation significance of the sites that were transferred to Duke Energy in the merger with Progress Energy.

Aquatic Ecosystem Protection

NCNHP assists partner agencies (N.C. Wildlife Resources Commission, N.C. Department of Transportation, N.C. Division of Water Resources, N.C. State University, and N.C. Museum of Natural Sciences) in surveys for rare aquatic species across North Carolina. Survey results from government agencies and private consulting firms are incorporated into the NCNHP database for distribution to conservation partners and for use in the Program's online maps and database search. Through the NCNHP Natural Area Inventory process, aquatic site descriptions and aquatic Element Occurrences are updated and included in regional and county inventory reports. NCNHP staff work with several regional restoration and education initiatives, including the Regional Sedimentation and Erosion Control Initiative and the Little Tennessee Native Fish Conservation Area partnership. Ecologists provide data and guidance regarding aquatic species conservation to watershed planning efforts lead by partners including the N.C. Ecosystem Enhancement Program, Piedmont Triad Regional Council, Triangle J Council of Governments, the Nature Conservancy, and the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration. Recent efforts include the Neuse 01 Local Watershed Plan, Lake Phelps Management Plan revision, Eden Area Watershed Restoration Plan, the Elkin & Jonesville Water Supply Protection Plan, and the Cape Fear River Partnership. NCNHP freshwater ecologists continued to provide input on interagency efforts such as the DENR Watershed Restoration Improvement Team and the Ecological Flows Science Advisory Board. NCNHP freshwater ecologists receive matching funds provided by the N.C. Wildlife Resources Commission.

NCNHP assisted with a joint meeting of the NC Mollusk Workgroup and the NC chapter of the American Fisheries Society in January 2013 and hosted the 4th Biennial Southeastern Atlantic Slope Mollusk Meeting in January 2014. There were 55 participants from Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, and Florida, representing ten state agencies, two federal agencies, two universities, four nonprofit organizations, and two private companies. In addition to general updates, presentations were given on several topics, including Wildlife Action Plan revisions, the South Atlantic Landscape Conservation Cooperative's Conservation Blueprint, conservation tools available through the Endangered Species Act, ecological flow restoration in the Savannah River basin, the Environmental Protection Agency's new water quality standards for ammonia, and an update on propagation, augmentation, and reintroduction efforts throughout the region.

Information and leadership from NCNHP's Freshwater Program has been essential in building and contributing to conservation partnerships throughout the state, including the Duke Energy Riparian Habitat Enhancement Fund (RHEF) Advisory Committee, Partners for the Little Tennessee, Little River (Neuse) conservation efforts, Franklin to Fontana workgroup, Greater Uwharrie Conservation Partnership, and the North Toe Partnership.

Natural Communities

Part of the NCNHP mission has been to classify and describe the natural communities of North Carolina in publications. A natural community is defined as “a distinct and reoccurring assemblage of populations of plants, animals, bacteria, and fungi naturally associated with each other and their physical environment.” Community classification accounts for a wide variety of ecological components, so that the natural community types represent differences in local-scale ecosystem function and structure, as well as differences in species composition. We seek to define natural communities that are the result of the processes of nature, that differ in ways that are enduring and significant, and that would be found again in other places with similar environments. Natural communities are central to the work of the NCNHP. Tracking occurrences of good examples of them is one of the major portions of the program’s inventory and database work.

The Carolina Vegetation Survey, in coordination with NCNHP, has been systematically amassing the largest set of vegetation plot data ever collected in the state. Data collection has continued on this project, and systematic analysis of the previously collected data is beginning. The National Vegetation Classification offers different perspectives on the crucial vegetation component of natural communities in North Carolina and other states. NCNHP incorporates results from these efforts into natural community concepts and the NCNHP data management system, as well as offering feedback and data to these undertakings. The NCNHP currently has about 7,262 records of high quality natural communities across the state, and new examples are found each year through the work of NCNHP biologists and partners.

Natural community publications are available for free download at <http://www.ncnhp.org/>. We refer to successive versions of these publications as “approximations” in recognition of the fact that the process of discovering and classifying the natural communities of North Carolina is ongoing, and more information is being gathered each year, which may strengthen or change our concepts. Each new approximation is based on field research and quantitative analysis of research plots, such as the Carolina Vegetation Survey database. The program began using the much-revised 4th approximation in 2012, converting the records in the database to that classification. We continue to gain new insights into the rarity of the different communities and the significance of the sites that contain them. State rarity/imperilment ranks have been reassessed for about 1/3 of the new communities, with work on the remainder ongoing.

Volunteers

In 2013-2014, volunteers logged a record number of hours at NCNHP. Two very dedicated volunteers worked a total of more than 630 hours. Work included assisting staff in reviewing, mapping, and updating rare species records, and editing reports for publication.

In the Raleigh office, volunteer Linda Rudd assisted in formatting, editing, proofreading, and preparing reports for publication in Word and PDF. Projects included reports for the U.S. Forest Service, county inventories, and rare plant and animal lists. Linda also added historical rare animal data and watch list plants to electronic files and participated in updating tracking of plants. As part of our program efforts to transfer all documentation to electronic format, Linda also scanned documents to electronic form and reviewed documents that were scanned by a contractor, and performed office support activities as needed by staff.

In the Asheville Office, volunteers Don Gallaway and Hannah Meeler helped complete data entry for more than 300 Element Occurrence records and helped map locations for Hexastylis rhombiformis (a rare plant) in Dupont State Forest and occurrences provided by Highlands Cashiers Land Trust. Volunteers also helped create herbarium labels for approximately 40 specimens collected by NCNHP staff during 2014.

Introduction

The North Carolina Natural Heritage Program (NCNHP) compiles the N.C. Department of Environment and Natural Resources' list of natural areas as required by the Nature Preserves Act (NCGS Chapter 113A-164 of Article 9A). The list is based on the program's inventory of the natural diversity in the state. Natural areas are evaluated on the basis of the occurrences of rare plant and animal species, rare or high quality natural communities, and special animal habitats, collectively termed the elements of natural diversity. They represent the program's estimates of the best locations for supporting natural diversity in the state and are given priority ratings that indicate the degree of their importance for conservation. The complete list of natural areas is available for free download at the publications page of the NCNHP website, <http://www.ncnhp.org/>. Inclusion on this list does not directly confer protection to a site. Instead, the information on natural areas included in the Biennial Protection Plan is intended to help guide the conservation decisions affecting the state's biodiversity at multiple levels, including through the creation of Dedicated Nature Preserves and Registered Heritage Areas. The list includes both protected and unprotected areas. Inclusion on this list does not mean that public access exists. Permission of the landowner is needed to access all lands not open to the public.

The list of natural areas and their significance ratings is based on the best available information. All data used in our assessments are obtained from field surveys. Only species, communities, and other features of biodiversity that were actually observed are used in our evaluations of their significance.

This information is compiled in the program's Biotics Database and conforms to standards established by the nationwide network of Natural Heritage Programs in partnership with NatureServe. These standards include the specifications for recording and evaluating individual occurrences of NCNHP elements, as well as guidelines for estimating the degree of imperilment of these elements at the state and global levels.

Data used in our evaluations of natural areas are updated on an ongoing basis. The Protection Plan is produced every two years. This list updates the set of known natural areas and their ratings. It is possible that some sites have been damaged or destroyed since they were last visited. More information on these natural areas may be obtained from the Natural Heritage Program. For contact information, as well as direct access to many of our datasets, please visit our website at www.ncnhp.org.

Organization of the List

Natural Area Name

The list of North Carolina's most biologically significant natural areas is organized by county, and then alphabetically by natural area name. Names of Aquatic Habitats begin with a three-digit code indicating the river basin. River basin codes match those used by the N.C. Division of Water Resources.

Acres

The number of acres included within the natural area boundary (rounded off to the nearest whole number).

Representational Value

Natural areas are placed in one of five categories, based on the natural areas’ importance in protecting the best occurrences of individual natural heritage elements. NCNHP uses several factors to determine which natural areas contain the best extant natural occurrences of each element. These include Element Occurrence (EO) rank, which assesses the quality and condition of each occurrence, and global rarity rank (or G rank), which is a measure of rarity as well as the imperilment on a global level, both developed by NatureServe. Based on these variables, the relative importance rank for each occurrence is assigned.

Representational Value	Definition
R1 (Exceptional)	Natural area contains one of the best two examples of G1 or G2 Elements.
R2 (Very High)	Natural area contains the 3 rd or 4 th best examples in the state of G1-G2 Elements, and/or one of the best two examples of other Elements.
R3 (High)	Natural area contains the 5 th to 8 th best examples in the state of G1-G2 Elements and/or the 3 rd to 6 th best occurrences of other Elements within it.
R4 (Moderate)	Natural area contains the 9 th to 12 th best examples in the state of G1-G2 Elements within it and/or the 7 th to 10 th best occurrences of other Elements within it.
R5 (General)	Natural area contains one of the 30 best examples in the state of Elements within it that do not qualify for categories R1-R4.

Collective Value

Natural areas are placed in one of five categories based on the number and rarity of the elements they contain. The Collective Value Rating sums the number of elements in a natural area, and the rarity of those elements, weighted by their degree of imperilment at both the global level (G-Rank) and just within North Carolina (S-Rank). The imperilment scores are assigned to each extant element occurrence on a 10-point scale, based on their combination of G-Ranks and S-Ranks. The highest scores are given to elements that are considered imperiled at both the global (G1) and state (S1) levels with successively smaller scores given to elements that are considered more secure (G5S5 being considered secure at both the global and state levels).

Collective Value Rating	Cumulative Element Score	Minimum Number of Elements
C1 (Exceptional )	91 and above	10
C2 (Very High)	61-90	7
C3 (High)	31-60	4
C4 (Moderate)	11-30	2
C5 (General)	2-10	1

Managed areas protecting all or part of the natural area

These are fee simple properties and easements where conservation is one of the management goals. This includes lands with a variety of management policies, from preserves established to protect natural areas or ecological values, to multiple use public lands, to military bases where rare species and natural communities often coexist with military training. Examples include National and State Parks, Game Lands, Dedicated and Registered areas, National Forests, military bases, local parks and open space lands, land trust preserves, and conservation easements held by private conservation organizations or by the government.

Inclusion of an area in this list in no way implies that the area is open to the public.
