Judgment Creditors May Become Parties.—Where the executrix has filed a proper petition, the judgment creditors interested in the surplus, if not made parties, and desiring to contest one of the debts set out in the petition, may make themselves parties and proceed therein according to the procedure being on the part of the executrix and an independent action by them will not lie for fraud until after final judgment in the proceedings. Wadford v. Davis, 192 N. C. 484, 135 S. E. 255.

§ 1-401. Clerk acts summarily; authority from nonresident.—In cases under § 1-400, if all persons to be affected by the decree, or their attorney, have signed the petition and are of full age, the clerk of the superior court has power to hear and decide the petition summarily. If any of the petitioners reside out of the state, an authority from them, to the attorney, in writing, must be filed with the clerk before he may make any order or decree to prejudice their rights. (Rev., s. 719; Code, s. 285; 1868-9, c. 93, s. 2; C. S. 760.)

All Parties Interested Must be Joined.—When in special proceedings, under which certain timber interests were sold by a commissioner, it does appear upon the face of the record that certain petitioners interested in the timber were not made parties, or that they have not appeared as such in person or by attorney, and they have in no way waived their rights, they are not bound by a judgment rendered therein, and as to them the entire proceeding is void upon its face. Moore v. Rowland Lumber Co., 150 N. C. 261, 63 S. E. 953.

§ 1-402. Judge approves when petitioner is infant.—If any petitioner is an infant, or the guardian of an infant, acting for him, no final order or judgment of the clerk, affecting the merits of the case and capable of being prejudicial to the infant, is valid, unless submitted to and approved by the judge resident or holding court in the district. (Rev., s. 720; Code, s. 286; 1887, c. 61; C. C. P., s. 420; 1885-9, c. 93, s. 3; C. S. 761.)

Infants Represented by Guardian.—In an ex parte proceeding to sell land for assets infant heirs are represented by a guardian or next friend, and the order must be approved by the judge. Harris v. Brown, 123 N. C. 419, 424, 31 S. E. 877.

Same—Where Represented by Administrator.—While it is true the administrator or conservator in such case to represent a minor heir as guardian, yet, where there is no suggestion of any unfair advantage having been taken in the sale, confirmation or elsewhere in the proceeding, such irregularity will not vitiate the title of purchaser. Harris v. Brown, 123 N. C. 419, 420, 31 S. E. 877.

Who May Approve.—An emergency judge has the same jurisdiction for making approvals under this section as has the regular judge of the superior court. See discussion in 1 N. C. Law Rev. 284.

One who joins as infant in a petition is bound by the judgment, though he is not a party to the proceeding in the court. Lindsay v. Beam, 128 N. C. 189, 190, 38 S. E. 511.

Court Presumed to Have Protected Interests of Infants.—Where the lands of infants are sold under an order of the court, and the infant is not made a party, it is the duty of the regular judge of the superior court to represent the infant, and the court is presumed to have done so, in the absence of an order to the contrary. E. S. 634. See also, Ex parte Wilson, 222 N. C. 99, 22 S. E. (2d) 262 (con. op.).

§ 1-403. Orders signed by judge.—Every order or judgment in a special proceeding required to be made by a judge of the superior court, in or out of term, must be authenticated by his signature. (Rev. s. 725; Code, s. 288; 1868-9, c. 93, s. 5; 1872-3, c. 112; C. S. 763.)

§ 1-404. Reports of commissioners and jurors.—Every order or judgment in a special proceeding imposing a duty on commissioners or jurors must prescribe the time within which the duty must be performed, except in cases where the time is prescribed by statute. The commissioners or jurors shall within twenty days after the performance of the duty file their report with the clerk of the superior court, and if no exception is filed to it within twenty days, the court may proceed to confirm the same on motion of any party and without special notice to the other parties. (Rev., s. 725; 1893, c. 209; C. S. 763.)

Confirmation Discretionary with the Court.—The confirmation by the court, if no exception is filed to the report within the time prescribed, is subject to the discretion of the court. Ex parte Garrett, 174 N. C. 343, 91 S. E. 838. But in partition proceedings it is obligatory for the court to confirm the same. Id.

Conveyances to Sell Land Applicable.—An order to sell lands to make assets to pay the debts of the deceased, under this section, is appealable from the clerk of the Superior Court, and open to revision and such further or additional proceedings on the part of the judge as justice and the rights of the parties may require, and is to be heard and decided by him on the same or such additional evidence as may aid him to a correct conclusion of the matter. Perry v. Perry, 179 N. C. 445, 102 S. E. 772.

Same—Jurisdiction of Judge.—The fact that the commissioner appointed to sell lands to make assets to pay the debts of the deceased has sold the property several times under resales ordered by the clerk of the Superior Court, and that the clerk has granted the purchaser’s motion to confirm the sale after the lapse of more than twenty days from that date, does not affect the jurisdiction of the judge on appeal to examine into the matter and order resale upon being satisfied that justice and the rights of the parties require it. Perry v. Perry, 179 N. C. 445, 102 S. E. 772.

Power of Clerk.—The clerk has no power to confirm a sale reported by a commissioner until the expiration of twenty days from the date on which the report was filed. Vance v. Vance, 203 N. C. 667, 668, 166 S. E. 903. Applied in Buncombe County v. Arbogast, 205 N. C. 745, 171 S. E. 881.

§ 1-405. No report set aside for trivial defect.—No report or return made by any commissioners may be set aside and sent back to them or others for a new report because of any defect or omission not affecting the substantial rights of the parties, but the defect or omission may be amended by the court, or by the commissioners with permission of the court. (Rev., s. 724; Code, s. 289; 1868-9, c. 93, s. 7; C. S. 764.)

Report Conclusive until Set Aside.—The report of commissioners must be conclusive of the facts therein ascertained, until set aside. Norfolk Southern R. Co. v. Elly, 101 N. C. 8, 7 S. E. 476. Substantial Rights Affected.—The omission in a report of commissioners to make partition of lands to state affirmative that the allotments in their opinion were equal in value, affects the substantial rights of the parties, and the clerk or judge may set it aside with directions, either that the commissioners shall make a reallocation, or that others shall be appointed to do so. Skinner v. Carter, 102 N. C. 106, 12 S. E. 908.

Description of Land Unnecessary. —A report of the commissioners is not invalid because it does not contain a description. Hanes v. R. R., 100 N. C. 493, 491, 13 S. E. 896. Nor is it mandatory that such report be under seal. Id.

§ 1-406. Commissioners of sale to account in sixty days.—In all actions or special proceedings when a person is appointed commissioner to sell real or personal property, he shall, within sixty days after the maturity of the note or bond for the balance of the purchase money of said property, or the payment of the amount of the bid when the sale is for cash, file with the clerk of the superior court a final account of his receipts and disbursements on account of the sale; and the clerk must audit the account and record it in the book in which the final settlements of executors and administrators are recorded. If any commissioner appointed in any action or special proceeding before the clerk fails, refuses or omits to file a final account as prescribed in this section, or renders an insufficient or unsatisfactory account, the clerk of the superior court shall forthwith order such commissioner to render a full and true account, as required by law, within twenty days after service of the order. Upon return of the order, duly served, if such commissioner shall fail to appear or refuse to exhibit such account, the clerk of the superior court may issue an attachment against said commissioner for a contempt and commit him till he exhibits such account, or files a bond for the amount held or unaccounted for as is prescribed by law for administrators, the premium for which is to be deducted from the commissioner’s fee, earned by said commissioner in said action or special proceeding. (Rev., s. 725; 1901, c. 614, ss. 1, 2; 1933, c. 98; C. S. 765.)

Editor’s Note.—The last two sentences of this section, giving the clerk power to force a final settlement, were added by Public Laws 1933, c. 98.

§ 1-407. Commissioners selling land for reinvestment, etc., to give bond.—Whenever in any cause or special proceeding there is a sale of real estate for the purpose of a reinvestment of the money arising from such sale or for any other purpose, and the proceeds from such sale are held by a commissioner or other officer designated by the court to receive such money, for purposes of reinvestment or otherwise, the commissioner or officer so receiving such money shall be and is hereby authorized to employ the same to give bond, to be approved by the court, in an amount at least equal to the corpus of the fund, and payable to the state of North Carolina for the protection of the fund and the parties interested therein, and conditioned that such custodian of the money shall faithfully comply with all the orders of the court made or to be thereafter made concerning the handling of reinvestment of said funds and for the faithful and final accounting of the same to the parties interested; but the court in its discretion may waive the requirement of such bond in those cases where the court requires the funds or proceeds from such sale to be paid by the purchaser.
or purchasers direct to the court. The premium § 1-408
der the direction of the court.
at the end of the first sentence provided that the court could dispense with the bond where it was not contemplated that the money would be ultimately reinvested under the direction of the court.

When an order has been made for the sale of timber growing upon lands affected with contingent inter-provisions does not affect the title of the purchaser, who is ment & Tumber Co., 185 N. C. 423, 117 S. E. 836. See also, Subchapter XIII. Provisional Remedies.

Art. 34. Arrest and Bail.
§ 1-409. Arrest only as hereinafter prescribed.—No person may be arrested in a civil action except as prescribed by this article, but this provision shall not apply to proceedings for contempt. (Rev. s. 726; Code, s. 290; C. C. P., s. 148; C. S. 767.)

Cross References.—As to execution against the person, see section 1-311. As to persons taken in arrest and bail proceeding being entitled to insolvent debtor's oath, see § 23-13. As to arrest and bail proceeding being entitled to jury oath, see Art. C. 3.

In General.—The following cases were decided before the 1943 amendment, and should be evaluated with that fact in mind.
In Hoover v. Palmer, 80 N. C. 313, 315, the court said: it is fair to conclude that the legislature in providing for arrest and bail in an action for injury to person used those words—jury to person—according to their established legal signification in the classification of rights of person absolute or relative. This, we hold, was intended to be and is the proper construction of the section.

Mere Negligence Insufficient.—A judgment that execution may issue against the defendant cannot be secured upon the mere finding that the defendant negligently injured the plaintiff's property; in order to justify such execution under this section and section 1-311, the injury must have been intentionally or maliciously inflicted, i. e., with some element of violence, fraud or criminality. Oakley v. Lasater, 172 N. C. 96, 89 S. E. 1063.

Wrongful Conversion.—Where a cotenant wrongfully converted a race horse, by selling it while in his possession, he was liable to arrest under this section. Doyle v. Bourg, 171 N. C. 10, 86 S. E. 165.

Slandering of Title.—Although it was not necessary in the case to decide the precise point, the court stated in Sneed v. Harris, 109 N. C. 349, 354, 13 S. E. 920, that it was quesstionable whether an action for slander of title was embraces by this article on arrest and bail.
Seduction.—The seduction of a daughter, being an infringement of the relative rights of persons, is an injury to his person within the meaning of the present section, and a sufficient ground for the arrest of the defendant in an action for such tort. Hoover v. Palmer, 80 N. C. 313. It involves also fraud and deceit ex uti termini. Hood v. Sudder, 111 N. C. 215, 16 S. E. 397. See also the next subsection as to seduction.

This section was mentioned as applying to injury to character in Michael v. Leach, 156 N. C. 224, 225, 81 S. E. 790. As applying to injury to person in Howe v. Spittle, 156 N. C. 189, 61, 2 S. E. 207.

In an action for a fine or penalty, for seduction, for money received, for property embezzled or fraudulently misapplied by a public officer, attorney, solicitor, or officer or agent of a corporation or banking association in the course of his employment, or by any agent, broker or other person in a fiduciary capacity, or for any misconduct or neglect in office, or in a professional employment.

Editor's Note.—Originally, this section contained the words "in an action on a promise to marry." In Moore v. Mullen, 77 N. C. 327, the court held this provision to be in or fraudulently misapplied by a public officer, attorney, solicitor, or officer or agent of a corporation or banking association in the course of his employment, or by any agent, broker or other person in a fiduciary capacity, or for any misconduct or neglect in office, or in a professional employment.

In General—This section is plain and very comprehensive in its terms and purpose. It intends, certainly, to embrace all cases where the relation of trust and confidence, in which the complainant, as a necessary, or agent, or attorney, or public officer, or any other person, is placed, in respect to money received by, or personal property in trust for which, upon proper affidavits and the required provisions of this section, authorizing arrests for frauds in fiduciary relation, this section since there is no action pending wherein the cause of action involves a breach of trust on the part of the defendant sustaining a fiduciary relation to the plaintiff, Travers v. Deaton, 114 N. C. 89, 98, 19 S. E. 106; Chemical Co. v. Johnson, 98 N. C. 123; 3 S. E. 723; Powers v. Davenport, 101 N. C. 286, 7 S. E. 747.

The section gives to a plaintiff, whose money or property has been put beyond his reach by his agent or trustee by an act in violation of his duty, the remedy of arrest and bail. That he may the better compel his unfaithful or trusts to another, or amend for his misconduct, and where the cause of action involves a breach of trust on the part of the defendant sustaining a fiduciary relation to the plaintiff, Travers v. Deaton, 114 N. C. 89, 98, 19 S. E. 106; Chemical Co. v. Johnson, 98 N. C. 123; 3 S. E. 723; Powers v. Davenport, 101 N. C. 286, 7 S. E. 747.

The section gives to a plaintiff, whose money or property has been put beyond his reach by his agent or trustee by an act in violation of his duty, the remedy of arrest and bail. That he may the better compel his unfaithful or trusts to another, or amend for his misconduct, and where the cause of action involves a breach of trust on the part of the defendant sustaining a fiduciary relation to the plaintiff, Travers v. Deaton, 114 N. C. 89, 98, 19 S. E. 106; Chemical Co. v. Johnson, 98 N. C. 123; 3 S. E. 723; Powers v. Davenport, 101 N. C. 286, 7 S. E. 747.

Applications of the Section.—Where a firm of merchants gave to manufacturers of fertilizers its note for a consignment of goods, agreeing to hold such goods or the proceeds thereof in trust for the manufacturers, a fiduciary relation was established and a violation of the contract was a breach of trust for which, upon proper affidavits and the required provisions of this section, an order of arrest could be obtained. Boykin, etc. Co. v. Maddrey, 114 N. C. 89, 19 S. E. 106.

One who fraudulently conveys property held by him as trustee can be legally arrested under this section. Durham Fertilizer Co. v. Little, 118 N. C. 808, 24 S. E. 664.

An action for seduction may be brought under this section. Durham Fertilizer Co. v. Little, 118 N. C. 808, 24 S. E. 664.

An action for a fine or penalty, for seduction, for money received, for property embezzled or fraudulently misapplied by a public officer, attorney, solicitor, or officer or agent of a corporation or banking association in the course of his employment, or by any agent, broker or other person in a fiduciary capacity, or for any misconduct or neglect in office, or in a professional employment.

Non-resident Liable.—A non-resident of this State may be arrested and held to bail for fraud under this section, Powers v. Davenport, 101 N. C. 286, 7 S. E. 747.

Application Applies to Subsequent Fraud.—A person may be arrested and held to bail for a fraud committed after the contracting of the debt—e. g.—by concealing property, or conveying property, or devising property for the benefit of the creditor. Powers v. Davenport, 101 N. C. 286, 7 S. E. 747.

Partner Must Have Knowledge.—One partner can not be arrested for the fraud of his copartner of which he had no knowledge. Boykin v. Haynes, 76 N. C. 122.

Fraud Necessary for Arrest under Section.—A defendant cannot be arrested under this section, unless he has been guilty of fraud in contracting the debt for which the action is brought. McNeely v. Haynes, 76 N. C. 122.

A debt is fraudulently contracted where a purchase of property is made with an intent on the part of the purchaser not to pay for the same. See 69 Ohio State Reports, 477, construing the similar provision of the Ohio Code.

In General.—That there can be no arrest on Sunday, see White v. Morris, 107 N. C. 91, 12 S. E. 80.

Frustrated Conveyance.—One who fraudulently conveys his real estate with intent to defeat his creditors can be legally arrested under this section. Durham Fertilizer Co. v. Little, 118 N. C. 808, 24 S. E. 664.

That there can be no arrest on Sunday, see White v. Morris, 107 N. C. 91, 12 S. E. 80.

§ 1-411. Order and affidavit.—An order for the arrest of the defendant must be obtained from the court in which the action is brought or a judge thereof, and may be made where it appears to the court or judge, by affidavit of the plaintiff or of any other person, that a sufficient cause of action exists and that the case is one of those provided for in this article. (Rev., ss. 729, 729; Code, ss. 292, 293; C. C. P., ss. 15, 15; C. S. 769.)

The affidavit must proceed from the court in which the action is brought or from a judge thereof. Houston v. Walsh, 79 N. C. 36, 38.

Same.—Jurisdiction.—An order of arrest, under this section, may be obtained by affidavit on a minor material and evidential issue of which the judge and the clerk have concurrent jurisdiction. Bryan v. Stewart, 123 N. C. 93, 31 S. E. 286.

Same.—Voidable Only.—An order of arrest granted by a court having jurisdiction is not void. It may be erroneous if issued upon an insufficient affidavit. Tucker v. Davis, 77 N. C. 330.

Grounds May Be Stated in Complaint.—The grounds for arrest may be, and most usually are, set forth in an affidavit by the plaintiff, or any other person, that a sufficient cause of action exists, and that the case is one of those mentioned in section 1-410. Roulhac v. Brown, 87 N. C. 25, 65 S. E. 678.

Filing Second Affidavit.—The refusal to allow a second affidavit shall not bar the plaintiff from obtaining a warrant therefor. Melvin v. Melvin, 72 N. C. 384.

Grounds of Belief Should Be Stated.—If the affidavit states certain things which the party believes are about to be done, then the grounds of belief must be stated in order to justify a judge of the reasonableness thereof. Peebles v. Foote, 83 N. C. 102, 104 and cases cited.

Examples—Sufficient Statement.—In an action for arrest and bail, the affidavit of the plaintiff alleged the existence of a cause of action and the fraud committed by defendants in contracting the debt, and that upon information and belief they had fraudulently removed and disposed of their property; held, sufficient to justify the order of arrest. Paige v. Price, 76 N. C. 10.

Where the affidavit upon which an order of arrest and attachment was obtained was as follows: That the defendant has disposed of and secreted his property with intent to defraud his creditors—it was held to be sufficient. Hughes v. Person, 63 N. C. 548.

Same.—Insufficient Statement.—An affidavit for arrest of an absent defendant charged with and untried for fraud, if certain amount is not sufficient if it does not show fraud in the misappropriation of the funds by an administrator. Melvin v. Melvin, 72 N. C. 384.

General Rumor.—Mere general rumor that a person in- debted has removed to another state is not sufficient to justify his creditor in suing out a warrant for his arrest. Melvin v. Melvin, 72 N. C. 384.

The Order.—The order of arrest must proceed from the court or judge, by affidavit of the plaintiff or any other person. (Rev., s. 730; Code, s. 294; C. C. P., s. 153; 1869-9, c. 277, s. 7; C. S. 771.)

Process Can Be Served on Prisoner in Jail.—The sheriff can serve process anywhere in his county—the jail possesses no "privilege of sanctuary" and service of process upon a prisoner there is valid. White v. Underwood, 125 N. C. 35, 34 S. E. 104.

This section is mentioned in Powers v. Davenport, 101 N. C. 291, 7 S. E. 747.

Written Warrant Necessary.—For the benefit of the citizen the person may at all times be able to call upon the sheriff or other officers to produce his authority, and to see precisely what it was, the law established the necessity of a written warrant. Lutterloh v. Powell, 2 M. & K., 915.

Defendant under Criminal Process.—A defendant, who has been brought into court on criminal process, and discharged from arrest under the same on bail, is not privileged from being arrested on civil process immediately afterwards, during the sitting of the court and before he leaves the court room. Moore v. Green, 73 N. C. 394.

Witnesses Attending Court.—The principle of the common law, that a suitor, while going to, remaining at, and returning home from court, is exempted from arrest, is in force in this state. Hammersholl v. Rose, 52 N. C. 629.

Nonresident Attending as Witness.—A citizen of another state, while voluntarily attending court as a witness, is privileged from arrest in a civil case. Ballinger v. Elliott, 72 N. C. 596.

§ 1-414. Copies of affidavit and order to defendant.—The affidavit and order of arrest shall be delivered to the sheriff, who, upon arresting the defendant, shall deliver him a copy thereof. (Rev., s. 732; Code, s. 296; C. C. P., s. 154; C. S. 772.)

§ 1-415. Execution of order.—The sheriff shall execute the order by arresting the defendant and keeping him in custody until discharged by law. The sheriff may call the power of the county to his aid in the execution of his order. (Rev., s. 739; Code, s. 297; C. C. P., s. 155; C. S. 773.)

§ 1-416. Vacation of order for failure to serve.—The order of arrest is of no avail, and shall be vacated, or set aside, or at the order of the court, or upon motion, unless it is served upon the defendant, as provided by law, before the dethaining of any judgment in the action. (Rev., s. 734; Code, s. 295; C. C. P., s. 153; C. S. 774.)

An order of arrest issued after final judgment in an action is illegal and void. Houston v. Walsh, 79 N. C. 36.

§ 1-417. Motion to vacate order; jury trial.—A defendant arrested may at any time before judgment apply on motion to vacate the order of arrest or to reduce the amount of bail. He may deny upon oath the facts alleged in the affidavit of the plaintiff on which the order of arrest was granted, and demand that the issue so raised by the affidavit of the plaintiff and the defendant's denial be submitted to the jury and tried in the same manner as other issues. If the issues are found by the jury in favor of the defendant, judgment shall be rendered discharging him from arrest and vacating the order of arrest, and he shall recover of the plaintiff all costs of the proceeding incurred by him in defending the action. (Rev., s. 735; Code, s. 316; 1889, c. 497; C. C. P., s. 174; C. S. 775.)

In General.—This section and sections 1-419 and 23-29 et seq., prescribing the methods by which a prisoner may be discharged and bail proceedings, where a motion was made by the plaintiff may produce further evidence. Harriss v. Sneeden, 110 N. C. 273, 7 S. E. 801.

Facts Must Be Fully Controverted.—When one who has been arrested moves to vacate the order of arrest upon counter affidavits, purporting to meet the facts alleged against him, he should do so fully and clearly, otherwise the order of arrest will be continued. Powers v. Davenport, 101 N. C. 500, 12 S. E. 584.

Additional Evidence.—Where the defendant moves to vacate the order on the ground that it was irregularly or improperly granted, the plaintiff will not be allowed to offer additional evidence in support of his application; but if the defendant moves to vacate upon counter proofs the plaintiff may produce further evidence. Harriss v. Sneeden, 110 N. C. 273, 7 S. E. 801.

The order of arrest is of no avail, and shall be executed by arresting the defendant and his aid in the execution of the arrest. (Rev., s. 739; Code, s. 297; C. C. P., s. 155; C. S. 773.)

§ 1-418. Counter affidavits by plaintiff.—If the motion is made upon affidavits on the part of the defendant, but not otherwise, the plaintiff may oppose the same by affidavits, or other proof, in addition to those on which the order of arrest was made. (Rev., s. 736; Code, s. 317; C. C. P., s. 173; C. S. 776.)

Simple Denial Insufficient.—If the order was properly granted it cannot not to be vacated upon the simple denial of the alleged cause of action; but where the answer or counter affidavits meet the allegations of the plaintiff fully and in detail, and furnish convincing evidence of their truth, the order should be vacated. Harriss v. Sneeden, 110 N. C. 273, 7 S. E. 801.

Motions Heard Anywhere in District.—A motion to vacate an order of arrest may be heard by a judge out of court anywhere within the district that his duties require him to be during the time in which he is assigned to the district. Parker v. McPhail, 112 N. C. 502, 16 S. E. 848. See also In re Johnston, 114 N. C. 113, 19 S. E. 597. In arrest proceedings, where a motion was made by the plaintiff to vacate the order of arrest, the judge finds as a fact that the act upon which the order was based was not committed, the finding is final and can not be reviewed. Parker v. McPhail, 112 N. C. 502, 16 S. E. 848.

An appeal from the judgment of a justice of the peace holding that a person has been arrested in a civil action vacates the judgment, and the order of arrest continues in force pending the appeal. Patton v. Gash, 99 N. C. 280, 6 S. E. 193.

Where Jury Trial Demanded.—If the defendant demanded a jury trial in the order of arrest, the judge finds as a fact that the act upon which the order was based was not committed, the finding is final and can not be reviewed. Parker v. McPhail, 112 N. C. 502, 16 S. E. 848.

Additional Evidence.—Where the defendant moves to vacate the order on the ground that it was irregularly or improperly granted, the plaintiff will not be allowed to offer additional evidence in support of his application; but if the defendant moves to vacate upon counter proofs the plaintiff may produce further evidence. Harriss v. Sneeden, 110 N. C. 273, 7 S. E. 801.

How defendant discharged.—The defendant, at any time before execution, shall be discharged from the arrest, either upon giving bail or upon depositing the amount mentioned in the order of arrest, as provided in this article. (Rev., s. 737; Code, s. 298; C. C. P., s. 156; C. S. 777.)

Rights of Nonresidents.—Where nonresidents are arrested under the provisions of this article they are entitled to the benefit of sections 23-29 to 23-42, relating to insolvent debtors, in securing their discharge. Burgwyn v. Hall, 105 N. C. 489, 11 S. E. 222.

§ 1-420. Defendant's undertaking.—The defendant may give bail by causing a written undertaking, payable to the plaintiff or to the order of the court, to be executed by sufficient sureties to the effect that the defendant will at all times render himself amenable to the process of the court, during the pendency of the action, and to such as may be issued to enforce the judgment therein, or if he is arrested

§ 1-421. Defendant's undertaking delivered to clerk; exception.—Within the time limited for that purpose, the sheriff shall deliver the order of arrest to the clerk of the court in which the suit is brought, with his return endorsed, and a copy of the undertaking of the defendant, and notify the plaintiff or his attorney thereof. The plaintiff, within ten days thereafter, may serve upon the sheriff a notice that he does not accept the bail, or he is deemed to have accepted it and the sheriff is exonerated from the liability. (Rev., s. 739; Code, s. 304; C. C. P., s. 162; C. S. 779.)

§ 1-422. Notice of justification; new bail.—On the receipt of notice of exception to the bail, the sheriff or defendant may, within ten days thereafter, give to the plaintiff or his attorney notice of the justification of the same or other bondsmen (specifying the places of residence and occupation of the latter) before the court, judge of the peace, or judge, at a specified time and place; the time to be not less than five nor more than ten days thereafter. In case other bondsmen are given, there must be a new bond, in the form hereinbefore prescribed. (Rev., s. 741; Code, s. 305; C. C. P., s. 168; C. S. 780.)

1. Each of them must be a resident and freeholder within the state.
2. They must each be worth the amount specified in the order of arrest, exclusive of property exempt from execution; but the judge, on justification, may allow more than two bail to justify severally in amounts less than that expressed in the order, if the whole justification is equivalent to that of two sufficient bail. (Rev., s. 740; Code, s. 306; C. C. P., s. 164; C. S. 781.)

Bond Should Show Facts.—A bail bond should show on its face that the surety is a resident and freeholder within the state, or his justification should establish these facts. Howell v. Jones, 113 N. C. 429, 18 S. E. 672.

§ 1-424. Justification of bail.—For the purpose of justification, each of the bail shall attend before the court or judge, or a justice of the peace, at the time and place mentioned in the notice, and may be examined on oath, on the part of the plaintiff, touching his sufficiency, in such manner as the court, judge or justice of the peace, in his discretion, may think proper. The examination must be reduced to writing and subscribed by the bail, if required by the plaintiff. (Rev., s. 742; Code, s. 307; C. C. P., s. 165; C. S. 782.)

§ 1-425. Allowance of bail.—If the court, judge or justice of the peace finds the bail sufficient, he shall annex the examination to the undertaking, endorse his allowance thereon, and cause them to be filed with the clerk. The sheriff is then exonerated from liability. (Rev., s. 743; Code, s. 308; C. C. P., s. 166; C. S. 783.)

Purpose of Bail.—The main object of a bail bond taken to release the prisoner from custody in arrest and bail is to secure his presence to answer the process of the court and, for this purpose, to keep him within its jurisdiction, and not merely to obtain money upon his defaults. Pikel simer v. Glazener, 173 N. C. 630, 92 S. E. 700.

§ 1-426. Deposit in lieu of bail.—The defendant may, at the time of his arrest, instead of giving bail, deposit with the sheriff the amount mentioned in the order. The sheriff shall then give a certificate of the deposit to the defendant, who shall be discharged from custody. (Rev., s. 744; Code, s. 309; C. C. P., s. 167; C. S. 784.)

§ 1-427. Deposit paid into court; liability on sheriff's bond.—Within four days after the deposit the sheriff must pay it into court, and take from the officer receiving it two certificates of such payment, one of which he must deliver to the plaintiff, and the other to the defendant. For any default in making such payment, the same proceedings may be had on the official bond of the sheriff, to collect the sum deposited, as in other cases of delinquency. (Rev., s. 745; Code, s. 310; C. C. P., s. 168; C. S. 785.)

Cross Reference.—As to payment by sheriff of money collected on execution, see section 162-18.

§ 1-428. Bail substituted for deposit.—If money is deposited, as provided in §§ 1-426 and 1-427, bail may be given and justified upon notice according to law at any time before judgment. Thereupon the judge, court or justice of the peace shall direct, in the order of allowance, that the money deposited be refunded by the sheriff or other officer to the defendant, and it shall be refunded accordingly. (Rev., s. 746; Code, s. 311; C. C. P., s. 169; C. S. 786.)

§ 1-429. Deposit applied to plaintiff's judgment.—When money has been deposited, and remains on deposit at the time of an order or judgment for the payment of money to the plaintiff, the clerk or other officer shall, under the direction of the court, apply the same in satisfaction thereof, cross-reference, to collect the sum deposited, as in other cases of delinquency. (Rev., s. 747; Code, s. 312; C. C. P., s. 170; C. S. 787.)

§ 1-430. Defendant in jail, sheriff may take bail.—If a person for want of bail is lawfully committed to jail, at any time before final judgment, the sheriff, or other officer having him in custody, may take bail and discharge him; and the bail bond shall be regarded in every respect as other bail bonds, and shall be returned and sued on in like manner; and the officer taking it shall make special return thereof, with the bond, at the first court which is held after it is taken. (Rev., s. 748; Code, s. 318; R. C., c. 11, s. 8; C. S. 788.)
§ 1-431. When sheriff liable as bail.—If, after arrest, the defendant escapes, or is rescued, or bail is not given or justified, or a deposit is not made instead thereof, the sheriff is liable as bail. But he may discharge himself from such liability by the giving and justification of bail at any time before process against the person of the defendant to enforce an order or judgment in the action. (Rev., s. 749; Code, s. 313; C. C. P., s. 171; C. S. 789.)

In General.—A sheriff who accepts an insufficient undertaking in arrest and bail proceedings, or who, after exceptions filed thereto by the plaintiff, fails to give notice of his objection to the place where he will justify, is liable as special bail to the plaintiff, and he will not be exonerated from liability by the fact that he acted in good faith in taking the insufficient bond, or by the fact that the plaintiff was nearby and knew what was going on when an alleged justification was being made by the surety. Howell v. Jones, 113 N. C. 429, 18 S. E. 672.

In State v. Brittain, 25 N. C. 17, it is said that after once taking the bail the sheriff, on finding the bail to be insufficient, has no right to rearrest the defendant, and that the defendant in such a case is justified in resisting the arrest. State v. Queen, 66 N. C. 615, 617.

Escape of Prisoner.—A sheriff having permitted one arrested by him upon mesne process in a civil action to go into an adjoining room, from which he escaped, subjected himself to liability as bail. Wimborne & Bro. v. Mitchill, 111 N. C. 13, 15 S. E. 882.

Same.—Defendants Insolvency Immaterial.—When the sheriff is sued as bail he cannot give evidence, in mitigation of damage, of the defendant's insolvency. Wimborne & Bro. v. Mitchell, 111 N. C. 13, 14, 15 S. E. 882.

Notice and Exceptions Unnecessary.—If the sheriff fails to take bail, the plaintiff need not file exceptions nor give notice to fix him as bail. Adams v. Jones, 60 N. C. 198.

Defective Bond Does Not Satisfy Section.—A paper, though intended as a bail bond, which is so defective and imperfect as to be adjudged not to be such, cannot be regarded as the taking of bail. Adams v. Jones, 60 N. C. 198, 199.

§ 1-432. Action on sheriff's bond.—If a judgment is recovered against the sheriff, upon his liability as bail, and an execution thereon is returned wholly or partly unsatisfied, the same proceedings may be had on the official bond of the sheriff, to collect the deficiency, as in other cases of delinquency. (Rev., s. 750; Code, s. 314; C. C. P., s. 172; C. S. 790.)

§ 1-433. Bail exonerated.—At any time before final judgment against them, the bail may be exonerated, either by the death of the defendant or his imprisonment in a state prison, or by his legal discharge from the obligation to render himself amenable to the process, or by his surrender to the sheriff of the county where he was arrested, in execution of the judgment. (Rev., s. 751; Code, s. 303; C. C. P., s. 161; C. S. 791.)

Meaning of "State Prison."—The term "State prison," as used in this section, applies to either the penitentiary or the county jail. Sedberry v. Carver, 77 N. C. 319.

When Imprisonment Does Not Exonerate.—Where the imprisonment of a defendant under this section, expired before judgment, the surety need not be discharged at the original action or against the bail upon his undertaking: Held, that such imprisonment does not exonerate the bail. Sedberry v. Carver, 77 N. C. 319; Adrian v. Scamin, 77 N. C. 317.

Imprisonment on Other Charges.—Upon the failure of defendant to appear when his case was called, judgment nisi entered and a capias issued. Upon the hearing of the scire facias, the court on examination of the record concluded that the defendant had been turned over to a federal court by a prior bondsman and that defendant was then serving a sentence imposed by that court, it was error for the court to enter absolute judgment on the bond, the cases against defendant as well as the hearing on the scire facias being subject to continuance. State v. Welborn, 205 N. C. 650, 172 S. E. 174.

§ 1-434. Surrender of defendant.—At any time before final judgment against them, the bail may surrender the defendant in their exoneration, or he may surrender himself to the sheriff of the county where he was arrested, in the following manner:

1. A certified copy of the undertaking of the bail shall be delivered to the sheriff, who shall detain the defendant in his custody thereon, as upon an order of arrest, and acknowledge the surrender by a certificate in writing.

2. Upon the production of a copy of the undertaking and sheriff's certificate, the court or judge may, upon a notice to the plaintiff of ten days, with a copy of the certificate, order that the bail be exonerated, and on filing the order and papers used on said application, he shall be exonerated accordingly. But this section does not apply to an arrest in an action to recover the reversion of personal property unjustly detained, so as to discharge the bail from an undertaking given to the effect provided by law to be given by defendant for the retention of property, under the article entitled Claim and Delivery. (Rev., s. 752; Code, s. 300; C. C. P., s. 158; C. S. 792.)

Cross Reference.—As to surrender of defendant when he appears upon motion against the surety, see § 1-436 and §§ 1-451 to 1-455 of this chapter.

As to claim and delivery, see sections 1-472 to 1-484.

Where Prisoner Again Arrested.—Where in arrest and bail the prisoner under bail bond has been again arrested to await a warrant in extradition proceedings, and imprisoned in the jail of the county by the same sheriff, as being prior to those of other jurisdictions, the trial judge upon hearing the obligations of the bond, that the trial judge upon hearing the obligations of the bond, and of the person retained in custody pending the action of the Governor, who, upon notification, may consider the rights of the debtors as being superior to those of other jurisdictions, and hold the prisoner to answer in our courts. Pickelsimer v. Glazener, 173 N. C. 630, 92 S. E. 700.

§ 1-435. Bail may arrest defendant.—For the purpose of surrendering the defendant, the bail, at any time or place, before they are finally charged, may themselves arrest him, or by a writ of authority endorsed on a certified copy of the undertaking may empower any person over twenty-one years of age to do so. (Rev., s. 753; Code, s. 301; C. C. P., s. 159; C. S. 793.)

In General.—Where a prisoner in arrest and bail is released from custody of the law upon bail, the principal is § 1-436. Proceedings against bail by motion.—In case of failure to comply with the undertaking the bail may be proceeded against by motion in the cause on ten days’ notice to them. (Rev., s. 754; Code, s. 302; C. C. P., s. 160; C. S. 794.)

Cross Reference.—As to when the statute of limitations runs against an action under this section, see section 1-52, page 338.

Motion Must Be Brought Within Three Years.—Proceedings against bail, in civil actions, are barred, unless commenced within three years after judgment against the principal, notwithstanding the principal may have left the state in the meantime. Albermarle Steam etc., Co. v. Williams, 111 N. C. 35, 15 S. E. 877.

Principal’s Insolvency—No Defense.—Insolvency of the principal is no defense to an action against the bail. Winborne v. Bro. & Co., 111 N. C. 13, 15 S. E. 882.

When Action Against Bail Lies.—When the debtor is released upon bail, the creditor may proceed to judgment, and issue execution against the debtor, and on his non-appearance, if returned “nulla bona”; and should the latter writ be returned “non est inventus,” the plaintiff may move on ten days’ notice for judgment against the bail, and may issue execution against the debtor’s property, and should the latter writ be returned “non est inventus,” a judgment rendered against him at an intermediate stage of the proceedings is reversible error. Pickelsimer v. Glazener, 173 N. C. 630, 92 S. E. 700.

§ 1-437. Liability of bail to sheriff—The bail is liable for all costs which accrue on said notice, to notice served upon his surety or bail, he was then “amenable to the process of the court,” notwithstanding his refusal thus to surrender himself, and the court should have ordered execution against the person of the defendant, rather than hold the surety or bail, for failure to surrender him. Stepp v. Robinson, 203 N. C. 803, 804, 167 S. E. 147.

§ 1-438. When bail to pay costs.—When a notice issues against a person, as the bail of another, and the bail, at or before the term of the court at which he is bound to appear, or ought to plead, is not discharged from his liability by the death or surrender of his principal or otherwise, he is liable for all costs which accrue on said notice, notwithstanding he may be afterwards discharged, by the death or surrender of the principal, or otherwise. (Rev., s. 756; Code, s. 319; R. C., c. 11, s. 10; C. S. 796.)

Certain Costs Not Allowed.—The costs allowed against bail, notwithstanding a surrender, &c., do not include such as are incurred on account of an improper and ineffectual arrest. Clark v. Latham, 53 N. C. 1.

§ 1-439. Bail not discharged by amendment.—No amendment of process or pleading discharges the bail of the party arrested thereon, unless it enlarges the sum demanded beyond the sum expressed in the bond. (Rev., s. 757; Code, s. 320; R. C., c. 11, s. 11; C. S. 797.)

Art. 35. Attachment.

§ 1-440. In what actions attachment granted.—A warrant of attachment against the property of one or more defendants in an action may be granted upon the application of the plaintiff, as specified in this article, when the action is to recover a sum of money only, or damages for one or more of the following causes:

1. Breach of contract, express or implied.
2. Wrongful conversion of personal property.
3. Any other injury to real or personal property, in consequence of negligence, fraud, or other wrongful act.
4. Any injury to the person, caused by negligence or wrongful act. (Rev., s. 758; Code, s. 347; C. C. P., s. 197; 1893, c. 77; 1901, c. 740; C. S. 798.)

Editor’s Note.—In chapter 7 section 16 of the Rev. Code of 1868 was provided that an attachment would lie against the property of one who injured the person or property of another, and within three months thereafter asconded from the State. The attachment had to be issued within three months from the time of the injury. For cases under this old provision, see Blankinship v. McMahon, 63 N. C. 180; Webb v. Bowlar, 50 N. C. 362.

Definitions and Object.—An order of attachment is an execution by anticipation. It empowers the officer to seize and hold the estate of the alleged debtor for the satisfaction of a claim or demand to be established in the future. The object of which is to prevent the plaintiff from suffering a loss, which he might otherwise sustain, if a writ of attachment was not provided. See Green v. Van Buskirk, 7 Wall. 139, 16 L. Ed. 109.

Attachment is a mesne process, merely an incident to a suit. Ex parte Des Moines etc., R. 103 U. S. 794, 842. L. Ed. 235.

The object of the writ is to enable the plaintiff to obtain a lien upon the property which may be subsequently enforced by a sale upon execution, if judgment be obtained. Rev., s. 759, 176 U. S. 390, 406, 20 Ct. 410, 44 L. Ed. 530, 533.

Origin of the Writ.—Attachment, other than the common-law writ which issued out of the common pleas upon the non-appearance of the defendant, as the result of a writ of attachment, had its origin in the civil law, and afterwards was adopted in England in the form of a custom of the London merchants, and in the Parliament, under the form of an Act by statute, has grown the modern law in respect to this remedy. It was resorted to in order to compel the attendance of the debtor as well as to afford a security to the creditor. Brown v. Knickerbocker Trust Co., 95 N. Y. 55, S. E. 90. See Chinnis v. Cobb, 210 N. C. 104, 185 U. S. 638.

History of the Section.—Under the Code of 1868, as originally enacted, this provisional remedy was allowed in actions on a contract for the recovery of money only, or in actions for wrongful conversion of personal property; and several decisions of the court construing the first clause of the statute, held that an attachment was only permissible for breaches of contract involving the recovery of liquidated damages, or damages which could be limited and defined by any standard or data contained in the contract itself. See Price v. Cox, 117 N. C. 260, 19 S. E. 662; Toms v. Warson, 66 N. C. 417. Mfg. Co., 88 N. C. 5. Shortly after these decisions were rendered, the statute was amended so as to provide the remedy for breach of contract (express or implied), wrongfu

Defects or Irregularities.—The court will not be deprived of the jurisdiction which it has acquired by the levy of a writ of attachment, on account of the defect of the process of attachment in any respect whatever. Harris v. Balk, 198 U. S. 215, 222, 25 S. Ct. 625, 49 L. Ed. 1023.

Conflict between State and Federal Jurisdiction.—In cases of conflict of authority between the State and federal process, in order to avoid unnecessarily collision between them, the question as to which authority should for the time be prevail does not depend upon the rights of the respective parties to the suit. See Chinnis v. Cobb, 210 N. C. 104, 185 S. E. 638, citing V. Heyman, 111 U. S. 176, 177, 8 S. Ct. 355, 25 L. Ed. 356.

port the service of process by publication and attachment, since it is not one to recover a sum of money only nor damages for one or more of the causes of action enumerated in this section. Stevens v. Cecil, 216 N. C. 350, 4 S. E. (2d) 879.

§ 1-440. Affidavit must show what.—To entitle the plaintiff to a warrant of attachment he must show by affidavit to the satisfaction of the court as follows:

1. That one of the causes of action specified in § 1-440 exists against the defendant. If the action is to recover damages for breach of contract, the affidavit must show that the plaintiff is entitled to recover a sum stated therein, and that the defendant is a natural person or a domestic corporation, that he or it has removed, or is about to remove, property from this state, or has removed, or is about to remove some of his property from this state with intent to defraud his creditors. The statute puts the modes in the alternative, and if not set out the affidavit is fatally defective. First Nat. Bank v. Tarboro Cotton Factory, 179 N. C. 263, 105 S. E. 195.

2. That the defendant is either a foreign corporation, or a nonresident of the state, or a domestic corporation none of whose officers can be found in the state after due diligence; or, if the defendant is a natural person or a resident of the state, that he has departed therefrom, or keeps himself concealed therein, with intent to defraud his creditors or to avoid service of summons; or, if the defendant is a natural person or a domestic corporation, that he or it has removed, or is about to remove, property from the state with intent to defraud his or its creditors; or has assigned, disposed of, or secreted, or is about to assign, dispose of, or secrete, property with like intent. (Rev., s. 759; Code, s. 349; C. C. P., s. 201; 1867, c. 470; C. S. 799.)

I. IN GENERAL.

A. Necessary Allegations.

1. By Whom Made.—An affidavit in attachment may be made generally by the plaintiff, his agent or attorney, Henrietta Min., etc., Co. v. Gardner, 72 U. S. 121, 19 S. Ct. 327, 43 L. Ed. 640.

2. When One a Non-Resident.—Where one voluntarily removes from this to another state, for the purpose of disposing of the property of an office of indefinite duration, which requires his continued presence therein for an unlimited time, such a one is a nonresident of this state for the purpose of an attachment, and that notwithstanding a residence of this state, and that he may have the intent to return at some uncertain future. Wheeler v. Cobb, 75 N. C. 21, 26.

3. But the fact that a person leaves the state to seek work, for the purpose of prospeering with a view to change his residence if desirable, does not sustain an attachment on the ground that the defendant was a nonresident. Mahoney v. Tyler, 10 S. E. 159.

4. The party who has left the state for an indefinite time, his return depending upon a doubtful contingency, is a nonresident under subsection 2 of this section notwithstanding the fact that he intends to return at some time in the future, and his motion made by special appearance to vacate the attachment on the ground of his residence will be denied. Brann v. Hanes, 194 N. C. 436, 140 S. E. 106.

Defendant’s residence is not determinative of the question whether one is a nonresident within the meaning of such subsection. Nor is the cause of the absence, such as severe illness, material if such absence prevents personal service of summons upon him during an indefinite period of time. Brann v. Hanes, 194 N. C. 436, 140 S. E. 106.

II. THE AFFIDAVIT.

A. Necessary Allegations.

1. Specific.—The affidavit to procure an attachment must be specific. Bacon v. Johnson, 110 N. C. 114, 14 S. E. 508, and must set forth the grounds recited in this section. Mullen v. Norfolk, etc., Canal Co., 114 N. C. 8, 66 S. E. 22.

2. Grounds of Belief Must Be Stated.—Where the plaintiff makes oath that he believes or apprehends the property will be removed, he must also state the grounds of apprehension. Penniman v. Daniel, 90 N. C. 150; Penniman v. Daniel, 90 N. C. 154.

3. When the affidavit is that the defendants are “about to assign or dispose of their property with intent to defraud the plaintiffs,” which is not the assertion of a fact, but merely the belief merely, the grounds upon which such belief is founded must be set out so that the court may judge if they are sufficient. Hughes v. Persons, 63 N. C. 546; Gassine, etc., Co. v. Baer, 64 N. C. 108; Clark v. Clark, 64 N. C. 150; Penniman v. Daniel, 90 N. C. 154.

Examples of sufficient statement.—Affidavits for publication of the summons and notice of attachment are sufficient when they show that the defendant cannot, after due and diligent search, be found in this state, that he is a nonresident and has property here of which the court has jurisdiction, and that the plaintiff has a cause of action against the defendant, arising out of a contract by which he expressly promises to pay a specific sum to the plaintiff for services rendered at his request, which sum is still due and owing. Page v. McDonald, 159 N. C. 38, 74 S. E. 642.

5. The affidavit is sufficient in which it is averred that the defendant is a nonresident and has property in this state, or has removed, or is about to remove some of his property from this state with intent to defraud his creditors. The statute puts the modes in the alternative, and the plaintiff succeeds if he establishes either. Penniman v. Daniel, 90 N. C. 154.

6. In proceedings for attachment an affidavit is sufficient which sets out: 1st, that the defendant is indebted, etc.; 2d, that the defendant has departed from this state with intent, as the affiant is informed and believes, to avoid the service of summons, etc., Co. v. Brewer, 76 N. C. 428.

B. What Can Be Omitted.

1. Absence of Defendant.—It is not necessary, and therefore need not be averred, that the defendant cannot be found in the state in order to procure a warrant of attachment. Luttrell v. Martin, 112 N. C. 593, 605, 17 S. E. 573.

2. Defendant’s Property.—It is not necessary that the affidavit upon which an attachment is sought shall set out the fact that the defendant has property in this state. Branch v. Fitch, 81 N. C. 180; Foushee v. Owen, 122 N. C. 360, 363, 29 S. E. 770; Parks v. Adams, 113 N. C. 473, 476, 18 S. E. 665; Osburn v. Wilson, 87 N. C. 333; and Spiers v. Halstead, etc., Co., 71 N. C. 209.

Jurisdiction of Court.—Where, in proceedings for attachment, it sufficiently appears that the record of the court had jurisdiction of the cause, and the affidavit of the attaching creditors specifically allege its jurisdiction. County Sav. Bank v. Tolbert, 192 N. C. 126, 133 S. E. 558. Page v. McDonald, 195 N. C. 38, 43.
§ 1-442. Affidavit to be filed.—It is the duty of the plaintiff procuring a warrant of attachment, within ten days from its issuance, to file the affidavit on which it was granted in the office of the clerk of the superior court to which, or with the justice of the peace before whom, the process is returnable. (Rev., s. 760; Code, s. 355; C. C. P., s. 201; C. S. 800.)

§ 1-443. By whom granted.—If the action is not founded on a contract, or if founded on a contract and the sum demanded exceeds two hundred dollars, a warrant of attachment may be obtained from the judges of the district embracing the county in which the action was begun, or from the clerk of the superior court from which the summons in the action issued; and it may be issued to any county in the state where the defendant has property, money, effects, choses in action, or debts due him, and shall be made returnable before the clerk at the same time and place to which the summons is returnable. (Rev., s. 761; Code, s. 351; C. C. P., s. 199; 1869-70, c. 147; 1870-1, c. 166, ss. 1, 3; 1874-5, c. 111; 1876-7, c. 251; Ex. Sess. 1921, c. 92, s. 17; C. S. 801.)

Cross Reference.—As to return of summons, see § 1-89.

§ 1-444. Time of issuance; service of summons.—The warrant of attachment must be issued within ten days after its granting, or else, upon the expiration of that time, the service must be commenced pursuant to an order obtained therefor, and if publication has been or is thereafter commenced, the service must be made complete by the continuance thereof. (Rev., s. 762; Code, s. 348; C. C. P., s. 187; C. S. 802.)

Cross Reference.—As to when service by publication can be resorted to, and for the meaning of "due diligence" in such cases, see section 1-98 and annotations thereunder. [351]
Service by Publication.—The provisions of the Code, authorizing the attachment of the property of a non-resident defendant, are of a summary and peremptory character. The provisions of the Code, by reference to the Code of Civil Procedure, have many of the features of the foreign attachment. Such proceeding is an extraordinary and summary remedy, and is in derogation of the common law and statute law. An attachment cannot be recognized in a case commenced in a Federal court. Even in a State court the plaintiff must strictly and technically perform all the conditions required by the statute entitling him to such remedy. The remedy is by statute conferred, and cannot be enlarged by implication and liberal construction. Lackett v. Rumbaugh, 45 Fed. 23, 29.

Within Thirty Days Not Applicable to Publication.—Under the Code, publication is not required to be made, like personal service of summons, “within thirty days after the attachment granted,” but must be commenced upon expiration of the thirty days; that means “after” the expiration of the thirty days, and where publication was begun on the day after the expiration of the thirty days, that strictly conforms to the statute. Mills v. Hansel, 168 N. C. 651; 65 S. E. 264.

The publication of summons and attachment was not irregular because commenced within thirty days from the time of issuing the summons. Currie v. Golconda Mining, etc., Co., 157 N. C. 209, 72 S. E. 980.

Time Can Be Extended.—In Finch v. Slater, 152 N. C. 155, 156, 57 S. E. 264, it is held that where the court has acquired jurisdiction by attachment of property, the time for service of summons may be extended and publication made, by implication, in the discretion of the court. Mills v. Hansel, 166 N. C. 651, 653, 65 S. E. 17.

Main Action Commenced By Summons.—A warrant of attachment and publication is a summary and ancillary remedy and is dependent upon a main action commenced by the issuing of a summons. Lackett v. Rumbaugh, 45 Fed. 23, 29.

When Summons Not Actual Notice.—A proper instance, where civil actions are commenced and service is obtained by attachment of the defendant's property and publication of a notice based upon the jurisdiction thus acquired, the issuance of the summons was unnecessary. Jenette v. Hovey & Co., 182 N. C. 30, 108 S. E. 301.

Same.—Section 7-136 Not Applicable.—In attachment and publication, if the defendant be a debtor of the place of the county in which the court has jurisdiction, there is no requirement that the summons be made returnable not more than thirty days after its issuance, as inapplicable. Best v. British, etc., Mort. Co., 128 N. C. 351, 352, 38 S. E. 923, cited and affirmed by Walker, J., in Grocery Co. v. Collins Bros. & Co., 182 N. C. 30, 108 S. E. 642. Currie v. Golconda Min., etc., Co., 157 N. C. 209, 217, 72 S. E. 980. Mills v. Hansel, 166 N. C. 651, 85 S. E. 17.

When Nonresident Not Actual Notice.—A nonresident defendant in attachment proceedings, against whom judgment has been rendered under service of summons by publication, and who has not had actual notice of the action, or any other cause of the attachment, cannot be charged with a matter of right upon showing that he has a good and meritorious defense, have the judgment vacated by motion within the statutory period, and he can avail himself of any defense he originally had. Page v. McDonald, 159 N. C. 38, 74 S. E. 642.

Proceedings When Notice Not Duly Served.—If the notice was not duly served by the publication, it was error to dismiss an attachment granted as ancillary to an action, because of the insufficiency of the affidavit to obtain service of the summons by publication, for it is possible that the defendant may be served by publication. Branch v. Frank, 81 N. C. 180. Mills v. Hansel, 166 N. C. 651, 85 S. E. 17.

The remedy is not to dismiss the attachment, but by ordering a republication, if, as the defendant is a non-resident, the summons at the commencement of the action is not a matter of right upon showing that he has a good and meritorious defense, have the judgment vacated by motion within the statutory period, and he can avail himself of any defense he originally had. Page v. McDonald, 159 N. C. 38, 74 S. E. 642.

§ 1-443. Undertaking.—The officer, before issuing the warrant, must require a written undertaking on the part of the plaintiff, with sufficient surety, to the effect that if the defendant recovers judgment, or the attachment is set aside by order of the court, the plaintiff will pay all costs that are awarded to the defendant, and all damages which he sustains by reason of the attachment, not exceeding the sum specified in the undertaking, which must be at least two hundred dollars. (Rev., s. 763; Code, s. 356; C. C. P., s. 202; C. S. 803.)

Separate Action By Successful Defendant.—This section clearly implies that the successful defendant in attachment must seek remedy by a new proceeding, not by a renewal of the justification of the undertaking instead of to the undertaking itself, this is held to be a void and binding undertaking. Mahoney v. Tyler, 136 N. C. 40, 43, 48 S. E. 549.

Mistake in Signing Undertaking.—Where, by mistake, the signature to the undertaking, or the description of the defendant, by which the surety signs his undertaking, was granted improperly, for, want of jurisdiction, the surety on the undertaking of the plaintiff signs his name to the undertaking itself, this is held to be a valid and binding undertaking. Boger v. Cedar Cove Lumber Co., 165 N. C. 557, 145 S. E. 349.

Misdjoinder of Principal and Surety.—An action will not be dismissed for a misjoinder of parties where the plaintiff is suing, in the same action, the principal and surety on an attachment bond. The remedy is by motion to have the causes divided. Smith v. American Bonding Co., 160 N. C. 574, 76 S. E. 481.

When Action Lie Against Creditor.—In an action to recover on the bond given by the creditor and his surety in attachment proceedings for a wrongful levy therein, the statute of limitations begins to run from the rendition of the bond, and, if his own complaint be not filed, the creditor may be discharged an attachment granted as ancillary to an action upon an undertaking, given upon the bond, and who has not had actual notice of the action, he can not be charged with a matter of right upon showing that he has a good and meritorious defense, have the judgment vacated by motion within the statutory period, and he can avail himself of any defense he originally had. Page v. McDonald, 159 N. C. 38, 74 S. E. 642.

§ 1-446. Validity of undertaking.—It is not a defense to an action upon an undertaking, given upon granting a warrant of attachment, that the warrant was granted improperly, for, want of jurisdiction, or for any other cause. (Rev., s. 764; Code, s. 358; C. S. 804.)

§ 1-447. To whom warrant directed; duty of officer.—The warrant shall be directed to the sheriff of any county in which the property of the defendant is located, or, in case it is issued by a justice of the peace, to the sheriff, or any constable of such county, and shall require the sheriff or constable to attach and safely keep all the property of the defendant within his county, or so much thereof as is sufficient to satisfy the plaintiff's demand, the amount of which must be stated in conformity with the complaint, together with costs and expenses; it must also state when and where it shall be returned. Several warrants may be issued at the same time to the sheriffs of different counties, but where the warrant is issued by a justice of the peace to another county than his own, the clerk of the superior court of his county must certify that he is a justice of the peace and that the signature to the warrant is in the handwriting of the justice. (Rev., s. 765; Code, s. 357; 1895, c. 435, s. 1; C. C. P., s. 203; C. S. 805.)

CH. 1. CIVIL PROCEDURE—PROVISIONAL

§ 1-448. Notice; service and content—When the warrant of attachment is taken out at the time of issuing the summons, and the summons is to be served by publication, the order shall direct that notice be given in the publication to the defendant of the issuing of the attachment. When the warrant of attachment is obtained after the issuing of the summons, the defendant must be notified by publication of the fact for four successive weeks in some newspaper published in the county to which it is returnable, or if none, then in one published in the judicial district including said county. The publication shall state the names of the parties, the amount of the claims, and a brief way the nature of the demand and the time and place to which the warrant is returnable. In proceedings by attachment begun before justice of the peace, advertisement in a newspaper is not necessary, but advertisement at the courthouse door and four other public places in the county for four successive weeks shall be sufficient for the clerk to order service of the summons by publication, but service has not been ordered or made, and the cause has come up on the defendant's special appearance and motion to dismiss on that ground, and pending the motion the plaintiff, upon an additional affidavit, without the knowledge of the judge, has obtained an order of publication from the clerk, it is within the sound discretion of the court to permit the plaintiff to proceed with, and deny the defendant's motion. Jenette v. Hovey & Co., 182 N. C. 30, 108 S. E. 301.

Defendant's Bond Constitutes Waiver.—Where property has been given on underwriting a bond given by the defendants in discharge of the attachment as provided by section 1-457 will be considered equivalent to a personal appearance in the action and a waiver of the requirement for service of the summons. See also section 1-457. The submission of the defendant's cause to the jurisdiction of the court. Mitchell v. Elizabeth City Lumber Co., 169 N. C. 295, 154 S. E. 343.

Statement of Amount.—Under this section which provides that when the summons in an attachment suit is to be served by publication, the publication shall state the fact of attachment, the nature of the demand, and the amount, there is no mandate that the court itself perform this duty. Instead, the court is to give the defendant's cause to the jurisdiction of the court. Mitchell v. Elizabeth City Lumber Co., 169 N. C. 295, 154 S. E. 343.
§ 1-449. Execution, levy, and lien.—The officer to whom the warrant of attachment is directed and delivered shall seize and take into his possession the tangible personal property of the defendant or so much as is necessary, and he is liable for the care and custody of such property, as if it had been seized under execution. He shall levy on the real estate of the defendant as prescribed for executions; he shall make and return with the warrant an inventory of the property seized or levied on, and, subject to the direction of the court, shall collect all debts owing to the defendant. Where the sheriff or other officer levies an attachment upon real estate, he must certify the levy to the clerk of the superior court of the county where the land lies, with the names of the parties, and the clerk must note the same on his judgment docket and index it on the index to judgments, and the levy is a lien only from the date of entry by the clerk, except that if it is so docketed and indexed within five days after being made it is a lien from the time it was made. (Rev., s. 767; Code, s. 359; 1895, c. 435, s. 2; C. C. P., s. 204; 1913, c. 543; C. S. 907.)

Editor's Note.—The 1949 revision struck out the words "and take such legal proceedings in his own name or in that of the defendant as are necessary for that purpose," formerly appearing at the end of the second sentence of this section.

Section 1-116 and This Section Construed in Pari Materia.—See note to § 1-116.

A levy on land under an attachment is sufficient, if it gives such a description as will distinguish and identify the land. Grier v. Rhyme, 67 N. C. 338.

Homestead.—The lien of an attachment levied upon land of a nonresident debtor is paramount to the right of a homestead therein acquired by the debtor by becoming a citizen of the state prior to the rendition of judgment in the action. Watkins v. Overby, 83 N. C. 165.

Effect of Levy.—Property seized under attachment is only a legal deposit in the hands of the sheriff to abide the event of the action, and on judgment against the defendant, he is entitled to the same exemptions in the property attached as he would have had there been no attachment. State v. Rhyme, 80 N. C. 183.

Enforceable against Subsequent Purchasers.—When the officer has complied with the provisions of this section, the plaintiffs have a lien on such property, which is enforceable against all subsequent purchasers from the defendant. Newberry v. Meadows Fert. Co., 203 N. C. 330, 338, 166 S. E. 79.

§ 1-450. Return of warrant by sheriff.—The sheriff shall return the warrant of attachment, and the undertakings provided for in this article, with a statement of his proceedings thereon, at the time and place at which it is on its face returnable, and upon, or at any time after, the return, he may obtain from the court to which the warrant was returnable a certified copy thereof, which, for the purpose of giving him authority, is the same as the original, and when the warrant has been fully executed or discharged, the sheriff shall return it, with his proceedings, to said court. (Rev., s. 768; Code, s. 376; C. C. P., s. 214; C. S. 808.)

§ 1-451. When granted by justice of peace.—If the action is not founded on contract and the value of the property in controversy does not exceed the sum of fifty dollars, the warrant of attachment may, or if the action is founded on contract and the sum demanded does not exceed two hundred dollars, the warrant of attachment must be obtained from and made returnable before a justice of the peace of a county to the superior court of which it would have been returnable had the sum demanded exceeded two hundred dollars, or had the action not been founded on contract. (Rev., Code, s. 535; C. C. P., s. 200; 1876-7, c. 251; C. S. 809.)

Wrongful Issue by Justice.—An attachment wrongfully issued from the justice's court against a citizen of the State, transiently absent, is remedied by recordari. Merrell v. McHone, 126 N. C. 528, 36 S. E. 35.

§ 1-452. Publication in justice's court. The plaintiff, within thirty days after obtaining a warrant of attachment from a justice of the peace, must cause publication thereof to be made for four successive weeks at the courthouse door and four other public places in the county where the warrant is returnable. (Rev., s. 770; Code, s. 350; C. C. P., s. 198; 1889-9, c. 55, s. 3; 1870-1, c. 166, s. 4; 1874-5, c. 111; C. S. 810.)

§ 1-453. Justice's attachment against land.—If the attachment is levied on real property, the justice shall proceed to try the action, but may not issue an execution to sell the real property, and shall return the papers in the case to the officer of the clerk of the superior court of his county, where the judgment shall be docketed. The levy of the attachment, however, is a lien on the real estate, when the provisions of the section as to execution and levy of attachment are complied with. (Rev., s. 777; Code, s. 354; 1870-1, c. 95, s. 4; C. S. 811.)

§ 1-454. Sale of attached property pending litigation. — If any property seized under attachment is perishable, or of a character to materially deteriorate in value pending litigation, or of such character that the expense of keeping it until the determination of the suit would be likely to exceed one-fifth of its value, or if any part of it consists of a vessel, or of any share or interest therein, and the person to whom it belongs, or his agent, does not within ten days after the serving of the attachment reclaim the same, the sheriff or other officer having possession shall apply to the court for authority to sell the property, stating the circumstances. The property shall then be sold, under the order and direction of the court, and the proceeds are liable to the judgment obtained upon the attachment, and shall be retained by the sheriff or other officer to await the judgment. (Rev., s. 772; Code, s. 360; C. C. P., s. 205; R. C., c. 7, s. 6; 1877, c. 115, s. 28; C. S. 812.)

Sale of Third Party's Goods. — Where an attachment is levied upon the goods of a third party which, being perishable, are sold by the sheriff, and the third party interpleads the proceeds of the attachment, sale, etc., are not properly chargeable against the fund arising from such sale. Haywood v. Hardie, 76 N. C. 384.

An intervenor obtaining the possession of property attached by giving a replevy bond may not sell part of the property, such sale not being made as provided by this section and claim the right to pay for the part sold and return the balance thereof. Bulluck v. Hafey, 196 N. C. 355, 151 S. E. 731.

§ 1-455. Replevy by defendant; undertaking. — The person owning the property advertised to be sold according to the provisions of this article, or his agent or attorney, may, at any time before sale, replevy the same, by giving an undertak-
§ 1-456  Defendant may apply for discharge and delivery of property.—When the defendant has appeared in such action, he may apply to the court in which it is pending, or to the judge thereof, for an order to discharge the attachment; and if the order is granted, all the proceeds of sale, and moneys collected in the action, and all property attached remaining in the hands of any officer of the court, under any process or order in the action, attached will remain in the custody of the court to await the judgment in favor of the plaintiffs for the debt and the costs of the attachment proceedings, and then gives the defendant notice that he can vacate the warrant if insufficient, and upon his failure to move to vacate the process he will not be held to be prejudiced by a subsequent judgment. Page v. McDonald, 159 N. C. 38, 74 S. E. 642.

Vacation without Undertaking. — An attachment will be vacated by the court without any undertaking on the part of the defendant, if on its face it appears to have been issued irregularly, or for a cause insufficient in law, or false in fact. Bear v. Cohen, 65 N. C. 511.

Motion out of Term.— It would be a great hardship upon a defendant whose property had been seized under an irregular attachment if he were prohibited from having it set aside until the regular term of the court, which might be nearly six months after the seizure, hence he may move to vacate before the return term. Palmer v. Bosher, 71 N. C. 291.

When Motion Lies.— Where in an action against a foreign corporation a defendant was served by publication, for it is possible that the defect as to service might be cured by amendment. Branch v. Frank, 81 N. C. 180; Price v. Cox, 83 N. C. 261.

When Discharge Not Granted.— A warrant of attachment cannot be discharged upon the special appearance of the defendant when the grounds for his motion involved the finding of facts such as he has no interest in. Foushee v. Owen, 122 N. C. 360, 76 S. E. 481.

Same.—Insufficient Affidavit. — It is error to discharge an attachment, granted as ancillary to an action, because of the insufficiency of the affidavit to obtain service of the process by publication, when the facts may be cured by amendment. Brand v. Daniel, 90 N. C. 154.

Failure of Defendant to Move to Vacate. — The proper publication of summons for a nonresident defendant has attached his property, and he does not move to vacate the attachment. Penniman v. Daniel, 90 N. C. 154.

No Sale after Vacation. — The sales of property mentioned in this section and sec. 1-468 have reference to those sales made under the order of the court in accordance with section 1-454 when the property is perishable. The sheriff has no right, after the attachment has been vacated, to sell the property thereby attached, by bringing it to the defendant notice that he may deliver it to the respondent in his hands. Mahoney v. Tyler, 136 N. C. 40, 44, 48 S. E. 549.

Does Not Apply to Subsequent Sale.—In a subsequent execution for judgment, provisions for the disposition of property upon an order disallowing the attachment, does not apply to cases where there has been a sale or transfer of the property by the defendant after the levy of the warrant, is entitled to have submitted to the jury an issue as to the ownership of the property. Jackson, etc., Co. v. Burnett, 119 N. C. 195, 25 S. E. 868.

Same.—Insufficient Affidavit. — It is error to discharge the attachment where the facts alleged in the affidavit are insufficient to justify the attachment. Page v. McDonald, 159 N. C. 38, 74 S. E. 642.

Refusal of Sheriff to Deliver Property. — If the sheriff fails or refuses to deliver the property, the defendant could perhaps apply to the court and obtain an order requiring him to do so, and if the court neglects to respond, the decision of the court will be not reviewable. Mahoney v. Tyler, 136 N. C. 40, 44, 48 S. E. 549.

Proceedings upon Vacating Attachment. — When the court vacates an attachment, the plaintiffs with the costs of the attachment proceedings, and then gives judgment in favor of the plaintiffs for the debt and the costs of the action other than the costs awarded to the defendant, its jurisdiction and power are exhausted. Nothing else can be done except, perhaps, to make an order for the return of the property seized under the attachment if the attachment is then set aside by the court. (Rev., s. 773; Code, s. 361; R. Cr. 7, C, C, P., s. 212; C, S. 814.)

By giving the undertaking in the manner provided by § 1-457 the debtor may prevent the sheriff from selling the property. Bizzell v. Mitchell, 195 N. C. 484, 142 S. E. 706. See note under § 1-457.

Vacation without Undertaking. — An attachment will be vacated by the court without any undertaking on the part of the defendant, if on its face it appears to have been issued irregularly, or for a cause insufficient in law, or false in fact. Bear v. Cohen, 65 N. C. 511.

Motion out of Term.— It would be a great hardship upon a defendant whose property had been seized under an irregular attachment if he were prohibited from having it set aside until the regular term of the court, which might be nearly six months after the seizure, hence he may move to vacate before the return term. Palmer v. Bosher, 71 N. C. 291.

When Motion Lies.—Where in an action against a foreign corporation a defendant was served by publication, for it is possible that the defect as to service might be cured by amendment. Branch v. Frank, 81 N. C. 180; Price v. Cox, 83 N. C. 261.

When Discharge Not Granted.— A warrant of attachment cannot be discharged upon the special appearance of the defendant when the grounds for his motion involved... has been levied on the defendant's property necessary for the prosecution of his business, and upon his giving bond, he or his receiver is permitted by the court to continue operation, the giving of the bond is then, in the event of attachment, in attachment, and analogous to the proceedings in dis charge authorized by this and § 1-457. Martin v. Mc Bryde, 182 N. C. 175, 108 S. E. 739.

§ 1-457. Defendant's undertaking. — Upon the application provided for in § 1-456 the defendant must deliver to the court an undertaking in at least double the amount claimed by the plaintiff in his complaint, executed by two sureties residing in this state, approved by the court, before the trial of the merits or it may be tried with the property. If it appears by affidavit that the property not exceeding the sum specified in the undertaking is procured, when the validity is traversed. Bizzell v.
Mitchell, 195 N. C. 484, 142 S. E. 706.

When the surety signs a bond under this section, he enters into the obligation with reference to the cause as it then stands, and when a new element of liability is introduced by an amendment, the surety is discharged. Rushing v. Ashcraft, 211 N. C. 627, 639, 191 S. E. 332.

§ 1-458. All property liable to attachment.—The rights or shares of the defendant in the stock of any association or corporation, with the interest and profits thereon, and all other property in this state of the defendant, are liable to be attached, levied on, and sold to satisfy the judgment and execution. (Rev. v. s. 776; Code, s. 302; C. C. P., s. 206; C. S. 815.)

Effect of Undertaking as Waiver or Estoppel.—Giving the undertaking does not waive the ownership of the property levied on, but from traversing the truth of the allegation on which the attachment is based. Giving the undertaking does not waive the validity of the statutory ground of attachment. Bizzell v.
Mitchell, 195 N. C. 484, 142 S. E. 706.

Hearing as to Validity of Ground of Attachment.—When defendant gives the undertaking under this section the matter of the validity of statutory ground on which att achment was procured may be heard before the trial of the main issue, but if demand is made it may be heard before the trial of the merits or it may be tried with the main issue. Bizzell v. Mitchell, 195 N. C. 484, 142 S. E.
706.

Necessity for Separate Action on Undertaking.—By consent a surety on an undertaking on attachment can come in and the matter of the validity of the grounds of atachment may be determined in one action; otherwise a separate action must be brought on the undertaking. Bizzell
v. Mitchell, 195 N. C. 484, 142 S. E. 706.

The judgment contemplated in this section is not only a judgment against the defendant but the defendant's bond for the judgmen establishing the validity of the ground on which the attachment is procured, when the validity is traversed. Bizzell v.
Mitchell, 195 N. C. 484, 142 S. E. 706.

No summary action after judgment against the surety under this section may be rendered. Bizzell v.
Mitchell, 195 N. C. 484, 142 S. E. 706; Hofv v. Coastwise Shipping, 183 N. C. 330, 159 S. E. 241.

Discharge of Surety.—When defendant's undertaking enters a general appearance and traverses the allegations of fraudulent concealment of his property upon which the attachment was based, and gives bond to retain possession of the property attached, and upon the trial the issue as fraud is found in his favor, the surety on the bond is discharged from liability, and it is not necessary that a summons to vacate the judgment be previously made. Bizzell
v. Mitchell, 195 N. C. 484, 142 S. E. 706.

In General.—The intention of the Legislature, as clearly expressed, in section 1-441, was to authorize the attachment of stock in foreign corporations, and also in the case of individuals or domestic corporations which are removing their property from the State with the intent to defraud creditors, or doing any other act for which attachment would be had in equity. Giving the undertaking may be rendered, and the property attached has accordingly been retained by the debtor, the surety is concluded from asserting the insufficiency of the bond in not having another surety thereon, as the statute required when the bond was accepted as he had intended, and he had not excepted thereto. Thomson v. Dillingham, 133 N. C. 566, 112 S. E. 321.

§ 1-459. Levy on intangible property.—The excution of the attachment upon any such rights, shares, or any debts or other property incapable of manual delivery to the sheriff, shall be made by leaving a certified copy of the warrant of attachment with the president or other head of the association or corporation, or with the debtor or individual holding such property, with a notice showing the property levied on. This certified
§ 1-460. Certificate of defendant’s interest to be furnished to sheriff.—When the sheriff or other officer, with a warrant of attachment or execution, applies to a president or other head or director, secretary, cashier or managing agent of any association or corporation, or to any debtor or individual, for the purpose of attaching or levying on the property of the defendant in such warrant, such officer, debtor or individual must furnish him with a certificate under his hand, designating the number of rights or shares of the defendant in the association or corporation, with any dividend or any incumbrance thereon, or the amount and description of the property held by such association, corporation, or individual, for the benefit of, or debt owing to, the defendant. If the officer, debtor or individual refuses to do so, he may be required by the court or judge to appear before him, and be examined on oath concerning the matter, and obedience to this order may be enforced by attachment. (Rev., s. 778; Code, s. 369; C. C. P., s. 208; C. S. 818.)

§ 1-461. Proceedings against garnishee.—When the sheriff or other officer serves an attachment on any person supposed to be indebted to, or to have any property of the defendant in the attachment, he shall at the same time summon in writing such person as a garnishee. The summons and notice shall be issued by the clerk of the superior court, or justice of the peace, at the request of the plaintiff, to appear at the court to which the attachment is returnable, or if issued by a justice of the peace, at a place and time named in the notice, not exceeding twenty days from date of notice, to answer upon oath what he owes to the defendant and what property of the defendant he has in his hand and had at the time of serving the attachment, and to his knowledge and belief what effects or debts of the defendant there are in the hands of any other, and what person. When an attachment is served on a garnishee in the above manner, upon his appearance and examination, judgment may be entered up and execution awarded for the plaintiff against the garnishee, for all sums of money due the defendant from him, and for all property of any kind belonging to the defendant, in his possession or custody, for the use of the plaintiff, or so much thereof as will satisfy the debt and costs and all charges incident to levying the same. All property whatsoever in the hands of any garnishee belonging to the defendant is liable to satisfy the plaintiff’s judgment, and must be delivered to the sheriff or other officer serving the attachment. (Rev., s. 779; Code, s. 364; R. C., c. 7, s. 7; 1777, c. 115, s. 28; C. S. 819.)

Cross Reference.—As to exemption of earnings, see sections 1-362 and 1-363.

In General. — A garnishment is in effect a suit by that principal debtor, the defendant in the action, in the name of the plaintiff, and for his use and benefit, against the person supposed to be indebted to, or to have any property of the defendant, to recover the debt due to the defendant, and apply it to the satisfaction of the plaintiff’s demand. Goodwin v. Claytor, 137 N. C. 224, 225, 231, 49 S. E. 173.

This section applies alike to residents and nonresidents, partnerships and corporations, and it will not be declared unconstitutional in an action instituted long subsequent to its enactment. Newberry v. Meadows Fertilizer Co., 206 N. C. 382, 171 S. E. 67.

Nature of Garnishment. — It arrests the property in the hands of the garnishee, interferes with the owner’s or creditor’s control over it, subjects it to the judgment of the court, and therefore has the effect of a seizure. Miller v. United States, 11 Wall. 268, 297, 20 L. Ed. 135.

The proceeding by garnishment is designed to subject a debt due to the defendant, to the payment of the demand creditors of the defendant by investing the creditor with a judicial power to collect and apply the amount due. Wanzer v. Truly, 17 How. 584, 596, 15 L. Ed. 278.

The essential service of foreign attachment laws is to reach and arrest the payment of what is due and might be paid to a non-resident to defeat his creditors. Chicago, etc., [357]
§ 1-462. Failure of garnishee to appear.—When a garnishee is summoned and fails to appear and discover on oath as directed, the court, after solemnly calling the garnishee, shall enter a conditional judgment against him, and thereupon a notice shall issue against him returnable to the court having jurisdiction, to show cause why final judgment should not be entered against him. Upon due execution of the notice, if the garnishee fails to appear at the time and place named, and discover on oath in the manner aforesaid, the court shall confirm the judgment and award execution for the plaintiff's whole judgment and costs. Upon examination of the garnishee, if it appears to the court that there is any of the defendant's property in the hands of a person who has not been summoned, the court, upon motion of the plaintiff, shall grant a judicial attachment, to be levied in the hands of every such person having any of the property of the defendant in his custody or possession, who must appear and answer and be liable as other garnishees. (Rev., s. 780; Code, s. 365; R. C., c. 7, s. 8; 1777, c. 115, s. 28; 1835, c. 2; C. S. 820.)

§ 1-463. Garnishee denying debt; issue tried.—When a garnishee denies that he owes, or has in his possession any property of, the defendant, and the plaintiff on oath suggests to the court the contrary, or when a garnishee makes such a statement of facts that the court cannot proceed to give judgment thereon, the court shall order an issue to be made up, which must be tried by a jury, and on their verdict judgment shall be rendered. In a court of a justice of the peace, the jury may try such issue, unless a jury is demanded, and then proceedings are to be conducted, in all respects, as in jury trials before justices of the peace. (Rev., s. 781; Code, s. 366; R. C., c. 7, s. 9; 1793, c. 389, s. 2; C. S. 821.)

Jury Trial. — Under this section no lien attaches to any specific property of the garnishee until the issuance of execution on the judgment and proceedings to enforce such execution. There is no distinction between an execution on an ordinary judgment issued under § 1-305, and an execution on a judgment against a garnishee issued under this section. They are both judgments and sections to be construed in pari materia. Id.

There is no distinction between an execution on a judgment issued under § 1-440, the clerk of the Superior Court may, on application of the plaintiff, issue an execution against the garnishee without notice or a hearing under this section and § 1-305. Id.

Where Defendant Denies Ownership. — The judgment against a nonresident debtor being exhausted by a sale of the property attached, a nonresident defendant in attachment proceedings, who denies ownership of the attached property, cannot be injured by the judgment, and hence, is not entitled to have an issue submitted as to the title to the property. Foushee v. Owen, 122 N. C. 360, 29 S. E. 770.

Garnishee a Mere Stakeholder. — The requirement of this section that an issue shall be made up and determined by the jury where the garnishee in attachment denies ownership of the attached property, cannot be injured by the judgment, and hence, is not entitled to have an issue submitted as to the title to the property. Foushee v. Owen, 122 N. C. 360, 29 S. E. 770.

§ 1-465. Conditional judgment against garnishee. — When a garnishee declares in his answer that he has in his hands any property of the defendant of a specific nature, or is indebted to him by any security or promise for such property, he must show cause. (Rev., s. 782; Code, s. 367; R. C., c. 7, s. 11; 1793, c. 389; 1794, c. 424; C. S. 822.)

Where one contracted with a dentist: for a set of artificial teeth for his wife, and paid him full consideration, and the husband afterwards absconded before the teeth were furnished, the dentist was not liable as garnishee to a creditor for the value of the teeth. Cherry v. Hooper, 52 N. C. 82.

§ 1-466. Satisfaction of judgment. — If judgment is entered for the plaintiff in the action, the sheriff shall satisfy the same out of the property attached by him, if it is sufficient for that purpose—

1. By paying over to the plaintiff the proceeds of all property sold and debts or credits collected by him, or so much as is necessary to satisfy the judgment.

2. If any balance remains due, and an execution has been issued on the judgment, he shall sell under the execution as much of the proceeds of real or personal property, except as provided in subdivision four of this section, as is necessary to satisfy the balance, if enough for that purpose remains in his hands. In case of the sale of any rights or shares in the stock of a corporation or association, the sheriff shall execute to the purchaser a certificate of sale, and the purchaser has all the rights and privileges in respect thereto which were had by the defendant.

3. If any of the attached property belonging to the defendant has passed out of the hands of the sheriff without having been sold or converted into money, he shall repossess himself of the same, and for that purpose has all the authority which he had to seize it under the attachment. A person who willfully conceals or withholds such property from the sheriff is liable to double damages at the suit of the party injured. Until the judgment is paid, the sheriff may collect the notes and other evidences of debt, and the debts that were seized or attached, under the warrant of attachment, and prosecute any bond he has taken in the course of such proceedings, and apply the proceeds to the payment of the judgment.

At the expiration of six months from the docketing of the judgment the court has power, upon petition of the plaintiff, accompanied by an affidavit setting forth fully all the proceedings which have been had by the sheriff since the service of the attachment, the property attached, and the disposition thereof, also the affidavit of the sheriff that he has used due diligence, and endeavored to collect the evidences of debt in his hands so attached, and that there remains uncollected of the same any part or portion thereof, to order the sheriff to sell the same upon such terms and in such manner as is deemed proper. Notice of this application must be given to the defendant or to his attorney, if the defendant has appeared in the action. If the summons has not been personally served on the defendant, the court shall make such rule or order, as to service of notice and time of service, as is deemed just. When the judgment and all costs of the proceedings have been paid, the sheriff, upon reasonable demand, shall deliver over to the defendant the residue of the attached property or the proceeds thereof. (Rev., s. 784; Code, s. 370; C. C. P., s. 209; C. S. 824.)

Section Grants Power. — This section gives an express direction to the sheriff to sell the defendant on by him under the attachment, and invests him with as much power and authority to act in the premises as if an execution, in the form of a venditioni exponas, had been issued to him, specially commanding him to sell the particular property. Electric Co. v. Engineering Co., 128 N. C. 199, 38 S. E. 831; Chemical Co. v. Sloan, 136 N. C. 122, 48 S. E. 577; May v. Getty, 140 N. C. 310, 318, 53 S. E. 75; Morganton Mfg. etc., Co. v. Lumber Co., 177 N. C. 404, 407, 99 S. E. 104.
Duty of Sheriff. — The attachment is simply a levy before judgment, and upon execution issuing on the judgment it is the duty of the sheriff to sell the attached property. Gamble v. Rhyme, 80 N. C. 183; Morganton Mfg., etc., v. Farmers Manufacturing Co. v. Steinmetz, 133 N. C. 192, 194, 45 S. E. 552.

Same — Not Error to Condemn Property. — Where an attachment is sought upon the funds attached in the hands of a local bank, which is only an agency for collection, which position it alleges in its answer, and also alleges ownership of title by its forwarding bank, the possession taken by the local bank is that of a mere stakeholder without interest, between two conflicting claimants, and it may successfully maintain that the forwarding bank be made a party to the action, and await the determination of this question in the action, in order to protect itself in the payment of the increased bond, or the proceeds thereof, to the payment of a judgment recovered in the action, applying to the court having jurisdiction to vacate or modify the warrant, or to increase the security given by the plaintiff, or for one or more of those forms of relief, together or in the alternative, as in cases of other provisional remedies. (Rev., s. 787; Code, s. 377; C. S. 827.)

Cross Reference. — As to appeal from order of clerk denying motion to increase security, see notes to §§ 1-274 and 1-275.

§ 1-469. Motion to vacate or increase security. — The defendant, or person who has acquired a lien upon, or interest in, his property before or after it was attached, may at any time before the actual application of the attached property, or the proceeds thereof, to the payment of a judgment recovered in the action, apply to the court having jurisdiction to vacate or modify the warrant, or to increase the security given by the plaintiff, or for one or more of those forms of relief, together or in the alternative, as in cases of other provisional remedies. (Rev., s. 787; Code, s. 377; C. S. 827.)

§ 1-470. Exceptions to and justification of security. — The sureties to all undertakings in all proceedings for attachment may be excepted to, and justified as prescribed in respect to bail upon arrest. (Rev., s. 789; Code, s. 377; R. C., c. 7, s. 10; 1793, c. 389, s. 3; C. S. 829.)

§ 1-471. Intervention. — When the property attached is claimed by any other person, the claimant may intervene, as provided for intervention in claim and delivery. (Rev., s. 789; Code, s. 377; R. C., c. 7, s. 10; 1793, c. 389, s. 3; C. S. 829.)

Cross Reference. — As to interpleader in claim and delivery, see section 1-482 and annotations thereunder.

§ 1-482. Bond of the party in interest. — A bond of the party in interest in this action, and any order directing the sheriff to release the property attached remaining in his hands, shall be delivered by him to the defendant or to his agent, on request, and the warrant shall be discharged and the property released. (Rev., s. 786; Code, s. 372; C. C. P., s. 211; C. S. 826.)

Sheriff Cannot Sell after Vacation. — The sales of property mentioned in this section remain executory until the property is vacated as for instance sales made under the order of the court in accordance with section 1-454 when property is perishable. The sheriff has no right, after the attachment is vacated, to sell any property seized by him, as it then becomes his duty to deliver at once to the defendant all property in his hands. Mahoney v. Tyler, 136 N. C. 40, 44, 48 S. E. 549.

Bank v. Muehlebach. — Where the funds of a nonresident defendant are attached in the hands of a local bank, which is only an agency for collection, which position it alleges in its answer, and also alleges ownership of title by its forwarding bank, the possession taken by the local bank is that of a mere stakeholder without interest, between two conflicting claimants, and it may successfully maintain that the forwarding bank be made a party to the action, and await the determination of this question in the action, in order to protect itself in the payment of the increased bond, or the proceeds thereof, to the payment of a judgment recovered in the action, applying to the court having jurisdiction to vacate or modify the warrant, or to increase the security given by the plaintiff, or for one or more of those forms of relief, together or in the alternative, as in cases of other provisional remedies. (Rev., s. 787; Code, s. 377; C. S. 827.)

bring an action against the plaintiffs at whose instance the warrant was issued, and the property wrongfully seized, if the sheriff has taken an indemnity bond, he may sue the obligor and the sureties on such bond. Tyler v. Mahoney, 168 N. C. 237, 84 S. E. 361; Flowers v. Spears, 190 N. C. 747, 130 S. E. 740.

§ 1-472. Claim for delivery of personal property.—The plaintiff in an action to recover the possession of personal property may, at the time of issuing the summons or at any time before answer, claim the immediate delivery of the property as provided in this article. (Rev., s. 790; Code, s. 321; C. C. P., s. 176; C. S. 830.)

In General. — Strictly speaking, there is no such action under the code, "claim and delivery." The action is for the recovery of a specific chattel, and the delivery of the chattel is a provisional remedy, ancillary, but not essential to such action. If the plaintiff does not see fit, delivery of the chattel may be waived, and the action prosecuted to recover possession of the chattel, as in the old action of detinue, or to recover the value of the property, as in trover or trespass. Wilson v. Hughes, 94 N. C. 192. Jarman v. Ward, 67 N. C. 32; Allsbrook v. Shields, 67 N. C. 333; Hopper v. Miller, 76 N. C. 402.

Founded on Right to Possession. — Replevin (and the action of claim and delivery) is but a longer name for the same thing) is founded on the right of the plaintiff to the possession of property. If the defendant does not claim the possession, the main issue is on that right, and the court must have judgment to retain or be restored to the possession, as the case may be. Holmes v. Godwin, 69 N. C. 407, 472.

A Substitute for Common Law Remedies. — Under this section the action of "claim and delivery" is a substitute for the action of replevin, if a bond is given by the plaintiff: if it is not a substitute for the action of detinue or trover, Jarman v. Ward, 67 N. C. 32; Hopper v. Miller, 76 N. C. 402.

An Ancillary Remedy. — Under the State Constitution, Art. IV, Sec. 1, there is but one form of action in civil cases. In that, many ancillary remedies may be asked, e. g., Arrest and Bail, Claim and Delivery, Injunction, Attachment, and Appointment of Receivers. These need not be asked, even if the plaintiff has a right to them, if the parties are simply denied or dismissed, but that does not affect the action itself, which goes on if the plaintiff seeks his end. Hudson v. Hughey, 94 N. C. 182, and if they are improperly asked they are simply denied or dismissed, but that does not affect the action itself, which goes on if the plaintiff seeks his end. Hudson v. Hughey, 94 N. C. 182.

Statute Must Be Followed. — To entitle a party to maintain an action for claim and delivery of personal property, there must not be a multiplicity of proceedings of the same description. Ebor J. v. Bennett, 65 N. C. 186; Morris v. O'Brient, 94 N. C. 72; Hargrove v. Harris, 116 N. C. 418, 419, 21 S. E. 916.

Who May Bring the Action. — One in the rightful possession of property as bailiff can maintain an action of claim and delivery against a wrongdoer for depriving him of possession, 123 N. C. 266, 67 N. C. 402.

Same. — The crop produced by a tenant being vested in the lessor until the rents shall be paid, he can maintain an action for recovery of possession, and it is not necessary that he shall specifically designate in his complaint, or affidavit in claim and delivery, such undivided part. Boone v. Darden, 109 N. C. 74, 13 S. E. 387.

Same. — Where, in a contract between the landlord and tenant, no time was fixed for the delivery of crops, the landlord was not obliged to wait until the whole crop had been gathered, but had a right to bring his action for the possession of the crop before it was fully harvested. Rich v. Holloway, 163 N. C. 371, 163 N. C. 529.

§ 1-472. Claim and Delivery.
claim and delivery, the question is one for the jury. Allen v. McMillan, 191 N. C. 317, 318, 14 S. E. 276.

Judgment. — Where claim and delivery is brought to recover possession of property for the purpose of selling it, according to the terms of a contract, to pay an indebtedness, and all parties interested are before the court and the amount due ascertained, the plaintiff upon recovering holds as a trustee, and a judgment, directing an adjustment of all the equities involved in order that the matter may be determined, is the proper one to be rendered; and if possession of the property cannot be had, then a judgment ordering that it be delivered to the plaintiff should be in the alternative. Austin v. Seerest, 91 N. C. 214.

In claim and delivery the judgment should be for the defendant the property of the plaintiff; or, if so seized, that it is wrongfully detained by the defendant, executed by one or more sufficient sureties, approved by the sheriff, to the effect that they are bound in double the value of the property, as stated in the affidavit for the protection of the plaintiff, and that it is wrongfully detained by the defendant, and that the same is not taken for tax assessments or fines pursuant to a statute, or seized under an execution or attachment against the property of the plaintiff; or, if so seized, that it is, by statute, exempt from such seizure; and,

3. The actual value of the property. (Rev., s. 791; Code, s. 322; C. C. P., s. 177; 1881, c. 134; C. S. 831.)

4. That the property has not been taken for tax, assessment or fine, pursuant to a statute; or seized under an execution or attachment against the property of the plaintiff; or, if so seized, that it is, by statute, exempt from such seizure; and,

5. The actual value of the property. (Rev., s. 791; Code, s. 322; C. C. P., s. 177; 1881, c. 134; C. S. 831.)

Broad Language. — The words of this section are as broad as can well be imagined, and include every case, with few exceptions. Where the plaintiff makes an affidavit that he is entitled to the possession of certain personal property, and that it is wrongfully detained by the defendant, the court enters the "undertaking." Jones v. Ward, 77 N. C. 337, 338.

Under this section there is no limitation or restriction put upon the plaintiff, who seeks to recover personal property in the same immediately delivered to him, except that the same has not been taken for tax assessments or fines pursuant to a statute, or seized under an execution or attachment against the property of the plaintiff; or, if so seized, that it is, by statute, exempt from such seizure.

The language of the Code is immensely broader in its scope than the language of the REVISED STATUTES on the subject in hand. Mitchell v. Sims, 124 N. C. 411, 415, 32 S. E. 775.

Rights Conferred. — Under this section — when the immediate delivery of the property is sought, the broad language of the statute gives the right to the claimant, upon his executing the order required by law, to take the property from the possession of any person, even from an officer of the law. Mitchell v. Sims, 124 N. C. 411, 415, 32 S. E. 775.

When Section Applies. — It is only in cases when the plaintiff seeks to have the property delivered to him, instantaneous. Title to the property, and to have the possession pending the action, as in the old action of re,levin, that the affidavit and undertakings are required. Jaronian v. V. & R., 67 N. C. 147.

Rights Conferred. — Under this section — when the immediate delivery of the property is sought, the broad language of the statute gives the right to the claimant, upon his executing the order required by law, to take the property from the possession of any person, even an officer of the law. Mitchell v. Sims, 124 N. C. 411, 415, 32 S. E. 775.

Affidavit Made "Per" Another. — In claim and delivery of personal property, an affidavit made by plaintiff "per" another is sufficient. Spencer v. Bell, 109 N. C. 39, 11 S. E. 704.

Deputy Can Take Affidavit. — The deputy of the clerk of the superior court is authorized and can take the affidavit of the plaintiff and to order the seizure of personal property in an action of claim and delivery. Jackson v. Buchanan, 89 N. C. 74.

Burden of Proof. — In claim and delivery proceedings the burden is on the plaintiff to establish a cause of action. Smith v. Cook, 196 N. C. 558, 146 S. E. 229.

§ 1-474. Order of seizure and delivery to plaintiff. — The clerk of the court shall, thereupon, and upon the giving by the plaintiff of the undertaking prescribed in the succeeding section, by an indorsement in writing upon the affidavit, require the sheriff of the county where the property claimed is located, to take it from the defendant and deliver it to the plaintiff. (Rev., s. 792; Code, s. 322; C. C. P., s. 178; C. S. 833.)

Summons Necessary. — In an action for the claim and delivery of personal property, the issuing of a summons is necessary to give the clerk jurisdiction to make the order to the sheriff, requiring him to take such property and deliver it to the same party therein as the sheriff, or to sue, and also to that effect without such summons there is no justification to the sheriff, or defendant for any action in the premises. Potter v. Mardre, 74 N. C. 26.

A Ministerial Act. — "In issuing the order, the clerk does not represent the court, whose officer he is, and as in numerous cases he is authorized to do, under the statute, he performs a ministerial act, peremptorily enjoined, and exercises a function belonging to the office." Jackson v. Buchanan, 89 N. C. 74, 76.

 Same—Deputy Can Make Order. — It was held in Jackson v. Buchanan, 89 N. C. 74, that the clerk of the superior court, in making the order of seizure of property in the provisional remedy of claim and delivery only does a ministerial and not a judicial act or service, and therefore the deputy clerk might lawfully issue such order. Evans v. Ethridge, 96 N. C. 42, 43, 1 S. E. 613.

Plaintiff Must Continue the Action. — In an action of claim and delivery it is not competent to the plaintiff, after the property is put into his possession by process of law, to move to dismiss the action and fail to file a complaint, thereby raising no issue and depriving the defendant of an opportunity to assert his right. Manix v. Howard, 82 N. C. 439.

§ 1-475. Plaintiff's undertaking. — The plaintiff must give a written undertaking payable to the defendant, executed by one or more sufficient sureties, approved by the sheriff, to the effect that they are bound in double the value of the property, as stated in the affidavit for the prosecution of the action, for the return of the property to the defendant, with damages for its deterioration and detention if return can be had, and if for any cause return cannot be had, for the payment to him of such sum as may be recovered against the plaintiff for the value of the property at the time of the seizure, with interest thereon as damages for such seizure and detention. (Rev., s. 793; Code, s. 324; 1885, c. 50; C. C. P., s. 179; C. S. 833.)

Cross Reference. — As to the judgment in an action for the recovery of personal property, see section 1-230. Judgment Should Be in Alternative. — A judgment on the forthwith bond in claim and delivery proceedings or the judgment in an action for the return of the property, or, if that cannot be had, for the value of the property with damages. Grubbs v. Stephenson, 117 N. C. 66, 67, 23 S. E. 97.

Value Ascertained. — For the benefit of the sureties upon the undertaking, it is competent for the property at the time of the seizure should also be ascertained, as they are liable for such value, not exceeding the indebtedness secured. Griffith v. Richmond, 126 N. C. 577, 35 S. E. 620.

Where, in claim and delivery proceedings, the vendor of the property, having obtained a judgment to entitle him to have its possession restored and adjudged to be entitled to the property, the plaintiff (purchaser from the vendor), who had given bond for the return of the property to the defendant when seized, is held liable for the value of the property at the time of its seizure, and the costs, if delivery can be had, and if delivery cannot be had, for the payment to him of the amount paid on the purchase price of the car less the value of the property, as stated in the affidavit of value obtained from the car by defendant, is held error.

§ 1-477. Exceptions to undertaking; liability of surety—The defendant may, within three days after the service of a copy of the affidavit and undertaking, notify the sheriff personally, or by leaving a copy at his office in the county-seat of the county, that he excepts to the sufficiency of the sureties, and their undertaking, by delivering the same to him personally, or to his agent, from whose possession the property is taken; or, if neither can be found, by leaving them at the usual place of abode of either, with some person of suitable age and discretion. (Rev., s. 793; Code, s. 324; C. C. P., s. 179; 1885, c. 50; C. S. 834.)

Sheriff Acts Officially—The sheriff or his deputy is not the agent of the officer who served the claim and delivery, but he is an officer to carry out the mandate of the court. Williams v. Perkins, 192 N. C. 175, 124 S. E. 417.

Action against Sheriff—Where the sheriff has wrongfully seized certain personal property of the defendant in claim and delivery, not described therein as the subject of such seizure, the defendant may maintain an independent action for damages against the sheriff. Williams v. Perkins, 192 N. C. 175, 124 S. E. 417.

Quoted in General Motors Accept. Corp. v. Waugh, 207 N. C. 518, 171 S. E. 2d.

§ 1-478. Defendant's undertaking for replevy—At any time before the delivery of the property to the plaintiff, the defendant may, if he does not except to the sureties of the plaintiff, require the return thereof, upon giving to the sheriff a written undertaking, payable to the plaintiff, executed by one or more sufficient sureties, to subject the sheriff as surety, it is necessary to show that execution has been returned unsatisfied. Wells v. Bourne, 113 N. C. 82, 18 S. E. 106.

When Objection Must Be Made—The objection that what purports to be the undertaking of the plaintiff, in such action, is not the undertaking of the plaintiff, in such action, must be made and decided at the trial term. Spencer v. Bell, 109 N. C. 39, 13 S. E. 704.

to be discharged upon the payment of the contract price with interest and cost, less the payments by the defendant. Hall v. Tillman, 110 N. C. 220, 14 S. E. 745.

The recovery against the surety on a replevin bond in claim and delivery is not required to be determined in a separate action. Federal Finance, etc., Co. v. Teeter, 196 N. C. 232, 145 S. E. 651.

Same—Debt Recovered.—The sureties to an undertaking, on behalf of the defendant, in a claim and delivery are not liable for any debt which the plaintiff may recover in the action, if the defendant has not been required to give bond for the payment by him of the costs of the action, if a judgment adverse to him is rendered in the action. However, when the bond is so conditioned, the bond is not for that reason void and unenforceable against either the defendant or his surety. In the absence of fraud, mistake, or other matters entitling them or either of them to equitable relief, both the defendant and his surety are not discharged by the action, if the plaintiff, or his assignee, recovers the amount of the bond, which they executed voluntarily. Wright v. Nash, 205 N. C. 221, 171 S. E. 48.

The recovery against the surety can in no event exceed the penalty of the bond. Boyd v. Walters, 201 N. C. 375, 160 S. E. 451.

Summary Judgment against Sureties.—Summary judgment may be rendered against the defendant's sureties on an undertaking, in an action of claim and delivery, but the judgment must be such as is authorized by this section, and sec. 1-230. Hall v. Tillman, 103 N. C. 276, 9 S. E. 194.

Form of Judgment against Surety.—Where the defendant in claim and delivery replevis the property, giving bond for the retention to cover loss in the action, the form of the judgment against the surety on the bond should be for the full amount of the bond, to be discharged upon return of the property and the payment of damages and costs recovered by the plaintiff. Boyd v. Walters, 201 N. C. 375, 160 S. E. 451.

Sureties' Defenses. — The surety on a replevin bond in claim and delivery, under the requirements of this section that the property shall be delivered to the plaintiff, or, if it cannot be delivered, the value thereof to the defendant, etc., may not, upon adjudication in plaintiff's favor, set up the defense that it had been taken by another, or procured by the act of God, or that another than the plaintiff had a superior title to the property by mortgage or otherwise. Garner v. Quakenbush, 188 N. C. 180, 124 S. E. 173.

The remedy of a surety on a replevin bond to contest his liability as such under a consent judgment entered by the court against the defendant, his principal, is by appeal from the judgment, or by an independent action in case of fraud, and not by action in the action. Wallace & Sons v. Robinson, 185 N. C. 530, 117 S. E. 508.

Recovery of Costs.—The language of this section is not so explicit as that of the original section of the Code, but it is conceded by the court that the costs of prosecuting the action involving the title to the property should be recovered by a plaintiff who prevails against the defendant and the sureties on the bond. Hall v. Tillman, 110 N. C. 220, 229, 14 S. E. 745.

§ 1-479. Qualification and justification of defendant's sureties.—The qualification of the defendant's sureties, and their justification, is as prescribed in respect to bail upon an order of arrest. The defendant's sureties, upon notice to the plaintiff of not less than two nor more than six days, shall justify before the court, a judge or justice of the peace, and upon this justification the sheriff must deliver the property to the defendant. The sheriff is responsible for the defendant's sureties until justification is completed or expressly waived, and he may retain the property until that time; but if they, or others in their place, fail to justify at the time and place appointed, he must deliver the property to the plaintiff. (Rev. ss. 796, 797; Code, ss. 327, 328; C. C. P., ss. 182, 183; C. S. 837.)

Cross References.—As to qualifications of bail in arrest and bail, see section 1-423. As to justification, see section 1-424.

§ 1-480. Property concealed in buildings.—If the property, or any part of it, is concealed in a building or enclosure, the sheriff shall publicly declare and deliver it. If it is not delivered he must cause the building or enclosure to be broken open, and take the property into his possession. If necessary, he may call to his aid the power of his county, and if the property is upon the person the sheriff or other officer may seize the person, and search for and take it. (Rev., s. 798; Code, s. 329; C. C. P., s. 184; C. S. 838.)

§ 1-481. Care and delivery of seized property.—When the sheriff has taken property, as provided in this article, he must keep it in a secure place, and deliver it to the party entitled thereto, upon receiving his lawful fees for taking and his necessary expenses for keeping it. (Rev., s. 799; Code, s. 330; C. C. P., s. 185; C. S. 839.)

Expenses of Seizing Included in Costs.—It is proper to allow in the bill of costs the expense of seizing and caring for the property. Hendricks v. Ireland, 162 N. C. 523, 525, 7 S. E. 1011.

§ 1-482. Property claimed by third person; proceedings.—When the property taken by the sheriff is claimed by any person other than the plaintiff or defendant the claimant may intervene upon filing an affidavit of his title and right to the possession of the property, stating the grounds of such right and title, and upon his delivering to the sheriff an undertaking in an amount double the value of the property specified in his affidavit, for the delivery of the property to the person entitled to it, and for the payment of all such costs and damages as may be awarded against him, this undertaking to be executed by one or more sufficient sureties, accompanied by their affidavits that they are each worth double the value of the property. A copy of this undertaking and accompanying affidavit shall be served by the sheriff on the plaintiff and defendant at least ten days before the return day of the summons in the action, when the court trying it shall order a jury to be impaneled to inquire in whom is the right to the property specified in plaintiff's complaint. The finding of the jury is conclusive as to the parties then in court, and the court shall adjudge accordingly, unless it is reversed upon appeal. In a court of justice of the peace he may try such issue without a jury being demanded, and then proceedings are to be conducted in all respects as in jury trials before justices of the peace. In a court of a justice of the peace an intervener shall not be required to serve on the plaintiff and defendant the affidavits and bonds required by this section, ten days before return day; but if said bond and affidavit are filed by any person owning the property when such case is called for trial, he shall be allowed to intervene: Provided that this section shall not be construed to prevent any such intervener or third person from intervening and asserting his claim to the property, or any part thereof, without giving bond as herein required, where such intervener or other third person does not ask for possession of the property pending the trial of the issue. (Rev., s. 800; Code, s. 351; C. C. P., s. 186; R. C., c. 7, s. 10; 1739, c. 389, s. 3; 1913, c. 183; 1933, c. 131; C. S. 840.)

Cross References.—As to bringing in third parties in general, see annotations under section 1-471, the provisions of which are identical with this section.

Editor's Note.—The original section required that the under- defendant, before the value in possession stated in the plaintiff's affidavit, while the 1933 amendment required double the value as stated in the intervenor's affidavit. This was probably intended to apply where the intervening claim and the intervener's affidavit were made prior to the introduction of the claim. The 1933 amendment has depreciated, and not to allow his statement of the value of the property involved or its value as stated in the intervener's affidavit. This has been required to give judgment vacated, when they have not offered to interplead and claim the property in the manner prescribed by the third claimant, to becoming a party to the action, it being a matter of procedure. Temple v. Eades Hay Co., 184 N. C. 239, 114 E. 162.

Husband and Wife.—Where the plaintiffs attach property and bring action against a husband and wife to have a deed from the husband to the wife set aside, and to attach property by attachment attached to the property, and the wife has a right to set up her claim to the property attached, and the refusal of the trial court to require her to give a general answer, and to proceed as in the case of Unaka, etc., Nat. Bank v. Lewis, 201 N. C. 148, 159 S. E. 312.

§ 1-483. Delivery of property to intervener.—Upon the filing by the claimant of the undertakings set forth in § 1-482, the sheriff is not bound to keep the property, or to deliver it to the plaintiff; but may deliver it to the claimant, unless the plaintiff executes and delivers to him a similar undertaking to that required of claimant; and notwithstanding such claim, when so made, the sheriff may retain the property a reasonable time to demand such indemnity. (Rev., s. 801; Code, s. 332; R. C., c. 7, s. 10; 1739, c. 389, s. 3; C. S. 841.)

Purpose of Section.—This section is intended only for the benefit of the sheriff, and to enable him to protect himself against the claim of the third party, by taking from the plaintiff an indemnity against such claim before he delivers the property to the third party. It does not amount, on the part of the third claimant, to becoming a party to the action, it is not a necessary step in that direction, and the third claimant may become a party under section 1-73 without having made and served such affidavit. Clemmons v. Hampton, 70 N. C. 534.

Sheriff Must Take Security.—Under this section the property is not to be delivered to the intervener by the sheriff until the security is given. Bear v. Cohen, 65 N. C. 511, 514.

§ 1-484. Sheriff to return papers in ten days.—The sheriff must return the undertaking, notice and affidavit, with his proceedings therefore, to the court in which the action is pending, without delay, ten days after taking the property mentioned therein. (Rev., s. 802; Code, s. 133; C. C. P., s. 187; C. S. 849.)

Art. 37. Injunction.

§ 1-485. When temporary injunction issued.—A temporary injunction may be issued by order in accordance with the provisions of this article. The order may be made by any judge of the superior court in the following cases, and shall be issued by the clerk of the court in which the action is required to be tried:
I. General Considerations.

II. Nature.

III. Grounds of Relief.

A. Character of Relief In General.

B. Availability of Other Relief.

C. Application of Section.

1. When it appears by the complaint that the plaintiff is entitled to the relief demanded, and this relief, or any part thereof, consists in restraining the commission or continuance of some act the commission or continuance of which, during the litigation, would produce injury to the plaintiff; or,

2. When, during the litigation, it appears by affidavit that a party thereto is doing, or threatens to do, an act which is not germane to the subject of the action, and tending to render the judgment ineffectual; or,

3. When, during the pendency of an action, it appears by affidavit of any person that the defendant or the third party is or is about to remove or dispose of his property, with intent to defraud the plaintiff. (Rev. s. 806; Code, ss. 334, 338; C. C. P., ss. 188, 189; C. S. 843.)

I. GENERAL CONSIDERATION.

Effect upon Prior Law.—This section is merely a statutory recognition of the abolition of the distinction between special and common injunctions, a distinction existing under the old practice. Since the adoption of the Code all injunctions are simply ancillary proceedings and are not available to anyone upon the basis of whose claim for such relief does not come within at least one of the enumerated classes of this section. Person v. Person, 154 N. C. 453, 70 S. E. 752. Under the existing procedure issuance of an injunction presupposes, as an essential requisite, the pendency of an action which the action is to restrain or deter. Armstrong v. Kinsell, 164 N. C. 125, 80 S. E. 235.

Definitions.—An injunction in its ordinary sense is a command, and this command may be either to do or refrain from doing some particular thing. See Frinck v. Hay, 22 Wall. 250, 22 L. Ed. 857.

Injunctions are also classified as interlocutory or temporary and permanent. Kickling v. Owings, 17 How. 47, 49, 15 L. Ed. 256.

Restrain Sought Must Be Germane to Subject of Action.—This section does not permit injunction to issue when the restraining sought does not involve the subject of the action. Union Pacific R. Co. v. Cheyenne, 113 U. S. 516, 5 S. Ct. 601, 28 L. Ed. 1098; Corbus v. Baltimore & Ohio Co., 7 114, U. S. 182, 5 S. Ct. 925, 28 L. Ed. 1098.

Restraining Order and Injunction Distinguished. — This section in no wise abolishes the distinction between restraining orders and injunctions. Nevertheless the terms are so used that a distinction may be drawn between the two.

Injunctions are a species of process and are of a continuing nature and involve the perpetuating of a determination. Armstrong v. Kinsell, 164 N. C. 125, 80 S. E. 235.

Injunctions are simply ancillary proceedings and are not available to anyone on whose claim for such relief does not come within at least one of the enumerated classes of this section. Person v. Person, 154 N. C. 453, 70 S. E. 752. Under the existing procedure issuance of an injunction presupposes, as an essential requisite, the pendency of an action which the action is to restrain or deter. Armstrong v. Kinsell, 164 N. C. 125, 80 S. E. 235.

Mandamus and Mandatory Injunction Distinguished. — Injunctions are simply ancillary proceedings and are of a continuing nature and involve the perpetuating of a determination. See Parker v. McPhail, 112 N. C. 502, 503, 16 S. E. 846. This principle was recognized and applied in Ledbetter v. Pin- ner, 120 N. C. 405, 27 S. E. 123, a case in which the validity of the judgment obtained was contested on the grounds that it was entered outside of the county in which the main action was instituted.

Mandamus and Mandatory Injunction Distinguished. — Injunctions are simply ancillary proceedings and are of a continuing nature and involve the perpetuating of a determination. See Parker v. McPhail, 112 N. C. 502, 503, 16 S. E. 846. This principle was recognized and applied in Ledbetter v. Pin- ner, 120 N. C. 405, 27 S. E. 123, a case in which the validity of the judgment obtained was contested on the grounds that it was entered outside of the county in which the main action was instituted.

Good Faith and Reasonable Diligence Necessary. — Before injunctive relief will be granted it is necessary that the plaintiff show his good faith and reasonable diligence in instituting his action, Jones v. Commissioners, 107 N. C. 12, 9 S. E. 256, 15 L. Ed. 44.

Constitutional Provisions. — The constitutional prohibition of a trial by jury in all civil actions does not extend to issues of fact as hereofertoe understood, and does not hinder that tribunal from trying such questions of fact as may be involved in a consideration of the propriety of an order or order restraining provisional injunction. Heilig v. Stokes, 63 N. C. 612, 613.

III. GROUNDS OF RELIEF.

A. Character of Relief In General.

An injunction can only operate in personam and unless the plaintiff shows his good faith and reasonable diligence in instituting his action, Jones v. Commissioners, 107 N. C. 12, 9 S. E. 256, 15 L. Ed. 44.

Constitutional Provisions. — The constitutional prohibition of a trial by jury in all civil actions does not extend to issues of fact as hereofertoe understood, and does not hinder that tribunal from trying such questions of fact as may be involved in a consideration of the propriety of an order or order restraining provisional injunction. Heilig v. Stokes, 63 N. C. 612, 613.

Must Be an Adequate Remedy at Law.—The remedy at law, or in equity, or in both, must be adequate. Hendricks v. Wooten, 150 N. C. 295, 63 S. E. 1061.

Remedy Only in Foreign Courts. — Formerly a court of equity allowed an injunctive remedy to be obtained in a court of foreign jurisdiction. This rule has been modified and the court of equity is no longer allowed to confer an injunction on a party seeking to have a court of foreign jurisdiction exercise jurisdiction to restrain the negotiation of a note in the hands of a holder, a nonresident and beyond the borders of the state. See Walla Walla v. Walla Walla Water Co., 172 U. S. 7, 19 S. Ct. 77, 43 L. Ed. 341.

Must Be Some Interference. — There must be some interference, actual or threatened, with property or rights of a pecuniary nature, to give chancery jurisdiction to exercise its equitable powers of the court. See In re Debs, 158 U. S. 564, 583, 15 S. Ct. 900, 39 L. Ed. 1092.

B. Availability of Other Relief.

In General.—It is well established that when proper relief can otherwise be had there will be no injunction issued, and where a party can obtain his relief by a motion in the ordinary course of law he will not be entitled to proceed in the chancery court for an injunction. Faison v. McIlwaine, 72 N. C. 312, 313, and cases there cited.

Irreparable Injury.—The rule in regard to the granting of an injunction on the ground that the injury complained of is irreparable in its nature is a strict one. The plaintiff must clearly show that the injury is pecuniary in nature, and that it cannot be repaired, put back again, or atoned for in damages. Bond v. Wool, 107 N. C. 139, 12 S. E. 281; Goldsboro Lumber Co. v. Hines Bros. Lumber Co., 127 N. C. 137, 37 S. E. 729; Sett v. McKesson v. Hennessee, 66 N. C. 630, 58 S. E. 793; See also, McKesson v. Hennessee, 66 N. C. 630, 58 S. E. 793; Griffin v. Goldsboro Water Co., 122 N. C. 206, 37 S. E. 598; Merrick v. Intramontaine Re Co., 64 N. C. 69, 71. A few of the leading cases illustrative of the principles herein before set forth are given in I. C. 1904-5, 227. See also, Note 1-425, 227.

Acreage Already Committed.—An injunction will not issue to restrain an act which has already been committed. Yount v. Setzer, 135 N. C. 213, 71 S. E. 289.

Specific Instances.—It is in a work of this nature impossible to state the facts and circumstances appearing in the numerous cases pertaining to the subject. A few of the leading cases illustrating the principles herein before set forth are given in Note 1-425, 227. Other cases, where the parties being in privity, the plaintiff being such party, and the land and its crops to be preserved, such as the cases in which the plaintiff is the owner of the land and the party to whom the crops are sold, are in order that the practitioner may have a key to the subject, Ed. Notes.

Wasteful or Wrongful Disposition of Property of Dissolved Corporation.—The court, upon the dissolution of a corporation, has full control over the property of such corporation, and if necessary will intervene to protect such property. When no harm thereby can be done, irrespective of the insolvency of the alleged trespasser. Norfolk So. R. Co. v. Rapid Transit Co., 192 N. C. 305, 141 S. E. 882.

Destruction of Trees. — Allegations that defendant is in the possession of timber or trees, or the right to cut and remove the same during a term of years, is claimed by the party to the action or not, the time within which such timber or trees may be cut or removed by the party claiming the same, and all other rights acquired in connection therewith, shall not be affected or abridged, but the running of the term is suspended during the pendency of the action. (Rev., s. 808; 1901, c. 666, s. 1; 1903, c. 642; C. S. 845.)

Purposé of Section. — The primary object of this section is to throw a greater safeguard around the rights of the litigating parties and to preserve the timber upon the land in dispute, until the right of the respective parties can be adjudicated. Moore v. Fowl, 139 N. C. 51, 51 S. E. 796.

Constitutional Provisions. — Although the time for cutting the timber trees was extended with the appointment of a receiver, and since the enactment of this section, it is not necessary to allege the insolvency of the defendant. McKay v. Chapin, 120 N. C. 159, 26 S. E. 701.

§ 1-487. Timberlands, trial of title to. — In all actions to try title to timberlands and for trespass thereon for cutting timber trees, when the court finds as a fact that there is a bona fide contention on both sides based upon evidence constituting a prima facie title, no order shall be made pending such action, permitting either party to cut said timber trees, except by consent, until the title to said land or timber trees is finally determined in the action. In all cases where the title to any timber or trees, or the right to cut and remove the same during a term of years, is claimed by any party to such action, and the use of the soil or other estate in the land by another, whether party to the action or not, the time within which such timber or trees may be cut or removed by the party claiming the same, and all other rights acquired in connection therewith, shall not be affected or abridged, but the running of the term is suspended during the pendency of the action. (Rev., s. 808; 1901, c. 666, s. 1; 1903, c. 642; C. S. 845.)

Purposé of Section. — The primary object of this section is to throw a greater safeguard around the rights of the litigating parties and to preserve the timber upon the land in dispute, until the right of the respective parties can be adjudicated. Moore v. Fowl, 139 N. C. 51, 51 S. E. 796.

Constitutional Provisions. — Although the time for cutting the timber trees was extended with the appointment of a receiver, and since the enactment of this section, it is now settled that the section does not interfere with any vested right within the meaning of the constitutional provision prohibiting such interference. Riley v. Neuse Lumber Co., 165 N. C. 391, 144 S. E. 344.

Plaintiff Must Show a Bona Fide Claim. — The plaintiff, in order to prevent a dissolution of the injunction obtained against the defendant, must show (1) a bona fide claim to the lands, and (2) that such claim is based upon evidence constituting a prima facie title, no order shall be made pending such action, permitting either party to cut said timber trees, except by consent, until the title to said land or timber trees is finally determined in the action. In all cases where the title to any timber or trees, or the right to cut and remove the same during a term of years, is claimed by any party to such action, and the use of the soil or other estate in the land by another, whether party to the action or not, the time within which such timber or trees may be cut or removed by the party claiming the same, and all other rights acquired in connection therewith, shall not be affected or abridged, but the running of the term is suspended during the pendency of the action. (Rev., s. 808; 1901, c. 666, s. 1; 1903, c. 642; C. S. 845.)

§ 1-488. When timber may be cut.—In any action specified in § 1-487, when the judge finds as a fact that the contention of either party is not in good faith and is not based upon evidence constituting a prima facie title, upon motion of the other party, who may satisfy the court of the bona fides of his contention and who may produce evidence showing a prima facie title, the court may allow such party to cut the timber trees by giving bond as required by law. Nothing in this section affects the right of appeal, and when any party to such action has been enjoined, a sufficient bond must be required to cover all damages that may accrue to the party enjoined by reason of the injunction as now required by law. (Rev., s. 809; 1901, c. 666, ss. 2, 3; C. S. 846.)

Editor's Note.—This section shows clearly the legislative intent to preserve the power of the courts to require a bond of the party who succeeds in having the injunction dissolved, and who is then allowed to proceed to cut the timber without notice; but the exercise of this procedure is greatly limited by the provisions of this section, most of which are conditions precedent to its exercise.

Essential Elements. — Under this section the plaintiff must not only show (a) that his claim is made in good faith and (b) that he has a prima facie title thereto, but the court must be able to find as a fact, (c) that the claim of the adverse party is not in good faith. When relief is sought under this provision all these conditions must be complied with. Johnson v. Duvall, 135 N. C. 642, 47 S. E. 611.

Injunction Granted Where Contention Bona Fide. — This section was not intended to be a substitute for the preceding sections, and when the court fails to find, in the light of all the evidence, that there is not a bona fide contention, then it should grant an injunction under sections 1-486, 1-487. Kelly v. Enterprise Lumber Co., 157 N. C. 175, 63 S. E. 297.

§ 1-489. Time of issuing.—The injunction may be granted at the time of commencing the action, or at any time afterwards, before judgment, upon its appearing satisfactorily to the judge, by the affidavit of the plaintiff, or of any other person, that sufficient grounds exist therefor. A copy of such affidavit must be served with the injunction. (Rev., s. 809; 1901, c. 666, ss. 2, 3; C. S. 846.)

Editor's Note.—The 1943 amendment substituted the words "at the time of commencing the action, or at any time afterwards" for the words "when or at any time after commencing the action," formerly appearing in the second and third lines of this section.

Section Constructed Strictly. — This section has received a strict construction and a compliance with the procedural steps is mandatory, and is not subject to waiver by agreement of the parties. Taylor v. Boone, 172 N. C. 91, 89 S. E. 1055.

Requisites—(a) Affidavit. — Where there is a failure to serve a copy of the affidavit with the injunction, and the judge does not allow such service to be thereafter made, the injunction will be dissolved. Taylor v. Boone, 172 N. C. 91, 89 S. E. 1055.

Same—(b) Summons. — An injunction granted before the issuance of the summons in action is premature, since by the express provision of the section an injunction can only be granted at the commencement of the action, or sometime thereafter. (Rev., s. 809; 1901, c. 666, ss. 2, 3; C. S. 846.)

§ 1-490. Not issued for longer than twenty days without notice.—No restraining order, or order to stay proceedings, for a longer time than twenty days shall be granted by a judge out of court, except upon due notice to the adverse party; but the order shall continue and remain in force until vacated after notice, to be fixed by the court, of not less than two nor more than ten days. (Rev., s. 811; Code, s. 346; C. C. P., s. 345; 1905, c. 26; C. S. 848.)

See note under § 27-29.

Order Proceeding to Make an Injunction.—The Code does not change the mode of setting aside an irregular execution; it must still be done by a motion in the cause, and an injunction, where necessary, must be obtained in like manner. Foard v. Alexander, 64 N. C. 69, 71.

Effect of Issuance for More than Twenty Days without Notice.—An order to stay proceedings, made, without notice, by a judge out of court for a longer time than twenty days, is irregular and a demurrer to the complaint in the action in which such order was made may be treated as a motion to vacate. Foard v. Alexander, 64 N. C. 69.

§ 1-491. Issued after answer, only on notice.—An injunction shall not be allowed after the defendant has answered, except upon notice, or upon an order to show cause; but in such case the defendant may be restrained until the decision of the judge granting or refusing the injunction. (Rev., s. 812; Code, s. 340; C. C. P., s. 191; C. S. 849.)

When Special Notice Required.—Special notice of motions for injunctions is only required when made or to be heard out of term; but in such cases, if the opposing party voluntarily appears, in person or by attorney, he will be ordinarily deemed to have waived notice. In cases other than these, the principle that one who has been duly made party to a pending action is bound to take notice of all motions, orders, etc., made during term time, applies with full force and no further notice is required. Hemphill v. Moore, 104 N. C. 378, 10 S. E. 313.

§ 1-492. Order to show cause.—If the judge deems it proper that the defendant, or any of several defendants, should be heard before granting an injunction, an order may be made requiring cause to be shown, at a specified time and place, why the injunction should not be granted; and the defendant may, in the meantime, be restrained. (Rev., s. 813; Code, s. 342; C. C. P., s. 193; C. S. 850.)

Service upon Corporation.—Ordinarily a corporation before the grant of injunction has a right to service of an order to show cause upon some officer or agent, but if the officers and agents keep themselves out of the way for the express purpose of avoiding such a service, it cannot justly complain if the service on its attorney is made the equivalent of that which its agents by their wrongful acts have made impossible. See Eureka Lake, etc., Canal Co. v. Yuba County, 116 U. S. 410, 418, 6 S. Ct. 429, 29 L. Ed. 671.

§ 1-493. What judges have jurisdiction.—The judges of the superior court have jurisdiction to grant injunctions and issue restraining orders in all civil actions and proceedings. Any judge of such court, having jurisdiction of the case, may issue a restraining order in any cause and anywhere in the state. Hamilton v. Tizard, 112 N. C. 589, 590, 17 S. E. 519.

Perpetual Injunction. — A perpetual injunction must be granted only in the county in which the cause is pending.
§ 1-494. Before what judge returnable.—All restraining orders and injunctions granted by any of the judges of the superior court except one holding a special term in any county, shall be made returnable before the resident judge of the district, or the judge assigned to the district, or holding by exchange the courts of the district where the civil action or special proceeding is pending, within twenty days from date of order. If the judge before whom the matter is returned fails, for any reason, to hear the motion and application, or to continue them to some other time and place, any judge resident in, or assigned to hold the courts of, some adjoining district may hear and determine the same to some other time and place. This removal continues in force the motion and application, if the court finally decides that the plaintiff in injunction give bond is mandatory, the provisions of the section is capable of being given.

Restraining Order.—A restraining order for a period of twenty days can be made returnable anywhere in the state. Hamilton v. Icard, 112 N. C. 589, 590, 17 S. E. 519.

Failure of Judge to Hear Motion.—Where the judge to whom the motion is returnable fails to hear it, the judge of the adjoining district can hear it upon ten days notice to the parties. Hamilton v. Icard, 112 N. C. 589, 590, 17 S. E. 519.

Judge Holding Special Term.—A judge holding a special term cannot make a restraining order returnable before himself where the summons is returnable to a term of court beginning after the special term. Royal v. Thornton, 195 N. C. 263, 63 S. E. 1040.

Perpetual Injunctions.—See section 1-693.

Cited.—See note to section 1-491.

§ 1-495. Stipulation as to judge to hear.—By a stipulation in writing, signed by all the parties to an application for an injunction order, or their attorneys, to the effect that the matter may be heard before a judge designated in the stipulation, the judge before whom the restraining order is returnable by law, or who is by law the judge to hear the motion for an injunction order, shall, upon receipt of the stipulation forward it and all the papers to the judge designated, whose duty it then is to hear and decide the matter, and return all the papers to the court out of which they issued, the necessary process or express money to be furnished to the judge. (Rev., s. 337; 1883, c. 33; C. S. 853.)

Stipulation of Parties.—Agreement in writing by all parties to an application as to what judge of the superior court shall hear the motion is allowed under this section. Hamilton v. Icard, 112 N. C. 589, 17 S. E. 519; Crabtree v. Scheelkev, 119 N. C. 56, 58, 25 S. E. 707.
§ 1-497. Damages on dissolution.—A judgment dissolving an injunction carries with it judgment for damages against the party procuring it and the sureties on his undertaking without the requiring of malice or want of probable cause in procuring the injunction, which damages may be ascertained by a reference or otherwise, as the judge shall direct. North Carolina Gold, et al. v. Cow, 79 N. C. 48. See also, Nansemond Timber Co. v. Rountree, 122 N. C. 45, 29 S. E. 61; Crawford v. Pearson, 116 N. C. 2, 21 S. E. 561.

§ 1-498. Issued without notice; application to vacate.—If the injunction is granted without notice, the defendant, at any time before the trial, may apply, upon notice to be fixed by the court of not less than two nor more than ten days, to the judge having jurisdiction, to vacate or modify the same, if he is within the district and not in an adjoining district, but if out of the district and not in an adjoining district, then before any judge who is at the time in the district, and if there is no judge in the district, before any judge in an adjoining district. The application may be made upon the complaint and the affidavits on which the injunction was granted, or upon the affidavits on the part of the defendant, with or without answer. If no such application is made, the injunction continues in force until such application is made and determined by the judge, and a verified answer has the effect only of an affidavit. Blackwell Durham Tobacco Co. v. McElwain, 94 N. C. 429.

Answer Treated in Affidavit. — The answer under the present practice, in an application to vacate an injunction, may be served, but a verified affidavit by the plaintiff may introduce other affidavits to support the allegations in his complaint; such a verified answer is not conclusive but has only the effect of an affidavit. Blackwell Durham Tobacco Co. v. McElwain, 94 N. C. 429.

After the answer and all the affidavits have been filed, if it appears to the court that the plaintiff’s whole equity is denied and his case is fully met, the injunction will not be continued to the final hearing. (Rich v. Durham Tobacco Co., 81, 3 S. E. 749. See also, Cooper v. Cooper, 127 N. C. 490, 37 S. E. 492.

However, where it appears from the affidavits that there is probable cause or it can reasonably be seen that the plaintiff will be able to make out his case at the final hearing, then the injunction will be continued. Seip v. Wright, 172, 145, 30 S. E. 336.

Time within Discretion of Judge.—The time, when the affidavits of defendants should be filed and the granting of continuance in injunction cases, is largely within the discretion of the judge. Judge Shute v. Harvey & Son Co., 189 N. C. 494, 127 S. E. 545.

§ 1-499. When opposing affidavits admitted.—If the application is made upon affidavits on the part of the defendant, the plaintiff may oppose the same by affidavits or other proof, in addition to those on which the injunction was granted. (Rev., s. 820; Code, s. 345; C. C. P., s. 196; C. S. 857.)

Original Affidavits Supported by Counter Affidavits.—When the defendant, in an application for a provisional remedy, makes opposing affidavits, it is competent for the plaintiff to support his original affidavits by others to the same effect and in reply to those offered by the defendants. Young v. Rollins, 85 N. C. 485.

Defective Affidavit Made Sufficient by Counter Affidavit.—Where the plaintiff’s first affidavit is insufficient in form, and objection is made thereto by the defendant, the reply affidavit by the plaintiff will cure the objectional consequence of the defects contained in the original affidavit. Clark v. Clark, 64 N. C. 150.

Sufficiency of Verification.—An affidavit, upon which an application for a provisional remedy is based, is sufficient verified when made before a commissioner for this state resident in another state and authenticated by his official signature and seal. Young v. Rollins, 85 N. C. 485.

§ 1-500. Restraining orders and injunctions in effect pending appeal; indemnifying bond.—Whenever a plaintiff shall appeal from a judgment rendered at chambers, or in term, either vacating a restraining order theretofore granted, or denying a perpetual injunction in any case where such injunction is the principal relief sought by the plaintiff, and when by such appeal, it appears that vacating said restraining order or denying said injunction will enable the defendant to consummate the threatened act, sought to be enjoined, before such appeal can be had, so that the plaintiff will thereby be deprived of the benefits of any judgment of the supreme court, reversing the judgment of the lower court, then in such case the original restraining order granted in the case shall in the discretion of the trial judge be and remain in full force and effect until said appeal shall be finally disposed of: Provided, the plaintiff shall forthwith execute and deposit with the clerk a written undertaking with sufficient surety, approved by the clerk or judge, in an amount to be fixed by the judge to indemnify the party enjoined against all loss, not exceeding an amount to be specified, which he may suffer on account of continuing such restraining order as aforesaid, in the event that the judgment of the lower court is affirmed by the supreme court. (1921, c. 88; C. S. 859(a).)

Discretion of Court Not Reviewable.—Where an appeal
§ 1-501. What judge appoints.—Any judge of the superior court with authority to grant restraining orders and injunctions has like jurisdiction in appointing receivers, and all motions to show cause are returnable as is provided for injunctions. (Rev., 8, 146; Code, 379; C. C. P., 215; 1876-7, c. 223; 1879, c. 63; 1881, c. 51; C. S. 850.)

Cross References.—As to corporate receivers, see sections 55-147 to 55-157. As to compensation of receivers, see annotations under sections 55-155 to 55-157. As to receiver of ward's estate, see annotations under sections 1-479, 1-485 to 1-493. As to receiver appointed in supplemental proceedings, see sections 1-496 to 1-498.

In General.—The provisions of this section and sections 1-485, 1-486, in express terms invest the court with very large and comprehensive powers to protect the rights and prevent the perpetration of frauds and wrongs in cases of emergency, in suits in equity, upon the subject-matter of the action, and to take charge of and protect the property in controversy both before and after judgment, by injunctions and through receivers, pending the litigation, as necessary to accomplish such ends. As to the courts in the exercise of these remedial agencies, and do not in any degree abridge the exercise of like general powers that appertain to courts of equity to grant the relief specified, or to grant perpetual injunctions in proper cases, and the like relief. Roper Lumber Co. v. Wallace, 93 N. C. 252, 57 S. E. 519. As to what judges have jurisdiction in appointing receivers, and all motions to show cause are returnable as is provided for injunctions, see sections 1-479, 1-485 to 1-493. As to receiver in supplemental proceedings, see sections 1-496 to 1-498.

Discretion.—A receiver is an independent person between parties, appointed by the court to receive the rents, issues, or profits of land, or other thing in question, pending the suit, where it does not seem reasonable to the court that either party should do so. See Booth v. Clark, 17 How. 327, 331, 15 L. Ed. 164.

Purpose.—It is perfectly manifest that this section, with a view to prevent the inconvenience of parties, intended to fix the place where, rather than the persons before whom, such orders should be made returnable, and that the judges should be denominated in the order in which we find them because it was supposed that on one or the other of them would at all times be within the district of the action. Galbreath v. Everett, 84 N. C. 546, 549. Inherent Power.—The power to appoint a receiver is necessarily inherent in a court which possesses equitable jurisdiction. Skinner v. Maxwell, 66 N. C. 45, 47.

Discretion of Judge.—The appointment of a receiver is not a matter of positive right, but rests in the sound legal discretion of the judge, who will take into consideration the nature of the property and the effect of granting or refusing such an application upon the material interests of the respective parties to the controversy. Whitehead v. Hale, 118 N. C. 601, 24 S. E. 560.

Same.—Necessary Number.—The court should not appoint more receivers than are necessary. Battery Park Bank v. Worth v. Piedmont Bank, 121 N. C. 343, 349, 28 S. E. 488. Necessity That Judge "Find the Facts."—It is the duty of the court, in passing upon a motion for an injunction or the appointment of a receiver, to consider the consequences of such action upon both parties. Venable v. Smith, 98 N. C. 253, 22 S. E. 97. Effect on Both Parties Considered.—It is the duty of the court, in passing upon a motion for an injunction or the appointment of a receiver, to consider the consequences of such action upon both parties. Venable v. Smith, 98 N. C. 253, 22 S. E. 97. Lewis v. Roger Lumber Co., 119 N. C. 11, 5 S. E. 19, 20.

Order without Prejudice.—Where it appears from verified pleadings that there is a bona fide controversy between the parties, the mortgagee's order temporarily restraining the foreclosure of the mortgage is properly continued to the final hearing, without prejudice to the right of the mortgagee to move for the appointment of a receiver. Bennett v. Mortgage Service Corp., 256 N. C. 902, 173 S. E. 22.

What Judge Appoints.—Ordinarily the motion for a receiver must be made before the resident judge of the district, the superior court to which the case is transferred by exchange, at the option of the mover. Corbin v. Berry, 83 N. C. 28; Worth v. Piedmont Bank, 121 N. C. 343, 347, 28 S. E. 488.

Or, at most, in analogy to the granting of restraining orders, if the motion for a temporary receiver is granted by any other judge than one of those just named, the order must be made returnable before the resident judge or the judges. Galbreath v. Everett, 84 N. C. 546; Hamilton v. Icard, 112 N. C. 589, 17 S. E. 519, Worth v. Piedmont Bank, 121 N. C. 343, 347, 28 S. E. 488.

Clerk Cannot Appoint.—The clerk cannot appoint a receiver as that power is reserved to the judge alone. Parks v. Spring, 64 N. C. 637, 639.

Operation and Effect of Appointment.—The utmost effect of an appointment of a receiver is to put the property in dispute into his custody as an officer of the court for the benefit of the party ultimately proved to be entitled but not to change the title, or even the right of possession in the property. Quinn v. McGill, 145 U. S. 85, 97, 12 S. Ct. 787, 36 L. Ed. 632.

An Officer of Court.—A receiver is an officer of the court, and his possession of the property is the possession of the court. He holds it as a custodian until the rightful claimant is ascertained by the court, and then for such claimant. Battle v. Davis, 66 N. C. 252.

Powers and Duties.—A receiver derives his authority from the act of the court appointing him, and not from the act of the parties at whose suggestion or by whose consent he is appointed. He is the right arm of the jurisdiction invoked. Union Bank v. City Bank, 136 U. S. 223, 226, 10 S. Ct. 1013, 34 L. Ed. 341.

Powers and Duties.—A receiver is an officer of the court, and subject to its directions and orders. He has no power except such as are conferred upon him by the order of his appointment and the course and practice of the court. Stuart v. Boulware, 133 U. S. 78, 81, 10 S. Ct. 242, 33 L. Ed. 109.

Title Relates Back.—The title of the receiver dated back to the time of granting the order, even though preliminary conditions must be performed, and he remains out of possession pending such performance. See Worth v. Piedmont Bank, 121 N. C. 343, 349, 28 S. E. 488.

Place of Hearing.—The hearing to a receiver may be held outside of the county where the main action is pending. Parker v. McPhail, 112 N. C. 502, 504, 16 S. E. 848.

The interest of the owner is in no wise changed by the appointment of a receiver. The legal title and possession are held by him for the owner and the property is the property of the court. Nesbitt & Bros. v. Turrentine, 83 N. C. 536.

Necessary Allegations.—Where the appointment of a receiver is sought as an ancillary remedy, the plaintiffs must allege and show that they are entitled to the main relief, and must then show their equity entitling them to the ancillary relief in aid of the main relief. Witz, etc., Co. v. Gray, 116 N. C. 48, 20 S. E. 1019.

Security OMITTED.—An order appointing a receiver is not void, where it is required as an officer of the court, in order to secure the property in dispute. Nesbitt & Bros. v. Turrentine, 83 N. C. 536.

Matter of Record.—The appointment of receivers is matter of record, and should be shown by the record. Person v. Lear, 136 N. C. 504, 36 S. E. 35.

Conflict of Concurrent Jurisdictions.—The court which first obtains jurisdiction is entitled to retain it without interference, and cannot be deprived of its rights to do so because it may not be the first court which is first "seized of jurisdiction." Moran v. Sturges, 154 U. S. 256, 274, 14 S. Ct. 1019, 38 L. Ed. 981.

Priority Worker Bank v. Appointed.—The test of jurisdiction in a case of two receivers being appointed is not the first issuing of the summons, nor the first preparation and verification of the papers, which are the acts of the parties, but which the court performs, and which court is first "seized of jurisdiction" by making an order upon legal proceedings exhibited before it. Worth v. Piedmont Bank, 121 N. C. 343, 349, 28 S. E. 488.

Same.—Same.—Fractions of a Day.—Where proper proceedings for the appointment of a receiver are begun in two different courts and a different receiver is appointed in each case, the court, in determining the priority of appointment and due equity, shall take notice of fractions of a day. Worth v. Piedmont Bank, 121 N. C. 343, 349, 28 S. E. 488.

Complaint Should Be Verified.—The practice of appointing a receiver upon an unverified complaint and without notice to creditors and other persons interested, is not consistent with justice. Fisher v. Trust Co., 138 N. C. 91, 50 S. E. 522.

Proof of Appointment of Foreign Receivers.—Persons suing as receivers of a foreign court should, on their appointment being denied, prove the same by a certified copy of the decree of appointment. Valentine and appointing them. Person v. Learcy, 127 N. C. 114, 37 S. E. 149, reversing on rehearing judgment in 126 N. C. 594, 36 S. E. 35.

§ 1-502. In what cases appointed.—A receiver may be appointed—

1. Before judgment, on the application of either party, when he establishes an apparent right to property which is the subject of the action and in the possession of an adverse party, and the property or its rents and profits are in danger of being lost, or materially injured or impaired; except in cases where judgment upon failure to answer may be had on application to the court.

2. After judgment, to carry the judgment into effect.

3. After judgment, to dispose of the property according to the judgment, or to preserve it during the pendency of an appeal, or when an execution has been returned unsatisfied, and the judgment debtor refuses to apply his property in satisfaction of the judgment.

4. In cases provided in chapter entitled Corporations, in the article Receivers; and in like cases, of the property within this state of foreign corporations.

The article Receivers, in the chapter entitled Corporations, is applicable, as near as may be, to receivers appointed hereunder. (Rev. s. 847; Code, c. 379; C. C. P., s. 215; 1876, c. 223; 1879, c. 63; 1881, c. 51; C. S. 860.)

In General.—This section specifies certain cases in which a receiver may be appointed, but does not materially alter the equitable jurisdiction of our courts upon this subject. Skinner v. Maxwell, 66 N. C. 45.

Where the plaintiff makes it properly to appear to the court that he is in imminent danger of loss by the defendant's insolvency, or that the property or its rents and profits will be destroyed, removed or otherwise disposed of by the defendant pending the action, or that the defendant is insolvent, and it must be sold to pay his debts, or that the defendant refuses to apply his property for its own benefit, a receiver may be appointed before judgment. Other instances pointed out by Walker, J. in Kelly v. McLamb, 189 N. C. 158, 108 S. E. 435.

Before Judgment.—Where a party establishes an apparent right to land, and the person in possession is insolvent, a receiver will be appointed to take charge of the rents and profits during the pendency of the action. McNair v. Pope, 90 N. C. 2 E. 54, citing Kunkler v. Fairley, 80 N. C. 14, 1879, 62, and cases there cited; Nesbit & Bro. v. Turrentine, 83 N. C. 536, and cases cited; Oldham v. Bank, 84 N. C. 304; Horton v. White, 84 N. C. 297; Roper Lumber Co. v. Wallace, 105 N. C. 195.

Where property is the subject of an action and is liable to clear equities in a party out of possession, the court may appoint a receiver when it seems just and necessary to keep the property in dispute from the control of either party until the controversy is determined. Skinner v. Maxwell, 66 N. C. 45, 48.

In order to appoint a receiver before judgment under this section, it must appear that claimant has an apparent right to property which is the subject of the action and the property or the rents and profits are in danger of being lost, Witty v. Logan, 116 N. C. 48, 29 S. E. 1039; Pearson v. Edwell, 116 N. C. 595, 21 S. E. 305; and it is generally necessary to show that the party in possession is insolvent. Ellington v. Currie, 191 N. C. 610, 137 S. E. 809. In re Penny, 10 F. Supp. 638, 640.

Where an executor's petition to sell lands alleges merely that personality is insufficient to pay debts, plaintiff execut-fendants in an action to foreclose a mortgage; the property conveyed thereby to pass to the defendant and the mortgagor in possession was insolvent; the defendant denied an alleged payment of the debt and the existence of assets in his hands applicable thereto: Held, that in such case it was competent for the court to appoint a receiver to secure the rents and profits pending the litigation. Ten Broeck v. Orchard, 74 N. C. 499; Rollins v. Presnell, 71 N. C. 467, cited and approved. Kerchner v. Fairley, 80 N. C. 24.

Where lands were devised to two persons, both of whom were appointed executors, charged with the payment of certain debts, and the conveyance of the land under a deed subsequent in date to the executors, it appeared there was some danger of waste of the property, and the solvency of the estate was doubtful: Held, to be a proper case for the appointment of a receiver. Stith v. Jones, 101 N. C. 905.

General Allegations Insufficient. — A receiver will not be appointed pendente lite, on a general allegation that loss or material injury is threatened, but the facts must be stated and are in danger of being lost, or materially injured, or that a corporation defendant is insolvent or in imminent danger of insolvency, and the subject of the action is the recovery of property, and not merely its value. See Davis v. Grav, 16 Wall. 203, 217, 21 L. Ed. 447. See also, Southern Flour Co. v. McIver, 109 N. C. 120, 24 S. E. 360.

In the absence of a general statement of the facts, the appointment of a receiver is an equitable remedy and the provisions of this and the following sections require an allegation of fraud or of the happening of certain conditions so as to prevent the courts sitting in their equity jurisdiction from administering the equities to which the mortgagor is entitled under the terms of this section.

§ 1-503. Appointment refused on bond's being given. — In all cases where there is an application for the appointment of a receiver, upon the ground that the property or its rents and profits are in danger of being lost, or materially injured or impaired, or that a corporation defendant is insolvent or in imminent danger of insolvency, and the subject of the action is the recovery of a money demand, the judge before whom the application is made or pending shall have the discretionory power to refuse the appointment of a receiver if the party against whom such relief is asked, whether a person, partnership or corporation, tenders to the court an undertaking payable to the adverse party in an amount double the sum demanded by the plaintiff, with at least two sufficient and duly justified sureties, conditioned for the payment of such amount as may be recovered in the action, and summary judgment may be taken upon the undertaking. In the progress of the action the court may in its discretion require additional sureties on such undertaking.

In General. — Upon application for a receiver it is proper to allow a defendant to continue in possession of property upon giving a sufficient bond to protect the other claimants. Frank v. Robinson, 96 N. C. 26, 1 S. E. 781. See also, Kron v. Smith, 96 N. C. 386, 2 S. E. 467; Godwin v. Watford, 107 N. C. 168, 11 S. E. 1051.

Where there is danger of loss of rents and profits, instead of appointing an injunction, it is proper to allow the defendant to execute a bond to secure the rents and profits and such damages as may be adjudged the plaintiff, and require an account to be taken. 2 S. E. 19. See also, Roger Lumber Co. v. Wallace, 93 N. C. 22; Lewis v. Roper Lumber Co., 99 N. C. 11, 5 S. E. 19; Ousby v. Neal, 99 N. C. 146, 5 S. E. 901.

In the discretion of the court, it may be proper in directing a receiver to take possession and control of the mines, and machinery for operating the same, without giving the defendant an opportunity to file a bond to the contrary, that the court might subsequently direct. Stith v. Jones, 101 N. C. 360, 8 S. E. 151.

Section 1-111 Does Not Apply. — Section 1-111, requiring a defendant in an action to give bond before putting in a defense to the action, does not abridge the power of the court to appoint a receiver to secure the rents and profits. Kron v. Dennis, 90 N. C. 327; Durant v. Crowell, 97 N. C. 367.
§ 1-504. Bankruptcy of Defendant.—Where plaintiff in an action in the superior court or any other court in North Carolina shall have taken the custody of any property of the defendant, plaintiff, which was admitted by the pleading or the examination of a party to the possession of the defendant, and the property is held by him as trustee for another party, or subject to the further direction of the judge, the property shall be held by him as trustee for another party, or subject to the further direction of the judge.

§ 1-505. Sale of property in hands of receiver.—Any sale made by a receiver may be confirmed outside of the county in which said action is pending, either by the resident judge or the judge assigned to hold any of the courts of the district in which said sale is made, upon proof of written notice to each creditor showing that notice was mailed to each creditor at his last known post-office address shall be sufficient proof of notice to said creditors. (1931, c. 123, s. 2; C. S. 863.)

Cross References.—As to giving bond in surety company, see sections 109-16 and 109-17. As to clerk's bond liable when clerk appointed receiver, see annotations under section 33-53.

Effect of Failure to Require Bond.—An order appointing a receiver is not void by reason of omission to require adequate security. Nesbitt & Bros. v. Turrentine, 83 N. C. 936.

Breach.—Where the receiver's delinquency is manifest, and he fails to comply with the order of the court in respect to the fund, such failure is a breach of the bond, upon which suit may be brought by leave of the court. Bank v. Creditors, 86 N. C. 323.

Same.—Burden toAscertain.—A receiver and his surety cannot be sued upon the bond for an alleged breach of his trust, before a default is ascertained—the proper practice being to apply to the court for a rule on the receiver to show cause why he has not discharged his trust, before a default is ascertained—the proper practice being to apply to the court for a rule on the receiver to show cause why he has not discharged his trust. Waters v. Melson, 112 N. C. 89, 716 S. E. 918.

Judgment.—The court will not, by order in a cause in which a receiver has been appointed, direct a judgment to be entered against him and his sureties. The proper practice is upon a report finding the amount due by the receiver, and upon his failing to pay the same, for the court to grant leave to sue upon the bond. Atkinson v. Smith, 89 N. C. 72.

Action against Sureties.—The liability of sureties on a receiver's bond can only be enforced by independent suit against them and not through the cause. Black v. Gentery, 119 N. C. 502, 26 S. E. 43.

Same.—Receicer Not a Party.—Where judgment has been recovered against the receiver and not against the sureties on his bond. Black v. Gentery, 119 N. C. 502, 26 S. E. 43.

§ 1-506. Confirmation of sales outside county of action; notice to creditors.—Any sale made by a receiver may be confirmed outside of the county in which said action is pending, either by the resident judge or the judge assigned to hold any of the courts of the district in which said sale is made, upon proof of written notice to each creditor who has filed his claim with said receiver of at least ten days prior to the date of confirmation. The said notice shall specify the time and place when application for confirmation shall be made, and an affidavit of the receiver showing that notice was mailed to each creditor at his last known post-office address shall be sufficient proof of notice to said creditors. (1931, c. 123, s. 2; C. S. 867.)

Editor's Note.—Public Laws 1931, c. 267, purported to amend this section by inserting the word "by" in the first line of this section, although the published section already contained such word.

§ 1-507. Sale of sales made outside county of action.—All receiver's sales made prior to March 16, 1931, where orders were made and confirmation decreed or where either orders were made or confirmation decreed outside the county in which such sales were made, a receiver showing that no judge or the judge assigned to hold the courts of the district are hereby validated, ratified and confirmed. (1931, c. 123, s. 3.)

Art. 39. Deposit or Delivery of Money or Other Property.

§ 1-508. Ordered paid into court.—When it is admitted by the pleading or examination of a party that he has in his possession or under his control any money or other thing capable of delivery, which, being the subject of the litigation, is held by him as trustee for another party, or which belongs to him or to another party, the judge may order it deposited in court, or delivered to such party with or without security, subject to the further direction of the judge. (Rev., s. 850; Code, s. 380; C. C. P., s. 215; C. S. 863.)

Property Entitled May Retain.—The rule is quite well settled that, unless in case of threatened irreparable damage or loss of the fund, it will be suffered to remain in the hands of the party who in law is entitled to its custody and care. Thompson v. Cross, 23 N. C. 121; Levenson & Co. v. Elson, 88 N. C. 183, 184.

When Court Will Retain.—When a disputed fund is in possession and under the control of the court, and the rights of a claimant is doubtful, it will be retained until the determination of the controversy, when it can be ascertained to whom it belongs. Morris v. Willard, 84 N. C. 293, and cases there cited; Ponton v. McAdoo, 71 N. C. 101; Levenson & Co. v. Elson, 88 N. C. 183, 184.

§ 1-509. Ordered seized by sheriff.—When, in the exercise of his authority, a judge has ordered the deposit, delivery or conveyance of money or other property, and the order is disobeyed, the judge, besides punishing the disobedience as for contempt, may make an order requiring the sheriff to take the money or property, and deposit, deliver, or convey it, in conformity with the direction of the judge. (Rev., s. 851; Code, s. 381; C. C. P., s. 215; C. S. 894.)

§ 1-510. Defendant ordered to satisfy admitted sum.—When the answer of the defendant expressly, or by not denying, admits part of the plaintiff's claim to be just, the judge, on motion, may order the defendant to satisfy that part of the claim, and may enforce the order as it enforces a judgment or provisional remedy. (Rev., s. 852; Code, s. 382; C. C. F., s. 215; C. S. 865.)

Claim Not Denied.—Where the complaint in an action on two notes set out each note as a separate cause of action, the defendant answered as to one only, it was error to refuse judgment on the note to which no defense was made, and provision should have been given on the one note and the cause continued as to the other. Curran v. Kerchner, 117 N. C. 264, 23 S. E. 172.

Where in an action on a note the defendants admit liability in a certain part thereof but deny liability for the balance, Held, an order directing that plaintiff recover the amount admitted to be due without prejudice to plaintiff's right to litigate the balance of the note is authorized by this section. Meadows Fert. Co. v. Farmers Trading Co., 203 N. C. 261, 165 S. E. 694.

SUBCHAPTER XIV. ACTIONS IN PARTICULAR CASES.

Art. 40. Mandamus.

§ 1-511. Begun by summons and verified complaint.—All applications for writs of mandamus must be made by summons and complaint, which must be duly verified. (Rev., s. 822; Code, s. 622; 1871-2, c. 75; C. S. 866.)

I. HISTORICAL.

In England mandamus was a prerogative writ, when no other method of redress, with many refinements issuing only at the pleasure of the court. By statute 9 Anne, chap. 20, the remedy was made one of right, and the general rules of pleading and practice were made applicable to mandamus as in other personal actions. At common law the return to a writ of mandamus could not be traversed, and if the matters set forth were sufficient in law, the defendant had judgment to go without day. If the return was false, the relator might litigate the issue of the note is authorized by this section. Meadows Fert. Co. v. Farmers Trading Co., 203 N. C. 261, 165 S. E. 694.

II. NATURE.

Judicial Writ.—The writ of mandamus is a judicial writ, a part of the recognized course of legal proceedings. See Thompson v. Allen County, 115 U. S. 550, 558, 60 S. Ct. 149, 29 L. Ed. 475.

Order of Right.—There is no further contention that the appellate court has jurisdiction to consider the order of right, and this provision was properly taken. In such case judgment should have been given on the one note and the cause continued as to the other. Curran v. Kerchner, 117 N. C. 264, 23 S. E. 172.

where the fact required to be done is imposed by law, is merely permissive, and the remedy is essentially and exclusively a remedy, this writ should not be denied, if it is the proper remedy. Edgerton v. Kirby, 156 N. C. 347, 47 S. E. 355.

Mandamus Will Not Control Discretion of Officers.—It may be said, generally, that if a public officer fails to perform his legal duty to the public he cannot compel him to do so, if it is a mandatory one, but not to control the exercise of a discretion given to him, for it is the nature of a discretion in certain persons that they are to decide in a particular way or review their judgment, but it does not lie where judgment and discretion are to be exercised.

In Tapping on Mandamus (Ed. 1853), at star pages 14 and 41, it is stated generally that mandamus will not lie to command the exercise of a discretionary or voluntary act, or right, of what kind soever; so neither does it lie to influence or control the exercise of such a discretionary act, power or right. It must, however, be clearly understood that, although there may be a discretionary power, yet if they will not act nor consider the matter, the court will by mandamus command him to put himself in motion to do it, that exercise a considerate discretion. Barnes v. Commissioners, § 1-512
A mandamus by the statute of Anne, chap. 28, is an effectual remedy; First, for refusal of admission to a person interested to have a wrongful removal where a person is legally possessed, To Compel the Performance of a Duty. — In Person v.
Doughton, 186 N. C. 723, 120 S. E. 481, Justice Stacy says:
"Mandamus lies only to compel a party to do that which it is his duty to do without. It confers no new authority.
The party seeking the writ must have obtained a clear legal right to perform it, and the party to be coerced must be under a legal obligation to perform the act sought to be enforced."
Lenoir County v. Taylor, 190 N. C. 336, 342, 130 S. E. 25.
The purpose of this writ of mandamus is to require some superior court, officer, corporation or person to do some particular thing which appertains to their office or duty, and it must be of an absolute nature, and neither the party agreed another and complete specific remedy. Burton v.
Doughton, 115 N. C. 166, 168, 20 S. E. 443.
It is a proceeding to compel a defendant to perform a duty, whether he be a superior court, official, corporation or person on the ground that the relator has a present, clear, legal right to the thing claimed, and that it is the duty of the defendants to render it to him. Brown v. Turner, 70 N. C.
Lyon v. Commissioners, 120 N. C. 237, 243, 26 S. E. 929.
The writ of mandamus is a remedy to compel the performance of a duty required by law, where the one seeking relief is a party to the proceeding, and the other party cannot be compelled by law to do the act claimed.
See Bayard v. United States, 127 U. S.
246, 250, 8 S. Ct. 1223, 32 L. Ed. 116.
When Office is Vacant.—When an office is vacant by reason of a motion, the remedy is mandamus. Doyle v.
Raleigh, 89 N. C. 133. Lyon v. Commissioners, 120 N. C.
237, 242, 26 S. E. 929.
Ex-Sheriff.—A mandamus lies only for one who has a specific legal right, and who is without any other adequate legal remedy. 1 Chitty on Gen. Pr., 790; State v.
Justices, 24 N. C. 430. Edgerton v. Kirby, 156 N. C. 347, 351, 72 S. E. 360. Barnes v. Commissioners, 135 N. C. 27, 47
S. E. 737; Lyon v. Commissioners, 120 N. C. 237, 244, 26 S.
B. Illustrations of Mandamus as Proper Remedy.
For further cases when mandamus is the proper remedy, see annotations under section 1-515.
To Pay as Lawfully Ordered. — Upon refusal of a county treasurer to pay from the public funds of a county an order made on him by a board of audit and finance for the payment of moneys authorized and prescribed for a particular purpose, mandamus is a proper remedy. Southern Audit Co. v. McKensie, 147 N. C. 461, 61 S.
E. 283. See Martin v. Clark, 135 N. C. 178, 180, 47 S. E. 397.
Same—Knowledge as to Validity—It is not within the power of a county treasurer to pay from the public funds of a proper order when he has funds sufficient and applicable, and his knowledge as to whether they were due to the one to whom payment was ordered is immaterial in proceedings for mandamus. Doyle v. Raleigh, 89 N. C. 163; v. McKensie, 147 N. C. 461, 61 S. E. 283; Martin v. Clark, 135 N. C.
178, 47 S. E. 397.
State—Ex-Sheriff.—A mandamus may be compelled by mandamus to deposit public funds in his hands in the proper depository. Bearden v. Fullam, 129 N.
C. 477, 40 S. E. 204.
Ex-Sheriff to Give up County Property. — A mandamus at the suit of the county commissioners will lie to compel a sheriff wrongfully holding over from a preceding term to turn over the county property pertaining to his office, if he had been duly appointed by the court and deducted therein. Lenoir County v. Taylor, 190 N. C. 336, 130 S.
E. 25.
Commissioners—Locating County Site.—Where discretion is given to commissioners in selecting and locating a site for the seat of a county, and it was sought by mandamus by commissioners to change the location already settled on, the court held the mandamus had neglected or refused to execute the power entrusted to them, and certainly might call upon them to show why they had been so negligent, and upon insufficient return might have issued a peremptory mandamus. Here all we would do would be to command them to select the site for the permanent seat of justice for the county according to law, which under their power they are required to do. Doxey v. Commissioners, 257; Barnes v. Commissioners, 135 N. C. 27, 38, 47 S. E. 737.
See also Young v. Jeffreys, 20 N. C. at p. 357, State
v. Moore, 46 N. C. at p. 276, 279; Taylor v. Comm'n's 141; 115, N. C. 166, 20 S. E. 443; Loughran v. Judges,

106 N. C. 81, 10 S. E. 1002.
C. Illustrations of Mandamus as Improper Remedy.
Granting Liquor License.—Since the justices have a discretion, under circumstances, to refuse a liquor license to a person, although he may have a clear legal right to obtain mandamus. For it is the nature of a discretion in certain persons that they are to judge for themselves, and therefore no power can require them to decide in a particular way, except in cases where there is no discretion for them to proceed in the nature of an appeal, since the judgment of the justices would not then be their own, but that of the court under whose mandate they gave it. Barnes v.
Commissioners, 135 N. C. 27, 34, 47 S. E. 737.
Certificate by Board of Examiners.—The courts cannot by a mandamus compel the board of dental examiners to certify corruptly to what they have declared to be the truth. The board refused to examine the applicant, upon his compliance with the regulations, the court could by mandamus compel them to examine him, but not to issue him a certificate, when quite preliminary to his examination, it was that the applicant shall be found proficient and competent by examining board, is lacking. Burton v. Furlan, 115 N.
C. 166, 20 S. E. 443; Loughran v. Hickory, 129 N. C.
261, 40 S. E. 46; Bearden v. Fullam, 129 N. C. 477, 40 S.
E. 204.
J udgments upon School Order.—Orders rendered upon school orders against the county commissioners will not be enforced by mandamus, when not for necessary expenses for the purpose of determining whether the conclusions drawn from the evidence of fact upon which the judgment of the school board was based for proceeding in which to try the validity of such election or commission to admit another, but that quo warranto is the remedy. Lyon v. Commissioners, 120 N. C. 237, 250, 26 S.
E. 929.
High, in his Extraordinary Legal Remedies, after discussing mandamus, concludes under this head, sec. 70: "When the writ is sought to compel the restoration of one claiming the right to an office, it is not sufficient for him to show that he is the officer de facto, but it is also incumbent upon him to show a clear legal right, and, failing in this, he is not entitled to the peremptory writ." I Chit. Gen. Pr., 290, 291; Worthy v. N. C. State Board of Education; Board of Commissioners, 120 N. C. 237, 243, 26 S. E. 929.
As a Writ of Error.—Mandamus cannot be used as a writ of error to reverse and review erroneous judgments of a subordinate tribunal (in that case a board of health), and the court "will not and cannot look into the evidence of fact upon which the judgment of the board was based for proceeding in which to try the validity of such election or commission to admit another, but that quo warranto is the remedy. Lyon v. Commissioners, 120 N. C. 237, 250, 26 S.
E. 929."
if any, remains unpaid, what resources, if any, are available for the satisfaction of the judgment, including the actual value of all property sought to be subjected to additional taxation and the necessity for the issuance of such writ. (Rev., s. 928; Code, s. 623; 1871-2, c. 75, s. 2; 1933, c. 349; C. S. 867.)

Editor's Note.—By Public Laws 1933, c. 349, the proviso, relating to mandamus against local units to enforce collection of judgments, was added.

The 1933 amendment to this section is constitutional, since the provisions of the statute adding contracts to the list of judgments, was added. (Const. Art. 1, sec. 10; N. C. Const., Art. 1, sec. 17, the effect of the statute being merely to alter the method of procedure in which there can be no vested right. Sovereign Camp, W. O. W. v. Board of Com'rs, 208 N. C. 433, 181 S. E. 339.

Construed with Following Section.—This and the following sections divide the field of application for writs of mandamus between them and must be considered in pari materia. Brown v. Board of Com'rs, 222 N. C. 402, 404, 23 S. E. (2d) 315.

Necessity for Judgment Prior to Action to Enforce Money Demand.—Where plaintiff alleged ownership of certain county bonds, and sought mandamus to compel the county to levy taxes sufficient to pay the same, the purpose of the statute might not be satisfied by uniting a cause of action for the recovery of the money and a petition to the judge at chambers to determine the same, as in the action which has been denied to the plaintiff. Belmont & Co. v. Reilly, 71 N. C. 260.

Return of Summons.—If the summons is made returnable before the judge at chambers, when it should have been made returnable in vacuo, the action should not be dismissed, but a transfer to the proper docket made. Brown v. Board of Com'rs, 222 N. C. 407, 23 S. E. (2d) 315.

Examples of a Money Demand.—An application by a holder of bonds regularly appointed, and who have qualified to act in that capacity according to the terms of valid statutes, to compel a public officer to deposit public funds in the proper place. Bearden v. Fullam, 129 N. C. 497, 43 S. E. 304.

An action to have a writ of mandamus issue compelling a board of county commissioners to pay, from the general fund of the county in accordance with a legislative act, the salary of a county officer, is not such a "money demand" as to require the summons, pleadings and practice to be the same as to law and fact. Brown v. Board of Com'rs, 222 N. C. 402, 23 S. E. (2d) 315.

An action to enforce the turning over of public funds by the ex-treasurer of the county to the present financial agent regularly appointed, and who have qualified to act in that capacity according to the terms of valid statutes directly applicable, §§ 155-16, 128-10, 14-231, is not in strictness "a money demand." under this section, but comes under section 1-513. Tyrrell County v. Holloway, 187 N. C. 168 S. E. 337.

Waiver by Municipality.—The provisions of this section requiring that in an application for a writ to compel the turning over of public funds by a municipal corporation the complaint should show that the claim or debt has been reduced to final judgment and should show what resources, if any, are available for the satisfaction of the judgment, and the actual value of all property sought to be subjected to additional taxation, and the necessity for the issuance of the writ are provisions for the protection of municipalities, which may be waived by it, and where the municipality does not object thereto and agrees that the issues of fact and of law be submitted to the court, it waives the provisions of this section. Dry v. Board of Drainage Com'rs, 218 N. C. 356, 11 S. E. (2d) 145.

§ 1-513. For other relief returnable in vacation; issues of fact.—When the plaintiff seeks relief other than the enforcement of a money demand, the summons must be made returnable before the superior court of the proper county, or in term at a day specified in the summons, not less than ten days after the service of the summons and complaint upon the defendant; at which time the court, except for good cause shown, shall hear and determine the action, both as to law and fact. However, when an issue of fact is raised by the pleadings, it is the duty of the court, upon the motion of either party, to continue the action until the issue of fact can be decided by a jury at the next regular term of the court. (Rev., s. 824; Code, s. 623; 1871-2, c. 75, s. 3; C. S. 868.)

Cross References.—As to jurisdiction of court in vacation or at term, see § 7-65. As to judgments rendered in vacation, see § 1-519. As to proceeding in summons generally, see section 1-89, and notes thereto.

Demand and Refusal Necessary.—A proceeding in mandamus may be made returnable before the judge at chambers, but it cannot be sustained without demand and refusal, or what is equivalent to a refusal. Alexander v. Commissioners, 67 N. C. 303. Horne v. Commissioners, 122 N. C. 469, 470, 39 S. E. 591.

Hearing at Term or Chambers.—Tracing the origin of this and the preceding section, it was probably the intention of the law to provide for the hearing at term of cases which, upon the face, might require a jury trial, and those which might involve questions of law only, at chambers—with a saving provision that where issues of fact are raised and a jury trial demanded, the case might be transferred to the civil issue docket in order that these issues might be determined by a jury. Brown v. Board of Com'rs, 222 N. C. 402, 23 S. E. (2d) 315. See notes to preceding section.

Nonassent Motion for Jury Trial.—Where neither party move for a trial jury of an issue of fact raised by the pleadings under this section, the issue may be determined by the court. Cannon v. Wiscassett Mills Co., 193 N. C. 119, 126, 141 S. E. 344.

Payment of Dividends—Remand for Proper Procedure.—When proceedings in mandamus have been instituted by stockholders of a private corporation to compel the distribution of a surplus ascertained in accordance with the provisions of § 55-115, before the judge holding the terms of court of the district, and the judge has failed to determine the payment of the dividends without evidence of the actual cash value of the assets or taking into his consideration a proper deduction for the depreciation of the plant, the case will be remanded to him to be proceeded with according to law. Cannon v. Wiscassett Mills Co., 195 N. C. 119, 141 S. E. 344.

When There Are Issues of Fact.—If a case is before the judge at chambers, and there are issues of fact appearing upon the pleadings, the cause should not be dismissed, but should be transferred to term for trial before a jury, just as the clerk might so transfer it. For, it would be strange to dismiss an action for a money demand, already before the court, and to compel the clerk or the judge at chambers, and tell the plaintiff to come back into the same court at term before the same judge, and the same clerk by service of another summons.

§ 1-514. Writs of sci. fa. and quo warranto abolished. —The writs of scire facias and of quo warranto, and proceedings by information in the nature of quo warranto, are abolished; and the remedies obtainable in those forms may be obtained by civil actions under this article. (Rev., s. 826; Code, s. 603; C. C. P., s. 362; R. C., c. 26, ss. 5, 25; C. S. 869.)

Quo Warranto—In General. —Although the proceeding by information in the nature of the writ of quo warranto has been abolished, it is no remedy to be pursued whenever the controverting party requests judgment as to the validity of an election or the right to hold a public office, is by an action in the nature of a writ of quo warranto. It is not merely an action to redress the grievances of a private person, but the public has an interest in the question which the Legislature seems to have considered paramount to that of the private rights of the persons aggrieved. Hence, remedial and remedial actions must be brought by the Attorney-General in the name of the people of the state, and upon his own information without the relation of a private person when the person aggrieved does not seek redress; and when the claimant does seek redress, he must be joined in the action, but still it must be brought by the Attorney-General in the name of the people. Such is the construction which has been given to this section by the courts. Patterson v. Hubbs, 65 N. C. 119; Hargrove v. Hunt, 71 N. C. 24; People v. Hilliard, 72 N. C. 169; People v. McKee, 68 N. C. 429; Brown v. Turner, 70 N. C. 91; Saunders v. Gatling, 81 N. C. 298, 301.

Same—Historical. —Questions as to the title and possession of offices at common law were determined by the writ of quo warranto. It was originally a high prerogative writ issued out of chancery, and was used by the Crown of Great Britain unjustly and oppressively upon its subjects, until it was modified by statue. It was still retained for judicial purposes, and were called the statutes quo warranto; and then, after the justices in eyre were displaced by the judges of the superior courts, it fell into disuse, and the information in the nature of a writ of quo warranto, or an information or proceeding in the nature of a writ of right by the King against one who usurped or claimed franchises or liberties, to determine after the judgment of the court; and then they may be compelled to proceed in the discharge of their duties. As the mode of redressing a private party's right by a writ of quo warranto, or an information or proceeding in the nature of scire facias, and for unauthorized usurpations and continuance of the former suit. Binford v. Alston, 15 N. C. 351. McDowell v. Asbury, 66 N. C. 144, 447. Applied in Stephens v. Dowell, 208 N. C. 555, 181 S. E. 629; Swaringen v. Poplin, 211 N. C. 700, 191 S. E. 746. § 1-515. Action by attorney-general.—An action may be brought by the attorney-general in the name of the state, upon his own information or upon the complaint of a private party, against the parties offending, in the following cases:
1. When a person usurps, intrudes into, or unlawfully holds or exercises any public office, civil or military, or any franchise within this state, that any officer in a corporation created by the authority of this state; or
2. When a public officer, civil or military, has done or suffered an act which, by law, makes a forfeiture of his office.

3. When any person, natural or corporate, has or claims to have or hold any rights or franchises by reason of a grant or otherwise, in violation of the provisions of § 146-14. (Rev., s. 827; Code, s. 607; C. C. P., s. 366; 1911, cc. 195, 201; C. S. 870.)

Same—General. —This and the subsequent sections provide for the fullest relief to the rightful claimant, against an unlawful intrusion, and thereby dispenses with the need of recourse to another process, unless those required to intrude are still retained in the discharge of the duties of their offices by the judgment of the court; and then they may be compelled to proceed in the discharge of their duties. claiming the office, the issue between them being the right to its favor, Love v. Vann, 111 N. C. 369, 16 S. E. 420; Ellison v. Raleigh, 89 N. C. 125, 129.

Interpleader by Judgment Creditor.—Under sections 1-69 and 1-73, a court has power to allow a judgment creditor of a defendant in a suit to bring in a quo warranto by which the nature of the office of that defendant is tried, but not to pass upon the validity of an overruling of authority both in this state and in England. High on Ex. Leg. Rem., Secs. 49, 51 and 77; Ex Parte Dauga, 28 N. C. 155; State v. Hardie, 23 N. C. 325, 328.

Determining Title to Public Office.—Quo Warranto is the remedy in England and this country by which the title to the office of the defendant is tried, and this is the appropriate remedy to be tried before a judge and jury. Cozart v. Fleming, 123 N. C. 547, 548, 31 S. E. 822.

Same.—Holding Two Offices.—A citizen and tax-payer of a county is entitled to bring an action in the nature of quo warranto to prevent a person from holding the office of county assessor of such county at the same time. State v. Thompson, 122 N. C. 493, 29 S. E. 720; State v. Vann, 118 N. C. 3, 23 S. E. 923; State v. Smith, 117 N. C. 369, 16 S. E. 420.

Determining Title to Public Office.—One of the chief purposes of quo warranto or an information in the nature of quo warranto is to try the title to an office. This is the method of proceeding in suits between rival claimants when one is in possession of the office under a favor of the board of county canvassers or other officers of the courts. Swearingen v. Poplin, 211 N. C. 703, 702, 191 S. E. 376, citing Hankrader v. Lawrence, 193 N. C. 441, 138 S. E. 35.

Same.— Allegation of Illegality.—Usually in such suits there is an allegation that the defendant has usurped and is illegally exercising the duties of the office, but section 1-516 does not prescribe the nature of such averment. Cozart v. Fleming, 123 N. C. 547, 548, 31 S. E. 822.

Same.— Mandamus and Injunction Improper.—It is not permissible to try the title to an office by injunction, nor by mandamus—a civil action in the nature of quo warranto, as that purpose could not be tried before a judge and jury. Cozart v. Fleming, 123 N. C. 547, 548, 31 S. E. 822; Ellison v. Raleigh, 89 N. C. 125, 131; Lyon v. Board, 120 N. C. 744, 29 S. E. 772. In High on Extraordinary Remedies, it is said that "in cases where relief has been sought to determine disputed questions of title to and possession of public offices, the courts have almost uniformly refused to lend their aid by mandamus, as evidence to certify or correct the election returns when impeached, and that on a quo warranto the ballot boxes brought into courts. In Broughton v. Young, 119 N. C. 915, 27 S. E. 277, it was held that the certificate of election is prima facie evidence in favor of the holder, and in every proceeding except those designed to try the right of the duly elected officer to have the action of the people carried out in a proper source, is prima facie evidence of the result of an election by the clerk, in the manner required by law, and that no action in the nature of a quo warranto proceeding. Cozart v. Fleming, 123 N. C. 547, 548, 31 S. E. 822, citing Swain v. McRae, 81 N. C. 111; Gatling v. Boone, 98 N. C. 573, 26 S. E. 720.

Same.—Proper Certificate Ordinarily Conclusive.—"The certificate of election of an officer, or his commission coming from the proper source, is prima facie evidence in favor of the holder, and in every proceeding except those designed to try the title of such holder it is conclusive; but in quo warranto the court will go behind the certificate or commissions and inquire into the validity of the acts and do equity for the present and decide the legal rights of the parties upon full investigation of the facts." Dillon's Work on Municipal Corporations, Vol. 2, at sec. 892. Lyon v. Board, 120 N. C. 744, 29 S. E. 772.

Same.—Ballot Boxes Brought into Courts.—In Broughton v. Young, 119 N. C. 915, 27 S. E. 277, it was held that the certificate of election is prima facie evidence in favor of the holder, and in every proceeding except those designed to try the title of such holder it is conclusive; but in quo warranto the court will go behind the certificate or commissions and inquire into the validity of the acts and do equity for the present and decide the legal rights of the parties upon full investigation of the facts." Dillon's Work on Municipal Corporations, Vol. 2, at sec. 892. Lyon v. Board, 120 N. C. 744, 29 S. E. 772.

The facts found by the referee as to the result of an election in proceeding in the nature of a quo warranto, and approved by the trial judge are not subject to appeal, and appeal to the trial judge, finds the absence of fraud, upon competent evidence. State v. Jackson, 183 N. C. 695, 110 S. E. 593.

Quo Warranto Is Not Proper Remedy to Test Validity of Vote.—Quo warranto is the sole remedy to test the validity of a vote even though it is levied under the authority of a special or local law. Marbee v. Board of Com'r's, 210 N. C. 717, 188 S. E. 314.

he shall grant leave that it may be brought in the name of the state, upon the relation of such applicant, upon the applicant tendering the attor- ney-general satisfactory security to indemnify the state against all costs and expenses which may accrue in consequence of the action.

As to mandatory dissolution of a corporation at the instance of private persons, see section 55-124.

Section Constitutional.—This section allowing the prosecution of an action in quo warranto in the name of the state to enjoin the usurpation of the office of a citizen to a public office is not, for that reason, un-constitutional. McCall v. Webb, 135 N. C. 356, 47 S. E. 802.

Security Must Be Given.—The section clearly provides that before an action may be instituted or maintained on the relation of a private citizen, such leave shall be obtained and that satisfactory security must be furnished, inden- huming the State against all costs and expenses which may accrue in consequence of bringing the action. Midgett v. Gray, 158 N. C. 133, 135, 73 S. E. 791.

Interest of Public Is Paramount.—In proceedings under this and § 1-514 to try title to a public office the interest of the public in the province of the state to protect the actions of the State in the name of the State against all costs and expenses which may accrue in consequence of bringing the action. Midgett v. Gray, 158 N. C. 133, 135, 73 S. E. 791.

Same—Second Suit after Voluntary Nonsuit.—Common-law and quo warranto actions and proceedings by infor- mation in the name thereof have been abolished by § 1-514 and the remedy in such matters is under the provisions of this section and when the relator has complied with these conditions and makes a voluntary nonsuit and within a year brings another action upon the same subject-matter against the same respondent, but fails to obtain permission to bring another action, the bond therefore or the bond entered on fore the judgment is signed, his delay is fatal and the action is properly dismissed, it being necessary that the provisions of the section be again compiled with before the commencement of a second action. Cooper v. Crisco, 201 N. C. 739, 740, 161 S. E. 310.

Same—Effect of Section 1-516.—This view that leave is es- sential is strengthened by the subsequent section 1-518, which provides that even after leave is given and action com- menced, the same may, under certain conditions be with- drawn and, on certificate to that effect being properly filed, the judge may on motion dismiss the action. Midgett v. Gray, 158 N. C. 133, 135, 73 S. E. 791.

May Be Given After Commencement of Suit.—The court has held in State v. Withers, 121 N. C. 376, 28 S. E. 522, that it is not absolutely essential that the leave should be had be- fore the suit is commenced, provided it is obtained afterwards and supplied, but it must always be made to appear, pending the proceedings, that the leave of the Attorney-General has been given to prosecute the action. Midgett v. Gray, 158 N. C. 133, 135, 73 S. E. 791.

Upon Failure to Show Leave Action Dismissed.—It ap- pears that, by inadvertence, the record in this action of quo warranto to try title to an office, in which the defendant was held to have usurped and to have entered upon the office, was not preserved and, upon failure thereof the action may be dismissed. State v. Gray, 159 N. C. 443, 74 S. E. 1050.

§ 1-517. Solvent sureties required.—The at- torney-general, before granting leave to a private relator to bring a suit to try the title to an office, may require two sureties to the bond required by law to be filed to indemnify the state against costs and expenses, and require such sureties to justify, and may require such proof and evidence of the solvency of the sureties as is satisfactory to him. (Rev., s. 829; 1901, c. 595, s. 2; C. S. 872.)

§ 1-518. Leave withdrawn and action dismissed for insufficient bond.—When the attorney- general has granted leave to a private relator to bring an action in the name of the state to try the title to an office, and it afterwards is shown to the satisfaction of the attorney-general that the bond filed by the private relator is insuffi- cient, or that the sureties are insolvent, the at- torney-general may recall and revoke such leave, and upon a certificate of the withdrawal and revocation by the attorney-general to the clerk of the court of the county where the action is pend- ing, it is the duty of the presiding judge, upon motion of the defendant, to dismiss the action. (Rev., s. 830; 1891, c. 595; C. S. 873.)

§ 1-519. Arrest and bail of defendant usurping office.—When action is brought against a person for usurping an office, the attorney-general, in addition to the statement of the cause of action, may set forth in the complaint the name of the person rightfully entitled to the office, with a statement of his right thereto; and in such case, upon proof by affidavit that the defendant has re- ceived fees or emoluments belonging to and by means of his usurpation of the office, an order shall be granted by a judge of the superior court for the arrest of the defendant, and holding him to bail; and thereupon he shall be arrested and held to bail in the same manner, and with the same effect, and subject to the same rights and li- abilities, as in other civil actions where the defend- ant is subject to arrest. (Rev., s. 833; Code, s. 609; C. C. P., s. 399; 1883, c. 102; C. S. 874.)

§ 1-520. Several claims tried in one action.—Where persons or franchises are to be entitled to the same office or franchise, one action may be brought against all of them, in order to try their respective rights to the office or franchise. (Rev., s. 832; Code, s. 614; C. C. P., s. 374; C. S. 873.)

§ 1-521. Trials expedited.—All actions to try the title or right to any state, county or municipal office stand for trial at the return term of the sum- mons, if a copy of the complaint was served with the summons at least thirty days before the return day thereof; and it is the duty of the judges to ex- pedite the trial of these actions, and to give the same precedence over all others, civil or criminal. It is unlawful to appropriate any public funds to the payment of counsel fees in any such action. (Rev., s. 833; Code, s. 616; 1901, c. 42; 1874-5, c. 173; C. S. 876.)

§ 1-522. Time for bringing action.—All actions brought by a private relator, upon the leave of the attorney-general, to try the title to an office must be brought, and a copy of the complaint served on the defendant, within ninety days after his in- duction into the office to which the title is to be tried; and when it appears from the papers in the cause, or is otherwise shown to the satisfaction of the court, that the summons and complaint have not been served within ninety days, it is the duty of the judge upon motion of defendant to dismiss the action at any time before the trial, at the cost of the plaintiff. (Rev., s. 834; 1901, c. 519; 1903, c. 556; C. S. 877.)

a private relator, upon leave of the attorney general, to bring his action within ninety days after the induction of the defendant into the contested office, does not apply where the alleged intruder has occupied the office more than ninety days before the plaintiff's cause of action accrued, or where the plaintiff or his attorney of record, to the discretion of the judge, to be void upon condition that the defendant pays to the plaintiff all such costs and damages, including damages for the loss of such fees and emoluments as may or ought to have come into the hands of the defendant, as the plaintiff may recover. (Rev., s. 835; 1895, c. 105; C. S. 878.)

§ 1-524. Possession of office not disturbed pending trial.—In any civil action pending in any of the courts of this state in which the title to an office is involved, the defendant being in the possession of the office and discharging the duties thereof shall continue therein pending the action, and no judge shall make a restraining order interfering with or enjoining such officer in the premises. The officer shall, notwithstanding any such order, continue to exercise the duties of the office pending the litigation, and receive the emoluments thereof. (Rev., s. 836; 1899, c. 39; C. S. 879.)

Purpose of the Section.—An injunction to prevent the exercise of a public office would produce general inconvenience; for instance, an injunction against one who it is alleged has usurped the office of the clerk of a court, forbidding him to discharge the duties of the office, would stop all judicial proceedings and the public would be made to suffer by this mode of contesting the right to the office and to the emoluments thereof. Hence, in this and the like cases, the appropriate remedy is by an action in the nature of a quo warranto, not an injunction. Patterson v. Hubbs, 65 N. C. 119, 121.

Title Should Be Determined First.—Individuals claiming to be the board of trustees of a school district de jure may not enjoin those in possession under a colorable claim of right as such board from the performance of their duties as such, and require the defendant to turn over to them the school buildings, etc., and thus determine collaterally the question of title, nor would remedy by injunction be permitted in quo warranto proceedings, where the title to office is directly involved, but the parties should first try out the question of title in an action brought directly for the purpose. Rogers v. Powell, 174 N. C. 388, 93 S. E. 917.

§ 1-525. Judgment by default and inquiry on failure of defendant to give bond.—At any time after a proper verified complaint is filed alleging facts sufficient to entitle plaintiff to the office, whether this complaint is filed at the beginning of the action or later, the plaintiff may, upon ten days notice to the defendant or his attorney of record, move before the judge resident in or riding the district, at chambers, to require the defendant to give the undertaking specified in § 1-523. It is the duty of the judge to require the defendant to give the undertaking within ten days, and if it is not so given, the judge shall render judgment in favor of plaintiff and against defendant for the recovery of the office and the costs, and a judgment by default and inquiry to be executed at a term for damages, including loss of fees and salary. Upon the filing of the judgment for the recovery of such office with the clerk, it is his duty to issue and the sheriff's duty to serve the necessary process to put the plaintiff into possession of the office. If the defendant shall give the undertaking, the court, if judgment is rendered for plaintiff, shall render judgment against the defendant and his sureties for costs and damages, including loss of fees and salary. Nothing herein prevents the judge's extending, for cause, the time in which to give the undertaking. (Rev., s. 837; 1899, c. 49; 1895, c. 105, s. 2; C. S. 880.)

As to effect of this section on an independent suit for damages, see editor's note under section 1-530.

§ 1-526. Service of summons and complaint.—The service of the summons and complaint as hereinbefore provided may be made by leaving a copy at the last residence or business office of the defendant or defendants, and service so made shall be deemed a legal service. (Rev., s. 838; 1899, c. 126; C. S. 881.)

If the copy of summons left at defendant's residence be not essentially a true copy of the original, there was no valid service, for only by virtue of this section, is substituted service allowable in this way. McLeod v. Pearson, 208 N. C. 539, 540, 181 S. E. 753.

If the copy of summons left at defendant's residence be a true copy of the original, then it would be insufficient under the statute, for only by virtue of this section, is substituted service allowable in this way. McLeod v. Pearson, 208 N. C. 539, 540, 181 S. E. 753.

§ 1-527. Judgment in such actions.—In every such case judgment shall be rendered upon the right of the defendant, and also upon the right of the party alleged to be entitled, or only upon the right of the defendant, as justice requires. When the defendant, whether a natural person or corporation, against whom the action has been brought, is adjudged guilty of usurping or interfering with or unlawfully holding or exercising any office, franchise or privilege, judgment shall be rendered that the defendant be excluded from such office, franchise or privilege, and also that the plaintiff recover costs against him. The court may also, in its discretion, fine the defendant a sum not exceeding two thousand dollars. (Rev., ss. 839, 840; Code, ss. 610, 615; R. C., c. 95; C. C. P., ss. 370, 375; Const., Art. IX, s. 5; C. S. 882.)

Discretion of Court as to Fine.—Where the defendant went into office under the authority of an unconstitutional appointment by the general assembly, the court presumed that there was no criminal intent and did not impose the fine. Nichols v. McKee, 68 N. C. 429, 440.

§ 1-528. Mandamus to aid relator.—In any civil action brought to try the title or right to hold any office, when the judgment of the court is in favor of the relator in the action, it is the duty of the court to issue a writ of mandamus or such other process as is necessary and proper to carry the judgment into effect, and to induct the party entitled into office. (Rev., s. 841; 1885, c. 406, s. 1; C. S. 883.)

As to mandamus in general, see sections 1-511 to 1-533.

§ 1-529. Appeal; bonds of parties.—No appeal by the defendant to the supreme court from the judgment of the superior court in such action shall stay the execution of the judgment, unless a justified undertaking is executed on the part of the appellant by one or more sureties, in a sum to be fixed by the court, conditioned that the appellant will pay to the party entitled to the same the salary, fees, emoluments and all money whatsoever received by the appellant by virtue or under color
§ 1-530. Relator inducted into office; duty.—
If the judgment is rendered in favor of the relator, he shall be entitled, after taking the oath of office and executing such official bond as may be required by law, to take upon himself the execution of the office, it is his duty, immediately thereafter, to demand from the defendant in the action all the books and papers in his custody, or within his power, belonging to the office from which he has been excluded. (Rev., ss. 842, 844; Code, ss. 611, 613; C. C. P., ss. 371, 373; C. S. 885.)

Editor's Note.—It was held, under this section, that compensatory damages for the loss of the fees and emoluments of the office could be recovered from the intruder who had received the same, in an action brought after the rendition of the judgment for money. Swain v. McRae, 80 N. C. 112; State v. Jones, 80 N. C. 127; State v. Tate, 70 N. C. 161.

In McCall v. Webb, 133 N. C. 356, 37 S. E. 802, the question as to the recovery of damages in an independent action after taking the oath and the court discussed the effect of section 1-252 as amended in 1895 and 1899. The court said: these amendments in regard to the method of recovering damages in such cases do not provide for a cumulative remedy, but it was intended by them to substitute the remedy by inquiry in the action brought to recover the office for the former remedy by separate action on the undertaking, when the judgment is reversed. The Code; and besides the amendments are inconsistent with the provisions of section 1-233, and the latter is therefore repealed by them.

Person Entitled Has Property.—A person who is rightfully entitled to an office, although not in the actual possession thereof, and may maintain an action for money had and received against a mere intruder who may perform the duties of such office for a time and receive the fees arising therefrom; and such intruder can neither retain any part of the fees as a compensation for his services nor take upon himself the execution of the office which another wrongfully claims and withholds shall not be required, as a condition precedent to an action to try title to that office, to do the vain thing of going through the formality of complying with the requirements for induction into the office. Osborne v. Canton, 219 N. C. 139, 13 S. E. (2d) 265.

§ 1-531. Refusal to surrender official papers misdemeanor.—If a person against whom a judgment has been rendered in an action brought to recover a public office shall fail or refuse to turn over, on demand, to the person adjudged to be entitled to such office, all papers, documents and books belonging to such office, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Rev., ss. 3601; Code, ss. 612; C. C. P., 372; C. S. 886.)

§ 1-532. Action to recover property forfeited to state.—When any property, real or personal, is forfeited to the state, or to any officer for its use, an action for the recovery of such property, alleging the grounds of the forfeiture, may be brought by the proper officer in any superior court. (Rev., ss. 845; Code, ss. 621; C. C. P., ss. 381; C. S. 887.)

Art. 42. Waste.

§ 1-533. Remedy and judgment.—Wrongs, remediable by the old action of waste, are subjects of action as other wrongs; and the judgment may be for damages, forfeiture of the estate of the party offending, and eviction from the premises. (Rev., ss. 853; Code, ss. 624; C. C. P., ss. 383; C. S. 888.)

Editor's Note.—In England the clearing of land by a life-tenant was waste. In Shire v. Wilcox, 21 N. C. 631 the court says "While our ancestors brought over to this country the principles of common law, these were nevertheless accommodated to their new condition. It would have been absurd to hold that the clearing of the forest, so as to fit it for the habitation and use of man, was waste." And in King v. Miller, 99 N. C. 583, 6 S. E. 660, the court says "While in its essential elements waste is the same in this country and in England ... yet in respect to acts which constitute waste, the rule that governs in a new and unopened land cannot be the same as that which is applicable in a settled state." Sherrill v. Connor, 107 N. C. 630, 12 S. E. 588.

Definition.—Waste is a spoiling or destroying of the estate, with respect to the land, trees, or timber, to be commuted to their new condition. It would have been absurd to hold that the clearing of the forest, so as to fit it for the habitation and use of man, was waste." And in King v. Miller, 99 N. C. 583, 6 S. E. 660, the court says "While in its essential elements waste is the same in this country and in England ... yet in respect to acts which constitute waste, the rule that governs in a new and unopened land cannot be the same as that which is applicable in a settled state." Sherrill v. Connor, 107 N. C. 630, 12 S. E. 588.

Nature of Action.—An action for wrongs in the nature of waste is not necessarily an action "for penalties," or "for damages merely vindictive"; on the contrary, the action is generally used to recover actual and substantial damages. And that an action survives when such is its purpose, either to or against the personal representative, is well established. Butner v. Keelton, 51 N. C. 60; Rippey v. Miller, 33 N. C. 427; Collier v. Arrington, 61 N. C. 355; Peeples v. N. C. R. Co., 63 N. C. 238; Shuler v. Millsaps, 71 N. C. 297; Shields v. Lawrence, 72 N. C. 43, 44.

Discretion of Jury.—It must be left, in large measure, to the discretion of the jury to say whether the destruction of timber, or giving up a cultivated field and permitting bushes to grow and take possession of it, in the light of the evidence in the case, has proved a lasting injury to the inheritance; but the acts done or permitted which constitute such injury differ according to the condition of the estate. Sherrill v. Connor, 107 N. C. 630, 12 S. E. 588.

To Determine Liability.—In ascertaining whether a given act constitutes waste, the court has power to determine from the evidence in the case, has proved a lasting injury to the inheritance. Sherrill v. Connor, 107 N. C. 630, 12 S. E. 588.

§ 1-534. For and against whom action lies.—In all cases of waste, an action lies in the superior court at the instance of him in whom the right is, against all persons committing the waste, as well
§ 1-535. Tenant in possession liable.—Where a tenant for term of life as tenant for term of years and guardians. (Rev., s. 854; Code, s. 625; R. C., c. 116, s. 4; 32 Hen. 111, c. 233; 6 Edw. I, c. 5; 20 Edw. I, st. 2; 11 Hen. VI, c. 5; C. S. 889.)

§ 1-536. Action by tenant against cotenant.—Where a joint tenant or a tenant in common commits waste, an action lies against him at the instance of his cotenant or joint tenant. (Rev., s. 856; Code, s. 627; R. C., c. 116, s. 4; 13 Edw. I, c. 227; C. S. 891.)

§ 1-537. Action by heirs.—Every heir may bring action for waste committed on lands, tenements, or hereditaments of his own inheritance, as well as on the time of his ancestor as in his own. (Rev., s. 857; Code, s. 628; R. C., c. 116, s. 5; 6 Edw. I, c. 5; 20 Edw. I, st. 2; 11 Hen. VI, c. 5; C. S. 892.)

Heirs Cannot Set up Damages for Waste as Counterclaim.—In a suit by a widow against the heirs as her co-tenants, where the payments allowed to her as dower and a charge on the land, the heirs cannot set up by way of counterclaim damages for waste. The suit must proceed under the statute. Hybart v. Jones, 130 N. C. 227, 41 S. E. 291.

§ 1-538. Action by tenants in dower, or other life tenant, who, by negligence, permit waste or injury to the inheritance, whether voluntary or permissive, subjects himself to liability to pay the actual damages, or treble damages, at the discretion of the court, for the failure to pay the actual damages, with interest, within 60 days after the occurrence of the waste, or until it is fixed by the court, if he should in the meantime fail to pay the damages recovered of him. Sherrill v. Connor, 107 N. C. 630, 637, 12 S. E. 588.

Section Changes Former Law.—This section is substantially the same as the law in force before the enactment of the Code except for two important changes. The word “may” has been substituted for “shall” by amendment in the Code, and, by a qualification added to it, the judgment for the place wasted must be conditional, and can take effect only upon the failure of the defendant to pay the actual damages before a day certain. So that it is left within the sound discretion of the judge who tries the action to determine whether he will give treble or single damages, as well as to fix a day after which a writ of possession may issue for the place wasted, if the damage allowed shall not have been in the meantime actually paid. The old statute was, manifestly, amended when the Code was enacted, for the purpose of providing a remedial action directly in the Court of General Sessions. The Code contains a provision in reference to the amount of the judgment, and fixing the period of time for the payment of the place wasted on failure to pay the amount recovered. Sherrill v. Connor, 107 N. C. 630, 12 S. E. 588.

Prospective Damages Not Allowed.—The court cannot allow the inheritance to sustain further injury after the damages have been allowed, and on appeal the court will not allow the inheritance to sustain further injury after the damages have been allowed. Sherrill v. Connor, 107 N. C. 630, 637, 12 S. E. 588.

Where Damages Insignificant.—In an action for waste, where the jury find insignificant damages, judgment will be arrested. Sherrill v. Sheppard, 3 N. C. 382.

Judgment for Damages Only.—It is not error for the judgment in an action of waste to be for the damages only, and not also for the place wasted. Bright v. Wilson, 1 N. C. 251.

New Action for Subsequent Injury.—If the life-tenant should allow the inheritance to sustain further injury after the time of trial, damage may be recovered in another action. Sherrill v. Connor, 107 N. C. 630, 12 S. E. 588.

Appeal.—This section says the court may give judgment for treble damages and the place wasted, and on appeal the court will not make such discretionary power obligatory. Sherrill v. Connor, 107 N. C. 630, 12 S. E. 588.

Art. 43. Nuisance.

§ 1-539. Remedy for nuisance.—Injuries remediable by the old writ of nuisance are subjects of action as other injuries; and in such action there may be judgment for damages, or for the removal of the nuisance, or both. (Rev., s. 825; Code, s. 630; C. C. P., s. 387; C. S. 894.)

Cross Reference.—As to injunction against nuisance, see sec. 1-485 and annotations thereunder.

Editor's Note.—Nuisances consist of two general classes, public and private. A public nuisance exists when a right or privilege, common to all the citizens of the community, is interfered with, even though no actual damage to any individual is caused. In such cases in order to maintain a civil action under this section the plaintiff must show special privilege, common to all the citizens of the community, and he need not show that his particular damage differs in kind and degree from that of the other individuals affected. See McManus v. Southern Ry. Co., 150 N. C. 655, 660, 64 S. E. 766.

When the alleged nuisance would constitute a private wrong, by injuring property or health, or creating personal inconvenience and annoyance, for which an action might be maintained in favor of a person injured, it is none the less actionable because the wrong is committed in a manner and under circumstances which would render the guilty party liable to indictment for a common nuisance. See Farmer, etc., v. R. R., 117 N. C. 139, 150, 52 S. E. 43; Pruitt v. Bethell, 174 N. C. 454, 457, 93 S. E. 945.

That is a nuisance which annoys and disturbs one in the possession of his property, rendering its ordinary use or occupancy physically uncomfortable to him. See Baltimore, etc., v. Fifth Church, 108 U. S. 317, 329, 3 S. Ct. 719, 27 L. Ed. 739.

An Adequate Remedy.—Where a nuisance has been established, working harm to the rights of an individual citizen, the law of our state is searching and adequate to afford a remedy redress, both by remedial and preventive remedies, as will be readily seen by reference to numerous decisions of the court on the subject. Cherry v. Williams, 112 N. C. 267, 16 S. E. 276; Reutbun v. McManus, 135 N. C. 328, 67 S. E. 761; Raleigh v. Hunter, 16 N. C. 12; Bell v. Blount, 11 N. C. 384; McManus v. Southern Ry. Co., 150 N. C. 655, 661, 64 S. E. 766.

Purpose of Damages.—Damages in nuisance should be such as to lead to the abatement of the nuisance. Bradley v. Amis, 3 N. C. 399.

Applicable Damages Must Be Suffered.—To sustain an action for a nuisance, public or private, which does not involve the physical invasion of the property of another, it is always required to be shown that some appreciable damage has been suffered, or that some serious or irremediable injury is threatened, and unless this is made to appear a right to nominal damages does not arise. See McManus v. Southern Ry. Co., 150 N. C. 655, 660, 64 S. E. 766.

When Special Damage Necessary.—No person can maintain an action (on a public nuisance) unless he sustains a special damage therefrom differing from that sustained by the rest of the public. McManus v. Southern Ry. Co., 150 N. C. 655, 661, 64 S. E. 766.

But an action by an individual to abate a nuisance cannot be successfully resisted on the ground that no special damage to the plaintiff has been shown, when it appears that the nuisance complained of was the fact that the defendant caused water to flood adjoining lands, which bred fever carrying mosquitoes, thereby, inflicting sickness on the plaintiff and his family, as well as others in the community, and causing the plaintiffs sickness from the same cause. Pruitt v. Bethell, 174 N. C. 454, 93 S. E. 945.

Diminution of Damage.—In an action for damages from a permanent nuisance, the suit being in the nature of a proceeding to condemn the plaintiff's property, it was held, that the court, in construing the contract of the establishment of the nuisance may be set off in diminution of damages. Brown v. Virginia-Carolina Chemical Co., 162 N. C. 83, 77 S. E. 1102.

Injunction Lies.—One suffering peculiar damages from a public nuisance, and not generally complained of, is entitled to an injunction. Reutbun v. Sww. Co., 135 N. C. 328, 87 S. E. 761.

Same.—No Permanent Damages.—Permanently damages for the depreciation of property can not be recovered. The owners may enjoin commission of the acts constituting the nuisance, but temporary damages as their property has sustained thereby, Taylor v. Seaboard, etc., Railroad, 145 N. C. 400, 59 S. E. 129.

Proximate Cause.—In order to recover damages the maintenance of a public nuisance must be the proximate cause of the injuries. McGlue v. Norfolk, etc., R. Co., 147 N. C. 142, 60 S. E. 912.
§ 1-540 CH. 1.

There must be a meeting of minds upon every feature and undue influence, in good faith, deliberately and understandingly. Hennessy v. Bacon, 137 U. S. 78, 11 S. Ct. 17, 34 L. Ed. 496.

In negotiating for a settlement, or facts from which such an agreement might be inferred, Swift, etc., Co. v. United States, 111 U. S. 22, 4 S. Ct. 244, 28 L. Ed. 34.

In order to be thus conclusive, however, there must have been a full and complete discharge of the debt. Held, that there was a sufficient consideration to support the agreement and that the debt was discharged from his obligation. Jones v. Wilson, 104 N. C. 9, 10 S. E. 79.

Where the plaintiff agrees to receive a lesser amount in satisfaction of the debt, the lesser amount to include advertising the amount of which was to be agreed upon by the creditor and the debtor, the creditor having refused to state the amount of advertising he would take, does not in any way invalidate the compromise. Ramsey v. Browder, 136 N. C. 251, 48 S. E. 651.

When the sum paid under an indemnity insurance policy is the only sum due at the time, the language of the receipt, if withdrawn by the plaintiff, pending the litigation, will not constitute the execution of a discharge. Cashier Supply Co. v. Down, 146 N. C. 191, 195, 59 S. E. 685.

When the creditor is entitled to restitution. When one pays a certain sum upon a contested debt in compromise thereof in case it shall afterwards be established, a finding by the jury that it never existed will entitle the payer to a restitution for the money advanced by him. Fickey v. Merrim- mond, 79 N. C. 585.

When the creditor is entitled to restitution. When an order to pay a claim certain in full settlement of a claim in dispute, followed by immediate payment by the debtor, constitutes a valid compromise in full satisfaction of the claim. Pruden v. R. R. Co., 121 N. C. 509, 28 S. E. 149.

III. EFFECT OF COMPROMISE.

A valid compromise and settlement extinguishes the cause of action, and where a party is willing to yield something for the sake of a settlement, he cannot maintain afterwards, that it was voluntarily surrendered. See Boffinger v. Tayes, 120 U. S. 198, 265, 7 S. Ct. 529, 30 L. Ed. 699.

Checks Accepted as Settlement in Full. When an employee was discharged and received and cashed a check for $125, on which was written, “In full for services,” which amount was less than claimed, he cannot recover more, although he attempted to qualify his acceptance of the proceeds of the check by writing on the back above his signature, the words, “Accepted for one month’s services.” Kerr v. Sanders, 122 N. C. 635, 29 S. E. 943.

IV. APPLICATION OF SECTION

Incorporated in Contract. Where agreements to receive a part in lieu of the whole debt due have been made since the enactment of this section, they are deemed to have been entered into in full contemplation of its policy, and though it had been incorporated into the contract, Bank v. Commissioners, 116 N. C. 359, 363, 21 S. E. 410; Koone v. Russell, 103 N. C. 179, 9 S. E. 316.

Must Be Compromise. The section is not applicable where the payment is not intended as a compromise of the whole, or any part of the debt, but as a payment in full. Smith v. Russell, 129 N. C. 99, 59 S. E. 593.

When Creditor Remitted to Original Rights. If the debtor, as in Hunt v. Wheeler, 116 N. C. 422, 425, 21 S. E. 915, repudiates the agreement or unreasonably delays to execute the creditor’s other rights, he may with his consent, assign the right to demand acceptance of the payment of the sum agreed to be paid under the new contract, for payment of the sum agreed to be paid under the original contract, for payment of the sum agreed to be paid under the new contract, for payment of the sum agreed to be paid under the new contract, for payment of the sum agreed to be paid under the new contract, for payment of the sum agreed to be paid under the new contract, for payment of the sum agreed to be paid under the new contract, for payment of the sum agreed to be paid under the new contract, for payment of the sum agreed to be paid under the new contract, for payment of the sum agreed to be paid under the new contract, for payment of the sum agreed to be paid under the new contract, for payment of the Slight Irregularities Do Not Vitiates. When a plea in abatement is not timely tendered, the court has the right to demand that it be received and applied in discharge of his obligation to make any further payment. Boykin v. Buie, 109 N. C. 501, 503, 13 S. E. 979.

When Payer is Entitled to Restitution. When one pays a certain sum upon a contested debt in compromise thereof in case it shall afterwards be established, a finding by the jury that it never existed will entitle the payer to a restitution for the money advanced by him. Fickey v. Merrim- mond, 79 N. C. 585.

Principal Bound by Acts of Agent. A principal may not rely upon the acts of his agent in compromising a debt due, and receive the benefit of the consideration therefor. Cashier Supply Co. v. Down, 146 N. C. 191, 195, 59 S. E. 685.

When the sum paid under an indemnity insurance policy is the only sum due at the time, the language of the receipt, if withdrawn by the plaintiff, pending the litigation, will not constitute the execution of a discharge of the claim in dispute. Moore v. Casualty Co., 150 N. C. 153, 154, 63 S. E. 775.

When one of several makers of a note agree with the payee to compromise the debt due, and receive the benefit of the consideration therefor. Cashier Supply Co. v. Down, 146 N. C. 191, 195, 59 S. E. 685.

Where one of several makers of a note agree with the payee to compromise the debt due, and receive the benefit of the consideration therefor. Cashier Supply Co. v. Down, 146 N. C. 191, 195, 59 S. E. 685.
V. PROCEDURE.

Discretion of Court.—Where, among other defenses to an action, the defendant pleads accord and satisfaction, the discretionary power of the trial judge in submitting this issue to the jury before submitting it for the jury's determination should not be considered for error unless the issue is not properly included in the case alleged, or unless the court, after considering the evidence and the argument of counsel in favor of the plaintiff, decides that the issue should be submitted to the jury for its determination. See Dakota County v. Glidden, 113 U. S. 222, 5 S. Ct. 572, 28 L. Ed. 681.

Compromise Pending Writ of Error.—Where there has been a decision in the lower court, a valid compromise of the matter in dispute may be made while a writ of error is pending. See Dakota County v. Glidden, 113 U. S. 222, 28 L. Ed. 681.

§ 1-541. Judgment.—The defendant, at any time before the trial or verdict, may serve upon the plaintiff an offer in writing to allow judgment to be taken against him for the sum or property, or to the effect therein specified, or therein referred to, if the action had been brought to recover the specific property tendered, unless the offer had also included with the proposed delivery of articles tendered in kind a proposal to pay an amount as damages for detention not less than that ultimately assessed by the jury. Citing Stephens v. Koerce, 103 N. C. 266, 269, 9 S. E. 315. Wood's Mayne on Damages, secs. 520, 521.

Unaccepted Tender of Judgment.—The purpose of the section is to be secured by holding according to its language that a tender of judgment unaccepted "cannot be given in evidence," and can only be used after verdict before the judge, to enable him to adjudge who shall pay the costs. See Dakota Grocery Co. v. Taylor, 162 N. C. 369, 371, 78 S. E. 276.

In Blanton Grocery Co. v. Taylor, 162 N. C. 307, 313, 78 S. E. 276, it was held: "Where, during the trial, the tender of judgment is made and rejected, it is not admitted as evidence; and while this provision is primarily for the protection of the plaintiff, the statute is a part of the wholesome scheme devised to encourage compromises and settlements, before and after action commenced."

When a defendant has tendered judgment for a smaller amount on another and different liability from that alleged in the complaint, and plaintiff does not accept as provided by this section, the tender is thereby withdrawn, and upon judgment thereon the plaintiff cannot recover costs, but the plaintiff is entitled to judgment for the amount tendered, there being no admission of liability in any amount upon the cause alleged. Dugget v. Co. v. Terry, 213 N. C. 533, 196 S. E. 621.

Tender Sufficient to Stop Costs.—A tender of payment under the section, to stop the costs and the accrual of interest on a judgment subsequently rendered, must be in writing, signed by the party making it, and contain an offer of settlement of the amount tendered. See sec. 1-541, and annotations thereto.

§ 1-542. Conditional tender of judgment for damages.—In an action arising on contract, the defendant may, with his answer, serve upon the plaintiff an offer in writing, that if he fails in his defense, the damages be assessed at a specified sum; and if the plaintiff signifies his acceptance thereof in writing, ten days before the trial, and on the trial there is a verdict, the damages shall be assessed accordingly. If the plaintiff does not accept the offer, he must prove his damages, as if it had not been made, and may not introduce it in evidence. If the damages assessed in his favor do not exceed the sum mentioned in the offer, the defendant shall recover his expenses incurred in consequence of any necessary preparation or defense in respect to the question of damages. This expense shall be ascertained at the trial. (Rev., ss. 861, 862; Code, ss. 875, 876; C. C. P., ss. 329, 330; C. S. 897.)

Tender Should Accompany Answer.—A tender may accompany an answer, and以此省略了其 Proper—plain text representation.
Agreement as Evidence Fixing Damages.—Where, pending an action to recover for damages done to a lot of tobacco with reference to arbitration in cases where a parol agreement on the subject matter would be enforceable, and an award reached under the parol agreement to arbitrate will not be invalidated, if in such action the court shall refuse to take notice of the contract and procedure prescribed by the statute. Copney v. Parks, 212 N. C. 217, 193 S. E. 21.

§ 1-543. Disclaimer of title in trespass; tender of judgment.—In actions of trespass upon real estate, the defendant in his answer may disclaim any title or claim to the lands on which the trespass is alleged by the complaint to be done, may allege that the trespass was by negligence or involuntary, and may make a tender or offer of sufficient amends for the trespass. If the plaintiff controverts such answer or a part thereof, and at the trial verdict is found for the defendant, or if the plaintiff is nonsuited, he is barred from maintaining a suit for trespass. If the plaintiff either enters judgment or cannot be taxed with any costs relating to that part of the suit, he should enter a disclaimer; and when he does so, he is permitted, not to sacrifice justice. Pursuing this policy, arbitration has always been encouraged. See the Editor’s Note to sec. 1-188.

Applicability to Agreement Respecting Future Controversies.—Attention is called to the fact that this section limits the agreement and the arbitration to controversies arising out of the agreement to arbitrate “to any controversy existing between the parties at the time of the agreement to submit”. These terms do not expressly extend to and include agreements to submit controversies arising after the expiration or rescission of the agreement; but an agreement to arbitrate, it is the policy of the law to encourage the settlement of litigation or controversy with as much speed and as little expense as the exigencies of the case will allow. The question of whether the court shall assume jurisdiction over the contract generally; if it does, it is invalid. See Swaim v. Swaim, 14 N. C. 24.

The following North Carolina cases discuss the rule and illustrate the application of it as to future disputes.

“The original doctrine, with its modifications, is well summed up by Justice Manning in Kelly v. Trimmont Lodge, 150 N. C. 97, 153 S. E. 257: ‘It is essential to the doctrine that when a cause of action has arisen, the courts cannot be ousted of their jurisdiction by agreements, previously entered into, to submit the liabilities and rights of the parties as to disputes arising out of other than the present controversy, in the agreement; but it has been also generally held that the agreement to submit the particular question of the amount of loss or damage to the settlement under public policy and is sustained. That is simply a method for the ascertainment of a single fact, and not the determination of the legal liability of the insurer.’" Citing Mfg. Co. v. Assur. Co., 196 N. C. 28, 19 S. E. 87.

That an agreement to submit to arbitration the single question of the amount of loss by fire is valid. Nelson v. Atlantic R. Co., 157 N. C. 194, 201, 72 S. E. 998. Although an agreement to arbitrate the entire controversy is not enforceable, and prior to this agreement it fails to so, and enters upon the arbitration, and an award is made, he is bound. Nelson v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 157 N. C. 194, 202, 72 S. E. 998; Williams v. Mfg. Co., 154 N. C. 205, 206, 70 S. E. 250.

The law of this state is in accord with the law of the majority of the American States (See 5 C. J. pp. 43 et seq., connected § 72), but it may be of interest to note that a very recent school of thought has given rise to the doctrine that all contracts to arbitrate future controversies are valid and enforceable. This is made statutory in several jurisdictions including New York (passing the first of such statutes in 1920), New Jersey, Massachusetts, Oregon, California and the Federal Government. See the discussion in the Handbook, cited supra in this note.

Arbitration statutes usually prohibit, either expressly or by necessary implication, such controversies. While it is a rule of common law that all contracts to arbitrate future controversies are valid and enforceable, this is broad enough to include disputes concerning the title to freehold estates in land, it is doubtful whether statutes of many of the states expressly prohibit their submission. It has been said by some of the standard authorities that arbitration statutes usually prohibit, either expressly or by necessary implication, such controversies. While it is a rule of contracts, that an agreement made by an infant was not bind the infant by a submission to arbitration, even the submission was made the rule of the court. Millsaps v. Estes, 137 N. C. 535, 536, 50 S. E. 227.

A party having this capacity cannot act through an agent or attorney in the same manner as was always possible before the admission of to the bar. The consideration supporting the contract of arbitration is the mutual promises and this is sufficient. See Mayo v. Gardner, 70 N. C. 359.

May an Award be Set Aside.—This section provides that "Two or more parties may agree." It does not specify whether the parties may do so by their general agents or by their attorneys. Prior to this act it was held under prior law that the attorneys might make such an agreement and this without the consent of the clients (Millsaps v. Estes, 134 N. C. 486, 46 S. E. 988, and citations); it would seem that a party could have made the contract with agents in the same manner that any other contract could have been made. It is to be presumed that the word "parties" as here used is given the meaning ordinarily ascribed to the word "parties" in law, and that the same latitude will be given the parties in making the agreement that they have always had. As has always been the case, administrators (see sec. 28-111, and McLeod v. Graham, 52 N. C. 504), arbitrators and other representatives may no doubt represent the estates of the parties or their wards, custei que trusts, etc., in this capacity.

It was held prior to this section, following the ordinary rule of contracts, that an agreement made by an infant was voidable. It was also held that a guardian ad litem could not bind the infant by a submission to arbitration, even though the submission was made the rule of the court. See Crissman v. Crissman, 27 N. C. 498.

Necessity of Controversy Being Litigated.—It is not necessary, it would seem, that the controversy be pending in a court before it can be arbitrated, for any existing dispute over a controversy which has been litigated. It would seem that all disputes which could be in writing and others did not, depending upon whether they fell within the statute. See Fort v. Allen, 110 N. C. 183, 189, 14 S. E. 685; Crissman v. Crissman, 27 N. C. 498.

Power to Revoke.—Since the word "submission" means an agreement to refer the dispute to the arbitrators, it does not seem to be in writing and others did not, depending upon whether they fell within the statute. See Fort v. Allen, 110 N. C. 183, 189, 14 S. E. 685; Crissman v. Crissman, 27 N. C. 498.

Effect of Death of Party.—While prior to this act the death of one of the parties before the award automatically revoked the contract to arbitrate, (see Whitfield v. Whitfield, 30 N. C. 161; Williams v. Branch, 27 N. C. 335, 336, 70 S. E. 357; see Fort v. Allen, 110 N. C. 183, 189, 14 S. E. 685, Crissman v. Crissman, 27 N. C. 497), this section changes the rule so that now the effect of such death upon contract is the same as it is upon ordinary contracts. See also Fort v. Allen, 110 N. C. 183, 189, 14 S. E. 685, Crissman v. Crissman, 27 N. C. 497.

Number of Arbitrators.—Notwithstanding that section 1-547 provides that in case the agreement fails to prescribe a method for appointment of the arbitrators, the court shall appoint, it is sufficient to say that if the number of arbitrators the parties may appoint in the absence of an agreement to that effect, quere.

Effect of Submission.—It is enough that the parties agree to submit the controversy to arbitration. It is not necessary that they agree to arbitrate future controversies; and the submission of a dispute to arbitration is a contract, it is reasonable to suppose that the framers of this statute intended to leave it unchanged.

Thus, the parties thereto must have the legal capacity to enter into the contract and the capacity to arbitrate, or, otherwise they cannot. While there are no decisions, as yet, construing this statute, there has always been the general rule and it is but reasonable to suppose that the framers of this statute intended to leave it unchanged.

A party having this capacity cannot act through an agent or attorney in the same manner as was always possible before the admission of to the bar. The consideration supporting the contract of arbitration is the mutual promises and this is sufficient. See Mayo v. Gardner, 70 N. C. 359.

May an Award be Set Aside.—This section provides that "Two or more parties may agree." It does not specify whether the parties may do so by their general agents or by their attorneys. Prior to this act it was held under prior law that the attorneys might make such an agreement and this without the consent of the clients (Millsaps v. Estes, 134 N. C. 486, 46 S. E. 988, and citations); it would seem that a party could have made the contract with agents in the same manner that any other contract could have been made. It is to be presumed that the word "parties" as here used is given the meaning ordinarily ascribed to the word "parties" in law, and that the same latitude will be given the parties in making the agreement that they have always had. As has always been the case, administrators (see sec. 28-111, and McLeod v. Graham, 52 N. C. 504), arbitrators and other representatives may no doubt represent the estates of the parties or their wards, custei que trusts, etc., in this capacity.

It was held prior to this section, following the ordinary rule of contracts, that an agreement made by an infant was voidable. It was also held that a guardian ad litem could not bind the infant by a submission to arbitration, even though the submission was made the rule of the court. See Fort v. Allen, 110 N. C. 183, 189, 14 S. E. 685; Crissman v. Crissman, 27 N. C. 498.

Necessity of Controversy Being Litigated.—It is not necessary, it would seem, that the controversy be pending in a court before it can be arbitrated, for any existing dispute over a controversy which has been litigated. It would seem that all disputes which could be in writing and others did not, depending upon whether they fell within the statute. See Fort v. Allen, 110 N. C. 183, 189, 14 S. E. 685; Crissman v. Crissman, 27 N. C. 498.

Power to Revoke.—Since the word "submission" means an agreement to refer the dispute to the arbitrators, it does not seem to be in writing and others did not, depending upon whether they fell within the statute. See Fort v. Allen, 110 N. C. 183, 189, 14 S. E. 685, Crissman v. Crissman, 27 N. C. 497.

Effect of Death of Party.—While prior to this act the death of one of the parties before the award automatically revoked the contract to arbitrate, (see Whitfield v. Whitfield, 30 N. C. 161; Williams v. Branch, 27 N. C. 335, 336, 70 S. E. 357; see Fort v. Allen, 110 N. C. 183, 189, 14 S. E. 685, Crissman v. Crissman, 27 N. C. 497), this section changes the rule so that now the effect of such death upon contract is the same as it is upon ordinary contracts. See also Fort v. Allen, 110 N. C. 183, 189, 14 S. E. 685, Crissman v. Crissman, 27 N. C. 497.

Number of Arbitrators.—Notwithstanding that section 1-547 provides that in case the agreement fails to prescribe a method for appointment of the arbitrators, the court shall appoint, it is sufficient to say that if the number of arbitrators the parties may appoint in the absence of an agreement to that effect, quere.
§ 1-545. Statement of questions in controversy.—The arbitration agreement must state the question or questions in controversy with sufficient definiteness to present one or more issues or questions upon which an award may be based. (1927, c. 94, s. 3.)

§ 1-547. Cases where court may appoint arbitrator; number of arbitrators.—Upon the application in writing of any party to the arbitration agreement and upon notice to the other parties thereto, the court shall appoint an arbitrator or arbitrators in any of the following cases:

(a) When the arbitration agreement does not prescribe a method for the appointment of arbitrators, in which case the arbitration shall be by three arbitrators.

(b) When the arbitration agreement does prescribe a method for the appointment of arbitrators, and the arbitrators, or any of them, have not been appointed and the time within which they should have been appointed has expired.

(c) When any arbitrator fails or is otherwise unable to act, and his successor has not been appointed in the manner in which he was appointed.

Arbitrators appointed by the court shall have the same power as though their appointment had been made in accordance with the agreement to arbitrate. (1927, c. 94, s. 4.)

As to number of arbitrators generally, see note to sec. 1-544.

Editor's Note.—Prior to this act the appointments must have been made by the parties in pursuance of the agreement if the controversy was not pending. But if it were pending the appointment might have been made by the court with the consent of the parties. See the note under sec. 1-544.

§ 1-548. Notice of Appointment to Arbitrators.—There was no necessity that the arbitrators under the former law be informed of their appointment by a formal or written notice. It was sufficient if they were appointed, met and made the award. Zell v. Johnston, 76 N. C. 302. This probably extended to adjourned meetings, except that to submit the award was ever necessary. Zell v. Johnston, supra; 5 C. J. [§ 288] 123.

§ 1-549. Notice of time and place of hearing.—The arbitrators shall appoint a time and place for the hearing, and notify the parties thereof, and may adjourn the hearing from time to time as may be necessary, and, on application of either party, and for good cause, may postpone the hearing to a time not extending beyond the date fixed for making the award. (1927, c. 94, s. 6.)

Editor's Note.—It may be stated as a general rule that the parties have a right to a notice of the time and place of hearing if the judgment of the arbitrators may have been influenced or enlightened by evidence. Grimes v. Brown, 113 N. C. 154, 18 S. E. 87; Zell v. Johnston, 76 N. C. 302. This probably extended to adjourned meetings, except that no notice of a final meeting to make up and sign the award was ever necessary. Zell v. Johnston, supra; 5 C. J. [§ 288] 123.

§ 1-551. Award within sixty days.—If the time within which the award shall be made is not fixed in the arbitration agreement, the award must be made within sixty days from the time of the appointment of the arbitrators, and an award made after the lapse of sixty days shall have no legal effect unless the parties extend the time in which said award may be made, which extension or ratification shall be in writing. (1927, c. 94, s. 8.)

Former Law.—Under the former law, the time given in which to submit the award was fixed either by the arbitration agreement or by those submitting the question by arbitration, and all parties are present or represented by counsel, the unsuccessful party may not wait until after the award has been made and then set up for the first time his contention that the award was of no effect because not made within sixty days after the submission, the provisions of this section being subject to waiver, and the award as rendered is binding on the parties. Andrews v. Jordan, 205 N. C. 618, 172 S. E. 319.

§ 1-552. Representation before arbitrators.—No one other than a party to said arbitration, or a person regularly employed by such party for other purposes, or a practicing attorney-at-law, shall be permitted by the arbitrator or arbitrators to represent before him or them any party to the arbitration. (1927, c. 94, s. 9.)

§ 1-553. Requirement of attendance of witnesses.—The arbitrator or arbitrators, or a majority of them, may require any person to attend before him or them as a witness, and to bring with him any book or writing or other evidence. The fees for such attendance shall be the same as the fees of witnesses in the Superior Court. Subpoenas shall issue in the name of the arbitrator or arbitrators, or a majority of them, and shall be signed by the arbitrator or arbitrators, or a majority of them, and shall be served in the same manner as subpoenas to testify before a court of record in this State; if any person so summoned to testify shall refuse or neglect to obey such subpoenas, upon petition the court may compel the attendance of such person before the said arbitrator or arbitrators, or punish said person for contempt in the same manner now provided for the attendance of witnesses or the punishment of them in the courts of this State. (1927, c. 94, s. 10.)

Editor's Note.—At common law the arbitrators could not of themselves compel the attendance of witnesses. And when they heard evidence they were not compelled to administer oaths, though they could do so. (See Pierce v. Perkins, 17 N. C. 350; McCrae v. Robeson, 6 N. C. 127.) The mode of hearing testimony must have been fair and im-
§ 1-554. Depositions. — Depositions may be taken with or without a commission in the same manner and for the same reasons as provided by law for the taking of depositions in suits pending in the courts of record in this State. (1927, c. 94, s. 11.)

Editor's Note. — There was no method of taking depositions in arbitration proceedings at common law.

§ 1-555. Orders for preservation of property. — At any time before final determination of the arbitration the court may upon application of any party to the submission make such order or decree or take such proceeding as it may deem necessary for the preservation of the property or for securing satisfaction of the award. (1927, c. 94, s. 12.)

§ 1-556. Questions of law submitted to court; form of award.—The arbitrators may, on their own motion, and shall by request of a party to the arbitration,
(a) At any stage of the proceedings submit any question of law arising in the course of the hearing for the opinion of the court, stating the facts upon which the question arises, and such opinion when given shall be final and shall bind the arbitrators in the making of their award.
(b) State their final award in the form of a conclusion of fact for the opinion of the court on the questions of law arising on the hearing. (1927, c. 94, s. 13.)

§ 1-557. Award in writing and signed by arbitrators. — The award of the arbitrators, or a majority of them, shall be drawn up in writing and signed by the arbitrators or a majority of them; the award shall definitely deal with all matters of difference in the submission requiring settlement, but the arbitrators may, in their discretion, first make a partial award which shall be enforceable in the same manner as the final award; upon the making of an award, the arbitrators may, in their discretion, first make a partial award which shall be enforceable in the same manner as the final award; upon the making of an award, the arbitrators may, in their discretion, first make a partial award which shall be enforceable in the same manner as the final award; upon the making of an award, the arbitrators shall deliver a true copy thereof to each of the parties thereto, or their attorneys, without delay. (1927, c. 94, s. 14.)

Prior Law.—Necessity for Writing. — It would seem that under the prior law the award need be in writing only when required by the agreement or come within the general statutes of fraud. See Crisman v. Crissman, 27 N. C. 498, 503; Gaylord v. Gaylord, 48 N. C. 358, 369. See also S. J. C. §§ 260, 114.

Same.—Signature of Arbitrators. — In order for an award to be enforceable in this state, as evidence under the prior law it was necessary that it be signed by the arbitrators. Morrison v. Russell, 32 N. C. 273. The signature by persons other than the arbitrators has been held not to vitiate the award. Where a party has procured an award by a majority of the arbitrators. Carter v. Sams, 20 N. C. 321.

Same.—Dealing with All Matters Submitted. — It has always been necessary for arbitrators to pass on all the points particularly referred to them; Osborne v. Calvart, 86 N. C. 365; otherwise the award was entirely void. But if the submission covered all matters in difference without specifying them, the arbitrators could make an award of only such things as they had noticed, and the award was good. Walker v. Walker, 60 N. C. 255.

"The award on its face ought to show that the arbitrators have acted upon all the matters submitted." Crisp v. Love, 65 N. C. 256.

Same.—Matters Not Submitted. — Matters passed on by the arbitrators not submitted to them rendered the award void in the absence of waiver as by the voluntary introduction of evidence on matters not submitted. Robertson v. Marshall, 155 N. C. 167, 71 S. E. 67. The power of the arbitrators is derived from the submission and the award must be made in strict accordance with it, and must not go beyond what is embraced in it. Cullifer v. Gilliam, 31 N. C. 126; Cutler v. Cutler, 169 N. C. 482, 86 S. E. 301.

However, if the decision of submitted questions involved the decision of other questions, such decision was held to be within the submission if the decision of the latter was not error. Zell v. Johnston, 76 N. C. 302.

Same.—Copy and Delivery of Award. — Under the prior law it was not necessary, in the absence of agreement to that effect, that the award be copied for the use of the parties. Stallings v. Stallings, 100 S. C. 169, 94, s. 13.

The award of the arbitrators, or a majority of them, shall be drawn up in writing and signed. With full understanding as to its meaning a demand for a copy of the award was made at the time of rendition if the parties wanted it. See Crawford v. Orr, 84 N. C. 246; Morrison v. Russell, 32 N. C. 273.

Form of Award.—There has never been any requirement in this state as to the form of the award, this having been left to the choice of the arbitrators unless the agreement specified a form. Ball Thrash Co. v. McCormack, 172 N. C. 657, 90 S. E. 916.

Award Liberally Conformed. — Under the prior law it was held that the court will always intend everything in favor of an award and will give such construction to it that it may be supported if possible. Carter v. Sams, 20 N. C. 321.

§ 1-558. Time for application for confirmation. — At any time within three months after the award is made, unless the parties shall extend the time in writing, any party to the arbitration may apply to the court for an order confirming the award, and the court shall grant such an order unless the award is vacated, modified, or corrected, as provided in §§ 1-559 and 1-560. Notice in writing of the motion must be served upon the adverse party, or his attorney, five days before the hearing thereof. (1927, c. 94, s. 15.)

Effect upon Prior Law. — This section provides the method of enforcing an award after it is made.

The practice in this state regarding the enforcement of this award depended upon whether or not the matter submitted to arbitration was pending in court; if it were, and the agreement was made in court, then the arbitrators reported the award to the court when it became a rule of the court if confirmed. If the controversy was pending but the agreement was made out of court, then the award had to be confirmed by the court. If the controversy was not pending when required by the agreement or come within the general statutes of fraud. See Crissman v. Crissman, 27 N. C. 498, 503; Gaylord v. Gaylord, 48 N. C. 358, 369. See also S. J. C. §§ 260, 114.

Same.—Signature of Arbitrators. — In order for an award to be enforceable in court only by a suit upon it as if a verdict of the jury irrespective of whether the cause was pending, and upon application to the court as prescribed, judgment is entered thereon.

§ 1-559. Order vacating award. — In any of the following cases the court shall after notice and hearing make an order vacating the award, upon the application of any party to the arbitration:
(a) Where the award was procured by corruption, fraud or other undue means.
(b) Where there was evident partiality or corruption in the arbitrators, or either of them.
(c) Where the arbitrators were guilty of misconduct, in refusing to postpone the hearing, upon sufficient cause shown, or in refusing to hear evidence pertinent and material to the controversy; or of any other misbehavior, by which the rights of any party have been prejudiced.
(d) Where the arbitrators exceeded their powers or so imperfectly executed them that a mutual, final, and definite award upon the subject matter submitted was not made.

Where an award is vacated and the time, within which the agreement required the award to be made, has not expired, the court may, in its dis-
§ 1-560. Order modifying or correcting award.

In any of the following cases the court shall, after notice and hearing make an order modifying or correcting the award, upon the application of any party to the arbitration:

(a) Where there was an evident miscalculation of figures, or an evident mistake in the description of any person, thing or property, referred to in the award.

(b) Where the arbitrators have awarded upon a matter not submitted to them.

(c) Where the award is imperfect in a matter of form, not affecting the merits of the controversy.

The order must modify and correct the award, so as to effect the intent thereof. (1927, c. 94, s. 17.)

§ 1-561. Notice of motion to vacate, modify or correct award within three months.—Notice of a motion to vacate, modify or correct an award shall be served upon the adverse party, or his attorney, within three months after an award is filed or delivered, as prescribed by law for service of notice of a motion in civil actions. For the purposes of the motion any judge who might make an order to vacate the award, or, as a more direct way to the same end, will (in this state at least) enter judgment according to the award. (1927, c. 94, s. 18.)

§ 1-562. Judgment or decree entered.—Upon the granting of an order, confirming, modifying, correcting or vacating an award, judgment or decree shall be entered in conformity therewith. (1927, c. 94, s. 19.)

See editor's note under § 1-558 as to when judgment may have been entered under prior law.

§ 1-563. Papers to be filed on motion relating to award.—The party moving for an order confirming, modifying, correcting or vacating an award, shall at the time such motion is filed with the clerk, file, unless the same have theretofore been filed, the following papers with the clerk:

(a) The written contract or a verified copy thereof containing the agreement for the submission; the selection or appointment of the arbitrator or arbitrators, and each written extension of the time, if any within which to make the award.

(b) The award.

(c) Every notice, affidavit and other paper used upon an application to confirm, modify, correct or vacate the award, and each order made upon such an application.

The judgment or decree shall be entered (or docketed) as if it were rendered in an action. (1927, c. 94, s. 20.)

§ 1-564. Force and effect of judgment or decree.—The judgment or decree so entered (or docketed) shall have the same force and effect, in all respects, as, and be subject to all the provisions of law relating to a judgment or decree; and it may be enforced, as if it had been rendered in the court in which it is entered. (1927, c. 94, s. 21.)

Force and Effect under Prior Law.—"Ordinarily, if their award be within their powers and unaffected by fraud, mistake, surprise or irregularity, the judge has no power over it except to make it a rule of court and enforce it according to the course of the court." Lusk v. Clayton, 70 N. C. 185, 188.

Same—Agreement to Become Rule of Court.—"An agreement that an award shall be a rule (or judgment) of Court is merely an agreement to confess judgment according to the award when it shall be made. If such agreement be made by persons having no suit in court respecting the matters referred, a court (in this state at least) will not compel performance of the agreement by attachment because the parties have not put themselves under its jurisdiction, but will leave them to their remedy by action on the agreement. Alexander v. Burton, 21 N. C. 406. If, however, such an agreement be made between the parties to a suit, the court having jurisdiction over the persons and the subject-matter will compel the parties by attachment to perform the agreement by conferring judgment according to the award, or, as a more direct way to the same end, will (in this state at least) enter judgment according to the award." Cunningham v. Howell, 23 N. C. 9; Lusk v. Clayton, 70 N. C. 185, 188.

Effect of Arbitrators Attempting to Decide by Law.—Where it appears that the arbitrators intended to decide according to law, if they clearly mistake the law, the judge may set aside the award, and perhaps in some circumstances give such judgment as they ought in law to have given. Lusk v. Clayton, 70 N. C. 185, 188.

Editor's Note.—This section was taken from the law of Illinois, which was passed by the General Assembly on February 5, 1927. This section is specific in that it is limited to the final judgment or decree entered by the court, and cannot be taken from the arbitration directly. In other words it may be taken in accordance with sections 1-557 and 1-559. Notwithstanding that in many states an appeal can be had only in cases of fraud or some matter that goes to the very essence of the thing, this section gives the right of appeal in all cases. See "Handbook on the National Commission on Uniform State Laws" and the proceedings of the 35th annual meeting of 1925, pages 63, 701.

Presumption on Appeal.—Where parties to an action in ejectment consent to arbitration on questions of boundaries and an order is made accordingly under this and the following sections, but the record discloses no evidence upon which the arbitrators based their decision, the courts will assume that there was evidence to support their action. Bryson v. Higdon, 222 N. C. 17, 21 S. E. (2d) 836.

§ 1-566. Uniformity of interpretation.—Interpretation of article.—This article shall be so interpreted and construed as to effectuate its general purpose to make uniform the law of those states which enact it. (1927, c. 94, s. 23.)

§ 1-567. Citation of article.—This article may be cited as the uniform arbitration act. (1927, c. 94, s. 24.)

Art. 46. Examination of Parties.

§ 1-568. Action for discovery abolished.—No action to obtain discovery under oath, in aid of the prosecution or defense of another action, shall be allowed, nor shall any examination of a party be had on behalf of the adverse party, except in the manner prescribed by this article. (Rev., s. 251; Code, s. 590; C. C. P., s. 592; C. S. 894.)

As to inspection of documents, see sec. 8-89; as to examining a witness, see sec. 1-570; as to reviewing a decision, see sec. 1-571; as to taking a deposition, see sec. 1-572; as to searching the files of the court, see sec. 1-573; as to practicing before the court, see sec. 1-574.

Editor's Note.—In 1851 Parliament passed what was known as Lord Denman's Act, which provided that in all actions or proceedings in any court of record, the court may examine, either at the trial or upon commission, any person in whose behalf any such suit or action or other proceeding may be brought or defended, shall, except as hereinafter provided, be entitled to compel the production of, to inspect and take copies of, the papers of an adversary party should be considered and examined, and to compel the examination of parties to the said suit, action or other proceeding.

At the time this Act was passed, the various courts of law and chancery were still maintained with the established procedure in each. When the courts of equity were abolished in 1875, Lord Chancellor Cottenham Same—Appeal Does Not Lie from Order.—An appeal does not lie (being premature) from an order directing the examination of directors of a corporation under the provisions of this section in an action by a stockholder against the corporation, or from a refusal to discharge such order. Holt v. Southern Finishing, etc., Co., 116 N. C. 480, 21 S. E. 919.

Answers as Evidence—Where a defendant has been examined before the filing of the complaint in the action, but before trial in accordance with this section, his answers to the questions propounded on the examination are competent before a jury, see G. &c. Great Atlantic, etc., Tea Co., 204 N. C. 713, 169 S. E. 618.

Right to Cross-Examine Witnesses Is Available Only at Time of Examination.—Where the examination of witnesses prior to the commencement of the trial, as provided in the preceding sections and the testimony elicited from the witnesses read at the trial, the party against whom such evidence is introduced in the trial, has not been done, the de- cision of the lower court will not be disturbed. Chesson v. Union Guano Co., 180 N. C. 2319, 104 S. E. 653, cited and distinguished. Whitehurst v. Hin- ton, 200 N. C. 32, 33, 15 S. E. 1031; McGraw v. Southern Ry. Co., 209 N. C. 432, 184 S. E. 31.

§ 1-570. Before trial in his own county.—The examination, instead of being had at the trial, as provided in § 1-569, may be had at any time before the trial, at the option of the party claiming it, before a judge or commissioner duly appointed to take depositions, or clerk of the court, on a previous notice to the party to be examined, and any other adverse party, of at least five days, unless for good cause shown the judge or court orders otherwise. (Rev., s. 866; Code, s. 581; 1893, c. 114; C. C. P., s. 334; 1899, c. 65, s. 1; C. S. 901.)

Examination at Option of Party Claiming.—The examination is treated as a right to be exercised before trial at the option of the party claiming it. Vann v. Lawrence, 111 N. C. 33, 33, 15 S. E. 1031; McGraw v. Southern Ry. Co., 209 N. C. 432, 184 S. E. 31.

Examination May Be Necessary to Secure Order.—To obtain an order for the examination of the defendant to discover necessary information to file his complaint under this section, it is necessary for the plaintiff to show under oath that the information sought is not otherwise available to him, and its necessity in such detail as will enable the court to pass thereon, and when upon an appeal from the refusal of the court to grant such order, the examination of the lower court will not be disturbed. Chesson v. Washington County Bank, 190 N. C. 137, 129 S. E. 403.

The court is not bound to order an examination of a defendant for the purpose of procuring a complaint, unless it is made to appear under oath of the mover that such an order is necessary, that the evidence sought to be elicited is material, and that the application is made in good faith. Baskerville v. Baskerville, 151 N. C. 89, 62 S. E. 92.

Same—Appeal from Order.—An affidavit in support of a motion in the cause to allow the plaintiffs to examine the defendant adversely under the provisions of this section, showing that the defendant had assumed to manage the estate of a deceased person of whom the plaintiffs were the heirs at law under a paper purporting to be a will, but which had been subsequently declared invalid, and that this was the only available way in which certain information necessary in the action could be obtained, is sufficient to sustain the order of examination allowed by the court. Guder v. Robinson Bros. Contractors, 199 N. C. 251, 13 S. E. (2d) 414.

A party cannot appeal from an order to appear before the clerk to be examined under oath concerning the matters set out in the pleadings. Pender v. Mallett, 122 N. C. 165, 30 S. E. 92.

An appeal will not lie directly to the Supreme Court from an order of the superior court judge affirming the action of the judge in ordering the examination of the defendant to discover certain information, alleged to be not otherwise obtainable, and material to the filing of the complaint, when it does not appear that the defendant will be prejudiced or injured thereby. Monroe v. Holder, 192 N. C. 79, 188 S. E. 359.

Defendant Examined to Aid in Framing Complaint.—Under some circumstances the defendant may, be examined before the plead- ings are filed to procure information in framing the compl- int. Pender v. Mallett, 122 N. C. 57, 60, 31 S. E. 351.

The plaintiff in an action for injuries by alleged neglect of the physician in the course of his treatment of the plaintiff, examination of a defendant may be had at any time before the trial, if the examination of the defendant to aid him in filing his complaint, where he alleges that he knew the information sought is not otherwise accessible to the plaintiff, has the precise knowledge necessary for proper proceedings. Smith v. Wooding, 177 N. C. 546, 94 S. E. 404.

Upon application to examine a defendant outside the county, the clerk and approved by the judge of the superior court, to aid in preparing the complaint, such facts as will entitle the movant to the order must be made to appear by affidavit; but after filing a verified complaint out of court, which is not in the plaintifi has a right to the order for examination, and the leave of the court is unnecessary. Ward v. Martin, 172 N. C. 257, 95 S. E. 621.

Examinations Before Commissioner.—The parties may be examined before a commissioner appointed to take the examina- tion, but the commission must issue out of the court in which the cause is pending. Vyne v. Fogle Bros. Co., 176 N. C. 351, 152 S. E. 147.

Same—Before Clerk.—When a party elects to have the ex- amination before the clerk it would seem that the mode of conducting it must be such as respects the same as if had be- fore the judge. Harper v. Pinkston, 112 N. C. 293, 303, 17 S. E. 161.

Under this section the clerk is clothed with precisely the same authority as the judge. Bradley Fertilizer Co. v. Taylor, 112 N. C. 141, 147, 17 S. E. 69.

Same—Not Part of Pleadings.—The examination of the defendant filed in the record should not be taken as part of the pleadings. E. R. H. v. Watt, 176 N. C. 584, 197 S. E. 414.

The examination is not intended by the law to be a part of the pleading, but is in its very nature simply evidence which can be used by the plaintiff in support of his allegations and which may be rebutted by the defendant. Whit- aker v. Jenkins, 138 N. C. 476, 481, 51 S. E. 104.

Sufficiency of Petition for Examination.—A petition for the examination of a defendant is insufficient, in the form of an affidavit, and further fails to allege the facts upon which petitioner bases his allegation that the ex- amination of the respondent is necessary to enable it to pre- pare its defense, is insufficient to support an order for examination. Guder v. Robinson Bros. Contractors, 219 N. C. 251, 13 S. E. (2d) 414.

In order to justify the examination provided for in this section, the petition must state facts which will show the nature of the cause of action, and that the information sought is material and necessary and not other- wise accessible to the applicant. Further, it must be shown that the information sought is material and made in good faith. The court will not permit a party to spread a dragnet for an adversary to gain facts upon which to sue him, or to harass him un- der the guise of a fair examination. Washington v. Safe Bus. 219 N. C. 856, 858, 15 S. E. (2d) 372, and cases cited therein.

Sufficiency of Application.—An application for an order for the examination of an adverse party under this section must contain positive averments, and must not be argumentative, and mere statements that the examination is necessary and material is not sufficient. The application will not be ordered to proceed to an examination of an adverse party when the affidavit shows good faith, neces- sity, and materiality, and where it is alleged that the necessary information cannot be otherwise obtained. The adverse party because all other persons with such information are outside the jurisdiction, the applica- tion is sufficient, and an order based thereon will be upheld. B III v. Murchison National Bank, 196 N. C. 233, 145 S. E. 929.

Notice.—The provision, "unless for good cause shown, the judge or court orders otherwise," applies to the notice which can be given to make the pleadings in the five days prescribed. Vann v. Lawrence, 111 N. C. 33, 33, 15 S. E. 1031.

§ 1-571. Compelling party of adverse testimony for examination before trial.—The party to be examined, as provided in § 1-570, may be compelled to attend in the same manner as a witness who is to be examined conditionally, but he shall not be required to attend in any county other than that of his residence or where he may be served with a summons for his attendance. The examination shall be taken and filed by the judge, clerk or commissioner, as in case of witnesses examined conditionally, and may be read by either party on the trial. (Rev., ss. 866, 867; Code, ss. 581, 582; C. C. P., ss. 334, 335; 1899, c. 65, s. 2; C. S. 902.)

Either Party May Subject Other to Examination.—Either plaintiff or defendant may subject the adversary party or person adversely interested in the action to examination before the judge or clerk, or commissioner appointed by the court for the purpose of eliciting evidence in support of his contention in the controversy. Bradley Fertilizer Co. v. Taylor, 112 N. C. 141, 144, 17 S. E. 69.

Challenging a Witness Against Self-Crimination.—An order to examine a defendant will not be denied on the ground that the answers of the defendant will tend to incriminate him, in an action wherein the complaint has been filed alleging that the defendant committed the acts of which the defendant, while acting as his bookkeeper and accountant, the answers of the defendant not necessarily having to show a criminal intent, etc., and the time for his refusal to answer being within such time he were asked to give the examination. Ward v. Martin, 175 N. C. 287, 95 S. E. 621.

An order to examine the party to an action under this section may not be revoked on motion made on written notice upon a complaint, unless it is shown in the hearing that the answers elected will tend to incriminate him. Ward v. Martin, 175 N. C. 287, 95 S. E. 621.

County of Examination.—An examination of the defendant shall be made in the county in which he resided at the time of the action, if he resided in any county and has been issued and action commenced, and on motion before the clerk of the superior court of the same county or the judge presiding over that court, or holding the courts of the district; and a clerk of another county, where the action has been issued and action commenced, and on motion before the clerk of the superior court of the same county or the judge presiding over that court, or holding the courts of the district; and a clerk of another county, where the action is pending, is without jurisdiction over the proceeding, and his order made therein will be quashed. Vyne v. Pogue Bros. Co., 176 N. C. 355, 97 S. E. 147.

May Be Read by Either Party. — The examination of an adverse party, as this section provides, may be read by either party on the trial, and is, like a deposition, de bene esse, in that it becomes "the evidence of the law." Some speak, it is "caned evidence," kept in cold storage, for it cannot be altered. In both, the testimony is subject to all valid objections taken at the time, and there is stronger reason against the adoption of such a system, for while civil proceedings without any exception, that such testimony can be read "by either party at the trial," in the case of evidence de bene esse the deposition is taken in favor of the party who takes it, and de bene esse is evidence down to the present time, that a party has no right to impeach or disparage his own witness. Helms v. Green, 105 N. C. 251, 262, 11 S. E. 470; Coates v. Wilkes, 120 N. C. 528, 36 S. E. 621.

Same.—Appeal.—An appeal to the Supreme Court will directly lie from the refusal of the superior court judge to vacate an order of the clerk of that court to examine an adverse party, as this section provides, may be read by either party at the trial, in the case of evidence de bene esse the deposition is taken in favor of the party who takes it, and de bene esse is evidence down to the present time, that a party has no right to impeach or disparage his own witness. Helms v. Green, 105 N. C. 251, 262, 11 S. E. 470; Coates v. Wilkes, 120 N. C. 528, 36 S. E. 621.

May Rebut by Either Party. — The examination of an adverse party, as this section provides, may be read by either party on the trial, and is, like a deposition, de bene esse, in that it becomes "the evidence of the law." Some speak, it is "caned evidence," kept in cold storage, for it cannot be altered. In both, the testimony is subject to all valid objections taken at the time, and there is stronger reason against the adoption of such a system, for while civil proceedings without any exception, that such testimony can be read "by either party at the trial," in the case of evidence de bene esse the deposition is taken in favor of the party who takes it, and de bene esse is evidence down to the present time, that a party has no right to impeach or disparage his own witness. Helms v. Green, 105 N. C. 251, 262, 11 S. E. 470; Coates v. Wilkes, 120 N. C. 528, 36 S. E. 621.

May Rebut Deposition on Trial. — A plaintiff can rebut the defendant's deposition on trial by adverse testimony. Hargis v. Jocelyn, 103 N. C. 10, 13, 12 S. E. 1029.

May Contradict but Can Not Impeach. — A party who puts his adversary on the stand gives him an opportunity to testify on his own behalf on cross-examination, and waive his right of impeaching him by attacking his credibility, but retains the privilege of contradicting him by testimony of other witnesses inconsistent with his. Helms v. Green, 105 N. C. 251, 262, 11 S. E. 470; Coates v. Wilkes, 120 N. C. 528, 36 S. E. 621.

§ 1-574. Irresponsiveness of testimony may be met by party's own testimony.—A party examined by an adverse party, as provided in this article, may be examined in his own behalf, subject to the same rules of examination as other witnesses. But if he testifies to any new matter, not responssive to the inquiries put to him by the adverse party, or necessary to explain or qualify his answers thereto or to discharge himself when his answers would charge himself, the adverse party may offer himself and must be received as a witness in his own behalf in respect to the new matter, subject to the same rules of examination as other witnesses. (Rev., s. 870; Code, ss. 583, 585; C. C. P., ss. 538, 538; C. S. 905.)

§ 1-575. Real party in interest examined.—A person for whose immediate benefit the action is prosecuted or defended, though not a party to the action, may be examined as a witness, in the same manner, and subject to the same rules of examination, as if he was named as a party. (Rev., s. 871; Code, s. 586; C. C. P., s. 339; C. S. 906.)

As to examination of officers and agents of a corporation, see sec. 1-569.

The testimony sought must be that of a person immediately interested in the action. Strudwick v. Broadnax, 83 N. C. 401, 403.

§ 1-576. Examination of coplaintiff or codefendant.—A party may be examined on behalf of his coplaintiff or codefendant as to any matter in which he is not jointly interested or liable with such coplaintiff or codefendant, and as to which a separate and not joint verdict or judgment can be rendered. He may be compelled to attend in the same manner as at the instance of an adverse party; but the examination thus taken cannot be used in behalf of the party examined. When one of several plaintiffs or defendants who are jointly interested or liable in interest, is examined by the adverse party, the other of such plaintiffs or defendants may offer himself, and must be received, as a witness to the same cause of action or defense. (Rev., s. 872; Code, s. 587; C. C. P., s. 340; C. S. 907.)

As to production of writings, see sec. 8-89 et seq.

A party may be compelled to attend court, and be examined in behalf of a coplaintiff, or a codefendant, "as to any matter in which he is not jointly interested or liable with such coplaintiff or codefendant," etc.; and in such a case he is entitled to pay as a witness. Penny v. Brink, 73 N. C. 68.

Where one of defendants sued as joint tort-feasors alleged, among other defenses, that plaintiff's injuries resulted solely from the negligence of its codefendant, such codefendant is not entitled to an examination of respondent defendant, since, even though the defenses of defendants are antagonistic in regard to this defense, they are jointly interested in the defense of the action and a joint verdict and judgment against both is possible. Gudger v. Robinson Bros. Contractors, 219 N. C. 251, 13 S. E. (2d) 414.

Art. 47. Motions and Orders.

§ 1-577. Definition of order.—Every direction of a court or judge, made or entered in writing, and not included in a judgment, is an order. (Rev., s. 873; Code, s. 594; C. C. P., ss. 344, 345; C. S. 908.)

An appeal from an order continuing in force a former order made in the cause will be dismissed. Childs v. Martin, 68 N. C. 307.

§ 1-578. Motions; when and where made.—An application for an order is a motion. Motions may be made to a clerk of a superior court, or to a judge out of court, except for a new trial on the merits. Motions must be made within the district in which the action is triable. A motion to vacate or modify a provisional remedy, and an appeal from an order allowing a provisional remedy, have preference over all other motions. (Rev., s. 874; Code, s. 594; C. C. P., ss. 344, 345; C. S. 909.)

Cross Reference.—As to motions in civil actions heard at law see art. 47, and §§ 7-77 to 7-81.

Editor's Note. — A motion in general relates to some incidental question collateral to the main object of the action. A motion is not a remedy in the sense of the Code, but is acting solely in a representative capacity for the original party. It is to furnish relief in the progress of the action or proceeding in which it is made, and generally relates to matters of procedure, although it may be used to secure the right in consequence of the determination of the principal remedy.

Form of Motion.—A motion must be in writing. Cotton Oil Co. v. Grimes, 183 N. C. 97, 112 S. E. 598.

On appeal to the Supreme Court a statement of record that the defendant filed a written motion to dismiss, negatives the exception that it was an oral motion, not in conformity with the requirements of the statute. Cotton Oil Co. v. Grimes, 183 N. C. 97, 112 S. E. 598.

While it is the better form for one making a written motion, as an attorney at law and in fact, to first state the names of those he represents and then that he is acting for them in the capacity of attorney, the error in stating that he appears as attorney at law and in fact for certain named parties, etc., is merely informal and harmless, and therefore could not be a demurrer to a demurrer, it clearly appearing that the attorney is not claiming any interest in the lands for himself, but is acting solely in a representative capacity for the persons named. Hartfield v. Bryan, 177 N. C. 166, 98 S. E. 139.

Where Motions Must Be Made. — Except by consent or in those cases specially permitted by statute the judge may make no orders in a cause outside of the county in which the action is pending. Parker v. Alexander, 115 N. C. 504, 16 S. E. 848; McNell v. Hodges, 99 N. C. 248, 6 S. E. 127; Bynum v. Powe, 97 N. C. 374, 2 S. E. 170; Gatewood v. Leak, 99 N. C. 367, 6 S. E. 779; Faison v. McIlwaine, 72 N. C. 312, 313.

An application is admissible as a mode of obtaining relief against an execution for irregularity the proper relief is, as formerly, by motion to set it aside. Foard v. Alexander, 64 N. C. 69.

A proceeding by a motion supported by affidavits after a notice to the opposite party, to have satisfaction of a judgment entered of record upon the ground that it has been paid since its rendition, is the appropriate remedy in such a case, but is neither a special proceeding nor a civil action, and only a question in a cause still pending. Foreman v. Bibb, 65 N. C. 128.

Power of Judge.—After leaving the bench for a term of the superior court to expire by limitation, the judge cannot hear motions or other matters outside of the courtroom except by consent, unless, they are such as are cognizable at chambers. May v. Insurance Co., 172 N. C. 795, 90 S. E. 899.

An order to stay proceedings, made without notice by a judge out of court for a longer time than twenty days, is irregular, and a demurrer to the complaint in the action in which such order was made may be made as a motion to vacate. Foard v. Alexander, 64 N. C. 69.

Same.—To Continue Motions, etc.—The judge below has no power to continue motions for judgments or to set aside verdicts under a written motion entered of record, without the consent of the parties litigant. Oak Hall Clothing Co. v. Bagley, 147 N. C. 37, 60 S. E. 648.

Such consent should certainly appear in a writing signed by all parties, or their counsel, in which the judge should recite the fact of consent in the order or judgment he directs to be entered of record—which is the better way; or such consent should appear by fair implication from the record. Godwin v. Morda, 107 N. C. 354, 355, 5 S. E. 791.

When Refused by Judge without Jurisdiction. — The refusal of a judge to grant a motion for want of jurisdiction is no bar to an entertainment of the motion by a judge.

Motions Which May Be Renewed. — Motions made in the progress of a cause to facilitate the trial, but which involve no substantial right, and the decision of which is not subject to an appeal to the Supreme Court, may be renewed as subsequent events require, and are not obstructed by the former action of the court. Sanderson v. Daily, 83 N. C. 66, 69; Henry v. Hildard, 120 N. C. 479, 487, 27 S. E. 130.

Res Adjudicata.—If a decision affects a substantial right, and may be reviewed and corrected on appeal, and the complaining party acquiesces, the doctrine of res adjudicata applies. Sanderson v. Daily, 83 N. C. 68, 69.

§ 1-579. Affidavit for or against, compelled.—When a party intends to make or oppose a motion in a court of record, and it is necessary for him to have the affidavit of any person who has refused to come into court, the court may, by order, appoint a referee to take the affidavit or deposition of such person. The person may be subpoenaed and compelled to attend and make an affidavit before such referee, as before a referee to whom an issue is referred for trial. (Rev., s. 875; Code, s. 594; C. C. P., ss. 344, 345; C. S. 910.)

§ 1-580. Motions determined in ten days. — When a motion is made in a cause or proceeding in any of the courts to obtain an injunction order, order of arrest, or warrant of attachment, granted in any such case or proceeding, or to vacate or modify the same, it is the duty of the judge before whom the motion is made to render his decision within ten days after the day on which the motion was submitted to him for decision. (Rev., s. 876; Code, s. 594; C. C. P., ss. 344, 345; C. S. 911.)

§ 1-581. Notice of motion. — When notice of a motion is necessary, it must be served ten days before the time appointed for the hearing; but the court or judge may, by an order to show cause, prescribe a shorter time. (Rev., s. 877; Code, s. 595; C. C. P., ss. 346; C. S. 912.)

As to notice in supplemental proceedings, see sec. 1-352 and annotations thereto.

Editor's Note. — By section 346 of the Code, only eight days notice was required. However, this was changed by section 395 of the Code of 1893 to ten days, which was unchanged in the Rev. Code, section 877, and was brought forward in the form of this section. See Branch v. Walker, 92 N. C. 87, 89.

Compliance with Section Required.—Notice of a motion to set aside a judgment must ordinarily be given as required by this section, and the pleadings in an action to reform a deed of trust upon allegations of mutual mistake are insufficient as notice of a motion to set aside the decree for reform or settlement. But the pleadings in the suit for reformation containing no allegations of irregularities in the foreclosure or of surprise. Virginia-Carolina Joint Stock Bank v. Alexander, 201 N. C. 453, 3594; C. C. P. ss. 344, 345; C. S. 913.)

§ 1-582. Orders without notice, vacated. — An order made out of court, without notice to the adverse party, may be vacated or modified without notice by the judge who made it, or may be vacated or modified on notice, in the manner in which other motions are made. (Rev., s. 514; Code, s. 546; C. C. P., ss. 297; C. S. 913.)

§ 1-583. Orders without notice, vacated. — An order made out of court, without notice to the adverse party, may be vacated or modified without notice by the judge who made it, or may be vacated or modified on notice, in the manner in which other motions are made. (Rev., s. 514; Code, s. 546; C. C. P., ss. 346; C. S. 912.)

Music of Change of Venue before Clerk.—The power to entertain a demand of the defendant to remove an action to the proper venue, now conferred upon the clerk, subject to the right of appeal to the judge, when the motion shall be heard and passed on de novo. Roberts v. Moore, 185 N. C. 254, 116 S. E. 728.

Where a defendant has made a motion before the clerk to remove the action to the proper venue, the question is then a matter of substantial right, and the clerk is without power to proceed further in essentials until the right to remove is determined and passed upon. Roberts v. Moore, 185 N. C. 254, 116 S. E. 728.

§ 1-584. Orders by clerk on motion to remove; right of appeal; notice. — All motions to remove as a matter of right shall be made before the clerk, who is authorized to make all necessary orders, and an appeal shall lie from such order upon such motion to the judge at chambers, or at the next term, who shall hear and pass upon such motion de novo. But no such motion shall be heard until ten days notice thereof shall have been given to the opposing party or his
§ 1-584. CH. 1. CIVIL PROCEDURE—INCIDENTAL

§ 1-585. Form and service.—All notices must be in writing, and notices and other papers may be served on the party or his attorney personally, where not otherwise provided in this chapter.

Art. 48. Notices.

§ 1-585. Form and service.—All notices must be in writing, and notices and other papers may be served on the party or his attorney personally, where not otherwise provided in this chapter.
Same.—Determined by clerk.—The fact that personal notice was given to the defendant is determined affirmatively by the clerk in making the order. Surratt v. Crawford, 87 N. C. 372, 375.

Service Must Be by Officer.—Service of all papers, except subpoenas, and in cases where service by publication is authorized, must be by an officer, or acceptance of service. Smith v. Smith, 119 N. C. 314, 315, 25 S. E. 878.

Same.—Case on Appeal.—A case on appeal, unless service is accepted, can be served only by an officer. Forte v. Boone, 114 N. C. 176, 177, 19 S. E. 632; State v. Johnson, 109 N. C. 853, 13 S. E. 843.

Same.—Appeal from Justice of the Peace.—The notice of appeal is a notice of the justice of the peace, when the notice is not given on the trial, must be served by an officer. Clark v. Manufacturing Co., 110 N. C. 111, 14 S. E. 518.

Qualifications of Officer Serving.—Service of notices must be made by an officer, authorized by law, and by virtue of his office to serve process of the court having jurisdiction of the action in which the notice is given. Cullen v. Absher, 119 N. C. 441, 26 S. E. 33.

Same.—Town Constable.—A town constable cannot serve a notice to take a deposition in an action pending in the superior court. Cullen v. Absher, 119 N. C. 441, 26 S. E. 33.

Same.—Chief of Police or Marshal.—A town charter provides for the appointment of a chief of police or marshal and declares that, in the execution of process, he shall have the same powers and authority as the sheriff, and constitutes the service by such officer of a summons directed to "the sheriff of W. county or town constable of W. town" is valid. Lowe v. Harris, 121 N. C. 287, 28 S. E. 535.

§ 1-586. Service upon attorney.—Notice upon an attorney may be served during his absence from his office, by leaving a copy of the paper with his clerk, or a person having charge of the office; or, when there is no person in the office, by leaving it, between the hours of six a. m. and nine p. m., in a conspicuous place in the office; or, if it is not open so as to admit of such service, then by leaving it at the attorney's residence with some person of suitable age and discretion. (Rev., s. 880; Code, s. 597; C. C. P., ss. 349, 353; C. S. 918.)

Notice to Attorney is Notice to Client.—In Ladd v. Tesague, 126 N. C. 544, 548, 38 S. E. 45, quoting from United States v. Teague, 106 U. S. 36, 27 L. Ed. 402, it was said:

"No attorney or solicitor can withdraw his name after he has once entered upon the record without the leave of the court. And while his name continues there, the adverse party has the right to treat him as the authorized attorney of the party on whose behalf he has acted, and the service of notice on him is as valid as if served on the party himself." See also Branch v. Walker, 92 N. C. 87; Walton v. Sugg, 61 N. C. 53.

Notice Left with Wife.—Notice may be duly served by leaving a copy thereof at the residence of the person sought to be served, with his wife, she being of suitable age and discretion. (Rev., s. 881; Code, s. 597; C. C. P., ss. 349, 353; C. S. 916.)

Compliance with Section Sufficient.—Service made under the section is sufficient. Clark v. Manufacturing Co., 110 N. C. 111, 14 S. E. 518, and to the action, it is the duty of the party to make known to the officer at all times, until the service shall be completely ended. Turner v. Holdens, 109 N. C. 182, 183, 13 S. E. 731.

Compliance with Section Sufficient.—Service made under the section is sufficient. Clark v. Manufacturing Co., 110 N. C. 111, 14 S. E. 518, and to the action, it is the duty of the party to make known to the officer at all times, until the service shall be completely ended. Turner v. Holdens, 109 N. C. 182, 183, 13 S. E. 731.

§ 1-587. Service upon a party.—Notice upon a party may be served by leaving a copy of the paper at his residence, between the hours of six a. m. and nine p. m., with some person of suitable age and discretion. (Rev., s. 881; Code, s. 597; C. C. P., ss. 349, 353; C. S. 916.)

Notice Left with Wife.—Notice may be duly served by leaving a copy thereof at the residence of the person sought to be served, with his wife, she being of suitable age and discretion. (Rev., s. 881; Code, s. 597; C. C. P., ss. 349, 353; C. S. 916.)

As to issuance by the clerk, see sec. 8-59.

A subpoena may be served by any person not a party to the action, and proved by his oath. State v. Johnson, 109 N. C. 853, 13 S. E. 843; Smith v. Smith, 119 N. C. 314, 316, 25 S. E. 878.

§ 1-588. Service by publication.—Notice upon a person who cannot be found after due diligence, or who is not a resident of this state, may be served by its publication once for a week in four successive weeks in a newspaper published in the county from which the notice is issued; and if no newspaper is published therein, then in some newspaper published within the judicial district; and the proof of service is the same as is required by law in the case of service of summons by publication. (Rev., s. 882; Code, s. 597; C. C. P., ss. 349, 353; C. S. 917.)

Cross Reference.—As to service by publication generally, see secs. 1-98 to -99 and annotations thereto; as to when service by publication is complete, see sec. 1-100 and annotations thereto.

§ 1-589. Service by telephone or registered mail on witnesses and jurors.—Sheriffs, constables and other officers charged with service of such process may serve subpoenas for witnesses and summonses for jurors by telephone or by registered mail, and such service shall be valid and binding on the person served. When such process is served by telephone the return of the officer serving it shall state it is served by telephone. When served by registered mail, such process shall be mailed and a written receipt demanded and such receipt shall be filed with the return and be a necessary part thereof. (1915, c. 49; 1925, c. 98; C. S. 918.)

Editor's Note.—The last sentence of this section providing for service by registered mail is new with the Laws of 1925, c. 98. The words "or by registered mail," immediately following the word telephone, in the first sentence, are to new with the Act.

If served by registered mail a written receipt must be demanded and filed with the return, such receipt being a necessary part thereof. While the meaning of this provision is by no means clear, it would seem to refer to a written receipt given for the registered letter by the postmaster. This seems a more logical interpretation of the legislative meaning than to say that it refers to a written receipt signed by the addressee, showing that he had received the letter. See 3 C. N. Law Rev. 129.

§ 1-590. Subpoena, service and signature. — Service of a subpoena for witnesses may be made by a sheriff, coroner or constable, and proved by the return of such officer, or the service may be made by any person not a party to the action, and proved by his oath. A subpoena for witnesses need not be signed by the clerk of the court, and is sufficient if subscribed by the party or by his attorney. (Rev., s. 884; Code, s. 597; C. C. P., ss. 349, 353; C. S. 919.)

As to issuance by the clerk, see sec. 8-59.

A subpoena may be served by any person not a party to the action, and proved by his oath. State v. Johnson, 109 N. C. 853, 13 S. E. 843; Smith v. Smith, 119 N. C. 314, 316, 25 S. E. 878.

§ 1-591. Application of this article.—This article does not apply to the service of a summons, or other process (except summonses for jurors, as provided in § 1-589), or of any paper to bring a party into contempt. (Rev., s. 885; Code, s. 597; C. C. P., ss. 349, 353; C. S. 920.)

Article Applies Where Papers Not Excepted.—It seems clear that the article applies to all papers except those excepted by this section. State v. Price, 110 N. C. 599, 601, 13 S. E. 116.

The exceptions provided for in this section do not include the service of cases and counter-cases on appeal. State v. Price, 110 N. C. 599, 601, 13 S. E. 116.
§ 1-592. Officer's return evidence of service.—When a notice issues to the sheriff, his return thereon that the same has been executed is sufficient evidence of its service. (Rev., ss. 886, 1392; Code, ss. 940; R. C., c. 31, s. 123; 1700, c. 537; C. S. 921.)

§ 1-593. How computed.—The time within which an act is to be done, as provided by law, shall be computed by excluding the first and including the last day. If the last day is Sunday or a legal holiday, it must be excluded. (Rev., s. 887; Code, s. 596; C. C. P., s. 348; C. S. 922.)

Uniform Rule.—The cases all go to establish one uniform rule, whether the question arises upon the practice of the courts, or the construction of a statute, and the rule is not to be departed from by courts of common computation. Cook v. Moore, 95 N. C. 1, 3; Burges v. Burgess, 117 N. C. 447, 23 S. E. 336; Walker v. Scott, 104 N. C. 481, 10 S. E. 322. Also, see Fitzpatrick v. Moore, 80 N. C. 749, 6 S. E. 20, in the latter part of the case, where the court says: "As to the 30th of August, the day before the fall of the last day is to be inserted in the time of the day, when the 30th day is the last day; and the 30th of August is the day before the 1st September; and the same is to be inserted in the time of the day, when the 30th day is the last day: and the 30th of August is the day before the 1st September.

Actions on Judgments.—Where a judgment was rendered on October 20, 1873, and an action was brought on the judgment on October 20, 1883, it was held that the statute barring actions on judgments in ten years was a defense. Cook v. Moore, 95 N. C. 1, cited in note in 49 L. R. A. 214.

Time for Filing Appeal.—In calculating the five days after the end of the term within which the case on appeal must be filed, the first day on which the court adjourned, is to be excluded. Turriente v. Richmond, etc., R. Co., 92 N. C. 642.

Petition for Rehearing.—Under the rule requiring petitions to rehear to be filed within twenty days after the commencement of the succeeding term, the first day of the period allowed to be reckoned from the 8th February, 1879, to 7th February, 1880, when the plaintiff in the case of Davis v. Atlantic, etc., R. Co., 145 N. C. 207, 59 S. E. 53, moved for rehearing, must be excluded from the count, and the last day is to be counted unless Sunday, and counted all other Sundays in the twenty days. Davis v. Atlantic etc., R. Co., 145 N. C. 120, 59 S. E. 53.

Same.—Transportation of Freight.—Though freight trains are prohibited from running on Sunday within certain hours, Sundays are not excluded from the reasonable time in which railroads are given to transport freight, except when Sunday is the last day in computing the time. Davis v. Atlantic, etc., R. Co., 145 N. C. 207, 59 S. E. 53.
include the day on which the act or event of which notice is given is to happen, or which completes the full period required for publication. (Rev. s. 888; Code, s. 602; C. C. P., s. 359; C. S. 923.)

Cross References.—As to manner of publication generally, see sec. 1-99; as to service and content of notice of attachment, see sec. 1-448; as to publication of warrant of attachment obtained from a justice of the peace, see sec. 1-452.

Art. 50. General Provisions as to Legal Advertising.

§ 1-595. Advertisement of public sales.—When a statute or written instrument stipulates that an advertisement of a sale shall be made for any certain number of weeks, a publication once a week for the number of weeks so indicated is a sufficient compliance with the requirement, unless contrary provision is expressly made by the terms of the instrument. (1909, cc. 794, 875; C. S. 924.)

Cross References.—As to manner of publication generally, see sec. 1-99; as to advertisement and newspaper publication, see sec. 1-325; as to advertisement of resale, see sec. 1-326; as to sale hours, see sec. 1-331; as to postponement, see sec. 1-334; as to personal property, notice and place of sale, see sec. 45-23.

Notice of Sale under Mortgage. — Powers of sale in a mortgage are contractual, and it is essential to the validity of a sale under a power to comply fully with the requirements of giving notice of the sale. Jenkins v. Griffin, 175 N. C. 184, 186, 95 S. E. 166.

Where a mortgage of lands provides that notice of the sale under the power thereof given in the conveyance shall be published in a newspaper, etc., “for a time not less than thirty days prior to the date of the sale,” by the agreement the advertisement should be inserted in the newspaper once a week for four consecutive weeks, and not consecutively for thirty days, and an allowance made in the superior court for an advertisement for thirty consecutive days, and an allowance made in the superior court for an advertisement for thirty consecutive days was erroneous. Saving Bank, etc., Co. v. Leach, 169 N. C. 706, 86 S. E. 701.

Burden of Proof. — However, “the presumption of law is in favor of the regularity in the execution of the power of sale; and if there was any failure to advertise properly, the burden was on defendant (here on plaintiffs) to show it.” Jenkins v. Griffin, 175 N. C. 184, 186, 95 S. E. 166.

§ 1-596. Charges for legal advertising. — The publication of all advertising required by law to be made in newspapers in this state shall be paid for at not to exceed the local commercial rate of the newspaper selected. Any public or municipal officer of board created by or existing under the laws of this state that is now or may hereafter be authorized by law to enter into contracts for the publication of legal advertisements is hereby authorized to pay therefor prices not exceeding said rates. Nothing herein shall apply to contracts or agreements for legal advertising in this state existing at the time this section takes effect. This section shall not apply to any legal advertising until said newspaper shall have first filed with the clerk of the superior court of the county in which it is published a sworn statement of its current commercial rate for the several classes of advertising regularly carried by said publication, and any owner or manager of a newspaper violating the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (1919, c. 45, ss. 1, 2; C. S. 2588.)

§ 1-597. Regulations for newspaper publication of legal notices, advertisements, etc.—Whenever a newspaper publishes any legal notice or advertisement of any kind or description shall be authorized or required by any of the laws of the state of North Carolina, hereafter or hereafter enacted, or by any order or judgment of any court of this state to be published or advertised in a newspaper, such publication, advertisement or notice shall be of no force and effect unless it shall be published in a newspaper with a general circulation to actual paid subscribers which newspaper at the time of such publication, advertisement or notice, shall have been admitted to the United States mails as second class matter in the county or political subdivision where such publication, advertisement or notice is required to be published, and which shall have been regularly and continuously issued in the county in which the publication, advertisement or notice is authorized or required to be published, at least one day in each calendar week for at least twenty-five of the twenty-six consecutive weeks immediately preceding the date of the first publication of such advertisement, publication or notice; provided that in the event that a newspaper otherwise meeting the qualifications and having the characteristics prescribed by §§ 1-597 to 1-599, should fail for a period not exceeding four weeks in any calendar year to publish one or more of its issues such newspaper shall nevertheless be deemed to have complied with the requirements of regularity and continuity of publication prescribed herein. Provided further, that where any city or town is located in two or more adjoining counties, any newspaper published in such city or town shall, for the purposes of §§ 1-597 to 1-599, be deemed to be admitted to the mails, issued and published in all such counties in which such town or city of publication is located, and every publication, advertisement or notice required to be published in any such city or town or in any of the counties where such city or town is located shall be valid if published in a newspaper published, issued and admitted to the mails anywhere within any such city or town, regardless of whether the newspaper’s plant or the post office where the newspaper is admitted to the mails is in such county or not, if the newspaper otherwise meets the qualifications and requirements of §§ 1-597 to 1-599. This provision shall be retroactive to May first, one thousand nine hundred and forty, and all publications, advertisements and notices published in accordance with this provision since May first, one thousand nine hundred and forty, are hereby validated. (1939, c. 170, s. 1; 1941, c. 96.)

§ 1-598. Annual statements filed with clerk; violation a misdemeanor.—Every newspaper in this state which shall publish any such legal notice or other legal advertisement, as mentioned in § 1-597, shall, in each calendar year, file with the clerk of the superior court of the county in which it is published a sworn statement that such newspaper is a newspaper meeting the qualifications of §§ 1-597 to 1-599. This provision shall be retroactive to May first, one thousand nine hundred and forty, and all publications, advertisements and notices published in accordance with this provision since May first, one thousand nine hundred and forty, are hereby validated. (1939, c. 170, s. 1; 1941, c. 96.) time of such statement, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (1939, c. 170, s. 1½.)

§ 1-599. Application of two preceding sections.
—The provisions of §§ 1-597 to 1-599 shall not apply in counties wherein only one newspaper is published, although it may not be a newspaper

Chapter 2. Clerk of Superior Court.

Art. 1. The Office.

§ 2-1. Judge of probate abolished; clerk acts as judge.—The office of probate judge is abolished, and the duties heretofore pertaining to clerks of the superior court as judges of probate shall be performed by the clerks of the superior court as clerks of said court. (Rev., s. 889; Code, s. 102;

C. S. 925.)

Cross Reference.—As to powers and jurisdiction generally, see §§ 1-7, 1-13, 1-393, 1-406, and 2-16.

§ 2-4. Clerk’s bond; approval, acknowledgments and custody.—The approval of said bond by the board of commissioners, or a majority of them, shall be recorded by the clerk. The said bond shall be acknowledged by the parties there- to, or proved by a subscribing witness, before the clerk of said board of commissioners, or their pre- sidng officer, registered in the register’s office in a separate book to be kept by him for the registration of official bonds; and the original, with the approval thereof endorsed, deposited with the register for safe keeping. The like remedies shall be had upon said bond as are or may be given by law on official bonds. (Rev. s. 296; Code, s. 73; C. C. P., s. 138; C. S. 928.)

Proof—Evidence.—Such a bond may be proved, as at common law, without being subjected to the strict rules of evidence, and if there is a subscribing witness it may be proved by other witnesses, as if there was no subscribing witness. Battle v. Baird, 118 N. C. 854, 24 S. E. 668.

Same—Presumption.—The clerk of the superior court being required to give a bond for the discharge of the duties of his office, etc., it will be presumed, in the trial of an action on such bond, that he did so, and any such bond found in the keeping of the proper custodian will be presumed to have been properly given and accepted as such. Battle v. Baird, 118 N. C. 854, 24 S. E. 668.

§ 2-5. Oath of office.—The clerks of the superior court, before entering on the duties of their office, shall take and subscribe before some officer authorized by law to administer an oath, the oaths prescribed by law, and file such oaths with the register of deeds for the county. (Rev., 891; Code, s. 74; C. C. P., s. 130; C. S. 930.)

Cross Reference.—As to oath, see §§ 11-6, 11-7, 11-11. See also, § 14-229; § 2-5. As to oath of deputy, see § 2-13.

§ 2-6. Vacancy; judge of district fills.—1. Otherwise than by expiration. In case the office of clerk of a superior court for a county becomes vacant otherwise than by the expiration of the term, and in case of a failure by the people to elect, the judge of the superior court for the county shall appoint to fill the vacancy until an election can be regularly held.

2. Failure to qualify. In case any clerk fails to give bond and qualify as required by law, the presiding officer of the board of commissioners of his county shall immediately inform the resident judge of the judicial district thereof, who shall thereupon declare the office vacant and fill the same, and the appointee shall give bond and qualify.

3. Resignations. Any clerk of the superior court may resign his office to the judge of the superior court residing in the district in which is situated the county of which he is clerk, and said judge shall fill the vacancy. (Rev., ss. 892, 893, 895; Code, ss. 76, 78; C. C. P., s. 140; Const., Art. 4, s. 39; C. S. 931.)

Cross Reference.—As to failure to give satisfactory bond, see § 109-8. As to bond of successor, see § 109-9. As to willfully failing to discharge duties as ground for removal, see § 14-220.

Commissioners’ Duty.—A failure on the part of the clerk to give bond must be ascertained by the commissioners before the judge is authorized to declare a vacancy. And in all cases of suspending or rejecting the bond tendered, the court cannot interfere in the exercise of their discretion. Buckman v. Commissioners, 80 N. C. 121.

Direct appointees.—If there are conflicting claim- ants for a vacant office a court must act upon the prima facie evidence of right and admit the one possessing it, leaving the other to pursue the proper legal remedy for the recovery of possession. Clark v. Carpenter, 81 N. C. 309.

§ 2-7. Removal for cause.—Upon the conviction of any clerk of the superior court of an infamous crime, or of corruption and malpractice in office, he shall be removed from office, and he shall be disqualified from holding or enjoying any office of honor, trust or profit under this state. (Rev., s. 894; Code, s. 123; 1868-9, c. 201, s. 33; C. S. 932.)

Cross References.—See Constitution, Art. VI, sec. 8; Art. XIV, sec. 7. As to restoration of citizenship, see § 13-1.

§ 2-8. Office and equipment furnished.—The requisite stationery, records, furniture and filing cases and devices for official use must be furnished to the clerk by the board of commissioners; and to each of such books whereon must be attached an alphabetical index securely bound in the volume, referring to the entries therein by the page of the book, unless there is a cross-index of such book required by law to be kept. These books must, at all proper times, be open to the inspection of any person. (Rev., s. 896; Code, ss. 82, 84, 113; C. C. P., s. 428; C. S. 933.)

§ 2-9. Solicitor to examine and report on office.—The Solicitor of the Judicial District shall inspect the office of the clerk as often as he shall deem it necessary, and shall make written report of his inspection to the court. (Rev., s. 897; Code, s. 88: C. C. P., s. 147; 1917, c. 81, s. 1; 1935, c. 423; C. S. 934.)

Editor's Note.—Prior to the amendment of 1935 the section required an inspection at every regular term and also provided the penalty in case the solicitor neglected or failed to perform his duty.

Art. 2. Assistant Clerks.

§ 2-10. Appointment; oath; powers and jurisdiction; responsibility of clerks.—Each clerk of the superior court, by and with the written consent and approval of the superior court judge resident in his district, may appoint an assistant clerk of the superior court, who before entering upon his duties shall take and subscribe the oath prescribed for clerks: Provided, that no more than one such assistant clerk shall hold office in any county at one time. Upon compliance with the provisions of this article such assistant clerk shall be as fully authorized and empowered to perform all the duties and functions of the office of clerk of the superior court as the clerk himself, and all the acts, orders, and judgments of such assistant clerk shall be entitled to the same faith and credit as those of such clerk. Such assistant clerks shall be subject in all respects to all laws which apply to the clerks. The several clerks of the superior court shall be held responsible for the acts of their assistant clerks, and the official bonds of such clerks as now provided by law shall be written to and shall cover the acts of their assistant clerks. (1921, c. 32, s. 1; C. S. 934(a).)

Local Modification.—Forsth: 1937, c. 331; Guilford: 1937, c. 331; 1941, c. 91; Hanover: 1943, c. 514.

Funds of minors paid into the hands of the assistant clerk of the superior court, appointed guardian, were not paid into court, and the surety on the guardianship bond may not successfully contend that the clerk's bond was liable therefor. State v. Royal Indemnity Co., 203 N. C. 420, 166 S. E. 2d. While the clerk of the superior court is a constitutional officer, the duties of clerks are prescribed by statute, and the legislature may prescribe that such duties may be performed by assistant clerks as in this and the following sections, and an attack upon the appointment of a guardian by an assistant clerk on the ground that the statute delegating the powers of clerks to assistant clerks is unconstitutional is untenable. In re Barker, 210 N. C. 417, 188 S. E. 305.

§ 2-11. Certificate of appointment; confirmation; revocation of appointment; compensation.—Any clerk of the superior court desiring to appoint such an assistant clerk shall present a formal written certificate of such appointment to the superior court judge resident in his district, and such judge, if he concurs in and approves such appointment, shall in writing enter his consent and approval upon such certificate and confirm such appointment. Said certificate of appointment, and approval of the judge, together with the oath subscribed by the appointee, shall thereupon be entered in full upon the minute docket of the court, and shall be recorded and cross-indexed in the office of the register of deeds for such county. The appointment of any such assistant clerk may be revoked at any time by the clerk who appointed him or by the superior court judge resident in the district, by the entry of the word "revoked" and the date thereof, with the signature of such clerk or judge, upon the margin of the records of such appointment in the offices of the clerk of the superior court and the register of deeds; and all such appointments shall expire by limitation when the clerk making same ceases to hold office. Nothing in this article shall increase the fees or compensation now allowed by law to clerks or deputy clerks of the superior court of the several counties of the state. (1921, c. 35, s. 2; C. S. 934(b).)

§ 2-12. Clerks not relieved from duties; deputies.—This article shall not in anywise excuse or relieve the clerk of the superior court from giving to the performance of his duties the same time, care, and attention as is now required of such clerks by law, nor shall it change or amend the present laws with reference to deputy clerks of the superior court: Provided, that one person may be appointed both as assistant clerk and as deputy. (1921, c. 32, s. 3; C. S. 934(c).)

Art. 3. Deputies.

§ 2-13. Appointment.—Clerks of the superior court may appoint deputies, who shall take and subscribe the oath prescribed for clerks. (Rev., s. 898; Code, s. 145; R. C., c. 19, s. 15; 1777, c. 115, s. 86; C. S. 935.)

Purpose.—In Miller v. Miller, 89 N. C. 402, 404, it was said: "The purpose of creating the office of 'deputy clerk' was to help the dispatch of public business, and to provide for the same time when the clerk might be necessarily absent from his office, or unable for any cause to give personal attention to his official duties."

Section Provides Only Method of Appointment.—Deputy clerks can be appointed only in the manner prescribed by this section. Sheid v. Lane, 113 N. C. 148. And are required to take the same oaths before entering upon their duties which are required of their principals. Jackson v. Buchanan, 89 N. C. 75, 76.

The certificate of probate of a deed by a deputy clerk, expressly authorized by statute to acknowledgment, etc., the deed having being duly registered, was prima facie evidence of his appointment and qualification. Piland v. Taylor, 113 N. C. 2, 18 S. E. 70.

Scope of Authority.—Deputy clerks may do all the acts which the clerk may do, except such as are judicial in their character, or such as a statute may require specially to be done by the clerk himself. Miller v. Miller, 89 N. C. 402, 404; Piland v. Taylor, 113 N. C. 3, 185 S. E. 70.

Deputies are expressly authorized to take acknowledgment and probate deeds, and exercising such functions a deputy acts by force of the statute alone, and not as the agent of or by a delegation of authority from the clerk. Franklin v. Taylor, 113 N. C. 2, 18 S. E. 70.

The probate of a deed of trust or mortgage by one acting as deputy clerk, but who had not been duly appointed, nor Women as Deputies.—It would seem that women are not disqualified under the constitution nor any statute from holding the office of deputy clerk. See Bank v. Redwine, 171 N. C. 559, 572, 88 S. E. 878; Preston v. Roberts, 183 N. C. 62, 110 S. E. 586; State v. Bateman, 162 N. C. 588, 77 S. E. 768, referred to in Bank v. Redwine, Supra, 171 N. C. 569, 572, 88 S. E. 878.

§ 2-14. Record of appointment and discharge; copies.—Each clerk of a superior court shall make a record of the appointment of each deputy he may appoint, on the special proceedings docket of his court, giving the name of such appointee and the date of such appointment, and make a cross-index thereof on the general index in his office. When any such deputy clerk is removed from his office the clerk of the superior court by whom he was appointed shall write on the margin of the record of such appointment in his office, and on the margin of the record of such appointment in the office of the register of deeds, the word "Revoked" and the date of such revocation, and sign his name thereto. A duly certified copy of such appointment and of such revocation, under the hand and official seal of the register of deeds, shall be deemed prima facie evidence of the regularity of such appointment and revocation, and shall be admitted as evidence in all the courts. (Rev., s. 899; 1899, c. 235, s. 2; C. S. 936.)

§ 2-15. Responsibility of clerk for deputy's acts. —The several clerks of the superior court shall be held responsible for the acts of their deputies. Deputies shall be subject in all respects to all laws which apply to the clerks. (Rev., s. 900; 1899, c. 235, s. 2; C. S. 937.)

Liability for Acts.—Both deputy and clerk are liable for an unlawful act committed by the deputy under color of his office. Coltraine v. McCain, 14 N. C. 308. See also, Bank v. Redwine, 171 N. C. 559, 569, 88 S. E. 878.

Deputy's Bond.—This section does not require any bond of a deputy clerk; but, as the clerk is liable for the defaults and misfeasance of his deputies, common prudence dictates that he require bonds of them for his own protection. Such a bond, not being required by law, is not an official bond in the strict sense of that term. When given, however, it is valid as a common-law bond, the clerk individually, and not the public, being the obligee in interest thereunder. The fact that it runs in the name of the clerk as clerk is immaterial. Fidelity, etc., Co. v. Hoyle, 64 F. (2d) 413, 415.

Art. 4. Powers and Duties.

§ 2-16. Powers enumerated.—Every clerk has power:

1. To issue subpoenas to compel the attendance of any witness residing or being in the state, or to compel the production of any bond or paper, material to any inquiry pending in his court.

2. To administer oaths and take acknowledgments, whenever necessary, in the exercise of the powers and duties of his office.

3. To issue commissions to take the testimony of any witness within or without this state.

4. To issue citations and orders to show cause to parties in all matters cognizable in his court, and to compel the appearance of such parties.

5. To enforce all lawful orders and decrees, by execution or otherwise, against those who fail to comply therewith or to execute lawful process.

§ 2-16. Process may be issued by the clerk, to be executed in any county of the state, and to be returned before him.

6. To compel the return to his office by each justice of the peace, on the expiration of the term of office of such justice, or, if the justice be dead, by his personal representative, of all records, papers, dockets and books held by such justice by virtue or color of his office, and to deliver the same to the successor in office of such justice.

7. To take proof of wills and grant letters testamentary and of administration.

8. To adjourn any proceeding pending before him from time to time.

9. To open, vacate, modify, set aside, or enter as of a former time, decrees or orders of his court, in the same manner as courts of general jurisdiction.

10. To enter judgment in any suit pending in his court in the following instances: judgment of voluntary nonsuit in any case where judgment is permitted by law; and judgment in any suit by consent of parties.

11. To award costs and disbursements as prescribed by law, to be paid personally, or out of the estate or fund, in any proceeding before him.

12. To compel the return to his office by each justice of the peace, on the expiration of the term of office of such justice, or, if the justice be dead, by his personal representative, of all records, papers, dockets and books held by such justice by virtue or color of his office, and to deliver the same to the successor in office of such justice.

13. To take proof of deeds, bills of sale, official bonds, letters of attorney, or other instruments permitted or required by law to be registered.

14. To take proof of wills and grant letters testamentary and of administration.

15. To revoke letters testamentary and of administration.

16. To appoint and remove guardians of infants, idiots, inebriates and lunatics.

17. To audit the accounts of executors, administrators, collectors, receivers, commissioners and guardians.

18. To exercise jurisdiction conferred upon him in every other case prescribed by law. (Rev., s. 901; Code, ss. 103, 108; C. C. P., ss. 417, 418, 442; 1901, c. 614, s. 2; 1919, c. 140; C. S. 938.)

As to power of clerk to discharge insolvent debtors whose conviction in justice of peace court, see § 29-23. As to duty of clerk to name successor to trustee in a deed of assignment for benefit of creditors, see § 23-4. For section requiring the clerk to be present at the opening of lock boxes of decedents and prescribing a fee and mileage therefore, see § 105-24. For "color of his office" construed, see annotations to § 2-3. As to clerks acting as notaries, see § 10-3.

Legislature May Take Away or Modify Powers.—The powers and duties of clerks enumerated in this section are given and fixed by legislative enactment, and there is no constitutional barrier to the legislature's taking away, modifying them; or authorizing them to be exercised and performed by another. In re Barker, 210 N. C. 617, 619, 188 S. E. 235.

Jurisdiction—Limited.—The clerk is a court of very limited jurisdiction—having only such jurisdiction as is given by statute. It has no common law or equitable jurisdiction. McCauley v. McCauley, 125 N. C. 288, 292, 30 S. E. 344.

Disqualification to act.—No clerk can act as such in relation to any estate, proceeding or civil action—

1. If he has, or claims to have, an interest by distribution, by will, or as creditor, or otherwise.

2. If he is so related to any person having or claiming such interest that he would, by reason of such relationship, be disqualified as a juror; but the disqualification on this ground ceases unless the objection is made at the first hearing of the matter before him.

3. If he is or his wife is a party or a subscribing witness to any deed of conveyance, testamentary paper or nuncupative will; but this disqualification ceases when such deed, testamentary paper, or will has been finally admitted to or refused probate by another clerk, or before the judge of the superior court.

4. If he or his wife is named as executor or trustee in any testamentary or other paper; but this disqualification ceases when the will or other paper is finally admitted to or refused probate by another clerk, or before the judge of the superior court.

5. If he shall renounce the executorship and endorse the same on the will or on some paper attached thereto, before it is propounded for probate, in which case the renunciation must be recorded with the will if admitted to probate. (Rev. s. 902; Code, s. 104; C. C. P., s. 419; 1871-2, c. 196; 1935, c. 110, s. 1; C. S. 939.)

Editor's Note.—As to the purpose of the 1915 amendment, see 111 N. C. 132, 134, 15 S. E. 1030.

§ 2-18. Prior orders and judgments validated.—In all cases where the Clerk was disqualified to act in relation to a civil action, in which the proceeding as prescribed and set out by §§ 2-19, 2-20 and 2-21 was followed, all Orders and Judgment rendered in such civil actions by the Judge or other Clerk are hereby validated as fully and to the same extent as if this section had at such time been in force; Provided, this section shall not apply in such cases if an action has prior to March 20, 1935, been instituted attacking such Order or Judgment. (1935, c. 110, s. 3.)

§ 2-19. Waiver of disqualification.—The parties may waive the disqualification specified in subdivisions one, two, three and five of section 2-17 and upon filing in the office such waiver in writing, the clerk shall act as in other cases. (Rev. s. 903; Code, s. 105; C. C. P., s. 420; C. S. 940.)

Written Waiver.—The waiver must be in writing and made when the clerk isObjecting to such waiver in writing, the clerk shall act as in other cases. (Rev. s. 903; Code, s. 105; C. C. P., s. 420; C. S. 940.)

Probate a Nullity.—When the probate of a deed is a nullity because the clerk was disqualified to act, the defect is not cured by the approval of the final decree, under which it
§ 2-20. Disqualification unwaived; cause removed or judge acts.—When any of the disqualifications specified in this chapter exist, and there does not permit of waiver, any party in interest may apply to the judge of the district or to the judge holding the courts of such district for an order to remove the proceedings to the clerk of the superior court of an adjoining county in the same district; or may apply to the judge to make and render either in vacation or term time all necessary orders and judgments in any proceeding where the clerk is disqualified, and the judge in such cases is hereby authorized and empowered to make and render any and all necessary orders and judgments as if he had the same original jurisdiction as the clerk over such proceeding. (Rev., s. 904; Code, s. 106; C. C. P., s. 421; 1913, c. 70, s. 1; C. S. 941.)

§ 2-21. Disqualification at time of election; judge acts.—In all cases where the clerk of the superior court is executor, administrator, collector or guardian of any estate at the time of his election to office, in order to enable him to settle such estate, the judge of the superior court mentioned in the preceding section is empowered to make such orders as may be necessary in the settlement of the estate; may audit the accounts of such executor or administrator, and make such orders as may be necessary in the premises. (Rev., s. 905; Code, s. 107; 1871-2, c. 197; C. S. 942.)

Action.—The proper practice, in a proceeding against an administrator who at the time was elected clerk, seems to be to make the summons returnable before him, and then, transfer the whole proceeding before the district judge, who will make the necessary orders in the premises. Wilson v. Abrams, 70 N. C. 324.

§ 2-22. Custody of records and property of office.—1. Receipt from Predecessor.—Immediately after he has given bond and qualified, the clerk shall receive from the late clerk of the superior court all the records, books, papers, moneys and property of his office, and give receipts for the same, and if any clerk refuses or fails within a reasonable time after demand to deliver such records, books, papers, moneys and property, he is liable on his official bond for the value thereof.

2. Transfer to Successor; Penalty.—Upon going out of office for any reason, any clerk of the superior, inferior, or criminal court shall transfer and deliver to his successor (or to such person, before his successor in office may be appointed, as the court may designate) all records, documents, papers, and money belonging to the office. And the judge appointing any clerk to a vacancy in the clerkship of the superior court may give to such person an order for the delivery of his file, by the person having the custody thereof, of the records, documents, papers and moneys belonging to the office, and he shall deliver the same in obedience to such order. In case any clerk going out of office as aforesaid, or other person having the custody of such records, documents, papers, and money as aforesaid, fails to transfer and deliver them as herein required, he shall forfeit to the state one thousand dollars, which shall be sued for by the prosecuting officer of that court. (Rev., ss. 906, 907; Code, ss. 81, 124; C. C. P., s. 142; R. C., c. 19, s. 14; C. S. 943.)

Cross Reference.—As to failure to deliver as a misdemeanor, see § 14-231.

Order and Demand.—A person, duly elected clerk of the superior court, next to the person having the custody of such records, documents, papers, and money as aforesaid, or authority to demand from his predecessor the property of all kinds belonging to the office, nor is it necessary for a retiring superior court clerk to be ordered to pay over to his successor, whether elected or appointed, the funds, etc., of the officer. Peebles v. Boone, 116 N. C. 58, 21 S. E. 187.

But where the judge places some person temporarily in charge of the office until the regular appointment is made, it is then necessary for the new clerk to have an order from the judge, directing the person temporarily in charge, to deliver the possession of his office to such clerk. Peebles v. Boone, 116 N. C. 58, 60, 21 S. E. 187.

Right of Action.—The right of clerk of a superior court to bring an action against his predecessor on the latter's official bond for the recovery of the records, money, etc., of the officer. Peebles v. Boone, 116 N. C. 58, 62, 21 S. E. 187.

Remedy.—When an outgoing clerk fails to deliver the property of his office, as herein provided, the successor's remedy is by attachment and suit for the penalty. O'Leary v. Harrison, 51 N. C. 338, 341.

When Liability Ceases.—When a former clerk delivers to his successors all the proceeds, etc., of his office, his official duties, powers, and liabilities cease. Gregory v.Moisey, 79 N. C. 559, 562.

§ 2-23. Unperformed duties of outgoing clerk.

1. Performance Secured. — When, upon the death or resignation, removal from office, or at the expiration of his term of office, any clerk has failed to discharge any of the duties of his office, the court, if practicable, shall cause the same to be performed by another person, who shall receive for such services, and as a compensation therefor, the fees allowed by law to the clerk.

2. Liability on Outgoing Clerk's Bond.—Such portion thereof as may be paid by the county may be recovered by the county, by suit on the official bond of the defaulting clerk, to be brought on the relation of the board of commissioners of the county. (Rev., s. 908; Code, s. 87; R. C., c. 19, s. 19; 1844, c. 5, s. 6; C. S. 944.)

Proceeding Recorded.—Where an outgoing clerk has failed to record a proceeding, the court has the power, and it is its duty, on the application of an interested party, to have such proceeding recorded as of its proper date. Foster v. Woodfin, 65 N. C. 29, 30.

§ 2-24. Location of and attendance at office.—The clerk shall have an office in the courthouse or other place provided by the board of commissioners, in the county town of his county. He shall give due attendance, in person or by deputy, at his office daily, on each succeeding day till such matters are disposed of; and upon his failure to do so, unless caused by sickness or other urgent necessity or unless leave of absence is obtained by law, he shall forfeit an amount not exceeding two hundred dollars, said amount to be fixed and determined by the resident

—Upon application of any clerk of the superior court to the judge of the superior court residing in the district in which the clerk resides, the judge of the superior court riding the district or judge of superior court riding in the county of said clerk, showing good and sufficient reason for the clerk to absent himself from his office, the judge may issue an order allowing him to absent himself from his office, the judge may deem proper. But he shall at all times leave a competent deputy in charge of his office during his absence. The order of the judge granting leave of absence shall be filed and recorded in the office of the clerk of the county in which the clerk resides. (Rev., s. 910; 1903, c. 467; 1935, c. 348; C. S. 946.)

Editor's Note.—The amendment of 1935 makes the section applicable when application is made by “the judge of the superior court riding the district or judge of superior court presiding in the county of said clerk.”

§ 2-26. Fees of clerk of superior court.—The fees of the clerk of the superior court shall be the following, and no other, namely:

Appeal from Judicatures of the Peace.—When a defendant is bound over to the superior court by a justice of the peace, the clerk of the superior court is not entitled to the fee of 50 cents allowed for appeal from justice of the peace. Guilford v. Commissioners, 120 N. C. 23, 27 S. E. 94.

The fee taxable for “appeal and docketing in Supreme Court” is two dollars only. State v. Simmons, 120 N. C. 19, 26 S. E. 649.

Appeal.—An appeal lies to this court from the erroneous taxation of items in the bill of costs in the superior court. State v. Simmons, 120 N. C. 19, 26 S. E. 649.

The fees for continuances of cases allowed to the clerk of the superior court must be for such continuances as may be ordered by the judge upon motion, and such as must be recorded in the minutes of the clerk, and not those affected by a crowded docket or the inability for that reason of reaching the cause for trial. Luther v. Southern R. Co., 154 N. C. 1069 S. E. 752.

Motion for Judgment.—The fee of twenty-five cents for motion for judgment can only be taxed when the motion is an appeal in the cause, in writing, and required to be recorded. State v. Simmons, 120 N. C. 19, 26 S. E. 649.

Filing Papers.—The fee of 10 cents allowed the clerk of the superior court for “filing papers,” is for filing all papers in an action after final judgment, and not for filing each paper in a case. Guilford v. Commissioners, 120 N. C. 23, 27 S. E. 94.

Transcript on Appeal When Fees Unpaid.—The clerk of... the court below is entitled to receive his fees before being required to send up a transcript on appeal, and therefore a writ of certiorari will be refused where it appears from the affidavit of the clerk that the transcript was not sent up by the court below, after repeated demands, at full cost, for stating an account, one-half to be paid by the plaintiffs and the other half by the defendants it was held that the court and transcribing the minutes, to be paid out of the general county fund. (Rev., s. 2773; C. S. 3904.)

From and after February 27, 1923, it shall be unlawful for the clerks of the superior courts of Vance, Warren, Northampton, Wayne and Bertie counties to charge fees for witness and juror tickets issued by them. (1929, c. 28; C. S. 3904.)

In Mitchell county, the clerk of superior court shall receive double the amount of fees and commissions as provided in § 2-26 of this chapter. (1931, c. 53, s. 1.)

Local Modification.—Harnett: 1931, c. 75; Johnston: 1943, c. 653.

Editor's Note.—Public Laws 1933, c. 84, amended by Public Laws 1939, c. 300, s. 2, inserted Scotland in the list of counties appearing in the first paragraph.

§ 2-28. Fees for probating and recording federal crop liens and chattel mortgages.—The fee to be charged by the clerk of the superior court for the probate of a federal crop lien or a federal chattel mortgage given to secure a seed and fertilizer loan from the United States government, or crop production loans, live stock loans, and/or other loans made by the regional agriculture credit corporation of Raleigh, North Carolina for production credit associations in North Carolina and/or production credit associations in North Carolina as provided for by the Farm Credit Act of Congress of one thousand nine hundred and thirty-three, or the North Carolina Rural Rehabilitation Corporation or other relief organizations by relief clients, shall be limited to twenty-five cents for each probate; and the fee of the register of deeds for registering said instrument shall be limited to fifty cents for each lien or chattel mortgage: Provided that this section shall not apply to Brunswick, Caswell, Harnett, Haywood, Hertford, Macon, Moore, Person, Polk, Richmond, Stokes, Surry and Wilson counties. (1933, cc. 160, 176, 266, 281, 326, 393, 429, 479, 514; 1935, cc. 120, 280, 369; 1939, c. 211.)

Editor's Note.—This section was originally enacted by Public Laws 1933, c. 160. Public Laws 1933, c. 176 struck Caswell from the list of counties exempted from the operation of this act. Public Laws 1933, c. 226 added the material beginning with "or crop" in line six, and ending with "Raleigh, North Carolina" in line eight. Public Laws 1933, c. 261 inserted the counties of Haywood, Jackson, and Macon in the list of counties exempted from the operation of this act. Public Laws 1933, c. 336 inserted Brunswick in the list of counties exempted from the operation of this section. Public Laws 1933, c. 390 added the counties of Harnett, Johnston, Polk, Moore, and Wilson to the list of counties exempted from the operation of this section. Public Laws 1933, c. 429 added Stokes to the list of counties exempted from the operation of this section. Public Laws 1933, c. 479 added Caswell, Hertford, and Person counties

§ 2-29. Advance court costs.—The clerk of the superior court is hereby authorized to collect as advance court cost on all suits started in any court the sum of seven dollars and fifty cents ($7.50) for one defendant, and one dollar and a half for each additional defendant, which fees shall include any process tax or tax on suits and sheriff fees. (1935, c. 379, s. 2.)

Local Modification.—Catawba: 1939, c. 62.

§ 2-30. Advance costs on appeal from justice of the peace.—The clerk of the superior court is authorized to collect from the appellant in all cases in appeals from justices of the peace court to the superior court four dollars as advance cost to be applied on the court cost including the process tax. (1935, c. 379, s. 1.)

§ 2-31. Fee for cross-indexing names of parties.—The fee for cross-indexing the name of each party to any action or proceeding required to be cross-indexed by law shall be ten cents for each name entered upon the cross-index records. (1935, c. 379, s. 3.)

§ 2-32. Fee for docketing judgment.—The fee for docketing any judgment shall be ten cents per copy sheet, minimum charge twenty-five cents. (1935, c. 379, s. 4.)

§ 2-33. Fee for auditing annual accounts of receivers, executors, etc.—For auditing annual accounts of receivers, executors, guardians, administrators, administrators with will annexed, trustees for incompetents, trustees under wills, surviving partner, where the total receipts and disbursements do not exceed one thousand dollars, the fee shall be twenty-five cents for each one hundred dollars on receipts and disbursements or a fraction thereof through one thousand dollars. If the receipts and disbursements exceed one thousand dollars, the fee shall be for the receipts and disbursements above one thousand dollars five cents on each one hundred dollars or a fraction thereof through one thousand dollars. When the receipts and disbursements exceed one thousand dollars, the fee for the amount of same above eleven thousand dollars shall be one-tenth of one per cent on the amount of receipts and disbursements in excess of eleven thousand dollars, but in no event shall the fee be less than one dollar nor more than twenty-five dollars. (1935, c. 379, s. 5.)

§ 2-34. Fee for auditing final accounts of receivers, executors, etc.—For auditing final accounts of receivers, executors, administrators, administrators with will annexed, collectors, trustees for incompetents, trustees under wills, guardians or surviving partner, the fee shall be fifty cents for each one hundred dollars or a fraction thereof of the total receipts and disbursements through one thousand dollars, and ten cents per each one hundred dollars or a fraction thereof on everything above one thousand dollars, but in no event shall the fee be less than two dollars: Provided, that when stocks, bonds or any other personal property is delivered to any heir or distributee without converting the same into cash, these fees shall be computed and charged on the same just as though they had been converted into cash; the value of said stocks, bonds, etc., to be fixed as of the date of death, or qualification of the fiduciary. (1935, c. 379, s. 6.)

§ 2-35. Fee for auditing final accounts of trustees, etc., selling real estate under foreclosure proceedings.—For auditing final accounts of trustees, mortgagees, commissioners, or other persons, firms, or corporations selling real estate under foreclosure proceeding required to render such final report, the fee shall be twenty-five cents on each one hundred dollars of receipts and disbursements through one thousand dollars and ten cents on each one hundred dollars for everything above one thousand dollars, provided that the minimum fee shall be one dollar and fifty cents and the maximum fee shall not exceed twenty-five dollars. (1935, c. 379, s. 7.)

§ 2-36. Certain counties not subject to sections 2-29—2-35.—Sections 2-29—2-35 shall not apply to the counties of: Cabarrus, Chowan, Cleveland, Columbus, Franklin, Iredell, Lincoln, Martin, Mecklenburg, Montgomery, Moore, New Hanover, Pitt, Richmond, Robeson, Rockingham, Surry, Union, Jackson, Swain, Buncombe, Rowan, Orange, Avery, Wayne, Nash, Wilson, Bladen, Cumberland, Ashe, Edgecombe, Tyrrell, Person, Duplin, Vance, Davie, Guilford, Onslow, Washington, Alleghany, Haywood, Davidson, Burke, Stokes, Franklin, Catawba, Lenoir, Jones, Pamlico, Caldwell, Caswell. Provided, that section 2-29 shall apply to Iredell county. (1935, c. 379, s. 8; 1935, c. 494; 1937, cc. 148, 149, 290.)

Editor's Note.—The 1937 amendments struck out Bertie and Yancey from the list of counties in this section, and added the proviso as to Iredell county.

§ 2-37. To keep fee bill posted.—Every clerk shall keep posted in his office in some conspicuous place the fee bill, for public inspection and reference, under a penalty of one hundred dollars for such neglect, to be paid to any person who will sue for same. (Rev., s. 2774; Code, s. 3740; C. S. 947.)

§ 2-38. To furnish blank process, bonds and undertakings.—Clerks of courts shall furnish to parties printed copies of the formal parts of all process required to be issued by them, with convenient blank spaces for the insertion of written matter; and also the blank forms of such bonds and undertakings as are required to be taken by them. (Rev., s. 911; Code, s. 3761; C. C. P., s. 559; 1868-9, c. 279, s. 588; C. S. 948.)

§ 2-39. To file papers in proceedings.—The clerk must file and preserve all papers in proceedings before him, or belonging to the court; and shall keep the papers in each action in a separate roll or bundle, and at its termination attach them together, properly labeled, and file them in the order of the date of the final judgment. All such papers and the books kept by him belong to, and appertain to, his office, and must be delivered to his successor. (Rev. s. 913; Code, ss. 86, 111; C. C. P., ss. 146, 426; C. S. 949.)

Cross Reference.—As to custody and transfer to successor, see § 2-22.

Filing Papers.—The fee allowed the clerk for “filing papers,” is allowed for the single act of filing all the papers when the case is closed, as herein provided. Guilford v. Commissioners, 120 N. C. 23, 27 S. E. 94.

§ 2-40. To keep records of his office; obtaining originals or copies.—He shall keep in bound volumes a complete and faithful record of all his official acts, and give copies thereof to all persons desiring them, on payment of the legal fees. He shall be answerable for all records belonging to his office, and all papers filed in the court, and they shall not be taken from his custody, unless by special order of the court, or on the written consent of the attorneys of record of all the parties; but parties may at all times have copies upon paying the clerk therefor. (Rev., s. 913; Code, s. 82; C. C. P., s. 143; 1868-9, c. 159, s. 4; C. S. 950.)

Clerk's Record.—Clerks are required to keep a record, in which shall be recorded all orders and decrees passed in their office, which they are required to make in writing. Gulley v. Macy, 81 N. C. 356, 359.

§ 2-41. To endorse date of issuance on process.—The clerk shall note on all precepts, process and executions the day on which the same shall be issued; and the sheriff or other officer receiving the same for execution shall in like manner note thereon the day on which he shall have received it, and the day of the execution; and every clerk, sheriff or other officer neglecting so to do shall forfeit and pay one hundred dollars. (Rev., s. 914; Code, s. 100; C. S. 951.)

Cross Reference.—As to who may sue for and recover penalties, see § 1-38.

Action in Name of State.—An action brought against a sheriff, for the penalty herein provided for neglecting to note upon process the day on which it was received, should be in the name of the state as plaintiff. Duncan v. Philpot, 64 N. C. 473, 480.

Final Process.—This section has no reference to the final process. Wyche v. Newsom, 87 N. C. 144, 145. See also, Person v. Newsom, 87 N. C. 142.

§ 2-42. To keep books; enumeration.—Each clerk shall keep the following books, which shall be open to the inspection of the public during regular office hours:

1. Summons docket, which shall contain a docket of all writs, summonses or other original process issued by him, or returned to his office, which are made returnable to a regular term of the superior court; this docket shall contain a brief note of every proceeding whatever in each action, up to the final judgment inclusive.

2. Judgment docket, which shall contain a note of the substance of every judgment and every proceeding subsequent thereto.

3. Civil issue docket, which shall contain a docket of all issues of fact joined upon the pleadings, and of all other matters for hearing before the judge at a regular term of the court, a copy of which shall be furnished to the judge at the commencement of each term.

4. Cross-index to judgments, which shall contain a direct and reverse alphabetical index of all final judgments in civil actions rendered in the court, with the dates and numbers thereof, and also of all final judgments rendered in other courts and authorized by law to be entered on his judgment docket. Pending the docketing of judgments in the judgment docket and cross-indexing the same as herein provided for, the clerk shall keep a temporary index to all judgments entered in his said court or received in his court from any court for docketing; and he shall immediately index all judgments rendered in his court or received in his court for docketing, and index the names of all parties against whom judgments have been rendered or entered alphabetically in said temporary index, and which temporary index shall be preserved and open to the public until said judgments shall have been docketed in the judgment docket and cross-indexed in the permanent cross-index to judgments, as herein provided for.

5. Cross-index of Parties to Actions.—The clerk shall keep an alphabetical index and cross-index of all parties to all actions and special proceedings. Upon the issuance of summons or commencement of an ex parte proceeding he shall forthwith index and cross-index the names of all parties to such action or proceeding. When an order is made that any new or additional party be brought into an action or proceeding his name shall forthwith be indexed and cross-indexed by the clerk. The index shall be so arranged that beside each name shall appear a reference to the book and page wherein the action or proceeding will be found upon the summons docket, civil issue docket, special proceeding docket, and judgment docket, or such of said dockets as carry reference to said action or proceeding; and immediately upon said action or proceeding being entered upon any of said dockets the clerk shall cause said index to carry reference upon the index and cross-index as to every party.

6. Record of lis pendens, which shall contain the names of the parties to the action, place where such notice, whether formal or in the pleadings, is filed, the object of the action, the date of indexing, and a sufficient description of the land to be affected, and which shall be cross-indexed.

7. Criminal docket, which shall contain a note of every proceeding in each criminal action.

8. Minute docket of superior court, which shall contain a record of all proceedings had in the court during term, in the order in which they occur, and such other entries as the judge may direct to be made therein.

9. Special proceedings docket, which shall contain a docket of all writs, summonses, petitions, or other original process issued by him, or returnable to his office, and not returnable to a regular term; this docket shall contain a brief note of every proceeding, up to the final judgment inclusive.

10. Minute docket of proceedings before clerk, which shall contain a record of all proceedings had before the clerk, in actions or proceedings not returnable to a regular term of the court.

11. Record of wills, which shall contain a record of all wills, with the certificate of probate thereof.

12. Record of appointments, which shall contain a record of appointments of executors, administrators, guardians, and collectors, with rev-ocations of all such appointments; and on which shall be noted all subsequent proceedings relating thereto.

13. Record of orders and decrees, which shall contain a record of all orders and decrees passed in his office, which he is required to make in writing, and not required to be recorded in some other book.

14. Record of accounts, which shall contain a record of accounts, in which must be recorded inventories and annual accounts of executors, administrators, collectors, trustees under assignments for creditors, and guardians, as audited by him from time to time.

15. Record of settlements, which shall contain a record of settlements, in which must be entered the final settlements of executors, administrators, collectors, commissioners, trustees under assignments for creditors, and guardians.

16. Record of jurors, which shall contain a list of all persons who serve as grand, petit, and tales jurors in his court; which shall be properly indexed.

17. Record of justices of the peace, which shall contain a complete list of the justices of the peace of the county, by townships, giving the date of election or appointment, qualification, and expiration of term of office of each; and whenever a vacancy occurs it shall be noted therein. These books shall at all times show a complete list of the justices of the peace of the county and who was the predecessor of each justice and the succession in office.

18. Record of books, which shall contain the date of delivery to each justice of the peace of any dockets, records, and books; and the date of the receipt by him to any justice of the peace, or to the personal representative of a deceased justice of the peace, for any dockets, records, and books returned to him.

19. Cross-index of wills, which shall contain a general alphabetical cross-index of all wills filed or recorded in the office of the clerk of the superior court, and devising real estate or any interest therein, whether such devise appears on the face of said will or not, showing the full name of each devisor, and all devisees as they are given in the will, together with the date of the probate of such will.

20. Cross-index of executors and administrators, which shall contain a general alphabetical cross-index of the appointment of all executors and administrators made by the courts of their county, showing the name of the appointee, the name of the decedent, and date of appointment.

21. Cross-index of guardians, which shall contain a general alphabetical cross-index of the appointment of all guardians made by the courts of their county, showing the name of the guardian, the names of the wards, and date of appointment.

22. Record of fines and penalties, which shall contain an itemized and detailed statement of the respective amounts received by him in the way of fines, penalties and forfeitures, and paid over to the county treasurer.

23. Lien docket, which shall contain a record of all notices of liens filed in his office, properly indexed, showing the names of the lienor and lienee.

24. Record of appointment of receivers, which shall contain a record of all appointments of receivers, and all inventories, reports, and accounts filed by them; which shall be properly indexed.

25. Record of corporations, which shall contain a record of the certificate of incorporation of all corporations charted under general law, with principal office or place of business in his county.

26. Accounts of indigent orphans, which shall contain a record of all receipts from persons for money paid for indigent children.

27. Register of physicians and surgeons, which shall contain a list of the names and places of residence, with date of registration, of all persons registered by him as physicians and surgeons.

28. Register of dentists, which shall contain a registration of certificates of all persons entitled to practice dentistry in his county.

29. Register of chiropodists, which shall contain a list of the names and places of residence, with date of certificate, of all persons registered by him as chiropodists.

30. Register of trained nurses, which shall contain the name, residence and date of registration of all trained nurses duly licensed in his county.

31. Permanent roll of registered voters, which shall contain an alphabetical list by townships of all persons entitled to permanent registration, giving the name and age of each, the name of the person from whom he was descended, unless he himself was a voter on July 1, 1867, or prior thereto, the state in which he was such voter and the date he applied for registration.

32. Lunacy docket, which shall contain a record of all the examinations of persons alleged to be insane, a brief summary of the proceedings, and his findings, and a record of all proceedings in lunacy transmitted to him by justices of the peace.

33. Record of county treasurer's report, which shall contain an itemized statement of all fines and penalties paid to the county treasurer; which said itemized statement of fines and penalties received by the county treasurer shall be by him reported to the clerk on the first day of January, April, July and October, respectively, of each and every year.

34. Nol. pros. with leave record, which shall contain a record of all cases in which a nolle prosequi with leave is entered in criminal actions, with the term of court at which the order is made, and which shall be cross-indexed.

35. Record of permits to purchase weapons, which shall contain the name, date, place of residence, age, former place of residence, etc., of each person, firm or corporation to whom or which a permit is issued to purchase deadly weapons. (Rev., s. 915; Code, ss. 83, 96, 97, 112, 1789; 1887, c. 178, s. 2; 1889, c. 181, s. 4; 1893, c. 52; 1899, c. 1, s. 17; 1899, c. 82, 110; 1901, c. 2, s. 9; 1901, c. 89, s. 13; 1901, c. 550, s. 3; 1903, c. 51; 1903, c. 350, s. 6; 1905, c. 360, s. 2; 1919, c. 78, s. 7; 1919, c. 132, 314; 1919, c. 197, s. 4; 1937, c. 93; C. S. 953.)

Cross Reference.—For provisions similar to paragraph 35, see § 14-605.

Editor's Note.—The 1937 amendment added the second sentence of subsection 4.
ascertain in advance whether or not judgments have been rendered which, when docketed will affect the title to the property in which their clients are interested. The new law will thus tend to facilitate real estate loans and transfers. (Rev., 1943, c. 523; Wayne: 1939, c. 92.)

§ 2-43. To notify commissioners of insolvency of surety company in which county officer bonded.—Every clerk of the superior court shall furnish to the board of county commissioners copies of all fiats made by them. Perry v. Bragg, 111 N. C. 159, 164, 16 S. E. 10. Evidence of Appointment.—The record of appointments is admissible as evidence to show a guardian's appointment. Young v. Preble, 120 N. C. 23, 28, 27 S. E. 94. Sufficient Notice of Lien.—A notice of a lien filed on the civil issue docket should not be disregarded, yet where there is a conflict between the two, nothing else appearing, those on the former must prevail. Walton v. McKesson, 101 N. C. 428, 7 S. E. 566. Record of Fiats.—Clerks are required to record in general order books copies of all fiats made by them. Perry v. Bragg, 111 N. C. 159, 164, 16 S. E. 10.

§ 2-44. List of justices to secretary of state.—The clerk of the superior court of each county in which justices of the peace are not elected by the qualified voters thereof on the first Monday in January preceding each regular session of the general assembly shall certify to the secretary of state a correct list of all justices of the peace in his county, the township in which each resides, the term of office of each, time of election or appointment, and when the respective terms of office of each expire. He shall also report the names of all justices elected or appointed just before the commencement of the regular session of the general assembly. (Rev., 1941, c. 316; Forsyth: 1941, c. 109; Greene: 1943, c. 378; Union: 1941, c. 316; Wake: 1943, c. 523; Wayne: 1939, c. 92.)

Editor's Note.—The Act of 1931 inserted the words: “upon ten days' written notice” in the first sentence of this section. For construction of “color of his office,” see § 2-4 and annotations.

Method of Procedure.—Where a clerk has admitted money to his hands in the manner prescribed by this section, he can only be proceeded against on motion, for a summary judgment for money that has remained in his hands for three years. Summey v. Johnston, 60 N. C. 98.

Purpose.—The clerk's proceedings are summary in their nature, and should always be put in such shape as to present all that he does in the course of a proceeding, including his official bond, his interlocutory order, and such documents that may be distinctly seen and understood. To this end, he is required to keep certain permanent records of proceedings before him. Edwards v. Cobb, 95 N. C. 4, 8.

When Minute Docket Prevails.—While in the absence of entries on the minute docket those made on the civil issue docket should not be disregarded, yet where there is a conflict between the two, nothing else appearing, those on the former must prevail. Walton v. McKesson, 101 N. C. 428, 7 S. E. 566.

§ 2-45. List of attorneys-at-law to commissioner of revenue.—It shall be the duty of the Clerk of the Superior Court in each county of the State on or before the first day of May each year to certify to the Commissioner of Revenue of the State of North Carolina the names and addresses of all Attorneys-at-Law located within the county and engaged in the practice of law. (1931, c. 299.)

Art. 6. Money in Hand; Investments.

§ 2-46. Public funds to be reported to county commissioners.—On the first Monday in December of each and every year, or oftener, if required by order of the board of commissioners or any other lawful authority, the clerk of the superior court shall make an annual report of all public funds which may be in their hands. The report shall be made to the board of county commissioners and addressed to the chairman thereof. It shall give an itemized statement of said funds so held, the date and source from which they were received, the person to whom due, how invested and where, in whose name deposited, the date of any certificate of deposit, the rate of interest the same is drawing, and other evidence of investment of said fund; and it shall include a statement of all funds in their hands by virtue or color of their office, and which may belong to persons or corporations. The report shall be subscribed and verified by the oath of the party making it before any person allowed to administer oaths. (Rev., 1918, 1891, c. 580; 1931, c. 156; C. S. 956.)

Local Modification.—Bertie: Pub. Lec. 1941, c. 39; Carteret: 1941, c. 316; Forsyth: 1941, c. 109; Greene: 1943, c. 145; Rockingham: 1943, c. 378; Union: 1941, c. 316; Wake: 1943, c. 523; Wayne: 1939, c. 92.

§ 2-48. Report compelled by commissioners.—If any clerk fails to report, or if after a report has been made the board of county commissioners have reason to believe that any report is incorrect, the board shall take legal steps to compel a proper report to be made by suit on the bond of such clerk, or by reporting the fact to the solicitor of the district to which the county of said board is registered, sign the same and file it in his office. The register shall also cause a copy of the report to be published one time in some newspaper of general circulation published in the county of the register and also posted at the courthouse door within twenty days after filing the reports; and if no newspaper is published in the county the posting of the report at the courthouse door shall be a sufficient publication. The cost of publishing the report shall be paid by the county. (Rev., s. 919; Code, s. 90; 1891, c. 580, s. 3; 1893, c. 14, s. 3; 1874-5, c. 151; 1876-7, c. 276; C. S. 957.)

§ 2-49. Payment to persons entitled.—The said clerks shall, on or before the first day of January in every year after the statements required in the foregoing sections are made, account with and pay to the persons entitled to receive the same all such balances reported as aforesaid to be in their hands. (Rev., s. 921; Code, s. 1865; R. C., c. 73, s. 2; 1825, c. 1186, s. 2; 1831, c. 3, ss. 1, 3; 1893, c. 14, s. 13; C. S. 959.)

Account.—"Account" means a statement in writing of debts and credits, or of receipts and payments, and when payments or settlement is intended, additional words are used. State v. Dunn, 134 N. C. 663, 668, 46 S. E. 949.

§ 2-50. Unclaimed fees of jurors and witnesses paid to school fund.—All moneys due jurors and witnesses which remain in the hands of any clerk of the superior court on the first day of January after the publication of a third annual report of the said clerk showing the same shall be turned over to the county treasurer for the use of the school fund of the county, and it is the duty of said clerk to indicate in his report any moneys so held by him for the period embracing the two annual reports. (Rev., s. 922; 1891, c. 580, s. 4; 1885, c. 14, s. 3; C. S. 960.)

Local Modification.—Wayne: 1941, c. 70. Cross Reference.—See also, § 115-183.

§ 2-51. Use by public until claimed.—The money aforesaid, while held by the clerks, shall be paid, on application, to the person entitled thereto; and after it ceases to be so held, it may be used as other revenue, subject, however, to the claim of the rightful owner. (Rev., s. 923; Code, s. 1869; R. C., c. 73, s. 6; 1828, c. 41, s. 1; C. S. 961.)

§ 2-52. Payment of sum due minor insurance beneficiary.—Where a minor is named as beneficiary in a policy or policies of insurance issued in a sum not exceeding five hundred ($500.00) dollars, and the insured dies prior to the majority of such beneficiary, any sums due on such policy may be paid to the public guardian or clerk of the superior court of the county wherein such beneficiary resides, to be administered by such clerk or public guardian for the benefit of said minor, and the receipt of the clerk or public guardian in such cases shall be a full and complete discharge of the company or association for any sums due under such policy or policies. (1937, c. 201.)

§ 2-53. Payment of money for indigent children and persons non compos mentis.—When any moneys in the amount of three hundred dollars or less are paid into court for any minor, indigent or needy child or children for whom no one will become guardian, upon satisfactory proof of the necessities of such minor, child or children, the clerk may upon his own motion or order pay out the same in such sum or sums at such time or times as in his judgment is for the best interest of said child or children, or to some discreet and solvent neighbor of said minor, to be used and faithfully applied for the sole benefit and maintenance of such minor indigent and needy child or children. The clerk shall take a receipt from the person to whom any such sum is paid and shall require such person to render an account of the expenditure of the sum and sums so paid, and shall record the receipt and the accounts, if any are rendered by order of the clerk, in a book entitled, Record of Amounts Paid for Indigent Children, and such receipt shall be a valid acquittance for the clerk. In all cases where a minor child is now or may hereafter be the beneficiary of any policy of life insurance and the sum due to said minor child by virtue of any such policy does not exceed three hundred dollars, the insurance company which issued said policy may pay the sum due thereunder to the clerk of the superior court of the county where said minor child resides whose duty it shall be to receive it, and said clerk shall issue and deliver to such insurance company his receipt for the sum so paid, which shall be a complete release and discharge of said company from any and all liability to said minor child under and by virtue of any such policy of insurance. Moneys so paid to said clerk shall be held and disbursed by him in the manner and subject to the limitations provided by this section. This section shall also apply to incompetent or insane persons, and it shall be the duty of any person or corporation having in its possession $300.00 or less for any minor child or indigent child, or incompetent or insane person to pay same in the office of the clerk of the superior court, and the clerk of the superior court is hereby authorized and empowered to disburse the sum thus paid into his office, upon his own motion or order, without the appointment of a guardian. (Rev., c. 924; 1899, c. 82; 1911, c. 29, s. 1; 1919, c. 91; Ex. Sess. 1924, c. 1, s. 1; 1927, c. 76; 1929, c. 15; 1933, c. 363; C. S. 962.)

Editor's Note.—This section was amended by the Laws 1924, c. 1 to apply to all funds contemplated by it, which amended language is inserted into the hands of the clerk of the superior court, when the amount thereof does not exceed one hundred dollars ($100) for each child who may be entitled to share therein. The Act of 1927 added a proviso relating to deposits from compo mentis which was struck out by the Act of 1929. The latter Act changed the word “one” formerly appearing in line two to “three.” See note under sec. 2-54.

The last sentence of the section, relating to payment of $300 or less held for a “minor child or indigent child, or incompetent or insane person,” was added by Public Laws 1933, c. 363.

§ 2-54. Limitation on investment of funds in clerk's hands.—It shall be unlawful for the clerk of the superior court of any county in the State of North Carolina receiving any money by color of his office to apply or invest any of said money except as specifically authorized by law. (1931, c. 281, s. 1.)

Local Modification.—Cleveland: 1933, c. 110.

Editor's Note.—The act from which this and the six following sections are codified, was apparently intended to supply the need indicated in William v. Hooks, 199 N. C. 497, S. E. 529, wherein the court held that “there is no mandatory requirement of law imposing upon the clerk of the Superior Court the express duty of investing funds in his hands belonging to minors.” The act is broader than that, however, and applies to all funds held by the clerk as such or as receiver or trustee for any infant or non compos mentis which should be read in connection with §§ 2-46, 28-166 and 65-10. See 9 N. C. L. Rev. 399, 400.

§ 2-55. Investments prescribed; use of funds in management of lands of infants, incompetents.—The clerk of the superior court of any county in the State may in his discretion invest moneys secured by color of his office or as receiver in any of the following securities:

(a) By loaning the same upon real estate security, such loans not to exceed fifty per cent (50%) of the assessed tax value; and said loans when paid, shall be evidenced by a note, or notes, of the borrower and secured by first mortgage or deed of trust.

(b) United States Government bonds.

(c) United States Government Postal Savings Certificates.

(d) North Carolina State bonds.

(e) North Carolina county or municipal bonds which are approved by the Local Government Commission.

(f) Certificates of deposit for time deposit or savings accounts with any bank or trust company where such protection is furnished as required in § 2-56.

(g) When the clerk of the superior court as receiver or trustee for any infant or non compos mentis shall come into the possession of any lands for the use of such person and it shall be necessary to make investments of the funds of such person to manage or cultivate said lands, the clerk may make such investments as are necessary for said purposes: Provided, the same is approved by the resident judge of the superior court or the judge holding the court of the district. (1931, c. 281, s. 2; 1937, c. 188; 1939, c. 110.)

Local Modification.—Cleveland: 1933, c. 110.

Cross References.—For section authorizing investment of funds in building and loan associations, see § 36-3. As to section authorizing investments in bonds issued or guaranteed by the United States government, see § 53-44.

Editor's Note.—This section was amended in the 1939 amendment inserted the words “for savings accounts” in subsection (f).

§ 2-56. Securing bank deposits.—It shall be the duty of the clerk of the superior court of any county in the State to require of any bank or trust company, wherein he may deposit money placed with him in trust, a corporate surety bond in an amount sufficient to protect such deposits, but in lieu of such corporate surety bond, the clerk may require such bank to furnish bonds of the United States Government, North Carolina State bonds, or North Carolina county or municipal bonds which have been approved by the Local Government Commission; provided, however, that to the extent of the amount which may be insured by the federal deposit insurance corporation or other federal agency insuring bank deposits the said insurance shall be deemed and considered ample security, and the clerk of the superior court shall not require corporate surety bond or any of the bonds above specified for that amount of the deposit insured by deposit insurance. (1931, c. 281, s. 3; 1939, c. 86; 1943, c. 543.)

Editor's Note.—The 1939 amendment added the proviso to this section.

§ 2-57. Inspection of records by local government commission; report to solicitor of mismanagement.—The Local Government Commission, or its successors, is hereby authorized and empowered to inspect the records of any clerk of the superior court in the State for the purpose of ascertaining that such clerk is complying with the requirements of §§ 2-54 to 2-60 and if, in the course of such inspection, it is found that such clerk has failed to comply with the requirements of §§ 2-54 to 2-60, it shall be the duty of the Local Government Commission, or its successors, to report such findings to the solicitor of the district in which the county is located and said solicitor shall proceed to prosecute as hereinafter provided. (1931, c. 281, s. 4; c. 60.)

§ 2-58. Inspection and audit by county auditors or accountants; reports of audits.—It shall be the duty of the County Auditor or County Accountant of any county to inspect and audit the records and accounts of the Clerk of the Superior Court of the county for the purpose of ascertaining that such clerk is complying with the requirements of §§ 2-54 to 2-60 and that such clerk is properly safeguarding and accounting for all funds of every nature and character which have come into his hands by virtue of his office; such audits to be made and a report thereof made by the County Auditor or County Accountant to the board of county commissioners of the county and to the Local Government Commission or such other governmental agency as shall succeed to the rights and duties of the Local Government Commission. (1931, c. 281, ss. 6, 60.)
§ 3-1. Appointment by governor; term; oath. — The governor is authorized to appoint and commission one or more commissioners in any foreign country, state or republic, and in such of the states of the United States, or in the District of Columbia, or any of the territories, colonies or dependencies as he may deem expedient, who shall continue in office for two years from the date of their appointment, unless sooner removed by the governor. Before such commissioner proceeds to perform any duty by virtue of this chapter, he shall take and subscribe an oath before a justice of the peace in the city or county in which he resides well and faithfully to execute and perform all the duties of such commissioner, according to the laws of North Carolina; which oath shall be filed in the office of the secretary of state. (Rev., ss. 926, 927; Code, ss. 632, 633; C. S. 963.)

§ 3-2. Record of appointments; certified copies evidence. — It is the duty of the governor to cause to be recorded by the secretary of state the names of the persons who are appointed and qualified as commissioners, and for what state, territory, county, city, or town; and the secretary of state, when the oath of the commissioner is filed in his office, shall forthwith certify the appointment to the several clerks of the superior courts of the state, who shall record the certificate of the secretary at length. All removals of commissioners by the governor, and of all whose commissions have expired, or whose commissions have been renewed, revoked, or have resigned, removed or died since the date of the list previously published, as far as the same may be known to him, with the dates of such revocation, resignation, removal or death. (Rev., s. 929; Code, ss. 635, 636, 637, 639; C. S. 965.)

§ 3-3. List of appointments prepared and published by secretary of state. — The secretary of state shall prepare and cause to be printed in each volume of the public laws a list of all persons who since the preceding publication in the public laws have been appointed commissioners of affidavits and to take the probate of deeds in any foreign country and in the several states and territories of the United States and in the District of Columbia, under this chapter, setting forth the state, territory or district or foreign country for which such persons were appointed and the dates of their respective appointments and term of office; and he shall add to each of said lists a list of all those persons whose appointments have been renewed, revoked, or have resigned, removed or died since the date of the list previously published, as far as the same may be known to him, with the dates of such revocation, resignation, removal or death. (Rev., s. 930; Code, ss. 635, 636, 637, 639; C. S. 966.)

§ 3-5. Powers of such commissioners. — The commissioners have authority to take the acknowledgment or proof of any deed, mortgage, or other conveyance of lands, tenements, or hereditaments lying in this state, and to take the private examination of married women, parties thereto, or any other writings to be used in this state. Such acknowledgment or proof, taken or made in the manner directed by the laws of this state, and certified by the commissioner, shall have the same force and effect for all purposes as if made or taken before any competent authority in this state. The commissioners also

It is the duty of the Secretary of State forthwith upon the appointment of such commissioners, to certify the same to the several clerks of the superior courts of the State, and, in like manner, to certify to the said clerks all removals of commissioners, and of all whose commissions have expired. Evans v. Etheridge, 99 N. C. 43, 5 S. E. 386, 388.

§ 3-6. Fees of commissioners of affidavits. — The powers of the clerks of courts in other states. (Rev., ss. 926, 927; Code, ss. 632, 633; C. S. 963.)

Cross Reference. — For general provisions relating to proof and acknowledgment of instruments, and the taking of affidavits in other jurisdictions, see §§ 10-4, 47-2, 47-3, 47-6, 47-44, 47-45.

§ 3-7. Powers of clerks of courts in other states. — The fees of commissioners of affidavits.

§ 3-10. Powers of such commissioners. — The commissioners have authority to take the acknowledgment or proof of any deed, mortgage, or other conveyance of lands, tenements, or hereditaments lying in this state, and to take the private examination of married women, parties thereto, or any other writings to be used in this state. Such acknowledgment or proof, taken or made in the manner directed by the laws of this state, and certified by the commissioner, shall have the same force and effect for all purposes as if made or taken before any competent authority in this state. The commissioners also

have full power and authority to administer an oath or affirmation to any person willing or desirous to make it before him, to take depositions, and to examine the witnesses under any commission emanating from the courts of this state, relating to any cause depending or to be brought in said courts. Every deposition, affidavit, or affirmation made before him is as valid as if taken before any proper officer in this state. (Rev., ss. 926, 927; Code, ss. 632, 633; C. S. 967.)

Editor's Note.—In the case of De Courcy, etc., Co. v. Barr, 45 N. C. 151, the court, construed section 2, chapter 21, of the Revised Statutes, as empowering commissioners of affidavits to take the acknowledgments of nonresidents only, upon the ground that the section declared that the acknowledgment should have “the same power and effect,” etc., as if the same had been made “before some of the judges of supreme jurisdiction in any other state.” Section 5, chapter 37, of the Revised Statutes, authorizes judges of etc., as if the same had been made “before some of the judges of supreme jurisdiction in any other state.” The Revised Code was enacted at the next session of the General Assembly held after that decision was rendered, and the law (as embodied in section 2, chapter 21, Rev. Code) seems to have been drawn with the purpose of enlarging the powers of commissioners of affidavits, and enabling them to take and certify acknowledgments of grantors of deeds, whether they were nonresidents, or residents of this state temporarily absent from the state. The section last mentioned has been in force since its enactment by the Legislature of 1854-55, being almost the same as section 533 of the Code. The latter gives to acknowledgments, taken before commissioners of affidavits, “the same force and effect, for all purposes, as if the same had been made or taken before any competent authority in this state.” It does not seem that any serious doubt has been entertained as to the true meaning of the law now in force since the case of Simmons v. Gholson, 59 N. C. 401, was decided. It has been considered as conferring upon a commissioner of affidavits the same authority to take the proof of executions or the acknowledgment of grantors, who may be in the state for which they were appointed (whether there temporarily or as residents), as to the execution of deeds conveying land or other property located in this state that are required or allowed by law to be registered—that is, given by law to the clerk of the superior court of the county in which the land lies but the clerk has power to adjudge that the execution has been properly proven and order the registration, while the commissioner is functus officio, as to any given deed, when he has attached to it his certificate as to proof or acknowledgment of its execution. Evans v. Etheridge, 99 N. C. 43, 5 S. E. 386; James, etc., Co. v. Pegram, 102 N. C. 540, 543, 9 S. E. 412.

Scope of Commissioner’s Authority.—Under the section commissioners of affidavits have full authority to take the acknowledgment, within the states for which they are appointed, of the grantors to any deed or conveyance of lands in this state, and to take the private examination of females covert. James, etc., Co. v. Pegram, 102 N. C. 540, 9 S. E. 412; Maphis v. Pegram, 107 N. C. 505, 12 S. E. 215.

Commissioners of affidavits are empowered by the provision to take acknowledgments of deeds in other states, by residents of both this state and that for which such commissioners are appointed. Barcello v. Happgood, 118 N. C. 712, 727, 24 S. E. 124; Hinton v. Life Ins. Co., 116 N. C. 22, 21 S. E. 201.

Acknowledgments of Residents Visiting in Another State.—Where a man and his wife, being residents of this state, duly acknowledged a deed before a commissioner in Virginia, where they had gone on a visit merely, and the certificate of the commissioner, being in due form, was approved by the clerk of the superior court of the county in which the land was situated, and the deed duly recorded, the registration was valid. James, etc., Co. v. Pegram, 102 N. C. 540, 9 S. E. 412; Maphis v. Pegram, 107 N. C. 505, 12 S. E. 215.

Seal Unnecessary.—A commissioner of deeds for this state, residing in another state, is not required to affix his seal to the certificate acknowledging the execution of a deed conveying land in this state. Johnson v. Duval, 135 N. C. 642, 47 S. E. 611; Sluder v. Wolf Mountain Lumber Co., 181 N. C. 69, 106 S. E. 215.

Acknowledgment a Judicial Act.—In this state it is settled law that an acknowledgment of a deed by the husband and privy examination of the wife taken before a commissioner is a judicial, or at least a quasi judicial, act. This was laid down by Pearson, J., in Decourcy, etc., Co. v. Barr, 45 N. C. 181; Long v. Crews, 113 N. C. 256, 257, 18 S. E. 499.

Sufficient Verification.—An affidavit upon which an application for a provisional remedy is based is sufficiently verified when made before a commissioner for this state resident in another state and acknowledged by his official signature and seal. Young v. Rollins, 85 N. C. 485.

§ 3-6. Fees of commissioners of affidavits.—Commissioners of affidavits, and those who are authorized by law to act as such, shall receive the following fees, and no other, namely: for an affidavit taken and certified, forty cents; affixing his official seal, twenty-five cents. (Rev., s. 2795; Code, s. 3741; C. S. 3924.) Cross Reference.—As to fees of notaries, see § 10-8.

§ 3-7. Powers of clerks of courts in other states.—Every clerk of a court of record in any other state has full power as a commissioner of affidavits and deeds as is vested in regularly appointed commissioners of affidavits and deeds for this state. (Rev., s. 931; Code, s. 640; C. S. 968.) Cross Reference.—As to probate and registration by officials of the United States, foreign countries, and sister states, see §§ 47-2, 47-3, 47-44, 47-47.

Authority of Clerks to Act.—The section confers upon clerks of courts of record in other states the powers both of commissioners of affidavits and of deeds and of commissioners regularly appointed by the courts, and the courts will take judicial notice of their seals. Barcello v. Happgood, 118 N. C. 712, 727, 24 S. E. 124; Hinton v. Life Ins. Co., 116 N. C. 22, 21 S. E. 201.

§ 3-8. Clerks and notaries to take affidavits.—The clerks of the supreme and superior courts and notaries public are authorized to take and certify affidavits to be used before any justice of the peace, judge or court of the state; and the affidavits so taken by a clerk shall be certified under the hands of the said clerk, and if to be used out of the county where taken, also under the seal of the court of which they are respectively clerks, and, if by a notary, under his notarial seal. (Rev., s. 925; Code, s. 631; C. S. 969.)

Judicial Notice of Seals.—Courts take judicial notice of the seal of the courts of other states, for the purpose of determining the validity of a verification of a pleading, just as they do of the seals of foreign courts of admiralty and notaries public. Hinton v. Life Ins. Co., 116 N. C. 22, 21 S. E. 201.

Verification of Pleadings Before Clerk.—A verification of a pleading made before the clerk of the Hustings Court of Richmond, Virginia, and authenticated by his seal, is valid. Hinton v. Life Ins. Co., 116 N. C. 22, 21 S. E. 201.
§ 4-1. Common law declared to be in force.

All such parts of the common law as were herefofore in force and use within this state, or so much of the common law as is not destructive of, or repugnant to, or inconsistent with, the freedom and independence of this state and the form of government therein established, and which has not been otherwise provided for in whole or in part, not abrogated, repealed, or become obsolete, are hereby declared to be in full force within this state. (Rev. s. 932; Code, s. 641; R. C. c. 22; 1715, c. 5, ss. 2, 3; 1778, c. 133; C. S. 970.)

General Considerations.—The common law includes those principles, usages and rules of action applicable to the government and security of persons and property, which do not rest for their authority upon any express and positive declaration of the will of the legislature. Kent, Vol. 1, p. 471; Kansas v. Colorado, 206 U. S. 46, 96, 27 S. Ct. 65, 51 L. Ed. 296.

As distinguished from law created by the enactment of legislatures, the common law comprises the body of those principles and rules of action relating to the government and security of persons and property, which derive their authority solely from usages and customs, immemorial antiquity, or from the judgments and decrees of the courts recognizing, affirming and enforcing such usages and customs. Black's Law Dict., p. 232; Western Union Tel. Co. v. Call Pub. Co., 181 U. S. 92, 102, 21 S. Ct. 561, 45 L. Ed. 765.

So much of the common law as is in force by virtue of this section may be modified or repealed, but those parts of the common law which are imbedded in the Constitution are not subject to control. State v. Mitchell, 202 N. C. 439, 195 S. E. 394.

Extent of Common Law.—So much of the common law as is not destructive of, repugnant to, or inconsistent with our form of government, and which has not been repealed or abrogated by statute or become obsolete, is in full force and effect in this jurisdiction. State v. Hampton, 210 N. C. 283, 186 S. E. 251.

Reference to Debts Due to State Abrogated.—The English common law which gave a debt due to the sovereign a preference over the debts due to others, is abrogated by this section, and is not in force as applied to a debt due to this state. This on the principle that the rule as it existed at common law is antagonistic to the spirit of our governmental institutions. Corp. Com. v. Trust Co., 193 N. C. 513, 17 S. E. 357.

Right of Bail in Capital Cases.—At common law bail might be granted in capital cases only by a high judicial officer upon thorough scrutiny of the facts and great caution. This right though once modified by the old constitution against its existence in capital offenses where the proof was evident and the presumption was great, now prevails in this state as it existed at common law, since that Constitution is superseded by the present Constitution which contains no provisions which qualify the right. In England the power to bail was exercised by the King's superior courts of justice; and in this state the power is conferred upon the justices of the Supreme Court, judges of the inferior and circuit courts. State v. Herndon, 107 N. C. 934, 941, 12 S. E. 268.

Exemption of Attorneys from Arrest.—The common law exemption of an attorney from arrest in a civil action, should, under our institutions and because of absoluteness by nonusage, not prevail. The privilege in attendance upon court in the due course of their employment as attorneys. Greenleaf v. Bank, 133 N. C. 292, 296, 45 S. E. 638.

Percolating Waters.—The owner of lands is only entitled to the reasonable use of percolating waters collected in subterranean channels on his own lands; and the English common law doctrine to the contrary is inapplicable under this section. Rouse v. Kimston, 188 N. C. 1, 125 S. E. 483.

Habeas Corpus.—If the common law doctrine that every court of record in this state as it existed at common law, since that Constitution is superseded by the present Constitution which contains no provisions which qualify the right, in effect and by statutory implication. Speight v. Speight, 208 N. C. 352, 179 S. E. 461.

Champerthy is an offense at common law, and prevails in this state, being retained under this section. Remmicks v. Stuart, 220 N. C. 350, 17 S. E. (2d) 458.

Barraty.—The common-law offense of barraty obtains in this state, as it has never been the subject of legislation in North Carolina and is not repugnant nor inconsistent with our form of government. State v. Batson, 220 N. C. 411, 17 S. E. (2d) 451, 139 A. L. R. 514.

Forfeiture for felony, which was the established rule at common law, has had no force in this state since 1778. Wills v. Bank, 110 N. C. 251, 264.

Exemption from Civil Process.—The common law privilege of the exemption of nonresidents from service of civil process while attending upon litigation in the courts of this state, as suitors or witnesses, was not repealed by implication by sections 8-64, 9-18. Cooper v. Wyman, 122 N. C. 784, 29 S. E. 942.

Survivorship; Husband and Wife Tenants by Entitlements. —The common law doctrine of survivorship between husband and wife as tenants by entitlent has not been changed by statute and is in force in this state. Dorsey v. Kirkland, Eng. 150, 99 S. E. 470.

Presumption as to Common Law in Sister States.—Where there is no evidence to the contrary, the presumption is that the common law is in force in a sister state. Hips v. Southern R. Co., 177 N. C. 472, 99 S. E. 335.

Presumption of Death.—The doctrine of the common law as to presumptive death is not repealed or affected by statute, and obtains in our courts. Steele v. Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., 196 N. C. 408, 145 S. E. 787.

Limitation Over in Personal Property.—The common-law rule that there can be no limitation over in personal property after reservation of a life estate therein is in force in this state, under this section, and has been recognized by judicial decision and by statutory implication. Speight v. Speight, 208 N. C. 132, 179 S. E. 461.

Implied Warranty in Sale of Food.—The common law rule of implied warranty in the sale of food by a retailer to a consumer, even though the food may be sold in a sealed container, has not been rendered obsolete by the changes in the manner and method of the manufacture, preparation and distribution of food. Rabb v. Covington, 215 N. C. 572, 2 S. E. (2d) 705.

§ 5-1. Contempts enumerated; common law repealed.—Any person guilty of any of the following acts may be punished for contempt:

1. Disorderly, contemptuous, or insolent behavior committed during the sitting of any court of justice, in immediate view and presence of the court, and directly tending to interrupt its proceedings, or to impair the respect due to its authority.

2. Behavior of the like character committed in the presence of any referee or referees, while actually engaged in any trial or hearing pursuant to the order of any court, or in the presence of any jury while actually sitting for the trial of a cause, or upon any inquest or other proceeding authorized by law.

3. Any breach of the peace, noise or other disturbance directly tending to interrupt the proceedings of any court.

4. Willful disobedience of any process or order lawfully issued by any court.

5. Resistance willfully offered by any person to the lawful order or process of any court.

6. The contumacious and unlawful refusal of any person to be sworn as a witness, or, when so sworn, the like refusal to answer any legal and proper interrogatory.

7. The publication of grossly inaccurate reports of the proceedings in any court, about any trial, or other matter pending before said court, and directly tending to interrupt its proceedings, or to impair the respect due to its authority.

8. Misbehavior of any officer of the court in any official transaction.

The several acts, neglects and omissions of duty, malfeasances, misfeasances, and nonfeasances, above specified and described, shall be the only acts, neglects and omissions of duty, malfeasances, misfeasances and nonfeasances which shall be the subject of contempt of court. And if there are any parts of the common law now in force in this state which recognized other acts, neglects, omissions of duty, malfeasances, misfeasances and nonfeasances besides those specified and described above, the same are hereby repealed and annulled. (Rev., s. 939; Code, s. 648; 1905, c. 449; C. S. 978.)

I. GENERAL CONSIDERATION.

Editor's Note.—It is essential for an effective administration of justice in an orderly and efficient way that the court possess certain powers to enforce its mandate. A legislative interference to the extent of depriving the courts of these powers is tantamount to depriving the judicial department of the means of self-preservation and cannot be constitutionally justified. See Snow v. Hawkes, 183 N. C. 360, 111 S. E. 621; Ex parte McCown, 139 N. C. 25, 107, 51 S. E. 957.

These powers, however, as they existed at common law, while they may not be abrogated, may be reasonably regulated by legislation. See In re Robinson, 117 N. C. 553, 23 S. E. 453. Thus, this and the following sections are regulatory legislation upon the subject, and being in accord with modern doctrine, cannot be assailed on the ground of unconstitutional enactments. See In re Brown, 168 N. C. 417, 44 S. E. 690; In re Oldham, 89 N. C. 23, 56.

The enumeration of the acts punishable for contempt under this section is exhaustive; hence no other act than those specifically designated may be the subject matter of contempt proceedings. See In re Odum, 133 N. C. 230, 252, 45 S. E. 569.

It is a thoroughly seminal opinion on the history, nature, and extent of the power of courts to punish for contempt, see In re Brown, 168 N. C. 417, 44 S. E. 690, and Ex parte McCown, 139 N. C. 95, 51 S. E. 957.

Construed Strictly.—This section should be strictly construed as a criminal statute. West v. West, 199 N. C. 12, 13, 133 S. E. 600. See also In re Hege, 205 N. C. 625, 113 S. E. 135.

Definition.—Contempt is a willful disregard of the authority of a court of justice, or a legislative body or disobedience to its lawful orders. Black Law Dictionary of 1898.

Nature and Purpose of Proceedings.—The purpose of contempt proceedings is to uphold the power of the court and also to secure to suitors therein the rights by it awarded. In The Matter of Lewis, 202 U. S. 614, 26 S. Ct. 767, 50 L. Ed. 982.

Punishments for contempt of court have two aspects, namely: 1. To vindicate the dignity of the court from disrespect shown to it or its orders. 2. To compel the performance of some order or decree of the court which the will of the power of the party to perform and which he refuses to obey. See In re Chiles, 22 Wall. 157, 22 L. Ed. 819; Besse v. Conkey, Co., 194 U. S. 324, 327, 24 S. Ct. 665, 48 L. Ed. 977.

Nature of Offense.—A contempt proceeding is sui generis. It is criminal in its nature, in that the party is charged with doing something forbidden, and, if found guilty, is punished. Yet it may be resorted to in civil as well as criminal actions, and also independently of any civil or criminal action. In The Matter of Lewis, 202 U. S. 614, 26 S. Ct. 767, 50 L. Ed. 982.

Criminal contempt is the commission of an act tending to interfere with the administration of justice, while civil contempt is the remedy for the enforcement of orders in the equity jurisdiction of the court, and the willful refusal to pay alimony as ordered by the court is civil contempt. Dyer v. Dyer, 213 N. C. 634, 197 S. E. 157.

Facts Must Be Found andFiled.—In contempt proceedings the facts upon which the contempt is based must be found and filed, especially the facts concerning the purpose and object of the contemnor, and the judgment must be founded on those findings. In re Odum, 133 N. C. 250, 252, 45 S. E. 569.

Inherent Powers Incident to Punish for Contempt.—This and the following sections regulating proceedings for contempt confer on the courts all the inherent powers to attach for contempt that were recognized by the common law as essential to the due and orderly exercise of their jurisdiction and functions. State v. Little, 175 N. C. 743, 94 S. E. 680.

The power to punish for contempt is inherent in all courts. Ex parte Terry, 128 U. S. 289, 9 S. Ct. 77, 32 L. Ed. 465.
Must Be in Presence of the Court.—A willful disobedience of the process or order of the superior court must consist of obstruction of a public road is not a contempt committed within the immediate presence or view of the court. In re Parker, 177 N. C. 469, 93 S. E. 342. But see cases cited in this section.

Nature of the Acts Punishable for Contempt.—Acts which are punishable under this section include all cases of disorderly conduct, breaches of the peace, noise and other disturbances of the court proceedings, and any act which may be designed and reasonably calculated to interrupt the proceedings of the court then engaged in the administration of justice and the dispatch of the business of the court.

Protection Extended to Officers of Court, Witnesses, etc.—It is an act of contempt to interfere with the functioning of the business of the court but such an act need not be such as to prevent the witness from testifying. In re Fontaine v. Southern Underwriters, 83 N. C. 133.

Appeal.—Actions of judge in respect to contempts committed in the presence of the court are not appealable except for gross abuse of discretion. See Vaughan v. Vaughan, 213 N. C. 189, 195 S. E. 351.

Fighting in Courthouse Yard.—In State v. Woodfin, 27 N. C. 199, fighting in the yard of the courthouse, before the courthouse door, constituted the basis of the offense of contempt.

III. SUBDIVISION II.

Punishment by Court Making the Reference.—When, in the course of supplementary proceedings before a referee, a contempt is committed by refusing to answer the questions, the court may make the reference for contempt. LaFontaine v. Southern Underwriters, 83 N. C. 133.

IV. SUBDIVISION IV.

Cross References.—As to contempt in failure of personal representative to file account, see § 28-118. As to failure to obey judgment, see § 1-304. As to failure to obey a court order in summary contempt proceedings, see §§ 1-358. As to acts punished as for contempt, see §§ 5-8, 5-9.

Willful and Unlawful Distinguished.—"The word 'willful,' when used in a statute creating an offense, implies the doing of the act purposely and deliberately in violation of law." "The term 'unlawfully' implies that an act is done, or not done as the law allows, or requires; while the term 'willfully' implies that the act is done, or not done as the law directs, and is done with the will, or without the deliberation, of the party doing such act."

Refusal to Deliver Note.—In Thompson v. Onley, 96 N. C. 99, 11 E. S. 623, it was held that a refusal to obey an order requiring the surrender of a note, whether amounting to contempt or not, warranted a commitment as a means of enforcing a compliance.

Discovery of Disrespectful Intent.—The willful disobedience of a restraining order by the party on whom it had been served, and who was aware of its meaning and import, is in itself an act of contempt under this section, from which the party is hence prevented from furnishing the respectful intent. In re Parker, 177 N. C. 463, 99 S. E. 342.

Possibility of Comply with the Order or Process.—Where the necessary process or order is due to circumstances which make it impossible for the contemnor to obey such an order or process, he may not be punished for contempt. Thus, where the clerk issued a process to the witness to produce a certain will which was in the custody of some other clerk, it was held the order to adjudge the respondent guilty of contempt was reversible on appeal. In re Scarborough Will, 139 N. C. 452, 51 S. E. 931.

But where the impossibility of performing the order is due to the arrest for contempt the defendant will not be excused. Shooting Club v. Thomas, 120 N. C. 334, 26 S. E. 1007. The excuse is sufficient where the defendant has been arrested for a violation of a state statute, as for example, 66 N. C. 1; Boyett v. Vaughan, 89 N. C. 27; Smith v. Smith, 92 N. C. 304.

Where the husband, in proceedings against him for contempt for disobeying an order of the superior court for the support of his child, shows by the uncontradicted testimony of himself and witness that he had no property nor income except what he could earn, and that he was unable to obtain employment by the evidence fails to show that the disobedience was willful, and he may not be adjudged in contempt of court. In re Kauffman, 199 N. C. 12, 153 S. E. 601.

Failure to Pay Alimony, etc.—Upon the hearing of an order to show cause why defendant should not be attached for contempt for failure to pay alimony and counsel fees, it was held the prior judgment, defendant pleaded his inability to pay. The court found defendant had earned $140.00 since the original order, and adjudged defendant to be in contempt and the judgment for contempt was not appealed and fails to show the length of time during which defendant earned the sum stated, and fails to find any facts upon the defendant's plea of disavowal, the record and findings do not sufficient to support a conviction of "willful disobedience" of a court order. Berry v. Berry, 215 N. C. 391, 1, S. E. (2d) 871.

The mere fact that defendant, ordered to pay a certain sum monthly to his wife, the necessary subsistence of his wife and child, has a right to move at any time for modification of the order does not support the conclusion that defendant's failure to comply with the order is willful. Smithwick v. Smithwick, 218 N. C. 505, 11 S. E. (2d) 455.

Order Void Ab Initio.—Where an order is void ab initio, one may not be held for contempt for disobeying such order, and the order for commitment and the judgment for contempt was not appealed and fails to show the fact that the disobedience was willful, the order not being one "lawfully issued" as provided by this section. In re Longley 205 N. C. 488, 171 S. E. 788.

Nature of the Acts Issued or Made No House.—The failure to obey the order of the court placing property in possession of a receiver is, under this clause, a direct contempt, even though the contractor acted under an advice of counsel. Such advice is no protection to the intentional violation of the order. Delozier v. Bird, 123 N. C. 689, 694, 31 S. E. 834. In such a case the counsel himself may be subjected to contempt proceedings. (G. This fact, however, does not prevent the imposition of the punishment.) Weston v. Roper Lumber Co., 158 N. C. 270, 73 S. E. 799. See Green v. Griffin, 95 N. C. 50.

Disobeying Order of Clerk. — Where, in supplementary proceedings, the defendant has falsely disobeyed an order of the clerk of the superior court having jurisdiction, in disposing of his property, he is guilty of contempt of court under the provisions of this section. Bank v. Chamberle, 113 N. C. 124 S. E. 274.

Must Be Able to Obev. —The defendant must have been able to obey the order, and in spite of his ability must have disobeyed it. Inability to obey is a good excuse—for example money payment, of money. Kane v. Haywood, 66 N. C. 273; Boyett v. Vaughan, 89 N. C. 27; Smith v. Smith, 92 N. C. 394.

Other Actions Held to Constitute Contempt.—Disobeying an injunction is a sufficient reason to hold a person guilty of contempt.

V. SUBDIVISION V.

Willfully Preventing Receiver from Taking Possession.—A judgment debtor, fixed with knowledge as a party upon whom notice was served, is guilty of contempt in willfully preventing the receiver from taking possession of

§ 5-3. Solicitor or attorney-general to appear for the court.—In all cases where a rule for contempt is issued by any court, referee, or other officer, the solicitor shall appear for the court or other officer issuing the rule, and in case of appeal to the supreme court, the attorney-general shall appear for the court or other officer by whom the rule was issued. (Rev., s. 939; Code, s. 648; 1905, c. 449; C. S. 980.)

§ 5-4. Punishment.—Punishment for contempt for matters set forth in the preceding sections shall be by fine not to exceed two hundred and fifty dollars, or imprisonment not to exceed thirty days, or both, in the discretion of the court. (Rev., s. 940; Code, s. 649; C. S. 981.)

Imprisonment for 60 days and a fine of $2000 were held illegal under this section. In re Patterson, 59 N. C. 407, 6 S. E. 643. See also In re Walker, 82 N. C. 95.

Imprisonment for Debt.—The abolishment of imprisonment for debt does not include commitment under attachments for failure to comply with an order of court. Wood v. Wood, 61 N. C. 538.

Punishment for civil contempt is not limited to thirty days' imprisonment, this section not being applicable to civil contempt, and a petition for release from imprisonment for willful refusal to pay alimony on the ground that the court exceeded its authority in not limiting the imprisonment to thirty days, is properly refused, but defendant need not serve indefinitely and may obtain his discharge upon a proper showing under appropriate proceedings, Dyer v. Dyer, 213 N. C. 634, 197 S. E. 157.

Commitment until Alimony Paid.—A judgment for commitment until alimony is paid held valid. Green v. Green, 130 N. C. 578, 41 S. E. 784.

Imprisonment until the order is complied with is valid. Cromartie v. Commissioners, 85 N. C. 211; Thompson v. Commissioners, 96 N. C. 120; Wood v. Commissioners, 61 N. C. 538; Delozier v. Bird, 123 N. C. 689, 694, 31 S. E. 834.

A fine for contempt goes to the State, being a punishment for a wrong to the State, and should not be directed to be paid to a party to the suit. In re Rhodes, 65 N. C. 518; Morris v. Whitehead, 65 N. C. 637.

Punishment by Working on Road.—A person sentenced to jail as for contempt of court can not be worked on the roads. State v. Moore, 146 N. C. 633, 61 S. E. 463.

Punishment Immaterial.—The punishment in contempt cases, must be immediate, or it would be ineffectual, as it is designed to suppress an outrage, which impedes the business of the court. State v. Young, 98 N. C. 225, 3 S. E. 515.

No Defense to Criminal Prosecution.—The fact that a person has been punished for contempt of court, is no defense to a crime. In re Hayes, 200 N. C. 133, 134, 156 S. E. 791.

§ 5-5. Summary punishment for direct contempt.—Contempt committed in the immediate view and presence of the court may be punished summarily, but the court shall cause the particulars of the offense to be specified on the record, and a copy of the same to be attached to every
§ 5-6. Courts and officers empowered to punish. — Every justice of the peace, referee, commissioner, clerk of the superior court, inferior court, criminal court, or judge of the superior court, or justice of the supreme court, or board of commissioners of each county, or the utilities commission, has power to punish for contempt while sitting for the trial of causes or engaged in official duties. (Rev., s. 942; Code, ss. 651, 652, 1933, c. 134, s. 8; 1941, c. 97; C. S. 983.)

Authority of Mayor to Punish. — The authority given under this section to a justice of the peace to punish for contempt is extended to mayors by sections 160-13, 160-14. State v. Aiken, 113 N. C. 61, 18 S. E. 690; In re Deaton, 105 N. C. 59, 61 S. E. 244.

Referee. — Acts constituting contempt committed before a referee in supplementary proceedings are to be punished by the court making the reference. LaFontaine v. Southern Underwriters, 83 N. C. 52, 61 S. E. 244.

Authority of Commissioner Not Exclusive. — The power of a commissioner, appointed by the court, to commit for contempt while sitting for the trial of causes or engaged in official duties. (Rev., s. 942; Code, ss. 651, 652; C. S. 983.)

Authority of Mayor to Punish. — The authority given under this section to a justice of the peace to punish for contempt is extended to mayors by sections 160-13, 160-14. State v. Aiken, 113 N. C. 61, 18 S. E. 690; In re Deaton, 105 N. C. 59, 61 S. E. 244.

Referee. — Acts constituting contempt committed before a referee in supplementary proceedings are to be punished by the court making the reference. LaFontaine v. Southern Underwriters, 83 N. C. 52, 61 S. E. 244.

Authority of Commissioner Not Exclusive. — The power of a commissioner, appointed by the court, to commit for contempt while sitting for the trial of causes or engaged in official duties. (Rev., s. 942; Code, ss. 651, 652; C. S. 983.)

Every court of record has power to punish as for contempt when the action complained of was such as tended to defeat, impair, impede, or prejudice the rights or remedies of a party to an action then pending in court.

1. Any clerk, sheriff, register, solicitor, attorney, county surveyor, coroner, constable, referee, or any other person in any manner selected or appointed to perform any ministerial or judicial service, for any neglect or violation of duty or any misconduct by which the rights or remedies of any party in a cause or matter pending in such court may be defeated, impaired, delayed, or prejudiced, for disobedience of any lawful order of any court or judge, or any deceit or abuse of any process or order of any such court or judge.

2. Parties to suits, attorneys, and all other persons for the nonpayment of any sum of money ordered by such court, in cases where execution cannot be awarded for the collection of the same.

3. All persons for assuming to be officers, attorneys or counselors of the court, and acting as such without authority, for receiving any property or person which may be in custody of any officer by virtue of any order or process of the court, for unlawfully detaining any witness or party to any suit, while going to, remaining at, or returning from the court where the same may be set for trial, or for the unlawful interference with the proceedings in any action.

4. All persons summoned as witnesses in refusing or neglecting to obey such summons to attend, be sworn, or answer, as such witness.

5. Parties summoned as jurors for impropriety, conversing with parties or others in relation to an action to be tried at such court or receiving communication therefrom.

6. All inferior magistrates, officers and tribunals for disobedience of any lawful order of the court, or for proceeding in any matter or cause contrary to law, after the same shall have been removed from their jurisdiction.

7. All other cases where attachments and proceedings as for contempt have been heretofore adopted and practiced in courts of record in this state to ensure the civil remedies or protect the rights of any party to an action. (Rev., s. 944; Code, ss. 654, 656; C. S. 985.)

Editor's Note. — See 12 N. C. Law Rev., 260, for comment on this and other sections dealing with contempt.

For a discussion of this section and its relation to the preceding sections, see Cromartie v. Commissioners, 87 N. C. 411.

Applicable to Civil Actions. — The provisions of this section, except subsections 4, 5, and 6, apply only to civil actions. In re Deaton, 105 N. C. 59, 64, 11 S. E. 244.

Jury Trial. — Respondents in proceedings as for contempt are not entitled to a jury trial. In re Gorham, 129 N. C. 481, 40 S. E. 311.

Persuading Witness. — Where a defendant in a criminal action tried to persuade the state's witness to leave the state and then try to persuade the state's witness to return to the state to continue in the civil remedy or protect the rights of any party to an action. (Rev., s. 944; Code, ss. 654, 656; C. S. 985.)
Suggesting to Witness Not to Attend.—Suggesting to a material witness not to attend court, etc., with apparent intent to prevent the attendance of the witness, is under this clause an unlawful interference with the process and proceedings of the court. State v. Moore, 146 N. C. 653, 61 S. E. 463.

Juror Improperly Influenced.—Under subdivision 5 a juror may be punished as for contempt for allowing himself to be improperly influenced. In re Gorham, 129 N. C. 141, 17 S. E. 69.

§ 5-9. Trial of proceedings in contempt.—Proceedings as for contempt shall be prosecuted and carried on as provided in provisional remedies. In all proceedings for contempt and in proceedings as for contempt, the judge or other judicial officer who issues the rule or notice to the respondent may make the same returnable before some other judge or judicial officer. When the personal conduct of the judge or other judicial officer or his fitness to hold his judicial position is involved, it is his duty to make the rule or notice returnable before some other judge or officer. Nothing herein contained shall apply to any act or conduct committed in the presence of the court and tending to hinder or delay the due administration of the law, nor to proceedings for the disobedience of a judicial order rendered in any pending action. (Rev., s. 945; Code, s. 655; 1915, c. 4; C. S. 986.)

§ 6-1. Items allowed as costs.—To either party for motion judgment is given there shall be allowed as costs his actual disbursements for fees for the officers, witnesses, and other persons entitled to receive the same. (Rev. s. 1249; Code, s.
528; C. S. 1225.)

Cross Reference.—As to prosecution bonds for fees, see § 1-109 et seq.

Editor's Note.—In general this section states the rule that costs follow the judgment, a rule which is founded on policy and natural justice, designed to prevent the unsuccessful litigant from escaping the consequence ensuing from the unfavorable term—inaction of a suit, and which, to a great extent, acts as deterrent to the prosecution or appeal of promiscuous and frivolous litigation. Criminal actions and civil suits alike are controlled by the principle:
In State v. Horne, 119 N. C. 833, 26 S. E. 36, Clark, J., says:
"There is no exception to the rule prevailing in civil cases that the costs follow the result of the final judgment." The true and only test of liability for costs depends upon the nature of the final judgment, and "There is no exception in State cases to the rule prevailing in civil cases that the costs follow the result of the final judgment." The true and only test of liability for costs is found in the books has the losing party recovered his costs or any part of them.

v. Massie, 167 N. C. 877, 10 S. E. 698.

Partial Recovery.—See § 6-18 and annotations thereto.

Costs of Witnesses.—See sections 6-51 et seq., and the notes thereto.

Dependent upon Statutes.—At common law neither party to a civil action could recover costs. Chadwick v. Life Ins. Co., 158 N. C. 380, 74 S. E. 115; Costin v. Baxter, 29
N. C. 111; State v. Massey, 104 N. C. 877, 10 S. E. 698.

Wills, 177 N. C. 461, 100 S. E. 182. And it has been frequently held that costs are entirely creatures of legislation, without which they do not exist. Clerk's Office v.
Commissioner, 121 N. C. 29, 30, 27 S. E. 1003. See also Lowe
v. Kaneast, 173 U. S. 81, 33 L. Ed. 693.

The whole matter of costs, including the party to or against whom they may be given, the items or sums to be allowed, etc., is always been within the regulation and control of the legislature. See Gulf, etc, R. Co.

Jurisdiction Essential. — Where a court has no jurisdiction of a case, it cannot award costs, or order execution for issue to them. See Mansfield, etc., R. Co. v. Swan, 111 U. S. 379, 4 S. Ct. 516, 28 L. Ed. 823. And where a contract sounding in damages is one at law, and the costs are taxable under this section, are not in the discretion of the court as an equity proceeding controlled by section 6-20. Cotton Mills v. Knitting Co, 104 N. C. 89, 10, 18 S. E. 428.

Where the supreme court allows improvements claimed in partition proceedings, claimant is not to be taxed with the costs of trial in the superior court involving her claim.
Jenkins v. Strickland, 214 N. C. 441, 199 S. E. 612.

Sec.

6-61. On appeal from justice only two witnesses bound over.

6-62. Solicitor to announce discharge of state's witnesses.

6-63. Witnesses not paid without certificate;
Court's discretion.

Art. 9. Criminal Costs before Justices, Mayors, County or Recorders' Courts.

6-64. Liability for criminal costs before justice, mayor, county or recorder's court.

6-65. Imprisonment of defendant for nonpayment of fine and costs.

§ 6-2. Summary judgment for official fees.—If any officer, to whom fees are payable by any person, fails to receive them at the time the service is performed, he may have judgment therefor on motion to the court in which the action is or was pending, upon twenty days' notice to the person to be charged, at any time within one year after the termination of the action in which the same was performed. If the motion for judg-mint must be in behalf of the clerk of the superior court, it shall be made to the judge of the same court in or out of term. (Rev. s. 1250; Code, s.
3760; 1868-9, c. 279, s. 561; C. S. 1226.)

Advance Fees for Docketing Transcript. — This section impliesly authorizes the clerk of the Supreme Court to resume the transcript when the prescribed fee is not paid in advance. Section 128-2 specifically authorizes the refusal. Dunn v. Clerk's Office, 176 N. C. 50, 96 S. E.

When Cause Is Still Pending.—This section is not applicable to the right to docket payments of services rendered in a cause which is still pending in the courts upon exceptions to his report. Farmers Bank v. Merchants &
Farmers Bank, 204 N. C. 378, 168 S. E. 221.

Time of Motion to Re-tax.—This section permits a motion to re-tax costs to be made in favor of any officer within one year after termination of the action. In re Smith, 105 N. C. 167, 10 S. E. 962.

Judgment Becomes a Lien. — A judgment under this section becomes a lien on the lands of the defendants. Shep-

Where, as a condition of a continuance, the plaintiff in an action was required to pay the accrued costs and they were taxed, docketed and paid, and a judgment was subsequently entered in the action directing the repayment of such costs by the defendant, it was held, that such costs became a part of the judgment already ascertained by reference to the docket as for so much money paid by the plaintiff for the defendant's benefit, and hence, the c was no necessity for a re-taxation of the costs. Oven v. Paxton, 122 N. C. 770, 30 S. E. 343.

§ 6-3. Sureties on prosecution bonds liable for costs.—When an action is brought in any court in which security is given for the prosecution thereof, or when any action is brought up to a Court by an appeal or otherwise, in which security for the prosecution of the suit has been given, and judgment is rendered against the plaintiff for the costs of the defendant, the appellate court shall also give judgment against the surety for said costs, and execution may issue jointly to the defendant and his surety. (Rev. s. 1851;
Code, s. 543; R. C. c. 14; W. R. Co. v. Cox,
R. S., c. 31, s. 133; 1891, c. 48; 1911, c. 189, s. 1; C. S. 1227.)

Cross Reference.—As to use of mortgages in lieu of security for costs, see § 199-25. As to appeal bonds, see § 1-297.

Applies to Judgment for Defendant.—The section is so broadly worded as to apply to all causes where the costs are adjudged for the defendant against the plaintiff, and not simply to those where the plaintiff appeals. Kenney v.
Seaboard Air Line Railway Co., 166 N. C. 566, 569, 82 S. E. 849.

Appeals in Supreme Court.—This section cannot be restricted in its application to appeals from the court of a justice of the peace, for the first sentence of the section would not apply to such a court, as no prosecution bond for costs is given in such a court, or in the Supreme Court if an action is brought here against the state, or perhaps in some other cases not cognizable by a justice of the peace. Kenney v. Seaboard Air Line Railway Co., 166 N. C. 566, 571, 82 S. E. 849.

The words of this section "security for the prosecution of action," undeniably mean the prosecution bond, and, under the order allowing the motion to re-tax, Smith v. Arthur etc., Co., 116 N. C. 872, 874, 21 S. E. 696.

Increasing Penalty of Bond.—Where the defendant has been successful on his appeal to the Supreme Court, and his judgment for costs against the sureties on the prosecution bond of the plaintiff results in making insecure the costs in the superior court, the remedy is by application to increase the penalty of the bond. Kenney v. Seaboard Air Line Railway Co., 166 N. C. 566, 571, 82 S. E. 849.

Partial New Trial.—This section does not apply where the defendant does not gain an entire reversal in the Supreme Court; where a partial new trial only is awarded the costs are in the discretion of the Supreme Court as provided in section 6-33. Sheehy v. Casualty Company, 142 N. C. 376, 55 S. E. 296.

Application.—Where an action is brought to recover fees of an officer, and in the same action judgment is asked against the sureties on a bond given in a quo warranto proceeding, the superior court has jurisdiction and judgment may be rendered against the sureties. McCali v. Zane, 106 N. C. 902, 60 S. E. 903.

Appeal.—Though a surety on a prosecution bond is not a party to the action, yet, when he is made a party to a proceeding to tax the costs in a case, he may appeal from the order allowing the motion to re-tax. Smith v. Arthur etc., Co., 116 N. C. 872, 874, 21 S. E. 696.

§ 6-4. Execution for unpaid fees; itemized bill of costs to be annexed. — The clerks of the supreme, superior and criminal courts, where suits are determined and the fees are not paid by the party from whom they are due, shall be authorized to instruct the sheriff of any county in the state, who shall levy them as in other cases; and to the said execution shall be annexed a bill of costs, written in words so as plainly to show each item of costs and on what account it is taxed; and all executions for costs, issuing without such a bill annexed, shall be deemed irregular, and may be set aside as to the costs, at the return term, at the instance of him against whom it is issued. (Rev., s. 1253; Code, s. 3702; R. C., c. 102, s. 24; C. S. 1228.)

Every execution presupposes a judgment of some sort, and the right given by this section to issue the one implies the existence of the other. Sheppard v. Bland, 87 N. C. 163, 107.

§ 6-5. Jurors' tax fees.—On every indictment or criminal proceeding, tried or otherwise disposed of in the superior or criminal courts, the party convicted, or adjudged to pay the costs, shall pay a tax of four dollars. In every civil action in any court of record the party adjudged to pay the costs shall pay a tax of five dollars; but this tax shall not be charged unless a jury shall be sworn. Such fees shall be charged to the clerk in the bill of costs, and collected by the sheriff, and by him paid into the county treasury. And the fund thus raised in any county shall be set apart for the payment of the jurors attending the courts thereof. (Rev., s. 1253; Code, s. 732; R. C., c. 28; 1830, c. 1; 1879, c. 325; 1881, c. 249; 1905, c. 348; 1909, c. 1; 1919, c. 319; C. S. 1229.)

Cross References.—Cross references to fees of jurors, see § 9-5. As to unclaimed fees of jurors, see § 2-50.

Not a "Tax" within Meaning of Constitution.—The tax prescribed by Rev. Code, ch. 28, sec. 4, (similar to this Act of 1858-59) was not a tax within the meaning of the Revenue Act of 1838-59, which repealed all taxes not therein imposed; nor was it a tax within the meaning of the Constitution, Art. V, sec. 3, which requires taxes to be equal and uniform. Such a tax was not in violation of the Constitution, Art. I, sec. 35. State v. Nutt, 79 N. C. 263.

Failure to List Taxes.—The plea of guilty to an indictment for failure to list taxes as required by the Revenue Act of 1862 is not a violation of the constitution and meaning of this section requiring in criminal cases a tax of $4 against the "party convicted or adjudged to pay the cost," and applies whether the jury has been impaneled or not; and the tax of $5 in the civil actions should be imposed as a part of the costs, when the jury has been impaneled. This but evidences the legislative intent to draw this distinction between criminal and civil actions, the reason therefor, though apparent, is immaterial in construing the meaning of the statute. State v. Smith, 184 N. C. 728, 114 S. E. 625.

§ 6-6. In criminal cases, not demandable in advance.—In all cases of criminal complaints before justices of the supreme court, judges of the superior court, and other magistrates having jurisdiction of such complaints, the officers entitled by law to receive fees for issuing or executing process are not entitled to demand them in advance. Such officers shall indorse the amounts of their respective fees on every process issued or executed by them, and return the same to the court to which it is returnable. (Rev., s. 1354; Code, s. 1173; 1868-9, c. 176, subch. 3, s. 40; C. S. 1236.)

Cross Reference.—As to costs payable in advance in civil actions, see § 2-29.

§ 6-7. Clerk to state in detail in entry of judgment. — The clerk shall insert in the entry of judgment the allowances for costs allowed by law, and the necessary disbursements, including the fees of officers and witnesses, and the reasonable compensation of referees and commissioners in taking depositions. The disbursements shall be stated in detail. When it is necessary to adjust costs in any interlocutory proceedings, or in any special proceedings, the same shall be adjusted by the clerk of the court to which the proceedings were returned, except in those matters in which the allowance is required to be made by the judge. (Rev., s. 1255; Code, s. 532; C. S. 1231.)

In General.—In Young v. Connelly, 112 N. C. 646, 650, 17 S. E. 404, the court in deciding the action states the following: "So it seems in this view of the testimony that it was the duty of the clerk to have filled the blanks and docketed the judgment. The referee's fee was a part of those costs. It was necessary for the clerk to tax the costs and insert the amount in the entry of judgment in addition to the sum adjudged by his honor."

§ 6-8. Clerk to itemize bills of criminal costs; approval of solicitor.—It is the duty of the clerks of the several courts of record, at each term of the court, to make up an itemized statement of the bill of costs in every criminal action tried or otherwise disposed of at said term, which shall be signed by the clerk and approved by the solicitor. (Rev., s. 1256; Code, s. 733; 1873-4, c. 116; 1879, c. 264; C. S. 1232.)

trials before justices of the peace any party, plaintiff or defendant, may demand of the justice trials before justices of the peace any party, plaintiff or defendant, may demand of the justice before whom the trial is held an itemized statement of the costs of the action. Up-on such demand it shall be the duty of the justice to furnish the statement demanded. No person shall be compelled to pay any cost in any trial before a justice of the peace until an itemized statement of the costs has been made out and given to the party charged. It shall be the duty of the justice to insert in the entry of the judgment in every criminal action tried or otherwise disposed of by him a detailed statement of the different items of cost, and to whom due. (Rev., ss. 1257, 2789; Code, s. 734; 1887, c. 297; C. S. 1233.)

Cross Reference.—As to fees and costs in appeal from justices of the peace, see § 7-381.

§ 6-10. Justice of the peace refusing to furnish bill of costs.—If any justice of the peace before whom any trial is held shall refuse to furnish an itemized bill of costs, when demanded by the plaintiff or defendant, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be punished at the discretion of the court. (Rev., s. 3588; Code, s. 734; 1887, c. 297; C. S. 1234.)

§ 6-11. Bills of costs open to the public.—Every bill of costs shall at all times be open to the inspection of any person interested therein. (Rev., s. 1258; Code, s. 735; 1887-4, c. 116; C. S. 1235.)

§ 6-12. Clerks to tax solicitors fees; paid to school fund.—The clerks of the superior courts of the several counties of the state shall, in computing bills of costs in criminal cases, tax against the party convicted the solicitors fees hereinafter set forth. The solicitors fees shall be collected by the clerks and paid into the school funds of the respective counties: Provided, that no such fees which are now required by law to be paid by the county shall be taxed in the bills of costs, nor shall any such fees be taxed in said bills of costs in cases where the defendants are assigned to work on the public roads of the state, or on any county properties. The solicitors fees are as follows:

(a) For every conviction under an indictment charging a capital crime, whether by plea or verdict, forty dollars.

(b) For perjury, forgery, passing or attempting to pass or sell any forged or counterfeited paper, or evidence of debt; maliciously injuring or attempting to injure any railroad or railroad car, or any person traveling on such railroad car; stealing or obliterating records; maliciously burning or attempting to burn houses or bridges; seduction; slander of an innocent woman, and embezzlement; breaking into houses otherwise than burglariously; assault with intent to commit rape; larcenies from the person; false pretense, and secret assault; in each of the above cases, twenty dollars.

(c) For larceny, receiving stolen goods, frauds, mains, deceits, escapes, and other felonies, fifteen dollars.

(d) For disturbing religious and other public meetings; for all violations of the prohibition law as to intoxicating liquors and narcotics; for fornication and adultery and resisting an officer, twelve dollars.

(e) For all other offenses, eight dollars.

No larger fee than ten dollars shall be taxed for the solicitor in an indictment against the justices of the peace of any county, as justices, when there are more than three justices who are found guilty. The solicitors of the several judicial districts and criminal courts shall prosecute all penalties and forfeited recognizances entered in their courts respectively, and a sum to be fixed by the court, not to exceed ten per centum of the amount collected upon such penalty or forfeited recognizance, shall be taxed in such prosecutions.

For the better performance of the solicitors duties for the appointment of a receiver of an estate of a minor, there shall be taxed a sum to be fixed by the judge, not to exceed ten dollars; for passing on the returns of the receiver in such cases, where the estate of the infant does not exceed five hundred dollars, a sum not to exceed five dollars, and where the estate exceeds five hundred dollars, a sum to be fixed by the judge, not to exceed ten dollars; and in each case such sums taxed shall be paid out of the fund. (Rev., s. 2768; Code, s. 3737; 1873-4, c. 170; 1885, c. 130; 1895, c. 14; 1901, c. 4, s. 5; 1915, c. 86; Ex. Sess. 1920, c. 97; Ex. Sess. 1921, c. 75; 1923, c. 157, s. 3; C. S. 1235(a), 3891.)

Cross References.—As to salary of solicitors in lieu of fees, see §§ 7-44, 7-45. As to solicitors fees where the bill of indictment contains more than one count, see § 15-152.

Art. 2. When State Liable for Costs.

§ 6-13. Civil actions by the state; joinder of private party.—In all civil actions prosecuted in the name of the state, by an officer duly authorized for that purpose, the state shall be liable for costs in the same cases and to the same extent as private parties. If a private person be joined with the state as plaintiff, he shall be liable in the first instance for the defendant's costs, which shall not be recovered of the state till after execution is issued therefor against such private party and returned unsatisfied. (Rev., s. 1259; Code, s. 536; C. S. 1236.)

Constitutionality.—In Blount v. Simmons, 119 N. C. 50, 25 S. E. 789, it is said: "We find nothing in the Constitution depriving the Legislature of power to enact, Code, secs. 5, 56, (the direction) and we do not think it would impair the sovereign character of the state to meet its just liabilities, whether in the form of costs or otherwise." Dependent upon statute. — At common law, the king neither paid nor received costs, as the former was his prerogative and the latter was beneath his dignity, and the general statutes giving costs did not include the sovereign. The same principle has been applied in this country and in this state, so that the state is only liable in the event of express statutory provisions, which are now quite general in the different states. Blount v. Simmons, 120 N. C. 19, 40, 26 S. E. 649.

Judgment against State. — Upon the failure of the litigation, the state is, under this section, liable for the costs of an action authorized by act of the General Assembly and prosecuted by the state in its own name by the solicitor who may berendered in such action against the state for such costs. Blount v. Simmons, 119 N. C. 50, 25 S. E. 789.

States Recover Costs.—In an action in the United States Supreme Court between states, the successful state may ask for costs or not as it sees fit. Missouri v. Illinois, 202 U. S. 596, 26 S. Ct. 713, 50 L. Ed. 1660.

Application to Legislature for Payment.—In an article, entitled Jurisdiction of The North Carolina Supreme Court, 5 N. C. Law Rev. 1, 9, the following appears: "Costs of action as a claim. While the State may be sued only in the Supreme Court, it may sue in any court having jurisdiction over the cause of action, and the cost of such litigation may be taxed against the state as in case of private litigants. Such costs, however, do not constitute a claim against the State as contemplated in the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court, but are only incident to the right to sue. The court in which the action is brought adjudicates the costs, and the parties interested should apply to the Legis-
I. In General.

II. Actions for Recovery of Real Property, etc.

III. Recovery of Personalty.

IV. When Justice Has No Jurisdiction.

V. No More Recovery of Costs than Damages.

1. In an action for the recovery of real property, or when a claim of title to real property arises on the pleadings, or is certified by the court to have come in question at the trial.

2. In an action to recover the possession of personal property.

3. In actions of which a court of justice of the peace has no jurisdiction, unless otherwise provided by law.

4. In an action for assault, battery, false imprisonment, libel, slander, malicious prosecution, criminal conversation or seduction, if the plaintiff recovers less than fifty dollars damages, he shall recover no more costs than damages.

5. When several actions are brought on one bond, recognizance, promissory note, bill of exchange, or instrument in writing, or in any other case, for the same cause of action against several parties who might have been joined as defendants in the same action, no costs other than disbursements shall be allowed to the plaintiff in more than one of such actions, which shall be at his election, provided the party or parties proceeded against in such other action or actions were within the state and not secreted at the commencement of the previous action or actions.

(R. v. Boyd, 104 N. C. 422, 10 S. E. 490; Yates v. Yates, 170 N. C. 531, 87 S. E. 317. All these sections are, however, subject to the exception as to when costs are allowed against the plaintiff by reason of the fact that he virtually disclaimed any right or title. Patterson v. Ramsey, 136 N. C. 561, 564, 48 S. E. 811.)

Where the action is pursued by any of the officers of the state, or the auditor, who shall thereupon issue a warrant for the amount thereof as taxed. (Rev., s. 1260; code, s. 3373; 1874-5, c. 154; C. S. 1237.)

Where the proceedings for disbarment of an attorney have not been sustained the costs are taxable against the State under the provisions of this section, and an order erroneously taxing them against the county in which the matter was tried will be vacated. Committee on Grievances of Bar Assn. v. Strickland, 201 N. C. 619, 161 S. E. 75.

§ 6-12. Costs of state on appeals to federal courts. —In all cases, whether civil or criminal, to which the State of North Carolina is a party, and the state is adjudged to have come in question at the trial, for the same cause of action against several persons, no costs other than disbursements shall be allowed to the plaintiff in favor of the plaintiff in case of only partial recovery. The language of the statute as to them is comprehensive and without exceptive provision. In Wooten v. Wooten, 76 N. C. 150, it was held that no part of the costs in such actions can be taxed against the party recovering.

In order to determine who should bear such costs, the general result must be considered and inquiry made as to who has, in the view of the law, succeeded in the action. Patterson v. Ramsey, 136 N. C. 561, 564, 48 S. E. 811.

Partial Recovery. —There is no provision that limits the allowance of costs in favor of the plaintiff in case of only partial recovery. The language of the statute as to them is comprehensive and without exceptive provision. In Wooten v. Wooten, 76 N. C. 150, it was held that no part of the costs in such actions can be taxed against the party recovering.

§ 6-16. Costs of state in certain bribery prosecutions to be a charge against state. —The expenses incurred by any county in investigating and prosecuting any charge of bribery or attempt to bribe any state officer or member of the general assembly within said county, and of receiving bribes by any state officer or member of the general assembly in said county, shall be a charge against the state, and the properly attested claim of the county commissioners shall be paid by the treasurer of the state. (Rev., s. 1261; code, s. 557; C. S. 1238.)

§ 6-17. Costs of state on appeals to federal courts. —In all cases, whether civil or criminal, to which the State of North Carolina is a party, and from which are carried from the courts of this state, or the United States, and the state is adjudged to have come in question at the trial, for the same cause of action against several persons, no costs other than disbursements shall be allowed to the plaintiff in favor of the plaintiff in case of only partial recovery. The language of the statute as to them is comprehensive and without exceptive provision. In Wooten v. Wooten, 76 N. C. 150, it was held that no part of the costs in such actions can be taxed against the party recovering.

Where the action is pursued by any of the officers of the state, or the auditor, who shall thereupon issue a warrant for the amount thereof as taxed. (Rev., s. 1260; code, s. 3373; 1874-5, c. 154; C. S. 1237.)
II. ACTIONS FOR RECOVERY OF REAL PROPERTY, ETC.

Common Law Rule.—This subdivision of the section in they shows that the plaintiff, who has made or caused to be made the improvements, may recover costs as of course, upon recovery, in an action involving title to real estate. And $6-21, providing apportionment of costs in a special proceeding for the division or sale of realty or personalty are related sections, pertaining to the recovery, which is set out under the preceding analysis line. It is held that where the plaintiff is adjudged entitled to one tract or is one of several tracts for which the action is brought, then the plaintiff to recover costs, although he has allowed the plaintiff to recover against the defendant. See also Staley v. Staley, 174 N. C. 640, 94 S. E. 497.

Where the plaintiff has been required to introduce evidence of his title to the whole of the locus in quo, and then the defendant consents that the court charge the jury to the remaining land, the costs of the action are properly awarded against the defendant. See also Staley v. Staley, 174 N. C. 264, 93 S. E. 491. In an action of trespass to real property, where the plaintiff's title and the defendant's title are distinct, and the plaintiff establishes title to the defendant's property, he is entitled to recover costs. Phillips v. Little, 147 N. C. 282, 28 S. E. 812. This is not the case where some of the defendant's recovery is general, in which case, of course, they recover costs. Phillips v. Little, 147 N. C. 282, 28 S. E. 812.

Persons Severally Sued.—In the case of several persons, severally bound, and severally sued, until one has actually made satisfaction and one concedes, costs may be allowed in all suits, only one satisfaction can be recovered. See Larin v. Morris, 2 Dall. 115, 1 L. Ed. 312.

Boundary Dispute.—Where, in an action in ejectment and for damages for wrongs done by defendant, defendant files answer denying plaintiffs' title to the land in dispute, and verdict is rendered in favor of plaintiffs, costs are recoverable. In an action in the defendant upon a prior legal title, and costs are recoverable. In an action in ejectment, where the defendant's title, disputed by the plaintiff, is good in law, the issue as to the plaintiff's title will arise, and the findings of the defendant's title, disputed by the plaintiff, is good and that the defendant has sustained greater damages than his adversary, upon both necessarily, perhaps on either, will entitle the defendant to costs. Moore v. Angel, 116 N. C. 843, 846, 21 S. E. 699.

Liability of Intervener.—Where the defendant intervenes in an action to recover real property and files a joint answer with his co-defendant, and makes a joint defense, the defendant is not bound by the adverse findings of the section. Having joined in the controversy, and made common cause in the defense, interveners must abide the result. Spruill v. Arrington, 195 N. C. 190, in E. 445. Where a party is entitled to a verdict in his favor upon an issue of fraud, the question of taxing the costs does not depend upon the finding of the jury in the plaintiff's favor upon determinative issues, but in the defendant's favor upon issues which are not determinative. See also Willis v. Coleburn, 116 N. C. 670, 80 S. E. 596.

Bill of Interpleader.—The U. S. Supreme Court in Spring v. South Carolina Ins. Co., 8 Wheat. 268, 5 L. Ed. 614, held that a bill of interpleader, the plaintiffs are, in general, entitled to their costs out of the fund.

III. RECOVERY OF PERSONALTY.

Partial Recovery.—There is no exception to the partial recovery rule (see ante, this note, I. "In General") when the action is for the recovery of personalty, and when the plaintiff establishes title to property which has already been adjudged to be the property of the plaintiff. If some exception is made, that as a matter of law, the plaintiff establishes title to property, and must be construed in part materia. Bailey v. Hayman, 222 N. C. 58, 22 S. E. (2d) 6.

Partial Recovery.—Applying the general rule as to partial recovery, which is that the plaintiff is entitled to costs as of course, upon recovery, in an action involving title to real estate, and $6-21, providing apportionment of costs in a special proceeding for the division or sale of realty or personalty are related sections, pertaining to the recovery, which is set out under the preceding analysis line. It is held that where the plaintiff is adjudged entitled to a part of the land sued for, whether such land is a portion of one tract or is one of several tracts for which the action is brought, then the plaintiff to recover costs, although he has allowed the plaintiff to recover against the defendant. See also Staley v. Staley, 174 N. C. 640, 94 S. E. 497.

Where the plaintiff has been required to introduce evidence of his title to the whole of the locus in quo, and then the defendant consents that the court charge the jury to the remaining land, the costs of the action are properly awarded against the defendant. See also Staley v. Staley, 174 N. C. 264, 93 S. E. 491. In an action of trespass to real property, where the plaintiff's title and the defendant's title are distinct, and the plaintiff establishes title to the defendant's property, he is entitled to recover costs. Phillips v. Little, 147 N. C. 282, 28 S. E. 812. This is not the case where some of the defendant's recovery is general, in which case, of course, they recover costs. Phillips v. Little, 147 N. C. 282, 28 S. E. 812.

As an example of the application of this rule to claims for personal property, it has been held that the plaintiff on being adjudged entitled to only a portion of a crop in a suit for claim and delivery was entitled to costs. Field v. Wheeler, 120 N. C. 264, 26 S. E. 812. This rule is forcibly illustrated by the case of Moore v. Angel, 116 N. C. 843, 21 S. E. 699, where, in an action in ejectment and for damages on his counterclaim than was allowed the plaintiff, in order to escape the payment of costs. Swain v. Clemons, 175 N. C. 240, 95 S. E. 491.

This section the plaintiff in an action to recover both real and personal property is entitled to recover costs, although he has allowed the plaintiff to recover against the defendant. See also Staley v. Staley, 174 N. C. 640, 94 S. E. 497.

Persons Severally Sued.—In the case of several persons, severally bound, and severally sued, until one has actually made satisfaction and one concedes, costs may be allowed in all suits, only one satisfaction can be recovered. See Larin v. Morris, 2 Dall. 115, 1 L. Ed. 312.

Partial Recovery.—Under this section the plaintiff in an action to recover both real and personal property is entitled to recover costs, although he has allowed the plaintiff to recover against the defendant. See also Staley v. Staley, 174 N. C. 640, 94 S. E. 497.

Equitable Defense.—One who successfully maintains an equitable defense against the recovery of land on the bare trust for him, and judgment is rendered that the defendant's title, disputed by the plaintiff, is good in law, the issue as to the plaintiff's title will arise, and the findings of the defendant's title, disputed by the plaintiff, is good and that the defendant has sustained greater damages than his adversary, upon both necessarily, perhaps on either, will entitle the defendant to costs. Moore v. Angel, 116 N. C. 843, 846, 21 S. E. 699.

Liability of Intervener.—Where the defendant intervenes in an action to recover real property and files a joint answer with his co-defendant, and makes a joint defense, the defendant is not bound by the adverse findings of the section. Having joined in the controversy, and made common cause in the defense, interveners must abide the result. Spruill v. Arrington, 195 N. C. 190, in E. 445. Where a party is entitled to a verdict in his favor upon an issue of fraud, the question of taxing the costs does not depend upon the finding of the jury in the plaintiff's favor upon determinative issues, but in the defendant's favor upon issues which are not determinative. See also Willis v. Coleburn, 116 N. C. 670, 80 S. E. 596.

Bill of Interpleader.—The U. S. Supreme Court in Spring v. South Carolina Ins. Co., 8 Wheat. 268, 5 L. Ed. 614, held that a bill of interpleader, the plaintiffs are, in general, entitled to their costs out of the fund.

IV. WHEN JUSTICE HAS NO JURISDICTION.

Construed with Sections 6-19 and 6-20.—The meaning of this subdivision of the section when considered in connection with section 6-20, is not clear, nor has it ever been fully and satisfactorily interpreted. The discretion of the court it has been held to be the correct construction of these sections that, in actions which under the old system were peculiarly cognizable in courts of equity and unless coming in the class of actions specified in sections 6-18 and 6-19, in which the plaintiff and defendant who succeed in the controversies were to recover costs as of course, that the costs could not be allowed the defendant, and the discretion of the court under provisions of section 6-20.

Application.—A justice has no cognizance of an action brought for the purpose of subjecting land to the payment of money, for damages, and the substantial object was to litigate the right of the parties as to the taking of the land, and the costs are recoverable. In an action of claim and delivery, judgment in an action of claim and delivery, the justice has no cognizance of the suit, and carries all costs under this section. Rawlings v. Neal, 126 N. C. 271, 35 S. E. 597.

Right to Possession Determined.—Where the controversy is made to depend upon the right of the mechanic to repossess an automobile that he has repaired, in order that he may enforce his lien thereon, and the jury has found in the plaintiff's favor upon determinative issues, but in the defendant's favor upon issues which are not determinative, the justice has no cognizance of the suit, and the costs are recoverable. Maxton Auto Co. v. Rudd, 176 N. C. 497, 97 S. E. 477.

V. NO MORE RECOVERY OF COSTS THAN DAMAGES.

In a civil action, if the provocation is great, the jury will usually seek to return costs less than a full amount. If the amount is less than fifty dollars the plaintiff, under the power vested in the court for the purposes of this section, may recover from the defendant, if the court is satisfied that there is an issue of slander, that the damages are more than fifty dollars, and that the defendant is liable for the costs. Van Dyke v. Ins. Co., 174 N. C. 78, 93 S. E. 444.

188 N. C. 551, 125 S. E. 178. And again when one dollar damages were sustained by the erection of a mill. See Bridgers v. Purcell, 23 N. C. 232. The former rule as to slander is stated in Coates v. Stephenson, 52 N. C. 12, where it is held that, as a breach of a covenant, costs under section 78, could not be taxed against the defendant.

For a case where an instructed verdict for one penny damages and one penny costs, under this section, was held erroneous because actual and not nominal damage was shown, see Osborn v. Leach, 135 N. C. 628, 47 S. E. 811.

Applied, as to action of slander, in Wooten v. Montgomery, 205 N. C. 295, 142 S. E. 772.

§ 6-19. When costs allowed as of course to defendant—Costs shall be allowed as of course to the defendant in actions mentioned in the preceding section, unless the plaintiff be entitled to costs therein, in all actions where there are several defendants not united in interest, and making separate defenses by separate answers, and the plaintiff fails to recover judgment against all, the court may award costs to such of the defendants as have judgment in their favor or any of them. (Rev., s. 1266; Code, ss. 526, 527; C. C. P., s. 277; C. S. 1242.)

Editor's Note.—As this section provides that costs shall be allowed to the defendant in the actions mentioned in the preceding section, unless the plaintiff is entitled to recover, the cases construing the constructions of the preceding section determining when the plaintiff is entitled to recover, are necessarily constructions of this section. Reference should be made to said cases in the present section.

Applications.—Where the plaintiff fails in an action upon a covenant, the defendant recovers costs under this section, Britton v. Ruffin, 123 N. C. 67, 71, 31 S. E. 271.

Costs were properly awarded to the grantees in a deed in an unsuccessful action to set aside such deed, Brisco & Co v. Norris, 112 N. C. 671, 16 S. E. 850. Cited in Gold v. Kiker, 218 N. C. 204, 10 S. E. (2d) 659.

§ 6-20. Costs allowed or not, in discretion of court.—In other actions, costs may be allowed or not, in the discretion of the court, unless otherwise provided by law. (Rev., s. 1267; Code, s. 527; C. S. 1243.)

Editor's Note.—This section as it appeared in the Code of 1913 contained a substantial repetition of the provision now appearing in section 6-23 (c. c., as to costs on appeal). The cases pertaining to this subject will be found in the notes to section 6-23.

The purpose of this provision is to give the court authority to allow costs, as the justice of the case may require. Gulley v. Macy, 89 N. C. 343; Parton v. Boyd, 104 N. C. 422, 423, 10 S. E. 490.

In an action of an equitable nature the costs are in the discretion of the court. Yates v. Yates, 170 N. C. 533, 87 S. E. 317.

Exercise of Discretion Presumed.—Nothing to the contrary appearing, it will be taken that the court gave judgment in the exercise of its discretion as provided in this section. Gulley v. Macy, 89 N. C. 343; Wooten v. Walters, 110 N. C. 739, 740, 81 S. E. 714, 715.

Discretion Not Reviewable.—The provisions of this section the taxing of the costs is placed in the discretion of the trial judge, which discretion is not reviewable. Klutts v. Allison, 214 N. C. 379, 384, 199 S. E. 395.

Conveyances of Real Estate.—When the conveyance was a bad conveyance in the subject of costs, Little v. Lockman, 50 N. C. 433, 434, and the allowance rested with the court. Hooper v. Davis, 166 N. C. 236, 81 S. E. 1063; Worthy v. Brower, 93 N. C. 492. And even since the abolition of the courts of equity in this State, it is held that where the case partakes of an equitable nature, the question of costs is in the court's discretion. For example in Hare v. Hare, 183 N. C. 419, 111 S. E. 630.

When the court is not called upon to tax costs, as in an execution, neither party was permitted to recover costs from the other, the question was of an equitable nature, and the taxing of costs was, under this section, in the sound discretion of the court. But a consolidated action, tried before the referee, in which judgments are rendered, is not an equitable proceeding, in which costs may be allowed or not, in the discretion of the court under this section. Highland Cotton Mills v. Ragan Knitting Co., 194 N. C. 80, 90, 138 S. E. 428.

Qualified by Section 28-115.—This provision is subject to the qualification provided in section 28-115, relative to costs against a representative. Whitaker v. Whitaker, 138 N. C. 205, 50 S. E. 610.

Application—Creditor's Bill.—It is within the discretion of the court to tax the costs accruing upon either of the parties litigant, in an action in the nature of a creditor's bill, brought by material men, claiming under the statutory lien, the unpaid balance due by the owner of a dwelling, etc., to its contractor for its erection; and the action of the judge in taxing the trust funds in the owner's hands with the cost is commended in this suit. Bond v. Pickett Cotton Mills, 166 N. C. 20, 81 S. E. 936.

Specific Performance.—Where the purpose of an action was simply to compel the specific performance of an executory contract, and to adjust certain rights involved in an account of moneys collected and certain indebtedness incident to that contract, it was clearly within this section. Parton v. Boyd, 104 N. C. 422, 423, 10 S. E. 490.

Same—Setting Aside Proceedings of Probate Court.—Where the action is to set aside certain proceedings in the probate court, the court is vested with discretion in the matter of allowing costs, under this section: each party is ordered to pay his own and each to pay one-half of the allowance to the referee. Gulley v. Macy, 89 N. C. 343.

§ 6-21. Costs allowed either party or apportioned in discretion of court.—Costs in the following matters shall be taxed against either party, or apportioned among the parties, in the discretion of the court:

1. Application for year's support, for widow or children.
2. Caveats to wills.
3. Habeas corpus; and the court shall direct what officer shall tax the costs thereof.
4. In actions for divorce or alimony; and the court may both before and after judgment make such order respecting the payment of such costs as may be incurred by the wife, either by the husband or by her from her separate estate, as may be just.
5. Application for the establishment, alteration or discontinuance of a public road, cartway or ferry. The board of county commissioners may order the costs incurred before them paid in their discretion.
6. The compensation of referees and commissioners to take depositions.
7. All costs and expenses incurred in special proceedings for the division or sale of either real estate or personal property under the chapter entitled Partition.
8. In all proceedings under the chapter entitled Drainage, except as therein otherwise provided.
9. In proceedings for reallocation of homestead for increase in value, as provided in the chapter, Civil Procedure.

The word "costs" as the same appears and is used in this section shall be construed to include reasonable attorneys' fees in such amounts as the court shall in its discretion determine and allow. (Rev., s. 1265; Code, s. 1266; Code, s. 277; Rev.; s. 1266; Code, s. 277; C. S. 1266.)

Local Modification.—Nash: 1939, c. 46; 1941, c. 18.

Editor's Note.—The 1937 amendment added the paragraph at the end of this section and provided that it should not apply to pending causes.

For article generally on the subject of the effect of the amendment and the history of attorneys' fees as costs in this State, see 15 N. C. L. Rev. 333.

Caveats to Wills.—It is within the discretionary power of a court, under this section, before which an issue of deviseavit vel non is tried, to direct the payment of the costs out of the estate. Mayo v. Jones, 78 N. C. 468. See in re
§ 6-23. Defendant unreasonably defending after notice of no personal claim to pay costs.—In case of a defendant, against whom no personal claim is made, the plaintiff may deliver to such defendant, for the purpose of obtaining such sum as he may recover from him, a statement of the nature of the claim and the amount standing against him, and such defendant shall either pay the same to the plaintiff or tend to sue as a pauper to recover the same, and in such proceedings the plaintiff shall recover costs, except in case of recovery in forma pauperis; and no officer shall require of him any fee, and he shall be entitled to recover costs of his witnesses.

§ 6-24. Suits in forma pauperis; no costs unless recovery.—When any person sues as a pauper, no officer shall require of him any fee, and he shall recover no costs, except in case of recovery by him. (Rev., s. 1276; Code, s. 212; 1895, c. 149; 1868-89, c. 46, s. 3; C. S. 1894.)

Cross Reference.—As to when suits in forma pauperis may be permitted, see § 1-101.

Leave to Sue.—The leave to sue as a pauper does not extend in civil actions beyond the trial in the Superior Court. (Rev., s. 2436; Code, s. 243; 1879-80, c. 243.)

Costs of Witnesses.—One suing in forma pauperis is not entitled to recover costs of his witnesses. (Rev., s. 2436; Code, s. 243; 1879-80, c. 243.)

The Act of 1868-69, ch. 54, s. 3, amending the section, ameliorates the rigors of the pre-existing law in regard to witnesses, who are not compelled to attend for more than an hour, and braces the costs of witnesses. Compensation to witnesses is part of the cost of an action, as much so as any other statutory charges in and about the same. Hall v. Younts, 121 N. C. 316; Bailey v. Surles, 86 N. C. 90; Draper v. Buxton, 90 N. C. 127, 10 S. E. 1054.

Cross Reference.—As to when suits in forma pauperis may be permitted, see § 1-101.

§ 6-26. Party seeking recovery on usurious contracts; no costs.—No costs shall be recovered by any party, whether plaintiff or defendant, who may endeavor to recover upon any usurious contract. (Rev., s. 1271; 1895, c. 69; C. S. 1894.)

Cross Reference.—As to usury generally, see §§ 24-1, 24-2.
§ 6-26. Costs in special proceedings.—The costs in special proceedings shall be as allowed in civil actions, unless otherwise specially provided. (Rev., s. 1272; Code, s. 541; C. S. 1249.)

Cross Reference.—As to special proceedings generally, see § 1-393 et seq.

§ 6-27. Fees and disbursements in supplemental proceedings.—The court or judge may allow to a party to the action or not, witnesses' fees and disbursements. (Rev., s. 1273; Code, s. 499; C. C. P., s. 273; C. S. 1250.)

Cross Reference.—As to examination of parties and witnesses in proceedings supplemental to execution, see § 1-356.

§ 6-28. Costs of laying off homestead and exemption.—The costs and expenses of appraising and laying off the homestead or personal property exemptions, when the same is made under execution, shall be charged and included in the officer's bill of fees upon such execution or other final process; and when made upon the petition of the owner, they shall be paid by such owner, and the latter costs shall be a lien on said homestead. (Rev., s. 1274; Code, s. 510; C. S. 1251.)

Cross Reference.—As to appraisal and laying off of homestead and personal property exemptions, see §§ 1-372, 1-378. As to costs in reallotment of homestead for increase in value, see § 6-21, subsec. 9.

Payment of Fees as Condition.—Where the judgment debtor claims his personal property from execution, the sheriff is justified in refusing to proceed further till such exemptions are properly set apart, and the payment of his fees for the purpose by the plaintiff in the action, except when the suit is brought in forma pauperis. Whitmore-Ligon Co. v. Hyatt, 175 N. C. 117, 95 S. E. 38.

§ 6-29. Costs of reassessment of homestead.—If the superior court at term shall confirm the appraisal or assessment, or shall increase the exemption allowed the debtor or claimant, the levy shall stand only upon the excess remaining, and the creditor shall pay the costs of the proceeding in court. If the amount allowed the debtor or claimant is reduced, the costs of the proceeding in court shall be paid by the debtor or claimant, and the levy shall cover the excess then remaining. (Rev., s. 1275; Code, s. 551; C. S. 1252.)

Cross Reference.—As to reassessment of homestead, see § 1-381. As to costs in reallotment of homestead for increase in value, see § 6-21, subsec. 9.

§ 6-30. Costs against infant plaintiff; guardian responsible.—When costs are adjudged against an infant plaintiff, the guardian by whom he appeared in the action shall be responsible therefor. (Rev., s. 1276; Code, s. 539; C. S. 1255.)

§ 6-31. Costs where executor, administrator, trustee of express trust, or person authorized by statute a party.—In an action prosecuted or defended by an executor, administrator, trustee of an express trust, or a person expressly authorized by statute, costs shall be recovered as in an action by and against a person prosecuting or defending in his own right; but such costs shall be chargeable only upon or collected out of the estate, fund or party represented, unless the court directs the same to be paid by the plaintiff or defendant, personally, for mismanagement or bad faith in such action or defense. And when any claim against a deceased person is referred, the prevailing party shall be entitled to recover the fees of referees and witnesses, and other necessary disbursements, to be taxed according to law. (Rev., s. 1277; Code, s. 535; C. S. 1254.)

Cross Reference.—As to personal liability of personal representative for denial of claim, see § 28-133. As to when costs against representative are allowed, see § 28-115. As to the availability of guardians for costs for defaults, see § 33-90. As to reference of disputed claim generally, see §§ 28-111, 28-112.

When Fiduciary Personally Liable.—By virtue of this section costs should be taxed against the estate in the hands of a trustee, and not against him personally, except when the court adjudges that the trustee has been guilty of mismanagement, or bad faith, in such action or defense. Smith v. King, 113 N. C. 205, 59 S. E. 630. See section 28-115 and the notes thereto.

Includes Next Friend.—While "next friends" may not be embraced in the strict letter of this section, they come within its purview. Smith v. Simpson, 121 N. C. 105, 13 S. E. 113. And it is error to tax "next friends" who are not parties without a finding of mismanagement or bad faith. Hockaday v. Lawrence, 156 N. C. 319, 322, 72 S. E. 387.

Allowance to Trustee.—A trustee, as against those for whose benefit the trust is created, will be allowed to apply so much of the funds to the payment of costs and expenses, including counsel fees, as may be necessary to protect it, but he will not be allowed such disbursements one who establishes an adverse title to the property. Chemical Company v. Johnson, 101 N. C. 223, 7 S. E. 770, 775.

§ 6-32. Costs against assignee after action brought.—In actions in which the cause of action becomes by assignment after the commencement of the action, or in any other manner, the property of a person not a party to the action, such person shall be liable for the costs in the same manner as if he were a party. (Rev., s. 1278; Code, s. 539; C. S. 1255.)

Absolute Assignments.—Cases have been decided in which it is held that the assignments contemplated by this section are only such as are absolute, and that such an assignment is intended to be a collateral security only for a continuing obligation or claim are not within the purview of this act. Thus, it has been held that an assignee could not be subjected to the payment of the costs incurred when the transfer was, as a collateral security, of a right to damages for an assault on the person of the assignor then in process of enforcement. Wolfe v. Holcomb, 31 N. Y. 125—of judgments. Peck v. Yorks, 75 N. Y. 487—a demand under the mechanics' lien law; In the matter of the lien of R. H. Dowling, 52 N. Y. 658. Davis v. Higgins, 92 N. C. 203.

Art. 4. Costs on Appeal.

§ 6-33. Costs on appeal generally.—On an appeal from a justice of the peace to a superior court, or from a superior court to a judge thereof, or to the supreme court, if the appellant recovers judgment in the appellate court, he shall recover the costs of the appellate court and those he ought to have recovered below had the judgment of that court been correct, and also restitution of any costs of the court appealed from which he has paid under the erroneous judgment of such court. If in any court of appeal there is judgment for a new trial, or for a new jury, or if the judgment appealed from is not wholly reversed, but partly affirmed and partly disaffirmed, the costs shall be in the discretion of the appellate court. (Rev., s. 1279; Code, s. 540; C. S. 1256.)

In General.—The first part of this section manifestly refers not only to a reversal of the judgment below, but to a judgment in favor of the appellant on the merits and not merely to an order for a new trial. Elliott v. Kelly, 4 E. D. Smith 121, 21 N. C. 276, 42 S. E. 926. Consequently new trial is granted where the judgment below is reversed, not only to a reversal of the judgment below, but to a new trial, unless in exceptional cases and for special reasons, since the court is in no laches, as is shown by its having obtained the judgment below. This is also the practice, as new trials on this ground are outside of the regular course and are only granted, in discretion, when justice requires a departure from the usual procedure. By analogy, where asked for on the ground of newly discovered evidence, the statute expressly forbids it to be granted except upon payment of the costs of the term. Haynes v. Ross, 121 N. C. 498, 500, 28 S. E. 144; Ladd v. Ladd, 121 N. C. 118, 28 S. E. 890.

When both parties are entitled to a new trial, each will pay his own costs in the Supreme Court. Ladd v. Ladd, 121 N. C. 128, 28 S. E. 890.

The taxing of the costs on appeal, by partial new trial being granted, is in the discretion of the court. Satterwith v. Goodyear, 137 N. C. 302, 49 S. E. 255.

Appeal from the superior court. On an appeal from the court of a justice of the peace to the superior court, the trial in the superior court is de novo, and its costs in both courts are required, by this section and section 1-284, to be taxed against the successful party, or, as in this case, upon a judgment in the plaintiff's favor for the difference between the amount of her demand over that allowed upon her cross-decree, if judgment be given of answer. Ritchie v. Ritchie, 192 N. C. 518, 135 S. E. 458.

When the subject-matter of the action is destroyed before the appeal is heard, the judgment below is presumed to have accrued against the appellee. Taylor v. Vann, 127 N. C. 241, 37 S. E. 363.

Reversal Necessary to Tax Appellee.—Unless the court below reverses the judgment below, it cannot adjudge any part of the costs against the appellee. Commissioners v. Gill, 126 N. C. 85, 87, 55 S. E. 238.

Partial Affirmance and Partial Reversal.—Where the judgment of the lower court is partly affirmed and partly reversed, in the exercise of the discretion permitted by this section, the costs in the Supreme Court may be divided so that each party pays his own costs. Lowman v. Lake, 121 N. C. 267, 25 S. E. 41; Hawkins v. Cedar Works, 122 N. C. 87, 30 S. E. 13.

Under this section, where the appellee was awarded a partial new trial only, as to one issue only out of several, the costs of the appeal are in the discretion of the court. Rayburn v. Casualty Co., 142 N. C. 376, 55 S. E. 296.

In McLean v. Breece, 111 N. C. 390, 393, 18 S. E. 694, where the judgment was modified in the Supreme Court, the costs were taxed against the appellee. And where the plaintiffs recovered a partial judgment on their demand, by establishing a mechanic's lien, they were entitled to an appeal. See N. C. v. See Hoggard v. Lumber Co., 170 N. C. 529, 37 S. E. 337.

Case Remanded.—Where an appellant fails to show that he can recover under the order appealed from, he may be taxed with the costs of the appeal, though the case be remanded. Harrington v. Rawls, 136 N. C. 65, 48 S. E. 571.

Modification by Superior Court.—The superior court is without power to modify former orders of the supreme court. App. p. 14. Under the order appealed from, he may be taxed with the costs of the appeal, though the case be remanded. Harrington v. Rawls, 136 N. C. 65, 48 S. E. 571.

§ 6-34. Costs of transcript on appeal taxed in supreme court.—When an appeal is taken from the supreme court to the superior court, the clerk of the superior court, when he sends up the transcript, shall send therewith an itemized statement of the costs of making up the transcript on appeal, and the costs thereof shall be taxed as a part of the costs of the supreme court. (Rev., s. 1280; 1905, c. 456; C. S. 1257.)

Cross Reference.—As to duty of clerk to prepare transcript, see § 1-284.

§ 6-35. Costs on appeal from justices of the peace.—1. After an appeal from the judgment of a justice of the peace is filed with a clerk of a superior court, the costs in all subsequent stages shall be as herein provided for actions originally brought to the superior court.

2. If, on appeal from a justice of the peace, judgment is entered for the plaintiff, and he shall not recover on his appeal a greater sum than was recovered before the justice, besides interest accrued since the rendition of the judgment, he shall not recover the costs of the appeal, but shall be liable at the discretion of the court to pay the same. (Rev., ss. 1281, 1282; Code, ss. 542, 566; R. C., c. 31, s. 106; 1794, c. 414, s. 17; C. S. 1258.)

Art. 5. Liability of Counties in Criminal Actions.

§ 6-36. County to pay costs in certain cases; if approved, audited and adjudged.—If there is no prosecutor in a criminal action, and the defendant is acquitted, or convicted and unable to pay the costs, or a nolle prosequi is entered, or judgment is reversed on appeal, or the defendant is liable at the discretion of the court to pay the costs, the clerk, sheriffs, constables, justices and witnesses one-half their lawful fees; except in capital cases and in prosecutions for forgery, perjury, or conspiracy, when they shall receive full fees. No county shall pay any such costs unless the same are approved, audited and adjudged against the county as provided in this chapter. (Rev., s. 1283; Code, ss. 733, 739; R. C., c. 28, s. 8; R. S., c. 28, s. 12; 1874-5, c. 247; C. S. 1259.)

Construed with Local Law.—Where a prosecutor in a local law permits the costs of a municipal court to be recovered from a county upon conviction of a criminal offense in certain instances, the provision will be construed in pari materia with this section, and the intent and meaning of the local law will be to permit a recovery of one-half the costs only. City v. Guilford County, 191 N. C. 594, 132 S. E. 528.

Cross Prosesqui Entered.—Where a nolle prosequi is en-
In New Hanover County, in a criminal action, if there is no prosecutor, and the defendant is convicted and serves out his sentence on the public roads of the county, the county shall pay one-half fees as provided in the first sentence of this section. (Rev., s. 1285; 1889, c. 354; C. S. 1262.)

§ 6-38. Liability of county when defendant acquitted in supreme court.—If, on appeal to the supreme court in criminal actions, the defendant is successful, the county from which the appeal was taken shall pay one-half the costs of the appeal and shall also pay all such sums as have been properly expended by the defendant for the transcript of the record and printing done under the rules of the court. (Rev., s. 1284; C. S. 1261.)

§ 6-39. County where offense committed liable for costs.—In all cases where the county is liable to pay costs, that county wherein the offense is alleged to have been committed shall be adjudged to pay them. (Rev., s. 1285; 1889, c. 354; C. S. 1262.)

§ 6-40. Liability of counties, where trial removed from one county to another.—The costs taxed in any case removed from another county for trial shall include the fees and expenses allowed for summoning the special venire, if one is ordered in the case, and the per diem and mileage of jurors who are impaneled to try the case, together with all other costs and expenses of the trial of the case, the amount of which, if not provided for by law, to be fixed by the presiding judge, so as to fully relieve the county in which the trial is had of all costs and expenses thereof. All fines, forfeitures, penalties and amercements imposed or levied in the case shall belong to the county from which the case was removed and be paid to the treasurer of said county. When a prisoner is sent from one county to another to be held for trial, or for any other cause or purpose, the county from which he is sent shall pay his prison expenses, unless the same is collected from him, on or before the first Monday in each month, and upon a failure to do so, it shall be the duty of the county to which he is sent to pay the same to the sheriff or jailer entitled to receive it at the same rate and under the same regulations as its own prison expenses are paid; and the county liable shall repay the same within thirty days after demand, and upon failing to do so the county to which the money is due shall be entitled to recover in the superior court, or, if the amount be within its jurisdiction, the court of justice of the peace of its own county, the amount due, with ten per cent additional, together with eight per cent interest on the sum due; and said courts of said county shall have full jurisdiction.
§ 6-41. Statement of costs against county to be filed with commissioners.—In all criminal actions where the county is liable in whole or in part for costs, it is the duty of the clerks of the courts to make out a statement of such costs from the record or docket, within thirty days after the hearing, trial, determination, or other disposition thereof, and file the same with the board of commissioners of the county. (Rev., s. 1286; Code, s. 736; 1873-4, c. 116, s. 3; C. S. 1264.)

§ 6-42. Expenses in conveying prisoner to another county; provision for payment. — When a sheriff or other officer arrests a person under a capias or other legal process, which requires him to deliver the prisoner, and such demand be not complied with within ten days, the sheriff or jailer shall at once return such prisoner to the county from which such prisoner was sent, and deliver him to the sheriff or jailer thereof. (Rev., s. 1288; 1889, c. 354; 1901, c. 718; C. S. 1263.)

§ 6-43. Expenses in conveying prisoner to another county; provision for payment. — When a sheriff or other officer arrests a person under a capias or other legal process, which requires him to have the person arrested before a court or judge of another county, and such sheriff or other officer is obliged to incur expense in the safe delivery of such person by reason of his failing to give bond for his appearance, or if the sheriff or other officer of the county to which the prisoner is to be carried incurs any expense in going for and conveying said prisoner to his county, then in either case the sheriff or other officer shall file with the court or judge issuing the capias or other legal process and with the register of deeds an itemized and sworn account of such expenses, which shall be presented by the register to the board of commissioners at their next regular meeting, to be audited by them. Such sworn statement shall be received by the said board as prima facie correct. Upon such auditing the board of commissioners shall cause to be issued to such sheriff or other officer an order on the county treasurer for the amount so allowed shall be taxed in the costs to the use of the county. (Rev., s. 1287; 1885, c. 262; 1901, c. 64; C. S. 1263.)

§ 6-44. Costs due credited on taxes due by payee.—Whenever a bill of costs in a criminal action is presented to any board of county commissioners in any county of the state for payment, as provided in this chapter and article, and the said bill is ordered to be paid by the said county commissioners, it shall be the duty of the clerk of said board, before issuing any orders for payment of the sum set out in said bill, to ascertain whether any person to whom any amount is due on said bill of costs, is indebted to the county for taxes, and if said person to whom said order is payable is so indebted, the order shall state in its face, "Payable only on taxes due . . . County," and upon presentation of such order to the sheriff or tax collector, said sheriff or tax collector shall give said taxpayer credit for the sum designated in said order, and the said sheriff or tax collector shall be entitled to receive credit for said sum so paid in his settlement for taxes.

It shall be unlawful for any board of county commissioners to pay to any person who is indebted to the county for taxes any money payable out of the revenues of the county on account of costs in a criminal case, which is payable by the county, except as provided in paragraph one above. (1933, c. 245.)

§ 6-45. Costs against defendant convicted, confessing, or submitting.—Every person convicted of an offense, or confessing himself guilty, or submitting to the court, shall pay the costs of prosecution. (Rev., s. 1291; Code, s. 1211; R. C., c. 35, s. 46; C. S. 1267.)

Editor's Note.—This section is cited in 5 N. C. Law Rev. 359, in a note on "Interest in Cost."

In General.—The right of the officers to recover costs in the name of the state is a mere incidental one arising out of the conviction under the provisions of this section, and the judgment for them vests the claim in the officers to whom they are due. State v. Crook, 115 N. C. 760, 765, 20 S. E. 513. The legal effect of a conviction and judgment is to fix the costs in the case in those entitled to receive them. The judgment, though nominally in the name of the state, is, in effect, in favor of those performing services in the case for which the fees are given as a compensation. State v. Mooney, 74 N. C. 98, 99.

The "costs of prosecution" are those incurred in the conduct of the prosecution, and do not include the costs incurred by the defendant in resisting the prosecution. State v. Wallin, 89 N. C. 575.

Where a defendant is taxed with the costs of prosecution, a witness, though summoned by the defendant and examined in his defence, has no right to have his ticket for attendance allowed in the bill of costs. It is a personal debt of the defendant, to vest the right to the costs in those entitled to receive them. State v. Crook, 115 N. C. 760, 20 S. E. 513.

§ 6-46. Defendant imprisoned not discharged until costs paid.—If the sentence be that the guilty person be imprisoned for a time certain, and that he pay the costs, there shall be added to it that he shall remain in prison, after the expiration of the fixed time for his imprisonment, until the costs shall be paid, or until he shall otherwise be discharged according to law. (Rev., s. 1292; Code, s. 905; 1868-9, c. 178; C. S. 1268.)

Cross References.—As to imprisonment for costs, see § 43.
§ 6-47. Judgment confessed; bond given to secure fine and costs.—In cases where a court, mayor, or a justice of the peace permits a defendant convicted of any criminal offense to give bond or confess judgment, with sureties to secure the fine and costs which may be imposed, the acceptance of such security shall be upon the condition that it shall not operate as a discharge of the original judgment against the defendant nor as a discharge of his person from the custody of the law until the fine and costs are paid. (Rev., s. 1293; Code, s. 749; 1885, c. 304; 1879, c. 264; C. S. 1290.)

Cross Reference.—As to bonds generally, see § 151-177.

Art. 7. Liability of Prosecutor for Costs.

§ 6-49. Prosecutor liable for costs in certain cases; court determines prosecutor.—In all criminal actions, if the defendant is acquitted, nolle prosequi entered, judgment against him arrested, or if the defendant is discharged from arrest for want of probable cause, the costs, including the fees of all witnesses summoned for the accused, whom the judge, court or justice of the peace before whom the trial took place shall certify to have been proper for the defense, shall be paid by the prosecutor, whether marked on the bill or warrant or not, whenever the judge, court or justice is of opinion that there was not reasonable ground for the prosecution, or that it was not required by the public interest. And every judge, court or justice is hereby fully authorized to determine who the prosecutor is at any stage of a criminal proceeding, whether before or after the bill of indictment has been found, or the defendant acquitted: Provided, that no person shall be made a prosecutor after the finding of the bill, unless he shall have been notified to show cause why he should not be made the prosecutor of record. (Rev., s. 1295; Code, s. 737; 1889, c. 34; R. C., c. 35, s. 37; 1799, c. 4, s. 19; 1800, c. 558; 1868-9, c. 277; 1874-5, c. 151; 1879, c. 49; C. S. 1271.)

Cross Reference.—See also, §§ 6-50, 6-64 and 6-52.

General Consideration.—This section was intended to enlarge the power of the courts over the question of costs in criminal actions. State v. Norwood, 84 N. C. 794. Its enactment was within the power of the Legislature. State v. Cannady, 77 N. C. 505; 76 N. C. 597; 73 N. C. 453.

§ 6-48. Arrest for nonpayment of fine and costs.—In default of payment of such fine and costs, it is the duty of the court at any subsequent term thereof, on motion of the solicitor of the state, to order a capias to issue to the end that such defendant may be again arrested and held for the fine and costs until discharged according to law; and a justice of the peace or mayor may at any subsequent time arrest the defendant and hold him for the fine and costs until discharged according to law. (Rev., s. 1294; Code, s. 750; 1885, c. 364; 1879, c. 264; C. S. 1270.)

Marking Prosecutor. — Under the Code of 1854 it was held that the person to be taxed must be marked on the bill as prosecutor (see State v. Lupton, 63 N. C. 483; State v. Darr, 63 N. C. 516) and that the court had no right to order him to be marked as such without his consent. See State v. Crossen, 81 N. C. 579, 382. But note the language of the section as it now reads, viz., “whether marked on the bill or warrant or not.”

Notice. — It is necessary for the trial court, in order to adjudge the costs of a criminal action “was not required for public interest,” that there was a finding that it “was not required by the public interest.” State v. Smith, 195 N. C. 323, 141 S. E. 1049. The object of notice is only to give the party a day in court, and it matters not how he gets the notice, if he appears and defends under the bill as prosecutor. The court should find the facts, and where it is an application for the discharge of the defendant’s counsel or by the court of its own motion. State v. Hughes, 83 N. C. 665; State v. Hamilton, 106 N. C. 660, 10 S. E. 854. The court should find the facts, and where it is an application for the discharge of the defendant’s counsel or by the court of its own motion. State v. Roberts, 83 N. C. 662, 10 S. E. 900, and State v. Owens, 87 N. C. 565; State v. Jones, 117 N. C. 676, 11 S. E. 247.

A notice to mark one as prosecutor under this section need not be writing. Where it was announced in open court, upon the calling and continuance of a state case, that a motion would be made at the next term to mark a. witness as prosecutor (all the witnesses being present), and on the argument of the case before the court, it was announced that all the witnesses were present, it was held to be sufficient evidence that such notice was given, and warranted the court in ordering the witness to be marked as prosecutor. State v.
Norwood, 84 N. C. 794.

Insolvent Prosecutor—County Liable. — When a judge below orders an insolvent prosecutor to pay costs, and he fails or is unable to pay the county in which the insolvent became insolvent to pay the same. Pegram
v. Commissioners, 75 N. C. 120.

Conclusiveness of Finding. — A judgment that a prosecution is frivolous and not required by the public interest, and that the prosecutor pay the costs, is conclusive and not The finding by the judge below that a criminal prosecution is frivolous or malicious, and the judgment that the prosecutor pay costs, or in default thereof be imprisoned. State v. Vance, 109 N. C. 789, 14 S. E. 110.

But where the trial judge has dismissed a criminal action as being frivolous and malicious, and taxed the prosecutors with costs, and it appears from his findings of record that he has done so without any proper consideration of their affidavits in support of their position, and relevant to the issue, so as to deprive them of the benefits of the due process of law, his order will set aside on appeal, leaving the matter open for proper adjudication. State v. Collins, 169 N. C. 323, 84 S. E. 1049.

In this latter case it is said: "In the disposition made of this appeal we do not intend to impair or qualify our former decisions on the subject, notably State v. Hamilton, 106 N. C.
660, 661, 10 S. E. 854, and State v. Roberts, 106 N. C. 662, 10 S. E. 900, to the effect that, on a hearing of this character, the findings of fact by the trial judge are conclusive.
In the disposition of the case under review, we think there must necessarily be some tribunal having the power to determine the ultimate facts on which the rights of the parties depend, and we think the cases which refer this power to the trial judge, while present and have opportunity to personal evidence, and note the circumstances and attendance conditions, are grounded in good reason; but, on the facts as they appear from his honor's findings, and we think it not improper to say that he has spread them on the record with commendable candor, we do of opinion that these men, as heretofore stated, have had no proper hearing, within the meaning of the constitutional provision, and that the judgment against them must be set aside." 7

State v. Darr, 63 N. C. 516.

§ 6-50. Imprisonment of prosecutor for non-payment of costs, if prosecution frivolous.— Every such prosecutor may be adjudged not only for the nonpayment thereof, when the judge, court, or justice of the peace from whom the case was tried shall adjudge that the prosecution was frivolous or malicious. (Rev., s. 1297; Code, s. 738; R. C., c. 33, s. 37; 1800, c. 533; 1878, c. 49;
1881, c. 176; C. S. 1278.)

Constitutionality. — This section is held constitutional.
State v. Cannady, 78 N. C. 599; State v. Hamilton, 106 N.
C. 660, 661, 10 S. E. 854.
Costs of prosecution against a prosecutor (upon acquittal of the accused or nolle prosequi entered), or against the accused upon a verdict of guilty, or a fine imposed, does not constitute a debt within the meaning of Article one, section sixteen, of the Constitution, and hence the defendant may be imprisoned for nonpayment of the same. 8

This case under section 6-45, State v. Wallin, 89 N. C.
578.
Where Bill Ignored. — No power is conferred by this section to tax a prosecutor with costs when the bill is ignored. State v. Howard, 89 N. C. 581; State v. Cockerham, Art. 8. Fees of Witnesses.

§ 6-51. Not entitled to fees in advance. — Witenesses are not entitled to receive their fees in ad-advance; but no witness in a civil action or special proceeding, unless summoned on behalf of the state or a municipal corporation, shall be compelled to attend more than one day, if the party by or for whom he was summoned shall, after one day's attendance, on request and presentation of a certificate, fail or refuse to pay what then may be due for traveling to the place of examination and for the number of days of attendance. (Rev., s. 1298; Code, s. 1368; 1869-9, c. 279, 1891, c. 147; 1905, cc. 279, 522; P. L. 1911, c. 402;
§ 6-53. Witness to prove attendance; action for fees.—Every person summoned, who shall attend as a witness in any suit, shall, before the clerk of the court, or before the referee or officer taking the testimony, ascertain by his own oath or affirmation the sum due for traveling to and from court, attendance and ferriage, which shall be certified by the clerk; and on failure to file the certificate and cause it to be entered of record, the witness may not require the same to be taxed against the adverse party, at whose instance such witness was summoned (witnesses for the state and municipal corporations excepted), to pay the same to the sheriff of the county from which the witness was summoned, or to the county treasurers, or to any other person or persons appointed by the legislative body of the county.
"sworn and examined or tendered" i.e., witnesses subpoenaed by the successful party cannot be taxed against the losing party unless sworn and examined, that their materiality may be shown. Otherwise, a successful party may oppress the losing party by subpoenaing witnesses and having their attendance taxed, while examining only the few necessary to gain the action. Merely swearing the witnesses would be no assurance of this materiality. They must be examined and tendered to the opposite party to be examined as the witnesses of the party summoning such witnesses, and under the rules of cross-examination to the certaining of the materiality of the party's adversary's witnesses. Sitton v. Lumber Company, 135 N. C. 540, 541, 47 S. E. 699.

Effect of Nonsuit.—The costs of the defendant's witnesses who are present when the case is brought for trial, but are not sworn, because the plaintiff takes a nonsuit, are properly taxed against the latter. Henderson v. Williams, 120 N. C. 339, 27 S. E. 30, citing Lottis v. Raxter, 66 N. C. 340, cited in Sitton v. Lumber Company, 135 N. C. 540, 541, 47 S. E. 699.

Witnesses Summoned by Both Parties.—If a witness summoned by each party to a suit is entitled to compensation from each. Peace v. Person, 5 N. C. 188.

§ 6-54. Witness tickets to be filed; only two witnesses for single fact.—At the court where the cause is finally determined the party recovering judgment shall file in the clerk's office the witness tickets; the amount thereof shall be taxed in the bill of costs, to be levied and recovered for the benefit of said party. The party cast shall not be obliged to pay for more than two witnesses to prove a single fact. (Rev. s. 1300; Code, s. 1370; R. C., c. 31, s. 74; 1783, c. 189, s. 3; 1796, c. 458, s. 2; C. S. 1275.)

Local Modification.—Anson, Buncombe, Columbus, Forsyth, Gaston, Richmond, Robeson, Rutherford, Surry: C. S. 1276.

Editor's Note.—"Service as a witness," as stated by Justice Clark, (then Chief Justice) in State v. Wheeler, 141 N. C. 773, 777, 53 S. E. 358, "is the exaction of a public duty, like service upon a jury, grand jury, coroner's inquest, special venire, military service, and the like, which men are required to render either wholly without compensation or (usually) with inadequate pay, as the sovereign may require. Originally none of these received any pay whatever; even as late as 1844 N. C. 877, 878, 10 S. E. 698, the duration of military service only having a time limit. And to this day witnesses, above two to each material fact, receive no pay." See also annotations under § 6-53.

Where the issue submitted is a complex one, involving the investigation of a multiplicity of single facts material to be ascertained, to establish each such fact two witnesses are allowable under this section. Ex parte Beckwith, 124 N. C. 311, 32 S. E. 393.

Four Witnesses Summoned—Two Called by Each Party.—Where there was only one issue in the case, and plaintiff summoned four witnesses, but called only two of them, and the defendant summoned the witness who did not attend, the defendant was not liable for the costs of the two witnesses summoned by the party who did not attend, as the court could not say that they had not been summoned to contradict testimony expected from the defendant's witness. Hayle v. Cowan, 2 N. C. 21.

Against Parties Summoning Witnesses.—While not more than two witnesses summoned by the successful party to prove a single fact, can be taxed against the losing party under this section, this does not abridge the right of all the witnesses to recover compensation against the party summoning them. State v. Mays, 59 N. C. 377, 381, 10 S. E. 698.

This section does not apply to expert witnesses, the court being allowed under § 6-59 to tax privilege, discretion, and the like, upon the party in whose behalf the service was rendered for same. Connor v. Hayworth, 206 N. C. 721, 724, 175 S. E. 140.

§ 6-55. Fees of witnesses before jury of view, commissioner, etc.—Witnesses summoned to appear at any survey, or before any jury of view, or before any commissioner, arbitrator, referee, or other person authorized to require their attendance, shall be entitled to the same fees as for similar attendance at the court of the county, and may prove, by their own oath, their attendance, mileage, and ferriage before such person, who is hereby authorized to administer the oath; and when they shall attend on any commission issuing from without the state, they may recover the fees for attendance against the party summoning them, or his agent or attorney directing them to be summoned; and when they shall attend under a commission or authority from any court in this state, the fees for attendance shall be proved as aforesaid, and be certified to the proper court and taxed among the costs of the cause, as if the witness had attended the court; but nevertheless, such fees may be immediately recovered against the party summoning. (Rev. s. 1301; Code, s. 1355; R. C., c. 31, s. 67; 1805, c. 685; 1848, c. 66; 1850, c. 188, s. 3; C. S. 1277.)

§ 6-56. Fees of witnesses before grand jury.—No witness shall receive pay for attendance in a criminal case before a grand jury, unless such witness has been summoned by direction in writing of the chairman of the grand jury, or of the solicitor prosecuting, addressed to the clerk of the court, commanding him to summon such witness, stating the name of the parties against whom his testimony may be needed, or unless he has been bound or recognized by some justice of the peace to appear before the grand jury. (Rev. s. 1302; Code, s. 743; 1879, c. 264; C. S. 1278.)

Cross Reference.—As to witnesses before grand jury, see §§ 15-130, 15-139.

Permission to Summon.—Grand juries have no right to summon witnesses to appear before them except by the permission of their foreman or the solicitor as prescribed by this section. State v. Wilcox, 104 N. C. 847, 10 S. E. 45.

Endorsement of Names.—Witnesses are entitled to compensation where a bill is prepared and sent to the grand jury with the names of those summoned endorsed as sworn and sent. Lewis v. Board of Commissioners, 74 N. C. 194.

§ 6-57. Pay of state's witnesses.—All witnesses summoned or recognized in behalf of the state shall be allowed the same pay for their daily attendance, ferriage and mileage as is allowed to witnesses attending in civil suits; and such fees for attendance shall be paid by the defendant only upon conviction, confession or submission; and if the defendant is acquitted on any charge of an inferior nature, or a nolle prosequi be entered thereto, the court shall order the prosecution to pay the cost, if such prosecution appears to have been frivolous or malicious; but if the court is of opinion that such prosecution was neither frivolous nor malicious, and a greater number of witnesses have been summoned than were, in the opinion of the court, necessary to support the charge, the court may, nevertheless, order the prosecution to pay the attendance of such unnecessary witnesses, if it appear that they were summoned at his special request. (Rev. s. 1306; Code, s. 1294; R. C., c. 35, s. 37; 1800, c. 558, s. 1; 1879, c. 49; 1879, c. 92, s. 3; 1851, c. 176; C. S. 1280.)

An appeal lies from the judgment of a justice of the peace in a criminal action taxing the prosecutor with cost. State
§ 6-58. County to pay state's witnesses in certain cases.—Witnesses summoned or recognized on behalf of the state to attend on any criminal prosecution in the superior or criminal courts where the defendant is insolvent, or by law is not bound to pay the same, and the court does not order them to be paid by the prosecutor, shall be paid by the county in which the prosecution was commenced. And in any case where witnesses were not summoned or recognized to attend any such court to give evidence on behalf of the state, and the defendant is discharged, and in cases where the defendant breaks jail and is not afterwards retaken, the court shall order the witnesses to be paid. (Rev., s. 1289; Code, s. 740; R. C., c. 28, s. 9; 1804, c. 665; 1819, c. 1008; 1824, c. 1223; C. S. 1281.)

Editor's Note.—See annotations under § 6-36. For history of this pay to state's witnesses, see State v. Massey, 104 N. C. 877, 10 S. E. 608.

Service out of State.—The service of a subpoena on a witness beyond the borders of the state in a criminal action in which he is to be tried, if the trial is not commenced within a reasonable time, and if the adverse party fail to give such notice as may be required by law, shall be deemed sufficient service for the purposes of this section, and the court may, for good cause shown, order the state to pay such witness the fees provided by law.

§ 6-59. County to pay defendant's witnesses in certain cases.—When the defendant is acquitted, a nolle prosequi entered, or judgment against him arrested, and it is made to appear to the court, by certificate of counsel or otherwise, that said defendant had witnesses, duly subpoenaed, bound or recognized, in attendance, and that they were necessary for his defense, it is the duty of the court, unless the prosecutor is adjudged to pay the costs, to make and file an order in the cause directing that said witnesses be paid by the county in such manner and to such extent as is necessary and proper.

Cross Reference.—See also §§ 6-36 and 6-64.

In General.—This section shows the legislative intent to restrict payment by the county of the defendant's witnesses to the cases specified, and their number and amount of compensation. State v. Massey, 104 N. C. 877, 880, 10 S. E. 608.

In this case the court below held that there is no statute authorizing the court to tax defendant's witnesses against the county when the "bill is quashed." If this is a casus omissus the remedy can only be found in a legislative enactment. It would seem, however, intentional for the Legislature, in the case of such cases in which the defendant was not present, that the court shall have discretion as to the form of the certificate. It also requires that the discharge shall be in open court. The requirement as to entry on the minutes is new.
of them, shall receive no pay, or only a portion of the compensation authorized by law. The court, at any time within one year after judgment, may order that any witness may be paid who for any good reason satisfactory to the court failed to have his fees included in the original bill of costs. (Rev., s. 1306; Code, ss. 733, 748; 1879, c. 264; 1881, c. 318; C. S. 1287.)

The discretion conferred upon the court, in this section, in respect to regulating, or refusing to allow any compensation to the witnesses therein named, is not reviewable. State v. Massey, 104 N. C. 877, 10 S. E. 608.

It is within the discretion of the trial Court (under § 733 of the Code of 1883) to refuse to make an order for the payment by the county of the fees of witnesses for a defendant acquitted of a criminal charge, where no prosecutor is marked, and the exercise of such discretion is not reviewable. State v. Ray, 122 N. C. 1095, 29 S. E. 946.

Appeal.—In an appeal from defendant's motion to retax the costs in a criminal action it should appear on the record that the provisions of this and § 6-60 were complied with and when it does not so appear the case will be remanded. State v. Kirby, 201 N. C. 789, 161 S. E. 483.

Art. 9. Criminal Costs before Justices, Mayors, County or Recorders' Courts.

§ 6-64. Liability for criminal costs before justice, mayor, county or recorder's court.—The party convicted in a criminal action or proceeding, within the jurisdiction of a justice of the peace, before any justice, mayor, county or recorder's court, shall always be adjudged to pay the costs, and if the party charged be acquitted, the complainant shall be adjudged to pay the costs, and may be imprisoned for the nonpayment thereof, if the justice, mayor, county or recorder's court shall adjudge that the prosecution was frivolous or malicious. But in no action or proceeding in which a justice of the peace has final jurisdiction, commenced or tried in a court of a justice of the peace, mayor, county or recorder's court shall the county be liable to pay any costs: any defendants or prosecuting witness shall have the right of appeal to the superior court. (Rev., 1307; Code, s. 895; 1868-9, c. 178; 1879, c. 92, s. 3; 1881, c. 176; 1931, c. 252; C. S. 1288.)

Cross References.—As to liability of prosecutor for costs, see § 6-49. As to liability of county for costs, see § 6-36. As to appeals, see §§ 15-177, 15-180.

Editor's Notes.—The Act of 1931 repealed the former section and enacted this section in lieu thereof. The former section applied only to proceedings before a justice. For general discussion of costs in criminal actions before a justice of the peace, see Merrimon v. Henderson County Com'rs, 106 N. C. 369, 11 S. E. 267; State v. Carlton, 110 N. C. 956, 12 S. E. 44.

Where the justice of the peace has testified on the trial to recover damages for a false arrest that he considered the criminal action "frivolous and malicious," and had taxed the defendant (prosecutor) with cost, the erroneous admission of this evidence is cured by the defendant's admission that he had paid the cost thus taxed him. Harris v. Singley, 193 N. C. 583, 137 S. E. 724.

SUBCHAPTER I. SUPREME COURT.

Art. 1. Organization and Terms.

§ 7-1. Number of justices.—The supreme court of North Carolina shall consist of a chief justice and six associate justices, to be chosen in the manner now prescribed by law. (Rev., s. 1532; Const., Art. 4, s. 6; 1937, c. 16, s. 1; C. S. 1403.)

Editor's Note.—The 1937 amendment increased the associate justices from four to six in pursuance of authority of the constitutional amendment proposed by Public Laws 1935, c. 825; 1936, c. 16, s. 1; and adopted at the general election of November, 1936.

Historical.—"When first established, the court was composed of three justices, appointed by the general assembly to hold office during good behavior; and the justices themselves appointed one of their number as chief justice. By the Constitution of 1868 the number was increased to five, a chief justice and four associate justices, to be elected by popular vote, and to hold office until the year 1872 and until their successors are qualified. By an amendment in 1875 the number was reduced to three, and in 1887 it was again increased to five, as the court is now constituted." 5 N. C. L. Rev. 5.

§ 7-2. Election and term of office.—The justices of the supreme court shall be elected by the qualified voters of the state, as is provided for the election of members of the general assembly. They shall hold their offices for eight years. (Const., Art. 4, s. 21; C. S. 1404.)

§ 7-3. Salaries of supreme court justices.—Each justice of the supreme court shall be paid an annual salary of seven thousand five hundred dollars, and in lieu of and in commutation for expenses incident to attendance upon the court an amount equal to that allowed to each judge of the superior court, payable in equal monthly installments, as a part of his compensation. (Rev., s. 2764; Code, s. 3733; 1891, c. 193; 1903, c. 805; 1905, c. 208; 1907, cc. 841, 988; 1909, c. 486; 1911, c. 82; 1913, c. 44; 1919, c. 51; 1921, c. 35, s. 2; 1925, c. 214; 1937, c. 69, s. 1; 1939, c. 232; C. S. 3883.)

Cross Reference.—For the amount allowed superior court judges for expenses, see § 7-42.

Editor's Note.—The amendments changed the amount of salary and allowance for expenses.

Justices' Salaries Not Subject to Taxation.—See notes to Const. Art. IV, § 18.

§ 7-4. Oath of office.—The justices, before they act as such, shall, before the governor or some judicial officer, take and subscribe the oaths appointed for the qualification of public officers, and also an oath of office, which shall be certified by the officer taking the same and delivered to the secretary of state, to be safely kept. (Rev., s. 1533; Code, s. 955; R. C., c. 33, s. 3; 1818, c. 963; C. S. 1405.)

Cross References.—As to forms of oath, see §§ 11-6, 11-7, 11-11. As to penalty for failure, see § 128-5. As to constitutional requirement and form, see Const., Art. VI, § 7.

§ 7-5. Name of court; where records to be kept.—The court bears the name and style of The Supreme Court of North Carolina, and is a court of record; and the papers and records belonging to the clerk's office thereof shall be constantly kept within the city of Raleigh. (Rev., s. 1536; Code, s. 954; R. C. c. 33, s. 2; R. S., c. 33, s. 2; 1884, c. 660; 1805, c. 674; 1818, c. 962; 1828, c. 13; C. S. 1406.)

A Court of Record.—"The Supreme Court is a court of record, and the clerk who is appointed by the court for a term of eight years, is required to keep the records of the court in his office in Raleigh." See § 5 N. C. L. Rev. 5.

Derived from Constitution.—The Supreme Court is established by, and derives its jurisdiction from, the constitution, and its judicial powers and jurisdiction so prescribed, as well as its methods of procedure, are not subject to legislatival control. Rencher v. Anderson, 93 N. C. 105.

Editor's Note.—Prior to the 1937 amendment three justices constituted a quorum. The court means the three (now seven) judges sitting together, consulting and advising one with the other, upon the questions commonly called for judicial decision. State v. Lane, 26 N. C. 434, 455. Upon the death of one, the remaining judges have power and authority to hold court. Id.

§ 7-7. Terms of Court.—There shall be held at the seat of government of the state in each year two terms of the supreme court, commencing on the first Monday in February and the last Monday in August.

The court shall sit at each term until all the business on the docket shall be determined or continued on good cause shown. In case no one of the justices shall attend the term during the first week thereof, at the end of that time the court shall stand adjourned to the next term, and the causes on the docket be continued. (Rev., s. 1534; Code, s. 953, 954; 1901, c. 660; 1837, c. 49; 1881, c. 178; R. C., c. 33, s. 2; R. S., c. 33, s. 2; 1804, c. 660; 1805, c. 674; 1818, c. 923; 1828, c. 13; 1842, c. 15; 1846, cc. 28, 29; C. S. 1408.)

Editor's Note.—Under the law as it existed prior to 1869, the court held three terms a year, two in Raleigh and one in Morganton. See § 5 N. C. L. Rev. 6.

When a Cause is Adjourned.—No case in or under the Supreme Court has finished the business of any one term and adjourned, its jurisdiction of a case decided at that term is continued on good cause shown. In Ruffin v. Harrison, 91 N. C. 398, it was said, "The court has no power to amend or modify the final decree, entered at the last term, upon an application like this. After final judgment the court cannot disturb it unless upon an application to rehear or for fraud, accident or mistake alleged in an independent action, or perhaps, in some cases, party might be relieved against a 'judgment, order or other proceeding taken against him through his mistake, inadvertence, surprise or excusable neglect' within a year after the entry of the same...." This of course does not imply that the court has no power to correct the entry of its judgments and decrees so as to make them conform to the truth or what the court did in granting them, or to set aside an irregular judgment in a proper case." State v. Marsh, 134 N. C. 184, 197, 47 S. E. 6.

In Ruffin v. Harrison, 91 N. C. 398, it was said, "The court has no power to amend or modify the final decree, entered at the last term, upon an application like this. After final judgment the court cannot disturb it unless upon an application to rehear or for fraud, accident or mistake alleged in an independent action, or perhaps, in some cases, party might be relieved against a 'judgment, order or other proceeding taken against him through his mistake, inadvertence, surprise or excusable neglect' within a year after the entry of the same...." This of course does not imply that the court has no power to correct the entry of its judgments and decrees so as to make them conform to the truth or what the court did in granting them, or to set aside an irregular judgment in a proper case." State v. Marsh, 134 N. C. 184, 197, 47 S. E. 6.

Art. 2. Jurisdiction.

§ 7-8. Original Jurisdiction. The supreme court has original jurisdiction to hear claims against the state, but its decision shall be merely recommendatory; no process in the nature of execution shall issue thereon; they shall be reported to the next session of the general assembly for its action. (Rev., s. 1537; Const., Art. IV, s. 9; C. S. 1409.)

Editor's Note.—This section, conferring jurisdiction on the Supreme Court to render an opinion in cases where there are claims against the State, has a rather unique history. The principle underlying its enactment is the well established one that a sovereign state cannot be sued without its consent. Hitherto it was questioned whether the court could lend its aid to the Legislature in determining if important questions of law or fact raised by a claim against the State was a party. Reynolds v. State, 64 N. C. 461. The realization of the necessity of having recourse to the advice of men who were experts in this particular field, and that a state constitution with which the Supreme Court was confronted, coupled with the fact that persons who asserted that they held legal claims against the sovereign State might here find a tribunal before which they might bring their petitions, led to the passage of this section. However, the jurisdiction, hereby conferred, is not without its clean-cut limitations which will appear in the cases following. See also the annotations under N. C. Const., Art. IV, § 9, nor has it power to enforce its decision made in such proceeding by process in nature of execution. Its decision is merely recommendatory. Rotan v. State, 195 N. C. 291, 141 S. E. 733.

Recovery of Taxes.—When nonresident executors have failed to proceed in the Superior Court, under § 105-406, to recover an amount they have paid as an inheritance tax to the State of North Carolina, the method by which the Legislature has authorized the State to be sued is exclusive and the recommendation of the Supreme Court may not be invoked. Rotan v. State, 195 N. C. 291, 141 S. E. 733.

Transmission to General Assembly.—Upon the decision of the Supreme Court in favor of the plaintiff upon a claim preferred against the State, the proper course is for the clerk to transmit the proceedings in the case, together with the judgment of the court, to the Governor to be communicated by him to the General Assembly. Clements v. State, 77 N. C. 142; Horne v. State, 82 N. C. 382.

State May Plead Statute of Limitations. — In proceedings under this section the State shall be entitled to plead the statute of limitations without setting forth the facts upon which the plea is based. In Ruffin v. Harrison, supra, it was said, "The Supreme Court can not enforce judgments — no power to enforce its judgments made in such proceeding by process in nature of execution; its decision is merely recommendatory. Rotan v. State, 195 N. C. 291, 141 S. E. 733.

§ 7-9. Procedure to enforce claims against the state.—Any person having any claim against the State may file his complaint in the office of the [447]
§ 7-10. Appellate jurisdiction. — The supreme court has jurisdiction to review, upon appeal, any decision of the courts below, upon any matter of law or legal inference. And the jurisdiction of said court over "issues of fact" and "questions of fact" is the same exercised by it before the adoption of the constitution of one thousand eight hundred sixty-eight, and the court has the power to issue any remedial writs necessary to give it a general supervision and control over the proceedings of the inferior courts. (Rev., s. 1539; Const., Art. IV, s. 8; C. S. 1411.)

I. IN GENERAL.

Editor's Note.—This section was first enacted by the General Assembly in 1865. Lacy v. State, 195 N. C. 394, 289, 141 S. E. 886.

In General. — In these proceedings the rights of the petitioner and the liability of the State are determined by the same laws that would govern those rights and that liability if the action were against an individual debtor. Cowles v. State, 115 N. C. 173, 179, 20 S. E. 384.

The Supreme Court, as a rule, will consider only such claims and controversies of law and will not take the burden of passing upon those claims which involve mainly issues or questions of fact, although in proper cases the Court may order that issues of fact be tried in the Supreme Court, as provided in this section. Coloon v. State, 200 N. C. 312, 314, 160 S. E. 183.

The recommendatory or original jurisdiction of the Court is confined to claims in which it is supposed that an opinion on an important question of law would be needed to assist the General Assembly in determining the merits of a claim against the State. This is true notwithstanding the broad provision of the Constitution authorizing any claim against the State may commence the proceeding by filing his complaint. Id.

The Supreme Court is given original jurisdiction to hear claims against the State, but its decisions are merely recommendatory, and no process in the nature of execution shall issue thereon. Id.

The procedure thus authorized is prescribed by this section, but this procedure must not be construed as exceeding the power conferred upon the Supreme Court by the organic law.

Construction of Section. — Insofar as this section provides for and prescribes the procedure by which a claimant may invoke the original jurisdiction of the Supreme Court, conferred by the Constitution, with respect to his claim against the State, it is valid, and enforceable in all respects; but when the procedure has been duly instituted and filed in the Supreme Court, as provided in this section, and in accordance with the provisions of the statute, the procedure by which the Court will thereafter exercise its power to hear and decide upon the claim is not controlled by the statute. When it appears that an issue or question of law is presented which can be intelligently decided, without determining facts in issue, the Court will proceed to hear and determine the issue of law. When it appears that there is no issue or question of law involved no decision will be made and the proceeding will be dismissed. When, however, in order to decide an issue or question of law involved in the case, it is necessary to try the case, the Court may follow the provisions of the statute with respect to a trial by jury of such issues. The statute is at most, in this respect, directory. Lacey v. State, 195 N. C. 284, 290, 141 S. E. 886.

Ascertainment of Facts. — The facts are ascertained by reference to the clerk of the Supreme Court or by trans-the complaining party, even where the ruling is erroneous. Bilk v. Harris, 132 N. C. 10, 43 S. E. 477, and cases cited.

II. ISSUES AND QUESTIONS OF FACT

A. In General.

Definite—Issues of fact on these matters alleged on one side only, the decision on, and every question presented under these issues necessary to decide the matter in controversy should be presented to the jury. Kirk v. Atlanta, etc., Ry. Co., 97 N. C. 82, 2 S. E. 536. The power of the appellate court to review the facts is limited to matters exclusively of equitable cognizance under the former system, and in such cases only when the evidence is written and documentary, so that the higher court is in the same position as the court below.” S. N. C. Law Rev. 16. See also State v. Liliston, 141 N. C. 857, 867, 54 S. E. 427.

B. Jurisdictional Requisites.

When Jurisdiction Assumed.—The jurisdiction of the Supreme Court over issues of fact, under this section, will be assumed upon two conditions: 1. If the matter be of such an equitable nature as a court of equity under the former system took exclusive cognizance of. 2. If the proofs are written and documentary, and in all respects the same as the evidence on which the court below passed upon them. Worthy v. Shields, 90 N. C. 192.

Since this decision the courts have consistently followed the two foregoing propositions, and have made the following rules:

1. That, if the question presented on appeal is not strictly of an equitable nature, or (2) If the proofs are not written and documentary and in the same form as they were presented to the lower court, then it is not a case over which the Supreme Court can exercise jurisdiction. Herein lies the principle on which the court on appeal has refused to take cognizance of "issues of fact," which were in the court below, tried by a jury, for a fortiory the second proposition noted above will not have been fulfilled. The basis for the exclusion of such "issues of fact" to be tried by a jury, in the court below, are the witnesses before them, are in a better position to weigh all the material evidence and can better reach the logical solution to the issue in controversy. See Howard v. Board, 139 N. C. 675, 127 S. E. 704; Cameron v. Highway Comm'r, 188 N. C. 84, 123 S. E. 465.—Ed. Note.

C. The Principles Applied.

Judgment Must be Equitable in Nature.—The jurisdiction of the Supreme Court over "issues of fact," is restricted to interlocutory and final judgments which are exclusively equitable in their nature, and with such court the evidence was presented as at a court of equity. Young v. Rollins, 90 N. C. 125.

This jurisdiction does not extend to a case which under the former practice would have been an action at law on account of the nature or the facts involved, in which the evidence could have been corrected on appeal. State v. Scott, 84 N. C. 184.

Same.—Motion for Injunction.—On a motion for an injunction, being an appeal from the former system, and in cases where the nature of the suit is such as to present a mixed question of law and fact, it is the right and duty of the Supreme Court, under this section, on an appeal from an order granting or refusing the injunction, to determine the existence of each fact as well as of law upon which the propriety of the order depends. Jones v. Boyd, 80 N. C. 258.

Same.—Former Acquittal.—No appeal can be taken by the State to any court from the action of an inferior court in sustaining a former acquittal, although such acquittal was a mixed question of law and fact, and the court erred in not leaving it to the jury. State v. Lane, 78 N. C. 547.

Same.—Action of Covenant.—Whether an action of covenant was an action at law under the former system, but to which an equitable defense can now be made under the new system, falls within the operation of this section in which the evidence could have been corrected on appeal. State v. Alley, 84 N. C. 184.

II. Exceptions.

Same.—Estoppel.—But where, in such—case, a party has of his own accord accepted a trial by jury, he cannot afterwaords have the same facts passed upon by the court. Leggett v. Leggett, 89 N. C. 106.

§ 7-11. Power to render judgment and issue execution.—In every case the court may render such sentence, judgment or order as, in its opinion, is necessary to settle the controversy. See comment in 13 N. C. Law Rev., 343, wherein it is suggested that this section be invoked to prevent useless suits.

Affirmance as to One Defendant Dismissal as to Other.—Under the technical rule of the common law, a defendant entitled to judgment as to one defendant, in an action between two defendants, is not entitled to judgment as to the other. This has been the uniform course and practice since the decision of Worthy v. Shields, 90 N. C. 192, quoted above, in dismissing the action as to the railroad company and affirming the judgment of the lower court as to the Director General. This has been the uniform course and practice since the decision of Worthy v. Shields, 90 N. C. 192, quoted above, in dismissing the action as to the railroad company and affirming the judgment of the lower court as to the Director General.

Where a railroad company and the Director General of Railroads have both been joined as parties defendant in an action to recover for a negligent injury, and issues have been submitted as to each, and adverse verdict rendered as to each, there can be no prejudice to the Director General in dismissing the action as to the railroad company and affirming it as to the Director General. This may be done under provisions of § 1-297 and this section. Kimbrough v. Atlantic, etc., R. Co., 182 N. C. 234, 128 S. E. 9, 963; C. S. 1412.)

I. IN GENERAL.

Editor's Note.—The provisions of this section are so similar to those of the former section 1-297 that the practitioner must necessarily take notice of that section and the notes thereunder.

See comment in 13 N. C. Law Rev., 343, wherein it is suggested that this section be invoked to prevent useless suits.

§ 7-11. Power to render judgment and issue execution.—In every case the court may render such sentence, judgment or order as, in its opinion, is necessary to settle the controversy. See comment in 13 N. C. Law Rev., 343, wherein it is suggested that this section be invoked to prevent useless suits.
an aspect of the case not presented by the pleadings. Oakley v. Nopens, 95 N. C. 60, 61, 62; Bush v. Hall, 95 N. C. 82; Morrison v. Watson, 95 N. C. 479, 481. Exception in proper instances a party to a suit shall not be allowed to introduce evidence upon a point or matter in the case not presented by the pleadings, or not a matter in the course of litigation. Hill v. Director General, etc., 178 N. C. 607, 612, 101 S. E. 376. Especially is this true where the change of front is sought to be made between the superior courts. Ingram v. Yadkin River Power Co., 181 N. C. 393, 107 S. E. 229.

Theory of Lower Court Adopted.—A case is heard and determined in the Supreme Court according to the theory on which it was tried below. Cole v. Barringer, 171 N. C. 445, 58 S. E. 518; Warren v. Gunman, 168 N. C. 457, 84 S. E. 760.

Sufficiency of Record Must Be Apparent.—The Supreme Court can not consider a question not contained in the transcript. Nevertheless, by consultation with the clerk, the Supreme Court may in some cases make additions to the transcript. This rule applies to all proceedings had in the action arranged in an orderly manner. Id.

Procedings to Modify Judgment.—A judgment of the superior court may be modified on appeal where the plain facts are made as to the law or legal inferences are reviewable upon the face of the record. State v. Daniel, 121 N. C. 574, 28 S. E. 255.

Judgment in Lower Court Essential.—When the transcript does not show that any court was held, or that any judge was present or gave judgment, it is so defective that the Supreme Court has no jurisdiction to act upon it. Boardfoot v. McKeithan, 92 N. C. 561. It must also appear that the court was lawfully organized and held, and all the proceedings in the action arranged in an orderly manner. Id.

Errors Which Have to Be Assigned.—Under the provisions of this section, it is necessary to assign error in the record, that is, to state v. Cowan, 29 S. E. 565; Thornton v. Brady, 100 N. C. 38, 40, 5 S. E. 910. When other matters are relied upon, they must be pointed out by exception on the trial or in the case on appeal. State v. Ashley, 121 N. C. 915; State v. Deal, 117 N. C. 239. See In re Will of Roediger, 209 N. C. 170, 184 S. E. 74.

II. EXCEPTIONS.

In General.—On appeal to the Supreme Court, only error as to the law or legal inferences are reviewable upon the record in the case. Merchants Nat. Bank v. Howard, 188 N. C. 543, 125 S. E. 126.

When an appeal discloses no error of law or legal inference made upon the trial, the Supreme Court on appeal cannot consider whether a miscarriage of justice has resulted in the case appealed. Rawls v. Lupton, 193 N. C. 423, 137 S. E. 757.

The Supreme Court cannot consider a question not considered by the trial court, and not affecting the verdict appealed from. Herring v. Warwick. 155 N. C. 345, 71 S. E. 431; Pleasants v. Johnson, 69 N. C. 249; Williamson Co. v. Canaday, 25 N. C. 349.

Error Apparent on Record.—The rule which forbids the hearing of an objection not taken, and which ought to have been taken, at the trial, does not embrace the case where there is a fundamental matter as to which the court was called upon to decide, injuriously to the appellant. Burion v. Wilkinson, etc., R. Co., 84 N. C. 193.

Venue.—In an action brought on the board of commissioners of one county, brought to the superior court of an adjoining county, objection to the venue must be taken in the trial court, otherwise the objection will be considered as waived. Edwards v. Board, 70 N. C. 571. See, also, McMinn v. Hamilton, 77 N. C. 300.

Answer to Excluded Questions.—Assignments of error to exclusion of questions asked can not be considered, where the record does not indicate what the answers would have been. Smith v. Commissioners, 176 N. C. 366, 79 S. E. 375; Brinkley v. Southern R. Co., 168 N. C. 435, 44 S. E. 793; Bryant Timber Co. v. Tilghman Lumber Co., 168 N. C. 154, 84 S. E. 765.

No Presumption of Error.—An assignment of error, to be considered, must be based upon a material question of fact previously taken and appearing in the record, for the court will not presume error. Bailey v. Justice, 174 N. C. 733, 94 S. E. 518.

Where No Exceptions Appear.—No exceptions will be considered on appeal except as appear in the record and were made in the court below. Phipps v. Pierce, 94 N. C. 514, 515; Taylor v. Plummer, 105 N. C. 56, 11 S. E. 255.

Final Judgment.—Final judgment may be rendered in the Supreme Court, Alspaugh v. WestEdge, etc., R. R., 123 N. C. 299, 31 S. E. 707; Ray v. Veneer Co., 188 N. C. 414, 124 S. E. 756.

The Decision Certified.—The requirement of this section that the Supreme Court transmit its decision means the result reached by the court, and there is no provision requiring the clerk to certify to a court below the opinion of the court. State v. Ketchy, 71 N. C. 148.

B. Power of Superior Court.

Power Limited.—The superior court has no power to modify or change a judgment or decree of the Supreme Court certified to the court below. Its powers are confined to incidental matters of detail necessary to carry the decree into effect, not inconsistent therewith. The rule that the superior courts have authority to vacate or modify decrees made in a cause, at any time before final judgment, does not apply here. Murrill v. Murrill, 90 N. C. 120.

When a final judgment is rendered in the Supreme Court upon an appeal from a final judgment in the superior court, the latter court has power to issue no other process in the case than an execution for its own costs. Grissett v. Smith, etc., R. Co., 59 C. 259.

Judgment for Costs.—Judgment for costs in the Supreme Court is rendered in that court, the superior court has no jurisdiction in that matter. Johnson v. Davinie, etc., R. Co., 109 N. C. 594, 13 S. E. 397; Murrill v. Murrill, 90 N. C. 120; State v. White, 120 N. C. 202, N. C. 373, 16 S. E. 421.

Motion for New Trial.—Where the Supreme Court has affirmed the judgment on an appeal in a criminal case and the defendant has asked for a new trial in the superior court, under this section and § 7-16, the case is in the latter court for the purpose of the execution of the sentence, and a motion for a new trial may be there entertained for disqualification of jurors and for newly discovered evidence. State v. Casey, 201 N. C. 620, 161 S. E. 81; State v. Cox, 202 N. C. 375, 162 S. E. 907.

the same according to said opinion, and the court below shall enter upon its records the opinion at length, and proceed in the cause according to the instructions. (Rev., s. 1544; Code, s. 962; C. S. 1413.)

Editor's Note.—It is to be noted that in this section it is required that the opinion shall be certified "with instructions" etc., whereas in the preceding section, the provision, applicable to criminal cases, only required that the decision be certified.

Interlocutory Order Defined.—See sec. 1-308 and notes thereof.

Procedure Explained.—The appeal, like a writ of error, does not disturb the interlocutory order, but suspends action on it, intended to carry it into effect, until its legality or invalidity shall be determined and certified to the superior court, then, if sustained, that court is required to proceed upon the judgment as already existing; or if declared erroneous, to reverse or modify it, in conformity to the law declared. Green v. Griffin, 95 N. C. 590.

Effect of Appeal.—Appeals from interlocutory or subsidiary orders, judgments and decrees made in a cause, may be taken from an interlocutory judgment or order, to the Supreme Court. Perry v. Perry, 175 N. C. 141, 95 S. E. 98.

Motions to Dismiss.—An appeal from the refusal of a motion to dismiss an action is premature and will not lie; the proper procedure is for the movant to except, reserve exceptions and appeal from the adverse decision. Bradshaw v. Citizens Nat. Bank, 172 N. C. 632, 90 S. E. 789.

Criminal Action.—In a criminal action, there is no appeal from a final judgment of the court below. (Rev., s. 1545; Code, s. 965; R. C., c. 360; 1831, c. 46; C. S. 1414.)

III. Parties.

After Final Judgment.—The Supreme Court has no power to direct or allow amendments to the record after a final judgment wherein has been rendered. Walton v. McKesson, 101 N. C. 428, 7 S. E. 566.

Different Case Presented.—The power to amend will not be exercised where the amended case is substantially different from the one tried below and set up facts sufficient to show that the amendment will not be allowed. See Huyett, etc., Mfg. Co. v. Gray, 126 N. C. 108, 35 S. E. 762.

Same—Facts Cannot Be Found.—Under the provisions of this section the Supreme Court cannot find the facts. All that the court can do is to remand the case to the end that the lower court can discover them. Bank v. Blossom, 89 N. C. 341.

Inadvertence of Judge.—While a judge cannot resettle a case, the Supreme Court, where justice requires it, may allow the mistake to be cured by allowing an amendment to be made. Hollomon v. Hollomon, 125 N. C. 29, 34 S. E. 95.

Explanation by Parol Proof.—Where a description in a deed is uncertain, the Supreme Court, where justice requires it, may allow the uncertainty to be aided by parol proof, Allen v. Sall. Walton v. Davis, 106 N. C. 571, 11 S. E. 330.

Pleading by Guardian.—Where an infant entered a certain pleading by his guardian, the objection thereto was such a technical one that it was disregarded, although the court specifically says that had the objection any force whatever, the mistake could readily be cured by allowing an amendment to be made. Hollomon v. Hollomon, 125 N. C. 29, 34 S. E. 95.

Adverse Judgment.—See sec. 1-310 and notes thereof.

I. In General.

Extent of Power.—The Supreme Court can amend as fully as it can in superior courts, and to the same extent. Perry v. Perry, 175 N. C. 141, 95 S. E. 98.

But the power given the court under this section is not an unlimited one, even though the provisions of the section have been liberally construed and the exercise of the power therein provided for, the courts have allowed the amendments in the light of the primary object which the section was enacted, namely, to further justice between the parties and not to allow an undeserving party to gain any undue advantage due to some technical omission on the part of his adversary, which should have been pleaded or included at an earlier stage of the litigation. Hence, where the amendment is of such nature that, to allow it would make the record not conform to or correspond with what was intended, the amendment is not allowed. See Huyett, etc., Mfg. Co. v. Gray, 126 N. C. 108, 35 S. E. 762.

Rule 7-18. Power of amendment and to require further testimony.—The supreme court has power to amend any process, pleading or proceeding either in form or substance for the purpose of furthering justice, on such terms as shall be deemed just at any time before final judgment; and to amend by making proper parties to any case where the court may deem it necessary and proper for the purposes of justice and on such terms as the court may prescribe. And whenever it appears necessary for the purpose of justice, the court may allow and direct the taking of further testimony in any case on appeal, or in the original action, by any of the methods herein prescribed, or may remand the case to the intent that amendments may be made, further testimony taken or other proceedings had in the court below. (Rev., s. 1545; Code, s. 965; R. C., c. 33, s. 17; 1777, c. 115, s. 75; 1785, c. 233; 1792, c. 360; 1831, c. 46; C. S. 1414.)

suit, failed to file a replication to the answer, and the parties proceeded to take proofs in the cause, this was held, a waiver by the defendant of a replication, and the court allowed the amended pleading under this section. Fleming v. Murphy, 59 N. C. 59.

Amendment of Answer.—The supreme court has the power to grant a motion by defendant to be allowed to amend his answer, but the motion is denied where the matter sought to be alleged by amendment is immaterial to the defense. Osborne v. Canton, 219 N. C. 139, 13 S. E. (2d) 265.

III. PARTIES.

The Rule Stated.—A bill can be amended as to parties in the Supreme Court. Kent v. Bottoms, 56 N. C. 69, 70, 72.

Same—Guardian ad litem. The power to appoint a guardian ad litem, Perry v. Perry, 175 N. C. 141, 95 S. E. 98. It is useless to remand the case for such appointment where the interests of the parties have been protected by the party, who has the power to appoint, to come in and make himself a party to the proceeding in the Supreme Court. Kent v. Bottoms, 56 N. C. 37, 39, 158 S. E. 729.

Contrary Party Harmful.—While an amendment substituting parties can be allowed in the Supreme Court, it will not be allowed where it will put the opposite party to a disadvantage. Hodge v. Marietta, etc., R. R., 108 N. C. 24, 12 S. E. 1041.

IV. CASE REMANDED.

In General.—The Supreme Court has the power, in a proper case, to remand causes to the end that proper amendments may be made, or further proceedings taken in the court below; Holley v. Holley, 56 N. C. 223, 1 S. E. 553.

Essentials of Transcript Lacking.—Where the transcript of the record fails to set forth facts necessary for the determination of the case, it will be remanded to the court below, as the nature of the cause may require. Bank v. Blossom, 89 N. C. 341.

Requisites of Transcript.—See section 1-264 and notes thereto.

Insanity of Plaintiff.—Where after an appeal and before a hearing, the plaintiff became insane and was committed to an asylum, it was held that the case must be remanded. Jones v. Cotten, 108 N. C. 457, 13 S. E. 161.

Jury Trial.—Upon allegation of inadvertence in including a supersedeas bond in the appeal bond, an issue therein may be remanded to the superior court to be tried by jury. Burnett v. Nicholson, 86 N. C. 728, 730.

§ 7-14. Proof of exhibits.—Exhibits or other documents relative to cases pending in the supreme court may be received by the clerk of the court, and witnesses to examine any document with the court in the same manner and under the same rules as such exhibits or documents may be proved in the superior court, and suitors in the court may have subpoenas to enforce the attendance of witnesses, who shall be liable to the same penalties and actions for nonattendance, and be entitled to the same pay for traveling, ferriage and attendance as witnesses in the superior court: Provided, that witnesses attending the supreme court shall be taxed in the bill of costs and paid by the party on whose behalf they may be summoned. (Rev., s. 1757; Code, s. 9063; R. C., c. 33, s. 21; 1820, c. 1070; 1823, c. 1282; 1842, c. 1; C. S. 1415.)

Regular Practice Explained.—Though witnesses in some instances may be summoned, it has not been the practice. Owing both to the great addition it would make to the already large and steadily increasing volume of business in this court to examine affidavits on questions of fact, the court has adhered to its settled ruling, that it will not pass upon questions of fact, but will take the findings of fact by the judge who tried the cause below as conclusive. In re Deaton, 105 N. C. 59, 63, 11 S. E. 244.

§ 7-15. Opinions and judgments to be in writing.—The justices shall deliver their opinions and judgments in writing, and the clerk shall make no entry upon the records of the court that any cause pending therein is decided, nor give to any person a certificate of such decision, nor issue execution in such suit, until after the opinion of the court shall have been delivered publicly in open court, and a written copy of the same opinion shall have been delivered to the clerk; which shall afterwards be filed among the records of the court and published in the reports of the decisions made by the court: Provided, that the justices shall not be required to write their opinions in full except in cases in which they deem it necessary. (Rev., s. 1548; Code, s. 964; 1893, c. 379, s. 5; R. C., c. 33, s. 16; 1810, c. 785; C. S. 1416.)

Editor's Note.—Under the law as it stood prior to 1868, the calling of the judge of the court, which, in in writing, "with reasons at full length upon which they are founded," the purpose and intent of the statute being to prevent per curiam opinion.

Subsequently the statute was amended and the requirement of "reasons at full length, etc." was omitted. Still later (in 1933) it was left within the discretion of the judges by the addition of the proviso to decide when the opinions would be written. This is the situation under the law as it stands today. It has been held in at least one case that even in the absence of the statutory provision placing their discretionary power in the court, that such power exists by force of the constitutional provision giving the court the right to make its own rules of practice. State v. Council, 120 N. C. 511, 39 S. E. 814. See also 5 N. C. Law Rev. 20.

Discretion of Court.—The filing of a written opinion in a case is discretionary with the Supreme Court. Parker v. Atlantic, etc., R. R., 133 N. C. 335, 45 S. E. 638.

Under the rule, opinion deemed necessary, in Wootton v. McGinnis, 201 N. C. 841, 161 S. E. 926; Thrash v. Roberts, 201 N. C. 843, 161 S. E. 925.

§ 7-16. Certificates to superior courts; execution for costs; penalty.—The clerk on the first Monday in each month shall transmit by some safe hand, or by mail, to the clerks of the superior courts certificates of the decisions of the supreme court in cases sent from such courts, which shall have been on file ten days; and thereupon the clerks respectively shall issue execution for the costs incurred in the courts from which the cases were sent; and the clerk of the supreme court shall issue execution for the costs incurred in that court, including all publications in newspapers made in the progress of the cause in that court, and by order of the same, and all postage on letters which concern the transfer of original papers. And if the clerk fail for the space of twenty days to perform the duty herein enjoined of transmitting the certificates of decisions, he shall forfeit and pay to the party or parties in whose favor the supreme court shall have decided, one hundred dollars. (Rev., s. 1549; Code, s. 968; 1887, c. 41; R. C., c. 31, s. 1; 1820, c. 1070; 1825, c. 1282; 1849, c. 1, s. 3; C. S. 1417.)

Cross Reference.—See notes to § 7-11.

Editor's Note.—This and section 7-18 are in pari materia and must be construed together. See Emery v. Raleigh, 107 N. C. 234, 15 S. E. 645.

Generally.—By virtue of this section of opinions are certified down on the first Monday in each month, provided they shall have been on file ten days. As opinions are usually filed on Tuesday, they remain not less than thirteen days and not more than forty-two days in fieri, and, in that time, if there is error (and in criminal cases it should be scrutinized in that time), it can be observed and the matter could be called to the attention of the court, which, in such cases, on sufficient cause shown, has more than once called up the appeals dismissed.—Suits and appeals pending in the supreme court may be dismissed on failure to prosecute the same, after a rule obtained for that purpose and served on the plaintiff or appellant, his agent or attorney, at least thirty days before the term next ensuing that of entering the rule; when, if the party shall fail to prosecute his suit or appeal, the court shall, at the election of the adverse party, dismiss the suit or appeal at the costs of the plaintiff or appellant, or proceed to hear and determine it. (Rev., s. 1543; Code, s. 967; R. C., c. 33, s. 28; 1848, c. 28; 1853, c. 450, 55 S. E. 350.

Compliance with Section Essential.—Petitions to rehear must be filed according to the requirements of this section. Strickland v. Draughon, 91 N. C. 103.

Former Decision Must Be Erroneous.—Questions of law have been considered and decided the court will not reconsider the question and reverse its former decision, unless it clearly appears that it is erroneous. School Directors v. City, 90 N. C. 503, 50 S. E. 279.

Criminal Actions.—Petitions to rehear are not allowable in criminal actions. State v. Council, 129 N. C. 511, 39 S. E. 817.

Matters in Transcript Considered.—On petition to rehear a case formerly decided, the Supreme Court will not consider matters not contained in the transcript of the record. Presnell v. Garrison, 122 N. C. 595, 29 S. E. 839.

A petition to rehear must be upon the record as it was at the former hearing. Presnell v. Garrison, 122 N. C. 595, 29 S. E. 839.

Presumption.—Rehearings of decision of cases in the Supreme Court will correct errors. Hodgin v. Peoples Bank, 125 N. C. 503, 50 S. E. 279.

Cross Reference.—See § 7-16 and notes thereto.

Failure to Docket.—An appeal is dismissed for failure to docket the record at the first term of the court at which a judgment was rendered, or within twenty days after the commencement of the succeeding term, and upon the filing of such petition the chief justice, or any one of the associate justices, may, upon such terms as he sees fit, make an order restraining the issuing of an execution, or the collection and payment of the same, until the next term of said court, or until the petition to rehear shall have been determined. (Rev., s. 1546; Code, s. 966; R. C., c. 33, s. 18; Supreme Court Rules 53, 58, 54; C. S. 1419.)

Costs.—Judgment for costs in the supreme court is rendered in that court; the superior court has no jurisdiction in such cases. Johnson v. Danville, etc., R. R., 123 N. C. 299, 31 S. E. 707.

Failure to Docket Transcript.—An appeal will be dismissed upon a failure of the appellant to docket the transcript as directed. Cox v. Kinston, etc., R. R., 177 N. C. 227, 19 S. E. 521.

Same—When Deemed Docketed.—An appeal is deemed docketed when the transcript is received by the clerk of the court. Brafford v. Reed, 124 N. C. 345, 32 S. E. 726.

Failure to Print Record.—The appeal will be dismissed where there is a failure to print the record in accordance with the rules. Bradshaw v. Stansbury, 164 N. C. 356, 79 S. E. 302.

Filing of Bond Gives Notice.—An appeal will not be dismissed upon the ground that no notice of appeal was given, where the record shows that an appeal bond was filed and approved by the court. The filing of the bond and its approval in open court is notice to the appellee. Capehart v. Higgins & Co., 90 N. C. 373.

Compliance with Statutory Regulation Essential.—Compliance with the statutory regulation as to appeals is a condition precedent, without which (unless waived) the right to appeal does not become potential. Hence, it is no defense to say that there was negligence of counsel and negligence of the party. Cozart v. Assurance Co., 142 N. C. 522, 65 S. E. 411.

The rules of court are not merely directory, and a failure of the appellant to prosecute his appeal in accordance with the rules will result in the dismissal of the appeal. Pipkin v. Green, 112 N. C. 355, 17 S. E. 534.

Where an appeal is not prosecuted according to law, the court will correct it. Hodgin v. Peoples Bank, 125 N. C. 503, 50 S. E. 279.

Court Will Correct Errors.—When a rehearing has been ordered and the judgment is erroneous, the court shall correct it. Weisel v. Cobb, 122 N. C. 67, 55 S. E. 490.

Court Will Correct Errors.—When a rehearing has been ordered and a manifest error is made to appear, the court will correct it. Hodgins v. Peoples Bank, 125 N. C. 503, 53 S. E. 769, 7 S. E. 839.

Burden of Proof.—The burden of showing error is on the petitioner. Webb v. Hicks, 125 N. C. 201, 34 S. E. 395.

Notice.—A purchaser of land conveyed by the certificate of sale is estopped upon a decision of this court, when it is proved by evidence fixed with notice of the fact that petition for rehearing could be filed at any time after § 7-19. Records to be made.—The court may order the clerk to record such parts of the record of cases as it may deem necessary. (Rev., s. 1541; Code, s. 961; R. C., c. 33, s. 13; 1918, c. 963; C. S. 1421.)

§ 7-20. Power to make rules of practice.—The justices of the supreme court shall prescribe and establish from time to time rules of practice for that court and also for the superior courts. The clerk shall certify to the judges of the superior courts that was sought to be reheard. Nelson v. Hunter, 145 N. C. 334, 59 S. E. 116.

§ 7-21. Supreme court to prescribe rules; rules to conform to law.—The supreme court is hereby vested with the power to prescribe rules from time to time for the making and filing of proceedings, actions, and pleadings, and of entering orders and judgments and recording the same, and to regulate the procedures in appeals to the supreme court, and in the trial of actions in the superior court, and before referees: Provided, no rule or regulation so adopted shall be in conflict with any of the provisions of this code. Such rules as may be adopted by the supreme court shall be printed and distributed by the secretary of state as are the reports of the supreme court. (Ex. Sess. 1921, c. 92, s. 1, subsec. 20; C. S. 1421(a).)

Art. 3. Officers of Court.

§ 7-22. The court may appoint acting attorney-general.—If the attorney-general should fail at any term of the supreme court to attend to the business which by law is assigned him, the court may appoint some counsel learned in the law to discharge his duties during the term. (Rev., s. 1551; Code, s. 969; R. C., c. 33, s. 23; 1846, c. 29; C. S. 1422.)

§ 7-23. Reporter.—The supreme court may employ a reporter of its decisions. (Rev., s. 1553; Code, s. 3363; 1893, c. 379, s. 4; 1897, c. 489; C. S. 1423.)

§ 7-26. Clerk of supreme court; salary; fees.—The clerk of the supreme court shall receive an annual salary of three hundred dollars, to be paid semiannually, on a certificate of the justices; and, in addition thereto, the following fees, namely: For recording the papers and proceedings in the causes decided in the supreme court, which are required by law to be recorded, such compensation as may be estimated by the justices of the court at each term, not to exceed thirty cents for each page recorded, to be paid by the treasurer of the state auditor on the warrant of the state auditor drawn upon the state treasurer. (Rev., s. 2771; Code, ss. 3363, 3728; 1893, c. 379; 1897, c. 429; 1914, c. 107; 1910, c. 1917; 1921, c. 143; Ex. Sess. 1921, c. 29; C. S. 3861, 3889.)

§ 7-27. Clerk's bond and oath of office.—Before undertaking his duties, the clerk of the supreme court shall enter into bond with sufficient surety payable to the state of North Carolina, in the sum of fifteen thousand dollars, conditioned for the faithful discharge of his duties and for the safe keeping of all records committed to his custody, which bond shall be lodged with the secretary of state; and he shall also before said justices, or one of them, take the oaths which are prescribed for clerks of the superior court, and shall keep his office in the city of Raleigh. (Rev., s. 290; Code, s. 958; R. C., c. 33, s. 9; 1812, c. 829, s. 2; 1818, c. 963, s. 5; 1846, c. 28, s. 3; 1799, c. 520, s. 2; C. S. 1425.)

Cross Reference.—As to action on official bonds, see § 109-14 and notes thereto. As to forms of oaths, see §§ 11-6, 11-7, 11-11. As to constitutional requirement and form, see Con., Art. VI, s. 7.

§ 7-28. Clerk to report money on hand.—The clerk of the supreme court shall, at the beginning of each fall term, produce to the court a statement on oath of all moneys remaining in his hands which have been paid into his office three years or more previous thereto, whether received directly from parties or from his predecessor in office, and is not detained in his hands by special order of the court, specifying therein the name of the person to whom the same is payable, and his address, if known; a copy of which report shall be transmitted to the state treasurer and to the auditor. (Rev., s. 1554; Code, s. 1864; R. C., c. 73; 1823, c. 1186; 1831, c. 3; C. S. 1426.)

§ 7-29. Marshal; librarian. —The Supreme Court may appoint a marshal of the Supreme Court, removable at will, who shall have the criminal and civil powers of a sheriff and shall attend upon the court during its sessions. The Supreme Court may consolidate the duties of the marshal with those of the librarian; when so consolidated the compensation of the marshal-librarian shall be fixed by the Supreme Court, with the approval of the governor. (Rev., s. 1555; Code, s. 950; 1873-4, c. 34; 1881, c. 306; 1939, c. 4; C. S. 1427.)

Art. 4. Supreme Court Library.

§ 7-30. Location.—The Supreme Court Library shall occupy the fifth floor of the Department of Justice Building. (Rev., s. 5083; 1885, c. 121, s. 7; 1913, c. 99, s. 1; C. S. 6588.)

§ 7-31. Trustees; powers; duties.—The Justices of the Supreme Court shall be, ex officio, the trustees of the Supreme Court Library and all moneys appropriated for its benefit shall be paid out under their direction and supervision. They shall have general charge and control of the library with authority to acquire, lend, exchange, and dispose of books and equipment in the interest of the library, but may, in their discretion, employ a librarian to discharge this function under such regulations and orders as they may prescribe. The trustees may employ an assistant librarian and such other assistants as may be deemed necessary for the efficient functioning of the library. (Rev., s. 5084; Code, s. 3606; 1883, c. 100; 1889, c. 482; 1937, c. 173; C. S. 1428, 6589.)

Cross Reference.—As to supreme court rule relating to duties of librarian, see Rule 41, subsection 1.

Editor's Note.—The 1937 amendment authorized the appointment of an assistant librarian.

§ 7-32. Library hours; night use.—The library shall be kept open during such hours and under such conditions as the trustees may prescribe; attorneys of North Carolina, and such other persons as the trustees may deem proper, shall be admitted to the library at night upon application and compliance with reasonable rules adopted by the trustees. (Rev., s. 5085; 1889, c. 498; C. S. 6590.)

Cross Reference.—As to supreme court rule relating to use of books in the library, see Rule 41, subsection 2.

§ 7-33. Appropriation.—In addition to the funds regularly appropriated for the library, the clerk of the supreme court shall, upon order of the librarian under the general supervision and control of the trustees, expend for the maintenance and equipment of the library the funds, in excess of the actual expenses of each examination, paid in by the board of Law Examiners from the fees of applicants. (Rev., s. 5086; Code, s. 3613; Rev., 1872-3; 1925, c. 275, s. 6; C. S. 6591.)

Editor's Note.—By the act of 1923 a provision for the expenditure of $200 for the binding of books was omitted.

Art. 5. Supreme Court Reports.

§ 7-34. Supreme court reports; contract for printing.—The Supreme Court is authorized to contract from time to time for the printing of its reports; to select a printer for the same and to prescribe such terms of contract as will insure, under the supervision of the Court, the prompt issue of the reports, as soon as practicable after a sufficient number of opinions are filed. Such contract shall be made after consultation with the division of purchase and contract after a comparison of prices for similar work in other states to such an extent as may be practicable. (Rev., s. 5093; 1905, c. 400; 1929, c. 39, s. 1; 1931, c. 261, s. 3; 1931, c. 312, ss. 14, 15; C. S. 7296.)

Cross Reference.—See § 143-49.

In General.—Upon the Supreme Court devolves the duty only of selecting the printer and directing the style and general execution of the work, the price of which is restricted to that allowed and fixed by the committee. In re Printing of the Supreme Court Reports, 153 N. C. 669, 70 S. E. 630.

§ 7-35. Supreme court reports; number printed.—Of the supreme court reports there shall be printed and bound in full sheep or buckram as many copies, not less than seven hundred and fifty, as in the opinion of the attorney-general and secretary of state may be sufficient to supply the demand. All such copies shall be delivered to the secretary of state. Advance sheets of the supreme court reports are hereby authorized to be printed, and to be sold, under the rules of the supreme court. (Rev., s. 5097; Code, s. 3632; 1893, c. 146, s. 2; 1897, c. 135; 1901, c. 401, s. 2; 1919, c. 314, s. 4; 1923, c. 25; C. S. 7297.)

Editor's Note.—The 1923 amendment added the last sentence.

Art. 6. Salaries of Supreme Court Employees.

§ 7-36. Governor and council to fix certain salaries.—The governor and council of state shall constitute a board to adjust and fix the compensation to be paid to the employees of the Supreme Court. (1921, c. 143, ss. 1, 4; Ex. Sess. 1921, c. 29; Ex. Sess. 1924, c. 124; C. S. 8861.)

Editor's Note.—Under the 1924 amendment this section was applicable to employees of the State Library.

§ 7-37. Limit of salary; certificate and payment.—The compensation fixed under § 7-36 shall not exceed three thousand dollars per annum, except as may be elsewhere provided by law, for any individual employee, and shall be certified by the governor to the state auditor, and paid as provided by law for the payment of other salaries. (1921, c. 143, s. 2; C. S. 3861(a).)

§ 7-38. Proceedings and reports.—The proceedings of the board shall be kept by the state auditor, and reported to each regular session of the general assembly. (1921, c. 143, s. 3; C. S. 3861(b.).)

§ 7-39. Employment of additional assistants; compensation.—The governor and council of state are authorized and empowered to employ any additional clerical or stenographic help, for the Supreme Court, upon written request from the Chief Justice, and when they are satisfied that such additional help is needed temporarily, to do the departmental work efficiently, and to fix the salary of such additional help at not to exceed eighteen hundred dollars for any one person. (Ex. Sess. 1920, c. 95, s. 2; C. S. 3861(d.).)

SUBCHAPTER II. SUPERIOR COURTS.

Art. 7. Organization.

§ 7-40. Number of judges and solicitors.—The state shall be divided into twenty-one superior court judicial districts, for each of which a judge shall be chosen in the manner now prescribed by law. The state shall also be divided into twenty-one soliciitorial districts as set out in § 7-68, for each of which a solicitor shall be chosen in the manner now prescribed by law. (1913, cc. 9, 63; Const. Art. 4, s. 10; 1943, c. 134, s. 3; C. S. 1420.)

Editor's Note.—The 1943 amendment substituted "twentynone" for "twenty" in line two, and added the second sentence.

For acting twenty-first judicial district and providing for judge and solicitor thereof, see Public Laws 1917, c. 413, s. 5; 6.

Judge Appointed Prior to Creation of District.—Appointment of a judge of the superior court prior to the date when the act creating the judicial district takes effect is invalid. Stauffer v. Shuford, 138 N. C. 590, 38 S. E. 698.

§ 7-41. Election and term of office of judges.—The judges of the superior courts shall be elected in like manner as is provided for justices of the supreme court, and shall hold their offices for eight years. (Const. Art. 4, s. 21; C. S. 1430.)

Cross Reference.—For manner of electing supreme court justices, see § 7-2.

§ 7-42. Salaries of superior court judges.—The salary of each of the judges of the superior court shall be six thousand five hundred dollars per annum, and each judge shall be allowed the sum of one thousand five hundred and fifty dollars in lieu of his traveling expenses, to be paid monthly. They shall also receive one hundred dollars per week and their actual expenses incurred in attending and holding special terms of court by assignment of the governor, which expenses shall be paid by the county in which such special term is held. (Rev., s. 2765; Code, ss. 3734; 1891, c. 193; 1901, c. 167; 1905, c. 208; 1907, c. 988; 1909, c. 89; 1911, c. 82; 1919, c. 51; 1921, c. 25; s. 3; 1923, c. 227; 1927, c. 69, s. 2; C. S. 3884.)

Cross Reference.—As to compensation of judge in district having fewer than 20 regular weeks of term, see § 7-79.

Editor's Note.—The 1927 amendment increased the salary from $5,000 to $6,500.

Additional Compensation Part of Salary.—The additional compensation of one hundred dollars given to a superior court judge by this section for services in holding a special term, is a part of his salary. Buxton v. Commissioners, 82 N. C. 91.

As to taxing salaries of judges, see Const., Art. IV, § 18.

§ 7-43. Election and term of office of solicitors.—A solicitor shall be elected for each soliciitorial district by the qualified voters thereof, as is prescribed for members of the general assembly, who shall hold office for the term of four years, and prosecute on behalf of the state in all criminal actions in the superior courts, and advise the officers of justice in his district. (Const., Art. 4, s. 23; 1943, c. 134, s. 4; C. S. 1431.)

Local Modification.—Forsyth: 1927, c. 129.

Cross References.—As to when term begins, see § 163-114.

As to duty of solicitors to bring action for failure of trustee of charitable trust to file account, see § 36-20. As to duty of solicitor to appear in contempt actions, see § 5-5. As to duty to prosecute in certain violations of law by county officers, see § 151-119. As to duty to investigate in case of lynching, see § 15-98. As to duty to inform grand juries in adjoining counties in case of lynching, see § 15-128. As to duty to aid in prosecuting for violation of laws governing monopolies and trusts, see § 72-197.

Editor's Note.—The 1943 amendment, which substituted "soliciitorial" for "judicial" in line two, further provided: Wherever reference to the solicitor of a "judicial district" appears in any statute the same shall be deemed to refer to the solicitor of a "soliciitorial district."

§ 7-44. Solicitors; general compensation.—The several solicitors of the soliciitorial districts of the state of North Carolina shall each receive, as full compensation for services as solicitor, the sum of forty-five hundred dollars ($4,500.00), to be paid in equal monthly installments out of the state treasury upon warrants duly drawn thereon, which said salaries shall be in lieu of fees or other compensation, except the expenses allowed in § 7-45. (Rev., s. 2767; Code, s. 3736; 1879, c. 240, s. 12; 1923, c. 157, s. 1; 1933, c. 78, s. 1; 1935, c. 278; 1943, c. 134, s. 4; C. S. 3890.)

Editor's Note.—The amendment of 1915 increased the salary from $3,500 to $4,500.

The 1943 amendment substituted "soliciitorial" for "judicial" in line two.

In Moore v. Roberts, 87 N. C. 11, it was held that the solicitor of the criminal court of a county has no claim upon the State for such compensation as is allowed the district solicitors under this section, where the act establishing said court puts the burden of sustaining the same upon the county.

§ 7-45. Appropriation for expenses of soliciitor.—Each solicitor shall receive, in addition to the salary named in § 7-44, the sum of five hundred ($500.00) dollars per annum, which will cover all of his expenses while engaged in duties connected with his office. Said sum shall be paid in equal monthly installments out of the state treasury upon warrant duly drawn thereon. (1923, c. 157, s. 2; 1933, c. 78, s. 2; 1937, c. 248; C. S. 3890(a.).)

Editor's Note.—This section, first inserted by the act of 1923 and providing $750 for expenses, was repealed in 1933. The present section was codified from the 1937 act.

§ 7-46. Residence and rotation of judges.—Every judge of the superior court shall reside in the district for which he is elected. The judges shall preside in the courts of the different districts successively, but no judge shall hold the courts in the same district oftener than once in four years, but in case of the protracted illness of the judge assigned to preside in any district, or of any other unavoidable accident to him, by reason of which he shall be unable to preside, the governor may require any judge to hold one or more specified
§ 7-47. Emergency judges; duties; compensation.—The persons embraced within the provisions of section 7-51 are hereby constituted emergency judges of the superior court under article four of the constitution of this state, and are authorized to hold the superior courts of any county or district when the judge assigned thereto, by reason of sickness, disability, or other cause, is unable to attend and hold said court, and when no other judge is available to hold the same, and to hold special terms when commissioned so to do by the governor, and as compensation for holding such special terms shall receive their actual expenses and in addition thereto fifteen dollars per week, to be paid by the county in which such special term is held.

§ 7-49. When judge may discharge solicitor.—When any state solicitor, authorized by election or appointment to act as prosecuting attorney for or in behalf of the state of North Carolina, in any of the courts of said state, shall appear at such court, in term time, drunk or intoxicated, or when it shall be brought to the knowledge of the judge presiding at such court that the solicitor whose duty it is to represent the state at such court is in the town in which such court is being held, drunk or intoxicated, at any time, it shall become the duty of such judge and he is hereby directed to immediately discharge such solicitor from the duties of such court, for the term then being held, and appoint some competent attorney to act as state solicitor for the term. The appointee shall be allowed all the fees and compensation belonging to the solicitor for such term. (Rev., s. 1499; 1901, c. 717; C. S. 1435.)

Cross References.—As to forms of oaths, see §§ 11-6, 11-7, 11-11. As to penalty for failure, see § 128-5. As to constitutional requirement and form, see Const., Art. VI, s. 7.
The provisions herein as to the amount of lifetime pay shall relate back to and become effective as of the fourth day of March, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-one, and the state treasurer is authorized and directed to pay on account of the state auditor the salary of any justice or judge as affected by such provisions, less any amount heretofore paid. (1921, c. 125, s. 1; Ex. Sess. 1921, c. 20, ss. 1, 2; 1927, cc. 133, 201; 1935, cc. 233, 400; 1937, c. 199; 1939, c. 258; 1943, c. 543; C. S. § 5884(a).)

Editor's Note.—The amendment of 1935 reduced the retirement age from seventy (70) years to sixty-five (65) years and added the phrase reading: "or twelve consecutive years on the supreme court." The 1937 amendment, inserting the provision as to disability through accident or disease provides: "The provisions of this amendatory act shall apply without regard to the age of the judge or justice affected." The 1939 amendment inserted the words "regular or special" near the beginning of the section and the words "or six years" after the words "served one full term." The 1943 amendment substituted "sixty-fifth" for "seventieth" in the fourteenth line from the end of the section. See § 7-55.

§ 7-52. Jurisdiction and powers of emergency judges.—To the end that emergency judges provided for in § 7-50 shall have the fullest power and authority sanctioned by Article Four (IV), Section Eleven (11), of the Constitution of North Carolina, such judges are hereby vested in the courts which are duly appointed to hold, with the same power and authority in all matters whatsoever that regular judges holding the same courts would have. An emergency judge duly assigned to hold the court of a particular county shall have, during said term of court, in open court and in chambers, the power and authority of a regular judge in all matters whatsoever arising in that judicial district that could properly be heard or determined by a regular judge holding the same term of court. (Ex. Sess. 1921, c. 94, s. 1; 1925, c. 8; 1941, c. 52, s. 2; C. S. § 1435(b).)

Cross Reference.—As to duty of governor to assign judges when regular judges not available, see § 7-71.

§ 7-53. Orders returnable to another judge; notice.—If any special or emergency judge has made any matters returnable before him, and subsequent thereto he should be called upon by the governor to hold court elsewhere, said judge shall make an order directing said matter to be heard before some other judge, setting forth in said order the time and place same is to be heard, and send a copy of said order to the attorney or attorneys representing the parties plaintiff and defendant in such matter. (Ex. Sess. 1921, c. 94, s. 2; C. S. § 1435(c).)

§ 7-54. Governor to make appointment of four special judges.—The governor of North Carolina may appoint four persons who shall possess the requirements and qualifications of special judges as prescribed by article four, section eleven of the constitution, and who shall take the same oath of office and otherwise be subject to the same requirements and disabilities as are or may be prescribed by law for judges of the superior court, save the requirements of residence in a particular district, to be special judges of the superior courts of the state of North Carolina. Two of the said judges shall be appointed from the western judicial division and two from the eastern judicial division, as now established. The governor shall issue a commission to each of said judges so appointed for a term to begin July first, one thousand nine hundred and forty-three, and to end June thirtieth, one thousand nine hundred and forty-five, and the said commission shall constitute his authority to perform the duties of the office of a special judge of the superior courts during the time named hereinafter. (1927, c. 206, s. 1; 1929, c. 137, s. 1; 1931, c. 29, s. 1; 1933, c. 217, s. 2; 1935, c. 97, s. 1; 1937, c. 72, s. 1; 1939, c. 31, s. 1; 1941, c. 51, s. 1; 1943, c. 58, s. 1.)

For a discussion of this statute, see Jerome on Civil Procedure, p. 37.

Editor's Note.—Prior to the amendment of 1943, this section was mandatory. It required that the governor shall appoint, etc.

The subsequent amendments re-enacted sections 7-54 to 7-61 without change except as to dates, and as specified in the note to § 7-55. For comment on the 1941 amendment, see 19 N. C. Law Rev. 473.

Judicial Notice of Appointment as Special Judge.—The Supreme Court will take judicial notice of the appointment of a special justice under the provisions of this chapter. Greene v. Stadim, 197 N. C. 672, 149 S. E. 635.

When necessary for the determination of a case on appeal, the Supreme Court will take judicial notice of the counties comprising a judicial district, and that a judge holding a term in one of the counties was a special justice appointed by the Governor under the authority of this section. Reid v. Reid, 199 N. C. 740, 153 S. E. 719.

§ 7-55. Time for appointment.—Each special judge shall be appointed by the governor on or before July first, one thousand nine hundred and forty-three, and shall be subject to removal from office for the same causes and in the same manner as regular judges of the superior court; and vacancies occurring in the offices created by §§ 7-54 to 7-61 shall be filled by the governor in the same manner for the unexpired term thereof. (1927, c. 206, s. 2; 1929, c. 137, s. 2; 1931, c. 29, s. 2; 1933, c. 217, s. 2; 1935, c. 97, s. 2; 1937, c. 72, s. 2; 1939, c. 31, s. 2; 1941, c. 51, s. 2; 1943, c. 58, s. 2.)

§ 7-56. Further appointments.—The governor is further authorized and empowered, if in his judgment the necessity exists therefor, to appoint at such time as he may determine, not exceeding four additional judges, two of whom shall be residents of the eastern judicial division and two of whom shall be residents of the western judicial division, whose term of office shall begin from his or their appointment and qualification and end June thirtieth, one thousand nine hundred and forty-five. The provisions of §§ 7-54 to 7-61 applicable to the four special judges shall be applicable to the four special judges authorized to be appointed under this section. (1927, c. 206, s. 3; 1929, c. 137, s. 3; 1931, c. 29, s. 3; 1933, c. 217, s. 3; 1935, c. 97, s. 3; 1937, c. 72, s. 3; 1939, c. 31, s. 3; 1941, c. 51, s. 3; 1943, c. 58, s. 3.)

Editor's Note.—The 1941 amendment authorized the appointment of four additional judges, the appointment of two having been previously authorized. For comment on this amendment, see 19 N. C. Law Rev. 473.

§ 7-57. Extent of authority. — The authority conferred in §§ 7-54 to 7-61 upon the governor, pursuant to article four, section eleven, of the constitution of North Carolina, to appoint such special judges shall extend to regular as well as special terms of the superior court, with either civil or criminal jurisdiction, or both, as may be designated by the statutes or by the governor pursuant to law. (1927, c. 206, s. 4; 1929, c. 137,
s. 4; 1931, c. 29, s. 4; 1933, c. 217, s. 4; 1935, c. 97,
s. 4; 1937, c. 72, s. 4; 1939, c. 31, s. 4; 1941, c. 51,
s. 8; 1943, c. 58, s. 4.)

§ 7-58. Jurisdiction as of regular judges.—
To the end that such special judges shall have the fullest power and authority sanctioned by article four, section eleven, of the constitution of North Carolina, such judges are hereby vested, in the courts which they are duly appointed to hold, with the same power and authority in all matters whatsoever that regular judges holding the same courts would have. A special judge duly assigned to hold the court of a particular county shall have during said term of court, in open court and in chambers, the same power and authority of a regular judge in all matters whatsoever arising in that judicial district that could properly be heard or determined by a regular judge holding the same term of court.
(1927, c. 206, s. 5; 1929, c. 137, s. 5; 1931, c. 29, s.
5; 1933, c. 217, s. 5; 1935, c. 97, s. 5; 1937, c. 72, s.
5; 1939, c. 31, s. 5; 1941, c. 51, s. 5; 1943, c. 58, s. 5.)

No Jurisdiction When Not Holding Term of Court.—A special or emergency judge has no authority to determine a controversy without action at chambers when not holding a term of court. Greene v. Stadium, 197 N. C. 472, 14 S. E. 2d. See also Bohannon v. Virginia Trust Co.,
198 N. C. 702, 153 S. E. 263, and cases cited under § 7-63.

Special Judge Holding Single Term—Motion for Alimony.
—Where a special judge has been authorized under com-mision of the Governor to hold a term of court in only one county of a district, he may not issue an order for alimony, attorney's fees and costs in a proceeding in an action for divorce a vinculo, continued to be heard before a judge regularly holding the terms of court in that district and this being determinative of the appeal the question is not presented as to whether it was required that the appellant should make it appear by the Governor's commission, or otherwise, that the regular judge assigned was unable to attend and hold courts, etc. N. C. Const.
Art. IV, §§ 10 and 11. Reid v. Reid, 199 N. C. 740, 155
22 S. E. (2d) 576 (dis. op.).

§ 7-59. Salary, expenses; terms; practice of law.—The special judges so appointed shall receive the same salary and traveling expenses as now are, or may hereafter be, paid or allowed to judges of the superior court for holding their regularly assigned courts, and they shall hold all such regular and special terms of court as they may be directed and assigned by the governor to hold, without additional compensation: Provided, that no person named under §§ 7-54 to 7-61 shall engage in the private practice of law. (1927, c. 206, s. 6;
1929, c. 137, s. 6; 1931, c. 29, s. 6; 1933, c. 217, s.
6; 1941, c. 51, s. 6; 1943, c. 58, s. 6.)

§ 7-60. Powers after commission expires.—Nothing in §§ 7-54 to 7-61 shall be construed to prohibit such special judges from settling cases on appeal and making all proper orders in regard thereto after the time for which they were commissioned has expired. (1927, c. 206, s. 7; 1929, c. 137, s. 7;
1931, c. 29, s. 7; 1933, c. 217, s. 7; 1935, c. 97, s. 7;
1937, c. 72, s. 7; 1939, c. 31, s. 7; 1941, c. 51, s. 7;

§ 7-61. Effect on sections 7-50 and 7-51.—Nothing in §§ 7-54 to 7-60 shall in any manner affect §§ 7-50 and 7-51. (1927, c. 206, s. 8; 1929, c. 137, s. 8;
1931, c. 29, s. 8; 1933, c. 217, s. 8; 1935, c. 97, s.
8; 1937, c. 72, s. 8; 1939, c. 31, s. 8; 1941, c. 51, s. 8;
1943, c. 58, s. 8.)

§ 7-62. Disposition of motions where judge disqualified.—Whenever the judge before whom any motion is made, either at term time or at chambers, shall disqualify himself from determining it, he may in his discretion refer the same for disposition to the resident judge of any adjoining district, who shall have full power and authority to hear and determine the cause in the same manner as if he were the presiding judge of the district in which the cause arose. (1939,
s. 48.)

Art. 8. Jurisdiction.

§ 7-63. Original jurisdiction. — The superior court has original jurisdiction of all civil actions whereof exclusive original jurisdiction is not given to some other court; and of all criminal actions in which the punishment may exceed a fine of fifty dollars, or imprisonment for thirty days; and of all such affrays as shall be committed within one mile of the place where, and during the time, such court is being held; and of all offenses whereof exclusive original jurisdiction is given to justices of the peace, if some justice of the peace shall not within twelve months after the commission of the offense proceed to take official cognizance thereof. (Rev., s. 1500; Code, s. 922; 1889, c. 504, s. 2; Const., Art. IV, ss. 12, 27; 1879, c. 95, s. 11; 1881, c. 210; C. S. 1486.)

I. IN GENERAL.

Constitutionality of Section.—The General Assembly has constitutional authority to distribute among the other courts prescribed in the Constitution that portion of judicial power and jurisdiction which does not pertain to the Supreme Court. Const., Art. IV, sec. 12; Williams v. Williams, 188
N. C. 728, 125 S. E. 452.

The constitutional jurisdiction of the superior court, generally, may be stated as intermediate between the Supreme Court and the courts of justices of the peace. Mott v.
Board, 126 N. C. 866, 36 S. E. 330.

Distribution of Jurisdiction Question of Procedure.—The interpretation of the Constitution and statutes as to the distribution of jurisdiction among the superior and inferior courts, and courts of the peace, involves no rule of property, but only of procedure. Singer Sewing

General Jurisdiction of Superior Court.—The jurisdiction of the superior court is general and not limited, except in the sense that it has been narrowed from time to time by carving out a portion of this general jurisdiction and giving

The superior court, under the provisions of this section, has exclusive original jurisdiction in all cases when it is not given to some other court. State v. Waldrop, 63 N. C. 507, 509.

The superior court is a court of general common-law jurisdiction, with power to try all actions founded on contract, where the principal sum demanded is above $200, and such other actions which have been or may be entitled by statute to be brought there, not excepted by the limits of the constitution. Walton v. Walton, 80 N. C. 26.

The superior court is one of general jurisdiction, being the highest court of original jurisdiction in the State, and it may take cognizance of all suits, which are not taken from it by statute. State v. Garland, 29 N. C. 48, 49.

A nonresident plaintiff may maintain an action against the defendant for the plaintiff's wife, as money demanded by plaintiff's wife upon insistent demand, the complaint stating the sum demanded, and a verdict is rendered for less than the demand, the plaintiff cannot be allowed to "split up" the account and recover upon each item. Jarret v. Self, 90 N. C. 478.

Action to Recover Loan.—The superior court has not original jurisdiction of an action by a stockholder in an insurance company doing business as a building and loan association, against the company, to recover an overpayment of interest on a loan, where the amount sought to be recovered does not exceed the sum of $200. Gilliam v. Life Ins. Co., 121 N. C. 369, 28 S. E. 470.

Waiver of Tort.—The superior court possesses no jurisdiction in actions in which a tort is waived and suit is brought on an implied contract for less than $200. Winslow v. Weith, 66 N. C. 432.

Less Than Statutory Amount.—In an action, founded on an implied contract, by the sheriff against his deputy for a mesneless in office, the superior court has no jurisdiction where the amount demanded is less than $200. Latham v. Rollins, 72 N. C. 454.

Where Recovery of Jurisdictional Amount Impossible.—The superior court has no original jurisdiction of a legal cause of action, founded on contract, when in no event can the plaintiff recover as much as $200. Howard v. Mutual, etc., Ins. Co., 126 N. C. 420, 42 S. E. 8.

b. Previous Remission.

The fact that plaintiff has remitted damages in excess of $200 in his action sued on in the justice's court does not necessarily oust the jurisdiction of the superior court in an action brought on the same contract there. Brock v. Scott, 159 N. C. 313, 75 S. E. 724.

But the superior court has no jurisdiction of an action to recover upon a running account of $32, where it is shown that from time to time the defendant had reduced the account by payments, whether he knew it or not, at the time the action is brought. Wiserman v. Witherow, 90 N. C. 140.

2. Good Faith.

Generally.—It is the amount demanded in good faith (definable as an honest purpose plus relation to the facts alleged in the complaint as a whole which reasonably tend to support it), that fixes the jurisdiction of the court. Thompson v. Southern Express Co., 144 N. C. 389, 57 S. E. 18; Wooten v. Biggs Drug Co., 169 N. C. 64, 85 S. E. 140.

While the sum demanded ordinarily determines the jurisdiction, yet the plaintiff must make his demand in good faith and not for the purpose of giving the court jurisdiction. Wiserman v. Witherow, 90 N. C. 140.

Bona Fide Contention.—In an action involving the construction of a contract, where it is apparent that there was a bona fide contention for more than $200, the superior court has jurisdiction. Horner School v. Westcott, 154 N. C. 518, 32 S. E. 885.

III. ACTIONS EX DELICTO.

Constitution and Statute.—Under our Constitution and statute jurisdiction is conferred upon a justice of the peace concurrent with that of the superior court of all actions of tort wherein the damages do not exceed the sum of $200. But the superior court has jurisdiction of all actions of tort wherein the damages do not exceed $500, or less. House v. Bonnal & Co., 149 N. C. 51, 62 S. E. 776, and cases cited.

Failure to Prove Allegation in Entirety.—Where a cause of action within the jurisdiction of the superior court is alleged in good faith, jurisdiction is not lost by failure to prove the allegation in its entirety, and in an action in tort the superior court has jurisdiction though the sum demanded is less than $200. Fields v. Brown, 160 N. C. 295, 76 S. E. 649.

Conversion.—The superior court has jurisdiction of an action for damages for the conversion of property where the amount claimed is one hundred and twenty-five dollars. Asher v. Reizenstein, 105 N. C. 213, 10 S. E. 889. Deceiving and False Warranty.—An indictment for deceit and false warranty, in the sale of a horse, is cognizable in the superior court, and manifestly upon mature consideration, that the amount claimed is one hundred and twenty-five dollars. Asher v. Reizenstein, 105 N. C. 213, 10 S. E. 889. False warranty, in the sale of a horse, is cognizable in the nature of deceit, and the superior court, though the damages claimed amount only said: "It has been settled by a line of decisions in this court will have jurisdiction." Bullinger v. Marshall, 70 N. C. 520; Asher v. Gray, 88 N. C. 190; S. C., 90 N. C. 137; Harvey v. Handley, 108 N. C. 43. Proof of Guilty Knowledge.—The complaint being for a tort, sustains the jurisdiction, though the charge of a guilty knowledge of the falsity of the representations which influenced the plaintiff in making the contract of which no issue was asked to be made up. Fields v. Brown, 160 N. C. 295, 700, 70 S. E. 6. Waiver of Tort.—Plaintiff may waive the tort and sue in contract. Bullinger v. Marshall, 70 N. C. 520; McDonald v. Cannon, etc., Co., 82 N. C. 245, but where this course is pursued, it is incumbent upon the plaintiff to allege in good faith a claim amounting to more than $200. Winslow v. Weith, 66 N. C. 432. Where, in an action for damages in the sum of $125, for the conversion of certain cotton, the complaint alleges that the defendants presented two bales of cotton at a certain price per pound on the terms that the price was to be paid down and no title to pass until the price was paid, and defendant, on getting possession of the cotton, refused to pay the price, it was held, that the superior court had jurisdiction. McDonald v. Cannon, etc., Co., 82 N. C. 245. In such case the plaintiffs might have recovered damages, and sued for the price agreed to be paid (less than $200), and then a justice of the peace would have had jurisdiction of the action. Id. IV. CRIMINAL ACTIONS. A. Generally. The superior court has original jurisdiction of assaults and batteries: 1st, when a deadly weapon is used; 2nd, when serious damage is done; 3rd, when the offense was committed six months (now twelve months) before the finding of the indictment was not found, and no justice has taken jurisdiction of the offense has been taken cognizance of the crime. State v. Cunningham, 94 N. C. 824. See also, State v. Phillips, 194 N. C. 776, 10 S. E. 463. Establishments for All Crimes Included.—Having acquired cognizance of an imputed crime, which was assault with intent to commit rape, the court may proceed to dispose of the complaint and assess damages, or that same jurisdiction in this respect as that of the English High Courts of Chancery. Coxe v. Charles Stores Co., 215 N. C. 360, 1 S. E. (2d) 253. Impleader.—Where the controversy involves an action in the nature of a bill of interpleader to determine the right of two adverse claimants to a fund, jurisdiction of the superior court attached upon the ground that it is an exception of the power of the court enforceable by a bill in equity under the old system. Timber Co. v. Wells, 171 N. C. 263, 88 S. E. 327. Foreclosure of Mortgages.—Because of the equity growing out of the relation of mortgagor and mortgagee when the latter seeks to have the mortgaged premises foreclosed for the nonpayment of the debt, the superior court has jurisdiction when the amount secured is for a less sum than two hundred dollars. Singer Sewing Machine Co. v. Burger, 181 N. C. 241, 107 S. E. 14. Subrogation.—The superior court has jurisdiction of an action by a creditor seeking to be subrogated to the rights of other creditors of the same debtor whose claims he had paid. Fidelity Co. v. Jordan, 134 N. C. 236, 45 S. E. 496. To Establish Claim against Marital Trust.—An action by a feme covert to have a lien declared for materials furnished, etc., must be brought before a justice, if the amount claimed is under $200. It is when the proceeding is brought in equity, it is not the same. State v. Earnest, 98 N. C. 740, 4 S. E. 455. Use of Deadly Weapon.—This section does not render it necessary that a bill found by the grand jury charge, a deadly weapon was used, that any serious damage was done, that six months had elapsed before the finding of the bill, or that the offense was committed within one mile of the place where the act was done. The defendant, under the plea of not guilty, may negative the existence of the jurisdictional facts. State v. Taylor, 83 N. C. 602. Matter of Defense.—Upon the trial of an indictment for simple assault, the superior court prima facie has jurisdiction, but it is open to the defendant to show that the offense was committed within six months (now twelve) of the finding of the bill. State v. Earnest, 98 N. C. 740, 4 S. E. 455. V. EQUITABLE JURISDICTION. Generally.—The superior court possesses the same equitable jurisdiction, when not limited by statute, formerly enjoyed by the Court of Equity. Seattle v. Seattle, 141 N. C. 553, 54 S. E. 445. Over Property of Infants.—The superior courts in their equity jurisdiction have inherent authority, when not restricted by statute, to pass upon the merits in controversies involving the property of minors and infants. The same jurisdiction in this respect as that of the English High Courts of Chancery. The property of infants in the nature of a bill of interpleader to determine the right of two adverse claimants to a fund, jurisdiction of the superior court attached upon the ground that it is an exception of the power of the court enforceable by a bill in equity under the old system. Timber Co. v. Wells, 171 N. C. 263, 88 S. E. 327. B. Essentials of Indictment. Charge Different from Case Made Out.—Where the indictment charges an assault with a deadly weapon, but the proof shows a simple assault, committed within less than (now six) months since the finding of the bill, the jurisdiction of the superior court is not impaired, as the case in which this would happen are limited to those in which the charge in itself is of a simple assault. State v. Fesperman, 108 N. C. 770, 771, 13 S. E. 14. Manner of Excepting to Jurisdiction.—Except to the jurisdiction of the superior court, for that six months (now twelve) had not elapsed, should be made, not by a motion to quash or in arrest of judgment, but by a prayer for instructions to the jury to acquit. State v. Earnest, 98 N. C. 740, 4 S. E. 495. Misdemeanors.—The superior court has exclusive jurisdiction of misdemeanors where the punishment is not limited to a fine not exceeding fifty dollars or imprisonment not exceeding thirty days. Washington v. Hammond, 76 N. C. 33. B. Essentials of Indictment. Twelve Month Period.—An indictment for an affray need not be made out within six months (now twelve) before the finding of the bill and that no justice has taken jurisdiction. State v. Moore, 82 N. C. 600. Failure of Justice of Peace to Assume Jurisdiction.—When the superior court takes jurisdiction of a justice of the peace fail to assume jurisdiction of, it is not necessary to aver in the indictment the fact of the justice's omission in order to confer jurisdiction on the superior court. Winslow v. Burger, 181 N. C. 241, 107 S. E. 14. Nor is it material that the offense is alleged to have been committed on a day more than six months (now twelve) before the finding of the indictment, in the indictment itself, the date is not traversable and is not fixed on the verdict. Id. Use of Deadly Weapon.—This section does not render it necessary that a bill found by the grand jury charge, a deadly weapon was used, that any serious damage was done, that six months had elapsed before the finding of the bill, or that the offense was committed within one mile of the place where the act was done. The defendant, under the plea of not guilty, may negative the existence of the jurisdictional facts. State v. Taylor, 83 N. C. 602. Matter of Defense.—Upon the trial of an indictment for simple assault, the superior court prima facie has jurisdiction, but it is open to the defendant to show that the offense was committed within six months (now twelve) of the finding of the bill. State v. Earnest, 98 N. C. 740, 4 S. E. 455. VI. CONCURRENT JURISDICTION. In all cases in which by statute original jurisdiction of criminal actions has been, or may hereafter be, taken from the superior court and vested exclusively in courts of inferior jurisdiction, such exclusive jurisdiction is hereby divested, and jurisdiction of such actions shall be concurrent and exercised by the court first taking cognizance thereof. The provisions of this section shall remain in full force and effect, unless expressly repealed by some subsequent Act of the General Assembly, and shall not be affected by implication or by general repealing clauses in any Act of the General Assembly conferring exclusive jurisdiction on inferior courts in misdemeanor cases which may be hereafter enacted. Appeal shall be, as heretofore, to the superior court from all judgments of such inferior courts: Provided, that this section shall not apply to the counties of Allegheny, Cabarrus, Caswell, Cherokee, Clay, Craven, Cumberland, Currituck, Dare, Davidson, Edgecombe, Gaston, Gates, Graham, Granville, Guilford, Halifax, Harnett, Henderson, Hertford, Hyde, Iredell, Jones, Lenoir, New Hanover, Pamlico, Perquimans, Rockingham, Rutherford, Scotland, Surry, Union and Warren. (1919, c. 299; 1923, c. 98; 1941, c. 265; C. S. 1437.)

Editor's Note.—The 1941 amendment rewrote this section.

For comment on the 1941 amendment, see 19 N. C. Law Rev. 551. (For comment on the 1943 amendment, see 19 N. C. Law Rev. 766.)

Only One Prosecution.—Where two courts have concurrent jurisdiction of an offense, the judgment of that one which first passes judgment is a good defense against a prosecution in the other court for the same offense. State v. Shemwell, 180 N. C. 718, 104 S. E. 885.

Appeals from Justice of Peace.—In cases where bills are found in the superior court, its jurisdiction is original. But in cases of appeal from justices of the peace its jurisdiction is derivative, and it has no more or greater jurisdiction in the justice of the peace had; and if the justice had none, the superior court has none. Page v. Page, 167 N. C. 350, 353, 83 S. E. 627.

§ 7-67. Transfer of cases pending in abolished inferior court.—In case of the abolition of any court inferior to the superior court (except courts of the justices of the peace), all cases and matters then in such court, not finally disposed of, and all records of such court, shall forthwith be transferred and delivered to the superior court of the county in which such inferior court has functioned, for trial or other disposition of such cases and matters as may be necessary and proper.

The superior court to which such cases and matters are transferred shall have the power and jurisdiction to hear, deal with and dispose of the same to the same extent as would said inferior court had its existence continued. (1941, c. 117.)

Where the municipal court in which the case is originally tried is abolished pending the decision of the supreme court granting a new trial, the cause will be remanded to the superior court of the county. Barnes v. Teer, 219 N. C. 823, 15 S. E. (2d) 379.

Art. 9. Judicial and Solicitorial Districts and Terms of Court.

§ 7-68. Number of districts.—The state shall be divided into twenty-one superior court judicial districts, numbered first to twenty-first, composed of the counties hereinafter designated.

As required by the constitution, article IV, section twenty-three, as amended, the state shall be divided into twenty-one solicitorial districts, numbered first to twenty-first, which districts shall be the same as the judicial districts hereinafter designated. The solicitors elected for the twenty-one judicial districts, respectively, in the general election held on November third, one thousand nine hundred and forty-two, shall be the solicitors, respectively, of the twenty-one solicitorial districts hereby created. (1913, c. 63; 1913, c. 196; 1937, c. 413, s. 1; 1943, c. 134, s. 2; C. S. 1441.)

Editor's Note.—Prior to the 1937 amendment there were twenty districts.

The 1943 amendment added the second paragraph of this section. It also inserted “solicitorial” in the article heading.

§ 7-69. Eastern and western judicial divisions. —The state shall be divided into two judicial divisions, the Eastern and Western Judicial Divisions. The counties which are now or may hereafter be included in the judicial districts from one to ten, both inclusive, shall constitute the Eastern Division, and the counties which are now or may hereafter be included in the judicial districts from eleven to twenty-one, both inclusive, shall constitute the Western Division. The judicial districts shall retain their numbers from one up to twenty-one, and all such other districts as may from time to time be added by the creation of new districts shall be numbered consecutively. (1915, c. 15; 1937, c. 413, s. 2; C. S. 1442.)

§ 7-70. Terms of court.—A superior court shall be held by a judge thereof at the courthouse in each county. The twenty-one judicial districts of the state shall be composed of the counties designated in this section, and the superior courts in the several counties shall be opened and held in each year at the times herein set forth. Each court shall continue in session one week, and be for the trial of criminal and civil cases, except as otherwise provided, unless the business thereof shall be sooner disposed of. Each county shall have the number of regular weeks of superior court as set out in this section: Provided, however, that the schedule of courts of any county or judicial district may be revised or reformed and the number of terms of court may be increased or decreased from time to time as may appear advisable to the court calendar commission; which said commission shall be composed of the chief justice of the supreme court and four judges of the superior court, to be appointed by the governor for a period of four years each. The members of said commission shall serve without compensation other than their necessary expenses incurred in attending meetings of said commission. (1913, c. 63, 196; 1937, c. 408; C. S. 1443.)

Eastern Division

First District

The first district shall be composed of the following counties, and the superior courts thereof shall be held at the following times, to-wit:

Currituck—Third Monday in July, for civil cases only; first Monday in March; first Monday in September. (1913, c. 196; Ex. Sess. 1913, c. 51; Ex. Sess. 1920, c. 23, s. 2; 1939, c. 59; C. S. 1443.)

Camden—First Monday after the first Monday in March and the last Monday in August. (1913, c. 196; Ex. Sess. 1913, c. 51; Ex. Sess. 1920, c. 23, s. 2; 1939, c. 59; C. S. 1443.)

Camden—First Monday after the first Monday in March and the last Monday in August. (1913, c. 196; Ex. Sess. 1913, c. 51; Ex. Sess. 1920, c. 23, s. 1; 1943, c. 378; C. S. 1443.)

Pasquotank—Eighth Monday before the first Monday in March for the trial of civil cases only; third Monday before the first Monday in March to continue for two weeks, the first week for the trial of civil cases only and the second week for the trial of criminal cases only; second Monday after the first Monday in March for the trial of civil cases only; sixth Monday after the first Monday in March to continue for two weeks for the trial of civil cases only; thirteenth Monday after the first Monday in March for the trial of civil cases only; seventh Monday after the first Monday in March, for civil cases only. (1913, c. 196; Ex. Sess. 1913, c. 51; 1921, c. 105; 1923, c. 232; Pub. Loc. 1925, c. 631; 1939, c. 167; 1933, cc. 3, 129; C. S. 1443.)

Perguimans—Seventh Monday before the first Monday in March, for civil cases only, for which term a special judge to be assigned by the governor; sixth Monday after the first Monday in March; eighth Monday after the first Monday in September. (1913, c. 196; Ex. Sess. 1913, c. 51; 1931, c. 6; 1933, c. 286; C. S. 1443.)

Chowan—Fourth Monday after the first Monday in March; eighth Monday after the first Monday in March to continue for one week, for the trial of civil cases only; first Monday after the first Monday in September; twelfth Monday after the first Monday in September. (1913, c. 196; 1931, c. 87; 1935, c. 456; 1937, c. 102; 1941, c. 307, s. 1; C. S. 1443.)

Gates—Third Monday after the first Monday in March; eleventh Monday after the first Monday in September. (1913, c. 196; 1935, c. 70; C. S. 1443.)

Dare—Twelfth Monday after the first Monday in March; seventh Monday after the first Monday in September. (1913, c. 196; Ex. Sess. 1913, c. 51; C. S. 1443.)

Tyrell—Seventh Monday after the first Monday in March; fourth Monday after the first Monday in September, and for this term a special Judge may be assigned; fourth Monday before the first Monday in March, for civil cases only. Upon recommendation of the local bar, the board of commissioners for the county of Tyrell, at their option, may abolish and suspend the opening and holding, in any year, of the term above provided for the week commencing on the fourth Monday before the first Monday in March, by notifying the governor and the judge scheduled to hold said term, at least thirty days prior to the date for opening same, that such term of court is not desired. (1913, c. 196; Ex. Sess. 1913, c. 51; 1919, c. 128, s. 1; Ex. Sess. 1920, c. 23, s. 1; 1921, c. 89; Ex. Sess. 1921, c. 19; 1923, c. 124; Pub. Loc. 1925, c. 389; 1937, c. 123; 1931, c. 92; 1933, c. 126; C. S. 1443.)

Hyde—Eleventh Monday after the first Monday in March; sixth Monday after the first Monday in September. (1913, c. 196; 1935, c. 70; C. S. 1443.)

In addition to the terms of court now provided by law to be held in Hyde county, the following term of court shall be opened and held in each year, except as hereinafter provided, in the manner and at the time herein set forth, to-wit: To convene on the third Monday in August of each year and to continue for one week for the trial of civil cases only. If the judge regularly assigned to the district in which said court is situate be unable to hold any term of court provided in the first sentence of this paragraph, for any cause set out in article four, section eleven of the constitution, the governor may appoint a judge to hold such term from among the regular, special or emergency judges. If, in the opinion of the board of commissioners of Hyde county, it is not advisable or necessary to hold said additional term of court, and such fact is so stated in a resolution duly adopted by a majority of said board on or before the second Monday in July next preceding the day for the convening of said term, then said term shall not be held on the third Monday in August of that year.
as provided in this paragraph. Upon the adoption of such a resolution, the clerk of said board shall immediately notify the judge, who has been assigned to hold the additional term, that the same will not be held, and no jury for the said term shall be drawn; but if no such resolution shall be adopted on or before the second Monday in July as provided above, then it shall be the duty of the board of commissioners to cause the jury to be drawn in the manner now prescribed by law for the drawing of a jury for the trial of civil cases in regular terms of the superior court. (1913, c. 196; 1935, c. 191; 1941, c. 367, s. 1; C. S. 1443.)

Beaufort—Seventh Monday before the first Monday in March for two weeks, the first week for criminal cases only, and the second week for criminal and civil cases; second Monday before the first Monday in March for civil cases only; second Monday after the first Monday in March for criminal cases only; fifth Monday after the first Monday in March for civil cases only; sixteenth Monday after the first Monday in March for the trial of criminal and civil cases; second Monday after the first Monday in September for the trial of criminal cases with a grand jury in attendance; third Monday after the first Monday in September for civil cases only; fifth Monday after the first Monday in September for civil cases only; first Monday in March; fourth Monday in March; sixth Monday before the first Monday in September, to continue for two weeks, for civil cases only; first Monday after the first Monday in September; sixth Monday after the first Monday in September; tenth Monday after the first Monday in September, to continue for two weeks, for civil cases only.

The grand jury drawn by the commissioners of Edgecombe county for the term of court beginning on the sixth Monday before the first Monday in March of each year shall also serve as the grand jury for the term beginning on the first Monday in March and on the thirteenth Monday after the first Monday in March, and shall be charged with the same duties and clothed with the same power at each of said terms and shall receive for each term such mileage and compensation as is now provided by law. (1913, c. 196; Ex. Sess. 1913, c. 17; 1913, c. 107; 1917, c. 12; 1919, c. 133; Ex. Sess. 1921, c. 108, s. 1; 1923, c. 246; 1927, c. 128; 1941, c. 2, s. 2; C. S. 1443.)

Nash—Fifth Monday before the first Monday in March; second Monday before the first Monday in March, to continue for two weeks, for the trial of civil cases only; first Monday after the first Monday in March; seventh Monday after the first Monday in March, to continue for two weeks, for the trial of civil cases only; twelfth Monday after the first Monday in March; first Monday before the first Monday in September; second Monday after the first Monday in September, to continue for two weeks, for the trial of civil cases only, and for the term of court the governor is hereby directed to appoint a judge, other than the judge holding courts of the second judicial district, to hold the same from among the regular, special or emergency superior court judges; fifth Monday after the first Monday in September, for the trial of civil cases only; twelfth Monday after the first Monday in September, to continue for two weeks, the first week to be for the trial of criminal cases and the second week for the trial of civil cases only. The court shall have jurisdiction to try and determine civil actions and civil matters at any term of superior court held in Nash county, whether said term is designated above as a civil or criminal term. Provided, that any term of said court may be canceled by the board of commissioners of Nash County when in the opinion of the clerk of the superior court of Nash County and the resident judge of the second judicial district sufficient cause exists for the cancellation of said term. (1913, c. 196; 1915, c. 63; 1919, c. 133; Ex. Sess. 1921, c. 108; 1923, c. 237; 1924, c. 46; 1933, c. 145; 1935, c. 201; 1943, c. 687; C. S. 1443.)

Wilson—Fourth Monday before the first Monday in March, to continue for two weeks, the first week for criminal cases only, and the second week for civil cases only; tenth Monday after the first Monday in March, to continue for two weeks, the first week for criminal cases only, and the second week for civil cases only; sixteenth Monday after the first Monday in March, for civil cases only; first Monday in September; fourth Monday after the first Monday in September, for civil cases only; eighth Monday after the first Monday in September, to continue for two weeks, for civil cases only; thirteenth Monday after the first Monday in September and for this term of court a special or emergency judge shall be assigned by the governor to hold the same. (1913, 1915, c. 63; 1919, c. 133; Ex. Sess. 1921, c. 108; 1923, c. 237; 1924, c. 46; 1933, c. 145; 1935, c. 201; 1943, c. 687; C. S. 1443.)

All motions and orders, applications for injunctions, receiverships, etc., in the eighth district, may be heard at criminal terms upon five days' notice. Divorce cases may be tried at any term of court, civil or criminal. (1931, c. 14; C. S. 1443.)

Ninth District

The ninth district shall be composed of the following counties, and the superior courts thereof shall be held at the following times, to-wit:

Bladen—Eighth Monday before the first Monday in March for the trial of civil cases, and the trial of criminal cases, where bills have been found, and cases on appeal from the recorder's court and courts of the justices of the peace; the second Monday after the first Monday in March for the trial of criminal cases only; the eighth Monday after the first Monday in March; the first Monday in September for the trial of civil cases only. Said courts to continue for one week unless the business is sooner disposed of, and grand juries to be summoned only for the March and September terms of court. At any term for the trial of criminal cases, civil cases may be tried by consent. (1913, c. 196; 1915, c. 110; 1923, c. 64; 1927, c. 166, s. 1; 1929, c. 27, s. 1; 1931, c. 96; 1933, c. 77; Pub. Loc. 1935, c. 101, s. 3; 1937, c. 159; C. S. 1443.)

If it shall appear to the board of county commissioners of Bladen County at any time before the jury is summoned for a term of superior court of Bladen County that there is not sufficient business to justify a term of such court or that there are no cases of sufficient importance to warrant the expense of a term of such court, the said board of commissioners are authorized to order that the jury for such term be not summoned, and all cases which would come on for trial at such term shall be continued. In case of the continuance of a term of superior court of Bladen County as herein provided the board of commissioners of Bladen County shall notify, or cause to be notified to the county commissioners of the district, the judge holding the courts of the district and the court stenographer of their action. (1933, c. 119.)

Cumberland—Seventh Monday before the first Monday in March; first Monday in March; the first Monday after the first Monday in March; the eighth Monday after the first Monday in March; thirteenth Monday after the first Monday in March; first Monday before the first Monday in September; fifth Monday after the first Monday in September; and the eleventh Monday after the first Monday in September, the last for two weeks; each for criminal cases only. If the regular judge is unable for any reason set forth in article four, section eleven of the constitution to hold the terms above provided for beginning on the first Monday in March, the eighth Monday after the first Monday in March, and the fifth Monday after the first Monday in September, the governor shall assign a special, emergency or other regular judge to hold said terms. Thirteenth Monday after the first Monday in March; third Monday after the first Monday in March; ninth Monday after the first Monday in September; third Monday after the first Monday in September; seventh Monday after the first Monday in September, each to continue for two weeks, for civil cases only. At all criminal terms of court civil cases may be heard by consent of the parties, and motions may be heard upon ten days' notice to the adverse party prior to said term. (1913, c. 196; Ex. Sess. 1913, c. 33; 1931, c. 96; 1937, c. 159; 1941, c. 367, s. 1; C. S. 1443.)

Hoke—Sixth Monday before the first Monday in March; seventh Monday after the first Monday in March; second Monday before the first Monday in September, to continue for one week; tenth Monday after the first Monday in September; and fifth Monday before the first Monday in September, to continue for one week for the trial of civil cases and no longer. The board of county commissioners of Hoke County, whenever in their discretion the best interests of the county demand it, shall have and are hereby granted the power and authority, by order, to abrogate, in any year, the holding of any one of the above set forth terms of court, and when said term is so abrogated, thirty days' notice of the same shall be given by said commissioners by the publication of same in a newspaper published in said county.
The tenth district shall be composed of the following counties, and the superior courts thereof shall be held in each year at the following times, to-wit:

Alamance—First Monday before the first Monday in March, tenth Monday after the first Monday in March, third Monday before the first Monday in September, and twelfth Monday after the first Monday in September, each for one week, for the trial of criminal cases only; fifth Monday before the first Monday in March, fourth Monday after the first Monday in March, two weeks, fifth Monday before the first Monday in September, one week, first Monday in September and tenth Monday after the first Monday in September each for two weeks, all for the trial of civil cases only.

In case of conflict of any of the regularly established terms of the courts of the tenth judicial district with the terms above set out, the said terms of court herein established shall be considered special terms, and the governor may assign a special or emergency judge to hold said terms in the superior court of Alamance County when the judge holding the regular terms of court in the district is unable to hold said terms. (1913, c. 196; 1915, c. 59; 1921, c. 154; Ex. Sess. 1921, c. 36; 1929, c. 172; 1931, c. 298; C. S. 1443.)

In the opinion of the board of commissioners of Wilkes county, it is not advisable or necessary to hold the term of court beginning on the fourteenth Monday after the first Monday in September, and such fact is so stated in a resolution duly adopted by a majority of said board on or before the second Monday in November next preceding the day for the convening of said term, then the said term shall not be held on the fourteenth Monday after the first Monday in September of that year. Upon the adoption of such a resolution, the clerk of the board shall immediately notify the judge, who has been assigned to hold said term, that same will not be held, and no jury for the said term shall be drawn. (1913, c. 196; 1919, c. 165; 1921, c. 166; 1935, c. 105, s. 1; c. 192; 1937, c. 48; 1941, c. 367, s. 1; C. S. 1443.)

Davie—Second Monday after the first Monday in March; twelfth Monday after the first Monday in March, for civil cases only; first Monday before the first Monday in September in said court for Davie County when the judge regularly holding the courts in said district is, because of a conflict in the terms of court or for any other cause, unable to hold any of said terms. (1913, c. 196; C. S. 1443.)

Mitchell—Fourth Monday after the first Monday in March, two weeks; sixth Monday before the first Monday in September, two weeks for civil cases only; second Monday after the first Monday in September in two weeks. (1913, c. 196; 1921, c. 166; Ex. Sess. 1921, c. 33; 1927, c. 168; 1929, c. 10; 1933, c. 250, s. 3; 1935, c. 1; 1941, c. 212, s. 1; C. S. 1443.)

Avery—Fifth Monday after the first Monday in March, for two weeks, for the trial of both criminal and civil cases; ninth Monday before the first Monday in September, two weeks, for the trial of both civil and criminal cases; sixth Monday after the first Monday in September, for two weeks, for the trial of both criminal and civil cases. (1913, c. 196; 1915, c. 169; 1931, c. 166; Ex. Sess. 1921, c. 33; 1923, cc. 90; 1931, c. 84; 1933, cc. 155, 250, s. 1; 1941, c. 212, s. 1, 1943, c. 162; C. S. 1443.)

Provided, that at any criminal term, either regular or special, of the superior court to be held for Rockingham County, all motions in any civil actions pending before said court, and all uncontested divorce cases pending before said court, may be heard and tried by the court, and provided further, that all other civil actions and civil matters may, with the consent of the parties and the approval of the court, be heard and tried at any criminal term, either regular or special, of the superior court of Rockingham County. However, no contested civil cases shall be tried until after the criminal docket for the term has been disposed of. (1913, c. 196; Ex. Sess. 1913, c. 49; 1917, c. 107; 1933, c. 245, s. 1; 1937, c. 245; 1937, c. 106; C. S. 1443.)

The county commissioners, may, in their judgment, abrogate the term herein provided to be held on the fourteenth Monday after the first Monday in March, the jurors for this term to be drawn at the same time as those for the May term, service to be withheld pending the decision of the county commissioners. (1913, c. 196; 1933, c. 107; 1939, c. 212; C. S. 1443.)

Macon—Sixth Monday after the first Monday in March; second Monday before the first Monday in March, and thirteenth Monday after the first Monday in September, each to continue for two weeks. The board of commissioners of Macon county may, for good cause, decline to draw a jury for more than one week for any term of court provided for in this paragraph. (1913, c. 196; 1923, c. 35, s. 1; 1937, c. 245; 1937, c. 106; C. S. 1443.)

Stokes—Fourth Monday after the first Monday in March to continue for one week for the trial of criminal cases only; fifth Monday after the first

Twenty-First District

There is hereby created district number twenty-one composed of the following counties, and the superior courts thereof shall be held at the following times, to-wit:

Caswell—Second Monday after the first Monday in March, to continue for two weeks, the first week to be for the trial of criminal cases only, and the second week for the trial of civil cases; ninth Monday before the first Monday in September, to continue for one week for the trial of both criminal and civil cases; tenth Monday after the first Monday in September, to continue for two weeks, the first week to be for the trial of criminal cases only, and the second week for the trial of civil cases. Rockingham—First Monday after the first Monday in March to continue for one week; sixth Monday before the first Monday in March to continue for one week; sixth Monday after the first Monday in March to continue for two weeks; seventh Monday after the first Monday in March to continue for two weeks; eighth Monday before the first Monday in September to continue for two weeks; seventh Monday after the first Monday in September to continue for one week, each of the above terms to be for the trial of criminal cases only.

First Monday in March to continue one week; sixth Monday after the first Monday in March to continue for one week; ninth Monday after the first Monday in March to continue for two weeks; fourteenth Monday after the first Monday in March to continue for two weeks; first Monday in September to continue for two weeks; seventh Monday after the first Monday in September to continue for one week; twelfth Monday after the first Monday in September to continue for two weeks, each of the above terms to be for the trial of civil cases only. Provided, that at any criminal term, either regular or special, of the superior court to be held for Rockingham County, all motions in any civil actions pending before said court, and all uncontested divorce cases pending before said court, may be heard and tried by the court, and provided further, that all other civil actions and civil matters may, with the consent of the parties and the approval of the court, be heard and tried at any criminal term, either regular or special, of the superior court of Rockingham County. However, no contested civil cases shall be tried until after the criminal docket for the term has been disposed of. (1913, c. 196; Ex. Sess. 1913, c. 49; 1917, c. 107; 1933, cc. 45, 264; 1935, c. 246; 1937, cc. 156, 413, s. 5; 1939, c. 156; 1941, c. 58; C. S. 1443.)
Monday in March to continue for one week for the trial of civil cases only; sixteenth Monday in March to continue for one week for the trial of criminal cases only; first Monday in April to continue for one week for the trial of criminal cases only.

The 1941 amendments created the twenty-first judicial district composed of the counties of Caswell, Rockingham, Surry—Eighth Monday before the first Monday in March to continue for one week; third Monday before the first Monday in March to continue for one week; seventh Monday after the first Monday in September to continue for one week; for the trial of civil cases only. (1913, c. 196; Ex. Sess. 1913, c. 1; 1921, c. 142; 1923, c. 169; 1929, c. 158; 1937, c. 413, s. 5; C. S. 1443.)

There is hereby established a term of court to continue for one week in Stokes county, beginning the Monday in September following the first Monday in September to continue for one week; for the trial of criminal causes only. There shall be jurors, including a grand jury, provided for said January term of court. (January 31, 1939, c. 342.)

Surry—Eighth Monday before the first Monday in March to continue for one week; third Monday before the first Monday in March to continue for one week; seventh Monday after the first Monday in March to continue for one week; fourth Monday after the first Monday in March to continue for one week; eighth Monday before the first Monday in March to continue for one week; for the trial of civil cases only. (1913, c. 196; Ex. Sess. 1913, c. 1; 1921, c. 142; 1923, c. 169; 1929, c. 158; 1937, c. 413, s. 5; C. S. 1443.)

Editor's Note.—Public Laws 1931, c. 240, as amended by c. 456, added a new term for Cleveland County. This new term was created by combining a term of Watauga County, which was transferred to the Sixteenth Judicial District by Public Laws 1931, c. 424.

One 1937 amendment added the proviso to the first paragraph of § 7-71, § 7-71, the Governor shall assign a judge to hold any of the terms of court provided for in any of the counties of the state: Provided, that any term of superior court canceled hereunder shall be canceled at least ten days prior to the time for the convening of said court.

Upon the cancellation of any term of superior court the judge scheduled to hold said term of court shall be available for assignment by the governor to hold superior court in any other county in the state. (1943, c. 348, ss. 1, 2.)

§ 7-71.1. Governor authorized to cancel terms of court; judges available for assignment elsewhere.—The governor is authorized and empowered, upon a finding by him that any term of superior court for any of the counties of the state are not necessary due to the lack of sufficient official business to be transacted, to cancel any term of superior court scheduled to be held in any of the counties of the state: Provided, that any term of superior court canceled hereunder shall be canceled at least ten days prior to the time for the convening of said court.

Upon the cancellation of any term of superior court the judge scheduled to hold said term of court shall be available for assignment by the governor to hold superior court in any other county in the state. (1943, c. 348, ss. 1, 2.)

§ 7-71.2. Cancellation not to affect subsequent terms.—The cancellation of any term of court by the governor, as provided in § 7-71.1 shall dispense with the holding of the term of court during the year for which it is canceled, but it shall not affect the terms of court provided by law for the county during succeeding years. (1943, c. 348, s. 3.)

§ 7-72. Civil cases at criminal terms.—At criminal terms of court, motions in civil actions may be heard upon due notice, and trials in civil actions may be heard by consent of parties. Also motions for confirmation or rejection of referees' reports may be heard upon ten days notice and judgment entered on such reports. (Rev., s. 1507; 1901, c. 28; 1913, c. 196, s. 2; Ex. Sess. 1913, c. 23; 1915, c. 68, 240; 1917, c. 13; 1919, c. 394; C. S. 1444.)

Local Modification.—Anson, Bladen, Cumberland, Durham, Gaston, Robeson: C. S. 1444.

Failure to Give Notice.—It is required by the provisions of this section that due notice be given of motions in civil action to be heard at a criminal term of court, and where the movant has failed to give the statutory notice of his motion, and the superior court has ordered a dismissal of the action, the judgment will be reversed on appeal. Dawsins v. Phillips, 185 N. C. 608, 116 S. E. 723.

The superior court has authority to hear motions in civil actions at criminal terms only after due notice to the adverse party, and therefore when it does not affirmatively appear that due notice was given of plaintiff's motion to be allowed to amend, the granting of the motion at a term of court for criminal cases only will be held for error as being presumptively outside the authority of the court. Beck
§ 7-73. No criminal business at civil terms.—No grand juries shall be drawn for the terms of court designated by law as being for the trial of civil cases exclusively, and the solicitors shall not be required to attend upon any exclusively civil terms, unless there are cases on the civil docket in which they officially appear, and no criminal process shall be returnable to any term designated for the trial of civil actions alone. (Rev., s. 1808; 1901, c. 28, ss. 3, 7; 1913, c. 196; C. S. 1445.)

§ 7-74. Rotation of judges.—The judges of the superior court shall hold the courts of the several judicial districts successively, according to the following order and system: The judges resident in the Eastern Judicial Division shall hold the courts for the spring term, one thousand nine hundred and forty-four, as now provided by law.

Term Beginning in June.—When a term of court begins the last part of June, the judge of the superior court assigned to that district for the spring circuit has authority throughout the term of court, even though the term runs over into July, and the second week thereof starts during the month of July, since any term which begins in June "falls" between January and June within the meaning of the statute. West v. Woolworth Co., 214 N. C. 214, 198 S. E. 659.

Under Prior Law.—Before the Act of 1879, assigning the judges to the different districts, an exchange of circuits with the consent of the Governor under the Act of 1879 was not in violation of section 11, Art. IV, of the amended Constitution. State v. McGimsey, 80 N. C. 377.

Governor's Authority a Command.—The Governor can require a judge to hold a court in a county not within his own district. And when the Governor so authorizes and empowers a judge to hold such a court, expressing in the commission that it is done with his consent, and under that authority, the judge holds the court, as between the judge and the suitors in the court, the consent and authority granted by the Governor is equivalent to a command. State v. Watson, 75 N. C. 136.

Governor's Power.—When the Constitution (and this section) has clothed the Governor with the power to require a judge to hold a court in a district other than that to which he is assigned by the general law, upon certain conditions as to the fulfillment, of which the Governor must be clothed by the Governor to the court, and the Governor, even though the assent to the purpose is equivalent to a command, the Supreme Court will assume that, in fact, the emergency had arisen which would sanction the issuing of the commission, and the same will be recognized by the Governor as a command.

Injunction.—Failure of Judge to Hear Order.—If the judge before whom the order is made returnable fails to hear it, any judge resident in or assigned to or holding a court in the State may hear the same, or change the courts of some adjoining district may hear it upon giving ten days notice to the parties interested. Hamilton v. Icard, 112 N. C. 591, 17 S. E. 501.

Governor's Power.—When the Constitution (and this section) has clothed the Governor with the power to require a judge to hold a court in a county not within his own district. And when the Governor so authorizes and empowers a judge to hold such a court, expressing in the commission that it is done with his consent, and under that authority, the judge holds the court, as between the judge and the suitors in the court, the consent and authority granted by the Governor is equivalent to a command. State v. Watson, 75 N. C. 136.

De Facto Judge.—Where the Governor issues a commission to one of the judges of the superior courts, authorizing him to hold certain terms of the superior court and empowering the undersigned to discharge the duties required of him, he is, so far as the public and third persons are concerned

§ 7-75. Exchange of courts.—By consent of the governor the judges may exchange the courts in a particular county or counties; and the judges resident in the western division and the judges resident in the eastern division may exchange courts or circuits with the consent of the governor: but no judge shall hold all the courts in one district oftener than once every four years. When a judge shall die or resign, his successor shall hold the courts of the district allotted to his predecessor. (Rev., s. 1511; Code, s. 913; R. C., c. 31, s. 20; 1879, c. 11; 1915, c. 15, s. 4; Const., Art. 4, s. 11; C. S. 1447.)

Under Prior Law.—Before the Act of 1879, assigning the judges to the different districts, an exchange of circuits with the consent of the Governor under the Act of 1879 was not in violation of section 11, Art. IV, of the amended Constitution. State v. McGimsey, 80 N. C. 377.

A partial exchange of circuits between two of the judges of the superior court, with the approval of the Governor, is legal. State v. Graham, 75 N. C. 256.

Power of Legislature.—Neither does this prohibitory clause restrict the Legislature from creating an extra term of the superior court of a county and designating the extra judge to hold the same. State v. Monroe, 80 N. C. 373, 374.

Governor's Authority a Command.—The Governor can require a judge of the superior court to hold a term of the court in a county not within his own district. And when the Governor so authorizes and empowers a judge to hold such a court, expressing in the commission that it is done with his consent, and under that authority, the judge holds the court, as between the judge and the suitors in the court, the consent and authority granted by the Governor is equivalent to a command. State v. Watson, 75 N. C. 136.
a de facto judge so long as he assumes to act in that capacity, and this is so although the commission was issued within the term of court. State v. Lewis, 107 N. C. 967, 12 S. E. 457, 13 S. E. 247.

Upon Death of Judge.—Upon the death of one of the judges of the superior courts, the Governor has the authority to appoint another judge to hold one or more specified terms of the courts in the district assigned to the deceased judge. State v. Lewis, 107 N. C. 967, 12 S. E. 457, 13 S. E. 247. Presumption Contained.—The presumption contained in this section applies neither to the holding by any judge of the superior court of one or more regular terms of said court by exchange with some other judge, and with the sanction of the Governor, nor to the holding of special terms under section 7-78. State v. Turner, 119 N. C. 841, 25 S. E. 810.

Same.—Applies to Series of Courts.—The provision that "no judge of the superior courts" shall hold the courts in the same district oftener than once in four years, "is held to apply only to the series of courts forming a district over which a judge, in his riding, is to preside, and has no reference to the courts separately considered. State v. Speaks, 95 N. C. 689.

§ 7-76. Court adjourned by sheriff when judge not present.—If the judge of a superior court shall not appear to hold any term of a court at the time fixed therefor, he may order the sheriff to adjourn the court to any day certain during the term, and on failure to hear from the judge it shall be the duty of the sheriff to adjourn the court from day to day until the fourth day of the term inclusive, unless he shall be sooner informed that the judge from any cause can not hold the term. If by sunset on the fourth day the judge shall not appear to hold the term, or if the sheriff shall be sooner advised that the judge cannot hold the term, it shall then be the duty of the sheriff to adjourn the court until the next term. (Rev., s. 1510; Code, s. 926; 1901, c. 269; 1887, c. 13; C. S. 1448.)

Presumption of Adjournment.—Where the record recited that a regular term of a superior court was opened and held Wednesday, instead of on Monday, of the week fixed by the statutes, it will be presumed prima facie that an order for holding the court was made and that it was held. State v. Register, 208 N. C. 90, 94, 179 S. E. 450. See also note of State v. Lewis, 107 N. C. 967, 12 S. E. 457, 13 S. E. 247, under section 7-75.

Duty of Defendant to Attend Special Term.—A defendant bound over to answer a criminal charge at a regular term is held to apply to the proceedings thereafter will be valid. State v. Watson, 75 N. C. 136, 139. This section applies neither to the holding by any judge of the courts of his district, and hold for such time as he may designate, unless the business be earlier disposed of. If the dispatch of business requires it, the Governor may order a special term of court to be held by a regular, special, or emergency judge of the superior court in any county or district during the holding of a regular term in such county or district. (Rev., s. 1512; Code, s. 914; R. C., c. 31, s. 22; 1868-9, c. 273; 1876-7, c. 44; Ex. Sess. 1924, c. 100; C. S. 1450.)

Editor’s Note.—The last sentence in this section was added by the 1924 amendments.

Section Constitutional.—This section is constitutional. State v. Ketchey, 70 N. C. 621.

Particular Class of Cases.—In an appointing special terms the Governor is held bound by the certificate of the judge, so far as to confine such terms to the trial of a particular class of cases. State v. Ketchey, 70 N. C. 621.

Regular Order Presumed.—When it appears from the record that a cause was tried at a special term of a superior court, it is presumed prima facie that an order for holding it was duly made, and that it was duly held. Sparkman v. Daughtry, 35 N. C. 168.

The power of the governor to order special terms is not restricted to instances where there is an accumulation of business, nor when such fact is recited or a reason in the commission is the power of the judge restricted to the trial of a particular class of cases. State v. Register, 133 N. C. 746, 46 S. E. 21. See also note of State v. Lewis, 107 N. C. 967, 12 S. E. 457, 13 S. E. 247, under section 7-75.

Failure of Sheriff to Adjourn Court.—The provision in this section that the sheriff shall adjourn the court from day to day until the fourth day of the term, and then for the term, in the absence of the judge who was to have held it, under the law, is subject to the provision that this shall be done "unless the sheriff shall be sooner informed that the judge, from any cause cannot hold the term," which implies the power of the judge to order an adjournment to a later day in the term. State v. Wood, 175 N. C. 809, 95 S. E. 1059.

All Matters Carried Over.—This section by operation of law carries all matters over to the next term, in the same class of cases. State v. Horton, 35 N. C. 168.

Must Appoint Judge.—When the governor has ordered such term as provided in this section to be held in any county of this State, it is the duty of the Governor to appoint the Superior Court to hold such term, and to issue to the judge appointed by him a commission authorizing him to hold such court. State v. Baxter, 208 N. C. 90, 94, 179 S. E. 450.

Plea Denying Existence of Court.—A plea of the defendant that the court was unlawfully called because the Governor was absent from the State when he attempted to order the holding of the court is properly overruled. State v. Hall, 142 N. C. 710, 55 S. E. 806.

Arraignment at Former Term.—It is not necessary that a prisoner should be arraigned and plead at a preceding regular term to the special term at which he is tried. State v. Ketchey, 70 N. C. 621.

§ 7-79. Compensation of judge.—Any regular judge appointed to hold a special term of court shall attend and hold such court, and shall be paid as compensation therefor at the rate of one hundred dollars per week and his actual expenses incurred in attending such special term by the county in which the special term is held. But any such judge who is in a district having fewer than twenty regular weeks of court for the six months shall hold without extra compensation, if directed by the governor, enough extra weeks of court to make out twenty weeks for the six months. (Rev., s. 1512; Code, s. 914; 1913, c. 63; 1901, c. 167; R. C., c. 31, s. 22; 1868-9, c. 273; 1876-7, c. 44; 1909, c. 85, s. 1; C. S. 1451.)

Reduction of Salary.—The Constitution provides that the salaries of the judges shall not be diminished during their continuance in office. The additional compensation of one hundred dollars given to a superior court judge, by this section, for services in holding a special term, is a part of his salary, hence, any statutory provision providing for a reduction thereof is void as being unconstitutional. Baxter v. Comm., 62 N. C. 92.

§ 7-80. Notice of special terms.—Whenever the governor shall call a special term of the superior court for any county, he shall notify the chairman of the board of commissioners of the county of such call, and such chairman shall take immediate steps to cause competent persons to be drawn and summoned as jurors for said term; and also to advertise the term at the courthouse and at one public place in every township of his county, or by publication of at least two weeks in some newspaper published in his county in lieu of such township advertisement. (Rev., s. 1513; Code, s. 915; 1868-9, c. 273; C. S. 1452.)

Neither the certificate forwarded to the executive office nor the notice sent down to the county commissioners constitutes an essential part of the record of the term. State v. Boykin, 211 N. C. 407, 12 S. E. 457, 13 S. E. 247.

The notice is directory and not mandatory under this section. State v. Boykin, 211 N. C. 407, 413, 191 S. E. 18.

And Is for the Benefit of the Public.—The notice which is required to be published under this section is designed not for the purpose of warning the jury of the coming term. These persons receive separate notices or summons. Rather, it serves the purpose of notifying the public. It follows, then, that the failure to comply with this section goes to the set-up or organization of the court itself rather than of the jury. State v. Boykin, 211 N. C. 407, 413, 191 S. E. 18.

§ 7-81. Certificate of attendance.—The clerks shall give the judge a certificate of attendance for the number of days occupied by the court, and the same shall thereupon be entitled to receive from the commissioners of the county in which the court is held the compensation of which by law. (Rev., s. 1514; Code, s. 918; 1901, c. 167; 1868-9, c. 273; 1909, c. 85, s. 1; 1913, c. 63; C. S. 1453.)

§ 7-82. Grand juries at special terms.—There shall be no grand jury at any special term, unless the same shall be ordered by the governor. (Rev., s. 1515; Code, s. 921; 1868-9, c. 273; C. S. 1454.)

In the absence of any order of the Governor that a grand jury be drawn at a special term, as provided by this section the indictment returned at said time is void. State v. Baxter, 208 N. C. 90, 129 S. E. 450.

§ 7-83. Jurisdiction.—The special terms of the superior court held in pursuance of this chapter shall have all the jurisdiction and powers that regular terms of the superior court have. (Rev., s. 1516; Code, s. 916; 1868-9, c. 273; C. S. 1455.)

Governor Not Bound to Convene Term to Particular Class of Cases.—In appointing a special term the governor is not bound by the certificate of the judge, so far as to convene a term to the trial of a particular class of cases. State v. Ketchey, 70 N. C. 621.

Jurisdiction Not Dependent upon Arraignment at Former Term.—It is not necessary that a prisoner should be arraigned and plead at a preceding regular term to the special term at which he is tried. State v. Ketchey, 70 N. C. 621.

Removal of Cause.—A superior court at a special term has the same power to remove a cause to another county that it has at a regular term. Sparkman v. Daughtry, 35 N. C. 106.

Judgment by Default.—Whether at a regular or special term of the court, notice to the adverse party of a motion in term for judgment by default for want of an answer is not necessary. Reynolds v. Greensboro, etc., Co., 153 N. C. 342, 99 S. E. 248.

Court Held outside Judge's District.—A judge specially commissioned to hold court in a certain county outside his district has the same jurisdiction of matters transferred to that court, by consent, from another county, as the judge of the district comprising both counties. Henry v. Hilliard, 120 N. C. 479, 27 S. E. 130.

§ 7-84. Attendance and process at special terms.—All persons and witnesses summoned at the regular or special term, and officers or others who may be bound to attend the next regular term of the court, shall attend the special term, under the same rules, forfeitures and penalties as if the term were a regular term. (Rev., s. 1517; Code, s. 919; R. C., c. 31, s. 22; 1844, c. 10; 1848, c. 29; C. S. 1456.)

Duty of Defendant to Appear.—A defendant bound over to answer a criminal charge at a regular term of the superior court, which term is not held in consequence of the absence of the judge, is required to attend an intervening special term subsequently appointed and held. State v. Horton, 123 N. C. 695, 31 S. E. 218.

§ 7-85. Subpoenas returnable.—Subpoenas may be issue returnable on any day of any special term. (Rev., s. 1518; Code, s. 920; 1868-9, c. 273; C. S. 1457.)

Art. 11. Special Regulations.

§ 7-86. Reading the minutes.—Every morning during the term the judge presiding shall order the reading of the minutes of the court for the day preceding, and the minutes of the last day shall be read immediately preceding the final adjournment of the term. (Rev., s. 1519, Code, s. 925; 1861, c. 3; C. S. 1458.)

§ 7-87. Officer attending juries sworn.—When any officer (except such as are appointed to attend the grand jury) shall be appointed or summoned to attend any superior court the clerk, at the time of the first going out of a jury on the trial of any civil or criminal action, shall administer an oath to such officer, faithfully to attend the several juries that may be put under his care during that term, that shall be charged in the trial of any civil or criminal action; and after such officer shall be once so sworn, he shall be considered to all intents and purposes as acting upon the same oath while attending every jury that he may be called to attend during that term. (Rev., s. 1527; Code, s. 927; R. C., c. 31, s. 36; 1801, c. 592; C. S. 1459.)

Cross Reference.—As to form of oath, see § 11-11.
§ 7-88. Quakers may wear hats in court.—The people called Quakers may wear their hats in courts of judicature, as elsewhere, according to the custom of their sect. (Rev., s. 1528; Code, s. 943; R. C., c. 31, s. 151; 1784, c. 209; C. S. 1460.)

§ 7-89. Court reporters.—Upon the request of a judge holding a superior court in any county in the state, the board of county commissioners in such county shall employ a competent stenographer to take down the proceedings of the court, at a compensation not to exceed five dollars per day and actual expenses, to be paid by the county in which the court is held: Provided, that the compensation of said stenographers in counties composing the sixteenth judicial district shall not exceed ten dollars per day.

The judge is authorized to tax a reasonable fee against the losing party in every action, civil and criminal, to be turned into the county treasury towards reimbursing the county, but no fee shall be taxed against a losing party suing in forma pauperis.

Every stenographer so employed shall make three copies of the proceedings in every case appealed to the supreme court, without extra charge, and shall furnish one copy to the attorneys on each side and file one copy with the clerk of the superior court of the county in which any such case is tried, and shall obey all orders of the judge relative to the time in which any such work shall be done: Provided, that the restrictions herein against an extra charge for making copies of the proceedings in cases appealed to the supreme court shall not apply to counties composing the sixteenth judicial district.

Every stenographer so employed shall, before entering upon the discharge of his duties, be duly sworn to well, truly, and correctly take down and transcribe the proceedings of the court, except the argument of counsel, and the charge of the court thus taken down and transcribed shall be held to be a compliance with the law requiring the judge to put his instructions to the jury in writing.

This section shall not apply to any county which has a court stenographer authorized by law: Provided, that the board of county commissioners of Mecklenburg county may, by resolution approving this section, bring said county within the provisions of the same: Provided further, that this section shall not apply to the following counties: Alleghany, Brunswick, Caldwell, Camden, Carteret, Caswell, Chatham, Currituck, Dare, Davidson, Davie, Forsyth, Greene, Harnett, Haywood, Hoke, New Hanover, Orange, Pender, Person, Transylvania, Union, Watauga. (Ex. Sess. 1913, c. 69; Ex. Sess. 1921, c. 57; 1927, c. 268; Pub. Loc. 1937, c. 49; 1943, c. 75, s. 2; C. S. 1461.)

Local Modification.—Alamance: Ex. Sess. 1921, c. 2; 1935, c. 474; Burke, Lincoln, Catawba: 1929, cc. 53, 260; Halifax: 1929, c. 45, s. 5; Johnston: 1943, c. 689; McDowell: 1933, c. 85; Northampton: 1911, c. 11, s. 5; Robeson: 1935, c. 9; Surry: 1927, c. 268, s. 2; Wayne: 1927, c. 156.

§ 7-90. Official court reporter for second judicial district.—The resident judge of the second judicial district is hereby authorized and empowered to appoint an official court reporter for one or more or all of the counties in said district who shall serve at the will of the resident judge, and whose appointment may be terminated by thirty days' written notice thereof.

The appointment of such reporter or reporters shall be filed in the office of the clerk of the superior court of each county in said district in which said reporter is to officiate, and the same, or a certified copy thereof, shall be recorded by said clerk on the minute docket of his court.

Before entering upon the discharge of the duties of said office, said reporter shall take and subscribe an oath in words substantially as follows: "I, .............., do solemnly swear that I will, to the best of my ability, discharge the duties of the office of court reporter in and for the county of .............. in the second judicial district, and will faithfully transcribe the testimony offered in said courts as the presiding judge may direct, or as I may be required to do under the law, so help me, God." Said oath shall be filed in the office of each of the clerks of the superior courts of the counties in which said reporter is to officiate, and recorded and indexed on the minute docket of said courts.

If on account of sickness, or for other cause, said reporter is unable to attend upon any of the regular courts of said district, and for conflict in special terms, the resident judge may appoint a reporter pro tem for said court or courts, and said appointment shall appear upon the minutes of said term, and said reporter shall take and subscribe the oath referred to above, which oath shall be filed with the clerk. In lieu of appointing a reporter pro tem for each of said courts, the resident judge may, in his discretion, appoint a reporter pro tem for a stated period whose duty it shall be to report any and all courts in the county or counties designated in the appointment, which the regular court reporter is for any cause unable to report.

The resident judge shall likewise fix the compensation to be received by such reporter and such reporter pro tem: Provided, however, such compensation shall not exceed ten dollars per day and actual expenses upon a weekly basis.

The testimony taken and transcribed by said court reporter or said court reporter pro tem, as the case may be, and duly certified, either by said reporter or the presiding judge at the trial of the cause, may be offered in evidence in any of the courts of this state as the deposition of the witness whose testimony is so taken and transcribed, in the same manner, and under the same rules governing the introduction of depositions in civil actions. (1933, c. 335.)

§ 7-91. Official court reporter for fifth judicial district.—The resident judge of the fifth judicial district is hereby authorized and empowered to appoint an official court reporter for all of the counties in said district, who shall serve at the will of the resident judge, and whose appointment may be terminated at thirty days written notice thereof.

The appointment of such reporter shall be filed in the office of the clerk of the superior court of each county in said district in which said reporter is to officiate, and the same or a certified copy thereof shall be recorded by said clerk on the minute docket of his court.

sue an oath in words substantially as follows: "I ................., do solemnly swear that I will to the best of my ability discharge the duties of the office of court reporter in and for the county of the fifth judicial district and will faithfully transcribe the testimony offered in said courts as the presiding judge may direct or as I may be required to do under the law, so help me, God." Said oath shall be filed in the office of each of the clerks of the superior courts of the counties of said district and recorded and indexed on the minute docket of said courts.

If, on account of sickness or for other cause, said reporter is unable to attend upon any regular courts of said district, and for conflict of special terms the resident judge may appoint a reporter pro tem for said court or courts and said appointment shall appear upon the minutes of said term, and said reporter shall take and subscribe the oath referred to above, which oath shall be filed with the clerk. In lieu of appointing a reporter pro tem for said district the resident judge may, in his discretion, appoint a reporter pro tem for a stated period, whose duty it shall be to report any and all of the courts designated in the appointment which the regular court reporter is for any cause unable to report.

The resident judge shall likewise fix the compensation to be received by said reporter and said reporter pro tem, provided, however, such compensation shall not exceed ten dollars per day and actual expenses upon a weekly basis.

Said court reporter or reporter pro tem must, upon request of counsel when the presiding judge shall find as a fact that same is necessary and so order, deliver to the clerk of the superior court in which said cause is pending a transcript of the evidence in that cause within fifteen days from the adjournment of the term of court in which such evidence was taken.

The testimony taken and transcribed by said court reporter or said reporter pro tem as the case may be, and duly certified, either by said reporter or the presiding judge at the trial of the cause, may be offered in evidence in any of the courts of this State as the deposition of the witness whose testimony is so taken and transcribed, in the same manner, and under the same rules governing the introduction of depositions in civil actions: Provided, however, that such transcript of testimony shall be admissible in evidence only in the cause in which same was taken. (1935, c. 128.)

Local Modification.—Carteret: 1941, c. 137; Greene: 1943, c. 284.

§ 7-92. Official court reporter for sixth judicial district. — The resident judge of the sixth judicial district is hereby authorized and empowered to appoint an official court reporter for one or more, or all of the counties in said district, whose term of office shall be for a period of five years from and after qualification: Provided, however, that said judge shall have the right to remove said reporter for cause at any time.

The appointment of such reporter or reporters shall be filed in the office of the clerk of the superior court of each county in said district in which said reporter is to officiate, and the same, or a certified copy thereof shall be recorded by said clerk on the minute docket of his court.

Before entering upon the discharge of the duties of said office, said reporter shall take and subscribe before the oath provided by law for public officers, and shall in addition thereto take and subscribe an oath in words substantially as follows: "I ................., do furthermore solemnly swear that I will, to the best of my ability, discharge the duties of the office of court reporter in and for the sixth judicial district, and will faithfully transcribe the testimony offered in said courts as the presiding judge may direct, or as I may be required to do under the law, so help me God." Said oath shall be filed in the office of the clerk of the superior court of the county in which said reporter resides, and recorded and indexed by him on the minute docket of said court.

In case of sickness, or for other cause, if said reporter fails to attend upon any of the courts of said district, the presiding judge may appoint a reporter pro tem, for said court, and said appointment shall appear upon the minutes of said term, and said reporter shall take and subscribe the oath referred to above, which oath shall be filed with the clerk.

The resident judge shall likewise fix the compensation to be received, by said reporter, and said reporter pro tem, provided, however, such compensation shall not exceed ten dollars per day and actual expenses upon a weekly basis.

Said court reporter or reporter pro tem must, upon request of counsel when the presiding judge shall find as a fact that same is necessary and so order, deliver to the clerk of the superior court in which said cause is pending a transcript of the evidence in that cause within fifteen days from the adjournment of the term of court in which such evidence was taken.

The testimony taken and transcribed by said court reporter, and duly certified, either by said reporter or the presiding judge at the trial of the cause, may be offered in evidence in any of the courts of this State as the deposition of the witness whose testimony is so taken and transcribed, in the same manner, and under the same rules governing the introduction of depositions in civil actions. (1931, c. 154, s. 5; 1935, c. 420.)

SUBCHAPTER III. COMMISSION FOR IMPROVEMENT OF LAWS.

§ 7-93: Repealed by Session Laws 1943, c. 746.

Editor's Note.—The duties of the commission created by the repealed section were similar to those theretofore conferred on the Judicial Conference by c. 244 of the Public Laws 1925, which was repealed by Public Laws 1931, c. 451. The Act of 1925 was amended by Public Laws 1927, c. 39. The repealed sections of this article were codified from Public Laws 1931, c. 98.

§ 7-94: Repealed by Session Laws 1943, c. 746.

Editor's Note.—The repealed section related to the members of the former commission. This consisted of the attorney-general, the chairman of each of the committees on judiciary of the senate and the house of representatives of the general assembly, two members appointed from the justices of the supreme court and the judges of the superior courts, two members who were active practitioners in the trial and appellate courts, three members who were appointed from the faculties of law in the various universities in the state, and two members, not attorneys at law, who were men of proven ability in other occupations.

SUBCHAPTER IV. DOMESTIC RELATIONS COURTS.

Art. 13. In Counties with a City of at Least Twenty-five Thousand Inhabitants.

§ 7-101. Established by county or city or both.
—The Board of County Commissioners in the various counties having a county seat with twenty-five thousand or more inhabitants of the State, or the governing authorities in cities of twenty-five thousand or more inhabitants shall have authority to establish a "Domestic Relations Court," which court may be a joint county and city court, as provided in section 7-102 or a court for the county or city as may be determined by the governing authorities. (1939, c. 343, s. 1.)

Local Modification.—Durham, Edgecombe, Gaston, Guilford, Nash, New Hanover, Pitt, Wayne: 1929, c. 343, s. 10; Buncombe: 1929, c. 343, s. 10; 1941, c. 308, s. 2; Forsyth: 1929, c. 343, s. 10; 1931, c. 221, s. 2; Wake: 1929, c. 343, s. 10; Pub. Loe. 1941, c. 239.

§ 7-102. Vote on establishment of court; any other city in county with required population may have such court.—In case the Board of County Commissioners and governing authorities of a particular city decide to establish a joint city and county Domestic Relations Court, they, voting as separate bodies, shall determine whether or not such Domestic Relations Court shall be established. If both bodies, shall vote for its establishment, each of them shall record the resolutions in their minutes and upon such consent by both boards, the court shall be established. In counties in which the said joint court is thus established by the Board of County Commissioners and the governing authorities of the county and city such establishment of the court shall not prevent any other city within the territorial limits of the county and having more than twenty-five thousand inhabitants, establishing its own court under section 7-101. (1939, c. 343, s. 2.)

§ 7-103. Jurisdiction.—Said Domestic Relations Court shall have, and is hereby vested with all the power, authority, and jurisdiction heretofore vested by law in the juvenile courts of North Carolina, and said power, authority, and jurisdiction being as fully vested in the Domestic Relations Court as if herein particularly set forth in detail; and in addition thereto the said Domestic Relations Court shall have exclusive original jurisdiction over the following classes of cases:

(a) All cases where any adult is charged with abandonment, non-support, or desertion of any minor child, or where either spouse is charged with abandonment, non-support, or desertion of the other.

(b) All cases involving voluntary desertion of any juvenile by its mother.

(c) All cases involving the custody of juveniles, except where the case is tried in Superior Court as a part of any divorce proceeding.

(d) All cases where assault, or assault and battery, on a juvenile is charged against an adult, or where husband or wife is charged with assault, or assault and battery, upon the other.

(e) All cases in which an adult is charged with causing or being responsible for delinquency, dependency, or neglect of a juvenile.

(f) All bastardy cases within said county.

(g) All cases wherein any person is charged with receiving stolen goods from any juvenile, knowing them to be stolen.

(h) All cases involving violation of the North Carolina School Attendance Law as set forth in Public Laws of North Carolina, one thousand nine hundred and nineteen, chapter one hundred, and Public Laws of North Carolina, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-three, chapter one hundred and thirty-six; and in §§ 115-302 to 115-312, inclusive; and such other laws relative to school attendance as may hereafter be enacted.

(i) In either case where either parent institutes a divorce action when there is a minor child or children, it shall be the duty of the Clerk of the Superior Court to refer the case for investigation as to the child, or children, to the Domestic Relations Court, and the Judge of the Domestic Relations Court shall make his recommendations to the Judge of the Superior Court as to the disposition of the child, or children, for the consideration of the Judge of the Superior Court in disposing of the custody of the said child or children. (1929, c. 343, s. 3; 1941, c. 308; 1943, c. 470, s. 1.)

Cross References.—As to establishment and jurisdiction of juvenile court, see § 110-21 et seq. For statute divesting inferior courts in most counties of exclusive original jurisdiction in criminal actions, see § 7-64.

Editor's Note.—The 1941 amendment struck out former subsection (a), relating to the adoption of juveniles, and re-lettered the subsequent subsections in alphabetical order.

For comment on the 1941 amendment, see 19 N. C. Law Rev. 453.

The 1943 amendment substituted "minor child" for "juvenile" in line three of subsection (b).

Issuance of Process and Hearing Complaints.—There is no statutory provision referring specifically to issuance of process, but the statute indicates that the same persons who would issue process in other courts having jurisdiction of the offenses of which the domestic relations court is given jurisdiction, would be authorized to issue process for the domestic relations court, and hence hear complaints. 15 N. C. Law Rev. 113.

§ 7-104. Election of judge and term of office; vacancy appointments; judge to select clerk; juvenile Court officers may be declared officers of new Court.—It shall be the duty of the Board of Commissioners of any county and the governing board of any city, in which a joint Court of Domestic Relations is established, as provided in this article, or of the governing authorities of any city or county in which an independent Domestic Relations Court shall be established, as provided in this article, acting jointly, in the first instance, or independently, in the second instance, to elect a Judge of the Domestic Relations Court and to fix his salary and provide for the payment of same, his term of office to run from the time of his election to the second Monday in July in each odd numbered year and until his successor shall have been elected and qualified. The regular term of office shall be for a term of two years and until his successor is elected and qualified. If any vacancy should occur in said office during the two years' term, for any cause, it shall be filled for the unexpired term in the same manner and by the same bodies as provided for the election of said Judge.

It shall be the duty of the Judge of the Domestic Relations Court to appoint a Clerk for said court, the salary of said Clerk to be fixed, provided for, and paid by the Board of County Commissioners of any of such counties and the governing board of any of such cities, acting jointly, or independently when a joint county and city court is not established.

And the officers of the Juvenile Court of any of such cities and of any of such counties, as now constituted by law may be declared to be officers of the Domestic Relations Court.

The probation officers of Domestic Relations Court and their method of appointment shall be the same as now provided for in § 110-31, for probation officers of the Juvenile Court. The salaries of said probation officers, and the necessary equipment for the proper maintenance and functioning of said court, shall be a charge upon such county and such city jointly, or upon the county or city, if it is an independent court.

Wherever a domestic relations court is established a substitute judge of said court may be appointed in the same manner as the regular judge of said court. Such substitute judge shall serve during the absence, illness or other temporary disability of the regular judge, and while serving shall have the same power and authority as the regular judge. Such substitute judge shall receive such compensation, on a per diem basis, as shall be determined and provided by the governing body or bodies appointing him. (1929, c. 343, s. 4; 1931, c. 221, s. 1; 1943, c. 470, s. 2.)

Editor's Note.—The 1943 amendment added the last paragraph of this section.

§ 7-106  Procedure, practice and punishments. —The procedure, practice, and punishments imposed in the Domestic Relations Court as established in this article shall be the same as now provided by law in courts now having original jurisdiction of the various offenses or causes enumerated in this article, and the Judge of the said Domestic Relations Court is hereby granted the power to prescribe such rules and fix such modes of procedure, as, in his discretion, will best effect the purposes for which said court is created.

Such court, when established, shall adopt an official seal, shall keep and preserve adequate dockets and other records of its proceedings, and shall be a court of record. The judge and clerk of said court shall have power to administer oaths and to issue warrants and other process in said court. (1929, c. 343, s. 6; 1943, c. 470, s. 3.)

Editor's Note.—The 1943 amendment added the second paragraph of this section.

§ 7-107  Right of appeal to Superior Court; trial de novo.—Wherever in this article criminal jurisdiction is conferred upon the Domestic Relations Court there shall be the same right of appeal from this court as from Recorder's Courts or other inferior criminal courts to the Superior Court, and the same rules and regulations of such appeals from inferior courts shall apply to appeals from this court, and in the Superior Court the trial shall be de novo. This provision shall apply also to the trials in bastardy cases, and cases involving the custody of juveniles. (1929, c. 343, s. 7; 1943, c. 470, s. 4.)

Editor's Note.—The 1943 amendment made this section applicable to cases involving the custody of juveniles.

§ 7-108  Offenses before Court to be petty misdemeanors; demand for jury trial; appearance bonds.—All the offenses for the trial of which the Domestic Relations Court is given jurisdiction are hereby declared to be petty misdemeanors punishable as now prescribed by law. On the trial before such Domestic Relations Court, if a jury trial is demanded, the cause shall be transferred for trial to some criminal term of the Superior Court of the counties in which the Domestic Relations Court is situated. The defendant or defendants shall be held under an adequate bond to secure his or their attendance at the criminal term of the Superior Court to which the record is transferred. If in the exercise of the jurisdiction hereinafter conferred upon the Domestic Relations Court, it should appear that a felony has been committed, said court shall have jurisdiction and authority upon proper investigation to bind over the alleged felon in all cases in which probable cause is found, to the Superior Court of the county, under proper bond and recognizances. (1929, c. 343, s. 8.)

§ 7-109  Pending cases in Juvenile Court transferred to new Court.—All causes pending in the Juvenile Court of the county or city at the time of the organization of any Domestic Relations Court within said county or city, shall be transferred to the Domestic Relations Court for final adjudication. (1929, c. 343, s. 9.)

§ 7-110  Cases transferred from Superior Court. —Upon the establishment of a domestic relations court as authorized in this article, the clerk of the superior court shall immediately transfer from the superior court to such domestic relations court all actions pending in the superior court of which the domestic relations court has jurisdiction as in this article conferred, whether such actions are untried or tried and retained for judgment, sentence or further orders, and the domestic relations court shall immediately have jurisdiction of such actions and shall thereafter try, enter further orders or dispose of such actions in the same manner and to the same extent as if said actions had been initiated in said domestic relations court. (1941, c. 208, s. 1.)

§ 7-111  Discontinuance of Court.—After the establishment of any domestic relations court by any county commissioners or by the governing authorities of a particular city, or the establishment of a joint county-city court of domestic relations, such board, governing authorities, or both, may, by resolution or resolutions, discontinue any such court. (1941, c. 208, s. 2½.)
§ 7-112. Constitution, article seven, abrogated; exceptions. — All the provisions of article seven of the constitution inconsistent with this chapter, except those contained in sections seven and twelve are hereby abrogated, and the provisions of this article substituted in their place; subject, however, to the power of the general assembly to alter, amend or abrogate the provisions of this article, and to substitute others in their stead, as provided in section thirteen of article seven of the constitution. (Rev., s. 1409; Code, s. 819; 1876-7, c. 144, s. 7; C. S. 1462.)

§ 7-113. Election and number of justices. — At every general election held for members of the general assembly there shall be elected in each township three justices of the peace, and for each township in which any city or incorporated town is situated, one justice of the peace for every one thousand inhabitants in such city or town, who shall hold office for a term of two years from and after the first Monday in December next after their election. (Rev., s. 1409; Code, s. 819; 1876-7, c. 141; 1895, c. 157; 1905, c. 113; 1907, c. 228; 1909, c. 177, 716; C. S. 1463.)

§ 7-114. Oath of office; vacancies filled. — Every person elected or appointed a justice of the peace, before his term of office begins or within thirty days thereafter, shall take and subscribe the prescribed oaths of office before the clerk of the superior court, who shall file the same. All elections of justices of the peace by the general assembly or by the people shall be void unless the persons so elected shall qualify as herein directed. All original vacancies in the offices of justice of the peace occurring before qualification as provided in this section shall be filled for the term by the governor. All other vacancies shall be filled by the clerk of the superior court. (Rev., s. 1411; Code, s. 821; 1901, c. 37; C. S. 1467.)

Cross Reference. — As to forms of oaths, see §§ 11-6, 11-7, 11-11; Const., Art. VI, s. 7.

Section Constitutional. — This section is not unconstitutional. Gilmer v. Holton, 98 N. C. 25; Sprague v. C. S. 1468.)

Duty of Clerk. — It is the duty of the clerk to administer the oath to the justices elected or appointed. Gilmer v. Holton, 98 N. C. 25; S. E. 812.

Appointed by Clerk. — The authority of the clerks of the superior courts to appoint justices of the peace is confined to vacancies caused by death, resignation or other causes contrary to this section, unless reelected or re-appointed, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction be punishable in the discretion of the court, as provided for in other misdemeanors. (1917, c. 40; 1927, c. 116; C. S. 1468.)

§ 7-115. Governor may appoint justices. — The governor may, from time to time, at his discretion, appoint one or more fit persons in every county to act as justices of the peace, who shall hold their office for four years from and after the date of their appointment; and, on exhibiting their commission to the clerk of the superior court of the county in which they are to act, shall be duly qualified by taking before said clerk an oath of office and the oaths prescribed for other officers. The governor shall issue to each justice of the peace so appointed a commission, a certificate of which shall be deposited with the clerk of the court and filed among the records, and he shall note on his minutes the qualifications of the justice of the peace.

Any commission so issued by the Governor or his predecessor shall be revokable by him in his discretion upon complaint being made against such justice of the peace and when he shall be satisfied that the interest of the public will be best served by the revocation of said commission.

Whenever the Governor shall have revoked the commission of any justice of the peace appointed by him, or his predecessor in office, it shall be his duty to file with the clerk of the court in the county of such justice of the peace a copy of said order and mail a copy of same to said justice of the peace.

Any person holding himself out to the public as a justice of the peace, or any person attempting to act in such capacity after his commission shall have been revoked by the Governor, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction be punishable in the discretion of the court, as provided for in other misdemeanors. (1917, c. 40; 1927, c. 116; C. S. 1468.)

§ 7-118. Removal and disqualification for crime. — Upon the conviction of any justice of the peace of an infamous crime, or of corruption and malpractice in office, he shall be removed from office, and he shall be disqualified from holding or enjoying any office of honor, trust or profit under this state. (Rev., s. 1414; Code, s. 926; C. S. 1471.)

Criminal Liability. — The functions of a justice of the peace are ministerial, in preserving the peace, hearing charges against offenders and issuing warrants thereon, examining the parties and bailing or committing them for trial, and in the exercise of such functions, if he act corruptly, oppressively or from any other bad motive, he is liable to indictment. State v. Sneed, 81 N. C. 817.

§ 7-119. Justice may hold other office. — Any justice of the peace may accept a civil office or appointment of trust or profit, under the authority of the United States, the duties of which confine him to the county where he is resident. (Rev., s. 1415; Code, s. 825; Const., Art. 14, s. 7; C. S. 1475.)
Justice of Peace May Also Be Recorder of City Court.—Under Const. Art. 14, sec. 7, excepting a justice of the peace from the inhibition against one holding two offices of trust or profit, one may be both a justice of the peace and the recorder of a city recorder's court. State v. Lord, 145 N. C. 479, 59 S. E. 556.

§ 7-120. Validation of official acts of certain justices of the peace.—Each and all of the official acts of justices of the peace appointed by chapter three hundred twenty-one, Public Laws of one thousand nine hundred thirty-one, after the expiration of their terms on April first, one thousand nine hundred thirty-two, and before March twenty-first, one thousand nine hundred thirty-nine, including all judgments rendered, probates taken, marriages performed, and any and all other acts whatsoever, are hereby in all respects valid, ratified and confirmed. (1939, c. 268.)

Art. 15. Jurisdiction.

§ 7-121. Jurisdiction in actions on contract.—Justices of the peace shall have exclusive original jurisdiction of all civil actions founded on contract, except—
1. Wherein the sum demanded, exclusive of interest, exceeds two hundred dollars.
2. Wherein the title to real estate is in controversy. (Rev. s. 1419; Const., Art. IV, s. 27; Code, s. 584; C. S. 1473.)

II. Title to Land in Controversy.
to recover land of the jurisdiction of the justice is excluded where the relation is that of mortgagor and mortgagee or vendor and vendee. Hughes v. Mason, 84 N. C. 473.

Foreclosure of Mortgage.—Because of the equity growing out of the refusal of the mortgagee to agree to the conditions of the mortgage, the former seeks to have the mortgaged premises foreclosed for the nonpayment of the debt, the superior court has jurisdiction, when the amount secured is for less than two thousand dollars, to grant a writ of assistance. Quaring Machinery Co. v. Burger, 181 N. C. 241, 107 S. E. 141.

Landlord and Tenant Act.—A court of a justice of the peace has no jurisdiction under the landlord and tenant act to try title to real estate where it appears that the plaintiff has been wronged or that there are equities involved as to the land and a justice of the peace has no jurisdiction. Parker v. Allen, 84 N. C. 466.

That the vendee, in a contract for the sale of land, remained silent, when the contract was mutatis mutandis void, the title to the land was a question of equity, and the superior court should have intervened. Boone v. Drake, 109 N. C. 79, 13 S. E. 724.

In an action by a purchaser of land with warranty to recover a sum of money paid by him to free the land from a lien, the deed will be introduced to prove the covenants, the title to realty is involved, and a justice would not have jurisdiction. Hann v. Fletcher, 189 N. C. 729, 128 S. E. 328.

Right of Equitable Creditor.—A justice of the peace has no jurisdiction to sell a lease of land, under which the lessee had settled, on fifty acres, claim to purchase an equitable interest in himself. Davis v. Davis, 83 N. C. 71.

In a proceeding before a justice of the peace under the Landlord and Tenant Act, a defendant who does not deny the lease, but (

II. TITLE TO LAND IN CONTROVERSY.

See section 7-124 and sections following and notes thereto.

Jurisdiction.—Justices of the peace can take no jurisdiction over a cause in which title to land is in controversy. Brown v. Sootherland, 142 N. C. 325, 55 S. E. 108. This is prohibited by the Constitution as well as impliedly by this section. Forsythe v. Bullock, 74 N. C. 135, 137.

Mere allegation of the defendant that title is in controversy will not oust justices' jurisdiction. The matter must appear by the admission of the parties. Jerome v. Setzer, 175 N. C. 391, 95 S. E. 616.

Title Must be Between Parties to Action.—The question of title, which arrests further proceedings before the justice, must appear between the parties to the action. Jurisdiction once acquired cannot be divested by the intervention of a stranger to the suit, asserting a paramount title. Davis v. Davis, 83 N. C. 71.

Action Dismissed for Costs.—If it appears on the trial that the title to real estate is in controversy, the justice shall dismiss the action and render judgment against the plaintiff for costs. Pasterfield v. Sawyer, 135 N. C. 254, 43 S. E. 599; Edwards v. Cowper, 94 N. C. 421, 6 S. E. 792, 793.

Notes Given for Purchase Price of Land.—A justice of the peace has jurisdiction of an action to recover a balance due on a notes given to the justices of the peace is not exclusive, and hence the justice of the peace has no jurisdiction over certain classes of cases. These cases are also cognizable in the superior court since the jurisdiction herein given to the justices of the peace is exclusive, and they fall within what may be termed the residuary clause contained in section 7-63.

Generally.—In actions ex contractu justices of the peace have jurisdiction, when the sum demanded does not exceed two hundred dollars, but in actions ex delicto, their jurisdiction is limited to cases wherein the value of the property in controversy does not exceed fifty dollars. (Rev. s. 1420; Const., Art. 4, s. 27; Code, s. 887; C. S. 1474.)

Cross Reference.—See §§ 7-63, 7-121 and notes.

Editor's Note.—Section 7-63 sets out the limits wherein the superior court has jurisdiction over certain classes of cases. These cases are also cognizable in the superior court since the jurisdiction herein given to the justices of the peace is exclusive, and they fall within what may be termed the residuary clause contained in section 7-63.

Generally.—In actions ex contractu justices of the peace have jurisdiction when the sum demanded does not exceed two hundred dollars, but in actions ex delicto, their jurisdiction is limited to cases wherein the value of the property in controversy does not exceed fifty dollars. Noville v. Dew, 94 N. C. 43. Jurisdiction of the peace is limited by the section for suits between mortgagor and mortgagee or between superior courts of actions for torts where the value of the property in controversy does not exceed fifty dollars. Harvey v. Hambrigg, 98 N. C. 446, 4 S. E. 187.

We think that the decisions of this court, already made, lead necessarily to the conclusion, that the clause of this section comprehends, and was intended to comprehend, all actions ex delicto; that the term 'property in controversy, here used as determinative of jurisdiction, by correct interpretation, means the value of the injury complained of and involved in the litigation; and where a plaintiff, in good faith, states or limits his demand in actions of this character, the justice of the peace has no jurisdiction.
of the peace in an action in which he has no jurisdiction is void. Noville v. Dew, 94 N. C. 43.

Remittance of Excess Will Not Give Jurisdiction.—Where, in an action of claim and delivery, it appears that the value of the property claimed is at least twice the jurisdiction of the justice, and the plaintiff cannot confer jurisdiction by a remitter. Noville v. Dew, 94 N. C. 43. See section 7-123.

§ 7-125. Priority of Proceedings as Determining Jurisdiction.—Where two or more courts have equal and concurrent jurisdiction of a case, that court in which suit is first brought has preference in the jurisdiction of the other courts. Childs v. Martin, 69 N. C. 126.

Irregular Proceedings.—Where jurisdiction is concurrent, and a case is carried by appeal to the superior court, and the appeal is disposed of by the court of last resort without the issue of judgment, the court will have cognizance of the matter by virtue of its original jurisdiction of the subject matter of the action, and by the consent the parties thereto. Irregular proceedings cannot be reversed on appeal to a court of record which will have jurisdiction of the action.

Remittance of Counterclaim on Appeal.—A justice of the peace has jurisdiction of an action on contract to recover the amount by which the salary paid plaintiff in the "President's Re-employment Agreement" failed to equal the amount stipulated in the "President's Re-employment Agreement." A voluntary remittance of the excess amount to the justice of the peace in an action in which he has no jurisdiction is void. Noville v. Dew, 94 N. C. 43.

Failure to Use Statutory Formula.—Objection to a failure by the plaintiff to state in the complaint the date of the salary paid plaintiff in the "President's Re-employment Agreement," voluntarily signed by defendant employer, when the amount demanded does not exceed two hundred dollars. James v. Sartin Dry Cleaning Co., 208 N. C. 412, 181 S. E. 341.

§ 7-124. Title to real estate in controversy as a defense.—In every action brought in a court of a justice of the peace, where the title to real estate comes in controversy, the defendant may, either with or without other matter of defense, set forth, in his answer, any matter showing that such title will come in question. Such answer shall be in writing, signed by the defendant or his attorney, and delivered to the justice. (Rev. s. 1428; Code, s. 836; C. S. 1476.)

Cross Reference.—See § 7-121 and notes.

Answer in Writing Necessary.—The title to real estate cannot be drawn into controversy by the defendant on a trial in a justice's court except by delivering to the justice an answer in writing that such title will come in question. Evans v. Williamson, 79 N. C. 87.

The evidence at the trial must tend to show that the title is in issue. Fosterfield v. Sawyer, 132 N. C. 258, 43 S. E. 799. And the trial will proceed until it is apparent that this is true. McDonald v. Ingram, 124 N. C. 272, 32 S. E. 677.

Mere allegation of defendant: that title is in controversy, see note of Jerome v. Setzer, 175 N. C. 391, 95 S. E. 616, under section 7-121 analysis II.

Judgment in Action in Which Defenses Should Have Been Set Up as Bar to Subsequent Action Thereon.—A possessory action in ejectment in the court of a justice of the peace terminates in that court upon an issue of title to lands or of equitable rights therein being raised by the defendant, and in the Superior Court the defendant is required to set up his equities, if any he have, and where he fails to do so an independent action by him thereon is barred by the prior judgment, it being assumed that the court rendering the judgment had jurisdiction of the parties and the subject-matter of the action. Ogburn v. Booker, 197 N. C. 687, 159 S. E. 330.

§ 7-125. Title to real estate in controversy, action dismissed.—If it appears on the trial that the title to real estate in controversy, the justice shall dismiss the action and render judgment against the plaintiff for costs. (Rev. s. 1423; Code, s. 837; C. S. 1477.)

Cross Reference.—See §§ 7-121, 7-124 and notes.

"Real Estate" Defined.—The words "real estate" in this section mean freehold estate. Foster v. Perry, 77 N. C. 160, 162.

Alienation in Writing Not Required.—It is not necessary that an allegation in writing that the title to real estate is in controversy be made. Edwards v. Cowper, 99 N. C. 421, 422, 6 S. E. 792. But the trial will proceed until it is apparent that this is true. McDonald v. Ingram, 124 N. C. 272, 32 S. E. 677.

Duty of Justice to Dismiss Action.—When it appears on the trial that the title to real estate is in controversy, the justice shall dismiss the action. Hudson v. Hodge, 139 N. C. 358, 51 S. E. 955.

Stated in Nesbitt v. Turrentine, 83 N. C. 536, 537; Wright v. Harris, 116 N. C. 460, 17 S. E. 69.

§ 7-126. Another action in Superior Court.—When an action, before a justice, is dismissed upon answer, and proof by the defendant, that the title to real estate is in controversy in the case, the plaintiff may prosecute an action for the same cause in the superior court, and the defendant shall not be admitted in that court to deny the jurisdiction by an answer contradicting his answer in the justice's court. (Rev., s. 1423; Code, s. 838; C. S. 1478.)

Purpose of Section.—The last clause of this section was passed to prevent the hardship, which would necessarily arise if the defendant could have action dismissed by a magistrate on his plea that title to real estate is in question, and then, when suit is brought by the same plaintiff for the same cause of action in the superior court, he should be allowed to plead that title to the land did not come in controversy, and have the cause dismissed there. To prevent such absurdity this statute was passed, so that if, on defendant's motion, it is adjudged in the magistrate's court that title to the land did not come in controversy, such finding shall be conclusive between same parties in the new action. Peck v. Calhoun, 104 N. C. 425, 10 S. E. 511.

Dismissal upon Answer Essential.—Recourse may not be had to the provisions of this section where it does not appear that the action before the justice was dismissed upon answer and proof by defendant that the title to real estate was in controversy. Brown v. Sutherlaut, 142 N. C. 225, 59 S. E. 108. See also, note of Evans v. Williamson, 79 N. C. 87, under section 7-124.

Where, however, there is a failure to file the written answer with the defendant, the magistrate may enter judgment for the plaintiff upon such answer in the superior court and denying jurisdiction. Evans v. Williamson, 79 N. C. 87.

§ 7-127. Justice may act anywhere in county.—A justice of the peace may issue a summons or other process anywhere in his county, but he shall not be compelled to try a case in the township for which he was elected or appointed. (Rev., s. 1425; Code, s. 824; C. S. 1479.)

Issuance of Process When Justice Out of Township.—A justice may issue process while he is anywhere in his county, provided he hears the matter in his own township. Dictum in Davis v. Sanderlin, 119 N. C. 84, 87, 25 S. E. 815.

§ 7-128. Punishment for contempt in certain cases.—If any person shall profanely swear or curse in the hearing of a justice of the peace, holding court, the justice may commit him for contempt, or fine him not exceeding five dollars. (Rev., s. 1426; Code, s. 848; R. C. c. 115; 1741, c. 50; C. S. 1460.)

Cross References.—As to courts and officers empowered to punish for contempt, see § 5-8. As to penalty of witness refusing to testify in action against railroad before a justice of the peace, see § 7-146.

§ 7-129. Jurisdiction in criminal actions.—Justices of the peace have exclusive original jurisdiction of all assaults, assaults and batteries, and affrays, where no deadly weapon is used and no serious damage is done, and of all criminal matters arising within their counties, where the punishment prescribed by law does not exceed a fine of fifty dollars or imprisonment for thirty days: Provided, that justices of the peace shall have no jurisdiction over assaults with intent to kill, or as assaulted with intent to commit rape, except as committing magistrates: Provided further, that nothing in this section shall prevent the superior or criminal courts from finally hearing and determining such affrays as shall be committed within one mile of the place where and during the time such court is being held; nor shall this section be construed to prevent said courts from assuming jurisdiction of all offenses whereof exclusive original jurisdiction is given to justices of the peace if some justice of the peace, within twelve months after the commission of the offense, shall not have proceeded to take official cognizance of the same.

Cross References.—As to jurisdiction of justice of peace to require defendant to enter recognition to keep the peace, see § 15-32. For statute divesting inferior courts in most counties of exclusive original jurisdiction in criminal actions, see § 7-64.

Editor's Note.—This section must be construed in connection with section 7-63 which defines the jurisdiction of the inspector of justice, to which reference is made. See State v. Cunningham, 94 N. C. 824, 826; see also note of this case under section 7-63, analysis line, "Criminal Actions," IV.

Generally.—Until the expiration of six months (twelve) from the commission of the offense justices of the peace have exclusive jurisdiction of all misdemeanors where the punishment cannot exceed a fifty-dollar fine or thirty days imprisonment; after the expiration of the six months (twelve) their jurisdiction is concurrent with that of the superior court. State v. Roberts, 98 N. C. 756, 3 S. E. 682.

Concurrent Jurisdiction.—In criminal actions, as in civil actions, although the justice of the peace has been given "exclusive" original jurisdiction in certain instances, other courts have been granted jurisdiction concurrent with that of the justice of the peace. See, for example, §§ 7-190 and 7-220.

Constitutionality.—This section is constitutional. State v. Johnson, 64 N. C. 581.

Legislative Power.—It is not competent for the Legislature to confer upon justices of the peace jurisdiction of which the punishment by law may exceed the limit as fixed by this section (and the Constitution). State v. Fesperman, 118 N. C. 770, 13 S. E. 14.

Where Punishment Unlimited.—Where the punishment under the particular statutes under which the defendant is being tried is unlimited or is not limited to a fine of $50, or imprisonment for thirty days, it is not a case within the jurisdiction of the justice of the peace. State v. Addington, 121 N. C. 535, 27 S. E. 968.

Pleading.—In the case falling within the provisions of this section the pleadings must show affirmatively everything necessary to constitute the jurisdiction relied upon. State v. Johnson, 64 N. C. 581.

Same.—When Jurisdiction Concurrent.—It is not necessary for a bill of indictment charging assault with a deadly weapon, or with intent to commit rape, to show affirmatively that the jurisdiction of the superior court has been exercised in the manner in which it was used. State v. Sinclair, 120 N. C. 603, 27 S. E. 77.

It is material to show whether or not a deadly weapon was used because it is a material fact in deciding whether the jurisdiction of the superior court has jurisdiction. State v. Murphy, 101 N. C. 697, 701, 5 S. E. 142.

Same.—Where Question of Law or Fact.—Whether the weapon used was a deadly weapon is a question of law, where there is no dispute about the facts. State v. Sinclair, 120 N. C. 603, 27 S. E. 77. But where the deadly character of the weapon is to be determined by the relative size and condition of the parties and their armament, when the weapon was deadly is a question of fact. State v. Archbell, 139 N. C. 537, 51 S. E. 538.

Serious Damage.—The serious injury as used in this section must be such physical injury as gives rise to great bodily pain; mental anguish alone is not serious injury within the meaning of this provision. State v. Nash, 19 N. C. 623, 11 S. E. 874.

Where it was shown that the defendant assaulted the prosecuting witness with his fist, knocked him down, jumped on him and beat him in a cruel manner, stunning him and inflicting injuries, but it did not appear that the injuries were permanent, it was held, that this was "serious damage," and a justice of the peace had no jurisdiction of the offense. State v. Shelly, 98 N. C. 673, 4 S. E. 530.

Same.—Manner of Excepting.—Exception to the jurisdiction of the superior court, or that no serious damage was done, or no deadly weapon was used, and six months (now twelve) had not elapsed, should be made, not by a motion to quash or in arrest of judgment, but by a prayer for instruction to the jury to acquit. State v. Earnest, 98 N. C. 740, 4 S. E. 495.

And it may be also taken advantage of under a plea of not guilty. State v. Reaves, 8 N. C. 553; State v. Berry, 87 N. C. 60.

Simple Assault.—In a case of simple assault where no deadly weapon is used and no serious damages inflicted, a justice of the peace has jurisdiction. State v. Johnson, 94 N. C. 83.

Upon the trial of an indictment for simple assault, the superior court prima facie has jurisdiction, but it is open to the defendant to show that the offense was committed within six months (now twelve) of the finding of the bill. State v. Earnest, 98 N. C. 740, 4 S. E. 495.

Same — Former Conviction and Acquittal. — A plea of former conviction or acquittal before a justice of the peace for a deadly weapon or inflicted serious injury, in which case, the latter that the defendant making the plea had, in fact, used a deadly weapon or inflicted serious injury, in which case, the justice not having jurisdiction, the proceedings before him would be a nullity. State v. Hibbertson, 113 N. C. 633, 18 S. E. 321.

Under this section a magistrate has original jurisdiction of simple assault and on appeal from an acquittal a plea of former jeopardy is good. State v. Myrick, 292 N. C. 688, 288 S. E. 803.

Art. 16. Dockets.

§ 7-130. Justice shall keep docket.—A civil and a criminal docket shall be furnished each justice, at the expense of the county, by the board of county commissioners, in which shall be entered a minute of every proceeding had in any action before such justice. (Rev., s. 1416; Code, s. 831; C. S. 1482.)

Not a Court of Record.—A justice's court is not a court of record. Smith Building, etc., Co. v. Pender, 173 N. C. 55, 91 S. E. 524; Williams v. Bowling, 111 N. C. 295, 16 S. E. 179.

This has been the ruling in a great number of cases but in Harris v. Singlelter, 391 N. C. 583, 587, 137 S. E. 724, it is intimated that under the requirements of this section, a justice's court is partly one of record.—Ed. Note.

While the court of a justice of the peace is not a court of record, nevertheless, its judgments are conclusive until reversed, modified or vacated in some proceeding instituted for that purpose; and such court has the same jurisdiction as a superior court to vacate judgments rendered by it as superior courts possess over judgments rendered by them. Whitehurst v. Transportation Co., 109 N. C. 342, 13 S. E. 937.

While the courts of justices of the peace are not, strictly speaking, courts of record, their powers and exercise may manifest the powers of such tribunals. Bailey v. Hester, 101 N. C. 538, 540, 8 S. E. 164.

§ 7-131. Entries to be made.—The justice shall enter all his proceedings in a case tried before him in his docket. No part of such proceedings must be entered on the summons, on the pleadings, or on any other paper in the case. (Rev., s. 1470; Rule 14; Code, s. 840; Rule 13; C. S. 1483.)

Fince of Docketing. — A judgment of a justice of the peace, not docketed within a year from the date of its rendition, is dormant and its lost validity can not be restored by docketing the same in the superior court, but only by a new action upon it. Cowen v. Withrow, 114 N. C. 558, 559, 12 S. E. 647.

§ 7-132. Dockets filed with clerk.—Each justice of the peace, as often as he has filled his docket, shall file the same with the clerk of the superior court for his county. (Rev., s. 1417; Code, s. 827; C. S. 1484.)

§ 7-133. Dockets, papers, and books delivered to successor.—When a vacancy exists, from any cause, in the office of a justice of the peace, whose docket is not filed, or when such justice goes out of office by expiration of his term, such former justice, if living, and his personal representative, if dead, shall deliver such docket, all law and other books furnished him as a justice of the peace, and all official papers, to the clerk of the superior court for his successor, who is authorized to hear and determine any unfinished action on said docket, in the same manner as if such action had been originally brought before such successor. (Rev., s. 1418; Code, s. 828; 1885, c. 372; C. S. 1485.)

Art. 17. Fees.

§ 7-134. Fees of justices of the peace.—Justices of the peace shall receive the following fees, and none other: For attachment with one defendant, twenty-five cents, and if more than one defendant, ten cents for each additional defendant; transcript of judgment, ten cents; summons, twenty cents, if more than one defendant in the same case, for each additional defendant, ten cents; subpoena for each witness, ten cents; trial when issues are joined, seventy-five cents, and if no issues are joined, then a fee of forty cents for trial and judgment; taking an affidavit, bond or undertaking, or for an order of publication, or an order to seize property, twenty-five cents; for jury trial and entering verdict, seventy-five cents; execution, twenty-five cents; renewal of execution, ten cents; return to an appeal, thirty cents; order of arrest in civil actions, twenty-five cents; warrant of arrest in criminal and bastardy cases, including affidavit or complaint, fifty cents; warrant of commitment, twenty-five cents; taking depositions on order or commission, per one hundred words, ten cents; garnishment for taxes, and making necessary return and certificate of same, twenty-five cents; for hearing petition for widow's year's allowance, issuing notice to commissioners and allotting the same, one dollar; for filing and docketing laborers' liens, fifty cents; probate of a deed or other writing proved by a witness, including the certificate, twenty-five cents; probate of a deed or other writing executed by a married woman, proper acknowledgment and private examination, with the certificate thereof, twenty-five cents; probate of a deed or other writing acknowledged by the signers or makers, including all except married women who acknowledge at the same time, with the certificate thereof, twenty-five cents; probating chattel mortgage, including the certificate, ten cents; for issuing all papers and copies thereof in an action for claim and delivery, and the trial of the same, if issues are joined, when there is one defendant, one dollar and fifty cents, and if more than one defendant in action, fifty cents for each additional defendant, and ten cents for each subpoena issued in said cause, and twenty-five cents for taking the replevy bond, when one is given: Provided, that when the trial of such a cause shall have been removed from before the justice of the peace issuing the said papers, the justice of the peace sitting in trial of such cause shall receive fifty cents of the above costs for such trial and judgment.

Justices of the peace in the counties of Montgomery, Onslow, Macon, Swain, Greene, Hyde, Cherokee, Rowan, Anson, Bertie, Nash, Chowan, Alamance, Wake, Transylvania, Watauga.
Pender, Lee, Lenoir, Perquimans, Rockingham, Stokes, Johnston, Halifax, Duplin, Chatham, Forsyth, Wilkes, Gates, Tyrrell, Brunswick, Stanly, Columbus, Edgecombe, Franklin, Vance, Mitchell, Orange, Buncombe, Jackson, Alexander, McDowell, Clay, Hertford, Davidson, Northampton, Wayne, Jones, Cabarrus, Rob- enson, Richmond, Randolph, Polk, Henderson, Harnett, Bladen, Burke, Granville, Person, Haywood, Caldwell, Cumberland, and Madison shall receive the following fees, and none other:

For attachment with one defendant, thirty-five cents, and if more than one defendant, fifteen cents for each additional defendant; transcript of judgment, fifteen cents; summons, thirty cents; if more than one defendant in the same case, for each witness, fifteen cents; trial when issues are joined, one dollar; and if no issues are joined, then a fee of fifty cents for trial and judgment; taking an affidavit, bond, or undertaking, or for an order of publication, or an order to seize property, thirty-five cents; for jury trial and entering verdict, one dollar; execution, thirty-five cents; renewal of execution or order of garnishment of property, thirty-five cents; warrant of arrest in criminal and bastardy cases, including affidavit or complaint, seventy-five cents; warrant of commitment, fifty cents; taking deposition or order of commission, per one hundred words, fifteen cents; garnishment for taxes and making necessary return and certificate of same, thirty-five cents. (Rev., s. 2788; Code, ss. 2135, 37-18; 1870-1, c. 130, s. 9; 1883, c. 368, 1885, c. 86; 1903, c. 225; 1907, c. 967; 1917, c. 260; 1921, c. 113; Ex. Sess. 1921, cc. 38, 64, 67; 1923, cc. 98, 114, 238; 1929, cc. 13, 59, 1931, cc. 51, 303; C. S. 3923.)

Local Modification.—Henderson: c. 194, s. 324; Jones: c. 1943, c. 315, s. 2; Orange: c. 1935, s. 358; Wake: c. 1937, c. 136; 1941, c. 165; Westminster: c. 1927, e. 166.

Editor’s Note.—The amendment of 1935 added Caldwell and Onslow Counties. The Acts of 1931 added Cumberland and Person Counties.

The fee of the recorder of a city who is ex officio justice of the peace for the trial of an offense should, in proper instances, be taxed against the defendant as a part of the costs, upon the trial in the superior court, upon appeal. State v. Lord, 145 N. C. 479, 59 S. E. 656.

§ 7-135. Action begun by summons.—Civil actions in these courts shall be commenced by the issuing of a summons. (Rev., s. 1444; Code, s. 830; 1869-9, c. 159, s. 9; C. S. 1486.)

Cross Reference.—As to summons and process generally, see § 1-88 et seq.

Service by Publication.—In attachment and publication on a nonresident defendant before a justice of the peace, where defendant’s property within the jurisdiction of the court has been levied on, a summons is not required. Mills v. Hansel, 168 N. C. 631, 85 S. E. 17. As to service by publication generally, see § 1-98 and the notes thereto.

§ 7-136. Issuance and contents of summons.—The summons shall be issued by the justice and signed by him. It shall run in the name of the state, and be directed to any constable or other lawful officer, commanding him to summon the defendant to appear and answer the complaint of the plaintiff at a place, within the county, to be therein specified, and at a time to be therein named, not exceeding thirty days from the date of the summons. It shall also state the sum demanded by the plaintiff or the value of the property sued for, where specific property is claimed. (Rev., s. 1445; Code, s. 832; 1874-5, c. 294; C. S. 1487.)

To Whom Directed.—The summons in a civil action before a justice of the peace must be directed to "any constable or other lawful officer." McKee v. Angel, 90 N. C. 60, 62.

Special Officer.—A special officer may be deputized to serve the summons issued by a justice of the peace, where the sheriff and coroner are interested. Baker v. Brem, 127 N. C. 322, 57 S. E. 454.

Signing.—Where a justice of the peace, because of bad faith, requests his secretary to sign his name to the summons, which she does in his presence and under his supervision, the summons is valid, and when the summons is issued in an action in arrest and bail and defendant is later arrested for his property unsatisfied, the manner of the issuance of the summons will not support an action for false imprisonment. Johnson v. Chambers, 219 N. C. 769, 14 S. E. (2d) 789.

Amount Must Be Stated.—In an action before a justice of the peace, if on contract, the summons should state the amount demanded, if for a tort, it should state the amount of damages claimed, and if for the recovery of specific property, the value of the property, and such statement in the summons gives the justice prima facie jurisdiction. Noville v. Dew, 94 N. C. 45, 44. A defect in this particular will not be cured by the insertion of the necessary averment in the subsequent process. Leathers v. Morris, 101 N. C. 184, 187, 7 S. E. 783.

Same—Omission by Inadvertence.—Where it is made to appear that the court would have jurisdiction if the summons had contained the proper averments, but the omission was caused by mistake or inadvertance, it may, pending the action, permit the necessary amendment. Leathers v. Morris, 101 N. C. 184, 187, 7 S. E. 783.

Same—Conclusiveness as Fixing Jurisdiction.—Where the amount claimed in the summons issued by a justice was $200, and no other complaint was filed, and the amount asserted in evidence amounted to $242, it was held that if the plaintiff stated that he remitted the excess over $200, it was sufficient that the justice had jurisdiction. Cromer v. Marsh, 122 N. C. 563, 29 S. E. 836. See section 7-63, analysis line, "Previous amendment." II, p. 61.

Failure to Serve Summons.—A summons issued by a justice and summons and warrant of attachment, and publication of the warrant was made, but the summons was not served, a judgment rendered thereon is void for insufficiency of service of summons. Ditmore v. Goins, 128 N. C. 325, 29 S. E. 61.

After Thirty Days.—When personal service of summons in attachment cannot be made for the absence from the county of a nonresident defendant having property therein, publication of summons is sufficient if made after the expiration of thirty days subsequent to service of attachment—in this case, one day thereafter—computed from the time of granting the attachment. Mills v. Hansel, 168 N. C. 631, 85 S. E. 17.

Presumption as to True Date.—A summons is presumed to be the true date of its issue, but it is competent to show that it was not in fact then issued. Currie v. Hawkins, 118 N. E. 593, 594, 24 S. E. 476.

§ 7-137. Service and return of summons.—The officer to whom the summons is delivered shall execute the same within five days after its receipt by him or immediately, if required to do so by the plaintiff. Before proceeding to execute it, he must be entitled to require of the plaintiff his fees for the service. When the service is made, he shall immediately return the summons, with the date and manner of the service, to the justice who issued the same. (Rev., s. 1446; Code, s. 833; C. S. 1488.)

Cross References.—See §§ 7-136, 7-137 and notes. As to summons and process generally, see § 1-88 et seq. and notes.

In General.—The same requirements as to a proper service of summons in a civil action issuing from the court of a justice of the peace, must be observed by the process officer as from the superior court, section 7-149, Rule 16, and where a copy thereof is not served at the time of its reading to the defendant, the service is invalid, and the action will be dismissed on special appearance and motion, when the defendant has preserved this right by a like motion in

To Whom Returnable.—A summons issued by one justice of the peace cannot be made returnable before another (except in cases of bastardy). Williams v. Bowling, 111 N. C. 295, 296, 16 S. E. 176.

§ 7-138. Process issued to another county.—No process shall be issued by any justice of the peace to any county other than his own, unless one or more bona fide defendants shall reside in, and also one or more bona fide defendants shall reside in the county of which the suit shall be entered, in which case, only, he may issue process to any county in which any nonresident defendant resides. (Rev., s. 1447; Code, s. 871; 1876-7, c. 287; C. S. 1489.)

In General. — This section being a restricted legislative grant of power when exercised, must be strictly pursued. Durham, etc., Co. v. Marshburn, 122 N. C. 411, 414, 29 S. E. 411. See also, Fishier v. Bullard, 109 N. C. 574, 13 S. E. 793.

The language of the statute would seem to make the question of jurisdiction, or the right to serve process on a defendant outside the county of the justice, to depend somewhat upon the good faith of the plaintiff in joining the defendants as parties. In certain cases, perhaps, it may be so plain that the plaintiff has no real or bona fide claim against the defendant, who is a resident of the county in which the suit is pending, that the question of misjoinder may be presented as one of law. Marler v. Wadesboro Clothing Co., 150 N. C. 519, 64 S. E. 366.

Amendment as to Resident Defendant.—Where the summons is directed to a resident of a county other than his own, and the defendant resides in the county, and on the trial the summons was amended on striking out the name of the resident defendant, it was held, that the justice should dismiss the action. Wooten v. Maultsby, 69 N. C. 462.

To Whom Addressed.—When a justice of the peace issues process for nonresident defendants, it must be issued (addressed) to the officer of the county where it is to be served. Durham, etc., Co. v. Marshburn, 122 N. C. 411, 414, 29 S. E. 411.

Section Not Applicable to Foreign Corporations.—It is not applicable to foreign corporations. Fleming Co. v. Southern R. R., 145 N. C. 37, 58 S. E. 793.

The Municipal Court of the city of Greensboro has no jurisdiction under chapter 128, Private Laws of 1931, to determine a cause upon a contract, involving less than $200.00, when the sole defendant is not a resident of Guilford County, and summons is served in Lee county as this section and § 7-139 are applicable. Miles Co. v. Powell, 205 N. C. 30, 169 S. E. 828.

§ 7-139. Civil process in inferior courts.—The process of any recorder's court, county court, or court of the justices of the peace, where the suit is pending, that the question of misjoinder arising therefrom may be presented as one of law. Marler v. Wadesboro Clothing Co., 150 N. C. 519, 64 S. E. 366.

Amendment as to Resident Defendant.—Where the summons is directed to a resident of a county other than his own, and the defendant resides in the county, and on the trial the summons was amended on striking out the name of the resident defendant, it was held, that the justice should dismiss the action. Wooten v. Maultsby, 69 N. C. 462.

To Whom Addressed.—When a justice of the peace issues process for nonresident defendants, it must be issued (addressed) to the officer of the county where it is to be served. Durham, etc., Co. v. Marshburn, 122 N. C. 411, 414, 29 S. E. 411.

Section Not Applicable to Foreign Corporations.—It is not applicable to foreign corporations. Fleming Co. v. Southern R. R., 145 N. C. 37, 58 S. E. 793.

The Municipal Court of the city of Greensboro has no jurisdiction under chapter 128, Private Laws of 1931, to determine a cause upon a contract, involving less than $200.00, when the sole defendant is not a resident of Guilford County, and summons is served in Lee county as this section and § 7-139 are applicable. Miles Co. v. Powell, 205 N. C. 30, 169 S. E. 828.

Application.—This section applies only where a justice's summons has been issued against a defendant residing in another county. Williams v. Iron Belt, etc., Association, 151 N. C. 597, 42 S. E. 697.

§ 7-140. Endorsement of process to another county.—In all civil actions in courts of justices of the peace where one or more of the defendants may reside in a county other than that of the plaintiff, it shall be lawful for the clerk of the superior court of the county in which the action is brought to certify, under the seal of his court, on the process or a duplicate thereof, that the justice of the peace who issued the same is an acting justice of the peace in his county. And in all such cases it shall be the duty of any sheriff or constable to whom it may be directed to certify, under the seal of his court, on an entry of the date of its reception, and to execute and deliver any process as provided for the service of civil process in courts of justices of the peace, and return it by mail to the justice of the peace from whose court it issued. (Rev., s. 1450; Code, s. 873; 1870-1, c. 60, s. 2; C. S. 1492.)

Cross Reference.—See §§ 7-138, 7-190 and notes.

§ 7-141. Certificate of clerk on process for another county.—In all cases referred to in § 7-140 it shall be lawful for the clerk of the superior court of the county in which the action is brought to certify, under the seal of his court, on the process or a duplicate thereof, that the justice of the peace who issued the same is an acting justice of the peace in his county. And in all such cases it shall be the duty of any sheriff or constable to whom it may be directed to certify, under the seal of his court, on an entry of the date of its reception, and to execute and deliver any process as provided for the service of civil process in courts of justices of the peace, and return it by mail to the justice of the peace from whose court it issued. (Rev., s. 1450; Code, s. 873; 1870-1, c. 60, s. 2; C. S. 1492.)

Cross Reference.—See §§ 7-138, 7-190 and notes.

§ 7-142. Judgment against defendant in another county.—No justice of the peace shall enter a judgment under §§ 7-140 and 7-141 against any defendant who may be a nonresident of his county, unless it shall appear that the process was duly served upon him at least ten days before the return day of the same. (Rev., s. 1451; Code, s. 874; 1876-7, c. 57; C. S. 1493.)

Section Not Jurisdictional.—The provision of this section, that a justice of the peace shall not enter a judgment against a nonresident defendant unless it shall appear that process was duly served at least ten days before the return day, is not jurisdictional; and where, upon special appearance of defendant for the purpose of dismissing the action, he was given more than ten days thereafter to answer or defend, which he refused to do, the justice's judgment will not be disturbed. Bank v. Carlile, 174 N. C. 624, 94 S. E. 297.

Application.—This section applies only where a justice's summons has been issued against a defendant residing in another county. Williams v. Iron Belt, etc., Association, 151 N. C. 597, 42 S. E. 697.

§ 7-143. Service on foreign corporation.—Whenever any action of which a justice of the peace has jurisdiction shall be brought against a foreign corporation, which corporation is required to maintain a process agent in the state, the summons may be issued to the sheriff of the county in which such process agent resides, and when certified under the seal of his office by the clerk of the superior court of the county in which the justice issuing such summons resides to be under the hand of such justice, the sheriff of the county to which such summons shall be issued shall serve the same as in other cases and make due return thereof. No justice of the peace shall enter a judgment in such cases against any such foreign corporation unless it shall appear that the process was duly served upon such process agent at least twenty days before the return day of the same. The summons may be made returnable at a time to be therein named, not exceeding forty days from the date of such summons: Provided, this section shall not apply to actions commenced in a county where the defendant has an officer or agent upon whom process may be served: Provided, that when any foreign corporation has no process agent in this state, but has an agent to whom process may be served, such process may be served upon him at any place in this state at which he is found. Provided further, that when the process is served upon a process agent within the terms of this section, and that this proviso shall apply to existing claims as well as those arising hereafter. Such service can be made in respect to a foreign corporation only when it has property, or the cause of action arose, or the plaintiff resides in this state, or when it cannot be made personally within the state upon the president, treasurer, or secretary thereof. (Rev.,
§ 7-144. Attendance of witnesses.—The justice, on application of either party, shall, by a subpoena or by an order in writing, on the process, direct the constable or other officer to summon witnesses to appear and give testimony at the time and place appointed for the trial. Each witness failing to appear shall forfeit and pay eight dollars to the party at whose instance he was summoned, and shall be further liable to such party for all damage sustained by nonattendance. The fine herein imposed may be recovered, on motion, before the justice who tried the action, unless the witness on a notice of five days, by affidavit or other proof, show sufficient excuse for his failure to attend. (Rev., s. 1458; Code, s. 847: C. S. 1495.)

Cross Reference.—As to power to punish for contempt, see §§ 5-6, 5-8.

In General.—The power to punish for contempt is inherent in all courts and is essential to their existence. State v. Aiken, 113 N. C. 651, 653, 18 S. E. 690.

Duty to Attend Court.—The duty of attending court in obedience to a subpoena is incident to citizenship. State v. Massey, 104 N. C. 579, 16 S. E. 698.

No Bond Authorized.—A justice of the peace is not authorized to put a witness under bond to appear at a subsequent trial before the justice. Lovick v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 129 N. C. 427, 434, 40 S. E. 191.

§ 7-145. Subpoena issued to another county.—The justice of the peace, in all civil cases, may issue subpoenas to counties other than their own; such subpoenas shall be authenticated by the same manner as provided by law for the authentication of process. When so authenticated the sheriff, constable or other officer to whom the same is directed shall execute and return the same as provided for the return of process: Provided, that where witnesses attend in counties other than their own under such subpoena they shall receive the same per diem and mileage as witnesses who attend the superior courts: Provided further, that before issuing such subpoenas the party wanting the same may show by affidavit that the want of such subpoena will debar the party from appearing at a subsequent trial before the justice. Lovick v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 129 N. C. 427, 434, 40 S. E. 191.

§ 7-146. Subpoena duces tecum in case against railroad.—When any action is brought against a railroad company before a justice of the peace, the justice before whom such action is made returnable shall have power to issue a subpoena to any railroad company within the limits of the state, commanding the president or any officer, director, agent, or any one in the employment of such company, to appear before him at the time and place of trial and to produce such books, cards and other papers as the justice shall deem proper, and to give evidence in said cause; and each witness summoned as aforesaid failing or refusing to appear and testify and produce the books and papers aforesaid in obedience to such writ shall be deemed guilty of a contempt of court and fined not exceeding fifty dollars or imprisoned not exceeding thirty days. (Rev., s. 1455; 1885, c. 221, s. 2; C. S. 1497.)

Art. 19. Pleading and Practice.

§ 7-147. Removal of case.—In all proceedings and trials, both criminal and civil, before justices of the peace, the justice before whom the writ or process is returnable shall have jurisdiction to remove the cause, and to determine whether either party to the action before evidence is introduced, move the same to some other justice residing in the same township, or to the justice of some neighboring township if there be no other justice in said township; but no cause shall be more than once removed. (Rev., s. 1455; Code, s. 907; 1880, c. 15; 1883, c. 66; 1917, c. 48; C. S. 1498.)

Local Modification.—Mecklenburg: 1933, c. 278.

Cross Reference.—For statutes authorizing removal to inferior court other than that of another justice of the peace, see §§ 7-224, 7-274, 7-374, 7-475.

Duty of Justice.—It is the duty of a justice of the peace, upon affidavit and motion (now a written request) for a removal being filed, to remove the case to another justice residing in the same township, State v. Iive, 118 N. C. 1227, 24 S. E. 539; and if there be no other justice in the same township he can remove the case to the justice of a neighboring township.

Same.—Removal to Improper Justice.—If the case is removed to a justice of a neighboring township when there is another justice in the same township in which the action is commenced, the justice to whom the case is thus removed has no jurisdiction, and his judgment is void. State v. Iive, 118 N. C. 1227, 24 S. E. 539; State v. Warren, 100 N. C. 489, 490, 492, 5 S. E. 662.

Not Applicable to Mayor's Court.—The provisions of this section apply only to courts of justice of the peace and in a prosecution for violation of a town ordinance before a mayor, the defendant is not entitled to a removal. State v. Joyner, 127 N. C. 541, 37 S. E. 201.

§ 7-148. Removal in case of death or incapacity.—If any justice of the peace dies or becomes incapacitated by removal, resignation or other cause, having any action, civil or criminal, pending before him, which has not been finally determined, such action shall not be discontinued, but the plaintiff in such civil action, and any one on behalf of the state in such criminal action, may remove such action for further and final determination before any other justice of the peace of the same township in which the original action was pending, or before any justice of the peace of the same county when there is no other in the township, by filing the papers in said action with the justice to whom the same is removed and by giving ten days notice to the defendant of such removal; and if the plaintiff in any civil action shall fail to give such notice of removal within ten days from the happening of the death, removal, or resignation, or incapacity of such justice, then the defendant in such action may remove the same by giving like notice to the defendant; and if no notice is given by either party to such action within twenty days, then such action shall stand discontinued without prejudice.

The justice of the peace before whom such action may be removed shall proceed to try and determine the same, but he shall demand no fees or costs which have theretofore been properly advanced by any party to such action. After such removal either party shall be entitled to all the rights given in § 7-147. (Rev., s. 1456; 1905, c. 121; C. S. 1499.)

Cross Reference.—For statutes authorizing removal to inferior court other than that of another justice of the peace, see §§ 7-224, 7-239, 7-374, 7-457.

§ 7-149. Rules of practice: Rule 1, Pleadings. The pleadings in these courts are—
1. The complaint of the plaintiff.
2. The answer of the defendant. (Rev., s. 1457; Code, s. 840; C. S. 1500.)

Rule 2. Complaint. The complaint must state, in a plain and direct manner, the facts constituting the cause of action. (Rev., s. 1459; Code, s. 840, Rule 3; C. S. 1500.)

Generally.—When the parties come to trial in a justice's court, the justice should require the plaintiff to state in a plain and direct manner the facts constituting the cause of action. Smith v. Newberry, 140 N. C. 385, 53 S. E. 244.

Where two causes of action were set forth in a warrant before a justice of the peace (treated as a complaint), the judge properly submitted the issue upon the cause of action which was sustained by the evidence. Smith v. Newberry, 140 N. C. 385, 53 S. E. 244.

Rule 3. Answer. The answer may contain a denial of the complaint of any part thereof, and also a statement, in a plain and direct manner, of any facts constituting a defense or counterclaim. (Rev., s. 1460; Code, s. 840, Rule 4; C. S. 1500.)

The pendency of another action for the same cause, may be set up in the answer, with other defenses, and any issue arising thereon may be submitted at the same time as the others growing out of the pleadings, with instructions to the justice that, if found for the defendant, the others need not be considered. Montague v. Brown, 104 N. C. 161, 10 S. E. 92.

Same—Waiver.—Unless this defense is set up in the answer or in some way insisted on, before the trial on the merits, it will be considered as waived. Blackwell v. Dibrell Bros. & Co., 103 N. C. 270, 9 S. E. 192.

Rule 4, Demurrer. Either party may demur to a pleading of his adversary, or to any part thereof, when it is not sufficiently explicit to enable him to understand it, or contains no cause of action or defense, although it be taken as true. (Rev., s. 1461; Code, s. 840, Rule 11; C. S. 1500.)

Rule 5, Order on demurrer. If the justice deems the objection well founded, he shall order the pleading to be amended on such terms as he may think just; and if the party refuse to amend, the defective pleading shall be disregarded. (Rev., s. 1462; Code, s. 840, Rule 12; C. S. 1500.)

Rule 6, Pleadings, oral or written. The pleadings may be either oral or written; if oral, the substance must be entered by the justice on his docket; if written, they must be filed by the justice, and a reference to them be made on his docket. (Rev., s. 1458; Code, s. 840, Rule 2; C. S. 1500.)

In General.—While we liberally construe pleadings filed in the court of a justice of the peace, they must substantially conform to the statutory requirements, i. e., there shall be a complaint and answer; if oral, the justice may enter the substance on his docket, and, if written, the pleadings may be filed and reference made to them on the docket; the answer may state the facts constituting a defense or counterclaim. Baxter v. Irvine, 155 N. C. 277, 73 S. E. 883.

Written Pleadings.—Where the parties to an action before a justice of the peace have elected to file written pleadings, the rule that material allegations in the complaint not denied by the answer shall be admitted. Parker v. Horton, 176 N. C. 143, 96 S. E. 998.

Oral Pleadings.—In actions before justices of the peace the pleadings may be oral, but if so, the substance of them must be entered on the docket, and contain, in a plain and distinct manner, the ground of the action; and if the facts relied on as a defense be new matter, notice of them also, must be given on the docket, in a plain and direct manner. Montague v. Brown, 104 N. C. 161, 10 S. E. 92.

Applied in Home Bldg., etc., Ass'n v. Moore, 207 N. C. 151, 177 S. E. 303.

Rule 7. No particular form for pleadings. Pleadings are not required to be in any particular form, but must be such as to enable a person of common understanding to know what is meant. (Rev., s. 1463; Code, s. 840, Rule 5; C. S. 1500.)

Technical Accuracy Not Required.—The pleadings in a justice's court need not be in any particular form or drawn with technical accuracy, but are sufficient if they "enable a person of common understanding to know what is meant," and they may not "be quashed or set aside for want of form, if the essential matters are set forth thereon," and ample powers are given the Court to amend either in substance or form, at any time before or after judgment in the trial of a cause should be liberally construed so as to prevent a failure of justice because of mere informality or irregularity, especially when the case is tried before a justice of the peace, where this section expressly provides that the pleadings are not required to be in any particular form and are sufficient when they "enable a person of common understanding to know what is meant." Wilson v. Batchelor, 182 N. C. 92, 108 S. E. 355.

Rule 8. No judgment by default. Where a defendant does not appear and answer, the plaintiff must still prove his case before he can recover. (Rev., s. 1464; Code, s. 840, Rule 6; C. S. 1500.)

Rule 9, Action on account or note. In an action or defense, founded on an account, or an instrument for the payment of money only, it is sufficient for a party to deliver the account or instrument to the justice and state that there is due him thereon from the adverse party a specified sum, which he claims to recover or set off. (Rev., s. 1465; Code, s. 840, Rule 7; C. S. 1500.)

Note for Purchase of Land.—Where an action to recover interest due upon a note, according to its terms, is cognizable in the court of a justice of the peace, his jurisdiction is not ousted by reason of the note having been executed for the purchase of land. Parker v. Horton, 176 N. C. 143, 96 S. E. 994.

Rule 10, Account or demand exhibited. The justice may at the joining of issue require either party, at the request of the other, at that or some other specified time to exhibit his account or demand, or state the nature thereof as far as may be in his power; and in case of his default, the justice shall preclude him from giving evidence of such parts thereof as have not been so exhibited or stated. (Rev., s. 1469; Code, s. 840, Rule 10; C. S. 1500.)

Rule 11, Variance. A variance between the pleadings and the allegations in a pleading shall be disregarded as immaterial, unless the court is satisfied that the adverse party has been misled to his prejudice thereby. (Rev., s. 1466; Code, s. 840, Rule 8; C. S. 1500.)

Rule 12, No process quashed for want of form. No process or other proceeding begun before a justice of the peace, whether in a civil or a criminal action, shall be quashed or set aside for the want of form, if the essential matters are set forth therein; and the court in which any such action shall be pending shall have power to amend any warrant, process, pleading or proceeding in such action, either in form or substance, for the furtherance of justice, on such terms as shall be deemed just, at any time either before or after judgment. (Rev., s. 1467; Code, s. 908; R. C., cc. 3, 62, s. 92; 1794, c. 414; C. S. 1500.)

Docket Incomplete.—In bastardy proceedings the justice of the peace before whom the trial is had shall take the denial of the defendant and file it in the docket before passing the case to the next officer, and not on the docket in such respect the Superior Court judge on appeal should allow the denial to be entered nunc pro tunc.

State v. Currie, 161 N. C. 275, 76 S. E. 694.

In State v. Mills, 181 N. C. 530, 533, 106 S. E. 677, the court said: "A clear analysis of this section (which was sec. 1399 of the Code) is made by Justice Ashe in State v. Vaughan, 91 N. C. 532, showing that the exercise of the power is discretionary, and that the power itself, by gradual amendment of the statute, is very extended to matters of form and substance, whereas formerly it related only to matters of form and was confined to civil actions."

Applicable to Final Judgments Only.—Our statutes requiring a motion for a rehearing before a justice of the peace within ten days, etc., this section, rule 12, and § 7-379, allowing fifteen days for appeal from the justice's judgment, etc., apply to final judgments regularly entered, and not judgments irregularly taken upon defective service, or void for lack of service of summons on the defendant, or other proper process to bring him before the court.

Power Not Reviewable. — The discretionary power to amend a justice warrant in a criminal action, in a different offense in substance from that at first intended. (Rev., s. 1468; Code, s. 840, Rule 9; C. S. 1500.)

Nature of Amendment Allowable.—The superior court has the power to amend a justice warrant in a criminal action, in form or substance, but the amendment must not change the nature of the offense intended to be charged so as to charge a different offense in substance from that at first intended.

Amendment of Indictment.—An indictment before a justice of the peace may be amended by the trial judge properly allowed an amendment discarding the overlapping language of the indictment, when the warrant of arrest of the defendant was defective due to the omission of certain words, it was held to be within the discretion of the court to permit an amendment inserting such words.

State v. Poythress, 174 N. C. 809, 93 S. E. 919.

Words Omitted.—Where a warrant was defective due to the omission of certain words, it was held to be within the discretion of the court to permit an amendment inserting the omitted words.

Laney v. Mackey, 144 N. C. 630, 631, 67 S. E. 386.

Alllegation of Value Omitted.—Where, in an action of account, the defendant alleged a judgment entered against him on the basis of the plaintiff's claim, and not a sum in excess of a counterclaim, Rand v. Harris, 83 N. C. 486.

Money Paid into Court.—Money tendered and deposited with the court by the defendant with costs attached, as a condition of an amendment the payment of costs to the adverse party. (Rev., s. 1468; Code, s. 840, Rule 9; C. S. 1500.)

Money Not Reviewable. — The discretionary power to amend a complaint conferred upon a justice of the peace having jurisdiction of the action is only subject to review by the Superior Court when the amendment substantially changes the nature of the controversy. (Rev., s. 1467; Code, s. 840, Rule 12, Pleadings amended. The pleadings may be amended at any time before the trial, or during the trial, or upon appeal, when such amendment substantial justice will be promoted.

Holt, 195 N. C. 240, 141 S. E. 585.

Amendment of Indictment.—An indictment before a justice of the peace may be amended by the trial judge upon the return of process and before answer, to the adverse party, in consequence of such an amendment, an adjournment shall be granted.

State v. Lord, 151 N. C. 149, 56 S. E. 386.

Rule 13, Amendments pleadings may be amended at any time before the trial, or during the trial, or upon appeal, when such amendment substantial justice will be promoted.

If the amendment be made after the joinder of the issue, and it appears to the satisfaction of the adverse party, in consequence of such an amendment, an adjournment shall be granted.

Rule 14, Tender of judgment. The defendant may, on the return of process and before answering, make an offer in writing to allow judgment to be taken against him for an amount, to be stated in such offer, with costs. The plaintiff shall thereupon, and before any other proceeding had in the action, determine whether he will accept or reject such offer. If he accept the offer, and give notice thereof in writing, the justice shall file the offer and the acceptance thereof, and render judgment accordingly.

If notice of acceptance be not given, and if the plaintiff fail to obtain judgment for a greater amount, exclusive of costs, than has been specified in the offer, he shall not recover costs, but shall pay to the defendant his costs accruing subsequent to the offer.

In General.—The tender, made under the provision of this section must be a proposition (made before any defence has been put in) to pay the plaintiff or any person for him, continue such action from time to time for trial; but such continuance shall not exceed thirty days. (Rev., s. 1473; Code, s. 840, Rule 17; C. S. 1500.)

When a justice of the peace continues a criminal action for malicious prosecution upon a request of the prosecuting witness, and more than thirty days has passed without a trial, in which the prosecutor has remained inactive, the criminal proceeding is terminated under rule 15 of this chapter on civil procedure, respecting forms of actions, parties to actions, the times of commencing actions, and the service of process, shall apply to justices' courts.

Winkler v. Lenoir, etc., Rock Lines, 195 N. C. 673, 143 S. E. 213.

Rule 15, Continuance. Any justice before whom an action is brought may, on sufficient excuse therefor shown on the affidavit of either party or any person for him, continue such action from time to time for trial; but such continuance shall not exceed thirty days. (Rev., s. 1473; Code, s. 840, Rule 15; C. S. 1500.)

Cross Reference.—See § 7-135 and notes.

Appointment of Next Friend.—There being no statutory special method indicated by which a next friend may be appointed to represent an infant in an action properly brought in a justice's court, the appointment should be by the Justice of the Peace using the same care and circumstances as in investigating the fitness of the person to be appointed as is required, by the Clerk, in actions properly brought in the Superior Court. Houser v. Bonsal & Co., 149 N. C. 51, 62 S. E. 775.

Rule 17, Attachment proceedings. The chapter on civil procedure is applicable to proceedings by attachment before justices of the peace, in all cases founded on contract wherein the sum demanded does not exceed two hundred dollars, and where the title to real estate is not in controversy. (Rev., s. 1474; Code, s. 853; C. S. 1500.)

Cross Reference.—As to attachments generally, see § 1-440 et seq.

Purpose.—The issuance of a warrant of attachment by a justice of the peace having jurisdiction of the action is only for the purpose of acquiring jurisdiction over a defendant

The “Due Process” Clause.—The requirements of the Federal Constitution that no person shall be deprived of his property without due process of law does not imply that all disputes involving the right to property, or any injury thereto, shall be commenced and prosecuted to judgment under the same rules of procedure as provided in civil actions in a justice's court.

§ 7-155. Fees deposited for jury trial.—Before a party is entitled to a jury he shall deposit with the justice the sum of three dollars for jury fees, and the justice shall pay to all persons who attend, pursuant to the summons, as well to those who do not actually serve as to those who do serve, twenty-five cents each, to be included in the judgment as part of the costs, in case the party demanding the jury recover judgment, but not otherwise. The justice shall refund to the party the fees of all jurors who do not attend. (Rev., 1432; Code, s. 869; C. S. 1506.)

§ 7-156. Jury drawn and trial postponed.—When a trial by jury is demanded, the justice shall immediately, in the presence of the parties, proceed to draw the names of twelve jurors from division marked number one of the jury box; and the trial of the cause shall thereupon be postponed to a time and place to be fixed by the justice. (Rev., s. 1433; Code, s. 858; C. S. 1507.)

Constitutional Provisions.—The method by which jurors are to be selected and summoned is not provided for in the constitution; but there is no limitation therein upon the power of the General Assembly to regulate it. State v. Brittain, 143 N. C. 668, 57 S. E. 352.

§ 7-157. Summoning the jury.—A list of the jurors so drawn shall be immediately delivered by the justice to any constable, or other lawful officer, with an order indorsed thereon, directing him to summon the persons named in the list to appear as jurors at the time and place fixed for the trial; and it is the duty of the officer to proceed forthwith to summon such jurors, or so many of them as can be found, according to the order; and he shall make return thereof at the time and place appointed, stating in his return the names of the jurors summoned by him. For performing the aforementioned duties, he shall receive the fee allowed by law for summoning jurors. The preceding sentence shall not apply to the counties of Beaufort, Brunswick, Cabarrus, Edgecombe, Forsyth, Gaston, Gates, Guilford, Halifax, Martin, McDowell, Orange, Pasquotank, Rowan, Transylvania, and Wake. (Rev., s. 1434; Code, s. 859; 1935, c. 309; C. S. 1508.)

§ 7-158. Selection of jury.—At the time and place appointed, and on return of the order, if the trial be not further adjourned, and if adjourned, then at the time and place to which the trial shall be adjourned, the justice shall proceed, in the presence of the parties, to draw from the jurors summoned the names of six persons to constitute the jury for the trial of the issue. (Rev., s. 1435; Code, s. 860; C. S. 1509.)

§ 7-160. Names returned to the jury box.—The scrolls containing the names of jurors not summoned, if any, and of those summoned but not drawn, and of those drawn but challenged and set aside, must be returned by the justice to his jury box, in division marked number one: Provided, that the scrolls containing the names of such as are not legally liable or legally qualified to serve as jurors shall be destroyed. (Rev., s. 1437; Code, s. 865; C. S. 1511.)

§ 7-161. Names of jurors serving.—The scrolls containing the names of the jurors who serve on the trial of an issue must be placed in the jury box in division marked number two, until all the scrolls in division marked number one have been drawn out. As often as that may happen, the whole number of scrolls shall be returned to division marked number one, to be drawn out as in the first instance. (Rev., s. 1441; Code, s. 868; C. S. 1512.)

§ 7-164. Additional deposit for jury fees on adjournment. — No adjournment shall be granted after the return of the jury, unless the party asking the same shall, in addition to the other conditions imposed on him by law or by the justice, deposit with the justice, to be immediately paid to the jurors attending, the sum of twenty-five cents each, such amount to be in no case included in the judgment as part of the costs. On such adjournment, the jurors shall attend at the time and place appointed, without further summons or notice; and the fees for the jury, deposited with the justice in the beginning, shall remain in his hands until the jury are impaneled on the trial, and shall be then immediately paid to the jurors or to the party entitled thereto. (Rev., s. 1442; Code, s. 870; C. S. 1515.)

§ 7-166. Justice's judgment docketed; lien and execution.—A justice of the peace, on the demand of a party in whose favor he has rendered a judgment, shall give a transcript thereof which may be filed and docketed in the office of the superior court clerk of the county where the judgment was rendered. And in such case he shall also deliver to the party against whom such judgment was rendered, or his attorney, a transcript of any stay of execution issued, or which may thereafter be issued, by him on such judgment, which may be in like manner filed and docketed in the office of the clerk of such court.
The time of the receipt of the transcript by the clerk shall be noted thereon and entered on the docket; and from that time the judgment shall be a judgment of the superior court in all respects for the purposes of lien and execution. The execution thereon shall be issued by the clerk of the superior court to the sheriff of the county, and shall have the same effect, and be executed in the same manner, as other executions of the superior court; but in case a stay of execution upon such judgment shall be granted, as provided by law, the execution shall not be issued thereon by the clerk of the superior court until the expiration of such stay. A certified transcript of such judgment may be filed and docketed in the superior court clerk’s office of any other county, and with like effect, in every respect, as if from the county where the judgment was rendered, except that it shall be a lien only from the time of filing and docketing such transcript. (Rev., s. 1479; C. S. 839; C. S. 1517.)

Cross Reference.—As to removing judgment of justice of peace to another county for execution, see § 7-169.

Generally.—A judgment in a justice’s court does not create a lien upon the property of the defendant. To have this effect a transcript of the judgment must be filed and docketed in the office of the superior court clerk of the county wherein the judgment is rendered. Ledbetter v. Osborne, 66 N. C. 379, 380.

Judgment in Different Counties.—The fact that a judgment given by a magistrate, or of the transcript, can be made only before the tribunal which gave it; no court has original power to amend the records of another court. McAden v. Banister, 63 N. C. 479.

Presumed Regular.—Though the signature of the justice of the peace is not attached to the judgment, it is presumed from the term of the certificate of authentication that it was entered up regularly and in proper form. Surratt v. Crawford, 87 N. C. 372, 374.

Priorities.—If a number of justice’s judgments be docketed in the superior court, they will, under this section, be a lien upon the land of the defendant from the time when they were docketed, and will have a priority over a judgment obtained in court by another person against the same defendant. Perry v. Morris, 65 N. C. 479.

Same.—Its Nature in Superior Court.—If the judgment as actually docketed is the only authority for the execution named; the form of the docketed judgment depends upon that of the transcript actually sent. McAden v. Banister, 63 N. C. 479.

§ 7-167. Effect of judgment on appeal.—In cases of appeal to the superior court from a justice’s judgment docketed in such court, when judgment is rendered in the superior court on such appeal, the lien acquired by the docketing of such justice’s judgment shall merge into the judgment of the superior court, and continue as a lien from the date of the docketing of such justice’s judgment, and be superior to any other judgment docketed subsequent to the date of the justice’s judgment, except prior attachment liens and judgment on the same. Any clerk of the superior court shall carry forward and tax into the judgment of the superior court all costs incurred in the justice’s court, including transcript and docketing, as well as all costs incurred in the superior court, and shall issue execution only on the judgment rendered in the superior court, and not upon the justice’s judgment. When the judgment of the superior court is satisfied, it shall be a satisfaction of the justice’s judgment, and the clerk shall note such satisfaction on the record of the justice’s judgment. (Rev., s. 1479; 1903, c. 179; C. S. 1518.)

Effect of Appeal.—An appeal from a judgment of the justice of the peace does not deprive the plaintiff of the right to have the judgment docketed and order it taken away by the lien of the judgment. Durham v. Anderson, 128 N. C. 297, 38 S. E. 832.

§ 7-168. Entries made by clerk when judgment is rendered.—Whenever a transcript of a judgment taken before a justice of the peace is docketed on the judgment docket of the superior court and the same is afterwards reversed, modified, or affirmed in the superior court on appeal by a final judgment, the clerk of said court shall within ten days thereafter enter on the judgment docket where the said transcript was first docketed, the word “reversed,” “modified,” or “affirmed,” as the case may be, and further refer to the book and page where can be found the judgment reversing, modifying, or affirming the former judgment. Any clerk failing to perform such duties as are required of him in this section shall pay to any person all such damages as he may have sustained by such failure. (Rev., s. 1479; 1907, c. 880; C. S. 1519.)

§ 7-169. Justice’s judgment removed to another county.—Any person who may desire to have a justice’s judgment in his favor removed to another county to be enforced against the goods and chattels of the defendant must obtain from the justice who rendered the judgment a transcript thereof, under his hand; and must further procure a certificate from the clerk of the superior court of the county wherein the judgment was rendered, under the seal of his court, that the justice who gave the judgment was, at the rendition thereof, a justice of the county. On such transcript of the judgment, thus certified, any justice in any other county may award execution for the sum therein expressed. (Rev., s. 1480; Code, s. 846; C. S. 1520.)

Cross Reference.—As to execution issuing on judgment rendered in a justice’s court when docketed in the office of the clerk of the superior court, see § 7-166.

§ 7-166. Docketing in Different Counties.—The fact that a judgment docketed in one county is afterwards docketed in another, does not deprive it of the lien it had on the defendant’s land in the first county. Perry v. Morris, 65 N. C. 221.
Docketing in the county where the judgment was rendered is necessary before the same can be docketed in another county. McAden v. Banister, 63 N. C. 479.

§ 7-170. Issue and return of execution.—Execution may be issued on a judgment, rendered in a justice's court, at any time within one year after the rendition thereof, and shall be returnable sixty days from the date of the same. (Rev., s. 1481; Code, s. 840, Rule 14; C. S. 1521.)

Failure to Docket.—The lost vitality of a judgment not docketed within one year from its rendition cannot be restored by placing it on the docket of the superior court. Cowen v. Withrow, 114 N. C. 555, 19 S. E. 645; Woodard v. Paxton, 101 N. C. 26, 28, 7 S. E. 469, nor will such docketing in the superior court arrest the running of the statute of limitation. Daniel v. Laughlin, 67 N. C. 433, 434.

Same—Rights of Purchaser.—A purchaser under an execution on a judgment of a peace of the justice docketed after the lapse of one year acquires no title although he be a stranger, renders, and without notice. Cowen v. Withrow, 114 N. C. 555, 19 S. E. 645.

Execution may be issued by the justice of the peace unless the cause has been removed to the superior court. Bailey v. Hix, 118 N. C. 534, 208 S. E. 961, 207, 38 S. S. 832. But no stay of execution shall be granted by the justices in the following manner: For any sum not exceeding twenty-five dollars, one month; for any sum above twenty-five dollars and not exceeding fifty dollars, three months; for any sum above fifty dollars and not exceeding one hundred dollars, four months; for any sum above one hundred dollars, six months. But no stay of execution shall be allowed in any action wherein judgment is rendered on a former judgment taken before a justice of the peace. (Rev., s. 1483; Code, s. 842; 1868-9, c. 272; C. S. 1523.)

§ 7-173. Security on stay of execution.—The party praying for a stay of execution shall, within ten days after the trial, give sufficient security, approved by the justice, for payment of the judgment, with interest thereon till paid, and cost; and the acknowledgment of the surety, entered by the justice in his docket and signed by the surety, shall be sufficient to bind such surety. If the judgment be not discharged at the time which execution has been stayed, the justice who awarded the judgment shall issue execution against the principal, or surety, or both. (Rev., s. 1484; Code, s. 843; C. S. 1524.)

Generally.—An undertaking that the appellant shall pay all costs that may be awarded against him on an appeal from a justice's court, and that if the judgment or any part thereof be affirmed, or the appeal dismissed, the appellant shall pay the judgment, in the amount of the same, as may be rendered in the superior court against the judgment is in compliance with the statute, and does not restrict the obligation to pay the judgment (if affirmed) as rendered in the justice's court, but the signers are bound to pay such as may be rendered in the superior court against the appellant. It is not necessary, to bind the appellant party to a suit, that he should sign the undertaking. Walker v. Williams, 88 N. C. 7.

Judgment Remains Unimpaired.—Although the execution on the judgment may be stayed on giving it undertaking as herein provided for, the force and effect of the judgment remains unimpaired. Dunham v. Andres, 128 N. C. 207, 38 S. E. 832.

§ 7-174. Stay of execution on appeal.—In all cases of appeal from justices' courts, if the appellant desires a stay of execution of the judgment, he may, at any time, apply to the clerk of the appellate court for leave to give the undertaking as provided in a subsequent section; and upon giving the undertaking being given, shall make an order that all proceedings on the judgment be stayed. Instead of before the clerk of the appellate court, the appellant may give the undertaking before the justice who tried the cause, who shall indorse his approval thereon. (Rev., ss. 1485, 1486; Code, ss. 882, 883; 1869-70, c. 187; C. S. 1525.)

Mortgage as Substitute for Undertaking.—There is no statutory provision that allows a mortgage of real or personal property to be given in lieu of the undertaking on appeal from a justice's judgment. In the case of Comron v. Standland, 103 N. C. 207, 9 S. E. 317. Yet, if the defendant give and the plaintiff accept such mortgage, it is valid and can be enforced. The stay of the execution is a valuable and sufficient consideration to support the mortgage. Id.

In an action on a bond given to stay execution on an appeal from a justice's judgment, it is not necessary to allege that the plaintiff has sustained damage on account of the appeal. McMinn v. Patton, 92 N. C. 271.

§ 7-175. Nature of undertaking.—The undertaking shall be in writing, executed by one or more sufficient sureties, to be approved by the justice or clerk making the order, to, the effect that if judgment be rendered against the appellant, the sureties will pay the amount together with all costs awarded against the appellant, and when judgment shall be rendered against the appellant, the appellate court shall give judgment against the said sureties. And in the event that said defendant shall prior to entry of the final judgment be adjudicated a bankrupt, then and in that event, the surety or sureties on said bond shall remain bound as if they were co-debtors with the defendant and the plaintiff may continue the prosecution of the action against said sureties, as if they were co-defendants in the cause. (Rev., s. 1487; Code, s. 884; 1879, c. 68; 1933, c. 251, s. 1; C. S. 1529.)

Editor's Note.—By Public Laws 1933, c. 251, was added the sentence, appearing at the end of this section, which provides for liability of sureties in case defendant is adjudicated a bankrupt.

Substantial Compliance, Sufficient.—A literal compliance with the provisions of this section is unnecessary—a substantial compliance is sufficient. McMinn v. Patton, 92 N. C. 57.

Surety's Liability Attaches When Final Judgment Rendered against Principal.—The liability of a surety on a bond given in accordance with this section to stay execution of a judgment of the justice of the peace pending appeal, as provided by § 7-174, attaches when or if the final judgment is rendered against the principal, and wherein the principal has been relieved of liability by a discharge in bankruptcy pending the appeal, plaintiff's claim being filed in the schedule of bankruptcy. The judgment of the justice of the peace pending appeal, as provided by § 7-174, is prospective in effect and does not apply to bonds executed prior to the 1933 amendment, see 11 N. C. Law Rev., 221.

§ 7-176. Mortage as substitute for undertaking, see note of Com- r on, 180, 205 N. C. 464, 171 S. E. 738.

Effect of Bankruptcy.—Where a judgment was rendered against the defendant before a justice of the peace, and an undertaking as provided for by this section, and pending the appeal, the principal is adjudicated bankrupt, it was held, that the sureties were not liable. Laffoon v. Kerner, 138 N. C. 281, 50 S. E. 654.

The Laffoon case, supra, was decided prior to the 1933 amendment, this section is prospective in effect and does not apply to bonds executed prior to the 1933 amendment, see Rule 21 of § 7-149.

§ 7-177. No new trial; either party may appeal.—A new trial is not allowed in a justice's court. A new trial may be allowed for serving the notice of appeal. State v. Fleming, 209, 211, 38 S. E. 132.

§ 7-178. Appeal does not stay execution.—No appeal shall prevent the issuing of an execution on a judgment, or work a stay thereof, except as provided for by giving an undertaking and obtaining an order to stay execution. (Rev., s. 1490; Code, s. 875; 1876-7, c. 251, s. 6; C. S. 1529.)

An appeal from a justice of the peace does not vacate the judgment nor does it suspend the operation. Dunham v. Anders, 128 N. C. 207, 211, 38 S. E. 632.

§ 7-179. Manner of taking appeal.—The appel- laent shall, within ten days after judgment, serve a notice of appeal, stating the grounds upon which the appeal is founded. If the judgment is rendered upon process not personally served, and the defendant did not appear and answer, he shall have fifteen days, after personal notice of the rendition of the judgment, to serve the notice of appeal herein provided for. (Rev., s. 1491; Code, s. 876; 1876-7, c. 251, s. 7; C. S. 1530.)

This section contemplates and applies to causes of which the court has acquired jurisdiction, and does not affect a case which comes under the provisions of § 7-180, entered against him when the court for lack of service was without jurisdiction to make any orders in any way affecting the rights of person or property. Graves v. Reidville Lodge, 182 N. C. 330, 332, 152 S. E. 152.

Justice of Peace Included.—The principal both as to the right and procedure for a defendant against whom service of summons has not been made, or the same waived, to have the judgment set aside and the courts of justice having jurisdiction of the peace as well as to those of more extensive jurisdiction. Graves v. Reidville Lodge, 182 N. C. 330, 332, 152 S. E. 152.

Duty of Justice.—A justice of the peace who takes a case under advisement and later renders judgment must notify the parties thereof to afford them opportunity to appeal in accordance with the provisions of the statute. Blocker v. Bullard, 196 N. C. 696, 146 S. E. 807.

Time.—An appeal must be taken to the next term of the appellate court. Hahn v. Guilford, 87 N. C. 177.

The section excepting a justice of the Peace in a bastardy proceeding either the woman or the defendant may appeal to the Superior Court, but the appeal must be taken to the next term. There is no right to dispense with this requirement. Helsabeck v. Grubbs, 171 N. C. 377, 88 S. E. 713. The "next term" means any term, civil or criminal, which begins after the expiration of the ten days allowed for serving the notice of appeal. State v. Fleming, 204 N. C. 40, 42, 167 S. E. 483.

The carbon copy of a letter from the secretary of the Industrial Commission to the attorney for the defendant is not notice of appeal as herein contemplated and cannot be construed as a compliance with this section and § 7-180, Higdon v. Nantahala Power, etc., Co., 207 N. C. 39, 41, 175 S. E. 713.

Service of Notice.—Where judgment is given on process not personally served, but served by publication, and the defendant does not appear at the trial, the defendant is entitled to take fifteen days notice of judgment in which to serve notice of his appeal. Thompson v. Lynchburg Noti- tion Co., 160 N. C. 519, 76 S. E. 470.

Service—Cancellation.—Although, with an appeal from a justice of the peace is regularly docketed in due time in the superior court, and proper notice of the appeal has not been given, a judge may, in his discretion, permit notice of appeal to be cancelled and give him time to waive an appeal lost by delay and to permit the same to be docketed at a subsequent term to the one to which it should have been returned. Davenport v. Grisson, 113 N. C. 38, 39, 152 S. E. 710.

Service—Time of Service.—In an appeal from a justice of the peace to the superior court, notice must be served by an officer (unless service is accepted on the appeal taken at the trial), and within ten days both upon the Justice who tried the case and upon the appel-lee, and upon failure to give such notice, unless the judge, in his discretion, permits the notice to be given at the trial, the appeal shall be dismissed. State v. Johnson, 109 N. C. 383, 13 S. E. 843.

Same—Excusable Neglect.—Where the judgment is rendered in the absence of either party and such absence is occasioned by sickness or excusable neglect, relief may be had by filing a affidavit before the justice, setting forth the reasons therefor, within ten days after judgment. Gambill v. Garrett v. Garrett, 28 N. C. 201. See also, Dunc v. Patrick, 156 N. C. 246, 72 S. E. 220.

Actual Service.—Where the defendant is actually served with summons he is bound to take notice of the rendition of judgment. Suttie v. Jones, 85 N. C. 208, 209.

Service by Officer.—The notice of an appeal from a justice of the peace, when the notice is not given on the trial, must be served by an officer. Clark v. Deloatch Mills Mfg. Co., 110 N. C. 373, 75 S. E. 519.

Appeals under Workmen's Compensation Act shall, in so far as is reasonable and consonant with the language of the act and legislative intent, conform to this section. Summer v. Chesian Nitrate Sales Corp., 218 N. C. 431, 11 S. E. (2d) 394.

§ 7-170. No written notice of appeal in open court.—Where any party prays an appeal from a judgment rendered in a justice's court, and the adverse party is present in person or by attorney, and at the time of the prayer, the appellant shall not be compelled to give any written notice of appeal either to the justice or to the adverse party. (Rev., s. 1492; Code, s. 877; 1869-70, c. 187; 1876-7, c. 251, s. 8; C. S. 1531.)

Party Present.—Where the party is present when the appeal is prayed for, no written notice is required. State v. Crouse, 86 N. C. 617, 620.

Applicability of Estoppel.—Where the defendant upon judgment being rendered against him in a justice's court appealed in open court, and afterwards told the justice not to send up the papers in apt time, the justice had no power to grant a motion to set aside his judgment for want of jurisdiction. Forbes v. McGuire, 116 N. C. 449, 21 S. E. 178.

Remedy Where Justice Fails in His Duty.—A motion in the superior court for a record or an attachment under this section is the remedy given an appellant for the failure of the justice to send up an appeal, and it is no legal excuse for the appellant to show that he had paid the justice his fees and those of the clerk, and that the justice had failed to docket it as required by the statute. The appellant would thus make the justice his agent and for his neglect has the right to demand satisfaction. MacKenzie v. Davidson County Develop. Co., 151 N. C. 276, 55 S. E. 1003.

Failure to Sign Return.—The failure of a justice of the peace to sign the return of notice of appeal does not vitiate the proceedings in the superior court, where the appellant had given notice of appeal and paid the justice's fee, and the appeal made to motion for any purpose, but made a general appearance in the superior court at the trial in person and by attorney. Hawks v. Hall, 139 N. C. 176, 51 S. E. 857.

§ 7-182. Defective return amended.—If the return be defective, the judge or clerk of the appellate court may direct a further or amended return as often as may be necessary, and may compel a compliance with the order by attachment. (Rev., s. 1494; Code, s. 879; C. S. 1533.)

Defective Return.—If the justice's return is defective, the judge may direct a further or amended return. Hawks v. Hall, 139 N. C. 176, 51 S. E. 857.

§ 7-183. Restitution ordered upon reversal of judgment.—If the judgment appealed from, or any part thereof, be paid or collected, and the judgment be afterwards reversed, the appellate court shall order the amount paid or collected to be restored, with interest from the time of such payment or collection. The order may be obtained on proof of the facts made at or after the hearing of the appeal on a previous notice of six days. If the order be obtained before the judgment of reversal is entered, the amount may be included in the judgment. (Rev., s. 1495; Code, s. 886; C. S. 1534.)

Involuntary Payments.—This section only applies where there has been an involuntary payment of or on the judgment. Couvel v. Gregory, 110 N. C. 50, 40 S. E. 849. See the dissenting opinion, holding that payment of a collectible judgment rendered by a court of competent jurisdiction is involuntary.

Art. 23. Forms.

§ 7-184. Forms to be used in justice's court.—The following forms, or substantially similar ones, shall be sufficient in all cases of proceedings in civil actions, provided for in this article:

Summons on Allowing Application to Rehear

Whereas, A. B., plaintiff above named (or C. D., defendant above named), has applied by affidavit, which is filed, for a rehearing in the above-entitled action, wherein judgment was rendered against the said plaintiff (or defendant), in his absence, at the trial thereof, before the undersigned on the .... day of ......., 19....; and such application having been allowed, and the cause opened for reconsideration;

Now, therefore, we command you to summon the said plaintiff (or defendant) to appear before G. W. H., Esq., one of the justices of the peace for the county of ......., on the .... day of ......., 19...., at ......., in said county, when and where the complaint will be reheard and the same proceedings be had as if the case had not been acted on; and have you then and there this precept with the date and manner of its service.

Herein fail not. Witness our said justice, this .... day of ......., 19....

G. W. H. Justice of the Peace.

Affidavit to Obtain Attachment

A. B., plaintiff above named, being duly sworn, deposes and says:

1. That the defendant C. D. is indebted to the plaintiff in the sum of ...... dollars (state any cause of action founded on contract, specifying the amount of the claim and the grounds thereof).

2. That the said defendant (State any fact or facts, so as to bring the case within one of the classes in which an attachment may issue. The facts must be stated positively and affirmatively, not merely upon information and belief, except where a fact is alleged with a particular intent. The intent in such case may be stated as on information and belief. See No. 4.)

Sworn to and subscribed before me, this .... day of ......., 19....

G. W. H. Justice of the Peace.

Another Form of Affidavit to Obtain Attachment

A. B., plaintiff above named, being duly sworn, deposes and says:

1. That the defendant C. D. is indebted to plaintiff in the sum of ...... dollars for goods sold and delivered to said defendant by the plaintiff on or about the .... day of ......., 19....

2. That the said defendant has departed from this state, or keeps himself concealed therein, with intent, as defendant is informed and believes, to avoid the service of a summons (or with intent, etc., to defraud defendant's creditors).

(Sworn to, etc., as in No. 3.)

A. B. Justice of the Peace.

Affidavit against a Foreign Corporation

A. B., plaintiff above named, being duly sworn, deposes and says:

1. That the defendant above named is indebted to the plaintiff in the sum of ...... dollars, for the use and occupation of certain premises, by permission of plaintiff, from the .... day of ......., 19...., until the .... day of ......., 19....

2. That the defendant is a foreign corporation, created under the laws of the state of .......

3. That the cause of action stated arose in this state.

(Sworn to, etc., as in No. 3.)

Undertaking upon Attachment

Whereas, the plaintiff above named is about to apply for a warrant of attachment against the property of the above-named defendant:

Now, therefore, we, J. W. B., of .... County, and W. D. M., of .... County, undertake in .... dollars (the sum must be at least two hundred dollars), that if the said warrant be granted, and the defendant recover judgment in this action, or the attachment be set aside by order of the court, the plaintiff shall pay all costs that may be awarded to defendant in the same, and all damages which he may sustain by reason of such attachment.

[No. 30]
Proceedings against Defaulting Witness

When a witness, under subpoena, fails to attend, the justice will note the fact in his docket by some such entry as the following:
R. P., a witness summoned on behalf of the plaintiff, called and failed.
If the party who suffers by default of the witness wishes to move for the penalty against him, he will serve substantially the following notice on the witness:

To R. P.:
Take notice, that on the ...... day of .........., 19......, the plaintiff in the above action will move G. W. H., Esq., the justice before whom the trial of said action was had, on the ...... day of .........., 19......, for judgment against you for the sum of .......... dollars, forfeited by reason of your failure to appear and give evidence on said trial as you were summoned to do.
Dated this ...... day of .........., 19......
A. B. .........., Plaintiff.

The justice will enter the proceedings on the foregoing notice on his docket as follows:

A ...... B ...... Motion for penalty against C ...... D ...... R. P., defaulting witness.
...... day of .........., 19......, A. B., above named, appears, and according to a notice filed and duly served on R. P., moved for the penalty of .......... dollars forfeited by the said R. P. by reason of his failure to attend and give evidence on the trial of a cause, wherein A. B. was plaintiff and C. D. was defendant, tried before me at my office on the ...... day of .........., 19......, as appears by entry duly made on my docket: when and where the said R. P., a witness summoned on the part of the plaintiff in that action, was called and did fail.

R. P. appears and assigns for excuse "high water," and offers his own affidavit, which is filed. He also offers as a witness in his behalf S. S., who, being duly sworn, testifies that (state what S. S. says about the condition of the water at the time). R. P., having no other evidence, closed the case on his part. Whereupon A. B. offered M. Y. as a witness, who, being sworn, testifies (state what witness says).

Neither party having any other evidence, and after hearing all the proofs and allegations submitted for and against the motion, it is adjudged, on motion of A. B., that A. B. do recover of R. P. the sum of .......... dollars, penalty forfeited by reason of the premises, and the further sum of .......... dollars, costs of this motion.

Form of a Venire

The justice will make a list of the persons drawn by him as jurors, and indorse thereon substantially as follows:

To O. P. M., constable of ........ County:
You are hereby directed to summon the persons named within to appear as jurors before me at my office in your county, on the ...... day of .........., 19......, for trial of a civil action now pending between A. B., plaintiff, and C. D., defendant, then and there to be tried. And have you then and there the names of the jurors you shall summon, with this precept.
Dated this ...... day of .........., 19......
G. W. H....... Justice of the Peace.
Form of Oath to Constable in Charge of the Jury

You swear well and truly to try the matter in difference between A. B., plaintiff, and C. D., defendant, and a verdict to give thereon according to the evidence in the cause. So help you, God.

Summons against Defaulting Juror to Show Cause

State of North Carolina, to any constable or other lawful officer of ......... County—

Greeting:

We command you to summon R. S. to appear before G. W. H., Esq., a justice of the peace for your county, at his office in said county, on the ....... day of ........., 19 ....... to show cause why he, the said R. S., should not be fined according to law for his nonattendance as a juror before our said justice at his office in said county on the ....... day of ........., 19 ....... in a certain cause then and there pending, in which A. B. was plaintiff and C. D. was defendant; and have you then and there this precept, with the date and manner of your service thereof.

Witness, our said justice, this ....... day of ........., 19 .......

G. W. H. ........ Justice of the Peace.

Demurrer to Complaint

(Title as in No 1.)

The defendant demurs to the complaint in this action, for that the said complaint does not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action (or, for that the said complaint is not sufficiently explicit to enable this defendant to understand it.)

(Signature of defendant or defendant's attorney.)

Demurrer to Answer

(Title as in No 1 or No. 5)

The plaintiff demurs to the answer of the defendant, for that the facts stated in the answer are not legally sufficient to constitute a defense to this action (or, for that the said answer is not sufficiently explicit to make this plaintiff understand it.)

(Signature of plaintiff or plaintiff's attorney.)

Judgment upon Demurrer

NOTE.—If the justice thinks the objection raised by the demurrer to the pleadings is well founded, he will make this entry on his docket:

"Demurrer to the complaint (or to the answer) filed, heard and sustained; and whereupon it is ordered that the said pleading be amended without cost (or upon payment of costs, as the case may be)."

This order to amend the defective pleading is a matter of course, and is the only judgment which the justice can render upon demurrer. He cannot give a final judgment in the cause at this stage, for the party may choose to amend his pleadings and try the case on the facts. If, however, the party refuse to amend the defective pleading, the justice will disregard the same, and proceed to render final judgment, as follows:

"The plaintiff (or defendant) having refused to amend his complaint (or his answer) demurred to, it is adjudged that the defendant go without day and recover of the plaintiff the sum of ....... dollars, costs of this action (or that the plaintiff recover of the defendant the sum of ....... dollars, damages, and the further sum of ....... dollars, costs of this action.)"

If the justice deem the objection, raised by the demurrer, not well founded, he will enter in his docket as follows: "Demurrer to the complaint (or to the answer) filed, heard and overruled," and he will then proceed to the evidence in the cause.

Entry in Docket

NOTE.—The following is offered as a general precedent of the manner in which the justice will make the entries in his docket:

(Title as in No 1)

........., 19 ....... Summons issued; returnable on the ....... instant at my office.

........., 19 ....... Summons returned, served on defendant by O. P. M., constable, on the ....... instant, both parties appear, the plaintiff in person, the defendant by R. H. R., Esq., attorney.

The plaintiff complains on a promissory note executed by the defendant to him, dated ....... , payable one day after date, for $.......

The defendant answers and denies each and every allegation in the complaint, and claims a setoff of $....... for wood sold and delivered to the plaintiff, and also for goods sold and delivered to the defendant, and claims damages for $ .......

The defendant answers and denies each and every allegation in the complaint, and claims a setoff of $....... for work and labor performed for the plaintiff.

On joining issue of fact as above, the action is, by consent of parties, adjourned to the ....... instant, at my office.

A venire is also issued at the plaintiff's (or defendant's) demand, returnable at the time and place last mentioned.

........., 19 ....... The parties appear and proceed to the trial of the case. The following jurors are returned as summoned upon the venire by O. P. M., constable. (Insert the names of all jurors summoned.) The following jurors, who are returned as summoned, do not appear. (Insert their names.) The following jurors appear according to the summons. (Insert their names.) The following jurors are sworn to try the action. (Insert their names.)
§ 7-184

H. P. and J. M., witnesses for the plaintiff, and W. F., a witness for the defendant, are sworn and testify; J. S., a witness on the part of the defendant, is offered, but objected to by the plaintiff on the ground (state the ground), and rejected.

Having heard the evidence (and the arguments of a counsel, if any), the cause is submitted to the jury, who retire, under charge of O. P. M., a constable duly sworn for that purpose, and afterwards return in open court and publicly deliver their verdict, by which they find in favor of the plaintiff for $........ damages; whereupon, I adjudged that the plaintiff do recover of the defendant—

Damages, - - - - - $........

Costs, - - - - - ...........

........., 19 .... Execution issued for above judgment to O. P. M., constable.

........., 19 .... Notice of appeal served on me by defendant; my fee paid and return to the appeal made by me.

N. B.—If the action is tried by the justice without a jury, all that relates to the venire and the verdict in the above form must be left out, and the judgment will be entered as follows:

After hearing the proofs and allegations of the respective parties, I do adjudge that the plaintiff recover, etc. (as above).

To the Superior Court of ........ County:

An appeal having been taken in this action by the defendant, I, G. W. H., the justice before whom the same was tried, in pursuance of the notice of appeal hereto annexed, do hereby certify and return that the following proceedings were had by and before me in said action:

On the first of February, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-nine, at the request of the plaintiff, I issued a summons in his favor and against the defendant, which is herewith sent. Said summons was, on the return day thereof, returned before me at my office; and at the same time and place the parties personally appeared.

The plaintiff complained for goods sold and delivered to defendant to the amount of $75. The defendant denied the right of the plaintiff to recover that amount for the goods, on the ground that he had paid, at or shortly after the purchase of said goods, $......... dollars thereon; and he also claimed to have a setoff against the plaintiff to the amount of $85 for board and lodging furnished to plaintiff and work and labor done for him; and he claimed to be entitled to judgment against the plaintiff for $........

Both parties introduced evidence upon the claims so made by them, and after hearing their proofs and allegations, I rendered judgment in favor of the plaintiff and against the defendant, on the tenth of February, eighteen hundred and sixty-nine, for $65 damages, and for the further sum of $3.75, costs of the action.

I also certify that on the eleventh of February, eighteen hundred and sixty-nine, the defendant served the annexed notice of appeal on me, and at the same time paid me my fee of $1 for making my return.

All of which I send, together with the process, pleadings, and other papers in the cause. Dated this 15th day of February, 1904.

G. W. H........

Justice of the Peace.

N. B.—If the cause was tried by a jury, state the fact and set forth the verdict, with the judgment thereon. It is not necessary to set out in the return a copy of any process, pleading, affidavit or other paper. It is sufficient to refer to such a paper as filed and as herewith sent.

Where the Title to Real Estate is in Question

N. B.—The defendant, if he wishes to make answer to title, must file a written answer to the complaint, setting forth the facts.

Answer of Title

>Title as in No. 1

The defendant answers to the complaint:

1. That no allegation thereof is true.
2. That the plaintiff ought not to have or maintain his action against the defendant, because the premises mentioned and described in the complaint, at the time when the rent and render, for which said action is brought, is alleged to be due, was and is now the land and freehold of one J. D., and not that of the plaintiff; nor was the plaintiff then, nor is he now, entitled to the possession thereof; and the defendant further answers that the title to said premises was, at the time aforesaid, and is now, in said J. D., and will come in question on the trial of this action.

Dated this ...... day of ........, 19......

C. D.......,

Defendant
It appearing from the answer and proof of the defendant that the title to real estate is in controversy in this action, it is ordered that the action be dismissed, and judgment is rendered against the plaintiff for $50 dollars, costs.

Acceptance of Tender of Judgment

To A. B.:

Take notice, that the plaintiff hereby accepts the offer to allow the plaintiff to take judgment in the above action for the sum of fifty dollars, with costs, and the justice will enter up judgment accordingly.

Dated this day of , 19 .

A. B., Plaintiff.

[No. 45]

Form of Judgment on Tender

N. B.—The justice will state all the proceedings in the action from the issuing of the summons down to the appearance of the parties and the complaint of the plaintiff, and then proceed as follows:

Whereupon, the said defendant, before answering said complaint, made and served an offer, in writing, to allow the plaintiff to take judgment against him for the sum of fifty dollars with costs;* and the said plaintiff thereupon accepted such offer, and gave notice thereof to the defendant in writing; said offer and acceptance thereof being filed;

Now, therefore, judgment is accordingly rendered in favor of the plaintiff and against the defendant for the sum of fifty dollars damages, and the further sum of one dollar, costs.

If notice of acceptance is not given, the entry will be as follows:

(Follow the foregoing form down to the asterisk (*) and then add):

And the said plaintiff having refused to accept such offer, the defendant answered the complaint by denying, etc. (state the defense of the defendant down to the judgment, which, in case the plaintiff fails to recover more than the sum mentioned in the offer, will be entered thus):

After hearing the proof and allegations of the respective parties, I adjudge that the plaintiff do recover the sum of fifty dollars damages, and the further sum of one dollar, costs.

I further adjudge that the defendant do recover the plaintiff the sum of two dollars and seventy-five cents, costs accruing in the action subsequent to the offer of the defendant referred to.

Execution in Attachment

(Title as in No. 1)

State of North Carolina, to any constable or other lawful officer of . . . . county—Greeting:

Whereas, judgment was rendered in said action, on the . . . . day of . . . . 19 . . . , issued by G. W. H., Esq., a justice of the peace for said county, in an action wherein A. B. was plaintiff and C. D. defendant, the following property of said defendant was, on the . . . . day of . . . . 19 . . ., duly levied on and attached:

(Here insert a list of property)

And whereas, judgment was rendered in said action, on the . . . . day of . . . . 19 . . . , in favor of said plaintiff, and against the said defendant in the sum of . . . . dollars:

Therefore, we command you that you satisfy the said judgment out of the property so attached as aforesaid, by the sale of the same or so much thereof as shall be sufficient to satisfy the said judgment; and if a sufficient sum be not realized therefrom, then you satisfy the said judgment out of any other goods and chattels of the said judgment debtor within your county.

And make due return thereof according to law within sixty days from the date hereof.

Witness, our said justice, this . . . . day of . . . . 19 . . .

Record of Conviction of a Contempt

The justice will make an entry in his docket stating the particular circumstances of the contempt, of which the following is offered as an example:

Whereas, on the . . . . day of . . . . 19 . . . , while engaged in the trial of an action (or other judicial act, as the case may be) in which A. B. was plaintiff and C. D. was defendant, at my office in . . . . county, M. B. did willfully and contemptuously interrupt me, and did then and there conduct himself so disorderly and insolently towards me, and by making a loud noise did disturb the proceedings on said trial (or other judicial act) and impair the respect due to the authority of the law; and on being ordered by me to cease making such noise and disturbance, the said M. B. refused so to do, but on the contrary did publicly declare and with loud voice (state whatever offensive words were used); and whereas, when immediately called upon by me to answer for the said contempt said M. B. did not make any defence thereto, nor excuse himself therefrom; the said M. B. is therefore convicted of the contempt aforesaid, and is adjudged to pay a fine of five dollars and be imprisoned in the county jail for the term of two days, and until he pays the said fine or is duly discharged from imprisonment according to law.

SUBCHAPTER VI. RECORDERS' COURTS.

§ 7-185. In what cities and towns established; court of record.—In each city and town in the state, which has acquired a population of one thousand or over by the last federal census, a recorder's court for such municipality may be established, which shall be a court of record and recorder's court for such municipality may be established, which shall be a court of record and shall be maintained pursuant to the provisions of this subchapter. (1919, c. 277, ss. 1, 2; 1925, c. 32, s. 1; C. S. 1536.)

Local Modification.—Richmond: 1941, c. 60, s. 1.

Cross References.—As to abolishing municipal recorder's court, see § 7-212. See also, note to § 7-278.

Constitutionality.—Where the question of the constitutionality of this section establishing recorder’s courts by a general act is the subject of the action, and pending the appeal the Legislature has withdrawn the effect or operation of the statute from a certain county (Caldwell) wherein the establishment of the court was the subject of injunctive restraint, the cause of action abates and the appeal will be dismissed at the cost of each party, and the order restraining the establishment of the particular court will continue to be effective. Coffey v. Rader, 182 N. C. 689, 110 S. E. 786 (1921).

§ 7-186. Recorder's election and qualification; term of office and salary.—The court shall be presided over by a recorder, who may be a licensed attorney at law, and who shall be of good moral character and, at the time of his appointment or election, a qualified elector of the municipality. The first recorder, upon the establishment of such court, shall be elected by the governing body of the municipality, either at the time of the establishment of the court or within thirty days thereafter, and he shall hold office until the next municipal election and until his successor is duly elected and qualified. If a vacancy occurs in the office at any time, the same shall be filled by the election of a successor for the unexpired term by the governing body of the municipality, at the regular or special meeting called for that purpose. After the first elected recorder each succeeding recorder shall be nominated and elected in the municipality in the same manner and at the same time as is now provided by law for the elective officers of the municipality, and in the general election for such officers. Before entering upon the duties of his office the recorder shall take and subscribe an oath of office, as is now provided by law for a justice of the peace, and shall file the same with the clerk of the board of the city or town. The salary of the recorder shall be determined and fixed in advance by the governing body of the city or town, and shall not be increased or decreased during the term of his office, and shall be paid out of the funds of the municipality: Provided, that the governing body of such city or town is hereby authorized to provide a schedule of fees to be charged by said recorder. (1919, c. 277, s. 2; 1925, c. 32, s. 2; 1943, c. 543; C. S. 1537.)

Cross References.—As to forms of oath required of justice of peace, see § 11-11. As to oaths required of public officials generally, see §§ 11-6, 11-7, Const., Art. VI, s. 7. As to penalty for failure to take oaths, see § 128-5.

Editor's Note.—The act of 1925 added two provisions to the section. The 1943 amendment struck out the second provision making the recorder eligible to hold the office of mayor. Mandamus to Compel Appointment.—When it appears on appeal to the Supreme Court from admitted facts that a board of aldermen of an incorporated town are acting in violation of a command of the statute that they elect a recorder in the manner specified therein, a mandamus will issue to enjoin the public officers involved. Battle v. Rocky Mount, 156 N. C. 329, 72 S. E. 354.

Constitutional Provisions.—It is held in State v. Bate- man, 122 N. C. 157, 77 S. E. 768, that a former requirement that the recorder must be "a licensed attorney at law" is unconstitutional, on the ground that it does not lie within the power of the legislature to add to the constitutional disqualifications to hold office.

§ 7-187. Time and place of holding court.—The court shall be opened for the trial of criminal cases at least one day of each week, to be fixed by the governing body of the municipality, and shall continue its session from day to day until all business is legally disposed of. The court shall be held in the city or town hall, or other place provided therefor, and other sessions of the court may be held by the recorder, as necessity may require. (1919, c. 277, s. 3; C. S. 1538.)

§ 7-188. No subsequent change of judgment.—When a case has been finally disposed of and judgment pronounced therein, it shall not thereafter be reopened or the judgment or sentence rendered therein be modified, changed or stricken out by the recorder after the adjournment of the regular weekly term or after the adjournment of any special term called by the recorder. (1919, c. 277, s. 3; C. S. 1539.)
§ 7-189. Procedure in the court.—The recorder shall preside over the court and try and determine all criminal actions coming before him, the jurisdiction of which is conferred by this article, and the proceedings of the court shall be the same as are now prescribed for courts of justices of the peace and for the superior court so far as the same may reasonably apply. (1919, c. 277, s. 9; C. S. 1540.)

§ 7-190. Criminal jurisdiction.—The court shall have the following jurisdiction within the following named territory:
1. Original, exclusive, and concurrent jurisdiction, as the case may be, of all offenses committed within the corporate limits of the municipality which are now or may hereafter be given to justices of the peace under the constitution and general laws of the state, including all offenses of which the mayor or other municipal court now has jurisdiction.
2. Original and concurrent jurisdiction with justices of the peace of all offenses committed outside the corporate limits of the municipality and within a radius of five miles thereof, which is now or may hereafter be given to justices of the peace under the constitution and general laws of the state.
3. Exclusive, original jurisdiction of all other criminal offenses committed within the corporate limits of such municipality and outside, but within a radius of five miles thereof, which are below the grade of a felony as now defined by law, and the same are hereby declared to be petty misdemeanors.
4. Concurrent jurisdiction with justices of the peace to hear and bind over to the superior court all persons charged with any crime committed within the territory above mentioned, of which the recorder’s court is not herein given final jurisdiction.
5. All jurisdiction given by the general laws of the state to justices of the peace, or to the superior court, to punish for contempt, to issue writs ad testificandum, and other process to require the attendance of witnesses and to enforce the orders and judgments of the court. (1919, c. 277, s. 4; 1925, c. 32, s. 3; C. S. 1541.)

Cross References.—For statute divesting inferior courts in most counties of exclusive original jurisdiction in criminal actions, see § 7-64; for statutory definition of felony, see § 14-1.

Editor’s Note.—In the second and third provisions of this section, the five mile radius is new with the acts of 1925; heretofore the jurisdictional limits herein mentioned was confined to a radius of two miles of the corporate limits of the municipality.

Conflicting Jurisdiction of Magistrate and City Courts.—The legislature may constitutionally grant a city court exclusive jurisdiction of offenses occurring within the city limits and embraced within the jurisdiction of a justice of the peace. State v. Baskerville, 141 N. C. 407, 412, 191 S. E. 18.

§ 7-191. Jurisdiction to recover penalties.—The recorder’s court shall also have jurisdiction to try all actions for the recovery of penalties imposed by law, or by any ordinance of the municipality in which the court is located, for any offense committed within the corporate limits of the municipality or outside thereof within five miles of the corporate limits, and all such penalties shall be recovered in the name of the municipality. (1919, c. 277, s. 10; 1925, c. 32, s. 4; C. S. 1542.)

Editor’s Note.—The acts of 1925 extended the radius to five miles of the corporate limits, while under the statute as it formerly stood, the radius was two miles of the corporate limits.

§ 7-192. Disposition of cases when jurisdiction not final.—In all cases heard by the recorder against any person for any offense whereof the court has not final jurisdiction and in which probable cause of guilt is found, such person shall be bound in a bond or recognizance with sufficient surety to appear at the next succeeding term of the superior court of the county for the trial of criminal cases, and in default of such bond or recognizance he shall be committed to the common jail of the county to await trial; but in all capital cases such person shall be committed to the common jail of the county without bail. (1919, c. 5; C. S. 1543.)

§ 7-193. Disposition of cases when jurisdiction final.—All persons pleading guilty or convicted in the court of any offense of which the court has final jurisdiction shall be fined or imprisoned, according to law, and any person entering a plea of guilty, or who may be convicted of any such offense, shall also pay the costs of the prosecution. (1919, c. 277, s. 7; C. S. 1544.)

§ 7-194. Sentences to be imposed.—When any person is convicted, or pleads guilty, of any offense of which the court has final jurisdiction, the recorder may sentence him to the common jail of the county in which the court is held, and assign him to work on the public roads of the county as provided by law; or when such person is a woman or an infant of immature years, the recorder may sentence him to her to the city or county workhouse or state reformatory, or other penal institution provided by law for such purposes. If there is no chain-gang in the county in which the court is held, the recorder may sentence the person to work upon the public roads of any other county provided with a chain-gang for the working of public roads, as authorized by the general laws of the state. (1919, c. 277, s. 8; C. S. 1545.)

Cross References.—As to sentencing prisoners for work under the supervision of the State Highway and Public Works Commission, see §§ 148-30 and 148-32. See also §§ 7-94-4.

§ 7-195. Appeal to superior court.—Any person convicted of any offense of which the recorder has final jurisdiction may appeal to the superior court of the county from any judgment or sentence of the recorder, in the same manner as is now provided for appeals from courts of justices of the peace. Upon such appeal the defendant shall be required to give bond or recognizance with sufficient surety for his appearance at the next term of the superior court; and in default thereof the recorder shall commit him to the county jail of the county until he shall give bond or be otherwise discharged by law. (1919, c. 277, ss. 5, 9; C. S. 1546.)

Local Modification.—Pitt: 1937, c. 134.
§ 7-196. Costs paid to the municipality.—All costs incurred in issuing warrants and serving the same in cases where the recorder has not final jurisdiction, and for the service of process arising in such cases when the process is served by the officer of the municipality, except as hereinafter provided, shall be paid to the municipality; and officers serving process issued from said court shall be allowed the same fees as are now allowed sheriffs in like cases, the same, when collected, to be paid over as herein provided. Where such officer is not an officer of a municipality such costs shall be dealt with as is now provided by law. (1919, c. 277, s. 6; C. S. 1547.)

§ 7-197. Seal of court.—The recorder's court shall have a seal with the impression, "The Recorder's Court of the City of ————," which seal shall be used in the attestation of writs, warrants, or other process, acts, judgments, or decrees of the court, in the same manner and to the same effect as the seal of other courts in the state; but no process issued from said court to be executed within the county in which court is held, shall require attestation by seal, (1919, c. 277, s. 11; C. S. 1548.)

§ 7-198. Issuance and service of process.—The recorder may issue process to the chief of police of the municipality in which the court is held, or to the sheriff, constable, or other lawful officer of the county in which the municipality is located, or to any other county in the state; and such process, when attested by the seal of the court, shall run anywhere in the state, and shall be executed by all public officers authorized to execute process, and be returned by them according to law.

The summons, warrant of arrest, and every other writ, process, or precept issuing from a recorder's court or other court inferior to the superior court, except justices of the peace, may be signed by the recorder, vice recorder, or presiding justice of the court, or by the clerk of the court or deputy clerk, where the court has a clerk or deputy. (1919, c. 157, 277, s. 12; C. S. 1549.)

Proper Proceeding.—Under the proceedings established in "recorder's courts," the complaint and warrant—which, if necessary, must be construed together—have been established as the proper proceeding, just as has come down from the common law as to crimes the punishment of which is held, shall require attestation by seal, (1919, c. 277, s. 15, 18; 1925, c. 33, s. 5; C. S. 1551.)

§ 7-199. Vice recorder; election and duties.—The governing body of the municipality shall, at the same time and in the same manner as is provided in this article for the election of the first recorder, elect a vice recorder, who shall have the jurisdiction and authority conferred upon the recorder when the recorder shall be prevented from attending to his duties on account of sickness or other temporary disability or by reason of his temporary absence. The vice recorder shall receive the compensation allowed to the recorder for such services for the time that he may render such service, the compensation of the vice recorder to be deducted from the salary of the recorder, and the vice recorder shall be thereafter elected by the governing body of the municipality for the same term as the recorder is elected, and any vacancy occurring in the office of vice recorder shall be filled in the same manner as is provided for the filling of vacancies in the office of recorder. (1919, c. 277, s. 13; C. S. 1550.)

§ 7-200. Clerk of court; election and duties; removal; fees.—The clerk of the recorder's court shall be elected by the governing body of the city or town at the same time and for the same term as the vice recorder, and all vacancies in the office of the clerk of the court shall be filled in the manner provided for filling vacancies in the office of vice recorder. Before entering upon the duties of his office, the clerk shall enter into a bond, with sufficient surety, in a sum to be fixed by the governing body of the municipality, not to exceed five thousand dollars, payable to the state, conditioned upon the true and faithful performance of his duties as such clerk and for the faithful accounting for and paying over of all money which may come into his hands by virtue of his office. The bond shall be approved by the governing body and shall be filed with the clerk of the superior court of the county. The clerk shall make monthly settlements with the county and city treasurers for all money which has come into his hands belonging to either. The clerk of the governing body of the municipality shall ex officio discharge the duties of the clerk of the court, unless the governing body shall elect some other person to discharge the duties. The governing body of the municipality shall have the right to remove the clerk of the court, either for incapacity or for neglect of the duties of his office; and in case of a vacancy for any cause the office shall be filled in the manner hereinafore provided. Provided, that the governing body of the municipality is hereby authorized to provide a schedule of fees to be charged by the clerk of said court. (1919, c. 277, ss. 15, 18; 1925, c. 33, s. 5; C. S. 1551.)

§ 7-201. Clerk to keep records.—It shall be the duty of the clerk of the court to keep an accurate and true record of all costs, fines, penalties, forfeitures, and punishments by the court imposed, and the record shall show the name and residence of the offender, the nature of the offense, the date of the hearing of the trial, and the punishment imposed, which record shall at all times be open to inspection by any of the city authorities, or other person having business relating to the court. The clerk shall keep a permanent docket for recording all processes issued by the court, which shall conform to the dockets kept by the clerk of the superior court. He shall also keep in proper files, to be provided by the city, a record of all cases which shall be disposed of in the court and the disposition made thereof. (1919, c. 377, s. 17; C. S. 1552.)

§ 7-202. Clerk to issue process.—The clerk of the court shall have all the power and authority now conferred upon justices of the peace to issue warrants for the arrest of all persons charged with the commission of offenses within the territory fixed in this article which warrants, however, shall be made returnable before the recorder of said court at the next sitting thereof, and shall be issued only upon affidavit made as now re-required by law to support warrants issued by justices of the peace. The clerk shall also have all power and authority of justices of the peace or clerk of the superior court to issue subpoenas or other process, to run anywhere within the state; and when such subpoenas or other process shall run beyond the county in which the court is located the same shall be attested by the seal of the court, and shall also be signed by the recorder. (1919, c. 277, s. 18; C. S. 1553.)

§ 7-203. Prosecuting attorney; duties and salary.—There shall be a prosecuting attorney in the court who shall appear for the prosecution in all cases therein and, when specially requested by the governing body of the municipality and the recorder, shall assist in the prosecution of all cases which may be bound over or appealed from the court to the superior court; for his services he shall be paid such amount per annum as may be fixed by the governing body, at the same time and in the same manner as is provided for fixing the salary of the recorder. The prosecuting attorney may, or may not, perform the duties of city attorney, in the discretion of the governing body of the municipality: Provided, that the governing body of any such municipality is hereby authorized to provide a schedule of fees to be charged by said prosecuting attorney. (1919, c. 277, s. 16; 1925, c. 32, s. 6; C. S. 1554.)

Editor's Note.—The last provision of this section is new with the Acts of 1925.

§ 7-204. Jury trial, as in justice's court.—In all trials in the court, upon demand for a jury by the defendant or the prosecuting attorney representing the state, the recorder shall try the same as is now provided in actions before justices of the peace wherein a jury is demanded, and the same procedure as is now provided by law for jury trials before justices of the peace shall apply: Provided, however, that the compensation allowed jurors in all cases wherein the superior court has heretofore had final jurisdiction shall be the same as is allowed jurors in the superior court of the county in which the recorder's court is established. (1919, c. 277, s. 24; C. S. 1555.)

Local Modification.—Burke: 1931, c. 335; Craven: 1929, c. 115, s. 1; Hoke: Pub. Laws 1937, c. 408; Pitt: 1937, c. 134.

§ 7-205. Continuances, recognizances, and transcripts.—The recorder's court shall have the same authority to grant continuances, take bonds and recognizances, and render judgments on forfeited bonds and recognizances, as is now vested in the law in the superior courts, and the procedure regulating the issuing and service of notices against defendants and their sureties upon bonds and recognizances, and all other proceedings in taking and enforcing judgments in such cases, shall be the same as in the superior court in like cases. Transcripts of any judgments rendered may be docketed in the superior court of the county in which such court is held, in the same manner and with the same effect as judgments of other courts docketed as provided by law. (1919, c. 277, s. 21; C. S. 1556.)

§ 7-206. Officers' fees; fines and penalties paid.—In each case disposed of by the recorder where the defendant is convicted or pleads guilty, there shall, in addition to other lawful costs, be allowed the following fees, to be taxed as a part of the costs against the defendant, viz: For recorder, one dollar in each case involving the breach of a municipal ordinance and any crime or offense of which a justice of the peace has final jurisdiction, and a fee of two dollars in all other cases; for the prosecuting attorney, one dollar in all cases of violation of municipal ordinances and of any crime or offense of which a justice of the peace has final jurisdiction, and in all other cases a fee as now provided by law for solicitors prosecuting in the superior court; and for the clerk of such court the same fees as are now allowed to clerks of the superior court in similar cases; but in all cases of the breach of municipal ordinances and cases of which a justice of the peace has final jurisdiction and in which the defendant pleads guilty, the fee herein allowed a prosecuting attorney may be remitted by the recorder in his discretion. All costs recovered and collected in the court, except as herein otherwise provided, shall belong to the municipality and be paid into the treasury thereof. All fines and penalties collected shall be paid by the clerk of the court to the county treasurer as provided by law, and all fees allowed by law for an arrest or serving other process in a criminal action, when the same shall have been made by the chief of police or other officer who shall be on a salary, shall be paid over to the treasurer of the municipality for the use of the same, and to reimburse it for the expense of maintaining and supporting the court. (1919, c. 277, s. 14; C. S. 1557.)

§ 7-207. County to pay for offenders' work on roads.—Whenever, under any judgment of the court, any defendant is sentenced to work upon the public roads or other public work in the county, or to pay a fine and the costs of the prosecution, or costs only, and the defendant shall in fact work out the sentence or fine and costs, or either, upon the public roads or other public works, as aforesaid, then the county shall be liable for and shall pay to the treasurer of the municipality one-half of such costs. (1919, c. 277, s. 19; C. S. 1558.)

§ 7-208. Prosecutor may be taxed with costs.—The recorder shall have full power, in any case in which he shall adjudge that the prosecution was not required by the public interests, to tax the prosecutor with the costs of such action; and in the event the recorder shall adjudge that prosecution is frivolous or malicious, he may imprison the prosecutor for the nonpayment of such costs, as provided by law for similar cases in other courts. When the costs are paid, they shall belong to the city. (1919, c. 277, s. 20; C. S. 1559.)

§ 7-209. Justice of the peace to bind defendants to recorder's court; procedure thereon.—In case any justice of the peace residing within the territory above mentioned shall bind any person over for any offense committed within said terri—tory, of which the justice has committing, but not final, jurisdiction, but of which the recorder's court has final jurisdiction, then such justice shall have the peace, instead of binding the defendant over to the superior court of the county, shall bind him to appear at the recorder's court on the day succeeding the trial before the justice, at ten o'clock a. m. The justice of the peace shall at once turn over the case to the clerk of said court, and the clerk shall, upon receipt of the same, enter the case upon the docket of the court, and the recorder shall try such person either upon the original warrant under which he was bound over or upon a new warrant to be issued by him for such offense. In all cases the recorder shall have the right to amend any warrant issued by him or by the clerk of the court, or sent up by any justice of the peace as hereinbefore provided, in the same manner and to the same extent as justices of the peace are now authorized by law to make amendments to warrants in justices' courts.

§ 7-210. Transfer of certain cases to recorder's court.—All cases which shall be pending in any recorder's, police, mayor's, or other municipal court in the counties where such courts provided for in this article shall be established shall, after the election and qualification of the recorder and other officers authorized and required by this article, be transferred to the recorder's courts of the respective municipalities, to be tried in the manner and in accordance with the procedure provided; but no case pending in the superior court of any county at the time this article takes effect shall be transferred to the recorder's court, except by order of the presiding judge thereof. No cause shall be removed from the recorder's court as is now provided for the removal of cases from one justice of the peace to another. (1919, c. 277, s. 23; C. S. 1561.)

§ 7-212. How municipal recorders' courts may be abolished.—The governing body of any municipality shall have the same power, to be exercised in the same manner, subject to the same limitations, to abolish municipal recorders' courts as is given the board of commissioners of any county to discontinue a county recorder's court, under the provisions of § 7-213. (1919, c. 277, s. 35; C. S. 1562.)

§ 7-213. Extension of jurisdiction. — In any city or town within the state of North Carolina, having a population of five thousand inhabitants or more, where there is now maintained a recorder's court under and by virtue of the law, or in which a recorder's court may be hereafter established and maintained, it shall be lawful for the governing body of any such city or town, and the board of county commissioners of the county in which such city or town shall be located, to extend the jurisdiction of the recorder's court in such city or town to the township in which such city or town is located, in the manner described in the following sections. (1921, c. 216, s. 1; C. S. 1562(a).)

§ 7-214. Meeting of town and county authorities; election.—Whenever the governing body of any city or town, as described in § 7-213, and the board of county commissioners of the county in which the same shall be located, shall desire to extend the jurisdiction of the recorder's court in such city or town to include the whole township, as set forth in § 7-213, the mayor of such city or town and the chairman of such board of county commissioners shall call a joint meeting of the two boards, to be held at any place within such township as they may agree upon, and if a majority of each of such boards, at such meeting, shall by a joint resolution vote in favor of the extension of the jurisdiction of the recorder's court as herein described, then at such joint meeting the governing body of the town or city, and the board of county commissioners of the county, shall pass a joint resolution calling an election, submitting to the voters of the entire township the question of the extension of said municipal court, and that election shall be conducted by the county commissioners in the same manner as is prescribed for the conduct of elections for the establishment of municipal recorders' courts by the governing bodies of cities and towns, in so far as said procedure is applicable; the result of the election shall be recorded in the minutes of the county commissioners and certified to and recorded in the minutes of the governing body of the town or city; the form of the ballot shall be as prescribed in § 163-155, subsec. (e), and if by such election such resolution is adopted it shall have the effect of conferring upon the recorder's court in such city or town the same powers, authority, and jurisdiction as to offenses committed within the township in which such city or town is located as such court would have had if the same had been committed in such city or town: Provided, however, that the extension of the jurisdiction of such recorder's court as herein described shall not have the effect of in any way extending or affecting in any manner whatsoever any ordinance or other law pertaining exclusively to such city or town. (1921, c. 216, s. 2; C. S. 1562(b).)

§ 7-215. Police powers. — Whenever the jurisdiction of any recorder's court shall have been extended as described in §§ 7-213 to 7-216, such action shall thereupon confer upon the police officers of such city or town the same powers and authority in making arrests for crimes and offenses committed anywhere within the township in which such city or town shall be located, as is now or may hereafter be conferred upon sheriffs or their deputies within their respective counties. (1921, c. 216, s. 3; C. S. 1565(c).)

§ 7-216. Resolution for extension filed with each board as records.—Whenever the governing board of any city or town and the county commissioners of the county shall have adopted the § 7-217. Jurisdiction not to extend to other municipalities.—No court hereafter established by the governing body of any city or town shall have jurisdiction over the territory within the corporate limits of any other incorporated city or town, or outside the county in which the city or town establishing such court is located. (1925, c. 216, s. 4; C. S. 1562(d).)

Local Modification.—Craven, Edgecombe, Nash, Robeson: 1925, c. 280.

Art. 25. County Recorders' Courts.

§ 7-218. Established by county commissioners.—In any county in which a municipal recorder's court may not be established under the provisions of this subchapter, or in which such court has in fact not been established in the county-seat, the board of commissioners may, in their discretion, establish a recorder's court for the entire county, which shall be a court of record and shall be held at the county seat, or other place within the county provided by the board of commissioners. (1919, c. 277, s. 25; 1921, c. 110, s. 1; 1943, c. 543; C. S. 1565.)

Local Modification.—Caldwell: Pub. Loc. 1931, c. 138; Henderson: 1927, c. 103; 1937, c. 97; 1939, c. 238; Richmond: 1941, c. 60; Swain: Pub. Loc. 1939, c. 499.

Editor's Note.—The 1943 amendment added at the end of this section the following words "or other place within the county provided by the board of commissioners."

§ 7-219. Recorder's election, qualification, and term of office.—The court shall be presided over by a recorder, who shall have the same qualifications as provided for recorders of municipalities. The first recorder shall be elected by the board of commissioners of the county, either at the time of the establishment of the court or within thirty days thereafter, and shall hold the office until the next regular election wherein county officers are elected, and until his successor shall be duly elected and qualified; and should a vacancy occur in said office at any time, the same shall be filled by the election of a successor with the qualifications herein provided, for the unexpired term, by the board of county commissioners at a regular or special meeting called for that purpose. The successor of the first recorder herein provided for and each succeeding recorder shall be nominated and elected in the county in the same manner and at the same time as is now provided by law for the nomination and election of the elective officers of the county and in the general election for such elective officers. Before entering upon the duties of his office the recorder shall take and subscribe an oath of office as is now provided by law for justices of the peace, and shall file the same with the clerk of the superior court of the county, who shall duly record the same in a book kept for that purpose. The recorder's salary shall be paid out of the county funds upon vouchers, and shall not be increased or decreased during his term. (1919, c. 277, s. 25; C. S. 1564.)

Local Modification.—Henderson: 1939, c. 238; Mecklenburg: 1937, c. 253; Perquimans: 1943, c. 742; Scotland: 1925, c. 171.

Cross References.—As to forms of oaths required of justices of the peace, see §§ 11-6, 11-7, 11-11; Const., Art. VI, § 7. As to penalty for failure to take oaths, see § 128-5.

§ 7-220. Time and place for holding court.—The court shall be open for the trial of all criminal causes of which it has jurisdiction at least one day of each week, to be fixed by the board of county commissioners, and shall continue its session from day to day until all business is transacted by trial, continuance, or otherwise. The session of the court shall be held in the county courthouse or other place within the county provided by the board of commissioners for that purpose. Special sessions of the court may be called by the recorder as the necessities may require. (1919, c. 277, s. 26; C. S. 1565.)

§ 7-221. No subsequent change of judgment.—When any case has been finally disposed of by the recorder and judgment pronounced therein, the case shall not thereafter be reopened or the judgment or sentence rendered therein changed, modified or stricken out by the recorder after the adjournment of the regular weekly term of court or after the adjournment of any special term of court by the recorder. (1919, c. 277, s. 26; C. S. 1565.)

§ 7-222. Criminal jurisdiction.—The court shall have jurisdiction in all criminal cases arising in the county which are now or may hereafter be given to a justice of the peace, and, in addition to the jurisdiction conferred on municipal courts as hereinafter set forth, shall have exclusive original jurisdiction of all other criminal offenses committed in the county below the grade of a felony as now defined by law, and the same are hereby declared to be petty misdemeanors: Provided, however, that where a special court or recorder's court shall legally exist within such county by virtue of a special act of the legislature passed before the amendment to the constitution in reference thereto, then the county recorder's court, as established in this article, shall not have jurisdiction of criminal cases within the territory of such existing recorder's court, so as to interfere with or conflict with the existing recorder's court, but shall have concurrent jurisdiction where the jurisdiction of the two courts covers the same causes or the same subject-matter. The article and the establishment of any court hereunder shall not be construed to repeal, modify or in anywise affect any existing special court or recorder's court by virtue of such former special acts herein referred to. (1919, c. 277, s. 27; C. S. 1567.)

Local Modification.—Franklin: 1943, c. 359.

Cross Reference.—For statute divesting inferior courts in most counties of exclusive original jurisdiction in criminal actions, see § 7-64.

§ 7-223. Jurisdiction and powers as in municipal court.—The recorders of county courts provided for in this article shall be vested with all the jurisdiction and authority conferred upon recorders of municipal courts, in like manner and to the same extent as if such jurisdiction and authority had been specifically in this section set forth, in so far as such jurisdiction and authority are applicable
§ 7-224. Removal of cases from justices' courts.

When, upon written request made before entering on the trial of any cause before any justice of the peace, it shall appear proper for the cause to be removed for trial to some other justice, as is now provided by law, the cause may be removed for trial to the recorder's court of the county. (1919, c. 277, s. 28; 1921, c. 110, s. 3; C. S. 1569.)

Local Modification.—Bertie: 1943, c. 772; Nash: c. 768.

In all criminal cases heard by a justice of the peace or other committing magistrate of the county against any person for any offense included within the exclusive jurisdiction of the recorder's court as provided in this article, and in which probable cause of guilt is found, such person shall be bound in a personal recognizance or surety to appear at the next succeeding session of the recorder's court of the county, for trial; and in default of such surety such person shall be committed to the common jail of the county to await a trial: Provided, that in the event any justice of the peace or other committing magistrate shall bind over to the superior court any person accused of a crime within the jurisdiction of the county recorder's court, the clerk of the superior court shall, upon his own motion, transfer the papers in any case to the said recorder's court as provided in this article, and in case said notice is not served on the accused person and his surety at least five days before the beginning of the next succeeding term of the recorder's court, the case shall not be tried without the consent of the accused person until the following term of the recorder's court. (1921, c. 110, s. 5; C. S. 1570(a).)

§ 7-226. Notice to accused of transfer; trial; obligation of bond.

Whenever the clerk of the superior court shall transfer the papers in any case from the superior court to a county recorder's court, he shall at the same time issue a notice to the accused person and his surety, informing them that the cause has been so transferred and requiring the accused person to appear at the next succeeding term of said recorder's court for trial, and, upon the service of said notice upon the accused person and his surety, at least five days before the beginning of the next succeeding term of the recorder's court, the case shall stand for trial at said term and the bond given by the accused person for his appearance at the next term of the superior court shall in all respects be valid and binding to compel the appearance of the accused person at the said next succeeding term of said recorder's court, and in case said notice is not served on the accused person and his surety at least five days before the beginning of the next succeeding term of the recorder's court, then the case shall not be tried without the consent of the accused person until the following term of the recorder's court. (1921, c. 110, s. 5; C. S. 1570(a).)

Local Modification.—Cleveland, Lenoir: 1933, c. 277; 1939, c. 61; Mecklenburg: 1933, c. 277; 1937, c. 386.

Editor's Note.—Prior to Public Laws of 1921 this section read "upon affidavit, etc." instead of "upon written request, etc.," as it now stands.

§ 7-227. Trials upon warrants; by whom warrants issued.

All trials of criminal causes in said court shall be upon warrant issued by the clerk of the superior court or deputy clerk provided for in this article, or by the recorder or by any justice of the peace of the county. In either event such warrant shall be issued upon affidavit duly made and subscribed, setting forth the complaint against the defendant: Provided, the recorder shall have authority to amend the warrant and to allow amendment of the affidavit at any time before judgment. (1919, c. 277, s. 30; 1921, c. 110, s. 6; C. S. 1571.)

§ 7-228. Jury trial as in municipal court.

In all trials in county recorders' courts, upon demand for a jury by the defendant or the prosecuting attorney representing the state, a jury shall be had in the same manner and under the same provisions as are set forth in this subchapter in reference to municipal courts, so far as the same may be practically applicable to a county court. (1919, c. 277, s. 40; C. S. 1572.)

Local Modification.—Burke: 1931, c. 335; Cabarrus: 1939, c. 347; Craven: 1929, c. 115; Henderson: 1933, c. 316; Hoke: Pub. Loc. 1937, c. 408; Pasquotank: 1941, c. 213; Perquimans: 1929, c. 35; Tyrrell: 1943, c. 177.

§ 7-229. Sentence imposed; fines and costs paid.

Whenever any person shall be convicted or pleading guilty of any offense of which the court has final jurisdiction the recorder may sentence him to the common jail of the county in which the court shall be held, and assign him to work on the public roads of the county where provision has been made therefor; but if no provision has been made for working convicts upon the public roads in the county, then the recorder may sentence such person to be worked upon the public roads of any other county within the judicial district or any county within any adjoining judicial district which has made such provision: Provided, that in case the person so convicted or pleading guilty shall be an infant of immature years, then the recorder may assign him or her to the county workhouse, reformatory, or other penal institution located in the county; or if there be none, any similar institution that may be located outside of the county to which judges of the superior court are authorized to sentence such person under the general laws of the state. All fines imposed by the court shall be collected by the clerk of such court or the deputy clerk thereof in the same manner as the clerk of the superior court collects fines imposed by the superior court; and, where a defendant is convicted and fails to pay the costs of such conviction, the county shall pay such costs as is allowed by law in similar cases before the superior court. (1919, c. 277, s. 32; 1925, c. 308; C. S. 1573.)

Cross Reference.—As to sentencing prisoners for work under the supervision of the State Highway and Public Works Commission, see §§ 148-30 and 148-32.

§ 7-230. Appeals to superior court.—Any person convicted of any offense of which the county recorder has final jurisdiction may appeal to the superior court from any judgment or sentence of the court in the same manner as is now provided for appeals from the courts of justices of the peace; and any person tried before the recorder for any offense of which the court has not final jurisdiction shall, upon the recorder’s finding probable cause of guilt, be bound over to the superior court in the same manner as is provided by law in similar cases before justices of the peace. (1919, c. 277, s. 33; C. S. 1574.)

Derivative Jurisdiction.—When the Superior Court sits upon an appeal from a judgment of a justice of the peace in a criminal action, or a judgment of the court under this section, it is sometimes said to be acting under the derivative jurisdiction of the court from which appeal is taken; the trial is had upon the warrant issued by the court which had jurisdiction and which is required to be transmitted to the court with the return to the appeal. State v. Boykin, 211 N. C. 407, 412, 191 S. E. 18.

Where the case is beyond the jurisdiction of the inferior court, it does not reach the Superior Court under this section by appeal, but by the process of "binding over," and in such case only is an indictment necessary. Id.

§ 7-231. Clerk of superior court ex officio clerk of county recorder’s court.—The clerk of the superior court of any county in which a county recorder’s court shall be established shall be ex officio clerk of such court. He shall keep separate criminal dockets in his office for such court in the same manner as he keeps criminal dockets in the superior court; he shall otherwise possess all the powers and functions conferred upon, and discharge all the duties required of, clerks of the superior court under the general law; and he shall be liable on his official bond to the same extent that he would have been liable if he had done the act himself. The preceding sentence shall not apply to recorder’s courts in Bladen, Brunswick, Camden, Gates, Halifax, Martin, Moore, Orange, Perquimans, Forsyth and Vance Counties. (1919, c. 277, s. 36; 1935, c. 346; C. S. 1576.)

Editor’s Note.—The amendment of 1935 changed this section in such a manner that a comparison is necessary in order to determine its effect.

§ 7-232. Deputy clerk may be appointed.—In stead of having the clerk of the Superior Court to act ex-officio as clerk of the Recorder’s Court or General County Court, the board of commissioners of any county wherein a county Recorder’s Court or General County Court may be established may, at the time of the establishment of said court or at the time of fixing the county budget for any succeeding year, call upon the clerk of the Superior Court to appoint a special deputy to act as clerk of the Recorder’s Court or General County Court, and the clerk of the Superior Court shall within sixty days thereafter appoint a special deputy to act as clerk of the Recorder’s Court or General County Court, unless the time for good cause shall be extended by the Board of County Commissioners. Said special deputy shall assist the clerk of the Superior Court with the duties of his office and shall have all the power and authority in reference to the county Recorder’s Court or General County Court conferred upon the clerk of the Superior Court by the preceding section, and he shall do all things in reference to said Recorder’s Court or General County Court under the direction of the clerk of the Superior Court of the county as fully as the clerk of the Superior Court would otherwise be authorized to do. The Board of Commissioners may require and fix the official bond of said special deputy clerk for the faithful performance of his duties and fix his salary, which shall be fixed before he enters upon his duties and shall not be lowered during his term of office. His term of office shall be for the same time as the term of the recorder of said court, unless he shall be sooner removed by the clerk of the Superior Court for cause, and shall cease at any time that the court itself shall cease to exist. This section shall not apply to Bladen, Brunswick, Camden, Gates, Guilford, Halifax, Lee, Martin, Moore, Orange, Perquimans, Forsyth and Vance Counties. (1919, c. 277, s. 36; 1935, c. 346; C. S. 1576.)

Editor’s Note.—The last two sentences in above section were added by Public Laws 1935, chapter 345.

§ 7-233. Compensation of clerk when no deputy appointed.—When no deputy clerk is appointed or elected by the board of commissioners, they are authorized to pay annually to the clerk of superior court an amount fixed by the board, which shall be in addition to any salary or fees theretofore allowed by law to the clerk of superior court, and which shall be in compensation for the services rendered by him as clerk of the county recorder’s court. Such compensation shall be paid to the clerk of superior court so long as he shall perform the duties of clerk ex officio of the county recorder’s court. (1919, c. 277, s. 36; C. S. 1577.)

§ 7-234. Deputy clerk to take oath of office.—If any deputy clerk shall be appointed as provided in this article he shall take the oath required of deputy clerks under the general law, and in addition thereto shall take and subscribe to an oath to perform faithfully all the duties required of him under this article, both of which oaths shall be recorded in the office of the clerk of the superior court, and such deputy clerk shall be further authorized to perform all duties of deputy clerk under the general law in addition to the duties set forth in this article. (1919, c. 277, s. 37; C. S. 1528.)

Cross Reference.—As to oath's required, see §§ 2-13, 11-6, 11-7, 11-11; Const., Art. VI, s. 7.

§ 7-235. Prosecuting attorney may be elected.—The board of commissioners of any county availing itself of the provisions of this article may elect, at the same time, in the same manner, and for the same term as herein provided for the election of a deputy clerk, a prosecuting attorney for said court, and fix his compensation in such amount as they may deem suitable for the services to be rendered: Provided, that the board may require the county attorney to discharge the duties of prosecuting attorney in said court, and fix his compensation accordingly. (1919, c. 277, s. 38; C. S. 1529.)

Local Modification.—Montgomery: 1929, c. 112; Washington: 1941, c. 164.

§ 7-236. Fees for issuing and serving process.—All justices of the peace, constables and sheriffs issuing or serving warrants or other process returnable to the recorder's court shall have the same fees as are now prescribed by law, which fees shall be collected and paid out in the same manner and by the same officers as collect and distribute such fees in the superior court. (1919, c. 277, s. 41; C. S. 1530.)

§ 7-237. Costs and fees taxed as in municipal court.—Except as provided in § 7-238, there shall be taxed in the county recorder's court the same costs and fees for the benefit of the officers thereof as provided for municipal recorder's court. Such costs and fees shall be collected by the clerk and paid over monthly to the treasurer of the county as county funds to be dealt with by the commissioners. (1919, c. 277, s. 39; C. S. 1581.)

§ 7-238. Fees taxed when county officer on salary; recorder's court fund.—In cases in which the recorder or judge and the solicitor of the county recorder's courts shall be paid salaries, in lieu of fees for such recorder or judge or solicitor, the clerk of the recorder's court shall tax against the defendant who is convicted, or who confesses his guilt, or upon whom judgment is suspended in said court in cases originally within the jurisdiction of the justice of the peace a tax fee of three dollars in each case, and in all other cases within the jurisdiction of the said recorder's court a tax fee of six dollars, and these several sums when collected shall be paid over by said clerk to the treasurer or financial agent of the county, to be kept by him as a separate and distinct fund to be known as the recorder's court fund. This fund shall be used only in paying the salary of the recorder and prosecuting attorney of said court, and the other expenses of the court. (1921, c. 110, s. 13; C. S. 1588(a).)

§ 7-239. Courts may be discontinued after two years.—The board of commissioners of any county which has established a county recorder's court under the provisions of this article are authorized, after two years trial of the court, to discontinue the same at any time thereafter if in their judgment the public interest shall require it. If any such court shall be so discontinued, the action or resolution must be taken or adopted at least six months prior to the next general election, and shall not go into effect until the term of office of the recorder shall expire. (1919, c. 277, s. 35; C. S. 1582.)

§ 7-240. Established for entire county.—The governing body of any municipality possessing a population of two thousand or over, according to the last federal census, in which the county courthouse is located, and the board of commissioners of the county, shall have the power, at a joint meeting of the two bodies, by joint resolution, in the manner hereinafter provided, to establish a recorder's court so as to include the entire county, outside of other municipalities therein possessing a population of two thousand or over. After the adoption of such joint resolution such municipal recorder's court shall possess all the powers and functions and exercise all the territorial jurisdiction in this subchapter conferred upon both municipal and county recorder's court under the procedure herein provided for, and subject to the provisions herein in reference to concurrent jurisdiction where a special or recorder's court exists under prior special acts in any portion of the county. (1919, c. 277, s. 41; C. S. 1583.)

Local Modification.—Richmond: 1941, c. 60.

§ 7-241. Election of recorder.—If the territorial jurisdiction of such municipal recorder's court is extended to the entire county, as set forth in the proceeding section, then the first recorder shall be selected for the term and in the manner hereinafter set forth, by a joint meeting of the governing body of such municipality and the board of commissioners of the county, and such recorder shall be thereafter nominated and elected as is provided for herein for the nomination and election of a county recorder. Such recorder shall be a resident of the municipality, and in all other respects the court shall be conducted under the proceedings herein provided for municipal courts. (1919, c. 277, s. 42; C. S. 1584.)

Local Modification.—Lenoir, Onslow, Sampson: 1925, c. 213; 1927, c. 170.

§ 7-242. Mayor's jurisdiction continued, when.—In case the jurisdiction of the recorder's court of any municipality in any county shall not be extended in the manner authorized in this article, and no county recorder's court shall be established therein, then the mayor of the various cities and towns in such county shall continue to have all the powers and functions and exercise all the jurisdiction now conveyed upon such officials by the general law for municipal corporations. (1919, c. 277, s. 43; C. S. 1595.)

Art. 27. Provisions Applicable to All Recorders' Courts.

§ 7-243. Appeals from justices of the peace.—In all cases where there is an appeal from a justice of the peace, such appeal shall be first heard in the recorder's court, in the manner provided herein for hearing causes within the jurisdiction of a justice of the peace originating in the recorder's court. (1919, c. 277, s. 54 1/2; C. S. 1597.)

Object.—One of the objects of this and related sections was to relieve the congested dockets of the Superior Court. State v. Baldwin, 205 N. C. 174, 175, 170 S. E. 645.

Under the general provisions of this section, an appeal from a conviction of simple assault in a justice's court must first be taken to the recorder's court and not the Superior Court in the counties affected by the act. Id.

§ 7-244. Offenders may be sentenced to city chain-gang. — In case any municipality possessing a population of two thousand or over, as provided for herein, in which a recorder's court shall be established pursuant to the provisions of this subchapter, shall now or hereafter establish and maintain a city chain-gang, or workhouse or other penal institutions for the imprisonment and working of city prisoners, any recorder may sentence any person convicted of any offense committed within said municipality and punishable by imprisonment, to be imprisoned and worked on such city chain-gang, or in such workhouse or other penal institutions, for such time as the recorder may in his discretion determine in accordance with the law. (1919, c. 277, s. 44; C. S. 1586.)

Local Modification.—Richmond: 1941, c. 60.
Cross Reference.—See § 7-194 and notes.

§ 7-245. Recorders' courts substituted for other special courts. — Wherever there has been established in any county, city, or town a recorder's court or other special court, which, under the provisions of this subchapter, might have been established hereunder, whether it shall possess exactly the same jurisdiction and functions or not, the board of commissioners of the county or the governing body of such city or town, or the governing body of such city or town and the board of commissioners of the county acting jointly, may abolish such existing court and adopt any one of the courts herein provided for by appropriate resolution of such boards. (1919, c. 277, s. 45; C. S. 1587.)

Art. 28. Civil Jurisdiction of Recorders' Courts.

§ 7-246. Civil jurisdiction may be conferred. — The board of county commissioners of any county in which there is a city or town with a population of not less than ten thousand inhabitants, in which city or town there has been established a municipal recorder's court, under the provisions of this subchapter, or in which there is a municipal recorder's court established by law, may confer upon such recorder's court jurisdiction to try and determine civil actions, as hereinafter provided, wherein the party plaintiff or defendant is a resident of such county, or is doing business in the county. Such jurisdiction may be conferred by resolution of the board of county commissioners of any county, entered upon their minutes, and the board of county commissioners of the county may likewise confer civil jurisdiction on the county recorder's court to try and determine civil actions as hereinafter provided, wherein one or more of the parties, plaintiff or defendant, is a resident of said county or is doing business therein. (1919, c. 277, s. 47; 1921, c. 110, s. 7; 1933, c. 166; C. S. 1589.)

Local Modification.—Carteret: 1933, c. 379; Richmond: 1941, c. 60; Surry: Pub. Loc. 1927, c. 133, s. 1.
Editor's Note.—Prior to the amendment of 1933, Public Laws 1933, c. 166, this section applied in cities or towns of not less than 10,000 "nor more than 25,000" inhabitants. The quoted clause was omitted by the amendment.

Constitutionality.—A similar statute authorizing the board of commissioners of a county having a recorder's court to allot stated civil jurisdiction to said court by the adoption of an ordinance to that effect was held to be unconstitutional as an unlawful delegation of legislative powers. Durham Provision Co. v. Daves, 190 N. C. 7, 128 S. E. 593.

§ 7-247. Extent of jurisdiction. — The jurisdiction of such municipal and county recorders' courts in civil actions shall be as follows: (a) Jurisdiction concurrent with that of the justices of the peace within the county; (b) jurisdiction concurrent with the superior court in all actions founded on contract, wherein the amount involved exclusive of interest and costs does not exceed one thousand dollars; (c) jurisdiction concurrent with the superior court in actions not founded upon contract wherein the amount involved exclusive of interest and costs does not exceed the sum of five hundred dollars. (1919, c. 277, s. 48; 1921, c. 110, s. 8; C. S. 1590.)

Local Modification.—Carteret: 1933, c. 379; Mecklenburg: 1923, c. 174.

§ 7-248. Procedure in civil actions. — The rules of practice, issuing and serving process, and filing pleadings shall conform, as near as may be, to the practice in the superior court: Provided, it shall not be necessary to file written pleadings in any action of which justices of the peace now have jurisdiction. The process shall be returnable directly to the court; and no civil process shall be issued by any recorder's court to any county other than that in which the court is located. (1919, c. 277, s. 56; 1921, c. 110, s. 9; C. S. 1591.)

Local Modification.—Carteret: 1933, c. 379.
Cross Reference.—As to uniform practice in inferior courts where summons issued to run outside county, see §§ 1-92, 1-93, 1-94.

Editor's Note.—Prior to the amendment in 1921, it was necessary to file written pleadings in an action of which the justice of the peace had jurisdiction.

§ 7-249. Trial by jury in civil actions. — In all civil actions the parties shall be deemed to have waived a trial by jury unless demand for such trial is made before the trial begins. The demand shall be in writing and signed by the party making it, or his attorney, and accompanied by a deposit of five dollars to insure the payment of the jury tax: Provided, such demand shall not be used to the prejudice of the party making it. (1919, c. 277, s. 49; 1921, c. 110, s. 10; C. S. 1592.)

Local Modification.—Carteret: 1939, c. 115, s. 1; Hoke: Pub. Loc. 1937, c. 493.
Editor's Note.—The amendment in 1921 changed the amount of the deposit from three to five dollars.

§ 7-250. Jurors drawn and summoned. — If a trial by jury is demanded, the recorder shall continue the cause until a day is set for demand for such trial is made before the trial begins. The demand shall be in writing and signed by the party making it, or his attorney, and accompanied by a deposit of five dollars to insure the payment of the jury tax: Provided, such demand shall not be used to the prejudice of the party making it. (1919, c. 277, s. 49; 1921, c. 110, s. 10; C. S. 1592.)

Local Modification.—Carteret: 1939, c. 115, s. 1; Hoke: Pub. Loc. 1937, c. 493.

§ 7-251. Talesmen and challenges. — The recorder shall have the right to call in bystanders according to the practice in the superior court [522] as nearly as the same is applicable, and each party shall have the same causes of challenge as in the superior court. (1919, c. 277, s. 51; C. S. 1594.)

Local Modification.—Craven: 1929, c. 115, s. 1; Hoke: Pub. Loc. 1937, c. 408.

§ 7-252. Jury as in superior court.—The jury shall be a jury of twelve, and the trial shall be conducted as nearly as possible as in the superior court. (1919, c. 277, s. 52; C. S. 1595.)

Local Modification.—Craven: 1929, c. 115, s. 1; Hoke: Pub. Loc. 1937, c. 408; Surry: Pub. Loc. 1927, c. 133, s. 2.

§ 7-253. Appeals to superior court.—Appeals may be taken from the recorder’s court to the superior court of the said county in time, for errors assigned in matters of law, in the same manner as now provided for appeals from the superior court to the supreme court, with the exception that the record may be typewritten instead of printed, and only one copy thereof shall be required. The time for taking and perfecting appeals shall be counted from the end of the term. Upon such appeal the superior court may either affirm or modify the judgment of the recorder’s court, or render the cause for a new trial. From the judgment of the superior court, an appeal may be taken to the supreme court. Provided, that appeals from a county recorder’s court to the superior court of the said county shall be tried de novo in the superior court. (1919, c. 277, ss. 53, 54; 1921, c. 110, s. 11; C. S. 1596.)

Editor’s Note.—The last provision contained in this section is new with the Acts of 1921.

§ 7-254. Enforcement of judgments.—Orders to stay execution shall be the same as in appeals from the superior court to the supreme court. Judgments of the recorder’s court may be enforced by executions issued by the clerk thereof, returnable within twenty days. Transcripts of such judgments may be docketed in the superior court, as now provided for judgments of justices of the peace; and the judgment, when docketed, shall in all respects be a judgment of the superior court as if rendered by such court, and shall be subject to the same statute of limitations and the statutes relating to revival of executions. Provided, that a judgment of the recorder’s court shall not be a lien upon real estate until docketed in the superior court. (1919, c. 277, s. 55; 1921, c. 110, s. 12; C. S. 1598.)

Editor’s Note.—The last provision, herein contained, providing docketing in the superior court before the judgment shall be a lien upon real estate, is new with the Acts of 1921.

§ 7-255. Costs in civil actions.—In all civil actions the clerk shall tax against the losing party the sum of three dollars in cases originally within the jurisdiction of the justice of the peace, and the sum of six dollars in all other cases, and all sums so collected shall be disposed of as provided for tax fees in criminal actions in § 7-236. (1921, c. 110, s. 13; C. S. 1598(a.).)

Cross Reference.—See also §§ 7-206 and 7-237.

Art. 23. Elections to Establish Recorders’ Courts.

§ 7-256. Election required.—The courts provided for in this subchapter shall be established upon elections held as set forth in this article, except county recorders’ courts which may be established by the county commissioners of any county without a popular vote. (1919, c. 277, s. 58; 1921, c. 110, s. 14; C. S. 1599.)

Editor’s Note.—The excepting clause in this section was placed herein by the Acts of 1921.

§ 7-257. Municipal recorder’s court.—The governing body of any city or town which may, under the terms of this subchapter, establish a court, prior to its establishment shall pass a resolution, if in their judgment such court should be established, reciting such fact and calling an election at a date to be fixed, which shall be not less than thirty days nor more than two years from the passage of the resolution, at which election there shall be submitted to the qualified voters of the city the question of establishing such court. The form of the ballot shall be as prescribed in § 163-153, subsec. (e). (1919, c. 277, s. 55; 1921, c. 201; C. S. 1600.)

Editor’s Note.—The 1919 amendment substituted “two years” for “sixty days” formerly appearing in the eighth line of this section.

§ 7-258. Notice of election.—Notice of such election shall be given, signed by the clerk of the city or town or the mayor thereof, containing in substance the resolution, the date of the election, and a reference to this subchapter, which notice shall be published once a week for four successive weeks prior to said election in some newspaper published in the city or town. (1919, c. 277, s. 59; C. S. 1601.)

§ 7-259. New registration may be ordered.—The governing body of such city or town may in its discretion order a new registration of the voters for any election authorized hereunder. (1919, c. 277, s. 60; C. S. 1602.)

§ 7-260. Manner of holding election.—The election shall be held, reported, and recorded in the city or town, under the laws governing general elections as near as may be applicable to the city or town. The result of the election shall be reported to, canvassed and declared by the governing body of the city or town, and recorded upon the minutes thereof. If the majority of the votes cast is declared in favor of such court, it shall be established, and not otherwise. (1919, c. 277, s. 61; C. S. 1603.)

Cross Reference.—As to general election laws, see § 163-146 et seq.

§ 7-261. Another election after two years.—If the majority of the votes cast at such election is against the court, another election for the same purpose may thereafter be called, but not within less than two years from the first or any succeeding election in reference thereto. (1919, c. 277, s. 62; C. S. 1604.)

§ 7-262. Municipal courts with jurisdiction over the entire county.—The courts provided for in article twenty-six of this subchapter shall be established in the following manner: The governing body of the city and the board of county commissioners of the county, at a joint meeting, shall pass a joint resolution calling an election submitting to the voters of the entire county the question of the establishment of said court. The election shall be conducted by the county com-municipal recorders' courts by the governing bodies of cities and towns, in so far as said procedure is applicable; the result of the election shall be recorded in the minutes of the county commissioners and certified to and recorded in the minutes of the governing body of the city. The form of the ballot shall be as prescribed in § 163-155, subsec. (e). (1919, c. 277, s. 62; C. S. 1927, c. 74; S. 1606.)

§ 7-263. Expense of elections paid.—The expense of conducting the elections for "municipal courts" and "municipal-county courts" shall be borne by the city or municipality concerned. (1919, c. 277, s. 63; C. S. 1927, c. 74.)

§ 7-264. Certain districts and counties not included.—This subchapter shall not apply to the following judicial districts: the tenth, except as to Granville and Orange counties; the eleventh, except as to Wake and Durham counties; the seventeenth, except as to Randolph and Transylvania counties; the nineteenth; and the twentieth, except as to Cherokee, Jackson, Haywood and Swain counties; nor shall it apply to the counties of Chatham, Columbus, Johnston, New Hanover, and Robeson. (1919, c. 277, s. 64; 1921, c. 110, s. 16; Ex. Sess. 1921, cc. 59, 80; 1923, cc. 19, 40; 1925, c. 162; Pub. Loc. 1927, cc. 214, 545; 1929, cc. 17, 111, 114, 130, 340; 1931, cc. 3, 19; 1933, c. 142; 1935, c. 356; 1938, c. 204; 1941, c. 338; C. S. 1927, c. 246.)

Local Modification.—Alexander: 1939, c. 204; Halifax: 1931, c. 3; Hyde: 1935, c. 396; 1941, c. 134.

SUBCHAPTER VII. GENERAL COUNTY COURTS.

Art. 30. Establishment, Organization and Jurisdiction.

§ 7-265. Establishment authorized; official entitlement; jurisdiction.—In each county of this state, there may be established a court of civil and criminal jurisdiction, which shall be a court of record and which shall be maintained pursuant to this subchapter and which court shall be called the general county court and shall have jurisdiction over the entire county in which said court may be established. In any county in the state in which there is situated a city which has or may have in the future a population, according to any enumeration by the United States census bureau, of more than twenty thousand inhabitants, the commissioners of such county or counties are authorized hereby to establish general county courts as hereinafter provided without first submitting the question of establishing such court to a vote of the people: Provided, that the said enumeration need not be made at a regular decennial census. In the event that the second sentence of this section is acted upon by the commissioners of any county in establishing a general county court, as is herein provided, the said commissioners may make such provisions for holding such courts in such city. (1923, c. 216, s. 1; 1925, c. 245; 1927, c. 74; C. S. 1608(f).)

Local Modification.—Caswell: 1931, c. 17; 1931, c. 405; 1937, c. 54; Cherokee: Pub. Loc. 1927, c. 87; Henderson: 1927, c. 103; Richmond: 1941, c. 60, s. 1; Transylvania: 1931, c. 1; Wilson: 1931, c. 61; 1935, cc. 29, 149, s. 1.

Editor's Note.—See note to § 7-278.

In General.—Under this section the Legislature may create courts inferior to Superior Court if provision is made for appeal to the Superior Court. Jones v. Standard Oil Co., 202 N. C. 328, 163 S. E. 741.

The establishment of a General County Court by the board of commissioners of a county under the provisions of this subchapter shall be valid if: (a) the said court is authorized by the Legislature and the board of commissioners being clothed merely with the power to find the facts in regard to the necessity and expediency of such court, and their acts in establishing such courts having been ratified by the Legislature. State ex rel. Meador v. Thomas, 205 N. C. 142, 170 S. E. 110.

Enactment of Acts of Commissioners in Creating Courts. —The acts of the county commissioners in the organization of general county courts, heretofore organized, as provided by ch. 216 of the Public Laws of 1923 and ch. 85 of the Public Laws, extra session 1924, and all amendments thereto, were ratified and declared to be the acts of the General Assembly of North Carolina by the Acts 1927, ch. 232, sec. 1.

§ 7-266. Creation by board of commissioners without election.—If in the opinion of the board of commissioners of any county, the public interests will be best promoted by so doing, they may establish a general county court under this article, by resolution which shall, in brief, recite the reasons for the establishment thereof, and further recite that, in the opinion of the board of commissioners, it is not necessary that an election be called upon the establishment of such court as herein provided for, and upon the adoption of such resolution the board of commissioners may establish said court without holding such election. (Ex. Sess. 1924, c. 85, s. 1.)

Local Modification.—Henderson: 1927, c. 103; Person: 1929, c. 246.

§ 7-267. Abolishing the court.—Whenever in the opinion of the board of commissioners of any county in which a court has been established under this article, the conditions prevailing in such county are such as to no longer require the said court, such board of county commissioners may, by proper resolution reciting in brief the reasons therefor, abolish said court: Provided, no such court shall be abolished except at the end of the terms of office of the judge and solicitor, unless such judge and solicitor shall voluntarily tender their resignations, setting forth, in brief, that in their opinion the existence of the said court is no longer necessary, in which event the board of commissioners may forthwith abolish the same. (Ex. Sess. 1924, c. 85, s. 2.)

Cited in Ex parte Board of Com'rs, 219 N. C. 96, 12 S. E. (2d) 889.

§ 7-268. Transfer of criminal cases.—Upon the establishment of the general county court, as in this article authorized, the clerk of the superior court shall immediately transfer from the superior court to such general county court all criminal actions pending in the superior court of which the general county court has jurisdiction, as in this article conferred, and the general county court shall immediately proceed to try and dispose of such criminal actions. (Ex. Sess. 1924, c. 85, s. 2.)

This and related sections modify § 15-177. See State v. Baldwin, 205 N. C. 174, 170 S. E. 645.

§ 7-269. Transfer of civil cases.—Transfers may be made in term of any civil action in the superior court.
§ 7-270. Costs.—Cost in both criminal and civil actions shall be taxed and collected as now provided by law. (Ex. Sess. 1924, c. 85, s. 2.)

§ 7-271. Judge; election, term of office, vacancy in office, qualification, salary, office.—The court shall be presided over by the judge, who may be a licensed attorney at law, and at the time of his election he shall be a qualified elector in the county. The first judge of the court upon the establishment of said court shall be elected by the board of county commissioners within thirty days after the establishment of said court, and he shall hold his office until January first following his election, and until his successor is elected and qualified. If a vacancy occurs in the office of judge of said court, the same shall be filled by the election of a successor for the unexpired term by the board of county commissioners. After the first elected judge by the board of county commissioners, each succeeding judge shall be elected by a vote of the qualified electors of the county at the next general election before the expiration of the term of office and when other county officers are elected, and shall hold his office for a term of four years beginning January first following his election, and until his successor is elected and qualified. Before entering upon the duties of his office, the judge shall take and subscribe an oath of office, as is now provided by law for justices of the peace, and he shall file the same with the clerk of the superior court of the county. The salary of said judge shall be fixed by the board of commissioners of the county, and shall not be decreased during the term of office, and it shall be paid monthly out of the funds of the county. The judge shall reside in the county and shall be provided by the county commissioners with an office at the county-seat. The terms of said court shall be held in the courthouse, except as otherwise provided in § 7-265, but they shall at no time inconvenience or discommode the superior court of the county while the superior court in term is using the courthouse. If in the opinion of the board of commissioners the best interests of the county will be promoted thereby, the said board may appoint such judge, fixing his term of office, in which event the judge so appointed shall hold office pursuant to such appointment, and shall not be elected by a vote as herein provided for. (1923, c. 216, s. 2; Ex. Sess. 1924, c. 85, s. 1; C. S. 1608(g).)

Local Modification.—Duplin: 1943, c. 264; Scotland: 1925, c. 172.

Cross References.—As to forms of oaths required of justices of peace, see § 11-11. As to oaths required of public officials generally, see §§ 11-6, 11-7; Const., Art. VI, s. 7.

Editor's Note.—This section was amended in 1924 by striking out a provision fixing the salary at not less than $500 not to be increased; by striking out the provision denying the judge the power to practice law in other courts, and by adding the last sentence.

Election of Judges by the Board of Commissioners Constitutional.—Under the Const., Art. IV, § 30, the legislature may provide for the election of officers of inferior courts, and the word "election" does not necessarily import a popular election for the office of presiding judge of the court, because the law authorizing the board of county commissioners to authorize the election of judges is not an unlawful delegation of legislative powers. State ex rel. Meador v. Thomas, 205 N. C. 142, 170 S. E. 110.

§ 7-272. Terms of court.—The court shall open for the transaction of business and trial of causes the first Monday of each month and continue until all matters before the court are disposed of. (1923, c. 216, s. 2; C. S. 1608(h).)

§ 7-273. Prosecuting officer; duties, election, salary, etc.—There shall be a prosecuting attorney of the general county court, to be known officially as the prosecutor, who shall appear for the state and prosecute in all criminal cases being tried in said court, and for his services he shall be paid such salary as may be fixed by the board of county commissioners. He shall be elected by the board of county commissioners for the first term as herein provided for the election of the judge, and thereafter by the qualified electors of the county in the same manner as is provided herein for the election of the judge; and vacancies in the office of the prosecutor shall be filled by the board of county commissioners as they are herein authorized to fill vacancies in the office of judge. If requested to do so by the judge, the prosecutor shall represent the county in prosecution of criminal appeals from this court in the superior court. The salary of the prosecutor shall be paid monthly out of the county funds. If in the opinion of the board of commissioners the best interests of the county will be promoted thereby, the said board may appoint such solicitor, fixing his term of office, in which event the solicitor so appointed shall hold office pursuant to such appointment, and shall not be elected by a vote as herein provided for. (1923, c. 216, s. 3; Ex. Sess. 1924, c. 85, s. 1; 1925, c. 250, s. 1; C. S. 1608(i).)

Local Modification.—Duplin: 1943, c. 264; Henderson: 1927, c. 103.

Editor's Note.—This section was amended in 1924 by striking out a provision limiting the salary to a minimum of $1,000. The last sentence was also added by that amendment.

The 1925 amendment struck out the word "judge" in the last sentence and substituted the word "solicitor."

§ 7-274. Superior court clerk as clerk ex officio; salary, bond, etc.—The clerk of the superior court of the county shall be ex officio clerk of the general county court, herein provided for, and in addition to the salary and fees paid him as clerk of the superior court, he shall be paid such additional compensation as the county commissioners of the county may fix, to be paid monthly out of the county funds. The said clerk shall be liable upon his official bond for the discharge of his duties and caring for funds paid to him to the same extent as he is bound as clerk of the superior court. The Clerk of said Court or any deputy thereof, upon application and the making of proper affidavit, as provided by law, shall have power and authority to issue any criminal warrant or warrants in said Court and make the same returnable to the Clerk of said Court or any deputy thereof, upon proper authority to issue any criminal warrant or warrants in said Court in the same manner and with the same powers and authority as he does and has in attendance upon the superior courts of the county. The county commissioners of the county are authorized to make said sheriff such additional allowances as they may fix for such services in addition to his salary and fees fixed by law.

§ 7-276. Fees of clerk and sheriff.—In those counties in which the clerk of the superior court and sheriff are paid fees, and not salaries, such clerk and sheriff shall receive the same fees for services rendered in the general county court as they would have received had such services been rendered in the superior court. (Ex. Sess. 1924, c. 85, s. 5/.)

Local Modification.—Scotland: 1925, c. 172.

§ 7-277. Separate records to be kept by clerk; blanks, books and stationery.—The clerk of the said general county court shall keep separate records, criminal and civil, for the use of said court, to be furnished by the county commissioners, and they shall also provide all such necessary blanks, forms, books and stationery as may be needed by said court. And the said clerk shall keep the same in his office of clerk of the superior court. (1923, c. 216, s. 6; C. S. 1908(l).)

§ 7-278. Criminal jurisdiction, extent.—The general county court, herein provided for, shall have the following jurisdiction in criminal actions within the county:

1. Original, exclusive and concurrent jurisdiction, as the case may be, of all offenses within said county which are now or may hereafter be given to justices of the peace under the constitution and general laws of the state, including all offenses of which mayors of towns or other municipal courts now have jurisdiction.

2. Original and concurrent jurisdiction with justices of the peace to hear and bind over to the superior court all persons charged with any crime within the territory of the general county court, and of which said court is not herein given exclusive jurisdiction.

3. To punish for contempt to the same extent and in the manner allowed by law to the superior courts of this state; to issue writs ad testificandum and other process to compel the attendance of witnesses and to enforce the orders and judgments of the court in the same manner allowed by law to the superior courts of this state.

4. The general county court shall have jurisdiction in all criminal cases arising in the county which are now or may hereafter be given to a justice of the peace, and in addition thereto shall have exclusive original jurisdiction of all other criminal offenses committed in the county below the grade of a felony as now defined by law, and the same are hereby declared to be petty misdemeanors. In all criminal cases heard by a justice of the peace or other committing magistrate of the county against any person for any offense included within the exclusive jurisdiction of the general county court, as herein provided for, and in which probable cause of guilt is found, such person shall be bound in a personal recognizance, or surety, to appear at the next first Monday of the month next succeeding before the general county court for trial, and in default of surety such person shall be committed to the county jail to await trial.

5. In counties in which there is a special court or courts for cities and towns, the jurisdiction of the general county court in criminal actions shall be concurrent with the jurisdiction conferred upon such special courts. (1923, c. 216, s. 13; 1924, c. 85, s. 1; C. S. 1908(m).)

Cross Reference.—For statute divesting inferior courts in most counties of exclusive original jurisdiction in criminal actions, see § 7-64.

Editor's Note.—The fifth paragraph was added by the 1924 amendment.

In General.—This section as enacted was one of many general provisions applicable to the several courts provided by the act. The last clause has reference to the jurisdiction exercised by the statutory courts in all criminal matters arising in the county which are given to justices of the peace. State v. Baldwin, 235 N. C. 174, 175, 170 S. E. 645. When the amendment of 1924 is construed in pari materia with both §§ 7-265 et seq., and § 7-135 et seq., it has a prospective purpose and means that when general county courts exist or are created in counties where special courts for cities and towns shall be, or shall have been created, or are now contemporaneous existence, their jurisdiction shall be as defined in the amendment, that is, concurrent with the jurisdiction conferred upon such special courts. In re Barnes, 212 N. C. 735, 738, 194 S. E. 499.

Warrant on Appeal.—Upon conviction in a county court of a misdemeanor within the final jurisdiction of such court, upon a warrant sworn out before a justice of the peace, on appeal the superior court has derivative jurisdiction to try defendant upon the same warrant without a bill of indictment found by the grand jury. State v. Shine, 222 N. C. 237, 22 S. E. (2d) 447.

§ 7-279. Civil jurisdiction, extent.—The jurisdiction of the general county court in civil actions shall be as follows:

1. Jurisdiction concurrent with that of the justices of the peace of the county.

2. Jurisdiction concurrent with the superior court in all actions founded on contract.

3. Jurisdiction concurrent with the superior court in all actions not founded upon contract.

4. Jurisdiction concurrent with the superior court in all actions to try title to lands and to prevent trespass thereon and to restrain waste thereof.

5. Jurisdiction concurrent with the superior court in all actions pending in said court to issue and grant temporary and permanent restraining orders and injunctions.

6. Jurisdiction concurrent with the superior court of all actions and proceedings for divorce and alimony, or either;

7. Jurisdiction concurrent with the superior court in all matters pending in said court for the appointment of receivers, as provided in §§ 1-501, et seq.;

8. Jurisdiction concurrent with the superior court to appoint receivers. (1923, c. 216, s. 14; 1935, c. 171; 1937, c. 58; C. S. 1608(n).)

Local Modification.—Berrie: 1935, c. 179.

Editor's Note.—The 1935 amendment added subsection 6 to the section, and the 1927 amendment added subsections 7 and 8. See 12 N. C. Law Rev., 39.

§ 7-280. Election, requirement of.—The general county court, more especially provided for, shall be established upon elections as set forth in this article, except as otherwise provided in §§ 7-265 and 7-266. (1923, c. 216, s. 20; C. S. 1608(o).)

Cross Reference.—As to when court may be established without election, see §§ 7-265 and 7-266.

§ 7-281. Resolution by county commissioners; time for election; ballots.—The board of commissioners of the county shall pass a resolution, if in their judgment such court should be established, reciting such fact and calling an election at a date to be fixed, which shall not be less than thirty days nor more than sixty days from the passage of the resolution, at which election there shall be submitted to the qualified voters of the county the question of establishing such court. The form of the ballot shall be as provided in § 163-155, subsec. (e). (1923, c. 216, s. 21; C. S. 1608(p).)

§ 7-282. Notice of election; publication.—Notice of such election shall be given at least thirty days prior to the day of election, signed by the chairman of the board of county commissioners and containing in substance the resolution passed by the board, the date of the election and a reference to the act creating the court, and which notice shall be published once a week in the newspapers published in the county and a copy thereof shall be posted at the courthouse door. (1923, c. 216, s. 22; C. S. 1608(q).)

§ 7-283. Law governing elections; election officers; registration.—Any election held under the provisions of this law shall be conducted in the same manner as is now or may hereafter be prescribed by law for holding elections for the members of the general assembly, except as herein otherwise stated. The board of county commissioners shall appoint the registrars and judges of election and any other election officers necessary for holding said election, and registration and challenge of voters shall be conducted in the same manner as is now or may hereafter be provided for election of the members of the general assembly, except as herein set forth. The said board of county commissioners may or may not, in their discretion, order a new registration for any election held under this law. In case no new registration is ordered the registration books of each voting precinct shall be kept open for twenty days prior to the election for the purpose of allowing electors to register who have not theretofore registered in the township or voting precinct, of their residence, and who are entitled to register for said election; and the registration books shall close on Saturday next preceding the election and the registrar shall transcribe the names of all persons who have registered for former elections in their township, or voting precincts, and are otherwise qualified electors at said election upon a new registration book. The registrars are authorized and directed to register any person legally qualified and entitled to vote in their respective townships or voting precincts who apply for such purpose, in the same manner and under the same rules and regulations as now or hereafter may be provided for registering electors for the general election in said county. (1923, c. 216, s. 23; C. S. 1608(r).)

Cross Reference.—As to general election laws, see § 163-146 et seq.

§ 7-284. Count and return of votes; canvass of returns; effect; expense.—The vote cast at said election shall be counted at the close of the polls by the election officers and returned to the clerk of the said board of county commissioners of said county by a member of said election officers on the second day next succeeding the day of said election; and the said board of county commissioners at their next regular meeting, or any called meeting, shall tabulate and declare the result of the election, all of which shall be recorded in the minutes of said board of county commissioners, and no other recording and declaring of the result of said election shall be necessary. If a majority of the votes cast at said election is declared in favor of such court, it shall be established, and not otherwise. The expenses of said election shall be paid by the county commissioners out of the county fund. (1923, c. 216, s. 24; C. S. 1608(s).)

§ 7-285. Application of article.—This article shall not apply to any county in which there has been established a court, inferior to the superior court, by whatever name called, by a special act, nor shall this article apply to the following counties: Granville, Henderson, Iredell, New Hanover, Pasquotank, Randolph and Wake; nor shall it apply to the counties in the seventeenth (17th) and nineteenth (19th) judicial districts, except Buncombe county. (Ex. Sess. 1924, c. 85, s. 2; 1925, c. 9; 1927, c. 103, ss. 1, 2; 1929, c. 159, s. 1; 1931, c. 19; 1937, c. 439.)

Local Modification.—Watauga: 1937, c. 439.

Editor's Note.—The county of Randolph was added to the list of counties to which this article does not apply by the 1925 amendment. The 1927 amendment made an exception in the case of Henderson County. The act of 1931 struck out the exception as to counties in the sixteenth judicial district.

Art. 31. Practice and Procedure.

§ 7-286. Procedure; issuance and return of process.—The rules of procedure, issuing process and filing pleadings shall conform as nearly as may be to the practice in the superior courts. The process shall be returnable directly to the court, and may issue out of the court to any county in the state: Provided, That civil process in cases in which the jurisdiction may be exercised by justices of the peace shall not run outside of or beyond the county in which such court sits.

Motions for the change of venue or removal of cases from the general county courts to the superior courts of counties other than the one in which the said court sits may be made and acted upon, and the causes for removal shall be the same as prescribed by law for similar motions in the superior courts.

The provision of the chapters on civil procedure and criminal procedure, and all amendments thereof, shall apply as nearly as may be to the general county courts, and the judges and the clerks of said courts, in all cases pending in said courts, shall have rights, privileges, powers and immunities similar in all respects to those conferred by law on the judges and clerks of the superior courts of the state, and shall be subject to similar duties and liabilities: Provided, that this section shall not extend the jurisdiction of said judges and clerks, nor infringe in any manner upon the jurisdiction of the superior courts, except as provided in articles thirty and thirty-one of this chapter.

All motions and petitions for removal of actions from the general county court to the district court of the United States shall be presented to, be heard, and determined by the judge of the general county court with the right of appeal from any order or ruling of said judge to the superior court. (1923, c. 216, s. 7; 1925, c. 242, s. 2; 1925, c. 250, s. 2; 1933, c. 128, s. 1; C. S. 1608(1).)

Local Modification.—Richmond: 1941, c. 60.

Editor's Note.—The first 1925 amendment made several changes in this section and the second 1925 amendment added the proviso at the end of the third paragraph. The 1931 amendment added the last paragraph.

§ 7-287. Trial by jury; waiver; deposit for jury fee.—In all civil actions the parties shall be deemed to have waived a jury trial unless demand shall be made therefor in the pleadings of the parties to the action when same are filed. The demand shall be in writing and signed by the party making it, or by his attorney, and accompanied by a deposit of three dollars to insure the payment of the jury tax: Provided, such demand shall not be used to the prejudice of the party making it. Any defendant in a criminal action may demand a trial by jury, in which event such defendant shall not be required to deposit the sum of three dollars. Such jury shall be drawn as herein otherwise provided for. (1923, c. 216, s. 8; Ex. Sess. 1924, c. 85, s. 1; 1937, c. 56; C. S. 1608(u).)

Local Modification.—Duplin: 1917, c. 85.

Editor's Note.—The last two sentences of this section were added by the 1924 amendment.

Prior to the 1937 amendment demand for jury trial was required to be made "before the trial begins."

§ 7-288. Continuance if jury demanded; drawing of jury; list.—If a jury trial is demanded, the judge shall continue the case until a day to be set, and the judge, together with the attorneys for all parties, shall proceed to the office of the register of deeds of the county and cause to be drawn a jury of eighteen men, observing as nearly as may be the rule for drawing a jury for the superior court. The judge shall issue the proper writ to the sheriff of the county commanding him to summon the jurors so drawn to appear at the court on the day set for the trial of the action. It shall be the duty of the register of deeds to prepare a list of jurors for this the general county court identical with the list prepared for the superior court, and the jury shall be drawn out of the box containing such list. Provided, that the judge of the County Court may in his discretion, if and when a sufficient number of cases are at issue in which jury trial has been demanded to warrant such action, cause a jury of not less than eighteen, not more than twenty-four men to be drawn for a certain week of a term, setting such cases for trial during such time, and in such cases the juries shall be drawn in the same manner as now provided for the drawing of juries for the superior court. The proviso shall not apply to the following counties: New Hanover, Caldwell, Henderson, Ashe, Hoke, Lincoln, Wayne, Wilkes, Nash, Edgecombe, Alexander, Rockingham, Duplin, Union, Alleghany, Halifax, Alamance, Clay, Yancey, Dare, Wake, Hertford, Jackson, Mecklenburg, Craven, Vance, Person, Robeson, Johnston, Yadkin, Davidson, Haywood, Pitt, Tyrrell, Hyde, Watauga, Durham, Scotland, Forsyth and Camden. (1923, c. 216, s. 9; 1931, c. 233, s. 2; C. S. 1608(v).)

§ 7-289. Talesmen; challenges.—The judge shall have the right to call in talesmen to serve as jurors according to the practice of the superior court as nearly as the same is applicable, and to direct the sheriff to summon a sufficient number of talesmen to serve during any one week for the proper dispatch of the business of the court. (1923, c. 216, s. 10; C. S. 1608(w).)

§ 7-290. Process; authentication; service; return.—All civil summons in actions begun in the general county court shall be served at least ten days before the return day named therein, and shall be returnable on the first Monday of the month next succeeding the issue thereof, unless the same be issued within less than ten days before the first Monday of the month next succeeding its issuing, in which event it shall be made returnable on the first Monday of the second succeeding month next after the date of the issue thereof; and when the summons be issued more than ten days before the first Monday of the month next succeeding its issuing, and shall be executed by the proper officer within less than ten days of the return day named therein, it shall be returned as if executed in proper time, and the case placed on the summons docket and continued to the first Monday of the month next succeeding the return day thereof, at which time it shall be treated in all respects as if that had been the return day named therein. The summons shall be in the name of the state, signed by the clerk of the court in which the action is brought, and shall be directed to the sheriff or other proper officer of the county. (1923, c. 216, s. 11; C. S. 1608(x).)

§ 7-291. Pleadings; time of filing.—The complaint shall be filed by the return day named in the summons and the answer, demurrer or other pleadings on the part of the defendant shall be filed within twenty (20) days thereafter: Provided, if a copy of the complaint be served on the defendant at the time of the service of the summons, then the defendant shall have only twenty (20) days from the date of such service to file an answer, demurrer or otherwise plead. If the answer contains a counterclaim against the plaintiff or plaintiffs or any of them, such answer shall be served upon the plaintiff or plaintiffs against whom such counterclaim is pleaded or against the attorney or attorneys of record of such plaintiff or plaintiffs; the plaintiff or plaintiffs against whom such counterclaim shall be pleaded shall have twenty (20) days after the service thereof within which to answer or reply to such counterclaim. If a counterclaim is pleaded against any of the plaintiffs and no copy of the answer containing such counterclaim shall be served as herein provided for, such counterclaim shall be deemed to be denied as fully as if the plaintiff or plaintiffs had filed an answer or reply denying the same. All other replies, if any, shall be served within twenty (20) days from the filing of the answer. For good cause shown and found by the judge, the judge may extend the time for the filing of any of the pleadings provided for in this article on the part of the plaintiff or on the part of the defendant. (1923, c. 216, s. 12; 1925, c. 250, s. 3; C. S. 1608(y).)

Editor's Note.—This section was amended in 1925 to make it conform to other sections now appearing as sections 1-125 and 1-140.

§ 7-292. Criminal appeals to superior court; cases bound over to superior court.—Any person convicted of any offense of which the general county court has final jurisdiction may appeal to the superior court of the county from any judgment or sentence of the court in the same manner as is now provided for appeals from justices of the peace; and any person tried before the general county court for any offense of which said court has not final jurisdiction shall, if probable cause be found, be bound over to the superior court in the same manner as is provided by law in similar cases before a justice of the peace. The judge may, upon proper affidavit, issue criminal warrants returnable before him in or out of term. All persons convicted in said court may be sentenced to the roads, or county farms, or jail, as the judge may determine. (1923, c. 216, s. 15; C. S. 1608(z).)

§ 7-293. Amendments in pleadings and warrants.—The judge shall have power in his discretion to allow amendments in pleadings and warrants, to the same extent as is allowed in the superior courts of the state. (1923, c. 216, s. 16; C. S. 1608(aa).)

§ 7-294. Jury trials, conduct of.—The jury in the general county court shall be a jury of twelve and the trial shall be conducted as nearly as possible as in the superior court. (1923, c. 216, s. 17; C. S. 1608(bb).)

§ 7-295. Appeals to superior court in civil actions; time; record; judgment; appeal to supreme court.—Appeals in civil actions may be taken from the general county court to the superior court of the county in term time for errors assigned in matters of law in the same manner as is now provided for appeals from the superior court to the supreme court except that appellant shall file in duplicate statement of appeal, as settled, containing the exceptions and assignments of error, which, together with the original record, shall be transmitted by the clerk of the general county court to the superior court, as the complete record on appeal in said court; that briefs shall not be required to be filed on said appeal, by either party, unless requested by the judge of the superior court; the record on appeal to the superior court shall be docketed before the next term of the superior court ensuing after the case on appeal shall have been settled by the agreement of the parties or by order of the court, and the case shall stand for argument at the next term of the superior court ensuing after the record on appeal shall have been docketed; ten days, unless otherwise ordered by the court. The time for taking and perfecting appeals shall be counted from the end of the term of the general county court at which such trial is had. Upon such appeal the superior court may either affirm or modify the judgment of the general county court, or remand the cause for a new trial. From the judgment of the superior court an appeal may be taken to the supreme court as is now provided by law. (1923, c. 216, s. 18; 1933, c. 109; 1937, c. 84; C. S. 1608(cc).)

Editor's Note.—Prior to Public Laws 1933, c. 109, the exception at the end of the first sentence of this section merely provided that the record might be typewritten and that only two copies should be required. This was omitted and the present exception inserted in lieu thereof. The 1923 amendment inserted that part of the first sentence after the semi-colon and further provides as follows: "This act shall apply to all cases tried before the ratification of this act in which an appeal has been entered and time for service of case on appeal and counterclaim or exceptions has been extended by order of court with consent of counsel for parties. If any section of this act should be held to be invalid, such invalidity shall not affect the validity of any other section.

Assignment of Error.—In the absence of assignments of error appearing in the transcript on appeal to the Supreme Court, the appeal will ordinarily be dismissed. It must, however, be presented to the court by assignments of error based on exceptions to specific rulings of the judge of the Superior Court, on the assignments of error appearing in the case on appeal filed in the Superior Court. Id.

Sending Record Up.—Where an appeal is taken from appeal in a county court under this section it is not desirable that the entire record in the Superior Court be sent up, but only such parts as may be necessary to determine the appeal to be reviewed with only material exceptions, properly stated, grouped and concisely compiled to enable the court to understand them without searching through the record. Baker v. Clayton, 202 N. C. 741, 164 S. E. 23.

See 11 N. C. Law Rev., 217, where it is pointed out that the 1933 amendment changes this section, so that instead of following the practice in appeals from the Superior Court to the Supreme Court, the appellant may file in duplicate the statement of the case on appeal, and this with the original records in the case shall be transmitted to the clerk of the Supreme Court and become the court record on appeal. Briefs are not required to be filed by either party, unless requested by the judge of the Superior Court.

Superior Court Sits as an Appellate Court.—In hearing civil cases on appeal from the general county court, the Superior Court sits as an appellate court, subject to review by the Supreme Court. Jenkins v. Castello, 208 N. C. 498, 198 S. E. 266, citing Cecil v. Snow Lbr. Co., 174 N. C. 392, 164 S. E. 75.

The jurisdiction of the superior court on an appeal from a general county court is an appellate jurisdiction limited to questions of law only which are properly presented by errors assigned, and the superior court may either affirm or modify the judgment of the general county court or remand the cause for a new trial. Robinson v. McAlhaney, 216 N. C. 6, 198 S. E. 117.

In Granting a New Trial It Is Essential That the Superior Court Specifically State the Rulings upon Exceptions.—Where an appeal is taken from the general county court to the Superior Court for errors assigned in matters of law, as authorized by this section, and a new trial is granted by the Superior Court, it is essential that the rulings upon exceptions granting the new trial be specifically stated, so that in case of appeal to the Supreme Court, they may be considered in the superior court for an order of rehearing in accordance with Rule 19(3) of the Rules of Practice in the Supreme Court, and properly considered on appeal. Jenkins v. Castelboc, 298 N. C. 576, 184 S. E. 85, decided prior to the 1937 amendment.

Where the record is not docketed in the Superior Court within the time prescribed, the appeal is properly dismissed, it being formerly provided that appeals from the general county court are governed by the rules governing appeals from the Superior Courts to the Superior Court, and dismissal in such circumstances is mandatory under Rule of Practice in the Supreme Court No. 5. Groovy v. Graybeal, 299 N. C. 575, 184 S. E. 85, decided prior to the 1937 amendment.

The superior court has discretionary authority to reinstate an appeal from a general county court upon motion made at the same term the appeal is dismissed for failure of appellant to comply with the statutory requirements governing such appeals. This section provides that such appeal shall be heard by the court or an order of rehearing in such a manner, and upon such conditions as the court may direct. Jenkins v. Castelboc, supra.

§ 7-296. Enforcement of judgments; stay of execution, etc.—Orders to stay execution on judgments entered in the general county court shall be the same as in appeals from the superior court to the supreme court. Judgments of the general county court may be enforced by execution issued by the clerk thereof, returnable within twenty days. Transcripts of such judgments may be docketed in the superior court as now provided for judgments of justices of the peace, and the judgment when docketed shall in all respects be a judgment of the superior court in the same manner and to the same extent as if rendered by the superior court, and shall be subject to the same statutes and rules relating to the revival of judgments in the superior court and issuing executions thereon. (1923, c. 216, s. 19; C. S. 1608(dd).)

When the judgment of a general county court is docketed in the Superior Court of the county it becomes a judgment of the Superior Court in like manner as transcribed judgments of justices of the peace under § 7-166, and the general county court has no further jurisdiction of the case, and may not thereafter hear a motion for the appointment of a receiver for the judgment debtor. Essex Inv. Co. v. Woolworth Co., 214 N. C. 214, 198 S. E. 659.

§ 7-297. May be established in two or more contiguous counties in same judicial district; jurisdiction.—In any two or more contiguous and adjoining counties of any judicial district of this State there may be established, under the general powers and authority contained in articles thirty and thirty-one, of this chapter, except as herein otherwise provided, a court of civil and criminal jurisdiction, maintained pursuant to this sub-chapter and the said articles thirty and thirty-one, not inconsistent herewith, a court of record, to be known as and designated a district county court, and containing all the authority, jurisdiction, rights, powers and duties, compensations and fees, as provided in the articles aforesaid, except as herein otherwise provided. (1931, c. 70.)

§ 7-298. Judge of court; election; term of office; oath of office and salary.—The court shall be presided over by a judge, who may be a licensed attorney at law, and at the time of his election he shall be a qualified elector in one of the counties composing the said district county court.

The first judge of said court, upon its establishment as hereinafter provided, shall be elected by the several boards of commissioners of the counties establishing the said district courts, each board being entitled to one vote to be cast in accordance with the majority vote of each board, at any joint meeting of said boards of commissioners, as hereinafter provided, within sixty days after the establishment, and he shall hold his office until January first, following the next general election of county officials, and until his successor is elected and qualified. Any vacancy arising in the office of judge of said court shall be filled by the several boards of commissioners of the counties establishing the said district court, in joint meeting assembled, which shall be called by the chairman of the board of commissioners of the county in which such judge resided at the time of his death or removal, or resignation.

At the joint meeting of said boards of commissioners when an election of the judge of said court is made, the said commissioners shall also fix the salary of said judge, which salary together with the salary of the prosecuting attorney hereinafter provided for shall be paid from the costs taxed and collected in the trial of all actions in said court to which costs provided for there shall be added a trial fee of five dollars and if there be a deficiency in the payment of said salaries from said costs as herein provided for, the said deficiency shall be proportionately paid by the several counties composing the said district county court, in proportion as the population of each county shall bear to the whole of the counties creating said court, on the basis of the most recent federal decennial census.

The judge shall reside in one of the counties of said district; he shall take the oath of office prescribed in section 7-271; hold his terms of court in the county courthouse in each county of his district, and shall not be permitted to practice law during his tenure of office in any of the courts of the State.

His successor shall be nominated and elected by a vote of the qualified electors of the several counties embraced within the jurisdiction of said district at the next general election before the expiration of the term of office and when other county officers are elected, in the same manner,
§ 7-299. Present county courts may be changed to district courts. — In any county where a county court has been heretofore created and now exists under and by virtue of article thirty, of this chapter, where it is desired to change said court from a county court to a district county court, under the provisions of this article, its board of commissioners may, by proper resolution, reciting in brief the reasons therefor, abolish the said county court and establish for said county, in the manner provided in this article, a district county court; and in such event, the judge and solicitor of the said county court shall thereupon be named and elected as judge and solicitor of said district county court until the expiration of the time for which they were elected as officers of the said county court, and until their successors are duly elected and qualified. (1931, c. 70.)

§ 7-300. When court to be held. — The court shall be open for the transaction of business and trial of cases at least once a week in each county in each month in districts composed of four counties, or less, and at least once in every eight weeks in districts composed of more than four counties, which week or the time of holding said court for each of said counties shall be determined and declared by said joint meeting of said commissioners upon recommendation of the bars of the several counties composing said district, or majority of the resident lawyers of said counties, and certified by said commissioners to each superior court clerk of the several counties within the district. (1931, c. 70.)

§ 7-301. Prosecuting attorneys. — There shall be a prosecuting attorney of the said district court, known officially as the prosecuting attorney, and he shall appear for the State and prosecute all criminal actions in said county courts of his district; and for his services he shall be paid such salary as may be fixed by the boards of county commissioners of the several counties composing the district.

The said prosecuting attorney shall be elected by the respective boards of commissioners in the same manner as hereinbefore provided for the election of a judge thereof. He shall hold his office until January first next following the general election for county officers, and at the said first general election following his election by the said boards of commissioners, and thereafter at each subsequent general election for county officers, he shall be nominated and elected by the duly qualified electors of the counties composing said district, under the general laws governing the nomination and election of district officers, or solicitors of the several judicial districts.

Any vacancy arising in the said office of prosecuting attorney shall be filled by the board of commissioners of the counties composing the district, in the same manner, and, as hereinbefore provided for the election of the judge thereof; and the compensation or salary of the said prosecuting attorney shall be paid by the several counties composing the district in the same proportion, or basis provided for payment of the salary of the judge, and shall be payable monthly out of the funds of the counties composing said district court. If requested to do so by the judge, the prosecuting attorney shall represent the county in prosecuting any appeal of a criminal action from said district court in the Superior Court. (1931, c. 70.)

§ 7-302. Clerks; duties and compensation. — The several clerks of the superior court in the several counties of said district court shall ex-officio be clerk of said district court of each and all terms held within the respective counties of each, and subject to all the rights, duties and liabilities provided for in sections 7-274 and 7-277. The clerk of said court or any deputy thereof, upon application and the making of proper affidavit, as provided by law, shall have power and authority to issue any criminal warrant or warrants in said court and make the same returnable before the judge thereof, at any time or times designated for the trial of criminal cases. The last sentence shall not apply to the following counties: New Hanover, Caldwell, Henderson, Ashe, Hoke, Lincoln, Wayne, Wilkes, Nash, Edgecombe, Alexander, Rockingham, Duplin, Union, Alleghany, Halifax, Alamance, Clay, Vance, Dare, Wake, Hertford, Jackson, Mecklenburg, Craven, Vance, Person, Robeson, Johnston, Yadkin, Davidson, Haywood, Pitt, Tyrrell, Hyde, Watauga, Durham, Scotland, Forsyth and Camden. (1931, c. 70, s. 1; c. 233.)

§ 7-303. Sheriffs; duties and compensation. — The several sheriffs of the several counties of said district court, or their duly constituted deputies, shall attend upon each term of this court within their respective counties, and be subject to and possess the same power and authority and additional compensation as authorized under § 7-275. (1931, c. 70.)

§ 7-304. Jurisdiction. — The said county district courts shall have the same criminal and civil jurisdiction as that of the general county court, and as fixed and defined in §§ 7-278 and 7-279. (1931, c. 70.)

§ 7-305. Procedure to establish. — Upon a petition signed by a majority of the resident licensed attorneys at law, of not less than two counties of the State within any one judicial district, and duly verified to that effect, addressed to and filed with the Governor, praying the establishment of a general county district court for any two or more of the counties named in the petition, the Governor shall transmit a copy of the petition to each of the respective boards of county commissioners, and at the same time he shall issue an order to each of said boards directing a joint meeting of the same at the courthouse
§ 7-306. Practice and procedure.—The practice and procedure of the said county district courts shall be the same as that of the general county court, and as prescribed in §§ 7-286 to 7-289. (1931, c. 70.)

§ 7-307. Abolishing the court.—Whenever in the opinion of the board of commissioners of any county in which a court has been established under the provisions of this article, the conditions prevailing in such county are such as to no longer require the said court, such board of county commissioners may, by proper resolution, reciting in brief the reasons therefor, duly certify the same to the chairman of the board of commissioners of each other county composing, forming and creating the said district court; whereupon the respective boards of commissioners of the several counties embraced in said district court, shall meet at the courthouse of the county in which the judge resides on the third Monday of the month next following the receipt of the certified copy of the resolution aforesaid, or the subsequent and next following Monday first and abolish the said county court for the county having adopted the resolution aforesaid, which shall go into effect as to the county abolishing said court at the end of the term to which the judge has been elected. If, upon the abolition of the said county court, as to the county adopting the resolution aforesaid, as many as two other counties forming, composing and making up the said district court, desire the same continued in full force and effect within their respective counties the said commissioners shall readjust the salary and compensation of the judge and prosecuting attorney of said court on the basis hereinafter provided to take effect at the end of the term to which the said judge has been elected, and the said county court shall continue in full force and effect within the other counties remaining, forming and composing the same, with no impairment of the rights, powers, duties, and authorities conferred by this article. But said court may, at any time, at a meeting held pursuant to a resolution, certified as aforesaid, subject to the provisions hereinafter recited, abolish the said court in each, all or any of the counties in the districts; and in such event the Clerk of Court shall transfer all cases pending therein to the Superior Court of his respective county. (1931, c. 70.)

SUBCHAPTER VIII. CIVIL COUNTY COURTS.

Art. 33. With Jurisdiction Not to Exceed $3000.

§ 7-308. Establishment.—An inferior court with civil jurisdiction only as hereinafter provided may be established by the board of county commissioners of any county in this state upon the petition of a majority of the resident practicing attorneys within the county. (1925, c. 135, s. 1.)

§ 7-309. Jurisdiction.—The said court shall have exclusive original jurisdiction in all civil actions, matters, and proceedings, including all proceedings whatever ancillary, provisional and remedial to civil actions founded on contract or tort, wherein the superior court now has exclusive original jurisdiction: Provided, that the sum demanded or the value of the property in controversy shall not exceed three thousand dollars ($3,000).

The said court shall have jurisdiction with the Superior Court in all actions pending in said court to issue and grant temporary restraining orders and injunctions: Provided, that the sum demanded or the value of the property in controversy shall not exceed three thousand dollars ($3,000).

The said court shall have jurisdiction with the Superior Court in all actions pending in said court to issue and grant temporary restraining orders and injunctions: Provided, that the sum demanded or the value of the property in controversy shall not exceed three thousand dollars ($3,000).

The said court shall have jurisdiction with the Superior Court in all actions pending in said court to issue and grant temporary restraining orders and injunctions: Provided, that the sum demanded or the value of the property in controversy shall not exceed three thousand dollars ($3,000).

The said court shall have jurisdiction with the Superior Court in all actions pending in said court to issue and grant temporary restraining orders and injunctions: Provided, that the sum demanded or the value of the property in controversy shall not exceed three thousand dollars ($3,000).

§ 7-310. Juries in such court; drawing jury; challenges.—In the trial of civil actions in said court either the plaintiff at the time of filing the complaint or the defendant at the time of filing the answer may in his pleadings demand and have a jury trial as provided in the trial of causes in the Superior Court; failure to demand a jury trial at the time herein provided shall be deemed a waiver of the right to a trial by jury. The judge of said court, when in his opinion the ends of justice would be best served by submitting the issues to the jury, may have a jury called of his own motion and submit to it such issues as he may deem material.

Jurors shall receive the same compensation as is now provided by law for jurors serving in the Superior Court, to be paid out of the treasury of said county on presentation of a ticket duly issued by the clerk of said court; the clerk of said court shall tax the sum of three dollars as cost of jury in all jury cases and the same shall be collected by said clerks and paid into the county treasury of said county.

The commissioners of said county at their regular meeting on the first Monday of April, in the year nineteen hundred and twenty-five,
§ 7-311. Terms; docket.—The judge and clerk of said county court are hereby authorized to fix the terms of said court and to make up the docket of said court upon consulting with the bar association of said county. (1925, c. 135, s. 3.)

§ 7-312. Witnesses; how summoned. — Witnesses shall be summoned by subpoena issued by the clerk of said court as now provided for the summoning of witnesses for the trial of causes in the superior court and shall be allowed the same compensation to be taxed as cost by the clerk of this court. (1925, c. 135, s. 5.)

§ 7-313. Appeals.—Appeals may be taken by either the plaintiff or the defendant from the said county court to the Superior Court of said county in term time for errors assigned in matters of law in the same manner and under the same requirements as are now provided by law for appeals from the Superior Court to the Supreme Court, with the exception that the record may be typewritten instead of printed and only one copy thereof shall be required. The time for taking and perfecting the appeals shall be counted from the end of the term. Upon appeals from said county court the Superior Court may either affirm, modify and affirm the judgment of said county court or remand the cause to the county court for a new trial.

The bonds to stay execution shall be the same as now required for appeals from the Superior Court to the Supreme Court. The judgment of the Superior Court shall be certified to said county court; final judgment may be rendered unless there is an appeal to the Supreme Court. In case of appeal to the Supreme Court upon filing of the certificate from the Supreme Court to the Superior Court said certificate shall be transmitted by the clerk thereof to the clerk of this court. (1925, c. 135, s. 6.)

An appeal to the Superior Court from the granting or refusal of a restraining order by the county court may be taken to the next term of the Superior Court without the necessity of serving statement of case on appeal, counter-case or exceptions, etc., the case having been heard on the pleadings and the record in the Superior Court consisting of the summons, complaint, answer, orders, judgment and assignment of errors. Thomason v. Swenson, 234 N. C. 759, 169 S. E. 620.

§ 7-314. How actions commenced.—All actions shall be commenced in said court by summons running in the name of the State and issued by the clerk of said county court and shall be returnable as is provided for by law for summons in the Superior Court. The plaintiff shall file and retain complaint on or before the return day of such summons; the defendant shall file a written answer or a认er and shall make his motions in writing during the term in which the summons is returnable and the case shall stand for trial at the next succeeding term. (1925, c. 135, s. 7.)

§ 7-315. Judgments.—The judgments of said court may be enforced by execution issued by the clerk of this court as now provided for executions and transcripts of judgments from the courts of justices of the peace. (1925, c. 135, s. 8.)

Cross Reference.—As to docketing judgments of courts of justices of the peace in superior court, see § 7-166.

§ 7-316. Process of the court.—The process of said court while exercising the jurisdiction of a justice of the peace shall not run outside of said county. In all other cases these processes shall run as processes issue out of the Superior Court. (1925, c. 135, s. 9.)

§ 7-317. Removal of cause before justice.—When, upon affidavit made before entering upon the trial of any cause before any justice of the peace in said county, it shall appear proper for said cause to be removed for trial to some other justice of the peace, as is now provided by law, said cause may be removed for trial to the said county court. (1925, c. 135, s. 10.)

Local Modification.—Mecklenburg: 1933, c. 279.

§ 7-318. Rules of practice.—The rules of practice as provided for in said county court shall have the same effect as the rules of practice as now provided for in the superior court for the trial of all causes shall apply in this court, supplemented, however, by such rules and regulations as may be prescribed by the judge of this court relating to causes pending therein. (1925, c. 135, s. 11.)

§ 7-319. Bonds for costs; duties of clerk.—The statutes about bonds for costs and about [533]
suits without bonds for costs that now apply to the Superior Court shall also apply to this court. Wherever the law otherwise provides for a thing to be done by the clerk of the Superior Court or by the judge of the Superior Court or by either, the same thing shall be performed by the clerk of said county court or by the judge of said county court in causes in said county court; this provision shall apply especially to all provisional remedies as now provided by statute except special proceedings. (1925, c. 135, s. 12.)

§ 7-320. Costs.—In all causes removed to or brought into the said county court the costs shall be the same as in the Superior Court. All cost shall be paid to or collected by the clerk of said county court in the same manner as in the Superior Court and paid by the said clerk of said county court into the treasury of said county: Provided, that for the service of process the fees shall be paid to the officer serving the process. The officers shall perform all the duties in said county court as provided in the Superior Court and receive therefor the same fees as allowed for the same service performed in the Superior Court. (1925, c. 135, s. 13.)

§ 7-321. Appointment and compensation of judge; substitute; vacancies.—After the ratification of this article and the establishment of such court by any county, it shall be the duty of the clerk of the board of commissioners of such county to immediately notify the Governor who shall appoint a judge to preside over such court, and each fourth year thereafter it shall be the duty of the Governor to appoint the judge of each such county court who shall preside over said court, who shall be learned in the law, of good moral character, and who shall at the time of his appointment and qualification be an elector in and for said county; that the said judge shall hold office for a term of four years and until his successor is appointed and qualified. And before entering upon the duties of his office the said judge shall take and subscribe an oath of office as is now provided by law for the judges of the Superior Court and file the same with the clerk of the Superior Court of said county; and the said clerk shall record the same. Said judge shall receive a salary of one hundred dollars ($100) a week for each week that he is engaged in holding court, payable in equal weekly installments out of the treasury of said county.

The said judge shall not by reason of his office be prohibited from practicing the profession of attorney at law in other courts of this State except as to matters pending in connection with or growing out of said county court.

When the said judge is unable to preside over said court on account of sickness or absence for other cause he shall appoint some other person learned in the law who shall take the same oath and possess the same qualifications as provided for the judge, to act as a substitute judge with all the powers and duties of the judge, and the compensation of said substitute judge shall be paid by the said judge.

Any vacancy occurring in the office of judge shall be filled by the Governor of the State. (1925, c. 135, s. 14.)

Cross References.—As to forms of oath required of superior court judges, see §§ 11-6, 11-7, 11-11; Const., Art. VI, s. 7.

§ 7-322. Compensation of clerk; vacancy; files, books, stationery, etc.—The clerk of the superior court of said county by himself or his deputies shall ex officio perform the duties of clerk of said county court and shall be paid a sum not less than one thousand dollars ($1,000) annually, the amount to be determined by the board of commissioners of said county and paid out of the treasury of said county as full compensation for his duties as clerk of said county court. Upon the failure of the clerk of the Superior Court of said county to qualify under this article or in case of any vacancy in the office of clerk of the said county court such vacancy shall be filled by the board of commissioners of said county. The necessary files, books, stationery and other material of that nature shall be furnished to the clerk of said county court by said county. (1925, c. 135, s. 15.)

§ 7-323. Stenographer; fees.—There shall be an official stenographer of this court whose duty shall be the same as the official stenographer of the Superior Court of said county. Said stenographer's fees shall be the same in amount as the fees of the official stenographer of the superior court of said county and shall be taxed as costs. (1925, c. 135, s. 16.)

§ 7-324. Procedure.—The procedure of said county court, except that hereinafter provided, shall follow the rules and principles laid down in the chapter on civil procedure and amendments thereto in so far as the same may be adapted to the needs and requirements of the said county court. (1925, c. 135, s. 17.)

§ 7-325. Records.—There shall be docket files, and records kept of all proceedings in the said county court, conforming as nearly as possible to the records of the superior court. (1925, c. 135, s. 18.)

§ 7-326. To be court of record.—The said county court shall be a court of record and the clerk thereof shall be provided with a seal of said court. (1925, c. 135, s. 19.)

§ 7-327. Pending cases.—All cases pending in the superior court of said county and in the courts of the justices of the peace of said county on the date the court is established shall be tried in the courts wherein they are pending. (1925, c. 135, s. 20.)

§ 7-328. First session.—The presiding judge of said county court shall hold the first session of said county court within thirty days after his appointment by the Governor, and other sessions shall be held as provided in this article. (1925, c. 135, s. 21.)

§ 7-329. Discontinuance of court.—The board of commissioners of any county may discontinue such court on written petition signed by the majority of the practicing attorneys of such county. (1925, c. 135, s. 22.)

§ 7-330. Existing laws not repealed.—This article shall not be construed to repeal chapter seven, nor shall it repeal or affect any act establishing any inferior court now existing or that may hereafter be created under the existing law but shall be construed to be supplemental to the existing law and a method by which county courts may be established. (1925, c. 135, s. 23.)

§ 7-331. Article not applicable to certain counties.—The provisions of this article shall not apply to the following counties: Burke, Hyde, Avery, Alexander, Clay, Catawba, Mitchell, Madison, Graham, Swain, Henderson, Duplin, Jackson, Davie, Cherokee, Stokes, Lincoln, Wilkes, Johnson, Person, Pamlico, Watauga, Haywood, Vance, Robeson, Craven, Hoke, Vance, Anson, Pender, Macon, Onslow, Bladen, Alleghany and Scotland: Provided, this article shall not apply to any of the counties of the present Sixteenth and Seventeenth Judicial Districts. (1925, c. 135, s. 24.)

Art. 34. With Jurisdiction Not to Exceed $5000.

§ 7-332. Establishment.—In addition to the plan for a general county court provided for in articles 30 and 31, of this chapter, there may be established by the board of county commissioners in any county, a court of civil jurisdiction, which shall be a court of record and which shall be maintained pursuant to this article, and which court shall be called the county civil court, and shall have civil jurisdiction as provided in this article. (1925, c. 167, s. 1.)

Cross References.—As to forms of oaths required of superior court judges, see §§ 11-6, 11-7, 11-11; Const., Art. VI, s. 7.

§ 7-333. Qualification, election, and term of judge; office.—The county civil court shall be presided over by a judge, who may be an attorney at law, and shall reside and be a qualified elector in the county during his term of office, and shall be permitted to practice law during his term of office. The first judge of the county civil court shall be elected by the board of county commissioners at the time of the establishment of said court, and he shall hold his office until January first, following the next general election of county officers within said county, and until his successor is elected and qualified, and if a vacancy occurs in the office of judge, it shall be filled by the election of a successor for the unexpired term by the board of county commissioners. Each succeeding judge shall be elected by a vote of the qualified electors of the county at the next general election before the expiration of the term of office in the same manner as other county officers are nominated and elected, and shall hold office for a term of four years, beginning January first, following his election and until his successor is elected and qualified, unless said court is abolished. The judge shall qualify by taking and subscribing an oath of office as is now provided by law for a judge of the Superior Court, which shall be filed with the clerk. The salary of said judge shall be fixed by the board of commissioners of the county, which shall not be decreased during the term of office; to be paid in monthly installments by the county. The judge shall be provided by the county board of commissioners with an office and a suitable and convenient room for holding court at the county seat. (1925, c. 167, s. 2.)

§ 7-334. Substitute judge.—When the judge of said county civil court is unable to hold court on account of sickness, absence, disqualification, or other cause, he shall appoint some other person learned in the law, who shall take the same oath and possess the same qualifications as provided for a judge, to act as substitute judge, who shall be invested with all the powers and duties of the judge, and his compensation during his appointment shall be paid by the said judge. (1925, c. 167, s. 3.)

§ 7-335. Terms of court; calendar.—The court shall open for the transaction of business and trial of cases on the first Monday of each month and continue until the matters of the court are disposed of, and it shall be the duty of the judge to prepare a calendar of cases for trial, on which jury cases shall have precedence. (1925, c. 167, s. 4.)

§ 7-336. Clerk of court.—The clerk of the superior court of the county shall be ex officio clerk of the court, and in addition to the salary or fees paid him as clerk of the Superior Court, he shall be paid such additional compensation as the county commissioners of the county may fix to be paid monthly out of the county funds, and the board of county commissioners may authorize and empower to provide for salary or fees for such additional deputies as he may need. The said clerk shall be liable upon his official bond for the discharge of his duties and caring for funds paid to him as clerk, to the same extent as he is bound as clerk of the Superior Court. (1925, c. 167, s. 5.)

§ 7-337. Sheriff.—The sheriff of the county, or his deputies, appointed, shall attend upon the terms of this court in the same manner and with the same power and authority as he does and has in attendance upon the superior court of the county. The county commissioners of the county are authorized to make said sheriff such additional allowances as they may fix for such services, in addition to his salary or fees fixed by law. (1925, c. 167, s. 6.)

§ 7-338. Records; blanks, forms, books, stationery.—The clerk of the court shall keep separate records for the use of the said court to be furnished by the county commissioners, and they shall also provide such necessary blanks, forms, books, and stationery as may be needed by the court, and the clerk shall keep the same in the office of the clerk of the Superior Court. (1925, c. 167, s. 7.)

§ 7-339. Juries.—The jury in said court shall be a jury of twelve and the trial shall be conducted as nearly as possible as in the Superior Court. In all actions the parties shall be deemed to have waived a jury trial, unless demand shall be made therefor, as hereinafter provided, in writing. The plaintiff in filing the complaint, or the defendant at the time of filing an answer, may in the pleadings demand a jury trial, or in cases transferred from the Superior Court to the said court, either party may demand jury trial, in writing, signed by the party making it or his attorney, which must be made at the time of said transfer. Any demand for a jury trial shall be accompanied by a deposit of five dollars ($5.00), to insure the payment of the jury tax, except in cases brought in forma pauperis, provided such demand shall not be used to the prejudice of the party making it. (1925, c. 167, s. 8.)

§ 7-340. Jury list; summons.—It shall be the duty of the board of county commissioners, upon the establishment of a court as herein provided, and every two years thereafter, to prepare a list of jurors, identical with the list prepared for the Superior Court and subject to the same rules and regulations, and mark said jury box as the county civil court box, from which the jury shall be drawn. The judge of the court shall issue the proper writ to the sheriff of the county to summon the jurors for the court in the same manner as juries are ordered and drawn in the Superior Court. (1925, c. 167, s. 9.)

§ 7-341. Talesmen.—The judge shall have the right to call in talesmen to serve as jurors, according to the practice of the superior court, and to direct the sheriff to summon a sufficient number of talesmen to serve during any one week for the proper dispatch of the business of the court. (1925, c. 167, s. 10.)

§ 7-342. Procedure, process, pleadings, etc.—The procedure, practice, processes, pleadings and procuring evidence and judgments shall conform as near as may be to the courts having concurrent jurisdiction with this court. (1925, c. 167, s. 11.)

§ 7-343. Appeals.—Appeals in all actions may be taken from the court to the Superior Court of the county in term time for errors assigned in matters of law in the same manner as is now provided for appeals from the Superior Court to the Supreme Court, with the exception that the record may be typewritten instead of printed, and only two copies shall be required; one for the court and the other for the opposing counsel. The time for taking and prosecuting appeals shall be counted from the end of the calendar month of the court at which such trial is had. It shall be the duty of any judge of the Superior Court holding the courts in any county, where a court is established under the provisions of this article, to allot sufficient and adequate time during each regular term of the Superior Court held in such county for the hearing of appeals from the county civil court of such county. Upon such appeal the Superior Court may either affirm or modify and affirm the judgment of the county civil court or remand the cause for a new trial. From the judgment of the Superior Court an appeal may be taken to the Supreme Court, as is now provided by law. Orders to stay execution on judgments entered in the court shall be the same as in appeals from the Superior Court to the Supreme Court, and judgments of said court may be enforced by execution by the clerk thereof, returnable within twenty days, and transcripts of such judgments may be docketed in the superior court as now provided for judgments of justices of the peace, and when docketed shall, in all respects, be judgments in the superior court as if rendered by the superior court. (1925, c. 167, s. 12.)

§ 7-344. Jurisdiction.—The county civil court shall have jurisdiction only in civil matters, and as follows:

(1) Jurisdiction concurrent with that of the justices of the peace of the county;
(2) Jurisdiction concurrent with the Superior Court in all actions founded on contract wherein the amount demanded shall not exceed the sum of five thousand dollars ($5,000), exclusive of interest and cost;
(3) Jurisdiction concurrent with the Superior Court in all actions not founded upon contract; wherein the amount demanded shall not exceed the sum of five thousand dollars ($5,000), exclusive of interest and cost;
(4) Jurisdiction concurrent with the Superior Court in all actions to try title to lands and to prevent trespass thereon and to restrain waste thereof;
(5) Jurisdiction concurrent with the Superior Court in all actions pending in said court to issue and grant temporary and permanent restraining orders and injunctions. (1925, c. 167, s. 13.)

§ 7-345. Stenographer; fees.—There shall be an official stenographer of the court whose duties and fees shall be the same and taxed as those of the official stenographer of the superior court. (1925, c. 167, s. 14.)

§ 7-346. Disqualification of judge.—Where the judge is disqualified to try any case, it shall be removed for trial to the superior court of the county, in which the court is located or one tenus to the substitute judge. (1925, c. 167, s. 15.)

§ 7-347. Pending cases, transfer.—By consent of plaintiff and defendant any case, within the jurisdiction of the court, pending in the superior court may be transferred to the docket of the county civil court, and there tried. (1925, c. 167, s. 16.)

§ 7-348. Abolishing court.—This court may be abolished by resolution of the board of county commissioners of any county for such county by giving written notice of such intention six months prior to the end of the term of any presiding judge thereof, to become effective at the end of such term of office; and, in case of the abolition of the court, cases then pending shall be transferred to the Superior Court. (1925, c. 167, s. 17.)

§ 7-349. Existing laws not repealed.—This article shall not be construed to repeal any existing laws by which a county court may be created or to effect or repeal any court now or hereafter created under existing laws and shall only be construed to be an additional method by which a county court may be established. (1925, c. 167, s. 18.)

§ 7-350. Article inapplicable to certain counties. —This article shall not apply to the counties of Bladen, Jones, Bertie, Caldwell, Craven, Columbus, Gaston, Henderson, Mitchell, Vance. (1925, c. 167, s. 19.)

Art. 35. With Jurisdiction Not to Exceed $1500. § 7-351. Establishment.—In addition to the plans now provided by law for the establishment of courts inferior to the superior court, there may be established by resolution of a majority of the members of the board of county commissioners of any county in the state a court of civil jurisdiction, which shall be a court of record, shall be § 7-352. Qualification of judge.—The county civil court shall be presided over by a judge, who may be an attorney at law, who shall at the time of appointment and qualification be an elector in and for said county, and he shall not by reason of his term of office be prohibited from practicing the profession of attorney at law in other courts except as to matters pending in connection with or growing out of said county civil court.

§ 7-333. Appointment of judge; vacancies; substitute judge.—After the ratification of this article and the establishment of such court by any county, it shall be the duty of the clerk of the board of commissioners of such county to immediately notify the governor of the state, who shall appoint a judge to preside over such court, and each second year thereafter it shall be the duty of the governor of the state to appoint the judge of each such county civil court, who shall preside over said court; the said judge shall hold office for a term of two years and until his successor is appointed and qualified. Any vacancy occurring in the office of judge shall be filled by the governor of the state.

When the judge of said county civil court is unable to hold court on account of sickness, absence, disqualification or other cause, the governor of the state shall appoint some other person, who shall take an oath and possess the same qualifications as provided for a judge, to act as substitute judge, who shall be invested with all the powers and duties of the judge. At the time of fixing the salary for the judge, the board of county commissioners shall fix a per diem compensation for the substitute judge which shall be paid out of the salary fixed for the judge.

§ 7-354. Oath of judge.—Before entering upon the duties of his office, the said judge shall take and subscribe an oath of office as is now provided by law for the judges of the superior court, and file the same with the clerk of the superior court of said county; and said clerk shall record the same. (1937, c. 437, s. 3.)

Cross References.—As to forms of oaths required of superior court judges, see §§ 11-6, 11-7, 11-11; Const., Art. VI, s. 7.

§ 7-355. Salary of judge.—The salary of said judge shall be fixed by the board of commissioners of the county, shall not be decreased during the term of office, and shall be paid in monthly installments out of the funds of the county. The judge shall be provided by the county board of commissioners with a suitable and convenient room for holding court at the county-seat. (1937, c. 437, s. 3.)

Cross References.—As to forms of oaths required of superior court judges, see §§ 11-6, 11-7, 11-11; Const., Art. VI, s. 7.

§ 7-356. Disqualification of judge.—Where the judge is disqualified by reason of interest in any case, it shall be removed for trial to the superior court of the county. (1937, c. 437, s. 6.)

§ 7-357. Clerk of court.—The clerk of the superior court shall be ex officio clerk of the county civil court established under the provisions of this article, and he shall have as nearly as possible the same duties, powers and responsibilities with reference to the county civil court as he has in his capacity as clerk of the superior court. The said clerk shall be liable upon his official bond for the discharge of his duties and caring for funds paid to him as clerk of the county civil court to the same extent as he is bound as clerk of the superior court. In addition to the salary or fees paid him as clerk of superior court, the clerk of the county civil court shall be paid such additional reasonable compensation as the board of county commissioners may fix; and the board of county commissioners are hereby authorized and empowered to provide the salary of such additional deputy or deputies as he may need. (1937, c. 437, s. 7.)

§ 7-358. Oath of clerks.—The clerks of the county civil court, before entering on the duties of their office, shall take and subscribe, before some officer authorized by law to administer an oath, the oath required under general law, and in addition thereto shall take and subscribe to an oath to perform faithfully all the duties required of them under this article and file such oaths with the register of deeds for the county. (1937, c. 437, s. 8.)

Cross References.—As to forms of oaths required of clerk of the superior court, see §§ 11-6, 11-7, 11-11; Const., Art. VI, s. 7.

§ 7-359. Appointment and removal of deputies.—Each clerk of the county civil court shall have the authority to appoint deputy clerks and the authority to revoke such appointments at will. He shall make a record of each appointment and furnish a transcript of such record to the register of deeds, who shall record the same in the record of deeds and make a cross-index thereof. When the appointment of any deputy clerk is revoked, the clerk shall write on the margin of the records of such appointment the word "revoked" and the date of revocation, and sign his name thereto. (1937, c. 437, s. 9.)

§ 7-360. Oath and power of deputies.—If any deputy clerk shall be appointed as provided in this article, he shall take and subscribe to the oaths prescribed for clerks. Each deputy clerk appointed as herein provided shall have as nearly as possible the same powers and duties, with reference to the county civil court, as a deputy clerk of the superior court has with reference to the superior court. (1937, c. 437, s. 10.)

§ 7-361. Sheriff.—The sheriff of the county, or his deputies appointed, shall attend upon this court in the same manner and with the same power and authority as he does and has in attendance upon the superior court of the county. The board of county commissioners of the county are authorized to make said sheriff such additional allowances as they may deem necessary and proper for such services, in addition to his salary or fees now fixed by law. (1937, c. 437, s. 11.)

§ 7-362. Stenographer.—The board of county commissioners shall appoint an official stenographer of the court, whose duties shall be the same as those of the official stenographer of the superior court, and the compensation shall be fixed and paid by the board of county commissioners. (1937, c. 437, s. 12.)
§ 7-363. Jury trial.—In the trial of actions in said court any party is entitled to the right of trial by jury as is provided in the trial of causes in the superior court, unless said right of trial by jury shall be waived as hereinafter provided. (1937, c. 437, s. 13.)

§ 7-364. Waiver of jury trial; jurisdiction concurrent with superior court.—In those cases in which written pleadings are required to be filed, the parties shall be conclusively presumed to have expressly waived their right to trial by jury, unless at the time of the filing of the complaint or petition the plaintiff, in writing, demands a jury trial; or, at the time of filing the answer or other pleading which raises an issue of fact, the defendant or other party filing such pleading demands, in writing, a jury trial. (1937, c. 437, s. 13(a).)

§ 7-366. Jury trial in cases instituted in superior court or before magistrate.—In those cases which were or may hereafter be instituted before a justice of the peace and removed or appealed to this court, and in those cases which were or may hereafter be instituted in superior court and removed to this court, a jury trial will be conclusively presumed to have been expressly waived unless the party desiring a trial by jury shall make a demand therefor, in writing, at any time before the case is called for trial; in which event the number of the jury shall be as herein elsewhere provided. (1937, c. 437, s. 13(c).)

§ 7-367. Jury of six; demand and deposit for jury of twelve.—The jury of said court shall be a jury of six unless, at any time before the calling of the cause for trial, either party, who has not waived the right to trial by jury by failing to demand a jury trial in apt time as provided herein, or otherwise, demands a trial by a jury of twelve, in which event a jury of twelve shall be impaneled: Provided, that in those cases in which a jury of twelve is demanded the party shall, at the time of making the demand, pay to the clerk of said court a deposit of five dollars to insure the payment of the jury tax: Provided further, that where a party making such demand for a jury of twelve makes affidavit and satisfies the judge or clerk of said court that he is unable to make the deposit, such party shall not be required to make the same. The deposit for jury of twelve shall be returned to the party making it when the jury tax is paid by the losing party against whom the costs are taxed. (1937, c. 437, s. 13(d).)

§ 7-368. Judge may impanel jury on own motion.—The judge of said court, when in his opinion the ends of justice would be best served by submitting an issue or issues to the jury, may call a jury of his own motion and submit to it such issue or issues as he may deem material. (1937, c. 437, s. 13(e).)

§ 7-369. Drawing juries; summonses of jurors; pay of jurors.—The regular jurors shall be drawn from the superior court jury box; the drawing and summoning of said jurors shall be in the same manner as jurors are drawn and summoned for the superior court: Provided, however, only twelve jurors shall be drawn and summoned for any one week of court unless the judge specifies that a larger number shall be drawn. The judge of each county civil court, at least thirty days in advance, shall notify the chairman of the board of county commissioners when a jury will be needed.

Jurors shall receive the same compensation as is provided by law for jurors serving in the superior court, to be paid out of the treasury of said county on presentation of a ticket duly issued by the clerk of said court. (1937, c. 437, s. 14.)

§ 7-370. Talesmen.—The judge shall have the right to call in talesmen to serve as jurors, according to the practice of the superior court, and to direct the sheriff to summon a sufficient number of talesmen to serve during any one week or a portion thereof for the proper dispatch of the business of the court. (1937, c. 437, s. 15.)

§ 7-371. When court opens; terms of court.—The county civil courts shall be open for the transaction of business within their jurisdiction whenever matters before the court require attention, except for the trial of issues of fact requiring a jury and the trial of contested causes wherein the county civil court is exercising jurisdiction concurrent with that of the superior court, which shall be heard in term time.

The judge of the county civil court is hereby authorized to fix the terms of said court upon consulting with the clerk of the court and the members of the bar of the county. (1937, c. 437, s. 16.)

§ 7-372. Jurisdiction.—The county civil court shall have jurisdiction only in civil matters and as follows:
(1) Jurisdiction concurrent with that of the justices of the peace of the county;
(2) Jurisdiction concurrent with the superior court in all actions founded on contract wherein the amount demanded shall not exceed the sum of one thousand five hundred dollars, exclusive of interest and costs;
(3) Jurisdiction concurrent with the superior court in all actions not founded on contract wherein the amount demanded shall not exceed the sum of one thousand five hundred dollars, exclusive of interests and costs;
(4) Jurisdiction concurrent with the superior court in all actions to try title to lands, to prevent trespass thereon, and to restrain waste thereof wherein the value of the land does not exceed the sum of one thousand five hundred dollars;
(5) Jurisdiction concurrent with the superior court in all actions and proceedings for divorce and alimony, or either, and to make such orders respecting the care, custody, tuition and maintenance of the minor children of the marriage as may be proper. (1937, c. 437, s. 17.)

§ 7-373. Appeals from justice of the peace.—In all cases where there is an appeal from a justice of the peace of a county wherein a county civil court has been established under the provision of this article, such appeal shall be first heard de novo in the county civil court in the manner provided herein for hearing causes within the jurisdiction of a justice of the peace originating in the said county civil court. Said appeals shall be docketed in the county civil court within the same time limit and in the same manner as such appeals are now required to be docketed in the superior court. (1937, c. 437, s. 18.)

§ 7-374. Removal of cause before justice of peace.—When, upon affidavit made before entering upon the trial of any cause before any justice of the peace of said county, it shall appear proper for said cause to be removed for trial to some other justice of the peace, as is now provided by law, said cause shall be removed for trial to the said county civil court. (1937, c. 437, s. 19.)

§ 7-375. Pending cases, transfer.—By written consent of plaintiff and defendant filed with the clerk of superior court, any case within the jurisdiction of the county civil court, now or hereafter pending in the superior court, may be transferred to the docket of the county civil court and there tried; if a jury trial is desired, it shall be expressed in the agreement to transfer the case; otherwise, the right to trial by jury shall be conclusively presumed to have been expressly waived. (1937, c. 437, s. 20.)

§ 7-376. Records; blanks, forms, books, stationery.—The clerk of the county civil court shall keep separate records for use of the said court to be furnished by the county commissioners, and they shall also provide such necessary blanks, forms, books, and stationery and office equipment as may be needed by the court; the clerk shall keep the same in the office of the clerk of such court. (1937, c. 437, s. 21.)

§ 7-377. Processes; pleadings; procedure, etc.—When the county civil court is exercising jurisdiction concurrent with that of the superior court, the rules of processes, pleadings, procedure, practice, and procuring evidence and judgment shall conform as nearly as possible to those of the superior court.

When the county civil court is exercising jurisdiction concurrent with that of justices of the peace, actions shall be commenced in the county civil court by summons issued and signed by the clerk or deputy; and orders to seize property in attachment and subpoena may be issued by the clerk or deputy and the other rules of processes, pleadings, procedure, practice, and procuring evidence and judgment shall conform as nearly as possible to those of the courts of the justices of the peace of the county. (1937, c. 437, s. 22.)

§ 7-378. Appeal to superior court; time for perfecting appeal; record on appeal; briefs; judgment; appeal to supreme court.—Appeals in actions may be taken from the county civil court within ten days from the date of rendition of judgment to the superior court of the county in term time, for errors assigned in matters of law or legal inference, in the same manner as is provided for appeals from the superior court to the supreme court, except as follows:

(1) The appellant shall cause a copy of the statement of case on appeal to be served on the respondent within thirty days from the entry of the appeal taken, and the respondent, within fifteen days after such service, shall return the copy with his approval or specific amendments endorsed or attached; if the case be approved by the respondent, it shall be filed with the clerk as a part of the record; if not returned with objections within the time prescribed, it shall be deemed approved: Provided, that the judge trying the case shall have the power, in the exercise of his discretion, to enlarge the time in which to serve statement of case on appeal and exceptions thereto or counter statement of case.

(2) The appellant shall file one typewritten copy of the statement of case on appeal, as settled, containing the exceptions and assignments of error, which, together with the original record, shall be transmitted by the clerk of the county civil court to the superior court as the complete record on appeal in said court.

(3) The record in the case on appeal to the superior court must be docketed in the superior court within ten days after the date of settling the case on appeal. If the appellant shall fail to perfect his appeal within the prescribed time, the appellee may file with the clerk of superior court a certificate of the clerk of court from which the appeal comes showing the names of the parties thereto, the time when the judgment and appeal were taken, the name of the appellant and the date of the settling of case on appeal, if any has been settled, with his motion to docket and dismiss said appeal at appellant's cost, which motion shall be allowed at the first regular term or any succeeding regular term of the superior court.

(4) Appellant shall file one typewritten brief with the clerk of superior court, and shall immediately mail or deliver to appellee's counsel a carbon typewritten copy thereof. If appellant's brief has not been filed with the clerk of superior court, and no copy has been delivered to appellee's counsel within three weeks from the date of settling the case on appeal, the appeal will be dismissed on motion of appellee at the next regular term or any succeeding regular term of the superior court, unless for good cause shown the court shall give appellant further time to file his brief.

(5) Appellee shall file one typewritten brief and a carbon copy thereof with the clerk of superior court within five weeks from the date of settling the case on appeal; the copy of same will be furnished counsel for appellant by the clerk of superior court, on application. On failure of the appellee to file his brief by the time required, the case will be heard and determined at the next regular term or any succeeding regular term of the superior court without argument from appellee, unless for good cause shown the court shall give appellee further time to file his brief.

(6) It shall be the duty of any judge of the superior court holding court in any county where a court is established under the provisions of this article, to allot sufficient and adequate time during each regular term of the superior court held in such county for the hearing of appeals from the county civil court of such county: Provided, no such appeal shall be heard until five days has ex-
be transferred to the superior court and there the abolition of the court, cases then pending shall at the end of such term of office; and in case of any presiding judge thereof, to become effective intention six months prior to the end of the term for such county by giving written notice of such clerk and paid over monthly to the treasurer of the county as county funds to be dealt with by the board of county commissioners of any county abolished by resolution of county commissioners. (1931, c. 89, s. 2.)

§ 7-388. Appointment of judge; associate judge. —The court shall be presided over by a judge, who may be licensed to practice law, and who, at the time of his election or appointment, shall be a qualified elector in the county. The board of commissioners of the county shall appoint such judge, whose term of office shall be two (2) years from the date of his appointment, and until his successor shall have been appointed and qualified, or until the court shall be abolished, as herein provided. In the event of a vacancy by death or resignation, appointment shall be for the unexpired term of the previous judge. The salary of said judge shall be fixed by the board of commissioners of the county, and the same shall be paid monthly out of the general county fund. In each county in which the court is established, under the provisions of this article, there shall be appointed by the board of commissioners of said county an associate judge, who shall preside as judge of the county court, and with like authority of the regular judge, in the event of sickness or absence from the county of the regular judge, or in the event that the regular judge should be disqualified by relationship to the parties in interest, or from other cause. The associate judge shall take the same oath of office required by the judge of the county court, and shall be paid such compensation for his services as may be provided by the board of commissioners. The compensation which shall be paid to the associate judge
§ 7-389. Appointment of prosecuting attorney.
There shall be a prosecuting attorney of said County Court, to be known as the prosecuting attorney, who shall appear for the State and prosecute all criminal cases being tried in said court, and for his services he shall be paid such salary as may be fixed by the board of commissioners, to be paid monthly from the general county fund. The board of commissioners shall appoint such prosecuting attorney, whose term of office shall be two (2) years from the date of his appointment, and until his successor shall have been appointed and qualified, or until the court shall be abolished, as herein provided, except in the event of a vacancy in the office of prosecuting attorney, either by death or resignation, the appointment to fill such vacancy shall be for the unexpired term of the previous prosecuting attorney. (1931, c. 89, s. 6.)

§ 7-390. Clerk of court; term of office; fees; bond; sheriff.
In those counties in which the clerk of the superior court and sheriff are paid fees and not salaries, such clerks and sheriffs shall receive the same fees for services rendered in a county court as they would have received had such services been rendered in the superior court. The Clerk of the Superior Court shall, ex-officio, be Clerk of the County Court, and in all counties in which the Clerk of the Superior Court is paid fees, the Clerk of the Superior Court shall have the right and privilege to resign as Clerk of the County Court, and in the event of such resignation the board of commissioners shall have the authority to appoint a Clerk of the County Court, whose term of office shall be two (2) years, and whose term of office shall expire at the time fixed for the termination of the office of the judge of said court, and the appointment of the Clerk of the County Court shall thereafter be made by the board of commissioners at the same time when the appointment of the judge of said court is made by said board of commissioners. He will receive the same fees for services rendered as clerks of the Superior Courts. In all counties in which the Clerks of the Superior Court are paid salaries the board of commissioners are authorized, in their discretion, to provide additional compensation to such clerks for their services rendered as Clerk of the County Court.
In the event that the Clerk of the Superior Court shall resign as Clerk of the County Court as herein provided, upon the appointment of a Clerk to the County Court, he shall be required to enter into a bond in such sum as may be fixed by the board of commissioners for the faithful performance of the duties of his office. (1931, c. 89, s. 7.)

Local Modification.—Lee: 1941, c. 330.

§ 7-391. Oath of judge; prosecuting attorney.
The judge of the county court, before entering upon the duties of his office, shall take the prescribed oath required of judges of the Superior Court, and such oath shall be recorded by the Clerk of the Superior Court of the county. The prosecuting attorney, before entering upon the duties of his office, shall take the prescribed oath required of solicitors of the Superior Court, and said oath shall be recorded by the Clerk of the Superior Court of the county. (1931, c. 89, s. 8.)

Cross References.—As to forms of oaths, see §§ 11-6, 11-7, 11-11; Const. Art. VI, s. 7.

§ 7-392. Court seal. — The County Criminal Court shall have a seal with the impression "County Court of ..........County," which shall be used in attestation of all writs, warrants, or other processes, acts, or judgments of said court whenever required, and in the same manner and in the same effect as the seal of other courts of record in the State of North Carolina. (1931, c. 89, s. 9.)

§ 7-393. Jurisdiction; appeal; judgment docket.
The jurisdiction of the County Court shall be as follows:
(a) Said court shall have final exclusive and original jurisdiction of all criminal offenses committed in the county below the grade of a felony, as now defined by law, except as to offenses over which justices of the peace have final jurisdiction, and all such offenses whereof said court is given jurisdiction are hereby declared to be petty misdemeanors.
(b) To punish for contempt to the same extent and in the same manner allowed by law to the Superior Court of this State; to issue writs ad testificandum and other processes to compel the attendance of witnesses and to enforce the orders and judgments of the court in the same manner allowed by law to the Superior Court of this State.
(c) The judge of the County Court shall have all the power and jurisdiction and authority now conferred by law upon the Superior Court to sentence any person who pleads guilty or who is convicted in said court of a misdemeanor for which the punishment prescribed by law is imprisonment, to be imprisoned in the common jail of the county and to be assigned to work on the public roads under the supervision of the state highway and public works commission and the clerk of said court shall issue commitments therefor in the same manner as now provided by law for the Clerks of the Superior Court.
(d) Any person convicted in said court shall have the right of appeal to the Superior Court of said county, and upon such appeal the trial in the Superior Court shall be de novo.
(e) The County Court shall have exclusive preliminary jurisdiction over all offenses whereof exclusive jurisdiction is not given to said court, and shall hear and determine all warrants charging such offenses, and in the event that the court finds probable cause, shall bind the defendant over to the Superior Court, requiring such bond as the court may fix for the appearance of the defendant at the next ensuing term of the Superior Court of said county for the trial of criminal causes; and all justices of the peace is-
§ 7-394. Jury trials.—In all cases coming before the said County Court a jury may be demanded by either the State or the defendant, or the court may, upon its own motion, order a jury trial in any case where, in the judgment of the court, the ends of justice would be better met by submitting the case to a jury. The board of commissioners of the county in which said County Court is established are hereby required to furnish the clerk of said County Court with a list of jurors of said county, and in any case where a jury trial is to be had a jury of twelve (12) shall be drawn from the said list of jurors so furnished by the board of commissioners. The names of the jurors shall be drawn from the box as now provided in cases in the Superior Court in drawing a special venire: Provided, however, the defendant may waive a jury drawn from the box, in which event the court shall direct the sheriff to summons bystanders or tales jurors to serve as jurors in said cases, and the judge of the County Court shall have like authority as is now existing by the judge of the Superior Court to order the summons of tales jurors to serve in said court where the jurors drawn from the box shall be legally challenged or shall be otherwise disqualified to serve as such jurors. The causes of challenge of jurors in the County Court shall be the same as now provided for challenges of jurors in the Superior Court. The fees of jurors shall be the same as now paid jurors in the Superior Court, and shall be paid from the general county fund, and a jury tax of fifteen ($15.00) dollars in such cases shall be taxed in the bill of costs. (1931, c. 89, s. 11.)

§ 7-395. Process.—The warrants, subpoenas, and other processes of law issued by said court shall be directed to the sheriff or other lawful officer of the county to which said process is directed, and service thereof shall be lawfully made when made by the sheriff, deputy sheriff, of the county, or any other constable of said county, or by any rural policeman of said county, or municipal officer, and all warrants and subpoenas and other processes issued by the clerk of said county, when attested by the seal of said county, shall run anywhere in the State of North Carolina, and shall be executed by all officers in the same manner and way as processes now issued by the Superior Court. (1931, c. 89, s. 12.)

§ 7-396. Duties of judge; bond on appeal or on being bound over.—The judge of the County Court shall preside over said court and shall direct and determine all actions coming before him, the jurisdiction of which is conferred by this article, and in all cases where the defendant or defendants shall crave an appeal to the superior court, and in cases where the court has preliminary jurisdiction, and probable cause is found, the defendant shall be required to give bond, with sufficient surety, to be fixed by the court, conditioned upon the defendant’s appearance at the next ensuing term of the Superior Court of said county for the trial of criminal causes, and in default thereof the court shall commit the defendant to the common jail of said county until said defendant shall have given bond or shall have been otherwise discharged according to law, except in capital cases, when the court shall find probable cause, he shall bind the defendant over to the superior court without bond. (1931, c. 89, s. 13.)

§ 7-397. When prosecuting attorney’s fee taxed in bill of costs.—In all cases where the defendant shall plead guilty, or shall be convicted, there shall be taxed in the bill of costs a fee of eight dollars ($8.00) in lieu of prosecuting attorney’s fee, which shall be paid by the defendant, and shall be paid into the general county fund. In the event the defendant is confined to jail or confined to jail and assigned to work on the public roads such fee shall not be taxed as a part of the cost. (1931, c. 89, s. 14.)

§ 7-398. Complete record to be kept by clerk; docket.—It shall be the duty of the clerk of said court to keep an accurate account and true record of all costs, fines, penalties, forfeitures, and punishments of said court imposed under the provisions of this article, and said record shall show the name of each offender, the name of the offense, the date of the hearing of the trial, and the punishment imposed, and the board of commissioners shall provide dockets for recording all of the processes issued by said court, which shall conform to the docket kept by the clerk of the Superior Court, and shall also provide proper files to properly keep a record of all cases which shall be disposed of in said court, and the disposition that has been made of the same. (1931, c. 89, s. 15.)

§ 7-399. Warrants returnable to court.—All warrants for crimes whereof the County Court shall have jurisdiction may be issued by any Justice of the Peace of said county, or mayor of any incorporated town, as provided by law, and shall be made returnable before the County Court at the next ensuing term thereof. (1931, c. 89, s. 16.)

§ 7-400. Service fees to officers except where they are on salary.—The cost of issuing and serving warrants, subpoenas, and other processes of law by said court shall be payable to the officers issuing or serving them, and shall be payable to the clerk of said court as is now done in cases
§ 7-401. Regular and special terms; place of sessions.—There shall be held a regular term of the County Court established under the provisions of this article on the second Tuesday in each month: Provided, however, special terms may be held at any time by order of the judge of said court for the purpose of disposing of cases where pleas of guilty shall be entered and for the trial of cases where the defendants are confined to prison. At all regular terms the court shall continue in session until all cases are tried, continued, or otherwise disposed of according to law: Provided, however, the board of county commissioners in any county in which a County Court is established under the provisions of this article by proper resolution duly entered upon the minutes of said board, may, in the exercise of their discretion, fix other days than the days provided in this article on which regular terms of said court may be held: Provided, further, when a regular term of the County Court to be held under the terms fixed by this article shall conflict with a term of the Superior Court in said county, the regular term of the County Court shall be held on the first Tuesday following the termination of said term of the Superior Court, as fixed by law. All sessions of said County Court shall be held in the court house of the county in which said county is established. (1931, c. 89, s. 18.)

§ 7-402. Judge and prosecuting attorney may practice law in other courts.—In the event of the appointment of a licensed lawyer as judge or prosecuting attorney of said County Court, nothing in this article shall prevent the said judge or the prosecuting attorney appointed under the provisions of this article from practicing law in matters in which he is in no way connected by reason of his said office, or in courts in the State in matters which have not been heard or will not be heard in the County Court of which he is an officer. (1931, c. 89, s. 19.)

§ 7-403. Other County Court Acts not affected.—Nothing in this article shall be construed to repeal, alter, or amend any law heretofore enacted authorizing the establishment of county courts in the several counties of the State, but this article shall be construed to be in addition to and supplemental to such acts, and any court established under the provisions of this article shall be restricted and limited to all the provisions herein contained. (1931, c. 89, s. 20.)

§ 7-404. Certain counties excepted from provisions of article.—This article shall not apply to the counties of Alexander, Alleghany, Ashe, Beaufort, Bertie, Bladen, Brunswick, Buncombe, Camden, Caswell, Catawba, Chowan, Clay, Cleveland, Craven, Cumberland, Currituck, Dare, Davidson, Davie, Duplin, Durham, Edgecombe, Franklin, Greene, Harnett, Haywood, Henderson, Hertford, Hoke, Hyde, Iredell, Jackson, Johnston, Lincoln, Macon, Madison, Montgomery, New Hanover, Northampton, Orange, Pamlico, Pasquotank, Perquimans, Pitt, Randolph, Robeson, Rockingham, Rowan, Sampson, Scotland, Stanly, Surry, Swain, Transylvania, Vance, Wake, Warren, Watauga, Wayne, Wilkes, Yancey and Richmond. (1931, c. 89, s. 21, c. 270; 1935, c. 8; 1939, c. 41.)

Editor's Note.—Cabarrus county was omitted by the amendment of 1931.

The 1939 amendment omitted Yadkin county.

SUBCHAPTER X. SPECIAL COUNTY COURTS.

Art. 37. Special County Courts.

§ 7-405. Establishment upon resolution of county commissioners.—In addition to the plans now provided for the establishment of courts inferior to the superior court, there may be established by resolution of all of the members of the board of county commissioners of any county in the state a court of criminal and civil jurisdiction, which shall be a court of record and shall be called a special county court and shall have criminal and civil jurisdiction as herein provided: Provided, that the board of county commissioners may by proper resolution, establish a special county court having only criminal jurisdiction or only civil jurisdiction or having both criminal and civil jurisdiction as herein provided. (1939, c. 357, s. 1.)

§ 7-406. Qualifications of judge and solicitor.—The judge of said special county court shall be an elector in and for said county at the time of appointment and qualification, and shall be a man of good moral character. The solicitor of the county shall be an elector in and for said county, shall be a man of good moral character and a licensed attorney at law. (1939, c. 357, s. 2.)

§ 7-407. Appointment of judge.—After the establishment of such court by any county, it shall be the duty of the clerk of the board of commissioners of such county to immediately notify the governor of the state, who shall appoint a judge to preside over such court, and each second year thereafter it shall be the duty of the governor of the state to appoint the judge of each such county court who shall preside over said court, and the said judge shall hold office for a term of two years, and until his successor is appointed and qualified. Any vacancy occurring in the office of judge shall be filled by the governor of the state. (1939, c. 357, s. 3.)

§ 7-408. Appointment of prosecuting attorney and clerk.—The board of commissioners of any county availing itself of the provisions of this article may elect or appoint and for the same term as herein provided for the appointment of the judge of this court, a prosecuting attorney and clerk for said court. (1939, c. 357, s. 4.)

Local Modification.—Richmond: 1941, c. 60, ss. 3, 4; 1943, c. 254, ss. 1, 4.

§ 7-409. Appointment of acting attorney or judge in absence of regular official.—Whenever, for any reason, the prosecuting attorney is temporarily absent, the judge shall appoint some other practicing attorney in the county to act as prosecuting attorney, and in case of temporary absence of the judge, either on account of sickness or other cause, the judge of said county shall appoint a judge to hold court during the absence of the regular judge.

§ 7-410. Compensation of judge and solicitor.

—The salary of the judge and solicitor and for any reason, the prosecuting attorney is temporarily absent, the judge shall appoint some prosecuting attorney, and in case of temporary absence of the judge, either on account of sickness or other cause, the judge of said county shall appoint a judge to hold court during the absence of the regular judge.

Local Modification—Richmond: 1941, c. 60, s. 5.

§ 7-411. Oaths of judge and solicitor.—Before entering upon the duties of office, the judge and solicitor shall take and subscribe an oath as is now provided by law for the judges and solicitors of the superior court, and file the same with the clerk of the superior court of the county, and the clerk shall record the same.

(1939, c. 357, s. 7.)

Cross References.—As to forms of oaths, see §§ 11-6, 11-7, 11-11; Const., Art. VI, § 7.

§ 7-412. Appointment of temporary judge, etc.

—Where the judge is disqualified by reason of interest in any case, he may appoint a temporary judge to hear said case, or said case may be removed to the superior court for trial in the county.

(1939, c. 357, s. 8.)

§ 7-413. Duties and liabilities of clerk.—The clerk of the special county court established under the provisions of this article shall have as nearly as possible the same duties, powers, and responsibilities with reference to the special county court as a clerk of the superior court. The said clerk shall be liable upon his official bond for the discharge of his duties and caring for funds paid to him as clerk of the special county court to the same extent as a clerk of the superior court.

§ 7-414. Oath of office of clerk.—The clerk of the special county court before entering on the duties of the office, shall take and subscribe, before some officer authorized by law to administer an oath, the oath required under general law, and in addition thereto shall take and subscribe to an oath to perform faithfully all the duties required of him under this article and file such oath with the register of deeds for the county.

(1939, c. 357, s. 10.)

Cross References.—As to forms of oaths, see §§ 11-6, 11-7, 11-11; Const., Art. VI, § 7.

§ 7-415. Attendance upon court by sheriff or deputies.—The sheriff of the county, or his deputies, shall attend upon this court in the same manner and with the same power and authority as he does and has in attendance upon the superior court of the county.

§ 7-416. Appointment of court stenographer.

—In the trial of any case in the special county court where a stenographer is deemed necessary, the judge of said court shall appoint a stenographer, and the fees for such work shall be taxed as part of the court cost in said case.

§ 7-417. Right of jury trial in civil actions.

—In the trial of civil actions in said court, any party is entitled to the right of trial by jury as is provided in the trial of causes in the superior court, unless said right of trial by jury shall be waived as hereinafter provided.

§ 7-418. Jury trial where no written pleadings are filed.—In those cases in which no written pleadings are required, the parties shall be conclusively presumed to have expressly waived their right to trial by jury, unless at the time of the issuance of the summons, the plaintiff, or petitioner, in writing, demands a jury trial, or the defendant at any time before the commencement of the trial, in writing, demands a jury trial.

§ 7-419. Jury trial where written pleadings are filed.—In those cases in which written pleadings are required to be filed, the parties shall be conclusively presumed to have expressly waived their right to trial by jury, unless at the time of the filing of the complaint or petition, the plaintiff, in writing, demands a jury trial, or unless at the time of the filing of the answer, or other pleading raising an issue of fact, the defendant or other party filing such pleading demands, in writing, a jury trial.

§ 7-420. Jury trial where cases appealed or removed.—In those cases which were or may hereafter be instituted before a justice of the peace and removed or appealed to this court, and in those cases which were or may hereafter be instituted in superior court, and removed to this court, a jury trial shall be conclusively presumed to have been expressly waived unless the party desiring a trial by jury shall make a demand therefor, in writing, at any time before the case is called for trial, in which event the number of the jury shall be as herein elsewhere provided.

§ 7-421. Number of jurors; deposit on demand for jury trial.—The jury of said court shall be a jury of six in all civil cases where a jury is demanded: Provided, that in those cases in which a jury is demanded the party shall at the time of making the demand pay to the clerk of the said court a deposit of six dollars ($6.00) to insure the payment of the jury tax: Provided, further, that where a party making such demand for a jury trial makes affidavit and satisfies the judge or clerk of the said court that he is unable to make the deposit, such party shall not be required to make the same. The deposit for a jury shall be returned to the party making it when the cost is paid by the losing party, against whom the cost is taxed.

§ 7-422. Continuance of trial upon demand for jury; drawing and summoning of jury; compensation of jurors.—When a trial by jury is demanded in civil or criminal cases, the judge shall continue the cause until a day to be set, and the judge, together with the attorneys representing all parties, shall immediately proceed to the office of the register of deeds of the county and cause to be drawn a jury of twelve, observing as nearly as may be the rule for drawing a jury for the superior court. The judge shall issue the proper writ to the sheriff of the county, commanding him to summon the jurors so drawn to appear at the court on the day set for the trial of the action. Such jurors shall receive the same compensation as is provided by law for jurors serving in the superior court, and are to be paid out of the treasury of said county on presentation of a ticket duly issued by the clerk of said court. (1939, c. 357, s. 18.)

§ 7-423. Jury trials in criminal actions.—In all criminal actions, upon demand of the defendant or the prosecuting attorney, a jury of six shall be summoned in the same manner as provided for summoning jurors in civil actions. (1939, c. 357, s. 19.)

§ 7-424. Talesmen may serve as jurors.—In all criminal and civil actions, the judge shall have the right to call in talesmen to serve as jurors, according to the practice of the superior court, and to direct the sheriff to call in a sufficient number of talesmen to serve during any one week or part of a week for the proper dispatch of the business of the court. (1939, c. 357, s. 20.)

§ 7-425. Sessions of court.—The special county court shall be open for the trial of all criminal cases of which it has jurisdiction at least one day each of week, and shall also be open at least once each month for the trial of all civil causes of which it has jurisdiction, said days to be fixed by the board of county commissioners, and shall continue its session from day to day until all business is transacted by trial, continuance or otherwise. The session of the court shall be held in the county court house or other place within the county provided by the board of county commissioners for that purpose. Special sessions of the court may be called by the judge as the necessities may require. (1939, c. 357, s. 21.)

§ 7-426. Civil jurisdiction of court.—The special county court shall have jurisdiction in civil matters as follows:
1. Jurisdiction concurrent with that of the justices of the peace of the county.
2. Jurisdiction concurrent with the superior court in all actions founded on contracts wherein the amount demanded shall not exceed the sum of fifteen hundred dollars ($1500.00), exclusive of interest and cost.
3. Jurisdiction concurrent with that of the superior court in all actions not founded on contract wherein the amount demanded shall not exceed the sum of one thousand dollars ($1000.00), exclusive of interest and cost.
4. Jurisdiction concurrent with the superior court in all attachment and claim and delivery proceedings wherein the value of the property demanded does not exceed the sum of one thousand dollars ($1000.00), exclusive of interest and cost. (1939, c. 357, s. 22.)

§ 7-427. Procedure for hearing of appeals from courts of justices of the peace.—In all cases where there is an appeal from a justice of the peace of a county wherein a special county court has been established under the provisions of this article, such appeal shall be first heard de novo in the special county court. All appeals from justices of the peace in civil cases shall be heard in the same manner provided herein for hearing causes within the jurisdiction of a justice of the peace originating in the said special county court, and said appeals shall be docketed in the special county court within the same time limit and in the same manner as such appeals are now required to be docketed in the superior court. (1939, c. 357, s. 23.)

§ 7-428. Transfer of cases from superior court. —By written consent of a plaintiff and defendant filed with the clerk of the superior court, any civil case within the jurisdiction of the special county court, now or hereafter pending, in the superior court, may be transferred to the docket of the special county court, and there tried. If a jury trial is desired, it shall be expressed in the agreement to transfer the case; otherwise the right to trial by jury shall be conclusively presumed to have been expressly waived. (1939, c. 357, s. 24.)

§ 7-429. Separate records, equipment, etc., furnished by commissioners.—The clerk of the special county court shall keep separate records for use of said court to be furnished by the county commissioners, and they shall also provide necessary blanks, forms, books, and such stationery and office equipment as may be needed by the court. The clerk shall keep the same in the office of the clerk of such court. (1939, c. 357, s. 25.)

§ 7-430. Procedure in civil actions.—In civil cases when the special county court is exercising jurisdiction concurrent with that of the superior court, as now established, the rules of procedure, pleadings, practice, and admission of evidence, and judgment shall conform as nearly as possible to those of the superior court. In civil cases where the special county court is exercising jurisdiction concurrent with that of justices of the peace, actions shall be commenced in the special county court by summons issued and signed by the clerk or deputy, and orders to seize property in claim and delivery proceedings, warrants of attachment and subpoena may be issued by the clerk or deputy and the other rules of processes, pleadings, procedure, practice and procuring evidence and judgments shall conform as nearly as possible to those of the courts of the justices of the peace. (1939, c. 357, s. 26.)

§ 7-431. Orders to stay execution; judgments. —Orders to stay execution on judgments entered in the special county court shall be the same as in appeals from the superior court to the supreme court. Judgments of the county court shall be docketed in the judgment docket of the superior court, as is provided for judgments of the superior court, and the judgments when docketed shall in all respects be judgments of the superior court in the same manner and to the same extent as if rendered by the superior court, and shall be subject to the same statute of limitations and the statutes relating to the revival of judgments in the superior court and issuing executions thereon. (1939, c. 357, s. 27.)

§ 7-432. Seal of court.—The county court shall have a seal with the impression "County Special Court", which shall be used in attestation of all summons, other processes, etc., acts, or judgments of said court whenever required, and in the same manner and to the same effect as the seal of other courts of record in the state of North Carolina. (1939, c. 357, s. 28.)
§ 7-438. Criminal cases bound over by justices of the peace.—In all criminal cases heard by a justice of the peace or other committing magistrate of the county against any person for any offense included within the exclusive jurisdiction of the special county court as provided in this article, and in which probable cause of guilt is found, such person shall be bound in a personal recognizance or surety to appear at the next succeeding session of the special county court of the county, for trial; and in default of such surety such person shall be committed to the common jail of the county to await a trial: Provided, that in the event any justice of the peace or other committing magistrate shall bind over to the superior court any person accused of a crime within the jurisdiction of the special county court, the clerk of the superior court shall, upon his own motion, transfer all papers in the case to the special county court, and the case shall then stand for trial at the next succeeding term of said special county court, as if the defendant had been bound over to the said court in the first instance: Provided, further, that in the event any justice of the peace or other committing magistrate shall bind over to the special county court any person charged with an offense beyond the jurisdiction of said court, the said judge shall cause the accused person to enter into a new bond with sufficient surety for his appearance at the next succeeding term of the superior court of the county, and shall transmit all papers in the case to the said superior court, but this shall be done without additional cost to the accused person. (1939, c. 357, s. 34.)

§ 7-439. Notice to accused person and surety in cases transferred from superior court.—Whenever the clerk of the superior court shall transfer the papers in any case from the superior court to a special county court, he shall at the same time issue a notice to the accused person and his surety, informing them that the cause has been so transferred and requiring the accused person to appear at the next succeeding term of said special county court for trial, and, upon the service of said notice upon the accused person and his surety, at least five days before the beginning of the next succeeding term of the special county court, the case shall stand for trial at said term and the bond given by the accused person for his appearance at the next term of the superior court shall in all respects be valid and binding to compel the appearance of the accused person at the said next succeeding term of said special county court, and in case said notice is not served on the accused person and his surety at least five days before the beginning of the next succeeding term of the special county court, then the case shall not be tried without the consent of the accused person until the following term of the special county court. (1939, c. 357, s. 33.)

CHAPTER 8. EVIDENCE

§ 7-441. Punishment upon conviction.—Whenever any person shall be convicted or plead guilty of any offense of which the court has final jurisdiction the judge may sentence him to the common jail of the county in which the court shall be held, and assign him to work on the public roads, under the supervision of the state highway and public works commission: Provided, that in case the person so convicted or pleading guilty shall be a woman or an infant of immature years, then the judge may assign him or her to the county workhouse, reformatory, or other penal institution located in the county; or if there be none, any similar institution that may be located outside of the county to which judges of the superior court are authorized to sentence such person under the general laws of the state. All fines imposed by the court shall be collected by the clerk of such court or the deputy clerk thereof in the same manner as the clerk of the superior court; and, where a defendant is convicted and fails to pay the costs of such conviction, the county shall pay such costs as are allowed by law in similar cases before the superior court. (1939, c. 357, s. 37.)

§ 7-442. Appeals to superior court.—Any person convicted of any offense of which the county court has final jurisdiction may appeal to the superior court from any judgment or sentence of the court in the same manner as is now provided for appeals from the courts of justices of the peace; and any person tried before the judge for any offense of which the court has not final jurisdiction shall, upon the judge’s finding probable cause of guilt, be bound over to the superior court in the same manner as is provided by law in similar cases before justices of the peace. (1939, c. 357, s. 38.)

§ 7-443. Fees for issuance and service of warrants.—All justices of the peace, constables and sheriffs issuing or serving warrants or other process returnable to the special county court shall have the same fees as are now prescribed by law, which fees shall be collected and paid out in the same manner and by the same officers as collect and distribute such fees in the superior court. (1939, c. 357, s. 39.)

§ 7-444. Costs and fees as county funds.—There shall be taxed in the special county court the same costs and fees for the benefit of the officers thereof as provided for municipal recorder’s court. Such costs and fees shall be collected by the clerk and paid over monthly to the treasurer of the county as county funds to be dealt with by the commissioners. (1939, c. 357, s. 40.)

§ 7-445. Abolition of court by resolution of commissioners.—Any court established under this article may be abolished by resolution of a majority of the board of county commissioners for such county by giving written notice of such intention one month prior thereto; and in case of the abolition of the court, cases then pending shall be transferred to the superior court and there tried. (1939, c. 357, s. 41.)

§ 7-446. Counties exempt.—This article shall not apply to the counties of Alamance, Alexander, Anson, Ashe, Avery, Beaufort, Bertie, Bladen, Brunswick, Burke, Caldwell, Carteret, Catawba, Chatham, Chowan, Clay, Cleveland, Columbus, Craven, Dare, Duplin, Edgecombe, Franklin, Forsyth, Gaston, Gates, Granville, Greene, Halifax, Harnett, Hoke, Hyde, Iredell, Johnston, Jones, Lee, Lenior, Lincoln, Madison, Mecklenburg, Mitchell, Nash, New Hanover, Northampton, Onslow, Pasquotank, Pender, Perquimans, Robeson, Rutherford, Sampson, Stanly, Surry, Union, Vance, Wake, Warren, Wayne, Washington and Wilson. (1939, c. 357, s. 42.)

§ 7-447. Construction of article.—This article shall not be construed to repeal or modify any existing laws by which a county court may be created or to affect or repeal any court now or hereafter created under existing laws, and shall only be construed to be an additional method by which a special county court may be established for criminal, civil, or criminal and civil jurisdictions. (1939, c. 357, s. 43.)

act of the general assembly certified by the secretary of state shall be received in evidence in every court. (Rev., ss. 1592, 1593; Code, ss. 1339, 1340; R. C., c. 44, ss. 4. 5; 1826, c. 7; C. S. 1747.)

Public Statute Admissible.—Where the public printer has published a certain act with other public acts of the general assembly, it is made, presumptively at least, a part of the statute of the State and can be introduced in court by that original or an exemplification made therefrom by him which, when competent, is to be used in evidence." Id.

§ 8-2. Martin's collection of private acts.—Any private act published by Francis X. Martin in his collection of private acts, shall be received in evidence in every court. (Rev., s. 1594; Code, s. 1340; R. C., c. 44, s. 5; 1826, c. 7, s. 2; C. S. 1748.)

§ 8-3. Laws of other states or other countries.—A printed copy of a statute, or other written law, of another state, or of a territory, or of a foreign country, or a printed copy of a proclamation, edict, decree or ordinance, by the executive thereof, contained in a book or publication purporting or proved to have been published by the authority thereof, or proved to be commonly admitted as evidence of the existing law, in the judicial tribunals thereof, shall be evidence of the statute, law, proclamation, edict, decree, or ordinance. The unwritten or common law of another state, or of a territory, or of a foreign country, may be proved as a fact by oral evidence. The books of the reports of cases, adjudged in the courts thereof, shall also be admitted as evidence of the unwritten or common law thereof. And either party may also exhibit a copy of the laws of another state, or of a territory, or of a foreign country, on file in the state or supreme court library, or in the offices of the governor or secretary of state. (Rev., s. 1594; Code, s. 1340; R. C., c. 44, s. 5; 1826, c. 7, s. 2; C. S. 1748.)

Foreign Laws Must Be Proved.—The courts will not take judicial notice of the statutes and the laws in the different states which have changed the common law. Miller v. Atlantic, etc., R. Co., 154 N. C. 441, 70 S. E. 838.

Same.—Question of Fact.—What is the statute law of another state is a question of fact to be proved like any other fact. Couch v. Fauckett, 122 N. C. 270, 29 S. E. 365. See also Miller v. Atlantic, etc., R. Co., 154 N. C. 441, 70 S. E. 838.

Same.—Question for Jury.—Where the common law of another state is proved, the court must leave the evidence of the same to the jury without instructions. Hooper v. Moore, 50 N. C. 130.

Publication of Foreign Laws Admissible.—A book purporting to be a publication of the statute laws of another state, and to be published by the authority of such state, is admissible as evidence of such laws. Balk v. Harris, 122 N. C. 64, 30 S. E. 318; Copeland v. Collins, 122 N. C. 619, 52 S. E. 838.

Same.—Printed Copy Admissible.—By the terms of this section, a printed copy of the acts of the legislature of another state, or of a territory, or of a foreign country, is to be received in evidence as a printed copy of the statute law of a foreign state. Miller v. Urban, 141 N. C. 846, 54 S. E. 294.

Presumption as Regards Common Law.—In the absence of proof to the contrary, the common law will generally be presumed to be in force in a sister state, except in those cases where its jurisprudence is not founded on the common law. Miller v. Atlantic, etc., R. Co., 154 N. C. 441, 70 S. E. 838. See also the luminous treatment of the subject generally in Chamberlayne on Evidence, vol. I, sec. 584 et seq.

Same.—Question for Jury.—Where the common law of another state is proved, the court must leave the evidence of the same to the jury without instructions. State v. Railroad, 141 N. C. 846, 54 S. E. 294.

United States Agricultural Regulations Judicially Notice.—The regulations of the United States Agricultural Department, concerning the transportation of cattle, are not foreign laws within the meaning of this section, and the courts are required to take judicial notice of them. State v. Railroad, 141 N. C. 846, 54 S. E. 294.

Witnesses.—Any person who claims to know the provisions of the common or unwritten laws of a foreign country may, under this section, testify to and explain them before courts and juries. State v. Behrman, 114 N. C. 797, 92 S. E. 230.

An examination of the cases will show that an attempt to prevent the admission of the testimony of a party who claims to know the laws of a foreign state, or of a territory, or of another country, has quite frequently been made by the litigating parties. The basis of this attempt, and the reasons given in support thereof, has been different in a large number of the decided cases. One of the grounds, frequently relied on as a means for the exclusion of this evidence, is the fact that the particular witness has not been shown to be an expert. This point, however, has been of little avail to the party attempting to exclude the admissibility of the evidence, since the construction placed on this section has been that it is not the legislative intent that evidence be required in such a case. In reaching this conclusion much weight has been given to the wording that the common law of another state may be proved as a "fact."—Ed. Note.

A law of another state may be proved in transitory actions brought in the courts of this State by the provisions of our law, as learned in the law of such other State, and by its authorized statutes and reports of decisions of its courts of last resort, and when properly offered in evidence they must be interpreted by our courts as matters of law. Howard v. Howard, 200 N. C. 574, 158 S. E. 101.

A transcript of a statute, once duly certified by the Secretary of State, in the manner prescribed by our law, is admissible in evidence at all times of its being in force according to its terms unless a repeal is shown. State v. Cheek, 35 N. C. 179, 34 S. E. 176.

Same.—Applicable to Criminal and Civil Cases.—The certificate of the Secretary of State, in relation to the statutes of another state, given in pursuance of this section is evidence in both criminal and civil cases. State v. Patterson, 24 N. C. 346.

§ 8-4. Judicial notice of laws of United States, other States and foreign countries.—When any question shall arise as to the law of the United States, or of any other state or territory of the United States, or of the District of Columbia, or of any foreign country, the court shall take judicial notice of such law in the same manner as if the question arose under the law of this State. (1931, c. 30.)

Cross Reference.—As to judicial notice of private statutes, see § 1-157. [549]
Editor’s Note.—The act from which this section was codified provided that it should not apply in the trial of any cause of action which accrued prior to its ratification on February 16, 1931.

Survival of Action under Law of Another State.—In an action to recover for the alleged tortious conversion of personal property by a nonresident, against his personal representative, the failure of the plaintiff to allege survival of the cause of action under the laws of the state in which it arose does not render the complaint demurrable. Suskin v. Hodges, 216 N. C. 333, 4 S. E. (2d) 891.

§ 8-5. Town ordinances certified.—In the trial of appeals from mayor’s courts, when the offense charged is the violation of a town ordinance, a copy of the ordinance alleged to have been violated, certified by the mayor, shall be prima facie evidence of the existence of such ordinance. (Rev., s. 1595; 1899, c. 277, s. 2; C. S. 1750.)

Cross References.—As to duty of mayor to certify ordinance on appeal, see § 160-16. As to how ordinances are pleaded and proved, see § 160-272.

When Certification Unnecessary.—The certification of a town ordinance as required by this section, is only prima facie evidence of its existence, and this is unnecessary when the ordinance has been proven by the production of the original record of the town by the proper officer, or if it shows its passage. State v. Razook, 179 N. C. 708, 103 S. E. 67.

Evidence Insufficient to Rebut Prima Facie Case.—When the defendant has certified that the ordinance alleged to have been violated is the ordinance certified by the mayor, it is not conclusive that the ordinance had not been passed at some other time, against the statutory certificate of the mayor that it was in existence at the time of the defendant’s conviction. State v. Gill, 195 N. C. 425, 142 S. E. 328.

Art. 2. Grants, Deeds and Wills.

§ 8-6. Copies certified by secretary of state.—Copies of the plats and certificates of survey, or their accompanying warrants, and all abstracts of grants, which may be filed in the office of the secretary of state, certified by him as true copies, shall be as good evidence, in any court, as the original. (Rev., s. 1596; Code, s. 1341; R. C., c. 44, s. 6; 1822, c. 1154; C. S. 1751.)

In General.—This section does not make the copies better evidence than the original; and where there is a material discrepancy, it is for the jury to find as a fact which one is correct. Richards v. Ritter Lumber Co., 158 N. C. 34, 73 S. E. 485.

Certification by Clerk of Secretary of State.—See sec. 8-9.

Abstract Competent to Show Title.—Abstracts of grants in the usual form, duly certified as correct copies by the Secretary of State and recorded in the office of the register of deeds, are competent to show title out of the state. Marshall v. Corbett, 137 N. C. 285, 50 S. E. 210.

§ 8-7. Certified copies of grants and abstracts.—For the purpose of showing title from the state of North Carolina to the grantee or grantees therein named and for the lands therein described, duly certified copies of all grants and of all memoranda and abstracts of grants on record in the office of the secretary of state, given in abstract or in full, and with or without the signature of the governor and the great seal of the state appearing upon such record, shall be competent evidence in the courts of this state or of the United States or of any territory of the United States, and in the absence of the production of the original grant shall be conclusive evidence of a grant from the state to the grantee or grantees named and for the lands described therein. (1915, c. 249, s. 1; C. S. 1752.)

Section Constitutional.—This section is constitutional and valid. Howell v. Hurley, 170 N. C. 401, 87 S. E. 107.

Copy Conclusive as to Regularity of Original.—An abstract of a grant of the State’s land by the Secretary of State imports the regularity of its issuance, and that the constitutional mandate of affixing the seal of the original had been legally complied with, though the abstract gives no indication thereof, the regularity of the official conduct in granting the original being presumed; and the abstract may be introduced as competent evidence on the trial of an action involving the title to the lands described in the grant, by one claiming under it. Howell v. Hurley, 170 N. C. 401, 87 S. E. 107.

§ 8-8. Certified copies of grants and abstracts recorded.—Duly certified copies of such grants and of such memoranda and abstracts of grants may be recorded in the county where the lands therein described are situated, and the records thereof in such counties, or certified copies thereof, shall likewise be competent evidence for the purpose of showing title from the state of North Carolina to the grantee or grantees named and for the lands described therein. (1915, c. 249, s. 2; C. S. 1753.)

Cross Reference.—As to registration of certified copies of deeds or writings, and their use in evidence, see § 47-31.

§ 8-9. Copies of grants certified by clerk of secretary of state validated.—All copies of grants heretofore issued from the office of the secretary of state, duly certified under the great seal of the state, and to which the name of the secretary has been written or affixed by the clerk of the said secretary of state, are hereby ratified and approved and declared to be good and valid copies of the original grants and admissible in evidence in all courts of this state when duly registered in the counties in which the land lies; all such copies heretofore registered in said counties are hereby declared to be lawful and regular in all respects as if the same had been signed by the secretary of state in person and duly registered. (Rev., s. 1597; 1901, c. 613; C. S. 1754.)

Editor’s Note.—Prior to the enactment of this section it was consistently held that the clerk of the Secretary of State had no power to certify and affix the great seal of the state to copies of grants and other papers from the Secretary of State’s office. Beam v. Jennings, 96 N. C. 82, 2 S. E. 245, but such acts on the part of the clerk are now validated by the provisions of this section.

§ 8-10. Copies of grants in Burke.—Copies of grants issued by the state within the county of Burke prior to the destruction of the records of said county by General Stoneman in the year one thousand eight hundred and sixty-five, shall be admitted in evidence in all actions when the same are duly registered; and when the original grants are lost, destroyed or cannot be found after due search, it shall be presumed that the same were duly registered within the time prescribed by law, as provided upon the face of original grant. (Rev., s. 1610; 1901, c. 513; C. S. 1755.)

Cross Reference.—As to copies of destroyed record as evidence generally, see § 98-1 et seq.

§ 8-11. Copies of grants in Moore.—Copies of grants for land situated in Moore county and the counties of which Moore was a part, entered in a book, and the book being certified un-under the seal of the secretary of state, shall have the force and effect of the originals and be evidence in all courts. (Rev., s. 1613; 1903, c. 214; C. S. 1758.)

§ 8-12. Copies of grants in Onslow.—The copies of grants made by the register of deeds of Onslow county under laws of 1907, chapter 434, of grants, abstracts of grants, and other documents pertaining to titles of land in Onslow county issued prior to the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty-eight, and contained in a book called Book of Transcribed Grants Issued Prior to One Thousand Eight Hundred, duly authenticated as prescribed in said chapter 434 of the laws of one thousand nine hundred and seven, shall be received as evidence in all courts of the state, and certified copies thereof shall be received as evidence. (1907, c. 434; C. S. 1757.)

§ 8-13. Certain deeds dated before 1835 evidence of due execution.—In all actions hereafter instituted in which the title or ownership of any lands situated in North Carolina is at issue or in dispute, any deed or release, or a duly certified copy thereof, in which the people of the state of North Carolina are grantees and bearing date prior to the year one thousand eight hundred and thirty-five and purporting to have been filed and recorded in the office of the secretary of state of North Carolina prior to said year and now on file and of record in said office, and executed or purporting to have been executed by any person or persons as the representatives or agents or for or on behalf of any society, tribe, nation or aggregation of persons, whether signed or executed individually or in their representative capacity, and any such deed or release having been authorized to be executed by an act of the general assembly of North Carolina by the properly authorized agents of such society, tribe, nation or aggregation of persons, shall be prima facie evidence that the person or persons signing or executing any such deed or release were the properly authorized agent or agents of such society, tribe, nation or aggregation of persons. Any recitals or statements of fact in any such deed or release shall be prima facie evidence of the truth thereof in any such actions. (1915, c. 75; C. S. 1758.)

§ 8-14. Certified copies of maps of Cherokee lands.—Certified copies by the secretary of state of the copies, or parts thereof, of the maps of the Cherokee lands and of the Cherokee Country, as provided for and described in chapter one hundred and seventy-five of the laws of one thousand nine hundred and thirteen, shall, when certified under the hand and seal of the secretary of state, be competent evidence in the trial of any action in the courts of the state. (1913, c. 102; C. S. 1760.)

§ 8-15. Certified copies of certain surveys and maps obtained from the state of Tennessee.—A certified copy of the report of the survey made by the North Carolina commissioners, McDowell, Vance and Matthews, of that portion of the state of Tennessee extending from a point on the Virginia line to a point on the Smoky Mountain west of the Pigeon River, as obtained and filed by the secretary of state under the provisions of chapter one hundred and sixty-two of the laws of one thousand nine hundred and thirteen, shall, when certified under the hand and seal of the secretary of state, be competent evidence in the trial of any action in the courts of the state. (1913, c. 102; C. S. 1760.)

§ 8-16. Evidence of title under H. E. McCulloch grants.—In all actions or suits, wherein it may be necessary for either party to prove title, by virtue of a grant or grants made by the king of Great Britain or Earl Granville to Henry McCulloch, or Henry Eustace McCulloch, it shall be sufficient for such party, in the usual manner, to give evidence of the grant or conveyance from the king of Great Britain or Earl Granville to the said Henry McCulloch, or Henry Eustace McCulloch, and the mesne conveyances thereafter, without giving any evidence of the deed or deeds of release, relinquishment or confirmation of Earl Granville to the said Henry McCulloch, or Henry Eustace McCulloch, or the power or powers of attorney by which the conveyances from the said Henry McCulloch, or Henry Eustace McCulloch, purport to have been made. (Rev., s. 1600; Code, s. 1336; R. C., c. 44, s. 1; 1819, c. 1021; C. S. 1761.)

§ 8-17. Conveyances or certified copies evidence of title under McCulloch.—In all trials where the title of either plaintiff or defendant shall be derived from Henry Eustace McCulloch, or Henry McCulloch, out of their tracts number one and three, it shall not be required of such party to produce, in support of his title, either the original grant from the crown to the proprietors, or a registered copy thereof; but in all such cases the grant or deed executed by such reputed proprietors, or by his or their lawful attorney, or a certified copy thereof, shall be deemed and held sufficient proof of the title of such proprietors, in the same manner as though the original grants were produced in evidence. (Rev., s. 1601; Code, s. 1337; Code, s. 1336; R. C., c. 44, s. 2; 1807, c. 724; C. S. 1762.)

§ 8-18. Certified copies of registered instruments evidence. —A copy of the record of any deed, mortgage, power of attorney, or other instrument required or allowed to be registered, duly authenticated by the certificate and official seal of the register of deeds of the county where the original or duly certified copy has been registered, may be given in evidence in any of the courts of the state where the original of such copy would be admitted as evidence, although the party offering the same shall be entitled to the possession of the original, and shall not account for the nonproduction thereof, unless by a rule or order of the court, made upon affidavit suggesting some material variance from the original in such registry or other sufficient grounds, such party shall have been previously required to produce the original, in which case the same shall be produced or its absence duly accounted for according to the course and practice of the court. (Rev., s. 1509; Code, s. 1251; 1893, c. 119, s. 2; R. C., c. 37, s. 16; 1846, c. 68, s. 1; C. S. 1763.)

Cross Reference.—As to recordation and use in evidence of certified copies generally, see § 47-31.

Editor's Note.—The provisions of this section permitting the reception of the copies herein mentioned as evidence, [551] constitute a statutory exception to the rule of the best evidence. Under this rule it is well established that a party in evidence "unless by rule or order of the court, * * * the foundation of which is that the primary object of all rules of evidence is to promote the administration of justice, and wherever general convenience requires it, the general rule will be bent or construed so as to meet the exigencies of the case."

The limitation placed on the exception contained in this section must be noted. The certified copies are admissible in evidence "under the great seal of the state, is admissible in evidence, under the register of deeds of any other county, be registered in such county, may, upon presentation to the register of deeds of the same county, be entitled to the possession of the original, and shall not account for the nonproduction thereof, unless by a rule or order of the court, made upon affidavit suggesting some material variance from the original in such registry or other sufficient grounds, such party shall have been previously required to produce the original, in which case the certified copy of the same, may be given in evidence in any court in the state where the original of such copy would be admitted as evidence, although the party offering the same shall be entitled to the possession of the original, and shall not account for the nonproduction thereof, unless by a rule or order of the court, made upon affidavit suggesting some material variance from the original in such registry or other sufficient grounds, such party shall have been previously required to produce the original, in which case the same shall be admitted as evidence under this section."

§ 8-20. Certified copies registered in another county and used in evidence.—A copy from the office of the register of deeds of any county of the record of any deed, mortgage, power of attorney, or other instrument required or allowed to be registered, duly authenticated by the certificate and official seal of the register of deeds of such county, may, upon presentation to the register of deeds of any other county, be registered without further proof, and the record thereof, or a duly certified copy of the same, may be given in evidence in any court in the state where the original of such copy would be admitted as evidence, although the party offering the same shall be entitled to the possession of the original, and shall not account for the nonproduction thereof, unless by a rule or order of the court, made upon affidavit suggesting some material variance from the original in such registry or other sufficient grounds, such party shall have been previously required to produce the original, in which case the same shall be produced or its absence duly accounted for according to the course and practice of the court. (Rev., s. 1599; Code, s. 1253; 1893, c. 119, s. 3; R. C., c. 37, s. 16; 1816, c. 68; C. S. 1763.)

As to variance between original and copy, see note of Ratliff v. Bartlett, 131 N. C. 625, 42 S. E. 827, under section 8-18.

§ 8-21. Deeds and records thereof lost, presumed to be in due form.—Whenever it is shown in any judicial proceeding that a deed or conveyance of real estate has been lost or destroyed, and the register thereof has been registered, and that the register's book containing the copy has been destroyed by fire or other accident, then by way of process and without proof the copy can be used in evidence, and the register thereof is presumed to be in due form and made in the manner provided by law.
§ 8-22. Local: recitals in tax deeds in Haywood and Henderson.—In all legal controversies touching lands in the counties of Haywood and Henderson, in which either party shall claim title under any sale for taxes alleged to have been due and laid, in and for the year one thousand seven hundred and ninety-six, or any preceding year, the recital contained in the deed or assurance, made by the sheriff or other officer conveying or assuring the same, of the taxes having been laid and assessed, and of the same having remained due and unpaid, shall be held and taken to be prima facie evidence of the truth of each and every of the matters so recited. (Rev., s. 1606; Code, s. 1346; R. C., c. 44, s. 11; C. S. 1767.)

§ 8-23. Local: copies of records from Tyrrell.—Copies of records of the county of Tyrrell between the years one thousand seven hundred and thirty-five and one thousand seven hundred and ninety-nine, when copied in a book and certified to by the clerk of the superior court of Tyrrell county as to the records of his office and by the register of deeds as to the records of his office, and deposited in their respective offices in Washington county, shall be treated in all respects as original records and received as evidence in all courts of Washington county. (Rev., s. 1612; 1903, c. 199; C. S. 1768.)

§ 8-24. Local: records of partition in Duplin.—The transcripts made by the clerk of the superior court of Duplin county, in accordance with chapter three hundred and ninety-five of the laws of one thousand nine hundred and seven, of the reports of committees relating to the partition of real estate on file in his office prior to and up to the year one thousand eight hundred and fifty-six, entered and indexed in a book entitled Reports of Committees, A, and the reports of committees beginning with and subsequent to the year one thousand eight hundred and fifty-six, entered and indexed in a book entitled Reports of Committees, B, shall be as competent evidence as are the original reports of the committees. (1907, c. 395, ss. 3, 4; C. S. 1769.)

§ 8-25. Local: records of wills in Duplin.—The transcripts made by the clerk of the superior court of Duplin county, in accordance with chapter three hundred and ninety-five of the laws of one thousand nine hundred and seven, of all wills and entries of probate and dates of registration appearing on the same, on file in his office prior to and up to the January term of the county court of Duplin county, one thousand eight hundred and thirty, and entered in a book designated as Record of Wills, A, and duly indexed as provided by law, shall be as competent evidence in any court as are the originals of such wills. (1907, c. 395, ss. 1, 2; C. S. 1770.)

§ 8-26. Local: records of deeds and wills in Anson.—The copies of the deeds and deed books and of the wills and will books made in Anson county under the act of March second, one thousand nine hundred and five, shall have the same force and effect as the original deeds and deed books copied and as the original wills and will books copied, and shall take the place of said original deeds and deed books and wills and will books as evidence in all court procedure; and wherever said deed books or will books are ordered or directed to be produced in court by subpoena or other order of court, the copies made under such act shall be produced, unless the court shall specially order the production of the originals. Copies of the instruments produced in court shall have the same validity and effect as if used for the same purposes, with the same effect, as the original books. (Rev., s. 1615; 1905, c. 663, s. 3; C. S. 1771.)

§ 8-27. Local: records of wills in Brunswick.—Under the provisions of chapter one hundred and six of the laws of one thousand nine hundred and eight, authorizing and directing that all unrecorded wills, dated prior to January first, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-five, on file in the office of the clerk of the superior court of Brunswick county, and which have been duly proved in the form required by law, and bearing the adjudication certificate of the proper officer, shall be recorded in the book of wills in the said office and properly indexed; that all wills recorded in the minutes of the court of pleas and quarter sessions or other books of record in said office shall be transcribed and indexed in the book of wills in said office; and that all wills recorded in the office of the register of deeds of said county shall be properly indexed in the book kept for the purpose in the office of the clerk of the superior court of the county; the record of any instrument or certified copy thereof, recorded under the provisions of this article, shall be admitted in evidence in the trial of any cause, subject to the same rules upon which other wills are admitted. (1908, s. 106; C. S. 1772.)

§ 8-28. Copies of wills.—Copies of wills, duly certified by the proper officer, may be given in evidence in any proceeding wherein the contents of the will may be competent evidence. (Rev., s. 1603; Code, s. 2175; R. C., c. 119, s. 21; 1784, c. 225, s. 6; C. S. 1773.)

Cross Reference.—As to probate of copy of lost will, see §§ 98-4, 98-5.

Certified Copy as Evidence.—Under this section a certified copy of a will is competent evidence in any case wherein the contents of the will may be competent evidence. Hampton v. Hardin, 88 N. C. 592, 594.

Copy of Will Made in Another State.—See annotations under sec. 8-32.

§ 8-29. Copies of wills in secretary of state's office.—Copies of wills filed or recorded in the office of the secretary of state, attested by the secretary, may be given in evidence in any court, and shall be taken as sufficient proof of the devise of real estate, and are declared good and effectual to pass the estate therein devised: Provided, that no such will may be given in evidence in any court nor taken as sufficient proof of the devise unless a certificate of probate appear thereon. (Rev., s. 1607; Code, s. 2181; R. C., c. 44, s. 12; 1852, c. 172; 1856-7, c. 22; C. S. 1774.)

§ 8-30. Copies of wills recorded in wrong county.—Whereas, by reason of the uncertainty of the boundary lines of many of the counties of the state, wills have been proved, recorded and registered in the wrong county, whereby titles are insecure; for remedy whereof: The registry or duly certified copy of the record of any will, duly recorded, may be given in evidence in any of the courts of this state. (Rev., s. 1608; Code, s. 2152; 1858-9, c. 18; C. S. 1775.)

§ 8-31. Copy of will proved and lost before recorded.—When any will which has been proved and ordered to be recorded was destroyed during the war between the states, before it was recorded, a copy of such will, so entitled to be admitted to record, though not certified by any officer, shall, when the court shall be satisfied of the genuineness thereof, be ordered to be recorded, and shall be received in evidence whenever the original or duly certified exemplification would be; and such copies may be proved and admitted to record under the same rules, regulations and restrictions as are prescribed in chapter 98 entitled Burnt and Lost Records. (Rev., s. 1609; Code, s. 2153; 1866-7, c. 127; C. S. 1776.)

§ 8-32. Certified copies of deeds and wills from other states.—In cases where inhabitants of other states or territories, by will or deed, devise or convey property situated in this state, and the original will or deed cannot be obtained for registration in the county where the land lies, or where the property shall be in dispute, a copy of said will or deed (after the same has been proved and registered or deposited, agreeable to the laws of the state where the person died or made the same) being properly certified, either according to the act of congress or by the proper officer of the said state or territory, shall be read as evidence. (Rev., s. 1610; Code, s. 1344; R. C., c. 44, s. 9; 1902, c. 623; C. S. 1777.)

In General.—Records of other states, to be used in evidence in this state, must have the attestation of the clerk of the court whose record is offered, and the seal of the court, if it have one. If there be no seal, this must appear in the certificate of the clerk, and the judge, chief justice, or presiding magistrate of such court must certify that the record is properly attested. Riley v. Carter, 158 N. C. 484, 487, 74 S. E. 663; Kinsley v. Rumborghini, 96 N. C. 19, who gave the certificate, from the certificate of probate on the exemplified copy produced here, it appears that but one witness swore that he subscribed the will as witness in the presence of the testator and the other witness to the will did not appear to have sworn at all, it was held that such a will should not be read in evidence. Blount v. Patton, 9 N. C. 237.

Properly Authenticated Copy Admissible.—A copy of a will, made in another state, with its probate certified by the judge of the court in which it was proved, and accompanied by the testimonial of the governor of that state, that the person who gave that certificate was the proper officer to take such probate, and to certify the same, is a sufficient authentication of the will to authorize its reception as evidence in our courts. Knight v. Wall, 19 N. C. 125.

Incomplete Authentication.—Where a will, proved in another state, bore the certificate of the clerk of the court wherein the probate was had, to the oath of the attesting witnesses, but had no other authentication, it was held inadmissible in evidence. Hunter v. Kelly, 27 Conn. 253, 262.

§ 8-33. Copies of lost records in Bladen county.—The clerk of the superior court of the Bladen county shall transcribe the judge’s docket book, and the judges’ books in his office, and all other books kept in said office containing records made since the year one thousand eight hundred and sixty-eight, and the records so transcribed shall have the same force and effect as the original records would have, and shall be received in evidence as the original records and be prima facie evidence of their correctness and of the sufficiency of their probate, though the probates are lost and are not transcribed. (Rev., s. 1611; 1805, c. 415; 1903, c. 65; C. S. 1778.)

Art. 3. Public Records.

§ 8-34. Copies of official writings.—Copies of all official bonds, writings, papers, or documents, recorded or filed as records in any court, or public office, or lodged in the office of the governor, treasurer, auditor, secretary of state, attorney general or adjutant general, shall be as competent evidence as the originals, when certified by the keeper of such records or writings under the seal of his office where there is such seal, or under his hand when there is no such seal, unless the court shall order the production of the original. Copies of the records of the board of county commissioners shall be evidence when certified by the clerk of the board under his hand and seal of the county. (Rev., s. 1616; Code, ss. 715, 1342; R. C., c. 44, s. 8; 1792, c. 368, s. 11; 1871-2, c. 91; 1868-9, c. 20, s. 21; C. S. 1779.)

Copy Defined.—A copy, within the meaning of this section is a transcript of the original—a writing exactly like another writing. State v. Champion, 116 N. C. 987, 989, 21 S. E. 700. See also Wiggins v. Rogers, 175 N. C. 67, 94 S. E. 685.

The Copy Certified. — The power of an officer, who is the keeper of certain public records, to certify copies is confined to a certification of their contents as they appear by the records themselves, and the records must, therefore, be so certified, for he has no authority to certify to the substance of them, nor that any particular fact, as a copy, appears on them. Wiggins v. Rogers, 175 N. C. 67, 94 S. E. 685.

A "Copy of the Instrument Required."—This section makes competent only the "copies" of official records, etc., and a mere certified statement from the register's office is only evidence of the correctness of the record, and can not be admitted in evidence in place of the original record. State v. Champion, 116 N. C. 987, 989, 21 S. E. 700. (Cited and approved in Wiggins v. Rogers, 175 N. C. 67, 94 S. E. 685.)

Original Record Admitted.—This section does not prevent the admission in the absence of the original record of the record, without more, or by copy.” Again in the same section, "The certificate or the copy of the record is prima facie evidence of the facts contained therein. State v. Voight, 90 N. C. 741, 745; State v. Abernathy, 94 N. C. 345. See also, Riley & Co. v. Carter, 165 N. C. 334, 81 S. E. 414; State v. Hunter, 94 N. C. 829; Blalock v. Whisnant, 266 N. C. 417, 146 S. E. 709.

Some hesitancy was at first shown by the court in reaching this conclusion, due to a contrary ruling in the earlier cases. However, it is now well settled that it would be little less than an absurdity to exclude the best possible evidence, when addeduce, merely because an inferior evidence, by copy, is made admissible (by statute or otherwise).

On this point, it is said by Mr. Greenleaf: "As to the proof of records, this is done by the mere production of the records, without more, or by copy.” Again in the same section, "It is to be observed, that the rule of evidence in this state, if it is not in the same court, should be proved by an exemplification." Greenleaf on Evidence, sec. 501.

In reference to these clauses it is said in Gray v. Davis, 27 Conn. 447, cited and approved in State v. Voight, supra: “But he (the author) does not say, and it is obvious he does not mean, that the contents of a record can not in any court be proved by the original record itself, if it can be produced, but only to state the manner in which proof may be and usually is made.”

There can be no doubt as to the soundness of this ruling, and it would seem to follow that the conclusion would best be placed on the actual wording of this section, and the heads of dealing in such broad inferences. The Legislature has specifically said that the copies, herein made admissible, are to be as competent evidence as the originals. From the very phraseology of this section it does not seem plausible to say it was intended that the admission of the copies should serve to exclude the original record itself.—Ed. Note.
§ 8-35. Authenticated copies of public records.—All copies of bonds, contracts, notes, mortgages, or other papers relating to or connected with any loan, account, settlement of any account or any part thereof, or other transaction, between the United States or any state thereof or any corporation all of whose stock is beneficially owned by the United States or any state thereof, or other transaction, between two or more individuals, either directly or indirectly, and any person, natural or artificial; or extracts therefrom when complete on any one subject, or copies from the books or papers on file, or records of any public office of the state or the United States or of any corporation all of whose stock is beneficially owned by the United States or by any state thereof, directly or indirectly, shall be received in evidence and entitled to full faith and credit in any of the courts of the state where the same has been done, or in any court of the United States or of any state or territory, shall be allowed as evidence. (Rev., s. 1618; Code, s. 1343; R. C., c. 44, s. 7; 1834, c. 4; C. S. 1781.)

§ 8-36. Certificate of commissioner of motor vehicles as to ownership of automobile.—In all civil actions, arising out of an injury to person or property by reason of the operation of a motor vehicle of any kind, evidence as to the display numbers on a particular car, a copy of the record kept by the commissioner of motor vehicles of such display numbers and the persons who obtained them, certified under the hand and seal of said commissioner of motor vehicles shall be competent evidence of the ownership of the motor vehicle inflicting the injury or doing the damage. (1931, c. 88, s. 1; 1943, c. 650.)

Cross Reference.—As to registration and certificate of title for motor vehicles generally, see § 30-59 et seq.

Editor’s Note.—The 1943 amendment substituted "commissioner of motor vehicles" for "commissioner of revenue."

Ambiguous or Indefinite Terms.—Where the written terms contained in the contract are sufficient to pass the property in question to Woodward, therefore, this section evidence of the parties and attendant facts and circumstances may be heard to aid in ascertaining the correct meaning of the terms used, but not to alter what has been written. Ward v. Gay, 133 N. C. 399, 49 S. E. 884.

Not Retroactive in Operation.—There is a general presumption against the retroactive operation of a statute where, if it had been in force, damages sustained thereby would have been created. The demonstration of this section cannot be held to operate retrospectively so as to allow parol testimony to locate land referred to and ambiguously described in a contract made before the passage of the section. Lowe v. Harris, 112 N. C. 473, 17 S. E. 539. Shepherd, C. J., concurs, but further holds that the word "description" used in this section imports such description as can be aided by parol proof. Id.

When Description Sufficient.—A description of land in a deed as that of all that tract of land in two certain counties, lying on "both sides of old road between" designated points, and being parts of certain State grants, conveyed by the patentee or enterer to certain grantees, etc., is sufficient to admit of parol evidence in aid of the identification of the lands as those intended to be conveyed. Buckhorn Land, etc., Co. v. Yarbrough, 179 N. C. 335, 102 S. E. 630. While parol evidence is competent to "fit the description to the thing," it is not competent to establish a line of demarcation. The introduction of specimens of handwriting is in some states permitted to be made by a handwriting expert to test the genuineness of the signature of a party to an action are relevant to the inquiry, it is not required that the witness should have seen the person write before he is permitted to identify the letter by the handwriting, for it is sufficient if he can do so from correspondence formerly had between them. Universal Oil, etc., Co. v. Burney, 174 N. C. 382, 93 S. E. 727; Outlaw v. Bullard, 156 N. C. 541, 61 S. E. 1029.

Comparison by Jury.—Where payment of a note sued on is pleaded and the genuineness of the signature of the payee to a receipt for the amount is in dispute, and an expert in handwriting is called, it is competent to introduce specimens of handwriting, when it does not appear that it could have been to the prejudice of the appellant. As to whether this is otherwise permitted under the provisions of this section, quere? George v. Robinson, 76 N. C. 561. analogy to Proof of Agency.—In Newton v. Newton, 182 N. C. 54, 55, 108 S. E. 336, the court said: "As we understand the statute, the admission of testimony as to the genuineness of a writing by comparison of handwriting, now on the same basis as the declarations of agents. The court determines whether there is prima facie evidence of the genuineness of the writing admitted as a basis of comparison, and then the testimony of the witnesses and 'the writings' (in the plural) themselves are submitted to the jury.

Handwriting Irrelevant—Exclusion Harmless Error.—In this case the handwriting sought to be introduced as evidence before the jury and to be considered by them was irrelevant, and the action of the court in refusing to permit the parties to submit to the jury in order to determine its genuineness, under the statute, was a harmless error. Newton v. Newton, 182 N. C. 54, 108 S. E. 336. Cited in In re Williams’ Will, 197 N. C. 337, 333, 148 S. E. 499; In re Will’s Will, 215 N. C. 259, 1 S. E. 257.

§ 8-41. Bills of lading in evidence.—In all actions by or against common carriers in which it shall be thought necessary to introduce in evidence any bills of lading issued by said common carrier or by a connecting carrier, it shall be competent to introduce in evidence any paper-writing purporting to be the original bill of lading, or a duplicate thereof, upon proof that such paper-writing purporting to be such bill of lading or duplicate was received in due course of mail from consignor or agent of said carrier or connecting carrier, or delivered by said common carrier to the consignee or other person entitled to the possession of the property for which said paper purports to be the bill of lading: Provided, that such purported bill of lading shall not be declared to be the bill of lading unless the said purported bill of lading is first exhibited by the plaintiff or his agent or attorney to the defendant or its attorney, or its agent upon whom process may be served, ten days before the trial where the point of shipment is in the state, and twenty days when the point of shipment is without the state. Upon such proof and introduction of the bill of lading, the due execution thereof shall be prima facie established. (1915, c. 287; C. S. 1785.)

Cross Reference.—As to definitions of bills of lading, see §§ 21-2, 21-3.

§ 8-42. Book accounts under sixty dollars.—When any person shall bring an action upon a contract, or shall plead, or give notice of, a set-off or counterclaim for goods, wares and merchandise by him sold and delivered, or for work done and performed, he shall file his account with his plea, or with his plea or notice of set-off or counterclaim, and if upon the trial of the issue, or executing a writ of inquiry of damages in such action, he shall declare upon his oath that the matter in dispute is a book account, and that he hath no means to prove the delivery of any of the articles which he then shall propose to prove by himself but by this book, in that case such book may be given in evidence, if he shall make out by his own oath that it doth contain a true account of all the dealings, or the last settlement of accounts between himself and the opposing party, and that all the articles therein contained, and by him so proved, were bona fide delivered, and that he hath given the opposing party all just credits; and such book and oath shall be received as evidence for the several articles so proved to be delivered within two years next before the commencement of the action, but not for any article of a longer standing, nor for any greater amount than sixty dollars. (Rev., s. 1622; Code, s. 591; R. C., 15, s. 1, 1722; C. C. P., s. 577; 717, 86 S. E. 627 and cases cited.

Terms Construed.—In an early case, the words "to make out on his oath" and "to prove," used in this section, are construed to be synonymous terms. Kitchen v. Tyson, 7 N. C. 341.

Other Sections.—Notwithstanding the restrictions contained in sec. 8-51, in relation to a person's testifying as to the account rendered contains a true account of all the dealings, or the last settlement of accounts between himself and a deceased person, when his executor or administrator is a party, he may, as hereinafter provided, testify under this section, Bland v. Piercy, 25 N. C. 77.

§ 8-43. Book accounts proved by personal representative.—In all actions where executors and administrators are parties, such book account for all articles delivered within two years preceding the death of the deceased may be proved under the like circumstances, rules and conditions; and in such case, the executor or administrator may prove by himself that he found the account so stated on the books of the deceased; that there are no witnesses, to his knowledge, capable of proving the delivery of the articles which he shall propose to prove by said book, and that he believes the same to be just, and doth not know of any other or further credit to be given than what is therein mentioned: Provided, that if two years shall not have elapsed previous to the death of the deceased, the executor or administrator may prove the said book account, and the suit shall be commenced within three years from the delivery of the articles: Provided further, that whenever by the aforesaid proviso the time of proving a book account in manner aforesaid is enlarged as to the one party, to the same extent shall be enlarged the time as to the other party. (Rev., s. 1623; Code, s. 592; R. C., c. 15, s. 2; 1756, c. 57, s. 2; 1790, c. 465; C. S. 1787.)

An administrator may, under this section, offer in evidence the book accounts of a decedent, containing charges and payments, and made by him. Bland v. Warren, 65 N. C. 372.

§ 8-44. Copies of book accounts in evidence.—A copy from the book of accounts proved in manner above directed may be given in evidence in any such action or setoff as aforesaid, and shall be as available as if such book had been produced, unless the party opposing such proof shall give notice to the adverse party or his attorney, at the joining of the issue, or ten days before the trial, that he will require the book to be produced at the trial; and in that case no such copy shall be admitted as evidence. (Rev., s. 1624; Code, s. 593; R. C., c. 15, s. 3; 1756, c. 57, s. 3; C. C. P., s. 3430; C. S. 1787.)

Production of original after notice.—In all cases under this section and the two preceding sections, it is the duty of the party, who wishes to prove his debt by his own oath, to produce the original account when notice to that effect has been given to him by the other party. Coxe v. Skenes, 25 N. C. 443, 445.

An voluntary destruction of the original will not authorize the introduction of a copy. Coxe v. Skenes, 25 N. C. 443, 445.

§ 8-45. Itemized and verified accounts. In any actions instituted in any court of this state upon an account for goods sold and delivered, for rents, for services rendered, or labor performed, or upon any oral contract for money loaned, a verified itemized statement of such account shall be received in evidence, and shall be deemed prima facie evidence of its correctness. (Rev., s. 1625; 1897, c. 480; 1917, c. 32; 1941, c. 104; C. S. 1789.)

Editor’s Note.—Prior to the amendment in 1917 (ratified February 12, 1917) this section was applicable only to accounts for goods sold and delivered. See La Salle Extension Store v. Ozmanski, 174 N. C. 427, 93 S. E. 986; Nall v. Kelly, 169 N. C. 717, 86 S. E. 627. Even before the amendment of this section, where the case was not instituted for goods sold and delivered, but for the first time took the proceedings beyond the operative force of this section, the case was not necessarily dismissed on this account, when the additional evidence offered served to create the prima facie case, the account so verified should be received in evidence, and shall be deemed prima facie evidence of its correctness. (Rev., s. 1625; 1917, c. 32; 1941, c. 104; C. S. 1789.)

Purpose.—This section was designed to facilitate the collection of such accounts where there was no bona fide dispute, and to relieve the plaintiff in such instances of the expense and delay of formally taking depositions. Nall v. Kelly, 169 N. C. 717, 86 S. E. 627.

Verification Essential.—An itemized account to be prima facie evidence of its correctness must be properly verified and stated so as to satisfy an inquidity. Knight v. Taylor, 131 N. C. 84, 42 S. E. 537.

Competency of Witness Required.—Under the terms of this section, as now drawn, an affiant, verifying an account so as to make the same prima facie evidence, must be a competent witness to the facts, and when it appears on the face of the account that he has no personal knowledge of those facts, and that he is an ex parte account so verified should not be received in evidence. Nall v. Kelly, 169 N. C. 717, 86 S. E. 627. And it must appear that he is not ex parte account so verified. See sec. 8-51. See Lloyd & Co. v. Poythress, 185 N. C. 180, 116 S. E. 584.

An itemized, verified statement of an account is an ex parte statement and this section, governing its admission, must be strictly complied with, and the person who verifies the account, being treated as a witness pro tanto must be competent to testify as a witness in respect to the account if called upon at the trial, but where an itemized statement of account offered at the trial is verified by the treasurer of the plaintiff corporation who declares in his affidavit that "he is familiar with the books and business" of the plaintiff it cannot be held as a matter of law that the affiant had no personal knowledge of the transaction, and the exclusion of the statement by the trial court will be held for reversible error. Nall v. Kelly, 169 N. C. 717, 86 S. E. 627. See Pitt & Co. v. Schochet, 198 N. C. 769, 153 S. E. 403.

Subordinate to Section 8-51.—In Lloyd & Co. v. Poythress, 185 N. C. 180, 116 S. E. 584, the court said: "We have held that this section, appearing as a section on the law of evidence, should be construed in subordination to C. S. 1789, [§ 8-51] under the principle announced in Cecil v. High Point, 166 N. C. 421, 91 S. E. 616."

See also, Nall v. Kelly, 169 N. C. 717, 86 S. E. 627.

Prima Facie Case.—In an action to recover for goods sold and delivered, where a verified statement of the account shows that it is for goods sold by the plaintiff to the defendant, the number and kind of articles, the catalogue numbers, price per dozen and discounts allowed, and there are trade terms and abbreviations well understood in the trade, which show more fully the kind of articles, it is properly itemized to make out a prima facie case under this section. Claus v. Lee, 140 N. C. 532, 53 S. E. 433; Lipinsky v. Revell, 167 N. C. 508, 83 S. E. 620.

Same.—Non suit.—Where a verified account or affidavit to a statement for goods sold and delivered is insufficient to establish a prima facie case, under the provision of this section, and if this is the only evidence offered, a judgment of non suit on the evidence is properly allowed. Nall v. Kelly, 169 N. C. 717, 86 S. E. 627.

Same—Burden of Proof.—Where a prima facie case has been made out, goods sold and delivered to the defendant, and the latter contends that he, as the agent for the former, was to sell upon commission, and that he had accounted for such sales, except a small balance which he tendered, or offered to submit to judgment for that amount, the burden is upon the defendant to show the fact alleged, and if there is evidence, which is for the determination of the jury upon the question of inquidity.
§ 8-47. Present worth of annuities.—When ever it is necessary to establish the present worth or cash value of an annuity to a person, payable annually during his life, such present worth or cash value may be ascertained by the use of the following table in connection with the mor tuary tables established by law, the first column representing the number of years the annuity is to run and the second column representing the present cash value of an annuity of one dollar for such number of years, respectively:

The present cash value of the annuity for a fraction of a year may be ascertained as follows: multiply the difference between the cash value of the annuities for the preceding and succeeding full years by the fraction of the year in decimals and add the sum to the present cash value.
value for the preceding full year. When a person is entitled to the use of a sum of money for one year, computed at four and one-half per cent, may be considered as an annuity and the present cash value be ascertained as herein provided: Provided, the interest rate in computing the present cash value of dower shall be six per cent. (Rev., s. 1627; 1905, c. 347; 1927, c. 215; C. S. 1791; 1943, c. 543.)

Editor's Note.—The words "computed at four and one-half per cent." after the word "year" and before the word "may" near the end of the section were placed herein by the Act of 1932, which provided that it "shall apply only to estates hereafter created." This act became effective March 9, 1927.

The 1943 amendment added the proviso at the end of the section.

Applicable Only to Annuities.—This section is intended to apply strictly to annuities, and therefore, in an action to recover damages for injuries causing death, it is error to permit the jury to consider the provisions thereof for the purpose of ascertaining the present value of the intestate's life. Poe v. Railroad, 141 N. C. 525, 526, 54 S. E. 466. See Brown v. Lips, 210 N. C. 199, 185 S. E. 681.

Cross References.—See also, §§ 8-50, 8-51, 8-54, 8-56, and notes thereto. As to general treatment of application of the rule herein contained, see § 8-51 and notes thereto.

Editor's Note.—This section abolishes the proviso law rule which prevented a party who was interested in the result of the verdict and judgment from appearing as a witness. A similar enactment will be found in the codes of practically all the states.

A great number of varying constructions have been given to this section, and the decisions of the cases falling hereunder are not altogether harmonious. However, it seems clear that its provisions must be considered in the light of those contained in sec. 8-51 which place certain restrictions on the general rule embodied in this section. In other words, the provisions of sec. 8-50 form exceptions to this section, and they prevent them from the operation of its general rule, leaving the parties falling within these exceptions to stand upon the same footing as they did prior to the enactment of this section. See Charlotte Oil, etc., Co. v. Rippy, 124 N. C. 643, 645, 32 S. E. 980.

The construction of this section should also be in connection with the provisions of secs. 8-50 and 8-55, since they all relate to the same subject—the competency of the witnesses. Powell v. Strickland, 163 N. C. 393, 397, 79 S. E. 872. This being true, a portion of the notes found under each section will necessarily have some bearing on and may prove helpful to the practitioner in construing one or more of the provisions of the codes. A few of the decided cases are placed under other sections. A few of the decided cases are placed under this section simply to show that the general rule contained in its provisions constitutes the foundation for the decisions under the following sections.

Legatee under Will as Witness.—Under this section removing the disqualification on account of interest, the widow of the testator, who was named as a legatee and devisee in a will, is a competent witness to prove the fact that the script propounded was found among the papers of the deceased. Cornelius v. Brawley, 109 N. C. 542, 548, 14 S. E. 78. Nor will the last provision of the section prevent the widow from testifying in this case. "The whole provision applies only to attesting witnesses to the execution of a will."

Beneficiary under holographic will.—Under this and the following sections one who is a beneficiary under a holographic will may testify to such competent relevant and material facts as tend to establish it as a valid will without rendering void the benefits he is to receive thereunder. It is otherwise as to an attesting witness of a will that the statute requires to be attested by witness thereto. In re Will of Westfield, 188 N. C. 702, 125 S. E. 531.

Executive as Witness.—An executor, named in a will, is a competent witness to testify as to the existence, probate and registration of a will, he being rendered competent by this section, and he is not disqualified by sec. 8-51, as to transactions occurring after the death of the testator, as transactions in which he is not interested he can be considered as a legatee, as well as witness to the will and the testator. Cox v. Beaufort County Lumber Co., 124 N. C. 78, 32 S. E. 381.

Party Testifying in Own Behalf.—The provisions of this section remove the disqualification formerly attaching to witnesses having an interest in the same. Little v. Ratliff, 126 N. C. 262, 35 S. E. 469.

Mortgagee.—Where he is not excluded under the provisions of sec. 8-51, the mortgagee in a chattel mortgage is competent, as a subscribing witness thereto, to prove its execution for admission to probate, inasmuch as this section removes the disqualification formerly attaching to witnesses having an interest. Clark v. Hodge, 116 N. C. 761, 18 S. E. 506.

Fornication and Adultery.—In a trial for fornication and adultery a former defendant as to whom a nolle prosequi has been entered is a competent witness against the other defendant. T. v. Phillips.

Party Testifying in Own Behalf.—The provisions of this section make it permissible for a party to testify in his own behalf. Autry v. Floyd, 127 N. C. 186, 37 S. E. 298; State v. McIntosh, 127 N. C. 623.

Applied in State v. Perry, 210 N. C. 796, 188 S. E. 649, dissenting opinion.

§ 8-50. Parties competent as witnesses.—On the trial of any issue, or of any matter or question, or on any inquiry arising in any action, suit or other proceeding in court, or before any judge, justice, jury or other person having, by law, authority to hear and examine evidence, the parties themselves and the person in whose half any suit or other proceeding may be brought or defended, shall, except as otherwise provided, be competent and compellable to give evidence, either viva voce or by deposition, according to the practice of the court, in behalf of either or any of the parties to said action, suit or other proceeding. Nothing in this section shall be construed to apply to any action or other proceeding in any court instituted in consequence of adultery, or to any action for criminal conversation. (Rev., s. 1630; Code, s. 1351; 1866, c. 43, ss. 2, 3; C. S. 1793.)

Cross Reference.—See also, §§ 8-49, 8-51, 8-54, 8-56 and notes thereto.

In general.—This, and secs. 8-49 and 8-51 should be construed together, and thus construed, they do not prohibit the evidence of the husband as to the conduct of his wife, where she is not a party, in his action against another for damages for criminal conversation with his wife and the alienation of her affections. Powell v. Strickland, 163 N. C. 393, 79 S. E. 872.

At common law, neither the husband nor the wife is allowed to prove the fact of access or non-access; and as such rule is founded "upon decency, morality and public policy," it is not changed by this section, allowing parties to testify in their own behalf. Boykin v. Boykin, 70 N. C. 252; King v. Lourton, 21 Eng. C. L. 312.

Testimony of an Accomplice.—An accomplice may not testify on direct examination to facts tending to incriminate another as to the same crime, or at the same time refuse to answer questions on cross-examination relating to matters embraced in his examination-in-chief, and where he refuses to answer relevant questions on cross-examination on the ground that his answers might tend to incriminate him, it is error for the court to refuse defendant's motion that his testimony-in-chief be stricken from the record, the refusal to answer the questions on cross-examination rendering the testimony-in-chief incompetent. State v. Perry, 210 N. C. 796, 188 S. E. 639. See Const., Art. I, sec. 11.

Testifying against Co-Defendant.—A defendant in a criminal case is, under this section, competent and compellable to testify for or against a co-defendant, provided his testimony does not criminate himself. State v. Medler, 178 N. C. 710, 100 S. E. 591; State v. Smith, 86 N. C. 705. See State v. Perry, 210 N. C. 796, 188 S. E. 639, dissenting opinion.

Same.—Practise Not Commendable.—The practice of sending co-defendants to the grand jury to testify against each other, or one of them, is not commendable. State v. Frizzell, 111 N. C. 722, 16 S. E. 469.

Instructions Not to Incriminate Himself.—In an indictment for an affray, it is not error for the presiding judge to caution the witness (a defendant) before the counsel for the other defendant cross-examines him, that he need not tell anything to incriminate himself. State v. Weeks, 105 N. C. 595, 600. See State v. Perry, 210 N. C. 796, 188 S. E. 639, dissenting opinion.

§ 8-51. A party to a transaction excluded, when the other party is dead.—Upon the trial of an action, or the hearing upon the merits of a special proceeding, a party or a person interested in the event, or a person from, through or under whom such a party or interested person derives his interest or title by assignment or otherwise, shall not be examined as a witness in his own behalf, or in behalf of the party succeeding to his title or interest, against the executor, administrator or survivor of a deceased person, or the committee of a lunatic, or a person deriving his title or interest from, through or under a deceased person or lunatic, by assignment or otherwise, concerning a personal transaction or communication between the witness and the deceased person or lunatic; except where the executor, administrator, survivor of a deceased person or lunatic; or the testimony of the lunatic or deceased person is given in evidence concerning the same transaction or communication. I. GENERAL CONSIDERATION.

Editor's Note.—Mr. Justice Clark in Bunn v. Todd, 107 N. C. 266, 111 S. E. 142, has given the following analytical treatment to this section, which has been cited and approved in many of the cases coming within the principles of this section, and has proved to be a helpful guide-post for the courts in deciding as to the admissibility of the particular evidence involved in the case. It is submitted that if the practitioner, in passing upon the exclusion or non-exclusion of evidence in the case at issue upon this section, will carefully compare the point at issue with the clauses of the following out-line, then much time will have been saved, in addition to having the assurance that he more likely will be correct in his conclusion than if he has not been so said, the substantive part of this resume has been accepted by the great majority (if not all) of the courts. See Fidelity Bank v. Wysong, etc., Co., 177 N. C. 284, 98 S. E. 769; Seals v. Seals, 165 N. C. 409, 81 S. E. 613. It disqualifies—

WHOM.—1. Parties to the action.

2. Persons interested in the event of the action.

3. Persons through or under whom the persons in the first two classes derive their title or interest.

A witness, although belonging to one of these three classes, is incompetent only in the following cases:

WHEN.—To testify in behalf of himself, or the person succeeding to his title or interest, against the executor, administrator or survivor of a deceased person, or the committee of a lunatic, or any one deriving his title or interest through them.

And the disqualification of such person, and in even such cases, is restricted to the following:

SUBJECT-MATTER.—As to a personal transaction or communication between the witness and the person since deceased or a deceased person or lunatic.

And even as to those persons and in those cases there are the following:

EXCEPTIONS.—When the representative of, or person claiming through or under, the deceased person or lunatic is examined in his own behalf, or the testimony of the deceased person or lunatic is given in evidence concerning the same transaction or communication. Burnette v. Savage, 92 N. C. 10; Sumner v. Candler, 92 N. C. 634.

The editor has deemed it expedient to use this excellent outline as the basis of his analysis of the section, and, wherever possible, to adhere to the same, making no departures but only continuing the treatment by breaking the lines into further ramifications of the same subjects in order to show the component parts thereof.

Purposes of Section.—The statute was passed to prevent was the giving of testimony by a witness interested in the event, as to a personal transaction or communication between the witness and the deceased person whose lips are forever sealed in death, or by reason of death or lunacy cannot be heard. White v. Mitchell, 190 N. C. 89, 92, 144 S. E. 536.

This section applies to actions in tort as well as actions on contract. Bank v. Williams, 227 N. C. 30, 175 S. E. 832.

Reasons for Exclusion.—The exclusion of such testimony rests not merely upon the ground that the dead man can not have a fair showing, but upon the broader and more practical ground that the other party to the action has no practical ground that the other party to the action has no practical ground to this section, as has been said, the substantive part of this resume has been accepted by the great majority (if not all) of the courts.
the adverse party may "come in." Mansfield v. Wade, 208 N. C. 790, 792, 182 S. E. 475, citing Herring v. Ipock, 187 N. C. 459, 121 S. E. 758.

Instruction to the Court—Section Cannot Be Obtained by Declaratory Judgment—In an action instituted under the Declaratory Judgment Act the court has no authority to instruct a litigant whether to take advantage of the provision of this section, upon the hearing of the case and upon its merits, since such instructions upon a question of procedure do not fall within the purview of the act. Redmond v. Farthburn, 217 N. C. 676, 9 S. E. (2d) 405.

Testimony Not Within Section—Where a widow is entitling during her widowhood to the profits on the land devised by her deceased husband, but not to his moneys commingled therewith in a deposit in a bank, the widow dev-ing the moneys in the deposit. Held, testimony as to her receipt of the money from the crops is competent, not falling within the provisions of this section, and does not affect the title to other money owned by her husband at the time of his death. Redmond v. Farthing, 217 N. C. 678, 9 S. E. (2d) 405.

Same—Conversations with Living Persons. — Where the widow under the terms of the will of her husband may only dispose of the moneys in the bank to her credit, and not as such at her death have passed to the remainderman under his will, it may be shown by disinterested witnesses, and if what is done is as objectionable under this section as based upon conversations with other living parties interested under the husband's will. White v. Mitchell, 196 N. C. 89, 144 S. E. 526.

Record Evidence. — While testimony as to personal transactions with the deceased payee of a note would be incompetent to establish defenses to the note over the head of the personal representative of the payee, record evidence of such evidence, the statutes being the same as this one, not give evidence as to conversations with a deceased person, even though the witness took no part in the conversation." See also, Holland v. Holland, 98 Appellate Div.

Rehearsal of Conversation Admissible. —Direct evidence of a conversation and understanding with the plaintiff's testator is, under this section, incompetent, but a rehearsal of that conversation is a part of the res gestae, and

Unauthorized conversations with parties to an action wherein the statements of or communications of such conversations or of deceased is not in contradiction of this section. Allen v. Allen, 213 N. C. 264, 195 S. E. 407.

Record and Verifiable Accounts. — Section 8-45 relating to itemized and verified accounts is subordinate to this section. See note of Lloyd & Co. v. Poitthress, 185 N. C. 180, 184, 116 S. E. 584, placed under § 8-45 of the above section. Cited in Bynum v. Fidelity Bank, 219 N. C. 109, 112 S. E. (2d) 899 (dissenting opinion).

II. THE SECTION DISQUALIFIES WHOM.

A. Parties to the Action.

Editor's Note. — The general rule is that a party is not competent to testify as to what passed between himself and another deceased or to convert such a person not a party nor interested in the event of the suit may testify as to such transaction or communication.

It will be seen that this section excludes the testimony of "a party or person interested;" in regard to parties, however, interest is not a necessary prerequisite to the exclusion of the evidence and it was not the legislative purpose to bar testimony to a person not interested or not but a "person," of course because of the context of the section, must be interested. See Cartwright v. Coppersmith, 222 N. C. 573, 24 S. E. (2d) 246.

The following cases under this analysis line will demonstrate when persons are considered or are not considered parties to the actions therewith.

A "next friend" is not a party to the suit. Mason v. McCormick, 75 N. C. 263. But his liability for costs renders him incompetent to testify to the transactions or conversations had between the plaintiff and defendant. Id. See also Mc-

Testimony of Guardian.—Testimony of a guardian, suing an executor to establish a gift made by a testatrix to the guardian, as to what occurred between the tes-

\textit{tatrix and executor, was admissible as against the objection that the guardian could not testify as to any communication or transaction between himself and testatrix. Zhobnoff v. Billant, 187 N. C. 678, 187 S. E. 407.}

Testimony of Tenant.—In an action for goods sold and delivered to the intestate, a tenant of the intestate who was furnished with goods from the plaintiff's store, and settled with the intestate, is competent to testify in the suit on the plaintiff's behalf as to the intestate's delivery to him of the merchandise because the witness is not a party to the action. Sorrell v. McGhee, 178 N. C. 279, 100 S. E. 344.

Probate of Will.—In a proceeding for the probate of a will, both propounders and caveators are parties within the meaning and spirit of this section. In re Will of Brown, 194 N. C. 593, 190 S. E. 192.

Under this section the beneficiary under a will may not testify to transactions and communications with the deceased, but he may in proceedings of devisavit vel non give his opinion, based on his observations of the mental incapacity of the deceased at the time of the execution of the writing propounded, and then testify to personal transactions he has had with the party, as a part of the basis of his opinion, when evidence of this character is properly so confined upon the trial by instructions or otherwise, the weight and credibility being for the jury to determine. In re Will of Brown, 194 N. C. 583, 190 S. E. 192.

transaction between himself and the intestate, in a suit

A member of the board of county commissioners is not a competent witness as to transactions with the defendant's intestate in a suit by the board. Commissioners v. Lash, 89 N. C. 159.

A principal debtor, who was a party to an action to foreclose a mortgage given by his sureties as security for the loan, was an incompetent witness to a contract with the deceased creditor. Benedict v. Jones, 129 N. C. 475, 50 S. E. 223.

Party Acting in Corporate Capacity. — One who is a party to a suit, though in his corporate capacity, is not competent to testify as to a transaction with a person deceased. Commissioners v. Lash, 89 N. C. 159.

In an action to recover for services rendered deceased, testimony by the plaintiff that plaintiff boarded deceased and was furnished with goods from the plaintiff's store, and settled with the intestate, is competent to testify in the suit on the plaintiff's behalf as to the intestate's delivery to him of the merchandise because the witness is not a party to the action. Sorrell v. McGhee, 178 N. C. 279, 100 S. E. 344.

Time and Place of Signing Receipt.—The defendant in an action for money demanded is disqualified by this section, to prove as to the time and place of signing a receipt by the plaintiff's intestate, in support of his plea of satisfaction. Sumner v. Candler, 86 N. C. 71.

B. Persons Interested in the Event of the Action.

1. General Consideration.

The Rule Stated. — To be incompetent under this section a witness must be either a party to the action or interested in the event thereof. Having discussed the question, "as to the meaning of a "party" under the preceding analysis line, it next becomes pertinent to examine the subject of "interest" of witnesses and other persons not parties.

To determine when such interest exists so as to render the person incompetent to testify, persons are divided into two classes: a) "persons interested." The true test of the competency of a witness is whether he bears such a relation to the controversy that the verdict and judgment in the case may be used against him as a party in another suit. Jones v. Emory, 115 N. C. 158, 20 S. E. 266; Henderson v. McLain, 146 N. C. 339, 59 S. E. 873.

Nature of Interest Involved.—This section does not disqualify a witness merely because he, as distinguished from other persons, is interested in the event of the action, but only such as have a direct and substantial or a direct legal or pecuniary interest in the result. Jones v. Emory, 115 N.

Husband as Interested Party in Check Given Wife.—When the husband of the deceased was the payee of a check payable to the deceased and signed by the intestate was introduced in evidence to show an advancement, the husband's daughter was held competent under this section to testify over objection that, although induced by the intestate to draw the check, he was not a party thereto. In General.—The words of this section "derives its interest or title by assignment or otherwise" mean—gets from a source—some person, through or under one or more persons, successively, directly or indirectly, immediately, "his interest or title," any valuable interest in part or share of something real or personal, of whatever nature, whether legal or equitable, acquired by assignment, devise or by any other means, or in any other manner. III. WHEN THE DISQUALIFICATION EXISTS.

Editor's Note.—Continuing the treatment as based upon Mr. Justice Clark's resume of this section, it is proper at this place to consider the circumstances which render incompetent the testimony of a witness who with or for more of the three classes of persons who are disqualified by the provision of this section. It will be seen from the outline given under the analysis line "General Considerations" that section (a) of the section, rendered incompetent the testimony of the party suiting in two cases, (1) when he testifies in behalf of himself, or the person succeeding to his title or interest, and (2) when the testimony is against the representative of a deceased person, or any one deriving his title or interest through him. The following cases will illustrate the principles upon which the inclusion or exclusion of the communication falling within one or both of these subdivisions is founded. They appear in the order as stated in the outline.

Testifying against Interest.—Under this section a witness may testify to communications, even if there by other parties to the suit are injuriously affected and the disqualification applies only when a witness testifies in his own behalf. In re Worth's Will, 129 N. C. 233, 39 S. E. 955.

In proceedings to caveat a will, an heir at law who will receive more as a beneficiary under the will if it is not set aside may testify to declarations made by the testator after the will is executed. Rose v. Rose, 12 N. C. 398, 27 S. E. 117; In re Worth's Will, 129 N. C. 233, 39 S. E. 956.

In an action to declare a deed void on the ground that it was procured by fraud, the deponent, testi donied by the grantor tending to show that the deed had not been delivered is not incompetent under this section. Gulley v. Smith, 203 N. C. 274, 165 S. E. 710.

Suits against Sureties.—A defendant having an interest in the event of an action is not permitted under this section to testify in his own behalf, for the purpose of contra dicting a former witness whose testimony tended to show that he was procured and delivered to the grantee from a person deceased. Bushee v. Surles, 77 N. C. 62.

Testifying in Favor of Representative.—Where a witness was not asked to testify against the representative or assignee of a deceased person, the fact testified to could not be made to appear that the knowledge of the witness was derived from, and which was in no sense a transaction with, a representative of the deceased, as will be seen from the catchline "Proof of Handwriting" following in this note, or as to any independent fact which was neither a transaction nor communication with the representative of a deceased person. Wilson, 101 N. C. 596, 600, 8 S. E. 225; Cox v. Beaufort County Lumber Co., 124 N. C. 78, 32 S. E. 381; Davidson v. Bardin, 139 N. C. 1, 51 S. E. 779.

This section does not preclude a witness from testifying to independent facts and circumstances within her observation and knowledge or from giving evidence of what she saw or heard take place between the deceased and another or others, not involving personal or legal transactions with the representative of the deceased. Collins v. Lamb, 215 N. C. 719, 2 S. E. (2d) 863.

Testimony of an interested witness as to independent facts and circumstances, within his own knowledge, or as to what he saw or heard take place between the deceased and another party, is not rendered incompetent by this section, since in such instances the testimony does not relate to a personal transaction or communication between the witness and deceased, and does not in any way impeach the testimony as such. Testimony of third persons present is competent in such cases.

Driving of Car Is "Transaction" within Meaning of Statute.—Where the only evidence of negligence in an action by the wife of the driver to recover for injuries sustained in an automobile accident was her testimony that he was traveling at an excessive speed upon a curve, and that the accident occurred when the car failed to make the curve, and that she had spoken to him in regard to the speed he was driving the car, the driving of the car was a transaction within the meaning of the term as used in this section, and her testimony as to the conversation is competent testimony in this case. Sherrill v. Wilson, 182 N. C. 673, 675, 110 S. E. 95.

In an action against an administrator to recover for personal injuries, the husband of a deceased person who was unable to drive a car and that at the time of the accident there was another person were in the car, when taken in connection with other evidence tending to show that intestate was such other person and customarily drove the car, was within the prohibition of this section, as being of a transaction with a deceased person material in establishing liability on the part of the estate. Davis v. Pearson, 220 N. C. 163, 16 S. E. (2d) 655.

In order to exclude testimony under this provision, it must be made to appear that the knowledge of the witness was derived from a personal or legal transaction with the defendant, and has no connection with the performance of his duty. Thompson v. Onley, 96 N. C. 9, 1, S. E. 620. And it is proper to show whether the witness had knowledge of the transaction which is testified to or as to any independent fact which was neither a transaction nor communication with the deceased. Charlotte Oil, etc., Co. v. Rippy, 123 N. C. 626, 31 S. E. 879.

Facts Occurring Out of Presence of Deceased.—A witness is incompetent, under this section, to testify to communications or relations with the deceased principal when such communications or relations are not sustained. In re Worth's Will, 129 N. C. 233, 39 S. E. 955.

The rule to be deduced from these authorities is that the surety, who comes not within the intendment of the law, stands in the same position and is entitled to the same protection under the testimony affects the estate either directly or indirectly over against the representative or survivor of the principal. The rule to be deduced from these authorities is that the surety, who comes not within the intendment of the law, stands in the same position and is entitled to the same protection under the testamentary act, which is intended to protect the deceased, and his representative, against the representative or survivor of the principal. This section does not preclude a witness from testifying to independent facts and circumstances within her observation and knowledge or from giving evidence of what she saw or heard take place between the deceased and another or others, not involving personal or legal transactions with the representative of the deceased. Collins v. Lamb, 215 N. C. 719, 2 S. E. (2d) 863.

misleading as being to a substantive fact of which she had knowledge independently of any statement by the deceased. Sutton v. Wells, 173 N. C. 1, 94 S. E. 688.

The rule may be deduced, therefore, that a party in interest may not introduce evidence of any transaction or communication with the deceased or is based upon independent knowledge not derived from such source. Sutton v. Wells, 175 N. C. 1, 94 S. E. 989. In re Will of Inman, 156, 98 S. E. 378; Price Real Estate, etc., Co. v. Jones, etc., 191 N. C. 176, 131 S. E. 587.

Conversation of Deceased with Living Defendant.—This section does not apply to the testimony of an interested witness as to a conversation between her deceased father and a living defendant. This is not testimony concerning a personal transaction. Abernathy v. Skildmore, 190 N. C. 66, 135 S. E. 475.

Testimony Given in Former Trial.—It is competent for the plaintiff’s witness to testify what the deceased maker of the note said unto him, but was not such not be a personal transaction within the meaning of the provisions of this section. Worth v. Wrenn, 144 N. C. 665, 657, 57 S. E. 388; Costen v. McDowell, 197 N. C. 545, 12 S. E. 433.

Proof of Handwriting.—A party interested in the event of a suit is not an incompetent witness, under this section, to prove the handwriting of the deceased person. Riff v. Armfield, 109 N. C. 63, 65; Armfield v. Colvert, 103 N. C. 147, 9 S. E. 461; Sawyer v. Grady, 113 N. C. 42, 18 S. E. 79; Lister v. Lister, 222 N. C. 553, 44 S. E. 246.

The decisions are based on the distinction which is drawn between proving the handwriting and proving the actual signing of the paper, the latter being held to be a transaction within the meaning of this section. A similar distinction was drawn in the case of State v. Maxwell, 64 N. C. 313, the case having been decided prior to the insertion of the word "personal," before the word "transaction." In the Rush Case the court regards this amendment as the legislative recognition of the soundness of that distinction and says that it (the amendment) was "probably induced by the decision in State v. Maxwell."—Ed. Note. § 7-227, 28. 1d (2d) 2549; Ruff v. Armfield, 124 N. C. 78, 82, 32 S. E. 381, it is held that this section does not apply to wills, but that they are governed by sections 31-9 and 31-10; this was placed on the ground that the testator in that section is necessarily a contract or agreement between the parties, and in the case of a will there is ordinarily no transactions between the parties.

By the same reasoning it is held that attesting a will is not a "personal transaction," the witness being of the law and not of the party. Vester v. Collins, 101 N. C. 114, 117 S. E. 687. Again, a beneficiary may testify as to the leaving of a house to another, but not as to the leaving of a writing, as the leaving of a writing need not be a personal transaction. In re Will of Saunders, 177 N. C. 156, 94 S. E. 678.

Circumstances may arise, however, in which the person interested as a beneficiary may attempt to testify as to personal transactions or conversations with the deceased and this testimony would be incompetent as to certain matters relating to the identification of certain claimants, etc. such as being "personal transactions with the deceased, prohibited by this section. Knight v. Everett, 153 N. C. 110, 67 S. E. 328; Dunt v. Currie, 141 N. C. 123, 53 S. E. 533.

Sale of Property by Guardian.—It is competent for the plaintiff to prove the sale by his guardian as this is not a personal transaction within the meaning of this section. State v. Osborne, 67 N. C. 259.

Testimony as to Placement of Deed.—This section does not exclude testimony that the defendant was a holder of a negotiable instrument in due course for the possession of another claimant of the title. Price Real Estate, etc., Co. v. Jones, 191 N. C. 176, 131 S. E. 587.

In a proceeding for dowry, the decision of the question whether the plaintiff left her husband’s home of her own volition or by reason of what the law will recognize as compulsion, is an inquiry that does not involve a communication or transaction with her husband which disqualifies her under this section. Hicks v. Hicks, 142 N. C. 231, 55 S. E. 155.

Claim That Intestate Was Holder in Due Course.—Where the administrator of the deceased claims that his intestate was a holder of a negotiable instrument in due course for value, and relies upon his intestate’s possession to make out a prima facie case, it is not a personal transaction or communication with the deceased, prohibited by statute, for it may be shown in rebuttal that after maturity it was seen in the possession of another claimant of the title. Price Real Estate, etc., Co. v. Jones, 191 N. C. 176, 131 S. E. 587.

Evidence of the declarations of a deceased partner tending to show that the deceased partner made an agreement with the plaintiff for the check to be marked "balance on account" was not to be taken as full settlement is incompetent as a transaction or communication with a deceased person prohibited by this section. Walston v. Minter, 276 N. C. 540, 129 S. E. 319.

Sale of Interest in Partnership.—This section does not apply to a transaction between living persons by which one of them sold to the other his interest in a firm of which the others are partners. Brantly v. Marshall, 166 N. C. 527, 82 S. E. 959.

Bailment.—The burden is on plaintiff to show the contract of bailment sued on, whether express or implied, by competent evidence, and the fact that the alleged bailee is dead, rendering incompetent testimony as to any transaction or communication with him to establish the bailment, is not a circumstance to be considered in passing upon the sufficiency of the evidence actually presented. Troxler v. Brevill, 215 N. C. 640, 3 S. E. (3d) 8.

Settlement of Estate.—Testimony relating to an agreement between administrator and distributee in regard to the settlement of an estate was incompetent in an action by distributee’s administrator to recover assets. Wilder v. Medlin, 215 N. C. 542, 2 S. E. (3d) 249.

Possession of stock, see Jones v. Waldroup, 217 N. C. 178, 17 S. E. (3d) 466.

V. EXCEPTIONS.

Similar Evidence Previously Introduced.—This section does not apply where evidence, similar to that which is being introduced, has previously been introduced and the door has not been opened to the opposing party. Davidson v. West Oxford Land Co., 126 N. C. 704, 705, 35 S. E. 162.

Grounds for Exceptions.—The rule of exclusion, if left absolute in form, might in certain cases, it was thought, tend to make it fair and just in its operation. There is nothing inequitable in requiring that the opposing testimony to that evidence of the party be pertinent. Summer v. Candler, 92 N. C. 634, 66 S. E. 121.

The exception may extend to the introduction of evidence of transactions or communications with a deceased person, prohibited by this section, such evidence must relate to the particular subject-matter of the evidence tested and not to the adverse party to whom the testimony of the deceased person or his representative was pertinent. Summer v. Candler, 92 N. C. 634.

Illustrations.—Where the defendant executor has testified to the fact that it was the same "will," when only for the purpose of showing that the testator was not of the party. Vester v. Collins, 101 N. C. 114, 7 S. E. 687. Again, a beneficiary may testify as to the leaving of a house to another, but not as to the leaving of a writing, as the leaving of a writing need not be a personal transaction. In re Will of Saunders, 177 N. C. 156, 94 S. E. 678.
letters the deceased had written upon the question of whether a charge of fraud was a part of the debt of a firm, it is competent for the plaintiff's witnesses to testify in the plaintiff's behalf, as to other matters relating thereto and tending to fix the deceased with liability as a partner, under the principle that when the defendant has himself "opened the door by his own evidence" the plaintiff may testify as to the completed transaction, and this section prohibiting testimony as to transaction, etc., with a deceased person does not apply. Herring v. Ipool, 147 N. C. 459, 131 S. E. 738.

It is incompetent as a transaction with a deceased person for the plaintiff to testify as to personal services rendered coming within her demand for damages. Pulliam v. Hoge, 192 N. C. 459, 135 S. E. 288.

objection as to witness' competency was overruled, and of the court or other body demanding such a proper administration of justice. (Rev., s. 1631; 1883, c. 159; C. S. 1797.)

In General.—The principle by which a physician may not be compelled to divulge communications and other matters which have come to his knowledge by observation of his professional occupation, or by any other means, is regulated by statute. In this section, the privilege is qualified, and it rests within the discretion of the trial judge, in the administration of justice, to compel the physician, called as a witness, to testify to what he has learned from his observation of the same is necessary to a proper administration of justice. (Rev., s. 1631; 1883, c. 159; C. S. 1797.)

What Information Included.—It is the accepted construction of this statute that it extends, not only to information orally communicated by the patient, but to knowledge obtained by the physician in the course of his occupation, or by any other means, which he has no right to withhold, and which information was necessary to enable him to prescribe. Smith v. Roper Lumber Co., 147 N. C. 62, 64, 60 S. E. 717; Gartside v. Smith, 201 N. C. 658, 191 S. E. 840.

Relationship of (Physician and Patient Must Exist)—The admissions of one accused of crime are not rendered competent in the absence of the patient alone, and it may be excused on or waives all objections subject to the exceptions included in the section. Smith v. Roper Lumber Co., 147 N. C. 62, 64, 60 S. E. 717; Fuller v. Knights of Pythias, 129 N. C. 318, 40 S. E. 65. See Creech v. Sovereign Camp, W. O. W., 211 N. C. 638, 191 S. E. 840.

Privilege May Be Waived.—The privilege given by this section is for the benefit of the patient alone, and it may be excused on or waives all objections subject to the exceptions included in the section. Smith v. Roper Lumber Co., 147 N. C. 62, 64, 60 S. E. 717; Fuller v. Knights of Pythias, 129 N. C. 318, 40 S. E. 65. See Creech v. Sovereign Camp, W. O. W., 211 N. C. 638, 191 S. E. 840.

Judge's Finding of Record that Testimony Necessary.—Before a physician may testify to matters arising in his confidential relationship with his patient, our statute requires that the physician, called as a witness, shall so decide, and the physician's testimony is "necessary to a proper administration of justice," and in the absence of such finding appearing of record on appeal, it is reversible error for the trial judge upon defendant's objection should have been excluded. Smith v. Roper Lumber Co., 147 N. C. 62, 64, 60 S. E. 717; Fuller v. Knights of Pythias, 129 N. C. 318, 40 S. E. 65. See Creech v. Sovereign Camp, W. O. W., 211 N. C. 638, 191 S. E. 840.

excused from testifying on ground that testimony will tend to incriminate him, see §§ 1-357, 14-354, 14-38, 18-8, 18-27.

For article discussing the limits to self-incrimination, see section.

Treated as Other Witnesses.—When the defendant exercises privilege not to testify, he is treated just as any other witness and his demeanor is weighed and tested as that of any other witness. State v. Effer, 85 N.C. 585; State v. Hawkins, 115 N.C. 712, 715, 20 S. E. 623.

Where a defendant in a criminal prosecution testifies in his own behalf, he waives his constitutional privilege not to answer questions tending to incriminate him and is subject to cross-examination for the purpose of impeaching his credibility as other witnesses. State v. Griffin, 201 N.C. 541, 160 S. E. 896.

Extent of Cross Examination Permitted.—Cross examination of a defendant under this section is not confined to matters as to which he has testified in the prosecution but includes all matters which are admissible to impeach, diminish or impair the credit of the witness. State v. Dickerson, 189 N.C. 327, 127 S. E. 256.

Testimony May Be Used in Subsequent Trial.—When a defendant, in a prosecution for another crime, testifies in his own behalf, after having been informed of his privilege not to testify, admissions made by him are competent evidence against him in a subsequent trial. State v. Simpson, 131 N.C. 676, 45 S. E. 567.

Failure to Stand.—The failure of the prisoner charged with homicide to take the witness-stand voluntarily will not constitute a presumption against him. State v. Byrnum, 175 N.C. 777, 95 S. E. 101.

Court need not charge that failure of defendant to testify should not be considered against him in absence of request. State v. Yount, 156, 5, 522 S. E. 401.

Where defendant moved to set aside the verdict on ground that the jury, without defendant's consent, took into its room the complaint in a civil action relating to the subject matter of the prosecution, which had been admitted in evidence without objection, and typed notes of the argument of the defendant's counsel, the court erred in not considering the disadvantages of that position, and his credibility is to be weighed and tested as that of any other witness. State v. Cloninger, 77 N.C. 246.

In declaring him to be "a competent witness" we would give that of any "interested witness," perforce impose a burden and the attending disadvantages of that position, and his credibility is to be weighed and tested as that of any other witness. State v. Horne, 209 N.C. 725, 184 S. E. 776.

The right of the defendant to offer testimony of his good character does not depend upon his having been examined as a witness in his own behalf. State v. Hice, 117 N.C. 782, 21 S. E. 357.

"In declaring him to be 'a competent witness' we understand the statute to mean that he shall occupy the same position as any witness and be subject to the same cross-examination, to tell the truth, entitled to the same privileges, receive the same protection, and equally liable to be impeached or discredited." State v. Effer, 85 N.C. 585; State v. Traylor, 121 N.C. 674, 676, 19 S. E. 493.

Same.—Put in Issue by State.—Where, in the trial of a criminal action, the defendant testifies in his own behalf and introduces no evidence as to his general character, but the State introduces evidence to show the bad character of the defendant, it was bad, it was held that such evidence by the State can be considered only as affecting the credibility of the defendant as a witness and not as a circumstance in determining the question of his guilt or innocence. State v. Traylor, 121 N.C. 674, 28 S. E. 493.

Where There Are Two or More Defendants.—Even prior to the enactment of this section one defendant could not oppose the testifying of his codefendant for himself, the State's counsel not objecting. State v. Hamlet, 85 N.C. 525.

Weight Given Testimony as Confessions.—The defendant in a criminal action is competent as a witness in his own defense upon the preliminary hearing of the trial judge, as to whether confessions he had made to the officers of the law were voluntarily made or induced from him contrary to law. State v. Whitener, 191 N.C. 659, 132 S. E. 603.

Admission before Magistrate.—Where a prisoner made certain confessions which were induced by hope, and therefore inadmissible, but a day or so after, upon his examination before a committing magistrate, he asked to be examined as a witness on his own behalf, when he admitted that he had made the confessions, but said that they were false; and when he was informed that his witness was admissible against him, and it was for the jury to say whether they believed the confession, or that part of his evidence declaring that the confessions were false, that was true. State v. Ellis, 97 N.C. 447, 2 S. E. 525.

Weight Given Testimony as Confessions.—When the defendant introduces evidence himself to prove his good character, then that evidence is substantive evidence, and may be considered by the jury as such. State v. Cloninger, 149 N.C. 557, 75 S. E. 123.

Constitutional Provision as to Self-Incrimination.—See N. C. Const., Art. I, § 11, and notes thereto.

Erroneous Instructions.—While it is proper for the court to instruct the jury to scrutinize testimony of a defendant in a criminal prosecution because of his interest in the case, it is error for the court to instruct the jury to scrutinize testimony because of his interest in the case, and the pertinent decisions, and constitutes prejudicial error. State v. Wilcox, 206 N.C. 691, 175 S. E. 122.

Constitutional Provision as to Self-Incrimination.—See N. C. Const., Art. I, § 11, and notes thereto.

Proper Instruction.—The court's remarks to the jury in instructing them that defendant was within his rights in not testifying, and that his failure to testify should not be considered against him, were proper. State v. Deloach, 195 N.C. 219, 148 S. E. 206. State v. Decker, 194 N.C. 765, 139 S. E. 230; State v. Speivey, 198 N.C. 635, 565, 133 S. E. 255; State
§ 8-55. Testimony enforced in certain criminal investigations; immunity.—If any justice of the peace, magistrate of police, mayor of a town, or judge of the supreme or superior courts shall have good reason to believe that any person within his jurisdiction has knowledge of the existence and establishment of any faro-bank, faro-table or other gaming table prohibited by law, or of any place where intoxicating liquors are sold contrary to law, in any town or county within his jurisdiction, such person not being minded to make voluntary information thereof on oath, then it shall be lawful for such justice of the peace, magistrate, mayor, or judge to issue to the sheriff of the county or to any constable of the town or township in which such faro-bank, faro-table, gaming table, or place where intoxicating liquors are sold contrary to law is supposed to be, a subpoena, capias ad testificandum, or other summons in writing, commanding such person to appear immediately before such justice of the peace, magistrate, mayor or judge and give evidence on oath as to what he may know touching the existence, establishment and whereabouts of such faro-bank, faro-table or other gaming table, or place where intoxicating liquors are sold contrary to law, and the name and personal description of the keeper thereof. Such evidence, when obtained, shall be considered and held in law as an information on oath, and the justice, magistrate, mayor or judge may thereupon proceed to seize and arrest such keeper and destroy such table, or issue process therefore as provided by law. No person shall be excused, on any prosecution, from testifying touching any unlawful gaming done by himself or others; but no discovery made by the witness upon such examination shall be used against him in any civil or criminal proceeding, and he shall be altogether pardoned of the offenses so done or participated in by him. (Rev., ss. 3721, 1637; Code, ss. 1215, 1050; R. C., c. 55, s. 50; 1858-9, c. 34, s. 1; 1889, c. 353; 1913, c. 141; C. S. 1800.)

§ 8-56. Husband and wife as witnesses in civil actions.—In any trial or inquiry in any suit, action or proceeding in any court, or before any person having, by law or consent of parties, authority to examine witnesses or hear evidence, the husband or wife of any party thereto, or of any person in whose behalf any such suit, action or proceeding is brought, prosecuted, opposed or defended, shall, except as herein stated, be competent and compellable to give evidence, as any other witness on behalf of any party to such suit, action or proceeding. Nothing herein shall render any husband or wife competent or compellable to give evidence for or against the other in any action or proceeding in consequence of adultery, or in any action or proceeding for divorce on account of adultery (except to prove the fact of marriage); or in any action or proceeding for or on account of criminal conversation, except that in actions of criminal conversation brought by the husband in which the character of the wife is assailed she shall be a competent witness to testify in refutation of such charges. No husband or wife shall be compellable to disclose any confidential communication made by one to the other during their marriage. (Rev., s. 1638; Code, s. 588; C. C. 1215, s. 541; 1866, c. 43, ss. 3, 4; 1919, c. 18; C. S. 1901.)

Cross References.—As to competency in criminal actions, see § 8-57 and notes thereto. See also, § 8-50.

Editor’s Note.—For note on privileged communications between husband and wife, see 15 N. C. Law Rev. 282.

In General.—Husbands and wives are competent and compellable to give evidence for or against each other, save only in the particular cases mentioned in the section. Barrows v. Barrington, 69 N. C. 179, 181.

The provisions of this section are quite clear and self-explanatory. The legislative intent is apparent and little room is left for a judicial construction of the clauses herein contained. A few of the leading cases are sufficient to show that the decisions of the various cases arising hereunder have been predicated upon the section as actually worded, without any judicial inferences being drawn by the courts.

Cross Reference.—See also, §§ 18-27.

§ 8-57. Husband and wife as witnesses in criminal actions.—The husband or wife of the defendant, in all criminal actions or proceedings, shall be a competent witness for the defendant, but the failure of such witness to be examined shall not be used to the prejudice of the defense. Every such person examined as a witness shall be subject to be cross-examined as are other witnesses. No husband or wife shall be compelled to disclose any confidential communication made by one to the other during their marriage. Nothing herein shall render any husband or wife competent or compellable to give evidence against each other in any criminal action or proceeding, except to prove the fact of marriage in case of bigamy, and except that in all criminal prosecutions of a husband for an assault and battery upon his wife, or for abandoning his wife, for failure to support, and/or for neglecting to provide for his support, and/or the support of his children, it shall be lawful to examine the wife in behalf of the state against the husband. (Rev. ss. 1834, 1835, 1836; Code, ss. 1855, 1856; 1855-6, c. 23, 1865; 1866-9, c. 209; 1881, c. 110; 1933, C. 15, § 1, 1923, c. 361; C. S. 1802.)

Cross Reference.—As to competency in civil action, see §§ 8-55 and notes thereto.

Editor’s Note.—Public Laws of 1933, cc. 13 and 361, added, near the end of this section, the words “and/or his children” following the words “and/or the support of his children” following the word “support.” For a criticism of this amendment, see 11 N. C. Law Rev. 231.

In General.—Under this section the husband or wife is a competent witness for the defendant in all criminal actions or proceedings. State v. Harrison, 94 N. C. 855. But neither is competent or compellable to give evidence against the other in any criminal proceeding. Id. See State v. Watson, 215 N. C. 387, 1 S. E. (2d) 886.

Under this section a wife is neither competent nor compellable to testify against her husband in a criminal proceeding, hence hearsay evidence of her declarations, not made in his presence or by his authority, which would be prejudicial to the husband, is inadmissible. State v. Reid, 178 N. C. 245, 101 S. E. 103. See State v. Cotton, 218 N. C. 577, 12 S. E. (2d) 246.

Discretion of Trial Judge.—Where the defendant husband is alleged to have stolen certain property, it is competent for him to introduce his wife as a witness to prove from what source he got the money to pay for such property, but unless he introduces her in proper time it rests within the discretion of the trial judge whether her testimony will be admissible. State v. Lemon, 92 N. C. 791, 793.

A wife cannot be compelled to testify against her husband in a criminal action; and when she takes the stand in his behalf in a criminal proceeding, her evidence shall be received. State v. Tola, 222 N. C. 406, 23 S. E. (2d) 321.

Confidential Communication.—Testimony of a witness that at the time of the threats is not of the defendant, by the officers of the law, his wife was present and said to him: “I told you that you would get into it if you did not stay with me like I wanted you to.” To which the reply was: “I had not a confidential communication between husband and wife except of public policy, be admitted in evidence. State v. Brittain, 117 N. C. 783, 23 S. E. 433.

Husband May Testify Against Wife in Assault.—Conversely to the rule herein stated, in this section the witness is not the witness against the defendant; it appears that a husband may testify in assault by the one upon the other. State v. Self, 522; State v. Alderman, 182 N. C. 917, 919, 110 S. E. 59.

In case of assault and battery with intent to kill by poison, with evidence tending to show the previous threats of murder, the wife is competent to testify in connection with the other evidence in the case. State v. Freeman, 197 N. C. 376, 191 S. E. 450.

The confidential communication between husband and wife cannot be exculpating or admissible in evidence. in the cause from which the subpoenas or commissions issued. (Rev., s. 1642; Code, s. 1371; R. C., c. 31, s. 72; 1810, c. 787; 1832, c. 8; C. S. 1806.)

Cross Reference.—As to depositions generally, see § 8-63.

In General.—Until the transcript is deposited the removal is not consummated and the cause is not constituted so as to give full jurisdiction to the court to which the removal is ordered, hence to meet this situation the provision of this section gives to the clerk of either court the power to issue subpoenas for witnesses. Commissioners v. Lemly, 85 N. C. 342, 146.

Upon removal jurisdiction of the court from which the cause is removed ceases, unless otherwise provided in the order of removal, or by consent of the parties in writing, duly filed. Fisher v. Cid Copper Min. Co., 105 N. C. 123, 10 S. E. 1055.

This section, however, makes one exception to the general rule by allowing the subpoena to be issued from either court. Fisher v. Cid Copper Min. Co., 105 N. C. 123, 10 S. E. 1055.

Time for Depositing Transcript.—The party procuring the order of removal has until the term of the court to which the cause is removed to deposit his transcript. Fisher v. Cid Copper Min. Co., 105 N. C. 123, 10 S. E. 1055.

§ 8-63. Witnesses attend until discharged; effect of nonattendance.—Every witness, being summoned to appear in any of the said courts, in manner before directed, shall appear accordingly, and continue to attend from term to term until discharged, when summoned in a civil action or special proceeding, by the court or the party at whose instance such witness shall be summoned, or, when summoned in a criminal prosecution, until discharged by the court, the prosecuting officer, or the party at whose instance the witness was summoned; and in default thereof shall forfeit and pay, in civil actions or special proceedings, to the party at whose instance the subpoena issued, the sum of forty dollars, to be recovered by motion in the cause, and shall be further liable to his action for the full damages which may be sustained for the want of such witness’s testimony; or if summoned in a criminal prosecution shall forfeit and pay eighty dollars for the use of the state, or the party summoning him. If the civil action or special proceeding shall, in the vacation, be compromised and settled between the parties, and the party at whose instance such witness was summoned should omit to discharge him from further attendance, and for want of such discharge he shall attend the next term, in that case the witness, upon oath made of the facts, shall be entitled to a ticket of the clerk from the court in the same manner as other witnesses, and shall recover from the party at whose instance he was summoned the allowance which is given to witnesses for their attendance, with costs.

No execution shall issue against any defaulting witness for the forfeiture aforesaid but after notice made known to him to show cause against the issuing thereof; and if sufficient cause be shown of his incapacity to attend, execution shall not issue, and the witness shall be discharged of the forfeiture without costs; but otherwise the court shall, on motion, award execution for the forfeiture against the defaulting witness. (Rev., s. 1643; Code, s. 1356; R. C., c. 31, ss. 60, 61, 62; 1777, c. 115, ss. 37, 38, 43; 1799, c. 528; 1801, c. 591; C. S. 1807.)

Cross Reference.—See also, §§ 6-51, 6-62.

Duty to Attend.—When a subpoena has been served on a witness, he is required by this section to attend from term to term until discharged. State v. Gwynn, 61 N. C. 445.

Non-Attendance Need Not Be Wilful.—This section does not require that the failure of the witness to attend should be "wilful." In re Pierce, 163 N. C. 247, 79 S. E. 507.

When Witness May Elect.—Where two subpoenas are served on a witness, requiring his attendance on the same day at different places distant from each other, he is not bound to obey the writ which may have been first served, but may make his election between them. Ichehour v. Martin, 44 N. C. 466.

Test of Inability to Attend.—In an early case, Eller v. Roberts, 25 N. C. 11, it was held that where a witness alleged that he was unable to attend court, this inability must be decided by reference to the modes of travelling which are in use in the community.

Where Service Had on Transient.—A witness, who is summoned in this State, while casually here, but who resides in another state, cannot be required to pay a forfeiture for non-attendance, if he has returned to his own state and is there at his domicile. Kinsey v. King, 28 N. C. 687.

Attorney Not Exempt.—A witness who fails to appear when the case is called in which he has been subpoenaed to testify is not justified in his default because he is a practicing attorney at law and has cases to try in another county at the date upon which the case was called wherein he was a witness, and the party who subpoenaed him can recover the penalty, with the costs of the motions. In re Pierce, 163 N. C. 424, 79 S. E. 497.

An issue in bastardy is not a "criminal prosecution" so as to subject a defaulting witness to the fine of eighty dollars, prescribed by this section. Ward v. Bell, 52 N. C. 79.

When Witness May Elect.—Where two subpoenas are served on a witness, with a copy of the certificate attached, directing the witness to appear at a time and place certain for the hearing. The judge at the hearing, being satisfied of the desirability of such custody and place specified in the summons. In any such hearing the certificate shall be prima facie evidence of all the facts stated therein.

If a judge of a court of record in the county in which such person is, such judge shall fix a time and place for a hearing, and shall make an order directing the witness to appear at a time and place certain for the hearing.

If at a hearing the judge determines that the witness is material and necessary, that it will be cause undue hardship to the witness to be compelled to attend and testify in the prosecution or a grand jury investigation in the other state, and that the laws of the state in which the prosecution is pending, or grand jury investigation has commenced or is about to commence, and of any other state through which the witness may be required to pass by ordinary course of travel, will give to him protection from arrest and the service of civil and criminal process, he shall issue a summons, with a copy of the certificate attached, directing the witness to attend and testify in the court where the prosecution is pending, or where a grand jury investigation has commenced or is about to commence, at a time and place specified in the summons. In any such hearing the certificate shall be prima facie evidence of all the facts stated therein.

If said certificate recommends that the witness be taken into immediate custody and delivered to an officer of the requesting state to assure his attendance in the requesting state, such judge may, in lieu of notification of the hearing, direct that such witness be forthwith brought before him for said hearing; and the judge at the hearing, being satisfied of the desirability of such custody and delivery, for which determination the certificate shall be prima facie proof of such desirability may, in lieu of issuing subpoena or summons, order that said witness be forthwith taken into custody and delivered to an officer of the requesting state.

If the witness, who is summoned as above provided, after being paid or tendered by some properly authorized person the sum of ten cents a mile for each mile by the ordinary traveled route to and from the court where the prosecution is pending and five dollars for each day that he is required to travel and attend as a witness, fails without good cause to attend and testify as directed in the summons, he shall be punished in the manner provided for the punishment of any witness who disobeys a summons issued from a court of record in this state. (1937, c. 217, s. 2.)

Cross Reference.—As to effect of non-attendance of witness, see § 8-63.

§ 8-67. Witness from another state summoned to testify in this state.—If a person in any state which by its laws has made provision for commanding persons within its borders to attend and testify in criminal prosecutions, or grand jury investigations commenced or about to commence in this state, is a material witness in a prosecution pending in a court of record in this state, or in a grand jury investigation which has commenced or is about to commence, a judge of such court may issue a certificate under the seal of the court, stating these facts and specifying the number of days the witness will be required. Said certificate may include a recommendation that the witness be taken into immediate custody and delivered to an officer of this state to assure his attendance in this state. This certificate shall be presented to a judge of a court of record in the county in which the witness is found.

If the witness is summoned to attend and testify in this state he shall be tendered the sum of ten cents a mile for each mile by the ordinary traveled route to and from the court where the prosecution is pending, and five dollars for each day that he is required to travel and attend as a witness. A witness who has appeared in accordance with the provisions of the summons shall not be required to remain within this state a longer period of time than the period mentioned in the certificate unless otherwise ordered by the court. If such witness, after coming into this state, fails without good cause to attend and testify as directed in the summons, he shall be punished in the manner provided for the punishment of any witness who disobeys a summons issued from a court of record in this state. (1937, c. 217, s. 3.)

Cross Reference.—See also, § 8-66. As to effect of non-attendance of witness, see § 8-63.

§ 8-68. Exemption from arrest and service of process.—If a person comes into this state in obedience to a summons directing him to attend and testify in this state he shall not, while in this state, or in a grand jury investigation which has commenced or is about to commence, be subject to arrest or the service of process, civil or criminal, in connection with matters which arose before his entrance into this state under the summons.

If a person passes through this state while going to another state in obedience to a summons to attend and testify in that state, or while returning therefrom, he shall not while so passing through this state be subject to arrest or the service of process, civil or criminal, in connection with matters which arose before his entrance into this state under the summons.

Cross Reference.—See also, § 8-64.

Res Judicata.—In an action against the driver of a car upon whose service of summons was had while he was in the state in obedience to a summons from a coroner to testify at an inquest, motion to vacate the service was allowed upon the evidence that defendant was a nonresident and that therefore he was exempt from service of process in connection with matters which arose before his entrance into the state in obedience to the coroner's process. In a subsequent action arising out of the same collision, brought in another county by the administrator of a party killed in the collision, service was had upon the defendant at the same time and in the same manner. It was held that the prior adjudication that defendant was a nonresident and was exempt from service under this section was in the nature of a judgment in rem and is res judicata as to the status and residence of the defendant, and is binding upon the administrator under the maxim res judicata pro veritate accipitur, et ab hoc tenetur qui in secundo actio actione upon substantially the same evidence that defendant was a resident of this state and that the service of summons on him was valid must be reversed on appeal even though supported by evidence. Current v. Webb, 220 N. C. 423, 17 S. E. (2d) 614.

§ 8-69. Uniformity of interpretation.—This article shall be so interpreted and construed as to effectuate its general purpose to make uniform the law of the states which enact it. (1937, c. 217, s. 5.)

§ 8-70. Title of article.—This article may be cited as "Uniform Act to Secure the Attendance of Witnesses from without a State in Criminal Proceedings." (1937, c. 217, s. 6.)

Art. 10. Depositions.

§ 8-71. Manner of taking depositions in civil actions.—Any party in a civil action or special proceeding, upon giving notice to the adverse party or his attorney as provided by law, may take the depositions of persons whose evidence he may desire to use, without any special order therefor, unless the witness shall be beyond the limits of the United States.

Depositions shall be taken on commission, issuing from the court and under the seal thereof, by one or more commissioners, who shall be of kin to neither party, and shall be appointed by the clerk; or depositions may be taken by a notary public of this state or of any other state or foreign country, or by any commissioner of oaths or commissioner of deeds of any foreign country, or by any officer of the army of the United States or marine corps having the rank of captain or higher, by any officer of the United States navy or United States coast guard having the rank of lieutenant, senior grade, or higher, or by any officer of the United States merchant marine having the rank of lieutenant, senior grade, or higher, without a commission issuing from the court. No official seal shall be required of said military or naval officials, but they shall sign their name, designate rank, name of ship or military division, and date, without a commission issuing from the court.

Depositions shall be subscribed and sealed up by the commissioners or notary public, and returned to the court, the clerk whereof or the judge holding the court, if the clerk is a party to the action, shall open and pass upon the same, after having given the parties or their attorneys not less than one day's notice; and all such depositions, when passed upon and allowed by the clerk, without appeal, or by the judge upon appeal from the clerk's order, or by the judge holding the court, when the clerk is a party to the action, shall be deemed legal evidence, if the witness be competent. (Rev. s. 1652; Code, s. 1357; 1911, c. 158: R. C., s. 31, s. 63; 1881, c. 279; 1893, c. 360; 1943, c. 160, s. 1; C. S. 1899.)

Editor's Note.—As this section originally stood, it contained many restrictive clauses which no longer appear. The 1941 amendment added to the second paragraph the provisions relating to commissioners of oaths or deeds and to officers in the armed forces and in the merchant marine. Section 2 of the amendatory act provided that in all instances in which depositions had been properly taken by a commissioner of oaths, they are validated as though taken pursuant thereto. Purpose of Section.—The purpose of this section is to save the inconvenience and cost of taking witnesses to the court, unless the party desiring the testimony of the witness sees fit to summon him to attend the court and testify in person. Sparrow v. Blount, 90 N. C. 514, 516.

Objection with Party Desiring the Deposition.—A party may take the deposition; he is not obliged to do so and it is optional with him whether he will or not. Sparrow v. Blount, 90 N. C. 514, 516.

Right of Cross Examination.—Where a cause has been referred and regularly proceeded with before a commissioner to take deposition therein, the party has a right to cross-examine the witnesses of the opposing party, which may not be denied him as a matter of law. Sugg v. St. Mary’s Oil Engine Co., 193 N. C. 814, 138 S. E. 169.

Presumed Regular.—The presumption is that a deposition has been properly taken when it appears thereon that it was taken by one named in the commission on the day and at the designated place. Yonce v. Broad River Lumber Co., 155 N. C. 259, 71 S. E. 555.

May Be Taken at Place of Business.—It is not error to take a deposition in the place of business of one of the parties if such place is named in the notice and there is no suggestion that the other party suffered any prejudice thereby. 120 N. C. 479, 41 S. E. 876.

May Be Taken before Answer.—The plaintiff is not required to delay taking the deposition of a witness until the answer is filed. Freeman v. Brown, 151 N. C. 592, 151 S. E. 720.

Leading Question.—It is discretionary with the trial judge whether or not answers to leading questions shall be stricken out of the deposition. Bank v. Carr, 130 N. C. 479, 41 S. E. 876.

Necessity of Sealing.—A deposition must be sealed up by the commissioners, so as to prevent inspection and alteration. Ward v. Ely, 12 N. C. 372.

Where a deposition was found among the papers, with a commission unattached, and an envelope which appeared to have been used for the purpose of sealing it, it was held that this was sufficient evidence to justify the clerk in finding that the deposition had been taken under such commission, and had been returned to him sealed up by the commissioner, and therefore, that the clerk had done right in passing upon and allowing such deposition to be read. Hill v. Bell, 61 N. C. 122.

Name of Witness in Commission Not Essential.—It is not necessary that the name of the witness be connected with the commission issued for taking depositions name the particular witness to whose depositions exceptions are taken, when the notice to take the deposition gave the name of the deponent and the necessity of the commission and the requirement of the statute has been met. Jeffords v. Albemarle Waterworks, 157 N. C. 70, 72 S. E. 624.

Signature of Witness Unnecessary.—Where a deposition is otherwise properly authenticated, it should not be refused as evidence because it has not been signed by the witness whose testimony was being taken, this not being required by our statute. Boggs v. Cullowhee Min. Co., 162 N. C. 391, 78 S. E. 274. And the fact that it was signed when neither party was present is not ground for refusing to admit it. Riff v. Yadkin, etc., Co., 189 N. C. 385, 157 S. E. 596.

Question Need Not Be Written.—In the taking of a deposition, interrogatories are not required to be in writing, and when there is nothing to indicate that the deposition does not represent the deponent’s own testimony on the matter, it was not written down at the time and in the presence of the witness, a motion to quash should be allowed. Chippewa Valley Bank v. National Bank, 166 N. C. 815, 21 S. E. 668. And not by the Pleading in the Previous Action. While the custom, and the better practice, to attach to a deposition a paper-writing therein referred to, or, if there are more than one deposition, to attach it to one and identify it by number, is commended, and in some cases required, as a matter of record or in the custody of the court, over which the parties have no control, to attach an exemplified copy; it is not required by our statute that a writing be so attached. Fien v. McFarland, 171 N. C. 528, 88 S. E. 625. As to defective forms, see note to Alma McIlrath v. Rhea, 122 N. C. 614, 30 S. E. 128, under section 8-81.

Notice to Adverse Party Required.—A party offering to read a deposition as evidence must prove that he has given the notice of the opening of the deposition before the clerk prescribed by this section, or show facts that would amount to a waiver by the opposite party of the statutory require- ment. Berry v. Hall, 105 N. C. 154, 10 S. E. 903. See section 8-72 and notes thereto.

Power of Clerk.—This section allowing the clerk to pass upon depositions only applies to the depositions of competent witnesses, to the clerk, unless the party desiring the testimony of the witness sees fit to summon him to attend the court and testify in person. Sparrow v. Blount, 90 N. C. 514, 516.

An Appeal Essential for Review by Court.—The superior court has no jurisdiction to decide whether a deposition be regularly taken, except on appeal from the clerk’s decision. Hix v. Fisher, 60 N. C. 474.

Qualification of Commissioner Presumed.—A commissioner appointed to take depositions will be presumed to be properly qualified until the contrary is shown. Gregg v. Mallett, 111 N. C. 74, 15 S. E. 916.

Mistake in Name.—Where the notice to take a deposition correctly states the name of the commissioner appointed to take them, and is otherwise regular, it is error for the trial judge to exclude the depositions, as evidence, on account of a slight error in the spelling of the commissioner’s name. Hardy v. Phoenix Mut. Life Ins. Co., 167 N. C. 22, 87 S. E. 5.

Commissioner Related to Parties.—The commissioner should not be related to either of the parties, but the burden of proving this relationship rests upon the movant. Bank v. Broad River Lumber Co., 155 N. C. 239, 71 S. E. 329.

Same—Objection.—An objection that a commissioner to take depositions is related to one of the parties must be taken at the time the depositions are offered before the clerk. Kerr v. Hicks, 131 N. C. 90, 42 S. E. 512.

Delay of Witness to Answer.—The commissioner acts for the court and it is the duty of the witness to answer proper questions propounded by him, just as though the examination is conducted before the judge or clerk. Bradley, etc., Co. v. Taylor, 112 N. C. 141, 146, 17 S. E. 69.

Delay of Commission Insufficient for Continuance.—Commission to take testimony is taken out of the court, and for the benefit of one of the parties, and he will not thereby make them returnable at the earliest day consistent with convenience. Where, through laches or from a wish to delay the trial, he should not do so, the non-execution of the commission will be adjudged an insufficient reason for asking a continuance. Duncan v. Hill, 19 N. C. 291.
the party objecting to the court of the truth of his allegation. (Rev., s. 1632; Code, s. 1937; 1881, c. 279; C. S. 1810.)

In General.—The object of the notice is to give the party an opportunity to attend and cross-examine; and, while on the one hand, a party will not be forced to attend on Sunday, the notice is required to indicate a place for the purpose of that very suit, so, on the other, it is held that the principle is complied with substantially, if the notice describes the place with reasonable certainty. Givens v. Casey, 31 N. C. 38, 40.

Variation between Notice and Certificate.—A deposition certified to have been taken at the house of J. E. was objected to because the notice was not made at the noticed place for the purpose of that very suit, so, on the other, it is held that it was to be presumed that the notice and certificate referred to the same person. Ellmore v. Mills, 2 N. C. 359.

On a Particular Day for Several Successions.—Notice, given to take a deposition on "the 5th or 6th" of a certain month was held sufficient. Kenedy v. Alexander, 2 N. C. 25.

Conflicting Dates.—Where notice is served that deposition is to be taken at the same time in two different places, so that the party who is notified cannot be present at both, he may attend at either place designated and disregard the notice as to the other place, and deposition taken at the other place will, on motion, be quashed or suppressed, but where he elects to appeal by counsel and cross-examines the witnesses without making any objection at the time, this is a waiver of the objection in the notice. Ivey v. Bessemer City Cotton Mills, 143 N. C. 189, 55 S. E. 613.

Certainty of Place.—A misdescription of a place, in one small particular, in a notice to take depositions will not be fatal, if there be other descriptive terms used in the notice, less liable to mistake, by which such place may be identified. Pursell v. Logan, 52 N. C. 102.

Where Parties Specifically Mentioned.—Where notice was given to take the deposition of certain parties, specifically mentioned, "and others," and depositions of those particularly mentioned were not taken, it was held to be no ground for exception. Pursell v. Logan, 52 N. C. 102.

Notice to One of Joint Defendants.—Upon a bill against joint administrators relative to the acts of the intestate, of whom party specially mentioned was administrator, and notice to the guardian so appointed as to the taking of depositions of witnesses does not comply with the requirements of this section, and upon appearance of the deposition, it is held that the principle is complied with substantially, if it be shown by the certificate of the commissioners, the deposition may be read. Sawrey v. Murrell, 3 N. C. 397. Absent Party or Attorney.—In taking depositions where a party lives out of the State, notice may be given to the absent party, or to his attorney in court. Savage v. Rice, 1 N. C. 19.

§ 8-73. Publication of notice in case of non-resident.—Instead of the notice served upon the adverse party or his attorney in taking depositions in civil actions or special proceedings, when the adverse party is a non-resident and has no attorney of record, it shall be sufficient to publish notice to the adverse party in some newspaper published in the county in which the action is pending, or if no newspaper is published in such county, then in some newspaper in the judicial district, for three consecutive weeks, giving the time and place of taking the deposition and calling the attention of the witness. And when the adverse party is a non-resident and publication of notice cannot be had upon him or his attorney in this state, then one publication of notice to open such deposition shall be sufficient notice. (1913, c. 137; C. S. 1811.)

Cross Reference.—As to publication generally, see §§ 1-98, 1-99.

§ 8-74. Depositions for defendant in criminal actions.—In all criminal actions, hearings and investigations it shall be lawful for the defendant in any such action to make affidavit before the clerk of the superior court of the county in which said action is pending, that it is important for the defense that he have the testimony of any person, whose name must be given, and that such person is so infirm, or otherwise physically incapacitated, or nonresident of this state, that he cannot procure his attendance at the trial or hearing of said cause. Upon the filing of such affidavit, it shall be the duty of the clerk to appoint some responsible person to take the deposition of such witness, which deposition may be read in the trial of such criminal action under the same rules as now apply by law to depositions in civil actions: Provided, that the solicitor or prosecuting attorney of the district, and that such person is so infirm, or otherwise physically incapacitated, or nonresident of this state, that he cannot procure his attendance at the trial or hearing of said cause. Upon the filing of such affidavit, it shall be the duty of the clerk to appoint some responsible person to take the deposition of such witness, which deposition may be read in the trial of such criminal action under the same rules as now apply by law to depositions in civil actions: Provided, that the solicitor or prosecuting attorney of the district, and that such person is so infirm, or otherwise physically incapacitated, or nonresident of this state, that he cannot procure his attendance at the trial or hearing of said cause. Upon the filing of such affidavit, it shall be the duty of the clerk to appoint some responsible person to take the deposition of such witness, which deposition may be read in the trial of such criminal action under the same rules as now apply by law to depositions in civil actions: Provided, that the solicitor or prosecuting attorney of the district, and trary suggestion of his Honor, though unintentional, was prejudicial to the defendant.”

Where there are several defendants in the same bill of indictment, it is not necessary to notify each of the others of the taking of a deposition made by one for use as evidence on his behalf. State v. Finley, 118 N. C. 1162, 24 S. E. 495.

A deposition taken under this section is competent to be read in favor of one prisoner, although it contains testimony charging his codefendant with committing the crime. When so read, it is the duty of the presiding judge to instruct the jury that they are not to consider it as evidence against the codefendant but only as evidence in favor of the prisoner who offers it. State v. Finley, 118 N. C. 1162, 24 S. E. 495.

§ 8-75. Depositions in justices' courts.—Any party in a civil action before a justice of the peace may take the depositions of all persons whose evidence he may desire to use in the action; and to do so he may apply to the clerk of the superior court for a commission to take the same, and shall proceed in all things in taking such depositions as if such action was pending in the superior court. When any such depositions are returned to the clerk, they shall be opened and passed upon by the clerk, and delivered to the justice of the peace before whom the trial is to be had; and the reading and using of said depositions shall conform to the rules of the superior court. (Rev., s. 1646; Code, s. 1359; 1872-3, c. 33; C. S. 1813.)

§ 8-76. Depositions before municipal authorities.—Any board of aldermen, board of town or county commissioners or any person interested in any proceeding, investigation, hearing or trial before such board, may take the depositions of all persons whose evidence may be desired for use in said proceeding, investigation, hearing or trial; and to do so, the chairman of such board or such person may apply in person or by attorney to the superior court clerk of that county in which such proceeding, investigation, hearing or trial is pending, for a commission to take the same, and said clerk, upon such application, shall issue such commission, or such deposition may be taken by a notary public of this state or of any other state or foreign county without a commission issuing from any court of record in this state, or by the courts of the states or territories of the United States, arbitrators, referees, and all persons acting under a commission issuing from any court of record in this state, are hereby empowered, they or the clerks of the courts respectively in this state, to which such commission shall be returnable, to issue subpoenas, specifying the time and place for the attendance of witnesses before them, and to administer oaths to said witnesses, to the end that they may give their testimony. And any witness appearing before any of the said persons and refusing to give his testimony on oath touching such matters as he may be lawfully examined unto shall be committed, by warrant of the person before whom he shall so refuse, to the common jail of the county, there to remain until he may be willing to give his evidence; which warrant of commitment shall recite what authority the person has to take the testimony of such witness, and the refusal of the witness to give it. (Rev., s. 1649; Code, s. 1369; R. C., c. 31, s. 64; 1777, c. 115, s. 42; 1805, c. 685, ss. 1, 2; 1848, c. 66; 1850, c. 188; C. S. 1816.)

Cross References.—As to attendance of witnesses before commissioners, etc., see § 8-60. See also, § 5-1, subsec. 6, under which refusal of witness to be sworn or answer questions amounts to contempt.

Power Not Exclusively in Commissioner.—The power to commit to jail a person refusing to testify before a commissioner, as provided for in this section, is not given exclusively, if at all, to the commissioner, but he may invoke the aid of the judge from whom he derives his appointment and whose authority is defined. Bradley, etc., Co. v. Taylor, 112 N. C. 141, 17 S. E. 69.

§ 8-78. Attendance before commissioner enforced.—The sheriff of the county where the witness may be shall execute all such subpoenas, and make due return thereof to the commissioner, or other person, before whom the witness is to appear, in the same manner, and under the same penalties, as in the case of process of a like kind returnable to court; and when the witness shall be subpoenaed five days before the time of his required attendance, and shall fail to appear according to the subpoena and give evidence, the default shall be noted by the commissioner, arbitrator, or other person aforesaid; and in case the default be made before a commissioner act-section of making the objection before trial and in writing are not complied with, the objection to the deposition is waived Woodley v. Haskell, 67 N. C. 157.

For discussion of waiver in general, see 4 N. C. Enc. Dig. 706; as to cross-examination of witnesses, see 4 N. C. Enc. Dig. 707.

§ 8-82. Deposition not quashed after trial begun.——No deposition shall be quashed, or rejected, on objection first made after a trial has begun, merely because of an irregularity in taking the same, provided it shall appear that the party objecting had notice that it had been taken, and it was on file long enough before the trial to enable him to present his objection. (Rev., s. 1647; Code, s. 1360; 1869-70, c. 227, s. 12; C. S. 1820.)

Opportunity to Object before Trial.——Where a deposition was opened on and on file before the trial, and an objection thereto was made for the first time on the trial, it was held that the objection could not be sustained. Morgan v. Royal Fraternal Ass'n, 170 N. C. 75, 81, 86 S. E. 95; citing Ivey v. Bessemer City Cotton Mills, 143 N. C. 189, 55 S. E. 631. And this is true whether the motion is to quash the deposition in whole or in part. Carroll v. Hodges, 98 N. C. 418, 4 S. E. 199.

Filing as Notice.——Where the deposition had been on file for two or three months before the trial, the appellant's counsel having notice and being present when it was opened by the clerk and ordered by him to be read in evidence on the trial, and they making no objections thereto, it was held that such deposition could not be quashed on oral objection made at the trial. Carroll v. Hodges, 98 N. C. 418, 4 S. E. 199.

As to failure to give notice to adverse party, see note of Bryan v. Jeffreys, 104 N. C. 242, 10 S. E. 167, under section 8-81.

Preservation of Exception.——Where a commissioner to take depositions has, over the objections and exceptions of a party litigant, denied him the right of cross-examination, a party litigant, denied him the right of cross-examination of a witness of his opponent, and the litigant has appealed therefrom to the trial court, and preserved his right, the exception gives notice of the grounds upon which it was based, and on his motion on the trial, the deposition relating to that part of the evidence will be stricken out. Sugg v. Mary's Oil Engine Co., 193 N. C. 814, 138 S. E. 169.

Incompetent Questions.——Since a deposition can be quashed only for irregularities in the taking or incompetency of witnesses, objection should be taken to the questions and answers of the deponent by way of exception and not by motion to quash the depositions. Jefflords v. Allemarle Waterworks, 157 N. C. 10, 72 S. E. 634.

§ 8-83. When deposition may be read on the trial.——Every deposition taken and returned in the manner provided by law may be read on the trial of the action or proceeding, or before any referee, in the following cases, and not otherwise:

1. If the witness is dead, or has become insane since the deposition was taken.
2. If the witness is a resident of a foreign country, or of another state, and is not present at the trial.
3. If the witness is confined in a prison out of the county in which the trial takes place.
4. If the witness is so old, sick or infirm as to be unable to attend court.
5. If the witness is the president of the United States, or the head of any department of the federal government, or a judge, district attorney, or clerk of any court of the United States, and the trial shall take place during the term of such court.
6. If the witness is the governor of the state, or the head of any department of the state government, or the president of the university, or § 8-84. Depositions taken in the state to be used in another state:

1. By whom obtained. In addition to the other remedies prescribed by law, a party to an action, suit or special proceeding, civil or criminal, pending in a court without the state, either in the United States or any of the possessions thereof, or any foreign country, may obtain, by the proceedings prescribed by this section, the testimony of a witness and in connection therewith the production of books and papers within the state to be used in the action, suit or special proceeding.

2. Application filed. Where a commission to take testimony within the state has been issued from the court in which the action, suit or special proceeding is pending, or where a notice has been given, or any other proceeding has been taken for the purpose of taking the testimony within the state pursuant to the laws of the state or country wherein the court is located, or pursuant to the laws of the United States or any of the possessions thereof, if it is a court of the United States, the person desiring such testimony, or the production of papers and documents, may present a verified petition to any justice of the supreme court or judge of the superior court, stating generally the nature of the action or proceeding in which the testimony is sought to be taken, and that the testimony of the witness is admissible in evidence under this section. Willeford v. Bailey, 132 N. C. 402, 43 S. E. 928.

3. Subpoena issued. Upon the filing of such petition, if the justice of the supreme court or judge of the superior court is satisfied that the application is made in good faith to obtain testimony within the provisions of this section, he shall issue a subpoena to the witness, commanding him to appear before the commissioner named in the commission, or before a commissioner within the state, for the state, territory or foreign country in which the notice was given or the proceeding taken, or before the officer designated in the commission, notice or other paper, by his title or office, at a time and place specified in the subpoena, to testify in the action, suit or special proceeding. Where the subpoena directs the production of books or papers, it shall specify the particular books or papers to be produced, and shall specify whether the witness is required to deliver sworn copies of such books or papers to the commissioner or to produce the original thereof for inspection, but such books and original papers shall not be taken from the witness. This subpoena must be served upon the witness at least two days, or, in case of a subpoena requiring the production of books or papers, at least five days before the day on which the witness is commanded to appear. A party to an action or proceeding in which the deposition is sought to be taken, or a witness subpoenaed to attend and give his testimony, may apply to the court issuing such subpoena to vacate or modify the same.

4. Witness compelled to attend and testify. If the witness shall fail to obey the subpoena, or Knowing as a "bill to perpetuate testimony" shall be the relief afforded in courts of equity by what is incurred by reason of taking such deposition, and if any balance remains in his hands, he shall pay witness fees and other costs that may have been cover all costs and charges incident to the tak- inion to show cause is made returnable, he shall enforce the order and prescribe the punishment as hereinbefore provided.

5. Deposit for costs required. The commis- sioner herein provided for shall not proceed to act under and by virtue of his appointment until the party seeking to obtain such deposition has deposited with him a sufficient sum of money to act under and by virtue of his appointment until as hereinbefore provided.

Art. 11. Perpetuation of Testimony.

§ 8-85. Relief afforded by superior courts.— The relief afforded in courts of equity by what is known as a "bill to perpetuate testimony" shall be afforded by the superior courts of this State. (1905, c. 254, s. 1.)

§ 8-86. How to obtain relief.—Such relief may be obtained either by a special proceeding before the clerk of the superior court, or by a civil action brought to the superior court in term. (1933, c. 254, s. 2.)

§ 8-87. Rules of procedure; admissibility of testimony taken.—Such special proceedings and civil actions shall be governed by the same rules of procedure that govern other special proceedings and civil actions; and the testimony taken therein shall be admissible in the trial of any controversy, under the same regulations and restrictions which govern depositions taken in other cases in which the taking of depositions is provided for by the laws of this State: Provided, however, the evidence so perpetuated shall not be competent against any person who was not served with notice now provided by law for the taking of depositions in civil cases to be present and cross examine said wit- nesses. (1935, c. 254, s. 3.)

Cross Reference.—As to procedure in civil actions, see § 1-88 et seq. As to procedure in special proceeding, see § 1-393 et seq. As to depositions, see § 8-71 et seq.

§ 8-88. Taxing costs.—The costs of such special proceedings and civil actions shall be taxed against the party at whose instance the proceeding is insti- tuted. (1935, c. 254, s. 4.)

Art. 12. Inspection and Production of Writings.

§ 8-89. Inspection of writings.—The court before which an action is pending, or a judge there of, may, in his or his discretion, and upon due notice, order either party to give to the other, within a specified time, an inspection and copy, or permission to take a copy, of any books, papers, and documents in his possession or under his control, containing evidence relating to the merits of the action or the defense therein. If compliance with the order be refused, the court, on motion, may ex- clude the paper from being given in evidence, or punish the party refusing, or both. (Rev., s. 1655; Code, s. 578; R. C., c. 31, s. 82; R. S., c. 31, s. 86; 1831, c. 1093; C. C. P., s. 331; 1828, c. 7; C. S. 1823.)

Cross Reference.—As to examination of adverse party, see § 1-59 and notes thereto.

Editor's Note.—This section is quite similar to the pro- visions of section 8-90 and must be construed therewith. In many of the cases the courts have used the term "production" when more properly the term "inspection" should be used, as the case was decided primarily under the pro- visions of section 8-90. The reasoning used by the courts would indicate that this use of language has not been con- taining evidence relating to the merits of the action or the defense therein. If compliance with the order be refused, the court, on motion, may ex- clude the paper from being given in evidence, or punish the party refusing, or both. (Rev., s. 1655; Code, s. 578; R. C., c. 31, s. 82; R. S., c. 31, s. 86; 1831, c. 1093; C. C. P., s. 331; 1828, c. 7; C. S. 1823.)

Cross Reference.—As to examination of adverse party, see § 1-59 and notes thereto.

Editor's Note.—This section is quite similar to the pro- visions of section 8-90 and must be construed therewith. In many of the cases the courts have used the term "production" when more properly the term "inspection" should be used, as the case was decided primarily under the pro- visions of this section. The reasoning used by the courts would indicate that this use of language has not been through inadvertence, but on the other hand would seem to furnish an additional support to the statement that the two sections are kindred in their nature and substance.

Liberally Construed.—This section is remedial, and should be liberally construed to advance the remedy intended thereby to be afforded. Abbott v. Gregory, 196 N. C. 9, 154 S. E. 29.

Direction of Court.—Whether the trial court shall grant an order for the inspection of writings upon a sufficient affidavit rests in its sound discretion. Dunlap v. London Guaranty, etc., Co., 202 N. C. 651, 163 S. E. 720.

The trial court's refusal to grant plaintiff's motion, for an order that defendant produce certain written statements signed by witnesses, employees of defendant, which state- ments these employees testified they used to refresh their recollection before becoming witnesses, was not error, the grant of such motion being in the discretion of the court, and the record failed to show that the requirements of this and the following section were met by plaintiff, or that the written statements were in court. Star Mfg. Co. v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 223 N. C. 330, 23 S. E. (2d) 32.

While a "reviewing commission for the inspection of papers" will not be ordinarily allowed, an application for an order for inspection of writings is sufficiently definite when it refers to papers under the exclusive control of the adverse party, which relate to the immediate issue in controversy, which cannot be more definitely described, and an order based thereon will be upheld. See Murchison National Bank, 196 N. C. 243, 141 S. E. 241.

Substitute for Bill of Discovery.—This section is prima facie designed and intended to afford the facilities for the inspection of writings. Star Mfg. Co. v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 222 N. C. 330, 23 S. E. (2d) 32.

Must Be Pertinent to Issue.—Upon motion to allow inspection of books, papers, etc., before trial, it must be made to appear that the instrument in question relates to the merits of the action or is pertinent to the issue. Evans v. Seaboard Air Line R. Co., 167 N. C. 415, 83 S. E. 617.

Where No Information Could Be Gained.—Under this section, a person will not be ordered to allow an inspection of the paper-writing if the party making the request knows the contents thereof. Sheek v. Sain, 127 N. C. 265, 37 S. E. 334. The court said: "The object of this section is to enable a party to get information that he did not have by the inspection of writings, or more definite information, or data, than he had already." Id.

Inspection within Specified Time.—This section only authorizes the judge to order one party to exhibit the writing or the books, papers, etc., to another, without limiting him to take a copy of the same, within a specified time. Sheek v. Sain, 127 N. C. 266, 272, 37 S. E. 334. It was not intended that there should be an investigation of the contents of information of past trials with witnesses and lawyers on both sides. Id.

An examination of an adverse party, under § 1-569 et seq., may be joined with an order under this section to inspect writings, in the possession of the defendant, in the proceeding for the production of papers under this section unless the facts are stated upon which the application is based. Maxwell v. McDowell, 50 N. C. 391.

General Allocation.—An appeal lies from an order requiring a person to allow an inspection of paper writings. Sheek v. Sain, 127 N. C. 266, 37 S. E. 334.

Applied to Note of Surety.—For purpose of taking photographic copy thereof, the court in Girard Nat. Bank v. McArthur, 165 N. C. 524, 81 S. E. 327, applied in Long v. Oxford, 104 N. C. 408, 10 S. E., to determine the genuineness of a new promise set up by the plaintiff to defendant's plea of the statute of limitations.

§ 8-90. Production of writings.—The courts have full power, on motion and due notice thereof given, to require the parties to produce books or writings in their possession or control which contain evidence pertinent to the issue, and if a plaintiff shall fail to comply with such order, and shall not satisfactorily account for his failure, the court, on motion, may give the judgment against the defendant, as in cases of nonsuit; and if a defendant shall fail to comply with such order, and shall not satisfactorily account for his failure, the court, on motion as aforesaid, may give judgment against him by default. (Rev., s. 1657; Code, s. 1373; R. C., s. 31, s. 25; 1821, c. 1095; 1898, c. 7; C. 1894.)

Discretion of Court.—When the requirements of the application, as set forth in the preceding section, are met, this section does nothing more than vest the granting of such application in the discretion of the judge. Star Mfg. Co. v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 222 N. C. 330, 333, 23 S. E. (2d) 32.

Complaint Essential.—A court cannot under this section order the production of papers by the defendant where no complaint has been filed. See Murchison v. McLeod, 165 N. C. 372, 191 S. E. 720.

Due notice is necessary to enable the party to have the document when called for. McDonald v. Carson, 95 N. C. 377.

Local Modification.—Macon: 1933, c. 62; Yancey: 1929, c. 57, 65.

Editor's Note.—Public Laws 1937, c. 19, applicable only to Ashe county, changed the date for selecting the jury list to the first Monday in March.

Public Laws 1937, c. 200, amended this section by adding the following: "In Ashe county, non-payment of taxes shall not be a bar to jury service nor prevent the placing of the names of persons otherwise qualified upon the jury list for said county."

Section Directory.—The regulations contained in this section, relative to the revision of the jury lists, are directory only and, while they should be observed, the failure to do so does not vitiate the venire in the absence of bad faith or corruption on the part of the county commissioners.

Special Statute Allowing Other Method.—Where a statute creating a special criminal court for certain counties allows every facility to the accused for getting a fair and impartial jury, it is not unconstitutional because it does not provide for a discharge of the rule for its production. Fuller v. McMillan, 44 N. C. 206.

Stated in McDonald v. Carson, 94 N. C. 497; Rivenbark v. Shell Union Oil Corp., 217 N. C. 592, 8 S. E. (2d) 919.

§ 8-91. Admission of genuineness.—Either party may exhibit to the other, or to his attorney, at any time before the trial, any paper material to the action, and request an admission in writing of its genuineness. If the adverse party, or his attorney, fail to give the admission within four days after the request, and if the party exhibiting the paper be afterwards put to expense in order to prove its genuineness, and the same be finally proved or admitted on the trial, such expense, to be ascertained at the trial, shall be paid by the party refusing the admission, unless it appear to the satisfaction of the court that there were good reasons for the refusal. (Rev., s. 1638; Code, s. 578: R. C., c. 31, s. 82; R. S., c. 31, s. 80: 1821, c. 1095; 1838, c. 7; C. C. P., s. 331; C. S. 1825.)

Comments by Counsel.—Counsel may comment as to the truth of the contents of an instrument as suggested by its appearance, even after the admission in writing under this section that the instrument is genuine. Knight v. Hough-talling, 85 N. C. 117.
§ 9-2. Names on list put in box.—The commissioners at their regular meeting on the first Monday in July in the year nineteen hundred and fifty and every two years thereafter, shall cause the names on their jury list to be copied on small scrolls of paper of equal size and put into a box procured for that purpose, which must have two divisions marked No. 1 and No. 2, respectively, and two locks, the key of one to be kept by the sheriff of the county, the other by the chairman of the board of commissioners, and the box by the clerk of the board.

§ 207 N. C. 282, 292, 176 S. E. 401; Rhvys v. Carolina Contracting Co., 219 N. C. 479, 14 S. E. (2d) 531 (dis. op.).

Local Modification.—Buncombe, Cabarrus, Catawba, Forsyth, Guilford, Haywood, Iredell, Wake: 1933, c. 89.

As to drawing of special veniremen, see § 9-30. As to drawing jurors in recorders' courts, see § 1-86. As to drawing of petit jurors, see § 9-24.

Boxes Improperly Marked.—Where the partitions of the jury box, instead of being marked "No. 1" and "No. 2," were marked "Jurors Drawn" and "Jurors Not Drawn," the court was advised that a special venire was drawn under the directions of the presiding judge from such boxes was legal.

State v. Potts, 100 N. C. 457, 6 S. E. 657.

Middle Letter Entered Erroneously.—The entering on the scrolls of the middle letter of ten years of age, thirty-six scrolls except when the term of court is for the trial of civil cases exclusively, when they need not draw more than twenty-four jurors.

The persons whose names are inscribed on said scrolls shall serve as jurors at the time and in the manner as drawn the names of eighteen persons who shall be summoned to appear and serve during the second week, and a like number for each succeeding week of the term of said court, unless the judge thereof shall sooner discharge all jurors from further service. The said commissioners may, at the same time and in the same manner, draw the names of eight other persons, who shall serve as petit jurors for the week for which they are drawn and summoned. The trial jury which has served during each week shall be discharged by the judge at the close of said week, unless the said jury shall be then actually engaged in the trial of a case, and then they shall not be discharged until the trial is determined.

Formerly it was held that an indictment could be quashed by the failure to pay taxes due to failure to put the middle letter in the name. State v. Banner, 149 N. C. 519, 521.

§ 9-2. Names on list put in box.—The commissioners at their regular meeting on the first Monday in July in the year nineteen hundred and fifty and every two years thereafter, shall cause the names on their jury list to be copied on small scrolls of paper of equal size and put into a box procured for that purpose, which must have two divisions marked No. 1 and No. 2, respectively, and two locks, the key of one to be kept by the sheriff of the county, the other by the chairman of the board of commissioners, and the box by the clerk of the board.

State v. Potts, 100 N. C. 457, 6 S. E. 657.

Middle Letter Entered Erroneously.—The entering on the scrolls of the middle letter of ten years of age, thirty-six scrolls except when the term of court is for the trial of civil cases exclusively, when they need not draw more than twenty-four jurors.

The persons whose names are inscribed on said scrolls shall serve as jurors at the time and in the manner as drawn the names of eighteen persons who shall be summoned to appear and serve during the second week, and a like number for each succeeding week of the term of said court, unless the judge thereof shall sooner discharge all jurors from further service. The said commissioners may, at the same time and in the same manner, draw the names of eight other persons, who shall serve as petit jurors for the week for which they are drawn and summoned. The trial jury which has served during each week shall be discharged by the judge at the close of said week, unless the said jury shall be then actually engaged in the trial of a case, and then they shall not be discharged until the trial is determined.

Formerly it was held that an indictment could be quashed by the failure to pay taxes due to failure to put the middle letter in the name. State v. Banner, 149 N. C. 519, 521.
names of all sorts and conditions of men, white and negro persons, Jew and Gentile, who are qualified to serve under the law. A more perfect system could hardly be devised to insure impartiality. State v. Walls, 211 N. C. 487, 494, 191 S. E. 232.

§ 9-4. Local modifications as to drawing panel.

In Buncombe county forty-eight jurors shall be drawn to serve the first week and twenty-four to serve the second week.

In Cabarrus county the board of county commissioners shall annually draw forty-two jurors for the first week of the January term of superior court of each year and twenty-four jurors for each and every other week of superior court during the year.

In Cumberland county the commissioners may, in their discretion, cause an additional twelve jurors to be drawn, to serve as the jury for the first week.

In Forsyth county the board of county commissioners is authorized and empowered to draw as jurors from the box, as provided in the preceding section, an additional number of jurors to those now provided by law. At all civil terms, regular and special, for the first week thirty jurors shall be drawn and summoned, and likewise for the second week. At all criminal terms, regular and special, for the first week forty-two jurors shall be drawn and summoned.

For the second week thirty jurors shall be drawn and summoned.

In Hertford county fifteen jurors shall be drawn and summoned for the second week.

In Iredell county twenty-four jurors shall be drawn and summoned for the second week.

In McDowell county the board of county commissioners is authorized and empowered to draw as jurors from the box an additional number of jurors to those now provided by law. At each term when grand jury is to be selected, for the first week forty-eight jurors shall be drawn and summoned, and for each subsequent week of the year twenty-four jurors shall be drawn and summoned. At all criminal terms, regular and special, for the first week forty-two jurors shall be drawn and summoned; for the second week twenty-four jurors shall be drawn and summoned.

In Rockingham county the board of county commissioners is authorized and empowered to draw as jurors from the box, as provided in the preceding section, an additional number of jurors to those now provided by law. At all civil terms, regular and special, for the first week thirty jurors shall be drawn and summoned; for the second week twenty-four jurors shall be drawn and summoned. At all criminal terms, regular and special, for the first week forty-two jurors shall be drawn and summoned; for the second week twenty-four jurors shall be drawn and summoned.

In Rowan county twenty-four jurors shall be drawn and summoned for the second week.

In Stokes county the commissioners shall draw for each term of the superior court, in accordance with law, twenty-four jurors, to be summoned by the sheriff of Stokes county.

In Wayne, Robeson and Granville counties the board of commissioners for the first week of each term of the superior court of said counties for the trial of civil and criminal causes shall cause to be drawn from the jury box forty-two scrolls, and for each additional week or for any court for the trial of civil causes only, said board of commissioners shall draw twenty-four scrolls; provided, that in Wayne county the forty-two scrolls required by this section shall be drawn only at the January and July criminal terms of court; at all other times, thirty-six scrolls shall be drawn from the jury box for each week. (Rev., s. 1959; 1907, c. 239; Ex. Sess. 1913, c. 4; Pub. Laws, 1915, cc. 233, 744, 764; 1921, c. 142; 1923, c. 107, s. 2; 1937, c. 117; 1937, c. 19, s. 4; 1939, c. 140; 1941, cc. 87, 93, 175; C. S. 2315.)

Editor's Note.—By Public Laws 1921, ch. 142, the paragraph relating to Stokes County was added. In 1923 the paragraphs relating to Wayne, Robeson, Granville and McDowell Counties were added.

Public Laws 1941, c. 92, s. 1, repealed Public Laws 1937, c. 19 which added a paragraph relating to Ashe County. The 1939 amendment added the proviso relating to Wayne County which was amended by Public Laws 1941, c. 87. Public Laws 1941, c. 175, added the proviso relating to Cabarrus County. § 9-5. Fees of jurors.—All jurors in the superior court other than special veniremen and tales jurors shall receive such an amount per day as the boards of commissioners of their respective counties may fix, not less than two dollars per day and not more than four dollars per day, and mileage at the rate of five cents per mile while coming to the county-seat and returning home. The said distance to be computed by the usual route of public travel. In the counties of Union, New Hanover, Randolph, Haywood, Polk, Surry, Swain, Alleghany, Anson, Graham, Ashe, Dare, Alexander, Cleveland, Clay, Transylvania, Harnett, Stanly, Mitchell, Burke, Franklin, Greene, Johnston, and Henderson, jurors other than special veniremen and tales jurors shall not receive more than three dollars per day.

Special veniremen and tales jurors shall receive such an amount per day for their attendance upon court as may be fixed by the boards of commissioners of their respective counties, not exceeding three dollars per day. Special veniremen who have been accepted on the panel in the trial of any cause shall receive the pay and mileage of regular jurors. (Rev., s. 2791; 1907, c. 85, 86, s. 1; 1921, c. 62, s. 1; C. S. 3892.)

§ 9-6. Jurors having suits pending.—If any of the jurors drawn have a suit pending and at issue in the superior court, the scrolls with their names must be returned into partition No. 1 of the jury box. (Rev., s. 1960; Code, s. 1728; 1868-9, c. 9, s. 7; 1806, c. 691; C. S. 2316.)

Cross Reference.—As to grand juror who has suit pending, see § 9-6.

Fundamental Objection.—The circumstance described by this section is a fundamental objection to the juror, when ever it is made to appear, and is a cause of challenge, although the county commissioners may have allowed his name to go upon the venire. Hodges Bros. v. Lassiter, 96 N. C. 251, 30 S. E. 923.

Such juror is incompetent, and the defendant in a criminal action is not required to show affirmatively that the juror was present and participated in the deliberations of the grand jury when the bill was found. State v. Smith, 80 N. C. 410.

§ 9-7. Disqualified persons drawn.—If any of the persons drawn to serve as jurors are dead, removed out of the county, or otherwise disqualified to serve as jurors, the scrolls with the names of such persons must be destroyed, and in such cases other persons shall be drawn in their stead. (Rev., s. 1961; Code, s. 1729; 1889, c. 559; 1897, c. 117, s. 5; 1806, c. 694; C. S. 2317.)

§ 9-8. How drawing to continue.—The drawing out of partition marked No. 1 and putting the scrolls drawn into partition No. 2 shall continue until all the scrolls in partition No. 1 are drawn out when all the scrolls shall be returned into partition No. 1 and drawn out again as herein directed. (Rev., s. 1961; Code, s. 1730; 1868-9, c. 9, s. 9; 1806, c. 6, s. 94; C. S. 2318.)

Cross Reference.—See § 9-3 and notes thereto.

§ 9-9. Drawing when commissioners fail to draw.—If the commissioners for any cause fail to draw a jury for any term of the superior court, regular or special, the sheriff of the county and the clerk of the commissioners, in the presence of the court, shall summon from day to day, of the bystanders, other jurors, being freeholders, within the county where the court is held, or the judge may, in his discretion, at the beginning of the term direct the tales jurors to be drawn from the jury box used in drawing the petit jury for the term, in the presence of the court; such tales jurors so drawn to be summoned by the sheriff and to serve on the petit jury, and on any day the court may discharge those who have served the preceding day. The judge may, upon his own motion, or upon the request of counsel for either plaintiff or defendant, instruct the sheriff to summon such jurors outside of the courthouse. It is a disqualification and ground of challenge to any tales juror that such juror has acted in the same court as grand, petit or tales juror within two years next preceding such term of court. (Rev., s. 1967; Code, s. 1733; R. C., c. 31, s. 29; 1779, c. 157, ss. 4, 6; C. S. 2320.)

Cross Reference.—As to penalty for disobeying summons, see § 9-13.

§ 9-10. Summons to jurors drawn; to attend until discharged. — The clerk of the board of county commissioners shall, within five days from the drawing, deliver the list of jurors drawn for the superior court to the sheriff of the county, who shall summon the persons therein named to attend as jurors at such court. The summons shall be served, personally, or by leaving a copy thereof at the house of the juror, at least five days before the sitting of the court to which the juror is summoned. Jurors shall appear and give their attendance until discharged. (Rev., s. 1976; Code, s. 1733; 1868-9, c. 9, s. 12; R. C., c. 31, s. 29; 1779, c. 157, ss. 4, 6; C. S. 2320.)

Cross Reference.—See § 9-3 and notes thereto.

§ 9-11. Summons to talesmen; their disqualifications. — That there may not be a defect of jurors, the sheriff shall by order of the court summon, from day to day, of the bystanders, other jurors, being freeholders, within the county where the court is held, or the judge may, in his discretion, at the beginning of the term direct the tales jurors to be drawn from the jury box used in drawing the petit jury for the term, in the presence of the court; such tales jurors so drawn to be summoned by the sheriff and to serve on the petit jury, and on any day the court may discharge those who have served the preceding day. The judge may, upon his own motion, or upon the request of counsel for either plaintiff or defendant, instruct the sheriff to summon such jurors outside of the courthouse. It is a disqualification and ground of challenge to any tales juror that such juror has acted in the same court as grand, petit or tales juror within two years next preceding such term of court. (Rev., s. 1967; Code, s. 1733; R. C., c. 31, s. 29; 1779, c. 156, s. 69; 1911, c. 15; 1915, c. 10; C. S. 2321.)

Tales Jurors Defined.—A tales is a supply of such men as are summoned on the first panel in order to make up the deficiency. Boyer v. Teague, 106 N. C. 576, 621, 11 S. E. 665.

Qualifications of Tales Juror.—A tales juror must have the same qualification as a regular juror, with the additional one of being a freeholder. State v. Sherman, 115 N. C. 773, 20 S. E. 711. This includes the requirement as to being a taxpayer. State v. Hargrove, 100 N. C. 484, 6 S. E. 185; State v. Sherman, 115 N. C. 773, 20 S. E. 711. But it is not a disqualification of such a juror that his name does not appear on the list of the county commissioners. Lee v. Lee, 71 N. C. 139.

Selection.—Although this section seems to imply that tales jurors are to be selected for the court by the executive officers, it is done upon special terms and conditions, and at the court's discretion only; under the provisions of the state constitution, the court is the only body possessing the power to make the selection.
them in advance when such a course best promotes the ends of justice. Lupton v. Spencer, 173 N. C. 126, 91 S. E. 717.

None of Original Panel Necessary.—The trial judge, in his discretion, may discharge any jurors or jury, and is not required to reserve one juror of the original panel to "build the panel up." Boyer v. Teague, 106 N. C. 577, 11 S. E. 665. But the clerk is authorized by this section. State v. Manship, 174 N. C. 798, 94 S. E. 2.

"Freeholders."—A freeholder is one who owns land in fee, or for life, or for some indefinite period. As there are legal and equitable estates, so there are legal and equitable freeholders. State v. Ragland, 75 N. C. 12. The reality must be shown. This is the county where the court is held. State v. Cooper, 83 N. C. 620. Where a defendant is in possession of land, and where the court is to sit, the sheriff is authorized to direct the sheriff to summon "other jurors, being freeholders within the county, within or without the courthouse. State v. Manship, 174 N. C. 798, 94 S. E. 2.

A finding by the trial judge that persons drawn were not freeholders is conclusive on appeal. State v. Register, 133 N. C. 746, 46 S. E. 21.

Regular Jurors Discharged.—Where the regular jurors have been discharged by the trial judge for the term, evidently under the impression that the business of the court was over, and on the following day there remains a criminal case regularly coming up for trial on a defect of jurors, the judge, within his discretion, is authorized to direct the sheriff to summon others, being freeholders within the county, within or without the courthouse. State v. Manship, 174 N. C. 798, 94 S. E. 2.

Instruction of Court Held Not to Be an Order under This Section.—Where upon adjournment the court instructed the sheriff to summon a number of men to act as jurors, it is not an order under this section. The sheriff may at any time before the trial begin discharge any jurors who fail to give their attendance, and defendants in possession of land, having failed to exhaust their respective challenges to the jurors summoned being subject to all the qualifications of talesmen, and defendants having failed to exhaust their respective challenges to the poll, defendants' exceptions to the refusal of their motions could not be sustained. State v. Anderson, 208 N. C. 771, 182 S. E. 643.

§ 9-12. How talesmen summoned when sheriff interested.—When, in the trial of any action before a jury, the sheriff of the county in which the case is to be tried is a party to or has any interest in the action, or when the presiding judge finds upon investigation that the sheriff of the county is not a suitable person, on account of indirect interest in or relative to the cause of action, to be entrusted with the summoning of the tales jurors in any particular case pending, such judge or other presiding officer may cause some other person to summon the jurors in place of the sheriff. (Rev., s. 1968; 1889, c. 441; C. S. 2322.)

§ 9-13. Penalty for disobeying summons.—Every person on the original venire summoned to appear as a juror who fails to give his attendance until duly discharged shall forfeit and pay for the use of the county the sum of twenty dollars, to be imposed by the court; but each delinquent juror shall have until the next succeeding term to make his excuse for his nonattendance, and if, he renders an excuse deemed sufficient by the court, he shall be discharged without costs. Every person, instead of the sheriff or sheriff's deputies, who shall not appear and serve during the day when the court shall be required to reserve one juror of the original panel to "build the panel up." State v. Vick, 123 N. C. 955, 45 S. E. 656.

Method of Taking Advantage of Error.—The action of a trial judge in determining that a juror, if erroneous, is ground for a challenge to the arraignment, and where the motion to quash and set aside the entire panel, and in the absence of such challenge a defendant cannot be allowed to have the advantage of removing jurors in the same cause. State v. Moore, 120 N. C. 570, 26 S. E. 697.

§ 9-15. Questioning jurors without challenge.—The court, or any party to an action, civil or criminal, shall be allowed, in selecting the jury to make inquiry as to the fitness and competency [585] of any person to serve as a juror, without having such inquiry treated as a challenge of such person; and it shall not be considered by the court that any person is challenged as a juror until the party shall formally state that such person is so challenged. (1913, c. 31, s. 6; C. S. 2335.)

§ 9-16. Causes of challenge to juror drawn from box.—It shall not be a valid cause of challenge that a juror called from those whose names are drawn from the box is not a freeholder or has served on the jury within two years prior to the court at which the case is tried or has not paid the taxes assessed against him during the preceding two years. In other respects the cause of challenge shall be the same as now provided by law, and nothing herein shall modify any law authorizing jurors to be summoned from counties other than the county of trial. (1913, c. 31, ss. 5, 7; 1933, c. 130; C. S. 2326.)

See 11 N. C. Law Rev., 218, for discussion as to effect of the 1933 amendment to this section.

Editor’s Note.—Public Laws 1933, c. 130, inserted, at the end of the first sentence of this section, the clause “or has not paid the taxes assessed against him during the preceding two years.”

§ 9-17. Jurors impaneled to try case furnished with accommodations.—When a jury, impaneled to try any case, is put in charge of an officer of the court, the said officer shall furnish said jury with such accommodation as the court may order, and the same shall be paid for by the party casting the same, or by the county, under the order and in the discretion of the judge of the court. (Rev., s. 1978; Code, s. 1756; 1876-7, c. 175; 1889, c. 44; C. S. 2327.)

Effect on Verdict of Refusal to Furnish Refreshments.—Where a jury retired at 11 a. m., to consider their verdict, which was returned at 3 p.m., such verdict cannot be impeached because the sheriff declined to give them refreshments, except water, until they agreed on a verdict, or until the judge should tell him to take them to dinner. Gaither v. Generator Co., 121 N. C. 384, 28 S. E. 546.

§ 9-18. Exemption from civil arrest.—No sheriff or other officer shall arrest under civil process any juror during his attendance on or going to and returning from any court of record. All jurors on service shall be void, and the defendant and such motion shall be discharged. (Rev., s. 1979; Code, s. 1755; R. C., c. 31, s. 31; 1779, c. 157, s. 10; C. S. 2328.)

Section Does Not Repeal Common-Law Exemption.—This section does not by implication repeal the common-law exemption of nonresidents from service of process while in the State in attendance in court either as witnesses or as suitors. Cooper v. Wyman, 122 N. C. 794, 29 S. E. 947. See also, Greenleaf v. Peoples Bank, 133 N. C. 292, 45 S. E. 638.

§ 9-19. Exemptions from jury duty.—All practicing physicians, licensed druggists, telegraph operators who are in the regular employ of any telegraph company or railroad company, train dispatchers who have the actual handling of trains, and all members of the national guard, naval militia, officers reserve corps, enlisted reserve corps, and the naval reserves, who comply with and perform all duties required of them as members of the national guard, naval militia, officers reserve corps, enlisted reserve corps, and the naval reserves, shall be exempt from service as jurors. On the first day of January and July of each year, the commanding officer of each company, troop, battery, detachment, or division of the national guard, naval militia, officers reserve corps, enlisted reserve corps, and the naval reserves, of North Carolina, shall file with the clerk of the superior court of the county in which such company, troop, battery, detachment, or division is located a statement giving the name and rank of each member of his organization who has performed all military duties during the preceding six months; and any member of such military organization whose name does not appear upon such statement shall not receive the benefit of the exemption provided for herein during the six months immediately following the filing of the statement.

The board of county commissioners of any county in North Carolina may, in their discretion, exempt any ex-confederate soldier in their county from jury duty who shall apply to them for exemption.

The clerk of the superior court of each county is hereby empowered to excuse from jury duty any person or persons exempt under the first sentence of this section prior to the convening of the term of court for which such person or persons are required to serve as jurors. (Rev., s. 1980; Code, ss. 1723, 2269; 1885, c. 289; 1889, c. 265; 1887, c. 32; 1891, c. 118; 1900, c. 333, 588; 1913, c. 38, s. 1; 1913, c. 162; 1945, c. 217, 228, 260; 1917, c. 200, s. 89; 1931, c. 410; 1937, c. 151; 1937, c. 224, s. 2; 1943, c. 343; C. S. 2339, 6870.)

Editor’s Note.—The Act of 1931 added “brakemen” to the first paragraph of this section.

The first 1937 amendment added the last paragraph. And the second 1937 amendment made the section applicable to the officers reserve corps, the enlisted reserve corps and the naval reserves.

The 1943 amendment made the section applicable to radio broadcast technicians, announcers, and optometrists.

Exemption Not a Contract.—Exemption from jury duty is not a contract, but a mere privilege, and may be revoked by the Legislature at any time. State v. Cantwell, 142 N. C. 604, 55 S. E. 320.

§ 9-20. Clerk to keep record of jurors.—The clerk of the superior court shall record alphabetically in a book kept for the purpose the names of all grand and petit jurors and talemen who serve in his court, with the term at which they serve. (Rev., s. 1891; 1893, c. 52, s. 3; C. S. 2330.)

§ 9-21. Extra or alternate juror; challenges; compensation and duties.—In the trial in the Superior Court of any case, civil or criminal, when it appears to the judge presiding that the trial is likely to be protracted, upon direction of the judge after the jury has been duly impaneled and sworn, an additional or alternate juror shall be selected in the same manner as the regular jurors in such case were selected, but each party shall be entitled to two peremptory challenges as to such alternate juror; such additional or alternate juror shall likewise be sworn and seated near the jury, with equal opportunity for seeing and hearing the proceedings and shall attend at all times upon the trial with the jury and shall obey all orders and admonitions of the court to the jury and, when the jurors are ordered kept together in any case, said alternate juror shall be kept with them. Such additional or alternate juror shall be liable as a regular juror for failure to attend the trial or to obey any order or admonition of the court to the jury, shall receive the same compensation as other jurors, and except as hereinafter provided shall be discharged upon the final submission of the case to the judge before the final submission of the case to the jury a juror becomes incapacitated or disqualified, or by reason of illness or death in his family, or other sufficient reason in the opinion of the court, he may be discharged by the judge, in which case, or if a juror dies, upon the order of the judge said additional or alternate juror shall become one of the jury and serve in all respects as though selected as an original juror.

Editor’s Note.—In 9 N. C. L. Rev. 378, this statute and its background are discussed.

The amendment inserted in the last sentence the words "or by reason of illness or death in his family, or other sufficient reason in the opinion of the court." The 1939 amendment inserted in the last sentence the words "or by reason of illness or death in his family, or other sufficient reason in the opinion of the court." Constitutional. — The essential attributes of trial by jury guaranteed by Art. I, sec. 13, are the number of jurors, their impartiality and a unanimous verdict, and this section does not infringe upon same, the alternate not being technically a juror until a member of the jury has died or been discharged and the alternate is made a juror by order of the court, and the verdict being finally returned by the unanimous verdict of twelve good and lawful men.

§ 9-22. Six peremptory challenges on each side.

The clerk, before a jury is impaneled to try the issues in any civil suit, shall read over the names of the jury upon the panel in the presence and hearing of the parties or their counsel; and the parties, or their counsel for them, may challenge peremptorily six jurors upon the said panel, without showing any cause therefor, which shall be allowed by the court. (Rev., s. 1964; Code, s. 406; R. C., c. 31, s. 33; 1935, c. 459, s. 2; 1945, c. 447, s. 1; C. S. 2331.)

Cross References.—As to challenge of alternate juror, see §9-23. As to peremptory challenges in a criminal case, see §§ 15-161 and 15-162.

Editor’s Note.—By the amendment of 1935 the number of peremptory challenges was increased from four to six.

In General.—As in the case of challenges for cause, the right is given to challenge but such right does not constitute the right to select jurors. Ives v. Railroad, 142 N. C. 131, 45 S. E. 74; Medlin v. Simpson, 144 N. C. 397, 57 S. E. 24.

More Parties than One.—Whether there are one or more plaintiffs or defendants, only four (now six) peremptory challenges to the jury on either side are allowable. Bryan v. Harrison, 76 N. C. 360.

Acceptance.—Where a juror has been accepted it is error to permit a peremptory challenge. Dunn v. Railroad, 141 N. C. 393, 43 S. E. 452.

§ 9-23. Where several defendants; challenges apportioned; discretion of judge. —When there are two or more defendants in a civil action the judge presiding at the trial, if it appears to the court that there are divers and antagonistic interests between the defendants, may in his discretion apportion among the defendants the challenges now allowed by law to defendants, or he may increase the number of challenges to not exceeding four to each defendant or class of defendants representing the same interest. In either event, the same number of challenges shall be allowed each defendant or class of defendants representing the same interest. The decision of the judge as to the nature of the interests and number of challenges shall be final. (Rev., s. 1965; 1903, c. 357; C. S. 2332.)

Art. 4. Grand Jurors.

§ 9-24. How grand jury drawn.—The judges of the superior court, at the terms of their courts, except those terms which are for the trial of civil cases exclusively, and special terms for which no grand jury has been ordered, shall direct the number of all persons returned as jurors to be written on scrolls of paper and put into a box or hat and drawn out by a child under ten years of age; whereof the first eighteen drawn shall be a grand jury for the court; and the residue shall serve as petit jurors for the court. (Rev., s. 1969; Code, s. 404; R. C., c. 31, s. 33; 1779, c. 157, s. 11; C. S. 2333.)

Twelve Jurors Sufficient.—Eighteen jurors are not necessary to the finding of an indictment, but twelve are sufficient in North Carolina as at common law. State v. Stewart, 199 N. C. 340, 127 S. E. 260.

Wilson County.—Chapter 189, Public-Local Laws 1937, providing that the board of county commissioners of Wilson county shall select grand juries in the county "in the manner prescribed by law," merely empowers the board to draw grand juries in the manner prescribed by this section, and the act is a valid exercise of legislative power. State v. Peacock, 220 N. C. 63, 16 S. E. 2d (2d) 452.

§ 9-25. Grand juries in certain counties.—At the first fall and spring terms of the criminal courts held for the counties of Craven, Gaston, Guilford, Mecklenburg, Moore, Pitt, Richmond, New Hanover, McDowell, Durham, Cumberland, Lenoir, Columbus, Nash, Johnston, Vance, Wayne, Iredell, and Wake, grand juries shall be drawn, the presiding judge shall charge them as provided by law, and they shall serve during the remaining fall and spring terms, respectively. In the event of vacancies occurring in the grand jury of Pitt county, the judge holding the court of said county may, in his discretion, order a new juror drawn to take the oaths prescribed and to fill any vacancy occurring thereon.

At any time the judge of the superior court presiding over either the criminal or civil court of New Hanover, McDowell, Durham, Cumberland, and Lenoir counties may call said grand jury to assemble and may deliver unto said grand jury an additional charge. The said judge presiding over either the criminal or civil court of New Hanover, McDowell, Durham, Cumberland, and Lenoir counties may at any time discharge said grand jury from further service, in which event he shall cause a new grand jury to be drawn which shall serve during the remainder of the said fall or spring term. The first nine members of the grand jury chosen at the first term of the superior court of Cumberland and Lenoir counties for the trial of... criminal causes in the year of one thousand nine hundred twenty-two shall serve during the spring and fall terms, and at the first of such courts of the fall and spring terms thereafter, nine additional jurors shall be chosen to serve for one term; provided, however, that the first nine members of the grand jury chosen at the first term of the superior court of McDowell County for the trial of criminal cases after January first, one thousand nine hundred and forty-three, shall serve for one year and until their successors are chosen and qualified, and at the first of such courts of the fall and spring terms thereafter nine additional jurors shall be chosen to serve for one year and until their successors are chosen and qualified.

At any time the judge of the superior court presiding over the criminal court of Columbus county may call said grand jury to assemble and may deliver unto said jury an additional charge. The said judge presiding over the criminal court of Columbus county may at any time discharge said grand jury from further service, and may cause a new grand jury to be drawn, which shall serve during the remainder of the said fall and spring term.

Every grand juror drawn and summoned in Robeson county shall serve for a period of twelve months.

At the spring term of the criminal court held for the county of Gates, and for the county of Henderson, grand jury shall be drawn, the presiding judge shall charge it as provided by law, and they shall serve for twelve (12) months: Provided, that at any time the judge of the superior court presiding over the criminal courts of Gates county or Henderson county may call said jury to assemble and may deliver unto said grand jury an additional charge: Provided further, that the judge of the superior court presiding over the criminal courts of Gates county and of Henderson county may at any time discharge said grand jury from further service, and may cause a new grand jury to be drawn, which shall serve during the remainder of the said twelve (12) months: Provided, further, that the first nine members of the grand jury chosen at the fall term of the superior court of Gates county for the trial of criminal cases in the year one thousand nine hundred and forty-three shall serve during the fall and spring terms, and at the spring and fall terms thereafter, nine additional jurors shall be chosen to serve for one year.

At the April term of superior court held for the county of Hoke a grand jury shall be drawn, the presiding judge shall charge it as provided by law, and it shall serve until the following April term, Hoke superior court: Provided, that at any time the judge of the superior court presiding over either criminal or civil court in said county may call said grand jury to assemble and may deliver unto said grand jury an additional charge: Provided further, that the judge of the superior court presiding over either criminal or civil court in said county may call said grand jury to assemble and may deliver unto said grand jury an additional charge: Provided further, that the judge of the superior court presiding over either criminal or civil court in said county may call said grand jury to assemble and may deliver unto said grand jury an additional charge, and it shall serve the remaining fall and spring terms respectively. In the event of any vacancy occurring in the grand jury of Johnston, Wayne or Iredell County by death, removal from the county, sickness, or otherwise, the presiding judge may, in his discretion, order such vacancy, or vacancies, filled by drawing sufficient jurors to fill said vacancy or vacancies from the jury box, and said juror or jurors so chosen shall take the oath prescribed by law, and shall fill the unexpired term of the juror or jurors whose places they were drawn to fill. The presiding judge shall have the power, in his discretion, to appoint an assistant-foreman of the grand jury in the counties of Johnston, Wayne and Iredell and said assistant-foreman so appointed shall serve in the counties aforesaid a period of one year from the time of their selection.

In the selection of a grand jury for Bertie County for the fall term of one thousand nine hundred and twenty-seven and annually thereafter, there shall be drawn and summoned forty men, in the manner now provided by law, from which a grand jury of eighteen shall be selected by the presiding judge of the superior court, which said grand jury shall serve for a period of one year from the time of their selection.

The persons drawn for service in the grand jury at the term at which said grand jury is selected, and who are not selected to serve on the grand jury, shall serve on the petit jury for the week of the term at which the grand jury is selected: Provided, that at other terms of the Superior Court of Bertie County, both civil and criminal, there shall be drawn and summoned, in the manner now provided by law, twenty persons from which the jury for the term of court for which they are drawn shall be selected.

At the first term of court for the trial of criminal cases in Durham county after the first day of July, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-nine, there shall be chosen a grand jury as now provided by law, and the first nine members of said grand jury chosen at said term shall serve for a term of one year, and the second nine members of said grand jury so chosen shall serve for a term of six months, and thereafter at the first regular and not special term of criminal court after the first days of January and July of each year there shall be chosen nine members of said grand jury to serve for a term of one year.

The grand jurors for Davidson County shall be drawn at the first fall and spring terms of the criminal courts held in the County of Davidson, and the judge shall charge them as provided by law, and the jurors so drawn shall serve during the remaining fall and spring terms respectively.

In the event of any vacancy occurring in the grand jury of Johnston, Wayne or Iredell County by death, removal from the county, sickness, or otherwise, the presiding judge may, in his discretion, order such vacancy, or vacancies, filled by drawing sufficient jurors to fill said vacancy or vacancies from the jury box, and said juror or jurors so chosen shall take the oath prescribed by law, and shall fill the unexpired term of the juror or jurors whose places they were drawn to fill. The presiding judge shall have the power, in his discretion, to appoint an assistant-foreman of the grand jury in the counties of Johnston, Wayne and Iredell and said assistant-foreman so appointed shall serve in the counties aforesaid a period of one year from the time of their selection.

In the selection of a grand jury for Bertie County for the fall term of one thousand nine hundred and twenty-seven and annually thereafter, there shall be drawn and summoned forty men, in the manner now provided by law, from which a grand jury of eighteen shall be selected by the presiding judge of the superior court, which said grand jury shall serve for a period of one year from the time of their selection.

The persons drawn for service in the grand jury at the term at which said grand jury is selected, and who are not selected to serve on the grand jury, shall serve on the petit jury for the week of the term at which the grand jury is selected: Provided, that at other terms of the Superior Court of Bertie County, both civil and criminal, there shall be drawn and summoned, in the manner now provided by law, twenty persons from which the jury for the term of court for which they are drawn shall be selected.

At the first term of court for the trial of criminal cases in Durham county after the first day of July, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-nine, there shall be chosen a grand jury as now provided by law, and the first nine members of said grand jury chosen at said term shall serve for a term of one year, and the second nine members of said grand jury so chosen shall serve for a term of six months, and thereafter at the first regular and not special term of criminal court after the first days of January and July of each year there shall be chosen nine members of said grand jury to serve for a term of one year.

The grand jurors for Davidson County shall be drawn at the first fall and spring terms of the criminal courts held in the County of Davidson, and the judge shall charge them as provided by law, and the jurors so drawn shall serve during the remaining fall and spring terms respectively.

In the event of any vacancy occurring in the grand jury of Johnston, Wayne or Iredell County by death, removal from the county, sickness, or otherwise, the presiding judge may, in his discretion, order such vacancy, or vacancies, filled by drawing sufficient jurors to fill said vacancy or vacancies from the jury box, and said juror or jurors so chosen shall take the oath prescribed by law, and shall fill the unexpired term of the juror or jurors whose places they were drawn to fill. The presiding judge shall have the power, in his discretion, to appoint an assistant-foreman of the grand jury in the counties of Johnston, Wayne and Iredell and said assistant-foreman so appointed shall serve in the counties aforesaid a period of one year from the time of their selection.
pointed shall, in the absence or disqualification of the foreman, discharge the duties of the foreman of said grand jury.

At the first term of court for the trial of criminal cases in New Hanover County after the first day of July, one thousand nine hundred and thirty-seven, there shall be chosen a grand jury as now provided by law, and the first nine members of said jury chosen at said term shall serve for a term of one year, and the second nine members of said jury so chosen shall serve for a term of six months, and thereafter at the first term of criminal court after the first days of January and July of each year there shall be chosen nine members of said grand jury to serve for a term of one year.

At each August term of the superior court hereafter held for the county of Scotland the grand jury drawn as now provided by law shall be charged by the presiding judge as provided by law, and said grand jury shall serve until the next succeeding March term of the superior court for Scotland County and until its successor has been drawn and has qualified; at each March term of the superior court hereafter held for the county of Scotland the grand jury drawn as now provided by law shall be charged by the presiding judge as provided by law, and said grand jury shall serve until the next succeeding August term of the superior court for Scotland County and until its successor has been drawn and has qualified; said grand jury shall attend every term of the superior court held in said county in which criminal cases may under the law be tried during the term of service of said grand jury and until it has been discharged; at any time the judge of the superior court presiding over either criminal, civil, or mixed terms of court in said county may call said grand jury to assemble and may deliver unto said grand jury an additional charge; the judge of the superior court presiding over criminal, civil, or mixed terms of court in said county may call said grand jury to assemble and may deliver unto said grand jury an additional charge.

§ 9-26. Exceptions for disqualifications. — All exceptions to grand jurors found on account of their disqualifications shall be taken before the jury is sworn and impaneled to try the issue, by motion to quash the indictment, and if not so taken, the same shall be deemed to be waived. But no indictment shall be quashed, nor shall judgment thereon be arrested, by reason of the fact that any member of the grand jury finding such bills of indictment had not paid his taxes for the preceding year, or was a party to any suit pending and at issue. (Rev., s. 1970; Code, s. 1741; 1907, c. 36, s. 1; C. S. 2335.)

Grand Jury of Twelve Men.—An indictment found by a grand jury of twelve men is good, provided all of the twelve concur in finding the bill. State v. Perry, 122 N. C. 1018, 29 S. E. 384.

Duty of Grand Jurors.—It is not only the right but it is the duty of grand jurors, of their own motion, to originate prosecutions by making presentments of all violations of law which have come under the personal observation or knowledge of each juror, or of which they have credible information. State v. Wilkes, 104 N. C. 647, 10 S. E. 453.

A party litigant does not have the right to select jurors, but only to challenge or reject them. State v. Peacock, 230 N. C. 63, 16 S. E. (2d) 452.

Member of Petit Jury.—The fact that a member of the grand jury which returned a true bill for perjury was one of the petit jury that tried the issues in an action wherein it was charged the perjury was committed, is not good ground for alating or quashing the indictment. He was bound by his oath as a grand juror to communicate to his fellows the information he had acquired as a petit juror. State v. Wilcox, 104 N. C. 847, 19 S. E. 433.

§ 9-27. Foreman may administer oaths to witnesses.—The foreman of every grand jury duly sworn and impaneled in any of the courts has power to administer oaths and affirmations to persons to be examined before it as witnesses: Provided, that the oath or affirmation, except those whose names are endorsed on the bill of indictment by the officer prosecuting in behalf of the state, or by direction of the court, the foreman of the grand jury shall mark on the bill the names of the witnesses sworn and examined before the jury. In case of the absence of the foreman, or in case of his inability to serve, the presiding Judge shall appoint an acting foreman, who shall have all powers vested by law in the foreman. (Rev. s. 1971; Code, s. 1742; 1879, c. 13; 1929, c. 228; C. S. § 2336.)

Editor's Note.—The Act of 1929 added the last sentence to this section.
The trial judge has the discretionary power to issue a writ of venire facias, instead of directing the jurors to be drawn from the jury box, and the court's action in issuing the writ is not reviewable in the absence of abuse of discretion. State v. Casey, 212 N. C. 352, 193 S. E. 411.

An objection by a prisoner charged with capital offense, that the jurors summoned under this section, or drawn from the box under section 9-30, are disqualified, is untenable since both are drawn from the jury box as prescribed by section 9-30, is untenable since the latter method is purely discretionary. State v. Smart, 111 N. C. 669, 28 S. E. 546.

The ordering of a special venire where the prisoner is charged with a capital offense, and the manner in which it should be summoned or drawn, when so ordered, whether selected by the sheriff under this section, or drawn from the box under section 9-30, are both discretionary with the judge of the superior court, and unless an objection goes to the whole panel of jurors, it may not be taken advantage of by a challenge to the array, unless there is partiality or misconduct of the sheriff shown, or some irregularity in making out the list. State v. Levy, 187 N. C. 581, 122 S. E. 368.

Juror May Have Served Within Two Years.—A juror summoned on a special venire is not rendered incompetent because he has served on the jury in the same court within two years. Only tales jurors come within the proviso of sec. 9-11 and, in order that they may be disqualified, it must appear that they have not only been summoned, but have acted as jurors within that time. State v. Whitefield, 221 N. C. 161, 25 N. E. 576.

Special Venire Selected without Partiality.—A challenge to the array on the ground that the sheriff and his deputies, under instructions by the sheriff, selected for the special venire the special veniremen, good character, who had not served on the jury within the past two years and who lived in townships in the county other than the township in which the crime was committed and townships contiguous thereto, is properly refused, the instructions of the sheriff being in compliance with this section, and the action of the sheriff and the deputies showing no partiality, misconduct and irregularity in making out the list. State v. Dixon, 215 N. C. 438, 2 S. E. 2d 371.

Special Venire Selected without Regard to Color.—It is no ground of exception that a special venire was selected from the freeholders of the county without regard to color, or no reference having been had to the jury list constituted by the county court. State v. Taylor, 61 N. C. 598.

Accessory May Be Tried by Special Venire.—Where two persons are indicted for murder, one as principal and the other as accessory before the fact, the latter may be tried by a juror selected from a special venire ordered in the case. State v. Register, 133 N. C. 746, 46 S. E. 21.

Special Venire by Court in Consequence of the Sheriff's Failure to Perform His Duty.—When a special venire has been ordered by the court for the trial of a capital offense, the veniremen, being selected by the sheriff in his discretion, not from the jury box, are subject to the same rules and penalties as are prescribed for tales jurors. State v. Avant, 202 N. C. 680, 163 S. E. 806.

§ 9-30. Drawn from jury box in court by judge's order.—When a judge deems a special venire necessary, he may, at his discretion, issue an order to the clerk of the board of commissioners for the county, commanding him to bring into open court with him the jury boxes of the county, and he shall cause the number of scrolls as designated by him to be drawn from box number one by a child under ten years of age. The names so drawn shall constitute the special venire, and the clerk of the superior court shall insert their names in the writ of venire, and deliver the same to the sheriff of the county, and the persons named in the writ and no others shall be summoned by the sheriff. If the special venire is exhausted before the jury is chosen, the judge shall order another special venire until the jury has been chosen.

The scrolls containing the names of the persons drawn as jurors from box number one shall, after the jury is chosen, be placed in box number two, and if box number one is exhausted before the jury is chosen, the drawing hall be completed from box number two after the same has been well shaken. (Rev., s. 1974; Code, s. 1739; 1897, c. 364; 1913, c. 31, s. 2; C. S. 2339.)

Cross Reference.—As to qualification of jurors, see § 9-1 and annotations thereto.

§ 9-31. Penalty on sheriff not executing writ or jurors not attending.—If any sheriff fails duly to execute and return such writ of venire facias, he shall be fined by the court not exceeding one hundred dollars. All jurors so summoned shall attend until discharged by the court, under the same rules and penalties as are prescribed for other jurors. (Rev., ss. 1975, 3603; Code, s. 1740; R. C., c. 35, s. 31; 1830, c. 27, s. 2; C. S. 2340.)

Cross Reference.—As to rules and penalties prescribed for other jurors, see § 9-10 et seq.

Amendment of Return on Writ.—Where a sheriff, in making his return on a writ as a special venire, omitted, by mistake, the name of one who on the face thereof, "Received October 15, 1893, executed October 30, 1893, by summoning one hundred and fifty men," it was within the discretion of the court, at the term to which the return was returned to allow the defendant to correct the same, and to return a further venire to be summoned at once from the by-standers. State v. Stanton, 118 N. C. 1182, 24 S. E. 536.

Matters Affecting Entire Panel.—In the absence of any allegation that the sheriff acted corruptly or with partiality in summoning the venire, or that anything had been done affecting "the integrity and fairness of the entire panel," it is not a ground of challenge to the array that the sheriff failed to summon several of the special venire drawn from the jury box or that the jurors were not approved by the county commissioners. State v. Stanton, 118 N. C. 1182, 24 S. E. 536.

The integrity and fairness of the entire panel of jurors summoned in obedience to a writ of special venire are not affected by the fact that one man named in the writ had removed from the county and that another named therein was dead when the jury list was revised by the commissioners. Neither are they affected by the fact that one of these named on the venire was not summoned, nor by the fact that the sheriff in copying the list of the venire furnished to him omitted, by mistake, the name of one who in consequence was not summoned. State v. Whitt, 113 N. C. 716, 18 S. E. 715.

§ 9-31. Penalty on sheriff not executing writ or jurors not attending.—If any sheriff fails duly to execute and return such writ of venire facias, he shall be fined by the court not exceeding one hundred dollars. All jurors so summoned shall attend until discharged by the court, under the same rules and penalties as are prescribed for other jurors. (Rev., ss. 1975, 3603; Code, s. 1740; R. C., c. 35, s. 31; 1830, c. 27, s. 2; C. S. 2340.)

Cross Reference.—As to rules and penalties prescribed for other jurors, see § 9-10 et seq.

Amendment of Return on Writ.—Where a sheriff, in making his return on a writ as a special venire, omitted, by mistake, the name of one who on the face thereof, "Received October 15, 1893, executed October 30, 1893, by summoning one hundred and fifty men," it was within the discretion of the court, at the term to which the return was returned to allow the defendant to correct the same, and to return a further venire to be summoned at once from the by-standers. State v. Stanton, 118 N. C. 1182, 24 S. E. 536.

Matters Affecting Entire Panel.—In the absence of any allegation that the sheriff acted corruptly or with partiality in summoning the venire, or that anything had been done affecting "the integrity and fairness of the entire panel," it is not a ground of challenge to the array that the sheriff failed to summon several of the special venire drawn from the jury box or that the jurors were not approved by the county commissioners. State v. Stanton, 118 N. C. 1182, 24 S. E. 536.

The integrity and fairness of the entire panel of jurors summoned in obedience to a writ of special venire are not affected by the fact that one man named in the writ had removed from the county and that another named therein was dead when the jury list was revised by the commissioners. Neither are they affected by the fact that one of these named on the venire was not summoned, nor by the fact that the sheriff in copying the list of the venire furnished to him omitted, by mistake, the name of one who in consequence was not summoned. State v. Whitt, 113 N. C. 716, 18 S. E. 715.
Chapter 10. Notaries.

Sec. 10-1. Appointment and commission; term of office; revocation of commission.—The governor may, from time to time, at his discretion, appoint one or more fit persons in every county to act as notaries public, and shall issue to each a commission. Any commission so issued by the Governor or his predecessor, shall be revokable by him in his discretion upon complaint being made against such notary public and when he shall be satisfied that the interest of the public will be best served by the revocation of said commission.

Whenever the Governor shall have revoked the commission of any notary public appointed by him, or his predecessor in office, it shall be his duty to file with the clerk of the court in the county of such notary public a copy of said order and mail a copy of same to said notary public.

Any person holding himself out to the public as a notary public, or any person attempting to act in such capacity after his commission shall have been revoked by the Governor, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction be punishable in the discretion of the court, as provided for in other misdemeanors.

Cross References.—As to validating acknowledgments before notaries under age, see § 10-10. As to validation of depositions; revocation of commission—In State v. Knight, supra, the decision, with the great Chief Justice Clark dissenting, held that a notary public was not a public officer, that the Legislature could not change its character by simply making a change in its name. This was so held in spite of the fact that, as pointed out by Mr. Chief Justice Clark, there was no constitutional provision as to notaries public, and that the place was wholly a creation of legislative enactment. In Opinion of Justices, 165 Mass. 599, 601, 43 N. E. 927, 32 L. R. A. 350, the court said: "Where an office is created by statute . . . the qualifications required . . . are wholly within the control of the Legislature, unless there is some limitation put upon the Legislature by the Constitution." And in Bank v. Smith (Tenn.), 37 S. W. 1102, it was said: "All that is needed to enable one to be a de jure female notary public is an enacting act of the Legislature."

However correct or incorrect may have been the conclusion of the court in State v. Knight, supra, by the very reasoning in that case, women are now eligible as notaries public. Federal and State constitutional amendments now insure to women the right to the ballot on equal terms with men. Article VI, sec. 7, of the Constitution of North Carolina is as follows: "Every voter in North Carolina, except as in this article disquilled, shall be eligible to office," etc. Women are not included within the exceptions numbered. See Lee v. Dunn, 73 N. C. 995; Spruill v. Bateman, 163 N. C. 588, 77 S. E. 760. Therefore, limited as is the office of a notary public, the position of notary public is a public office, it follows that women are eligible to the office of notary public.

Chapter 10. Notaries.

CH. 10. NOTARIES

§ 10-2. To qualify before clerk; record of qualification.—Upon exhibiting their commissions to the clerk of the superior court of the county in which they are to act, the notaries shall be duly qualified by taking before said clerk an oath of office, and a certificate of the commission shall be deposited with the clerk and filed among the records, and he shall note on his minutes the qualification of the notary public. (Rev., ss. 2347, 2348; Code, ss. 3304, 3305; C. S. 3174.)

Cross References.—As to the oath prescribed for officers, see § 11-11. As to when an attorney is disqualified, see § 47-8.

§ 10-3. Clerks notaries ex officio; may certify own seals.—The clerks of the superior court may act as notaries public, in their several counties, in the exercise of their office as clerks, and may certify their notarial acts under the seals of their respective counties. (Rev., s. 2349; Code, s. 3306; R. C., c. 75, s. 3; 1833, c. 7, ss. 1, 2; C. S. 3174.)

A clerk of the superior court, is, by virtue of his office, a notary public, and the taking of acknowledgments must be referred to the exercise of his notarial authority. Lawrence v. Hoiges, 92 N. C. 672, 681.

§ 10-4. Powers of notaries.—Notaries public, in and out of the state, have power to take and certify the acknowledgment or proof of powers of attorney, mortgages, deeds and other instruments of writing, to take depositions and to administer oaths and affirmations in matters incident or belonging to the duties of their office, and to take affidavits to be used before a court, judge or other officer, within the state, and have power to take the private examination of females covert. (Rev., s. 2350; Code, s. 3307; 1866, c. 30; 1879, c. 128; C. S. 3175.)

Cross Reference.—As to the taking of affidavits to be used before a court, see § 3-8.

Powers.—A notary public is recognized by the universal law of civilized and commercial nations; but his powers are confined to the authentication of commercial papers and to the protesting of bills of exchange and the like. Benedict, Hall & Co. v. Hall, 76 N. C. 113, 114.

By statute in this State the powers of notaries public have been extended beyond those which were incident to the office by the universal law-merchant, and permitted to the presentment of bills of exchange for acceptance or payment and the protest thereof for nonpayment or refusal to accept; they may now take and certify the acknowledgment or proof of powers of attorney, mortgages, deeds, and other instruments of writing, etc., permitted to take acknowledgments, affidavits and oaths, &c., and may examine as a witness and were believed. Pipe and Foundry Co. v. Keith & Co., 114 N. C. 178, 184, 19 S. E. 109.

§ 10-5. Notaries public, who are stockholders, etc., permitted to take acknowledgments, administer oaths, &c. — It shall be lawful for any notary public who is a stockholder, director, officer, or employee of a bank or other corporation to take the acknowledgment of any party to any written instrument executed by or for such corporation, or to administer an oath to any other stockholder, director, officer, employee, agent of such corporation, or to protest for non-acceptance or non-payment of bills of exchange, drafts, checks, notes and other negotiable instruments which may be owned or held for collection by such corporation: Provided, it shall be unlawful for any notary public to take the acknowledgment of an instrument executed by or for a bank or other corporation of which he is a stockholder, director, officer, or employee, where such notary is individually a party to such instrument, or to protest against any negotiable instrument owned or held for collection by such corporation, where such notary is individually a party to such instrument. (1937, c. 183.)

§ 10-6. May exercise powers in any county.—Notaries public have full power and authority to perform the functions of their office in any and all counties of the state, and full faith and credit shall be given to any of their official acts wherever the same shall be made and done. (Rev., s. 2351; 1891. c. 248; C. S. 3176.)

A notary public resident out of the State has no authority to take affidavits to be used in the courts of this State. Hall & Co. v. Hall, 76 N. C. 113, 114.

§ 10-7. Expiration of commission to be stated after signature.—Notaries public shall state after each official signature by them the date of the expiration of their commissions; but the failure to do so shall not thereby invalidate their official acts. (Rev., s. 2351a; C. S. 3177.)

§ 10-8. Fees of notaries.—Notaries public and other persons acting as such shall be allowed the sum of fifty cents for protesting for nonacceptance or for nonpayment, or for both when done at the same time, any order, draft, note, bond or bill for any other reason when he is an employee of the grantor, the sum of ten cents for each notice sent in connection therewith. For other necessary services, where no fee is fixed, they shall be allowed twenty cents for every ninety words.
Cases of protest concerning vessels or other cargoes shall not be affected by this section. (Rev., s. 8860; Code, s. 3749; 1889, c. 446; 1895, c. 296; 1903, c. 784; C. S. 3178.) The fees of notaries public are created and regulated by statute. Cigar & Vinegar Co. v. Carroll, 124 N. C. 555, 559, 32 S. E. 959.

§ 10-9. Notarial seal.—Official acts by notaries public shall be attested by their notarial seals. (Rev., s. 2532; C. S. 3179.)

Cross Reference.—As to validation of deeds and probate and registration thereof where notarial seals have been omitted, see §§ 47-102 and 47-103.

Courts Take Judicial Notice.—It was said in Pierce v. Indseth, 106 U. S. 546, 1 S. Ct. 418, 27 L. Ed. 254: "The court will take judicial notice of notarial seals, or signatures to instruments recognized by the commercial law of the world." State v. Knight, 169 N. C. 333, 338, 85 S. E. 418.

Name in Seal.—The statute authorizing a notary public to take acknowledgment of deeds does not require that his name or any name shall be used in the notarial seal, and the seal appended to the certificate is presumably his in the absence of evidence to the contrary; hence, where the fact of the execution of deed by a notary public is adjudged to have been proved by such seal and certificate, it is not rebutted by the mere fact that the notary signs his name, "Geo. Theo. Somner" and the seal has on it the name of "Theo. Somner." Deans v. Pate, 114 N. C. 194, 19 S. E. 146.

§ 10-10. Acts of minor notaries validated.—All acts of notaries public for the state of North Carolina who were not yet twenty-one years of age at the time of the performance of such acts are hereby validated; and in every case where deeds or other instruments have been acknowledged before such notary public who was not yet twenty-one years of age at the time of taking of said acknowledgment, such acknowledgment taken before such notary public is hereby declared to be sufficient and valid. (1941, c. 233.)

Cross References.—As to validation of defective acknowledgments before notaries public in certain conveyances, see §§ 47-52, 47-53, 47-162.

Chapter 11. Oaths.

Sec. 11-1. Oaths to be administered with solemnity.

Art. 2. Forms of Official and Other Oaths.

Sec. 11-8. When deputies may administer.

Sec. 11-9. Administration by certain officers.

Sec. 11-10. When county surveyors may administer oaths.

Art. 3. Forms of Official and Other Oaths.

Sec. 11-11. Oaths of sundry persons; forms.

§ 11-1. Oaths to be administered with solemnity.—Whereas, lawful oaths for the discovery of truth and establishing right are necessary and highly conducive to the important end of good government; and being most solemn appeals to Almighty God, as the omniscient witness of truth and the just and omnipotent avenger of falsehood, such oaths, therefore, ought to be taken and administered with the utmost solemnity. (Rev., s. 2533; R. C., c. 76, s. 1; 1777, c. 108, s. 2; C. S. 3188.) This "solemnity" applies not only to the substance of the oath, but to the form and manner of taking it and of administering it. State v. Davis, 69 N. C. 383, 385.

Object of Statutes.—It is manifest, by a perusal of the statutes, that they were not intended to alter any rule of law, but the sole object was to prescribe forms for the sake of convenience and uniformity. State v. Pitt, 166 N. C. 268, 271, 80 S. E. 1060.

Double Sanction to Oath of Witness.—The law requires two guarantees of the truth of what a witness is about to state; he must be in the fear of punishment by the laws of man, and he must also be in the fear of punishment by the laws of God, if he states what is false; in other words, there must be a temporal and also a religious sanction to his oath. Shaw v. Moore, 49 N. C. 25, 26.

Sufficiency of Belief.—A person who believes in the existence of a Supreme Being, who EXISTS. . .
Objection to Oath of Incompetent after Verdict.—Where a juror is incompetent to be sworn because an atheist (State v. Davis, 80 N. C. 412) and the objection is not discovered until after the verdict is returned it vests in the discretion of the trial judge. State v. Lambeth, 93 N. C. 618; State v. Council, 129 N. C. 511, 39 S. E. 814, 816.

Objection to Manner of Administering after Verdict.—Where a juror is incompetent to be sworn because an atheist (State v. Benjamin, 89 N. C. 225) and his counsel let him acquiesce in the manner in which the oath was taken, to object after the verdict would simply make it a trial not a decision upon the merits but a trial by jury. If in the presence of the prisoner and his counsel he was called upon to speak, the prisoner should not be heard after the verdict has gone against him. State v. Byrd, 34 N. C. 377; State v. Patricke, 48 N. C. 443; Braggs v. Byrd, 9 N. C. 441; State v. Council, 129 N. C. 511, 39 S. E. 814, 816.

Failure to Administer.—In State v. Gee, 92 N. C. 135, where a juror need not repeat the words "so help me God". State v. Knight, 84 N. C. 790.

Ministerial Act.—The administration of an oath is a ministerial act, and by the direction of the court, but is the act of the court. State v. Davis, 69 N. C. 383, 385.

Oath of Incompetent after Verdict.—Where a juror was sworn in the presence of the prisoner, but was called upon to speak, the prisoner should not be heard after the verdict had gone against him. State v. Mace, 86 N. C. 668, 670. Objection to Manner of Administering after Verdict.—Where a juror was sworn in the presence of the prisoner, but was called upon to speak, the prisoner should not be heard after the verdict had gone against him. State v. Mace, 86 N. C. 668, 670.

Partiality of Juror.—"As to form of oaths, see § 11-11. As perjury, see § 14-299.

Editor's Note.—The 1941 amendment dispensed with the former requirement that the Holy Gospel be kissed as part of the administration of an oath. For case relating to the requirement, see State v. Owen, 72 N. C. 605, 612.

Application to Witnesses.—After this manner, every witness (Rev. s. 3309; Code, R. C. c. 76, s. 1; 1777, c. 108, s. 2; 1941, c. 11; S. C. § 3189.)

Sufficiency of Juror's Oath.—An oath administered to a juror in words prescribed by statute is sufficient: the juror need not repeat the words "so help me God." 2 Bush, Cr. Law, secs. 862, 982; State v. Mazon, 90 N. C. 676, 678.

Validity of Irregular Oath.—To hold invalid an oath that did not follow the very words of the statute would be to require public oaths to be perjury and slander," in the language of the Supreme Court of Tennessee, "could often find, in slight variances from the prescribed form, a means of escape from condign punishment which justice invokes. Undoubtedly an oath, administered substantially according to the prescribed form, will be valid, and if taken falsely the party will be guilty of perjury, 21 Johns. 31; 12 Ves. 320. And in the language of Green, C. J., in State v. Daylor, 38 N. Y. (N. Y.), 49: "The Legislature did not design to prescribe the precise form of the oath, the slightest deviation from the words of which would prove fatal." State v. Mazon, 90 N. C. 676, 678.

Same.—Same.—Juror's Oath in Capital Cases.—"Although the juror may say "the word you swear" at the commencement of the oath of jurors in a capital case, and mars the comeliness of judicial proceedings, we do not think that it vitiates the oath. State v. Owen, 72 N. C. 605, 612.

The manner of swearing is, as Judge Pearson says, merely a form "adapted to the religious belief of the general mass of citizens for the sake of convenience and uniformity." State v. Witt, 166 N. C. 268, 271, 80 S. E. 1060.

Presumption.—"The administration of an oath to a witness is an official act of the court; and it being shown affirmatively and by the evidence that an oath was administered to the defendant in open court or by the examining judge, a presumption arises that it was rightly done. State v. Mace, 86 N. C. 668, 670.

Willful Violation.—A willful violation of such an oath in a material matter is perjury, and no other. This is the general rule. State v. Davis, 69 N. C. 383, 385.

When Deputy Clerk May Administer.—The deputy of the clerk of the superior court is authorized to take the affidavit of the plaintiff in an action of claim and delivery. Jackson v. Buchanan, 89 N. C. 74.

Administration of oath with uplifted hand.—When the person to be sworn shall be conscientiously scrupulous of taking a book oath in manner aforesaid, he shall be excused from laying hands upon, or touching the Holy Gospel: and the oath required shall be administered in the following manner, namely: He shall stand with his right hand lifted up towards heaven, in token of his solemn appeal to the Supreme God, and also in token that if he should swerve from the truth, he may be justly deprived of all the blessings of the Gospel, and made liable to that vengeance which he has impregnated on his own head. (Rev., s. 2354; Code, s. 3309; R. C. c. 76, s. 1; 1777, c. 108, s. 2; 1941, c. 11; S. C. § 3189.)

Administration of oath with uplifted hand.—When the person to be sworn shall be conscientiously scrupulous of taking a book oath in manner aforesaid, he shall be excused from laying hands upon, or touching the Holy Gospel: and the oath required shall be administered in the following manner, namely: He shall stand with his right hand lifted up towards heaven, in token of his solemn appeal to the Supreme God, and also in token that if he should swerve from the truth, he may be justly deprived of all the blessings of the Gospel, and made liable to that vengeance which he has impregnated on his own head. (Rev., s. 2354; Code, s. 3310; R. C. c. 76, s. 2; 1777, c. 108, s. 3; S. C. § 3190.)

Presumption as to Manner.—Where it appears that the registrar administered the prescribed oath to electro's, but that he did not swear them on the Bible, it will be inferred, in the absence of direct proof to the contrary, that the oath was taken with uplifted hand, as specified by the section, and was accepted as a valid mode of administering it, by both the registrar and the elector. Administering the oath in such manner is sufficient to meet the requirements of the election law. State v. Nicholson, 102 N. C. 465, 9 S. E. 545.

Affirmation of Quakers and others.—The solemn affirmation of Quakers, Moravians, Dunkers and Mennonites, made in the manner heretofore used and accustomed, shall be admitted as evidence in all civil and criminal actions; and in all cases where they are required to take an oath to support the constitution of the state, or of the United States, or an oath of... office, they shall make their solemn affirmation in the words of the oath beginning after the word “swear”; which affirmation shall be effectual to all intents and purposes. (Rev., s. 2356; Code, s. 3311; R. C., c. 76, s. 3; 1777, c. 108, s. 4; 1777, c. 115, s. 42; 1819, c. 1019; 1821, c. 1119.)

Quakers and some others who have conscientious scruples about swearing at all, are permitted to “affirm.” State v. Davis, 69 N. C. 383, 385.

§ 11-5. Oaths of corporations.—In all cases where a corporation is appointed administrator, executor, collector, or to any other fiduciary position, of which fiduciary an oath is required by law, such oath may be taken by such corporation by and through any officer or agent of said corporation who is authorized by law to verify pleadings in behalf of such corporation; and any oath so taken shall be valid as the oath of such corporation. Any oath heretofore taken in the name of a corporation as such fiduciary is hereby validated as the oath of such corporation. (1919, c. 89, ss. 1, 2; C. S. 3192.)

Cross References.—As to verification of pleadings by corporations, see § 1-147.

§ 11-6. Oath to support constitution of United States; all officers take.—All members of the general assembly, and all officers who shall be elected or appointed to any office of trust or profit within the state, shall, agreeably to act of congress, take the following oath or affirmation:

I, A. B., do solemnly swear (or affirm, as the case may be) that I will support the constitution of the United States; so help me, God.

Which oath shall be taken before they enter upon the execution of the duties of the office. (Rev., s. 2357; Code, s. 3313; R. C., c. 76, s. 5; 1791, c. 342, s. 2; C. S. 3193.)

Cross References.—As to what constitutes an office or place of trust or profit within the meaning of this section, see §§ 128-1, 128-13. See also, Const. Art. VI, s. 7, for oaths of Quakers and others, see § 11-4.

As to public officers, see §§ 11-6 and Const., Art. VI, s. 7.

§ 11-7. Oath or affirmation to support state constitution; all officers to take.—Every member of the general assembly, and every person who shall be chosen or appointed to hold any office of trust or profit in the state, shall, before taking his seat or entering upon the execution of the office, take and subscribe the following oath or affirmation:

I, A. B., do solemnly and sincerely swear (or affirm) that I will support the Constitution of the State and of the United States, to the best of my knowledge and ability; so help me, God.

Where such person shall be of the people called Quakers, Moravians, Mennonites or Dunkers, he shall take and subscribe the following affirmation:

I, A. B., do solemnly and sincerely declare and affirm that I will truly and faithfully demean myself as a peaceful citizen of North Carolina; that I will be subject to the powers and authorities that are or may be established for the good government thereof, not inconsistent with the constitution of the state and constitution of the United States, either by yielding an active or passive obedience thereto, and that I will not abet or join the enemies of the state, by any means, in any conspiracy whatever, against the state; that I will disclose and make known to the legislative, executive or judicial powers of the state all treasonable conspiracies which I shall know to be made or intended against the state. (Rev., s. 2358; Code, s. 3312; R. C., c. 76, s. 4; 1751, c. 342, s. 1; C. S. 3194.)

Cross References.—As to oath with uplifted hand, see § 11-11. As to administration of oaths by Quakers and others, see § 11-4. As to public officers, see §§ 11-6 and Const., Art. VI, s. 7.

§ 11-8. When deputies may administer.—In all cases where any civil officer, in the discharge of his duties, is permitted by the law to administer an oath, the deputy of such officer, when discharging such duties, shall have authority to administer it, provided he is a sworn officer; and the oath thus administered by the deputy shall be as obligatory as if administered by the principal officer, and shall be attended with the same penalties in case of false swearing. (Rev., s. 2359; Code, s. 3316; R. C., c. 76, s. 7; 1836, c. 27, s. 2; C. S. 3195.)

Cross References.—As to administration of homestead appraiser’s oath, see § 1-371 and annotations. See also, annotations to § 11-2.

§ 11-9. Administration by certain officers.—The chairman of the board of county commissioners and the chairman of the board of education of the several counties may administer oaths in any matter or hearing before their respective boards. (Rev., s. 2262; 1899, c. 89; 1889, c. 539; C. S. 3196.)

Cross Reference.—As to power of sheriff to administer oath to homestead appraiser, see § 1-371.

§ 11-10. When county surveyors may administer oaths.—The county surveyors of the several counties are empowered to administer oaths to all such persons as are required by law to be sworn in making partition of real estate, in laying off widows’ dower, in establishing boundaries and in surveying vacant lands under warrants. (Rev., s. 2361; Code, s. 3314; 1881, c. 144; C. S. 3197.)

Art. 2. Forms of Official and Other Oaths.

§ 11-11. Oaths of sundry persons; forms.—The oaths of office to be taken by the several persons hereafter named shall be in the words following the names of said persons respectively:

Administrator

You swear (or affirm) that you believe A. B. died without leaving any last will and testament; that you will well and truly administer all and singular the goods and chattels, rights and credits of the said A. B., and a true and perfect inventory thereof return according to law; and that all other duties appertaining to the charge reposed in you, you will well and truly perform, according to law, and with your best skill and ability; so help you, God.

[ 596 ]

Attorney at Law
I, A. B., do swear (or affirm) that I will truly and honestly demean myself in the practice of an attorney, according to the best of my knowledge and ability; so help me, God.

Attorney-General, State Solicitors and County Attorneys
I, A. B., do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I will well and truly serve the state of North Carolina in the office of attorney-general (solicitor for the state or attorney for the state in the county of ......... ); I will, in the execution of my office, endeavor to have the criminal laws fairly and impartially administered, so far as in me lies, according to the best of my knowledge and ability; so help me, God.

Auditor
I, A. B., do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I will well and truly execute the trust reposed in me as auditor, without favor or partiality, according to law, to the best of my knowledge and ability; so help me, God.

Book Debt Oath
You swear (or affirm) that the matter in dis-put is a book account; that you have no means to prove the delivery of such articles, as you propose to prove by your own oath, or any of them, but by yourself; and you further swear that the account rendered by you is just and true; and that you have given all just credits; so help you,
God.

Book Debt Oath for Administrator
You, as executor or administrator of A. B, swear (or affirm) that you verily believe this account to be just and true, and that there are no witnesses, to your knowledge, capable of proving the delivery of the articles therein charged; and that you found the book or account so opened and do not know of any other or further credit to be given than what is therein given; so help you, God.

Clerk of the Supreme Court
I, A. B., do swear (or affirm) that, by myself or any other person, I neither have given, nor will give, to any person whatsoever, any gratuity, gift, fee or reward, in consideration of my election or appointment to the office of clerk of the superior court for the county of ........... ; nor have I sold, or offered to sell, nor will I sell or offer to sell, my interest in the said office; I also solemnly swear that I do not, directly or indirectly, hold any other lucrative office in the state; and I do further swear that I will execute the office of clerk of the superior court for the county of ........... without prejudice, favor, affection or partiality, to the best of my skill and ability; so help me, God.

Estate
You and each of you swear (or affirm) that, in the partition of the real estate now about to be made by you, you will do equal and impartial justice among the several claimants, according to their several rights, and agreeably to law; so help you, God.

Commissioner of Wrecks
I, A. B., do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I will truly and faithfully discharge the duties of a commissioner of wrecks, for the district of
............., in the county of ............., according to law; so help me, God.

Constable
I, A. B., do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I will well and truly serve the state of North Carolina in the office of constable; I will see and cause the peace of the state to be well and truly preserved and kept, according to my power; I will arrest all such persons as, in my sight, shall ride or go armed offensively, or shall commit or make any riot, affray or other breach of the peace; I will do my best endeavor, upon complaint made to me, to apprehend all felons and rioters or persions riotously assembled, and if any such offenders shall make resistance with force, I will make hue and cry, and will pursue them according to law, and will faithfully and without delay execute and return all lawful precepts to me directed; I will well and truly, according to my knowledge, power and ability, do and execute all other things belonging to the office of constable, so long as I shall continue in office; so help me, God.

Cotton Weigher for Public
I, ............., public weigher for the city of ............. (or as the case may be), do solemnly swear that I will justly, impartially and without any deduction, except as may be allowed by law, weigh all cotton that may be brought to me for that purpose, and tender a true account thereof to the parties concerned, if required so to do; so help me, God.

Entry-Taker
I, A. B., do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I will well and impartially discharge the several duties of the office of entry-taker for the county of
............. according to law; so help me,
God.
§ 11-11  EXECUTOR

You swear (or affirm) that you believe this writing to be and contain the last will and testament of A. B., deceased; and that you will well and truly execute the same by first paying his debts and then his legacies, as far as the said estate shall extend or the law shall charge you; and that you will well and faithfully execute the office of an executor, agreeably to the trust and confidence reposed in you, and according to law; so help you, God.

§ 11-11  JURY, LAYING OFF DOWER

You and each of you swear (or affirm) that you will, without partiality and according to your best judgment, lay off and allot to A. B., widow of C. D., such dower in the lands of said C. D. as by law she is entitled to; so help you, God.

§ 11-11  JUDGE OF THE SUPREME COURT

I, A. B., do solemnly swear (or affirm) that in my office of justice of the supreme court of North Carolina I will administer justice without respect to persons, and do equal right to the poor and the rich, to the state and to individuals; and that I will honestly, faithfully, and impartially perform all the duties of the said officer according to the best of my abilities, and agreeably to the constitution and laws of the state; so help me, God.

§ 11-11  JUDGE OF THE SUPERIOR COURT

I, A. B., do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I will well and truly serve the state of North Carolina in the office of judge of the superior court of the said state; I will do equal law and right to all persons, rich and poor, without having regard to any person. I will not willingly or unwillingly take, by myself or by any other person, any fee, gift, gratuity or reward whatsoever, for any matter or thing by me to be done by virtue of my office, except the fees and salary by law appointed; I will not maintain, by myself or by any other person, privately or openly, any plea or quarrel depending in any of the said courts; I will not delay any person of common right by reason of any letter or command from any person or persons in authority to me directed, or for any other cause whatsoever; and in case any letter or orders come to me contrary to law, I will proceed to enforce the law, such letters or order notwithstanding; I will not appoint any person to be clerk of any of the said courts but such of the candidates as appear to me sufficiently qualified for that office; and in all such appointments I will nominate without reward, hope of reward, prejudice, favor or partiality or any other sinister motive whatsoever; and finally, in all things belonging to my office during my continuance therein, I will faithfully, truly and justly, according to the best of my skill and judgment, do equal and impartial justice to the public and to individuals; so help me, God.

§ 11-11  JUSTICE OF THE PEACE

I, A. B., do solemnly swear (or affirm) that as justice of the peace of the county of ..., in all articles in the commission to me directed, I will do equal right to the poor and the rich, to the best of my judgment and according to the laws of the state; I will not, privately or openly, by myself or any other person, be of counsel in any quarrel or suit depending before me; the fines and amercements that shall happen to be made, and the forfeitures that shall be incurred, I will cause to be duly entered without concealment; and I will not willingly or unwillingly take, by myself or by any other person for me, any fee, gift, gratuity or reward whatsoever for any matter or thing by me to be done by virtue of my office, except such fees as are or may be directed and limited by statute; but well and truly I will perform my office of justice of the peace; I will not delay any person of common right, by reason of any letter or order from any person in authority to me directed, or for any other cause whatever; and if any letter or order come to me contrary to law I will proceed to enforce the law, such letter or order notwithstanding. I will not direct or cause to be directed to the parties any warrant by me made, but will direct all such warrants to the sheriffs or constables of the county, or the other officers or ministers of the state, or other indifferent persons, to do execution thereof; and finally, in all things belonging to my office, during my continuance therein, I will faithfully, truly and justly, and according to the best of my skill and judgment, do equal and impartial justice to the public and to individuals; so help me, God.

Register of Deeds
I, A. B., do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I will faithfully and truly, according to the best of my skill and ability, execute the duties of the office of register of deeds for the county of ..., in all things according to law; so help me, God.

Secretary of State
I, A. B., do swear (or affirm) that I will, in all respects, faithfully and honestly execute the office of secretary of state of the state of North Carolina, during my continuance in office, according to law; so help me, God.

Sheriff
I, A. B., do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I will execute the office of sheriff of ..., county to the best of my knowledge and ability, agreeably to law; and that I will not take, accept or receive, directly or indirectly, any fee, gift, bribe, gratuity or reward whatsoever, for returning any man to serve as a juror or for making any false return on any process to me directed; so help me, God.

Standard Keeper
I, A. B., do swear (or affirm) that I will not stamp, seal or give any certificate for any yards, weights or measures, but such as shall, as near as possible, agree with the standard in my keeping; and that I will, in all respects, truly and faithfully discharge and execute the power and trust by law reposed in me, to the best of my ability and capacity; so help me, God.

State Treasurer
I, A. B., do swear (or affirm) that, according to the best of my abilities and judgment, I will execute impartially the office of state treasurer, in all things according to law, and account for the public taxes; and I will not, directly or indirectly, apply the public money to any other use than by law directed; so help me, God.

Stray Valuers
You swear (or affirm) that you will well and truly view and appraise the stray, now to be valued by you, without favor or partiality, according to your skill and ability; so help you, God.

Surveyor for a County
I, A. B., do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I will well and impartially discharge the several duties of the office of surveyor for the county of ..., according to law; so help me, God.

Treasurer for a County
I, A. B., do solemnly swear (or affirm) that, according to the best of my skill and ability, I will execute impartially the office of treasurer for the county of ..., in all things according to law; that I will duly and faithfully account for all public moneys that may come into my hands, and will not, directly or indirectly, apply the same, or any part thereof, to any other use than by law directed; so help me, God.

Witness to Depose before the Grand Jury
You swear (or affirm) that the evidence you shall give to the grand jury, upon this bill of indictment against A. B., shall be the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth; so help you, God.

Witness in a Capital Trial
You swear (or affirm) that the evidence you shall give to the court and jury in this trial, between the state and A. B., shall be the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth; so help you, God.

Witness in a Criminal Action
You swear (or affirm) that the evidence you shall give to the court and jury in this action between the state and A. B. shall be the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth; so help you, God.

Witness in Civil Cases
You swear (or affirm) that the evidence you shall give to the court and jury in this cause now on trial, wherein A. B. is plaintiff and C. D. defendant, shall be the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth; so help you, God.

Witness to Prove a Will
You swear (or affirm) that you saw C. D. execute (or heard him acknowledge the execution of) this writing as his last will and testament; that you attested it in his presence and at his request; and that at the time of its execution (or at the time the execution was acknowledged) he was, in your opinion, of sound mind and disposing memory; so help you, God.

General Oath
Any officer of the state or of any county or township, the term of whose oath is not given above, shall take an oath in the following form: I, A. B., do swear (or affirm) that I will well and truly execute the duties of the office of ..., according to the best of my skill and ability, according to law; so help me, God. (Rev., 1903, c. 604; 1874-5, c. 58, s. 2; R. C., c. 76, s. 6; C. S. 3199.)

Cross Reference.—As to oath of members of finance committee of county, see § 153-45.
§ 12-1. No public-local or private act may amend or repeal public law unless latter is referred to in caption.

Sec. 12-2. Repeal of statute not to affect actions.—The repeal of a statute shall not affect any action brought before the repeal, for any forfeitures incurred, or for the recovery of any rights accruing under such statute. (Rev., s. 2830; Code, s. 3764; R. C., s. 108, s. 1; 1830, c. 4; 1879, c. 163; 1881, c. 48; C. S. 3948.)

Section Not Obligatory.—As the laws of our Legislature do not bind both, except in so far as they may be absolute contracts, this section cannot be taken as merely a rule of construction, but no application where the intention of the Legislature clearly and explicitly appears to the contrary. Dyer v. Ellington, 136 N. C. 941, 945, 36 S. E. 177.

Repeal after Services Rendered.—Where a statute was in force when certain services were rendered, it was held that the plaintiff’s right had become absolute, and no subsequent repeal could invalidate it. Cupple v. Commissioners, 138 N. C. 536, 2 S. E. 359.

Action Commenced before Repeal.—By express terms of the section, the repeal of a statute does not affect an action theretofore commenced under it. Smith v. Morganston Ice Company, 159 N. C. 151, 74 S. E. 961.

Same.—For Penalty or Forfeiture.—Under the provisions of the same act a suit for a forfeiture or penalty is not discontinued by a repeal of the statute giving the penalty. State v. Williams, 97 N. C. 455, 2 S. E. 165; Grocery Co. v. Southern R. Co., 136 N. C. 396, 48 S. E. 801; Epps v. Smith, 121 N. C. 539, 48 S. E. 416.

Remedial Legislation.—In case of a remedial legislation, the general rule is not so strict, and such statutes are not infrequently given retrospective effect where the language under which the new remedy is created and such remedy is to promote the meaning and purpose of the Legislature. Connecticut and E. Ins. Co. v. Talbot, 113 Ind. 373; Ex Parte Brickley, 53 Ala. 47; People ex rel Collins v. Spicer, 99 N. Y. 335; cited and approved in Waddill v. Masten, 172 N. C. 582, 90 S. E. 694.

Mere Court Procedure.—The rule that statutes may be construed to have retrospective effect does not prevail when the consequence of the court proceeding is merely to institute, or designate of new parties to an action instituted, or to substitute or designation of new parties deemed necessary to a proper determination of the controversy or authorized to maintain and enforce a recognized or existing right. Waddill v. Masten, 172 N. C. 582, 90 S. E. 694.

Limitation of Actions.—While the Legislature has the power to extend or reduce the time in which an action may be brought, this is subject to the restriction that when the limitation is shortened a reasonable time must be given for the commencement of an action before the statute works a change, except in cases where the Legislature has given the action a prospective effect. (Rev., s. 2830; Code, s. 3764; R. C., s. 108, s. 1; 1830, c. 4; 1879, c. 163; 1881, c. 48; C. S. 3948.)

A retroactive law is one that in some way affects the rights and liabilities of parties incident to and growing out of a transaction that has passed. Waddill v. Masten, 172 N. C. 584, 90 S. E. 694.

Maxim “Leges Posteriorese Priores Contrarias Abrogant.”—To give operation to the maxim, leges posteriores priores contrarias abrogant, the latter law must be in conflict with the former; therefore, when a later statute is in conflict with an earlier, ipso facto, there is an abrogation or repeal of the former. Kesler v. Smith, 66 N. C. 154.

General Rule—Prospective Effect.—The general rule is that a statute will be given prospective effect in case in question clearly forbids such a construction. Mann v. Allen, 171 N. C. 219, 88 S. E. 235; Elizabeth City v. Commissioners, 146 N. C. 559, 60 S. E. 416; Waddill v. Masten, 172 N. C. 582, 90 S. E. 694.

Limitation is destroyed or a statute giving the cause of action is repealed unless the caption of said public-local or private act shall make specific reference to the Public Law it attempts to repeal, alter or change. (1929, c. 250, s. 1.)

Sec. 12-3. Rules for construction of statutes.

§ 12-3. Rules for construction of statutes.—In the construction of all statutes the following rules shall be observed, unless such construction would be inconsistent with the manifest intent of the general assembly, or repugnant to the context of the same statute, that is to say:

1. Singular and plural number, masculine gender, etc. Every word importing the singular number only shall extend and be applied to several persons or things, as well as to one person or thing; and every word importing the plural number only shall extend and be applied to one person or thing, as well as to several persons or things; and every word importing the masculine gender only shall extend and be applied to females as well as to males, unless the context clearly shows to the contrary.

2. Authority, to three or more exercised by majority. All words purporting to give a joint authority to three or more public officers or other persons shall be construed as giving such authority to a majority of such officers or other persons, unless it shall be otherwise expressly declared in the law giving the authority.

3. "Month" and "year." The word "month" shall be construed to mean a calendar month, unless otherwise expressed; and the word "year," a calendar year, unless otherwise expressed; and the word "year" alone shall be equivalent to the expression "year of our Lord."

4. Leap-year, how counted. In every leap-year the increasing day and the day before, in all legal proceedings, shall be counted as one day.

5. "Oath" and "sworn." The word "oath" shall be construed to include "affirmation," in all cases where by law an affirmation may be substituted for an oath, and in like cases the word "sworn" shall be construed to include the word "affirmed."

6. "Person" and "property." The word "person" shall extend and be applied to bodies politic and corporate, as well as to individuals, unless the context clearly shows to the contrary. The words "real property" shall be coextensive with lands, tenements and hereditaments. The words "personal property" shall include moneys, goods, chattels, choses in action and evidences of any court or public office shall be required by law to be affixed to any paper issuing from such office, or containing any other mode of representing words and letters: Provided, that in all cases where a written signature is required by law, the same shall be a sufficient designation of the person to whom the same shall be ascertained by the language used in it. Traders Nat. Bank v. Lawrence Mfg. Co., 96 N. C. 298, 3 S. E. 363.

8. "Seal."—In all cases in which the seal of any court or public office shall be required by law to be affixed to any paper issuing from such court or office, the word "seal" shall be construed to include an impression of such official seal, made by any court or office, the word "seal" shall be construed to include the words "written" and "in writing."—The words "written" and "in writing," when used by way of reference to any section of a statute, shall be construed to mean the section next preceding or following that in which such reference is made; unless when some other section is expressly designated in such reference.

9. "Will."—The term "will" shall be construed to include codicils as well as wills.

10. "Written" and "in writing."—The words "written" and "in writing" may be construed to include printing, engraving, lithographing, and any other mode of representing words and letters: Provided, that in all cases where a written signature is required by law, the same shall be in a proper handwriting, or in a proper mark.

11. "State" and "United States."—The word "state," when applied to the different parts of the United States, shall be construed to extend to and include the District of Columbia and the several territories, so called; and the words "United States" shall be construed to include the said district and territories and all dependencies.

12. "Imprisonment for one month," how construed. The words "imprisonment for one month," wherever-used in any of the statutes, shall be construed to mean "imprisonment for thirty days."

13. "Governor," "senator," "solicitor," "elector," "executor," "administrator," "collector," "juror," and "auditor."—The words "governor," "senator," "solicitor," "elector," "executor," "administrator," "collector," "juror," and "auditor," and any other words of like character shall when applied to and include the District of Columbia and the other parts of the United States, shall be construed to mean a calendar month, unless otherwise expressed; and the word "year," a calendar year, unless otherwise expressed; and the word "year" alone shall be equivalent to the expression "year of our Lord."

14. "Written" and "in writing."—The words "written" and "in writing," when used by way of reference to any section of a statute, shall be construed to mean the section next preceding or following that in which such reference is made; unless when some other section is expressly designated in such reference.

15. "Preceding" and "following."—The words "preceding" and "following," when used by way of reference to any section of a statute, shall be construed to mean the section next preceding or following that in which such reference is made; unless when some other section is expressly designated in such reference.

16. "Seal."—In all cases in which the seal of any court or public office shall be required by law to be affixed to any paper issuing from such court or office, the word "seal" shall be construed to include an impression of such official seal, made by any court or office, the word "seal" shall be construed to include the words "written" and "in writing."—The words "written" and "in writing," when used by way of reference to any section of a statute, shall be construed to mean the section next preceding or following that in which such reference is made; unless when some other section is expressly designated in such reference.

17. "Will."—The term "will" shall be construed to include codicils as well as wills.

18. "Written" and "in writing."—The words "written" and "in writing" may be construed to include printing, engraving, lithographing, and any other mode of representing words and letters: Provided, that in all cases where a written signature is required by law, the same shall be in a proper handwriting, or in a proper mark.

19. "State" and "United States."—The word "state," when applied to the different parts of the United States, shall be construed to extend to and include the District of Columbia and the several territories, so called; and the words "United States" shall be construed to include the said district and territories and all dependencies.
§ 12-3  CH. 12. STATUTORY CONSTRUCTION

what has no need of interpretation, or, when the words have a definite and precise meaning, to go elsewhere for the construction of the statute; or where the words used in the statute do not in any sense point to the mischief to be remedied, the remedy, the end to be accomplished, statutes in pari materia, the preamble, the phraseology of the provision, but also by considering its words ordi-

Law Existing at Time of Enactment.—To discover the true meaning of a statute, consideration should be given to the law as it existed at the time of its enactment, the public policy of the law as it may be ascertained from the statute where the language is of doubtful meaning, the statute where the language is ambiguous, or admits of more than one meaning, it is to be taken in such a sense as will conform to the scope of the act and effectuate its objects. Fortune v. Commissioners, 140 N. C. 322, 52 S. E. 950; State v. Parlow, 91 N. C. 559, 552.

The use of inapt, inaccurate or improper terms or phrases will not invalidate the statute, provided the real meaning of the Legislature can be gathered from the context or from the general purpose and tenor of the enactment. Fortune v. Commissioners, 140 N. C. 322, 52 S. E. 950.

Mistakes or Omissions.—Legislative enactments are not to be defeated on account of mistakes or omissions, any more than other writings, provided the intention of the Legislature can be collected from the whole statute. If the mistake renders the intention uncertain, the court will look to the title and preamble as well as the body or purview of the act for assistance in arriving at it, and not until all these fail can the act be held inoperative. Toomey v. Golds-

Impossible Requirements.—In the construction of a statute the court will avoid attributing to the legislature the interpretation which had been placed on the for-word, Chapter 12, Statutory Construction

Mark this bill to do a subsequent statute, best with the construction is to be given to the later statute. Conn. v. Hartwell, 3 Gray, 450; Ruchmabaye v. Mottchmed, Eng. L. & Eng. 84; Bourgeois v. Charity Church, 157 S. E. 961; Adams v. Field, 21 Vt. 256. It is presumed that the Legislature which passed the latter statute knew the judicial construction which had been placed on the former one, and such a construction becomes a part of the law." Bridgers v. Taylor, 102 N. C. 86, 89, 8 S. E. 893.

Permissible to Look at Other Statutes.—To ascertain the mischief which an act of the Legislature was intended to remove, it is permissible, in the interpretation thereof, to consider other statutes, related to the particular subject, or to move, it is permissible, in the interpretation thereof, to consider other statutes, related to the particular subject, or to preceding, which would tend most same—Affidavit of Legislators. In interpreting a statute it is not permissible to show its intent and meaning by use of an affidavit, when such must be gathered from the act itself. Goin v. Trustees Indian Training School, 169 N. C. 736, 86 S. E. 629.

Harmonizing Context. It is the duty of the Court to ascertain the intention of the Legislature, and to effectuate its pur-

Effectuation of Purpose. When there is no absolutely formal test for determining whether a statute is mandatory or directory, the meaning and intention of the Legislature must govern; and these are to be ascertained, not only from the phraseology of the provision, but also by considering its nature, its design, and the consequences which would folow from construing it in the one way or the other. Black's Statutory Construction, 134; Scrull v. Davenport, 178 N. C. 364, 368, 100 S. E. 527.

III. SIMILAR AND RELATED ACTS.

A. In General.

Words and Phrases in One Statute Read in a Subsequent Act.—Dwarris on Statutes, 274, says: "That words and phrases, the meaning of which, in a Statute, has been ascertered, are, when read in a subsequent Statute, to be understood in the same sense," and in the note of Judge Potter on the same page, it is said that "where the terms of a Statute which has received judicial construction are used in a later Statute, whether passed by the Legislature of the same State or county, or by that of another, that construction is to be given to the later Statute. Conn. v. Hartwell, 3 Gray, 450; Ruchmabaye v. Mottchmed, Eng. L. & Eng. 84; Bourgeois v. Charity Church, 157 S. E. 961; Adams v. Field, 21 Vt. 256. It is presumed that the Legislature which passed the latter Statute knew the judicial construction which had been placed on the former one, and such a construction becomes a part of the law." Bridgers v. Taylor, 102 N. C. 86, 89, 8 S. E. 893.

Permissible to Look at Other Statutes.—To ascertain the mischief which an act of the Legislature was intended to remove, it is permissible, in the interpretation thereof, to consider other statutes, related to the particular subject, or to Understand the Act. The legislature contemplates that its intention shall be ascertained from its words as embodied in it. and courts are not at liberty to accept the understanding of any individual as to the legislative intent. State v. Boon, 1 N. C. 191; Drake v. Drake, 15 N. C. 110; Adams v. Turrentine, 30 N. C. 134; Hines v. Wilmington, etc., Railroad, 95 N. C. 434; Jones v. Hartford Ins. Co., 88 N. C. 499, 500; State v. Mc-Dufte, 44 N. C. 131; State v. Partlow, 91 N. C. 559, 552.

Same—Same—Affidavit of Legislators. In interpreting a statute it is not permissible to show its intent and meaning by use of an affidavit, when such must be gathered from the act itself. Goin v. Trustees Indian Training School, 169 N. C. 736, 86 S. E. 629.
completely to secure the rights of all persons affected by such legislation. Black's Interpretation of Laws (1896), p. 60, sec. 32; State Board v. White Oak Buckle Drainage District, 127 N. C. 222, 226, 98 S. E. 597.

B. Statutes in Pari Materia.

Statutes relating to the same subject-matter should be considered together; and if there are any two statutes, each substituting one law, giving effect to all parts of the statute when possible; and the history of the legislation may be considered in the effort to ascertain the uniform and consistent purpose of the Legislature. Allen v. Reidsville, 65 N. C. 695, 101 S. E. 526. Where a former act has been repealed, or has expired by its limitation when it is in pari materia, it must be construed together. Pieke v. White Oak Buckle Drainage District, 177 N. C. 222, 226, 98 S. E. 597.

Where there are different statutes in pari materia, though made at different times, or even where they have expired, not referring to each other, they shall be taken and considered together as one system, and as explanatory of each other. Walser v. Jordan, 124 N. C. 683, 33 S. E. 139.

Same—Apparent Conflict.—"Where two statutes on the same subject, or on related subjects, are, in effect, part of the same law, and are to be construed together, so as to give effect not only to the distinct parts or provisions of the laws, not inconsistent with the new law, but to give effect to the older law as a whole, subject only to restrictions or modifications of its meaning, which much seems to have been the legislative purpose. Weston on Statutes, 12th ed. p. 510. In such a case, the one statute cannot be deemed repealed because some of its provisions are repeated in a subsequent statute, except in so far as the latter plainly appears to have been intended by the Legislature. United States v. Underwood, 127 U. S. 406, 32 L. Ed. 180, 8 S. Ct. 1194; State v. Stolt, 17 Wallace, 425; Longlois v. Longlois, 48 Mo. 60; Casey v. Harred, 5 Clarke (Iowa) 1; State v. Custer, 65 N. C. 339; The Code, sec. 3767; State v. Bundick, 112 N. C. 862, 864, 17 S. Eq. 491.

Acts of Same Session of Legislature.—All acts of the same session are to be construed together, and as a whole, and in every clause, unaffected by any expression or not. Walser v. Jordan, 124 N. C. 683, 33 S. E. 139. Where a former act has been repealed, or has expired by its limitation when it is in pari materia, it must be construed together. Pieke v. White Oak Buckle Drainage District, 177 N. C. 222, 226, 98 S. E. 597.

Act Declaratory of Intent of Previous Act.—An act of the Legislature declaratory of the intent of a previous act will not control the judiciary in the construction of the first act in cases prior to the declaratory act. Rodwell v. Harris, 132 N. C. 45, 41 S. E. 540.

Private and Local Acts.—Private as well as local acts, are, as a whole, and in every clause, unaffected by any repeal of the general law. State v. Womble, 112 N. C. 862, 864, 17 S. E. 491.

C. Amendatory and Repealing Acts.

When Act Purports to Be Amendatory.—Where a statute refers to a prior legislative enactment, and in the caption and body of the act purports to be amendatory, substituting and repealing the laws, the legislative intent cannot be construed to repeal the former act. Toomy v. Goldsboro Lumber Co., 171 N. C. 178, 88 S. E. 215.

Amended and Amending Acts Construed Together.—Where an amendment to an existing statute is enacted the proper method of arriving at their true intent and meaning is by construing together. Keish v. Lockhart, 171 N. C. 451, 88 S. E. 640; Township Road Comm. v. Board of Com'res, 178 N. C. 221, 190 S. E. 135.

When Amendatory Act Refers to Wrong Section.—If a section in an amendatory act refers to a section of the act amended by number, and the section referred to does not express the legislative intent, but another section is found which does express that intent, the reference will be treated as being made to the latter section. Toomy v. Goldsboro Lumber Co., 171 N. C. 178, 181, 88 S. E. 215, quoting People v. Calavita, 203 N. Y. 464.

Erroneous Statement of Date.—An act of the Legislature subsequent to and in amendment of a former Act of the same session and correcting an ambiguity therein, is not invalidated by the fact that the date of ratification of the amendment does not correspond. It plainly appears beyond cavil, what prior Act is referred to. State v. Woolard, 119 N. C. 579, 25 S. E. 719.

Summary of Rules of Construing Repealing Acts.—In Winship's 4 Corpus Juris, ch. 49, sect. 417, it was said: "Upon a perusal of the authorities it appears that the courts have generally given their sanction to the following rules of construction: (1) That a statute repeals not only the provisions of an older statute by a later one by mere implication. State v. Woodsie, 30 N. C. 104; Simonton v. Lanier, 71 N. C. 498. (2) The implication, in order to be operative, must be necessary, and the legislative intent between the two acts makes the latter abrogates the older only to the extent that it is inconsistent and irreconcilable with it. Wood v. United States, 16 Peters, 341, 363, 10 L. Ed. 987; Chew Heong v. United States, 112 U. S. 536, 549, 28 L. Ed. 770, 5 S. Ct. 255; St. Louis v. Independent, 17 Mo. 146. A later and older statute will, if it is possible and reasonable to do so, be always construed together, so as to give effect not only to the distinctive parts or provisions of the later statute not inconsistent with the new law, but to give effect to the older law as a whole, subject only to restrictions or modifications of its meaning, which much seems to have been the legislative purpose. Weston on Statutes, 12th ed. p. 510. In such a case, the one statute cannot be deemed repealed because some of its provisions are repeated in a subsequent statute, except in so far as the latter plainly appears to have been intended by the Legislature. United States v. Underwood, 127 U. S. 406, 32 L. Ed. 180, 8 S. Ct. 1194; State v. Stolt, 17 Wallace, 425; Longlois v. Longlois, 48 Mo. 60; Casey v. Harred, 5 Clarke (Iowa) 1; State v. Custer, 65 N. C. 339; The Code, sec. 3767; State v. Bundick, 112 N. C. 862, 864, 17 S. Eq. 491.

Repeal of Act Giving Forfeiture.—The repeal of an act of Assembly giving a forfeiture for an offense is a repeal of that act only, and does not affect a later statute under the act repealed, unless there be a special exception to the contrary. Governor v. Howard, 5 N. C. 465.

Repeal of Repealing Act.—The repeal of a statute repealing a former statute saves the latter in force. Brinkley v. Swigegood, 65 N. C. 630.

Implied Repeal by Lessening Degree of Crime.—It is perfectly settled as a rule of construction that if, by the combination of the two acts, there is an implied repeal of an older statute, and a statute which is not a repeal, but serves to lessen the degree of a crime, it is so interpreted as to lessen the grade and mitigate the punishment, the latter is to that extent an implied repealer of the former. State v. Upholster, 31 N. C. 454, 477.

When Acts Irreconcilably Inconsistent.—A later statute repeals, by implication, an older statute, with which it is irreconcilably inconsistent, to the extent of such repugnancy. But the two statutes must be reconciled if that can be done by any fair construction. State v. Massey, 103 N. C. 356, 9 S. E. 632.

IV. STATUTES STRICTLY CONSTRUED.

A. In General.

In Derogation of Common Law.—A statute in derogation of the common law must be strictly construed. Swift & Co. v. Tempello, 14 N. Y. 564.

Acts Limiting Rights to Contract.—Statutes restricting or disabling persons capable of contracting in the making of contracts, being in derogation of common right, and especially those penal in their nature, must be strictly construed. Governor v. How ard, 5 N. C. 465.

Mandatory Act.—No provision, it would seem, could be more mandatory, in form or substance, than a statute declaring that the body required to observe its requirements. Spruill v. Dauphin, 178 N. C. 364, 368, 109 S. E. 527.

State v. Stolt, 17 Wallace, 425; Longlois v. Longlois, 48 Mo. 60; Casey v. Harred, 5 Clarke (Iowa) 1; State v. Custer, 65 N. C. 339; The Code, sec. 3767; State v. Bundick, 112 N. C. 862, 864, 17 S. E. 491.

Statutory deprivations for failure to give strict and extended beyond the requirements of the words employed. Skinner v. Thomas, 171 N. C. 98, 67 S. E. 976.

Acts Restricting Private Acts.—Statutes which restrict the private rights of the party charged or the property in which the public have no concern should be strictly construed. Nance v. Southern Railway, 149 N. C. 366, 63 S. E. 116.

Local Lien Law.—In Orinoco Supply Co. v. Masonic, etc., Star Home, 163 N. C. 513, 79 S. E. 964; it was held that a lien law applicable to certain counties only, was local in nature, and except to being general lien laws of the State, must be strictly construed.

A remedial statute should be liberally construed, according to its intent, so as to advance the remedy and repress the evil. Cape Lookout Co. v. Gold, 167 N. C. 62, 67, 83 S. E. 3.

B. Criminal Statutes.

Rule for Construction of Penal Statutes.—It is familiar learning that penal statutes must be strictly construed, and the plaintiff, before he is entitled to recover the penalty, must bring his case strictly within the language and meaning of the statute. They must be construed sensibly, as all other instruments, but not liberally, so as to stretch their meaning beyond what the words will warrant. 36 Cyc., 1185, 1186, 1187; Sears v. Whitaker, 136 N. C. 37, 48 S. E. 517; Alexander v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 71 N. C. 93, 99 S. E. 697; Coble v. Schofield, 72 N. C. 42; Hamlet Grocery Co. v. Southern R. Co., 170 N. C. 241, 244, 87 S. E. 57; State v. Godfrey, 97 N. C. 507, 1 S. E. 779.

§ 12-4, Construction of amended statute.—Where a part of a statute is amended it is not to be considered as having been repealed and re-enacted in the amended form; but the portions which are not altered are to be considered as having been the law since their enactment, and the new provisions as having been enacted at the time of the amendment. (Rev., s. 2832; Code, s. 3766; 1868-9, c. 270, s. 22; 1870-1, c. 111; C. S. 3950.)

Time of Enactment of New Proviso.—By this section when a part of the statute is amended, the new proviso is considered as having been enacted at the time of the amendment, and the act of 1885, amendatory of the Code of 1883 is subject to this rule of construction. Leak v. Gay, 107 N. C. 466, 12 S. E. 312.

Amendment of a statute operates from its enactment, leaving in force the portions which are not altered. Nichols v. Board, 125 N. C. 13, 34 S. E. 71.

Re-enacted Contemporaneous with Repeal.—It was held in State v. Williams, 117 N. C. 753, 23 S. E. 250, that: "The re-enactment by the Legislature of a law in the term of a former law at the same time it repeals the former law, is not, in contemplation of law, a repeal, but it is a re-affirmance of the former law, whose provisions are thus continued without any intermission." Bishop, Stat. Crimes, sec. 381; State v. Sutton, 100 N. C. 474, 6 S. E. 687; State v. Gumber, 37 Wis. 298; State v. Southern R. Co., 125 N. C. 666, 673, 34 S. E. 527; State v. Bellamy, 120 N. C. 212, 27 S. E. 113.

Bill of Indictment.—If a statute creating an offense is amended in any important particular, a bill of indictment for an offense committed before the act was amended, but which was found after the passage of the amending act, should charge the offense under the old act, and contain an averment that the offense was committed before the amendment was passed. State v. Massey, 97 N. C. 465, 2 S. E. 445.

Misdemeanor Made Punishable by Fine or Imprisonment.—A public-local law making an act a misdemeanor is not repealed by a statute, making the same offense for the first time punishable by "a fine or imprisonment in the discretion of the court," and a felony for the second offense; the later statute expressly stating in the heading of the chapter that it was amendatory, and for the better enforcement, of the former statute, and that it was to take effect from and after its ratification; and where the prohibited offense has been committed prior to the enactment of the latter act, it is punishable under the prior law. State v. Mull, 178 N. C. 748, 101 S. E. 89.

Chapter 13. Citizenship Restored.

§ 13-1. Petition filed.—Any person convicted of an infamous crime, whereby the rights of citizenship are forfeited, desiring to be restored to the same, shall file his petition in the superior court, setting forth his conviction and the punishment inflicted, his place or places of residence, his occupation since his conviction, the meritorious causes which, in his opinion, entitle him to be restored to his forfeited rights, and that he has not before been restored to the lost rights of citizenship. (Rev., s. 2675; Code, ss. 2938, 2940; R. C. c. 58, ss. 1, 3; 1840, c. 36, s. 4; C. S. 385.)

Cross References.—As to infamous crimes generally, see §§ 14-1, 14-2, 14-3. See also, the North Carolina Const., Art. II, § 11; Art. VI, § 8.

§ 13-2. When and where petition filed.—At any time after the expiration of two years from the date of discharge of the petitioner, the petition may be filed in the superior court of the county in which the applicant is at the time of filing and has been for five years next preceding a bona fide resident, or in the superior court of the county, at term, where the indictment was found upon which the conviction took place; and in case the petitioner may have been convicted of an infamous crime more than once, and indictments for the same may have been found in different counties, the petition shall be filed in the superior court of that county where the last indictment was found. (Rev., s. 2676; Code, ss. 2940, 2941; 1897, c. 110; R. C., c. 58, ss. 3, 4; 1840, c. 36, s. 3; 1933, c. 243; C. S. 386.)

Editor's Note.—Prior to the amendment by Public Laws 1933, c. 245, the petition was permitted to be filed after "four years from the date of conviction," instead of "two years from the date of discharge" as is now permitted.

§ 13-3. Notice given.—Upon filing the petition the clerk of the court shall advertise the substance thereof, at the courthouse door of his county, for the space of three months next before the term when the petitioner proposes that the same shall be heard. (Rev., s. 2677; Code, s. 2938; R. C., c. 58, s. 3; 1840, c. 36; C. S. 387.)

§ 13-4. Hearing and evidence.—The petition shall be heard by the judge at term, at which hearing the court shall examine all proper testimony which may be offered, either by the petitioner as to the facts set forth in his petition or by any one who may oppose the grant of his prayer. The petitioner shall also prove by five respectable witnesses, who have been acquainted with the petitioner's character for three years next preceding the filing of his petition, that his character for truth and honesty during that time has been good; but no deposition shall be admissible for this purpose unless the petitioner has resided out of this state for three years next preceding the filing of the petition. (Rev., s. 2678; Code, ss. 2938, 2939; 1897, c. 110; 1901, c. 533; R. C., c. 58, ss. 1, 2; 1840, c. 96; C. S. 389.)

§ 13-5. Decree.—At the hearing the court, on being satisfied of the truth of the facts set forth in the petition, and on its being proved that the character of the applicant for truth and honesty is good, shall decree his restoration to the lost rights of citizenship, and the petitioner shall accordingly be restored thereto. (Rev., s. 2679; Code, s. 2938; R. C., c. 58, s. 1; 1840, c. 36; C. S. 389.)

§ 13-6. Procedure in case of pardon or suspension of judgment.—Any person convicted of any crime, whereby the rights of citizenship are forfeited, and the judgment of the court pronounced does not include imprisonment anywhere, and pardon has been granted by the governor, or the court suspended judgment on payment of the costs, and the costs have been paid, such person may be restored to such forfeited rights of citizenship upon application, by petition, to the judge presiding at any term of the superior court held for the county in which the conviction was had, one year after such conviction. The petition shall set out the nature of the crime committed, the time of conviction, the judgment of the court, and that pardon has been granted by the governor, and also that said crime was committed without felonious intent, and shall be verified by the oath of the applicant and accompanied by the affidavits of ten reputable citizens of the county, who shall state that they are well acquainted with the applicant and that in their opinion the crime was committed without felonious intent. No notice of the petition in such case shall be necessary, and no advertisement thereof be made, but the same shall be heard by the judge, upon its presentation, during a term of court; and if he is satisfied as to the truth of the matters set out in the petition and affidavits, he shall decree the applicant's restoration to the lost rights of citizenship, and the clerk shall spread the decree upon his minute docket: Provided, that in all cases where the court suspended judgment it shall not be necessary to allege or prove that pardon has been granted by the governor, and in such cases the petition may be made and the forfeited rights of citizenship restored at any time after conviction. (Rev., s. 2680; 1899, cc. 44, 249; 1905, c. 547; C. S. 390.)

Application.—This section is not applicable where one has been convicted of an infamous crime, imprisoned, and
CHAPTER 14. CRIMINAL LAW

§ 13-7. Restoration of rights of citizenship to persons committed to certain training schools.
—Any person convicted of any crime whereby any rights of citizenship are forfeited, and the judgment of the court pronounced provides a sentence, and such sentence is suspended upon the condition that such person be admitted to and remain at one of the following schools: Eastern Carolina Industrial Training School for Boys, the Stonewall Jackson Manual Training and Industrial School, the Morrison Training School for Negro Boys, or the State Home and Industrial School for Girls, until lawfully discharged, and upon payment of costs, such person may be restored to such forfeited rights of citizenship upon application and petition to the judge presiding at any term of the superior court held in the county in which the conviction was had, at any time after one year from the date of the lawful discharge from any such school. (1937, c. 384, s. 1.)

§ 13-8. Contents of petition; affidavits of reputable citizens; hearing; decree of restoration.—
The petition provided for in § 13-7 shall set out the nature of the crime committed, the time of conviction, the judgment of the court, and shall recite that the costs of suit have been paid, the lawful discharge of the applicant from the school to which he or she was admitted, and that applicant has never before had restored to him lost rights of citizenship, which petition shall be verified by the oath of the applicant, and accompanied by the affidavits of ten reputable citizens of the county in which said conviction took place, who shall state that they are well acquainted with the applicant, and that they are of the opinion that the applicant should have restored to him the lost rights of citizenship. The petition shall be heard by the judge during a term of court, and if he is satisfied as to the truth of the matters set out in the petition and the affidavits, he shall decree the applicant's restoration to the lost rights of citizenship and the clerk shall spread the decree upon his minute dockets. (1941, c. 184, s. 1.)

Cross Reference.—As to punishment for involuntary manslaughter, see § 14-8.

§ 13-9. Restoration of citizenship to persons convicted, etc., of involuntary manslaughter.—Any person who has been convicted of, or confessed guilt to, the crime of involuntary manslaughter and is not actually serving a term in the state prison or on the roads of the state may, at any subsequent term of the superior court of the county in which the conviction was had, or the confession of guilt made, make application and petition the court for a restoration of all forfeited rights of citizenship. (1941, c. 184, s. 1.)

§ 13-10. Contents of petition; supporting affidavits; hearing and decree.—The petition provided for in section 13-9 shall set out the nature of the crime committed, the time of conviction or confession of guilt, the judgment of the court, and shall recite that the costs of suit have been paid, and that applicant has never before had restored to him lost rights of citizenship, which petition shall be verified by the oath of the applicant, and accompanied by the affidavits of ten reputable citizens of the county in which said conviction or confession of guilt took place, who shall state that they are well acquainted with the applicant, and that they are of the opinion that the applicant should have restored to him the lost rights of citizenship. The petition shall be heard by the judge during a term of court, and if he is satisfied as to the truth of the matters set out in the petition and the affidavits, he shall have the authority to decree the applicant's restoration to the lost rights of citizenship and the clerk shall spread the decree upon his minute dockets. (1941, c. 184, s. 2.)

SUBCHAPTER I. GENERAL PROVISIONS.

Art. 1. Felonies and Misdemeanors.
§ 14-1. Felonies and misdemeanors defined.—A felony is a crime which is or may be punishable by either death or imprisonment in the state's prison. Any other crime is a misdemeanor.

Common Law Provisions.—Up to the time this section was passed the somewhat arbitrary common-law rule was followed as to what crimes were felonies, what were misdemeanors and under that, conspiracy, and even such grave crimes as perjury and forgery, were misdemeanors. State v. Mallett, 125 N. C. 718, 725, 34 S. E. 651; State v. Holder, 153 N. C. 606, 608, 69 S. E. 66. See State v. Hill, 91 N. C. 561.

For article on punishment for crime in North Carolina, See 17 N. C. Law Rev. 205.

Section Constitutional.—This section is held to be constitutional in State v. Lytle, 138 N. C. 738, 744, 51 S. E. 66.

Punishment Determines Classification of Offenses.—By this section, North Carolina adopted the rule, now almost universally prevalent, by which the nature of the punishment determines the classification of offenses; those which may be punished capitaly or by imprisonment in the penitentiary are felonies (as to which there is no statute of limitations), and all others are misdemeanors, as to which prosecutions in this State are barred by two years. State v. Mallett, 125 N. C. 718, 725, 34 S. E. 651.

It should be noted that there are exceptions to this general rule. The legislature has the power to style any offense a misdemeanor, notwithstanding it is punishable in the state's prison. Examples of this appear in sections 14-278, 14-280 and 44-25 where the offenses are specifically declared to be misdemeanors although they are punishable in the State's Prison. See State v. Holder, 153 N. C. 605, 608, 69 S. E. 66. See also Editor's Note under section 14-3.

Offence Need Not Be Specified.—It is not necessary to prescribe that an act is a misdemeanor or felony, as the punishment affixed determines that. State v. Lewis, 142 N. C. 636, 630, 55 S. E. 600.

Indictment Must Use Word “Feloniously.”—Since all criminal offenses punishable with death or imprisonment in a State prison were by this section declared felonies, indictments wherein there has been a failure to use the word "feloniouly," as characterizing the charge in the latter class [616] of cases, have been declared fatally defective. State v. Wilson, 116 N. C. 597, 21 S. E. 692; State v. Skidmore, 109 N. C. 795, 14 S. E. 63; State v. Shaw, 117 N. C. 764, 16 S. E. 99; State v. Fry, 112 N. C. 948, 19 S. E. 352; State v. Holder, 153 N. C. 606, 608, 69 S. E. 66. See State v. Callett, 211 N. C. 563, 191 S. E. 27. But this principle does not hold good where the law has expressly provided against it.

In section 15-145 the statute has prescribed a form of indictment for perjury (which is by section 14-109 a felony) and left out the word "feloniously." And in State v. Harris, 145 N. C. 456, 59 S. E. 115 the court held that in the case of perjury it was unnecessary that the word appear. See State v. Holder, supra, at page 609.

Same—New Bill Obtained.—But the bill should not be quashed; the defendant should be held until a new bill is obtained. State v. Skidmore, 109 N. C. 795, 14 S. E. 63.

Penitentiary Unknown to Common Law.—The penitentiary, being a modern device, unknown to the common law, punishment in it is not mentioned by the common law. State v. McNeill, 75 N. C. 15, 16.

The use of the word "penitentiary," in prescribing the punishment for one convicted under a criminal statute, has the same legal significance as the words "State's Prison," both meaning the place of punishment in which convicts sentenced to imprisonment and hard labor are confined by the authority of law. State v. Burnett, 184 N. C. 783, 115 S. E. 57.

Concurrence of General and Local Laws.—Our general prohibition statutes, prohibiting the manufacture or sale of intoxicating liquors, generally provide that if the penalty prescribed by the local law shall have the effect of repealing local or special statutes upon the subject, but they shall continue in full force and in concurrence with the general law except where otherwise provided, they shall be taken as a modification of the local laws. Thus the statute makes the offense a misdemeanor, punishable by imprisonment, in the county jail or penitentiary not exceeding two years, etc., the person convicted thereunder is guilty of a felony, by this section, the offense a misdemeanor, punishable by imprisonment, in the same legal significance as the words "State's Prison," used by the legislature in the Code, though the words "or State prison" were omitted.

By this section the legislature has prescribed a form of punishment in the discretion of the court, or if the offense be infamous, by imprisonment in the county jail or State's Prison, under this section, and is a misdemeanor, punishable by imprisonment and hard labor.

Where Section Applies.—This section applies only where an act is prohibited or made unlawful, without the nature of the punishment being specified. State v. Rippy, 127 N. C. 516, 517, 37 S. E. 148.

It shall not be said that a matter of public grievance, or commands a matter of public convenience, all such offenses contrary to the prohibition or command of the statute are misdemeanors at common law, notwithstanding the fact that no specific punishment is prescribed and which are "infamous or done in secrecy and malice, or with deceit and intent to defraud," punishable in the state prison.

Interpreting, then, this addition to § 14-3, in connection with § 14-1, it makes the particular offense in the instant case, being beyond the scope of any local law; and unless it be excepted where the offense is a conspiracy to commit a misdemeanor, be guilty of a felony and punished by imprisonment in the county jail or state prison for not less than four months nor more than ten years, or shall be fined. (Rev., s. 3293; Code, s. 1097; R. C., c. 34, s. 120; 1097, c. 1; C. S. 4173.)

Cross References.—As to uttering worthless check, see §§ 114-106 and 114-107. As to statute of limitations for misdemeanors, see § 15-1.

Editor's Note.—The Act of 1927 amended this section by inserting the words "or state prison." The effect of this amendment is to make misdemeanors, where no specific punishment is prescribed and which are "infamous or done in secrecy and malice, or with deceit and intent to defraud," punishable in the state prison.

In interpreting, then, this addition to § 14-3, in connection with § 14-1, it makes the particular offense in the instant case, being beyond the scope of any local law; and unless it be excepted where the offense is a conspiracy to commit a misdemeanor, be guilty of a felony and punished by imprisonment in the county jail or state prison for not less than four months nor more than ten years, or shall be fined. (Rev., s. 3293; Code, s. 1097; R. C., c. 34, s. 120; 1097, c. 1; C. S. 4173.) offense in the same manner as larceny is punished; that is, confinement in the State's prison or county jail for not less than four months, nor more than ten years. State v. Brittain, 137 N. C. 458, 50 S. E. 270.

Attempt to Commit Crime against Nature.—While an attempt to commit a felony is a misdemeanor, when such misdemeanor is infamous, or done in secrecy and malice, or with deceit and intent to defraud, it is punishable by imprisonment in the state's prison, and is made a felony by this section, and an attempt to commit the crime against nature is infamous and is punishable by imprisonment in the state's prison, if made after the definition of the section. State v. Spivey, 213 N. C. 45, 195 S. E. 1.

What Amounts to Confession of Felony.—A plea of guilty to a felony, by an incurting defendant, though after conviction, is a confession of a felony under this section, although § 14-76 designates such offense as a misdemeanor. State v. Harwood, 206 N. C. 87, 173 S. E. 24.

Discretion of Trial Judge.—Where the extent of the punishment is referred to the discretion of the trial judge, his sentence may not be interfered with by the appellate court, except in case of manifest and gross abuse. State v. Smith, 174 N. C. 804, 807, 93 S. E. 919; State v. Willer, 94 N. C. 402.

Excessive Punishment.—The word "or," in criminal statutes, cannot be interpreted to mean "and," when the effect is to increase the case of punishment. State v. Driver, 78 N. C. 423; State v. Miller, 94 N. C. 904. State v. Farrant, 141 N. C. 844, 45 S. E. 954.

Effect of Consent of Defendant.—No consent of the defendant, volitionally, secretly, and maliciously given aid and assistance to his codefendant by manufacturing evidence, altering and destroying original records in the office of the Commissioner of Revenue, is a confession of a felony under this section, although § 14-76 designates such offense as a misdemeanor.

State v. Brite; vay seo:

Failure to Prescribe Penalty.—The violation of a valid town ordinance is made a misdemeanor by this section, and the defense that the ordinance did not prescribe a penalty therefor is untenable. State v. Rozook, 179 N. C. 768, 103 S. E. 67.

Where Fine Provided It Must Be Certain.—An ordinance which imposes a fine is invalid if it is not certain as to the amount of the fine. State v. Irvin, 126 N. C. 599, 55 S. E. 430.

Provision in Ordinance for Arrest Void.—When a municipal ordinance imposed a penalty for its violation, and provided that the offender was "liable to a fine of one hundred dollars upon conviction thereof," it was held, that so much of the ordinance as provided for the arrest was void, but the other provisions were valid. State v. Earhardt, 107 N. C. 708, 16 S. E. 436.

Personal Notice to Offender Sufficient.—The requirement of the charter of a city or town that its ordinances shall be printed and published, is to bring such ordinances to the attention of the public, and to inform them of the existence of such ordinance. State v. Hunter, 106 N. C. 598; State v. Webber, 107 N. C. 962, 967, 12 S. E. 598.

Where Ordinance Violation Not Punishable.—Prior to the passage of this section there was no way provided for the enforcement of obedience to town ordinances; a violation of such ordinances was not a misdemeanor. State v. Beacham, 125 N. C. 652, 34 S. E. 447; Shaw v. Kennedy, 107 N. C. 841, 842, 11 S. E. 619; State v. Prevo, 178 N. C. 740, 743, 101 S. E. 370.

Violation of Invalid Ordinance No Offense.—The violation of a valid ordinance is, under the provision of this section, not a criminal offense to disregard a law enacted without authority. State v. Hunter, 106 N. C. 795, 11 S. E. 366; State v. Webber, 107 N. C. 962, 967, 12 S. E. 598.

Failure to Prescribe Penalty.—The violation of a valid town ordinance is made a misdemeanor by this section, and the defense that the ordinance did not prescribe a penalty therefor is untenable. State v. Rozook, 179 N. C. 768, 103 S. E. 67.

State Must Show Violation of Valid Ordinance.—Upon the conviction of a criminal action for the violation of a city ordinance, under this section the State must show that the ordinance in question was a valid one, as well as the violation as charged in the warrant. State v. Prevo, 178 N. C. 740, 101 S. E. 370; State v. Snipes, 161 N. C. 242, 26 S. E. 240; State v. Lucien, 127 N. C. 242, 50 S. E. 598.

And where the state fails to show that the original act of incorporation authorized the enactment of an ordinance, it fails to make out the case, for the legislature never intended to make the ordinance to be enforced under the provisions of this section, a conviction of which is not a conviction of a punishable misdemeanor. State v. Threadgill, 76 N. C. 17, 19.

Defects in Warrant May Be Waived.—Ordinarily defects in the form of a warrant for violating a city ordinance may be waived, and an action may be so considered when a plea of not guilty is entered by the defendants. State v. Prevo, 178 N. C. 740, 101 S. E. 370.

Form of Indictment.—It is not necessary, in indictments for violations of city ordinances, to set out the ordinance in the warrant. It is sufficient to refer to it by such indicia, as point it out with sufficient certainty. State v. Cainen, 94 N. C. 880; State v. Merritt, 83 N. C. 679, 679.

In an indictment under this section for loud and boisterous swearing, it is not necessary to set out the words used by the defendant. State v. Cainen, 94 N. C. 880.

No Removal under Section 7147.—In a prosecution for violations of town ordinances, an accused defendant is not entitled to a removal, under section 7147. State v. Joyner, 127 N. C. 541, 37 S. E. 201.

Costs of Prosecutions under Section.—Whether the criminal offenses created by the ordinances of towns and cities under this section are tried before the mayor, or before a Justice of the Peace, they are State prosecutions, in the name of the State, for or violation of the criminal law of the State, and are excepted from the provisions of § 104 (126 N. C. 1014, 35 S. E. 473), and the city can not be charged with the costs of such prosecutions. Board v. Henderson, 126 N. C. 689, 691, 36 S. E. 430. Section for Fighting No Bar to Prosecution for Assault.—A conviction of violating a city ordinance punishing the disturbance of the good order and quiet of the town by fighting is not a bar to a prosecution by the State for an assault. State v. Taylor, 131 N. C. 725, 48 S. E. 5.
§ 14-5. Accessories before the fact; trial and punishment.

If any person shall counsel, procure or command any other person to commit any felony, whether the same be a felony at common law or by virtue of any statute, the person so counseling, procuring or commanding shall be guilty of a felony, and may be indicted and convicted, either as an accessory before the fact to the principal felony, together with the principal felon, or after the conviction of the principal felon; or he may be indicted and convicted of a substantive felony, and may be punished, howsoever indicted, as an accessory before the fact, or shall not have been previously convicted, or shall or shall not be amenable to justice, and may be punished in the same manner as any accessory before the fact to the same felony, if convicted as an accessory, may be punished. The offense of counseling, procuring or commanding, howsoever indicted, may be inquired of, tried, determined and punished by any court which shall have jurisdiction to try the principal felon, in the same manner as if such offense had been committed at the same place as the principal felony or where the principal felony is triable, although such offense may have been committed at any place within or without the limits of the state. In case the principal felony shall have been committed within the body of any county, and the offense of counseling, procuring or commanding shall have been committed within the body of another county, the last mentioned offense may be inquired of, tried, determined, and punished in either of such counties; Provided, that no person who shall be once duly tried for any such offense, whether as an accessory before the fact or as for a substantive felony, shall be liable to be again indicted or tried for the same offense. (Rev. s. 3287; Code, s. 977; R. C., s. 34, s. 53; 1797, c. 485, s. 1; 1852, c. 58; C. S., 417.)

In General.—It is a well established principle, that where two or more persons agree, each is responsible for the act of the other, provided it be done in pursuance of the original understanding, or in furtherance of the common purpose. State v. Simmons, 51 N. C. 21, 24.

The word accessory before the fact is a term of art. It is a substantive felony, where the principal is triable, although such offense may have been committed at any place within or without the limits of the state. In case the principal felony shall have been committed within the body of any county, and the offense of counseling, procuring or commanding shall have been committed within the body of another county, the last mentioned offense may be inquired of, tried, determined, and punished in either of such counties; Provided, that no person who shall be once duly tried for any such offense, whether as an accessory before the fact or as for a substantive felony, shall be liable to be again indicted or tried for the same offense. (Rev., s. 3287; Code, s. 977; R. C., s. 34, s. 53; 1797, c. 485, s. 1; 1852, c. 58; C. S., 417.)

"Accessory before Fact" Is a Substantive Felony. — This section made the facts which formerly had been called "accessory before the fact" a substantive felony (whether in murder or any other felony). State v. Bryson, 173 N. C. 801, 807, 92 S. E. 678.

The conviction of Principals Unnecessary.—Under the provisions of this section it is not required that the principals be first convicted of the charge of murder to convict the accessories thereto, either before or after the fact, upon sufficient evidence. State v. Walton, 156 N. C. 485, 119 S. E. 886; State v. Jones, 101 N. C. 719, 722, 8 S. E. 147.

One indicted as accessory before the fact can not be convicted of murder. State v. Walton, 156 N. C. 485, 119 S. E. 886; State v. Jones, 101 N. C. 719, 722, 8 S. E. 147.

One indicted as accessory before the fact can not be convicted of murder. State v. Walton, 156 N. C. 485, 119 S. E. 886; State v. Jones, 101 N. C. 719, 722, 8 S. E. 147.

One indicted as accessory before the fact can not be convicted of murder. State v. Walton, 156 N. C. 485, 119 S. E. 886; State v. Jones, 101 N. C. 719, 722, 8 S. E. 147.

Same—What Indictment Must Aver.—Where the principal felon is not tried, the process of the law, it is necessary to aver that in the indictment. State v. Ives, 35 N. C. 338, 339; State v. Groff, 5 N. C. 270.

Who Are Principals.—All who are present, eitheractually or constructively, at the place of a crime, and are either aiding, abetting, assisting, or advising its commission, or are present for such purpose, are principals in the crime.
submitted to the jury on an indictment drawn under this section. State v. Williams, 208 N. C. 707, 182 S. E. 131.

Cited in State v. Hampton, 210 N. C. 283, 136 S. E. 251;

§ 14-6. Punishment of accessories before the fact.—Any person who shall be convicted as an accessory before the fact in either of the crimes of murder, arson, burglary or rape shall be imprisoned for life in the state's prison. An accessory before the fact to the stealing of any horse, for not less than five nor more than twenty years, in the discretion of the court. Every accessory before the fact in any other felony shall be punished by imprisonment in the state prison or county jail for not more than ten years, or may be fined in the discretion of the court. (Rev., s. 3290; Code, s. 980; 1868-9, c. 31, s. 2; 1874-5, c. 212; C. S. 4176.)

Life Sentence for Accessory to Murder Valid.—Upon conviction of murder in the second degree, and sentence to twenty years in the State's Prison, upon an indictment for murder, when it appears from the evidence that the accused was only an accessory, the case will not be remanded to the Supreme Court for resentence, as the statute provides on sentence for life. State v. Bryson, 173 N. C. 803, 92 S. E. 698.

Sufficiency of Evidence to Go to Jury.—Evidence that defendant, for the purpose of freeing himself of competition in the illegal sale of intoxicating liquors, procured another to kill deceased by shooting him from ambush while lying in wait, is sufficient to be submitted to the jury in a prosecution as an accessory before the fact to the crime of murder, under this section. State v. Mosingo, 207 N. C. 247, 176 S. E. 582.

§ 14-7. Accessories after the fact; trial and punishment.—If any person shall become an accessory after the fact to any felony, whether the same be a felony at common law or by virtue of any statute made, or to be made, such person shall be guilty of a felony, and may be indicted and convicted thereof, or, if the conviction of the principal felon has been previously convicted, or shall or shall not be amenable to justice, and shall be punished by imprisonment in the state's prison or county jail for not less than four months nor more than ten years, and may also be fined in the discretion of the court. The offense of such person may be inquired of, tried, determined and punished by any court which shall have jurisdiction of the principal felon, in the same manner as if the act, by reason whereof such person shall have become an accessory, had been committed at the same place as the principal felony, although such act may have been committed without the limits of the state; and in case the principal felony shall have been committed within the body of any county, and the act by reason whereof any person shall become accessory shall have been committed within the body of any other county, the offense of such person guilty of a felony as aforesaid may be inquired of, tried, determined, and punished in either of said counties: Provided, that no person who shall be once duly tried for such felony shall be again indicted or tried for the same offense. (Rev., s. 3289; Code, s. 978; R. C., c. 34, s. 54; 1797, c. 485, s. 1; 1852, c. 55; C. S. 4177.)

In General.—See in connection with this section the annotations under section 14-5, many of which apply equally to this section.

An accessory after the fact is one who, after a felony has been committed, with knowledge that the felony has been committed, renders personal assistance to the felon in any manner to aid him to escape arrest or punishment knowing, at the time, that the person so aided has committed a felony. State v. Potter, 221 N. C. 153, 19 S. E. (2d) 257.

Receiver of Stolen Goods Not Accessory.—All felonious stealing being now reduced by section 14-70 to the grade of petit larceny, a receiver of stolen goods is not an accessory after the fact. State v. Tyler, 85 N. C. 569.

Husband of Accessory Not Competent Witness.—The husband of one charged as an accessory is not a competent witness in favor of or against him as charged as the principal felon. State v. Ludwick, 61 N. C. 401.

SUBCHAPTER II. OFFENSES AGAINST THE STATE.

Art. 3. Rebellion.

§ 14-8. Rebellion against the state.—If any person shall incite, set on foot, assist or engage in a rebellion or insurrection against the government of North Carolina, or the laws thereof, or shall give aid or comfort thereto, every person so offending in any of the ways aforesaid shall be guilty of a felony, and shall be punished by imprisonment in the state's prison for not more than fifteen years and by a fine of not more than ten thousand dollars. (Rev., s. 3437; Code, s. 1106; 1868, c. 60, s. 2; 1861, c. 18; 1866, c. 64; Const., Art. IV, s. 5; C. S. 4178.)

§ 14-9. Conspiring to rebel against the state.—If two or more persons shall conspire together to overthrow or put down, or to destroy by force, the government of North Carolina, or to levy war against the government of the state, or to oppose by force the authority of such government, or by force or threats to intimidate, or to prevent, hinder or delay the execution of any law of the state, or by force or fraud to seize or take possession of any firearms or other property of the state, against the will or contrary to the authority of such state, every person so offending in any of the ways aforesaid shall be guilty of a felony and shall be imprisoned not more than ten years in the state's prison and be fined not exceeding five thousand dollars. (Rev., s. 3438; Code, s. 1107; 1868, c. 60, s. 1; C. S. 4179.)

In General.—It is a rule well established that all who engage in a conspiracy, as well as those who participate after it is formed, are equally liable, and the acts and declarations of each in furtherance of the common illegal design are admissible against all. State v. Jackson, 82 N. C. 565, 567.

§ 14-10. Secret political and military organizations forbidden.—If any person, for the purpose of compassing or furthering any political object, or aiding the success of any political party or organization, or resisting the laws, shall join or in any way connect or unite himself with any oath-bound secret political or military organization, society or association of whatsoever name or character; or shall form or organize or combine and agree with any other person or persons to form or organize any such organization; or as a member of any secret political or military party or organization shall use, or agree to use, any certain signs or grips or passwords, or any disguise of the person or voice, or any disguise whatsoever for the advancement of its object, and shall take or administer any extra-judicial oath or other secret, solemn pledge, or any like secret means; or if any two or more persons, for the purpose of compassing or furthering any political object, or aiding the success of any political party or organization, or circumventing the laws, shall secretly assemble, combine or agree together, and the more effectually to accomplish such purposes, or any of them, shall use any certain signs, or grips, or passwords, or any disguise of the person or voice, or other disguise whatsoever, or shall take or administer any extra-judicial oath or other secret, solemn pledge; or if any persons shall band together and assemble to muster, drill or practice any military evolutions except by virtue of the authority of an officer recognized by law, or of an instructor in institutions or schools in which such evolutions form a part of the course of instruction; or if any person shall knowingly permit any of the acts and things herein forbidden to be had, done or performed on his premises, or on any premises under his control; or if any person being a member of any such secret political or military organization shall not at once abandon the same and separate himself entirely therefrom, every person so offending shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be fined not less than ten nor more than twenty dollars, or be imprisoned, or both, at the discretion of the court. (Rev., s. 3439; Code, s. 1095; 1870-1, c. 133; 1868-9, c. 267; 1871-2, c. 143; C. S. 4180.)

Art. 4. Subversive Activities.

§ 14-11. Activities aimed at overthrow of government; use of public buildings.—It shall be unlawful for any person, by word of mouth or writing, willfully and deliberately to advocate, advise or teach a doctrine that the government of the United States, the state of North Carolina or any political subdivision thereof shall be overthrown or overturned by force or violence or by any other unlawful means. It shall be unlawful for any public building in the state, owned by the state of North Carolina, any political subdivision thereof, or by any department or agency of the state or any institution supported in whole or in part by state funds, to be used by any person for the purpose of advocating, advising or teaching a doctrine that the government of the United States, the state of North Carolina or any political subdivision thereof should be overthrown by force, violence or any other unlawful means. (1941, c. 37, s. 1.)

For comment on the enactment of this section, see 19 N. C. Law Rev. 466.

§ 14-12. Punishment for violations.—Any person or persons violating any of the provisions of this article shall, for the first offense, be guilty of a misdemeanor and be punished accordingly, and for the second offense shall be guilty of a felony and punished accordingly. (1941, c. 37, s. 2.)

Art. 5. Counterfeiting and Issuing Monetary Substitutes.

§ 14-13. Counterfeiting coin and uttering coin that is counterfeit.—If any person shall falsely make, forge or counterfeit, or cause or procure to be falsely made, forged or counterfeited, or willingly aid or assist in falsely making, forging or counterfeiting the resemblance or similitude or likeness of a Spanish milled dollar, or any coin of gold or silver which is in common use and received in the discharge of contracts by the citizens of the state; or shall pass, utter, publish or sell, or attempt to pass, utter, publish or sell, or bring into the state from any other place with intent to pass, utter, publish or sell as true, any such false, forged or counterfeited coin, knowing the same to be false, forged or counterfeited, with intent to defraud any person whatsoever, every person so offending shall be guilty of a felony, and shall be punished by imprisonment in the state's prison or county jail for not less than four months nor more than ten years. (Rev., s. 3422; Code, s. 1035; R. C., c. 34, s. 64; 1811, c. 814, s. 3; C. S. 4181.)

Cross References.—As to forgery, see §§ 14-19 et seq. As to counterfeiting trademarks, see §§ 20-8.

§ 14-14. Possessing tools for counterfeiting.—If any person shall have in his possession any instrument for the purpose of making any counterfeit similitude or likeness of a Spanish milled dollar, or other coin made of gold or silver which is in common use and received in discharge of contracts by the citizens of the state, and shall be duly convicted thereof, the person so offending shall be imprisoned in the state's prison or county jail not less than four months nor more than ten years, or be fined not more than five hundred dollars. (Rev., s. 3423; Code, s. 1036; R. C., c. 34, s. 65: 1811, c. 814, s. 4; C. S. 4182.)

Indictment Sufficient.—An indictment charging defendant with having in his possession "one pair of dies, upon which were made the likeness, similitude, figure and resemblance of the sides of a lawful Spanish milled silver dollar, etc., for the purpose of making and counterfeiting money in the likeness and similitude of Spanish milled silver dollars," was held to charge, with sufficient certainty, the offense designated in this section. State v. Collins, 10 N. C. 191.

§ 14-15. Issuing substitutes for money without authority.—If any person or corporation, unless the same be expressly allowed by law, shall issue any bill, due bill, order, ticket, certificate of deposit, promissory note or obligation, or any other kind of security, whatever may be its form or name, with the intent that the same shall circulate or pass as the representative of, or as a substitute for, money, he shall forfeit and pay for each offense the sum of fifty dollars; and if the offender be a corporation, it shall in addition forfeit its charter. Every person or corporation offending against this section, or aiding or assisting therein, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Rev., s. 1556; Code, s. 2493; 1858, c. 157; R. C., c. 36, s. 5; C. S. 4183.)

Local Modification.—Cumberland: 1933, c. 31; Currituck: 1933, c. 338.

Editor's Note.—In State v. Humphreys, 19 N. C. 555, the act of 1816, ch. 900, which was very similar to this section, is discussed. It is there held that the act is constitutional and that the intent in so issuing the notes, etc., is an essential ingredient of the offense.

§ 14-16. Receiving or passing unauthorized substitutes for money.—If any person or corporation shall pass or receive, as the representative of, or as the substitute for, money, any bill, check, certificate, promissory note, or other security of the kind mentioned in § 14-15, whether the same be issued within or without the state, such person or corporation, and the officers and agents of such corporation aiding therein, who shall offend against this section shall for every such offense forfeit and pay five dollars, and shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Rev., s. 3712; Code, s. 2494; 1895, c. 127; R. C., c. 36, s. 6; C. S. 4184.)

Editor's Note.—In State v. Bank, 48 N. C. 450, it was held that this section making it an offense to “pass and receive for life under § 14-6. State v. Hudson, 218 N. C. 219, 10 S. E. (2d) 730.

Principal May Be Prosecuted under This Section and Ac-cessed under § 14-6.—Section 14-6 prescribing imprisonment for life upon a conviction as an accessory before the fact to the crime of murder was in force at the time this section, dividing murder into two degrees, does not give any new definition of murder, but the same remains as it was at common law before the enactment. State v. Delton, 178 N. C. 779, 101 S. E. 548.

Purpose.—This section intended to select out of all murders denounced those that were more heinous because committed with premeditation and deliberation, or in the perpetration or attempted perpetration of a felony, etc., as murder in the first degree, punishable with death, and leave other murders as murder in the second degree, punished by imprisonment. State v. Smith, 221 N. C. 278, 289, 20 S. E. (2d) 313.

Principal May Be Prosecuted under This Section and Acces-sed under § 14-6.—Section 14-6 prescribing imprisonment for life upon a conviction as an accessory before the fact to the crime of murder was in force at the time this section, enacted and accessible under this section for murder in the second degree, while the accessory before the fact receives life under § 14-6. State v. Mingus, 207 N. C. 247, 250, 176 S. E. 2d 477.

Malice—Definition.—Malice is that condition of mind which prompts a person to take the life of another intentionally without just cause, excuse or justification. State v. Benson, 183 N. C. 755, 111 S. E. 869.

III. MURDER IN THE FIRST DEGREE.

Effect of Section Dividing Murder into Degrees. — This section, dividing murder into two degrees, does not give any new definition of murder, but the same remains as it was at common law before the enactment. State v. Delton, 178 N. C. 779, 101 S. E. 548.

Purpose.—This section intended to select out of all murders denounced those that were more heinous because committed with premeditation and deliberation, or in the perpetration or attempted perpetration of a felony, etc., as murder in the first degree, punishable with death, and leave other murders as murder in the second degree, punished by imprisonment. State v. Smith, 221 N. C. 278, 289, 20 S. E. (2d) 313.

Principal May Be Prosecuted under This Section and Ac-cessed under § 14-6.—Section 14-6 prescribing imprisonment for life upon a conviction as an accessory before the fact to the crime of murder was in force at the time this section, enacted and accessible under this section for murder in the second degree, while the accessory before the fact receives life under § 14-6. State v. Mingus, 207 N. C. 247, 250, 176 S. E. 2d 477.

Malice—Definition.—Malice is that condition of mind which prompts a person to take the life of another intentionally without just cause, excuse or justification. State v. Benson, 183 N. C. 755, 111 S. E. 869.

Same.—Necessity.—Malice is always a necessary ingredient of murder. State v. Baldwin, 152 N. C. 522, 68 S. E. 148.

Same.—Exception.—But it is not necessary for murder that the state prove malice. State v. McDowell, 143 N. C. 563, 59 S. E. 690.

Same.—Implied.—For this reason, the unlawful killing of a human being with a deadly weapon implies malice. State v. Pasour, 183 N. C. 793, 111 S. E. 779; State v. Brinkley, 183 N. C. 720, 110 S. E. 780; State v. McDowell, 145 N. C. 563, 59 S. E. 690.

Same.—Misdemeanor.—At common law, the unlawful killing of a human being with a deadly weapon, nothing appearing, was murder, malice being presumed from the facts. State v. Ryhne, 124 N. C. 847, 33 S. E. 128. The common law rule has been followed. It is now assumed that a killing with a deadly weapon is unlawful and malicious. State v. Benson, 183 N. C. 793, 111 S. E. 869; State v. Walker, 193 N. C. 483, 137 S. E. 429.

If the accused previously procured a weapon for the purpose of using it, and does use it, the offense is ordinarily murder. State v. Johnson, 172 N. C. 929, 90 S. E. 426.

Provocation never disproves malice; it only removes the presumption of malice, which the law raises without proof. A malicious killing is murder, however gross the provocation. State v. Johnson, 23 N. C. 354.

Motive.—Necessity.—It is not necessary to a conviction of murder that the state prove motive. State v. Adams, 136 N. C. 617, 48 S. E. 589; State v. McDowell, 145 N. C. 563, 59 S. E. 690.

Same.—To Strengthen State's Case.—But the case of the state may be strengthened by the showing of a motive when the evidence is circumstantial. State v. Stratford, 149 N. C. 483, 62 S. E. 882; State v. Turner, 143 N. C. 641, 57 S. E. 382.

Same.—To Identify Prisoner or Establish Malice.—And it may be shown to identify the prisoner as the perpetrator of the crime, and to establish malice, deliberation, and premeditation. State v. Wilkins, 158 N. C. 603, 73 S. E. 292; State v. Adams, 138 N. C. 688, 50 S. E. 765.

Intent.—Necessity.—Before a conviction for murder can be had, an unlawful and intentional taking of another's life must be shown. Sometimes murder by poison is inferred by reason of the killing with a deadly weapon, or by circumstances which indicate a reckless indifference to human life, but it must always exist before a charge of murder can be sustained. State v. Wilkin, 146 N. C. 643, 65 S. E. 556.

Same.—Must Co-exist with Killing.—"The act of killing, and the guilty intent, must concur to constitute the offense." State v. Scotts, 50 N. C. 403, 42 S. E. 534.

Attempt to Kill.—"An attempt only, to, kill, with the most diabolical intent, may be moral, but can not be legal murder." State v. Scotts, 50 N. C. 403, 42 S. E. 534.

Quoted in State v. Hudson, 218 N. C. 219, 10 S. E. (2d) 730.

III. MURDER IN THE FIRST DEGREE.

Effect of Section Dividing Murder into Degrees.—By the act of 1833, chapter 85 (this section), the crime of murder has been divided into two degrees, first and second. The common law definition and description are still applicable to the crime in the second degree; but it takes more than this to constitute murder in the first degree—the killing must be wilful, deliberate and premeditated, and this must be shown by the State beyond a reasonable doubt before it is justified in asking a verdict of guilty of murder in the first degree. State v. Rhyn, 124 N. C. 847, 33 S. E. 128.

Definition.—Murder in the first degree is the unlawful killing of a human being with malice, with premeditation and deliberation. State v. Starnes, 220 N. C. 384, 110 S. E. (2d) 346.

Deliberation and Premeditation.—Premeditation.—Premedi-tation is the principal thought by the murderer, at some length of time, however short. State v. Benson, 183 N. C. 795, 111 S. E. 869. It is a prior determination to do the act. State v. Cameron, 166 N. C. 379, 81 S. E. 748; State v. Bowser, 214 N. C. 409, 194 S. E. 312.

Same.—Deliberation.—Deliberation means a preconceived intent to kill, executed in cold blood, in furtherance of a fixed design to gratify a feeling of revenge or to accomplish some unlawful purpose, and it involves a violent passion suddenly aroused by some lawful or just cause or legal provocation. State v. Benson, 183 N. C. 795, 111 S. E. 869; State v. Bowser, 214 N. C. 409, 194 S. E. 312.

Deliberation means that the act is done in cold state of blood. It does not mean brooding over it or reflecting upon it for a week, a day or an hour, or any other appreciable length of time, but it means an intention to kill, executed by the defendant, or by another for the defendant, with a fixed design to gratify a feeling of revenge, or to accomplish some unlawful purpose, and not under the influence of a violent passion, suddenly arising out of some lawful or justifiable cause, or by legal provocation. State v. Hawkins, 214 N. C. 335, 334, 199 S. E. 284; State v. Benson, 183 N. C. 795, 111 S. E. 809.

Necessity.—And before a conviction for murder in the first degree can be had, the state must show that the prisoner had formed, prior to the killing, with deliberation and premeditation, a purpose to kill the deceased. Terry v. State, 173 N. C. 797, 111 S. E. 846; State v. Benson, 181 N. C. 795, 111 S. E. 869. See also 5 N. C. Law Rev. 364.

Same.—Length of Time Immaterial.—The killing of a human being after the fixed purpose to kill has been formed, is sufficient for the conviction of murder in the first degree. State v. Walker, 173 N. C. 780, 92 S. E. 327. No particular period of time is necessary to constitute premeditation and deliberation for a conviction of murder in the first degree under this section. If the purpose to kill at all events has been deliberately formed, the interval which elapses before its execution is immaterial. State v. Holldein, 190 N. C. 721, 165 S. E. 342; State v. Cooper, 174 N. C. 814, 94 S. E. 416. And deliberation and premeditation need not be of any perceptible time. State v. Bynum, 175 N. C. 777, 95 S. E. 101; State v. Hammond, 216 N. C. 627, 11 S. E. (2d) 439; State v. Burney, 215 N. C. 338, 11 S. E. (2d) 24.

Same.—Sufficiency.—Weighing the purpose to kill long enough to form a fixed design, and the putting of such design into execution, matter how long deferred, constitutes premeditation and deliberation sufficient to sustain a conviction of murder in the first degree. State v. Dowdell, 218 N. C. 244, 21 S. E. (2d) 313.

Malice.—For a conviction of murder in the first degree the killing must be done with malice aforethought, express or implied. State v. McKay, 150 N. C. 813, 68 S. E. 105; State v. Satterfield, 207 N. C. 118, 176 S. E. 466; State v. Mozingo, 207 N. C. 24, 174 S. E. 411. A homicide committed by a person who had killed the person intended, and therefore an instruction to the jury either to convict the defendant of murder in the first degree, or to acquit him is not error. State v. Myers, 202 N. C. 351, 162 S. E. 764.

Evidence tending to show that the prisoner with another entered a store with intent to rob its cash drawer, and shot and killed the deceased is of an attempt to commit a felony and an attempt to sustain in a verdict of murder in the first degree, as defined by this section, under proper instructions from the court thereon upon conflicting evidence. State v. Stegall, 200 N. C. 18, 195 S. E. 56.

While murdering in the perpetration of a robbery from the person, it is murder in the first degree, irrespective of premeditation or deliberation or malice aforethought. State v. Alston, 215 N. C. 713, 3 S. E. (2d) 11. A homicide committed in the perpetration of an attempt to perpetrate a robbery is murder in the first degree, notwithstanding the absence of any fixed intent to kill or any previous purpose, design or plan. State v. Kelly, 216 N. C. 627, 7 S. E. (2d) 533.

All Conspirators Are Guilty Regardless of Who Actually Committed Crime.—Where a conspiracy is formed it is murder in the first degree to murder in the perpetration of the crime, each conspirator is guilty of murder in the first degree, under this section, and the state must show that each conspirator was present at the scene of the killing and participated in the attempt to perpetrate the robbery, each of them having been guilty of murder in the first degree. State v. Stefano, 200 N. C. 441, 174 S. E. 411; State v. Miller, 219 N. C. 154, 14 S. E. (2d) 522.

Each party to a conspiracy to burglarize or rob a home is guilty of murder in the first degree if any one of the conspirators commits murder in an attempt to perpetrate the burglary or robbery. State v. Bell, 205 N. C. 225, 171 S. E. 50.

IV. MURDER IN THE SECOND DEGREE.

Definition.—Murder in the second degree is the unlawful killing of a human being with malice, but without elements of premeditation and deliberation. State v. Benson, 183 N. C. 795, 111 S. E. 869; State v. Starnces, 220 N. C. 384, 17 S. E. (2d) 346.

By this section the crime of murder in the second degree is a new common law. State v. Smith, 221 N. C. 278, 20 S. E. (2d) 313.

Effect of Statute Dividing Murder into Degrees.—At common law, when the intentional killing by a deadly weapon is shown, the law presumes malice; the burden of reducing the offense to a lower grade by proof of matters of mitigation or excuse devolved upon the prisoner. The statute dividing murder into two degrees (under this statute) contains no reference to this rule, but the Supreme Court of N. C. in State v. Fuller, 114 N. C. 863, 19 S. E. 797, held that one result of the division of murder into two degrees was that proof of intentional killing with a deadly instrument raised a presumption only of murder in the second degree, and the burden was on the State to aggravate the offense to murder in the first degree, as it was on the prisoner, to show that death resulted from the act of the deceased, defendant would be guilty of murder in the first degree, is without error. State v. Burney, 215 N. C. 596, 3 S. E. (2d) 24.

Killing in Perpetration of a Robbery.—By a homicide committed in the perpetration of, or in attempt to perpetrate, a robbery will be deemed murder in the first degree. State v. Lane, 166 N. C. 333, 81 S. E. 620. See also State v. Glover, 208 N. C. 68, 17 S. E. 6; State v. Exum, 213 N. C. 16, 195 S. E. 92. Where all the evidence for the State tends to show that the defendants killed the deceased while attempting to rob him, the killings are murder in the first degree, and the burden of proof for the State is increased by the statute. State v. Lankford, 202 N. C. 780, 164 S. E. 242. When murder is committed by poisoning, killing is murder in the second degree. State v. Hicks, 125 N. C. 734, 34 S. E. 621.

The presumptions from the use of a deadly weapon in committing a homicide are that the killing was unlawful and that it was done with malice, which constitutes murder in the second degree, and that the use of such homicide to constitute murder in the first degree the State must show be—yon a reasonable doubt that it was done with premeditation and deliberation. State v. Miller, 197 N. C. 445, 446, 149 S. E. 590.

The intentional killing of a human being with a deadly weapon implies malice and, if nothing else appears, constitutes murder in the second degree. State v. Hawkins, 214
N. C. 336, 334, 199 S. E. 284; State v. Payne, 213 N. C. 719, 197 S. E. 573; State v. Bright, 215 N. C. 537, 2 S. E. (2d) 546.

A killing with a deadly weapon raises the presumption that the homicide was murder in the second degree, and if the State seeks a conviction of murder in the first degree it has the burden of proving beyond a reasonable doubt that murder was committed with premeditation and deter-

Intent Formed Simultaneous with Act of Killing—Where this intent to kill is formed simultaneously with the act of killing, the homicide is not murder in the first degree.
State v. Dowden, 118 N. C. 1145, 24 S. E. 722; State v. Bar-etti, 142 N. C. 565, 54 S. E. 856.

Form of Indictment.—Nothing contained in the act of 1893 requires any alteration or modification of the existing form of indictment for murder. Therefore, it is not necessary that an indictment for murder committed in the attempt to perpetrate a robbery contain a specific allegation of the attempted larceny, such allegation not having been necessary in indictments prior to the said act of 1893.
State v. Covington, 117 N. C. 834, 23 S. E. 137.

Indictment Held to Be by Motion for Bill of Particulars.—After the return of a verdict of guilty of murder in the first degree, defendant moved in arrest of judgment for that the indictment was alternative, and defendant's remedy, if he desired greater certainty, was by motion for a bill of particulars under § 15-143. State v.
Puckett, 211 N. C. 600, 199 S. E. 17.

Evidence of Killing in Perpetration of Robbery.—Evidence tending to show that the prisoner killed the deceased in the perpetration or attempt to perpetrate a robbery, is expressly made competent by this section, and may be considered by the jury in determining the degree of crime, and whether the accused committed the highest felony or one of lower

Evidence of Facts Succeeding Homicide.—Testimony of facts and circumstances which occurred after the commission of a homicide which tends to show a preconceived plan formed and carried out by the prisoner in detail, resulting in his actual killing of the deceased by two pistol shots, was error for the court to limit the jury to a verdict of guilty of murder in the first degree, after the defendant stated that he had done as he had intended, is competent upon the question of deliberation and preméditation, under the evidence in this case, to sustain a verdict of murder in the first degree. State v. Westmoreland, 181 N. C. 590, 107
S. E. 438.

Beyond Reasonable Doubt.—The additional elements of premeditation, necessary to constitute murder in the first degree, are not presumed from a killing with a deadly weapon. They must be established beyond a reasonable doubt, and found by the jury, before a verdict of murder in the first degree can be rendered against the prisoner. State v. Hawkins, 214 N. C. 336, 334, 199
S. E. 284.

Determination of Degree of Murder.—Under this section, distinguishing murder into two degrees, the jury, on conviction, must determine in their verdict whether the crime is murder in the first or second degree. State v. True, 133
N. C. 96, 34 S. E. 646; State v. Gadberry, 117 N. C. 811, 23
S. E. 480.

Charge—Willful Premeditation and Deliberation.—The law is fixed by the statute, that the killing must be willful, upon preméditation and with deliberation, and where there is no evidence tending to prove this, the jury should be so instructed, and the question of guilt on the charge of murder in the first degree ought not to be submitted to them. State v.
Rhiney, 124 N. C. 847, 33 S. E. 128.

Evidence of Unlawful Killing.—Where the prisoner is on trial for murder in the first degree, burglary and rape, and there is evidence to support a verdict for each of these offenses, an instruction is proper, and in keeping with the statute, to inform the jury in arrest of judgment for that the prisoner, by admission, confessed to the commission of a deadly weapon, where the prisoner is charged with murder, and the killing of the deceased by him has been admitted, and the judge has correctly charged upon the crime of manslaughter, that he charge upon the principles of an assault with a deadly weapon, in order to rebut the presumption that the prisoner is on trial for murder in the first degree, and the verdict must be re

Sufficiency of Evidence for Submission to Jury.—Evidence tending to show that the defendant on trial for a murder was killed by the prisoner in the perpetration of a robbery, it is not error for the court to limit the jury to a verdict of guilty of murder in the first degree or not guilty under this sec-

Verdict.—For a conviction of murder in the first degree under this section and section 15-172, the jury must find specifically under the evidence that this degree of crime has been committed by the defendant, and the verdict must be re-submission to the jury of the question of defendant's guilt of murder in the first degree as stated in this section. State v. Ferrer, 205 N. C. 640, 172 S. E. 186.

Punishment Not Reviewable on Appeal.—The question of the imposition of a sentence on the prisoner convicted

§ 14-18. Punishment for manslaughter.—If any person shall commit the crime of manslaughter shall be punished by imprisonment in the county jail or state prison for not less than four months nor more than twenty years: Provided, however, that in cases of involuntary manslaughter, the punishment shall be in the discretion of the court, and the defendant may be fined or imposed, or both. (Rev. s. 3632; Code, s. 1055;
1879, c. 255; R. C., c. 34, s. 24; 4 Hen, VII, c. 13;
1816, c. 918; 1933, c. 249; C. S. 4201.)

Editor's Note.—Public Laws of 1933, c. 249, added the proviso at the end of this section, relating to involuntary manslaughter.

As to Less Degrees of Same Crime.—While under the provisions of section 15-170, the trial judge is required to charge upon evidence on the less degrees of the same crime concerning which the prisoner was being tried, it is not required that the charge upon the crime of manslaughter, as defined as a Punishment Not Reviewable on Appeal.—The question of the imposition of a sentence on the prisoner convicted of manslaughter within the maximum and minimum allowed by this section, is within the discretion of the trial court and is not reviewable on appeal. State v. Fleming, 202 N. C. 512, 163 S. E. 452.

Section Does Not Constitute Involuntary Manslaughter a Misdemeanor.—The amendment to this section by ch. 249, Public Laws of 1913, which added a proviso that in cases of involuntary manslaughter, in which a justice of the peace has jurisdiction, the punishment cannot exceed that which a justice of the peace could impose, State v. Fritz, 133 N. C. 725, 45 S. E. 957.

Art. 7. Rape and Kindred Offenses.

§ 14-21. Punishment for rape.—Every person who is convicted of ravishing and carnally knowing any female of the age of twelve years or more by force and against her will, or who is convicted of unlawfully and carnally knowing and abusing any female child under the age of twelve years, shall suffer death. (Rev. s. 3637; Code, s. 1101; R. C., c. 34, s. 3; 18 Eliz., c. 1786-9; c. 167, s. 2; 1917, c. 29; S. C. 4204.)

Cross References.—As to conviction for assault when defendant not guilty of rape, see § 14-214. As to exclusion of bystanders during trial for rape, see § 15-166.

Editor’s Note.—At common law rape was a felony, but the offense was afterwards changed to a misdemeanor before the statute took effect, and hence its present existence as a felony is not considered it was part of the law before the statute became effective. State v. Fritz, 133 N. C. 723, 45 S. E. 958.

Rape under these and later statutes, was the “carnal knowledge of a female forcibly and against her will.” State v. Johnston, 76 N. C. 209, 210. This definition left out the elements of age altogether. But as the instances of children below the age of discretion increased, the legislature became anxious to create a new offense distinct from rape, but it was to make such carnal knowledge and abuse rape. The reason why the act does not call it rape in so many words is because of the seeming incongruity of calling an act rape when it is by consent, whereas the established meaning of rape is “against her will.” State v. Johnston, 76 N. C. 209, 210. So that now the definition of rape of a female over ten years of age is as it always has been, “carnal knowledge against her will.” State v. Dancy, 130 N. C. 608, 609. When Offense Complete.—Both at common law and under our statute the offense is complete, although no casualty results of State v. Fritz, 133 N. C. 725, 727, 45 S. E. 957.

Challenge to Fight with Fists and Hands.—Challenge to fight a fair fight with fists and hands, without the use of any deadly weapons, is not dueling within the statute. State v. Monds, 130 N. C. 697, 700, 41 S. E. 789.

Challenge to Fight Out of State.—Challenge to fight duel out of state is indictable under this section. State v. Farrier, 8 Eliz. 226.

Indictments.—An indictment for sending a challenge, in the form of a letter, to fight a duel, need not set out the words of the letter, nor the substance thereof. State v. Futch, 208 N. C. 457.

Punishment.—When a person is tried in the Superior Court for violation of the provisions of this section, but is convicted of a lesser offense, of which a justice of the peace has jurisdiction, the punishment cannot exceed that which a justice of the peace could impose. State v. Fritz, 133 N. C. 725, 45 S. E. 957.
§ 14-22

Punishment for assault with intent to commit rape.—Every person convicted of an assault with intent to commit a rape upon the body of any female shall be imprisoned in the state's prison not less than one nor more than fifteen years. (Rev., s. 3638; Code, s. 1102; 1868-9, c. 167, s. 3; R. C., c. 107, s. 44; 1823, c. 1229; 1917, c. 162, s. 1; C. S. 4205.)

Editor's Note.—The offense of "assault with intent to commit rape" is a separate and distinct crime in and by itself and is not an "attempt to commit rape," as it is, sometimes, falsely designated. There is no such criminal offense as an "attempt to commit rape." It is embraced and covered by the offense of "an assault with intent to commit rape." See State v. Hewett, 158 N. C. 627, 629, 74 S. E. 789.

In General.—This section should be construed as if it read as follows: if any person shall attempt to commit rape specified in the preceding section, that is to say, to carnally know and abuse a female under ten (now twelve) years of age against her will, or to carnally know and abuse a female under ten (now twelve) years of age, with or against her will, he shall be punished, etc. State v. Johnston, 76 N. C. 209, 211.

The offense defined by this section is an assault on a female with intent to commit rape, the "intent" to commit this offense being inclusive of an "attempt" to commit it. State v. Adams, 214 N. C. 501, 199 S. E. 716.

The act of 1860-'61, Ch. 30 was passed, providing that it shall not be necessary to prove the actual emission of seed in order to constitute a carnal knowledge of prosecutrix when she was under twelve years old, and buggery, to prove the actual emission of seed in order to constitute a carnal knowledge of prosecutrix when she was over twelve years of age by force and against her will, or to carnally know and abuse a female under ten (now twelve) years of age, with or against her will, she shall be punished, etc. State v. Johnston, 76 N. C. 209, 211.

The offense defined by this section is an assault on a female with intent to commit rape, the "intent" to commit this offense being inclusive of an "attempt" to commit it. State v. Adams, 214 N. C. 501, 199 S. E. 716.

With respect to the charge of assault with intent to commit rape, the evidence should show not only an assault, but that the defendant intended to gratify his passion on the female intended to do so, at all events, notwithstanding any resistance on her part." State v. Jones, 222 N. C. 37, 38, 21 S. E. (2d) 812, quoting State v. Massey, 86 N. C. 658, 41 S. E. 478.

Age of Female.—This section in the act of 1868 followed immediately after the second section (14-21) of that act, and had direct reference to it, and was intended to include assaults upon females, whereas, the act of 1860-'61 was limited to males. It uses the words "any female," which embrace females of all ages. State v. Dancy, 83 N. C. 608, 610.

Who May Be Guilty of Offense.—At common law, rape was defined as having sexual connection, with intent to commit rape, the evidence should show not only an assault, but that the defendant intended to gratify his passion on the female intended to do so, at all events, notwithstanding any resistance on her part, etc. State v. Jones, 222 N. C. 37, 38, 21 S. E. (2d) 812.

Same.—Husband upon Wife.—A husband who, by threats to kill in event of refusal, compels his wife to submit to, or aids and abets in an attempt to commit a rape becomes thereby a principal in the offense. State v. Jones, 83 N. C. 605.

Same.—Infant under 14.—An infant under the age of 14 years cannot be convicted of an assault with intent to commit rape. State v. Sam, 60 N. C. 293.

Withdrawal of Consent before Perpetration of Offense.—If the prosecutrix consented to have connection with the prisoner upon certain terms, which the defendant was not satisfied with, and attempted by force to carry out her consent, he is guilty of rape if he succeeds, and of an assault with intent to commit rape, if he does not succeed. State v. Long, 93 N. C. 542.

Effect of Subsequent Consent.—It seems that this offense is complete, if the defendant attempts to force the prosecutrix against her will, notwithstanding she afterwards consents. State v. Long, 93 N. C. 542.

Punishment.—Unlawfully to carnally know and abuse a female under the age of ten years (now twelve) constitutes a common law offense. There must be both an attempt and an actual penetration of the person. Whether the offense is complete is a matter for the jury to determine from the evidence in the case. (Rev., s. 3638; Code, s. 1105; 1860-1, c. 30; 1917, c. 29; C. S. 4206.)

Emission not necessary to constitute rape and buggery.—It shall not be necessary upon the trial of any indictment for the offenses of rape, carnally knowing and abusing any female child under twelve years old, and buggery, to prove the actual emission of seed in order to constitute the offense, but the offense shall be completed upon proof of penetration only. (Rev., s. 3638; Code, s. 1105; 1860-1, c. 30; 1917, c. 29; C. S. 4206.) under this section, for carnally knowing a girl between the ages of 10 and 14 (now 12 and 16), is erroneous. The court held that the crime would be complete "if the jury should find that the defendant injured and abused her genital organs." State v. Pickens, 129 N. C. 637, 41 S. E. 789.

Aiding and Abetting.—One who accompanies in an automobile another who commits the offense of rape, in violation of this section, and with knowledge of this purpose, is guilty of aiding and abetting the commission of the offense, and punishable as a principal therein. State v. Hart, 186 N. C. 583, 190 S. E. 755.

Joiner of Offenses.—A charge of rape and that of carnally knowing a female person between the ages of twelve and under sixteen years of age, in violation of this section, is properly joined in one count of the indictment, if it is shown that they are related in character and grow out of the same transaction, and are properly left to the jury under the general idea of one guilt, without any requirement as to the part of the state to make an election. State v. Hall, 214 N. C. 609, 642, 200 S. E. 375.

Responsiveness of Verdict.—Defendant was charged in the first count with rape and in the second count with having carnal knowledge of a female child over twelve and under sixteen years of age. The solicitor announced he would not ask for a conviction of the capital offense of rape, but would charge the jury only with the violation of this section upon the first count, and charged that upon the second count they might find defendant guilty or not guilty. The jury convicted the defendant of a violation of section 14-25 upon the first count and of guilt of assault upon a female upon the second count, and the court thereupon instructed the jury again as to the verdicts it might render upon the respective counts, and upon the second count, instructed the jury that it had returned a verdict of guilty of an assault upon a female upon the second count and guilty upon the second count. Held: Even conceding that the first verdict of not guilty upon the first count precluded the jury from again considering that charge and rendered ineffective the second verdict of guilty of an assault upon a female, its first verdict upon the second count was not responsive to the indictment and was not a verdict permitted by law, and therefore the court erred in permitting the jury to reconsider its verdict upon the second count, and the verdict finally rendered thereon is consistent with law and the properly accepted by the court. State v. Wilson, 218 N. C. 556, 11 S. E. (2d) 567.

Evidence of Conversation.—Where the prosecutrix has testified upon the trial for the unlawfully carnally knowing or abusing an innocent female child over twelve and under sixteen years of age, her statement as to the conversations of the solicitor, to the effect that she had told her mother on the day of the occurrence, who was the only near relative present, is admissible for the purpose of corroborating her other testimony. State v. Winder, 183 N. C. 776, 111 S. E. 730.

Evidence of Age.—Prosecuting witness may give competent testimony as to her age. State v. Trippe, 222 N. C. 600, 24 S. E. (2d) 240.

Family Bible Entries Evidence of Child's Age.—Authenticated entries in family Bible constitute competent evidence of the age of child. State v. Hairston, 121 N. C. 579, 28 S. E. 492.

Expression of Opinion by Court.—In prosecution under this section, the court, in summarizing the contents of the solicitor's charges, that defendant insisted that the jury should not find beyond a reasonable doubt that in abducting the prosecutrix, he committed the offense of rape. The court held that the statement of the solicitor's charges did not constitute an expression of opinion on an essential element of the crime charged, prohibited by section 1-180, and the evidence not excluded by virtue of the charge so made, was not error, because the court instructed the jury that they must find that the prosecutrix was under sixteen years of age if they believed the uncontested testimony. State v. Whiting, 218 N. C. 619, 11 S. E. (2d) 505.

Evidence of Relations with Other Men.—In a prosecution under this section, it is not error to exclude evidence of improper relations between the prosecuting witness and any other man, months or years before the alleged crime of the defendant. State v. Hairston, 121 N. C. 579, 28 S. E. 492.

Evidence Sufficient for Jury.—Evidence that prosecutrix at the time alleged was an innocent, virtuous woman, under sixteen years of age, and that defendant is the father of her illegitimate child, which was born shortly after she arrived at the age of sixteen, is sufficient to be submitted. to the jury in a prosecution under this section. State v. Wyont, 218 N. C. 505, 11 S. E. (2d) 573.

Penal of Guilty May Not Be Withdrawn. Upon the trial under section 14-26, of carnally knowing a female child over twelve and under sixteen years of age, the defendant may not enter a plea of guilty and thereafter withdraw the plea and then move for a new trial; and the court will be sustained in the absence of abuse of the court's discretion. State v. Porter, 188 N. C. 804, 125 S. E. 615.

Variance as to Time. It is to the girl's first act of intercourse with a man, when she is under sixteen years of age, that the law attaches criminality on the part of the defendant. State v. Porter, 188 N. C. 804, 125 S. E. 615.

Twelve and under Sixteen Years of Age. The defendant may be punished for which no specific punishment is prescribed under section 14-27. State v. Griffin, 190 N. C. 131, 126 S. E. 417.

§ 14-27. Jurisdiction of court; offenders classed as delinquents.—All persons charged with a violation of § 14-26 under the age of sixteen years shall be brought before the juvenile court and such other courts as may hereafter exercise such jurisdiction, and shall be classed as delinquents and not as felons: Provided, that where the offenders agree to marry, the consent of the parent shall not be necessary: Provided further, that any male person convicted of the violation of § 14-26 who is under eighteen (18) years of age, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor only. (1923, c. 140, s. 2; C. S. 4209(a).)

Editor's Note.—This section is summarized and a brief history of the law given in 1 N. C. Law Rev. 286.

Art. 8. Assaults.

§ 14-28. Malicious castration.—If any person, of malice aforethought, shall unlawfully castrate any other person, or cut off, maim or disfigure any of the privy members of any person, with intent to murder, maim, disfigure, disable or render impotent any part or member of the person so offending, he shall suffer imprisonment in the state's prison for not less than five nor more than sixty years. (Rev., s. 3626; Code, s. 1000; R. C., c. 34, s. 47: 1754, c. 56: 1791, c. 339, ss. 2, 3; 1831, c. 40, s. 2; C. S. 4211.)

Cross Reference.—See annotations under § 14-30.

Proof of Malice Aforethought Not Necessary.—Proof, of the words "malice aforethought" or of a preconceived disposition not necessary to a conviction for the crime of maiming, is not necessary. State v. Girkim, 23 N. C. 121.

§ 14-30. Malicious maiming. — If any person shall, of malice aforethought, unlawfully cut out or disable the tongue or put out an eye of any other person, with intent to murder, maim, or disfigure, the person so offending, his counselors, abettors and aiders, knowing of and privy to the offense, shall, for the first offense, be punished by imprisonment in the state's prison or county jail not less than four months nor more than ten years, and be fined, in the discretion of the court, and for the second offense shall be imprisoned in the state's prison not less than five nor more than sixty years. (Rev., s. 3626; Code, s. 1050; R. C., c. 34, s. 14; 1754, c. 56; C. S. 4209(a).)

Variance as to Time.—It is to the girl's first act of intercourse with a man, when she is under sixteen years of age, that the law attaches criminality on the part of the defendant. State v. Porter, 188 N. C. 804, 125 S. E. 615.

First Blow or Sudden Affray.—The first blow, or a sudden affray, does not palliate the offense of maiming under the act of 1791; for if it did, the statute would be of little avail. State v. Crawford, 13 N. C. 425.

What Constitutes Maiming.—To constitute a maim, under this statute, an injury or an act which does in fact disfigure, unless that presumption be repelled by evidence on the part of the defendant, the loss of an eye is not included in the offense of mayhem, and though the infliction thereof without malice may neither be sustained as provided by section 14-29, nor under the common law, requiring that the offense should have been committed with malice, yet upon proper evidence a conviction may be had of an assault with a deadly weapon upon another by waylaying or § 14-29. Castration or other maiming without malice aforethought.—If any person shall, on purpose and unlawfully, but without malice aforethought, cut or slit the nose, bite or cut off the nose, or a lip or an ear, or disable any limb or member of any other person, or castrate any other person, or cut off, maim or disfigure any of the privy members of any other person, with intent to kill, maim, disfigure, disable or render impotent such person, the person so offending shall be imprisoned in the county jail or state's prison not less than six months nor more than ten years, and fined, in the discretion of the court. (Rev., s. 3626; Code, s. 1000; R. C., c. 34, s. 47: 1754, c. 56: 1791, c. 339, ss. 2, 3; 1831, c. 40, s. 2; C. S. 4211.)

Proof of Malice Aforethought Not Necessary.—Proof, of the words "malice aforethought" or of a preconceived disposition not necessary to a conviction for the crime of maiming, is not necessary. State v. Girkim, 23 N. C. 121.

§ 14-30. Malicious maiming. — If any person shall, of malice aforethought, unlawfully cut out or disable the tongue or put out an eye of any other person, with intent to murder, maim, or disfigure, the person so offending, his counselors, abettors and aiders, knowing of and privy to the offense, shall, for the first offense, be punished by imprisonment in the state's prison or county jail not less than four months nor more than ten years, and be fined, in the discretion of the court; and for the second offense shall be imprisoned in the state's prison not less than five nor more than sixty years.

Malicious intent to maim or disfigure may either be expressed or implied from circumstances. State v. Crawford, 13 N. C. 425.

Malicious Intent Express or Implied.—The malicious intent to maim or disfigure may either be expressed or implied from circumstances. State v. Crawford, 13 N. C. 425.

Proof of Grudges or Threatenings Not Necessary.—And proof of antecedent grudges, threatenings or an express disposition not necessary to the conviction of an assault with a deadly weapon, in this case. State v. Griffin, 190 N. C. 131, 126 S. E. 417.

Presumptions.—An intent to disfigure is prima facie to be inferred from an act which does in fact disfigure, unless that presumption be repelled by evidence on the part of the defendant that there was no such matter of right, and the sending of an injury shall be presumed to be done on purpose, without lawful authority, and without the pressure of necessity, that which the law forbids. State v. Crawford, 13 N. C. 425.

Malicious intent to maim or disfigure may either be expressed or implied from circumstances. State v. Crawford, 13 N. C. 425.

Malicious intent express or implied.—The malicious intent to maim or disfigure may either be expressed or implied from circumstances. State v. Crawford, 13 N. C. 425.

Proof of Grudges or Threatenings Not Necessary.—And proof of antecedent grudges, threatenings or an express disposition not necessary to the conviction of an assault with a deadly weapon.

Presumptions.—An intent to disfigure is prima facie to be inferred from an act which does in fact disfigure, unless that presumption be repelled by evidence on the part of the defendant. State v. Crawford, 13 N. C. 425.

What Constitutes Maiming.—To constitute a maim, under this statute, an injury or an act which does in fact disfigure, unless that presumption be repelled by evidence on the part of the defendant, the loss of an eye is not included in the offense of mayhem, and though the infliction thereof without malice may neither be sustained as provided by section 14-29, nor under the common law, requiring that the offense should have been committed with malice, yet upon proper evidence a conviction may be had of an assault with a deadly weapon and an assault with serious damages, as a less degree of the crime charged under the provisions of sections 14-29. State v. Williams, 179 N. C. 121, 179 S. E. 612.

First Blow or Sudden Affray.—The first blow, or a sudden affray, does not palliate the offense of maiming under the act of 1791; for if it did, the statute would be of little avail. State v. Crawford, 13 N. C. 425.

Same—Accident or Self-Defense.—When the act is proved, the law presumes that it was done on purpose. The burden is therefore upon defendant to show that it was done accidentally or in self-defense. State v. Evans, 2 N. C. 281, 282; State v. Skidmore, 87 N. C. 509.

Indictment—Necessary Allegations.—An indictment, for bitting off an ear, must state the offense to be done on purpose, as well as unlawfully. State v. Ormond, 18 N. C. 119.

Same—Unnecessary Allegations.—But it need not be alleged whether it was the right or left ear. State v. Green, 29 N. C. 39.

§ 14-31. Maliciously assaulting in a secret manner.—If any person shall in a secret manner maliciously commit an assault and battery with any deadly weapon upon another by waylaying or Assault with Deadly Weapon with Intent to Kill Resulting in Injury.—Any person who assaults another with a deadly weapon with intent to kill, and inflicts serious injury not resulting in death, shall be guilty of a felony and shall be punished by imprisonment in the state prison or he worked under the supervision of the state highway and public works commission for a period not less than four months nor more than ten years. (1919, c. 101; 1931, c. 143, s. 50; c. 4214.)

Cross Reference.—As to assault in this state resulting in injury in another state, see § 15-132.

Elements of Offense.—In order for a conviction of crime under the provisions of this section there must be a charge to the jury that "serious injury" included "anything that would naturally cause a breach of the peace," is held not to be reversible error. 28 S. E. 353, in an obscure opinion and in State v. Skidmore, 87 N. C. 509, in an opinion which overlooked the two cases first cited. 11 N. C. Law Rev. 230.

Evidence of Use of Deadly Weapon.—Where the evidence as to the use of the deadly weapon is in dispute, the charge of a deadly weapon with intent to kill, not resulting in death, as bearing on the existence of the intent and meaning of the statute, an instruction to the contrary is reversible error. 123 N. C. 588, 51 S. E. 569.

Sufficiency.—For sufficiency of evidence to prove the assault in this state resulting in injury in violation of the statute. State v. Hefner, 199 N. C. 778, 155 S. E. 879.

Evidence of Injunction.—With sufficient evidence of an assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill, not resulting in death, as bearing on the existence of the intent and meaning of the statute, an instruction to the contrary is reversible error. 123 N. C. 588, 51 S. E. 569.

Evidence of Use of Deadly Weapon.—Where the evidence as to the use of the deadly weapon is in dispute, the charge of a deadly weapon with intent to kill, not resulting in death, as bearing on the existence of the intent and meaning of the statute, an instruction to the contrary is reversible error. 123 N. C. 588, 51 S. E. 569.

imprisonment in the state’s prison or be worked on the county for ten years. These three essential elements must be proved in order to invoke the statute (State v. Crisp, 188 N. C. 799, 800, 125 S. E. 543); and the burden is on the state to establish them all beyond a reasonable doubt, where the malicious intent being for the State to prove. State v. Gibson, 196 N. C. 393, 145 S. E. 772.

Guilty of Lesser Degree of Offense.—Where the defendants are tried for violating this section in using a deadly weapon with intent to kill, the court: Provided, that where no deadly weapon has been used and no serious damage done, the punishment is limited to a fine of $50, or imprisonment for thirty days; but this proviso shall not apply to cases of assault with intent to kill, by fine or imprisonment, or both, in the discretion of the court, if the gun went off accidentally and kills, it is manslaughter. State v. Coble, 177 N. C. 588, 99 S. E. 670.

Conviction of Simple Assault.—An instruction directing verdict of guilty of at least simple assault is not erroneous when the undisputed evidence tends to show the assault was made with a deadly weapon. State v. Hefner, 199 N. C. 778, 155 S. E. 879.

State Must Prove Murderous Intent.—Upon a trial of one charged with using a deadly weapon in inflicting a serious injury not resulting in death, under this section, an instruction that the use of such weapon raises a presumption of felonious intent is reversible error, the fact of malicious intent being for the State to prove. State v. Gibbons, 196 N. C. 393, 145 S. E. 772.

§ 14-34. Punishment for assault.—In all cases of assault, with or without intent to kill or injure, the person convicted shall be punished by fine or imprisonment, or both, at the discretion of the court, and not so limiting the extent of the punishment is referred to the discretion of the trial judge, and his sentence may not be changed in the court of Criminal Appeals. Provided, that in all cases of assault, assault and battery, and of matters in justification. ‘The trial court instructed the jury that under the indictment and evidence the appealing defendant might be convicted of assault with a deadly weapon or of a simple assault. The jury convicted defendant of simple assault, but in imposing judgment the court found as a fact that said simple assault inflicted serious injury, and imposed a sentence of four months on the roads. It was held that the verdict of simple assault was permissible and that the instruction of the trial court was proper. State v. Griggs, 197 N. C. 352, 148 So. 547.

Evidence Sufficient under Section.—Evidence that the defendant wakened the prosecutrix while she was asleep in her own room at night by placing his hand upon her forehead, sufficient to constitute assault and battery, etc., and a motion as of nonsuit thereon may not be granted, though such evidence is insufficient for a conviction of the intent to ravish her. State v. Hill, 181 N. C. 553, 158 S. E. 547.

Evidence of Threats.—As to excessive punishment, see State v. Driver, 78 N. C. 73, 77; State v. McNeill, 75 N. C. 15. Constitutionality—This section is not unconstitutional on the grounds that serves the public good, the State may constitutionally, or under a statute affirmative in terms, this statute, by correct interpretation affirmatively providing that in all cases of assault with or without the intention to kill, the person convicted shall be punished by fine or imprisonment, or both, at the discretion of the court, and not so limiting the court’s discretion as to an assault upon a female, etc. State v. Crisp, 188 N. C. 593, 106 S. E. 763.

The constitutional inhibition as to the imposition of cruel and unusual punishments may only be invoked in cases of manifest and gross abuse of power by the trial judge acting within a judicial discretion given to him; and, in this case, a sentence of three months on the road, upon conviction for an assault upon a female, cannot be held as a matter of law, on appeal, to be unconstitutional as cruel or unusual. State v. Stokes, 181 N. C. 359, 106 S. E. 763.

Same—Question of Discrimination.—This section, is not an unwarranted discrimination against one assaulting a female under the terms of the statute, or a denial to him of the equal protection of the laws guaranteed him by the Constitution. State v. Stokes, 181 N. C. 359, 106 S. E. 763.

Punishment—Extent.—While the language of this section permits a period of imprisonment for thirty days to be imposed upon conviction of an assault to kill, by fine or imprisonment, or both, in the discretion of the court, it does not at all mean that the judge may change the character of the punishment prescribed by the law for such an offense, but that, within such limits, the extent of the punishment is referred to the discretion of the trial judge, and his sentence may not be changed.

Burden to Prove Age Below Eighteen. — The burden is upon the defendant, charged with an assault upon a woman, to show that he was under the age specified in order to except his case from the provision, and it is not necessary to establish the validity of the bill that it state that he was over the age, as an assault upon a woman is a crime without regard to the age of the person who commits it, and the age merely relates to the degree of punishment and is not an element or ingredient of the offense charged. State v. Smith, 157 N. C. 578, 72 S. E. 853.

§ 14-34. Punishing by pointing gun.—If any person shall point any gun or pistol at any person, either in fun or otherwise, whether such gun or pistol be loaded or not loaded, he shall be guilty of an assault, and upon conviction of the same shall be fined not less than three dollars nor more than five dollars, or imprisoned, or both, at the discretion of the court. (Rev., s. 3629; Code, s. 986.)

Accidental Discharge of Gun.—Manslaughter.—Where one points a loaded gun at another, though without intention of discharging it, if the gun goes off accidentally and kills, it is manslaughter. State v. Coble, 177 N. C. 588, 99 S. E. 359.

When one causes the death of another by an unlawful act which amounts to an assault on the person, as pointing a gun under circumstances which would not excuse [630] its discharge, he is guilty at least of manslaughter. State v. Stitt, 146 N. C. 643, 61 S. E. 566.

Same—Question of Guilt for Jury.—Where one pointed a gun at another and death ensued by its discharge evidence was sufficient to submit to the jury the question of the prisoner's guilt or innocence of the crime of man-

Gun Need Not Be Loaded.—In an indictment for assault with a deadly weapon an instruction that if the State “had satisfied the jury beyond a reasonable doubt that the de-defendant had a pistol in his coat pocket and “with pistol and hand on the inside of his pocket, he pointed the pistol at the prosecutor, this would be an assault,” is not error. State v. Atkinson, 141 N. C. 734, 53 S. E. 228.

Pointing Pistol in Pocket. — An instruction that if the jury were satisfied beyond a reasonable doubt that the de-defendant was called upon to do so: Provided, however, that no person, firm or corporation, or any individual, male or female, or its or their, agents, to kidnap or cause to be kidnapped any human being, or to demand a ransom of any person, firm or corporation, male or female, to be paid on account of kidnapping, or to hold any human being for ransom. Provided, however, that this section shall not apply to any father or mother for taking into their custody their own child.

Any person, or their agent, violating or causing to be violated any provisions of this section shall be guilty of a felony, and upon conviction therefor, shall be punishable by imprisonment for life.

Any firm or corporation violating, or causing to be violated through their agent or agents, any of the provisions of this section, and upon being found guilty, shall be liable to the injured party sueing therefor, the sum of twenty-five thousand dollars ($25,000), and shall forfeit its or their charter and right to do business in the state of North Carolina. (1933, c. 542.)

Section Increases Maximum Punishment.—The effect of this section, repealing § 4221 of the Consolidated Statutes of North Carolina, relating to the crime of kidnapping, is to increase, within the discretion of the court, the maximum punishment for the crime from twenty years to life, and not to make a life term mandatory upon conviction. The intent of this section, as satisfied by the use of the word "punishable" in prescribing the sen-

§ 14-40. Enticing minors out of the state for the purpose of employment.—If any person shall employ and carry beyond the limits of this state any minor, or shall induce any minor to go beyond the limits of this state, for the purpose of employment without the consent in writing, duly authenticated, of the parent, guardian or other person having authority over such minor, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be fined not less than five hundred and not more than one thousand dollars for each offense. The fact of the employment and going out of the state of the minor, or of the going out of the state by the minor, at the solicitation of the person for the purpose of employment, shall be prima facie evidence of knowledge that the person employed or solicited to go beyond the limits of the state is a minor. (Rev., s. 3630; 1891,
c. 45; C. S. 4292.)

Count Joined With One under Section 14-41.—An indictment for abduction, containing two counts, one under this section and the second under section 14-41, cannot be quashed for misjoinder of two different offenses, as the two counts are merely statements of the same transaction to meet the different phases of proof. State v. Burnett, 142 N. C. 577, 578, 63 S. E. 72.

§ 14-41. Abduction of children.—If any one shall abduct or by any means induce any child under the age of fourteen years, who shall reside with its father, mother, uncle, aunt, brother or elder sister, or shall reside at a school, or be an orphan and reside with a guardian, to leave such person or school, he shall be guilty of a felony, and on conviction shall be fined or imprisoned in the state's prison for a period not exceeding fifteen years. (Rev., s. 3358; Code, s. 973; 1879, c. 81; C. S. 4223.)

Definition.—Abduction under this section, is the taking and carrying away of a child, ward, etc., either by fraud, persuasion, or open violence. The consent of the child is no defense. If there is no force or inducement and the depart-

Evidence of Influence of Defendant.—Upon the question of influence of the defendant over the wife of another whom he is being tried for abducting and eloping with, it is admissible to show the defendant's schemes and plans acquired, and the admission of testimony that the defendant had deserted his wife and dependent children, and also that the abducted woman had used her own money for expenses. State v. Hopper, 186 N. C. 405, 119 S. E. 769.

Testimony of Husband as to Chastity.—On a criminal trial for abducting and eloping with a married woman, it is competent for her husband to testify as to the chastity of his wife up to the time the defendant had invaded his home; such testimony may be sufficient to sustain a conviction. State v. Hopper, 186 N. C. 405, 119 S. E. 769; State v. O'Higgins, 178 N. C. 708, 199 S. E. 438.

Art. 11. Abortion and Kindred Offenses.

§ 14-44. Using drugs or instruments to destroy an unborn child.—If any person shall willfully administer to any woman, either pregnant or quick with child, or prescribe for any such woman, or advise or procure any such woman to take any medicine, drug or other substance whatever, or shall use or employ any instrument or other means with intent thereby to destroy such child, unless the same shall be necessary to preserve the life of the mother, he shall be guilty of a felony, and shall be imprisoned in the state's prison for not less than one year nor more than ten years, and be fined at the discretion of the court. (Rev., s. 3618; Code, s. 975; 1881, c. 351; s. 1; C. S. 4232.)

§ 14-45. Abortion.—If any person shall, without the queen's peace, carry away, cause, procure, or attempt to procure, any woman pregnant, or quick with child, to take any medicine, or drug or other substance whatever, shall use or employ any instrument or other means with intent thereby to destroy such child, unless the same shall be necessary to preserve the life of the mother, he shall be guilty of a felony, and be imprisoned in the state's prison for not less than one year nor more than ten years, and be fined at the discretion of the court. (Code, s. 4225; 1903, c. 362; C. S. 4226.)

§ 14-46. Abortion of married women.—If any person shall, without the queen's peace, carry away, cause, procure, or attempt to procure, any woman pregnant or quick with child, to take any medicine, or drug or other substance whatever, shall use or employ any instrument or other means with intent thereby to destroy such child, unless the same shall be necessary to preserve the life of the mother, he shall be guilty of a felony, and shall be imprisoned in the state's prison for not less than one year nor more than ten years, and be fined at the discretion of the court. (Rev., s. 3618; C. S. 4225; 1903, c. 362; C. S. 4226.)

§ 14-47. Abortion or Procuring Abortion.—An abortion is a willful act performed by any person, having the intention to destroy a child which is in the womb of a woman and is not the manner by which it is accomplished. Parker v. Edwards, 222 N. C. 75, 78, 11 S. E. (2d) 176.
section 14-45, that the defendant had paid the physician one-half of the $300 fee he had charged for such services, uttered in the defendant’s presence, is held competent with other evidence in this case; and whether the defendant, under the circumstances, was so intoxicated that he did not understand, presented a question for the jury to determine as to whether the woman’s statement was made in the presence of the defendant, whether they were understood by him, whether he denied them or remained silent. State v. Martin, 182 N. C. 846, 109 S. E. 74.

Admissibility of Statement Made Four Months Prior to Abortion.—Upon the trial of a physician for procuring an abortion, testimony of a conversation between the physician and the woman as to an abortion about four months prior to the time of abortion is incompetent, and its admission in evidence is prejudicial to the defendant and constitutes reversible error. State v. Brown, 202 N. C. 221, 160 S. E. 749.

Evidence of Disease Facilitating Abortion Properly Excluded.—Evidence offered by the defendant tending to show that the deceased was suffering from a disease which facilitated the abortion was not relevant to the issue involving the defendant’s guilt as charged in the indictment. There was no error in the exclusion of such evidence. State v. Evans, 211 N. C. 458, 459, 190 S. E. 724.

Abortion of woman after anesthetic was not prejudicial. State v. Evans, 211 N. C. 458, 459, 190 S. E. 724.

Sufficiency of Evidence.—Indictment and evidence that the defendant advised the prosecutrix, who was then “pregnant or quick with child,” to take a certain drug, medicine, or substance with intent to destroy the child is sufficient for a conviction under this section. State v. Powell, 181 N. C. 515, 106 S. E. 133.

Testimony of the relation between the defendant and the woman, his paying half of the doctor’s fees, and his concern as to the result, is held sufficient to sustain the verdict of guilty, taken in connection with the other evidence in the case. State v. Martin, 182 N. C. 846, 109 S. E. 74.

Variance.—On the trial of an indictment charging the performance of an operation upon a woman “quick with child,” with intent thereby to destroy the child, where the proof tends to show the performance of an operation upon a pregnant woman, with no evidence that she was “quick with child,” there is a fatal variance and defendant’s motion for nonsuit should be allowed. State v. Forte, 222 N. C. 517, 23 S. E. (2d) 842.

Jaundice of Offense.—Where the defendant is tried under this section and section 14-45, for producing a miscarriage or abortion of a pregnant woman, the action will not be dismissed upon the evidence if it is sufficient for a conviction upon either count. State v. Martin, 182 N. C. 846, 109 S. E. 74.

§ 14-45. Using drugs or instruments to produce miscarriage or injure pregnant woman.—If any person shall administer to any pregnant woman, or prescribe for any such woman, or advise and procure such woman to take any medicine, drug or anything whatsoever, with intent thereby to procure the miscarriage of such woman, or to injure or destroy such woman, or shall use any instrument or application for any of the above purposes, he shall be guilty of a felony, and shall be imprisoned in the jail or state’s prison for not less than one year nor more than five years and shall be fined, at the discretion of the court. (Rev. s. 3619, Code, s. 976; 1881, c. 351, s. 2; C. S. 4287.)

Cross Reference.—See annotations under § 14-44. Generally.—This section relates to miscarriage of, or to injury or destruction of the woman. State v. Forte, 222 N. C. 537, 538, 21 S. E. (2d) 842.

§ 14-46. Concealing birth of child.—If any person shall, by secretly burying or otherwise disposing of the dead body of a new-born child, endeavor to conceal the birth of such child, such person shall be guilty of a felony, and punished by fine or imprisonment, or both, such imprisonment to be in the county jail or state’s prison, at the discretion of the court: Provided, that the imprisonment in the state’s prison shall in no case exceed a term of ten years: Provided further, that nothing in this section shall be construed to prevent the mother, who may be guilty, from discovering to the husband of her child, from being prosecuted and punished for the same according to the principles of the common law.

Any person aiding, counseling or abetting any woman in concealing the birth of her child shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Rev., s. 3623; Code, s. 1004; R. C. c. 34, s. 28; 1818, c. 985; 1883, c. 390; 21. Jac. I, c. 27. See 43 Geo. III, c. 58, s. 3; 9 Geo. IV, c. 31, s. 14; C. S. 4228.)

Editor’s Note.—The editor deems it advisable to note here some of the older cases construing this section as it stood after the amendment of act 1818, chap. 985, in view of the fact that these constructions may well be applied to the section as it now stands.

Evidence Insufficient for Directed Verdict. — Under the provisions of this section making it a felony for any person to cause the death of a new-born child by secretly burying or otherwise disposing of its dead body, it is reversible error for the trial judge to direct a verdict of guilty upon evidence tending to show that the defendant had buried the dead body of the infant in a state of decomposition and therefor buried it, and had informed the authorities thereof and directed them where he had buried it, it being required of the State to rebut the common-law presumption of innocence by establishing the defendant’s guilt beyond a reasonable doubt. State v. Arrowood, 187 N. C. 715, 122 S. E. 759.

Art. 12. Libel and Slander.

§ 14-47. Communicating libelous matter to newspapers.—If any person shall state, deliver or transmit by any means whatever, to the manager, editor, publisher or reporter of any newspaper or periodical for publication therein any false and libelous statement concerning any person or corporation, and thereby secure the publication of the same, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Rev., s. 3635; 1901, c. 557, ss. 2, 3; C. S. 4292.)

Cross Reference.—As to the truth of allegations in indictment for libel as a defense, see § 15-168. As to libel by a newspaper, see §§ 99-1 and 99-2. As to derogatory statements about building and loan associations, see § 54-44.

Responsibility of Newspaper Men.—"This statute punishes criminally the person who communicates false and libelous matter to newspapers, but that does not excuse the newspaper for publishing such libels, and the newspaper is responsible in damages for the injury done by the publication. Newspaper men (however) are not so apt to be prosecuted as to derogatory statements about building and loan associations, see § 54-44.

Cross Reference.—As to civil liability for charging innocent women with incontinency, see § 99-4 and annotation thereto.
§ 14-49. Essential Elements of Offense.—The innocence and virtue, then, of the woman who is subject of the attempt, lie at the very foundation of the offense, and constitute its most essential element. State v. McDaniel, 84 N. C. 803, 805; State v. Aldridge, 86 N. C. 680, 681; State v. Smith, 155 N. C. 473, 71 S. E. 305.

§ 14-50. Conspiracy declared a felony; punishment.—Any two or more persons shall conspire to willfully and maliciously injure or attempt to injure any person, or any building in actual use for residential or business purposes or customarily devoted to any such use or any contents thereof, by the use of nitro-glycerine, dynamite, gunpowder, or other high explosive, shall be guilty of a felony, and each conspirator shall be punished by imprisonment in the state prison for not less than two years and not more than fifteen years. (1923, c. 80, s. 2; C. S. 4231(a).)

Art. 13. Injuring Others by Use of High Explosives.

§ 14-49. Willful injury a felony; punishment.—Any person who shall willfully and maliciously injure or attempt to injure any person, or any building in actual use for residential or business purposes or customarily devoted to any such use or any contents thereof, by the use of nitro-glycerine, dynamite, gunpowder, or other high explosive, each and every one so conspiring shall be guilty of a felony, and on conviction shall be punished by imprisonment in the state prison for not less than five years and not more than thirty years. (1923, c. 80, s. 1; C. S. 4231(a).)

SUBCHAPTER IV. OFFENSES AGAINST THE HABITATION AND OTHER BUILDINGS.

§ 14-51. First and second degree burglary.—There shall be two degrees in the crime of burglary as defined at the common law. If the crime be committed in a dwelling-house, or in a room used as a sleeping apartment in any building, and any person is in the actual occupation of any part of said dwelling-house or sleeping apartment at the time of the commission of such crime, it shall be burglary in the first degree. If such crime be committed in a dwelling-house or sleeping apartment not actually occupied by any one at the time of the commission of the crime, or if it be committed in any house within the curtilage of a dwelling-house or in any building not a dwelling-house, but in which is a room used as a sleeping apartment and not actually occupied as such at the time of the commission of the crime, it shall be burglary in the second degree. (Rev., s. 3331; 1889, c. 434, s. 1; C. S. 4232.)

Cross References.—As to power of an individual to arrest a burglar, see § 15-40. As to accessories, see § 14-5 et seq. As to breaking into or entering jails with intent to kill or injure prisoners therein, see § 14-221.

In General.—Burglary, as defined at common law, was a capital offense, i. e., the breaking into and entering of the "mansion or dwelling-house of another in the night-time, with an intent to commit a felony therein," notwithstanding the intent was executed after the burglarious act or not. This has been changed by this section dividing the crime into two degrees, first and second, with certain designated differences between them, with different punishment prescribed for each. State v. Allen, 386 N. C. 302, 192 S. E. 304; State v. Morse, 215 N. C. 352, 2 S. E. (2d) 394.

The crime of burglary as defined at common law was composed of five distinct elements, which were: (1), the breaking; (2), the entering; (3), that the breaking and entry be into a mansion house; (4), that the breaking and entering were charged does not shift the burden of proof upon him to show he had not slandered an innocent woman. Her innocence is a question for the jury upon the evidence, and no presumption of her innocence should be allowed to weigh against the defendant. State v. McDaniel, 84 N. C. 803.
in the nighttime, and (5), that the breaking and entering were with the intent to commit a felony. State v. Whit, 49 N. C. 349, 350.

Curtilage.—The meaning of the term curtilage is a piece of skin, the hair of which is not, or not, that is commonly used with the dwelling house. State v. Twitty, 2 N. C. 102 the admission of the entering and taking, the only question is whether it was done at nighttime, and the jury should not be permitted to submit the jury on the question of defendant's guilt of burglary in the first degree. State v. Oakley, 216 N. C. 175, 11 S. E. 925.

Indictment Must Charge Intended Felony.—In order for an indictment to sustain a verdict of guilty of burglary in the first degree, it must not only charge the burglarious entry with the intent at the time, but must also charge the felony intended to be committed with sufficient definiteness, though it is not necessary that the actual commission of the intended felony be shown or proven. State v. Allen, 186 N. C. 302, 119 S. E. 534.

Same.—Proof of a Different Intent.—An averment in an indictment for burglary, that the breaking was with the intent to commit a felony, is insufficient to show that the entry was made with a purpose to commit a robbery. State v. Halford, 104 N. C. 874, 10 S. E. 534. The intent may be shown by circumstances. State v. McBryde, 97 N. C. 393, 1 S. E. 925.

Indictment Must Charge Occupancy.—The indictment charging the offense alleging that the dwelling-house was in the actual occupation of someone at the time of the commission of the crime, was not required at common law, under sec. 14-53, but now, under the provisions of this section omission of that averment makes the indictment good only as an indictment for burglary in the second degree. State v. Fleming, 107 N. C. 905, 968, 12 S. E. 131.

Burglary can not be committed in a tent or booth erected in a market or fair, although the owner lodges in it. See I Hawk Pl. Cr., Ch. 17, § 103; 1 Hale Pl. Cr. 559; Roscoe Cr. Ev., 300. State v. Jako, 60 N. C. 471.

Burglary in a Store with Sleeping Quarters.—The offense of burglary may be committed by breaking into a store if the store is used as a dwelling, and therefore makes it a dwelling. State v. Foster, 129 N. C. 704, 40 S. E. 288.

Value of Goods Stolen Immaterial.—A person who burglariously breaks and enters a dwelling at nighttime while the same is occupied is guilty of burglary in the first degree, and the fact that the value of goods stolen from the dwelling, or other infamous crime therein, is less than $20, is of no importance in determining whether the provision of § 14-72, dividing larceny into two degrees, by its terms having no application to burglary. State v. Richardson, 216 N. C. 304, 4 S. E. (2d) 852.

Charging Elements of First and Second Degree.—Where a burglarious breaking into a dwelling-house, has been charged in the bill of indictment, and the evidence tends only to establish the capital felony, an instruction to the jury that they might be found guilty of nonburglarious entry constitutes reversible error. State v. Chambers, 219 N. C. 442, 11 S. E. (2d) 280.

§ 14-52. CH. 14. CRIMINAL LAW
§ 14-53. Punishment for burglary.—Any person convicted, according to due course of law, of the crime of burglary in the first degree shall suffer death: Provided, if the jury shall so recommend, the punishment shall be imprisonment for life in the state's prison. Anyone so convicted of burglary in the second degree shall suffer imprisonment in the state's prison for life, or for a term of years, in the discretion of the court. (Rev. s. 3330; Code, s. 994; 1889, c. 434, s. 2; 1870-1, c. 222; 1841, c. 215, s. 1; C. S. 4233.)

Cross References.—As to jury returning verdict for second degree burglary when first degree was charged in the indictment, see § 15-171 and annotation thereto. See also, annotation to § 14-51.

§ 14-53. Breaking out of dwelling-house. Burglary.—If any person shall enter the dwelling-house of another with intent to commit any felony or other infamous crime therein, or being in such dwelling-house, shall commit any felony or other infamous crime therein, and shall, in either case, break out of such dwelling-house in the nighttime, such person shall be guilty of burglary. (Rev. s. 3333; Code, s. 995; R. C., c. 34, s. 8; 19 Anne, c. 7, s. 5; C. S. 4234.)

Indictment Must Charge Breaking Out.—One charged by indictment of breaking into a house cannot be convicted of breaking out, and a charge of the court to that effect is error. State v. McPherson, 70 N. C. 239.
§ 14-54. Breaking into or entering houses otherwise than burglariously.—If any person, with intent to commit a felony or other infamous crime therein, shall break or enter either the dwelling-house of another otherwise than by a burglarious breaking; or any storehouse, shop, warehouse, banking-house, counting-house or other building where any merchandise, chattel, money, valuable security or other personal property shall be; or any uninhabited house, he shall be guilty of a felony, and shall be imprisoned in the state's prison or county jail not less than four months nor more than ten years. (Rev., s. 3333; Code, s. 996; 1874-5, c. 166; 1879, c. 323; C. S. 4235.)

Intent Must Be Shown.—In order to convict under this section, it must be shown that the accused had the intent necessary to constitute a felony; and where the prosecution leaves no other course except acquittal. State v. Spear, 164 N. C. 452, 79 S. E. 869.

The case of State v. Hooker, 145 N. C. 581, 59 S. E. 866, is cited and it is said that the construction of the statute in that case, is that intent should only apply to a breaking into an uninhabited house, was obiter dictum as that point was not raised in the case. Clark, C. J., dissenting. Held that the conviction for a less offense should be sustained.—Ed. Note.

In State v. Crisp, 188 N. C. 799, 801, 125 S. E. 543, it is said that where the accused entered the same house a second time, with the purpose to commit a felony, it was nonsuited, viz: because the defendant thereupon expressly disapproved of the decision in the Spear case, brought forward as section 4235 [now G. S. 14-54] in the Consolidated Statutes.

"Unlawfully Breaking" Charges Intent.—An indictment which charges that defendant did break and enter (other than burglariously) the storeroom and house, ete., with the intent to commit a felony, is insufficient when charging "that defendant did break and enter (other than burglariously) the storeroom and house, ete., with intent to commit a felony, to wit: the breaking and entering was feloniously done, and not to all the clauses in the section; but this was expressly disapproved in State v. Spear, 164 N. C. 452, 79 S. E. 869. And further, it should be noted that this section has been restated in accordance with the decision in the Spear case, brought forward as section 4235.

Intent to Commit More Than One Offense.—An indictment for burglary and larceny, charging that defendant with intent to commit a felony or other infamous crime is not defective because it charges an intent to commit more than one offense. State v. Christmas, 101 N. C. 749, 8 S. E. 301.

Entry without Breaking.—It is evident that a nonburglarious entry by the prisoner, and when the owner has procured the act to be done by the prisoner in company with and at the instance of the one selected by the owner for the purpose, the entry is lawful, and no crime is shown to have been committed, whatever the intent of the prisoner may have been at the time. State v. Goodney, 157 N. C. 624, 73 S. E. 162.

Duty of Court to Submit to Jury Question of Guilt Hereunder Where Indictment Charges First Degree Burglary.—Where the evidence is sufficient to justify it upon a bill of indictment otherwise than burglariously, and it is further evidence of defendant's guilt of breaking and entering with intent to commit a felony in the first degree, it is the duty and mandatory upon the court to submit to the jury the question of whether or not the defendant is guilty of breaking and entering a house in question at the time and place mentioned in the indictment otherwise than burglariously, and it is error for the court to fail or refuse to do so. State v. Jordan, 218 N. C. 604, 12 S. E. (2d) 278.

Evidence Sufficient for Conviction.—Evidence that a cotton mill had been broken into and that goods taken therefrom had been found in defendant's possession within an hour or two thereafter, with further evidence of his unlawful possession, is sufficient for conviction, under the provisions of this section and defendant's demurrer to the State's evidence, or motion for dismissal thereon, is improperly overruled. State v. Blackwell, 182 N. C. 889, 159 S. E. 325. (Ed. Note.)

Evidence held sufficient to sustain conviction under this section. State v. Hargett, 196 N. C. 697, 146 S. E. 801.

§ 14-55. Preparation to commit burglary or other house-breakings.—If any person shall be found armed with any dangerous or offensive weapon, with the intent to break or enter a dwelling-house, or other building, with intent to commit a felony or other infamous crime therein; or shall be found having in his possession, without lawful excuse, any pick-lock, key, bit or other implement of house-breaking; or shall be found in any such building, with intent to commit a felony or other infamous crime therein, such person shall be guilty of a felony and punished by fine or imprisonment in the state's prison, or both, in the discretion of the court. (Rev., s. 3334; Code, s. 997; 1907, c. 822; C. S. 4236.)

The offense of possessing implements of housebreaking without lawful excuse, does not require the proof of any "intent" or "unlawful use." State v. Vick, 213 N. C. 235, 195 S. E. 779.

A sentence of not less than twenty-five nor more than thirty years upon a plea of guilty of possession of weapons and implements for house breaking, in violation of this section is within the discretion of the court conferred by the statute, and is not unlawful and will not break or enter into any railroad car containing goods, wares, freight or other thing of value, or shall unlawfully and willfully break or enter into any railroad car containing goods, wares, freight or other thing of value, such person shall be convicted and punished in the penitentiary in the discretion of the court for a term not exceeding five years. Any person found unlawfully in such car shall be presumed to have entered in violation of this section. (1907, c. 468; C. S. 4237.)

§ 14-57. Burglary with explosives.—Any person who, with intent to commit crime, breaks and enters, either by day or by night, any building, whether inhabited or not, and opens or attempts to open any vault, safe, or other secure place by use of nitro-glycerine, dynamite, gunpowder, or any other explosive, or acetylene torch, shall be deemed guilty of burglary with explosives. Any person convicted under this section shall be punished as for burglary in the second degree, as provided in § 14-55. (1921, c. 5; C. S. 4237(a).)

Art. 15. Arson and Other Burnings.

§ 14-58. Punishment for arson.—Any person convicted according to due course of law of the crime of arson shall suffer death: Provided, if the jury shall so recommend, the punishment shall be imprisonment for life. (Rev., s. 3335; Code, s. 984; R. C., c. 34, s. 2; 1870-1, c. 222; 1914, c. 215, s. 2; C. S. 4238.)

Cross References.—As to accomplices, see § 14-5 et seq. As to proof by insurance commissioner and prosecutor, see § 69-2.

Editor's Note.—At common law arson was defined by Lord Coke as "the malicious and voluntary burning of the house of another by night or by day." "House" was meant to designate dwelling house and did not apply to barns and other buildings. Some of the states have extended the term so as to apply it to all property, and the common-law idea of "an offense against the security of the habitation" has been extended to an "offense against property." With this extension of application and meaning has come a change in the penalty, and but few states punish the offense by death.

In this state all offenses against property other than the habitation are covered by statutes making the offense punishable by imprisonment. So the offense that carries the death penalty is one against the habitation only and one that will greatly endanger human life. The 1941 amendment added the provision for life imprisonment upon recommendation of the jury.

By the act of 1899 the punishment for arson was confined in the penitentiary, but by the act of 1871 a death penalty was provided. In State v. Hammond, 76 N. C. 33, the defendant was convicted and received the death sentence but judgment was arrested because the indictment did not specify which of the two acts it was found under. The failure to specify the date and the year of the crime rather than a question as to which of the statutes should apply as both of them provided punishment, one for offenses before April 4, 1871, the other for offenses after that date.

Wood Must Be Charred.—Where the statute requires that the building be "burned" an indictment charging "setting fire to" is not sufficient for there can be a setting fire without charring the wood, as required to constitute burning. But if the statute provides "setting fire to," the indictment charging "setting fire to and burning" is sufficient as the charge of burning is surplusage and not detrimental to the indictment. State v. Hall, 93 N. C. 571.

§ 14-59. Burning of certain public and other corporate buildings.—If any person shall willfully and maliciously burn the streethouse, or any of the public offices of the state, or any courthouse, jail, arsenal, clerk's office, register's office, or any house belonging to any county or incorporated company, the state or to any incorporated company whatever, in which are kept the archives, documents, or public papers of such county, town or corporation, he shall, on conviction, be imprisoned in the state's prison for not less than five nor more than ten years. (Rev., s. 3344; Code, s. 985, subsec. 3; R. C., c. 34, s. 7; 1830, c. 41, s. 1; 1868-9, c. 167, s. 5; C. S. 4239.)

Intent Necessary.—"If the prisoner put fire to the jail, not with an intent of destroying it, he is not guilty under the act of assembly. But if he put fire to the jail and burnt it with an intent to burn it down and destroy it, he is guilty, notwithstanding the fire went out, or was put out by others before the intention of the prisoner was completed by burning down the jail; and this is the law, although the main intention was to escape." State v. Mitchell, 27 N. C. 350, 355.

§ 14-60. Setting fire to schoolhouse.—If any person shall willfully set fire to any schoolhouse, or procure the same to be done, he shall be guilty of a felony, and upon conviction shall be punished by imprisonment in the state's prison or the county jail, and may also be fined, in the discretion of the court. (Rev., s. 5345; 1901, c. 4, s. 28; 1919, c. 70; C. S. 4240.)

§ 14-61. Burning or attempting to burn certain bridges and buildings.—If any person, with intent to destroy the same, shall willfully and maliciously set fire to and burn any public bridge, or private toll-bridge, or the bridge of any incorporated company, or any fire-engine house, or any house belonging to any county or incorporated town, used for public purposes other than the keeping of archives, documents and public papers, or any house belonging to an incorporated company and used in the business of such company, or if any person shall willfully and maliciously attempt to burn any of such houses or bridges, or any of the houses or buildings mentioned in this article, the person offending shall be guilty of a felony and shall be punished by imprisonment in the state's prison or county jail for not less than four months nor more than ten years. (Rev., s. 3337; Code, s. 985, subsec. 4; R. C., c. 34, s. 30; 1825, c. 1278; C. S. 4241.)

City Market House.—A person charged with damaging a market house by fire must be tried under this section and not under a municipal ordinance as the general law must prevail over the ordinance, when they conflict. The municipal court would have jurisdiction only by express legislation conveying it. Washington v. Hammond, 76 N. C. 33.

§ 14-62. Setting fire to churches and certain other buildings.—If any person shall wantonly and willfully set fire to or burn or cause to be burned, or aid, counsel or procure the burning of, any church, chapel or meeting-house, or any stable, coach house, outhouse, warehouse, office, shop, mill, barn or granary, or to any building or erection used in carrying on any trade or manufacture, or any branch thereof, whether the same or any of them respectively shall then be in the possession of the other person, he shall be guilty of a felony, and shall be imprisoned in the state's prison for not less than two nor more than forty years. (Rev., s. 3338; 1885, c. 66; 1903, c. 665, s. 2; 1874-5, c. 228; Code, s. 985, subsec. 6; 1927, c. 11, s. 1; C. S. 4924.)

As to buildings destroyed by a tenant, see § 42-11 and annotation thereto. As to burning crops in 'fields', see § 14-141. As to burning of gin-houses, tobacco houses, and stables, see § 14-64. As to setting fire to grass and brush lands and woodlands, see § 14-136.

I. IN GENERAL.

Editor's Note.—By the amendment Public Laws 1927, c. 11, the words "omitting to B." and in the possession of one G.? Verdict of not guilty on a count brought under this section does not necessarily carry a verdict of not guilty on a separate and distinct and each requiring proof of facts which the other does not. State v. Pierce, 268 N. C. 47, 179 S. E. 8.

Crime Fixed Herein Is Separate from That in § 14-66. —A verdict of not guilty on a count brought under this section does not carry conviction of guilt on a second count brought under § 14-66, the counts being separate and distinct and each requiring proof of facts which the other does not. State v. Pierce, 268 N. C. 47, 179 S. E. 8.

Barn Defined.—A building of hewn logs (twenty-six feet long by fifteen), divided by a partition of the same, upon one side, which were horses and upon the other corn, oats and wheat (threshed and unthreshed), also hay, fodder, etc., having sheds adjoining, under which were wagons and other farm utensils, is a "barn" within the meaning of this section. State v. Cherry, 63 N. C. 493. But a house seventeen feet long and twelve wide, setting on blocks in a stable yard, having two rooms in it—one quite small, furnished to the stock, and the other used for storing peas, oats, and other products of the farm—is not a barn within the meaning of the statute. State v. Laughlin, 53 N. C. 495.

II. INDICTMENT.

"Wantonly and Wilfully" Must Be Charged.—An indictment for burning a barn must aver that the burning was "wantonly and wilfully," and feloniously set fire to and burn a certain gin house, being a building "of" A. (Archb. Cr. Pl. [3d Am. Ed.] 262, and Ixiv.); and this is the better practice, proof of either the act is itself equivocal and becomes criminal only by reason of the intent." State v. Morgan, 136 N. C. 628, 629, 48 S. E. 670.

Wantonly and Wilfully' Must Be Charged.—An indictment for burning a barn must aver that the defendant "did unlawfully, wilfully and feloniously set fire to and burn a certain gin house, belonging to B. and in the possession of one G.? Verdict of guilty on a count brought under this section had been amended (Laws 1885, Chapter 66,) by striking out the words "unlawfully and maliciously" and inserting in lieu thereof "wantonly and willfully," and that the words used do not correspond with the language of the amended statute. The objection would be well taken if this indictment was sustainable only under this section. State v. Toome, 81 N. C. 555, cited and followed by State v. Green, 92 N. C. 779; State v. Thompson, 97 N. C. 496, 496, 1 S. E. 921.

III. Proof of Title Not Necessary.—"Ownership is alleged only to identify the property, and is sufficiently proved by showing possession. State v. Daniel, 121 N. C. 574, 577, 46 S. E. 255; State v. Thompson, 97 N. C. 496, 1 S. E. 921; State v. Jaynes, 78 N. C. 504, 507; State v. Gallor, 71 N. C. 88." State v. Sprouser, 150 N. C. 861, 5 S. E. 614; 94 S. E. 921.

4. "This section is copied from the English Statute of 7 and Geo. IV., c. 30; and under that it was sufficient to allege the burning simply of 'A. (Arbch. Cr. Pl. [3d Am. Ed.] 262, and Ixiv.)" and this is the better practice, proof of either the offense charged, the trial judge should withdraw the case from the jury. State v. Freeman, 131 N. C. 725, 42 S. E. 573.

Where the only evidence against a person accused of burning a barn is threats made by him, without any evidence connecting him with the execution of said threats, or that the offense charged, the chain gang should be excluded and the jury carefully cautioned not to regard it as it puts the character of the person in issue. State v. Barrett, 131 N. C. 665, 666, 66 S. E. 894. The proof of threats directed against the son and grandson, from their near relationship to the owner of a burned house, is relevant, though perhaps feeble, in showing general ill will to the family and a motive for the act. State v. Rash, 121 N. C. 720, 57 S. E. 691; State v. Daniel, 121 N. C. 720, 57 S. E. 691; State v. Daniel, 121 N. C. 720, 57 S. E. 691.

Same.—Toward Agent.—Ill will toward an agent of the owner of a burned house in favor of the owner is not a sufficient motive for either an attempt to burn a barn occupied and used by the witness, and to that end it was proper to show that bad feeling existed, and the reason for it, but that part of a reply of a witness in which he stated that defendant had been convicted of stealing and sent to the chain gang should be excluded and the jury carefully cautioned not to regard it as it puts the character of the defendant in issue. State v. Barrett, 131 N. C. 665, 666, 66 S. E. 894.

Jilted and disconsolate. — Where the only evidence against a person accused of burning a barn is threats made by him, without any evidence connecting him with the execution of said threats, or that the offense charged, the trial judge should withdraw the case from the jury. State v. Freeman, 131 N. C. 725, 42 S. E. 573.
be any evidence tending to prove the fact in issue the weight of it must be left to the jury, but if there be no evidence conducing to that conclusion the Judge should say so, and, in the language of the Act, that it is direct acquittal. In State v. Vinson, 63 N. C. 335, it is said: "But it is confessedly difficult to draw the line between evidence which is very slight, and that which, as having no bearing on the fact to be proved, is in relation to that offense, no evidence at all." The evidence must be more than sufficient to raise a suspicion or a conjecture. State v. Rhodes, 111 N. C. 647, 650, 15 S. E. 1038.

Where, in a prosecution under this section, the evidence fails to establish the felonious origin of the fire or the identity of the defendant as the one who committed the offense charged, or circumstances from which these facts might reasonably be inferred, it is insufficient to be submitted to the jury. State v. Wilson, 205 N. C. 376, 171 S. E. 338.

On trial for wilfully and wantonly burning a barn in violation of this section, evidence of the felonious origin of the building used as a dwelling-house, or the identity of the occupant of the same, or the circumstances from which these facts might reasonably be inferred, is sufficient to be submitted to the jury. State v. Wilson, 205 N. C. 376, 171 S. E. 338.

Intent.—It is prima facie presumed that a person intended the natural consequence of his act when he set fire to a building. But this is subject to rebuttal by evidence to the contrary. State v. Phifer, 90 N. C. 721. Abil. — The burden of proving an alibi does not rest on the prosecution, but on the defendant. State v. Nash, 202 N. C. 608, 161 S. E. 87.

In a prosecution under this section, evidence of the felonious origin of the fire and of the identity of the defendant as the culprit, which, as having no bearing on the fact to be proved, is in relation to that offense, no evidence at all. (Rev., s. 3941; 1863, c. 17; 1886-9, c. 167, s. 5; 1903, c. 665, s. 1; Code, s. 985, subsec. 2; C. S. 4241.)

Cross References.—As to burning crops in the field, see § 14-141. As to setting fire to churches and certain other buildings, see § 14-62. As to setting fire to grass and brush lands and woodlands, see §§ 14-136 and 14-137.

Indictment.—The new language in the indictment is not to be construed so as to make it necessary to specifically aver the fraudulent purpose. "Who, or by the authority of, or for the benefit of, counsel or procure the burning of," was added. (1921, c. 119; C. S. 4245(a).)

Necessity of Alleging "Wilful Burning."—In the case of State v. Torme, 81 N. C. 555, there was an indictment for unlawfully, maliciously and feloniously burning a ginhouse. The court was asked to charge the jury that the defendant could not resist the order of the corporation against loss or damage by fire, or not, with intent to injure or prejudice the insurer, creditor or the person owning the property, or any other person, whether the same be the property of such person or another, shall be guilty of a felony. (1921, c. 119; C. S. 4245(a)).

See the note to § 14-62. Evidence that defendant's car was driven away from defendant's house shortly before defendant's personal property therein was destroyed by fire was insufficient to charge a crime of incendiarism (Wilful Burning) as charged in the indictment. See the note to § 14-62. Evidence of constructive notice to defendant of an acute fire on the premises, that the fire, and that the occupants of the car were heard in the building, is held insufficient, in the absence of evidence that defendant was one of the occupants of the car, to resist defendant's motions for judgment as of non-suicide in a prosecution under this section, although there was ample evidence that the fire was of incendiaristic origin (Wilful Burning), and that the automobile, which had been destroyed by fire, had been insured by him. State v. Simms, 208 N. C. 459, 181 S. E. 209.

Indictment.—The new language in the indictment is not to be construed so as to make it necessary to specifically aver the fraudulent purpose. "Who, or by the authority of, or for the benefit of, counsel or procure the burning of," was added. (1921, c. 119; C. S. 4245(a).)

Necessity of Alleging "Wilful Burning."—In the case of State v. Torme, 81 N. C. 555, there was an indictment for unlawfully, maliciously and feloniously burning a ginhouse. The court was asked to charge the jury that the defendant could not resist the order of the corporation against loss or damage by fire, or not, with intent to injure or prejudice the insurer, creditor or the person owning the property, or any other person, whether the same be the property of such person or another, shall be guilty of a felony. (1921, c. 119; C. S. 4245(a).)
erty of another, he shall be guilty of a felony, and shall be punished by imprisonment in the state's prison or county jail, and may also be fined, in the discretion of the court. (Rev., s. 3336; Code, s. 985, subsec. 7; 1876-7, c. 13; C. S. 4246.) See notes to section 14-64.

In General.—A conviction for burning a ginhouse can be had only if the necessary requirements of the law in regard to the investigation of incendiary fires are fulfilled. If any town or city officer shall fail, neglect or refuse to comply with the orders of the chief of the fire department, or of the insurance commissioner, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be fined not less than ten nor more than fifty dollars for each day's neglect. (Rev., s. 3348; 1899, c. 58, s. 4; C. S. 4247.)

§ 14-69. Failure of officers to investigate incendiary fires.—If any town or city officer shall fail, neglect or refuse to comply with any of the requirements of the law in regard to the investigation of incendiary fires, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and may be fined not less than twenty-five nor more than two hundred dollars. (Rev., s. 3348; 1899, c. 58, s. 5; C. S. 4248.)

SUBCHAPTER V. OFFENSES AGAINST PROPERTY.

Art. 16. Larceny.

§ 14-70. Distinction between grand and petit larceny abolished.—All distinctions between petit and grand larceny, where the same has had the benefit of clergy, are abolished; and the offense of felonious stealing, where no other punishment shall be specifically prescribed therefor by statute, shall be punished as petit larceny and may be fined not less than ten nor more than fifty dollars.

Accessories Must Be Designated in Indictment.—A charge of stealing two barrels of turpentine is not supported by proof of the taking of that quantity from the box cut in the tree to receive and hold the descending sap. State v. Moore, 33 N. C. 70; State v. Bragg, 86 N. C. 658, 690.

One Act Two Offenses.—A person committing larceny from the person, upon two persons at the same time may be tried and convicted for both offenses. State v. Bynum, 117 N. C. 743, 749, B. E. 219; State v. Bynum, 117 N. C. 752, 23 E. 219.

Accessories Abolished.—There are no accessories to larceny. All that counsel and aid are guilty of the offense as principals. State v. Gaston, 70 N. C. 393.

Larceny and Malicious Mischief Distinguished.—An indictment for larceny at common law for stealing a cow is not supported by proof that the defendant shot the cow down and then cut off her ears. Such an act is not larceny, but malicious mischief. State v. Bynum, 117 N. C. 752, 23 E. 219, cited in note in 29 L. R. A., N. S., 40. See section 14-85.

Exclusive Jurisdiction in Superior Court.—"Under the general law all misdemeanors are punishable by fine and imprisonment at the discretion of the Superior Court, so by the Constitution the jurisdiction over such offenses appertains exclusively to the Superior Courts, unless some statute has limited the punishment to a fine not exceeding fifty dollars or imprisonment not exceeding one month. Art. IV, sec. 15. (Amended Const., Art. IV, sec. 25.) Washington v. Hammond, 76 N. C. 33, 35.”

§ 14-71. Receiving stolen goods.—If any person shall receive any chattel, property, money, valuable security or other thing whatsoever, the stealing or taking whereof amounts to larceny or a felony, either at common law or by virtue of any statute made or hereafter to be made, such person knowing the same to have been feloniously stolen or taken, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and may be indicted and convicted, whether the felon stealing and taking such chattels, property, money, valuable security or other thing, shall or shall not have been previously convicted, or shall or shall not have been amenable to justice; and any such receiver may be dealt with, indicted, tried and punished in any county in which he shall have, or shall have had, any such property in his possession or in any county in which the thief may be tried, in the same manner as such receiver may be dealt with, indicted, tried and punished, where he actually received such chattel, money, security, or other thing; and such receiver shall be punished as one convicted of larceny. (Rev., s. 3507; Code, s. 1074; R. C., c. 34, s. 56; 1797, c. 485, s. 2; C. S. 4250.)

Included in Indictment for Larceny Charge.—An indictment for larceny if concluded at common law may include two counts, one for larceny, the other for receiving stolen goods. The two counts must conclude against the statute the two counts can not be joined, as the punishment for the two offences was made the same.

This section makes guilty knowledge one of the essential elements of the offense of receiving stolen goods. This knowledge may be actual, or it may be implied when the circumstances under which the goods were received are
It is necessary to establish either actual or implied knowledge on the part of the person charged of the facts that the goods were stolen, to constitute the offense of receiving stolen goods. Implied knowledge is when the person charged had knowledge of the facts that the goods had been stolen at the time he received them, and not whether a reasonably prudent man in the transaction of his business would have gained such knowledge under the circumstances.

The inference or presumption arising from the recent possession of stolen property, without more, does not extend to a conviction under this section, and a charge which fails to specify the value of the property alleged to have been stolen is defective at law.

Verdict Need Not Specify Value of Goods.—In a prosecution under this section where there was no evidence on the record tending to show that the property alleged to have been stolen was that of the owner named in the indictment, the defendant's motion for dismissal or non-suit should be allowed. State v. Pugh, 196 N. C. 725, 188 S. E. 649.

Accessories Abolished.—By abolishing the distinction between what is an offense and of what amount the value of the goods is defective, and one receiving stolen goods is treated and punished as principal. State v. Tyler, 85 N. C. 574, 63 S. E. 346.

Defective Verdict.—Where the verdict in an indictment under this section is "guilty of receiving stolen goods," it is defective as not being responsive to the charge or failing within the requirements of the statute to constitute the offense made in the indictment, and therefore a judgment may not be entered or a sentence imposed. State v. Barbee, 197 N. C. 248, 148 S. E. 249.

Same.—Failure to Charge as to Guilty Knowledge. — Where the evidence is conflicting as to whether the defendant knew at the time of receiving goods that they were stolen, and although the record shows that finding of such knowledge was necessary for conviction, the verdict of guilty without finding that the defendant possessed such knowledge at the time he received the goods is defective in the indictment, and the court should determine the value of the goods in its verdict.

Punishment.—Receiving stolen goods is only a misdemeanor under this section but it may be punished as larceny at the discretion of the court. State v. Brite, 73 N. C. 265.

An exception to a judgment of imprisonment in the state's prison for a term of three years, pronounced against a defendant upon a verdict of guilty of receiving stolen goods, knowing them to be stolen, was, in that the indictment did not specify the value of the property. State v. Reddick, 222 N. C. 539, 23 S. E. (2d) 509.

§ 14-72. Larceny of property, or the receiving of stolen goods, not exceeding fifty dollars in value.—The larceny of property, or the receiving of stolen goods knowing them to be stolen, of the value of not more than fifty dollars, is hereby declared a misdemeanor, and the defendant shall be punished as the court shall deem appropriate.

If the larceny is from the person, or from the dwelling by breaking and entering, this section shall have no application: Provided, that this section shall not apply to horse stealing. In all cases of doubt the jury shall, in the verdict, fix the value of the property stolen. (Rev., s. 3506; 1895, c. 285; 1913, c. 118, s. 1; 1941, c. 178, s. 1; C. 4251.)

Editor's Note.—Prior to the amendment of 1913 there was no express provision in this section making it inapplicable to breaking and entering as a means of theft. The present provision provided that it should not apply if the larceny was from the person or from a house in the daytime. In the case of State v. Shuford, 152 N. C. 899, 67 S. E. 392, the defendant having been convicted of larceny, and was sentenced to three years imprisonment. It was contended by defendant that as this section provided for only one year punishment for larceny of property valued less than $20, defendant should not be sentenced for more than one year. The Court construed the section liberally and by the nature of the offence and in the light of section 14-73, providing for discretionary sentences for hardened criminals, decided that the legislature did not intend to give a longer sentence to daytime breakers than nighttime breakers, and the judgment of the lower court was sustained.

In the case of In re Holley, 154 N. C. 163, 69 S. E. 872, the question of punishment under this section again arose, and the court followed the rule laid down in State v. Shuford setting out additional grounds for the ruling; that this section only provided punishment for misdemeanors and that under section 14-2 and section 14-3 the punishment in all cases unless otherwise provided would be from 4 months to ten years. By the amendment of 1913 this section was made to cover all cases of such nature and remove any ground for contention as to how it should be construed in such cases. The 1941 amendment substituted "fifty dollars" for "twenty dollars."

Knowledge that the goods were stolen at the time of receiving them is an essential element of the offense of receiving stolen goods, and although it may be inferred from incriminating circumstances, a charge that such knowledge might be actual or implied, without specifying that it would have to exist at the time of the receiving, is erroneous. State v. Spankling, 211 N. C. 63, 188 S. E. 647.

Indictment for Larceny from the Person.—It is not necessary for the indictment to allege that the larceny was from the person for it to be shown. State v. Bynum, 117 N. C. 749, 23 S. E. 218.

Exclusive Jurisdiction in Superior Court.—The crime of larceny is a felony punishable in the state's Prison, and a recorder's court, not having jurisdiction thereof, may not make orders disposing of a juvenile "delinquent" under the statute providing for reclamation of such, whether the offense is committed therein or not. State v. Newell, 172 N. C. 933, 934, 87 S. E. 594.

The property is within the exclusive jurisdiction of the Superior Court, as punishment under this section is for 4 months to 5 years. State v. Brown, 150 N. C. 867, 64 S. E. 775.

Burglary.—A person who burglariously breaks and enters a dwelling at nighttime while the same is occupied is guilty of burglary in the first degree, and the fact that the value of goods stolen from the dwelling is less than $30 is no defense to the capital charge. This section dividing larceny into two degrees having no application to burglary. State v. Richardson, 216 N. C. 409, 11 S. E. (2d) 539.

§ 14-73. Jurisdiction of the superior courts in cases of larceny and receiving stolen goods.—The superior courts shall have exclusive jurisdiction of the trial of all cases of the larceny of property, or the receiving of stolen goods knowing them to be stolen, of the value of more than fifty dollars. (1913, c. 118, s. 2; 1941, c. 178, s. 2; C. S. 4522.)

Editor's Note.—The 1941 amendment substituted "fifty dollars" for "twenty dollars."

§ 14-74. Larceny by servants and other employees.—If any servant or other employee, to whom any money, goods or other chattels, or any of the articles, securities or choses in action mentioned in the following section, by his master shall be delivered safely to be kept to the use of his master, shall withdraw himself from his master and go away with such money, goods or other chattels, or any of the articles, securities or choses in action mentioned as aforesaid, or any part thereof, with intent to steal the same and defraud his master thereof, contrary to the trust and confidence in him reposed by his said master; or if any servant, being in the service of his master, without the consent of his master, shall embezzle such money, goods or other chattels, or any of the articles, securities or choses in action mentioned as aforesaid, or any part thereof, or otherwise convert the same to his own use, with like purpose to steal them, or to defraud his master thereof, the servant so offending shall be fined or imprisoned in the state prison or county jail not less than four months nor more than ten years, at the discretion of the court: Provided, that nothing contained in this section shall extend to apprentices or servants within the age of sixteen years. (Rev., s. 3499; Code, s. 1065; R. C. c. 34, s. 18; 21 Hen. VIII, c. 7, ss. 1; 2; C. S. 4523.)

Cross Reference.—As to embezzlement, see 14-90 et seq.

Servant Defined. — In a strict sense all employees are servants of their superiors. Wherever an employee has the right to claim that the things committed to his care are articles owned by his master, he is a servant. State v. Higgins, 1 N. C. 119, 120, 3 S. E. 637. Servants of any degree and in the same manner as it would have been if the offender had feloniously stolen, or taken by robbery, money, goods or property of any value, and the offender for every such offense shall suffer the same punishment and be subject to the same pains, penalties and disabilities as he should or might have suffered if he had feloniously stolen or taken by robbery, money, goods or other property of value. (Rev., s. 3498; Code, s. 1064; R. C. c. 34, s. 20; 1811, c. 814, s. 1; C. S. 4324.)

Cross Reference.—As to description of stolen money in indictment, see § 15-149.

Treasury Notes.—Treasury notes issued by the United States Treasury Department are covered by this statute as they are "public securities." Although a class of securities issued after the enactment of the statute they are subject to larceny the same as any other note issued after the enactment. State v. Thompson, 71 N. C. 146. While a "due-bill" is not a promissory note, and negotiable by endorsement, it is within the meaning of the words, "or other obligation," in this section. The larceny of a due-bill is indictable. State v. Campbell, 103 N. C. 344, 9 S. E. 410.

A pension check on the United States treasury comes under this section. State v. Bishop, 98 N. C. 773, 4 S. E. 357.

§ 14-75. Larceny of choses in action.—If any person, agent, or other person, or of any corporation (notwithstanding any of the said particulars may be termed in law a chose in action), such felonious stealing, taking and carrying away, or taking by robbery, shall be a felony of the same nature and degree and in the same manner as it would have been if the offender had feloniously stolen, or taken by robbery, money, goods or property of any value, and the offender for every such offense shall suffer the same punishment and be subject to the same pains, penalties and disabilities as he should or might have suffered if he had feloniously stolen or taken by robbery, money, goods or other property of value. (Rev., s. 3498; Code, s. 1064; R. C. c. 34, s. 20; 1811, c. 814, s. 1; C. S. 4324.)

A pension check on the United States treasury comes under this section. State v. Bishop, 98 N. C. 773, 4 S. E. 357.

Larceny of the Instrument and Paper Distinguished.—When a person is indicted for stealing a promissory note or any other chose in action, it is upon the state to prove the larceny of the instrument, and proof of larceny of a piece of paper is not sufficient. If the instrument has been paid before the alleged felonious taking, the indictment charging only larceny of a chose in action is not sufficient to convict. State v. Campbell, 103 N. C. 344, 9 S. E. 410.

§ 14-76. Larceny, mutilation, or destruction of public records and papers.—If any person shall steal, or for any fraudulent purpose shall take from its place of deposit for the time being, or from any person having the lawful custody thereof, or shall unlawfully and maliciously obliterate, injure or destroy any record, writ, return, panel, process, interrogatory, deposition, affidavit, rule, order or warrant of attorney or any original document whatsoever, or of belonging to any court of record, or relating to any matter, civil or criminal, begun, pending or terminated in any such court, or any bill, answer, interrogatory, deposition, affidavit, order or decree or any original document whatsoever, of or belonging to any court or relating to any cause or matter begun, pending or terminated in any such court, every such offender shall be guilty of a misdemeanor; and in any indictment or such offense it shall § 14-75. Larceny of chose in action.—If any person shall feloniously steal, take and carry away, or take by robbery, any bank-note, check or other order for the payment of money issued by or drawn on any bank or other society or corporation within this state or within any of the United States, or any treasury warrant, dehenture, certificate of stock or other public security, or certificate of stock in any corporation, or any order, bill of exchange, bond, promissory note or other obligation, either for the payment of money or for it shall not be necessary to allege that the article, in respect to which the offense is committed, is the property of any person or that the same is of any value. If any person shall steal or feloniously take and carry away, or shall aid in taking and carrying off or being engaged in carrying away, any ginseng growing upon the property of the owner of the premises, or keeping or care, such person shall, if the act be done with felonious intent, be guilty of larceny, and punished as for that offense; and if not done with such intent, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Rev., s. 3511; Code, s. 1070; 2508; Code, s. 1070; 157 N. C. 602, 72 S. E. 994.

Nomenclature does not always determine the grade or class of a crime; a felony is a crime which is or may be punishable either by death or by imprisonment in the State prison and any other crime is a misdemeanor. Calling an offense a misdemeanor does not make it so when the punishment imposed makes it a felony and construed with § 14-3 the offense prescribed by this section is punishable by imprisonment in the penitentiary, and therefore a felony. State v. Harwood, 206 N. C. 87, 89, 173 S. E. 25.

State v. Wood, 175 Co. S, 4255, In General.—An indictment will lie under this section for changing, injuring or obliterating tax books, and the testimony of the register of deeds is competent to show the amount of the abstract made by him and sent to the auditor, the changed amount, and the acts of the deputy sheriff, as circuit clerk, show his guilt. State v. Gouge, 157 N. C. 602, 173 S. E. 285.

State v. Wood, 175 Co. S, 4255, In General.—An indictment will lie under this section for changing, injuring or obliterating tax books, and the testimony of the register of deeds is competent to show the amount of the abstract made by him and sent to the auditor, the changed amount, and the acts of the deputy sheriff, as circuit clerk, show his guilt. State v. Gouge, 157 N. C. 602, 173 S. E. 285.

To render such evidence competent, the indictment should be so worded as to show that the State is to show that the offense was committed on the day the defendant had an opportunity to commit the offense, and a margin of several weeks, in which the offense might have been committed, during which time the books were open to the public generally, is insufficient evidence to be submitted to the jury, and defendant's motion as of nonsuit should have been allowed. State v. Swinson, 196 N. C. 100, 144 S. E. 555.

§ 14-77. Larceny, concealment or destruction of wills.—If any person, either during the life of the testator or after his death, shall steal or, for any fraudulent purpose, shall destroy or conceal any will, codicil or other testamentary instrument, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Rev., s. 3510; Code, s. 1072; R. C., s. 34, s. 32; C. S. 4256.)

§ 14-78. Larceny of ginseng.—If any person shall take and carry away, or shall aid in taking or carrying away, or any ginseng growing upon the lands of another person, with intent to steal the same, he shall be guilty of a felony, and shall be imprisoned not less than two years nor more than five years, in the discretion of the court: Provided that such ginseng, at the time the same is taken, shall be in beds and the land upon which such beds are located shall be surrounded by a lawful fence. (Rev., s. 3502; 1905, c. 211; C. S. 4258.)

§ 14-78. Larceny of ungathered crops.—If any person shall steal or feloniously take and carry away, or any cotton, tobacco, potatoes, peanuts, pulse, fruit, vegetable or other product cultivated for food or market, growing, standing or remaining ungathered in any field or ground, he shall be guilty of larceny, and shall be punished accordingly. (Rev., s. 3503; Code, s. 1069; 1811, c. 816; R. C., c. 34, s. 21; 1868-9, c. 231; C. S. 4257.)

At Common Law.—"By the common law, larceny can not be committed of things which savor of the reality, and are at the time they are taken a part of the freehold, such as corn and the produce of land. 2 Russell Crimes, 136; State v. Wood, 157 N. C. 195, 123 S. E. 25.

§ 14-79. Larceny of wood and other property from land.—If any person, not being the present owner or bona fide claimant thereof, shall willfully and unlawfully enter upon the lands of another, carrying off or being engaged in carrying off any wood or other kind of property whatsoever, growing or being thereon, the same being the property of the owner of the premises, or under his control, keeping or care, such person shall, if the act be done with felonious intent, be guilty of larceny, and punished as for that offense; and if not done with such intent, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Rev., s. 3511; Code, s. 1070; 1866, c. 60; C. S. 4259.)

General.—Larceny in the third and fourth sections of 14-154 were enacted immediately after the Civil War to protect land owners from aimless wanderers who entered land without force, but often did great damage. It was not intended to prevent entry by persons who had a honest claim to the land, nor was it intended to apply when force was employed. State v. Crawford, 103 N. C. 353, 5 S. E. 409. It was intended to prevent the unlawful, and unlawful taking from the land of another property that was not brought within the scope of a prior statute subject to larceny. State v. Vosburg, 111 N. C. 718, 720, 16 S. E. 392.

The word "whatsoever" shows a clear intent of the Legislature to make it general in its application. The taking of a brass rail from around an engine that is stationary is larceny under this section. The rule in State v. Burt, 64 N. C. 619 in holding that taking a loose nugget of gold from a loose pile of stone is not larceny is not approved. It, although decided after this section was enacted, [ 643 ] was probably decided under the common law as this section is not mentioned by the Court in any probability was not called to its attention. State v. Beck, 141 N. C. 625, 53 S. E. 843. There is no evidence of the Grand Jury or of the House of Congress, it is held that an indictment for trespass to personal property cannot be supported for the taking of rails from a fence as the taking is "one continuous act" and is trespass to the realty. State v. Burt, 119 N. C. 861, 26 S. E. 467.

In the case of State v. Boyce, 109 N. C. 739, 14 S. E. 98, it is held that a tenant of seven acres being a part of a tract of thirty five acres claimed by the landlord, when expressly prohibited from cutting timber on any part of the tract except the seven acres on which he is a tenant, may as the servant of a third person claiming adversely go on the other part of the tract and cut timber, and he will not be estopped to deny his landlord's title except as to the seven acres less than to him, nor will he be liable under this section if the person whose servant he has been can prove his title or bona fide claim. Davis, J., and Avery, J., dissent.

Purpose of Section.—This section was enacted to eliminate a defect in the common law rule and to extend it so as to make chattels real, such as growing trees, plants, minerals, metals and fences, connected in some way with the land to which they belong, and so express that every act was to prevent the willful and unlawful entry upon the land of another and the taking and carrying away of such articles as were not, at common law or by previous statute, property as was not, at common law, subject to larceny. State v. Moore, 33 N. C. 70, cited in note in 49 L. R. A., 11, N. S. 5, 11 S. E. 426, 48 S. E. 445.

Trespass upon land is an essential element of the offense hereby created. State v. Jackson, 218 N. C. 373, 11 S. E. (2d) 149.

Claim of Interest Must Be Founded.—An entry, without a survey and grant from the state is not sufficient to support a claim to the land, and is no defense to an indictment under this section. State v. Moore, 119 N. C. 739, 26 S. E. 455.

Tombstones.—Defendant was charged with feloniously stealing and carrying away one tombstone erected at the grave of a deceased person, being the goods and chattels of another person. The jury found that the offense charged was larceny, which is the wrongful and felonious taking and carrying away of personal property of another with intent to deprive the owner of the same. Held: Neither the indictment nor the theory of trial refer to trespass constituting an element of the statutory crime or larceny of chattels real, nor to the distinction of taking with and without fraudulent intent as set forth in this section, and there is a fatal variance between the indictment for common law larceny and the proof of the statutory larceny of a chattel real, and defendant's motion to nontest may not be granted. State v. Jackson, 218 N. C. 373, 11 S. E. (2d) 149.

Quære: As § 14-84, and cognate statutes relate expressly to tombstones, graveyards and graves, does this not exclude such property from the provisions of this section?

§ 14-81. Larceny of horses and mules.—If any person shall steal any horse, mare, gelding or mule, he shall suffer imprisonment at hard labor for not less than one nor more than twenty years, at the discretion of the court. A count under this section may be joined in a bill of indictment with a count under section 14-82. (Rev., s. 3505; Code, s. 1066; 1868, c. 37, s. 1; 1879, c. 234, s. 2; 1866-7, c. 62; 1917, c. 103, s. 2; C. S. 4260.)

Taking with Belief of Interest.—One taking a mule from the stable of another at night and without the consent of the owner is not guilty of larceny if he believed at the time when he took the mule that he had an interest in it. State v. Thompson, 95 N. C. 596.

Same—Question for a Jury.—One who takes a mule from the stable of another in a manner indicating felonious purpose but under a claim of interest should have the question of his act being under a bona fide claim submitted to the jury, and a charge that if the taking was not under a bona fide belief that he had a property or interest in the mule he would be guilty of larceny was not error. State v. Thompson, 95 N. C. 596.

§ 14-82. Taking horses or mules for temporary purposes.—If any person shall unlawfully take and carry away any horse, gelding, mare or mule, the property of another person, secretly and without the will of the owner of such property, with intent to deprive the owner of the temporary use of the same, or with the intent to use such property for a special or temporary purpose, the person so offending shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be fined or imprisoned, or both fined and imprisoned, in the discretion of the court. (Rev., s. 3509; Code, s. 1067; 1879, c. 234, s. 1; 1913, c. 11; C. S. 4261.)

Indictment.—An indictment for stealing the temporary use of a horse in violation of this section is not defective because it charges the stealing of the temporary use of a horse. State v. Darden, 177 N. C. 699, 98 S. E. 467.

Employee Liable.—An occasional employee, who took the employer's mule at night and drove it off without the knowledge or consent of the employer, was guilty of a tortious conversion, and an act indictable under this section; and where the mule died in his possession he was liable for its value, at least in the absence of any evidence in support of his claim that the death was accidental. Clark v. Whitehurst, 171 N. C. 1, 86 S. E. 78.

§ 14-83: Repealed by Session Laws 1943, c. 543.

§ 14-84. Larceny of taxed dogs misdemeanor.—The larceny of any dog upon which the license tax provided in article two of the chapter entitled "Dogs has been paid shall be a misdemeanor. (1919, c. 116, s. 9; C. S. 4263.)

Cross Reference.—See also, §§ 67-15 and 67-27.

§ 14-85. Pursuing or injuring livestock with intent to steal.—If any person shall pursue, kill or wound any horse, mule, ass, jennet, cattle, hog, sheep or goat, the property of another, with the intent unlawfully and feloniously to convert the same to his own use, he shall be guilty of a felony, and shall be punishable, in all respects, as if convicted of larceny, though such animal may not have come into the actual possession of the person so offending. (Rev., s. 3504; Code, s. 1068; 1866, c. 57; C. S. 4264.)

Sufficiency of Indictment.—An indictment under this section for injury to livestock, in which the animal alleged to have been injured is described as a "certain cattle beast," is sufficiently definite. State v. Credle, 91 N. C. 640.

§ 14-86. Destruction or taking of soft drink bottles.—It shall be unlawful for any person, firm or corporation, or any employee thereof, to maliciously take up, carry away, destroy or in any way dispose of bottles or other property belonging to any bottler, bottling company, person, firm or corporation engaged in the business of bottling and/or distributing in bottles or other closed containers soda water, coca-cola, pepsi-cola, cheri-wine, chero-cola, grape soda, grape and other fruit juices or imitations thereof, carbonated or malted beverages and like preparations commonly known as soft drinks. Any person violating any of the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be fined or imprisoned in the discretion of the court. (1937, c. 322, ss. 1, 2.)

Cross Reference.—As to pollution of soft drink bottles, see § 14-288.

Art. 17. Robbery.

§ 14-87. Robbery with firearms or other dangerous weapons.—Any person or persons who, having in possession or with the use or threatened use of any firearms or other dangerous weapon, implement or means, whereby the life of a person is endangered or threatened, unlawfully takes or attempts to take personal property from another, from any place of business, residence or banking institution, or any other place where there is a person or persons in attendance, at any time, either day or night, or who aids or abets any such person or persons in the commission of such crime, shall be guilty of a felony and upon conviction thereof shall be punished by imprisonment for not less than five nor more than thirty years. (1929, c. 187, s. 1.)

Possession Necessary.—The purpose and intent of this section is to provide for more severe punishment for the commission of robbery with firearms, and other specified weapons, than is prescribed for common law robbery, and construing the title and context of the statute together to ascertain the legislative intent, it is held that possession of firearms or other of the specified weapons is necessary to constitute the offense of "robbery with firearms" under this section, and it is reversible error for the court to refuse to so instruct the jury in accordance with defendants' prayers for special instructions upon evidence tending to show that defendants sought to make their victim believe they had firearms, and threatened to use same, but that they actually carried no weapon. State v. Keller, 214 N. C. 447, 199 S. E. 839.

Where an indictment charged defendants with robbery with firearms from the companion of the person they were formerly charged with killing, the two offenses having been committed in the same time, and evidence of guilt of one of the offenses being substantially the same as the evidence of guilt of the other, the acquittal or conviction for one of them precludes a conviction for the other. State v. Dills, 210 N. C. 178, 185 S. E. 267, distinguishing State v. Clemmons, 207 N. C. 276, 176 S. E. 760.

§ 14-88. Train robbery.—If any person shall enter upon any locomotive engine or car on any railroad in this state, and by threats, the exhibition of deadly weapons or the discharge of any pistol or gun, in or near any such engine or car, shall induce or compel any person on such engine or car to submit and deliver up, or allow to be taken therefrom, or from him, anything of value, he shall be guilty of train robbery, and on conviction thereof shall be punished by imprisonment in the state's prison for not less than ten years nor more than twenty years. (Rev., s. 3766; 1895, c. 204, s. 2; C. S. 4266.)

§ 14-89. Attempted train robbery.—If any person shall stop, or cause to be stopped, or impede, or cause to be impeded, or conspire with others for that purpose, any locomotive engine or car on any railroad in this state, by intimidation of those in charge thereof or by force, threats or otherwise, for the purpose of taking therefrom or causing to be delivered up to such person so forcing, threatening or intimidating, anything of value, to be appropriated to his own use, he shall be guilty of attempting train robbery, and, on conviction thereof, shall be punished by confinement in the state's prison for not less than two years nor more than twenty years. (Rev., s. 3766; 1895, c. 204, s. 1; C. S. 4267.)

Art. 18. Embezzlement.

§ 14-80. Embezzlement of property received by virtue of office or employment.—If any person exercising a public trust or holding a public office, or any guardian, administrator, executor, trustee, or any receiver, or any other fiduciary, or any officer or agent of a corporation, or any agent, consignee, clerk, bailee or servant, except persons under the age of sixteen years, of any person, shall embezzle or fraudulently or knowingly and willfully misappropriate or convert to his own use, or shall take, make way with or secrete, with intent to embezzle or fraudulently or knowingly and willfully misappropriate or convert to his own use, any money, goods or other chattels, bank note, check or order for the payment of money issued by or drawn on any bank or other corporation, or any treasury warrant, treasury note, bond or obligation for the payment of money issued by the United States or by any state, or any other valuable security whatsoever belonging to any other person or corporation, which shall have come into his possession or under his care, he shall be guilty of a felony, and shall be punished as in cases of larceny. (Rev., s. 3406; Code, s. 1014; 21 Hen. VII, c. 7; 1871-2, c. 145, s. 2; 1889, c. 228; 1891, c. 188; 1897, c. 31; 1910, c. 97, s. 25; 1931, c. 158; 1939, c. 1; 1941, c. 31; C. S. 4288.)

Cross References.—As to larceny by servants or other employees, see § 18-174. As to embezzlement by a member of the state sinking fund commission, see § 14-254. As to embezzlement of funds of a bank by its officers, see § 53-129. As to embezzlement by a member of the state sinking fund commission, see § 14-254. As to description in indictment for embezzlement, see § 15-150.

Editor's Note.—The Act of 1931 amended this section so as to add the offenses of persons who may be guilty of embezzlement. Section 14-92 applies to embezzlement by trustees of public bodies and institutions. The addition was probably necessary because of the last fact that embezzlement is wholly a statutory crime. 9 N. C. Law Rev. 396.

The 1939 amendment inserted the word "trustee" in the third line the words "or any receiver, or any other fiduciary," and was enacted to meet the decision in State v. Whitehurst, 212 N. C. 300, 193 S. E. 657, 113 A. L. R. 740. See 17 N. C. Law Rev. 348.

The 1941 amendment makes this section applicable to bailiffs. For comment, see 19 N. C. Law Rev. 478.

Origin and Purpose.—Embezzlement was not a common-law offense. State v. Hill, 91 N. C. 501. It was first made a criminal offense in England by statute, 21 Henry VIII, ch. 7, to punish the appropriation by servants of the property of their masters in violation of the trust and confidence reposed on them. 1 McLain Cr. Law, § 611. It was enacted in consequence of frauds and deceits. It was enacted because money had been embezzled by a banker's clerk, who received money from a customer and appropriated it to his own use, could not be convicted of larceny on the ground that the money had never been in the employer's possession. Clark's Cr. Law, p. 398. State v. McDonald, 133 N. C. 680, 683, 48 S. E. 582.

Compared with Section 14-254.—The use of the word "ab-"stracts" in section 14-254 is the same as the use of the word "embezzlement" in this section. The latter applies to embezzlement and excepts offenders under sixteen years of age. It is not necessary under section 14-254 to allege that the defendant is more than sixteen years old. State v. Switzer, 157 N. C. 88, 121 S. E. 143.

Cannot Be Extended by Construction.—This section is a
The fact that ch. 31, Public Laws 1941, amended this section, by adding ‘bailee’ to the classes of persons specified constitutes a legislative declaration that a bailee was not included in the definition of classes of persons made by the statute. Id.

The mere converting or appropriating the property of another to his own use, or corruptly using or misappropriating the property of another for purposes other than that for which it is held, is sufficient to constitute the crime of embezzlement, fraudulent intent in the act of such conversion or appropriation being an essential element of the offense. State v. Cohoon, 206 N. C. 386, 174 S. E. 91. For this reason the necessary and sufficient elements of the offense of embezzlement and the State must prove such intent beyond a reasonable doubt; but direct proof is not necessary, if facts and circumstances are shown from which it may be reasonably inferred. State v. McLean, 209 N. C. 38, 182 S. E. 707.

Meaning of Fraudulent Intent.—Fraudulent intent within the meaning of this section is the intent to willfully or corruptly use or misappropriate the property of another for purposes other than that for which it is held, and evidence tending to show that defendant, without authorization, applied funds of his employer to his personal use, although defendant testified that he used the funds to pay a debt due him by his employer, is sufficient to be submitted to the jury on the question of fraudulent intent. State v. McLean, 209 N. C. 38, 182 S. E. 707; State v. Howard, 222 N. C. 291, 22 S. E. (2d) 917.

Conversion Not Necessary.—To embezzle is for an agent fraudulently to misappropriate the property of his principal; it is not necessary that the agent have possession or control, but it is to his own use, that is, expend the money for his own benefit. State v. Poult, 114 N. C. 842, 843, 19 S. E. 276.

Necessity of Demand for Payment.—In the absence of conversion, it is not necessary to support a prosecution under this section as it is not made a prerequisite to prosecution. State v. Blackley, 138 N. C. 620, 50 S. E. 310.

Property Alleged to Have Been Embezzled Must Be Property of the Prosecutor. — The property alleged to have been embezzled must be the property of the prosecutor. State v. Barton, 125 N. C. 702, 34 S. E. 533.

Goods Received under Special Directions.—Where goods consisted of a comparatively small quantity of the ordinary course of his employment, but in pursuance of special directions from the master to receive them, and the servant embezzle the same, he is indiscernible under this section. State v. Cotin, 89 N. C. 511.

Intent to Repay No Defense.—An intent to restore the property embezzled or a readiness and willingness at a latter date is not a defense to a prosecution under this section. State v. Stewart, 141 N. C. 841, 53 S. E. 856.

To Whom Section Applies. — A contractor is not an officer or agent or employee of the State, or other person having or holding in trust for the principal only, and accordingly receiv- ing the price, he intentionally and wrongfully converted the price, he intentionally and wrongfully converted the property to his use, it is sufficient to constitute the crime of embezzlement under this section and to sustain a verdict of guilty. State v. Eubanks, 194 N. C. 319, 139 S. E. 451.

Accusation of Embezzlement Actionable Per Se in Slander. — The offense of embezzlement is a felony, and a false accusation thereof is slander, actionable per se, and malice is presumed. Eimore v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 189 N. C. 658, 127 S. E. 710.

It is unnecessary to determine whether an indictment could be sustained under other of the cognate statutes, §§ 14-91 to 14-99, where an indictment of a bank receiver for an embezzlement under this section, when the evidence tends only to show that the property charged to have been embezzled had been committed to the care of defendant, nor that any breach of confidence or duty thereunto had been committed by defendant. State v. Lanier, 89 N. C. 517, 88 N. C. 658. And it need not be alleged or shown in the indictment that defendant is neither an apprentice nor under the age of sixteen years, or that the latter date is not a defense to a prosecution under this section, when the evidence tends only to show that defendant is under age is on the defendant and the State v. Connelly, 104 N. C. 794, 10 S. E. 469.

The crime of embezzlement rests upon statute penalty, creating a new offense, and cannot be ex- tended by construction to persons not within the classes designated. State v. Eurell, 220 N. C. 519, 17 S. E. (2d) 62.

The word ‘property’ is sufficiently all inclusive to embrace money, goods, chattels, evidences of debt and things in action. State v. Ward, 222 N. C. 316, 22 S. E. (2d) 922.

The word ‘property’ constitutes a necessary element of the offense of embezzlement. To embezzle is charged in the indictment and the intent to embezzle or otherwise willfully and corruptly use or misappropriate the property of the principal or employer for purposes other than those for which the property is held, as in this case, to sustain a verdict of guilty, and be fined, except to the amount of ten thousand dollars, or imprisoned, except for a term of not less than twenty years, or both, at the discretion of the court. (Rev. s. 2407; Code, s. 1015; 1874-5, c. 52; C. S. 4260.)
§ 14-92. Embezzlement of funds by public officers and trustees.—If any officer, agent, or employee of any city, county, or incorporated town, or of any penal, charitable, religious or educational institution; or if any person having or holding any moneys or property in trust for any city, county, incorporated town, penal, charitable, religious or educational institution, shall embezzle or otherwise willfully and corruptly use or misapply the same for any purpose other than that for which such moneys or property is held, such person shall be guilty of a felony, and shall be fined and imprisoned in the state's prison in the discretion of the court. If any clerk or deputy clerk of the superior court, any sheriff, treasurer, register of deeds or other public officer of any county or town of the state shall embezzle or wrongfully convert to his own use, or corruptly use or shall misapply for any purpose other than that for which the same are held, or shall fail to pay over and deliver to the proper persons entitled to receive the same when lawfully required so to do, any moneys, funds, securities or other property which such officer shall have received by virtue or color of his office in trust for any person or corporation, such officer shall be guilty of a felony. The provisions of this section shall apply to all persons who shall go out of office and fail or neglect to account to or deliver over to their successors in office or other persons lawfully entitled to receive the same all such moneys, funds and the securities or property aforesaid. The punishment shall be imprisonment in the state's prison or county jail, or fine in the discretion of the court. (Rev., s. 3408; Code, s. 1016; 1891, c. 241; 1876-7, c. 47; C. S. 4270.)

Compared with Section 14-231.—Under section 14-231 failure by an officer to pay over money coming into his hands is a misdemeanor. That section is very broad and seems to cover every case of failure by an officer to pay to the proper person funds coming into his hands. By this section the offence is declared a felony. An officer indicted for failure to pay to proper persons funds coming into his hands should be allowed the privilege of having the facts submitted to the jury. (Cited in State v. Conolly, 104 N. C. 794, 49 S. E. 469.)

Meaning of "Wilfully and Corruptly."—In a charge upon the trial of county officials for the misapplication of county funds under the provisions of this section, the definition "wilfully and corruptly" meant with "bad faith and without regard to the rights of others and in the interest of such parties for whom the funds were held" is not erroneous under the circumstances of this case. State v. Shipman, 102 N. C. 518, 103 S. E. 657.

 Applies Only to Public Funds.—This section does not embrace the unlawful appropriation of the property of private individuals. State v. Connelly, 104 N. C. 794, 49 S. E. 469.

Clerks of Courts.—In the case of State v. Connelly, 104 N. C. 794, 49 S. E. 469, it was held that this section was not applicable to clerks of the Superior Courts but by an amendment at the next session of the Legislature it was expressly made applicable to clerks of Superior Courts. State v. Windley, 178 N. C. 670, 672, 100 S. E. 116.

§ 14-93. Embezzlement by treasurers of charitable and religious organizations.—If any treasurer or other financial officer of any benevolent or religious society, congregation shall lend any of the moneys coming into his hands to any other person or association without the consent of the institution, association or congregation to whom such moneys belong; or, if he shall fail to account for such moneys when called on, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be punished by fine or imprisonment, or both, in the discretion of the court. (Rev., s. 3409; Code, s. 1017; 1879, c. 105; C. S. 4271.)

Two Offenses Created.—Under this section two offenses are created which apply to certain officers of benevolent or religious institutions. One offense is the lending their moneys without consent; the other is the failure to account for such moneys. State v. Dunn, 138 N. C. 672, 50 S. E. 772. Association for Members Solely.—An association organized for the benefit of its members solely is not a benevolent or religious association, and an indictment under this section cannot be sustained against an officer who misappropriates funds of the association. State v. Dunn, 134 N. C. 663, 46 S. E. 549.

§ 14-94. Embezzlement by officers of railroad companies.—If any president, secretary, treasurer, director, engineer, agent or other officer of any railroad company shall embezzle any moneys, bonds or other valuable funds or securities, with which such president, secretary, treasurer, director, engineer, agent or other officer shall be charged by virtue of his office or agency, or shall in any way, directly or indirectly, apply or appropriate the same for the use or benefit of himself or any other person, state or corporation, other than the company of which he is president, secretary, treasurer, director, engineer, agent or other officer, for every such offense the person so offending shall be guilty of a felony, and on conviction in the superior or criminal court of any county through which the railroad of such company shall pass, shall be imprisoned in the state's prison not less than three nor more than ten years, and fined not less than one thousand nor more than ten thousand dollars. (Rev., s. 3403; Code, s. 1018; 1870-1, c. 103, s. 1; C. S. 4272.)

§ 14-95. Conspiring with officers of railroad companies to embezzle.—If any person shall agree, combine, collude or conspire with the president, secretary, treasurer, director, engineer or agent of any railroad company to commit any offense specified in § 14-94, such person so offending shall be guilty of a felony, and on conviction in the superior or criminal court of a county through which the railroad of any company against which such offense may be perpetrated passes, shall be imprisoned in the state's prison for not less than three nor more than ten years, and fined not less than one thousand nor more than ten thousand dollars. (Rev., s. 3404; Code, s. 1019; 1870-1, c. 103, s. 2; C. S. 4273.)

§ 14-96. Embezzlement by insurance agents and brokers.—If any insurance agent or broker who acts in negotiating a contract of insurance by an insurance company, association or fraternal order of which he is an officer or employee, or any insurance company, association or society, fraudulently doing business in this state, embezzles or fraudulently converts to his own use, or, with intent to use or embezzle, takes, secretes or otherwise disposes of, or fraudulently withholds, appropriates, lends, invests or otherwise uses or applies any money or substitute for money received by him as such agent or broker, contrary to the instructions or without the consent of the company for or on account of which the same was received by him, he shall be deemed guilty of larceny. (Rev., s. 3489; 1889, c. 54, s. 103; 1911, c. 196, s. 8; C. S. 4274.)

§ 14-97. Appropriation of partnership funds by partner to personal use.—Any person engaged [467] in a partnership business in the state of North Carolina who shall, without the knowledge and consent of his copartner or copartners, take funds belonging to the partnership business and appropriate the same to his own personal use with the fraudulent intent of depriving his co-partners of the use thereof, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. Any person or persons violating the provisions of this section, upon conviction, shall be punished as is now done in cases of misdemeanor.

(1921, c. 129; C. S. 4974(a).)

Fraudulent intent is an essential element of this crime and must be proved by the State, and in a prosecution under this section an instruction that the jury should return a verdict of guilty if they found beyond a reasonable doubt the facts to show that the defendant intended to cheat the other person is error, the verdict of guilty if they found beyond a reasonable doubt the facts to show that the defendant intended to cheat another person is error.

State v. Rawls, 202 N. C. 977, 162 S. E. 899.

§ 14-98. Embezzlement by surviving partner.—If any surviving partner shall willfully and intentionally convert any of the property, money or effects belonging to the partnership to his own use, and refuse to account for the same on settlement, he shall be guilty of a felony, and upon conviction shall be punished by fine or imprisonment in the state’s prison in the discretion of the court. (Rev., s. 3405; 1901, c. 640, s. 9; C. S. 4275.)

§ 14-99. Embezzlement of taxes by officers.—If any officer appropriates to his own use the state, county, school, city or town taxes, he shall be guilty of embezzlement, and may be punished by fine or imprisonment in the state’s prison not exceeding five years, at the discretion of the court. (Rev., s. 3410; Code, s. 3705; 1853, c. 138, s. 49; C. S. 4276.)

Whether Felony or Misdemeanor.—As this section is silent as to whether or not the offense set out is a felony or a misdemeanor it will be construed as a misdemeanor as an offense will never be made a felony by construction of any doubtful or ambiguous words in the statute. State v. Hill, 91 N. C. 561. But see section 14-1, as that seems to change the construction as given in this case and make all offenses punishable by imprisonment felonies.—Ed. Note. Inference of Fraudulent Intent.—While the intent to commit fraud or steal by means of any forged or false token, or other false pretense whatso-

§ 14-100. Obtaining property by false pretenses and other false pretenses.—If any person shall knowingly and designedly, by means of any forged or counterfeited paper, in writing or in print, or by any false token, or other false pretense whatsoever, obtain from any person or corporation within the state any money, goods, property or other thing of value, or any bank-note, check or order for the payment of money, issued by, or drawn on, any bank or other society or corporation within this state or any of the United States, or any treasury warrant, treasury check, order for the payment of stock or public security, or any order, bill of exchange, promissory note or other obligation, either for the payment of money or for the delivery of specific articles, with intent to cheat or defraud any person or corporation of the same, such person shall be guilty of a felony, and shall be imprisoned in the state’s prison not less than four months nor more than ten years, or fined, in the discretion of the court: Provided, that if, on the trial of any one indicted for such crime, it shall be proved that he obtained the property in such manner as to amount to larceny, he shall not, by reason thereof, be entitled to be acquitted of the felony; and no person tried for such felony shall be liable to be afterwards prosecuted for larceny upon the same facts: Provided further, that it shall be sufficient in any indictment for obtaining or attempting to obtain any such property by false pretenses to allege that the party accused did the act with intent to defraud, without alleging an intent to defraud any particular person, and without alleging any ownership of the chattel, money or valuable security; and, on the trial of any such indictment, it shall not be necessary to prove an intent to defraud any particular person, but it shall be sufficient to prove that the party accused did the act charged with an intent to defraud. (Rev., s. 3432; Code, s. 10253; R. C., c. 34, s. 67; 1811, c. 814, s. 2; 33 Hen. VIII, c. 1, ss. 1, 2; 30 Geo. II, c. 24, s. 1; C. S. 4277.)

Cross Reference.—As to alleging intent in the indictment, see § 14-151.

Origin of Section. — This section was derived from the English Statutes, 33 Hen VIII, and 30 George II. State v. Yarboro, 194 N. C. 498, 140 S. E. 216.

Elements of the Crime.—To constitute the crime of false pretense, a mistake, a pretense, a false pretense, a mere promise of opinion is not sufficient. It must be a (1) representation of a subsisting fact, whether in writing or in words or in acts; (2) which is calculated to deceive and intended to deceive, and (3) which does in fact deceive (4) by which one man obtains value from another without compensation. State v. Simpson, 10 N. C. 621; State v. Roberts, 151 N. C. 593, 601, 62 S. E. 747; State v. Yarboro, 194 N. C. 498, 140 S. E. 216; State v. Howley, 220 N. C. 113, 16 S. E. (2d) 705.

The constituent elements of the offense of false pretense are: (1) that the representation was made as alleged; (2) that property or something of value was obtained by reason of the representation; (3) that the representation was false; (4) that it was made with intent to defraud; (5) that it was done with intent to defraud the party to whom it was made. State v. Carlson, 171 N. C. 818, 89 S. E. 30; State v. Johnson, 195 N. C. 506, 507, 142 S. E. 453.

Same—Subsisting Fact.—It is settled that a promise is not a pretense. No matter what the form, or however false the promise to do something in the future, it will not come within the statute. There must be an existing subsisting fact. State v. Phifer, 65 N. C. 321, 324; State v. Knott, 124 N. C. 814, 32 S. E. 796.

Same—Whether in Writing or Words.—It was held formerly that some false writing or token was necessary to constitute the offense. See State v. Simpson, 10 N. C. 620. This case was overruled in State v. Phifer, 65 N. C. 321, 324, where it is held that a naked lie meeting the other require-

Same—Intent to Deceive.—The intent to cheat and defraud the prosecutor is an essential ingredient in the crime of false pretense. State v. Blue, 84 N. C. 807; State v. Oakley, 103 N. C. 408, 9 S. E. 575. In the absence of such definite finding, the uniform practice is to grant a new trial. State v. McClung, 151 N. C. 730, 731, 66 S. E. 568.

Same—Actual Deceit.—Another of the constituent elements is that the party to whom the false representation was made was deceived by it. State v. Whedbee, 152 N. C. 770, 67 S. E. 60. In other words, he is so deceived it matters not whether he parted with goods or money or not, or for a charitable purpose. State v. Matthews, 91 N. C. 635.

Caveat Emptor.—The doctrine of caveat emptor, "let the buyer beware," does not apply to actual fraud or obtaining property by false representation. By this doctrine the pur-
Passing Counterfeit Money.—Where a person buys goods from another and the change given back by the seller is counterfeit an indictment under this section cannot be had, for there is no false representation or misstatement, nor intent to defraud before the defendant received the money. State v. Allred, 84 N. C. 749.

Representation to Agent of Owner of Goods.—It is not necessary that the representations made to his agent be true, if the owner of the goods directly, but it is sufficient if they were made to his agent. State v. Taylor, 131 N. C. 711, 42 S. E. 537.

Corporations LIABLE.—"In State v. Rowland Lumber Co., 153 N. C. 610, 612, 69 S. E. 58, it was said: 'The first ground, that corporations cannot be convicted of an offense where the intent is an ingredient, is no longer tenable. They are as liable in such cases as individuals. They are liable for libel, assaults and battery, etc. Corporate existence can be shown, though not charged in the bill. State v. Shaw, 92 N. C. 768.' This is fully sustained by all the late authorities. State v. Salisbury Ice etc., Co., 166 N. C. 366, 367, 81 S. E. 737.

The Indictment.—The indictment must allege all of the essential elements of the offense. State v. Claudius, 164 N. C. 521, 526, 80 S. E. 261.

The indictment must show a causal connection between the false representation and the parting with the property. State v. Whedbee, 152 N. C. 770, 774, 67 S. E. 60) but "no particular form of words is necessary; an allegation that "by means of the false pretense" or "rellying on the false pretense," or the like, is sufficient, where it is apparent that the offense was the natural result of the false representation alleged. 19 Cyc. 430." State v. Claudius, 164 N. C. 521, 525, 80 S. E. 261.

The charge to the persons intended to be cheated is surplusage and immaterial and all that is necessary is a charge of intent. State v. Ridge, 125 N. C. 655, 658, 34 S. E. 439; State v. Salisbury Ice etc., Co., 166 N. C. 366, 367, 81 S. E. 737.

Necessity of Averring Property Obtained.—The indictment must describe the thing alleged to have been thereby obtained with reasonable certainty, and by the same name usually employed to describe it; and where the indictment charges obtaining money by a false pretense, and the State's evidence tends only to show that the defendant had obtained money in that manner, the averment that the property is money is sufficient, but no averment of the value of the property obtained is necessary. State v. Gillepsie, 80 N. C. 356. And where the allegation is that money was obtained and the proof is that property was obtained but the defendant made no exception, there is no ground for reversal. State v. Ashford, 120 N. C. 588, 26 S. E. 915. Nonsuit is the proper method of raising the question of variance. State v. Gibson, 169 N. C. 318, 85 S. E. 7. No averment of the value of the property obtained is necessary. State v. Gillepsie, 80 N. C. 356. And where the allegation is that money was obtained and the proof is that property was obtained but the defendant made no exception, there is no ground for reversal. State v. Ashford, 120 N. C. 588, 26 S. E. 915. Nonsuit is the proper method of raising the question of variance. State v. Gibson, 169 N. C. 318, 85 S. E. 7.

§ 14-101. Obtaining signatures or property by false pretenses.—If any person, with intent to defraud or cheat another, shall designedly, by color of any false token or writing, or by any other false pretense, obtain the signature of any person to any written instrument, the false making of which is necessary that the false representations be made to the prosecutor had ample opportunity to inspect them and had been urged to do so by the defendant. State v. Corey, 199 N. C. 499, 223 S. E. 923.

Passing Counterfeit Money.—Where a person buys goods from another and the change given back by the seller is counterfeit an indictment under this section cannot be had, for there is no false representation or misstatement, nor intent to defraud before the defendant received the money. State v. Allred, 84 N. C. 749.

Representation to Agent of Owner of Goods.—It is not necessary that the representations made to his agent be true, if the owner of the goods directly, but it is sufficient if they were made to his agent. State v. Taylor, 131 N. C. 711, 42 S. E. 537.

Corporations LIABLE.—"In State v. Rowland Lumber Co., 153 N. C. 610, 612, 69 S. E. 58, it was said: 'The first ground, that corporations cannot be convicted of an offense where the intent is an ingredient, is no longer tenable. They are as liable in such cases as individuals. They are liable for libel, assaults and battery, etc. Corporate existence can be shown, though not charged in the bill. State v. Shaw, 92 N. C. 768.' This is fully sustained by all the late authorities. State v. Salisbury Ice etc., Co., 166 N. C. 366, 367, 81 S. E. 737.

The Indictment.—The indictment must allege all of the essential elements of the offense. State v. Claudius, 164 N. C. 521, 526, 80 S. E. 261.

The indictment must show a causal connection between the false representation and the parting with the property. State v. Whedbee, 152 N. C. 770, 774, 67 S. E. 60) but "no particular form of words is necessary; an allegation that "by means of the false pretense" or "rellying on the false pretense," or the like, is sufficient, where it is apparent that the offense was the natural result of the false representation alleged. 19 Cyc. 430." State v. Claudius, 164 N. C. 521, 525, 80 S. E. 261.

The charge to the persons intended to be cheated is surplusage and immaterial and all that is necessary is a charge of intent. State v. Ridge, 125 N. C. 655, 658, 34 S. E. 439; State v. Salisbury Ice etc., Co., 166 N. C. 366, 367, 81 S. E. 737.

Necessity of Averring Property Obtained.—The indictment must describe the thing alleged to have been thereby obtained with reasonable certainty, and by the same name usually employed to describe it; and where the indictment charges obtaining money by a false pretense, and the State's evidence tends only to show that the defendant had obtained money in that manner, the averment that the property is money is sufficient, but no averment of the value of the property obtained is necessary. State v. Gillepsie, 80 N. C. 356. And where the allegation is that money was obtained and the proof is that property was obtained but the defendant made no exception, there is no ground for reversal. State v. Ashford, 120 N. C. 588, 26 S. E. 915. Nonsuit is the proper method of raising the question of variance. State v. Gibson, 169 N. C. 318, 85 S. E. 7.

§ 14-103. Obtaining certificate of registration of animals by false representation.—If any person shall, by any false representation or pretense, with intent to defraud or cheat, obtain from any club, association, society or company for the improvement of the breed of cattle, horses, sheep, swine, fowls or other domestic animals or birds, a certificate of registration of any animal in the herd register of any such association, society or company, or a transfer of any such registration, upon conviction thereof he shall be punished by imprisonment for a term not exceeding three months, or a fine not exceeding one hundred dollars, or by both such fine and imprisonment. (Rev., s. 3308; 1891, c. 94, s. 1; C. S. 4280.)

§ 14-104. Obtaining advances under promise to work and pay for same.—If any person, with intent to cheat or defraud another, shall obtain any advances in money, provisions, goods, wares or merchandise, by any description from any other person, corporation upon and by color of any promise or agreement that the person making the same will begin any work or labor of any description for such person or corporation from whom the advances are obtained, and the person making the promise or agreement shall willfully fail, without a lawful excuse, to commence or complete such work according to contract, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be fined not exceeding fifty dollars or imprisoned not exceeding thirty days. (Rev., s. 3433; 1889, c. 444; 1891, c. 106; 1905, c. 411; C. S. 4281.)

Cross Reference.—As to tenant or cropper willfully abandoning landlord after advances have been made, see § 14-358.

Editor's Note.—The 1905 amendment, which made failure to perform services after being paid therefor presumptive evidence of fraudulent intent, has been held to contravene the constitutions both of North Carolina and of the United States. State v. Griffin, 154 N. C. 611, 70 S. E. 292. A similar provision in an Alabama statute was held to be unconstitutional by the United States Supreme Court in Bailey v. Alabama, 219 U. S. 219, 31 S. Ct. 106, 55 L. Ed. 191.

Constitutional.—The gist of the offence of procuring advances "with intent to cheat and defraud" is not the obtaining the advances, and afterwards refusing to perform the labor, but in the fraudulent intent at the time of obtaining the advances, and making the promise. State v. Bailey, 164 N. C. 484, 14 S. E. 968. This case was decided before the 1905 amendment discussed above.

Intent Must Be Shown.—To convict under this section it is necessary to show the fraudulent intent on the part of the promisor; and merely the facts of obtaining the advances, the promise to do the work, and a breach of that promise, are insufficient to sustain a conviction. State v. Griffin, 154 N. C. 611, 70 S. E. 292; State v. Islay, 164 N. C. 491, 79 S. E. 118.

No Day of Grace.—Where, upon a promise to begin work on the following Monday, the prosecutor made advances to the defendant, and the latter failed, without proper excuse, to begin work at the time stipulated, and was arrested on complaint of prosecutor on Tuesday; Held, to be a failure to begin work within the meaning of the statute. State v. Norman, 110 N. C. 484, 14 S. E. 968.

§ 14-105. Obtaining advances under written promise to pay therefor out of designated property.—If any person shall obtain any advances in money, provisions, goods, wares or merchandise of any description from any other person or corporation, upon any written representation that the person making the same is the owner of any article of produce, or of any other specific chattel or personal property, which property, or the proceeds of which the owner in such representation thereby agrees to apply to the discharge of the debt so created, and the owner shall fail to apply such produce or other property, or the proceeds thereof, in accordance with such agreement, or shall dispose of the same in any other manner than is so agreed upon by the parties to the transaction, the person so offending shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, whether he shall or shall not have been the owner of any such property or the time such representation was made. (Rev., s. 3434; Code, s. 1087; 1879, cc. 185, 186; 1905, c. 104; C. S. 4282.)

Constitutional.—It is not the failure to pay the debt which is made indictable, but the failure to apply certain property, which, in writing, has been pledged for its payment, and advances made on the faith of such pledge; on this ground it is held guilty if the jury find that the advances were made in bad faith, but the fraud in disposing of or withholding property which the owner has in writing agreed should be applied in payment of advances made on the faith of such pledge is not the subject of this section. State v. Whidbee, 124 N. C. 796, 32 S. E. 318.

Indictment Should Charge Exact Terms.—The indictment should charge in the exact terms of the statute, and on failure to do so it is held not the statute is not violated, the defendant is not made indictable, but the fraud in disposing of or withholding property which the owner has in writing agreed should be applied in payment of advances made on the faith of such pledge is not the subject of this section. State v. Whidbee, 124 N. C. 796, 797, 32 S. E. 318.

Compared with Section 14-114.—This section is on the same footing as section 14-114 for disposing of mortgage advances. It is not the failure of the promise to pay the mortgage advances which is made indictable, but the fraud in disposing of or withholding property which the owner has in writing agreed should be applied in payment of advances made on the faith of such pledge. State v. Norman, 110 N. C. 484, 14 S. E. 968.

§ 14-106. Obtaining property in return for worthless check, draft or order.—Every person who, with intent to cheat and defraud another, shall obtain money, credit, goods, wares or any other thing of value by means of a check, draft or order of any kind upon any bank, person, firm or corporation, not indebted to the drawer, or where he has not provided for the payment or acceptance of the same, and the same be not paid upon presentation, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be fined not exceeding one hundred dollars or imprisoned not exceeding three months. (Rev., s. 3435; 1889, cc. 185, 186; 1905, c. 411; C. S. 4281.)

Local Modification.—New Hanover: Pub. Loc. 1927, c. 636. Cross Reference.—As to false warehouse receipts, see § 27-54 et seq.

It is a misdemeanor for any person knowingly to utter a worthless check in this state and such act involves moral turpitude under this section if done with intent to defraud. Oats v. Wachovia Bank, etc., Co., 259 N. C. 14, 160 S. E. 828.

Intent to Cheat or Defraud.—In order to convict a defendant under the provisions of this section for obtaining property in return for a worthless check, the indictment must sufficiently charge an intent to cheat or defraud or that the defendant obtained a thing of value. State v. Horton, 199 N. C. 771, 155 S. E. 866.

Sighting in Notice of Complaint.—On the trial under indictment for violating this section, the evidence tended to show that the check in question was signed in the name of a certain company by the defendant, and was conflict- ing to that effect under the deponent's admission in the cause. It was held, that the question as to whether the defendant was a member of the company when he drew the check in question was necessarily decisive of his guilt, and an instruction to find him guilty should find from the evidence he was not a partner, was [650]

Same—Burden of Proof.—The burden of proving the guilt of defendant in violating this section, the worthless check statute, as of 1947, is on the State, and raises the question as to the defendant's good faith for the jury to determine. State v. Anderson, 194 N. C. 377, 139 S. E. 701.

§ 14-107. Worthless checks.—It shall be unlawful for any person, firm or corporation, to draw, make, utter or issue and deliver to another, any check or draft on any bank or depository, for the payment of money or its equivalent, knowing at the time of the making, drawing, uttering, issuing and delivering such check or draft as above said, that the maker or drawer thereof has not sufficient funds on deposit in or credit with such bank or depository with which to pay the same upon presentation.

Any person, firm or corporation violating any provision of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. [If the amount due on such check is not over fifty dollars, the punishment: shall not exceed a fine of fifty dollars or imprisonment for thirty days.]

The word "credit", as used herein shall be construed to mean an arrangement or understanding with the bank or depository for the payment of any such check or draft. The part of this section in brackets shall only apply to Pitt county, Robeson county, Iredell county, Martin county, Lee county, Rutherford county, Bladen county, Columbus county, Alamance county, Caswell county, Pasquotank county, Sampson county, Alleghany county, Lenoir county, Randolph county, Gaston county, Hoke county, Madison county, Burke county, Transylvania county, Rockingham county, Halifax county, Hertford county, Richmond county, Chatham county, Pamlico county, Wake county, Haywood county, Granville county, Davidson county, Anson county, Carteret county, Davie county, Forsyth county, Greene county, Jackson county, Henderson county, Stokes county, Onslow county, Macon county, Currituck county, Chowan county, Vance county, Edgecombe county, Northampton county, Stanly county, Cabarrus county, Mitchell county, Vance county, Avery county, Alamance county, Franklin county, Yadkin county, Caldwell county, Gates county, Ashe county, Washington county, Nash county, Johnston county, Duplin county, Wayne county, Guilford county, Rowan county, Bertie county, Moore county, Harnett county, Columbus county, Watauga county, Lincoln county, Caswell county, Orange county, Buncombe county, Wilkes county, Hyde county, Swain county, Clay county, Graham county, Cherokee county, Scotland county, Union county, and Surry county. (1925, c. 14; 1927, c. 69; 1929, c. 273, ss. 1, 2; 1931, cc. 63, 138; 1933, cc. 43, 64, 93, 170, 265, 363, 458; 1939, c. 346.)

Local Modification.—For an act amending an Act that was never passed by the legislature, and applying only to Durham County, see Ch. 351, 1913 N. C. Laws.

Cross Reference.—See annotation to § 14-106.

Editor's Note.—The part of this section appearing in brackets in the second paragraph, and some of the counties to which applicable, were added by the Act of 1929. The Acts of 1931, 1933 and 1939 added other counties. As pointed out in Article 3 in N. C. Law Rev. 141, the giving of worthless checks was first regulated in this state by the Acts of 1907, 1909 and 1911. As pointed out in the article, they are partly quoted and the elements of the crime analyzed in the article. It was pointed out that although the provision expressly states that the check or draft in question has been signed by him in the name of a certain person, there is evidence tending to show that other checks similarly signed had been paid, with further evidence that defendant's authority to sign such checks had been revoked, the burden of proving defendant's guilt is on the State, and raises the question as to the defendant's good faith for the jury to determine. See State v. Freeman, 172 N. C. 925, 90 S. E. 507, and repeated in the Law Review Article. It was also pointed out that the indictment must have charged both "insufficient funds" and "insufficient credits" to charge a violation. The question of the constitutionality of this act was raised both in the article previously cited and in 5 N. C. Law Rev. 75, where the position was taken that the law was violative of the constitution, Art. I, section 16, as permitting the imprisonment for debt. In 1925 the legislature passed a new bad check law which left out the element of intent to defraud, etc., so that under it the giving of a check with insufficient funds was a crime. The elements of the crime under that law are outlined by Mr. Justice Adams in State v. Edwards, 190 N. C. 322, 130 S. E. 10, and repeated in the Law Review Article. It was also pointed out that the indictment must have charged both "insufficient funds" and "insufficient credits" to charge a violation. The question of the constitutionality of this act was raised both in the article previously cited and in 5 N. C. Law Rev. 75, where the position was taken that the law was violative of the constitution, Art. I, section 16, as permitting the imprisonment for debt.

Subsequently the legislature at the 1927 session repealed the act and passed the present section which cures the defect pointed out in the Law Review, and it has been upheld by the supreme court. See State v. Yarboro, 194 N. C. 498, 140 S. E. 216.

It would seem that this section does not require that the check be given for present value. The essence of the crime seems to be the giving of a check for the payment of money or its equivalent knowing that there are insufficient funds or insufficient credits with which to pay the same. The punishment is for a pre-existing debt or for present value. See State v. Yarboro, 194 N. C. 498, 504, 140 S. E. 216.

It is also apparent that this section does not require an actual intent to cheat or defraud the payee. The element of intent is presumed, no doubt, from the knowledge of lack of funds.

The prior laws contain a provision allowing the drawer 10 days within which to make the check good; the present law contains no such provision.

Under the prior laws which made intent to cheat or defraud an element of the crime, the uttering of the check was insufficient to cast the burden upon the defense of disproving the element. This section contains no such provision and the burden of proving the knowledge of lack of funds is upon the state, it would seem.

For a general note on the subject, see XIV Va. Law Rev. 134; as to applicability of Virginia Statute to post-dated checks, see XIV Va. Law Rev. 145.

Public Detriment.—The gravamen of the offense proscribed by this section is the putting into circulation worthless commercial paper to the public detriment, and not that the individual payee. State v. Levy, 230 N. C. 612, 18 S. E. (2d) 355.

Postdated Check.—A postdated check given for a past due account and so accepted is not a representation importing a moral liability, and unless the overt act shows the intent and meaning of the "bad check law," making it a misdemeanor for a person to issue and deliver to another any check on any bank or depository for the payment of money equivalent to giving a worthless check with insufficient funds on deposit or credit with the bank or depository for its payment. State v. Crawford, 198 N. C. 522, 152 S. E. 904.

Indictment—Necessity of Charging All Elements.—In order to charge a statutory offense (the giving of a bad check), the indictment should set forth all the essential requisites prescribed by the statute. It is not sufficient to charge the defendant's authority to sign such checks had been revoked, the burden of proving defendant's guilt is on the State, and raises the question as to the defendant's good faith for the jury to determine. See State v. Edwards, 190 N. C. 322, 130 S. E. 10.

Issuance as Fraud.—The issuance of a check on a bank in payment of a debt, the non-payment of which of this check is a false representation of giving facts that the maker has on deposit sufficient funds for its payment at the bank, upon its presentation, or that he has made the necessary arrangements with the bank therefor, in effect a fraud; if such check does not have sufficient funds on deposit or credit with the bank or depository for its payment. State v. Cookie, 198 N. C. 498, 140 S. E. 216. See dissenting opinion.

Facing Variance and Allegation and Probate.—An indictment charging the defendant with obtaining money on a day named by the issuance of a worthless check in violation of our statute, and evidence that it was given for the hire of an automobile, ten days later, are fatal variance, and will not support a conviction. State v. Corpening, 191 N. C. 751, 140 S. E. 216. See dissenting opinion.

executive officer, and that the corporation did not have sufficient funds or credit for its payment. There is a fatal variance between allegation and proof, and defendant's motion to dismiss should have been allowed. State v. Dowless, 217 N. C. 313, 10 S. E. (2d) 18.

Waiver of Right to Trial by Jury.—Where the defendant in a criminal action enters the plea of "not guilty," the requirement of our State Constitution, Art. I, § 13, of trial by jury may not be waived by the accused nor another method substituted by agreement, and where a defendant is indicted for violating the statute commonly known as the "bad check law," an agreement between the State and the accused that the judge may find the facts under a plea of "not guilty," will be disregarded on appeal and the case remained to be tried according to law. State v. Crawford, 197 N. C. 813, 169 S. E. 729.

Sentence.—Upon defendant's conviction upon two warrants charging the issuance of worthless checks, a sentence of two years imprisonment on the first warrant and one year imprisonment on the second, the sentences to run consecutively, cannot be held excessive, cruel or unusual since the sentences were within the limits prescribed by this section. State v. Levy, 220 N. C. 812, 18 S. E. (2d) 355.

§ 14-108. Obtaining property or services from slot machines, etc., by false coins or tokens.

Any person who shall own, operate, or cause to be operated, or attempt to cause to be operated any automatic vending machine, slot machine, coin-box telephone or other receptacle designed to receive lawful coin of the United States of America in connection with the sale, use or enjoyment of property or service, by means of a slug or any false, counterfeit, mutilated, sweated or foreign coin, or by any means, method, trick or device whatsoever not lawfully authorized by the owner, lessee or licensee of such machine, coin-box telephone or receptacle, or who shall take, obtain or receive from or in connection with any automatic vending machine, slot machine, coin-box telephone or other receptacle designed to receive lawful coin of the United States of America in connection with the sale, use or enjoyment of property or service, any goods, wares, merchandise, gas, electricity, or any service, or of any musical instrument, phonograph or other property, without depositing in and surrendering to such machine, coin-box telephone or receptacle lawful coin of the United States of America to the amount required therefor by the owner, lessee or licensee of such machine, coin-box telephone or receptacle, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, punishable by a fine or imprisonment, or in the discretion of the court, by both. (1927, c. 68, s. 2.)

Evidence Insufficient for Conviction.—In order to convict under the provisions of this section, it is necessary for the State to show the fraudulent intent of the one who has failed or refused to pay for his lodging or food at an inn, boarding house, etc., or the like intent as to his surreptitiously leaving with his baggage without having paid his bill; and evidence tending only to show his inability to pay, under the circumstances, but his arrangement with the keeper of the inn or boarding house to pay in a certain way and within a fixed period after leaving, and his payment in part, and that his will remains sub rosa, that he, thereafter took away his baggage without his knowledge or participation therein, and in the separation following he received no benefit therefrom, is insufficient for a conviction of the statutory offense. State v. Barbee, 187 N. C. 703, 122 S. E. 733.

Evidence Sufficient to Convict. — There is evidence that one having received accommodation at a hotel left with his baggage without notice to the proprietor, and without having paid his bill, it is sufficient to convict under this section, the question of intent being for the jury. State v. Hill, 166 N. C. 298, 81 S. E. 468.

§ 14-111. Fraudulently obtaining credit at hospitals and sanatoriums.—Any person who obtains accommodation at any public or private hospital or sanatorium without paying therefor, with intent to defraud the proprietor or manager thereof, or who obtains credit at an inn, boarding-house or lodging-house by the use of any false pretense, or who, after obtaining credit or accommodation at an inn, boarding-house or lodging-house, absconds and surreptitiously removes his baggage therefrom without paying for his food, accommodation or lodging, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall upon conviction be fined or imprisoned at the discretion of the court. (1907, c. 816; C. S. 4284.)

Local Modificatinn.—Pitt: 1929, c. 103; Martin, Wake, Chatham: 1930; Madison, Duplin: 1931; Gloucester, Brunswick: 1933, c. 531; Lee: 1937, c. 168; Rockingham: 1939, c. 53.

Cross Reference.—As to liens on baggage, see § 44-30 et seq.

Constitutionality. — The misdemeanor prescribed by this section expressly applies, when the contract has been made with a fraudulent intent, and this intent also exists in surreptitiously absconding and removing baggage without having paid the bill, and this statute is not inhibited by Article I, section 16, of the State Constitution, as to imprisonment for the mere nonpayment of a debt, either in a civil action or by indictment. State v. Barbee, 187 N. C. 703, 122 S. E. 733.

Boarding House Defined.—One who has not been licensed to keep a boarding house, and who does not hold his place out as such, but who has received a boarder in his home, for pay, is not the keeper of a boarding house. State v. McKae, 170 N. C. 712, 86 S. E. 1009.

§ 14-112. Obtaining merchandise on approval.—Any person, with intent to cheat and defraud, shall solicit and obtain from any merchant any article of value, or the use or enjoyment of any telephone or telegraph facilities or any goods, wares, merchandise, gas, electric current, article of value, or the use or enjoyment of any telephone or telegraph facilities or any musical instrument, phonograph or any other property, without depositing in and surrendering to such machine, coin-box telephone or receptacle lawful coin of the United States of America in connection with the sale, use or enjoyment of property or service, or of any musical instrument, phonograph or other property, without depositing in and surrendering to such machine, coin-box telephone or receptacle lawful coin of the United States of America in connection with the sale, use or enjoyment of property or service, or of any musical instrument, phonograph or other property, without depositing in and surrendering to such machine, coin-box telephone or receptacle lawful coin of the United States of America in connection with the sale, use or enjoyment of property or service, or of any musical instrument, phonograph or other property, without depositing in and surrendering to such machine, coin-box telephone or receptacle lawful coin of the United States of America in connection with the sale, use or enjoyment of property or service, or of any musical instrument, phonograph or other property, without depositing in and surrendering to such machine, coin-box telephone or receptacle lawful coin of the United States of America in connection with the sale, use or enjoyment of property or service, or of any musical instrument, phonograph or other property, without depositing in and surrendering to such machine, coin-box telephone or receptacle lawful coin of the United States of America in connection with the sale, use or enjoyment of property or service, or of any musical instrument, phonograph or other property, without depositing in and surrendering to such machine, coin-box telephone or receptacle lawful coin of the United States of America in connection with the sale, use or enjoyment of property or service, or of any musical instrument, phonograph or other property, without depositing in and surrendering to such machine, coin-box telephone or receptacle lawful coin of the United States of America in connection with the sale, use or enjoyment of property or service, or of any musical instrument, phonograph or other property, without depositing in and surrendering to such machine, coin-box telephone or receptacle lawful coin of the United States of America in connection with the sale, use or enjoyment of property or service, or of any musical instrument, phonograph or other property, without depositing in and surrendering to such machine, coin-box telephone or receptacle lawful coin of the United States of America in connection with the sale, use or enjoyment of property or service, or of any musical instrument, phonograph or other property, without depositing in and surrendering to such machine, coin-box telephone or receptacle lawful coin of the United States of America in connection with the sale, use or enjoyment of property or service, or of any musical instrument, phonograph or other property, without depositing in and surrendering to such machine, coin-box telephone or receptacle lawful coin of the United States of America in connection with the sale, use or enjoyment of property or service, or of any musical instrument, phonograph or other property, without depositing in and surrendering to such machine, coin-box telephone or receptacle lawful coin of the United States of America in connection with the sale, use or enjoyment of property or service, or of any musical instrument, phonograph or other property, without depositing in and surrendering to such machine, coin-box telephone or receptacle lawful coin of the United States of America in connection with the sale, use or enjoyment of property or service, or of any musical instrument, phonograph or other property, without depositing in and surrendering to such machine, coin-box telephone or receptacle lawful coin of the United States of America in connection with the sale, use or enjoyment of property or service, or of any musical instrument, phonograph or other property, without depositing in and surrendering to such machine, coin-box telephone or receptacle lawful coin of the United States of America in connection with the sale, use or enjoyment of property or service, or of any musical instrument, phonograph or other property, without depositing in and surrendering to such machine, coin-box telephone or receptacle lawful coin of the United States of America in connection with the sale, use or enjoyment of property or service, or of any musical instrument, phonograph or other property, without depositing in and surrendering to such machine, coin-box telephone or receptacle lawful coin of the United States of America in connection with the sale, use or enjoyment of property or service, or of any musical instrument, phonograph or Article of merchandise on approval, and shall thereafter, upon demand, refuse or fail to return the same to such merchant in an unused and undamaged condition, or to pay for the same, such person so offending shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. Evidence that a person has solicited a merchant to deliver to him any article of merchandise for examination or approval and has obtained the same upon such solicitation, and thereafter, upon demand, has refused or failed to return the same to such merchant in an unused and undamaged condition, or to pay for the same, shall constitute prima facie evidence of the intent of such person to cheat and defraud, within the meaning of this section: Provided, this section shall not apply to merchandise sold upon a written contract which is signed by the purchaser. (1911, c. 4863; 1914, c. 242; C. S. 4285.)

Editor’s Note.—The 1941 amendment substituted the word “dishonorable” for the words “wearing apparel” formerly appearing in this section. It also added the proviso at the end of the section.

§ 14-113. Obtaining money by false representation of physical defect.—It shall be unlawful for any person to falsely represent himself or herself in any manner whatsoever as blind, deaf, dumb, or crippled or otherwise physically defective for the purpose of obtaining money or other thing of value or of making sales of any character of personal property. Any person so falsely representing himself or herself as blind, deaf, dumb, crippled or otherwise physically defective, and securing aid or assistance on account of such representation, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor. (C. S. 4286.)

Art. 20. Frauds.

§ 14-114. Fraudulent disposal of mortgaged personal property.—If any person, after executing a chattel mortgage, deed of trust or other lien for a lawful purpose, shall make any disposition of any personal property embraced in such mortgage, deed of trust or lien, with intent to hinder, delay or defeat the rights of any person to whom or for whose benefit such deed was made, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor.

Result of Sale Must Injure.—If the property included in the mortgage (other than that disposed of), was abundantly sufficient and available to pay the indebtedness, there could be no prejudicial result as is contemplated by the statute. State v. Manning, 107 N. C. 910, 912, 12 S. E. 248. The actual sale of mortgaged crops raises a presumption of fraudulent intent. State v. Surles, 117 N. C. 270, 23 S. E. 124; State v. Holmes, 120 N. C. 573, 26 S. E. 692.

Justice Jurisdiction.—Under the original acts justices of the peace have exclusive jurisdiction of the offense of fraudulently disposing of personal property embraced in a chattel mortgage. State v. Jones, 85 N. C. 657.

Infant’s Liability.—An indictment under this section for disposing of crops under mortgage cannot be sustained, where it appears that the defendant is an infant. The alleged disposition was a disaffirmance of the contract and renders it void. State v. Howard, 88 N. C. 651.

Indictment Must Charge Maker, Buyer or Assistant.—If the indictment does not charge the defendant as the maker, buyer or assistant, or one who aid or abet either the maker or purchaser in the unlawful acts, the indictment is insufficient. State v. Jeffries, 117 N. C. 720, 721, 23 S. E. 324.

Prior Lien, as Defense.—It is competent for the defendant, in an indictment for unlawfully disposing of mortgaged property—a crop of tobacco—to show that he, in good faith, applied the proceeds of the sale to the payment of his landlord’s lien. State v. Ellington, 98 N. C. 749, 4 S. E. 534.

Evidence of Other Sales Inadmissible.—On a trial of one charged with unlawfully disposing of an article of personal property covered by a chattel mortgage, with intent to defeat the right of the mortgagee, evidence of other sales after the right to such foreclosure had accrued, and that the mortgagee failed to produce, deliver or surrender the same to the mortgagee for that purpose, shall be prima facie evidence of the fact of the disposition or sale of such property, by the grantor, with the intent to hinder, delay or defeat the rights of the person to whom said chattel mortgage, deed of trust or lien was made. (Rev. s. 3435; Code, s. 1094; 1887, c. 14; 1873-4, c. 31; 1874-5, c. 215; 1883, c. 61; C. S. 4297.)

Three Classes of Offenders.—The statute is directed against three classes of offenders: (1) The maker of the lien who shall dispose of the property with the unlawful intent; (2) those who buy with a knowledge of the lien, and (3) those who aid or abet either the maker or purchaser in the unlawful acts. State v. Woods, 104 N. C. 908, 10 S. E. 555.

Intent Necessary.—Under this section the forbidden act must, in order to be indictable, be accomplished with a specific intent, and the courts cannot disregard this clearly expressed purpose of the Legislature. State v. Manning, 107 N. C. 910, 911, 12 S. E. 248.

§ 14-115. Secrecing property to hinder enforcement of lien.—Any person removing, exchanging or secreting any personal property on which a lien exists, with intent to prevent or hinder the enforcement of the lien, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Rev., s. 3436; 1887, c. 14; C. S. 4288.)

Local Modification.—Pitt, 1941, c. 284.

§ 14-116. Fraudulent entry of horses at fairs.—If any person shall knowingly enter or cause to be entered in competition for any purse, prize, premium, stake or sweepstake offered or given by any agricultural or other society, association or person within this state, any horse, mare, gelding, colt or foal under an assumed name or out of its proper class, he shall be punished by a fine not less than one hundred nor more than one thousand dollars, or by imprisonment in the state's prison for not less than one nor more than five years, or by both fine and imprisonment, at the discretion of the court. (Rev., s. 3429; 1893, c. 387; C. S. 4289.)

§ 14-117. Fraudulent and deceptive advertising.—It shall be unlawful for any person, firm, corporation or association, with intent to sell or in anywise to dispose of merchandise, securities, service or any other thing offered by such person, firm, corporation or association, directly or indirectly, to the public for sale or distribution, or with intent to increase the consumption thereof, or to induce the public in any manner to enter into any obligation relating thereto, or to acquire title thereto, or an interest therein, to make public, disseminate, circulate or place before the public on the public or other publication, or in the form of a book, notice, handbill, poster, bill circular, pamphlet or letter, or in any other way, an advertisement of any sort regarding merchandise, securities, service or any other thing so offered to the public, which advertisement contains any assertion, representation or statement of fact which is untrue, deceptive or misleading: Provided, that such advertising shall be done willfully and with intent to mislead. Any person who shall violate the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be fined not exceeding fifty dollars or imprisoned not exceeding thirty days. § 14-118. Blackmailing.—If any person shall knowingly send or deliver any letter or writing demanding of any other person, with menaces and without any reasonable or probable cause, any chattel, money or valuable security; or if any person shall accuse, or threaten to accuse, or shall knowingly send or deliver any letter or writing accusing or threatening to accuse any other person of any crime punishable by law with death or by imprisonment in the state's prison, with the intent to extort or gain from such person any chattel, money or valuable security, every such offender shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Rev., s. 3428; Code, s. 989; R. C., c. 34, s. 110; C. S. 4291.)

Indictment.—Where the offence charged was the sending of a letter, under this section, and the letter was set out in the indictment, from which it is deducible by necessary implication that the defence threatened to indict the prosecutor for an offence punishable by imprisonment in the penitentiary, with a view and intent to extort money a criminal offence is sufficiently charged. State v. Harper, 94 N. C. 996.

Circumstantial Evidence. — Letters demanding a sum of money from the prosecutor, the first requiring that he drop the amount of the road at a certain place, the second, at a certain time and at a certain signal, followed by the burning of the prosecutor's barn on his failing to comply; and the second one referring to this fact and making the same demand, and the prosecution of the defendant at the place at the time appointed, as he appeared after the signals were given, though circumstantial evidence, is adjudged sufficient under an indictment for blackmailing to sustain a conviction. State v. Frady, 172 N. C. 978, 90 S. E. 862.

§ 14-119. Forgery of bank-notes, checks and other securities.—If any person shall falsely make, forge or counterfeit, or cause or procure the same to be done, or willingly aid or assist therein, any bill or note in imitation of, or purporting to be, a bill or note of any incorporated bank in this state, or in any of the United States, or in any of the territories of the United States; or any order or check on any such bank or corporation, or on the cashier thereof; or any of the securities purporting to be issued by or on behalf of the state, or by or on behalf of any corporation, with intent to injure or defraud any person, bank or corporation, or the state, the person so offending shall be guilty of a felony and shall be punished by imprisonment in the state's prison or county jail for not less than four months nor more than ten years, or by a fine in the discretion of the court. (Rev., s. 3419; Code, s. 1030; R. C., c. 34, s. 60; 1819, c. 994, s. 1; C. S. 4293.)

Elements of Offense.—To constitute an indictable forgery, it is not alone sufficient that there be a writing, and that the writing alleged to be forged, or that any act be done other than the fraudulent making, or altering of the instrument. Delivering to Agent.—"It is putting spurious paper into circulation, and not defrauding the individual who takes it, that constitutes forgery."

§ 14-121. Selling of certain forged securities.—If any person shall sell, by delivery, indorsement or otherwise, to any other person, any judgment, promissory note, bill of exchange, or other express contract. 3 Greenleaf Ev., 1031; 0R> C.,.c. 34, s. 613 1819, c, 994, °s. 14-121.

§ 14-122. Forgery of deeds, wills and certain other instruments.—If any person, of his own head and imagination, or by false conspiracy or fraud with others, shall wittingly and falsely forge and make, or shall cause or wittingly assent to the forging or making of, or shall show forth in evidence, knowing the same to be forged, any deed, lease, bill of sale, note, obligation, bond, promissory note, bill of exchange, promissory note, endorsement or other instrument, shall wittingly and falsely forge or make, or shall show forth in evidence, knowing the same to be forged, any deed, lease, bill of sale, note, obligation, bond, promissory note, bill of exchange, promissory note, endorsement or other instrument. State v. Lane, 80 N. C. 407.

Lost Instruments.—If the forged instrument is lost it is not necessary to set it out in the indictment, and the substance of the forged instrument is all that need be charged, though in such case it would be better practice to aver the loss. State v. Peterson, 129 N. C. 556, 40 S. E. 9.

Misspelled Signature.—An indictment lies for forgery of an instrument if it is apparent from the face of the instrument as a "railroad pass" merely, is insufficient. The circumstances showing authority of the company to honor it, must be set out in the indictment. State v. Weaver, 94 N. C. 836, cited in note in 24 L. R. A. 43.

Instrument Partly Printed and Partly in Writing.—An indictment for forgery of a "certain instrument in writing" is supported by proof of the forgery of an instrument partly printed and partly in writing. State v. Ridge, 125 N. C. 655, 34 S. E. 439.

"Railroad Pass" Insufficiency of Description.—A description of the forged instrument as a "railroad pass" merely, is insufficient. The circumstances showing authority of the company to honor it, must be set out in the indictment. State v. Weaver, 94 N. C. 836, cited in note in 24 L. R. A. 43.

§ 14-123. Forgery of names to petitions and uttering forged petitions.—If any person shall willfully sign, or cause to be signed, or willfully assent to the signing of the name of any person without his consent, or of any deceased or fictitious person, to any petition or recommendation with the intent of procuring any commutation of sentence, pardon or reprieve of any person convicted of any crime or offense, or for the purpose of procuring such pardon, reprieve or commutation to be revoked or stayed by any public officer, or with the intent of procuring the same from any person whatsoever, either for himself or another, by any appointment to office, or to any position of honor or trust, or with the intent to influence the official action of any public officer in the management, conduct or decision of any matter affecting the public, he shall be guilty of a felony, and shall be fined not exceeding one thousand dollars, or imprisoned in the county jail or state's prison not exceeding five years, or both, at the discretion of the court; and if any person shall willfully use any such paper for any of the purposes or intents above recited, knowing that any part of the signatures to such petition or recommendation has been signed thereto without the consent of the alleged signers, or that names of any dead or fictitious persons are signed thereto, he shall be guilty of a felony, and shall be punished in like manner. (Rev. s. 3426; Code, s. 1034; 1883, c. 275; C. S. 4297.)

§ 14-124. Forging certificate of corporate stock and uttering forged certificates.—If any officer or agent of a corporation shall, falsely and with a fraudulent purpose, make, with the intent that the same shall be issued and delivered to any other person, or any officer or as holder or bearer thereof, any certificate or other writing, whereby it is certified or declared that such person, holder or bearer is entitled to or has an interest in the stock of such corporation, when in fact such person, holder or bearer is not so entitled, or is not entitled to the amount of stock in such certificate or writing specified; or if any officer or agent of such corporation, or other person, knowing such certificate or other writing to be false or untrue, shall transfer, assign or deliver the same to another person, for the sake of gain, or with the intent to defraud the corporation, or any member thereof, or such person to whom the same shall be transferred, assigned or delivered, the person so offend-ning shall be imprisoned in the county jail or state's prison not less than four months nor more than ten years. (Rev., s. 3421; Code, s. 1032; R. C., c.
34, s. 62; C. S. 4298.)

§ 14-125. Forgery of bank-notes and other instruments by connecting genuine parts.— If any person shall fraudulently connect together different parts of two or more bank-notes, or other genuine instruments, in such a manner as to produce another note or instrument, with intent to pass all the instrument so produced a forged

SUBCHAPTER VI. CRIMINAL TRESPASS.

Art. 22. Trespasses to Land and Fixtures.

§ 14-126. Forcible entry and detainer.—No one shall make entry into any lands and tenements, or term for years, but in case where entry is given by law; and in such case, not with strong hand or with multitude of people, but only in a peaceful manner; and if any man do the Cross Reference.—As to trespass after being forbidden, see § 14-134.

Force.—Actual force or appearances tending to inspire a just apprehension of violence is necessary to constitute the offense. 12 Am & Eng Enc. (2 Ed.) 737. A forcible entry is not proved by evidence of a mere trespass; there must be proof of such force, or at least such show of force, as is calculated to prevent resistance. State v. Leary, 136 N. C.
578, 48 S. E. 570; State v. Davenport, 156 N. C. 596, 72 S. E.
7. So riding into the yard of a house occupied by a woman and remaining there cursing her constitutes force. State v.
Davenport, supra. But where a person, in the absence of the prosecutor, merely unlocked and took off the lock put on by the prosecutor and put his own lock on, without breaking anything or doing any violence, and committed no violence upon the return of the prosecutor, he is not guilty of forcible entry and detainer. State v. Leary, supra.

Excuse.—Title Not Invalid.—The offense of forcible trespass under this section, does not involve title to the premises, but is directed against the possession, and when the possession is in the prosecuting witness, and the entry is made in such a manner with such show of force, after being prohibited by the prosecuting witness, as tends to produce the same result; it is sufficient, in the bear witness for conviction. State v. Earp, 196 N. C. 164, 144 S. E. 23.

Extent of Liability of Title Holder.—The court quoting from Reeder v. Purdy, 41 Ill. 279, says: "The reasoning upon which we rested our conclusion that forcible entry and detainer is, therefore, unlawful. If unlawful, it is a trespass, and an action for the trespass must necessarily lie. . . . Although the occupant may maintain trespass against the owner for a forcible entry, yet he can only recover such damages as have directly accrued to him from, injudiges done to his person or property through the wrongful invasion of his possession, and such exemplary damages as the jury may (under proper instructions) think proper to give. But a person having no title to the premises clearly can not recover damages for any injury done to them by him who has the title. "Mosseller v. Deaver, 106 N. C.
494, 497, 11 S. E. 329.

Actual Possession Necessary.—The essential element of the offense of forcible entry, that the lands, etc., must be in the possession of him whose possession is charged to have been interfered with. To constitute actual possession there must be an actual exercise of authority and control over the land, either in person or by the family or servants of the possessor; and such exercise of authority and control must be personally present on the premises. State v. Bryant, 103 N. C. 456, 9 S. E. 1. This element must be charged in the indictment. It is a sufficient compliance with this rule to charge that the owner was then and there in peaceable of the prosecutor in forcibly entry and detainer is only by suffer-§ 14-127. Malicious injury to real property.—If any person shall maliciously commit any damage,

injury or spoil upon any real property whatsoever, either of a public or private nature, for which no punishment is provided by any existing law, every person, so offending shall be guilty of a misdemeanor; Provided, that nothing herein shall extend to any case where the party trespassing or doing the injury acted under a fair and reasonable belief that he had a right to do the act complained of, nor to any trespass, not being willful and malicious, committed in hunting, fishing or the pursuit of game. When the owner, or one of the owners, of an estate in possession shall complain of the injury before a justice of the peace of the county in which the offense is charged to have been committed before the regular term of the superior court next after the commission of the offense, and shall fail to state in his complaint that the damage exceeds ten dollars, the punishment, upon conviction of the offense, shall not exceed a fine of fifty dollars or imprisonment for thirty days. (Rev., s. 3677; Code, s. 1081; R. C., c. 34, s. 111; 1872-4, c. 176, s. 5; C. S. 4:01.)

§ 14-128. Injury to trees, woods, crops, etc., near highway; depositing trash near highway.—Any person, not being on his own lands, or without the consent of the owner thereof, who shall, within one hundred yards of any State highways of North Carolina or within a like distance of any other public road or highway, willfully commit any damage, injury, or spoliation to or upon any tree, wood, underwood, timber, garden, crops, vegetables, plants, lands, springs, or any other matter or thing growing or being thereon, or who cuts, breaks, injures, or removes any tree, plant, or flower within such limits, or shall deposit any trash, debris, garbage, or litter within such limits, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction fined not exceeding fifty dollars ($50) or imprisoned not exceeding thirty days: Provided, however, that this section shall not apply to the police, officers, agents, and employees of the State Highway and Public Works Commission or county road authorities while in the discharge of their duties. (Ex. Sess. 1924, c. 51.)

Editor's Note.—It was said in 3 N. C. Law Rev. 25 that it is hoped that this section may prevent the laying waste of gardens, flowers, etc., by tourists who are not in the habit of regarding another's property rights and who usually leave trash and garbage at every place they stop to eat.

§ 14-129. Taking, etc., of certain wild plants from land of another.—No person, firm or corporation shall dig up, pull up or take from the land of another or from any public domain, the whole or any part of any trailing arbutus, American holly, white pine, red cedar, hemlock or other coniferous trees, or any flowering dogwood, or mountain laurel, rhododendron, or any ground pine, or any Christmas greens, or any Judas tree, or any leucothea, or any azalea, without having in his possession a permit to dig up, pull up or take such plants, signed by the owner of such land, or by his duly authorized agent. Any person convicted of violating the provisions of this section shall be fined not less than ten dollars ($10.00) nor more than fifty dollars ($50.00) for each offense. The provisions of this section shall not apply to the counties of Avery, Cabarrus, Carteret, Catawba, Cherokee, Chowan, Cumberland, Currituck, Dare, Duplin, Durham, Edgecombe, Franklin, Gaston, Granville, Hertford, McDowell, Mitchell, Pamlico, Pender, Person, Richmond, Rockingham, Rowan, Swain and Warren. (1941, c. 253.)

§ 14-130. Trespass on public lands.—If any person shall erect a building on any public lands before the same shall have been sold or granted by the state, or on any lands belonging to the state board of education before the same shall have been sold and conveyed by them, or cultivate or remove timber from any of such lands, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. Moreover, the state board of education can recover from any person cutting timber on its land three times the value of the timber which is cut. When any person shall be in possession of any part of such land, it shall be the duty of the sheriff of the county in which the land is situated, and he is hereby required, to give notice in writing to such person, commanding him to depart therefrom forthwith; and if the person in possession, upon being so notified, shall not, within two weeks after the time of notice, remove therefrom, the sheriff is required to remove him immediately, and if necessary, he shall summon the power of the county to assist him in so doing. (Rev., s. 3746; Code, s. 1121; R. C., c. 34, s. 42: 1823, c. 1190; 1842, c. 36, s. 4; 1909, c. 891; C. S. 4:02.)

§ 14-131. Trespass on land under option by the federal government.—On lands under option which have formally or informally been offered to and accepted by the North Carolina department of conservation and development by the acquiring federal agency and tentatively accepted by said department for administration as state forests, state parks, state game refuges or other public purposes, it shall be unlawful to cut, dig, break, injure or remove any timber, lumber, firewood, trees, shrubs or other plants; or any fence, house, barn or other structure; or to pursue, trap, hunt or kill any bird or other wild animals or take fish from streams or lakes within the boundaries of such areas without the written consent of the local official of the United States having charge of the acquisition of such lands.

Any person, firm or corporation convicted of the violation of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be subject to a fine of not more than fifty dollars or to imprisonment for not to exceed thirty days, or to both such fine and imprisonment.

The department of conservation and development through its legally appointed foresters, fish and game wardens is hereby authorized and empowered to assist the county law enforcement officers in the enforcement of this section. (1935, c. 317.)

§ 14-132. Disorderly conduct in and injuries to public buildings.—If any person shall make any rude or riotous noise or be guilty of any disorderly conduct in or near any of the public buildings of the state, or of any county or municipality, or shall write or scribble on, mark, deface, besmear, or injure the walls of any of the public buildings of the state or of any county or municipality, or any statue or monument, or shall do or commit any nuisance in or near any public building of the state or of any county or municipality, he shall be

Local Modification.—Burke, Caldwell, Cherokee, McDowell,
§ 14-136. Setting fire to grass and brush lands and woodland.-If any person shall intentionally set fire to any grass land, brush land or woodland, except it be his own property, or in that case without first giving notice to all persons having or in charge of lands adjoining the land intended to be fired, and without also taking care to watch such fire while burning and to extinguish it before it shall reach any lands near to or adjoining the lands so fired, he shall for every such offense be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be fined not less than fifty dollars nor more than five hundred dollars, or imprisoned for a period not of less than sixty days nor more than four months for the first offense, and for a second or any subsequent similar offense shall be imprisoned not less than four months nor more than one year. If willful or malicious intent to damage the property of another shall be shown, said person shall be guilty of a felony, and shall, upon conviction, be punished by imprisonment in the state prison for not less than one nor more than five years. This section shall not prevent an action by the owner of any property from such fires. For the purposes of this section, the term "woodland" is to be taken to include all forest areas, both timber and cut-over land, and all second-growth stands on areas that have at one time been cultivated. Any person who shall furnish to the state evidence sufficient for the conviction of a violation of this statute shall receive the sum of fifty dollars, to be taxed as part of the court costs. (Rev., s. 3346; Code, ss. 52, 53; R. C., c. 16, ss. 1, 2; 1777, c. 123, ss. 1, 2; 1915, c. 243, ss. 8, 11; 1919, c. 318; 1925, c. 61, s. 1; 1943, c. 661; C. S. 4309.)

Local Modification.—Graham: Pub. Loc. 1913, c. 301; Onslow: 1929, c. 185, 1939, c. 160.

By amendment of this section, Public Laws 1925 c. 61 sec. 1, the punishment was changed from "a fine not less than ten dollars or more than fifty dollars, or imprisonment not exceeding thirty days" to "a fine not less than fifty dollars nor more than five hundred dollars, or imprisonment not less than sixty days nor more than four months for the first offense, and for subsequent similar offenses imprisonment from four months to one year."

The 1943 amendment inserted the second sentence. This section formerly provided only for setting fire to woodland, and one who let fire escape while burning other lands was not liable, under this section. Averitt v. Murrell, 49 N. C. 322, but was only liable for negligence. Cato v. Toler, 160 N. C. 194, 75 S. E. 929. In the case of Hall v. Crawford, 50 N. C. 3 it was held that an "old field which had turned out without any fence around it and which had grown up in broom sedge and pine brushes" came within the provisions of this statute. This case was stated out in Achenback v. Johnston, 84 N. C. 264, as stretching the doctrine of liability too far. There it was held that a field grown up in grass and used as a pasture was not woodland. By Public Laws 1917 this section was made applicable to setting fire to grassland and bushland as well as woodland, so the prior constructions so strictly made in regard to firing woodland are not applicable, as this section now seems to cover burning of any lands.

Care No Defense.—If one firing woods fails to give the statutory notice to adjoining owners and damages ensue, the defendant on no matter what defense may have been shown. Lamb v. Sloan, 94 N. C. 534.

Waiver of Notice Bars Damages.—A waiver of notice is a sufficient answer to an action for damages caused to woodland by fire. In case of a fire in shrubbery, 52 S. E. 795, v. Toler, 54 S. E. 795, v. Sloan, 94 N. C. 534. Waiver when made by a tenant in common while in possession is also a sufficient defense. See Stanland v. Rousk, 160 N. C. 566, 84 S. E. 845.

§ 14-137. Wilfully or negligently setting fire to woods and fields.—If any person, firm or corporation shall wilfully or negligently set fire on, or cause to be set on, any woods, lands or fields, whatsoever, every such offender, upon conviction, shall be fined or imprisoned in the discretion of the court. This section applies only to those counties under the protection of the state forest service in its work of forest fire control. It shall not apply in the case of a landowner firing, or causing to be fired, his own open, non-wooded lands, or fields in connection with farm or building operations at the time and in the manner as provided by law: Provided, he shall have confined the fire and paid his own expense to said open lands or fields. (1907, c. 4, ss. 4, 5; 1925, c. 61, s. 2; 1941, c. 258; C. S. 4310.)

Editor's Note.—Prior to the 1941 amendment this section applied only to certain named counties.

Evidence that the county in which defendant negligently or wilfully started forest fires was in charge of the state forest service and that this section was applicable to the county, defendant having offered no evidence to the contrary, was sufficient to show a violation of the section. Snow v. Patterson, 157 N. C. 17, 179 S. E. 142. (23) 142.

§ 14-138. Setting fire to woodland and grass lands with campfires.—Any waggoner, hunter, camper or other person who shall kindle a campfire or shall authorize another to kindle such fire, unless all combustible material for the space of ten feet surrounding the place where such fire is kindled has been removed, or shall leave a campfire without fully extinguishing it, or who shall accidentally or negligently by the use of any torch, gun, match or other instrumentality, or in any manner whatever, start any fire upon any grass land, brush land or woodland without fully extinguishing the same, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be punished by a fine of not less than ten dollars nor more than fifty dollars, or by imprisonment not exceeding thirty days. For the purposes of this section the term “woodland” is to be taken to include all forest areas, both timber and cut-over land, and all second-growth stands on areas that have at one time been cultivated. (Rev., s. 3347; Code, s. 54; 1885, c. 126; 1913, c. 8; 1915, c. 243, ss. 9, 11; C. S. 4311.)

Local Modification.—Graham: Pub. Loc. 1933, c. 301.

§ 14-139. Starting fires within five hundred feet of areas under protection of state forest service.
—It shall be unlawful for any person, firm or corporation to start or cause to be started any fire or ignite any material in any of the areas of woodlands under the protection of the state forest service or within five hundred feet of any such protected area, between the first day of February and the first day of June, inclusive or between the first day of October and the thirtieth day of November, inclusive, in any year, without first obtaining from the state forester or one of his duly authorized agents a permit to set out fire or ignite any material in such above mentioned protected areas; no charge shall be made for the granting of said permits. This section shall not apply to any fires started or caused to be started within five hundred feet of a dwelling house. Any person, firm or corporation violating this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be fined not more than fifty (50) dollars, or imprisoned for a period of not more than thirty (30) days. (1937, c. 207; 1939, c. 120.)

Editor's Note.—The 1939 amendment changed the dates mentioned in this section, and the last sentence as to punishment.

§ 14-140. Certain fires to be guarded by watchman.—All persons, firms or corporations who shall burn any tar kiln or pit of charcoal, or set fire to or burn any brush, grass or other material, whereby any property may be endangered or destroyed, shall keep and maintain a careful and competent watchman in charge of such kiln, pit, brush or other material while burning. Any person, firm or corporation violating the provisions of this section shall be punishable by a fine of not less than ten dollars nor more than fifty dollars, or by imprisonment for not exceeding thirty days. Fire escaping from such kiln, pit, brush or other material while burning shall be prima facie evidence of neglect of these provisions. (1915, c. 245, s. 10; C. S. 4312.)

Local Modification.—Graham: Pub. Loc. 1933, c. 301.

§ 14-141. Burning or otherwise destroying crops in the field.—If any person shall willfully burn or destroy any other person's corn, cotton, wheat, barley, rye, oats, buckwheat, rice, tobacco, hay, straw, fodder, shocks or other provender in a stack, hill, rick or pen, or secured in any other way out of doors, or grass or sedge standing on the land, he shall be guilty of a felony, and shall be punished by imprisonment in the county jail or state's prison for not less than four months nor more than five years. (Rev., s. 3339; 1885, c. 42; 1874-5, c. 133; Code, s. 985, subsec. 2; C. S. 4315.)

Cross References.—As to arson, see §§ 14-38 et seq.

Out of Doors Defined.—One who burns cotton in a railroad car cannot be convicted under this section as the cotton is not out of doors. State v. Avery, 109 N. C. 798, 13 S. E. 931. Clark, J., dissents on the ground that it is merely secured out of doors and comes within the application of this statute.

Formerly Misdemeanor.—The burning provided in this section was at one time a misdemeanor. State v. Huskins, 126 N. C. 1070, 35 S. E. 638.

Indictment.—An indictment should charge a statutory crime in the words of the statute. Therefore an indictment charging setting fire to a lot of fodder without charging the burning, is defective. State v. Hall, 93 N. C. 571.

It is not necessary under this section to aver in the indictment that the stack burned was “out of doors.” State v. Huskins, 126 N. C. 1070, 35 S. E. 638.

§ 14-142. Injuries to dams and water channels of mills and factories.—If any person shall cut away, destroy or otherwise injure any dam, or part thereof, or shall obstruct or damage any race, canal or other water channel erected, opened, used or constructed for the purpose of furnishing water for the operation of any mill, factory or machine works, or for the escape of water therefrom, he shall, upon conviction, be fined or imprisoned, or both, at the discretion of the court. (Rev., s. 3678; Code, s. 1087; 1866, c. 48; C. S. 4315.)

Obstruction Below Dam or Channel.—This section applies only to obstructions and damages to the dam or channel and an indictment cannot be had for obstructions below the dam or channel. State v. Tomlinson, 77 N. C. 528.

Cited in State v. Tuttle, 115 N. C. 784, 20 S. E. 725.

§ 14-143. Taking unlawful possession of another's house.—If any person shall enter upon the lands of another and take possession of any house or other building thereon, without permission of the owner or his agent and without a bona fide claim of right or title so to enter and take possession, and shall fail or refuse to vacate such premises within ten days after being notified personally in writing to do so, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be fined or imprisoned at the discretion of the court. (Rev., s. 3685; 1893, c. 347; C. S. 4316.)

Editor's Note.—See notes to section 14-134.

§ 14-144. Injuring houses, churches, fences and walls.—If any person shall, by any other means than burning or attempting to burn, unlawfully and willfully demolish, destroy, deface, injure or damage any of the houses or other buildings mentioned in this chapter in the article entitled Arson and Other Burnings; or shall unlawfully and willfully burn, demolish, pull down, destroy, deface, damage or injure any church, unincorporated house, outhouse or other house or building not mentioned in such article; or shall unlawfully and willfully burn, destroy, pull down, injure or remove any fence, wall or other inclosure, or any part thereof, surrounding or about any yard, garden, cultivated field or pasture, or about any church or graveyard, or about any factory or other house in which machinery is used, every person so offending shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Rev., s. 3673; Code, s. 1062; R. C. c. 34, s. 103; C. S. 4317.)

I. HOUSES.

Trespass Necessary Part of Offense.—It is held, to con-in the prosecutor, the defendant cannot excuse himself by showing title to the land upon which the fence is erected.

Question of Title Cannot Be Raised.—Where a party has neither possession of nor a right of possession to land, he cannot, upon an indictment for unlawfully removing a fence, thereby or otherwise act as its owner, and bring upon himself the consequences of being the owner thereof, thus raising a question as to a right of property, nor is it any defense to him that he did the act to bring on a civil suit in order to try the title. State v. Graham, 53 N. C. 397.

Agency No Defence.—Under an indictment for tearing down a fence the defendant cannot avoid liability by showing that he acted as agent for another. State v. Campbell, 133 N. C. 640, 45 S. E. 344.

Destroying Fence When Line Is in Dispute.—Although a defendant cannot plead his title as a defense to an indictment for destroying fences, etc., on the land in possession of another, he can plead his title if the land is not in the possession of the prosecutor. In case of a disputed line if the prosecutor erects a fence on land in possession of the defendant, the defendant is not liable under this section for pulling it down. State v. Fender, 125 N. C. 649, 34 S. E. 448; State v. Watson, 86 N. C. 636. Nor is a quasi tenant occupying by the consent of the owner subject to prosecution under this section for removing a fence. State v. Martin, 173 N. C. 808, 92 S. E. 597.

Right to Reclaim Fence.—Although rails of which a fence around an enclosure is made were taken from the land of another, no right to go on the land and remove the fence can be found in this statute, because it is taken as the fence is a part of the realty, and such a trespass comes within the meaning of the section. State v. Mcminn, 81 N. C. 585, 588. State v. Allen, 35 N. C. 36.

“Other Houses.”—It is manifest that the words “other house or building,” embrace a jail, a jail-house or building. State v. Rynan, 39 N. C. 531, 533.

Dynamiting a Crib.—An indictment will lie under this section for injury to a crib by an explosion of dynamite. See State v. Martin, 173 N. C. 808, 92 S. E. 597.

II. FENCES AROUND FIELDS.

Cultivated Field Defined.—“Where a piece or tract of land has been cleared, tilled, cultivated, and is proposed to be cultivated and is kept and used for cultivation according to the ordinary course of husbandry, although nothing may be growing within the enclosure at the time of the trespass, it is cultivated for the purposes within the description of the section that the fence surrounded a pasture, the words “pasture” and “cultivated field” are not synonymous and are distinguished in the statute by a disjunctive, and on the same ground, which charge that the defendant is out of the field within the meaning of the statute is erroneous. State v. Connott, 199 N. C. 634, 155 S. E. 451.

Fence on Land No Defense.—The defendant cannot excuse himself by showing title to the land upon which the fence is erected.

§ 14-147. Removing, altering or defacing landmarks.—If any person, firm or corporation shall knowingly remove, alter or deface any landmark in anywise whatsoever, or shall knowingly cause such removal, alteration or defacement to be done, such person, firm or corporation shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. Section 14-147 shall not apply to landmarks, such as creeks and other small streams, which the interest of agriculture may require to be altered or turned from their channels, nor to such persons, firms or corporations as own the fee simple in the lands on both sides of the lines designated by the landmarks removed, altered or defaced. Nor shall this section apply to those adjoining landowners who may by agreement remove, alter or deface landmarks in which they alone are interested.(Rev., s. 1063; 1858-8, c. 17; 1915, c. 348; C. S. 4319.)

Removal of Stakes.—As between the parties stakes are evidence of a definite location of land, as also is the planting of a stone, and a removal of such stakes comes within the meaning of this section. State v. Jenkins, 164 N. C. 527, 529; 80 S. E. 215.

Indictment Must Aver.—An indictment charging that one A. B. with force and arms, etc., willfully and unlawfully did alter, deface and remove a corner stone, the property of C., against the form of the statute, is good without a negative averment of the matter contained in the provision of the act creating the offense. State v. Bryant, 111 N. C. 691, 36 S. E. 335.

§ 14-148. Removing or defacing monuments and tombstones.—If any person shall, unlawfully and on purpose, remove from its place any monument of marble, stone, brass, wood or other material, erected for the purpose of designating the spot where any dead body is interred, or for the purpose of preserving and perpetuating the memory, name, fame, birth, age or death of any person, whether situated in or out of the common burying ground, or shall unlawfully and on purpose break or deface such monument, or alter the letters, marks or inscription thereof, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Rev., s. 3680; Code, s. 1088; R. C., c. 34, s. 102; 1840, c. 6; C. S. 4520.)

Intent.—The intent to open a grave and remove the dead body is sufficient criminal intent, and proof of the intent to disturb the grave is conclusive. State v. McLean, 121 N. C. 589, 28 S. E. 140.

Persons Liable.—The mayor or other town officers counseling their subordinates to remove bodies are liable under this section although they were honestly mistaken as to the scope of their official power. State v. McLean, 121 N. C. 589, 28 S. E. 140.

When Lot Is Not Paid for.—The fact that the lot has not been paid for will not excuse the disturbance of a body only for the purpose of moving it to a pauper section. State v. McLean, 121 N. C. 589, 28 S. E. 140.

§ 14-150. Disturbing graves.—If any person shall, without due process of law, or the consent of the surviving husband or wife or the next of kin of the deceased, and of the person having the control of such grave, open any grave for the purpose of taking therefrom any dead body, or any part thereof buried therein, or anything interred therewith, he shall be guilty of a felony, and upon conviction thereof shall be fined or imprisoned, or both, at the discretion of the court. (Rev., s. 3672; 1885, c. 90; C. S. 4323.)

Intent.—The intent to open a grave and remove the dead body is sufficient criminal intent, and proof of the intent to disturb the grave is conclusive. State v. McLean, 121 N. C. 589, 28 S. E. 140.

Persons Liable.—The mayor or other town officers counseling their subordinates to remove bodies are liable under this section although they were honestly mistaken as to the scope of their official power. State v. McLean, 121 N. C. 589, 28 S. E. 140.

§ 14-151. Interfering with gas, electric and steam appliances.—If any person shall willfully, with intent to injure or defraud, commit any of the acts set forth in the following subsections, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor:

1. Connect a tube, pipe, wire or other instrument or contrivance with a pipe or wire used for conducting or supplying illuminating gas, fuel, natural gas or electricity consumed in a house or apartment, or at an orifice or burner, lamp or motor where the same is or can be burned or used without passing through the meter or other instrument provided for registering the quantity consumed; or,

2. Obstruct, alter, injure or prevent the action of a meter or other instrument used to measure or register the quantity of illuminating fuel, natural gas or electricity consumed in a house or apartment, or at an orifice or burner, lamp or motor, or by a consumer or other person other than an employee of the company owning any gas or electric meter, who willfully shall detach or disconnect such meter, or make or report any test of, or examine for the purpose of testing any meter so detached or disconnected; or,

3. In any manner whatever change, extend or alter any service or other pipe, wire or attachment of any kind, connecting with or through which natural or artificial gas or electricity is furnished from the gas mains or pipes of any person, without first procuring from said person written permission to make such change, extension or alterations; or,
§ 14-152. Injuring fixtures and other property of gas companies; civil liability.—If any person shall willfully, wantonly or maliciously remove, obstruct, injure or destroy any part of the plant, machinery, fixtures, structures or buildings, or anything appertaining to the works of any gas company, or shall use, tamper or interfere with the same, he shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be fined not exceeding fifty dollars or imprisoned not more than thirty days for such offense. Such person shall also forfeit and pay to the company so injured, to be sued and recovered in a civil action, double the amount of the damages sustained by any such injured party.

§ 14-153. Tampering with engines and boilers.—If any person shall willfully, wantonly or maliciously remove, obstruct, injure or destroy any part of any engine or boiler, or meddle or tamper with such boiler or engine, or any other machinery in connection with any boiler or engine, causing loss, damage, danger or delay to the owner in the prosecution of his work, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor.

§ 14-154. Injuring wires and other fixtures of telephone, telegraph and electric-power companies.—If any person shall willfully injure, destroy or pull down any telegraph, telephone or electric-power-transmission pole, wire, insulator or any other fixture or apparatus attached to a telegraph, telephone or electric-power-transmission line, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be fined and imprisoned at the discretion of the court.

§ 14-155. Making unauthorized connections with telephone and telegraph wires.—It shall be unlawful for any person to tap or make any connection with any wire or apparatus of any telephone or telegraph company operating in this state, except such connection as may be authorized by the person or corporation operating such wire or apparatus. Any person violating any of the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be fined not more than ten dollars or imprisoned not more than ten days for each offense. Each day's continuance of such unlawful connection shall be a separate offense.

§ 14-156. Injuring fixtures and other property of electric-power companies.—It shall be unlawful for any person willfully and wantonly, and without the consent of the owner, to take down, remove, injure, obstruct, disable or destroy any line erected or constructed for the transmission of electrical current, or any poles, towers, wires, conduits, cables, insulators or any support upon which wires or cables may be suspended, or any part of any such line or appurtenances or apparatus connected therewith, or to sever any wire or cable thereof, or in any manner to interrupt the transmission of electrical current over and along any such line, or to take down, remove, injure or destroy any house, shop, building or other structure or machinery connected with or necessary to the use of any line erected or constructed for the transmission of electrical current, or to wantonly or willfully cause injury to any of the property mentioned in this section by means of fire. Any person violating any of the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be fined not more than five hundred dollars or imprisoned not longer than one year, or both fined and imprisoned, in the discretion of the court.

§ 14-157. Felling trees on telephone and electric-power wires.—If any person shall negligently and carelessly cut or fell any tree, or any limb or branch thereof, in such a manner as to cause the same to fall upon and across any telephone, electric light or electric-power-transmission wire, from which any injury to such wire shall be occasioned, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall also be liable to penalty of fifty dollars for each and every offense.

§ 14-158. Interfering with telephone lines.—If any person shall unnecessarily disconnect the wire or in any other way render any telephone line, or any part of such line, unfit for use in transmitting messages, or shall unnecessarily cut, tear down, destroy or in any way render unfit for the transmission of messages any part of the wire of a tel-
§ 14-159. Injuring buildings or fences; taking possession of house without consent.—If any person shall deface, injure or damage any house, uninhabited house or other building belonging to another; or deface, damage, pull down, injure, remove or destroy any fence or wall enclosing, in whole or in part, the premises belonging to another; or shall move into, take possession of and/or occupy any house, uninhabited house or other building situated on the premises belonging to another, without having first obtained authority so to do and consent of the owner or agent thereof, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be fined not exceeding fifty dollars, or imprisoned not exceeding thirty days. (1929, c. 192, s. 1.)

Art. 23. Trespasses to Personal Property.

§ 14-160. Malicious injury to personal property. —If any person shall wantonly and willfully injure the personal property of another, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, whether the property be destroyed or not, and shall be punished by fine or imprisonment, or both, in the discretion of the court. (Rev., s. 3676; Code, s. 1082; 1855, c. 53; 1876-7, c. 18; C. S. 4331.)

Cross Reference.—As to definition of personal property, see § 12-3, paragraph 6.

Things That Are Personality.—A promissory note or due bill of exchange, a written instrument of debt is personal property within the meaning of this section and section 12-2, par. 6. State v. Sneed, 121 N. C. 614, 28 S. E. 355.

An electric street car is personalty and not a fixture. State v. Sneed, 121 N. C. 614, 28 S. E. 355.

Malice Not Necessary.—It is not necessary to allege or prove any malice to the owner of personal property on the part of one who wantonly and willfully injures it nor is it material whether the property was destroyed or not. State v. Sneed, 121 N. C. 614, 28 S. E. 355.

"Wantonly and Willfully" Necessary.—An indictment for injury to personal property, under this section, which charged that the act was "wantonly and willfully" done, was not defective because it did not aver the act to have been unlawfully performed. Lawful acts are not done wantonly and willfully if they are performed with the consent of the injured person. State v. Martin, 107 N. C. 904, 12 S. E. 194.

But an indictment cannot be sustained under this section if there is neither an allegation or finding that the injury was "willfully and wantonly" done. The words "unlawfully and on purpose" will not supply their place. State v. Tweedy, 115 N. C. 704, 20 S. E. 183.

Malicious Mischief at Common Law.—This section was not intended to supersede the common law as to malicious mischief and must be charged at common law if it is not necessary under this section. State v. Martin, 141 N. C. 832, 51 S. E. 874.

No Accessories.—As there are no accessories in misdemeanor the offense under this section may be committed jointly by several persons, one doing the act the others aiding and abetting or participating. State v. Martin, 141 N. C. 832, 51 S. E. 874.

Destroying Whisky.—The mere possession of whisky gives no title; and a revenue officer who seizes a barrel concealed on private premises, and in good faith destroys it, is not guilty of a misdemeanor under this section. North Carolina v. Vanderford, 35 Fed. 282.

Constitutionality Under This Section in Place of Section 14-165.—Where there is an erroneous conviction under this section, when the indictment should have been drawn under section 14-165, et seq., the prisoner should be discharged with permission to the solicitor to send another bill, if so advised. State v. Reed, 196 N. C. 357, 145 S. E. 691.

§ 14-161. Malicious removal of packing from railway coaches and other rolling stock.—If any person shall willfully and maliciously take or remove the waste or packing from the journal box of any locomotive, engine, tender, carriage, coach, caboose or truck used or operated upon any railroad whether on the same track, or electricity, he shall upon conviction thereof be fined or imprisoned in the jail or state's prison, in the discretion of the court. (Rev., s. 3759; 1905, c. 335; C. S. 4332.)

§ 14-162. Removing boats or their fixtures and appliances.—If any person shall take away from any landing or other place where the same shall be, or shall loose, unmoor, or turn adrift from the same any boat, canoe, pettioaugua, dras, or dolly, sails or tackle belonging to or in the lawful custody of any person; or if any person shall direct the same to be done without the consent of the owner, or the person having the custody or possession of such property, he shall forfeit and pay to such owner, or person having the custody and possession as aforesaid, the sum of two dollars, and shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be fined not exceeding fifty dollars or imprisoned not exceeding thirty days, in the discretion of the court. The owner may also have his action for such injury. The penalties aforesaid shall not extend to any person who shall press any such property by public authority. (Rev., s. 3544; Code, s. 2988; 1889, c. 378; R. C., c. 14, ss. 1, 3; C. S. 4334.)

§ 14-163. Injuring livestock not inclosed by lawful fence.—If any person shall willfully and unlawfully kill or abuse any horse, mule, hog, sheep or other cattle, the property of another, in any enclosure not surrounded by a lawful fence, such person shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and fined or imprisoned, at the discretion of the court. (Rev., s. 3313; Code, s. 1008; 1868-9, c. 253; C. S. 4334.)

At Common Law.—Wounding of cattle maliciously is not an indictable offense at common law. State v. Manuel, 72 N. C. 201.

Purpose of Section.—The obvious purpose of the statute is to prohibit and prevent every person from unlawfully and willfully killing and abusing live-stock of another, that may get into and trespass upon inclosures not surrounded and protected by a lawful fence. This is the mischief to be suppressed. State v. Godfrey, 97 N. C. 507, 508, 1 S. E. 779.

Offence May Be Completed Elsewhere.—In order to complete the offense of injury to live-stock, it is not necessary that the offense be consummated within the inclosure not surrounded by a lawful fence, such person shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and fined or imprisoned, at the discretion of the court. State v. Reed, 196 N. C. 357, 145 S. E. 691.

Cattle Defined.—The word "cattle" has a restricted sense which applies only to the bovine species, and also a broader meaning which includes all domestic animals. That it is used in this section in the latter and broader sense is apparent from the context, "horse, mule, hog, sheep or other cattle." State v. Godfrey, 119 N. C. 525, 21 S. E. 799.

Injuries in Enclosed Fields.—A person is not liable under this section for injuring stock within his own field which is closed and under cultivation. State v. Waters, 51 N. C. 276.

Indictment Must Charge.—An indictment for injuring stock under this section must charge that the cattle abused or killed were property of some one, the abusing or killing must be charged to have been willfully and unlawfully done while the animal was in an enclosure not surrounded by a lawful fence. State v. Deal, 92 N. C. 802; State v. Simpson, 73 N. C. 269.

An indictment charging an offense under this section but not setting out who owned the enclosure, although not encouraged because of its looseness, is sufficient. State v. Allen, 69 N. C. 23; State v. Painter, 70 N. C. 70.

“The Field” Is Too General.—An indictment which simply charges the injury, etc., to have been committed on stock in “the field” is not certain to that extent required in such pleading. State v. Staton, 66 N. C. 690.

§ 14-164. Taking away or injuring exhibits at fairs.—If any person, without the license of the owner, or any agricultural or other society, shall unlawfully carry away, remove, destroy, mark, deface or injure anything, animate or inanimate, while on exhibition on the grounds of any such society, or going to or returning from the same, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. It shall be sufficient in any indictment for any such offense, or for the larceny of any such thing, animate or inanimate as aforesaid, to charge that the thing so carried away, destroyed, marred, injured or feloniously stolen is the property of the society to which the said thing shall be forwarded for exhibition. (Rev., s. 3668; Code, s. 2796; 1870-1, c. 184, s. 4; C. S. 4535.)

Cross Reference.—As to fraudulent entries at fairs, see section 14-116.

§ 14-165. Malicious or wilful injury to hired personal property.—Any person who shall rent or hire from any person, firm or corporation, any horse, mule or like animal, or any buggy, wagon, truck, automobile, or other like vehicle, for temporary use, who shall maliciously or wilfully injure or damage the same in any way using or driving the same in violation of any statute of the State of North Carolina, or who shall permit any other person so to do, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and subject to punishment as hereinafter provided. (1927, c. 61, s. 1.)

Cross Reference.—See annotation under § 14-160.

§ 14-166. Sub-letting of hired property.—Any person who shall rent or hire, for temporary use, any horse, mule, or other like animal, or any buggy, wagon, truck, automobile, or other like vehicle, who shall, without the permission of the person, firm or corporation from whom such property is rented or hired, sub-let or rent the same to any other person, firm or corporation, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and punished as hereinafter provided. (1927, c. 61, s. 2.)

§ 14-167. Failure to return hired property.—Any person who shall rent or hire, for temporary use, any horse, mule or other like animal, or any buggy, wagon, truck, automobile, or other vehicle, and who shall wilfully fail to return the same to the possession of the person, firm or corporation from whom such property has been rented or hired at the expiration of the time for which such property has been rented or hired, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and punished as hereinafter provided. (1927, c. 61, s. 3.)

§ 14-168. Hiring with intent to defraud.—Any person who shall, with intent to cheat and defraud the owner thereof of the rental price therefor, hire or rent for temporary use any horse or mule or any other like animal, or any buggy, wagon, truck, automobile or other like vehicle, or who shall obtain the possession of the same by false and fraudulent statements made with intent to deceive, which are calculated to deceive, and which do deceive, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and punished as hereinafter provided. (1927, c. 61, s. 4.)

§ 14-169. Violation made misdemeanor.—Any person violating the provisions of this article shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and punished at the discretion of the court. (1927, c. 61, s. 5; 1939, c. 355, s. 1.)

Editor's Note.—Prior to the 1929 amendment, this section provided for a maximum fine of fifty dollars and a maximum jail sentence of thirty days. The amendatory act provided that prosecutions instituted and crimes committed before its ratification on February 20, 1929, should be determined by the statute as it was before the amendment.

Art. 25. Regulating the Leasing of Storage Batteries.

§ 14-170. “Rental battery” defined; identification of rental storage batteries.—As used in this article the words “rental battery” are defined as an electric storage battery loaned, rented or furnished for temporary use by any person, firm or corporation engaged in the business of buying, selling, repairing or recharging electric storage batteries. All such persons, firms or corporations may mark any such rental batteries belonging to them with the word “rental,” or any other word of similar meaning, printed or stamped upon or attached to such battery together with such words as shall identify such batteries as the property of the person, firm or corporation so marking the same. It shall be unlawful for any person, firm or corporation to so mark any such batteries which are not the property of such person, firm or corporation. (1933, c. 185, s. 1.)

§ 14-171. Defacing word “rental” prohibited. — It is unlawful for any person, firm or corporation to remove, deface, alter or destroy the word “rental” on any rental battery or any other word, mark or character printed, painted or stamped upon or attached to any rental battery to identify the same as belonging to or being the property of any person, firm or corporation. (1933, c. 185, s. 2.)

§ 14-172. Sale, etc., of rental battery prohibited. — It is unlawful for any person, firm or corporation other than the owner thereof to sell, dispose of, deliver, rent or give to any other person, firm or corporation any rental battery marked by the owner as provided by section 14-170. (1933, c. 185, s. 3.)

§ 14-173. Repairing another’s rental battery prohibited. — It is unlawful for any person, firm or corporation engaged in the business of buying, selling, repairing or recharging electric storage batteries to recharge or repair any rental battery not owned by such person, firm or corporation marked by the owner as provided by section 14-170. (1933, c. 185, s. 4.)

§ 14-174. Time limit on possession of rental battery without written consent.—It is unlawful for any person, firm or corporation to retain in his, their or its possession for a longer period than ten (10) days, without the written consent of the owner, any rental battery marked as such by the owner as provided by section 14-170. Demand must be made on any person who so retains before a prosecution can be instituted: Provided, however, that proof of a registered letter having been sent to the person so offending at his last known address shall be accepted as conclusive evidence of such demand. (1933, c. 185, s. 5.)

§ 14-175. Violation made misdemeanor.—Any person, firm or corporation, and the officers, agents, employees, and members of any firm or corporation violating any of the provisions of sections 14-170—14-174 shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof shall be sentenced to pay a fine not exceeding fifty dollars or be imprisoned for a term of not exceeding thirty days in the discretion of the court. (1933, c. 185, s. 6.)

§ 14-176. Rebuilding storage batteries out of old parts and sale of, regulated.—Any person, firm or corporation who assembles or rebuilds an electric storage battery for use on automobiles, in whole or in part, out of second-hand or used material such as containers, separators, plates, groups or other battery parts, and sells same or offers same for sale in the state of North Carolina without the word "rebuilt" placed in the side of the container, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and, upon conviction thereof, shall be sentenced to pay a fine not exceeding two hundred and fifty dollars or imprisoned for a term not exceeding six months or both. (1933, c. 535.)

SUBCHAPTER VII. OFFENSES AGAINST PUBLIC MORALITY AND DECENCY.

§ 14-177. Crime against nature.—If any person shall commit the abominable and detestable crime against nature, with mankind or beast, he shall be imprisoned in the state's prison not less than five nor more than sixty years. (Rev., s. 3351; Code, s. 1061; 1879, c. 16, s. 6; 5 Eliz., c. 17; 25 Hen. VIII, c. 6; C. S. 4336.)

Scope of Section.—This section includes all kindred acts of bestial character whereby degraded and perverted sexual desires are sought to be gratified. State v. Griffin, 175 N. C. 767, 769, 94 S. E. 478. It includes unnatural intercourse between male and male. State v. Penner, 166 N. C. 267, 80 S. E. 238.

Conviction for Attempt.—Upon the trial of an indictment for the crime against nature the prisoner may be convicted of the crime charged therein, or of an attempt to commit a less degree of the same crime. State v. Savage, 161 N. C. 245, 246, 76 S. E. 238.

§ 14-178. Incest between certain near relatives. —In all cases of carnal intercourse between grandparent and grandchild, parent and child, and brother and sister of the half or whole blood, the parties shall be guilty of a felony, and shall be punished for every such offense by imprisonment in the state prison for a term not exceeding fifteen years, in the discretion of the court. (Rev., s. 3351; Code, s. 1060; 1879, c. 16, s. 1; 1911, c. 16; C. S. 4337.)
not such as to bring her within the intent and meaning of this section as an innocent and virtuous woman. State v. Johnson, 182 N. C. 883, 190 S. E. 786. See State v. Crowell, 116 N. C. 1052, 21 S. E. 502; State v. Ferguson, 107 N. C. 841, 12 S. E. 574.

Permitting familiarities not amounting to incontinence may be considered by the jury in determining whether the promise of marriage was at that time an innocent and virtuous woman. State v. Lang, 171 N. C. 778, 87 S. E. 957. An adulteress may reform and become innocent and virtuous; the statute protects her just as much as if she had never fallen. State v. Johnson, 182 N. C. 883, 190 S. E. 786.

The offense of seduction, section 15-1 exempting certain offenses, includes deceit, from the two years statute of limitation, applies to the offense of seduction under promise of marriage. State v. McKay, 202 N. C. 470, 163 S. E. 586.

Promise of Marriage Must Be Unconditional. In order for conviction under this section, the promise of marriage must be absolute and unconditional, and the promise at the time to marry the woman in the event "anything should happen to her," is insufficient for a conviction under the statute. State v. Shailer, 201 N. C. 53, 159 S. E. 362.

Testimony of Woman Must Be Corroborated as to Each Element.—The statute provides that the unsupported testimony of the woman shall not be sufficient to convict. This法leny has been construed to mean that the promise of marriage must be supported by independent facts and circumstances as to each element of the offense. State v. Crow, 189 N. C. 548, 220 S. E. 107; See also, State v. Maness, 192 N. C. 708, 115 S. E. 777. See State v. Crowell, 116 N. C. 1052, 21 S. E. 502; State v. Bond, 212 N. C. 244, 193 S. E. 24.

For cases setting out facts held either sufficient or insufficient to establish the promise of marriage, see State v. Crow, 189 N. C. 548, 220 S. E. 107; State v. Raynor, 145 N. C. 472, 59 S. E. 171; State v. Malonee, 154 N. C. 200, 69 S. E. 786; State v. Face, 159 N. C. 462, 74 S. E. 1018; State v. Brackett, 218 N. C. 569, 11 S. E. (2d) 9.

The weight and credibility of the evidence supporting that of the woman, upon the trial of seduction, under this section, is for the jury, if it comes within the requirement of being evidence, however slight it may be. State v. Doss, 188 N. C. 214, 124 S. E. 156.

Supporting Evidence Need Not Be Direct.—It is not required that the "supporting evidence" of the promise of marriage coincident with the testimony of the woman, at the time the promise was made, since it is not required that the "supporting evidence" be direct, admirical proof being sufficient. State v. Smith, 217 N. C. 591, 9 S. E. (2d) 9.

The proviso that "the unsupported testimony of the woman shall not be sufficient to convict" is fully met where the testimony of prosecutrix is corroborated by other evidence of the promise of marriage. State v. Crowell, 116 N. C. 1052, 21 S. E. 502; State v. Ferguson, 107 N. C. 841, 12 S. E. 574.

Effect of Marriage upon Consent Judgment.—Where, in a prosecution for seduction a consent judgment is entered requiring the defendant to pay a certain sum to the prosecutrix, the consent was not supported by independent facts and circumstances, the case is reversed. State v. Mckay, 202 N. C. 470, 163 S. E. 586.

Insufficiency of Evidence to Show Promise of Marriage.—In prosecution for seduction, the only evidence in support of the testimony of prosecutrix on the essential element of promise of marriage was the testimony of a witness that the defendant had told the witness that she and defendant were going to be married, and the fourth week before that she had seen prosecutrix and defendant together over a certain period. No other witness testified that prosecutrix and defendant had been together. This is not sufficient to constitute proof of the promise of marriage by facts and circumstances independent of the testimony of prosecutrix, and defendant's motion to nonsuit should have been granted. State v. Crowell, 116 N. C. 1052, 1053, 21 S. E. 502.

Burden of Proof on State.—In order to convict the burden of proof is upon the State to show beyond a reasonable doubt that the seduction was accomplished under and by means of the promise of marriage, and that the prosecutrix was at that time an innocent and virtuous woman. It must affirmatively appear that the inducing promise preceded the intercourse and that the promise was absolute and not conditional. State v. Weidman, 128 N. C. 368, 32 S. E. 326, holding evidence insufficient to establish that seduction was induced by previous unconditional promise of marriage.

Punishment.—This section, providing that one convicted of seduction under promise of marriage "shall be fined or imprisoned," at the discretion of the court, does not authorize the imposition of both fine and imprisonment. State v. Crowell, 116 N. C. 1052, 1053, 21 S. E. 502.

Defendant's contention that he was subjected to cruel and unusual punishment in that the trial court sentenced him to the maximum prison term is without merit in view of the offense of seduction of which he was convicted, and in addition dictated a letter to the parole commissioner in which all attempts at clemency be extended defendant and also directed the solicitor to file a motion against defendant for failure to support his illegitimate child, is untenable, since the letter to the parole commissioner and the instructions to the solicitor are not parts of the sentence imposed. State v. Brackett, 218 N. C. 269, 11 S. E. (2d) 146.

Cited in State v. Wade, 197 N. C. 571, 150 S. E. 32.

§ 14-181. Miscegenation.—All marriages between a white person and a negro, or between a white person and a person of negro descent to the third generation inclusive, are forever prohibited, and shall be void. Any person violating this section shall be guilty of an infamous crime, and shall be punished by imprisonment in the county jail or state's prison for not less than four months nor more than ten years, and may also be fined, in the discretion of the court. (Rev. s. 3308; Code, s. 1084; Const. Art. XIV, § 6, c. 58, s. 7; 1834, c. 24; 1838-9, c. 24; C. S. 4340.)

Editor's Note.—Under the act of 1838-9, ch. 24, declaring void all marriages between white persons and free negroes and persons of color, all marriages between white persons and freedmen of all colors, or to persons of negro descent to the third degree, and any violation thereof was punishable as a felony, is cited in State v. Puitt, 94 N. C. 709, 1834, c. 24; 1838-9, c. 24; C. S. 4340.)

Domicile in This State.—A marriage solemnized in a State whose laws permit such marriage between a negro and a white person domiciled in this State, and who leave it for the purpose of evading this law and with intent to return, is not valid in this State. State v. Kennedy, 76 N. C. 251; State v. Ross, 76 N. C. 249. A marriage solemnized in a State whose laws permit such marriage between a negro and a white person domiciled in such State is valid in this State if it was on or before the effective date of this statute and the parties were legal residents of the State at the time of the marriage, and the marriage was consummated in this State. See State v. Puitt, 94 N. C. 709, 718, and cases there cited.

Domicile in This State.—A marriage solemnized in a State whose laws permit such marriage between a negro and a white person domiciled in this State, and who leave it for the purpose of evading this law and with intent to return, is not valid in this State. State v. Kennedy, 76 N. C. 251; State v. Puitt, 94 N. C. 709.

Domicile in Another State.—A marriage solemnized in a State whose laws permit such marriage between a negro and a white person domiciled in such State is valid in this State if it was on or before the effective date of this statute and the parties were legal residents of the State at the time of the marriage, and the marriage was consummated in this State. See State v. Puitt, 94 N. C. 709.

Evidence.—It was not error to admit evidence that the wife was reputed to be of mixed blood within the prohibited degrees, or to permit the witness to state his opinion on that point, although he was not an expert. It was also competent corroboration of other evidence tending to show that the tint of blood to show that the wife usually associated with colored people. Hopkins v. Bowers, 111 N. C. 175, 12 S. E. 574. See also, State v. Maness, 192 N. C. 708, 115 S. E. 777. "The unsupported testimony of the woman shall not be sufficient to convict" is fully met where the testimony of the prosecutrix was corroborated in respect to her innocence and virtue by the evidence of her good character and reputation, and that the inducing promise preceded the intercourse and that the promise was absolute and not conditional. State v. Crowell, 116 N. C. 1052, 1053, 21 S. E. 502.

clergyman, minister of the gospel or justice of the peace, shall knowingly marry any such person of color to a white person, that person so offending shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Rev., s. 3370; Code, s. 1085; R. C., c. 34, s. 80; 1830, c. 4, s. 2; C. S. 4341.)

§ 14-183. Bigamy.—If any person, being married, shall marry any other person during the life of the former husband or wife, every such offender, and every person counseling, aiding or abetting such offender, shall be guilty of a felony, and shall be imprisoned in the state's prison or county jail, for any term not less than four months nor more than ten years. Any such offense may be tried with, tried, determined and punished in the county where the offender shall be apprehended, or be in custody, as if the offense had been actually committed in that county. If any person, being married, shall contract a marriage with any other person outside of this state, which marriage would be punishable as bigamous if contracted within this state, and shall thereafter cohabit with such person for the space of seven years then last past, and shall not have been known by such person to have been living within that time; nor to any person who at the time of such second marriage shall have been lawfully divorced from the bond of the first marriage; nor to any person whose former marriage shall have been declared void by the sentence of any court of competent jurisdiction. (Rev., s. 988; R. C., c. 34, s. 15; 1790, c. 323; 1809, c. 783; 1829, c. 9; 1913, c. 26. See 9 Geo. IV, c. 21, s. 22; C. S. 4342.)

Editor's Note.—At common law, the second marriage was voided and from the earliest history of England polygamy has been treated as an offense against society. It is considered as a crime against the marital relation, as well as against the state and the community and likewise crimes by the laws of all civilized and Christian countries. Mr. Chief Justice Waite said: "From that day (the date of the enactment of the bigamy statute in Virginia, 12 Hen. 4, 207) to this we think it may safely be said there has never been a time in any state of the Union when polygamy has not been an offense against society, cognizable by the civil courts and punishable with more or less severity." Reynolds v. United States, 98 U. S. 389, 25 L. Ed. 244.

Offense against Society.—At common law and under this section bigamy is an offense against society rather than against the lawful spouse of the offender. State v. Williams, 230 N. C. 445, 17 S. E. (2d) 769, reversed on other grounds in Williams v. North Carolina, 317 U. S. 287, 63 S. Ct. 207, 87 L. Ed. 189.

Conviction of a First Marriage.—While at common law bigamy was not an indictable offense, and even as late as the enactment of 1885, it was only a misdemeanor, it is now a felony under this statute. State v. Burns, 90 N. C. 707.

Notice of First Marriage.—That the first marriage was celebrated without procurement of a license, while subjecting the parties to punishment, will not invalidate the marriage so that bigamy cannot be predicated thereon. State v. Robbins, 128 N. C. 29, 55 S. E. 653.

In a trial for bigamy, an instruction that defendant could not be convicted unless the jury was satisfied beyond a reasonable doubt that the defendant was committing bigamy, and that the first marriage was a "duly appointed, qualified, and acting justice of the peace," was properly refused, it being sufficient if such justice was a de facto officer. State v. Davis, 109 N. C. 780, 14 S. E. 55.

The evidence showing that there were a number of eye-witnesses to the marriage, and a certified copy of the license with return endorsed being produced, it was not error to charge the jury that it would be presumed the ceremony was valid. State v. Davis, 109 N. C. 780, 14 S. E. 55.

Belief That First Wife Is Dead.—A belief by the defendant that his first wife is dead or his ignorance of her being alive, she having been away for less than seven years, is no defense on a trial for bigamy. State v. Goulden, 134 N. C. 743, 47 S. E. 450.

Absence of Wife.—"The burden is on the defendant to show as a matter of defense that his wife had absented herself from the State of North Carolina for a period of seven years prior to the first marriage, and that he was ignorant all that time that she was living." State v. Goulden, 134 N. C. 743, 47 S. E. 450.

Admissions as to Prior Marriage.—In a prosecution for bigamy, an admission of a prior marriage is evidence of the marriage of the first wife. State v. Goulden, 134 N. C. 743, 47 S. E. 450.

Where a defendant charged with bigamy, upon the pre- liminary examination before a Justice of the Peace, was being cautioned that his statements could be used against him, stated that he had been married to his former wife while a slave in South Carolina, had children by her and was subsequently married in North Carolina to his present wife, such admissions were competent to go to the jury, on his trial in the superior court, as to his guilt. State v. Moon, 120 N. C. 591, 26 S. E. 969.

Trespassory of First Wife.—In an indictment for bigamy, the first wife of the defendant is a competent witness to prove the marriage. State v. Melton, 120 N. C. 591, 26 S. E. 969.

The record book of marriage for the county or the original marriage license signed by the Justice solemnizing the marriage is admissible to prove a marriage. State v. Melton, 120 N. C. 591, 26 S. E. 969.

Second Marriage out of State.—It was held formerly that the courts of this State could not take jurisdiction of the case where the second marriage took place out of the State. State v. Coates, 83 N. C. 355, 63 S. E. 653. In this decision a clause was inserted in the section in furtherance of a purpose to make the offense cognizable in this State no matter where it occurred out of the State without proving that the parties afterwards cohabited in North Carolina. The constitutionality of the section was upheld in State v. Long, 143 N. C. 570, 671, 57 S. E. 349, but from the statement of facts in that case it appears that while the second marriage took place in another state, the parties later cohabited in North Carolina, the parties, having once contracted a marriage, were subject to the jurisdiction upon the courts. See State v. Herron, 175 N. C. 754, 74 S. E. 698; State v. Moon, 178 N. C. 715, 100 S. E. 614.

Pleading and Proof.—If the defendant wishes to rely upon the fact that the offense of bigamy was committed outside the state, he can not move to quash or in arrest, but must prove the fact in defense under his plea of not guilty. State v. Barrington, 141 N. C. 630, 51 S. E. 661; State v. Burton, 138 N. C. 375, 57 S. E. 214; State v. Mitchell, 83 N. C. 674; State v. Long, 143 N. C. 671, 67 S. E. 269.

Foreign Divorces.—Where a decree of divorce in another state, which is attacked by the prosecution for insufficient residence in such other state, is relied upon as the only defense on a trial for bigamy, the defendant must satisfy the jury that he was not unjustly deprived of the benefit of his residence in the other state. State v. Herron, 175 N. C. 574, 94 S. E. 698.

A man and a woman from this state to Nevada and, after residing there for a time sufficient to meet the requirements of a Nevada statute, secured decrees from a Nevada court, divorcing them from their respective spouses, and later in the same year solemnized another marriage in Nevada. A Nevada divorce decree based on substituted service, where defendant made no appearance, could not be recognized in this state, and (2) that defendants went to Nevada, not to es... work bonâ fide residence, but solely for the purpose of taking advantage of the laws of that state to obtain a divorce through a fraud upon the Nevada court. It was held that, as it could not be determined on the record that the verdict was not based solely upon an agreement involving a construction and application of the Federal Constitu- tion—the review in the supreme court of the United States must be of that ground, leaving the other out of considera- tion. Williams v. North Carolina, 177 U. S. 207, 21 S. E. 189, reversing 220 N. C. 445, 17 S. E. (2d) 769.

Proof of a divorce granted in another State, upon a trial for bigamy, is not only unnecessary but no evidence of the fact should be submitted to the jury under proper instructions. State v. Herron, 175 N. C. 734, 94 S. E. 698.

The Indictment. — An indictment for bigamy which charges that the marriage is "fraudulent and felonious" and that the alleged "married man, did marry one W. during the life of his first wife," sufficiently avers the first marriage. State v. Davis, 109 N. C. 780, 14 S. E. 55.

Same—Name of First Wife. — It is not necessary, in an in- dictment for bigamy, to set out the name of the first wife. State v. Davis, 109 N. C. 780, 14 S. E. 55.

Same—Neglecting Divorce Unnecessary. — It was not neces- sary that an indictment for bigamy should contain an aver- rant that the defendant had not been divorced from his wife. State v. Norman, 13 N. C. 222; State v. Davis, 109 N. C. 780, 14 S. E. 55; State v. Melton, 120 N. C. 591, 596, 25 S. E. 938.

Same—Time and Place of Marriage. — This section does not by its language make it necessary for the indictment to state the time and place of the marriage. State v. Taylor, 15-155 expressly en- ables the court from rendering judgment. This seems to be the status of affairs in this state until a party marries while in another county in which he is apprehended, and it is not required that a bill be used. Id. The state is not called upon to allege or prove the bigamous cohabitation takes place. State v. Williams, 220 N. C. 445, 17 S. E. (2d) 769, reversed on other grounds by State v. Lyerly, 52 N. C. 158, s. 2; C. S. 4345.)

Venue. — Defendant may be prosecuted for bigamy in the county in which he is apprehended, and it is not required that the prosecution be instituted in the county in which the marriage took place. State v. Mann, 135 N. C. 571, 14 S. E. 549; State v. Williams, 220 N. C. 445, 17 S. E. (2d) 769, reversed on other grounds, in Williams v. North Carolina, 317 U. S. 287, 63 S. Ct. 207, 87 L. Ed. 189.

§ 14-184. Fornication and adultery. — If any man and woman, not being married to each other, shall lewdly and lasciviously associate, bed and cohabit together, they shall be guilty of a misdemeanor: Provided, that the admissions or confessions of one of them shall not be received in evidence against the other. (Rev. s. 3350; Code, s. 1041; R. C., s. 34, s. 45; 1805, s. 684; C. S. 4346.)

General Consideration. — Adultery is an aggravated species of fornication. State v. Roberts, 135 N. C. 490, 124 S. E. 833. For- nication occurs upon cohabitation after miscegenation. See § 14-184 and notes thereto.

The law of adultery as hereinafter defined and punished by the statutes on the subject relates only to relations of opposite sexes. State v. Doolittle, 107 N. C. 866, 12 S. E. 83; and were of different sex. State v. Britt, 150 N. C. 811, 812. Evidence of the same must be admissible and competent; and evidence of the same is admissible when made by the female defendant in the presence of the male. See State v. Roberts, 135 N. C. 490, 124 S. E. 833.

Evidence. — The admissions or confessions of one party are not to be received against the codefendant. State v. Rhine- hart, 105 N. C. 787, 11 S. E. 512. However, it has been held that under certain circumstances such declarations are ad- missible when made by the female defendant in the presence of the male. See State v. Roberts, 135 N. C. 490, 124 S. E. 833.

It is proper to prove that either defendant had a liv- ing spouse. State v. Manly, 95 N. C. 661. Statements and conduct prior to the offense and any evidence of a affair with the arrested spouse, which is admissible. (Hansley v. Austin, 108 N. C. 780, 13 S. E. 219, as is also testimony as to conduct of the parties after indictment. State v. Stubbs, 108 N. C. 764, 13 S. E. 90.)

Adulterous as to One Party. — Where only one party is convic- ted and the other acquitted, there can be no judgment against the one convicted. State v. Mainor, 28 N. C. 340.

This holding was followed in the case of State v. Loyler, 52 N. C. 158, and was held as law in this state until doubted in the opinion of Mr. Justice Davis in State v. Rhinehart, 106 N. C. 787, 11 S. E. 512. The case came before the court from the district court of Dare County, and the case was reversed, the court from rendering judgment. This seems to be the status of affairs in this state until doubted in the opinion of Mr. Justice Davis in State v. Rhinehart, 106 N. C. 787, 11 S. E. 512.

Both Convicted—New Trial as to One.—Following a line of reasoning similar to that discussed in the foregoing par- agraph, the court in State v. Parham, 133 N. C. 577, 57 S. E. 497, held that if both defendants are convicted, a new trial may be granted as to one party without disturbing the verdict as to the other.

Punishment.— In fixing the punishment of persons con- victed under this section, the courts have looked to the pro- visions of section 14-3 which prescribes the punishment of misdemeanors for which a specific punishment has not been fixed.—Ed. Note.

Persons convicted of fornication and adultery may be im- prisoned in the common jail for a period to be fixed in the discretion of the court. State v. Manly, 95 N. C. 661, 663, citing State v. McNeal, 75 N. C. 15; State v. Jackson, 82 N. C. 565.

The court has power, during the term, to correct or modify an unexecuted judgment in criminal as well as in civil actions. State v. Manly, 95 N. C. 661, 663. See also, In re Brittain, 91 N. C. 387.

Applied in State v. Miller, 214 N. C. 317, 199 S. E. 89.

§ 14-185. Inducing female persons to enter ho- tels or boarding-houses for immoral purposes.— Any person who shall knowingly persuade, induce or entice, or cause to be persuaded, induced or en- ticed, any woman or girl to enter a hotel, public inn or boarding-house for the purpose of prostitu- tion or debauchery or for the purpose of any other immoral purpose, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and, upon conviction, shall be punished in the dis- cretion of the court. (1917, c. 158, s. 1; C. S. 4344.)

§ 14-186. Opposite sexes occupying same bed- room at hotel for immoral purposes; falsely regist- ering as husband and wife.—Any man and woman occu- pying the same bedroom in any hotel, public inn or boarding-house for any immoral purpose, or any man and woman falsely registering as, or otherwise representing themselves to be, husband and wife in any hotel, public inn or boarding-house, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and, upon conviction, shall be punished in the discretion of the court. (1917, c. 158, s. 2; C. S. 4345.)

§ 14-187. Permitting unmarried female under eighteen in house of prostitution.—Whoever, being the keeper of a house of prostitution, or as- signation house, building or premises in the state where prostitution, fornication or concubinage is allowed or practiced, shall suffer or permit any unmarried female under the age of eighteen years to live, board, stop, or room in such house, building or premises, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (1919, c. 288; Pub. Loc. 1913, c. 761, s. 18; C. S. 4346.)

§ 14-188. Certain evidence relative to keeping disorderly houses admissible; keepers of such houses defined.—On a prosecution in any court for keeping a disorderly house or bawdy-house, or permitting a house to be used as a bawdy-house, or used in such a way as to make it disorderly, or a common nuisance, evidence of the general reputation or character of the house shall be admissible and competent; and evidence of the lewd, dissolve and boisterous conversation of the inmates and frequenters, while in and around such house, shall be prima facie evidence of the bad character of the inmates and frequenters, and of the disorderly character of the house. The manager or person having the care, superintendency or government of a disorderly house or bawdy-house is the “keeper” thereof, and one who employs another to manage and conduct a disorderly house or bawdy-house is also “keeper” thereof.

Constitutionality.—This section is constitutional. State v. Price, 175 N. C. 804, 95 S. E. 478.

Disorderly House Defined—Illustrations. — A disorderly house is kept in such a way as to disturb or scandalize the public generally, or the inhabitants of a particular neighborhood, or the passers-by. State v. Wilson, 92 N. C. 628. A few of the decided cases are given here in order that the counsel may have an idea as to what situations and conditions have been held to be included in the definition set out in the above paragraph.

The following have been held to constitute disorderly houses: A shop in which disorderly crowds assemble. State v. Robertson, 86 N. C. 628. A store in which persons collect and disturb the neighborhood. State v. Thomson, 44 N. C. 252.

The following have been held not to constitute disorderly houses: A private dwelling wherein an uproar was frequently raised but which disturbed few people. State v. Wright, 51 N. C. 25. The residence of an unchaste woman. State v. Evans, 27 N. C. 603.

Persons Leasing Premises as a “Keeper.”—A person who has knowledge that it is to be used for disorderly and unlawful purposes is treated as a direct offender. State v. Boyd, 175 N. C. 791, 95 S. E. 101.

Powers of City Authorities. — In the exercise of the powers of a municipality to enact ordinances concerning houses of ill-fame is discussed by Mr. Justice Avery in State v. Webber, 107 N. C. 962, 12 S. E. 598.

Evidence.—This section authorizes the admission of evidence tending to show the lewd, dissolute, and especially lewd conversation of the inmates and frequenters of the house, and especially provides that evidence of the general reputation or of the conduct of the inmates of a house house or bawdy-house shall be admissible and competent.

State v. Hilderbran, 201 N. C. 780, 161 S. E. 488.

§ 14-189. Obscene literature.—It shall be unlawful for any person, firm or corporation to exhibit for the purpose of gain or for display for sale, lend or hire, or otherwise publish or sell for the purpose of gain, or exhibit in any school, college, or other place of instruction, or have in his possession for the purpose of sale or distribution, any obscene literature, as determined and defined in the postal laws and regulations of the United States post office department, in the form of book, paper-writing, print, drawing, or other representation, at any newsstand, book store, drug store or other public or private places; or if any person shall post any indecent placards, writings, pictures or drawings on walls, fences, billboards or other public or private places, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Rev., s. 3731; 1885, c. 125; 1907, c. 502; 1935, c. 57; 1941, c. 273; C. S. 4348(a).)

Editor’s Note.—The 1941 amendment added the last sentence to this section. For comment on the amendment, see 19 N. C. Law Rev. 479.

§ 14-191. Sheriffs and deputies to report violations of two preceding sections.—It shall be the duty of the sheriffs and their deputies of the various counties to report to the proper county officer any such violation, and in the discharge of their duties they shall be entitled to receive reasonable compensation for their services.

Powers of Officers.—Under section 14-189 it was held that the chief of police and his lawful officers or subordinates had the right to prevent or suppress an indecent or immoral show, given in any public place or in any place to which the public were invited and, in the proper discharge of these duties, they could act immediately whenever such exhibitions were taking place in their presence or were imminent and their interference was required to prevent them. Brewer v. Wynne, 163 N. C. 319, 79 S. E. 629.

§ 14-192. Cutting or painting obscene words or pictures near public places.—It shall be unlawful for any person to write, cut or carve any indecent word, or to paint, cut or carve any obscene or lewd picture or representation, on any tree or other object near the public highways or other public places. Any person guilty of violating this section shall be fined not more than fifty dollars, or imprisoned not more than thirty days. (1907, c. 944; C. S. 4349.)

§ 14-193. Exhibition of obscene or immoral pictures; posting of advertisements. — If any person, firm, or corporation shall, for the purpose of gain or otherwise, exhibit any obscene or immoral motion pictures; or if any person, firm or corporation shall post any obscene or immoral placard, writings, pictures, or drawings on walls, fences, billboards, or other places, advertising theatrical exhibitions or moving picture exhibitions or shows; or if any person, firm, or corporation shall permit such obscene or immoral exhibitions to be conducted in any tent, booth, or other place or building owned or controlled by said person, firm, or corporation, the person, firm, or corporation performing either one or all of the said acts shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and punishable in the discretion of the court. For the purpose of enforcing this statute any spectator at the exhibition of an obscene or immoral moving picture may make the necessary affidavit upon which the warrant for said offense is issued. (1921, c. 212; C. S. 4340(a).)

§ 14-194. Circulating publications barred from the mails.—It shall be unlawful for any news agent, news dealer, book-seller, or any other person, firm, or corporation to offer for sale, sell, or cause to be circulated within the State of North Carolina any magazine, periodical, or other publication which is now or may hereafter be excluded from the United States mails.

It shall be unlawful for any person, firm, or corporation to offer for sale, sell, or give to any person under the age of twenty-one years any such magazine, periodical, or other publication which is now or may hereafter be excluded from the United States mails.

This section shall not be construed to in any way conflict with or abridge the freedom of the press, and shall in no way affect any publication which is permitted to be sent through the United States mails.

Any person, firm, or corporation violating any of the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Ex. Sess. 1924, c. 45.)

Editor's Note.—A practical criticism of the effect of this section upon the freedom of the press will be found in 4 N. C. Law Rev. 35. See also the review in 5 N. C. Law Rev. 26.

§ 14-195. Using profane or indecent language on passenger trains.—It shall be unlawful for any person to curse or use profane or indecent language on any passenger train. Any person so offending shall upon conviction be fined not more than fifty dollars or imprisoned not more than thirty days. (1907, c. 470, ss. 1, 2; C. S. 4350.)

§ 14-196. Using profane or indecent language to female telephone operators.—It shall be unlawful for any person to use any lewd or profane words, or any words of vulgarity, or to use indecent language to any female telephone operator operating any telephone, switchboard, circuit or line. Any person violating this section shall upon conviction be guilty of a misdemeanor. (1913, c. 33; 1915, c. 41; C. S. 4351.)

§ 14-197. Using profane or indecent language on public highways, counties exempt.—If any person shall, on any public road or highway and in the hearing of two or more persons, in a loud and boisterous manner, use indecent or profane language, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction shall be fined not exceeding fifty dollars or imprisoned not exceeding thirty days. The following counties shall be exempt from the provisions of this section: Beaufort, Brunswick, Camden, Cleveland, Craven, Dare, Macon, Martin, Orange, Pasquotank, Pitt, Stanly, Swain, Transylvania, Tyrrell, Washington and Watauga. (1913, c. 40; Pub. Loc. Ex. Sess. 1924, c. 65; 1933, c. 309; 1937, c. 9; 1939, c. 73; C. S. 4352.)

Editor's Note.—Public Laws of 1933, c. 309, omitted Gates from the list of excepted counties. The 1937 amendment struck out Perquimans and the 1939 amendment struck out Jones.

§ 14-198. Lewd women within three miles of colleges and boarding-schools.—If any loose woman or woman of ill-fame shall commit any act of lewdness with or in the presence of any student, who is under twenty-one years old, of any boarding-school or college, within three miles of such school or college, she shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be fined not exceeding fifty dollars or imprisoned not exceeding thirty days. Upon the trial of any such case students may be competent but not compellable to give evidence. No prosecution shall be had under this section after the lapse of six months. (Rev., s. 3353; 1889, c. 523; C. S. 4353.)

§ 14-199. Obstructing way to places of public worship.—If any person shall maliciously stop up or obstruct the way leading to any place of public worship, or to any spring or well commonly used by the congregation, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be fined not more than fifty dollars or imprisoned not more than thirty days. (Rev., s. 3776; Code, s. 3669; R. C, c. 97, s. 5; 1785, c. 241; C. S. 4354.)

Cross References.—As to procedure for laying out church roads, see § 136-71. As to obstruction of such highway, see § 136-90 and annotations thereto.

§ 14-200. Disturbing religious assembly by certain exhibitions.—If any person shall bring within half a mile of any place where the people are assembled for divine worship, and stop for exhibition, any stallion or jack, or shall bring within that distance any natural or artificial curiosities and there exhibit them, he shall forfeit and pay to any one who will sue therefor the sum of twenty dollars and shall also be guilty of a misdemeanor: Provided, that nothing herein shall be construed to prohibit such exhibitions at any time if made within the limits of any incorporated town, or without such limits if made before the hour of ten o'clock in the forenoon or after three o'clock in the afternoon. (Rev., s. 3705; Code, s. 3670; R. C, c. 97, s. 6; 1809, c. 779; s. 1; 1907, c. 432; C. S. 4355.)

Local Modification.—Dare, Hatteras township: C. S. 4355.

§ 14-201. Permitting stone-horses and stone-mules to run at large.—If any person shall let any stone-horse or stone-mule of two years old or upwards run at large, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanour, and shall be fined not exceeding fifty dollars or imprisoned not exceeding thirty days. (Rev., s. 3323; Code, s. 2315; R. C, c. 17, s. 6; 1907, c. 412; C. S. 4356.)

Local Modification.—Dare, Hatteras township: C. S. 4356.

§ 14-202. Secretly peeping into room occupied by woman.—Any person who shall peep secretly into any room occupied by a woman shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction shall be fined or imprisoned in the discretion of the court. (1923, c. 78; C. S. 4356(a).)

Editor's Note.—It was suggested in 1 N. C. Law Rev. 286 that although this law is made to apply generally to all persons, it is believed that it will not interfere with police officers or detectives who may be compelled to violate the letter of the law to get evidence.

Art. 27. Prostitution.

§ 14-203. Definition of terms.—The term "prostitution" shall be construed to include the offering or receiving of the body for sexual intercourse for § 14-204. Prostitution and various acts abetting prostitution unlawful.—It shall be unlawful:

1. To keep, set up, maintain, or operate any place, structure, building, or conveyance for the purpose of prostitution or assignation.

2. To occupy any place, structure, building, or conveyance for the purpose of prostitution or assignation; or for any person to permit any place, structure, building or conveyance owned by him or under his control to be used for the purpose of prostitution or assignation, with knowledge or reasonable cause to know that the same is, or is to be, used for such purpose.

3. To receive, or to offer or agree to receive any person into any place, structure, building, or conveyance for the purpose of prostitution or assignation, or to permit any person to remain there for such purpose.

4. To direct, take, or transport, or to offer or agree to take or transport, any person to any place, structure, or building or to any other person, with knowledge or reasonable cause to know that the purpose of such directing, taking, or transporting is prostitution or assignation.

5. To procure, or to solicit, or to offer to procure or solicit for the purpose of prostitution or assignation.

6. To reside in, enter, or remain in any place, structure, or building, or to enter or remain in any conveyance, for the purpose of prostitution or assignation.

7. To engage in prostitution or assignation, or to aid or abet prostitution or assignation by any means whatsoever. (1919, c. 215, s. 1; C. S. 4358.)

Cross Reference.—As to declaring houses of prostitution to be nuisances, see § 19-1.

Transporting.—Where defendants, taxi drivers, were apprehended in a clearing in the woods, each under the wheel of his taxi with motor running, and carrying soldiers, the evidence of the character of the scene and the other circumstantial evidence was sufficient to support the inference that defendants knew their destination and brought their conveyance for the purpose of prostitution or assignation contrary to the form of the statute and against the language of subsection 7 of this section, and is sufficient to charge the offense therein proscribed. State v. Willis, 220 N. C. 712, 18 S. E. (2d) 118.

Aiding and Abetting.—A warrant alleging that defendant on a particular day in the designated county "did unlawfully, and willfully aid and abet in the prostitution and assignment contrary to the form of the statute and against the peace and dignity of the state" follows the language of subsection 7 of this section, and is sufficient to charge the offense therein proscribed. State v. Johnson, 220 N. C. 773, 18 S. E. (2d) 358.

Competency of Evidence.—Evidence of the reputation of the upstairs of a building owned by defendant, and of the persons frequenting it, is competent in a prosecution under this section. State v. Waggoner, 207 N. C. 396, 176 S. E. 566.

Cited in State v. Fletcher, 199 N. C. 815, 155 S. E. 927.

§ 14-205. Prosecution: in what courts.—Prosecutions for the violation of any of the provisions of this article shall be tried in the courts of this state wherein misdemeanors are triable except those courts the jurisdiction of which is so limited by the constitution of this state that such jurisdiction cannot by statute be extended to include criminal actions of the character herein described. (1919, c. 215, s. 6; C. S. 4359.)

§ 14-206. Reputation and prior conviction admissible as evidence.—In the trial of any person charged with a violation of any of the provisions of this article, testimony of a prior conviction, or testimony concerning the reputation of any place, structure, or building, and of the person or persons who reside in or frequent the same, and of the defendant, shall be admissible in evidence in support of the charge. (1919, c. 215, s. 3; C. S. 4360.)

§ 14-207. Degrees of guilt.—Any person who shall be found to have committed two or more violations of any of the provisions of § 14-204 of this article within a period of one year next preceding the date named in an indictment, information, or charge of violating any of the provisions of such section, shall be deemed guilty in the first degree. Any person who shall be found to have committed a single violation of any of the provisions of such section shall be deemed guilty in the second degree. (1919, c. 215, s. 4; C. S. 4361.)

Province of Judge.—When the degree of guilt has been properly ascertained the judge doubtless has the right to hear testimony for the purpose of fixing the terms of imprisonment within the limits of the statute; but this right does not extend to or include the finding by the judge of the degree of the offender's guilt. State v. Barnes, 122 N. C. 1031, 29 S. E. 381; State v. Lee, 192 N. C. 225, 134 S. E. 458; State v. Brinkley, 193 N. C. 747, 748, 138 S. E. 138.

§ 14-208. Punishment; probation; parole.—Any person who shall be deemed guilty in the first degree, as set forth in § 14-207, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and may be fined or imprisoned in the discretion of the court, or may be committed to any penal or reformatory institution in this state: Provided, that in case of a commitment to a reformatory institution, the commitment shall not exceed an indeterminate period of time of not less than one nor more than three years in duration, and the board of managers or directors of the reformatory institution shall have authority to discharge or to place on parole any person so committed after the service of the minimum term or any part thereof, and to require the return to said institution for the balance of the maximum term of any person who shall violate the terms or conditions of the parole.

Any person who shall be deemed guilty in the second degree, as set forth in § 14-207, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be fined or imprisoned at the discretion of the court: Provided, that the defendant may be placed on probation in the care of a probation officer designated by law, or theretofore appointed by the court.

Probation or parole shall be granted or ordered in the case of a person infected with venereal disease only on such terms and conditions as shall insure medical treatment therefor and prevent the spread thereof, and the court may order any convicted defendant to be examined for venereal disease.

No girl or woman who shall be convicted under this article shall be placed on probation or on parole in the care or charge of any person except [ 672 ] to commit such willful and corrupt perjury as is mentioned in § 14-209, the person so offending shall be punished in like manner as the person committing the perjury. (Rev., 1899, c. 54, s. 97; C. S. 2364.)

Cross Reference.—See also, § 58-302.

§ 14-215. False oath to certificate of mutual fire insurance company.—Any person taking a false oath in respect to the certificate required by law before issuing policies in a mutual fire insurance company shall be guilty of perjury. (Rev., 1913, c. 89, s. 28; C. S. 4370.)

Cross Reference.—See also, § 58-302.

§ 14-216. False oath to certificate of mutual fire insurance company.—Any person taking a false oath in respect to the certificate required by law before issuing policies in a mutual fire insurance company shall be guilty of perjury. (Rev., 1899, c. 54, s. 97; C. S. 4368.)

§ 14-212. Perjury in court-martial proceedings.—If any person shall willfully and corruptly swear falsely before any court-martial, touching and concerning any matter or thing cognizable before such court-martial, he shall be liable to the pains and penalties of perjury. (Rev., s. 3493; 1899, c. 54, s. 97; C. S. 4368.)

§ 14-213. False oath to statement of insurance company.—Any person who shall make oath to a false or fraudulent statement in the annual report or other statement required by law from an insurance company shall be guilty of perjury. (Rev., s. 3493; 1899, c. 54, s. 97; C. S. 4368.)

§ 14-214. False oath to procure benefit of insurance policy or certificate.—Any person who shall willfully and knowingly present or cause to be presented a false or fraudulent claim, or any proof in support of such claim, for the payment of a loss, or other benefits, upon a contract of insurance; or prepares, makes or subscribes to a false or fraudulent account, certificate, affidavit or proof of loss, or other document or writing, with intent that the same may be presented or used in support of such claim, shall be punishable by imprisonment for not more than five years or by a fine of not more than five hundred ($500.00) dollars, or by both such fine or imprisonment within the discretion of the court. (Rev., s. 3487; 1899, c. 54, s. 60; 1913, c. 89, s. 98; 1937, c. 248; C. S. 4353.)

Burden of Proof on State.—The burden is upon the state to prove that the claim for loss was false, that defendant knew it was false, and that, with such knowledge, he proceeded to make the claim for payment of insurance thereon. State v. Stephenson, 218 N. C. 198, 10 S. E. (2d) 819.

§ 14-215. False oath to statement required of fraternal benefit societies.—Any person who shall willfully make any false statement in any verified report or declaration under oath, required or authorized by law from fraternal benefit societies, shall be guilty of perjury. (1913, c. 89, s. 28; C. S. 4370.)

Cross Reference.—See also, § 58-302.

§ 14-216. False oath to certificate of mutual fire insurance company.—Any person taking a false oath in respect to the certificate required by law before issuing policies in a mutual fire insurance company shall be guilty of perjury. (Rev., s. 3611; Code, s. 2857; 1869-70, c. 5, s. 4; C. S. 4366.)

§ 14-213. False oath to statement of insurance company.—Any person who shall make oath to a willfully false statement in the annual report or other statement required by law from an insurance company shall be guilty of perjury. (Rev., s. 3493; 1899, c. 54, s. 97; C. S. 4368.)
company, that every subscription for insurance is genuine and made with an agreement that every subscriber will take the policies subscribed for by him within thirty days after granting a license to such company, shall be guilty of perjury. (Rev., ss. 473; 1868-9, c. 176, ss. 2, 3; 1903, c. 438; s. 4; C. S. 4371.)

Cross Reference.—As to the oaths required of officers of a mutual fire insurance company, see § 58-92.

Art. 29. Bribery.

§ 14-217. Bribery of officials.—If any person holding office under the laws of this state who, except in payment of his legal salary, fees or perquisites, shall receive, or consent to receive, directly or indirectly, anything of value or personal advantage, or the promise thereof, for performing or omitting to perform any official act, or with the express or implied understanding that his official action, or omission to act, is to be in any degree influenced thereby, he shall be guilty of a felony, and shall be punished by imprisonment in the state's prison for a term not exceeding five years, or fined not exceeding five thousand dollars, or both, in the discretion of the court. (Rev., s. 3568; Code, s. 4372.)

Cross References.—As to bank examiners' accepting bribes, see § 14-233. As to bribing agents and servants to violate duties owed employers, see § 14-353. As to bribery of baseball players, umpires, and officials, see § 14-373 et seq. As to when costs of prosecuting charges of bribery shall be paid by the state, see § 6-16.

"The distinction between bribery and extortion seems to be that the former offense consists in offering a present or reward, or any promise, contract, undertaking, obligation or security for the payment or delivery of any money, goods, right of action, bribe, present or reward, or any other valuable thing whatever, to any member of the senate or house of representatives of this state after his election as such member, and either before or after he shall have qualified and taken his seat, with intent to influence his vote or decision on any question, matter, cause or proceeding which may then be pending before the general assembly, or which may come before him for action in his capacity as a member of the general assembly, such person so offering, promising or giving, or causing or procuring to be promised, offered or given, any such money, goods, bribe, present or reward, or any bond, contract, undertaking, obligation or security for the payment or delivery of any money, goods, bribe, present or reward, or other valuable thing whatever, and the member-elect who shall in anywise accept or receive the same or any part thereof, shall be guilty of a felony, and shall be fined not exceeding double the amount so offered, promised or given, and imprisoned in the state's prison not exceeding five years, and the person convicted of so accepting or receiving the same, or any part thereof, shall forfeit his seat in the general assembly and shall be forever disqualified to hold any office of honor, trust or profit under this state. (Rev., s. 3570; Code, s. 2852; 1868-9, c. 176, s. 5; C. S. 4374.)

§ 14-220. Bribery of jurors.—If any juror, either directly or indirectly, shall take anything from the plaintiff or defendant in a civil suit, or from any defendant in a state prosecution, or from any other person, to give his verdict, every such juror, and the person who shall give such juror any fee or reward to influence his verdict, or induce or procure him to make any gain or profit by his verdict, shall be guilty of a felony, and shall be imprisoned in the state's prison or county jail not less than four months nor more than ten years. (Rev., s. 3897; Code, s. 990; R. C., s. 34, s. 84; § Edw. III, c. 10; 34 Edw. III, c. 8; 58 Edw. III, c. 12; C. S. 4375.)

§ 14-221. Breaking or entering jails with intent to injure prisoners.—If any person shall conspire to break or enter any jail or other place of confinement of prisoners charged with crime or under sentence, for the purpose of killing or otherwise injuring any prisoner confined therein; or if any person shall engage in breaking or entering any such jail or other place of confinement of such prisoners with intent to kill or injure any prisoner, he shall be guilty of a felony, and upon conviction, or upon a plea of guilty, shall be fined not less than five hundred dollars, and imprisoned in the state's prison or the county jail not less than two nor more than fifteen years. (Rev., s. 3998; 1893, c. 461, s. 1; C. S. 4376.)

Cross References.—As to cost of investigating lynchings, see § 6-43. As to sheriff's duty to protect prisoner, see § 165-21. As to investigation of lynchings, see § 15-98 and § 114-15. As to venue, see § 15-128.

Conviction of Attempt.—On an indictment under this section as construed with sections 15-128 and 15-170, the defendant may be found guilty of an attempt. State v. Rumple, 178 N. C. 717, 100 S. E. 622.

Indictment Need Not Charge Accomplices.—It was error to quash a bill of indictment under this section which charged the defendant with conspiring "with others" to commit the crime of lynching, because it did not name the other charge that they were unknown. State v. Lewis, 142 N. C. 626, 58 S. E. 600. As to effect of splitting act of 1893, see note of this case under section 6-43.

Indictment in Adjoining County.—In an indictment for lynching it was error to quash the bill on the ground that it appeared on the face of the bill that the offense charged was committed in the county in which the bill was found, but in an adjoining county. See sec. 15-128. State v. Lewis, 142 N. C. 626, 58 S. E. 600.
§ 14-222. Refusal of witness to appear or to testify in investigations of lynchings.—If any person summoned as a witness in the investigation of a charge of lynching shall willfully fail to attend as a witness in obedience to the process served on him, or if, after being sworn, he shall refuse to answer questions pertinent to the matter being investigated before any tribunal, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and, on conviction, shall be fined or imprisoned, or both, at the discretion of the court. (Rev., s. 3699; 1899, c. 461, s. 3; C. S. 4377.)

Cross Reference.—As to privilege of witnesses, see § 15-99.

§ 14-223. Resisting officers.—If any person shall willfully and unlawfully resist, delay or obstruct a public officer in discharging his office, or attempting to discharge a duty of his office, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Rev., s. 3700; 1889, c. 51, s. 1; C. S. 4378.)

Cross References.—As to powers and duties of constable, see §§ 151-7 and 160-18. As to criminal authority of police officers, see §§ 160-21. As to arrest in general, see §§ 15-39 et seq. 569.

Indictment in Two Counts.—An indictment having two counts, one against one person under this section, and the other against several persons under section 14-224, is defective but not objected to before a verdict which convictions on one count and acquits on the other, is not sufficient grounds for arrest of judgment, as the acquittal is equivalent to a nolle pros. State v. Perdue, 107 N. C. 853, 12 S. E. 253.

Quashing Indictment if Sufficient to Convict of Assault.—Where an indictment for resisting an officer is defective, as such it only not to be quashed if the defendant may be convicted thereon for a simple assault. State v. Dunn, 105 N. C. 839, 13 S. E. 881.

Process Must Be Legal.—A person is not liable for resisting an unlawful arrest, as where the warrant lacked a seal and the officer did not state what he arrested him for. State v. Curtis, 2 N. C. 471.

Authority of Officer and Notice to Party.—"If the officer has no authority to make the arrest, or has the authority, is not known to be an officer and does not in some way notify the party that he is an officer and has authority, the party arrested may lawfully resist the arrest as if it were made by a private person." State v. Belk, 76 N. C. 10, 14; State v. Kirby, 24 N. C. 301; State v. Bryant, 65 N. C. 327.

In a prosecution for resisting arrest under this section, a defense that the arrest was made by a constable outside of his township and that therefore defendant did not resist an officer in the performance of his duty is unavailing in view of the cases in State v. Stringer, 24 N. C. 201, 207 N. C. 805, 178 S. E. 564. State v. Coppening, 207 N. C. 805, 178 S. E. 564.

Preventing Road Overseer Cutting Ditch.—See State v. New, 130 N. C. 771, 41 S. E. 1033.

Resisting Second Service of Warrant.—Defendant is not liable for assault and battery for resisting an entry into his house by an officer armed with a warrant which had once been returned, though defendant had entered into a recognizance and failed to appear. State v. Queen, 66 N. C. 615.

Persons Aiding and Abetting.—See State v. Morris, 10 N. C. 615.

§ 14-224. Failing to aid police officers.—If any person, after having been lawfully commanded to aid an officer in arresting any person, or in taking any person who has escaped from lawful custody, or in executing any legal process, willfully neglects or refuses to aid such officer, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Rev., s. 3701; 1889, c. 51, s. 2; C. S. 4379.)
of record wherein justice is administered; or if any person shall give or pay money, reward or other profit, or shall make any promise, agreement, bond or assurance for any of such offices, or for the deputation of any of them, or for any part of them, the person so offending in any of the cases aforesaid shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and, on conviction thereof, shall forfeit all his right, interest and estate in such office, and every part and parcel thereof, and shall be imprisoned and fined at the discretion of the court. (Rev., s. 3571; Code, s. 998; R. C., c. 34, s. 33; 5, 6 Edw. VI, c. 16, ss. 1, 5; C. S. 4383.)

Cross References.—As to sheriff letting to farm his office, see §128-3. As to validity of bargain to sell an office, see §128-5.

§ 14-229. Acting as officer before qualifying as such.—If any officer shall enter on the duties of his office before he executes and delivers to the authority entitled to receive the same the bonds required by law, and qualifies by taking and subscribing and filing in the proper office the oath of office prescribed, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be ejected from his office. (Rev., s. 3565; Code, s. 79; C. S. 4385.)

§ 14-230. Willfully failing to discharge duties.—If any clerk of any court of record, sheriff, justice of the peace, recorder, prosecuting attorney of any recorder's court, county commissioner, county surveyor, coroner, treasurer, constable or official of any of the state institutions, or of any county, city or town, shall willfully omit, neglect or refuse to discharge any of the duties of his office, for default whereof it is not elsewhere provided that he shall be indicted, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. If it shall be proved that such officer, after his qualification, willfully and corruptly omitted, neglected or refused to discharge any of the duties of his office, or willfully and corruptly violated his oath of office according to the true intent and meaning thereof, such officer shall be guilty of misbehavior in office and shall be dismissed by removal therefrom under the sentence of the court as a part of the punishment for the offense, and shall also be fined or imprisoned in the discretion of the court. (Rev., s. 3592; 1901, c. 270, s. 2; 1943, c. 347; C. S. 4384.)

Cross References.—As to failure of county commissioners to perform duty, see §153-15. As to failure of sheriff to make return, see §14-242. As to prosecution of officers failing to discharge duties, see §128-16 et seq.

Editor's Note.—The 1943 amendment made this section applicable to recorders and prosecuting attorneys of recorder's courts.

In General.—"The law will not countenance or condone any attempt to extend its mandates. The private citizen must obey the law, and the public officer is not exempt from this duty by any special privilege appertaining to his office. He is not wiser than the law, nor is he above it. The truth is, that if he willfully neglects or omits to perform a public duty, he is liable to indictment at common law. State v. Commissioners, 4 N. C. 419; State v. Williams, 34 N. C. 172; State v. Com's, 48 N. C. 399; State v. Ferguson, 73 N. C. 197; the neglect, omission or refusal to discharge any of his official duties is willful and corrupt, it is criminal misbehavior, and subjects him to indictment for a misdemeanor and punishment by fine or imprisonment, and, as a part of the penalty, to removal from office." State ex rel. Battle v. Rocky Mount, 156 N. C. 329, 337, 72 S. E. 354.

Proceedings of Forfeiture under Section 1-515.—Forfeiture exacted by judgment of a motion from office as a part of the punishment, through the clerk has been convicted of a misdemeanor, under this section in willfully neglecting to discharge the duties of his office, but proceedings of forfeiture must be under section 1.-515. State v. Norman, 82 N. C. 669. No Willful Neglect and Injury to Public.—It is to be observed that the essentials of the crime as prescribed are: first, a willful neglect in the discharge of official duty; and second, injury to the public. State v. Anderson, 196 N. C. 771, 147 E. 395, quoting from State v. Hatch, 116 N. C. 1003, 21 S. E. 436.

Corrupt Intent Not Necessary.—It is not necessary to allege corrupt intent in a bill of indictment against county commissioners for neglect of duty in providing a necessary county service, if it is sufficient to show that the services are ill provided. State v. Looper, 146 N. C. 655, 61 S. E. 585. However honest the defendants may be (and their honesty is not called in question) the public have a right to protection against any such official negligence or unprofessional acts, if there is carelessness amounting to a willful want of care in the discharge of their official duties, which injures the public. State v. Anderson, 196 N. C. 771, 147 E. 385, quoting from State v. Hatch, 116 N. C. 1003, 21 S. E. 436.

Liability for Honest Errors.—It is so well settled that there is nothing to the contrary that an officer who shall exercise his judgment or discretion is not liable criminally for any error which he commits, provided he acts honestly. State v. Powras, 75 N. C. 281, 284.

"If the illegal act be done malafide, then it becomes a crime, and the officer liable both civilly and criminally, but if free of any wicked intent, then he is civilly liable only." State v. Snuggs, 85 N. C. 542, 544.

The Indictment.—It is required that the indictment under this section sufficiently charge the offense of which such officer is accused; and where the action is against the superintendent of a State hospital for the insane, and the indictment charges that he removed or caused to be removed patients to his private farm and caused them to be worked thereon, without allegation of injury to the public, to the benefit of the patients, or of any gain to the defendant, the indictment fails to charge facts sufficient to constitute an offense under the statute, and defendant's motion in arrest of judgment should be allowed. State v. Anderson, 196 N. C. 771, 147 E. 385.

Cited in Moffitt v. Davis, 205 N. C. 555, 570, 172 S. E. 317.

§ 14-231. Failing to make reports and discharge other duties.—If any state or county officer shall fail, neglect or refuse to make, file or publish any report, statement or other paper, or to deliver to his successor all books and other property belonging to his office, or to pay over or deliver to the proper person all moneys which come into his hands by virtue or color of his office, or to discharge any duty devolving upon him by virtue of his office and required of him by law, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Rev., s. 3576; C. S. 4385.)

Cross References.—As to mandamus generally, see §1-511 et seq. As to failure of sheriff to make return, see §14-242. As to embezzlement by officers, see §14-92. As to failure of a county officer to account for public funds, see §§153-47, 109-36, and 109-37.

Injuricus Effect Not Necessary.—The crime exists although no injurious effects result to any individual because of the misconduct of the officer. State v. Glasgow, 1 N. C. 264.

Honesty of Purpose.—There may be neglect without corruption. The truth is, that if the night of an individual or a full defense under this section. Turner v. Mckee, 137 N. C. 251, 254, 49 S. E. 330, and cases there cited.

Enforcing Unconstitutional Law.—An officer is not liable for any misconduct in the discharge of any constitutional statute. State v. Godwin, 123 N. C. 697, 31 S. E. 221.

Liability on Official Bonds.—See sections 109-33 et seq. and notes thereto.

Manager of Elections.—Any conduct of the manager of a primary election for county officials which interferes with the freedom or purity of the election is punishable at common law under this section. State v. Cole, 157 N. C. 618, 72 S. E. 221.

§ 14-232. Swearing falsely to official reports.—If any clerk, sheriff, register of deeds, county commissioner, county treasurer, justice of the peace, constable or other county officer shall willfully swear falsely to any report or statement required by law to be made or filed, concerning or touching the county, state or school revenue, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Rev., s. 3605; Code, s. 731; 1874-5, c. 151, s. 4; 1876-7, c. 276, s. 4; C. S. 4386.)

§ 14-233. Making of false report by bank examiners; accepting bribes.—If any bank examiner shall knowingly and willfully make any false or fraudulent report of the condition of any bank, which shall have been examined by him, with the intent to aid or abet the officers, owners, or agents of such bank in continuing to operate an insolvent bank, or if any such examiner shall keep or accept any bribe or gratuity given for the purpose of inducing him not to file any report of examination of any bank made by him, or shall neglect to make an examination of any bank by reason of having received or accepted any bribe or gratuity, he shall be guilty of a felony, and on conviction thereof shall be imprisoned in the state prison for not less than four months nor more than ten years. (Rev., s. 3324; 1903, c. 275, s. 24; 1921, c. 4, s. 79; C. S. 4387.)

Editor's Note.—The amendment of this section by Public Laws 1921, c. 4, sec. 79, effected one change. Prior to this amendment the offense was "receiving or accepting" any bribe instead of "keeping or accepting" any bribe as the section now reads. It is easy to see the change that this amendment brings about. By the prior law one was an offender if he received a bribe no matter what his purpose might be. If he received the bribe for the sole purpose of bringing the person offering the bribe to justice, he himself was guilty. Under such law it was hard to ascertain one who would not be guilty who were a bank examiner, for the act that would make the officer guilty of bribery would also make the examiner guilty of receiving a bribe. Now the offense is only the keeping and does not subject a bank examiner to punishment for accepting bribes in an attempt to ascertain and convict crooked bank officials.

§ 14-234. Director of public trust contracting for his own benefit.—If any person, appointed or elected a commissioner or director to receive funds from or for any county, city, town or state may be in any manner interested, shall become an undertaker, or make any contract for his own benefit, under such authority, or be in any manner concerned or interested in making such contract, or in the profits thereof, either privately or openly, singly or jointly with another, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. Provided, that this section shall not apply to public officials transacting business with banks or banking institutions in regular course of business: Provided further, that such undertaking or contracting shall be authorized by said governing board. (Rev., s. 3532; Code, s. 1011: R. C., c. 34, s. 38; 1823, c. 1269; 1826, c. 29; 1929, c. 19, s. 1; C. S. 4388.)

Cross Reference.—As to state highway and public works commission selling materials to the commission, see § 136-14.

Editor's Note.—The Act of 1929 added the two provisos at the end of this section.

Effect of Special Validating Act.—Although municipal bonds were sold to a corporation controlled by the mayor, an act passed by the legislature expressly confirming and validating the sale removes all objections based upon the violation of the provisions of this section. Starmount Co. v. Ohio Sav. Bank, etc., Co., 55 F. (2d) 649.

Additional Service. — A member of the board of county commissioners cannot recover for services rendered the board in inspecting a bridge. Davidson v. Guilford County, 152 N. C. 436, 67 S. E. 918.

Officer of City and Corporation.—The prohibition of this section extends to an officer of a corporation in making contracts between the corporation and an undertaking in which he is a commissioner or an alderman. State v. Williams, 153 N. C. 595, 59 S. E. 900.

Contracts between city when an alderman is an employee of the other contracting party are not covered by the section. State v. Weddell, 153 N. C. 587, 68 S. E. 897.

Contracts for Benefit of County.—A sheriff is not guilty of a misdemeanor where he purchases county claims at less than their value, but for the benefit of the county, at the instance of the county commissioners. State v. Garland, 134 N. C. 749, 47 S. E. 426.

§ 14-235. Speculating in claims against towns, cities and the state.—If any clerk, sheriff, register of deeds, county treasurer or other county, city, town or state officer shall engage in the purchasing of any county, city, town or state claim, including teacher's salary voucher, at a less price than its full and true value or at any rate of discount thereon, or be interested in any speculation on any such claim, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be fined or imprisoned, and shall be liable to removal from office at the discretion of the court. (Rev., s. 3575; Code, s. 1009; 1868-95, c. 260; 1923, c. 136, s. 208; C. S. 4389.)

Editor's Note.—The amendment of this section by Public Laws 1921, c. 156, sec. 208, added "including teacher's salary voucher," and replaced the words "speculation in any such claim" with "speculation on any such claim."

§ 14-236. Acting as agent for those furnishing supplies for schools and other state institutions.—If any member of any board of directors, board of managers, board of trustees of any of the educational, charitable, eleemosynary or penal institutions of the state, or any member of any board of education, or any county or district superintendent or examiner of teachers, or any trustee of any school or other institution supported in whole or in part from any of the public funds of the state, or any officer, agent, manager, teacher; or employee of such boards, shall have any pecuniary interest, either directly or indirectly, proximately or remotely in supplying any goods, wares or merchandise of any nature or kind whatsoever for any of said institutions or schools; or if any of such officers, agents, managers, teachers or employees of such institution or school or state or county officer shall act as agent for any manufacturer, merchant, dealer, publisher or author for any article of merchandise to be used by any of said institutions or schools, or receive, directly or indirectly, any gift, emolument, reward or promise of reward for his influence in recommending or procuring the use of any manufactured article, goods, wares or merchandise of any nature or kind whatsoever by any of such institutions or schools, he shall be forthwith removed from his position in the public service, and shall upon conviction be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and fined not less than fifty dollars nor more than five hundred dollars and be imprisoned, in the discretion of the court. (Rev., s. 3833; 1899, c. 735; 1897, c. 543; C. S. 4390.)

Purchase of Property from Company Owned by Wife.—A member of the board of education of a county is not guilty under this section for voting as such member for the purchase of school buses from a company selling them owned by his wife, and in which he had no pecuniary interest and for which he worked upon a salary, when the sale was made by other agents of the company upon a commission basis. State v. Dehnam, 196 N. C. 740, 146 S. E. 857.
§ 14-237. Buying school supplies from interested officer.—If any county board of education or school committee shall buy school supplies in which any member has a pecuniary interest, the membership of any board shall be removed from their positions in the public service and shall, upon conviction, be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor. (Rev., s. 3825; 1901, c. 4, s. 69; C. S. 4391.)

§ 14-238. Soliciting during school hours without permission of school head.—No person, agent, representative or salesman shall solicit or attempt to sell or explain any article of property or proposition to any teacher or pupil of any public school on the school grounds or during the school day without having first secured the written permission of the superintendent, principal or person actually in charge of the school and responsible for it.

Any person violating the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be fined or imprisoned in the discretion of the court. (1933, c. 220.)

§ 14-239. Allowing prisoners to escape; burden of proof.—If any person charged with a crime or sentenced by the court upon conviction of any offense, shall be legally committed to any sheriff, constable or jailer, or shall be arrested by any sheriff, deputy sheriff or coroner acting as sheriff, being thereof convicted, shall be removed from office, and shall be fined or imprisoned, or both, at the discretion of the court before whom the trial may be had; and in all such cases it shall be sufficient, in support of the indictment against such sheriff or other officer, to prove that the person so charged or sentenced was committed to his custody, and it shall lie upon the defendant to show that such escape was not by his consent or negligence, but that he had used all legal means to prevent the same, and acted with proper care and diligence: Provided, that such removal of a sheriff shall not affect his duty or power as a collector of the public revenue, but he shall proceed on such duty and be accountable as if such conviction and removal had not been had. (Rev., s. 3577; Code, s. 1022; R. C. c. 34, s. 32; 1791, c. 343, s. 1; 1905, c. 350; C. S. 4393.)

Cross References.—See also, § 14-257. As to liability for escape under civil process, see § 162-21.

General Consideration.—This is a common law offense. Stambaugh v. Shook, 116 N. C. 587, 19 S. E. 221. The statute contemplates two offenses—negligently permitting or willfully promoting the escape—but charging negligence alone will suffice. State v. McLain, 104 N. C. 694, 10 S. E. 518. The section changes the ordinary rule of the burden of proof by shifting such burden to the defendant. State v. Hunter, 94 N. C. 829; State v. Lewis, 113 N. C. 622, 18 S. E. 69. The question of good faith and diligence of the officer is for the jury. State v. Blockley, 131 N. C. 726, 42 S. E. 569.

Right to Kill to Prevent Escape.—The guard has no authority to kill one convicted of a misdemeanor while fleeing from escape without his offer, threat or menace or show of force in doing so, or anything that would suggest danger to the person of the guard. Holloway v. Moser, 191 N. C. 185, 136 S. E. 395.

Where the escape is due to the negligence of an assistant the only question presented is whether the defendant has exercised due care in his selection. State v. Lewis, 113 N. C. 622, 18 S. E. 69. § 14-240. Solicitor to prosecute officer for escape.—It shall be the duty of solicitors, when they shall be informed or have knowledge of any felony, or person otherwise charged with any crime or offense against the state, having within their respective districts escaped out of the custody of any sheriff, deputy sheriff, coroner, constable or jailer, to take the necessary measures to prosecute such sheriff or other officer so offending. (Rev., s. 2882; Code, s. 1033; R. C. c. 34, s. 36; 1791, c. 343, s. 2; C. S. 4394.)

§ 14-241. Disposing of public documents or refusing to deliver them over to successor.—It shall be the duty of the clerk of the superior court of each county, and every other person to whom the acts of the general assembly, supreme court reports or other public documents are transmitted or delegated the use of the county or the state, to keep the same safely in their respective offices; and if any such person having the custody of such books and documents, for the uses aforesaid, shall negligently and willfully dispose of the same, by sale or otherwise, or refuse to deliver over the same to his successor in office, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be punished by a fine or imprisonment, or both, at the discretion of the court. (Rev., s. 3598; Code, s. 1073; 1881, c. 151; C. S. 4395.)

§ 14-242. Failing to return process or making false return.—If any sheriff, constable or other officer, whether state or municipal, or any person who shall presume to act as any such officer, not being by law authorized so to do, refuse or neglect to return any precept, notice or process, to him tendered or delivered, which it is his duty to execute, or make a false return thereon, he shall forfeit and pay to anyone who will sue for the same one hundred dollars, and shall moreover be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Rev., s. 3604; Code s. 1112; R. C. c. 34, s. 118; 1818, c. 980, s. 3; 1827, c. 20, s. 4; C. S. 4396.)

Cross Reference.—See also, § 163-14 and annotation thereto.

Civil Process.—This section applies to failure to return civil as well as criminal process. State v. Berry, 169 N. C. 371, 83 S. E. 387, overruling Mig. Co. v. Buxton, 105 N. C. 777; N. C. 34, s. 1182; 1818, c. 980. An officer is not subject to the penalty under this section for declining to receive process that could not be served. State v. Brown, 119 N. C. 827, 25 S. E. 830.

Process That Could Not Be Served.—An officer is not subject to the penalty under this section for declining to receive process which, at the time it was tendered, he could not have executed. Pentress v. N. C. Brown, 61 N. C. 213.

§ 14-243. Failing to surrender tax-list for inspection and correction.—If any sheriff or tax collector shall refuse or fail to surrender his tax-list for inspection or correction upon demand by the authorities imposing the tax, or their successors in office, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be imprisoned not more than five years, and fined not exceeding one thousand dollars, at the discretion of the court. (Rev., s. 3788; Code, s. 3823; 1870-1, c. 177, s. 2; C. S. 4397.)

§ 14-244. Failing to file report of fines or penalties.—If any officer who is by law required to file any report or statement of fines or penalties with the county board of education shall fail so to § 14-245. Justices of the peace soliciting official business or patronage.—If any justice of the peace shall solicit official business, and/or patronage for his or her office, he or she shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction shall be punished in the discretion of the court. (1935, c. 58.)

§ 14-246. Failure of ex-justice of the peace to turn over books and papers.—If any justice of the peace, on expiration of his term of office, or if any personal representative of a deceased justice of the peace shall, after demand upon him by the clerk of the superior court, willfully fail and refuse to deliver to the clerk of the superior court all dockets, all law and other books, and all official papers which came into his hands by virtue or color of his office, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Rev., s. 3578; Code, ss. 828, 839; 1885, c. 402; C. S. 4399.)

§ 14-247. Private use of publicly owned vehicle.—It shall be unlawful for any officer, agent or employee of the State of North Carolina, or of any county or of any institution or agency of the State, to use for any private purpose whatsoever any motor vehicle of any type or description whatsoever belonging to the State, or to any county, or to any institution or agency of the State. (1925, c. 239, s. 1.)

§ 14-248. Obtaining repairs and supplies for private vehicle at expense of State.—It shall be unlawful for any officer, agent or employee to have any privately owned motor vehicle repaired at any garage belonging to the State or to any county, or any institution or agency of the State, or to use any tires, oils, gasoline or other accessories purchased by the State, or any county, or any institution or agency of the State, in or on any such private car. (1925, c. 239, s. 2.)

§ 14-249. Limitation of amount expended for vehicle.—It shall be unlawful for any officer, agent, employee or department of the State of North Carolina, or of any county, or of any institution or agency of the State, to expend from the public treasury an amount in excess of fifteen hundred dollars ($1,500) for any motor vehicle other than motor trucks; except upon the approval of the Governor and Council of State: Provided, that nothing in §§ 14-247 through 14-251 shall apply to the purchase, use or up-keep or expense account of the car for the executive mansion and the Governor. (1925, c. 239, s. 5.)

§ 14-250. Publicly owned vehicle to be marked.—It shall be the duty of the executive head of every department of the State Government, and of any county, or of any institution or agency of the State, to have painted on every motor vehicle owned by the State, or by any county, or by any institution or agency of the State, a statement with letters of not less than three inches in height, that such car belongs to the State, or to some county, or institution or agency of the State, and that such car is "for official use only." Provided, however, that no automobile used by any officer or official in any county in the State for the purpose of transporting, apprehending or arresting persons charged with violations of the laws of the State of North Carolina, shall be required to be so lettered. (1925, c. 239, s. 4; 1929, c. 303, s. 1.)

Editor's Note.—The 1929 amendment added the proviso at the end of this section.

§ 14-251. Violation made misdemeanor.—Any person, firm or corporation violating any of the provisions of sections 14-247 to 14-250 shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and punished by a fine of not less than one hundred dollars ($100), nor more than one thousand dollars ($1,000), or imprisonment in the discretion of the court. Nothing in §§ 14-247 through 14-251 shall apply to the purchase, use or up-keep or expense account of the car for the executive mansion and the Governor. (1925, c. 239, s. 5.)

§ 14-252. Five preceding sections applicable to cities and towns.—Sections 14-247 through 14-251 in every respect shall also apply to cities and incorporated towns. (1931, c. 31.)

Art. 32. Misconduct in Private Office.

§ 14-253. Failure of certain railroad officers to account with successors.—If the president and directors of any railroad company, and any person acting under them, shall, upon demand, fail or refuse to account with the president and directors elected or appointed to succeed them, and to transfer to them forthwith all the money, books, papers, choses in action, property and effects of every kind and description belonging to such company, they shall be guilty of a felony, and shall be punished by imprisonment in the state's prison for not less than one nor more than five years, and be fined at the discretion of the court. All persons conspiring with any such president, directors or their agents to defeat, delay or hinder the execution of the section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be punished in like manner. The governor is hereby authorized, at the request of the president, directors and other officers of any railroad company, to make requisition upon the governor of any other state for the apprehension of any such president failing to comply with this section. (Rev., s. 3760; Code, ss. 2001, 2002; 1870-1, c. 72, ss. 1-3; C. S. 4400.)

Cross Reference.—As to duty of railroad officials to account to successors, see § 115-174.

Not Applicable to Tax Bond.—As this section has reference only to money, books, choses, etc., an indictment can not be sustained against a former president of a railroad, for refusing to transfer to his successor in office certain special tax bonds. State v. Jones, 67 N. C. 210.

§ 14-254. Malfeasance of corporation officers and agents.—If any president, director, cashier, teller, clerk or agent of any corporation shall embezzle, abstract or willfully misapply any of the moneys, funds or credits of the corporation, or shall, without authority from the directors, issue or put forth any certificate of deposit, draw any order or bill of exchange, make any acceptance, assign any note, bond, draft, bill of exchange, mortgage, judgment or decree, or make any false entry in any book, report or statement of the corporation with the intent in either case to injure or defraud or to deceive any officer of the corporation, or if any person shall aid and abet in the doing of any of these things, he shall be guilty of a felony, and upon conviction shall be imprisoned in the state’s prison for not less than four months nor more than fifteen years, and likewise fined, at the discretion of the court. (Rev., s. 3325; 1903,

c. 275, s. 15; C. S. 4401.)

Cross Reference.—As to misapplication of funds by bank officers, see § 55-129.

Art. 33. Prison Breach and Prisoners.

§ 14-255. Escape of hired prisoners from custody.—If any prisoner, who shall be removed from the prison of the respective counties, cities and towns under the law providing for the hiring out of prisoners by counties and towns, shall escape from the person or company having him in custody, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be imprisoned at hard labor not more than thirty days, or fined not more than fifty dollars. (Rev., s.
3658: Code, s. 3455; 1876-7, c. 196, s. 4; C. S.
4403.)

Cross Reference.—As to power of counties, cities and towns to hire out prisoners, see §§ 153-191 to 153-193.

§ 14-256. Prison breach and escape.—If any person shall break prison, being lawfully confined therein, or shall escape from the custody of any superintendent, guard or officer, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Rev., s. 3657; Code, s. 1021;
R. C. c. 34, s. 19; 1 Edw. II, st. 2d; 1909, c.
872; C. S. 4404.)

Cross Reference.—As to penalty for escaping or assisting in an escape from the state prison, see § 148-45.

At Common Law.—The offense of breaking jail was a felony at common law, but by this section, all cases, no matter what the person is confined for, are reduced to Escape from Officer.—This section applies only to breaking prison and escaping therefrom and does not, because of its wording, include escape from an officer before being con-

Cost of Recapture May Not Be Recovered from Prisoner.

The state may not recover of a prisoner monies expended by it to recapture him after escape from custody, since the offense does not involve any property right of the state, but the expenditures is voluntary and made by it for the protection of the people of the state in preserving the integrity of the penal system. State Highway, etc.,

§ 14-257. Permitting escape of or maltreating hired convicts.—If any person charged in any way with the control or management of convicts, hired for service outside of the state’s prison, shall negligently permit them to escape, or shall maltreat them, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor;
but this provision shall not be held to relieve any person from any criminal liability. (Rev., s.
3659: Code, s. 3450; 1881, c. 127, s. 2; C. S. 4403.)

ligent officer’s custody, see § 14-239.

Negligence Test of Guilt.—Officers and public agents will not be held to the rigorous common-law rule of responsibility for the custody of convicts employed in labs outside of the Penitentiary, actual negligence being the test of guilt.
State v. Johnson, 94 N. C. 924.

Negligence Implied.—It is not necessary to prove negligence of the person having lawful custody of prisoners, for it is implied, unless occasioned by the act of God, or irresistible § 14-258. Conveying messages and weapons to or trading with convicts and other prisoners.—If any person shall convey to or from any convict any letters or oral messages, or shall convey to any convict or person imprisoned, charged with crime and awaiting trial any weapon or instrument by which to effect an escape, or that will aid him in an assault or insurrection, or shall trade with a convict for his clothing or stolen goods, or shall sell to him any article forbidden by prison rules, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor: Provided, that when a murder, an assault or an escape is effected with the means furnished, the person convicted of furnishing the means shall be sentenced to not less than four years, nor more than fifteen years, and likewise fined, at the discretion of the court. (Rev., s. 3662: Code, s. 3450; 1873-4, c. 158, s. 12; 1911, c. 11; C. S. 4406.)

Cross Reference.—As to furnishing prisoners with intoxcating liquors, narcotics, and fire arms, see § 14-390.

§ 14-259. Harboring or aiding escaped prisoners.

It shall be unlawful for any person know-ning, or having reasonable cause to believe, that any other person has escaped from any prison, jail, reformatory, or from the criminal insane department of any state hospital, or from the custody of any peace officer who had such person in charge, or that such person is a convict or prisoner whose parole has been revoked, to conceal, hide, harbor, feed, clothe, or offer aid and comfort in any manner to any such person.

Every person who shall conceal, hide, harbor, feed, clothe, or offer aid and comfort to any other person in violation of this section shall be guilty of a felony, if such other person has been convicted of, or is charged with, any crime which, if charged against him would have been punished in the state prison not more than five years; and shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, if such other person had been convicted of, or was in custody upon a charge of a misdemeanor, and shall be punished in the discretion of the court.

The provisions of this section shall not apply to members of the immediate family of such escape. For the purposes of this section “immediate family” shall be defined to be the mother, father, brother, sister, wife, husband and child of said escapee. (1939, c. 72.)

Editor’s Note.—For comment on this enactment, see 17 N.
C. Law Rev. 368.

§ 14-260. Injury to prisoner by jailer.—If the keeper of a jail shall do, or cause to be done, any wrong or injury to the prisoners committed to his custody, contrary to law, he shall not only pay treble damages to the person injured, but shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Rev., s.
3661: Code, s. 3463; R.-C., c. 87, s. 8; 1795, c.
453, s. 5; C. S. 4407.)

Cross Reference.—As to the degree of protection against violence allowed the jailer in the state prison system, see § 148-46.

Evidence Sufficient for Jury.—Evidence that the plaintiff’s thumb had inadvertently been placed against the door jamb when jailer started to close door of cell, and that when plaintiff pushed against the door to release his thumb the plaintiff pushed the door shut with his shoulder, thereby cutting off plaintiff’s thumb, is sufficient to be submitted to the jury on the issue of the jailer’s negligent injury to the plaintiff. Davis v. Moore, 215 N. C. 492, 2 S. E. (2d) 366.

§ 14-261. Confining prisoners to improper apartments.—If the sheriff or jailer shall wantonly or unnecessarily confine those committed to his custody in any apartment, other than that provided [ 680 ] and designated by law for persons of the description of the prisoner, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Rev., s. 3660; Code, s. 3471; R. C., c. 87,
s. 16; 1795, c. 433, s. 4; C. S. 4408.)

Cross Reference.—As to apartments for prisoners, see § 153-31.

§ 14-262. Requiring female prisoners to work in chain-gang.—If any officer, either judicial, executive or ministerial, shall order or require the workning of any female on the streets or roads in any group or chain-gang in this state, he shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor. (Rev., s. 3596; 1897, c. 270; C. S. 4409.)

§ 14-263. Classification and commutation of time for prisoners other than state prisoners.—
The board of county commissioners, or such governing body as may have charge of prisoners in any county, city or town in the State of North Carolina, shall divide all prisoners into three classes, or grades, as follows:

In the first class shall be included all those prisoners who have not as yet given evidence that they will, or who it is believed will observe the rules and regulations and work diligently and are likely to maintain themselves by honest industry after their discharge. These shall be known as Grade A prisoners and shall receive a commutation of their sentences at the rate of one hundred and four days for each year served.

In the second class shall be included those prisoners who have not as yet given evidence that they can be trusted entirely, but are reasonably obedient to the rules and regulations. These shall be known as Class B prisoners and shall receive a commutation of their sentences of seventy-eight days for each year served.

In the third class shall be those prisoners who have demonstrated that they are incorrigible, have no respect for the rules and regulations and seriously interfere with the discipline and the effectiveness of the labor of the other prisoners. Such prisoners shall receive no commutation of their sentences.

All prisoners shall be admitted into Class B except where it is known by the superintendent of the prison that a prisoner is serving for a second offense. In such cases the superintendent may put the prisoner in Class C in his discretion.

Prisoners of Class A shall be known as honor prisoners and shall be worked in the discretion of the superintendent of the prison without guards.
When in prison camps or in any other place of detention they may not be chained or under armed guards.

Prisoners in Class B shall be under guard and may or may not be chained in the discretion of the superintendent.

Prisoners in Class C shall wear chains during the day or night as in the opinion of the superintendent may be necessary.

Preference in assignment of work shall be given Class A prisoners.

The purpose of §§ 14-263 through 14-265 is to unify the regulations pertaining to county prisoners and to encourage industriousness among the prisoners. (1927, c. 178, s. 1; 1937, c. 88, s. 2.)

Editor’s Note.—The mandatory provisions of this section with reference to the use of stripes were repealed by Public Laws 1937, c. 88, s. 2.

§ 14-264. Record to be kept; items of record.—
The superintendent or other person having charge of prisoners shall keep a record showing, the name, age, date of sentence, length of sentence, crime for which convicted, home address, next of kin, and the conduct of each prisoner received. (1927,
c. 178, s. 2.)

§ 14-265. Commutation of sentences for Sunday work.—All prisoners in the State’s Prison, or in any county jail or county convict camp, who shall be assigned to regular work which requires the performance of the same, or substantially the same duties on Sundays as on other days of the week, shall be allowed a commutation of their sentences for each Sunday, or fractional part of a Sunday on which they shall be required to perform the duties of the task assigned to them. The commutation of sentence provided for in this section shall be in addition to all other commutations of sentence allowed such prisoners under existing statutes and laws of the State.
(1931, c. 198, s. 1.)

Art. 34. Custodial Institutions.

§ 14-266. Persuading inmates to escape.—It shall be unlawful for any parent, guardian, brother, sister, uncle, aunt, or any person whatsoever to persuade or induce to leave, carry away, or accompany from any state institution, except with the permission of the superintendent or other person next in authority, any boy or girl, man or woman, who has been legally committed or admitted under suspended sentence to said institution, by juvenile, recorder’s, superior, or any other court of competent jurisdiction. (1935, c. 307, s.
1; 1957, c. 189, s. 1.)

Editor’s Note.—The 1937 amendment included within the provisions of this and the following section inmates who have been "admitted under suspended sentence." Apparently, there was a loophole in the old law. 15 N. C. Law Rev.,

§ 14-267. Harboring fugitives.—It shall be unlawful for any person to harbor, conceal, or give sucor to, any known fugitive from any institution whose inmates are committed by court or are admitted under suspended sentence. (1935, c. 307,
s. 2; 1937, c. 189, s. 2.)

Editor’s Note.—See note under § 14-266.

§ 14-268. Violation made misdemeanor.—Any person violating the provision of this article, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and fined or imprisoned, in the discretion of the court. (1935, c.
307, s. 3.)

SUBCHAPTER IX. OFFENSES AGAINST THE PUBLIC PEACE.

Art. 35. Offenses against the Public Peace.

§ 14-269. Carrying concealed weapons.—If any one, except when on his own premises, shall carry concealed about his person any bowie-knife, dirk, dagger, slug shot, loaded cane, brass, iron or metallic knuckles or razor or other deadly weapon of like kind, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be fined or imprisoned at the discretion of the court. If any one, except on his own premisises, shall carry concealed about his person any pistol or gun, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be fined not less than fifty dollars, nor more than two hundred dollars, or imprisoned or submission the deadly weapon with reference not less than thirty days nor more than two years, ply to the following persons: officers and soldiers any one, not being on his own lands, shall have concealment thereof. This section shall not ap-destroyed by the judge presiding at the trial. If time been before the court but the power of the legislature to prescribe the rules of evidence and fix the burden of proof to the extent herein dictated has never been questioned.

parring in the last sentence, which follows the reference to soldiers and sailors and reads "when in discharge of official duties," etc.

concealment is gist of offense.—The mischief provided against, is the practice of wearing weapons concealed about his person or on any premises, State v. Brown, 91 N. C. 545; 121 N. C. 493.
The intent to carry, not the intent to use, determines the guilt. State v. Reams, 121 N. C. 555, 27 S. E. 1004. But the weapon carried must be concealed.
State v. Mangum, 187 N. C. 477, 121 S. E. 765.

To conceal a weapon means something more than the mere act of having it where it may be seen, State v. Brown, 125 N. C. 713, 27 S. E. 1004. But the weapon carried must be concealed, State v. Bridgers, 169 N. C. 309, 34 S. E. 549.

Concealment is Gist of Offense.—The mischief provided against, is the practice of wearing weapons concealed about his person or on any premises, State v. Brown, 91 N. C. 545; 121 N. C. 493.
The intent to carry, not the intent to use, determines the guilt. State v. Reams, 121 N. C. 555, 27 S. E. 1004. But the weapon carried must be concealed.

The presence of a pistol by one on the premises of another is not alone sufficient to make him guilty of concealing a weapon in violation of this section, although the statute makes such possession prima facie evidence of the con-

Same—Weapon on Person Prima Facie Evidence.—The fact that a defendant had a pistol about his person, off of his own premises, was prima facie evidence of concealment, which shifted the burden of proof as to whether or not the defendant

Justification of a violation of the statutory offense, but in violation of this section. State v. Bridgers, 169 N. C. 309, 34 S. E. 549.

Same—Concealment Question for Jury.—Whether, in a given case, the weapon is concealed from the public and such presumption of guilty intent is rebutted by the mode of carrying the weapon, are questions for the jury. State v. Reams, 121 N. C. 556, 27 S. E. 1004. See also State v. Lilly, 116 N. C. 1099, 21 S. E. 453.

Carrying on Own Premises.—The use of the words, "on his own premises," and not being "on his own lands," in this section, shows an intention to restrict the right to carry concealed weapons to those who are in the privacy of their own premises and not where they are away from the neighborhood of the public, nor tempted, on a sudden quarrel, to use the great

Servant on Employer's Premises.—A mere servant or hireling who carries concealed weapons on the premises of his employer is indictable. State v. Deyton, 119 N. C. 880, 26 S. E. 549.

Warrant Must State Defendant Carried Weapon Off His Own Premises.—In prosecution for carrying a concealed weapon, the warrant is held fatally defective in failing to embrace in the charge the essential element of the offense that the weapon was carried concealed by defendant off his own premises, the warrant itself excluding the charge that the weapon was carried concealed by defendant. In an uncontroverted case, the weapon was a concealed weapon on

Illustrations.—Not on Person but Within Reach.—The language of the statute is, not "concealed on his person," but "concealed about his person, etc." The weapon carried must be concealed. State v. Perry, 120 N. C. 580, 26 S. E. 915, 1931, A. S. 18c. 52.

to show that the defendant had a pistol with the butt end projecting above his hip pocket, and with his coat off and

Same—Apprehension of Assault.—Carrying concealed weapons in reasonable apprehension of deadly assaults is not justification of a violation of the statutory offense, but in aggravation thereof, and may be considered by the trial judge in imposing the sentence, according to the discretion given him herein by this section. State v. Woodiel, 172 N. C. 585, 190 S. E. 137.

Same—Acting upon Advice of Attorney.—A person acting in ignorance of the law in good faith and upon advice of the clerk of the court or of an attorney, but in violation of this section, is not to be excused. State v. Simmons, 143 N. C. 613, 56 S. E. 701.

Exceptions.—Necessity of Being in Performance of Duties.
—In order to come within the exception of this section, the defendant, acting upon advice of his attorney, must have been in the actual performance of his duties at the time. State v.
Simmons, 143 N. C. 613, 56 S. E. 701.

Same—Officials of Transportation Companies.—The exception in this section does not apply to the officials of cor-rporations, such as turnpikes, railroads and others, which invite the public to use their lines of travel. State v. Perry, 120 N. C. 580, 26 S. E. 915, 1931, A. S. 18c. 52.

Same—Irritants.—A United States mail carrier is indictable under this section for carrying a concealed weapon while carrying the mail and while returning to his home after delivering the mail. State v. Boone, 132 N. C. 1107, 56 S. E. 701.

Same—Night Watchman.—A private night watchman is not guity of carrying a concealed weapon, under this section, while on duty upon the premises he is employed to diction over a prosecution for carrying a concealed

Former Conviction of Assault.—A conviction of assault with a deadly weapon will not sustain a plea of former conviction in a subsequent trial for carrying a concealed § 14-270. Time Not Essence of Offense.—Time is not the essence of the offense of carrying a concealed weapon, and it may be shown at a previous time to that alleged in the bill. State v. Spencer, 185 N. C. 765, 117 S. E. 803.

§ 14-271. Engaging in and betting on prize fights.—If any person shall send, accept or bear a challenge to fight a duel, though no death ensue, he, and all such as counsel, aid and abet him, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall, moreover, be ineligible to any office of trust, honor or profit in the state, the pardon or reprieve notwithstanding. (Rev., s. 3628; Code, s. 1012; K. C., c. 34, s. 48; 1802, c. 609, s. 1; C. S. 4411.)

Cross Reference.—As to killing adversary in duel, see § 14-23.

§ 14-272. Disturbing picnics, entertainments and other meetings.—If any person shall wilfully interrupt or disturb any picnic, excursion party, school entertainment, political meeting, or any meeting or other organization whatsoever lawfully and peaceably held, either at, within or without the place where such meeting or school is held, or injure any person present, and for-
to represent to any person that they are duly authorized peace officers, and acting upon such representation to arrest any person, search any building, or in any way impersonate a peace officer or act in accordance with the authority delegated to duly authorized peace officers. Nothing in this section shall be construed to prohibit a private citizen in whose presence a felony has been committed from arresting such person or persons participating in the commission of said felony when such arrest is deemed necessary, or to prohibit any private citizen in whose presence an act, which would constitute a breach of the peace and for which an indictment would lie, is committed from arresting such person or persons committing said breach of the peace when such arrest is deemed necessary. Any person violating the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction may be fined or imprisoned at the discretion of the court. (1927, c. 229.)

SUBCHAPTER X. OFFENSES AGAINST THE PUBLIC SAFETY.

Art. 36. Offenses against the Public Safety.

§ 14-278. Malicious injury of property of railroads and other carriers; causing death or other physical injury thereby.—If any person shall willfully and maliciously put or place any matter or thing upon, over or near any railroad track; or shall willfully and maliciously destroy, injure or remove the road-bed, or any part thereof, or any rail, sill or other part of the fixture appurtenant to or constituting or supporting any portion of the track of such railroad; or shall willfully and maliciously do any other thing with intent to obstruct, stop, hinder, delay or displace the cars traveling on such road, or to stop, hinder or delay the passengers or others passing over the same; or shall willfully and maliciously injure the road-bed or the fixtures aforesaid, or any part thereof, with any other intent whatsoever, such person so offending shall be guilty of a felony and shall be fined not exceeding one thousand dollars nor less than two hundred dollars, and be imprisoned in the state's prison or county jail not less than four months nor exceeding one thousand dollars nor less than two hundred dollars, and be imprisoned in the state's prison for time of not less than three nor more than seven years. If it shall happen that by reason of the commission of the offenses aforesaid, or any of them, any engine or car shall be displaced from the track, or shall be stopped, hindered or delayed, so that any one thereby be instantly killed, or so wounded or hurt as to die therefrom within twelve calendar months thereafter, or shall thereby be maimed or disabled in the use of any limb or member, then, and in every such case, the party so offending, his counselors, aids and abettors, shall be imprisoned not less than ten years, and shall be imprisoned in the state's prison, at the discretion of the court. (Rev., s. 3754; Code, s. 1099; R. C., c. 34, s. 101; C. S. 4417.)

§ 14-279. Injuring without malice property of railroads and other carriers; causing death or other physical injury thereby.—If any person, unlawfully, and on purpose, but without malice, shall commit any of the offenses mentioned in § 14-278, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. If it shall happen that by reason of the commission of any such offense any person shall be instantly killed, or so wounded or hurt as to die therefrom, in twelve calendar months thereafter, or shall thereby be maimed or disabled in the use of any limb or member, then, and in every such case, the party so offending, his counselors, aids and abettors, shall be imprisoned not less than ten years, and shall be imprisoned in the state's prison, at the discretion of the court. (Rev., s. 3755; Code, s. 1109; R. C., c. 34, s. 101; C. S. 4418.)

§ 14-280. Shooting or throwing at trains or passengers.—If any person shall willfully and unmannerly, cast, throw or shoot any stone, rock, bullet, shot, pellet or other missile at, against, or into any railroad car, locomotive or train, or any person thereon, while such car or locomotive shall be in progress from one station to another, or while such car, locomotive or train shall be stopped for any purpose, the person so offending shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be punished by fine or imprisonment in the county jail or state's prison, at the discretion of the court. (Rev., s. 3763; Code, s. 1100; 1877, c. 10; 1876-7, c. 1; 1911, c. 179; C. S. 4449.)

Intent a Question for Jury.—Where a defendant was indicted, for shooting at a train, with intent to injure it, and there was evidence tending to show that he was helplessly drunk at the time, the court properly left the question of intent to the jury, and it was for them to say whether the presumption had been rebutted. State v. Barbee, 92 N. C. 182.

Proof that Gun was Loaded Unnecessary.—If a gun be unloaded and this is relied on as a defense, in an action for shooting at a train, the fact must be shown by the defendant. State v. Hinson, 82 N. C. 597.

Proof of Conspiracy.—Upon trial for throwing stones at a train, it is not necessary to show a conspiracy. It appearing that the several defendants were not only present, but threw stones at different coaches of the same train. State v. Holder, 153 N. C. 606, 69 S. E. 66.

The Indictment.—Upon a trial for throwing stones at a train, a charge in the bill that it was done "from one station to another" follows the form set out in the statute, and is not void for vagueness and uncertainty. It is not necessary that the indictment contain the word "feloniously." State v. Holder, 153 N. C. 606, 69 S. E. 66.

But it must charge that the train was in actual motion or stopped for a temporary purpose. State v. Boyd, 8 N. C. 450.

§ 14-281. Operating trains and street cars while intoxicated.—Any train dispatcher, telegraph operator, engineer, fireman, flagman, brakeman, switchman, conductor, motorman, or other employee of any steam, street, suburban or interurban railway company, who shall be intoxicated while engaged in running or operating, or assisting in running or operating, any railway train, shifting-engine, or street or other electric car, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be fined or imprisoned, in the discretion of the court. (Rev., s. 3758; Code, s.
§ 14-283. Displaying dynamite cartridges and bombs. — If any person shall fire off or explode, or cause to be fired off or exploded, except for mechanical purposes in a legitimate business, any dynamite cartridge, bomb or other explosive of a like nature, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Rev., s. 3794; 1887, c. 364, s. 53; C. S. 4423.)

Cross References. — As to burglars with explosives, see § 14-57. As to willful injury with explosives, see § 14-49.

§ 14-284. Keeping for sale or selling explosives without a license. — If any dealer or other person shall sell or keep for sale any dynamite cartridges, bombs or other combustibles of a like kind, without a license for that purpose, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Rev., s. 3817; 1887, c. 364, ss. 1, 4; C. S. 4425.)

§ 14-285. Failing to enclose marl beds. — If any person shall open any marl bed without surrounding it with a lawful fence, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be fined not exceeding fifty dollars or imprisoned not exceeding thirty days: Provided, this shall not apply to any person whose marl bed is situated inside his own inclosure. (Rev., s. 3796; 1887, cc. 225, 268; C. S. 4422.)

§ 14-286. Giving false fire alarms; molesting fire alarm system. — It shall be unlawful for any person or persons to wantonly and willfully give or cause to be given, or to advise, counsel, or aid and abet any one in giving a false alarm of fire, or to break the glass key protector, or to pull the slide, arm, or lever of any station or signal box of any municipal fire alarm system, except in case of fire, or in any way to willfully interfere with, damage, deface, molest, or injure any part or portion of the fire alarm system of any municipality. Any person violating any of the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be fined or imprisoned, or both, in the discretion of the court. (1921, c. 46; C. S. 4426(a).)

§ 14-287. Leaving unused well open and exposed. — It shall be unlawful for any person, firm or corporation, after discontinuing the use of any well, to leave said well open and exposed; said well, after the use of same has been discontinued, shall be carefully and securely filled: Provided, that this shall not apply to wells on farms that are protected by curbing or board walls. Any person violating any of the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be fined or imprisoned, in the discretion of the court. (1923, c. 125; C. S. 4426(c).)

Editor's Note. — This section is said to be a sensible regulation in 1 N. C. Law Rev. 350. Cited in Wells v. Sherrin, 217 N. C. 534, 8 S. E. (2d) 820.

§ 14-288. Unlawful to pollute any bottles used for beverages. — It shall be unlawful for any person, firm or corporation having custody for the purpose of sale, distribution or manufacture of any beverage bottle, to place, cause or permit to be placed therein turpentine, varnish, wood alcohol, bleaching water, bluing, kerosene, oils, or any unclean or foul substance, or other offensive material, or to send, ship, return and deliver or cause or permit to be sent, shipped, returned or delivered to any producer of beverages, any bottle used as a container for beverages, and containing any turpentine, varnish, wood alcohol, bleaching water, bluing, kerosene, oils, or any unclean or foul substance, or other offensive material. Any person, firm or corporation violating the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be fined on the first offense, one dollar for each bottle so defiled, and for any subsequent offense not more than ten dollars for each bottle so defiled. (1929, c. 324, s. 1.)

SUBCHAPTER XI. GENERAL POLICE REGULATIONS.

Art. 37. Lotteries and Gaming.

§ 14-289. Advertising lotteries. — If any one, by writing or printing or by circular or letter or in any other way, advertise or publish an account of a lottery, whether within or without this state, stating how, when or where the same is to be or has been drawn, or what are the prizes therein or any of them, or the price of a ticket or any share or interest therein, or where or how it may be obtained, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Rev., s. 3725; 1887, c. 211; C. S. 4427.)

See the discussion in § N. C. Law Rev. 31.

§ 14-290. Dealing in lotteries. — If any person shall open, set on foot, carry on, promote, make or draw, publicly or privately, a lottery, by whatever name, style or title the same may be denominated or known; or if any person shall, by such way and means, expose or set to sale any house, real estate, goods, chattels, cash, written evidence of debt, certificates of claims or any other thing of value whatsoever, every person so offending shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be fined not exceeding two thousand dollars or imprisoned not exceeding six months, or both, in the discretion of the court. Any person who engages in disposing of any species of property whatsoever, including money and evidences of debt, or in any manner distributes gifts or prizes upon tickets, bottle crowns, bottle caps, seals on containers, other devices or certificates sold for that purpose, shall be held liable to prosecution under this section. Any person who shall have in his possession any tickets, certificates or orders used in the operation of any lottery shall be held liable under this section, and the mere possession of such tickets shall be prima facie evidence of the violation of this section.
§ 14-291. Selling “numbers” tickets; possession prima facie evidence of violation.—If any person shall sell, barter or cause to be sold or bartered, any ticket, token, certificate or order for any number or shares in any lottery, commonly known as the numbers or better and egg lottery, or lotteries of similar character, to be drawn or paid within or without the state, such person shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be punished by fine or imprisonment, or both, in the discretion of the court. Any person who shall have in his possession any tickets, tokens, certificates or orders used in the operation of any such lottery shall be guilty under this section, and the possession of such tickets shall be prima facie evidence of the violation of this section. (1943, c. 550.)

§ 14-292. Gambling.—If any person play at any game of chance at which any money, property or other thing of value is bet, whether the same be in store or not, both those who play and those who bet thereon shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Rev., s. 3715; 1891, c. 29; C. S. 4430.)

Cross Reference.—As to gaming contracts, see § 16-1 et seq.

See 11 N. C. Law Rev. 246, for reference to acts legalizing pari-mutuel race track betting.

In General.—Betting is essential to the offense; playing without bet is not indictable. State v. Brennen, 33 N. C. 379. The mere fact that one game is played does not mean that every game played here there is no betting. State v. DeBoy, 117 N. C. 702, 23 S. E. 167. Tenpins is not a game of chance. State v. King, 133 N. C. 551, 44 S. E. 169.

Calling Transaction a Raffle.—Where several parties each put up a piece of money and then decide, by throwing dice, who shall have the aggregate sum or “pool,” the game is a “raffle.” State v. DeBoy, 117 N. C. 702, 23 S. E. 167. The aggregate sum put up may be divided into shares, and the game is still a “raffle.” State v. DeBoy, 117 N. C. 702, 23 S. E. 167.

“Raffle” is included within the category of “gaming” or “gambling.” The word “game” is very comprehensive and embraces every contrivance or institution which has for its object to furnish sport, recreation, or amusement. Let a stake be laid on the chance of a game, and it is gaming. State v. Brown, 221 N. C. 301, 20 S. E. (2d) 286. Betting on horse racing, or on other sort of race, is an offense against the criminal law. The fact that the race itself is one of skill and endurance on the part of the jockey and his mount does not confer immunity upon those who wager on its result. Id.

Ordinances as to Gambling Void.—Gambling being an offense under the general law of the state, any covering the same subject is void. State v. McCoy, 116 N. C. 1059, 21 S. E. 690.

Sufficiency of Indictment.—An indictment charging defendant with being an operator of a house of gambling, or with maintaining a gambling house is sufficient, though it is not alleged that the games played there were games of chance, or that they were played at a place or places where games of chance were played. State v. Morgan, 133 N. C. 745, 45 S. E. 1033.

§ 14-293. Allowing gambling in houses of public entertainment; duty of police officers; penalty.—If any keeper of an ordinary or other house of entertainment, or of a house wherein liquors are dealt or sold, shall knowingly allow any game, at which money or property, or anything of value, is bet, whether the same be in store or not, to be played in any such house, or in any part of the premises occupied therewith; or shall furnish persons so playing or betting either on said premises or elsewhere with drink or other thing for their comfort or subsistence during the time of play, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be fined not less than five hundred dollars and be imprisoned not less than six months. Any person who shall be convicted under this section shall, upon such conviction, forfeit his license to do any of the businesses mentioned in this section, and shall be forever debarred from doing any of such businesses in this state. The court shall embody in its judgment that such person has forfeited his license, and no board of county commissioners, board of town commissioners or board of aldermen shall thereafter have power or authority to grant to such convicted person or his agent a license to do any of the businesses mentioned herein. It shall be the duty of every police officer of the cities, towns and villages of this state to make diligent inquiry and to exercise constant watchfulness to discover whether any of the offenses enumerated in this section are being committed, and to report once a week under oath to the mayor or other chief officer of his city, town or village, whether such offenses are being committed, and all the facts within his knowledge, or of which he has information relating thereto. If any such police officer shall know or have information that such offenses are being committed and shall fail or neglect to report the same to such mayor or other chief officer, together with all the information known to him, as to the person or persons committing the same, the time and place where such offenses are committed, the names of such witnesses thereto, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be fined or imprisoned, or both, in the discretion of the court, and shall forfeit his office. It shall be the duty of such mayor or other chief officer to require the report herein provided for, and to require that the same shall be verified by the oath of such policeman, and if it appear upon such report that any of the said offenses have been committed, it shall be the duty of such mayor or other chief officer to issue his warrant for the arrest of the offender. Any such mayor or other chief officer of any city, town or village who shall fail or neglect to require or to verify the same, or who shall refuse or neglect, upon its appearing from such reports that there is probably cause to believe that any of the said offenses have been committed, to issue his warrant for the arrest of the offender, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. Any person committing any of the offenses mentioned in this section shall be liable to a penalty of five hundred dollars, to be recovered by suit in the superior court in the county in which such offense may have been committed, one-half thereof to the use of the house in which the tavern was kept, but had been leased and was not under the control of the landlord, it was held that the defendant landlord could not be convicted under this section. State v. Keizler, 51 N. C. 73.

§ 14-295. Keeping gaming tables, illegal punchboards or slot machines, or betting thereat.—If any person shall establish, use or keep any gaming table (other than a faro-bank), by whatever name such table may be called, an illegal punch board or an illegal slot machine, at which games of chance may be played, he shall on conviction thereof be fined not less than two hundred dollars and shall be imprisoned not less than thirty days; and every person who shall play thereat or thereat bet any money, property or other thing of value, whether the same be in stake or not, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be fined not less than ten dollars. (Rev., s. 3718; Code, s. 1045; R. C., c. 31, s. 72; 1798, c. 336; 1798, c. 502, s. 2; 1931, c. 14, s. 2; C. S. 4433.)

Cross Reference.—As to compelling testimony in cases when this section and §§ 14-295 to 14-297 have been violated, see § 8-35.

§ 14-296. Illegal slot machines and punchboards defined.—An illegal slot machine or punchboard within the contemplation of §§ 14-295 through 14-298 is defined as one that shall not produce for or give to the person who places coin or money or the representative of either, the same return in market value each and every time such machine is operated by placing money or coin or the representative of either therein. (1931, c. 14, s. 1.)

Editor's Note.—The Act from which this section was taken was amended several times making them applicable to illegal slot machines and punch boards. The Act expressly provided that it should not have the effect of modifying in any way sections 14-301 to 14-303 and should be construed as supplemental to that act.

§ 14-297. Allowing gaming tables, illegal punchboards or slot machines on premises.—If any person shall knowingly suffer to be opened, kept or used in his house or on any part of the premises occupied therewith, any of the gaming tables prohibited by §§ 14-289 through 14-300 or any illegal punch board or illegal slot machine, he shall forfeit and pay to any one who will sue therefor two hundred dollars, and shall also be guilty of a misdemeanor and fined and imprisoned. (Rev., s. 3719; Code s. 1048; R. C., c. 34, s. 72; 1708, c. 502, s. 3; 1800, c. 5, s. 2; 1931, c. 14, s. 2; C. S. 4434.)

See note to § 14-296.

Where the agreed statement of facts in an action to recover the penalty under this section states that defendant kept a slot machine in his store, without a finding that the machine is illegal, the findings are insufficient to support a judgment against defendant. Nivens v. Justice, 210 N. C. 349, 186 S. E. 237.

§ 14-289. Gaming tables, illegal punchboards and slot machines to be destroyed by justices and police officers. — All justices of the peace, sheriffs, constables and officers of police are hereby authorized and directed, on information made to them on oath that any gaming table prohibited to be used by §§ 14-289 through 14-300, or any illegal punchboard or illegal slot machine is in the possession or use of any person within the limits of their jurisdiction, to destroy the same by every means in their power; and they shall call to their aid all the good citizens of the county, if necessary, to effect its destruction. (Rev., s. 3720; Code, s. 1049; R. C., c. 34, s. 74; 1791, c. 336; 1798, c. 502, s. 2; 1931, c. 14, s. 4; C. S. 4433.)

See note to § 14-296.

Enjoining Officers. — The court should have found whether the slot machines involved were illegal in determining the plaintiff's right to enjoin officers from interfering with his business. McCormick v. Proctor, 217 N. C. 23, 6 S. E. (2d) 870.

§ 14-299. Property exhibited by gamblers to be seized; disposition of same.—All moneys or other property or thing of value exhibited for the purpose of alluring persons to bet on any game, or used in the conduct of any such game, shall be liable to be seized by any justice of the peace or other court of competent jurisdiction or by any person acting under his or its warrant. Moneys so seized shall be turned over to and paid to the treasurer of the county wherein they are seized, and placed in the general fund of the county. Any property seized which is used for and is suitable for gambling shall be destroyed in the manner provided for the sale of personal property by execution, and the proceeds derived from said sale shall be turned over and paid to the treasurer of the county wherein the property was seized, to be placed by said treasurer in the general fund of the county. (Rev., s. 3722; Code, s. 1051; R. C., c. 34, s. 77; 1708, c. 502, s. 3; 1943, c. 84; C. S. 4436.)

Editor's Note.—The 1943 amendment inserted in the first sentence the words "or used in the conduct of any such game." Prior to the amendment one-half of the moneys or property seized went to the person seizing them and the other half went to the use of the poor.

§ 14-300. Opposing destruction of gaming tables and seizure of property.—If any person shall oppose the destruction of any prohibited gaming table, or the seizure of any moneys, property or other thing staked on forbidden games, or shall take and carry away the same or any part thereof after seizure, he shall forfeit and pay to the person so opposed one thousand dollars, for the use of the state and the person so opposed, and shall, moreover, be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Rev., s. 3723; Code, s. 1052; R. C., c. 34, s. 78; 1798, c. 505; s. 4; C. S. 4437.)

§ 14-301. Operation or possession of slot machine; separate offenses.—It shall be unlawful for any person, firm or corporation to operate, keep in his possession or in the possession of any other person, firm or corporation, for the purpose of being operated, any slot machine, that shall not produce for or give to the person who places coin or money, or the representative of either, the same return in market value each and every time such machine is operated by placing money or coin or the representative of either therein. Each time said machine is operated as aforesaid shall constitute a separate offense. (1923, c. 138, ss. 1, 2; C. S. 4437(a.).)

Editor's Note.—It was said in 1 N. C. Law Rev. 285, that "the interesting part of the statute is the definition of unlawful machine or device as one that does not produce for or give to the person operating, playing or patronizing the machine or device 'the same return in market value each and every time such machine or device is operated or patronized by paying money or other thing of value.' The act seems to cover all possible gambling devices not already covered by the lottery provisions of the Consolidated Statutes." Construed with § 14-304.—This and the two following sections proscribing the operation and possession of slot machines of the type therein defined, are not repealed by §§ 14-304 to 14-309, proscribing ownership, sale, lease and transportation of such slot machines, since the two statutes are not repugnant, but complementary. State v. Calcutt, 219 N. C. 545, 15 S. E. (2d) 9.

Where an indictment charged defendant in one count with ownership, sale, lease and transportation of certain slot machines and devices prohibited by law, §§ 14-304 to 14-309, and charged defendant in the second count with the operation and possession of certain illegal slot machines, under this and the two following sections, it was held that the different counts in the bill may stand as separate and distinct offenses, and separate judgments may be entered thereon, and defendant's contention of duplicity is untenable. 1943, c. 84, s. 91.

Value Required to Be Given.—Under this section, a slot machine so operated that one putting into it a coin receives, in any event, the value of such coin in chewing gum, and stands to win by chance additional chewing gum or discs of commercial value without further payment, is condemned by the statute as being unlawful. But if the slot machine were so operated that one who puts in a coin receives the same return in market value each and every time such machine is operated, it would not then fall within condemnation of the statute. State v. May, 188 N. C. 470, 471. 125 S. E. 9.

License of Lawful Machines Only.—The State license issued for the operation of a slot machine is for one that is lawful, and does not permit the operation of one so devised as to give to the one who happens to strike certain mechanical combinations more of the merchandise than received at other times. State v. May, 188 N. C. 470, 471.

Sufficiency of Indictment.—An indictment charging that the defendant "unlawfully and willfully did operate a lottery, to wit, a slot machine (chapter 138, Public Laws 1923) against the form of the statute," etc., is insufficient because it fails to inform the accused of the specific offense or the necessary ingredients thereof, notwithstanding the statute is cited. State v. Ballangue, 191 N. C. 700, 701, 132 S. E. 795.

Cited in Calcutt v. McGeehy, 217 N. C. 1, 195 S. E. 49.

§ 14-302. Punchboards, vending machines, and other gambling devices; separate offenses.—It shall be unlawful for any person, firm or corporation to operate or keep in his possession, or the possession of any other person, firm or corporation, for the purpose of being operated, any punch-board, machine for vending merchandise, or other gambling device, by whatsoever name known or called, that shall not be for or give to the person operating, playing or patronizing same, whether personally or through another, the same return or returns of equal value each and every time such machine, apparatus or device is operated, played or patronized by paying of money or other thing of value for the privilege thereof. Each time said punch-board, machine for vending merchandise, or other gambling device, by whatsoever name known or called, is operated, played, or patronized by the paying of money or other thing of value for the privilege thereof, shall constitute a separate violation of this section as to operation thereunder. (1923, c. 138, ss. 3, 4; C. S. 4437(b)).

An indictment charging possession of gambling devices, but failing to charge that defendant operated the device or had them in his possession for the purpose of being operated, is fatally defective. State v. Jones, 218 N. C. 734, 12 S. E. (2d) 292.

§ 14-303. Violation of two preceding sections a misdemeanor.—A violation of any of the provisions of §§ 14-301, 14-302 shall be a misdemeanor punishable by a fine or imprisonment, or, in the discretion of the court, by both. (1923, c. 138, s. 5; C. S. 4437(c)).

§ 14-304. Manufacture, sale, etc., of slot machines and devices.—It shall be unlawful to manufacture, own, store, keep, possess, sell, rent, lease, let on shares, lend or give away, transport, or expose for sale or lease, or to offer to sell, rent, lease, let on shares, lend or give away, or to permit the operation of, or for any person to permit to be placed, maintained, used or kept in any room, building, vehicle, vessel, store, warehouse, or space or building owned, leased or occupied by him or under his management or control, any slot machine or device. (1937, c. 196, s. 1.)

Editor's Note.—For comment on this and the following sections, see 15 N. C. Law Rev. 340.

Constitutionality.—This and following sections, prohibiting coin slot machines in the operation of which a player may make varying scores or tallies upon which wagers may be made, and differentiating between such machines and those returning a definite and unvarying service or things of value each time they are played, are in accord with the policy of the state to suppress gambling and have a reasonable relation to this objective, and this statute is constitutional as a reasonable regulation relating to the public morals and welfare, within the power of the State. Calculone v. McGeachy, 213 N. C. 1, 126 S. E. 49; State v. Abbott, 218 N. C. 470, 11 S. E. (2d) 539, followed in 218 N. C. 480, 481, 11 S. E. (2d) 545, 546, 547.

§ 14-305. Manufacture with § 14-301. See note to § 14-301.

Not Repealed by 1939 Licensing Act.—The provisions of the Flanagan Act, ch. 196, Public Laws of 1937, prohibiting the possession and distribution of a coin slot machine in the operation of which the user may secure additional chances or rights to use the machine, is not repealed by § 105-66, since subsection 5 of that section expressly negates the intention to license or legalize any gaming slot machines and devices, and subsection 1 of that section excludes from its licensing provisions slot machines which "automatically vend" any prize, coupon or reward which may be used in the further operation of such machine, the word "give" being given its plain, ordinary meaning and intent being to exclude from the licensing provisions a machine which provides a player with additional plays or chances, or gives a premium price, or reward, irrespective of whether physical tokens of such premium, prize or reward are, or are not, delivered to the player. State v. Abbott, 218 N. C. 470, 11 S. E. (2d) 539, followed in 218 N. C. 480, 481, 11 S. E. (2d) 545, 546, 547.

§ 14-305. Agreements with references to slot machines or devices made unlawful.—It shall be unlawful to make or permit to be made with any person any agreement with reference to any slot machines or device, pursuant to which the user thereof may be entitled to receive any money, credit, allowance, or anything of value or additional chance or right to use such machines or devices, or to receive any check, slug, token or memorandum entitling the holder to receive any money, credit, allowance or thing of value. (1937, c. 196, s. 2.)

§ 14-306. Slot machine or device defined.—Any machine, apparatus or device is a slot machine or device within the provisions of §§ 14-304 through 14-309, if it is one that is adapted, or may be readily converted into one that is adapted, for use in such a way that, as a result of the insertion of any piece of money or coin or other object, such machine or device is caused to operate or may be operated in such manner that the user may receive or become entitled to receive any piece of money, credit, allowance or thing of value, or any check, slug, token or memorandum, whether of value or otherwise, or which may be exchanged for any money, credit, allowance or any thing of value, or which may be given in trade, or the user may secure additional chances or rights to use such machine, apparatus or device; or in the playing of which the operator or user has a chance to make varying scores or tallies upon the outcome of which wagers might be made, irrespective of whether it may, apart from any element of chance or unpredictable outcome of such operation, also sell, deliver or present some merchandise, indication or weight, entertainment or other thing of value. This definition is intended to embrace all slot machines and similar devices except slot machines in which is kept any article to be purchased by contrivances operated by depositing in the machine any coin or thing of value, and for which may be had any article of merchandise which makes the same return or returns of equal value each and every time it is operated, any machine wherein may be seen any pictures or heard any music by depositing therein any coin or thing of value, or any slot weighing machine or any machine for making stencils by the use of contrivances operated by depositing in the machine any coin or thing of value, or any lock operated by slot wherein money or thing of value is to be deposited, where such slot machines make the same return or returns of equal value each and every time the same is operated and does not at any time it is operated offer the user or operator any additional money, credit, allowance, or thing of value, or check, slug, token or memorandum, whether of value or otherwise, which may be exchanged for money, credit, allowance or anything of value or which may be given in trade or by which the user may secure additional chances or rights to use such machine, apparatus, or device, or in the playing of which the operator does not have a chance to make varying scores or tallies. (1937, c. 196, s. 3.)

An indictment charging the ownership and distribution of slot machines adapted for use in such a way that as a result of the insertion of a coin the machine may be operated in such a manner that the user may secure addi-
§ 14-307

Issuance of license prohibited.—There shall be no state, county, or municipal tax levied for the privilege of operating the machines or devices the operation of which is prohibited by §§ 14-304 through 14-309. (1537, c. 196, s. 4.)

§ 14-308. Declared a public nuisance.—An article or apparatus maintained or kept in violation of §§ 14-304 through 14-309 is a public nuisance. (1937, c. 196, s. 5.)

§ 14-309. Violation made misdemeanor.—Any person who violates any provision of §§ 14-304 through 14-309 is guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction shall be fined or imprisoned in the discretion of the court. (1937, c. 196, s. 6.)

Art. 38. Marathon Dances and Similar Endurance Contests.

§ 14-310. Dance marathon and walkathons prohibited.—It shall be unlawful for any person, firm, association or corporation to promote, advertise or conduct any marathon dance contests, walkathon contests and/or similar endurance contests, by whatever name called, of walking or dancing, and it shall be unlawful for any person to participate in any marathon dance contest, walkathon contest, and/or similar physical endurance contest by walking and dancing continuously or intermittently for a period of more than eight consecutive hours, whether or not an admission is charged and/or a prize awarded, and it shall be unlawful for any person to participate in more than one such contest or performance within any period of forty-eight hours. (1935, c. 13, s. 1.)

§ 14-311. Penalty for violation.—Any persons violating the provisions of this article shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be punishable by imprisonment in the county or municipal jail for not less than thirty days nor more than ninety days, or by a fine of not less than fifty dollars ($50.00) nor more than five hundred dollars ($500.00), or by both such fine and imprisonment in the discretion of the court. (1935, c. 13, s. 2.)

§ 14-312. Each day made separate offense.—Each and every day that any person, firm or corporation shall continue such a contest or engage in any such activities and/or each day's participation in such contest or advertisement of the same or do any act in violation of the provisions of this article shall be and constitute a distinct and separate offense. (1935, c. 13, s. 3.)

§ 14-313. Selling cigarettes to minors.—If any person shall sell, give away or otherwise dispose of, directly or indirectly, cigarettes, or tobacco in the form of cigarettes, or cut tobacco in any form or shape which may be used or intended to be used as a substitute for cigarettes, to any minor under the age of seventeen years; or if any person shall aid, assist or abet any other person in selling such articles to such minor, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be punished by fine or imprisonment in the discretion of the court. (Rev., s. 3804; 1891, c. 276; C. S. 4438.)

Cross Reference.—As to giving intoxicants to unmarried minors under 17 years of age, see §§ 14-331 and 14-332.

§ 14-314. Aiding minors in procuring cigarettes; duty of police officers.—If any person shall aid or assist any minor child under seventeen years old in obtaining the possession of cigarettes, or tobacco in any form used as a substitute therefor, by whatsoever name it may be called, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction shall be fined or imprisoned in the discretion of the court.

It shall be the duty of every police officer, upon knowledge or information that any minor under the age of seventeen years is or has been smoking any cigarette, to inquire of any such minor the name of the person who sold or gave him such cigarette, or the substance from which it was made, or who aided and abetted in effecting such gift or sale. Upon receiving this information from any such minor, the officer shall forthwith cause a warrant to be issued for the person giving or selling, or aiding and abetting in the giving or selling of such cigarette or the substance out of which it was made, and have such person dealt with as the law directs. Any such minor who shall fail or refuse to give to any officer, upon inquiry, the name of the person selling or giving him such cigarette, or the substance out of which it was made, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Rev., s. 3805; 1891, c. 276, s. 2; 1913, c. 185; C. S. 4439.)

§ 14-315. Selling or giving weapons to minors.—If any person shall knowingly sell, offer for sale, give or in any way dispose of to a minor any pistol or pistol cartridge, brass knucks, bowie-knife, dirk, loaded cane or sling-shot, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Rev., s. 3832; 1893, c. 514; C. S. 4440.)

§ 14-316. Permitting young children to use dangerous firearms.—Any person, being the parent or guardian of, or standing in loco parentis to, any child under the age of twelve years, who shall knowingly permit such child to have the possession or custody of, or use in any manner whatever, any gun, pistol or other dangerous firearm, whether such firearm be loaded or unloaded, or any other person who shall knowingly furnish such child any such firearm, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be fined not exceeding fifty dollars or imprisoned not exceeding thirty days. (1913, c. 32; C. S. 4441.)

§ 14-317. Permitting minors to enter barrooms, billiard rooms and bowling alleys.—If the keeper or owner of any barroom, billiard room or bowling alley shall allow any minor to enter or remain in such barroom, billiard room or bowling alley, where before such minor enters or remains in such barroom, billiard room or bowling alley, the owner or keeper thereof has been notified by the parents or guardian of such minor not to allow him to enter or remain in such barroom, billiard room or bowling alley, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be fined not exceeding fifty dollars or imprisoned not exceeding thirty days. (Rev., s. 3729; 1897, c. 278; C. S. 4442.)
§ 14-318. Exposing children to fire.—If any person shall lead any child of the age of seven years or less locked or otherwise confined in any dwelling, building or enclosure, and go away from such dwelling, building or enclosure without leaving some person of the age of discretion in charge of the same, so as to expose the child to danger of fire, the person so offending shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be punished at the discretion of the court. (Rev., s. 3795; 1893, c. 12; C. S. 4443.)

§ 14-319. Marrying females under fourteen years old.—If any person shall marry a female under the age of fourteen years, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Rev., s. 3368; Code, s. 1083; R. C., c. 34, s. 46; 1820, c. 1041, ss. 1, 2; C. S. 4444.)

Cross Reference.—As to capacity to marry in general, see § 51-2.

§ 14-320. Separating child under six months old from mother.—It shall be unlawful for any person to separate or aid in separating any child under six months old from its mother for the purpose of placing such child in a foster home or institution, or with the intent to remove it from the state for such purpose, unless the consent in writing for such separation shall have been obtained from the clerk of the superior court and the county health officer of the county in which the mother resides, or of the county in which the child was born; and it shall be unlawful for any mother to surrender her child for such purpose without first having obtained such consent; provided, that in every instance the county superintendent of public welfare shall have made proper investigation of the condition and situation of said mother and child and shall make a written report of same to the clerk of court and the county health officer before they take action. Any person violating this section shall, upon conviction, be fined not exceeding five hundred dollars or imprisoned for one year, or both, in the discretion of the court. (1917, c. 159; 1919, c. 240: 1939, c. 56; C. S. 4445.)

Cross Reference.—As to adoption generally, see Chapter 48.

Editor's Note.—The 1929 amendment added the proviso to the first sentence.

§ 14-321. Failing to pay minors for doing certain work.—Whenever any person, having a contract with any corporation, company or person for the manufacture or change of any raw material by the piece or bond, shall employ any minor to assist in the work upon the faith of and by color of the terms of such contract, with intent to cheat and defraud such minor, and, having secured the contract price, shall willfully fail to pay the minor when he shall have performed his part of the contract work, whether done by the day or by the job, the person so offending shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be fined not more than fifty dollars or imprisoned not more than thirty days. (Rev., s. 3432a; 1893, c. 309; C. S. 4446.)

Cross Reference.—As to child labor regulations, see § 110-1 et seq.

Art. 40. Protection of the Family.

§ 14-322. Abandonment of family by husband.—If any husband shall willfully abandon his wife without providing adequate support for such wife, and the children which he may have begotten upon her, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor; provided, that the abandonment of children by the father shall constitute a continuing offense and shall not be barred by any statute of limitations until the youngest living child shall arrive at the age of eighteen years. (Rev., s. 3355; Code, s. 970; 1868-9, c. 209, s. 1; 1873-4, c. 176, s. 10; 1879, c. 92; 1925, c. 290; C. S. 4447.)

Cross References.—As to failure of husband to provide adequate support for family, see § 14-325. As to competency of wife's testimony upon trial of husband for abandonment, see § 8-57.

Editor's Note.—The latter part of this section, providing that the abandonment shall be a continuing offense until the youngest child should arrive at the age of eighteen years and barring the running of the statute of limitation until that time was added by Public Laws 1925, ch. 290.

The purpose of this section was to make unlawful a willful abandonment of a wife by a husband without providing adequate support for her. It is not made unlawful for a husband to simply willfully abandon his wife—a husband is not compelled to live with his wife if he fails to provide adequate support. Hyder v. Hyder, 215 N. C. 239, 240, 1 S. E. (2d) 541.

Section must be strictly construed. State v. Gardner, 219 N. C. 331, 13 S. E. (2d) 529.

It has no application to illegitimate children, and, therefore an indictment drawn under this section charging defendant with the abandonment of his illegitimate child fails to charge a crime. State v. Gardner, 219 N. C. 331, 13 S. E. (2d) 529.

Two Offenses Created.—The placing of the comma after the words "such wife," in this section, expresses the legislative intent to create two offenses, the one, the willful abandonment of the wife, and the other, the willful abandonment by the father of his children of the marriage; especially when construed in connection with section 14-325, making it a misdemeanor for the husband to "willfully neglect to provide adequate support for his wife and the child or children which he has begotten by her." State v. Bell, 184 N. C. 701, 11 S. E. 190.

This section in express terms constitutes the abandonment of children by the father a continuing offense. The prosecution of an offense of this nature is a bar to a subsequent prosecution for the same offense charged to have been committed at any time before the institution of the first prosecution, but it is not a bar to a subsequent prosecution for continuing the same offense thereafter, as this is a new violation of the law. State v. Hinson, 209 N. C. 187, 190, 183 S. E. 397.

Willful failure and refusal to support an illegitimate child, constitutes a continuing offense. State v. Johnson, 212 N. C. 566, 154 S. E. 319.

Construed with § 14-323.—Where the husband has been indicted for willful abandoning his wife and minor children (under this section), and, secondly, for willfully failing to support them (§ 14-325), an order suspending judgment upon the second count, to take effect, however, upon the defendant's willingness and ability to order support under this first one, is not made unavailing as being conditional or alternative. State v. Vickers, 196 N. C. 471, 147 S. E. 879.

The Indictment.—An indictment against a husband for abandoning his wife must aver his failure to support her. State v. May, 132 N. C. 1029, 43 S. E. 819.

Abandonment Must Be Willful.—The willful abandonment of the wife is an essential element of the offense created by this section, and this, the prosecutrix is required to show beyond a reasonable doubt. State v. Falkner, 182 N. C. 729, 188 S. E. 756; State v. Smith, 164 N. C. 475, 79 S. E. 797.

But there is no reversible error in the charge of the court for omitting the word "willful" in one part thereof when he has charged elsewhere repeatedly to the jury that in order to convict the abandonment must have been willful, which must be proved beyond a reasonable doubt. State v. Taylor, 175 N. C. 833, 96 S. E. 661.

Where the defendant is indicted under this section for failure to provide adequate support for his minor children, and in the prosecution of the action the evidence tends to show that the defendant and his wife were living apart and that he had not provided any support for his children, the charge of abandonment has been properly entered in a civil action by the wife awarding all his personalty except the proceeds of the personal estate which he had transferred his realty to his daughter for the support of the wife and [691] minor children, there is no presumption of wildness from the failure to provide adequate support under § 14-322, and an instruction that leaves out this essential element of the crime will be held for reversible error. State v. Roberts, 197 N. C. 261, 149 S. E. 199.

The word "willfully" as used in § 49-2 is used with the same import as in this section. State v. Cook, 207 N. C. 651, 170 S. E. 759.

Petition, fees. It is within the discretion of the trial judge to provide for the support of the wife and the minor children of the marriage from the property or labor of the husband upon his conviction of abandonment and nonsupport. The amount of support should be definite in providing for the contingencies that may arise, such as the coming of age of the children, etc., and should state what part thereof is for the support of the children; and an order requiring the defendant to pay a certain sum monthly into the office of the clerk of the Superior Court, under a bond of the defendant to secure compliance, without further provision, would be permissible. The contingency that the children may be called upon to perform the duty to support being a continuing one during the marital union, to be performed by him unless relieved therefrom by legal excuse; and his willful abandonment and failure to provide constitutes the statutory offense. State v. Beam, 181 N. C. 907, 107 N. E. 668.

"In State v. Johnson, 194 N. C. 378, 139 S. E. 697, it was said: 'An offending husband may be convicted of abandonment and nonsupport when—... when—... when—... when—... two things are established, a willful abandonment of the wife; and, second, a failure to provide "adequate support for such wife, and the children which he may have begotten upon her."' State v. Vickers, 196 N. C. 239, 145 S. E. 175."

Both Abandonment and Nonsupport Must Be Proved.—Both the fact of willful abandonment and that of failure to support must be alleged and proved, the abandonment, being a single act and not a continuing offense, day by day, but the duty to support being a continuing one, and where further provisions are not made, the venue of an action for the violation thereof, an instruction that withdraws the question as to the fact of abandonment, or neglect to provide adequate support, is not, however, a competent witness to prove the fact of marriage. State v. Brown, 67 N. C. 470. See 81 and 82.

Not a Continuing Offense.—The crime of willful abandonment by the husband of his wife is not a continuing offense, day by day, and where there has been a complete act of abandonment, no refusal of the husband to support his wife or remittances of funds for an adequate support, when he was residing in another State, he cannot direct her choice of residence and is inadmissible under this section in the county of her residence. State v. Beam, 181 N. C. 907, 107 N. E. 668.

Venue.—When the husband has agreed to a separation from his wife upon consideration of his remitting periodically a certain sum of money to a certain county in which she was to reside, and he fails of performance, the venue of an action under the provisions of this section, is in that county. State v. Hooker, 186 N. C. 761, 120 S. E. 449.

Same.—Where Husband Non-Resident.—Where a man willfully abandons his wife in another county and refuses to support his minor child although repeated demands were made on him after the parties had returned to the jurisdiction of the courts of this State and subject to the provisions of our statute making it a misdemeanor. State v. Beam, 181 N. C. 907, 107 N. E. 668.

Statute of Limitations.—Where the abandonment consisted in the failure to remit a certain sum of money periodically to a certain county in which his conduct had forced her to reside, and where failure to support continued for two years therefrom is not barred by the statute of limitations. State v. Beam, 181 N. C. 907, 107 N. E. 668; State v. Hooker, 186 N. C. 761, 120 S. E. 449.

Same.—Same and Also.[1]—The prosecution of the father to support his children and his making gifts to them is sufficient to reflect the bar of the two-year statute of limitations, whether he was living in the home with them or otherwise, in proceedings to show his willful abandonment and failure to support, and an indictment found within two years therefrom is not barred by the statute of limitations. State v. Beam, 181 N. C. 907, 107 S. E. 429.

Motion for Judgment of Conviction.—Where a man willfully abandons his wife, sends remittances for her support, returns with her and as with a wife for a while, and again abandons her, his willfully leaving her the second time without providing an adequate support, for her subsistence and failure to support, and an indictment found within two years therefrom is not barred by the statute of limitations. State v. Beam, 181 N. C. 907, 107 S. E. 429.

Instruction.—Plaintiff's contention that the court should have charged that the failure to provide support under this section must have been willful in order to constitute an abandonment is untenable. Hyder v. Hyder, 215 N. C. 239, 1 S. E. (2d) 540.

Plea in Abatement after Plea of Not Guilty.—Where the defendant had been convicted of abandoning his wife and child and failing to provide an adequate support for them under the provisions of this section, his plea in abatement comes too late after his plea of not guilty. State v. Hooker, 186 N. C. 761, 120 S. E. 449.

Amendment of Complaint.—See § 1-129.

Sufficient Evidence to Show Willful Abandonment and Failure to Support Minor Child.—Evidence that defendant is the father of the child although repeated demands were made on him after the parties had returned to this State, is held to show that the offense of willful abandonment and failure to support said minor child was committed by the defendant in this State, since this section provides that the abandonment by the father of a minor child shall constitute a continuing offense. State v. Hinson, 220 N. C. 187, 183 S. E. 397.

§ 14-322. Intoxicating Liquors. — A person violating the liquor laws who shall not be sentenced for a second offense for ten years shall not be sentenced for a third offense for ten years thereafter, nor for any subsequent offense. State v. Vickers, 197 N. C. 756, 168 S. E. 226.

§ 14-323. Evidence that abandonment was willful. — If the fact of abandonment of and failure to provide adequate support for the wife and children shall be proved, or, while living with such wife, neglect by the husband to provide for the adequate support of such wife or children shall be proved, then the fact that such husband neglects applying himself to some honest calling for the support of himself and family, and is found sauntering about, endeavoring to maintain himself by gaming or other undue means, or is a frequenter of drinking houses, or is a known common drunkard, shall be presumptive evidence that such abandonment and neglect is willful. (Rev., s. 3356; Code, s. 971; 1868-9, c. 209, s. 3; C. S. 4449.)

When Evidence for Defendant Necessary. — Where the nonsupport and abandonment of the husband are both established or admitted, under this section, it may be necessary for the defendant to come forward with his evidence and proof that the abandonment was not willful to avoid the risk of an adverse verdict. State v. Falkner, 182 N. C. 783, 108 S. E. 754.

Cited in Steel v. Steel, 194 N. C. 631, 10 S. E. 707.

§ 14-324. Order to support from husband's property or earnings. — Upon any conviction for abandonment, any judge or any recorder having jurisdiction thereof may, in his discretion, make such order as in his judgment will best provide for the support, as far as may be necessary, of the deserted wife or children, or both, from the property or labor of the defendant. (1917, c. 259; C. S. 4449.)

A judgment that the defendant be confined in the common jail for one year upon each count in the indictment, the term under one count to begin at the expiration of the term under the other, the judgment to be fully satisfied at the expiration of both terms, with provision that the judgment be suspended upon the payment to the defendant of a monthly stipulated amount for a definite period and the giving of a bond for compliance therewith, is in this case held to be sufficiently certain and definite in its terms. State v. Vickers, 197 N. C. 62, 147 S. E. 673. See notes to § 14-322.

In Addition to Section 14-322. — This section is in addition to the powers conferred by section 14-322, and does not otherwise modify or interfere with its force and effect in making the abandonment of the wife a misdemeanor. State v. Faulkner, 182 N. C. 635, 116 S. E. 168, and the defendant was sentenced to two years on the road. It was held that the judgment was void because entered without the knowledge or presence of the accused.

§ 14-325. Failure of husband to provide adequate support for family. — If any husband, while living with his wife, shall willfully neglect to provide adequate support of such wife or the children which he has begotten upon her, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. Upon conviction of such husband as herein provided, the court having jurisdiction thereof may, in his discretion make such order as in his judgment will best provide for the support of such wife or children, and may commit the said husband to the common jail of the county, to be hired out by the county commissioners for such length of time as the court may deem proper, which said wage or salary shall be paid to the said wife or children, to be used toward their support. (Rev. s. 3357; Code, s. 972; 1868-9, c. 209, s. 2; 1873-4, c. 176, s. 11; 1879, c. 92; 1921, c. 103; C. S. 4450.)

§ 14-326. Abandonment of child by mother. — If any mother shall willfully abandon her child or children, whether legitimate or illegitimate, and under sixteen years of age, she shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (1931, c. 57, s. 1.)

Art. 41. Intoxicating Liquors.

§ 14-327. Adulteration of liquors. — If any person shall adulterate any spirituous, alcoholic, vinous or malt liquors by mixing the same with any substance of whatever kind, except as provided in the following section, or if any person shall sell or offer to sell any spirituous, alcoholic, vinous or malt liquors, knowing the same to be thus adulterated, or shall import into this state any spirituous or intoxicating liquors, and sell or offer to sell such liquor, knowing the same to be thus adulterated, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be fined
§ 14-328. Selling recipe for adulterating liquors.—If any person shall sell or offer for sale any recipe or formula whatever for adulterating any spirituous or alcoholic liquors, by mixing the same with any substance of whatever kind, except as is herein provided, he shall be guilty of a felony, and shall be fined or imprisoned as is provided in the preceding section: Provided, that this section and the two sections that immediately precede and follow it respectively shall not be so construed as to prevent druggists, physicians and persons engaged in the mechanical arts from adulterating liquors for medical and mechanical purposes. (Rev., s. 3513; Code, s. 984; 1858-9, c. 57, ss. 2, 3; C. S. 4452.)

§ 14-329. Manufacturing or selling poisonous liquors.—If any person shall manufacture, sell, or in any way deal out spirituous liquors, of any name or kind, which are poisonous to the human system, or mix any foreign poisonous matter in or with any such spirituous liquor, he shall be guilty of a felony and shall be imprisoned in the state's prison not less than five years, and may be fined in the discretion of the court. It shall be competent for any citizen, after making purchase of any spirituous liquor, to cause the same to be analyzed by some known competent chemist, and if upon such analysis it shall be found to contain any foreign properties or ingredients poisonous to the human system, he shall be guilty of a felony and shall be imprisoned in the state's prison not less than five years, and may be fined in the discretion of the court. The father, or if he be dead, the mother, guardian or employer of any minor to whom a sale or gift shall be made in violation of this section, shall have a right of action in a civil suit against the person so offending by such sale or gift, and upon proof of such illicit sale or gift shall recover from the party so offending such exemplary damages as a jury may assess: Provided, that such assessment shall not be less than twenty-five dollars. (Rev., ss. 3534, 3535; Code, ss. 1077, 1078; 1873-4, c. 68; 1881, c. 242; C. S. 4456.)

§ 14-330. Selling or giving away liquor near political speaking.—If any person shall sell or give away, either directly or indirectly, any spirituous liquors, wine or bitters containing alcohol, within two miles of any place at which political public speaking shall be advertised to take place, and does take place, during the day on which such speaking shall take place, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be fined not less than ten dollars nor more than twenty dollars, or imprisoned not exceeding twenty days. (Rev., s. 3528; Code, s. 983; 1873-4, c. 180, ss. 1, 2; C. S. 4453.)

§ 14-331. Giving intoxicants to unmarried minors under seventeen years old.—If any person shall give intoxicating drinks or liquors to any unmarried minor under the age of seventeen years; or if any person shall aid, assist or abet any other person in giving such drinks or liquors to such minor, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be punished by fine or imprisonment in the discretion of the court; but nothing in this section shall prevent any parent or other person standing in loco parentis from giving or administering any such drinks or liquors to his minor child for medicinal purposes, nor any physician from giving or administering such drinks or liquors to any minor patient under his care; nor shall this section apply to the giving or using of wine in the administration of the sacrament. (1915, c. 82; C. S. 4454.)

Cross Reference.—As to giving cigarettes to minors, see §§ 14-333 and 14-314.

§ 14-332. Selling or giving intoxicants to unmarried minors by dealers; liability for exemplary damages.—If any dealer in intoxicating drinks or liquors sell, or in any manner part with for a compensation therefor, either directly or indirectly, or give away such drinks or liquors, to any unmarried person under the age of twenty-one years, knowing such person to be under the age of twenty-one years he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor; and such sale or giving away shall be prima facie evidence of such knowledge. Any person who keeps on hand intoxicating drinks or liquors for the purpose of sale or profit shall be considered a dealer within the meaning of this section.

The father, or if he be dead, the mother, guardian or employer of any minor to whom a sale or gift shall be made in violation of this section, shall have a right of action in a civil suit against the person so offending by such sale or gift, and upon proof of such illicit sale or gift shall recover from the party so offending such exemplary damages as a jury may assess: Provided, that such assessment shall not be less than twenty-five dollars. (Rev., ss. 3534, 3535; Code, ss. 1077, 1078; 1873-4, c. 68; 1881, c. 242; C. S. 4456.)

Art. 42. Public Drunkenness.

§ 14-333. Public drinking on railway passenger cars; copy of section to be posted.—Any person who shall publicly engage in the drinking of intoxicating liquors in the presence of passengers on any passenger car shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be fined not less than ten dollars nor more than fifty dollars, or imprisoned not to exceed thirty days. This section shall not apply to any smoking compartment or to any closet, dining or buffet car. It shall be the duty of all railway companies to have posted a copy of this section in all passenger coaches used for transporting passengers within the state. (1907, c. 455; C. S. 4457.)

§ 14-334. Public drunkenness and disorderliness.—It shall be unlawful for any person to be drunk and disorderly in any public place or on any public road or street in North Carolina; person or persons convicted of a violation hereof shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be fined not exceeding fifty dollars or imprisoned not exceeding thirty days in the discretion of the court. (1921, c. 211; C. S. 4457(a).)

Verdict of guilty of disorderly conduct but not of drunkenness will not support conviction for drunken and disorderly conduct under this section. State v. Myrick, 203 N. C. 8, 164 S. E. 326.

§ 14-335. Local: Public drunkenness.—If any person shall be found drunk or intoxicated on the public highway, or at any public place or meeting, in any county, township, city, town, village or other place herein named, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be punished as is provided in this section:

1. By a fine of not more than fifty dollars, or by imprisonment for not more than thirty days, in the counties of Alamance, Ashe, Avery, Brunswick, Burke, Catawba, Cherokee, Clay, Cleve-

§ 14-335

CH. 14. CRIMINAL LAW

§ 14-335

11. By a fine of not less than twenty-five dollars or imprisonment for not more than thirty days, for the second offense of not more than fifty dollars, or imprisonment for not more than sixty days; and for the third offense within a period of twelve months, either fine or imprisonment, in the discretion of the court. (1935, c. 207; 1937, c. 203; 1941, c. 82, 150.)

In Edgecombe county, by a fine, for the first offense, of not more than fifty dollars ($50.00), or imprisonment for not more than thirty days; for the second offense within a period of twelve months, by a fine of not more than one hundred dollars ($100.00), or imprisonment for not more than sixty days; and for the third offense within any twelve months' period such fine or imprisonment is to be declared a misdemeanor, punishable as a misdemeanor within the discretion of the court. (1935, c. 207; 1937, c. 203; 1941, c. 82, 150.)

13. In Jackson and Macon counties, any person violating this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, punishable as a misdemeanor within the discretion of the court. Provided, that in the event the county commissioners of Jackson county abolish the recorder's court of said county, then, and in that event, the first sentence of this subsection shall not apply to Jackson county. (Pub. L. 1927, c. 17; Pub. L. 1931, c. 413.)

14. Any person or persons found drunk or intoxicated on the public highway, or at any public place or meeting in Currituck County, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction shall be fined not less than ten dollars ($10.00), nor more than fifty dollars ($50.00) for each offense, or be imprisoned not exceeding thirty (30) days, at the discretion of the court.

Upon complaint before any justice of the peace, he shall issue a warrant for the arrest of the accused and in the absence of a duly authorized officer to execute the said warrant, he shall deputize any citizen to execute the same. (1943, c. 506.)

Editor's Note.—By the amendment of 1929 paragraph one of this section was made applicable in Northampton county.

Laws of 1933, chapter 287, added subdivision 19 applicable to King High School District, Stokes county. Chapter 10 struck out Swain from the list of counties in subdivision 1, and added subdivision 9 applicable in that county only.

Public Laws of 1935, chapter 208, added Orange to the list of counties in subdivision 1. Public Laws of 1935, chapter 208, added Orange to the list of counties in subdivision 1. Public Laws of 1935, chapter 49, added Cherokee and Clay to subsection 1 and deleted other subsections applicable to said counties. Section 4 of this amendatory act makes it lawful for Cherokee and Clay counties to sentence the defendant to thirty days in prison to be assigned to work on the highway. Public Laws 1939, c. 55, made said section 4 of chapter 49 of Public Laws of 1935, applicable to Jackson county. Public Laws of 1935, chapter 350, added subdivision 10 to the section. Public Laws of 1935, chapter 207, added subdivision 11.

1936 amendatory act makes it applicable to Surry county, and added subdivision 12. The 1938 amendatory act also inserted several counties in the list in subdivision 1 as follows: C. 46, Duplin; c. 96, Johnston; c. 286, Avery, Davie, Mitchell, Wilkes and Yadkin; c. 329, Alamance; c. 443, Brunswick.
§ 14-336. Persons classed as vagrants.—If any person shall come within any of the following classes, he shall be deemed a vagrant, and shall be fined not exceeding fifty dollars or imprisoned not exceeding thirty days: Provided, however, that this limitation of punishment shall not be binding except in cases of a first offense, and in all other cases such person may be fined or imprisoned, or both, in the discretion of the court:

1. Persons wandering or strolling about in idleness who are able to work and have no property to support them.
2. Persons leading an idle, immoral or profligate life, who have no property to support them and who are able to work and do not work.
3. All persons able to work having no property to support them and who have not some visible and known means of a fair, honest and reputable livelihood.
4. Persons having a fixed abode who have no visible property to support them and who live by stealing or by trading in, bartering for or buying stolen property.
5. Professional gamblers living in idleness.
6. All able-bodied men having no other visible means of support who shall live in idleness upon the wages or earnings of their mother, wife or minor children, except of male children over eighteen years old.
7. Keepers and inmates of bawdy-houses, assignation houses, lewd and disorderly houses, and other places where illegal sexual intercourse is habitually carried on: Provided, that nothing here intended or shall be construed as abolishing the crime of keeping a bawdy-house, or lessening the punishment by law for such crime. (Rev., s. 3740; 1905, c. 391; 1907, c. 1012, s. 1; 1913, c. 75; 1915, c. 1; C. S. 4450.)

Editor's Note.—For a case decided under the former law, see § 14-203.

§ 14-337. Police officers to furnish list of disorderly houses; inmates competent and compellable to testify.—It shall be the duty of the chief of police, marshal, constable or other chief ministerial officer of each city and town in this state to furnish every thirty days to the police justice, recorder, mayor or other trial officer of such city or town a list of the bawdy, assignation, lewd and disorderly houses and other places where illegal sexual intercourse is carried on, together with the names of the keepers and inmates of such houses and places, in such city or town; and it shall be the duty of such police justice, recorder, mayor or other trial officer, upon the filing of such list, to issue his warrant for the persons declared in subsection seven of § 14-336 to be vagrants, and to punish in accordance with the provisions of that section such of them as may be found guilty. In all trials under said subsection seven of § 14-336 any keeper or inmate of any of the houses or places named, or his employees, shall be competent and compellable to give evidence, of the character and nature of such house or place and of the character and acts of the keepers and inmates thereof; but the person so testifying shall not be prosecuted or punished for the commission of any crime against which he shall have been required to testify.

If any chief of police, marshal, constable or other chief ministerial officer of any city or town shall fail to furnish the list of houses and places provided for in this section, or shall suppress the name of any person whom he is required herein to report, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be fined or imprisoned, or both, at the discretion of the court. (1907, c. 1012, ss. 2, 3; C. S. 4460.)

Cross References.—As to the effect of § 108-80 et seq. on this section, see § 108-89.

§ 14-338. Tramp defined and punishment provided; certain persons excepted.—If any person shall go about from place to place begging or subsisting on charity, he shall be denominated a tramp, and shall be punished by a fine not exceeding fifty dollars, or by imprisonment not exceeding thirty days: Provided, that any person who shall furnish satisfactory evidence of good character shall be discharged without cost. Any act of begging or vagrancy by any person, unless a well-known object of charity, shall be evidence that the person committing the same is a tramp. This section shall not apply to any woman, to any minor under the age of fourteen years, or to any blind person. (Rev., s. 3735; Code, ss. 3826, 3829, 3831, 1897, c. 268; 1879, c. 198, ss. 1, 4, 6; C. S. 4461.)

§ 14-339. Trespassing and the carrying of dangerous weapons by tramps.—If any tramp shall enter any dwelling-house or kindle any fire in the land of another without the consent of the owner or occupant thereof, or shall kindle a fire on any highway, or shall be found carrying any firearm or other dangerous weapon, or shall threaten to do any injury to the person, or to the real or personal estate, of another, he shall be punished by imprisonment, at the discretion of the court, not to exceed twelve months. (Rev., s. 3736; Code, s. 3829; 1879, c. 198, s. 2, C. S. 4462.)
§ 14-340. Malicious injuries by tramps to persons and property.—If any tramp shall willfully and maliciously do any injury to the person, or to the real or personal estate, of another, he shall be punished by imprisonment, at the discretion of the court, not to exceed three years. (Rev., s. 3737; Code, s. 3830; 1879, c. 198, s. 3; C. S. 4463.)

§ 14-341. Arrest of tramps by persons who are not officers.—Any person, upon a view of any officer described in §§ 14-338 through 14-346, shall cause the offender to be arrested upon a warrant and taken before some justice of the peace, or he may apprehend the offender and take him before a justice of the peace, for examination, and, on his conviction, he shall be entitled to the same fee as a sheriff. (Rev., s. 3738; Code, s. 3832; 1879, c. 198, s. 5; C. S. 4464.)

Art. 44. Regulation of Sales.

§ 14-342. Selling or offering to sell meat of diseased animals.—Any person shall knowingly and willfully slaughter any diseased animal and sell or offer for sale any of the meat of such diseased animal for human consumption, or if any person knows that the meat offered for sale or sold for human consumption by him is that of a diseased animal, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be fined or imprisoned, or both, in the discretion of the court. (Rev., s. 3442; 1905, c. 303; C. S. 4465.)

§ 14-343. Unauthorized dealing in railroad tickets.—If any person shall sell or deal in tickets issued by any railroad company, unless he is a duly authorized agent of the railroad company, or shall refuse upon demand to exhibit his authority to sell or deal in such tickets, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Rev., s. 3764; 1895, c. 83, s. 1; C. S. 4466.)

§ 14-344. Sale of athletic contest tickets in excess of printed price.—It shall be unlawful for any person, firm or corporation selling, or offering for sale any ticket of admission to any baseball, basketball, football game or other athletic contest of any kind in excess of the sale price written or printed on such ticket or tickets. Any person, firm or corporation violating any provision of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction shall be fined or imprisoned in the discretion of the court. (1941, c. 180.)

§ 14-345. Sale of cotton at night under certain conditions.—If any person shall buy, sell, deliver or receive, for a price, or for any reward whatever, any cotton in the seed, or any unpacked lint cotton, brought or carried in a basket, hamper or sheaf, or in any mode where the quantity is less than what is usually baled, or where the cotton is not baled, between the hours of sunset and sunrise, such person so offending shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Rev., s. 3813; Code, s. 1006; 1873-4, c. 62; 1874-5, c. 70; 1905, c. 417; C. S. 4467.)

Local Modification.—Mecklenburg, Nash: C. S. 4467.

§ 14-346. Sale of convict-made goods prohibited.—Except as hereinafter provided, the sale anywhere within the state of North Carolina of any and all goods, wares and merchandise manufactured, produced or mined wholly or in part, by convicts or prisoners, except by convicts or prisoners on parole or probation, or in any penal and/or reformatory institutions is hereby prohibited and declared to be unlawful.

The provisions of this section shall not apply to sales or exchanges between the state penitentiary and other penal, charitable, educational and/or custodial institutions, maintained wholly or in part by the state, or its political subdivisions, for use in said institution or by the wards thereof; nor shall the provisions of this section apply to the sale of cotton, corn, grain or other processed or unprocessed agricultural products, including seed for growing purposes, or to the sale of stone, quarried by convict labor, or to the sale of coal or charcoal mined by convict labor, in any mine operated by the state: Provided that this section shall apply with equal force to sales to the state or any political subdivision thereof by any state penal or correctional institution, including the state highway: Provided further that the state of North Carolina shall have the right of manufacture in any of its penal or correctional institutions products produced thereby can be used exclusively by the state or any of its agencies.

This section shall apply equally to convict or prison-made goods, wares or merchandise, whether manufactured, produced or mined within or without the state of North Carolina.

Any person, firm or corporation selling, undertaking to sell, or offering for sale any such prison-made or convict-made goods, wares or merchandise, anywhere within the State, in violation of the provisions of this section, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and, upon conviction, shall be subject to fine, or imprisonment, or both, in the discretion of the court. Each sale or offer to sell, in violation of the provisions of this section, shall constitute a separate offense. (1933, c. 146, ss. 1-4.)

Art. 45. Regulation of Employer and Employee.

§ 14-347. Enticing servant to leave master.—If any person shall entice, persuade and procure any servant by indenture, or any servant who shall have contracted in writing or orally to serve his employer, to leave unlawfully the service of his master or employer; or if any person shall knowingly and unlawfully harbor and detain, in his own service and from the service of his master or employer, any servant who shall unlawfully leave the service of such master or employer, then, in either case, such person and servant shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be fined not exceeding one hundred dollars or imprisoned not exceeding six months. (Rev., s. 3365; Code, ss. 3119, 3120; 1656, c. 58; 1866-7, c. 124; 1891, c. 303; C. S. 4469.)

Cross Reference.—As to a similar provision in the case of landlord and tenant or cropper, see § 14-339.

In General.—The offense was not known to the common law, State v. Rice, 76 N. C. 194. The section applies only where there has been an enticement, and not where a servant merely leaves his employer, even though such leaving is in violation of a contract between the parties. State v. Daniel, 89 N. C. 555. Nor does the section apply to the parent of a minor child who commands such child to quit employment. State v. Anderson, 104 N. C. 771, 10 S. E. 47. But if a minor is induced to leave his employment by a stranger, not in loco parentis, such stranger is amenable.
§ 14-348. Enticing seamen from vessel.—If any person shall induce any seaman, in the employ of any domestic or foreign vessel, to leave any such vessel before his term of service shall have expired, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be fined not exceeding fifty dollars, or imprisoned not exceeding thirty days. (Rev., s. 3555; Code, s. 1109; 1879, c. 219, s. 1; 1881, c. 256, s. 2; C. S. 4474.)

Cross Reference.—As to employing tenant or cropper who has unlawfully violated a contract with his landlord, see § 14-338.

§ 14-349. Search warrants for deserting seamen.—If any credible witness shall complain, upon oath before any justice of the peace, that any person has deserted from any domestic or foreign vessel, knowing that such seaman has deserted, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be fined not exceeding fifty dollars or imprisoned not exceeding thirty days; and if such seaman be found concealed or secreted by any person on whose premises any seaman who has deserted on his premises any seaman who has deserted from any such domestic or foreign vessel, it shall be lawful for such justice to grant a search warrant to be executed within the limits of his county to any proper officer, authorizing him to search for such seaman, and to arrest the person on whose premises he may be found; and the person on whose premises such seaman shall be found shall be adjudged to pay the costs of the search warrant, if on examination it shall appear that such seaman was secreted or concealed by such person; otherwise the costs shall be paid by the party making the complaint. (Rev., s. 3557; Code, s. 1110; 1881, c. 256, s. 3; C. S. 4473.)
