§ 14-350. Appeal in cases of deserting seamen regulated.—In all cases arising under §§ 14-349 through 14-351, if any appeal is prayed by either party at the time of the trial, it shall be granted; but no appeal shall be granted by any justice at any time after the final hearing of the case. In case an appeal is prayed at the trial, it shall be the duty of the justice to proceed immediately to reduce to writing the testimony of any witness whose testimony is material (if such witness shall be master, officer or seaman on board of any vessel), in the presence of the adverse party, who may cross-question such witness, which testimony shall be subscribed by such witness and returned by the justice with the papers in the case; and on the hearing in the appellate court, the testimony so taken and reduced to writing by the justice shall be read, heard and accepted as the true and lawful testimony of such witness, as if such person were in person present to give evidence. For reducing such testimony to writing the justice shall receive the same fees as are allowed for taking depositions. (Rev., s. 3558; Code, s. 1111; 1881, c. 256, ss. 4, 5; C. S. 4474.)

§ 14-353. Influencing agents and servants in violating duties owed employers.—Any person who gives, offers or promises to an agent, employee or servant any gift or gratuity whatever with intent to influence his action in relation to his principal's, employer's or master's business; any agent, employee or servant who requests or accepts a gift or gratuity or a promise to make a gift or to do an act beneficial to himself, under an agreement or with an understanding that he shall act in any particular manner in relation to his principal's, employer's or master's business; any agent, employee or servant who, being authorized to procure materials, supplies or other articles either by purchase or contract for his principal, employer or master, or to employ service or labor for his principal, employer or master, receives, directly or indirectly, any gift or gratuity from the person who makes such sale or contract, or furnishes such materials, supplies or other articles, or from any person who renders such service or labor; and any person who gives or offers such an agent, employee or servant such commission, discount or bonus, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be punished in the discretion of the court. (1913, c. 190, s. 1; C. S. 4475.)
subpoena or in any other way.——If no person so testifying or producing any such books, papers, contracts, agreements or other documents shall be exempted from prosecution and punishment for perjury committed in so testifying. (1913, c. 190, s. 2; C. S. 4476.)

Cross References.—As to constitutional provisions against self-incrimination, see the North Carolina Constitution, Art. I, § 11, and notes thereto, and the United States Constitution, Amendment XV.

Editor’s Note.—For an article discussing the limits to self-incrimination, see 15 N. C. Law Rev. 229.

§ 14-355. Blacklisting employees.—If any person, agent, company or corporation, after having discharged any employee from his or its service, shall prevent or attempt to prevent, by word or writing of any kind, such discharged employee from obtaining employment with any other person, company or corporation, such person, agent or corporation shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be punished by a fine not exceeding five hundred dollars; and such person, agent, company or corporation shall be liable in penal damages to such discharged person for damages so recovered by civil action. This section shall not be construed as prohibiting any person or agent of any company or corporation from furnishing in writing, upon request, any other person, company or corporation to whom such discharged person or employee has applied for employment, a truthful statement of the reason for such discharge. (1909, c. 858, s. 1; C. S. 477.)

Intent of Section.—This section was intended to correct the abuse under the common law of statements made concerning a discharged employee out of malice, where damages for the loss of employment were difficult of admeasurement; and under the provisions of the act a statement made as to the standing of the discharged employee is not privileged, if made maliciously. Seward v. Receivers, 159 N. C. 241, 242, 75 S. E. 34.

Remedial Provisions.—The provisions of this act and the following section are remedial and do not put the burden upon the plaintiff of showing either malice or actual damages. Goins v. Sargent, 196 N. C. 478, 146 S. E. 131.

What Constitutes a Violation.—Where an employer has discharged his employee for being a member of a lawful association of like employees, and has advised others, without a request from them, who would have engaged the service of such employee that he would not sell his product to them should they employ him, and thus has prevented the discharged employee from getting employment within the State, and forced him to obtain employment in another state, depriving him of his living at home here with his family, etc., the employee is entitled to recover damages in his civil action against his former employer, and a demurrer or tenus to a complaint setting forth this cause of action is bad. Goins v. Sargent, 196 N. C. 478, 146 S. E. 131.

§ 14-356. Conspiring to blacklist employees.—It shall be unlawful for two or more persons to agree together to blacklist any discharged employee or to attempt, by words or writing or any other means whatever, to prevent such discharged employee, or any employee who may have voluntarily left the service of his employer, from obtaining employment with any other person or company. Persons violating the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be fined or imprisoned, or both, at the discretion of the court. (1909, c. 858, s. 1; C. S. 477.)

§ 14-357. Issuing nontransferable script to laborers.—If any person who employs laborers by the day, week or month shall issue in payment for the services of such laborers any ticket, certificate or other script bearing upon its face the word “non-transferable,” or shall issue such ticket, certificate or other script in any form that would render it void by transfer from the person to whom issued, or shall refuse to pay to the person holding the same its face value, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof shall be fined not less than ten dollars nor more than fifty dollars for each offense, or imprisoned not more than thirty days. (Rev., s. 3730; 1889, c. 280; 1891, c. 46, 78, 167, 370, 456; 1895, c. 127; C. S. 4479.)

“Face Value” Defined.—The “face value” is the value expressed on the face of the writing in the commodity in which it is payable. Marriner v. Roper Co., 112 N. C. 164, 16 S. E. 906.

Rights of Assignee.—This section does not authorize the assignee of a ticket or scrip payable in merchandise to demand and receive payment in money instead of in merchandise. Marriner v. Roper Co., 112 N. C. 164, 16 S. E. 906.

Art. 46. Regulation of Landlord and Tenant.

§ 14-358. Local: Violation of certain contracts between landlord and tenant.—If any tenant or cropper shall procure advances from his landlord to enable him to make a crop on the land rented by him, and then willfully abandon the same without good cause and before paying for such advances; or if any landlord shall contract with a tenant or cropper to furnish him advances to enable him to make a crop, and shall willfully fail or refuse, without good cause, to furnish such advances according to his agreement, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be fined not exceeding fifty dollars or imprisoned not exceeding thirty days. Any person employing a tenant or cropper who has violated the provisions of this section, with knowledge of such violation, shall be liable to the landlord furnishing such advances for the amount thereof, and shall also be guilty of a misdemeanor, and fined not exceeding fifty dollars or imprisoned not exceeding thirty days. This section shall apply to the following counties only: Wayne, Lenoir, Greene, Johnston, Jones, Onslow, Craven, Cleveland, Sampson, Pitt, Duplin, Gates, Cumberland, Perquimans, Chowan, Robeson, Bladen, Nash, Harnett, Edgecombe, Hertford, Wilson, Rockingham, Pender, Currituck, Gaston, Stokes, Surry, Alamance, Northampton, Beaufort, Chatham, Tyrrell, Mecklenburg, Halifax, Caswell, Camden, Cabarrus, Columbus, Martin, Washington, Wake, Alexander, Montgomery, Pamlico, Rowan, Rutherford, Bertie, Vance, Warren, Lincoln, Randolph and Lee. (Rev., s. 3366; 1905, c. 297, 383, 445, 820; 1907, c. 108; 1907, c. 935, s. 1; 1907, c. 839, 719, 869; Ex. Sess. 1920, c. 26; 1925, c. 285, s. 2; Pub. Loc. 1925, c. 211; Pub. Loc. 1927, c. 614; 1931, c. 138, s. 1; C. S. 4480.)

Cross References.—As to similar provisions for master and servants, see § 14-347 et seq. As to ejectment of tenants, see § 42-26 and annotation thereto.

Editor’s Note.—This section was amended by Public Laws 1925, c. 370, § 13, and Lee county was added to the list of counties to which its provisions are applicable. In 1925, Public Laws 1925, c. 285, section 2, Randolph County was added thereto. Public-Loc. Laws, 1925, c. 211, added Stokes and Surry counties; and Alamance was added by Public-Loc. Laws, 1927, c. 614. The Act of 1911 added Vance County.

Constitutionality of Section.—The provisions of this section contravene Article I, section 16, of our State Constitution, prohibiting imprisonment for debt, except in cases of fraud; and an indictment thereunder, without averment of fraud, will be quashed. State v. Williams, 150 N. C. 832, 63 S. E. 949; Minton v. Early, 183 N. C. 199, 111 S. E. 347.

Jurisdiction.—A court of a justice of the peace has final jurisdiction in all cases of willful and without cause or without permission of step or in violation of this section. State v. Wilkes, 149 N. C. 453, 62 S. E. 430.

Indictment Insufficient.—An indictment under the provisions of this section which does not charge that the abandonment of the crop by tenant or cropper was "without cause" and "before paying for such advances," should be quashed as insufficient. State v. Williams, 150 N. C. 832, 63 S. E. 949.

§ 14-359. Local: Tenant neglecting crop; landlord failing to make advances; harboring or employing delinquent tenant.—If any tenant or cropper shall procure advances from his landlord to enable him to make a crop on the land rented by him, and then willfully refuse to cultivate such crops or negligently or willfully abandon the same without good cause and before paying for such advances; or if any landlord who induces another to become tenant or cropper by agreeing to furnish him advances to enable him to make a crop, shall willfully fail or refuse without good cause to furnish such advances according to his agreement; or if any person shall entice, persuade or procure any tenant, lessee or cropper, who has made a contract agreeing to cultivate the land of another, to abandon or to refuse or fail to cultivate such land, or after notice shall harbor or detain on his own premises, or on the premises of another, any such tenant, lessee or cropper, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be fined not more than fifty dollars or imprisoned not more than thirty days. Any person who employs a tenant or cropper who has violated the provisions of this section, with knowledge of such violation, shall be liable to the landlord furnishing such advances for the amount thereof. This section shall apply only to the following counties: Washington, Cabarrus, Alamance, Davidson, Harnett, Wake, Hyde, Anson, Hertford, Sampson, Franklin, Union, Richmond, Moore, Lincoln, Rowan, Rutherford, Halifax, Rockingham, Vance, Lee, Stokes, Granville, Randolph, Person and Stanly.

Cross Reference.—As to willful destruction of landlord's property by the tenant, see § 42-11.

Editor's Note.—The counties of Randolph and Lee were added by Public Laws 1923, ch. 26; Granville and Person counties were added by Public Laws 1923, ch. 22; and Randolph County was added by Public Laws 1925, ch. 285, § 3. Alamance was added by Public Laws 1927, ch. 414. The 1939 amendment added Washington, Cabarrus, David- son and Harnett counties.

Art. 47. Cruelty to Animals.

§ 14-360. Cruelty to animals; construction of section.—If any person shall willfully overdrive, overload, wound, injure, torture, torment, deprive of necessary sustenance, cruelly beat, needlessly mutilate or kill or cause or procure to be overdriven, overloaded, wounded, injured, tortured, tormented, deprived of necessary sustenance, cruelly beaten, needlessly mutilated or killed as aforesaid, any useful beast, fowl or animal, every such offender shall for every such conviction be guilty of a misdemeanor. In this section and in every law which may be enacted relating to animals, the words "animal" and "dumb animal" shall be held to include every living creature; the words "torture," "torment" or "cruelty" shall be held to include every act, omission or neglect whereby unjustifiable physical pain, suffering or death is caused or permitted; but such terms shall not be construed to prohibit lawful shooting of birds, deer and other game for human food. (Rev., s. 3299; Code, ss. 2482, 2490; 1891, c. 65; 1881, c. 34, s. 1; 1881, c. 368, ss. 1, 15; 1907, c. 42; C. S. 4483.)

Cross Reference.—As to livestock, see also § 14-366.

In General.—Anger does not excuse the killing when it was wanton and needless. State v. Neal, 120 N. C. 613, 27 S. E. 81. And under such circumstances the intent is immaterial. Id. In order to convict, however, there must be a finding that the act was "willfully and unlawfully" done. State v. Wilkes, 101 N. C. 702, 8 S. E. 346. A charge that defendant "did unlawfully and willfully beat" was held sufficient in State v. Allerson, 90 N. C. 733.

Injury to Prevent Delinquency.—If any tenant or cropper who has violated the provisions of this section which does not charge that the abandonment of the crop by tenant or cropper was "without cause" and "before paying for such advances," should be quashed as insufficient. State v. Porter, 112 N. C. 887, 16 S. E. 915.

The Indictment.—The facts constituting torturing, tormenting or cruelly beat a tenant or cropper, is a sufficient allegation. State v. Wilkes, 112 N. C. 887, 16 S. E. 915. An indictment charging only that the dog had barked at night, is properly excluded from the evidence upon the state's objection, since the evidence does result in unpleasant odors around the place, and that the dog had barked at night, is properly excluded from the evidence upon the state's objection, since the evidence does not charge that defendant "did unlawfully and wilfully beat" was held sufficient in State v. Allerson, 90 N. C. 733.

The word "willful" as used in criminal statutes signifies more than the mere intention to do a thing, and means the commission of the act "without just cause, excuse, or justification." State v. Yarbrough, 119 N. C. 862, 26 S. E. 35.

A dog is a useful animal within the meaning of this section. State v. Dickens, 215 N. C. 303, 1 S. E. (2d) 837.

Unnecessary to Show Dog Has Pecuniary Value.—It is unnecessary to show that a dog is of a pecuniary value to the owner to maintain an indictment for cruelty forbidden by this section. State v. Smith, 156 N. C. 862, 67 S. E. 859.

Illustrations.—Shooting pigeons for sport (State v. Porter, 112 N. C. 887, 16 S. E. 915). Unnecessary to show dog has pecuniary value. (State v. Bosser, 145 N. C. 579, 59 S. E. 859) have been held violations of the section.

Hitting a running horse with a rock, however, has been held insufficient to sustain a directed verdict— because the witness failed to show the wilful purpose to injure being for the jury. State v. Isley, 119 N. C. 862, 26 S. E. 35.

A dog is a useful animal within the meaning of this section. State v. Bosser, 145 N. C. 579, 59 S. E. 859.

Unnecessary to Show Dog Has Pecuniary Value.—It is unnecessary to show that a dog is of a pecuniary value to the owner to maintain an indictment for cruelty forbidden by this section. State v. Smith, 156 N. C. 862, 67 S. E. 859.

The word "willful" as used in criminal statutes signifies more than the mere intention to do a thing, and means the commission of the act "without just cause, excuse, or justification." State v. Yarbrough, 119 N. C. 862, 26 S. E. 35.

Justification.—In a prosecution for needlessly killing a use- ful animal, evidence that the dog, not identified as the dog killed, had frequented the place where defendant was employed, resulting in unpleasant odors around the place, and that the dog had barked at night, is properly excluded from the evidence upon the state's objection, since the evidence does not tend to establish justification, the presence of the dog on the premises giving the defendant only the right to drive him away but not to injure him unnecessarily, and provoking the dog as committed by the dog not being justification for killing him, the right to kill being founded on the immediate necessity of protecting property, a person, or another animal. State v. Dickens, 215 N. C. 303, 1 S. E. (2d) 837.

§ 14-361. Instigating or promoting cruelty to animals.—If any person shall willfully set on foot, or instigate, or move to, carry on, or promote, or engage in, or do any act towards the furtherance of any act of cruelty to any animal, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be fined not more than fifty dollars or imprisoned not more than thirty days. (Rev., s. 3300; Code, s. 2487; 1891, c. 65; 1881, c. 368, s. 6; C. S. 4484.)

amusements.—If any person shall keep, or use, or in any way be connected with, or interested in the management of, or shall receive money for the admission of any person to, any place kept or used for the purpose of fighting, or baiting any bull, bear, dog, cock, or other animal; or if any person shall encourage, aid or assist therein, or shall permit or suffer any place to be so kept or used, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be fined not more than fifty dollars or imprisoned not more than thirty days. (Rev., s. 3301; Code, s. 2483; 1891, c. 65; 1881, c. 368, s. 2; C. S. 4485.)

§ 14-363. Conveying animals in a cruel manner.—If any person shall carry or cause to be carried in or upon any vehicle or other conveyance, any animal in a cruel or inhuman manner, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be fined not more than fifty dollars or imprisoned not more than thirty days. Whenever an offender shall be taken into custody therefor by any officer, the owner of such animal in an action known by such person to be dangerous to the life, health or safety of any person, the expenses which may be incurred for taking charge of and keeping and sustaining the vehicle or other conveyance shall be a lien thereon, to be paid before the same can be lawfully reclaimed; or the said expenses, or any part thereof remaining unpaid, may be recovered by the person incurring the same, or by the owner of such vehicle as if convicted of larceny. (Rev., s. 3302; Code, s. 2486; 1891, c. 65; 1881, c. 368, s. 5; C. S. 4486.)

Art. 48. Animal Diseases.

§ 14-364. Selling, using or exposing diseased animals.—If any person shall sell, offer for sale, use or expose, or cause or procure to be sold, offered for sale, used or exposed, any horse or other animal having the disease known as glanders or farcy, or any other contagious or infectious disease known by such person to be dangerous to the life, health or safety of any person, every such person shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be fined not more than fifty dollars or imprisoned not more than thirty days. (Rev., s. 3295; Code, s. 2488; 1891, c. 65; 1881, c. 368, s. 7; C. S. 4487.)

Art. 49. Protection of Livestock Running at Large.

§ 14-365. Failing to show hide and ears of livestock killed while running at large.—If any person shall kill any neat cattle, sheep or hogs in the woods or range, and shall for two days fail to show the hide and ears to the nearest justice or to two freeholders, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Rev., s. 3315; Code, s. 2318; R. C., c. 17, s. 2; 1901, c. 546; 1907, c. 821; C. S. 4493.)

Local Modification.—Tyrrell: C. S. 4493.

§ 14-366. Molesting or injuring livestock.—If any person shall unlawfully and on purpose drive any livestock, lawfully running at large in the range, from said range, or shall kill, maim or injure any livestock, lawfully running at large in the range or in the field or pasture of the owner, whether done with actual intent to injure the owner, or to drive the stock from the range, or with any other unlawful intent, every such person, his counselors, aids, and abettors, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor: Provided, that nothing herein contained shall prohibit any person from driving out of the range any stock unlawfully brought from other states or places. In any indictment under this section it shall not be necessary to name in the bill or prove on the trial the owner of the stock molested, maimed, killed or injured. (Rev., s. 3314; Code, s. 1002; 1885, c. 383; 1887, c. 368; 1895, c. 100; R. C., c. 34, s. 104; 1850, c. 94, ss. 1, 2; C. S. 4494.)

Local Modification.—Graham, Haywood, Jackson, Swain, Transylvania: C. S. 460.

Cross Reference.—As to cruelty to animals, see § 14-360.

§ 14-367. Altering the brands of and misbranding another's livestock.—If any person shall knowingly alter or deface the mark or brand of any other person's horse, mule, ass, neat cattle, sheep, goat, or hog, or shall knowingly mismatch or brand any such beast that may be unbranded or unmarked, not properly his own, with intent to defraud any other person, the person so offending shall be guilty of a felony, and shall be punished as if convicted of larceny. (Rev., s. 3317; Code, s. 1001; R. C., c. 34, s. 57; 1797, c. 486, s. 2; C. S. 4495.)

Cross Reference.—As to cattle brands, their registration, defacement, etc., see § 80-45 et seq.

§ 14-368. Placing poisonous shrubs and vegetables in public places.—If any person shall throw into or leave exposed in any public square, street, lane, alley or open lot in any city, town or village, or in any public road, any mockorange or other poisonous shrub, plant, tree or vegetable, he shall be liable in damages to any person injured thereby and shall also be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be fined or imprisoned, at the discretion of the court. (Rev., s. 3318; 1887, c. 338; C. S. 4496.)

Cross Reference.—As to putting out poisonous food stuffs, see § 14-40.

§ 14-369. Wounding, capturing or killing of homing pigeons prohibited.—It shall be unlawful for any person or persons at any time or in any manner to hurt, pursue, take, capture, wound, maim, disfigure or kill any homing pigeon then and there owned by another person, or to trap the same by use of any pit, pitfall, scaffold, cage, snare, trap, net, baited hook or similar trapping device, or make use of any drug, poison, explosive or chemical for the purpose of injuring, capturing or killing any such homing pigeon. Any person or persons violating any of the provisions of this section shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof shall be punished in the discretion of the court. (1941, c. 10.)

§ 14-370. Wrongfully obtaining or divulging knowledge of telephonic messages.—If any person wrongfully obtains, or attempts to obtain, any knowledge of a telephonic message by connivance with a clerk, operator; messenger or other employee of a telephone company, or, being such clerk, operator, messenger or employee, willfully divulges to any but the person for whom it was intended, the contents of a telephonic message or § 14-371. Violating privacy of telegraphic messages; failure to transmit and deliver same promptly.—If any person wrongfully obtains, or attempts to obtain, any knowledge of a telegraphic message by connivance with a clerk, operator, messenger or other employee of a telegraph company, or, being such clerk, operator, messenger, or other employee, willfully divulges to any but the person for whom it was intended, the contents of a telegraphic message or dispatch intrusted to him for transmission or delivery, or the nature thereof, or willfully refuse or neglect duly to transmit or deliver the same, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Rev., s. 3848; 1889, c. 41, s. 1; C. S. 4497.)

Cross Reference.—As to penalty for failure to transmit an intrastate telegraphic message within a reasonable time, see § 56-11.

§ 14-372. Unauthorized opening, reading or publishing of sealed letters and telegrams.—If any person shall willfully, and without authority, open or read, or cause to be opened or read, a sealed letter or telegram, or shall publish the whole or any portion of such letter or telegram, knowing it to have been opened or read without authority, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Rev., s. 3728; 1889, c. 41, s. 2; C. S. 4490.)

The Indictment.—It is necessary to charge, in an indictment for a violation of this section and to prove upon the trial, that the letter or telegram was “sealed,” or that it was published with knowledge that it had been opened and read without authority. State v. Bagwell, 107 N. C. 859, 12 S. E. 254.

§ 14-373. Bribery of baseball players, umpires, and officials.—If any person shall bribe or offer to bribe, any baseball player with the intent to influence his play, action or conduct in any baseball game, or if any person shall bribe or offer to bribe any umpire of a baseball game, with intent to influence his decision or bias his opinion or judgment, in relation to any baseball game, or if any person shall bribe or offer to bribe any manager, or other official of a baseball club, league, or association by whatsoever named conducting said game of baseball, such person shall be guilty of a felony, and, upon conviction, shall be punished by imprisonment in the state penitentiary for not less than one nor more than five years. (1921, c. 23, s. 1; C. S. 4499(a).)

§ 14-374. Acceptance of bribes by baseball players, umpires, or officials.—If any baseball player shall accept, or agree to accept, a bribe offered for the purpose of influencing his play, action or conduct in any baseball game, or if any umpire of a baseball game shall accept or agree to accept a bribe offered for the purpose of influencing his decision or biasing his opinions, rulings or judgment, or if any manager of a baseball club, or club or league official shall accept or agree to accept any bribe offered for the purpose of inducing him to lose or cause to be lost any baseball game, as set forth in § 14-373 of this article, such baseball player, manager, official, or umpire shall be guilty of a felony, and upon conviction, shall be punished by confinement in the state penitentiary for not less than one year nor more than five years. (1921, c. 23, s. 2; C. S. 4499(b).)

§ 14-375. Completion of offenses set out in sections 14-373, 14-374.—To complete the offenses mentioned in §§ 14-373, 14-374, it shall not be necessary that the baseball player, manager, umpire, or official, shall, at the time, have been actually employed, selected, or appointed to perform their respective duties; it shall be sufficient if the bribe be offered, accepted or agreed to with the view of the probable employment, selection or appointment of the person to whom the bribe is offered or by whom it is accepted. Neither shall it be necessary that such baseball player, umpire or manager actually play or participate in a game or games concerning which said bribe is offered or accepted; it shall be sufficient if the bribe be given, offered, or accepted in view of his or their possibly participating therein. (1921, c. 23, s. 3; C. S. 4499(c).)

§ 14-376. “Bribe” defined.—By a “bribe” as used in this article, is meant any gift, emolument, money or thing of value, testimonial, privilege, appointment or personal advantage, or the promise of either, bestowed or promised for the purpose of influencing, directly or indirectly, any baseball player, manager, umpire, club or league official, to see which game an admission fee may be charged, or in which game of baseball any player, manager or umpire is paid any compensation for his services. Said bribe as defined in this article need not be direct; it may be such as is hidden under the semblance of a sale, bet, wager, payment of a debt, or in any other manner designed to cover the true intention of the parties. (1921, c. 23, s. 4; C. S. 4499(d).)

§ 14-377. Intentional losing of baseball game or aiding therein.—If any baseball player, manager or club official shall commit any willful act of omission or commission in playing or directing the playing of a baseball game with intent to cause the ball club with which he is affiliated to lose a baseball game; or if any umpire officiating in a baseball game, or league official, shall commit any willful act connected with his official duties for the purpose and with the intent to cause a baseball club to win or lose a baseball game which it would not otherwise have won or lost under the rules governing the playing of said game, he or they shall be guilty of a felony, and upon conviction, shall be punished by imprisonment in the state penitentiary for not less than one nor more than five years. (1921, c. 23, s. 5; C. S. 4499(e).)

§ 14-378. Venue.—In all prosecutions under this article the venue may be laid in any county where the bribe herein referred to was given, offered or accepted, or in which the baseball game was played in relation to which the bribe was offered, given or accepted, or the acts referred to in § 14-377 committed. (1921, c. 23, s. 6; C. S. 4606(c).)

§ 14-379. Bonus or extra compensation.—Nothing in this article shall be construed to prohibit the giving or offering of any bonus or extra compensation to any manager or baseball player by any person to encourage such manager or player... to a higher degree of skill, ability or diligence in the performance of his duties. (1921, c. 23, s. 7; C. S. 4499 (f).)

§ 14-380. Application of article. — This article shall apply only to baseball league and club officials, umpires, managers and players who are officials of, or employed by, baseball clubs who are members of “The National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues.” (1921, c. 23, s. 7a; C. S. 4499 (g).)

Art. 52. Miscellaneous Police Regulations.

§ 14-381. Desecration of state and national flag. —Any person who in any manner, for exhibition or display, shall place or cause to be placed any word, figure, mark, picture, design, drawing, or any advertisement of any nature, or who shall expose to public view, make, sell, expose or cause to be exposed to public view any such flag, standard, color or ensign of the United States of America, or state flag or ensign of this state, or shall expose or cause to be exposed to public view any such flag, standard, color or ensign upon which shall have been printed, painted or otherwise placed, or to which shall be attached, appended, affixed or annexed, any word, figure, mark, picture, design or drawing or any advertisement of any nature, or who shall expose to public view, manufacture, sell, expose for sale, give away, or have in possession for sale or to give away, or for use for any purpose, any article or substance of merchandise, or a receptacle of merchandise or article or thing for carrying or transporting merchandise, upon which shall have been printed, painted, attached or otherwise placed a representation of any such flag, standard, color or ensign, to advertise, call attention to, decorate, mark or distinguish the article or substance upon which it is so placed, or who shall publicly mutilate, deface, defile, or defy, trample upon or cast aside, deface, defile, or defy, trample upon or cast aside any such flag, standard, color or ensign, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be punished by a fine not exceeding fifty dollars or by imprisonment for not more than thirty days. Any person violating this section shall also forfeit a penalty of fifty dollars for each offense, to be recovered with costs in a civil action or suit in any court having jurisdiction. Such action or suit may be brought by and in the name of any citizen of this state, and such penalty, when collected, shall be paid one-half to the person suing and one-half to the school fund of the county in which suit was brought; and two or more penalties may be recovered with costs in a civil action or suit.

The words, flag, standard, color or ensign, as used in this section, shall include any flag, standard, color, ensign, or any picture, representation, or representation of any of them, made of any substance or representation of any of them, made of any substance or representation of any size, evidently purporting to be a flag, standard, color or ensign of the United States of America, or a picture or a representation of any of them, upon which shall be shown the colors, the stars and the stripes, in any number of either thereof, or by which the person seeing the same, without deliberation, may believe it to represent the flag, colors, standard or ensign of the United States of America.

The possession by any person other than a public officer, as such, of a flag, standard, color, ensign, article, substance, or thing, on which there is anything made unlawful by this section, shall be presumptive evidence that the same is in violation of this section. (1917, c. 271; C. S. 4500.)

§ 14-382. Pollution of water or lands used for dairy purposes. — It shall be unlawful for any person, firm, or corporation owning lands adjoining the lands of any person, firm, or corporation which are or may be used for dairy purposes or for grazing milk cows, to dispose of or permit disposal of any animal, mineral, chemical, or vegetable refuse, sewage or other deleterious matter in such a way as to pollute the water on the lands so used or which may be used for dairy purposes or for grazing milk cows, or to render unfit or unsafe for use the milk produced from cows feeding upon the grasses and herbage growing on such lands. This section shall not apply to incorporated towns maintaining a sewer system. Anyone violating the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and fined not more than fifty dollars or imprisoned for not more than thirty days, or both, and each day that such pollution is committed or exists shall constitute a separate offense. (1919, c. 222: C. S. 4501.)

Cross References.—As to pollution of waters for the purpose of killing or catching fish, see §§ 113-245 and 113-170. As to discharge of deleterious matter into waters, see § 113-172.

§ 14-383. Cutting timber on town watershed without disposing of boughs and debris; misdemeanor. —Any person, firm or corporation owning lands or the standing timber on lands within four hundred feet of any watershed held or owned by any city or town, for the purpose of furnishing a city or town water supply, upon cutting or removing the timber or permitting the same cut or removed from lands so within four hundred feet of said watershed, or any part thereof, shall, within three months after cutting, or earlier upon written notice by said city or town, remove or cause to be removed from such lands all such tree-tops, boughs, laps and other portions of timber not desired to be taken for commercial or other purposes, within four hundred feet of the boundary line of such part of such watershed as is held or owned by such town or city, so as to leave such space of four hundred feet immediately adjoining the boundary line of such watershed, so held or owned, free and clear of all such tree-tops, boughs and other inflammable material caused by or left from cutting such standing timber, so as to prevent the spread of fire from such cutover area and the consequent damage to such watershed. Any such person, firm or corporation violating the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (1913, c. 56; C. S. 4502.)

In General. —The section constitutes a valid exercise of the police power and is constitutional. State v. Perley, 173 N. C. 763, 92 S. E. 594.

The motive is immaterial and where the intent to violate the section is shown the defendant is punishable. Id.

§ 14-384. Injuring notices and advertisements. — If any person shall wantonly or maliciously mutilate, deface, pull or tear down, destroy or otherwise damage any notice, sign or advertisement, unless immoral or obscene, whether put up by an officer of the law in performance of the duties of his office or by some other person for a lawful purpose, before the object for which such Notice, sign or advertisement was posted shall have been accomplished, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be fined not exceeding twenty-five dollars or imprisoned not exceeding thirty days at the discretion of the court. Nothing herein contained shall apply to any person mutilating, defacing, pulling or tearing down, destroying or otherwise damaging notices, signs or advertisements put upon his own land or lands of which he may have charge or control, unless consent of such person to put up such notice, sign or advertisement shall have first been obtained, except those put up by an officer of the law in the performance of the duties of his office. (Rev., s. 3709; 1885, c. 302; C. S. 4503.)

§ 14-385. Defacing or destroying public notices and advertisements.—If any person shall willfully and unlawfully deface, tear down, remove or destroy any legal notice or advertisement authorized by law to be posted by any officer or other person, the same being actually posted at the time of such defacement, tearing down, removal or destruction, during the time for which such legal notice or advertisement shall be authorized by law to be posted, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be fined not exceeding fifty dollars or imprisoned not exceeding thirty days. (Rev., s. 3710; Code, s. 981; 1876-7, c. 215; C. S. 4504.)

§ 14-386. Erecting signals and notices in imitation of those of railroads.—No person, firm or corporation other than a railroad or street railway company shall, for advertisements or other purposes, erect and maintain on or near any highway any cross-arm post or other post or standard containing the words "Stop! Look! Listen!" or other such words or combinations of words in imitation of railroad signals or notices. Any person, firm or corporation violating the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be punished by fine or imprisonment, in the discretion of the court. (1917, c. 230; C. S. 4505.)

§ 14-387. Operating automobile while intoxicated.—Any person who shall, while intoxicated or under the influence of intoxicating liquors or bit ters, morphine or other opiates, operate a motor vehicle upon any public highway or cartway or other road, over which the public has a right to travel, of any county or the streets of any city or town within this State, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be fined not less than fifty dollars or imprisoned not less than thirty days, or both, at the discretion of the court, and the judge shall upon conviction, deny said person or persons the right to drive a motor vehicle on any of the roads defined in this section for a period of not more than twelve months nor less than ninety days. (1919, c. 234; 1925, c. 283; 1927, c. 230, s. 1; C. S. 4506.)

Cross Reference.—As to the revocation of driver's license for driving while intoxicated, see § 20-17.

Editor's Note.—This section was amended by Public Laws 1925, ch. 283 and cartways and other roads used by the public included herein. At the same time the provision, giving the judge the right to revoke for twelve months the right to drive an automobile, of any one found guilty of violating this section, was added. The section was again amended in 1927 when the revocation of license was made mandatory upon the judge.

§ 14-389. Sale of Jamaica ginger.—It shall be unlawful for any person, firm, or corporation to sell the compound known as Jamaica ginger except upon the prescription of a duly licensed and regularly practicing physician; the person, firm, or corporation selling Jamaica ginger upon prescription shall keep a list of said prescriptions, and shall allow said list to be examined by any officer of the law, and no prescription shall ever be filled but once; it shall be unlawful for any physician to give a prescription for Jamaica ginger except to a person directly under his care, and then only in good faith for medicinal purposes only. (1919, c. 288; Pub. Loc. 1913, c. 761; C. S. 4507.)

§ 14-390. Furnishing intoxicants, poisons or firearms to inmates of charitable and penal institutions.—If any person shall sell or give to any inmate of any charitable or penal institution any intoxicating drink or any narcotic, poison or poisonous substance, except upon the prescription of a physician, or shall give or sell to any such inmate any deadly weapon, or any cartridge or ammunition for firearms of any kind, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and, upon conviction thereof, shall be fined or imprisoned at the discretion of the court; and if he be an officer or employee of any institution of the state, he shall be § 14-391. Usurious loans on household and kitchen furniture or assignments of wages.—Any person, firm or corporation who shall lend money in any manner whatsoever by note, chattel mortgage, conditional sale or otherwise, upon any article of household or kitchen furniture or upon any assignment or sale of wages, earned or to be earned, and shall take, receive, reserve or charge any assignment or sale of wages, earned or to be earned, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and in addition thereto shall forfeit double the interest which has been theretofore paid. (1907, c. 110; 1927, c. 72; C. S. 4509.)

Cross Reference.—As to interest in general, see § 24-1 et seq.

Editor's Note.—This section was broadened by the Public Laws of 1927, ch. 72, by the addition of the portion relating to the assignment of wages.

This section is constitutional. State v. Davis, 157 N. C. 648, 73 S. E. 130.

Interest Need Not Be Received.—The charge of the usurious interest constitutes the offense without the necessity of having received it. State v. Davis, 157 N. C. 648, 73 S. E. 130.

§ 14-392. Digging ginseng on another's land during certain months.—All persons shall be allowed to dig ginseng at any time of the year for the purpose of replanting the same. If any person dig ginseng, except on his own premises, or for the purpose of replanting the same, between the first day of April and the first day of September, he shall forfeit and pay the sum of ten dollars for each day's or part of a day's digging, and shall also be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Rev. ss. 3502, 3714; Code, s. 1053; 1866-7, c. 60; 1905, c. 211; C. S. 1310.)

Cross Reference.—As to the larceny of ginseng, see § 14-79.

§ 14-393. Purchase of ginseng; register to be kept; details.—Every person, firm or corporation buying ginseng in any quantity shall keep a register, and shall keep therein a true and accurate record of each purchase, showing the amount of the ginseng, the name and residence of the person from whom purchased, the source from which obtained, and amount paid for the same and the date of the purchase. A failure to comply with the above requirements, or the making of a false entry in regard to the purchasing of such ginseng, shall be a misdemeanor, punishable in the discretion of the court. (1923, c. 89; C. S. 4511(b).)

§ 14-394. Anonymous or threatening letters, mailing or transmitting.—It shall be unlawful for any person, firm, or corporation, or any association of persons in this state, under whatever name styled, to write and transmit any letter, note, or writing, whether written, printed, or drawn, without signing his, her, their, or its true name thereto, threatening any person or persons, firm or corporation, or officers thereof with any personal injury or violence or destruction of property of such individuals, firms, or corporations, or using therein any language or threats of any kind or nature calculated to intimidate or place in fear any such person, firms or corporations, or officers thereof, as to their personal safety or the safety of their property, or using vulgar or obscene language, or using such language which if published would bring such persons into public contempt and disgrace, and any person, firm, or corporation violating the provisions of this section shall be fined or imprisoned, or both, in the discretion of the court. (1921, c. 112; C. S. 4511(a).)

§ 14-396. Dogs on "Capitol Square" worrying squirrels.—It shall be unlawful for any owner or keeper of a dog to permit the same to run at large on the Capitol grounds known as "Capitol Square" or to be thereon unless on leash or otherwise in the immediate physical control of said owner or keeper, or to pursue, worry or harass any squirrel or other wild animal kept on said grounds. Any person violating the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor punishable by fine not exceeding fifty dollars or imprisonment not exceeding thirty days. (1923, c. 289.)

§ 14-397. Use of name of denominational college in connection with dance hall.—It shall be unlawful for any person, firm, corporation, club or society, by whatsoever name called, to use in connection with any dance, or dance hall, by advertisement, announcement, or otherwise, the name of any college, or any class or organization of any college operated and conducted by a religious denomination, unless the written permission of the Dean of such college is given, permitting and allowing the use of the name of such denominational college, or a class or organization of the same in connection with such dance, or dance hall. Any person violating any of the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and subject to a fine of not less than one hundred dollars ($100) or imprisonment for not less than sixty days. (1927, c. 6.)

§ 14-398. Theft or destruction of property of public libraries, museums, etc.—Any person who shall steal or unlawfully take or detain, or wilfully or maliciously or wantonly write upon, cut, tear, deface, disfigure, soil, obliterate, break or destroy, or who shall sell or buy or receive, knowing the same to have been stolen, any book, document, newspaper, periodical, map, chart, picture, portrait, engraving, statue, coin, medal, apparatus, specimen, or other work of literature or object of art or curiosity deposited in a public library, gallery, museum, collection, fair or exhibition, or in any department or office of state or local government, or in a library, gallery, museum, collection, or exhibition, belonging to any incorporated college or university, or any incorporated institution devoted to educational, scientific, literary, artistic, historical or charitable purposes, shall, if the value of the property stolen, detained, sold, bought or received knowing same to have been stolen, or if the damage done by writing upon, cutting, tearing, defacing, disfiguring, soil, obliterating, breaking or destroying any such property, shall not exceed fifty dollars ($50.00), be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction shall be fined or imprisoned in the discretion of the court. If the value of the property stolen, detained, sold or received knowing same to have been stolen, or the amount of damage done in any of the ways or manners hereinabove set out, shall exceed the sum of fifty dollars ($50.00), the person committing same shall be guilty of a felony, and shall upon conviction be punished in accordance with the laws applicable thereto. (1935, c. 300; 1943, c. 543.)

Editor's Note.—The 1943 amendment increased the amounts mentioned in this section from twenty to fifty dollars.

§ 14-399. Placing trash, refuse, et cetera, within one hundred and fifty yards of hard-surfaced highway.—It is unlawful for any person, firm, organization or private corporation, or for the governing body, agents or employees of any municipal corporation, to place or leave or cause to be placed or left, temporarily or permanently, any trash, refuse, garbage, scrapped automobile, truck or part thereof, within one hundred and fifty yards of a hard-surfaced highway where the highway is outside of an incorporated town, unless the trash, refuse, garbage, scrapped automobile, truck or part thereof, is concealed from the view of persons on the highway.

This section does not apply to domestic trash or garbage placed for removal, nor to junk yards which are the property of bona fide junk dealers and which are properly screened or fenced from the view of persons on the highway.

The placing or leaving of the articles or matter forbidden by this section shall, for each day or portion thereof that the act is done, constitute a separate offense.

A violation of this section is punishable by a fine of not less than ten dollars ($10.00) and not more than fifty dollars ($50.00) for each offense.

This section shall not apply to the Counties of Alleghany, Ashe, Avery, Bertie, Brunswick, Buncombe, Cabarrus, Caswell, Columbus, Davidson, Duplin, Forsyth, Franklin, Gates, Granville, Guilford, Halifax, Hyde, Jackson, Lenoir, Lincoln, Macon, Madison, Martin, Mitchell, Montgomery, Moore, Person, Richmond, Rockingham, Rowan, Scotland, Stanly, Stokes, Surry, Swain, Transylvania, Vance, Warren, Watauga, Wilson, and Yancey. (1935, c. 457; 1937, c. 446; 1943, c. 543.)

Editor's Note.—The 1937 amendment struck out "Anson" from the list of excepted counties. The 1943 amendment wrote the section.

§ 14-400. Tattooing prohibited.—It shall be unlawful for any person or persons to tattoo the arm, limb, or any part of the body of any other person under twenty-one years of age. Any one violating the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction shall be fined or imprisoned in the discretion of the court. (1937, c. 112, ss. 1, 2.)

§ 14-401. Putting poisonous foodstuffs, etc., in certain public places, prohibited.—It shall be unlawful for any person, firm or corporation to put or place any strychnine, other poisonous compounds or ground glass on any beef or other foodstuffs of any kind in any public square, street, lane, alley or on any lot in any village, town or city or on any public road, open field or yard in the country. Any person, firm or corporation who violates the provisions of this section shall be liable in damages to the person injured thereby and also shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be fined or imprisoned, at the discretion of the court.

This section shall not apply to the poisoning of insects or worms for the purpose of protecting crops or gardens by spraying plants, crops or trees, nor to poisons used in rat extermination. (1941, c. 181.)

Editor's Note.—For comment on this enactment, see 19 N. C. Law Rev. 479.

§ 14-401.1. Misdemeanor to tamper with examination questions.—Any person who purloins, steals, buys, receives, or sells, gives or offers to buy, give, or sell any examination questions or copies thereof of any examination provided and prepared by law before the date of the examination for which they shall have been prepared, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be fined or imprisoned, or both, in the discretion of the court. (1917, c. 146, s. 10; C. S. 1933, s. 5638.)

Art. 53. Sale of Weapons.

§ 14-402. Sale of certain weapons without permit forbidden.—It shall be unlawful for any person, firm, or corporation in this state to sell, give away, or dispose of, or to purchase or receive, at any place within the state from any other place within or without the state, unless a license or permit therefor shall have first been obtained by such purchaser or receiver from the clerk of the superior court of the county in which such pur-
§ 14-403. Applicant must be of good moral character; weapon for defense of home; clerk's fee.

Before the clerk of the superior court shall issue any such license or permit he shall fully satisfy himself by affidavits, oral evidence, or otherwise, as to the good moral character of the applicant therefore, and that such person, firm, or corporation requires the possession of the weapon mentioned for protection of the home. If said clerk shall not be so fully satisfied, he shall refuse to issue said license or permit: Provided, that nothing in this article shall apply to officers authorized by law to carry firearms. The clerk shall charge for his services upon issuing such license or permit a fee of fifty cents. (1919, c. 197, s. 3; C. S. 5108.)

§ 14-404. Record of permits kept by clerk.—The clerk of the superior court shall keep a book, to be provided by the board of commissioners of each county, in which he shall keep a record of all licenses or permits issued under this article, including the name, date, place of residence, age, former place of residence, etc., of each such person, firm, or corporation to whom or which a license or permit is issued. (1919, c. 197, s. 4; C. S. 5109.)

§ 14-405. Dealer to keep record of sales.—Every dealer in pistols, pistol cartridges and other weapons mentioned in this article shall keep an accurate record of all sales thereof, including the name, place of residence, date of sale, etc., of each person, firm, or corporation to whom or which such sales are made, which record shall be open to the inspection of any duly constituted state, county or police officer, within this state. (1919, c. 197, s. 5; C. S. 5110.)

§ 14-406. Weapons to be listed for taxes.—During the period of listing taxes in each year the owner or person in possession or having the custody or care of any weapon mentioned in this article is required to list the same specifically, as is now required for listing personal property for taxes. Any person listing any such weapon for taxes shall be required to designate his place of residence, including local street address. (1919, c. 197, s. 6; C. S. 5111.)

§ 14-407. Machine guns and other like weapons. —It shall be unlawful for any person, firm or corporation violating any of the provisions of §§ 14-406 or 14-407 to carry firearms. The clerk shall charge for his services upon issuing such license or permit a fee of fifty cents. (1919, c. 197, s. 7; C. S. 5112.)

§ 15-1 (1). Statute of limitations for misdemeanors.
—The crimes of deceit and malicious mischief, and the crime of petit larceny where the value of the property does not exceed five dollars, and all misdemeanors except malicious misdemeanors, shall be presented or found by the grand jury within two years after the commission of the same, and not afterwards: Provided, that if any indictment found within that time shall be defective, so that no judgment can be given thereon, another prosecution may be instituted for the same offense, within one year after the first shall have been abandoned by the state. (Rev., s. 3147; Code, s. 1177; R. C., c. 35, s. 8; 1826, c. 11; 1907, c. 408; 1943, c. 543; C. S. 4512.)

Cross Reference.—As to what are misdemeanors, see §§ 14-1 and 14-3 and annotations thereto.

Editor's Note.—The 1943 amendment rewrote the part of this section appearing before the proviso.

General Consideration.—The time between the commission of the offense and the bringing into court of the presentment should be estimated in determining whether the prosecution is barred. State v. Cooper, 104 N. C. 896, 891, 10 S. E. 310. The time stated in the indictment does not govern, State v. Newsom, 47 N. C. 173. The state can go back two years prior thereto although the indictment marks the beginning of the prosecution. State v. Williams, 151 N. C. 560, 56 S. E. 908. The statute does not begin to run from an entry of nol. pros. "with leave." Id.

Meaning of Malicious Misdemeanors.—When, in the former wording of this section, the Legislature used the words "other malicious misdemeanors," which immediately followed the words "malicious mischief," it evidently intended to describe offenses of which malice was a necessary ingredient to constitute the criminal act, as in the case of malicious mischief, and it was not the purpose to include within the exception from the operation of that section such offenses as would be misdemeanors, even in the absence of malice, and when malice, if present, would be only a circumstance of aggravation, which the Court might consider in imposing the punishment. State v. Friese, 142 N. C. 671, 675, 55 S. E. 723.

Meaning of "Secret Manner."—For construction of former proviso, see State v. Crowell, 116 N. C. 1052, 1057, 21 S. E. 503. See also, for example State v. Watts, 32 N. C. 309. "Deceit" as Used in Former Section.—There has never been such an indictable offence as "deceit" but the meaning of this section has always been that misdemeanors, the gist of which was a malice or deceit, were within the exception of the section as formerly appearing. In State v. Christianbury, 44 N. C. 46, it was held that there being no such offence as "deceit" it would apply to "cheating by false token" of which deceit was the gist but would not include "conspiracy to cheat," the gist of which offence is the conspiracy and the cheating but an aggravation. That decision did not restrict deceit to "cheating by false token" but instance that as an offence coming within the general description of misdemeanors by deceit. State v. Crowell, 104 N. C. 837, 10 S. E. 454.

What Offences Barred.—Slanderiong an innocent woman is not barred within two years. State v. Clayworthy, 98 N.
C. 731, 5 S. E. 930. No length of possession can bar an action to abate a public nuisance. State v. Holman, 104 N.
C. 860, 10 S. E. 750. Section is not barred. State v. Crowell,

A malicious assault cannot be the basis of an action two years after commission. State v. Frisbee, 142 N. C. 671, 55 S. E. 722.

The section has no application to conspiracy which is a felony. State v. Mallett, 125 N. C. 718, 34 S. E. 651. Bastardy proceedings are not governed by this section. State v.
Tomlinson, 25 N. C. 32; State v. Hadden, 187 N.
C. 803, 805, 123 S. E. 65.

Where a warrant charging a misdemeanor is amended to charge a felony, defendant’s plea of the statute of limitations on the misdemeanor count becomes immaterial. State v.
Sanderson, 213 N. C. 381, 196 S. E. 324.

Penalty for Non-Included.—There is no saving clause in this section as to the effect of preliminary warrents before a justice of the peace or other committing magistrate, and the law must be construed and applied as written. There must be a presentment or indictment within one or more physicians to be summoned for the

Whether or not the court below will allow the statute of limitations as a defense to the action, where the same has not been pleaded or mentioned until the argument before the jury, is a matter of discretion. Privett v. Culloway, 75 N. C. 23.

Wrong Name in Bill of Indictment.—A bill of indictment against a person by a wrong name, which is pleaded to in abatement, and the plea found, is, nevertheless, the same cause of action, and the elapse of two years is no bar to prosecution. State v. Hailey, 51 N. C. 42.

§ 15-2. Issue and return of criminal process.—All process, warrants and precepts, issued by any judge or justice of the peace, or clerk of any court, on any criminal prosecution, may issue at any time, and be made returnable to any day of the term of the court, to which such warrant, process, or precept is returnable. (Rev., s. 3149; Code,
S. 1178; R. C., c. 35, s. 9; 1777, c. 115, s. 15; C. S.

§ 15-3. Date of receipt and service indorsed on process.—Every sheriff or other officer shall indorse on all process and subpoenas issuing in criminal cases, whether for the state or defendant, the day when such process and subpoenas came to hand, and also the day of their execution; and on failure of any sheriff or other officer to perform either of said duties he shall forfeit and pay the sum of ten dollars for every case of neglect, to be recovered for the use of the state, in the same manner as forfeitures are recovered against sherrifs by parties in civil suits for failure to make due return of process delivered to them. (Rev., s.
3149; Code, s. 1179; R. C., c. 35, s. 10; 1850-1, c.

return process, see § 14-242.

§ 15-4. Accused entitled to counsel.—Every person, accused of any crime whatsoever, shall be entitled to counsel in all matters which may be necessary for his defense. (Rev., s. 3150; Code, S. 1482; R. C., c. 35, s. 13; 1777, c. 115, s. 86; C.
S. 4515.)

§ 15-5. Fees allowed counsel assigned to defend in capital case. — Whenever an attorney is appointed by the judge to defend a person charged with a capital crime, he shall receive such fee for performing this service as the judge may allow;
but the judge shall not allow any fee until he is satisfied that the defendant charged with the capi-lar crime is not able to employ counsel. The fees so allowed by the judge shall be paid by the county in which the indictment was found. (1917,
c. 247; 1937, c. 226; C. S. 4516.)

c. 211; Wayne: 1941, c. 33.

Editor’s Note.—Prior to the 1937 amendment the fee allowed was not to exceed twenty-five dollars.

§ 15-6. Imprisonment to be in county jail.—No person shall be imprisoned by any judge, court, justice of the peace, or other peace officer except in the common jail of the county, unless otherwise provided by law: Provided, that whenever the sheriff of any county shall be imprisoned, he may be imprisoned in the jail of any adjoining county.

1797, c. 474, s. 3; 1829, c. 12; C. S. 4517.)

§ 15-7. Post-mortem examinations directed.—
In all cases of homicide, any officer prosecuting for the state may, at any time, direct a post-mortem examination of the deceased to be made by one or more physicians to be summoned for the purpose; and the physicians shall be paid a rea-sensible compensation for such examination, the amount to be determined by the court and taxed in the costs, and if not collected out of the defendant the same shall be paid by the county. (Rev., s. 3152; Code, s. 1214; R. C., c. 35, s. 49; C. S. 4518.)

§ 15-8. Stolen property returned to owner.—Upon the conviction of any person for robbing or stealing any money, goods, chattels, or other estate of any description whatever, the person from whom such goods, money, chattels or other estate were robbed or stolen shall be entitled to restitution thereof; and the court may award restitution of the articles so robbed or stolen, and make all such orders and issue such writs of restitution or otherwise as may be necessary for that purpose. (Rev., s. 3153; Code, s. 1201; R. C., c. 35, s. 34; 21 Hen. VIII, c. 11; 1943, c. 543; C. S. 4519.)

Editor's Note.—The 1943 amendment substituted in the first line the word “person” for the word “felon.”

§ 15-9. Magistrate may associate another with him.—Any magistrate, to whom any complaint may be made, or before whom any prisoner may be brought, as by law provided, may associate with himself any other magistrate of the same county; and the powers and duties herein mentioned may be executed by the two magistrates so associated. (Rev., s. 3154; Code, s. 1159; 1868-9, ch. 178, subc. 3, s. 28; C. S. 4520.)

Section Constitutional.—This section is in harmony with the provision of the Constitution, Art. IV, sec. 12, conferring power upon the General Assembly to allot and distribute judicial powers. State v. Flowers, 109 N. C. 841, 13 S. E. 324.

§ 15-10. Speedy trial or discharge on commitment for felony.—When any person who has been committed for treason or felony, plainly and especially expressed in the warrant of commitment, the judge of the court, upon notice in open court to be brought to his trial, shall not be indicted some time in the next term of the superior or criminal court ensuing such commitment, the judge of the court, upon notice in open court on the last day of the term, shall set possession said articles are may cause to be published one notice in some newspaper published in said county a notice to the effect that such articles are in the custody of such officer or department, and requiring all persons who may have or claim any interest therein to make and establish such claim or interest not later than thirty (30) days from the date of the publication of such notice or in default thereof, such articles will be sold and disposed of. Such notice shall contain a brief description of the said articles and such other information as the said officer or department may consider necessary or advisable to reasonably inform the public as to the kind and nature of the article about which the notice relates. (1939, c. 195, s. 1.)

§ 15-12. Publication of notice of unclaimed property.—Unless otherwise provided herein, whenever such articles in the possession of any sheriff, police department or constable have remained unclaimed by the person who may be entitled thereto for a period of one hundred eighty (180) days after such seizure, confiscation, or receipt thereof in any other manner, by such sheriff, police department or constable, the said sheriff, police department or constable in whose possession said articles are may cause to be published one notice in some newspaper published in said county a notice to the effect that such articles are in the custody of such officer or department, and requiring all persons who may have or claim any interest therein to make and establish such claim or interest not later than thirty (30) days from the date of the publication of such notice or in default thereof, such articles will be sold and disposed of. Such notice shall contain a brief description of the said articles and such other information as the said officer or department may consider necessary or advisable to reasonably inform the public as to the kind and nature of the article about which the notice relates. (1939, c. 195, s. 2.)

§ 15-13. Public sale thirty days after publication of notice.—If said articles shall remain unclaimed or satisfactory evidence of ownership thereof not be presented to the sheriff, police department or constable, as the case may be, for a period of thirty (30) days after the publication of the notice provided for in § 15-12, then the said sheriff, police department, or constable in whose custody such articles may be, is hereby authorized and empowered to sell the same at public auction for cash to the highest bidder, either at the courthouse door of the county, or at the police headquarters of the municipality in which the said articles of property are located, and at such sale to deliver the same to the purchaser or purchasers thereof. (1939, c. 195, s. 3.)

§ 15-14. Notice of sale.—Before any sale of said property is made under the provisions of this article, however, the said sheriff, police department, or constable making the same shall first advertise the sale by publishing a notice thereof in some newspaper published in the said county at least one time not less than ten days prior to the date of sale, and by posting a notice of the sale at the courthouse door and at three other public

From the proceeds realized from the sale of said property, the sheriff, police department, constable, or other officer making the same shall first pay the costs and expenses of the sale, and all other necessary expenses incident to a compliance with this article, and any balance then remaining from the proceeds of said sale shall be paid within thirty days after the sale to the treasurer of the county board of education of the county in which such sale is made, for the benefit of the fund for maintaining the free public schools of such county. (1939, c. 195, s. 5.)

§ 15-16. Non-liability of officers.—No sheriff, police department, constable, or other officer, shall be liable for any damages or claims on account of any such sale or disposition of such property, as provided in this article. (1939, c. 195, s. 6.)

§ 15-17. Construction of article.—This article shall not be construed to apply to the seizure and disposition of whiskey distilleries, game birds, and other property or articles which have been or may be seized, where the existing law now provides the method, manner, and extent of the disposition of such articles or of the proceeds derived from the sale thereof. (1939, c. 195, s. 7.)

Cross References.—As to the disposition of liquor seized, see § 15-18. Who may issue warrant.—The following persons respectively have power to issue process for the apprehension of persons charged with any offense, and to execute the powers and duties conferred in this chapter, namely: The chief justice and the associate justices of the supreme court, the judges of the superior court, judges of criminal courts, presiding officers of inferior courts, justices of the peace, mayors of cities, or other chief officers of incorporated towns. Mayor Pro Tem. May Issue.—The power conferred upon a mayor pro tem, "to exercise the duties" of mayor during his absence includes that of issuing warrants in criminal actions. State v. Thomas, 141 N. C. 791, 53 S. E. 522.

§ 15-19. Complainant examined on oath.—Whenever complaint is made to any such magistrate that a criminal offense has been committed within this state, or without this state and within the United States, and that a person charged therewith is in this state, it shall be the duty of such magistrate to examine on oath the complainant and any witnesses who may be produced by him. (Rev., s. 3157; Code, s. 1133; 1868-9, c. 178, subc. 3, s. 2; C. S. 4533.)

Oath Essential.—This section requires the Justice, before issuing a warrant to examine the complainant on oath. Merrimon v. Commissioners, 106 N. C. 369, 371, 11 S. E. 267.

Examination Must Show Commission of Offense.—It must appear by the examination that an offense has been committed before any warrant is issued. State v. Moore, 136 N. C. 581, 48 S. E. 573.

Sufficiency of Evidence.—It is the duty of a magistrate, before issuing a warrant upon a criminal charge, to have a super visum, to require evidence on oath amounting to a direct charge or creating a strong suspicion of guilt. Welch v. Scott, 27 N. C. 72.

Same—No Special Form Required.—It is not expected nor required, in the absence of special provision to the contrary, that an affidavit or complaint should be in any particular form or should charge the wrong with the fullness or particularity necessary in an information or indictment, 12 Cyc., 294. State v. Gupton, 166 N. C. 257, 262, 80 S. E. 989.

Appellate Court Cannot Look Behind Warrant.—The appellate court "can only look at the warrant, which is the complaint," and "cannot look behind the warrant for objections lying in the defects or irregularities of the preliminary evidence." § 15-20. Warrant issued; contents. If it shall appear from such examination that any criminal offense has been committed, the magistrate shall issue a proper warrant under his hand, with or without seal, reciting the accusation, and commanding the officer to whom it is directed forthwith to take the person accused of having committed the offense, and bring him before a magistrate, to be dealt with according to law. A justice of the peace or a chief officer of a city or town shall direct his warrant to the sheriff or other lawful officer of his county. (Rev., s. 3158; Code, s. 1134; 1901, c. 668; 1868-9, c. 178, subc. 3, s. 3; C. S. 4534.)

Editor's Note.—For article discussing requisites of warrant, see 15 N. C. L. Rev. 101.

General Consideration.—It is not necessary that a warrant as to sequestration should charge that the person and property described were seized upon a sworn complaint. State v. Price, 111 N. C. 703, 16 S. E. 414.

The facts constituting the offense must be set out with certainty. State v. Jones, 88 N. C. 671. But the warrant may mention the affidavit, State v. Yellowstone, 152 N. C. 793, 67 S. E. 489, as they will be construed together. State v. Gupton, 166 N. C. 257, 80 S. E. 989.

Appearance waives a defect in a warrant. State v. Cole, 150 N. C. 795, 57 S. E. 293. It is necessary in every case that no exception be taken in a statute. State v. Moore, 166 N. C. 284, 81 S. E. 294.

Amendment of Warrant.—On appeal to the superior court from a conviction before a justice of the peace, the court can allow an amendment of the warrant. State v. Koone, 108 N. C. 752, 12 S. E. 1002; State v. Carble, 70 N. C. 62. It is discretionary with the court whether it will exercise the power. State v. Vaughan, 91 N. C. 532; State v. Crook, 91 N. C. 536.

But a warrant cannot be amended so as to charge a different offense. State v. Taylor, 118 N. C. 1352, 24 S. E. 536; State v. Quick, 91 N. C. 533; State v. Cook, 61 N. C. 535.

An order directing an amendment to a warrant by the insertion therein of certain words is self-executing, and the words need not be actually inserted in the complaint or warrant. State v. Yellowstone, 152 N. C. 793, 67 S. E. 480; See also, State v. Winslow, 95 N. C. 649; State v. Davis, 111 N. C. 729, 16 S. E. 540; State v. Sharp, 125 N. C. 625, 37 S. E. 264; State v. Yoder, 113 N. C. 1111, 1112, 44 S. E. 689.

Officer Protected when Warrant Defective.—See State v. Gupton, 166 N. C. 257, 262, 80 S. E. 989; State v. Jones, 88 N. C. 671.

§ 15-21. Where warrant may be executed.—Warrants issued by any justice of the supreme court, or by any judge of the superior court, or of a criminal court, may be executed in any part of this state; warrants issued by a justice of the peace, or by the chief officer of any city or incorporated town, may be executed in any part of the county of such justice, or in which such city or town is situated, and on any river, bay or sound forming the boundary between that and some other county, and not elsewhere, unless indorsed as prescribed in § 15-22. (Rev., s. 3159; Code, s. 1135; 1868-9, c. 178, subc. 3, s. 4; C. S. 4525.)

§ 15-22. Warrant indorsed and served in another county.—If the person against whom any warrant is issued by a justice of the peace or chief officer of a city or town shall escape, or be in any other county out of the jurisdiction of such justice or chief officer, it shall be the duty of any justice of the peace, or any other magistrate within the county where such offender shall be, or shall be suspected to be, upon proof of the handwriting of the magistrate or chief officer issuing the warrant, to indorse his name on the same, and thereupon the person, or officer to whom the warrant was directed, may arrest the offender in that county: Provided, that an officer to whom a warrant charging the commission of a felony is directed, who is in the actual pursuit of a person known to him to be the one charged with the felony, may continue the pursuit without such indorsement. The justice of the peace or a chief officer of a city or town shall direct his warrant to the sheriff or other lawful officer of his county, and such warrant when so indorsed as herein prescribed shall authorize and compel the sheriff or other officer of any county in the state, in which such indorsement is made, to execute the same. (Rev., s. 3160; Code, s. 1136; 1917, c. 30; 1901, c. 663; 1868-9, c. 175, subc. 3, s. 6; C. S. 4526.)

Restricted to Criminal Cases.—The provision of this section is restricted to criminal cases. Fisher v. Bullard, 109 N. C. 574, 13 S. E. 799.

Justice in County of Service Must Endorse.—A warrant issued in one county to be served in another is not given extraterritorial efficacy unless it has the endorsement of a justice of the peace or other authorized officer in the latter county. Stancill v. Underwood, 188 N. C. 475, 476, 124 S. E. 845.

§ 15-23. Magistrate not liable for indorsing warrant.—No magistrate shall be liable to any indictment, action for trespass or other action for having indorsed any warrant pursuant to the provisions of § 15-22, although it should afterwards appear that such warrant was illegally or improperly issued. (Rev., s. 3161; Code, s. 1137; 1868-9, c. 178, subc. 3, s. 6; C. S. 4527.)

Endorsing Officer Fully Protected.—If a warrant issues from competent authority and the extraterritorial efficacy provided by section 15-22 is imparted to it in the county wherein the accused party was arrested, the justification is full to the officer and all who co-operated with him, and no inquiry is admissible into the circumstances under which it was issued. State v. James, 80 N. C. 370, 372.

§ 15-24. Before what magistrate a warrant returned.—Persons arrested under any warrant issued for any offense, where no provision is otherwise made, shall be brought before the magistrate who issued the warrant; or, if he be absent, or from any cause unable to try the case, before the nearest magistrate in the same county; and the warrant by virtue of which the arrest shall have been made, with a proper return indorsed thereon and signed by the officer or person making the arrest, shall be delivered to such magistrate. (Rev., s. 3162; Code, s. 1143; 1868-9, c. 178, subc. 3, s. 12; C. S. 4528.)

Mayor Pro Tem.—A warrant may be returnable before a mayor pro tem. State v. Thomas, 141 N. C. 791, 53 S. E. 532.

Authority of Magistrate Issuing Warrant. —The magistrate who issues the warrant has the authority to make the warrant returnable before himself, but shall not make the warrant returnable before any person having like jurisdiction, such a recorder to conduct the preliminary hearing. State v. Lord, 145 N. C. 479, 59 S. E. 656. Cited in State v. James, 78 N. C. 455, 457.

Art. 4. Search Warrants.

§ 15-25. In what cases issued, and where executed.—If any credible witness shall prove, upon oath, before any justice of the peace, or mayor of any city, or chief magistrate of any incorporated town, that there is a reasonable cause to suspect that any person has in his possession, or on his premises, any property stolen, or any and all personal property and all tickets, books, papers and documents used in connection with and operation of lotteries or any gaming or gambling, or any false or counterfeit coin resembling, or apparently intended to resemble, or pass for, any current coin of the United States, or of any other state, province or country, or any instrument, tool or engine whatsoever, adapted or intended for the counterfeiting of any such coin; or any false and counterfeit notes, bills or bonds of the United States, or of the state of North Carolina, or of any other state or country, or of any county, city or incorporated town; or any instrument, tool or engine whatsoever, adapted or intended for the counterfeiting of such note, bill or bond, it shall be lawful for such justice, mayor or chief magistrate of any incorporated town to grant a warrant, to be executed within the limits of his county or of the county in which such city or incorporated town is situated, to any proper officer, authorizing him to search for such property, and to seize the same, and to arrest the person having in possession or on whose premises may be found such stolen property, or any and all personal property and all tickets, books, papers and documents used in connection with and operation of lotteries or any gaming or gambling, counterfeit coin, counterfeit notes, bills or bonds, or the instruments, tools or engines for making the same, and to bring them before any magistrate of competent jurisdiction, to be dealt with according to law. (Rev., s. 3163; Code, s. 1171; 1868-9, c. 178, subc. 3, s. 38; 1914, c. 53; C. S. 4529.)

Cross References.—As to warrant authorizing search for liquor, see § 18-13.

Editor’s Note.—The 1941 amendment inserted the provisions relating to lotteries, etc.

At Common Law.—Warrants to search for stolen goods are authorized by the principles of the common law. State v. McDonald, 14 N. C. 468, 470.

§ 15-26. Nature of warrant and procedure thereon.—Such search warrant shall describe the article to be searched for with reasonable certainty, and by whom the complaint is made, and in whose possession the article to be searched for is supposed to be; it shall be made returnable as other criminal process is by law required to be, and the proceedings thereon shall be as required in other cases of criminal complaint. (Rev., s. 3164; Code, s. 1172; 1868-9, c. 178, subc. 3, s. 39; C. S. 4530.)

Cross References.—As to search warrants for deserting seamen, see § 14-551. As to constitutional prohibition against general warrants, see N. C. Constitution, Art. 1, § 15.
§ 15-27. Warrant issued without affidavit and examination of complainant or other person; evidence discovered thereunder incompetent. — Any officer who shall sign and issue or cause to be signed and issued a search warrant without first requiring the complainant or other person to sign an affidavit under oath and examine or examine said person or complainant in regard thereto shall be guilty of a misdemeanor; and no facts discovered by reason of the issuance of such illegal search warrant shall be competent as evidence in the trial of any action. (1937, c. 329, s. 154.)

Editor's Note. — This section makes one important change in criminal procedure. Unlike the federal and the majority of state jurisdictions, North Carolina has always admitted evidence obtained by an illegal search. The new law provides that evidence obtained by a search made pursuant to an illegally issued search warrant cannot be admitted in evidence. This leaves open the question whether evidence obtained by an illegal search made without any search warrant would be admissible. 15 N. C. Law Rev. 241.

This section does not apply to evidence obtained by search without a warrant, the language of the statute being insufficient to the conclusion that the statute being in derogation of the common law rule. State v. McGee, 214 N. C. 184, 198 S. E. 616.

An affidavit for a search warrant signed by the chief of police is not the informant he is "some other person," and the statute does not require that the informant shall make the affidavit, or that the person signing the affidavit should state his informant is, and evidence obtained on a search warrant issued on such affidavit is competent. State v. Cradle, 213 N. C. 217, 195 S. E. 392.

Officer Need Not Make the Affidavit. — It is not required that the officer using a search warrant make the affidavit. State v. Shermey, 216 N. C. 719, 6 S. E. (2d) 529.

Affidavit Based on Information. — Where the search warrant in question was issued upon the sworn affidavit of a police officer which stated that the basis of the oath was "information," the affidavit does not negative the assumption that the police officer was examined as to the particulars of his information, and it is not required that the affidavit give in detail the source and extent of the information, and evidence procured in a search under the warrant is competent. State v. Eiler, 217 N. C. 111, 6 S. E. (2d) 840.

Art. 5. Peace Warrants.

§ 15-28. Officers authorized to issue peace warrants. — The following magistrates have power to cause to be kept all the laws made for the preservation of the public peace, and in execution of that power to require persons to give security to keep the peace, in the manner provided in this chapter, namely: The chief justice and associate justices of the supreme court, the judges of the superior courts, and of any special courts which may hereafter be created, the justices of the peace, the mayors or other chief officers of all cities and towns. (Rev. s. 3165; Code, s. 1216; 1868-9, c. 178, subc. 2, s. 1; C. S. 4531.)

A Criminal Action. — A peace warrant is a criminal action procured by a peace officer or other person, in derogation of the common law rule, to prevent an apprehended crime against his person or property, and is within the exclusive jurisdiction of a justice of the peace. State v. Oates, 88 N. C. 668; State v. Locust, 53 N. C. 574.

§ 15-29. Complaint and examination. — Whenever complaint is made in writing, and upon oath, to any such magistrate that any person has threatened to commit any offense against the person or property of another, it shall be the duty of such magistrate to examine such complainant and any witnesses who may be produced on oath, to reduce such examination to writing, and to cause the same to be subscribed by the parties so examined. (Rev. s. 3166; Code, s. 1217; 1868-9, c. 178, subc. 2, s. 2; C. S. 4582.)

Applicant Should Not Be Bound Over. — It is error for a justice of the peace to bind to the superior court an applicant for a peace warrant against whom no charge is made. State v. Bass, 75 N. C. 139.

§ 15-30. Warrant issued. — If it shall appear from such examination that there is just reason to fear the commission of any such offense by such person complained of, it shall be the duty of the magistrate to issue a warrant under his hand, with or without a seal, reciting the complaint, and commanding the officer to whom it is directed forthwith to apprehend the person so complained of, and bring him before such magistrate or some other magistrate authorized to issue such warrant. (Rev. s. 3167; Code, s. 1218; 1868-9, c. 178, subc. 2, s. 3; C. S. 4533.)

Warrant Should Contain Allegations. — A peace warrant in which is alleged no threat, fact or circumstance from which the court can determine whether the fear of the prosecutor is well founded, should be quashed. State v. Goram, 83 N. C. 664; State v. Cooley, 78 N. C. 538.

§ 15-31. To whom warrant directed. — The warrant shall be directed to the sheriff, coroner or any constable, each of whom shall have power to execute the same within his county; and if no sheriff, coroner or constable can conveniently be found, the warrant may be directed to any person whatever, who shall have power to execute the same within the county in which it is issued. No justice of the peace, or mayor, or other chief officer of any city or town shall direct his warrant to any officer outside the county of said justice or chief officer. (Rev. s. 3169; Code, s. 1219; 1868-9, c. 178, subc. 2, s. 3; C. S. 4532.)

Right of Private Person to Make Arrest. — A private person has no authority to make an arrest for a riot, rout, affray, or other breach of the peace, without warrant, except when such offenses are being committed in his presence, nor can a justice of the peace confer such authority by a mere verbal order or command. State v. Campbell, 107 N. C. 948, 12 S. E. 441.

Section Confers Extraordinary Power. — The power conferred by this section is the only extraordinary case in which a justice of the peace is authorized to depose one, who is not an officer, to execute process. Marsh v. Williams, 61 N. C. 371; State v. Jones, 48 N. C. 404; McVee v. Angel, 90 N. C. 60, 61, 62.

§ 15-32. Defendant recognized to keep the peace. — Whenever any person complained of on a peace warrant is brought before a justice of the peace, such person may be required to enter into a recognizance, payable to the state of North Carolina, in such sum, not exceeding one thousand dollars, as such justice shall direct, with one or more sufficient sureties, to appear before some justice of the peace within a period not exceeding six months, and not depart the court without leave, and in the meanwhile to keep the peace and be of good behavior toward all the people of the state, and particularly towards the person requiring such security. (Rev. s. 3170; Code, ss. 894, 1220; 1879, c. 98, s. 9; C. S. 4536.)

Jurisdiction Given to Justices. — This section gives to justices of the peace exclusive original jurisdiction of peace warrants and proceedings thereunder. State v. Oates, 88 N. C. 668, 670.

§ 15-33. Defendant discharged, or new recognizance required. — If the complainant does not appear, the party recognized shall be discharged, unless good cause be shown to the contrary. If the respective parties appear, the court shall hear their allegations and proofs, and may either discharge the recognizance taken or they may re- [715] quire a new recognizance, as the circumstances of the case may require, for such time as may appear necessary, not exceeding one year. (Rev., s. 3171; Code, s. 1226; 1868-9, c. 178, subc. 2, s. 12; C. S. 4536.)

§ 15-34. Defendant imprisoned for want of security.—If such recognizance is given, the party complained of shall be discharged; if such person fails to find such security, it shall be the duty of the magistrate to commit him to prison until he shall find the same, specifying in the mittimus the cause of commitment and the sum in which such security was required. (Rev., s. 3172; Code, s. 1221; 1868-9, c. 178, subc. 2, s. 6; C. S. 4537.)

Prisoner Worked on Roads.—One committed under this section may be worked upon the roads. State v. Yandle, 119 N. C. 974, 25 S. E. 796.

§ 15-35. How discharged from imprisonment.—Any person committed for not finding sureties of his own purpose, without warrant, undertakes to make arrest of a party guilty of only a misdemeanor otherwise than in the cases and in the way pointed out by the section he may undertake to deprive of his liberty may resist him by such force as may be necessary to defend himself successfully. State v. Campbell, 107 N. C. 948, 954, 12 S. E. 441.

§ 15-36. Defendant may appeal.—In all proceedings on peace warrants the defendant may appeal from the decision of the justice of the peace to the superior court by giving the bond required by the justice of the peace to keep the peace, in addition to the appeal bond, when the case shall be heard by the judge holding the court in the county. (Rev., s. 3173; 1901, c. 66; C. S. 4539.)

Editor's Note.—Previous to the passage of this section it was several times held that there was no appeal in peace warrant proceedings from the justice of the peace to the superior court. See State v. Gregory, 118 N. C. 1199, 24 S. E. 441. This section makes these decisions obsolet.

§ 15-37. Breach of peace in presence of court.—Every person who in the presence of any magistrate specified in the first section of this article, or in the presence of any court of record, shall make any affray, or threaten to kill or beat another, or to commit any offense against his person or property; and all persons who, in the presence of such magistrate or court, shall contend with hot and angry words, may be ordered by such magistrate or court, with or without a binding oath to give such security as above specified, and in case of failure so to do, may be committed as above provided. (Rev., s. 3168; Code, s. 1224; 1868-9, c. 178, subc. 2, s. 9; C. S. 4540.)

§ 15-38. Recognizance returned to superior court.—Every recognizance taken pursuant to the provisions of this article shall be transmitted by the magistrate taking the same to the next term of the superior court for the county in which the offense is charged to have been committed. (Rev., s. 3175; Code, s. 1223; 1868-9, c. 178, subc. 2, s. 8; C. S. 4541.)

Art. 6. Arrest.

§ 15-39. Persons present may arrest for breach of peace.—Every person present at any riot, rout, affray or other breach of the peace, shall endeavor to suppress and prevent the same, and, if necessary for that purpose, shall arrest the offenders. (Rev., s. 3176; Code, s. 1124; 1868-9, c. 178, subc. 1, s. 1; C. S. 4542.)

Cross References.—As to arrest in civil cases, see § 1-409 et seq. As to arrest of tramps by persons who are not officers, see § 1-431.

Editor's Note.—For an article on the law of arrest in the State of North Carolina, see 15 NC. Law Rev., 101.

Authority Strictly Limited.—The authority given by this article to private persons to make arrests only extends to the offenses therein mentioned and committed under the conditions therein prescribed. State v. Campbell, 197 N. C. 948, 954, 12 S. E. 441.

Breach of Town Ordinance.—The violation of a town ordinance, even in the presence of a policeman, does not necessarily give him a right to arrest the offender. State v. Bell, 76 N. C. 449, 12 S. E. 441.

Same.—After offense committed. —After the offenses—misdemeanors—mentioned above have been committed, and the offenders have dispersed, a private person has no authority to arrest the offender, unless he apprehends that the person so arrested can go out to make such arrest by the mere order of justice of the peace or any officer. State v. Campbell, 107 N. C. 948, 954, 12 S. E. 441.

§ 15-40. Arrest for felony, without warrant.—Every person in whose presence a felony has been committed may arrest the person whom he knows or has reasonable ground to believe to be guilty of such offense, and it shall be the duty of every sheriff, coroner, constable or officer of the police, upon information, to assist in such arrest. (Rev., s. 3177; Code, s. 1129; 1868-9, c. 178, subc. 1, s. 6; C. S. 4543.)

Right of Private Person to Arrest.—A private person may arrest the felon without a warrant, if he is present at the time the felony is committed. Martin v. Houck, 141 N. C. 317, 321, 54 S. E. 291. In such case, he may and ought to arrest and, as soon as practicable, take him before a proper officer, to the end that he may be duly held to answer for the offense. In such case, the private person would not be justified unless a felony had actually been committed. It is better and safer to obtain a warrant when this may be promptly done. State v. Roane, 13 N. C. 58; Brodway v. Crawford, 48 N. C. 433; State v. Bryant, 65 N. C. 327; State v. Shelton, 79 N. C. 605; Neal v. Joyner, 89 N. C. 287; State v. Campbell, 107 N. C. 948, 954, 12 S. E. 441; Martin v. Houck, 141 N. C. 317, 321, 54 S. E. 291.

In State v. Stancill, 128 N. C. 606, 609, 38 S. E. 925, 928, the court says: "A private citizen has the right to arrest a felon, whether he is present when the felony is committed or not. When he is not present, it devolves on him to show that the felony, for which he arrested, had been committed." 15 NC. Law Rev., 101.

As to what constitutes reasonable ground for believing that accused has committed a felony in the presence of the person making the arrest, see State v. Blackwelder, 182 N. C. 569, 109 S. E. 644.

Party Arresting Must State His Purpose.—A private citizen, attempting to arrest a felon without warrant, must make his purpose known, and for what offense he is attempting arrest. And unless he notifies the felon of his purpose and reason for the arrest, he must then proceed in a peaceable manner to make the arrest, and if he is resisted he may use such force as is necessary to overcome the resistance, if used for that purpose alone. 2 Am. and Eng. Enc., 906, note 2. But this is put upon the ground that the party attempting to make the arrest becomes personally involved, and he has the right to defend himself. State v. Stancill, 128 N. C. 606, 610, 38 S. E. 926.
§ 15-41. When officer may arrest without warrant.—Every sheriff, coroner, constable, officer of police, or other officer, entrusted with the care and preservation of the public peace, who shall have reasonable ground to believe that any particular person is guilty, and shall apprehend that such person may escape if not immediately arrested, shall arrest him without warrant, and may summon all bystanders to aid in such arrest. (Rev., s. 3178; Code, s. 1126; 1868-9, c. 178, subc. 1, s. 3; C. S. 4544.)

As to arrest of persons violating the laws regulating intoxicating liquors, see §§ 18-6 and 18-23. As to arrest by the commanding officer of militia, see § 127-106. As to arrest of parolee from the state prison whose parole has been revoked, see § 148-63. As to arrest to arrest for violation of the weights and measures laws, see § 81-12.

Editor's Note.—For a discussion of arrest without warrant, see § 15 N. C. Law Rev., 191.

Common Law Provisions.—At common law there is this distinction between a private individual and a constable in order to justify the former in causing the imprisonment of a person, he must not only make out a reasonable ground of suspicion, but he must prove that an actual felony has been committed. Whereas, a constable, having reasonable ground to suspect that a felony has been committed, is authorized to detain the party suspected until an inquiry shall be made by the proper authorities. Neal v. Joyner, 89 N. C. 267, 290.

An Emergency Measure — The arrest of a person by an officer without a warrant is allowed upon emergency. Hobbs v. Washington, 188 N. C. 293, 84 S. E. 391.

Powers of Police Officer.—A police officer was not known to the common law, and therefore he can exercise powers only within the town limits. Martin v. House, 141 N. C. 317, 221, 54 S. E. 291. And is guilty of assault when he arrests without a warrant outside such limits. Sossaman v. Cruse, 133 N. C. 470, 45 S. E. 757. Nor can a police officer recover under the Workmen's Compensation Act for injuries sustained in the performance of his duties if the alleged cause of his injuries was outside town limits. Wilson v. Mooresville, 222 N. C. 283, 23 S. E. (2d) 907.

The superintendent of a convict gang is not such an officer as contemplated by the section. State v. Stancill, 128 N. C. 606, 610, 38 S. E. 926.

§ 15-42. Sheriffs and deputies granted power to arrest felons anywhere in state.—When a felony is committed in any county in this State, and upon the commission of the felony, the person or persons charged therewith flees or flees the county, the sheriff of the county in which the crime was committed, and/or his bonded deputy or deputies, either with or without process, is hereby given authority to pursue the person or persons so charged, whether in sight or not, and apprehend and arrest him or them anywhere in the State. (1935, c. 204.)

§ 15-44. When officer may break and enter houses.—If a felony or other infamous crime has been committed, or a dangerous wound has been given and there is reasonable ground to believe that the guilty person is concealed in a house, it shall be lawful for any sheriff, coroner, constable, or police officer, admittance having been demanded and denied, to break open the door and enter the house and arrest the person against whom there shall be such ground of belief. (Rev., s. 3180; Code, s. 1128; 1868-9, c. 178, subc. 1, s. 5; C. S. 4546.)

Where an officer comes armed with process founded on a breach of the peace, he may, after demand of admittance to the premises, make search of the house, and search for the occupant to open the doors of a house, lawfully break them in order to effect an entrance and if he act in good faith in doing so, both he and his posse comitatus will be protected. (15 N. C. Law Rev., 125, citing State v. Moore, 115 N. C. 709, 20 S. E. 182.)

town, sheriff, coroner or constable, to aid in suppressing any riot, rout, unlawful assembly, affray or other breach of the peace, or to arrest the persons engaged in the commission of such offenses, or to prevent the commission of any felony, breach of the peace, larceny which may be threatened or begun, shall do so. (Rev., s. 3181; Code, s. 1125; 1868-9, c. 178, subc. 1, s. 2; C. S. 4547.)

Cross Reference.—As to liability for failure to aid police officers, see § 14-224.

Protection of Persons Assisting.—This section makes it imperative on the person so summoned to aid, whether he be present at the perpetration of the offense when the officer is summoned, or not, State v. Campbell, 107 N. C. 948, 953, 12 S. E. 441. The protection extends to persons aiding. State v. McMahon, 103 N. C. 379, 392, 9 S. E. 48.

Limits Imposed by Section. — The power conferred upon officers by this section is limited to the cases mentioned in the section, and while they are actually being perpetrated, or are imminent. It does not go to the extent of authorizing the persons thus summoned to make arrests, without warrant, where the offense has been accomplished and the offenders have dispersed. State v. Campbell, 107 N. C. 946, 12 S. E. 441.

Policeman Given Same Authority as Sheriff within Town Limits. — A policeman has the authority under general statute to depopulate a citizen to aid him in serving a warrant for breach of the peace, a policeman being given the same authority, within the town limits, in making arrests as a sheriff. Tomlinson v. Norwood, 208 N. C. 716, 182 S. E. 659.

§ 15-46. Procedure on arrest without warrant. —
Every person arrested without warrant shall be either immediately taken before some magistrate having jurisdiction to issue a warrant in the case, or else committed to the county prison, and, as soon as may be, taken before such magistrate, who, on proper proof, shall issue a warrant and thereon proceed to act as may be required by law. (Rev., s. 3182; Code, s. 1130; 1868-9, c. 178, subc. 1, s. 7; C. S. 4548.)

Proper Compliance Protects Justice. — If the justice shall comply with this section by carefully examining the complainant, on oath, before issuing his warrant, few cases would arise in which he would not have judgment for his fees. Merrimon v. Commissioners, 106 N. C. 369, 371, 11 S. E. 197.

Liability of Officer for Wrongful Delay. — A warrant must be procured as soon after the arrest as possible and, where it appears that this was not done, the officer responsible for the delay would be answerable in damages. Hobbs v. Washington, 168 N. C. 293, 94 S. E. 391.

Custody of Prisoner. — If offender is arrested at a time and under such circumstances as he cannot be carried immediately before a justice, the officer may keep him in custody, commit him to jail or the lock-up, or even tie him, according to the nature of the offense and the necessity of the case. 15 N. C. Law Rev., 127, citing State v. Freeman, 86 N. C. 663.

§ 15-47. Arresting officer to inform offender of charge, allow bail except in capital cases, and permit communication with counsel or friends. — Upon the arrest, detention, or deprivation of the liberties of any person by an officer in this state, with or without warrant, it shall be the duty of the officer making the arrest to forthwith inform the person arrested of the charge against him, and it shall further be the duty of the officer making said arrest, except in capital cases, to have bail fixed in a reasonable sum, and the person so arrested shall be permitted to give bail bond; and it shall be the duty of the officer making the arrest to permit the person so arrested to communicate with counsel and friends immediately, and the right of such persons to communicate with counsel and friends shall not be denied.

Any officer who shall violate the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be fined or imprisoned, or both, in the discretion of the court. (1937, c. 257, ss. 1, 3.)

Cross Reference.—As to bail generally, see § 15-102 et seq.

The violation of this section, in regard to bail and the manner of detention of defendant under arrest, would not render defendant's voluntary confession incompetent. State v. McCurn, 213 N. C. 16, 195 S. E. 7.

When the defendant, upon his arrest, is informed of the charge against him, and "there is no evidence in the record tending to show that after his arrest and while he was in the custody of the sheriff the defendant demanded of the sheriff that he be permitted to communicate with friends or with counsel", the provisions of this section are not applicable. State v. Exum, 213 N. C. 16, 195 S. E. 7.

Art. 7. Fugitives from Justice. § 15-48. Outlawry for felony. — In all cases where any two justices of the peace, or any judge of the supreme, superior, or criminal courts shall, on written affidavit, filed and retained by such justice or judge, receive information that a felony has been committed by any person, and that such person flees from justice, conceals himself and evades arrest and service of the usual process of the law, the judge, or the two justices, being justices of the county, wherein such person is supposed to lurk or conceal himself, are hereby empowered and required to issue proclamation against him reciting his name, if known, and thereby requiring him forthwith to surrender himself; and also, when issued by any judge, empowering and requiring the sheriff of any county in the state in which such fugitive shall be, and when issued by two justices, empowering and requiring the sheriff of the county of the justices, to take such power with him as he shall think fit and necessary for the going in search and pursuit of, and effectually apprehending, such fugitive from justice, which proclamation shall be published at the door of the courthouse of any county in which such fugitive is supposed to lurk or conceal himself, and at such other places as the judge or justices shall direct; and if any person against whom proclamation has been thus issued, continue to stay out, lurk and conceal himself, and do not immediately surrender himself, any citizen of the state may capture, arrest and bring him to justice, and in case of flight or resistance by him, after being called on and warned to surrender, may slay him without accusation or impeachment of any crime. (Rev., s. 3183; Code, s. 1131; 1868-9, c. 178, subc. 1, s. 8; 1866, c. 62; C. S. 4549.)

Cross Reference.—As to extradition, see § 15-55 et seq. and Appendix V. 177.

Fugitive from Justice. — A fugitive from justice is one who, having committed a crime in one jurisdiction, flees therefrom in order to evade the law and escape punishment. State v. Hauf, 128 N. C. 181, 56 S. E. 107.

Outlaws Must Be Warned. — "So careful is the law to protect those who have not been tried and convicted, that the 'outlaws' are entitled to be called upon and warned to surrender' before they are allowed to be slain." State v. Stanfill, 128 N. C. 606, 611, 38 S. E. 926, in dissenting opinion by Cook, J.

§ 15-49. Fugitives from another state arrested. —Any justice of the supreme court, or any judge of the superior court or of any criminal court, or any justice of the peace, or mayor of any city, or chief magistrate of any incorporated town, on satisfactory information laid before him that any fugitive or other person in the state has committed, out of the state and within the United States, any offense which, by law of the state in which the offense was committed, is punishable either capi tally or by imprisonment for one year or upwards in any state prison, has full power and authority, and is hereby required, to issue a warrant for such fugitive or other person and commit him to any jail within the state for the space of six months, and is sooner demanded by the public authorities of the state wherein the offense may have been committed, pursuant to the act of congress in that case made and provided. If no demand be made within that time the fugitive or other person shall be liberated, unless sufficient cause be shown to the contrary. (Rev., s. 3184; Code, s. 1165; 1895, c. 103; 1868-9, c. 178, subc. 3, s. 34; C. S. 4550.)

Editor's Note.—See Editor's Note under § 15-132. The same defendants, who were freed in the case discussed in that note were rearrested and held under the provisions of this section which then provided for the arrest of "any fugitive in the state" etc. Upon a petition by the defend ants for habeas corpus it was decided in State v. Hall, 115 N. C. 811, 20 S. E. 729, that they were not fugitives and hence could not be held for extradition. This section has since been amended by adding after the words "any fugi tive" the words "or other person" which seem to make the statute broad enough to cover a case like that above.

For a discussion of this and pertinent sections in con nection with the law of arrest in this state, see 15 N. C. Law Rev., 101.

In General.—This section prescribes the manner in which criminals escaping from other States may be restored to that having jurisdiction of the offense, and its directions can not be disregarded. It provides fully a method by which the statute may be punished, and at the same time guards and preserves the personal security of the citizen from lawless invasion. State v. Shelton, 79 N. C. 605, 608.

Process Necessary.—No one has authority, without pro cess of court, to arrest a person charged with crime in another state and fleeing here for refuge. Such an arrest makes the parties engaged in it guilty of an assault and battery. State v. Shelton, 79 N. C. 605.

Departure after Crime Is Flight from Justice.—Departure from a jurisdiction after the commission of the act, in furtherance of the crime subsequently consummated, is a flight from justice, within the meaning of the law. In re Seaver, 115 N. C. 57, 19 S. E. 555. Cited in In Re Veasey, 196 N. C. 662, 663, 146 S. E. 599.

§ 15-50. Record kept, and copy sent to govern nor.—Every magistrate committing any person under section 15-49, shall keep a record of the whole proceedings before him, and immediately transmit a copy thereof to the governor for such action as he may deem fit therein under the law. (Rev., s. 3185; Code, s. 1166; 1868-9, c. 178, subc. 3, s. 35; C. S. 4551.)

§ 15-51. Duty of governor.—The governor shall immediately inform the governor of the state or territory in which the crime is alleged to have been committed, or the president of the United States, if it be alleged to have been committed within the District of Columbia, of the proceedings had in such case. (Rev., s. 3186; Code, s. 1167; 1868-9, c. 178, subc. 3, s. 36; C. S. 4552.)

§ 15-52. Person surrendered on order of govern nor.—Every sheriff or jailer in whose custody any person so committed shall be, upon the order of the governor, shall surrender him to the person named in such order. (Rev., s. 3187; Code, s. 1168; 1868-9, c. 178, subc. 3, s. 37; C. S. 4553.)

§ 15-53. Governor may employ agents, and offer rewards.—The governor, on information made to him of any person, whether the name of such per son be known or unknown, having committed a felony or other infamous crime within the state, and of having fled out of the jurisdiction thereof, or who conceals himself within the state to avoid arrest, or who, having been convicted, has escaped and cannot otherwise be apprehended, may either employ a special agent, with a sufficient escort, to pursue and apprehend such fugitive, or issue his proclamation, and therein offer a reward, not exceeding four hundred dollars, according to the nature of the case, as in his opinion may be suf ficient for the purpose, to be paid to him who shall apprehend and deliver the fugitive to such person and at such place as in the proclamation shall be directed. (Rev., s. 3188; Code, s. 1169; 1891, c. 421; R. C., c. 35, s. 4; 1886, c. 561; 1886, c. 28; 1868-9, c. 52; 1870-1, c. 15; 1871-2, c. 29; 1925, c. 275, s. 6; C. S. 4554.)

Editor's Note.—This section formerly contained at the end a clause authorizing the governor to issue warrants on the state treasurer for sufficient money to carry out the provisions of the section. This clause made the section an exception to section 147-68, which provided that no monies shall be paid out of the treasury except on the warrant of the auditor.

By sec. 6, ch. 275, Public Laws 1925 the provision authorizing warrants by the governor was stricken out. By the same act C. S. § 4556, which contained a similar provision was repealed. See Burton v. Furman, 115 N. C. 166, 171, 20 S. E. 443.

§ 15-54. Officer entitled to reward.—Any sheriff or other officer who shall make an arrest of any person charged with crime for whose apprehen sion a reward has been offered, is entitled to such reward, and may sue for and recover the same in any court in this state having jurisdiction: Pro vided, that no reward shall be paid to any sheriff or other officer for any arrest made for a crime committed within the county of such sheriff or officer making such arrest. (1913, c. 132; 1917, c. 8; C. S. 4553.)

Local Modification.—Wake: C. S. 4555.

Editor's Note.—See 13 N. C. Law Rev., 15, as to whom an offer may be made.

Law Giving Reward to Sheriff Valid.—In view of this and the preceding section, Public Local Laws of 1925, ch. 313, sec. 3, providing that the board of commissioners should pay a reward to the sheriff or other police officers for arresting violators of the prohibition law, is a valid exercise of the police power of the State and not contrary to public policy. Hutchins v. Commissioners, 193 N. C. 659, 137 S. E. 711.

Art. 8. Extradition.

§ 15-55. Definitions.—Where appearing in this article the term "governor" includes any per son performing the functions of governor by au thority of the law of this state. The term "execu tive authority" includes the governor, and any person performing the functions of governor in a state other than this state. The term "state," re ferring to a state other than this state, includes any other state or territory, organized or unor ganized, of the United States of America. (1937, c. 273, s. 1.)

Cross Reference.—As to rules of practice of the execu tive department of North Carolina in making requi tions, see appendix VI.

Editor's Note.—The former extradition law, Public Laws 1931, c. 124, was repealed by Public Laws 1937, c. 273, s. 29, a part of the present extradition statute. The repealed law seemed to provide for extradition proceedings only when the crime with which the accused was charged was punishable—in the state where committed—by death or im prisonment for more than one year in the state's prison.
or where the crime consisted of abandonment of wife or children. However, the supreme court indicated in the case of In re Hubbard, 201 N. C. 472, 160 S. E. 569, 61 A. L. R. 547, that a person could be extradited for any crime. The new extradition law is in accord with In re Hubbard, specifically providing for the extradition of a person accused of any crime, whether felony or misdemeanor. Furthermore, provision is made for return to a demanding state of a person who intentionally commits an act outside of the demanding state resulting in a crime in the demanding state. At last the extradition laws cover a situation such as existed in State v. Hall, 115 N. C. 511, 20 S. E. 795. The new act provides that the governor of this state may call up any person who is charged with crime in another state and who has left the demanding state involuntarily. The new extradition law is substantially the same as the 1931 law. 15 N. C. Law Rev., 343, 344.

§ 15-56. Duty of governor as to fugitives from justice of other states.—Subject to the provisions of this article, the provisions of the constitution of the United States controlling, and any and all acts of congress enacted in pursuance thereof, it is the duty of the governor of this state to have arrested and delivered up to the executive authority of any other state of the United States any person charged in that state with treason, felony or other crime, who has fled from justice and is found in this state. (1937, c. 273, s. 2.)

§ 15-57. Form of demand for extradition.—No demand for the extradition of a person charged with crime in another state shall be recognized by the governor unless in writing alleging, except in cases arising under section 15-60, that the accused was present in the demanding state at the time of the commission of the alleged crime, and that thereafter he fled from the state, and accompanied by a copy of an indictment found or by information supported by affidavit in the state having jurisdiction of the crime, or by a copy of an affidavit made before a magistrate there, together with a copy of any warrant which was issued thereupon, or by a copy of judgment of conviction or of sentence imposed in execution thereof, together with a statement by the executive authority of the demanding state that the person claimed has escaped from confinement or has broken the terms of his bail, probation or parole. The indictment, information, or affidavit made before the magistrate must substantially charge the person demanded with having committed a crime under the law of that state; and the copy of indictment, information, affidavit, judgment of conviction or sentence must be authenticated by the executive authority making the demand. (1937, c. 273, s. 3.)

§ 15-58. Governor may cause investigation to be made.—When a demand shall be made upon the governor of this state by the executive authority of another state for the surrender of a person so charged with crime, the governor may call upon the attorney general or any prosecuting officer in this state to investigate or assist in investigating the demand, and to report to him the situation and circumstances of the person so demanded, and whether he ought to be surrendered. (1937, c. 273, s. 4.)

§ 15-59. Extradition of persons imprisoned or awaiting trial in another state or who have left the demanding state under compulsion.—When it is desired to have returned to this state a person charged in this state with a crime, and such person is imprisoned or is held under criminal proceedings then pending against him in another state, the governor of this state may agree with the executive authority of such other state for the extradition of such person before the conclusion of such proceedings or his term of sentence in such other state, upon condition that such person be returned to such other state at the expense of this state as soon as the prosecution in this state is terminated.

The governor of this state may also surrender on demand of the executive authority of any other state any person in this state who is charged in the manner provided in section 15-77 with having violated the laws of the state whose executive authority is making the demand, even though such person left the demanding state involuntarily. (1937, c. 273, s. 5.)

§ 15-60. Extradition of persons not present in demanding state at time of commission of crime.—The governor of this state may also surrender, on demand of the executive authority of any other state, any person in this state charged in such other state in the manner provided in section 15-57 with committing an act in this state, or in a third state, intentionally resulting in a crime in the state whose executive authority is making the demand, and the provisions of this article not otherwise inconsistent, shall apply to such cases, even though the accused was not in that state at the time of the commission of the crime, and has not fled therefrom. (1937, c. 273, s. 6.)

Cross Reference.—As to criminal liability in this state for acts injurious one in another, see § 15-132.

§ 15-61. Issue of governor's warrant of arrest; its recitals.—If the governor decides that the demand should be complied with, he shall sign a warrant of arrest, which shall be sealed with the state seal, and be directed to any peace officer or other person whom he may think fit to entrust with the execution thereof. The warrant must substantially recite the facts necessary to the validity of its issuance. (1937, c. 273, s. 7.)

§ 15-62. Manner and place of execution of warrant.—Such warrant shall authorize the peace officer or other person to whom directed to arrest the accused at any time and any place where he may be found within the state, and to command the aid of all peace officers or other persons in the execution of the warrant, and to deliver the accused, subject to the provisions of this article to the duly authorized agent of the demanding state. (1937, c. 273, s. 8.)

§ 15-63. Authority of arresting officer.—Every such peace officer or other person empowered to make the arrest shall have the same authority, in arresting the accused, to command assistance therein as peace officers have by law in the execution of any criminal process directed to them, with like penalties against those who refuse their assistance. (1937, c. 273, s. 9.)

Cross Reference.—As to liability for refusing to assist, see § 14-224.

§ 15-64. Rights of accused person; application for writ of habeas corpus. — No person arrested upon such warrant shall be delivered over to the agent whom the executive authority demanding him shall have appointed to receive him unless he shall first be taken forthwith before a judge of a court of record in this state, who shall inform him of the demand made for his surrender and of the crime with which he is charged, and that he has the right to demand and procure legal counsel; and if the prisoner or his counsel shall state that he or they desire to test the legality of his arrest, the judge of such court of record shall fix a reasonable time to be allowed him within which to apply for a writ of habeas corpus. When such application is made, notice thereof, and of the time and place of hearing thereon, shall be given to the prosecuting officer of the county in which the arrest is made and in which the accused is in custody, and to the said agent of the demanding state. (1937, c. 273, s. 10.)

Cross Reference.—As to application for writ of habeas corpus, see § 17-3 et seq.

§ 15-65. Penalty for non-compliance with preceding section.—Any officer who shall deliver to the agent for extradition of the demanding state a person in his custody under the governor's warrant, in wilful disobedience to § 15-64, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and, on conviction, shall be fined not more than one thousand dollars ($1,000.00) or be imprisoned not more than six months, or both. (1937, c. 273, s. 11.)

§ 15-66. Confinement in jail when necessary. —The officer or person executing the governor's warrant of arrest, or the agent of the demanding state, who is passing through this state with such a prisoner, may be chargeable with the expense of keeping.

The officer or agent of a demanding state to whom a prisoner may have been delivered for extradition proceedings in another state, or to whom a prisoner may have been delivered after awaiting extradition in such other state, and who is passing through this state with such a prisoner for the purpose of immediately returning such prisoner to the demanding state may, when necessary, confine the prisoner in the jail of any county or city through which he may pass; and the keeper of such jail must receive and safely keep the prisoner until the officer or person having charge of him is ready to proceed on his route, such officer or person being chargeable with the expense of keeping.

Where a justice of the peace of this State issues a warrant for the arrest of a person based upon an affidavit that such person was a fugitive from justice from another state, and the warrant is regular and valid, as provided by this section, may not be lawfully delivered to the authorities of such other state until the Governor of this State has honored a requisition for such person from the Governor of such other state. Id.

§ 15-68. Arrest without a warrant.—The arrest of a person may be lawfully made also by any peace officer or a private person, without a warrant, upon reasonable information that the accused stands charged in the courts of a state with a crime punishable by death or imprisonment for a term exceeding one year, but when so arrested the accused must be taken before a judge or magistrate with all practicable speed, and complaint must be made against him under oath setting forth the ground for the arrest as in § 15-67; and thereafter his answer shall be heard as if he had been arrested on a warrant. (1937, c. 273, s. 14.)

§ 15-69. Commitment to await requisition; bail. —If from the examination before the judge or magistrate it appears that the person held is the person charged with having committed the crime alleged and, except in cases arising under § 15-60, that he has fled from justice, the judge or magistrate must, by a warrant reciting the accusation, commit him to the county jail for such a time not exceeding thirty days and specified in the warrant, as will enable the arrest of the accused to be made under a warrant of the governor on a requisition of the executive authority of the state hav-

§ 15-71. Extension of time of commitment; adjournment.—If the accused is not arrested under warrant of the governor by the expiration of the time specified in the warrant or bond, a judge or magistrate may discharge him or may recommit him for a further period not to exceed sixty days, or a judge or magistrate may again take bail for his appearance and surrender, as provided in § 15-70, but within a period not to exceed sixty days after the date of such new bond. (1937, c. 273, s. 17.)

§ 15-72. Forfeiture of bail.—If the prisoner is admitted to bail and fails to appear and surrender himself according to the conditions of his bond, the judge, or magistrate by proper order, shall declare the bond forfeited and order his immediate arrest without warrant if he be within this state. Recovery may be had on such bond in the name of the state as in the case of other bonds given by the accused in criminal proceedings within this state. (1937, c. 273, s. 18.)

§ 15-73. Persons under criminal prosecution in this state at time of requisition.—If a criminal prosecution has been instituted against such person under the laws of this state and is still pending, the governor, in his discretion, either may surrender him on demand of the executive authority of another state or hold him until he has been tried and discharged or convicted and punished in this state. (1937, c. 273, s. 19.)

§ 15-74. Guilt or innocence of accused, when inquired into.—The guilt or innocence of the accused as to the crime of which he is charged may not be inquired into by the governor or in any proceeding after the demand for extradition accompanied by a charge of crime in legal form as above provided shall have been presented to the governor, except as it may be involved in identifying the person held as the person charged with the crime. (1937, c. 273, s. 20.)

§ 15-75. Governor may recall warrant or issue alias.—The governor may recall his warrant of arrest or may issue another warrant whenever he deems proper. (1937, c. 273, s. 21.)

§ 15-76. Fugitives from this state; duty of governors.—Whenever the governor of this state shall demand a person charged with crime or with escaping from confinement or breaking the terms of his bail, probation or parole in this state from the executive authority of any other state, or from the chief justice or an associate justice of the supreme court of the District of Columbia authorized to receive such demand under the laws of the United States, he shall issue a warrant under the seal of this state, to some agent, commanding him to receive the person so charged if delivered to him and convey him to the proper officer of the county in this state in which the offense was committed. (1937, c. 273, s. 22.)

§ 15-77. Application for issuance of requisition; by whom made; contents.—I. When the return to this state of a person charged with crime in this state is required, the prosecuting attorney shall present to the governor his written application for a requisition for the return of the person charged, in which application shall be stated the name of the person so charged, the crime charged against him, the approximate time, place and circumstances of its commission, the state in which he is believed to be, including the location of the accused therein, at the time the application is made and certifying that, in the opinion of the said prosecuting attorney, the ends of justice require the arrest and return of the accused to this state for trial and that the proceeding is not instituted to enforce a private claim.

II. When the return to this state is required of a person who has been convicted of a crime in this state and has escaped from confinement or broken the terms of his bail, probation or parole, the prosecuting attorney of the county in which the offense was committed, the parole board, or the warden of the institution or sheriff of the county, from which escape was made, shall present to the governor a written application for a requisition for the return of such person, in which application shall be stated the name of the person, the crime of which he was convicted, the circumstances of his escape from confinement or of the breach of the terms of his bail, probation or parole, the state in which he is believed to be, including the location of the person therein at the time application is made.

III. The application shall be verified by affidavit, shall be executed in duplicate and shall be accompanied by two certified copies of the indictment returned, or information and affidavit filed, or of the complaint made to the judge or magistrate, stating the offense with which the accused is charged, or of the judgment of conviction or of the sentence. The prosecuting officer, parole board, warden or sheriff may also attach such further affidavits and other documents in duplicate as he shall deem proper to be submitted with such application. One copy of the application, with the action of the governor indicated by endorsement thereon, and one of the certified copies of the indictment, complaint, information and affidavits, or of the judgment of conviction or of the sentence shall be filed in the office of the secretary of state to remain of record in that office. The other copies of all papers shall be forwarded with the governor's requisition. (1937, c. 273, s. 23.)

§ 15-78. Costs and expenses.—When the crime shall be a felony, the expenses shall be paid out of the state treasury, on the certificate of the governor and warrant of the auditor; and in all other cases they shall be paid out of the county treasury in the county wherein the crime is alleged to have been committed. The expenses shall be the actual traveling and subsistence costs of the agent of the demanding state, together with such legal fees as were paid to the officers of the state on whose governor the requisition is made. In every case the officer entitled to these expenses shall itemize the same and verify them by his oath for presentation, either to the governor of the state, in proper cases, or to the board of county commissioners, in cases in which the county pays such expenses. (1937, c. 273, s. 24.)

§ 15-78. Immunity from service of process in certain civil actions.—A person brought into this state by, or after waiver of, extradition based on a criminal charge shall not be subject to service of personal process in civil actions arising out of the same facts as the criminal proceedings to answer which he is being or has been returned until he has been convicted in the criminal proceeding or, if acquitted until he has had reasonable opportunity to return to the state from which he was extradited. (1937, c. 273, s. 25.)

§ 15-80. Written waiver of extradition proceedings.—Any person arrested in this state charged with having committed any crime in another state or alleged to have escaped from confinement, or broken the terms of his bail, probation or parole may waive the issuance and service of the warrant provided for in §§ 15-61 and 15-62 and all other procedure incidental to extradition proceedings, by executing or subscribing in the presence of a judge of any court of record within this state a writing which states that he consents to return to the demanding state: Provided, however, that before such waiver shall be executed or subscribed by such person it shall be the duty of such judge to inform such person of his rights to the issuance and service of a warrant of extradition and to obtain a writ of habeas corpus as provided for in § 15-64. If and when such consent has been duly executed it shall forthwith be forwarded to the office of the governor of this state and filed therein. The judge shall direct the officer having such person in custody to deliver forthwith such person to the duly accredited agent or agents of the demanding state, and shall deliver or cause to be delivered to such agent or agents a copy of such consent: Provided, however, that nothing in this section shall be deemed to limit the rights of the accused person to return voluntarily and without formality to the demanding state, nor shall this waiver procedure be deemed to be an exclusive procedure or to limit the powers, rights or duties of the officers of the demanding state or of this state. (1937, c. 273, s. 25a.)

§ 15-81. Non-waiver by this state.—Nothing in this article contained shall be deemed to constitute a waiver by this state of its right, power or privilege to try such demanded person for crime committed within this state, or of its right, power or privilege to regain custody of such person by extradition proceedings or otherwise for the purpose of trial, sentence or punishment for any crime committed within this state, nor shall any proceedings had under this article which result in, or fail to result in, extradition be deemed a waiver by this state of any of its rights, privileges or jurisdiction in any way whatsoever. (1937, c. 273, s. 25b.)

§ 15-82. No right of asylum; no immunity from other criminal prosecution while in this state.—After a person has been brought back to this state by, or after waiver of extradition proceedings, he may be tried in this state for other crimes which he may be charged with having committed here as well as that specified in the requisition for his extradition. (1937, c. 273, s. 26.)

§ 15-83. Interpretation.—The provisions of this article shall be so interpreted and construed as to effectuate its general purposes to make uniform the law of those states which enact it. (1937, c. 273, s. 27.)

§ 15-84. Short title.—This article may be cited as the Uniform Criminal Extradition Act. (1937, c. 273, s. 30.)

Art. 9. Preliminary Examination.

§ 15-88. Waiver of examination.—If any person arrested desires to waive examination and give bail, it is the duty of the officer making the arrest to take him before any magistrate of the county in which the offense is charged to have been committed, or before any judge of the supreme or superior court. (Rev., s. 2190; Code, ss. 1138, 1139; 1868-9, c. 178, subc. 3. ss. 7, 8; C. S. 4557.)

Cross References.—As to bail in criminal proceedings, see § 15-102 et seq. As to hearing by the coroner in lieu of other preliminary hearings, see § 15-710.

§ 15-86. Procedure, where justice has not final jurisdiction.—In all cases where a justice of the peace has not final jurisdiction of the offense, he shall desist from any final determination of the action or complaint, and proceed as hereinafter provided. (Rev., s. 3191; Code, ss. 896; 1868-9, c. 178, subc. 4. s. 7; 1879, c. 302, s. 2; C. S. 4558.)

Cross Reference.—As to jurisdiction of a justice in criminal actions, see § 7-129 and notes.

When Jurisdiction of Justice Ends.—The justice has no jurisdiction of a case after he has bound the defendant to court and taken his recognizance. State v. Lucas, 139 N. C. 567, 51 S. E. 1021.

§ 15-87. Duty of examining magistrate.—The magistrate before whom any such person shall be brought shall proceed, as soon as may be, to examine the complainant and the witnesses produced in support of the prosecution on oath, in the presence of the prisoner, in regard to the offense charged, and in regard to any other matters connected with such charge which such magistrate may deem pertinent. The defendant shall be allowed a reasonable time before the hearing begins in which to send for and advise with counsel. (Rev., s. 3192; Code, ss. 1144, 1145; 1868-9, c. 178, subc. 3, s. 13; C. S. 4559.)

Person Charged Must Be Present.—There can be no examination in the absence of the person charged. Lovick v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 129 N. C. 427, 434, 40 S. E. 191.

Rights of Accused.—The present wise and beneficent policy of the law allows a prisoner under arrest time for deliberation and an opportunity to obtain correct legal advice, so that the statements which he may make on an examination are made of his own free will and with full knowledge of the nature and consequences of his confessions. State v. Mathis, 150 N. C. 106, 111.

§ 15-88. Testimony reduced to writing; right to counsel.—The evidence given by the several witnesses examined shall be reduced to writing by the magistrate, or under his direction, and shall be signed by the witnesses respectively. If desired by the person arrested, his counsel shall be present during the examination of the complainant and the witnesses on the part of the prosecution, and during the examination of the prisoner; and the prisoner or his counsel shall be allowed to cross-examine the complainant and the witnesses for the prosecution. (Rev., s. 3193; Code, ss. 1146, 1150; 1868-9, c. 178, subc. 3, ss. 14, 15; C. S. 4560.)

Cross Reference.—As to the testimony being used as evidence, see § 15-100 and notes.

Exact Words Not Required to Be Written.—The magistrate is not required to write down the very words of the witness as they are uttered. It is sufficient if he allows the testimony of the witness as he intends it upon the subject matter of inquiry. State v. Bridgers, 87 N. C. 562, 564.

Notes Not Conclusive.—The notes of evidence made by a committing magistrate upon the hearing are not conclusive as to the testimony of witnesses examined. State v. Hooper, 151 N. C. 646, 65 S. E. 613.

Magistrate Can Give Parol Testimony.—It is competent for a magistrate to state what a witness swore before him in regard to a homicide, although he afterwards committed the statement to writing. State v. Adair, 66 N. C. 298.

Unwritten Testimony.—The written statement can only be referred to, to refresh his memory, and is properly treated as a memorandum, State v. Adair, 66 N. C. 298, unless the witness is dead, or too ill to be present, or insane, or has removed from the State at the instigation or consent of the accusing party, State v. Simpson, 133 N. C. 676, 45 S. E. 567.

§ 15-89. Prisoner examined; advised of rights.—
The magistrate shall then proceed to examine the prisoner in relation to the offense charged. Such examination shall not be on oath; and before it is commenced, the prisoner shall be informed by the magistrate of the charge made against him, and that he is at liberty to refuse to answer any question that may be put to him, and that his refusal to answer shall not be used to his prejudice in any stage of the proceedings. (Rev., s. 3194; Code, ss. 1145, 1146; 1868-9, c. 178, subc. 3, ss. 14, 15; C. S. 4561.)

Cross Reference.—As to the right of a prisoner to testify as a witness, see § 8-54.

Purpose of Section.—It was intended by this section to safeguard prisoners who are accused of crime, and to afford him every protection against imposition, oppression, or undue influence, so that what he may say in any investigation in regard to the accusation against him may be entirely voluntary. State v. Parker, 132 N. C. 1014, 1017, 43 S. E. 830. For the accused, without the caution, might, before the magistrate, feel compelled to answer questions put to him, and such answers as he might make, might not be voluntary. State v. Conrad, 95 N. C. 666, 670.

Prisoner Must Not Be Sworn.—It was the purpose and intent that the person under examination, who is accused of crime, should feel free to admit or deny his guilt, and the oath which is forbidden by statute deprives him of this perfect freedom. State v. Parker, 132 N. C. 1014, 1018, 43 S. E. 830.

Section Extends to Coroner's Inquest.—The reason of the section extends to an inquest by a coroner. In this respect he is examining magistrate. State v. Matthews, 66 N. C. 106.

Confession to Prisoner Is Essential.—This caution is not a mere matter of form: it is a substantial right, necessary for the protection of prisoners who are too poor to employ counsel and too ignorant to conduct their own defense. State v. Rorie, 74 N. C. 148, 150.

And in the opinion of the Court in State v. Matthews, 66 N. C. 106, "this caution is an essential part of the proceedings, and must be given to the prisoner under arrest to make his examination admissible in evidence." State v. Rorie, 74 N. C. 148, 150. Thus where a confession is made before the cautions required by the section were given it is inadmissible. State v. Matthews, 66 N. C. 106, 113.

Caution Applies to Whole Examination.—The purpose of the section is, that the prisoner shall be advised by the magistrate of his right to refuse to answer all questions that may be put to him as to the charge made against him, without prejudice, during the whole examination, and not simply so much of it as applies to him personally. State v. Conrad, 95 N. C. 666, 670.

When Caution to Be Given.—The commencement of the examination is properly, when, after the warrant of arrest is returned executed, the accused is present before the magistrate, and the latter having called and noticed the matter of the charge, proceeds to read the warrant or state the substance of the charge orally. It is then the caution to which the prisoner has a right to insist, and should be given before the examination inadmissible in evidence. If the magistrate has taken official notice of the charge and the accused, and what he does and says, and then the latter must take notice of the magistrate and be under his jurisdiction and control when he is before the court, and the examination is begun. State v. Conrad, 95 N. C. 666, 669.

It is not necessary to competency of an extra judicial confession to a police officer that defendant be warned he is not compelled to answer. State v. Grier, 203 N. C. 556, 166 S. E. 955.

Exact Words of Section Not Required.—It is not necessary that a committing magistrate at the commencement of the examination of a prisoner shall use the precise words of the section in giving the caution therein prescribed, but it is sufficient if there be a substantial compliance with the requirement of the section. State v. Rogers, 112 N. C. 874, 17 S. E. 297; State v. DeGraff, 113 N. C. 688, 18 S. E. 507; State v. King, 162 N. C. 580, 581, 77 S. E. 301.

Same.—What Is Sufficient.—Both the letter and spirit of the statute require that the defendant should be advised of his right to refuse to answer all questions that may be put to him, and that his refusal to answer shall not be used to his prejudice. State v. Parker, 132 N. C. 1014, 43 S. E. 830; State v. Simpson, 133 N. C. 676, 45 S. E. 567; State v. Vaughan, 156 N. C. 615, 71 S. E. 108.

Same.—Insufficient Compliance.—Where the prisoner was brought before the magistrate and he was told by that official that he was charged with a crime, and that if he wanted to tell anything he could do so; but it was just as he chose." This was not sufficient compliance. State v. Rorie, 74 N. C. 148, 150.

Judges Must Find Proper Caution.—Where the record of a committing magistrate merely states that the prisoner was cautioned and the trial court holds such admission competent, with no other evidence before him except this statement, it is error, as the trial judge should have found that if the prisoner was advised he was not compelled to answer all questions that may be put to him, and that his refusal to answer shall not be used to his prejudice. State v. Davis, 175 N. C. 723, 95 S. E. 567.

§ 15-90. Exclusion of witnesses at examination.—
The witnesses produced on the part either of the prisoner or of the prosecution shall not be present at the examination of the prisoner; and while any witness is under examination the magistrate may exclude from the place in which such examination is had all witnesses who have not been examined, and may cause the witnesses to be kept separate and apart from each other until they shall have been examined. (Rev., s. 3195; Code, s. 1149; 1868-9, c. 178, subc. 3, ss. 18; C. S. 4562.)

Cross Reference.—As to exclusion of bystanders in trials for rape, see § 15-106.

Judge Has Discretion to Exclude.—Exclusion is a matter of which the presiding judge must judge, and except in cases of abuse of his discretion, his decision cannot be reversed. Because then, the Lee v. Thornton, 174 N. C. 388, 299, 93 S. E. 788; State v. Hodge, 142 N. C. 676, 682, 55 S. E. 791; State v. Lowry, 170 N. C. 730, 734, 78 S. E. 62; State v. Davis, 173 N. C. 723, 95 S. E. 567.

§ 15-91. Answers in writing, read to prisoner, signed by magistrate.—The answer of the prisoner to the foregoing interrogatories shall be reduced to writing by the magistrate, or under his direction. They shall be read to the prisoner, who may correct or add to them; and when made conformable to what he declares is the truth, shall be certified and signed by the magistrate. (Rev., s. 3196; Code, s. 1147; 1868-9, c. 178, subc. 3, s. 16; C. S. 4563.)

Seal Not Necessary.—This section does not require the examination of a witness to be given by the magistrate to be certified under seal. State v. Presley, 30 N. C. 710.

§ 15-92. Witnesses for defendant examined.—After the examination of the prisoner is complete, his witnesses, if he have any, shall be sworn and examined, and he may have the assistance of counsel in such examination. (Rev., s. 3197; Code, s. 1148; 1868-9, c. 178, subc. 3, s. 17; C. S. 4564.)

§ 15-93. Examination of prisoner not required in misdemeanors.—Nothing contained in the preceding sections shall be construed to require any magistrate, before whom a prisoner charged with a misdemeanor shall be brought, to take the examination of such prisoner, except where such magistrate shall deem it material so to do, or where such examination shall be required by the prisoner. (Rev., s. 3198; Code, s. 1153; 1868-9, c. 178, subc. 3, s. 22; C. S. 4565.)

Cross Reference.—As to the right of the prisoner to be examined as a witness, see § 8-54.

§ 15-94. When prisoner discharged.—If, upon examination of the whole matter, it shall appear to the magistrate either that no offense has been committed by any person or that there is no probable cause for charging the prisoner therewith, he shall discharge such prisoner. (Rev., s. 3199; Code, s. 1151; 1868-9, c. 178, subc. 3, s. 20; C. S. 4566.)

§ 15-95. When prisoner held to answer charge.—If it shall appear that an offense has been committed, and that there is probable cause to believe the prisoner to be guilty thereof, if the offense be bailable, and the prisoner offers sufficient bail, such bail shall be taken and the prisoner discharged; if no bail be offered, or the offense be not bailable, the prisoner shall be committed to prison. (Rev., s. 3200; Code, ss. 1152, 1156; 1868-9, c. 178, subc. 3, ss. 21, 25; C. S. 4567.)

Cross References.—As to bail generally, see § 15-92 et seq. As to commitment, see § 15-125 et seq.

§ 15-96. Witnesses against prisoner recognized.—The magistrate shall bind by recognizances the prosecutor and all the material witnesses against such prisoner to appear and testify at the next term of the court having jurisdiction for the county in which the offense is alleged to have been committed. (Rev., s. 3203; Code, s. 1153; 1868-9, c. 178, subc. 3, s. 21; C. S. 4568.)

§ 15-97. Witnesses required to give security for appearance.—Whenever the magistrate is satisfied by the proof that there is good reason to believe that any such witness will not fulfill the conditions of the recognizance unless security be required, he may order the witness to enter into a recognizance with such sureties as he shall deem meet for his appearance at such court. (Rev., s. 3204; Code, s. 1154; 1868-9, c. 178, subc. 3, s. 23; C. S. 4569.)

Bond for Appearance before Justice Not Permitted.—There is no statute which authorizes a Justice of the Peace or magistrate to require of a witness to give bond for his appearance before such Justice or magistrate. Lovick v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 129 N. C. 427, 434, 40 S. E. 191.

§ 15-98. Investigation in case of lynching.—Whenever the solicitor of any judicial district ascertains that the crime of lynching has been committed in any county in his judicial district, it is his duty to go to such county at the earliest possible moment, and at once institute proceedings for the investigation of the crime before the coroner of the county, some judge of the superior court, or justice of the peace, and for the apprehension of the offender. In the performance of this duty he shall cause to be issued subpoenas or other process to compel the attendance of witnesses and examine such witnesses on oath as to their knowledge or information touching the crime being investigated. In all cases where, upon preliminary investigation, it appears probable that any person is guilty of such crime, it shall be the duty of the coroner, judge or justice before whom the case is heard to bind such person, with good security, for his appearance at the next ensuing term of the superior or criminal court of some county adjoining the county in which the crime was committed for trial, and in default of bail to commit him to the jail of such adjoining county for safekeeping, and all necessary witnesses shall be recognized to appear at such term as witnesses for the state. (Rev., s. 3200; 1893, c. 461, s. 2; C. S. 4570.)

Cross References.—As to venue in case of lynching, see § 15-128. As to cost of investigating lynchings, see § 6-43.

Editor's Note.—Venue in case of lynching is discussed in State v. Lewis, 142 N. C. 620, 55 S. E. 60. See also section 15-128.

§ 15-99. Witnesses in lynching not privileged.—In all investigations before a justice of the peace, coroner, judge, grand jury, or courts and jury, on the trial of the case, as authorized by § 15-98 or under existing law, no person shall be excused from testifying touching his knowledge or information in regard to the offense being investigated, upon the ground that his answer might tend to subject him to prosecution, pains or penalties, or that his evidence might tend to criminate himself; but no discovery made by such witness upon any such examination shall be used against him in any court or in any penal or criminal prosecution, and he shall, when so examined as a witness for the state, be altogether pardoned of any and all participation in any crime arising under the provisions of § 15-98, or under existing law, concerning which he is required to testify. (Rev., ss. 1638, 3201; 1893, c. 461, s. 5; C. S. 4571.)

Editor's Note.—Section 8-55 provides for compelling witnesses to testify in certain criminal investigations and extends immunity to those thus testifying. As those provisions are analogous to the provisions of this section many of the notes thereunder will be useful in considering this section.

For a general discussion of the limits to self-incrimination, see 15 N. C. Law Rev., 229.

Witness Pardoned Though Testimony Does Not Inerimi-
§ 15-100

Proceedings certified to court; used as evidence.—All examinations and recognizances taken pursuant to the provisions of this chapter shall be certified to the court at which the witnesses are bound to appear, within twenty days after the taking of such examinations and recognizances: Provided, that any criminal case tried within twenty days before the sitting of criminal court shall be returned on Saturdays before the court convenes. The examinations taken and subscribed as herein prescribed may be used as evidence before the grand jury, and on the trial of the accused, provided he was present at the taking thereof and had an opportunity to hear the same and to cross-examine the deposing witness, if such witness be dead or so ill as not to be able to travel, or by procuration or connivance of the defendant has removed, from the state, or is of unsound mind. (Rev., s. 3205; Code, s. 1157; 1913, c. 24; 1868-9, c. 178, subc. 3, s. 26; C. S. 4572.)

In General.—Our various statutes relating to the introduction of testimony at the second trial of evidence introduced in the preliminary hearing of a criminal action do not affect the common-law rule, but they are extensions of its principle, making it applicable to the statutory provisions as to the making of the written record, its correction, signature by the witness, etc., have been complied with, to sufficiently identify the record for its admission as evidence upon the second trial. State v. Maynard, 184 N. C. 653, 113 S. E. 682.

Examinations Must Accord with Preceding Sections.—When the examinations are offered as substantive evidence bearing upon the criminal charge, they can only admit evidence under this section, when taken according to the requirements of the preceding sections. State v. Pierce, 91 N. C. 606, 610; State v. Jordan, 110 N. C. 491, 495, 14 S. E. 752.

Reason for Witness' Absence Must Appear.—In order for examiner to offer parol evidence as to what a witness testified to as evidence of a witness who merely does not respond to the examination as substantive evidence it must be shown that witness is absent because of one of reasons given in this section. State v. Pierce, 91 N. C. 606, 610.

No foundation has been laid for the introduction of the evidence of a witness who merely does not respond to the obligations of the subpoena, and is simply proved to have "run away," and not that any effort has been made to secure his presence. State v. King, 86 N. C. 603, 605.

When Parol Evidence Admissible.—On the trial in the superior court it is competent for purposes of contradiction, to introduce parol evidence to show what a witness testified to upon such preliminary examination. State v. Hooper, 151 N. C. 646, 65 S. E. 613; State v. Wright, 75 N. C. 439; State v. Roberts, 81 N. C. 605; State v. Lyon, 81 N. C. 609.

The right to introduce parol evidence as to the confession of a prisoner before an examining magistrate, it must appear affirmatively that there was no examination recorded as required by law. State v. Schenck, 138 N. C. 500, 565, 49 S. E. 917.

§ 15-101. Penalty for failing to return.—If any magistrate shall refuse or neglect to return to the proper court any such examination or recognizance by him taken, he may be compelled by rule of court forthwith to return the same, and in case of disobedience of such rule, may be proceeded against by attachment as for contempt of court as provided by law. (Rev., s. 3206; Code, s. 1158; 1868-9, c. 178, subc. 3, s. 27; C. S. 4573.)

Art. 10. Bail.

§ 15-102. Officers authorized to take bail, before imprisonment.—Officers before whom persons charged with crime, but who have not been committed to prison by an authorized magistrate, may be brought, have power to take bail as follows:

1. Any justice of the supreme court, or a judge of a superior court, in all cases.

2. Any justice of the peace or chief magistrate of any incorporated city or town, in all cases of misdemeanor, and in all cases of felony not capital. (Rev., s. 3209; Code, s. 1160; 1868-9, c. 178, subc. 3, s. 29; 1871-2, c. 37; C. S. 4574.)

Cross References.—As to constitutional provisions against excessive bail, see N. C. Const., Art. I, § 14 and U. S. Const., Amend. VIII. As to authority of the arresting officer to allow bail, see § 15-47. As to arrest and bail in civil cases, see § 1-409 et seq. As to bail after habeas corpus proceeding, see §§ 17-33 and 17-36.

Editor's Note.—In State v. Herndon, 107 N. C. 934, 12 S. E. 268, the meaning and effect of this and the following sections are discussed at pages 939-944 by Merrimon, C. J., in a dissenting opinion.

§ 15-103. Officers authorized to take bail, after imprisonment.—Any justice of the supreme court or any judge of a superior court has power to bail persons committed to prison charged with crime in all cases; any justice of the peace or chief magistrate of any incorporated city or town has the same power in all cases where the punishment is not capital. (Rev., s. 3210; Code, s. 1161; 1868-9, c. 178, subc. 3, s. 30; C. S. 4575.)

§ 15-104. Recognizance filed with the clerk.—Whenever a prisoner is bailed by any officer under § 15-103, such officer shall immediately cause the recognizance taken by him to be filed with the clerk of the superior court of the county to which the prisoner is recognized. (Rev., s. 3211; Code, s. 1162; 1868-9, c. 178, subc. 3, s. 31; C. S. 4576.)

§ 15-105. Bail allowed on preliminary examination.—If the offense charged in the warrant be not punishable with death, the magistrate may take from the person so arrested a recognizance with sufficient sureties for his appearance at the next term of the court having jurisdiction, to be held in the county where the offense is alleged to have been committed. (Rev., s. 3207; Code, s. 1139; 1868-9, c. 178, subc. 3, s. 8; 1871-2, c. 37, s. 1; C. S. 4577.)

Cross References.—As to bail for persons arrested for extradition, see § 15-76. As to bail upon appeal from a superior to the supreme court, see §§ 15-182 and 15-183.

Recognizance Explained.—The taking of a recognizance consists in making and attesting a memorandum of the acknowledgment of a debt due the State, and of the conditions on which it is to be defeated. State v. Smith, 66 N. C. 453; State v. Houston, 74 N. C. 549, 550.

A recognizance is a debt of record acknowledged before a court of competent jurisdiction, with condition to do some particular act. State v. Smith, 66 N. C. 620; State v. White, 164 N. C. 408, 410, 79 S. E. 297.

Same.—A Matter of Record.—A recognizance is a matter of record, and can only be discharged by a record or some thing of equal solemnity. State v. Moody, 69 N. C. 539.

Same.—Need Not Be Executed by Parties.—A recognizance need not be executed by the parties, but is simply acknowledged by the person by the acknowledgment is entered by the court. State v. Edwards, 108 N. C. 463, 471; State v. White, 164 N. C. 409, 410, 79 S. E. 297.

Editor's Note.—In State v. Herndon, 107 N. C. 934, 12 S. E. 268, the meaning and effect of this and the following sections are discussed at pages 939-944 by Merrimon, C. J., in a dissenting opinion.

§ 15-106. Duty of magistrate granting bail.—
Any magistrate taking bail shall certify on the warrant the fact of his having let the defendant to bail, and shall deliver the same as aforesaid with the recognizance taken by him, to the officer or other person having charge of the prisoner, who shall deliver the same without unnecessary delay to the clerk of the court in which the prisoner has been recognized to appear. (Rev., s. 3213; Code, s. 1140; 1888-9, c. 178, subc. 3, s. 9; C. S. 4578.)

When any sheriff or his deputy arrests the body of any person, in consequence of the writ of capias issued to him by the clerk of a court of record on an indictment found, the sheriff or deputy, if the crime is bailable, shall recognize the offender, and take sufficient bail in the nature of a recognizance for his appearing at the next succeeding court of the county where he ought to answer, which recognizance shall be returned with the capias; and the sheriff shall in no case become bail himself.

No sheriff, deputy sheriff, constable, jailer or assistant jailer shall in any case become bail for any prisoner for money or property; nor shall any sheriff, deputy sheriff, constable, jailer or assistant jailer, or their wives become bail as agents for any bonding company or professional bondsmen. Any violation of this paragraph shall constitute a misdemeanor punishable by a fine or by imprisonment in the discretion of the court, or by both such fine and imprisonment; provided that the provisions of this paragraph shall not apply to Caswell, Currituck, Dare, Granville, Greene, Hertford, Hyde, Lenoir, Martin, Moore, Nash, Pamlico, Perquimans, Person, Pitt, Rockingham, Stokes, Transylvania and Warren counties. (Rev., s. 3208; Code, s. 1189; R. C., c. 35, s. 11; 1797, c. 474, s. 4; 1939, c. 47; C. S. 4579.)

Cross Reference.—As to attorney becoming bail, see Art. 11, Part II, § 70.

Editor's Note.—The 1939 amendment added the second paragraph.

§ 15-108. Sheriff may take bail of prisoner in custody.—If any person for want of bail shall be lawfully committed to jail at any time before final judgment, the sheriff, or other officer having him in custody, may take sufficient justified bail and discharge him; and the bail bond shall be regarded, in every respect, as other bail bonds, and shall be returned and sued on in like manner; and the officer taking it shall make special return thereof, with the bond, at the first court which is held after it is taken. (Rev., s. 3228; Code, s. 1232; R. C., c. 11, s. 8; C. S. 4580.)

Upon the continuance of any criminal action returned before any justice of the peace for trial, in which the justice is authorized to take bail on a finding of probable cause or in which he has final jurisdiction, it is the duty of the justice of the peace to take bond for his appearance, payable to the state, on the same being tendered by the accused, with such surety as in his opinion will be sufficient to insure the appearance of the accused for trial at a time and place mentioned in the bond. (Rev., s. 3213; 1859, c. 133; C. S. 4581.)

Cross Reference.—As to mortgage in lieu of security for appearance, see § 109-25.

Section Giving New Remedy.—Before this section was passed a justice of the peace had no power to allow a party accused of an offense of which he had not final jurisdiction to give bail during the postponement of the examination. If the delay at the examination was necessary, the accused was to be kept in the custody of the officer; or the officer might release the accused from the custody of the law until the examination was resumed. State v. Jones, 100 N. C. 438, 6 S. E. 655; State v. Jenkins, 121 N. C. 607, 54, 28 S. E. 413.

Art. 11. Forfeiture of Bail.

§ 15-110. In recognizance to keep the peace.—
Every person who shall have entered into a recognizance to keep the peace shall be liable according to the obligation thereof; and if he fail to appear the court shall forfeit his recognizance and order it to be prosecuted, in the manner provided by law, unless reasonable excuse for his default be given. (Rev., s. 3214; Code, s. 1235; 1886-9, c. 178, subc. 2, s. 10; C. S. 4582.)

Cross Reference.—As to recognizance, see also notes under § 15-105.

Recognizance Binds to Three Things.—It is said by the highest authority that a recognizance (or bail bond) in general binds to three things: (1) to appear and answer to such matters as may be objected to, or to a specified charge or to such matters as may be objected; (2) to stand and abide the judgment of the court; and (3) to depart without leave of the court; and that each of these particulars are distinct and independent. State v. Schenk, 138 N. C. 560, 563, 49 S. E. 917; State v. Eure, 172 N. C. 874, 875, 89 S. E. 788.

When Time and Place Specified.—If the recognizance specify time and place the defendant cannot be held to be in default for not appearing at some other time or place. State v. Houston, 74 N. C. 174, 176.

Thus a recognizance, conditioned that the defendant appear at the court-house in C, on the eighth Monday after the fourth Monday in March, is not forfeited by the defendant's failure to appear on 22 February. State v. Houston, 74 N. C. 174.

Same.—Effect of Subsequent Law.—A recognizable conditioned for the appearance of a party at one day, is not forsworn by his failure to appear on another day, to which the holding of the Court was changed by a law passed after the taking of the recognizance, the law containing no provision that recognizances should be returned and parties appear on that day. State v. Melton, 44 N. C. 436.

When Appearance at Next Term Specified.—A recognizance for the appearance of the defendant at the next term of the Court to be held for a given county is valid and binds the defendant to appear at the court-house, although neither time nor place be specifically named: because every one knows, or is presumed to know, the time and place of holding the court. State v. Houston, 74 N. C. 176.

Same.—If Term Not Held.—A defendant bound over to answer a criminal charge at a regular term of the Superior Court, which term is not held in consequence of the absence of the Judge, is required to attend at an intervening special term subsequently appointed and held. State v. Horton, 123 N. C. 1095, 31 S. E. 216.

Continuance a Remedy Not Release.—The continuance of a criminal case does not release the recognizance given for the appearance of the defendant. State v. Morgan, 136 N. C. 591, 48 S. E. 668.

Proceedings When Recognizance Broken.—Where the condition of a recognizance is broken it is competent for the justice to declare the same to be forfeited and order it to be prosecuted at the court having jurisdiction of the penal sum. State v. Oates, 88 N. C. 668.

Defendant Must Appear Until Discharged.—An appearance bond by its terms, and under the uniform ruling of the Court, contemplates that the defendant appear term after term until he is discharged on a verdict of acquittal or by order of the court. An appearance bond is in lieu of custody in jail, in which case the defendant can only be released until discharged by order of the court. State v. Eure, 172 N. C. 874, 89 S. E. 788.

Agreement by Solicitor Will Not Relieve.—An agreement by solicitor to discharge a defendant if it would become a state's witness against defendant, will § 15-111. When recognition deemed broken.—No recognition taken under this chapter shall be deemed to be broken except in the failure of the principal in such recognizance to appear and answer according to the obligation thereof, unless such principal be convicted of some offense amounting in judgment of law to a breach of such recognizance. (Rev., s. 3215; Code, s. 1227; 1868-9, c. 178, subc. 2, s. 12; C. S. 4583.)

Surety Not Relieved.—The liability of a surety upon an appearance bond is a continuing one until discharged by renewal of bond or production and surrender of principal. (See sections 15-129, 15-132.) He is not released by the principal being drunk and under arrest when his case was called in court and continued, and by the principal having since become a fugitive from justice under charge of a different offense. State v. Holt, 145 N. C. 450, 59 S. E. 64.

§ 15-112. Recognizance prosecuted.—Whenever evidence of such conviction shall be produced in the court in which the recognizance is filed, it shall be the duty of such court to order the recognizance to be prosecuted, and the solicitor shall cause the matter to be proceeded to on the recognizances to be thereupon taken. (Rev., s. 3216; Code, s. 1228; 1868-9, c. 178, subc. 2, s. 13; C. S. 4584.)

Independent Proceeding Unnecessary.—The judgment that the recognizance has been forfeited must be entered in the court, and in the cause, in which said recognizance was filed and it is not required that the prosecution for the forfeiture of the recognizance be begun by an independent proceeding. State v. Sanders, 153 N. C. 624, 626, 69 S. E. 272.

Proceedings When Forfeiture Is Moved for.—When the recognizance is moved for, if all the matters are of record, the judge decides without the intervention of a jury. But when the answer raises an issue of fact, the defendant is entitled to have the matter passed upon by a jury. State v. Sanders, 153 N. C. 624, 626, 69 S. E. 272, and cases cited.

Entry of Forfeiture Not Traversed by Answer to Scire Facias.—The entry of the forfeiture of a recognition in a criminal case cannot be contradicted or traversed by an answer or a plea to a scire facias issued to enforce the forfeiture. State v. Morgan, 136 N. C. 593, 48 S. E. 604.

Effect of Answer to Scire Facias.—Where the recognizance in which the surety is bound, or any part of the recognizances of the court as forfeited, and scire facias is issued to enforce the forfeitures, an answer denying the truth of the record, though informal, is equivalent to a motion to set aside the entry, when that appears to have been the intention of the defendants. State v. Morgan, 136 N. C. 593, 48 S. E. 604.

§ 15-113. Notice of judgment nisi before execution.—No execution shall issue upon a forfeited recognizance, or to collect a fine imposed nisi, until a notice has issued against the person who has forfeited his recognizance or upon whom the fine has been imposed, and his sureties. (Rev., s. 3217; Code, s. 1208; R. C., c. 35, s. 43; 1777, c. 115, s. 48; C. S. 4586.)

Local Modification.—Forsyth: 1915, c. 83.

Notice Must Be Given.—This section has made it imperative that notice be given out execution on a forfeited recognizance, a scire facias shall issue, and judgment be had thereon. State v. Mills, 19 N. C. 552, 554.

Object of Notice.—The object of a scire facias is to notify the surety that the recognizance is forfeited, and to give him the opportunity before the cognize should not have execution acknowledged, and the surety being a party to the recognizance and his liability being primary, direct and equal with that of the principal, judgment absolute may be had against the surety on the scire facias, with more form or substance of the scire facias, upon the appearance of the defendant. State v. Heel Bond Co. v. Krider, 218 N. C. 361, 11 S. E. (2d) 291, followed in State v. Brown, 218 N. C. 368, 11 S. E. (2d) 294.

§ 15-114. What notice must contain.—When any recognizance, acknowledged by a principal and sureties, shall be forfeited by two or more of the recognizors, the notice issued thereon shall be jointly against them all, designating which of them are principals and which sureties, and when they are bound in different sums, stating the amount forfeited by each one, and the clerk shall have no greater fee on such notice than is due when it is issued against one defendant. (Rev., s. 3218; Code, s. 1209; R. C., c. 35, s. 44; 1812, c. 836, s. 1; C. S. 4586.)

§ 15-115. Service of notice.—All notices issuing upon forfeited recognizances shall be executed by leaving a copy with each of the defendants, or at his present place of abode. And in case he cannot be found, and has no known place of abode, and the matter be returned, then a notice shall issue, and on the like return the same shall be deemed duly served. (Rev., s. 3219; Code, s. 1210; R. C., c. 35, s. 43; 1512, c. 836, s. 2; C. S. 4587.)

§ 15-116. Judges may remit forfeited recognizances.—The judges of the superior courts may hear and determine the petition of all persons who conceivably merit relief on their recognizances forfeited; and may lessen, or absolutely remit, the same, and do all and anything therein as they shall deem just and right and consistent with the welfare of the state and the persons praying such relief, as well before as after final judgment entered and execution awarded. (Rev., s. 3220; Code, s. 1205; R. C., c. 35, s. 38; 1788, c. 292, s. 1; C. S. 4588.)

Trial Judge Has Discretion.—The power given by this section is a matter of judicial discretion in the judges below, which cannot be reviewed except for some error in a matter of law or legal inference. State v. Moody, 74 N. C. 73, 75; State v. Morgan, 136 N. C. 593, 48 S. E. 604.

Whether a judgment nisi will be made absolute, or whether it will be stricken out, either upon condition or otherwise, rests in the discretion of the judge of the superior court. State v. Clarke, 222 N. C. 744, 24 S. E. (2d) 619.

Court May Remit Penalty without Setting Aside Forfeiture.—Where a motion is made to set aside the entry of forfeiture of a recognizance, its refusal does not prevent the court from reducing or remitting the penalty. State v. Morgan, 136 N. C. 593, 48 S. E. 604.

Petition and Final Judgment.—The surety on a bail bond may, under this section, present a petition for relief to the judge of the superior court, notwithstanding that a final judgment has been rendered. State v. Bradsher, 189 N. C. 401, 2 S. E. (2d) 340.

The Superior Courts have authority, under this section, to lessen or remit forfeited recognizances, upon the petition of the surety and of the principal before or after final judgment. State v. Moody, 74 N. C. 73, 75.

Solicitor Has No Vested Right to Fee.—Under this section the solicitor has no vested right to his fee under an absolute judgment upon a forfeited recognizance which was subsequently set aside by the court in the exercise of his discretionary power. State v. King, 143 N. C. 677, 57 S. E. 516.

Injunction to Restrain Enforcement of Execution.—A motion by the surety asking that the forfeiture that has been entered upon the appearance bond be stricken out for that defendant had been subsequently arrested under a capias is addressed to the sound discretion of the court in the exercise of its power to remit the forfeiture, and does not serve
§ 15-117. Money refunded by clerk.—The clerk of the superior court, on the remission of any forfeited recognizance which has been paid into his office, shall refund the same, or so much thereof as shall be remitted. (Rev., s. 3221; Code, s. 1206; R. C., c. 35, s. 39; 1705, c. 442, s. 1; C. S. 4599.)

§ 15-118. Money refunded by treasurer.—If the money has been paid to the county treasurer, he shall refund it to the person entitled, on his producing an attested copy of the record from the clerk of the court, certifying that such recognizance has been remitted or lessened, signed with his own proper name, with the seal of the court affixed thereto. (Rev., s. 3222; Code, s. 1207; R. C., c. 35, s. 40; 1705, c. 442, s. 2; C. S. 4500.)

§ 15-119. Forfeiture of bond before justice.—On the failure of the accused to appear at the time and place mentioned in any bond taken by any justice of the peace for a continuance of any cause pending before him, and answer the charge, or, having appeared, on his departing the court without leave thereof first had and obtained, it shall be the duty of the justice of the peace then presiding to enter judgment nisi against the principal and his sureties in the bond for the amount mentioned therein, if the sum does not exceed the sum of two hundred dollars; and immediately issue notice to the principal and the sureties in the bond, giving ten days time, specifying time and place, to appear and show cause, if any they have, why the judgment nisi shall not be made final. (Rev., s. 3223; 1889, c. 133, s. 2; C. S. 4501.)

§ 15-120. Judgment final, rendered and enforced.—If the defendant shall fail to appear and show satisfactory reasons for not complying with the provisions of the bond, it shall then be the duty of the justice of the peace to render a final judgment thereon for the amount of the same, and immediately make and transmit to the clerk of the superior court a transcript thereof, which shall be entered upon the judgment docket of the court, and the clerk shall issue execution on the final judgment against the principal and his sureties for the collection of the amount thereof as in other judgments in behalf of the state. (Rev., s. 3224; 1889, c. 133, s. 3; C. S. 4502.)

§ 15-121. Forfeiture over two hundred dollars before justice.—If the bond shall exceed the sum of two hundred dollars, and the accused shall fail to appear as therein provided to answer the charge, or, having appeared, shall depart the court without leave first had and obtained, it shall be the duty of the justice to have the accused called, and enter upon the bond that the defendant was called and failed to answer, and immediately return the original papers in the case, together with the bond, to the clerk of the court having jurisdiction to try such action, who shall immediately enter the case upon the criminal docket of his court and enter judgment nisi for the amount of the bond, and issue notice to the accused and his sureties to appear at the next term to show cause why the judgment should not be made final and proceeded in as other cases of forfeited bonds in behalf of the state in such court. The entry on the bond by the justice of the peace shall be prima facie evidence that the principal therein had been called and failed to answer. Nothing in this section shall be so construed as to prevent justices of the peace from remitting the penalty of the bond or the right of appeal from the justice of the peace to the superior court by the defendant or his surety. (Rev., s. 3225; 1889, c. 133, s. 4; C. S. 4503.)

§ 15-122. Right of bail to surrender principal.—The bail shall have liberty, at any time before execution awarded against him, to surrender to the court from which the process issued, or to the sheriff having such process to return, during the session, or in the recess of such court, the principal, in discharge of himself; and such bail shall, at any time before such execution awarded, have full power and authority to arrest the body of his principal, and secure him until he shall have an opportunity to surrender him to the sheriff or court as aforesaid; and the sheriff is hereby required to receive such surrender, and hold the body of the defendant in custody as if bail had never been given: Provided, that in criminal proceedings the surrender by the bail, after the recognizance has been forfeited, shall not have the effect to discharge the bail, but the forfeiture may be remitted in the manner provided for. (Rev., s. 3226; Code, s. 1230; R. C., c. 11, s. 5; 1777, c. 115, s. 20; 1848, c. 7; C. S. 4504.)

In General.—The conviction does not, by virtue of its own force, put the defendant in the custody of the court or of the sheriff. This is done, in our practice at least, by an order from the court, given of its own motion or on application of the solicitor, and the court, when it passes judgment upon a defendant and he appeals, can direct that he be not taken into custody immediately, but be permitted to find security for the costs of his appeal and for his appearance at the next term, and if he fails afterwards to appear when called during the term, and perfect his appeal and give the necessary security for his appearance, or in default thereof to surrender to the court or of the sheriff, but, to enter judgment, he may be called, and his forfeitures entered. State v. Schenck, 138 N. C. 500, 564, 49 S. E. 917.

Compliance with Section Protects Surety.—Where a defendant surrenders his principal to the open court in discharge of himself as bail, he is acting in the clear exercise of an undoubted legal right. Under this section the entry of the fact made on the record, the record, the Court was therefore proper, and the court should not have by its own action, deprive the defendant of the benefit of it. Underwood v. McLaurin, 49 N. C. 17, 18.

When Condition of Bond Performed.—The condition of a bond is not performed by the appearance, conviction, and sentence of the defendant. The conviction does not, by virtue of its own force, put the defendant in the custody of the state or of the sheriff; and the surety the defendant must submit to such punishment as shall be adjudged. State v. Schenck, 138 N. C. 506, 49 S. E. 917.

Discharge of Bail.—The arrest of defendant in a criminal [ 729 ] proceeding upon a capias and his trial and conviction does not discharge the original forfeiture of his appearance bond, and judgment absolute against the surety may be entered upon the sc. fa. after defendant has been arrested under the capias. This section has no application, since in such case the defendant is not arrested and surrendered by the surety, and further, even if the statute were applicable, it provides that surrender by the bail after re- cognizance is forfeited does not discharge the bail, but is merely addressed to the discretionary power of the court to refuse or remit the for- feiture. Tar Heel Bond Co. v. Krider, 218 N. C. 361, 11 S. E. (2d) 291, followed in State v. Brown, 218 N. C. 365, 11 S. E. (2d) 294.

Bail Not Exonerated During Defendant's Detention in Prison on Other Charges.—Upon the failure of defendant to appear when his case was called, judgment of the court, after re- cognizance is forfeited does not discharge the bail, but is merely addressed to the discretionary power of the court to refuse or remit the for- feiture, that surety had secured capias and filed same with the officials of the state's prison so that defendant would be delivered to the court to stand trial upon the expiration of his sentence. Held: Notwithstanding that § 1-433 relates only to bonds executed in arrest and bail pro- cedure, the bail will not be exonerated during defendant's detention in prison on other charges, and such surety may not be discharged by deliver- ing the body of defendant, and judgment absolute against the surety should be stricken out and hearing on the sc. fa. continued until the surety has had opportunity to pro- duce defendant after his release from prison. State v. El- ler, 218 N. C. 365, 11 S. E. (2d) 295.

§ 15-123. New bail given upon surrender; liability of sheriff.—Any person surrendered in the manner specified in § 15-122, shall have liberty, at any time before final judgment against him, to give bail; and in case of such surrender, the sheriff shall take the bail bond or recognizance to the succeeding court; and in case the sheriff shall release such person without bail, or the bail returned be held insufficient, on exception taken, the same term to which such bail bond shall be re- turned, and allowed by the court, the sheriff, hav- ing due notice thereof in criminal cases, shall for- feit to the state the sum of one hundred dollars, to be recovered on motion in like manner as forfeitures for not returning process, and be subject to be in- dicted for misdemeanor in office; and it shall be the duty of the prosecuting officer to collect the for- feiture; and, in case of a release, the sheriff shall be liable for an escape, and may be prosecuted and punished as provided for in the chapter entitled Criminal Law. (Rev. s. 3227; Code, s. 1231; R. C., c. 11, s. 6; 1897, c. 40; C. S. 4030.)

Cross References.—As to criminal liability for an escape, see § 14-239. As to recovery of the penalty, see § 162-14 and annotation thereto.

§ 15-124. Defenses open to bail. —Every matter which would entitle the principal to be discharged from arrest may be pleaded by the bail in exon- eration of his liability. (Rev. s. 3229; Code, s. 1233; R. C., c. 11, s. 9; C. S. 4506.)

Art. 12. Commitment to Prison.

§ 15-125. Order of commitment.—Every commit- ment to a person charged with crime shall state: 1. The name of the person charged. 2. The character of the offense with which he is charged. 3. The name and office of the magistrate committing him. 4. The manner in which he may be discharged; if upon giving recognizance or bail, the amount of the recognizance, the condition on the performance of which it shall be discharged, and the persons or magistrate before whom the bail may justify.

5. The court before which the prisoner shall be sent for trial. (Rev. s. 3230; Code, s. 1163; 1868-9, c. 178, subc. 3, s. 32; C. S. 4597.)

Cross Reference.—As to order of commitment after judg- ment by a justice, see § 15-159.

Verbal Order Invalid. —A verbal order of a justice of the peace sending a person to prison before or after the examination on the warrant, is not a sufficient authority for the officer to whom the order is given. State v. James, 78 N. C. 415.

§ 15-126. Commitment to county jail.—All persons committed to prison before conviction shall be committed to the jail of the county in which the examination is had, or to that of the county in which the offense is charged to have been com- mitted: Provided, if the jails of these counties are un- safe, or injurious to the health of prisoners, the committing magistrate may commit to the jail of any other convenient county. And every sheriff or jailer to whose jail any person shall be committed by any court or magistrate of competent jurisdic- tion shall receive such person and give a re- ceipt for him, and be bound for his safe-keeping as prescribed by law. (Rev. s. 3231; Code, s. 1184; 1868-9, c. 178, subc. 2, s. 33; C. S. 4598.)

§ 15-127. Commitment of witnesses.—If any witness required to enter into a recognizance, either with or without sureties, shall refuse to com- ply with such order, it shall be the duty of such magistrate to commit him to prison until he shall comply with such order, or be otherwise dis- charged according to law. (Rev. s. 3232; Code, s. 1155; 1868-9, c. 178, subc. 3, s. 24; C. S. 4599.)

Cross Reference.—As to when witnesses are required to give security for appearance, see § 15-97.

Art. 13. Venue.

§ 15-128. In case of lynching,—The superior court of any county which adjoins the county in which the crime of lynching shall be committed shall have full and complete jurisdiction over the crime and the offender to the same extent as if the crime had been committed in the bounds of such adjoining county; and whenever the solicitor of the district has information of the commission of such a crime, it shall be his duty to furnish such information to the grand jury of all adjoining counties to the one in which the crime was com- mitted from time to time until the offenders are brought to justice. (Rev. s. 3333; 1893, c. 461, s. 4; C. S. 4600.)

Cross References.—As to venue in civil cases, see § 1-76 et seq. As to removal for fair trial, see § 1-84 et seq.

Section Constitutional. — This section is a constitutional exercise of legislative power. State v. Lewis, 142 N. C. 626, 55 S. E. 600; State v. Rumpf, 178 N. C. 717, 190 S. E. 622.

Purporte of Section. —Owing to the prejudice or sympathy which in cases of lynching usually and naturally pervades the county where that offense is committed, the General Assembly, upon grounds of public policy, deemed it wise to transfer the investigation of the charge to the grand jury of an adjoining county. State v. Lewis, 142 N. C. 626, 630, 55 S. E. 600.

Bill Need Not Be Found In County Where Offense Com- mitted.—In an indictment for lynching it was error to quash the bill on the ground that it was found in the county where it was alleged that the bill that the offense charged was not committed in the county in which the bill was found, but in an adjoining county. State v. Lewis, 142 N. C. 626, 55 S. E. 600.

§ 15-129. In offenses on waters dividing coun- ties.—When any offense is committed on any water, or water-course, whether at high or low water, which water or water-course, or the sides or shores thereof, divides counties, such offense may be dealt with, inquired of, tried and determined, and punished at the discretion of the court, in either of the two counties which may be nearest to the place where the offense was committed. (Rev., s. 3233; Code, s. 1193; R. C., c. 35, s. 24; C. S. 4601.)

Cross Reference.—As to venue of civil offenses committed on waters, see § 1-77.

§ 15-130. Assault in one county, death in another.—In all cases of felonious homicide when the assault has been made in one county within the state, and the person assaulted dies in any other county thereof, the offender shall be indicted and punished for the crime in the county wherein the assault was made. (Rev., s. 3235; Code, s. 1190; R. C., c. 35, s. 27; 1831, c. 22, s. 1; C. S. 4602.)

No New Offense Created by Section.—This section received a judicial construction in S. v. Dunkley, 25 N. C. 116, and it was held that it did not create any new offense, but merely removed a difficulty which existed as to the place of the trial. State v. Hall, 114 N. C. 909, 19 S. E. 602.

This section and the following were part of chapter 22 of the Public Laws 1831 and hence this construction applies equally to the latter section as well. Note. For meaning of "assault," see note under following section.

§ 15-131. Assault in this state, death in another.—In all cases of felonious homicide, when the assault has been made within this state, and the person assaulted dies without the limits thereof, the offender shall be indicted and punished in this state. (Rev., s. 3236; Code, s. 1197; R. C., c. 35, s. 28; 1831, c. 22, s. 2; C. S. 4603.)

Section Is Valid.—The validity of sections similar to this seems to be undisputed, and indeed it has been held in many jurisdictions that such legislation is but in accordance of the common law. State v. Hall, 114 N. C. 909, 913, 19 S. E. 602.

No new offense created by section, see note to preceding section.

Meaning of "Assault."—The assault mentioned in this section and the preceding section evidently means not a mere attempt, but such an injury inflicted in this State as he would be if the effect had taken place in another State. State v. Hall, 114 N. C. 909, 920, 19 S. E. 602.

Acts Causing Death Must Take Place in State.—This section plainly contemplates that every part of the offense, except the death, must have occurred in this State. State v. Hall, 114 N. C. 909, 920, 19 S. E. 602.

Shooting Person in Adjoining State.—See section 15-132 and note thereto.

§ 15-132. Person in this state injuring one in another.—If any person, being in this state, unlawfully and willfully puts in motion a force from the effect of which any person is injured while in another state, the person so setting such force in motion shall be guilty of the same offense in this state as he would be if the effect had taken place within this state. (Rev., s. 3237; 1895, c. 169; C. S. 4604.)

Editor's Note.—This section was passed in 1895 as a result of the decision in State v. Hall, 114 N. C. 899, 19 S. E. 602. In that case, decided in 1894, the defendants while in North Carolina shot across the State line and killed a person in Tennessee. It was held that they were not guilty of the crime charged in the absence of a statute like the present. Section 15-131 was discussed and held not applicable since the stroke producing death was given not in North Carolina but in Tennessee.

§ 15-133. In county where death occurs.—If a mortal wound is given or other violence or injury inflicted or poison is administered on the high seas or land, either within or without the limits of this state, by means whereof death ensues in any county thereof, the offense may be prosecuted and punished in the county where the death happens. (Rev., s. 3238; 1891, c. 68; C. S. 4605.)

Section Constitutional.—This section is constitutional and applies to foreigners as well as to citizens of this State who have inflicted mortal wounds elsewhere. State v. Caldwell, 115 N. C. 794, 20 S. E. 533.

§ 15-134. Improper venue met by plea in abatement; procedure.—Because the boundaries of many counties are either undetermined or unknown, by reason whereof high offenses go unpunished; therefore, for the more effectual prosecution of offenses committed on land near the boundaries of counties, in the prosecution of all offenses it shall be deemed and taken as true that the offense was committed in the county in which by the indictment it is alleged to have taken place, unless the defendant shall deny the same by plea in abatement, the truth whereof shall be duly verified on oath or otherwise both as to substance and fact, wherein shall be set forth the proper county in which the supposed offense, if any, was committed; whereupon the court may, on motion of the state, commit the defendant, who may enter into recognizance, as in other cases, to answer the offense in the county averred by his plea to be the proper county; and, on his prosecution in that county, it shall be deemed, conclusively, to be the proper county. But if the state, upon the plea aforesaid, will join issue, and the matter be found for the defendant, he shall have his right to set into recognizance as in other cases to answer the offense in the county averred by his plea to be the proper county, provided the offense be bailable; and, if not bailable, he shall be committed for trial in the county; and, if it be found for the state, the court in all offenses or misdemeanors shall proceed to pronounce judgment against the defendant, as upon conviction; and, in all cases of felony, the defendant shall be at liberty to plead to the indictment, and be tried on his plea of not guilty. (Rev., s. 3239; Code, s. 1194; R. C., c. 35, s. 25; C. S. 4606.)

Cross Reference.—As to venue in indictment for stealing rides on trains, see § 60-104. As to venue in indictment for receiving stolen goods, see § 14-71. As to venue in case of discrimination against the Atlantic and North Carolina Railroad, see § 60-8. As to venue in case of bribery of baseball players, see § 14-378. As to venue in trial of accessory, see §§ 14-5 and 14-7. As to venue in cases of bigamy, see § 14-183. As to sale and delivery of intoxicating liquors, see § 18-9. As to offenses by officers of state institutions, see § 140-116. As to venue in cases of bastardy, see § 49-5. As to venue in cases of bigamy, see § 14-183.

Purpose of Section.—This section was evidently intended to provide relief in difficulties originating in doubt entertained in good faith as to the county in which the offense was committed. It was not intended to modify the common law beyond the reasonable scope of its manifest purpose. State v. Mitchell, 202 N. C. 439, 445, 163 S. E. 581.

Power of Legislature to Enact.—In order to meet the exigencies of the case, the Legislature enacted § 15-134. The section is very broad in its terms. State v. Outerbridge, 82 N. C. 618, 622.

Old Rule Reversed.—It reverses the rule which seems to have obtained on the trial of criminal cases before its enactment. State v. Lyle, 117 N. C. 799, 801, 33 S. E. 476.

Applies to All Crimes.—In felonies, as in misdemeanors, the objection can only be taken by plea in abatement. State v. Outerbridge, 82 N. C. 618, 622.

The offenses referred to in this section are those committed within the borders of the State, for our courts cannot take cognizance of the violation of the criminal laws of other States; and would have no right to recognize offenses and try them before their judicial tribunals. State v. Mitchell, 83 N. C. 674, 676.

Laws Regulating Jurisdiction Not a Part of Offense.—Laws conferring, withdrawing or limiting jurisdiction over particular offenses do not become a constituent part of the offenses to which they apply. State v. Lewis, 142 N. C. 626, 630, 55 S. E. 600; State v. Allen, 107 N. C. 805, 811 S. E. 106.

The crime of offering a bribe to a juror is committed in the county where the offer is communicated to the juror, and the venue is the county in which the juror was serving and in which the defendant's offer was communicated to him by his wife, although defendant communicated with the juror after the offer was made and in the county of his residence. State v. Noland, 204 N. C. 329, 168 S. E. 412.

Objection to Venue Waived.—Objection to venue is waived unless objection is taken in time by plea in abatement. State v. Outerbridge, 123 N. C. 710, 31 S. E. 219; State v. Holder, 133 N. C. 719, 711, 45 S. E. 862.

Thus where a prisoner is charged with killing the deceased in the county which the indictment is found, the State need not prove that the offense was committed in that county. Such allegation is to be taken as true unless the prisoner denies the same by plea in abatement. State v. Williams, 81 N. C. 540, 541.

Plea in Abatement.—An indictment charging that defendant had offered a bribe to a grand juror to influence him by his wife, although defendant communicated with the juror after the offer was made and in the county of his residence, was held not subject to defendant's plea in abatement on the ground that the evidence stated, and present matters which will defeat the further prosecution of the present action, if proven or admitted. State v. Chappell, 148 N. C. 327, 62 S. E. 411.

Failure to Mark Names of Witnesses on Bill.—Section 15-138 provides that the record showed that defendant was bound over to the county court of Craven county with no record of his having been tried in that court or that there was any appeal pending by him by his wife, although defendant communicated with the juror after the offer was made and in the county of his residence, was held not subject to defendant's plea in abatement on the ground that the evidence stated, and present matters which will defeat the further prosecution of the present action, if proven or admitted. State v. Chappell, 148 N. C. 327, 62 S. E. 411.
and examined before the jury is directory merely, and the omission of the foregoing to comply therewith is no ground for quashing the bill, where the proof is that the witnesses were sworn. State v. Hines, 84 N. C. 810.

§ 15-139. Subpoena for witnesses on presentment.—In issuing subpoenas for witnesses whose names are indorsed on presentments made by the grand jury, the clerk of the court shall name therein the first Tuesday of the term of court as the time for such witnesses to appear and give evidence. And no clerk shall issue a subpoena for any such witness to appear on Monday, except upon written order of the solicitor of the district. (1913, c. 168; C. S. 4609.)

Art. 15. Indictment.

§ 15-140. Waiver of bill of indictment.—No waiver of the finding and return into court of a bill of indictment in any criminal action shall be allowed in the superior courts of this state except in cases wherein the offense charged is a misdemeanor or which does not include or contain the element of fraud, deceit or malice; nor shall such waiver be made in the case of an indictment upon a plea of guilty, or a submission, or a plea of nolo contendere by the defendant in the same. No such waiver of a bill of indictment shall be allowed by the court unless by the consent of the defendant's counsel in such action, who shall be one either employed by the defendant to defend him in the action or one appointed by the court to examine into the defendant's case and report as to the same to the court; which service by an attorney so appointed by the court shall be rendered without fee or reward. (1907, c. 71; C. S. 4610.)

Section Constitutional.—This section, authorizing the waiver of an indictment in the Superior Court by the defendant bound over from an inferior court, is constitutional and valid. Constitution, Art. IV, sec. 13. State v. Jones, 181 N. C. 543, 186 S. E. 827.

§ 15-141. Bills returned by foreman except in capital cases.—Grand juries shall return all bills of indictment in open court through their acting foreman, except in capital felonies, when it shall be necessary for the entire grand jury, or a majority of them, to return their bills of indictment in open court in a body. (Rev., s. 3242; 1889, c. 29; C. S. 4611.)

Indictment to Be Returned in Open Court.—It is the returning of the bill or indictment, publicly, in open court and its being there recorded, that makes it effectual. State v. Cox, 28 N. C. 440.

Indictment Need Not Be Signed.—It has been often held that an indictment need not necessarily be signed by any one. State v. Mace, 86 N. C. 668; State v. Pitt, 166 N. C. 268, 269, 80 S. E. 1000; State v. Cox, 28 N. C. 440, 446. No endorsement of the name of the person who prepares the same is essential to the validity of an indictment, which has been duly returned into court by the grand jury under this section, and entered upon its records. State v. Avant, 202 N. C. 680, 683, 133 S. E. 896.

§ 15-142. Substance of judicial proceedings set forth.—In every indictment, information, or impeachment, which by law may be necessary to set forth at length the judicial proceedings had in any case then or formerly pending in any court, civil or military, or before any justice of the peace, it is sufficient to set forth the substance only of the proceedings, or the substance of such part thereof as makes, or helps to make, the offense prosecuted. (Rev., s. 3243; Code, s. 1184; R. C. C. 35, s. 15; C. S. 4612.)

Power of Legislature.—The legislature has the undoubted right to modify old forms of bills of indictment, or establish new forms, provided the grand jury is to be afforded the defendant with reasonable certainty of the nature of the crime of which he stands charged. State v. Harris, 145 N. C. 455, 458, 59 S. E. 115.

Purpose of Section.—The purpose of this section and section 15-153 is to render unnecessary merely useless refinements and technicalities in pleading that once prevailed. State v. Murphy, 101 N. C. 697, 701, 8 S. E. 142.

Object of an Indictment.—The object of the offices of an indictment is to inform the defendant with sufficient certainty of the charge against him to enable him to prepare his defense. State v. Gardner, 107 N. C. 322, 334, 12 S. E. 119.

Refinements Abolished.—The technical and useless refinements of the common law, formerly required in drawing bills of indictment in criminal cases, have been all abolished by statute 1889, c. 29; State v. Hawley, 18 N. C. 433, 437; State v. Arnold, 107 N. C. 861, 864, 11 S. E. 990.

Statement Required.—In every indictment, the facts and circumstances must be stated with such certainty that the defendant may judge whether they constitute an indictable offense or not. State v. Lewis, 93 N. C. 581. And thus where an indictment sets forth the substance of the offense charged "in a plain, intelligible and explicit manner," with a fullness of details as to the nature of the crime charged, and it gave the defendant such information as was necessary to enable him to make defense on the trial and to prepare a subsequent prosecution, it is sufficient under this section and section 15-153. State v. Murphy, 101 N. C. 697, 701, 8 S. E. 142.

Omission of Caption Does Not Vitiate.—While every indictment properly should have a caption, it is no part of the indictment, and its omission does not vitiate the proceeding. State v. Waaden, 4 N. C. 596; State v. Brickell, 8 N. C. 354; State v. Lane, 26 N. C. 113; State v. Dula, 9 N. C. 668; State v. Arnold, 107 N. C. 861, 864, 11 S. E. 990.

Mistake in Caption.—A misrecital of the county in the caption is not ground for arrest of judgment. State v. Ragland, 65 N. C. 463; State v. Arnold, 107 N. C. 861, 864, 11 S. E. 990.

Signature of Solicitor Not Requisite.—It is regular and orderly to have the bill to be signed by the solicitor, but such signing is not essential to its validity. State v. Mace, 86 N. C. 668; State v. Cox, 28 N. C. 440; State v. Arnold, 107 N. C. 861, 864, 11 S. E. 990.

§ 15-143. Bill of particulars.—In all indictments when further information not required to be set out therein is desirable for the better defense of the accused, the court, upon motion, may, in its discretion, require the solicitor to furnish a bill of particulars of such matters. (Rev., s. 3244; C. S. 4013.)

In General.—This provision as to a bill of particulars had previously prevailed as to civil actions, and was by this section made expressly applicable to criminal cases, to which the court had applied it in State v. Brady, 107 N. C. 622, 13 S. E. 335. State v. Stephens, 170 N. C. 745, 748, 87 S. E. 111.

Purpose of Section.—This section intended to make all indictments alike in regard to dispensing with the insertion of the means and methods by which any offense was committed. State v. Brookens, 170 N. C. 745, 748, 87 S. E. 111.

Object of Bill of Particulars.—The whole object of a bill of particulars is to enable the defendant to properly prepare his defense. The bill is for the use of the court, and is not a substitute for the defendant's right to a fair opportunity to procure his witnesses or prepare his defense. State v. Seaboard Air Line R. Co., 149 N. C. 508, 511, 74 S. E. 377.

State Confined to Particulars Stated.—The granting of a bill of particulars on an indictment for a criminal offense is primarily to inform the accused of the charges against him, and secondarily to enable him to prepare his defense. The bill does not afford defense to the particular offense charged as to other criminal offenses not included in the bill to show the scietor or quo animo in relation to the particulars enumerated and coming within the scope of those generally charged in the indictment. State v. Waldorf, 194 N. C. 335, 139 S. E. 608.

Former Details Not Now Charged in Indictment.—It is no longer charged whether a murder was committed with a knife or a pistol, nor the length and breadth and depth of a wound, and the same is true as to all other offenses. In lieu of this, we have adopted this section which provides for a bill of particulars. State v. Stephens, 170 N. C. 745, 747, 87 S. E. 131.

What Bill Will Not Supply.—A bill of particulars will not supply any matter required to be charged in the indictment, as an ingredient of the offense. State v. Long, 143 N. C. 670, 671, 676, 57 S. E. 349. See also, State v. Johnson, 220 N. C. 773, 782, 18 S. E. (2d) 358 (dis. op.).

The deficiency of a bill of particulars cannot supply a deficiency in an indictment when the language of the indictment fails to adequately charge the essential concomitants of the offense. State v. Cole, 202 N. C. 592, 163 S. E. 594. See also, State v. Johnson, 202 N. C. 592, 163 S. E. 594.

Granting Order Is within Court's Discretion.—The granting of an order for a bill of particulars is in the discretion of the court, and the question of sufficient compliance in an indictment when the language of the indictment fails to adequately charge the essential concomitants of the offense. State v. Cole, 202 N. C. 592, 163 S. E. 594. See also, State v. Johnson, 202 N. C. 592, 163 S. E. 594.

Cross Reference.—As to homicide generally, see §§ 14-17, 14-18 and notes thereto.

Section Constitutional.—The power of the Legislature to prescribe the form of indictment for murder is upheld in State v. Moore, 104 N. C. 743, 10 S. E. 183; State v. Brown, 106 N. C. 645, 10 S. E. 976; State v. Arnold, 107 N. C. 861, 863, 11 S. E. 990.

Willfully Not Necessary in Indictment for Murder.—The word “willfully” is not essential to the validity of an indictment for murder, nor is it essential to common law nor under this section. State v. Arnold, 107 N. C. 861, 863, 11 S. E. 990; State v. Kirkman, 104 N. C. 911, 10 S. E. 312; State v. Harris, 106 N. C. 682, 11 S. E. 377, cited and approved.

What Is Sufficient under Section.—This section declares an indictment containing certain words “sufficient,” but it does not make those words essential, nor by any reasonable construction can it be held to make technical and “sacred” words necessary to the indictment. State v. Fogleman, 204 N. C. 401, 168 S. E. 536.

Insufficient for Failure to Allege Whether the Person Killed Was a Man or Woman.—An indictment for murder charged, a man or woman, or whether the mortal wound was inflicted by stabbing, shooting or killing. State v. Pate, 121 N. C. 707, 709, 86 S. E. 997. The omission of the word “wound” in an indictment for murder was held not fatal, long before the adoption of the present short form of indictment for murder under this section. State v. Suiter, 199 N. C. 199, 201, 154 S. E. 72.

§ 15-144. Essentials of bill for homicide.—In indictments for murder and manslaughter, it is not necessary to allege matter not required to be proved on the trial; but in the body of the indictment, after naming the person accused, and the county of his residence, the date of the offense, the averment “with force and arms,” and the county of the alleged commission of the offense, as is now usual, it is sufficient in describing murder to allege that the accused person feloniously, willfully, and of his malice aforethought, did kill and murder (naming the person killed), and concluding as is now required by law; and it is sufficient in describing manslaughter to allege that the accused feloniously and willfully did kill and slay (naming the person killed), and concluding as aforesaid; and any bill of indictment containing the averments and allegations herein named shall be good and sufficient in law as an indictment for murder or manslaughter, as the case may be. (Rev., s. 3245; 1887, c. 58; C. S. 4614.)

Motion to Quash Not Proper Remedy.—Where the criminal indictment sufficiently charges all the essential facts of murder as required by this section, is sufficient to sustain the court's charge based upon the evidence in the case relative to murder committed in the perpetration of robbery or other felony. State v. Fogleman, 157 N. C. 619, 621, 72 S. E. 1071; State v. Kirkman, 104 N. C. 911, 10 S. E. 312; State v. Harris, 106 N. C. 682, 11 S. E. 377, cited and approved.

Statement of Facts. —An indictment does not constitute murder in the first degree, and defendant's remedy, if he desires more specific information is by motion for a bill of particulars under this section, but a motion in arrest of judgment after verdict where he attempts to reserve his judgment for perjury is in ignorance of the particulars of the offense, as the case may be. State v. Fogleman, 157 N. C. 619, 621, 72 S. E. 1071; State v. Kirkman, 104 N. C. 911, 10 S. E. 312; State v. Harris, 106 N. C. 682, 11 S. E. 377, cited and approved.

Insufficient for Failure to Allege Whether the Person Killed Was a Man or Woman.—An indictment for murder charged, a man or woman, or whether the mortal wound was inflicted by stabbing, shooting or killing. State v. Pate, 121 N. C. 707, 709, 86 S. E. 997. The omission of the word “wound” in an indictment for murder was held not fatal, long before the adoption of the present short form of indictment for murder under this section. State v. Suiter, 199 N. C. 199, 201, 154 S. E. 72.

Insufficient for Failure to Allege Whether the Person Killed Was a Man or Woman.—An indictment for murder charged, a man or woman, or whether the mortal wound was inflicted by stabbing, shooting or killing. State v. Pate, 121 N. C. 707, 709, 86 S. E. 997.
Variance in Time Not Fatal.—Where an indictment for murder charged the killing to have taken place December fifth, while the defendant showed on trial that the decedent was wounded on that day, he died three days thereafter, and before the bill of indictment was found. Held, that the variance was not fatal. State v. Pate, 121 N. C. 659, 28 S. E. 554.

Indictment under Section Held to Give Full Information of Crime.—Where an indictment was drawn according to this section the defendant was given full information of the change on which he was being tried. There was nothing indefinite or uncertain about the bill of indictment. It was in the alternative, but this was merely two counts in one bill of indictment. State v. Puckett, 211 N. C. 65, 190 S. E. 575.

It is necessary to prove in what court, or before whom, the oath was taken (averring such court or person to have competent authority to administer the same), together with the proper averments to falsify the matter wherein the perjury is assigned, without setting forth the bill, answer, information, indictment, declaration, or any part of any record or proceedings, either in law or equity, other than aforesaid, and without setting forth the commission or authority of the court or person before whom the perjury was committed. In indictments for perjury the following form shall be sufficient, to wit:

"The jurors for the state, on their oath, present, that A, of , , County, did unlawfully commit perjury upon the trial of an action in , court, in , County, wherein , was plaintiff and , was defendant, by falsely asserting, on oath (or solemn affirmation) (here set out the statement or statements alleged to be false), knowing the same to be false, or that the same is necessary to prove in what court, or before whom, the oath was taken. State v. Peters, 107 N. C. 876, 12 S. E. 74; State v. Hawley, 186 N. C. 435, 119 S. E. 888 overruling State v. Cline, 150 N. C. 854, 64 S. E. 591; State v. Gates, 107 N. C. 832, 12 S. E. 319. "Perjury feloniously committed upon a trial in the Court of a Justice of the Peace." State v. Bunting, 118 N. C. 1200, 24 S. E. 118 and State v. Shaw, 117 N. C. 764, 23 S. E. 246, which were indictments for perjury, was expressly held that the term "feloniously" was required to make a conviction of perjury certain.

Both of them, too, were on indictments instituted after the adoption of this section which established the form for indictment for perjury. The court, however, in rendering these decisions was evidently not conversant with the statute above referred to, for the reason probably that it does not appear in the general Code of 1883, and was, therefore, not called to its attention; the statutes having been enacted at a subsequent session and being chapter 83, Laws of 1889. State v. Harris, 145 N. C. 456, 458, 59 S. E. 115.

But this section does not make the word "feloniously" a part of the bill, and it does not appear in the form of acts, and the same, is, therefore, no longer required. State v. Harris, 145 N. C. 456, 457, 59 S. E. 115; State v. Holder, 151 N. C. 809, 59 S. E. 179.

Sufficient Avornment of Jurisdiction.—The jurisdiction of the court of the peace at the examination whereof the alleged perjury was committed is sufficient to aver where it occurred, that the justice had power to administer the oath. State v. Davis, 69 N. C. 495.

Style of the Court.—The style of the court before which the perjury is alleged to have been committed must be legally set forth. State v. Street, 5 N. C. 155, 3 Am. Dec. 638.

Proceedings Not Set Out.—Where an indictment for perjury alleges that the false oath was taken before a justice of the peace, the provisions in a bill of indictment are necessary to set forth the proceedings in which the false oath was alleged to have been made. State v. Roberson, 98 N. C. 544, 189 S. E. 511.

Indictment Not需 Charge Materiality of False Testimony.—Prior to the adoption of this section it was settled that in indictments for perjury the indictment must charge that the false testimony was material to the issue. See State v. Davis, 69 N. C. 495; State v. Fordham, 211 N. C. 413, 190 S. E. 758; State v. Godwin, 211 N. C. 419, 190 S. E. 761; State v. Smith, 211 N. C. 796, 20 S. E. (2d) 313.

No Change In Proof Required.—This section has merely applied in State v. Kirkman, 208 N. C. 179, 182 S. E. 498; State v. Dills, 210 N. C. 178, 193 S. E. 677; State v. Hudson, 213 N. C. 199, 10 S. E. (2d) 640, 61 S. B. 522.

It is necessary to prove in what court, or before whom, the oath was taken (averring such court or person to have competent authority to administer the same), together with the proper averments to falsify the matter wherein the perjury is assigned, without setting forth the bill, answer, information, indictment, declaration, or any part of any record or proceedings, either in law or equity, other than aforesaid, and without setting forth the commission or authority of the court or person before whom the perjury was committed. In indictments for perjury the following form shall be sufficient, to wit:

"The jurors for the state, on their oath, present, that A, of , , County, did unlawfully commit perjury upon the trial of an action in , court, in , County, wherein , was plaintiff and , was defendant, by falsely asserting, on oath (or solemn affirmation) (here set out the statement or statements alleged to be false), knowing the same to be false, or that the same is necessary to prove in what court, or before whom, the oath was taken."

Cross Reference.—As to perjury generally, see § 14-209 et seq.

In General.—A person charged with perjury must be indicted by the grand jury as the offense is a felony. A trial without an indictment is contrary to the Constitution, Art. 1, sec. 12. State v. Hyman, 164 N. C. 411, 79 S. E. 284.

But a defendant certainly can derive no just benefit from the insertion in the charge of the minuteness of what would constitute perjury. The use of such phraseology was indeed always illogical, and the experience of ages has been that it served not so much to enlighten the defendant as to hinder the trial of the cause upon its merits and very often caused a miscarriage of justice. State v. Cline, 146 N. C. 847, 64 S. E. 591, though decided in 1909 evidently overlooked the provisions of this section as well as the cases previously construing it and held in accordance with the former view that the materiality of the false testimony must be charged in the indictment. This case was expressly overruled by the court in State v. Hawley, supra.

"The said statement to be false," or that "he was ignorant whether or not said statement was true," is defective, the court should not quash it, but the defendant should be held until a proper indictment is had. State v. Flowers, 12 N. C. 519.

Variance Held Fatal.—Where an indictment for perjury charged that the false oath was taken at one term of a court in a trial between A and B and the records of that court showed that at a term other than the one alleged in the indictment there was such a trial, the court should not quash it, but the defendant should be held until a proper indictment is had. State v. Lewis, 93 N. C. 581.

Not Quashed for Omissions. — Although an indictment for perjury, which fails to allege that the defendant "knew the said statement to be false," or that "he was ignorant whether or not said statement was false," is defective, the court should not quash it, but the defendant should be held until a proper indictment is had. State v. Flowers, 12 N. C. 519.

Surplusage. — Where perjury was alleged to have been committed in the trial of a "suit, controversy, or investigation," without a definite statement of the nature of the proceeding, the words, "suit, controversy, or investigation," under this section, may be regarded as surplusage in a bill of indictment charging perjury, and a motion to quash upon these grounds therefrom in a court of justice before the bill of indictment has been cast is not a ground for quashing the nature of the proceeding will not be sustained. State v. Hawley, 186 N. C. 433, 119 S. E. 888.

An indictment for perjury, alleged to have been committed in the trial of a "suit, controversy, or investigation," without a definite statement of the nature of the proceeding, the words, "suit, controversy, or investigation," under this section, may be regarded as surplusage in a bill of indictment charging perjury, and a motion to quash upon these grounds therefrom in a court of justice before the bill of indictment has been cast is not a ground for quashing the nature of the proceeding will not be sustained. State v. Hawley, 186 N. C. 433, 119 S. E. 888.

No Change In Proof Required.—This section has merely simplified the form of the indictment for perjury, and the constituent elements of the offense remain unchanged and require the same proof to establish the commission of the offense.

§ 15-146. Bill for subornation of perjury.—In every indictment for subornation of perjury, or for corrupt bargaining or contracting with others to commit willful and corrupt perjury, it is sufficient to set forth the substance of the offense charged upon the defendant, without setting forth the bill, answer, information, indictment, declaration or any part of any record or proceeding, and without setting forth the commission or authority of the court or other person by whom the perjury was committed or was agreed or promised to be committed. (Rev., s. 3248; Code, s. 1186; R. C., c. 35, s. 17; 1842, c. 49; s. 2; C. S. 4616.)

§ 15-147. Former conviction alleged in bill for second offense.—In any indictment for an offense which, on the second conviction thereof, is punished with other or greater punishment than on the first conviction, it is sufficient to set forth the place and time of the commission of the offense charged, without otherwise describing the previous offense; and a transcript of the record of the first conviction, duly certified, shall, upon proof of the identity of the person of the offender, be sufficient evidence of the first conviction. (Rev., s. 3249; Code, s. 1187; R. C., c. 35, s. 18; C. S. 4617.)

In General.—When a second conviction is punished with other or greater punishment than for a first conviction, the first conviction shall be charged as required by this section. State v. Davidson, 124 N. C. 839, 32 S. E. 957.

Amount Should be Charged.—The charge of the theft of "$5 in the money of the value of $5" is good under this section and is sustained by the proof of the theft of any kind of coin or treasury or bank notes without proof of the particular kind of coin or treasury or bank note. State v. Carter, 113 N. C. 639, 18 S. E. 517.

Variance Allowed.—Where an indictment charged the larceny of "thirty dollars in money," and the proof was that defendant stole "three ten dollar bills" it was held, no variance. State v. Freeman, 89 N. C. 469.

§ 15-148. Manner of alleging joint ownership of property.—In any indictment wherein it is necessary to state the ownership of any property whatsoever, whether real or personal, which belongs to, or is claimed by, the person charged with embezzlement more than one person, whether such persons be partners in trade, joint tenants or tenants in common, it is sufficient to name one of such persons, and to state such property to belong to the person so named, and another or others as the case may be; and whenever, in any such indictment, it is necessary to mention, for any purpose whatsoever, any partners, joint tenants or tenants in common, it is sufficient to describe them in the manner aforesaid; and this provision shall extend to all joint-stock companies and trustees. (Rev., s. 3250; Code, s. 1188; R. C., c. 35, s. 19; C. S. 4618.)

Apparent Variance Cured.—Where property is charged in an indictment for larceny as belonging to A and another, and it is proved on trial to be the property of A and B, a firm well known in the community, the apparent variance is cured by this section. State v. Capps, 71 N. C. 91. There it appears that a crop of cotton on the plantation of B, under a verbal agreement that B is to have half of it, was sold, that in an indictment for larceny the cotton was properly charged to be the property of A and another. State v. Hill, 79 N. C. 657.

Variance Not Cured.—Upon the trial of an indictment for injury to livestock, it was held, to be a variance where the property was laid in "L. S. and others," and the proof was that L. S. was the exclusive owner. State v. Hill, 79 N. C. 657.

Words "And Another or Others" Invalidates.—An indictment for larceny, which charges the thing taken to be the property of J. R. D. "and another or others" is fatally defective under this section. State v. Harper, 64 N. C. 129.

§ 15-149. Description in bill for larceny of money.—In every indictment in which it is necessary to make any averment as to the larceny of any money, or United States treasury note, or any note of any bank whatsoever, it is sufficient to describe such money, or treasury note, or bank note, simply as money, without specifying any particular coin, or treasury note, or bank note; and such allegation, so far as regards the description of the money, shall be sustained by proof of any amount of coin, or treasury note, or bank note, although the particular species of coin, of which such amount was composed, or the particular nature of the treasury note, or bank note, shall not be proven. (Rev., s. 3251; Code, s. 1190; 1876-7, c. 67; C. S. 4619.)

Purpose of Section.—An indictment, before 1877, for stealing "money" without further description could not have been sustained, and the Legislature, to remedy the difficulty of describing and identifying bank bills, treasury notes, etc., which may be stolen, passed this section. State v. Reese, 83 N. C. 637, 639.

Variance Not Cured.—Upon the trial of an indictment for stealing "the value of ten dollars," it was held, no variance. State v. Capps, 71 N. C. 93, 94.

Variance Allowed.—Where an indictment charged the larceny of "thirty dollars in money," and the proof was that defendant stole "three ten dollar bills" it was held, no variance. State v. Freeman, 89 N. C. 469.

§ 15-150. Description in bill for embezzlement.—In indictments for embezzlement, except when the offense relates to a chattel, it is sufficient to allege the embezzlement to be of money, without describing any particular kind of money or security; and such allegation, so far as regards the description of the property embezzled, is surplusage, and will not vitiate an indictment otherwise sufficient. State v. Fain, 106 N. C. 760, 11 S. E. 593.

Surplusage Which Does Not Vitiate.—An allegation in an indictment for embezzlement of a sum of money of the value of five dollars, is sufficiently specific. State v. Fain, 106 N. C. 760, 11 S. E. 593.

Variance.—In a prosecution for embezzlement the failure of proof of embezzlement of the whole sum charged in the bill of indictment does not constitute a fatal variance between the indictment and the evidence. State v. Dula, 206 N. C. 745, 175 S. E. 80.

§ 15-151. Intent to defraud; larceny and receiving.—In any case where an intent to defraud is required to constitute the offense of forgery, or any other offense whatever, it is sufficient to allege in the indictment an intent to defraud, without naming therein the particular person or body corporate intended to be defrauded; and on the trial of such indictment, it shall be sufficient, and shall not be deemed a variance, if there appear to be an intent to defraud the United States, or any state, county, city, town, or parish, or body corporate, or any public officer in his official capacity, or any copartnship or member thereof, or any particular person. The defendant may be charged in the same indictment in several counts with the separate offenses of receiving stolen goods, knowing them to be stolen, and larceny. (Rev., s. 3253; Code, s. 1191; R. C., c. 35, ss. 21, 23; 1853, c. 87, s. 2; 1874-75, c. 62; C. S. 4621.)

Cross Reference.—As to larceny and receiving stolen goods generally, see § 14-70 et seq.; and § 53-129.

In General.—An indictment charging the employee with the indictable offense of making a false entry on the books of a bank in which he was employed need not necessarily specify all those whom he has thereby intended to defraud; and where it has named the officers of the bank and a depositor, “and other persons to the jurors unknown,” it is sufficient to show that the false entry was entered to deceive the bank examiners in concealing his defalcation, who were presumably making an examination of his bookkeeping under the common law and the statute. State v. Hedgecock, 185 N. C. 714, 117 S. E. 47.

Separate Counts.—On trial of an indictment for larceny and receiving, etc., the two counts are consolidated without objection, and varied to meet the probable proofs, the court will not order the Solicitor to elect upon which count he will proceed. State v. Morrison, 85 N. C. 561.

General Verdict Correct.—A general verdict of guilty upon an indictment of two counts—one for stealing and the other for receiving stolen goods of a value less than five dollars—is correct and if convicted, the defendant will be taken upon the good count, and there may be judgment. State v. Bailey, 73 N. C. 70; State v. Leak, 80 N. C. 403.

§ 15-152. Separate counts; consolidation.—When there are several charges against any person for the same act or transaction or for two or more acts or transactions connected together, or for two or more transactions of the same class of crimes or offenses, which may be properly joined, instead of several indictments, the whole may be joined in one indictment in separate counts; and if two or more counts are found in such cases, the court will order them to be consolidated. Provided, that in such consolidating cases the defendant shall be taxed the solicitor’s full fee for the first count, and a half fee for only one subsequent count upon which conviction is had or plea of guilty entered: Provided, this section shall not be construed to reduce the punishment or penalty for such offense or offenses. (1917, c. 168; 1921, c. 100; C. S. 4622.)

Cross Reference.—As to the amount of solicitors’ fees, see § 6-12. As to writing separate counts in violation of laws regulating intoxicating liquors, see § 18-10. Public Laws of 1921 the first proviso to this section, regarding the fees of the solicitor, was amended. The former wording provided that the defendant should be taxed half fee for each subsequent count upon which conviction was had. The amendment in addition to allowing the half fee on but one subsequent count added at the end of the proviso the words “or plea of guilty.”

General Verdict Covers Several Counts.—Where there are several counts in a criminal complaint (called indictment in this case), and each is for a distinct offense, a general verdict for any one of them shall be sufficient, and shall not be deemed a variance, if it appears to be an intent to defraud the United States, or any state, county, city, town, or parish, or body corporate, or any public officer in his official capacity, or any copartnship or member thereof, or any particular person. The defendant may be charged in the same indictment in several counts with the separate offenses of receiving stolen goods, knowing them to be stolen, and larceny. (Rev., s. 3253; Code, s. 1191; R. C., c. 35, ss. 21, 23; 1853, c. 87, s. 2; 1874-75, c. 62; C. S. 4621.)

Obstructing Highway and Injury to Property.—It is not only proper but it is the duty of the court to consolidate cases where defendant is charged with obstructing a highway and with wanton injury to personal property by placing nails in the highway. State v. Malpass, 189 N. C. 349, 127 S. E. 646.

Delivering Liquor and Keeping for Sale.—Under this section consolidation of charges of delivering and keeping for sale under the Turtleling Act is proper. State v. Jarrett, 189 N. C. 516, 127 S. E. 590.

Arson and House Burning.—Where the grand jury has found two separate indictments, one charging the defendant with the other the less offense of house burning, both arising from the same transaction, the two may be consolidated and a separate judgment of conviction of the less offense will be sustained on appeal. State v. Brown, 182 N. C. 761, 131 S. E. 257.

Housebreaking and Larceny.—When not subject to legal objection, a motion by the solicitor to consolidate two criminal actions for trial is addressed to the discretion of the trial judge, and where prosecutions for burglary and larceny on two occasions during the same night against two defendants are consolidated without objection, and the charges are so connected in both plans of evidence of guilt in one action is competent in the other, the order of the trial judge consolidating the actions will not be held for error on appeal. State v. Combs, 200 N. C. 671, 158 S. E. 252.

Manslaughter of One Person and Assault upon Another.—Upon the trial under one indictment charging the one with murder of M., it is reversible error to the defendant’s prejudice for the trial judge upon his own motion, after a subsequent part of the evidence had been introduced to consolidate the action with another action under a separate indictment charging the prisoner with an assault with a dead weapon upon D., the prisoner being afforded no opportunity to pass upon the competency of the jury upon the assault charge or an opportunity to plead to the charge. State v. Rice, 202 N. C. 411, 163 S. E. 112.

Separate Acts of Rape.—Where the evidence tended to show that defendant, a negro, was walking through woods while defendant, a negro, and another negro had sexual intercourse with him against his will, that defendant met a white girl in the company of two white boys, who forced her to have sexual intercourse with him against her will, while defendant was still in company with the colored girl, he met a white girl in the company of two white boys, and after an altercation with the white boys, he and the colored girl left the white girl with defendant and that he forced her to have sexual intercourse with him against her will, the consolidation of the prosecutions for the purpose of trial was not error. State v. Chapman, 221 N. C. 157, 19 S. E. (2d) 250.

Rape and Carnal Knowledge of Female.—A charge of rape and that of carnally knowing a female person between the ages of twelve and sixteen years, under § 14-36, were properly joined in one count under this section, since they are related in character and grow out of the same transaction. State v. Hall, 214 N. C. 639, 193 S. E. 398.

Burglary and Rape.—A motion, made before the introduction of any evidence, to require the State to elect between two separate counts in the bill of indictment, one charging burglary in the first degree and the other rape, is properly denied, the two offenses being of the same kind and nature, under this section may be joined in one indictment in separate counts, and it being within the sound discretion of the trial judge as to whether he shall hold evidence of guilt in one of the counts and, if so, at what stage of the trial. State v. Smith, 201 N. C. 494, 160 S. E. 577.

Offenses Related to Operation of Automobile.—A charge of driving an efficiency driving automobile while under the influence of intoxicating liquor and of assault with an automobile may be properly joined in one indictment as separate counts charging distinct offenses of the same class growing out of the same transaction, and separate judgments may be entered upon the § 15-154. Defects which do not vitiate.—No indictment shall be quashed nor shall judgment thereon be arrested by reason of the fact that any member of the grand jury finding such bill of indictment had not paid his taxes for the preceding year, or was a party to any suit pending and at issue. (1907, c. 36; C. 4624.)

Cross Reference.—As to when exceptions for disqualification of grand jurors should be made, see § 9-26.

§ 15-155. No quashal for grand juror's failure to pay taxes or being party to suit.—No indictment shall be quashed nor shall judgment thereon be arrested by reason of the avertment of any matter unnecessary to be proved, nor for omission of the words "as appears by the record," or of the words "with force and arms," nor for the insertion of the words "against the form of the statutes" instead of the words "against the form of the charge," or vice versa, nor for the omission of the words "against the form of the charge," or "against the form of the statutes," nor for omitting to state the time at which the offense was committed in any case for arrest of judgment, and it seems that such an indictment would be sufficient in the absence of evidence to impeach it.
§ 15-156. CH. 15. CRIMINAL PROCEDURE § 15-159

where time is not of the essence of the offense, nor for stating the time imperfectly, nor for not affecting the merits of the case. Hence judgments and not to be stayed or reversed for nonessential or minor defects. State v. Howard, 92 N. C. 772, 778.

Other Expressions Omitted.—Omitting the statement, that the "prisoner, not having the fear of God before his eyes, but being moved and seduced by the instigations of the devil," and the further omission of an averment that the "deceased was in the peace of God and the State," are not fatal defects. State v. Howard, 92 N. C. 772, 778.

When Time Need Not Be Charged.—When time is not of the essence of the offense the charge and averment that time is immaterial by this section, though the allegation of time can do no harm. State v. Arnold, 107 N. C. 851, 856, 11 S. E. 990; State v. Peters, 107 N. C. 875, 883, 12 S. E. 74; State v. Sisson, 83 N. C. 602, 603; State v. Williams, 117 N. C. 753, 23 S. E. 290.

Thus time is not of the essence of carrying a concealed weapon, and it may be shown at a previous time to that alleged in the bill. State v. Spencer, 185 N. C. 765, 177 S. E. 803.

Failure to specify a particular day in an indictment for abandonment is not fatal especially in view of an instruction so that the jury only such evidence as a conclusive proof to show that the defendant violated the statute after a particular date. State v. Jones, 201 N. C. 424, 160 S. E. 468.

Time of Birth in Bastardy Proceeding.—Indictment, in a bastardy proceeding, which states that the child was born on August 13, 1891, was not a fatal defect, because the evidence was that the birth occurred on November 13, 1940, is not fatally defective. State v. Moore, 222 N. C. 356, 23 S. E. (2d) 31.

Conclusion Simplified.—The formal conclusion, "against the body and dignity of the State," etc., are not necessary in an indictment for any offense whatever, but are mere surplusage. State v. Kirkman, 104 N. C. 911, 10 S. E. 312, overruling State v. Jones, 85 N. C. 669, 670, 75 S. E. 313; State v. Sykes, 104 N. C. 694, 10 S. E. 191; State v. Dudley, 182 N. C. 822, 109 S. E. 63.

That an indictment concludes against the form of the statute, it is no ground for an arrest of judgment. State v. Smith, 63 N. C. 234.

An indictment concluding against the "force" instead of the "form" of the statute is sufficient under this section. State v. Davis, 80 N. C. 285.

Variance.—In a prosecution of defendant for being an accessory before the fact of murder, variance of a few days between the indictment and proof as to the day the murder was committed is not fatal under this section. State v. Gore, 207 N. C. 648, 178 S. E. 290.

It is to the girl's first act of intercourse with a man, when she is under sixteen years of age, that the law attaches itself, and not to the act of the man, and a variance between allegation and proof as to time is not material between statute of limitations is involved. State v. Trippe, 222 N. C. 610, 24 S. E. (2d) 340.

Jurisdiction.—Where the jurisdiction of the court is not ousted on the face of the indictment the position that the court does not have jurisdiction is not available on a plea in abatement. State v. Davis, 203 N. C. 13, 14, 164 S. E. 737.

A charge in a murder prosecution in the alternative was not a vitiating defect, see § 15-125, the motion in arrest after verdict was properly denied, such motion being available only for vitiating defects upon the record proper. State v. Packett, 211 N. C. 66, 169 S. E. 183.

Art. 16. Trial before Justice.

§ 15-156. In cases of final jurisdiction.—When the justice is satisfied that he has jurisdiction, if no jury is asked for, he shall proceed to determine the case, and shall either acquit the accused or find him guilty, and sentence him to such punishment as the case may require, not to exceed in any case a fine of fifty dollars or imprisonment in the county jail for thirty days. (Rev., s. 3256; Code, s. 897; 1868-9, c. 178, subc. 4, s. 8; C. S. 4626.)

the sufficiency of the mittimus, which is to terminate his duties. State v. Armistead, 106 N. C. 639, 10 S. E. 872.

Same.—Where Prisoner Taken from Officer.—It is a criminal offense to take, by force, from the custody of an officer a prisoner legally committed to his charge, to convey him to jail, and it is no defense that the mittimus does not comply, in all respects, with the requirements of this section. State v. Armistead, 106 N. C. 639, 10 S. E. 872.

Collusive Conviction Not a Bar.—The conviction of a person defending a justice of the peace which is collusive and not adversary is not sufficient to sustain a plea of former conviction. State v. Moore, 136 N. C. 581, 48 S. E. 573.

§ 15-161. Justice to make return of cases to superior court.—It is the duty of each justice of the peace on or before Monday of every term of the superior court of his county, to furnish the clerk of the court with a list of the names and offenses of all parties tried and finally disposed of by such justice of the peace, together with the papers in each case, in all criminal actions, since the last term of the superior court. The clerk of the court shall hand a copy of such list to the solicitor and to the grand jury at each term of court; and no indictment shall be found against any party whose case has been so finally disposed of by any justice of the peace:

Provided, that this section shall not be deemed to extend or enlarge or otherwise affect the jurisdiction of justices of the peace, except as provided by law. (Rev., s. 3261; Code, c. 906; 1869-70, c. 110; C. S. 4631.)

Cross Reference.—As to liability for failure to make return of cases to superior court, see § 14-211.

§ 15-162. Prisoner standing mute, plea "not guilty" entered.—If any person, being arraigned upon or charged in any indictment for any crime, shall stand mute of malice or will not answer directly to the indictment, the court shall order the plea of "not guilty" to be entered on behalf of such person; and the plea so entered shall have the same force and effect as if such person had pleaded the same. (Rev., s. 3262; Code, s. 1198; R. C., c. 33, s. 29; R. S., c. 35, s. 16; C. S. 4632.)

Deaf Mutes.—Where, upon the arraignment of one for murder, it was suggested that the accused was a deaf mute, and was incapable of understanding the nature of a trial, and its incidents and his rights under it, it was held proper for the judge to understand the inter- pret of these suggestions, for the court to decline putting the prisoner on trial. State v. Harris, 53 N. C. 136.

In State v. Early, 211 N. C. 189, 189 S. E. 668, the court, upon finding that defendant was a deaf mute, subpoenaed an interpreter, who after being duly sworn and after the reading of the indictment, interpreted and explained the indictment to defendant. After defendant had indicated to the interpreter that he understood the indictment, the interpreter translated the solicitor's question of whether defendant was guilty or not guilty, and upon a negative reply given through the interpreter, a plea of not guilty was entered. It was held that there was no error on the arraign-

§ 15-164. Peremptory challenges by the state.—In all capital cases the prosecuting officer on behalf of the state shall have the right to challenge peremptorily six jurors for each defendant, but shall not have the right to stand any jurors at the foot of the panel. The challenge must be made before the juror is tendered to the prisoner, and if he will challenge more than six jurors he shall assign for his challenge a cause certain; and in all other cases of a criminal nature a challenge of four jurors shall be allowed in behalf of the state for each defendant, and challenge also for a cause certain, and in all cases of challenge for cause certain the same shall be inquired of according to the custom of the court. (Rev., s. 3264; Code, s. 1206; 1913, c. 31, s. 4; 1907, c. 415; 1887, c. 53; R. C., c. 35, s. 33; 1827, c. 10; 1832, c. 4; 1935, c. 475, s. 3; C. S. 4634.)

Editor's Note.—The number of challenges was increased in capital cases from four to six, and in other cases from two to four by the Public Laws of 1935.

Construed with Section 9-15.—The effect of section 9-15, to permit a party to a criminal action to make inquiry as to the fitness and competency of a juror before the adverse party would be permitted to admit the cause and have him stood aside therefor, and this course cannot now be pursued, except where the challenging party, after making such inquiry, states that the juror is challenged for cause; and this section, abolishing the established practice permitting the solicitor to place jurors, upon the trial of capital felony, at the foot of the panel, does not affect the application of section 9-15, to the trial of such felonies. State v. Ashburn, 187 N. C. 717, 122 S. E. 833.

Judge Cannot Extend Time.—The discretionary power of the trial judge in respect to challenges is confined to challenges for cause, and he has no more authority to extend the time for making peremptory challenges beyond the limit fixed by this section than he has to allow more than four jurors in cases of such challenges. State v. Fuller, 114 N. C. 885, 19 S. E. 797.

§ 15-165. Challenge to special venire same as to tales jurors.—In the trial of all criminal cases, where a special venire shall be ordered, the same causes of challenge to the jurors summoned on the special venire shall be allowed as exist to tales jurors. (Rev., s. 3265; 1887, c. 53; C. S. 4635.)

Cross References.—As to grounds for challenging tales jurors, see § 9-11. As to special venire in general, see § 9-29 et seq.

§ 15-166. Exclusion of bystanders in trials for rape.—In the trial of cases for rape and of assault with the intent to commit rape, the trial judge may, during the taking of the testimony of the prosecutrix, exclude from the court-room all persons except the officers of the court, the defendant and those engaged in the trial of the case; and upon the preliminary hearing before a justice of the peace of the offenses above named, that officer may adopt a like course. (1907, c. 21; C. S. 4038.)

§ 15-167. Term expiring during trial extended.—In case the term of a court shall expire while a trial for felony shall be in progress, and before judgment shall be given therein, the judge shall continue the term as long as in his opinion it shall be necessary for the purposes of the case; and he may in his discretion exercise the same power in the trial of any other cause under the same circumstances, except that he shall not be permitted to extend the term beyond after Thursday of the last week (Rev., s. 3266; Code, s. 1920, c. 1393, s. 226; C. C. P., s. 397; R. C., c. 31, s. 16; 1830, c. 22; C. S. 4637.)

§ 15-168. Justification as defense to libel.—Every defendant who is charged by indictment with the publication of a libel may prove on the trial for the same the truth of the facts alleged in the indictment; and if it shall appear to the satisfaction of the jury that the facts are true, the defendant shall be acquitted of the charge. (Rev., s. 3267; Code, s. 1103; R. C., c. 35, s. 26; C. S. 4638.)

Truth of Entire Charge Must Be Proved.—Where the matter set out in the indictment is libellous, in order for the defendant to justify he must show that the entire charge in the indictment is libellous, the court is not to limit itself to the one false fact alleged in the indictment; and if it shall appear to the satisfaction of the jury that the facts are true, the defendant shall be acquitted of the charge. (Rev., s. 3267; Code, s. 1103; R. C., c. 35, s. 26; C. S. 4638.)

Cross Reference.—As to effect of publication in good faith and retraction by a newspaper, see § 99-2.

Proof of Specific Charge Necessary.—Proof of the specific charge comprised in the indictment is insufficient. In an indictment for a libel, it is not competent for the defendant to justify by proving that there was, and long had been, a general report in the neighborhood, of the truth of his charge. State v. White, 29 N. C. 180.

§ 15-169. Conviction of assault, when included in charge.—On the trial of any person for rape, or any felony whatsoever, when the crime charged includes an assault against the person, it is lawful for the jury to acquit of the felony and find a verdict of guilty of assault against the person indicted, if the evidence warrants such finding; and when such verdict is found the court shall have power to imprison the person so found guilty of an assault, for any term now allowed by law in cases of conviction when the indictment was originally for the assault of a like character. (Rev., s. 3266; 1845, c. 68; C. S. 4639.)

Section Refers to Assault Generally.—This section does not describe the kind of assault, but refers to an assault generally and without regard to its degree of punishment under the law. State v. Smith, 17 N. C. 377.

When Section Applicable.—This section and § 15-170 are applicable only where there is evidence tending to show that defendant is guilty of a crime of lesser degree than that charged in the indictment. State v. Jackson, 199 N. C. 321, 1899, C. S. 402.

What Indictment Includes.—An indictment for any offense against the criminal law includes all lesser degrees of the same crime, known to the law; and conviction may be had of the lesser offense when the charge is inclusive of both. State v. Williams, 185 N. C. 685, 116 S. E. 736.

The provisions of this section in regard to conviction of a less degree of the same crime charged in the indictment applies only where there is evidence of guilt of the less degree, and where burglary in the first and second degree is charged in the indictment, and the question as to guilt on the charge of first degree or of second degree is not presented to the court on all degrees of the crime thus encompassed. State v. Brown, 113 N. C. 645, 18 S. E. 51.

d_§ 15-170. Conviction for a less degree or an attempt—When the trial of any of the indictment the prisoner may be convicted of the crime charged there in or of a less degree of the same crime, or of an attempt to commit the crime so charged, or of an attempt to commit a less degree of the same crime. (Rev., s. 3269; 1891, c. 205, s. 2; C. S. 4604.)

Application of Section.—Where there are several counts in a bill, a conviction of the defendant guilty on one count and not on another will, in the absence of a request, authorize the court to instruct the jury that the defendant was guilty of a greater degree of the crime charged in the indictment. State v. Canary, 222 N. C. 231, 42 S. E. (2d) 272.

§ 15-170. Conviction for a less degree or an attempt—When the trial of any of the indictment the prisoner may be convicted of the crime charged there in or of a less degree of the same crime, or of an attempt to commit the crime so charged, or of an attempt to commit a less degree of the same crime. (Rev., s. 3269; 1891, c. 205, s. 2; C. S. 4604.)

d_§ 15-170. Conviction for a less degree or an attempt—When the trial of any of the indictment the prisoner may be convicted of the crime charged there in or of a less degree of the same crime, or of an attempt to commit the crime so charged, or of an attempt to commit a less degree of the same crime. (Rev., s. 3269; 1891, c. 205, s. 2; C. S. 4604.)

Application of Section.—Where there are several counts in a bill, a conviction of the defendant guilty on one count and not on another will, in the absence of a request, authorize the court to instruct the jury that the defendant was guilty of a greater degree of the crime charged in the indictment. State v. Canary, 222 N. C. 231, 42 S. E. (2d) 272.

§ 15-170. Conviction for a less degree or an attempt—When the trial of any of the indictment the prisoner may be convicted of the crime charged there in or of a less degree of the same crime, or of an attempt to commit the crime so charged, or of an attempt to commit a less degree of the same crime. (Rev., s. 3269; 1891, c. 205, s. 2; C. S. 4604.)

Application of Section.—Where there are several counts in a bill, a conviction of the defendant guilty on one count and not on another will, in the absence of a request, authorize the court to instruct the jury that the defendant was guilty of a greater degree of the crime charged in the indictment. State v. Canary, 222 N. C. 231, 42 S. E. (2d) 272.

§ 15-170. Conviction for a less degree or an attempt—When the trial of any of the indictment the prisoner may be convicted of the crime charged there in or of a less degree of the same crime, or of an attempt to commit the crime so charged, or of an attempt to commit a less degree of the same crime. (Rev., s. 3269; 1891, c. 205, s. 2; C. S. 4604.)

Application of Section.—Where there are several counts in a bill, a conviction of the defendant guilty on one count and not on another will, in the absence of a request, authorize the court to instruct the jury that the defendant was guilty of a greater degree of the crime charged in the indictment. State v. Canary, 222 N. C. 231, 42 S. E. (2d) 272.

§ 15-170. Conviction for a less degree or an attempt—When the trial of any of the indictment the prisoner may be convicted of the crime charged there in or of a less degree of the same crime, or of an attempt to commit the crime so charged, or of an attempt to commit a less degree of the same crime. (Rev., s. 3269; 1891, c. 205, s. 2; C. S. 4604.)

Application of Section.—Where there are several counts in a bill, a conviction of the defendant guilty on one count and not on another will, in the absence of a request, authorize the court to instruct the jury that the defendant was guilty of a greater degree of the crime charged in the indictment. State v. Canary, 222 N. C. 231, 42 S. E. (2d) 272.

§ 15-170. Conviction for a less degree or an attempt—When the trial of any of the indictment the prisoner may be convicted of the crime charged there in or of a less degree of the same crime, or of an attempt to commit the crime so charged, or of an attempt to commit a less degree of the same crime. (Rev., s. 3269; 1891, c. 205, s. 2; C. S. 4604.)

Application of Section.—Where there are several counts in a bill, a conviction of the defendant guilty on one count and not on another will, in the absence of a request, authorize the court to instruct the jury that the defendant was guilty of a greater degree of the crime charged in the indictment. State v. Canary, 222 N. C. 231, 42 S. E. (2d) 272.
being tried, it is not required that he charge upon the principles of an assault with a deadly weapon or manslaughter what is charged with murder, and the killing of the deceased by him has been admitted, and the judge has correctly charged upon the crime of manslaughter, the lowest degree of an unlawful killing of a human being. State v. Luterbach, 188 N. C. 412, 124 S. E. 752.

In instructions as to Second Degree Murder Where Evidence Shows First Degree.—Where upon the trial for murder the evidence shows beyond a reasonable doubt that the defendant is guilty, he is guilty of the crime of murder in the first degree, the failure of the trial court to charge upon the law of murder in the second degree or manslaughter not changing the verdict. State v. Ferrell, 205 N. C. 640, 172 S. E. 186.

Same—Assault.—Where the evidence tended to show a simple assault and a defendant procured with intent to kill, the court's instruction that the jury might find providing murder into degrees shall be construed to within the provisions of this section, permitting the jury to twelve and sixteen years are of such a nature as to come assault with a deadly weapon, if they so found beyond a reasonable doubt. State v. Lee, 206 N. C. 472, 174 S. E. 266.

In prosecution for assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill, the court's instruction that the jury might find defendant guilty of a less degree of the crime, including assault with a deadly weapon, if they so found beyond a reasonable doubt is entitled to be considered without error. State v. Elmore, 212 N. C. 531, 194 S. E. 713.

Rape and carnally knowing a female between the age of twelve and sixteen years are of such a nature as to come within the provisions of this section, permitting the jury to find the defendants guilty of the lesser crime, if they do not deem the evidence sufficient to warrant a conviction on the first degree. State v. Hobbs, 214 N. C. 619, 641, 200 S. E. 749.

An attempt to commit barratry is an offense in this state and a defendant may be convicted of an attempt to commit the offense upon an indictment charging the common-law offense of barratry. State v. Batson, 220 N. C. 411, 417 S. E. (2d) 511, 139 A. R. 614.

New Trial Must Be on Full Charge.—Upon an appeal from a conviction for a lesser offense than that charged in the indictment, a new trial, if granted, must be upon the full charge in the bill. State v. Matthews, 142 N. C. 621, 55 S. E. 342.

Quoted in State v. Hairsell, 222 N. C. 455, 23 S. E. (2d) 685.

§ 15-171. Burglary in the first degree charged, verdict for second degree.—When the crime charged in the bill of indictment for burglary is burglary in the first degree the jury, upon the finding of facts sufficient to constitute burglary in the first degree as defined by statute, may elect to render a verdict of guilty of burglary in the second degree if they deem it proper so to do. The judge in his charge shall so instruct the jury. (Rev. s. 3270; 1889, c. 434, s. 3; 1941, c. 7, s. 1; C. S. 4641.)

Editor's Note.—For comment on the 1941 amendment to this section, see 19 N. C. L. Rev. 476.

All of the following cases were decided prior to the 1941 amendment.

Conviction in Second Degree Unauthorized.—Where, in the trial of an indictment for burglary, the evidence showed that the dwelling place was not inhabited at the time, a conviction of burglary in the second degree is not authorized by this section, since a felonious entry under such circumstances is by section 14-171 N. C. 813, 817, 89 S. E. 58.

Applies to All Indictments for Murder.—This section applies to all indictments for murder, whether committed by poison, or means of poisoning, lying in wait, imprisonment, starvation, torture, or otherwise. State v. Matthews, 142 N. C. 622, 55 S. E. 342.

Just Must Determine Degree.—For a conviction of murder in the first degree under this section and section 14-17, the jury must find specially under the evidence that this degree of crime has been committed by the defendant, and the verdict must be received in open court in the presence of the presiding judge under Constitutional Mandate, Const. Art. I, sections 13, 17, which right may not be waived. State v. Bazemore, 193 N. C. 336, 137 N. C. 176.

By this section it is made the duty of the jury alone to determine in their verdict whether the crime is murder in the first or second degree. State v. Gadberry, 117 N. C. 811, 23 S. E. 477; State v. Bagley, 158 N. C. 608, 73 S. E. 955; State v. Whaley, 165 N. C. 614, 139 S. E. 589; State v. Minges, 171 N. C. 813, 817, 89 S. E. 58. See also, State v. Wiggins, 171 N. C. 683, 73 S. E. 995.

Failure To Determine Degree.—Where the degree of murder is not expressed in the verdict, the judge should tell the jury to reconsider their finding, for the purpose of specifying the crime, and upon response being made by them of murder in the first degree, the trial judge does not commit error in charging the jury to render a verdict of guilty of murder in the first degree or not guilty. State v. Wiggins, 171 N. C. 683, 73 S. E. 995.

Judge May Exclude Second Degree in Charge.—When the entire evidence shows, and no other reasonable inference can be fairly drawn therefrom, that the murder was committed either by lying in wait or in an attempt to perpetrate a felony, and the controverted question is the identity of prisoner as the murderer, the trial judge does not commit error in charging the jury to render a verdict of guilty of murder in the first degree or not guilty. State v. Wiggins, 171 N. C. 683, 73 S. E. 995.

Verdict Conducted According to Charge.—The verdict must be conducted according to the charge and the evidence and when these make it certain beyond question, the law has been complied with. State v. Gilchrist, 113 N. C. 673, 18 S. E. (2d) 423; State v. Wiggins, 122 N. C. 659, 43 S. E. 247.

Mere Killing Presumes Second Degree Murder.—Since the Act of 1893, the killing being proved, and nothing else appearing, the law presumes malice, but not premeditation and deliberation, and the killing is murder in the second degree. State v. Hicks, 125 N. C. 635, 639, 43 S. E. 247.

"In all indictments for homicide, when the intentional killing is established or admitted, the law presumes malice from the use of a deadly weapon, and the defendant is guilty of murder (not only of the second degree) if the jury shall be of the opinion from the jury of the truth of facts which justify or excuse his act, or mitigate it to manslaughter." State v. Lane, 166 N. C. 333, 339, 81 S. E. 630.

Verdict of murder in the first degree may be had upon sufficient circumstantial evidence. State v. Bazemore, 193 N. C. 336, 137 S. E. 172; State v. Melton, 187 N. C. 481, 122 S. E. 430; State v. Matthews, 66 N. C. 10.

When First Degree Presumed.—A homicide committed in the perpetration of, or in an attempt to perpetrate, a robbery will be deemed murder in the first degree, the jury being governed by the evidence under proper instructions in finding that the offense is a less offense. State v. Lane, 166 N. C. 333, 334, 81 S. E. 630.

In an indictment for murder, when the homicide is shown or admitted to have been intentionally committed by lying in wait, poisoning, starvation, imprisonment, or torturing, the law raises the presumption of murder in the first degree, but none the less if the jury convict of a less offense, it is within their power so to do under the statute.
and the prisoner has no cause to complain that he was not convicted of the higher offense. State v. Matthews, 142 N. C. 631, 55 S. E. 342.

A defendant will not be permitted to plead guilty to murder in the first degree under this section, and this rule applies to all indictments for murder, including murder perpetrated by means of poison, lying in wait, imprisonment, starving, torture or otherwise. State v. Blue, 219 N. C. 612, 20 S. E. (2d) 635.

Evidence.—Where all the evidence at a trial for murder tends to show murder in the first degree in that the murder was committed by poisoning, starvation, lying in wait, imprisonment, torture, or in the perpetration or attempt to perpetrate a felony, the State as a rule cannot rely on premeditation and deliberation beyond a reasonable doubt. State v. Goodwin, 211 N. C. 419, 190 S. E. 761; State v. Goodwin, 196 N. C. 710, 146 S. E. 806.

§ 15-173. Demurmer to the evidence.—When on the trial of any criminal action in the superior court, or in any criminal court, the state has produced its evidence and rested its case, the defendant may move to dismiss the action or for judgment of nonsuit. If the motion is allowed, judgment shall be entered accordingly; and such judgment shall have the force and effect of a verdict of "not guilty" as to such defendant. If the motion is refused, the defendant may except; and if the defendant introduces no evidence, the case shall be submitted to the jury as in other cases, and the defendant shall have the benefit of his exception on appeal to the supreme court.

Nothing in this section shall prevent the defendant from introducing evidence after his motion for nonsuit has been overruled; and he may again move for judgment of nonsuit after all of the evidence in the case is concluded. If the motion is then refused, upon consideration of all of the evidence, the defendant may except; and, after the jury has rendered its verdict, he shall have the benefit of such latter exception on appeal to the supreme court. If defendant’s motion for judgment of nonsuit be granted, or be sustained on appeal to the supreme court, it shall in all cases have the force and effect of a verdict of "not guilty." (1913, c. 73; Ex. Sess. 1913, c. 32; C. S. 4643.)

Cross References.—As to demurmer to the evidence in civil cases, see § 1-183. As to motions in civil actions heard at common law, see § 7-453.

Commentary.—This section serves, and was intended to serve, the same purpose in criminal prosecution as is accomplished by section 1-183, in civil actions. State v. Fulcher, 184 N. C. 663, 665, 113 S. E. 769; State v. Fulcher, 190 N. C. 687, 130 S. E. 854; State v. Ormond, 211 N. C. 437, 191 S. E. 22; State v. Norris, 206 N. C. 191, 173 S. E. 14.

On motion to nonsuit, the court is required merely to ascertain whether there is any competent evidence to sustain the allegations of the indictment. State v. Landin, 209 N. C. 20, 182 S. E. 689. See also, State v. Lefever, 216 N. C. 494, 5 S. E. (2d) 552.

A defendant’s motion as of nonsuit should be denied if there is any evidence tending to prove the fact in issue, or which reasonably conduces the conclusion of guilt as a fairly logical and legitimate deduction, but evidence which merely raises a suspicion or conjecture of the fact of guilt is insufficient to be submitted to the jury. State v. Stephenson, 218 N. C. 258, 10 S. E. (2d) 819.

Sufficiency of Evidence May Be Challenged if Motion Timely Made.—If the defendant, on trial for murder, wishes to challenge the sufficiency of the evidence to show premeditation and deliberation beyond a reasonable doubt, motion to nonsuit under this section, on the capital charge, should be lodged at the close of the State’s evidence, excepted to, and if overruled, the defendant to be entitled to a new trial on appeal, if the evidence is insufficient to be submitted to the jury. State v. Stephenson, 218 N. C. 258, 10 S. E. (2d) 819.

A motion for judgment of nonsuit, under this section, must be made at the close of the State’s evidence in order for a motion thereunder made at the close of all the evidence to be considered. State v. Ormond, 211 N. C. 437, 439, 191 S. E. 22.

Motion Must Be Renewed.—A motion as of nonsuit upon the evidence will not be considered when it is not renewed after the conclusion of all the evidence as this section requires. State v. Helms, 181 N. C. 566, 107 S. E. 282. See also, State v. Kiziah, 217 N. C. 399, 9 S. E. (2d) 474.

Same.—Waiver.—Where the defendant in a criminal action moves for the dismissal or for judgment as of nonsuit after the close of the State’s evidence, and thereafter elects to introduce his own evidence, his failure to renew his motion after the whole evidence has been introduced is a waiver of his right to make such exception on appeal, and it is not subject to review in the Supreme Court on appeal. State v. Hayes, 187 N. C. 400, 122 S. E. 13. See also, State v. Harrett, 196 N. C. 697, 146 S. E. 801; State v. Chapman, 221 N. C. 456.

Only inquiring evidence need be considered upon defendant’s motion as of nonsuit under this section, and contradictions in the inculpatory testimony and equivocations of the defendant as to his weight or credibility of the evidence but not its competency, need not be taken into account in determining whether there is any competent evidence to sustain the verdicts or the indictment. State v. Matthews, 142 N. C. 118, 175 S. E. 466. See also, State v. Moses, 207 N. C. 199, 176 S. E. 317.

When Motion Denied.—If the motion to dismiss or as of nonsuit upon the evidence in a criminal case, will be denied if the evidence is sufficient, considered in the light most favorable to the State, to prove guilt of the defendant beyond a reasonable doubt. State v. Sigmon, 190 N. C. 684, 130 S. E. 854.

Where evidence is conflicting in a criminal case and where, considering the evidence in the light most favorable to the State, the jury might find the defendant guilty, a motion as of nonsuit is properly denied. State v. Carr, 196 N. C. 129, 130, 144 S. E. 698.

Exempting Entire Evidence.—Where defendant in a criminal action desires to except to the sufficiency of the evidence to convict him, his excepting, under this section, at the close of the State’s evidence, and upon the overruling of his motion to nonsuit, excepting at the close of all the evidence, brings his exception to the Supreme Court on appeal upon the sufficiency of the entire evidence to convict, and is the proper procedure for that purpose. State v. Kiziah, 217 N. C. 399, 9 S. E. (2d) 474.

Consideration of Entire Evidence on Appeal.—In State v. Pasour, 183 N. C. 793, 794, 111 S. E. 779, the court said: "Both before and after he had introduced evidence, the defendant moved to dismiss the prosecution as of non-suit, but the court sustained the motion only, and did not order the dismissal. The exceptions, therefore, require a consideration of the entire evidence."

An exception to a motion to dismiss in a criminal action takes effect after the close of the State’s evidence, and renewed by defendant after the introduction of his own evidence, does not constitute the appeal to the State’s evidence alone, and a conviction will be sustained under the second exception if there is any sufficient evidence on the whole record of the defendant’s guilt. State v. Brinkley, 183 N. C. 720, 110 S. E. 783.

An appeal from the denial of a motion as of nonsuit in a criminal action, review of the evidence is not confined to the State’s evidence, renewed after all the evidence has been introduced, does not confine its sufficiency to

Section 15-173. CRIMINAL PROCEDURE

The time of the first motion, and will be denied if there is in the evidence in the State's behalf, viewing all of the evidence in its entirety, State v. Earp, 196 N. C. 164, 145 S. E. 23.

When upon the trial of a criminal action, the State produces its evi-idence and rests, and the defendant preserves his exception to the sufficiency of his motion for judgment as of nonsuit, and, after offering evidence and the case closed, defendant renews his motion for judgment as of nonsuit, the court must act, not only in the light of all the evidence introduced and, in such case, the defendant is entitled to the benefit only of his exception to the refusal of the latter motion. State v. Norton, 222 N. C. 418, 23 S. E. (2d) 307.

Supreme Court Not to Weigh Evidence.—This section provides that if on the motion the judgment of nonsuit is allowed on appeal, "It shall, in all cases, have the force and effect of a verdict of not guilty." This is not, however, an absolute rule. The court may consider the evidence, but is a verdict by the court of not guilty, which theretofore was without precedent. But the statute certainly did not intend that the Supreme Court should weigh the evidence and render a verdict. State v. Cooke, 176 N. C. 731, 735, 97 S. E. 171.

Sufficiency of Evidence.—Upon a motion for judgment as of nonsuit, the evidence must be considered in the light most favorable to the State and the court will not pass upon its weight or the credibility of the witnesses. State v. Routtree, 181 N. C. 535, 106 S. E. 669; State v. Atlantic Ice, etc., 191 N. C. 595, 133 S. E. 158, 67 A. L. R. 830; State v. Young, 200 N. C. 738, 763, 184 S. E. 839. See also, State v. Mann, 219 N. C. 212, 13 S. E. (2d) 24.

A demurrer to the evidence presents only the question of whether there is evidence to carry the case to the jury, the weight and credibility of the evidence being for the jury and not the court. State v. Smith, 221 N. C. 400, 20 S. E. (2d) 360; State v. Johnson, 220 N. C. 773, 18 S. E. 2d. 360.

The requirement that the evidence must be sufficient to convict beyond a reasonable doubt in criminal actions, is for the benefit of the defendant; and it requires the State to satisfy the court that the evidence, if believed by the jury, tends to prove the fact of guilt or which reasonably conduces to its proof. State v. Fulcher, 184 N. C. 663, 11 S. E. 769. In considering a motion to dismiss the action under the section, the evidence is to be considered in the light most favorable to the State, and if there is any evidence tending to prove the fact of guilt or which reasonably conduces to its proof, the defendant's motion as of nonsuit, should have been sustained, under this section. State v. Everett, 194 N. C. 442, 140 S. E. 22. See also, State v. Tankersley, 172 N. C. 590, 119 S. E. 698.

Same.—Rape. Evidence tending to show that the deceased was ravished by a person suffering from gonorrhea, and that she died from the assault and choking, with further evidence that the defendant had the disease and that his shoes fitted the tracks made at the time of the crime, is sufficient, taken with other evidence of guilt, to be submitted to the jury and to sustain the defendant's motion as of nonsuit, under this section. State v. McLeod, 196 N. C. 542, 146 S. E. 409.

Same—Tending Only to Exculpate. — Where the State's evidence and that of the defendant are substantially to the same effect, in an action for an assault, and evidence tending only to exculpate the defendant, his motion as of non-suit after all the evidence has been introduced, considering it as a whole, must be sustained. State v. Fulcher, 184 N. C. 663, 113 S. E. 769.

Same.—Father Shielding Child. — The father may shield his child from assault of another to the extent necessary for the purpose of preventing the child and not merely to justify an inference that, as such a one where he has done so, without the use of excessive force, as appears from all the evidence in the case, his motion as of nonsuit at the close of his evidence should be granted. State v. Fulcher, 184 N. C. 663, 113 S. E. 769.

Same—Personal Presence of Defendant. — In a criminal prosecution for felonious breaking and entering, larceny and receiving against several defendants, resulting in conviction of one of them of larceny only, a motion for nonsuit in the case of the defendant who was not convicted of larceny, the evidence tended to show that this defendant and one of the other defendants planned the theft and this defendant advised, aided and abetted his codefendant therein, though not personally present when the theft occurred, State v. King, 222 N. C. 239, 22 S. E. (2d) 445.

Same.—Recent Possession of Stolen Goods. — Evidence that a cotton mill had been broken into and that goods taken therefrom had been found in the possession of the defendant one hour or two thereafter, with further evidence of his unlawful possession, is sufficient for conviction, under the provisions of section 14-34, and defendant's demurrer to the evidence of his possession of goods thereafter overruled. State v. Williams, 187 N. C. 492, 122 S. E. 13. Evidence from which the jury might infer that stolen goods were thereafter in the constructive possession of defendant will not justify an inference that, as such, same, that the defendant knew the goods to have been stolen, and where the evidence is sufficient to support only the first inference Evidence to go to the jury, it does not mean that there is liter-the defendant's motion as of nonsuit should be allowed under this section. State v. Anthony, 206 N. C. 120, 173 S. E. 47.

same—Evidence Raising Suspicion Only.—Evidence that does no more than raise a suspicion, somewhat strong perhaps, of a homicide and the defendant's guilt, is not enough on a prosecution for murder and demurrer to the evidence is properly overruled. State v. Carter, 204 N. C. 394, 305, 168 S. E. 204.

same—Malicious Castration.—The direct evidence of the guilt of one of the defendants in a prosecution for malicious castration, and the circumstantial evidence of his guilt, are sufficient to overrule their motions as of nonsuit. State v. Ammons, 204 N. C. 733, 169 S. E. 536.

same—Identity.—In a prosecution for homicide the evidence of the defendant's identity as the perpetrator of the crime is sufficient to be submitted to the jury, the weight and credibility of the wife's identification of the defendant being for their determination, and defendant's motion as of nonsuit on the ground that her testimony was based upon imagination and auto-suggestion was properly refused. State v. Fogleman, 204 N. C. 401, 169 S. E. 536.

same—Conspiracy.—Where the direct circumstantial evidence in this case tends to show that defendant had quarreled with deceased and had entered into a conspiracy to kill him, the weight of the evidence and that all the conspirators, including the appealing defendant, were proximate observers and abettors in the commission of the crime, the evidence is sufficient to be submitted to the jury and motion for non-suit was properly overruled. State v. Brown, 204 N. C. 392, 168 S. E. 521.

same—Assault with Intent to Kill.—In a prosecution, for a secret assault and battery with a deadly weapon with malice aforethought, and intent to kill, evidence that there had been ill-feeling between the prosecuting witness and the defendant, that the prosecuting witness had seen and recognized the defendant standing outside a window in the witness's home, that the deceased was at a distance from the window, that the defendant had not previously attempted to commit any assault, and that his motion to dismiss under this section was properly refused where there was sufficient evidence to convict of an assault. State v. McClamb, 203 N. C. 442, 166 S. E. 597.

same—Assault with Intent to Rape.—Upon an indictment charging an assault with intent to commit rape, defendant may not use as an alibi a female, whom he separately charged, and motion to dismiss under this section was properly overruled where there was sufficient evidence to convict of the assault. State v. Jones, 222 N. C. 261, 11 S. E. (2d) 513.

same—Operation of Prohibited Mechanical Device.—Evidence tending to show that defendant was the owner of an automobile, and had been seen in same prior to its collision; that the automobile was subsequently examined by a sworn expert, who found in it a sub- stantially mechanical device for the emission of excessive smoke or gas, is insufficient to resist defendant's motion as of nonsuit. State v. Lazarc, 771, 113 S. E. 731, 500 C. R. 450(b). State v. Yates, 208 N. C. 194, 195 S. E. 25; State v. Oakley, 210 N. C. 206, 186 S. E. 244; State v. Delk, 212 N. C. 631, 194 S. E. 94; State v. Lockey, 214 N. C. 525, 199 S. E. 715; State v. Myers, 214 N. C. 653, 200 S. E. 443; State v. Forte, 222 N. C. 537, 23 S. E. (2d) 842; State v. Johnson, 213 N. C. 523, 195 S. E. 877, and cases therein cited, evidencing showing felonious breaking and entry and showing identity.

§ 15-174. New trial to defendant.—The courts may grant new trials in criminal cases when the defendant is found guilty, under the same rules and regulations as in civil cases. (Rev. s. 3272; Code, s. 1202; R. C. c. 35, s. 35; 1815, c. 895; C. S. 4641.)

Cross Reference.—As to new trial in civil cases, see § 1-272 and notes thereof.

Rule Similar at Common Law.—Independent of this section, the rule of the common law was the same and in Wharton's Criminal Law, sec. 3991, it is laid down that "at common law the court trying the case, is the sole tribunal by whom a new trial can be granted, and its refusal so to do being matter of discretion is no ground for a writ of es-ror. State v. Taylor, 8 N. C. 462.

New Trial Not Granted After Acquittal.—After a verdict of acquittal on a State prosecution, a new trial is not allowed by this section. State v. Taylor, 8 N. C. 462.

Nolle prosequi—A motion for new trial for newly discovered evidence will not be granted even in a civil case, where the evidence is merely cumulative or where it was withheld by the party moving. State v. Lilliston, 141 N. C. 827, 54 S. E. 27.

Motions for new trials for newly discovered evidence cannot be entertained in the Supreme Court in criminal cases. State v. Lilliston, 141 N. C. 857, 54 S. E. 27.

Disqualification of Jurors and Newly Discovered Evidence.—When a judgment of the Supreme Court in a criminal case is certified to the Clerk of the Superior Court, the case is in the latter court for execution of the sentence and must be the subject of a trial under the provisions for disqualification of jurors and for newly discovered evidence. State v. Casey, 201 N. C. 630, 161 S. E. 81.

When Judgment Set Aside.—A motion regularly entered at any term of the court, cannot be set aside at a subsequent term, except in cases of surprise, mistake or ex-

pias and subpoenas to issue.—A nolle prosequi "with leave" shall be entered in all criminal actions in which the indictment has been pending for two terms of court, and the defendant has not been apprehended or in which a nolle prosequi has not been entered, unless the judge for good cause shown shall order otherwise. The clerk of the superior court shall issue a capias for the arrest of any defendant named in any criminal action in which a nolle prosequi has been entered when he has reasonable ground for believing that such defendant may be arrested or upon application of the solicitor of the district. When any defendant shall be arrested it shall be the duty of the clerk to issue a subpoena for the witnesses for the state indorsed on the indictment. (Rev., s. 3274; 1903, c. 360, ss. 1, 3, 4; C. S. 4645.)

Cross Reference.—As to clerk's record of nolle prosequi with leave cases, see § 2-42, paragraph 34.

In General.—A nolle prosequi is merely a declaration on the part of the solicitor that he will not then prosecute the suit further, and is not an acquittal, although its effect is to discharge the defendant without delay. Wilkinson v. Wilkinson, 199 N. C. 265, 74 S. E. 740.

Effect of Nol. Pros.—A nolle prosequi in criminal proceedings does not amount to an acquittal, and the defendant may be again arrested upon the same bill and put to trial. State v. Thornton, 35 N. C. 256; State v. Faggart, 179 N. C. 737, 744, 7 S. E. 31; State v. Smith, 129 N. C. 546, 40 S. E. 1.

Discretion of Attorney General.—The attorney general has a discretionary power to enter a nolle prosequi, and the court will not interfere, unless the power be oppressively used. State v. Thompson, 10 N. C. 613; State v. Buchanan, 23 N. C. 59.

Permitment of Court for New Capias.—Where a nolle prosequi has been entered in a criminal case, a capias will not issue where the same may be obtained upon the part of the court, but only upon permission of the court first obtained. State v. Thornton, 35 N. C. 256.

Same.—When Unnecessary.—Where a "nolle prosequi with leave" has been entered, it authorizes the clerk, at the request of the solicitor, to issue another capias. State v. Smith, 129 N. C. 546, 40 S. E. 1.

§ 15-176. Prisoner not to be tried in prison uniform.—It shall be unlawful for any sheriff, jailer or other officer to require any person imprisoned in jail to appear in any court for trial dressed in the uniform or dress of a prisoner or convict, or in any uniform or apparel other than ordinary civilian's dress, or with head shaven or clipped by or under the direction and requirement of any sheriff, jailer or other officer, unless the head was shaven or clipped while such person was serving a term of imprisonment for the commission of a crime.

Any sheriff, jailer or other officer who violates the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (1915, c. 124; C. S. 4646.)

Art. 18. Appeal.

§ 15-177. Appeal from justice, trial de novo.—The accused may appeal from the sentence of the justice to the Superior Court in the county. On such appeal being prayed, the justice shall recognize both the prosecutor and the accused, and all the material witnesses, to appear at the next term of the court, in such sums as he shall think proper; and he may require the accused to give sureties for his appearance as aforesaid. In all cases of appeal, the trial shall be anew, without prejudice from the former proceedings. (Rev., s. 3274; Code, s. 900; 1808-9, c. 178, subc. 4, s. 11; 1879, c. 92, s. 10; C. S. 4647.)

Cross References.—As to appeal in civil cases, see § 1-299 and notes thereto. As to appeal by state, see § 15-179. As to recordari as substitute for appeal, see § 1-269.

In General.—A nolle prosequi in any criminal cases wherein the magistrate gives judgment against a party charged with a criminal offense, and imposes on him a punishment by fine or imprisonment. This is apparent from the nature of the matter, and as well from the language employed. They refer to the conviction and sentence of defendants. State v. Lyon, 93 N. C. 575, 577.

Right of Appeal Has Been Modified.—The right of appeal from the Superior Court to the Court of Errors in a crime case wherein the magistrate gives judgment against a party charged with a criminal offense, and imposes on him a punishment by fine or imprisonment. This is apparent from the nature of the matter, and as well from the language employed. They refer to the conviction and sentence of defendants. State v. Lyon, 93 N. C. 575, 577.

Right of Appeal Personal to Accused.—The right of appeal provided for by this section is for the benefit only of the person accused, State v. Powell, 86 N. C. 640; but so much of the judgment as is personal to the prosecutor and taxes him with the costs, may be appealed from.

Appeal under Section Presents Trial de novo.—Where the defendant after trial and conviction before a justice of the peace, moved in arrest of judgment, which motion was refused, and he appealed to the superior court, it was held, that the appeal brought up the whole case, and the defendant under this section was entitled to a trial de novo. State v. Koontz, 108 N. C. 732, 12 S. E. 1002. But where the defendant resists himself by a plea of guilty than there can be no acts left open for consideration by a jury and the case on appeal does not concern the whole case. State v. Warren, 113 N. C. 681, 684, 686, 18 S. E. 498.

After an appeal from a recorder's court to a Superior Court has been effected and appeal bond given, the recorder's court has no further jurisdiction over the case, the procedure being the same as under this section, and defendant's appeal may not be brought to the recorder's court by notice given in the recorder's court. State v. Goff, 205 N. C. 545, 172 S. E. 407.

Bill of Indictment Unnecessary.—Upon an appeal from a court of a petit jury, the necessity of a bill of indictment in the latter court is dispensed with, State v. Jones, 181 N.
Amendment to Complaint.—Where the defendant has been separately tried before a justice of the peace for several indictable offenses, it is permissible for the superior court, on appeal, to consolidate all the counts into one indictment, so as to make one complaint include all the offenses under different counts. State v. Mills, 181 N. C. 530, 106 S. E. 677.

Excessive Punishment by Public Justice.—A defendant is not entitled to a new trial because the punishment imposed by a police justice was excessive; the case should be remanded for resentence in conformity to law. State v. Black, 135 N. C. 371, 51 S. E. 258.

Due Process Where Justice Paid by Fee upon Conviction.—Since a defendant in a criminal prosecution before a justice of the peace has a right to demand a jury trial as provided in § 15-157, and the right to appeal to the superior court, and have the whole matter heard therein de novo, under this section, that a justice’s compensation is fixed upon a fee basis, which he will receive only in the event of conviction, does not result in depriving the defendant of trial under due process of law. In re Steele, 220 N. C. 665, 18 S. E. (2d) 132.

§ 15-178. Justice to return papers and findings to superior court.—In every case in which an appeal shall be prayed the justice shall forthwith transmit to the clerk of the superior court of the county all papers in the case, together with a copy of the verdict, if any, of his determination of the facts if there shall have been no trial by jury, and of the sentence, in which shall be set forth all the facts found by him, as well as his finding of those which were alleged in the complaint and which were found by him not to be proved. (Rev., s. 3275; Code, s. 901; 1868-9, c. 178, subc. 4, s. 12; C. S. 4648.)

§ 15-179. When state may appeal.—An appeal to the supreme court may be taken by the state in the following cases, and no other. Where judgment has been given for the defendant
1. Upon a special verdict.
2. Upon a demurrer.
3. Upon a motion to quash.
4. Upon a motion of judgment. (Rev., s. 3276; Code, s. 1237; C. S. 4649.)

Cross Reference.—As to distinction between general and special verdicts, see § 1-301 et seq.

Editor's Note.—See 13 N. C. Law Rev., 321, for note on "Special Verdicts."

Judgments Rendered in Superior Court.—The right of the state to appeal upon a special verdict, a demurrer, a motion to quash, or a motion in arrest of judgment, as provided by this section, applies only to judgments rendered in the superior court. State v. Nichols, 215 N. C. 80, 200 S. E. 926.

Right Is Statutory.—The right of the state to appeal is statutory, which right may not be enlarged by the superior court when the superior court remands a cause to the county court with provision that the state may appeal from any judgment thereafter rendered by the county court, the provision giving the state the right to appeal is void. State v. Cox, 216 N. C. 424, 5 S. E. (2d) 125.

Bond Not Essential.—A bond, in the case of an appeal in the superior court, is not necessary, a recognition being given in this section that as a matter of right the state may appeal in such cases, exclusive original jurisdiction. State v. Myrick, 202 N. C. 688, 163 S. E. 903.

The state may appeal from judgment rendered to the Supreme Court, 100 N. C. 186, 76 S. E. 558.

The State may appeal from judgment rendered in State v. Brannen, 149 N. C. 593, 63 S. E. 169.

Overruling Motion to Amend Record.—No appeal lies by the state from an order overruling a motion to amend the record. State v. McAden, 169 N. C. 727, 154 S. E. 224.

Taxing Prosecutor with Costs.—An appeal lies from the judgment of a justice of the peace taxing the prosecutor with such taxing being in the nature of a civil judgment. State v. Morgan, 206 N. C. 564, 15 S. E. (2d) 247; judges of State of Powell, 86 N. C. 640, under section 15-177.

The refusal of the court to mark one as prosecutor of record is not one of the cases enumerated in this section in which the state is entitled to appeal. State v. Myrick, 202 N. C. 688, 163 S. E. 903.

General Verdict of Not Guilty.—In a criminal prosecution where there is a plea and general verdict of not guilty, the state has no right of appeal; such verdict ends the case. State v. Savery, 126 N. C. 1083, 36 S. E. 22 and cases cited; but under this section the state may appeal from a judgment for defendant on a special verdict. State v. Haynes, 151 N. C. 771, 60 S. E. 547; State v. Winston, 194 N. C. 241, 139 S. E. 240.

Judgment Non Obstante Veredicto.—Where there is a verdict convicting a defendant of a misdemeanor under provisions of a statute prohibiting the writing of a worthless check on a bank under certain conditions and a judgment has been rendered in favor of the defendant non obstante veredicto, the State may appeal under the provisions of this section. State v. Yarbrough, 194 N. C. 498, 140 S. E. 216.

Acquittal in Consequence of Erroreous Charge.—When a defendant has once been tried and acquitted upon an indictment good in form, no appeal lies even though the acquittal is in consequence of the erroneous charge of the presiding judge. State v. West, 71 N. C. 363.

Arrrest of Judgment.—In a prosecution for manslaughter, judgment was entered providing that prayer for judgment and sentence be continued and that the defendant be placed on probation for a period of five years, with further order that as a special condition of probation the defendant shall pay a designated sum weekly into the office of the clerk for a period of five years for the use of the mother of the deceased. Upon defendant's petition filed after the death of the mother within the five-year period, the court adjudged that the requirement for the payment of the sum had terminated and abated on her death. Held: The state may not appeal from the order, as the ruling is not equivalent to the allowance of a motion in arrest of judgment. State v. McColloch, 216 N. C. 737, 6 S. E. (2d) 593.

Arrest of Judgment as to One of Two Defendants.—Where in a prosecution for murder two defendants were convicted of manslaughter, the state under sub-division 4 of this section, has a right to appeal from an arrest of judgment as to one of them. State v. Hall, 183 N. C. 506, 112 S. E. 411.

Remanding Case for Lighter Sentence.—This section does not include a ruling of the superior court remanding a case for the imposition of a lesser sentence. State v. Davidson, 121 N. C. 839, 52 S. E. 992.

If a warrant charges simple assault, the State has no right of appeal from a judgment of a justice of the peace acquitting the defendant, the justice having, in such cases, exclusive original jurisdiction. State v. Myrick, 202 N. C. 688, 163 S. E. 903.

The State may appeal from acquittal of defendant upon a special verdict, although the verdict is fatally defective. State v. Brannen, 169 N. C. 727, 154 S. E. 224; as to necessity of bond on appeal by defendant see State v. Patrick, 72 N. C. 317.

The word "demurrer" is used in this section in its usual and accepted sense, as used in criminal pleading, and is not used in the sense of embracing "demurrer to evidence." State v. Moody, 150 N. C. 847, 64 S. E. 431; State v. Mc Dowell, 84 N. C. 799, 74 S. E. 65.

§ 15-180. Appeal by defendant to supreme court.—In all cases of conviction in the superior court for any criminal offense, the defendant shall have the right to appeal, on giving adequate security to abide the sentence, judgment or decree of the supreme court; and the appeal shall be perfected and the case for the supreme court settled, as provided in civil actions. (Rev., s. 3277; Code, s. 1234; R. C., ch. 500. S. E. 2d 142.)

Appeals in criminal cases are controlled by this section, and a defendant is entitled to appeal only from conviction in the Supreme Court or some final judgment thereon and an appeal from an order of the Superior Court remanding the case to the recorder's court will be dismissed. State v. Rocks, 207 N. C. 275, 178 S. E. 752.

Appeal or Substitute for Writ of Error.—At common law there was no appeal from the decision of any of the courts, high or low, and these decisions could only be reviewed by writ of error or writ of false judgment. In North Carolina appeals are only from final judgment, whereas in the federal courts, a writ of certiorari may be had to review any decision of a court of record. State v. Bailey, 65 N. C. 426, 428; State v. Webb, 155 N. C. 426, 70 S. E. 1064.

Bond Necessary.—An appeal by the defendant to the supreme court is dismissed if there is no bond or the appeal is pending in the court below, if there is no order allowing the appeal without bond. State v. Patrick, 72 N. C. 217; State v. Spurtin, 40 N. C. 362. See section 15-181.

Defendant's appeal in three cases without giving bond appeal, and it appeared that he had obtained leave without bond in one case only, it was held that the other cases would be dismissed. State v. Hambly, 126 N. C. 355, 35 F. Supp. 135, 136, 137 S. E. 714.

Appeal “By Consent.”—Where an appeal without bond or affidavit was allowed by consent it was held not to be in compliance with the section, State v. Kerns, 90 N. C. 650. An appeal by the defendant in three cases without giving bond appeal, and it appeared that he had obtained leave without bond in one case only, it was held that the other cases would be dismissed. State v. Patrick, 72 N. C. 217, 218 S. E. 825.

Bond Necessary.—An appeal by the defendant to the supreme court is dismissed if there is no bond or the appeal is pending in the court below, if there is no order allowing the appeal without bond. State v. Patrick, 72 N. C. 217; State v. Spurtin, 40 N. C. 362. See section 15-181.

Defendant's appeal in three cases without giving bond appeal, and it appeared that he had obtained leave without bond in one case only, it was held that the other cases would be dismissed. State v. Hambly, 126 N. C. 355, 35 F. Supp. 135, 136, 137 S. E. 714.

Defendant was not convicted, but was acquitted. There was no judgment on conviction, or judgment prejudicial to the defendant in its nature final. The defendant therefore had no right to appeal to the supreme court and it is without jurisdiction to entertain the appeal, or to decide the matter presented by the defendant's assignment of error. State v. Hiatt, 211 N. C. 116, 117, 189 S. E. 124.

Exercise of Right Should Not Prejudice Defendant.—While the trial judge has the discretionary power to change the defendant's plea from guilty to nolo contendere, in order to enter a judgment of sentence upon the order of such judge, to pay the necessary cost of obtaining a transcript of the proceedings had and the evidence offered on the trial from the court reporter for the use of the defendant and the necessary cost of preparing the requisite copies of the record and briefs which the defendant is required to file in the supreme court under the rules of said court. The judge may fix the reasonable value of the services rendered in furnishing such transcript and preparing such copies of the record and briefs, and said copies of the record and briefs shall be prepared in the manner prescribed by the rules of the supreme court in pauper appeals. Provided, that this paragraph shall apply only to those cases in which counsel has been assigned by the court. (Rev., s. 3278; Code, s. 1235; 1936-37, c. 196, s. 1; 1923, c. 197; 1937, c. 330; C. S. 4651.)

Editor's Note.—Public Laws of 1913, c. 197, added the last two paragraphs of this section relating to appeals in capital felony cases to the Supreme Court. That section, as amended, extended the 1913 law to include defendants who have been tried for or convicted of a capital felony and convicted of a lesser offense. Again the statute would apply only in cases where counsel had been assigned by the court. (Rev., s. 3278; Code, s. 1235; 1936-37, c. 196, s. 1; 1923, c. 197; 1937, c. 330; C. S. 4651.)

§ 15-182. Appeal granted; bail for appearance.

The affidavit required in the preceding section may be filed at any time during the term or within ten days from the adjournment of the term either with the Judge or the Clerk, and it shall be the duty of the Judge or the Clerk on filing the affidavit to grant the appeal without security for costs, and for any bailable offense the judge shall require the defendant to enter into recognizance, the motions are coram non judice, State v. Casey, 110 N. C. 500, 15 S. E. 110; State v. Atkins, 141 N. C. 734, 110 S. E. 522. The affidavit not containing the assertion that "the application is in good faith," prevented the court having jurisdiction. See also, State v. Bynum, 199 N. C. 376, 154 S. E. 250. But it has been suggested that it would be proper to state the name of such counsel. State v. Divine, 69 N. C. 390. It was held that the affidavit not containing the assertion that "this application is in good faith," prevented the court having jurisdiction. See also, State v. Brumfield, 199 N. C. 613, 178 S. E. 258. Hence, where the order allowing an appeal is in good faith, the affidavit and certificate of counsel are not in the record sent to the Supreme Court, it will be presumed that they were in due form. State v. Starnes, 94 N. C. 97, S. E. 55; State v. Wylde, 110 N. C. 500, 15 S. E. 5; State v. Atkinson, 141 N. C. 734, 110 S. E. 228.-motion for joinder of issue and facts, State v. Watson, 208 N. C. 70, 179 S. E. 455; State v. Etheridge, 207 N. C. 801, 199 S. E. 565. The affidavit must state the name of defendant, the crime of which he was convicted, and if the statutory time for perfecting the appeal has been extended by agreement, the time of such extension must be stated. State v. Mitchell, 221 N. C. 460, 20 S. E. (2d) 292. Said notice shall give the name of defendant, the crime of which he was convicted, and, if the statutory time for perfecting the appeal has been extended by agreement, the time of such extension must be stated. State v. Mitchell, 221 N. C. 460, 20 S. E. (2d) 292. Said notice shall give the name of defendant, the crime of which he was convicted, and, if the statutory time for perfecting the appeal has been extended by agreement, the time of such extension must be stated. State v. Mitchell, 221 N. C. 460, 20 S. E. (2d) 292. Said notice shall give the name of defendant, the crime of which he was convicted, and, if the statutory time for perfecting the appeal has been extended by agreement, the time of such extension must be stated. State v. Mitchell, 221 N. C. 460, 20 S. E. (2d) 292.
§ 15-186 Procedure upon receipt of certificate of supreme court.—The clerk of the superior court, in all cases where the judgment has been affirmed (except where the conviction is a capital felony), shall forthwith on receipt of the certificate of the opinion of the supreme court notify the sheriff, who shall proceed to execute the sentence which was appealed from. In criminal cases where the judgment is not affirmed the cases shall be placed upon the docket for trial at the first ensuing term of the court after the receipt of such certificate. (Rev. s. 3283; 1857, c. 192, s. 3; C. S. 4656.)

§ 15-187 Death by administration of lethal gas.—Death by electrocution under sentence of law is hereby abolished and death by the administration of lethal gas substituted therefor. (1909, c. 443, s. 1; 1935, c. 294, s. 1; C. S. 4657.)

Cross Reference.—As to punishment for capital crimes committed before July 1, 1935, see § 15-191.

Editor's Note.—Prior to the amendment of 1935, this section provided for electrocution.

This section applies only to crimes committed after the effective date of the statute, 1 July, 1935, and it will not support a sentence of death by lethal gas imposed for a capital crime committed prior to the effective date of the statute although defendant was tried and convicted after the effective date thereof. State v. Dingle, 209 N. C. 293, 172 S. E. 376; State v. McNell, 211 N. C. 286, 287, 189 S. E. 872.

§ 15-188. Manner and place of execution.—The mode of executing a death sentence must in every case be by causing the convict or felon to inhale lethal gas of sufficient quantity to cause death, and the administration of such lethal gas must be continued until such convict or felon is dead; and when any person, convict or felon shall be sentenced by any court of the state having competent jurisdiction to be so executed, such punishment shall only be inflicted within a permanent death chamber which the superintendent of the state penitentiary is hereby authorized and directed to provide within the walls of the North Carolina penitentiary at Raleigh, North Carolina. The superintendent of the state penitentiary shall also cause to be provided, in conformity with this article and approved by the governor and council of state, the necessary appliances for the infliction of the punishment of death in accordance with the requirements of this article. 1909, c. 443, s. 2; 1935, c. 294, s. 2; C. S. 4658.)

§ 15-189. Sentence of death; prisoner taken to penitentiary.—Upon the sentence of death being pronounced against any person in the state of North Carolina convicted of a crime punishable by death it shall be the duty of the judge pronouncing such death sentence to make the same in writing, which shall be filed in the papers in the case against such convicted person, and a certified copy thereof shall be transmitted by the clerk of the superior court in which such sentence is pronounced to the warden of the state penitentiary at Raleigh, North Carolina, not more than twenty nor less than ten days before the time fixed in the judgment of the court for the execution of the sentence; and in all cases where there is no appeal from the sentence of death and in all cases where the sentence is pronounced against a prisoner convicted of the crime of rape it shall be the duty of the sheriff, together with at least one deputy, to convey to the penitentiary at Raleigh such condemned felon or convict forthwith upon the adjournment of the court in which the felon was tried, and deliver the convict or felon to the warden of the penitentiary: Provided, that in all cases where an appeal is taken from the death sentence by any person convicted of a crime punishable by death, except the crime of rape, such convicted felon or convict shall not be taken or conveyed to the penitentiary unless, in the judgment of the sheriff of the county in which the felon was tried and the solicitor prosecuting the felon, it shall be deemed necessary for the safety and safekeeping of the convicted person or felon during the pendence of the appeal. (1909, c. 443, s. 3; C. S. 4659.)

Judgment Must Be Written and Signed by Trial Judge.—The entry of judgment of the court on the verdict of guilty of a capital felony by the clerk of the court on its minutes and signed by the judge is not a sufficient compliance with the provisions of this section unless its mandatory provisions requiring the judgment to be written and signed by the judge, and where it appears of record that he has failed so to do the case will be remanded. State v. Jackson, 199 N. C. 321, 154 S. E. 402.

Death Sentence without Reference to Crime.—A judgment sentencing defendant to death for the commission of a capital felony, though making no reference to the trial or the crime of which the defendant was convicted, is, nevertheless, sufficient to meet the requirements of this section. State v. Taylor, 194 N. C. 738, 140 S. E. 728.

When No Reference to Trial or Crime Is Made.—A judgment, while somewhat informal, because it made no reference to the trial or the crime of which the prisoner was convicted, is, nevertheless, sufficient to meet the requirements of this section. State v. Edney, 202 N. C. 706, 707, 164 S. E. 23.

§ 15-190. A guard or guards or other person to be named and designated by the warden to execute sentence.—Some guard or guards or other reliable person or persons to be named and designated by the warden from time to time shall cause the person, convict or felon against whom the death sentence has been so pronounced to be asphyxiated as provided by this article and all amendments thereto. The asphyxiation shall be under the general supervision and control of the warden of the penitentiary, who shall from time to time, in writing, name and designate the guard or guards or other reliable person or persons who shall cause the person, convict or felon against whom the death sentence has been pronounced to be asphyxiated as provided by this article and all amendments thereto. At such execution there shall be present the warden or deputy warden or some person designated by the warden in his stead; the surgeon or physician of the penitentiary and six respectable citizens, the counsel and any relatives of such person, convict or felon and a minister or ministers of the gospel may be present if they so desire, and the board of directors of the penitentiary may provide for and pay the fee for each execution not to exceed thirty-five dollars ($35.00). (1909, c. 443, s. 4; 1925, c. 123; 1935, c. 294, s. 3; C. S. 4660.)

§ 15-191. Pending sentences unaffected.—Nothing in §§ 15-187, 15-188, and 15-190 shall be construed to alter in any manner the execution of the sentence of death imposed on account of any crime or crimes committed before July 1, 1935. (1935, c. 294, s. 4.)

Editor's Note.—The act from which this section was codified changed the mode of executing a death sentence from electrocution to the administration of lethal gas.

§ 15-194. Judgment sustained on appeal, reprieve, time for execution.—In case of an appeal, should the Supreme Court find no error in the trial, or should the stay of execution granted by any competent judicial tribunal or proceeding, or reprieve by the Governor, have expired or terminated, such condemned person, convict or felon shall be executed, in the manner heretofore provided in this article, upon the third Friday after the filing of the opinion or order of the Supreme Court or other competent judicial tribunal or proceeding, or reprieve by the Governor, have expired or terminated, such condemned person, convict or felon shall be executed, in the manner heretofore provided in this article, upon the third Friday after the filing of the opinion or order of the Supreme Court or other competent judicial tribunal as aforesaid, or, in case of a reprieve by the Governor, such condemned person, convict or felon shall be executed in the manner heretofore provided in this article upon the third Friday after the expiration or termination of such reprieve; and it shall be the duty of the clerk of the Supreme Court, and of any other competent tribunal, as aforesaid, or the clerk thereof, to notify the warden of the penitentiary of the date of the filing of the opinion or order of such court or other judicial tribunal, and in case of a reprieve by the Governor, it shall be the duty of the Governor to give notice to the warden of the State Penitentiary of the date of the expiration of such reprieve. (1909, c. 443, s. 6; 1925, c. 55; C. S. 4663.)

§ 15-195. New trial granted, prisoner taken to place of trial.—Should a new trial be granted the condemned person, convict or felon against whom sentence of death has been pronounced, after he has been conveyed to the penitentiary, he shall be conveyed back to the place of trial by such guard or guards as the warden of the penitentiary shall direct, their expenses to be paid as is now provided by law for the conveyance of convicts to the penitentiary. (1909, c. 443, s. 7; C. S. 4664.)

§ 15-196. Disposition of body.—Upon application, written or verbal, of any relative as near as the degree of fourth cousin of the person executed, made at any time prior to the execution or on the morning thereof, the body, after execution, shall be prepared for burial under the supervision of the warden or deputy warden and shall be returned to the nearest railroad station of the relative or relatives asking for such body. In the event that no relative asks for the body of such executed person, convict or felon, the same shall be disposed of as other bodies of convicts dying in the penitentiary. (1909, c. 443, s. 9; 1925, c. 275, s. 6; C. S. 4665.)

Cross References.—As to disposition of other bodies of convicts, see § 50-212.

Art. 20. Suspension of Sentence and Probation.

§ 15-197. Suspension of sentence and probation.—After conviction or plea of guilty or nolo contendere for any offense, except a crime punishable by death or life imprisonment, the judge of any court of record with criminal jurisdiction may suspend the imposition or the execution of a sentence and place the defendant on probation or may impose a fine and also place the defendant on probation. (1937, c. 132, s. 1.)

Cross References.—As to suspension of sentence in basby proceedings, see § 49-8. As to probation in cases of prostitution, see § 14-208. As to restoration of citizenship in case of pardon or suspension of judgment, see § 13-6.

Editor's Note.—For a discussion of the act from which this article was codified, see 15 N. C. Law Rev. p. 345. For comment on 1939 amendatory act, see 17 N. C. Law Rev. 350.

For article on punishment for crime in North Carolina, see 29 N. C. Law Rev. 549, 15 S. E. (2d) 9.

History.—For nearly half a century prior to 1937, the trial judges in North Carolina operated a system of probation on their own initiative, permitted convicted criminals to go at large on specified conditions, and arrested them upon warrants if the terms of probation were violated. Either the sentence of imprisonment would be formally entered and execution suspended on conditions, or prayer for judgment would be continued in like manner. Since 1937 this power has been expressly continued by this article as a part of the state's probation system. Pelley v. Colpoys, 122 F. (2d) 12, 13.

Probation Must Be Consistent with Right of Appeal.—Where the privilege of probation, granted by this article, is so conditioned as to be inconsistent with a defendant's right of appeal, the judgment is erroneous. State v. Calbert, 29 N. C. Law Rev. 549, 15 S. E. (2d) 9.

§ 15-198. Investigation by probation officer.—When directed by the court the probation officer shall fully investigate and report to the court in writing the circumstances of the offense and the criminal record, social history, and present condition of the defendant, including, whenever practicable, the findings of a physical and mental examination of the defendant. When the services of a probation officer are available to the court, no defendant charged with a felony, and, unless the court shall direct otherwise in individual cases, no other defendant shall be placed on probation or released under suspension of sentence until the § 15-199. Conditions of probation.—The court shall determine and may impose, by order duly entered, and may at any time modify the conditions of probation and may include among them the following, or any other: That the probationer shall:

(a) Avoid injurious or vicious habits;
(b) Avoid persons or places of disreputable or harmful character;
(c) Report to the probation officer as directed;
(d) Permit the probation officer to visit at his home or elsewhere;
(e) Work faithfully at suitable employment as far as possible;
(f) Remain within a specified area;
(g) Pay a fine in one or several sums as directed by the court;
(h) Make reparation or restitution to the aggrieved party for the damage or loss caused by his harmful character;

The period of probation or suspension of sentence shall not exceed a period of five years and shall be determined by the judge of the court and may be continued or extended, within the above limit. Upon the satisfactory fulfillment of the conditions of probation or suspension of sentence the court shall by order duly entered discharge the defendant. At any time during the period of probation or suspension of sentence, the court may issue a warrant and cause the defendant to be arrested for violating any of the conditions of probation or suspension of sentence. Any police officer, or other officer with power of arrest, upon the request of the probation officer, may arrest a probationer without a warrant. In case of an arrest without a warrant the arresting officer shall have a written statement signed by said probation officer setting forth that the probationer has, in his judgment, violated the conditions of probation; and said statement shall be sufficient warrant for the detention of said probationer in the county jail, or other appropriate place of detention, until said probationer shall be brought before the judge of the court. Such probation officer shall forthwith report such arrest and detention to the judge of the court, or in superior court cases to the judge holding the courts of the district, or the resident judge, or any judge commissioned at the time to hold court in said district, and submit in writing a report showing in what manner the probationer has violated probation. Upon such arrest, with or without warrant, the court shall cause the defendant to be brought before it in or out of term and may revoke the probation or suspension of sentence, and shall proceed to deal with the case as if there had been no probation or suspension of sentence.

Editor's Note.—The 1939 amendment inserted in the first sentence the words "suspended by the court at any time". It also inserted in the sixth sentence the proviso as to superior court cases, and in the last sentence the words "in or out of term.

§ 15-200. Termination of probation, arrest, subsequent disposition.—The period of probation or suspension of sentence shall not exceed a period of five years and shall be determined by the judge of the court and may be continued or extended, terminated or suspended by the court at any time, within the above limit. Upon the satisfactory fulfillment of the conditions of probation or suspension of sentence the court shall by order duly entered discharge the defendant. At any time during the period of probation or suspension of sentence, the court may issue a warrant and cause the defendant to be arrested for violating any of the conditions of probation or suspension of sentence. Any police officer, or other officer with power of arrest, upon the request of the probation officer, may arrest a probationer without a warrant. In case of an arrest without a warrant the arresting officer shall have a written statement signed by said probation officer setting forth that the probationer has, in his judgment, violated the conditions of probation; and said statement shall be sufficient warrant for the detention of said probationer in the county jail, or other appropriate place of detention, until said probationer shall be brought before the judge of the court. Such probation officer shall forthwith report such arrest and detention to the judge of the court, or in superior court cases to the judge holding the courts of the district, or the resident judge, or any judge commissioned at the time to hold court in said district, and submit in writing a report showing in what manner the probationer has violated probation. Upon such arrest, with or without warrant, the court shall cause the defendant to be brought before it in or out of term and may revoke the probation or suspension of sentence, and shall proceed to deal with the case as if there had been no probation or suspension of sentence.

§ 15-202. Duties and powers of the commissioner; meetings; appointment of director of probation; qualifications.—With respect to the administration of probation in the state, except cases within the jurisdiction of the juvenile courts, the state probation commission shall exercise general supervision; formulate policies; adopt general rules, not inconsistent with law, to regulate methods of procedure; and set standards for personnel. It shall meet at stated times to be fixed by it not less often than once every three months, and on call of its chairman, to consider any matters relating to probation in the state.

The state probation commission, with the approval of the governor, shall appoint a director of probation, who shall serve as its executive secretary, and shall receive a salary to be fixed by the governor and the council of state and who shall give his entire time to the work. When the necessity of the service requires, it shall appoint one or more assistants and fix their salaries.

The person appointed as director of probation shall be qualified by education, training, experience and temperament for the duties of the office. (1937, c. 132, s. 6; 1943, c. 638.)

Cross Reference.—As to administration of probation with respect to cases within the jurisdiction of juvenile courts, see § 110-31 et seq.

Editor's Note.—Prior to the 1943 amendment this section provided a minimum salary of $3,600 and a maximum salary of $4,500 for the director.

§ 15-203. Duties of the director of probation; appointment of probation officers; reports.—The director of probation shall appoint, subject to the approval of the state probation commission, such probation officers as are required for service in the state and such clerical assistance as may be necessary: Provided, that before any persons other than the director of probation shall be appointed, the state probation commission shall make up and submit to the governor a budget covering its proposed organization and expenditures, and no fund shall be available to carry out the purpose of this article except to the extent that said budget is approved first by the state highway and public works commission, and then by the director of the budget.

The director of probation shall direct the work of the probation officers appointed under this article. He shall consult and cooperate with the courts and institutions in the development of methods and procedure in the administration of probation, and shall arrange conferences of probation officers and judges. He shall make an annual written report with statistical and other information to the probation commission and the governor. (1937, c. 132, s. 7.)

§ 15-204. Assignment and compensation and oath of probation officers.—Probation officers appointed under this article shall be assigned to serve in such courts or districts or otherwise as the director of probation may determine. They shall be paid annual salaries to be fixed by the probation commission, and shall also be paid traveling and other necessary expenses incurred in the performance of their official duties as probation officers when such expense accounts have been authorized and approved by the director of probation.

Each person appointed as a probation officer shall take an oath of office before the judge of the court or courts in which he is to serve, which oath shall be as follows:

"I, ............ do solemnly and sincerely swear that I will be faithful and bear true allegiance to the State of North Carolina, and to the constitutional powers and authorities which are or may be established for the government thereof; and that I will endeavor to support, maintain, and defend the Constitution of said State, not inconsistent with the Constitution of the United States, to the best of my knowledge and ability; so help me God;" and shall be noted of record by the clerk of the court. (1937, c. 132, s. 8.)

Cited in State v. Calcutt, 219 N. C. 545, 15 S. E. (2d) 9 (dis. op.).

§ 15-205. Duties and powers of the probation officers.—A probation officer shall investigate all cases referred to him for investigation by the juvenile court or courts or by the director of probation, and shall report in writing thereon. He shall furnish to each person released on probation under his supervision a written statement of the conditions of probation and shall instruct him regarding the same. Such officer shall keep informed concerning the conduct and condition of each person on probation under his supervision by visiting, requiring reports, and in other ways, and shall report thereon in writing as often as the court or the director of probation may require. Such officer shall use all practicable and suitable methods, not inconsistent with the conditions imposed by the court, or the director of probation, to aid and encourage persons on probation to bring about improvement in their conduct and condition. Such officer shall keep detailed records of his work: Provided, that such records in writing to the director of probation as he may require; and shall perform such other duties as the director of probation may require. A probation officer shall have, in the execution of his duties, the powers of arrest and, to the extent necessary for the performance of his duties, the same right to execute process as is now given, or that may hereafter be given by law, to the sheriffs of this state. (1937, c. 132, s. 9.)

§ 15-206. Co-operation with commissioner of parole and officials of local units.—It shall be the duty of the director of probation and the commissioner of parole to co-operate with each other to the end that the purposes of probation and parole may be more effectively carried out. When requested, each shall make available to the other case records in his possession, and in cases of emergency, where time and expense can be saved, shall provide investigation service.

It is hereby made the duty of every city, county, or state official or department to render all assistance and co-operation which may further the objects of this article. The state probation commission, the director of probation, and the probation officers are authorized to seek the co-operation of such officials and departments, and especially of the county superintendents of public welfare and of the state board of charities and public welfare. (1937, c. 132, s. 10.)
CHAPTER 16. GAMING CONTRACTS

§ 16-1. Gaming Contracts.

16-1. Gaming and betting contracts void.

16-2. Players and better's competent witnesses.

Art. 2. Contracts for “Futures.”

16-3. Certain contracts as to “futures” void.

§ 16-1. Gaming and betting contracts void.—All wagers, bets or stakes made to depend upon any race, or upon any gaming or lot, chance, casualty or unknown or contingent event whatever, shall be unlawful; and all contracts, judgments, conveyances and assurances for and on account of any money or property, or thing in action, so wagered, bet or staked, or to pay, or to secure any money, or property, or thing in action, lent or advanced for the purpose of such wagering, betting, or staking as aforesaid, shall be void. (Rev., s. 1687; Code, ss. 2841, 2842; R. C., c. 51, ss. 1, 2; 1810, C. 796; C. S. 2143.)

Cross Reference.—As to criminal laws regarding gambling, see § 14-289 et seq.

In General.—A gaming contract or wager is a contract by which two or more agree that a certain sum of money or other thing shall be paid or delivered to one of them on the happening or not happening of an uncertain event. Bouv. Law Dict.

At common law all gambling contracts were void. Generally, in this country, all wagers and gambling contracts are held to be illegal and void as against public policy. Irwin v. Willif., 110 U. S. 499, 510, 4 S. Ct. 160, 28 L. Ed. 225.

Liberal Construction.—This section is construed liberally. Turner v. Peacock, 11 N. C. 301.

Gambling contracts are void, because they are so declared by this section. Morehead Banking Co. v. Tate, 122 N. C. 313, 317, 30 S. E. 341.

Judgments in Invitum Not Included.—This section does not include judgments taken in invitum, such as are confessed or taken by consent. Teague v. Perry, 64 N. C. 39.

No Recovery Where Game Fair.—It is settled that money, or a horse, or a judgment, won at cards and actually paid and delivered, can not be recovered back, the game being fairly played. Teague v. Perry, 64 N. C. 39, 41; Hudspeth v. Wilson, 13 N. C. 372; Warden v. Plummer, 49 N. C. 507; Hosges v. Plummer, 4 N. C. 276.

Unfair Gaming Always Illegal.—Unfair gaming was not only illegal by force of the statute against gaming, but was unlawful at common law, so that the money, or thing won, if it had been paid, might be recovered back in an action at law. Warden v. Plummer, 49 N. C. 524, 526; Webb v. Fulchire, 25 N. C. 485.

Same—Recovery.—Where a man is cheated out of his money, though it is in playing at a game forbidden by law, he may recover back what he has paid from the person who practiced the fraud upon him. Webb v. Fulchire, 25 N. C. 465, cited in note in 5 L. R. A., N. S., 907.

The provisions of this article shall be fixed in accordance with the Executive Budget Act and the Personnel Act, and shall be paid by the state highway and public works commission out of the state highway funds, under direction of the director of the budget. (1937, c. 132, s. 12.)

§ 15-209. Accommodations for probation officers.—The county commissioners in each county in which a probation officer serves shall provide, in or near the courthouse, suitable office space for such officer. (1937, c. 132, s. 13.)

Chapter 16. Gaming Contracts and Futures.

Sec. 16-4. Entering into or aiding contract for “futures” misdemeanor.

16-5. Opening office for sales of “futures” misdemeanor.

16-6. Evidence in prosecutions under this article.

No Recovery on Bond Unfairly Won.—Where A., at a game of cards unfairly played, won a justice's judgment from B., and took from the defendant in the judgment a bond payable to himself for the amount, on which he brought suit, to which the statute against gaming was pleaded, it was held that he could not recover. Warden v. Plummer, 49 N. C. 524.

Subsequent Note Valid.—A note given subsequently, in purchase of a magistrate's judgment which had been won at cards by the payee from the maker, is not void under this section against gaming. Teague v. Perry, 64 N. C. 39.

Rights of Innocent Holder of Gambling Note.—This section applies to a note originally given for a gambling debt, renders this and all notes and contracts in like cases void, this being true, no action thereon can be sustained. The position as stated is undoubtedly the law in this jurisdiction, and is in accord with well considered authorities elsewhere. This principle, however, is allowed to prevail only where the action is on the note to enforce its obligations, and due not affect or extend to suits by an innocent endorsee for value, and holder in due course, against the endorser on his contract of endorse. Wachovia Bank, etc., Co. v. Crafton, 161 N. C. 404, 405, 107 S. E. 316.

Intent of Parties.—Where the transaction is legitimate on the face of the game, the party cannot avoid it by claiming that it was a gambling contract where the proof shows that the other party did not so understand it, but believed it to be a valid agreement. Bibb v. Allen, 149 U. S. 481, 492, 13 S. Ct. 950, 37 L. Ed. 817.

Money Loaned for Gaming.—Money lent to play at gaming, or to play at the time of loss, is not recoverable. Mooring v. Stanton, 1 N. C. 70.

When Stakeholder Liable.—When money is deposited with a stakeholder, to be delivered to the winner, and the stakeholder pays over the money, after notice from the loser not to do so, the loser may recover the money from the stakeholder. Wood v. Wood, 7 N. C. 172; Forrest v. Hart, 7 N. C. 458.

Note Given in Foreign State Unenforceable.—A note given in consideration of a bet won on a horse race cannot be enforced in this state although given in a state where wagering contracts are not invalid. Gooch v. Fautt, 122 N. C. 270, 29 S. E. 362. See Burrus v. Witcover, 158 N. C. 384, 74 S. E. 11.

Card a Game of Chance.—It is a matter of common knowledge that a game of cards is a game of chance. State v. Taylor, 111 N. C. 680, 16 S. E. 168.

 Betting on Horse Race.—It was the intention of this section to make betting on horse races a criminal offense, since such wagering contracts had already been outlawed and the denouement of the wager as unlawful came in by amendment at a later time. State v. Brown, 221 N. C. 301, 304, 20 S. E. (2d) 286.

"Shuffleboard."—The keeping of a gaming table called a "shuffleboard" is not indictable, as the game is not one of chance, but of skill. State v. Bishop, 30 N. C. 266.

"Shooting for Beef" and other called "shooting for skill," for which the participants pay for the "chance" or privilege of shooting, is not a game of chance there being no "chance" in the sense of the acts against gambling. State v. DeBoy, 117 N. C. 702, 23 S. E. 167.

§ 16-2. Players and betters competent witnesses. — No person shall be excused or incapacitated from confessing or testifying touching any money or property, or thing in action, so wagered, bet or staked, or lent for such purpose, by reason of his having won, played, bet or staked upon any game, lot or chance, casualty, or unknown or contingent event aforesaid; but the confession or testimony of such person shall not be used against him, in any criminal prosecution, on account of such betting, wagering or staking. (Rev., s. 1688; Code, s. 2843; R. C., c. 51, s. 3; C. S. 2143.)

Cross References.—As to rule of evidence generally that defendant is not compellable to testify, see § 8-54. As to exception with reference to testimony as to gambling, etc., defendant is not compellable to testify, see § 8-54. As to defenses, see § 8-55.

Art. 2. Contracts for "Futures." —Every contract, whether in writing or not, whereby any person shall agree to sell and deliver any cotton, Indian corn, wheat, rye, oats, tobacco, meal, lard, bacon, salt pork, salt fish, beef, cattle, sugar, coffee, stacks, bonds, and choses in action, at a place and at a time specified and agreed upon therein, to any other person, whether the person to whom such contract is so agreed to be sold and delivered shall be a party to such contract or not, when, in fact, and notwithstanding the terms expressed of such contract, it is not intended by the parties thereto that the articles or things so agreed to be sold and delivered shall be actually delivered, or the value thereof paid, but it is intended and understood by them that money or other thing of value shall be paid to the one party by the other. See Rodgers, etc., Co. v. Bell, 156 N. C. 378, 384, 72 S. E. 817.

From these considerations, it seems clear that the last sentence of this section was inserted "unnecessarily and out of place of this section," and it is to be treated as "bucket shops," and, having provided for this in sections 1 and 2, the statute contains several additional sections relating to the statute of 1889 and all of them having reference to the question of proof which should be required in foreclosing the act. The Law of 1905 then, in its closing section, provided: "That this act shall not be construed so as to apply to any person, firm, or corporation, etc., that this is the first time these words appear in our legislation, and, so far as they have reference to the law of 1889, it is clear that the Legislature, in the original statute, only intended that they should affect questions of proof. See Rodgers, etc., Co. v. Bell, 156 N. C. 378, 384, 72 S. E. 817.

The 1911 act amended the "Bucket Shop Act" of 1889, now this section, so as to exempt contracts with respect to purchase or sale where they are made in accordance with the regulations of any exchange, and where the rules of the exchange permit either party to require delivery. It was intended to remove the ban of illegality from transactions on legitimate exchanges, as distinguished from "an establishment" for the transaction of a book of business, or business of a similar character, but really for the registration of lots or wagers, usually for small amounts, on the rise or fall of stock, grain, etc., there being no

Section Constitutional.—This section is in furtherance of our declared public policy, and is constitutional and valid. Randolph v. Heath, 171 N. C. 383, 88 S. E. 731; Rankin v. Mitchem, 141 N. C. 277, 53 S. E. 684. See also State v. Stone, 141 N. C. 381, 53 S. E. 731; and English v. Page, 125 N. C. 215, 51 S. E. 305. See 9 N. C. Law Rev. 358, 359.

Test of Validity under Section.—The test of the validity of a contract for 'future' which this section requires is the 'intention not to actually deliver' the articles bought or sold for future delivery. No matter how explicit the words in any contract which may require a delivery, if in fact there is no intention to deliver, but the real understanding is that on the stipulated date the losing party shall pay to the other the difference between the market price and the contract price, this is a gambling contract. Rodgers, et al. v. Bell, 156 N. C. 378, 380, 72 S. E. 817, 818; E. v. R., 190 N. C. 236, 237, 180 S. E. 305.

When there is no real transaction, no real contract for purchase or sale, but only a wager upon the rise or fall of the price of stock, or an article of merchandise in the exchange or market, one party agreeing to pay, if there is a rise, and the other party agreeing to pay if there is a fall in price, the agreement is a pure wager. No business is done—nothing is acquired or sold—contracted for but there is only a bet. Ovis Bros. & Co. v. Holt-Morgan Mills, 193 N. C. 231, 233, 91 S. E. 948.

The North Carolina statutes prohibiting gambling in futures and denying jurisdiction of the courts to suits on judgments based upon such contracts have been upheld as constituting an exception to the application of the full faith and credit clause of the constitution, on the ground that the judgments sued on were rendered on a transaction expressly forbidden by our statute on gaming, and that the judgment was not raised, investigated or determined in the courts of the State in which the judgment was originally rendered. Mott v. Davis, 151 N. C. 237, 65 S. E. 969.

The contract, by its terms, not disclosing any gambling element, the matter is to be settled by ascertaining the true underlying purpose of the parties. Was it in the intention of both parties that the cotton should not be delivered, and did they conceal in the deceptive terms of a fair and lawful contract the essential element of the gambling agreement, by which they contemplated no real transaction as to the article contracted to be delivered? Edgerton & Son v. Edgerton & Bros., 151 N. C. 167, 99 S. E. 53; Harvey & Son v. Pettaway, 156 N. C. 375, 69 S. E. 53; B. v. Pettaway, 156 N. C. 375, 69 S. E. 53; Rodgers, et al. v. Bell, 156 N. C. 378, 72 S. E. 817; Burns v. Tomlinson, 147 N. C. 645, 61 S. E. 614; Rankin v. Mitchem, 141 N. C. 277, 53 S. E. 854; Hold v. Wellons, 163 N. C. 124, 129, 79 S. E. 450. It is immaterial whether the parties intended that the commodity contracted for should not be actually delivered is the cardinal element of a "future's" contract made illegal by this section and the courts will disregard the form and ascertain whether the underlying purpose of the parties was to avoid the performance of the contract and the price of the commodity. Fenner v. Tucker, 213 N. C. 419, 196 S. E. 357.

Same—Same—Parol Evidence.—Section requiring void and unenforceable in our courts a contract for the sale of cotton must be construed to require the margin of the contract and that the parties did not contemplate the delivery of the thing bargained for, but only a payment to be made for the loss incurred or a profit to be received in accordance with the fall or rise of the market, looks to the substance of the contract agreement and to its form, and parol evidence is competent to show the intention of the parties entering therein. Welles & Co. v. Satterfield, 190 N. C. 89, 129 S. E. 177.

CH. 16. GAMING CONTRACTS

Action upon judgment obtained in foreign state. See Cody v. Hovey, 217 N. C. 407, 8 S. E. (2d) 479. For note on this case, see 18 N. C. Law Rev. 224.

Bucket Shop.—A "bucket shop" has been defined as "an establishment nominally for the purpose of buying and selling cotton, but in reality used for gambling purposes, in which the cotton business is a mere sham, and, so far from the parties not having the intention to deliver the cotton, such a delivery is absolutely impossible."—Gatewood v. North Carolina, 203 U. S. 531, 27 S. Ct. 167, 51 L. Ed. 305. For other definitions, see State v. McGinnis, 138 N. C. 724, 51 S. E. 50.

Contracts for Future Delivery.—As well settled that contracts for the future delivery of merchandise or tangible property, not void where such property is in existence in the hands of the seller, or to be subsequently acquired. Bibb v. Allen, 149 U. S. 461, 493, 13 S. Ct. 950, 957, 37 L. Ed. 738.

Thus the fact that it is the practice of persons making sales for future delivery to settle the same by setting off one sale against another, will not render it invalid. Board v. Christie Grain, etc., Co., 198 U. S. 236, 247, 25 S. Ct. 637, 49 L. Ed. 1031.

Within Police Power.—This section forbidding the business of running a "bucket shop," is clearly within the police power of the State. State v. McGinnis, 138 N. C. 724, 51 S. E. 50.

Illegal Contract.—This section clearly defines what is an illegal contract where there is no real sale, but merely an agreement for an adjustment upon the basis of the prices in the commodities at the time of the transaction. Co. v. Holt-Morgan Mills, 173 N. C. 231, 233, 91 S. E. 948.

Not Contrary to Federal Constitution.—When, in an action pending in the courts of this State to recover on a judgment rendered in the Courts of New York, the plaintiff attempted to allege in its answer a fact which would prescribe when and under what circumstances and as to what offenses a certain act shall be prima facie evidence. Therefore, a provision that the purchase of commodities upon margin, under certain circumstances shall be a prior offense, and in such case that such purchases were void, and other circumstances shall not constitute such prima facie evidence, is not a discrimination forbidden by the Fourteenth Amendment. State v. Clyatt, 138 N. C. 89, 94, 129 S. E. 177. This section was added under what formerly constituted § 2145 of the Consolidated Statutes, which section was repealed by P. L. 1931, c. 239.

Contracts to Which This Section Applies.—Where the defendant has induced the plaintiff to purchase certain shares of stock, through himself, from his own broker, upon margin, the broker to carry the stock upon its hypothecation with his own broker or to sell the stock, and the broker, unknown to the plaintiff, to sell the stock and place the proceeds to his own account, and uses the same and other money upon margin advanced from time to time by the plaintiff on judgment against the defendant as a defense. Gladstone v. Swain, 187 N. C. 712, 122 S. E. 755.

A note given for margins upon an illegal contract for cotton futures, without intention of delivery of the cotton, cannot be collected by suit in our courts, and the promisor’s repeated promise to pay it cannot impair any bond by the acts and statements of his agents in negotiating, etc., is a genuine and undiscoverable note given for a valid contract upon the understanding that such contracts were absolutely void. Martin v. Bush, 199 N. C. 93, 154 S. E. 638.

A contract for “cotton futures” in which no actual delivery is intended or contemplated is void and no action may be maintained thereon. Bodie v. Horn, 211 N. C. 397, 191 S. E. 191.

Both Parties Must Have Intent.—It was never held that when an innocent party had made a contract valid in its terms, his rights acquired thereunder should be denied him by the mere statement that it was not intended to be a legal transaction. To avoid the contract the vitiating purpose or understanding must be shared in by both. Rodgers, etc., Co. v. Bell, 110 N. C. 378, 83, 73 S. E. 617.

Unauthorized Agent.—An agent of a draft which he knows to have been given in the unlawful purchase of cotton futures, or in maintaining or purchasing margins in contracts of that character, is a party to the prohibited contract, the consideration is illegal and he cannot recover from the payee in his action on the draft. Burrus v. Witcover, 158 N. C. 384, 74 S. E. 11; 39 L. R. A. (N. S.) 1055.

Where there is evidence that contracts set up by certain defendants in an action by the receiver of a brokerage business were to be used for speculation and based upon “margins,” and that no actual delivery of the cotton was intended by the parties, the evidence is sufficient to support a finding that the contracts were void under this section and that the contracts were void and the judgment that such contracts were absolutely void will be sustained. Martin v. Bush, 199 N. C. 93, 154 S. E. 638.

Unlawful Purchase of Cotton.—When there is evidence that the contract was founded upon speculation and based upon “margins,” and that no actual delivery of the cotton was intended by the parties, the evidence is sufficient to support a finding that the contracts were void under this section and that the contracts were void and the judgment that such contracts were absolutely void will be sustained. Martin v. Bush, 199 N. C. 93, 154 S. E. 638.

Burden Not upon Administrator.—Where an administrator paid certain notes and it was later alleged by the legatee that the contracts were unlawful and that the notes were given for a valid contract upon the understanding that such contracts were absolutely void, it was held that the burden of proving that the plaintiff had paid the notes which should not have been paid, it was held that former § 2140 did not apply so as to put the burden of proving that the notes were given for a valid contract upon the administrator. Overman v. Lanier, 157 N. C. 544, 71 S. E. 192.

This case was decided under what formerly constituted § 2146 of the Consolidated Statutes, which section was repealed by P. L. 1931, c. 236.

Evidence Sufficient.—The purchaser makes out a prima facie case upon evidence that the contract was founded upon a gambling or wagering consideration in violation of this section. Wells & Co. v. Satterfield, 190 N. C. 89, 129 S. E. 177. This case was decided under what formerly constituted § 2145 of the Consolidated Statutes, which section was repealed by P. L. 1931, c. 236.

When Question for Jury.—Where the contract is not a gambling one on its face the underlying purpose and intent of the parties should be left to the jury. Harvey v. Pettaway, 156 N. C. 375, 377, 72 S. E. 364.

Where the plaintiff himself testified that he did not buy certain cotton in the ordinary course of his business as a cotton manufacturer for use in his mill, this was prima facie evidence that the contract was a gambling one. Burns v. Tomlinson, 147 N. C. 645, 61 S. E. 614. This case was decided under what formerly constituted § 2145 of the Consolidated Statutes, which section was repealed by P. L. 1931, c. 236.

§ 16-4. Entering into or aiding contract for “futures” misdemeanor.—If any person shall become a party to any contract declared void in this article; or if any person shall be the agent, directly or indirectly, of any party in making or furthering or effectuating the same; or if any agent or officer of a corporation shall in any manner knowingly aid in making or furthering any such contract to which the corporation is a party, he shall be deemed to have violated this section, and on conviction shall be fined not less than one hundred dollars nor more than five hundred dollars, and may be imprisoned in the discretion of the court.

If any person shall, while in this state, consent to become a party to any such contract made in another state, and if any person shall, as agent of any person or corporation, become a party to any such contract made in another state, or in this state do any act or in any way aid in the making or furthering of any such contract so made in another state, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction shall be fined not less than fifty nor more than two hundred dollars, and may be imprisoned in the discretion of the court. (Rev., ss. 3823, 3824; 1889, c. 221, ss. 3, 4; C. S. 2147.)

§ 16-5. Opening office for sales of “futures” misdemeanor.—If any person, corporation or other association of persons, either as principal or agent, shall establish or open an office or place of business in this state for the purpose of carrying on or engaging in making such contracts as are forbidden in this article, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall on conviction be fined and imprisoned in the discretion of the court. (Rev., § 3825; 1889, c. 221, ss. 3, 4; C. S. 2148.)

§ 16-6. Evidence in prosecutions under this article.—No person shall be excused on any prosecution under the provisions of this article from testifying touching anything done by himself or others contrary to the provisions thereof, but no discovery made by the witness upon such examination shall be used against him in any penal or criminal prosecution, and he shall be altogether pardoned of the offense so done or participated in by him. In all such prosecutions proof that the defendant was a party to a contract, as agent or principal, to sell and deliver any article, thing or property specified or named in this article, or that he was the agent, directly or indirectly, of any party in making, furthering or effectuating the same, or that he was the agent of any corporation or association or person in making, furthering or effectuating the same, and that the article, thing or property agreed to be sold and delivered was not actually delivered, and that settlement was made or agreed to be made upon the difference in value of said article, thing or property, shall constitute against such defendant prima facie evidence of guilt. Proof that any person, corporation or other association of persons, either as principal or agent, has established an office or place where are posted or published from information received the fluctuating prices of grain, cotton, provisions, stocks, bonds and other commodities, or of any one or more of the same, shall constitute prima facie evidence of being guilty of violating the provisions of this article. (Rev., s. 3826; 1905, ss. 3, 4, 5; C. S. 2149.)

§ 17-1. Remedy without delay for restraint of liberty. — Every person restrained of his liberty is entitled to a remedy to inquire into the lawfulness thereof, and to remove the same, if unlawful; and such remedy ought not to be denied or delayed. (Rev., s. 1819; Const., Art. I, s. 18; C. S. 2293.)

Cross Reference. — As to costs in habeas corpus, see § 6-21, subsec. 3.

Editor's Note. — "By the Habeas Corpus Act passed in 1679 the liberty of every Englishman was made as certain as law could make it; it being guaranteed to him that if accused of crime, he, instead of languishing in prison, as had often been the case, should be brought to a fair and speedy trial." —R. Buckle, History of Civilization In England, Vol. I, p. 385.

Macaulay in speaking of the prorogation of the Parliament of 1679 says: "The day of that prorogation, the twenty-six of May, 1679, is a great era in our history. For on that day the Habeas Corpus Act received the royal assent. From the time of the Great Charter, the substantive law respecting the personal liberty of Englishmen had been nearly the same as at present; but it had been inefficacious for want of a stringent system of procedure. What was needed was not a new right but a prompt and searching remedy; and such a remedy the Habeas Corpus Act supplied."

Definition. — The writ of habeas corpus is the remedy which the law gives for the enforcement of the civil right of personal liberty. In pursuance to its command, the body of the petitioner is brought before the court, that it may inquire into the legality of his detention. United States v. Ju Toy, 198 U. S. 253, 272, 49 L. Ed. 1040, 25 S. Ct. 644.

Nature. — The writ of habeas corpus is a high prerogative writ, known to the common law, similar in nature to the writs of quo warranto, mandamus, certiorari and prohibition, and the proceedings thereunder are regarded as appellate in character, but it cannot be made to perform the office of a writ of error on appeal. Ex Parte Virginia, 100 U. S. 339, 357, 25 L. Ed. 676.

Object. — The object of the proceeding by a writ of habeas corpus is to inquire into the legality of the detention of the petitioner. United States v. McBratney, 104 U. S. 621, 624, 26 L. Ed. 869.

§ 17-2. Habeas corpus not to be suspended. — The privileges of the writ of habeas corpus shall not be suspended. (Rev., s. 1820; Const., Art. I, s. 21; C. S. 2294.)

Can Not Be Abrogated. — This section is an express provision, and there is no rule of construction or principle of constitutional law by which an express provision can be abrogated and made of no force by an implication from any other provision of the instrument. The clauses should be construed so as to give effect to each, and prevent conflict. This is done by giving to Art. XII, sec. 3, the effect of allowing a military trial, possession of a country to be taken, and the arrest of all suspected persons to be made by military authority, but requiring, by force of Art. I, sec. 21, the persons arrested to have an opportunity for trial to the civil authorities on habeas corpus, should they not be delivered over without the writ. Ex parte Moore, 64 N. C. appx., 802, 808.

Art. 2. Application.

§ 17-3. Who may prosecute writ. — Every person imprisoned or restrained of his liberty within this state, for any criminal or supposed criminal matter, or on any pretense whatsoever, except in cases specified in § 17-4, may prosecute a writ of habeas corpus, according to the provisions of this chapter, to inquire into the cause of such imprisonment or restraint, and, if illegal, to be delivered therefrom. (Rev., s. 1821; Code, s. 1623; 1858-9, c. 116, s. 1; C. S. 2205.)

Prisoner under Illegal Sentence. — Where a defendant, charged with the crime of burglary with intent to commit murder, convicted thereof, and sentenced to imprisonment for a longer term of imprisonment than is legal, a writ of habeas corpus may be presented, and on the presentation of such a writ, and if the defendant is held as a soldier he is entitled to a habeas corpus while he is undergoing punishment or awaiting trial for a military offense. Cox v. Gee, 60 N. C. Appx., 156.

§ 17-4. When application denied. — Application to prosecute the writ shall be denied in the following cases:

1. Where the persons are committed or detained by virtue of process issued by a court of the United States, or a judge thereof, in cases where such courts or judges have exclusive jurisdiction under the laws of the United States, or have acquired exclusive jurisdiction by the commencement of suits in such courts.

2. Where persons are committed or detained by virtue of the final order, judgment or decree of a competent tribunal of civil or criminal jurisdiction, or by virtue of an execution issued upon such final order, judgment or decree.

3. Where any person has willfully neglected, for the space of two whole terms after his imprisonment, to apply for the writ to the superior court of the county in which he may be imprisoned, such person shall not have a habeas corpus in vacation time for his enlargement.

4. Where no probable ground for relief is shown in the application. (Rev., s. 1822; Code, s. 1624; 1858-9, c. 116, s. 2; C. S. 2206.)

In General. — In construing this term, "final judgment or decree of a competent tribunal," it is to be understood that the exception refers only to judgments warranted by the law applicable to the case in hand, and where it appears from an inspection of the record proper and the judgment itself that the court had no jurisdiction of the cause and was manifestly without power to render the sentence in question, in such case there, would be no final sentence of a competent tribunal, and the exception established by the statute does not obtain. State v. Dunn, 119 N. C. 69; In re Holley, 154 N. C. 163, 167, 69 S. E. 872.

Presumption of Validity.—Proceedings before a court of competent jurisdiction will be presumed to be regular and valid, unless it clearly appears to the contrary. State v. Burnett, 173 N. C. 734, 91 S. E. 365.

"Competent Jurisdiction."—The term, "competent jurisdiction," used by this section in making an exception to the power of this court to review a judgment in habeas corpus proceedings, means that when a competent tribunal has pronounced a sentence not authorized by law, he is entitled to be heard, and where, though authorized in kind, it extends beyond what the law expressly permits, he may be relieved from further punishment after lawful portion of the sentence, and a different construction would render the statute unconstitutional. In re Holley, 154 N. C. 163, 69 S. E. 872.

Cannot Be Used as Writ of Error.—The writ of habeas corpus cannot be used in the nature of a writ of error. State v. Dunn, 159 N. C. 470, 74 S. E. 1014.

Habeas corpus is in the nature of a writ of error to the extent that it permits of a prisoner's defense by argument, but it is not available as a means of reviewing and correcting mere errors as distinguished from defects of jurisdiction. State v. Edwards, 192 N. C. 321, 135 S. E. 37; In re Chase, 153 N. C. 642, 156 S. E. 280.

The writ of habeas corpus may not be used for a substitute for appeal. In re Smith, 218 N. C. 462, 11 S. E. (2d) 317.

Process by United States Judge.—The petitioner in habeas corpus proceedings adjudged in contempt of court shall be entitled to a writ of habeas corpus by virtue of a process issued by a court or judge of the United States having jurisdiction, therefore, it is necessary to show, not that the United States has given him jurisdiction, but that Congress possesses and has exercised the power of taking away that jurisdiction which the states have vested in their own judges. (Rev., s. 1823; Code, s. 1625; 1868-9, c. 116, s. 3; C. S. 2208.)

Cross Reference.—As to jurisdiction of special or emergency judges of the superior court, see §§ 7-32, 7-38.

In General.—The Constitution required the Legislature to furnish an adequate remedy, and when it was declared that all such persons should have the right "to prosecute a writ of habeas corpus", it followed ex vi termini, that they were entitled to demand this remedy without the necessity of any court of general jurisdiction in this country. The power of all judges to grant it was conceded before the Magna Charta, and was only reaffirmed, like many other cardinal principles, in the instrument of our federal Constitution. In re Harkins v. Cathey, 119 N. C. 649, 663, 26 S. E. 138.

Concurrent Jurisdiction in State and Federal Courts.—On habeas corpus, the state courts have concurrent jurisdiction with the federal courts of all cases of imprisonment within their territorial jurisdiction, except in the case where the prisoner is in custody under the authority, or claim of authority, of the United States. (Rev., s. 1823; Code, s. 1625, 1868-9, c. 116, s. 3; C. S. 2208.)

The federal and state courts have concurrent jurisdiction to inquire into the legality of detention under a governor's warrant in interstate extradition cases. United States v. Johnson, 17 U. S. 336, 24 L. Ed. 542, 54 S. Ct. 607.

Source from Which Authority of State Judges Emanates.—It is to be observed that the authority of the state judges in cases of habeas corpus emanates from the several states, and not from the United States. In order to destroy their jurisdiction, therefore, it is necessary to show, not the United States has given them jurisdiction, but that Congress possesses and has exercised the power of taking away that jurisdiction which the states have vested in their own judges. In the matter of Byrnon, 60 N. C. 1.

Judiciary of Courts.—The courts of this State, as well as the individual judges, have jurisdiction to issue writs of habeas corpus returnable to any court of law, term, and at any time, and as a court. In the matter of Byrnon, 60 N. C. 1.

Judges Mentioned Have Equal Powers.—A single judge of the Supreme Court has the same and no other jurisdiction than the writ than a judge of the superior court. The same limitation of power to issue the writ in certain cases extends equally to the two classes of judges. In re Schenck, 74 N. C. 607, 608.

Extent of Jurisdiction.—The habeas corpus jurisdiction of every court, and of every judge, extends to every possible case of privation of liberty to the National Constitution, treaties and laws. In re Burrous, 136 U. S. 586, 592, 34 L. Ed. 500, 19 S. Ct. 83.

Sections 17-60 to 17-68, inclusive, of the General Statutes, contain all the law relating to habeas corpus proceedings.
liberty, the place where, and the officer or person by whom he is imprisoned or restrained, naming both parties, if their names are known, or describing them if they are not known.

2. The cause or pretense of such imprisonment or restraint, according to the knowledge or belief of the applicant.

3. If the imprisonment is by virtue of any warrant or other process, a copy thereof shall be annexed, or it shall be made to appear that a copy thereof has been demanded and refused, or that for some sufficient reason a demand for such copy could not be made.

4. If the imprisonment or restraint is alleged to be illegal, the application must state in what the alleged illegality consists; and that the legality of the imprisonment or restraint has not been already adjudged, upon a prior writ of habeas corpus, to the knowledge or belief of the applicant.

5. The facts set forth in the application must be verified by the oath of the applicant, or by that of some other credible witness, which oath may be administered by any person authorized by law to take affidavits. (Rev., s. 1825; Code, s. 1627; 1868-9, c. 116, s. 5; C. S. 2260.)

Waiver of Errors.—The parties may waive all errors and dispense with all forms in the proceedings on the petition. State v. Edney, 60 N. C. appx., 463.

Necessary Allegation.—A petition for habeas corpus must allege that the imprisonment has not been already adjudged, upon a prior writ of habeas corpus. In the matter of Brittain, 91 N. C. 387.

Where Other Remedies Exist.—The writ of habeas corpus will be refused where the prisoner can be otherwise discharged. In re Belt, 159 U. S. 95, 100, 40 L. Ed. 88, 15 S. Ct. 181.

§ 17-8. Issuance of writ without application. —When the supreme or superior court, or any judge of either, has evidence from any judicial proceeding before such court or judge that any person within this state is illegally imprisoned or restrained of his liberty, it is the duty of said court or judge to issue a writ of habeas corpus for his relief, although no application be made for such writ. (Rev., s. 1826; Code, s. 1632; 1868-9, c. 116, s. 10; C. S. 2210.)

When Illegal Imprisonment Appears.—If a case comes before the Supreme Court by appeal, or by certiorari, and upon the trial it appears that the prisoner was suffering an illegal confinement in the penitentiary, it would be the duty of that court, by virtue of its supervisory power, and of this section, enacted to carry into effect this constitutional power of the Supreme Court, to issue the writ of habeas corpus, even of its own motion, and discharge the prisoner. In re Schenck, 74 N. C. 607, 610.

Art. 3. Writ.

§ 17-9. Writ granted without delay. —Any court or judge empowered to grant the writ, to whom such applications may be presented, shall grant the writ without delay, unless it appear from the application itself or from the documents annexed that no such relief is intended, or that the benefit it is intended is, by this chapter, prohibited from prosecuting the writ. (Rev., s. 1827; Code, s. 1628; 1868-9, c. 116, s. 6; C. S. 2261.)

Cross Reference.—As to when application shall be denied, see § 17-4.

Duty of Court to Issue. —There can be no doubt of the duty and power of the court to issue the writ of habeas corpus when applied for in accordance with statutory provisions. In re Boyett, 136 N. C. 415, 424, 48 S. E. 789.

§ 17-10. Penalty for refusal to grant. —If any judge authorized by this chapter to grant writs of habeas corpus refuses to grant such writ when legally applied for, every such judge shall forfeit to the party aggrieved two thousand five hundred dollars. (Rev., s. 1828; Code, s. 1631; 1868-9, c. 116, s. 9; C. S. 2212.)

Writ Always Issues.—The writ of habeas corpus always issues when legally applied for, because this section subjects a judge who refuses to entertain the petition to a penalty of $2,500. In the matter of Croom, 175 N. C. 455, 456, 92 E. 903.

§ 17-11. Sufficiency of writ; defects of form immaterial. —No writ of habeas corpus shall be disallowed on account of any defect of form. It shall be sufficient—

1. If the person having the custody of the party imprisoned or restrained be designated either by his name of office, if he have any, or by his own name, or, if both such names be unknown or uncertain, he may be described by an assumed appellation, and any one who may be served with the writ shall be deemed the person to whom it is directed, although it may be directed to him by a wrong name, or description, or to another person.

2. If the person who is directed to be produced be designated by name, or if his name be uncertain or unknown, he may be described by an assumed appellation or in any other way, so as to designate the person intended. (Rev., s. 1829; Code, ss. 1629, 1630; 1868-9, c. 116, ss. 7, 8; C. S. 2213.)

§ 17-12. Service of writ. —The writ of habeas corpus may be served by any qualified elector of this state thereto authorized by the court or judge allowing the same. It may be served by delivering the writ, or a copy thereof, to the person to whom it is directed; or, if such person cannot be found, by leaving it, or a copy of it, at the place where the party for whose relief it is intended is confined, with some under officer or other person of proper age; or, if none such can be found, or if the person attempting to serve the writ be refused admittance, by affixing a copy thereof in some conspicuous place on the outside, either of the dwelling-house of the party to whom the writ is directed or of the place where the party is confined for whose relief it is sued out. (Rev., s. 1833; Code, s. 1637; 1868-9, c. 116, s. 32; C. S. 2214.)

To Whom Issued.—The writ should be issued to the person who has the immediate custody of the petitioner with the power to produce the body of such party before the court or judge. Wales v. Whitney, 114 U. S. 564, 574, 29 L. Ed. 277, 5 S. Ct. 1050.

Art. 4. Return.

§ 17-13. When writ returnable. —Writs of habeas corpus may be made returnable at a certain time, or forthwith, as the case may require. If the writ be returnable at a certain time, such return shall be made and the party shall be produced at the time and place specified therein. (Rev., s. 1830; Code, s. 1656; 1868-9, c. 116, s. 31; C. S. 2213.)

§ 17-14. Contents of return; verification. —The person or officer on whom the writ is served must make a return thereto in writing, and, except where such person is a sworn public officer and makes his return in his official capacity, it must be verified by his oath. The return must state plainly and unequivocally—
1. Whether he has or has not the party in his custody or under his power or restraint.
2. If he has the party in his custody or under his power or restraint, the authority and the cause of such imprisonment or restraint, setting forth the same at large.
3. If the party is detained by virtue of any writ, warrant, or other written authority, a copy thereof shall be annexed to the return; and the original shall be produced and exhibited on the return of the writ to the court or judge before whom the same is returnable.
4. If the person or officer upon whom such writ is served has had the party in his power or custody, or under his restraint, at any time prior to or subsequent to the date of the writ, but has transferred such custody or restraint to another, the return shall state particularly to whom, at what time, for what cause and by what authority such transfer took place. (Rev., s. 1831; Code, s. 1633; 1868-9, c. 116, s. 11; C. S. 2216.)

§ 17-15. Production of body if required.—If the writ requires it, the officer or person on whom the same has been served shall also produce the body of the party in his custody or power, according to the command of the writ, except in the case of the sickness of such party, as hereinafter provided. (Rev., s. 1832; Code, s. 1636; 1868-9, c. 116, s. 14; C. S. 2217.)

Art. 5. Enforcement of Writ.

§ 17-16. Attachment for failure to obey.—If the person or officer on whom any writ of habeas corpus has been duly served refuses or neglects to obey the same, by producing the body of the party named or described therein, and by making a full and explicit return thereto, within the time required, and no sufficient excuse is shown for such refusal or neglect, it is the duty of the court or judge before whom the writ has been made returnable, upon due proof of the substantial excuse for the refusal or neglect, to issue an attachment against such person or officer, directed to the sheriff of any county within this state, and commanding him forthwith to apprehend such person or officer and bring him immediately before such court or judge. On being so brought such person or officer shall be committed to close custody in the jail of the county or the court or judge may be, without being allowed the liberties thereof, until such person or officer make return to such writ and comply with any order that may be made by such court or judge in relation to the party for whose relief the writ has been issued. (Rev., s. 1834; Code, s. 1637; 1868-9, c. 116, s. 15; C. S. 2218.)

In General.—The attachment warranted by this section does not rest on the idea of punishing for a contempt of the judge, or court, but of compelling a return to the writ and a production of a body. It is a substitute for the provision in the old habeas corpus act, which punished the officer or person refusing or neglecting to make return, "upon conviction by indictment," with a fine of $500 for the first offense, and of $1,000, and incapacity to hold office, for the second. Ex parte Moore, 64 N. C. appx., 802, 809. See also, Ex parte Kerr, 64 N. C. appx., 816.

No Power to Arrest Governor.—Under the habeas corpus act, a judge has no power to order the arrest of the Governor of the State. Ex parte Moore, 64 N. C. appx., 802, 815.

Excuse for Refusal to Make Return.—Where a military officer detaining persons arrested in counties declared by the Governor to be in a state of insurrection, answered to a writ of habeas corpus, that he held them under the orders of the Governor, who had also ordered him not to obey the writ: it was held, that such return was a sufficient excuse, under this section, and, therefore, that such officer was not liable to be attached. Ex parte Moore, 64 N. C. appx., 802, 815.

§ 17-17. Liability of judge refusing attachment.—If any judge willfully refuses to grant the writ of attachment, as provided for in § 17-16, he shall be liable to impeachment, and moreover shall forfeit to the party aggrieved twenty-five hundred dollars. (Rev., s. 1835; Code, s. 1638; 1870-1, c. 221, s. 2; C. S. 2219.)

§ 17-18. Attachment against sheriff to be directed to coroner; procedure.—If a sheriff has neglected to return the writ agreeably to the command thereof, the attachment against him may be directed to the coroner or to any other person to be designated therein, who shall have power to execute the same, and such sheriff, upon being brought up, may be committed to the jail of any county other than his own. (Rev., s. 1836; Code, s. 1639; 1868-9, c. 116, s. 16; C. S. 2220.)

Cross Reference.—As to requirement of coroner to act for sheriff in certain cases, see § 152-8.

§ 17-19. Precept to bring up party detained.—The court or judge by whom any such attachment may be issued may also at the same time, or afterwards, direct a precept to any sheriff, coroner, or other person to be designated therein, commanding him to bring forthwith before such court or judge the party, wherever to be found, for whose benefit the writ of habeas corpus has been granted. (Rev., s. 1837; Code, s. 1640; 1868-9, c. 116, s. 17; C. S. 2221.)

§ 17-21. Liability of judge conniving at insufficient return.—If any judge grants the attachment, or the precept, and gives the officer or other person charged with the execution of the same verbal or written instructions not to execute the same, or to make any evasive or insufficient return, or any return other than that provided by law; or shall connive at the failing to make any return or any evasive or insufficient return, or any return other than that provided by law, he shall be liable to impeachment, and moreover shall forfeit to the party aggrieved twenty-five hundred dollars. (Rev., s. 1839; Code, s. 1642; 1870-1, c. 221, s. 4; C. S. 2223.)

§ 17-22. Power of county to aid service.—In the execution of any such attachment, precept or writ, the sheriff, coroner, or other person to whom it may be directed, may call to his aid the power of the county, in other cases. (Rev., s. 1840; Code, s. 1643; 1868-9, c. 116, s. 18; C. S. 2224.)
§ 17-23. Obedience to order of discharge compelled.—Obedience to a judgment or order for the discharge of a prisoner or person restrained of his liberty, pursuant to the provisions of this chapter, may be enforced by the court or judge by attachment in the same manner and with the same effect as for a neglect to make return to a writ of habeas corpus; and the person found guilty of such disobedience shall forfeit to the party aggrieved two thousand five hundred dollars, besides any special damages which such party may have sustained. (Rev., s. 1841; Code, s. 1649; 1868-9, c. 116, s. 24; C. S. 2225.)

§ 17-25. Recommittal after discharge; penalty.—If any person shall knowingly again imprison or detain one who has been set at large upon any writ of habeas corpus, for the same cause, other than by the legal process or order of the court wherein he is bound by recognizance to appear, or of any other court having jurisdiction in the case, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Rev., s. 3581; Code, s. 1651; 1868-9, c. 116, s. 26; C. S. 2227.)

Cross Reference.—See also, § 17-38 and notes.

When Arrested Valid.—A party, set at large by writ of habeas corpus, upon the ground that the judgment of imprisonment was void for want of jurisdiction in the court, may be again arrested for the same cause upon legal process of a court having jurisdiction. State v. Weatherpoon, 68 N. C. 19.

§ 17-26. Disobedience to writ or refusing copy of process; penalty.—If any person to whom a writ of habeas corpus is directed shall neglect or refuse to make due return thereeto, or to bring the body of the party detained according to the command of the writ without delay, or shall not, within six hours after demand made therefor, deliver a copy of the commitment or cause of detention, such person shall, upon conviction on indictment, be fined one thousand dollars, or imprisoned not exceeding twelve months, and if such person be an officer, shall moreover be removed from office. (Rev., s. 3597; Code, s. 1653; 1868-9, c. 116, s. 27; C. S. 2228.)

§ 17-27. Penalty for false return.—If any person shall make a false return to a writ of habeas corpus, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Rev., s. 3582; Code, s. 1653; 1868-9, c. 116, s. 28; C. S. 2229.)

§ 17-28. Penalty for concealing party entitled to writ.—If any one having in his custody, or under his power, any party who, by law, would be entitled to a writ of habeas corpus, or for whose relief such writ shall have been issued, shall, with intent to elude the service of such writ, or to avoid the effect thereof, transfer the party to the custody, or put him under the power or control, of another, or shall conceal or change the place of his confinement, or shall knowingly aid or abet another in so doing, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Rev., s. 3583; Code, ss. 1654, 1655; 1868-9, c. 116, ss. 29, 30; C. S. 2230.)

Art. 6. Proceedings and Judgment.

§ 17-29. Notice to interested parties.—When it appears from the return to the writ that the party named therein is in custody on any process, or by virtue of any claim of right, under which any other person has an interest in continuing his imprisonment or restraint, no order shall be made for his discharge until it appears that the person so interested, or his attorney, if he have one, has had reasonable notice of the time and place at which such writ is returnable. (Rev., s. 1843; Code, s. 1634; 1868-9, c. 116, s. 12; 1870-1, c. 221, s. 1; C. S. 2231.)

§ 17-30. Notice to solicitor.—When it appears from the return that such party is detained upon any criminal accusation, the court or judge may, if he thinks proper, make no order for the discharge of such party until sufficient notice of the time and place at which the writ has been returned, or is made returnable, is given to the solicitor of the district in which the person prosecuting the writ is detained. (Rev., s. 1844; Code, s. 1635; 1868-9, c. 116, s. 13; C. S. 2232.)

Hearing May Be Continued.—If it appear from the return on a writ of habeas corpus that the petitioner is detained on a criminal charge, the court may continue the hearing for a reasonable time to give the solicitor an opportunity to examine into the case. State v. Jones, 113 N. C. 669, 18 S. E. 249.

§ 17-31. Subpoenas to witnesses.—Any party to a proceeding on a writ of habeas corpus may procure the attendance of witnesses at the hearing, by subpoena, to be issued by the clerk of any superior court, under the same rules, regulations and penalties prescribed by law in other cases. (Rev., s. 1845; Code, s. 1659; 1868-9, c. 116, s. 34; C. S. 2233.)

Cross Reference.—As to issuance of subpoenas, see §§ 2-16, 8-59.

§ 17-32. Proceedings on return; facts examined; summary hearing of issues.—The court or judge before whom the party is brought on a writ of habeas corpus shall, immediately, after the return thereof, examine into the facts contained in such return, and into the cause of the confinement or restraint of such party, whether the same has been upon commitment for any criminal or supposed criminal matter or not; and if issue be taken upon the material facts in the return, or other facts are alleged to show that the imprisonment or detention is illegal, or that the party imprisoned is entitled to his discharge, the court or judge shall proceed, in a summary way, to hear the allegations and proofs on both sides, and to do what to justice appertains in delivering, bailing or remanding such party. (Rev., s. 1846; Code, s. 1644; 1868-9, c. 116, s. 19; C. S. 2234.)

Proceedings Must Be Summary.—Proceedings under the writ of habeas corpus, which have for their principal object a release of a party from illegal restraint, must necessarily be summary and prompt to be useful, and if an action could be arrested by an appeal, they would lose many of their most beneficial results. State v. Miller, 57 N. C. 451, 454, 1 S. E. 776.

Hearing Not Perfunctory.—The words "if issue be taken upon the material facts . . . the judge shall proceed in a summary way to bear the allegations and proofs of both sides," preclude the idea that such hearing shall be perfunctory and merely formal. In re Bailey, 203 N. C. 362, 365, 100 S. E. 165.

17-33. Writ of Certiorari—To Record.—The hearing is confined to the record and judgment, and relief may be afforded only when on the record itself the judgment is one clearly and manifestly beyond the power of the court, a statement of the facts on which the question of law is based, and his action in that regard cannot be reviewed. State v. Hooker, 183 N. C. 763, 111 S. E. 351.

Evidence Not Reviewable.—The writ was held in State v. Dunn, 159 N. C. 470, 74 S. E. 1014, the Supreme Court cannot review the evidence or other matters in a criminal case in habeas corpus proceedings, but only the jurisdiction of the court. Where the inferior court did not act upon the habeas corpus petition, the judgment of the superior court was not subject to review. State v. Burnett, 173 N. C. 724, 91 S. E. 364.

Presumption of Innocence and Burden of Proof.—The presumption of innocence applies only on a trial, and does not apply to habeas corpus proceedings, where the inculpation of the petitioner is attacked. State v. Hooker, 183 N. C. 450, 113 S. E. 364.

Discretion of Judge.—The quantum of evidence and the number of witnesses to be examined must necessarily be left to the discretion of the judge. Herndon, 107 N. C. 934, 12 S. E. 268. See also In re Bailey, 203 N. C. 362, 365, 100 S. E. 165.

Question of Insanity Determined.—When the petitioner in habeas corpus proceedings is adjudged insane and her detention is illegal, the presumption of innocence applies only on a trial, and does not apply to habeas corpus proceedings, where the inculpation of the petitioner is attacked. State v. Hooker, 183 N. C. 450, 113 S. E. 364.

Judicial Review of Questions of Law.—In deciding questions which arise under writs of habeas corpus the judiciary may review and control the action of the Governor in regard to points of law; but cannot interfere with such action in regard to any matter within the discretion of the Governor.

In the matter of Hughes, 61 N. C. 57.

§ 17-33. When party discharged.—If no legal cause is shown for such imprisonment or restraint, or for the continuance thereof, the court or judge shall discharge the party from the custody or restraint under which he is held. But if it appears on the return to the writ that the party is in custody by virtue of civil process from any court legally constituted, or issued by any officer in the course of judicial proceedings before him, authorized by law, such party can be discharged only in one of the following cases:

1. Where the jurisdiction of such court or officer has been exceeded, either as to matter, place, sum or person.

2. Where, though the original imprisonment was lawful, yet by some act, omission or event, which has taken place afterwards, the party has become entitled to be discharged.

3. Where the process is defective in some matter of substance required by law, rendering such process void.

4. Where the process, though in proper form, has been issued in a case not allowed by law.

5. Where the person, having the custody of the party under such process, is not the person empowered by law to detain him.

6. Where the process is not authorized by any judgment, order or decree of any court, nor by any provision of law. (Rev. s. 1847; Code, s. 1645; 1868-9, c. 116, s. 20; C. S. 2235.)

Cross Reference.—See also, notes under § 17-32.

§ 17-34. The Imposition of Contempt.—A contempt is held in Ex parte Summers, 27 N. C. 149, that in a case of imprisonment for contempt, where the court states the facts upon which it proceeds, a reviewing tribunal may, on a habeas corpus, discharge the party if it appears plainly that the facts do not amount to a contempt. State v. Queen, 91 N. C. 659, 662.

Sentence Partly Valid and Partly Void.—Where a prisoner is detained by virtue of a sentence in part valid and part void, he shall have served the valid portion of his sentence, and he shall be remanded when it appears that the time during which he may lawfully be detained has not expired. State v. Hooker, 183 N. C. 763, 111 S. E. 351.

State Cannot Appeal.—The State cannot appeal from an order in habeas corpus proceedings discharging from imprisonment one convicted of crime. Proceedings in habeas corpus, the object of which is to release a person from illegal restraint, must necessarily be summary to be useful, and if action could be arrested by an appeal upon the part of the § 17-34. When party remanded.—It is the duty of the court or judge forthwith to remand the party, if it appears that he is detained in custody, either—

1. By virtue of process issued by any court or judge of the United States, in a case where such court or judge has exclusive jurisdiction.

2. By virtue of the final judgment or decree of any competent court of civil or criminal jurisdiction, or of any execution issued upon such judgment or decree.

3. For any contempt specially and plainly charged in the commitment by some court, officer or body having authority to commit for the contempt so charged.

4. That the time during which such party may be legally detained has not expired. (Rev., s. 1848; Code, s. 1646; 1868-9, c. 116, s. 21; C. S. 2236.)

Cross Reference.—See also, § 17-4, when application for writ shall be denied.

§ 17-35. When the party bailed or remanded.—If it appears that the party has been legally committed for any criminal offense, or if it appears by the testimony offered with the return of the writ, or upon the hearing thereof, that the party is guilty of such an offense, although the commitment is irregular, the court or judge shall proceed to let such party to bail, if the case is bailable and good bail is offered; if not, the court or judge shall forthwith remand such party to the custody of the officer or person legally entitled thereto; if not so entitled, the court or judge may, on good cause shown, annul, vary or modify the same; provided, that where the father is a non-resident of North Carolina and the custody of the child has been awarded, by an order of two thousand five hundred dollars to the party aggrieved thereby. (Rev., s. 1852; Code, s. 1651; 1868-9, c. 116, s. 26; C. S. 2240.)

Cross Reference.—As to recommittal after discharge, see § 17-36.

Surrender by Sureties.—According to the express terms of this section, a party once discharged may be again arrested and imprisoned for the same cause, provided it be done by the legal order or process of a court of competent jurisdiction. State v. Weatherspoon, 88 N. C. 19, 21.

Art. 7. Habeas Corpus for Custody of Children in Certain Cases.

§ 17-39. Custody as between parents in certain cases; modification of order.—When a contest shall arise on a writ of habeas corpus between any husband and wife, who are living in a state of separation, without being divorced, in respect to the custody of their children, the court or judge, on the return of such writ, may award the charge or custody of the child or children so brought before it either to the husband or to the wife, for such time, under such regulations and restrictions, and with such provisions and directions as will, in the opinion of such court or judge, best promote the interest and welfare of the children. At any time after the making of such orders the court or judge may, on good cause shown, annul, vary or modify the same; provided, that where the father is a non-resident of North Carolina and the custody of the child has been awarded, by an order of a court of this State, to the mother who is a resident of North Carolina, no motion on the part of such non-resident father may be heard or entertained by the court for a modification of the order of the court, unless such father has first shown under oath that, since the making of the original order, he has regularly contributed to the support of said child according to his means and according to the needs of the child, and, if said motion is heard and at said hearing such facts is not established to the satisfaction of the court, the motion for a modification of the order shall be denied, unless the court shall find that, at the time of said hearing the mother is not a fit and proper person to have the custody of said child. Provided, that the last two provisos shall only apply after the case has been reopened on time. (Rev., s. 1853; Code, s. 1661; 1858-9, c. 53; 1868-9, c. 116; 1899, c. 270, s. 1; C. S. 2241.)

Cross References.—As to custody of children in divorce, see § 50-13 and notes thereto. As to persons entitled to custody of children in general, see § 33-2.

Editor's Note.—The Act of 1929 added the two provisos to this section.

Broad Powers Conferred.—This section confers upon the court very large powers to "promote the interest and welfare of the child" and "to award the custody of the child to its father or mother, or to the grandparents of the child," where a divorce has been granted, and, where there is no divorce, by proceedings in habeas corpus. In the matter of Blake, 184 N. C. 288, 111 S. E. 294; McEachern v. McEachern, 210 N. C. 98, 155 S. E. 684.

Custody of children in general, see § 33-2. J

When Section Applies.—When, without being divorced, parents contest the question of determining the position of their offspring must be decided under the provisions of this section. In re Habeas Corpus of Jones, 153 N. C. 312, 69 S. E. 217.

It is essential that the parents must be living in a state of separation "without being divorced" before the court has power in habeas corpus to determine the custody of the children. In the matter of Blake, 184 N. C. 278, 280, 114 S. E. 294; McEachern v. McEachern, 210 N. C. 98, 155 S. E. 684.

Custody of children may be used to decide a contest "between any husband and wife, who are living in a state of separation," in respect to the custody of their children. It is not available as between other parties, nor as between divorced parents. In re Young, 222 N. C. 708, 709, 24 S. E. (2d) 579.

When Parents Divorced Section 50-13 Applies.—When this section was enacted in connection with section 50-13, it became apparent that the Legislature intended that the custody of children shall be determined by the court in which the divorce was granted, and, where there is no divorce, by proceedings in habeas corpus. Jurisdiction of the court in which a divorce is granted to award the custody of a child is exclusive and continuing. In the matter of Blake, 184 N. C. 293, 294; see McEachern v. McEachern, 210 N. C. 98, 155 S. E. 684.

But where the parties have been divorced and the decree does not award the custody of the children, the procedure to determine the right to their custody, is by motion in the cause, and habeas corpus will not lie, and where in habeas corpus proceedings a decree for absolute divorce between the parties is introduced in the record without objection, but the custody of the child is awarded, or where the custody of the child has been, but awards the custody of the child to its mother, on appeal the case will be remanded for a finding as to whether the parties had been divorced. In re Albertson, 117 N. C. 41, 10 S. E. 41.

Jurisdiction of Juvenile Court.—In Clegg v. Clegg, 186 N. C. 28, 118 S. E. 824, it was held that the jurisdiction of the superior court or judge thereof in habeas corpus proceedings between husband and wife, living apart without divorce, where there was no divorce whereby the custody of the child was awarded, was the jurisdiction of the court in which a divorce was granted, and that the court could not grant or refuse the custody of the child.

Where Foreign Decree Ineffectual.—When, under an invalid decree of divorce rendered in favor of the wife in another state, the custody of a child was awarded to the wife, it is sought by habeas corpus proceedings in this State to obtain the custody of the child domiciled with its father in this State, the proceeding will be regarded as one between husband and wife, living apart without divorce, and the proceeding is not available to enforce the provisions of the divorce decree relating to the custody of the child as against the mother moving to this State and bringing the child with her. In re Ogden, 210 N. C. 98, 155 S. E. 684.

Findings of Fact Are Conclusive When Based on Evidence.—The findings of fact by the court in proceedings in habeas corpus, to determine the custody of minor children of the parties, are conclusive when based upon evidence. McEachern v. McEachern, 210 N. C. 98, 155 S. E. 684.

Cited in In re Gibson, 222 N. C. 350, 23 S. E. (2d) 50.

§ 17-40. Appeal to supreme court.—In all cases of habeas corpus, where a contest arises in respect to the custody of minor children, either party may appeal to the supreme court from the final judgment. (Rev., s. 1854; Code, s. 1662; 1858-9, c. 53; s. 2; C. S. 2242.)

No Appeal Except under This Section.—There is no provision for appeal from a judgment in habeas corpus proceedings, except in cases concerning the care and custody of children under this section. In re Holley, 154 N. C. 163, 166, 128 S. E. 835; State v. Miller, 97 N. C. 451, 454, 1 S. E. 776.

Death of Party Pending Appeal.—When in habeas corpus proceedings brought to secure the custody of infant children, the respondent (in whose favor judgment had been rendered below) died pending appeal, it was held, that the proceeding was not, and could not be, revived against the personal representative. Brown v. Rainor, 108 N. C. 304, 12 S. E. 1008.

Judgment of Superior Court Stayed Pending Appeal.—Upon appeal to the Supreme Court from an order of the judge of the superior court in habeas corpus proceedings be—between husband and wife for the custody of the minor children of the marriage upon petition of the wife, living by mutual consent separated from her husband, without divorce, upon a writ of habeas corpus, upon notification to the adverse party to appear before one of the Justices, and after a regular hearing, for the Justice to allow a supersedeas bond in a fixed amount, to stay the judgment of the lower court pending appeal, and by consent to set the hearing after the call of a certain district in the Supreme Court in term. Clegg v. Clegg, 186 N. C. 28, 118 S. E. 824.

Discretion in Supreme Court.—When the superior court judge has entered judgment in habeas corpus proceedings between husband and wife, and has found the facts upon which his judgment was based, and both parties appeal, the Supreme Court, in its sound legal discretion, may review the judgment and affirm, reverse, or modify it. Clegg v. Clegg, 186 N. C. 28, 118 S. E. 824; Atkinson v. Downing, 175 N. C. 244, 95 S. E. 487.

What Reviewed.—Upon an appeal from a judgment upon a writ of habeas corpus awarding the custody of a minor child, the court will only review errors of "law or legal inference, Constitution, Art. IV, Section 8, and not the findings of fact made by the lower court upon competent evidence; and this section allowing an appeal in such cases, does not affect the matter. Stokes v. Cogdell, 153 N. C. 181, 69 S. E. 65.

Decree as between Divorced Parents Is Not Appealable.—A decree in habeas corpus proceedings to determine the custody of a child as between its divorced parents is not appealable, since the proceeding does not come within the provisions of this and § 17-39, nor will the provisions made for the child be considered when the judge below finds that the child is in school and is being properly cared for by the parent having its custody, and awards its custody to such parent during the school term, the sole remedy being by certiorari to invoke the constitutional power of the Supreme Court to supervise and control proceedings of inferior courts. In re Ogden, 211 N. C. 100, 189 S. E. 119. Applied in In re Alberson, 205 N. C. 742, 172 S. E. 411.

Art. 8. Habeas Corpus Ad Testificandum. § 17-41. Authority to issue the writ.—Every court of record has power, upon the application of any party to any suit or proceeding, civil or criminal, pending in such court, to issue a writ of habeas corpus, for the purpose of bringing before the said court any prisoner who may be detained in any jail or prison within the state, for any cause, except a prisoner under sentence of death, is a competent witness; and the solicitor for the State is entitled to a writ of habeas corpus ad testificandum under this section, to bring such condemned prisoner into court for the purpose of testifying before the grand jury. Ex parte Harris, 73 N. C. 65.

Murderer Is Competent Witness.—One who has been convicted of murder, and is under sentence of death, is a competent witness; and the solicitor for the State is entitled to a habeas corpus to bring such condemned prisoner into court for the purpose of testifying before the grand jury. Ex parte Harris, 73 N. C. 65.

Same.—Objection Untenable.—When the State has procured the attendance of a witness under sentence of death, the objection by the defendant that he could not be procured by writ of habeas corpus ad testificandum under this section, is untenable, this not applying to the State; nor will objection avail that the time set for the execution had passed, and the witness, being dead, in the eye of the law, could not testify, the witness having been present and having testified. State v. Jones, 176 N. C. 702, 97 S. E. 32.

§ 17-42. Contents of application.—The application for the writ shall be made by the party to the suit or proceeding in which the writ is required, or by his agent or attorney. It must be verified by the applicant, and shall state—

1. The title and nature of the suit or proceeding in regard to which the testimony of such prisoner is desired.

2. That the testimony of such prisoner is material and necessary to such party on the trial or hearing of such suit or proceeding, as he is advised by counsel and verily believes. (Rev., s. 1857; Code, s. 1665; 1868-9, c. 116, s. 39; C. S. 2244.)

§ 17-43. Service of writ.—The writ of habeas corpus to testify shall be served by the same person, and in like manner in all respects, and enforced by the court or officer issuing the same as prescribed in this chapter for the service and enforcement of the writ of habeas corpus cum causa. (Rev., s. 1858; Code, s. 1666; 1868-9, c. 116, s. 40; C. S. 2245.)

Cross Reference.—As to service of writ in habeas corpus proceedings, see § 17-12.

§ 17-44. Applicant to pay expenses and give bond to return.—The service of the writ shall not be complete, however, unless the applicant for the same tenders to the person whose custody by the prisoner may be, if such person is a sheriff, coroner, constable or marshal, the fees and expenses allowed by law for bringing such prisoner, nor unless he also gives bond, with sufficient security, to such sheriff, coroner, constable or marshal, as the case may be, conditioned that such applicant will pay the charges of carrying back such prisoner. (Rev., s. 1859; Code, s. 1667; 1868-9, c. 116, s. 41; C. S. 2246.)

§ 17-45. Duty of officer to whom writ delivered or on whom served.—It is the duty of the officer to whom the writ is delivered or on whom it is served, whether such writ is directed to him or not, upon payment or tender of the charges allowed by law, and the delivery or tender of the bond herein prescribed, to obey and return such writ according to the exigency thereof upon pain, on refusal or neglect, to forfeit to the party on whose application the same has been issued the sum of five hundred dollars. (Rev., s. 1860; Code, s. 1668; 1868-9, c. 116, s. 48; C. S. 2247.)

§ 17-46. Prisoner to be remanded.—After having testified, the prisoner shall be remanded to the prison from which he was taken. (Rev., s. 1861; Code, s. 1669; 1868-9, c. 116, s. 43; C. S. 2248.)

Art. 1. The Turlington Act.

§ 18-1. Definitions; application of article. — When used in this article—

(1) The word “liquor” or the phrase “intoxicating liquor” shall be construed to include alcohol, brandy, whisky, rum, gin, beer, ale, porter, and wine, and in addition thereto any spiritual, vinous, malt or fermented liquors, liquids, and compounds, whether medicated, proprietary, patented, or not, and by whatever name called, containing one-half of one per centum or more of alcohol by volume, which are fit for use for beverage purposes: Provided, that the foregoing definition shall not extend to dealcoholized wine nor to any beverage or liquid produced by the process of which beer, ale, porter, or wine is produced, if it contains less than one-half of one per cent of alcohol by volume, and is otherwise designated than as beer, ale, or porter, and is contained and sold in, or from, sealed and labeled bottles, casks, or containers, and is made in accordance with the regulations set forth in Title II of “The Volstead Act,” an act of Congress enacted October twenty-eighth, one thousand nine hundred and nineteen, and an act supplemental to the National Prohibition Act, “H. R. 7294,” an act of Congress approved November twenty-third, one thousand nineteen, and is in conformity with valid Federal statutes on the subject where interstate regulation is concerned. State v. Hickey, 198 N. C. 45, 46, 150 S. E. 615.

Similarity to Volstead Act.—This and the following sections are, in many respects, the same as “The Volstead Act,” although more stringent. State v. Sigmon, 190 N. C. 684, 690, 130 S. E. 584.

An act by our Legislature to make the State law conform in a substantial manner to the Federal Volstead Act. See State v. Davis, 214 N. C. 787, 1 S. E. (2d) 104; State v. Carpenter, 215 N. C. 653, 3 S. E. (2d) 34.

Effect upon Existing Legislation.—This act, with certain reservations as to existing State laws, establishes the rule now prevailing on the subject of prohibition and it applies to the extent that it is inconsistent with former legislation and is in conformity with valid Federal statutes on the subject where interstate regulation is concerned. State v. Hammond, 188 N. C. 602, 125 S. E. 402.

Beverages Not Enumerated.—It may be shown in evidence as a fact that other beverages than those defined by this section as intoxicating and prohibited are intoxicating in fact and come within the intent and meaning of the statute; State v. Atkinson, 110 N. C. 5, 27 S. E. 11.

§ 18-2. Manufacture, sale, etc., forbidden; construction of law; nonbeverage liquor.—No person shall manufacture, sell, barter, transport, import, export, deliver, furnish, purchase, or possesses any intoxicating liquor, except as authorized in this article; and all the provisions of this article shall be liberally construed to the end that the use of intoxicating liquor as a beverage may be prevented. Liquor for nonbeverage purposes and wine for sacramental purposes may be manufactured, purchased, sold, bartered, transported, imported, exported, delivered, furnished, and possessed, but only as provided by Title II of the Volstead Act, act of congress enacted October twenty-eighth, one thousand nine hundred and nineteen, possession, but only as provided by Title II of the Volstead Act, act of congress enacted October twenty-eighth, one thousand nine hundred and nineteen, see §§ 18-36 to 18-62, and § 8411(b).)

"The Volstead Act," act of congress enacted October twenty-eighth, one thousand nine hundred and nineteen, and all the provisions of this article shall be liberally construed to the end that the use of intoxicating liquor as a beverage may be prevented. Liquor for nonbeverage purposes and wine for sacramental purposes may be manufactured, purchased, sold, bartered, transported, imported, exported, delivered, furnished, and possessed, but only as provided by Title II of the Volstead Act, act of congress enacted October twenty-eighth, one thousand nine hundred and nineteen, see §§ 18-36 to 18-62, and § 8411(b).

Constitutionality.—The State in its inherent and reserved power preserved to it by the Tenth Amendment to the Constitution, and this section, making the purchase of intoxicating liquor a crime, is in express terms prohibited in the statute, and all the provisions of this article shall be liberally construed to the end that the use of intoxicating liquor as a beverage may be prevented. Liquor for nonbeverage purposes and wine for sacramental purposes may be manufactured, purchased, sold, bartered, transported, imported, exported, delivered, furnished, and possessed, but only as provided by Title II of the Volstead Act, act of congress enacted October twenty-eighth, one thousand nine hundred and nineteen, see §§ 18-36 to 18-62, and § 8411(b).

State v. Knight, 188 N. C. 630, 125 S. E. 406.

Effect of Acquiring Possession Prior to Act.—Evidence tending to show that defendant had intoxicating liquor in his possession before the efficacy of this act, is not a defense under the provisions of this act for the defendant's possession a year thereafter, upon the trial for violating the prohibition law; State v. Knight, 188 N. C. 630, 125 S. E. 406.

Effect on Recovery under Compensation Act.—The mere fact that an applicant for compensation under the provisions of the Workmen's Compensation Act had in his possession intoxicating liquor is not forbidden. State v. Hammond, 188 N. C. 602, 608, 125 S. E. 402.

If a man procures another to obtain liquor for him and put it in a given place, and the other performs this agreement or acts as authorized in the possession, all the provisions of this article shall be liberally construed to the end that the use of intoxicating liquor as a beverage may be prevented. Liquor for nonbeverage purposes and wine for sacramental purposes may be manufactured, purchased, sold, bartered, transported, imported, exported, delivered, furnished, and possessed, but only as provided by Title II of the Volstead Act, act of congress enacted October twenty-eighth, one thousand nine hundred and nineteen, see §§ 18-36 to 18-62, and § 8411(b).

Sufficiency of Evidence.—To Convict of Transporting Liquor.—Where a car, parked with the rear to the road and with the tail light concealed by a cap but with the front lights on, and the rear of the car smelled of liquor, and empty jugs, and a funnel which smelled of liquor, were found on the premises, and they ran to the neighbors, the officers approached the car, and the officers arrested the defendant who came up after their arrival, carried him to jail, and upon return to the place found the jug and funnel gone, and the car very put together and had all gone around and came back, it was held that the facts were sufficient to justify a finding "beyond a reasonable doubt that not only defendant was transporting liquors, but he had converted and disposed of the same, and that the liquor had sold and gone back to them to get another load. He had all the implements of a blind-tiger transporting liquor. The officers caught him before he had gotten his new supply." State v. Sigmon, 190 N. C. 684, 130 S. E. 854.

It shall be unlawful to advertise, anywhere or by any means or method, liquor, or the manufacture, sale, keeping for sale or furnishing of the means, or where, how, from whom, or at what price the same may be obtained. No one shall permit any sign or billboard containing such advertisement in charge of an attempt to commit a crime. State v. Beavers, 188 N. C. 595, 125 S. E. 258.

§ 18-4. Advertising, etc., of utensils, etc., for use in manufacturing liquor.—It shall be unlawful to advertise, manufacture, sell, or possess for sale any utensil, contrivance, machine, preparation, compound, tablet, substance, formula, direction, or receipt advertised, designed, or intended for use in the unlawful manufacture of intoxicating liquor. It shall be unlawful to have any liquor or property designed for the manufacture of liquor intended for use in violating this article, or which has been so used, and no property rights shall exist in any such liquor or property. (1923, c. 1, s. 4; C. S. 3411(d.).)

Possession of Property Designed for Manufacture.—An indictment charging the defendant with a violation of this section, in that he had in his possession property designed for the manufacture of intoxicating liquor is not identical with a charge of an attempt to commit a crime. State v. Jones, 198 N. C. 728, 153 S. E. 410.

"Designated."—In the interpretation of this section making it unlawful to possess property "designated" for use in the unlawful manufacture of intoxicating liquor, the word "designated" is construed to mean "designed," and so used it is held in this case that evidence of the defendant's guilt of possessing parts of a still designed and intended for the purpose of manufacturing intoxicating liquor was sufficient to be submitted to the jury and to sustain their verdict of guilty, and the fact that the parts had not been assembled into a still is immaterial under the language of the statute. State v. Jones, 198 N. C. 728, 153 S. E. 410.

§ 18-5. Soliciting orders for liquor.—No person shall solicit or receive, nor knowingly permit his employee to solicit or receive, from any person any order for liquor or give any information of how liquor may be obtained in violation of this article. (1923, c. 1, s. 5; C. S. 3411(e.).)

§ 18-6. Seizure of liquor or conveyance; arrests; sale of property.—When any officer of the law shall discover any person in the act of transporting, in violation of the law, intoxicating liquor in any wagon, buggy, automobile, water or air craft, or other vehicle, it shall be his duty to seize any and all intoxicating liquor found therein being transported contrary to law. Whenever intoxicating liquor transported or possessed illegally shall be seized by an officer he shall take possession of the vehicle and team or automobile, boat, air or water craft, or any other conveyance, and shall arrest any person in charge thereof. Such officer shall at once proceed against the person arrested under the provisions of this article. He shall charge any property seized, and the seizure thereof being made in accordance with the provisions of the statute. He shall take possession of the property seized, and the officer making the sale, after deducting the expenses of keeping the property, sale, for said purpose, as being bona fide and as wise at said hearing or in other proceeding brought against the person arrested under the provisions of this article, or which are established, by intervention or otherwise, as being bona fide and as wise at said hearing or in other proceeding brought for said purpose, as being bona fide and as having been created without the lienor having any notice that the carrying vehicle was being used for illegal transportation of liquor, and shall pay the balance of the proceeds to the treasurer.
or the proper officer in the county who receives fines and forfeitures, to be used for the school fund of the county. All liens against property sold under the provisions of this section shall be transferred from the property to the proceeds of the sale of the property, or, if no one shall be found claiming the same, the taking of the same, with a description thereof, shall be advertised in some newspaper published in the city or county where taken, or, if there be no newspaper published in such city or county, in a newspaper having circulation in the county, once a week for two weeks and by handbills posted in three public places near the place of seizure, and if no claimant shall appear within ten days after the last publication of the advertisement, the property shall be sold, and the proceeds, after deducting the expenses and costs, shall be paid to the treasurer or proper officer in the county who receives fines and forfeitures, to be used for the school fund of the county: Provided, that nothing in this section shall be construed to authorize any officer to search any automobile or other vehicle or baggage of any person without a search warrant duly issued, except where the officer sees or has absolute personal knowledge that there is intoxicating liquor in such vehicle or baggage. (1923, c. 1, s. 6; C. S. 3411(f).)

Cross References.—As to disposal of tax-paid liquor that has been seized, see § 18-13. As to fines to be paid into the fund of the county. All liens against property sold under the provisions of this section shall be transferred from the property to the proceeds of the sale of the property, or, if no one shall be found claiming the same, the taking of the same, with a description thereof, shall be advertised in some newspaper published in the city or county where taken, or, if there be no newspaper published in such city or county, in a newspaper having circulation in the county, once a week for two weeks and by handbills posted in three public places near the place of seizure, and if no claimant shall appear within ten days after the last publication of the advertisement, the property shall be sold, and the proceeds, after deducting the expenses and costs, shall be paid to the treasurer or proper officer in the county who receives fines and forfeitures, to be used for the school fund of the county: Provided, that nothing in this section shall be construed to authorize any officer to search any automobile or other vehicle or baggage of any person without a search warrant duly issued, except where the officer sees or has absolute personal knowledge that there is intoxicating liquor in such vehicle or baggage. It shall be the duty of the officer seizing said automobile or other personal property to store same in a safe and suitable place, until final disposition is ordered. Any officer or officers violating the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be fined not to exceed fifty dollars or imprisoned not to exceed thirty days. (1927, c. 18.)

—No person shall be excused, on the ground that it may tend to incriminate him or subject him to a penalty or forfeiture, from attending and testifying, or producing books, papers, documents, and other evidence in obedience to a subpoena of any court in any suit or proceeding based upon or growing out of any alleged violation of this article, but no natural person shall be prosecuted or subjected to any penalty or forfeiture for or on account of any transaction, matter, or thing as to which, in obedience to a subpoena and under oath, he may so testify or produce evidence; but no person shall be exempt from prosecution and punishment for perjury committed in so testifying. (1923, c. 1, s. 7; C. S. 3411(g).)

Cross References.—As to general rule of evidence that defendant in criminal action is competent but not compelled to testify, see § 8-54. As to perjury, see § 14-209 et seq.

Validity.—Former statute held valid. State v. Randall, 170 N. C. 252, 87 S. E. 327.

Immunity Must Be Claimed Under Section.—The immunity from punishment of an offender against our prohibition law when testifying against others charged with the same offense, must be claimed by him under the provisions of this section which superseded C. S. sec. 3406, so as to make our statute conform to the Federal Act, whereunder no discovery made by such person shall be used against him and he shall be altogether pardoned for the offense done or participated in by him. State v. Luquire, 191 N. C. 479, 132 S. E. 162.

Voluntary Testimony of Offender.—The evidence in criminal prosecutions that may not be received from the offender, is such as is compulsory, and does not apply to one volunteering his testimony and willingly giving it. State v. Luquire, 191 N. C. 479, 132 S. E. 162.

Savings Waiver.—An offender against the criminal law relating to prohibition may waive his constitutional right not to give evidence that would tend to incriminate himself and be bound thereby so to do. State v. Luquire, 191 N. C. 479, 132 S. E. 162.

Testimony at Former Trial.—Where a witness on a former trial for violating the prohibition law against the manufacture, sale, barter, exchange, or delivery of intoxicating liquor, testifies, as to matters which may tend to incriminate him, claiming no exemption or immunity when called upon to testify, it is competent for witnesses to testify thereto at the second trial, who were present and heard the testimony at the former one, the testimony not coming within the terms of this section. State v. Burnett, 184 N. C. 785, 115 S. E. 57.

§ 18-9. Place of sale and delivery; place of prosecution.—In case of a sale of liquor where the delivery thereof was made by a common or other carrier, the sale and delivery shall be deemed to be made in the county wherein the delivery was made by such carrier or the consignee, his agent or employee, or in the county wherein the sale was made, or from which the shipment was made, and prosecution for such sale or delivery may be had in either county. (1923, c. 1, s. 8; C. S. 3411(h).)

§ 18-10. Uniting separate offenses in indictment, etc.; bill of particulars; trial.—In any affidavit, information, warrant, or indictment for the violation of this article, separate offenses may be united in separate counts, and the defendant may be tried on all at one trial, and the penalty for all offenses may be imposed. It shall not be necessary in any affidavit, information, warrant, or indictment to give the name of the purchaser or to include any defensive negative averments, but it shall be sufficient to state that the act complained of was then and there prohibited and unlawful; but this provision shall not be construed to preclude the trial court from directing the furnishing the defendant a bill of particulars when it deems it proper to do so. (1923, c. 1, s. 9; C. S. 3411(i).)

§ 18-11. Possession prima facie evidence of keeping for sale.—The possession of liquor by any person not legally permitted under this article to possess liquor shall be prima facie evidence that such liquor is kept for the purpose of being sold, bartered, exchanged, given away, furnished, or otherwise disposed of in violation of the provisions of this article. But it shall not be unlawful to possess liquor in one's private dwelling while the same is occupied and used by him as his dwelling only, provided such liquor is for use only for the personal consumption of the owner thereof, and his family residing in such dwelling, and of his bona fide guests when entertained by him therein. (1923, c. 1, s. 10; C. S. 3411(j).)

Editor's Note.—For a discussion of the wisdom of permitting proof of possession to raise a presumption of unlawfulness for gain, see § 5 N. C. Law Rev. 200.

Liberal Construction.—This section is to be liberally construed to prevent the use of liquor as a beverage; and the provisions of this section do not apply to one voluntarily entering the violation of the law, but the possession thereof for the personal consumption of the owner and bona fide guests, etc., is allowed. State v. Hampton, 188 N. C. 602, 125 S. E. 402.

Section Limited to Private Dwelling Used Exclusively as a Dwelling.—The provision of this section that a person may legally possess intoxicating liquor in his dwelling for his personal consumption is limited by its terms to a private dwelling occupied and used exclusively as a dwelling, and a person may not lawfully possess intoxicating liquor in a building or structure used and operated by such person as a filling station and dwelling combined when the parts of the structure used for the respective purposes are connected. State v. Hardy, 209 N. C. 83, 182 S. E. 431.

The provisions of this section prohibiting the possession of intoxicating liquor for personal use applies only to possession in a structure used exclusively as a dwelling, and therefore defendants' possession in the structure used as a dwelling and store house was illegal. State v. Carpenter, 215 N. C. 635, 3 S. E. (2d) 34.

Possession as Evidence of Sale.—If one had possession of liquor as disclosed by this record it was prima facie evidence that he had it for sale. If not in his private dwelling, if he had actual constructive possession, whether for sale or not, it is a violation of law. State v. Pierce, 192 N. C. 766, 135 S. E. 121; State v. McAllister, 187 N. C. 409, 125 S. E. 739; State v. Kennebrew, 188 N. C. 630, 125 S. E. 406.

But the prima facie case so established may be rebutted by showing that possession was lawful under the statutory qualifications, that the structure was an extension of the dwelling for the respective purposes. State v. Anthony, 209 N. C. 83, 182 S. E. 431.

However, the mere possession unrebutted is sufficient to carry the issues in the jury. State v. Hampton, 188 N. C. 602, 125 S. E. 402.

Prima Facie Evidence Applies to Possession in Private Dwelling.—The prima facie evidence arising out of the possession of liquor is possession in a private dwelling or elsewhere. State v. Dowell, 195 N. C. 525, 143 S. E. 131.

Keeping In Bottles.—As shown in this section one is not allowed "to manufacture, sell, barter, etc., or possess intoxicating liquors," except as herefore explained and modified, but if received only in one's home (without violation of the law as specified and prohibited in the statute), and is kept there only for the consumption of the owner and his family and the bona fide guests entertained by him, this constitutes no breach of the present statute, though received

CH. 18. INTOXICATING LIQUORS

search warrant; disposal of liquor seized.—Upon the filing of a complaint under oath by a reputable citizen or information furnished under oath by an officer charged with the execution of the law, before a justice of the peace, recorder, mayor, or other officer authorized by the law to issue warrants, that he has reason to believe that any person has in his possession, at a place or places specified, liquor for the purpose of sale, a warrant shall be issued commanding the officer to whom it is directed to search the place or places described in such complaint or information; and if such liquor be found in any such place or places, to seize and take into his custody all such liquor, and to seize and take into his custody all glasses, bottles, jugs, pumps, bars, or other equipment used in the business of selling intoxicating liquor which may be found at such place or places, and to keep the same subject to the order of the court. The complaint or information shall describe the place or places to be searched with sufficient particularity to identify the same, and shall describe the intoxicating liquor or other property alleged to be used in carrying on the business of selling intoxicating liquor as particularly as practicable, and any description, however general, that will enable the officer executing the warrant to identify the property seized shall be deemed sufficient. All liquor seized under this section shall be held and shall upon the acquittal of the person so charged be returned to the established owner, and shall not be subject to conviction or default of appearance of such person be destroyed: Provided that any tax-paid liquor so seized shall within ten days be turned over to the board of county commissioners, which shall within ninety days from the receipt thereof turn it over to hospitals for medicinal purposes, or sell it to legalized alcoholic beverage control stores within the state of North Carolina, the proceeds of such sale being placed in the school fund of the county in which such seizure was made, or destroy it. (1923, c. 1, s. 12; 1930, c. 12; 1941, c. 310; C. S. 3411(l).)

§ 18-14. Grand jury, witnesses before; effect of evidence.—When the solicitor of any judicial district has good reason to believe that liquor has been manufactured or sold contrary to law within a county in his district, and believes that any person has knowledge of the existence and establishment of any illicit distillery, or that any person has sold liquor illegally, then it is lawful for the solicitor to apply to the clerk of the superior court of the county wherein the offense is supposed to have been committed to issue a subpoena for the person so having knowledge of said offense to appear before the next grand jury drawn for the county, there to testify upon oath what he may know concerning the existence, establishment, and personal description of the keepers thereof, or persons who have sold intoxicating liquor contrary to law, who shall give the names and personal description of the keepers thereof, and of any person who has sold liquor unlawfully; and such evidence, when so obtained, shall be considered and held in law as an information on oath upon which the grand jury shall make presentment, as provided by law in other cases. If any officer shall fail or refuse to use due diligence in the execution of the provisions of this section he shall be guilty of laches in office, and such failure be cause for removal from office. (1923, c. 1, s. 13; C. S. 3411(m).)

§ 18-15. Clubrooms and other places for keeping, etc., of liquor.—No corporation, club, association, or person shall directly or indirectly keep or maintain, alone or by association with others, or by any other means, or shall in any manner aid, assist, or abet others in keeping or maintaining a clubroom or other place where intoxicating liquor is received, kept, or stored for barter, sale, exchange, distribution, or division among the members of any such club or association or aggregation of persons, or to or among any other persons by any means whatever, or shall act as agents in ordering, procuring, buying, storing, or keeping intoxicating liquor for any such purpose. (1923, c. 1, s. 14; C. S. 3411(n).)

§ 18-16. Records of transportation companies; evidence.—All express companies, railroad companies, or other transportation companies doing business in this state are required therefore to keep a separate book in which shall be entered immediately upon receipt thereof the name of the person to whom liquor is shipped, the amount and kind received, and the date when received, the date when delivered, by whom delivered, and to whom delivered, after which record shall be a blank space, in which the consignee shall be required to sign his name, or, if he cannot write, shall make his mark in the presence of a witness, before such liquor is delivered to such consignee, and which book shall be open for inspection to any officer or citizen of the state, county, or municipality any time during business hours of the company, and such book shall constitute prima facie evidence of the facts therein and will be admissible in any of the courts of this state. Any express company, railroad company, or other transportation company, or any employee or agent of any express company, railroad company, or other transportation company violating the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (1923, c. 1, s. 15; C. S. 3411(o).)

Editor's Note.—See State v. R. Co., 169 N. C. 295, 84 S. E. 283.

§ 18-17. Indictments; allegations of sale; circumstantial evidence.—In indictments for violating any provisions of this article it shall not be necessary to allege a sale to a particular person, and the violation of law may be proved by circumstantial evidence as well as by direct evidence. (1923, c. 1, s. 16; C. S. 3411(p).)

Editor's Note.—The cases which follow were decided under a similar section, C. S. § 3383, which has been superseded by this section.

Evidence.—Sale to Unknown Persons.—To convict under an indictment of sale of intoxicating liquors "to some person to the jurors unknown," it is as necessary to offer evidence of an actual sale to the unknown person as if his name had been inserted in the indictment. State v. Watkins, 164 N. C. 425, 79 S. E. 619.

Same—Other Sales.—The rule of evidence that one illegal sale of intoxicating liquors should not be received as evidence that another such sale had been made, applies where the sales are entirely separated and distinct transactions, the one having no fair or reasonable tendency to establish the other, but inapplicable when it tends to show that the defendant, accused of violating the prohibition law at a certain city number, with evidence tending to show such violation there, kept the spirituous liquor elsewhere for some other purpose of making illegal sales. State v. Boynton, 155 N. C. 456, 71 S. E. 341.

Same—Liquors on Hand.—Upon trial on indictment for the sale of intoxicating liquors at a certain city number, testimony that the accused had and kept liquors on hand in other portions of the city is a relevant circumstance tending to show that he had it on hand and was prepared and equipped to make the illegal sale charged in the bill of indictment, when it is not shown that any corruption of witnesses or other misconduct on the part of the prosecution was intended to destroy the evidence tending to show that he had sold such liquor at the place charged in the indictment. State v. Boynton, 155 N. C. 456, 71 S. E. 341.

Upon indictment for violating the prohibition law, the possession of liquors by the accused, at the time of the offense charged, is always a circumstance admissible against him, and in general the circumstances under which liquors are kept, and even that they are kept at other places or in other rooms, may be shown. Id.
§ 18-21. Wine for sacramental purposes.—It is lawful for any ordained minister of the gospel who is in charge of a church and at the head of a congregation in this state to receive in the course of ninety consecutive days a quantity of vinous liquor not greater than five gallons, for use in sacramental purposes only, and it shall be lawful for him to receive same in one or more packages or one or more receptacles. (1923, c. 1, s. 20; 1933, c. 114; C. S. 3411(i).)

Editor’s Note.—By the amendment of 1935 the quantity which could be received was increased from three to five gallons.

§ 18-22. Sheriffs and police to search for and seize distilleries; confiscation; disposal of property.—It is the duty of the sheriff of each county in the state and of the police of each incorporated town or city in the state to search for and seize any distillery or apparatus used for the manufacture of intoxicating liquor in violation of the laws of North Carolina, and to deliver same, with any materials used for making such liquor found on the premises, to the board of county commissioners, who shall confiscate the same and shall cause the distillery to be cut up and destroyed, in their presence or in the presence of a delegate of a committee of the board, and who may dispose of the material, including the copper or other material from the destroyed still or apparatus, in such manner as they may deem proper. (1923, c. 1, s. 21; C. S. 3411(u).)

§ 18-23. Destruction of liquor at distillery; persons arrested.—It is the duty of the sheriff and other officers mentioned in § 18-22 to seize and then destroy any and all liquor which may be found at any distillery for the manufacture of intoxicating liquor, and to arrest and hold for trial all persons found on the premises engaged in distilling or aiding or abetting in the manufacture or sale of intoxicating liquor. (1923, c. 1, s. 22; C. S. 3411(v).)

§ 18-24. Laches of officers; removal from office.—If any officer mentioned in §§ 18-22, 18-23, shall fail or refuse to use diligence in the execution of the provisions of such sections, after being informed of violation thereof, he shall be guilty of laches in office, and such failure shall be cause for removal therefrom. (1923, c. 1, s. 23; C. S. 3411(w).)

Cross Reference.—As to removal of officers, see § 126-16.

§ 18-25. Rewards for seizure of still.—For every distillery seized under this article the sheriff or other police officer shall receive such sum as the board of county commissioners of the county in which the seizure was made shall, in the discretion of such board, allow, which sum shall not be less than five dollars nor more than twenty dollars: Provided, that the commissioners shall not pay any amount if they are satisfied, after due investigation, that the seizure of the distillery was not bona fide made: Provided further, that when the sheriff of a county captures a distillery he shall receive the fee for his own use, regardless of whether he be on fees or salary. (1923, c. 1, s. 24; C. S. 3411(x).)

Local Modification.—Sheriffs’ fees for seizure of stills were prior to 1923 regulated by C. S. 3401, 3402, § 18-25, part of the Burlington Act, would seem to supersede C. S. 3401, 3402, since it sets a different fee, and 1933, c. 480 specifically repealed C. S. 3401, 3402, except in three counties. However, many local laws have been passed to reference to C. S. 3401, as well as to §§18-25 and 18-26. Citations to all of these laws which have been discovered are listed here, not as a statement of the present status of the law in any county, but merely as an aid in tracing down the fees in the counties named. These citations are: Alamance, Avery, Caswell, Chowan, Graham, Greene, Jackson, Northampton, Surry, Wilson, Yadkin: C. S. 3401, 3402; Anson: 1937, c. 442; Burke: 1933, c. 136; Haywood, Lincoln, Pitt, Transylvania: C. S. 3909; Ex. Sess. 1908, c. 97; Pub. Loc. 1919, c. 30; Lenoir: 1933, c. 246; Moore: 1933, c. 246; 1933, c. 253; Nash: 1923, c. 91; Union: 1933, c. 121; Union: Pub. Loc. 1933, c. 160; Warren: 1923, c. 230.

§ 18-26. Same.—In certain counties.—The Board of Commissioners of the several counties in the State, hereinafter named, shall pay by way of reward to the sheriff or other officers in the various counties for the capture and destruction of stills used in the manufacture of spirited liquors, the sum of twenty dollars ($20.00) and no more, upon the production of a certificate from the Clerk of the Superior Court or other court having final jurisdiction, that one or more operators of the still captured and destroyed were by the sheriff or other officer apprehended, captured and have been convicted and that no appeal has been taken from the judgment rendered, which said twenty dollars ($20.00) shall be in lieu of any and all other rewards authorized by law to be paid for the capture and destruction of stills to the sheriff or other officers in the counties hereinafter named.

This section shall apply to the following counties only: Alleghany, Ashe, Avery, Bladen, Buncombe, Caswell, Catawba, Chowan, Craven, Duplin, Forsyth, Dare, Hyde, Hoke, Lee, Lenoir, Lincoln, Mecklenburg, New Hanover, Onslow, Pamlico, Pender, Perquimans, Richmond, Rockingham, Sampson, Vance, Wake, Washington, Watauga, Wilkes, Wilson and Yancey. (1937, c. 42; Pub. Loc. 1933, c. 160.)

§ 18-27. Officers given power to compel evidence; effect of evidence; process; immunity to witnesses.—When any justice of the peace, magistrate, recorder, mayor of a town, or judge of the superior courts or supreme court shall have good reason to believe that any person within his jurisdiction has knowledge of the unlawful sale of liquor or the existence and establishment of any place where intoxicating liquor is sold or manufactured contrary to law, in any town or county within his jurisdiction, such person not being minded to make voluntary information thereof on oath, then it shall be lawful for such justice of the peace, magistrate, recorder, mayor, or judge to issue to the sheriff of the town or within his jurisdiction, such person having final jurisdiction, that one or more operators of the still captured and destroyed were by the sheriff or other officer apprehended, captured, and have been convicted and that no appeal has been taken from the judgment rendered, which said twenty dollars ($20.00) shall be in lieu of any and all other rewards authorized by law to be paid for the capture and destruction of stills to the sheriff or other officers in the counties hereinafter named.

This section shall apply to the following counties only: Alleghany, Ashe, Avery, Bladen, Buncombe, Caswell, Catawba, Chowan, Craven, Duplin, Forsyth, Dare, Hyde, Hoke, Lee, Lenoir, Lincoln, Mecklenburg, New Hanover, Onslow, Pamlico, Pender, Perquimans, Richmond, Rockingham, Sampson, Vance, Wake, Washington, Watauga, Wilkes, Wilson and Yancey. (1937, c. 42; Pub. Loc. 1933, c. 160.)
§ 18-28. Distilling or manufacturing liquor; first offense misdemeanor.—It is unlawful for any person to distill, manufacture, or in any manner make, or for any person to aid, assist, or abet any such person in distilling, manufacturing, or in any manner making any spiritual or malt liquors or intoxicating bitters within the state of North Carolina. Any person or persons violating the provisions of this section shall, for the first conviction, be guilty of a misdemeanor and, upon conviction or confession of guilt, punished, in the discretion of the court; for the second or any subsequent conviction, said person or persons shall be guilty of a felony, and upon conviction or confession in open court shall be imprisoned in the state prison for not less than two years and not exceeding five years, in the discretion of the court. (1923, c. 1, s. 26; C. S. 3411(z).)

Process of Manufacturing Need Not Be Complete.—It is not necessary for a conviction under the provisions of Public Laws 1917, chap. 157, similar to those of this section, making the distilling or manufacturing, etc., of spirituous or malt liquors or intoxicating bitters within the state unlawful, including within its express terms those who aid, assist, or abet therein, that the liquor should have been actually manufactured or the product finished; and where there is evidence tending to show that such manufacture had been in progress, but had been suspended by the arrest of the prisoner, and that he was aiding or assisting therein, it is sufficient to be submitted to the jury as prima facie evidence of the offense charged. State v. Horner, 174 N. C. 788, 94 S. E. 291.

When Question for Jury.—Where there is evidence of defendant's guilty knowledge in aiding in the distilling or manufacturing of intoxicating liquor prohibited by Public Laws 1917, chap. 157, similar to this section, by hauling it away, and also consistent with his innocence in merely hauling away the remnants after the illegal purpose had been accomplished or frustrated, without intention of taking part or aiding in its manufacture, the question of his guilt or innocence is one for the jury, under proper instructions. State v. Horner, 174 N. C. 788, 94 S. E. 291.

Second Degree.—Upon a charge in an indictment for manufacturing liquor, etc., the defendant may be convicted of the second degree of the offense—i. e., aiding or abetting its manufacture. State v. Horner, 174 N. C. 788, 94 S. E. 291.

Accessories Equally Guilty.—The defendant, guilty of aiding and abetting the unlawful manufacture of liquor, is equally guilty with those who actually operated the still. State v. Clark, 183 N. C. 733, 110 S. E. 641.

The appellant, convicted on his trial of aiding or abetting in the manufacture of whiskey on an illicit still, upon a new trial, may claim as a ground of complaint, that he was tried on another count of the same bill for the unlawful manufacture of liquor and acquitted, there being sufficient evidence to sustain a conviction on each one. State v. Smith, 183 N. C. 733, 110 S. E. 641.

Presumption Regarding Previous Conviction.—The first conviction of manufacturing or aiding and abetting in the manufacture of spirituous, malt, or intoxicating liquors is a misdemeanor, and the second is a felony; and where the indictment does not charge a previous conviction it will be presumed that the defendant has not heretofore been convicted of the offense charged. State v. Clark, 183 N. C. 733, 110 S. E. 641.

Irrelevant Testimony.—The rejection of evidence as to the unlawful manufacture of liquor, etc., had raised on his farm that year, is of irrelevant testimony, and its exclusion not erroneous. State v. Smith, 183 N. C. 725, 110 S. E. 654.

Indictment.—The second offense of manufacturing spirituous liquor is a felony and a person may be tried on a charge of manufacturing spirituous liquor for the second offense only upon indictment, since the offense is a felony. State v. Sanderson, 213 N. C. 381, 196 S. E. 334.

§ 18-29. Misdemeanor; punishment; effect of previous punishment by federal court.—Any person violating any of the provisions of this article, except as otherwise specified in this article, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be fined or imprisoned, or both, in the discretion of the court: Provided, that no person shall be punished who has been previously punished for the same offense by a federal court. (1923, c. 1, s. 27; C. S. 3411(aa).

§ 18-30. Laws repealed; local laws.—All laws in conflict with this article are hereby repealed, but nothing in this article shall operate to repeal any of the local acts of the general assembly of North Carolina prohibiting the manufacture or sale or other disposition of any liquor mentioned in this article, or any laws for the enforcement of the same, but all such acts shall continue in full force and effect and in concurrence herewith, and indictment or prosecution may be had either under this article or under any local act relating to the same subject. (1923, c. 1, s. 28; C. S. 3411(bb.).)

Art. 2. Miscellaneous Regulations.

§ 18-31. Unlawful sale through agents.—If any person unlawfully and illegally procures and delivers any spirituous or malt liquors to another, he shall be deemed and held in law to be the agent of the person selling said spirituous and malt liquors, and shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be punished in the discretion of the court. (Rev., ss. 3526, 3534; 1905, c. 498, ss. 6, 7, 8; C. S. 3371.)

What Constitutes One an Agent.—Revial, section 3354, now this section, making it unlawful for any one to procure for and deliver spirituous liquors to another, and making such person, in law, the agent of the seller, and punishable, though its meaning is not plain, makes the one procuring liquor by purchase from an illicit dealer, and delivering it to another, the agent of the seller, and subjects him to the punishment prescribed therein, as a principal in the misdemeanor. State v. Burchfeld, 149 N. C. 537, 63 S. E. 89.

If one buys whisky for another from an illicit dealer in prohibited territory, without being interested in the sale otherwise than as an agent of the purchaser, to whom he delivers it, and pays the money to the seller for the buyer, it is a wrongful procuring of the whisky for another, without making him the agent of the seller, or subjecting him to the punishment prescribed therein, as a principal in the misdemeanor. State v. Burchfeld, 149 N. C. 537, 63 S. E.

§ 18-32. Keeping liquor for sale; evidence.—It is unlawful for any person, firm, association or corporation, by whatever name called, to have or keep in possession, for the purpose of sale, except as otherwise authorized by law, any spirituous, vinous or malt liquors, and proof of any one of the following facts shall constitute prima facie evidence of the violation of this section:

1. The possession of a license from the government of the United States to sell or manufacture intoxicating liquors; or

2. The possession of more than one gallon of spirituous liquors at any one time, whether in one or more places; or

3. The possession of more than three gallons of vinous liquors at any one time, whether in one or more places; or

4. The possession of more than five gallons of malt liquors at any one time, whether in one or more places; or

5. The delivery to such person, firm, association or corporation of more than five gallons of spirituous or vinous liquors, or more than twenty gallons of malt liquors within any four successive weeks, whether in one or more places; or

6. The possession of intoxicating liquors as samples to obtain orders thereon: Provided, That this section shall not prohibit any person from keeping in his possession wines and ciders in any quantity where such wines and ciders have been manufactured from grapes or fruit grown on the premises of the person in whose possession such wines and ciders may be. (1913, c. 44, s. 2; 1915, c. 97, s. 8; C. S. 3317.)

Editor's Note.—See 13 N. C. Law Rev. 115.

Constitutionality.—The section is constitutional and valid. State v. Randall, 170 N. C. 757, 87 S. E. 227; State v. Langley, 209 N. C. 178, 183 S. E. 536.

The burden of proof remains continually upon the State to establish the accusation which it makes, as prima facie evidence does not change or shift the burden. State v. Jones, 209 N. C. 49, 182 S. E. 699.

"Prima Facie" Defined.—The words "prima facie evidence" are defined in Webster's International Dictionary as meaning "evidence sufficient to raise a presumption of fact or establish the fact in question, unless rebutted." It must presume that the Legislature had such meaning in mind when such words were used in the statute. State v. Russell, 164 N. C. 482, 490, 80 S. E. 66.

Effect of the Presumption.—This (prima facie evidence) neither conclusively determines the guilt or innocence of the party accused nor withdraws from the jury the right and duty of passing upon and deciding the issue to be tried. The burden of proof remains continually upon the State to establish the accusation which it makes, as prima facie evidence does not change or shift the burden. State v. Russell, 164 N. C. 482, 487, 80 S. E. 66.

Same—Sufficient to Sustain Verdict.—While the prima facie case, unexplained, is sufficient to sustain a verdict of guilty, yet the defendant is not required to show, by the greater weight of evidence, that the whiskey was in his possession for lawful purposes, for such, in effect, would relieve the State of the burden of the issue, which is placed upon it. State v. Wilkerson, 164 N. C. 431, 79 S. E. 898.

Burden of Proof.—The possession of the specified quantity of spirituous liquors sufficient to make out prima facie evidence of an unlawful purpose is only sufficient to sustain a verdict of guilty, and does not shift the burden upon the defendant to prove his innocence, but it does place the burden of the issue upon him. State v. Wilkerson, 164 N. C. 431, 79 S. E. 898.

U. S. Government License as Defense.—For cases under the aforesaid provision has made prima facie evidence of guilt, and the defendant has not introduced evidence, an instruction to the jury placing the burden on the defendant to establish his innocence is reversible error. State v. Helms, 181 N. C. 556, 107 S. E. 228.

Where the possession of the specified quantities of intoxicating liquors is made unlawful by a statutory provision, it is not necessary to charge in the instructions to the jury the statutory provision, but it is sufficient to charge the elements of unlawful possession sufficient to support a conviction; and the burden of showing that such evidence did not apply to the case is upon the defendant. State v. Armitage, 186 N. C. 585, 190 S. E. 1002; State v. Boynton, 155 N. C. 456, 71 S. E. 341.

Possession Means Actual or Constructive.—This section making the possession of certain specified quantities of spirituous, vinous, or malt liquors "prima facie evidence of..."
money is attached a bill of lading, or order, or receipt for intoxicating liquors, or which draft is enclosed with, connected with, or in any way related to, directly or indirectly, any bill of lading, order, or receipt for intoxicating liquors. Provided, this section shall not apply to such instruments issued in connection with the sale or purchase of intoxicating liquors when such sale or purchase is not prohibited by the laws of this state. (1913, c. 44, s. 4; C. S. 3381.)

Cross Reference.—As to bills of lading generally, see § 214, et seq.

§ 18-34. Allowing distillery to be operated on land.—If any person shall knowingly permit or allow any distillery or other apparatus for the making or distilling of spirits to be set up for operation or to be operated on lands in his possession or control, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be punished in the discretion of the court. (Rev., s. 3533; 1905, c. 498, s. 2; C. S. 3407.)

§ 18-33. Federal license as evidence.—The possession of a license or the issuance to any person of a license to manufacture, rectify or sell, at wholesale or retail, spirituous liquors by the United States government or any officer thereof in any county, city or town where the manufacture, sale or rectification of spirituous liquors is forbidden by the laws of this state shall be prima facie evidence that the person having such license, or to whom the same was issued, is guilty of doing the act permitted by such license in violation of the laws of this state. On the trial of any person charged with the violation of any such laws, it shall be competent to prove that such a license is in the possession of or has been issued to such person, by the testimony of any witness who has personally examined the records of the government office where the official record of such licenses is kept. (Rev., s. 2060; 1905, c. 339, s. 5; 1907, c. 931; C. S. 3408.)

Cross Reference.—As to federal license as prima facie evidence of keeping liquor for sale, see § 18-32.

Art. 3. Alcoholic Beverage Control Act of 1937.

§ 18-36. Purposes of article.—The purpose and intent of this article is to establish a system of control over the sale of certain alcoholic beverages in North Carolina, and to provide the administrative features of the same, in such a manner as to insure, as far as possible, the proper administration of the sale of certain alcoholic beverages under a uniform system throughout the state. (1937, c. 49, s. 1.)

The Alcoholic Beverage Control Acts do not repeal the provisions of the Turlington Act in regard to the possession and transportation of intoxicating liquors except in so far as the control acts are inconsistent with the Turlington Act. State v. Carpenter, 215 N. C. 633, 3 S. E. (2d) 34.

§ 18-37. State board of alcoholic control created; membership; compensation.—A state board of alcoholic control is hereby created, to consist of a chairman and two associate members. The members of said board shall be men well known for their character and ability and business acumen and success. The chairman of said board shall devote his whole time to his official duties and shall receive a salary of six thousand ($6,000.00) dollars per annum, payable monthly, together with necessary traveling expenses, and the two associate members of said board shall receive for the time actually engaged in their official duties, seven dollars ($7.00) per day and necessary traveling expenses. (1937, c. 49, s. 2; c. 411; 1939, c. 185, s. 5; 1941, c. 107, s. 5.)

§ 18-38. Members of board appointed by governor; terms of office.—The members of said state board shall be appointed by the governor, and the first appointees shall serve as follows:

The chairman shall serve for a period of three years from the date of his appointment and one associate member shall serve for a period of two years from the date of his appointment and the other associate member shall serve for a period of one year from the date of his appointment, and the subsequent appointments of all of the members of the said board shall be for a term of three years from the date of each appointment. (1937, c. 49, s. 3.)

§ 18-39. Powers and authority of board.—Said state board of alcoholic control shall have power and authority as follows, to wit:

(a) To see that all the laws relating to the sale and control of alcoholic beverages are observed and performed.

(b) To audit and examine the accounts, records, books and papers relating to the operation of county stores herein provided for, or to have the same audited.

(c) To approve or disapprove the prices at which the several county stores may sell alcoholic beverages and it shall be the duty of said board to require the store or stores in the several counties coming under the provisions of this article to fix and maintain uniform prices and to require sales to be made at such prices as shall promote temperate use of such beverages and as may facilitate policing.

(d) To remove any member, or members, of county boards whenever in the opinion of the state board, such member, or members, of the county board, or boards, may be unfit to serve thereon.

(e) To test any and all alcoholic beverages which may be sold, or proposed to be sold to the county stores, and to install and operate such apparatus, laboratories, or other means or instrumentalities, and employ to operate the same such experts, technicians, employees and laborers, as may be necessary to operate the same, in accordance with the opinion of the said board. In lieu of establishing and operating laboratories as above directed, the board may, with the approval of the governor and the commissioner of agriculture, arrange with the state chemist to furnish such information and advice, and to perform such analyses and other laboratory services as the board may consider necessary, or may, if they deem advisable, cause such tests to be made otherwise.

(f) To supervise purchasing by the county boards when said state board is of the opinion that it is advisable for it to exercise such power in order to carry into effect the purpose and intent of this article, with full power to disapprove any such purchase and at all times shall have the right to inspect all invoices, papers, books and records in the county stores or boards relating to purchases.

(g) To exercise the power to approve or disapprove in its discretion all regulations adopted by the several county stores for the operation of said stores and the enforcement of alcoholic beverage control laws which may be in violation of the terms or spirit of this article.

(h) To require that a sufficient amount shall be so allocated as to insure adequate enforcement and the amount shall, in no instance, be less than five per cent, nor more than ten per cent of the net profits arising from the sale of alcoholic beverages.

(i) To remove in case of violation of the terms or spirit of this article, officers employed, elected or appointed in the several counties where county stores may be operated.

(j) To approve or disapprove, in its discretion, the opening of county stores, except each county that may be entitled to operate stores for the sale of alcoholic beverages shall be entitled to operate at least one store for such purpose, at the county seat therein, or at such other place as may be selected by the said county board, provided that in the location of control stores in any county in which a majority of the votes have been cast for liquor control stores due consideration shall be given to communities or towns in which a majority of the votes were cast against control, but nothing herein contained shall be construed so as to abridge any of the provisions elsewhere contained relative to the opening, closing or locating such stores. As to all additional stores in each of said counties the same shall not be opened until and unless the opening of the same and the place of location thereof shall first be approved by the said state board, which at any time may withdraw its approval of the operation of any additional county store when the said store is not operated efficiently and in accordance with the alcoholic beverage control laws and all valid regulations prescribed therefor, or whenever, in the opinion of the said state board, the operation of any county store shall be inimical to the morals or welfare of the community in which it is operated or for such other cause, or causes, as may appear to said state board sufficient to warrant the closing of any county store.

(k) To require the use of a uniform accounting system in the operation of all county stores hereunder and to provide in said system for the keeping therein and the record of all such information as may, in the opinion of the said state board, be necessary or useful in its auditing of the affairs of the said county stores, as well as in the study of such problems and subjects as may be studied by said state board in the performance of its duties.

(l) To grant, to refuse to grant, or to revoke, permits for any person, firm or corporation to do business in North Carolina in selling alcoholic beverages to or for the use of any county store and to provide and to require that such information be furnished by such person, firm or corporation as a condition precedent to the granting of such permit, or permits, and to require the furnishing of such data and information as it may desire during the life of such permit, or permits, and for the purpose of determining whether such permit, or permits, shall be continued, revoked or re-granted after expiration dates. No permit, however, shall be granted by said state board, to any person, firm or corporation when the said state board has reason sufficient unto itself to believe that such person, firm or corporation has furnished to it any false or inaccurate information or is not fully, frankly and honestly cooperating with the said state board and the several county boards in the observance and performance of all alcoholic beverage laws which may now or hereafter be in force in this state, or whenever the said board shall be of opinion that such permit ought not to be granted or continued for any cause.

(m) The said state board shall have all other powers which may be reasonably implied from the granting of express powers herein named, together with such other powers as may be incidental to, or convenient for, the carrying out and performance of the powers and duties herein given to said board.

(n) To permit the establishment of warehouses for the storage of alcoholic beverages within the state, the storage of alcoholic beverages in warehouses already established, and to prescribe rules and regulations for the storage of such beverages and the withdrawal of the same therefrom. Such warehousing or bailing of alcoholic beverages as may be made hereunder shall be for the convenience of delivery to alcoholic boards of control authorized to purchase the same and shall be under the strict supervision and subject to all of the rules and regulations of the state board of control relating thereto.

Editor's Note.—This section would seem to authorize the making of necessary rules and regulations to carry out the provisions of the act. 15 N. C. Law Rev. 323.

Under this section the state board is given power to grant, deny or revoke permits for the sale of alcoholic beverages to county liquor stores. This seems to be a very flexible provision to secure an honest co-operation by those who sell alcoholic beverages with the state board and the several county boards. There are no provisions for notice or hearing or appeal and it is likely that no such provisions are needed in view of the fact that state agencies are engaged in the purchase of goods and may do so on their own terms. 15 N. C. Law Rev. 328.

§ 18-40. Removal of member by governor; vacancy appointments.—The governor shall at all times have full power and authority to remove any and all members of the said state board, upon notice to such member or members, in his discretion, for any cause that appears to him to be sufficient, and to reappoint his successor or successors to the removed members, observing, however, the terms of office of each of them, as herein set forth, and whenever a vacancy shall occur for any cause then the appointment to fill such vacancy shall be for the unexpired portion of the term of the predecessor of each appointee. (1937, c. 49, s. 4, cc. 237, 411.)

§ 18-41. County boards of alcoholic control.

In each county which may be permitted to engage in the sale of alcoholic beverages, there is hereby created a county board of alcoholic control, to consist of a chairman and two other members. The members of said board shall be well known for their character, ability and business acumen. The members of said board shall be selected in each respective county in a joint meeting of the board of county commissioners, the county board of health and the county board of education, and each member present shall have only one vote, notwithstanding the fact that there may be instances in which some members are members of another board.

The terms of office of the members of said county boards shall be as follows: The chairman, who shall be so designated by the appointing boards, shall serve for his first term a period of three years and one member shall serve for his first term a period of two years and the other member shall serve for a period of one year, all terms beginning with the date of their appointment and after the said term shall have expired their successors in office shall serve for a period of three years and shall be appointed in the same manner as herein provided in this section.

Any member of any of the county boards herein above referred to in this section may be removed at any time by such composite board consisting of the board of county commissioners, the board of education and the board of health, whenever such composite board may find by a majority vote of its entire membership such member or members unfit to serve thereon, each member having only one vote as above provided for the selection of such members of county boards. In the event any member of the county board shall be removed hereunder, his successor shall be selected to serve out the time for which such member was originally selected.

Upon the death or resignation of the chairman or any other member of the county board of alcoholic control, whether selected under the provisions of this article or under the provisions of chapter four hundred and eighteen or chapter four hundred and ninety-three of the Public Laws of one thousand nine hundred and thirty-five, such board shall give bond for the faithful performance of their duties, in the penal sum of five thousand ($5,000.00) dollars, and the said bond shall be payable to the state of North Carolina and to the county in which said board performs its duties, with some corporate surety, which surety shall be satisfactory to, and approved by, the county attorney of said county, and the chairman of the state board, and shall be deposited with the chairman of the state board. The state board for and on behalf of the state of North Carolina and the county named in said bond, shall each be secured the said sum of the full amount of the penalty thereof and the recovery or payment of any sums due thereunder to either shall not diminish or affect the right of the other obligee and said bond to recover the full amount of the said penalties thereof, and the giving and the approval of such bond shall be a part of the qualification of said members and no member shall be entitled to exercise any of the functions or powers incident to his appointment until and unless the said bond shall have been given and approved as herein provided. The three joint boards referred to in § 18-41 shall be authorized to relieve any member of the county boards who does not handle any money or funds from furnishing such bond, and shall be further authorized to require bond in excess of five thousand dollars ($5,000) of any member of the board handling money or funds in the event said joint boards deem it advisable to increase such bond. (1937, ch. 49, s. 9; 1939, c. 202.)

Editor's Note.—The 1939 amendment added the last sentence.

§ 18-45. Powers and duties of county boards.—The said county boards shall each have the following powers and duties:

(a) Control and jurisdiction over the importation, sale and distribution of alcoholic beverages within its respective county.

(b) Power to buy and to have in its possession and to sell alcoholic beverages within its county.

(c) Power to adopt and enforce the regulations governing the operation of stores within its county and relating to the carrying out of the provisions and purposes of this article.

(d) To prescribe and regulate and direct the duties and services of all employees of said county board.

(e) To fix the hours for the opening and closing of stores operated by it. No store, however, shall be permitted to remain open between the hours of nine o'clock p. m. and nine o'clock a. m.

(f) To require any county stores to close on such days as it may designate, but all stores in any county operating under the provisions of this article shall remain closed on Sundays, election days, New Year's Day, Fourth of July, Labor Day, Armistice Day, Thanksgiving and Christmas Day.

CH. 18. INTOXICATING LIQUORS

(3) To import, transport, receive, purchase, sell and deliver and have in its possession for sale for present and future delivery alcoholic beverages.

(4) To purchase or lease property, furnish and equip buildings, rooms and accommodations and when required for the storage and sale of alcoholic beverages and for distribution to all county stores within said county.

(i) To borrow money, guarantee the payment thereof and the interest thereon, in such manner as may be required or permitted by law, and to issue, sign, endorse and accept checks, promissory notes, bills of exchange and other negotiable instruments and to do all such other and necessary things as may be required or may be convenient in the conduct of liquor stores in its county.

(j) To investigate and aid in the prosecution of violations of this article and other liquor laws, by whatever name called, and to seize alcoholic beverages in said county sold, kept, imported or transported illegally and to apply for confiscation thereof and to cooperate in the prosecution of offenders in any court in said county.

(k) To regulate and to prescribe rules and regulations that may be necessary or feasible for the obtaining of purity in all alcoholic beverages, including true statements of contents and the proper labeling thereof.

(l) To fix and maintain the prices of all alcoholic beverages sold by liquor stores in said county and to prescribe to whom the same may be sold.

The provisions of this article shall not apply to ethyl alcohol intended for use and/or used for the following purposes:

For scientific, chemical, mechanical, industrial, medicinal and culinary purposes.

For use by those authorized to procure the same tax free, as provided by the acts of congress and regulations promulgated thereunder.

In the manufacture of denatured alcohol produced and used as provided by the acts of congress and regulations promulgated thereunder.

In the manufacture of patented, patent, proprietary, medicinal, pharmaceutical, antiseptic, toilet, scientific, chemical, mechanical, and industrial preparations or products unfit for beverage purposes.

In the manufacture of flavoring extracts and syrups unfit for beverage purposes.

(m) To exercise the power to buy, purchase and sell and to fix the prices at which all alcoholic beverages may be purchased from it, but nothing herein contained shall give said board the power to purchase or sell or deal in alcoholic beverages which contain less than five per centum of alcohol by weight.

(n) To locate stores in its county and to provide for the management thereof and to appoint and employ at least one person for each store conducted by it, who shall be known as "manager" thereof. The duty of such manager shall be to conduct the said store under directions of the county board and to carry out the law applying thereto, and such manager shall give bond for the faithful performance of his duties in such sum as may be fixed by said county board, with sufficient corporate surety and said surety, or sureties thereon, shall be approved by the said county board as a part of the qualifications of such manager for his appointment, and the said county board shall have the right to sue on said bond and to recover for all failures on the part of said manager faithfully to perform his duties as such manager, to the extent of any loss occasioned by such manager on his part, but as against the surety, or sureties, thereon, such aggregate recovery, or recoveries, shall not exceed the penalty of said bond.

(o) To expend for law enforcement a sum not less than five per cent nor more than ten per cent of the total profits to be determined by quarterly audits and in the expenditure of said funds shall employ one or more persons to be appointed by and directly responsible to the respective county boards. The persons so appointed shall, after taking the oath prescribed by law for the peace officers, have the same powers and authorities within their respective counties as other peace officers. And any person so appointed, or any other peace officer while in hot pursuit of anyone found to be violating the prohibition laws of this state, shall have the right to go into any other county of the state and arrest such offender therein so long as such hot pursuit of such person shall continue, and the common law of hot pursuit shall be applicable to said offenses and such officers. Any law enforcement officer appointed by such county boards and any other peace officer is hereby authorized, upon request of the sheriff or other lawful officer in any other county, to go into such other county and assist in suppressing a violation of the prohibition law therein, and while so acting shall have such powers as a peace officer as are granted to him in his own county and be entitled to all the protection provided for said officer while acting in his own county.

(p) To discontinue the operation of any store in its county whenever it shall appear to said board that the operation thereof is not sufficiently profitable to justify a continuance of its operation, or when, in its opinion, the operation of any store is inimical or hurtful to the morals or welfare of the community in which it is operated, or when said county board may be directed to close any store by the state board.

All the powers and duties herein conferred upon county boards, or required of them, shall be subject to the powers herein conferred upon the state board and whenever or wherever herein the state board has been given power to approve or disapprove anything in respect to county stores or county stores, then no power on the part of the county boards and no act of any county board shall be exercisable or valid until and unless the same has been approved by the state board.

Local Modification.—Moore: 1937, c. 49, s. 10(p).

Editor's Note.—The 1939 amendment added the last two sentences to subsection (o). For comment on 1929 amendatory act, see 17 N. C. Law Rev. 349.

§ 18-46. No sales except during hours fixed by county boards; sales to minors, habitual drunkards, etc.; discretion of managers and em-employees; list of persons convicted of drunkenness, etc.; unlawful to buy for person prohibited.—No alcoholic beverage shall be sold knowingly by any county store or the manager thereof or any employee therein at any time other than within the opening and closing hours for said store, as fixed in the manner herein provided, and otherwise as prescribed by the said county board. No alcoholic beverage shall be sold knowingly to any minor, or to any person who has been convicted of public drunkenness or of driving any motor vehicle while under the influence of intoxicating liquors, or has been convicted of any crime wherein the court or judge shall find as a fact that such person committed said crime or aided and abetted in the commission thereof as a result of the influence of intoxicating liquors (within one year of any such conviction), or to any person known to be an habitual drunkard or who has within one year been confined in the inebriate ward of any state institution. The manager and employees of and in any county store may, in their discretion, refuse to sell alcoholic beverage to any individual applicant, and such power and the duty to exercise the same shall vest in and apply to such manager and employees, regardless of the failure of the county boards to make any regulations providing for the same, and in their discretion may refuse to sell more than four quarts at any one time in any one day to any person.

The various clerks of the superior court and of any inferior courts in counties coming under the provisions of this article shall furnish to the chairman of the control board of their county a list of all persons convicted of public drunkenness or convicted of driving an automobile while intoxicated; and the state motor vehicle department shall furnish to the chairmen of all the control boards in this state a list of all persons whose driving licenses have been revoked for driving an automobile while intoxicated, or for the illegal use of whiskey.

It shall be unlawful for any person to buy any alcoholic beverage if he be within the class prohibited from purchasing same as set out in this section, and it shall further be unlawful for any person to buy any alcoholic beverage for any person who may be prohibited from purchasing for himself under any of the provisions of this article. (1937, c. 49, s. 11, c. 411.)

§ 18-47. Drinking upon premises prohibited; stores closed on Sundays, election days, etc. —No alcoholic beverage shall be drunk upon the premises of any county store or warehouse, or room or building occupied or used by any county board or any of its employees for the purpose of performing their duties in respect to alcoholic beverages, and such county boards, managers and employees shall not permit alcoholic beverages to be drunk upon said premises and all county stores shall be closed on Sundays and election days, and such other days as the state board may designate. (1937, c. 49, s. 12.)

§ 18-48. Possession illegal if taxes not paid; punishment and forfeiture for violations; possession in container without proper stamp, prima facie evidence.—It shall be unlawful for any firm, person or corporation to have in his or its possession any alcoholic beverages as defined herein upon which the taxes imposed by the laws of congress of the United States or by the laws of this state, have not been paid and any person convicted of the violation of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and fined or imprisoned in the discretion of the court and the alcoholic beverage shall be seized and forfeited, together with any vehicle, vessel, aeroplane or other equipment used in the transportation and to carry the said alcoholic beverages, and the procedure pointed out in § 18-6 for the seizure, arrest, confiscation and sale of such vehicle, vessel, aeroplane or other means of transportation shall be used and the provisions of said § 18-6 are hereby declared to be in full force and effect in any of the counties of the state which shall operate under the provisions of this article, and the possession of such alcoholic beverages in a container which does not bear either a revenue stamp of the federal government or a stamp of any of the county boards of the state of North Carolina shall constitute prima facie evidence of the violation of this section. (1937, c. 49, s. 13.)

§ 18-49. Transportation, not in excess of one gallon, authorized; transportation in course of delivery to stores.—It shall not be unlawful for any person to transport a quantity of alcoholic beverages not in excess of one gallon from a county in North Carolina coming under the provisions of this article to or through another county in North Carolina not coming under the provisions of this article: Provided, said alcoholic beverages are not being transported for the purposes of sale, and provided further that the cap or seal on the container or containers of said alcoholic beverages has not been opened or broken. Nothing contained in this article shall be construed to prevent the transportation through any county not coming under the provisions of this article, of alcoholic beverages in actual course of delivery to any alcoholic beverage control board established in any county coming under the provisions of this article. (1937, c. 49, s. 14.)

Cross Reference.—As to transportation into state, etc., see § 18-58.

§ 18-50. Possession for sale and sales of illicit liquors; sales of liquors purchased from stores. —The possession for sale, or sales, of illicit liquors, or the sale of any liquors purchased from county stores, is hereby prohibited and a violation of this section shall constitute a crime and shall be punishable by fine or imprisonment, or both, in the discretion of the court. (1937, c. 49, s. 15.)

In a prosecution for possession of intoxicating liquor in violation of this section, the fact of possession does not constitute prima facie evidence that the possession was for the purpose of sale, since by statute under which the warrant is drawn does not provide for such prima facie rule. State v. Lockey, 214 N. C. 525, 199 S. E. 715.

§ 18-51. Drinking or offering drinks on premises of stores, and public roads or streets; drunkenness, etc., at athletic contests or other public places.—It shall be unlawful for any person to drink alcoholic beverages or to offer a drink to another person, or persons, whether accepted or not, at the place where the same is purchased from the county store, or the premises thereof, or upon any premises used or occupied by county boards for the purpose of carrying out the provisions of this article, or on any public road or street, and it shall be unlawful for any person or persons to be or become intoxicated or to make any public display of any intoxicating beverages at any athletic contest or other public place in North Carolina. The violation of this section shall constitute a misdemeanor and shall be punishable by a fine of not exceeding fifty ($50.00) dollars or imprisoned for not more than thirty days in the discretion of the court. (1937, c. 49, s. 16, c. 411.)

§ 18-52. Advertising permitted in newspapers, magazines and periodicals.—It shall be lawful for newspapers, magazines and periodicals to accept and publish advertisements relating to wines, beers and other alcoholic beverages permitted to be sold and distributed under the laws of North Carolina. (1935, c. 465.)

§ 18-53. Advertising by county A. B. C. stores and on billboards prohibited.—It shall be unlawful for any county store to advertise anywhere, or by any means or method, alcoholic beverages which it has for sale and it shall not advertise or post its prices, other than in the store, or stores, which it operates, and in such stores it shall only state the brands or kinds of beverages and the price of each kind and such price list shall only be posted for public view in said store.

It shall be unlawful for any person, firm or corporation to erect or set up, or permit to be set up, any sign or billboard, or other device, containing any advertisement of alcoholic beverages as defined herein on his premises, and if the same shall be set up by any other person, then such owner or lessee of such premises shall not permit the same to remain thereon.

It shall be unlawful for any person, firm, or corporation to display, or permit to be displayed, upon any billboard, signboard, or any other similar advertising medium, any advertisement of any alcoholic beverages or any spirituous liquors as defined herein. (1937, c. 49, s. 17; 1937, c. 398.)

Cross Reference.—As to advertising provisions under the Turlington Act, see § 18-3.

§ 18-54. Advertising by radio broadcasts prohibited.—No firm, person or corporation in this state shall broadcast, or permit to be broadcast, any statement, speech, or any other message by whatsoever name called, over any radio broadcasting system doing business in this state, when such advertising matter tends to advertise alcoholic beverages as defined herein and the broadcast thereof originates in this state. (1937, c. 49, s. 18.)

§ 18-55. Additional regulations as to advertising.—The several county boards by and with the consent and approval of the state board, shall have power to make such other rules and regulations as will prevent and tend to prevent advertisement of alcoholic beverages otherwise than is expressly prohibited herein and to publish such rules and regulations and to take effective measures to enforce the same. (1937, c. 49, s. 19.)

§ 18-56. Salaries and expenses paid from proceeds of sales.—All salaries and expenses incurred under the provisions of this article except those provided for in § 18-37 shall be paid out of the proceeds of the sales of the alcoholic beverages referred to in this article. All salaries and expenses of county boards and their employees shall be paid out of the receipts for their sales as operating expenses. (1937, c. 49, s. 20.)

§ 18-57. Net profits to be paid into general fund of the various counties.—After deducting the amount required to be expended for enforcement as herein provided and retaining sufficient and proper working capital, the amount to be determined by the board, and except as hereinbefore provided in chapters four hundred ninety-three and four hundred eighteen of the Public Laws of one thousand nine hundred thirty-five, the entire net profits derived from any stores shall be paid quarterly to the general fund of each respective county wherein county stores are operated. (1937, c. 49, s. 21; c. 411.)

Local Modification.—Brunswick: 1937, c. 269; Cumberland: 1941, c. 48; Franklin: 1937, c. 250, s. 2; New Hanover: 1941, c. 135.

§ 18-58. Transportation into state; and purchases, other than from stores, prohibited.—It shall be unlawful for any person, firm, or corporation, to purchase in, or to bring in this state, any alcoholic beverage from any source, except from a county store operated in accordance with this article, except a person may purchase legally outside of this state and bring into the same for his own personal use not more than one gallon of such alcoholic beverage. A violation of this section shall constitute a misdemeanor, punishable by fine or imprisonment, or both, in the discretion of the court. (1937, c. 49, s. 22.)

Cross Reference.—As to transportation to or through dry counties, see § 18-49.

§ 18-59. Violations by member or employee of boards, cause for removal and punishable as misdemeanor.—A violation of any of the provisions of this article by any person, firm or corporation, and the violation of any provision of this article, or any regulation adopted by any county board or by the state board, by any member of the state board, or any member of any county board, or any employee of either of said boards, shall constitute a misdemeanor, punishable by fine or imprisonment, or both, in the discretion of the court, and in addition thereto shall constitute sufficient cause for the removal of such person from either of said boards, or from his employment under either of said boards and in addition to the powers of the state board to remove any of its employees or any member of any county board and the power of any county board to remove any of its employees from such employment, the court in which the said conviction is had shall have the power upon such conviction and as a part of its judgment thereon to remove such person from either of said boards or from the employment of either. (1937, c. 49, s. 23.)

§ 18-60. Definition of “alcoholic beverage.”—The term “alcoholic beverage”, as used in this article, is hereby defined to be and to mean alcoholic beverages of any and all kinds which shall contain more than fourteen per centum of alcohol by volume, and this article is not intended to apply to, or regulate, the possession, sale, manufacture or transportation of beer, wines or ales containing a lower alcoholic content than above specified.
of the county control board and convert the same into money and shall, after making a true and faithful accounting, turn all money in its hands over to the general fund of the county. Thereafter, chapter one of the Public Laws of one thousand nine hundred twenty-three [§ 18-1 et seq.], being commonly known as the Turlington Act, shall be in full force and effect in such county, until and unless another election is held under the provisions of this article, in which a majority of the votes shall be cast "for county liquor control stores," except as modified by this article or any acts amendatory hereof.

No election under this section shall be held on the day of any biennial election for county officers, or within sixty days of such an election, and the date of such elections under this section shall be fixed by the board of elections of the county wherein the same is held.

No other election shall be called and held in any of the counties in the state under the provisions of this article within three years from the holding of the last election under this act. During any county in which an election was held either under the provisions of chapter four hundred ninety-three or chapter four hundred eighteen of the Public Laws of one thousand nine hundred thirty-five, an election may be called under the provisions of this article, provided no such election shall be called within three years of the holding of the last election. (1937, c. 49, s. 25, c. 431.)

§ 18-62. Elections in counties now operating stores, not required for continued operation.—Nothing herein contained shall be so construed as to require counties in which liquor stores have been established under chapters four hundred eighteen or four hundred ninety-three of the Public Laws of one thousand nine hundred thirty-five to have any further election in order to enable such counties to establish liquor stores, and as to such counties in which liquor stores are now being operated under chapters four hundred eighteen or four hundred ninety-three of the Public Laws of one thousand nine hundred thirty-five, such stores shall from February 22, 1937 be operated under the terms of this article. (1937, c. 49, s. 26.)

Local Modification.—Moore: 1937, c. 49, s. 26.

Art. 4. Beverage Control Act of 1939.

§ 18-63. Title.—This article shall be known as the Beverage Control Act of one thousand nine hundred thirty-nine. (1939, c. 158, s. 500.)

Local Modification.—The following laws are amendments to or modifications of 1939, c. 216, of which the Beverage Control Act of 1939 is a successor: Alamance (Elon College, Sylvan High School, and Cane Creek Church): 1933, c. 381, 417; Bladen (French Creek Township): 1933, c. 475; Buncombe (Ridgecrest, Montreat, town of Weaverville): 1933, c. 396; Caswell (village of Yanceyville and M. E. School): 1933, c. 397; Dare (Stumpy Point voting precinct): 1933, c. 455; Guilford (Guilford College and Oak Ridge Military Institute): 1933, c. 369, 370, 406; Harnett (Campbell College): 1933, c. 398; Madison (Mt. Airy Hill College): 1933, c. 396; Mecklenburg (Davidson College): 1933, c. 313; Mitchell (town of Bakersville): 1933, c. 396; Moore (Quaker Children’s Home): 1933, c. 454; Randolph (village of Worthville): 1933, c. 512; Sampson (Northeast Junior College): 1933, c. 358; Union (Wake Forest College): 1933, c. 454; Wake (Wake Forest College): 1913, c. 564; Warren (village of Macon): 1933, c. 395.
§ 18-64. Definitions.—The term “beverages” as used in this article shall include:
(a) Beer, lager beer, ale, porter, and other brewed or fermented beverages containing one-half of one per cent (1%) of alcohol by volume but not more than five per cent (5%) of alcohol by weight as authorized by the laws of the United States of America.
(b) Unfortified wines, as used in this article, shall mean wine of an alcoholic content produced only by natural fermentation or by the addition of pure cane, beet, or dextrose sugar and having an alcoholic content of not less than five per cent (5%) and not more than fourteen per centum (14%) of absolute alcohol, the per centum of alcohol to be reckoned by volume.

The term “person” used in this article shall mean any individual, firm, partnership, association, corporation, or other groups or combination acting as a unit.

The term “sale” as used in this article shall include any transfer, trade, exchange or barter in any manner or by any means whatsoever, for a consideration.

(1939, c. 158, s. 501; 1941, c. 339, s. 4.)

Editor’s Note.—The 1941 amendment struck out former subsection (c) defining fortified wines. For new definition of fortified wines enacted by the 1941 General Assembly, see § 18-96.

For comment on the 1941 amendment, see 19 N. C. Law Rev. 492.

§ 18-65. Regulations; statement required on container; application of other law.—The beverages enumerated in § 18-64 may be manufactured, transported, or sold in this state in the manner and under the regulations hereinafter set out: Provided, however, that, except as otherwise provided by law, no wines shall be transported or sold in this state unless there be firmly fastened or impressed on the barrel, bottle, or other container in which the same may be a written statement showing that the same are not fortified and that the alcoholic content thereof reckoned by volume, is not more than fourteen per cent.

The possession, transportation, or sale of wines defined in § 18-64, subsection (b) without such statement, and any misrepresentation made in any such statement, shall constitute a misdemeanor and be punished as provided in § 18-91. Except as otherwise provided by law, the manufacture, possession, transportation or sale of wines other than those defined in § 18-64, subsection (b), including fortified wines, shall be subject to all the provisions of chapter one of the Public Laws of one thousand nine hundred and twenty-three, commonly called the Turlington Act, as amended and supplemented, modified as § 18-1 et seq. (1939, c. 158, s. 502; 1941, c. 339, s. 4.)

Editor’s Note.—The 1941 amendment added the proviso and the second paragraph.

§ 18-66. Transportation.—The beverages enumerated in § 18-64 may be transported into, out of or between points in this state by railroad companies, express companies or by steamboat companies engaged in public service as common carriers and having regularly established schedules of service. Upon condition that such companies shall keep accurate records of the character and volume of such shipments, the character and number of packages or containers, shall keep records open at all times for inspection by the commissioner of revenue of this state or his authorized agent, and upon condition that such common carrier shall make report of all shipments of such beverages into, out of or between points in this state at such times and in such detail and form as may be required by the commissioner of revenue.

The beverages enumerated in § 18-64 may be transported into, out of or between points in this state over the public highways of this state by motor vehicles upon condition that every person intending to make such use of the highways of this state shall as a prerequisite thereto register such intention with the commissioner of revenue, in advance of such transportation, with notice of the kind and character of such products to be transported and the license and motor number of each motor vehicle intended to be used in such transportation. Upon the filing of such information, together with an agreement to comply with the provisions of this article, the commissioner of revenue shall issue a numbered certificate to each such owner or operator for each motor vehicle intended to be used for such transportation, which numbered certificate shall be prominently displayed on the motor vehicle used in transporting the products named in § 18-64. Every person transporting such products over any of the public highways of this state shall during the entire time he is so engaged have in his possession an invoice or bill of sale or other record evidence, showing the true name and address of the person from whom he has received such beverages, the character and contents of containers, the number of bottles, cases or gallons of such shipment, the true name and address of every person to whom deliveries are to be made. The person transporting such beverages shall, at the request of any representative of the commissioner of revenue, produce and offer for inspection said invoice or bill of sale or record evidence. If said person fails to produce invoice or bill of sale or record evidence, or if when produced, it fails to clearly and accurately disclose said information, the same shall be prima facie evidence of the violation of this article. Every person engaged in transporting such beverages over the public highways of this state shall keep accurate records of the character and volume of such shipments, the character and number of packages or containers, shall keep records open at all times for inspection by the commissioner of revenue of this state, or his authorized agent, and upon condition that such person shall make report of all shipments of such beverages into, out of or between points in this state at such times and in such detail and form as may be required by the commissioner of revenue.

The purchase, transportation and possession of beverages enumerated in § 18-64 by individuals for their own use is permitted without restriction or regulation. The provisions of this section as to transportation of beverages enumerated in § 18-64 by motor vehicles over the public highways of this state shall in like manner apply to the owner or operator of any boat using the waters of the state for such transportation, and all of the provisions of this section with respect to permit for such transportation and such report to the commissioner of revenue by the operators of motor vehicles on public highways shall in like manner.
apply to the owner or operator of any boat using the waters of this state. (1939, c. 158, s. 503.)

§ 18-67. Manufacture.—The brewing or manufacture of beverages for sale enumerated in section 18-64 shall be permitted in this state upon the payment of an annual license tax to the commissioner of revenue in the sum of five hundred dollars ($500.00) for a period ending on the next succeeding thirtieth day of April and annually thereafter. Persons licensed under this section may sell such beverages in barrels, bottles, or other closed containers only to persons licensed under this section, in the manner hereinafter set forth, and no other license tax shall be levied upon the business taxed in this section. The sale of malt, hops, and other ingredients used in the manufacture of beverages for sale enumerated in § 18-64 is hereby permitted and allowed: Provided, that any person engaged in the business of manufacturing in this state the wines described in § 18-64, subsection (b) shall be required to pay the following tax based on the number of gallons manufactured:
Where not more than one hundred gallons are manufactured for sale .................. $ 5.00
Where one hundred gallons and not more than two hundred gallons are manufactured for sale ................................ 10.00
Where two hundred gallons and not more than five hundred gallons are manufactured for sale .......................... 25.00
Where five hundred gallons and not more than one thousand gallons are manufactured for sale .......................... 50.00
Where one thousand gallons and not more than two thousand five hundred gallons are manufactured for sale .................. 200.00
Where two thousand five hundred gallons or more are manufactured for sale ...... 250.00

Nothing in this article shall be construed to impose any tax upon any resident citizen of this state who makes native wines for the use of himself, his family and guests from fruits, grapes and berries cultivated or grown wild upon his own land. (1939, c. 158, s. 504.)

§ 18-68. Bottler's license.—Any person who shall engage in the business of receiving shipments of the beverages enumerated in § 18-64, subsection (a) in barrels or other containers, and bottling the same for sale to others for resale, shall pay an annual license tax of two hundred fifty dollars ($250.00); and any person who shall engage in the business of bottling the beverages described in § 18-64, subsection (b), shall pay an annual license tax of two hundred fifty dollars ($250.00): Provided, however, that any person engaged in the business of bottling the beverages described in § 18-64, subsection (a) and also the beverages described in § 18-64, subsection (b), or either, shall pay an annual license tax of four hundred dollars ($400.00). No other license tax shall be levied upon the businesses taxed in this section, but licensees under this section shall be liable for the payment of the taxes imposed by § 18-81 in the manner therein set forth. (1939, c.
158, s. 505; 1941, c. 339, s. 4.)

Editor's Note.—The 1941 amendment struck out references to former subsection (c) of § 18-64.

§ 18-69. Wholesaler's license.—License to sell at wholesale, which shall authorize licensees to sell beverages described in § 18-64, subsection (a) in barrels, bottles, or other containers, in quantities of not less than one case or container to a customer, shall be issued as a state-wide license by the commissioner of revenue. The annual license under this section shall be one hundred and fifty dollars ($150.00) and shall expire on the next succeeding thirtieth day of April. The license issued under this section shall be revocable at any time by the commissioner of revenue for failure to comply with any of the conditions of this article with respect to the character of records required to be kept, reports to be made or payment of other taxes hereinafter set out.

Licensees to sell at wholesale the beverages described in section 18-64, subsection (b) shall pay an annual license tax of one hundred fifty dollars ($150.00): Provided, that a licensee to sell at wholesale the beverages described in § 18-64, subsection (a) and the beverages described in § 18-64, subsection (b) shall pay an annual license tax of two hundred fifty dollars ($250.00).

If any wholesaler maintains more than one place of business or storage warehouse from which orders are received or beverages are distributed a separate license shall be paid for each separate place of business or warehouse.

The owner or operator of every distributing warehouse selling, distributing or supplying to retail stores beverages enumerated in § 18-64 shall be deemed a wholesale distributor within the meaning of this article and shall be liable for the tax imposed in this section and shall comply with the conditions imposed in this article upon wholesale distributors of beverages with respect to payment of taxes levied in this article and bond for the payment of such taxes.

No county shall levy a tax on any business under the provisions of this section, nor shall any city or town, in which any person, firm, corporation or association taxed hereunder has its principal place of business, tax at a rate more than one-fourth of the state tax levied under this section; nor shall any tax be levied or collected by any county, city or town on account of delivery of the products, beverages or articles enumerated in § 18-64. (1939, c. 158, s. 506; 1941, c. 339, s. 4.)

Editor's Note.—The 1941 amendment struck out the reference in the second paragraph to former subsection (c) of § 18-64.

§ 18-70. Sales on railroad trains.—The sale of beverages enumerated in § 18-64 shall be permitted on railroad trains in this state to be sold only in dining cars, buffet cars, Pullman cars, or club cars, and for consumption on such cars upon payment to the commissioner of revenue of one hundred dollars ($100.00) for each railroad system over which such cars are operated.

No other license shall be levied upon licees under this section, but every licensee under this section shall make a report to the commisssioner of revenue on or before the tenth day of each calendar month covering sales for the previous month and payment of the tax on such sales at the rate of tax levied in this article. (1939,
c. 158, s. 507.)

§ 18-71. Salesman's license.—License for salesmen, which shall authorize the licensee to offer for sale within the state or solicit orders for the sale of within the state beverages enumerated in this article, shall be issued by the commissioner of revenue upon the payment of an annual license tax of twelve dollars and fifty cents ($12.50) to the commissioner of revenue, such license to expire on the next succeeding thirtieth day of April. License to salesmen shall be issued only upon the recommendation of the vendor whom they represent, and no other license tax shall be levied under this section. (1939, c. 158, s. 508.)

§ 18-72. Character of license.—License issued under authority of § 18-64, subsection (a) shall be of two kinds:

(1) "On premises" license which shall be issued for bona fide hotels, cafeterias, cafes and restaurants and shall authorize the licensees to sell at retail for consumption on the premises designated in the license, and to sell the beverages in original packages for consumption off the premises.

(2) "Off premises" license which shall authorize the licensee to sell at retail beverages for consumption only off the premises designated in the license, and only in the immediate container in which the beverages was received by the licensee.

In a municipality the governing board of such municipality shall determine whether an applicant for license is entitled to a "premises" license under the terms of this article, and outside of municipalities such determination shall be by the board of commissioners of the county. (1939, c. 158, s. 509.)

§ 18-73. Retail license issued for sale of wines. —License issued under authority of section 18-64, subsection (b) shall be of two kinds:

1. "On premises" licenses shall be issued to bona fide hotels, cafeterias, cafes and restaurants and shall authorize the licensees to sell at retail for consumption on the premises designated in the license: provided no such license shall be issued except to hotels, cafeterias, cafes and restaurants where prepared food is customarily sold and to such only as are licensed under the provisions of § 105-62 and which, at the time of the application for such license, have been given a grade A or B rating by the state department of health.

2. "Off premises" license shall authorize the licensee to sell said beverages at retail for consumption off the premises designated in the license, and all such sales shall be made in the immediate container in which the beverage was purchased by the licensee, and every such container shall have the tax stamp displayed thereon, as provided in § 18-81. (1939, c. 158, s. 509%; 1941, c. 339, s. 4.)

Editor's Note. —The 1941 amendment struck out in line two of the text of this section the reference to former subsection (c) of § 18-64.

§ 18-74. Amount of retail license tax.—The license tax to sell at retail under § 18-64, subsection (a) for municipalities shall be:

(1) For "on premises" license, fifteen dollars ($15.00).

(2) For "off premises" license, five dollars ($5.00).

The license tax to sell at retail under section 18-64, subsection (b), or both, shall be:

(1) For "on premises" license, fifteen dollars ($15.00).

(2) For "off premises" license, ten dollars ($10.00).

The rate of license tax levied in this section shall be for the first license issued to one person and for each additional license issued to one person an additional tax of ten per cent (10%) of the base tax, such increase to apply progressively for each additional license issued to one person. (1939, c. 158, s. 510; 1943, c. 400, s. 6.)

Editor's Note. —The 1941 amendment reduced the license tax stated in lines six and seven from ten to five dollars.

§ 18-75. Who may sell at retail.—Every person making application for license to sell at retail beverages enumerated in § 18-64, if the place where such sale is to be made is within a municipality, shall make application first to the governing board of such municipality, and the application shall contain:

(1) Name and residence of the applicant and the length of his residence within the state of North Carolina.

(2) The particular place for which the license is desired, designating the same by a street and number, if practicable; if not, by such other apt description as definitely locates it.

(3) The name of the owner of the premises upon which the business licensed is to be carried on.

(4) That the applicant intends to carry on the business authorized by the license for himself or under his immediate supervision and direction.

(5) A statement that the applicant is a citizen and resident of North Carolina and not less than twenty-one years of age; that he has never been convicted of a felony or other crime involving moral turpitude; and that he has not, within the last two years prior to the filing of the application, been adjudged guilty of violating the prohibition laws, either state or federal. The application must be verified by the affidavit of the petitioner made before a notary public or other person duly authorized by law to administer oaths. If it appears from the statement of the applicant or otherwise that he has at any time been convicted of a felony or other crime involving moral turpitude, or that he has, within the two years prior to the filing of the application, been adjudged guilty of violating the prohibition laws, either state or federal, the application must be verified by the affidavit of the petitioner made before a notary public or other person duly authorized by law to administer oaths. If it appears from the statement of the applicant or otherwise that he has at any time been convicted of a felony or other crime involving moral turpitude, or that he has, within the two years prior to the filing of the application, been adjudged guilty of violating the prohibition laws, either state or federal, or that he has within two years prior to the filing of the application completed a sentence for violation of the prohibition laws, such license shall not be granted. If it appears that any false statement is knowingly made in any part of the application and license is received thereon, the license shall be revoked and the applicant subjected to the penalty provided by law for misdemeanors. Before issuing a license, the governing body of the municipality shall be satisfied that the statements required by subsections (1), (2), (3), (4), and (5) of this section are true.

Neither the state nor any county or city shall issue a license under this article to any person, or firm, or corporation who has not been a bona fide resident of North Carolina for one year. No resident of the state shall obtain a license under this article and employ or receive aid from a nonresident for the purpose of defeating this requirement. Any person violating this paragraph shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be imprisoned not more than thirty days or fined not more than two hundred dollars ($200.00).

§ 18-76. County license to sell at retail.—License to sell at retail shall be issued by the board of commissioners of the county, and application for such license shall be made in the same manner and contain the same information set out in § 18-75 with respect to municipal license. If the application is for license to sell within a municipality, the application must also show that license has been granted the applicant by the governing board of such municipality. The granting of a license by the governing board of a municipality shall determine the right of an applicant to receive a county license upon compliance with the conditions of this article.

If the application is for license to sell outside of a municipality within the county, the application shall also show the distance to the nearest church or public or private school from the place at which the applicant purposes to sell at retail. No license shall be granted to sell within three hundred feet of any public or private school buildings or church building outside of incorporated cities and towns: Provided, the restrictions set forth in this sentence shall not apply to unincorporated towns and villages having police protection.

The clerk of the board of commissioners of each county shall make prompt report to the commissioner of revenue of each license granted by the board of commissioners of such county. The county license fee shall be fixed at (1) twenty-five dollars ($25.00) for "on premises" license and (2) five dollars ($5.00) for "off premises" license, for the sale of beverages described in § 18-64, subsection (a), and twenty-five dollars ($25.00), for the sale of beverages described in § 18-64, subsection (b) and the same shall be placed in the county treasury, for the use of the county. (1939, c. 158, s. 512; 1941, c. 339, s. 4; 1943, c. 400, s. 6.)

Local Modification.—Anson: 1941, c. 331; Currituck (Polar Branch Township): 1937, c. 990.

Editor's Note.—The 1941 amendment struck out the reference to former subsection (c) of § 18-64 appearing in the third paragraph.

The 1941 amendment struck out the words and figures "twenty-five dollars ($25.00)" in lines five and six of the third paragraph and inserted in lieu thereof "(1) twenty-five dollars ($25.00) for 'on premises' license and (2) five dollars ($5.00) for 'off premises' license."

§ 18-77. Issuance of license mandatory; sales during religious services.—It shall be mandatory that the governing body of a municipality or county issue license to any person applying for the same when such person shall have complied with requirements of this article. Provided, no person shall dispense beverages herein authorized to be sold, within fifty feet of a church building in an incorporated city or town, or in a city or town having police protection whether incorporated or not, while religious services are being held in such church, or within three hundred feet of a church building outside the corporate limits of a city or town while church services are in progress: And provided further that this section shall not apply in any territory where the sale of wine and/or beer prohibited by special legislative act. And provided further, that such governing bodies in the counties of Watauga, Ashe, Jackson, Haywood, Duplin, Alexander, Robeson, McDowell, Yadkin, Wilkes, Sampson, Greene, Montgomery, Transylvania, Randolph, Chatham, Alamance, Clay, Madison, Pender, Avery, Nash, Granville and the Town of Aulander, or any municipality therein shall be authorized in their discretion to decline to issue the "on premises" licenses provided for in subsection one of § 18-73. The governing bodies in the counties of Watauga, Ashe, Jackson, Haywood, Duplin, Alexander, Robeson, McDowell, Yadkin, Wilkes, Sampson, Greene, Montgomery, Transylvania, Randolph, Chatham, Alamance, Clay, Madison, Pender, Avery, Nash, Granville and the town of Aulander or municipalities therein, shall be authorized to prohibit the sale of beer and/or wine between the hours of 12:01 A. M. on Sundays and midnight Sunday night. (1939, c. 158, s. 513; 1939, c. 405.)

§ 18-78. Revocation or suspension of license; rule making power of commissioner of revenue.—If any licensee violates any of the provisions of this article or any rules and regulations under authority of this article or fails to superintend in person or through a manager, the business for which the license was issued, or allows the premises with respect to which the license was issued to be used for any unlawful, disorderly, or immoral purposes, or knowingly employs in the sale or distribution of beverages any person who has been convicted of a felony involving moral turpitude or adjudged guilty of violating the prohibition laws within two years or otherwise fails to carry out in good faith the purposes of this article, the license of any such person may be revoked by the governing board of the municipality or by the board of county commissioners by which the license was issued by the commissioner of revenue.—The commissioner of revenue shall have the power to adopt, repeal, and amend rules and regulations to carry out the provisions of this article and to revoke or suspend the state license of any licensee for violation of the provisions of this article or of any rule or regulation adopted by him, as provided in § 18-78.1. Whenever there shall be filed with the commissioner of revenue a certified copy of a judgment of a court convicting a licensee of a violation of the prohibition laws or of any provision of this article or of any rule or regulation issued by the commissioner of revenue, the commissioner of revenue shall forthwith revoke the license of said licensee. The revocation or suspension of either a state, county, or municipal license shall automatically revoke or suspend any other license issued to the licensee under the authority of this article. (1939, c. 158, § 514; 1943, c. 400, s. 6.)

Cross Reference.—See also § 18-91.

Editor's Note.—The 1943 amendment inserted in the second sentence the words "or of any of the provisions of this article or of any rule or regulation of the commissioner of revenue." It also added the second paragraph.

§ 18-78.1. Prohibited acts under license for sale for consumption on premises; procedure for revocation or suspension of license; enforcement.—No holder of a license authorizing the sale at retail of beverages, as defined in § 18-64, for consumption on the premises where sold, or any servant, agent, or employee of the licensee, shall do any of the following upon the licensed premises:

1. Knowingly sell such beverages to any person under eighteen (18) years of age.
2. Knowingly sell such beverages to any person while such person is in an intoxicated condition.
3. Sell such beverages upon the licensed premises or permit such beverages to be consumed thereon, on any day or at any time when such sale or consumption is prohibited by law.
4. Permit on the licensed premises any disorderly conduct, breach of peace, or any lewd, immoral, or improper entertainment, conduct or practices.
5. Sell, offer for sale, possess, or permit the consumption on the licensed premises of any kind of alcoholic liquors the sale or possession of which is not authorized under his license.

Proceedings for the revocation or suspension under this section of any license authorizing the sale of such beverages at retail for consumption on the premises shall be instituted by the filing of a complaint with the commissioner of revenue against the licensee. Said complaint may be filed by the commissioner of revenue upon his own initiative and the said commissioner of revenue may, in his discretion, file a complaint when requested to do so by a peace officer or any person as hereinafter provided. Any peace officer, who learns that any such licensee within his jurisdiction has violated any of the provisions of this section, shall file with commissioner of revenue an affidavit specifying in detail the facts alleged to constitute said violation and requesting that a complaint be filed against said licensee for the revocation or suspension of his license. A like affidavit may be filed with the commissioner of revenue by any person who resides, and has for at least one year prior thereto resided, within two miles of the licensed premises, of such licensee, requesting that a complaint be filed for the revocation or suspension of said licensee's license. Promptly upon receiving any such affidavit, the said commissioner of revenue shall prepare a proper complaint, which shall be signed and sworn to by the person or persons filing the affidavit with him. The commissioner of revenue shall serve, or cause to be served, upon the licensee by personal service or by United States registered mail a notice of the filing of said complaint, together with a copy of said complaint.

The licensee shall have a right at any time within twenty days after service of the notice, above provided for, within which to file with the commissioner of revenue a written denial of the facts alleged in the complaint and demand a hearing thereon. In event such licensee files a written denial of the facts set out in the complaint and demands a hearing thereon, the commissioner of revenue shall immediately certify the record to the superior court of the county in which the license was issued where the matter shall be heard and determined at the next term of the superior court held in said county. If, upon the trial of said matter in the superior court, the allegations contained in the complaint are found against the licensee, the court shall immediately order a revocation or suspension of the license. In event the licensee fails to file a written denial of the facts set out in the complaint and demand a hearing thereon within twenty days after the service of the notice above provided for, the commissioner of revenue shall immediately revoke or suspend the license of said licensee.

It shall be the duty of all peace officers to enforce within their jurisdiction the provisions of this section and they shall frequently visit all such licensed premises within their jurisdiction to determine whether such licensees are complying with the laws; and shall promptly investigate all complaints made to them by any citizen relative to any alleged violations of this section within their jurisdiction. When any peace officer has knowledge of a violation of this section committed by a licensee within his jurisdiction, it shall be his duty forthwith to file an affidavit with the commissioner of revenue, as herein provided, requesting that a complaint be filed for the revocation or suspension of the license of said licensee.

The jurisdiction herein conferred upon the commissioner of revenue shall not be exclusive and any authority conferred upon the governing boards of a municipality, or boards of county commissioners to revoke or suspend licenses shall remain in full force and effect. Provided, however, that when a complaint is filed with the commissioner of revenue, any proceedings which may then be pending before the municipal or county authorities against the same licensee on the same charges shall abate and no proceedings for the revocation or suspension of a license for a violation of the provisions of this section shall be filed with the governing board of municipality or a board of county commissioners when proceedings are pending with the commissioner of revenue against the licensee on the same charge.

The revocation or suspension of a licensee's license, as herein provided, shall be in addition to and not in lieu of or limitation of any other penalty imposed by law. (1943, c. 400, s. 6.)

§ 18-79. State license.—Every person who intends to engage in the business of retail sale of the beverages enumerated in § 18-64, subsection (a) shall also apply for and procure a state license from the commissioner of revenue.

For the first license issued to each licensee five dollars ($5.00), and for each additional license upon the sale of beverages enumerated in § 18-64, subsection (a) and for which license the following schedule of taxes is hereby levied:

(1) For "on premises" license twenty-five dollars $25.00

(2) For "off premises" license five dollars 5.00

Such retail license shall authorize the sale of the beverages described in this section only on the premises described in the license, and if the same person operates more than one place at which said beverages are sold at retail, he shall obtain a license for each such place and pay therefor the license tax provided in this section.

If the license issued to any person by any municipality or county to sell the beverages referred to in this article shall be revoked by the proper officers of such municipality or county, or by any court, it shall be the duty of the commissioner of revenue to revoke the state license of such licensee; and in such event, the licensee shall not be entitled to a refund of any part of the license tax paid.

It shall be unlawful for any wholesale licensee to make any sale or delivery of the beverages described in § 18-64, subsection (b) to any person except persons who have been licensed to sell such beverages at retail, as prescribed in this article.

It shall be unlawful for any retail licensee to purchase any of the beverages described in § 18-64, subsection (b) from any person except wholesale licensees maintaining a place of business within this state and duly licensed under the provisions of this article. (1939, c. 158, s. 516; 1941, c. 339, s. 4.)

Editor's Note.—The 1941 amendment struck out the references to former subsection (c) of § 18-64 formerly appearing in the first, fourth and fifth paragraphs of this section.

§ 18-81. Additional tax.—(a) In addition to the license taxes herein levied, a tax is hereby levied upon the sale of beverages enumerated in § 18-64, subsection (a) of three dollars and seventy-five cents ($3.75) per barrel of thirty-one gallons, or the equivalent of such tax in containers of more or less than thirty-one gallons, and in bottles or other containers of not more than twelve ounces, a tax of one and one-quarter cents per bottle or container: Provided fruit cider of alcoholic content not exceeding that provided in this article may be sold in bottles or other containers of not more than six ounces at a tax of five-eighths of a cent per bottle or container.

(b) The payment of the tax imposed by the preceding subsection shall be evidenced as to containers of not more than six ounces by the affixing of crowns or lids to such containers in which beverages are placed, received, stored, shipped, or handled, and upon which the tax has been paid at the rate of five-eighths of a cent per bottle or container. And the payment of the tax imposed by the preceding subsection shall be evidenced as to containers of more than six ounces and not more than twelve ounces by the affixing of crowns or lids to such containers in which beverages are placed, received, stored, shipped, or handled, and upon which a tax has been paid of one and one-quarter cents per bottle or container.

(c) Except as may be otherwise provided herein, each manufacturer or bottler manufacturing, selling or delivering beverages in this state shall, within twenty-four hours after the beverages are placed in original containers or bottles, and prior to delivery of any container of beverages to any wholesaler, distributor, retailer, jobber, or any other person whatsoever in this state, affix the proper crown or lid to each container.

(d) Except as may be otherwise provided herein, and unless such crowns or lids have been previously affixed, such crowns or lids shall be affixed as herein provided by each distributor or wholesaler in this state within twenty-four hours after such beverages come into the possession of such wholesaler and prior to the delivery of any container thereof to any retailer or other person in this state.

(e) The commissioner of revenue shall prescribe, prepare and sell the crowns or lids provided for in this section under rules and regulations prescribed by him, and all such crowns and lids shall carry the following words: "N. C. Tax Paid," and shall be so designed as to enable the manufacturer or bottler to place his brand or trade mark thereon, and they shall be purchased by the manufacturer or bottler or other person after the payment of the tax imposed by this article, only from such persons, firms or corporations as may be designated as manufacturers of such crowns and lids by the commissioner of revenue. The commissioner of revenue is authorized to enter into contracts on behalf of the state with one or more manufacturers for the manufacture, sale and distribution of such crowns or lids and shall require of such persons, firms and corporations so manufacturing, selling and distributing such crowns or lids a bond or bonds with a company authorized to do business in this state as surety payable to the state of North Carolina in such penalty and upon such conditions as in the opinion of the commissioner of revenue will adequately protect the state. The crowns and lids shall be manufactured, sold and distributed at the cost of the taxpayer. No manufacturer or bottler will be allowed to purchase the crowns or lids prescribed by this section unless such bottler or manufacturer has a valid permit from the federal government and the state of North Carolina to manufacture, sell and distribute such crowns or lids in the state in which such manufacturer or bottler is located, to manufacture, bottle, or sell the beverages herein described. The crowns and lids shall be sold by the commissioner of revenue at a discount of two per cent (2%) as sole compensation for North Carolina tax-paid crown and lid losses sustained in the process of production of malt beverages. No compensation or refund shall be made for tax-paid malt beverages given as free goods, or advertising, and losses, sustained by spoilage and breakage incident to the sale and distribution of malt beverages.

(f) At the time of delivering beverages to any person, firm or corporation in this state, each manufacturer or bottler shall make a true duplicate invoice showing the date of delivery, the amount and value of each shipment of beverages delivered, and the name of the purchaser to whom the delivery is made, and shall retain the same for a period of two years, subject to the use and inspection of the commissioner of revenue or his agents.

(g) Persons operating boats, dining cars, buffet cars or club cars upon or in which beverages are sold shall not be required to evidence the payment of the tax herein provided for by affixing crowns or lids as herein provided, but instead shall keep such records of the sales of such beverages in this state as the commissioner of revenue shall prescribe and shall submit monthly reports of such sales to the commissioner of revenue upon a form prescribed thereby by the commissioner of revenue, and shall pay the tax levied under this article at the time such reports are filed.

(h) It is the intent and purpose of this section to require all manufacturers and bottlers and other persons, except as herein provided, to affix the crowns or lids provided for herein to all original containers in which beverages are normally placed, prepared for market, received, sold or handled, before such beverages are sold, offered for sale, or held for sale within this state.

(i) Any person, firm or corporation, except as herein provided, who shall sell the beverages enumerated in § 18-64, subsection (a) to wholesaler, retailers, or consumers which do not have affixed thereto the crowns or lids required by this section, or who shall purchase, receive, transport, store, or possess any beverage in containers to which the crowns or lids required herein are not affixed, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof shall be fined or imprisoned in the discretion of the court.

(j) Manufacturers, bottlers, or vendors of beverages enumerated in § 18-64, subsection (a), from without this state, shall affix the crowns or lids to original containers of such beverages to be sold, offered for sale, held for sale, delivered or transported for delivery in this state.

(k) The commissioner of revenue shall promulgate rules and regulations to relieve manufacturers or bottlers of beverages from the liability to affix crowns or lids to such containers of such beverages as are intended to be shipped and are thereafter shipped out of this state by such manufacturers or bottlers for resale out of this state.

(l) Any person who falsely or fraudulently makes, forges, alters, or counterfeits any such crowns or lids, or knowingly or wilfully utters, passes or tenders as true any such false, forged, altered, or counterfeited crowns or lids, or uses more than once any crown or lid provided for and required by this article, or uses a crown or lid other than that prescribed herein for the purpose of evading the tax imposed under this article, or for the purpose of aiding orabetting others to evade the tax imposed under this article, shall be guilty of a felony, and, upon conviction thereof, shall be punished by imprisonment in the state’s prison for not more than five years, or by a fine of not more than five thousand dollars ($5,000.00), or by both such fine and imprisonment in the discretion of the court.

(m) Any person, firm or corporation having in his possession a container or containers of beverages not bearing the crowns or lids required to be affixed to such container, or who fails to produce upon demand by the commissioner of revenue or his agent, invoices of all beverages purchased or received by him within two years prior to such demand, unless upon satisfactory proof it is shown that such non-production is due to providential or other causes beyond his control, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and, upon conviction thereof, shall be fined or imprisoned in the discretion of the court.

(n) Any person who shall fail, neglect, or refuse to comply with or shall violate any provisions of this section, for which no specific penalty is provided, or who shall refuse to permit the commissioner of revenue or his agents to examine his books, papers, invoices and other records, his store of beverages in and upon any premises where the same are manufactured, bottled, stored, sold, offered for sale, or held for sale, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and, upon conviction thereof, shall be fined or imprisoned in the discretion of the court.

(o) The commissioner of revenue is hereby charged with the enforcement of the provisions of this section and hereby authorized and empowered to prescribe, adopt, promulgate, and enforce rules and regulations relating to any matter or thing pertaining to the administration and enforcement of the provisions of this section, and the collection of taxes, penalties, and interest imposed by this article.

In the event that the commissioner of revenue shall find as facts that due to war conditions or other unusual circumstances, a free supply of taxpaid crowns cannot be obtained, and that the beverage tax revenues of the state are being, or will likely be, impaired by the difficulty or impossibility in obtaining said taxpaid crowns, the commissioner shall be empowered to promulgate a regulation authorizing the use of stamps, labels, or other suitable devices in lieu of or in addition to crowns as evidences of tax payments for the duration of the emergency, but no longer. In the event that stamps, labels, or other devices are authorized by the commissioner as herein provided, the remaining provisions of this article shall not be affected, and shall be construed by substituting the name of the substituted device for “crown or lid” or “crowns or lids” wherever these words appear, unless the context clearly will not permit such construction.

The action of the commissioner of revenue in promulgating a regulation under date of September second, one thousand nine hundred and forty-two, authorizing the use of stamps as an alternative to crowns or lids, is in all respects hereby approved, ratified and confirmed.

(p) The commissioner of revenue is hereby authorized to prescribe, adopt, promulgate, and enforce the rules and regulations relating to the transportation of beverages enumerated in § 18-64 through this state, and from points outside of this state to points within this state, and to prescribe, adopt, promulgate and enforce rules and regulations reciprocal to those of, or laws of, any other state or territory affecting the transportation of beverages manufactured in this state.

(q) The commissioner of revenue shall have authority at any time after March 24, 1939, to make provisions for the furnishing of crowns or lids required by this section.

(r) In addition to the license taxes herein levied, a tax is hereby levied upon the sale of beverages described in section 18-64, subsection (b) of twenty cents (20c.) per gallon.

These additional taxes levied under this subsection shall be paid to the commissioner of revenue by the wholesale distributor or bottler of such beverages.

Reports shall be made to the commissioner of revenue in such form as he may prescribe, on or before the tenth day of each month, for all beverages sold by such wholesale distributor or bottler within the preceding month, and such reports when filed shall be accompanied by a remittance of the amount of tax shown to be due. Failure to file the reports herein prescribed and pay the tax as shown to be due thereon shall subject such wholesale distributor or bottler to a penalty of five per centum of the amount of the tax due, per month from the date the tax is due.

If the wholesale distributor or bottler shall refuse to make the reports required under this section, then such reports shall be made by the commissioner or his duly authorized agents from the best information available, and such reports shall be prima facie correct for the purposes of this section, and the amount of tax due thereby shall be a lien against all the property of the taxpayer until discharged by payments, and if payment is not made within thirty days after demand therefor by the commissioner or his duly authorized agents, there shall be added not more than one hundred per centum as damages, together with interest at the rate of one per centum per month from the time such tax was due. If such tax be paid within thirty days after notice by the commissioner, then there shall be added not more than ten per centum as damages, per month from the time such tax was due until paid.

The commissioner for good cause may extend the time for making any report required under the provisions of this section, and may grant such additional time within which to make such report as he may deem proper, but the time for filing any such report shall not be extended beyond the fifteenth day of the month next succeeding the regular due date of such report. If the time for filing a report be extended, interest at the rate of one-half of one per centum per month from the time the report was required to be filed to the time of payment shall be added and paid.

The taxes levied in this section are in addition to the taxes levied in Schedule E of the Revenue Act. (1939, c. 158, s. 517; c. 370, s. 1; 1941, c. 50, s. 7; c. 339, s. 4; 1943, c. 400, s. 6; 1943, cc. 564, 565.)

Editor's Note.—The 1941 amendments added the last two sentences in subsection (r) and struck out references to former subsection (c) of § 18-64.

The first 1943 amendment added the second and third paragraphs of subsection (o). The second 1943 amendment substituted in the first paragraph of subsection (r) "twenty cents" for "ten cents," and the second 1943 amendment rewrote the other paragraphs of the subsection.

§ 18-82. By whom tax payable.—The tax levied in § 18-81 upon the sale of beverages enumerated in § 18-64, subsection (a) shall be paid to the commissioner of revenue by the manufacturer or bottler of such beverages, and the tax levied in § 18-81 upon the sale of the beverages enumerated in § 18-64, subsection (b) shall be paid to the commissioner of revenue by the wholesale distributor or bottler of such beverages. As a condition precedent to the granting of license by the commissioner of revenue to any wholesale distributor, manufacturer or bottler of beverages under this article, the commissioner of revenue shall require each such wholesale distributor, manufacturer or bottler to furnish bond in an indemnity company licensed to do business under the insurance laws of this state in such sums as the commissioner of revenue shall find adequate to cover the tax liability of each such wholesale distributor, manufacturer or bottler, proportioned to the volume of business of each such wholesale distributor, manufacturer or bottler, but in no event to be less than one thousand dollars ($1,000.00), or to deposit federal, state, county or municipal bonds in required amounts, such county and municipal bonds to be approved by the commissioner of revenue. The commissioner of revenue may grant such extension of time for compliance with this condition as may be found to be reasonable. (1939, c. 158, s. 518; 1941, c. 339, s. 4.)

Editor's Note.—The 1941 amendment struck out the reference to former subsection (c) of § 18-64, appearing in the first sentence of this section.

§ 18-83. Nonresident manufacturers and wholesale dealers to be licensed. From and after April thirtieth, one thousand nine hundred thirty-nine, every non-resident desiring to engage in the business of making sales of the beverages described in § 18-64, to wholesale dealers licensed under the provisions of this article, shall first apply to the commissioner of revenue for a permit so to do. The commissioner of revenue may require of every such applicant that a bond in a sum not to exceed two thousand dollars ($2,000.00) be executed by such applicant and deposited with the commissioner, conditioned upon the faithful compliance by such applicant with the provisions of this article, and particularly that such applicant shall not make sales of any of the beverages described in section 18-64 to any person in this state except a duly licensed wholesale dealer. Upon the payment of a license tax of one hundred fifty dollars ($150.00), if the commissioner is satisfied that said applicant is a bona fide manufacturer or distributor of the beverages defined in § 18-64, he shall then issue a permit to such applicant which shall bear a serial of any such contract or agreement between any person under this article who pay the tax under § 18-81 upon all such beverages sold to retail bottlers licensed by the commissioner of revenue in § 18-64 only from wholesale distributors or such retail dealer and shall be prima facie evidence of intent to defraud, and any person guilty of violation of any such contract or agreement shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (1939, c. 158, s. 510.)

§ 18-85. Tax on fortified wines and spirituous liquors; sale of fortified wines in A. B. C. stores.—In addition to other taxes levied in this article, and in lieu of taxes levied in Schedule E of the Revenue Act on the sale of fortified wines and spirituous liquors, there is hereby levied a tax of eight and one-half per cent (8½%) on the retail price of fortified wines and spirituous distilled liquors of every kind that may be sold in this state, including liquors sold in county liquor stores. Provided, however, that in no event shall the amount paid under this section exceed one-half of the net profits from liquors sold through such stores in any county. The taxes levied in this section shall be payable monthly, at the same time and in the same manner as taxes levied in Schedule E of the Revenue Act, and the liability for such tax shall be subject to all the rules, regulations and penalties provided in Schedule E and in other sections of the Revenue Act for the payment of taxes. One-fourteenth of the taxes collected under this section are intended to pay the necessary expenses of the state alcoholic control board, and for other necessary expenses in connection with the enforcement of such laws as may be enacted by this general assembly for the sale of alcoholic liquors and to meet such appropriations there is hereby appropriated and made available for the purpose above set forth one-fourteenth of the amount of taxes collected under this section, such sum to be allocated for such purpose by the director of the budget upon request of the state alcoholic control board and expended and accounted for as other state funds, and the director of the budget is hereby given authority to estimate the revenues to be received under this section, to the end that a sufficient sum shall be made available for the purpose of defraying the expenses of the state alcoholic control board until sufficient revenues have been collected as provided hereunder for said purposes.

Spirituous liquors, as referred to in this section, shall be deemed to include any alcoholic beverages containing an alcoholic content of more than twenty-four per cent (24%) by volume.

Fortified wines may be sold in county alcoholic beverage control stores duly established under the authority of article 3 of this chapter. (1939, c. 158, s. 519½; 1941, c. 339, s. 4.)

Editor's Note.—The 1941 amendment inserted the references to fortified wines in the first sentence of the first paragraph and added the third paragraph.

§ 18-86. Books, records, reports.—Every person licensed under any of the provisions of this article shall keep accurate records of purchase and sale of all beverages taxable under this article, including a separate file and record of all purchases and sales of fortified wines and spirituous liquors; sale of fortified wines in A. B. C. stores duly established under the authority of section 3, chapter 4, General Statutes. The commissioner of revenue or any authorized agent, shall at any time during business hours, have access to such records. The commissioner of revenue may also require regular or special reports to be made by every such person, at such times and in such form as the commissioner may require. (1939, c. 158, s. 520.)

§ 18-87. No license for sales upon school property.—No license shall be issued for the sale of beverages enumerated in § 18-64 upon the campus or property of any public or private school or college in this state. (1939, c. 158, s. 521.)

§ 18-88. License shall be posted.—Each form of license required by this article shall be kept posted in a conspicuous place at each place where the business taxable under this article is carried on, and a separate license shall be required for each place of business. (1939, c. 158, s. 522.)

§ 18-89. Administrative provisions. —The commissioner of revenue and the authorized agents of the state department of revenue shall have and exercise all the rights, duties, powers, and responsibilities in enforcing this article that are enumerated in the Revenue Act in administering taxes levied in Schedule B of that act. (1939, c. 158, s. 523.)

§ 18-90. Appropriation for administration. —For the efficient administration of this article an appropriation is hereby made for the use of the department of revenue in addition to the appropriation in the Appropriation Bill of a sum equal to three per cent (3%) of the total revenue collections under this article to be expended under all allotments made by the budget bureau of such part of the whole of such appropriation as may be found necessary for the administration of this article. The budget bureau may estimate the yield of revenue under this article and make advance appropriation based upon such estimate. (1939, c. 158, s. 524.)

§ 18-90.1. Sale to minors under 18 a misdemeanor.—It shall be unlawful for any person, firm, or corporation to sell or give any of the products authorized to be sold by this article to any minor under eighteen years of age. (1933, c. 216, s. 8.)

Cross Reference.—As to sale of liquor to minors under the Alcoholic Beverage Control Act, see § 18-46.

§ 18-91. Violation made misdemeanor; revocation of permits; forfeiture of license.—Whosoever violates any of the provisions of this article, or any of the rules and regulations promulgated pursuant thereto, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof, be punished by a fine or by imprisonment, or by both fine and imprisonment, in the discretion of the court. If any licensee is convicted of the violation of the provisions of this article, or any of the rules and regulations promulgated pursuant thereto, the court shall immediately declare his permit revoked, and notify the county commissioners accordingly, and no permit shall thereafter be granted to him within a period of three years thereafter. Any licensee who shall sell or permit the sale on his premises or in connection with his business, or otherwise, of any alcoholic beverages not authorized under the terms of this article, unless otherwise permitted by law, shall, upon conviction thereof, forfeit his license in addition to any punishment imposed by law for such offense. (1939, c. 158, s. 525.)

§ 18-92. Effective date.—All taxes levied in this article shall be in effect from and after April thirtieth, one thousand nine hundred thirty-nine. (1939, c. 158, s. 528.)

§ 18-93. Adoption of federal regulations. The "Standards of Identity for Wine" and the regulations relating to "Labeling and Advertising of Wine" promulgated by the Federal Alcohol administration of the United States Treasury Department, and known respectively as Regulation Number Four, Article II, and Regulation Number Four, Articles III and VI, are hereby adopted by North Carolina. (1937, c. 335, s. 2.)

Art. 5. Fortified Wine Control Act of 1941.

§ 18-94. Title of article. — The title of this article shall be the "Fortified Wine Control Act of one thousand nine hundred and forty-one." (1941, c. 339, s. A.)

Editor's Note.—Public Laws 1941, c. 339, § 8, provides: "This act shall be in full force and effect on and after May first one thousand nine hundred and forty-one." And § 7 of said chapter provides: "This act shall be in full force and effect on and after midnight, July first, one thousand nine hundred and forty-one. This act is declared to be an act setting forth grants to the wholesale distributors fifteen (15) days time in which to deplete the entire stock of the retailers, package and return same to such wineries from which said wines were purchased. The commissioner of revenue is hereby empowered and directed to apply to reimburse all wholesale distributors in an amount of money equivalent to the sum represented by North Carolina wine tax stamps in possession of said wholesale distributors, whether affixed to containers or not, as of July second, one thousand nine hundred and forty-one. Such distributors claiming refunds hereunder shall prepare and forward to the commissioner of revenue sworn itemized statements of such tax stamps in their possession, and the commissioner of revenue is hereby empowered and directed to audit and verify such statements before granting refunds."

§ 18-95. Purpose of article.—The purpose of this article is to prevent and prohibit sales of fortified wines at any places in the state except through county operated alcoholic beverage control stores and to regulate such sales. (1941, c. 339, s. B.)

Cross Reference.—As to alcoholic beverage control stores, see § 18-36 to § 18-62. Stated in State v. Tola, 222 N. C. 406, 23 S. E. (2d) 321.

§ 18-96. Definition of "fortified wines."—Fortified wines shall mean any wine or alcoholic beverage made by fermentation of grapes, fruit and berries and fortified by the addition of brandy or alcohol or having an alcoholic content of more than fourteen per cent of absolute alcohol, reckoned by volume. (1941, c. 339, s. 1.)

§ 18-97. Certain sales, etc., prohibited; names of persons ordering wines furnished police or sheriff.—It shall be unlawful for any person, firm or corporation, except alcoholic beverage control stores operated in North Carolina, to sell, or possess for sale, any fortified wines as defined herein. It shall be unlawful for any person to purchase on order and receive by mail or express from any such alcoholic beverage control store fortified wines in quantities not in excess of one gallon at any one time. Upon the request of any chief of police or sheriff any alcoholic beverage control system shall furnish the names of any persons ordering such wines, and the dates and amounts of such orders. Nothing herein contained shall be construed to permit any person to order and receive by mail or express any spirituous liquors. (1941, c. 339, s. 2.)

§ 18-98. Violation made misdemeanor. — The violation of § 18-97 by any person, firm or corporation shall constitute a misdemeanor punishable as provided in § 18-91. (1941, c. 339, s. 5.)

§ 18-99. Application of other laws; sale of sweet wines; licensing of wholesale distributors.—The provisions of article 3 of this chapter shall apply to fortified wines: Provided, that it shall be legal to sell sweet wines in hotels, grade A restaurants, drug stores and grocery stores in any county in which the operation of alcoholic beverage control stores is authorized by law; such sales, however, shall be subject to the rules and regulations of the state alcoholic beverage control board. For the purpose of this article as amended, sweet wines shall be any wine made by fermentation from grapes, fruits, berries and the pure brandy not added, and having an alcoholic content of not less than fourteen per cent (14%) and not more than twenty per cent (20%) of absolute alcohol, reckoned by volume: Provided further that the state alcoholic control board shall approve and authorize the licensing of wholesale wine distributors in such counties where alcoholic board control stores are operated. (1941, c. 339, s. 6.)

Art. 6. Light Domestic Wines; Manufacture and Regulation.

§ 18-100. Manufacture of domestic wines permitted.—It shall be lawful for any person growing crops, either wild or cultivated, of grapes, fruits or berries to make therefrom light domestic wines or wines having only such alcoholic content as natural fermentation may produce, for the use of his family and guests. (1935, c. 393, s. 1.)

§ 18-101. Manufacture by any person, firm or corporation authorized to do business in State.—Any person, firm or corporation authorized to do business in the state may, subject to the requirements of the Beverage Control Act, under regulations prescribed by the commissioner of agriculture and approved by the governor, engage in the business of manufacturing and producing wines and ciders by natural fermentation from the juices of fruits, grapes and berries grown within the state, and such wines and ciders shall be classified and recognized as food and distributed as such. (1935, c. 393, s. 3, c. 466, s. 1.)

§ 18-102. Rules and regulations of commissioner of agriculture.—The commissioner of agriculture shall promulgate and publish such reasonable rules and regulations, with the approval of the governor, for the regulation of such wineries as may be established, and such rules and regulations shall have the force and effect of laws, after the same have been approved by the governor. (1935, c. 393, s. 4.)

§ 18-103. Information furnished farmers. —It shall be the duty of the department of agriculture to disseminate to the farmers of the State in an economical way the best information it can get of the best methods of cultivation of such crops, and the making of such light domestic wines. (1935, c. 393, s. 7.)

Cross Reference.—As to duties of board and commissioner of agriculture with reference to new agricultural industries, especially grapes, etc., see § 106-22, subsec. 6.

§ 18-104. Fruit ciders included.—All the provisions of this article shall also apply to the manufacture of fruit ciders. (1935, c. 393, s. 7½.)

Art. 7. Beer and Wine; Hours of Sale.

§ 18-105. Sale between certain hours unlawful.—It shall be unlawful for any person, firm, or corporation, licensed to sell beer and/or wine in North Carolina to sell, or offer for sale, any beer and/or wine in North Carolina between the hours of eleven-thirty p. m. and seven a. m. every day. (1943, c. 339, s. 1.)

§ 18-106. Permitting consumption on premises during certain hours unlawful.—It shall be unlawful for any person, firm, or corporation, licensed to sell beer and/or wine in North Carolina, to permit or allow the consumption of any beer and/or wine in any place in North Carolina under the control of, or being operated by, said licensee, between the hours of twelve midnight and seven a. m. every day. (1943, c. 339, s. 2.)

§ 18-107. Regulation by counties and municipalities.—In addition to the restrictions on the sale of beer and/or wine set out in §§ 18-105 and 18-106, the county commissioners of the various counties in North Carolina shall have, and they are hereby vested with, full power and authority to regulate and prohibit the sale of beer and/or wine from eleven-thirty p. m. on each Saturday until seven a. m. on the following Monday. The governing bodies of all municipalities in the state shall have, and they are hereby vested with, the full power and authority to regulate and prohibit the sale of beer and/or wine from eleven-thirty p. m. on each Saturday until seven a. m. on the following Monday.

The power herein vested in governing bodies of municipalities shall be exclusive within the corporate limits of their respective municipalities, and the powers herein vested in the county commissioners of the various counties in North Carolina shall be exclusive in all portions of their respective counties not embraced in the corporate limits of municipalities therein. (1943, c. 339, s. 3.)

§ 18-108. Violation a misdemeanor; revocation of license.—Any person, firm, or corporation, licensed to sell beer and/or wine, violating the provisions of this article or any person, firm, or corporation, licensed to sell beer and/or wine, violating any regulations which may be made under this article by the county commissioners of the county in which said person, firm, or corporation is licensed to sell beer and/or wine, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and, upon conviction, shall be fined not less than fifty dollars ($50.00) and/or imprisoned not less than thirty days, and his or its license to sell beer and/or wine shall automatically be revoked, by the court, or as otherwise provided by law. (1943, c. 339, s. 4.)

Chapter 19. Offenses against Public Morals.

Sec.
19-1. What are nuisances under this chapter.
19-3. When triable; evidence; dismissal of complaint.
19-4. Violation of injunction; punishment.

§ 19-1. What are nuisances under this chapter.—Whoever shall erect, establish, continue, maintain, use, own, or lease any building, erection, or place used for the purpose of lewdness, assignation, prostitution, gambling, or illegal sale of whiskey is guilty of nuisance, and the building, erection, or place, or the ground itself, in or upon which such lewdness, assignation, prostitution, gaming, or illegal sale of liquor is conducted, permitted, or carried on, continued, or exists, and the furniture, fixtures, musical instruments and contents, are also declared a nuisance, and shall be enjoined and abated as hereinafter provided. (1919, c. 288; Pub. Loc. 1913, c. 761, s. 25; C. S. 3180.)

Cross References.— As to criminal actions: For prostitution, see § 14-303 et seq; for gambling, see § 14-369 et seq; for unlawful sale of whiskey, see § 18-31 et seq; for lewdness, etc., see § 14-190.

Constitutionality.—This section, et seq., providing for the abatement of public nuisances is constitutional as a valid exercise of the police power of the state. Carpenter v. Boyles, 213 N. C. 433, 196 S. E. 850. See also, Barker v. Palmer, 217 N. C. 519, 8 S. E. (2d) 610.

Nuisance Need Not Be Nucleus of Crime.— It it not essential that the premises and the business conducted there, should be violations of the criminal law, either generally speaking or under the terms of the statute. It is not necessary that the nuisance declared should have a nucleus of crime essential to its existence. While nuisance is frequently associated with criminal offenses, the law is not under the necessity of predetermining upon the make valid a claim of nuisance of an act which it denominates a nuisance. State v. Brown, 221 N. C. 301, 304, 20 S. E. (2d) 286.

Evidence Supporting Abatement. — The evidence disclosed an establishment with ticker tape and other paraphernalia to facilitate the making of wagers on horse races, and in which offers to lay wagers were transmitted to race tracks outside the state, although wagers were paid off to successful betters, constitutes a public nuisance. State v. Brown, 221 N. C. 301, 20 S. E. (2d) 286.

Authority of Municipalities Concerning Nuisances.— Under the authority conferred upon a municipal corporation to adopt ordinances for the government of the corporation and to abate nuisances, no power is granted to enact that the rent or rent paid to successful betters, constitutes a public nuisance. Carpenter v. Boyles, 213 N. C. 432, 196 S. E. 850.

Cross References.—As to criminal actions: For prostitution, see § 14-190; for gambling, see § 14-369; for unlawful sale of whiskey, see § 18-31 et seq; for lewdness, etc., see § 14-190.

Constitutionality.—This section, et seq., providing for the abatement of public nuisances is constitutional as a valid exercise of the police power of the state. Carpenter v. Boyles, 213 N. C. 433, 196 S. E. 850. See also, Barker v. Palmer, 217 N. C. 519, 8 S. E. (2d) 610.

Nuisance Need Not Be Nucleus of Crime.— It it not essential that the premises and the business conducted there, should be violations of the criminal law, either generally speaking or under the terms of the statute. It is not necessary that the nuisance declared should have a nucleus of crime essential to its existence. While nuisance is frequently associated with criminal offenses, the law is not under the necessity of predetermining upon the make valid a claim of nuisance of an act which it denominates a nuisance. State v. Brown, 221 N. C. 301, 304, 20 S. E. (2d) 286.

Evidence Supporting Abatement. — The evidence disclosed an establishment with ticker tape and other paraphernalia to facilitate the making of wagers on horse races, and in which offers to lay wagers were transmitted to race tracks outside the state, although wagers were paid off to successful betters, constitutes a public nuisance. State v. Brown, 221 N. C. 301, 20 S. E. (2d) 286.

Authority of Municipalities Concerning Nuisances.— Under the authority conferred upon a municipal corporation to adopt ordinances for the government of the corporation and to abate nuisances, no power is granted to enact that the rent or rent paid to successful betters, constitutes a public nuisance. Carpenter v. Boyles, 213 N. C. 432, 196 S. E. 850.

§ 19-2. Action for abatement; injunction.— Whenever a nuisance is kept, maintained, or exists as defined in this chapter, the city prosecuting attorney, the solicitor, or any citizen of the county may maintain civil action in the name of the state of North Carolina upon the relation of such city prosecuting attorney, solicitor, or citizen, to perpetually enjoin said nuisance, the person or persons conducting or maintaining the same, and the owner or agent of the building or ground upon which said nuisance exists. In such action, or, in vacation, a judge thereof, may summarily try and punish the offender. A party found guilty of contempt under the provisions of this section shall be punished by a fine of not less than two hundred dollars, or by imprisonment in the county jail not less than three or more than six months, or by both fine and imprisonment. (1919, c. 288; Pub. Loc. 1913, c. 761; s. 27; C. S. 3182.)

Cross Reference.—As to certain evidence relative to keeping disorderly houses admissible in criminal proceedings, see § 14-55.

By provision of this section, evidence of the general reputation of the place in question is competent in an action to abate a public nuisance. Carpenter v. Boyles, 213 N. C. 432, 196 S. E. 850.

§ 19-4. Violation of injunction; punishment.— In case of the violation of any injunction granted under the provisions of this chapter, the court, or, in vacation, a judge thereof, may summarily try and punish the offender. A party found guilty of contempt under the provisions of this section shall be punished by a fine of not less than two hundred or more than one thousand dollars, or by imprisonment in the county jail not less than three or more than six months, or by both fine and imprisonment. (1919, c. 288; Pub. Loc. 1913, c. 761, s. 28; C. S. 3183.)

§ 19-5. Order abating nuisance; what it shall contain.—If the existence of the nuisance be established in an action as provided in this chapter, or in a criminal proceeding, an order of abatement shall be entered as a part of the judgment in the cause, which order shall direct the removal from the building or place of all fixtures, furniture, musical instruments, or movable property used in conducting the nuisance, and shall direct the sale thereof in the manner provided for the sale of chattels under execution, and the effectual closing of the building or place against its use for any purpose, and so keeping it closed for a period of one year, unless sooner released. If any person shall break and enter, or use said building, erection, or place so directed to be closed, he shall be punished as for contempt, as provided in the proceeding for such action. For moving and selling the movable property, the officer shall be entitled to charge and receive the same fees as he would for levying upon and selling like property on execution; and for closing the premises and keeping them closed, a reasonable sum shall be allowed by the court. (1919, c. 288; Pub. Loc. 1913, c. 761, s. 29; C. S. 3184.)

Fishing in waters when prohibited by law is a public nuisance and the General Assembly has the power to authorize a prompt abatement of the nuisance by seizure and sale of the nets, subject to the right of their owner to contest the fact of his violation of the law by a proceeding in the nature of claim and delivery, or by injunction to prevent sales or by action to recover the proceeds of sales plus damages. Daniels v. Homer, 139 N. C. 219, 51 S. E. 592.

Proceeding Is In Personam.—A proceeding to abate a nuisance against the public morals is not a proceeding in rem against the property itself, but is in personam, and the provisions of the statute for padlocking the premises and for the sale of chattels used in connection with the operation of the nuisance, are penalties prescribed by law for its violation, and therefore innocent lessors of the premises or owners or mortgagees of chattels which do not constitute a nuisance per se may not be deprived of their property rights unless they have actual or constructive notice that the property is used in the operation of the nuisance, and they have the right to have this issue determined by the verdict of a jury. Sinclair v. Croom, 217 N. C. 536, 8 S. E. (2d) 834.

Innocent Mortgagee May Recover Property before Sale.—An innocent mortgagee without knowledge that the property was being used by the mortgagor in operating a nuisance contrary to law and in violation of provisions in the conditional sales contract, may institute action to recover the property after it has been seized by the sheriff but before it has been sold under this section. Habitat v. Stephenson, 217 N. C. 447, 8 S. E. (2d) 245.

Lessors Must Have Knowledge before Personal Judgment Can Be Rendered.—In an action to abate a nuisance against public morals, the lessee or the conditional seller, lessees of the property are entitled to the submission of an issue as to whether they knew the lessee was operating a public nuisance thereon before personal judgment is rendered against lessors taking title, or mortgagee, for the abatement of the nuisance, are penalties prescribed by law for its violation, and therefore innocent lessors of the premises or owners or mortgagees of chattels which do not constitute a nuisance per se may not be deprived of their property rights unless they have actual or constructive notice that the property is used in the operation of the nuisance, and they have the right to have this issue determined by the verdict of a jury. Sinclair v. Croom, 217 N. C. 536, 8 S. E. (2d) 834.

As Must Conditional Seller.—Intervener sold a cash register under a conditional sales contract and same, together with other chattels of the purchaser, was seized for sale upon the determination that the purchaser was using it in the maintenance of a nuisance against public morals. Upon the facts agreed intervenor had no actual or constructive knowledge that the cash register was used in the maintenance of a nuisance. Only the equity of the purchaser could be condemned for sale under the statute and the intervenor may be charged with no part of the cost. Sinclair v. Croom, 217 N. C. 536, 8 S. E. (2d) 834.

Restraining Sale of Part of Personality.—Where judgment directing the sale of personal property used in the operation of a nuisance is entered in a proceeding instituted by the solicitor, the complaint in an independent action thereafter instituted against the sheriff alone by the defendant in the former proceeding to restrain the sale of certain of the personal property upon the ground that it was not used in the operation of the nuisance cannot be treated as a motion in the former action to vacate the judgment in the former action. Humphrey v. Churchhill, 217 N. C. 530, 8 S. E. (2d) 810.

In a proceeding under this chapter, judgment was entered upon determination that the defendant therein was operating a nuisance against public morals, directing that the personal property of defendant used in the operation of the nuisance be sold in accordance with this section. Thereafter the defendant in that proceeding instituted this action against the sheriff to restrain the sale of certain of the personal property upon allegations that the property specified had not been used in the operation of the nuisance and that the sheriff was about to sell it under the prior judgment. There was neither allegation nor contention that the execution was void. The temporary restraining order was properly dissolved, the proper remedy being by motion in the cause and not by independent action to restrain the sheriff from selling the chattels as directed by the prior judgment. Id.

§ 19-6. Application of proceeds of sale.—The proceeds of the sale of the personal property as provided in § 19-5 shall be applied in the payment of the costs of action and abatement, and the balance, if any, shall be paid to the defendant. (1919, c. 288; Pub. Loc. 1913, c. 761, s. 30; C. S. 3185.)

§ 19-7. How order of abatement may be canceled.—If the owner appears and pays all cost of the proceeding and files a bond, with sureties to be approved by the clerk, in the full value of the property, to be ascertained by the court, or, in vacation, by the clerk of the superior court, conditioned that he will immediately abate said nuisance, and prevent the same from being established or kept within a period of one year thereafter, the court may, if satisfied of his good faith, order the premises closed under the order of abatement to be delivered to said owner, and said order of abatement canceled so far as same may relate to said property; and if the proceeding be a civil action, and said bond be given and costs therein paid before judgment and order of abatement, the action shall be thereby abated as to said building only. The release of the property under the provisions of this section shall not release it from any judgment, lien, penalty, or liability to which it may be subject by law. (1919, c. 288; Pub. Loc. 1913, c. 761, s. 31; C. S. 3186.)

§ 19-8. Attorney's fees may be taxed as costs. —The court shall tax as part of the cost in any action brought hereunder such fee for the attorney prosecuting the action or proceedings as may in the court's discretion be reasonable remuneration for the services performed by such attorney. (1919, c. 288; Pub. Loc. 1913, c. 761, s. 32; C. S. 3187.)

Art. 1. Department of Motor Vehicles.

§ 20-1. Department of motor vehicles created; power and duties.—A department of the government of this state, to be known as the department of motor vehicles, is hereby created. It is the intent and purpose of this article, and it shall be liberally construed to accomplish that purpose, to transfer and consolidate under one administrative head in the department of motor vehicles agencies now operated under the department of revenue and dealing with the subject of the regulation of motor vehicular traffic, whether such activities are at present handled directly by the commissioner of revenue or by the motor vehicle bureau, the auto theft bureau, the division of highway safety, the major of the state highway patrol, the officials handling the Uniform Drivers License Act; and the department of motor vehicles shall succeed to and is hereby vested with all the powers, duties and jurisdiction now vested by law in any of said agencies; provided, however, all powers, duties and functions relating to the collection of motor fuel taxes, the inspection of gasoline and oil, and the collection of the gasoline and oil inspection taxes, and the duties, powers and functions arising by virtue of §§ 119-41 and 119-42, relating to the issuance of permits to vehicles engaged in the transportation of petroleum products, shall not be affected by such transfer, but shall continue to be vested in and exercised by the commissioner of revenue, and wherever it is now provided by law that reports shall be filed with the commissioner or department of revenue as a basis for collecting the motor fuel or gasoline and oil inspection taxes, or enforcing any of the laws regarding the motor fuel or gasoline and oil inspection taxes, such reports shall continue to be made to the department of revenue and the commissioner of motor vehicles shall make them available to the commissioner of revenue all information from the files of the department of motor vehicles which the commissioner of revenue may request to enable him to better enforce the law with respect to the collection of such taxes: Provided, further, nothing in this article shall deprive the utilities commissioner of any of the duties or powers now vested in him with regard to the regulation of motor vehicle carriers. (1941, c. 36, s. 1.)

Cross Reference.—As to control of motor carriers by utilities commission, see § 62-103, et seq.

Editor's Note.—Public Laws 1941, c. 36, is effective from and after July 1, 1941.

For comment on the 1941 act, see D N. C. Law Rev. 444.

§ 20-2. Commissioner of motor vehicles.—The department of motor vehicles shall be under control of an executive officer to be designated as the commissioner of motor vehicles, who shall be appointed by the governor and be responsible directly to the governor and subject to removal by the governor at his discretion and without requirement of the assignment of any cause. The commissioner shall be paid an annual salary to be fixed by the governor, with the approval of the advisory budget commission, payable in monthly installments, and shall likewise be allowed his traveling expenses when away from Raleigh on official business. (1941, c. 36, s. 2.)

§ 20-3. Organization of department; operating funds.—The commissioner shall organize the department in such manner as he may deem necessary properly to segregate and conduct the work of the department; but the work of the department is hereby divided into at least two divisions, to be known respectively as the division of registration and the division of highway safety and patrol. The commissioner shall, as soon as practicable after appointment, prepare a general plan for the organization of the department, which plan shall not be put into effect until approved by the governor and the advisory budget commission, subject to such changes as may be recommended by the governor and approved by the advisory budget commission. The plan of organization herein provided for may increase or decrease the number of persons now assigned to any of the activities transferred to this department, and the titles may be changed. (1941, c. 36, s. 3.)

§ 20-4. Clarification of conflicts as to transfer of functions.—In the event that there shall arise any conflict as to the transfer of any functions from the department of revenue to the department of motor vehicles, the governor of the state is hereby authorized to issue an executive order clarifying and making certain the issue thus arising. (1941, c. 36, s. 5.)

Art. 2. Uniform Driver's License Act.

§ 20-5. Title of article.—This article may be cited as the Uniform Driver's License Act. (1935, c. 52, s. 31.)

§ 20-6. Definitions.—Terms used in this article shall be construed as follows, unless another meaning is clearly apparent from the language or context or unless such construction is inconsistent with the manifest intention of the legislature.

"Highway" shall include any trunk line highway, state aid road or other public highway, road, street, avenue, alley, driveway, parkway, or place, under the control of the state or any political subdivision thereof, dedicated, appropriated or opened to public travel or other use.

"Motor vehicle" shall mean any rubber-tired vehicle propelled or drawn by any power other than muscular, except aircraft, road rollers, street sprinklers, ambulances owned by municipalities, baggage trucks, and tractors used about railroad stations and yards, agricultural tractors, industrial tractors used in and around warehouses and yards, and such vehicles as run only upon rails or tracks.

"Non-resident" shall mean any person whose legal residence is in some state other than North Carolina or in a foreign country.

"Operator" shall mean any person other than a "chauffeur" who shall operate a motor vehicle or who shall be in the driver's seat of a motor vehicle when the engine is running or who shall steer or direct the course of a motor vehicle which is being towed or pushed by another motor vehicle.

"Chauffeur" shall mean every person who is employed for the principal purpose of operating a passenger motor vehicle, except school busses, and every person who drives any motor vehicle while in use as a public or common carrier for persons or property, and this shall apply to city delivery motor vehicles.

"Person" shall include any individual, corporation, association, co-partnership, company, firm or other aggregation of individuals.

"Vehicle" shall include any device suitable for use on the highways for the conveyance, drawing or other transportation of persons or property, except those propelled or drawn by muscular power or those used exclusively upon tracks.

"Department" shall mean the department of motor vehicles.

As applied to operators' and chauffeurs' licenses issued under this article, the words: "Suspension," "Revocation" and "Canceled." (1935, c. 55, s. 1; 1941, c. 36; 1943, c. 787, s. 1.)

Editor's Note.—The 1943 amendment added the definitions of "Suspension," "Revocation" and "Canceled."

§ 20-7. Operators and chauffeurs must be licensed. — (a) No person except those expressly exempted under § 20-8 shall operate a motor vehicle upon any highway in this State unless such person upon application has been licensed as an operator or chauffeur by the department under the provisions of this article. Provided, that any person over sixteen (16) years of age who has not Section 20-8

Persons exempt from license

(a) Any person while operating a motor vehicle the property of, and in the service of the Army, Navy or Marine Corps of the United States. This shall not be construed to exempt any chauffeurs or operators of the United States Civilian Conservation Corps motor vehicles;

(b) Any person while driving or operating any road machine, farm tractor, or implement of husbandry temporarily operated or moved on a highway;

(c) A non-resident who is at least sixteen (16) years of age and who has in his immediate possession a valid operator's license issued to him in his home state or country, may operate a motor vehicle in this state either as an operator or chauffeur except any such person must be licensed as a chauffeur hereunder before accepting employment as a chauffeur from a resident of this state;

(d) A non-resident who is at least eighteen (18) years of age and who has in his immediate possession a valid chauffeur's license issued to him in his home state or country may operate a motor vehicle in this state either as an operator or chauffeur except that no person shall be licensed as a chauffeur hereunder before accepting employment as a chauffeur from a resident of this state;
§ 20-9. What persons shall not be licensed.

(a) An operator’s license shall not be issued to any person under the age of eighteen (18) years, and no chauffeur’s license shall be issued to any person under the age of eighteen (18) years.

(b) The department shall not issue an operator’s or chauffeur’s license to any person whose license, either as operator or chauffeur, has been suspended, during the period for which license was suspended; nor to any person whose license, either as operator or chauffeur, has been revoked under the provisions of this article, until the expiration of one year after such license was revoked.

(c) The department shall not issue an operator’s or chauffeur’s license to any person whom it has determined is an habitual drunkard or is addicted to the use of narcotic drugs.

(d) No operator’s or chauffeur’s license shall be issued to any applicant who has been previously adjudged insane or an idiot, imbecile, grand mal epileptic, or feeble-minded, and who has not at the time of such application been restored to competency by judicial decree or released from a hospital for the insane or feeble-minded upon a certificate of the superintendent that such person is competent, nor then unless the department is satisfied that such person is competent to operate a motor vehicle with safety to persons and property.

(e) The department shall not issue an operator’s or chauffeur’s license to any person when in the opinion of the department such person is afflicted with or suffering from such physical or mental disability or disease as will serve to prevent such person from exercising reasonable and ordinary control over a motor vehicle while operating the same upon the highways, nor shall a license be issued to any person who is unable to understand highway warnings or direction signs. (1935, c. 52, s. 3.)

Editor’s Note.—Acts 1943, c. 346, § 2, in force for two years from March 1, 1943, amended subsection (e) by changing the age mentioned therein from sixteen to fifteen years.

§ 20-10. Age limits for drivers of public passenger-carrying vehicles.—It shall be unlawful for any person, whether licensed under this article or not, who is under the age of twenty-one years to drive a motor vehicle while in use as a public passenger-carrying vehicle. (1935, c. 52, s. 5.)

§ 20-11. Application of minors.—The department shall not grant the application of any minor between the ages of sixteen (16) and eighteen (18) years for an operator’s license unless such application is signed by the father of the applicant, if the father is living and has custody of the applicant, otherwise by the mother or guardian having the custody of such minor, or in the event a minor under the age of eighteen years has no mother, father, or guardian, then the operator’s license shall not be granted to the minor unless his application therefore is signed by his employer. (1935, c. 52, s. 6.)

Editor’s Note.—Acts 1943, c. 346, § 4, in force for two years from March 1, 1943, amended this section by changing the first age mentioned therein from sixteen to fifteen years. See note under § 20-17.

§ 20-12. Instruction.—Any licensed operator or chauffeur may instruct a person who is sixteen or more years of age, during daylight hours, in the operation of a motor vehicle. Any person so instructing another shall be seated as to be within reach of the controls of the motor vehicle and shall be responsible for the operation thereof. (1935, c. 52, s. 7.)

Cross Reference.—See also, § 20-7, paragraph (a).

Editor’s Note.—Acts 1943, c. 346, § 5, in force for two years from March 1, 1943, amended this section by changing the age mentioned therein from sixteen to fifteen years.

§ 20-13. Expiration of license.—(a) Every operator’s license issued hereunder shall be valid until suspended or revoked as provided in this article except that the department shall hereafter, but not more often than once every three years and after public notice, cancel all outstanding operators’ licenses and issue in lieu thereof new operators’ licenses to persons applying therefor and entitled thereto under the provision of this article. Such licenses shall be issued without fee and without examination except in those instances when the department has reason to believe that the applicant may not be qualified to hold an operator’s license under this article.

(b) Every chauffeur’s license shall expire June thirtieth each year and shall be renewed annually upon application and payment of fees required by law, provided that the department may in its discretion waive the examination of any such applicant previously licensed as a chauffeur under this article. (1935, c. 52, s. 8.)

§ 20-14. Duplicate certificates.—In the event that an operator’s or chauffeur’s license issued under the provisions of this article is lost or destroyed, the person to whom the same was issued may, upon payment of a fee of fifty cents ($0.50), obtain a duplicate, or substitute thereof, upon furnishing proof satisfactory to the department that such license has been lost or destroyed. (1935, c. 52, s. 9; 1943, c. 649, s. 2.)

Editor’s Note.—The 1943 amendment struck out the words “or badge” formerly appearing after the word “license.”

§ 20-15. Authority of department to cancel license.—(a) The department shall have authority to cancel any operator’s or chauffeur’s license upon determining that the licensee was not entitled to the issuance thereof hereunder, or that the license was suspended, revoked or expired; or that the license was surrendered the license so cancelled to the department that such license has been lost or destroyed. (1943, c. 52, s. 10; 1945, c. 649, s. 3.)

Editor’s Note.—The 1943 amendment struck out in subsection (b) the words, “together with chauffeur’s badge, if any,” formerly appearing after the word “cancelled.”
§ 20-16. Authority of department to suspend license.—(a) The department shall have authority to suspend the license of any operator or chauffeur without preliminary hearing upon a showing by its records or other satisfactory evidence that the licensee:

1. Has committed an offense for which mandatory revocation of license is required upon conviction;
2. Has been involved as a driver in any accident resulting in the death or personal injury of another or serious property damage, which accident is obviously the result of the negligence of such driver;
3. Is an habitually reckless or negligent driver of a motor vehicle;
4. Is incompetent to drive a motor vehicle;
5. Is an habitual violator of the traffic laws;
6. Has committed an unlawful or fraudulent use of such license;
7. Has committed an offense in another state, which if committed in this state would be grounds for suspension or revocation; or
8. Has been convicted of illegal transportation of intoxicating liquors.

(b) Upon suspending the license of any person as hereinbefore in this section authorized, the department shall immediately notify the licensee in writing and upon his request shall afford him an opportunity for a hearing as early as practical within not to exceed twenty (20) days after receipt of such request in the county wherein the licensee resides unless the department and the licensee agree that such hearing may be held in some other county. Upon such hearing the duly authorized agents of the department may administer oaths and may issue subpoenas for the attendance of witnesses and the production of relevant books and papers and may require a re-examination of the licensee. Upon such hearing the department shall either rescind its order of suspension, or good cause appearing therefor, may extend the suspension of such license or revoke such license. (1935, c. 52, s. 11.)

Cross Reference.—As to period of suspension or revocation, see § 20-19.

§ 20-17. Mandatory revocation of license by department.—(a) The department shall forthwith revoke the license of any operator or chauffeur upon receiving a record of such operator’s or chauffeur’s conviction for any of the following offenses when such conviction has become final:
1. Manslaughter (or negligent homicide) resulting from the operation of a motor vehicle.
2. Driving a motor vehicle while under the influence of intoxicating liquor or a narcotic drug.
3. Any felony in the commission of which a motor vehicle is used.
4. Failure to stop and render aid as required under the laws of this State in the event of a motor vehicle accident.
5. Perjury or the making of a false affidavit or statement under oath to the department under this article or under any other law relating to the ownership of motor vehicles.
6. Conviction, or forfeiture of bail not vacated, upon two charges of reckless driving committed within a period of twelve months.
7. Conviction, or forfeiture of bail not vacated, upon one charge of reckless driving while engaged in the illegal transportation of intoxicants for the purpose of sale.

(b) The department, upon receiving a record of the conviction of any person upon a charge of operating a motor vehicle while the license of such person is suspended or revoked, shall immediately extend the period of such first suspension or revocation for an additional like period. (1935, c. 52, s. 12.)

Cross Reference.—As to period of suspension or revocation, see § 20-19.

Editor’s Note.—Section 9 of Chapter 346 of the Public Laws of 1943, makes violation of sections 7 and 8 of the act ground for the revocation of license of 15-year-olds licensed for two years under the act. Section 7 makes it unlawful for any person under 16 to drive a vehicle of more than 1/2 tons in weight or to drive a vehicle hauling any material of a highly inflammable nature. Section 8 provides that no license shall be issued to any person under 16 except upon written application of parent or person in loco parentis.

§ 20-18. Conviction for failure to dim, etc., lights not ground for suspension or revocation.—Conviction of the offense of failure to shift, depress, deflect, tilt or dim the beams of the headlamps whenever a motor vehicle meets another vehicle on the highways of this state shall not be cause for the suspension or revocation of the operator’s or chauffeur’s license under the terms of this article. (1939, c. 351, s. 2.)

Cited in State v. McDaniels, 219 N. C. 763, 14 S. E. (2d) 793.

§ 20-19. Period of suspension or revocation.—The department shall not suspend a license for a period of more than one year and upon revoking a license shall not in any event grant application for a new license until the expiration of one year. (1935, c. 52, s. 13.)

§ 20-20. Surrender and return of license.—The department upon suspending or revoking a license shall require that such license be surrendered to and be retained by the department except that at the end of a period of suspension such license so surrendered shall be returned to the licensee. (1935, c. 52, s. 14; 1943, c. 649, s. 4.)

§ 20-21. No operation under foreign license during suspension or revocation in this state.—Any resident or nonresident whose operator’s or chauffeur’s license or right or privilege to operate a motor vehicle in this State has been suspended or revoked, as provided in this article shall not operate a motor vehicle in this State under a license, permit or registration issued by another jurisdiction or otherwise during such suspension, or after such revocation until a new license is obtained when and as permitted under this article. (1935, c. 52, s. 15.)

§ 20-22. Suspending privileges of nonresidents and reporting convictions.—(a) The privilege of driving a motor vehicle on the highways of this State given to a nonresident hereunder shall be subject to suspension or revocation by the department in like manner and for like cause as an operator’s or chauffeur’s license issued hereunder may be suspended or revoked.

(b) The department is further authorized, upon receiving a record of the conviction in this State of a non-resident driver of a motor vehicle of any
§ 20-23. Suspending resident's license upon conviction in another state.—The department is authorized to suspend or revoke the license of any resident of this State upon receiving notice of the conviction of such person in another state of any offense therein which, if committed in this State, would be grounds for the suspension or revocation of the license of an operator or chauffeur. (1935, c. 52, s. 17.)

§ 20-24. When court to forward license to department and report convictions.—(a) Whenever any person is convicted of any violation of the motor vehicle laws of this State, a notation of such conviction shall be entered by the court upon the license of the person so convicted. Whenever any person is convicted of any offense for which this article makes mandatory the revocation of the operator's or chauffeur's license of such person by the department, the court in which such conviction is had shall require the surrender to it of all operator's and chauffeur's licenses then held by the person so convicted and the court shall thereupon forward the same, together with a record of such conviction, to the department.

(b) Every court having jurisdiction over offenses committed under this article, or any other law of this State regulating the operation of motor vehicles on highways, shall forward to the department a record of the conviction of any person in said court for a violation of any said laws, and may recommend the suspension of the operator's or chauffeur's license of the person so convicted.

(c) For the purpose of this article the term "conviction" shall mean a final conviction. Also, for the purposes of this article a forfeiture of bail or collateral deposited to secure a defendant's appearance in court, which forfeiture has not been vacated, shall be equivalent to a conviction.

(d) Pending an appeal, the court from which the appeal is taken shall make such recommendation to the department relative to suspension of license until the appeal shall have been finally determined, as to it may seem just and proper under the circumstances.

(e) After November 1, 1935, no operator's or chauffeur's license shall be suspended or revoked except in accordance with the provisions of this article. (1935, c. 52, s. 18.)

§ 20-25. Right of appeal to court.—Any person denied a license or whose license has been cancelled, suspended or revoked by the department, except where such cancellation is mandatory under the provisions of this article, shall have a right to file a petition within thirty (30) days thereafter for a hearing in the matter in the superior court of the county wherein such person shall reside, or to the resident judge of the district or judge holding the court of that district, or special or emergency judge holding a court in such district in which the violation was committed, and such court or judge is hereby vested with jurisdiction and it shall be its or his duty to set the matter for hearing upon thirty (30) days written notice to the department, and thereupon to take testimony and examine into the facts of the case, and to determine whether the petitioner is entitled to a license or is subject to suspension, cancellation or revocation of license under the provisions of this article. (1935, c. 52, s. 19.)

§ 20-26. Records.—The department shall keep a record of proceedings and orders pertaining to all licenses granted, refused, suspended or revoked by the department. It shall furnish without charge, for official use only, certified copies of certificates and licenses and documents relating thereto, to officials of the State, counties and municipalities or to any court in this State. A charge not to exceed one dollar ($1.00) shall be made by the department for copies furnished for other than official use. (1935, c. 52, s. 20.)

§ 20-27. Availability of records. — All records of the department pertaining to application and to operator's and chauffeur's license, except the confidential medical report referred to in section 20-7, of the current or previous five years shall be open to public inspection at any reasonable time during office hours. (1935, c. 52, s. 21.)

§ 20-28. Unlawful to drive while license suspended or revoked.—Any person whose operator's or chauffeur's license has been suspended or revoked, as provided in this article, who shall drive any motor vehicle upon the highways of this State while such license is suspended or revoked, may be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction shall be punished by imprisonment for not more than six months, and there may be imposed in addition thereto a fine of not more than five hundred dollars ($500.00). (1935, c. 52, s. 22.)

§ 20-29. Surrender of license.—Any person operating or in charge of a motor vehicle, when requested by an officer in uniform, or, in the event of accident in which the vehicle which he is operating or in charge of shall be involved, when requested by any other person, who shall refuse to write his name for the purpose of identification or to give his name and address and the name and address of the owner of such vehicle, or who shall give a false name or address, or who shall refuse, on demand of such officer or such other person, to produce his license and exhibit same to such officer or such other person for the purpose of examination, or who shall refuse to surrender his license on demand of the department, or fail to produce same when requested by a court of this State, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction shall be punished as provided in this article. (1935, c. 52, s. 23.)

§ 20-29.1. Commissioner may require reexamination.—The commissioner of motor vehicles, having good and sufficient cause to believe that a licensed operator or chauffeur is incompetent or otherwise not qualified to be licensed, may, upon written notice of five days to such licensee, require him to submit to a reexamination to determine his competency to operate a motor vehicle. Upon the conclusion of such examination, the commissioner shall take such action as may be appropriate, and may suspend or revoke the license of such person or permit him to retain such license, or may issue a license subject to restrictions. Refusal or neglect of the licensee to submit to such reexamination shall be grounds for the suspension or revocation of his license. (1943, c. 787, s. 2.)

§ 20-30. Violations of license provisions.—It shall be unlawful for any person to commit any of the following acts:

(a) To display or cause to be displayed or to have in possession any operator's or chauffeur's license, knowing the same to be fictitious or to have been cancelled, revoked, suspended or altered.

(b) To counterfeit, sell, lend to, or knowingly permit the use of, by one not entitled thereto, any operator's or chauffeur's license.

(c) To display or to represent as one's own a license not issued to the person so displaying same.

(d) To fail or refuse to surrender to the department upon demand any license or the badge of any committee whose license has been suspended, cancelled or revoked as provided by law.

(e) To use a false or fictitious name or give a false or fictitious address in any application for an operator's or chauffeur's license, or any renewal or duplicate thereof, or knowingly to make a false statement or knowingly conceal a material fact or otherwise commit a fraud in any such application.

Any license procured as aforesaid shall be void from the issuance thereof, and any monies paid therefor shall be forfeited to the State. (1935, c. 52, s. 24.)

§ 20-31. Making false affidavits perjury.—Any person who shall make any false affidavit, or shall knowingly swear or affirm falsely, to any matter or thing required by the terms of this article to be sworn to or affirmed shall be guilty of perjury and upon conviction shall be punished by fine or imprisonment as other persons committing perjury are punishable under the laws of this State. (1935, c. 52, s. 25.)

Cross Reference.—As to perjury, see § 14-29, et seq.

§ 20-32. Unlawful to permit unlicensed minor to drive motor vehicle.—It shall be unlawful for any person to cause or knowingly permit any minor over sixteen and under the age of eighteen years to drive a motor vehicle upon a highway as an operator, unless such minor shall have first obtained a license to so drive a motor vehicle under the provisions of this article. (1935, c. 52, s. 26.)

Editor's Note.—Acts 1943, c. 346, § 6, in force for two years from March 1, 1943, amended this section by changing the first age mentioned therein from sixteen to fifteen years. The cases treated below were decided under a corresponding provision of an earlier law, but should be of assistance in the interpretation of the present section.

Violation of Age Limit as Negligence.—Where a person with the age prohibited by the statute runs an automobile upon and injures a pedestrian, the violation of the statute is negligence per se, and a charge by the court that it is a circumstance from which the jury could infer negligence is reversible error. Taylor v. Stewart, 172 N. C. 203, 90 S. E. 134.

Same.—Liability for Injuries.—While it is negligence per se for one within the prohibited age to run an automobile, it is necessary that such negligence proximately cause the injury for damages to be recovered on that account, with the burden of proof on the plaintiff to show it by the preponderance of the evidence. Taylor v. Stewart, 172 N. C. 203, 90 S. E. 134.

Same.—Jurisdiction.—It is for the jury to determine whether a competent and careful chauffeur of matured years could have avoided the injury under the circumstances, or whether it was due to the fact that a lad within the prohibited age was running it at the time. Taylor v. Stewart, 172 N. C. 203, 90 S. E. 134.

Same.—Liability of Father.—While ordinarily a father is not held responsible in damages for the negligent acts of his minor son done without his knowledge and consent, such may be inferred, as where the father constantly permitted his 23-year-old son to run his automobile. Taylor v. Stewart, 172 N. C. 203, 90 S. E. 134.

§ 20-33. Unlawful to employ unlicensed chauffeur.—No person shall employ any chauffeur to operate a motor vehicle who is not licensed as provided by this article. (1935, c. 52, s. 27.)

§ 20-34. Unlawful to permit violations of this article.—No person shall authorize or knowingly permit a motor vehicle owned by him or under his control to be driven by any person who has no legal right to do so or in violation of any of the provisions of this article. (1935, c. 53, s. 28.)

§ 20-35. Penalties for misdemeanor.—(a) It shall be a misdemeanor to violate any of the provisions of this article unless such violation is by this article or other law of this State declared to be a felony.

(b) Unless another penalty is in this article or by the laws of this State provided, every person convicted of a misdemeanor for the violation of any provision of this article shall be punished by a fine of not more than five hundred ($500.00) dollars or by imprisonment for not more than six (6) months. (1935, c. 53, s. 29.)

§ 20-36. Fees.—(a) The fees charged for the licenses herein provided for shall be as follows:

For an operator's license the sum of one ($1.00) dollar, which shall continue the license in effect until revoked or cancelled; chauffeur's license two ($2.00) dollars annually, or until revoked: Provided, that no charge shall be made for any private operator's license which shall be applied for prior to November first, one thousand nine hundred and thirty-five.

(b) All fees collected under the provisions of this article shall be paid by the commissioner of revenue to the state treasurer to be credited by him to the state highway fund. (1935, c. 52, s. 30.)

§ 20-37. Limitations on issuance of licenses.—There shall be no operator's or chauffeur's license issued within this State other than that provided for in this article, nor shall there be any other examination required: Provided, however, that cities and towns shall have the power to license, regulate and control drivers and operators of taxicabs within the city or town limits and to regulate and control operators of taxicabs operating between the city or town to points, not incorporated, within a radius of five miles of said city or town. (1935, c. 52, s. 34; 1942, c. 659, s. 2.)

Editor's Note.—The 1943 amendment added the proviso.
§ 20-38. Definition of words and phrases.—The following words and phrases when used in this article shall, for the purpose of this article, have the meanings respectively prescribed to them in this section, except in those instances where the context clearly indicates a different meaning:
(a) Business District.—The territory contiguous to a highway where seventy-five per cent or more of the frontage thereon for a distance of three hundred (300) feet or more is occupied by buildings in use for business purposes.
(b) Commissioner.—Commissioner, when herein referred to, shall refer to the commissioner of motor vehicles.
(c) Department.—Department herein used shall mean the department of motor vehicles acting directly or through its duly authorized officers and agents.
(d) Dealer.—Every person engaged in the business of buying, selling, distributing, or exchanging motor vehicles, trailers or semi-trailers in this state, having an established place of business in this state and being subject to the tax levied by § 105-89.
(e) Essential Parts.—All integral and body parts of a vehicle of any type required to be registered hereunder, the removal, alteration or substitution of which would tend to conceal the identity of the vehicle or substantially alter its appearance, model, type, or mode of operation.
(f) Established Place of Business.—The place actually occupied either continuously or at regular periods by a dealer or manufacturer, where his books and records are kept and a large share of his business is transacted.
(g) Explosives.—Any chemical compound or mechanical mixture that is commonly used or intended for the purpose of producing an explosion and which contains any oxidizing and combustive units or other ingredients in such proportions, quantities, or packing that an ignition by fire, by friction, by concussion, by percussion, or by a detonator of any part of the compound or mixture may cause such a sudden generation of highly heated gases that the resultant gaseous pressures are capable of producing destructive effects on contiguous objects or of destroying life or limb.
(h) Farm Tractor.—Every motor vehicle designed and used primarily as a farm implement for drawing plows, mowing machines, and other implements of husbandry.
(i) Foreign Vehicle.—Every vehicle of a type required to be registered hereunder brought into this state from another state, territory or country, other than in the ordinary course of business, by or through a manufacturer or dealer and not registered in this state.
(j) House Trailer.—Any trailer or semi-trailer so designed and equipped as to provide living and/or sleeping facilities and drawn by a motor vehicle.
(k) Implement of Husbandry.—Every vehicle which is designed for agricultural purposes and used exclusively in the conduct of agricultural operations.
(l) Intersection.—The area embraced within the prolongation of the lateral curb lines or, if none, then the lateral boundary lines of two or more highways which join one another at any angle whether or not one such highway crosses the other.
(m) Local Authorities.—Every county, municipality, or other territorial district with local board or body having authority to adopt local police regulations under the constitution and laws of this state.
(n) Manufacturer.—Every person engaged in the business of manufacturing motor vehicles, trailers or semi-trailers.
(o) Metal Tire.—Every tire the surface of which in contact with the highway is wholly or partly of metal or other hard, non-resilient material.
(p) Motor Vehicle.—Every vehicle which is self-propelled and every vehicle which is propelled by electric power obtained from trolley wires but not operated upon rails, and every vehicle designed to run upon the highways which is pulled by a self-propelled vehicle.
(q) Passenger Vehicles.—(1) Excursion passenger vehicles.
Passenger vehicles kept in use for the purpose of transporting persons on sight-seeing or travel tours.
(2) For hire passenger vehicles.
Passenger motor vehicles engaged in the business of transporting passengers for compensation; but this classification shall not include motor vehicles of seven-passenger capacity or less operated by the owner where the cost of operation is shared by neighbor fellow, workmen between their homes and the place of regular daily employment, when operated for not more than two trips each way per day, nor shall this classification include automobiles operated by the owner where the cost of operation is shared by the passengers on a "share the expense" plan.
(3) Franchise bus carriers.
Passenger motor vehicles operated under a franchise certificate issued by the utilities commission under §§ 62-103 to 62-103, for operation on the public highways of this state between fixed termini or over a regular route for the transportation of persons or property for compensation.
(4) Motorcycle.
Every motor vehicle having a saddle for the use of the rider and designed to travel on not more than three wheels in contact with the ground, but excluding a tractor.
(5) U-Drive-It passenger vehicles.
Passenger motor vehicles used for the purpose of rent or lease to be operated by the lessee.
(6) Private passenger vehicles.
All other passenger vehicles not included in the above definitions.
Motor vehicles used for the transportation of property for hire, but not licensed as franchise hauler vehicles under the provisions of §§ 62-103 to 62-121: Provided, it shall not be construed to include the transportation of farm crops or products, including logs, bark, pulp and tannic acid wood delivered from farms and forests to the first or primary market, nor to merchandise hauled for neighborhood farmers incidentally and not as a regular business in going to and from farms and primary markets. Provided further, that the term "for hire" as used herein shall include every arrangement by which the owner of a motor vehicle uses, or permits such vehicle to be used, for the transportation of the property of another for compensation, subject to the exemptions aforesaid. Provided, however, that the term "for hire shall not include motor vehicles whose sole operation in carrying the property of others is limited to the transportation of T. V. A. or A. A. P. phosphate, and/or agricultural limestone in bulk which is furnished as a grant of aid under the United States agricultural adjustment administration.

(2) Franchise hauler vehicles. Every motor vehicle used for the transportation of property between fixed termini, or over a regular route, with the right to make occasional trips off said route as provided in §§ 62-103 to 62-121: Provided, only such vehicles shall be so classified as the utilities commission shall determine to be reasonably necessary for the proper handling of the business on said route, and the determination so arrived at shall be duly certified by the utilities commissioner to the motor vehicle bureau.

(3) Private hauler vehicles. Every motor vehicle used for the transportation of property not falling within one of the above defined classifications.

(4) Semi-Trailer. Every vehicle without motive power designed for carrying property or persons and for being drawn by a motor vehicle, and so constructed that part of its weight and/or its load rests upon or is carried by the pulling vehicle.

(5) Trailers. Every vehicle without motive power designed for carrying property or persons wholly on its own structure and to be drawn by a motor vehicle. This shall include so-called pole trailers or a pair of wheels used primarily to balance a load, rather than for purposes of transportation.

(s) Non-Resident.—Every person who is not a resident of this state.

(t) Owner.—A person who holds the legal title of a vehicle or, in the event a vehicle is subject to an agreement for conditional sale or lease thereof, with the right of purchase upon performance of the conditions stated in the agreement and with the immediate right of possession vested in the original vendee or lessee; or, in the event a mortgagor of a vehicle is entitled to possession, then such conditional vendee or lessee or mortgagor shall be deemed the owner for the purpose of this article.

(u) Person.—Every natural person, firm, copartnership, association, corporation, or governmental agency.

(v) Pneumatic Tire.—Every tire in which compressed air is designed to support the load.

(w) Private Road or Driveway.—Every road or driveway not open to the use of the public as a matter of right for the purpose of vehicular traffic.

(x) 1. Residential District.—The territory contiguous to a highway not comprising a business district, where seventy-five per cent or more of the frontage thereon for a distance of three hundred (300) feet or more is mainly occupied by dwellings or by dwellings and buildings in use for business purposes.

(x) Reconstructed Vehicle.—Every vehicle of a type required to be registered hereunder materially altered from its original construction by the removal, addition, or substitution of essential parts, new or used.

(y) Road Tractor.—Every motor vehicle designed and used for drawing other vehicles upon the highway and not so constructed as to carry any part of the load, either independently or as a part of the weight of the vehicle so drawn.

(z) Safety Zone.—The area or space officially set aside within a highway for the exclusive use of pedestrians and which is so plainly marked or indicated by proper signs as to be plainly visible at all times while set apart as a safety zone.

(aa) Specially Constructed Vehicles. — Every vehicle of a type required to be registered hereunder not originally constructed under a distinctive name, make, model, or type by a generally recognized manufacturer of vehicles and not materially altered from its original construction.

(bb) Special Mobile Equipment.—Every vehicle not designed or used primarily for the transportation of persons or property, but incidentally operated or moved over the highways, such as farm tractors, road construction or maintenance machinery, ditch-digging apparatus, well-boring apparatus, and concrete mixers. The foregoing enumeration shall be deemed partial and shall not operate to exclude other vehicles which are within the general terms of this section.

(cc) Street and Highway. — The entire width between property lines of every way or place of whatever nature, when any part thereof is open to the use of the public as a matter of right for the purposes of vehicular traffic.

(dd) Solid Tire.—Every tire of rubber or other resilient material which does not depend upon compressed air for the support of the load.

(ee) Truck Tractor. — Every motor vehicle designed and used primarily for drawing other vehicles and not so constructed as to carry any load independent of the vehicle so drawn.

(ff) Vehicle. — Every device in, upon, or by which any person or property is or may be transported or drawn upon a highway, excepting devices moved by human power or used exclusively under fixed rails or by water, and so constructed that for the purposes of this article bicycles shall be deemed vehicles, and every rider of a bicycle upon a highway shall be subject to the provisions of this article applicable to the driver of a vehicle except those which by their nature can have no application. (1937, c. 407, s. 2; 1939, c. 275; 1941, cc. 22, 36, 196; 1943, cc. 201, 202.)

Editor's Note.—The 1939 amendment changed subsection (a), added the second proviso to subsection (r) (1), added the proviso to subsection (h) and inserted subsection (w) 1. The second proviso to subsection (r) as it appeared in the original act. It ignored the second proviso which had been added by Public Laws 1939, c. 275, and the last proviso which was added by the first 1941 amendment.

For comment on the 1941 amendment, see 19 N. C. Law Rev. 514.

The first 1941 amendment inserted in subsection (r) (1) that part of the first proviso beginning with the words "nor to merchandise." The second 1941 amendment added at the end of subsection (q) (2) the clause relating to "whore the expenses" plans.

The cases treated below were decided under the corresponding provisions of the earlier law, but should be of assistance in the interpretation of the present section.

"Auto Truck" Defined as "Automobile."—See Bethlehem Motors Corp. v. Flynt, 178 N. C. 399, 100 S. E. 693.

Motorcycle. — Statutory definition cited in Anderson v. Life, etc., Ins. Co., 197 N. C. 72, 147 S. E. 693, holding that the expression "motor driven car" in an insurance policy excludes a motorcycle.

Intersection.—Under this section where one public highway joins another, but does not cross it, the point where they join is an intersection of public highways. Williams v. Smith, 145 S. E. 169, citing Vartanian, Law of Automobiles, Part II, chapter 1, p. 414, note.

Bicycle.—Under this section a bicycle is deemed a vehicle, and the rider of a bicycle upon the highway is subject to the applicable provisions of the statutes relating to motor vehicles. Van Dyke v. Atlantic Greyhound Corp., 218 N. C. 283, 10 S. E. (2d) 727.

A bicycle is a vehicle and is subject to provisions of the motor vehicle act except those which by their nature can have no application. Tarrant v. Pepsi-Cola Bottling Co., 213 N. C. 295, 20 S. E. (2d) 565.

Residential District.—A charge defining a "residential district" as the "territory contiguous to a highway, not comprising a business district, when the frontage on the highway for a distance of 300 feet or more is occupied by dwellings and buildings in use for business" is held without error, the definition of a residential district in chapter 148, Public Laws of 1927, Art. 1, § (a), not having been repealed by this section. Reid v. City Coach Co., 215 N. C. 409, 2 S. E. (2d) 578, 123 A. I. R. 140. But note 1939 amendment adding subd. (w) 1.

Where the evidence established that the scene of the accident was not in a business district, and there was no evidence that defendant's vehicle was being driven in excess of 30 miles an hour, whether the accident occurred in a residential district as defined by subsection (w) 1 of this section, was held immaterial, since such speed did not violate the statutory restriction. Mitchell v. Metz, 230 N. C. 793, 18 S. E. (2d) 406.

That part of a highway comprising an intersection may not properly be considered in applying subsection (w) 1 of this section to any given locality. Mitchell v. Metz, 229 N. C. 793, 800, 18 S. E. (2d) 406.

Business District.—Uncontradicted testimony that only two business buildings front on the street in the block in which the accident occurred and that both of them together comprise not more than 40 feet frontage, establishes as a matter of law that the locus in quo is not a business district subject to subsection (a) of this section. Mitchell v. Metz, 229 N. C. 793, 18 S. E. (2d) 406.

Part 2. Authority and Duties of Commissioner and Department.

§ 20-39. Administering and enforcing laws; rules and regulations; agents, etc.; seal.—(a) The commissioner is hereby vested with the power and is charged with the duty of administering and enforcing the provisions of this article and of all laws regulating the operation of vehicles or the use of the highways, the enforcement or administration of which is now or hereafter vested in the department.

(b) The commissioner is hereby authorized to adopt and enforce such rules and regulations as may be necessary to carry out the provisions of this article and any other laws the enforcement and administration of which are vested in the department.

(c) The commissioner is authorized to designate and appoint such agents, field deputies, and clerks as may be necessary to carry out the provisions of this article.

(d) The commissioner shall adopt an official seal for the use of the department. (1937, c. 407, s. 4.)

Cross Reference.—As to commissioner and organization of department, see §§ 20-2, 20-3.

§ 20-40. Offices of department.—The commissioner shall maintain an office in Raleigh, North Carolina, and in such places in the state as he shall deem necessary to properly carry out the provisions of this article. (1937, c. 407, s. 5.)

§ 20-41. Commissioner to provide forms required.—The commissioner shall provide suitable forms for applications, certificates of title and registration cards, registration number plates and all other forms requisite for the purpose of this article, and shall prepay all transportation charges thereon. (1937, c. 407, s. 6.)

§ 20-42. Authority to administer oaths and certify copies of records.—(a) Officers and employees of the department designated by the commissioner are, for the purpose of administering the motor vehicle laws, authorized to administer oaths and acknowledge signatures, and shall do so without fee.

(b) The commissioner and such officers of the department as he may designate are hereby authorized to prepare under the seal of the department and deliver upon request a certified copy of any record of the department, charging a fee of fifty cents (50c) for each document so authenticated, and every such certified copy shall be admissible in any proceeding in any court in the same manner as the original thereof. (1937, c. 407, s. 7.)

Cross Reference.—As to copy of record kept by commissioner, etc., certified by commissioner, as evidence, see § 8-37.

§ 20-43. Records of department.—(a) All records of the department, other than those declared by law to be confidential for the use of the department, shall be open to public inspection during office hours.

(b) The commissioner may destroy any registration records of the department which have been maintained on file for three years which he may deem obsolete and of no further service in carrying out the powers and duties of the department. (1937, c. 407, s. 8.)

§ 20-44. Authority to grant or refuse applications.—The department shall examine and determine the genuineness, regularity and legality of every application for registration of a vehicle and for a certificate of title therefor, and of any other application lawfully made in the department, and may in all cases make investigation as may be deemed necessary or require additional information, and shall reject any such application if not satisfied of the genuineness, regularity, or legality thereof or the truth of any statement contained therein, or for any other reason, when authorized by law. (1937, c. 407, s. 9.)

§ 20-45. Seizure of documents and plates.—The department is hereby authorized to take possession of any certificate of title, registration card, permit, license, or registration plate issued by it upon expiration, revocation, cancellation, or suspension thereof, or which is fictitious, or which has been unlawfully or erroneously issued, or which has been unlawfully used. (1937, c. 407, s. 10.)

§ 20-46. Distribution of synopsis of laws.—The department may publish a synopsis or summary of the laws of this state regulating the operation of vehicles, and deliver to any person on request a copy thereof without charge. (1937, c. 407, s. 11.)
§ 20-47. Department may summon witnesses and take testimony.—(a) The commissioner and officers of the department designated by him shall have authority to summon witnesses to give testimony under oath or to give written deposition upon any matter under the jurisdiction of the department. Such summons may require the production of relevant books, papers, or records.

(b) Every such summons shall be served at least five days before the return date, either by personal service made by any person over eighteen years of age or by registered mail, but return acknowledgment is required to prove such latter service. Failure to obey such a summons so served shall constitute a misdemeanor. The fees for the attendance and travel of witnesses shall be the same as for witnesses before the superior court.

c) The superior court shall have jurisdiction, upon application by the commissioner, to enforce all lawful orders of the commissioner under this section. (1937, c. 407, s. 12.)

Cross References.—As to misdemeanors for which no specific punishment is prescribed, see § 143. As to fees of witnesses generally, see § 252.

§ 20-48. Giving of notice.—Whenever the department is authorized or required to give any notice under this article or other law regulating the operation of vehicles, unless a different method of giving such notice is otherwise expressly prescribed, such notice shall be given either by personal delivery thereof to the person to be so notified or by deposit in the United States mail of such notice in an envelope with postage prepaid, addressed to such person at his address as shown by the records of the department. The giving of notice by mail is complete upon the expiration of four days after such deposit of such notice. Proof of the giving of notice in either such manner may be made by the certificate of any officer or employee of the department or affidavit of any person over twenty-one years of age, naming the person to whom such notice was given and specifying the time, place, and manner of the giving thereof. (1937, c. 407, s. 13.)

§ 20-49. Police authority of department.—The commissioner and such officers and inspectors of the department as he shall designate and all members of the highway patrol shall have the power:

(a) Of peace officers for the purpose of enforcing the provisions of this article and of any other law regulating the operation of vehicles or the use of the highways.

(b) To make arrests upon view and without warrant for any violation committed in their presence of any of the provisions of this article or other laws regulating the operation of vehicles or the use of the highways.

(c) At all times to direct all traffic in conformance with law, and in the event of a fire or other emergency or to expedite traffic or to insure safety, to direct traffic as conditions require, notwithstanding the provisions of law.

(d) When on duty, upon reasonable belief that any vehicle is being operated in violation of any provision of this article or of any other law regulating the operation of vehicles to require the driver thereof to stop and exhibit his driver’s license and the registration card issued for the vehicle, and submit to an inspection of such vehicle, the registration plates and registration card thereon or to an inspection and test of the equipment of such vehicle.

(e) To inspect any vehicle of a type required to be registered hereunder in any public garage or repair shop or in any place where such vehicles are held for sale or wrecking, for the purpose of locating stolen vehicles and investigating the title and registration thereof.

(f) To serve all warrants relating to the enforcement of the laws regulating the operation of vehicles or the use of the highways.

(g) To investigate traffic accidents and secure testimony of witnesses or of persons involved.

(h) To investigate reported thefts of motor vehicles, trailers and semi-trailers. (1937, c. 407, s. 14.)

Part 3. Registration and Certificates of Titles of Motor Vehicles.

§ 20-50. Owner to secure registration and certificate of title.—Every owner of a vehicle intended to be operated upon any highway of this state and required by this article to be registered before the same is so operated, shall apply to the department for and obtain the registration therefor, and attach the registration plates to the vehicle, except when an owner is permitted to operate a vehicle under the registration provisions relating to manufacturers, dealers and non-residents contained in § 20-79: Provided, that nothing herein contained shall require the application for or the issuance of a certificate of title for a trailer having not more than two wheels with a gross weight of vehicle and load of twenty-five hundred (2500) pounds or less, and towed by a passenger car but before operating a trailer as described above upon the highways of the state, the owner thereof must obtain the registration thereof and pay the registration fees as now provided by part seven of this article. (1937, c. 407, s. 15; 1943, c. 648.)

Editor’s Note.—The 1943 amendment rewrote the proviso. The cases treated below were decided under the corresponding provisions of the earlier law, but should be of assistance in the interpretation of the present section.

Purpose as Compared with Mortgage Registration Statute.—This statute is a police regulation to protect the general public from fraud, imposition and theft of motor vehicles. The registration statute, secs. 47-20 and 47-23, specifically protects mortgages. Carolina Discount Corp. v. Landis Motor Co., 190 N. C. 157, 160, 129 S. E. 414.

Effect upon Mortgage Registration Statute.—This statute is a police regulation to protect the general public from fraud, imposition and theft of motor vehicles. The registration statute, secs. 47-20 and 47-23, specifically protects mortgages. Carolina Discount Corp. v. Landis Motor Co., 190 N. C. 157, 160, 129 S. E. 414.

Necessity of Registering Conditional Sale Contracts.—All chattel mortgages and conditional-sale contracts on motor vehicles must be registered in the county in which the mortgagor resides, and in case the mortgagor resides out of the State, then in the county where the said motor vehicle is situated, in order to obtain immunity against the creditors and purchasers for value, from the mortgagor. The conditional-sale contract, purchased by the mortgagor, having been registered, is invalid as against the defendant, a purchaser for full value. Carolina Discount Corp. v. Landis Motor Co., 190 N. C. 157, 160, 129 S. E. 414.

§ 20-51. Exempt from registration.—The following shall be exempt from the requirement of registration and certificate of title: (a) Any such vehicle driven or moved upon a highway in conformance with the provisions of this article relating to manufacturers, dealers, or nonresidents:

(b) Any such vehicle which is driven or moved upon a highway only for the purpose of crossing such highway from one property to another.

(c) Any implement of husbandry, whether of a type otherwise subject to registration hereunder or not, which is only incidentally operated or moved upon a highway.

(d) Any special mobile equipment as herein defined.

(e) No certificate of title need be obtained for any vehicle of a type subject to registration owned by the government of the United States.

(f) Farm tractors and trailers or semi-trailers with rubber tires used in farming operations, if such farm tractors or trailers or semi-trailers are otherwise exempt from registration, shall not be rendered subject to registration by reason of the use of such vehicles upon public highways by the owner of a farm in transporting wood, fertilizer, farm products, farm supplies, farm implements, or farm equipment from place to place on the same farm or from one farm to another. (1937, c. 407, s. 16; 1943, c. 500.)

Cross References.—As to manufacturers and dealers, see § 20-79. As to non-residents, see § 20-83.

Editor’s Note.—The 1943 amendment added paragraph (f).

§ 20-52. Application for registration and certificate of title.—(a) Every owner of a vehicle subject to registration hereunder shall make application to the department for the registration thereof and issuance of a certificate of title for such vehicle upon the appropriate form or forms furnished by the department, and every such application shall bear the signature of the owner written with pen and ink, and said signature shall be acknowledged by the owner before a person authorized to administer oaths, and said application shall contain:

1. The name, bona fide residence and mail address of the owner or business address of the owner if a firm, association or corporation;

2. A description of the vehicle, including, in so far as the hereinafter specified data may exist with respect to a given vehicle, the make, model, type of body, the serial number of the vehicle, the engine and other identifying numbers of the vehicle and whether new or used, and if a new vehicle, the date of sale and actual date of delivery of vehicle by the manufacturer or dealer to the person intending to operate such vehicle;

3. A statement of the applicant’s title and of all liens or encumbrances upon said vehicle and the names and addresses of all persons having any interest therein and the nature of every such interest;

4. Such further information as may reasonably be required by the department to enable it to determine whether the vehicle is lawfully entitled to registration and the owner entitled to a certificate of title.

(b) When such application refers to a new or foreign vehicle purchased from a dealer, the application shall be accompanied by an application for certificate of title in the name of the dealer containing the description of vehicle, statement of dealer’s title and all liens or encumbrances upon said vehicle, the name and address of person to whom sold, date of sale, actual date vehicle was delivered to purchaser, and such other information as may be required by the department. (1937, c. 407, s. 17.)

§ 20-53. Application for specially constructed, reconstructed, or foreign vehicle.—(a) In the event the vehicle to be registered is a specially constructed, reconstructed, or foreign vehicle, such fact shall be stated in the application, and with reference to every foreign vehicle which has been registered outside of this state, the owner shall surrender to the department all registration cards and certificates of title or other evidence of such foreign registration as may be in his possession or under his control, except as provided in sub-division (b) hereof.

(b) Where, in the course of interstate operation of a vehicle registered in another state, it is desirable to retain registration of said vehicle in such other state, such applicant need not surrender, but shall submit for inspection said evidence of such foreign registration, and the department in its discretion, and upon a proper showing, shall register said vehicle in this state but shall not issue a certificate of title for such vehicle. (1937, c. 407, s. 18.)

§ 20-54. Authority for refusing registration or certificate of title.—The department shall refuse registration or issuance of a certificate of title or any transfer of registration upon any of the following grounds:

(a) That the application contains any false or fraudulent statement or that the applicant has failed to furnish required information or reasonable additional information requested by the department or that the applicant is not entitled to the issuance of a certificate of title or registration of the vehicle under this article;

(b) That the vehicle is mechanically unfit or unsafe to be operated or moved upon the highways;

(c) That the department has reasonable ground to believe that the vehicle is a stolen or embezzled vehicle, or that the granting of registration or the issuance of a certificate of title would constitute a fraud against the rightful owner or other person having valid lien upon such vehicle;

(d) That the registrations of the vehicle stands suspended or revoked for any reason as provided in the motor vehicle laws of this state;

(e) That the required fee has not been paid. (1937, c. 407, s. 19.)

Cross Reference.—As to fees, see § 20-85.

§ 20-55. Examination of registration records and index of stolen and recovered vehicles.—The department, upon receiving application for any transfer of registration or for original registration of a vehicle, other than a new vehicle sold by a North Carolina dealer, shall first check the engine and serial numbers shown in the application against the indexes of registered motor vehicles, and against the index of stolen and recovered motor vehicles required to be maintained by this article. (1937, c. 407, s. 20.)

§ 20-56. Registration indexes.—The department shall file each application received, and when satisfied as to the genuineness and regularity thereof, and that the applicant is entitled to register such vehicle and to the issuance of a certificate of title, shall register the vehicle therein described.
§ 20-57. The department to issue certificate of title and registration card.—(a) The department upon registering a vehicle shall issue a registration card and a certificate of title as separate documents.

(b) The registration card shall be delivered to the owner and shall contain upon the face thereof of the name and address of the owner, space for owner's signature, the registration number assigned to the vehicle, and such description of the vehicle as determined by the commissioner, and upon the reverse side a form for endorsement of notice to the department upon transfer of the vehicle.

c) Every owner, upon receipt of a registration card, shall write his signature thereon with pen and ink in the space provided. Every such registration card shall at all times be carried in the vehicle to which it refers, or shall be carried by the person operating or in control of such vehicle, who shall display the same upon demand of any peace officer or any officer of the department: Provided, however, no person charged with failing to so carry such registration card shall be convicted if he produces in court a registration card theretofore issued to him and valid at the time of his arrest.

d) The certificate of title shall contain upon the face thereof the identical information required upon the face of the registration card, and in addition thereto the date of issuance and a statement of the owner's title and of all liens and encumbrances upon the vehicle therein described, and whether possession is held by the owner under a lease, contract or conditional sale, or other like agreement.

e) The certificate of title shall also contain upon the reverse side form of assignment of title or interest and warranty thereof, with space for notation of liens and encumbrances upon such vehicle at the time of a transfer.

f) Certificates of title upon which liens or encumbrances are shown shall be delivered or mailed by the department to the holder of the first lien or encumbrance.

g) Certificates of title shall bear thereon the seal of the department.

(h) Certificates of title need not be renewed annually, but shall remain valid until canceled by the department with an application for a permit to dismantle such vehicle. The department shall thereupon issue to the purchaser a permit to dismantle the same, which shall authorize such person to possess or transport such vehicle or to transfer ownership for a period of more than three years from the date of issue, shall become null and void and of no further force and effect as it relates to the issuance or transfer of title by the department. (1937, c. 407, s. 22.)

§ 20-58. Unlawful for lienor who holds certificate of title not to surrender same when lien satisfied.—It shall be unlawful and constitute a violation of this article to refuse or fail to surrender such certificate of title to the person legally entitled thereto, when called upon by such person, within ten days after his lien shall have been paid and satisfied, and any person convicted under this section shall be fined not more than fifty dollars ($50.00) or imprisoned not more than thirty days. (1937, c. 407, s. 23.)

§ 20-59. Owner after transfer not liable for negligent operation.—The owner of a motor vehicle who has made a bona fide sale or transfer of his title or interest, and who has delivered possession of such vehicle and the certificate of title thereto properly endorsed to the purchaser or transferee, shall not be liable for any damages thereafter resulting from negligent operation of such vehicle by another. (1937, c. 407, s. 24.)

§ 20-60. Owner dismantling or wrecking vehicle to return evidence of registration.—Any owner dismantling or wrecking any vehicle shall forward to the department the certificate of title, registration card and/or other proof of ownership, and the registration plate or plates last issued for such vehicle. No person, firm or corporation shall dismantle or wreck any motor vehicle without first complying with the requirements of this section. (1937, c. 407, s. 25.)

§ 20-61. Sale of motor vehicles to be dismantled.—Any owner who sells a motor vehicle as scrap or to be dismantled or destroyed shall assign the certificate of title thereto to the purchaser, and shall deliver such certificate so assigned to the department with an application for a permit to dismantle such vehicle. The department shall thereupon issue to the purchaser a permit to dismantle the same, which shall authorize such person to possess or transport such vehicle or to transfer ownership for a period of more than thirty days from the date of permit. A certificate of title shall not again be issued for such motor vehicle in the event it is scrapped, dismantled, or destroyed. In any case, where the owner for any reason fails to send in title for a junked or dismantled vehicle, the department shall have authority to take possession of such title for cancellation. (1937, c. 407, s. 26.)
§ 20-63. Registration plates to be furnished by the department.—(a) The department upon registering a vehicle shall issue to the owner one registration plate for a motorcycle, trailer or semi-trailer and two registration plates for every other motor vehicle. Registration plates issued by the department under this article shall be and remain the property of the state, and it shall be lawful for the commissioner or his duly authorized agents to summarily take possession of any plate or plates which he has reason to believe is being illegally used, and to keep in his possession such plate or plates pending investigation and legal disposition of the same.

(b) Every registration plate shall have displayed upon it the registration number assigned to the vehicle for which it is issued, also the name of the state of North Carolina, which may be abbreviated, and the year number for which it is issued or the date of expiration thereof.

(c) Such registration plate and the required numerals thereon, except the year number for which issued, shall be of sufficient size to be plainly readable from a distance of one hundred feet during daylight.

(d) Registration plates issued for a motor vehicle other than a motorcycle, trailer or semi-trailer shall be attached thereto, one in the front and the other in the rear. The registration plate issued for a motorcycle, trailer or semi-trailer shall be attached to the rear thereof.

(e) Preservation and cleaning of registration plates: It shall be the duty of each and every registered owner of a motor vehicle to keep the registration plates assigned to such motor vehicle reasonably clean and free from dust and dirt, and such registered owner, or any person in his employ, or who operates such motor vehicle by his authority, shall, upon the request of any proper officer, immediately clean such registration plates so that the numbers thereon may be readily distinguished, and any person who shall neglect or refuse to so clean a registration plate, after having been requested to do so, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and fined not exceeding fifty dollars ($50.00) or imprisoned not exceeding thirty days.

(f) Operating with false numbers. Any person who shall wilfully operate a motor vehicle with a registration plate which has been repainted or altered or forged, or which was issued by the commissioner for a motor vehicle other than the one on which used, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor.

(g) Alteration, disguise, or concealment of numbers. Any operator of a motor vehicle who shall wilfully mutilate, bend, twist, cover or cause to be covered or partially covered by any bumper, light, spare tire, tire rack, strap, or other device, or who shall paint, enam el, emboss, stamp, print, perforate, or alter or add to or cut off any part or portion of a registration plate or the figures or letters thereon, or who shall place or deposit or cause to be placed or deposited any oil, grease, or other substance upon such registration plates for the purpose of making dust adhere thereto, or who shall deface, disfigure, change, or attempt to change any letter or figure thereon, or who shall display a number plate in other than a horizontal upright position, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (1937, c. 407, s. 27; 1943, c. 726.)

Editor's Note.—The 1943 amendment struck out the words "and with intent to defraud the state of registration fees" formerly appearing after the word "wilfully" in line two of paragraph (f). The amendment also struck out the words "and with intent to conceal the identity of such motor vehicle or the identity of the registered owner thereof" formerly appearing after the word "wilfully" in line three of paragraph (g).

§ 20-64. Transfer of registration plates. — (a) Registration plates issued by the department for vehicles privately owned and operated shall not be transferred from one vehicle to another, but shall be assigned and transferred from one owner to another, upon the assignment of title as required by this article, and shall remain on the vehicle for which originally issued.

(b) Registration plates issued by the department for vehicles owned and operated by the state or any department thereof, or by any county, city or town, school district or other political subdivision of the state, shall not be assigned and transferred from one owner to another, but shall be retained by the owner to whom originally issued and may be used by the owner on another vehicle: Provided, that the owner shall make application to the department for said transfer and comply with the requirements of this article relative to certificate of title for vehicle the registration plates are to be transferred to.

(c) Registration plates issued by the department for vehicles operated for hire shall be subject to the same transfer provision as of vehicles owned by the state or any department thereof as set forth in subsection (b) of this section. (1937, c. 407, s. 28.)

§ 20-65. Expiration of registration.—Every vehicle registration under this article and every registration card and registration plate issued hereunder shall expire at midnight on the thirty-first day of December of each year: Provided, however, that it shall not be unlawful to continue to operate any vehicle upon the highways of this state after the expiration of the registration of said vehicle, registration card and registration plate during the period between the thirty-first day of December and the thirty-first day of January, inclusive. (1937, c. 407, s. 29; 1943, c. 592, s. 1.)

Editor's Note.—The 1943 amendment added the proviso.

§ 20-66. Application for renewal of registration.—(a) Application for renewal of a vehicle registration shall be made by the owner upon proper application and by payment of the registration fee for such vehicle, as provided by law.

(b) The department may receive applications for renewal of registration and grant the same, and issue new registration cards and plates at any time prior to expiration of registration, but no person shall display upon a vehicle the new registration plates prior to December first. (1937, c. 407, s. 30.)

§ 20-67. Notice of change of address or name. —(a) Whenever any person, after making application for or obtaining the registration of a vehicle or a certificate of title, shall move from the address named in the application or shown upon a registration card or certificate of title, such person shall within ten days thereafter notify the § 20-68. Replacement of lost or damaged certificates, cards and plates.—(a) In the event any registration card or registration plate is lost, mutilated, or becomes illegible, the owner or legal representative of the owner of the vehicle for which the same was issued, as shown by the records of the department, shall immediately make application for and may obtain a duplicate or a substitute or a new registration under a new registration number, as determined to be most advisable by the department, upon the applicant furnishing under oath information satisfactory to the department and payment of required fee.

(b) When a dealer acquires a motor vehicle which has been previously licensed, he should advise the party from whom he acquires the vehicle as to the provisions of the law which require that the dealer report to the motor vehicle bureau the sale or disposal of the vehicle. If the dealer wishes to have the license transferred to his name or the name of any person whose name appears on the registration card purporting to have been issued by the department, no replacement may be issued unless the party to whom the vehicle was sold shall forthwith notify the motor vehicle bureau of the sale or disposal of the vehicle. Nor shall any subsequent owner secure replacement plates until application for transfer of title and license has been made.

(c) In the event any certificate of title is lost, mutilated, or becomes illegible, the owner or legal representative of the owner of the vehicle for which the same was issued, as shown by the records of the department, shall immediately make application for and may obtain a duplicate upon the applicant furnishing under oath information satisfactory to the department and payment of required fee. Upon issuance of any duplicate certificate of title the previous certificate last issued shall be void. (1937, c. 407, s. 32.)

Cross Reference.—As to fee for duplicate certificate, see § 20-85.

§ 20-69. Department authorized to assign new engine number.—The owner of a motor vehicle upon which the engine number or serial number has become illegible or has been removed or obliterated shall immediately make application to the department for a new engine or serial number for such motor vehicle. The department, when satisfied that the applicant is the lawful owner of the vehicle referred to in such application is hereby authorized to assign a new engine or serial number thereto, and shall require that such number, together with the name of this state, or a symbol indicating this state, be stamped upon the engine, or in the event such number is a serial number, then upon such portion of the motor vehicle as shall be designated by the department. (1937, c. 407, s. 33.)

§ 20-70. Department to be notified when another engine is installed or body changed.—(a) Whenever a motor vehicle registered hereunder is altered by the installation of another engine in place of an engine, the number of which is shown in the registration records, or the installation of another body in place of a body, the owner of such motor vehicle shall immediately give notice to the department in writing on a form prepared by it, which shall state the number of the former engine and the number of the newly installed engine, the registration number of the motor vehicle, the name of the owner and any other information which the department may require. Whenever another engine has been substituted as provided in this section, and the notice given as required hereunder, the department shall insert the number of the newly installed engine upon the registration card and certificate of title issued for such motor vehicle.

(b) Whenever a new engine or serial number has been assigned to and stamped upon a motor vehicle as provided in section 20-69, or whenever a new engine has been installed or body changed as provided in this section, the department shall require the owner to surrender to the department the registration card and certificate of title previously issued for said vehicle. The department shall also require the owner to make application for a duplicate registration card and a duplicate certificate of title showing the new motor or serial number thereon or new style of body, and upon receipt of such application and fee, as for any other duplicate title, the department shall issue to said owner a duplicate registration and a duplicate certificate of title showing thereon the new number in place of the original number or the new style of body. (1937, c. 407, s. 34; 1943, c. 726.)

Cross Reference.—As to fee for duplicate registration card and certificate of title, see § 20-85.

Editor's Note.—The 1940 amendment made this section applicable to change of body of motor vehicle.

§ 20-71. Altering or forging certificate of title a felony.—Any person who shall alter with fraudulent intent any certificate of title or registration card issued by the department, or forge or counterfeet any certificate of title or registration card purporting to have been issued by the department under the provisions of this article, or who shall alter or falsify with fraudulent intent or forge any assignment thereof, or who shall hold or use any such certificate, registration card or assignment knowing the same to have been altered, forged or falsified, shall be guilty of a felony and upon conviction thereof shall be punished in the discretion of the court. (1937, c. 407, s. 35.)

Cross Reference.—As to punishment of felonies for which no specific punishment is prescribed, see § 14-2.

Part 4. Transfer of Title or Interest.

§ 20-72. Transfer by owner.—(a) Whenever the owner of a registered vehicle transfers or assigns his title or interest thereto, he shall endorse upon the reverse side of the registration card issued for such vehicle the name and address of the transferee and the date of transfer, and shall immediately forward such card to the department.

(b) The owner of any vehicle registered under the foregoing provisions of this article, transferring or assigning his title or interest thereto, shall also endorse an assignment and warranty of title in form approved by the department upon the reverse side of the certificate of title or execute an assignment and warranty of title of such vehicle and a statement of all liens or encumbrances thereon, which statement shall be verified under oath by the owner, who shall deliver the certificate of title to the purchaser or transferee at the time of delivering the vehicle, except that where a deed of trust, mortgage, conditional sale or title retaining contract is obtained from purchaser or transferee in payment of purchase price or otherwise, the lien holder shall forward such certificate of title papers to the department within twenty days together with necessary fees, or deliver such papers to the purchaser at the time of delivering the vehicle, as he may elect, but in either event the penalty provided in section 20-74 shall apply if application for transfer is not made within twenty days. (1937, c. 407, s. 36.)

Cross Reference.—As to fees, see § 20-85.

Editor’s Note.—The case cited below was decided under the corresponding provisions of the former law:

Transfer of Certificate as a Prerequisite to Passing of Title.—A careful perusal of this article fails to disclose any provision prohibiting a sale or transfer of the title of a motor vehicle without a transfer and delivery of a certificate of registration of title, and there is no provision that a sale so made is either fraudulent or void. Its provisions operate upon the parties who make a sale or a purchase without complying with its terms. Its penal provisions are clear. They are directed against those who violate after the sale, or transfer, has been made. Carolina Discount Corp. v. Landis Motor Co., 190 N. C. 157, 160, 129 S. E. 414.

Necessity for Writing to Pass Title.—"A sale of personal property is not required to be evidenced by any written instrument in order to be valid. This rule had been of such long standing prior to the enactment of the Motor Vehicle Registration Act, we cannot assume that the Legislature intended to change this rule, unless it says so." Carolina Discount Corp. v. Landis Motor Co., 190 N. C. 157, 160, 129 S. E. 414.

§ 20-73. New owner to secure transfer of registration and new certificate of title. —The transferee within twenty days after the purchase shall apply to the department for a transfer of registration and a new certificate of title of said vehicle and shall pay all fees as herebefore provided to the department, and make application for and obtain a new certificate of title for such vehicle except as otherwise permitted in sections 20-75 and 20-76. (1937, c. 407, s. 31; 1939, c. 275.)

§ 20-74. Penalty for failure to make application for transfer within the time specified by law. —It is the intent and purpose of this article that every new owner or purchaser of a vehicle previously registered shall make application for transfer of title and registration within twenty days after acquiring same, or see that such application is sent in by the lien holder with proper fees, and responsibility for such transfer shall rest on the purchaser. Any person, firm or corporation failing to do so shall pay a penalty of two dollars ($2.00) in addition to the fees otherwise provided in this article and clause. It is further provided that any dealer or owner who shall knowingly make any false statement in any application required by this department as to the date a vehicle was sold or acquired shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be fined not more than fifty dollars ($50.00) or imprisoned not more than thirty days. All moneys collected under this section shall go to the state highway fund. (1937, c. 407, s. 38; 1939, c. 275.)

§ 20-75. When transferee is a dealer. —When the transferee of a vehicle is a dealer who holds the same for resale and operates the same only for purposes of demonstration under a dealer’s number plate such transferee shall not be required to register such vehicle nor forward the certificate of title to the department as provided in section 20-73, but such transferee, upon transferring his title or interest to another person, shall give notice of such transfer to the department and shall execute and acknowledge an assignment and warranty of title in form approved by the department, and deliver the same to the person to whom such transfer is made at the same time the vehicle is delivered, except as provided in section 20-72, sub-section (b). (1937, c. 407, s. 38.)

§ 20-76. Title lost or unlawfully detained. —Whenever the applicant for the registration of a vehicle or a new certificate of title thereto is unable to present a certificate of title thereto by reason of the same being lost or unlawfully detained by one in possession, or the same is otherwise not available, the department is hereby authorized to receive such application and to examine into the circumstances of the case, and may require the filing of affidavits or other information; and when the department is satisfied that the applicant is entitled thereto is hereby authorized to register such vehicle and issue a new registration card, registration plate or plates and certificates of title to the person entitled thereto, upon payment of proper fee for duplicate title and/or replacement. (1937, c. 407, s. 40.)

Cross Reference.—As to proper fee, see § 20-85.

§ 20-77. Transfer by operation of law. —(a) Whenever the title or interest of an owner in or to a vehicle shall pass to another by operation of law, as upon order in bankruptcy, execution sale, repossession upon default in performing the terms of a lease or executory sales contract, or otherwise than by voluntary transfer, the transferee shall secure a transfer of registration to himself and a new certificate of title upon proper application, payment of the fees provided by law, and presentation of the last certificate of title, if available and such instruments or documents of authority or certified copies thereof as may be sufficient or required by law to evidence or effect a transfer of interest in or to chattels in such cases: Provided, however, transfers of registration shall only be made as provided for in § 20-64, sub-sections (a), (b) and (c).

(b) In the event of transfer as upon inheritance, devise or bequest, the department shall, upon receipt of a certified copy of a will, letters of administration and/or a certificate from the clerk of the superior court showing that the motor vehicle registered in the name of the decedent owner has been assigned to his widow as part of her year's support, transfer both title and license as otherwise provided for transfers. However, if no administrator has qualified or the clerk of the superior court refuses to issue a certificate, the department may upon affidavit showing satisfactory reasons therefor effect such transfer, but the new title so issued shall not affect the validity nor be in prejudice of any creditor's lien.

(c) Mechanic's or Storage Lien.—In any case where a vehicle is sold under a mechanic's or storage lien, the department shall be given a twenty-day notice as provided in § 20-114. (1937, c. 407, s. 41; 1943, c. 726.)

Cross Reference.—As to fees required, see § 20-85.

Editor's Note.—The 1943 amendment substituted the word "twenty-day" for the word "thirty-day" in subsection (c).

§ 20-78. When department to transfer registration and issue new certificate.—(a) The department, upon receipt of a properly endorsed certificate of title and application for transfer of registration, accompanied by the required fee, shall transfer the registration thereof under its registration number to the new owner, and shall issue a new registration card and certificate of title as upon an original registration.

(b) The department shall retain and appropriately file every application for certificate of title upon which certificate of title was issued and every surrendered certificate of title, such file to be so maintained as to permit the tracing of title of the vehicle designated therein.

After such applications for certificate of title or surrendered certificates of title have been on file with the department for a period of three years, the commissioner is hereby authorized and empowered to provide for the photographic or photostatic recording of such documents in such manner as he may deem expedient. The photographic or photostatic copies herein authorized shall be sufficient as evidence in the tracing of the titles of the motor vehicles designated therein, and shall also be admitted in evidence in all actions or proceedings to the same extent that the originals would have been admitted. (1937, c. 407, s. 42; 1943, c. 726.)

Cross Reference.—As to required fees, see § 20-85.

Editor's Note.—The 1943 amendment added the second and third sentences of subsection (b).

Part 5. Issuance of Special Plates.

§ 20-79. Registration by manufacturers and dealers.—(a) A manufacturer of or dealer in motor vehicles, trailers or semi-trailers, owning or operating any such vehicle or any vehicle known as a wrecker upon any highway, in lieu of registering such vehicle, may obtain from the department, upon application therefor upon the proper official forms and payment of the fees required by law, and attach to each such vehicle, two number plates, which plates shall each bear thereon a distinctive number, also the name of this state, which may be abbreviated, and the year for which issued. Together with the word "dealer" or a distinguishing symbol indicating that such plate or plates are issued to a dealer may, during the calendar year for which issued, be transferred from one such vehicle to another owned and operated by such manufacturer or dealer.

(b) Every manufacturer of or dealer in motor vehicles shall obtain and have in his possession a certificate of title issued by the department to such manufacturer or dealer of each vehicle, owned and operated upon the highways by such manufacturer or dealer, except that a certificate of title shall not be required for any new vehicle to be sold as such by a manufacturer or dealer prior to the sale of such vehicle by the manufacturer or dealer; and except that any dealer or any employee of any dealer who operates any motor vehicle, trailer or semi-trailer, the property of the dealer, for the purpose of furthering the business interest of the dealer in the sale, demonstration and servicing of motor vehicles, trailers and semi-trailers, of collecting accounts, contacting prospective customers and generally carrying on routine business necessary for conducting a general motor vehicle sales business: Provided, that no use shall be made of dealer's demonstration plates on vehicles operated in any other business dealers may be engaged in: Provided further, that dealers may allow the operation of motor vehicles owned by dealers and displaying dealer's demonstration plates in the personal use of persons other than those employed in the dealer's business: Provided further, that said persons shall, at all times while operating a motor vehicle under the provisions of this section, have in their possession a certificate on such form as approved by the commissioner from the dealer, which shall be valid for not more than forty-eight hours: Provided further, that motor vehicles, trailers and semi-trailers sold by dealers may be operated for a period not exceeding ten days from the date of sale by the purchaser thereof with dealer's demonstration plates, provided the purchasers have in their possession receipts from the dealers upon which the dealer has certified that the necessary amount of money to pay for titles and licenses has been paid by the purchasers to the dealers to be forwarded to the motor vehicle bureau, either direct or through one of its branch offices, on such form as approved by the commissioner.

(c) No manufacturer of or dealer in motor vehicles, trailers or semi-trailers shall cause or permit any such vehicle owned by such person to be operated or moved upon a public highway without there being displayed upon such vehicle a number plate or plates issued to such person, either under section 20-63 or under this section.

(d) No manufacturer of or dealer in motor vehicles, trailers or semi-trailers shall cause or permit any such vehicle owned by such person or by any person in his employ, which is in the personal use of such person or employee, to be operated or moved upon a public highway with a "dealer" plate attached to such vehicle.

(e) Transfer of Dealer Registration.—No change in the name of a firm, partnership or corporation, nor the taking in of a new partner, nor the withdrawal of one or more of the firm, shall be considered a new business; but if any one or more of the partners remain in the firm, or if there is change in ownership of less than a majority of the stock, if a corporation, the business shall be regarded as continuing and the dealers' plates originally issued may continue to be used. (1937, c. 407, s. 43.)

§ 20-80. National guard plates.—The commissioner shall cause to be made each year a sufficient number of automobile license plates to furnish each officer of the North Carolina National Guard with a set thereof, said license plates to be in the same form and character as other license plates now or hereafter authorized by law to be used upon private passenger vehicles registered in this state, except that such license plates shall bear on the face thereof the following words, “National Guard.” The said license plates shall be issued only to officers of the North Carolina National Guard, and for which license plates the commissioner shall collect fees in an amount equal to the fees collected for the licensing and registering of private vehicles. The adjutant general of North Carolina shall furnish to the commissioner each year, prior to the date that licenses are issued, a list of the officers of the North Carolina National Guard, which said list shall contain the rank of each officer listed in the order of his seniority in the service, and the said license plates shall be numbered, beginning with the number two hundred and one and in numerical sequence thereafter up to and including the number five hundred, according to seniority, the senior officer being issued the license bearing the numerals two hundred and one. Upon transfer of the ownership of a private passenger vehicle upon which there is a license plate bearing the words national guard, said plates shall be removed and the authority to use the same shall thereby be canceled; however, upon application to the commissioner, he shall reissue said plate to the officer of the national guard to whom the same were originally issued, and upon said reissue the commissioner shall collect fees in an amount equal to the fees collected for the original licensing and registering of said private passenger vehicle as is now or may be prescribed by law. (1937, c. 407, s. 44; 1941, c. 38.)

§ 20-81. Official license plates.—Official license plates issued as a matter of courtesy to state officials shall be subject to the same transfer provisions as provided in section 20-80. (1937 c. 407, s. 45.)

§ 20-82. Manufacturer or dealer to give notice of sale or transfer.—Every manufacturer or dealer, upon transferring a motor vehicle, trailer or semi-trailer, whether by sale, lease or otherwise, to any person other than the manufacturer or dealer shall, on or before the tenth of each month, give written report of all such transfers made during the preceding calendar month to the department upon the official form provided by the department. Every such report shall contain the date of such transfer, the names and addresses of the transferee, and such description of the vehicle as may be called for in such official form. Every manufacturer or dealer shall keep a record of all vehicles received or sold containing such information regarding same as the department may require. (1937, c. 407, s. 46.)

Part 6. Vehicles of Non-Residents of States, etc.

§ 20-83. Registration by non-residents. — (a) Nonresidents of this state, except as otherwise provided in this article, will be exempt from the provisions of this article as to the registration of motor vehicles for the same time and to the same extent as like exemptions are granted residents of this state under laws of another state, district or territory: Provided, that they shall have complied with the provisions of the law of the state, district or territory of their residence relative to the registration and equipment of their motor vehicles, and shall conspicuously display the registration plates as required thereby, and have in their possession the registration certificates issued for such motor vehicles, and that nothing herein contained shall be construed to permit a bona fide resident of this state to use any registration plate or plates from a foreign state, district or territory, under the provisions of this section. The commissioner shall determine what exemptions the non-resident vehicle operators of the several states, districts or territories, are entitled to under the provisions of this section, and ordain and publish rules and regulations for making effective the provisions of this section, which rules and regulations shall be observed and enforced by all the officers of this state whose duties require the enforcement of the motor vehicle registration laws, and any violations of such rules and regulations shall constitute a misdemeanor.

(b) Motor vehicles duly registered in a state or territory which are not allowed exemptions by the commissioner, as provided for in the preceding paragraph, desiring to make occasional trips into or through the state of North Carolina, or operate in this state for a period not exceeding thirty days, may be permitted the same use and privileges of the highways of this state as provided for similar vehicles regularly licensed in this state, by procuring from the commissioner trip licenses upon forms and under rules and regulations to be adopted by the commissioner, good for use for a period of thirty days upon the payment of a fee in compensation for said privilege equivalent to one-tenth of the annual fee which would be chargeable against said vehicle if regularly licensed in this state: Provided, however, that nothing in this provision shall prevent the extension of the privileges of the use of the roads of this state to vehicles of other states under the reciprocity provisions provided by law: Provided further, that nothing herein contained shall prevent the owners of vehicles from other states from licensing such vehicles in the state of North Carolina under the same terms and the same fees as like vehicles are licensed by owners resident in this state.

(c) Every non-resident, including any foreign corporation carrying on business within this state and owning and operating in such business any motor vehicle, trailer or semi-trailer within this state, shall be required to register each such vehicle and pay the same fees therefor as is required with reference to like vehicles owned by residents of this state. (1937, c. 407, s. 47; 1941, cc. 99, 365.)

Editor's Note.—Public Laws 1941, c. 99, amended by c. 365, inserted in subsection (b) the words "or operate in this state for a period not exceeding thirty days."

For comment on the 1941 amendment, see 19 N. C. Law Rev. 514.

§ 20-84. Vehicles owned by state, municipalities or orphanages, etc.—The department, upon proper proof being filed with it that any motor vehicle for which registration is herein required is owned by the state or any department thereof, or by any county, township, city or town, or by any board of education, or by any orphanage, shall collect one dollar for the registration of such motor vehicles, but shall not collect any fee for application for certificate of title in the name of the state or any department thereof, or by any county, township, city or town, or by any board of education or orphanage: Provided, that the term "owned" shall be construed to mean that such motor vehicle is § 20-85. Schedule of fees.—There shall be paid to the department for the issuance of certificates of title, transfer of registration and replacement of registration plates fees according to the following schedules:

(a) Each application for certificate of title...... $5.00
(b) Each application for duplicate certificate of title...... $5.00
(c) Each application for repossessor for certificate of title...... $5.00
(d) Each transfer of registration...... 1.00
(e) Each set of replacement registration plates...... 1.00
(f) Each duplicate registration card...... 25

§ 20-86. Penalty for engaging in a “for hire” business without proper license plates.—Any person, firm or corporation engaged in the business of transporting persons or property for compensation, except as otherwise provided in this article, shall, before engaging in such business, pay the license fees prescribed by this article and secure the license plates provided for vehicles operated for hire. Any person, firm or corporation operating vehicles for hire without having paid the tax prescribed or using private plates on such vehicles shall be liable for an additional tax of twenty-five dollars ($25.00) for each vehicle in addition to the normal fees provided in this article. (1937, c. 407, s. 50.)

§ 20-87. Passenger vehicle registration fees.—There shall be paid to the department annually, as the first day of January, for the registration and licensing of passenger vehicles, fees according to the following classifications and schedules:

(a) Franchise Bus Carriers.—Franchise bus carriers shall pay an annual license tax of ninety cents per hundred pounds weight of each vehicle unit, and in addition thereto six per cent of the gross revenue earned in such intrastate hauls. Franchise bus carriers operating between a point or points within this state and a point or points outside this state that the mileage in North Carolina bears to the total mileage between the respective terminals shall be liable for a six per cent tax on that proportion of the gross revenue earned between such terminals as the mileage in North Carolina bears to the total mileage between the respective terminals. Franchise bus carriers operating through this state that the mileage in North Carolina bears to a point or points outside this state shall be liable for a six per cent tax on that proportion of the gross revenue earned between such terminals as the mileage in North Carolina bears to the total mileage between the respective terminals. In no event shall the tax paid by such franchise bus carriers be less than ninety cents per hundred pounds weight for each vehicle. The tax prescribed in this subsection is levied as compensation for the use of the highways of this state and for the special privileges extended such franchise bus carriers by this state.

(b) U-Drive-It Passenger Vehicles.—U-drive-it passenger vehicles shall pay the following tax:

- Motorcycles: 1-passenger capacity ......... $12.00
- 2-passenger capacity ......... 15.00
- 3-passenger capacity ......... 18.00
- Automobiles: $1.00 per hundred pounds weight of each vehicle.

(c) For Hire Passenger Vehicles.—For hire passenger vehicles shall be taxed at the rate of $1.00 per hundred pounds of weight.

(d) Excursion Passenger Vehicles.—Excursion passenger vehicles shall be taxed at the rate of $8.00 per passenger capacity, with a minimum charge of $25.00, but such vehicles operating under a certificate as a restricted common carrier under §§ 62-103 to 62-121, shall also be liable to the gross revenue six per cent tax to the extent it exceeds the tax herein levied under the same provisions provided for franchise bus carriers.

(e) Private Passenger Vehicles.—Private passenger vehicles shall be taxed at thirty-five cents per hundred pounds of weight or major fraction thereof, according to the manufacturer’s shipping weight: Provided, that no fee for any private passenger vehicles shall be less than $7.00.

(f) Private Passenger Motorcycles.—Private passenger motorcycles shall pay for each motorcycle $5.00, and for each side car $5.00.

(g) Manufacturers and Motor Vehicle Dealers.—Manufacturers and dealers in motor vehicles for demonstration tags shall pay as a registration fee and for one set of plates $25.00, and for each additional set of plates $1.00.

(h) Driveaway Companies.—Any person, firm or corporation engaged in the business of driving new motor vehicles from the place of manufacture to the place of sale in this state for compensation shall pay as a registration fee and for one set of plates one hundred dollars ($100.00) and for each additional set of plates five dollars ($5.00). (1937, c. 407, s. 51; 1939, c. 785; 1943, c. 83.)

Editor’s Note.—The 1939 and 1943 amendments made changes in subsection (a).

For case citing corresponding provisions of former law, see Safe Bus v. Maxwell, 214 N. C. 12, 197 S. E. 567.

§ 20-88. Property hauling vehicles.—(a) Determination of Weight.—For the purpose of licensing the weight of the several classes of motor vehicles used for transportation of property shall be the gross weight and load, to be determined by the manufacturer's gross weight capacity as shown in an authorized national publication, such as "Commercial Car Journal" or the statistical issue of "Automotive Industries," all such weights subject to verification by the commissioner or his authorized deputy, and if no such gross weight on any vehicle is available in such publication, then the gross weight shall be determined by the commissioner or his authorized agent: Provided, that any determination of weight shall be made only in units of one thousand pounds or major fraction thereof, weights of over five hundred pounds being counted as one thousand and weights of five hundred pounds or less being disregarded. Semi-trailers licensed for use in connection with a truck or truck-tractor shall in no case be licensed for less gross weight capacity than the truck or truck-tractor with which it is to be operated. The gross weight of a single unit equipped with three or more axles may be computed for license fee at a rate not in excess of the rate on trucks and semi-trailers of the same gross weight.

(b) There shall be paid to the department annually, as of the first day of January, for the registration and licensing of trucks, truck-tractors, trailers and semi-trailers, fees according to the following classifications and schedules:

(c) The minimum rate for any vehicle licensed under this section shall be twelve dollars ($12.00), except that the license fee for a trailer having not more than two wheels with a gross weight of vehicle and load not exceeding fifteen hundred (1500) pounds and towed by a passenger car shall be two dollars ($2.00) for any part of the license year for which said license is issued, and the license fee for a two-wheel trailer with gross weight for vehicle and load of more than fifteen hundred (1500) pounds but not more than twenty-five hundred (2500) pounds and towed by a passenger car shall be ten dollars ($10.00) for the entire year, subject to the provision for quarterly license as provided for other vehicles: Provided, however, that any such trailers operated for hire shall be taxed at the same rate as contract hauler vehicles: Provided, further, that in addition to the motor vehicle licenses authorized to be issued pursuant to the provisions of this chapter, the department shall issue, upon application therefor, a license plate for trucks marked "farmer", which shall be issued upon evidence satisfactory to the department that the applicant is a farmer and is actually engaged in the growing, raising and producing of farm products as an occupation. License plates issued under authority of this section shall be placed upon motor trucks engaged exclusively in the carrying or transportation of applicant's farm products, raised or produced on his farm, and farm supplies, and not engaged in hauling for hire: Provided further that the department shall issue necessary rules and regulations providing for the recall, transfer, exchange or cancellation of "farmer" license plates issued hereunder when trucks bearing such shall be sold and/or transferred. Applicants for license plates herein authorized shall pay therefor at a rate equal to one-half the present registration fee provided for trucks by this chapter; provided that the minimum rate for any vehicle licensed under this proviso shall be ten dollars ($10.00): and provided, further, persons applying for "farmer" license under the provisions of this section shall not be entitled to the benefits of § 20-85. The term "farmer" as used in this section means any person engaged in the raising, growing and producing of farm products on a farm not less than ten acres in area, and who does not engage in the business of buying farm products for resale; and the term "farm products" means any food crop, cattle, hogs, poultry, dairy products and other agricultural products designed and to be used for food purposes.

(d) Rates on trucks, trailers and semi-trailers wholly or partially equipped with solid tires shall be double the above schedule.

(e) Franchise Haulers.—Franchise haulers shall pay an annual license tax as per the above schedule of rates for each vehicle unit, and in addition thereto six per cent of the gross revenue derived from such operations: Except on vehicles licensed for interstate routes and used exclusively for interstate business where more than fifty per cent of the designated route lies outside of the state of North Carolina, the required deposit may be reduced by the commissioner to fifty per cent of the above schedule of rates as to deposit only: Provided, said additional six per cent shall not be collectible unless and until and only to the extent that such amount exceeds the license tax or deposit per the above schedule: Provided, further, franchise haulers operation from a point or points in this state to another point or points in this state shall be liable for a tax of six per cent on the gross revenue earned in such intra-state hauls. Franchise haulers operating between a point or points within this state and a point or points outside this state shall be liable for a tax of four per cent on the gross revenue earned in such intra-state hauls. Franchise haulers operating through this state from a point or points outside this state or from points within this state to another point or points outside this state shall be liable for a tax of six per cent on that proportion of the gross revenue earned between such terminals as the mileage in North Carolina bears to the total mileage between the respective terminals. Franchise haulers operating through this state from a point or points outside this state to a point or points outside this state shall be liable for six per cent on that proportion of the gross revenue earned between such terminals as the mileage in North Carolina bears to the total mileage between the respective terminals. In no event shall the tax paid by such franchise haulers less than the license tax or deposit shown on the above schedule, except where a franchise is hereafter issued by the utilities commission for service over a route within the state which is not now served by any franchise hauler the six per cent gross revenue tax may be reduced to four per cent for the first two years only. The tax prescribed in this subsection is levied as compensation for the use of the highways of this state and forms prescribed by the commissioner; and any person, firm, or corporation operating such franchise carriers shall become due and payable on or before the twentieth day of the month following the month in which it accrues.

(2) Non-resident motor vehicle carriers which do not operate in intrastate commerce in this state, and the title to whose vehicles are not required to be registered under the provisions of this article, shall be taxed for the use of the roads of this state as franchise haulers as provided above: Provided further, that this provision shall not prevent the extension to vehicles of other states of the benefits of the reciprocity provisions provided by law.

(3) Contract haulers under the definitions of this article who receive and operate under a certificate or permit or other authority from the utilities commission as restricted common carriers under the provisions of §§ 62-103 to 62-121, shall, in addition to the rate of tax for contract carriers provided above, be subject to the gross six per cent tax to the extent that it exceeds the rate for contract haulers to be levied and collected in the same manner provided for franchise haulers, and the tax in the schedule provided for contract haulers shall be deemed a deposit only.

(4) Every person operating a motor vehicle upon the highways of the state equipped with motors of the Diesel type shall make a report to the commissioner upon forms to be prescribed and furnished by the commissioner at least four times a year on dates to be designated by the commissioner; and such reports shall show, among other things, the purchases of motor fuel for use in said Diesel type motor and whether or not the tax levied upon motor fuels has been paid or assumed by the person from whom bought; and it shall be unlawful to operate any such motor equipment upon the highways of this state except with fuel upon which the tax has been paid. It shall be unlawful for any person, firm, or corporation operating such Diesel type motor to fail, refuse, or neglect to make returns in accordance with the forms prescribed by the commissioner; and any person knowingly making false returns shall be guilty of a felony.

(5) The 1941 amendment, which added that part of subsection (a) and made changes in subsection (e).

§ 20-90. Due date of franchise tax.—The six per cent additional tax on franchise bus carriers and franchise haulers shall become due and payable on or before the twentieth day of the month following the month in which it accrues.

§ 20-91. Records and reports required of franchise carriers.—(a) Every franchise bus carrier and franchise hauler shall keep a record of all business transacted and all revenue received on such forms as may be prescribed by or satisfactory to the commissioner, and such records shall be preserved for a period of three years, and shall be subject to inspection by the commissioner or his deputics or such other agents as may be duly authorized by the commissioner. Any operator of such a franchise line failing to comply with or violating any of the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof shall be fined or imprisoned in the discretion of the court.

(b) All franchise bus carriers and franchise haulers shall, on or before the twentieth day of each month, make a report to the department of gross revenue earned and gross mileage operated during the month previous, in such manner as the department may require and on such forms as the department shall furnish.

(c) It shall be the duty of the commissioner, by competent auditors, to have the books and records of every franchise bus carrier and franchise hauler examined at least once each year to determine if such operators are keeping complete records as provided by this section of this article, and to determine if correct reports have been made to the department of motor vehicles covering the total amount of tax liability of such operators.

(d) If any franchise bus carrier or franchise hauler shall fail, neglect, or refuse to keep such records or to make such reports as required, and within the time provided in this article, the commissioner shall immediately inform himself as to the time, manner of matters and things required to be set forth in such records and reports, and from such information as he may be able to obtain, determine and fix the amount of the tax due the state from such delinquent operator for the period covering the delinquency, adding to the tax so determined and as a part thereof an amount equal to five per cent (5%) of the tax, to be collected and paid. The said commissioner shall proceed immediately to collect the tax including the additional five per cent (5%).

(e) Except in accordance with proper judicial order, or as otherwise provided by law, it shall... be unlawful for the commissioner of motor vehicles, any deputy, assistant, agent, clerk, other officer, employee, or former officer or employee, to divulge or make known in any manner the amount of gross revenue or tax paid by any franchise bus carrier or franchise hauler as set forth or disclosed in any report or return required in remitting said tax, or as otherwise disclosed. Nothing in this section shall be construed to prohibit the publication of statistics, so classified as to prevent the identification of particular reports or returns, and the items thereof; the inspection of such reports or returns by the governor, attorney general, utilities commission, or their or its duly authorized representatives; or the inspection by a legal representative of the state of the report or return of any franchise bus carrier or franchise hauler which shall bring an action to set aside or review the tax based thereon, or against which action or proceeding has been instituted to recover any tax or penalty imposed by this article. Any person, officer, agent, clerk, employee, or former officer or employee violating the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (1937, c. 407, s. 55, 1939, c. 375; 1941, c. 36; 1943, c. 726.)

Editor's Note.—The 1939 amendment struck out the word "willfully" formerly appearing after the word "shall" in subsection (d). The 1943 amendment added subsection (e).

—The failure of any franchise bus carrier or any franchise hauler to pay any tax levied under this article, and/or to make reports as is required, shall constitute cause for revocation of registration and franchise, and the commissioner is hereby authorized to seize the registration plates of any such delinquent carrier and require the cessation of the operation of such vehicles. (1937, c. 407, s. 56.)

§ 20-93. Bond or deposit required.—The commissioner, before issuing any registration plates to a franchise bus carrier or a franchise hauler, shall either satisfy himself of the financial responsibility of such carrier or require a bond or deposit in such amount as he may deem necessary to insure the collection of the tax imposed by this section. (1937, c. 407, s. 57.)

§ 20-94. Partial payments.—In the purchase of licenses, where the gross amount of the license to any one owner amounts to more than four hundred dollars ($400.00), half of such payment may, if the commissioner is satisfied of the financial responsibility of such owner, be deferred until April first in any calendar year upon the execution to the commissioner of a draft upon any bank or trust company upon forms to be provided by the commissioner in an amount equivalent to one-half of such tax, plus a carrying charge of two per cent (2%): Provided, that any person using any tag so purchased after the first day of April in any such year, without having first provided for the payment of such draft, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. Any such drafts being dishonored and not paid shall be subject to the penalties prescribed in § 20-178 and shall be immediately turned over by the commissioner to his duly authorized agents and/or the state highway patrol, to the end that this provision may be enforced. (1937, c. 407, s. 58; 1943, c. 726.)

Editor's Note.—The 1943 amendment added after the word "may" in line five the words "if the commissioner is satisfied of the financial responsibility of such owner." It also inserted in the last sentence the following: "shall be subject to the penalties prescribed in section 20-178 and."

§ 20-95. Licenses for less than a year.—Licenses issued on or after April first of each year and before July first for all vehicles, except franchise haulers and two-wheel trailers under one thousand five hundred pounds weight pulled by passenger cars, shall be three-fourths of the annual fee. Licenses issued on or after July first and before October first, except two-wheel trailers under one thousand five hundred pounds weight pulled by passenger cars, shall be one-half the annual fee. Licenses issued on or after October first, except on two-wheel trailers under one thousand five hundred pounds weight pulled by passenger cars, shall be one-fourth of the annual fee. (1937, c. 407, s. 59.)

§ 20-96. Overloading. — The commissioner, or his authorized agent, may allow any owner of a motor vehicle for transportation of property to overload said vehicle by paying the tax at the rate per hundred pounds which would be assessed against such vehicle if its gross weight capacity provided for such load; but such calculation shall be made only in units of one thousand pounds or major fraction thereof, excessive weights of five hundred pounds or less being disregarded and weights of more than five hundred pounds and not more than one thousand pounds being counted as one thousand. It is the intent of this section that every owner of a motor vehicle shall procure license in advance to cover any overload which may be carried. Any owner failing to do so, and whose vehicle shall be found in operation on the highways carrying an overload in excess of one ton over the weight for which such vehicle is licensed, shall pay in addition to the normal tax levied in this article an additional tax of three dollars ($3.00) per each thousand pounds in excess of the licensed weight of such vehicle. Any person who shall willfully violate the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor in addition to being liable for the additional tax herein prescribed. (1937, c. 407, s. 60; 1943, c. 726.)

The 1943 amendment added the last sentence.

§ 20-97. Taxes compensatory; no additional tax.
(a) All taxes levied under the provisions of this article are intended as compensatory taxes for the use and privileges of the public highways of this state, and shall be paid by the commissioner to the state treasurer, to be credited by him to the state highway fund; and no county or municipality shall levy any license or privilege tax upon the use of any motor vehicle licensed by the state of North Carolina, except that cities and towns may levy not more than one dollar ($1.00) per year upon any such vehicle resident therein: Provided, however, that cities and towns may levy, in addition to the one dollar ($1.00) per year, herein set forth, a sum not to exceed fifteen dollars ($15.00) per year upon each vehicle operated in such city or town as a taxicab.
(b) No additional franchise tax, license tax, or other fee shall be imposed by the state against... any franchise motor vehicle carrier taxed under this article nor shall any county, city or town impose a franchise tax or other fee upon them, except that cities and towns may levy a license tax not in excess of fifteen dollars ($15.00) per year on each vehicle operated in such city as a taxicab as provided in subsection (a) hereof.

(c) In addition to the appropriation carried in the Appropriations Act there shall be appropriated to the motor vehicle department the additional sum of ten thousand dollars ($10,000.00) from the state highway fund: Provided, that such additional sum shall be made available only in the event that the regular appropriation is insufficient and it shall be determined by the director of the budget that such additional amount is necessary to carry out the provisions of this article. (1937, c. 407, s. 61; 1941, c. 36; 1943, c. 639, ss. 3, 4.)

§ 20-98. Tax lien—In the distribution of assets in case of receivership or insolvency of the owner against whom the tax herein provided is levied and in the order of payment thereof, the state shall have priority over all other debts or claims except prior recorded liens or rights given by statute an express priority. (1937, c. 407, s. 62.)

§ 20-99. Sale under execution; franchise canceled. —Whenever any tax imposed by this article shall be in default for a period of ten days, it shall be the duty of the commissioner to certify the same to the sheriff of any county of this state in which such delinquent motor vehicle operator is operating, which said certificate said sheriff shall have all the force and effect of a judgment and execution, and the said sheriff is hereby authorized and directed to levy upon any property in said county owned by said delinquent motor vehicle operator and to sell the same for the payment of said tax as other property is sold in the state for the non-payment of taxes; and for such services the sheriff shall be allowed the fees now prescribed by law for sales under execution, and the cost in such cases shall be paid by the delinquent taxpayer or out of the proceeds of the said property, and upon the filing of said certificate with the sheriff, in the event the delinquent taxpayer shall be the operator of any franchise bus carrier or franchise hauler vehicle, the franchise certificate issued to such operator shall become null and void and shall be canceled by the utilities commissioner, and it shall be unlawful for any such franchise bus carrier or the operator of any franchise hauler vehicle to continue the operation under said franchise. (1937, c. 407, s. 63.)

Cross References.—As to fees of sheriffs, see § 162-6. As to cancellation of franchise certificates, see § 62-111.

§ 20-100. Vehicles junked or destroyed by fire or collision.—Upon satisfactory proof to the commissioner that any motor vehicle, duly licensed, has been completely destroyed by fire or collision, or has been junked and completely dismantled so that the same can no longer be operated as a motor vehicle, the owner of such vehicle may be allowed on the purchase of a new license for another vehicle a credit equivalent to the unexpired proportion of the cost of the original license, dating from the first day of the next month after the vehicle's such destruction. (1937, c. 407, s. 64; 1939, c. 390, s. 1.)

Editor's Note.—The 1939 amendment inserted the provision relating to junked vehicle.

§ 20-101. Vehicles to be marked. — All motor vehicles licensed as franchise bus carriers, franchise hauler vehicles and contract hauler vehicles, shall have printed on the side thereof in letters not less than three inches in height the name and home address of the owner, or such other identification as the utilities commissioner may approve. (1937, c. 407, s. 65.)

§ 20-102. Report of stolen and recovered motor vehicles.—Every sheriff, chief of police, or peace officer upon receiving reliable information that any vehicle registered hereunder has been stolen shall immediately report such theft to the department. Any said officer upon receiving information that any vehicle, which he has previously reported as stolen, has been recovered, shall immediately report such fact to the department. (1937, c. 407, s. 66.)

§ 20-103. Reports by owners of stolen and recovered vehicles.—The owner, or person having a lien or encumbrance on a registered vehicle which has been stolen or embezzled, may notify the department of such theft or embezzlement, but in the event of an embezzlement may make such report only after having procured the issuance of a warrant for the arrest of the person charged with such embezzlement. Every owner or other person who has given any such notice must notify the department of the recovery of such vehicle. (1937, c. 407, s. 67.)

§ 20-104. Action by department on report of stolen or embezzled vehicles.—(a) The department, upon receiving a report of a stolen or embezzled vehicle as hereinafore provided, shall file and appropriately index the same and shall immediately suspend the registration of the vehicle so reported, and shall not transfer the registration of the same until such time as it is notified in writing that such vehicle has been recovered.

(b) The department shall at least once each month compile and maintain at its headquarters office a list of all vehicles which have been stolen or embezzled or recovered as reported to it during the preceding month, and such lists shall be open to inspection by any peace officer or other persons interested in any such vehicle. (1937, c. 407, s. 68.)

§ 20-105. Unlawful taking of a vehicle.—Any person who drives or otherwise takes and carries away a vehicle, not his own, without the consent of the owner thereof, and with intent to temporarily or permanently deprive the owner of his possession of such vehicle, without intent to steal the same, is guilty of a misdemeanor. The consent of the owner of a vehicle to its taking or driving shall not in any case be presumed or implied because of such owner's consent on a previous occasion to the taking or driving of such vehicle by the same or a different person. Any person who assists in, or is a party or accessory to or an accomplice in any such unauthorized taking or driving, is guilty of a misdemeanor. (1937, c. 407, s. 69; 1943, c. 548.)

Cross Reference.—As to misdemeanors for which no specific punishment is prescribed, see § 14-3.

Editor's Note.—The 1943 amendment inserted after the word "drives" in the second line the words "or otherwise takes and carries away."

The cases treated below were decided under the corresponding provisions of the earlier law, but should be of assistance in the interpretation of the present section.

Civil Liability of Owner for Injuries.—The owner is not liable for injury or damage caused by his automobile while it is operated by another without his consent. This applies to parent and child and where the father forbade his child from taking his car he is not liable. Linville v. Nissen, 163 N. C. 95, 77 S. E. 106.

An indictment charging larceny and receiving does not include a charge of driving a motor vehicle without the knowledge or consent of the owner, and a defendant charged in the indictment only with larceny and receiving may not be convicted under this section. State v. Stinnett, 203 N. C. 829, 167 S. E. 63.

§ 20-106. Receiving or transferring stolen vehicles.—Any person who, with intent to procure or pass title to a vehicle which he knows or has reason to believe has been stolen or unlawfully taken, receives or transfers possession of the same from or to another, or who has in his possession any vehicle which he knows or has reason to believe has been stolen or unlawfully taken, and who is not an officer of the law engaged at the time in the performance of his duty as such officer, is guilty of a felony. (1937, c. 457, s. 70.)

Cross Reference.—As to felonies for which no specific punishment is prescribed, see § 14-2.

§ 20-107. Injuring or tampering with vehicle.—(a) Any person who either individually or in association with one or more other persons willfully injures or tampers with any vehicles or breaks for removal any part or parts of or from a vehicle without the consent of the owner is guilty of a misdemeanor.

(b) Any person who, with intent to steal, commits any malicious mischief, injury or other crime, climbs into or upon a vehicle, whether it is in motion or at rest, or with like intent attempts to manipulate any of the levers, starting mechanism, brakes, or other mechanism or device of a vehicle while the same is at rest and unattended or with like intent sets in motion any vehicle while the same is at rest and unattended, is guilty of a misdemeanor. (1937, c. 407, s. 71.)

§ 20-108. Vehicles without manufacturer's numbers.—Any person who knowingly buys, receives, disposes of, sells, offers for sale, conceals, or has in his possession any motor vehicle, or engine removed from a motor vehicle, from which the manufacturer's serial or engine number or other distinguishing number or identification mark or number placed thereon under assignment from the department has been removed, defaced, covered, altered, or destroyed for the purpose of concealing or misrepresenting the identity of said motor vehicle or engine is guilty of a misdemeanor. (1937, c. 407, s. 72.)

§ 20-109. Altering or changing engine or other numbers.—No person shall wilfully deface, destroy, or alter the manufacturer's serial or engine number or other distinguishing number or identification mark of a motor vehicle, nor shall any person place or stamp any serial, engine, or other number or mark upon a motor vehicle, except one assigned thereto by the department. Any violation of this provision is a misdemeanor. (1937, c. 407, s. 73; 1943, c. 726.)

The 1943 amendment substituted the word "wilfully" in line one for the words "with fraudulent intent."

§ 20-110. When registration shall be rescinded. —(a) The department shall rescind and cancel the registration of any vehicle which the department shall determine is unsafe or unfit to be operated or is not equipped as required by law.

(b) The department shall rescind and cancel the registration of any vehicle whenever the person to whom the registration card or registration number plates thereto have been issued shall make or permit to be made any unlawful use of the said card or plates or permit the use thereof by a person not entitled thereto.

(c) The department shall rescind and cancel the license of any dealer to whom such license has been issued when such dealer allows his registration number plates to be used for other than demonstration purposes except as provided by § 20-79, fails to carry out the provisions of § 20-79 and § 20-82, or is convicted of a felony. (1937, c. 407, s. 74.)

§ 20-111. Violation of registration provisions. —It shall be unlawful for any person to commit any of the following acts:

(a) To operate or for the owner thereof knowingly to permit the operation upon a highway of any motor vehicle, trailer, or semi-trailer which is not registered or for which a certificate of title has not been issued, or which does not have attached thereto and displayed thereon the registration number plate or plates assigned thereto by the department for the current registration year, subject to the exemption mentioned in §§ 20-65 and 20-79.

(b) To display or cause or permit to be displayed or to have in possession any registration card, certificate of title or registration number plate knowing the same to be fictitious or to have been canceled, revoked, suspended or altered.

(c) The giving, lending, or borrowing of a license plate for the purpose of using same on some motor vehicle other than that for which issued shall make the giver, lender, or borrower guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction he shall be fined not more than fifty dollars ($50.00), or imprisoned not more than thirty days. Where license plate is found being improperly used, such plate or plates shall be revoked or canceled, and new license plates must be purchased before further operation of the motor vehicles. [828]
§ 20-112. Making false affidavit perjury. — Any person who shall knowingly make any false affidavit or shall knowingly swear or affirm falsely to any matter or thing required by the terms of this article to be sworn or affirmed to shall be guilty of perjury, and upon conviction shall be punishable by a fine and imprisonment as other persons committing perjury are punishable. (1937, c. 407, s. 76.)

Cress References. — As to punishment for perjury, see § 14-209. As to revocation of license in event of conviction of perjury or the making of false affidavits, etc., see § 20-113.

§ 20-113. Licenses protected. — No person, partnership, association or corporation shall maintain an office or place of business in which or through which persons desiring transportation for themselves or their baggage are brought into contact by advertisement or otherwise with persons owning or operating motor vehicles and willing to transport other persons, or baggage, for compensation, or on a division of expense basis, unless the owner or operator of such motor vehicles furnishing the transportation has qualified under the tax provisions of this article for the class of service he holds himself out to perform. (1937, c. 407, s. 77.)

§ 20-114. Duty of officer; manner of enforcement. — (a) For the purpose of enforcing the provisions of this article, it is hereby made the duty of every police officer, every marshal, deputy marshal, or watchman of any incorporated city or village, and every sheriff, deputy sheriff, and all other lawful officers of any county, and every constable of any township, to arrest within the limits of their jurisdiction any person known personally to any such officer, or upon the sworn information of a creditable witness, to have violated any of the provisions of this article, and to immediately bring such offender before any justice of the peace or sheriff having jurisdiction, and any such person so arrested shall have the right of immediate trial, and all other rights given to any person arrested for having committed a misdemeanor. Every officer herein named who shall neglect or refuse to carry out the duties imposed by this chapter shall be liable on his official bond for such neglect or refusal as provided by law in like cases.

(b) It shall be the duty of all sheriffs, police officers, deputy sheriffs, deputy police officers, and all other officers within the state to co-operate with and render all assistance in their power to the officers herein provided for, and nothing in this article shall be construed as relieving said sheriffs, police officers, deputy sheriffs, deputy police officers, and other officers of the duties imposed on them by this chapter.

§ 20-115. Scope and effect of regulations in this title. — It shall be unlawful and constitute a misdemeanor for any person to drive or move or for the owner to cause or knowingly permit to be driven or moved on any highway any vehicle or vehicles of a size or weight exceeding the limitations stated in this title, or any vehicle or vehicles which are not so constructed or equipped as required in this title, or the rules and regulations of the commission adopted pursuant thereto and the maximum size and weight of vehicles herein specified shall be lawful throughout this state, and local authorities shall have no power or authority to alter said limitations except as express authority may be granted in this article. (1937, c. 407, s. 79.)

§ 20-116. Size of vehicles and loads. — (a) The total outside width of any vehicle or the load thereon shall not exceed ninety-six inches, except as otherwise provided in this section.

(b) No passenger-type vehicle shall be operated on any highway with any load carried thereon extending beyond the line of the fenders on the left side of such vehicle nor extending more than six inches beyond the line of the fenders on the right side thereof.

(c) No vehicle unladen or with load shall exceed a height of twelve feet, six inches.

(d) No vehicle shall exceed a length of thirty-five feet extreme over-all dimension, inclusive of front and rear bumpers. A truck-tractor and semitrailer shall be regarded as two vehicles for the purpose of determining lawful length and license taxes.

(e) No combination of vehicles coupled together shall consist of more than two units and no such combination of vehicles shall exceed a total length of forty-five feet exclusive of front and rear bumpers, subject to the following exceptions: Said length limitation shall not apply to vehicles operated in the daytime when transporting poles, pipe, machinery or other objects of a structural nature which cannot readily be dismembered, nor to such vehicles transporting such objects operated at night-time by a public utility when required for emergency repair of public service facilities or properties, but in respect to such night transportation every such vehicle and the load thereon shall be equipped with a sufficient number of clearance lamps on both sides and marker lamps upon the extreme ends of said projecting load to clearly mark the dimensions of such load: Provided, that the state highway and public works commission shall have authority to designate any highways upon the state system as light-traffic roads when, in the opinion of the commission, such roads are inadequate to carry and will be injuriously affected by the maximum load, size, and/or width of trucks or busses using such roads as herein provided for, and all such roads so designated shall be conspicuously posted as light-traffic roads and the maximum load, size and/or width authorized shall be displayed on proper signs erected thereon. The operation of any vehicle whose gross load, size and/or width exceed the maximum shown on such signs over the roads

thus posted shall constitute a misdemeanor: Provided further, that no standard concrete highway, or other highway built of material of equivalent durability, and not less than eighteen feet in width, shall be designated as a light-traffic road:

Provided further, that the limitations placed on any road shall not be less than eighty per cent (80%) of the standard weight, unless there shall be available an alternate improved route of not more than twenty per cent (20%) increase in the distance.

(f) The load upon any vehicle operated alone, on the road upon the front vehicle of a combination of vehicles, shall not extend more than three feet beyond the front wheels of such vehicle or the front bumper of such vehicle, if it is equipped with such a bumper.

(g) No vehicle shall be driven or moved on any highway unless such vehicle is so constructed or loaded as to prevent any of its load from dropping, sifting, leaking or otherwise escaping therefrom, except that sand may be dropped for the purpose of securing traction, or water or other substance may be sprinkled on a roadway in cleaning or maintaining such roadway.

(h) Wherever there exist two highways of the state system of approximately equivalent construction, convenience and distance between two or more points, the state highway and public works commission shall have authority, when in the opinion of the commission the public interest is served thereby, to designate one of said roads for heavy or truck-line traffic between said points, and to prohibit the use of the other or parallel road by heavy or truck-line traffic thereon; and in such instances the roads selected for heavy or truck-line traffic shall be so designated by signs conpicuously posted thereon, and the roads upon upon which heavy or truck-line traffic is prohibited shall likewise be so designated by signs conspicuously posted thereon showing the maximum load authorized for said roads. The operation of any vehicle whose gross load exceeds the maximum load shown on such signs over the road thus posted shall constitute a misdemeanor: Provided, that nothing herein shall prohibit a truck or other motor vehicle whose gross load exceeds that prescribed for the light traffic roads from using said light traffic road when the destination of said truck is located solely upon said light traffic road: Provided, further, that nothing herein shall prohibit passenger or other light traffic vehicles from using any road or roads so designated for heavy or truck-line traffic.

(i) The total width of any vehicle propelled by electric power obtained from trolley wires, but not operated upon rails, commonly known as an electric trackless trolley coach, which is operated as a part of the general trackless trolley system of passenger transportation of the city of Greensboro and vicinity, shall not exceed one hundred and two inches, and the total length, inclusive of front and rear bumpers, of any such vehicle shall not exceed thirty-six feet, and the height of any such vehicle, exclusive of trolley pole for operating same, shall not exceed twelve feet, six inches. (1937, c. 246; 1937, c. 407, s. 80; 1943, c.
213, s. 1.)

Cross Reference.—As to size and weight limitations for motor vehicle carriers applying for franchise certificates, see § 62-105, subsec. (c).

Editor's Note.—The 1943 amendment added subsection (i).

This section prohibiting the extension of any part of the load of a passenger vehicle beyond the line of the fenders on the left side of such vehicle imposes a duty for the safety of other vehicles on the highway, and is not conclusive on the question of contributory negligence of a passenger riding on the running board, with none of his body extending be-§ 20-118. Weight of vehicles and load. — No vehicle or combination of vehicles shall be moved or operated on any highway or bridge when the gross weight thereof exceeds the limits specified below:

(a) When the wheel is equipped with high-pressure pneumatic, solid rubber or cushion tire, eight thousand pounds.

(b) When the wheel is equipped with low-pressure pneumatic tire, nine thousand pounds.

(c) The gross weight on any one axle of the vehicle when the wheels attached to said axle are equipped with high-pressure solid rubber or cushion tires, sixteen thousand pounds.

(d) When the wheels attached to said axle are equipped with low-pressure pneumatic tires, eighteen thousand pounds.

(e) For the purposes of this section an axle load shall be defined as the total load on all wheels whose centers are included within two parallel transverse vertical planes not more than forty inches apart.

(f) For the purposes of this section every pneumatic tire designed for use and used when inflated with air to less than one hundred pounds pressure shall be deemed a low-pressure pneumatic tire, and every pneumatic tire inflated to one hundred pounds pressure or more shall be, deoemed a high-pressure pneumatic tire.

(g) No vehicle shall be operated on any highway the weight of which, resting on the surface of such highway, exceeds six hundred pounds upon any inch of tire roller or other support.
(h) Subject to the foregoing limitations, the gross weight of any vehicle having two axles shall not exceed twenty-six thousand pounds.

(i) Subject to the foregoing limitations, the gross weight of any vehicle or combination of vehicles having three or more axles shall not exceed forty thousand pounds. For the purpose of determining gross weight, no axle shall be considered unless the wheels thereof are equipped with adequate brakes.

(j) The gross weight with normal load of passgengers of any vehicle propelled by electric power obtained from trolley wires, but not operated upon rails, commonly known as an electric trackless trolley coach, which is operated as a part of the general trackless trolley system of passenger transportation of the city of Greensboro and vicinity, shall not exceed thirty thousand pounds. (1937, c. 407, s. 8; 1943, c. 213, s. 2; 1943, cc. 726, 784.)

Cross Reference.—As to size and weight limitations for motor vehicle carriers applying for franchise certificates, see § 62-105, subsec. (e).

Editor's Note.—The first 1943 amendment added subsection (j). The second 1943 amendment as changed by the third amendment substituted "twenty-six" for "twenty" in subsection (o).

§ 20-118.1. Peace officer may weigh vehicle and require removal of excess load.—Any peace officer having reason to believe that the weight of a vehicle and load thereof is unlawful is authorized to weigh the same either by means of portable or stationary scales, and may require that such vehicle be driven to the nearest scales in the event such scales are within two miles. The officer may then require the drive to unload immediately such portion of the load as may be necessary to decrease the gross weight of such vehicle to the maximum therefor specified in this article. (1927, c. 148, s. 37.)

§ 20-119. Special permits for vehicles of excessive size or weight.—The state highway and public works commission may, in their discretion, upon application in writing and good cause being shown therefor, issue a special permit in writing authorizing the applicant for seasonal operations to operate or move a vehicle of a size or weight exceeding a maximum specified in this article upon any highway under the jurisdiction and for the maintenance of which the body granting the permit is responsible. Every such permit shall be carried in the vehicle to which it refers and the maintenance of which the body granting the permit is responsible, and the permit is responsible. Every such permit shall be carried in the vehicle to which it refers and shall be open to inspection by any peace officer; and it shall be a misdemeanor for any person to violate any of the terms or conditions of such special permit: Provided, the authorities in any incorporated city or town may grant permits in writing and for good cause shown, authorizing the applicant to move a vehicle over the streets of such city or town, the size or width exceeding the maximum expressed in this article. (1937, c. 407, s. 83.)

§ 20-120. Operation of flat trucks on state highways regulated.—It shall be unlawful for any person, firm or corporation to operate, or have operated on any public highway in the state any open, flat truck loaded with logs, cotton bales, boxes or other load piled on said truck, without having the said load securely fastened on said truck. Any person violating the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction shall be fined not more than fifty dollars or imprisoned not more than thirty days. (1939, c. 114.)

§ 20-121. When authorities may restrict right to use highways. — The state highway and public works commission or local authorities may prohibit the operation of vehicles upon or impose restrictions as to the weight thereof, for a total period not to exceed ninety days in any one calendar year, when operated upon any highway under the jurisdiction of and for the maintenance of which the body adopting the ordinance is responsible, whenever any said highway by reason of deterioration, rain, snow or other climatic conditions will be damaged unless the use of vehicles thereon is prohibited or the permissible weights thereof reduced. The local authority enacting any such ordinance shall erect, or cause to be erected and maintained, signs designating the provisions of the ordinance at each end of that portion of any highway to which the ordinance is applicable, and the ordinance shall not be effective until or unless such signs are erected and maintained. (1937, c. 407, s. 84.)

Cross Reference.—As to powers of municipal corporations as to streets, see § 166-200, subsections 11, 31.

§ 20-122. Restrictions as to tire equipment.—(a) Every solid rubber tire on a vehicle moved on any highway shall have rubber on its entire traction surface at least one and a half inches thick above the edge of the flange of the entire periphery.

(b) No tire on a vehicle moved on a highway shall have on its periphery any block, stud, flange, cleat or spike or any other protuberance of any material other than rubber which projects beyond the tread of the traction surface of the tire, except that it shall be permissible to use tire chains of reasonable proportions upon any vehicle when required for safety because of snow, ice or other conditions tending to cause a vehicle to slide or skid.

(c) The state highway and public works commission or local authorities in their respective jurisdictions may, in their discretion, issue special permits authorizing the operation upon a highway of traction engines or tractors having movable tracks with transverse corrugation upon the periphery of such movable tracks or farm tractors or other farm machinery.

(d) It shall not be unlawful to drive farm tractors on dirt roads from farm to farm: Provided, in doing so they do not damage said dirt roads or interfere with traffic. (1937, c. 407, s. 85; 1939, c. 266.)

Editor's Note.—The 1939 amendment added subsection (d).

§ 20-123. Trailers and towed vehicles.—(a) No motor vehicle shall be driven upon any highway drawing or having attached thereto more than one trailer or semi-trailer.

(b) No trailer or semi-trailer shall be operated over the highways of the state unless such trailer or semi-trailer be firmly attached to the rear of the motor vehicle drawing same, and unless so equipped that it will not shake, but will travel in the path of the wheels of the vehicle drawing such trailer or semi-trailer, which equipment shall at all times be kept in good condition. (1937, c. 407, s. 86.)
§ 20-124. Brakes. — (a) Every motor vehicle when operated upon a highway shall be equipped with brakes adequate to control the movement of and to stop such vehicle or vehicles, and such brakes shall be maintained in good working order and shall conform to regulations provided in this section.

(b) No person having control or charge of a motor vehicle shall allow such vehicle to stand on any highway unattended without first effectively setting the hand brake thereon, stopping the motor and turning the front wheels into the curb or side of the highway.

On a dry, hard, approximately level stretch of highway free from loose material, the service (foot) brake shall be capable of stopping the motor vehicle at a speed of twenty miles per hour within a distance of twenty-five feet with four wheel brakes or forty-five feet with two wheel brakes. The hand brake shall be capable of stopping the vehicle under like conditions of this section within a distance of not more than seventy-five feet.

(d) Motor trucks and tractor-trucks with semi-trailers attached shall be capable of stopping on a dry, hard, approximately level stretch of highway free from loose material at a speed of twenty miles per hour within the following distances: thirty feet with both hand and service brake applied simultaneously and fifty feet when either is applied separately, except that vehicles maintained and operated permanently for the transportation of property and which were registered in this or any other state or district prior to August, nineteen hundred and twenty-nine, shall be capable of stopping on a dry, hard, approximately level stretch of highway free from loose material at a speed of twenty miles per hour within a distance of fifty feet with both hand and service brake applied simultaneously, and within a distance of seventy-five feet when either applied separately.

(e) Every semi-trailer, or trailer, or separate vehicle, attached by a draw-bar or coupling to a towing vehicle, and having a gross weight of two tons, and all house trailers of one thousand pounds gross weight or more, shall be equipped with brakes controlled or operated by the driver of the towing vehicle, which shall conform to the specifications set forth in sub-section (d) of this section and shall be of a type approved by the commissioner. (1937, c. 407, s. 87.)

§ 20-125. Windshields must be unobstructed. — (a) It shall be unlawful for any person to drive any vehicle upon a highway with any sign, poster or other non-transparent material upon the front windshield, side windows, side or rear window of such motor vehicle other than a certificate or other paper required to be so displayed by law.

(b) It shall be unlawful to use a "muffler cut-out" on any motor vehicle upon a highway. (1937, c. 407, s. 91.)

§ 20-126. Mirrors. — No person shall drive a motor vehicle on a highway which motor vehicle is so constructed or loaded as to prevent the driver from obtaining a view of the highway to the rear by looking backward from the driver's position, unless such vehicle is equipped with a mirror of a type to be approved by the commissioner so located as to reflect to the driver a view of the highway for a distance of at least two hundred feet to the rear of such vehicle. (1937, c. 407, s. 89.)

§ 20-127. Horns and warning devices. — (a) Every vehicle upon a highway within this state during the period from a half hour after sunset to a half hour before sunrise, and at any other time when there is not sufficient light to render clearly discernible any person on the highway at a distance of two hundred feet ahead, shall be equipped with lighted front and rear lamps as in this section respectively required for different classes of vehicles, and subject to exemption with reference to lights on parked vehicles as declared in § 20-134.

(b) Every police and fire department and fire patrol vehicle and every ambulance used for emergency calls shall be equipped with a bell, siren or exhaust whistle of a type approved by the commissioner. (1937, c. 407, s. 88.)

§ 20-128. Required lighting equipment of vehicles. — (a) When vehicles must be equipped: Every vehicle upon a highway within this state during the period from a half hour after sunset to a half hour before sunrise, and at any other time when there is not sufficient light to render clearly discernible any person on the highway at a distance of two hundred feet ahead, shall be equipped with lighted front and rear lamps as in this section respectively required for different classes of vehicles, and subject to exemption with reference to lights on parked vehicles as declared in § 20-134.

(b) Head Lamps on Motor Vehicles: Every motor vehicle other than a motorcycle, road-roller, road machinery, or farm tractor shall be equipped with two head lamps, no more and no less, at the front of and on opposite sides of the motor vehicle, which head lamps shall comply with the requirements and limitations set forth in §§ 20-131 or 20-132.

(c) Head Lamps on Motorcycles: Every motorcycle shall be equipped with at least one and not more than two head lamps which shall comply with the requirements and limitations set forth in § 20-131 or 20-132.

(d) Rear Lamps: Every motor vehicle and every trailer or semi-trailer which is being drawn at the end of a train of vehicles shall carry at the rear a lamp of a type which has been approved by the commissioner and which exhibits a red light plainly visible under normal atmospheric conditions from a distance of five hundred feet to the rear of such vehicle, and so constructed and placed that the number plate carried on the rear of such vehicle shall under like conditions be so illuminated by a white light as to be read from a distance of not less than five hundred feet to the rear of such vehicle, or in lieu of said lights shall be equipped with reflectors of a type which has been approved by the commissioner and which is so designed, located as to a height and maintained as to be visible for at least five hundred feet when opposed by a vehicle displaying lawful undimmed headlights at night on an unlighted highway. Such reflector shall be placed at the extreme end of the load.

(e) Clearance Lamps: Every motor vehicle having a width at any part in excess of eighty inches shall carry two clearance lamps at the front, one at each side reflecting an amber light plainly visible under normal atmospheric conditions from a distance of five hundred feet to the front of said vehicle and two clearance lamps at the rear, one on each side and reflecting a red light visible under like conditions from a distance of five hundred feet to the rear of the vehicle. As relates to truck-trailer or tractor-trailer combinations, such lights shall be required only at the front and rear of the overall dimensions.

(f) Lamps on Bicycles: Every bicycle shall be equipped with a lighted lamp on the front thereof, visible under normal atmospheric conditions from a distance of at least three hundred feet in front of such bicycle, and shall also be equipped with a reflex mirror or lamp on the rear, exhibiting a red light visible under like conditions from a distance of at least two hundred feet to the rear of such bicycle, when used at night.

(g) Lights on Other Vehicles: All vehicles not heretofore in this section required to be equipped with specified lighted lamps shall carry on the left side one or more lighted lamps or lanterns projecting a white light, visible under normal atmospheric conditions from a distance of not less than five hundred feet to the front of such vehicle and visible under like conditions from a distance of not less than five hundred feet to the rear of such vehicle, or in lieu of said lights shall be equipped with reflectors of a type which is approved by the commissioner. (1937, c. 407, s. 93; 1939, c. 275.)

Editor's Note.—The 1939 amendment changed subsection (e).

Effect of Violation in Civil Action.—Negligence in not having a light on the rear of a truck will not preclude recovery against one who drove his car into the truck, unless it contributed to the injury. Hughes v. Luther, 189 N. C. 841, 128 S. E. 145.

Absence of Rear Lights on Smoke Covered Road.—Where plaintiff's evidence tended to show that he was driving at night along a highway covered with smoke from fires along its side and that he collided with the rear of an oil truck which was headed in the same direction and which had been stopped on the highway without rear lights in violation of this section it was held that conceding negligence on the part of defendant, plaintiff's evidence disclosed contributory negligence barring recovery as a matter of law, either in driving at a speed in excess of that at which he could stop within the distance to which his lights would disclose the existence of obstructions, or, if he could have seen the oil truck in time to have avoided a collision, in failing to do so. Sibbitt v. R. & W. Transit Co., 230 N. C. 704, 55 S. E. 2d 823.

Whether Obstruction Should Have Been Seen Is Jury Question.—Generally speaking, where the statutes, as this section, or the decisions of the courts, require red lights of the vehicle operated by him by shifting, adjusting that, except as provided in sub-section (c) of this section, they will at all times mention in § 20-129, and under normal atmospheric conditions and on a level road, produce a driving light sufficient to render clearly discernible a person two hundred feet ahead, but any person operating a motor vehicle upon the highways when meeting another vehicle, shall so control the lights of the vehicle operated by him by shifting, § 20-132. Acetylene lights.—Motor vehicles may be equipped with two acetylene head lamps of approximately equal candle power when equipped with clear plane glass fronts, bright six-inch spherical mirrors, and standard acetylene five-eighths foot burners not more and not less and which do not project a glaring or dazzling light to persons in front of such head lamp.

Head lamps shall be deemed to comply with the foregoing provisions prohibiting glaring and dazzling lights if none of the main bright portion of the head lamp beams rises above a horizontal plane passing through the lamp centers parallel to the level road upon which the loaded vehicle stands, and in no case higher than forty-two inches, seventy-five feet ahead of the vehicle.

(c) Whenever a motor vehicle is being operated upon a highway, or portion thereof, which is sufficiently lighted to reveal a person on the highway at a distance of two hundred feet ahead of the vehicle, it shall be permissible to dim the head lamps or to tilt the beams downward or to substitute therefor the light from an auxiliary driving lamp or pair of such lamps, subject to the restrictions as to tilted beams and auxiliary driving lamps set forth in this section.

(d) Whenever a motor vehicle meets another vehicle on any highway it shall be permissible to tilt the beams of the head lamps downward or to substitute therefor the light from an auxiliary driving lamp or pair of such lamps subject to the requirement that the tilted head lamps or auxiliary lamp or lamps shall give sufficient illumination under normal atmospheric conditions and on a level road to render clearly discernible a person seventy-five feet ahead, but shall not project a glaring or dazzling light to persons in front of the vehicle: Provided, that at all times required in § 20-129 at least two lights shall be displayed on the front of and on opposite sides of every motor vehicle other than a motorcycle, roadroller, road machine, or farm tractor.

(e) No city or town shall enact an ordinance in conflict with this section. (1937, c. 407, s. 94; 1939, c. 351, s. 1.)

Cross References.—As to failure to dim headlights not cause for suspension or revocation of driver’s license, see § 20-18.

Editor’s Note.—The 1939 amendment inserted in subsection (a) the provision as to controlling lights.

Contributory Negligence.—In an action for damages due to negligence of defendants, where the evidence showed that plaintiffs, on a joint enterprise, driving their car about 2:00 o’clock a.m., at 40 or 45 miles per hour, with lights dimmed so that they could not see ahead over 75 to 100 feet, never applied the brakes and failed to see defendants’ truck until after the collision, crashing into the back of the truck with terrific force, plaintiffs were guilty of contributory negligence which was a proximate cause of the accident, thereby barring their recovery. Pike v. Seymour, 222 N. C. 421, 21 S. E. (2d) 884.

Quoted in Newborn v. Leary, 215 N. C. 134, 1 S. E. (2d) 384.

§ 20-133. Enforcement of provisions.—(a) The commissioner is authorized to designate, furnish instructions to and to supervise official stations for adjusting head lamps and auxiliary driving lamps to conform with the provisions of § 20-129. When head lamps and auxiliary driving lamps have been adjusted in conformity with the instructions issued by the commissioner, a certificate of adjustment shall be issued to the driver of the motor vehicle on forms issued in duplicate by the commissioner and showing date of issue, registration number of the motor vehicle, owner’s name, make of vehicle and official designation of the adjusting station.

(b) The driver of any motor vehicle equipped with approved head lamps, auxiliary driving lamps, rear lamps or signal lamps, who is arrested upon a charge that such lamps are improperly adjusted or are equipped with bulbs of a candle power not approved for use therewith, shall be allowed forty-eight hours within which to bring such lamps into conformance with the requirements of this article. It shall be a defense to any such charge that the person arrested produce in court or submit to the prosecuting attorney a certificate from an official adjusting station showing that within forty-eight hours after such arrest such lamps have been made to conform with the requirements of this article. (1937, c. 407, s. 96.)

§ 20-134. Lights on parked vehicles.—Whenever a vehicle is parked or stopped upon a highway, whether attended or unattended during the times mentioned in § 20-129, there shall be displayed upon such vehicle one or more lamps projecting a white light visible under normal atmospheric conditions from a distance of five hundred feet to the front of such vehicle, and projecting a red light visible under like conditions from a distance of five hundred feet to the rear, except that local authorities may provide by ordinance that no lights need be displayed upon any such vehicle when parked in accordance with local ordinances upon a highway where there is sufficient light to reveal any person within a distance of two hundred feet upon such highway. (1937, c. 407, s. 97.)

It is not necessarily unlawful in all cases to park a vehicle at night on the paved portion of a highway about lights thereon, as an emergency may arise thereby making it impossible to move such vehicle immediately. Pike v. Seymour, 222 N. C. 421, 21 S. E. (2d) 884.

Violation Is Negligence Per Se.—The parking of a truck on a public highway at night without lights in violation of this section is negligence per se, and the question of proximate cause is for the determination of the jury. (This case was decided under the corresponding section of the former law.] Barrier v. Thomas, etc., Co., 205 N. C. 425, 171 S. E. 626.

§ 20-135. Safety glass.—(a) It shall be unlawful to operate knowingly, on any public highway or street in this state, any motor vehicle which is registered in the state of North Carolina and which shall have been manufactured or assembled on or after January first, one thousand nine hundred and thirty-six, unless such motor vehicle be equipped with safety glass wherever glass is used in doors, windows, windshield, wings or partitions; or for a dealer to sell a motor vehicle manufactured or assembled on or after January first, one thousand nine hundred and thirty-six, for operation upon the said highways or streets unless it be so equipped. The provisions of this article shall not apply to any motor vehicle if such motor vehicle shall have been registered previously in another state by the owner while the owner was a bona fide resident of said other state.

(b) The term “safety glass” as used in this article shall be construed as meaning glass so treated or combined with other materials as to reduce, in comparison with ordinary sheet glass or plate glass, the likelihood of injury to persons by glass when the glass is cracked or broken.

(c) The department of motor vehicles shall approve and maintain a list of the approved types of glass, conforming to the specifications and requirements for safety glass as set forth in this article, and in accordance with standards recognized by the United States bureau of standards, and shall not issue a license for or relinquent any motor vehicle subject to the provisions of this article unless such motor vehicle be equipped as herein provided with such approved type of glass.

(d) The owner of any motor vehicle which is operated knowingly or any dealer who sells a motor vehicle in violation of the provisions of this article shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be fined not more than twenty-five dollars or be imprisoned not more than thirty days, or both, in the discretion of the court. (1937, c. 407, s. 98; 1941, c. 36.)

§ 20-136. Smoke screens.—(a) It shall be unlawful for any person or persons to drive, operate, equip or be in the possession of any automobile or other motor vehicle containing, or in any manner provided with, a mechanical machine or device designed, used or capable of being used for the purpose of discharging, creating or causing, in any manner, to be discharged or emitted, either from itself or from the automobile or other motor vehicle to which attached, any unusual amount of smoke, gas or other substance not necessary to the actual propulsion, care andkeep of said vehicle, and the possession by any person or persons of any such device or whether the same be attached to any such motor vehicle, or detached therefrom, shall be prima facie evidence of the guilt of such person or persons of a violation of this section.

(b) Any person or persons violating the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a felony, and upon conviction shall be imprisoned in the state's prison for a period of not less than one year or not more than ten years, in the discretion of the court. (1937, c. 407, s. 99.)

§ 20-137. Unlawful display of emblem or insignia.—It shall be unlawful for any person to display on his motor vehicle, or to allow to be displayed on his motor vehicle, any emblem or insignia of any organization, association, club, lodge, order, or fraternity, unless such person be a member of the organization, association, club, lodge, order, or fraternity, the emblem or insignia of which is so displayed.

Any person violating the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be subject to a fine not exceeding fifty dollars ($50) or imprisonment for a period not exceeding thirty days. (Ex. Sess. 1924, c. 63.)

Editor's Note.—The effect of this act was summarized in 3 N. C. Law Rev. 25.

§ 20-138. Persons under the influence of intoxicating liquor or narcotic drugs.—It shall be unlawful and punishable, as provided in § 20-179, for any person, whether licensed or not, who is a habitual user of narcotic drugs or any person who is under the influence of intoxicating liquor or narcotic drugs, to drive any vehicle upon the highways within this state. (1937, c. 407, s. 101.)

Editor's Note.—Most of the cases cited below were decided under the corresponding provisions of the former law.

Surrounding Circumstances Govern Case.—Driving an automobile with tires which are known to be worn out and slick, on a highway which is wet and slippery, at a rate of speed not ordinarily unlawful, under this section may be unlawful under all the circumstances shown by the evidence. Waller v. Hipp, 206 N. C. 117, 120, 179 S. E. 428.

Care Required in Emergency.—While the operator of a public automobile is obligated to exercise a high degree of care, he is not charged with the necessity of possessing superhuman powers of anticipation or of exercising such powers in a threatened emergency. Love v. Queen City Lines, 206 N. C. 575, 579, 174 S. E. 514.

When Person Guilty of Reckless Driving.—Under this section, a person is guilty of reckless driving (1) if he drives an automobile on a public highway in this state, carelessly and heedlessly, in a willful or wanton disregard of the rights or safety of others, or (2) if he drives an automobile on a public highway in this state without due caution and circumspection and at a speed or in a manner so as to endanger or be likely to endanger any person or property, shall be guilty of reckless driving, and upon conviction shall be punished as provided in § 20-180. (1937, c. 407, s. 102.)

Sufficiency of Evidence for Jury.—The better rule under this and the following section is that except where the evidence is so conclusive that there could be, in the minds of reasonable men, no doubt as to the plaintiff's negligence contributing to the injury, the question should be left to the jury. Morris v. Sells-Floto Circus, 65 F. (2d) 782, 784.

An indictment under this section may be consolidated for trial with an indictment under § 28-217, which prohibits the driver of a motor vehicle from passing a standing school bus on the highway without first bringing said motor vehicle to a complete stop. State v. Webb, 210 N. C. 350, 186 S. E. 241.

An acquittal of reckless driving in the recorder's court will not bar a prosecution of manslaughter in the in the superior court arising out of the same occurrence, the two offenses differing both in grade and kind and not being the same in law or in fact, and the one not being a lesser degree of the other. Karp v. The Recorder, 211 N. C. 159, 199 S. E. 654.

Sufficiency of Evidence for Jury.—Evidence of the individual defendant drove his car in a negligent manner in violation of this and other sections and that such negligence proximately contributed to the plaintiff's injury is held sufficient to have been submitted to the jury. Puckett v. Dyer, 231 N. C. 684, 167 S. E. 43.

The better rule under this and the following section is that except where the evidence is conclusive that there could be, in the minds of reasonable men, no doubt as to the plaintiff's negligence contributing to the injury, the question should be left to the jury. shall not be construed to relieve the plaintiff in any civil action from the burden of proving negligence upon the part of the defendant as the proximate cause of an accident.

(i) Whenever local authorities within their respective jurisdictions determine, upon the basis of an engineering and traffic investigation that the prima facie speed permitted under this article at any intersection is greater than is reasonable or safe under the conditions found to exist at such intersection, such local authority shall determine and declare a reasonable and safe prima facie speed limit thereat, which shall be effective when appropriate signs giving notice thereof are erected at such intersection or upon the approaches thereof.

(g) Local authorities in their respective jurisdictions may, in their discretion, authorize by ordinance higher prima facie speeds than those stated in subsection (b) herein upon through highways or upon highways or portions thereof where there are no intersections or between widely spaced intersections: Provided, signs are erected giving notice of the authorized speed, but local authorities shall not have authority to modify or alter the basic rules set forth in sub-section (a) herein, nor give an event to authorities by ordinance a speed in excess of forty-five miles per hour.

(h) No person shall drive a motor vehicle at such a slow speed as to impede or block the normal and reasonable movement of traffic, except when reduced speed is necessary for safe operation or in compliance with law. Police officers are hereby authorized to enforce this provision by directions to drivers, and in the event of apparent willful disobedience to this provision and refusal to comply with direction of an officer in accordance herewith, the continued slow operation by a driver shall be a misdemeanor.

(i) The state highway and public works commission shall have authority to designate and appropriately mark certain highways of the state as truck routes, even though such a truck route shall at no time exceed a speed limit of twenty miles per hour. Any person violating the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor.

Editor's Note.—The 1939 amendment added item 5 to subsection (b).

The 1941 amendment added the proviso in the third subparagraph of subsection (b).

For comment on the 1941 amendment, see 19 N. C. Law Rev. 452. Most of the cases cited below were decided under the corresponding provisions of the former law.

This section applies to criminal actions only and not to civil actions for damages. Finer v. Richter, 202 N. C. 573, 163 S. E. 561. See Jones v. Charlotte, 183 N. C. 630, 112 S. E. 423.

Regulation of Speed at Night.—The motorist upon a public highway on a dark, misty and foggy night, is required to give timely signals of his approach, and also give timely signals of its intention to withdraw from another car being properly driven on the highway, is sufficient actionable negligence to take the case to the jury; and the fact that this negligence did not actually result in a collision of the two cars, but proximately caused the injury in the reasonable effort of the driver of the plaintiff's car to avoid it, does not vary the application of the rule. Fowler v. Underwood, 193 N. C. 402, 137 S. E. 185.

The words "intersecting highways" include all space made by the junction of frequented streets of a town, though one of the streets enters the other without crossing or going beyond. Manly v. Abernathy, 167 N. C. 220, 83 S. E. 343; Fowler v. Underwood, 193 N. C. 402, 137 S. E. 137.

Application of Speed Limitation upon Privilege of Driving at Maximum Rate.—The speed limit prescribed by statute at which an automobile driver may go at various places, does not alone excuse those who drive within that specified by the statute, and it is likewise required that they use proper care where other conditions require it within the limitations given. Hinton v. Southern R. Co., 172 N. C. 587, 90 S. E. 756.

Same.—Purpose of Regulation.—Statutory regulation of speed at intersections has for its purpose the protection of those who are in, entering, or about to enter, the intersecting highway, Etteridge v. Etheridge, 222 N. C. 616, 50 S. E. (2d) 477.

Application to Approach from Private Drive.—In approaching a highway from a yard the driver of an automobile must have his car under control, and not exceed a speed of ten miles an hour, and also give timely signals of its approach, and in case of his failure to do so causing an accident to another car being properly driven on the highway, is sufficient actionable negligence to take the case to the jury; and the fact that this negligence did not actually result in a collision of the two cars, but proximately caused the injury in the reasonable effort of the driver of the plaintiff's car to avoid it, does not vary the application of the rule. Fowler v. Underwood, 193 N. C. 402, 137 S. E. 155.

Care as to Children.—The law requires more than ordinary care as to children. Moore v. Powell, 205 N. C. 636, 167 N. C. 229, 14 S. E. (2d) 242.

Limitation upon Privilege of Driving at Maximum Rate.—The speed limit prescribed by statute at which an automobile driver may go at various places, does not alone excuse those who drive within that specified by the statute, and it is likewise required that they use proper care where other conditions require it within the limitations given. Hinton v. Southern R. Co., 172 N. C. 587, 90 S. E. 756.

Motorist may not lawfully drive at speed which is not reasonable and prudent under the circumstances notwithstanding the speed is less than limit set by this section. Kolman v. Silbert, 219 N. C. 134, 12 S. E. (2d) 915.

The trial court's instruction correctly defining "residential district" and charging that the lawful speed therein was 25 miles an hour, but that this limitation did not apply to the driver from further increasing his speed if made necessary by special hazards in order to avoid colliding with [837] any person or vehicle, is without error, whether the scene of the accident was in a "residential district" as defined by statute and the conflicting evidence as to the speed of the bus being left to the determination of the court. Reid v. City Coach Co., 215 N. C. 469, 2 S. E. (2d) 578, 123 A. L. R. 140.

The driver of an automobile upon a through highway did not have the right to assume absolutely that a driver approaching the intersection along a servient highway would keep a proper lookout and to keep his car at a reasonable speed under the circumstances in order to avoid injury to life or limb, § 4 of the 1927 act, and the driver of the car along the through highway forfeited his right to rely upon the assumption that the other driver would stop before entering or crossing the intersection when he approached and attempted to traverse it himself at an unlawful or excessive speed, and the driver of the car along the through highway was hold to have failed in his duty to exercise due care to ascertain if the driver of the other car was going to violate the statutory requirement in order to avoid the consequences of such negligence, being necessary to construe the pertinent statutes in pari materia and this result being consonant with such construction. Groome v. Davis, 215 N. C. 530, 2 S. E. (2d) 771.

Violation as Constituting Negligence.—It is negligence per se to drive an automobile upon a public highway at a speed greater than that permitted by statute, and where in an action to recover damages for the negligent killing of plaintiff's intestate, a voluntary passenger in the car thus driven, a motion as of nonsuit upon such evidence is properly denied. Albritton v. Hill, 190 N. C. 429, 130 S. E. 5.

When Negligence Not Imputed to Passenger.—The negligent driving of the owner of the car or his agent is not attributable to a passenger therein who has the authority or the manner in which it was being driven at the time his injury was caused, the subject of his action for damages, nor will the principles of law applicable to those engaged in a common purpose apply from the fact that the injured party and the driver of the car were riding together to the same destination. Albritton v. Hill, 190 N. C. 429, 130 S. E. 5.

Necessity for Criminal Negligence.—Under an indictment which charges a person with operating an automobile; operating a motor vehicle on a public highway while under the influence of intoxicating liquor; and recklessly, and in breach of this section, wherein it was admitted by the defendant that he was driving the automobile; and the jury having returned for their verdict that defendant was guilty of an assault, but not with reckless driving, "the admission and the verdict on the last two counts dispelled the criminal negligence and the criminal intent, and a conviction on the first count will not be sustained. State v. Rawlings, 191 N. C. 265, 131 S. E. 623. See also State v. Rountree, 181 N. C. 535, 106 S. E. 689.

As to evidence establishing negligence per se or substantial, yet it may be sufficient evidence to be submitted to the jury that defendant was exceeding the speed limit, and a charge disallowing it was erroneous. Woods v. Freeman, 213 N. C. 742, 178 S. E. 611; Norfleet v. Hall, 204 N. C. 573, 169 S. E. 143; Exum v. Baumrind, 210 N. C. 650, 188 S. E. 200. An instruction that such speed constitutes negligence per se is reversible error. Latham v. Elizabeth City Orange Crush Bottling Co., 213 N. C. 158, 195 S. E. 372.

As to violation of the statutory restrictions is prima facie evidence that the speed is not reasonable or prudent and it is unlawful, but it does not establish that the speed is unlawful as a matter of law, and is not prima facie proof of proximate cause, and does not make out a prima facie case. See an instruction that such speed constitutes prima facie evidence of negligence, and if the jury should so find they should answer the issue of negligence in the affirmative, is erroneous. Woods v. Freeman, 213 N. C. 742, 178 S. E. 611; Norfleet v. Hall, 204 N. C. 573, 169 S. E. 143.

Evidence of Excessive Speed Is Not Prima Facie Evidence of Proximate Cause.—Speed in excess of twenty miles per hour is only prima facie evidence of negligence which would constitute negligence per se, and where the evidence established that the scene of the accident was not in a residential district, there being no evidence that defendant exceeded the speed limit prescribed for highway travel general under the provisions of the act, no evidence was sufficient to submit to the jury the question of negligence as a matter of law, but only prima facie evidence that the speed was lawful. State v. Webber, 210 N. C. 137, 185 S. E. 659.

Driving Automobile in Excess of Forty-Five Miles Per Hour Is Only Prima Facie Negligence.—The driving of an automobile upon a highway at a speed in excess of forty-five miles per hour is prima facie evidence of negligence, but in order to establish negligence it was necessary to show that the speed was unlawful it would constitute negligence per se, is held not prejudicial under the evidence in this case tending to show special hazards in that defendant was driving into a school zone and wet pavement;" and that driving at a speed in excess of twenty miles per hour is not prima facie evidence of negligence, and if the jury should so find they should answer the issue of negligence in the affirmative, is erroneous. Woods v. Freeman, 213 N. C. 742, 178 S. E. 611; Norfleet v. Hall, 204 N. C. 573, 169 S. E. 143; Exum v. Baumrind, 210 N. C. 650, 188 S. E. 200. An instruction that such speed constitutes negligence per se is reversible error. Latham v. Elizabeth City Orange Crush Bottling Co., 213 N. C. 158, 195 S. E. 372. As to violation of the statutory speed limit as constituting negligence per se, see James v. Carolina Coach Co., 207 N. C. 742, 178 S. E. 607; Norfleet v. Hall, 204 N. C. 573, 169 S. E. 143; Williams v. Woodward, 218 N. C. 305, 10 S. E. (2d) 913. As to violation of statutory speed limit as constituting negligence per se or substantial, yet it may be sufficient evidence to be submitted to the jury that defendant was exceeding the speed limit contrary to the law of the section. Jones v. Bagwell, 207 N. C. 378, 352, 177 S. E. 671; State v. Rountree, 181 N. C. 535, 106 S. E. 689.

An instruction that the jury might find, but were not required to find, that a speed in excess of forty-five miles per hour was negligent was not so prejudicial as to require defendant to object to such finding. York v. York, 212 N. C. 695, 194 S. E. 486.

An instruction that the jury might find, but were not required to find, that a speed in excess of forty-five miles per hour was negligent was sufficient to support the evidence of the accused that the speed was unlawful it would constitute negligence per se, is held not prejudicial under the evidence in this case tending to show special hazards in that defendant was driving into a school zone and wet pavement;" and that driving at a speed in excess of forty-five miles per hour is only prima facie evidence of negligence, and if the jury should so find they should answer the issue of negligence in the affirmative, is erroneous. Woods v. Freeman, 213 N. C. 742, 178 S. E. 611; Norfleet v. Hall, 204 N. C. 573, 169 S. E. 143; Exum v. Baumrind, 210 N. C. 650, 188 S. E. 200. As to evidence establishing negligence per se but not wanton negligence, see Turner v. Lipe, 210 N. C. 627, 188 S. E. 108. See also, Smart v. Rodgers, 217 N. C. 560, 8 S. E. (2d) 312.

Driving Automobile in Excess of Forty-Five Miles Per Hour Is Only Prima Facie Negligence.—The driving of an automobile upon a highway at a speed in excess of forty-five miles per hour is prima facie evidence of negligence which would constitute negligence per se, and where the evidence established that the scene of the accident was not in a residential district, there being no evidence that defendant exceeded the speed limit prescribed for highway travel general under the provisions of the act, no evidence was sufficient to submit to the jury the question of negligence as a matter of law, but only prima facie evidence that the speed was lawful. State v. Webber, 210 N. C. 137, 185 S. E. 659, citing State v. Spencer, 207 N. C. 742, 178 S. E. 607; Norfleet v. Hall, 204 N. C. 573, 169 S. E. 143; Exum v. Baumrind, 210 N. C. 650, 188 S. E. 200. The speed is excessive and unlawful, but such evidence is not prima facie proof of proximate cause, but is merely evidence of one factor, other evidence in making actionable negligence. Templeton v. Kelley, 215 N. C. 277, 2 S. E. 2d (2d) 696.

A violation of subsection (a) would be negligence per se and if injury proximately result therefrom, it would be actionable. Tarrant v. Pepsi-Cola Bottling Co., 221 N. C. 390, 20 S. E. 2d (2d) 565.

Truck with Trailer Attached.—Where the evidence in a prosecution for manslaughter is not conclusive as to whether the driver of the truck had attached thereto a trailer or semitrailer, and all the evidence shows that the defendant was driving the truck between thirty and thirty-five miles per hour, it was held that the evidence is not sufficient to charge the defendant with speeding since the allowable speed was limited to thirty miles per hour. State v. Brooks, 210 N. C. 273, 186 S. E. 2d.

Where it was admitted that when the driver of a truck first saw a cow at a distance of several hundred feet, the truck was then traveling in excess of 30 miles an hour, the limit imposed upon motor vehicles with trailers by this section, it was held that this admission was of significance in determining whether the driver of the truck was negligent in the management of the vehicle in the descent of the hill, if the jury should find, as the witnesses for the plaintiff assert, that the truck was driven to its left side of the road in order to avoid collision with the cow. Jarman v. Philadelphia & Detroit Lines, 131 F. (2d) 728, 729.

The burden is upon the State to prove that a truck has a trailer attached thereto in order to reduce the maximum lawful speed at which such truck might lawfully proceed, the evidence in the case being otherwise insufficient to prove such fact. State v. Brooks, 210 N. C. 273, 186 S. E. 2d.

Warrant Charging No Offense.—A warrant charging merely that defendant operated his automobile at a designated speed in excess of the maximum prescribed by statute and the applicable municipal ordinance, charges no criminal offense, and defendant's motion to dismiss the warrant on these grounds is proper. State v. Earnest, 196 N. C. 378, 177 S. E. 170; Hancock v. Wilson, 211 N. C. 129, 189 S. E. 631; Gaffney v. Phelps, 207 N. C. 553, 178 S. E. 231 (speed in entering intersection).

Railroad warning signals must be obeyed.—Whenever any person driving a vehicle approaches a highway and interurban or steam railway grade crossing, and a clearly visible and positive signal gives warning of the immediate approach of a railway train or car, it shall be unlawful for the driver of the vehicle to fail to bring the vehicle to a complete stop before traversing such grade crossing. (1937, c. 407, s. 104.)

Vehicles must stop at certain railway grade crossings.—The road governing body (whether state or county) is hereby authorized to designate grade crossings of steam or interurban railways by state and county highways, at which vehicles are required to stop, respectively, and such railways are required to post direct signals to notify drivers of vehicles upon any such highway to come to a complete stop before crossing such railway tracks, and whenever any such crossing is so designated and sign-posted it shall be unlawful for the driver of any vehicle to fail to stop within fifty feet, but not closer than ten feet, from such railway tracks before traversing such crossing. No failure so to stop, however, shall be considered contributory negligence per se in any action against the railroad or interurban company for injury to person or property; but the facts relating to such failure to stop may be considered with the other facts in the case in determining whether the plaintiff was guilty of contributory negligence. Provided, that all school trucks and passenger busses be required to come to a complete stop at all railroad crossings. (1937, c. 407, s. 105.)

Editor's Note.—Most of the cases treated below were decided under the corresponding provisions of the earlier law, but should be of assistance in the interpretation of the present section.

Failure to Stop May Be Mixed Question of Law and Fact.—A driver of an automobile is not required by this section under all circumstances to stop before driving upon a railroad grade crossing, and whether he is required to do so under the particular circumstances disclosed by the evidence is ordinarily a mixed question of law and fact to be submitted to the jury upon proper instruction from the court. Keller v. Southern R. Co., 205 N. C. 269, 171 S. E. 73.

Necessity for Section.—Although a railroad is a highway, Hinton v. Southern R. Co., 197 N. C. 135, 147 S. E. 817; Rudd v. Holmes, 198 N. C. 93, 174 S. E. 750, an amendment of the statute (Acts of 1923) was necessary in order to compel the operator of a motor vehicle to bring it to a full stop before crossing or attempting to cross a railroad track. State v. Stalings, 189 N. C. 104, 106, 126 S. E. 187.

Failure to Stop as Negligence Per Se—Contributory Negligence.—The failure of a motorist to stop his automobile at a railroad grade crossing is a grade crossing on a public highway, as directed by this section, "at a distance not exceeding fifty feet from the nearest rail," does not constitute contributory negligence per se in his action against the railroad company to recover damages to his car caused by a collision with a train standing upon the track, and where the evidence tends only to show that the proximate cause of the plaintiff's injury was his own negligence in exceeding the speed he should have used under the circumstances, a judgment as of nonsuit thereon should be entered on defendant's motion therefor properly entered. Weston v. Southern R. Co., 194 N. C. 210, 139 S. E. 237.

The failure of a motorist to come to a full stop before entering upon a railroad crossing as required by statute is not contributory negligence per se, but such failure is a circumstance of which the jury may take account in determining whether there was contributory negligence or whether such evidence is sufficient to show contributory negligence in the case upon the question. White v. North Carolina R. Co., 216 N. C. 79, 139 S. E. 237.

—It shall be unlawful to drive any vehicle upon any public bridge, causeway or viaduct at a speed which is greater than the maximum speed at such place with safety to such structure be maintained thereon, when such structure is sign-posted as provided in this section.

The state highway and public works commission, upon request from any local authorities, shall, or upon its own initiative may conduct an investigation of any public bridge, causeway or viaduct, and if it shall thereupon find that such structure cannot with safety to itself withstand vehicles traveling at the speed otherwise permissible under this article, the commissioner shall determine and declare the maximum speed of vehicles which such structure can withstand, and such speed shall be a maximum speed to be posted and maintained at a distance of one hundred feet beyond each end of such structure. The findings and determination of the commission shall be conclusive evidence of the maximum speed which can with safety to any such structure be maintained thereon. (1937, c. 407, s. 106.)

lie works commission to fix maximum load limits on bridges, see § 136-72.

§ 20-145. When speed limit not applicable. — The speed limitations set forth in this article shall not apply to vehicles when operated with due regard for safety under the direction of the police in the chase or apprehension of violators of the law or of persons charged with or suspected of any such violation, nor to fire department or fire patrol vehicles when traveling in response to a fire alarm, nor to public or private ambulances when traveling in response to emergency calls. This exemption shall, however, not, however, protect the driver of any such vehicle from the consequence of a reckless disregard of the safety of others. (1937, c. 407, s. 107.)

§ 20-146. Drive on right side of highway. — Upon all highways of sufficient width, except upon one-way streets, the driver of a vehicle shall drive the same upon the right half of the highway, and shall drive a slow-moving vehicle as closely as possible to the right-hand edge or curb of such highway, unless it is impracticable to travel on such side of the highway and except when overtaking and passing another vehicle subject to the limitations applicable in overtaking and passing, set forth in §§ 20-149 and 20-150. (1937, c. 407, s. 108.)

Editor's Note.—Most of the cases annotated were decided under the corresponding provisions of the former law. For discussion of the subject matter of statutes similar to this and succeeding sections, see 2 N. C. Law Rev. 178; 5 N. C. Law Rev. 248.

Proximate Cause.—A violation of this section is negligence per se, but such negligence is not actionable unless there is a causal relation between the breach and the injury. Grimes v. Carolina Coach Co., 203 N. C. 605, 608, 166 S. E. 599; See Stovall v. Ragland, 211 N. C. 556, 190 S. E. 409.

Burden on Plaintiff to Establish Negligence. — Where plaintiff's evidence leaves in speculation and conjecture the determinative fact of whether defendant's car was being driven on the wrong side of the highway at the time of the collision, defendant's motion to nonsuit is properly granted, but this burden is not absolute. It may be qualified by the particular circumstances existing at the time. Brown v. Southern Paper Products Co., 222 N. C. 626, 628, 24 S. E. (2d) 344.

§ 20-147. Keep to the right in crossing intersections or railroads. — In crossing an intersection of highways or the intersection of a highway by a railroad right-of-way, the driver of a vehicle that is approaching the intersection or right-of-way shall cause such vehicle to travel on the right half of the highway unless such right side is obstructed or impassable. (1937, c. 407, s. 109.)

§ 20-148. Meeting of vehicles. — Drivers of vehicles proceeding in opposite directions shall pass each other to the right, each giving to the other at least one-half of the main-traveled portion of the roadway as nearly as possible. (1937, c. 407, s. 110.)

Editor's Note.—The cases cited below were decided under the corresponding provisions of the former law.

§ 20-149. Overtaking a vehicle. — (a) The driver of any such vehicle overtaking another vehicle proceeding in the same direction shall pass at least two feet to the left thereof, and shall not again drive to the right side of the highway until safely clear of such overtaken vehicle. (b) The driver of an overtaking motor vehicle not within a business or residence district, as hereinafter in defined, shall give audible warning with his horn or other warning device before passing or attempting to pass a vehicle proceeding in the same direction. (1937, c. 407, § 111.)

Editor's Note.—The cases cited below were decided under the corresponding provisions of the former law.

Purpose of Section.—This section was enacted for the protection of the public upon the roads and highways of the State, and its violation is negligence per se entitling the person injured to his damages when there is a causal connection between the negligent act and the injury complained of. Wolfe v. Independent Coach Line, 198 N. C. 340, 150 S. E. 876.

The violation of this section is negligence and if such negligence was the proximate cause of plaintiff's injuries, the defendant, nothing else appearing, is liable to the plaintiff for this violation. Stovall v. Ragland, 211 N. C. 556, 190 S. E. 409.

Evidence Sufficient to Raise Issue of Last Clear Chance. — Where the evidence tended to show that plaintiff, in avoiding a chicken standing on the hard surface of the highway, drove his automobile gradually to the left, so that the car was traveling in about the center of the highway at the time of the accident in suit, and that the bus was approaching in the same direction and hit plaintiff's car when the bus attempted to pass, it was held that, conceding plaintiff was negligent in driving to the left without giving any signal of intent, if the bus could have driven to the left in time to avoid a collision, but this is not absolute, the issue as to whether defendant's motion to nonsuit was erroneously granted, since the pleadings and evidence are sufficient to raise the issue of the last clear chance upon the evidence tending to establish defendant's negligence in failing to keep a safe distance between the vehicles and in failing to take the precautions and give the signals required by this section for passing cars on the highway. Morris v. Seashore Transp. Co., 198 N. C. 340, 172 S. E. 881.

Quoted in Leary v. Norfolk Southern Bus Corp., 220 N. C. 745, 18 S. E. (2d) 436 (dis. op.).

§ 20-150. Limitations on privilege of overtaking and passing. — (a) The driver of a vehicle shall not drive to the left side of the center of a highway, in overtaking and passing another vehicle proceeding in the same direction, unless such Duty of Passer from Rear.—The driver of an automobile who wishes to pass another ahead of him, must keep his automobile under control, so as to avoid a collision if the other ahead of him suddenly, unexpectedly turns in the wrong direction, or is not aware of his intention to pass, or of the condition of the road makes it unsafe not only to himself, but to those who are driving from the opposite direction. Dreher v. Divine, 192 N. C. 325, 135 S. E. 29.

Same.—Violation as Evidence of Intent to Assail.—Since the intentional driving of a motor vehicle on the wrong side of the road in disregard of the statute is malum prohibitum, not malum in se, the performance of such a unlawful act is evidence of a specific intent to commit an assault. State v. Rawlings, 191 N. C. 265, 267, 131 S. E. 591.

Act Must Have Been Likely to Cause Harm.—One who violated the provisions of this section, not intentionally or recklessly, but merely through a failure to exercise due care thereby proximately caused the death would not be culpably negligent unless in the light of the attendant circumstances his negligent act was likely to result in death or bodily harm. State v. Stansell, 203 N. C. 69, 74, 164 S. E. 590.

Questions for Jury.—Where there was evidence that the plaintiff, desiring to pass a truck on the highway going in the same direction, blew his horn, and that the driver of the truck failed to make a suitable and audible signal, but instead of driving to the right of the center of the highway, kept on his own track and did not pass on the left, drove to the left and stopped or came almost to a stop, that the plaintiff, thinking that the truck was going to stop, and having his vision obstructed, attempted to pass on the right, when the truck suddenly turned to the left, forcing the plaintiff to turn to the right to avoid hitting the truck, causing the plaintiff’s car to run off the embankment on the right of the road, resulting in his being injured in the ensuing suit: Held, the evidence should have been submitted to the jury upon issues of negligence, contributory negligence and damages. Stevens v. Rostan, 196 N. C. 314, 145 S. E. 555.

§ 20-152. Following too closely. — (a) The driver of a motor vehicle shall not follow another vehicle more closely than is reasonable and prudent, with regard for the safety of others and due regard to the speed of such vehicles and the traffic upon and condition of the highway.

(b) The driver of any motor truck, when traveling upon a highway outside of a business or residence district, shall not follow another motor truck within one hundred feet, but this shall not be construed to prevent one motor truck overtaking and passing another. (1937, c. 407, s. 113.)

Editor's Note.—Most of the cases cited below were decided under the corresponding provisions of the former law, and, as such, should be of assistance in the interpretation of the present section.

Degree of Care in Observing Traffic in Rear.—The driver of an auto-truck along a public highway is not held to the same degree of care in observing those who may wish to pass him as coming from the rear, as in front, and is not required to turn to the right for such purpose, unless he is apprised of the one who wishes to pass, by proper signal, of his intention to do so. Dreher v. Divine, 192 N. C. 325, 135 S. E. 29.

Driver Shall Turn to Right.—The driver of an automobile upon the signal of a faster car approaching from the rear, must turn to the right so that the other may pass to his left, when the conditions existing there at the time are reasonably likely to permit the other to pass. Dreher v. Divine, 192 N. C. 325, 135 S. E. 29.

When Question One of Reasonable Prudence.—Where the driver of an automobile violates the statute by turning to the right to avoid a motorcycle traveling in the same direction upon a public road, and collides therewith, and action is brought to recover damages therefor, and the evidence is that the motorcyclist while traveling was unexpectedly turned out in the wrong direction, resulting in the injury, the question of proximate cause depends upon whether the driver of the automobile acted with reasonable prudence under the circumstances, to avoid the injury, or whether the collision was caused by the wrongful and unexpected act of the one on the motorcycle. Cooke v. Jerome, 172 N. C. 566, 90 S. E. 767.
§ 20-154. Signals on starting, stopping or turning.—(a) The driver of any vehicle upon a highway before starting, stopping or turning from a direct line shall first see that such movement can be made in safety, and if any pedestrian may be affected by such movement shall give a clearly audible signal by sounding the horn, and whenever the operation of any other vehicle may be affected by such movement, shall give a signal as required in this section, plainly visible to the driver of such other vehicle, of the intention to make such movement.

(b) The signal herein required shall be given by means of the hand and arm in the manner herein specified, or by any approved mechanical or electrical signal device, except that when a vehicle is so constructed or loaded as to prevent the hand and arm signal from being visible, both to the front and rear, the signal shall be given by a device of a type which has been approved by the department.

Whenever the signal is given the driver shall indicate his intention to start, stop, or turn by extending the hand and arm from and beyond the left side of the vehicle as hereinafter set forth.

Left turn—hand and arm horizontal, forefinger pointing.

Right turn—hand and arm pointed upward.

Stop—hand and arm pointed downward.

In General.—One driving an automobile upon a public highway is required by provision of this section to give specific signals before stopping or turning thereon, and the failure of one so driving to give the signal required by statute is negligence, and when the proximate cause of injury, damages may be recovered therefor by the one injured. Murphy v. Asheville-Knoxville Coach Co., 214 N. C. 314, 199 S. E. 90; Newbern v. Leary, 215 N. C. 134, 1 S. E. (2d) 384.

§ 20-155. Right-of-way.—(a) When two vehicles approach or enter an intersection and/or junction at approximately the same time, the driver of the vehicle on the left shall yield the right-of-way to the vehicle on the right except as otherwise provided in § 20-156.

(b) The driver of a vehicle approaching, but not having entered an intersection and/or junction, shall yield the right-of-way to a vehicle within such intersection and turning therein to the left across the line of travel of such first mentioned vehicle.

(c) The driver of any vehicle upon a highway within a business or residence district shall yield the right-of-way to a pedestrian crossing such highway within any clearly marked crosswalk, or any regular pedestrian crossing included in the prolongation of the lateral boundary lines of the adjacent sidewalk at the end of a block, except at intersections where the movement of traffic is being regulated by traffic officers or traffic direction devices.

Instruction.—Under this section where damages are sought for defendant's negligent driving at a street intersection and there is evidence tending to show that the defendant was approaching the intersection at an unlawful rate of speed, and defendant did not slow down before the happening of the collision with another car; an instruction correctly charging the rule of the road that if one of the cars was already in the intersection it was the duty of the driver of the other car to slow down and permit it to pass will not be held for error. Piner v. Richter, 202 N. C. 573, 163 S. E. 561.

§ 20-156. Exceptions to the right-of-way rule.—(a) The driver of a vehicle entering a public highway from a private road or drive shall yield the right-of-way to all vehicles approaching on such public highway.

(b) The driver of a vehicle upon a highway shall yield the right-of-way to police and fire department vehicles and public and private ambulances when the latter are operated upon official business and the drivers thereof sound audible signal by bell, siren or exhaust whistle.

This provision shall not operate to relieve the driver of a police or fire department vehicle or public or private ambulance from the duty to drive with due regard for the safety of all persons using the highway, nor shall it prohibit the driver of any such [842] vehicle from the consequence of any arbitrary exercise of such right-of-way. (1937, c. 407, s. 118.)

§ 20-157. What to do on approach of police or fire department vehicles. — (a) Upon the approach of any police or fire department vehicle giving audible signal by bell, siren or exhaust whistle, the driver of every other vehicle shall immediately drive the same to a position as near as possible and parallel to the right-hand edge or curb, clear of any intersection of highways, and shall stop and remain in such position unless otherwise directed by a police or traffic officer until the police or fire department vehicle shall have passed.

(b) It shall be unlawful for the driver of any vehicle other than one on official business to follow any fire apparatus traveling in response to a fire alarm closer than one block, or to overtake or park such vehicle within one block where fire apparatus has stopped in answer to a fire alarm.

(1937, c. 407, s. 119.)

§ 20-158. Vehicles must stop at certain through highways.—(a) The State highway and public works commission, with reference to state highways, and local authorities, with reference to highways under their jurisdiction, are hereby authorized to designate main traveled or through highways under their jurisdiction, are hereby authorized to designate main traveled or through highways by erecting at the entrance thereto from intersecting highways signs notifying drivers of vehicles to come to full stop before entering or crossing such designated highway, and whenever any such signs have been so erected it shall be unlawful for the driver of any vehicle to fail to stop in obedience thereto. No failure so to stop, however, shall be considered contributory negligence per se in any action at law for injury to person or property; but the facts relating to such failure to stop may be considered with the other facts in the case in determining whether the plaintiff in such action was guilty of contributory negligence.

(b) This section shall not interfere with the regulations prescribed by towns and cities.

(c) Any person violating the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be fined not more than ten dollars or imprisoned not more than ten days. (1937, c.

407, s. 120; 1941, c. 82.)

Editor's Note.—The 1941 amendment struck out former subsections (b) and (d) and relettered the remaining sub-sections.

For comment on the 1941 amendment, see 19 N. C. Law Rev. 48.

Failure to come to a complete stop before entering a through street intersection is not negligence per se, but only evidence of negligence to be considered with other facts in the case, such holding being a necessary corollary to the provision of this section, that failure to stop before entering a through street intersection should not be considered contributory go negligence per se, but only evidence to be considered with the other facts in the case upon the issue of contributory negligence. Sebastian v. Horton Motor Lines, 213 N. C. 770,

239.

This rule is unaffected by a municipal ordinance making such failure to stop unlawful, since this section prevails over the ordinance. Swinson v. Nance, 219 N. C. 772, 15 S. E.

Negligence of Car Approaching on Through Highway.—

The driver of an automobile upon a through highway did not have the right to assume absolutely that a driver approaching the intersection along a servient highway would obey the stop sign before entering or crossing the through highway. Pearson v. Luther, 212 N. C. 412, 193 S. E. 739.

Proximate Cause Must Be Shown Beyond a Mere Chance.

—Where a conviction of involuntary manslaughter is sought for the failure to observe a positive duty imposed by statutes with reference to the driving of automobiles upon the public highways, the question of proximate cause must be shown beyond a mere chance or casualty. State v. Satterfield, 198 N. C. 682, 153 S. E. 155.

The manifest object of this section is to protect the public by requiring the driver of an automobile upon the public highways of the State to stop and ascertain the circumstances and conditions at highway intersections, particularly with reference to traffic, with a view of determining whether in the exercise of due care he may go upon the intersecting highway with reasonable safety to himself and others, and where the defendant in a prosecution for manslaughter fails to stop, but has knowledge of the conditions and has an unobstructed view of the highway for a long distance, and there is no evidence tending to show that he had violated any other statute or that he was negligent in any other respect, the evidence alone that he had violated the statute in the respect stated is insufficient to take the case to the jury, there being no evidence that the violation of the statute was a proximate cause of the death or in causal relation thereto, and defendant's motion as of nonsuit, made in apt time, should have been granted. State v. Satterfield, 198 N. C. 682, 153

Instruction as to negligence held error since it was counter to the provision of this section. Stephens v. Johnson, 215 N. C.

§ 20-159. Passing street cars.—(a) The driver of a vehicle shall not overtake and pass upon the left any street car proceeding in the same direction, whether actually in motion or temporarily at rest, when a travelable portion of the highway exists to the right of such street car.

(b) The driver of a vehicle overtaking any railway, interurban or street car stopped or about to stop for the purpose of receiving or discharging any passenger, shall bring such vehicle to a full stop not closer than ten feet to the nearest limit of such street car and remain standing until any such passenger has boarded such car or reached the adjacent sidewalk, except that where a safety zone has been established, then a vehicle may be driven past any such railway, interurban or street car at a speed not greater than ten miles per hour and with due caution for the safety of pedestrians.

§ 20-160. Driving through safety zone prohibited.—The driver of a vehicle shall not at any time drive through or over a safety zone as defined in part one of this article. (1937, c. 407, s. 123.)

CROSS REFERENCE.—As to definition of safety zone, see § 20-38, subsec. (2).

§ 20-161. Stopping on highway.—(a) No person shall park or leave standing any vehicle, whether attended or unattended, upon the paved or improved or main traveled portion of any highway, outside of a business or residence district, when it is practicable to park or leave such vehicle standing off of the paved or improved or main traveled portion of such highway: Provided, in no event shall any person park or leave standing any vehicle, whether attended or unattended, upon any highway unless a clear and unobstructed width of not less than fifteen feet upon the main traveled portion of said highway opposite such standing vehicle be left for free passage of other vehicles thereon, nor unless a clear view of such vehicle may be obtained from a distance of two hundred feet in both directions upon such highway: Provided further, that in no event shall any person park or leave standing any vehicle, whether attended or unattended, upon any highway unless it is impossible to avoid stopping temporarily and leaving such vehicle upon the highways.

(b) Whenever any peace officer shall find a vehicle standing upon a highway in violation of the provisions of this section, he is hereby authorized to move such vehicle or require the driver or person in charge of such vehicle to move such vehicle to a position permitted under this section.

(c) The provisions of this section shall not apply to the driver of any vehicle which is disabled while so parked or improved or main traveled portion of a highway in such manner and to such extent that it is impossible to avoid stopping temporarily and leaving such vehicle in such position. (1937, c. 407, s. 123.)

The word "park" means the permitting of such vehicles to remain standing on a public highway or street, while not in use. State v. Carter, 205 N. C. 761, 763, 172 S. E. 416.

To "park" means something more than a mere temporary or momentary stoppage on the road for a necessary purpose. Stailings v. Buchanan Transport Co., 210 N. C. 201, 203, 185 S. E. 643.

Thus where the driver of a truck with a trailer stopped on the highway at night on the right-hand side, with lights burning, because two automobiles in front of him were interlocked in a wreck, and at the time of the collision the truck and trailer had been standing still only a fraction of a minute, and it remained parked for about five minutes thereafter, it was held that at the time of the collision the truck was not parked on the highway within the meaning of this section, and the length of time it remained after the collision is immaterial to plaintiff's right to recover; substantial evidence of the defendant's affirmative answer upon the issue of contributory negligence, and the question of contributory negligence in failing to see the parked car under the circumstances in time to have avoided the collision is also properly submitted to the jury. Lambert v. Caronna, 206 N. C. 616, 175 S. E. 303.

Exception in Subsection (c) Is Question for Jury.—Where there is evidence tending to show that the defendant had parked his truck upon the hard surface of a highway in violation of this section, resulting in injury to the plaintiff, and where the defendant claims that under the facts it came within the exception, subsection (c), where the defendant's only evidence in excuse of parking was that he had a flat tire, such evidence being insufficient to bring defendant within the exception. Smithwick v. Colonial Pine Co., 200 N. C. 519, 157 S. E. 612.

Exception Disclosed in Case Where Truck was Parked on Shoulder of Highway.—See State v. McDonald, 211 N. C. 672, 676, 191 S. E. 733.

Evidence Disclosing Contributory Negligence of Plaintiff.—Contributory negligence of defendant in parking the car on the hard surface in violation of this section, the evidence discloses contributory negligence of plaintiff as a matter of law in attempting to pass the parked car without first ascertaining that he could pass the car in safety. McNair v. Kilmer & Co., 210 N. C. 65, 185 S. E. 481.

Cited in White v. Chappell, 219 N. C. 652, 14 S. E. (2d) 943 (dis. op.).

§ 20-162. Parking in front of fire hydrant, fire station or private driveway.—No person shall park a vehicle or permit it to stand, whether attended or unattended, upon a highway in front of a private driveway or within fifteen feet in either direction of a fire station or a fire hydrant, fire station, or within twenty-five feet from the intersection of curb lines or if none, then within fifteen feet of the intersection of property lines at an intersection of highways; provided, that local authorities may by ordinance decrease the distance within which a vehicle may park in either direction of a fire hydrant. (1937, c. 407, s. 124; 1939, c. 111.)

§ 20-163. Motor vehicle left unattended; brakes to be set and engine stopped.—No person having control or charge of a motor vehicle shall allow such vehicle to stand on any highway unattended without first effectively setting the brakes
§ 20-164. Driving on mountain highways.—
The driver of a motor vehicle traversing defiles, canyons or mountain highways shall hold such motor vehicle under control and as near the right-hand side of the highway as reasonably possible, and upon approaching any curve where the view is obstructed within a distance of two hundred feet along the highway, shall give audible warning with a horn or other warning device. (1937, c. 407, s. 126.)

§ 20-165. Coasting prohibited.—The driver of a motor vehicle when traveling upon a down grade upon any highway shall not coast with the gears of such vehicle in neutral. (1937, c. 407, s. 127.)

The violation of this section is negligence per se, and, if injury to the violator proximately result therefrom, it would bar his right to recover therefor. Dillon v. Winston-Salem, 221 N. C. 512, 519, 20 S. E. (2d) 845.

§ 20-166. Duty to stop in event of accident.—(a) The driver of any vehicle involved in an accident resulting in injury or death to any person shall immediately stop such vehicle at the scene of such accident, and any person violating this provision shall upon conviction be punished as provided in § 20-182.

(b) The driver of any vehicle involved in an accident resulting in damage to property and in which there is not involved injury or death of any person, shall immediately stop such vehicle at the scene of the accident, and any person violating this provision shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and fined or imprisoned, or both, in the discretion of the court.

(c) The driver of any vehicle involved in an accident resulting in injury or death to any person or damage to property shall also give his name, address, operator's or chauffeur's license number and the registration number of his vehicle to the person struck or the driver or occupants of any vehicle collided with, and shall render to any person injured in such accident reasonable assistance, including the carrying of such person to a physician or surgeon for medical or surgical treatment if it is apparent that such treatment is necessary or is requested by the injured person, and it shall be unlawful for any person to violate this provision, and such violator shall be punishable as provided in § 20-182.

(d) The driver of any vehicle involved in an accident resulting in injuries or death to any person, or property damage to an apparent extent of twenty-five dollars ($25.00) or more, shall, within twenty-four hours, file or cause to be filed a report of such accident with the department, except that when such accident occurs within a city such report shall be made within twenty-four hours to the police department of such city. Every police department shall forward on the fifth day of each month every such report received during the previous calendar month, or a copy thereof, so filed with it to the main office of the department. All accident reports shall be made on forms approved with it to the main office of the department. All accident reports shall be made on forms approved by the department. With respect to any such accident involving a collision between a common carrier and another vehicle, such common carrier shall also make a report of the accident to the department, such report to be filed on or before the tenth day of the month following the accident.

(e) Where a person required to report an accident by the preceding subsection is physically incapable of making such report, and there is another occupant in the vehicle at the time of the accident, such occupant shall make the report.

The department may require drivers, or common carriers involved in accidents, to file supplemental reports, and may require witnesses of accidents to render reports to it upon forms furnished by it whenever the original report is insufficient in the opinion of the department between any conflict.

All accident reports together with all supplemental reports above mentioned shall be without prejudice and shall be for the use of the department, and shall not be used in any manner whatsoever as evidence, or for any other purpose in any trial, civil or criminal, arising out of such accident: Provided, however, that all reports made by state, city or county police shall be subject to inspection by members of the general public at all reasonable times. The department shall be required to furnish, upon demand of any court, a properly executed certificate stating that a specific accident report has or has not been filed with the department solely to prove a compliance with this section.

(f) The department shall prepare and shall upon request supply to police, coroners, sheriffs and other suitable agencies, or individuals, forms for accident reports calling for sufficiently detailed information to disclose with reference to a highway accident the cause, conditions then existing, and the persons and vehicles involved.

The department shall receive accident reports required to be made by this section and may tabulate and analyze such reports and publish annually, or at more frequent intervals, statistical information based thereon as to the number, cause and location of highway accidents.

Based upon its findings after such analysis, the department may conduct further necessary detailed research to more fully determine the causes and control of highway accidents. It may further conduct experimental field tests within areas of the state from time to time to prove the practicability of various ideas advanced in traffic control and accident prevention.

(g) Every person holding the office of coroner in this state shall, on the tenth day of each month, report to the department the death of any person during the preceding calendar month as the result of an accident involving a motor vehicle and the circumstances of such accident. (1937, c. 407, s. 128; 1939, c. 10, ss. 1, 12; 1943, c. 439.)

Editor's Note.—The 1939 amendatory act clarified inconsistencies between this section and § 20-182. See 17 N. C. Law Rev. 349.

The 1943 amendment increased the amount named in line four of subsection (d) from ten dollars to twenty-five dollars.

§ 20-181. Evidence sufficient for jury.—Where all the evidence tended to show that the car of the prosecuting witness was struck by a car which was traveling at the time of the accident with its left wheels over the center line of the highway, that an occupant in the car of the prosecuting witness was injured, and that the car which collided with her car failed to stop after the collision, in violation of this section, and the state's circumstantial evidence, including marks on the highway leading uninterruptedly from the point of collision to a car parked at defendant's place of business, which defendant admitted to be his, the condition of defendant's car, a hub cap and other automobile parts found at the scene of the collision which were missing from defendant's car, and other circumstances tending to show efforts on the part of defendant to conceal the identity of his car as the one involved in the collision, together with testimony by defendant that no one else had driven his car on the evening in question, it was held sufficient to have been submitted to the jury on the question of defendant's guilt, and his motions for judgment as of nonsuit were held properly refused. State v. King, 219 N. C. 667, 14 S. E. (2d) 803.

Instruction.—In a prosecution for "hit and run driving" an instruction that defendant was charged with the violation of one of the motor vehicle statutes designed for the protection of life and property, cannot be held for error, the statement being related to any fact in issue or any evidence introduced in the case, and containing no inference as to the guilt or innocence of defendant, further appearing that the court correctly charged upon the presumption of innocence and the burden of proof. State v. King, 219 N. C. 667, 14 S. E. (2d) 803.

§ 20-167. Vehicles transporting explosives.—Any person operating any vehicle transporting any explosive as a cargo or part of a cargo upon a highway shall at all times comply with the provisions of this section.

(a) Said vehicle shall be marked or placarded on each side and the rear with the word "Explosives" in letters not less than eight inches high, or there shall be displayed on the rear of such vehicle a red flag not less than twenty-four inches square marked with the word "Danger" in white letters six inches high.

(b) Every said vehicle shall be equipped with not less than two fire extinguishers, filled and ready for immediate use, and placed at a convenient point on the vehicle so used.

(c) The commissioner is hereby authorized and directed to promulgate such additional regulations governing the transportation of explosives and other dangerous articles by vehicles upon the highways as he shall deem advisable for the protection of the public. (1937, c. 407, s. 129.)

Cross Reference.—As to provision that vehicles transporting motor fuels shall be labelled, see § 119-41.

§ 20-168. Drivers of state, county and city vehicles subject to provisions of this article.—The provisions of this article applicable to the drivers of vehicles upon the highways shall apply to the drivers of all vehicles owned or operated by this state or any political subdivisions thereof, or of any city, town or district, except persons, teams, motor vehicles and other equipment while actually engaged in work on the surface of the road, but not when traveling to or from such work. (1937, c. 407, s. 130.)

§ 20-169. Powers of local authorities.—Local authorities, except as expressly authorized by § 20-141, subsection (g) and § 20-158, shall have no power or authority to alter any speed limitations declared in this article or to enact or enforce any rule or regulations contrary to the provisions of this article, except that local authorities shall have power to provide by ordinances for the regulation of traffic by means of traffic signs or other signaling devices on any portion of the highway where traffic is heavy or continuous and may prohibit other than one-way traffic upon certain highways, and may regulate the use of the highways by processions or assembles and except that local authorities shall have the power to regulate the speed of vehicles on highways in public parks, but signs shall be erected giving notices of such special limits and regulations. (1937, c. 407, s. 131.)

For application of former statute prohibiting ordinance in conflict, see State v. Freshwater, 183 N. C. 763, 111 S. E. 161.

§ 20-170. This article not to interfere with rights of owners of real property with reference thereto.—Nothing in this article shall be construed to prevent the owner of real property used by the public for purposes of vehicular travel by permission of the owner, and not as matter of right from prohibiting such use nor from requiring other or different or additional conditions than those specified in this article or otherwise regulating such use as may seem best to such owner. (1937, c. 407, s. 132.)

§ 20-171. Traffic laws apply to persons riding animals or driving animal-drawn vehicles.—Every person riding an animal or driving any animal drawing a vehicle upon a highway shall be subject to the provisions of this article applicable to the driver of a vehicle, except those provisions of the article which by their nature can have no application. (1939, c. 275.)

§ 20-172. Pedestrians subject to traffic control signals.—Pedestrians shall be subject to traffic control signals at intersections as heretofore declared in this article, but at all other places pedestrians shall be accorded the privileges and shall be subject to the restrictions stated in part eleven of this article. (1937, c. 407, s. 133.)

Duty to Charge Sections in Civil Actions.—It is the duty of the court to charge the duty of drivers to pedestrians, imposed by this and the following sections, in an action for damages for their violation and this error is not cured by a general charge as to the use of necessary prudence, and is reversible even in the absence of a prayer for more specific instructions. Bowen v. Schnibben, 184 N. C. 248, 114 S. E. 179.

§ 20-173. Pedestrians' right-of-way at crosswalks.—(a) Where traffic control signals are not in place or in operation the driver of a vehicle shall yield the right-of-way, slowing down or stopping if need be to so yield, to a pedestrian crossing the roadway within any marked crosswalk or within any unmarked crosswalk at an intersection, except as otherwise provided in part eleven of this article.

(b) Whenever any vehicle is stopped at a marked crosswalk or at any unmarked crosswalk at an intersection to permit a pedestrian to cross the roadway, the driver of any other vehicle approaching from the rear shall not overtake and pass such stopped vehicle. (1937, c. 407, s. 134.)

§ 20-174. Crossing at other than cross-walks.—(a) Every pedestrian crossing a roadway at any point other than within a marked crosswalk or within an unmarked crosswalk at an intersection shall yield the right-of-way to all vehicles upon the roadway.

(b) Any pedestrian crossing a roadway at a point where a pedestrian tunnel or overhead pedes-
A crossing between adjacent intersections at which traffic control signals are in operation. It is unlawful for a pedestrian to cross the streets between intersections at which traffic control signals are in operation. Where the evidence failed to sustain plaintiff's allegation that his intestate was walking along the edge of the highway on his left hand side at the place provided by law and was struck by a board projecting from defendants' truck, defendant's motion to nonsuit was properly allowed for failure to establish contributory negligence proximately causing the fatal injury. Pack v. Auman, 220 N. C. 704, 18 S. E. 2d (1943) 297.

§ 20-157. Penalty for bad check.—When any person, firm, or corporation shall tender any uncashed check for payment of any tax or fees found to be due by him under the provisions of this article, and such check shall have been returned to the commissioner unpaid on account of insufficient funds of the drawer of said check in the amount thereof and it is due, such person shall pay an additional tax shall be imposed equal to ten per cent of the fees due, and in no case shall the increase of said tax, because of said failure, be less than one dollar ($1.00), and the said additional tax shall not be waived or diminished by the commissioner. (1937, c. 407, s. 138.)

§ 20-178. Penalty for bad check.—When any person, firm, or corporation shall tender any uncashed check for payment of any tax or fees found to be due by him under the provisions of this article, and such check shall have been returned to the commissioner unpaid on account of insufficient funds of the drawer of said check in the amount thereof and it is due, such person shall pay an additional tax shall be imposed equal to ten per cent of the fees due, and in no case shall the increase of said tax, because of said failure, be less than one dollar ($1.00), and the said additional tax shall not be waived or diminished by the commissioner. (1937, c. 407, s. 138.)

§ 20-179. Penalty for bad check.—When any person, firm, or corporation shall tender any uncashed check for payment of any tax or fees found to be due by him under the provisions of this article, and such check shall have been returned to the commissioner unpaid on account of insufficient funds of the drawer of said check in the amount thereof and it is due, such person shall pay an additional tax shall be imposed equal to ten per cent of the fees due, and in no case shall the increase of said tax, because of said failure, be less than one dollar ($1.00), and the said additional tax shall not be waived or diminished by the commissioner. (1937, c. 407, s. 138.) than one year, or by fine of not less than fifty dollars ($50.00) nor more than one thousand dollars ($1,000.00), or by both such fine and imprisonment. On a second or subsequent conviction for the same offense he shall be punished by imprisonment for not more than two years or fined not more than one thousand dollars: ($1,000.00), or by both fine and imprisonment, in the discretion of the court. (1937, c. 407, s. 140.)

Cross Reference.—As to mandatory revocation of license for driving under influence of liquor or drugs, see § 20-17, paragraph 2.

Sentence Not Excessive.—A sentence to the county jail for a term of six months, and to be assigned to work on the public roads, upon defendant's plea of nolo contendere to a warrant charging him with the operation of an automobile upon the public highways while under the influence of intoxicating liquor, is not excessive. State v. Parker, 220 N. C. 416, 17 S. E. 475.

§ 20-180. Penalty for reckless driving.—Every person convicted of reckless driving under section 20-140 shall be punished by imprisonment in the county or municipal jail for a period of not more than six months, or by fine of not more than five hundred dollars ($500.00), or by both such fine and imprisonment, and on a second or subsequent conviction of such offense shall be punished by imprisonment for not more than one year or by a fine of not less than fifty dollars nor more than one thousand dollars ($1,000.00), or by both such fine and imprisonment. (1937, c. 407, s. 141.)

Cross Reference.—As to revocation of license for 2 convictions on reckless driving charges, see § 20-17, paragraph 6.

Penalty Not Excessive.—Upon conviction of reckless driving, sentence of defendant to six months in the county jail to be assigned to work the roads under the direction of the state highway and public works commission is within the limitations prescribed by this section and therefore cannot be held excessive. State v. Wilson, 218 N. C. 769, 12 S. E. (2d) 654.

§ 20-181. Penalty for failure to dim, etc., beams of headlamps.—Any person operating a motor vehicle on the highways of this state, who shall fail to shift, depress, deflect, tilt or dim the beams of the head lamps thereon whenever another vehicle is met on such highways shall, upon conviction thereof, be fined not more than ten ($10.00) dollars or imprisoned for not more than ten (10) days. (1939, c. 351, s. 3.)

Cross Reference.—As to conviction not being ground for revocation of operator's or chauffeur's license, see § 20-18.

§ 20-182. Penalty for failure to stop in event of accident involving injury or death to a person.—Every person convicted of wilfully violating § 20-166, relative to the duties to stop in the event of accidents, except as otherwise provided, involving injury or death to a person, shall be punished by imprisonment for not less than one nor more than five years, or in the state prison for not less than one nor more than five years, or by fine of not less than five hundred dollars or by both such fine and imprisonment. The commissioner shall revoke the operator's or chauffeur's license of the person so convicted. In no case shall the court have power to suspend judgment upon payment of costs. (1937, c. 407, s. 142.)

Cross Reference.—As to mandatory revocation of license in event of failure to stop and render aid in case of accident, see § 30-17, paragraph 4.

§ 20-183. Duties and powers of law enforcement officers.—It shall be the duty of the law enforcement officers of the state and of each county, city, or other municipality to see that the provisions of this article are enforced within their respective jurisdictions, and any such officer shall have the power to arrest on sight or upon warrant any person found violating the provisions of this article. Such officers within their respective jurisdictions shall have the power to stop any motor vehicle upon the highways of the state for the purpose of determining, whether the same is being operated in violation of any of the provisions of this article. (1937, c. 407, s. 143.)

Art. 4. State Highway Patrol.

§ 20-184. Patrol under supervision of department of motor vehicles.—The commissioner of motor vehicles, under the direction of the governor, shall have supervision, direction and control of the state highway patrol. The commissioner shall establish in the department of motor vehicles a division of highway safety and patrol, prescribe regulations governing said division, and assign to the division such duties as he may deem proper. (1935, c. 324, s. 2; 1939, c. 387, s. 1; 1941, c. 36.)

§ 20-185. Personnel; appointment; salaries.—The state highway patrol shall consist of one person to be designated as major, and such additional subordinate officers and men as the commissioner of motor vehicles, with the approval of the governor and advisory budget commission, shall direct. Members of the state highway patrol shall be appointed by the commissioner with the approval of the governor, and shall serve at the pleasure of the governor and commissioner. The major, other officers, and members of the state highway patrol shall be paid such salaries as may be established by the division of personnel of the budget bureau. (1929, c. 218, s. 2; 1931, c. 381; 1935, c. 324, s. 1; 1937, c. 313, s. 1; 1941, c. 36.)

§ 20-186. Oath of office; bond.—Each member of the highway patrol shall subscribe and file with the commissioner of motor vehicles an oath of office for the faithful performance of his duties, and shall give a bond with good surety payable to the state of North Carolina in a sum not less than one thousand dollars ($1000.00) and not more than two thousand five hundred dollars ($2500.00) to be fixed by the commissioner of motor vehicles, conditioned as well for the faithful discharge of his duty as patrolman as for his diligently endeavoring to collect faithfully and pay over all sums of money received. The bond shall be duly approved and filed in the office of the insurance commissioner, and copies of the bond certified by the insurance commissioner shall be received and read in evidence in all actions and proceedings where the original might be. (1929, c. 218, s. 2; 1937, c. 339, s. 1; 1941, c. 36.)

§ 20-187. Orders and rules for organization and conduct.—The commissioner of motor vehicles is authorized and empowered to make all necessary orders, rules and regulations for the organization, assignment, and conduct of the members of the state highway patrol. Such orders, rules and regulations shall be subject to the approval of the § 20-188. Duties of highway patrol.—The state highway patrol shall be subject to such orders, rules and regulations as may be adopted by the commissioner of motor vehicles, with the approval of the governor, and shall regularly patrol the highways of the state and enforce all laws and regulations respecting travel and the use of vehicles upon the highways of the state and all laws for the protection of the highways of the state. To this end, the members of the patrol are given the power and authority of peace officers for the service of any warrant or other process issuing from any of the courts of the state having criminal jurisdiction, and are likewise authorized to arrest without warrant any person who, in the presence of said officers, is engaged in the violation of any of the laws of the state regulating travel and the use of vehicles with respect to the protection of the highways, and they shall have jurisdiction anywhere within the state, irrespective of county lines.

The state highway patrol shall have full power and authority to perform such additional duties as peace officers as may from time to time be directed by the governor, and such officers may at any time and without special authority, either upon their own motion or at the request of any sheriff or local police authority, arrest persons accused of highway robbery, bank robbery, murder, or other crimes of violence.

The state highway patrol shall be required to perform such other and additional duties as may be required of it by the commissioner of motor vehicles in connection with the work of the department of motor vehicles, and such other and additional duties as may be required of it from time to time by the governor. (1929, c. 218, s. 4; 1933, c. 214, ss. 1, 2; 1935, c. 324, s. 3; 1939, c. 837, s. 2; 1941, c. 36.)

§ 20-189. Patrolman assigned to governor's office.—The commissioner of motor vehicles, at the request of the governor, shall assign and attach one member of the state highway patrol to the office of the governor, there to be assigned such services as the governor may direct. The salary of the state highway patrolman so assigned to the office of the governor shall be paid from appropriations made to the office of the governor and shall be fixed in an amount to be determined by the governor and the advisory budget commission. (1941, cc. 23, 36.)

§ 20-190. Uniforms; furnishing motor vehicles.—The department of motor vehicles shall adopt some distinguishing uniform for the members of said state highway patrol, and furnish each member of the patrol with an adequate number of said uniforms and each member of said patrol force when on duty shall be dressed in said uniform. The department of motor vehicles shall likewise furnish each member of the patrol with a suitable motor vehicle, and necessary arms, and provide for all reasonable expense incurred by said patrol while on duty. (1929, c. 218, s. 5; 1941, c. 36.)

§ 20-191. Establishment of district headquarters.—The department of motor vehicles shall supply at its various district offices, or at some other point within the district if it shall be deemed advisable, suitable district headquarters, and the necessary clerical assistance for the major of the force at his headquarters in Raleigh and at the several district headquarters. (1929, c. 218, s. 6; 1937, c. 313, s. 1; 1941, c. 36.)

§ 20-192. Shifting of patrolmen from one district to another.—The major of the state highway patrol under such rules and regulations as the department of motor vehicles may prescribe shall have authority from time to time to shift the forces from one district to another, or to consolidate one or more than one district force at any point for special purposes. (1929, c. 218, s. 7; 1937, c. 313, s. 1; 1941, c. 36.)

§ 20-193. Fees for service of process by patrolmen to revert to county.—All fees for arrests or service of process that may be taxed in the bill of costs for the various courts of the state on account of the official acts of the members of the state highway patrol shall be remitted to the general fund in the county in which the said cost is taxed. (1929, c. 218, s. 8.)

§ 20-194. Expense of administration. — All expenses incurred in carrying out the provisions of this article shall be paid out of the maintenance funds of the state highway and public works commission. (1929, c. 218, s. 9; 1941, c. 36.)

§ 20-195. Co-operation between patrol and local officers.—The commissioner of motor vehicles with the approval of the governor, through the division of highway safety and patrol, shall encourage the co-operation between the highway patrol and the several municipal and county peace officers of the state for the enforcement of all traffic laws and the proper administration of the Uniform Drivers' License Law, and arrangements for compensation of special services rendered by such local officers out of the funds allotted to the division of highway safety and patrol may be made, subject to the approval of the director of the budget. (1935, c. 324, s. 5; 1939, c. 837, s. 3; 1941, c. 36.)

Editor's Note.—The 1939 amendment inserted the words "with the approval of the governor" in the second and third lines.

§ 20-196. State-wide radio system authorized; use of telephone lines in emergencies.—The commissioner of motor vehicles, through the division of highway safety and patrol is hereby authorized and directed to set up and maintain a state-wide radio system, with adequate broadcasting stations so situate as to make the service available to all parts of the state for the purpose of maintaining radio contact with the members of the state highway patrol and other officers of the state, to the end that the traffic laws upon the highways may be more adequately enforced and that the criminal use of the highways may be prevented.

If the director of the budget shall find that the appropriation provided for in the department is not adequate to take care of the entire cost of the radio service herein provided for, after providing for the administration of other provisions of this law, the state highway and public works commission, upon the order of the director of the budget approved by the advisory budget commission, shall make available such additional sum as the said budget commission may find to be necessary to make the installation and operation of such radio service possible; and the sum so provided by the state highway and public works commission shall constitute a valid charge against the appropriation item of betterments for state and county roads.

The commissioner of motor vehicles is likewise authorized and empowered to arrange with the various telephone companies of the state for the use of their lines for emergency calls by the members of the state highway patrol, if it shall be found practicable to arrange apparatus for temporary contact with said telephone circuits along the highways of the state.

In order to make this service more generally useful, the various boards of county commissioners and the governing boards of the various cities and towns are hereby authorized and empowered to provide radio receiving sets in the offices and vehicles of their various officers, and such expenditures are declared to be a legal expenditure of any funds that may be available for police protection. (1931, c. 324, s. 6; 1941, c. 36.)

Art. 5. Enforcement of Collection of Judgments against Irresponsible Drivers of Motor Vehicles.

§ 20-197. Certain words defined.—The following words, as used in this article, shall have the following meanings:

(a) The singular shall include the plural; the masculine shall include the feminine and neuter, as requisite.

(b) “Person” shall include individuals, partnerships, corporations, receivers, referees, trustees, executors and administrators; and shall also include the owner of any motor vehicle as requisite; but shall not include the State or any political subdivisions thereof.

(c) “Motor Vehicle” shall include trailers, motorcycles and tractors. (1931, c. 116, s. 13.)

§ 20-198. Suspension of driver’s license and registration certificates for failure to pay tort judgment. — In the event of the failure of any person, firm or corporation, to satisfy any judgment which shall have hereafter become final, by expiration, without appeal, of the time within which appeal might have been perfected, or by final affirmance, on appeal, rendered against him, by a court of competent jurisdiction in this State, within thirty days thereafter for damages on account of personal injuries, or deaths, or damage to property in excess of one hundred dollars ($100.00) resulting from the ownership, maintenance, use or operation thereof of a motor vehicle, the said operator’s license and all of the registration certificates of the said person, firm or corporation shall be forthwith suspended by the commissioner of motor vehicles of North Carolina, upon receiving a certified copy or transcript of such final judgment, from the court in which the same was rendered, showing such judgment or judgments to have been still unsatisfied more than thirty days after the same became final, as aforesaid, and shall remain so suspended and shall not be renewed, nor shall any motor vehicle be thereafter registered in the name of the said person, firm or corporation while any such judgment remains unsatisfied, unsatisfied and subsisting and until every such judgment is satisfied or discharged, or until the said person gives proof of his ability to respond in damages, as hereinafter required, for future accidents. It shall be the duty of the Clerk of the Superior Court in any county in which any such judgment is rendered, to forward immediately after the expiration of said thirty days, as aforesaid, to the Commissioner of motor vehicles, a certified copy of such judgment or a transcript thereof as aforesaid. (1931, c. 116, s. 1; 1941, c. 36.)

Editor’s Note.—See 13 N. C. Law Rev. 223.

This article is patterned after the Safety Responsibility Act sponsored by the American Automobile Association. One important point of difference is that under this article the license may be renewed either by paying the judgment or establishing financial responsibility for future accidents, while the American Automobile Association Act uses the conjunctive “and” instead of “or”. See 9 N. C. Law Rev. 384 et seq.

§ 20-199. Proof of ability to respond in damages; surety bond; withdrawal of license to operate automobile.—The proof of the ability of any person, firm or corporation to respond in damages for any liability incurred may be established by the execution of a bond of a surety company, duly authorized to transact business within this State or a bond, with at least two individual sureties, each owning real estate within this State, which real estate shall be scheduled in the bond and which bond shall be approved by a Clerk of the Superior Court. The said bond to be conditioned for any liability thereafter incurred resulting from the ownership, maintenance, use or operation thereof of a motor vehicle for personal injury to and the death of any one person in the amount of at least five thousand dollars ($5,000.00) and, subject to the aforesaid limit for any one person injured or killed, of at least ten thousand dollars ($10,000.00) for personal injury to or the death of two or more persons in any one accident, and for damage to property in the amount of at least one thousand dollars ($1,000.00) resulting from any one accident. Additional evidence of ability to respond in damages, as required by this article, shall be furnished the commissioner of motor vehicles at any time upon his demand.

Provided, however, anything in this article to the contrary notwithstanding, that

(1) When five thousand dollars ($5,000.00) has been credited upon any judgment or judgments rendered in excess of that amount for personal injury to or the death of one person as the result of any one accident; or

(2) When, subject to the limit of five thousand dollars ($5,000.00) for any one person so injured or killed, the sum of ten thousand dollars ($10,000.00) has been credited upon any judgment or judgments rendered in excess of that amount for personal injury to or the death of more than one person as the result of any one accident; or

(3) When one thousand dollars ($1,000.00) has been credited upon any judgment or judgments rendered in excess of that amount for damage to property as the result of any one accident; resulting from the ownership, maintenance, use or operation of a motor vehicle, then and in such event, such payment or payments shall be deemed a satisfaction of such judgment or judgments for the purpose of this article only.
If any such motor vehicle owner or operator shall not be a resident of this State, the privilege of operating any motor vehicle in this State and the privilege of operation within the State of any motor vehicle owned by him shall be withdrawn while any final judgment against him as aforesaid, shall be unstayed, unsatisfied and subsisting for more than thirty (30) days, as aforesaid, and shall not be renewed, nor shall any operator’s or chauffeur’s license be issued to him or any motor vehicle registered in his name until every such judgment shall be stayed, satisfied or discharged as herein provided, and until such person shall have given proof of his ability to respond in damages for future accidents. (1931, c. 116, s. 2; 1941, c. 36.)

Editor’s Note.—The discrimination against non-residents provided for in the last paragraph of this section presents a constitutional problem which will undoubtedly come before the courts, but much authority would sustain it. See La Tourette v. McMaster, 248 U. S. 465, 39 S. Ct. 252, 63 L. Ed. 362, upholding discrimination between residents and non-residents in granting licenses to act as insurance brokers. The practical difficulty is to understand what the non-resident would be doing with a North Carolina automobile license unless he sojourned in the State: Provided, however, that the provisions of this section shall be operative as to such insurance carriers (organized and existing under the laws of such State and not licensed to transact business in this State) only to the extent and under the same terms and conditions that under the laws of such State where such motor vehicle is registered or in which the insured resides, like recognition, if a law of like effect is in force and effect, is granted to certificates of insurance carriers, organized and existing under and by virtue of the laws of this State. If, under the laws of such State, in which a law of like effect is in force and effect, certificates of insurance carriers, organized and existing under or by virtue of the laws of this State are not accepted, the certificates of insurance carriers of such State shall not be accepted under the provisions of this article.

The commissioner of motor vehicles shall be notified by the insurance carrier or sureties of the cancellation or expiration of any motor vehicle liability policy or bond certified under the provisions of the article at least ten (10) days before the effective date of such cancellation or expiration and until such notice is duly given, such policy shall continue in full force and effect.

The commissioner of motor vehicles shall require proof of ability to respond in damages, when required by this article, may be evidenced by the written certificate or certificates of any insurance carrier duly authorized to do business within the State, that it has issued to or for the benefit of the person named therein a motor vehicle liability policy or policies in the form hereinafter prescribed, which, at the date of the certificate or certificates, is or are in full force and effect, and designating therein by explicit description or by other adequate reference, all motor vehicles to which the policy or policies apply. The commissioner of motor vehicles shall not accept any certificate or certificates unless the same shall cover all motor vehicles then registered in this State in the name of the person furnishing such proof. Additional certificates, as aforesaid, shall be required as a condition precedent to the registration of any additional motor vehicle or motor vehicles in the name of such person required to furnish proof as aforesaid. Said certificate or certificates shall certify that the motor vehicle liability policies therein cited shall not be cancelled or expire except as hereinafter provided. If such person be a non-resident, a certificate, as aforesaid, of an insurance carrier authorized to transact business in the State in which the motor vehicle or motor vehicles described in such certificate is registered, or if none be described, then in the State in which the insured resides, shall be accepted if (a) such carrier shall execute a power of attorney authorizing the commissioner of motor vehicles to accept service of notice or process in any action arising out of a motor vehicle accident in this State, and (b) its governing executive authority shall duly adopt a resolution providing that its policies shall be deemed to be varied to comply with the law of this State relating to the terms of motor vehicle liability policies issued therein, and (c) such carrier shall agree to accept as final and binding any final judgment duly rendered in any action arising out of a motor vehicle accident in any court of competent jurisdiction in this State: Provided, however, that the provisions of this section shall be operative as to such insurance carriers (organized and existing under the laws of such State and not licensed to transact business in this State) only to the extent and under the same terms and conditions that under the laws of such State where such motor vehicle is registered or in which the insured resides, like recognition, if a law of like effect is in force and effect, is granted to certificates of insurance carriers, organized and existing under and by virtue of the laws of such State.
his sole expense, bring an action or actions in the name of the State against the company or persons executing such bond. (1931, c. 116, s. 4; 1941, c. 36.)

§ 20-202. Abstracts of operating record furnished on request.—The commissioner of motor vehicles shall upon request furnish any insurance carrier, person, or surety a certified abstract of the operating record of any person subject to the provisions of this article, which abstract shall fully designate the motor vehicles (if any), registered in the name of such person, and if there shall be no record of any conviction of such person of a violation of any provision of any statute relating to the operating of a motor vehicle or of any injury or damage caused by such person as herein provided, the commissioner of motor vehicles shall so certify. The commissioner of motor vehicles shall collect for each such certificate the sum of one dollar. (1931, c. 116, s. 5; 1941, c. 36.)

§ 20-203. Commissioner to furnish other information on request.—The commissioner of motor vehicles shall furnish any person who may have been injured in person or property by any motor vehicle, upon written request, with all information of record in his office pertaining to the evidence of the ability of any operator or owner of any motor vehicle to respond in damages. (1931, c. 116, s. 6; 1941, c. 36.)

§ 20-204. Return by operator of licenses, number plates upon request of commissioner.—Any operator or any owner, whose operator's license or certificate of registration shall have been suspended as herein provided, or whose policy of insurance or surety bond shall have been cancelled or terminated, or who shall neglect to furnish additional evidence of ability to respond in damages upon request of the commissioner of motor vehicles, shall immediately return to the commissioner of motor vehicles his operator's license, certificate of registration and the number plates issued thereunder. If any person shall willfully fail to return to the commissioner of motor vehicles the operator's license, certificate or certificates of registration and the number plates issued thereunder as provided herein, the commissioner of motor vehicles shall forthwith direct any State policeman or other police officer to secure possession thereof and to return the same to the office of the commissioner of motor vehicles. Any person willfully failing to return such operator's license or such certificate or certificates and number plates shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be fined not less than one hundred dollars ($100.00) nor more than one thousand dollars ($1,000.00) and such penalty shall be in addition to any penalty imposed for any violation of the Motor Vehicle Laws of North Carolina. (1931, c. 116, s. 7; 1941, c. 36.)

§ 20-205. Cancellation or return of bond by commissioner.—The commissioner of motor vehicles shall cancel such bond or return such proof of insurance to the person furnishing the same at any time after three years shall have elapsed since the filing of such bond or proof or the making of such deposit: Provided, that no suit or judgment against him for damages as aforesaid arising from the ownership, maintenance, use or operation hereafter of a motor vehicle shall then be pending or outstanding and unstayed or unsatisfied, as aforesaid; and the affidavit of such person, showing fulfillment of these requirements shall be sufficient proof thereof in the absence of evidence to the contrary before the commissioner. (1931, c. 116, s. 8; 1941, c. 36.)

§ 20-206. Fraudulent transfer of registration certificate.—If any owner's certificate of registration has been suspended under the provisions of this article, such certificate shall not be transferred nor the motor vehicle in respect of which such certificate was issued, registered in another name, whether the commissioner of motor vehicles has reasonable grounds to believe that such transfer of registration is proposed for the purpose or will have the effect of defeating the purpose of this article. Provided, however, that such transfer of registration shall be permitted upon the furnishing of proof of financial responsibility to the commissioner of motor vehicles by the transferee whenever the commissioner shall deem it necessary in furtherance of the purpose of this section. (1931, c. 116, s. 9; 1941, c. 36.)

§ 20-207. Present policies of automobile insurance unaffected.—Nothing in this article contained shall be held to apply to or affect policies of automobile insurance against liability which may now or hereafter be required by special act, and such policies, if endorsed to conform to the requirements of this article, shall be accepted as proof of financial responsibility when required under this article; nor shall anything in this article be held to apply to or affect policies insuring solely the insured named in the policy against liability resulting from the maintenance, operation or use by other persons in the insured's employ or in his behalf of motor vehicles not owned by the insured. (1931, c. 116, s. 10.)

§ 20-208. Fraudulent proof of ability to respond in damages.—Any person who shall forge, or without authority, sign any evidence of ability to respond in damages as required by the commissioner of motor vehicles in the administration of this article and any nonresident who shall operate a motor vehicle in this State from whom the privilege of operating any motor vehicle has been withdrawn as provided in § 20-199, shall be fined not less than one hundred dollars ($100.00) nor more than one thousand dollars ($1,000.00) and imprisoned not more than thirty days, or both. (1931, c. 116, s. 11; 1941, c. 36.)

§ 20-209. Motor vehicle liability policy.—"Motor vehicle liability policy," as used in this article, shall be taken to mean a policy of liability insurance issued by an insurance carrier authorized to transact business in this State or issued by an insurance carrier authorized to transact business in the State in which the motor vehicle or motor vehicles therein described is registered, or if none be described, then in the State in which the insured resides, to the person therein named as insured, which policy shall either (1) designate, by explicit description or other adequate reference, all motor vehicles with respect to which coverage is intended to be granted by said policy, and shall insure the insured named therein and any other person using or responsible for the use of any such motor vehicle with the consent, express or implied, of such insured against loss from the liability imposed by law upon such insured or upon such other person for injury to or death of any person, other than such insured and such person or persons as may be covered, as respects such injury or death, by any workmen's compensation law, and/or for damage to property, except property of others in charge of the insured or of his employees or other agents growing out of the ownership, maintenance, use or operation of any such motor vehicle within the continental limits of the United States of America; or which policy shall, in the alternative, (2) insure the person therein named as insured against loss from the liability imposed by law upon such insured for injury to or death of any person, other than such insured and such person or persons as may be covered as respects such injury or death by any workmen's compensation law, and/or for damage to property, except property of others in charge of the insured or of his employees or other agents, and except a motor vehicle registered in the name of such insured, growing out of the maintenance, operation or use by such insured of any motor vehicle, and occurring while such insured is personally in control, as driver or occupant, of such motor vehicle within the continental limits of the United States of America; and which policy, in either alternative, shall provide insurance to the amount of five thousand dollars ($5,000.00), exclusive of interest and costs, on account of injury to or death of any one person, of ten thousand dollars ($10,000.00), exclusive of interest and costs, on account of any one accident resulting in injury to or death of more than one person; and of one thousand dollars ($1,000.00) for damage to property of others, as herein provided, resulting from any one accident; or a binder pending the issuance of any such policy, or endorsement to an existing policy both as hereinafter provided: Provided, however, that this section shall not be construed as preventing an insurance carrier from granting in a "motor vehicle liability policy" any lawful coverage in excess of or in addition to the coverage herein provided for or from embodying in such policy and agreements, provisions or stipulations not contrary to the provisions of this article and not otherwise contrary to law. And: Provided, further, that separate concurrent policies, whether issued by one or several carriers, covering, respectively, (a) personal injury or death, as aforesaid, and (b) property damage, as aforesaid, shall be termed "a motor vehicle liability policy," within the meaning of this article. Except as in section 20-207 provided, no motor vehicle liability policy shall be issued or delivered in this State until a copy of the form of policy shall have been on file with the Commissioner of Insurance for at least thirty (30) days, unless sooner approved in writing by such Commissioner, nor if within said period of thirty (30) days such Commissioner shall have notified the carrier in writing that in his opinion, specifying the reasons therefor, the form of policy does not comply with the provisions of this article. The Commissioner of Insurance shall approve any form of policy which specifies the name, address and business, if any, of the insured, the coverage afforded by the policy, the premium charged therefor, the policy period, and the limits of liability, and contains an agreement that the insurance thereunder is provided in accordance with the coverage defined in this section, as respects personal injury and death or property damage or both, and is subject to all the provisions of this article. Every such motor vehicle liability policy shall be subject to the following provisions, whether or not contained therein: (a) The liability of the insurance carrier under a motor vehicle liability policy shall become absolute whenever loss or damage covered by such policy occurs, and the satisfaction by the assured of a final judgment for such loss or damage shall not be a condition precedent to the right or obligation of the carrier to make payment on account of such loss or damage. No such policy shall be cancelled or annulled as respects any loss or damage, by any agreement between the carrier and the insured after the said insured has become responsible for such loss or damage, and any such cancellation or annulment shall be void. The policy may provide that the insured, or any other person covered by the policy, shall reimburse the insurance carrier for payments made on account of any loss or damage claim or suit involving a breach of the terms, provisions or conditions of the policy; and further, if the policy shall provide for limits in excess of the limits specified in this section, the insurance carrier may plead against any plaintiff, with respect to the amount of such excess limits of liability, any defenses which it may be entitled to plead against the insured, and any such policy may further provide for the prorating of the insurance thereunder with other applicable valid and collectible insurance. (b) The policy, the written application therefor, if any, and any rider or endorsement which shall not conflict with the provisions of this article shall constitute the entire contract between the parties. (c) The insurance carrier shall, upon the request of the insured, deliver to the insured for filing, or at the request of the insured shall file direct, with the commissioner of motor vehicles an appropriate certificate in conformity with the provisions of § 20-200. (d) Any carrier authorized to issue motor vehicle liability policies may, pending the issue of such a policy, execute an agreement, to be known as a "binder," or may, in lieu of such a policy, issue an endorsement to an existing policy. Every such binder or endorsement shall be subject to the provisions of this section and shall be construed to provide indemnity or insurance in like manner and to the same extent as a motor vehicle liability policy. (1931, c. 116, s. 12; 1941, c. 36.) § 20-210. Rules and regulations.—The commissioner of motor vehicles shall make rules and regulations necessary for the administration of this article. (1931, c. 116, s. 14; 1941, c. 36.) § 20-211. Reliance on other security unaffected. —Nothing herein shall be construed as preventing

Art. 6. Giving Publicity to Highway Traffic Laws through the Public Schools.

§ 20-212. State highway commission to prepare digest.—The state highway and public works commission shall cause to be prepared a digest of the traffic laws of the State suitable for use in the public schools of the State and have published in pamphlet form and delivered on or before the first day of August, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-seven, to the State Superintendent of Public Instruction, a sufficient number of said pamphlets to supply at least one copy each to all of the public high school teachers of the State. (1927, c. 242, s. 1; 1933, c. 172, s. 17.)

§ 20-213. State superintendent of public instruction to distribute pamphlet. — The State Superintendent of Public Instruction shall cause to be delivered to the superintendents or principals of the various high schools of the State a sufficient number of said pamphlets to supply one to each of the teachers engaged for said schools. (1927, c. 242, s. 2.)

§ 20-214. Pamphlets brought to attention of children.—The superintendents or principals, or other persons in charge of the public high schools of the state, shall cause the contents of said pamphlets to be brought to the attention of all the children in attendance upon the public high schools in the form of lessons of at least one each week until the entire contents of said pamphlet shall have been read and explained. (1927, c. 242, s. 3.)

§ 20-215. Practice to be continued; highway commission to supply additional copies yearly.—This practice shall be continued during each school year and the state highway and public works commission is directed annually on or before the first Monday of August, to supply, as hereinbefore provided, such additional copies of the said pamphlet having the same revised from time to time to meet any amendments of the traffic laws of the State, as the State Superintendent of Public Instruction may ascertain and report to the state highway and public works commission to be necessary. (1927, c. 242, s. 4.)

§ 20-216. Driving regulations; frightened animals; crossings.—A person operating or driving a motor vehicle shall, on signal by raising the hand, from a person riding, leading, or driving a horse or horses or other draft animals, bring such motor vehicle immediately to a stop, and, if traveling in the opposite direction, remain stationary so long as may be reasonable to allow such horse or other animal to pass, and, if traveling in the same direction, use reasonable caution in thereafter passing such horse or other animal: Provided, that in case such horse or other animal appears badly frightened, and the person operating such motor vehicle is so signaled to do, such person shall cause the motor of the motor vehicle to cease running so long as shall be reasonably necessary to prevent accident and ensure the safety of others; and it shall also be the duty of any male chauffeur or driver of any motor vehicle and other male occupants thereof over the age of sixteen years while passing any horse, horses or other draft animals which appear frightened, upon the request of the person in charge thereof and driving such horse or horses or other draft animals, to give such assistance as would be reasonable to insure the safety of all persons concerned and to prevent accident. (1917, c. 140, s. 15; C. S. 2616.)

Passing Animals.—The laws with respect to passing animals, with the exception of establishing a speed limit, are to be construed as an embodiment of principles of law applicable to motor vehicles when operated on the highway and in places where their use is likely to be a source of danger to others. Gaskins v. Hancock, 156 N. C. 56, 72 S. E. 50; Tudor v. Bowen, 152 N. C. 441, 67 S. E. 1015, cited and applied; Curry v. Fleeer, 157 N. C. 16, 72 S. E. 653.

When the law prescribed a maximum speed limit for the running of motor vehicles upon the highways in approaching animals it did not contemplate or intend that the specified limits were always permissible; for one driving a machine of this character was charged with notice of things which he observed or could have observed in the exercise of proper care, having regard to the nature of the vehicle he was operating and its tendency to frighten animals; and not infrequently it might have become his duty to move at a much slower speed, or stop altogether if conditions so required. Curry v. Fleeer, 157 N. C. 16, 72 S. E. 653.

§ 20-217. Motor vehicles to stop for school busses in certain instances.—Every person using, operating, or driving a motor vehicle upon or over the roads or highways of the state of North Carolina, or upon or over any of the streets of any of the incorporated towns and cities of North Carolina, upon approaching from any direction on the same highway any school bus transporting school children to or from school, while such bus is stopped and engaged in receiving or discharging passengers therefrom upon the roads or highways of the state or upon any of the streets of any of the incorporated towns and cities of the state, shall bring such motor vehicle to a full stop and shall remain stopped until the “stop signal” of such bus has been withdrawn or until such bus has moved on.

The provisions of this section are applicable only in the event the school bus bears upon the front and rear thereof a plainly visible sign containing the words “school bus” in letters not less than five inches in height.

Any person violating the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be fined not to exceed fifty dollars, or imprisoned not to exceed thirty days. (1925, c. 265; 1943, c. 767.)

Editor's Note.—The 1943 amendment rewrote the first paragraph and inserted the second paragraph.

This section applies to passing a school bus from either direction, from the rear or from the front. State v. Webb, 210 N. C. 380, 180 S. E. 241.

§ 20-218. Standard qualifications for school bus drivers; speed limit.—No person shall drive or operate a school bus over the public roads of North Carolina while the same is occupied by children unless said person shall be fully trained in the operation of motor vehicles, and shall furnish to the superintendent of the schools of the county in which said bus shall be operated a certificate from the highway patrol of North Carolina, or from any representative duly designated by the commissioner of motor vehicles, and the chief mechanic in charge of school busses in said county showing that he has been examined by a member of the said highway patrol and said chief mechanic in charge of school busses, in said county and that he is a fit and competent person to operate or drive a school bus over the public roads of the state.

It shall be unlawful for any person to operate or drive a school bus loaded with children over the public roads of North Carolina at a greater rate of speed than thirty-five miles per hour.

Any person violating paragraph two of this section shall, upon conviction, be fined not more than fifty dollars ($50.00) or imprisoned not more than thirty days. (1937, c. 397, ss. 1-3; 1941, c. 21; 1943, c. 440.)

Cross Reference.—As to selection and employment of school bus drivers, see § 115-378.

Editor's Note.—The 1941 amendment inserted the provision in paragraph one requiring an examination by the chief mechanic.

The 1943 amendment inserted in the first paragraph the words "or from any representative duly designated by the commissioner of motor vehicles."

§ 20-218.1. Jurisdiction over violations by persons over fifteen years of age.—No juvenile court or domestic relations court of this state shall have jurisdiction over any offense involving violation of any of the motor vehicle laws or of any of the laws relating to the operation of motor vehicles on the highways of this state when such offense has been committed by a person over fifteen years of age. Any such offense shall be within the jurisdiction of the court or courts which would have jurisdiction if the offender were over sixteen years of age. (1943, c. 760.)

§ 20-219. Refund to counties of costs of prosecuting theft cases.—Whenever the Motor Vehicle Department of the State has caused to be instituted criminal prosecutions in the Superior Court of any county of the State for violation of the automobile theft laws, and the county wherein such case was tried has incurred court costs incident thereto, upon certificate of the Clerk of the Superior Court of said county showing an itemized statement thereof, and that the same has been paid, upon the approval of the commissioner of motor vehicles and the Attorney General, the sum or sums so paid shall be refunded to said county, the same to be paid from the motor vehicle registration title fees.

This section shall apply to costs incurred in the prosecution of automobile theft cases only. (1929, c. 275; 1941, c. 36.)

Art. 8. Sales of Used Motor Vehicles Brought into State.

§ 20-220. Dealers required to register vehicles with department of revenue and furnish bond.—Every dealer in used, or second-hand, motor vehicles who is a nonresident of the state of North Carolina or who does not have a permanent place of business in this State, and every person, firm or corporation who brings any used, or second-hand, motor vehicles into the state of North Carolina for sale, within ten days from the date of entry of said motor vehicle into the limits of the state of North Carolina, register such motor vehicle with the department of revenue on a form to be provided by said department and under such rules and regulations as may be promulgated by said department from time to time, and shall, before said used or second-hand car is offered for sale, or sold, execute a bond with two good sufficient sureties, or with a surety company duly authorized to do business in the state of North Carolina as a surety or sureties thereon, payable to the state of North Carolina, for the use and benefit of the purchaser and his vendees, conditioned to pay all loss, damages and expenses that may be sustained by the purchaser, and/or vendees, that may be occasioned by reason of the failure of the title of such vendor or by reason of any fraudulent misrepresentations or breaches of warranty as to freedom from liens, quality, condition, use or value of the motor vehicle being sold. Said bond shall be in the full amount of the sale price of each of such motor vehicles, but in no event to exceed the sum of one thousand ($1,000.00) dollars for any one motor vehicle, and shall be filed with the department of revenue of the state of North Carolina by the vendor and be approved by it as to amount, form and as to the solvency of the surety or sureties, and for which service by said department, in registering said vehicle, the vendor shall pay the regular registration fee charged for the registration of motor vehicles and in addition thereto a fee of ten ($10.00) dollars for each bond so filed and approved, which sums shall be paid into the state treasury to the credit of the general fund and expended as provided by law. (1937, c. 62, s. 1.)

Held Unconstitutional by District Court.—As both the bond and the fee required by this section constitute a clear discrimination against used automobiles of foreign origin, the provisions requiring them must be held invalid under the commerce clause of the constitution. McClain v. Hoey, 19 F. Supp. 990, 993.

§ 20-221. Titles to all used cars to be furnished upon delivery.—Every person, firm or corporation, upon the sale and delivery of any used or second-hand motor vehicle, shall, at the time of the delivery of said vehicle, deliver to the vendee a certificate of title issued to the vendor by the North Carolina state department of revenue, duly endorsed in order that the vendee may obtain a title therefor. (1937, c. 62, s. 2.)

§ 20-222. Non-compliance defeats right of action; violates a misdemeanor. — No action, nor right of action to recover any such motor vehicle, nor any part of the selling price thereof shall be maintained in the courts of this state by any such dealer or vendor, his successors or assignees, in any case wherein such vendor or dealer shall have failed to comply with the terms and provisions of this article, and, in addition thereto, such vendor or dealer, upon conviction for the violation of any of the provisions of this article, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be punished by a fine not less than one hundred ($100.00) dollars and not more than five hundred ($500.00) dollars, or by imprisonment for not less than thirty days, or more than six months, or by both such fine and imprisonment. (1937, c. 62, s. 3.)

—The terms “dealers” and “vendors” herein used shall be construed to include every individual, partnership, corporation or trust whose business, in whole or in part, is that of selling used motor vehicles not taken in exchange for vehicles sold in this state, and likewise shall be construed to include every agent, representative, or consignee of any such dealer as defined above as fully as if same had been herein expressly set out, except that no agent, representative or consignee of such dealer or vendor shall be required to make and file the said bond if such dealer or vendor for whom such agent, representative or consignee acts fully complies in each instance with the provisions of this article. (1937, c. 62, s. 4.)

Sec. 21-1. General definitions.
21-2. Definition of straight bill.
21-3. Definition of order bill.

Art. 1. Definitions.

§ 21-1. General definitions.—In this chapter, unless the context of subject-matter otherwise requires—

“Action” includes counterclaim, set-off, and suit in equity.

“Bill” means bill of lading governed by this chapter.

“Consignee” means the person named in the bill as the person to whom delivery of the goods is to be made.

“Consignor” means the person named in the bill as the person from whom the goods have been received for shipment.

“Goods” means merchandise or chattels in course of transportation or which have been or are about to be transported.

“Holder” of a bill means a person who has both actual possession of such bill and a right of property therein.

“Order” means an order by indorsement on the bill.

“Person” includes a corporation or partnership, or two or more persons having a joint or common interest.

“To purchase” includes to take as mortgagee and to take as pledgee. (1919, c. 65, s. 42; C. S. 284.)

Editor’s Note.—This chapter is based upon and closely follows the Federal Bills of Lading Act. However, the North Carolina statutes depart in phraseology from the federal act wherever such a change is necessary to adopt the statutes to intrastate commerce. See § 21-4 providing that bills of lading issued in intrastate commerce shall be governed by this chapter.

§ 21-2. Definition of straight bill.—A bill in which it is stated that the goods are consigned or destined to a specified person is a straight bill. (1919, c. 65, s. 2; C. S. 284.)

Cross Reference.—As to bills of lading in evidence, see § 8-41.

§ 21-3. Definition of order bill.—A bill in which it is stated that the goods are consigned or destined to the order of any person named in such bill is an order bill. Any provision in such a bill or in any notice, contract, rule, regulation, or tariff that it is nonnegotiable shall be null and void, and shall not affect its negotiability within the meaning of this chapter unless upon its face and in writing agreed to by the shipper. (1919, c. 65, s. 3; C. S. 285.)

Cross Reference.—As to bills of lading in evidence, see § 8-41.

Art. 2. Issue of Bills of Lading.

§ 21-4. Bills governed by this chapter.—Bills of lading issued by any common carrier for the transportation of goods from one point in North Carolina to another shall be governed by this chapter. (1919, c. 65, s. 4; C. S. 286.)

§ 21-5. Order bills must not be issued in sets.—

Sec. 21-22. Liability for nonreceipt or misdescription of goods loaded by shipper.
21-23. Liability for nonreceipt or misdescription of goods.
21-24. Attachment or levy upon goods for which an order bill has been issued.
21-25. Creditor’s remedy to reach order bills.
21-26. Lien for charges under order bill.
21-27. Effect of sale.

Art. 4. Negotiation and Transfer of Bills.

21-29. Negotiation of order bills by indorsement.
21-30. Transfer of bills.
21-31. Who may negotiate an order bill.
21-32. Rights of person to whom an order bill has been negotiated.
21-33. Rights of person to whom a bill has been transferred.
21-34. Right to compel indorsement of negotiable bill.
21-35. Warranties on sale of bill.
21-36. Indorser not a guarantor.
21-37. No warranty implied from accepting payment of a debt.
21-38. When negotiation not impaired by fraud, accident, mistake, duress, conversion, etc.
21-40. Negotiation defeats vendor’s lien.
21-41. When rights and remedies under mortgages and liens are not limited.

Art. 5. Criminal Offenses.

§ 21-42. Issuing false bills or violating chapter made felony.
Order bills issued in North Carolina for transportation of goods from one point to another in North Carolina shall not be issued in parts or sets. If so issued, the carrier issuing them shall be liable for failure to deliver the goods described therein to any one who purchases a part for value in good faith, even though the purchase be after the delivery of the goods by the carrier to a holder of one of the other parts. (1919, c. 65, s. 4; C. S. 286.)

§ 21-6. Duplicate order bills must be so marked.—When more than one order bill is issued in North Carolina for the same goods to be transported to any place in North Carolina, the word “duplicate” or some other word or words indicating that the document is not an original bill, shall be placed plainly upon the face of every such bill except the one first issued. A carrier shall be liable for the damage caused by his failure so to do to any one who has purchased the bill for value in good faith as an original, even though the purchase be after the delivery of the goods by the carrier to the holder of the original bill. (1919, c. 65, s. 5; C. S. 287.)

Cross Reference.—As to duplicate bills of lading in evidence, see § 8-41.

§ 21-7. Straight bill shall be marked “nonnegotiable.”—A straight bill shall have placed plainly upon its face by the carrier issuing it “nonnegotiable” or “not negotiable.” This section shall not apply, however, to memoranda or acknowledgments of an informal character. (1919, c. 65, s. 6; C. S. 288.)

§ 21-8. Insertion of name of person to be notified.—The insertion in an order bill of the name of a person to be notified of the arrival of the goods shall not limit the negotiability of the bill or constitute notice to a purchaser thereof of any rights or equities of such person in the goods. (1919, c. 65, s. 7; C. S. 289.)

Editor’s Note.—Formerly it was the rule in this state that when goods were shipped under a bill of lading made out to the order of the vendor, the mere insertion of the name of the consignee to be notified, would not bring such consignee into contract relations with the carrier so as to enable him to bring suit against the carrier for delay, damage, etc. Mfg. Co. v. R. R., 149 N. C. 261, 62 S. E. 1091, and likewise in such case the rule was that title did not pass until the draft was paid, id.; Bank v. R. R., 153 N. C. 346, 69 S. E. 261; Killingsworth v. R. R., 171 N. C. 47, 87 S. E. 947. But the law has been changed by legislative enactment. See also sections 21-9 and 21-12 and annotations thereunder.

As to shipment made “Order, notify” see Watts v. R. R., 183 N. C. 12, 119 S. E. 382.

Art. 3. Obligations and Rights of Carriers upon Bills of Lading.

§ 21-9. Obligation of carrier to deliver.—A carrier, in the absence of some lawful excuse, is bound to deliver goods upon a demand made either by the consignee named in the bill for the goods or, if the bill is an order bill, by the holder thereof, if such a demand is accompanied by—

1. An offer in good faith to satisfy the carrier’s lawful lien upon the goods;

2. Possession of the bill of lading and an offer in good faith to surrender, properly indorsed, the bill which was issued for the goods if the bill is an order bill; and

3. A readiness and willingness to sign, when the goods are delivered, an acknowledgment that they have been delivered, if such signature is requested by the carrier.

In case the carrier refuses or fails to deliver the goods, in compliance with a demand by the consignee or holder so accompanied, the burden shall be upon the carrier to establish the existence of a lawful excuse for such refusal or failure. (1919, c. 65, s. 8; C. S. 290.)

Possession of Properly Endorsed Bill is Sufficient.—An order bill of lading indorsed by the shipper, in the possession of the shipper, is sufficient evidence of the plaintiff’s ownership of the bill and of the goods for which the bill was issued. Temple v. R. R., 190 N. C. 439, 440, 129 S. E. 815.

Consignee Must Produce Bill.—The failure or refusal of consignee to produce, upon the carrier’s demand, a bill of lading for a prepaid shipment of goods in the carrier’s possession is ordinarily a valid defense to an action to recover of the carrier the value of a shipment, which has never been delivered, but the burden is upon the carrier to prove that such demand has been made and not complied with. Jeans v. Seaboard Air Line R. Co., 164 N. C. 224, 80 S. E. 342.

Bill Must Be Properly Endorsed.—Where shipper paid the draft and obtained the bill of lading but failed to have it endorsed by a certain bank as required by the terms of the bill, the carrier was not liable for failure to deliver the goods. Killingsworth v. R. R., 171 N. C. 47, 87 S. E. 947.

§ 21-10. Justification of carrier in delivery.—A carrier is justified, subject to the provisions of §§ 21-11, 21-12 and 21-13, in delivering goods to one who is—

1. A person lawfully entitled to the possession of the goods, or

2. The consignee named in a straight bill for the goods; or

3. A person in possession of an order bill for the goods, by the terms of which the goods are deliverable to his order; or which has been indorsed to him, or in blank by the consignee, or by the mediate or immediate indorsee of the consignee. (1919, c. 65, s. 9; C. S. 291.)

§ 21-11. Carrier’s liability for misdelivery.—Where a carrier delivers goods to one who is not lawfully entitled to the possession of them, the carrier shall be liable to any one having a right of property or possession in the goods if he delivered the goods otherwise than as authorized by subdivisions 2 and 3 of § 21-10; and, though he delivered the goods as authorized by either of said subdivisions, he shall be so liable if prior to such delivery he—

1. Had been requested by or on behalf of a person having a right of property or possession in the goods, not to make such delivery; or

2. Had information at the time of the delivery that it was to a person not lawfully entitled to the possession of the goods.

Such request or information, to be effective within the meaning of this section, must be given to an officer or agent of the carrier, the actual or apparent scope of whose duties includes action upon such a request or information, and must be given in time to enable the officer or agent to whom it is given, acting with reasonable diligence, to stop delivery of the goods. (1919, c. 65, s. 10; C. S. 292.)

§ 21-12. Carrier’s liability on order bill not cancelled on delivery.—Except as provided in § 21-27, and except when compelled by legal process, if a carrier delivers goods for which an order bill had been issued, the negotiation of which would transfer the right to the possession of the goods, and fails to take up and cancel the bill, such carrier... shall be liable for failure to deliver the goods to any one who for value and in good faith purchases such bill, whether such purchaser acquired title to the bill before or after the delivery of the goods by the carrier and notwithstanding delivery was made to the person entitled thereto.

(1919, c. 65, s. 11; C. S. 293.)

§ 21-13. Carrier's liability on order bill unmarked to show partial delivery.—Except as provided in § 21-27, and except when compelled by legal process, if a carrier delivers part of the goods for which an order bill had been issued and fails, either—

1. To take up and cancel the bill, or

2. To place plainly upon it a statement that a portion of the goods has been delivered with a description, which may be in general terms, either of the goods or packages that have been so delivered or of the goods or packages which still remain in the carrier's possession, he shall be liable for failure to deliver all the goods specified in the bill to any one who for value and in good faith purchases it, whether such purchaser acquired title to it before or after the delivery of any portion of the goods by the carrier, and notwithstanding such delivery was made to the person entitled thereto. (1919, c. 65, s. 12; C. S. 294.)

§ 21-14. Altered bills.—Any alteration, addition, or erasure in a bill after its issue without authority from the carrier issuing the same, whether in writing or noted on the bill, shall be void, whatever be the nature and purpose of the change, and the bill shall be enforceable according to its original tenor. (1919, c. 65, s. 13; C.

S. 295.)

§ 21-15. Lost or destroyed bills.—Where an order bill has been lost, stolen, or destroyed, a court of competent jurisdiction may order the delivery of the goods upon satisfactory proof of such loss, thief, or destruction, and upon the giving of a bond, with sufficient surety, to be approved by the court, to protect the carrier or any person injured by such delivery from any liability or loss incurred by reason of the original bill remaining outstanding. The court may also, in its discretion, order the payment of the carrier's reasonable costs and counsel fees: Provided, a voluntary indemnifying bond without an order of court shall be binding on the parties thereto.

The delivery of the goods under an order of the court, as provided in this section, shall not relieve the carrier from liability to a person to whom the order bill has been, or shall be, negotiated for value without notice of the proceedings or of the delivery of the goods. (1919, c. 65, s.
14; C. S. 296.)

§ 21-16. Effect of duplicate bills.—A bill, upon the face of which the word “duplicate,” or some other word or words indicating that the document is not an original bill, is placed plainly, shall impose upon the carrier issuing the same the liability of one who represents and warrants that such bill is an accurate copy of an original bill properly issued, but no other liability. (1919,
c. 65, s. 15; C. S. 297.)

§ 21-17. When title or right of carrier excuses liability for non-delivery.—No title to the goods or right to their possession asserted by a carrier for his own benefit shall excuse him from liability for refusing to deliver the goods according to the terms of the bill issued for them, unless such title or right is derived directly or indirectly from a transfer made by the consignor or consignee after the shipment, or from the carrier's lien. (1919,
c. 65, s. 16; C. S. 298.)

§ 21-18. Interpleader of adverse claimants.—If more than one person claim the title or possession of goods, the carrier may require all known claimants to interplead, either as a defense to an action brought against him for nondelivery of the goods or as an original suit, whichever is appropriate. (1919, c. 65, s. 17; C. S. 299.)

Cross Reference.—As to interpleader, new parties by order of court, see § 1-73.

§ 21-19. Carrier has reasonable time to determine validity of claims.—If some one other than the consignee or the person in possession of the bill has claim to the title or possession of the goods, and the carrier has information of such claim, the carrier shall be excused from liability for refusing to deliver the goods, either to the consignee or person in possession of the bill or to the adverse claimant, until the carrier has had a reasonable time to ascertain the validity of the adverse claim or to bring legal proceedings to compel all claimants to interplead. (1919, c. 65,
s. 18; C. S. 300.)

§ 21-20. Adverse title is no defense except as above provided.—Except as provided in the preceding sections of this article, no right or title of of a third person, unless enforced by legal process, shall be a defense to an action brought by the consignee of a straight bill or by the holder of an order bill against the carrier for failure to deliver the goods on demand. (1919, c. 65, s. 19; C.
S. 301.)

§ 21-21. Carriers not to insert “shipper’s weight, load and count” when goods loaded by carrier.—
When goods are loaded by a carrier, such carrier shall count the packages of goods, if package freight, and ascertain the kind and quantity, if bulk freight, and such carrier shall not, in such cases, insert in the bill of lading or in any notice, receipt, contract, rule, regulation or tariff, "shiper’s weight, load and count," or other words of like purport, indicating that the goods were loaded by the shipper and the description of them made by him or, in case of bulk freight and freight not concealed by packages, the description made by him. If so inserted, contrary to the provisions of this section, said words shall be treated as null and void and as if not inserted therein. (1919,
c. 65, s. 20; C. S. 303.)

§ 21-22. Liability for nonreceipt or misedescription of goods loaded by shipper.—When package freight or bulk freight is loaded by a shipper and the goods are described in a bill of lading merely by a statement of marks or labels upon them or upon packages containing them, or by a statement that the goods are said to be goods of a certain kind or quantity, or in a certain condition, or it is stated in the bill of lading that packages are said to contain goods of a certain kind or quantity or in a certain condition, or that the contents or condition of the contents of packages are unknown, or words of like purport are contained in the bill of lading, such statements, if true, shall not make liable the carrier issuing the bill of lading, although the goods are not of the kind or quantity or in the condition which the marks or labels upon them indicate, or of the kind or quantity or in the condition they were said to be by the consignor. The carrier may also, by inserting in the bill of lading the words "shipper's weight, load, and count," or other words of like purport, indicate that the goods were loaded by the shipper and the description of them made by him; and, if such statement be true, the carrier shall not be liable for damages caused by the improper loading or by the nonreceipt or by the misdescription of the goods described in the bill of lading. Provided, however, where the shipper of bulk freight installs and maintains adequate facilities for weighing such freight, and the same are available to the carrier, then the carrier, upon written request of such shipper and when given a reason-
§ 21-31. Who may negotiate an order bill.—An order bill may be negotiated by any person in possession of the same, however such possession may have been acquired, if by the terms of the bill the carrier undertakes to deliver the goods to the order of such person, or if at the time of negotiation the bill is in such form that it may be negotiated by delivery. (1919, c. 65, s. 30; C. S. 312.)

§ 21-32. Rights of person to whom an order bill has been negotiated.—A person to whom an order bill has been duly negotiated acquires thereby:
1. Such title to the goods as the person negotiating the bill to him had or had ability to convey to a purchaser in good faith for value, and also such title to the goods as the consignee and consignor had or had power to convey to a purchaser in good faith for value; and
2. The direct obligation of the carrier to hold possession of the goods for him according to the terms of the bill as fully as if the carrier had contracted directly with him. (1919, c. 65, s. 31; C. S. 313.)

Editor's Note.—See Editor's Note under section 21-8.

In General.—The person to be notified on shipment to order of consignor has, by this section, title for the purpose of a suit to recover damages and the statutory penalty, as fully as if the carrier had contracted with him directly, upon the presentation of the bill of lading properly endorsed and his tender thereof in good faith to the carrier, the statute being remedial of the common law that there was no contractual relation between him and the carrier that would permit recovery for causes accruing before he had paid the draft, and had the bill of lading assigned to him. Watts v. Norfolk Southern R. Co., 183 N. C. 12, 110 S. E. 582.

§ 21-33. Rights of person to whom a bill has been transferred.—A person to whom a bill has been transferred, but not negotiated, acquires thereby as against the transferor the title to the goods, subject to the terms of any agreement with the transferor. If the bill is a straight bill, such person also acquires the right to notify the carrier of the transfer to him of such bill, and thereby to become the direct obligee of whatever obligations the carrier owed to the transferor of the bill immediately before the notification.

Prior to the notification of the carrier by the transferor or transferee of a straight bill, the title of the transferee to the goods and the right to acquire the obligation of the carrier may be defeated by garnishment or by attachment or execution upon the goods by an indorser of the transferor, or by a notification to the carrier by the transferor or a subsequent purchaser from the transferor of a subsequent sale of the goods by the transferor.

A carrier has not received notification within the meaning of this section unless an officer or agent of the carrier, the actual or apparent scope of whose duties includes action upon such a notification, has been notified; and no notification shall be effective until the officer or agent to whom it is given has had time, with the exercise of reasonable diligence, to communicate with the agent or agents having actual possession or control of the goods. (1919, c. 65, s. 32; 1910, c. 290; C. S. 314.)

§ 21-34. Right to compel indorsement of negotiable bill.—Where an order bill is transferred for value by delivery, and the indorsement of the transferor is essential for negotiation, the transferee acquires a right against the transferor to compel him to indorse the bill, unless a contrary intention appears. The negotiation shall take effect as of the time when the indorsement is actually made. This obligation may be specifically enforced. (1919, c. 65, s. 33; C. S. 315.)

§ 21-35. Warranties on sale of bill.—A person who negotiates or transfers for value a bill by indorsement or delivery, unless a contrary intention appears, warrants—
1. That the bill is genuine;
2. That he has a legal right to transfer it;
3. That he has knowledge of no fact which would impair the validity or worth of the bill;
4. That he has a right to transfer the title to the goods, and that the goods are merchantable or fit for a particular purpose whenever such warranties would have been implied if the contract of the parties had been to transfer without a bill the goods represented thereby. (1919, c. 65, s. 34; C. S. 316.)

§ 21-36. Indorser not a guarantor.—The indorsement of a bill shall not make the indorser liable for any failure on the part of the carrier or previous indorser of the bill to fulfill their respective obligations. (1919, c. 65, s. 35; C. S. 317.)

§ 21-37. No warranty implied from accepting payment of a debt.—A mortgagee or pledger or other holder of a bill for security who in good faith demands or receives payment of the debt for which such bill is security, whether from a party to a draft drawn for such debt, or from any other person, shall not be deemed by so doing to represent or warrant the genuineness of such bill or the quantity or quality of the goods therein described. (1919, c. 65, s. 36; C. S. 318.)

Editor's Note.—The rule which this section lays down is stated by the court in Mason v. Cotton Co., 148 N. C. 492, 497, 498, 62 S. E. 625 and the earlier case of Finch v. Gregg, 126 N. C. 176, 35 S. E. 251 was discussed and overruled.

§ 21-38. When negotiation not impaired by fraud, accident, mistake, duress, conversion, etc.—The validity of the negotiation of a bill is not impaired by the fact that such negotiation was a breach of duty on the part of the person making the negotiation, or by the fact that the owner of the bill was deprived of the possession of the same by fraud, accident, mistake, duress, loss, theft or conversion, if the person to whom the bill was negotiated, or a person to whom the bill was subsequently negotiated, gave value therefor in good faith, without notice of the breach of duty, or fraud, accident, mistake, duress, loss, theft, or conversion. (1919, c. 65, s. 37; C. S. 319.)

§ 21-39. Subsequent negotiation.—Where a person, having sold, mortgaged or pledged goods which are in a carrier's possession and for which an order bill has been issued, or having sold, mortgaged, or pledged the order bill representing such goods, continues in possession of the order bill, the subsequent negotiation thereof by that

Art. 5. Criminal Offenses.

§ 21-41. When rights and remedies under mortgages and liens are not limited.—Except as provided in § 21-40, nothing in this chapter shall limit the rights and remedies of a mortgagee or lien holder whose mortgage or lien on goods would be valid, apart from this chapter, as against one who for value and in good faith purchased from the owner, immediately prior to the time of their delivery to the carrier, the goods which are subject to the mortgage or lien, and obtained possession of them. (1919, c. 65, s. 40; C. S. 322.)
the promisor or if the contract is made for the benefit of the third person or if the contract is made with the third person and the promise constitutes a separate and independent contract under which the promisor agrees to pay upon default of the primary debtor, the promise is a collateral agreement within the statute.

Contracts Not within the Statute.—One financially interested in a crop induced the landlord to part with his lien, in order that the tenant might sign an appeal bond of the tenant, and promised to save from harm, and the transaction was not within this section.

Jennings v. Keel, 196 N. C. 763, 146 S. E. 716.

Plaintiff held assignments covering all funds to become due under a building contract, and was entitled to apply such funds to the extinguishment of claims it held for advancements made to carry on the work. Defendant, surety on the contractor’s bond, orally agreed that if allowed to use part of the money received by plaintiff, on a payment under the contract, to pay claims for labor and materials so the construction could be carried on without going outside of the funds derived from the work, it would pay the balance due plaintiff from the contractors. It was held that such agreement was not within this section. S.urety Co. v. Jackson County Bank, 20 Fed. (2d) 644.

Where a business run in the name of J. W. J. was in charge of W. P. J., J. W. J.’s son, and J. W. J. being dead, the son, J. W. J., Jr., promised to ship goods to them to be shipped in the name of J. W. J. & Son., saying to plaintiff, “you won’t lose anything by it,” and a payment on account was made by “J. W. J. & Son.” this section was held inapplicable. Noland Co. v. Jones, 211 N. C. 462, 190 S. E. 720.

What Determines Nature of Promise.—Whether a promise is an original one not coming within the provisions of this section, or a superseded one barred by the statute, does not depend altogether on the form of expression, but the situation of the parties, and whether they understood the promise to be direct or collateral, is also a determining consideration, Gennett v. Lyerly, 207 N. C. 201, 176 S. E. 458.

Oral Agreement of Stockholders to Be Responsible for Merchandise Held to Be an Original Promise.—Defendants agreed orally to be personally responsible for merchandise shipped to a corporation of which they were the majority stockholders, and which they later took over. It was held that the agreement was an original promise not coming within the statute of frauds. Brown v. Benton, 209 N. C. 523, 175 S. E. 792.

The Same Being True of Agreement to Furnish Merchandise for Use on Farm.—Evidence of defendant’s statement to plaintiff that if the plaintiff delivered the goods, the goods were to be shipped in the name of the defendant, and if they were not delivered, they were to be paid for, is evidence of an oral agreement to be responsible on the promise of another, Daniels v. Duck Island, Inc., 212 N. C. 90, 193 S. E. 741.

Oral Promise by Administrator.—A promise by the administrator that he would see that a debt of his intestate is paid, or that he would pay it, is void under this section, unless made in writing. Smithwick v. Shepherd, 49 N. C. 118, 6 S. E. 451.

Out of Representative’s Estate.—The agreement, in order not to be enforceable unless in writing, must be to pay out of the representative’s own estate. N. C. 523, 34 S. E. 686.

Original Undertakings—New Consideration.—The general rule is that a promise to answer for the debt, default or miscarriage of another for which that other remains liable, is a subsequent promise and not coming within the statute, and the question of interpretation should have been submitted to the jury. Dozier v. Wood, 208 N. C. 414, 181 S. E. 336.

Intent of Promisor—How Determined.—The intent of the promisor to become bound may be shown by the surrounding circumstances and other transactions or writings communications between the creditor and the promisor. Hickory Novelty Co. v. Andrews, 188 N. C. 59, 123 S. E. 314.

Where a writing or notation is not a continuing guaranty, each order upon which his guaranty is limited to the order upon which his guaranty appears. Gennett v. Lyerly, 207 N. C. 201, 176 S. E. 727.

Goods Furnished to Son on Father’s Credit.—If goods are furnished to a son upon the promise of the credit of the father, the promise need not be in writing; but if the son was the principal debtor, and the promise was not enforceable unless by a writing, the promise must be in writing. White v. Tripp, 123 N. C. 523, 34 S. E. 696.

Definiteness of Subject Matter of Contract.—The principle that some executory agreements must be in writing unless the subject matter upon which it is intended by the parties to operate can first be definitely ascertained from its terms, either through an explicit description or through some definite identification applies to verbal agreements as well as to those required by this section to be in writing. Hemphill v. Annis, 119 N. C. 314, 26 S. E. 152.

Evidences of Guarantor’s Obligation.—The obligation of one as guarantor of payment must be evidenced and established by a written agreement, or some written note or memorandum signed by him or some person authorized to sign him. Supply Co. v. Finch, 147 N. C. 106, 60 S. E. 904; Hickory Novelty Co. v. Andrews, 188 N. C. 29, 187 S. E. 718.

What Amounts to Contract of Guaranty.—A telegram that the debtor is a reliable person and that any justifiable claims will be taken care of is insufficient to establish a contract of guaranty or a promise to answer for the debt of another, in the absence of a promise to pay the debt if the debtor does not pay. Fain Grocery Co. v. Early, etc., Co., 181 N. C. 459, 107 S. E. 497.

Parol Assumption of Mortgage Debt Not within the Statute of Frauds.—A promise by a grantee of mortgaged land to assume and pay the amount of the mortgage is not a promise to pay the debt of another related by blood, or arising out of the business relation of the parties, made by the holder of the mortgage for the benefit made in his behalf by the secretary for the corporation as his alleged agent. Gennett v. Lyerly, 207 N. C. 501, 119 S. E. 898.

Agreement to Prevent Sale of Land.—An agreement in consideration of a lease, whereby the lessee agrees to do something, will not be deemed a contract to pay the price of the property, unless the lessee promises to buy it. Hoes v. Ruffin, 207 N. C. 501, 119 S. E. 898.

Promise to Guarantee Safety of Money.—An oral promise to guarantee the safety of money placed in the promisor's hands for investment is not an agreement to answer for the debt of another; the promisor is not liable to the depositor the plea of the statute of frauds is not a valid defense. Garren v. Youngblood, 207 N. C. 86, 176 S. E. 252.

A promise by the president of a bank to become personally liable for a deposit when supported by a new and independent consideration is not a promise to answer for the debt of another, since the original promise was not one to pay the debt, and the consideration by which the promisor is bound is not the business relation of the parties. Parlier v. Miller, 186 N. C. 501, 119 S. E. 898.

Agreement to prevent sale of land.—An agreement in consideration of a lease, whereby the lessee agrees to do something, will not be deemed a contract to pay the price of the property, unless the lessee promises to buy it. Hoes v. Ruffin, 207 N. C. 501, 119 S. E. 898.

A promise by the president of a bank to become personally liable for a deposit when supported by a new and independent consideration is not a promise to answer for the debt of another, since the original promise was not one to pay the debt, and the consideration by which the promisor is bound is not the business relation of the parties. Parlier v. Miller, 186 N. C. 501, 119 S. E. 898.

Promise to Guarantee Safety of Money.—An oral promise to guarantee the safety of money placed in the promisor's hands for investment is not an agreement to answer for the debt of another; the promisor is not liable to the depositor the plea of the statute of frauds is not a valid defense. Garren v. Youngblood, 207 N. C. 86, 176 S. E. 252.

A promise by the president of a bank to become personally liable for a deposit when supported by a new and independent consideration is not a promise to answer for the debt of another, since the original promise was not one to pay the debt, and the consideration by which the promisor is bound is not the business relation of the parties. Parlier v. Miller, 186 N. C. 501, 119 S. E. 898.

Agreement to Guarantee the Safety of Money.—An oral promise to guarantee the safety of money placed in the promisor's hands is not an agreement to answer for the debt of another, since the original promise was not one to pay the debt, and the consideration by which the promisor is bound is not the business relation of the parties. Parlier v. Miller, 186 N. C. 501, 119 S. E. 898.

A promise by the president of a bank to become personally liable for a deposit when supported by a new and independent consideration is not a promise to answer for the debt of another, since the original promise was not one to pay the debt, and the consideration by which the promisor is bound is not the business relation of the parties. Parlier v. Miller, 186 N. C. 501, 119 S. E. 898.

Parol Assumption of Mortgage Debt Not within the Statute of Frauds.—A promise by a grantee of mortgaged land to assume and pay the amount of the mortgage is not a promise to pay the debt of another related by blood, or arising out of the business relation of the parties, made by the holder of the mortgage for the benefit made in his behalf by the secretary for the corporation as his alleged agent. Gennett v. Lyerly, 207 N. C. 501, 119 S. E. 898.

Parol Assumption of Mortgage Debt Not within the Statute of Frauds.—A promise by a grantee of mortgaged land to assume and pay the amount of the mortgage is not a promise to pay the debt of another related by blood, or arising out of the business relation of the parties, made by the holder of the mortgage for the benefit made in his behalf by the secretary for the corporation as his alleged agent. Gennett v. Lyerly, 207 N. C. 501, 119 S. E. 898.

Parol Assumption of Mortgage Debt Not within the Statute of Frauds.—A promise by a grantee of mortgaged land to assume and pay the amount of the mortgage is not a promise to pay the debt of another related by blood, or arising out of the business relation of the parties, made by the holder of the mortgage for the benefit made in his behalf by the secretary for the corporation as his alleged agent. Gennett v. Lyerly, 207 N. C. 501, 119 S. E. 898.

Parol Assumption of Mortgage Debt Not within the Statute of Frauds.—A promise by a grantee of mortgaged land to assume and pay the amount of the mortgage is not a promise to pay the debt of another related by blood, or arising out of the business relation of the parties, made by the holder of the mortgage for the benefit made in his behalf by the secretary for the corporation as his alleged agent. Gennett v. Lyerly, 207 N. C. 501, 119 S. E. 898.
A parol lease for three years is not within the statute. It must be for a term exceeding three years. Smithdeal v. McAdoo, 172 N. C. 700, 704, 90 S. E. 907.

In order to discharge the consideration, it must be proved by parol evidence. Wilson v. Williams, 215 N. C. 407, 2 S. E. (2d) 19.

II. WHAT CONSTITUTES AN INTEREST IN OR CONCERNING LAND.

A contract to devise real property comes within the provisions of this section, and performance of services by the promisee for the consideration of an interest in land, and is valid even though not in writing. Newby v. Atlantic, etc., Realty Co., 182 N. C. 34, 108 S. E. 323; Broden v. Gibson, 165 N. C. 16, 18 S. E. 956.

Assignment of Lease.—A personal assignment of an unexpired lease to continue more than three years is void under this section. Alexander v. Morris, 145 N. C. 22, 58 S. E. 600.

Negative Easement.—A restriction on the use of land being in effect a negative easement is an interest in land required to be in writing. Davis v. Robinson, 189 N. C. 589, 127 S. E. 697.

Where land in a development is sold by deeds containing certain restrictive covenants, the covenants are in the nature of an easement, and it would seem that ordinarily such easement may not be released by parol agreement. Moore v. Shore, 206 N. C. 699, 175 S. E. 117.

Judicial Sales.—Judicial sales were not within the contemplation of the legislature at the time of making this enactment. Tate v. Greenlee, 15 N. C. 149, 150.

Judgment.—The Statute of Frauds does not require that a judgment constituting a lien on land should be assigned by a written instrument. Winbrey v. Koons, 83 N. C. 351.

III. SUFFICIENCY OF COMPLIANCE WITH SECTION.

A. In General.

No special form or instrument is required. A letter, note, bill or draft is sufficient. Neaves v. North State Milling Co., 90 N. C. 312.

But Memorandum Must Show Essential Elements of Valid Contract.—In order to constitute an enforceable contract within the provisions of this section, the written memorandum must be sufficient to show the essential elements of a valid contract. It must embody the terms of the contract, names of vendor and vendee, and a description of the land to be conveyed, at least sufficiently definite to be aided by parol. Smith v. Joyce, 214 N. C. 602, 604, 200 S. E. 431.

A promissory note for the purchase price signed and given by the purchaser is not such a contract or memorandum thereof. Burrias v. Starr, 155 N. C. 657, 51 S. E. 929.

The memorandum need not be contained in a single document, but may be in several paragraphs, and be finally connected together. Smith v. Joyce, 214 N. C. 602, 604, 200 S. E. 431.

Letters addressed to third party may be used against the writer as a memorandum of it. Such letters are sufficient evidence of the contract to warrant the court in giving effect to it. Mizell v. Burnett, 49 N. C. 249, 254; Nicholson v. Dover, 145 N. C. 18, 58 S. E. 444, cited in note in 24 L. R. A. 2d 979.

B. A Promissory Note.—A written instrument by which the parties agree to pay a sum of money to the order of a third party is an interest in land, if the promisee is the owner of the land at the time of severing the contract of sale. Moore v. Bostic, 15 N. C. 63.

Letters addressed to third party may be used against the writer as a memorandum of it. Such letters are sufficient evidence of the contract to warrant the court in giving effect to it. Mizell v. Burnett, 49 N. C. 249, 254; Nicholson v. Dover, 145 N. C. 18, 58 S. E. 444, cited in note in 24 L. R. A. 2d 979.

C. Letter to Seal.—The Statute of Frauds does not require a contract for the sale of land to be under the seal of the party to be charged. Simmons v. Spruill, 56 N. C. 9; Stephens v. Midyette, 161 N. C. 323, 77 S. E. 243.
The admissions of the parties in their pleadings may stand for the writing. Sandlin v. Kearney, 154 N. C. 407, 163 S. E. 291.

CH. 22. CONTRACTS REQUIRING WRITING

Time of Making Memorandum.—The writing upon which a contract is partly verbal and partly in writing, unless the writing purports to embrace all the contract. Thus where the vendor upon a conveyance by deed, verbally agreed that he would make good any deficiency in the agreed purchase price had been increased, and after the defendant which was filled in by the latter payable to his own name, it was held that the note was not signed by the defendant, since filling in the note with his own name must have put his name with the intention of signing it. Thus where the plaintiff, the purchaser, and the vendee could recover damages sustained by defendant's breach of contract to convey. Oxendine v. Strickler, 154 N. C. 257, 163 S. E. 291.

When all the circumstances of possession, ownership, and situation of the parties, and of their relation to each other and the property, as when they were when the negotiation took place and the writing was made, are disclosed, if the meaning and application of the writing, read in the light of those circumstances, are certain and plain, the parties will be bound by it as a sufficient written contract or memorandum of their agreement. Gilbert v. Wright, 195 N. C. 165, 168, 141 S. E. 577; Norton v. Smith, 179 N. C. 553, 103 S. E. 14.

"The party to be charged" under this section is the one against whom the relief is sought; and if the contract is not in writing and cannot be enforced against the purchaser. Mizell v. Burnett, 49 N. C. 239, 242, 156 S. E. 577.

B. The Signature.

What constitutes Signing.—The signing of a paper-writing or instrument is the affixing of one's name thereto with the purpose or intent to identify the paper or instrument, or to give it effect as one's act. McCall v. Textile, Co., 189 N. C. 775, 128 S. E. 349, 353.

Actual Signature—Position Immaterial.—Although the place of the signature upon the writing of the party to be charged is immaterial, and such party need not necessarily "subscribe" the writing, yet there must be a writing in which such party must have put his name with the intention of signing it. Thus where the plaintiff, the party to be charged, marked a, a mark of an illiterate person is a sufficient signature to fulfill the requirement of the Statute. Devereux v. McMahon, 108 N. C. 134, 12 S. E. 902.

The phrase "the party to be charged" does not necessarily refer to the vendor, it may refer to the vendee. In a suit for the specific performance of a contract to convey land the "party to be charged" is the vendor, and not the vendee. If the contract was made by the vendor and the vendee does not fulfill the condition imposed on him to show that the Statute has been complied with, by writing by which he alone is bound. Clegg v. Bishop, 188 N. C. 554, 122 S. E. 441. The "party to be charged" under this section is the one against whom the relief is sought; and if the contract is sufficient to bind him, he can be proceeded against, though the name of the other party need not be given because, as to them, the Statute is not fully complied with. Lewis v. Murray, 177 N. C. 17, 97 S. E. 750.

Thus a contract in writing to sell land, signed by the vendor, is not against anyone other than the obligee to pay the price is not in writing and cannot be enforced against the purchaser. Mizell v. Burnett, 49 N. C. 239, 242

The Statute requires that the writing be signed by the party to be charged. So, if a contract in writing to sell land to B, the former's promise being in writing and signed, but the latter's not, A would be bound to perform, whereas, if the contract is in writing and signed by the vendee, it does not fulfill the condition imposed on him to show that the Statute has been complied with, by writing by which he alone is bound. Clegg v. Bishop, 188 N. C. 554, 122 S. E. 441.

The party to be charged under this section is the one against whom the relief is sought; and if the contract is sufficient to bind him, he can be proceeded against, though the name of the other party need not be given because, as to them, the Statute is not fully complied with. Lewis v. Murray, 177 N. C. 17, 97 S. E. 750.

Member of Corporation or Partner May Sign.—Under the clause "or by some other person by him thereto lawfully authorized" a member of a corporation or a partner is the competent agent to sign a contract in writing under partnership. Neaves v. Mining Co., 90 N. C. 412, 415.

Signature of Agent.—If signed by one who is proved or admitted by the principal to have been authorized as agent, it is a sufficient compliance with the Statute. If the agent sign his own name instead of that of his principal by him. Hargrove v. Adcock, 111 N. C. 166, 171, 16 S. E. 16.
Where the agent is the one by whom the contract or the memorandum is signed, the authority of the agent to sign it for his principal need not have been given in writing. And even a subsequent ratification of an unauthorized signing will suffice. Johnston v. Sikes, 49 N. C. 70.

It is not necessary that the name of the principal or his ratification to the transaction shall appear upon the writing itself or in the form of the signature. Neaves v. Mining Co., 90 N. C. 412, 415.

Ordinance, Resolution or Vote.—An ordinance, resolution or vote of a municipal corporation, accepted as a lease or contract tendered, does not constitute a signing within the meaning of the Statute. Wade v. New Bern, 77 N. C. 460.

C. Statement of Consideration.

But see Hall v. Misenheimer, 127 N. C. 183, 49 S. E. 104, where it is said that a memorandum of a contract for the sale of land is not good as against the vendee unless it shows the price to be paid.

The sale of land is not good as against the vendee unless the price to be paid is stated, Spaulding v. Lindsley, 122 N. C. 293-1, Sec. 293-2. Debts mature on execution of assignment; substitute appointed. Sec. 293-3. Trustee to file schedule of property. Sec. 293-4. Substitute for incompetent trustee appointed. Sec. 293-5. Insolvent trustee removed unless bond given; substitute appointed. Sec. 293-6. Trustee removed on petition of creditors; substitute appointed. Sec. 293-7. Substituted trustee to give bond.

Art. 2. Petition of Insolvency for Assignment for Creditors.

23-13. Petition; schedule; inventory; affidavit.

23-14. Clerk to give notice of petition.
Art. 1. Assignments for Benefit of Creditors.

§ 23-1. Debts mature on execution of assignment; no preferences.—Upon the execution of any voluntary deed of trust or deed of assignment for the benefit of creditors, all debts of the maker thereof shall become due and payable at once, and no such deed of trust or deed of assignment shall contain any preferences of one creditor over another, except as hereinafter stated. (Rev., s. 967; 1893, c. 453; 1909, c. 918, s. 1; C. S. 1609.)

Cross References.—As to homestead and exemptions, see § 1-369 and notes. As to preferences in the absence of assignment, see also notes to § 39-15—analysis line, "Rights and Remedies of Creditors."

Definition.—An assignment for the benefit of creditors has been defined by the U. S. Supreme Court as "an assignment whereby a debtor, generally an insolvent, transfers to another his property, in trust to pay his debts or assign to another his property, in trust to pay his debts or apply the property upon their payment." Black Law Dict.

What Constitutes an Assignment.—The Supreme Court has held that where a person, who is insolvent, makes an assignment of practically all his property to secure a pre-existing debt, there being also other creditors, such instrument will be treated as an assignment for the benefit of creditors under the statutes relating thereto, and neither the omission of a small part of the debtor's property nor a defeasance clause in the instrument will change the result. Bank v. Tobacco Co., 188 N. C. 177, 178, 124 S. E. 158; Powell Brothers v. Lumber Company, 153 N. C. 52, 57, 68 S. E. 926; Nat'l Bank v. Gilmer, 116 N. C. 684, 22 S. E. 2; Nat'l Bank v. Gilmer, 117 N. C. 416, 23 S. E. 333; Glanton v. Jacobs, 117 N. C. 427, 23 S. E. 333; Cooper v. McKinnon, 127 N. C. 417, 32 S. E. 417; Perre v. Fols, 122 N. C. 239, 31 S. E. 475; Brown v. Nimocks, 124 N. C. 417, 32 S. E. 743; Taylor v. Lauer, 127 N. C. 157, 37 S. E. 197; Odum v. Clark, 146 N. C. 544, 60 S. E. 512.

Same—Deed to Secure Advancements.—Where the purpose of a deed is to secure payment not only of pre-existing debts but also of debts to be contracted for advancements to said grantees in carrying on their business then said deed is not a voluntary deed of assignment for the benefit of creditors, within the meaning of this and the following section. Same—Mortgage.—Where a mortgage is made of the entirety of a large estate for pre-existing debts (omitting only an insignificant remnant of property) the mortgage is in effect an assignment for the benefit of creditors secured therein. National Bank v. Gilmer, 117 N. C. 416, 23 S. E. 333; Nat'l Bank v. Gilmer, 116 N. C. 684, 22 S. E. 2.

Same—Chattel Mortgages.—A chattel mortgage, attempted to be executed by an insolvent corporation owing other creditors, to secure a pre-existing debt on practically all of its property, will be treated as an assignment and void, unless the requirements of the statute have been complied with, and no lien otherwise on the property described therein can be thereby created. Banking, etc., Co. v. Tobacco Co., 188 N. C. 177, 124 S. E. 158.

But a chattel mortgage on a stock of goods, securing the purchase price, cannot be deemed an assignment for the benefit of creditors where the secured debt is contemporaneous with the contract of purchase, as a part of one continuous transaction. Cowan v. Dale, 189 N. C. 684, 128 S. E. 155.

A chattel mortgage of an insolvent corporation, executed and registered before the appointment of a receiver for it, will not be construed under the provisions of this section as in effect an assignment for the benefit of creditors in the absence of the fact that the property covered by the mortgage constitutes practically all of the property of the insolvent. Vanderwall v. Vance Dairy Co., 200 N. C. 314, 315, 156 S. E. 512.

By Whom Made—Corporations.—The U. S. Supreme Court has held that a corporation, through its proper officers, may make an assignment for the benefit of creditors. Potts v. Wallace, 146 U. S. 689, 13 S. Ct. 196, 36 L. Ed. 1135.

Same—Partnership.—In Tracy v. Tuffly, 134 U. S. 206, 10 S. Ct. 527, 33 L. Ed. 879, it is held that a partnership, whether general or limited, may, through its proper officers, make an assignment for the benefit of creditors.

Same—Trustees.—In accordance with the rule that trustees must unite to pass any title to property jointly held by them, where there are two or more trustees of the property of insolvents, all should join therein. Wilber v. Almy, 12 How. 180, 13 L. Ed. 944.

Applies to Sureties.—The provision that all debts of the maker become due at once applies to the sureties upon a note of the assignor. Pritchard v. Mitchell, 139 N. C. 54, 51 S. E. 783.

Effect of Void Assignment.—If a deed of assignment for the benefit of creditors becomes void as to creditors its...
§ 23-2. Trustee to file schedule of property.—Upon the execution of such deed of trust, the trustee, whether named therein or appointed as hereafter provided for, shall file with the clerk of the superior court of the county in which said deed of trust is registered, within ten days after the registration thereof, and inventory under oath, giving a complete, full and perfect account of all property that has come into his hands or knowledge of any person for him, by virtue of such deed of trust, and when further property of any kind not included in any prior return comes to the knowledge or knowledge of such trustee he shall return the same as hereinbefore prescribed within ten days after the possession or discovery thereof. (Rev., s. 968; 1893, c. 453, s. 2; C. § 1610.)

§ 23-3. Trustee to recover property conveyed fraudulently or in preference.—It is the duty of the trustee to recover, for the benefit of the estate, property which was conveyed by the grantor or assignor in fraud of his creditors, or which was conveyed or transferred by the grantor or assignor for the purpose of giving a preference. A preference, under this section, shall be deemed to have been given when property has been transferred or conveyed or the right of any person for him to have control of property has been conveyed or transferred in consideration of the payment of a pre-existing debt, when the grantee or transferee of such property knows or has reasonable ground to believe that the grantor or assignor was insolvent at the time of making such conveyance or transfer. (1909, C. 918, s. 2; C. § 1611.)

Editor's Note.—For a discussion of preference under the Bankruptcy Act, see Wilson v. Taylor, 154 N. C. 211, 70 S. E. 492; John W. Evans, Fraudulent Conveyances, 12 Ohio L. J. 433. (1910, C. 918, s. 2; C. § 1611.)

General Effect of Section.—On proper consideration of this section, its terms and purpose, it is clear that the legislature intended to prohibit and avoid, as a wrongful preference, any assignment of property by a debtor, absolute or conditional, by which a creditor, in consideration of an existent or antecedent debt and within four months of a general assignment by his debtor, acquires title which the debtor or his property conveyance in lieu thereof, when he knew or had reasonable ground to believe that his grantor or assignor was insolvent at the time the transfer or conveyance was made. Wooten v. Taylor, 159 N. C. 604, 76 S. E. 11; Teague v. Howard Grocer Co., 175 N. C. 195, 198, 95 S. E. 173.

Preferences Valid at Common Law.—A debtor unable to pay his indebtedness in full, has an undoubted right, in the absence of a statute, to make preferences in the distribution of his property among the creditors, when the appropriation is absolute and with no reservation for his own benefit or benefit of his creditors, and that that he may make such preferences is not a transfer or conveyance within this section. Cowan v. Dale, 189 N. C. 684, 128 S. E. 155.

Real and Personal Property Included.—This section requiring the trustee in a general assignment for creditors to recover property "conveyed or transferred by the grantor or assignor" in consideration of preference, includes within its meaning real and personal property, and the general methods by which the title is passed or interest therein created and extends to an executed contract of sale. Teague v. Howard Grocer Co., 175 N. C. 195, 95 S. E. 173.

The Four Months' Period.—The four months' period mentioned in this section is to be counted from the time the transfer or conveyance was made, and not from the time of its registration. Wooten v. Taylor, 159 N. C. 604, 76 S. E. 11.

Effect of Preference in Deed.—A deed of general assignment for the benefit of creditors, by expressly making a prior mortgage of the grantor's property, wherein an unlawful preference is given, subject thereto, will not, of itself, grant a right of sale to a creditor of property conveyed in preference by the trustee in the deed in trust for the general creditors. Wooten v. Taylor, 159 N. C. 604, 76 S. E. 11.

A chattel mortgage on a stock of goods to secure the purchase price, was not a conveyance in preference within this section. Cowan v. Dale, 189 N. C. 684, 128 S. E. 155.

Judgment Not a Preference Prohibited by This Section.—A judgment not a preference rendered by a court of competent jurisdiction against a debtor assigning his property to a trustee for the benefit of creditors is not a transfer or conveyance of property by the assignment otherwise than within four months prior to the assignment to the trustee, and the judgment is not a preference prohibited by this section, and will not be declared void upon suit of the trustee. Pritchett v. Tolbert, 210 N. C. 644, 188 S. E. 12.

Execution on Priority Personal to Registration of Deed of Assignment Creates Prior Lien.—Where a valid judgment is rendered within four months prior to an assignment for benefit of creditors by the judgment debtor, and execution is issued thereon and personal property of the debtor levied upon prior to the registration of the deed of assignment, and the judgment is a lien upon the personal property levied upon prior to the title of the trustee in the deed of assignment. Pritchett v. Tolbert, 210 N. C. 644, 188 S. E. 71. 4

Meaning of Insolvent.—Insolvent means unable to pay his debts; or to sell any part of the property or assets belonging to the person or estate into money, at market prices, and applying the proceeds, with the cash previously on hand, to the payment of them. Silver Valley Mining Company v. North Carolina Smelting Company, 119 N. C. 417, 25 S. E. 954. 4

Debtors Whose Assets Exceed His Indebtedness.—Where a solvent debtor conveys practically all of his property to secure a pre-existing debt, having other creditors at the time, it does not create a preference within the intent and meaning of this section. Flowers v. American, etc., Chemical Co., 199 N. C. 456, 154 S. E. 736.

Right and Duty to Defend Suits.—It is the duty of assignees for the benefit of creditors, who have once accepted the trust, not only to appear, but so far as the nature of the transaction and the facts and circumstances of the case will admit or warrant, to defend suits to set aside the assignments. Chittenden v. Brewer, 2 Wall. 191. 17 L. Ed. 567.

§ 23-4. Substitute for incompetent trustee appointed in special proceeding.—When a trustee named in a deed of assignment for the benefit of creditors has died or resigned or has in any way become incompetent to execute the trust, the clerk of the superior court of the county wherein said deed of assignment has been registered is authorized and empowered, in a special proceeding in which all persons interested have been made parties, to appoint some discreet and competent person to act as such trustee and to execute all the trusts created in the original deed of assignment, according to its true intent and as fully as if originally appointed trustee therein. (1915, c. 176, s. 1; C. S. 1612.)

Cross Reference.—As to appointment of successor to incompetent trustee, generally, see § 45-9.

§ 23-5. Insolvent trustee removed unless bond given; substitute appointed.—Upon the complaint of any creditor of the assignor or trustee in such deed of trust, alleging that the trustor named therein is insolvent, and asking that he be removed, it is the duty of the clerk of the superior court of the county in which such deed of trust is registered, upon a notice of not more than ten days to such trustee, to hear the complaint. If upon such hearing the clerk is satisfied that such trustee is insolvent, he shall remove such trustee and appoint some competent person to execute all the trusts created in the original deed of trust, according to its true intent and as fully as if originally appointed trustee therein. (1915, c. 176, s. 1; C. S. 1612.)

Cross Reference.—As to appointment of successor to incompetent trustee, generally, see § 45-9.

§ 23-6. Trustee removed on petition of creditors; substitute appointed.—Upon the written petition of one-fourth of the number of the creditors of the grantor or assignor whose claims aggregate more than fifty per cent of the total indebtedness of said grantor or assignor, the clerk of the superior court of the county in which said deed of trust or deed of assignment is registered, upon a notice of not more than ten days to said trustee of said petition, shall remove said trustee and appoint some competent person to execute the provisions of such deed of trust or deed of assignment. (1909, c. 918, s. 3; C. S. 1614.)

§ 23-7. Substituted trustee to give bond.—Upon the removal or resignation of any trustee it is the duty of the clerk to require the person appointed to execute the provisions of such deed of trust, before entering upon his duties, to file with the clerk a good and sufficient bond, to be approved by him in a sum double the value of the property in said deed of trust, payable to the state of North Carolina, and conditioned that such person shall faithfully execute and carry into effect the provisions of said deed of trust. (Rev., s. 970; 1893, c. 453, s. 3; 1909, c. 918, s. 4; 1915, c. 176, s. 2; C. S. 1615.)

§ 23-8. Only perishable property sold within ten days of registration.—It is unlawful for any trustee, whether named in such deed of trust or appointed by a clerk of the superior court, to sell any part of the property described in such deed of trust within ten days from the registration thereof, unless such property or some part thereof be perishable, in which case he may sell such property as is perishable, according to the powers conferred upon him in said deed of trust. (Rev., s. 971; 1893, c. 453, s. 4; C. S. 1616.)

§ 23-9. Creditors to file verified claims with clerk; false swearing misdemeanor.—All creditors of the maker of such deed of trust shall, before receiving payment of any amount from the said trustee, file with the clerk of the superior court a statement under oath that the amount claimed by him is justly due, after allowing all credits and offsets, to the best of his knowledge and belief. Any creditor who shall knowingly swear falsely in such statement shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Rev., ss. 972; 3617; 1893, c. 453, ss. 6, 7; C. S. 1617.)

Creditors Claiming Estoppel.—Creditors, who claim under a deed of trust and file their claims to share in the proceeds of sale, cannot be heard to impeach its provisions. Chard v. Warren, 122 N. C. 75, 29 S. E. 373.

§ 23-10. Priority of payments by trustee.—The trustee, after paying the necessary costs of the administration of the trust, shall pay as speedily as possible (1) all debts which are a lien upon any of the trust property in his hands, to the extent of the net proceeds of the property upon which such debt is a lien; (2) wages due to workmen, clerks, traveling or city salesmen, or servants, which have been earned within three months before registration of said deed of trust or deed of assignment, and (3) all other debts equally ratable. (1909, c. 918, s. 5; C. S. 1618.)

No Discrimination Except as Provided.—Except for the two classes mentioned in this section all discrimination among creditors is forbidden. Wooten v. Taylor, 159 N. C. 604, 608, 76 S. E. 11.

§ 23-11. Trustee to account quarterly; final account in twelve months.—The trustee, whether named in the deed of trust or appointed by a clerk of a superior court, shall within three months from the registration of such deed of trust, and at each succeeding period of three months, file with the clerk of the superior court of the county in which the same is registered an account under oath, stating in detail his receipts and disbursements and his action as trustee, and within twelve months he shall file his final account of his administration of his trust. The clerk may upon good cause shown extend the time within which the quarterly and final accounts herein provided for are to be filed. (Rev., s. 973; 1893, c. 453, s. 8; C. S. 1619.)

§ 23-12. Trustee violating duties guilty of misdeemeanor.—If any trustee in a deed of trust for the benefit of creditors shall fail to file his inventory as required by law, or shall knowingly make any false statement in such inventory, or shall knowingly fail to include any property therein, or shall sell any part of the property described in the deed of trust within ten days unless such property so sold be perishable, or shall fail to file either of the quarterly accounts or the final accounts as required by law, or shall knowingly make any false statement in such quarterly or final account, or shall knowingly fail to include any property, money or disbursement in such quarterly or final account, he shall, in either case, be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Rev., s. 3689; 1893, c. 453, s. 8; C. S. 1620.)

Art. 2. Petition of Insolvent for Assignment for Creditors.

§ 23-13. Petition; schedule; inventory; affidavit. —Every insolvent debtor may present a petition in the superior court, praying that his estate may be assigned for the benefit of all his creditors, and that his person may thereafter be exempt from arrest or imprisonment on account of any judgment previously rendered or of any debts previously contracted. On presenting such petition, every insolvent shall deliver therewith a schedule containing an account of his creditors and an inventory of his estate, which inventory shall contain—

1. A full and true account of his creditors, with the place of residence of each, if known, and the sum owing to each creditor, whether on written security, on account, or otherwise.

2. A full and true inventory of his estate, real and personal, with the encumbrances existing thereon, and all books, vouchers and securities relating thereto.

3. A full and true inventory of all property, real and personal, claimed by him as exempt from sale by execution.

He shall annex to his petition and schedule the following affidavit, which must be taken and subscribed by him before the clerk of the superior court, and must be certified by such officer:

I. ............. do swear (or affirm) that the account of my creditors, with the places of their residence, and the inventory of my estate, which are herewith delivered, are in all respects just and true; that I have not at any time or in any manner disposed of or made over any part of my estate for the future benefit of myself or my family, or in order to defraud any of my creditors; and that I have not paid, secured to be paid, or in any way compounded with any of my creditors, with a view that they, or any of them, should abstain or desist from opposing my discharge: so help me, God. (Rev., s. 1930; Code, ss. 2942, 2943, 2944; 1868-9, c. 162, ss. 1, 2, 3; C. S. 1621.)

Cross References.—As to prohibiting imprisonment for debt, see Const., Art. I, §§ 16, 17. As to provisional remedies by arrest and bail, see § 1-409 et seq. See also, § 1-311 as to execution against the person.

Constitutional Provisions.—The Constitution gives, in express terms, to the Legislature the power to regulate the manner in which a debtor shall surrender his property for the use of his creditors, and he must pursue the regulations which may be thus prescribed, in order to secure his person from arrest for his debt. Crain v. Long, 14 N. C. 371.

When Debtor Not under Arrest.—A petitioner not under arrest must show that he has complied with the provisions of this section and obtain an order of discharge under sections 23-14, 23-15. Howie v. Spittle, 156 N. C. 180, 72 S. E. 207.

Facts Set Out.—Defendant having filed the schedule of his property, it was not only proper, but necessary, that he should set out the facts, which are required, is one entitling the defendant to the benefit of this section for the relief of insolvent debtors. Edwards v. Sorrell, 150 N. C. 712, 716, 64 S. E. 898.

Defendant in Alienation of Affections.—A suit by one charging the defendant to alienating the affections of his wife, and arresting and holding him for bail under the affidavits required, is one entitling the defendant to the benefit of this section for the relief of insolvent debtors. Edwards v. Sorrell, 150 N. C. 712, 64 S. E. 898.

§ 23-14. Clerk to give notice of petition.—On receiving the petition, schedule and affidavit, the clerk of the superior court shall make an order requiring all the creditors of such insolvent to show cause before said officer, within thirty days after publication of the order, why the prayer of the petition should not be granted, and shall post a notice of the contents of the order at the courthouse door and three other public places in the county where the application is made for four successive weeks; or, in lieu thereof, shall publish the same for three successive weeks in any newspaper published in said county, or in an adjoining county. (Rev., s. 1931; Code, ss. 2945, 2946; 1868-9, c. 162, ss. 4, 5; C. S. 1622.)

§ 23-15. Order of discharge and appointment of trustee.—If no creditor oppose the discharge of the insolvent, the clerk of the superior court shall determine an order of discharge and appoint a trustee of all the estate of such insolvent. (Rev., s. 1932; Code, ss. 2947, 2948; 1868-9, c. 162, ss. 4, 5; C. S. 1623.)

§ 23-16. Terms and effect of order of discharge. —The order of discharge shall declare that the petition of such insolvent shall forever thereafter be exempted from arrest or imprisonment on account of any judgment, or by reason of any debt due at the time of such order, or contracted for before that time, though payable afterwards. But no debt, demand, judgment or decree against any insolvent, discharged under this chapter, shall be affected or impaired by such discharge, but the same shall remain valid and effectual against all the property of such insolvent acquired after his discharge and the appointment of a trustee; and the lien of any judgment or decree upon the property of such insolvent shall not be in any manner...
§ 23-17. CH. 23. DEBTOR AND CREDITOR

Suggestion of fraud by opposing creditor.—Every creditor opposing the discharge of the insolvent may suggest fraud and set forth the particulars thereof in writing, verified by his oath: but the insolvent shall not be compelled to answer the suggestions of fraud in more than one case, though as many creditors as choose may make themselves parties to the issues in such cases. (Rev. s. 1934; Code, s. 2948; 1868-9, c. 162, s. 7; C. S. 1625.)

In Bastardy Proceeding.—A mother of a bastard child, to whom an allowance has been made in bastardy proceedings, is such a creditor of the father of such child as to permit him to oppose the insolvent’s discharge by suggesting fraud in answer to his petition. State v. Parsons, 115 N. C. 730, 20 S. E. 511.

Sale or Assignment to Fine and Costs.—When defendant in bastardy proceedings has been ordered to pay a fine and costs and allowed to the mother, only the State can suggest fraud as to the fine and costs. State v. Parsons, 115 N. C. 730, 20 S. E. 511.

Answer Does Not Suggest Fraud.—One who has another arrested and held to bail for alienating the affections of the mother does not raise an issue or suggestion of fraud under this section by answering the petition for discharge, and denying a statement therein made by petitioner that he is advised by counsel that, owing to the condition of the title to certain land scheduled, an execution could not issue against it, as such statement is surplusage. Edwards v. Sorrell, 150 N. C. 712, 64 S. E. 598.

All Creditors Notified May Be Joined.—Where a debtor is arrested under different causes, sa’s. at the instance of several creditors, if he applies for his discharge as an insolvent debtor, and fraud is suggested in answer to his application, he has a right to require that all the creditors he may notify shall join in the trial of one issue, and the court will so direct. Williams v. Floyd, 27 N. C. 649.

Suggestion of Fraud Waived.—But this is for the case of the debtor, and he may waive the privilege by joining issue with each creditor, and then a verdict in his favor in one case will not discharge him from the responsibility in the case of another creditor. Williams v. Floyd, 27 N. C. 649.

Art. 3. Trustee for Estate of Debtor Imprisoned for Crime.

§ 23-18. Persons who may apply for trustee for imprisoned debtor.—When any debtor is imprisoned in the penitentiary for any term, or in a county jail for any term more than twelve months, application by petition may be made by any creditor, the debtor, or by his wife, or any of his relatives, for the appointment of a trustee to take charge of the estate of such debtor. (Rev. s. 1943; Code, s. 2974; 1868-9, c. 162, s. 40; C. S. 1636.)

§ 23-19. Superior court appoints; copy of sentence to be produced.—The application must be made to the superior court of the county where the debtor was convicted; and upon producing a copy of the sentence of such debtor, duly certified by the clerk of the court, together with an affidavit of the applicant that such debtor is actually imprisoned, the court shall appoint such trustee, and instruct him in any sum, the clerk or the judge may immediately appoint a trustee of the estate of such debtor. (Rev. s. 1944; Code, s. 2975; 1868-9, c. 162, ss. 41, 42; C. S. 1627.)

§ 23-20. Duties of trustee; accounting; oath.—The trustee of the imprisoned debtor shall pay his debts pro rata. After paying such debts, the trustee shall apply the surplus, from time to time, to the support of the wife and children of the debtor, under the direction of the superior court. When the imprisoned debtor is lawfully discharged from his imprisonment, the trustee shall deliver to him all the estate, real and personal, of such debtor, after retaining a sufficient sum to satisfy the expenses incurred in the execution of the trust and lawful commissions therefor. The trustee shall make his returns and have his account audited and settled by the clerk of the superior court of the county in which the proceedings was had, in like manner as provided for personal representatives. Before proceeding to the discharge of his duty, the trustee shall take and subscribe an oath, well and truly to execute his trust according to his best skill and understanding. The oath must be filed with the clerk of the superior court. (Rev. ss. 1914, 1945, 1946, 1947; Code. ss. 2976, 2978, 2979; 1868-9, c. 162, ss. 43, 45, 46; C. S. 1628.)

§ 23-21. Court may appoint several trustees.—The court has power, when deemed necessary, to appoint more than one person trustee under this chapter; but in reference to the rights, authorities and duties conferred herein, all such trustees shall be deemed one person in law. (Rev., s. 1948; Code, s. 2980; 1868-9, c. 162, s. 47; C. S. 1639.)

§ 23-22. Court may remove trustee and appoint successor.—In case of the death, removal, resignation or other disability of a trustee, the court making the appointment may from time to time supply the vacancy; and all proceedings may be continued by the successor in office in like manner as in the first instance. (Rev., s. 1949; Code, s. 2981; 1868-9, c. 162, s. 48; C. S. 1630.)

Art. 4. Discharge of Insolvent Debtors.

§ 23-23. Insolvent debtor’s oath.—Prisoners in order to be entitled to discharge from imprisonment under the provisions of this article shall take the following oath:

I, ........, do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I have not the worth of fifty dollars in any worldly substance, in debts, money or otherwise whatsoever, and that I have not at any time since my imprisonment or before, directly or indirectly, sold or assigned, or otherwise disposed of, or made over in trust for myself or my family, any part of my real or personal estate, whereby to have or expect any benefit or to defraud any of my creditors: so help me God. (Rev., s. 1918a; Code, s. 2972; R. C., c. 59, s. 1; 1773, c. 100, s. 1; 1808, c. 746, s. 2; 1810, c. 797, s. 803; 1830, c. 33; 1838, c. 23; 1840, cc. 33, 34; 1852, c. 49; 1868-9, c. 162, s. 31; 1881, c. 76; C. S. 1631.)

Constitutional.—This section does not contravene the constitutional provision in regard to homestead and personal property exemptions as the prisoner can discharge himself from custody by paying the fine and costs or by complying with the provisions of this article and taking the oath prescribed. State v. Williams, 97 N. C. 414, 416, 2 S. E. 370.

Liberal Construction.—In Wood v. Wood, 61 N. C. 358, it is stated that ch. 59 of the Rev. Code (the provisions of which are contained in this and the following sections) has always received a liberal interpretation.

Debtor Must Follow Provisions.—The Constitution gives, in express terms, to the Legislature, the power to regulate the manner in which a debtor shall surrender his property
§ 23-24. Persons imprisoned for nonpayment of costs in criminal cases.—The following persons may be discharged from imprisonment upon complying with this article and § 153-191, 153-193 and 153-194: Every person committed for the fine and costs of any criminal prosecution. (Rev., s. 1915; Code, ss. 2967; R. C., s. 59, s. 1; 1773, c. 100, s. 1; 1808, c. 746, s. 2; 1810, cc. 797, 802; 1830, c. 33; 1835, c. 23; 1840, cc. 33, 34; 1852, c. 49; 1868-9, c. 162, s. 26; 1933, c. 228, s. 9; C. S. 1632.)

Editor's Note.—Prior to Public Laws 1933, c. 228, sec. 9, this section contained a provision which read as follows: "Every putative father of a bastard committed for failure to pay for its maintenance." This provision was omitted by the amendment.

Purpose.—This section was manifestly intended to be construed as permitting a defendant committed in a proceeding, or found to be the father of a bastard child, to file a petition before the court designating the time when he wished to apply for a discharge. State v. Parsons, 115 N. C. 583, s. 111.

Construed with Sections 153-191 and 153-194.—This section does not repeal those enacted much later, (sections 153-191, 153-194,) but the latter modify it. State v. Manuel, 20 N. C. 571.

Where Workhouse Established.—One committed for the fine and costs of any criminal prosecution, who is imprisoned for twenty days, may be discharged upon complying with provisions of the next section. State v. Davis, 82 N. C. 610; State v. Williams, 97 N. C. 414, 2 S. E. 370, and this is so, although a workhouse has been established by the county court, at the time and place named for the hearing of the case, which warrant every such sheriff or keeper shall obey. (Rev., s. 1917; Code, ss. 2970; R. C., c. 59, s. 1; 1773, c. 100, s. 1; 1808, c. 746, s. 2; 1810, cc. 797, 802; 1830, c. 33; 1838, c. 23; 1840, cc. 33, 34; 1852, c. 49; 1868-9, c. 162, s. 29; C. S. 1634.)

Where Clerk Refuses to Give Oath.—If the clerk should refuse to allow the prisoner to take the oath, the remedy is an appeal to the judge holding the courts of that district, and it is intimated that it is irregular for the judge of an adjoining district to release the prisoner on a writ of habeas corpus. State v. Miller, 97 N. C. 451, 1 S. E. 776.

Twenty Day Provision Mandatory.—Whether a defendant had property or not, he must remain in jail the twenty days, or pay the fine and costs, since the officers could not waive the imprisonment, nor had the judge the power to dispense with it. State v. Davis, 82 N. C. 610, 613.

Improperly Discharged.—Where a defendant arrested and imprisoned for fraud did not tender the oath required by section 23-23, nor surrender his homestead and personal property exemptions, nor file the petition, nor give the notice required by section 23-25, he was improperly discharged upon an affidavit that he had thereby made an assignment of all his property for the benefit of creditors, that he was insolvent at the date of the affidavit insolvent and not worth more than the exemptions allowed him by law as set apart to him. Raisin Fertilizer Co. v. Grubbs, 114 N. C. 470, 19 S. E. 597.

Cross Reference.—See generally the annotations under § 24-26.

§ 23-25. Petition; before whom; notice; service. —Every such person, having remained in prison for twenty days, may apply by petition to the court where the judgment against him was entered, praying to be brought before such court at a time and place to be named in the petition, and to be discharged upon taking the oath hereinbefore prescribed. The applicant shall cause ten days notice of the time and place of filing the petition to be served on the sheriff or other officer by whom he was committed. In cases of conviction before a justice of the peace the clerk of the superior court of the county where the convicted person confined for costs is, may administer the oath and discharge the prisoner. (Rev., s. 1916; Code, ss. 2968, 2969; 1891, c. 195; R. C., c. 59, s. 1; 1773, c. 100, s. 1; 1808, c. 746, s. 2; 1810, cc. 797, 802; 1830, c. 33; 1838, c. 23; 1840, cc. 33, 34; 1852, c. 49; 1868-9, c. 162, s. 26; 1874-5, c. 11; 1868-9, c. 162, s. 27; 1874-4, c. 90; C. S. 1633.)

A Proceeding in the Cause.—The application of an insolvent for the nonpayment of costs is a proceeding in the cause in which he was convicted, and should be made by petition, in the county where the conviction was entered. State v. Miller, 97 N. C. 451, 1 S. E. 776.

Where Clerk Refuses to Give Oath.—If the clerk should refuse to allow the prisoner to take the oath, the remedy is an appeal to the judge holding the courts of that district, and it is intimated that it is irregular for the judge of an adjoining district to release the prisoner on a writ of habeas corpus. State v. Miller, 97 N. C. 451, 1 S. E. 776.

Where Discharge Ineligible.—If the applicant is again committed for the same cause, he shall not be discharge for the time reserved for the taking of the oath. State v. Bryan, 80 N. C. 16.

Effect of Discharge.—The discharge of a debtor from prison, under this section, does not protect the debtor from arrest at the instance of any other creditor than the one at whose suit he was in prison, though such other creditor had notice of the debtor's application to be discharged. Griffin v. Simmons, 50 N. C. 145.

§ 23-26. Warrant issued for prisoner.—The clerk of the superior court, or justice of the peace, before whom such petition is presented shall forthwith issue a warrant to the sheriff, or keeper of the prison, requiring him to bring the prisoner before the court, at the time and place named for the hearing of the case, which warrant every such sheriff or keeper shall obey. (Rev., s. 1917; Code, ss. 2970; R. C., c. 59, s. 1; 1773, c. 100, s. 1; 1808, c. 746, s. 2; 1810, cc. 797, 802; 1830, c. 33; 1838, c. 23; 1840, cc. 33, 34; 1852, c. 49; 1868-9, c. 162, s. 29; C. S. 1634.)

§ 23-27. Proceeding on application. — At the hearing of the petition, if the prisoner has no visible estate, and takes and subscribes the oath or affirmation prescribed in this article, the clerk of the superior court, or justice of the peace, before whom he is brought, shall administer the oath or affirmation to him, and discharge him from imprisonment; of which an entry shall be made in the docket of the court, and, where the proceeding is before a justice of the peace, the justice shall return the petition and orders thereon into the office of the clerk of the superior court to be filed. (Rev., s. 1918; Code, ss. 2971; R. C., c. 59, s. 1; 1773, c. 100, s. 1; 1808, c. 746, s. 2; 1810, cc. 797, 802; 1830, c. 33; 1838, c. 23; 1840, cc. 33, 34; 1852, c. 49; 1868-9, c. 162, s. 30; C. S. 1635.)

Cross Reference.—See generally the annotated sections under § 24-26.

Improperly Discharged. —Where a debtor arrested and imprisoned for fraud did not tender the oath required by section 23-23, nor surrender his homestead and personal property exemptions, nor file the petition, nor give the notice required by section 23-25, he was improperly discharged upon an affidavit that he had thereby made an assignment of all his property for the benefit of creditors, that he was insolvent at the date of the affidavit insolvent and not worth more than the exemptions allowed him by law as set apart to him. Raisin Fertilizer Co. v. Grubbs, 114 N. C. 470, 19 S. E. 597.

§ 23-28. Suggestion of fraud.—The chairman of the board of commissioners, and every officer interested in the fee bill taxed against such prisoner, may oppose his taking the insolvent debtor's oath above prescribed, and file particulars in the suggestion in writing, in the court where the same shall stand for trial as provided by law, for the punishment of this chapter in other cases of fraud or concealment. (Rev., s. 1919; Code, ss. 2973; 1868-9, c. 162, s. 32; C. S. 1636.)
§ 23-32. Persons taken in arrest and bail proceedings, or in execution.—The following persons also are entitled to the benefit of this article as hereinafter provided:

1. Every person taken or charged on any order of arrest for default or bail, or on surrender of bail in any action.

2. Every person taken or charged in execution of arrest for any debt or damages rendered in any action whatever. (Rev., s. 1920; Code, s. 2951; 1868-9, c. 162, s. 10; C. S. 1637.)

Cross Reference.—As to arrest and bail, see §§ 1-409 to 1-49.

Construed with Sections 1-417 and 1-419. — This section should be construed with sections 1-417 and 1-419, and, so construed, the remedies given by this section are in addition to those given by the other sections mentioned. Edwards v. Sorrell, 150 N. C. 712, 64 S. E. 899.

Broad Terms.—The terms of this section are as broad and sweeping as they well can be. They do not, in any view of them as to the purpose intended, imply limitation or discrimination. They plainly embrace "every person," taken or charged to be arrested by virtue of "any order of arrest," not specially for a tort, or for fraud, or other particular cause of action as to which a person may be arrested, but for any cause of action, no matter what may be its nature, if the person is arrested in a case wherein he may lawfully be so arrested. They, in plain, strong terms, embrace any such arrest made or ordered to be made, for any cause whatsoever—that is, an action in which a person—a party—may be so arrested. Burgwyn v. Hall, 108 N. C. 489, 492, 13 S. E. 222.

Same.—Tort Actions Included. — The benefits of the statute extend as well to those arrested for torts as for debt, and the debt growing out of one is no more a debt and no more entitled to an extraordinary process for its collection than the other. Burgwyn v. Hall, 108 N. C. 489, 13 S. E. 222.

Any Cause Specified in Section 1-410. — The provisions of this section extend to and embrace every person arrested or to be arrested in a civil action on account of any cause of action specified in sec. 1-410. Burgwyn v. Hall, 108 N. C. 489, 496, 13 S. E. 222.

Nonresidents Included. — The benefits of the section are not confined to residents of this State. There is no provision in it, or any other statute, within our knowledge, that in terms or by reasonable implication declares that a nonresident shall not be discharged from arrest in a civil action, if he makes the complete surrender of his estate as prescribed. Burgwyn v. Hall, 108 N. C. 489, 496, 13 S. E. 222.

Where Motion to Vacate Denied. — Where a party is under arrest in a civil action and his motion to vacate the arrest has been overruled, he may seek his discharge under the provisions of this section. Wing v. Hooper, 98 N. C. 482, 4 S. E. 463.

Effect on Exemptions.—A judgment debtor against whose person execution has been issued cannot be discharged except by payment, or giving notice and surrender of all property in excess of $30, and the effect of the execution against the person is to deprive him of his homestead and his personal property exemption over and above $30. Oakley v. Lasater, 172 N. C. 96, 89 S. E. 1063.

Meaning of "Debtor and Creditor."—The term "debtor and creditor," employed generally and without precision in the definition of arrest in civil actions, is here taken as meaning and applying to the plaintiff and defendant in the action in which the defendant shall be so arrested. They imply the plaintiff's claiming and suing for damages for a tort, or for fraud, or for some other particular cause of action as to which a person may be arrested. Bur- gwyn v. Hall, 108 N. C. 489, 496, 13 S. E. 222.

Effect of Notice.—The party arrested and so seeking relief must notify the creditors or plaintiff at whose suit he is arrested, but he may or may not notify other creditors of his application to surrender his property and be discharged from arrest, and only such creditors as may be notified will be affected by the discharge. Burgwyn v. Hall, 108 N. C. 489, 492, 13 S. E. 222.

§ 23-30. When petition may be filed.—Every person taken or charged as in the preceding section specified may, at any time after his arrest or imprisonment, petition the court from which the process issued on which he is arrested or imprisoned, for his discharge therefrom, on his compliance with this chapter. (Rev., s. 1921; Code, s. 2962; R. C. c. 59, s. 3; 1868-9, c. 162, s. 11; C. S. 1635.)

Persons Included.—This section in broadest terms embraces "every person taken or charged as in the preceding section specified." Burgwyn v. Hall, 108 N. C. 489, 493, 13 S. E. 222.

Cause of Action Immaterial. — The debtor is entitled to be discharged upon the honest surrender of his property in the way prescribed, whether the cause of action on account of which he was arrested was a fraudulent debt, or a tort, or of other nature as to which he might be arrested. Burgwyn v. Hall, 108 N. C. 489, 493, 13 S. E. 222.

§ 23-31. Petition; contents; verification. — The petition shall set forth the cause of the imprisonment, with the writ or process and complaint on which the same is founded, and shall have annexed to it a just and true account of all his estate, real and personal, and of all charges affecting such estate, as they exist at the time of filing his petition, together with all deeds, securities, books or writings whatever relating to the estate and the charges thereon; and also what property, real and personal, the petitioner claims as exempt from sale under execution, and shall have annexed to it an oath or affirmation, subscribed by the petitioner and taken before any person authorized by law to administer oaths, to the effect following:

I, ..........., the within named petitioner, do swear (or affirm) that the within petition and the account annexed thereto, shall be personally served by such debtor on the creditor or creditors at whose suit he is arrested or imprisoned, and such other creditors as the debtor may choose, or their personal representatives or attorneys. If the person to be notified reside out of the state, and has no agent or attorney in the state, the notice may be served on the officer having the claim to collect, or by two weekly publications in any newspaper in the state. (Rev., s. 1923; Code, s. 2955; R. C. c. 59, ss. 3; 1868-9, c. 162, ss. 12; C. S. 1640.)

§ 23-32. Notice; length of notice and to whom given.—Twenty days notice of the time and place at which the petition will be filed, together with a copy of such petition and the account annexed thereto, shall be personally served by such debtor on the creditor or creditors at whose suit he is arrested or imprisoned, and such other creditors as the debtor may choose, or their personal representatives or attorneys. If the person to be notified reside out of the state, and has no agent or attorney in the state, the notice may be served on the officer having the claim to collect, or by two weekly publications in any newspaper in the state. (Rev., s. 1923; Code, s. 2955; R. C. c. 59, ss. 3; 1868-9, c. 162, ss. 14; C. S. 1640.)

Effect of Notice.—The party arrested and so seeking relief must notify the creditors or plaintiff at whose suit he is arrested, but he may or may not notify other creditors of his application to surrender his property and be discharged from arrest, and only such creditors as may be notified will be affected by the discharge. Burgwyn v. Hall, 108 N. C. 489, 492, 13 S. E. 222.

§ 23-33. Who may suggest fraud.—Every creditor upon whom the notice directed in § 23-32 is served may suggest fraud upon the hearing of the petition, and the issues made up respecting the fraud shall stand for trial as in other cases. (Rev., s. 1924; Code, s. 2956; R. C. c. 59, s. 13; 1822, c. 1131, s. 4; 1835, c. 12; 1868-9, c. 162, s. 15; C. S. 1641.)

Petitioner May Demand Oath and Jury Trial. — A petitioner is entitled to insist that suggestions of fraud, made by a creditor, shall be verified by the oath of the creditor and tried by a jury; and it is error in a judge to decide upon such suggestions, without submitting them in an issue to a jury. Purvis v. Robinson & Co., 49 N. C. 96. See also, State v. Carroll, 51 N. C. 488, 499. [876]
§ 23-34. Where no suggestion of fraud, discharge granted.—If no creditor suggests fraud or opposes the discharge of the debtor, the justice of the peace or the clerk of the superior court before whom the petition is heard shall forthwith discharge the debtor, and, if he surrenders any estate for the benefit of his creditors, shall appoint a trustee of such estate. The order of discharge and appointment shall be entered in the docket of the court, and if granted by a justice of the peace a copy thereof shall be certified by him to the clerk of the superior court, where the same shall be recorded, and filed. (Rev., s. 1925; Code, s. 2857; R. C., c. 59, s. 1; 1773, c. 100; 1808, c. 746, s. 2; 1810, c. 797; 1830, c. 33; 1838, c. 25; 1840, c. 33; 1852, c. 49; 1868-9, c. 162, s. 16; C. S. 1642.)

Proper Remedy to Secure Damages.—The proper remedy of the party seeking to establish and secure his damages for tort is to have a trustee appointed, under this section, to hold and distribute among creditors when and as soon as all debts are ascertained. Burgwyn v. Hall, 108 N. C. 498, 13 S. 2d. 222.

§ 23-35. Continuance granted for cause.—When it appears to the court that any debtor, who may have given bond for his appearance under this chapter, is prevented from attending court by sickness, or other sufficient cause, the case shall be continued to another day, or to the next term, when the same proceedings shall be had as if the debtor had appeared according to the condition of his bond, and in the event of his death in the meantime, his bond shall be discharged. (Rev., s. 1926; Code, s. 2959; R. C., c. 59, s. 10; 1822, c. 1131, s. 1; 1868-9, c. 162, s. 18; C. S. 1643.)

Cross Reference.—As to the insolvent's bond, see § 23-40 and annotations.

When Sickness Excuses.—The extreme sickness of the principal would excuse his nonappearance, and entitle him and his surety to a continuance if that appeared to the court. But where it was not made to appear, the court could not properly continue it. Buis v. Arnold, 51 N. C. 233, 234.

Sickness of Surety No Excuse.—Under this section the sickness of the surety is no excuse for the default of the principal. Speight v. Wooten, 14 N. C. 327.

§ 23-36. Where fraud in issue, discharge only after trial.—After an issue of fraud or concealment is made up, the debtor shall not discharge himself as to the creditors in that issue, except by trial and verdict in the same, or by a discharge by consent. (Rev., s. 1927; Code, s. 2962; R. C., c. 59, s. 17; 1868-9, c. 162, s. 21; C. S. 1644.)

When Applicable.—The provisions of this section only apply to cases where the defendant is in lawful custody and by virtue of an authority competent to order it. Houston & Co. v. Walsh, 79 N. C. 35, 36.

§ 23-37. If fraud found, debtor imprisoned.—If, on the trial, the jury finds that there is any fraud or concealment, the judgment shall be that the debtor be imprisoned until he surrenders any estate, property or effects be made by the debtor. (Rev., s. 1928; Code, s. 2961; R. C., c. 59, s. 14; 1823, c. 1131, s. 4; 1835, c. 12; 1868-9, c. 162, s. 20; C. S. 1645.)

Must Surrender Whole Property.—An insolvent debtor included in his schedule "all his interest in certain property assigned to S. C." On an issue found, the jury found the deed assigning such property fraudulent. It was held, that the debtor should be imprisoned until he makes a surrender of the whole of such property. Hutton v. Sell, 20 N. C. 285.

Not in Execution as to Others.—A debtor convicted of fraudulent concealment of his effects, upon an issue be-tween him and A, and ordered into custody thereupon, according to this section, is not in execution at the suit of B, another creditor, in whose case no such concealment was found or suggested. Folsom v. Gregory, 12 N. C. 231.

§ 23-38. Effect of order of discharge.—The order of discharge under the last four articles of this chapter, whether granted upon a nonsuggestion of fraud, upon the finding of a jury in favor of the debtor, or otherwise, shall be in like terms and have like effect as prescribed in § 23-16; except that the body of such debtor shall be free from arrest or imprisonment at the suit of every creditor as to him only, to whom the notice required may have been given; and the notices, or copies thereof, shall in all cases be filed in the office of the superior court clerk. (Rev., s. 1929; Code, s. 2960; R. C., c. 59, s. 11; 1822, c. 1131, s. 1; 1853, c. 12; 1868-9, c. 162, s. 10; C. S. 1646.)

Debt Not Discharged.—The discharge of the principal, under the insolvent debtor's law, is not a discharge of the debt. Norment v. Alexander, 32 N. C. 71.

Protects against Those Notified.—The discharge of an insolvent protects him from arrest by those creditors only who had notice of his intention to apply for a discharge. Crain v. Long, 14 N. C. 371; Norment v. Alexander, 32 N. C. 71; Rountree v. Waddill, 52 N. C. 309, 312.

Art. 5. General Provisions under Articles 2, 3, and 4.

§ 23-39. Superior court tries issue of fraud.—In every case where an issue of fraud is made up as provided in this chapter, the case shall be entered in the trial docket of the superior court, and stand for trial as other causes; and upon a finding by the jury in favor of the petitioner the judge shall discharge the debtor; if the finding is against the petitioner he shall be committed to jail until he makes full disclosure. (Rev., s. 1935; Code, s. 2949; 1868-9, c. 162, s. 8; C. S. 1647.)

In General.—Upon the suggestion of fraud an issue is raised which should be entered upon the trial docket of the superior court and stand for trial as other causes. State v. Parsons, 115 N. C. 739, 20 S. E. 511.

When Issue Can Be Made Up.—When one who applies to take the insolvent debtor's oath, upon rendering a schedule, sets forth in his schedule that he has made a deed in trust of certain property to satisfy certain creditors, and surrenders all his interest in such deed, it is still competent for the opposing creditor to have an issue made up whether the said deed is not fraudulent, and if found fraudulent by a jury, to cause the debtor to be imprisoned until he makes a surrender of the whole property so conveyed. Adams v. Alexander, 23 N. C. 501.

When Jury Finds Deed Fraudulent.—Where an insolvent debtor, in filing his schedule, only surrenders his interest in certain property, conveyed by a deed in trust, and the jury, upon an issue, find the deed fraudulent, he must be imprisoned until he makes a surrender of the whole property so conveyed. Hutton v. Sel, 28 N. C. 285.

§ 23-40. Insolvent released on giving bond.—Every debtor entitled under the provisions of this chapter to discharge as an insolvent may, at the time of filing his application for a discharge or at any time afterwards, tender to the sheriff or other officer having his body in charge, a bond, with sufficient surety, in double the amount of the sum due any creditor or creditors at whose suit he was taken or charged, conditioned for the appearance of such debtor before the court where his petition is filed, at the hearing thereof, and to stand to and abide by the final order or decree of the court in the case. If such bond be satisfactory to the sheriff, he shall forthwith release such debtor from custody. (Rev., s. 1936; Code, s. [877]
When Bond May Be Given.—The insolvent may give bond during the pendency of and until the final determination of the proceedings. Howie v. Spittle, 156 N. C. 183, 72 S. E. 207.

Sufficient Compliance.—A condition "to appear and claim, etc., and not depart without leave," is substantially the same as that prescribed by the defendant's appearance. Quere? Winslow v. Anderson, 20 N. C. 2.

Return Day Must Be Certain.—The bond for the defendant's appearance, under this section connected with the execution, is in the nature of process to compel an appearance, and the return day thereof must be certain. Winslow v. Anderson, 20 N. C. 2.

Where State in Bond Erroneous.—Where a bond was conditioned for the defendant's appearance at the next term of court to be held upon a stated day, and, at the next term which sat at a date earlier than that mentioned in the bond, the defendant did not appear, it was error to take a judgment against him and his surety for default since there was no default of appearance according to the bond. Winslow v. Anderson, 20 N. C. 2.

Invalid Surrender.—Where a prisoner was brought into the jail as a debtor, while under the process of arrest, and was thereupon ordered to prepare a bond to be given for the appearance of the imprisoned debtor within a stated time, was it error to refuse to receive the bond for the appearance of the defendant, which was not signed by the plaintiff or his agent? Bunting v. Mcllhenny, 61 N. C. 10.

Where Ca. Sa. Voidable.—When a defendant gave bond under this section for the appearance of an insolvent to court, is good if it is for double the original debt, exclusive of interest and costs, and judgment, on motion, may be rendered on it. Williams v. Cross, 13 N. C. 3.

Defendant Cannot Object to Bond.—A defendant who has given bond under this section cannot object to the in forma- lity of the bond, and pray a discharge on account thereof. Hager v. Smedes, 1 N. C. 113.

Where Ca. Sa. Voidable.—Where a defendant gave bond under the insolvent act, and while he is at large by virtue thereof, he is not entitled to his discharge on account of the fact that the condition of the bond was broken, nor can he move, under such circumstances, to quash the proceedings on that account. Bryan v. Brooks, 51 N. C. 580.

Defendant Bound to Attend.—The defendant in a ca. sa. bond, given under this section is bound to attend at every term until the cause is finally disposed of. Arrington v. Bass, 14 N. C. 95.

Sufficient Compliance.—A condition "to appear and claim, etc., and not depart without leave," is substantially the same as that prescribed by the defendant's appearance. Quere? Winslow v. Anderson, 20 N. C. 2.

Return Day Must Be Certain.—The bond for the defendant's appearance, under this section connected with the execution, is in the nature of process to compel an appearance, and the return day thereof must be certain. Winslow v. Anderson, 20 N. C. 2.

Bunting v. Mcllhenny, 61 N. C. 10.

Where Ca. Sa. Voidable.—When a defendant gave bond under this section for the appearance of an insolvent to court, is good if it is for double the original debt, exclusive of interest and costs, and judgment, on motion, may be rendered on it. Williams v. Cross, 13 N. C. 3.

Defendant Cannot Object to Bond.—A defendant who has given bond under this section cannot object to the in forma- lity of the bond, and pray a discharge on account thereof. Hager v. Smedes, 1 N. C. 113.

Where Ca. Sa. Voidable.—When a defendant gave bond under the insolvent act, and while he is at large by virtue thereof, he is not entitled to his discharge on account of the fact that the condition of the bond was broken, nor can he move, under such circumstances, to quash the proceedings on that account. Bryan v. Brooks, 51 N. C. 580.

in relation to personal representatives over the estates of deceased persons; but all debts shall be paid by the trustees pro rata. (Rev., s. 1941; Code, s. 2977; R. C., c. 59, ss. 21, 22; 1773, c. 100; ss 5, 6; 1827, c. 44; 1830, c. 26, s. 2; 1868-9, c. 162, s. 44; C. S. 1652.)

§ 23-45. Jail bounds.—Any imprisoned debtor may take the benefit of the prison bounds by giving security, as required by law, except as follows:

1. A debtor against whom an issue of fraud is found.
2. Any debtor who, for other cause, is adjudged to be imprisoned until he makes a full and fair disclosure or account of his property. (Rev., s. 1942; Code, s. 2966; R. C., c. 59, ss. 27; 1818, c. 964; 1868-9, c. 162, s. 25; C. S. 1653.)

Cross Reference.—As to regulations regarding prison bounds, see § 153-54.

Art. 6. Practice in Insolvency and Certain Other Proceedings.

§ 23-46. Unlawful to solicit claims of creditors in proceedings. — It shall be unlawful for any individual, corporation, or firm or other association of persons, to solicit of any creditor any claim of such creditor in order that such individual, corporation, firm or association may represent such creditor or present or vote such claim, in any bankruptcy or insolvency proceeding, or in any action or proceeding for or growing out of the appointment of a receiver, or in any matter involving an assignment for the benefit of creditors. (1931, c. 298, s. 1.)

Cross Reference.—As to restrictions on appearance for creditor in insolvency proceedings, etc., see § 24-9.

Editor's Note.—See 9 N. C. Law Rev. 348.

§ 23-47. Violation of preceding section a misdemeanor.—Any individual, corporation, or firm or other association of persons violating any provision of § 23-46 shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (1931, c. 298, s. 3.)

Art. 7. Bankruptcy of Taxing, etc., Districts, Counties, Cities, Towns and Villages.

§ 23-48. Local units authorized to avail themselves of provisions of bankruptcy law. — With the approval of the local government commission of North Carolina and with the consent of the holders of such percentage or percentages of its indebtedness as may be required by Public Act Number three hundred two of the Seventy-fifth Congress, First Session, entitled "An Act to amend an Act entitled 'An Act to establish a uniform system of bankruptcy throughout the United States' approved July first, one thousand eight hundred ninety-eight and Acts amendatory thereof and supplementary thereto," approved August sixteenth, one thousand nine hundred thirty-seven, as amended, any taxing district, local improvement district, school district, county, city, town or village in the state of North Carolina is authorized to avail itself of the provisions of said act of congress as said act now exists or may be hereafter amended. (1939, c. 203.)

Editor's Note.—For comment on this enactment, see 17 N. C. L. Rev. 343.

Chapter 24. Interest.

Sec. 24-1. Legal rate is six per cent.

Sec. 24-2. Penalty for usury; corporate bonds may be sold below par.

Sec. 24-3. Time from which interest runs.

Sec. 24-4. Obligations due guardians to bear compound interest; rate of interest.

§ 24-1. Legal rate is six per cent.—The legal rate of interest shall be six per cent per annum for such time as interest may accrue, and no more. (Rev., s. 1950; Code, s. 3835; 1895, c. 69; 1876-7, c. 91; S. 2305.)

Editor's Note.—The distinction between the "legal rate" of interest, and the "lawful rate" of interest, which is maintained in some states, and which appears in some of the older cases of this State, Burwell v. Burgwyn, 100 N. C. 399, 392, 6 S. E. 409, has not been preserved. Legal rate of interest implied the maximum rate at which interest could be charged upon an obligation in the absence of stipulation as to the rate; and a lawful rate of interest implied that rate of interest which could be lawfully stipulated without incurring the penalty of law. The former was six per cent, the latter eight. See Burwell v. Burgwyn, 100 N. C. 399, 392, 6 S. E. 409. This distinction is now abolished; as the maximum rate at which interest may be charged, with or without stipulation of the rate, cannot exceed six per centum per annum, under the provisions of this and the succeeding section.

This section declares the policy of the state with regard to usury. Pinnix v. Maryland Cas. Co., 214 N. C. 760, 767, 200 S. E. 874.

Definition.—Interest is the compensation allowed by law, or fixed by the parties, for the use or forbearance of money, as damages for its detention. Brown v. Halts, 15 Wall. 177, 185, 21 L. Ed. 128.

Interest is not costs in any sense, and, when allowed, it should be decreed as damages, and be added to the damages awarded. The "Wantart," etc. v. Avery et al., 95 U. S. 600, 615, 24 L. Ed. 461.

Within the Province of Legislature.—It is within the exclusive province of the lawmaking power to prescribe upon what conditions and at what rate interest can be allowed or contracted for, and what shall be a forfeiture of the right to collect it. Moore v. Beamam, 112 N. C. 558, 564, 17 S. E. 676.

Where Interest Rate Not Specified.—Where the statute providing for recovery of taxes does not specify the rate of interest to be employed, it is likely that the "legal rate," six per cent per annum, applies. See 12 N. C. Law Rev. 39.

A contract will be declared usurious when it appears that it was the purpose and intent of the lender to charge and receive a greater rate of interest than that allowed by law under this section. Polikoff v. Finance Service Co., 201 N. C. 631, 172 S. E. 356.

Insurance Companies Not Authorized to Charge Interest in Excess of Legal Rate.—Section 58-52 dealing with loans by insurance companies secured by insurance policies does not authorize insurance companies to charge interest in excess of the legal rate prescribed in this section. Cowan v Security Life, etc., Co., 211 N. C. 18, 188 S. E. 812.

§ 24-2. Penalty for usury; corporate bonds may be sold below par.—The taking, receiving, reserving or charging a greater rate of interest than six per cent per annum, either before or after the interest may accrue, when knowingly done, shall be a forfeiture of the entire interest which the note or other evidence of debt carries with it, or which has been agreed to be paid thereon. And in case a greater rate of interest has been paid, the person, or his legal representatives or corporation by whom it has been paid, may recover twice the amount of interest paid in an action in the nature of action for debt. In any action brought in any court of competent jurisdiction to recover upon any such note or other evidence of debt, or otherwise agreed to be paid thereon, is, under the use of money, then the party against whom the action is brought to plead as a counter-evidence of debt, it is lawful for the party against whom the action is brought to plead as a counter-claim the penalty above provided for, to wit, twice the amount of interest paid as aforesaid, and also the forfeiture of the entire interest. Nothing contained in this section or in § 24-1, however, shall be held or construed to prohibit private corporations from paying a commission on the sale of their coupon bonds, nor from selling such bonds for less than the par value thereof. I. GENERAL CONSIDERATION.

Editor's Note.—The former statute (Rev. Code, ch. 114; Rev. Stat. 1901, c. 117) denounced a usurious contract as void and charged, the contract is not invalidated as to the principal, but the entire interest carried by the note or other evidence of debt or the interest otherwise agreed to be paid thereon, is, under the use of money, then the party against whom the action is brought to plead as a counter-evidence, or the corporation by whom the same has been paid, may recover twice the amount paid in an action in the nature of action for debt. Sloan v. Ins. Co., 189 N. C. 690, 188 S. E. 374; Pate v. Morgan, etc., Corp., 193 N. C. 422, 147 S. E. 529; Ripple v. Mortgage, etc., Corp., 193 N. C. 422, 147 S. E. 529; also McRae v. Osborne, 179 N. C. 667, 103 S. E. 388, 13 A. L. R. 1207.

Our statute is copied from the national banking act, and has gone into the laws of many states in exactly the same form. Pinnix v. Maryland Cas. Co., 214 N. C. 760, 765, 200 S. E. 874.

The usury laws are strictly construed, and usury must be pleaded. Dixon v. Smith, 204 N. C. 480, 168 S. E. 683.

Purpose of Statute—Distinction between the New and the Old Statute.—Both the former and present statutes were enacted in restraint of excessive interest for the same general policy, and especially on the idea of protecting the borrower against the oppression of the lender, the chief difference being that a violation under the old statute in- tended to induce an observance of the statute, whereas this law leaves the contract valid as to the principal, but makes the interest forfeitable. Moore v. Woodward, 83 N. C. 531, 533. As to the Beneficent Result of These Laws—Avoiding Charging Usury or an Illegal Rate of Interest are enacted for the benefit of the borrower. Ector v. Osborne, 179 N. C. 667, 103 S. E. 388.

Effect of Contract to Carry out Legislative Intent.—The forfeiture of the entire unpaid interest and recovery back of twice the interest paid is in the nature of a penalty intended to induce an observance of the statute, and it is the duty of the courts so to expound and apply the law as to carry out the legislative intent. Moore v. Woodward, 83 N. C. 531, 533.

Enforceability in the Absence of Penalty.—Even in the absence of a penalty on charging usurious interest, such as is prescribed in this section, the contract must be held, as prescribed by law would not be enforceable. Hughes v. Rosenberg, 102 N. C. 137, 7 S. E. 286.

Four Requisites of Usurious Transaction.—In order to constitute a usurious transaction, four requisites must appear: (1) there must be a loan, express or implied; (2) that for such loan an interest above the one prescribed by law would not be enforceable. Hughes v. Boones, 116 N. C. 137, 17 S. E. 286.

Forfeiture of Indebtedness or Loan of Money Essential.—It is universally held that in order that a transaction may be held usurious under the statutes against usury it is essential that there should be a contract for the forbearance of an existing indebtedness or a loan of money. Struthers v. Drexel, 122 U. S. 487, 7 S. Ct. 1293, 30 I. Ed. 1216. See 29 Am. and Eng. Enc., p. 464, sec. 4, and note 5, where a large number of cases are cited in support of the text. There is no exception to this universal rule, that there must be an extension of credit and an illegal compensation for it, knowingly taken, in order to constitute usury. This is the essential, constant element in the Charge Usurious Interest.—Where the lender of money intentionally charges the borrower a greater rate of interest than the law allows, and his purpose stands clearly revealed on the face of the instrument, a corrupt intent to violate the usury law on the part of the lender is shown. Riley v. Sears, 154 N. C. 599, 70 S. E. 997.

Effect of Charging and Collecting Usury.—Where a usurious rate of interest on money has been paid by the borrower of money, the mortgagee is entitled to the entire amount of the debt, plus six per cent interest thereon, in accordance with the general rule of law.
Riley v. Sears, 154 N. C. 599, 70 S. E. 997.

Where Person Is Not Entitled to Statutory Penalty.—Where a debtor seeks the aid of a court on the ground that his debt is tainted with usury, he may have the statutory penalty imposed upon him, in the event that there are legal proceedings to enforce it, the defendant, and may not thereafter maintain the defense that a note or instrument was tainted with the usury

Usurious Interest Accused upon Bonds Other Than the Same—Consent Judgment.—By consent judgment enforced in an action upon a note, wherein usury was set up by the defendant, and the parties have agreed upon a compromise in a certain sum, signed and entered by the court, the defendant waives his right under our usury law, and may not thereafter maintain the defense that a note he had given the plaintiff, in the amount of the judgment, was tainted with the usury of the first transaction. Ector
v. Osborne, 179 N. C. 667, 103 S. E. 388.

Users of Money Without Contract.—Where Person Is Not Entitled to Statutory Penalty.—

Where a transaction is in reality a loan of money, whatever may be its form, and the lender charges for the use of his money a sum in excess of interest at the legal rate, he has given the plaintiff, in the amount of the judgment,
was tainted with the usury of the first transaction. Ector
v. Osborne, 179 N. C. 667, 103 S. E. 388.

Revenue Interest Declared a Forfeiture.—The statute makes the "taking, receiving, reserving or charging usury," when knowningly done, i.e., intentionally done, and not by a mere error of calculation, a forfeiture (not mere forfeitable) of the entire interest which the note carries with it, where the money was lent for usurious interest so paid, notwithstanding that he was in pari delicto in the transaction. Hollowell v. Building, etc., Association, 120 N. C. 266, 26 S. E. 781.

Overpayment by Mistake.—In an action to recover for overpayment of interest, when interest was not charged, the defendant may set up the defense of usury upon the agreement that the sole consideration of the bond secured by the mortgage was usurious interest, which had accrued upon the other claims executed by the defendant to the plain-

Promise of Interest Void—Note Valid.—A note executed and delivered as evidence of the promise of the maker to pay to the payee or his order a sum of money which has been advanced by the payee for the use of the maker, for the use of the payee, is void, although the payee has, knowingly, taken, received, reserved, or charged interest on the note at a greater rate than six per cent per annum, which is the legal rate in this State; and no penalty can be had for the forfeiture of double the interest as a punishment for usury, since, upon the allegation of such over-payment by mistake, no legal implications arise that the credit is in pari delicto in the transaction. Federal Reserve Bank v. Jones, 205 N. C. 648, 650, 172 S. E. 185.

Identity with Provisions of National Bank Act.—Our statutes for usury are identical with those provisions of the Building and Loan Association, 119 N. C. 249, 255, 26 S. E. 41.

Effect of Repeal of Old Law.—A contract absolutely void under the old law for being usurious, is not validated by the repeal of that law and the enactment of this section which does not invalidate the principal of a usurious con-

II. SUBSTANCE CONTROLS NATURE OF TRANSACTION.

A. The General Doctrine.

Form of Transaction Cannot Conceal Its Usurious Nature.—An express or implied loan, upon the understanding that the money shall be returned at a greater interest rate than the statute allows, whether the transaction is called a loan, a discount, a discount note, a bank loan, a mortgage, a mortgage note, or whatever other name may be given it, such loan or transaction is usurious under our usury law, and the contract is therefore void, although the parties have agreed in writing that the money shall be returned at a greater interest rate than that allowed by law. Loan & Trust Co. v. Yokley, 174 N. C. 573, 94 S. E. 102.

Where a transaction is in reality a loan of money, whatever may be its form, and the lender charges for the use of his money a sum in excess of interest at the legal rate, by whatever name the charge may be called, the transaction will be held to be usurious. The law considers the substance and not the mere form or outward appearance of the transaction. If this were not so, the usury laws of the State would be evaded by lenders of money who would exact from borrowers with impunity compensation in the form of a loan, whereas the legal rate is exceeded. Ripple v. Mortgage, etc., Corp., 193 N. C. 422, 424, 137 S. E. 156.

The courts do not hesitate to look beneath the forms of transactions alleged to be usurious in order to determine what is the reality. If this were not so, the usury laws of the State would be evaded by lenders of money who would exact from borrowers with impunity compensation in the form of a loan, whereas the legal rate is exceeded. Ripple v. Mortgage, etc., Corp., 193 N. C. 422, 424, 137 S. E. 156.

The nature and terms of the contract determine its character as a loan and payment of a rate of interest in excess of that allowed by law, the interest thus received is usurious and comes within the intent and meaning of the statute forbidding usury. English Lumber Co. v. Wachovia Bank & Trust Co., 102 S. E. 205, 206. Between Bank and Its Customer.—Where the bank has followed an arrangement made by its depositors that the latter keep a certain per cent. of the money borrowed payable in another state, the court will not be concerned with whether or not such transactions are in truth and in reality usurious. In Bank v. Wysong, 177 N. C. 380, 99 S. E. 199, Justice Walker, speaking of a transaction alleged to be usurious, says: "This kind of usurious usury must be conceived as a bare form. But the courts have invariably stripped it of its flimsy disguises, and decided according to its substance, and its tendency and effect, when the purpose and intent of the lender is unmistakable." Ripple v. Mortgage, etc., Corp., 193 N. C. 422, 424, 137 S. E. 156.

Where there is negotiation for a loan of money, and the borrower agrees to return the amount advanced at all events, it is a contract of lending; and however the transaction may be shaped or disguised, if a profit or return beyond the legal rate of interest is intended to be made out of the necessities or improvidence of the borrower, whether in the form of a contract or otherwise, the courts will look to its substance and not to its mere form or outward appearance. The nature and terms of the contract determine its character as a loan and payment of a rate of interest in excess of that allowed by law, the interest thus received is usurious and comes within the intent and meaning of the statute forbidding usury. English Lumber Co. v. Wachovia Bank & Trust Co., 102 S. E. 205, 206. Between Bank and Its Customer.—Where the bank has followed an arrangement made by its depositors that the latter keep a certain per cent. of the money borrowed payable in another state, the court will not be concerned with whether or not such transactions are in truth and in reality usurious. In Bank v. Wysong, 177 N. C. 380, 99 S. E. 199, Justice Walker, speaking of a transaction alleged to be usurious, says: "This kind of usurious usury must be conceived as a bare form. But the courts have invariably stripped it of its flimsy disguises, and decided according to its substance, and its tendency and effect, when the purpose and intent of the lender is unmistakable." Ripple v. Mortgage, etc., Corp., 193 N. C. 422, 424, 137 S. E. 156.

Where there is negotiation for a loan of money, and the borrower agrees to return the amount advanced at all events, it is a contract of lending; and however the transaction may be shaped or disguised, if a profit or return beyond the legal rate of interest is intended to be made out of the necessities or improvidence of the borrower, whether in the form of a contract or otherwise, the courts will look to its substance and not to its mere form or outward appearance. The nature and terms of the contract determine its character as a loan and payment of a rate of interest in excess of that allowed by law, the interest thus received is usurious and comes within the intent and meaning of the statute forbidding usury. English Lumber Co. v. Wachovia Bank & Trust Co., 102 S. E. 205, 206.

Section Paid to Trust Company Held to Be a Reasonable Brokerage Fee.—$2,600 paid to a trust company for its services in handling ninety $1,000 bonds bearing interest at the legal rate was held not to constitute usury, but a reasonable brokerage fee. McCubbins v. Virginia Trust Co., 80 F. (2d) 984.

III. EQUITABLE DOCTRINES AS AFFECTING RIGHTS OF PARTIES.

A. Summary of Law and Conclusions.

Editor's Note.—The operation of the equitable doctrines whose primary purpose is to attenuate the hardships of technical rules of law, among which doctrines the relief granted by third-party equity courts against the enforcement of forerences occupies a foremost ground, and the effect upon the prevailing usury laws of the changes made in the essence of this section, have created no little diversity of opinion as to the determination of the rights of parties in a usurious transaction in proceedings of equitable nature. The legal situation may be presented from two different angles: (a) where the lender seeks to enforce the usurious contract in an equitable proceeding as a violation of the statute, allowing the court to foreclose a mortgage, (1) under the former law which made both the principal and the interest of a usurious transaction absolutely void, (2) under the present law, which deems only the principal interest void, and the covenant of the purchaser of the usurious mortgage, (1) under the former law, (2) under the present law.

Under situation (a), (1) the cases are uniform that the lender can enforce neither the principal nor the interest of his usurious claim. McBrayer v. Roberts, 17 N. C. 75. This it is believed, on the ground that the law invalidates the principal and the interest of a usurious transaction is a positive statutory law which takes precedence over the equitable doctrine of relief against forfeitures, and also on the ground that a court of equity will not give aid to a person who has exacted an unconscionable usurious bargain.

Situation (a), (2), also presents no difficulty. Here, as in the preceding situation, the court in equitable proceedings follows the exact terms of the statute, and allows the lender the recovery of his principal and disallows that of his interest.

Situation (b) is the one which presents the most difficulty. Under situation (b), (1), the court affected by the established equitable maxim that "he who seeks equity must do equity" declared that a borrower as a condition precedent to the enforcement of his mortgage must do equity, and that defendant charged and received payment of usurious interest, the findings are sufficient to support a judgment in plaintiff's favor that he recover of defendant the amount of usurious interest of this section. Polkoff v. Finance Service Co., 205 N. C. 631, 172 S. E. 356.

Usury in Fact Made Payable in This State.—Where in fact a contract for the payment of usurious interest, in violation of section, the courts will look to its substance and not to its mere form or outward appearance. The nature and terms of the contract determine its character as a loan and payment of a rate of interest in excess of that allowed by law, the interest thus received is usurious and comes within the intent and meaning of the statute forbidding usury. English Lumber Co. v. Wachovia Bank & Trust Co., 102 S. E. 205, 206.

124 S. E. 746, being the latest judicial utterance upon the subject. The justification of the holding seems to lie in the fact that the remedy to recover under this section is an independent action, and the submission of the facts to a court for decision, in order to prevent unnecessary delays, and a circuity of action to which the doctrine of the case would lead would frustrate that spirit; (2) that an action under this section would be the only recourse which, in unequivocal terms, declares that the debtor shall not be compelled to pay any interest when usury has been exacted. These conclusions are supported by adjudicated cases, see McIlvaine v. Roberts, 112 N. C. 558, 559, 17 S. E. 676; Ward v. Sugg, 113 N. C. 489, 18 S. E. 717; and seem sound upon principle and policy.

Under the following headline will appear the state of authority upon the subject which will exemplify the classification of situations presented above, and will indicate the diversity of opinions which the court has entertained upon the point at different times.

B. Exposition of Authorities.

Lender Precluded Even in Equity.—A court of equity is bound by the statute of usury, and, although upon a bill of the borrower, aid will be extended only upon the terms of his repaying the sum lent with interest, yet the lender can have no relief whatever, and his bill to foreclose a usurious mortgage will be dismissed. McIlvaine v. Roberts, 17 N. C. 75.

Same—Borrower in Equity.—When the borrower comes into equity, he will be made to do equity, by paying the sum lent with interest, and no fictitious equitable relief. But when the lender asks aid of equity, he must ask it on a contract not tainted by an unlawful and corrupt ingredient. McIlvain v. Roberts, 17 N. C. 75, 76, 77.

It is well settled that the penalty for usury, provided for in this section, is not applicable in injunction proceedings—equitable in nature, the principle being that he who seeks equity must do equity. Jonas v. Home Mtg. Co., 205 N. C. 493, 170 S. E. 127, citing Waters v. Garris, 188 N. C. 305, 306, 124 S. E. 334.

Where in a legal action, the defendant, a borrower of money, seeks an equitable relief and alleges usury, it is required that he make a title into a court of equity of his right to relief from a usurious contract, will be required to pay legal interest. Cook v. Patterson, 103 N. C. 127, 9 S. E. 402.

Equitable Principle Not Applicable in Legal Proceedings.—The principle that a court of equity will eliminate an usurious mortgage from the debt, which is brought by the debtor for the penalty, upon his paying the principal sum and the legal rate of interest, does not apply to an action at law involving no equitable principle. Cuthbertson v. Bank, 170 N. C. 531, 87 S. E. 333; Cheek v. Iron Belt Building, etc., Association, 127 N. C. 121, 37 S. E. 333.

The principle of equity that a debtor, seeking the aid of equity, must have the usurious element eliminated from his debt only upon his paying the principal and legal rate of interest, the only forfeiture which he can enforce being the interest in excess of the legal interest rate. North Carolina Mtg. Corp. v. Wilson, 205 N. C. 491, 171 S. E. 783.

The principle of equity that a debtor seeking, the aid of an equitable court, to have the usurious element eliminated from his debt must pay the principal sum and the legal rate of interest, the only forfeiture enforced against the creditor being the excess of the legal rate, (Ehringhaus v. Turanga, 122 N. C. 426, 30 S. E. 122; Owens v. Wright, 161 N. C. 127, 76 S. E. 735; Simonton v. Lanier, 71 N. C. 498,) such as in a case to enjoin the foreclosure of a mortgage or to grant other equitable relief, does not apply when the plaintiff seeks relief in equity. Cuthbertson v. Peoples Bank, 170 N. C. 331, 332, 87 S. E. 333.

Tender and Payment of Correct Interest.—Upon the principle that in usurious transactions, a court must see to the foreclosure of a mortgage upon the ground of usury, usury must tender the correct amount of the mortgage debt with the legal rate of interest thereon, the remedy to recover under the usury statute being an independent action at law. Miller v. Dunn, 188 N. C. 397, 124 S. E. 746.

Where the plaintiff seeks equitable relief from the foreclosure of a mortgage on his lands on the ground of usury, his remedy being by an action at law under this section, he must, under the rules of equity, offer to repay the principal sum due and the legal rate of interest thereon, in order to recover under the usury statute being an independent action at law. Miller v. Dunn, 188 N. C. 397, 124 S. E. 746.

A junior mortgagee seeking equitable relief against foreclosure of a senior mortgage because of usury should be required to tender, or at least, offer to pay the principal sum due, with legal interest thereon at six per cent. Pinch v. Maryland Cas. Co., 214 N. C. 760, 779, 200 S. E. 874.

Equitable Maxim Cannot Change the Statutory Rule.—It is entirely immaterial whether the plaintiff creditor has sought his relief by a proceeding which formerly would have been termed a suit in equity or an action at law. The distinction between a suit in equity and an action at law under a mortgage, the court will only grant relief upon payment of the principal with legal interest. This is put upon the principle that "who asks equity must do equity," but the principle that under this statute for the court to rule that the debtor is entitled to relief, with no application to a case where the right is conferred by statute, that the debtor shall be compelled to pay no interest when usury has been contracted for. Moore v. Beaman, 112 N. C. 558, 560, 17 S. E. 676.

There are some authorities to the effect that when the debtor brings the action and invokes the equitable jurisdiction of the court, as under a usurious contract, the court under a mortgage, the court will only grant relief upon payment of the principal with legal interest. This is put upon the principle "who asks equity must do equity," but the principle that under this statute for the court to rule that the debtor is entitled to relief with no application to a case where the right is conferred by statute, that the debtor shall be compelled to pay no interest when usury has been contracted for. Moore v. Beaman, 112 N. C. 558, 560, 17 S. E. 676.

Under the usury act in force up to 1886 whenever usury was reserved the entire contract was void, and neither principal nor interest, could be recovered, but this act excluded the usury, the borrower is entitled in equity to evade the usury laws, the borrower is entitled in equity to an equitable relief which would have been denied him under a usurious contract. Ballinger v. Edwards, 39 N. C. 499, this was construed to apply only on the law side of the docket, and when the debtor had to seek the aid of a court of equity, as was the case in this action, the court would be an action at law involving no equitable principle. This section, while reducing the penalty to the loss of interest, seems to have expressly intended to change the doctrine laid down in Ballinger v. Edwards, Moore v. Beaman, 112 N. C. 558, 565, 17 S. E. 676.

An usurious contract is regarded by the settled law of every court as an oppression, practiced or attempted by the lender upon the borrower. A court of equity can not therefore be invoked to aid such a contract in whole or in part, or to redress the oppressor, because the mediated injustice has, by the artifice of the intended victim, been made to recoil upon himself. Oppression can not deceive him against his interest. It would be an anomaly to array its imagined wisdom against the legislative will, or to defeat public policy by a recourse to the code of honor or morality. Moore v. Beaman, 112 N. C. 558, 565, 17 S. E. 676.

That this section may work a hardship in any case gives the courts no authority to disregard the statute or exemp tion from its provisions. What the Legislature has constitutional authority to make the statute and its meaning is plain, with no limitation making it apply only when the action is brought by the creditor, the courts have not the power to restrict it. Moore v. Beaman, 112 N. C. 558, 565, 17 S. E. 676.

There is no exception in the statute, and, equity as a separate jurisdiction being abolished, there is no ground from which the court can derive authority to grant relief. Indeed, it will be a virtual repeal of the usury law if a creditor, by dexterously securing himself by a mortgage with power of sale, can secure himself against the "forfeiture of all interest" which the statute law visits, with out exception, upon every "note or other evidence of debt" which is in any way tainted with usury. Ward v. Sugg, 113 N. C. 489, 18 S. E. 717; Smith v. Bldgs., etc., Assoc., 119 N. C. 249, 255, 26 S. E. 41. It would be an anomaly under this statute for the court to rule that the debtor must pay the principal debt, "with interest," when the statute provides that, if the debtor is made to pay the sum due to "recover back double the interest so paid." Roberts v. Ins. Co., 118 N. C. 429, 24 S. E. 780. Churchill v. Turnage, 122 N. C. 436, 437, 37 S. E. 333.

Where the payee withdraws from the borrower a part of the face amount of the note, the same being a device to evade the usury laws, the borrower is entitled in equity to recover only the sum paid, leaving the borrower in possession of the maturity of the note as against the payee under this section. Federal Reserve Bank v. Jones, 205 N. C. 648, 172 S. E. 185.

IV. RIGHTS OF SUBSEQUENT PURCHASERS.

A. Summary of Law.

Editor's Note.—In this connection two important principles of law clash in the determination of the rights of the subsequent purchaser. The first, the constitutional rule of a negotiable instrument. The criterion of negotiability of an instrument presupposes that it shall be transferable free from all defenses which may exist between the origin-nal parties to the instrument, and is adhered to upon the consideration of promoting mediums of credit, commerce and industry. On the other hand public policy demands that debtors should enjoy full immunity from the imposition of usurious transactions. Should usury be the doctrine of negligence, it is widely held that the statute by which it is given expression would be frustrated by a transfer of the obligation to a holder in due course. To this end the impragmability of the incidents of usury and usurious transactions have been given expression to the effect that where the evidence of obligation is void in itself or is made so by statute, the defenses which are available against the payee are also available against the maker. And since the interest of a usurious obligation were rendered void in this State by the express terms of the statute, the case presented no difficulty, and the judicial decisions inevitably declared that the holder in due course of a usurious contract, which is deemed exacted under duress, to come under the general rule in favor of innocent holders for value. The case rec-ognizes the general rule, but takes mortgages out of it.

Since the establishment of the rule that usury does not render void the principal of the obligation but merely avoids the interest, there has been some question as to the applicability of the old rule to the new situation. See the dissenting opinion of Mr. Justice Burwell, in Ward v. Sugg, 113 N. C. 489, 496, 18 S. E. 717. But the holding of the Court in the latter case indicates that when the operative words, "any rate of interest that may be agreed upon," confers the right to exact the rate of interest, the party who has endorsed the note to him (Daniel on Negotiable Instruments, 289, 290, 36 S. E. 276; Ward v. Sugg, 113 N. C. 489, 492, 18 S. E. 717.)

B. Exposition of Authorities.

Banker.—The doctrine of this case is abrogated by the latter part of the second section, which follows in the language, "Shall be a Forfeiture" Construed.—The Supreme Court has expressly held that the words, "shall be a forfeiture," in this section makes void the agreement as to interest. Ward v. Sugg, 113 N. C. 489, 491, 18 S. E. 717. But see the subsequent decisions of the Court, in Ward v. Sugg, 113 N. C. 489, 496, 18 S. E. 717, to the effect that the statute does not render the usurious interest void so as to prevent an innocent purchaser of the obligation from recovering the same; and that the usurer is the person who makes the loan at an interest rate higher than the legal rate.

V. USURY LAWS AS AFFECTING CORPORATIONS.

Corporation Embraced within Usury Laws.—In the absence of special legislation, corporations are embraced in the usury laws just as natural persons are, and there is no special legislation affecting this point. Commissioners v. Atlantic, etc., R. Co., 77 N. C. 289.

Same.—Conflict of Laws.—The statute of the State of New York, forbidding corporations to plead usury as a defense, can not govern a corporation of this State sued in this State, although the bond (New York and made payable there. Commissioners v. At- lantic, etc., R. Co., 77 N. C. 289.)

Borrower May Use Lender as Witness.—To the end that the defense of usury may be answered, if the borrower in his discretion should resort to his remedy under this section he is authorized to examine the lender as a witness. Merchants Bank v. Fayetteville & Lutterloh, 81 N. C. 148.

VI. PLEADING AND PRACTICE.

Definiteness of Allegations.—In an action brought to re- cover money alleged to be due on a contract entered into between the parties, wherein the plea of usury is set up; the answer and a recovery is sought under this section for double the amount of the interest paid, the recovery sought is in the nature of a penalty; and when the facts are shown to have exceeded the usurious rate, the statute's application to the pleading as to the time and amount, before al-legations in such action are held to be sufficient, and when statements is not made no amendment to the pleadings should be allowed. Riley v. Sears, 134 N. C. 599, 70 S. E. 997.

Borrower May Use Lender as Witness.—To the end that the defense of usury may be answered, if the borrower in his discretion should resort to his remedy under this section he is authorized to examine the lender as a witness. Merchants Bank v. Fayetteville & Lutterloh, 81 N. C. 148.

Statute of Limitations.—An action to recover the penalty for usury, under this section, is barred after the lapse of two years from the accrual of the cause of action in the ab-sence of discharge or nonresidence affecting the running of the statute. Smith v. Finance Co., 207 N. C. 367, 177 S. E. 183.

Same.—Nonresident Creditor.—An action against a non-resident creditor for the statutory penalty for charging usury, who has no agent here upon whom process may be served, is not barred by the statute of limitations, nor does the fact in this case that one of the plaintiffs is a nonresident and the other has changed his residence affect the matter. Cuthberton v. Peoples Bank, 170 N. C. 559, 185 S. E. 383.

Statute of Limitations a Part of Plaintiff's Case.—Under sec. 1-53, a period of two years is allowed for the exercise of the right of the plaintiff to recover usurious interest paid under any provision it was held that it was a part of the plaintiff's right to allege and prove that the usury was paid within two years, and that the defendant need not specially plead the limitations as in the case of the ordinary statute of limitation. See Roberts v. English Insurance Co., 118 N. C. 429, 24 S. E. 780; Rogers v. Bank, 108 N. C. 574, 13 S. E. 249.

Counterclaim Available.—While a counterclaim for usury may be set up in an action on a note under this section, such counterclaim may not be set up in an action in ejectment based on title to the property under foreclosure of a mortgage. Clayton v. Virginia Mtg. Corp. v. Wilson, 205 N. C. 493, 171 S. E. 783.

Usury Question of Law When Facts Not in Dispute.—What constitutes usury is a question of law to be determined by the court when the facts are not in dispute. Grant v. Morris & Sons, 81 N. C. 150.

When Question for Jury.—Where, in an action upon a note, the defendant pleads the usury statute, and the evidence is conflicting it was properly submitted to the jury, and in order for an agreement as to the total debt to be in the nature of a compromise and settlement and be a confession by the debtor set aside as fraudulent as to creditors, the fact that plaintiff's debt is tainted with usury entitles defendant debtor to invoke the forfeiture of interest, but does not defeat plaintiff's action, or estop plaintiff from asserting the usury statute. Virginia Trust Co. v. Lambeth Realty Corp., 215 N. C. 526, 2 S. E. (2d) 544.

Restraining Foreclosure.—The holder of a second mortgage, able and willing to pay the amount of the debt secured by the first mortgage, but alleging usury, under this section, is entitled to have a restraining order against foreclosure continued until determination of the issues. Wilson v. Union Trust Co., 200 N. C. 788, 138 S. E. 479.

Effect of Consent Judgment.—Where a controversy between the parties as to the amount of the debt has been settled by a consent judgment such judgment is conclusive and final as to any matter determined and cannot be impeached collaterally in another proceeding under this section. Torrance v. Suncorl Corp., 22 F. (2d) 946.

Failure to Instruct as to Double Recovery Is Prejudicial.—The plaintiff in his action to recover for usurious rate of interest paid and received by the defendant debtor to invoke the forfeiture of interest, not from the date thereof, but from the conclusion of law that the debtor waived the right to claim interest, is prejudicial to him and is reversible error. Bundy v. Commercial Credit Co., 200 N. C. 511, 512, 157 S. E. 860.

§ 24-3. Time from which interest runs.—Interest is due and payable on instruments, as follows:

1. All bonds, bills, notes, bills of exchange, liquidated and settled accounts shall bear interest from the time they become due, provided such liquidated and settled accounts be signed by the debtor, unless it is specially expressed that interest is not to accrue until a time mentioned in the said writings or securities.

2. All bills, bonds, or notes payable on demand shall be held and deemed to be due when demand is made, provided such demand is made, and the debtor is not prejudiced thereby. Virginia Trust Co. v. Lambeth Realty Corp., 215 N. C. 526, 2 S. E. (2d) 544.

§ 24-3. Time from which interest runs.—Interest is due and payable on instruments, as follows:

1. All bonds, bills, notes, bills of exchange, liquidated and settled accounts shall bear interest from the time they become due, provided such liquidated and settled accounts be signed by the debtor, unless it is specially expressed that interest is not to accrue until a time mentioned in the said writings or securities.

2. All bills, bonds, or notes payable on demand shall be held and deemed to be due when demand is made, provided such demand is made, and the debtor is not prejudiced thereby. Virginia Trust Co. v. Lambeth Realty Corp., 215 N. C. 526, 2 S. E. (2d) 544.

§ 24-3. Time from which interest runs.—Interest is due and payable on instruments, as follows:

1. All bonds, bills, notes, bills of exchange, liquidated and settled accounts shall bear interest from the time they become due, provided such liquidated and settled accounts be signed by the debtor, unless it is specially expressed that interest is not to accrue until a time mentioned in the said writings or securities.

2. All bills, bonds, or notes payable on demand shall be held and deemed to be due when demand is made, provided such demand is made, and the debtor is not prejudiced thereby. Virginia Trust Co. v. Lambeth Realty Corp., 215 N. C. 526, 2 S. E. (2d) 544.

§ 24-3. Time from which interest runs.—Interest is due and payable on instruments, as follows:

1. All bonds, bills, notes, bills of exchange, liquidated and settled accounts shall bear interest from the time they become due, provided such liquidated and settled accounts be signed by the debtor, unless it is specially expressed that interest is not to accrue until a time mentioned in the said writings or securities.

2. All bills, bonds, or notes payable on demand shall be held and deemed to be due when demand is made, provided such demand is made, and the debtor is not prejudiced thereby. Virginia Trust Co. v. Lambeth Realty Corp., 215 N. C. 526, 2 S. E. (2d) 544.

§ 24-3. Time from which interest runs.—Interest is due and payable on instruments, as follows:

1. All bonds, bills, notes, bills of exchange, liquidated and settled accounts shall bear interest from the time they become due, provided such liquidated and settled accounts be signed by the debtor, unless it is specially expressed that interest is not to accrue until a time mentioned in the said writings or securities.

2. All bills, bonds, or notes payable on demand shall be held and deemed to be due when demand is made, provided such demand is made, and the debtor is not prejudiced thereby. Virginia Trust Co. v. Lambeth Realty Corp., 215 N. C. 526, 2 S. E. (2d) 544.

§ 24-3. Time from which interest runs.—Interest is due and payable on instruments, as follows:

1. All bonds, bills, notes, bills of exchange, liquidated and settled accounts shall bear interest from the time they become due, provided such liquidated and settled accounts be signed by the debtor, unless it is specially expressed that interest is not to accrue until a time mentioned in the said writings or securities.

2. All bills, bonds, or notes payable on demand shall be held and deemed to be due when demand is made, provided such demand is made, and the debtor is not prejudiced thereby. Virginia Trust Co. v. Lambeth Realty Corp., 215 N. C. 526, 2 S. E. (2d) 544.

§ 24-3. Time from which interest runs.—Interest is due and payable on instruments, as follows:

1. All bonds, bills, notes, bills of exchange, liquidated and settled accounts shall bear interest from the time they become due, provided such liquidated and settled accounts be signed by the debtor, unless it is specially expressed that interest is not to accrue until a time mentioned in the said writings or securities.

2. All bills, bonds, or notes payable on demand shall be held and deemed to be due when demand is made, provided such demand is made, and the debtor is not prejudiced thereby. Virginia Trust Co. v. Lambeth Realty Corp., 215 N. C. 526, 2 S. E. (2d) 544.

Same—Necessity of Demand.—A person holding money belonging to another, and demanding thereon, except from the date of demand, is not liable for interest thereon, except from the date of demand of payment made after their maturity. Burroughs v. Commissioners, 65 N. C. 234.

Same—Commencement of Action.—Where interest runs from the date when it is due and payable, no demand has been made, interest will be allowed from the date of commencement of suit. Porter v. Grimes, 98 N. C. 550, 4 S. E. 529.

Bond Payable without Interest.—Where a note or bond is made out of the estate of their wards, they may lend at any rate of interest not less than four per cent per annum and not more than the maximum legal rate. This section is not exclusive in prescribing instances in which interest is recoverable, and in proper instances interest may be recovered upon transactions not coming within the statute. Anderson Cotton Mills v. Royal Mfg. Co., 221 N. C. 479, 23 S. E. (2d) 818.

§ 24-5. Obligations due guardians to bear compound interest; rate of interest;—Guardians shall have power to lend any portion of the estate of their wards upon bond with sufficient security, to be repaid with interest annually, and all the bonds, notes or other obligations which he shall take as guardian shall bear compound interest, for which he may lend at any rate of interest not less than four per cent per annum and not more than the maximum legal rate. This section shall bear interest till paid, and the judgment and decree of the court shall be rendered according to this section. (Rev., s. 1954; Code, s. 530; R. C., c. 31, s. 90; 1786, c. 253; 1789, c. 314, s. 4; 1807, c. 721; C. S. 2308.)

Editor's Note.—The caption of this section was incorrectly punctuated prior to the Consolidated Statutes, and gave rise to at least one litigation. The comma which now appears after the word "bonds" did not then exist, consequently, the excepting clause embraced "judgments" as well as penal bonds. But it was pointed out in Chisholm's Wil. 126, N. C. 211, 96 S. E. 1031, disregarded the error and held that, though the caption of a statute may be called in aid of construction, it can not control the text when it is clear, and gave express permission to the courts of the state of North Carolina to subsequently correct in the Consolidated Statutes.

§ 24-5. Contracts, except penal bonds, and judgments to bear interest; jury to distinguish principal.—All sums of money due by contract of any kind, excepting money due on penal bonds, shall bear interest, and when a jury shall render a verdict therefor they shall distinguish the principal from the sum allowed as interest; and the principal sum due on all such contracts shall bear interest from the time of rendering judgment thereon until it is paid and satisfied. In like manner, the amount of any judgment or decree, except the costs, rendered or adjudged in any kind of action, though not on contract, shall bear interest till paid, and the judgment and decree of the court shall be rendered according to this section. (Rev., s. 1954; Code, s. 530; R. C., c. 31, s. 90; 1786, c. 253; 1789, c. 314, s. 4; 1807, c. 721; C. S. 2309.)

Editor's Note.—Correction of Punctuation in the Caption. The caption of this section was incorrectly punctuated prior to the Consolidated Statutes, and gave rise to at least one litigation. The comma which now appears after the word "bonds" did not then exist, consequently, the excepting clause embraced "judgments" as well as penal bonds. But it was pointed out in Chisholm's Wil. 126, N. C. 211, 96 S. E. 1031, disregarded the error and held that, though the caption of a statute may be called in aid of construction, it can not control the text when it is clear, and gave express permission to the courts of the state of North Carolina to subsequently correct in the Consolidated Statutes.

At common law a judgment did not carry interest when an execution of s.i. was issued upon it. In an action upon the judgment the plaintiff could recover interest in the way of damages for the detention of the money. The statute was passed for the purpose of amending the law in this respect. Collins v. McLeod, 30 N. C. 221. The intent was that the principal should bear interest because it was just and right that it should, and that the technical rule of the common law should not longer stand in the way. McNell v. Railroad, 38 N. C. 4, 507, 17 S. E. 295.

The section is not exclusive in prescribing instances in which interest is recoverable, and in proper instances interest may be recovered upon transactions not coming within the statute. Anderson Cotton Mills v. Royal Mfg. Co., 221 N. C. 500, 23 S. E. (2d) 818.

Application to Liquidated Demands Only.—The rule that all moneys due by contract, except those due on penal bonds, shall bear interest applies whenever a recovery is secured by the bond or note of some person in addition to the borrower. Watson v. Holton, 115 N. C. 36, 20 S. E. 183.

This in Boyett v. Hurst, 54 N. C. 167, where the guardian lends the money of his ward to a trading firm composed of two partners, who both became insolvent at the same time, and from the same causes, no security having been taken besides the names of the two partners, it was held that the guardian was entitled to interest on the money advanced. The court held that the time of this loan the partners were considered as entirely solvent and their failure was sudden and unexpected.

A guardian will be held liable for any loss resulting from the absence of any security, however solvent the debtor may have been when the loan was made. Bake v. Nicholson, 20 N. C. 104, 106, 164 S. E. 790.

A guardian's primary duty is to invest the trust fund, and he will be chargeable with interest in the absence of proof that it remained in his hands unemployed without his fault. Wilson v. Lineberger, 88 N. C. 416.

§ 24-5. Compound Interest Defined.—Compound interest is interest upon interest, where accrued interest is added to the principal sum, and that whole treated as a new principal, for the calculation of the interest for the next period. Black Law Dict., p. 636.

Calculation of Compound Interest.—The rule for compound interest on notes due guardians is "to make annual rests," making the aggregate of principal and interest due at the end of a year a part of the principal, bearing interest thenceforward for another year. Little v. Anderson, 71 N. C. 190; Ford v. Vandyke, 33 N. C. 227.

Bonds in Settlement with the Ward.—The bonds, upon which the guardian has lent the ward's money, may be transferred by him to the ward in settlement with him, and the guardian does not have to pay the ward in money. Cobb v. Fountain, 187 N. C. 315, 337, 121 S. E. 614.

As to interest on amount awarded for the taking of lands under eminent domain, see Yancey v. North Carolina State Highway, etc., Comm., 222 N. C. 106, 22 S. E. (2d) 256. Interest from the Time Money Should Have Been Paid.—The theory upon which the plaintiff recovers is that the defendant has received the money wrongfully and the law implies a promise to repay it. The action was originally entitled to recovery in a record and is such that in good conscience the defendant should repay the money wrongfully received, and from this duty the law implied a promise so to do. We see no reason why the amount should not bear interest from the day of its receipt. 42 Am. Jur. § 24-5; Case of Barlow v. Norfleet, 72 N. C. 535; Farmer v. Willard, 75 N. C. 403. The cases cited by defendant were actions in tort, wherein the jury may or may not allow interest, as in the case of conversion or seizure, and it has been usual for them to allow interest on the amount of the damages from the time of the conversion. Lance v. Butler, 135 N. C. 419, 47 S. E. 488. The rule in this State is that interest, as interest, is allowable only when expressly given by statute, or by express or implied agreement of the parties. Devereux v. Burgwin, 33 N. C. 490; Lewis v. Rountree, 79 N. C. 122. The only statute upon the subject is that contained in this section, which provides that when there is a consent judgment for a recovery of a certain sum, interest amounting to the rate of six per centum per annum shall bear interest from the time of the conversion or seizure, and it has been usual for them to allow interest in cases in which the whole amount is assessed in damages, so as to enable the clerk or the sheriff to compute the interest on the principal sum. But where the principal and interest are discriminated on the judgment, or it can be collected from an interest fund, it is best always that the court in its judgment should state that it shall bear interest from its date. Loach v. Worke, 10 N. C. 36, 40.

Judgment by Restitution from First Day of Term.—Where an assessment judgment for a recovery of a certain sum is made a lien on lands, and by its terms payable ninety days from the date of its rendition, it bears interest from the first day of the term, then the interest given being merely for the purpose of charging the money for its payment; and where the only question submitted to the court is whether interest is chargeable from the date it was payable to a further period beyond, interest for such extended period at the rate of six per cent should be allowed. In re Chisholm's Will, 176 N. C. 211, 96 S. E. 1031.

Verdict or Contract—Judgment Should Include Interest.—Where a controversy is made to depend upon whether a written agreement of a certain sum was a binding upon the defendant corporation, the court should add interest on it as from the date it was due, as a matter of law, and judgment should be rendered accordingly, and not from the date of its rendition as in Chisholm v. Mecklenburg Realty Co., 174 N. C. 671, 94 S. E. 447.

Interest on Value of Permanent Improvements on Land.—Where it has been ascertained by the verdict of the jury, upon a trial free from error, that the plaintiff is entitled to recover the defendant the value of permanent improvements which he has placed upon the land, interest on the amount of the principal sum recovered in a judgment for the same should be rendered accordingly, and not from the date of the verdict, which is to allow interest on judgments. McNeill v. Railroad, 138 N. C. 1, 30 S. E. 458.

Compromise Judgment in a Will Contest Case.—Where, in a will contest, a compromise judgment was entered whereby legacies were named in the will, but the court did not allow interest to the failure to do this, when enough appears on the face of the judgment to enable the officer to compute the amount justly due. All he is required to know is the amount of the principal, and then the statute makes a provision that amount bear interest to the time of payment. McNeill v. Railroad, 138 N. C. 1, 3, 30 S. E. 458.

Interest on Damages in Condemnation Proceedings.—Interest on damages for conversion of property, is discretionary with the court for taking his lands in condemnation; for while the jury may award interest in their verdict, the owner may not recover of the defendant the value of permanent improvements which was ordered as, under this section would draw interest from its date. Moore v. Pullen, 116 N. C. 324, 21 S. E. 195.

Interest on Damages in Condemnation Proceedings.—Interest is not allowed on a judgment rendered in the superior court for damages awarded by the jury to the owner for taking his lands in condemnation; for while the jury may award interest in their verdict, the owner may not complain when such has been ordered. The measure of a statutory remedy is not constructions with respect to it, and the absence of evidence tending to show he is entitled to it. Raleigh, etc., R. Co. v. Mecklenburg Mfg. Co., 166 N. C. 168, 22 S. E. 835.

Declared Dividend.—Where a receiver declares a dividend which he wrongfully withholds, interest should run from the time the dividend is declared. Armstrong v. American Exchange Nat. Bank, 131 U. S. 433, 470, 10 S. Ct. 540, 34 L. Ed. 747.

Interest on Surety Bond.—The surety bond of a clerk of the Superior Court is fixed as to amount in the sum of five thousand dollars, and it is an interest on the declaration of his principal, including 6 per cent interest from the time of notice given it, except from judgment thereon, when a different principle applies and the surety is liable for the amount of the judgment, until it is paid. Lee v. Martin, 188 N. C. 119, 123 S. E. 631.

The measure of the surety's liability is that of the principal, provided such liability does not exceed the penal sum.

25-23. Construction, where instrument is ambiguous.

25-24. Signature must appear; trade or assumed name.

§ 24-6. Judgment by default final, clerk ascertains.—When a suit is instituted on a single bond, a covenant for the payment of money, bill of exchange, promissory note, or a signed account, and the defendant does not plead to issue thereon, upon judgment, the clerk of the court shall ascertain the interest due by law, without a writ of inquiry, and the amount shall be included in the final judgment of the court as damages, which judgment shall be rendered therein in the manner prescribed by § 24-5. (Rev. s. 1955; Code, s. 351; R. C., c. 31, s. 91; 1707, c. 475; C. S. 2310.)

This section dispenses with a jury and directs the clerk to compute the interest preparatory to a final judgment by default in suits "instituted on a single bond, a covenant for the payment of money, bill of exchange, promissory note, or a signed account," contemplating the rendition of such judgment upon written instruments which themselves specify the precise sum to be paid, and need only an estimate of accrued interest. Rogers v. Moore, 86 N. C. 86, 87.

Courts' Power to Correct Mistake in Calculation.—A judgment by default upon a speciality, for the want of a plea, entered by the clerk in court, upon his calculation of interest, was held to be an office judgment, and that the court possessed the power to correct a mistake in the clerk's calculation of interest at any time upon motion. Griffin v. Hinson, 51 N. C. 154.

§ 24-7. Interest from verdict to judgment added as costs.—When the judgment is for the recovery of money, interest from the time of the verdict or report until judgment is finally entered shall be computed by the clerk and added to the costs of the party entitled thereto. (Rev., s. 1955; Code, s. 529; C. S. 2311.)

25-140. Holder entitled to acceptance on face of bill.
25-141. Acceptance by separate instrument.
25-142. When promise to accept equivalent to acceptance.
25-143. Time allowed drawee to accept.
§ 25-1. Definitions.—In this chapter, unless the context otherwise requires—“Acceptance” means an acceptance completed by delivery or notification.

“Action” includes counterclaim and setoff.

“Bank” includes any person or association of persons carrying on the business of banking, whether incorporated or not.

“Bearer” means the person in possession of a bill or note which is payable to bearer.

“Bill” means bill of exchange, and “note” means negotiable promissory note.

“Delivery” means transfer of possession, actual or constructive, from one person to another.

“Holder” means the payee or indorsee of a bill or note who is in possession of it, or the bearer thereof.

“Instrument” means negotiable instrument.

25-150. When presentment for acceptance must be made.

25-151. Failure to present in reasonable time discharges drawer and indorsers.

25-152. How presentment may be made.

25-153. On what days presentment may be made.

25-154. Presentment where time is insufficient.

25-155. Where presentment is excused.

25-156. When dishonored by nonacceptance.

25-157. Duty of holder, where bill not accepted.

25-158. Rights of holder, where bill not accepted.

Art. 13. Protest.

25-159. In what cases protest necessary.

25-161. By whom protest made.

25-162. When protest to be made.

25-164. Protest both for nonacceptance and non-payment.

25-165. Protest before maturity, where acceptor is solvent.

25-166. When protest dispensed with.

25-167. Protest where bill is lost.

25-168. When a bill may be accepted for honor.

25-170. When deemed an acceptance for honor of drawer.

25-172. Agreement of acceptor for honor.

25-173. Maturity of bill payable after sight accepted for honor.

Art. 15. Payment for Honor.

25-175. How presentment for payment to acceptor for honor made.

25-176. When delay in making presentment excused.

25-177. Dishonor of bill by acceptor for honor.

Art. 16. Bills in a Set.

25-185. Bills in a set constitute one bill.

25-186. Rights of holders, where different parts are negotiated.

25-187. Liability of holder who indorses two or more parts of a set to different persons.

25-188. Acceptance of bills drawn in sets.

25-189. Payment by acceptor of bills drawn in sets.

25-190. Effect of discharging one of a set.

Art. 17. Promissory Notes and Checks.

25-192. Check defined.

25-193. Within what time a check must be presented.

25-194. Bank may refuse to honor check more than six months old in the absence of contrary instructions.

25-196. Effect, where holder of check procures it to be certified.

25-197. Check not assignment of funds.

25-198. When stop-payment order given to bank expires.

25-199. Application to present orders.

“Issue” means the first delivery of the instrument, complete in form, to a person who takes it as a holder.

“Person” includes a body of persons, whether incorporated or not.

“Value” means valuable consideration.

“Written” includes printed, and “writing” includes print. (Rev., s. 2340; 1899, c. 733, s. 191; C. S. 2976.)

Cross Reference.—As to terms “bearer” and “holder,” see note to § 25-15.

Editor’s Note.—Especially attention is called to the fact that the purpose in enacting this statute was to bring about, insofar as possible, a uniformity of the law of the various states upon the subject. This being true, if the purpose is to be realized to the fullest extent, uniformity of interpretation is as essential as uniformity in the statutory provisions. Hence, an investigation of the decisions of the other states which interpret the N. I. L. is not only proper but almost indispensable, and such decisions are more persuasive as authority than is usually the case with the decisions of other states. While it would be impossible in a work of this nature to incorporate all the holdings of the courts of other states upon the subject, some of these decli sions have been inserted in this chapter where it is thought they may be of great value in construing the law, or where no decision exists. The Supreme Court of North Carolina covers the special point. Some of the North Carolina cases herein annotated were decided under the Law Merchant before the N. I. I. was adopted, but should be of aid in construing this law.

Cited in Fickett v. Fulford, 211 N. C. 160, 189 S. E. 488.

§ 25-2. Person primarily liable on instrument.
The person primarily liable on an instrument is the person who by the terms of the instrument is absolutely required to pay the same. All other parties are secondarily liable. (Rev., s. 25-2, 1929, c. 733, s. 192; C. S. 2977.)

Cross Reference.—As to liability of parties, see §§ 25-66 to 25-75.

A surety on an instrument comes squarely within the definition of a person whose liability is primary, for he is, by the terms of the instrument, absolutely required to pay the same. Rouse v. Wooten, 140 N. C. 557, 559, 53 S. E. 430. See also Taft v. Covington, 199 N. C. 51, 153 S. E. 597; Dry v. Reynolds, 205 N. C. 571, 172 S. E. 351.

Joint makers upon the face of a negotiable instrument are deemed to be primarily liable thereon, and in an action upon the note the burden is upon the defendants to prove any matter in release, if brought within three years. Robertson v. C. R. Co., 199 N. C. 513, 161. See also Taft v. Covington, 199 N. C. 51, 153 S. E. 597.

When a promissory note sued on has the signatures of two of the defendants on its face as joint makers and the other defendant on the back as endorser, the statute makes them each liable to the payee and, nothing else appearing, those signing as makers are primarily liable, with the right of contribution among themselves, while the one signing as endorser is secondarily liable. Raleigh Trust Co. v. York, 199 N. C. 624, 153 S. E. 263.

Indorser.—If a note, whether negotiable or not, is indorsed at the same time that it is itself made, the indorser is made, in effect, as original promisor or maker of the note. But where the note is indorsed after its delivery to the payee, the indorser is to be held as an indorser or guarantor depending upon whether the note is negotiable or not. Lily v. Baker, 88 N. C. 151, 154.

A married woman may now make executory contracts as binding as if she were a feme sole, § 52-2, with certain restrictions, § 52-12, and when she has executed a note as co-maker with her husband, a holder in due course for value, may accordingly enforce collection thereof against her as a person primarily liable on the note, and absolutely required to pay it. Taft v. Covington, 199 N. C. 51, 153 S. E. 597.

Parol Evidence as to Character of Signing.—As between the payee of a negotiable note and the signers thereof, a person shall be deemed to have signed the note in the capacity of a guarantor or endorser by parol evidence that to the knowledge of the payee he signed the same as surety and not maker. Davis v. Alexander, 207 N. C. 417, 154 S. E. 176. See also Davis v. Davis, 215 N. C. 196, 199 S. E. 542, 153 S. E. 628.

§ 25-3. What constitutes reasonable time.—In determining what is reasonable time or an unreasonable time regard is to be had to the nature of the instrument, the usage of trade or business (if any) with respect to such instruments, and the facts of the particular case. (Rev., s. 25-3, 1899, c. 733, s. 103; C. S. 2978.)

Cross Reference.—As to failure to present bill for acceptance within a reasonable time, see § 25-10; as to payment to order, see § 25-14; and as to failure to present for acceptance a draft, see § 25-19.

As Dependent upon Circumstances. What constitutes reasonable time will vary under the facts and circumstances of different cases, and this statute expresses as definite a rule as could well be established or considered desirable. Manufacturing Co. v. Summers, 143 N. C. 102, 108, 58 S. E. 417.

Though it be inconvenient to have several rules, applicable to different classes of persons, it is more so to have one applied to a crop to be negotiated when needed, a bill of lading, and experience of the greater number. It is impossible to lay down a rule in the abstract which is equally just in its bearing on all persons, and to be applicable to the circumstances of the case, and must be determined by the jury, under the directions of the court. Raines v. Grantham, 205 N. C. 340, 343, 171 S. E. 360, citing Brittain v. Johnson, 12 N. C. 290.

Same.—Demand and Notice of Default upon Notes.—Four months, when the parties all resided in the same village, is an unreasonable time in making a demand of the maker of a note and giving notice of non-payment to the indorser. Yancey v. Littlejohn, 9 N. C. 525.

But where a demand note was given to raise money for marketing a crop to be negotiated when needed, a negotiation forty-four days after the date of making was not an unreasonable time. Colona v. Parksley Nat. Bank, 120 Va. 812, 92 S. E. 979.

Same.—Prescription of Check.—The holder of a check upon a bank located in the town of his residence may present it for payment on the day after the same is drawn, and his omission to present it sooner is no defense to the drawee bank, unless he had information of its precarious condition. First National Bank v. Alexander, 84 N. C. 30.

Cited in State, etc., Trust Co. v. Hedrick, 198 N. C. 574, 151 S. E. 723.

§ 25-4. When law merchant governs.—In any case not provided for in this chapter the rules of the law merchant shall govern. (Rev., s. 2344; 1899, c. 733, s. 196; C. S. 2979.)

Cross Reference.—As to common law declared to be in force in North Carolina, see § 4-1.

§ 25-5. Acts to be done on Sunday or holiday.—Where the day, or the last day, for doing any act herein required or permitted to be done falls on Sunday, or on a holiday, the act may be done on the next succeeding secular or business day. (Rev., s. 2839; 1899, c. 733, s. 194; C. S. 2980.)

§ 25-6. Application of chapter.—The provisions of this chapter do not apply to negotiable instruments made and delivered prior to the eighth day of March, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-nine, (Rev., s. 2344; 1899, c. 733, s. 195; C. S. 2981.)

Art. 2. Form and Interpretation.

§ 25-7. Form of negotiable instrument.—An instrument to be negotiable must conform to the following requirements: (1) It must be in writing and signed by the maker or drawer; (2) must contain an unconditional promise or order to pay a sum certain in money; (3) must be payable on demand or at a fixed or determinable future time; (4) must be payable to the order of a specified person or to bearer; and (5) where the instrument is addressed to a drawee, he must be named, or otherwise indicated therein with reasonable certainty. (Rev., s. 2151; 1899, c. 733, s. 1; C. S. 2982.)

Cross References.—As to certainty of sum, see § 25-8: as to unconditional promise, see § 25-9; as to fixed determinable time, see § 25-10; as to payment to order, see § 25-14; as to payment to bearer, see § 25-15.

Editor's Note.—It is apparent that this section is declaratory of the prior law upon the subject. As to certainty of amount to be paid and time of payment, see First Nat. Bank v. Bynum, 84 N. C. 25; necessity of payment in money, Johnson v. Hendeson, 76 N. C. 227.

Effect of Conditions.—A contingent condition has always defeated the negotiability of an instrument. Goodloe v. Taylor, 10 N. C. 458.

Since the passage of this law the court has held that a note, the payment of which was made dependent upon a condition expressed in a separate instrument, a deed, was not negotiable. Pope v. Righter Parey Lumber Co., 162 N. C. 206, 78 S. E. 65.

Necessity for Payment to Order or Bearer.—Subsection four was applied in Johnson v. Lassiter, 155 N. C. 47, 71 S. E. 25.

Where an instrument is expressly made payable to a named person, such a provision clearly imports a lack of negotiability under this section. Bank of United States v. Cuthbertson, 67 F. (2d) 182, 186.

The absence of the words "to bearer" or "to order" does not render the bonds nonassignable, but nonnegotiable.

1d. Form of Instrument.—So long as the requirements of this section are complied with, the instrument is negotiable. It has been held that the fact that the instrument is written in pencil (Gudger v. Fletcher, 29 N. C. 372, although decided prior to section this holding would seem to be applicable), or that it is under seal (First Nat. Bank v. Michael, 96 N. C. 53, 1 S. E. 855, which case was also decided prior to N. I. L., but is apparently applicable, see section 23-12) does not affect the negotiability.

To illustrate further, the provision containing words of negotiability (Johnson v. Henderson, 76 N. C. 227, though decided prior to N. I. L., this case is applicable under it), or a due bond (Purtel v. Morehead, 19 N. C. 258, a negotiable note for a specified sum, payable at a certain future date, though it provided that the whole principal sum should become payable at the option of the mortgagee upon a default in an installment, (Thorpe v. Minderman, 123 N. C. 149, 101 S. E. 412, decided under the N. I. L. of Wisconsin, which is identical with this section) is negotiable.

Although county warrants are transferable by indorsement and the indorsee or holder may sue upon them in his own name, they are not negotiable in the sense that the holder in due course is protected by the N. I. L. Wright v. Kinney, 123 N. C. 618, 619, 31 S. E. 874.

The provisions therein for their payment should be payable to bearer only, or to the registered holder only, and provisions for an extension of time, upon application of the maker, in the discretion of trustee in the deed of trust securing it, are not negotiable character. Thomas v. Moss, 202 N. C. 666, 163 S. E. 759.

A municipal bond payable to bearer, and otherwise complying as to form with the provisions of this section, is a negotiable instrument, and as such when in the hands of a holder in due course as defined by § 25-58 is not subject to defenses which would otherwise ordinarily be available to the municipal corporation by which the bond was issued. Flakers' Trust Co. v. Statesville, 203 N. C. 399, 405, 166 S. E. 169.

A bond indemnifying a bank from any loss which it might sustain by reason of its taking over the assets and discharging the liabilities of another bank, the bond being payable to the liquidating bank and not to its order, is not a negotiable instrument within the meaning of this section. North Carolina Exchange Bank v. Land Co., 128 N. C. 193, 38 S. E. 813. Since the provision in an instrument is invalid it does not affect the amount in suit in determining the jurisdiction of a proper court, e.g., v. Appalachian Land, etc., Co., 128 N. C. 193, 38 S. E. 813.

Since attorney fees are not collectible under this section an agent with special authority to pay a note due out of funds held by him is limited to a payment of the principal sum, interests and costs that have accrued at the time of payment. Hooper v. Trust Co., 190 N. C. 423, 130 S. E. 49.

Same—Foreign Contract for Attorney’s Fees.—The validity of a provision in a note for attorneys’ fees executed and payable in Georgia, must be determined by the laws of North Carolina Exchange Bank v. Land Co., 128 N. C. 193, 38 S. E. 813. And because of this section, the courts of North Carolina will not enforce such a provision. Security Finance Co. v. Hendry, 189 N. C. 549, 177 S. E. 629.

§ 25-9. When promise is unconditional.—An unqualified order or promise to pay is unconditional within the meaning of this chapter, though coupled with (1) an indication of a particular account to be debited with the amount; or (2) a statement of the transaction which gives rise to the instrument. But an order or promise to pay out of a particular fund is not unconditional. (Rev., s. 2153; 1899, c. 733, s. 3; C. S. 2994.)

Cross Reference.—As to draft with bill of lading attached, see § 21-37 and notes.

Editor’s Note.—This section is declaratory of the prior law upon the subject except that very early it was held that a statement of the consideration made the instrument conditional. See Mason v. Nelson Cotton Co., 148 N. C. 492, 62 S. E. 625; and Bank v. Hatcher, 151 N. C. 359, 66 S. E. 1, which overruled the early case, Howard v. Kimball, 65 N. C. 175, and held in conformity with this section.

Retention of Title in Seller.—A written unconditional promise to pay a specified sum of money at a designated time is a negotiable instrument, and as such when in the hands of a holder in due course is not affected because the title to goods sold for which the note was given is retained in the seller until payment shall have been made; or stipulations are made in the instrument for the application of the proceeds to the obligor’s unqualified promise to pay. See Branch Banking, etc., Co. v. Leggett, 185 N. C. 65, 116 S. E. 1.

Particular Fund Provided.—Bonds issued for road building are negotiable notwithstanding that a fund is provided for their payment. While the specification of a particular fund out of which payment is to be made destroys the negotiability, a fund may be provided for payment, as in the case, without affecting H. Commissioners v. Bank, 157 N. C. 191, 72 S. E. 996.

§ 25-10. What constitutes determinable future time.—An instrument is payable at a determinable future time, within the meaning of this chapter, which is expressed to be payable (1) at a fixed period after date or sight; or (2) on or before a fixed or determinable future time specified therein; or (3) on or at a fixed period after the occurrence of a specified event which is certain to happen, though the time of happening be uncertain. An instrument payable upon a contingency is not negotiable, and the happening of the event does not cure the defect. An instrument is payable at a determinable future time, within the meaning of this chapter, notwithstanding the fact that it contains a provision waiving notice of protest, notice ofdishonor, and an agreement to be bound notwithstanding any extension of time which may be granted. Or, if collaterals have been deposited as security for the payment thereof and the instrument contains a provision that if the value of the securities so deposited has so decreased or declined as to render the holder insecure, the holder may require the maker to deposit other and further collaterals to secure the same, and, upon failure to comply with such demand, to declare the instrument due at once. An instrument payable upon a contingency is not negotiable, and the happening of the event does not cure the defect, but an instrument payable at a determinable future time is negotiable, even though it may mature or be declared due upon a contingency happening before such future time. (Rev., s. 2156; 1899, c. 733, s. 4; 1923, c. 725.)

Editor's Note.—By the amendment, Public Laws 1923, there was added all that part of the section including and following the third sentence.

In 1 N. C. Law Rev., 299, in an article discussing the judicial construction of the Public Laws of 1923, Mr. Strickland's article was cited: "C. 72 of the Public Laws of 1923 amends the Negotiable Instruments Law (N. I. L.) s. 4, C. S. s. 2985 [this section] in one important respect in order to conform with banking practice. It increases the power and extends the authority of the former Reserve Bank of Richmond. (The Tar Heel Banker, April 1923, p. 14.) There are in common usage today many kinds of provisions in negotiable paper for the purpose of accelerating maturity. Thus, for example, provision may be made for the payment of any installment or of interest, the whole shall become due, [sec. 25-8, cl. 31. Or notes may be issued in a series to fall due on successive dates, and each note payable in installments with the provision that if one is dishonored the whole series is payable at once. [Chicago Ry. Equipment Co. v. Merchants Bank, 136 U. S. 268, 10 S. Ct. 999, 34 L. Ed. 349, is an example.] Other exceptions are found in chattel notes, and metal tokens, and coins, and provision for the protection of the holder of the notes, or for the protection of the obligor; or (4) gives the holder an election to require something to be done in lieu of payment of money. But nothing in this section shall validate any provision or stipulation otherwise illegal, nor authorize the enforcement of an authorization to confess judgment or a waiver of homestead and personal property exemptions. (Rev., ss. 2154, 2346; 1899, c. 733, ss. 5, 197; 1905, c. 327; C. S. 2986.)"

Editor's Note.—All the provisions after the word "illegal" in the last sentence were inserted by the North Carolina Legislature and do not appear in the proposed Uniform Law.

A Procedure Statute.—In so far as this section relates to the enforcement of an authorization to confess judgment or a waiver of homestead and personal property exemptions, it is merely procedural. Monarch Refrigerating Co. v. Farmers' Peanut Co., 74 F. (2d) 790, 793. This section and §§ 1-248, 1-249, are mere procedural statutes, regulating the practice of the courts, and can, of course, be changed. The original attempt to be looked to as limiting the powers of corporations. Id.

Negotiability Not Affected by Mortgage.—The recital on the face of a note, to wit: "This is one of a series of notes secured by deed of trust or mortgage," does not affect the negotiable character of the notes under this section. Walter v. Kilpatrick, 191 N. C. 458, 461, 132 S. E. 148. Additional Act Destroying Negotiability.—A bond to pay money, and to do something else, "as to feed and clothe a slave," is not negotiable. Knight v. Wilkinson R. Co., 46 N. C. 357.

Enforcement of Foreign Homestead Waiver.—A provision in the notes waiving of the homestead exemption will not be enforced by the courts of this State although the note may have been executed by parties in another state. Exchange Bank v. Land Co., 128 N. C. 596, 59 S. E. 245. Applied in Branch Banking, etc., Co. v. Legett, 185 N. C. 65, 116 S. E. 1. See note under section 25-9.

§ 25-12. Effect of omissions; seal; designation of particular money. —The validity and negotiable character of an instrument are not affected by the fact that (1) it is not dated; or (2) does not specify the value given, or that any value has been given therefor; or (3) does not specify the place where it is drawn or the place where it is payable; or (4) bears a seal; or (5) designates a particular kind of current money in which payment is to be made. But nothing in this section shall alter or repeal any statute requiring in certain cases the nature of the consideration to be stated in the instrument. (Rev., s. 2155; 1899, c. 295, § 2; C. S. 2987.)

Editor's Note.—Prior to this section it was held that a negotiable instrument payable in 'current funds' was not negotiable. It was also intimated that one paid in "currency was not, but that one payable in "legal tender notes" was negotiable.

See the note to the following section.

Statement of Transaction.—A negotiable instrument, setting out the transaction for which the instrument is given, cannot be negatived for the reason that due course of law was not taken, or that notice of the infirmity or defect, where there is nothing in such contract to restrict negotiability in the instrument or to indicate fraud or an existing breach. Bank v. Hatcher, 151 N. C. 359, 66 S. E. 308; Bank v. Michael, 96 N. C. 53, 1 S. E. 835.

Bonds under Seal Negotiable.—Bonds for the payment of money only, while they retain in other respects the properties and incidents of obligations under seal, are in this State put upon the footing of promissory notes and both are made negotiable securities under the statute. Pate v. Brown, 85 N. C. 166, 167.

§ 25-13. When payable on demand.—An instrument is payable on demand (1) when it is expressed to be payable on demand, or at sight or on presentation; or (2) in which no time for payment is expressed. Where an instrument is issued, accepted or indorsed when overdue, it is, as regards the person so issuing, accepting or indorsing it, payable on demand. (Rev., s. 2157; 1899, c. 733, s. 7; C. S. 2988.)

Editor's Note.—In Freeman v. Ross, 15 Ga. 253, it was held that a draft in which no time of payment was expressed was due instantly, and after presentment it became an overdue instrument and a holder after that time took with notice of all equities. One who took before presentment was due instantly, and after presentment it became an overdue instrument and a holder after that time took with notice of all equities. One who took before presentment took it overdue. Rosewell Mfg. Co. v. Hudson, 72 Ga. 20, 2 S. E. 124, and a note payable "after date" without expressing any time is payable on demand. Morrison v. Morrison, 102 Ga. 170, 29 S. E. 125. A note payable on or before a certain date is payable on that date. The maker may pay before the date if he likes, but if he wishes he may delay payment until the date named. James v. Benjamin, 72 Ga. 185.

Demand Not Necessary.—When an instrument is payable on demand it is not necessary to aver and prove demand, the suit itself is sufficient demand. Dougherty v. Western Bank, 13 Ga. 287.

Statute of Limitations.—A promissory note, payable on demand, is due immediately, and the statute of limitations in this case is the same as regards the person so issuing, accepting or indorsing it, payable on demand. (Rev., s. 2157; 1899, c. 733, s. 7; C. S. 2988.)

§ 25-14. When payable to order.—The instrument is payable when it is drawn payable to the order of a specified person, or to him or his order. It may be drawn payable to the order of (1) a payee who is not maker, drawer or drawee; or (2) the drawer or maker; or (3) the drawee; or (4) two or more payees jointly; or (5) one or some of several payees; or (6) the holder of an office for the time being. When the instrument is payable to order, the payee must be named or otherwise indicated therein with reasonable certainty. (Rev., s. 2158; 1899, c. 733, s. 8; C. S. 2989.)

Editor's Note.—See 13 N. C. Law Rev. 80.

Negotiability.—Unless a note is payable "to the order of a special person or to bearer" it is not negotiable. Johnson v. Lassiter, 155 N. C. 47, 71 S. E. 23. So a note payable to a specific person in this case is negotiable. Insurance Co. v. Jones, 191 N. C. 176, 179, 131 S. E. 937.

§ 25-15. When payable to bearer.—The instrument is payable to bearer (1) when it is expressed to be so payable; or (2) when it is payable to a person named therein or to bearer; or (3) when it is payable to the order of a fictitious or nonexistent person, and such fact was known to the person making it so payable; or (4) when the name of the payee does not purport to be the name of any person; or (5) when the only or last indorsement is an indorsement in blank. (Rev., s. 2159; 1899, c. 733, s. 9; C. S. 2990.)

The terms bearer and holder are of the same import, and where either is employed in an instrument it may be negotiated by delivery. Pryor v. American Trust Co., 15 Ga. App. 829, 84 S. E. 312.

Fictitious Payee.—A negotiable instrument payable to a fictitious payee does not make one whose name is identified as that appearing on the instrument payee, but the intention of the maker in inserting the name governs. Norton v. City Bank (Va.) 294 Fed. 839.

§ 25-16. No formal language required.—The negotiable instrument need not follow the language of this chapter, but any terms are sufficient which clearly indicate an intention to conform to the requirements hereof. (Rev., s. 2160; 1899, c. 733, s. 10; C. S. 2991.)

§ 25-17. Presumption as to date.—Where the instrument or an acceptance or any indorsement thereon is dated, such date is deemed prima facie to be the true date of the making, drawing, acceptance or indorsement, as the case may be. (Rev., s. 2161; 1899, c. 733, s. 11; C. S. 2992.)

§ 25-18. Antedated and postdated.—The instrument is not invalid for the reason only that it is antedated or postdated, provided that this is not done for an illegal or fraudulent purpose. The person to whom an instrument so dated is delivered acquires the title thereto as of the date of delivery. (Rev., s. 2162; 1899, c. 733, s. 12; C. S. 2993.)

When Postdated Check Subject to Payment.—Since postdated checks are payable at the time of their date and not before, the drawer cannot accept them and charge them against funds of the drawer prior to that time. The drawer does not undertake to have the funds in the drawee's hands until the time it bears date. Smith v. Maddox-Rucker Bkgl. Co., 8 Ga. App. 288, 68 S. E. 1092.

Status of Postdated Check before Maturity.—A postdated check is payable on or after the day of its date; but in the meantime it is negotiable, and the drawer cannot be charged with payment of it, since it has not become a negotiable instrument until the time it bears date. (Rev., s. 2163; 1899, c. 733, s. 13; C. S. 2994.)

§ 25-19. When date may be inserted.—When an instrument expressed to be payable at a fixed period after date is issued undated, or where the acceptance of an instrument payable at a fixed period after sight is undated, any holder may insert therein the true date of issue or acceptance, and the instrument shall be payable accordingly. The insertion of a wrong date does not avoid the instrument in the hands of a subsequent holder in due course; but as to him the date so inserted is to be regarded as the true date. (Rev., s. 2163; 1899, c. 733, s. 13; C. S. 2994.)

§ 25-20. When blanks may be filled. — Where the instrument is wanting in any material particular, the person in possession thereof has a prima facie authority to complete it by filling up the blanks therein. And a signature on a blank paper delivered by the person making the signature in order that the paper may be converted into a negotiable instrument operates as a prima facie authority to fill it up as such for any amount. In order, however, that any such instrument when completed may be enforced against any person who became a party thereto prior to its completion, it must be filled up strictly in accordance with the authority given and within a reasonable time. But if any such instrument after completion be negotiated to a holder in due course, it is valid and effectual for all purposes in his hands, and he may enforce it as if it had been filled up strictly in accordance with the authority given and within a reasonable time. (Rev., s. 2164; 1899, c. 733, s. 14; C. S. 2998.)

When a principal verbally authorizes an agent to fill up with a specific sum a blank in a bond, left with him for the purpose only, and not for the purpose of transferring the property in the bond, it is conclusively presumed that a valid delivery of the bonds had been made so far as the rights of the holder are concerned. Bankers’ Trust Co. v. Statesville, 203 N. C. 399, 166 S. E. 160.

Presumption of Delivery to Payee.—Whenever a bill or note is found in the hands of the party it will be presumed that it was delivered to him, but the presumption may be rebutted. Pate v. Brown, 85 N. C. 166, 167.

Delivery to Other than Payee.—It is not necessary that delivery be made in the hands of the payee. Such delivery is sufficient to bind the maker. Irvin v. Harris, 183 N. C. 647, 192 S. E. 887.

Parol Proof of Conditional Delivery.—Contemporaneous Parol Agreements. It seems to be the rule that as against any person not a holder in due course a contemporaneous parol agreement by the party making the delivery is not sufficient to prove that the delivery was conditional, and that there was no contract on the failure of the condition. The instrument cannot be varied by such agreements. See, Robertson v. Virginia Nat. Bank, 135 Va. 166, 115 S. E. 536, Ed. Note.

Therefore it is competent to prove a collateral agreement, as between the immediate parties, making a note non-payable upon a contingency which would deprive the note of all consideration even though the note is under seal. Furginton v. McNell, 174 N. C. 420, 422, 93 S. E. 957.

But in an action upon a note the defendants were not permitted to set up the defense that as a part of the contemporaneous bargain they were given further time, until certain lands had been sold, for such would be in contradiction of the written instrument. Cherokee County v. Meroney, 173 N. C. 653, 92 S. E. 616.

§ 25-23. Construction, where instrument is ambiguous.—Where the language of the instrument is ambiguous or there are omissions therein, the following rules of construction apply:

1. Where the sum payable is expressed in words and also in figures and there is a discrepancy between the two, the sum denoted by the words is the sum payable; but if the words are ambiguous or uncertain, reference may be had to the figures to fix the amount.

2. Where the instrument provides for the payment of interest, without specifying the date from which interest is to run, the interest runs from the date of the instrument, and if the instrument is undated, from the issue thereof.

3. Where the instrument is not dated it will be considered to be dated as of the time it was issued.

4. Where there is conflict between the written and printed provisions of the instrument the written provisions prevail.

5. Where the instrument is so ambiguous that there is doubt whether it is a bill or a note the holder may treat it as either at his election.

6. Where a signature is so placed upon the instrument that it is not clear in what capacity the person making the same intended to sign, he is to be deemed an indorser.

7. Where an instrument containing the words “I promise to pay” is signed by two or more persons, they are deemed to be jointly and severally liable thereon. (Rev., ss. 1952, 2341; 1899, c. 733, s. 17; C. S. 2998.)

Cross Reference.—As to how indorsement made, see § 25-36; as to liability of indorser, see §§ 25-69, 25-70.

Editor’s Note.—See 13 N. C. Law Rev. 81.

Note without interest.—In a note given for a specified amount “without interest” will be construed to bear interest after maturity. Dowd v. Railroad, 70 N. C. 468.

Figures Not Material.—The figures are not a material part of an instrument as the words control. State v. Longino, 62 W. Va. 310, 58 S. E. 621.

The indorsement may be on any part of the note, even the face or under the maker’s name. Colona v. Parksley Nat. Bank, 125 Va. 812, 22 S. E. 979.

§ 25-24. Signature must appear; trade or assumed name.—No person is liable on the instrument whose signature does not appear thereon, except as herein otherwise expressly provided. But one who signs in a trade or assumed name will be liable to the same extent as if he had signed in his own name. (Rev., s. 2167; 1899, c. 733, s. 18; C. S. 2990.)

Name in Body of Instrument Not Necessary.— It is not necessary that the name of the obligor appear in the note, it is sufficient that he sign it. Howell v. Parsons, 89 N. C. 387. 90 S. E. 32.

Maker Must Show Lack of Consideration.— Where, between the original parties, the maker sets up the want of consideration for a note he has made to the payee, as a defense in an action thereon, the burden is upon him to prove that it was a consideration, and his failure to do so will entitle the payee to a judgment in his favor. Merchants Nat. Bank v. Andrews, 179 N. C. 341, 102 S. E. 506; Finer v. Brittain, 165 N. C. 340, 81 S. E. 662.

Instrument is Made by an Agent for its Principal, the Agent, if he was duly authorized; but the mere addition of words describing him as an agent or as filling a representative character, without disclosing his principal, does not exempt him from personal liability. (Rev., s. 2169; 1899, c. 733, s. 19; C. S. 3000.)

Sufficient Disclosure of Principal. — Where a negotiable instrument is made by an agent for its principal, the agent, in order to exempt himself from liability, must not only name the principal, but must also state his authority. If the signature is that of the principal though done by an agent. A mere description of the relation is not sufficient to relieve the agent of liability. Graham v. Campbell, 56 Ga. 258; Lester v. McIntosh, 101 Ga. 675, 29 S. E. 7.

If the principal is distinctly indicated and the contract is in his name, the agent is not liable if he has the power to bind the principal. No form is indicated, all that is necessary is that the parties and intent be made plain. Merchants Bank v. Central Bank, 1 Ga. 418; Rawlings v. Robson, 70 Ga. 595.

Agreement as to Personal Liability.— Where an administrator signs in the name of the estate and thereunder writes his name as administrator, and at the time of the execution of the note the parties agree that he should not be personally liable, the administrator is personally liable thereon, in view of this section. Bank of Spruce Pines v. Vance, 205 N. C. 103, 170 S. E. 119.

Sufficiency of Principal by Foral.— As between themselves it may be shown that it was the intent of the parties that the principal and not the agent be bound, and that the instrument was given and accepted as such. Metcalf v. Williams, 104 U. S. 93, 26 L. Ed. 665; Ocilla Southern R. Co. v. Morton, 13 Ga. App. 504, 79 S. E. 480.

But where the principal is not sufficiently described parol evidence cannot be introduced to charge him. The reason for this rule is that for a party to be bound by an instrument it must appear on the instrument. Bankhalter v. Perry, 127 Ga. 438, 56 S. E. 631; Redell v. Scarlett, 72 Ga. 56.

Applicability to Fiduciaries. — See 9 N. C. L. Rev. 444.

§ 25-27. Effect of signature by procurement.— A signature by procurement operates as notice that the agent has but a limited authority to sign, and the principal is bound only in case the agent so signing acted within the actual limits of his authority. (Rev., s. 2170; 1899, c. 733, s. 21; C. S. 3002.)

Signature of Attorney.— An attorney to whom a note is sent for collection has, prima facie, no authority to indorse the same in the name of his client, and the purchaser should inquire as to the extent of the attorney's authority. Sill v. Weisger Clothing Co., 114 N. C. 436, 438, 19 S. E. 365.

§ 25-28. Effect of forged signature.— When a signature is forged or made without the authority of the person whose signature it purports to be, it is wholly inoperative, and no right to retain the instrument or to give a discharge therefor or to enforce payment thereof against any party thereto can be acquired through or under such signature, unless the party against whom it is sought to enforce such right is precluded from setting up the forgery or want of authority. (Rev., s. 2171; 1899, c. 733, s. 23; C. S. 3003.)

Cross Reference. — As to liability of acceptor in case of forged signature, see § 25-56.

Editor's Note. — When a signature is forged no title can be acquired therefor. Hillman v. Cornell, 137 Va. 200, 119 S. E. 74. Such infirmity inheres in the factum of the instrument and by the terms of the statute renders it inoperative; and this is true even where the instrument is in the hands of a bona fide holder for value. Pettyjohn v. National Exch. Bank, 101 Va. 111, 43 S. E. 203. The same rule applies whether it is the signature of the maker or the indorser that is attacked.

Where the name of the maker of the instrument is forged, the instrument is neither a bill nor a check, since the statute provides that a forged signature is wholly inoperative. Dauenhauer v. Peoples Bank, 212 N. C. 707, 194 S. E. 464, 116 A. L. R. 682.

A bank is presumed to know the signature of its customer, and if it pays a forged check it cannot charge the amount to the account of the depositor, unless the depositor is negligent. Yarborough v. Trust Co., 142 N. C. 377, 55 S. E. 296.

Use of drafts presented for payment by an agent, the bank must be assured of the agency to hold another as principal. Letters of instruction to the agent are not sufficient to show power to draw drafts on the principal. Bank v. Co., 143 N. C. 326, 55 S. E. 318.

Where the clerk of the superior court executed a check to the person named in a court order, and the brother of the payee of the check, by fraudulently representing himself to be the true owner, the payee may not hold himself to be the payee, took the check to plaintiff and endorsed it upon the instrument. Burkhalter v. Perry, 127 Ga. 438, 56 S. E. 631; Redell v. Scarlett, 72 Ga. 56.
§ 25-29. Presumption of consideration.—Every negotiable instrument is deemed prima facie to have been issued for a valuable consideration, and every person whose signature appears thereon to have become a party thereto for value.

Editor's Note.—See 13 N. C. Law Rev. 52.

In Plenter Bank v. Velvertom, 185 N. C. 314, 177 S. E. 295, this section is construed with §§ 25-33 and 25-55 and it is held that one taking without indorsement takes subject to equities between the original parties, and the presumption of consideration may be rebutted.

Holder's Lack of Consideration.—Where, between the original parties, the maker sets up the want of consideration for a note he has made to the payee as a defense, in an action thereon the burden of proof is thrown upon the maker to prove his defense, and his failure to do so will entitle the payee to a judgment in his favor. Merchants Nat. Bank v. Andrews, 179 N. C. 341, 102 S. E. 500. Piner v. Brittain, 165 N. C. 411, 145 S. E. 463. See also Bank of Lewiston v. Harrington, 205 N. C. 244, 170 S. E. 916.

Where there is evidence tending to show that the president of a bank had received from the defendant an exchange of notes for the former's benefit, and the defendant's bank's action on the note admits its execution and delivery, it is prima facie evidence that the note was given for a consideration and defendant must show failure of consideration when questioned by him. American Trust Co. v. Armour, 196 N. C. 327, 145 S. E. 619.

When Holder Must Show Consideration.—While a valuable consideration is essential to the support of negotiable instruments, it is not necessary to prove that there was consideration in the mind of the person who made the instrument. Merchants Nat. Bank v. Anthony, 115 N. C. 186, 51 S. E. 728; Pridgen v. Baugh & Sons Co., 30 Fed. (2d) 353.

Instruments under Seal.—The lack of consideration cannot benefit a maker of a bond under seal because the law concludes presumptions that it was made upon consideration. Campbell v. McCracklin, 90 N. C. 491.

Hunt v. Eure, 183 N. C. 716, 177 S. E. 489.

Drafts with Bill of Lading Attached.—Where a bank for a valuable consideration takes an assignment of a bill of lading with draft attached, the conscience of the goods takes them subject to the rights of the holder of the bill of lading for the amount of the draft, and he cannot retain the price of the goods on account of a debt due him from the consignor. Willard Mfg. Co. v. Tierney, 133 N. C. 630, 631, 45 S. E. 1026.

Drafts with Bill of Lading Attached.—Where a bank for a valuable consideration takes an assignment of a bill of lading with draft attached, the conscience of the goods takes them subject to the rights of the holder of the bill of lading for the amount of the draft, and he cannot retain the price of the goods on account of a debt due him from the consignor. Willard Mfg. Co. v. Tierney, 133 N. C. 630, 631, 45 S. E. 1026.

Drafts with Bill of Lading Attached.—Where a bank for a valuable consideration takes an assignment of a bill of lading with draft attached, the conscience of the goods takes them subject to the rights of the holder of the bill of lading for the amount of the draft, and he cannot retain the price of the goods on account of a debt due him from the consignor. Willard Mfg. Co. v. Tierney, 133 N. C. 630, 631, 45 S. E. 1026.

Drafts with Bill of Lading Attached.—Where a bank for a valuable consideration takes an assignment of a bill of lading with draft attached, the conscience of the goods takes them subject to the rights of the holder of the bill of lading for the amount of the draft, and he cannot retain the price of the goods on account of a debt due him from the consignor. Willard Mfg. Co. v. Tierney, 133 N. C. 630, 631, 45 S. E. 1026.

Drafts with Bill of Lading Attached.—Where a bank for a valuable consideration takes an assignment of a bill of lading with draft attached, the conscience of the goods takes them subject to the rights of the holder of the bill of lading for the amount of the draft, and he cannot retain the price of the goods on account of a debt due him from the consignor. Willard Mfg. Co. v. Tierney, 133 N. C. 630, 631, 45 S. E. 1026.
§ 25-32. When lien on instrument constitutes holder for value.—Where the holder has a lien on the instrument arising either from contract or by implication of law he is deemed a holder for the extent of his lien. (Rev., s. 2175; 1899, c. 733, s. 27; C. S. 3007.)

§ 25-33. Effect of want of consideration.—Absence or failure of consideration is matter of defense as against any person not a holder in due course, and partial failure of consideration is a defense pro tanto, whether the failure is the result of fraud or accident.

§ 25-34. Liability of accommodation party.—An accommodation party is one who has signed the instrument as maker, drawer, acceptor or indorser without receiving value therefor, and for the purpose of lending his name to some other person. Such a person is liable on the instrument to the holder for value, notwithstanding such holder at the time of taking the instrument knew him to be only an accommodation party. (Rev., s. 2177; 1899, c. 733, s. 29; C. S. 3009.)
one person to another in such manner as to constitute the transferee the holder thereof. If payable to bearer, it is negotiated by delivery; if payable to order, it is negotiated by indorsement by him who has the instrument. In case of a corporation the delivery of a note being made payable to X or order, indorsement by him was necessary to transfer the title and give the plaintiffs, as the holder, the benefit of the presumptions of the negotiable instrument act; and proof of such indorsement by the payee was necessary. Tyson v. Joyner, 139 N. C. 69, 51 S. E. 803; Mayers v. McMtinmon, 140 N. C. 64, 53 S. E. 447; Myers v. Petty, 153 N. C. 462, 464, 69 S. E. 417.

§ 25-40. Special indorsement; indorsement in blank.—A special indorsement specifies the person to whom or to whose order the instrument is payable, and without proof of indorsement the holder is not one in due course. Woods v. Finley, 153 N. C. 497, 69 S. E. 502.

§ 25-39. Kinds of indorsement.—An indorsement must be written on the instrument itself or upon a paper attached thereto. The signature of the indorser, without additional words, is a sufficient indorsement. (Rev., s. 2179; 1899, c. 733, s. 31; C. S. 3011.)

Cross References.—As to indorsement by agent, see § 25-25.

In General.—The position of the indorser is immaterial, it may be on the face or the back of the instrument so long as the intention of the parties can be ascertained. Quinn v. Sterne, 26 Ga. 221; First Nat. Bank v. Messer, 176 Ga. 296, 71 S. E. 148.

Prerequisite to Indorsement on Additional Paper.—While a lack of room for further indorsements is not a prerequisite to an indorsement, an essential requirement is that the paper be physically attached or that it should have been when the indorsement was made, and that an assignment or transfer on a separate sheet to provide that the contract of indorsement provided for in N. C. 18, 91 S. E. 353: Commercial Security Co. v. Main St. Pharmacy, 174 N. C. 655, 94 S. E. 268.

Indorsement by Letter Attached to Note.—Where a note was sent to a bank as security and attached to a letter, in which it is stated that the holder did assign the note to the bank as collateral security, it was held that the signature on the letter was the indorsement. Colona v. Parkside Nat. Bank, 120 Va. 812, 92 S. E. 979.

Indorsement with Rubber Stamp.—Where the name of the drawer is stamped on the back of the note with a rubber stamp, and there is no authority to do so and with intent to indorse it, it is a valid indorsement, but does not prove it itself. Mayers v. McMtinmon, 140 N. C. 640, 53 S. E. 447.

§ 25-37. Effect of indorsement by infant or corporation.—The indorsement or assignment of the instrument by a corporation, an infant, or married woman passes the property therein, notwithstanding that from want of capacity the corporation, infant, or married woman may incur no liability thereon. (Rev., s. 2180; 1899, c. 733, s. 22; C. S. 3012.)

Editor's Note.—Married Women.—In the case of Vann v. Edwards, 128 N. C. 425, 39 S. E. 66; 130 N. C. 70, 72, 40 S. E. 833; 135 N. C. 661, 47 S. E. 784, which was decided under the prior law, and was before the Supreme Court three times, it was held that an infant may dispose of her property without the assent of her husband except in those cases where a written instrument or conveyance is required for that purpose.

The delivery of a note to the indorsee after it has been indorsed by the wife, the owner and the husband, is a sufficient conveyance. But the indorsement may be explained as having been made between intermediate parties. Coffin v. Smith, 136 N. C. 257, 38 S. E. 864.

Corporations.—If a corporation indorses a negotiable instrument when it has no power to do so it cannot be bound by subsequent holders. Savannah Ice Co. v. Canal-Louisiana Bank, etc., Co., 12 Ga. App. 221, 58 S. E. 386.

Instruments.—In stipulating that the indorsement of the instrument by an infant 'passes the property therein,' it was meant to provide that the contract of indorsement is not void, and that his indorsee has the right to enforce payment from all parties prior to the infant indorser. The incapacity of the minor cannot be avoided by prior parties. It was explained that the indorsee should become the owner of the instrument by title indefeasible as against the infant, or to make the act of indorsement an irrevocable one. The act does not consti- tute the instrument against a holder who had knowledge of the in- dorser's infancy. The quoted words are not qualified to save his rights in such an assumed case. It must be admitted that the Legislature did not intend any such radical and grossly inequitable departure from a settled and salutary rule of law." Murray v. Thompson, 156 Tenn. (9 Thomp.) 118, 188 S. W. 571.

§ 25-38. Indorsement must be of entire instrument.—An indorsement must be an indorsement of the entire instrument. An indorsement which purports to transfer to the indorsee a part only of the amount payable or which purports to transfer the instrument to two or more indorsees severally, does not operate as a negotiation of the instrument. But where the instrument has been paid in part it may be indorsed as to the residue. (Rev., s. 2181; 1899, c. 733, s. 32; C. S. 3013.)

In General.—An assignment of a note, to enable the assignee to sue thereon, must be made by the payee, and must be for the whole, and not for a part of the sum mentioned in the note. Martin v. Hayes, 44 N. C. 423.

§ 25-39. Kinds of indorsement.—An indorsement may be either in blank or special, and it may also be either restrictive or qualified or conditional. (Rev., s. 2182; 1899, c. 733, s. 33; C. S. 3014.)

§ 25-40. Special indorsement; indorsement in blank.—A special indorsement specifies the person to whom or to whose order the instrument is to be payable; and the indorsement of such indorsee is necessary to the further negotiation of the instrument. An indorsement in blank specifies no indorsee, and an instrument so indorsed is payable to bearer and may be negotiated by delivery. (Rev., s. 2183; 1899, c. 733, s. 34; C. S. 3015.)

Cross References.—As to right of holder to change blank indorsed to special, see § 25-41; as to right of holder without indorsement when payable to order, see §§ 25-55 and annotations.

Indorsement Where Note Payable to Bearer.— Although a note payable to bearer may be transferred by delivery, it may also be transferred by indorsement of the holder, and in such case the indorser incurs the same obligation, and liability as an indorser of a note payable to order. Lilly v. Baker, 88 N. C. 151.

Right of Indorser in Blank When Instrument Subsequently Acquired by Delivery. An indorsement “without recourse,” but not saying to whom the bill was indorsed was an indorsement in blank, and the bill became payable to bearer; and notwithstanding that afterwards indorsed it in full or specially, yet when it came again to C. by delivery, he had a right to demand payment of the bill from any prior indorser. French v. Hill, 50 N. C. 351.

Transfer by Blank Indorsement Presumed. An indorsement in blank by the payee of a note is presumed to have been intended as a transfer thereof. Davis v. Morgan, 64 N. C. 570. And nothing else appearing such indorsement constitutes a transfer of the note. Coffin v. Smith, 128 N. C. 252, 38 S. E. 864; but as between the immediate parties parol evidence is admissible to show a qualified or special contract. Hoffman v. Moore, 82 N. C. 311; Bank v. Pegram, 118 N. C. 671, 24 S. E. 487; Mendenhall v. Davis, 72 N. C. 155; Hill v. Shields, 81 N. C. 251.

Title of Attorney Holding for Collection. A bond indorsed in blank by the attorney for collection amounts to an assignment of the title, and conveys authority to the attorney to dispose of it as his own. Parker v. Stallings, 61 N. C. 29; Bank v. Peck, 77 N. C. 7.

Indorsement to Particular Class Is Special. The designation of a particular class is sufficient to render an indorsement special, and therefore an indorsement to “any banker, banker or trust company” is a special endorsement preventing transfer by a subsequent holder of the signature thus making it payable to himself or some other person. Parker v. Stallings, 61 N. C. 590; Hoffman v. Moore, 15 Fed. 675; Tyson & Rawles v. Bank, 77 S. E. 864; Bank v. Rochambeau, 193 N. C. 1, 136 S. E. 259; Federal Reserve Bank v. Whittford, 227 N. C. 267, 176 S. E. 584.

In General. There are general and restrictive indorsements. In case of restrictive indorsement the indorser cannot indorse to one, who will become a holder in due course, and have a right to sue either indorser. A restrictive indorsement restricts the rights of the indorseree to specified stamped drafts. Jazzler v. Jacobson, 6 N. C. 138.

Indorsed as Counterpart Security. A note indorsed to a bank is restrictive where the indorsement is unrestricted, if it appears that the note is only indorsed as collateral security, and for collection, or it appears that the indorser has given the bank or subagent who has taken the paper for a like purpose and affected by the restriction. Boykin v. Bank, 118 N. C. 566, 24 S. E. 357; Bank v. Hubble, 117 N. Y. 384; Balback v. Barney, 23 N. C. 219.

Transfer by Blank Indorsement Presumed. When indorsement is restrictive which either (1) prohibits the further negotiation of the instrument; or (2) constitutes the indorsee the agent of the indorser; or (3) vests the title in the indorsee in trust for, or to the use of, some other person. As to note with words “without recourse” the mere absence of words implying power to negotiate does not make an indorsement restrictive. (Rev., s. 2183; 1899, c. 733, s. 35; C. S. 3016.)

Time of Filling Blank. Where a note is indorsed in blank, the holder has the authority to make it payable to himself or to any other person by filling up the blank over the signature of the indorser, and this may be done at or before the trial. Tyson v. Hooker, 47 N. C. 29; Lilly v. Baker, 88 N. C. 151. It then becomes a special indorsement. Tyson v. Joyner, 139 N. C. 70, 74, 51 S. E. 803.

Indorsement Enlarging Liability. Demand, notice and protest waived in case the note is payable to order; as for deposit or for collection, is taken and held by the bank as agent of the indorser, and for the purpose indicated, and subject to the right of the indorser to arrest payment or collection, the paper must be indorsed in blank by the subagent who has taken the paper for a like purpose and affected by the restriction. Boykin v. Bank, 118 N. C. 566, 24 S. E. 357; Bank v. Hubble, 117 N. Y. 384; Balback v. Barney, 23 N. C. 219.

Restrictive Indorsement. A bank may indorse a note in blank and still resell the same as its own, as it has legal title although holding in trust. Edgcombe Bonded Warehouse Co. v. Security Nat. Bank, 216 N. C. 246, 4 S. E. (2d) 853.

Indorsement and the Right of Indorser. Changing liability by filling blank. — In case of an indorsement in blank any holder may fill in the blank over the signature thus making it payable to himself or some other person. But filling in the indorsement over the signature of the indorser in blank indorsement into a special indorsement by payment of the bill from any prior indorser. French v. Hill, 50 N. C. 351.

Indorsement Where Note Payable to Bearer. Although a note payable to bearer may be transferred by delivery, it may also be transferred by indorsement of the holder, and in such case the indorser incurs the same obligation, and liability as an indorser of a note payable to order. Lilly v. Baker, 88 N. C. 151.

Cross Reference. See notes to § 25-45.

Effect of Indorsement; rights of indorsee. A restrictive indorsement confers upon the indorsee the right (1) to receive payment of the instrument; (2) to bring any action thereon that the indorser could bring; (3) to transfer his rights as such indorsee, where the form of the indorsement authorizes him to do so. But all subsequent indorsee acquire only the title of the first indorsee under the restrictive indorsement. (Rev., s. 2186; 1899, c. 735, s. 37; C. S. 3018.)

Editor’s Note. Prior to the passage of this and the preceding section it was uniformly held in this State that a bank holding a note with an indorsement in blank that collection could not bring suit in its own name, but must bring suit in the name of the indorser. In Bank v. Exum, 163 N. C. 199, 79 S. E. 498, decided after this section, the same rule was followed without calling attention to, and not referring to this and the preceding section. The case of Bank v. Rochambeau, 193 N. C. 1, 136 S. E. 259, decided the same question and follows the prior ruling.

Indorsement Where Note Payable to Bearer. Although a note payable to bearer may be transferred by delivery, it may also be transferred by indorsement of the holder, and in such case the indorser incurs the same obligation, and liability as an indorser of a note payable to order. Lilly v. Baker, 88 N. C. 151.

Effect of Indorsement Without Recourse. Notes indorsed by the payee named thereon who wrote above his signature on the back of each note: the words, “without recourse” is a qualified indorsement. Its effect is to constitute the indorser a mere assignor of the title to the note, which he held at the date of the indorsement. It does not impair the negotiable character of the note so indorsed. Bank v. Hatcher, 151 N. C. 359, 66 S. E. 308; Evans v. Freeman, 142 [ 900 ]

Alone, a qualified indorsement is not sufficient notice as to indiscriminately a negotiable instrument, but when combined with other suspicious facts it may become evidence to show its negotiability. Merchants Nat. Bank v. Branson, 165 N. C. 344, 81 S. E. 410.

Qualifying Words May Precede or Follow Signature.—The words qualifying an endorsement of a negotiable instrument, such as "without recourse" and words of like effect, may either precede or follow the signature of the transferor of title. Medlin v. Miles, 201 N. C. 683, 161 S. E. 207.

§ 25-45. Conditional indorsement.—Where an indorsement is conditional, a party is required to pay the instrument may disregard the condition and make payment to the indorsee or his transferee, whether the condition has been fulfilled or not. But any person to whom an instrument so indorsed is negotiated will hold the same or the proceeds thereof subject to the rights of the person indorsing conditionally. (Rev., s. 2188; 1899, c. 733, s. 39; C. S. 3020.)

Cross Reference.—As to indorsement with enlarged liability, see notes to § 25-43.

§ 25-46. Indorsement of instrument payable to bearer.—Where an instrument payable to bearer is indorsed specially, it may nevertheless be further negotiated by delivery; but the person indorsing specially is liable as indorser to only such holders as make title through his indorsement. (Rev., s. 2189; 1899, c. 733, s. 40; C. S. 3021.)

Cross References.—As to special indorsee indorsing in blank, see notes to § 25-40; as to who is bearer, see § 25-15.

§ 25-47. Indorsement of instrument payable to two or more persons.—Where an instrument is payable to the order of two or more payees or indorsees who are not partners, all must indorse unless the one indorsing has authority to indorse for the others. (Rev., s. 2190; 1899, c. 733, s. 41; C. S. 3022.)

Editor's Note.—See 11 N. C. L. Rev. 92.

§ 25-48. Effect of instrument drawn or indorsed to a person as cashier.—Where an instrument is drawn or indorsed to a person as cashier or other fiscal officer of a bank or corporation it is deemed prima facie to be payable to the bank or corporation; but may be negotiated by either the indorsement of the bank or corporation or the indorsement of the officer. (Rev., s. 2191; 1899, c. 733, s. 42; C. S. 3023.)

§ 25-49. Indorsement, where payee's name misspelled.—Where the name of a payee or indorsee is wrongly designated or misspelled he may indorse the instrument as there described, adding, if he think fit, his proper signature. (Rev., s. 2192; 1899, c. 733, s. 43; C. S. 3024.)

§ 25-50. Indorsement in representative capacity.—Where any person is under obligation to indorse in a representative capacity he may indorse in such terms as to negative personal liability. (Rev., s. 2193; 1899, c. 733, s. 44; C. S. 3025.)

Cross Reference.—As to liability of person signing as agent, see § 25-26.

§ 25-51. Presumption as to time of indorsement.—Except where an indorsement bears date after the maturity of the instrument, every negotiation is deemed prima facie to have been effected before the instrument was overdue. (Rev., s. 2194; 1899, c. 733, s. 45; C. S. 3026.)

In General.—In愿意ments in blank upon negotiable instruments are presumed to be made contemporaneously with the execution of such instrument. Southerland v. Fremont, 107, N. C. 571, 125 S. E. 357.

§ 25-52. Presumption as to place of indorsement.—Except where the contrary appears, the indorsement is presumed prima facie to have been made at the place where the instrument is dated. (Rev., s. 2195; 1899, c. 733, s. 46; C. S. 3027.)

§ 25-53. Continuation of negotiable character.—An instrument negotiable in its origin continues to be negotiable until it has been restrictively indorsed or discharged by payment or otherwise. (Rev., s. 2196; 1899, c. 733, s. 47; C. S. 3028.)

Cross Reference.—As to negotiation by prior party, see note to § 25-56.

In General.—An indorser in full, who takes up a bill, is remitted to his former title, and may strike out his indorsement and sue as indorsee those standing before him on the bill, although he may have once made a restrictive indorsement. French v. Barney, 23 N. C. 249, 221.

Suit without Striking Subsequent Indorsees.—An indorser of a note may strike out the subsequent indorsers and bring suit, or he may bring suit without striking the subsequent indorsers, as possession is prima facie evidence of payment to the indorsee. Smith v. St. Lawrence, 2 N. C. 174.

§ 25-55. Effect of transfer without indorsement.—Where the holder of an instrument payable to his order transfers it for value without indorsing it, the transfer vests in the transferee such title as the transferrer had therein, and the transferee acquires in addition the right to have the indorsement of the transferrer. But for the purpose of determining whether the transferee is a holder in due course, the negotiation takes effect as of the time when the indorsement is actually made. (Rev., s. 2198; 1899, c. 733, s. 49; C. S. 3030.)

Cross Reference.—As to indorsement in blank, see § 25-40.

In General.—Where a note is payable to order and not to bearer, the indorsement of the payee is necessary to § 25-56. When prior party may negotiate instrument.—Where an instrument is negotiated back to a prior party, such party may, subject to the provisions of this chapter, reissue and further negotiate the same. But he is not entitled to enforce payment thereof against any intervening party to whom he was personally liable. (Rev., s. 2199; 1899, c. 733, s. 50; C. S. 3031.)

Editor's Note.—In 1 N. C. Law Rev. 187 there is a discussion of cases involving this section 25-56. The rule seems to be as laid down in Adrian v. McCaskill, 103 N. C. 182, 9 S. E. 384, that one who obtains possession of a negotiable instrument after having formerly indorsed it is a holder notwithstanding the signature on the collateral note may have been indorsed, and he holds it subject to any valid defense open to the maker, and it was error to exclude evidence tending to show fraud. Mayers v. McMinnim, 140 N. C. 640, 53 S. E. 447. See also Keith v. Basicn, 153 N. C. 293, 69 S. E. 220.

§ 25-56. What constitutes holder in due course.—A holder in due course is a holder who has taken the instrument under the following conditions: (1) That the instrument is complete and regular upon its face; (2) that he became the holder of it before it was overdue and without notice that it has been previously dishonored, if such was the fact; (3) that he took it for good faith and value; and (4) that at the time it was negotiated to him he had no notice of any irregularity in the instrument or defect in the title of the person negotiating it. (Rev., s. 2201; 1899, c. 733, s. 52; C. S. 3033.)

Cross References.—As to defenses which may or may not be set up against a holder in due course, see § 25-63 and notes; as to defective title, see § 25-61; as to the right of holder to sue, see § 25-63; as to validity of instrument in favor of holder, see § 25-65; as to defenses which are good as against a holder in due course, see note to § 25-61.

Indorsement Necessary.—To constitute a holder in due course, it is required that the instrument be indorsed. Bank v. Yelverton, 185 N. C. 314, 117 S. E. 299; Mayers v. McMinnim, 140 N. C. 640, 53 S. E. 447. See also Keith v. Henderson Countv, 204 N. C. 21, 24, 167 S. E. 481.

Indorsement Implies “Due Course.”—The holder of a negotiable instrument duly indorsed is, prima facie, a purchaser for value, in good faith, before maturity, and without notice of an irregularity or defect in the instrument or title. Worth Co. v. International Feed Co., 172 N. C. 335, 342, 90 S. E. 295; Smathers v. Toxaway Hotel Co., 168 N. C. 69, 44 S. E. 529. The transfer by endorsement to another of a collateral note is not a holder in due course, and it makes no difference if he had no notice of the equities of the parties, he is subject to them notwithstanding. Steinhilper v. Bank, 153 N. C. 293, 69 S. E. 220.

One who obtains possession of a note or bill after endorsing it back to a prior party may negotiate in-in instrument, and take the same as he obtains it. (Rev., s. 2200; 1899, c. 733, s. 51; C. S. 3032.)

Art. 3. Rights of Holder

§ 25-57. Right of holder to sue; payment.—The holder of a negotiable instrument may sue thereon in his own name. Dillingham v. Gardner, 219 N. C. 227, 13 S. E. (2d) 478.

§ 25-58. Fraud as Preventing Party from Being Holder in Due Course.—Where the endorser alleged in his answer that he signed the note upon representations made by the maker that the payee was lending the money to the maker to finance the equipment of a law office, that in fact the note was given to the maker for funds of the payee on deposit in a bank which had been wrongfully converted by the maker, and that the payee had full knowledge of, agreed to, and participated in, the fraudulent scheme to procure the endorsement to sign the note with false representations that the answer was sufficiently broad to allege fraud, and the payee was not a holder in due course under this section. Mitchell v. Strickland, 207 N. C. 141, 176 S. E. 200.

Wrongful Procurement by Company of Holder.—Defendant's evidence tended to show that he executed the note in suit to be used to pay for shares of stock of the corporate payee, that the stock was never delivered to him and consequently he was not a holder in due course, but that it was procured from his office without his knowledge or consent by the president of the payee who was also a collecting agent for a bank, and who turned the note over to the bank as collateral for a loan made to him. Held: If in procuring the note the note the president of the company was acting as an agent of the company, knowledge of the instrument, nothing else appearing, would not be imputed to the bank and it would be a holder in due course, while, if, in procuring the note, he was acting as agent of the bank it would have imputed knowledge of the instrument and would not be a holder in due course, and therefore, it being admitted that he was an agent of the bank, an instruction that the maker could not be held liable if the note had been obtained by fraud, the burden of proof thereon is reversable

§ 25-59. Notice before full amount paid.—Where the transference has received notice of any infirmity in the instrument or defect in the title of the person negotiating the same before he has paid the full amount agreed to be paid therefor, he will be deemed a holder in due course only to the extent of the amount theretofore paid by him. (Rev., s. 2203; 1899, c. 733, s. 54; C. S. 3035.)

Cross Reference.—As to what constitutes notice, see § 25-infirmity in the instrument or defect in the title of the person negotiating the same before he has paid the full amount agreed to be paid therefor, he will be deemed a holder in due course only to the extent of the amount theretofore paid by him. (Rev., s. 2203; 1899, c. 733, s. 54; C. S. 3035.)

Cross Reference.—As to what constitutes notice, see § 25-

In General.—The title passes to one who takes a negotiable paper without notice of any defect or equities no matter how little he paid, in the absence of fraud. If there is fraud involving the maker, he is not entitled to the benefit of the § 25-61. When title defective.—The title of a person who negotiates an instrument is defective within the meaning of this chapter when he obtained the instrument, or any signature thereeto, by fraud, duress or force and fear or other unlawful means, or for an illegal consideration, or when he negotiates it in bad faith or under such circumstances as amount to a fraud. (Rev., s. 2204; 1899, c. 733, s. 55; C. S. 3036.)

Editor's Note.—A careful reading of this section will reveal that it applies to "the title of a person who may not have full knowledge or of the means of knowing the circumstances. The question of whether or not fraud, duress, usury, illegality of consideration, etc., will render the instrument unenforceable in the hands of a person in due course without notice presents itself.

In the case of the fraud which is sufficient to avoid an instrument as to such holder there is a considerable amount of conflict. See 8 C. J. sections 1048, 1049, pp. 789, 790.
However, it would seem that the better rule is that fraud ordinarily renders the instrument voidable only, and therefore, in accordance with the general rule it should be that where the holder is one in due course held against a holder in due course as to such holder there is a considerable amount of conflict. See 8 C. J. sections 1048, 1049, pp. 789, 790.

§ 25-62. What constitutes notice of defect.—To constitute a notice of an infirmity in the instrument or defect in the title of the person negotiating the same the person to whom it is negotiated must have had actual knowledge of the infirmity or defect or knowledge of such facts that his action in taking the instrument amounted to bad faith. (Rev., s. 2205; 1899, c. 733, s. 55; C. S. 3037.)

In General.—Observables irregularities on the face of the instrument will no longer suffice to affect the rights of a holder in due course. It is necessary that circumstances set out in this section should occur in order to charge the holder with notice. Holleman v. Trust Co., 185 N. C. 49, 110 S. E. 323; Critcher v. Ballard, 180 N. C. 111, 112, 104 S. E. 134; Smathers & Co. v. Toxaway Hotel Co., 162 N. C. 346, 78 S. E. 316; Smathers & Co. v. Toxaway Co., 167 N. C. 469, 470, 83 S. E. 844.

1. A bank taking a note indorsed to it by its president takes notice to the president constitutes notice to the bank. Le Duc v. Moore, 111 N. C. 516, 15 S. E. 466.

2. A bank relying on the knowledge of the person, has knowledge of such facts and circumstances which make it incumbent on him to inquire as to the character of the note which he purchased, when the note is affected with fraud, or the facts would disclose. Bunting v. Hicks, 22 N. C. 130, 32 Am. Dec. 609; Hubert v. Douglas, 94 N. C. 122. Loftin v. Hill, 131 N. C. 106, 110, 42 S. E. 548. But knowledge of the circumstances within the bank's notice to the same defenses as if it were nonnegotiable. Fed. (2d) 554.

3. To state that a holder in due course and who is not himself a party to the same defenses as if it were nonnegotiable. Fed. (2d) 554.

4. To state that a holder in due course and who is not himself a party to the same defenses as if it were nonnegotiable. Fed. (2d) 554.

5. To state that a holder in due course and who is not himself a party to the same defenses as if it were nonnegotiable. Fed. (2d) 554.

§ 25-63. Rights of holder in due course. A holder in due course holds the instrument free from any defect of title of prior parties, and free from defenses available to prior parties among themselves, and may enforce payment of the instrument for the full amount thereof against all parties liable thereon. (Rev., s. 2206; 1899, c. 733, s. 57; C. S. 3038.)

Cross Reference.—For discussion of rights of holder taking through a holder in due course, see note to § 25-62.

In General.—One taking a note as a holder in due course can, under this section, enforce his right against all prior parties, except in case of a defective title as provided in section 25-61. Bank v. Mena, 110 N. C. 550, 17 S. E. 918; Davidson v. Powell, 114 N. C. 575, 19 S. E. 601; Bank v. Griffin, 135 N. C. 72, 68 S. E. 919; Standing Stone Nat. Bank v. Walser, 163 N. C. 53, 54, 77 S. E. 1006. But see section 25-65 as to burden of proof where defect is shown.

The maker of a note may not set up defenses he may have against the payee of the note in an action by a holder in due course, but where the holder is not a holder in due course without notice, the maker may set up all defenses which he may have as against the payee. Federal Reserve Bank v. Atmore, 200 N. C. 437, 157 S. E. 129. Where the same suitably alleged, it is sufficient to state that the defendant was not a holder in due course for value without notice, all defenses which the defendant may have are presentable under the pleadings. Id.

Exempt from Scheme to Evade Usury Laws.—Where a borrower is entitled to enforce an equity against the payee because of a device to evade the usury laws, this equity cannot be enforced against a holder in due course. Federal Reserve Bank v. Jones, 203 N. C. 648, 650, 172 S. E. 185.

§ 25-64. When subject to original defenses.—In the hands of any holder other than a holder in due course a negotiable instrument is subject to the same defenses as if it were nonnegotiable. But a holder who derives his title through a holder in due course and who is not himself a party to any fraud or illegality affecting the instrument has all the rights of such former holder in respect of all parties prior to the latter. (Rev., s. 2207; 1899, c. 733, s. 58; C. S. 3039.)

Editor's Note.—The dictum in Pierce v. Carlton, 184 N. C. 175, 184 S. E. 176, 157 S. E. 129, does not apply to where a party to the fraudulent in procuring the instrument but who takes with notice, and then passes the instrument on to a holder in due course, will take a good title and hold as a holder in due course when he acquires the instrument from the holder in due course. The court cites Calvert's Negotiable In-

Cross Reference.—See note under § 53-71.

Right of Drawer to Arrest Payment.—A drawer of a draft, ordinarily standing towards subsequent parties as a general endorser, may, by appropriate words appearing on the back check draw against the instrument as to persons affected with notice, retain the right to arrest payment. Murchison Nat. Bank v. Dunn Oil Mills Co., 150 N. C. 718, 116 A. I. R. 682.

Where a draft or bill is transferred to a bank by restrictive indorsement, as for deposit or for collection, the instrument is taken and held by the bank as agent for the indorser and the instrument so acts in behalf of the indorser, and the right of the indorser to arrest payment or divert the proceeds in the hands of any intermediate or subsequent who has taken the paper for like purpose and affected by the receiver, when making presents, is fortified by §§ 2211, 2212, 1899, c. 733, s. 62; C. S. 8044.)

Rights of Holder without Notice of Restrictions.—When a bank to which a draft, appearing on its face to be negotiable, is forwarded by another bank, purchases it for value, without notice of an agreement restricting its negotiation, the drawer may not stop payment of the draft as against the rights of the bank so holding the draft. Murchison Nat. Bank v. Dunn Oil Mills Co., 150 N. C. 718, 64 S. E. 885.

§ 25-68. Liability of acceptor.—The acceptor by accepting the instrument engages that he will pay it according to the tenor of his acceptance; and admits (1) existence of the drawer, the genuineness of his signature and his capacity and authority to draw the instrument; and (2) the existence of the payee and his then capacity to indorse. (Rev., s. 2211; 1899, c. 733, s. 62; C. S. 3043.)

Cross Reference.—As to unlawfulness of bank to handle draft connected with receipt for liquor sale the sale of which is unlawful, see § 25-99.

Burdon on Accrue to Prove Signature of Drawer.—When the drawee draws against a depositor of the bank, the bank is held to act in good faith, and the drawee as true and genuine, and the manner in which the bank makes presentment, and the position of the bank as trustee, are shown to be sufficient to establish the fact of the endorsement and the genuineness of the signature, unless there is other evidence to the contrary. This is true where the bank is called upon to pass judgment on the endorsement which is executed in writing, and it is sufficient to warrant the bank to the payee and to all subsequent parties. State Bank v. Savings, etc., Co., 178 N. C. 184, 186, 100 S. E. 304.

§ 25-69. When person deemed indorser.—A person placing his signature upon an instrument otherwise than as maker, drawer or acceptor is deemed to be an indorser, unless he clearly indicates by appropriate words his intention to be bound in some other capacity. (Rev., 2212; 1899, c. 733, s. 63; C. S. 3044.)

In General.—A person indorsing a note at the time it is made shall be held as original promisor. If the note is indorsed after delivery, and the payee and negotiated, the indorsement binds the indorser as indorser only, but if it is not negotiated, he is liable as guarantor. Lilly v. Baker, 88 N. C. 353.

Such "appropriate words" as provided under this section, must appear upon the instrument itself or in some sufficient writing attached thereto and becoming an essential and integral part thereof, and parol evidence is in no event admitted to show that one signing as endorser is primarily liable on the note. Waddell v. Hood, 207 N. C. 250, 176 S. E. 558.

Indorsement as Surety.—When it is set out in the body of a note that indorsers on the back guarantee, they shall be held liable as sureties and not as indorsers. Dillard v. Merchantile Co., 190 N. C. 225, 129 S. E. 598.

Parol Evidence Admissible.—When parol evidence is admissible as between the parties to explain the instrument, for example, "the surety on the face of a note, and an accommodation indorser, may, as between themselves, be shown by parol to be co-sureties by virtue of a verbal understanding to that effect. So, several successive accommodation indorsers of a negotiable instrument may be shown by parol to be co-sureties." Brandt Suretyship Guaranty, Vol. 1 (3 ed.), pp. 562-563. Evers v. St. Louis, 168 N. C. 585; Gillam v. Walker, 189 N. C. 129, 126 S. E. 424.

It is therefore not competent to show that the liability of one whose name is written on the back of a note as an indorser has been created by parol, or that such person, in accepting the note without notice of an agreement restricting its negotiation, was acting as surety in the belief that he was acting as guarantor, or that he was so acting, and by reason thereof the note was not payable to the payee and all subsequent parties. So, where the note was payable to the order of a third person, he was liable as indorser and not as surety. Bushee v. Creech, 192 N. C. 499, 500, 135 S. E. 226; Fourth Nat. Bank v. Wilson, 168 N. C. 537, 84 S. E. 666.

Where the directors of a corporation sign a negotiable instrument on the back thereof as endorsers, the holder may not show by parol that they signed as co-makers, or guarantors, or sureties. Wrenn v. Lawrence Cotton Mills, 198 N. C. 99, 150 S. E. 676.

Testimony in direct contradiction of the written agreement as expressed in the endorsement to "guarantee payment of this note ... with full knowledge of this knowledge of this contract," should be excluded under this section. Carr v. Clark, 205 N. C. 265, 266, 171 S. E. 88.

§ 25-70. Liability of irregular indorser.—Where a person not otherwise a party to an instrument places thereon his signature in blank before delivery he is liable as indorser in accordance with the following rules: (1) If the instrument is payable to the order of a third person he is liable to the payee and to all subsequent parties; (2) if the instrument is payable to the order of the maker or drawer, or is payable to bearer, he is liable to all parties subsequent to the maker or § 25-71. Warranty, where negotiation by delivery.—Every person negotiating an instrument by delivery or by a qualified indorsement warrants:

(1) that the instrument is genuine and in all respects what it purports to be; (2) that he has a good title to it; (3) that all prior parties had capacity to contract; (4) that he has no knowledge of any fact which would impair the validity of the instrument or render it valueless. But when the negotiation is by delivery only the warranty extends in favor of no holder other than the immediate transferee. The provisions of subdivision three of this section do not apply to persons negotiating public or corporate securities other than bills and notes. (Rev., s. 2214; 1899, c. 733, s. 65; C. S. 3046.)

Cross Reference.—As to qualified indorsement, see § 25-44.

§ 25-72. Liability of general indorsor.—Every indorser who indorses without qualification warrants to all subsequent holders in due course (1) that the matters and things mentioned in subdivisions one, two and three of § 25-71; and (2) that the instrument validly and subsisting. And in addition he engages that on due presentment it shall be accepted or paid, or both, as the case may be, according to its value it guarantees to a holder in due course among other matters and things that the instrument, at the time of the indorsement, was a valid and subsisting obligation. Wachovia Bank, etc., v. Tatham, 204 N. C. 198, 167 S. E. 626.

Cross Reference.—As to words which exempt transferor from liability as general endorser, see § 25-44 and note.

§ 25-73. Liability of substituted indorsor.—Where an endorser as substitute succeeds to the rights and obligations of another endorser with whom he has substituted his name on a negotiable note, he is subject to all the warranties which prevail in case of unqualified indorsement on an instrument negotiable by delivery only. (Rev., s. 2216; 1899, c. 733, s. 67; C. S. 3048.)

§ 25-74. Order in which indorsors are liable.—As respects one another, indorsors are liable prima facie in the order in which they indorse; but evidence is admissible to show that as between or among themselves they have agreed otherwise. Joint payees or joint indorsors who are deemed to indorse jointly and severally. (Rev., s. 2217; 1899, c. 733, s. 68; C. S. 3049.)

Cross Reference.—As to liability of substitute holder when instrument is negotiated back to prior holder, see § 25-56.

§ 25-75. Liability of agent or broker.—The provisions made as to warranties which prevail in case of unqualified indorsements refer to lawful transactions, and do not relate to transactions coming within the meaning of our usury laws. Seabury v. Duffy, 158 N. C. 432, 74 S. E. 355.

Parol Evidence.—Where an unqualified endorsement is supported by a valuable consideration and the endorser cannot introduce parol evidence of an agreement entered into by the parties contemporaneously with the execution of the note that payable was to be made from funds other than those which are represented by the note, he cannot introduce parol evidence in contradiction of the written terms of the note that he was not to be held liable in any event. Kilpatrick v. Walthall, 142 N. C. 54, 54 S. E. 847.

Set-off of Deposits against Note.—Where a depositor in an insolvent national bank had indorsed a note on which he was in fact primarily liable, and procured the bank to discount it as a benefit to himself in suit by the bank's receiver to recover the amount of the note, to set off his deposit in the bank against his liability on the note, Williams v. Rose, 215 Fed. 506; 17 L. R. A. 462; Scott v. Armstrong, 146 U. S. 499, 36 L. Ed., 1059; Yardley v. Philiber, 167 U. S. 344, 346, 124 L. Ed. 192; Williams v. Coleman, 190 N. C. 368, 371, 129 S. E. 82.

Not Applicable to Usury. — The provisions made as to limitations which prevail in case of unqualified indorsor warranties refer to lawful transactions, and do not relate to transactions coming within the meaning of our usury laws. Seabury v. Duffy, 158 N. C. 432, 74 S. E. 355.

Parol Evidence.—Where an unqualified endorsement is supported by a valuable consideration and the endorser cannot introduce parol evidence of an agreement entered into by the parties contemporaneously with the execution of the note that payable was to be made from funds other than those which are represented by the note, he cannot introduce parol evidence in contradiction of the written terms of the note that he was not to be held liable in any event. Kilpatrick v. Walthall, 142 N. C. 54, 54 S. E. 847.

Contributions between Indorsors. — An indorser of a negotiable instrument who has paid a judgment obtained thereon in an action against him and the insolvent makers, cannot, nothing else appearing, recover the amount in his action thereon for a subsequent indorser. Lynch v. Lonard, 153 N. C. 270, 69 S. E. 146.

An indorser of a negotiable instrument who paid a judgment obtained thereon in an action against him and the insolvent makers, cannot, nothing else appearing, recover the amount in his action thereon for a subsequent indorser. Lynch v. Lonard, 153 N. C. 270, 69 S. E. 146.

Parol Evidence against Right of Indorsement.—An action upon a negotiable note by a remote indorsor, who purchased bona fide, for full value and without notice, the payee, who indorsed the note in blank, evidence of an agreement between the payee and his indorsee that the note was not one liable on his indorsement is not admissible. Hill v. Shields, 81 N. C. 250.

Cross Reference.—See § 25-44 for set-off of deposits against a note. § 25-75. Liability of agent or broker.—Where a broker or other agent negotiates an instrument without endorsement he incurs all the liabilities prescribed by § 25-71, unless he discloses the name of his principal and the fact that he is acting only as agent. (Rev. s. 2218; 1899, c. 733, s. 69; C. S. 3060.)

Cross Reference.—See also §§ 25-26 and 25-50.

Art. 7. Presentment for Payment.

§ 25-76. Effect of want of demand on principal debtor.—Presentment for payment is not necessary in order to charge the person primarily liable on the instrument; but if the instrument is by its terms payable at a special place, and he is able and willing to pay it there at maturity, such ability and willingness are equivalent to a tender of payment upon his part. But, except as herein otherwise provided, presentment for payment is necessary in order to charge the drawer and indorsers. (Rev., s. 2219; 1899, c. 733, s. 70; C. S. 3051.)

Cross References.—As to when presentment is not necessary in order to charge drawer and indorsers, see §§ 25-85, 25-86; as to place of presentment, see § 25-79; as to notice to cease to be liable before presentment, see §§ 25-82 et seq.

Presentment Necessary to Hold Drawers.—When a draft on a third person is given in settlement of an antecedent debt, it is the duty of the holder to present it, and a failure to do so will discharge the debt. Mauney & Son v. Coit, 80 N. C. 300.

Presentment Must Be Made in a Reasonable Time to Hold Drawer.—A drawer of a bill, having funds in the hands of the drawee has a right that the bill be presented for payment, and he cannot be charged unless the bill was presented in a reasonable time, although he knew at the time of drawing the bill that the drawee was insolvent. Cedar Falls Co. v. Wallace, 83 N. C. 225; Long v. Stephen-son, 72 N. C. 569.

Effect of Guaranteeing Prior Indorsements.—A certificate of deposit forwarded to another bank by the drawer bank must be presented in a reasonable time, and if the drawer bank presented the drawer is not liable, although it stamped the certificate "Prior indorsements guaranteed." Bank v. Trust Co., 159 N. C. 85, 74 S. E. 747.

Presentment of Checks.—A postdated check, like any other check need not be presented on the day of its date, but may be presented within a reasonable time thereafter, and the fact that the drawer had money on deposit to meet it on that date, but did not have it when the check was presented, is not equivalent to a "tender of payment." Philadelphia Life Ins. Co. v. Hayworth, 296 Fed. Rep. 339.

Sufficient Funds on Deposit May Amount to Tender.—If a certificated bank for acceptance was the authorized agent of the plain-tiff for acceptance was the authorized agent of the plain-tiff. Burrus v. Life Ins. Co., 124 N. C. 9, 12, 32 S. E. 323.

§ 25-79. Place of presentment. — Presentment for payment is made at the proper place (1) where a place of payment is specified in the instrument and it is there presenteled; (2) where no place of payment is specified, but the address of the person to make the payment is given in the instrument, and it is there presenteled; (3) where no place of payment is specified and no address is given and the instrument is presenteled at the usual place of business or residence of the person to make payment; (4) in any other case if presenteled to the person to make payment whenever he can be found, or if presenteled at his last known place of business or residence. (Rev., s. 2222; 1899, c. 733, s. 72; C. S. 3053.)

Place of Payment Specified.—Whenever a bill of exchange or draft is made payable in a particular place, the burden is upon the maker to prove that place is sufficient, and a personal one is not necessary whether the maker lives at the same place or a different one. Sullivan v. Mitchell, 4 N. C. 93. But the maker is not bound to pay it until it is presenteled at the place where it is expressed to be payable. Bank v. Bank, 35 N. C. 75.

Presentment of a draft for payment at the place of its date is sufficient, no presentment of presentment appearing. Wittkowicz v. Smith, 84 N. C. 671.

§ 25-80. Instrument must be exhibited. — The instrument must be exhibited to the person from whom payment is demanded, and, when it is payable, must be delivered up to the party paying it. (Rev., s. 2223; 1899, c. 733, s. 74; C. S. 3055.)

Lost or Destroyed Note.—The provisions of this section that upon presentment of a note it must be delivered up to the party paying it, does not apply where the note has been lost or destroyed, and, under the facts of this § 25-81. Presentment where instrument payable at bank.—Where the instrument is payable at a bank presentment for payment must be made during banking hours, unless the person to make payment has no funds there to meet it at any time during the day, in which case presentment at any hour before the bank is closed on that day is sufficient. (Rev., s. 2224; 1899, c. 733, s. 75; C. S. 3056.)

§ 25-82. Presentment where principal debtor is dead.—Where the person primarily liable on the instrument is dead, and no place of payment is specified, presentment for payment must be made to his personal representative, if such there be, and if with the exercise of reasonable diligence he can be found. (Rev., s. 2225; 1899, c. 733, s. 76; C. S. 3057.)

§ 25-83. Presentment to persons liable as partners.—Where the persons primarily liable on the instrument are liable as partners and no place of payment is specified, presentment for payment may be made to any one of them, even though there has been a dissolution of the firm. (Rev., s. 2226; 1899, c. 733, s. 77; C. S. 3058.)

In General.—Where the protest of a notary public stated that he presented a bill, which purported to be drawn on a fictitious person, or one of the members thereof, it was held to be evidence that A was a member of that firm, and that presentment was properly made. Elliott v. White, 31 N. C. 98.

§ 25-84. Presentment to joint debtors.—Where there are several persons not parties primarily liable on the instrument and no place of payment is specified, presentment must be made to them all. (Rev., s. 2227; 1899, c. 733, s. 78; C. S. 3059.)

§ 25-85. When presentment not required to charge the drawer.—Presentment for payment is not required in order to charge the drawer where he has no right to expect or require that the drawee or acceptor will pay the instrument. (Rev., s. 2228; 1899, c. 733, s. 79; C. S. 3060.)

In General.—The drawers, having funds in the hands of the drawee, had the right to expect their bill to be honored by them, and they were entitled to presentment of their bill in a reasonable time and strict notice if dishonored on the part of the plaintiff, although the defendants at the time they drew the bill may have believed the drawers were insolvent and had been so notified by them and requested not to draw on them. Cedar Falls Co. v. Wallace Bros., 83 N. C. 225, 228.

§ 25-86. When presentment not required to charge the indorser.—Presentment for payment is not required in order to charge an indorser where the instrument was made or accepted for his accommodation and he has no reason to expect that the instrument will be paid if presented. (Rev., s. 2229; 1899, c. 733, s. 80; C. S. 3061.)

This section is not applicable where holder testifies that his acceptance is not for accommodation. Hyde v. Tatham, 201 N. C. 167, 168 S. E. 632.

Lack of Funds with Which to Pay.—Where the treasurer of a corporation indorses the corporate note payable at a certain bank, and at its maturity the corporation has no funds at the bank, it is not necessary that the note should have been presented to the bank for payment. Meyers Co. v. Battle, 170 N. C. 168, 66 S. E. 1034.

Burden of Proof on Holder.—If it is in fact an accommodation paper, then, notwithstanding the form of the paper, the drawer would be primarily liable and not entitled to notice, but the burden to show this is on the holder, and the burden of being a mere indorsement of the paper governs and the drawer is entitled to notice. National Bank v. Bradley, 117 N. C. 526, 530, 23 S. E. 455.

§ 25-87. When delay in presentment is excused. —Delay in making presentment for payment is excused when the delay is caused by circumstances beyond the control of the holder and not imputable to his default, misconduct or negligence. When the cause of delay ceases to operate presentment must be made with reasonable diligence. (Rev., s. 2230; 1899, c. 733, s. 81; C. S. 3062.)

Delay Caused by One Liable.—Where an agent has incurred a personal liability on a negotiable instrument given in part of the consideration therefor, not to avoid payment on the ground of delay in presenting it for payment, when the delay was at his own request and by his own conduct. Caldwell Co. v. George, 176 N. C. 602, 97 S. E. 507.

§ 25-88. When presentment may be dispensed with.—Presentment for payment is dispensed with (1) where after the exercise of reasonable diligence presentment as required by this chapter cannot be made; (2) where the drawee is a fictitious person; (3) by waiver of presentment, express or implied. (Rev., s. 2231; 1899, c. 733, s. 82; C. S. 3063.)

Where Presentment Cannot Be Made.—Where the maker is a nonresident without any domicile in the State, and goes on a voyage about the time the note falls due, no demand on him is necessary in order to charge the indorser. Moore v. Coffield, 12 N. C. 247.

Implied Waiver of Presentments.—Where a check was given for county bonds and the bonds could not be issued at once, and the drawer cooperated with the county to get the bond issue, there is a sufficient implied waiver of immediate presentment, and a presentment within a reasonable time after the bond issue was sufficient to bind the drawer. Caldwell County v. George, 176 N. C. 602, 97 S. E. 507.

§ 25-89. When instrument dishonored by non-payment.—The instrument is dishonored by non-payment when (1) it is duly presented for payment and payment is refused or cannot be obtained; or (2) presentment is excused and the instrument is overdue and unpaid. (Rev., s. 2232; 1899, c. 733, s. 83; C. S. 3064.)

§ 25-90. Liability of persons secondarily liable when instrument dishonored. —Subject to the provisions of this chapter, when the instrument is dishonored by non-payment, an immediate right of recourse to all parties secondarily liable thereon accrues to the holder. (Rev., s. 2233; 1899, c. 733, s. 84; C. S. 3065.)

Cross Reference.—As to right of surety to demand payee or holder to bring suit when he considers himself in danger of loss, see § 26-7.

§ 25-91. Time of maturity. —Every negotiable instrument is payable at the time fixed therein without grace, except as allowed by the succeeding section. When the day of maturity falls upon Sunday or a holiday the instrument is payable on the next succeeding business day. (Rev., s. 2234; 1899, c. 733, s. 85; 1907, c. 897; 1909, c. 800, s. 1; C. S. 3066.)

§ 25-92. When days of grace allowed.—All bills of exchange payable within the state, at sight, in which there is an express stipulation to that effect and not otherwise, shall be entitled to days of grace as the same are allowed by the custom of merchants on foreign bills of exchange payable at the expiration of a certain period after

The times when payment is due, or when drafts are payable on demand, or drafts payable on demand. (Rev., s. 2235; Code, s. 43; 1905, c. 327; 1907, c. 861; C. S. 3067.)

§ 25-93. How time is computed.—Where the instrument is payable at a fixed period after date, after sight, or after the happening of a specified event, the time of payment is determined by excluding the day from which the time is to begin to run and by including the date of payment. (Rev., s. 2236; 1899, c. 733, s. 86; C. S. 3068.)

§ 25-94. Rule where instrument is payable at bank.—Where the instrument is made payable at a bank it is equivalent to an order to the bank to pay the same for the account of the principal debtor thereon. (Rev., s. 2237; 1899, c. 733, s. 87; C. S. 3069.)

Where a note is made payable at a certain bank it amounts to an order to the bank to pay same out of the maker's deposit upon presentment when due. Dry v. Reynolds, 205 N. C. 571, 172 S. E. 351. (Rev., s. 2241; 1899, c. 733, s. 90; C. S. 3072.)

§ 25-95. What constitutes payment in due course.—Payment is made in due course when it is made at or after the maturity of the instrument to the holder thereof in good faith and without notice that his title is defective. (Rev., s. 2238; 1899, c. 733, s. 88; C. S. 3070.)

§ 25-96. To whom notice of dishonor must be given.—Except as herein otherwise provided, when a negotiable instrument has been dishonored by nonacceptance or nonpayment, notice of dishonor must be given to the drawer and to each indorser, and any drawer or indorser to whom such notice is not given is discharged. (Rev., s. 2239; 1899, c. 733, s. 89; C. S. 3071.)

Cross Reference.—As to notice to principal, see § 25-76.

In General.—The draft having been accepted, the drawee became primarily liable, and in the event of dishonor notice must be given to all those who are secondarily liable as drawee and indorsers. Denny v. Palmer, 27 N. C. 610; Tiedman Com. Paper, sec. 336; 3 Randolph Com. Paper, sec. 112; 2 Daniel Eng. Inst., sec. 993; Brown v. Tague, 52 N. C. 573; National Bank v. Bradley, 117 N. C. 526, 530, 23 S. E. 455.

Following the statute it was held in Perry Co. v. Taylor Bros., 148 N. C. 362, 62 S. E. 421, that failure to give notice of dishonor discharged the indorser from further liability. Barber v. Abeher, 175 N. C. 603, 604, 96 S. E. 43.

Notice to Surety.—A surety on a note is not discharged from liability on dishonor by reason of his consent to an extension of time for payment granted the principal. Davis v. Royall, 204 N. C. 147, 167 S. E. 339.

§ 25-97. By whom notice given.—The notice may be given by or on behalf of the holder or by or on behalf of any party to the instrument who might be compelled to pay to the holder, and who upon taking it up would have a right to reimbursement from the party to whom notice is given. (Rev., s. 2240; 1899, c. 733, s. 90; C. S. 3072.)

In General.—The notice required by law to be given to an endorser is sufficient if it is sufficient to put him in possession of the fact of dishonor to the party to whom notice is given; but whether a notice is sufficient depends on the circumstances of the case. (Rev., s. 2241; 1899, c. 733, s. 91; C. S. 3073.)

§ 25-98. Notice given by agent.—Notice of dishonor may be given by an agent either in his own name or in the name of any party entitled to give notice, whether that party be his principal or not. (Rev., s. 2241; 1899, c. 733, s. 91; C. S. 3073.)

§ 25-99. Effect of notice given on behalf of holder.—Where notice is given by or on behalf of the holder, it inures to the benefit of all subsequent holders and all prior parties who have a right of recourse against the party to whom it is given. (Rev., s. 2242; 1899, c. 733, s. 92; C. S. 3074.)

§ 25-100. Effect where notice is given by party entitled thereto.—Where notice is given by or on behalf of a party entitled to give notice it inures to the benefit of the holder and all parties subsequent to the party by whom notice is given. (Rev., s. 2243; 1899, c. 733, s. 93; C. S. 3075.)

§ 25-101. When agent may give notice.—Where the instrument has been dishonored in the hands of an agent he may either himself give notice to the parties liable thereon or he may give notice to his principal. If he give notice to his principal he must do so within the same time as if he were the holder, and the principal upon the receipt of such notice has himself the same time for giving notice as if the agent had been an independent holder. (Rev., s. 2244; 1899, c. 733, s. 94; C. S. 3076.)

§ 25-102. When notice sufficient.—A written notice need not be signed and an insufficient written notice may be supplemented and validated by verbal communication. A misdescription of the in-
§ 25-103. Form of notice.—The notice may be in writing or merely oral, and may be given in any terms which sufficiently identify the instrument and indicate that it has been dishonored by nonacceptance or nonpayment. It may in all cases be given by delivering it personally or through the mails. (Rev., s. 2246; 1899, c. 733, s. 96; C. S. 3078.)

§ 25-104. To whom notice may be given.—Notice of dishonor may be given either to the party himself or to his agent in that behalf. (Rev., s. 2247; 1899, c. 733, s. 97; C. S. 3079.)

§ 25-105. Notice when party is dead.—When any party is dead and his death is known to the party giving notice, the notice must be given to a personal representative if there be one, and if with reasonable diligence he can be found. If there is no personal representative, notice may be sent to the last residence or last place of business of the deceased. (Rev., s. 2248; 1899, c. 733, s. 98; C. S. 3080.)

§ 25-106. Notice to partners.—When the parties to be notified are partners, notice to any one partner is notice to the firm, even though there has been a dissolution. (Rev., s. 2249; 1899, c. 733, s. 99; C. S. 3081.)

§ 25-107. Notice to persons jointly liable.—Notice to joint parties who are not partners must be given to each of them unless one of them has authority to receive such notice for the others. (Rev., s. 2250; 1899, c. 733, s. 100; C. S. 3082.)

§ 25-108. Notice to bankrupt.—Where a party has been adjudged a bankrupt or an insolvent or has made an assignment for the benefit of his creditors, notice may be given either to the party himself or to his trustee or assignee. (Rev., s. 2251; 1899, c. 733, s. 101; C. S. 3083.)

§ 25-109. Time within which notice must be given.—Notice may be given as soon as the instrument is dishonored, and, unless delay is excused as hereinafter provided, must be given within the times fixed by this chapter. (Rev., s. 2252; 1899, c. 733, s. 102; C. S. 3084.)

Notice, Burden.—The burden is on the holder of a negotiable note to show that notice of nonpayment was given the endorsers, and in the absence of evidence of such notice to an endorser, or to his personal representative after his death, the holder is not entitled to recover on the endorsement. Williams v. Fowler Automobile Co., 207 N. C. 309, 178 S. E. 567.

§ 25-110. Notice where parties reside in the same place.—When the person giving and the person to receive notice reside in the same place notice must be given within the following times: (1) If given at the place of business of the person to receive notice it must be given before the close of business hours on the day following; (2) if given at his residence it must be given before the usual hours of rest on the day following; (3) if sent by mail it must be deposited in the post office in time to reach him in the usual course on the day following. (Rev., s. 2253; 1899, c. 733, s. 103; C. S. 3085.)

§ 25-111. Notice where parties reside in different places.—Where the person giving and the person to receive notice reside in different places the notice must be given within the following times: (1) If sent by mail it must be deposited in the post office in time to go by mail the day following the day of dishonor, or if there be no mail at a convenient hour on that day, by the next mail thereafter; (2) if given otherwise than through the post office, then within the time that notice would have been received in due course of mail if it had been deposited in the post office within the time specified in the last subdivision. (Rev., s. 2254; 1899, c. 733, s. 104; C. S. 3086.)

In General.—As to what was a reasonable notice under varying circumstances, it has now been long settled that a reasonable notice is one which is sent by the first post after the day of dishonor, and when there is a daily mail, this necessarily means the next day, if the next day's mail does not leave before business hours. National Bank v. Bradley, 117 N. C. 525, 530, 23 S. E. 455; Hubbard v. Troy, 24 N. C. 134; Denny v. Palmer, 27 N. C. 619.

Sufficient Proof of Notice.—It was unanimously held by the Supreme Court of the United States, in Lindenberger v. Beal, 6 Wheat. 104, that the evidence of the letter containing notice, put into the post office, directed to the defendant at his place of residence, was sufficient proof of the notice to be left to the jury, and that it was unnecessary to give notice to the defendant to produce the letter before parol evidence could be admitted. Faribault v. Ely, 13 N. C. 67.

§ 25-112. When sender deemed to have given due notice.—Where notice of dishonor is duly addressed and deposited in the post office the sender is deemed to have given due notice, notwithstanding any miscarriage in the mails. (Rev., s. 2255; 1899, c. 733, s. 105; C. S. 3087.)

§ 25-113. What constitutes deposit in postoffice.—Notice is deemed to have been deposited in the post office when deposited in any branch post office or in any letter-box under the control of the postoffice department. (Rev., s. 2256; 1899, c. 733, s. 106; C. S. 3088.)

§ 25-114. Time of notice to antecedent parties.—Where a party receives notice of dishonor he has, after the receipt of such notice, the same time for giving notice to antecedent parties that the holder has after the dishonor. (Rev., s. 2257; 1899, c. 733, s. 107; C. S. 3089.)

§ 25-115. Where notice must be sent.—Where a party has added an address to his signature, notice of dishonor must be sent to that address; but if he has not given such address, then the notice must be sent as follows: (1) Either to the postoffice nearest to his place of residence or to the postoffice where he is accustomed to receive his letters; or (2) if he lives in one place and has his place of business in another, notice may be sent to either place; or (3) if he be sojourning in another place notice may be sent to the place where he is sojourning. But where the notice is actually received by the party within the time specified in this chapter it will be sufficient, though not sent in accordance with requirements of this section. (Rev., s. 2258; 1899, c. 733, s. 108; C. S. 3090.)

Diligent Attempt to Notify Necessary.—A holder of a dishonored bill must give notice to all indorsers, or make a diligent attempt to give this notice, if he does not know
§ 25-116. Waiver of notice.—Notice of dishonor may be waived either before the time of giving notice has arrived or after the omission to give due notice, and the waiver may be express or implied. (Rev., s. 2259; 1899, c. 733, s. 109; C. S. 3091.)

Mistake.—When one, thinking there has been a presentment for payment, makes promises that would amount to a waiver, had there been a presentment, he is not liable on the grounds of waiver of notice if there had been no presentment for payment. Lilly v. Petteeway, 73 N. C. 358.

Promise to Pay after Failure to Be Notified.—A promise to pay generally, or a promise to pay a part, or a part payment, made with full knowledge that he had been fully released from liability on the bill by the neglect of the holder to give notice, will operate as a waiver and bind the party who makes it for the payment of the whole bill. Dixon v. Elliot, 1 Car. & P., 472; Margetson v. Atkins, 3 Car. & P., 383; Harvey v. Thorpe, 23 Miss., 538; Shaw Bros. v. McNeill, 95 N. C. 555, 558.

Waiver of presentment for payment of a note, the indorsers had reason to believe, and did believe, that the note would not be paid by the maker, this circumstance was deemed to be a waiver not only of a formal presentment but also of notice, when the drawee was a fictitious person or a person not having capacity to contract; (3) where the drawer is the person to whom the instrument is presented for payment; (4) where the drawer has no right to expect or require that the drawee or acceptor will honor the instrument; (5) where the drawer has countermanded payment. (Rev., s. 2264; 1899, c. 733, s. 114; C. S. 3096.)

Cross Reference.—As to notice, see note to § 25-85.

§ 25-117. Who affected by waiver.—Where the waiver is embodied in the instrument itself it is binding upon all parties, but where it is written above the signature of an indorser it binds him only. (Rev., s. 2260; 1899, c. 733, s. 110; C. S. 3092.)

In General.—Where upon the face of a negotiable note there is an agreement to waive notice of dishonor or an extension of time, etc., one placing his name on the back thereof is deemed to be an indorser without indication of other lien or security, and is bound by the agreement expressed on the face of the instrument waiving notice, etc. Gillam v. Walker, 189 N. C. 189, 126 S. E. 424.

Endorser Is a "Party" to the Note.—An extension of time for payment of a note will not discharge an indorser when the note provides that extension of time for payment is waived by all parties to the note, the endorser being a party to the note. Vannoy v. Stafford, 209 N. C. 184, 18 S. E. 480.

§ 25-118. Waiver of protest.—A waiver of protest, whether in the case of a foreign bill of exchange or other negotiable instrument, is deemed to be a waiver not only of a formal protest, but also of a presentment and notice of dishonor. (Rev., s. 2261; 1899, c. 733, s. 111; C. S. 3093.)

Waiver Binding Partnership.—Where a partner, after the dissolution of the firm, gives a draft in payment of a partnership debt, he cannot waive protest so as to bind his former copartner, especially when the latter has been a dormant member. Mauney & Son v. Coit, 80 N. C. 300.

Inland Bills.—Although protest is not necessary on an inland bill, yet its waiver in such a case is construed to signify as much as when applied to foreign bills. Shaw Bros. v. McNeill, 95 N. C. 355.

Foreign Bills.—A protest is necessary only in case of foreign bills. A waiver of protest on a foreign bill is also a waiver of presentment and notice. Shaw Bros. v. McNeill, 95 N. C. 355.

§ 25-119. When notice is dispensed with.—Notice of dishonor is dispensed with when, after the exercise of reasonable diligence, it cannot be given to or does not reach the parties sought to be charged. (Rev., s. 2263; 1899, c. 733, s. 112; C. S. 3094.)

§ 25-120. Delay in giving notice.—Delay in giving notice of dishonor is excused when the delay is caused by circumstances beyond the control of the holder and not imputable to his default, misconduct or negligence. When the cause of delay ceases to operate, notice must be given with reasonable diligence. (Rev., s. 2263; 1899, c. 733, s. 113; C. S. 3095.)

§ 25-121. When notice need not be given to drawer.—Notice of dishonor is not required to be given to the drawer in either of the following cases: (1) Where the drawer and the drawee are the same person; (2) Where the drawee is a fictitious person or a person not having capacity to contract; (3) Where due notice of dishonor by nonacceptance has been given, notice of a subsequent dishonor by nonpayment is not necessary unless in the meantime the instrument has been accepted. (Rev., s. 2265; 1899, c. 733, s. 115; C. S. 3097.)

In General.—Although, at the time of the indorsement of a note, the indorsers had reason to believe, and did believe, that the note would not be paid by the maker, this circumstance does not dispense with the necessity of a due notice. Denny v. Palmer, 27 N. C. 610.

§ 25-122. Notice of nonpayment where acceptance refused.—Where due notice of dishonor by nonacceptance has been given, notice of a subsequent dishonor by nonpayment is not necessary unless in the meantime the instrument has been accepted. (Rev., s. 2266; 1899, c. 733, s. 116; C. S. 3098.)

§ 25-123. Effect of omission to give notice of nonacceptance.—An omission to give notice of dishonor by nonacceptance does not prejudice the rights of a holder in due course subsequent to the omission. (Rev., s. 2267; 1899, c. 733, s. 117; C. S. 3099.)

§ 25-125. When protest need not be made; when it must be made.—Where any negotiable
§ 25-126. How instrument discharged.—A negotiable instrument is discharged (1) by payment in due course by or on behalf of the principal debtor; (2) by payment in due course by the party accommodated, where the instrument is made or accepted for accommodation; (3) by the intentional cancellation thereof by the holder; (4) by any other act which will discharge a simple contract for the payment of money; (5) whereas of principal or not becoming the holder of the instrument at or after maturity in his own right. (Rev., s. 2269; 1899, c. 733, s. 119; C. S. 3101.)

In an action on a note the maker and sureties may rely on the discharge of the note by the payee's acceptance of the note of another party in the sum due, and the payee's delivery to them of the papers on which defendants were bound, without the intentional cancellation by the payee, under this section, which is not required to be in writing. Hood System Industrial Bank v. Dixie Oil Co., 205 N. C. 778, 172 S. E. 360.

An instruction that a negotiable instrument may be discharged by an act which would discharge a simple contract for the payment of money is not error under this section. Compromise Payment by Surety.—When the liability of a surety or accommodation endorser is discharged by compromise and settlement, the maker is entitled to credit only for the amount actually paid. First, etc., Nat. Bank v. Hinton, 216 N. C. 159, 4 S. E. (2d) 332.

Cited in Virginia Trust Co. v. Dunlop, 214 N. C. 196, 198 S. E. 666.

§ 25-127. Discharge of person secondarily liable.—A person secondarily liable on the instrument is discharged (1) by any act which discharges the instrument; (2) by the intentional cancellation of his signature by the holder; (3) by the discharge of a prior party; (4) by a valid tender of payment made by a prior party; (5) by an act of the principal debtor, unless the holder's right of recourse against the party secondarily liable is expressly reserved; (6) by any agreement binding upon the holder to extend the time of payment or to postpone the holder's right to enforce the instrument, unless made with the consent of the party secondarily liable or unless the right of recourse against such party is expressly reserved. (Rev., s. 2270; 1899, c. 733, s. 120; C. S. 3102.)

Release of Maker Discharges Indorser.—Where the holder of a negotiable instrument releases the maker from liability thereon, he thereby discharges from liability his indorser from whom he acquired the instrument. Con. Buchanan, 192 N. C. 771, 130 S. E. 129.

A tender of payment under § 25-76 would discharge only persons secondarily liable on the note, as provided by this section, and would not discharge the liability of the maker and surety on the note. Dry v. Reynolds, 205 N. C. 571, 172 S. E. 351.

Expiration of Payment.—In an action upon a negotiable instrument the defendants on its face being joint makers, the mere fact that the plaintiff had told one of the defendants, without the knowledge of the other, "that he would take up and carry the note until fall," is not an extension of payment for a "fixed and definite" period, which would operate as a release to such other from liability. Roberson v. Spain, 173 N. C. 23, 91 S. E. 361.

Where the face of a note contains an agreement that the party should not remain bound notwithstanding any extension of time granted the maker, upon payment of interest by him, the endorsers remain liable although ignorant of such extensions and payments of interest by the maker, they being bound by their agreement in the note and the extension being supported by the necessary elements of certainty, mutuality and consideration. Fidelity Bank v. Hess, 177 N. C. 171, 175 S. E. 225.

§ 25-128. Right of party paying instrument.—When the instrument is paid by a party secondarily liable thereon it is not discharged; but the party so paying it is remitted to his former rights as regards all prior parties, and he may strike out his own and all subsequent indorsements, and again negotiate the instrument, except (1) where it is payable to the order of the third person and has been paid by the drawer; and (9) where it was made or accepted for accommodation and has been paid by the party accommodated. (Rev., s. 2271; 1899, c. 738, s. 121; C. S. 3103.) Right to Put into Circulation.—When a bill of exchange made payable to a third person is protested and taken up by the drawer, the latter cannot again put it in circulation. Price v. Franks, 24 N. C. 170.

Liability of Principal—An indorser who pays off and discharges the note of his principal can only recover from the latter the amount actually paid by him. Pace v. Robertson, 65 N. C. 360.

Cited in Roberson v. Spain, 173 N. C. 21, 91 S. E. 361.

§ 25-129. Renunciation by holder.—The holder may expressly renounce his rights against any party to the instrument before, at or after its maturity. An absolute and unconditional renunciation of his rights against the principal debtor made at or after the maturity of the instrument discharges the instrument. But a renunciation does not affect the rights of a holder in due course without notice. A renunciation must be in writing, unless the instrument is delivered up to the person primarily liable thereon. (Rev., s. 2272; 1899, c. 733, s. 122; C. S. 3104.)

In General.—The right of an obligor to defend an action against himself on a negotiable note, under the provisions of this section may be done by virtue thereof only as therein shown when resting only by parol. Manly v. Beam, 190 N. C. 7659; 130 S. E. 633.

A parol agreement between an official of a bank that the bank would release the endorsers or sureties on a note upon the maker confessing judgment thereon is not enforceable, a verbal renunciation being ineffectual under the provisions of this section. Page Trust Co. v. Lewis, 200 N. C. 356, 150 S. E. 294.

No writing is necessary if "the instrument is delivered to the person primarily liable thereon." Hood System Industrial Bank v. Dixie Oil Co., 205 N. C. 778, 779, 172 S. E. 360.

§ 25-130. Unintentional cancellation; burden of proof.—A cancellation made unintentionally or under a mistake or without the authority of the holder is inoperative, but where an instrument or any signature thereon appears to have been canceled the burden of proof lies on the party who alleges that the cancellation was made unintentionally or under a mistake or without authority. (Rev., s. 2273; 1899, c. 733, s. 123; C. S. 3105.)

§ 25-131. Effect of alteration of instrument.—Where a negotiable instrument is materially altered without the assent of all parties liable thereon, it is avoided except as against a party who has himself made, authorized or assented to the alteration, and subsequent indorsers. But when an instrument has been materially altered and is in the hands of a holder in due course not a party to the alteration he may enforce payment thereof according to its original tenor. (Rev., s. 2274; 1899, c. 733, s. 124; C. S. 3106.)

Cross Reference.—See annotations to § 25-132.

In General.—It is familiar learning that if the payee of a bond alters it in any material part, without the consent of the obligor, the bond is avoided and may be defeated on the plea of non est factum. Mathis v. Mathis, 20 N. C. 55; Dunn v. Clements, 55 N. C. 58; Darwin v. Rippey, 63 N. C. 319; Davis v. Coleman, 29 N. C. 427.

Liability on Raised Checks.—Where the maker of a check, whether a bank or other corporation, or an individual, fills out the blank spaces by writing in ink any medium or currency in which payment is to be made; or which adds a place of payment where no place of payment is specified; or which adds an interest; or which adds a place of payment where no place of payment is specified; or which adds any other change or addition which alters the effect of the instrument in any respect, is a material alteration. (Rev., s. 2275; 1899, c. 733, s. 125; C. S. 3107.)

§ 25-132. What constitutes a material alteration.

—Any alteration which changes (1) the date; (2) the sum payable either for principal or interest; (3) the time or place of payment; (4) the number or the relation of the parties; (5) the medium or currency in which payment is to be made; or which adds a place of payment where no place of payment is specified; or which adds anything more than is already implied by law is not sufficient to be construed as a material alteration. Darwin v. Rippey, 63 N. C. 319.

In General.—Adding the words "in specie" after the word "dollars" in a note is a material alteration. Darwin v. Rippey, 63 N. C. 319.

The cutting of the name of one of the makers of a promissory note and substituting that of another was a material alteration of the note, and vitiated it. Davis v. Coleman, 29 N. C. 424, 427.

Striking Out Endorser's Name and Substituting Another Is Material.—Where the payee of a negotiable instrument acquires it with certain endorsers thereon and subsequently strikes out the name of one endorser and another signs as endorser in lieu of the endorser whose name was stricken out, the change is a material one under this section, and the holder may enforce payment upon the ground that the transaction was ultra vires, and then purchased in due course before maturity by an innocent purchaser for value, the bank may not resist payment upon the ground that the transaction was ultra vires, and not within the authority of its charter, authorizing it to accept bills, notes, commercial paper, etc., for it comes within the statutory definition of an inland bill of exchange, and may be treated as a bill or note, at the option of the holder. Sherrell v. American Trust Co., 176 N. C. 591, 97 S. E. 471.

§ 25-134. Bill not an assignment of funds in hands of drawer.—A bill of itself does not operate as an assignment of the funds in the hands of the drawer available for the payment thereof, and the drawer is not liable on the bill unless and until he accepts the same. (Rev., s. 2277; 1899, c. 733, s. 127; C. S. 3109.)

Editor's Note.—See 13 N. C. Law Rev. 131, as to what orders constitute an assignment.

§ 25-135. Bill addressed to more than one drawer.—A bill may be addressed to two or more drawees jointly, whether they are partners or not, but not to two or more drawer in the alternative or in succession. (Rev., s. 2278; 1899, c. 733, s. 128; C. S. 3110.)

§ 25-136. Inland and foreign bills of exchange.—An inland bill of exchange is a bill which is or on its face purports to be both drawn and payable within this state. Any other bill is a foreign bill. The contrary appears on the face of the bill the holder may treat it as an inland bill. (Rev., s. 2279; 1899, c. 733, s. 129; C. S. 3111.)

§ 25-137. When bill may be treated as promissory note.—Where in a bill drawer and drawee are the same person, or where the drawer is a fictitious person or a person not having capacity to contract, the holder may treat the instrument, at his option, either as a bill of exchange or a promissory note. (Rev., s. 2280; 1899, c. 733, s. 130; C. S. 3112.)

§ 25-138. Referee in case of need.—The drawer of a bill and any indorser may insert thereon the name of a person to whom the holder may resort in case of need: that is to say, in case the bill is dishonored by nonacceptance or nonpayment. Such person is called the referee in case of need. It is in the option of the holder to resort to the referee in case of need or not, as he may see fit. (Rev., s. 2281; 1899, c. 733, s. 131; C. S. 3115.)

Art. 11. Acceptance.

§ 25-139. Acceptance defined; how made.—The acceptance of a bill is the signification by the drawee of his assent to the order of the drawer. The acceptance must be in writing and signed by the drawee. It must not express that the drawee will perform his promise by any other means than the payment of money. (Rev., s. 2282; 1899, c. 733, s. 132; C. S. 3114.)

Acceptance by Agent.—The authority to draw, accept or indorse bills, notes and checks will not readily be implied as an incident to the express authority of an agent. It must ordinarily be conferred expressly, but it may be implied if the execution of the paper is a necessary incident to the business, that is, if the purpose of the agency cannot otherwise be accomplished. Bank v. Hay, 143 N. C. 352, 55 S. E. 811.

§ 25-140. Holder entitled to acceptance on face of bill.—The holder of a bill presenting the same for acceptance may require that the acceptance be written on the bill, and if such request is re-
§ 25-141. Acceptance by separate instrument.— Where an acceptance is written on a paper other than the bill itself it does not bind the acceptor except in favor of a person to whom it is shown and who, on the faith thereof, receives the bill for value. (Rev., s. 2284; 1899, c. 733, s. 134; C. S. 3116.)

Letters of Acceptance.—A letter written to a drawer within a reasonable time before or after the date of a bill of exchange, describing it in terms not to be mistaken, and promising to accept it, is, if shown to the person who takes the bill on the credit of the letter, a virtual acceptance, and binds the person who makes the promise, even though there are no funds in his hands belonging to the drawer, if the bill is drawn payable at a fixed time, and not at or after sight. Nimock v. Woody, 97 N. C. 1, 55 S. E. 811.

Where the letters, upon which the plaintiff bank relied as authority to an agent to make the draft which it cashed, show that the alleged authority to draw was nothing more than private instructions by the principal to his agent as to how he should conduct this part of the business, and were not to be used as a basis of credit to the agent, the court properly nonsuited the plaintiff. Bank v. Hay, 143 N. C. 326, 55 S. E. 811.

§ 25-142. When promise to accept equivalent to acceptance.—An unconditional promise in writing to accept a bill before it is drawn is deemed an actual acceptance in favor of every person who, upon the faith thereof, receives the bill for value. (Rev., s. 2285; 1899, c. 733, s. 135; C. S. 3117.)

§ 25-143. Time allowed drawee to accept.—The drawee is allowed twenty-four hours after presentment in which to decide whether or not he will accept the bill, but the acceptance, if given, dates as of the day of presentment. (Rev., s. 2286; 1899, c. 733, s. 136; C. S. 3118.)

§ 25-144. Liability of drawee retaining or destroying bill.—Where a drawee to whom a bill is delivered for acceptance destroys the same or refuses within twenty-four hours after such delivery, or within such other period as the holder may allow, to return the bill accepted or nonaccepted to the holder, he will be deemed to have accepted the same. (Rev., s. 2287; 1899, c. 733, s. 137; C. S. 3119.)

§ 25-145. Acceptance of incomplete bill.—A bill may be accepted before it has been signed by the drawer or while otherwise incomplete, or when it is overdue, or after it has been dishonored by a previous refusal to accept, or by nonpayment. But when a bill payable after sight is dishonored by nonacceptance and the drawee subsequently accepts it, the holder, in the absence of any different agreement, is entitled to have the bill accepted as of the date of the first presentment. (Rev., s. 2288; 1899, c. 733, s. 138; C. S. 3120.)

§ 25-146. Kinds of acceptances.—An acceptance is either general or qualified. A general acceptance assents without qualification to the order of the drawer. A qualified acceptance in express terms varies the effect of the bill as drawn. (Rev., s. 2289; 1899, c. 733, s. 139; C. S. 3121.)

§ 25-147. What constitutes a general acceptance.—An acceptance to pay at a particular place is a general acceptance unless it expressly states that the bill is to be paid there only, and not elsewhere. (Rev., s. 2290; 1899, c. 733, s. 140; C. S. 3122.)

§ 25-148. What constitutes a qualified acceptance.—An acceptance is qualified which is (1) conditional; that is to say, which makes payment by the acceptor dependent on the fulfillment of a condition therein stated; (2) partial; that is to say, an acceptance to pay part only of the amount for which the bill is drawn; (3) local; that is to say, an acceptance to pay only at a particular place; (4) qualified as to time; (5) the acceptance of some one or more of the drawees, but not of all. (Rev., s. 2291; 1899, c. 733, s. 141; C. S. 3123.)

Qualified as to Time.—Where one accepted a draft on him "payable when I receive funds to the use of the drawer," he became liable when the moneys were placed to his credit though he had not taken manual possession thereof. Wallace Brothers v. Douglas, 116 N. C. 659, 21 S. E. 357.

§ 25-149. Rights of parties as to qualified acceptance.—The holder may refuse to take a qualified acceptance, and if he does not obtain an unqualified acceptance he may treat the bill as dishonored by nonacceptance. When a qualified acceptance is taken the drawer and indorsers are discharged from liability on the bill unless they expressly or impliedly authorized the holder to take a qualified acceptance or subsequently assent thereto. When the drawer or an indorser receives notice of a qualified acceptance he must, within a reasonable time, express his dissent to the holder or he will be deemed to have assented thereto. (Rev., s. 2292; 1899, c. 733, s. 142; C. S. 3124.)

§ 25-150. When presentment for acceptance must be made.—Presentment for acceptance must be made (1) where the bill is payable after sight, or in any other case where presentment for acceptance is necessary in order to fix the maturity of the instrument; or (2) where the bill expressly stipulates that it shall be presented for acceptance; or (3) where the bill is drawn payable elsewhere than at the residence or place of business of the drawee. In no other case is presentment for acceptance necessary in order to render any party to the bill liable. (Rev., s. 2293; 1899, c. 733, s. 143; C. S. 3125.)

§ 25-151. Failure to present in reasonable time discharges drawer and indorsers. — Except as herein otherwise provided the holder of a bill which is required by § 25-71 to be presented for acceptance must either present it for acceptance or negotiate it within a reasonable time. If he fail to do so the drawer and all indorsers are discharged. (Rev., s. 2294; 1899, c. 733, s. 144; C. S. 3126.)

§ 25-152. How presentment made.—Presentment for acceptance must be made by or on behalf of the holder, at a reasonable hour on a business day and before the bill is overdue, to the drawee or some person authorized to accept or refuse acceptance on his behalf; and (1) where a bill is addressed to two or more drawees who are not partners, presentment must be made to them all, unless one has authority to accept or refuse acceptance for all, in which case presentment may be made to him only; (2) where the drawee is dead, presentment may be made to his personal representative; (3) where the drawee has been adjudged a bankrupt or an insolvent or has made an assignment for the benefit of creditors, presentment may be made to him or to his trustee or assignee. (Rev., s. 2295; 1899, c. 733, s. 145; C. S. 3127.)

In General.—A draft payable at no definite place in a city or town, must be presented at the maker's residence or place of business, if he has such, at its maturity, and if he has none, then the presence of the instrument in the city is a sufficient presentation. Peoples Nat. Bank v. Lutterloh, 95 N. C. 495, 499.

§ 25-153. On what days presentment may be made.—A bill may be presented for acceptance on any day on which negotiable instruments may be presented for payment under the provisions of this chapter. (Rev., s. 2296; 1899, c. 733, s. 146; 1909, c. 500, s. 1; C. S. 3128.)

§ 25-154. Presentment where time is insufficient.—Where the holder of a bill drawn payable elsewhere than at the place of business or the residence of the drawee has not time with the exercise of reasonable diligence to present the bill for acceptance before presenting it for payment on the day that it falls due, the delay caused by presenting the bill for acceptance before presenting it for payment is excused and does not discharge the drawers and indorsers. (Rev., s. 2297; 1899, c. 733, s. 147; C. S. 3129.)

§ 25-155. Where presentment is excused.—Presentment for acceptance is excused and a bill may be treated as dishonored by nonacceptance in either of the following cases: (1) Where the drawee is dead or has absconded or is a fictitious person or a person not having capacity to contract by bill; (2) where after the exercise of reasonable diligence presentment cannot be made; (3) where, although presentment has been irregular, acceptance has been refused on some other ground. (Rev., s. 2298; 1899, c. 733, s. 148; C. S. 3130.)

§ 25-156. When dishonored by nonacceptance.—A bill is dishonored by nonacceptance (1) when it is duly presented for acceptance and such an acceptance as is prescribed in this chapter is refused or cannot be obtained; or (2) when a presentment for acceptance is excused and the bill is not accepted. (Rev., s. 2299; 1899, c. 733, s. 149; C. S. 3131.)

§ 25-157. Duty of holder, where bill not accepted.—Where a bill is duly presented for acceptance and is not accepted within the prescribed time, the person presenting it must treat the bill as dishonored by nonacceptance or he loses the right of recourse against the drawer and indorsers. (Rev., s. 2300; 1899, c. 733, s. 150; C. S. 3132.)

§ 25-158. Rights of holder, where bill not accepted.—When a bill is dishonored by nonacceptance, an immediate right of recourse against the drawers and indorsers accrues to the holder, and no presentment for payment is necessary. (Rev., s. 2301; 1899, c. 733, s. 151; C. S. 3133.)

Art 13. Protest.

§ 25-159. In what cases protest necessary.—Where a foreign bill appearing on its face to be such is dishonored by nonacceptance, it must be duly protested for nonacceptance; and where such a bill which had not previously been dishonored by nonacceptance is dishonored by non-payment, it must be duly protested for nonpayment. If it is not so protested the drawers and indorsers are discharged. Where a bill does not appear on its face to be a foreign bill, protest in case of dishonor is unnecessary. (Rev., s. 2302; 1899, c. 733, s. 152; C. S. 3134.)

Waiver of Protest.—In foreign bills the protest may be waived; the words, "I waive protest," or "waiving protest," or any similar words, infer that the protest is waived, and when applied to foreign bills, are universally regarded as expressly waiving presentment and notice, the protest being, according to the law merchant, the formal and necessary evidence of the dishonor of such an instrument. Shaw Bros. v. McNell, 95 N. C. 535, 539.

Protest in Another State.—A promissory note made in another state need not be protested before the owner may sue an indorser, there being no evidence that this is required in the state where the note was executed. Bank v. Carr, 130 N. C. 479, 41 S. E. 876.

How Protested.—By the law merchant a protest of a bill by a public notary is, in itself, evidence. And by our statute such protest is prima facie evidence. Gordon v. Price, 32 N. C. 385.

Protest of Inland Bills.—Protest of an order or inland bill is not necessary to enable the holder to recover the principal and interest. Notice in due time of non-acceptance or non-payment is all that is required for that purpose. Hubbard v. Troy, 24 N. C. 134; National Bank v. Bradley, 117 N. C. 526, 23 S. E. 455; Peoples Nat. Bank v. Lutterloh, 95 N. C. 495.

§ 25-160. How protest made.—The protest must be annexed to the bill or must contain a copy thereof, and must be under the hand and seal of the notary making it, and must specify (1) the time and place of presentment; (2) the fact that presentment was made and the manner thereof; (3) the cause or reason for protesting the bill; (4) the demand made and the answer given, if any, or the fact that the drawee or acceptor could not be found. (Rev., s. 2303; 1899, c. 733, s. 153; C. S. 3135.)

§ 25-161. By whom protest made.—Protest may be made by (1) a notary public; or (2) by any respectable resident of the place where the bill is dishonored, in the presence of two or more credible witnesses. Rev., s. 2304; 1899, c. 733, s. 154; C. S. 3136.)

§ 25-162. When protest to be made.—When a bill is protested, such protest must be made on the day of its dishonor, unless delay is excused as herein provided. When a bill has been duly noted the protest may be subsequently extended as of the date of the noting. (Rev., s. 2305; 1899, c. 733, s. 155; C. S. 3137.)

§ 25-163. Where protest made.—A bill must be protested at the place where it is dishonored, except that when a bill drawn payable at the place of business or residence of some person other than the drawee has been dishonored by nonac-
§ 25-164. Protest both for nonacceptance and nonpayment.—A bill which has been protested for nonacceptance may be subsequently protested for nonpayment. (Rev., s. 2307; 1899, c. 733, s. 157; C. S. 3139.)

§ 25-165. Protest before maturity, where acceptor insolvent.—Where the acceptor has been adjudged a bankrupt or an insolvent or has made an assignment for the benefit of creditors before the bill matures, the holder may cause the bill to be protested for better security against the drawer and indorsers. (Rev., s. 2308; 1899, c. 733, s. 158; C. S. 3140.)

§ 25-166. When protest dispensed with.—Protest is dispensed with by any circumstances which would dispense with notice of dishonor. Delay in noting or protesting is excused when delay is caused by circumstances beyond the control of the holder and not imputable to his default, misconduct or negligence. When the cause of delay ceases to operate, the bill must be noted or protested with reasonable diligence. (Rev., s. 2309; 1899, c. 733, s. 159; C. S. 3141.)

§ 25-167. Protest where bill is lost.—Where a bill is lost or destroyed or is wrongly detained from the person entitled to hold it, protest may be made on a copy or written particulars thereof. (Rev., s. 2310; 1899, c. 733, s. 160; C. S. 3142.)

§ 25-168. When a bill may be accepted for honor.—Where a bill of exchange has been protested for dishonor by nonacceptance or protested for better security, and is not overdue, any person not being a party already liable thereon may, with the consent of the holder, intervene and accept the bill supra protest for the honor of any party liable thereon or for the honor of the person for whose account the bill is drawn. The acceptance for honor may be part only of the sum for which the bill is drawn, and where there has been an acceptance for honor for one party there may be a further acceptance by a different person for the honor of another party. (Rev., s. 2311; 1899, c. 733, s. 161; C. S. 3143.)

§ 25-169. How acceptance for honor made.—An acceptance for honor supra protest must be in writing and indicate that it is an acceptance for honor, and must be signed by the acceptor for honor. (Rev., s. 2312; 1899, c. 733, s. 162; C. S. 3144.)

§ 25-170. When deemed an acceptance for honor of drawer.—Where an acceptance for honor does not expressly state for whose honor it is made, it is deemed to be an acceptance for the honor of the drawer. (Rev., s. 2313; 1899, c. 733, s. 163; C. S. 3145.)

§ 25-171. Liability of acceptor for honor.—The acceptor for honor is liable to the holder and to all parties to the bill subsequent to the party for whose honor he has accepted. (Rev., s. 2314; 1899, c. 733, s. 164; C. S. 3146.)

§ 25-172. Agreement of acceptor for honor.—The acceptor for honor by such acceptance engages that he will on due presentment pay the bill according to the terms of his acceptance, provided it shall not have been paid by the drawer; and provided, also, that it shall have been duly presented for payment and protested for nonpayment and notice of dishonor given to him. (Rev., s. 2315; 1899, c. 733, s. 165; C. S. 3147.)

§ 25-173. Maturity of bill payable after sight accepted for honor.—Where a bill payable after sight is accepted for honor its maturity is calculated from the date of the noting for nonacceptance and not from the date of the acceptance for honor. (Rev., s. 2316; 1899, c. 733, s. 166; C. S. 3148.)

§ 25-174. Protest of bill accepted for honor.—Where a dishonored bill has been accepted for honor supra protest or contains a reference in case of need, it must be protested for nonpayment before it is presented for payment to the acceptor for honor or referee in case of need. (Rev., s. 2317; 1899, c. 733, s. 167; C. S. 3149.)

§ 25-175. How presentment for payment to acceptor for honor made.—Presentment for payment to the acceptor for honor must be made as follows: (1) If it is to be presented in the place where the protest for nonpayment was made it must be presented not later than the day following its maturity; (2) if it is to be presented in some other place than the place where it was protested, then it must be forwarded within the time in this chapter specified. (Rev., s. 2318; 1899, c. 733, s. 168; C. S. 3150.)

§ 25-176. When delay in making presentment excused.—The provisions of § 25-87 apply where there is delay in making presentment to the acceptor for honor or referee in case of need. (Rev., s. 2319; 1899, c. 733, s. 169; C. S. 3151.)

§ 25-177. Dishonor of bill by acceptor for honor.—When the bill is dishonored by the acceptor for honor it must be protested for nonpayment by him. (Rev., s. 2320; 1899, c. 733, s. 170; C. S. 3152.)

Art. 15. Payment for Honor.

§ 25-178. Who may make payment for honor.—Where a bill has been protested for nonpayment any person may intervene and pay it supra protest for the honor of any person liable thereon or for the honor of the person for whose account it was drawn. (Rev., s. 2321; 1899, c. 733, s. 171; C. S. 3153.)

§ 25-179. How payment for honor must be made.—The payment for honor supra protest in order to operate as such and not as a mere voluntary payment must be attested by a notarial act of honor, which may be appended to the protest or form an extension to it. (Rev., s. 2322; 1899, c. 733, s. 172; C. S. 3154.)

§ 25-180. Declaration before payment for honor.—The notarial act of honor must be founded on a declaration made by the payer for honor or by his agent in that behalf declaring his intention to pay the bill for honor and for whose honor he pays. (Rev., s. 2323; 1899, c. 733, s. 173; C. S. 3155.)
§ 25-181. Preference of parties offering to pay for honor.—Where two or more persons offer to pay a bill for the honor of different parties the person whose payment will discharge most parties to the bill is to be given the preference. (Rev., s. 2324; 1899, c. 733, s. 174; C. S. 3156.)

§ 25-182. Effect on subsequent parties, where bill is paid for honor.—Where a bill has been paid for honor all parties subsequent to the party for whom it is paid are discharged, but the payer for honor is subrogated for and succeeds to both the rights and duties of the holder as regards the party for whose honor he pays and all parties liable to the latter. (Rev., s. 2325; 1899, c. 733, s. 175; C. S. 3157.)

§ 25-183. Where holder refuses to receive payment supra protest.—Where the holder of a bill refuses to receive payment supra protest he loses his right of recourse against any party who would have been discharged by such payment. (Rev., s. 2326; 1899, c. 733, s. 176; C. S. 3158.)

§ 25-184. Rights of payer for honor.—The payer for honor on paying to the holder the amount of the bill and the notarial expenses incidental to its dishonor is entitled to receive both the bill itself and the protest. (Rev., s. 2327; 1899, c. 733, s. 177; C. S. 3159.)

Art. 16. Bills in a Set.

§ 25-185. Bills in a set constitute one bill.—Where a bill is drawn in a set, each part of the set being numbered and containing a reference to the other parts, the whole of the parts constitute one bill. (Rev., s. 2328; 1899, c. 733, s. 178; C. S. 3160.)

§ 25-186. Rights of holders, where different parts are negotiated.—Where two or more parts of a set are negotiated to different holders in due course the holder whose title first accrues is, as between such holders, the true owner of the bill. But nothing in this section affects the rights of a person who in due course accepts or pays the part first presented to him. (Rev., s. 2329; 1899, c. 733, s. 179; C. S. 3161.)

§ 25-187. Liability of holder who indorses two or more parts to a set of different persons.—Where the holder of a set indorses two or more parts to different persons he is liable on every such part first presented to him. (Rev., s. 2330; 1899, c. 733, s. 180; C. S. 3162.)

§ 25-188. Acceptance of bills drawn in sets.—The acceptance may be written on any part, and it must be written on one part only. If the drawee accepts more than one part, and such accepted parts are negotiated to different holders in due course, he is liable on every such part as if it were a separate bill. (Rev., s. 2331; 1899, c. 733, s. 181; C. S. 3163.)

§ 25-189. Payment by acceptor of bills drawn in sets.—When the acceptor of a bill drawn in a set pays it without requiring the part bearing his acceptance to be delivered up to him, and that part at maturity is outstanding in the hands of a holder in due course, he is liable to the holder thereon. (Rev., s. 2332; 1899, c. 733, s. 182; C. S. 3164.)

§ 25-190. Effect of discharging one of a set.—Except as herein otherwise provided where any one part of a bill drawn in a set is discharged by payment or otherwise the whole bill is discharged. (Rev., s. 2333; 1899, c. 733, s. 183; C. S. 3165.)

Art. 17. Promissory Notes and Checks.

§ 25-191. Negotiable promissory note defined.—A negotiable promissory note within the meaning of this chapter is an unconditional promise in writing made by one person to another, signed by the maker, engaging to pay on demand or at a fixed or determinable future time a sum certain in money to order or to bearer. Where a note is drawn to the maker's own order it is not complete until indorsed by him. (Rev., s. 2334; 1899, c. 733, s. 184; C. S. 3166.)

Cross Reference.—As to form of negotiable instrument, see § 25-7 et seq.

In General.—To render a note non-negotiable it must show on its face that the promise to pay is conditional, or render the amount to be paid uncertain. First National Bank v. Michael, 96 N. C. 55, 1 S. E. 855. A note not payable in the order or bearer is not a negotiable paper. Newland v. Moore, 173 N. C. 298, 92 S. E. 367.

Bond Treated as Promissory Note under Seal.—A bond is in form negotiable, and when indorsed for value and without notice before maturity it is to be regarded, so far as its negotiability is concerned and its liability to be governed by the commercial law applicable to promissory notes, as if it were a promissory note not under seal. Miller v. Tharel, 75 N. C. 148; Spence v. Tappan, 79 N. C. 246. The principle was applied in Lewis v. Long, 102 N. C. 206, 9 S. E. 637, in which it was decided that an obligor on a bond could not, as against an indorsee for value, before maturity and without notice, set up the defense that he executed the same as a surety only. Christian v. Parrott, 114 N. C. 215, 218, 19 S. E. 131.

Note under Seal.—A written instrument, whereby a party promises to pay the party therein named a sum certain at a time specified therein, is a promissory note in this State, although it be under seal. First Nat. Bank v. Michael, 96 N. C. 53, 1 S. E. 855.

§ 25-192. Check defined.—A check is a bill of exchange drawn on a bank payable on demand. Except as herein otherwise provided the provisions of this chapter apply to a bill of exchange payable on demand apply to a check. (Rev., s. 2335; 1899, c. 733, s. 185; C. S. 3167.)

Cross Reference.—See note under § 53-71.

A check is further defined as a written order on a bank or banker, purporting to be drawn against a deposit of funds, for the payment at all events of a sum of money to a certain person therein named, or to him or his order, or to bearer, and payable on demand. Woody v. First Nat. Bank, 194 N. C. 549, 140 S. E. 150.

Restrictions as to Payments.—A stipulation stamped on the face of a check, that it will positively not be paid to a certain company of old regents and their assigns, is not a restriction on the holder. Commercial Nat. Bank v. First Nat. Bank, 118 N. C. 785, 24 S. E. 524.

Time of Presentment.—A "check" is a bill of exchange drawn on a bank, payable on demand, and instruments payable on demand may be presented within a reasonable time after their issue. Philadelphia Lile Ins. Co. v. Haywood, 236 Fed. 820.

§ 25-193. Within what time a check must be presented.—A check must be presented for payment within a reasonable time after its issue or the drawer will be discharged from liability thereon
§ 25-194. Bank may refuse to honor check more than six months old in the absence of contrary instructions.—Where a check or other instrument payable on demand at any bank or trust company doing business in this State is presented for payment more than six months from its date, such bank or trust company, may, unless expressly instructed by the drawer or maker to pay the same, refuse payment thereof and no liability shall thereby be incurred to the drawer or maker for dishonoring the instrument by non-payment. (1939, c. 341, s. 3; C. S. 3168.)

§ 25-195. Effect of certification of check.—Where a check is certified by the bank on which it is drawn the certification is equivalent to an acceptance. (Rev., s. 2337; 1899, c. 733, s. 187; C. S. 3169.)

§ 25-196. Effect, where holder of check procures it to be certified.—Where the holder of a check procures it to be accepted or certified the drawer and all indorsers are discharged from liability thereon. (Rev., s. 2338; 1899, c. 733, s. 188; C. S. 3170.)

§ 25-197. Check not assignment of funds.—A check of itself does not operate as an assignment of any part of the funds to the credit of the drawer with the bank, and the bank is not liable to the holder unless and until accepted or certified the check. (Rev., s. 2339; 1899, c. 733, s. 189; C. S. 3171.)

Editor's Note.—See 13 N. C. Law Rev. 131.

In General.—A depositor is a creditor of a bank, his deposit becoming a part of the general fund, the property of the bank, and subject to assignment by the owners of the bank and a check-holder is, to the extent of his check, the assignee of the depositor's debt due him by the bank, but he has no lien upon the deposit for the amount of this check and a payee or holder of a check has an interest in the deposit as against the drawer, subject to the bank's right to pay outstanding checks before notice. Hawes v. Blackwell, 104 N. C. 196, 13 S. E. 256.

§ 25-198. When stop-payment order given to bank expires.—No revocation, countermand or stop-payment order relating to the payment of any check or draft against an account of a depositor in any bank or trust company doing business in this State shall remain in effect for more than six months after the service thereof on the bank, unless the same be renewed, which renewals may be made from time to time. (1929, c. 341, s. 3.)

§ 25-199. Application to present orders. — No notice affecting a bank upon which revocation, countermand or stop-payment order has been made prior to March 19, 1929, shall be deemed to continue for a period of more than six months thereafter. (1929, c. 341, s. 2.)
§ 26-1. Surety and principal distinguished in judgment and execution.—In the trial of actions upon contracts either of the defendants may show in evidence that he is surety, and if it be satisfactorily shown, the jury in their verdict, or the justice of the peace in his judgment, shall distinguish the principal and surety, which shall be indorsed on the execution by the clerk or justice of the peace issuing it. (Rev., s. 2840; Code, s. 2100; R. C., c. 31, s. 124; 1826, c. 31, s. 1; C. S. 3961.)

Cross Reference.—As to right of surety to subrogation, see notes to § 26-3.

In General.—A surety is bound with his principal as an original promisor. Baylies' Sureties and Guarantors, 4. Coleman v. Fuller, 105 N. C. 328, 339, 11 S. E. 175.

The surety pays a debt, which becomes his own debt when the principal fails to pay it. 2 Parsons Notes and Bills, 117-118. Coleman v. Fuller, 105 N. C. 128, 130, 11 S. E. 175.

Construed Strictly.—The liability of a surety cannot be enlarged by construction. Shoe Co. v. Peacock, 150 N. C. 545, 64 S. E. 437.

Order of Liability.—The order in which parties to a security agreement are mentioned or the order in which, independently of contract, they will be held bound in equity. Smith v. Smith, 16 N. C. 173.

Where it appeared that a negotiable instrument was signed by three persons other than the principal obligor, and it also appeared from a writing executed some time thereafter by one to indemnify the other two that they (the other two) "signed as co-sureties" of the third, it was held that the character of suretyship in which all three signed was sufficiently established. Southerland v. Fremont, 107 N. C. 565, 12 S. E. 237.

Same.—Parol Evidence to Show Co-principals.—In Williams v. Glenn, 92 N. C. 253, the note (under seal) was made when W. "as principal" and B. and G. "as sureties," yet as between the obligors the court held that parol evidence was admissible to show that Boyd and Glenn were co-principals, and that the rule against the introduction of such evidence was not applicable to them. Smith v. Carr, 128 N. C. 150, 153, 38 S. E. 732.

While all of the makers may appear as principals upon the face of the paper, or some principals and some sureties, yet it may be shown that while appearing as principals they were in fact sureties, or some principals and others sureties; and upon the establishment of the fact of suretyship, the right of contribution follows. Smith v. Carr, 128 N. C. 150, 153, 38 S. E. 732.

Same—Issue Submitted.—In an action against the maker and indorsers of a note, an issue should be submitted as to whether the endorsers were sureties, or whether one was a supplemental surety to the other. Parish v. Graham, 129 N. C. 239, 39 S. E. 825.

May Allege and Prove Suretyship.—When sued, either of the defendants may allege that he is surety, and, if the allegation be proven, the jury in their verdict and the court in the judgment shall distinguish the principal and surety, and it shall be so indorsed on the execution issued for the collection of the judgment. Bank v. McArthur, 261 Fed. 97, 101.

In Gatewood v. Leak, 59 N. C. 357, 6 S. E. 635, 637, it was said: "If the appellee was surety, as he alleges, he might, as above noticed, under the statute, (this section) have shown, by proper evidence in the trial in the actions in which the judgments were obtained by the appellant, that he was such surety, and the jury in their verdict, or the justice of the peace in his judgment, would have distinguished him as surety, and the executions would have been issued with a proper indorsement to that effect; and in that case the sheriff would have levied the sum required to be collected, first, out of the property of the principal if he had sufficient property to that purpose.

Same—Practice of Courts.—It is not the practice of the courts to see that evidence of suretyship is produced and such fact inserted in the judgment, in the absence of the indorsants and without any averment or request on their part. Morehead Banking Co. v. Duke, 121 N. C. 110, 28 S. E. 191.

Effect of Not Alleging Suretyship.—In Bank v. McArthur, 261 Fed. 97, 101, it was said that "It would not seem that, by failing to set up his suretyship in the action brought by the American National Bank on the note, McArthur lost any equitable rights against McBryde to which he was entitled as surety. It is true, as held in Gates v. Smith, 99 N. C. 357, 6 S. E. 635, that the surety, who has failed to set up the fact and have it found as provided by the statute, cannot enjoin the plaintiff in the judgment from proceeding to sell his land for its satisfaction. Neither McArthur nor plaintiff may enjoin the bank from enforcing its judgment against himself until it has exhausted McBryde's property."

The magistrate is not bound to discriminate except upon the application of, and due proof by, the surety. Stewart v. Ray, 26 N. C. 269.

Effect of Finding of Jury.—Where a suit is brought at law against two persons, a finding, by the jury, of one that the defendants are principals and the other surety, if in fact it appears, at all between the parties, does not in equity establish the relation of suretyship. Lowder v. Noding, 43 N. C. 208.

When Execution Does Not Distinguish.—Where an execution, against two persons, a finding, by the court, of one which is principal and which surety, the sheriff has a right to collect it from either; and the sheriff may collect it from the surety, though the plaintiff in the execution directed him to collect it from the other. Shiford v. Cline, 35 N. C. 463.

Right of Surety to Subrogation.—See notes to § 26-3.

Right of Surety to Assign Judgment.—It was stated by the Supreme Court of this state in Barring v. Boyd, 192 N. C. 189; that the right of a surety to keep alive a judgment, which he has paid, by having an assignment made to a stranger for his benefit, is unquestionable. When he advances the money, he has a clear equity (if he desires it) to have an assignment to the right of the creditor. When he advances payment as surety for the purpose of coercing payment against the principal. Whether money advanced in such a way be an extinguishment or a purchase seems to be a question of intent. If it be paid, and nothing be said or done to show a contrary intention, an extinguishment will be presumed; but if an assignment be made to one not a party, so as to show a purpose to keep it alive, it is sufficient. That a party defendant furnishes the money, and that the assignment is made on a day subsequent to the advancement of the money, can make no difference, provided it was intended, at the time it was advanced, as a purchase and not as a payment. Hanley v. McArthur, 261 Fed. 27, 101.

Signing on Faith of Creditors Representations.—Persons signing a note as surety upon faith in the creditor's representation that another will sign as co-surety, leaving the note with the creditor for that purpose, are not bound thereon to such creditor upon the failure of the fulfillment of the representation. Bank v. Hunt, 124 N. C. 171, 32 S. E. 546, cited and distinguished. Bank v. Jones, 147 N. C. 419, 61 S. E. 193.

Bond Joint and Several on Face.—Although the bond is joint and several on its face it can be shown by parol that a party thereto is a surety. Brandt on Surety, secs. 29 and 30.

Statute of Limitations.—If the purchaser of a note before maturity, for value and without notice, subsequently receives notice that a party thereto is a surety and delays action for three years after maturity the surety will be precluded by the three years' statute of limitations. Coffey v. Reinhardt, 114 N. C. 509, 19 S. E. 370.
§ 26-2. Principal liable on execution before surety.—Whenever an execution, indorsed as aforesaid, shall come into the hands of any officer for collection, he shall seize upon the property of the principal, or so much thereof as shall be necessary to satisfy the execution, and for want of sufficient property of the principal, also on the property of the surety, and make sale of all the property of the principal levied on before that of the surety. (Rev. s. 2841; Code, s. 2101; R. C., c. 31, s. 125; 1826, c. 31, s. 2; C. S. 3063.)

§ 26-3. Summary remedy of surety against principal.—Any person who may have paid money for and on account of those for whom he became surety, upon producing to the superior court, or any justice of the peace having jurisdiction of the same, a receipt, and showing that an execution has issued, and he has satisfied the same, and making it appear by sufficient testimony that he has laid out and expended any sum of money as the surety of such person, may move the court or justice of the peace for the case may be, for judgment against his principal for the amount which he has actually paid; a citation having been served upon the surety, an order otherwise valid is not rendered void by reason of such a judgment heretofore rendered. (Rev., s. 2841; Code, s. 2093; R. C., c. 110, s. 1; 1897, c. 487, s. 1; C. S. 3063.)

I. GENERAL CONSIDERATIONS

I. Subrogation

II. Assignments

Editor’s Note.—See 13 N. C. Law Rev. 116. The words “Superior Court” used in this section mean the clerk of the Superior Court. Bank v. Hotel Co., 147 N. C. 594, 61 S. E. 570.

Citation Issued to Principal.—The section providing that a surety who has paid out money upon a judgment against his principal and himself may have a citation issued to the principal by the court to show cause why execution against him should not be issued, and that the principal has not reimbursed him, is constitutional. Bank v. Hotel Co., 147 N. C. 594, 61 S. E. 570.

Notice to Corporation to Show Cause.—A notice issued by a court of competent jurisdiction, served upon the secretary and treasurer of a corporation, to show cause why an execution should not be awarded him therefor, is constitutional. Bank v. Hotel Co., 147 N. C. 594, 61 S. E. 570.

Validity of Order.—While, under the section the court may not revive a dormant judgment against the principal and the surety, an order otherwise valid is not rendered void by the addition of the words “that the judgment heretofore rendered as hereby revived, to the end that execution may be issued.” The last sentence will be regarded as surplusage. Bank v. Hotel Co., 147 N. C. 594, 61 S. E. 570.

When Surety Entitled to Action for Money Paid.—A judgment against a surety will not entitle him to maintain an action for money paid to the use of the defendant, until it has been satisfied. Hodges v. Armstrong, 14 N. C. 253.

To enable a surety to recover for money paid to the use of his principal, he must prove an actual payment in satisfaction of the debt. Hodges v. Armstrong, 14 N. C. 253.

Right of Surety When Funds Misapplied.—Where a surety prays a judgment against his principal he may recover any funds wrongly converted or misapplied by the principal. Fink v. Co. v. Jordan, 13 N. C. 522; Dalrymple v. Edward Cowan, 13 N. C. 221.

Surety Cannot Trace Property.—A surety who has to pay the debt, has no equity to follow the specific property which the principal debtor purchased with the borrowed money. Carter v. Minner, 94 N. C. 391.

Same.—Bank Deposits.—Where the principal debtor borrowed a sum of money, which he deposited in a bank which soon afterwards became insolvent, and the surety had to pay the judgment against the corporation and himself, which judgment the corporation and the surety had to pay from the dividends from the insolvent bank, until he can recover a judgment. Carlton v. Simonton, 94 N. C. 391.

Right against Partnership.—Where a writ is issued against two copartners for partnership debt, and one of them is arrested and gives bail, such bail, upon being afterwards compelled by due course of law to pay the debt, has no remedy against the individual for whom he became bail. He has no claim upon the other partner. The case of Osborne v. Cunningham, 4 Dev. & Bat., 423, cited and approved. Fink v. Co. v. Jordan, 13 N. C. 522. Where one endorsed a note at the request of a member of a firm for the purpose of obtaining money for the use of the firm, and the proceeds were so used, the endorser, upon the payment of the note, cannot recover, although no member of such firm signed the note. Springs v. McCoy, 122 N. C. 628, 29 S. E. 501.

When Surety’s Liability Barred by Limitations.—Property in the hands of another person in the place of a creditor, so that the former can succeed to the rights of the latter in relation to the surety, an order otherwise valid is not rendered void by reason of such a judgment heretofore rendered. Fink v. Co. v. Jordan, 13 N. C. 522; Dalrymple v. Edward Cowan, 13 N. C. 221.

The obligation of a bond for the forthcoming of property is only that the property shall be delivered to the officer at the time designated and not that the execution shall be delivered to the officer at the time designated and not that the execution shall be satisfied; and therefore, if a surety to render a sum of money, which he deposited in a bank which § 26-4. Summary remedy against surety.—A surety who has paid money for an-ties, the surety may maintain an equitable suit to compel his assignment and surrender. Bank v. McArthur, 261 Fed. 97, 103.

It is held that an indorsor on a note may pay it and become a claimant against his principal's estate. Eno v. Crook, 10 N. Y. 66; Freeman on Judgments, 471; Lennox v. Frout, 3 W. N. Y. 643; S. C. 63, 26 S. E. 791; Harrison v. Styles, 74 N. C. 290; Wiswall v. Potts, 58 N. C. 184, 189. And this is true whether they knew of it or not. Matthews v. Joyce, 85 N. C. 258, 266; Brandt on Suretyship, sec. 282; Blanton & Co. v. Smith, 126 N. C. 420, 25 S. E. 1035.

III. ASSIGNMENTS.

Preservation of Lien by Assignment.—A surety may preserve the lien of judgment against the principal and himself by paying the judgment creditor and having the judgment assigned to a third person for his own benefit; and this assignment will pass to the third party the benefit of any security given by the principal to the surety. James v. Galbrith, 93 N. C. 358, 352; Sherrod v. Price, 119 N. C. 60, 63, 26 S. E. 791; Mitchell v. Styles, 74 N. C. 290; Wiswall v. Potts, 58 N. C. 184, 189. For this is true whether they knew of it or not. Matthews v. Joyce, 85 N. C. 258, 266; Brandt on Suretyship, sec. 282; Blanton & Co. v. Smith, 126 N. C. 420, 25 S. E. 1035.

When Assignment of Right by Surety.—Where one of two defendants has paid a joint judgment upon a note against another, the judgment is assigned to one of the payors for his use, who brings action to recover against the other judgment debtor, he may, as between himself and the other payor, and for his own use, maintain an action, without regard to the assignment, for the full amount of the judgment in the original action, and recover the full amount of the judgment he has paid, the action being, in substance, one by the surety on the note to recover against the principal thereof. Hayter v. Hitt, 34 N. C. 739, 740; Story, op. cit., sec. 2018.

When One-half of Judgment Paid and Other Assigned.—Where a surety who paid and had satisfaction entered as to one-half of a judgment against himself, his principal and another surety, and procured the judgment as to the other half to be assigned to a trustee for his benefit, it was in effect the same as if he had procured the whole judgment to be so assigned. Peeples v. Gay, 115 N. C. 38, 20 S. E. 173.

When Person Charged with Notice of Assignment.—Where a judgment against a principal and the sureties on a note is paid, and the surety who paid and had satisfaction entered as to one-half of the judgment thereof is made to a trustee for the benefit of the sureties, but by a mistake payment is entered on the judgment record, which is afterwards corrected by the entry thereon of the assignment, and the assignment thereof is made to a trustee for the benefit of the sureties, after the assignment is entered on the record, takes with notice of the assignment. Patton v. Cooper, 132 N. C. 791, 44 S. E. 676.

§ 26-4. Subrogation of surety paying debt of deceased principal.—Whenever a surety, or his representative, shall pay the debt of his deceased principal, the claim thus accruing shall have such priority in the administration of the assets of the principal as had the debt before its payment. (Rev. s. 2842; Code, s. 2096; R. C. c. 110, s. 4; 1829, c. 227; C. S. 3904.)

Second. The section which confines the claim of a surety, paying the debt which he is surety, the dignity, in the administration of the assets of the principal, which the debt, if unpaid would have had, applies to a judgment upon the payment be made before or after the death of the principal. Drake v. Coltrane, 44 N. C. 300.

When Co-surety Deemed Bond Creditor.—A co-surety, who pays the bond debt for which the other is primarily bound, and an administration thereof is made to a trustee for the benefit of the sureties, is deemed to have paid the bond debt, for the payment of which the defendant's intestate was equally bound, he becomes a bond creditor as to the assets of the intestate; and when, pending an action for contribution, the administrator paid off the bonds voluntarily, with equal dignity with said surety debt, having previously paid an open account, he committed a devastit to the extent of the plaintiff's claim for contribution, such claim being for

Editor's Note.—Atwater v. Farthing, 118 N. C. 388, 24 S. E. 736, was a case where A endorsed a note for the maker, and subsequently, but before it was discounted, F endorsed it. The note was then passed to and paid to mortgagee, in Russel v. Owen, 203 N. C. 590 and Dawson v. Pettway, 20 N. C. 531.

Release of Principal.—A surety who seeks to recover from a co-surety a ratalable part of money paid must take care to do so before the time for his action to recover the principal has run out. As one, when he is about to become a surety with others, he may stipulate for the common benefit of the sureties. But after that connection has been severed by an agreement among the sureties, each of them has his distinct and several claim to the benefit of both. Where two persons engage in a common risk as sureties whereby they agree to become co-sureties, Gilliam v. Walker, 189 N. C. 189, 126 S. E. 424.

Co-surety Paying Bond Debt Deemed Bond Creditor.—In K. v. Reams, 73 N. C. 391 it was held that a co-surety who pays the bond debt, for which the other creditor is only bound, shall be deemed a bond creditor in the administration of the estate of the deceased co-surety. Peebles v. Gay, 115 N. C. 38, 41, 20 S. E. 173.

Rights of Surety Paying Entire Debt.—Under the act of 1807, now this section, one surety may recover at law from another his ratalable proportion of the debt of the principal, for the benefit of the surety who pays the debt are not enlarged nor is the co-surety deprived of any just grounds of defense which would before have been available to him in equity. Hall v. Robinson, 30 N. C. 56.

Liability Need Not Be Fixed by Judgment.—It is not necessary, to entitle a surety to maintain an action for contribution, without regard to the share of contribution, which the absent co-surety would have had to pay, had he been within the reach of the process of our courts. Jones v. Johnson, 41 C. N. 115.

Accommodation Endorser Not Liable as Co-surety.—Where A, as surety, signed the note of B, payable to C, and it was endorsed by C, at the request and for the accommodation of A, no judgment against B, when two persons engage in a common risk as sureties whereby they agree to become co-sureties of B, it was held that A had no right to contribution from C. Smith v. Locke, 36 N. C. 357.

Liability Not Be Fixed by Judgment.—It is not necessary, to entitle a surety to maintain an action for contribution, that the amount of his liability which was paid shall be fixed by a judgment. Bright v. Lennon, 83 N. C. 184.

Statute of Limitations.—In the case of a surety's payment and action for contribution against the co-surety, the statute of limitations runs only from the payment. Sherrod v. Woodward, 15 N. C. 360; Craven v. Freeman, 82 N. C. 361, 363.
A surety who pays money for his principal, may maintain an action against his co-surety for his ratabile part, without first making a demand, and the statute of limitations therefore begins to run from the time of the payment of the money. Sherrod v. Edwards, 117 N. C. 644; Craven v. Freeman, 82 N. C. 361. And if so, the withdrawal of such a plea or a waiver of it ought not to affect any claim which the principal has against his co-surety, of whose discharge the evidence is lost, but it is not obligatory in morals or law to use it to defeat a just debt. Bright v. Lennon, 37 N. C. 184.

A surety to a guardian bond, when sued by the wards, is not bound to avail himself of the statute of limitations and a failure to do so does not release co-sureties. Jones v. Blanton, 41 N. C. 64.

B. Actions and Incidents Therein.

Action at Law for Aliquot Parts.—An action at law by a surety for contribution lies only against the co-sureties, severally, for the aliquot part due from each. Adams v. Hayes, 120 N. C. 383, 27 S. E. 47.

Where a surety agrees to pay a note to a bank agreed, after the insolvency of their principal, to employ a broker to buy notes of the bank to an amount sufficient to pay the debt, and one of them paid the broker for notes purchased by him, and the other, after the fact, it was held he could maintain an action on the case against his co-surety for contribution. DeRossett v. Bradley, 63 N. C. 17.

Surety Should Allege Principal's Insolvency.—When one surety brings an action of assumpsit, for money paid for the use and at the request of the defendant, against the principal, the use of which was not asked, and the insolvency of the principals, or a horse or the like, which is payment in money, or in money's worth, such as bank notes, is compelled to pay the debt, it was held that, though the proper principal except by the averment that plaintiff was compelled to pay the debt of his principal, must have been compelled to pay the debt of his principal, must make all his co-sureties parties to a bill for contribution, if they are in this State and solvent. But where one is out of the jurisdiction of the court, and others are within it, the plaintiff, stating the fact in his bill, is at liberty to proceed against the latter alone. Jones v. Blanton, 41 N. C. 115.

Principal or Executor Party Defendant.—To a bill brought by a surety against his co-surety for contribution, their common principal, or, if he be dead, his executor or administrator should be made a party defendant. Rainey v. Yarborough, 37 N. C. 249.

Principal's Rejection of Principal's Insolvency.—When it appears that the principal on a note has secured his discharge in bankruptcy from his obligations, including a note paid at maturity by one of two sureties thereon, and that a few months thereafter the other, who had paid nothing, to claim contribution against his co-surety, who had paid nothing, the right of action given by Rev. sec. 2844, now this section, will not, without more, be denied upon the ground that it requires the insolvency of the principal, in such cases, to be shown at the institution of the action. Shuford v. Coxe, 164 N. C. 46, 80 S. E. 61.

Interest on Collateral.—In an action against an alleged co-surety to recover money paid in settlement of their joint liability, the amount received by the plaintiff as interest on collateral deposited, should be deducted from the amount recovered by plaintiff. Carr v. Smith, 129 N. C. 232, 39 S. E. 831.

Discharge of Levy by Co-surety.—A, having a judgment against B, as principal, and C, as surety, without the consent of A, has an execution issued and levied upon B's property. A, has a right to withdraw the execution and discharge the levy, without making herself liable to C. Forbes v. Smith, 120 N. C. 241.

Principal's Reputation to Show Insolvency.—In an action for contribution by a surety against his co-surety, the plaintiff may offer evidence of their principal's insolvency by showing his general reputation, and this even after direct evidence of the said principal's insolvency. Leak v. Covington, 59 N. C. 559, 6 S. E. 241.

Record of Judgment in Evidence.—A surety seeking contribution from a co-surety, may offer the record of a judgment against the surety as such, which, in the absence of any suggestion of fraud or collusion in procuring the same, is prima facie proof of the damages suffered by the said surety. Leak v. Covington, 59 N. C. 559, 6 S. E. 241.

Operation of Parol Evidence Rule.—The rule that parol evidence cannot be admitted to contradict a written contract, applies to actions on the contract itself, but not so as to arise collaterally out of it. So, where it appeared on the face of a note that certain parties thereto were sureties, in an action for contribution, parol evidence is admissible to show that they were really principals. Williams v. Glenn, 92 N. C. 253.

§ 26-6. Dissenting surety not liable on stay of execution.—Whenever any judgment shall be obtained before a justice against a principal and his surety, and the principal debtor shall desire to stay the execution thereon, but the surety is unwilling that such stay shall be had, the surety may cause his dissent thereto to be entered by the justice, which shall absolve him from all liability to the surety who may stay the same. And the constable or other officer, who may have the collection of the debt, shall make the money out of the property of the principal debtor, and that of the surety for the stay of execution, if he can, before he shall sell the property of the surety before judgment. (Rev. s. 2845; Cod. s. 2982); R. C. C. 110; S. C. 1850, c. 6, c. 1; C. S. 3506.)

§ 26-7. Surety may notify creditor to sue.—In all cases where any surety or indorser on any note, bill, bond, or other written obligation shall consider himself in danger of loss in consequence of his contingent liability, either from the insolvency or misconduct of the principal, in the note, bill, bond, or other written obligation, or from the negligence of the payee or holder of any such instrument, it shall be lawful for such surety or indorser, at any time after such note, bill, bond, or other written obligation becomes due and payable, to cause written notice to be given to the payee or holder of any such paper or obligation, requiring him to bring suit on such note, bill, bond, or other written obligation, and to use all reasonable diligence to save harmless such surety or indorser: Provided, nothing herein contained shall apply to official bonds, or bonds given by any person acting in a fiduciary capacity. (Rev., s. 2846; Code, s. 2097; 1868-9, c. 232, s. 1; C. S. 2893.)

Cross Reference.—As to statute of limitations, see subdivisions 1 and 6 of § 1-52.

Reasonable Compliance. — The requirements of this section are reasonably complied with when the holder of a negotiable instrument, except a promissory note, fails to bring action within thirty days after notice of protest, within thirty days after such protest, or within thirty days after such notice of protest where no protest is recorded in the instrument, and it is made to appear that he is a non-resident. Taylor v. Bridger, 185 N. C. 55, 114 S. E. 94.

Protection Secured. — In Moore v. Goodwin, 109 N. C. 218, 13 S. E. 772, which was a case holding that payment made by a principal upon a bond, before the cause of action thereon accrued, extinguishes the surety's liability, and renders the clause therein provided for in the instrument void, it was held that the provisions of the statute of limitations, Mr. Justice Davis, who delivered the opinion of the court, said in reference to this section: "Counsel says that if several co-obligors owe a debt of $1,000 upon which this bond shall be created, if payment shall be made of the pitiful sum of ten cents within every three years, the debt may be kept in force against the sureties for a century. The hardship and injustice, so eloquently portrayed by counsel, is placed upon the statute, and without the exception provided for in the pre-existing law, by requiring the creditor, after receiving notice in accordance with this section, within thirty days causes the maker to be a party defendant, and it is made to appear that he is a non-resident. Taylor v. Bridger, 185 N. C. 55, 114 S. E. 94.

Section, and if the holder does not do so within thirty days from the date of the commencement of a suit thereon, without the knowledge or consent of the surety, it was held that such contract has the effect of suspending the plaintiff's right of action and of exonerating the surety from liability. Carrier v. Duncan, 84 N. C. 676.

Reservation of Right against Surety. — An agreement with a principal on a sufficient consideration to forbear to sue for a fixed period, without reserving the right to proceed against the surety and made without his assent, will exonerate him from liability. Forbes v. Sheppard, 98 N. C. 11, 3 S. E. 817.

The exoneration grows out of the agreement to forbear and is not affected by the creditor's breach of it. Forbes v. Sheppard, 98 N. C. 11, 3 S. E. 817.

the clerk of the Superior Court of the county in which the said judgment is rendered and docketed, such judgment shall be canceled as to said surety, endorser or other person secondarily liable and shall cease to be a lien upon his real estate and other property, but such cancellation shall not have the force and effect nor operate as a cancellation and discharge of the judgment as to any other person against whom the said judgment shall be rendered and the person so paying the said judgment shall have all the rights given to a surety who has been compelled to pay a judgment against the principal debtor and cosureties which are given in this chapter, notwithstanding the cancellation of the said judgment as herein provided for. Chapter 27. Warehouse Receipts.

Sec. 27-1. Name of chapter.—This chapter may be cited as the Uniform Warehouse Receipts act. (1917, c. 37, s. 62; C. S. 4036.)

§ 27-2. Terms defined.—In this chapter, unless the context or subject-matter otherwise requires—

“Action” includes counterclaim, set-off, and suit in equity.

“Delivery” means voluntary transfer of possession from one person to another.

“Fungible goods” means goods of which any unit is, from its nature or by mercantile custom, treated as the equivalent of any other unit.

“Goods” means chattels or merchandise in storage, or which has been or is about to be stored.

“Holder” of a receipt means a person who has both actual possession of such receipt and a right of property therein.

“Order” means an order by indorsement.

“Owner” does not include mortgagee or pledgee.

“Person” includes a corporation or partnership of two or more persons having a joint or common interest.

Sec. 27-30. Creditor’s remedy against receipt.

27-32. Against what goods lien enforced.

27-33. Loss of lien.

27-34. What liens enforced against negotiable receipts.

27-35. Right to retain until liens satisfied.

27-36. Other legal remedies for warehouseman.

27-39. Other remedies not excluded.

27-40. Liability discharged by sale for liens.

Art. 4. Negotiation and Transfer of Receipts.

27-41. Negotiation by delivery.

27-42. Negotiation by indorsement.

27-43. Transfer of nonnegotiable receipts.

27-44. Who may negotiate a receipt.

27-46. Rights acquired by transfer.

27-47. Right to compel indorsement.

27-49. Indorser not liable for failure of prior parties.

27-50. No warranty by collection of debt secured by receipt.

27-51. Rights of bona fide holder not affected by fraud.

27-52. Subsequent purchasers protected.

27-53. Right of purchaser superior to seller’s lien.

Art. 5. Criminal Offenses.

27-54. Issuing receipt for goods not stored.

27-55. Issuing receipt with false statement.

27-56. Issuing fraudulent duplicates.

27-57. Failure to state in receipt the interest of warehouseman.

27-59. Fraudulent deposit and negotiation.
To “purchase” includes to take as mortgagee or as pledgee. “Purchaser” includes mortgagee and pledgee.

“Receipt” means a warehouse receipt. “Value” is any consideration sufficient to support a simple contract. An antecedent or pre-existing obligation, whether for money or not, constitutes value where a receipt is taken either in satisfaction thereof or as security therefor. “Warehouseman” means a person lawfully engaged in the business of storing goods for profit.

A thing is done “in good faith” within the meaning of this chapter, when it is in fact done honestly, whether it be done negligently or not. (1917, c. 37, s. 58; C. S. 4037.)

Cross Reference.— As to public warehouses in general, see § 66-35 to 66-60.

What Constitutes Warehousemen. — It matters not if a concern is a person or partnership. If the concern is engaged in the business and goods are stored for profit, this section applies. It matters not if the concern stores its own and the goods of others. The receipt issued by the concern under consideration terms itself “warehouse receipt” and shows on the face that the goods are stored for profit; it gives the “storage rates.” Webb & Co. v. Friedberg, 189 N. C. 166, 150 S. E. 338.

§ 27-3. Uniform construction. — This chapter shall be so interpreted and construed as to effectuate its general purpose to make uniform the law of those states which enact it. (1917, c. 37, s. 57; C. S. 4038.)

§ 27-4. General law applied. — In any case not provided for in this chapter, the rules of law and equity, including the law merchant, and in particular the rules relating to the law of principal and agent and to the effect of fraud, misrepresentation, duress or coercion, mistake, bankruptcy, or other invalidating cause, shall govern. (1917, c. 37, s. 56; C. S. 4029.)

Art. 2. Issue of Warehouse Receipts.

§ 27-5. Who may issue receipts. — Warehouse receipts may be issued by any warehouseman. (1917, c. 37, s. 1; C. S. 4041.)

§ 27-6. What receipt must contain. — Warehouse receipts need not be in any particular form, but every such receipt must embody within its written or printed terms—

1. The location of the warehouse where the goods are stored.
2. The date of issue of the receipt.
3. The consecutive number of the receipt.
4. A statement whether the goods received will be delivered to the bearer, to a specified person, or to a specified person or his order.
5. The rate of storage charges.
6. A description of the goods or of the packages containing them.
7. The signature of the warehouseman, which may be made by his authorized agent.
8. If the receipt is issued for goods of which the warehouseman is owner, either solely or jointly or in common with others, the fact of such ownership; and
9. A statement of the amount of advances made and of liabilities incurred for which the warehouseman claims a lien. If the precise amount of such advances made or of such liabilities incurred is at the time of the issue of the receipt unknown to the warehouseman or to his agent who issues it, a statement of the fact that advances have been made or liabilities incurred, and the purpose thereof, is sufficient. A warehouseman shall be liable to any person injured thereby, for all damage caused by the omission from a negotiable receipt of any of the terms herein required. (Rev., s. 3032; 1917, c. 37, s. 2; C. S. 4042.)

§ 27-7. Other terms inserted; exceptions. — A warehouseman may insert in a receipt issued by him any other terms and conditions, provided that such terms and conditions shall not—
1. Be contrary to the provisions of this chapter.
2. In anywise impair his obligation to exercise that degree of care in the safekeeping of the goods entrusted to him which a reasonably careful man would exercise in regard to similar goods of his own. (1917, c. 37, s. 3; C. S. 4043.)

§ 27-8. Nonnegotiable receipts. — A receipt in which it is stated that the goods received will be delivered to the depositor, or to any other specified person, is a nonnegotiable receipt. (1917, c. 37, s. 4; C. S. 4044.)

§ 27-9. Nonnegotiable receipts marked. — A nonnegotiable receipt shall have plainly placed upon its face by the warehouseman issuing it “nonnegotiable,” or “not negotiable.” In case of the warehouseman’s failure so to do, a holder of the receipt who purchased it for value supposing it to be negotiable may, at his option, treat such receipt as imposing upon the warehouseman the same liabilities he would have incurred had the receipt been negotiable. This section shall not apply, however, to letters, memoranda, or written acknowledgments of an informal character. (Rev., s. 3032; 1917, c. 37, s. 7; C. S. 4045.)

§ 27-10. Negotiable receipts. — A receipt in which it is stated that the goods received will be delivered to the bearer, or to the order of any person named in such receipt, is a negotiable receipt. No provisions shall be inserted in a negotiable receipt that it is nonnegotiable. Such provision, if inserted, shall be void. (Rev., s. 3032; 1917, c. 37, s. 5; C. S. 4046.)

§ 27-11. Duplicate negotiable receipts. — When more than one negotiable receipt is issued for the same goods, the word “duplicate” shall be plainly placed upon the face of every such receipt, except the one first issued. A warehouseman shall be liable for all damage caused by his failure so to do to any one who purchased the subsequent receipt for value supposing it to be an original, even though the purchase be after the delivery of the goods by the warehouseman to the holder of the original receipt. (1917, c. 37, s. 6; C. S. 4047.)

Art. 3. Obligations and Rights of Warehousemen on Receipts.

§ 27-12. Delivery of goods on proper demand. — A warehouseman, in the absence of some lawful excuse provided by this chapter, is bound to deliver the goods upon a demand made either by the holder of a receipt for the goods or by the depositor, if such demand is accompanied with—
1. An offer to satisfy the warehouseman’s lien;
2. An offer to surrender the receipt if negoti-
§ 27-13. To whom goods may be delivered.—A warehouseman is justified in delivering the goods, subject to the provisions of §§ 27-14, 27-15, and 27-16, to one who is—

1. The person lawfully entitled to the possession of the goods, or his agent;

2. A person who is either himself entitled to delivery by the terms of a non-negotiable receipt issued for the goods or who has written authority from the person so entitled, either indorsed upon the receipt or written upon another paper; or

3. A person in possession of a negotiable receipt by the terms of which the goods are deliverable to him or order or to bearer, or which has been indorsed to him or in blank by the person to whom delivery was promised by the terms of the receipt or by his mediator or immediate indorsee. (1917, c. 37, s. 9; C. S. 4049.)

Cross Reference.—As to right of person injured to bring action on warehouseman's bond, see § 66-37.

§ 27-14. Liability for wrong delivery.—Where a warehouseman delivers the goods to one who is not in fact lawfully entitled to the possession of them, the warehouseman shall be liable as for conversion to all having a right of property or possession in the goods if he delivered the goods otherwise than as authorized by subdivisions (2) and (3) of the preceding section, and though he delivered the goods as authorized by said subdivisions, he shall be so liable if prior to such delivery he had either—

1. Been requested, by or on behalf of the person lawfully entitled to a right of property or possession in the goods, not to make such delivery, or

2. Had information that the delivery about to be made was to one not lawfully entitled to the possession of the goods. (1917, c. 37, s. 10; C. S. 4050.)

§ 27-15. Liability on receipt not taken up on delivery.—Except as hereafter provided in this article, when the goods may have been sold to satisfy warehouseman's charges or because of their perishable or hazardous nature, where a warehouseman delivers goods for which he had issued a negotiable receipt, the negotiation of which would transfer the right to the possession of the goods, and fails to take up and cancel the receipt, he shall be liable, to any one who purchases for value and in good faith such receipt, for failure to deliver the goods to him, whether such purchaser acquired title to the receipt before or after the delivery of the goods by the warehouseman. (1917, c. 37, s. 11; C. S. 4051.)

§ 27-16. Liability on receipt for partial delivery.

—Except when goods may have been sold to satisfy warehouseman's lien or because of their perishable or hazardous nature, as hereafter provided in this article, where a warehouseman delivers a part of the goods for which he had issued a negotiable receipt and fails either to take up and cancel the receipt or to place plainly upon it a statement of what goods or packages have been delivered, he shall be liable, to any one who purchases for value in good faith such receipt, for failure to deliver all the goods specified in the receipt, whether such purchaser acquired title to the receipt before or after the delivery of any portion of the goods by the warehouseman. (1917, c. 37, s. 12; C. S. 4052.)

§ 27-17. Effect of alteration of receipt.—The alteration of a receipt shall not excuse the warehouseman who issued it from any liability if such alteration was—

1. Immaterial,

2. Authorized, or

3. Made without fraudulent intent.

If the alteration was authorized, the warehouseman shall be liable according to the terms of the receipt as altered. If the alteration was unauthorized, but made without fraudulent intent, the warehouseman shall be liable according to the terms of the receipt as they were before alteration. Material and fraudulent alteration of a receipt shall not excuse the warehouseman who issued it from liability to deliver, according to the terms of the receipt as originally issued, the goods for which it was issued, but shall excuse him from any other liability to the person who made the alteration and to any person who took with notice of the alteration. A purchaser of the receipt for value without notice of the alteration shall acquire the same rights against the warehouseman which such purchaser would have acquired if the receipt had not been altered at the time of the purchase. (1917, c. 37, s. 13; C. S. 4053.)

§ 27-18. Delivery in case of lost receipt.—Where a negotiable receipt has been lost or destroyed, a court of competent jurisdiction may order the delivery of the goods upon satisfactory proof of such loss or destruction and upon the giving of a bond with sufficient sureties, to be approved by the court, to protect the warehouseman from any liability or expense which he or any person injured by such delivery may incur by reason of the original receipt remaining outstanding. The court may also, in its discretion, order the payment of the warehouseman's reasonable costs. The delivery of the goods under an order of the court as provided in this section shall not relieve the warehouseman from liability to a person to whom the negotiable receipt has been or shall be negotiated for value without notice of the proceedings or of the delivery of the goods. (1917, c. 37, s. 14; C. S. 4054.)

§ 27-19. Effect of issuing duplicate receipt.—A receipt upon the face of which the word "duplicate" is plainly placed is a representation and warranty by the warehouseman that such receipt is an accurate copy of an original receipt properly issued and uncancelled at the date of the issue of the duplicate, but shall impose upon him no other liability. (1917, c. 37, s. 15; C. S. 4055.)
§ 27-20. Claim of title no defense for nondelivery; exceptions.—No title or right to the possession of the goods, on the part of the warehouseman, unless such title or right is derived directly or indirectly from a transfer made by the depositor at the time of or subsequent to the deposit for storage, or from the warehouseman's lien, shall excuse the warehouseman from liability for refusing to deliver the goods according to the terms of the receipt. (1917, c. 37, s. 16; C. S. 4056.)

§ 27-21. Interpleader in conflicting claims.—If more than one person claims the title or possession of the goods, the warehouseman may, either as a defense to an action brought against him for nondelivery of the goods or as an original suit, whichever is appropriate, require all known claimants to interplead. (1917, c. 37, s. 17; C. S. 4057.)

§ 27-22. Reasonable time to investigate conflicting claims.—If some one other than the depositor or person claiming under him has a claim to the title or possession of the goods, and the warehouseman has information of such claim, the warehouseman shall be excused from liability for refusing to deliver the goods, either to the depositor or person claiming under him or to the adverse claimant, until the warehouseman has had a reasonable time to ascertain the validity of the adverse claim or to bring legal proceedings to compel all claimants to interplead. (1917, c. 37, s. 18; C. S. 4058.)

§ 27-23. Title in third person no defense; exceptions.—Except as provided in §§ 27-21 and 27-22 and except when the goods may have been delivered to the person authorized to have such delivery, as heretofore provided in this article, or when the goods may have been sold to satisfy the warehouseman's lien or because of their perishable or hazardous nature, as hereafter provided in this article, no right or title of a third person shall be a defense to an action brought by the depositor or person claiming under him against the warehouseman for failure to deliver the goods according to the terms of the receipt. (1917, c. 37, s. 19; C. S. 4059.)

§ 27-24. Failure to deliver goods as described.—A warehouseman shall be liable to the holder of a receipt issued by him or on his behalf by an agent or employee the scope of whose actual or apparent authority includes the issuing of warehouse receipts, for damages caused by the nonexistence of the goods or by the failure of the goods to correspond with the description thereof in the receipt at the time of its issue. If, however, the goods are described in a receipt merely by a statement of marks or labels upon them or upon packages containing them, or by a statement that the goods are said to be goods of a certain kind, or that the packages containing the goods are said to contain goods of a certain kind, or by words of like purport, such statements, if true, shall not make liable the warehouseman issuing the receipt, although the goods are not of the kind which the marks or labels upon them indicate, or of the kind they were said to be by the depositor. (1917, c. 37, s. 20; 1931, c. 358, s. 1; C. S. 4060.)

Editor's Note.—The Act of 1931, inapplicable to litigation pending May 4, 1931, added the words "issued by him or on his behalf by an agent or employee the scope of whose actual or apparent authority includes the issuing of warehouse receipts," in the first sentence of this section.

§ 27-25. Liability for negligence.—A warehouseman shall be liable for any loss or injury to the goods caused by his failure to exercise such care in regard to them as a reasonably careful owner of similar goods would exercise; but he shall not be liable, in the absence of an agreement to the contrary, for any loss or injury to the goods which could not have been avoided by the exercise of such care. (1917, c. 37, s. 21; C. S. 4061.)

§ 27-26. Goods kept separate.—Except as provided in § 27-27, a warehouseman shall keep the goods so far separate from goods of other depositors, and from other goods of the same depositor for which a separate receipt has been issued, as to permit at all times the identification and redelivery of the goods deposited. (1917, c. 37, s. 22; C. S. 4062.)

§ 27-27. Effect of confusion of goods.—If authorized by agreement or by custom, a warehouseman may mingle fungible goods with other goods of the same kind and grade. In such case the various depositors of the mingled goods shall own the entire mass in common and each depositor shall be entitled to such portion thereof as the amount deposited by him bears to the whole. (Rev., s. 3034; 1917, c. 37, s. 23; C. S. 4063.)

§ 27-28. Liability of warehouseman when goods confused.—The warehouseman shall be severally liable to each depositor for the care and redelivery of his share of such mass to the same extent and under the same circumstances as if the goods had been kept separate. (1917, c. 37, s. 24; C. S. 4064.)

§ 27-29. Goods not subject to attachment or execution.—If goods are delivered to a warehouseman by the owner or by a person whose act in conveying the title to them to a purchaser in good faith for value would bind the owner, and a negotiable receipt is issued for them, they cannot thereafter, while in the possession of the warehouseman, be attached by garnishment or otherwise, or be levied upon under an execution, unless the receipt be first surrendered to the warehouseman or its negotiation enjoined. The warehouseman shall in no case be compelled to deliver up the actual possession of the goods until the receipt is surrendered to him or impounded by the court. (1917, c. 37, s. 25; C. S. 4065.)

Ordinary Constituting Injunction.—In view of § 1-490, an order of the judge operating to prevent the holder of warehouse certificates from disposing of them except under order of the court, is a sufficient compliance with this section constituting it an injunction. Standard Bonded Warehouse Co. v. Cooper, 30 Fed. (2d) 842, 845.

§ 27-30. Creditor's remedy against receipt.—A creditor whose debtor is the owner of a negotiable receipt shall be entitled to such aid from courts of appropriate jurisdiction, by injunction and otherwise, in attaching such receipt or in satisfying the claim by means thereof as is allowed at law or in equity in regard to property which cannot readily be attached or levied upon by ordinary legal process. (1917, c. 37, s. 26; C. S. 4066.)
§ 27-31. Warehouseman’s lien.—Subject to the subsequent provisions of this article specifying what liens may be enforced against a negotiable receipt, a warehouseman shall have a lien on goods deposited or on the proceeds thereof in his hands, for all lawful charges for storage and preservation of the goods; also for all lawful claims for money advanced, interest, insurance, transportation, labor, weighing, coopering, and other charges and expenses in relation to such goods; also for all reasonable charges and expenses for notice and advertisements of sale, and for sale of the goods where default has been made in satisfying the warehouseman’s lien. (1917, c. 37, s. 27; C. S. 4067.)

Cited in Champion Shoe Machinery Co. v. Sellers, 197 N. C. 30, 147 S. E. 674; Standard Bonded Warehouse Co. v. Cooper, 30 Fed. (2d) 842.

§ 27-32. Against what goods lien enforced.—Subject to the subsequent provisions of this article specifying what liens may be enforced against a negotiable receipt, a warehouseman’s lien may be enforced—

1. Against all goods, whenever deposited, belonging to the person who is liable as debtor for the claims in regard to which the lien is asserted; and

2. Against all goods belonging to others which have been deposited at any time by the person who is liable as debtor for the claims in regard to which the lien is asserted, if such person has been so entrusted with the possession of the goods that a pledge of the same by him at the time of the deposit to one who took the goods in good faith for value would have been valid. (1917, c. 37, s. 28; C. S. 4068.)

§ 27-33. Loss of lien.—A warehouseman loses his lien upon goods—

1. By surrendering possession thereof, or

2. By refusing to deliver the goods when a demand is made with which he is bound to comply under the provisions of this chapter. (1917, c. 37, s. 29; C. S. 4069.)

§ 27-34. What liens enforced against negotiable receipts. — If a negotiable receipt is issued for goods, the warehouseman shall have no lien thereon, except for charges for storage of those goods subsequent to the date of the receipt, unless the receipt expressly enumerate other charges for which a lien is claimed. In such case there shall be a lien for the charges enumerated so far as they are within the terms for a warehouseman’s lien as heretofore provided in this article, although the amount of the charges so enumerated is not stated in the receipt. (1917, c. 37, s. 30; C. S. 4070.)

§ 27-35. Right to retain until liens satisfied.—A warehouseman having a lien valid against the person demanding the goods may refuse to deliver the goods to him until the lien is satisfied. (1917, c. 37, s. 31; C. S. 4071.)

§ 27-36. Other legal remedies for warehouseman.—Whether a warehouseman has or has not a lien upon the goods, he is entitled to all remedies allowed by law to a creditor against his debtor for the collection from the depositor of all charges and advances which the depositor has expressly or impliedly contracted with the warehouseman to pay. (1917, c. 37, s. 32; C. S. 4072.)

§ 27-37. Enforcement of liens.—A warehouseman’s lien for a claim which has become due may be satisfied as follows:

1. Notice given. The warehouseman shall give a written notice to the person on whose account the goods are held, and to any other person known by the warehouseman to claim an interest in the goods. Such notice shall be given by delivery in person or by registered letter addressed to the last known place of business or abode of the person to be notified. The notice shall contain—

   a. An itemized statement of the warehouseman’s claim, showing the sum due at the time of the notice and the date or dates when it became due;

   b. A brief description of the goods against which the lien exists;

   c. A demand that the amount of the claim as stated in the notice, and of such further claim as shall accrue, shall be paid on or before a day mentioned, not less than ten days from the delivery of the notice if it is personally delivered or from the time when the notice should reach its destination according to the due course of post if the notice is sent by mail; and

   d. A statement that unless the claims are paid within the time specified the goods will be advertised for sale and sold by auction at a specified time and place.

2. Sale of goods. In accordance with the terms of a notice so given, a sale of the goods by auction may be had to satisfy any valid claim of the warehouseman for which he has a lien on the goods. The sale shall be had in the place where the lien was acquired, or, if such place is manifestly unsuitable for the purpose, at the nearest suitable place. After the time for the payment of the claim specified in the notice to the depositor has elapsed, an advertisement of the sale, describing the goods to be sold, shall be published once a week for two consecutive weeks in a newspaper published in the place where such sale is to be held. The sale shall not be held less than fifteen days from the time of the first publication. If there is no newspaper published in such place, the advertisement shall be posted at least ten days before such sale in not less than six conspicuous places therein. From the proceeds of such sale the warehouseman shall satisfy his lien, including the reasonable charges of notice, advertisement, and sale. The balance, if any, of such proceeds shall be held by the warehouseman, and delivered on demand to the person to whom he would have been bound to deliver or justified in delivering the goods.

3. Right of claimant to pay charges. At any time before the goods are so sold any person claiming a right of property or possession therein may pay the warehouseman the amount necessary to satisfy his lien and to pay the reasonable expenses and liabilities incurred in serving notices and advertising and preparing for the sale up to the time of such payment. The warehouseman shall deliver the goods to the person making such payment if he is a person entitled, under the provisions of this chapter, to the possession of the goods on payment of charges thereon. Otherwise, the warehouseman shall retain possession of the goods according to the terms of the original contract of deposit. (Rev., ss. 3036, 3037, 3038; 1917, c. 37, s. 33; C. S. 4073.)

§ 27-38. Sale of perishable goods.—If goods are of a perishable nature, or by keeping will deteriorate greatly in value, or by their odor, leakage, inflammability, or explosive nature will be liable to injure other property, the warehouseman may give such notice to the owner, or to the person in whose name the goods are stored, as is reasonable and possible under the circumstances, to satisfy the lien upon such goods and to remove them from the warehouse; and in the event of the failure of such person to satisfy the lien and to remove the goods within the time so specified, the warehouseman may sell the goods at public or private sale without advertising. If the warehouseman after a reasonable effort is unable to sell such goods, he may dispose of them in any lawful manner, and shall incur no liability by reason thereof. The proceeds of any sale made under the terms of this section shall be disposed of in the same way as the proceeds of sales made under the terms of § 27-37. (Rev., ss. 3039, 3040; 1917, c. 37, s. 34; C. S. 4074.)

§ 27-39. Other remedies not excluded.—The remedy for enforcing a lien herein provided does not preclude any other remedies allowed by law for the enforcement of a lien against personal property nor bar the right to recover so much of the warehouseman’s claim as shall not be paid by the proceeds of the sale of the property. (Rev., s. 3041; 1917, c. 37, s. 35; C. S. 4075.)

§ 27-40. Liability discharged by sale for liens.—After goods have been lawfully sold to satisfy a warehouseman’s lien, or have been lawfully sold or disposed of because of their perishable or hazardous nature, the warehouseman shall not thereafter be liable for failure to deliver the goods to the depositor or owner of the goods, or to a holder of the receipt given for the goods when they were deposited, even if such receipt be negotiable. (1917, c. 37, s. 36; C. S. 4076.)

Art. 4. Negotiation and Transfer of Receipts.

§ 27-41. Negotiation by delivery.—A negotiable receipt may be negotiated by delivery—

1. Where by the terms of the receipt the warehouseman undertakes to deliver the goods to the bearer; or

2. Where by the terms of the receipt the warehouseman undertakes to deliver the goods to the order of a specified person, and such person or a subsequent indorsee of the receipt has indorsed it in blank or to bearer.

Where by the terms of a negotiable receipt the goods are deliverable to bearer, or where a negotiable receipt has been indorsed in blank or to bearer, any holder may indorse the same to himself or to any other specified person, and in such case the receipt shall thereafter be negotiable only by the indorsement of such indorsee. (1917, c. 37, s. 37; C. S. 4077.)

Cited in Standard Bonded Warehouse Co. v. Cooper, 30 Fed. (2d) 842.

§ 27-42. Negotiation by indorsement.—A negotiable receipt may be negotiated by the indorsement of the person to whose order the goods are deliverable. Such indorsement may be in blank, to bearer, or to a specified person. If indorsed to a specified person, it may be again negotiated by the indorsement of such person in blank, to bearer, or to another specified person. Subsequent negotiation may be made in like manner. (1917, c. 37, s. 38; C. S. 4078.)

§ 27-43. Transfer of nonnegotiable receipts.—A receipt which is not in such form that it can be negotiated by delivery may be transferred by the holder by delivery to a purchaser or donee. A nonnegotiable receipt cannot be negotiated, and the indorsement of such a receipt gives the transferee no additional right. (1917, c. 37, s. 39; C. S. 4079.)

§ 27-44. Who may negotiate a receipt.—A negotiable receipt may be negotiated by any person in possession of the same however such possession may have been acquired, if, by the terms of the receipt, the warehouseman undertakes to deliver the goods to the order of such person or if at the time of negotiation the receipt is in such form that it may be negotiated by delivery. (1917, c. 37, s. 40; 1931, c. 358, s. 2; C. S. 4080.)

Editor's Note.—The Act of 1931 struck out the former section and inserted the above in lieu thereof. It provided that the act should not affect litigation pending May 4, 1931. See 9 N. C. L. Rev. 404.

§ 27-45. Rights acquired by negotiation.—A person to whom a negotiable receipt has been duly negotiated acquires thereby—

1. Such title to the goods as the person negotiating the receipt to him had or had ability to convey to a purchaser in good faith for value, and also such title to the goods as the depositor or person to whose order the goods were to be delivered by the terms of the receipt had or had ability to convey to a purchaser in good faith for value; and

2. The direct obligation of the warehouseman to hold possession of the goods for him according to the terms of the receipt as fully as if the warehouseman had contracted directly with him. (1917, c. 37, s. 41; C. S. 4081.)

§ 27-46. Rights acquired by transfer.—A person to whom a receipt has been transferred but not negotiated acquires thereby, as against the transferee, the title of the goods, subject to the terms of any agreement with the transferrer. If the receipt is nonnegotiable, such person also acquires the right to notify the warehouseman of the transfer to him of such receipt, and thereby to acquire the direct obligation of the warehouseman to hold possession of the goods for him according to the terms of the receipt. Prior to the notification of the warehouseman by the transferrer or transferee of a nonnegotiable receipt, the title of the transferee to the goods and the right to acquire the obligation of the warehouseman may be defeated by the levy of an attachment or execution upon the goods by a creditor of the transferrer, or by a notification to the warehouseman by the transferrer or a subsequent purchaser from the transferrer of a subsequent sale of the goods by the transferrer. (1917, c. 37, s. 42; C. S. 4082.)

§ 27-47. Right to compel indorsement.—Where a negotiable receipt is transferred for value by delivery, and the indorsement of the transferrer is essential for negotiation, the transferee acquires a right against the transferrer to compel him to indorse the receipt, unless a contrary intention appears. The negotiation shall take effect as of the time when the indorsement is actually made. (1917, c. 37, s. 43; C. S. 4083.)

§ 27-48. Warranties in negotiation and transfer. —A person who for value negotiates or transfers a receipt by indorsement or delivery, including one who assigns for value a claim secured by a receipt, unless a contrary intention appears, warrants:
1. That the receipt is genuine;
2. That he has a legal right to negotiate or transfer it;
3. That he has knowledge of no fact which would impair the validity or worth of the receipt; and
4. That he has a right to transfer the title to the goods and that the goods are merchantable or fit for a particular purpose, whenever such warranties would have been implied if the contract of the parties had been to transfer without a receipt the goods represented thereby. (1917, c. 37, s. 44; C. S. 4084.)

§ 27-49. Indorser not liable for failure of prior parties. —The indorsement of a receipt shall not make the indorser liable for any failure on the part of the warehouseman or previous indorsers of the receipt to fulfill their respective obligations. (1917, c. 37, s. 45; C. S. 4085.)

§ 27-50. No warranty by collection of debt secured by receipt. —A mortgagee, pledgee, or holder for security of a receipt who in good faith demands or receives payment of the debt for which such receipt is security, whether from a party to a draft drawn for such debt or from any other person, shall not by so doing be deemed to represent or to warrant the genuineness of such receipt or the quantity or quality of the goods therein described. (1917, c. 37, s. 46; C. S. 4086.)

§ 27-51. Rights of bona fide holder not affected by fraud. —The validity of the negotiation of a receipt is not impaired by the fact that such negotiation was a breach of duty on the part of the person making the negotiation, or by the fact that the owner of the receipt was deprived of the possession of the same by loss, theft, fraud, accident, mistake, duress, or conversion, if the person to whom the receipt was negotiated, or a person to whom the receipt was subsequently negotiated, paid value therefor, in good faith without notice of the breach of duty, or loss, theft, fraud, accident, mistake, or duress or conversion. (1917, c. 37, s. 47; 1931, c. 358, s. 3; C. S. 4087.)

Editor's Note. —The Act of 1931 amended this section to conform with § 27-44, as amended. See 9 N. C. L. Rev. 494. It also provided that litigation pending May 4, 1931, should not be affected.

Fraudulent Negotiation by Superintendent. —Warehouse receipts, issued under § 306-435, which, upon being returned endorsed, were negotiated by the superintendent of the warehouse as collateral for a loan to himself, in breach of his duty to cancel them, are directly within the force of this section. Lacy v. Globe Indemnity Co., 189 N. C. 24, 126 S. E. 316.

§ 27-52. Subsequent purchasers protected. —Where a person having sold, mortgaged, or pledged goods which are in a warehouse and for which a negotiable receipt has been issued, or having sold, mortgaged, or pledged the negotiable receipt representing such goods, continues in possession of the negotiable receipt, the subsequent negotiation thereof by that person under any sale or other disposition thereof to any person receiving the same in good faith, for value and without notice of the previous sale, mortgage, or pledge, shall have the same effect as if the first purchaser of the goods or receipt had expressly authorized the subsequent negotiation. (1917, c. 37, s. 48; C. S. 4088.)

§ 27-53. Right of purchaser superior to seller's lien. —Where a negotiable receipt has been issued for goods, no seller's lien or right of stoppage in transit shall defeat the rights of any purchaser for value in good faith to whom such receipt has been negotiated, whether such negotiation be prior or subsequent to the notification to the warehouseman who issued such receipt of the seller's claim to a lien or right of stoppage in transit. Nor shall the warehouseman be obliged to deliver or justify in delivering the goods to an unpaid seller unless the receipt is first surrendered for cancellation. (1917, c. 37, s. 49; C. S. 4089.)

Art. 5. Criminal Offenses.

§ 27-54. Issuing receipt for goods not stored. —A warehouseman, or any officer, agent, or servant of a warehouseman, who issues or aids in issuing a receipt knowing that the goods for which such receipt is issued have not been actually received by such warehouseman, or are not under his actual control at the time of issuing such receipt, shall be guilty of a crime, and upon conviction shall be punished for each offense by imprisonment not exceeding five years or by a fine not exceeding five thousand dollars, or by both (1917, c. 37, s. 50; C. S. 4090.)

§ 27-55. Issuing receipt with false statement. —A warehouseman, or any officer, agent, or servant of a warehouseman, who fraudulently issues or aids in fraudulently issuing a receipt for goods knowing that it contains any false statement, shall be guilty of a crime, and upon conviction shall be punished for each offense by imprisonment not exceeding one year or by a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars, or by both. (1917, c. 37, s. 51; C. S. 4091.)

§ 27-56. Issuing fraudulent duplicates. —A warehouseman, or any officer, agent, or servant of a warehouseman, who issues or aids in issuing a duplicate or additional negotiable receipt for goods, knowing that a former negotiable receipt for the same goods or any part thereof is outstanding and uncanceled, without plainly placing upon the face thereof the word "duplicate," except in the case of a lost or destroyed receipt

after proceedings for delivery as heretofore provided in this chapter, shall be guilty of a crime, and upon conviction shall be punished for each offense by imprisonment not exceeding five years or by a fine not exceeding five thousand dollars, or by both. (1917, c. 37, s. 52; C. S. 4092.)

§ 27-57. Failure to state in receipt the interest of warehouseman.—Where there are deposited with or held by a warehouseman goods of which he is owner, either solely or jointly or in common with others, such warehouseman, or any of his officers, agents, or servants who, knowing this ownership, issues or aids in issuing a negotiable receipt for such goods which does not state such ownership, shall be guilty of a crime, and upon conviction shall be punished for each offense by imprisonment not exceeding one year or by a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars, or by both. (1917, c. 37, s. 53; C. S. 4093.)

§ 27-58. Delivering goods without obtaining recipe.—A warehouseman, or any officer, agent, or servant of a warehouseman, who delivers goods out of the possession of such warehouseman, knowing that a negotiable receipt the negotiation of which would transfer the right to the possession of such goods is outstanding and un-canceled, without obtaining the possession of such receipt at or before the time of such delivery, except in the cases heretofore provided for in this chapter for the delivery of goods upon a lost receipt and for the sale of goods to satisfy the warehouseman’s lien or because of their perishable or hazardous nature, shall be guilty of a crime, and upon conviction shall be punished for each offense by imprisonment not exceeding one year or by a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars, or by both. (1917, c. 37, s. 54; C. S.
4094.)

Cross Reference.—As to punishment for unlawful disposition of property stored, see also § 66-40.

§ 27-59. Fraudulent deposit and negotiation.—
Any person who deposits goods to which he has not title, or upon which there is a lien or mortgage, and who takes for such goods a negotiable receipt which he afterwards negotiates for value with intent to deceive and without disclosing his want of title or the existence of the lien or mortgage, shall be guilty of a crime, and upon conviction shall be punished for each offense by imprisonment not exceeding one year or by a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars, or by both. (1917, c. 37, s. 55; C. S. 4095.)
