Preface

It has been customary for the publication of each official revision of the North Carolina statutes to contain, in its preface, a reference to the authority for the revision and the general procedure for the execution of this authority. Read together, these prefaces form a continuous history of the North Carolina codes through the last official code, the Consolidated Statutes. As a projection of that history, the steps which have led to the preparation and adoption of the General Statutes of 1943 are hereinafter set forth.

The Act of the General Assembly creating the North Carolina Department of Justice, Chapter 315, Public Laws 1939, authorized the Attorney General to set up therein a division to be designated as the Division of Legislative Drafting and Codification of Statutes.

This Division was assigned two principal duties by the statute: (1) to prepare bills to be presented to the General Assembly at the request of the Governor, state officials and departments, and members of the General Assembly, and to advise and assist counties, cities and towns in drafting legislation to be submitted to the General Assembly; (2) to supervise the recodification of the general public statutes and to keep such recodification current.

With respect to the latter duty, the General Assembly authorized the Division to arrange with any publisher or publishers for doing the necessary editorial work and publication of the recodification, with annotations, appendixes, and index, under the supervision and direction of the Division and subject to the final approval and acceptance by the General Assembly. Acting upon this legislative authority, the Attorney General contracted with The Michie Company, Law Publishers of Charlottesville, Virginia, for publication of this recodification. It should be pointed out that The Michie Company, for over fifteen years, had published the unofficial codes and supplements in the state, and its Code of 1939 was used as a basis upon which to prepare the new codification.

This Division was set up on July 1, 1939, with W. J. Adams, Jr., as the director of the staff employed to carry on the work.

At the request of the Attorney General, Honorable Kingsland Van Winkle, President of the North Carolina Bar Association, and Honorable Fred S. Hutchins, President of the North Carolina State Bar, appointed a committee of able lawyers to assist in planning the new code. For the North Carolina Bar Association the following were named: Bennett H. Perry, Henderson; H. G. Hedrick, Durham; H. Gardner Hudson, Winston-Salem; Clifford Frazier, Greensboro; and Bryan Grimes, Washington. For the North Carolina State Bar the following were named: C. W. Tillett, Charlotte; Jack Joyner, Statesville; H. J. Hatcher, Morganton; Frank E. Winslow, Rocky Mount; and William T. Joyner, Raleigh.

At the request of the Attorney General, the following named persons also served as a part of this committee: Honorable A. A. F. Seawell, Associate Justice of the Supreme Court; Dean M. T. Van Hecke, of the University Law School; Dean H. C. Horack, of the Duke University Law School; Dean Dale F. Stansbury, of the Wake Forest Law School; and Dillard S. Gardner, Raleigh, Supreme Court Marshal and Librarian.
Full acknowledgment is made of the valuable assistance given by this committee in formulating the plans for the new code. The members of the committee very generously responded to the call for this service, giving a great deal of their valuable time to it without compensation or even reimbursement for their travel expenses.

In keeping with the procedure in prior revisions, the General Assembly of 1941 (Public Laws, Chapter 35) authorized the preparation and printing of a Legislative Edition of the proposed code for submission to the General Assembly of 1943.

The General Assembly of 1941 also adopted Joint Resolution No. 33, providing for a Commission on Recodification to cooperate with the Attorney General and the Division of Legislative Drafting and Codification of Statutes, naming on this Commission the following persons:

The Commission organized shortly after the adjournment of the Legislature and elected Mr. F. E. Wallace as Chairman.

The members of this Commission have cooperated to the fullest possible extent in the manner provided by the Statute. Every chapter and every section of the new code has been checked and approved by the Commission. This has involved an enormous amount of work as must be evident. The cooperation and approval of this Commission affords assurance that the work has been properly done and errors reduced to a minimum. A detailed statement of the methods used in preparing the new code may be found in the Preface to the Legislative Edition.

The Act revising and consolidating the General Statutes of the State of North Carolina was ratified on February 4, 1943. Chapter 15 of the Session Laws of 1943 provided that this Act should not be printed in the Session Laws of 1943.

Chapter 15 of the Session Laws of 1943 provided that the Division, under the direction of the Attorney General, should complete and perfect the recodification, which should be designated "General Statutes", by inserting 1943 Acts in their proper places, deleting repealed statutes and making other necessary corrections and rearrangements. This Act specifically provided that "after the completion of such codification of the general and public laws of one thousand nine hundred and forty-three, such laws, as they appear in the printed volumes of the General Statutes, shall be deemed an accurate codification of the statutes of one thousand nine hundred and forty-three contained therein."

Chapter 543 of the Session Laws of 1943 enacted many of the recommendations of the Attorney General and the Legislative Commission, and Legislative Committees, designed to clarify various statutes, and correct other defects, and these changes are reflected in the General Statutes.

Volume and Chapter Arrangement

It is clearly apparent that a one-volume code is no longer practicable because of the increase in the volume of legislation, the great increase in the size of the index, the use of much heavier paper, and the inclusion of frontal tables and additional supplemental material. After much consideration, a four-volume code was decided upon as the most practicable.

Once the idea of a one-volume code was abandoned, it became necessary to devise a new classification and arrangement of statutes since the arrangement used in the Consolidated Statutes would require in many instances that all volumes be consulted in the study of certain related statutes in different chapters. In order to avoid this inconvenience as much as possible, an effort was made to group related chapters in larger "divisions" and to place related divisions together. At the same time, it was necessary to maintain a balance so that all four volumes would be as nearly uniform in size as would be conveniently possible.

It is believed that the adopted chapter arrangement will be convenient and also allow for an expansion of the code within a basic framework.

Numbering System

The enactment of thousands of new laws since adoption of the Consolidated Statutes of 1919 made it necessary to change the section numbers in the new code. The numbering system of the Consolidated Statutes had grown unwieldy through much sub-numbering. Furthermore, adherence to the old system forestalled any improvement in the arrangement of the statutes.

The choice of a satisfactory numbering system for the new code was carefully studied. After a consideration of various systems, it was finally decided that a modified form of consecutive numbering would be the most satisfactory system to adopt, and such a system was approved by the Legislative Commission on Recodification. This system consists of: (1) numbering the chapters of the code consecutively, (2) using the chapter number as the first part of each code section number, and (3) numbering the sections in each chapter consecutively from "one" on through the end of the chapter. The code section number consists of the chapter number, a dash, and the number of the section in the chapter. This system will have two advantages. New sections may be added indefinitely at the end of each chapter without necessitating sub-numbering and disturbing the numbering system. This numbering system will readily permit the insertions of new chapters with a minimum of inconvenience and confusion in the numbering of the new sections. The old Consolidated Statutes section number has been carried forward in the citations at the end of the statutes as has been the practice heretofore in noting prior official code references. Comparative tables translating the Consolidated Statutes and Michie Code section numbers to the new code numbers are included in an appendix.

Local Laws

The recodification has been made of the "general public statutes." North Carolina has enacted a great volume of private, special and local legislation. The problem of local legislation seems to be more serious in North Carolina than in most states. The problem of the proper disposition of these laws has harassed the preparation of the General Statutes to an even greater degree than prior revisions, which have included many local laws for convenience or to fill some gap in the general laws. However, with the great increase in the volume and complexity of legislation, it was clearly apparent that to continue to include in the code statutes which are essentially local in nature (except for necessary exceptions) would result in an over-bulky code and greatly complicate the search for the general laws.
The last official revision of the statutes was that embodied in the two volumes of the Consolidated Statutes of 1919, as brought forward by the third volume in 1924. Thus, the main basis for the present work is that revision and subsequent public session laws. However, many of the statutes in the “public laws” volumes are of local application, and it was necessary to make a decision as to which statutes should be codified. It was finally decided that any statute or portion of a statute which did not affect at least 10 or more counties would not be placed in the code. All portions of the statutes or direct amendments to statutes affecting 9 counties or less have merely been cited in the first annotation paragraph following the statute and entitled “Local Modification.” Under this heading the affected counties, together with the appropriate session law or Consolidated Statutes citation, have been listed alphabetically without any attempt to summarize the provisions of the local laws modifying the general law. It was found that any attempt to analyze the exact effect of particular local provisions would often be not only misleading but inaccurate in the absence of a comprehensive study of all the vast body of local legislation appearing in the Public-Local and Private Law volumes since the vast majority of local laws do alter the general law without making direct references.

A great deal of attention has been devoted to the index in a section-by-section analysis, designed (1) to delete inapplicable index references, (2) to correct inaccurate index references, and (3) to add new index references where sections or portions of sections are found to be indexed inadequately or not at all. At the same time, index lines have been repeated as often as the limitations of space and utility permit, to the end that “Cross References” or “See” references (some of which are absolutely necessary in a code index) may be reduced to a minimum, and where they cannot be entirely eliminated, the inclusive section numbers have been listed along with the Cross Reference.

As will be noted, the index type has been increased from six point to eight point, and set in a two-column page.

Annotations

The work of preparing the annotations rested largely with the editorial staff of the publishers. The editors, in co-operation with the Division’s Codification Staff, have made an effort to provide annotations which are as complete and accurate as are necessary for an understanding of the statutes. It is believed that the proper function of the code annotations is to aid in the construction of the statutes and that the annotations should not take the scope of a general digest of case law. In an effort to provide effective annotations, various sources have been checked, including the citators, the annotations of the Consolidated Statutes of 1919, and the annotations in Pell’s Revisal of 1908. Annotations in the General Statutes begin with Volume 1 and extend through Volume 222 of the North Carolina Reports.

Additional Features

A complete table of contents is inserted at the beginning of each volume of the code and will be of considerable assistance in locating any chapter or article immediately. Frontal tables, listing the titles of each section in a chapter, are being placed at the beginning of each chapter and should be of great assistance in locating... any section desired. The code will be kept current for as long as possible by pocket supplements. The comparative tables have been expanded, and citations have been added to the State Constitution indicating the authority by which the various constitutional provisions were adopted. The appendix material has also been supplemented.

The Publisher's Editorial Staff

The publisher's editorial staff, headed by A. Hewson Michie, the Company's President, and Chas. W. Sublett, Editor-in-Chief, specially assisted by Beirne Stedman and Robert H. Davis, Jr., has cooperated fully in the preparation of this code, and, notwithstanding difficulties brought on by war conditions, has ably carried its responsibilities associated with this publication.

The Codification Staff

The staff of the Division has varied from two to five lawyers, including the director, and one secretary. The calls of the military and naval services and the opportunities for advancement elsewhere have resulted in many changes in personnel since the work was first begun. During this time the following persons have served on the legal staff: Moses B. Gillam, Jr., Cornelia McKimmon Trott, James E. Tucker, Carmon Stuart, John Lawrence, Harry W. McGalliard, James B. McMillan, Kemp Yarborough, J. B. Bilisoly, Sarah Starr Gillam, Junius D. Grimes, Jr., Joseph B. Cheshire, IV, Catherine Paschal and Joel Denton; and the following persons have served as secretaries: Minerva Coppage, Marjorie Mann and Effie McLean English. All of them have given loyal and diligent service. Grateful acknowledgment is made to them for their labors which were both extensive and difficult.

When W. J. Adams, Jr., was named Assistant Attorney General in October, 1941, Harry W. McGalliard was appointed Director of the Division. Mr. Adams continued to assist in the supervision of the recodification work. Mr. McGalliard has continued to serve as Director until the present. He has personally done the important job of revising the index.

Continuous Revision

The General Assembly of 1943 enacted Chapter 382 of the Session Laws, which provides in part as follows:

"In order that the laws of North Carolina, as set out in the General Statutes of North Carolina, may be made and kept as simple, as clear, as concise and as complete as possible, and in order that the amount of construction and interpretation of the statutes required of the courts may be reduced to a minimum, it shall also be the duty of the Division of Legislative Drafting and Codification of Statutes to establish and maintain a system of continuous statute research and correction. To that end the Division shall:

1. Make a systematic study of the general statutes of the State, as set out in the General Statutes and as hereafter enacted by the General Assembly, for the purpose of ascertaining what ambiguities, conflicts, duplications and other imperfections of form and expression exist therein and how these defects may be corrected."
“2. Consider such suggestions as may be submitted to the Division with respect to the existence of such defects and the proper correction thereof.

“3. Prepare for submission to the General Assembly from time to time bills to correct such defects in the statutes as its research discloses.”

By Joint Resolution No. 23, the General Assembly of 1943 created a Commission on Statutory Revision, consisting of Senators Irving E. Carlyle, Brandon P. Hodges, D. E. Hudgins, Wade B. Matheny and K. A. Pittman; and Representatives Oscar G. Barker, Frank W. Hancock, Jr., A. I. Ferree, Bryan Grimes, W. I. Halstead, Robert Moseley and Kerr Craige Ramsey, “to cooperate with the Attorney General and the Division of Legislative Drafting and Codification of Statutes in the study of the recommendations of the Division with respect to desirable clarifying statutes and the preparation of such proposed statutes for submission to the General Assembly of 1945.”

The General Assembly, by this Act and Resolution, laid the foundation for a system of continuous statutory revision in North Carolina similar to systems that have been inaugurated in some of the other states with much success.

The purpose of this system is to provide an agency which will continuously study the statutory law of the State, and prepare recommendations to successive General Assemblies in the form of revision bills for the elimination of statutory defects as soon as possible after their appearance, and thus to avoid, or at least postpone, the necessity of the periodical bulk revisions that have heretofore been necessary.

Supplements

Under the contract with the publishers, the General Statutes will be kept current by use of cumulative pocket supplements for as long as possible and a minimum period of eight years, before any other edition can be published. The publishers will issue these supplements within six months of each regular or extra session of the General Assembly, and they will contain complete annotations and indexes. Each six months after the publication of the General Statutes, the publishers have agreed to issue interim annotation supplements, containing all pertinent annotations since the publication of the General Statutes or the last supplement, all of which will be done under the supervision of the Department of Justice.

Harry McMullan,
Attorney General.

PREAMBLE
We, the people of the State of North Carolina, grateful to Almighty God, the Sovereign ruler of nations, for the preservation of the American Union and the existence of our civil, political and religious liberties, and acknowledging our dependence upon Him for the continuance of those blessings to us and our posterity, do for the more certain security thereof, and for the better government of this State, ordain and establish this Constitution: (Const. 1868.)

ARTICLE I
Declaration of Rights
That the great, general and essential principles of liberty and free government may be recognized and established, and that the relations of this State to the Union and Government of the United States, and those of the people of this State to the rest of the American people, may be defined and affirmed, we do declare:

§ 1. The equality and rights of men.—That we hold it to be self-evident that all men are created equal; that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights; that among these are life, liberty, the enjoyment of the fruits of their own labor, and the pursuit of happiness. (Const. 1868.)

"Liberty" Qualified by Common Law Doctrines.—It is a recognized principle that personal liberty is a constitutional right, and any act of Assembly which violates this right is not the law of the land and would be void by Art. I, sec. 17, of the Constitution. However, the meaning of general expression such as "liberty" is qualified by the doctrines of the common law, and which as modified to suit our institutions, have been held a part of the law of this state. London v. Headen, 76 N. C. 72, 73, 75.

Same—Penalty for Refusing to Accept Office.—It is a doctrine of the common law that every citizen in peace, as well as in war, owes his services to the state when they are demanded, and a legislative enactment prescribing a penalty of $25 against any person who is duly elected or appointed to an armed force and refuses to serve is not unconstitutional. State v. Headen, 76 N. C. 72, 73, 75.

Occupational Qualifications.—While the legislature, in the exercise of the police power, may protect the public against insurance fraud and oppressive practices by establishing standards of personal fitness and requiring the examination and licensing of those desiring to engage in the learned professions and occupations requiring scientific or technical knowledge or skill, or which involve a trust relationship with the public, it may not impose such restrictions upon those wishing to engage in the ordinary trades or occupations which are harmless in themselves, since the right to choose and pursue a means of livelihood is a property right and a personal liberty guaranteed by the constitution, which right may be interfered with only when necessary to the protection of the public safety or welfare. State v. Harris, 216 N. C. 746, 6 S. E. (2d) 854, 128 A. L. R. 658.

Exercise of Police Power Not Unlimited.—Compulsory vaccination is a valid exercise of governmental police power for the protection of health and safety, and if there are exceptional cases, where owing to the peculiar state of the health or system, vaccination would be dangerous, then the legislature cannot validly compel the person to submit to such practice against his will since this would be in violation of the rights recognized by this section as pre-existing and inherent in the individual. State v. Hay, 126 N. C. 296, 1006, 55 S. E. 600; see also State v. Headen, 76 N. C. 72, 73, 75.

The statute regulating the practice of photography, codified as § 92-1 et seq., does not violate this section, nor deprive any person of fundamental, inalienable rights under art. I, §§ 17, 29, nor create a monopoly in contravention of art. I, § 31. State v. Lawrence, 213 N. C. 674, 197 S. E. 586, 116 A. L. R. 1366.

§ 2. Political power and government.—That all political power is vested in, and derived from, the people; all government of right originates from the people, is founded upon their will only, and is instituted solely for the good of the whole. (Const. 1868.)

In General.—In construing the provisions of the constitution in regard to elections (see Art. VI, sec. 1) it should be kept in mind that this is a government of the people in which the majority—legally expressed, must govern and that these provisions should be liberally construed, that tend to promote a fair election, or expression of this popular will. Quinn v. Lattimore, 120 N. C. 426, 429, 55 S. E. 659.

Repeal of Laws.—It is axiomatic that since all political power is derived from the people and all government originates from them, the sovereign power of the people, expressed through their choice of representatives in the General Assembly, is supreme, and a law by them enacted may not be set aside by the courts unless it contravenes some prohibition or mandate of the Constitution by which the people of the state have been elected to be limited and restrained, or unless it violates some provision of the granted powers of Federal Government contained in the Constitution of the United States. State v. Warren, 211 N. C. 75, 80, 189 S. E. 108.

§ 3. Internal government of the State.—That the people of this State have the inherent, sole and exclusive right of regulating the internal and governmental and police thereof, and of altering and abolishing their Constitution and form of government whenever it may be necessary to their safety and happiness; but every such right should be exercised in pursuance of law, and consistently with the Constitution of the United States. (Const. 1868.)

Duty to Follow Decisions of Supreme Court.—It is the duty of the Supreme Court of the state to follow the decisions of the Supreme Court of the United States, upon questions involved in interstate commerce where Congress has assumed control of the matter relating thereto, and involved in the litigation. Norris v. Telegraph Co., 174 N. C. 92, 91 S. E. 465. But in intrastate cases, the decisions of the state Supreme Court are binding and will be followed in the U. S. Supreme Court though they appear "absurd and illogical." Id.

Regulation of Criminal Practice. — The legislature has power to shape the criminal procedure of the state to provide remedies required by the exigencies of the present time. State v. Lewis, 142 N. C. 626, 628, 55 S. E. 600. See also Roman v. Mekas, 211 N. C. 412, 189 S. E. 790.

§ 4. That there is no right to secede.—That this State shall ever remain a member of the American Union; that the people thereof are a part of the American nation; that there is no right on the part of this State to secede, and that all attempts, from whatever source or upon whatever pretext, to dissolve said Union or to sever said nation, ought to be resisted with the whole power of the State. (Const. 1865.)

§ 5. Of allegiance to the United States Government.—That every citizen of this State owes paramount allegiance to the Constitution and Government of the United States, and that no law or ordinance of the State in contravention or subversion thereof can have any binding force. (Const. 1868.)

§ 6. Public debt; bonds issued under ordinance of Convention of 1868, '68-'69, '89-'70, declared invalid; exception. — The State shall never assume or pay, or authorize the collection of any debt or obligation, express or implied, incurred in aid of insurrection or rebellion against the United States, or any claim for the loss or emancipation of any slave; nor shall the General As-
Assemble and within the power of a city or town to provide, by contract with the vendors, with reasonable charges for the stalls. State v. Perry, 151 N. C. 661, 65 S. E. 915.

Regulation as to Maintenance of Market House.—It is within the power of a city or town to provide, by contract with the vendors, with reasonable charges for the stalls. State v. Perry, 151 N. C. 661, 65 S. E. 915.

Regulation as to Practice of Medicine.—An act prohibiting the practice of medicine by persons who are not licensed to practice in the State is not an unreasonable or arbitrary restraint of the public liberty or property, but is a regulation of a subject which comes within the police power of the State. State v. St. George, 147 N. C. 88, 60 S. E. 920.

Regulation as to Pilots.—The selection by a commission authorized to conduct examinations for pilots is a matter of public interest and within the power of the State to control. State v. McFadden, 217 N. C. 575, 279, 182 S. E. 453, dissenting opinion of Justice Bynum.

This section is a fundamental democratic principle of "equal rights and opportunities to all, special privileges to none." It is a protection of the individual against the injustice of the public, and is a safeguard against the exercise of which is for the benefit and good of the public.

Purpose.—In summarizing the purpose of this section the court in Simonton v. Lanier, 71 N. C. 498, 501, speaking through Justice Byrd, says: "The wisdom and foresight of our ancestors is nowhere more clearly shown than in this section of the Constitution of 1868. The framers of that instrument were alive to the fact that the individual is entitled, and is entitled to, certain immunities not accorded to those who must, under the law, pay the additional exaction or quit the business. State v. Harris, 216 N. C. 746, 753, 6 S. E. (2d) 24, 854, 128 A. L. R. 837.

Benefits received by State employees under the Retirement Fund are deferred payments of salary for services rendered, and are not therefore income as under the Constitution of 1868. Bridges v. Charlotte, 221 N. C. 472, 20 S. E. (2d) 825.

Public Service Corporations.—The grant of a special charter to a railroad or other like corporation is not in contravention of this section of the Constitution of 1868, provided that the grant is in the interest of the public welfare and is made for the purpose of providing for the public's convenience, comfort, and safety. Kornegay v. Goldsboro, 180 N. C. 441, 451, 103 S. E. 187.

Private Corporations.—A provision in a charter of a warehouse corporation to the effect that such corporation shall not be liable for loss or damages not provided for in its warehouse receipt or contract, attempts to confer exclusive privileges and is therefore unconstitutional under this section. Molley v. Warehouse Co., 122 N. C. 347, 30 S. E. J.; Massey v. Finishing Co., 124 N. C. 124, 50 S. E. 479.

A provision in a bank's charter allowing it to charge more than the legal rate of interest is void under this section of the Constitution, where no public services are rendered in consideration of the grant. Simonton v. Lanier, 71 N. C. 498, 501.

A local public law which provides that the provisions of § 44-14, should be read into private construction bonds, is a rewriting of the Constitution, and constitutes an attempt to make the Constitution fail to operate uniformly and equally in giving special privilege to the residents of the particular county, and imposing heavier burdens on certain sureties. Plott Co. v. Ferguson Co., 202 N. C. 446, 163 S. E. 688.

Public Local Law as to Sale of Claims against Closed Banks Held Invalid.—Public Local Laws and § 53-19, providing that depositors of certain closed banks might sell their claims for deposits to persons indebted to the banks at the date of the closing, and that the liquidation agents of such banks should be authorized to sell such claims at an appraised value, or in payment of the purchasers' debts to the banks, were held unconstitutional and void, being in violation of this section, in Edgerton v. Hood, 205 N. C. 886, 172 S. E. 481.

Regulation as to Maintenance of Market House.—It is within the power of a city or town to provide, by contract with the vendors, with reasonable charges for the stalls. State v. Perry, 151 N. C. 661, 65 S. E. 915.

Regulation as to Practice of Medicine.—An act prohibiting the practice of medicine by persons who are not licensed to practice in the State is not an unreasonable or arbitrary restraint of the public liberty or property, but is a regulation of a subject which comes within the police power of the State. State v. St. George, 147 N. C. 88, 60 S. E. 920.

Regulation as to Pilots.—The selection by a commission authorized to conduct examinations for pilots is a matter of public interest and within the power of the State to control. State v. McFadden, 217 N. C. 575, 279, 182 S. E. 453, dissenting opinion of Justice Bynum.

Any law which, purporting to operate on a particular class, places upon those engaged in the business in a portion of the state a burden for the privilege which is exercised freely and without additional charge by those engaged in the business in other parts of the state is arbitrary in classification because it discriminates within the class originally selected and extends to the latter a privilege not accorded to those who must, under the law, pay the additional exaction or quit the business. State v. Harris, 216 N. C. 746, 753, 6 S. E. (2d) 24, 854, 128 A. L. R. 837.
§ 8. The legislative, executive, and judicial powers distinct.—The legislative, executive, and judicial powers of the government ought to be forever separate and distinct from each other. (Const. 1868.)

See § 1-97 and notes. Generally.—Each of these coordinate departments has its appropriate functions, and one cannot control the action of the other, in the sphere of its constitutional power and duty. State v. Jordan, 125 N. C. 378; Person v. Tax Com'rs, 184 N. C. 499, 115 S. E. 336. This section has been said to embody succinctly the judgment of the people of North Carolina in regard to "the great and essential principle of the separation of the powers of the government and the judiciary—the department of trial and judgment—and the legislature is not violative of our Constitution. O'Neal v. Mann, 193 N. C. 153, 136 S. E. 379. The creation of a board or municipal corporation and the conferring upon such board or municipal corporation quasi-judicial and administrative functions does not violate this section. Cox v. Kinston, 217 N. C. 391, 1 S. E. (2d) 232.

Statute authorizing the industrial commission to award compensation for bodily disfigurement is not unconstitutional as a delegation of legislative power incontro—vention of this section. Baxter v. Arthur Co., 216 N. C. 276, 281, 4 S. E. (2d) 621.

The propriety of ordering sales of lands upon petition of the owner is purely a judicial duty and any private act of the General Assembly attempting to regulate the same is void under this section. Miller v. Alexander, 122 N. C. 718, 20 S. E. 125.

Where Office Created by Legislature.—It is competent for the legislature in creating an office, other than purely judicial, to vest the right to call the officer to account in the governor to suspend, the incumbent of the office. Caldwell v. Wilson, 121 N. C. 425, 23 S. E. 554.

Creation of Board with Quasi-Judicial Functions.—The creation by the legislature of a board or municipal corporation and the conferring upon such board or municipal corporation quasi-judicial and administrative functions does not violate this provision. Cox v. Kinston, 217 N. C. 391, 1 S. E. (2d) 232.

Court Practice Regulated by Judicial Department.—Under the present constitution, the supreme judicial power being independent of the other departments, the legislature cannot prescribe rules of practice for the Supreme Court, nevertheless, the courts have copied, almost verbatim, the provisions of the Code. Bird v. Gilliam, 125 N. C. 76, 79, 34 S. E. 196; Hierdon v. Insurance Co., 111 N. C. 384, 16 S. E. 465. And where there is conflict, the rules made by the court will be observed, Cooper v. Com'r, 184 N. C. 615; 113 S. E. 569. However, Art. 4, sec. 12 of the constitution gives to the General Assembly power to regulate proceedings in courts inferior thereto, Art. IV, § 2, a statute declaring that the decisions of the General Assembly shall not be reviewed. State v. Ward, 184 N. C. 658, 113 S. E. 275.

Judicial Power as Aid to Legislative Act.—The judicial power can not be exercised in aid of an unfinished and incomplete act of the legislature, any more than in obstructing legislative action. State v. Robinson, 81 N. C. 409, 436.

Power of County to Apply Formula for Ascertaining Taxable Property.—Plaintiff county ascertained the amount of personal property of defendant nonresident corporation having a "business situs" in this state, and liable for taxation as solvent credits by the county, by ascertaining the total assets of the defendant and the percentage of such assets found in the county, and allowing the same per cent of its total liabilities to be deducted therefrom. Defendant complained that defendant county had made its own rule in ascertaining the solvent credits in the county subject to taxation in violation of this section, but since defendant failed to list its solvent credits for taxation as required by law, it was not prejudiced by the formula used by the county in ascertaining the personal property for taxation as determined by the county. Mecklenburg County v. Sterchi Bros. Stores, 210 N. C. 79, 185 S. E. 779.

The creation of the Mattamuskeet Drainage District by the legislature is not violative of our Constitution. O'Neal v. Mann, 193 N. C. 153, 136 S. E. 379. The creation of a board or municipal corporation and the conferring upon such board or municipal corporation quasi-judicial and administrative functions does not violate this section. Cox v. Kinston, 217 N. C. 391, 1 S. E. (2d) 232.

As to counsel, see § 15-4 and notes.

§ 9. Of the power of suspending laws.—All power of suspending laws, or the execution of laws, by any authority, without the consent of the representatives of the people, is injurious to their rights, and ought not to be exercised. (Const. 1868.)

§ 10. Elections free.—All elections ought to be free. (Const. 1868)

§ 11. In criminal prosecutions.—In all criminal prosecutions every man has the right to be informed of the accusation against him and to confront the accusers and witnesses with other testimony, and to have counsel for his defense, and not be compelled to give evidence against himself, or to pay costs, jail fees, or necessary witness fees of the defense, unless found guilty. (Const. 1868.)

As to counsel, see §§ 15-4 and notes. For article discussing the limits to confrontation, see 15 N. C. Law Rev., No. 3, p. 229.
tution does not require that the accused be informed of the charge against him in any special form or particular words, except as required by the constitutional provision. Carpenter, 173 N. C. 767, 92 S. E. 371; State v. Gibson, 109 N. C. 318, 35 S. E. 7. As to necessity for indictment, see N. C. Const., Art. I, sec. 12, and note thereto.

Defendants having been charged with a criminal offense has had sentence suspended upon condition that he appear at certain times in court and show good behavior, it is required that a judgment rendered in his favor or time find the proceedings had and imposed upon the findings of a criminal offense the defendant is found to have committed, in order to show that the defendant is entitled to be proceeded against in coram necessary, and must be present before the jury and accused, so that he may have the right to be informed of the accusation against him. State v. Mickey, 207 N. C. 608, 609, 175 S. E. 220.

Defendants have a constitutional right of confrontation, which cannot lawfully be taken from them, and this includes the right to a fair opportunity to face "the accusers and witnesses with other testimony." State v. Garner, 203 N. C. 361, 166 S. E. 180.

While this section gives to the accused the right to confront witnesses against him, this right does not mean that he shall be able to confront witnesses not only from their own veracity, but only by a duly authenticated copy of a record. State v. Dowdy, 145 N. C. 432, 58 S. E. 1022.

This right guaranteed by this section does not mean that never under any circumstances shall a criminal charge be prosecuted except by the presence of living witnesses. Id. Statute which establishes a form for a bill of indictment for incriminating testimony of defendant's physical condition by witnesses who examined her without his presence in the course of business, upon the books of a railroad company by one at the time an agent of the company, and still living, does not preclude testimony by a witness as to facts incurred during defendant's testimony in the relative position to a witness as the perpetrator was. State v. Greening, 194 N. C. 271, 139 S. E. 436.

A charge to the jury which virtually puts the defendant upon trial for an additional offense to that named in the bill of indictment, and other than that in this section, does not preclude testimony by a witness as to facts incurred during defendant's testimony in the relative position to a witness as the perpetrator was. State v. Gooding, 194 N. C. 271, 139 S. E. 436.

Where a defendant convicted of a criminal offense has been informed of the offense before sentence, the conclusion reached in this state is that the prisoner does not have to accompany the jury when it views the scene of the crime. Apparently the right to have the jury not present is never been raised in this state. 12 N. C. Law Rev., 268.

Same—Deposition.—Depositions taken in the absence of a criminal cannot be read against him. State v. Webb, 2 N. C. 103.

Same—Waiver of Right.—The accused has the right to insist upon the production of his accusers but this is a right which may be waived by a failure to assert it in proper time. State v. Mitchell, 119 N. C. 784, 25 S. E. 783, 1020. The right must be insisted upon in express terms and a general objection to the evidence is not sufficient. Id.

The right of a defendant to confront his accusers includes the right not to be cross-examined on his examinations in their examination-in-chief, and a witness testifying to facts inculpatory defendant in his examination-in-chief does not preclude testimony by a witness as to facts incurred during defendant on the ground that questions asked on cross-examination might tend to incriminate the witness. State v. Perry, 210 N. C. 796, 188 S. E. 619.

Self-Incrimination—Scope of Protection.—For fair interpretation of the clause that "shall not be compelled to give evidence against himself" seems to be to secure one who is or may be accused of crime from making any voluntary revealing which may be given in evidence to convict him, the jury for his trial for the offense. LaFontaine v. Southern Underwriters, 83 N. C. 131, 138.

This immunity extends, not only to one who actually testifies as a witness, but to the defense of the matters charged, even though he decline to testify as a witness in his own behalf. State v. Hollingsworth, 191 N. C. 595, 132 S. E. 667.

As to witness testifying to any unlawful gaming done by himself or others, see section 5-55 and note thereto. Upon the trial of the defendant for violating the prohibition law the introduction in evidence of testimony of the officer making the arrest that he found a half-gallon jar of liquor on the person of the defendant is competent, and is not in violation of the constitutional provision that a defendant may not be compelled to give evidence against himself. State v. Odle, 205 N. C. 592, 173 S. E. 9.

The constitutional guarantee that a defendant shall not be compelled to testify against himself, as provided by this section, does not preclude testimony by a witness as to facts inculpatory defendant in his examination in-chief, and not preclude testimony by a witness as to facts incurred during defendant's testimony in the relative position to a witness as the perpetrator was. Smith v. Riddle, 205 N. C. 591, 172 S. E. 400.

The admission of incriminating testimony of defendant's physical condition by witnesses who examined her without his presence does not violate defendant's constitutional right not to be compelled to give evidence against himself, as provided in this section. State v. Eccles, 205 N. C. 825, 172 S. E. 415.

Whenever the defendant in a criminal action voluntarily testifies in his own defense he assumes the position of a witness and subjects himself to the discovery of the facts upon which a sentence has been imposed and specify the persons upon trial for an additional offense to that named in the bill of indictment, and other than that in this section, does not preclude testimony by a witness as to facts incurred during defendant's testimony in the relative position to a witness as the perpetrator was. State v. O'Neal, 187 N. C. 22, 23, 120 S. E. 436.

In Smith v. Smith, 116 N. C. 386, 21 S. E. 196, it was held that the true intent and meaning of this article is that the witness shall not be compelled to answer any question, the answer to which would disclose a fact which forms an essential link in the chain of testimony which in some manner connects him with the crime, and which tends to prove guilt. State v. Faircloth, delivering the opinion, said: "We think the provision of our Constitution ought to be liberally construed to preserve personal rights and protect the citizen from having the right to be informed of the accusation against him. State v. Mickey, 198 N. C. 45, 46, 150 S. E. 615.

The constitutional guarantee that a defendant shall not be compelled to testify against himself, as provided by this section, does not preclude testimony by a witness as to facts inculpatory defendant in his examination in-chief, and not preclude testimony by a witness as to facts incurred during defendant's testimony in the relative position to a witness as the perpetrator was. State v. Odle, 205 N. C. 592, 173 S. E. 9.

The admission of incriminating testimony of defendant's physical condition by witnesses who examined her without his presence does not violate defendant's constitutional right not to be compelled to give evidence against himself, as provided in this section. State v. Eccles, 205 N. C. 825, 172 S. E. 415.

Whenever the defendant in a criminal action voluntarily testifies in his own defense he assumes the position of a witness and subjects himself to the discovery of the facts upon which a sentence has been imposed and specify the persons.
against himself in denial of his constitutional rights. State v. Neville, 175 N. C. 731, 95 S. E. 55.

Same—Examination of Blood of Accused.—Where defendant expressed the intention of the homicide due to the continued use of liquor and opiates, and the record failed to show any compulsion on the part of the officers in obtaining specimens of defendant's blood and urine in order to determine the presence of any foreign substance, and where defendant's morphine was in his system, it was held that defendant's contention that the obtaining of the specimens compelled him to give evidence against himself, in violation of this section, was untenable. State v. Cash, 219 N. C. 818, 15 S. E. (2d) 277.

Same—Demonstration of Act of Killing.—Upon trial for murder in the first degree when there is other circumstantial evidence to impinge the provisions of this section of the Constitution. State v. Hickey, 198 N. C. 45, 46, 150 S. E. 615.

Same—Forced Production of Incriminating Documents Not Allowed.—The protection afforded to defendants in criminal action by this section is a matter of absolute right to them, and the taking of any incriminating documents by the officer may immediately arrest and search such person, and conceivably on his person and reasonably giving the impres- sion that the obtaining of the specimens compelled him to give evidence against himself, in violation of this section, was untenable. State v. Hickey, 198 N. C. 45, 46, 150 S. E. 615.

Same—Waiver of Privilege.—The defendant waives his constitutional privilege not to answer questions tending to incriminate himself when he voluntarily testifies in his own behalf. State v. Carden, 209 N. C. 404, 183 S. E. 898.

Same—Defendant Voluntarily Taking Stand.—See section 8-54 and notes thereto.

Must Have Opportunity to Prepare and Present Defense. —The constitutional right of a defendant in a criminal prosecution to confront his accusers and adverse witnesses with other testimony, as provided by this section, includes the right to a fair opportunity to prepare and present his defenses, which right must be accorded him not only in formal examinations but in substance as well. State v. Whitfield, 206 N. C. 696, 175 S. E. 93.

Arrest and Search of Person Suspected of Carrying In- criminating Evidence.—In the examination of a person with a mobile with his appearance indicating that he had something concealed on his person and reasonably giving the impression that the person was carrying intoxicating liquor, the officer may immediately arrest and search such person, and where a half-gallon of liquor is found on the person of the defendant the action of the officer does not violate the provisions of this section. State v. Hickey, 198 N. C. 45, 46, 150 S. E. 615.

Payment of Witnesses' Fees Not Placed on Public.—This provision, exempting an acquitted defendant from payment of witnesses' fees by reason of the fact that they shall be paid by the public; the section operates only to deprive the witnesses of their common law right to look to the defendant for payment. State v. Hicks, 124 N. C. 829, 32 S. E. 957.

Private Counsel May Assist Solicitor in Trial of Case.—The trial court has discretionary power to allow private counsel to assist the solicitor in the trial of a case, in being the court of the duty to permit only such assistance as fairness and justice may require, and such power does not impair the provisions of this section of the Constitution. State v. Goff, 203 N. C. 545, 552, 172 S. E. 407.

§ 12. Answers to criminal charges.—No person shall be put to answer any criminal charge except as hereinafter allowed, but by indictment, presentment, or impeachment. (Const. 1868.)

Generally.—The words "except as hereinafter allowed" have reference to the last clause of section 13, and are intended to harmonize the two sections and let both operate. State v. Crook, 91 N. C. 535, 540.

These principles are dear to every free man; they are held sacred and inviolable by the constitutions of the several states and the Constitution of the United States, and they are the corner-stones of our civil liberty; they are declared to be the rights of the citizens of North Carolina and ought to be maintained with vigilance. State v. Snipes, 165 N. C. 745, 748, 117 S. E. 500.

A justice of the peace has no jurisdiction of an assault with a deadly weapon except to bind the defendant over, and by the provisions of this section, he is not required to try to recite to trial only upon indictment duly found and returned, the words in this section "except as hereinafter allowed" referring to the latter clause of section 13 relating to trial after indictment. State v. Snipes, 185 N. C. 743, 748, 117 S. E. 500.

The word "indictment" means indictment by a grand jury as defined by the common law. State v. Mitchell, 207 N. C. 439, 445, 163 S. E. 91.

Necessity for Order for Grand Jury During Special Term. —Where defendant is tried at a special term of criminal court upon an indictment returned by a grand jury drawn for the special term, but there is no order by the Governor that a grand jury be drawn from such term, as provided by § 7-78, defendant's motion in arrest of judgment, made before the trial, and the order of the court upon an application therefor, was not a true bill when it was made the first time in the Supreme Court upon appeal. State v. Bell, 208 N. C. 90, 179 S. E. 450. See State v. Boykin, 211 N. C. 407, 191 S. E. 18.

The word "indictment" means indictment by a grand jury as defined by the common law. State v. Mitchell, 207 N. C. 439, 445, 163 S. E. 91.

Effect of Invalid Indictment.—When the indictment charging defendant with the commission of crime is invalid, defendant's motion to dismiss the action for want of jurisdiction should be allowed. State v. Beasley, 208 N. C. 318, 180 S. E. 39.

Stated in State v. Shive, 222 N. C. 237, 22 S. E. (2d) 447; State v. Johnson, 220 N. C. 773, 18 S. E. (2d) 358 (dis. op.).

§ 13. Right of jury.—No person shall be convicted of any crime but by the unanimous verdict of a jury of good and lawful men in open court. The Legislature may, however, provide other means of trial for petty misdemeanors, with the right of appeal. (Const. 1868.)

For general provisions as to jurors, see sec. 9-1 et seq.

The essential distribution of the jury guaranteed by this section, are the number of jurors, their impartiality and a unanimous verdict, and § 9-21, providing that the jury upon the selection of an alternate juror in those cases which seem likely to be protracted, does not infringe upon this constitutional provision. State v. Dalton, 206 N. C. 775, 171 S. E. 541 (1935).

Unanimous Verdict Required.—A verdict of guilty rendered by a less number than twelve is unconstitutional. State v. Berry, 190 N. C. 363, 130 S. E. 12. The verdict must be considered as a "true bill" only when given by a jury of twelve, even when the judge presides. State v. Bates, 193 N. C. 336, 137 S. E. 172.

The defendant is entitled as a matter of right to know whether each juror asstent to the verdict, announced by the juror who considered the evidence, and whether that end he had the right to insist that a specific question be addressed to and answered by each juror in open court. Whether each juror asstent to the verdict. State v. Boger, 202 N. C. 702, 704, 163 S. E. 877.

Poll of Jury.—The predominant purpose of the poll is to ascertain if the verdict as tendered by the jury is the "unanimous verdict of a jury of good and lawful men in open court," as prescribed by this section. Lipscomb v. Cox, 195 N. C. 502, 505, 146 S. E. 779. See Art. I, § 12, supra.

Jury Trial Preserved on Appeal.—The right of a trial by jury in a criminal action is preserved to the accused by the statutory provision after entry of a trial de novo in the Superior Court, or appeal from a court of subordinate jurisdiction, and conviction in the Superior Court cannot be had unless upon the verdict of the jury, in accordance with the provisions of this section of our Constitution. State v. Pulliam, 184 N. C. 681, 114 S. E. 394.

Jury Trial Not Waivable.—A jury trial cannot be waived in a criminal action; hence where the facts are of such a nature as to permit him to do so by statute, and where the court, after a plea of "Not Guilty," finds the defendant guilty without a jury trial, the judgment will be stricken out and the cause remanded. State v. Hartsfield, 188 N. C. 516. See also, State v. Mose, 219 N. C. 226, 13 S. E. (2d) 229.

When a defendant in a criminal prosecution in the superior court enters a plea of not guilty he may not, without changing his plea, waive his constitutional right of trial by jury, and the determinative facts cannot be referred to the decision of the court even by consent, but must be found by the jury. State v. Mose, 219 N. C. 226, 13 S. E. (2d) 229.

Miscellaneous Cases.—The North Carolina Workmen's Compensation Act was held not to be unconstitutional for that it impaired the right of trial by jury, guaranteed by this section, in Southern Public Utilities Co. v. 204 N. C. 155, 156, 167 S. E. 560.

For case of emergency, such as illness of juror, see State v. Wheeler, 185 N. C. 670, 673, 116 S. E. 413; denial of partnership, see Southgate Packing Co. v. Ne (C; 1621s S. ees: '205.

Assault and battery is not a petty misdemeanor within the proviso to this section. See State v. Stewart, 89 N. C. 563. As to waiver in civil cases, see section 1-84 and notes thereto.

Jury Trial Can Not Be Waived after Plea of Not Guilty.—A defendant in a criminal prosecution for a felony or a misdemeanor may not waive his constitutional right to trial by jury in the Superior Court after entering a plea of "Not guilty," without changing his plea, nor may the General Assembly permit him to do so by statute, and where the court, after a plea of "Not Guilty," finds the defendant guilty without a jury trial, the judgment will be stricken out and the cause remanded. State v. Hartsfield, 188 N. C. 516. See also, State v. Mose, 219 N. C. 226, 13 S. E. (2d) 229.

Separate Provisions for Petty Misdemeanors.—The very purpose of conferring on the legislative power to provide means of trial other than by jury in the ordinary way, as to petty misdemeanors, is to avoid the inconvenience, expense and delay attendant upon indictment by the grand jury, the trial by the jury where the parties choose to waive it, in the ordinary course of criminal procedure. State v. Crook, 91 N. C. 536, 540. See State v. Boykin, 211 N. C. 407, 191 S. E. 18.

The legislature has power to designate the unlawful possessor of historically prohibited intoxicants a petty misdemeanor and to provide means of trial for the offense other than by indictment and trial by jury. State v. King, 222 N. C. 227, 22 S. E. (3d) 447.

Under this section indictment by grand jury is dispensed with in the trial of petty misdemeanors. State v. Lyle, 138 N. C. 738, 51 S. E. 66.

Same—Right of Appeal.—The right of appeal mentioned in the last section of this section, to the Superior Court, in cases of conviction of petty misdemeanors, is to be held to affect legislative enactments as well. State v. Driver, supra; cited and approved in State v. Reid, 106 N. C. 714, 716, 11 S. E. 315.

It is well settled that when no time is fixed by the statute, an imprisonment for two years or more is cruel and unusual. State v. Farrington, 141 N. C. 844, 53 S. E. 954, citing State v. Driver, 78 N. C. 423; State v. Smith, 174 N. C. 804, 93 S. E. 910.

The effect of punishment is left to the sound discretion of the court, the court is limited only by the prohibition against cruel or unusual punishment in this section. State v. Richardson, 221 N. C. 209, 211, 19 S. E. (2d) 746. See supra.

It is well settled that when no time is fixed by statute, this court will not hold imprisonment for two years cruel and unusual. State v. Moschoures, 214 N. C. 321, 322, 199 N. C. 193, 224 S. E. 137.
Defendant’s contention that he was subjected to cruel and unusual punishment in that the trial court sentenced him to the maximum prison term permitted by statute for the offense of seduction of which he was convicted, and in addition dictated a letter to the parole commissioner in which he requested that no clemency be extended defendant, and also directed the solicitor to institute prosecution against defendant for failure to support his illegitimate child, rests in cases of fraud, section 1-410, par. 4, and notes thereto.

But costs of prosecution against a prosecutor (upon acquittal of the accused or nolle prosequi entered), or against the accused upon a verdict of guilty, or a fine imposed, does not constitute a debt within the meaning of this section of the Constitution, and hence the defendant may be imprisoned for non-payment of the same. State v. Wallin, 89 N. C. 578, 579. See section 4-65. Nor is the duty of maintaining a bastard child imposed upon the father, such a debt as is contemplated by this section. State v. Palin, 63 N. C. 472, 127 S. E. 248, cited and approved in State v. Beasley, 75 N. C. 211, 212.

Art. I, § 18

CONSTITUTION OF NORTH CAROLINA

§ 18. Persons restrained of liberty.—Every person restrained of his liberty is entitled to a remedy to inquire into the lawfulness thereof, and to remove the same, if unlawful; and such restrained person may not be held to answer for any offense until the right to a trial by jury in the matter be determined, and the case is excluded from the administration of the criminal law, and is committed to the superior court for trial, as provided by law. This section guarantees the right of trial by jury in "controversies at law regarding property," in all controversies at law respecting property, and to remove the same, if unlawful; and such restraint of liberty to inquire into the lawfulness thereof, and to remove the same, if unlawful; and such restraining order or any of the rights of the people, and ought to remain sacred and inviolable. (Const. 1868.)

§ 19. Controversies at law respecting property.—In all controversies at law respecting property, the ancient mode of trial by jury is one of the best securities of the rights of the people, and ought to remain sacred and inviolable. (Const. 1868.)

Cross Reference.—As to waiver of jury trial see section 1-128 and note thereof.

This section guarantees the right of trial by jury in "controversies at law regarding property," includes equitable and legal elements involved in the determination of the trial of a cause, but it is not required that a trial by jury be had at each stage of the proceedings when this right has elsewhere therein been properly safeguarded by statute. Commissioners v. George, 180 N. C. 571, 109 S. E. 568.

Every litigant has the constitutional right of trial by jury unless he voluntarily waives it, and, in case of a compulsory reference made to facilitate the trial of a cause, he can require the referee and pointing out the findings so expected to be made a part of the record and to be the basis of the findings. Commissioners v. George, 182 N. C. 414, 417, 109 S. E. 568.

Whenever there is more than a scintilla of evidence to sustain the allegations of the complaint, the case must be submitted to the jury, its sufficiency to warrant a verdict for plaintiff being for the determination of the court, subject merely to disciplinary power of the trial court to set the verdict aside in proper cases, and a strict adherence to this rule is necessary to preserve the right of trial by jury guaranteed under this section. Fox v. Asheville Army Store, 215 N. C. 187, 1 S. E. (2d) 550.

Right to a jury trial is guaranteed by this section, and where the parties do not consent to trial by the court, it may not determine, prior to the introduction of evidence, an issue of fact joined by the pleadings. Horsley Corp. v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 207 N. C. 122, 176 S. E. 265. The refusal of the court to refer the issue involved to the jury by proper authority of this section of the Constitution. McDowell v. Norfolk Southern R. Co., 186 N. C. 571, 511, 120 S. E. 630.

Criminal Cases.—The right to trial by jury is beyond controversy, both in civil and criminal cases. State v. Rogers, 162 N. C. 656, 660, 178 S. E. 293, 46 L. R. A. (N. S.) 30, Ann. Cas. 1914A, 867 (dis. op.).

Proceedings before the judge to remove a prosecuting attorney from office for willful misconduct or maladministration in office, do not require an issue to be submitted to the jury, such office is not a property right under the provisions of this section. State v. Hamme, 180 N. C. 694 (1914 S. E. 77).

Miscellaneous Cases.—In an action for damages for negligently setting fire to plaintiff's woods by sparks from defendant's engine, it was held that this section guarantees as a "sacred and inviolable" right, that the plaintiff might have the case submitted to the jury. Williams v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 140 N. C. 623, 53 S. E. 448.

In proceedings before the corporation there is no jury trial provided, and hence if no appeal lies therefrom by the plaintiff he is deprived of this sacred and inviolable right as guaranteed by this section. Walls v. Strickland, 174 N. C. 298, 301, 93 S. E. 857 (dis. op.).

When in proceedings for alimony without divorce the pleadings raise the issues of the validity of marriage between the parties, or whether the husband had separated himself from his wife and failed to provide her suitable or necessary support, the issue of separation to which the pleading is limited for determination by a jury, but it is met if the trial be had according to the settled course of Judicial Proceedings. Caldwell v. Wilson, 112 N. C. 519, 17 S. E. 431.

Polling Jury in Civil Actions.—Under this section the losing party in a civil action may demand a polling of the jury upon the return of the verdict, as a matter of right. Culbreth v. Mfg. Co., 189 N. C. 208, 126 S. E. 419.

Upon the coming in of the verdict in a civil action, either party to the action has the constitutional right to have the jury polled before accepting the verdict as a unanimous one. In re Will of Sugg, 194 N. C. 638, 140 S. E. 604. See note under Art. I, § 13.

Effect of Fourteenth Amendment of Federal Constitution.—As the right to trial by jury is an inherent right guaranteed in the State Courts is not a privilege or immunity of national citizenship which the States are forbidden by the Fourteenth Amendment to abridge, and the requirements of the Federal Constitution are not always applicable to cases of property without due process of law does not imply that all trials in the State Courts affecting property must be by jury, but it is met if the trial be had according to the settled course of Judicial Proceedings. Caldwell v. Wilson, 121 N. C. 425, 28 S. E. 554.

Subsistence Pendente Lite.—Provisions of section 50-16 empowering the court to make and carry out orders pendente lite to plaintiffs in an action for a divorce. See note under Art. I, § 14. of land for taxation, or determination of such value by a jury in a de novo hearing, and will not support resort to certiorari for that purpose. Belk’s Dept. Store v. Guilford County, 222 N. C. 441, 23 S. E. (2d) 897.

§ 20. Freedom of the press.—The freedom of the press is one of the great bulwarks of liberty, and therefore ought never to be restrained, but every individual shall be held responsible for the abuse of the same. (Const. 1868.)

Contract Prohibiting Entering into Business.—A contract upon the sale of a newspaper that the seller shall not for a period of ten years be connected with any newspaper in the state without obtaining the consent of the purchaser is void under this section. Cowan v. Fairbrother, 118 N. C. 406, 24 S. E. 212.

This decision is placed on the ground that the framers of the constitution did not intend to restrict the power of any person to dispose of anything of value which, as the creature of his own mental or physical exertions, has become his property.—Ed. Note.

See § 17-3 and notes thereto.

Stated in McEachern v. McEachern, 210 N. C. 98, 185 S. E. 684.

§ 22. Property qualification.—As political rights and privileges are not dependent upon, or modified by, property, therefore no property qualification ought to affect the right to vote or hold office. (Const. 1868.)

§ 23. Representation and taxation.—The people of this State ought not to be taxed, or made subject to the payment of any impost or duty, without the consent of themselves, or their representatives in General Assembly, freely given. (Const. 1868.)

§ 24. Militia and the right to bear arms.—A well regulated militia being necessary to the security of a free state, the right of the people to keep and bear arms shall not be infringed; and, as standing armies in time of peace are dangerous to liberty, they ought not to be kept up, and the military should be kept under strict subordination to, and governed by, the civil power.

Nothing herein contained shall in any way impair the practice of carrying concealed weapons, or prevent the Legislature from enacting penal statutes against said practice. (Const. 1868; Convention 1875.)

Editor’s Note.—The last sentence of this section was added by the Convention of 1875.

Generally.—This provision of the constitution plainly expresses the distinction between the “right to keep and bear arms,” and “the practice of carrying concealed weapons.” The first, it is declared, shall not be infringed, while the latter may be prohibited. State v. Spiller, 56 N. C. 697, 700. The framers of this constitution could say that even without this constitutional provision, the Legislature may by law regulate the right to bear arms in a manner conducive to the public peace. Cited in State v. Reams, 121 N. C. 556, 27 S. E. 1004. As to code provision regulating concealed weapons, see sec. 14-269 and notes thereto.

Power of Legislature Limited.—The last clause of this provision metes out an exception to the first and indicates the extent to which the right of the people to bear arms can be restricted; that is, the Legislature can prohibit the carrying of concealed weapons, but no further. State v. Kerns, 181 N. C. 574, 107 S. E. 20.

§ 25. Right of the people to assemble together.—The people have a right to assemble together to consult for their common good, to instruct their representatives, and to apply to the Legislature for redress of grievances. But secret political societies are dangerous to the liberties of a free people, and should not be tolerated. (Const. 1868; Convention 1875.)

The last sentence of this section was added by the Convention of 1875.—Ed. note.

§ 26. Religious liberty.—All men have a natural and unalienable right to worship Almighty God according to the dictates of their own consciences, and no human authority should, in any case whatever, control or interfere with the rights of conscience. (Const. 1868.)

§ 27. Education.—The people have a right to the privilege of education, and it is the duty of the State to guard and maintain that right. (Const. 1868.)

§ 29. Recurrence to fundamental principles.—A frequent recurrence to fundamental principles is absolutely necessary to preserve the blessings of liberty. (Const. 1868.)

Liberal Construction.—The constitution must be construed in the light of its history, and must be liberally construed in aid of progress, but a liberal construction is especially required in interpreting those provisions safeguarding individual liberty. State v. Harris, 216 N. C. 746, 6 S. E. (2d) 854, 128 A. L. R. 469.

Quoted in State v. Hardy, 189 N. C. 799, 128 S. E. 153, as to conviction, in a criminal action, of defendant except by the law of the land or under a unanimous verdict of guilt by the jury, and as to presumption of innocence upon denial of guilt, with the statutory right to request to go on the stand as a witness in his own behalf, in not exercising which no prejudice shall be created against him, and as to the further right to have counsel for his defense who may argue the matters of law and fact to the jury, and as to defendant’s right to have the trial judge in his instructions to the jury not give his opinion whether a fact is fully or sufficiently proven.

§ 30. Hereditary emoluments, etc.—No hereditary emoluments, privileges, or honors ought to be granted or conferred in this State. (Const. 1868.)

Editor’s Note.—This provision is usually construed in connection with section 31 of this article. Reference is here made to the cases placed under that section.
§ 31. Perpetuities, etc.—Perpetuities and monopolies are contrary to the genius of a free state and ought not to be allowed. (Const. 1868.)

Cross Reference.—See Art. I, sec. 7.

As to invalidity of a local statute providing that the provisions of G. S. § 44-14 should be read into private contracts under this section see Art. I, § 7 and notes thereon.

Early Vesting of Estates Favored.—Where, by a correct interpretation of the will, it will reasonably be allowed, the law should vest estates against the 21 years of a contingent remainder. Walker v. Trolinger, 192 N. C. 744, 135 S. E. 871.

This section is a fundamental democratic principle of the constitution. "It is one of the cardinal principles of a free society to allow all opportunities to all, and none." Newman v. Watkins, 208 N. C. 675, 679, 182 S. E. not confer exclusive emoluments and privileges on continuers of interest in the state and ought not to be allowed. (Const. 1868.)

Failure to Provide for Successors to Office.—The general assembly having failed to appoint or provide for the election of successors to the highway and sinking fund commissioner of Madison county, who were appointed for a four-year term by ch. 341, Public-Laws of 1921, the general assembly is presumed to acquiesce in their continuance in office, and the general assembly having power to terminate the office, the continuance of the officers in office shall be held that it intended to create perpetuities or exclusive emoluments in violation of any of the provisions of this article, and said commissioners continue to hold office with power to act as successors thereto. Freeman v. Board of Com'rs, 217 N. C. 209, 7 S. E. (2d) 354.

Miscellaneous Cases.—Selection by a commission of persons qualified to act as pilots, St. George v. Hardie, 147 N. C. 89, 60 S. E. 928; ordinance granting the exclusive privilege to construct and maintain water-works within the corporate limits of the city of Elizabeth City, etc., Co. v. Elizabeth City, 188 N. C. 728, 124 S. E. 611, 136 N. C. 963, 137 S. E. 198; 21 Statutes at Large 863; 21 Stat. 592, 55 L. Ed. 619, and United States v. American Tobacco Co., 221 U. S. 106, 31 S. Ct. 632, 55 L. Ed. 663; stipulations in partial restraint of trade were held not to be oppressive to the law unless they were unreasonable and likely to become monopolies, which are obnoxious to this section, Tobacco Growers' Cooperative Ass'n v. Jones, 185 N. C. 263, 273, 117 S. E. 174, 33 A. L. R. 231; North Carolina Fair Trade Act, Lilly & Co. v. Saunders, 216 N. C. 163, 4 S. E. (2d) 528, 125 A. L. R. 1308; police power to regulate those engaged in the business of operating clean-streets, sidewalks, which were begun and which have been concluded without an initial petition, is proper and such act cannot be successfully attacked because it is retroactive or retrospective. Holton v. Mockbee, 192 N. C. 214, 133 S. E. 211. Unemployment Compensation Comm'n v. Wachovia Bank, etc., Co., 215 N. C. 491, 2 S. E. (2d) 592; prosecution for willful failure to support illegitimate child born after the passage of the act, although the child was begotten before the effective date of the statute, State v. Mansfield, 207 N. C. 233, 176 S. E. 761.

Unemployment Compensation Taxes.—Taxes levied for the year 1936 under the Unemployment Compensation Act, section 96-1 et seq., are void as violating this section. Unemployment Compensation Comm'n v. Wachovia Bank, etc., Co., 213 N. C. 491, 2 S. E. (2d) 392.

§ 32. Ex post facto laws.—Retrospective laws, punishing acts committed before the existence of such laws, and by them only declared criminal, are oppressive, unjust and incompatible with liberty; wherefore no ex post facto law ought to be made. No law taxing retrospectively sales, purchases, or other acts previously done, ought to be passed. (Const. 1868.)

Definition.—An ex post facto law is one which either makes that a crime which was not a crime when the offense was committed or which imposes a heavier sentence than that which was prescribed for the offense when the statute was passed or which makes that a crime which was not a crime when the offense was committed or which imposes a heavier sentence than that which was prescribed for the offense when the statute was passed. State v. Broadway, 157 N. C. 598, 72 S. E. 987. But a retrospective statute is not necessarily void. Tabor v. Ward, 83 N. C. 231.

The general rule, subject, however, to some exceptions, is that the courts are not bound to construe any proceeding which might have been authorized in advance in a manner, even though its act may operate to divest a right of action existing in favor of an individual, or subject him to a loss he would otherwise have suffered. Anderson v. Wilkins, 142 N. C. 154, 55 S. E. 272.

Applies only to Criminal Statutes.—An ex post facto statute prohibited by this section relates only to criminal statutes, and though vested rights may not be affected by retroactive laws, contingent interests may be affected thereby, and where there is a voluntary trust estate with the limitation over upon a contingent determinable at some future time as to the persons who take thereunder, the courts are not bound to construe any proceeding which might have been authorized in advance in a manner, even though its act may operate to divest a right of action existing in favor of an individual, or subject him to a loss he would otherwise have suffered. (Const. 1868.)

Whenever a retrospective statute applies to crimes and penalties, it is an ex post facto law. State v. Bell, 61 N. C. 76, 82; State v. Bond, 49 N. C. 9.

Miscellaneous Cases.—Validation of proceedings for the improvement of streets and sidewalks, which were begun and which have been concluded without an initial petition, is proper and such act cannot be successfully attacked because it is retroactive or retrospective. Holton v. Mockbee, 192 N. C. 214, 133 S. E. 211. Unemployment Compensation Comm'n v. Wachovia Bank, etc., Co., 215 N. C. 491, 2 S. E. (2d) 592; prosecution for willful failure to support illegitimate child born after the passage of the act, although the child was begotten before the effective date of the statute, State v. Mansfield, 207 N. C. 233, 176 S. E. 761.

§ 33. Slavery prohibited.—Slavery and involuntary servitude, otherwise than for crime, whereof the parties shall have been duly convicted, shall be, and are hereby forever prohibited within this State. (Const. 1868.)

§ 34. State boundaries.—The limits and boundaries of the State shall be and remain as they now are. (Const. 1868.)

§ 35. Courts shall be open.—All courts shall be open; and every person for an injury done him in his lands, goods, person, or reputation, shall have remedy by due course of law, and right and justice administered without sale, delay, or delay. (Const. 1868.)

The salutary principle set forth in this section does not prohibit the use of the courts, by the assertion of fanciful rights or by complaints based upon imaginary wrongs to hinder or delay others in the enjoyment of rights founded upon the law and in accord with justice and fair dealing among men. Caton v. Fleming, 158 N. C. 600, 602, 125 S. E. 259.

Delay Caused by Irregular Pleading.—Under the provisions of this section an adversary party ought not to be held in default and adjudged a party plaintiff by the controversy by the fact that the exceptions taken by the opposite party are so drawn as to take two chances, first of a favorable decision by the court, and then of a finding in his favor by the jury. Driller Co. v. Worth, 118 N. C. 746, 747, 748, 24 S. E. 517.
Nor ought be delayed because the demand for a jury trial fails to point out the precise issue as to which testimony must be offered. Id. So also, the rights of the appellate will be protected when the appellant failed to print the record as required by statute. Cowan v. Layburn, 116 N. C. 526, 21 S. E. 965.

A motion for a continuance is addressed to the discretion of the judge or is determined by him. The exercise of his duty to administer right and justice without sale, delay, or denial, or delay; State v. Godwin, 216 N. C. 41, 15 S. E. (2d) 111.

The creation of inferior courts by the legislature has been useful in having justice administered without "delay" in accordance with this section. Albertson v. Albertson, 207 N. C. 541, 194 S. E. 352.

Foreclosure of Mortgages.—This section is not violated by sections 45-32 and 45-33 regulating the sale of real property upon the foreclosure of mortgages or deeds of trust. Woltz v. State, 292 N. C. 174, 234 S. E. 2d 127.

The establishment of a cartway involves the taking of private property by eminent domain, and land therefor may not be taken without giving the owner notice and an opportunity to be heard, with right of appeal according to the due course of law. Waldroup v. Ferguson, 213 N. C. 196, 195 S. E. 675.

Section 34-34 is constitutional and valid, since it recognizes the obligation of the debtor to pay his debt and the right of the creditor to enforce payment by action in accordance with the terms of the agreement, but provides means of correcting any errors in sales under power to the end that the price paid at the sale shall not be conclusive as to the value of the property, and that the creditor may not recover deficiency after sale, or purchase the property at the price without first accounting for the fair value of the property in accordance with well settled principles of equity. Richmond Mfg. Co., Inc. v. Wachovia Bank, etc., Co., 210 N. C. 29, 187 S. E. 485.

And Power to Fix Salary of Judge of County Court.—The establishment of a county court involves the taking of public property by eminent domain, and land therefor may not be taken without giving the owner notice and an opportunity to be heard, with right of appeal according to the due course of law. Waldroup v. Ferguson, 213 N. C. 196, 195 S. E. 675.

§ 36. Soldiers in time of peace.—No soldier shall, in time of peace, be quartered in any house without the consent of the owner; nor in time of war but in a manner prescribed by law. (Const. 1868.)

§ 37. Other rights of the people.—This enumeration of rights shall not be construed to impair or deny others retained by the people; and all powers not herein delegated remain with the people. (Const. 1868.)

Stated in Nichols v. McKee, 68 N. C. 429, 431; State v. Lewis, 142 N. C. 326, 328, 64 S. E. 600; State v. Williams, 146 N. C. 618, 61 S. E. 61, 17 L. R. A. (N. S.) 599.

ARTICLE II

Legislative Department

§ 1. Two branches.—The legislative authority shall be vested in two distinct branches, both dependent on the people, to-wit: a Senate and a House of Representatives. (Const. 1868.)

Legislative function cannot be delegated. Cox v. Kinston, 217 N. C. 391, 8 S. E. (2d) 252.

But Legislative May Delegate to Local Political Subdivisions power to fix the Dues or Fees. When the legislature may delegate to political subdivisions the power to fix the dues or fees therefor it may delegate to county commissioners the power to establish a county court when necessary in the public interest, and, a fortiori, it may also delegate to the county commissioners similar authority which shall not be determined by him. State v. Godwin, 216 N. C. 41, 15 S. E. (2d) 111.

And Power to Fix Salary of Judge of County Court.—The fixing of the salary of the judge of a county court is essentially a local matter which the general assembly may delegate to the commissioners of the county in which the court is situated. Sec. 14 of sec. 1, ch. 519, Public-Local Laws of 1939, providing that the board of county commissioners of Forsyth county should have the power to fix the salary of the judge of the county court, is a delegation of legislative power. Edfrd v. Board of Com'r's, 219 N. C. 96, 12 S. E. (2d) 889.

Standards of Public Officers Set Up for Administrative Board.—Chapter 20, Public Laws of 1937, as amended by chapter 337, Public Laws of 1939, providing for the licensing of those engaged in the business of dry cleaning by the commission created in this section, is a delegation of legislative authority, in that the act fails to set up the standards or provide reasonable limitations to guide the administrative board in admitting or excluding persons from the business, but leaves such power to the unlimited discretion of the administrative board. State v. Harris, 216 N. C. 746, 6 S. E. (2d) 854, 128 A. L. R. 659.

And Industrial Commission May Award Compensation for Bodily Disfigurement.—Section 97-31 authorizing the industrial commission to award compensation for bodily disfigurement is not void as a delegation of legislative authority. Baxter v. Arthur Co., 216 N. C. 296, 4 S. E. (2d) 621.

The North Carolina Fair Trade Act is not unconstitutional as a delegation of legislative authority, since the act is complete in itself and requires no action on the part of any agent to put it into operation. Waldroup v. Ferguson, 213 N. C. 196, 195 S. E. 675.

In the Constitution of 1868 the first clause of this section read as follows: "The Senate and House of Representatives shall meet annually on the third Monday in November, and when assembled shall be denominated the General Assembly. Neither House shall proceed upon public business unless a majority of all the members are actually present. (Const. 1868; 1872-3, c. 82; Constitution 1873.)

In the Convention of 1868, the first clause of this section was changed to: "The Senate and House of Representatives shall meet annually on the third Monday in November, and when assembled shall be denominated the General Assembly. The word "annually" was changed to "biennially" in pursuance of Ch. 82, Public Laws of 1872-73. The Convention of 1873 changed the time of meeting to the first Wednesday after the first Monday in January next after their election."—Ed. note.

§ 4. Regulations in relation to districting the State for senators.—The Senate districts shall be so altered by the General Assembly, at the first session after the return of every enumeration by order of Congress, that each Senate district shall contain, as nearly as may be, an equal number of inhabitants, excluding aliens and Indians not taxed, and shall remain unaltered until the return of another enumeration, and shall at all times consist of contiguous territory; and no county shall be divided in the formation of a Senate district, unless such county shall be equitably entitled to two or more senators. (Const. 1868; 1872-3, c. 81.)

Editor's Note.—This was formerly section 5 of the Constitution of 1868 which was as follows: "Sec. 5. An enumeration of the inhabitants of the State should be taken under the direction of the General Assembly in the year one thousand eight hundred and seventy-five, and at the end of every ten years thereafter; and the Senate districts shall be so altered by the General Assembly, at the first session after the return of every enumeration taken as aforesaid, or by order of Congress, that each Senate district shall contain, as nearly as may be, an equal number of inhabitants, excluding aliens and Indians not taxed, and shall remain unaltered until the return of an other enumeration, and shall at all times consist of contiguous territory; and no county shall be divided in the formation of a Senate district, unless such county shall be equitably entitled to two or more Senators." Sec. 4 of the Constitution of 1868, which divided the Senate into Senatorial districts pending a division by the first General Assembly after 1871, was omitted by the Constitution of 1875.
So was Sec. 8 which made the temporary apportionment for the House of Representatives.

Reapportionment is a political question and not a judicial e one. Leonard v. Maxwell, 216 N. C. 89, 3 S. E. (2d) 316.

§ 5. Regulations in relation to apportionment of representatives.—The House of Representatives shall be composed of one hundred and twenty representatives, biennially chosen by ballot, to be elected by the counties respectively, according to their population, and each county shall have at least one representative in the House of Representatives, although it may not contain the requisite ratio of representation; this apportionment shall be made by the General Assembly at the respective times and periods when the districts for the Senate are hereinbefore directed to be laid off. (Const. 1868; 1872-3, c. 82.)

See note to the next preceding section of this article.

§ 6. Ratio of representation.—In making the apportionment in the House of Representatives the ratio of representation shall be ascertained by dividing the amount of the population of the State, exclusive of that comprehended within those counties which do not severally contain the one hundred and twentieth part of the population of the State, by the number of representatives, less the number assigned to such counties; and in ascertaining the number of the population of the State, aliens and Indians not taxed shall not be included. To each county containing the said ratio and not twice the said ratio there shall be assigned one representative; to each county containing twice but not three times the said ratio there shall be assigned two representatives, and go on progressively, and then the remaining representatives shall be assigned severally to the counties having the largest fractions. (Const. 1868.)

Changing Dividing Line of Counties.—An act which change the dividing line between two counties is not in conflict with this section. Commissioners v. Ballard, 69 N.
C. 18.

§ 7. Qualifications for senators.—Each member of the Senate shall not be less than twenty-five years of age, shall have resided in the State as a citizen two years, and shall have usually resided in the district for which he was chosen one year immediately preceding his election.
(Const. 1868.)

§ 8. Qualifications for representatives.—Each member of the House of Representatives shall be a qualified elector of the State, and shall have resided in the county for which he is chosen for one year immediately preceding his election.
(Const. 1868.)

§ 9. Election of officers.—In the election of all officers, whose appointment shall be conferred upon the General Assembly by the Constitution, the vote shall be viva voce. (Const. 1868.)

Presumption of Regularity.—Where a certificate shows that there was a legislative election of an officer and nothing else appearing, the law presumes a quorum and that the election was regular. Cherry v. Burns, 124 N. C. 761, 766, 33 S. E. 136.

§ 10. Powers in relation to divorce and alimony.—The General Assembly shall have power to pass general laws regulating divorce and almimony, but shall not have power to grant a di-reaffirmation or secure alimony in any individual case.
(Const. 1868.)

Cross Reference.—For the legislative enactments passed pursuant to this section and the constructions thereof, see §§ 50-1 et seq., and the notes thereto.

Only Limitation on Legislative Power.—The only limitations on the power of the legislature enacting statutes relating to divorce is found in this section. Cooke v. Cooke, 164 N. C. 275, 80 S.
E. 178; Long v. Long, 206 N. C. 706, 175 S. E. 85.

§ 11. Private laws in relation to names of persons, etc.—The General Assembly shall not have power to pass any private law to alter the name of any person, or to legitimate any person not born in lawful wedlock, or to restore to the rights of citizenship any person convicted of an infamous crime, but shall have power to pass general laws regulating the same. (Const. 1868.)

§ 12. Thirty days' notice shall be given anterior to passage of private laws.—The General Assembly shall not pass any private law, unless it shall be made to appear that thirty days' notice of application to pass such a law shall have been given, under such direction and in such manner as shall be provided by law. (Const.
1868.)

Notice Presumed to Be Given.—The courts will conclusion, ex parte from the ratification of a private act that the notice required by this section has been given. Math-iews v. Blowing Rock, 207 N. C. 450, 177 S. E. 429; Gal-

Sec. 6. Notice.—Notice may be given at any time in the manner provided for in the Constitution, and the commissioners or other persons may be ordered to attorn and to execute such acts as may be necessary.
North Carolina v. Commissioners of Pitt County, 146 N.
C. 594, 585, 60 S. E. 515; 16 L. R. A. (N. S.) 235, 35.

When Testimony Heard.—Except in case of bills coming within the provisions of section 14, the Supreme Court will not hear testimony for the purpose of showing that the notice required by this section was not given. Brodnax v.
Groom, 64 N. C. 944; Gatlin v. Tarboro, 78 N. C. 119; Wilson v. Markley, 133 N. C. 616, 47 S. E. 1025; Bray v. Williams, 137 N. C. 387, 399, 176 S. E. 746.

No Ground for Collateral Impeachment.—Where an act granting a charter to a private corporation has been duly ratified, it may not be collaterally impeached in an action between it and another on the ground that the notice had not agen tly been given, under such direction and in such manner as shall be provided by law. (Const.
1868.)

The act creating the North Carolina National Park Commission (Laws 1927, ch. 48) is a public act and does not fall within the purview of this section requiring notice that applicaton to the General Assembly for the passage of a private act be made. Yarborough v. Park Commission, 139 N. C. 294, 145 S. E. 567.

Cited in Commissioners v. Snuggs, 121 N. C. 394, 408, 28
S. E. 539.

§ 13. Vacancies.—If vacancies shall occur in the General Assembly by death, resignation, or otherwise, writs of election shall be issued by the Governor under such regulations as may be prescribed by law. (Const. 1868.)

§ 14. Revenue.—No law shall be passed to raise money on the credit of the State, or to pledge the faith of the State, directly or indirectly, for the payment of any debt, or to impose any tax upon the people of the State, or to allow the counties, cities or towns to do so, unless the bill for the purpose shall have been read three several times in each house of the General Assembly and passed three several readings, which
II. GENERAL CONSIDERATION.

Section Mutatory.—This section is mandatory. Commissioners v. Snuggs, 121 N. C. 394, 28 S. E. 539; Union Bank v. Commissioners, 119 N. C. 214, 23 S. E. 966; and must be strictly complied with. Smothers v. Com., 125 N. C. 480, 34 S. E. 455. The adoption of this section, annulled all special powers remaining unexecuted, and not granted in strict conformity with its requirements. Commissioners v. Payne, 123 N. C. 431, 50 S. E. 741.

Burden of Proof.—Parties objecting have the burden of showing that acts had not been passed according to the requirements of this section. Slocumb v. Fayetteville, 125 N. C. 362, 365, 34 S. E. 436.

Applications to Townships.—The restrictions are by necessary implication applicable to townships, as they are constituent parts of the county organization. Wittkowsky v. Commissioners, 150 N. C. 90, 63 S. E. 275; Township Road Commission v. Commissioners, 178 N. C. 61, 100 S. E. 122.

Not Applicable to Necessary County Expense.—It is not necessary to enter the yeas and nays on an act to raise revenue for a necessary county expense. Black v. Commissioners, 129 N. C. 121, 122, 39 S. E. 818.

Issuing bonds for road purposes is a necessary expense to the county. Commissioner v. Commissioners, 176 N. C. 377, 97 S. E. 226.

An act authorizing treasurer to deliver state bonds is not within this section. Battle v. Lacy, 150 N. C. 573, 64 S. E. 905.

A motion to reconsider violates the efficacy of the original passage according to this section; for the act to be valid the final result must comply with this section. Allen v. Raleigh, 181 N. C. 453, 454, 107 S. E. 463.

A statute for the revaluation of property is not in its strict sense a revenue act within the meaning of this section. Ham v. Com., 193 N. C. 106, 134 S. E. 403.

The filing fee required by the primary law, §§ 163-120 et seq., is in no sense a tax within the meaning of this section. McLean v. Davidson County Board of Elections, 222 N. C. 23, 23 E. (Md.) 842.

Changing of County Agencies.—The Legislature has the power and authority to change the county tax agencies with further or different provisions than those required by this section, by reason of the failure to meet the requirements of this section, by reason of the failure to record on the journal on the second reading in one of the branches of the legislature the "no" vote, when it is made to appear from the entries of the names of those voting in the affirmative that a majority of the voters had so voted, the absence of the names of two or more of the members of the body voting in the negative that there were none. Leonard v. Commissioners, 185 N. C. 537, 117 S. E. 300, citing Commissioners v. Trust Co., 163 N. C. 1109, 143 S. E. 580.

Who May Enjoin Bond Issue.—It is competent for a taxpayer, by complaint on behalf of the taxpayers in the State, whereby to enjoin the issue of State bonds under an unconstitutional act of Assembly. Glenn v. Wray, 126 N. C. 78, 46 S. E. 955.

Readings on Same Day.—Where the journal of the state senate affirmatively shows that the first and second readings of a bill took place on the same day of the act is unconstitutional. Storm v. Wrightsville Beach, 189 N. C. 679, 127 S. E. 17.

IV. THE JOURNAL—SPEAKERS’ CERTIFICATES.

See notes under § 23 of this article.

What Journal Must Show.—The journal must show who voted for the bill, and that the requisite number of Senators and members did so, and no other source of evidence can be invoked, and the certificate of the presiding officers that a bill has been read three times does not obviate the necessity of examining the journal. Burlington v. New Bern, 213 Fed. 1014.

Omission of Negative Vote.—Where the journal of the house does not give the names of any members, as voting in the negative, on a bill after having issued state bonds, and it does not affirmatively appear that there were none so voting, the statute is invalid. Debnam v. Chitty, 131 N. C. 457, 44 S. E. 3.

Where the House Journal showed that a certain law, authorizing the issuance of county bonds, was passed by the following votes: Ayes 94, Nays 0; there being no record of any vote, the fact that the negative votes were not recorded, would not invalidate the act, if conforming to this section, with the record as it was shown in the journal. Commissioners v. De Rosset, 129 N. C. 275, 40 S. E. 43.

Where the House Journal showed that a certain law, authorizing the issuance of county bonds, was passed by the following votes: Ayes 94, Nays 0, there being no record of any vote, the fact that the negative votes were not recorded, would not invalidate the act, if conforming to this section, with the record as it was shown in the journal. Commissioners v. De Rosset, 129 N. C. 275, 40 S. E. 43.

The weight of evidence does not preclude the inquiry as to the validity of the bonds. Glenn v. Wray, 126 N. C. 78, 36 S. E. 107.

Estoppel To Deny Invalidity of Bonds.—Where township bonds are invalid because issued without authority, the township is not estopped from asserting such fact by recitals in bonds issued after the same, and they are evidence only of the constitutional and legislative authorities of the State. Debnam v. Chitty, 131 N. C. 457, 44 S. E. 3.

To test the validity of a bond, the Judge who issued the bond, and the parties in interest, shall have the right to introduce evidence as to whether the ayes and nays on a vote on
V. SUBSTITUTED BILLS—AMENDMENTS.

Substituted Bill. — Where a bill, authorizing a levy of taxes for road purposes, has been read, referred to a committee, and the committee has recommended a substitute, resulting in the tabling of the original bill and the passage of the substitute on two separate days in that branch of the Legislature, and otherwise conforming to the requirements of this section, both branches of the Legislature, the substitute, to be adopted by the concurrence of both houses of the Constitution, as an amendment to the original bill introduced, and the act may not subsequently be questioned as not having passed on the several separate days required of a bill of the same character. Edwards v. Commissioners, 183 N. C. 58, 110 S. E. 600.

Effect of Certificate of Ratification. — The usual certificate of ratification is conclusive only of the fact of ratification, but not of a compliance with this section of the Constitution. Smathers v. Commissioners, 125 N. C. 480, 34 S. E. 554.

Certificate of Speakers. — The certificate of the speakers of each house of the Legislature is conclusive as to the facts of a bill when a bill was read and passed and then read a second time in each house. Commissioners v. De Rosset, 129 N. C. 275, 40 S. E. 43.

Certificate of Speaker's Action. — The certificate of the Speaker's action that an act was passed is conclusive as to the facts. Frazier v. Board of Comm'rs, 194 N. C. 49, 138 S. E. 433.

Evidence of Materiality. — A rubber band attached to the cover of the original bill when it was engrossed are not admissible in determining whether an amendment to the act or affect its financial feature, and the failure in the first branch to comply with this section will not alone affect its validity. Brown v. Commissioners, 173 N. C. 598, 92 S. E. 502.

Material Amendment. — A material amendment made by one branch of the Legislature to a bill passed by the other, where the act authorizes a county to pledge its credit in issuing bonds for the improvement of the highways therein, must be conured in accordance to the requirements of this section. Claywell v. Commissioners, 173 N. C. 657, 92 S. E. 481; Clenn v. Wray, 126 N. C. 730, 36 S. E. 167. This rule applies with greater force, when the amendment is by separate act. Guire v. Com'rs, 177 N. C. 516, 99 S. E. 430.

Same. — Amendment to a Bill. — An amendment made by one branch of the Legislature to a bill passed by the other, where the act authorizes a county to pledge its credit in issuing bonds for the improvement of the highways therein, must be construed in accordance to the requirements of this section. Claywell v. Commissioners, 173 N. C. 657, 92 S. E. 481.

Same. — Increasing Interest Rate. — An amendment to an act authorizing a county to issue bonds for road construction, which increases the rate of interest from 5 percent to 6 percent, is valid as to that district to vote on the question of issuing school bonds in a certain amount, and amended at a subsequent session so as to authorize bonds to a larger amount and to run a longer time, does not show the effect of the amendment being to exclude the other districts, it was made to apply only to one district in the State, the amendment is not a material one, requiring the vote of the other districts, and the act being regularly enacted, the original act, when the later act is not likewise passed in accordance with the requirements of this section. Russell v. Troy, 159 N. C. 366, 74 S. E. 1021.

The bonds are invalid even as to the amount authorized to be issued under the valid act, for that amount was only authorized at a less rate of taxation, etc., as to which the voters upon the proposition have not assented. Russell v. Troy, 159 N. C. 366, 74 S. E. 1021.

Same. — Curtailing Territory to Which Applicable. — Where a bill is introduced in one branch of the Legislature for the issuance of bonds, and amendments have been made by the General Assembly, which increase the rate of interest from 5 percent to 6 percent, and the popular townships from the liability for the indebtedness to be created, except under condition requiring the approval of the voters, the amendment is a material one, requiring the vote of the other districts, and the act being regularly enacted, the original act, when the later act is not likewise passed in accordance with the requirements of this section. Claywell v. Commissioners, 173 N. C. 657, 92 S. E. 481.

But an act empowering special school districts of the State to issue bonds which follow the requirements of this section except that upon its last reading, by amendment, it was made to apply only to one district in the State, the act, when the amendment has been passed upon its several readings, with aye and no vote according to this section, an issue of bonds under a still later and similar act for a larger amount and upon a greater rate of taxation is invalid in toto when the later act is not likewise passed in accordance with this section. Russell v. Troy, 159 N. C. 366, 74 S. E. 1021.

Immaterial Amendment. — When an act has been passed in two branches of the Legislature without an act controlling the action of the other branch, which increases the rate of interest from 5 percent to 6 percent, is valid as to that district to vote on the question of issuing school bonds in a certain amount, and amended at a subsequent session so as to authorize bonds to a larger amount and to run a longer time, does not show the effect of the amendment being to exclude the other districts, it was made to apply only to one district in the State, the amendment is not a material one, requiring the vote of the other districts, and the act being regularly enacted, the original act, when the later act is not likewise passed in accordance with the requirements of this section. Claywell v. Commissioners, 173 N. C. 598, 92 S. E. 502.

An amendment which does not increase the amount of the bonded debt or tax for road purposes, or otherwise materially change the original bill, may be adopted by the concurrence of both houses of the General Assembly. Commissioners v. Stafford, 138 N. C. 453, 49 S. E. 822.

An amendment which does not increase the amount of the bonded debt or tax for road purposes, or otherwise materially change the original bill, may be adopted by the concurrence of both houses of the General Assembly. Commissioners v. Stafford, 138 N. C. 453, 49 S. E. 822.

An amendment which does not increase the amount of the bonded debt or tax for road purposes, or otherwise materially change the original bill, may be adopted by the concurrence of both houses of the General Assembly. Commissioners v. Stafford, 138 N. C. 453, 49 S. E. 822.

No Change Effected. — Where the Legislature has passed an act authorizing a county to pledge its credit in the issuance of bonds upon its several readings, upon its aye and no vote in accordance with this section, and by an act of ratification on two separate days, and the act has been subsequently amended with respect thereto, but upon condition that the proposition be submitted to the voters, which was never done, and the Legislature attempts to pass a still later law amending the former act but which has not been done in accordance with this section, both branches of the Legislature, the statute required, are valid. Edwards v. Commissioners, 183 N. C. 58, 110 S. E. 600.

No Change Effected. — Where the Legislature has passed an act authorizing a county to pledge its credit in the issuance of bonds upon its several readings, upon its aye and no vote in accordance with this section, and by a later statute passed as the Constitution requires, referring to the former statute, and supplying the omissions, and the bond issues open, under the terms of which the bonds may yet be issued. Cottrell v. Lenoir, 173 N. C. 138, 91 S. E. 827.

No Change Effected. — Where the Legislature has passed an act authorizing a county to pledge its credit in the issuance of bonds upon its several readings, upon its aye and no vote in accordance with this section, and by a later statute passed as the Constitution requires, referring to the former statute, and supplying the omissions, and the bond issues open, under the terms of which the bonds may yet be issued. § 15. Entails.—The General Assembly shall regulate entails in such a manner as to prevent perpetuities. (Const. 1868.)

§ 16. Journals.—Each house shall keep a journal of its proceedings, which shall be printed and made public immediately after the adjournment of the General Assembly. (Const. 1868.)

§ 17. Protest.—Any member of either house may dissent from, and protest against, any act or resolution which he may think injurious to the public, or any individual, and have the reasons of his dissent entered on the journal. (Const. 1868.)

This is the only express grant of appointing power to the House of Representatives. People v. McKee, 68 N. C. 429, 432.

§ 19. President of the Senate.—The Lieutenant-Governor shall preside in the Senate, but shall have no vote unless it may be equally divided. (Const. 1868.)

§ 20. Other senatorial officers.—The Senate shall choose its other officers and also a speaker (pro tempore) in the absence of the Lieutenant-Governor, or when he shall exercise the office of Governor. (Const. 1868.)

This is the only express grant of appointing power to the Senate. People v. McKee, 68 N. C. 429, 432.

§ 22. Powers of the General Assembly.—Each house shall be judge of the qualifications and election of its own members, shall sit upon its own adjournment from day to day, prepare bills to be passed into laws; and the two houses may also jointly adjourn to any future day, or other place. (Const. 1868.)

Effect of Section.—This section withdraws from the consideration of our courts the question of title involved in a contest for a seat in the General Assembly. State v. Pharr, 179 N. C. 699, 103 S. E. 8; Bouldin v. Davis, 197 N. C. 731, 179 N. C. 731, 103 S. E. 8; Bouldin v. Davis, 197 N. C. 731, 179 N. C. 731, 103 S. E. 8; Bouldin v. Davis, 197 N. C. 731, 179 N. C. 731, 103 S. E. 8; Bouldin v. Davis, 197 N. C. 731, 179 N. C. 731, 103 S. E. 8; Bouldin v. Davis, 179 N. C. 805.

§ 23. Bills and resolutions to be read three times, etc.—All bills and resolutions of a legislative character shall be read three times in each house before they pass into laws, and shall be signed by the presiding officers of both houses. (Const. 1868.)

Necessity of Signature.—The signatures of the presiding officers, by the Constitution, must be affixed to an act of legislation during the session of the general assembly, and are necessary to its completeness and efficacy. Scarborough v. Robinson, 81 N. C. 409.

Where an office was created by an act of the General Assembly but was not signed by the presiding officers until the three days data, an election in the interim to fill such office was void. State v. Meares, 116 N. C. 382, 383, 21 S. E. 973.

The judicial power can not be exercised in aid of an unfinished and inoperative act, so left upon the final adjournment, any more than in obstructing legislative action. Scarborough v. Robinson, 81 N. C. 409.

In the absence of the signature journals are not competent to prove compliance with this section. Frazier v. Board of Com’rs, 194 N. C. 49, 138 S. E. 433.

§ 24. Oath of members.—Each member of the General Assembly, before taking his seat, shall take an oath or affirmation that he will support the Constitution and laws of the United States, and the Constitution of the State of North Carolina, and will faithfully discharge his duty as a member of the Senate or House of Representatives. (Const. 1868.)

§ 25. Terms of office.—The terms of office for senators and members of the house of representatives shall commence at the time of their election. (Const. 1868; Convention 1875.)

Sec. 27 of the Constitution of 1868 was as follows: “The terms of office for Senators and members of the House of Representatives shall commence at the time of their election; and the term of office of those elected at the first election held under this Constitution shall terminate at the same time as if they had been elected at the first ensuing regular election.” The Convention of 1875 omitted the last clause, and the remainder became Sec. 25 of the present Constitution.—Ed. note.

§ 26. Yeas and nays.—Upon motion made and seconded in either house by one-fifth of the members present, the yeas and nays upon any question shall be taken and entered upon the journals. (Const. 1868.)

§ 27. Election for members of the General Assembly.—The election for members of the General Assembly shall be held for the respective districts and counties, at the places where they are now held, or may be directed hereafter to be held, in such manner as may be prescribed by law, on the first Thursday in August, in the year one thousand eight hundred and seventy, and every two years thereafter. But the General Assembly may change the time of holding the elections. (Const. 1868; Convention 1875.)

See Legislative Term of Office, 64 N. C. 785.

This section constituted the first part of Sec. 29 of the Constitution of 1868. The following sentence of Sec. 29 was omitted by the Convention of 1875: “The first election shall be held when the vote shall be taken on the ratification of this Constitution by the voters of the State, and when the General Assembly shall have convened for the first session held under this Constitution shall terminate at the same time as if they had been elected at the first ensuing regular election.” Under authority of this section, the General Assembly changed the time of holding the elections to Tuesday next after the first Monday in November, Ch. 275, Public Laws of 1876-77.—Ed. note.

§ 28. Pay of members and officers of the General Assembly.—The members of the General Assembly, for the term for which they have been elected, shall receive a salary for their services of six hundred dollars each. The salaries of the presiding officers of the two houses shall be seven hundred dollars each: Provided, that in addition to the salaries herein provided for, should an extra session of the General Assembly be called, the members shall receive eight dollars per day each, and the presiding officers of the two houses ten dollars per day each, for every day of such extra session not exceeding twenty days; and should an extra session continue more than twenty days, the members and officers shall serve therefor without pay. (Convention 1875; 1927, c. 203.)

Editor's Note.—Sec. 28 added to the Constitution by the Convention of 1875, as follows: "The members of the General Assembly for the term for which they have been elected shall receive as a compensation for their services the sum of four dollars per day for each day of their session, for a period not exceeding sixty days; and should the session continue longer in said session they shall serve without compensation. They shall also be entitled to receive ten cents per mile, both while coming to the seat of government and while remaining in session, for a period not exceeding sixty days; and should an adjournment be continued more than twenty days, the members and officers shall serve therefor without pay. (Convention 1875; 1927, c. 203.)"

What Are Local Laws.—The interpretation of a statute, as to whether it is a local, private, or special law is based upon the true intention of the General Assembly when it adopted the law. This is a question of fact, and must be determined from the provisions of the act itself, as also from the laws of the General Assembly enacted in aid and support of such act, and from such additional and extraneous considerations as may be necessary to determine the true intent and construction of the law. It is a question of fact, and must be determined from the provisions of the act itself, as also from the laws of the General Assembly enacted in aid and support of such act, and from such additional and extraneous considerations as may be necessary to determine the true intent and construction of the law.

Limitations upon Power of General Assembly.—The General Assembly shall not pass any local, private, or special act or resolution relating to the establishment of courts inferior to the Superior Court; relating to the appointment of justices of the peace; relating to health, sanitation, and the abatement of nuisances; changing the names of cities, towns, and townships; authorizing the laying out, opening, altering, maintaining, or discontinuing of highways, streets, or alleys; relating to ferries or bridges; relating to the necessary expenses of the committee while engaged in the investigation, commercial, etc. Bank v. Worth, 117 N. C. 147, 23 S. E. 160. This case was decided prior to the amendment to this section fixing a salary for the members of the general assembly.—Ed. Note.

§ 29. Limitations upon power of General Assembly to enact private or special legislation.—The General Assembly shall not pass any local, private, or special act or resolution relating to the establishment of courts inferior to the Superior Court; relating to the appointment of justices of the peace; relating to health, sanitation, and the abatement of nuisances; changing the names of cities, towns, and townships; authorizing the laying out, opening, altering, maintaining, or discontinuing of highways, streets, or alleys; relating to ferries or bridges; relating to navigable streams; relating to cemeteries; relating to the pay of jurors; erecting new townships, or changing the boundaries of existing townships, or establishing or altering the lines of school districts; remitting fines, penalties, and forfeitures; or refunding moneys legally paid into the public treasury; regulating labor, trade, mining, or manufacturing; extending the time for the assessment or collection of taxes or otherwise relieving any collector of taxes from the due performance of his official duties or his sureties from liability; giving effect to informal wills and deeds; nor shall the General Assembly enact any local, private or special act by the partial repeal of a general law, but the General Assembly may at any time repeal, local, private, or special laws enacted by it. Any local, private or special act or resolution passed in violation of the provisions of this section shall be void. The General Assembly shall have power to pass general laws regulating matters set out in this section. (1915, c. 99.)

This section is remedial in its nature and was intended not only to free the Legislature of petty detail but also to require uniform and coordinated action under general laws. It was, in this regard, that the power of the General Assembly over matters related to the welfare of the people of the whole State, and the application of the section should not be denied on any unsubstantial distinction which would defeat its purpose. Board of Health v. Board of Health, 193 N. C. 140, 16 S. E. (2d) 677, holding Pub. Laws 1941, chs. 6 and 193 to be local laws relating to health.

Courts Look beyond Form of Statutes.—In determining whether a statute relating to matters enumerated in this section is a "local, private, or special" act inhibited by this section, the question is whether the "power to pass," the courts will look beyond the form of the act and ascertain whether the statute, in fact, is generally and usually applicable throughout the area contemplated by the statute. State v. Dixon, 215 N. C. 161, 15 S. E. (2d) 521.

Establishment of Recorder's Courts.—A general law permitting the establishment of Recorder's courts in the State, excepting certain counties to the number of 44, leaving 56 and two others out of the excepted class enumerated in the general statutes, unconstitutional as a local or special act as to those counties, the effect of this statute being a re-enactment of the general law including the particular counties. In re Harris, 183 N. C. 563, 112 S. E. 425.

Cited in Public Laws 1955, ch. 752, 75 S. E. (2d) 593 for the establishment of township recorder's courts in one specified county is unconstitutional and void as being a local act relating to the establishment of courts inferior to the Superior Court, prohibited by this section. State v. Williams, 209 N. C. 57, 182 S. E. 711.

Increasing Jurisdiction of Certain Court.—An act which authorizes the county commissioners to increase the jurisdiction of a certain recorder's court is void as being a local act relating to the establishment of courts inferior to the Superior Court, prohibited by this section. State v. Williams, 209 N. C. 57, 182 S. E. 711.

Same.—Effect on Emoluments.—Where the Legislature, in contravention of this section of the Constitution of this State, has established a court inferior to the Superior Court, an incumbent judge thereof, duly elected, may not successfully contend that he was deprived of the emoluments of his office by an unconstitutional statute abolishing the court. Queen v. Commissioners, 193 N. C. 821, 138 S. E. 310.

Erection of Hospital.—An act authorizing a certain county to erect a tuberculosis hospital and issue bonds therefor, and providing a tax for its maintenance, upon the approval of the voters, is both a special and local act and void under this section. Armstrong v. Board, 185 N. C. 405, 117 S. E. 388.

National Park Act.—The provisions of the statute (Laws 1927, ch. 48) for the acquisition of lands for a national park are in the nature of an act of local and special character, and though local as to location, is for a public use in contemplation of its acquisition by the State for the purpose outlined in the act. Yarbrough v. Park Commissioners, 181 N. C. 400, 147 S. E. 589.

Extending Limits of School.—It is true that the boundaries of a "district" may be coterminous with those of a city or town but it does not follow that an act extending the limits of a city or town in which public schools may be maintained is necessarily a special act establishing or changing the lines of school districts in violation of this section. Baile v. Winston-Salem, 196 N. C. 17, 22, 144 S. E. 377.

Sanitary Districts.—An act of the Legislature (Private Laws of 1933, ch. 72, 1933 S. L. 308) establishing a sanitary district within certain lines within a county for the construction and maintenance of sewer and water systems with certain assessments or taxing powers for the purpose of carrying out the provisions of this section. Drysdale v. Prudden, 195 N. C. 722, 143 S. E. 530.

Building Bridges.—A legislative enactment relating to the building of bridges by a county over a navigable stream or river does not necessarily come within the provisions of this section. Mills v. Commissioners, 175 N. C. 215, 95 S. E. 481.

While authority given by statute to a county or other political subdivision to levy taxes to lay out and maintain highways and streets within such limits, since they are essential to the existence of such corporations, such corporation act and does not seem to contravene this section. Matthews v. Blowing Rock, 207 N. C. 450, 452, 177 S. E. 429.

Formation of Sewerage Districts.—A statute authorizing the formation of sanitary sewerage districts within county lines, the boundaries of these to be fixed by certain designated local authorities in a specified manner, and done without previous notice to the voters, the statute is not "local, private or special act relating to health, sanitation, etc." Reed v. Howerton Engineering Co., 188 N. C. 39, 40, 121 S. E. 479.

Drainage District.—A statute creating and designating the boundaries of a drainage district and providing taxation for its construction and maintenance is for a necessary purpose to the district, and as an incident permits the issuance of bonds or the levying of taxes for the purpose, pledging the faith and credit of the State. Day v. Commissioners, 191 N. C. 780, 133 S. E. 763.

Maintenance of Streets within City Limits.—The unlimited power in the General Assembly to provide for the creation and extension of corporate limits of municipal corporations, with the right to vest in such municipal corporations the authority to levy taxes to lay out and maintain highways and streets within such limits, since they are essential to the existence of such corporations, such corporation act and does not seem to contravene this section. Matthews v. Blowing Rock, 207 N. C. 450, 452, 177 S. E. 429.

Establishing or Changing Lines of School Districts.—Since the enforcement of this section, special act of the Legislature to establish or change the lines, etc., of a school district is void under Art. II, § 29, Const. Hence, a statute providing that the roads should be closed and added to the boundaries of a county, as the administrative unit charged with making provisions for necessary capital outlay, may create school districts or special bond tax units in the county, and provides for an issue of bonds upon the approval of the voters therein, for the necessary buildings and maintenance, comes within the provisions of this section. Board v. Mutual Loan, etc., Co., 181 N. C. 306, 107 S. E. 130.

This section prohibits the legislature from passing any special, private or local act which ex proprio vigore undertakes to establish or change the boundaries of a school district, but the section does not prohibit the legislature from setting up machinery under which a county, as the administrative unit charged with making provisions for necessary capital outlay, may create school districts or special bond tax units in the county, and therefore chapter 279, Public-Local Laws of 1937, declared that certain roads dedicated in the county under Public Act 279, which the then governor signed, is not in contravention of this section. Fletcher v. Collins, 218 N. C. 1, 9 S. E. (2d) 666; Hinson v. Board of Com'r's, 218 N. C. 13, 9 S. E. (2d) 64.

Creation of Public School District.—A statute which creates a school district, and as an act of ratifying or approving the issue, upon the approval of voters, for its equipment and maintenance, is a local or special act, prohibited by this section. State v. Dixon, 215 N. C. 306, 107 S. E. 130.

Incorporation of Existing Districts.—Incorporating existing local school districts for all purposes relating to the issuance of payment of bonds upon the approval of the voters of a district, is valid, and not in contravention to this section. Board v. Mutual Loan, etc., Co., 181 N. C. 306, 107 S. E. 130; Paschal v. Johnson, 133 N. C. 129, 110 S. E. 841.

Same.—Increase of Bonds by Existing District.—Where a school district has been defined as to its boundaries, etc., and as an act of ratifying or approving the issue, upon the adoption of the amendment to our State Constitution, this section, and which authorized a bond issue in a certain county, since the adoption of this constitutional amendment authorizing an increase in the amount of bonds to be issued, upon the approval of the voters according to the statutory amendment, does not contravene the provision of that section. Lile v. Emmons, 216 N. C. 470, 120 S. E. 53.

Same.—Recognizing School District in Changed City Limits.—A public-local act that enlarged the city limits and recognized therein the independent existence of a public school district within the former city limits is not contravened by the provisions of our recent amendment to our Constitution, this section, as an attempt to establish a school district, or to change the limits of those already established. Duffy v. Greensboro, 186 N. C. 470, 120 S. E. 53.

Same.—Submitting Question of Taxation.—A statute allowing an existing consolidated school district to submit the question of the issue of bonds for school purposes to the district is not prohibited by this section. Burney v. Bladen County, 184 N. C. 274, 275, 114 S. E. 298.

Creating and Naming County Health Board.—Chapter 322, Public-Local Laws of 1933, which directs the creation and name the members of a county board of health for Madison county alone, which board is charged with the duty to investigate any county outbreak three or more cases of a contagious and sanitary condition, and to select a physician to vaccinate against disease, is a local act relating to health and sanitation prohibited by this section. Sams v. Board of Com'r's, 197 N. C. 290, 143 S. E. 129.

Fair Trade Act.—The North Carolina Fair Trade Act, in limiting its application to commodities bearing a trademark and in exempting from its operation such commodities sold to particular classes of persons, sets up reasonable classifications and applies uniformly to all persons or things coming therein, and therefore is a general act regulating trade and does not contravene this section. Lilly v. Saunders, 216 N. C. 163, 1 S. E. (2d) 528, 125 A. L. R. 1308.

Machinery to Effect Void Acts.—Where an act to create a public school district is, in whole or in part, void, under Art. II, § 29, Const., the provision for bonds and taxation to carry out the purposes of the act are likewise void. Sechrist v. Commissioners, 181 N. C. 511, 107 S. E. 503.

Poll Tax for School Purposes Unconstitutional.—Since the adoption of this section a special school district may not impose a tax upon the polls for school purposes; and where a poll tax and a property tax have both been favorably voted for at an election, held for that purpose, the tax upon the poll will be held unconstitutional and the property tax upheld by the courts. Board v. Bray, 184 N. C. 484, 485, 115 S. E. 47.

Ratifying Ordinance to Issue Bonds.—An act for the purpose of ratifying an ordinance, of county commissioners, to issue bonds and levy taxes for school purposes passed since the adoption of this section is not prohibited by this section; the issuance of such bonds and levy of such taxes, will be permanently enjoined. Wooley v. Commissioners, 182 N. C. 428, 109 S. E. 368.

Trade, in its broadest sense, includes any employment or business engaged in for gain or profit. State v. Dixon, 215 N. C. 161, 1 S. E. (2d) 521.

A statute providing for the licensing and regulations of real estate brokers and salesmen and imposing a license tax on those engaged in the trade in addition to the tax imposed by the Revenue Act for a state-wide license, was held applicable to only a limited territory and specified localities, and the act was therefore a local act regulating trade in contravention of this section. State v. Dixon, 215 N. C. 161, 1 S. E. (2d) 521.

Maintenance of County Highways.—A public-local law applicable to the maintenance of the public highways of a county and authorizing taxation or issuance of bonds for this purpose, which certain classifications and applies uniformly to all persons or things coming therein, and therefore is a general act regulating trade and does not contravene this section. State v. Kelly, 186 N. C. 365, 119 S. E. 755.

Closing Public Roads.—Part of land in a private development was dedicated to the General Assembly, by private act (ch. 72, Private Laws of 1933), declared that certain roads dedicated in the registered plot of the development were no longer needed, and declared that the roads should be closed and added to [23] the playground space for the school. This act is void as being a private or special act inhibited by this section. Glenn v. Board of Education, 210 N. C. 535, 185 S. E. 781.

Chapter 218, Priv. Laws 1925, is not a special statute relating to roads inhibition, to the General Assembly, to the municipal officers in the transportation of the school children, and the education of the children shall not be allowed in the public schools or in any other school maintained by a public body or shall be required to make certain conditions.

Section 30. Inviolability of sinking funds. — The General Assembly shall not use nor authorize to be used any part of the amount of any sinking fund for any purpose other than the retirement of the bonds for which said sinking fund has been created. (Ex. Sess. 1924, c. 91.)

Sum erroneously placed in sinking fund. — While sinking funds provided for the retirement of municipal bonds may not be diverted from that purpose to other municipal purposes, the legislature may make the provision for the retirement of the bonds of the city in a sinking fund by a clerk without authorization, which sum was actually derived from profits of the municipal enterprise is the same as the provision of the Code of 1869, the words "erredly placed in sinking fund" are stricken out and the act of the legislature is void as a violation of this section. Banton v. Board of Com'rs, 115 N. C. 574, 19 S. E. 554.

The city may not be diverted from that purpose to other municipal purposes. Mewborn v. Board of Com'rs, 121 N. C. 411, 18 S. E. 597.

SECTION 31. Officers of the executive department; terms of office. — The executive department shall consist of a Governor (in whom shall be vested the supreme executive power of the State) a Lieutenant-Governor, a Secretary of State, an Auditor, a Treasurer, an Attorney-General, who shall be elected for a term of four years after the approval of this Constitution by the Congress of the United States, and shall hold their offices for four years and after the first day of January.

See Art. I, § 8 and the note thereto.

Editor's Note. — In this section as found in the Constitutions of 1868, the words "Supervisor of Public Works" are stricken out and the act of the legislature is void as a violation of this section. Wake v. Cordell, 207 N. C. 808, 178 S. E. 594. The words "erredly placed in sinking fund" are stricken out and the act of the legislature is void as a violation of this section. Wake v. Cordell, 207 N. C. 808, 178 S. E. 594.

§ 30. Inviolability of sinking funds. — The General Assembly shall not use nor authorize to be used any part of the amount of any sinking fund for any purpose other than the retirement of the bonds for which said sinking fund has been created. (Ex. Sess. 1924, c. 91.)

§ 31. Officers of the executive department; terms of office. — The executive department shall consist of a Governor (in whom shall be vested the supreme executive power of the State) a Lieutenant-Governor, a Secretary of State, an Auditor, a Treasurer, an Attorney-General, who shall be elected for a term of four years after the approval of this Constitution by the Congress of the United States, and shall hold their offices for four years and after the first day of January.

The executive department shall consist of a Governor, in whom shall be vested the executive power of the State, a Lieutenant-Governor, a Secretary of State, an Auditor, a Treasurer, a Superintendent of Public Instruction, and a Commissioner of Labor, who shall be elected for a term of four years after the approval of this Constitution by the Congress of the United States, and shall hold their offices for four years and after the first day of January. Wake v. Jordan, 214 N. C. 803, 712 S. E. 139.

§ 2. Qualifications of Governor and Lieutenant-Governor. — No person shall be eligible as Governor or Lieutenant-Governor unless he have attained the age of thirty years, shall have been a citizen of the United States five years, and shall have been a resident of this State for two years next before the election; nor shall the person elected to either of these two offices be eligible to the same office more than four years in any term of eight years, unless the person elected shall have been cast upon him as Lieutenant-Governor or president of the Senate. (Const. 1868.)

§ 3. Returns of elections. — The return of every election for officers of the executive department shall be sealed up and transmitted to the seat of government by the returning officer, directed to the Secretary of State. The return shall be canvassed and the result declared in such manner as may be prescribed by law. Contested elections shall be determined by a joint ballot of both houses of the General Assembly in such manner as shall be prescribed by law. (Const. 1868; 1925, c. 88.)
 tested" read as follows: "to the Speaker of the House of Representatives, who shall open and publish the same in the presence of a majority of the members of both houses of the General Assembly. The persons having the highest number of votes respectively, shall be declared duly elected; but if the votes be equal and highest in votes for the same office, then one of them shall be chosen by joint-ballot of both Houses of the General Assembly." The section was amended to its present form pursuant to Ch. 88, Public Laws of 1925. For the laws governing the canvassing of returns, see §§ 163-93 to 163-106; Ch. 260, Public Laws of 1927.

Where Returns Have Been Acted on.—In a proceeding to compel by mandamus a reassembling of a Board of County Canvassers and a recount of the votes cast in the county for candidates for the House of Representatives, where, subsequent to the canvass of returns received and issued a commission to the person elected on the face of the return, judicial action in the premises would be wholly unavailing, as the matter has passed beyond the jurisdiction of the court. O'Hara v. Powell, 89 N. C. 104.

§ 4. Oath of office for Governor.—The Governor, before entering upon the duties of his office, shall, in the presence of the members of both branches of the General Assembly, or before any justice of the Supreme Court, take an oath or affirmation that he will support the Constitution and laws of the United States, and of the State of North Carolina, and that he will faithfully perform the duties appertaining to the office of Governor, to which he has been elected. (Const. 1868.)

§ 5. Duties of Governor.—The Governor shall reside at the seat of government of this State, and he shall, from time to time, give the General Assembly information of the affairs of the State, and recommend to their consideration such measures as he shall deem expedient. (Const. 1868.)

§ 6. Reprieves, commutations, and pardons.—The Governor shall have the power to grant reprieves, commutations and pardons, after conviction, for all offenses (except in cases of impeachment), upon such conditions as he may think proper, subject to such regulations as may be prescribed by law relating to the granting of such reprieves for pardons. He shall biennially communicate to the General Assembly each case of reprieve, commutation, or pardon granted, stating the name of each convict, the crime for which he was convicted, the sentence and its date, the date of commutation, pardon, or reprieve, and the reasons therefor. (Const. 1868; 1872-73, c. 82.)

For an article on punishment for crime in North Carolina, see 17 N. C. Law Rev. 205.

For the provision, "biennially," "biennially" was substituted for "annually" in this section of the Constitution of 1868, pursuant to Ch. 82, Public Laws of 1872-73.

Power to Pass Amnesty Act.—The power, granted by this section, to exercise clemency after conviction in some particular case and in favor of an individual especially charged with the offense, is an executive act of a quasi-judicial kind, and does not conflict with or exclude the power of the general assembly to pass an amnesty act in abolition or commutation of the offense. State v. Bowman, 145 N. C. 452, 59 S. E. 74; 122 Am. St. Rep. 464.

The governor may grant a pardon upon a condition precedent, to the satisfaction of the court, where the prisoner may be convicted of some other offense, subsequent to his former conviction, and upon condition subsequent, that he remain of good character, and be sober and industrious. In re Williams, 149 N. C. 436, 51 S. E. 93; 122 Am. St. Rep. 464.

Pardon Pending Appeal.—The term "conviction," in this section denotes a verdict of guilty rendered by a jury; therefore, when defendant, after verdict and judgment in the court below, appealed to the supreme court and, pending such appeal, was pardoned by the Governor, such pardon is authorized by this section and is valid. State v. Alexander, 76 N. C. 231; State v. Mathis, 109 N. C. 815, 13 S. E. 917.

§ 7. Annual reports from officers of executive department and of public institutions.—The officers of the executive department and of the public institutions of the State shall, at least five days previous to each regular session of the General Assembly, severally report to the Governor, who shall transmit such reports, with his message, to the General Assembly; and the Governor may, at any time, require information in writing from the officers in the executive department upon any subject relating to the duties of their respective offices, and shall take care that the laws be faithfully executed. (Const. 1868.)

§ 8. Governor-in-chief. — The Governor shall be Governor-in-chief of the militia of the State, except when they shall be called into the service of the United States. (Const. 1868.)

Supremacy of Governor's Control.—Under this section the Governor's control is supreme, in the absence of legislation, "to provide for the organization," etc., of the militia, enacted pursuant to Article XII, section 3 of this constitution. Winslow v. Morton, 118 N. C. 486, 24 S. E. 412.

§ 9. Extra sessions of General Assembly.—The Governor shall have power on extraordinary occasions, by and with the advice of the Council of State, to convene the General Assembly in extra session by his proclamation, stating therein the purpose or purposes for which they are thus convened. (Const. 1868.)

§ 10. Officers whose appointments are not otherwise provided for.—The Governor shall nominate, and by and with the advice and consent of a majority of the senators-elect, appoint all officers whose offices are established by this Constitution and whose appointments are not otherwise provided for. (Const. 1868; Convention 1875.)

Editor's Note.—In the Constitution of 1868 this section prohibited the general assembly from appointing or electing such officers, as herein provided for, but in 1875 this section was amended and this express prohibition removed. For a case decided under the former rule, see State v. Stanley, 66 N. C. 60.

The words "whose appointments are not otherwise provided for," mean provided for by the Constitution. State v. Stanley, 66 N. C. 60.

The correct reading of this section is "not otherwise provided for by law." Nichols v. McKee, 68 N. C. 429, 435.

Filling Vacancy and Appointing for Regular Term.—The Governor never nominates to the Senate to fill vacancies. He does that alone, in all cases. But where officers have to be appointed to fill a regular term, then he nominates to the Senate, unless he is elected by the people, and then he never nominates to the Senate, but fills the vacancy or term by his own appointment (unless there is an officer holding over), until the people can elect. Battle v. McVey, 68 N. C. 467, 470.

The general appointing power is given to the Governor with the concurrence of the Senate; the power to fill vacancies not otherwise provided for is given to the Governor alone and that, whether the Legislature is in session or not, and without calling the Senate. Nichols v. McKee, 68 N. C. 429.

Appointment Limited to Constitutional Affairs.—The in-herself right of the Governor to appoint is now restricted to constitutional offices and where the Constitution itself so provides; and all offices created by statute, including directorates in State institutions—in this case, the State Hospital at Raleigh—the powers of appointment, or to fill vacancies, is subject to legislative provision as expressed in this section. Salisbury v. Croom, 167 N. C. 223, 83 S. E. 353.

Legislature Cannot Appoint Officers. The Legislature cannot authorize the presiding officers of its two branches to appoint proxies and directors in behalf of the State in corporations in which the State had an interest; nor can the Legislature itself make such appointments, on the reason that it would be an usurpation of executive power. Howerton v. Tate, 68 N. C. 546.

Same—When Legislature Assumes Appointment. The Legislature having assumed to take the appointment of Directors for the State of the Western North Carolina Railroad from the Governor, it thereby dispensed with the necessity of his sending nominations to fill vacancies, and such office so provided; and all offices created by statute, including directors, is subject to legislative provision as expressed in this section. Ewart v. Jones, 116 N. C. 570, 52 S. E. 787.

Transfer of Duties of Office. While the General Assembly has the power to abolish an office created by legislative authority, it cannot by mere transfer to others of the duties connected with an institution, necessary and useful to the public, to be exercised by them, oust the incumbent from an office below him in under a contract with the State. State Prison v. Day, 124 N. C. 362, 32 S. E. 748.

Trustee's of University. Etc.—The trustees of the University, the Directors of the Penitentiary and of the Lunatic Asylum are public officers, not created by legislative appointment, but originally from an office belonging to him under a contract with the State. State Prison v. Bullock, 80 N. C. 132, 135.

Directors of Institution for Deaf, Dumb and Blind.—The Directors of the Institution for the Deaf and Dumb and the Blind are made so by the Constitution and so called. Nichols v. McKee, 68 N. C. 429.

Superintendent of State Prison.—The place of superintendent of the State Prison, with its attendant duties, is a public office, not created by the Constitution but by a statute. State Prison v. Day, 124 N. C. 362, 32 S. E. 748.

Members of Board of Agriculture.—Members of the board of agriculture, are not constitutional officers, but being of legislative creation, are within the power of legislative appointment, and are not exclusively, nor of necessity, within the power of executive appointment. Cunningham v. Sprinkle, 124 N. C. 638, 33 S. E. 138.

§ 11. Duties of the Lieutenant-Governor.—The Lieutenant-Governor shall be president of the Senate, but shall have no vote unless the Senate be equally divided. He shall, whilst acting as president of the Senate receive for his services the same pay which shall, for the same period, be allowed to the speaker of the House of Representatives; and he shall receive no other compensation except when he is acting as Governor. (Const. 1868.)

Proposed Amendment.—Session Laws 1943, c. 57, s. 2, proposed that this section be amended to read as follows: "The respective duties of the Secretary of State, Auditor, Treasurer, Superintendent of Public Instruction, General Commissioner of Agriculture, Commissioner of Labor, and Commissioner of Insurance shall be prescribed by law. If the office of any of said officers shall be vacated by death, resignation, or otherwise, it shall be the duty of the Governor to appoint another until the disability be removed, or his successor be elected and qualified. Every such vacancy shall be filled by election at the first general election that occurs more than thirty days after the vacancy has taken place, and the person chosen shall hold the office for the remainder of the unexpired term fixed in the first section of this article. (Const. 1868; 1872-73, c. 84.)

Cross Reference.—See Editor's note to art. III, § 1.

§ 14. Council of State.—The Secretary of State, Auditor, Treasurer, and Superintendent of Public Instruction shall constitute, ex officio, the Council of State, which shall advise the Governor in the execution of his office, and three of whom shall constitute a quorum; their advice and proceedings in this capacity shall be entered in a journal, to be kept for this purpose exclusively, and signed by the members present, from any part of which any member may enter his dissent: and such journal shall be placed before the General Assembly when called for by either house. The Attorney-General shall be, ex officio...
cicio, the legal adviser of the executive department. (Const. 1868; 1872-73, c. 84.)

Proposed Amendment.—Session Laws 1943, c. 27, § 3, proposed that this section be amended to read as follows: "The Secretary from any office, or in the executive of his office, and three of whom shall constitute a quorum; their advice and proceedings in this capacity shall be entered in a journal, to be kept for this purpose, exclusively, signed by the members of which any member may enter his dissent; and such journal shall be placed before the General Assembly when called for by either house. The Attorney General shall, be, ex officio, the legal adviser of the executive department."

Cross Reference.—See Editor's note to Art. III, § 1.

§ 15. Compensation for executive officers.—The officers mentioned in this article shall, at stated periods, receive for their services a compensation to be established by law, which shall neither be increased nor diminished during the time for which they shall have been elected, and the said officers shall receive no other emolument or allowance whatever. (Const. 1868.)

The legislature may designate the compensation of these officials prior to the beginning of their terms and it should follow that the compensation be declared a certain amount less the income tax on that amount. See § 1641. See 11 N. C. Law Rev., 226.

§ 16. Seal of State.—There shall be a seal of the State, which shall be kept by the Governor, and used by him, as occasion may require and shall be called "The Great Seal of the State of North Carolina." All grants and commissions shall be issued in the name and by the authority of the State of North Carolina, sealed with "The Great Seal of the State," signed by the Governor, and countersigned by the Secretary of State. (Const. 1868.)

Countersign Defined.—The verb "countersign" means "to sign on the opposite side" or in addition to the signature of another, and the noun means "the signature of a secretary or other officer to a writing, or writings, added to that by the principal or superior to that which it signifies." Richards v. Ritter Lumber Co., 158 N. C. 54, 73 S. E. 485.

Countersignature Need Not Be in Any Particular Place.—Within the intent and meaning of this section it is not required that the countersignature of the Secretary of State be written or signed in any particular place or position thereon, and when a grant to the land in controversy is put in evidence by one of the parties and in every respect appears to be regular and authentic upon its face, it will not be held to be defective because the countersignature of the Secretary of State appears on the opposite side of the sheet from the signature of the Governor. Richards v. Ritter Lumber Co., 158 N. C. 54, 73 S. E. 485.

§ 17. Department of Agriculture, Immigration, and Statistics.—The General Assembly shall establish a Department of Agriculture, Immigration, and Statistics, under such regulations as may best promote the agricultural interests of the State, and shall enact laws for the adequate protection and encouragement of sheep husbandry. (Const. 1868; Convention 1875.)

Editor's Note.—Sec. 17 in the Constitution of 1868 was as follows: "There shall be established in the State a Department of Agriculture, Immigration, and Statistics, under such regulations as the General Assembly may provide." The section was changed to its present form in the Constitution of 1875. "Mandatory Systems."—This section is not self-executing, but is mandatory upon the Legislature. Cunningham v. Sprinkle, 124 N. C. 658, 33 S. E. 138.

Act Establishing Department of Agriculture.—An act which establishes the number of the board of agriculture, naming the additional members, is not in conflict with this section. Cunningham v. Sprinkle, 124 N. C. 658, 33 S. E. 138.

Cited in Nantahala Power, etc., Co. v. Clay County, 212 N. C. 698, 197 S. E. 603.

§ 18. Department of Justice. The General Assembly is authorized and empowered to create a Department of Justice, and to confer upon the Attorney General, and to enact suitable laws defining the authority of the Attorney General and other officers and agencies concerning the prosecution of crime and the administration of the criminal laws of the State. (1937, c. 447.)

Editor's Note.—The amendment adding this section was proposed by Public Laws 1937, c. 447, and ratified at the next general election. See also, 17 N. C. Law Rev., 375.

ARTICLE IV Judicial Department

§ 1. Abolishes the distinctions between actions at law and suits in equity, and feigned issues.—The distinctions between actions at law and suits in equity, and the forms of all such actions and suits, shall be abolished; and there shall be in this State but one form of action for the enforcement or protection of private rights or the redress of private wrongs, which shall be denominated a civil action; and every action prosecuted by the people of the State as a party, against a person charged with a public offence for the punishment of the same, shall be termed a criminal action. Feigned issues shall also be abolished, and the facts in issue tried by order of court before a jury. (Const. 1868.)

Effect of Section.—This section abolished the distinction between actions at law and suits in equity, and the distinction between equitable and legal rights and remedies to be enforced in the one court, which heretofore had administered simply legal rights. Peebles v. Gay, 115 N. C. 38, 39, 41, 20 S. E. 173. See Reynolds v. Endolds, 205 N. C. 578, 182 S. E. 341.

Under this section and Art. IV, § 20 the Superior Courts became the successors of the Courts of Equity, having their jurisdiction and exercising their equitable powers unless restrained by statute. In re Smith, 200 N. C. 272, 274, 156 S. E. 494.

Legal and equitable rights and remedies are now determined in one court, and the distinction between equitable and legal rights and remedies, nor does it merge legal and equitable rights. Scales v. Wachovia Bank, etc., Co., 193 N. C. 722, 725, 143 S. E. 868.

Equitable Rights Enforced by Civil Action.—Since the passage of this section the enforcement of an equitable right, as that of subrogation, can only be maintained by a civil action. Calvert v. Peebles, 82 N. C. 334, 338.

The rights of the inferior officer to which this section does not affect the rights of a prior lienor by a registered chattel mortgage in favor of a judgment creditor who has sold the personal property by execution under a judgment subsequent to the mortgage lien, or give the creditor a right to levy his execution instead of pursuing the equitable remedy. Rowland Hardware, etc., Co. v. Lewis, 173 N. C. 250, 92 S. E. 13.

"Criminal action" and "Indictment" as used in the Constitution, and in the Code are synonymous: Therefore, it would be equally regular to entitle a case upon the records of the Court, either as "the People v. A. B.—Criminal ac-

Defendant's Right to Know Nature of Demand.—The necessity for drawing pleadings in civil actions according to a prescribed or established precedent, ceased when the form of action was abolished by this section. A person who is brought into Court to answer a demand for damages or for specific property, has the same fundamental right to know the nature of the demand sufficiently well to enable him, with the aid of competent counsel, to prepare his defense, that he has to be informed of the accusation for which he has to answer criminally. Conley v. Richmond, etc., Ry. Co., 192 N. C. 392, 136 S. E. 331.

Asking for Ancillary Remedy.—There being but one form of action in civil cases, the fact that a plaintiff asks for one of the many remedies ancillary thereto, to which he is not entitled under the action itself, will go to show, if it is to be entitled to any other of the remedies. Hargrove v. Harris, 116 N. C. 418, 21 S. E. 916.

Pleadings Amended by Court.—Where a good cause of action is shown in the petition by this section, the court may require the pleadings to be made definite and certain by amendment, the distinction between statements in equity and actions at law as to jurisdiction matters being abolished by this section. Green v. Harshaw, 187 N. C. 213, 162 S. E. 756. The court has no application. Makuen v. Elder, 170 N. C. 510, 87 S. E. 545.

§ 6. Supreme Court.—The Supreme Court shall consist of a Chief Justice and four Associate Justices. The General Assembly may increase the number of Associate Justices to not more than six when the work of the Court so requires. The Court shall have power to sit in divisions, when in its judgment this is necessary for the proper dispatch of business, and to make rules for the distribution of business between the divisions and for the ordering of cases by the full Court. No decision of any division shall become the judgment of the Court unless concurred in by a majority of all the Justices; and no case involving a construction of the Constitution of the State or of the United States shall be decided except by the Court en banc. All sessions of the Court shall be held in the city of Raleigh. This amendment made to the Constitution of North Carolina shall not have the effect to vacate any office or term of office now existing under: the Constitution of the State, and filled or held by virtue of any election or appointment under the said Constitution, and the laws of the State made in pursuance thereof. (Const. 1868; Convention 1875.)

Editor's Note.—This section as it appeared in the Constitution of 1868 (Section 8) read as follows: “The Supreme Court shall consist of a Chief Justice and four Associate Justices.” The number of Associate Justices was changed to two by the Convention of 1875, and again to four pursuant to Chapter 212 of the Public Laws of 1887. This section was adopted in its present form pursuant to Chapter 444 of the Public Laws of 1935.

§ 7. Terms of the Supreme Court.—The terms of the Supreme Court shall be held in the city of Raleigh, as now, until otherwise provided by the General Assembly. (Const. 1868; Convention 1875.)

Editor's Note.—Sec. 9 in the Constitution of 1868 was as follows: “The Supreme Court shall hold its sessions at Raleigh, at the seat of government of the State in each year, commencing on the first Monday in January, and the first Monday in June, and continuing as long as the public interests may require.” This section was changed to the present Sec. 7 by the Convention of 1875. Subsequently the General Assembly changed the time of holding the two terms to the first Monday in February and the last Monday in August. Ch. 178, Public Laws of 1881; Ch. 49, Public Laws of 1887; Ch. 600, Public Laws of 1901; Revisal, 1905, s. 1535.

§ 8. Jurisdiction of Supreme Court.—The Supreme Court shall have jurisdiction to review, upon appeal, any decision of the courts below, upon any matter of law or legal inference. And the jurisdiction of said court over “issues of fact” and “questions of fact” shall be the same exercised by it before the adoption of the Constitution of one thousand eight hundred and sixty-eight, and the court shall have the power to issue any remedial writs necessary to give it a general supervision and control over the proceedings of the inferior courts. (Const. 1868; Convention 1875.)

Cross Reference.—For a thorough treatment of the appellate jurisdiction of the supreme court, see sections 1-277 and 7-10 and annotations therewith.

Editor's Note.—Sec. 8 of the Constitution of 1868, changed to Sec. 8 of the present Constitution by the Convention of 1875, read as follows: “The Supreme Court shall have jurisdiction to review, upon appeal, any decision of the Courts below, upon any matter of law or legal inference; but no issue of fact shall be tried before this Court; and the Court, shall have power to issue any remedial writs necessary to give it a general supervision and control of the inferior courts.”

What Reviewable.—On appeal to the Supreme Court, only error as to the law or legal inferences are reviewable upon the record in the case. Merchants Nat. Bank v. Howard, 188 N. C. 543, 125 S. E. 654; See also, Barnes v. Teen, 218 N. C. 346, 157 S. E. 654; Stidham v. N. C. 833, 15 S. E. (2d) 379; McKay v. Bullard, 219 N. C. 589, 14 S. E. (2d) 657.

This section empowers the Supreme Court to review on appeal any judgment of the courts below, upon any matter of law or legal inference; and this is to be presented in accordance with the mandatory rules of the Supreme Court. State v. Bird, 206 N. C. 296, 172 S. E. 299. See State v. Jackson, 211 N. C. 202, 169 S. E. 510.

Theory of Trial in Lower Court Is Adhered to.—The principle that an appeal will be determined in accordance with the theory of trial in the lower court below is adhered to by the Supreme Court because of its limited jurisdiction as an appellate court under this section. Apostle v. Acacia Mut. Life Ins. Co., 208 N. C. 95, 179 S. E. 444. See Ammons v. Fisher, 208 N. C. 712, 182 S. E. 475.

“Issues of Fact” Defined.—Issues of fact has been defined by the Court to mean “such matters of fact as are put in issue by the pleadings, and a decision of which would be inconsistent with the substance of the cause of action” and “issues of fact” by the Court to mean “such matters of fact as are put in issue by the pleadings.” Battle v. Mayo, 102 N. C. 413, 435, 9 S. E. 384.

Review of Issues of Fact.—The jurisdiction of the supreme court over issues of fact, under this section, will be assumed upon two conditions: 1. If the matter be of such an equitable nature as a court of equity under the former system took exclusive cognizance of. 2. If the proofs are written and documentary and in all respects the same as they were when submitted to the judge of the court below passed upon them. Worthy v. Shields, 90 N. C. 192. See Keener v. Finger, 70 N. C. 35.

This prohibition of trials of “issues of fact” by the Supreme Court extends to both civil and criminal cases, and does not hinder that tribunal from trying such questions of fact as may be involved in a consideration of the propriety of continuing or vacating an order for a provisional injunction, or for the suppression of a恒名 in criminal cases, or in habeas corpus proceedings.

The Supreme Court cannot consider a paper which, unrelated to the trial, purports upon its face to have raised an issue of facts after the adjournment as to the recitals set forth in the commission given the presiding judge. State v. Graham, 194 N. C. 459, 463, 140 S. E. 26.

Habeas Corpus.—No appeal to the Supreme Court lies upon the refusal of the judge, having jurisdiction, to release the petitionee in habeas corpus proceedings, except in cases concerning the care and custody of children, the remedy being by application for the writ of certiorari which is entertained in the discretion of the Supreme Court to mean “such matters of fact as are put in issue by the pleadings and on appeal the Supreme Court can review only matters of law or legal inference.” State v. Moore, 210 N. C. 686, 188 S. E. 809; State v. Yates, 183 N. C. 763, 111 S. E. 351; State v. Yates, 183 N. C. 753, 111 S. E. 337. In re Blake, 184 N. C. 278, 114 S. E. 294.

A decree in habeas corpus proceedings to determine the custody of a child as between its divorced parents is not appealable, the sole remedy being by certiorari to invoke the constitutional power of the Supreme Court to supervise and control proceedings of inferior courts. In re Ogden, 211 N. C. 100, 185 S. E. 119.

Writ of Certiorari.—Where an application for writ of certiorari in the nature of a writ of error is made for the purpose of bringing up an appeal when the right of appeal is made to the Supreme Court by failure to file statement of case on appeal within the time allowed, applicant must negative lack and show merit. State v. Moore, 210 N. C. 686, 188 S. E. 809.

Cavet to Will.—Under the provisions of this section the Supreme Court on appeal from an issue of devisavit vel non, involved in the trial of a caveat to a will, is confined to a consideration of assignments of error in

Sec. 10. The Supreme Court has not original jurisdiction to hear claims against the State, but its decisions shall be merely recommendatory; no process in the nature of execution shall issue thereon; they shall be reported to the next session of the General Assembly for its action. (Const. 1868.)

See notes under § 7-8.

The claimant against the State is not entitled to the receipt of any fees or compensation for his services, and he shall be dismissed from court when his petition is denied. Calhoun v. State, 201 N. C. 312, 160 S. E. 133.

The jurisdiction of the Supreme Court to hear claims against the State is confined to the powers given by this section and is not enlarged by the rules of procedure prescribed by statute, and where the complaint presents only an issue of fact the proceeding will be dismissed. Calhoun v. State, 201 N. C. 312, 160 S. E. 133.

What Examination Confined To.—The jurisdiction conferred upon the Supreme Court by this section to hear claims against the State is confined to an examination of and adjudication of the legal validity of such claims; no power to enforce its judgment is given the court; its decisions are merely recommendatory to the Legislature, who may provide by law the mode of proceeding, if any, to be pursued in such cases, and this Court does not pass upon conflicting evidence to determine the facts at issue. Dredging Co. v. State, 191 N. C. 243, 131 S. E. 665. See also, Rotan v. State, 195 N. C. 473, 141 S. E. 533.

Kind of Claims Reviewed.—The claim against the State must be such as, against any other defendant, could be resisted by defenses, and enforced by execution. Bain v. State, 86 N. C. 49.

Necessity of Question of Law.—The Supreme Court has not original jurisdiction to hear claims against the State in which no question of law is involved. State v. 134 N. C. 270, 46 S. E. 514; Bledsoe v. State, 64 N. C. 399.

The Supreme Court will not recommend to the Legislature the payment of a claim against the State, if there are no questions of law involved, or when such questions are resolved against the claimant. Dredging Company v. State, 191 N. C. 243, 131 S. E. 665.

A claim against the State is not entitled to the recommendatory jurisdiction of the Supreme Court upon petition presented to it under the provisions of this section; but its recommendatory jurisdiction shall be invoked in the manner prescribed by statute. Warren v. State, 199 N. C. 211, 153 S. E. 654.

Repeal of Statute.—The repeal of statute under which a contract has been made between the plaintiff and the State, by which the plaintiff is deprived of his contract rights, is not original jurisdiction to hear claims against the State.
now twenty-one judicial districts in the State. G. S. §§ 7-68, et seq.

§ 11. Residences of judges; rotation in judicial districts; and special terms.—Every judge of the Superior Court shall reside in the district for which he is elected. The judges shall preside in the courts of the different districts successively, but no judge shall hold courts in the same district oftener than once in four years; but in case of the protracted illness of the judge assigned to preside in any district, or of any other unavoidable accident to him, by reason of which he shall be unable to preside, the Governor may require any judge to hold one or more special terms of said court by exchange with some other judge, and with the sanction of the Governor nor to the holding of special terms under the order contemplated in said provision. State v. Turner, 119 N. C. 531; E. E. 188.

The governor under this section, can require a judge of the superior court to hold a term of the court in a county not within his own district. And when the governor so authorizes the court, he must require the court to hold such court, expressing in the commission that it is done with his consent, and under that authority the judge holds the court, as between the judge and the parties in the court, the consent and authority granted by the governor is equivalent to a command. State v. Watson, 75 N. C. 136.

Appointment upon Death of Judge.—Upon the death of one of the judges of the superior court, the Governor may require any judge to hold the courts under the authority under this section to require one or other of the judges to hold one or more special terms of the courts in the district assigned to the deceased judge. State v. Lewis, 105 N. C. 967, 116 S. E. 495.

When Regular Judge Able to Hold Court.—Objection by the defendant charged with a capital felony to the authority of the judge assigned by the governor of the State to hold a special term of the superior court, upon the ground that the judge assigned to hold the courts of the district was in good health, and holding a term of the court in another county, cannot be sustained. Stated in Reid v. Lipscomb, 122 N. C. 650, 29 S. E. 57; Mott v. Commissioners, 206 N. C. 791, 796, 175 S. E. 478. See also, Collins v. Wooten, 212 N. C. 359, 193 S. E. 785.

No jurisdiction is conferred upon a resident judge of the superior court to hold the same. Dunn v. Taylor, 190 N. C. 341, 130 S. E. 838. Emergency judges, appointed under the provisions of our statute, as to the superior courts, have the power to deprive the judicial department of any power or jurisdiction which rightfully pertains to it as a coordinate department of the government; but the General Assembly shall allot and distribute that portion of this power and jurisdiction which does not pertain to the Supreme Court among the other courts prescribed in this Constitution or which may be established by law, in such manner as it may deem best; provide also a proper system of appeals; and regulate by law, when necessary, the methods of proceeding in the exercise of their powers, of all the courts below the Supreme Court, so that the same may be done without conflict with other provisions of this Constitution. (Const. 1868; Convention 1875.)

As to Constitutional Compromise Act under this section see Art. IV, § 2 and notes thereto.

Editor's Note.—This section was added by the Convention of 1875, replacing Secs. 15, 16 and 17 of the Constitution of 1868 which were as follows:

"Sec. 15. The Superior Courts shall have exclusive original jurisdiction of all civil actions, whereof exclusive original jurisdiction is not given to some other court; and all criminal actions in which the punishment may exceed a fine of fifty dollars or imprisonment for one month."

"Sec. 16. The Superior Courts shall have appellate jurisdiction, and such inferior courts as the General Assembly may create, so that the constitutional powers and jurisdiction of the judicial department, 'which does not per-" interfere with vested rights, or the constitutional rights of the other parties. State v. Webb, 125 N. C. 243, 34 S. E. 430.

"Sec. 17. The General Assembly may create inferior courts to Su-" perior Court, subject to review by the Supreme Court upon any appeal and review only on matters of law. State v. Carolina Scenic Coach Co., 218 N. C. 231, 310 S. E. (2d) 824.

"Sec. 18. In case of waiver of trial by jury.—In all issues of fact, joined in any court, the parties may waive the right to have the same determined by a jury; in which case the finding of the judge upon the facts shall have the force and effect of a verdict by a jury. (Const. 1868.)"

For a thorough treatment of waiver of jury trial see sections 1-184 and 1-188 and annotations thereunder.

Waiver of Indictment.—Section 15-140 authorizing the waiver of an indictment in the Superior Court by the defendant and validating the court's proceedings is constitutional and valid. State v. Jones, 181 N. C. 543, 106 S. E. 827.

Waiver by Agreement.—Where the cause on appeal recites that the parties agreed that the court might render judgment out of term and out of the district, and the judgment recites the same, appellant's contention that trial by the court had not been agreed upon cannot be sustained, since trial by jury would be impossible under the agreement that judgment might be rendered out of term and out of the district. Odum v. Palmer, 209 N. C. 93, 182 S. E. 741.

Attachment Proceedings.—In attachment and other ancillary proceedings, is it not necessary to join all the parties or those facts from the affidavits and other evidence; and a party consenting to this mode of trial cannot afterwards demand a jury trial. Passour v. Linbergh, 90 N. C. 139.

Findings of Court Are Conclusive.—Where a jury trial is waived, the findings by the court upon conflicting evidence are conclusive under this section, and are not subject to review upon appeal. Buirringer v. Williamson Sav., etc., Co., 197 N. C. 777, 195 S. E. 159.

cities and towns, where the same may be necessary. (Const. 1868.)

See sections 7-185 et seq.

In General.—This section was construed with Art. IV, § 2 and 19-2-22, 30 in determining the meaning of "other courts" in the case of Meador v. Thomas, 205 N. C. 142, 170 S. E. 110. The language held to modify Art. IV, § 27 in the cases of State v. Doster, 157 N. C. 634, 72 S. E. 111; Farmers' Cotton Oil Co. v. Blue Ridge Gro. Co., 169 N. C. 521, 86 S. E. 356.

Constitutionality of Act Establishing Court.—A legislative enactment creating a municipal court for an incorporated city or town, and conferring thereon jurisdiction in a territorial area extending one mile beyond its corporate limits over criminal cases concurrently cognizable in a justice's court, is valid and does not contravene this section. State v. Brown, 159 N. C. 467, 74 S. E. 580. See also, Washington v. Hammond, 76 N. C. 33; State v. Collins, 151 N. C. 617; State v. Boyd, 175 N. C. 791, 95 S. E. 161.

Jurisdiction Confined to Misdemeanors.—This jurisdiction of courts established under this Constitution is confined to misdemeanors. State v. Walker, 65 N. C. 461; State v. Barkerville, 141 N. C. 811, 53 S. E. 742.

Appeal.—The legislature cannot give to courts established under this section a right of appeal direct to the Supreme Court, State v. Anderson, 138 N. C. 718, 51 S. E. 66. Quoted in Durham Provision Co. v. Davis, 190 N. C. 7, 129 S. E. 993.

§ 15. Clerk of the Supreme Court.—The clerk of the Supreme Court shall be appointed by the Court, and shall hold his office for eight years. (Const. 1868.)

§ 16. Election of Superior Court clerk.—A clerk of the Superior Court for each county shall be elected by the qualified voters thereof, at the time and in the manner prescribed by law for the election of members of the General Assembly. (Const. 1868.)

See section 2-2.

When Term Begins.—The term of office of a superior court clerk, elected in August, 1878, began on the first Monday of August, 1878. (Const. 1868.)

Cited in Rodwell v. Rowland, 137 N. C. 617, 621, 50 S. E. 319; In re Styers’ Estate, 202 N. C. 715, 164 S. E. 123.

See section 2-2.

§ 18. Fees, salaries and emoluments.—The General Assembly shall prescribe and regulate the fees, salaries, and emoluments of all officers provided for in this article; but the salaries of the judges shall not be diminished during their continuance in office. (Const. 1868.)

See secs. 138-1 et seq., and the notes thereto.

The legislature may designate the compensation of these officials prior to the beginning of their terms and it should follow that the compensation may be declared a tax and the amount less the income tax on that amount. See § 105-141. See 11 N. C. Law Rev., 256.

In General.—The General Assembly may designate the compensation of the officers of the Superior Court, including the justices, after the beginning of their terms and it should follow that the compensation may be declared a tax and the amount less the income tax on that amount. See § 105-141. See 11 N. C. Law Rev., 256.

Legislature May Delimit Power to Fix Salary of County Court Judge.—The fixing of the salary of the judge of a county court is essentially a local matter which the general assembly may delegate to the commissioners of the county, unless otherwise provided by the General Assembly, in accordance with the provisions of sec. 14, ch. 515, Public Local Laws of 1939, providing that the board of county commissioners of Forsyth county should have the power to fix the salary of the judge of the county court, is a constitutional delegation of the power of the legislature. Efrid v. Board of Com’rs, 219 N. C. 29, 21, 899.

Prohibition of Salary Diminution Applies to Constitutional Courts.—The provision of this section that the salaries of judges shall not be diminished during their continuance in office applies only to judges of courts existing by virtue of the constitution and not to those established by legislative enactment. Efrid v. Board of Com’rs, 219 N. C. 29, 21, 899.

Salaries Exempt From Taxation.—Where the constitution provides that the salaries of judges shall not be diminished during their continuance in office, the salaries are exempt from taxation. See § 19 of the Taxation of Salaries of Judges, 131 N. C. 692, 42 S. E. 970.

The constitutional restriction on the legislature not to diminish salaries of the judges during their continuance in office is unaffected by the amendment of 1920, (as to income tax), and though their income from other sources may be taxed, a tax on their salaries during their term of office is in their judgment and from such source in contravention of the express terms of this section. Long v. Watts, 183 N. C. 99, 110 S. E. 765. See Note in 1 N. C. Law Rev. 39.

Same.—When Salaries Increased.—An increase of the salaries of the judges during a term of office is the fixing of their salary by the Legislature in such amount as in its judgment is a proper compensation for their services, and attempting by the agency of the Legislature, either under actual or mistaken authority, to impose a tax thereon is an attempt to diminish these salaries during the term of office. Long v. Watts, 183 N. C. 99, 110 S. E. 765.

Same.—Duty of Supreme Court to Pass upon Rights.—It is the duty of the Supreme Court to pass upon the rights of one of the judges of the State as a citizen thereof, when he, in a case properly presented, in the exercise of the constitutional right of the State or one of its designated agencies, to tax his salary paid to him as one of its judges, being in contravention of this section, prohibiting the Legislature from diminishing the salaries of the judges during their continuance in office. Long v. Watts, 183 N. C. 99, 110 S. E. 765.

Same.—Compensation for Holding Extra Term.—The additional compensation of one hundred dollars given to a Superior Court Judge for services in holding a special term is a part of his salary. Buxton v. Commissioners, 52 N. C. 91.

§ 19. What laws are, and shall be, in force.—The laws of North Carolina, not repugnant to this Constitution or to the Constitution and laws of the United States, shall be in force until lawfully altered. (Const. 1868.)

§ 20. Disposition of actions at law and suits in equity, pending when this Constitution shall go into effect, etc.—Actions at law and suits in equity pending when this Constitution shall go into effect shall be transferred to the courts having jurisdiction thereof, without prejudice by reason of the change; and all such actions and suits commenced before, and pending at the adhesion by the General Assembly of the rules of practice and procedure herein provided for, shall be heard and determined according to the practice now in use, unless otherwise provided for by said rules. (Const. 1868.)

As to Superior Courts becoming the successors of Courts of Equity see § 1 of this Article and notes thereto. Applied in Johnson v. Sedberry, 65 N. C. 1.

§ 21. Elections, terms of office, etc., of justices of the Supreme and judges of the Superior courts.—The justices of the Supreme Court shall be elected by the qualified voters of the State, as is provided for the election of members of the General Assembly. They shall hold their offices for eight years. The judges of the Superior Courts, elected at the first election under this amendment, shall be elected in like manner as is provided for justices of the Supreme Court, [33] and shall hold their offices for eight years. The General Assembly may, from time to time, provide by law that the judges of the Superior Courts, chosen at succeeding elections, instead of being elected by the voters of the whole State, as is herein provided for, shall be elected by the voters of their respective districts. (Const. 1868; Convention 1875.)

See section 7-2.

Editor's Note.—To form this section, the Constitution of 1875 combined with some changes Secs. 26 and 27 of the Constitution of 1868, which were as follows:

"Sec. 26. The Judges of the Superior Court shall be elected by qualified voters of the State, as is provided for the election of members of the General Assembly. They shall hold their offices for eight years. The Judges of the Superior Courts shall be elected in like manner, and shall hold their offices for eight years; but the Judges of the Superior Courts elected at the first election under this Constitution shall, after their election, under the superintendence of the Justices of the Supreme Court, be divided by lot into two equal classes, one of which shall hold office for four years, the other for eight years."

"Sec. 27. The General Assembly may by law increase the number of judges of the Superior Courts, instead of being elected by the voters of the whole State, as is herein provided for, shall be elected by the voters of their respective districts."

§ 22. Transaction of business in the Superior Courts. — The Superior Courts shall be, at all times, open for the transaction of all business within their jurisdiction, except the trial of issues of fact requiring a jury. (Const. 1868.)

Does Not Apply to Terms of Courts.—This section must be read in connection with section 11 of this article, and does not apply to the terms of courts and matters connected therewith. Delfield v. Mercer Construction Co., 117 N. C. 21, 20 S. E. 127.

Court of Clerk Not Included.—The phrase "superior court" in this section does not mean the court of the clerk. McAdoo v. Benbow, 63 N. C. 661.

Rendition of Judgment After Term.—Where the issues of fact had been disposed of by a consent verdict, and the court having jurisdiction of the case, clearly, and being always open, there is nothing in this clause of the Constitution which forbids the rendition of a judgment upon verdict after the expiration of the term, as well as during the term. Harrell v. Peebles, 79 N. C. 26, 31. See, also, Shackelford v. Miller, 91 N. C. 161.

§ 23. Solicitors and Solicitorial Districts.—The State shall be divided into twenty-one solicitorial districts, for each of which a solicitor shall be chosen by the qualified voters thereof, as is prescribed for members of the General Assembly, who shall hold office for the term of four years, and prosecute on behalf of the State, in all criminal actions in the Superior Courts, and advise the officers of justice in his district. (Const. 1868; Convention 1875.)

Editor's Note.—Section 29 of Article IV of the Constitution of 1868 read as follows prior to its amendment pursuant to Chapter 2 of the Public Laws of 1941 ratified by vote of the people in November, 1941: "A solicitor shall be elected for each solicitorial district, by the qualified voters thereof, as is prescribed for members of the General Assembly, who shall hold office for the term of four years, and prosecute on behalf of the State, in all criminal actions in the Superior Courts, and advise the officers of justice in his district."

Public Laws 1927, c. 99, Public Laws 1929, c. 140, and Public Laws 1931, c. 367 proposed amendments to this section which were defeated.

Issuance of Capias.—A solicitor is the most responsible officer of the State and has been spoken of as "his right arm." He is a constitutional officer and his duties are presented in the Constitution of 1868 as follows: "The judges of the superior court shall have the power, and the power only, to render judgment upon verdict after the expiration of the term, as well as during the term."

"The phrase "superior court" in this section does not mean the court of the clerk. McAdoo v. Benbow, 63 N. C. 661.

§ 24. Sheriffs and coroners.—In each county a sheriff and coroner shall be elected by the qualified voters thereof as is prescribed for members of the General Assembly, and shall hold their offices for a period of four years. In each township there shall be a constable elected in like manner by the voters thereof, who shall hold his office for a period of two years. When there is no coroner in a county, the clerk of the Superior Court for the county may appoint one for special cases. In case of a vacancy existing for any cause in any of the offices created by this section, the commissioners of the county may appoint to such office for the unexpired term. (Const. 1868; 1937, c. 241.)

As to sheriffs and constables, see sections 162-1, 151-1. As to attorneys, see section 7-2.

Editor's Note.—The effect of the amendment adopted pursuant to Chapter 241 of the Public Laws of 1937 was to change the terms of office of the sheriff and coroner from two years to four years.

A sheriff occupies a constitutional public office, and a sheriff takes office, not by contract, but by commission subject to the power of the legislature to fix fees and compensation for which the Constitution does not provide. Borders v. Cline, 212 N. C. 472, 191 S. E. 836.

The term of office of sheriffs-elect begins on the first Monday in December next ensuing their election, and the constitutional amendment changing the term of office of sheriffs from two to four years, approved by the voters in the election of 1936, being in effect on the first Monday in December, in the date of the beginning of the term of the sheriff elected in the election which is elected in the election, their term of office is four years in accordance with the amendment then in effect. Freeman v. Cook, 217 N. C. 63, 6 S. E. (2d) 894.

County Sheriff.—When the sheriff is provided for by this section, the right of the sheriff to appoint deputies is a common law right and deputies appointed by the sheriff are public officers, but their duties and authority relate only to ministerial duties imposed by law upon the sheriff, in the performance of which they act for the sheriff in his name and right. Gowens v. Alamance County, 216 N. C. 107, 3 S. E. (2d) 175.

Vacancy after Expiration of Term.—Where a constable was elected in 1875 for four years, and no election was had in 1877, a vacancy occurred which the county commissioners had the power to fill under this section. State v. McLure, 81 N. C. 152.

Vacancy after Expiration of Term.—Where a constable was elected in 1875 for four years, and no election was had in 1877, a vacancy occurred which the county commissioners had the power to fill under this section. State v. McLure, 81 N. C. 152.

If, before the expiration of his term a sheriff is re-elected but dies before the expiration of that term, the commissioners are entitled to appoint someone to fill the vacancy for the remainder of the first term, and the officers of justice relate only to ministerial duties imposed by law upon the sheriff, in the performance of which they act for the sheriff in his name and right. Gowens v. Alamance County, 216 N. C. 107, 3 S. E. (2d) 175.

§ 25. Vacancies.—All vacancies occurring in the offices provided for by this article of the Constitution shall be filled by the appointment of the Governor, unless otherwise provided for, and the appointees shall hold their places until the next regular election for members of the General Assembly, when elections shall be held to fill such offices. If any person, elected or appointed to any of said offices, shall neglect and fail to qualify, such offices shall be appointed to, held and filled as provided in case of vacancies occurring therein. All incumbents of said offices shall hold until their successors are qualified. (Const. 1868; Convention 1875.)

Editor’s Note.—This section is Sec. 31 of the Constitution of 1868 as amended by the Convention of 1875 by the addition of the latter portion beginning with the words “for members.”

Limitation on Term Appointed For.—The provisions added to the original section were manifestly made, in view of the decision of the Supreme Court in People v. Wilson, 72 N. C. 155, and were intended to limit the tenure of the appointees from the death or resignation of an incumbent, or by the refusal of a person elected to qualify, to the time intervening between the making of the appointment and the next regular election for members of the General Assembly, together with a reasonable interval for qualification. State v. Jones, 116 N. C. 570, 575, 21 S. E. 787.

Concurrence of the Governor.—The general appointing power is given to the Governor with the concurrence of the Senate; the power to fill vacancies, not otherwise provided for, is given to the Governor alone, and that, whether the Legislature is in session or not, and without calling the Senate. N. C. v. Nichols, 68 N. C. 429.

Meaning of “Until the Next Regular Election.”—The words “until the next regular election,” in this section mean until the next regular election for the office in which a vacancy has occurred. People v. Wilson, 72 N. C. 155.

Refusal of Judge to Accept Office.—Where a person was elected judge of the Superior Court, and refused to accept the office, the Governor was never qualified there was a vacancy within the meaning of this section and the Governor had the power to fill such vacancy by appointing a successor. People v. Wilson, 72 N. C. 155.

Constables Not Included.—The provision in this section that “all incumbents of said offices shall hold until their successors are qualified,” does not embrace the office of constable. State v. McLaurin, 84 N. C. 153.

§ 26. Terms of office of first officers. —The officers elected at the first election held under this Constitution shall hold their offices for the terms prescribed for them respectively, next ensuing after the next regular election for members of the General Assembly. But their terms shall begin upon the approval of this Constitution by the Congress of the United States. (Const. 1868.)

Time of First Election.—The next regular election for members of the General Assembly is to be held on the first Thursday in August 1870. Legislative Term of Office, 64 N. C. 154.

§ 27. Jurisdiction of justices of the peace. —The several justices of the peace shall have jurisdiction, under such regulations as the General Assembly shall prescribe, of civil actions, founded on contract, wherein the sum demanded shall not exceed two hundred dollars, and wherein the title to real estate shall not be in controversy; and of all criminal matters arising within their counties where the punishment cannot exceed a fine of fifty dollars or imprisonment for thirty days. And the General Assembly may give to the justices of the peace jurisdiction of other civil actions wherein the value of the property in controversy does not exceed fifty dollars. When an issue of fact shall be joined before a justice, on demand of either party thereto he shall cause a jury of six men to be summoned, who shall try the same. The party against whom the judgment shall be rendered in any civil action may appeal to the Superior Court from the same. In all cases where the criminal nature of the party as regards whom the judgment is given may appeal to the Superior Court, where the matter shall be heard anew. In all cases brought before a justice, he shall make a record of the proceedings, and file the same with the clerk of the Superior Court for his county. (Const. 1868; Convention 1875.)

Editor’s Note.—This section is Sec. 33 of the Constitution of 1868 with the following changes made by the Convention of 1875: Omission of the words “exclusive original jurisdiction” in line 2; omission of “all” before “civil jurisdiction” in line 3; substitution of “thirty days” for “one month”; addition of the sentence beginning with “And” omission of the clauses “and, if the judgment shall exceed twenty-five dollars, there may be a new trial of the whole matter in the Appellate Court; but if the judgment shall be for twenty-five dollars or less, then the case shall be heard in the Appellate Court only upon matters of law” after the phrase “Superior court from the same” in line 15.

Jurisdiction of Justice.—A justice of the peace can only exercise such powers as are conferred upon him by this section of the Constitution, and the statutes in harmony therewith. His jurisdiction is special, not general, and his authority is not to be enlarged by principles of law applicable to courts of general jurisdiction, methods of procedure not strictly allowed by law. State v. Jones, 100 N. C. 438, 5 S. E. 655.

Same.—Jurisdiction Concurrent.—The jurisdiction conferred upon justices of the peace to try civil actions, where the property in controversy does not exceed fifty dollars, is concurrent with that possessed by the superior court. Montague v. Mial, 69 N. C. 127.

Same—Waiver of Objection by Appearance. —Where the defendant is sued on two accounts before a justice of the peace separately stated, each appearing to be in amount coming within the jurisdiction of the justice, and his appearing and acknowledging his liability for the sum total he thereafter waives his right on appeal to set up the defense that in fact the two accounts were but one. Honig v. Hayes, 124 N. C. 108, 109, 36 S. E. 655.

Section Does Not Embrace Damages.—The provisions in this section, authorizing the General Assembly to give the justices of the peace jurisdiction of other civil actions wherein the property in controversy does not exceed fifty dollars, is not a restriction, even by implication, to forbid conferring jurisdiction where damages and not property is given. Criminal Appeals. Marloy v. Fayetteville, 122 N. C. 400, 29 S. E. 880.

Contempt.—The constitutional restriction imposed by this section applies also to the administration of the law in the trial of criminal cases, and were not intended to affect the inherent or statutory powers possessed by these courts and conferred upon them as necessary to enable them to transact business properly and efficiently. State v. Griffin, 133 N. C. 801, 46 S. E. 781; State v. Mclntire, 133 N. C. 733, 46 S. E. 783.

Criminal Appeals.—The clause of this section providing that an appeal from a judgment of the justice of the peace is not to be given to courts of general jurisdiction where damages and not property is given is not overruled. Malloy v. Fayetteville, 122 N. C. 400, 29 S. E. 880.

§ 28. Vacancies in office of justices.—When the office of justice of the peace shall become vacant otherwise than by expiration of the term, and in case of a failure by the voters of any district to elect, the clerk of the Superior Court for the county shall appoint to fill the vacancy for the unexpired term. (Const. 1868.)

Conferring Authority on Governor.—A statute, conferring authority upon the Governor to fill vacancies in the office of justices, caused by the failure of the appointees authorized to provide for the election of officers and clerks of the various courts, by the presiding officers of the various courts, and the clerks of such courts in inferior courts shall receive notice thereof, accompanied by a copy of the causes alleged for their removal, at least twenty days before the day on which such courts are to hold their sessions. (Constitution of 1875.)

§ 29. Vacancies in office of Superior Court clerk.—In case the office of clerk of a Superior Court for a county shall become vacant otherwise than by expiration of the term, and in case of a failure by the people of any district to elect, the clerk of the Superior Court for the county shall appoint to fill the vacancy until an election can be held in the regular field. (Const. 1869.)

Town of Appointee.—Under this section the appointee of the judge holds only until the next election at which members of the General Assembly are chosen. Rodwell v. Rowland, 177 N. C. 617, 621, 50 S. E. 319.

§ 30. Officers of other courts inferior to Supreme Court. — In case the General Assembly shall establish other courts inferior to the Supreme Court, the presiding officers and clerks thereof shall be elected in such manner as the General Assembly may from time to time prescribe, and they shall hold their offices for a term not exceeding eight years. (Constitution of 1875.)

Editor's Note.—This section was added by the Constitution of 1875.

Legislature May Elect Clerk.—Where a criminal court is created the legislature could either elect the clerk itself or devolve his election upon the people, or other constituency. White v. Murray, 126 N. C. 153, 157, 53 S. E. 256.

May Provide for Election of Officers of County Courts.—Under the provisions of this section, the Legislature is authorized to provide for the election of officers and clerks of County Courts established by it, and the courts being "other courts inferior to the Supreme Court" referred to in Art. IV, §§ 2 and 14. Meador v. Thomas, 205 N. C. 142, 170 S. E. 170.

The word "election" does not necessarily import a popular election by the qualified electors, and the delegation of the power of the Superior Court to the county commissioners is not an unlawful delegation of legislative power, this section providing that they "shall be elected in such manner as the general assembly may prescribe." Meador v. Thomas, 205 N. C. 142, 170 S. E. 170.

§ 31. Removal of judges of the various courts for inability.—Any judge of the Supreme Court, or of the Superior Courts, and the presiding officers of such courts inferior to the Supreme Court as may be established by law, may be removed from office for mental or physical inability, upon a concurrent resolution of two-thirds of both houses of the General Assembly. The judge or presiding officer against whom the General Assembly may be about to proceed shall receive notice thereof, accompanied by a copy of the causes alleged for his removal, at least twenty days before the day on which either house of the General Assembly shall act thereon. (Constitution of 1875.)

Editor's Note.—This section was added by the Constitution of 1875.

§ 32. Removal of clerks of the various courts for inability.—Any clerk of the Supreme Court, or of the Superior Courts, or of such courts inferior to the Supreme Court as may be established by law, may be removed from office for mental or physical inability; the clerk of the Supreme Court by the judges of said court, the clerks of the Superior Courts by the judges riding the district, and the clerks of such courts inferior to the Supreme Court as may be established by law by the presiding officers of said courts. The clerk against whom proceedings are instituted shall receive notice thereof, accompanied by a copy of the cause alleged for his removal, at least ten days before the day appointed to act thereon, and the clerk shall be entitled to an appeal to the next term of the Superior Court and thence to the Supreme Court as provided in other cases of appeals. (Constitution of 1875.)

§ 33. Amendments not to vacate existing of-
Art. V, § 1
CONSTITUTION OF NORTH CAROLINA

§ 1. Capitation tax; exemptions. — The General Assembly may levy a capitation tax on every male inhabitant of the State over twenty-one and under fifty years of age, which said tax shall not exceed one dollar. No other capitation tax shall be levied. The commissioners of the several counties and of the cities and towns may exempt from the capitation tax any special cases on account of poverty or infirmity. (Const. 1868; Ex. Sess. 1920, c. 93.)

For article on property and poll tax limitations under this section and section 6 of this article, see 18 N. C. Law Rev. 275.

Editor's Note.—This section was changed pursuant to Ch. 93, Public Laws of 1920, extra session, from Sec. 1 in the Constitution of 1868 which was as follows: "The General Assembly may levy a capitation tax on every male inhabitant of the State over twenty-one and under fifty years of age, which shall be equal on each, to the tax on property value at three hundred dollars in cash. The Commissioners of the several counties may exempt from capitation tax in special cases, on account of poverty and infirmity, and the State and county capitation tax combines shall never exceed two dollars on the head."

Effect of Amendment on Bonds Purchased Prior Thereto. —The amendment will invalidate taxation of the polls in a township which had met the constitutional requirement before the amendment took effect for the first time; but the prohibition will have no effect of impairing vested rights existing under a valid contract. Board v. Bray Bros. Co., 134 N. C. 484, 115 S. E. 47; Hammond v. McKenzie, 182 N. C. 747, 110 S. E. 102.

§ 2. Application of proceeds of State and county capitation tax. — The proceeds of the State and county capitation tax shall be applied to the purposes of education and the support of the poor, but in no one year shall more than twenty-five per cent thereof be appropriated to the latter purpose. (Const. 1868.)

Section Only Applies to General Purposes. — An objection that the tax was not a part of the general revenue for the use of the public roads in violation of this section, which appropriates the State and county poll tax "to the purposes of education and the support of the poor," can not be sustained, as that provision applies to the levy of taxation for general, not special, purposes. Crocker v. Moore, 140 N. C. 429, 53 S. E. 229.

No Limit on Taxation for Payment of Debts. — There is no limit on the power of the State or county, for the payment of their lawful debts, created before the adoption of the Constitution. French v. Board, 74 N. C. 692; Southern R. Co. v. Board, 148 N. C. 220, 61 S. E. 690.

No Limit on Taxation for Payment of Debts. — There is no limit on the power of the present or any future State or county, for the payment of their lawful debts, created before the adoption of the Constitution. French v. Board, 74 N. C. 692; Brothers v. Commissioners, 70 N. C. 725.

When Limitation May Be Exceeded. — Without special legislation a county may not authorize a levy of tax, exceeding the constitutional limitation upon the poll or property, to be provided for a sinking fund to pay the principal and interest on bonds to be issued by it for highway purposes. It is otherwise as to a six months period of public schools required by law, which is less than the constitutional limitation. French v. Board, 74 N. C. 692; Ballou v. Board, 182 N. C. 473, 475, 109 S. E. 628.

The limitation as to the levy on poll tax prescribed by this section, does not apply to the levy of a special tax by a county for road purposes, authorized by the Legislature, submitted to the vote of the electors of the county and duly approved by them. Moore v. Board, 172 N. C. 419, 90 S. E. 673.

Section Does Not Apply to Municipal Corporations. — The restriction that the State and county tax combined shall never exceed $2 on the poll, applies only to State and county taxation, and not to taxation by a city or town, or other than counties. Perry v. Commissioners, 148 N. C. 321, 62 S. E. 608.

§ 3. State taxation. — The power of taxation shall be exercised in a just and equitable manner, and shall never be surrendered, suspended or contracted away. Taxes on property shall be uniform as to each class of property taxed. Taxes shall be levied only for public purposes, and every act levying a tax shall state the object to which it is to be applied. The General Assembly may also tax trades, professions, franchises, and incomes: Provided, the rate of tax on income shall not in any case exceed ten per cent (10%), and there shall be allowed other deductions from the use of the public roads in violation of this section, which appropriates the State and county poll tax "to the purposes of education and the support of the poor," can not be sustained, as that provision applies to the levy of taxation for general, not special, purposes. Crocker v. Moore, 140 N. C. 429, 53 S. E. 229.

Legislature May Diminish Emoluments. — The Legislature has the constitutional power to diminish the emoluments of any officer now existing under the Constitution of the State and filled, or held, by virtue of any election or appointment under the said Constitution and the laws of the State made in pursuance thereof. (Convention 1875.)

Editor's Note.—This section was added by the Convention of 1875.
The tax on income, imposed by the Revenue Acts of this State, is not a tax on property, within the meaning of the requirement of this section that property shall be taxed according to its true value in money. State v. Kent-Col.

The tax must be uniform.—This section imperatively requires that all real and personal property be taxed by a uniform rule. The following cases are decided by this Court:

What "Property" Includes.—It seems that the word "property" is used by the Constitution in a sense to make it embrace "money, credits, investments in bonds," etc. Pullen v. Raleigh, 68 N. C. 451.

The power to levy taxes is the exclusive province of the General Assembly. This section provides that the General Assembly may tax trades and professions; and while this clause does not expressly apply the rule of uniformity to taxes imposed on trades and professions it has been judicially determined that the rule of uniformity does apply to these taxes as to any other property. Roach v. Durham, 204 N. C. 587, 591, 169 S. E. 149.

The police power may be exercised for the purpose of taxation in contravention of this section. Wachovia Bank, etc., Co. v. Maxwell, 221 N. C. 528, 20 S. E. (2d) 640.

Chapter 30, Public Laws of 1937, providing for the licensing of employees for taxation where the Act does not expressly apply the rule of uniformity to taxes on trades and professions, is to be construed in pari materia with chapter 337, Public Laws of 1919, exempting from the provision of the act fourteen counties of the state, is held unconstitutional, whether the license fee therein imposed in addition to the license prescribed by the Revenue Act be considered a state tax or not, since it places a burden upon those engaged in the specified business in a portion of the state which is not placed upon those engaged in the same business in other parts of the state without any reasonable basis of classification, and therefore discriminates within the class and accords a privilege and immunity to some not accorded to others. Bridges v. Charlotte, 221 N. C. 472, 20 S. E. (2d) 825.

Whom Tax on Occupation Must Reach.—A tax upon an occupation must reach all who follow that trade, regardless of whether persons or things. Worth v. Petersburg R. Co. 89 N. C. Law Rev., 255.

The power of the Legislature to classify subjects for the purpose of taxation is flexile, and the reasonableness of any classification will generally be construed with reference to the facts of the particular case, the proportionate limitation on the power to classify being that the classification must be reasonable and not arbitrary and must rest upon some reasonable and substantial difference between such classes, and that the burden must be equal upon all in the same class and a special classification by statute of wholesale grocers operating a cold storage chamber of some character for the preservation of fresh meats, as distinguished from a tax imposed on hotel keepers, which exempts from taxation those whose yearly receipts are less than $1,000, is not unconstitutional. Cobb v. Commissioners, 122 N. C. 307, 39 S. E. 338.

A tax imposed to raise moneys for Employees' Retirement Fund is for a public purpose and the Act provides benefits to thousands of teachers and employees of this State without discrimination, and therefore the tax does not offend this section. Bridges v. Charlotte, 221 N. C. 472, 20 S. E. (2d) 825.

Reasonableness of Classification.—See notes under sections 105-98, 118.

The power of the Legislature to classify subjects for the purpose of taxation is flexible, and the reasonableness of any classification will generally be construed with reference to the facts of the particular case, the proportionate limitation on the power to classify being that the classification must be reasonable and not arbitrary and must rest upon some reasonable and substantial difference between such classes, and that the burden must be equal upon all in the same class and a special classification by statute of wholesale grocers operating a cold storage chamber of some character for the preservation of fresh meats, as distinguished from a tax imposed on hotel keepers, which exempts from taxation those whose yearly receipts are less than $1,000, is not unconstitutional. Cobb v. Commissioners, 122 N. C. 307, 39 S. E. 338.

A tax imposed to raise moneys for Employees' Retirement Fund is for a public purpose and the Act provides benefits to thousands of teachers and employees of this State without discrimination, and therefore the tax does not offend this section. Bridges v. Charlotte, 221 N. C. 472, 20 S. E. (2d) 825.

The classification must not be arbitrary or unjust, but must be based on substantial and reasonable differences between such classes. Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co. v. Doughton, 196 N. C. 145, 144 S. E. 201.

There must not be complete uniformity, but there must be reasonable uniformity. In substance and scope the classification must be reasonable and must rest upon some reasonable and substantial difference between such classes. Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co. v. Doughton, 196 N. C. 145, 144 S. E. 201.

The principles of classification are those of substance and not of form, and must be based upon reasonable distinctions and must apply equally to all within each class defined. Snyder v. Maxwell, 217 N. C. 617, 9 S. E. (2d) 19. This rule applies to municipal corporations taxing trades or professions. Kenny Co. v. Bre-Classification of Mechanical Vending Devices.—While the legislature may not classify mechanical vending machines in accordance with the kinds of merchandise sold by such machines, these machines are real and reasonable, provided the vending devices for the purpose of taxation and make a further classification or sub-classification in accordance with the quantity or kind of commodities sold by such method with the same fair classification as the Excise and Taxation districts.

Classifying Dealers in Different Kinds of Merchandise.—
The requirement of this section that all taxes shall be uniform does not prohibit a municipality, which is empowered to tax persons engaged in mercantile business, from classifying dealers in a particular kind of merchandise, separately from those whose business it is to sell other articles falling within the same generic terms. Rosenbaum v. New Bern, 118 N. C. 83, 24 S. E. 1.

Taxing on Volume of Business.—A tax levied quarterly by a town, under authority of an act of the General Assembly, upon all traders doing business in the town, "of $1 for every $1,000 worth of goods sold during the preceding quarter," is uniform and constitutional. Gatlin v. Tarboro, 78 N. C. 119.

Tax Based on Counties in Which a Firm Does Business.—
A tax levied by payment of $100, being levied annually in the State $100 for each county in which such business is carried on is valid. Lacy v. Armour Packing Co., 134 N. C. 567, 71 S. E. 53.

Biasing Taxes on Size of City in Which Business Located.
—in acting imposing an annual graduated license tax on the business of buying and selling fresh meats from offices, stores, vehicles, etc., in cities of 12,000, 6,000, and under 6,000 inhabitants, respectively, is not unconstitutional, as not being uniform and in not imposing a license if the business is carried on outside a city or town; it being uniform and uniform within each class. State v. Carter, 129 N. C. 560, 40 S. E. 11.

Taxing Cotton by Bale.—An act to provide improved marketing facilities for cotton, which enacts that on each bale of cotton ginned in North Carolina for two years, twenty-five cents shall be assessed to compensate the cotton growers for a warehouse system against loss, is not in derogation of this section. Bickett v. State Tax Comm., 177 N. C. 433, 99 S. E. 415.

Tax on Indictments.—A tax on indictments, civil suits, etc., is not a tax within the meaning of this section. State v. Nutt, 79 N. C. 263.

Inheritance Tax.—An inheritance tax is in the nature of a tax on real property, or acquiring property or inheriting from a decedent, and does not come within the prohibition as to taxing an income upon property when the property itself is taxed and its imposition rests with the legislative power. In re Davis, 190 N. C. 338, 130 S. E. 22.

License on Business of Hauling Timber.—An act requiring a license of anyone who carried on the business of hauling timber in a certain county, grading the license with reference to the number of horses driven to the wagon used is not repugnant to this section. State v. Bullock, 101 N. C. 223, 75 S. E. 2.

Zoning Cities.—An act authorizing the division of a city into several zones for the purpose of fixing an ad valorem basis of real estate for taxation, uniform within each zone, but classified in accordance with destiny of population, character of building, etc., violates the mandatory provisions of our Constitution that within its corporate limits all taxable property shall be by a uniform rule of taxation. Anderson v. Asheville, 124 N. C. 117, 138 S. E. 715.

Exception of Farm Products.—The exception of "farm products purchased from the producer," used as basis for taxation, farm and ad valorem, is not in conflict with this section. Anderson v. Asheville, 124 N. C. 117, 138 S. E. 715.

Railroad Property May Be Assessed by Corporation Commission.—An act providing for the assessment of railroad property by the Corporation Commission, is not in conflict with this section. See also section requiring railroads, and other like corporations to pay their State taxes within a shorter period than those to the counties, is a uniform legislative classification applied equally to all, and does not object to any better investigation as a discrimination or a denial of the equal protection of the laws prohibited by this section. Norfolk Southern R. Co. v. Lacy, 107 N. C. 615, 122 S. E. 763.

Exemptions from Taxation.—The legislature in exempting property from taxation, Art. V, sec. 5, is required to observe the basic principle of equality, and exemptions although it must be uniform within the class as required by this section, both before and after the amendment in 1936. Sir Walter Lodge, etc. v. Swain, 217 N. C. 632, 9 S. E. (2d) 386.

Exempting Bonds of Drainage District from Taxation.— Drainage districts are not regarded as municipal corporations, and a legislative act exempting their bonds from taxation violates the uniform rule as to taxation required by its derivation. Commissioners v. Webb & Co., 160 N. C. 594, 76 S. E. 552.

Exemption of Property and Bonds of Municipality.—A legislative provision exempting the property and bonds of a city from taxation is valid when the bonds are to be issued for a public purpose, and certainly the bonds are exempt from taxation if sold to and held by an agency of the Federal government. Miles v. City of New Bern, 201 N. C. 418, 158 S. E. 763.

Taxes Reduced if Assets Returned for Taxes.—An act imposing license taxes on the business of selling automobiles in the State, requiring the effective date of the act, and upon owners of property, who in respect to such ownership and being for the object of reducing the license tax for property from taxation, Art. V, sec. 5, is required to observe the basic principle of equality, and exemptions although it must be uniform within the class as required by this section, both before and after the amendment in 1936. Sir Walter Lodge, etc. v. Swain, 217 N. C. 632, 9 S. E. (2d) 386.

Local Assessment Based on Benefits.—The constitutional provision that taxation shall be equal, uniform, and within certain limits, does not apply to local assessments imposed upon owners of property, who in respect to such ownership

Charter Making Taxing District of Each Improved.—Where the charter of a city provides that each street or portion of street improved shall be a taxing district, by requiring the tax is expended. Cain v. Commissioners, 86 N. C. 8.

Local Assessments on Lands Abutting on Streets Improved are not required to be uniform with all other subjects of taxation, and in view of the particular benefits, such must be uniform as to all property owners within that class to conform with constitutional requirements. Gastonia v. Clionger, 117 N. C. 765, 123 S. E. 76.

Provision for Collection of Taxes for Past Years.—A law to provide for the collection of taxes for past years does not violate the provisions of this section in regard to uniformity of taxation. North Carolina R. Co. v. Commissioners, 82 N. C. 575.

The taxing of land under § 105-167, subsec. 13, was held not void as discriminatory in amount because of the provision of the section that such tax need not be paid when the property is transferred as a consequence of the sale to the effect that the tax has been paid, and that such dealer will be responsible therefor to the Commissioner of Revenue, since the reference to the taxing authority and the amount to be paid regardless of whether the car is purchased by a dealer within or outside the state. Powell v. Maxwell, 210 N. C. 221, 146 S. E. 738.

National Licenses—Tax on Real Estate Brokers Discriminatory.—Chapter 241, Public-Local Laws 1927, requiring real estate brokers in certain designated counties to be licensed by a real estate commission on the basis of moral character and aid proficiency in the public interest, and requiring payment of a license fee in addition to the state-wide license required, is unconstitutional as it applies only to the real estate brokers in the designated counties and is therefore discriminatory. State v. Warren, 211 N. C. 75, 189 S. E. 280.

When Lien Attaches.—The lien for the payment of taxes assessed against personal property attaches only from the date of levy thereon. Carstarphen v. Plymouth, 186 N. C. 90, 195 S. E. 231.

Enjoining Collection of Income Tax.—A bill of equity to restrain the assessment and collection of the income tax provided by this section, and the collection and enforcement of certain franchise taxes and their enforcement under this act does not warrant interlocutory injunctions. Southern R. C. v. Watts, 289 Fed. 305.

Lien on personal property.—This section of the Constitution vests exclusive authority in the Legislature to levy taxes, which may not be interfered with by the courts. Person v. Board, 184 N. C. 499, 115 S. E. 336.

§ 4. Limitations upon the increase of public debts.—The General Assembly shall have the power to contract debts and to pledge the faith and credit of the State and to authorize counties and municipalities to contract debts and pledge their faith and credit for the following purposes: To fund or refund a valid existing debt; to borrow in anticipation of the collection of taxes due and payable within the fiscal year to an amount not exceeding five per centum of the amount of such taxes; to provide for a casual deficit; to suppress riots or insurrections, or to repel invasions. For any purpose other than these enumerated, the General Assembly shall have no power, during any biennium, to contract new debts on behalf of the State to an amount in excess of two-thirds of the amount by which the State's outstanding indebtedness shall have been reduced during the next preceding biennium, unless the subject be submitted to a vote of the people of the State; and for any purpose other than these enumerated the General Assembly shall have no power to authorize counties or municipalities to contract debts, and counties and municipalities shall not contract debts, during any fiscal year, to an amount exceeding two-thirds of the amount by which the outstanding indebtedness of the particular county or municipality shall have been reduced during the next preceding biennium, unless the subject be submitted to a vote of the people of the particular county or municipality. In any election held in the State or in any county or municipality under the provisions of this section, the proposed indebtedness must be approved by a majority of those who shall vote thereon. And the General Assembly shall have no power, during any biennium, to lend the credit of the State in aid of any person, association, or corporation, except to aid in the completion of such railroads as may be unfinished at the time of the adoption of this Constitution, or in which the State has a direct pecuniary interest, by voting the State's outstanding indebtedness to a direct vote of the people of the State, and be approved by a majority of those who shall vote thereon. (Const. 1858; 1923, c. 145; 1933, c. 348.)

As to the purpose of this section, see dissenting opinion of C. J. Clark in Pennington v. Tarboro, 180 N. C. 438, 185 S. E. 199.

Editor's Note.—This section as contained in the Constitution of 1858 was as follows: "Until the bonds of the State shall be at par, the General Assembly shall have the power to contract any new debt or pecuniary obligation in behalf of the State, except to supply a casual deficit, or for suppressing insurrections or disorders, unless the subject be submitted to the people of the State, and be approved by a majority of those who shall vote thereon. For any purpose other than these enumerated, the General Assembly shall have no power, during any biennium, to contract new debts, and counties and municipalities shall not contract debts, during any fiscal year, to an amount exceeding in the aggregate, including the then existing debt recognized by the State, and deducting sinking funds then on hand, the par value of the stock in the Carolina Railroad Company and the Atlantic and Southern Railroad company owned by the State, seven and one-half per centum of the assessed valuation of taxable property within the State as last fixed for taxation." Pursuant to Chapter 145 of the Public Laws of 1923, the first sentence was stricken out and the following inserted in its place: "The General Assembly shall have no power to contract any new debt or pecuniary obligation in behalf of the State to an amount exceeding in the aggregate, including the then existing debt recognized by the State, and deducting sinking funds then on hand, the par value of the stock in the Carolina Railroad Company and the Atlantic and Southern Railroad company owned by the State, seven and one-half per centum of the assessed valuation of taxable property within the State as last fixed for taxation." Pursuant to Chapter 248 of the Public Laws of 1923, the words "taxable property within the State as last fixed for taxation." was added in its present form. For article discussing that amendment, see 16 N. C. Law Rev. 329. Many of the cases cited below were decided prior to the amendment.

The language of this section is unambiguous, and by its plain terms the power of the state to authorize counties and municipalities to contract debts in any biennium or fiscal year, respectively, without submitting the matter to a vote of the people, except for those purposes specifically enumerated in the amendment, is definitely prescribed to two-thirds of the amount by which its outstanding indebtedness was decreased during the prior biennium or fiscal year. Halliburton v. Board, 176 N. C. 33, 196 S. E. 200. Southern R. Co. v. Watts, 289 Fed. 301.

Refunding Bonds.—Defendant county proposed to issue bonds to refund bonds of several of its townships, which bonds constituted a valid existing debt of the county, the county having received the benefit of the proceeds of the bonds and having agreed to assume the indebtedness prior to the adoption of the amendment to this section. Plaintiff contended that the county bonds could not be issued without a vote by mandate of this section as amended. It was held that the proposed county bond issue was to refund a valid existing debt of the county within the meaning of the amendment as amended, and that the section therein provided a vote is unnecessary, nor could the county be held liable for the repayment of the bonds be adversely affected by any constitutional change. Thompson v. Harnett County, 212 N. C. 316, 193 S. E. 468.

During the prior fiscal year defendant county began refunding operations, and during that year issued its refunding bonds, but did not refund any bonds until after the first day of the present fiscal year, whereas the statute provided that bonds must be issued since both the refunding bonds and the bonds refunded were outstanding during the prior fiscal year, there had been an invasion of the rights of the plaintiffs in their debt, and the county's outstanding indebtedness during the prior fiscal year. It was held that the failure of the county, to complete its refunding operations during the prior fiscal years is immaterial, and the refunding bonds should not be included in determining the amount by which the county's outstanding indebtedness was decreased during the prior fiscal year. Halliburton v. Board, 176 N. C. 33, 196 S. E. 200.
May be issued upon the approval of a majority of those who vote, unless the purpose is within the scope of the purpose of the bonds. However, if the purpose is not within this scope, then bonds must be included, except bonds issued by a vote of the people, for a valid existing debt, to supply a casual deficit, to assist in the exercise of statutory authority. The test of bonds being at par also applies here. The statute establishing the North Carolina National Park Commission (Laws 1927, ch. 48) with the certain provisions enumerated is for the benefit of the public and not that of any third person, and does not fall within the provisions of this section, Yarborough v. Park Commission, 196 N. C. 597, 195 S. E. 391.

§ 5. Property exempt from taxation.—Property belonging to the State or to municipal corporations, shall be exempt from taxation. The General Assembly may exempt cemeteries and property held for educational, scientific, literary, charitable or religious purposes; also wearing apparel, arms for musters, household and kitchen furniture, the mechanical and agricultural implements of the owner. (Const. 1868; 1872-73, c. 83; 1935, c. 444.)

Editor’s Note.—This article, which was Sec. 6 of the Constitution of 1868, was amended by the insertion of the phrase “or any other personal property,” in pursuance of ch. 84, Public Laws of 1872-73. The amendment, which added the last sentence of this section, was proposed by Public Laws 1955, c. 444, s. 2, and adopted at the general election held in November 1956.

The amendment of 1936 is only permissive in terms and not self-executing. The power of exemption, to the extent herein mentioned, is exercisable only insofar as not at all, as the General Assembly, in its wisdom, shall determine. Nash v. Board of Com’rs, 216 N. C. 301, 304, 190 S. E. 240.

Section Does Not Apply to School System.—This section is not applicable to the General Assembly or to third persons, individual or corporate, and of the kind contemplated in the provision; and cannot be construed to affect the mandatory provisions of Article IX as to the maintenance of schools by local legislative action. Lacy v. Fidelity Bank, 183 N. C. 373, 111 S. E. 612.

Voter of People Necessary to Aid New Railroad.—The General Assembly is not persons necessary to aid a railroad. University R. Co. v. Holden, 63 N. C. 410, 412.

Same—Issuing Bonds to Pay for Stock.—A subscription for stock in a public corporation and issuing bonds to pay for such stock, is a gift of the credit of the State, within the meaning of this section. Galloway v. Jenkins, 63 N. C. 147.

When Counties May Subscribe to Railroad Stock.—This section could not be construed as limited in application to cases where railroads had been commenced and were unfinished at the time the constitution was adopted, and in which the counties, as such, had a direct pecuniary interest, but that it conferred power on counties to subscribe for stock, in the manner prescribed, in any railroad company which had been duly incorporated to build a projected road in the circuit of the county, to the amount of the supposed benefits to be derived from it. Board v. Coler, 113 Fed. 705.

Bonds for Streets and Sewage.—A municipality may not issue bonds for street and sewerage construction or extension without a vote, when during the fiscal year, the purpose of the bonds is to pay for streets and sewers for a purpose other than necessary expense. Board v. Snuggs, 121 N. C. 394, 422, 28 S. E. 539; Williamson v. High Point, 213 N. C. 284, 195 S. E. 387.

Section Does Not Apply to Insuring School Property.—A county board of education has the authority to insure school property in a mutual fire insurance company authorized to transact business in the State, the property being limited to the amount of the cash premium, and the execution of such policy does not lend the credit of the State to a private corporation under this section. Fuller v. Lacy, 206 N. C. 169, 171, 172 S. E. 412.

Bonds of Municipal Power Plant.—A contract of a municipality to construct a municipal electric power plant and to issue its bonds to pay for same, with provision that principal and interest of the bonds should be paid exclusively from the profits of the plant without resort to funds raised by taxation, does not create a “debt” of the municipality, and does not contravene the provisions of the act under which the bonds were issued. (Const. 1868; 1872-73, c. 83.)

The amendment of 1936 is only permissive in terms and not self-executing. The power of exemption, to the extent herein mentioned, is exercisable only insofar as not at all, as the General Assembly, in its wisdom, shall determine. Nash v. Board of Com’rs, 216 N. C. 301, 304, 190 S. E. 240.

The General Assembly may exempt from taxation not exceeding one thousand dollars ($1,000.00) in value of property held and used as the place of residence of the owner. (Const. 1868; 1872-73, c. 83; 1935, c. 444.)

Editor’s Note.—This section, which was Sec. 6 of the Constitution of 1868, was amended by the insertion of the phrase “or any other personal property,” in pursuance of ch. 84, Public Laws of 1872-73. The amendment, which added the last sentence of this section, was proposed by Public Laws 1955, c. 444, s. 2, and adopted at the general election held in November 1956.
Municipal property acquired by tax foreclosure and subsequently rented is liable for county taxes, since it is not used by the city for a governmental purpose, and if one person does not hold the municipal corporation in good faith for the exemption of property from taxation Benson v. Johnston County, 209 N. C. 751, 185 S. E. 6. See also, in this connection, Board of Financial Institutions v. Guilford County, 219 N. C. 6, 16 S. E. (2d) 261; 101 A. L. R. 783.

Excise taxes on municipal property are not prohibited. Stedman v. Winston-Salem, 204 N. C. 263, 167 S. E. 813.

Power of the Legislature to Grant Exemptions.—The power to grant exemptions under authority of the Constitution is perforce limited and restricted by the scope of the constitutional grant of the permissive power of exemption. Rockingham County v. Elon College, 219 N. C. 342, 345, 13 S. E. (2d) 618. See also, Guilford College v. Guilford County, 219 N. C. 347, 13 S. E. (2d) 622.

The power to grant exemptions under authority of the second sentence in this section, which may be exercised in whole, or in part, as the General Assembly shall elect, is limited to property held for one or more of the purposes therein designated. Rockingham County v. Elon College, 219 N. C. 342, 345, 13 S. E. (2d) 618. See also, Guilford College v. Guilford County, 219 N. C. 347, 13 S. E. (2d) 622.

Business property owned by an educational institution and rented for offices and business purposes to private enterprises, the net profit derived therefrom being devoted exclusively to educational purposes, was not within the exemption granted by this section. Rockingham County v. Elon College, 219 N. C. 342, 13 S. E. (2d) 618. See also, Guilford College v. Guilford County, 219 N. C. 347, 13 S. E. (2d) 622.

Property owned by a church and rented by it for commercial purposes, and the rent used for religious purposes, is not exempt from taxation. Sparrow v. Beaufort County, 221 N. C. 222, 19 S. E. (2d) 860.

Statutes Exempting Specific Property Are Construed Strictly.—Statutes enacted by the General Assembly exempting specific property from taxation, because of the purpose to which the property is devoted, was not within the exemption granted by this section. Rockingham County v. Elon College, 219 N. C. 342, 345, 13 S. E. (2d) 618. See also, Guilford College v. Guilford County, 219 N. C. 347, 13 S. E. (2d) 622.

When Exemption Attaches.—The quality of exemption itself, is not possessed as to those persons as it is lawfully acquired and remains with such property so long as it is owned by the municipal corporation, without regard to the purpose for which it was acquired or was held. Andrews v. Clay County, 200 N. C. 268, 263, 156 S. E. 455.

Exemption of Property Used for Religious, etc., Purposes Is Not Self-Executing.—The provision of this section that the property of the State or its political subdivisions, held for educational, scientific, literary, charitable or religious purposes, is a grant of power and is not self-executing, and the power of the legislature to prescribe such exemptions is limited by the language of the grant of power. Salisbury Hospital v. Guilford County, 218 N. C. 673, 12 S. E. (2d) 265.

Use to Which Property Is Devoted.—Under this section it is not sufficient that the property is devoted to the extent of the interest so dedicated which should control, rather than the title or other tenure by which it is held, and its provisions are broad and comprehensive enough to uphold the legislative exemption in a situation between educational purposes. Corporation Comm. v. Oxford Seminary Constr. Co., 160 N. C. 582, 76 S. E. 640.

A lot purchased by trustee of a church for the purpose of erecting a new church and Sunday school building, was adequate for the needs of the congregation, and, pending the accumulation of sufficient funds to build the new church, used exclusively for open air Sunday school and church meetings. Harrison v. Guilford County, 219 N. C. 347, 13 S. E. (2d) 622.

The power granted the legislature to exempt property from taxation is limited by the language of this section to property held for educational, scientific, charitable or religious purposes, the title to the property held and not the character of the corporation or association holding the property being the basis for the grant of permissive power to exempt, and the legislature has no power to exempt property held by a corporation or organization for business or commercial purposes. Sir Walter Lodge, etc. v. Swain, 217 N. C. 632, 9 S. E. (2d) 365.

Lands in Hands of Trustee.—Where in construing a devise of various property in a city the courts have decreed that the lands be sold within a period of five years and fifty-five per cent of the proceeds distributed among several beneficiaries of the class exempted by this section, the property itself is not held by the beneficiaries designated, but by the trustee in trust for the purpose of sale and distribution of the proceeds of the sale, and the exemption does not apply except to the proceeds of the sale when received by the beneficiaries in accordance with the decree, and the lands in the hands of the trustee are subject to taxation under Art. V, § 5. Latta v. Jenkins, 200 N. C. 255, 156 S. E. 552.

Weight of Fact That Institution Has Not Been Paying.—The fact that in the sale of property in the hands of the trustee there was a long period of time without paying taxes unchallenged by both the legislative and executive department of the Government is deserving of great weight by the court in construing this section. Corporation Comm. v. Oxford Seminary Constr. Co., 160 N. C. 582, 76 S. E. 640.

No Distinction Between Public and Private Institutions.—The provision of this section exempting charitable enterprises and private educational corporations, or between institutions which are in part conducted for the personal profit of the owner and those which are run on a salary basis, using any profits which may arise in the extension of the

The limitation of art. V, § 4, on the contraction of debt by counties and municipalities is in addition to the limitations prescribed by art. VII, § 7, and this section is for the purpose of preventing local units from creating debts without the consent of the people, for a necessary or unnecessary purpose, or for a special purpose with the special approval of the General Assembly, which may be done by special or general act:

Provided, this limitation shall not apply to taxes levied for the maintenance of the public schools of the State for the term required by article nine, section three, of the Constitution: Provided, further, the State tax shall not exceed five cents on the one hundred dollar's value of property. (Const. 1868; Ex. Sess. 1920, c. 93.)

Editor’s Note.—Pursuant to ch. 93, Public Laws of 1920, extra session, this section was substituted for the old Sec. 6 (Sec. 7 of the Constitution of 1868), which was as follows: “The taxes levied by the Commissioners of the several counties for county purposes, shall be levied in like manner with the State taxes, and shall never exceed the amount of the tax, except for a special purpose, and with the special approval of the General Assembly, which may be done by special or general act: Provided, this limitation shall not apply to taxes levied for the maintenance of the public schools of the State for the term required by article nine, section three, of the Constitution: Provided, further, the State tax shall not exceed five cents on the one hundred dollar's value of property.” (Const. 1868; Ex. Sess. 1920, c. 93.)

Ordinary Expenses of Holding Courts and Maintaining Jails Are General Expenses.—Only under exceptional circumstances may the expenses of holding courts and maintaining the county jail and caring for jail prisoners be classified as expenses for special purposes, since ordinarily the holding of courts is a general expense recurring in the ordinary course of and as necessary steps in the operation of the county government, and the maintenance of the county jail and the caring for prisoners is a general expense, continuous and ever present, and a tax levy therefor in addition to the 15-cent tax made for general county purposes in another item is invalid, and applicant is entitled to recover the amount paid under the additional levy in his suit therefore in accordance with the statutory procedure.

General or Special Act Sufficient.—The legislative authority to authorize a county to exceed the constitutional limit for county purposes is conferred by special or general act. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. v. Lenoir County, 200 N. C. 694, 157 S. E. 610.

What is a “special purpose” within the meaning of this section of the State Constitution is a matter for judicial rather than legislative determination, since such purpose for which an unlimited tax may be levied may bebridged with the special approval of the General Assembly must also be a “necessary expense” of the county within the meaning of art. VII, § 7, and which does both questions of law and fact. Nantahala Power, etc., Co. v. Clay County, 213 N. C. 698, 197 S. E. 603.

Levy Beyond Limitation Void.—Defendant county levied taxes up to the 15-cent limitation for general county purposes and in addition thereto levied a tax for “upkeep of county buildings, courthouse, county home, poor and paupers, and public highways” for which an unlimited tax may be levied. Nantahala Power, etc., Co. v. Clay County, 213 N. C. 698, 197 S. E. 603.

A tax to pay the county farm agent’s salary is for a special purpose having the special approval of the legislature, within the meaning of art. E. § 6, and a tax in excess of the 15-cent limitation may be imposed. Nantahala Power, etc., Co. v. Clay County, 213 N. C. 698, 197 S. E. 603.

Supremacy of Legislative Power.—The constitutional power conferred on the Legislature to authorize counties to levy a special tax upon the property and poll for special county purposes is essential to the existence of the State, and in absence of exercise thereof the Legislature is supreme. Moose v. Board, 172 N. C. 419, 90 S. E. 525.

When Vote and Legislative Authority Necessary.—Cities and towns may levy a tax for necessary expenses up to the constitutional limit, but the levy of an additional tax without legislative permission; for necessary expenses they may exceed the constitutional limitation by legislative authority, without the approval of the voters: but for purposes other than necessary, a tax cannot be levied, either within or in excess of the constitutional limitation except with the approval of the voters under special legislative authority. Henderson v. Wilmington, 191 N. C. 269, 132 S. E. 2d.

Levy Partly for Special and Partly for General Purposes.—Where a statute authorizing the levy of a tax beyond the constitutional limit for a special purpose is infra vires, the tax may be collected beyond the exceeding portion of the tax and may be turned into the general fund and used for general purposes, but where the act authorizes the levy partly for a special purpose and partly for general purposes and no part of the levy can be collected, Williams v. Commissioners, 119 N. C. 320, 26 S. E. 150.

Where Act Severeable, Valid Part Effective.—An act that authorizes counties to levy a tax for a special purpose and contain it for general county expenses by special tax beyond the limitations of this section of the Constitution, is in that extent constitutional and valid. E. § 6, and the invalid part of the act is distinctly severable from the invalid part, and may alone be enforced by the methods prescribed, without being affected by the invalid part, the entire statute being declared ultra vires. Folk Southern R. Co. v. Reid, 187 N. C. 320, 121 S. E. 534.

Giving County Commissioners Authority to Issue Bonds.—The authority conferred upon the board of county commissioners to build its road and bridges in any way that may seem practicable, and issue bonds not to exceed the actual cost, and to levy sufficient tax on real and personal property to pay interest, and create a sinking fund, is not necessarily impossible, with this respect differing from the limitation of 15 cents on the $100 valuation of property a levy on county property for "a special purpose, and with the approval of the General Assembly, which may be done by special or general acts.

Section 2. A county has authority, to issue funding and refunding bonds with the approval of the local government commis- sioners, to refund the bonds issued by counties to refund the county which were incurred for necessary county expenses. Brooks v. Avery County, 206 N. C. 840, 175 S. E. 199. See Thomson v. Harnett County, 209 N. C. 662, 184 S. E. 490.

A county has authority, to issue funding and refunding bonds with the approval of the local government commissioners, to refund the bonds issued by counties to refund the county which were incurred for necessary county expenses. Brooks v. Avery County, 206 N. C. 840, 175 S. E. 199. See Thomson v. Harnett County, 209 N. C. 662, 184 S. E. 490.

A county has authority, to issue funding and refunding bonds with the approval of the local government commissioners, to refund the bonds issued by counties to refund the county which were incurred for necessary county expenses. Brooks v. Avery County, 206 N. C. 840, 175 S. E. 199. See Thomson v. Harnett County, 209 N. C. 662, 184 S. E. 490.

A county has authority, to issue funding and refunding bonds with the approval of the local government commissioners, to refund the bonds issued by counties to refund the county which were incurred for necessary county expenses. Brooks v. Avery County, 206 N. C. 840, 175 S. E. 199. See Thomson v. Harnett County, 209 N. C. 662, 184 S. E. 490.

The proceeds of the townships of the county. The proceeds of the town-and hereafter committed shall be deemed an elector, unless such person shall be restored to the rights of citizenship in a manner prescribed by law." Pursuant to ch. 218, Public Laws of 1899, and ch. 2, Public Laws of 1900, the section was amended to read as the present section.

The 19th amendment to the Constitution of the United States, ratified August 26, 1920, provided that "the right of citizens of the United States to vote shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any State on account of sex."

The General Assembly of North Carolina provided for the registration and voting of women by ch. 218, Public Laws of 1920, extra session.

Where a person of the right to vote in the precinct, ward or other election district, to which he offers to vote four months next preceding the election, has been convicted of a felony (not infamous), and sentenced to imprisonment, escapee, and before he is recaptured, his term or sentence expired, the right of such person shall be restored to citizenship in the State of North Carolina for two years, in the county six months, and in the precinct, ward or other election district in which he offers to vote, four months next preceding the election. This section requires, is unconstitutional. People v. Canady, 73 N. C. 196.

Section 3. Voters to be registered.—Every person offering to vote shall be at the time a legally registered voter as herein prescribed, and in the manner hereafter provided by law, and the General Assembly of North Carolina shall enact general registration laws to carry into effect the provisions of this article. (Const. 1868; 1899, c. 218; 1000, c. 2, s. 2; Ex. Sess. 1920, c. 93.)

Editor's Note.—Section 2 was amended pursuant to ch. 218, Public Laws of 1899 and ch. 2, Public Laws of 1900. The first sentence read: "He shall have resided in the State of North Carolina for two years, in the county six months, and in the precinct, ward or other election district to which he offers to vote, four months next preceding the election."

Qualifications Same for Municipal Election.—The qualifications for voting in a municipal election are the same as in a general one. State v. Carter, 194 N. C. 293.

Cities and towns, like counties and townships, are parts of the State, organized for the convenience of local self-government, and the qualifications of voters are the same, to-wit, citizenship, twenty-one years of age, twelve months (now two years) residence in the State and thirty days (now six months) in the city or town. People v. Canady, 73 N. C. 198.

A provision in the charter of a municipality limiting the right of suffrage in municipal elections to owners of real property within the city, is unconstitutional. Smith v. Carolina Beach, 206 N. C. 834, 175 S. E. 313.

Residence Defined.—Residence, as used in this section defining political rights, is synonymous with domicile, denoting a permanent dwelling place, in which the party, when absent, intends to return. State v. Gizzard, 89 N. C. 115.

In order to acquire a residence for the purpose of exercising political rights in a county, the "residence" must be of a permanent, and not of a temporary nature, corresponding with the word domicile. State v. Kerr, 114 N. C. 435.

Protracted Residence Abroad.—A protracted residence abroad of one engaged in business and with no home in this state, is not consistent with the idea of a residence here. State v. Grizzard, 89 N. C. 115.

Art. VI, §4

CONSTITUTION OF NORTH CAROLINA

Art. VI, §6

... until he has complied with the requirements of those laws. State v. Scarborough, 110 N. C. 232, 14 S. E. 737.

Act Requiring New Registration.—An act authorizing a bond issue by a county is not objectionable as violating this section, upon the ground that it empowers the county commissioners to order a new registration. Cox v. Commissioners, 146 N. C. 584, 60 S. E. 516.

Act Requiring Proof of Ability to Read and Write Is Void.—The act of 1863, requiring that a person presenting himself for registration shall, before he is registered, prove to the satisfaction of the registrars his ability to read and write any section of the Constitution, was granted the Legislature by this section to enact general legislation to carry out the provisions of this article. Allison v. Sharp, 229 N. C. 477, 184 S. E. 27.

§ 4. Qualification for registration.—Every person presenting himself for registration shall be able to read and write any section of the Constitution in the English language. But no male person who was, on January 1, 1867, or at any time prior thereto, entitled to vote under the laws of any State in the United States wherein he then resided, or who is a descendant of any such person, shall be denied the right to register and vote at any election in this State by reason of his failure to possess the educational qualifications herein prescribed: Provided, he shall have registered in accordance with the terms of this section prior to December 1, 1908. The General Assembly shall provide for the registration of all persons entitled to vote without the educational qualifications herein prescribed, and shall, on or before November 1, 1908, provide for the making of a permanent record of such registration, and all persons so registered shall forever thereafter have the right to vote in all elections by the people in this State, unless disqualified under section two of this article. (Const. 1868; 1899, c. 218; 1900, c. 2, s. 4; Ex. Sess. 1920, c. 93.)

Editor's Note.—This section was added in pursuance of ch. 218, Public Laws of 1899 and 1900, Laws of 1900. The following changes were made pursuant to ch. 93, Public Laws of 1900, to make the section read as at present: the clause "and in the county in which he proposes to vote, his poll tax for the previous year," was stricken out; the word ".Prior" was stricken from the end of the Section. The language of this section is mandatory. Allison v. Sharp, 229 N. C. 477, 184 S. E. 27.

Registration Essential.—Registration is essential to the exercise by a citizen, possessed of the other legal qualifications, of his right to vote, and, when duly made, is prima facie evidence of the right. State v. Waldorf, 104 N. C. 453, 10 S. E. 694.

Same.—Act of Public Officer.—The registration of an elector, after he has qualified to vote, must be accepted as the act of a public officer, and entitles the elector to cast his vote. State v. Nicholson, 102 N. C. 465, 9 S. E. 545.

Registrar Is Logical Person to Carry Out Requirements of Section.—The act of 1868, putting this duty on the registrar is unquestionably a reasonable provision, and the registrar is the logical person to carry out the provisions of the Constitution. State v. Nicholson, 102 N. C. 465, 9 S. E. 545.

What Registrars May Ask.—Registrars may ask the elector his age and residence, the township or county from whence he removed, in case he has resided in the State two years, and in the county in which he proposes to vote four months, preceding the election. If, in reply to such questions, the elector answers that he is twenty-one years old, and has resided in the State two years and in the county four months preceding the election, it is the duty of the registrars, upon his taking the prescribed oath, to record his name as a voter; but bystanders may require him to be sworn as to his residence. In re Reid, 119 N. C. 641, 26 S. E. 337.

As to the oath, see State v. Nicholson, 102 N. C. 465, 9 S. E. 545.

Permanent Roll Does Not Dispose with Further Registration.—The fact that a voter is registered on the permanent roll as provided by the Constitution does not dispossess him of the necessity of registration whenever he wishes to become a qualified voter, whenever required by the statutes regulating the registration of voters. Clark v. Statesville, 119 N. C. 444, 20 S. E. 42.

Purpose of Permanent Roll.—The making of a permanent roll of record was intended to be done for the sole purpose of furnishing convenient and easily available evidence of the fact that the person who appears thereon is required to have the educational qualification. Clark v. Statesville, 119 N. C. 490, 52 S. E. 52.

Registration Book Lost.—Where the registration book of an election precinct had been lost, state law required it to be replaced, but the registrar procured a new book, in which he entered the names of such persons as he knew had theretofore been registered, and also the names of those who applied for registration subsequently and it appeared that, at the election following, no one voted whose name did not appear on the registration book, that no one voted who was not entitled to vote, and that the vote was cast upon an invalid registration. State v. Scarborough, 110 N. C. 232, 14 S. E. 737.

Preservation from Registering by Registrars.—Where a voter offers to comply with the laws in reference to registration, but is prevented by the wrongful conduct of the registrar, his vote should be received and counted, but a vote cast upon an invalid registration should be rejected. State v. Scarborough, 110 N. C. 232, 14 S. E. 737.

Necessity of Having Paid Taxes.—Where the validity of a special tax depends upon whether certain persons who had voted paid for their tax, and the violation of the requirements to the requirements of this section the constitutional requirements must be met in order that they may exercise the privilege of voting, though they are permitted to wait until May ist to pay them, if they so choose. Ingram v. Johnson, 172 N. C. 676, 90 S. E. 835.

§ 5. Indivisible plan; legislative intent.—That this amendment to the Constitution is presented and adopted as one indivisible plan for the regulation of the suffrage, with the intent and purpose to so connect the different parts, and to make them so dependent upon each other, that the whole shall stand or fall together. (Const. 1868; 1899, c. 218.)

§ 6. Elections by people and General Assembly.—All elections by the people shall be by ballot, and all elections by the General Assembly shall be viva voce. (Const. 1868; 1899, c. 218.)

How Elector May Vote.—The provisions of this section give the elector the choice to deposit his own ballot secretly, or to declare his choice openly when depositing it, or to have the registrar, or one of the judges of election, deposit it for him. Jenkins v. State Board, 180 N. C. 169, 104 S. E. 346.

Secret Ballot.—The provisions of this section imply that in elections by the people the ballot shall be a secret one. Allison v. Commissioners of Harnett, 196 N. C. 535, 146 S. E. 225.

It is not necessary to show undue influence or intimidation for the courts to declare an election void when the votes have been deprived of their right to a secret ballot. Withers v. Commissioners of Harnett, 196 N. C. 535, 146 S. E. 225.

A voter at an election does not waive his constitutional right to a secret ballot, nor can his right thereto be lost by being made aware of his rights under the facts and circumstances of the balloting. Withers v. Commissioners of Harnett, 196 N. C. 535, 146 S. E. 225.
§ 7. Eligibility to office; official oath.—Every voter disqualfied, shall be disqualified to office, but before entering upon the duties of the office he shall take and subscribe the following oath:

"I, ............, do solemnly swear (or affirm), that I will support and maintain the Constitution and laws of the United States, and the Constitution and laws of North Carolina not inconsistent therewith, and that I will faithfully discharge the duties of my office as ........., so help me, God." (Const. 1868; 1899, c. 218; 1900, c. 2, s. 7.)

Editor's Note.—Sec. 4 of the Constitution of 1868 amended to become the present Sec. 7 pursuant to ch. 218, Public Laws of 1899 and ch. 2, Public Laws of 1900, was as follows:

"Every voter, except as hereinafter provided, shall be eligible to office; but before entering upon the discharge of the duties of his office, he shall take and subscribe the following oath: 'I, ............., do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I will support and maintain the Constitution and laws of the United States, and the Constitution and laws of North Carolina not inconsistent therewith, and that I will faithfully discharge the duties of my office as ........., so help me,' God." (Const. 1868; 1899, c. 218; 1900, c. 2, s. 7.)

§ 8. Disqualification for office.—The following classes of persons shall be disqualified for office: First, all persons who shall deny the being of Almighty God. Second, all persons who shall have been convicted or confessed their guilt on indictment pending, and whether sentenced or not, or under judgment suspended, of any treason or felony, or of any other crime for which the punishment may be imprisonment in the penitentiary, shall become citizens of the United States, or of corruption or malpractice in office, unless such person shall be restored to the rights of citizenship in a manner prescribed by law. (Const. 1868; 1899, c. 218; 1900, c. 2, s. 8.)

Editor's Note.—The last sentence of this section, which was Sec. 5 of the Constitution of 1868, was as follows: "Second, all persons who shall have been convicted of treason, or of any other infamous crime, since becoming citizens of the United States, or of corruption, or malpractice in office, unless such person shall have been legally restored to the rights of citizenship." The section was amended to read as the present Sec. 8 pursuant to ch. 218, Public Laws of 1899 and ch. 2, Public Laws of 1900.

Disqualification Not Part of Judgment.—The disqualification of a person convicted of a felony, or even to dispossess the incumbent, since public office is not a property right. Penny v. Salmon, 217 N. C. 276, 7 S. E. 2d (24d) 559.

Cited in Rhodes v. Lewis, 80 N. C. 136.

§ 9. When this chapter operative.—That this amendment to the Constitution shall go into effect on the first day of July, nineteen hundred and two, if a majority of votes cast at the next general election shall be cast in favor of this suffrage amendment. (1899, c. 218; 1900, c. 2, s. 9.)

Editor's Note.—This section was added pursuant to ch. 218, Public Laws of 1899 and ch. 2, Public Laws of 1900.

ARTICLE VII

Municipal Corporations

§ 1. County officers.—In each county there shall be elected biennially by the qualified voters thereof, as provided for the election of members of the General Assembly, the following officers: A treasurer, register of deeds, surveyor, and five commissioners. (Constitution, 1868.)

Cross References.—As to municipal corporations generally, see section 101-1 et seq.; as to the register of deeds, see section 161-1 et seq.; as to the surveyor, see section 154-2 et seq.; as to the county commissioner, see section 153-1 et seq.

County Commissioners.—Ch. 526, Public-Local Laws of 1935, providing that Cheroke County should be divided into three districts and that one county commissioner should be nominated and elected by the qualified voters of each of the districts, is constitutional as a valid exercise of legislative power over municipal corporations, the General Assembly being given express power by art. VII, § 14, to change and modify the provisions of this section, relating to number and election of county commissioners. Watkins v. Johnson, 210 N. C. 449, 187 S. E. 584.

Registers of Deeds.—The constitutional provision for the election of registers of deeds for a term of two years is subject to modification by statute, and therefore the legislature has the power to make the office appointive rather than elective, to extend the term, or to abolish it altogether, and even to dispossess the incumbent, since public office is not a property right. Penny v. Salmon, 217 N. C. 276, 7 S. E. 2d (24d) 559.

§ 2. Duty of county commissioners.—It shall be the duty of the county commissioners to exercise a general supervision and control of the penal and charitable institutions, schools, roads, bridges, levying of taxes, and finances of the county, as may be prescribed by law. The register of deeds shall be ex officio clerk of the board of commissioners. (Constitution, 1868.)

The General Assembly can give almost unlimited power to the counties to carry out this provision. Thomson v. Harnett County, 209 N. C. 662, 184 S. E. 490.

Fiscal Powers Are Subject to Modification.—The general assembly has power to appoint a tax collector or manager for a county of the state, the fiscal powers granted the county commissioners by this section being subject to modification or abrogation by statute by express provision of Art. VII, sec. 13. Freeman v. Board of Com'rs, 217 N. C. 490, 68 S. E. 2d (23rd) 331.

Supervision and Control of Roads.—Under this section the county commissioners of a county have the duty to exercise a general supervision and control of the roads and levying of taxes as provided by law in respect thereto. Thomson v. Harnett County, 209 N. C. 662, 184 S. E. 490.

Authorization to Borrow from General County Fund.—The board of county commissioners, having the supervision and control of roads, bridges, and the levying of taxes and the finances of the county, have the authority by proper res-oblation to borrow from the general county fund moneys with which to pay maturing bonds of the county when due, being necessary to preserve the credit of the county, and to issue refunding bonds for the purpose of repaying this loan. The act creating the loan must provide for the establishment of a special fund and declaring itself to be a special statute validating and legalizing the transaction. Barron v. Wake County, 197 N. C. 314, 315, 148 S. E. 470.

§ 5. School Fund Disbursed.—This section gives the “supervision of schools” to the county commissioners; they keep the school fund, and their treasurer disburses the fund, upon the order of the school committee. Lane v. Stanly, 65 N. C. 153, 156. See note to § 153-9, par. 2.

When Commissioners Fail to Qualify.—If from any cause the board of county commissioners does not qualify at the time prescribed by law, the old board, as de facto officers, have the power to qualify a county treasurer-elect and induct him into office; or upon his default in filing the required oath, the clerk of the county court may declare the vacancy and fill the same by appointment. State v. Jones, 80 N. C. 127.

General Assembly May Authorize Ferry.—This section does not deprive the general assembly of the power to pass an act authorizing the establishment of a public ferry at a certain point. In re Spease Ferry, 138 N. C. 219, 59 S. E. 625.

As to the power of General Assembly to abrogate the provisions of the section, see section 34 of the article and annexed notes thereunder.

Cancellation of Official Bond.—In the absence of a statute specifically authorizing the board of commissioners of a county to cancel an official bond, the bond is not necessarily void. Winn v. Courville, 166 N. C. 383, 149 S. E. 476; Crocker v. Moore, 140 N. C. 429, 51 S. E. 229; Southern Audit Co. v. McKensie, 147 N. C. 461, 61 S. E. 283; Bunch v. Randolph County Comm'n, 139 N. C. 335, 76 S. E. 1046; Commissioners v. Ross Com'r, 155 N. C. 612, 64 S. E. 1003; Wilson v. Holding, 170 N. C. 352, 86 S. E. 1043; Holmes v. Bullock, 178 N. C. 376, 378, 100 S. E. 530; Lenoir County v. Taylor, 190 N. C. 336, 130 S. E. 25; Day v. Commissioners, 191 N. C. 780, 133 S. E. 164.

§ 3. Counties to be divided into districts.—It shall be the duty of the commissioners first elected in each county to divide the same into convenient districts, to determine the boundaries and prescribe the name of the said districts, and report the same to the General Assembly before the first day of January, 1869. (Const. 1868.)

Alteration of Township after First Division.—The creation or adoption of a new form of government in several counties of the State, after the first division by the county commissioners under this section is left with the Legislature. Grady v. County Comm'r, 74 N. C. 101. See § 153-9, par. 2, and notes thereto.

§ 4. Townships have corporate powers.—Upon the approval of the reports provided for in the foregoing section of the General Assembly, the said districts shall have corporate powers for the necessary purposes of local government, and shall be known as townships. (Const. 1868.)

Township Powers Must Be Conferred.—Townships are corporate bodies and have no corporate powers when not specially conferred by statute. Wittkowsky v. Board, 150 N. C. 90, 117, 63 S. E. 174. See notes to §§ 2-9 et seq., par. 33.

Municipality Subject to Legislative Control.—The municipality, such as a city, town or county, is subject to the control of the General Assembly even in respect to necessary purposes. Jones v. New Bern, 152 N. C. 64, 65, 67 S. E. 173.

Township Trustees Not a Municipal Corporation.—The board of township trustees has no existence as a municipal corporation, and cannot be a party to a suit. Wallace v. Board, 84 N. C. 164.

Townships Not Given Power of Taxation.—This section does not give townships the power of taxation for school purposes either through their trustees or committees. Lane v. Stanly, 65 N. C. 153. See section 160-56 and notes thereto.

Cited in Mann v. Allen, 171 N. C. 219, 88 S. E. 235; Road Comm. v. Commissioners, 178 N. C. 61, 64, 100 S. E. 122.

§ 5. Officers of townships.—In each township there shall be biennially elected, by the qualified voters thereof, a clerk and two justices of the peace, who shall constitute a board of trustees, and shall, under the supervision of county commissioners, have control of the taxes and finances, roads and bridges of the township as may be prescribed by law. The General Assembly may provide for the election of a larger number of justices of the peace in cities and towns, and in those townships in which cities and towns are situated. In every township there shall also be biennially elected a school committee, consisting of three persons, whose duty shall be prescribed by law. (Const. 1868.)

Cross References.—As to the election, powers and duties of the clerk generally, see section 2-1 et seq. As to the justices see section 7-112 et seq.

Editor’s Note.—The act of 1877, c. 141, passed in pursuance of Art. VII, sect. 13, amended this section so as to deprive the board of township trustees of its existence as a municipal corporation and establish new methods of selecting and appointing justices of the peace. See Wallace v. Trustees, 84 N. C. 164.

Justice Elected.—This section requires that justices of the peace be elected by townships. Edenton v. Wool, 65 N. C. 579.

Same.—Power Cannot Be Conferred.—An attempt to confer the power of a justice of the peace on the Judge of a Special Court cannot avail, for this section requires justices of the peace to be elected by the several townships, and the Legislature cannot change the mode of their appointment. Wilmington v. Davie, 63 N. C. 37.

Justices Members of Board of Trustees.—Where an act of the General Assembly authorized the election, in townships containing cities and towns, of a larger number of justices than two, all such justices are members of the Township Board of Trustees. Conley v. Harris, 64 N. C. 662.

Trustees without Authority to Build Bridges.—Township trustees have no authority to contract for building bridges; when such a contract is entered into without the sanction and supervision of the County Commissioners, it is a nullity. Paine v. Caldwell, 65 N. C. 176.

Creation of Highway Commission.—The Legislature has the constitutional authority to create a highway commission for a county, and give it control over its bridges and highways, their maintenance and supervision, and the power to maintain and subdivide this agency into several parts over defined territory. Ellis v. Greene, 191 N. C. 761, 133 S. E. 395.

§ 6. Trustees shall assess property.—The township board of trustees shall assess the taxable property of their townships and make the same report to the county commissioners for revision, as may be prescribed by law. The clerk shall also be, ex officio, treasurer of the township. (Const. 1868.)

Assessment by Mayor and Commissioners.—An assessment of the property subject to taxation by a municipal corporation, made by the mayor and commissioners of such corporation, is valid. Such assessment, under the provisions of the Constitution, must be made by the township board of trustees. Cobb v. Corporation, 75 N. C. 1.

When Appeal Lies From Commissioners Decision.—The Commission of the Peace has no authority to grant relief against excessive valuation of property for taxation; and from their decision, upon a petition for that purpose, there is no appeal, unless it appears from the facts charged in the petition, that the assessment has been made upon some erroneous principle; for the reason that the statute gives no appeal. Wade v. Commissioners, 74 N. C. 81.

The term "municipal corporation" should not be construed narrowly to include only cities, towns, counties and school districts, as the Constitution contemplates a broader construction of the term, and in its broader sense the term includes all entities, both public and private, exercising governmental functions within the constitutional limitations. Wells v. Housing Authority, 213 N. C. 744, 197 S. E. 693.

The State is not a municipality within the meaning of the Constitution, and since a city or county, in the operation of public schools within its territory, is not a municipality for the purposes of the Constitution, and since such administrative units, in imposing taxes necessary to the maintenance of public schools, is not required to submit the question to the votes of the qualified persons residing within the city or county. Bridge v. Charlotte, 231 N. C. 472, 55 S. E. 2d 1.

Although an administrative unit of the State public school system is a taxpaying unit for the purposes of the Constitution, the voters the question of supplementing State funds to conduct schools of higher standards and longer terms, the provision for a vote is not in deference to this section and the establishment of such supplement is left to the word in construing this section since the legislature in framing the amendment must have had in mind the construction of the word as used in this section. Sessions v., Columbus County, 214 N. C. 634, 219 S. E. 416. See also, McGuinn v. High Point, 219 N. C. 56, 13 S. E. 2d 48.

Majority of Qualified Voters Necessary.—An issue of county bonds, which was not approved by the majority of the qualified voters, was held invalid by this court. Sprague v. Board, 165 N. C. 603, 81 S. E. 915; Long v. Commissioners, 181 N. C. 146, 106 S. E. 481.

By this section, bonds for other than necessary purposes must be approved by a majority of the qualified voters of the taxing unit. Voting v. Wilmington, 214 N. C. 635, 200 S. E. 416; Sessions v., Columbus County, 214 N. C. 634, 219 S. E. 416.

Even within the exercise of its powers a municipality may not bind itself by a contract which incurs a debt, except for necessary expenses, unless by a vote of the majority of its qualified voters as provided by this section. Madry v. Scotland Neck, 214 N. C. 461, 399 S. E. 638.

This section and art. V, § 4, of the State Constitution are not in conflict, and bonds for other than necessary expenses which are also in excess of two-thirds of the amount by which the taxing unit exceeded the maximum needed during the prior fiscal year, must be approved not only by a majority of those voting in the election under article V, § 4, but also by a majority of the qualified voters of the taxing unit. Voting v. Wilmington, 214 N. C. 635, 200 S. E. 416.

Debt.—This section and the amended art. V, § 4, will be considered in pari materia, and the word "debt" in art. V, § 4, will be given the same construction as has been given to the word "voting unit" in this section. Wells v. Housing Authority, 213 N. C. 744, 197 S. E. 693.

Act and Not State Necessity of Majority Vote.—An issue of bonds for a school district will not be declared invalid because the special act under which they were approved by the voters did not expressly require for their validity that a majority of the qualified voters of the district must vote in their favor, when it appears that such majority, as ascertained from a valid register, was cast in favor of the issue. Hammond v. McRae, 182 N. C. 747, 110 S. E. 102.

General Districts Debts Voted for in One Ballot Box.—An issue of municipal bonds, when approved by the majority of the qualified voters of the taxing unit, must not only be approved by a majority of those voting in the election under article V, § 4, but also by a majority of the qualified voters of the taxing unit. Voting v. Wilmington, 214 N. C. 635, 200 S. E. 416.

Whenmandamus.—The first part of this section forbidding the levy of any taxes by a municipal corporation except for necessary expenses, unless by a vote of the majority of the qualified voters in the territory affected, the debtedness has not been submitted to a vote of the people. Charlotte v. Shepard & Co., 122 N. C. 602, 29 S. E. 842.

Endorsement of Township Bonds by County.—Where townships are permitted to call an election for the purpose of voting upon the issuance of township bonds for the roads of the township, the proceeds to be turned over to the sole care of its floating indebtedness, it will be assumed on appeal that the acquisition of the land for a municipal airport from surplus funds was not beyond the power of the city and it in no way offended the provisions of this section. Gwosz v. Darham, 211 N. C. 547, 549, 191 S. E. 728.

Whenmandamus.—The first part of this section forbidding the levy of any taxes by a municipal corporation except for necessary expenses, unless by a vote of the majority of the qualified voters in the territory affected, the debtedness has not been submitted to a vote of the people. Charlotte v. Shepard & Co., 122 N. C. 602, 29 S. E. 842.
ern R. Co. v. Reid, 187 N. C. 520, 117 S. E. 574) even though the bridge is interstate (Emery v. Commissioners, 181 N. C. 668, 110 S. E. 106). Accordingly, the imposition of a tax for the sale of custom tobacco is not a necessary municipal expense and the town may not issue its notes for the purchase price of such platform without a vote of its electors. Walker v. Paison, 202 N. C. 163, 161 S. E. 267.

Where a vote of the qualified electors is not necessary to the validity of the bonds proposed to be issued if an ordinance imposing a tax for the sale of custom tobacco is not a necessary municipal expense and the town may not issue its notes for the purchase price of such platform without a vote of its electors. Webb v. Port Comm., 205 N. C. 665, 172 S. E. 377.

The construction of an annex to a county hospital, to be used principally for the care of the indigent sick of the county, is not a necessary expense within the intent and meaning of this section, and may be validly authorized by general law, whether or not approved by the county thereunder without submitting the question of their issuance to the approval of the voters of the county. Barbour v. Wake County, 197 N. C. 314, 148 S. E. 470.

Editor's Note.—It has been held in several cases that the section of school buildings is not a necessary expense within the purview of this section, and therefore a county cannot be brought under this indebtedness without the approval of the qualified voters. Jones v. Board, 185 N. C. 303, 117 S. E. 37; Davis v. Board, 186 N. C. 227, 119 S. E. 372. However, these cases did not involve an indebtedness incurred by legislative authority in carrying on the public school system of the state and the necessary maintenance of a six months' supply of medicines for the school children. The Constitution, and it has been held that the question of taxation for this purpose need not be submitted to the voters. Sing v. Board, 192 N. C. 316, 135 S. E. 336; Hartsfield v. Craven County, 194 N. C. 358, 139 S. E. 48.

The better reason advanced for this distinction is that each part of the Constitution is of equal weight and merit and the validity of any section of the Constitution is not to be measured by the weight or merit assigned by courts or legislative bodies to any other portion of the Constitution. In Lacy v. Fidelity Bank, 183 N. C. 373, 111 S. E. 612, the court said: "The reasonable construction of this section is that a county in carrying out its legislative functions cannot be required to stand to refer to the debts and taxes in furtherance of local measures and do not extend to a state-wide measure . . . undertaken in obedience to a separate provision of the Constitution, and the court expressly recognized the governmental units through which the general purpose may be made effective." See annotations under sec- tion 15-59.

As to estoppel of taxpayers to deny the invalidity of a special school tax, see Carr v. Little, 188 N. C. 100, 123 S. E. 625.
The limitations of this section are not applicable to bonds or notes issued by a county, city, town, or other municipal corporation, whenever the proceeds therefrom are applied to the payment of the public debts of the United States. (Const. 1868.)

This section applies to local matters relating to the affairs of the county separately considered, and not to a State or to any other public corporation, or to any other public corporations, neither in the United States. Hall v. Commissioners, 194 N. C. 768, 770, 140 S. E. 739.

Editor's Note.—The present Section 10 was originally Section 11, but was renumbered pursuant to Chapter 248 of the Public Laws of 1935. See note under Article VII, Section 9.

§ 11. Charters to remain in force until legally changed.—All charters, ordinances, and provisions relating to municipal corporations shall remain in force until legally changed, unless inconsistent with the provisions of this Constitution. (Const. 1868; 1935, c. 248.)

Editor's Note.—The present Section 11 was originally Section 12, but was renumbered pursuant to Chapter 248 of the Public Laws of 1935. See note under Article VII, Section 9.

§ 12. Debts in aid of the rebellion not to be paid.—No county, city, town, or other municipal corporation shall assume or pay, nor shall any tax be levied or collected for the payment of any debt, or the interest upon any debt, contracted directly or indirectly in aid or support of the rebellion. (Const. 1868; 1935, c. 248.)

Editor's Note.—The present Section 12 was originally Section 13, but was renumbered pursuant to Chapter 248 of the Public Laws of 1935. See note under Article VII, Section 9.

§ 13. Powers of General Assembly over municipal corporations.—The General Assembly shall have full power by statute to modify, change, or abrogate any and all of the provisions of this article, and substitute other provisions in their place, except sections seven, nine and thirteen. (Const. 1868; 1935, c. 248.)

Editor's Note.—The present Section 13 was originally Section 14, which was added by the Convention of 1875, but was renumbered pursuant to Chapter 248 of the Public Laws of 1935. See note under Article VII, Section 9.

Municipality Subject to Legislative Control.—A municipality, such as a city, town, or county, is subject to the control of the General Assembly even in respect to necessary expenses. Jones v. New Bern, 152 N. C. 64, 65, 67 S. E. 173.

And the General Assembly may, at its discretion, abolish municipal as well as other corporations. Ward v. Elizabeth City, 91 N. C. 511, 512, 57 S. E. 725.

Control of Municipal Contract.—The power conferred by its charter upon a city to provide water and lights, and to contract for the same, provides for the cleaning and repairing the streets, regulating the market, taking proper means to prevent and extinguish fires, is subject to the police power of the state, with respect to rates to be charged under such contracts as the city may make under its charter with a public service corporation. Corporation Comm. v. Henderson Water Co., 190 N. C. 76, 128 S. E. 465.

Dividing County into Three Districts.—Chapter 526, Public Laws of 1935, providing that Cherokee County be divided into three districts and commissioners elected from each district falls well within the full power given the General Assembly by this section. Watkins v. Johnson, 210 N. C. 469, 49 S. E. 2d 162. See §§ 7-112 et seq., of the code.

Act Need Not Be General.—It is not required that the power conferred in this section should be general in its operation, or that it should in terms formally abrogate any given section therein, and substitute another in its stead, for the act making such change, local in its operation, must be given effect under its provisions, if otherwise valid. Tyrrell County v. Holloway, 182 N. C. 64, 108 S. E. 337; Smith v.
School Trustees, 141 N. C. 143, 53 S. E. 524.

Creation of Highway Commission.—The Legislature has authority under this section to create a highway commission for a county, and give it control over its roads and highways, the maintenance and supervision, etc., or subdivide this agency into several parts over defined territory. Ellis v.
Greene, 191 N. C. 761, 133 S. E. 395; Commissions v. Road
Commissioners, 121 N. C. 172, 28 S. E. 269.

The powers given to county commissioners over public highways, may be taken away from them and conferred by statute upon other political agencies of the State. Day v.
Commissioners, 191 N. C. 730, 133 S. E. 269.

Appointing City Alderman.—The delegation by the legislature to the Governor of the State of the power of appointing a commissioner of a city with the scope of the power entrusted to the discretion of the Legislature by this section. Harris v. Wright, 121 N. C. 172, 28 S. E. 269.

Compelling County to Issue Bonds.—The Legislature has power to pass an act compelling a county to issue bonds to fund its existing indebtedness incurred for necessary ex-

Establishment of School District.—The establishing of a school district at the option of the people, which may be done by special legislative enactment under this section.
Dickson v. Brewer, 180 N. C. 403, 104 S. E. 887.

Creating County Board of Audit and Finance.—The Legislature has constitutional power to provide a board of audit and finance for a particular county and to direct that payment of an expert accountant authorized thereunder be made by the county treasurer as a charge against the county's public funds, upon an order made by said board in a certain prescribed manner, Southern Audit Co. v. McKenzie, 147 N. C.
151, 67 S. E. 289.

ARTICLE VIII
Corporations Other Than Municipal

§ 1. Corporations under general laws.—No corporation shall be created nor shall its charter be extended, altered, or amended by special act, except corporations for charitable, educational, penal, or reformatory purposes that are to be and remain under the patronage and control of the State; but the General Assembly shall provide by general laws for the chartering and organization of all corporations and for amending, extending, and forfeiture of all charters, except those above permitted by special act. All such general laws and special acts may be altered from time to time or repealed; and the General Assembly may at any time by special act repeal the charter of any corporation. (Const. 1868; 1915, c. 99.)

Editor’s Note.—Sec. 1 in the Constitution of 1858 was as follows: "Corporations may be formed under general laws, but shall not be created, except for municipal purposes, and in cases where, in the judgment of the Legislature, the object of corporations cannot be attained under general laws. All general laws and special acts passed under this section that are altered, extended or repealed, shall be by special act amended, extended, or repealed." This section was stricken out and the present Sec. 1 substituted therefor pursuant to ch. 99, Public Laws of 1915, ratified by the people in November, 1916.

In General.—Except for purposes of absolute repeal which is retained throughout as essential to the proper exercise and enforcement of the police powers of Government, and except, also, in the instances expressly designated in this section, this section withdraws from the General Assembly any and all power by special enactments to create, extend, alter, or amend the charter of all private business corporations, and all quasi-public corporations, such as railroads, interconnected telephones, or telephone companies, or what are like, and also those corporations which while having at times and to some extent powers appertaining to government are in fact and in truth business corporations for the purpose principally of profit, operating privilege, etc., such as Lenoir, etc., Turnpike Co., 181 N. C. 129, 135, 106 S. E. 497.

The title of this section, which must be read into the text to give the intended classification, signifies, refers to "corporations other than municipal." Classifying all public corporations as municipal. Wells v. Housing Authority, 213 N. C. 744, 750, 197 S. E. 693.

Power to Extinguish Corporations.—The General Assembly may lawfully exercise all powers conferred upon it in order to private or business corporations; and where the Legislatue by special act amending the charter of a city authorizes it to purchase electricity and resell it to its inhabitants and others, within the city, the power to sell to such individuals and corporations does not detract from the public service or destroy the public character of the municipality, nor does it impair the sovereign power given the city by general statute also, the exercise of the power thus conferred will not be enjoined. Holmes v. Fayettville, 197 N. C. 740, 741, 150 S. E. 624.

A commission created as an agency of the State to perform functions of a governmental character, or to regulate activities for the commerce of the State in the public interest, and not for private gain, is a public corporation, and the Legislature is not prohibited from creating such corporation by this section, nor is the act creating it a special act within the meaning of this section, and the Commission may lawfully exercise all powers conferred upon it in order to perform its duties as prescribed by the act. Webb v. Port Comm., 205 N. C. 663, 172 S. E. 377.

Power to Extinguish Corporations.—The General Assembly may at its discretion, and for just cause, alter, amend, or abolish municipal as well as other corporations, because they are all alike creatures of its will, and exist only at its pleasure. Ward v. Elizabeth City, 121 N. C. 1, 3, 277 S. E. 995.

Right of Alteration as a Part of Every Charter.—The provisions of this section, affecting the organization of corporations, and specifically providing that all "such laws or special acts may be altered from time to time or repealed," etc., is to be given effect and control extends to every charter, thereunder, and any such corporation may not complain when a statutory repeal or amendment has been made, on the ground that it was inserted in the charter in contemplation of its property, unless vested rights have been prior acquired by it which have been impaired or destroyed by the repeal-or amendatory act complained of. Elizabeth City Water, etc., Co. v. Elizabeth City, 188 N. C. 278, 124 S. E. 611; Smith v.
Cantwell, 142 N. C. 604, 55 S. E. 820; Power Co. v. Whitney Co., 150 N. C. 31, 63 S. E. 188.

"Special Act" Only Prohibited.—This section only prohibits the enactment of a special act and an act which relates to all municipal corporations of a county, including cities, town, townships, and school districts is not a special act within its meaning and intent. Kornegay v. Goldsboro, 180 N. C. 441, 446, 105 S. E. 187.

No Alteration of Charter Not Forbidden.—This section does not apply, an act of the Legislature authorizing an assessment not void because it does not prescribe all of the particulars relating to such assessment. It is sufficient if it authorizes a fair and equitable method of ascertaining the peculiar benefits or advantages in the assessment. Fakie v. Mocksville, 189 N. C. 144, 149, 125 S. E. 356.

County is a Corporation.—A county is but the state's instrumentalities for the administration of local government; and when this restriction is thus placed upon them, or it is required of them to submit the question of a bond issue to popular vote, and an issue of bonds is made without compliance therewith, the issue is invalid. Murphy v. Webb & Co., 156 N. C. 402, 72 S. E. 460, and cases cited therein.

Effect of Dissolution upon Corporate Property.—Upon the dissolution or extinction of a corporation under this section for any cause, real property conveyed to it in fee does not escheat to the state; and this is so whether or not the duration of the corporation was limited by its charter or general statute. Wilson v. Leary, 120 N. C. 90, 26 S. E. 630, overruling Fox v. Horah, 36 N. C. 358.

The legislature may restrict or limit the power of incorporated towns or cities to tax or contract debts for purposes which fall within the class of necessary expenses, for, they are but the state's instrumentalities for the administration of local government, and the state has the right to control the finances of such corporations as it may think proper, due regard being had to the extinction of such corporations as originally formed under legislative enactment, and to restrict their power of taxation, assessment and in contracting debts by such corporations as it may think proper, due regard being had to the extinction of such corporations as originally formed under legislative enactment. Wadsworth v. Concord, 133 N. C. 587, 45 S. E. 948. It is said by the court in this case: "Even if it did not amount to a necessary expense in the cases mentioned in Art. VII, section 7, without submitting the question to the qualified voter, it may not be deemed as the right of the municipality to levy a tax as a necessary expense in the cases mentioned in Art. VII, section 7, and must be construed therewith. One court has said that this section properly belongs in Art. VII, Kornegay v. Goldsboro, 180 N. C. 441, 105 S. E. 187. The searcher is therefore referred to the note placed under that article.

In General.—The court in Pullen v. Raleigh, 68 N. C. 451, 454, said: "This (section) seems to give a general control to the Legislature on the subject of municipal corporations, and the Legislature may, under it, restrict the power of taxation by corporations as it may think proper, due regard being had to other parts of the constitution. Although a municipality may ordinarily levy a tax as a necessary expense in the cases mentioned in Art. VII, section 7, without submitting the question to the qualified voter, it may not be deemed as the right of the municipality to levy a tax as a necessary expense in the cases mentioned in Art. VII, section 7, and must be construed therewith. One court has said that this section properly belongs in Art. VII, Kornegay v. Goldsboro, 180 N. C. 441, 105 S. E. 187. The searcher is therefore referred to the note placed under that article.

Editor's Note.—The setting up of a municipal corporation by the legislature at any place, under this section, is left to legislative discretion. Starmount Co. v. Ohio Sav. Bank, etc., Co., 55 F. (2d) 649, 652.

Counties, cities and towns are governmental agencies of the state, created by the legislature for administrative purposes, and the legislature retains control and supervision over both classes of municipal corporations, limited only by this section. Saluda v. Polk County, 207 N. C. 180, 176 S. E. 299.

Not Applicable to Special Assessments.—It seems that this section does not apply to special assessments for local municipal improvements, Raleigh v. Peace, 110 N. C. 32, 14 S. E. 11, overruling Islander v. Southern R. Co., 138 N. C. 351, 50 S. E. 450. It is said by the court in this case: "Even if it did not amount to a necessary expense in the cases mentioned in Art. VII, section 7, without submitting the question to the qualified voter, it may not be deemed as the right of the municipality to levy a tax as a necessary expense in the cases mentioned in Art. VII, section 7, and must be construed therewith. One court has said that this section properly belongs in Art. VII, Kornegay v. Goldsboro, 180 N. C. 441, 105 S. E. 187. The searcher is therefore referred to the note placed under that article. Wadsworth v. Concord, 133 N. C. 587, 45 S. E. 948. It is said by the court in this case: "Even if it did amount to a necessary expense in the cases mentioned in Art. VII, section 7, without submitting the question to the qualified voter, it may not be deemed as the right of the municipality to levy a tax as a necessary expense in the cases mentioned in Art. VII, section 7, and must be construed therewith. One court has said that this section properly belongs in Art. VII, Kornegay v. Goldsboro, 180 N. C. 441, 105 S. E. 187. The searcher is therefore referred to the note placed under that article. Wadsworth v. Concord, 133 N. C. 587, 45 S. E. 948. It is said by the court in this case: "Even if it did amount to a necessary expense in the cases mentioned in Art. VII, section 7, without submitting the question to the qualified voter, it may not be deemed as the right of the municipality to levy a tax as a necessary expense in the cases mentioned in Art. VII, section 7, and must be construed therewith. One court has said that this section properly belongs in Art. VII, Kornegay v. Goldsboro, 180 N. C. 441, 105 S. E. 187. The searcher is therefore referred to the note placed under that article. Wadsworth v. Concord, 133 N. C. 587, 45 S. E. 948.

ARTICLE IX

Education

§ 1. Education shall be encouraged.—Religion, morality, and knowledge being necessary to good government and the happiness of mankind, schools and the means of education shall forever be encouraged. (Const. 1868.)

Editor's Note.—This section constitutes the corner-stone in the foundation on which rest the provisions of the following sections, the courts in practically all the cases referring to the provisions hereof and using them as a supplemental basis for deciding other cases, in addition to more of the subsequent sections. Reference, therefore, is here made to the notes placed under the sections following in this article.

This and the following sections are mandatory in their provisions; it is the duty of the courts, in holding cases arising in the administration of the provisions of the following sections, the courts in practically all the cases referring to the provisions hereof and using them as a supplemental basis for deciding other cases, in addition to more of the subsequent sections. Reference, therefore, is here made to the notes placed under the sections following in this article.
§ 2. General Assembly shall provide for schools; separation of the races.—The General Assembly, at its first session under this Constitution, shall provide for taxation and otherwise for a general and uniform system of public schools, wherein tuition shall be free of charge to all children of the State between the ages of six and twenty-one years. And the children of the white race and the children of the colored race shall be taught in separate public schools; but there shall be no discrimination in favor of, or to the prejudice of, either race. (Const. 1868; Convention 1875.)

Cross Reference.—See Art. IX, sec. 3.

In General.—It was said by the court in Lane v. Stanly, 65 N. C. 153, 157: “It will be seen that the Constitution contemplates a uniform system of public schools, and the General Assembly provides for it, by its own taxing power, and by the taxing power of the counties, and by the State Board of Education, by the establishment and continuation of such schools. It will be seen that it is to be a ‘system’; it is to be ‘general’, and it is to be ‘uniform’. It is not to subject to the caprices of localities, but every locality, yea, every child, is to have the same advantages, and to be subject to the same rules and regulations.”

The requirement of this section of the Constitution, that our public-school system shall be uniform by legislative authority, relates to the uniformity of the class or kind of the “schools;” and thus qualifying the word “class,” it is sufficiently complied with where, by statute or authorized regulation of the public-school system, the schools of one class or kind are established and maintained, and the schools of like kind throughout all sections of the State and available to all of the school population of the territories contributing to their support. Board v. County Com’rs, 174 N. C. 153, 157: “It will be seen that the Constitution establishes the public school system, and the General Assembly provides for it, by its own taxing power, and by the taxing power of the counties from the proceeds of a bond issue to be voted upon therein, ‘for the whites’ in that district, violates the plain mandate of this section, and a purchaser of these bonds, though issued according to all other legal requirements, may refuse to accept them on the ground of their being invalid. Williams v. Bradford, 158 N. C. 36, 73 S. E. 154.

Separate Buildings, Teachers, etc.—This section commands that the children of both races are to be educated in separate buildings and by separate teachers. Lowery v. School Trustees, 140 N. C. 33, 52 S. E. 267.

Under this section the school building now provided for the colored children cannot be taken for use of white children. Lowery v. School Trustees, 140 N. C. 33, 52 S. E. 267.

County Need Not Assume Bonds of Unnecessary School Buildings.—Where a special charter school district and a county school district coterminous with its corporate limits shall provide for a separate school district for the minimum constitutional term of six months, the city and special charter school district are not entitled to compel the county to assume such bonds upon the taking over by the county of the buildings as a part of the general system of public schools. Greensboro v. Guilford County, 209 N. C. 855, 184 S. E. 473.

This and the following section of the Constitution require that at least one elementary school be maintained in each district, but the constitutional mandate does not extend to high schools. Elliot v. Board of Equalization, 203 N. C. 749, 166 S. E. 918.

This section contemplates that the general assembly shall provide a state system of public schools to the end that every child between the ages of six and twenty-one shall have an opportunity to attend a school in which stand-ard standards are maintained and wherein tuition shall be free of charge, and it is the duty of the commis-sioners of each county, when such state system has been provided, to maintain in each district of the county one or more schools for the constitutional school term. Marshburn v. Moore, 210 N. C. 99, 146 S. E. 265.

Same—Mandatory.—The provisions of our Constitution, Art. IX, secs. 1, 2, 3, are mandatory that the legislature provide for taxation and otherwise for a general and uniform system of public schools wherein tuition shall be free of charge, to all of the children of the State from six to twenty-one years,” etc., and for the continuance of the school term in the various districts for at least six months each. Under this section the counties of the State and designating them as the governmental agencies through which the Legislature may act in the performance of this duty and in making its measure ef-fective. Board v. Commissioners, 174 N. C. 149, 192 S. E. 578. See Mebane Graded School Dist. v. Alamance County, 231 N. C. 213, 189 S. E. 873. See also, Collie v. Franklin County Com’rs, 145 N. C. 170, 25 S. E. 262.

Distribution of Excess Allowance.—County high schools are entitled to have a special allowance made to them in the yearly estimate of the county board of education for a four-months term (now six); but it is otherwise as to a school which is in strictness one of a town or city governed by local authority and accessible only to the school population of the specified district, for such is not a part of our public-school system; and this class of high schools may only receive their per capita or pro rata share of the estimate according to a change and not to the continuance of the statute or authoritative regulations applicable. Board v. County Commissioners, 174 N. C. 469, 93 S. E. 1001.

All of the funds raised in the state for common school pur-pose should be distributed on the basis of the state system and not be retained in the counties where it is raised. School Com’nsioners v. Board, 169 N. C. 196, 85 S. E. 138: Board v. State Board, 114 N. C. 313, 19 S. E. 277. And in the distribu-tion of the funds the General Assembly may not divide the state in favor, or to the prejudice of either the white or col-ored races. Hooker v. Greenville, 130 N. C. 472, 42 S. E. 141.

Racial Discrimination.—An act of the legislature which provides for the continuance of the school term in the various districts for at least six months each, and not be retained in the counties where it is raised. School Com’nsioners v. Board, 169 N. C. 196, 85 S. E. 138: Board v. State Board, 114 N. C. 313, 19 S. E. 277. And in the distribution of the funds the General Assembly may not divide the state in favor, or to the prejudice of either the white or colored races. Hooker v. Greenville, 130 N. C. 472, 42 S. E. 141.

Editor’s Note.—This section was amended by the substitution of “six” for “four” pursuant to § 192, Public Laws of 1917, ratified by the people in November, 1918.
at least six months in the year. Bridges v. Charlotte, 221 N. C. 472, 477, 20 S. E. (2d) 825.

This section is mandatory, but the mode of performance is prescribed by statute. Hickory v. Catawba County, 206 N. C. 165, 189 S. E. 873; Piney Grove Graded School Dist. v. Alamance County, 211 N. C. 218, 189 S. E. 873.

Counties May Be Directed to Provide Funds.—By reason of this constitutional mandate it is within the power of the General Assembly, in each of its school districts, and to the discretionary power of the courts, to compel performance of the duties of this section by mandamus when indictment of the violation is brought.

Assumption of Indebtedness.—When necessary to maintain the six-months term of public schools required by this section it is within the legislative authority in establishing its school system, to assume an indebtedness of a school district therefor, including the cost of necessary buildings and direct that it be provided for by the respective counties as an administrative agency of the state. Mebane Graded School Dist. v. Alamance County, 211 N. C. 213, 189 S. E. 873.

Discretion of General Assembly Rules as to Financing Public Schools.—Under this section it is within the discretion of the General Assembly, in establishing its school system, to establish, divide, and consolidate school districts in accordance with a county-wide plan. Elliott v. State Board of Equalization, 203 N. C. 749, 166 S. E. 918.

The proceeds of all sales of the swamp lands belonging to the State, and not otherwise specially appropriated, shall be operated upon the terms of the grant, gift or devise, shall be paid into the General School Fund of the state, and the proceeds of all moneys that shall be paid as an equivalent for estrays, or from fines, penalties, and forfeitures; also, the proceeds that may accrue the State from sales of estrays, or for the State, or for the State fund for purposes of education; also the net proceeds of all sales of the swamp lands belonging to the State, and not otherwise specially appropriated by the State, or by the terms of the grant, gift or devise, shall be paid into the State treasury, and, together with so much of the ordinary revenue of the State as may be by law set apart for that purpose, shall be faithfully appropriated for establishing and maintaining in this State a system of free public schools, and for no other uses or purposes whatsoever. (Const. 1868; Convention 1875.) and all moneys which shall be paid by persons as an equivalent for exemption from military duty, shall belong to and remain in the several counties, and shall be faithfully appropriated for establishing and maintaining free public schools in the several counties of this State: Provided, that the amount collected in each county shall be annually reported to the Superintendent of Public Instruction. (Constitution of 1868; Convention of 1875.)

In General.—This section appropriates all fines for violation of the criminal laws of the state for establishing and maintaining free public schools in the several counties. The fines are for violation of town ordinances made misdemeanor by statute or other criminal statutes. Board v. Helzeron, 127 N. C. 604, 36 S. E. 158. Fines, etc., Must Be Given by Law.—Under this section penalties and forfeitures belong to the state for free school purposes only when given by law to the state. Carter v. Wilmington, etc., R. Co., 126 N. C. 437, 446, 36 S. E. 14, and cases cited.

And Municipal Clerk Is Not Entitled to Fees from Fines.—By provision of this section, the clear proceeds of fines collected by the clerk of a municipal court belong to the county school fund, and the clerk is not entitled to retain a percentage thereof as his fees, regardless of the provisions of public-local laws relating to his compensation. County Board of Education v. High Point, 213 N. C. 636, 197 S. E. 191.

Parties.—A suit to compel a city to pay fines and penalties to the county board of education should be brought against the city or the board of aldermen, and not against the chief of police. Bearden v. Fullam, 129 N. C. 477, 40 S. E. 204.

§ 6. Election of trustees, and provisions for maintenance, of the University.—The General Assembly shall have power to provide for the election of trustees of the University of North Carolina, in whom, when chosen, shall be vested all the privileges, rights, franchises and endowments thereof in anywise granted to or conferred upon the trustees of said University; and the General Assembly may make such provisions, laws, and regulations from time to time, as may be necessary and expedient for the management and direction of said University. (1873-9, c. 86.)

Editor's Note.—Pursuant to ch. 86, Public Laws of 1872-73, this Sec. 6 was substituted for Sec. 5 of the Constitution of 1868, which was as follows: "The University of North Carolina, with its lands, endowments, and other property, is under the control of the State, and shall be held to an inseparable connection with the free public school system of the State."

§ 7. Benefits of the University.—The General Assembly shall provide that the benefits of the University, as far as practicable, be extended to the youth of the State free of expense for tuition; also, that all the property which has here-tofore accrued to the State, or shall hereafter accrue, from escheats, unclaimed dividends, or distributive shares of the estates of deceased persons, shall be appropriated to the use of the University. (Constitution of 1868.)

§ 8. State Board of Education. — The general supervision and administration of the free public school system, and of the educational funds provided for the support thereof, shall, from and after the first day of April, one thousand nine hundred and forty-three, be vested in a State Board of Education to consist of the Lieutenant Governor, the Superintendent of Public Instruction, and one member from each Congressional District to be appointed by the Governor. The State Superintendent of Public Instruction shall have general supervision of the public schools and shall be secretary of the board. There shall be a comptroller appointed by the Board, subject to the approval of the Governor as director of the institution, who shall receive such duties and compensation as the Board, and who, under the direction of the board, shall have supervision and management of the fiscal affairs of the board. The appointive members of the State Board of Education shall be subject to confirmation by the General Assembly in joint session. A majority of the members of said board shall be persons of training and experience in business and finance, who shall not be connected with the teaching profession or any educational administration of the State. The first appointments under this section shall be members from odd numbered Congressional Districts for two years, and members from even numbered Congressional Districts for four years and, thereafter, all appointments shall be made for a term of four years. All appointments to fill vacancies shall be made by the Governor for the unexpired term, which appointments shall not be subject to confirmation. The Board shall elect a chairman and a vice-chairman. A majority of the board shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of business. The per diem and expenses of the appointive members of the board shall be provided by the General Assembly. (Constitution of 1868; 1941, c. 151.)

Editor's Note.—Pursuant to Chapter 151 of the Public Laws of 1941, the former Sections 8 and 9 of the Constitution of 1868 were repealed and the present Section 8 substituted in lieu thereof. Those former sections read as follows: "§ 8. The Governor, Lieutenant-Governor, Secretary of State, Treasurer, Auditor, Superintendent of Public Instruction, and Attorney-General shall constitute a State Board of Education." "§ 9. The Governor shall be president and the Superintendent of Public Instruction shall be secretary of the Board of Education."

§ 9. Powers and Duties of the Board.—The State Board of Education shall succeed to all the powers and trusts of the President and Directors of the Literary Fund of North Carolina and the State Board of Education as heretofore constituted. The State Board of Education shall have power to divide the State into a convenient number of school districts; to regulate the grade, salary and qualifications of teachers; to provide for the selection and adoption of the textbooks to be used in the public schools; to apportion and equalize the public school funds over the State; and generally to supervise and administer the free public school system of the State and make all needful rules and regulations in relation thereto. All the powers enumerated in this section shall be exercised in conformity with this Constitution and subject to such laws as may be enacted from time to time by the General Assembly. (Const. 1868; 1941, c. 151.)

Editor’s Note.—Pursuant to Chapter 151 of the Public Laws of 1941, Section 10, Article X, and 13 of the Constitution of 1868 were repealed and the present Section 9 substituted in lieu thereof. Former sections read as follows:

"§ 10. The Board of Education shall succeed to all the powers and trusts of the president and directors of the Literary Fund of North Carolina, and shall have full power to legislate and make all needful rules and regulations in relation to free public schools and the educational fund of the State; but all acts, rules and regulations of said board may be altered, amended, or repealed by the General Assembly, and when so altered, amended, or repealed they shall not be re-enacted by the board.

"§ 11. The first session of the board of Education shall be held at the capital of the State within fifteen days after the organization of the State government under this Constitution; the time of future meetings may be determined by the board.

"§ 12. A majority of the board shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of business.

§ 10. Agricultural department.—As soon as practicable after the adoption of this Constitution, the General Assembly shall establish and maintain, in connection with the University, a department of agriculture, of mechanics, of mining, and of normal instruction. (Const. 1868; 1941, c. 151.)

Editor’s Note.—This section, formerly Section 14 of Article IX of the Constitution of 1868, was renumbered to become Section 10 pursuant to Chapter 151 of the Public Laws of 1941.

The Board a Department of State Government.—The Board of Agriculture is a department of the State Government, and an action against it to recover money alleged to have been wrongfully paid out as a license tax cannot be maintained, the state not having given its consent to be sued in that respect. Chemical Co. v. Board, 111 N. C. 135, 136, 15 S. E. 560.

 Levy of Tax for Farm Agent’s Salary.—The encouragement of agriculture is a fundamental objective of the State government, and a levy of a tax by a county to pay the county agent’s salary is a tax paid on the special approval of the Legislature, within the meaning of Art. V, § 6, for which a tax in excess of the 15-cent limitation may be imposed. Nantahala Power, etc., Co. v. Clay County, 213 N. C. 698, 197 S. E. 601.

§ 11. Children must attend school.—The General Assembly is hereby empowered to enact that every child, of sufficient mental and physical ability, shall attend the public schools during the period between the ages of six and eighteen years, for a term of not less than sixteen months, unless educated by other means. (Const. 1868; 1941, c. 151.)

Editor’s Note.—This section, formerly Section 15 of Article IX of the Constitution of 1868, was renumbered to become Section 11, pursuant to Chapter 151 of the Public Laws of 1941.

ARTICLE X

Homesteads and Exemptions

§ 1. Exemptions of personal property.—The personal property of any resident of this State, to the value of five hundred dollars, to be selected by such resident, shall be and is hereby exempted from sale under execution or other final process of any court, issued for the collection of any debt. (Const. 1868.)

Editor’s Note.—It is thought more proper to place the main annotations regarding the homestead and personal property exemption under this section rather than place them elsewhere together with the references compose a comprehensive treatment of the subject.—reference to which is here made. The note found under this section is meant to embrace only direct construction of the provisions hereof, and may be of aid to the practitioner in dealing with the sections above mentioned.

Section Liberally Construed.—Hyman v. Stern, 43 F. (2d) 60.

The Marital Duty of Husband.—The husband’s duty to protect and provide for his wife is more than a debt in its ordinary meaning of the word, within the contemplation of this and the following section of the constitution. Anderson v. Anderson, 183 N. C. 139, 110 S. E. 863.

A husband’s obligation to support his wife during the existence of the marital relation is more than a debt in its ordinary meaning of this and the following section of the constitution. Barber v. Barber, 217 N. C. 422, 427, 8 S. E. (2d) 204, citing White v. White, 179 N. C. 592, 193 S. E. 216.

A Constitutional Right.—The right to the personal property exemption exists not by virtue of the allotment, but by virtue of the Constitution which confers it and attaches the protection of the Constitution which confers it and attaches the protection of the Constitution which confers it and attaches the protection to the debtor before the allotment or appraisal. Lockhart v. Bear, 117 N. C. 283, 23 S. E. 454. See Crow v. Morgan, 210 N. C. 153, 185 S. E. 660.

This and the following section are explicit in guaranteeing the personal property exemption of the value fixed—"to the debtor by the owner thereof." McKeithen v. Blue, 142 N. C. 360, 61 S. E. 55.

Meaning of “Final Process.”—A debtor may legally demand his personal property exemption at any time and to the last moment before the appropriation thereof by the court, and the order of court directing a payment of the money derived from the sale is such as to destroy the meaning of the Constitution, giving the creditor such right until execution or other final process. Befarra v. Spell, 178 N. C. 231, 100 S. E. 121.

Diminution in Value of Property.—In the well considered opinion in Campbell v. White, 95 N. C. 344, it was said: “Though the debtor’s personal property exemption has been duly allotted, whenever it has been diminished by use, loss, or other cause, he has a right to have any other personal property he may have exempted up to the prescribed limit,” meaning of the Constitution, giving the creditor such right until execution or other final process. Befarra v. Spell, 178 N. C. 231, 100 S. E. 121.

Set-Off.—A party may not demand that his claim be allowed him as his personal property exemption has been duly allotted, whenever it has been diminished by use, loss, or other cause, he has a right to have any other personal property he may have exempted up to the prescribed limits. It is plainly meant that when any final process against the debtor’s estate is to be enforced, that much of his estate must be allowed to remain with him as not liable to sale. Gardner v. McConnaughey, 127 N. C. 481, 483, 23 S. E. 152.

in this cause on defendant's counterclaim should be offset by a judgment subsequently obtained by plaintiff against defendant in a separate action, contending that defendant is in this cause on defendant's counterclaim should be offset judgment in his favor on the counterclaim be allowed him offset would amount to "final process" within the meaning of section 1-370. Edgerton v. Johnson, 218 N. C. 300, 10 S. E. (2d) 918.

Exemption Ceases at Death of Claimant.—The personal property exemption provided for by this section and the laws passed pursuant thereto, exist only during the life of the homesteader and after his death passes to his personal representative, to be disposed of in a due course of administration. Johnson v. Cross, 66 N. C. 167.

It is to be noted that by sections 3 and 5, after the death of the owner of a homestead, the exemption is continued on the benefit of his children or widow; but there is no such provision in regard to the "personal property exemption."—Ed. Note.

Forfeiture of Exemption.—A bankrupt who conceals assets exceeding in value his statutory exemption forfeits his right to such exemption. Hyman v. Stern, 43 F. (2d) 666.

One who is a fugitive from justice, though leaving his family here, may remain in the state where his whereabouts are unknown, and the object of whose absence is to avoid serving a criminal sentence imposed by our courts, is not a resident of the state within the meaning of this exemption, and no private execution or process may be served on him, or judgment be rendered against him, or any of the exemptions here in the absence of evidence or finding on the question of his animus revertendi. Cromer v. Sell, 169 N. C. 164, 62 S. E. 885, 128 Am. St. Rep. 658.

Debtor Entitled to Exemption at All Times.—The five hundred dollar personal property exemption prescribed by this section of the constitution entitles a judgment debtor to the amount of the exemption at all times, and may be set apart for the comfort and support of the judgment debtor as often as the judgment debtor may be pressed with execution. Commissioner of Banks v. Yelverton, 294 N. C. 441, 186 S. E. 505, commented on in 12 N. C. L. Rev. 228.

A debtor may legally demand his personal property exemption at any time and to the last moment before the appropriation thereof by the commencement of execution. All rights to directing a payment of the money derived from the sale of such property is final process within the meaning of the Constitution giving the creditor such right until execution or other final process obtained on any debt. Crow v. Morgan, 210 N. C. 153, 185 S. E. 668.

§ 2. Homestead.—Every homestead, and the dwellings and buildings used therewith, not exceeding in value one thousand dollars, to be selected by the owner thereof, or in lieu thereof, at the option of the owner, any lot in a city, town or village with the dwelling and buildings used thereon, owned and occupied by any resident of this State, and not exceeding the value of one thousand dollars, shall be exempt from sale under execution or other final process obtained on any debt. But no property shall be exempt from sale for taxes, or for payment of obligations contracted for the purchase of said premises. (Const. 1868.)

Homestead and Personal Property Exemptions Distinguished.—The homestead exemption is permanent unless there is a reallocation by reason of an increase in value in the manner provided for by section 1-369. But personal property exemptions are not increased, whenever the value of the property exceeds the statutory limit, by the levy of executions. Gardner v. McConnaughey, 157 N. C. 481, 483, 73 S. E. 125.

In view of this section the doctrine of estoppel cannot deny that a person may homestead lands which were subject to his debts. In selecting the land for his homestead exemption, he is not restricted to the tract on which he lives. In re Hamrick, 56 F. (2d) 246, 247.

The right to claim homestead may be lost by failure to assert it in apt time, by waiver, or by estoppel. Cameron v. McCord, 216 N. C. 712, 12 S. E. (2d) 815.

Right May Be Sold or Assigned.—The homestead right or estate is salable or assignable, and the purchaser can hold the land to which it pertains to the exclusion of judgment creditors, as against his own personal property, or in lieu thereof, at the foreclosure sale a sum more than sufficient to pay the mortgage debt, the excess remaining to the Constitutional limit of one thousand dollars is to be regarded as realty to which the homestead right attaches when the same has been wont. Farris v. Hendricks, 196 N. C. 439, 146 S. E. 73, 77.

A mortgage on land with the dwelling and buildings therewith, not exceeding in value one thousand dollars, to be sequestered in the hands of the commissioner. New Amsterdam Cas. Co. v. Dunn, 209 N. C. 428, 196 S. E. 314.

Where a judgment debtor is a bankrupt, the exemption in his equity of redemption as against the liens of judgment creditors, and an injunction will lie against the sale of the property under execution when his homestead has not been allotted. Cheek v. Walden, 195 N. C. 752, 143 S. E. 485.

There is no lien for purchase money in North Carolina, and while the judgment debtor cannot claim homestead as against a judgment for purchase money, the lien of a mortgage executed to a third person has priority over the judgment lien, and the judgment creditor cannot recover the amount of judgment obtained prior to the rendition of the judgment and prior to an amendment putting the title to the property in issue. Jarrett v. Holloway, 213 N. C. 196, 194 S. E. 731.

A duly docketed judgment is a lien on the lands on the judgment debtor but is subject to the homestead interest in the lands as provided by this section. Farris v. Hendricks, 196 N. C. 439, 146 S. E. 73, 77.

The right to the homestead exemption is not forfeited by a fraudulent conveyance, and the judgment was properly modified by order directing that defendant be allotted his homestead in the land which should be exempt from sale by the commissioner. New Amsterdam Cas. Co. v. Dunn, 209 N. C. 736, 184 S. E. 498.

Exemption Allowed in Mortgaged Lands.—A debtor may have his homestead exemption allotted to him but mortgaged to a third person, but in ascertaining the value thereof the mortgage debt should be disregarded, and the land appraised as though the debtor owned the unrestricted fee. Crow v. Morgan, 210 N. C. 153, 185 S. E. 668.

Or Vacant Lots.—Where the only real property owned by the judgment debtor is his homestead, and he is a bankrupt, his homestead therein, since he may thereafter build a habitable structure thereon. Equitable Life Assur. Soc v. Hensler, 219 N. C. 121, 128 S. E. 239.

Cited in Vannoy v. Green, 206 N. C. 77, 80, 173 S. E. 277.

§ 3. Homestead exemption from debt.—The homestead, after the death of the owner thereof, shall be exempt from the payment of any debt during the minority of his children, or any of them. (Const. 1868.)

See Editor's Note to section 5.

Other Inheritance Incidents.—An heir twenty-one years old is not entitled to a homestead in the lands of his ancestor, his right thereto ceased as soon as he attained his majority. Saylor v. Powell, 90 N. C. 202.

The provisions of section 5 are too plain for construction, that in speaking of children the instrument refers to children of the deceased owner. Simmons v. Respess, 151 N. C. 561, 56 S. E. 534.

Same.—Where Only One Minor.—Where the owner of a homestead dies, leaving children, some of age and one a minor, the homestead estate vests alone in the minor child until his or her majority. Simpson v. Wallace, 83 N. C. 397. The homestead dies, leaving children, some of age and one a minor, the homestead estate vests alone in the minor child until his or her majority. Simpson v. Wallace, 83 N. C. 397.

Pecuniary Standing of Children Not Considered.—The right to a homestead is given to the minor children of an insolvent father, regardless of their pecuniary circumstances, 72 N. C. 694; Spence v. Goodwin, 128 N. C. 273, 38 S. E. 859.

Right Not Waivable by Guardian Ad Litem.—A guardian ad litem cannot waive the homestead rights of infant heirs, especially when there is, as in this case, a strong consideration that such waiver would affect the substantial rights of the infants. Spence v. Goodwin, 128 N. C. 273, 38 S. E. 859.

Debts Contracted for Labor, Work, and Service.—A mechanic's lien construing § 6 of this article in connection with this section the conclusion is sustained that for all debts contracted for work and labor done, a lien is given upon the property of a married woman. Ball v. Paquin, 140 N. C. 63, 52 S. E. 410, 3 L. R. A. (N. S.) 307.

The debt referred to in this section means the debt of the owner of the homestead, and not the debt of the infant children. Bruton v. McAte, 125 N. C. 206, 207, 210, 34 S. E. 397.

Right Not to Be Sold for Assets.—In a proceeding to sell land for assets, the executor cannot sell the homestead interest of an infant, and the executor can not sell the homestead estate of an infant. Bruton v. McAte, 125 N. C. 206, 207, 34 S. E. 397.

§ 4. Laborer's lien.—The provisions of section one and two of this article shall not be so construed as to prevent a laborer's lien for work done and performed for the person claiming such exemption, or a mechanic's lien for work done on the premises. (Const. 1868.)

Cross References.—See section 44-1 et seq. and notes thereeto. For other exceptions to the exemptions, see note of Melanie v. Layton, 89 N. C. 396, under section 1-369.

Definition of Terms.—A "laborer's lien" is solely for labor performed and is not "mechanic's lien," which includes the "work done," i. e., the "building built" or superstructure put on the premises. Broyhill v. Gaither, 119 N. C. 232, 13 S. E. 764.

Quoted in Roper Lumber Co. v. Lawson, 195 N. C. 340, 344, 147 S. E. 477.

Cross References.—See section 1-369, analysis line "Who Entitled to Homestead and Exemptions," II, B. As to allotment after death of homesteader, see section 1-369 and notes thereto; as to right of widow whose deceased husband leaves a homestead under a mechanic's lien, see note of Simmons v. Respess, 151 N. C. 5, 65 S. E. 516, under section 3 of this article.

Editor's Note.—It is to be noted that the widow's right to the homestead provided for by this section is expressly conditioned upon her not being the owner of a homestead in her own right. Such a clause is not contained in section 3 which gives the right to the children during minority. On this point it was said in Spence v. Goodwin, 128 N. C. 273, 277, 38 S. E. 859: "This — emphasizes by direct implication the unconditional right of exemption given to the children by this section." Ownership at Death Essential.—It is only in the continuity that the husband is the owner of a homestead at the time of his death that the exemption from debts inures to the benefit. Thomas v. Bunch, 158 N. C. 175, 178, 73 S. E. 899.

A widow is not entitled to take action for the preservation of the right to a homestead in the lands of her deceased husband under provisions of this section, and before the land can be validly sold by the personal representatives to make assets for the payment of the debts of the deceased the homestead must first be assigned. Fulp v. Brown, 153 N. C. 531, 67 S. E. 602.

Heirs Prior to Widow Where There Are No Creditors.—A widow is not entitled to homestead against the heirs at law where there are no creditors, but only to dower. Caudle v. Morris, 160 N. C. 168, 75 S. E. 17. See also, Tucker v. Tucker, 103 N. C. 170, 7 S. E. 299.

§ 6. Property of married women secured to them.—The real and personal property of any female in this State acquired before marriage, and all property, real and personal, to which she may, after marriage, become in any manner entitled, shall be and remain the sole and separate estate and property of such female, and shall not be liable for any debts, obligations, or engagements of her husband, and may be devised and bequeathed, and, with the written assent of her husband, conveyed by her as if she were unmarried. (Const. 1868.)

Editor's Note.—To give effect to the provisions of the organic law as embodied in this section, the legislature from time to time has enacted statutes whose essence may be boiled down in substance to what is contained in this section. In fact some of those statutes are a verbatim confirmation of these provisions, while others are corollaries therefrom, directly or indirectly offsprings, or satellites to, this section.

By virtue of the community of source of these statutes, the instances are rare where this constitutional section has been so construed from the fact that the construction placed upon the latter is not applicable to the former, or vice versa. These constructions have been placed under the respective subordinate sections to which they refer, and all of them radiate a light upon the provisions of the organic law contained in this section. To the end that repetition may be avoided the counsel is urged to refer to those sections. There is no less need for such constructions of this section than the sections under which they are placed, we will find hereunder the more or less independent constructions of this section which do not appear under its subordinates:

"There is no 'Constitution' which throws additional shackles around women in the management of their separate property. The provision of the Constitution is in exactly the opposite direction in accordance with the spirit of the age, and with the universal trend of legislation the world over. Its purpose is not to further assimilate married women to the condition of infants, but to make free women of them, to emancipate them from the plagues that have been existing. Strouse v. Cohen, 113 N. C. 349, 353. 18 S. E. 321.

General Policy of Section.—This section is intended to emancipate married women, secure to them the same rights as property rights are concerned, on a par with men and females of the age. McLeod v. Williams, 122 N. C. 475, 454, 30 S. E. 129.

Common Law Rule Changed.—The common-law rule giving to the husband the actual or potential ownership of the separate choses in action belonging to his wife by reducing them into possession is now changed by this section giving to the wife the sole ownership of her separate estate. Turlington v. Lucas, 186 N. C. 283, 119 S. E. 471.

In Ethridge v. Cochran, 196 N. C. 681, 146 S. E. 711, referring to this section, it is said by Adams, J.: "By virtue of these and other provisions the relation which married women have to their separate estates has been materially modified. Unity of person in the strict common-law sense no longer exists, and many of the common-law doctrines which governed the acquisition by one husband only of his real estate in the joint tenancy or tenancy in common with his wife has been destroyed. Tiddy v. Graves, 126 N. C. 650, 36 S. E. 127.

The purpose of requiring the written assent is to afford the wife the counsel and protection of her husband, and to notify him of the estate in the realty. When he signs it under her signature and then acknowledges the execution of the deed as one of the grantors, but one inference can arise, and that is that he was giving his required written assent to her conveyance. Joiner v. Firemen's Ins. Co., 6 F. Supp. 103, 104.

Sufficiency of Husband's Written Assent.—Since the deed of conveyance is revocable by the husband, the deed and the written assent thereto, if given, must be recorded in the county where the land or thing conveyed is located. Joiner v. Firemen's Ins. Co., 6 F. Supp. 103, 104.

No Formal Conveyance to Transfer Note or Bond.—No formal conveyance is necessary under the requirement of this section where a matrimonial bond to satisfy the constitutional requirement is given. Coffin v. Martin, 138 N. C. 253, 55 S. E. 564.

Legislative Power to Declare Wife Free Trader.—There is no constitutional inhibition on the power of the legislature to declare where and how the wife may become a free trader, this section being intended to protect instead of disabling her. Hall v. Walker, 118 N. C. 377, 24 S. E. 6.

A married woman who has been abandoned by her husband is a free trader, and she may execute a valid conveyance of her lands without his joinder. Nichols v. York, 126 N. C. 620, 36 S. E. 93.

Legislative Control over Capacity to Make Will.—This section conferring upon married women the right to make a will, etc., "as if she were unmarried," was designed chiefly to remove the common-law restriction on married women to prevent them from being able to give or dispose of their personal property by will, other than as a testator. Tiddy v. Graves, 126 N. C. 650, 36 S. E. 127.

Vested curtesy rights of the husband at the time of the adoption of the constitution were not impaired by this section. Richardson v. Richardson, 150 N. C. 549, 64 S. E. 510.

Devises of Equitable Separate Estate.—She may devise her equitable separate estate, and such devisees, as are provi- sionally in the instrument creating it, where the trustee is a passive trustee; and, whether the trust be passive or active, where the trust is to terminate with her life, and the estate to become absolute thereafter. Freeman v. Lide, 176 N. C. 434, 97 S. E. 402.

Same—Provisions of Instrument Creating the Estate Still Controls.—Married women have no greater estates, by opera- tions of this section of the Constitution, than those vested by the terms of the deed under which they derive title; nor are the properties and incidents belonging to estates as later declared by that instrument. Long v. Barnes, 87 N. C. 329, 330.

The constitution imposes no limitation upon the right of a grantor or devisee to restrict or enlarge, by the terms of the instrument through which the estate was disposed of. Kirby v. Boyette, 118 N. C. 244, 24 S. E. 18.

Not Applicable to Obligations of Wife as Surety to Her Husband.—This section, providing that the separate property of the wife shall not be liable for the debts of the husband, has no application to the obligation of the wife as surety of her husband, such obligation being regarded as a direct one between the creditor and herself. Royal v. South- erland, 168 N. C. 405, 48 S. E. 708.

Extent of Veto Power of Husband.—The veto power of the husband does not extend to devises and bequests, nor to any other disposition of the separate property by the wife, even by will and deprive him of his interest therein as tenant by the curtesy. Richardson v. Richardson, 150 N. C. 549, 64 S. E. 510.

Liability of Husband for Rents Paid Wife after Foreclosure.—Where lands belonging to the separate estate of a wife have been foreclosed under a deed of trust thereon duly delivered of the husband, the husband is liable for the rents paid the wife after the foreclosure. Martin v. Lewis, 187 N. C. 258, 70 S. E. 935.

May Bar Husband's Curtesy by Devising the Property.—By marriage, before the adoption of the Constitution of 1868, the husband acquired no vested rights in the lands of his wife. Penton v. Martin, 126 N. C. 661, 47 S. E. 784. See Martin v. Bundy, 212 N. C. 437, 193 S. E. 817.

Bogen v. Bogen, 219 N. C. 51, 12 S. E. (2d) 649.

Property to be Deemed Separate Property as if Sole.—Under the provisions of this section, and as later declared by our statute, married women have no greater estates, by operation of this section, and as later declared by our statute, than those vested by the terms of the deed under which they derive title; nor are the properties and incidents belonging to estates as later declared by that instrument. Turlington v. Lucas, 186 N. C. 283, 119 S. E. 471.

For article on punishment for crime in North Carolina, see 17 N. C. Law Rev. 205.

Editor's Note.—All of this section after the first sentence was added by the Convention of 1875. This section of the constitution constitutes the basis for the legislative enactments regulating the punishment of violation of the criminal law found in the specific sections in the General Statutes. It sets down infinite boundaries within which the General Assembly may exercise the power to prescribe the punishment for the various crimes, cannot transgress. The cases placed in the notes found under the specific sections in the chapter. Crimes and punishment of prisoners are provided for by section 1875, which necessarily throw some light on this section of the constitution. This fact renders it needless to repeat, at this point, a citation of those cases, and it is only necessary to refer the counsel to the sections of the above mentioned chapter.

Working Convicts—Section Not Basis of Disciplinarian Rules.—This constitutional provision has no direct application to the discipline required in our jails and penitentiaries, for if so it would prevent any confinement, restriction or restraint; and, other reasonable punishments that are in customary use in prisons and penitentiaries. State v. Nipper, 116 N. C. 222, 224, 81 S. E. 164. But officers are civilly and criminally liable for an abuse or oppression of the adopted regulations under which the convicts are kept. State v. Young, 138 N. C. 571, 575, 59 S. E. 213.

\[ \text{Art. XI, §3} \]

Punishments, Penal Institutions, and Public Charities

§ 1. Punishments; convict labor; proviso.—The following punishments only shall be known to the laws of this State, viz: death, imprisonment with or without hard labor, fines, removal from office, and disqualification to hold and enjoy any office of honor, trust, or profit under this State. The foregoing provision for imprisonment; with hard labor shall be construed to authorize the employment of such convict labor on public works or highways, or other labor for public benefit, and the farming out thereof, where and in such manner as may be provided by law; but no convict shall be farmed out who has been sentenced on a charge of murder, manslaughter, rape, attempt to commit rape, or arson: Provided, that no convict whose labor might be farmed out shall be punished for any failure of duty as a laborer, except by a responsible officer of the State; but the convicts so farmed out shall be at all times under the supervision and control, as to their government and discipline, of the penitentiary board or some officer of this State. (Const. 1868; Convention 1875.)

§ 2. Death punishment.—The object of punishments being not only to satisfy justice, but also to reform the offender, and thus prevent crime, murder, arson, burglary, and rape, and these only, may be punishable with death, if the General Assembly shall so enact. (Const. 1868.)

Cross Reference.—See editor's note to section 1 of this article. As to punishment for murder, see section 14-7 and notes thereto; as to punishment for arson, see section 14-56 and notes thereto; as to burning of buildings other than dwelling houses, see sections 14-59 et seq., and note thereto; as to punishment for burglary, see section 14-52 and note thereto; as to punishment for rape, see section 14-21 and note thereto.

Power of Legislature.—The punishment to be inflicted for any crime is left entirely to the general assembly, which can in its discretion affix lesser punishments, even for the four crimes, mentioned in this section, which are now visited with capital punishment. State v. Lyle, 138 N. C. 738, 744, 41 S. E. 66.

Under the discretionary power given by the constitution, the legislature has divided the crimes murder and burglary into two degrees and has affixed thereto the punishment for each enumerated offense. See specific cross references.—Ed. Note.

§ 3. Penitentiary.—The General Assembly shall, at its first meeting, make provision for the erection and conduct of a State's prison or pen-intend, at some central and accessible point within the State. (Const. 1868.)

Legislative Duties.—This provision imposes upon the Legislature the duty of attending to the details as to the ero-tion of the necessary buildings, the purchase of such property, real and personal, as may be necessary for the uses of the prison; and also to form such regulations for the government and conduct of the prisoners as will provide that the officers or placement, their salaries and the distribution of their duties are all left with the General Assembly. State correction, where vagrants and persons guilty of misdemeanors shall be restrained and usefully employed. (Const. 1868.)

Assembly shall, at its first session, appoint and define the duties of a board of public charities, to whom shall be entrusted the supervision of all charitable and penal State institutions, and who shall an-

Editor's Note.—This section of the constitution has been the source of numerous legislative enactments, some of the most important of which are referred to in this section. Many laws have been enacted under these sections of the General Statutes contain many cases which will throw an illuminating light on the substantive law embodied in this section of the constitution.

It is believed to be more helpful and beneficial to the practitioner to make reference to these specific sections of General

Statutes, and the notes placed thereunder, where the constructions of the code sections are given in connection with basic constitutional provisions, than to segregate them and leave it to the searcher to find the connecting links.

Erection of County Home—Issuing Bonds.—The building of a county home is for a class of citizens without a place of residence, and beneficient provision for whom is recommended by this section, "as one of the first duties of a civilized and Christian State;" therefore, providing for such a home being included in the idea of their support, a county may pledge its faith and credit and issue valid bonds for that purpose, as a necessary expense, without the approval flicted poor is a proper function of the state government, form this function, at least within their territorial limits.

§ 6. The sexes to be separated.—It shall be required, by competent legislation, that the structure and superintendence of penal institutions of the State, the county jails, and city police prisons secure the health and comfort of the prisoners, and that male and female prisoners be never confined in the same room or cell. (Const. 1868.)

The word "superintendence," as used in this section, was intended to impose upon the governing officials of municipal corporations the duty of exercising ordinary care in procuring articles essential for the health and comfort of prisoners, and of employing such agents and appropriating such moneys as may be necessary to keep the prison in such condition as to replenish the supply of the prisoners,

ARTICLE XII

Militia

§ 1. Who are liable to militia duty.—All able-bodied male citizens of the State of North Carolina, between the ages of twenty-one and forty years, who are citizens of the United States, shall be liable to duty in the militia: Provided, that all persons who may be averse to bearing arms, from religious scruples, shall be exempt therefrom. (Const. 1868.)

Stated in Hinton v. Lacy, 193 N. C. 496, 137 S. E. 669.

§ 2. Organizing, etc.—The General Assembly shall provide for the organizing, arming, equipping, and discipline of the militia, and for paying the same, when called into active service. (Const. 1868.)

Cross Reference.—For the numerous legislative enactments on the subject, see the chapter "Militia", section 127-1 et seq. As to support of families of indigent militiamen, see section 127-3 et seq.

By Whom Militia Paid.—The legislature may provide, if it think proper to do so, how and by whom the militia shall be paid. Worth v. Commissioners, 118 N. C. 112, 120, 24 S. E. 778. And in the absence of any special provision, they are to be paid by the state—the "power" that calls them out. Id. See section 127-80 and the note thereto.

§ 3. Governor Commander-in-chief.—The Governor shall be commander-in-chief and shall have power to call out the militia to execute the law, suppress riots or insurrections, and to repel invasion. (Const. 1868.)

Governor May Call Out Militia.—In the absence of legislation, the governor, as commander-in-chief, has the power to call out the militia, and the state guard being made a part of the militia, he has the power to call them out. This constitutional power may be regulated by legislation providing what shall amount to sufficient evidence of the existence of the causes mentioned in this section of the constitution. Worth v. Commissioners, 118 N. C. 112, 120, 24 S. E. 778.

Same.—Not Subject to Legislative Restriction.—The legislature has no authority to restrict the power of the governor to call out the militia. Worth v. Commissioners, 118 N. C. 112, 124, 24 S. E. 778.

§ 4. Exemptions.—The General Assembly shall have power to make such exemptions as may be deemed necessary, and to enact laws that may be expedient for the government of the militia. (Const. 1868.)

ARTICLE XIII

Amendments

§ 1. Convention, how called.—No convention of the people of this State shall ever be called by the General Assembly unless by the concurrence of two-thirds of all the members of each house of the General Assembly, and except the proposition, convention or no convention, be first submitted to the qualified voters of the whole State, at the next general election, in a manner to be prescribed by law. And should a majority of the votes cast be in favor of said convention, it shall assemble on such day as may be prescribed by the General Assembly. (Const. 1868; Convention 1875.)

See 11 N. C. Law Rev., 242, for discussion as to whether the provisions of this section apply to the calling of a convention to consider a proposed federal amendment. This question was said to perplex the legislature and served to divide the Supreme Court.

Editor's Note.—The Convention of 1875 added the word "ever" after "shall" in line 2 and all of the section after the words "General Assembly" in line 4.

General Assembly may call convention to consider proposed amendment to the U. S. Constitution either under the provision of the Constitution of the plebiscitary powers. See "Opinions of the Justices," 204 N. C. 806, 172 S. E. 474.

§ 2. How the Constitution may be altered.—No part of the Constitution of this State shall be altered unless a bill to alter the same shall have been agreed to by three-fifths of each house of the General Assembly. And the amendment or amendments so agreed to shall be submitted at the next general election to the qualified voters of the whole State, in three parts, the votes of which shall be separately taken, and may be prescribed by law. And in the event of their adoption by a majority of the votes cast, such amendment or amendments shall become a part of the Constitution of this State. (Const. 1868; Convention 1875.)

Editor's Note.—Sec. 2 of the original Constitution of 1868, before it was amended by the Convention of 1875 to read as the present Sec. 2, was as follows: "No part of the Constitution of this State shall be altered, unless a bill to alter the same shall have been read three times in each House of the General Assembly and agreed to by three-fifths of the whole number of members of each House respectively; nor shall any alteration take place until the bill, so agreed to, shall have been published six months previous to the election of members to the General Assembly. If, after such publication, the alteration proposed by the preceding General Assembly shall be agreed to, in the first session thereafter, by two-thirds of the whole representation in each House of the General Assembly, it shall become valid and effective; but this provision shall not extend to any alteration of the provisions of the section, so far as relates to the election of members to the General Assembly. If, after publication, such alteration shall be approved by a majority of the voters voting thereon, it shall become valid and effective on the 20th day after the proposition for such alteration shall have been made, and if the alteration be so approved the same shall be added to the Constitution as part of the Constitution. Upon the alteration of the Constitution as aforesaid, the General Assembly shall prescribe a mode by which the amendment or amendments may be submitted to the qualified voters of the House of Representatives throughout the State; and if, upon considering the votes given in the whole State, it shall appear that a majority of the voters voting thereon have approved them, and, not otherwise, the same shall become a part of the Constitution." Public Laws 1931, c. 104, proposed an amendment to this section whereby the submission could be at a special election called for the purpose which was defeated.

Generally.—While to amend the Constitution of the State it is necessary for the voters to approve the proposed amendments to be submitted to them, it is likewise necessary to the validity of the election that the Legislature enact the proposition to amend into a statute by a three-fifths vote of each branch; and the constitutional provision that they be submitted "in such manner as may be prescribed by law" includes within its intent and meaning the time at which the amendments will be effective, if approved, the Constitution being silent on this point. Reavis v. Durham, 173 N. C. 659, 91 S. E. 712. See also, Freeman v. Cook, 217 N. C. 63, 6 S. E. (2d) 894.

Miscellaneous

§ 1. Indictments.—All indictments which shall have been found, or may hereafter be found, for any crime or offense committed before this Constitution takes effect, may be proceeded upon in the proper courts, but no punishment shall be inflicted which is forbidden by this Constitution. (Const. 1868.)

Cross References.—See sections 15-140 to 15-155 and the
§ 2. Penalty for fighting duel.—No person who shall hereafter fight a duel, or assist in the same as a second, or send, accept, or knowingly carry a challenge therefor, or agree to go out of the State to fight a duel, shall hold any office in this State. (Const. 1868.)

§ 3. Drawing money.—No money shall be drawn from the treasury but in consequence of appropriations made by law; and an accurate account of the receipts and expenditures of the public money shall be annually published. (Const. 1868.)

Editor’s Note.—This section is an exact repetition of the United States Constitution, Art. I, section 9, cl. 7.

Legislative Authority Required.—This section means that there must be legislative authority in order for money to be validly drawn from the treasury. In other words, the legislature must make appropriations over the public purse. White v. Hill, 125 N. C. 194, 200, 34 S. E. 432, citing Garner v. Worth, 122 N. C. 250, 29, S. E. 364.

Section as Bar to Judicial Action.—This section effectively gives the judicial authority to enforce collection of liabilities against the state, and the courts cannot direct the state treasurer to pay such claims, however just and unquestioned, when there is no legislative appropriation to pay the same. Garner v. Worth, 122 N. C. 250, 252, 29 S. E. 364.

When Mandamus Will Lie.—It is only when the legislative department has appropriated a certain fund to the payment of a liability incurred or to be incurred and the Auditor or Treasurer refuses to obey the legislative mandate that the Court can issue its mandamus to compel him to comply. Garner v. Worth, 122 N. C. 250, 253, 29 S. E. 364.

The state treasurer may refuse to pay a warrant of the auditor if it appear that the law under which it is issued is unconstitutional or the claim is not within the terms of the statute under which it is brought. Martin v. Clark, 90 N. C. 143, cited and approved in Kuhlman v. R. R. Co., 143 N. C. 534, 535, 59 S. E. 305.

Editor’s Note.—Sec. 7 of the Constitution of 1868, amended pursuant to ch. 88, Public Laws of 1872-73, to read as follows: No person shall hold more than one lucrative office under the State, at the same time: Provided, That officers in the militia, justices of the Peace, Commissioners of Public Charities, and Commissioners appointed for special purposes shall not be considered officers within the meaning of this section.

Proposed Amendment.—Session Laws 1943, c. 432, proposed that this section be amended by rewriting the provision to read as follows: "Provided, that nothing herein contained shall extend to officers in the militia, notaries public, justices of the peace, commissioners of public charities, or commissioners for special purposes.

Purpose.—The manifest intent is to prevent double office-holding—that offices and places of public trust should not accumulate in any single person—and the superadded words of the second sentence were added or written in giving too technical a meaning to the preceding words. Doyle v. Raleigh, 89 N. C. 133, cited and approved in Groves v. Borden, 169 N. C. 8, 84 S. F. 1042.

Effect of Acceptance of Similar Office.—Where one holding an "office or place of profit" accepts another such office or position in contravention of this section of the Constitution, the first is vacated eo instanti, and any further acts done by him in connection with the first office are without color, and cannot be de facto. Whitehead v. Pittman, 165 N. C. 89, 80 S. E. 976.

Editor’s Note.—Under the power given by this section of the constitution the legislature has passed numerous enactments, affording the choice between the offices so that the acceptance of a second office by holding a public office operates ipso facto to vacate the first. White v. Tidwell, 170 N. C. 493, 29 S. E. 720, it is said: "The acceptance of a second office by holding a public office operates ipso facto to vacate the first. The officer has a right to elect which he will retain, his election is deemed, and foreclosed, and made when he accepts the other office, and qualifies for the second." The acceptance of the second office is of itself a resignation of the first. Cited with approval in Whitehead v. Pittman, 165 N. C. 89, 80 S. E. 976.

§ 5. Governor to make appointments.—In the absence of any contrary provision, all officers of this State, whether heretofore elected or appointed by the Governor, shall hold their positions only until other appointments are made by the Governor, or, if the officers are elective, until their successors shall have been chosen and duly qualified according to the provisions of this Constitution. (Const. 1868.)

§ 7. Holding office.—No person who shall hold any office or place of trust or profit under the United States, or any department thereof, or under this State, or under any other state or government, shall hold or exercise any other office or place of trust or profit under the authority of this State, or be eligible to a seat in either house of the General Assembly: Provided, that nothing herein contained shall extend to officers in the militia, justices of the peace, commissioners of public charities, or commissioners for special purposes. (Const. 1868; 1872-73, c. 88.)

Cross Reference.—As to what constitutes a public office and numerous illustrations thereof, see note to section 1-515. As to form and nature of this section, see sections 1-515 et seq., and the notes there placed.

Editor’s Note.—Section 7 of the Constitution of 1868, amended pursuant to ch. 88, Public Laws of 1872-73, to read as the section now stands, as follows: No person shall hold more than one lucrative office under the State, at the same time: Provided, That officers in the militia, justices of the Peace, Commissioners of Public Charities, and Commissioners appointed for special purposes shall not be considered officers within the meaning of this section.

Actions for Removal Where One Accepts Second Office.—When a person holding an office or place of trust accepts and qualifies for a second office, within the meaning of this section, the first office ipso facto becomes vacated, and an action of ejectment may be brought against him in the name of the state on the relation of the attorney-general, by any individual who is a citizen and taxpayer of the jurisdiction where the officer is to exercise the powers of the second office, but such an action may not be maintained except it appears that the leave of the attorney-general has been obtained either before the commencement of the action or within ten days thereafter pending the proceedings. Midgett v. Gray, 158 N. C. 133, 73 S. E. 791.

A statute providing that the incumbent of one public office should also fill another public office is unconstitutional as violating this section; and cannot be upheld as merely affording the choice between the offices: that the acceptance of the second office would ipso facto vacate the office of the first office. In re Barnes, 212 N. C. 735, 194 S. E. 791.
first, since incumbency in the first is essential to incumbency in the second. But a statute which creates no new office and appoints no additional, but merely attaches new duties to offices already existing, to be performed by the incumbents therein, does not violate this section. Brigm-an v. Baley, 213 N. C. 119, 195 S. E. 617.

Where one holding an office as county commissioner accepts a commission from the Governor as a notary public his position as county commissioner is eo instanti vacated, and where he continues to exercise the duties of county commissioner he may be removed therefrom in an action in the nature of a quo warranto. Harris v. Watson, 201 N. C. 601, 191 S. E. 285.

Recorder May Also Be Justice of Peace.—This section does not forbid one to hold the position of recorder of a town and the office of justice of the peace at the same time. State v. Lord, 145 N. C. 479, 59 S. E. 655.

Imposition of Additional Duties.—Chapter 341, Public-Local Laws of 1931, providing that the chairmen of certain county boards of Madison county should elect a tax manager for the county, merely imposes additional duties ex officio upon the said chairmen, and does not provide that any one of them should hold two public offices in violation of this section. Freeman v. Board of Com'rs, 217 N. C. 209, 7 S. E. (2d) 354.

Delegation of Duties.—A statute which places the affairs of a municipal corporation in the hands of a city council and a city manager and provides that in the event of a vacancy in the office of city manager, by sickness or otherwise, the council may delegate the duties of this office to one of its members, to be performed ex officio as mere auxiliary duties with such compensation as the council may determine, but shall receive no salary as a member of the council, is held not to contravene this section. State v. Holmes, 207 N. C. 293, 176 S. E. 746.

Applied in McCueIler v. Commissioners, 158 N. C. 75, 73 S. E. 816; Barnhill v. Thompson, 122 N. C. 493, 29 S. E. 720.

§ 8. Intermarriage of whites and negroes prohibited.—All marriages between a white person and a negro, or between a white person and a person of negro descent to the third generation, inclusive, are hereby forever prohibited. (Convention 1875.)

Editor's Note.—This section was added by the Convention of 1875. It constitutes the first clause of section 14-181. Reference is therefore made to the note placed under that section.
We the people of the United States, in order to form a more perfect union, establish justice, insure domestic tranquility, provide for the common defence, promote the general welfare, and secure the blessings of liberty to ourselves and our posterity, do ordain and establish this constitution for the United States of America.

ARTICLE I

§ 1. All legislative powers herein granted shall be vested in a congress of the United States, which shall consist of a senate and house of representatives.

§ 2. [1.] The house of representatives shall be composed of members chosen every second year by the people of the several states, and the electors in each state shall have the qualifications requisite for electors of the most numerous branch of the state legislature.

[2.] No person shall be a representative who shall not have attained to the age of twenty-five years, and been seven years a citizen of the United States, and who shall not, when elected, be an inhabitant of the state in which he shall be chosen.

[3.] Representatives and direct taxes shall be apportioned among the several states which may be included within this union, according to their respective numbers, which shall be determined by adding to the whole number of free persons, including those bond to service for a term of years, and excluding Indians not taxed, three-fifths of all other persons. The actual enumeration shall be made within three years after the first meeting of the congress of the United States, and within every subsequent term of ten years, in such manner as they shall by law direct. The number of representatives shall not exceed one for every thirty thousand, but each state shall have at least one representative; and until such enumeration shall be made, the state of New Hampshire shall be entitled to chuse three, Massachusetts eight, Rhode Island and Providence Plantations one, Connecticut five, New York six, New Jersey four, Pennsylvania eight, Delaware one, Maryland six, Virginia ten, North Carolina five, South Carolina five, and Georgia three.

The first sentence of this clause (art. I, sec. 2, cl. 3) is amended by amendment XIV, § 2 and amendment XVI.

[4.] When vacancies happen in the representation from any state, the executive authority thereof shall issue writs or election to fill such vacancies.

[5.] The house of representatives shall chuse their speaker and other officers; and shall have the sole power of impeachment.

§ 3. [1.] The senate of the United States shall be composed of two senators from each state, chosen by the legislature thereof, for six years; and each senator shall have one vote.

Art. I, s. 3, cl. 1, is superseded by amendment XVII.

[2.] Immediately after they shall be assembled in consequence of the first election, they shall be divided as equally as may be into three classes.

The seats of the senators of the first class shall be vacated at the expiration of the second year, of the second class at the expiration of the fourth year, and of the third class at the expiration of the sixth year, so that one-third may be chosen every second year; and if vacancies happen by resignation, or otherwise, during the recess of the legislature of any state, the executive thereof may make temporary appointments until the next meeting of the legislature, which shall then fill such vacancies.

[3.] No person shall be a senator who shall not have attained to the age of thirty years, and been nine years a citizen of the United States, and who shall not, when elected, be an inhabitant of that state for which he shall be chosen.

[4.] The vice president of the United States shall be president of the senate, but shall have no vote, unless they be equally divided.

[5.] The senate shall chuse their other officers, and also a president pro tempore, in the absence of the vice president, or when he shall exercise the office of president of the United States.

[6.] The senate shall have the sole power to try all impeachments. When sitting for that purpose, they shall be on oath or affirmation. When the president of the United States is tried, the chief justice shall preside: And no person shall be convicted without the concurrence of two-thirds of the members present.

[7.] Judgment in cases of impeachment shall not extend further than to removal from office, and disqualification to hold and enjoy any office of honor, trust or profit under the United States: but the party convicted shall nevertheless be liable and subject to indictment, trial, judgment and punishment, according to law.

§ 4. [1.] The times, places and manner of holding elections for senators and representatives shall be prescribed in each state by the legislature thereof: Lut the congress may at any time by law make or alter such regulations, except as to the places of chusing senators.

[2.] The congress shall assemble at least once in every year, and such meeting shall be on the first Monday in December, unless they shall by law appoint a different day.

§ 5. [1.] Each house shall be the judge of the elections, returns and qualifications of its own members, and a majority of each shall constitute issue writs or election to fill such vacancies.

[2.] Each house may determine the rules of its proceedings, punish its members for disorderly behaviour, and, with the concurrence of two-thirds, expel a member.

[3.] Each house shall keep a journal of its proceedings, and from time to time publish the same, excepting such parts as may in their judgment require secrecy; and the yeas and nays of the members of either house on any question shall, at the desire of one-fifth of those present, be entered on the journal.

[4.] Neither house, during the session of congress, shall, without the consent of the other, adjourn for more than three days, nor to any other place than that in which the two houses shall be sitting.

§ 6. [1.] The senators and representatives shall receive a compensation for their services, to be ascertained by law, and paid out of the treasury of the United States. They shall in all cases, except treason, felony and breach of the peace, be privileged from arrest during their attendance at the session of their respective houses, and in going to and returning from the same; and for any speech or debate in either house they shall not be questioned in any other place.

[2.] No senator or representative shall, during the time for which he was elected, be appointed to any civil office under the authority of the United States which shall have been created or the emoluments whereof shall have been increased during such time; and no person holding any office under the United States shall be a member of either house during his continuance in office.

§ 7. [1.] All bills for raising revenue shall originate in the house of representatives; but the senate may propose or concur with amendments as on other bills.

[2.] Every bill which shall have passed the house of representatives and the senate shall, before it become a law, be presented to the president of the United States. If he approve, he shall sign it; but if not, he shall return it with his objections, to that house in which it shall have originated, who shall enter the objections at large on their journal, and proceed to reconsider it. If after such reconsideration two-thirds of that house shall agree to pass the bill, it shall be sent, together with the objections, to the other house, by which it shall likewise be reconsidered, and if approved by two-thirds of that house, it shall become a law. But in all such cases the votes of both houses shall be determined by yeas and nays, and the names of the persons voting for and against the bill shall be entered on the journal of each house respectively. If any bill shall not be returned by the president within ten days (Sundays excepted) after it shall have been presented to him, the same shall be a law, in like manner as if he had signed it, unless the congress by their adjournment prevent its return, in which case it shall not be a law.

[3.] Every order, resolution, or vote to which the concurrence of the senate and house of representatives may be necessary (except on a question of adjournment) shall be presented to the president of the United States; and before the same shall take effect, shall be approved by him, or, being disapproved by him, shall be repassed by two-thirds of the senate and house of representatives, according to the rules and limitations prescribed in the case of a bill.

§ 8. The congress shall have power [1.] To lay and collect taxes, duties, imposts and excises, to pay the debts and provide for the common defence and general welfare of the United States; but all duties, imposts and excises shall be uniform throughout the United States;

[2.] To borrow money on the credit of the United States;

[3.] To regulate commerce with foreign nations, and among the several states, and with the Indian tribes;

[4.] To establish an uniform rule of naturalization, and uniform laws on the subject of bankruptcies throughout the United States;

[5.] To coin money, regulate the value thereof, and of foreign coin, and fix the standard of weights and measures;

[6.] To provide for the punishment of counterfeiting the securities and current coin of the United States;

[7.] To establish post offices and post roads;

[8.] To promote the progress of science and useful arts, by securing for limited times to authors and inventors the exclusive right to their respective writings and discoveries;

[9.] To constitute tribunals inferior to the supreme court;

[10.] To define and punish piracies and felonies committed on the high seas, and offences against the law of nations;

[11.] To declare war, grant letters of marque and reprisal, and make rules concerning captures on land and water;

[12.] To raise and support armies, but no appropriation of money to that use shall be for a longer term than two years;

[13.] To provide and maintain a navy;

[14.] To make rules for the government and regulation of the land and naval forces;

[15.] To provide for calling forth the militia to execute the laws of the union, suppress insurrections and repel invasions;

[16.] To provide for organizing, arming, and disciplining the militia, and for governing such part of them as may be employed in the service of the United States, reserving to the states respectively the appointment of the officers and the authority of training the militia according to the discipline prescribed by congress;

[17.] To exercise exclusive legislation in all cases whatsoever, over such district (not exceeding ten miles square) as may, by cession of particular states, and the acceptance of congress, become the seat of the government of the United States, and to exercise like authority over all places purchased by the consent of the legislature of the state in which the same shall be, for the erection of forts, magazines, arsenals, dock-yards, and other needful buildings;— and

[18.] To make all laws which shall be necessary and proper for carrying into execution the foregoing powers, and all other powers vested by this constitution in the government of the United States, or in any department or officer thereof.

§ 9. [1.] The migration or importation of such persons as any of the states now existing shall think proper to admit shall not be prohibited by the congress prior to the year one thousand eight hundred and eight, but a tax or duty may be imposed on such importation, not exceeding ten dollars for each person.

[2.] The privilege of the writ of habeas corpus shall not be suspended, unless when in cases of rebellion or invasion the public safety may require it.

[3.] No bill of attainder or ex post facto law shall be passed.

[4.] No capitation or other direct tax shall be laid, unless in proportion to the census or enumeration hereinbefore directed to be taken.

[5.] No tax or duty shall be laid on articles exported from any state.

[6.] No preference shall be given by any regulation of commerce or revenue to the ports of one state over those of another: nor shall vessels bound to, or from, one state, be obliged to enter, clear or pay duties in another.

[7.] No money shall be drawn from the treasury but in consequence of appropriations made by law; and a regular statement and account of the receipts and expenditures of all public money shall be published from time to time.

[8.] No title of nobility shall be granted by the United States: And no person holding any office of profit or trust under them shall, without the consent of the Congress, accept of any present, emolument, office or title, of any kind whatever, from any king, prince, or foreign state.

§ 10. [1.] No state shall enter into any treaty, alliance, or confederation; grant letters of marque and reprisal; coin money; emit bills of credit; make anything but gold and silver coin a tender for debts; pass any bill of attainder, ex post facto law, and emit bills of credit; and a regular statement and account of the receipts and expenditures of all public money shall be published from time to time.

§ 1. [1.] The executive power shall be vested in a president of the United States of America. He shall hold his office during the term of four years, and, together with the vice president, chosen for the same term, be elected, as follows:

[2.] Each state shall appoint, in such manner as the legislature thereof may direct, a number of electors, equal to the whole number of senators and representatives to which the state may be entitled in the congress: but no senator or representative, or person holding an office of trust or profit under the United States, shall be appointed an elector.

[3.] The electors shall meet in their respective states, and vote by ballot for two persons, of whom one at least shall not be an inhabitant of the same state with themselves. And they shall make a list of all the persons voted for, and of the number of votes for each; which list they shall sign and certify, and transmit sealed to the seat of the government of the United States, directed to the president of the Senate. The president of the Senate shall, in the presence of the Senate and House of Representatives, open all the certificates, and the votes shall then be counted. The person having the greatest number of votes shall be the president, if such number be a majority of the whole number of electors appointed; and if there be more than one who have such majority, and have an equal number of votes, then the house of representatives shall immediately chuse by ballot one of them for president; and if no person have a majority, then from the five highest on the list the said house shall in like manner chuse the president. But in chusing the president, the votes shall be taken by states, the representation from each state having one vote: a quorum for this purpose shall consist of a member or members from two-thirds of the states, and a majority of all the states shall be necessary to a choice. In every case, after the choice of the president, the person having the greatest number of votes of the electors shall be the vice president. But if there should remain two or more who have equal votes, the Senate shall chuse from them by ballot the vice president.

Art. II, s. 1, cl. 3, is superseded by amendment XII.

[4.] The Congress may determine the time of chusing the electors and the day on which they shall give their votes; which day shall be the same throughout the United States.

[5.] No person except a natural born citizen, or a citizen of the United States at the time of the adoption of this constitution, shall be eligible to the office of president; neither shall any person be eligible to that office who has not attained to the age of thirty-five years, and been fourteen years a resident within the United States.

[6.] In case of the removal of the president from office, or of his death, resignation, or inability to discharge the powers and duties of the said office, the same shall devolve on the vice president, and the Congress may by law provide for the case of removal, death, resignation, or inability, both of the president and vice president, declaring what officer shall then act as president, and such officer shall act accordingly, until the disability be removed, or a president shall be elected.

[7.] The president shall, at stated times, receive for his services a compensation, which shall neither be increased nor diminished during the period for which he shall have been elected, and he shall not receive within that period any other emolument from the United States, or any of them.

[8.] Before he enter on the execution of his office, he shall take the following oath or affirmation:—"I do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I will faithfully execute the office of president of the United States, and will to the best of my ability preserve, protect and defend the constitution of the United States."

§ 2. [1.] The president shall be commander in chief of the army and navy of the United States, and of the militia of the several states, when called into the actual service of the United States; he may require the opinion, in writing, of the principal officer in each of the executive departments, upon any subject relating to the duties of their respective offices, and he shall have power to grant reprieves and pardons for offences against the United States, except in cases of impeachment.

[2.] He shall have power, by and with the advice and consent of the senate, to make treaties, provided two-thirds of the senators present concur; and he shall nominate, and by and with the advice and consent of the senate, shall appoint ambassadors, other public ministers and consuls, judges of the supreme court, and all other officers of the United States whose appointments are not herein otherwise provided for, and which shall be established by law: but the congress may by law vest the appointment of such inferior officers, as they think proper, in the president alone, in the courts of law, or in the heads of departments.

§ 3. He shall from time to time give to the congress information of the state of the union, and recommend to their consideration such measures as he shall judge necessary and expedient; he may, on extraordinary occasions, convene both houses, or either of them, and in case of disagreement between them, with respect to the time of adjournment, he may adjourn them to such time as he shall think proper; he shall receive ambassadors and other public ministers; he shall take care that the laws be faithfully executed, and shall commission all the officers of the United States.

§ 4. The president, vice president and all civil officers of the United States shall be removed from office on impeachment for, and conviction of, treason, bribery, or other high crimes and misdemeanors.

ARTICLE III

§ 1. The judicial power of the United States shall be vested in one supreme court, and in such inferior courts as the congress may from time to time ordain and establish. The judges, both of the supreme and inferior courts, shall hold their offices during good behavior, and shall, at stated times, receive for their services a compensation which shall not be diminished during their continuance in office.

§ 2. [1.] The judicial power shall extend to all cases, in law and equity, arising under this constitution, the laws of the United States, and treaties made, or which shall be made, under their authority;—to all cases affecting ambassadors, other public ministers and consuls;—to all cases of admiralty and maritime jurisdiction;—to controversies to which the United States shall be a party;—to controversies between two or more states;—between a state and citizens of another state;—between citizens of different states;—between citizens of the same state claiming lands under grants of different states, and between a state, or the citizens thereof, and foreign states, citizens or subjects.

See amendment XI, as to suits against a state by citizens of another state or citizens or subjects of a foreign state.

[2.] In all cases affecting ambassadors, other public ministers and consuls, and those in which a state shall be a party, the supreme court shall have original jurisdiction. In all the other cases before mentioned, the supreme court shall have appellate jurisdiction, both as to law and fact, with such exceptions and under such regulations as the congress shall make.

[3.] The trial of all crimes, except in cases of impeachment, shall be by jury; and such trial shall be held in the state where the said crimes shall have been committed; but when not committed within any state, the trial shall be at such place or places as the congress may by law have directed.

§ 3. [1.] Treason against the United States shall consist only in levying war against them, or in adhering to their enemies, giving them aid and comfort. No person shall be convicted of treason unless on the testimony of two witnesses to the same overt act, or on confession of guilty.

§ 8. [1.] Treason against the United States shall consist in levying war against them, or in adhering to their enemies, giving them aid and comfort. No person shall be convicted of treason unless on the testimony of two witnesses to the same overt act, or on confession of guilty.

ARTICLE IV

§ 1. Full faith and credit shall be given in each state to the public acts, records, and judicial proceedings of every other state. And the congress may by general laws prescribe the manner in which such acts, records and proceedings shall be proved, and the effect thereof.

§ 2. [1.] The citizens of each state shall be entitled to all privileges and immunities of citizens in the several states.

[2.] A person charged in any state with treason, felony, or other crime, who shall flee from justice, and be found in another state, shall, on demand of the executive authority of the state from which he fled, be delivered up, to be removed to the state having jurisdiction of the crime.

[3.] No person held to service or labour in one state, under the laws thereof, escaping into another, shall, in consequence of any law or regulation therein, be discharged from such service or labour, but shall be delivered up on claim of the party to whom such service or labour may be due.

§ 3. [1.] New states may be admitted by the congress into this union; but no new state shall be formed or erected within the jurisdiction of any other state; nor any state be formed by the junction of two or more states, or parts of states, without the consent of the legislatures of the states concerned as well as of the congress.

[2.] The congress shall have power to dispose of and make all needful rules and regulations respecting the territory or other property belonging to the United States; and nothing in this constitution shall be so construed as to prejudice any claims of the United States, or of any particular state.

§ 4. The United States shall guarantee to every state in this union a republican form of government, and shall protect each of them against invasion; and on application of the legislature, or of the executive (when the legislature cannot be convened), against domestic violence.

ARTICLE V

The congress, whenever two-thirds of both houses shall deem it necessary, shall propose amendments to this constitution, or, on the application of the legislatures of two-thirds of the several states, shall call a convention for proposing amendments, which, in either case, shall be valid to all intents and purposes, as part of this constitution, when ratified by the legislatures of three-fourths of the several states, or by conventions in three-fourths thereof, as the one or the other mode of ratification may be proposed by the congress: Provided, that no amendment which may be made prior to the year one thousand eight hundred and eight shall in any manner affect the first and fourth clauses in the ninth section of the first article; and that no state, without its consent, shall be deprived of its equal suffrage in the senate.

ARTICLE VI

[1.] All debts contracted and engagements entered into, before the adoption of this constitution, shall be as valid against the United States under this constitution as under the confederation.

[2.] This constitution, and the laws of the United States which shall be made in pursuance thereof, and all treaties made, or which shall be made, under the authority of the United States, shall be the supreme law of the land; and the legislature, or of the executive (when the legislature cannot be convened), any domestic violence.

[3.] The senators and representatives before mentioned, and the members of the several state legislatures, and all executive and judicial officers, both of the United States and of the several states, shall be bound by oath or affirmation, to support this constitution; but no religious test shall ever be required as a qualification to any office or public trust under the United States.

ARTICLE VII

The ratification of the conventions of nine states shall be sufficient for the establishment of this constitution between the states so ratifying the same.

Done in Convention by the Unanimous Consent of the States present the Seventeenth Day of September in the Year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and Eighty-seven and of the Independence of the United States of America the Twelfth. In Witness whereof we have hereunto subscribed our names.

The first ten amendments were proposed by congress on September 25, 1789, and became effective on December 15, 1791.

AMENDMENT II.

A well regulated militia, being necessary to the security of a free state, the right of the people to keep and bear arms shall not be infringed.

AMENDMENT IV.

The right of the people to be secure in their persons, houses, papers, and effects, against unreasonable searches and seizures, shall not be violated, and no warrants shall issue but upon probable cause, supported by oath or affirmation and particularly describing the place to be searched and the persons or things to be seized.

AMENDMENT V.

No person shall be held to answer for a capital or otherwise infamous crime, unless on a presentment or indictment of a grand jury, except in cases arising in the land or naval forces, or in the militia, when in actual service in time of war or public danger; nor shall any person be subject for the same offense to be twice put in jeopardy of life or limb; nor shall be compelled in any criminal case to be a witness against himself, nor be deprived of life, liberty, or property, without due process of law; nor shall private property be taken for public use without just compensation.

mon v. Hollomon, 125 N. C. 29, 33, 34 S. E. 99.

SUBCHAPTER I. DEFINITIONS AND GEN-ERAL PROVISIONS.

Art. 1. Definitions.
§ 1-1. Remedies.—Remedies in the courts of justice are divided into—
1. Actions.
2. Special proceedings.

Application of Sec. 1-64 to All Civil Remedies.—By virtue of this section and sec. 1-3 the terms of section 1-64, as to actions by guardians, embrace all civil remedies. Hollomon v. Harrington, 125 N. C. 29, 33, 34 S. E. 99.

Admission of Patient to Hospital for Insane.—A proceeding in accordance with the provisions of § 122-35 et seq., in strictness, seems to be neither a civil action nor a special proceeding, notwithstanding this section. In re Cook, 218
N. C. 384, 11 S. E. (2d) 142.

§ 1-2. Actions.—An action is an ordinary procceeding in a court of justice, by which a party prosecutes another party for the enforcement or protection of a right, the redress or prevention of a wrong, or the punishment or prevention of a public offense. (Rev., s. 346; Code, s. 125; C. C. P., s. 1; C. S. 391.)

Art. 47. Motions and Orders.
§ 1-577. Definition of order.
§ 1-578. Motions; when and where made.
§ 1-579. Affidavit for or against, compelled.
§ 1-580. Motions determined in ten days.
§ 1-581. Notice of motion.
§ 1-582. Orders without notice, vacated.

Art. 1. Definitions.
§ 1-583. Orders by clerk on motion to remove; right of appeal; notice.
§ 1-584. Motions to remove to federal court; notice.

Art. 48. Notices.
§ 1-585. Form and service.
§ 1-586. Service upon attorney.
§ 1-587. Service upon a party.
§ 1-588. Service by publication.
§ 1-589. Service by telephone or registered mail on witnesses and jurors.
§ 1-590. Subpoena, service and signature.
§ 1-591. Application of this article.
§ 1-592. Officer’s return evidence of service.

Art. 49. Time.
§ 1-593. How computed.
§ 1-594. Computation in publication.

Art. 50. General Provisions as to Legal Advertising.
§ 1-595. Advertisement of public sales.
§ 1-596. Charges for legal advertising.
§ 1-597. Regulations for newspaper publication of legal notices, advertisements, etc.
§ 1-598. Annual statements filed with clerk; violation a misdemeanor.
§ 1-599. Application of two preceding sections.

Under this test, proceedings in bastardy (State v. Mc-Intosh, 64 N. C. 690), or a petition by an administrator to sell lands for the payments of debts (Hyman v. Jarnigan, 65 N. C. 96; Badger v. Jones, 66 N. C. 305), classify as special proceedings.

In Woodley v. Gilliam, 64 N. C. 649, Mr. Justice Rodman expressed the opinion that a better test of a special procceeding is whether or not existing statutes direct a procedure different from the ordinary. He stated, however, that in practice the results of applying the two tests would almost always coincide, although he thought the one suggested by him the most convenient. And the court held in Sumner v. Millir, 64 N. C. 688, 689, Mr.
Justice Dick delivering the opinion, that proceedings to obtain damages for injuries to land caused by the erection of a mill are special proceedings because made so by the statute creating a statutory remedy.

Under either rule an action to recover the possession of land, as, for example, ejectment, is not a special proceeding. Woodley v. Gilliam, 64 N. C. 649. Nor is mandamus to try title to an office, notwithstanding that it is not an ordinary civil action. State v. Tate, 66 N. C. 231.

Section quoted in Jacoby Hdw. Co. v. Jones Cotton Co., 188 N. C. 465, 124 S. E. 725.

§ 1-4. Kinds of actions.—Actions are of two kinds—1. Civil.
2. Criminal.

(Rev., s. 349; Code, s. 128; C. C. P., s. 4; C. S. 394.)

§ 1-5. Criminal action.—A criminal action is—
1. An action prosecuted by the state as a party, against a person charged with a public offense, for the punishment thereof.
2. An action prosecuted by the state, at the instance of an individual, to prevent an apprehended crime against his person or property.
(Rev., s. 350; Code, s. 129; C. C. P., s. 5; Const., Art. IV, s. 1; C. S. 355.)

Editor’s Note.—This section worked a significant change in the law of the state with its enactment in the Code of Civil Procedure. Prior to that time “all suits prosecuted in the name of the state were not necessarily criminal suits as distinguished from civil suits—the true test

being that when the proceeding was by indictment the suit was criminal, and when by action or other mode, though in the name of the state, it was a civil suit.” State v. Pate, 44 N. C. 244. Hence a warrant to keep the peace was a civil action though brought in the name of the state, at law and equity remain separate and distinct, and it is no longer suited for different forms of action as they used to be, and pleadings are not suited for different forms of action as they used to be, but are all suited to one form, whether the subject of the action be a tort or a contract. Bittig v. Thaxton, 72 N. C. 541, 549.

§ 1-9. One form of action. — The distinction between actions at law and suits in equity and the forms of such actions and suits are abolished, and there is but one form of action for the enforcement or protection of private rights and the redress of private wrongs, which is denominated a civil action. (Rev., s. 354; Code, s. 131; C. C. P., s. 12; Const., Art. IV, s. 1; C. S. 399.)

Effect upon Substantive Law—Torts. — Although there is but one form of action there are torts and contracts just as there were prior to the C. C. P., but there are not several forms of action as there used to be, and pleadings are not suited for different forms of action as they used to be, but are all suited to one form, whether the subject of the action be a tort or a contract. Bittig v. Thaxton, 72 N. C. 541, 549.

Summons Served upon Person in Jail. — In view of this section it was proper to serve a summons and order of arrest upon the defendant while confined in jail upon failure to give appearance bond to answer for a secret criminal bill. White v. Underwood, 125 N. C. 25, 26, 34 S. E. 104.

§ 1-9. One form of action. — The distinction between actions at law and suits in equity and the forms of such actions and suits are abolished, and there is but one form of action for the enforcement or protection of private rights and the redress of private wrongs, which is denominated a civil action. (Rev., s. 354; Code, s. 133; C. C. P., s. 12; Const., Art. IV, s. 1; C. S. 399.)

Effect upon Substantive Law—Torts. — Although there is but one form of action there are torts and contracts just as there were prior to the C. C. P., but there are not several forms of action as there used to be, and pleadings are not suited for different forms of action as they used to be, but are all suited to one form, whether the subject of the action be a tort or a contract. Bittig v. Thaxton, 72 N. C. 541, 549.

§ 1-9. Legal and Equitable Principles. — Although one tribunal deals out both law and equity, the principles of law and equity remain separate and distinct, and it is just as important now as ever before to keep them separate. Jordan v. Lanier, 73 N. C. 90, 92.

But it is true that having but one tribunal causes the principles of law and equity to run into each other to some extent at least. For an illustration, see Jordan v. Lanier, 73 N. C. 90, 92.

The defendant's right of action by his counterclaim upon his unendorsed bond is still an equitable claim notwithstanding this section. Kiff v. Weaver, 94 N. C. 274, 279. Any defense either legal or equitable may be set up by the defendant in an action by the endorsee upon a non-negotiable note. Thompson v. Osborne, 152 N. C. 467, 67 S. E. 1029.

Common Law Forms Immaterial. — Since the old technical distinctions in the forms of actions were abolished by this section, it is immaterial whether the plaintiff's remedy under the old practice was trespass or case.
Snedden v. Harris, 109 N. C. 349, 357, 13 S. E. 920.
An exception to a complaint that it is for money had and received and as such cannot be maintained unless the money has been actually received by the defendant is not reasonable under this section regarding the common-law practice. Staton v. Webb, 137 N. C. 35, 38, 49 S. E. 881.
Where parties are brought into court by summons, the plaintiff is the party alleging his claim, provable by any cause of action, or an equitable cause of action, or can combine them as he may elect. Wilson v. Waldo, 221 Fed. 655, 507.
Cited in Riddick v. Davis, 220 N. C. 120, 16 S. E. (2d) 625.

§ 1-10. Plaintiff and defendant.—In civil actions the party complaining is the plaintiff, and the adverse party the defendant. (Rev., s. 355; Code, s. 134; C. C. P. s. 13; C. S. 400.)

§ 1-11. How party may appear.—A party may appear either in person or by attorney in actions or proceedings in which he is interested. (Rev., s. 359; Code, s. 109; C. C. P., s. 423; C. S. 401.)

This right is alternative. A party has no right to appear both by himself and by counsel. Nor should he be permitted to ex parte gratia to do so. Abernethy v. Burns, 206 N. C. 370, 173 S. E. 899. See McClamroch v. Colonial Ice Co., 217 N. C. 106, 6 S. E. (2d) 850.

§ 1-12. Feigned issues abolished and substituted.—Feigned issues are abolished, and instead thereof, in the cases where the power formerly existed to order a feigned issue, or when a question of fact not put in issue by the pleadings is to be tried by a jury, an order for the trial may be made by the judge, stating distinctly and plainly the question of fact to be tried; and this order is the only authority necessary for a trial. (Rev., s. 357; Code, s. 135; C. C. P., s. 15; C. S. 403.)

Benefit of Feigned Issue Preserved. — See Harkey v. Houston, 65 N. C. 137.

Effect upon Proper Parties. — Since feigned issues in seduced cases have been abolished, the woman and not her father is the real party in interest if she be of age. Hood v. Sudderith, 111 N. C. 215, 16 S. E. 397.

Effect of Carrying Feigned Issue to Supreme Court. — When an action upon a feigned issue is carried to the Supreme Court it will be dismissed. Blake v. Askew, 76 N. C. 313.

§ 1-13. Jurisdiction of clerk.—The clerk of the superior court has jurisdiction to hear and decide all questions of fact and law arising in the course of the proceedings and in such cases the clerk continued to exercise the power hereby conferred, upon, except as such authority may have been modified or affected by subsequent statutes. Jones v. Desern, 94 N. C. 32, 33; Warden v. McKinnon, 94 N. C. 378, 387; Brittain v. Mull, 91 N. C. 498, 562.

With the passage of the Crisp Act this section is in full force and effect and should be construed in connection with section 1-89 where the terms of the recent act will be found. See embellishment of the Crisp Act in Battle's revisal, 172 N. C. 391, 173 S. E. 123.

Constitutionality of Suspension Act.—The constitutionality of the suspension act was attacked in McAdoo v. Benbow, 63 N. C. 461, upon the ground that the act required the clerk to hear and decide questions of practice and procedure, but it was held that the constitutional provision did not create such power as was necessary to carry out the purposes of the act. Brittain v. Mull, 91 N. C. 498; Wharton v. Warden v. McKinnon, 94 N. C. 378, 387; Brittain v. Mull, 91 N. C. 498, 562.

As was indicated in McAdoo v. Benbow, 63 N. C. 461, 464, the jurisdiction is conferred upon the court and not upon the clerk. He is merely an instrument in performing his functions. Thus there is no divided jurisdiction between the clerk and judge, but they both function as officials of the same court exercising but one jurisdiction. Jones v. Desern, 94 N. C. 32, 33.

Upon appeal from the rulings of the clerk, in vacation, upon procedural motions in pending civil actions, the jurisdiction of the superior court is not exclusive. Under such circumstances, the clerk should proceed with due regard and make decisions of questions of law, with which a party should be dissatisfied, such party might appeal, and in this manner the holding of the Judge would become that of the Court. It was the duty of the Clerk to make all proper orders of reference, as well as other orders and judgments in the course of the proceeding, except in some exceptional cases, otherwise expressly provided for. Brittain v. Mull, 91 N. C. 498; Wharton v. Wilkerson, 92 N. C. 407; Lottin v. Rouse, 94 N. C. 508, 509.

The Court in term, should not do more than to direct the Clerk to perfect the pleadings and to allow or disallow amendments in pleadings when proper; and make decisions of questions of law, with which a party should be dissatisfied, such party might appeal, and in this manner the holding of the Judge would become that of the Court. It was the duty of the Judge to make all proper orders of reference, as well as other orders and judgments in the course of the proceeding. If he should err in such a proceeding, an appeal might be taken as indicated above. Lottin v. Rouse, 94 N. C. 508, 510.

It was not the duty of the Judge in term, after the issues were tried—there being no question of law to be decided, an amendment according to law. If the Clerk should proceed in the course of the proceeding. If he should err in such a proceeding, an appeal might be taken as indicated above. Lottin v. Rouse, 94 N. C. 508, 510.

Same.—To Grant Equitable Relief.—The C. C. P. does not give the clerk power to make an order granting affirmative equitable relief. Equitable relief must be set up in the an-
We are not authorized to decide the questions of law prematurely, the Judge has power to allow amendments, or he may order the Clerk, acting for the Court, to decide whatever questions may arise, and to make all proper orders. Brittain v. Mull, 94 N. C. 595, 599.

Amendments after Joiner of Issues.—Where, in special proceedings, the pleadings are made up before the Clerk, and after joiner of issues and the introduction of evidence, the Court, in term, the Judge has power to allow amendments, or he may stay the trial and remand the papers to the Clerk, in order that he may consider a motion to amend. Lottin v. Rouse, 94 N. C. 508.

Same—Remanding Order Interlocutory.—An order remanding the papers to the Clerk, in order that he may consider a motion to amend the pleadings, to the end that an account may be taken, is interlocutory and does not impair a substantial right, and cannot be appealed from. Lottin v. Rouse, 94 N. C. 508.

Application to Special Proceedings.—See the editor's note to this section. Proceedings to obtain partition, dower and the like are special preceedings, Jones v. Desern, 94 N. C. 32, 35. So is a proceeding by creditors to compel an administrator to an account and payment of the debts of the estate. Brittain v. Mull, 94 N. C. 496; Warden v. McKinnon, 94 N. C. 378, 387.

And the granting of a warrant of attachment was a special proceeding. Cushing v. Styron, 104 N. C. 338, 339, 10 S. E. 258.

Stated in Ex parte Wilson, 222 N. C. 99, 22 S. E. (2d) 262 (con. op.).

SUBCHAPTER II. LIMITATIONS.

Art. 3. Limitations, General Provisions.

§ 1-14. When action commenced.—An action is commenced as to each defendant when the summons is issued against him. (Rev., s. 359; Code, s. 161; C. C. P., s. 40; C. S. 404.)

When Statute Adopted.—The statutes of limitation appearing in the following sections did not become effective until the adoption of the C. C. P.; prior to that time the statute of presumptions was in force. Crawford v. McLellan, 262 (con. op.).

The statutes prescribing limitations in the code displace those contained in the Revised Code. Lynn v. Lowe, 88 N. C. 266.

Subchapter Exclusive. — All civil actions must be commenced within the periods prescribed in this subchapter, “except where in special cases a different limitation is prescribed by statute.” Woody v. Brooks, 102 N. C. 334, 340, 9 S. E. 294.

Modes of Commencing Action.—There are only two ways by which a civil action may be commenced: 1. By issuing a summons; 2. By submitting a controversy without action. When the former method is resorted to the action is commenced when the summons is issued, and not until that is done. But if the defendant sees proper to do so he may appear without a summons and thereby waive its issuance. McClure v. Fellows, 131 N. C. 509, 42 S. E. 951.

Any form of action or special proceeding in this State must always be commenced by summons or attachment. McClure v. Fellows, 131 N. C. 509, 42 S. E. 951.

What Constitutes Issuing of Summons.—The word “issue,” means going out of the hands of the clerk, expressed or implied, to be delivered to the Sheriff for service. If the clerk delivers it to the Sheriff to be served, it is then issued. If the Clerk delivers it to the Sheriff, it is issued as a pleading. A pleading is issued when the plaintiff or some one else, to be delivered by him to the Sheriff, this is an issue of the summons; or, as is often the case, if the summons is filled out by the attorney of plaintiff, and put in the hands of the Sheriff, the Sheriff is in effect impliedly consigning the same to the Sheriff as a pleading. But unless the Sheriff actually takes it, and puts it in the hands of the Sheriff, and the Sheriff actually takes it, and puts it in the hands of the Sheriff, it is not an issue of the summons. Nor would it be the fact that a summons was filled up and held by the clerk for a prosecution bond constitute the issuing of a summons, until it is presented to, given or at least until it goes out by the consent of the clerk for the purpose of being served on the defendant. Webster v. Sharpe, 116 N. C. 466, 471, 21 S. E. 912; Pettigrew v. McColin, 105 N. C. 472, 8 S. E. 701.

Notwithstanding the omission of the signature of the clerk, or the omission of the seal, it has been held sufficient where the clerk actually issued it, but where the clerk gave a blank summons to counsel who filled it out without either the seal or the signature of the clerk, it was held without giving the clerk an opportunity to pass upon the sufficiency of the undertaking, the summons was too defective to constitute a commencement. Redmond v. Mullenaux, 113 N. C. 505, 511, 18 S. E. 708.

Effect of Defective Summons.—If a paper bear internal evidence of its official origin, and of the purpose for which it was issued, it is issued to the Sheriff, or the Clerk, or the Sheriff, and it is sufficient. It may be amended to conform to the requirements of a perfect summons, and be considered as issued in the first instance. But, unless there is something upon the face of the paper which shows it to be other than an official paper, it is not a summons, but no summons at all, and cannot be considered the commencement of an action. Redmond v. Mullenaux, 113 N. C. 505, 510, 18 S. E. 708.

Issuance Does Not Confer Jurisdiction.—While an action is commenced as to each defendant when the summons is issued against him, jurisdiction of the court and of parties litigant can be acquired only by a legal service of process, unless there is an acceptance of service or a general appearance, actual or constructive. Hatch v. Alamance Co., 103 N. C. 617, 112 S. E. 529. Bernhardt v. Brown, 118 N. C. 324, 13 S. E. 258; Flournoy, 118 N. C. 299; 60 S. E. 978; Warwick v. Reynolds, & Co., 114 N. C. 606, 66 S. E. 657, 21 R. C. L. 1135.

§ 1-15. Statute runs from accrual of action; pleading.—Civil actions can only be commenced within the periods prescribed in this chapter, after the cause of action has accrued, except where in special cases a different limitation is prescribed by statute. The objection that the action was not commenced within the time limited can be taken advantage of by answer. (Rev, s. 360; Code, s. 378; C. C. P., s. 17; C. S. 404.)

Section not Statute of Presumptions.—Now we have no statute of presumptions. This section prescribes a statute of limitations only. Helm Co. v. Griffin, 112 N. C. 356, 355, 16 S. E. 1023.

This section applies to actions wherein formal pleadings are required to be filed and not to proceedings in the nature of a controversy without action upon an agreed statement of facts for the distribution of funds arising from a foreclosure sale in re an insolvent, or a proceeding or a case in liquidation of the estate of a deceased person. stabilization of assets, administration, bankruptcy, or the like. Facts will suffice. Pipes v. Lum. Co., 112 N. C. 612, 44 S. E. 114.

It is for the judge to the jury where the statute of limitations is not pleaded, that the plaintiff can not recover. Pogram v. Stolz, 67 N. C. 144, 146.

Manner of Pleading.—It was unquestionably true under the former system, where an action was commenced by the statement of a claim or cause of action the statute now requires it to be pleaded, and to be taken advantage of by answer, by the statute. Albertson v. Terry, 109 N. C. 8, 10, 13 S. E. 713; King v. Powell, 127 N. C. 10, 11, 37 S. E. 62. But facts will suffice. Guthrie v. Bank, 107 N. C. 337, 12 S. E. 204; Randolph v. Randolph, 107 N. C. 506, 12 S. E. 374; and this is required by the statute. Albertson v. Terry, 109 N. C. 8, 10, 13 S. E. 713; King v. Powell, 127 N. C. 10, 11, 37 S. E. 62. But facts will suffice. Pipes v. Lum. Co., 112 N. C. 612, 44 S. E. 114.

It is for the judge to instruct the jury where the statute of limitations is not pleaded that the plaintiff can not recover. Pogram v. Stolz, 67 N. C. 144, 146.
§ 1-16. Defenses pleaded by insane party.—On the trial of any action or special proceeding to which an insane person is a party, such insane person is deemed to have pleaded specially any defense, and shall on trial have the benefit of any defense, whether pleaded or not, that might have been made for him by his guardian or attorney under the provisions of this chapter. The court, at any time before the action or proceeding is finally disposed of, may order the bringing in, by proper notice, of one or more of the near relatives or friends of the insane person, and may make such other order as it deems necessary for his proper defense. (Rev., s. 361; 1889, c. 89, s. 2; C. S. 406.)

Applicable against State Institutions.—The superintendent of the State Hospital cannot recover compensation against a guardian of insane person for the maintenance of his ward for more than one year, if the ward has not been committed to the State Hospital. (Rev., s. 367; C. S. 406.)

Hearing of Family.—If there was ever a time when the facts concerning the person ought to be heard, it would seem that a petition for the appointment of a receiver for an insane person confined in the state asylum is one. In re Hybart, 119 N. C. 395, 25 S. E. 963; In re Farmers, etc., Bank v. Cramer, 127 N. C. 386, 392, 122 S. E. 1.

§ 1-17. Disabilities.—A person entitled to commence an action, except for a penalty or forfeiture, or against a sheriff or other officer for an escape, who is at the time the cause of action accrued either:
  1. Within the age of twenty-one years; or
  2. Insane; or
  3. Imprisoned on a criminal charge, or in execution under sentence for a criminal offense; may bring his action within the times herein limited, after the disability is removed, except in an action for the recovery of real property, or to make an entry or defense founded on the title to real property, or to rents and services out of the same, when he must commence his action, or make his entry, within three years next after the removal of the disability; or in no other case. (Rev., s. 362; Code, ss. 148, 183; C. C. P., ss. 27, 142; 1899, c. 78; C. S. 407.)

Editor's Note.—In 1899 the legislature struck the provisions which made coverture a disability on pari with the others enumerated in this section. See Weathers v. Borders, 124 N. C. 610, 617, 32 S. E. 881; Berry v. Ritter Lumber Co., 141 N. C. 386, 54 S. E. 278.

But the statute provided that the time elapsing before its passage can not be counted against a married woman in actions of ejectment, and in other actions it should not apply to actions pending at its passage. LaFerri v. Young, 125 N. C. 296, 297, 300, 34 S. E. 444; Swift v. Dixon, 131 N. C. 42, 42 S. E. 458.

Applicable to Defects of Other Sections. — The statute of limitations does not run against an idiot by reason of the disability in that case. Outland v. Outland, 118 N. C. 138, 23 S. E. 975.

Detention in Asylum by Defendant's Wrongful Act.—Where plaintiff's cause of action was based upon the alleged wrongful act of defendant in causing plaintiff's detention in an insane asylum, defendant will not be allowed to take advantage of the section. LaFerri v. Young, 125 N. C. 296, 297, 300, 34 S. E. 444; Outland v. Outland, 118 N. C. 138, 23 S. E. 975.

Former Law Unchanged. — There is nothing in this section which changes the law as it formerly existed. Frederick v. Williams, 103 N. C. 189, 9 S. E. 298.

Section Relates to True Title. — Adverse possession relates only to the true title, and the exemptions in the statutes as to those under disability can apply only to one having by virtue of his title the right to sue. Berry v. Ritter Lumber Co., 141 N. C. 386, 54 S. E. 278.

Effect of Defects of Other Sections. — The criticism to which section 1-35 may be subjected in misrepresenting other applicable sections cannot affect the application of this section. Clayton v. Rose, 87 N. C. 106, 68 S. E. 452.

Three Year Period Enforced. — In case of infancy, even after the expiration of the time of the limitation, an action may be brought within three years after full age. Campbell v. Cramer, 95 N. C. 156, 157; and if not brought within that time the action is barred. Clendenlin v. Clendenlin, 181 N. C. 465, 472, 107 S. E. 438. Dissenting Opinion. Seven years' adverse possession under color, is no bar to an action of ejectment, where the person entitled to commence the same is an infant at the time the title to the land descended to him, and suits within three years next after full age. Clayton v. Rose, 87 N. C. 106.

If land is an in issue, or for such length of time as would 'ar his recovery if sane, such insane person, or those claiming under him, must come in an answer and within the disabilities of insanity removed, else their rights to recovery will be barred. Warlick v. Plonk, 103 N. C. 81, 9 S. E. 190.

Effect of Disability Continuing Through Life. — If the disability continued an entire life, or for an indefinite time, and afterwards sufficient to complete the prescribed time of seven years, the title would be perfected in the occupant, subordinate only to a right in the heir to sue for the recovery of the land. While the period of three years next after death. The running of the statute against the action and to consummate the title would be concurrent after the death of the grantor. Ellington v. Ellington, 103 N. C. 54, 57, 9 S. E. 208.

Effect of Guardian Having Right to Sue. — Culp v. Lee, 109 N. C. 675, 678, 14 S. E. 74, has no application to actions [91] for the recovery of reality when the legal title is in the person under disability. The court held that the distributee was prima facie entitled to the title as guardian, because he had been exposed to an action by him for the full period prescribed by the statute, was protected by the lapse of time. Cross v. Craven, 120 N. C. 331, 332, 26 S. E. 940. The execution, being a judgment that the distributee has the authority and duty to bring on behalf of his ward is the failure of the ward, entailing the same legal consequences with respect to the bar of the statute of limitations as if the grantor to make them, and under which the issuance of Article X, section 6, of our State Constitution, and under color, the coverture of the plaintiff will not avail him to bar a suit to cancel deeds because of the mental incapacity of the grantor to make them, which is the failure of the ward, entailing the same legal consequences with respect to the bar of the statute of limitations as if the grantor had a legal existence. Other sections are §§ 52-1 et seq. See 2 N. C. L. S. 566, 4180. E. 9.

§ 1-19. Cumulative Disabilities.—When two or more disabilities coexist at the time the right of action accrues or when one disability supervenes upon an existing one, the limitation does not attach until they all are removed. (Rev., s. 364; Code, ss. 119, 170; C. C. P., ss. 28, 49; C. S. 409.)

Editor's Note.—By the phraseology of this section, it is evident that cumulative disabilities will only prevent the running of a statute before it has started. Any number of disabilities may coexist at the time of the accrual of a cause of action, and defendant denies the allegation of nonresidence, in the absence of evidence by plaintiff in support of the allegation of nonresidence. This section, as a general rule statutes of this character apply to actions pending at the time they take effect provided the actions have not been barred by a prior statute of limitations. For the principle applied see Carter v. Reaves, 167 N. C. 131, 83 S. E. 248. It applies also in the case of insanity, see note under section 1-16; and applies formerly in the case of coverture, see note under sec. 1-18.

§ 1-20. Disability must exist when right of action accrues.—No person may avail himself of a disability except as authorized in § 1-19, unless it existed when his right of action accrued. (Rev., s. 365; Code, s. 169; C. C. P., s. 48; C. S. 410.)

Running of Statute Cannot Be Stopped.—If the statute of limitations commences to run nothing stops it. When it begins to run against the ancestor, it continues to run against the heir, although the heir is under disability when the descent is cast. Frederick v. Williams, 103 N. C. 189, 9 S. E. 298. See Clendenin v. Clendenin, 181 N. C. 465, 472; 107 S. E. 498; Asbury v. Fair, 111 N. C. 251, 16 S. E. 467.

§ 1-21. Defendant out of state; when action begun or judgment enforced.—If, when the cause of action accrues or judgment is rendered or docketed against a person, he is out of the state, action may be commenced, or judgment enforced, within the times herein limited, after the return of the person into this state, and if, after such cause of action accrues or judgment is rendered or docketed, such person departs from and re- sides out of this state, or remains continuously absent therefrom for one year or more, the time of his absence shall not be a part of the time limited for the commencement of the action, or the enforcement of the judgment. (Rev., s. 366; Code, s. 162; C. C. P., s. 41; 1881, c. 258, ss. 1, 2; C. S. 411.)

Retroactive Effect.—As a general rule statutes of this character apply to actions pending at the time they take effect provided the actions have not been barred by a prior statute of limitations. See Cross v. Brown, 51 N. C. 130.

The general purpose of this section, taken in connection with the statute of limitation, is to give the person having an accrued cause of action, or judgment, as prescribed, the opportunity substantially during the whole of the lapse of the time against him to bring his action or enforce his judgment. Armfield v. Moore, 97 N. C. 34, 37, 2 S. E. 467.

Nonsuit in Absence of Supporting Evidence.—Where plaintiff resists under this section defendant's plea of the statute of limitations solely on the ground that defendant was out of the state; plaintiff may not rely on the time he has been out of the state, but must rely on the time against him to bring his action or enforce his judgment. Armfield v. Moore, 97 N. C. 34, 37, 2 S. E. 467.

The words "any person," are employed to designate the person to be affected and embraced by the section, and are very comprehensive, and there is nothing in its scope or purpose that excludes nonresidents. Armfield v. Moore, 97 N. C. 34, 37, 2 S. E. 467.

"The times herein limited" means, and must mean, the time prescribed elsewhere in the Code, or in statutes amended or passed as substitutes therefor. The plain intent of the statute is to put nonresidents on the same footing as residents, and to protect them from action unless they have been for two years exposed to service of summons. Armfield v. Moore, 97 N. C. 34, 2 S. E. 347; Williams v. Iron Belt Bldg., etc., Ass'n, 131 N. C. 267, 270, 42 S. E. 607; Hill v. Lindsay, 210 N. C. 694, 188 S. E. 496.
Sufficiency of Return to Start Statute. — Where the debtor was a nonresident of this State, but was here on visits of six months each year, and his visits would not have effect of putting the statute in motion. Armfield v. Moore, 97 N. C. 34, 2 S. E. 347.

"The return to the State," specified by this section, as necessary to make the debt further subject to suit, means a return with the view to residence—not a casual appearance in the state, passing through it, or even making a visit here. Lee v. Moore, 97 N. C. 24, 2 S. E. 347.

Same.—Applicable Where Absence Started Before Accrual. — Where a debtor is out of the State at the time the cause of action accrues, the statute of limitation will not operate as a bar because of the continuous lapse of the time prescribed next after the cause of action accrued, or judgment was rendered or docketed: (1) Where the debtor was out of the state at the time the cause of action accrued or the judgment was rendered or docketed. This case may apply alike to a resident or nonresident debtor. In it time does not begin to lapse in his favor until he returns to this State for the purpose of making it his residence. Armfield v. Moore, 97 N. C. 34, 2 S. E. 347.

When Running Suspended by Action. — It will be observed from the preceding provisions and exceptions that embraces three distinct cases in which the statute of limitation will not operate as a bar because of the continuous lapse of the time prescribed next after the cause of action accrued, or judgment was rendered or docketed: (1) Where the debtor was out of the state at the time the cause of action accrued or the judgment was rendered or docketed. This case may apply alike to a resident or nonresident debtor. In it time does not begin to lapse in his favor until he returns to the State—not simply on a hasty visit of a day or two, at long intervals, but for the purpose of residence out of it, or to sojourn out of it for a year or more, the time of his absence not will be allowed in his favor; it will be substituted for that of residence of the State—partly or entirely, as the case might be, as if he had remained in the State. (2) When, after the cause of action accrued or the judgment was rendered or docketed, the debtor-resident or nonresident of the State—remains absent from the State for the purpose of residence out of it, or to sojourn out of it for a year or more, the time of his absence will not be allowed in his favor; it will be substituted for that of residence in the State. (3) When the person against whom the cause of action has accrued or judgment has been rendered or docketed, the debtor shall depart from the State, "and remain continuously absent for the space of a year or more," the period allowed for the commencement of such action or the enforcement of such judgment will be suspended, as if he had remained in the State. Armfield v. Moore, 97 N. C. 34, 36, 2 S. E. 347; Arthur v. Henry, 157 N. C. 393, 395, 73 S. E. 206.

The statute of limitations is suspended in the following circumstances: (1) When the person against whom the cause of action exists becomes a nonresident, whether he remain continuously absent for a year or occasionally visits the state: (2) When such person as a resident or nonresident remains continuously absent from the state for one year or more. Lee v. McKoy, 118 N. C. 518, 24 S. E. 210.

When a person becomes a nonresident of the state it is not necessary that he should remain continuously out of it the state one year to stop the running of the statute, nor would occasional visits to the state put the statute in motion. Lee v. McKoy, 118 N. C. 518, 521, 24 S. E. 210.

When a cause of action of such a character as this one instance, where an action in rem will lie against property situated here. No presumption of payment of the debt will be raised within the period allowed for the commencement of the action. Three years after judgment will be allowed in his favor. Mitchell, 187 N. C. 374, 121 S. E. 661.

Section Not Applicable after Statute Has Run. — This section is not applicable after the statute of limitation has run. Southern R. Co. v. Mayes, 113 Fed. 84.

Applicability to Actions in Rem. — This section is applicable to actions in rem as well as actions in personam, no exception being made. Love v. West, 169 N. C. 13, 24 S. E. 1048.

Applicability to Suits against Bail. — Proceedings against bail, in civil actions, are barred by statute commenced three years after judgment against the principal, notwithstanding the principal may have left the state in the meanwhile. Albermarle Steam Nav. Co. v. Williams, 111 N. C. 35, 49 S. E. 967.

Applicable to Enforce Resulting Trust. — Where a cause of action to enforce a resulting trust has existed for more than ten years, but subtracting the length of time the trustee thereof had been out of the state, the elapsed time is less than the statutory period prescribed, the action is not barred by the ten-year statute. Miller v. Miller, 200 N. C. 458, 157 S. E. 600.

Effect of Nonresident's Ownership of Property in State. — The fact that a non-resident debtor has property within the State will not affect this Section, which suspends the operation of the Statute of Limitations for the period during which the defendant was out of the State. Grist v. Williams, 111 N. C. 53, 15 S. E. 889.

Effect of Corporation Service Statutes. — Sections 58-153, 58-154 of the General Statutes authorize service of summons against non-resident corporations. This section is applicable to actions against foreign nonresident insurance companies upon the Commissioner of Insurance, in no way abrogate or affect the suspension of the running of the statutes of limitation in such cases. The suspension of the running of such a statute may be a reason why the General Assembly should amend this section, so as to set the statute running in such cases, but it has not done so. Green v. Hartford Life Ins. Co., 139 N. C. 309, 310, 51 S. E. 887.

Applicable to Operation of Sec. 1-53. — The existence of the conditions enumerated in this section will suspend the operation of sec. 1-53. Williams v. Iron Belt Bldg., etc., Ass'n, 131 N. C. 267, 269, 42 S. E. 607.

§ 1-22. Death before limitation expires; action by or against executor. — If a person entitled to bring an action dies before the expiration of the time limited for the commencement thereof, and the cause of action survives, an action may be commenced by his representatives after the expiration of that time, and within one year from the death of a person against whom an action may be brought dies before the expiration of the time limited for the commencement thereof, and the cause of action survives, an action may be commenced by his personal representative after the expiration of that time, and within one year from the date on which the cause of action is based. See also § 1-53. As to final settlement of personal representative, see § 28-121 et seq. as to actions which do not survive, see § 28-175. See also § 28-121 and § 28-162 et seq.

Editor's Note.—This section was new with the C. C. P. It has remained unchanged since its insertion except that the last sentence was added by the act of 1881, and the proviso at the end of the second sentence by the act of 1919. The provision has been held to be an enabling and not a

II. DEATH OF CREDITOR.

Brought within Year of Creditor's Death.—Actions upon claims in favor of an estate of a decedent must be brought within one year of the death of the creditor, without regard to the time when administrator was appointed. Coppersmith v. Wilson, 107 N. C. 31, 12 S. E. 77.

Construction upon Section.—Although it was held that a decedent's estate does not become an entity until there is a personal representative in those cases where, in regular course, but for the interposition of this section, the claim would become barred in less time than one year from the death of the debtor, it is running. Irvin v. Harris, 184 N. C. 547, 114 S. E. 818. It means that if at the time of the death of the debtor the claim is not barred, action may be brought within the period of the statute, which continues to run. Irvin v. Harris, 184 N. C. 547, 114 S. E. 818. It means that if at the time of the death of the debtor the claim is not barred, action may be brought within one year after the grant of letters to the personal representative in those cases where, in regular course, but for the interposition of this section, the claim would become barred in less time than one year from the death of the debtor.

Personal representative in those cases where, in regular course, but for this section, it would not be barred till a later date. The object in view is that when the creditor dies, there shall be at least one year after the death of the creditor, or one year after the grant of letters of administration, to enable the representative of the debtor, before action is barred. This is conclusively shown by the words of the section, that if the party die before the claim is barred action may be brought "After the expiration of the time limited, and within one year." Benson v. Bennett, 112 N. C. 505, 507, 17 S. E. 432; Coppersmith v. Wilson, 107 N. C. 31, 12 S. E. 77.

The death of the judgment creditor did not suspend the statute. The effect was only to give one year's time from death of judgment creditor to the representative to bring action, if otherwise it would have been barred by the lapse of ten years before such year had expired. Benson v. Bennett, 112 N. C. 505, 17 S. E. 432; Winslow v. Benton, 130 N. C. 58, 59, 40 S. E. 840; V. v. Hines, 87 N. C. 445, 450; Daniel v. Langhille, 113 N. C. 344, 347; Humphreys v. Stephens, 191 N. C. 101, 131 S. E. 383.

And for that reason will not constitute an exception to the rule that no such extension of time to prevent the bar of the statutes from becoming complete as is provided in this section. Hawkins v. Savage, 75 N. C. 133; Bruner v. Threadgill, 88 N. C. 361. Patterson v. Wadsworth, 89 N. C. 459.

Exception to General Rule.—This section is an exception to the general rule that when the statutes of limitation once begin to run nothing can stop them. Matthews v. Peters, 150 N. C. 134, 135, 60 S. E. 721. Winslow v. Benton, 130 N. C. 58, 59, 40 S. E. 840.

However, it should be observed that it has no application where the bar attached before death. Grady v. Wilson, 113 N. C. 347, 20 S. E. 518; Parker v. Hardin, 121 N. C. 57, 58, 28 S. E. 30; Copeland v. Collins, 122 N. C. 619, 30 S. E. 315; Winslow v. Benton, 130 N. C. 58, 59, 40 S. E. 840; V. v. Hines, 87 N. C. 445, 450; Daniel v. Langhille, 113 N. C. 344, 347; Humphreys v. Stephens, 191 N. C. 101, 131 S. E. 383.

For that reason will not constitute an exception to the rule that no such extension of time to prevent the bar of the statutes from becoming complete as is provided in this section. Hawkins v. Savage, 75 N. C. 133; Bruner v. Threadgill, 88 N. C. 361. Patterson v. Wadsworth, 89 N. C. 459.

To What Limitations Applicable.—The section only applies to the limitations prescribed in the Code of Civil Procedure. Hall v. Gibbs, 87 N. C. 4, 5, 6.

Nothing will defeat the operation of this section except the disabilities mentioned in the statutes, fraud or certain other defenses of an equitable nature. Syme v. Badger, 96 N. C. 344, 347, 20 S. E. 518. It is running. Irvin v. Harris, 184 N. C. 547, 114 S. E. 818. But there was no such extension of time to prevent the bar of the statutes from becoming complete as is provided in this section. Hawkins v. Savage, 75 N. C. 133; Bruner v. Threadgill, 88 N. C. 361. Patterson v. Wadsworth, 89 N. C. 459.

Applicability in Action to Subject Lands.—The heirs at law can successfully plead the statute of limitations against the administrator seeking to subject their lands to the payment of deceased's debt as fully as he can against a creditor. Matthews v. Peterson, 150 N. C. 134, 135, 60 S. E. 721. Winslow v. Benton, 130 N. C. 58, 59, 40 S. E. 840.

When Time Extended.—This section does not extend the life of a judgment beyond the ten years where the judgment creditor dies more than a year before the expiration of the ten-year limitation. Hughes v. Boone, 114 N. C. 54, 19 S. E. 63.

The death of the judgment creditor did not suspend the statute. The effect was only to give one year's time from death of judgment creditor to the representative to bring action, if otherwise it would have been barred by the lapse of ten years before such year had expired. Benson v. Bennett, 112 N. C. 505, 17 S. E. 432; Winslow v. Benton, 130 N. C. 58, 59, 40 S. E. 840; V. v. Hines, 87 N. C. 445, 450; Daniel v. Langhille, 113 N. C. 344, 347; Humphreys v. Stephens, 191 N. C. 101, 131 S. E. 383.

Principle Illustrated.—Where the statute had not run at the deceased's death, and the action was brought within one year after the issuing of the letters of administration, the action was not barred under this section notwithstanding that the ordinary statutory period had elapsed between the death of the creditor and the bringing of the action. Thigpen v. East Carolina Railway, 384 N. C. 33, 113 S. E. 562.

Contract as to Limit Permissible.—A reasonable stipulation in a contract of carriage with a railroad company for an interstate shipment of goods, as to the time wherein suit may be brought for loss or damage, is a part of the consideration where the party is not under a disability or against such a person, it may be noted here that the parties are to be declared to be in loco parentis of the claimant. This would not suspend the running of the statute to the complete bar of the statute. See Gurnett v. Jones, 176 N. C. 542, 97 S. E. 494.

tion was not at the moment of penning the sentence directed, and certainly with no intent to disregard or ignore the express statutory mandate. Mauney v. Holmes, 87 N. C. 493.

Applicable to Partners.—Notwithstanding that a deceased partner's debt to his firm would have otherwise been barred by the ten years from the date of his death, yet where no administrator has been appointed, the debt will not be barred until after one year from the appointment of an administrator unless more than ten years has elapsed since his death. Irvin v. Harris, 182 N. C. 656, 109 S. E. 571.

Principle Illustrated.—It was held that a claim reduced to judgment and not barred by the ten years proviso of section 1-22 was not barred as between the estate and its personal representative until two years and ten months after the latter representative's admission, and the action was barred by statute since his death, yet where no administration was brought upon it, in one year after the expiration of the ten years on the appointment of administrator as prescribed by statute. Brittain v. Dickson, 104 N. C. 457, 10 S. E. 899.

Where judgment is obtained against an administrator who dies five years later and there was no further administration until thirteen years later when steps were taken to collect the judgment, it was held that the ten year proviso applied to bar an enforcement. Fisher v. Ballard, 164 N. C. 336, 60 S. E. 239.

Where the period of limitation for judgment was ten years, and some two months before it ran the judgment creditor died and no representative qualified until two and a half years later but in the meantime the debt had died and his representative was not qualified until two years later after the death of the creditor, and the action was brought four months after the latter representative's qualification, by virtue of this section it was not barred. Dunlap v. Hendley, 92 N. C. 115.

Proviso—Issuing within Ten Years.—The proviso is a wise restriction to prevent the inconvenience and often the inconvenience or rejection of the personal or administrator so that they might make collection immediately upon appointment, with memorandum of the judgment creditors so that they might make collection immediately upon appointment, with memorandum of the judgment in hand, investigates and ascertains that the judgment in hand, and in case of doubt, he may suspend collection for a time, while he is enabled to ascertain the correctness of the claim filed with him in proper time, he has presented it to the administrator with sufficient notice, the personal representative— the very reverse of presenting the claim for instant payment. Stonestreet v. Frost, 123 N. C. 640, 645, 31 S. E. 836. From dissenting opinion.

The word "filed" has reference, certainly, to the old custom of stringing on a line or wire papers of value for past or future usefulness, or maybe both. The same end is served by the admission of the personal representative—the very reverse of presenting the claim for instant payment. Stonestreet v. Frost, 123 N. C. 640, 645, 31 S. E. 836. From dissenting opinion.

The filing of claim is intended to be of advantage to creditors who do not receive or who do not expect to receive payment of their debts on presentation, in enabling them to leave with the personal representative—the very reverse of presenting the claim for instant payment. Stonestreet v. Frost, 123 N. C. 640, 645, 31 S. E. 836. From dissenting opinion.

The word "filed" signifies that the claim is to be exhibited, to the personal representative, for his admission or rejection. It is not required of the creditor to part with the possession of the evidence of his claim. Hinton v. Pritchard, 126 N. C. 8, 35 S. E. 127.

Sufficiency of Filing.—Where an administrator, knowing that his appointment is at the instance and solicitation of judgment creditors so that they might make collection immediately upon appointment, with memorandum of the judgment in hand, invests and ascertains that the judgment has not been paid, and thereafter institutes proceedings to sell the lands of intestate to make assets to pay the judgment, the claim on the judgment has been filed and admitted by the administrator in his discretion. Howland v. Stillman, 220 N. C. 361, 17 S. E. (2d) 336.

Mere notice to an executor of a claim against the deceased, merely signed or acknowledged by the executor, is not a filing of the claim within the meaning of section 1-22 of the Code of Civil Procedure, but where, after such notice, the executor carries the item as a debt on the books of the estate and also brings suit, and the executor's approval will be inferred, and the statute will not operate as a bar. Horne Corp. v. Creech, 205 N. C. 55, 169 S. E. 794.

Section Illustrated.—The exhibition by the Sheriff within one year of the date of administration to the administrator, of an execution issued in favor of the county against the intestate, which the administrator admits is correct and does not pay for want of assets—is a sufficient "filing" required by this section, so as to render unnecessary an action to prevent the bar of the Statute of Limitations. Stonestreet v. Frost, 123 N. C. 640, 645, 31 S. E. 836. See dissenting opinion.

In Stonestreet v. Frost, 123 N. C. 640, at pages 646 and 647, 31 S. E. 836, it is said that it is a sufficient "filing," when the claim is presented within the proper time to the personal representative and he acknowledges the validity of the debt. The creditor may then compel the administration to pay the claim. "The claimant, as to the correctness of the claim, only has to make his admission, and the personal representative is bound to certify as to the nature and amount of the debt." Justice v. Galler, 131 N. C. 393, 394, 42 S. E. 830.

Sufficiency of Admission.—A partial payment by the personal representative, without objection, is an unequivocal act from which an admission of the justice of the claim may be inferred. Hinton v. Pritchard, 126 N. C. 8, 35 S. E. 127.

When the personal representative does not deny the correctness of the claim filed with him in proper time, but filed his petition to make assets to pay it, this is strong proof that he admitted it. Woodlief v. Bragg, 108 N. C. 571, 13 S. E. 211.

Application to Heirs.—There is nothing in this section which would seem to indicate a suspension of the statute as to the personal representative only, leaving the heir at law to be protected by the lapse of time. Woodlief v. Bragg, 108 N. C. 571, 572, 13 S. E. 211.

The personal representative represents the deceased, and his omission to acknowledge a claim, or his refusal to allow payment for fraud, will estop the heirs. Woodlief v. Bragg, 108 N. C. 571, 13 S. E. 211.

While the admission of a claim by the personal representative is as much barred by the filing of the claim within the prescribed time and its admission by the personal representative, as he would be by the latter submitting to a judgment. It will be noted that the judgment in hand, which is a cause of action accrued prior to the Code of Civil Procedure and this section did not apply to it at

Not Applicable to Judgments.— Where a judgment had been obtained on a claim, the amendatory act of 1881 has no application. Woodlief v. Bragg, 108 N. C. 571, 573, 13 S. E. 211.

§ 1-23. Time of stay by injunction or prohibition.

When the commencement of an action is stayed by injunction or statutory prohibition, the time of the continuance of the injunction or prohibition is not part of the time limited for the commencement of the action. (Rev., s. 368; Code, s. 107; C. C. P., s. 46; C. S. 413.)

Nature of Operation upon Statute. — This section as its terms clearly impart, affects, and is intended to affect only a litigant's right to prosecute an action in court as fixed by the statute, and does not as a rule operate to extend or prolong a time limit or a property right as determined by the contract of the parties. Gatewood v. Fry, 138 N. C. 415, 418, 111 S. E. 77.

Effect of Irregularity in Granting. — Mere irregularity in the granting of an injunction will not render it a nullity, so as to prevent the suspension of the statute of limitations during the pendency of the injunction. Walton v. Pearson, 85 N. C. 34, 35.

§ 1-24. Time during controversy on probate of will or granting letters. — In reckoning time when pleaded as a bar to actions, that period shall not be counted which elapses during any controversy on the probate of a will or granting letters of administration, unless there is an administrator appointed during the pendency of the action. Stelges v. Simmons, 170 N. C. 24, 46, 86 S. E. 801.

It does not apply to the heirs at law or devisees to nullify the protection given every one in adverse possession of realty for seven years under color of title, nor to invalidate a judgment rendered against the heir or devisee that the title to the property is in another. Stelges v. Simmons, 170 N. C. 42, 46, 86 S. E. 801.

New action within one year after nonsuit, etc.—If an action is commenced within the time prescribed therefor, and the plaintiff is nonsuited, or a judgment therein reversed, or a judgment or granting letters of administration, unless there is an administrator appointed during the pendency of the action, the plaintiff may be brought against him. in the original action, there can be no question as to the protection of this statute being available. Federal Reserve Bank v. Daugherty, 268 N. C. 793, 150 S. E. 2d 803.

Where plaintiff took a voluntary nonsuit in the federal court on his cause of action to recover the penalty for usury, based on numerous separate transactions between the plaintiff and defendant, the circuit court found that the plaintiff's cause of action had been barred by separate actions in the state court embracing the identical issues declared on in the original action, and if the original action is barred under the provisions of this section it is not necessary to decide whether the same parties are the same and whether the cause is the same as in the original action. The federal court entered a judgment dismissing the plaintiff's cause of action, and the judgment was affirmed by the circuit court. Little v. Bost, 208 N. C. 762, 182 S. E. 448.

Section 1-25. — Effect of New Cause of Action. — Where a new cause of action is alleged the original action is no protection as against the statute of limitations. Woodcock v. Bostic, 128 N. C. 243, 38 S. E. 881.

Where the cause of action of the first and second suit are identical this section applies notwithstanding that the first suit was dismissed because of a failure to state a cause. Webb v. Hicks, 125 N. C. 201, 202, 34 S. E. 395.

Effect of New Cause of Action. — Where a new cause of action is alleged the original action is no protection as against the statute of limitations. Woodcock v. Bostic, 128 N. C. 243, 248, 38 S. E. 881.

The statutory remedy against defunct corporations must be instituted within one year. Where a new action is brought, but not in the proper manner, against the proper parties, this section will not apply to save the right of action from the statutory bar. VonGlahn v. DeRusha, 208 N. C. 467, 150 S. E. 759.

Effect of Agreement Not to Plead Statute. — An agreement in the original action not to plead the statute of limitations does not apply to the new action. Citizens' Sav., etc., Co. v. West, 204 N. C. 230, 167 S. E. 954.

Nonsuit Operates as Res Judicata Only Where Sec- ond Action Is Substantially Identical with First. — In order for a judgment to operate as res judicata in a subsequent action brought under the provisions of this section, it is required that the trial court find as a fact that the second suit is based upon substantially identical allegations and facts as the first. When the court, having no evidence and finding no facts which the judgment dismissing the action upon the plea of estoppel by the former judgment is predicated upon, independently is in error, an action in equity may be maintained. In re College County School Dist., 206 N. C. 371, 174 S. E. 90; Ingel v. Cassidy, 211 N. C. 287, 189 S. E. 776.

Burden of Proving Identity of Causes. — In action to recover laborer's wages, a plaintiff depends upon a nonsuit in a former action to repel the bar of the statute of limitation, it is necessary for him to bring himself within the meaning of the statute and show identity of parties, cause of action, and title, or that he is the "heir at law or representative" of the former plaintiff, the second action being regarded as a continuance of the writ in the first one; and it is insufficient if the nonsuit in the second action was a general nonsuit for plaintiff as the plaintiff in the first one before the latter commenced his action. Quecch v. Futch, 174 N. C. 395, 93 S. E. 895.

Real Evidence to Prove Nature of Action. — In an action to recover land parcel testimony that a prior action brought without filing a complaint is identical with the present action is inadmissible. Young v. Atlantic Coast Line Co., 205 N. C. 417, 177 S. E. 600; Parmiter v. Western Union Tel. Co., 204 N. C. 224, 168 S. E. 410; Little v. Bost, 203 N. C. 762, 182 S. E. 446.

The question as to whether an action is a continuation of a former suit within so as to be governed by this section is one of law to be decided from the original complaint, and when no complaint is filed in the prior action the court must look to the acts of the plaintiff to show by parol evidence. Motsinger v. Hauser, 195 N. C. 463, 142 S. E. 589.

Dismissal or nonsuit as to one defendant for misjoinder of parties determines a nonsuit within the provisions of this section, permitting plaintiff to institute another action within one year of nonsuit when the original action is in Limited Protection Where Second Action Brought in Equity. — The fact that more than one year had elapsed before the beginning of the present action, from the termination by judgment on appeal, though the first complaint was inadmissible, is not in strictness a statute of limitation, but a condition affecting the cause of action. The cause of action was barred by the statute of limitation within the time specified it comes within the provisions of this section. Trull v. Seaboard Air Line R. Co., 131 N. C. 245, 66 S. E. 586. The maximum time allowed under the two sections was two years, and within two years Vessels v. Suncrest Lumber Co., 194 N. C. 141, 138 S. E. 512.

A new action for wrongful death commenced within one year from the date of nonsuit falls within the provisions of this section notwithstanding the condition of § 22-171, and the fact that the plaintiff has been assessed with additional costs upon motion for reassessment made in the second action and has not paid the cost so reassessed is immaterial. See Williams v. Great Atlantic, etc., Tea Co., 204 N. C. 715, 169 S. E. 618. See notes to § 22-173.

While the requirement that an action for wrongful death must be instituted within one year is a condition connected to the cause of action rather than a statute of limitations, this section applies to actions for wrongful death. Sligh v. Southern Ry. Co., 218 N. C. 762, 12 S. E. (2d) 253.

Section Illustrative. — Where an action is begun within the prescribed period, but terminated in a non-suit after the period has run, this section applies to permit another action within one year from the date of non-suit. Hines v. Rowland Lumber Co., 174 N. C. 244, 93 S. E. 833.

Where it does not appear otherwise than that the first suit was commenced in time, and the second was instituted within a year of the nonsuit, this section operates to prevent a bar of the statute. Bank v. Longhian, 122 N. C. 668, 671, 30 S. E. 17.

Effect of Costs Provisions. — This section does not forbid the commencement of a second action without paying the costs of the first, but such an action is void if bringing the new action free from the bar of the statute, if pleaded; and a motion to dismiss it before answer filed, upon the ground that the plaintiff is entitled to costs, may not be granted, which will be denied. Bradshaw v. Citizens' Nat. Bank, 172 N. C. 632, 90 S. E. 789.

But where the appropriate statute has been pleaded and its time expired both before the bringing of the new action and the payment of the cost in the original one, the second action is barred though commenced within the one-year period, when the original case has not been brought in time. Rankin v. Oates, 183 N. C. 517, 112 E. 32.

Same — When Applicable. — The amendment of 1915 re- quiring the payment of costs has no application when the second action is brought after the expiration of the condition of the general law. Summers v. Southern R. Co., 173 N. C. 398, 92 S. E. 160.

Same — Excuse. — It may be shown by plaintiff that his failure to pay costs before commencing his second action upon the same contract was caused by the failure or the deliberate omission of the plaintiff to ascertain and to know the amount thereof though the plaintiff had urgently and continuously requested it, and that he would have promptly paid them according to the provisions of the statute, if the court had advised him Hunsucker v. Corbitt, 187 N. C. 496, 122 S. E. 378.

A nonsuit designates the action of the court in ending the case or sending the case out of court where plaintiff is not entitled to proceed to the trial of the case on account of defect in parties, pleadings or jurisdiction, or where the plaintiff is unable to prove his case and the cause is dismissed as upon a demurrer to the evidence, and in such instances, where the defendant has been charged with the payment of any part of the costs, the plaintiff must be entitled to bring a new action within one year. Blades v. Southern Ry. Co., 218 N. C. 753, 11 S. E. (2d) 823.

Judgment of Nonsuit on Merits of Case as Bar to Subsequent Action on Same Cause on Substantially Same Evidence.—A plaintiff may bring an action and have it heard upon its merits, and, if a judgment of nonsuit is then entered, he may bring a new suit within one year, or he may have the cause reviewed by the Supreme Court. If the Supreme Court affirms the judgment of the trial court, he may, under this section, bring a new action within the period therein specified. But, if upon the trial of the new action, upon its merits, in either event, it appears to the trial court, and is found by such court, that the action is substantially identical in fact and substantially identical in law, with the former action, that the judgment in the first action was a bar or res judicata, and thus end that particular litigation. Hampton v. Rex Spinning Co., 196 N. C. 235, 240, 151 S. E. 589.

Cross Action.—Plaintiff administratrix was a party defendant in an action for negligence. The administratrix set up as a defense therein against her codrittendants for the wrongful death prior to the date of intestate's death. On appeal, the cross action was dismissed because it did not arise out of plaintiff's cause of action as a matter of law. Where is the statute of limitations is within one year, the court held that the judgment in the first action was a bar or res judicata, and thus end that particular litigation. Blakes v. Southern Ry. Co., 218 N. C. 702, 12 S. E. (2d) 553.

Effect of Costs Provisions.—In order to be entitled to institute an action within one year after nonsuit in an action on contract, the bar of the statute of limitations for plaintiffs must show that the costs in the prior action have been paid or that it was brought in forma paupcris. Osborne v. Alford, 192 N. C. 227, 135 S. E. 235.

Propriety of Directed Verdict for Plaintiff Where Record Contains No Evidence of Payment of Costs of Prior Action.—Where, after judgment as of nonsuit, another action has been brought on the same cause of action within one year under the provisions of this section, and defendant moves for judgment of nonsuit and excepts to the trial court's refusal of the motion, and on appeal the only question presented is whether the plaintiff had paid the costs of the prior action as required by the statute, held, the burden is upon the plaintiff to show compliance therewith. Where is the statute of limitations contains no evidence that the costs of the prior action had been paid, a directed verdict in the plaintiff's favor will be held erroneous, and it cannot be sustained. So where the record contains no evidence that the trial court stated at the close of testimony that as he understood the evidence he would have to give a directed verdict and he did, and the counsel did not object until after a verdict in the plaintiff's favor. Southerland v. Crump, 199 N. C. 111, 153 S. E. 645.

§ 1-26. New promise must be in writing.—No acknowledgment or promise is evidence of a new or continuing contract, from which the statute of limitations run, unless it is contained in some writing signed by the party to be charged thereby; but this section does not alter the effect of any payment of principal or interest. (Rev., s. 371; Code, s. 172; C. C. P., s. 51; C. C. S., s. 416.)

I. GENERAL CONSIDERATION.

Cross Reference.—As to contracts requiring writing, see § 22-1 et seq.

1. 13 N. C. Law Rev. 57 for comment on this section.

Effect upon Prior Law.—This section does not change the character or quality of the acknowledgment or new promise therefore required to make a new promise statutory, for, if the new promise should be "in some writing signed by the party to be charged therefor, as the court shall direct," Phillips v. Giles, 175 N. C. 493, 95 S. E. 772; Peoples Barnstead Co. v. Tar River Lbr. Co., 221 N. C. 89, 19 S. E. (2d) 143.

The substituted statute after a fixed time bars the cause of action itself, and does not, as before, obstruct the remedy merely. McDonald v.Dickson, 87 N. C. 404, 406.

The Section is Mandatory. — Fleming v. Staton, 74 N. C. 262.

Retroactive Effect.—This section has an application where the cause of action had accrued upon the new as well as the old cause. Farson v. Bowden, 74 N. C. 41, 45.

Section as Rule of Evidence. — This section is merely a rule of evidence to prevent fraud and perjury. Royster v. Farrell, 115 N. C. 366, 310, 20 S. E. 475.

Applicability to Judgments. — A judgment is not a contract within the meaning of this section. This is true even though there be a contract of sale of merchandise which loses its identity when merged in a judgment; and that a new cause of action arises out of the judgment. McDonald v. Dickson, 87 N. C. 404. See the dissenting opinion.

Action of One of Class Affected by All Class Actions. — Where the condition stated upon a negotiable note, the endorser signs as sureties, a payment thereon of the maker's obligation constitutes a payment of the whole amount of the note and extinguishes the right of action; and extinguishes the cause of action arising out of the judgment. Dillard v. Farmers Mercantile Co., 190 N. C. 225, 129 S. E. 598.

II. ACKNOWLEDGMENT OR NEW PROMISE.

The English Statute.—The original statute of limitation (21 Jas. I, ch. 16) had no provision as to new promises and acknowledgments. The court made the law on this subject and made it apply to all causes of action that rested on a promise. This because a cause of action was extinguished in 21 years after the cause of action had accrued upon the new as well as the old cause. Farson v. Bowden, 74 N. C. 41, 45.

Elements Necessary to Valid Promise.—In Greenleaf v. Norfolk, etc., Co., 91 N. C. 333, the Supreme Court declared that the promise must be (1) in writing, (2) extend to the whole debt, (3) extend to the whole debt, (but see Pope v. Andrews, 90 N. C. 401) and must (3) be to pay money and not in something else of value. The promise to pay the debt, too, must be (4) unconditional. Greenleaf v. Norfolk, etc., Co., 91 N. C. 333; Bates & Co. v. Herren & Co., 95 N. C. 388; Taylor v. Miller, 113 N. C. 240, 18 S. E. 504; Wells v. Hill, 118 N. C. 222, 16 S. E. 771; Bryant v. Kellum, 209 N. C. 112, 182 S. E. 708.

The promise must be (5) indenital and (6) between the original parties—by the same man; and, further, when the original contract is made with another one, and the promise relied on to repel the statute is made with one who is the plaintiff in the action, the cause of action is the new promise, and it must be declared on; this new promise must be in writing. Fleming v. Staton, 74 N. C. 203; Pool v. Bledesc, 85 N. C. 1, 1.

It has been held, that the promise must be made to the creditor himself (Farker v. Shuford, 76 N. C. 219, and Farson v. Bowden, 74 N. C. 41), or to an attorney or agent for the creditor (Kirby v. Mills, 78 N. C. 63; Kirkman, 95 N. C. 63, 67), and must be express (Cooper v. Jones, 128 N. C. 40, 38 S. E. 28), clear and positive (Hussey v. Blakes, 83 N. C. 636, 57 S. E. 461).

The new promise must be distinct and specific, and a mere acknowledgement of the debt, though implying a promise to pay, is not sufficient. Rigs v. Roberts, 85 N.

1023. C. 152; Faison v. Bowden, 76 N. C. 425. This section provides that the statute is only waived by acknowledgment or new promise, which amounts to "a new or continuing contract." Helm Co. v. Griffin, 112 N. C. 356, 358, 16 S. E. 504.

In Riggs v. Roberts, 85 N. C. 152, the words "distinct and specific," "unequivocal," are really applied to a promise to pay which would revive a debt from which the debtor had been discharged in bankruptcy. Where a qualifying word alone would be applicable to the promise or acknowledgment, to take case out of the statute of limitations, there is no special weight superadded by the use of the word "all at once." Taylor v. Miller, 113 N. C. 340, 341, 18 S. E. 504.

In other words there must be such facts and circumstances as to show that the debtor recognized a present subsisting obligation and proposed to renew the obligation. This means that the acknowledgment of a debt, which would be sufficient to repel the statute, must manifest an intention to renew the debt as strong and convincing as if there had been a direct promise to pay it. This principle runs through all the decisions of the Supreme Court on this subject. Wells v. Hill, 118 N. C. 900, 903, 24 S. E. 771; Simonton v. Clark, 65 N. C. 525. See dissenting opinion.

A written acknowledgment, or new promise, certain in its terms, or which can be made certain, is sufficient to repel the operation of this section. It follows that a mere vague declaration of an intention to pay an undefined amount, and without reference to anything that can make it certain, would not be sufficient, but an admission that "the parties are yet without sufficient of writing, see note to sec. 1-180.

When Promise Implied. — Where the debtor has, by a signed written instrument, unqualifiedly and definitely acknowledged the debt as a subsisting obligation, and a letter acknowledging the debt at the time defendant left plaintiff's city but claiming that it had been canceled by the creditor's action in selling the debtor's goods of a value greatly in excess of the debt, is not such an acknowledgment as will imply a promise to pay. Phillips v. Giles, 175 N. C. 409, 95 S. E. 722. McRae v. Leroy, 46 N. C. 91, 12 S. E. 465; Cecil v. Henderson, 121 N. C. 244, 246, 28 S. E. 481.

The Writing. — As to expression of opinion in charging on sufficiency of writing, see note to sec. 1-180.

A new promise-proposal, if not in writing, can not defeat the operation of the statute of limitation. Raby v. Stuman, 127 N. C. 463, 37 S. E. 476.

In order to revive a debt which is barred by the statute of limitation, there must be an express unconditional promise to pay, or acknowledgment of the debt as a subsisting obligation, and a letter acknowledging the debt at the time defendant left plaintiff's city but claiming that it had been canceled by the creditor's action in selling the debtor's goods of a value greatly in excess of the debt, is not such an acknowledgment as will imply a promise to pay. Phillips v. Giles, 175 N. C. 409, 95 S. E. 722. And it is proper to except parol evidence that a new promise was made (Christman v. Haywood, 119 N. C. 133, 134, 25 S. E. 851), although provision is made in the next section the law was otherwise. Faison v. Bowden, 72 N. C. 405; Riggs v. Roberts, 85 N. C. 152.

It was said in Fleming v. Fleming, 85 N. C. 127, that the oral assertion of a claim to an administrator who refuses or to some other means by which the nature and amount of it can be ascertained; or there must be an acknowledgment of a present subsisting debt, equally definite and certain, from which the law will imply a promise to pay. McBride v. Gray, 44 N. C. 420; Faison v. Bowden, 72 N. C. 405; Riggs v. Roberts, 85 N. C. 152. Since the statute, the words used are as applicable to this section as the words used to express the operation of this section. Irvin v. Harris, 112 N. C. 547, 9 S. E. 867. The words "I propose to settle," written in answer to a letter demanding payment of a note barred by the lapse of time, amount to an acknowledgment or new promise sufficiently certain in its terms. Long v. Oxford, 104 N. C. 408, 409, 10 S. E. 504.

A paper-writing signed by a parent certifying that she owes her daughter a sum of money, in a stated amount, for moneys she has advanced, is a binding promise and stating the daughter was to have a certain sum of money from her estate, giving her reasons, is sufficiently definite to imply a promise to pay the amount of the debt, and a new promise, to repel the bar of the statute of limitations. Phillips v. Giles, 175 N. C. 409, 410, 95 S. E. 722.

Where a suit had already been commenced to recover an amount alleged to be due as a promissory note barred by the statute of limitations, there must be an express unconditional promise to pay in writing or a written, definite and unconditional acknowledgment of the debt as a subsisting obligation as will repel the statutory bar. Smith v. Gordon, 204 N. C. 695, 169 S. E. 634.

Must Be within Statutory Limit. — The three-year statute of limitations bars the personal action prior to the section. Where a letter relied on as arresting the running of the statute is written more than three years before the commencement of the action it is ineffective. Smith v. Gordon, 204 N. C. 695, 169 S. E. 634.

When Promise Implied. — Where the debtor has, by a signed written instrument, unqualifiedly and definitely acknowledged the debt as a subsisting obligation, the law will imply a promise to pay the amount alleged to be due upon account, and the defendant set up the statutory bar as a defense, but wrote a letter to the plaintiff's attorney stating that, if he would take five hundred dollars in satisfaction, judgment might go against him at court, the letter is an admission and assumption of the debt to the specified amount ($500), and operation to remove the bar to the recovery of the time. Pope v. Andrews, 90 N. C. 401. But see Wells v. Hill, 118 N. C. 900, 24 S. E. 771, this citation.

When a debtor wrote to his creditors declining proffered credit because he was unable to pay what he already owed them (which was barred by the statute), but expressing his willingness to re-retain the ability to re-credit in the future it was held, that, as the letter contained no promise to pay the barred debt, the bar of the statute was not removed. Helm Co. v. Griffin, 112 N. C. 547, 9 S. E. 867.

Acknowledgment as Rebutting Presumption of Satisfaction. — Before the adoption of The Code, proof of a promise or acknowledgment would rebut the presumption of satisfaction of a mortgage, as is shown by numerous decisions. Brown v. Becknall, 58 N. C. 423; Ray v. Pearce, 54 N. C. 485; Hughes v. Edwards, 8 Wheat., 489; Simmons v. Ballard, 102 N. C. 105, 9 S. E. 495. And now the bar of our statute of limitations may be overcome by proof of a promise or acknowledgment, but the proof must be in writing, unless the new promise be one that the law implies from a part payment. Hill v. Hilliard & Co., 103 N. C. 34, 61 S. E. 699; Royster v. Farrell, 115 N. C. 306, 210, 20 S. E. 475.

III. PART PAYMENT.

Editor's Note. — It should be observed that the effect of partial payment stopping the statute is not of statutory origin. It was not in the English statute of James I. and 9 Geo. IV, did nothing more than recognize the common law right. Thus it originated with the courts and its application to the courts as has always been the case. See Battle v. Moore, 116 N. C. 491, 11 S. E. 214.

Thus the effect of this section is to leave the law as it was prior to the adoption of the C. & O. of Civil Procedure as rephrased the effect of partial payment stopping the statute as a bar of the statute of limitations, See State Nat. Bank v. Harris, 96 N. C. 118, 1 S. E. 459.

The effect of any payment of principal or interest, being expressly excepted from this section, thereby leaving as to such payments the principals obtaining at common law before the enactment of the statute. Kilpatrick v. Kilpatrick, 187 N. C. 520, 122 S. E. 372.

Payment of Tangible To Account.—This section dispenses with the writing where a partial payment is made, because the payment is in effect a written promise. McDonald v. Dickson, 87 N. C. 404. See the dissenting opinion.

Payment to the Defendant.—As to the statute having having run, will not be stopped by reason of such payment, (Cashmar-King Supply Co. v. Dowd, 146 N. C. 191, 59 S. E. 685) for partial payment starts the statute running except where made by one of several obligors of the same class, it becomes the duty of the other obligors to pay the balance thereof. McDonald v. Dickson, 87 N. C. 404. See the dissenting opinion.

IV. REQUEST NOT TO SUE.

Statement of Rule.—Where delay in bringing suit is caused by a request of the defendant, or his attorney and his promise to pay the debt and not to avail himself of the plea of the statute, he will not be allowed to plead the statute as to the debt, as it would be against equity and good conscience. Joyner v. Massey, 97 N. C. 148, 5 S. E. 702. This principle is derived from equity as is a new promise or partial payment, and does not depend upon statute. However it is recognized as an exception to such statute as is the acceptance of such a plea of this section. See Barcraft & Co. v. Roberts & Co., 91 N. C. 363, 369.

So it has been held that notwithstanding this section, when a creditor has delayed action at the request of the defendant, and under his promise, express or implied, to pay the debt and not to plead the statute of limitations, the courts, in the exercise of their equitable jurisdiction, will suspend the operation of the statute to arrest the running or remove the bar of the statute of limitations, where there is no proof that the creditor refrained from suing at the request of the executor, or that there was a verbal promise or request not to sue and promises not to plead the statute, the courts proceed upon the idea of an equitable estoppel, holding that it would be against good conscience and to do equity, to permit the creditor to sue against the sureties, arrests the operation of the statute of limitations need not be in writing. State v. United States Fidelity etc., Co., 176 N. C. 598, 97 S. E. 490.

Persons Who May Make.—Trustee for Creditors.—Where an assignment for the benefit of creditors confers no power on the trustee, as agent of the creditor, to do any act to waive the operation of an agreed compromise of a debt, such payment as will rebut the statute of limitations, but an agreement to apply one existing liability to another is such an agreement made by the trustee on a note of the debtor will not stay the statute of limitation, but an agreement not to do so, will not be permitted to defeat plaintiff's action by interposing the plea. act, admission or acknowledgment by any partner after the dissolution of the copartnership, or by any of the makers of a promissory note or bond after the statute of limitations has barred the same, is evidence to repel the statute, except against the partner or maker of the promissory note or bond doing the act or making the admission or acknowledgment. (Rev., s. 372; Code, s. 171; C. C. L. s. 590; C. S. 417.)

Section Changed Law. — In McIntyre & Co. v. Oliver, 9 N. C., 239, it was held that the acknowledgment of a subsequent person to whom a partner after the dissolution of the firm, was binding on all the constituent members and prevented the operation of the statute of limitations. It was also held by the court in Hill v. Givens, 19 N. C., 231, and Walton v. Robinson, 27 N. C., 341. In the latter case, the samereviving effect is ascribed to a payment as involving a resumption of the residue of the debt. In consequence of these rulings was passed the act of 1852, now embodied in this section. Wood v. Barber, 90 N. C., 76, 79.

Part payment of a note by the payee who had endorsed it without knowledge that the maker was to be one against the maker, this section, confining the act, admission or acknowledgment as evidence to repel the bar to the associated partners, obligors and makers of a note. Lotton v. Badham, 127 N. C., 9, 37 S. E., 143. In this latter case it is recognized and distinguished in Jasper v. Edwards, 115 N. C., 246, 248, 20 S. E., 392; Garrett v. Reeves, 125 N. C., 529, 540, 34 S. E., 636. From the dissenting opinion see the excellent discussion in Green v. Greensboro College, 82 N. C., 451.

A payment made by the maker, after the bar of the statute, operates as a renewal as to himself, but a payment by the cashier of a bank who was also a member of the firm, and as made a partial payment upon the same, it was held that, to remove the statutory bar set up by the defendant firm, the burden is on the plaintiff to show in what capacity the payment was made, and whether the payment was made by any partner or maker of the promissory note or bond, as maker, as principal of the firm, or as a member of the firm. The section is not applicable to these facts until a dissolution. Wood v. Barber, 90 N. C., 70, 79.

As to co-obligors on a note, it was held that a payment by one before the debt was barred would extend the time as to the other, but a promise to pay would not have that effect. The rule as to payment has been applied to all co-obligors who come within the same class as original makers of a note, and as made a partial payment upon the same, it was held that, to remove the statutory bar set up by the defendant firm, the burden is on the plaintiff to show in what capacity the payment was made, and whether the payment was made by any partner or maker of the promissory note or bond, as maker, as principal of the firm, or as a member of the firm. The section is not applicable to these facts until a dissolution. Wood v. Barber, 90 N. C., 76, 70.

A Default Judgment on Debt Barred. — A judgment by one before the debt was barred would extend the time as to the others. Lane v. Richardson, 79 N. C., 159. See also Rogers v. Clements, 98 N. C., 180, 3 S. E., 512.

§ 1-28. Undisclosed partner.—The statutes of limitations apply to a civil action brought against an undisclosed partner only from the time the partnership became known to the plaintiff. (Rev., s. 373; 1893, c. 154; C. S. 448.)

§ 1-29. Cotenants.—If in actions by tenants in common or joint tenants of personal property, to recover the same, or damages for its detention or injury, any of them are barred of their recovery by limitation of time, the rights of the others are not affected thereby, but they may recover according to their right and interest, notwithstanding such bar. (Rev., s. 374; Code, s. 173; C. C. F., s. 52; 1921, c. 105; C. S. 419.)

§ 1-30. When Statute Does Not Apply. — No statute of limitations runs against the sovereign unless it is expressly so provided therein; hence, where an act authorizing the collection of taxes for public improvements, since the three-year statute does not affect the law as to real property. Expressio unius est exclusio alterius. Cameron v. Hicks, 141 N. C., 21, 36, 33 S. E., 728.

Elements of Tenancy in Common.—Under the law of North Carolina, as in New York, tenancy in common arises whenever an estate in real or personal property is owned by two or more persons, and it is recognized and distinguished in Jasper v. Edwards, 115 N. C., 246, 248, 20 S. E., 392; Garrett v. Reeves, 125 N. C., 529, 34 S. E., 636. From the dissenting opinion see the excellent discussion in Green v. Greensboro College, 82 N. C., 451.

The maxim no longer obtains even in the case of collectible taxes, unless the statute applicable to or controlling the subject provides otherwise. Wilmington v. Cronly, 122 N. C., 388, 30 S. E., 9; Furman v. Timberlake, 93 N. C., 66; Threadgill v. Wadesboro, 170 N. C., 641, 87 S. E., 521.

When Statute Does Not Apply. — No statute of limitations applies to a civil action brought in the name of the state, or for its benefit, in the same manner as to actions by or for the benefit of private parties. (Rev., s. 375; Code, s. 175; C. C. P., s. 419.)

This section abrogated the common law maxim "nullum tempest curricur regii" protecting public property from the negligence of public officers. Furman v. Timberlake, 93 N. C., 66, 67.

The maxim no longer obtains even in the case of collectible taxes, unless the statute applicable to or controlling the subject provides otherwise. Wilmington v. Cronly, 122 N. C., 388, 30 S. E., 9.

The three-year statute of limitations does not apply to an action by a municipality to enforce assessment liens for public improvements, since the three-year statute does not apply to actions brought by the state or its political subdivisions in the capacity of its sovereignty. Charlotte v. Kavanaugh, 221 N. C., 259, 26 S. E., 2d (1949).
§ 1-32. Not applicable to bank bills.—The limitations prescribed by law do not affect actions against directors or stockholders of any banking association incorporated under the laws of this state, to recover a penalty or forfeiture imposed, or to enforce a liability created by law; but such actions must be brought within three years after the discovery of the aggrieved party to the fact upon which the penalty or forfeiture attaches, or the liability was created. (Rev. s. 377; Code, s. 174; C. C. P., s. 53; 1874-5, c. 170; C. S. 422.)

§ 1-33. Actions against bank directors or stockholders.—The limitations prescribed by law do not affect actions against directors or stockholders of any banking association incorporated under the laws of this state, to recover a penalty or forfeiture imposed, or to enforce a liability created by law; but such actions must be brought within three years after the discovery of the aggrieved party to the fact upon which the penalty or forfeiture attaches, or the liability was created. (Rev. s. 377; Code, s. 175; C. C. P., s. 54; C. S. 423.)

When Statute Begins to Run.—It is a question of grave doubt, if the point had been raised, whether the statute as to the plaintiff's cause of action began to run upon the mere declaration of insolvency of the bank, and did not begin to run upon the actual discovery. Later on. Houston v. Thornton, 122 N. C. 765, 372 S. E. 297.

§ 1-34. Aliens in time of war.—When a person is an alien subject, or a citizen of a country at war with the United States, the time of the continuance of the war is not a part of the period limited for the commencement of the action. (Rev. s. 379; Code, s. 165; C. C. P., s. 44; C. S. 424.)

Editor's Note.—As to right of alien enemy to sue in the courts of this state, see Krachanake v. Acme Mfg. Co., 175 N. C. 435, 95 S. E. 851.

Art. 4. Limitations, Real Property

§ 1-35. Title against state.—The state will not sue any person for, or in respect of, any real property, or the issue or profits thereof, by reason of the right or title of the state to the same.

1. When the person in possession thereof, or those under whom he claims, has been in the adverse possession thereof for thirty years, this possession having been ascertained and identified under known and visible lines or boundaries; which shall give a title in fee to the possessor.

2. When the person in possession thereof, or those under whom he claims, has been in possession under color of title for twenty-one years, this possession having been ascertained and identified under known and visible lines or boundaries. (Rev. s. 380; Code, s. 139; C. C. P., s. 18; R. C., c. 65, s. 2; C. S. 301.)

Cross References.—See to validity of such possession against claimants under the state, see § 1-37. As to statutes of limitation with reference to titles of the state board of education, see § 146-91.

Law Prior to Section.—Before the Code of Civil Procedure, to prevent the uncertainty of titles, the courts of this state had adopted the arbitrary rule, that from the adverse possession of land for thirty years a grant from the state should be presumed—a rule so arbitrary that a jury was not permitted to find the fact against the presumption; nor was it necessary that the party in adverse possession should have been held up to known and visible boundaries, but only to the extent of the title claimed by the persons in possession. The necessity of such proof is due to the fact that the law permits in the absence of metes and bounds set forth in deeds, or known and visible boundaries, as for instance, by the declarations of old men now dead, the presumption of adverse possession is not sufficient. Malloy v. Braden, 86 N. C. 251.

A party may show, as against the State, possession under known and visible boundaries for thirty years. Mobley v. Griffin, 104 N. C. 551, 7 S. E. 14.

Sufficiency of Possession.—The possession spoken of must be constituted by such acts as would expose the party to be subject to the State, or to some person claiming under the State; for it is the forbearance to sue that raises such a presumption of right as induced the Legislature to ratify the apparent title. Hedrick v. Gobble, 61 N. C. 348, 349.

Possession is insufficient to constitute the basis of adverse possession against the state or a private individual where the plaintiff merely shows that the agent of plaintiff's grantor raked and hauled straw one or two years and plaintiff's father cultivated an acre or two of the land one year. Prevatt v. Harrelson, 132 N. C. 251, 43 S. E. 800.

The evidence was held sufficient to submit to the jury the issue of plaintiffs' actual, open, continuous, notoriety, and adverse possession. If plaintiffs have an adverse possession of thirty years a jury is not at liberty to find that in fact no grant ever issued. Melvin v. Waddell, 75 N. C. 361.

Effect of Section upon Prior Law. — But the law is now changed, and the thirty years' adverse possession which was formerly held to be a presumption of a grant, is now by statute made, under certain circumstances, an absolute bar against the state. Price v. Jackson, 91 N. C. 11, 14.

The State is deemed to have surrendered its right where it permits an adverse occupation of land for thirty years without interruption for twenty-one years, and a title vests in the occupant which can only be divested by a subsequent adverse possession by another till his right in turn ripens in the same way. Walker v. Moses, 113 N. C. 527, 18 S. E. 339.

Section Not Retroactive. — The right of action which accrued prior to the adoption of C. C. P., is not governed by its provisions. Johnson v. Parker, 79 N. C. 475, 477.

Extent and Limitation of Application. — This section may be confined to cases where, by reason of adverse possession of land for the time mentioned in the section, the State is willing to forego her title thereto and agree to be barred for so long a time for any of the issues or profits thereof. It was not intended by this section that the State should not be barred from recovering except by the lapse of thirty years or twenty-one years, on personal actions after the state has parted with the title to the lands, for those periods relate only to the adverse possession, without or with color, which will be sufficient to bar the title, and the State agrees that when the adverse possession has continued for so long a time—thirty years without color and twenty-one years with color—she will not sue the person who has thus held the possession, but surrender her title and profits. But this does not mean that the time limited for bringing any suit for the rents, issues or profits of land should be lengthened so that instead of being thirty years, and twenty-one years, it should be thirty or twenty-one years. Tillery v. Whitewater Lumber Co., 172 N. C. 296, 298, 90 S. E. 196.

Adverse Possession against Municipality. — Under the law as this State, it formerly stood, title by adverse occupation could be acquired against a municipality. This was established and recognized as a rule of property not only under our decisions applicable to the case of Moore v. State, 130 N. C. 163, Adverse Possession 1883; State v. Long, 94 N. C. 866; Crump v. Mims, 64 N. C. 767; but the principle was embodied in our statute law in 1888, now sections 1-30 and 1-37. Threadgill v. Wadesboro, 170 N. C. 641, 67 S. E. 13.

Application to Rents, Profits etc. — It was not intended by this section that the state should not be barred from recovering except by the lapse of thirty years or twenty-one years, for those periods relate only to the adverse possession, without or with color, which will be sufficient to bar the title; nor will she surrender her title and profits. But this does not mean that the time limited for bringing any suit for the rents, issues, or profits of land should be lengthened so that instead of being thirty years, or twenty-one years, it should be thirty or twenty-one years. Those periods are not applicable to personal actions, but only to actions for recovery of land or some interest therein. Tillery v. Whitewater Lumber Co., 172 N. C. 296, 298, 90 S. E. 196.

Application to Personal Actions. — The limitations as to color for twenty-one years, and without for thirty years, do not apply to personal actions after the State has parted with title. Price v. Jackson, 91 N. C. 11, 14.

Same—Nature of Presumption. — The question of the presumption of a grant from adverse possession has never been regarded as one to be decided upon the authority of the Legislature or arbitrary rule established by the Legislature, or by the Courts, to prevent the uncertainty of titles which would arise if the questions in each case were to be determined by a jury, on their belief of the fact, derived from a consideration of all the circumstances in evidence. Melvin v. Waddell, 75 N. C. 361.

Extensive Scope of Section. — Thirty years adverse possession is necessary only to bar the State, and this need not be a continuous occupancy, nor need there be any connection between the tenants. FitzRandolph v. Norman, 4 N. C. 564; Candler v. Lunsford, 20 N. C. 542; Reed v. Earnhart, 32 N. C. 516; Davis v. McArthur, 78 N. C. 357; Cowles v. Hall, 90 N. C. 339; Mallett v. Simpson, 94 N. C. 37; Bryan v. Speivey, 109 N. C. 57, 13 S. E. 766; Hamilton v. Tarde, 114 N. C. 532, 19 S. E. 607; Walden v. Ray, 121 N. C. 237, 238, 28 S. E. 293; May v. Mfg. Co., 164 N. C. 262, 80 S. E. 380.

Possibility of Revivifying Alternatives. — The State is deemed to have surrendered its right in adverse possession of the title, when adverse possession has continued for so long a time—thirty years without color and twenty-one years with color—she will not sue the person who has thus held the possession, but surrender her title and profits. But this does not mean that the time limited for bringing any suit for the rents, issues or profits of land should be lengthened so that instead of being thirty years, and twenty-one years, it should be thirty or twenty-one years. Tillery v. Whitewater Lumber Co., 172 N. C. 296, 298, 90 S. E. 196.

Same—Lappage. — The rule, that in controversies between titles of different dates which lap, actual possession of the later is required to prevent the action of the earlier claimant, applies to controversies between the State and citizens who claim under mesne conveyances which extend the boundaries of the original grant. Hedrick v. Gobble, 61 N. C. 348.

Necessity of Privity of Possession.—A plaintiff, in proving adverse possession of thirty years, a title vested in plaintiffs under the provisions of this section. But on an issue against the State as to whether the adverse possession is a ripen title in plaintiffs under the provisions of this section, and defendants' motion to nonsuit was erroneously granted. Moore v. State, 109 N. C. 569.

Evidence held sufficient to support directed verdict for the holder of paper title on theory that defendants did not establish title by adverse possession as contemplated by this section. Price v. Jackson, 91 N. C. 11, 14.

Same—Identification of State. — In case of a reliance upon thirty years adverse possession the plaintiff must show a privity between himself and those who preceded him in the possession, and also, that the possession was held up to known and visible boundaries. Price v. Jackson, 91 N. C. 11. This decision is in keeping with the express terms of the section. —Ed. Note.

In case of a reliance upon thirty years adverse possession the plaintiff must show a privity between himself and those who preceded him in the possession, and also, that the possession was held up to known and visible boundaries. Price v. Jackson, 91 N. C. 11. This decision is in keeping with the express terms of the section. —Ed. Note.

Connection of Occupation with Boundaries. — Where there is a physical occupation of land with color, and by one of certain marked boundaries, there must be some evidence tending to connect such occupation with the boundaries claimed or some exclusive right of control over the unoccupied portions of the land. May v. Manufacturing & Trading Co., 164 N. C. 262, 80 S. E. 380.

Possession Short of Period as Evidence of Grant. — If there has been an adverse possession of thirty years or more years, it is not a circumstance to be submitted to a jury, either alone or with others of like tendency, as evidence upon which they may find the fact of a grant. But on an issue as to possession of the premises for thirty years, it is sufficient to find that in fact no grant ever issued. Melvin v. Waddell, 75 N. C. 361.

Possession Short of Period as Evidence of Claim. — Conceding the evidence establishes 30 years' possession, there was still left for the jury's determination the questions as to whether such possession was adverse, and as to whether such possession was colorable for thirty years, as required by this section. McKay v. Bullard, 207 N. C. 628, 630, 178 S. E. 95.
§ 1-36. Title presumed out of state.—In all actions involving the title to real property title is conclusively deemed to be out of the state unless it is a party to the action, but this section does not apply to the trials of protested entries laid for the purpose of obtaining grants, nor to actions instituted prior to May 1, 1917. (1917, c. 195; C. S. 426.)

Section Not Retroactive.—This section, having no retroactive effect, is applicable only to actions commenced since May 1, 1917. Riddle v. Riddle, 176 N. C. 445, 97 S. E. 357; Stevens v. Turchen, 177 N. C. 524, 198 S. E. 617.

Purpose of Section.—To remove the burdensome and untoward condition growing out of the difficulty of proving title to land by adverse possession, this section provides that, in actions between individual litigants, title is conclusively presumed to be out of the State. But that is the extent and limit of it. There is no presumption in favor of one party or the other, nor is a litigant seeking to recover land otherwise relieved of the burden of showing title in himself. Moore v. Miller, 179 N. C. 396, 399, 102 S. E. 623.

"Where either party exhibits a patent to the land in dispute, since the State can no longer assert any claim, it is familiar learning that either the grantee or the party claiming adversely to it after its introduction may, as a general rule, use it to show that the State is no longer a claimant and make good his own claim by proof of possession under colorable title for seven years only. Gilchrist v. Middleton, 151 N. C. 484, 59 S. E. 335; Hamilton v. Icard, 114 N. C. 532, 542, 19 S. E. 607.

This rule also applies where the question of title to land depends upon the true divisional lines between the parties to the action, adjoining owners, and each has introduced a grant from the State to their lands respectively, which taken together, cover the locus in quo, and either one may then establish title to any part thereof by adverse possession in seven years. Stewart v. Stephenson, 172 N. C. 81, 89 S. E. 1060.

Within Legislative Power.—This section affects the remedy—mode of procedure—and is within the power of the legislature to enact. Johnson v. Fry, 195 N. C. 832, 837, 143 S. E. 857.

May Show Title out of State.—Under this section may be shown title out of State, though either may so do. Dill-Cramer-Truitt Corp. v. Downs, 193 N. C. 189, 190, 141 S. E. 570, citing Pennell v. Brookshire, 193 N. C. 73, 136 S. E. 257.

Sources of Title Available.—And where the plaintiff has sufficiently alleged general ownership of the locus in quo, he is not confined to the location of the adjoining boundary line under his grant, but may avail himself of any source of title that he may be able to establish by his testimony. Stewart v. Stephenson, 172 N. C. 81, 89 S. E. 1060.

In an action to recover lands by twenty years adverse possession under § 1-35, it is not required that the plaintiff should show title out of the State, except in cases of protested entries, etc., when the State is not a party to the action. Johnson v. Fry, 195 N. C. 832, 143 S. E. 857.

In an action to show title out of State by adverse possession, etc., when the State is a party to the action, if it is shown that the burden of proof is on the plaintiff, or if the State is not a party to the action, the burden is on the plaintiff. Dill Corporation v. Downs, 195 N. C. 189, 191 S. E. 570.

§ 1-37. Such possession valid against claimants under State.—All such possession as is described in § 1-35, under such title as is therein described, is hereby ratified and confirmed, and declared to be a good and legal bar against the entry or suit of any person, under the right or claim of the State. (Rev., s. 381; Code, s. 140; C. C. P., s. 19; C. S. 427.)

Sufficiency of Possession as Affecting Application.—This section does not apply where the proof of possession is insufficient under § 1-35, Prevatt v. Harrelson, 132 N. C. 250, 251, 43 S. E. 800.

Application against Municipality.—Prior to the enactment of § 1-45, title to lands by adverse possession could be acquired against a State or a municipality, the latter being a political agent of the State; and where before the enactment of this statute sufficient possession of the character required had ripened the title to a part of a street of a city under our statutes, this section and section 1-30, as construed by the decisions, the municipality may not reassert the lost ownership except under the power of eminent domain vested in it by the law and for the public benefit. Threadgill v. Wadesboro, 170 N. C. 541, 87 S. E. 251.

§ 1-38. Seven years possession under color of title.—When a person or those under whom he claims is and has been in possession of any real property, under known and visible lines and boundaries and under color of title, for seven years, no entry shall be made or action sustained against such possession by a person having any right or title to the same, except during the seven years next after his right or title has descended or accrued, who in default of suing within that time shall be excluded from any claim thereafter made; and such possession, so held, is a perpetual bar against all persons not under disability. (Rev., s. 382; Code, s. 141; C. C. P., s. 20; C. S. 428.)

Editor’s Notes.—The scope of this note is limited to a treatment of the general principles of titles by adverse possession of property which are alike applicable and essential to all the sections of the opus, or subject matter, which it would have been impracticable to cite all of the great mass of cases upon this subject in this note and no attempt has been made to do so but references have been made to the digest where collectivity or order of the cases may be found.

While statutes of limitations are generally held to bar the remedy and not affect the right, adverse possession affects the right by vesting the actual title in the disseisor. In this respect it is an exception to the general rule of limitations.
Definition.—Adverse possession consists of the actual possession of property held to the exclusion of others including the owner or true owner, by acts of dominion over the land, in making the ordinary use and taking the usual profits of which the property is susceptible in its present state, to the exclusion of all others, including the true owner. Caravel v. Cregall, 218 N. C. 40, 7 S. E. 2d.

Such adverse possession as will ripen into title must be for the prescribed period of time and be clear, definite, positive and notorious. It must be continuous, adverse, hostile, and exclusive during the whole statutory period, and under a claim of title to the land occupied. Bland v. Beasley, 145 N. C. 168, 58 S. E. 993.

In other words, the claim must be adverse and accompanied by such an invasion of the rights of the opposite party as to give him a cause of action. It is the occupation with the intent to claim against the true owner which renders the entry adverse possession. Snowdon v. Bill, 159 N. C. 497, 75 S. E. 2d.

There must be known and visible boundaries such as to apprise the true owner and the world of the existence of the property. See Hayfield v. Hill, 163 N. C. 263, 79 S. E. 667 and cases cited.

A better and more concise definition than was given in Lawrence v. Chief v. Bumpass, 191 N. C. 521, 132 S. E. 275, is as follows: "Adverse possession within the meaning of the law consists in actual possession, with an intent to hold solely for title, exclusive of all others, and is denoted by the exercise of acts of dominion over the land, in making the ordinary use and taking the ordinary profits of which it is susceptible in its present state, to act so as to show that they are done in the character of owner, in opposition to right or claim of any other person, and not merely as an occasional trespasser. It must be as decided and notorious as the nature of the land will permit, and exclusive during the whole statutory period, and under a claim of title to the land occupied." Carr v. Ennis, 195 N. C. 320, 142 S. E. 8.

The particular elements will now be presented in somewhat greater detail. Color of title is defined in Smith v. Proctor, 139 N. C. 314, 324, 51 S. E. 889, as "a paper-writing (usually a deed) which professes and appears to pass the title, but fail in some respect or other in which the title of the married woman is not taken is color of title. Norwood v. Totten, 166 N. C. 648, 82 S. E. 951, see Barbee v. Bumpass, 191 N. C. 121, 132 S. E. 275; Booth v. Hines, 175 N. C. 151, 96 S. E. 142; Gant v. Bumpass, 191 N. C. 540, 132 S. E. 290, it is held: Failure to comply with $ 32-12, renders a deed void, although it is good as color of title. Best v. Utey, 189 N. C. 356, 361, 127 S. E. 337; Whitten v. Peace, 188 N. C. 298, 124 S. E. 571; Ennis v. Ennis, 195 N. C. 320, 321, 142 S. E. 8.

Whether a deed is chancertous which conveys to the grantor's son certain described lands, reserving to the grantor, in the event of the death of the son, all that he may hold therein, the title of the married woman is not taken is color of title. Norwood v. Totten, 166 N. C. 648, 82 S. E. 951, see Barbee v. Bumpass, 191 N. C. 121, 132 S. E. 275; Booth v. Hines, 175 N. C. 151, 96 S. E. 142; Gant v. Bumpass, 191 N. C. 540, 132 S. E. 290, it is held: Failure to comply with § 32-12, renders a deed void, although it is good as color of title. Best v. Utey, 189 N. C. 356, 361, 127 S. E. 337; Whitten v. Peace, 188 N. C. 298, 124 S. E. 571; Ennis v. Ennis, 195 N. C. 320, 321, 142 S. E. 8.

An unregistered deed ordinarily is not color of title, even though it purports to pass the title. Johnson v. Fry, 195 N. C. 833, 838, 143 S. E. 857.

And where the probate of a deed to lands is fatally defective, the claimant is not permitted to go into the possession of the land after a period of five years, even if the deed is color of title. Johnson v. Winborne, 3 N. C. 56; Andrews v. Mulford, 2 N. C. 311. It has been held that cutting timber and making shingles in a swamp unfit for cultivation continues for seven years (see sec. 1-38) Is a good possession.

B. Character of Possession. Must Be Actual. — There can be no adverse possession without an actual possession of the locus in quo, Cotter v. Blockman, 4 N. C. 368, and no constructive possession will ripen into a good title. Williams v. Wallace, 78 N. C. 354. The statute of limitations in favor of the adverse possessor is limited to a period of 21 years, if it is for the purpose of establishing an adverse title. Sec. 1-38 and 1-39, after the falling in of the life estate, the possessor must file suit against the true owner to acquire title by adverse possession. Sec. 1-44. And where the probate of a deed to lands is fatally defective, the claimant is not permitted to go into the possession of the land after a period of five years, even if the deed is color of title. Johnson v. Fry, 195 N. C. 833, 838, 143 S. E. 857.

And where the probate of a deed to lands is fatally defective, the claimant is not permitted to go into the possession of the land after a period of five years, even if the deed is color of title. Johnson v. Fry, 195 N. C. 833, 838, 143 S. E. 857.

And where the probate of a deed to lands is fatally defective, the claimant is not permitted to go into the possession of the land after a period of five years, even if the deed is color of title. Johnson v. Winborne, 3 N. C. 56; Andrews v. Mulford, 2 N. C. 311. It has been held that cutting timber and making shingles in a swamp unfit for cultivation continues for seven years (see sec. 1-38) Is a good possession.

Test Sufficiency. — As stated above in this note, using the land continuously and openly a sufficient length of time for the only purpose for which it is fit, is all that is required to effect an actual ouster, and the statute begins to run at the end of 1 yr. after the entry. If they should, such facts do not prove an adverse claim, as all of these are but acts of trespass: Whereas, when a settlement is made upon land, houses erected, lands cleared, and cultivated, and the party openly continues in possession, such acts admit of no other construction than that, the possessor means to claim the land as his own. Grant v. Winborne, 3 N. C. 56; Andrews v. Mulford, 2 N. C. 311. It has been held that cutting timber and making shingles in a swamp unfit for cultivation continues for seven years (see sec. 1-38) Is a good possession.

Applying the "use of which the land is capable" test to the right holder has indicated that such acts are sufficient: Overflowing land under certain circumstances, see LaRoque v. Kennedy, 156 N. C. 360, 72 S. E. 454; erecting dams and fish traps, Gudger v. Kensey, 83 N. C. 482, 483;

Title to Remaindermen During Life Estate. — Title by adverse possession cannot be had against the remaindermen during the life of the life tenant. In the case of a life estate, possession of the remainder may be had, but title to the life estate may be gained at such time. Brown v. Brown, 168 N. C. 4, 84 S. E. 25. The statutes cannot begin to run against the remaindermen until the life tenant has died. The possession begun and continued under a claim of right, Malloy v. Bruden, 86 N. C. 251. However it does constitute a relevant fact in establishing a claim of title and may be considered with evidence of possession in proving adverse possession. Austin v. King, 97 N. C. 339, 2 S. E. 678; Christman v. Hillard, 167 N. C. 4, 7, 82 S. E. 949.

Adjoining Boundaries. — I. two persons own adjoining lands, and one of them except for the purpose of inducing the jury to believe that any slight encroachments might be regarded as permissive, and could not be treated as adverse, even for the land within the fence, except as it furnished evidence of the line in a case of disputed boundary. The line being admitted, it would not make a title by adverse possession to the fence, for the reason that because there was no intention to go beyond his deed, but an intention to keep within it, which by a mere mistake he had happened not to do. Currie v. Gilchrist, 168 N. C. 548, 61 S. E. 381; Blue Ridge Land Co. v. Floyd, 171 N. C. 547, 567, 578, S. E. 852; Roe v. Jourdain, 181 N. C. 180, 106 S. E. 690.

Necessity of Being Visible and Notorious. — It was suggested under the definition that the possession must be as open and notorious as the possession would be if the owner were present and could treat it as adverse, even for the land within the fence, except as it furnished evidence of the line in a case of disputed boundary. The line being admitted, it would not make a title by adverse possession to the fence, for the reason that because there was no intention to go beyond his deed, but an intention to keep within it, which by a mere mistake he had happened not to do. Currie v. Gilchrist, 168 N. C. 548, 61 S. E. 381.

The illustrations given under the preceding catch line and the rule therein developed are but illustrations of this rule. The possession must always be such as to continually expose the party to suit by the true owner. The possession spoken of must be constituted by such acts as would expose the party to a suit by the State, or the actual and continuous occupation is such that from the very nature of things there are periods of time when the adverse possessor is not actually upon the land but is in fact occupying it under his claim the possession is not sufficiently interrupted to defeat title when so held for a sufficient period of time.

The discussion under this catch line is limited to actions against private individuals. The rule regarding the continuance of the possession against the state is converse to the preceding contrary rule as to possession against private individuals. See note to sec. 1-35.

Tacking Possessions — Privity. — It is not necessary that the adverse claimant hold the possession for the statutory period. A gap occurring during the period of an adverse possession, when taken together with the gap from the date of the adverse possession up to his death, does not render the possession insufficient to defeat title by adverse possession under a deed to his ancestor, as color, to show a continuity of such possession for seven years. Blue Ridge Land Co. v. Floyd, 117 N. C. 466, 53 S. E. 687.

It has been held that the possession by a tenant of a defendant's ancestor for one year, under his deed, and the actual and continuous occupation by the land by his heirs at law after his death, for the purpose of cutting a few logs, is insufficient evidence of adverse possession in character and continuity to be submitted to the jury. Blue Ridge Land Co. v. Floyd, 167 N. C. 663, 61 S. E. 687.

An intervening period of five months, Holdfast v. Shepherd, 28 N. C. 361, and one year, Ward v. Herrin, 49 N. C. 23, 24; Malloy v. Bruden, 86 N. C. 251, 259, have been held to be sufficient intervals to defeat title by adverse possession. A gap occurring during the period of a suspension of the statute is sufficient to destroy the continuity. Malloy v. Bruden, 86 N. C. 251.

Reasons for Rule as to Continuity. — The reason for the rule of continuity is that at all times there is a presumption in favor of the true owner, and he is deemed by law to have possession coextensive with his title except during the periods he is actually ousted by the personal occupation of another, so that whenever the adverse possession is interrupted, it again draws to it the possession, and the seizin of the owner is not to be understood that the possession is interfered with by the casual entry of a trespasser sufficiently to defeat title by adverse possession. Hayes v. Lumber Co., 180 N. C. 252, 104 S. E. 527.

From the above authorities it would seem that the true rule is that whenever an occupation ceases for a period ever so brief the statute stops running but if the nature of the only use to which the land can be subjected is such or the actual and continuous occupation is such that from the very nature of things there are periods of time when the adverse possessor is not actually upon the land but is in fact occupying it under his claim the possession is not sufficiently interrupted to defeat title when so held for a sufficient period of time.

The discussion under this catch line is limited to actions against private individuals. The rule regarding the continuance of the possession against the state is converse to the preceding contrary rule as to possession against private individuals. See note to sec. 1-35.

It has been held that to constitute privity, the later occupation must be a proprietary one, by adverse possession or by descent from the heir, or for seven years under color, the burden is upon him who relies upon such claim to show continuous possession. There is no presumption that the possession of real estate is adverse to its owner. Monk v. Tann, 117 N. C. 439, 49 S. E. 345; Bland v. Beasley, 145 N. C. 168, 170, 58 S. E. 991. See sec. 1-42.

II. NOTE TO SECTION 1-38.

1. Generally.—When title to land is out of the state, seven years adverse possession under color of title is necessary to ripen title in ordinary cases. Virginia-Carolina Tie, etc., Co. v. Dunbar, 106 F. (2d) 831.

2. Presumption of Proof.—Presumptions.—When the title is claimed by adverse possession, the burden is on the claimant to show such possession. There is no presumption that the possession of real estate is adverse to its owner. Monk v. Tann, 117 N. C. 439, 49 S. E. 345; Bland v. Beasley, 145 N. C. 168, 170, 58 S. E. 991. See sec. 1-42.

Connection with Grant as Requisite to Pleading Section.—The plaintiff may show title out of the state by offering a grant to a stranger, without connecting himself with it, and then prove its non-issuance by adverse possession. Duke Power Co. v. Toms, 118 F. (2d) 443, 445.

Sufficiency of Paper to Constitute Color.—There can be no color of title without some paper writing attempting to convey title, which does not do it either because of want of title in the person making it or because of the defective mode of conveyance used; and, at least, that under the act of 1891 it must not be so plainly and obviously defective as to preclude the possibility of its being effective at all. When the time of the adverse possession relied on, and it was clearly competent for a witness to testify that he knew the land described in the deed and to the acts of possession occurring on that land. Duke Power Co. v. Toms, 118 F. (2d) 443, 445.

SAME.—Bond for Title as Color.—Where a bond for title is sufficient to constitute color of title because of defects discoverable from the record, the purport of this section being to afford protection to apparent titles, void in law, and supply a defense where none existed without its aid. Perry v. Bassenger, 219 N. C. 838, 15 S. E. (2d) 305.

SAME.—Bond for Title as Color.—Where a bond for title is unconditional and calls for no future payment, the presumption, in the absence of any evidence to the contrary, is that the price was paid before or at the time of the signing, so that it is "color of title" to support adverse possession within this section. Bland v. Beasley, 145 N. C. 168, 170, 58 S. E. 991.

"After payment of the purchase money, a bond for title is 'color of title' to support adverse possession even against the vendor. Avent v. Arrington, 105 N. C. 377, 10 S. E. 388; Betts v. Gahagan, 212 N. C. 335, 191 S. E. 142.

SAME.—Deed for Partition as Color.—A deed by the heirs of a deceased owner of land for partition thereof is not color of title within this section. Betts v. Gahagan, 212 Fed. 120.

A deed by a grantee in a deed of partition by heirs of the deceased owner to a third person of the land conveyed to the grantee in the partition is color of title within this section, where the third person had no interest in the land outside of the deed. Betts v. Gahagan, 212 F. 120.

Where the possession of a widow, when tacked to the possession of her husband, is sufficient to confer title to the land on the heirs of the husband. Barrett v. Brewer, 153 N. C. 796, 157 S. E. 748; Truston v. Blount, 4 N. C. 455. "In a like manner the widow may tack her possession to that of her husband where she immediately possesses the property as a part of her homestead, (Atwell v. Shook, 133 N. C. 547, 69 S. E. 614; Alexander v. Gibbon, 118 N. C. 375, 54 S. E. 777) or dower. Jacobs v. Williams, 235 N. C. 796, 24 S. E. 748. It has been held that to constitute privity, the later occupation must be a proprietary one, by adverse possession or by descent from the heir, or for seven years under color, the burden is upon him who relies upon such claim to show continuous possession. There is no presumption that the possession of real estate is adverse to its owner. Monk v. Tann, 117 N. C. 439, 49 S. E. 345; Bland v. Beasley, 145 N. C. 168, 170, 58 S. E. 991. See sec. 1-42.

II. NOTE TO SECTION 1-38.
this section is immaterial. Atwell v. Shook, 133 N. C. 387, 45 S. E. 777.

Where land devised to testator's children with remainder to his grandchildren was sold under order of court by a commissioner to one of the life tenants, and defendants were the purchasers by mesne conveyances from the life tenant, the undivided interest conveyed was similar to a deed from a stranger, constituted color of title. Perry v. Bassenger, 219 N. C. 838, 15 S. E. (2d) 365.

Same—Unregistered Deed.—An unregistered deed is not color of title as against judgment creditors of the grantor. Eaton v. Doub, 190 N. C. 144, 123 S. E. 494.

While an unregistered deed is not color of title as against subsequent grantees under registered deeds and creditors of the grantor, a registered deed conveys by registered deed, and mesne conveyances from him are duly registered, such recorded deeds are color of title, under this section, and where the land is held by actual possession prior to the filing of a judgment against the grantor in the unregistered deed, the judgment does not constitute a lien against the land. Glass v. Lynchburg Shoe Co., 212 N. C. 70, 192 S. E. 899.

Same—Voidable Deed.—A voidable deed is sufficient color of title as against creditors of the grantor where it is immaterial that although it is a distinct and separate source of title from one under which entry was first made. Butler v. Beil, 181 N. C. 155, 156 S. E. 216.

A wife's deed to her husband is color of title even if it be void, and his sufficient adverse possession for seven years, under this section, may be obnoxious in misreciting other intended sections. Green v. Potts v. Payne, 200 N. C. 246, 156 S. E. 499.

Same—Deed by Mortgagee in Possession.—A deed by the mortgagor in possession to a third party, with notice of the mortgage, conveys only the equity of redemption, and does not pass such a colorable title as may ripen by possession into an absolute legal estate. Parker v. Banks, 79 N. C. 480.

Same—Sheriff's Deed after Judgment against Nonresident.—A sheriff's deed at an execution sale under a judgment obtained against the nonresident owner by his wife to recover for maintenance and necessaries furnished by her to their minor children, in which action attachment was levied on the land, is at least color of title under this section, the judgment not being void. Campbell v. Campbell, 221 N. C. 257, 20 S. E. (2d) 53.

Same—Deed after Husband Abandons Wife.—After abandonment, the wife's possession as purchaser at execution sale of a judgment obtained against him, is adverse to the husband, and is sufficient color of title for purposes of this section, will bar him. Campbell v. Campbell, 221 N. C. 257, 20 S. E. (2d) 53.

The evidence tended to show that plaintiff, the owner of the locus in quo, left the state and abandoned his wife and children, that thereafter: a tax lien on the locus in quo was foreclosed and deed was made by the commissioner to plaintiff's wife, directed to plaintiff, executed by a quitclaim deed to plaintiff's youngest child. That some 13 years prior to the institution of the action, relying upon the belief that the husband was dead, the wife executed quantum meruit title to the other children, directed to plaintiff's youngest child, and that the following day the youngest child and her husband executed deed of trust upon the property in which she represented that her father was dead and that she had title. Defendants' claim of title as grantees from the purchaser at the foreclosure sale of the deed of trust. It was held that the tax deed and the deeds of the wife and the other children to the youngest child constituted color of title, and since the youngest child went into possession under such color of title and remained in possession for a period in excess of 7 years is sufficient to take the case to the jury upon defendants' contentions that they had acquired title to the locus in quo by adverse possession under this section, and the verdict of the jury under correct instructions from the court is determinative of the question. Nichols v. York, 219 N. C. 250, 220 S. E. 952.

Same—Deed of Non Compos Mentis.—The deed of a person non compositus is color of title, and possession under it for seven years is sufficient color of title. Ellington v. Ellington, 103 N. C. 54, 9 S. E. 268.

Character of Possession Under Section.—Chief Justice Ruf- fin in Green v. Harman, 15 N. C. 158 at p. 165, said: "The operation of the statute is dependent upon two conditions: (1) The one is possession continued for seven years; and the other the character of that possession—that it should be adverse. It has never been held that the owner should actually know of the fact of possession, nor have actual knowledge of the nature or extent of the possessor's claim. It need not be, therefore, that the possessor be aware that he is in possession, nor that he is intended that he should." Blue Ridge Land Co. v. Floyd, 171 N. C. 543, 546, 88 S. E. 862.

Adverse possession must be possession under known and evident title, and it must be adverse to the grantor, and the title under which entry was made. Berry v. Coppersmith, 212 N. C. 50, 54, 191 S. E. 3.

The possession of one under color is sufficient notice of his claim of title to the lands. Butler v. Bell, 181 N. C. 85, 156 S. E. 217.

The adverse possession for seven years under color, which bars the entry of the true owner, must be open, continuous, and uninterrupted, by distinct and unequivocal acts of ownership, the burden being upon him who asserts that he has thus acquired the title, to show such actual adverse possession. Monk v. Wilmington, 137 N. C. 325, 49 S. E. 745; Betts v. Beverly, 152 N. C. 56, 67 S. E. 55. But in the case of Stewart v. McCormick, 161 N. C. 625, 626, 77 S. E. 761. For full treatment see part one of this note, supra.

If the character of the possession is insufficient to ripen a perfect title, the question of color of title does not arise. Clendenin v. Clendenin, 181 N. C. 465, 107 S. E. 458.

Charging This and Section 1-40.—Where, in an action for the recovery of land, defendant relied on this section and section 1-40, and the evidence justified a finding in his favor under this section, but there was no evidence to support a verdict under section 1-40, the error in refusing to charge on that basis was not error. Bond v. Beverly, 152 N. C. 56, 67 S. E. 55.

Conflict Making Jury Question.—Where the defendant in ejectment claims the locus in quo by sufficient evidence of adverse possession with and without "color," as against the plaintiff's chain of paper title, and the defendant denies the genuineness of a lease to his predecessor which the plaintiff has introduced, an issue of fact is raised for the determination of the jury. Virginia-Carolina Power Co. v. Taylor, 191 N. C. 329, 131 S. E. 666.

Effect on Lien of Judgment Creditor.—Adverse possession against a judgment debtor for a period of seven years under color of title is sufficient to defeat a judgment creditor, the judgment creditor having no right of entry or cause of action for possession, but only a lien enforceable according to the prescribed procedure, and as to him the possession is not adverse. Moses v. Major, 201 N. C. 613, 160 S. E. 890.

Effect of Miscitation.—The criticism to which this section may be objectionable in misreciting other intended sections cannot affect the application of section 1-17 to the present case. In the present case there was no error in the instructions expressly made subject. Clayton v. Rose, 87 N. C. 106, 111.

Formerly this section cited the statutes naming and defining adverse possession, and is to these citations that this annotation refers. Ed. Note.

§ 1-59. Seizin within twenty years necessary.—No action for the recovery of real property shall be maintained, unless it appears that the plaintiff, or those under whom he claims, was seized or possessed of the premises in question within twenty years before the commencement of the action, unless he was under the disabilities prescribed by law. (Rev., s. 383; Code, s. 143; C. C. P. s. 22; C. S. 429.)

Section Not Retroactive.—This statutory provision does not extend to actions already commenced or rights of actions already accrued at the ratification of the Code. Covington v. Stewart, 77 N. C. 148, 151.

Legal Title Prima Facie Evidence of Possession.—If a plaintiff establishes, on the trial of the issue of possession, that he will be presumed to have been possessed thereof within the time required by law, unless it is made to appear that such premises have been held and possessed adversely to plaintiff prior to the required time, it is prima facie evidence of the commencement of such action. Johnston v. Pate, 83 N. C. 110; Conkey v. Roper Lumber Co., 126 N. C. 499, 501, 36 S. E. 425.

Same—Section Construed with Section 1-42.—In cases where there is no tenancy in common this section must be construed with section 1-42, for this section is explained in sec. 1-42 by the further declaration that the person who

Prior to the passage of sec. 1-36, in 1917, before one could establish title to property under this section, title must be acquired by adverse possession for twenty years. Conkey v. Roper Lumber Co., 126 N. C. 499, 48 S. E. 141. Where the owner of land has platted and sold it by deeds to their boundaries and each introduced a grant from the state to their lands respectively, which taken together, indicate that it has become adverse, and that the occupation and use of the claimant for twenty years, continuously, presumed to be out of the state and such proof is not notoriously adverse or some act must be done to clearly indicate that it has become adverse. Thus, where adjoining owners were litigating with respect to streets, parks, etc., according to a registered plat, the court is required to give a title in fee to the possessor, as seizin follows the act of the court to the jury as to the issue of possession. Bland v. Beasley, 145 N. C. 168, 58 S. E. 930. Where title by adverse possession can be established under State statutes of limitation, the statute of limitations will not be waived or abated by a conveyance purported to be adverse to the title. Moore v. Curtis, 169 N. C. 74, 8 S. E. 132. Where plaintiffs acquired the title by adverse possession for twenty years, was the possession of the plaintiff. Conkey v. Roper Lumber Co., 126 N. C. 499, 48 S. E. 141. Where the possession of all adjoining owners was adverse, the court is required to give a title in fee to the possessor. Bland v. Beasley, 145 N. C. 168, 58 S. E. 930. Where title by adverse possession can be established under Section 1-38, it is not sufficient under this section to sustain a charge that where title is out of the state and the defendant has been in adverse possession for thirty years, it is not sufficient to sustain a charge. Moore v. Curtis, 169 N. C. 74, 8 S. E. 132. Where title by adverse possession can be established under Section 1-38, it is not sufficient under this section to sustain a charge that where title is out of the state and the defendant has been in adverse possession for thirty years, it is not sufficient to sustain a charge. Moore v. Curtis, 169 N. C. 74, 8 S. E. 132.
§ 1-41. CIVIL PROCEDURE—LIMITATIONS

Editor's Note. — At common law any person who had a right to recover by adverse possession, without the formality of a legal action, and being in possession of the premises, could retain it, and plead that it was his soil and freehold. This was allowed in all cases where the original entry was void, or could not be sustained, or when the statute began running, as this case might be) provided the various sections of the code. The effect seems to be that the common law entry without maintaining a suit within one year thereof is insufficient so that one cannot repossess himself by an entry without also maintaining an action. The latter part of this section, "unless the party is barred by the statute prescribing the statute of limitations," is but recognition of the statutes prescribing the various periods necessary for an adverse possession ripening into title.

§ 1-42. Possession follows legal title.—In every action for the recovery or possession of real property, or damages for a trespass on such possession, the person establishing a legal title to the premises is presumed to have been possessed thereof within the time required by law; and the occupation of such premises by any other person is deemed to have been under, and in subordination to, the legal title, unless it appears that the possession has been adverse to the legal title for the time prescribed by law before the commencement of the action. Necessity of Showing Legal Title. — The statutory presumption as to possession and occupation of land in favor of the true owner, from the express language of the provision, will arise only when evidence is produced of a claimant who has shown "a legal title", and until this is made to appear the presumption is primarily in favor of the occupant, that he is in possession asserting ownership. Moore v. Miller, 177 N. C. 369, 198 S. E. 451.

Presumption of Subordination. — When the defendant relies on a deed made to his ancestor as color, and adverse possession of others thereunder to ripen his title, it is necessary to show that their occupation was under and in subordination to the deed under which he claims, or the presumption will obtain that they were under the true title. Waccamaw, 200 N. C. 593, 158 S. E. 104.

Title acquired by adverse possession is legal title, and occupation of the premises for a period of twenty years under a color of title adverse to the true owner and the owner and his grantee under the provisions of this section shall be deemed sufficient or valid, as a subsequent title, unless it appears that the party having the legal title was not in possession for the time prescribed by law. § 1-43 CIVIL PROCEDURE—LIMITATIONS

§ 1-43 Tenant's possession is landlord's.—When the relation of landlord and tenant has existed, the possession of the tenant is deemed the possession of the landlord, until the expiration of twenty years from the termination of the tenancy; nor where there has been no written lease, until the expiration of twenty years from the time of the last payment of rent, notwithstanding that the tenant may have acquired another title, or may have claimed to hold adversely to his landlord. But such presumptions shall not be made after the periods herein limited. (Rev., s. 387; Code, s. 117; C. C. P. S. 396; C. S. 1463.)

Cross Reference.—As to provisions concerning landlord and tenant generally, see § 42-1 et seq.

§ 1-44 Procedure.—If the plaintiff can prove title by estoppel, as by showing that the defendant was his tenant (or derived his title through his tenant) when the action was brought. Cornell v. § 1-45 Section Fixed—Maximum Period.—The presumption which attaches to the possession of a tenant following the termination of tenancy, is only a presumption for the periods limited, and after the expiration of such periods, the presumption no longer exists. Monk v. Wilmington, 137 N. C. 322, 328, 49 S. E. 345. From distress for rent.

Disability Limited to Persons Having Right of Entry, etc.—Adverse possession relates only to the true title, and the exceptions in this statute as to those under disability can apply only to one having by virtue of his title a right of entry or of action. Berry v. Lumber Co., 141 N. C. 386, 396, 54 S. E. 278.

—No railroad, plank road, turnpike or canal company may be barred of, or presumed to have conveyed, any real estate, right of way, easement, leasehold, or other interest in the soil which has been condemned, or otherwise obtained for its use, as a right of way, depot, stationhouse or place of landing, by any statute of limitation or by occupation of the same by any person whatever. (Rev., s. 388; Code, s. 150; C. C. P., s. 29; R. C., c. 65, s. 23; C. S. 434.)

Reason for Section. — The provisions of this section are justified upon the ground that the right of way is donated to the public, and further, that this statute is not for the purpose of loss by adverse possession. One using the right of way is at most a permissive licensee. Muse v. R. R. Co., 149 N. C. 445, 63 S. E. 102; Carolina, etc., R. Co. v. McCaskill, 94 N. C. 746; R. R. v. Olive, 142 N. C. 257, 25 S. E. 363.

When Section Applies. — This section applies, it would seem, only to cases of adverse possession or otherwise taken in possession of a right of way and has no application where there is merely an executory contract. The decisions seem to hold that the section does not apply unless the company has operating the road. See May v. Atlantic, etc., R. Co., 151 N. C. 388, 66 S. E. 310.

Before this section can apply the company must have secured or acquired the right of way either by condemnation or otherwise and an executory contract to convey is not sufficient to meet the requirement. Even if an instrument is drawn for the purpose of making the conveyance, the same is not an executory instrument or it will be deemed insufficient for the purpose of bringing it within the purview of this section. Beattie v. Carolina R. Co., 108 N. C. 425, 12 S. E. 913.

Effect of Section. — Under this section the possession by the owners of the land of the right of way might be used by the owner it has a right of entry whenever it needs the property for its use. Railroad v. Sturgeon, 120 N. C. 225, 56 S. E. 779; Railroad v. Olive, 142 N. C. 257, 55 S. E. 363; Carolina Central R. Co. v. McCaskill, 94 N. C. 746, 753; Earnhardt v. Sou. R. Co., 157 N. C. 358, 72 S. E. 1023.

---

Effect upon Power of State, etc., to Change Grade.—This section does not prevent the State from changing the grade of a railroad company to change the grade of its roadbed where it is crossed by streets, so that public travel and drainage may not be impeded. Atlantic, etc., R. Co. v. Williams, 138 N. C. 353, 48 S. E. 514, aff’d 232 U. S. 546, 34 S. Ct. 364, 58 L. Ed. 721.

Section Not Applicable.—An incorporated city or town which obtains the necessary right of a railroad company by long and continuous, open, and adverse use thereof for such purpose, and where the city has used the land for a long period of time there is a presumption of an original condemnation by the city, and this section has no application as to the rights of municipalities to acquire the land. In the Matter of Assessment Against Property of Southern Ry. Co., 196 N. C. 756, 177 S. E. 221.

§ 1-45. No title by possession of public ways.—No person or corporation shall ever acquire any exclusive right to any part of a public road, street, lane, alley, square or public way of any kind by reason of any occupancy thereof or by encroaching upon or obstructing the same in any way, and in all actions, whether civil or criminal, against any person or corporation on account of an encroachment upon or obstruction or occupancy of any public way it shall not be competent for a court to hold that such action is barred by any statute of limitations. (Rev., s. 389; 1891, c. 224; C. S. 433.)

Prior Law.—Prior to the enactment of this section title to lands by adverse possession could be acquired against the corporation or company, by reason of any occupancy of such lands by the railroad company, or other agent of the State; and where before the enactment of this statute sufficient possession of the character required had ripened the title to a part of a street of a city under what are now sections 1-30, 1-35, as construed by the decisions of our Supreme Court, the municipality may not reassert the loss ownership except under the power of eminent domain vested in it by the law and for the public use. Threadgill v. Wadesboro, 170 N. C. 641, 67 S. E. 521.

For cases decided prior to section, see Turner v. Com., 127 N. C. 153, 37 S. E. 191; Moore v. Carson, 104 N. C. 422, 10 S. E. 689; State v. Long, 94 N. C. 896; Crump v. Mims, 64 N. C. 767.

Same—Effect of Section upon Title Acquired.—Where an owner has acquired title by adverse possession to a part of a street under the Code of 1868 and the construction placed thereon by the decisions of the Supreme Court, the reversal of the principle thereunder by this Court cannot disturb the title theretofore acquired. Threadgill v. Wadesboro, 170 N. C. 641, 87 S. E. 521.

Application of Section.—Possession of the street by any one claiming it adversely cannot divest or destroy the right of any public use thereon. The same would also hold where a town entered into the possession of a square by adverse possession under a deed purporting to convey a part thereof. Gates County v. Hill, 158 N. C. 584, 73 S. E. 847.

A right to maintain a building on a navigable stream which obstructs the operation of a draw in a county bridge cannot be acquired by adverse use by virtue of this section. Law v. County of Crabbe, 119 N. C. 537, 74 S. E. 104.

Same—Curing Erroneous Charge. — An erroneous charge that the title to an open square, dedicated to and accepted by a town, would be acquired by seven years adverse possession, contrary to the provisions of this section, may be cured alone by a full and complete charge on the principles of an offer to dedicate and an acceptance of the square by the town. Atlantic, etc., R. Co. v. Dunn, 183 N. C. 427, 111 S. E. 754.

Applies Only to Streets Acquired by Municipality.—The principle of law of this section applies only to such streets or roads belonging to a municipality or corporation, which may be dedicated by a private citizen for use as streets when such offer of dedication has not been accepted by the municipality before the offer has been unequivocally withdrawn. Gray v. Laboy, 193 N. C. 237, 137 S. E. 106.

tion 146-91 providing that no statute of limitation shall effect the title or bar the action of one claiming it under an assignment from the State Board of Education, etc., with some exceptions. It is held, that the limitations as to color for twenty-one years, and without for thirty years, do not apply to personal actions after the State has parted with her title to the lands; and the thirty years statute to recover damages for trespass in cutting and removing trees from the land applies under the facts in this case. Tillery v. Whiteville Lumber Co., 172 N. C. 296, 90 S. E. 389.

Possession Prior to Enactment—When sufficient adverse possession of a street of an unincorporated town by the present owners and those claiming under them has been in existence for five years prior to the passage of this section the right of the town to the use of the street is barred by the statute of limitations. Tadlock v. Mizell; (195) N. C. 472, 132 S. E. 739.

Property Conveyed to Trustees for Municipal Purposes—Where property was conveyed to trustees for the benefit of members of the community for use as a community house or playground, this section does not apply. Carswell v. Creswell, 217 N. C. 40, 7 S. E. (2d) 58.

Art. 5. Limitations, Other than Real Property.

§ 1-46. Periods prescribed.—The periods prescribed for the commencement of actions, other than for the recovery of real property, are as set forth in this article. (Rev., s. 390; Code, s. 151; C. C. P., s. 20; C. S. 436.)

Statute Affects Remedy Only.—The statute of limitations relates only to remedy, and the defendant is never absolved from the liability which is created until the plaintiff resorts to his remedy, either by action on the judgment, or motion in the nature of scire facias to revive it. Berry v. Conpensing.

Defenses Against Former Statute.—Since the prior law was not an absolute bar to actions, but merely raised a presumption of payment which might be rebutted, the question of the real presence of debt or other such questions were material in rebutting the presumption raised, but under the present law are immaterial for such purposes since the present statutes totally bar the action. See Campbell v. Brown, 86 N. C. 376, 382.

Actions for Which No Statutes.—There is no statute of limitations applicable to an action brought by citizens to test the validity of an election held relative to subscribing stock to a railroad company, but such action must be brought within a reasonable time. Jones v. Commissioners, 107 N. C. 248, 12 S. E. 69. Nor is there any statute applicable to the probate of wills. In re Dupree’s Will, 163 N. C. 539, 182 S. E. 411.

Application of Statutes to Trust Relations.—Where a partner receives firm money in winding up the affairs of the partnership, he holds such money in trust for the other partners and the statutes do not run. McNair v. Ragland, 7 N. C. 139, 145.

Suspension of Statutes.—The statute of limitation does not run when there is no one in esse capable of suing. Grant v. Hughes, 94 N. C. 231.

Effect of Change of Period by Amendment.—A reasonable time for the commencement of an action before the statute changing the period works a bar, Nichols v. R. R., 120 N. C. 495, 26 S. E. 643, shall be the balance of the time unexpired according to the law as it stood when the amending act was provided it shall never exceed the time allowed by the new statute. For example, if the action would have been barred in six years, and four years had elapsed before the amending Act was passed, the plaintiff’s right of action would be for twenty years from his title to the land, count from the time of the passing of the act, and to all other periods of limitation on actions. Culbreth v. Downing, 121 N. C. 205, 206, 28 S. E. 294.

§ 1-47. Ten years.—Within ten years an action—

1. Upon a judgment or decree of any court of the United States, or of any state or territory thereof, from the date of its rendition. No such action may be brought more than once, or have the effect to continue the lien of the original judgment.

2. Upon a sealed instrument against the principal thereto.

3. For the foreclosure of a mortgage, or deed in trust for creditors with a power of sale, of real property, where the mortgagee or grantor has been in possession of the property, within ten years after the forfeiture of the mortgage, or after the power of sale became absolute, or within ten years after the last payment on the same.

4. For the redemption of a mortgage, where the mortgagee has been in possession, or for a residuary interest under a deed in trust for creditors, where the trustee or those holding under him has been in possession, within ten years after the right of action accrued.

5. For the allotment of dower upon lands not in the actual possession of the widow following the death of her husband. (Rev., s. 391; Code, s. 152; C. C. P., ss. 14, 31; 1937, c. 368; C. S. 437.)

Editor’s Note.—The 1937 amendment added subsection 5 to this section.

For a discussion of the effect of the amendment, see 15 N. C. Law Rev. 330, 331.

See 11 N. C. Law Rev. 220.

Law Prior to Section.—It was said of the statute of prescription immediately preceding this section that, “It’s obvious policy, as said in Inglish v. Smith, 41 N. C. 90, to insist peremptorily on diligence in all cases to which it has any application, and it is one which the courts must fairly carry out. So emphatic is it a statute of repose, that no saving is made in it of the rights of infants, females in marriage, or persons non compos.” Hamlin v. Mebane, 54 N. C. 18; Hodges v. Council, 88 N. C. 181; Headen v. Womack, 88 N. C. 468, 470.

The presumption was not conclusive; it might have been rebutted by any pertinent proof, and such proof was presumed by the appellate court where there was no complaint of the finding of fact by the Court. In re Walker, 107 N. C. 340, 343, 12 S. E. 136.

Though not strictly a statute of limitations, the section was re-denominated in a general sense, and hence it was made part of the chapter denominated in the Revival Code “Limitations.” And although it did not create an absolute bar, it did, in a sense, create a conditional bar. Rogers v. Connolly, 72 N. C. 359.

Same.—Effect of Present Section.—This section has taken the place of the former statute of limitations, R. C., ch. 65, sec. 18 in respect to judgments. Brown v. Harding, 171 N. C. 686, 689, 89 S. E. 222.

Application Limited to Actions or Suits—Power of Sale.—The statute was intended to apply only to actions or suits, and this is apparent from the very language of the law. In a case where it became necessary to decide whether a sale under a power of sale was a suit or an action within the meaning of a statute it was held that a proceeding to foreclose a mortgage by advertisement is not a suit. Such a proceeding is merely an action of the mortgagee exercising the power given him by the mortgagor. In no sense is it a suit in any court, and all the definitions of that word require it to be a proceeding in some court. Core v. Hyatt, 132 N. C. 620, 44 S. E. 678; Miller v. Core, 133 N. C. 578, 582, 45 S. E. 240.

The legislature has prescribed ten years as the limitation to an action upon a judgment, but it has made no provision for a party to an action or suit to bring under the limitation any action or proceeding in the nature of an action taken against him. Berry v. Conpensing, 90 N. C. 395, 398.

Same.—Leave to Issue Execution.—A proceeding for leave to issue execution in a judgment charging lands with ownership in partition is an "action" within the meaning of the statute of limitations. Ex parte Smith, 134 N. C. 495, 47 S. E. 15.

Sufficiency of Plea of Section.—An answer alleging "that the plaintiff has not brought his action within the time prescribed by law, and that the cause is barred by the statute of limitations," is sufficient to meet the statute of limitations. Pemberton v. Simmons, 100 N. C. 316, 6 S. E. 122.

Duty to Consider Unsatisfactory Plea.—Although the plea of this section was indefinite and unsatisfactory, it was the duty of the court below to have considered and determined whether the limitations, as alleged by the defendant, was a sufficient plea of the statute of limitations. McDonald v. Dickson, 87 N. C. 401. See dissenting opinion.

Effect of Making or Adding Parties.—Where this section applies, its provisions are not affected by the fact that the original action was brought in the Supreme Court, had not been made before a succeeding term of the superior court, and the judge had thereupon ordered a discontinuance of the action, from which there was no appeal. Geitner v. Proctor, 105 N. C. 222, 10 S. E. 1035.

Duty of the court below to have considered and determined whether the plea of the statute of limitations made does not remove the statutory bar. McDonald v. Dickson, 87 N. C. 401. See dissenting opinion.

dierogation of common right as is the statute of limitations, Section 326, was subject to the statute of presumptions, which corresponded to this section, because this section is not retroactive. Herman v. Watts, 107 N. C. 344, 646, 12 S. E. 437. If there are valid subsisting judgments for the unpaid mortgage debt and the vendor does not deny the liability, the assignee of a joint vendor cannot insist upon the statute of presumption of payment of lapsed time as that which terminates the lien of the judgment, and operates as a bar to a new action upon it. McDonald v. Dickson, 87 N. C. 401. See dissenting opinion.

Prior to this statute there was no limitation absolutely barring the cause of action upon a judgment, but the statutes merely raised a presumption of payment which might be rebutted by competent evidence.

The period of time necessary to lapse before the presumption arose varied with the various statutes. At common law the period required was a great lapse of time, next the period was fixed by statute at 20 years, and then by the act of 1855 was changed to ten years. This remained the law until the C. C. P. of 1868 which changed the presumption to an absolute statute period fixed at ten years. See McDonald v. Dickson, 87 N. C. 404, 412.

Statute Strictly Construed.—A statute so entirely in derogation of common right as is the statute of limitations, should not be considered. There is no analogy which makes the decisions in Sikes v. Parker, 95 N. C. 232; Usry v. Suit, 91 N. C. 406, 416; Wilcoxon v. Logan, 91 N. C. 449; Soles (ad) sac

The transcript of a justice's judgment docketed in the superior court becomes, for the purpose of lien and execution, a judgment of the superior court. Broyles v. Brittain v. Dickson, 104 N. C. 542, 97 S. E. 494.

There is therefore no analogy which makes the decisions in Sikes v. Parker, 95 N. C. 232; Usry v. Suit, 91 N. C. 406, 416; Wilcoxon v. Logan, 91 N. C. 449; Soles (ad) sac

The mere transfer of the debtor's title. But it has been held that "the lien upon lands of a docketed judgment is lost by the lapse of ten years from the date of the docketing," and "the penalty of the statute of limitations is lost if the judgment is rendered in a justice's court, and is not completed before the expiration of ten years." Osborne v. Board of Education, 207 N. C. 503, 504, 177 S. E. 642, citing Hyman v. Jones, 205 N. C. 266, 171 S. E. 103.

Application to Foreign Judgments. — This section applies to foreign judgments. Arrington v. Arrington, 127 N. C. 190, 41 S. E. 121, 177 S. E. 245.

When Statute Begins to Run — Judgment for Costs. — A judgment for costs is considered part of the first judgment where the costs were first levied against the plaintiff but were later adjudged against the defendant, and there is no bar except from the lapse of ten years under this section. Owen v. Paxton, 122 N. C. 770, 772, 30 S. E. 343.

Same.—At Time of Judgment or Confirmation of Sale. — Where an action is instituted to recover the amount due on a mortgage from the proceeds of a sale of real estate, in which judgment is rendered on the debt, an order being made for the sale of the land, which sale was later reported and confirmed, the statute of limitations began to run at the date of the money judgment and not from the date of the confirmation of the sale. McCaskill v. McKinnon, 121 N. C. 192, 29 S. E. 265.

Same.—Judgment for a Devastavit against Executor. — When an action is brought against an executor or administrator for a devastavit, and a judgment is obtained against him, the cause of action accrues as against his real and personal representative, when such representative qualifies and gives bond. Syms v. Brittain, 248 N. C. 61.

Same.—Alimony Payable Annually. — In an action on a judgment for alimony, payable annually, the annual sums are barred within ten years from the time they became due under this section. Arrington v. Arrington, 127 N. C. 190, 37 S. E. 212. See dissenting opinion.

Stopping the Statute. — Where judgment was taken in 1926, and in 1931 defendant moved before the clerk to set the judgment aside, motion denied and appeal taken to the judge, and the clerk ordered that execution should not issue until the adjournment of the August, 1931, term of court, and the appeal to the judge was never heard, the judgment was not barred under this section. The judge did not have the effect of stopping the statute and the judgment was barred in 1939 by the ten years statute of limitations. Exum v. Carolina R. Co., 222 N. C. 222, 22 S. E. (2d) 424.

Comp. Code Section 326—Effect of Judgment upon Continuing Tort. — A cause of action on contract or tort loses its identity when merged in a judgment; and thereafter a new cause of action arises out of the judgment. McDonald v. Dickson, 87 N. C. 404.

A judgment for a devastavit is barred by the ten years statute of limitation unless the claim was admitted by the administrator, or action was brought upon it, in re Morgan, 161 N. C. 257, 64 S. E. 613.

Same—Specialties Reduced to Judgments. — Specialties, when reduced to judgments, are merged, and the statute bar-Effect of Issuing Executions During i’eriod.—The statute of limitations may be set up as a defense by an administrator or assignee for leave to issue execution, from the date of docketing a judgment against his intestate, and although executions have regularly been issued within the prescribed period of three years after the judgment was docketed, Berton v. Commercial Bank, 81 N. C. 976.

The words "any state" must be taken to mean the judgment of a court of any state including our own. But it would make a difference if it was not construed to include this state, since, by section 1-56, every action for relief not specially provided for must be commenced within the same period of ten years after the cause of action shall have accrued. McDonald v. Dickson, 85 N. C. 248.

Effect of Payment on Judgment.—A payment on a judgment does not arrest the running of the statute of limitations. McCaskill v. McKinnon, 121 N. C. 192, 28 S. E. 389.

A partial payment on a judgment does not arrest the run-

Comparison of Effect of Application of Section 1-56 with This Section.—It can make no difference whether subsection 1 of this section or section 1-56 applies. The result will be the same in either case. Ex parte Smith, 134 N. C. 495, 502, 47 S. E. 16.

Application to Issuance of Execution. — The issuing of an execution on a decree charging ownership in partition is barred within ten years. Ex parte Smith, 134 N. C. 495, 47 S. E. 16.

The statute of limitations is a proper plea and a complainant has no right to issue an execution for relief to arrest a judgment, when such motion is made more than ten years after the rendition of such judgment. McDonald v. Dickson, 85 N. C. 248.

III. SUBS. (2) SEALLED INSTRUMENTS.

Section Operated upon Remedy.—This section limits the time within which an action might be brought and thus operates upon the remedy and not the right. The bar of the statute on a sealed promissory note is of that character, and while it takes away the forum for the enforcement of the debt, it does not destroy the debt. Denzal v. Tart, 227 N. C. 106, 109, 19 S. E. (2d) 130.

When Statute Begins to Run.—Breach of Warranty. —In an action for breach of a covenant of warranty the statute of limitations begins to run when there is an ouster of the grantee. Shankle v. Ingram, 133 N. C. 254, 45 S. E. 573.

Same—Breach of Covenant of Seizin. — In an action for damages for breach of covenant of seizin the statute of limitation begins to run upon delivery of the deed. Shankle v. Ingram, 133 N. C. 254, 45 S. E. 573.

Same—Coupons of Bonds. — The statute of limitations begins to run upon the discharge of the bonds, not of the coupons. Threadgill v. Commissioners, 116 N. C. 616, 617, 21 S. E. 425.

Same—Guaranty under Seal. — An action upon a guaranty, such as a surety, is barred within ten years of the cause of action accrues. Coleman v. Fuller, 105 N. C. 325, 11 S. E. 175.

Application to Suresties. — This subsection is not applicable to actions against sureties. The use of the word "principal" and the omission of the word "sureties" clearly indicates this to be the intention of the legislature. Section 1-52, subs. (1) is applicable to sureties and the action against them is limited to three years. Welfare v. Thompson, 83 N. C. 279; Redmond v. Pippen, 113 N. C. 92, 18 S. E. 50; Barnes v. Crawford, 201 N. C. 434, 437, 180 S. E. 464; North Carolina Bank v. Co., 207 N. C. 244, 180 S. E. 81; North Carolina Bank, etc., Co. v. Will-liams, 209 N. C. 806, 185 S. E. 13.

Guaranty as Principal under Section. — Neither the specific or the letter of this section makes a guarantor principal to the original obligation. Coleman v. Fuller, 105 N. C. 328, 332, 11 S. E. 173. From dissenting opinion.

Character of Possession Necessary.—It is impossible to suppose that the legislature intended a constructive possession, for the "mortgagor or grantor" could never have such posses-

Where the note contained the word "seal" opposite the signature it was held to be conclusive as to the nature of the instrument. Therefore this section controls as to the time within which an action might be brought. Federal Reserve Bank v. Kolm, 61 F. (2d) 1002.

Application to Bonds.—Former Law. — The correponding section of the former law was construed to embrace single bonds, though they were not named in terms. Rogers v. Clements, 95 N. C. 180, 184, 3 S. E. 512.

The presumption of payment arises after ten years from the time the right of action accrues, and the provisions of section 1-56 do not apply. Hall v. Gibbs, 87 N. C. 248.

Same—Section Not Retroactive. — A bond for the payment of money executed prior to this section, by the principal and his sureties is exempted from the operation of the statute of limitations contained in this section. Knight v. Braswell, 70 N. C. 709.

Conditions Regulating Statute—Set-off. — A set-off in favor of the obligor is not a part payment as to an endorser and does not repel the statute. Woodhouse v. Simmons, 73 N. C. 30.

Power of Sale in Deed of Trust.—See generally, Merrimon, Jr., Postal Co. v. Cable Co., 267 N. C. 149, 148 S. E. 250.

Whether Nets under Seal as a Question of Law or Fact.—
While ordinarily the bar of the statute of limitations is a mixed question of law and fact, where, in an action on a bond, the plaintiff is asserting the defendant's contention that the note was not under seal, but defendant offers no evidence in support of his contention that he did not adopt the printed word "seal" appearing on the note as his name, the question is one of fact, and comes a matter of law, and the court properly refuses to submit an issue as to whether the action was barred. Currin v. Currin, 219 N. C. 815, 15 S. E. (2d) 279.

IV. SUBS. (5) MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE.

The prior law, corresponding to this section created a presumption that after ten years the mortgage was presumed to have been satisfied which might have been rebutted and did not operate to absolutely bar the right. North Carolina Bank v. Williams, 209 N. C. 806, 185 S. E. 18.

Only Limitation upon Right to Foreclose. — This section is the only limitation upon the mortgagee's right of action for foreclosure or sale. Parker v. Banks, 79 N. C. 480, 484.

Prerequisites to Bar. — In order to bar an action for relief under this section two things must concur, namely, the lapse of ten years after the forfeiture or after the power of sale became absolute or after the last payment, and the Necessity for Possession. — The mere lapse of time, unaccompanied by any possession, does not obstruct the right to

The statutory presumption of abandonment of an equitable claim to land, arising within ten years after the right of action accrues, is fatal to the plaintiffs upon the facts of this case. Howard v. Shuford, 209 N. C. 528; the Code, section 146; Williams v. Wallace, 207 N. C. 197, 151 S. E. 574.

Same — Remainderman before Lapse of Life Estate. — The actual possession of the life tenant does not inure to the remainderman. Thus, during the continuance of the life estate the latter cannot avail himself of that actual possession as against one who holds a mortgage on his interest for the purpose of barring his right under the mort-

Where a remainderman, not being in possession, executes a mortgage, the foreclosure of the mortgage is not barred by the lapse of ten years after the forfeiture. No payment, such action being brought within ten years from the time of the acquisition of the possession by the remain-

Character of Possession Necessary.—It is impossible to suppose that the legislature intended a constructive possession, for the "mortgagor or grantor" could never have such possession. In addition, it is a fundamental precept of law that ownership and possession must be united and if it is a constructive possession, the law would have required the mortgagor or possession by construction of law, as he has the legal title, and, if a constructive possession was intended, there was no use in requiring possession at all, as, if neither party was in actual possession of the premises, the mortgage running of the statute. If it was intended that section 1-56 should apply to an action to foreclose, it must be dis-regarded altogether before section 1-56 has any application. Such a construction of section 1-56, would run whether regarded altogether before section 1-56 has any applciation.

There are several cases decided under section 1-56 in which the principle of section 1-47, sub. 3 has been adopted by analogy, and in which it was held that a party who, in the construction of the statute, has been barred of any equity therein by lapse of time, and that the statute runs only where the other party has had possession. Thurnborn v. Mezine, 133 N. C. 601, 45 S. E. 385, 95 Am. St. 660 was explained in Woodlief v. West, 136 N. C. 162, 168, 48 S. E. 578.

When Holding Becomes Adverse. — When the mortgagee of property is left in possession, he or his vendee holds it for the mortgagee, and his possession does not become adverse until the mortgagee shall have been in possession for a period of ten years. Woody v. Jones, 113 N. C. 253, 18 S. E. 205.

Absence from State as Suspending Section. — An action to foreclose a mortgage comes within the purview of section 1-55, where the possession of the mortgagor from the state suspends the running of the statute. Love v. West, 169 N. C. 13, 14, 84 S. E. 1048.

Effect upon Debt Secured. — The provisions of this paragraph only bar an action to foreclose the mortgage, and do not prevent the mortgagee securing his rights in the property in any other way. Fraser v. Bean, 96 N. C. 327, 2 S. E. 159.

Effect of Bar of Debt upon Foreclosure. — The fact that a note is barred by the three-year statute, section 1-52, of the period allowed for the enforcement of the note, does not prevent the mortgagee from foreclosing his mortgage securing the note, although the debt was due more than 10 years ago, interest has been paid on the debt within 10 years. Dixie Gro. Co. v. Hoyle, 204 N. C. 109, 167 S. E. 572.

Section Not Applicable to Power of Sale — The execution of a power of sale in a mortgage is not barred by the statute of limitations referring to actions to foreclose mortgages. Miller v. Coxe, 133 N. C. 587, 45 S. E. 940. In other words, this subsection of section 1-56 is not applicable to a sale under a power of sale, see 45-26. This section applies to actions for foreclosure of a mortgage or deed of trust and not to foreclosure under a power of sale, see 45-26. It is necessary for the defendant to bring the action for foreclosure that relation continued to exist after the day of forfeiture and under this subsection ten years possession of the defendant, after default, bars the plaintiff. Humphry v. Stephens, 191 N. C. 101, 131 S. E. 385.

When a party to an action involving the title to lands in dispute contends that a certain mortgage necessary in the paper title of the adverse party, is barred by this subsection, the plaintiff is entitled to have the adverse party's title examined and also to adduce evidence to show that the mortgage was barred before the sale. This is a necessary part of the plaintiff's case. Humphry v. Stephens, 191 N. C. 101, 131 S. E. 385.

Applicability to Consent Judgment Allowing the Equity. — Consent judgment providing that the defendant has an equity to redeem the land in controversy, on or before a certain day, and if this payment is made on or before that day the plaintiff will convey said land to the defendant, but in case of failure to pay within the time limited, the defendant shall stand absolutely barred and foreclosed of and from any and all equity or other estate, established the relation of mortgagor and mortgagee, the defendant overcame the decisions. Humphry v. Stephens, 191 N. C. 101, 104, 131 S. E. 385.

Power of Grantee to Plead. — The grantees of a mortgage are entitled to plead in a foreclosure action, the statute of limitations. Stancill v. Spain, 133 N. C. 76, 45 S. E. 466.

Cancellation of Barred First Mortgage by Second Mort- gage. — Where a surety executes a mortgage on his own land, an action to foreclose the same is not barred until the expiration of ten years. Miller v. Coxe, 133 N. C. 573, 45 S. E. 940.

Cancellation Applicable to Mortgage of Surety. — Where a surety executes a mortgage on his own land, an action to foreclose the same is not barred until the expiration of ten years. Miller v. Coxe, 133 N. C. 573, 45 S. E. 940.

Power of Grantee to Plead. — The grantees of a mortgage are entitled to plead in a foreclosure action, the statute of limitations. Stancill v. Spain, 133 N. C. 76, 45 S. E. 466.

When a party to an action involving the title to lands in dispute contends that a certain mortgage necessary in the paper title of the adverse party, is barred by this subsection, the plaintiff is entitled to have the adverse party's title examined and also to adduce evidence to show that the mortgage was barred before the sale. This is a necessary part of the plaintiff's case. Humphry v. Stephens, 191 N. C. 101, 131 S. E. 385.

When a party to an action involving the title to lands in dispute contends that a certain mortgage necessary in the paper title of the adverse party, is barred by this subsection, the plaintiff is entitled to have the adverse party's title examined and also to adduce evidence to show that the mortgage was barred before the sale. This is a necessary part of the plaintiff's case. Humphry v. Stephens, 191 N. C. 101, 131 S. E. 385.

Necessity of Pleading Section — Waiving Objection. — When a party to an action involving the title to lands in dispute contends that a certain mortgage necessary in the paper title of the adverse party, is barred by this subsection, the plaintiff is entitled to have the adverse party's title examined and also to adduce evidence to show that the mortgage was barred before the sale. This is a necessary part of the plaintiff's case. Humphry v. Stephens, 191 N. C. 101, 131 S. E. 385.

of limitations anew against the right of action to foreclose a mortgage or deed of trust, is any payment on the debt secured by the instrument, and the action to foreclose is not barred within ten years from such payment notwithstanding that the part payment is applied to only one of the notes secured, resulting in the bar of the statute of limitations anew against the right of action to foreclose as to an action on the other note. Demar v. Tarr, 221 N. C. 106, 19 S. E. (2d) 130.

Where a mortgagee in possession has a full defense to an action for ejectment brought by a purchaser after sale under a mortgage barred by the statute of limitations, the court will not interfere by injunction to prevent a sale threatened by the mortgagee. It would be otherwise if there were a contest as to the amount due under the mortgage. Huttuff v. Adrian, 112 N. C. 239, 17 S. E. 78.

Sale While Suit to Foreclose Pending.—Suit to foreclose a duly registered deed of trust was instituted prior to the bar of this section against the trustee, the cestuis and the assigns of the cestuis. While the suit was pending, the assignees of the cestuis sold the property, and upon discovering the transfer, plaintiff had the purchasers made parties defendant. The suit was brought within the period prescribed by statute had expired. It was held that the purchasers during the pendency of the foreclosure suit were chargeable with notice thereof and acquired only that close is not barred within ten years from such payment. The action to foreclose was barred after the lapse of ten years, from the date on which his cause of action accrued, where the mortgagee has been in the actual possession of the land conveyed by the mortgage. McNair v. Boyd, 163 N. C. 748, 79 S. E. 966; Cauley v. Sutton, 150 N. C. 327, 330, 64 S. E. 3; Simmons v. Ballard, 102 N. C. 105, 9 S. E. 495; and the dissenting opinion.

Possession presumed by virtue of section 1-42 is not sufficient to meet the requirements of this section, par. 4, for a sale under a mortgage barred by the statute of limitations. Where there was no actual possession the constructive possession in the lifetime of the mortgagor, and where such possession ceased to present their claims, where no personal service of such notice in writing is made upon the mortgagor's right to sue for redemption. Frederick v. Williams, 103 N. C. 189, 9 S. E. 298.

Nor did the prior statute contain a saving clause in favor of persons under disabilities. Houck v. Adams, 98 N. C. 519, 4 S. E. 502.

Applicability Where Action Not for Redemption. — The question as to whether the bar of this statute applies to repossess the mortgage and under a mortgage, the right of redemption is barred. Gray v. Williams, 130 N. C. 53, 40 S. E. 843.

Where the mortgagee has actual possession, either when the cause of action as to the mortgagee accrues or where it thereupon goes into and remains continuously in such possession for more than ten years, before an action to redeem is commenced, the statute of limitations, where pleaded and relied upon in the answer, is a complete defense. Bernhardt v. Hagamon, 144 N. C. 526, 57 S. E. 222; Crews v. Crews, 122 N. C. 679, 683, 3 S. E. 773.

Crews v. Talbert, 85 N. C. 479, 480, is a case illustrating the application of the prior statute.

No action shall be maintained on any promissory note, bond, evidence of indebtedness or debt secured by a mortgage or deed of trust on real estate after the foreclosure of the mortgage or deed of trust securing the same, except within one year from the date of sale under such foreclosure; but this section shall not extend the time of limitation on any such action. (1933, c. 529, s. 1.)

This section protects all substantial rights of the parties and its application held not to impair plaintiff's contractual rights. Orange County Building, etc., Ass'n v. Jones, 214 N. C. 30, 197 S. E. 618.

An action for a deficiency judgment after foreclosure is not barred by the statute of limitations on the ground that the property was sold for more than thirty years since the execution of the mortgage, the right of redemption is barred. Bray v. Middlebrooks, 114 N. C. 526, 18 S. E. 773; Bright v. Talbert, 214 N. C. 400, 197 S. E. 618.

§ 1-49. Seven years.—Within seven years an action—

1. On a judgment rendered by a justice of the peace, from its date.

2. By a creditor of a deceased person against his personal or real representative, within seven years next after the qualification of the executor or administrator and his making the advertisement required by law for creditors of the deceased to present their claims, where no personal service of such notice in writing is made upon the creditor. A creditor thus barred of a recovery against the representative of any principal debtor is also barred of a recovery against any surety to the debt. (Rev., s. 392; Code, s. 153; C. C. P., s. 32; C. S. 458.)

1. SUBSECTION ONE.

This section is not retroactive. Morris v. Syme, 88 N. C. 453, 455.

Where Statute Begins to Run.—Where a judgment was rendered by a justice of the peace and upon a rehearing granted by him a similar judgment was rendered, the statute of limitations began to run from the date of the latter, the first judgment having been vacated. Salmon v. McLean, 116 N. C. 209, 21 S. E. 178.

Judgment Docketed in Superior Court.—A judgment of a justice of the peace, duly docketed in the superior court, becomes a judgment in the superior court in every respect, and may be enforced by execution at any time within ten years from the date of such docketing under section 1-47. McIlhenny v. Wilmington Sav., etc., Co., 108 N. C. 311, 12 S. E. 100.

Where the judgment debtor made a motion, within ten years from docketing judgment, for leave to issue execution thereon, which was denied and thereupon within one year after such denial, but more than ten years from the date of docketing, he brought an action on the judgment, it was held, that the action was barred by the statute of limitations, see § 28-7 not being applicable to the facts. McIlhenny v. Wilmington Sav., etc., Co., 108 N. C. 275, 11 S. E. 553.

When Construed with Section 1-52.—Where this section standing alone would extend the time "by any creditor of a deceased person against his personal or real representative within seven years," etc., we must take it in connection with section 1-52, which provides that where the advertisement upon a contract, obligation or liability arising out of a contract express or implied, except those mentioned in the Act of 1715, which were within seven years from the date of such docketing under seal, section 1-47, par. 2, Joyner v. Massey, 97 N. C. 148, 1 S. E. 702, and with section 1-22, Redmond v. Pippin, 111 N. C. 91, 22 S. E. 58.

2. SUBSECTION TWO.

Prior Law.—Under the provisions of the Act of 1715, if the debt was due at the death of the testator, the personal representative, having within seven years from the death, otherwise both the heir and the executor would have been discharged, and if the action arose after the death, the action must have been brought within seven years after the cause of action arose, or the act would have been a bar, provided the personal representative has paid over the assets. Syme v. Badger, 96 N. C. 197, 2 S. E. 61. It was held that creditors should make their claim within seven years after the death of their debtor, or be forever barred; and according to every interpretation which has been put upon its terms, it would seem to indicate that creditors should make their claim within seven years after the death of the debtor, upon which suit was thereafter delayed for seven years, provided it appeared that in the meantime the estate had been fully administered and that nothing remained in the hands of the administrator, with which to satisfy the claim.

Purpose and Effect of Statute.—Our present limitations in favor of estates of deceased persons are unconnected with assets and are intended to stimulate the vigilance of creditors, and not to bar or to give the representative of the estate, the personal representative, the right to enforce specific performance or some lien or trust not covered by other provisions of the Code. Smith v. Brown, 101 N. C. 347, 7 S. E. 880. This is the only way to avoid the absurdity of barring a cause of action before it arises. When the creditor, seeking merely to collect his debt, is not barred as against the personal representative, he cannot be barred as against the land which that representative is to subject to execution. This section does not create a bar; it must be coupled with the advertisement, or personal notice, and when these have been made, the statute will begin to run from the date of the qualification of the executor or administrator. Love v. Lister, 222 N. C. 555, 24 S. E. 210.

When Statute Begins to Run.—It was not intended by this statute that the seven years should begin to run from the time of "making the advertisement." If that was the intention of the legislature, they would not in the same connection have employed the words "next after the qualification of the executor or administrator," as that is an event which must precede the advertisement, and which under the provisions of the law may do so by the space of twenty days. To give the act that construction there would be two events before which the time is to be computed. Cox v. Cox, 84 N. C. 138, 141.

In suits against an administrator, or personal representative of deceased persons, the time of the advertisement, or personal notice, and when these have been made, the statute will begin to run from the date of the qualification of the executor or administrator. Love v. Lister, 222 N. C. 555, 24 S. E. 210.

Statute as Absolute Bar.—After the time prescribed in this section, the statute is an absolute bar to creditors. Lawrence v. Norfleet, 90 N. C. 533; Worthing v. McIntosh, 90 N. C. 536; Worthing v. Brown, 102 N. C. 334, 449, 9 S. E. 294. From dissenting opinion.

Evidence of Laches.—In Strayhorn v. Aycock, 215 N. C. 43, 200 S. E. 912, plaintiff claimed proceeds of an insurance policy payable to estate of testator and contended policy was taken out by him to secure him for funds advanced testator. This action was not instituted until some fourteen years after testator's death. It was held that the rights of creditors having intervened, the record disclosed conduct on the part of the plaintiff barring the action for laches.

When Construed with Section 1-56.—Where this section standing alone would extend the time "by any creditor of a deceased person against his personal or real representative within seven years," etc., we must take it in connection with section 1-56, which provides that "suits against an administrator must be brought by creditors of the decedent within seven years next after the right of action vests in the plaintiff under his appointment. Lawrence v. Norfleet, 90 N. C. 533.

Prerequisite to Running.—The mere lapse of time—seven years—does not negative the prerequisite of advertisement, or personal notice, and when these have been made, the statute will begin to run from the date of the qualification of the executor or administrator. Love v. Lister, 222 N. C. 555, 24 S. E. 210.

This section is construed in Cox v. Cox, 84 N. C. 138, 141. Suits against an administrator must be brought by creditors of the decedent within seven years next after the right of action vests in the plaintiff under his appointment.

This statute is construed in Cox v. Cox, 84 N. C. 138, and it is held that while the advertisement is an indispensable prerequisite to the operation of the statute, the time must be computed from the qualification of the representative. Lawrence v. Norfleet, 90 N. C. 533, 535.

Effect of Failure to Present Claim.—The failure to present claims to the personal representative is an absolute bar (except against those laboring under disabilities) without any qualification as to the advertisement, this statute does not protect an administrator unless he has paid over the assets and is in actual possession of the remedy as advertised in conformity to the act. Compton v. Cherry, 53 N. C. 323; Cox v. Cox, 84 N. C. 138, 142.
Significance of Making Advertisement. — The words "and making the advertisement required," etc., were used simply to qualify the provisions of the act, and the act should be construed as if it read "within seven years next after the occurrence of the event which justifies the action against the personal representatives," and the plea of the statute of limitations cannot avail him. Cox v. Cox, 84 N. C. 134, 142. An executor or administrator who pleads the statute of limitations under this subsection, etc., but by his own delay, the courts judgment is not obtained until after the lapse of seven years, the real representative is not protected by the statute of limitations before the qualification before suit is brought, and that he has advertised according to law. Without proof of the advertisement, the plea of the statute will not avail him. Cox v. Cox, 84 N. C. 134, 142.

Same — Necessity for Affirmative Plea. — To enable the personal representative of a deceased person to avail himself of the protection of this subsection, in his pleading, he must allege in his plea, and prove upon the trial, that he made the advertisement, or gave the personal notice to the creditors, as prescribed in the statute. Love v. Ingram, 104 N. C. 437, 10 S. E. 540.

Pendency of Suit as Suspension. — If an action is brought by a creditor against the personal representative of his deceased debtor within seven years, etc., but by delays in the courts judgment is not obtained until after seven years, the real representative is not protected by the statute of limitations if it is sought to subject the decedent to the payment of the debt when the debt has been paid, or is barred by the lapse of seven years. Lee v. McKoy, 118 N. C. 518, 24 S. E. 210.

So much of the ruling in Syme v. Badger, 96 N. C. 197, 2 S. E. 61, that the death of the surety and the lapse of a time longer than that prescribed in the statute before the qualification of a personal representative did not suspend the operation of the statute, if the wards could, during that time, have proceeded against the guardian, Williams v. McNair, 98 N. C. 332, 4 S. E. 131, 133.

Effect of No Assets in Hands of Representatives. — This statute would not be good and avail him, unless he should, in that case, aver and prove that he had paid such assets to the persons entitled to the same. Little v. Duncan, 89 N. C. 416.

Heirs as Parties. — In order to save circumlocution the heirs at law may be made parties to the proceedings against the personal representative. Lilly v. Wooley, 94 N. C. 412, which was cited with approval in Syme v. Badger, 96 N. C. 197, 2 S. E. 61, and which has been approved since in Brittain v. Dickson, 104 N. C. 547, 10 S. E. 701; Lee v. McKoy, 118 N. C. 518, 252, 24 S. E. 210.

§ 1-50. Six years. — Within six years an action—
1. Upon the official bond of a public officer.
2. Against an executor, administrator, collector, or guardian on his official bond, within six years after the auditing of his final account by the proper officer, or the filing of the audited account as required by law.
3. For injury to any incorporeal hereditament.
4. Against a corporation, or the holder of a certificate or duplicate certificate of stock in the corporation, on account of any dividend, either a cash or stock dividend, paid or allotted by the corporation to the holder of the certificate or duplicate certificate of stock in the corporation. (Rev., s. 393; Code, s. 154; C. C. P., s. 33; 1931, c. 169; C. S. 439.)

I. IN GENERAL.

Editor’s Note.—The Act of 1931 which added subsection 4 to this section became effective on March 23, 1931. Prior Law.—Formerly there was no statute limiting the time in which actions must be brought on bonds, except the provision in favor of the surety. Humble v. Melbane, 89 N. C. 410, 415. The present statute takes the place of section 5, chapter 65 of the Revised Code. It is manifestly intended to serve the same purpose, and must receive the same construction as to the time when the statute begins to operate. Baker v. Monroe, 15 N. C. 412; Coomer v. Little, 119]
Application to Bond of Defaulted Clerk. — This section is applicable to an action on the surety on the bond of the clerk, and the superior court. State v. Martin, 186 N. C. 127, 118 S. E. 914.

Application to Action for Tort against Clerk. — In an action against a Clerk of the Superior Court, the defendant failing to index a docketed judgment as required, this section does not apply. Shackelford v. Staton, 117 N. C. 73, 23 S. E. 101.

Application to Registers of Deeds. — The statutory limit for bringing actions on the official bond of the registers of deeds seems to be six years, under this section. Thus the statute commences to run from the time of the failure to register. State v. Fountain, 205 N. C. 217, 171 S. E. 445.

When Statute Begins to Run. — An action upon an official bond may be brought within six years after a breach thereof; the statute does not begin to run from the date, but only from the breach of the bond. Commissioners v. MacRae, 89 N. C. 97. The six-year statute begins to run from the time of the breach of the bond. Upon the termination of a sinking fund commissioner's term the law required him to account for such investment. Thacker v. Fidelity, etc., Co., 216 N. C. 110, 23 S. E. 294. See also, Bank of Spruce Pine v. McKinney, 209 N. C. 608, 184 S. E. 596.

When the official bond of a public officer by valid contract limitation continues for more than five years, on the expiration of the official's term of office, the surety on the bond is entitled to recover the loss sustained during such time from the principal as well as the surety. Andres v. Powell, 97 N. C. 155, 9 S. E. 294; unless the action is on the bond as administrator of the testator of the defendant, but it is brought to compel the latter losing his remedy under the condition set out in subsection 6, the statute is an absolute bar to the next of kin or heir. Andres v. Powell, 97 N. C. 155, 161, 2 S. E. 235. From dissenting opinion.

Application to Action for Balance Due. — No statute of limitations applies to the next of kin or heirs, in an action on the official bond for balance due. State v. Fountain, 205 N. C. 217, 171 S. E. 445.

Application to Action for Account. — Where the action is not brought upon the official bond as administrator of the testator of the defendant, but it is brought to compel an accounting and settlement of the estate of the intestate of the plaintiff in his hands in his lifetime, the defendant is a trustee of an express trust, and the Statute of Limitations does not apply. Woody v. Brooks, 102 N. C. 334, 339, 9 S. E. 294.

Application to Action for Share. — The statute does not run in favor of administrators against the suit of the next of kin for their distributive shares. Woody v. Brooks, 102 N. C. 334, 339, 9 S. E. 294; unless the action is on the bond to recover the amount of such share. Vaughan v. Hines, 89 N. C. 97.

When Applicable to Action for Balance Due. — No statute of limitations is a bar to an action to recover a balance admitted by a personal representative to be due legatees or devisees under his will or his administration. If the defendant has disposed of such balance in some way authorized by law, or unless three years have elapsed since a demand and refusal to pay such admitted balance. Woody v. Brooks, 102 N. C. 334, 339, 9 S. E. 294.

Persons against Whom Section Absolute Bar. — An action must be brought against an executor or administrator by a creditor, legatee or next of kin of the decedent, within six years or be barred by the statute. Woody v. Brooks, 102 N. C. 334, 339, 9 S. E. 294.

Extent of Surety's Protection. — This statute protects the surety as well as the principal. Andres v. Powell, 97 N. C. 155, 156, 160, 2 S. E. 235; Kennedy v. Cromwell, 118 N. C. 1, 13 S. E. 135; see dissenting opinion.

Failure of Guardian to Pay Balance Due. — An action against a guardian for a balance due the ward after a final account has been admitted is barred by the six-year statute of limitations where the guardian has not filed a final account, but is barred by the six-year statute of limitations where the guardian has not filed a final account, and the latter losing his remedy under the condition set out in this subsection. Woody v. Brooks, 102 N. C. 334, 339, 9 S. E. 294.

Significance of Final Account and Audit. — The final account is the initial point at which the statute begins to run, to actions upon the bond for a breach of its obligations, but leaves the representative, in his fiduciary capacity, exposed to the demand of the fiduciary or creditor, the latter losing his remedy under the condition set out in this subsection. Woody v. Brooks, 102 N. C. 334, 339, 9 S. E. 294.

Until a final account is filed and audited there can be no balance due; there may be no balance due by such final account, unless the executor or administrator can show that he has disposed of it in some way authorized by law, or unless there has been a demand and a refusal to pay such admitted balance, the action is barred in three years after such demand and refusal. Woody v. Brooks, 102 N. C. 334, 339, 9 S. E. 294.

After the final account the statute runs against the next of kin, and an action against the administrator upon his official bond after six years has the effect of discharging his final account. Andres v. Powell, 97 N. C. 155, 156, 160, 2 S. E. 235. See dissenting opinion.

The fact is unavailable under this section, unless there has been an account audited for the guardian, or unless there has been a lapse of three years from the breach of the bond.
II. SUBSECTION ONE—RIGHT OF WAY.

1. IN GENERAL.

Law Prior to Section. — Before this section a railroad could acquire the prescriptive right to pond water on adjacent lands, solely by subjecting itself to the indignity of continuous for twenty years. Harrell v. Norfolk, etc., R. R. Co., 122 N. C. 822, 29 S. E. 56; Nichols v. Norfolk, etc., R. R. Co., 120 N. C. 495, 26 S. E. 703.

FIVE YEARS.—Within five years—

1. No suit, action or proceeding shall be brought or maintained against a railroad company for damages caused by the construction of the road, or the repairs thereto, unless such suit, action or proceeding is commenced within five years after the lands have been entered upon for the purpose of constructing the road, or within two years after it is in operation.

2. No suit, action or proceeding shall be brought or maintained against a railroad company for damages caused by the construction of the road, or the repairs thereto, unless such suit, action or proceeding is commenced within five years after the cause of action accrues, and the jury shall assess the entire amount of damages which the party aggrieved is entitled to recover by reason of the trespass on his property. (Rev., s. 394; 1893, c. 152; 1895, c. 224; 1897, c. 339; C. S. 440.)

CH. 1. CIVIL PROCEDURE—LIMITATIONS

Same—Effect of Failure to Make Final Settlement. — See note from Self v. Shugart, cited below.

The same is filed and there is no demand and refusal; Quare, whether the action is as to the executor, administrator or guardian himself is barred in six years or ten years. Kennedy v. Cromwell, 103 N. C. 1, 13 S. E. 135. See dissenting opinion.

Same—As Applied to Suit by Minor. — An action by the ward against the sureties on the bond of the guardian is barred as to both the principal and sureties on said bond three years after the execution of the bond. Sec. 1-52, par. 6. Kennedy v. Cromwell, 108 N. C. 1, 13 S. E. 135. See dissenting opinion.

1. No suit, action or proceeding shall be brought or maintained against a railroad company owning or operating a railroad for damages or compensation for right of way or use and occupancy of any lands by the company for use of its railroad unless the action or proceeding is commenced within five years after the lands have been entered upon for the purpose of constructing the road, or within two years after it is in operation.

2. No suit, action or proceeding shall be brought or maintained against a railroad company for damages caused by the construction of the road, or the repairs thereto, unless such suit, action or proceeding is commenced within five years after the cause of action accrues, and the jury shall assess the entire amount of damages which the party aggrieved is entitled to recover by reason of the trespass on his property. defendant a right to commit a wrong. The sum recoverable is the damage done to the estate of the plaintiff by the appropriation to the easement of so much of his land, or such use of the easement, as may be necessary to the easement of so much of his land, or such use of the easement, as may be necessary to the easement. Beach v. Wilmington & Weldon R. Co., 120 N. C. 498, 502, 26 S. E. 703.

Allowance of Interest.—It is within the power of the lower court, to allow interest on the amount found since the actual use thereof as may be necessary to the easement. Beach v. Wilmington & Weldon R. Co., 120 N. C. 498, 502, 26 S. E. 703.

III. SUBSECTION 7—DAMAGES FOR CONSTRUCTION AND REPAIR.

Amendment of 1895. — The Act of 1893 chap. 152, was merely a statute of limitation. The Act of 1895, chap. 224, so far as the amendment to the Act of 1893, provides that all actions against railroad corporations for injuries from construction or repair of any railroad, shall be commenced within five years after the cause of action occurs; and that "the jury shall assess all the amount of damages which the party aggrieved is entitled to recover by reason of the trespass upon his property." Lassiter v. Norfolk, etc., R. R. Co., 126 N. C. 509, 512, 36 S. E. 48.

The provision in the Act of 1895 incidently providing for a statute of limitations, is other wise that the plaintiff can recover them in addition to the just compensation to which he is entitled for the value of the easement if it is conveyed to the defendant. It is true that, if entitled thereto, he can recover them in either case. Lassiter v. Norfolk, etc., R. R. Co., 126 N. C. 509, 513, 36 S. E. 48.

Right of the Plaintiff to Compensation for the Present Damage. —Where the railroad is damaging plaintiff, and does not wish to acquire the easement under this section, it may pay for the damage done and then abate the cause of the injury. Lassiter v. Norfolk, etc., R. R. Co., 126 N. C. 509, 514, 36 S. E. 48.

Suits to recover permanent damages. —In the case of Beasley v. Abezdeen, etc., Co., 147 N. C. 362, 61 S. E. 453, it was held that the assessment of "permanent damages" in a case against a railroad for injuries to plaintiff’s land in construction or repair of its roadbed, is made compulsory by this subsection. Pickett v. Atlantic Coast Line R. R. Co., 159 N. C. 586, 75 S. E. 1105.

Same—Permanency of Injuries. —In the case of O’Neil v. Raleigh, etc., R. R. Co., 159 N. C. 586, 75 S. E. 1105, it was held that the nature and permanency of the injuries sustained, made the assessment of permanent damages compulsory.

Destruction of Cultivation—Extinguished. — In the case of O’Neil v. Raleigh, etc., R. R. Co., 159 N. C. 586, 75 S. E. 1105, it was held that the assessment of permanent damages is made compulsory by this subsection. Pickett v. Atlantic Coast Line R. R. Co., 159 N. C. 586, 75 S. E. 1105.

The word "permanent," as applied to injuries and damages, is apt to mislead, as it is not used only in cases where the damage is all done at once, as, for instance, in the tearing down of a house, but also to those cases where the damage is continuing and prospective. In these latter cases the damage is called "permanent," because it proceeds from a permanent cause and will probably continue as long as the cause continues. Such is the case where the cause is apparent and the damage necessarily continuing or recurrent. The interest and inconvenience of the public will not permit the abandonment of the nuisance, but the nuisance will have an indefinite succession of suits. Beach v. Wilmington etc., R. R. Co., 120 N. C. 498, 502, 26 S. E. 703.

The liability referred to the word "permanent" as applied to damages is pointed out in Beach v. R. R., 120
N. C. 498, 502, 26 S. E. 733, where the nature of such an easement is discussed. Whether the damage is permanent or may not appear from the pleadings. If the damage is in itself irreparable, or if it will probably recur from a given state of things which the defendant refuses to change, and which the court from motives of public policy will not make him change, permanent damages are allowed as the only way of doing justice to the plaintiff, and at the same time preventing interminable litigation. As far as the plaintiff is concerned, permanent and recurring damages are allowed to the same to him, if they equally result in the destruction of his property. The latter are in some respects worse than the former, as they merely protract his agony, and may cause his death. For instance, if a farmer knows that the railroad has acquired a right to flood his land, lie will not plant it; whereas if he relies upon their subsequent forbearance from unlawful injury, he may suffer not only the loss of everything that has been put into the crop, but the loss of his labor, seed and fertilizer. In other words, the loss of the crop means the loss of everything that has been put into the crop. In damage to a crop caused by di-

§ 1-52. Three Years.—Within three years an action—

1. Upon a contract, obligation or liability arising out of a contract, express or implied, except those mentioned in the preceding sections.

2. Upon a liability created by statute, other than a penalty or forfeiture, unless some other time is mentioned in the statute creating it.

3. For trespass upon real property. When the trespass is a continuing one, the action shall be commenced within three years from the original trespass, and not thereafter.

4. For taking, detaining, converting or injuring any goods or chattels, including action for the specific recovery.

5. For criminal conversation, or for any other injury to the person or rights of another, not arising on contract and not hereinafter enumerated.

6. Against the sureties: of any executors, administrator, collector or guardian on the official bond of his principal; within three years after the breach thereof complained of.

7. Against bail; within three years after judgment against the principal; but bail may discharge himself by a surrender of the principal, at any time before final judgment against the bail.

8. For fees due to a clerk, sheriff or other officer, by the judgment of a court; within three years from the rendition of the judgment, or the issuing of the last execution thereon.

9. For relief on the ground of fraud or mistake; the cause of action shall not be deemed to have accrued until the discovery by the aggrieved party of the facts constituting the fraud or mistake.

10. For the recovery of real property sold for the nonpayment of taxes, within three years after the execution of the sheriff's deed. (Rev. Code, s. 155; C. C. P., s. 34; 1895, c. 165; 1889, cc. 209, 218; 1899, c. 15, s. 71; 1901, c. 558, s. 23; 1913, c. 147, s. 4; C. S. 441.

VI. Subsection Five—Liability of Executors, etc.

VII. Subsection Seven—Bail.

VIII. Subsection Eight—Clerk Fees.

IX. Subsection Nine—Fraud or Mistake.

X. Subsection Ten—Liability Sold for Taxes.

Section Not Retroactive. — A bond for the payment of money executed prior to this section, by the principal and his sureties, is exempted from the operation of the statute of limitations as contained in this section. Knight v. McAdenville, 70 N. C. 830, 184 S. E. 8.

Burden of Proving Section. — When the statute of limitations is pleaded the burden devolves upon the plaintiff to show that the cause of action accrued within the time limited. Parker v. Hardison, 121 N. C. 57, 36 S. E. 48, also, Hooper v. Carr Lbr. Co., 215 N. C. 306, 1 S. E. (2d) 818.

Effect of Equity upon Claim. — The enforcement of an equity will never be denied, on the ground of lapse of time, where the party seeking it has been in continuous possession of the estate to which the equity is an incident. Math v. Duggar, 69 N. C. 372.

Effect of Disability. — This statute does not begin running against a person under disability, such as infancy, until the disability is removed; hence it does not begin running until then notwithstanding that the cause may have otherwise accrued prior to that time. Settle v. Settle, 141 N. C. 553, 574, 54 S. E. 446.

Insane Persons Presumed to Have Plead Section. — See section 1-16.

Section Supplemented by Section 1-22. — This statute cannot avail as a defense where within six months after the death of the intestate, the plaintiff had qualified as her administrator and had commenced a special proceeding, in the county where the lands of the intestate were situated, to subject them to the payment of debts. Harris v. Davenport, 132 N. C. 599, 44 S. E. 399.

Part Payment by Joint Debtor. — A part payment by one joint debtor before the applicable statute of limitations has run against the demand will start the statute anew as well against the co-obligor as against him who made the payment. Saiied v. Aybeyounis, 217 N. C. 644, 9 S. E. (2d) 399.

Subsection Five—Injury to Person or Rights of Another. — Where plaintiff's cause of action based upon the alleged wrongful and unlawful act of defendant in swearing out a warrant against plaintiff charging plaintiff with larceny, accrued within three years prior to the issuance of summons in this suit, it was not barred by this section. Jackson v. Parlier, 216 N. C. 402, 4 S. E. (2d) 823.

Where plaintiff has taken a voluntary nonsuit and brings the identical action again, if the former action has not been barred by this section, the second action is in time if brought within one year from the time of the voluntary nonsuit. Van Kempen v. Latham, 201 N. C. 505, 150 S. E. 759.

When Proper to Decide Application in Appellate Court. — Upon the appeal it is unnecessary to decide whether this section or section 1-56 applies where there is an insufficient finding of fact to sustain a plea of either, and for this reason, a new trial must be had. Dayton v. Asheville, 185 N. C. 12, 115 S. E. 827.

Application to Action to Recover Share of Estate. — An action by an administrator to recover his intestate's share of an estate, is governed by § 1-56, which provides that actions not otherwise provided for shall be brought within ten years, and not this section. Hunt v. Wheeler, 116 N. C. 21, 21 S. E. 531.

Section Not Applicable. — Where the plaintiff did not sign the note and was not bound thereby, having executed only his sureties, in addition to the legal security for the debt, this section has no application. Carter v. Bost, 206 N. C. 830, 184 S. E. 817. See § 1-47, analysis line IV.

Bar Applies to Remedy. — The bar is applied under this section, not to the mode in which relief is sought, but to the relief itself. Spruill v. Sanders, 79 N. C. 466, 471.

II. SUBSECTION ONE—CONTRACTS.

Application to Agreement to Arbitrate.—An agreement to submit a controversy to arbitration is a contract between the parties, and an action thereon, when it is not under seal, in respect to the running of the statute of limitations, is governed by the three-year statute. Sprinkle v. Sprinkle, 159 N. C. 81, 74 S. E. 739.

Action for Money Had and Received.—An action by a county board of school directors for fines and penalties collected by a city is in the nature of one for money had and received with respect to the money paid in fines and penalties to the city. Asheville v. Asheville, 128 N. C. 249, 251, 38 S. E. 874.

Action for Dividends Accrued on Cumulative Preferred Stock.—The right of a stockholder to have dividends accrued on her cumulative preferred stock at the time of the reorganization of the corporation declared and paid in accordance with the stipulation of the certificate before dividends are set aside or paid on any other stock is based on contract, and the request for an injunctive relief is merely an attempt to announce a cause of action against the corporation if dividends are paid on the new stock before accrued dividends on her stock are paid, and her action instituted within three years thereafter is not barred. Clark v. Henrietta Trust Co. of Greensboro, 204 N. C. 749, 167 S. E. 682.

Guarantee of Prior Indorsement.—The statute of limitations which has otherwise run will not be repelled by the giving of a guarantee of payment, or the right of indemnification to the payee thereon, if the payee before his acceptance only one of them signed as surety thereon, and that surety signing as surety without the knowledge of the payee, always holding the instrument after the lapse of three years. Barnes v. Crawford, 201 N. C. 434, 160 S. E. 627.

This section applies to sureties on a note under seal, and to in preceding sections. One of these not mentioned in the statute of limitations under this section. Davis v. Alexander, 207 N. C. 417, 177 S. E. 417.

Statute Bars Remedy of Claim and Deliver.—Where there had been no new promise or payment for the purchase price for over three years prior to the institution of the action, the three-year statute of limitations, under this section, is the correct one to be applied, and the surety on the mortgage, Lumberton Piano Co. v. Loven, 207 N. C. 56, 176 S. E. 293.

Parol Evidence Admissible to Show in What Capacity Parties Signed Note.—In an action by the payee of a se- cured note, to recover for payments on the note, it was held, when it was signed by several makers, it may be shown by the trial by parol evidence that with the knowledge of the payee before his acceptance only one of them signed as the original obligor, and that other persons signed as sureties, in writing, entitling the sureties to their release from the defense of the statute of limitations under this section. Furr v. Trawick, 205 N. C. 417, 173 S. E. 854.

Same.—Effect of Payment after Statute Has Run.—Where a chattel mortgage on crops secures the payment of the maker's note and the mortgagee endorses the note, and mort- gagee is barred by this section will not extend the period of indemnity for this purpose.

Indemnity or Fidelity Bond.—Where the liability of the insurer is expressly limited in an indemnity or fidelity bond to losses occasioned and discovered during a specified time, the exception will not extend the period of time after which this is a statute of limitations and can have no effect upon the valid contractual relations existing between the indemnitor and indemnitee. Hood v. Rhodes, 204 N. C. 158, 159, 167 S. E. 558.

Breach of Express Trust.—Since occurrences which constitute a breach of an express trust amount in effect, and usually in fact, to a breach of contract, a cause of action for such breach is barred at the expiration of three years from such breach, under this section. Teachy v. Gurley, 214 N. C. 285, 199 S. E. 83.

Statute of limitations of the payment of a note is an obligation arising out of contract by which the guarantors assume liability for payment of the note in case the makers thereof do not pay the note according to its tenor, and suit against the guaran- tors is barred by this section after three years from the maturity of the note. Wachovia Bank, etc., Co. v. Clifton, 201 N. C. 414, 162 S. E. 774.

Accrual of Cause.—A cause of action did not accrue at the date of the warranty, but at the date on which it was finally determined that a plant was not free from all defects and was in no condition to be sold to the company. Faw v. Moncrief Furnace Co., 200 N. C. 377, 381, 156 S. E. 929.

Demand Necessary if Fiduciary Relation Exists.—Where a fiduciary relation exists between the parties, with respect to money due by one to the other, the statute of limitations does not begin to run until a demand and re- fusal. Efird v. Sikes, 206 N. C. 500, 562, 174 S. E. 513.

Statute Not Suspended by War Measures.—An action to recover damages for a breach of contract for the sale of goods arising during federal war control of railroads is barred by our State statute of limitations after three years from the time of its accrual. Vanderbilt v. Atlantic, etc., R. Co., 193 N. C. 565, 137 S. E. 847.

Unpaid Subscription to Corporate Stock.—While as to the stockholders the three-year statute of limitations on the amount unpaid on subscriptions to the capital stock of a corporation has run, it is still valid as to the directors, it is otherwise as to the creditors where the corporation has become insolvent, for in the latter case the capital stock is regarded as a trust fund for the benefit of creditors, and the statute will begin to run from the date of the receiver's filing of the petition, representing the creditors, under the order of the court. Windsor Redrying Co. v. Gurley, 197 N. C. 431, 147 S. E. 676.

Same.—Construed with Other Sections.—The application of this section with regard to the unpaid balance due a corporation by a subscriber to its capital stock, will be controlled by the language of the Articles of Incorporation. Redr- ino Co. v. Gurley, 197 N. C. 56, 147 S. E. 676.

Action on Check Given for Taxes.—A plea of the three- year statute of limitations will bar recovery in a civil ac- tion to recover damages on a check drawn by a tax collector, when the action is n't instituted within three years of the date the check was issued. Miller v. Neal, 222 N. C. 540, 23 S. E. (2d) 852.
Evidence of Matter Not Alleged.—Where defendant by answer denies liability on a note on the ground that it was not properly submitted to the jury under authority of Efird v. J. J. Beamer & Co., 122 N. C. 30, 21 S. E. (2d) 829.

Jury Question.—In an action by trustee to compel an accounting of the proceeds of sale by a trustee, the question of whether the action was barred under subsection 1 was properly submitted to the jury under authority of Efird v. J. J. Beamer & Co., 122 N. C. 30, 21 S. E. (2d) 829; Bynum v. Life Ins. Co., 222 N. C. 742, 24 S. E. (2d) 613.

III. SUBSECTION TWO—LIABILITY CREATED BY STATUTE.

Section Absolute Bar.—After the prescribed time in section 1-50, subsection 2, and this subsection, the Statute is an absolute bar to the next of kin. Vaughn v. Hines, 59 N. C. 445; Spruill v. Sanderson, 79 N. C. 465; Woody v. Brooks, 102 N. C. 334, 343, 9 S. E. 294. From dissenting opinions.

Liability of National Bank Stockholder for Assessment.—Though original liability of a national bank stockholder is contractual in nature, being based upon his original stock subscription, his liability under a stock assessment fixing amounts payable thereto is not contractual and the same with respect to running of limitations. Briley v. Crouch, 115 F. (2d) 443.

Partial payments by national bank stockholder on stock assessment did not toll the running of this section against his liability. Id.

Action for Failure to Accept Check.—An action against a bank, where, after the initial duty to check a check and against another bank which took over the assets of the former is barred as against the latter bank by this section, where not commenced within five years after the transaction and four years after the transfer of the assets, Standard Trust Co. v. Commercial Nat. Bank, 240 Fed. 383.

Action to Recover Delinquent Taxes.—Neither the three nor the ten years' statute of limitations applies to an act authorizing the State or city to recover delinquent taxes unless such act expressly so provides. Wilmington v. Cronly, 122 N. C. 385, 30 S. E. 9.

Application to Tort against Clerk Failing to Index Judgment.—In an action against a clerk of the Superintendence Court for failing to index a docketed judgment as required by section 1-233, this section is applicable. Shackleford v. Staton, 117 N. C. 73, 23 S. E. 101.

Application to Petition to Have Damages Assessed.—Where the charter of a railroad company provides that when the company has appropriated land without authority, no action shall be brought by the owner except a petition to recover damages, and fixes no limitation of time when such petition shall have to be commenced, Standard Trust Co. v. Commercial Nat. Bank, 240 Fed. 383.

Application to Tort for Damages Caused by Continuing Trespass.—An action against a telegraph company for the erection of a pole on the land of the plaintiff, if brought within three years of the trespass, is not barred by limitation. Hodges v. Western Union Tel. Co., 133 N. C. 867, 22 S. E. 722; Culbreth v. Downing, 121 N. C. 205, 28 S. E. 294.

Prior to the passage of this Act, in such cases, the lapse of time was a bar to the action; then a continued trespass on a grant of a would arise. Parker v. Norfolk, etc., R. Co., 119 N. C. 677, 22 S. E. 722; Culbreth v. Downing, 121 N. C. 205, 28 S. E. 294.

Same.—Application to Adjusted Actions.—In changing the period of limitation a reasonable time must have been given to accrued actions which would otherwise be barred by the new regulation. A reasonable time for the commencement of an action to recover damages for permanent damages to his land resulting from defendant's sewage disposal plant that the measure of damages should have been predicated upon the difference in value at the time plaintiff again entered the property and the difference in value at the time plaintiff again entered the property and the difference in value at the time plaintiff entered the property, free and clear, was constitutionally protected. Ballard v. Cherryville, 210 N. C. 728, 189 S. E. 334.

Negligence in Logging Operations.—Where plaintiff instituted this action to recover for damages resulting from the overlying on his lands of waters of a river alleged to have resulted from the negligent acts and omissions of defendant in its logging operations, even if it be conceded that the alleged negligence of the defendant toward plaintiff could be construed to constitute an assault toward plaintiff by defendant, plaintiff must show that defendant was in possession and control of the upper lands within the statute of limitations; see, Cooper v. Harr. Lbr. Co., 215 N. C. 398, 1 S. E. (2d) 818.

Continuing Trespass Defined.—Speaking of this section in Sample v. Roper Lumber Co., 150 N. C. 161, pp. 165-166, 63 S. E. (2d) 731, 732; By another standard, the phrase 'continuing trespass' as used in reference to wrongful trespass upon real property, caused by struc- tures permanent in their nature and made by companies in the exercise of some quasi-public franchise. Apart from this, the term 'continuing trespass' was not used in reference to wrongful trespass upon real property, being entire and complete, causes continuing damage, and was never intended to apply where every subsequent act amounted to a distinct and separate renewal of wrong. Teeter v. Postal Tel-Cable Co., 172 N. C. 783, 785, 90 S. E. 941.

Same.—As Applied to Telegraph Line.—Where a telegraph company has constructed its line of poles and wires along a railroad right of way on the lands of the owner more than three years, the owner's action for trespass and for permanent damages to his land resulting from the erection and maintenance by defendant telegraph company of its transmission lines over his land, the action for trespass is barred by the three-year statute of limitation because the trespass being a continuing trespass as to damages for the construction of the old line is barred by the statute, but the wrongful maintenance of the old and the building of the new line was a separate and independent trespass for which permanent damages may be awarded. Teeter v. Postal Tel. Cable Co., 172 N. C. 783, 90 S. E. 941.

An action against a telegraph company for the erection of poles on the land of the plaintiff, if brought within three years of the trespass, is not barred by limitation. Hodges v. Western Union Tel. Co., 133 N. C. 225, 45 S. E. 572.

Where the owner of land seeks to recover for trespass and for permanent damages to his land resulting from the erection and maintenance by defendant telegraph company of its transmission lines over his land, the action for trespass is barred by the three-year statute of limitation because the trespass being a continuing trespass as to damages for the construction of the old line is barred by the statute, but the action for permanent damages as compensation for the easement is not barred until defendant has been in continuous use thereof for a period of twenty years so as to acquire the right thereto by prescription. Love v. Postal Telegraph-Cable Co., 221 N. C. 469, 20 S. E. (2d) 337.

The law will not permit recovery for negligence which has become a fait accompli at a remote time not within the period specified by subsection 3, although injury may result from it within the period of limitation. Davenport v. Western Union Tel. Co., 133 N. C. 677, 22 S. E. 722, citing Cooper v. C & O. Ry. Co., 215 N. C. 398, 1 S. E. (2d) 818.

Allegations that a drainage district failed to cause a canal to be followed by the owner of a certain property, and stopped the canal on the lands of defendant, and failed to keep the mouth of the channel properly cleared out, resulting in plaintiff's land being flooded, commencing immediately after the canal was finished and continuing practically every year thereafter, stated a cause of action for conversion of timber on lands, the burden is on the plaintiff to prove that the timber was and the statute of limitations, as stated by the court, is 12 years. Davenport v. Pitt County, 109 N. C. 63; Moore v. Garner, 101 N. C. 374, 7 S. E. 732; Hobbs v. Price, 111 N. C. 394, 395, 16 S. E. 683. This was not done, and the action was not barred by the statute of limitations. Moore v. Goodwin, 109 N. C. 218, 13 S. E. 772.

Effect of Payment by Principal.—Payment made by a principal upon a bond, before the cause of action thereon is barred against the sureties, arrests the operation of the statute of limitations. Moore v. Goodwin, 109 N. C. 218, 13 S. E. 772.

Effect of Surveys Being Foreign Corporation.—The statute of limitations, for six years, applies to actions against foreign guardian bond by reason of such surety being a foreign corporation when it is shown that it continuously had a general office in this state, as a jurisdiction of our courts for executing judicial bonds and collecting premiums thereon for the company and had complied with the section authorizing service of process on the Insurance commissioner. Anderson v. United States Fidelity Co., 174 N. C. 417, 93 S. E. 498.

Effect of Payment by Principal.—Payment made by a principal upon a bond, before the cause of action thereon is barred against the sureties, arrests the operation of the statute of limitations. Moore v. Goodwin, 109 N. C. 218, 13 S. E. 772.

Intervening Disabilities.—When this statute begins to run, the subsequent marriage of the female plaintiff will not stop or alter the execution of the judgment. Kennedy v. Cromwell, 108 N. C. 1, 13 S. E. 135. See § 1-17 and note.

When Statute Begins to Run.—Demand.—From the date of the death of the decedent, or from the date of the judgment brought in 1903 to recover permanent damages caused by the negligent widening of defendant's canal, where it appears that the entire wrong was done in 1898 and 1899, the action was barred under this subsection. Cherry v. Lake Drummond Canal, etc., Co., 140 N. C. 422, 53 S. E. 138.

When the action has not been brought within three years from the accrual of the cause, or that otherwise it has not been done, a judgment of nonsuit is proper. Tillman v. Wyrick, 106 N. C. 84, 87, 10 S. E. 916.

VI. SUBSECTION SIX—SURETIES OF EXECUTORS, ETC.

Purpose of Section.—This section and the other related sections are intended to limit the liability of executors, administrators, next of kin and heirs of decedents, and, after settlement, either by the acts of the parties or a decree of court. Woody v. Brooks, 102 N. C. 334, 9 S. E. 294.

When the action has not been barred by the provision of subsection 2, expressly applies to actions on the "official bond," this section to sureties only. Woody v. Brooks, 102 N. C. 334, 9 S. E. 294. See dissenting opinion.

Effect of Surveys Being Foreign Corporation.—The statute of limitations, for six years, applies to actions against foreign guardian bond by reason of such surety being a foreign corporation when it is shown that it continuously had a general office in this state, as a jurisdiction of our courts for executing judicial bonds and collecting premiums thereon for the company and had complied with the section authorizing service of process on the Insurance commissioner. Anderson v. United States Fidelity Co., 174 N. C. 417, 93 S. E. 498.

Effect of Payment by Principal.—Payment made by a principal upon a bond, before the cause of action thereon is barred against the sureties, arrests the operation of the statute of limitations. Moore v. Goodwin, 109 N. C. 218, 13 S. E. 772.

Intervening Disabilities.—When this statute begins to run, the subsequent marriage of the female plaintiff will not stop or alter the execution of the judgment. Kennedy v. Cromwell, 108 N. C. 1, 13 S. E. 135. See § 1-17 and note.

tlemet made under the supervision of a Court, and sanctioned by a decree, must be brought within three years from the rendition of such decree, if the plaintiff (petitioner) be under no disability, and the case involve no equitable element.

Action to recover for alleged breach of bond as administration. — This subdivision having no provision relating to discovery of the breach of the official bond as is provided for in cases under subsection (9). Hicks v. Purvis, 208 N. C. 657, 657 S. E. 2d

Ward's Suit against Sureties.—A suit by a ward against the sureties on the bond of his deceased guardian comes within the terms of this section and must be brought within the three year limit. Norman v. Walker, 101 N. C. 24, 7 E. 468.

The running of the statute under this section as against the sureties if the fact of the breach was not suspended by the payment of interest by the guardian on the amount due by him to each of the plaintiffs. The liability of the sureties on the bond is a conditional liability, dependent upon the failure of the guardian to pay the damages caused by his breach of the bond. The guardian and the sureties are not in the same class. For that reason the payment by the guardian of interest on the amount due by him to his former wards did not suspend the statute of limitations which began to run against each of his wards. State v. Fountaine, 150 N. C. 277, 137 S. E. 2d.

VII. SUBSECTION SEVEN.—JAIL

Effect of Bail Being Out of State.—The language and meaning of this section is clear. Proceedings against bail, in civil actions, are barred, unless commenced within three years after judgment against the principal, notwithstanding the principles which may govern a similar rule in other jurisdictions. State v. Thomas, 106 N. C. 505, 511, 11 S. E. 622.

Not Applicable to Referee.—The claim of a referee for payment of services rendered in a cause which is still pending in the courts upon exceptions to his report is not barred by this section. Farmers' Bank v. Merchants', etc., Bank, 204 N. C. 376, 168 S. E. 2d 42.

An action to correct a mistake should now be brought within the time limited in this section. Lanning v. Commissioners, 106 N. C. 505, 511, 11 S. E. 622.

IX. SUBSECTION NINE.—FRAUD OR MISTAKE

Amendment of 1879.—Mistake.—This act was amended by the act of 1879, by inserting after the words "or mistake." So that prior to the act of 1879, there was no statutory bar of three years to an action for relief on the ground of mistake. Mask v. Tiller, 89 N. C. 423, 425.

This amendment of this section struck a provision limiting this section to cases solely cognizable in a court of equity. There are many cases decided prior to the amendment construing this section to be no bar. There are also cases determining it to have been a mistake in its passage but they are restricted to those arising before the statute became effective. See Dunn v. Beaman, 126 N. C. 766, 770, 56 S. E. 172; Alpha Mills v. Watters, 126 N. C. 769, 56 S. E. 172; Watters v. Parker, 78 N. C. 128; Jaffray v. Bear, 103 N. C. 165, 9 S. E. 323; Egerton v. Logan, 81 N. C. 172; Spruill v. Sanders, 79 N. C. 466; Day v. Day, 84 N. C. 468; Batts v. Winslow, 73 N. C. 258. See also dissenting opinions in Rahnweiler v. Anderson, 78 N. C. 133, 144.

The amendment applied to an action for a false warranty in a sale made before the amendment, so that, in actions where the contract is upon the ground of fraud was sought, the cause of action was not deemed to have accrued until the discovery of the fraud complained of. Alpha Mills v. Watertown, etc., Co., 116 N. C. 797, 803, 21 S. E. 917; Rouss v. Ditmore, 122 N. C. 775, 778, 30 S. E. 335.

Purpose and Construction of Section.—The statute of limitations was extended from one year to three years to prevent fraudulent and unjust claims from being asserted after a long lapse of time. It ought not, therefore, to be so construed as to become an instrument to encourage fraud, if it makes the requirements of the public interest in the case or the spirit should govern the construction of the facts and circumstances of a transaction so as to take it out of the operation of the statute, gross injustice would be worked by it. Mask v. Tiller, 132 N. C. 416, 71 S. E. 783.

When Applied to Exclusion of § 1-56.—This section cannot be applied where the allegations and proof are insufficient to maintain it. When the reference in the amendment to the word "mistake" as to which applies. Shankle v. Ingram, 133 N. C. 254, 255, 25 S. E. 578.

Applies to Actions at Law and Suits in Equity.—While this section ordinarily applies to actions for relief on the ground of fraud in cases solely cognizable by courts of equity, by statutory amendment and the decisions of our courts it now applies to all actions for relief on the ground of fraud or mistake. Stancill v. Nevirle, 203 N. C. 467, 166 S. E. 319.

FRAUD or Mistake Pre requisite to Application.—This section does not apply to an action to recover money for which there is no evidence or allegation of fraud or mistake. Barden v. Stickney, 132 N. C. 416, 417, 43 S. E. 912; Bonner v. Stotesbury, 139 N. C. 3, 51 S. E. 783.

FRAUD or Mistake Begins the Running of the Statute.—This statute runs from the discovery of the fraud or mistake, "or when it should have been discovered in the exercise of ordinary care"; and as it is the duty of plaintiff, as executor, to have laid off the land to the heirs and/or devisees, and that could, by a simple calculation from the deed, have discovered that the description embraced 108 acres, and as for twenty years after the value owners had no notice of the boundaries, the statute had become a bar to the action. Sinclair v. Teal, 155 N. C. 458, 72 S. E. 487. See also Stubbs v. Mota, 113 N. C. 458, 459, 18 S. E. 387; Peacock v. Barnes, 14 N. C. 215, 216, 4 S. E. 791.

In an action grounded on fraud, the statute of limitations begins to run from the discovery of the fraud or from the time it should have been discovered in the exercise of ordinary diligence. Williams v. Furniture Stores, 216 N. C. 732, 1 S. E. (2d) 512.

It is incumbent upon the plaintiff to show that he not only was ignorant of the facts upon which he relies in his action, but could not have discovered them in the exercise of proper diligence or reasonable business prudence. Latham v. Latham, 184 N. C. 55, 113 S. E. 623. See also, Johnson v. Phoenix Life Ins. Co., 219 N. C. 714, 22 S. E. 2d.

This statute begins to run from the time of discovery of a breach of the trust relationship and not from the time the relation was brought to an end. Egerton v. Logan, 81 N. C. 174.

In an action to reform a timber deed for an alleged mutual mistake of the parties, the statute will run three years after the party making the claim should have known it was not ascertained by the words "or mistake." So that prior to the act of 1879, there was no statutory bar of three years to an action for relief on the ground of mistake. Jones v. Bankers Life Co., 216 N. C. 46, 80 S. E. 882. See also Lanning v. Commissioners, 106 N. C. 505, 511, 11 S. E. 622.

Where plaintiff acquired title to real estate, subject to a contract to cut timber within 3 years, thinking the time for execution of the contract to cut timber had been extended to 3 years, the action was barred by this section. Blankenship v. English, 222 N. C. 91, 21 S. E. (2d) 891.

Where insurance company rejected third application of insured for additional insurance on grounds that insured was no longer a satisfactory risk it was held that insured should have been put on notice thereby that company's policy had lapsed 12 months after it was tendered to insured and refused because of illness, was false and that insured's claim, if any he had, has atrophied as a result of his procrastination and the time of the application was barred by this section. Jones v. Bankers Life Co., 131 F. (2d) 989, 994.

Upon the question of fraudulent concealment of funds, this section runs from the date of the facts constituting the fraud or mistake and not from the discovery of such fraud, unless the rights hereto unknown to him. Bonner v. Stotesbury, 139 N. C. 3, 51 S. E. 783.

Where a question of grave doubt, if the point had been raised, whether the statute as to the plaintiff's cause of action began to run upon the mere declaration of insolvency of the bank, and did not in truth begin to run upon the actual discovery of the in insolvency (or the receiver) that the bank was insolvent at the time the incorrect statement were put forth. Houston v. Thornton, 122 N. C. 365, 375, 29 S. E. 827.
Applying this section to an action to set aside a deed to lands made by the husband to the wife for fraud on the former's creditors, this section by correct interpretation is not determinative, but the cause of action for reformation of the plain language of the former's creditors, this section by correct interpretation is not determinative, but the cause of action for reformation of the plain language of the statute of limitations is pleaded, the court can, of course, new promise, or the like. It is only in such cases that a Local Modification.—Cartaret, Haywood: 1933, c. 386;

Editor's Note.—The 1937 amendment added the proviso to subsection l.

The 1937 amendment to this section does not operate retroactively, and any county, city or town which had

Cathedral Order, etc., 175 F. (2d) 692, reversing 22 F. Supp.
190.

Purpose of Section. — "The obvious purpose of the law is to enable those municipal bodies mentioned in it to assert and make a record of its valid outstanding obligations, and to separate them from such as are spurious or Constitutionality. — Under the interpretation of this section, it may admit of question whether the condition engraved by it upon the contract, as affecting the pre-existing rights of the creditor, does not impair its obligation within the prohibition of the federal constitution.

Wharton v. Commissioners, 82 N. C. 12, 16. See post this note. "Nature and Effect of Section."

Nature and Effect of Section. — The language of this section is plain and explicit, and there is room for but one construction of it. The court has said that the provision of the statute is not a strict, nor is it limited to the time in which an action may be prosecuted, but that it imposes upon the creditor the duty of presenting his claim within a prescribed period of time, and, upon his failure to do so, forbids any recovery in any suit thereafter commenced.
Wharton v. Commissioners, 82 N. C. 12, 16. See Moore

In the case last cited, the court held that the statute of limitation, and such claims against the county should be presented within two years after maturity." Lanning v.
Commissioners, 106 N. C. 505, 511, 11 S. E. 622, citing Rouster v. Commissioners, 92 N. C. 140, 3 S. E. 739; Moore v. Commissioners, 87 N. C. 209, 215.

In Board v. Greenvile, 132 N. C. 4, 43 S. E. 472, 473, the court said: "It is unnecessary to inquire or to decide whether the statute is strictly one of limitation, or whether it merely imposes a duty upon the holder of the claim, instead of a right of recovery, the preclusion of which is a condition precedent to his right of recovery. In either view of the nature of the statute the claimant, by its very words, is 'barred from a recovery' of any part of the claim for which the statute has imposed the two years immediately preceding the date of his demand, and this conclusion as to the effect of the statute is all sufficient for the disposition of this appeal." It is not necessary to decide whether it is strictly a statute of limitation, for it imposes this as a duty on the claimant as a condition upon which he may successfully maintain his action."

What Plaintiff Must Allege and Prove. — Where a claim has been made on the city for services rendered, and it nowhere appears when the services were rendered, an action to recover therefor must not only show that the claim had been presented in the statutory period, but that the amount claimed had matured within that time; and when he has failed to make this necessary allegation in his complaint, a demurrer thereto should be sustained. Dockery v. Hamlet, 162 N. C. 118, 78 S. E. 13.

Same—When Defect Attacked by Demurrer. — Where upon the face of a complaint it does not appear that claim was made upon a city's office, the defendant must show on the answer that no such claim was ever presented. Where a defendant charged with the unaccounted for expenditure of public funds where he failed to make an allegation therefor in his complaint, a demurrer should be sustained. Dockery v. Hamlet, 162 N. C. 118, 78 S. E. 13.

Same—When Action Amendable. — Where the complaint does not state the time of the defendant's ratification as required by section 1-21, the action may be amended by setting out the matters required by the statute. Dockery v. Hamlet, 162 N. C. 118, 78 S. E. 13.

Nonsuit as Extending Time Under Section 1-25. — One who began suit within the time prescribed, took a nonsuit and began a second action within one year after the nonsuit, but more than two years after the maturity of the claims, was not barred. Wharton v. Commissioners, 83 N. C. 429.

Application to Claim of Sheriff. — A sheriff must present his claim against a county to the county and the allowance or disallowance thereof must be made within two years prescribed in the section. Lanning v. Commissioners, 106 N. C. 505, 11 S. E. 622.

Action for Services Rendered as Attorney.—Where plaintiff instituted this suit to recover for services rendered defendant county by plaintiff as an attorney, plaintiff alleging as a basis of recovery services rendered in a certain civil action and services rendered relating to the settlement of a controversy arising out of the taxing of a period of more than a year, subsequent to the termination of the civil action, and defendants alleged that final judgment in the civil action was entered within two years after the termination of the present suit, that plaintiff's cause of action for services rendered therein accrued at the time of the rendition of the judgment, and that plaintiff's cause of action for services rendered therein is barred, the plea of the statute of limitations relates solely to the claim for services rendered in the civil action, and is not a plea in bar which would bar the claim for services rendered in the action against defendants, since the claim for services rendered in the action against defendants accrued within the two years immediately preceding the date of the demand, and this conclusion as to the effect of the statute is all sufficient for the disposition of this appeal.

II. SUBSECTION TWO—PEI ALTY FOR USURY.

Origin of Section. — The right of action to recover for usurious interest paid must be lost if the action is brought within two years after the payment in full of such indebtedness in this respect changing what is now section 24-2, which provides that the action to recover the penalty for each usurious transaction is therefore barred under this section, upon the expiration of two years from the date of the payment. Sloan v. Piedmont Fire Ins. Co., 189 N. C. 690, 128 S. E. 2, 3.

There is no section of the statute of limitations began to run at the date the cause of action accrued, and as such could have been brought at any time before the commencement of this action, the statute commence.

Effect of Defendant Being Out of State. — This two years having elapsed from the date the cause of action accrued until the commencement of this action, subject to the jurisdiction of the courts of this state and for that reason, two years next from the last item therein. English Lumber Co. v. Wachovia Bank, 179 N. C. 211, 102 S. E. 205.

Effect of Defendant Being Out of State. — Where the transaction constitutes a mutual running account an action for the recovery of the balance due is barred after two years next from the last item therein. Swift v. Smith, 177 S. E. 183. See also, Ghornley v. Hyatt, 208 N. C. 478, 181 S. E. 242.

Same—Mutual Running Account. — Where the transaction constitutes a mutual running account an action for the recovery of the balance due is barred after two years next from the last item therein. Swift v. Smith, 177 S. E. 183. See also, Ghornley v. Hyatt, 208 N. C. 478, 181 S. E. 242.

Bar of Counterclaim.—Where more than two years has elapsed from the payment of alleged usury until the institution of an action on the debt alleged to have been tainted with usury, the defendant's counterclaim for twice the amount of usury charged is barred. Farmers' Bank, etc., Co. v. Redwine, 204 N. C. 125, 167 S. E. 687.

Necessity of Pleading.—This section need not be specifically pleaded. Roberts v. Ins. Co., 118 N. C. 429, 24 S. E. 780.

III. SUBSECTION THREE—FORFEITURES OF ALL INTEREST FOR USURY.

Editor's Note.—The Act of 1931 which added subsection 3 to this section provided that it should not affect pending limitations for the forfeiture of interest, even if it be commenced after the expiration of the period prescribed in the statute. Pinnix v. Maryland Cas. Co., 214 N. C. 760, 199 S. E. 235.

Local Modification.—Cleveland, Rutherford: See §§ 114-239, 123 S. E. 201.

Necessity for Affirmative Plea.—In an action for slander, the plaintiff may recover, though the proof shows the defendant's cause of action was not barred. Jackson v. Parks, 214 N. C. 529, 199 S. E. 214.

§ 1-54. One year.—Within one year an action—
1. Against a public officer, for a trespass under color of his office.
2. Upon a statute, for a penalty or forfeiture, where the action is given to the state alone, or in whole or in part to the party aggrieved, or to a common informer, except where the statute imposes a different limitation.
3. For libel, assault, battery, or false imprisonment.
4. Against a public officer, for the escape of a prisoner arrested or imprisoned on civil process.
5. An application for a widow's year's allowance.

Cross Reference.—As to actions in the nature of quo warranto, see § 1-514 et seq. See also § 18-175. As to bills of discovery, see §§ 162-261. As to permitting escape of prisoners, see § 14-257. As to widow's year's allowance and application therefor, see § 30-15.

Subsection One—Extent to Which Application Limited.—Tobacco in an Auction Tobacco Warehouse during a Bona Fide Controversy.—Where the evidence is competent, the controversy between a person and a railroad company, through its agents, has participated in the unlawful appropriation or sale of a town's funds, the mere fact that the court have not dismissed the action as to the members of the municipal board participating in the commission of the wrongful act, under the plea of this section, will not likewise or necessarily bar the action against the railroad company, under the same plea, under an alleged urpity between them. Brown v. Southern R. Co., 188 N. C. 52, 53, 123 S. E. 633.

Action against Justice of Peace.—A summons was issued to recover a penalty against a justice of the peace for performing the marriage ceremony without the delivery of the license therefor to him, G. S. § 51-6, within less than a year from the time he had performed it, it was held, the time of this section was not violated. Wooley v. Bruaton, 184 N. C. 438, 114 S. E. 628.

Subsection Two—Application to Clerk of Court.—An action against a public officer, if not brought within one year, is barred by the statute of limitations. State v. Nutt, 79 N. C. 263.

Subsection Three—Disability Preventing Bar.—An action for assault and battery is barred upon the plea of this section, if not commenced within the time prescribed by the statute. Wooley v. Bruaton, 184 N. C. 438, 114 S. E. 628.

Subsection Three—Action for Libel.—Where, in an action for libel, defendants admit that the article was published in defendant magazine on a certain date, and plaintiff shows that the action was instituted one day less than a year thereafter, defendant is not entitled to nonsuit upon his plea of the one-year statute of limitations. Harrerell v. Goerch, 209 N. C. 741, 184 S. E. 469.

Subsection Three—Action for False Imprisonment.—Where it appeared that plaintiff's cause of action based upon the wrongful imprisonment of plaintiff in an insane asylum was instituted less than one year from the date plaintiff was discharged as insane, plaintiff's cause of action was not barred. Jackson v. Parks, 214 N. C. 529, 199 S. E. 214.

§ 1-55. Six months.—Within six months an action—
1. For slander.
2. Upon a contract, transfer, assignment, power of attorney or other instrument transferring or affecting unearned salaries or wages, or future earnings, or any interest therein, whether said instrument be under seal or not under seal. The above period of limitation shall commence from the date of the execution of such instrument.
3. For the wrongful conversion or sale of leaf tobacco in an auction tobacco warehouse during the regular season for auction sales of tobacco in such warehouse. This paragraph shall not apply to actions for the wrongful conversion or sale of tobacco which has been stolen from the lawful owner or possessor thereof. (Rev., § 28-175; Code, s. 315; 1931, c. 155; 1942-1943, c. 643, s. 2; C. S. 444.)

Same.—Where Mislead by Petition.—If the defendant has been misled by allegation of a different date from the one proved, so that he failed to set up this statute in his answer, the judge would, of course, allow him to amend his answer. Pegram v. Stoltz, 67 N. C. 144.

An action for slander begun more than six months after the publication, will be barred by the statute of limitations under this section, the right of action accruing from the date of publication, regardless of the fact that it is begun within six months from the date of publication by suit of the author of the words. (Rev., § 28-175; Code, s. 315; 1931, c. 155; 1942-1943, c. 643, s. 2; C. S. 444.)

CH. 1. CIVIL PROCEDURE—LIMITATIONS § 1-56

Application Illustrated. — Where the plaintiff brought an action for slander more than six months after the cause accrued, and then afterwards amended his complaint so as to include words spoken within six months before the beginning of the action, but more than eighteen after the filing of the amended complaint, and the defendant pled the statute of limitations, it was held, (1) the plaintiff's complaint was not amended so as to set up a new cause of action, and this was also barred. Hester v. Mullen, 107 N. C. 724, 12 S. E. 447.

§ 1-56. All other actions, ten years.—An action for relief not herein provided for must be commenced within ten years after the cause of action has accrued. (Rev. c. 399; Code, c. 138; C. C. P. s. 37; C. S. 445.)

I. In General.

II. Actions to Which Applicable.

I. IN GENERAL.

Purpose of Section. — This section was intended as a sweeping statute of repose and to cure omissions in former statutes. Brown v. Morsey, 124 N. C. 292, 296, 32 S. E. 687.

From concurring opinion.

This section was intended to be a universal statute of repose for the purposes of those specifically enumerated in the preceding sections of the statute of limitation. It could have no other purpose. It being almost impossible to enumerate all cases for which a statute of repose was needed, this section was passed to embrace, in its very words, any "action for relief not herein provided for." Woodfield v. Wester, 136 N. C. 163, 109, 48 S. E. 578. From dissenting opinion.

See to same effect Ex parte Smith, 134 N. C. 495, 502, 47 S. E. 16; Wyrick v. Wyrick, 106 N. C. 84, 85, 10 S. E. 916.

When Statute Begins Running.—When a covenant of warranty and seizin was breached at the time of delivery of the deed, this section begins running against an action for such breach from the time of the delivery. Shankle v. Irongate. 31 N. C. 254.

This section begins to run against an action by the vendor to recover possession from the vendee when the possession of vendee becomes hostile by a refusal to surrender after demand and notice. Overman v. Jackson, 104 N. C. 4, 10 S. E. 87.

An action to impeach the final account of a personal representative must be brought within ten years from the filing and auditing thereof as provided in this section. Woody v. Brooks, 102 N. C. 334, 9 S. E. 294. See dissenting opinion.

In an action by one who claims as entering of "Cherokee Lands," the cause of action is barred in ten years from the reception of the certificate. Frazier v. Gibson, 140 N. C. 272, 134 N. C. 603; Philip v. Buchanan Lumber Co., 151 N. C. 519, 66 S. E. 603.

This statute does not begin to run until there is a person in whose name the action is to begin the suit, that is, until the appointment of an administrator. This is a well recognized rule. Murray v. The E. G. Co., 7 Eng. C. L. 66; Godley v. Taylor, 14 N. C. 178.

Application Immaterial Where Period Has Not Run.—Where ten years has not elapsed it is not necessary to determine whether this section applies. Burgwyn v. Daniel, 115 N. C. 119, 120 S. E. 526.

Charging Section with Section 1-52.—Where, if the action had not been barred by the provisions of subsections 4 and 9 of section 1-52, it would have been barred under this section at the expiration of the time, it was not error to tell the jury that the action was barred in three years, or in ten years. Osborne v. Wilkes, 108 N. C. 651, 13 S. E. 285.

Sec. Not Affected by Section 1-52.—This section applying to an action against an executor or administrator for the final accounting and settlement, is not affected by the provisions of sec. 1-52, as to actions on their official bonds. Pierce v. Faison, 130 N. C. 177, 110 S. E. 857.

Practice. — Under the former practice of an objection that the equity of plaintiff seeking to declare a trust in land was barred could be taken by demurrer; under the present practice it may be taken by a motion to dismiss the action. Marshall v. Hammock, 195 N. C. 498, 502, 142 S. E. 776.

II. ACTIONS TO WHICH APPLICABLE.

Creditor's Action against Purchasing Partners. — The question as to whether an action by the creditors of a partnership to hold the owners of the legal estate (who purchased the interest of one partner in the partnership property) for account of the partnership was here barred by this section, was raised but not decided. Ross v. Henderson, 77 N. C. 170.

Passive Trust—Actions by Children against Trustee.—When the named children were the owners of the legal estate of a part of the estate "to collect and apply the rents and hires, and interests thereof, to the support of his certain named son and his family during the son's life and then to convey to the children," it constitutes an active trust against the life of the son which becomes passive at his death, at which time the relationship of the parties would be adverse to each other, and start the running of the statute of limitations against the beneficiaries. In re legal disability, and bar their action for an accounting and settlement after ten years, especially when the relationship of trustee has been openly repudiated. Latham v. Latham, 133 N. C. 162, 169, 48 S. E. 578.

Claim for Admeasurements of Dower.—This section is applicable to the claim for admeasurements of dower against the heirs, or one claiming under them. Brown v. Morrisey, 124 N. C. 292, 296, 32 S. E. 687.

Action to Test Validity of Stockholder's Election.—There is no statute of limitations applicable to an action brought by citizens to test the validity of an election of directors for the purpose of a proceeding to make real estate assets, to which the administrator de bonis non of A became a party, and filed a complaint to recover the amount due on said final account held relative to subscribing stock to a railroad company, but such action must be brought within a reasonable time. Jones v. Commissioners, 107 N. C. 248, 12 S. E. 294.

Action of Cotenants to Protect Title.—Where one tenant in common in possession has obtained for himself the outstanding title to the locus in quo, equity will declare him to have acquired an estate in fee simple. Brown v. Morrisey, 124 N. C. 292, 296, 32 S. E. 687.

Impeachment of Final Account of Representative.—When a final account of a representative was filed and audited, an action to impeach such account it must be brought within ten years from the filing and auditing of the same. The period of limitation is not specifically declared, but such a case falls within this section. Woody v. Brooks, 102 N. C. 334, 339, 9 S. E. 294.

When the administrator of A died eight years after filing an ex parte account, the plaintiff qualified as his executor within one month, and within seventeen months began a proceeding to make real estate assets, to which the administrator de bonis non of A became a party, and filed a complaint to recover the amount due on said final account held relative to subscribing stock to a railroad company, it did not bar the action. Wyrick v. Wyrick, 106 N. C. 84, 10 S. E. 916.

Right to Surcharge and Restate Final Account.—There was no express Statute as to the length of time necessary to presume a release of the right to surcharge and restate a final account of a representative, and audited, but the reason stated in Woody v. Brooks, 102 N. C. 334, 9 S. E. 294, it did not bar the action. Wyrick v. Wyrick, 106 N. C. 84, 10 S. E. 916.

Action for Balance Due Heirs.—Where the distributees, who until they became of age, had a guardian, did not bring suit for an alleged balance due under the testator's will within ten years, it was not error to tell the jury that the action was barred by either section 1-50, par. 2 or this section. Culp v. Lee, 109 N. C. 675, 14 S. E. 74.

Partition Proceedings.—Where a petition in partition is duly presented to an administrator and is carried into possession of their respective shares, in accordance with the judgment of partition therein entered, and it is therein provided that the widow of the intestate should receive a certain sum monthly in lieu of dower, which sum is made a lien upon the lands, an action by the widow to enforce her claim against the land is barred after the lapse of more than ten years from the judgment and decree, and the fact that a second decree of confirmation was entered in the case several years thereafter for the purpose of recording the papers, the original papers having been destroyed by fire, did not make the result final. Aldridge v. Dixon, 205 N. C. 480, 171 S. E. 777.

Recovery of Real Estate.—This section does not apply to actions for the recovery of real estate because Secs. 1-49, 1-60 apply to its exclusion. Williams v. Scott, 122 N. C. 545, 551, 29 S. E. 877.

Same.—Defendant in Ejectment.—The ten years statute... of limitations does not apply to defendants in ejectment who claim the land by adverse possession, where they have recognized plaintiff's claim and title thereto within that time. Ritchie v. Fowler, 132 N. C. 788, 44 S. E. 616.

Same—To Declare Senior Grantee a Trustee.—An action brought by plaintiff, claiming under the junior grantee of public land, can be laid as against them, and the court declared to be trustees for plaintiff, and to require them to convey to plaintiff such title as they claimed, was barred, where not brought within 10 years from the registration of the senior grant, by this section. Ritchie v. Fowler, 132 N. C. 788, 44 S. E. 616.

Same—To Declare Vendor a Trustee.—Since the other statutes of limitations do not expressly mention the trust relationship existing between vendor and vendee, it is not included under this section, and it would then be allowed only where the possession was adverse or where it was necessary to prevent some wrong or gross injustice. Bradsher v. Hunter, 172 N. C. 162, 90 S. E. 130.

Same—Enforcement of Parol Trust in Favor of Wife.—Section apparently not applicable, see Spence v. Foster Pottery Co., 185 N. C. 218, 117 S. E. 68.

Same—To Recover Possession of Vendee.—In an action to recover possession by vendor against a vendee who enters under the contract, the only statute of limitation applicable is that of this section. Overman v. Jackson, 104 N. C. 4, 10 S. E. 87.

Same—Against Remainderman.—Where a remainderman, not being in possession, executes a mortgage, the foreclosure thereof or from the last payment, such action being brought within ten years from the time of the acquisition of possession by the remainderman. Woodlief v. Wester, 136 N. C. 162, 48 S. E. 578.

Same—Contract Action for Breach of Covenant.—An action in contract for the breach of covenants of seisin and warranty in a deed, and not in tort for fraud, is not governed by this statute, where there was fraud or mistake in the deed, nor upon the theory that there is no possession by either the mortgagor or mortgagee. Overman v. Jackson, 104 N. C. 111, 9 S. E. 495.

Same—Where Possession by Either Party.—Where there is no possession by either the mortgagee or mortgagee or by the vendee or vendee in possession of the premises, an abandonment by section I-52, subsec. 9, is by this section. Shandall v. Ingram, 133 N. C. 254, 45 S. E. 578.

Same—By Sale of Conveyance.—Where a conveyance is taken by the assignee of a deed, and not in possession at the time of the conveyance, the deed is not found by the assignee or his representatives to be void. Frazier v. Cherokee Indians, 146 N. C. 778, 59 S. E. 10.

Same—To Declare Defendants in Execution Equitable Owners.—A suit to declare one of the defendants in execution to be an equitable owner of the property purchased by him, and under which he has furnished the price, and his codefendants, is barred by the ten-year statute of limitations. Sexton v. Farrington, 172 N. C. 162, 117 S. E. 68.

Same—Suit to Call for Grant of State Lands.—A suit to call for the grant of State lands, or to call for the grant without including the proper consideration or description in the conveyance by the grantee in favor of those claiming under and by virtue of a junior grant. Frazier v. Cherokee Indians, 146 N. C. 778, 59 S. E. 10.

Same—Taking of Land without Compensation.—Where in an action to recover damages from a city for the taking of plaintiff's land for a public use without compensation, in which the city pleaded the statute of limitations and there is no finding by the jury as to the time the first substantial injury, etc., was sustained by the plaintiff, the cause will be remanded for a new trial, and upon this appeal it is held that it is unnecessary to decide whether the three-year or ten-year statute would be applicable to a suit of this kind. Davis v. Asheville, 185 N. C. 12, 113 S. E. 827.

Enforcement of Decree.—An action to enforce the execution of a decree of a court confirming a report that an alley was to be laid off in certain lands is barred by this statute. Hunter v. West, 172 N. C. 169, 90 S. E. 133.

Alimony—Accrual of Right.—In proceedings for alimony under the provisions of § 50-16, the right of a wife for alimony accrues at the time pendente lite arises to her, in application of the statute of limitations, when the action is commenced, and not from the time of the separation from her husband. Garris v. Garris, 188 N. C. 321, 124 S. E. 314. See note of this case under § 10-4.

Action to Declare Trust in Land.—In Marshall v. Hammon, 195 N. C. 496, 142 S. E. 776, this section was held applicable to plaintiff's right of action to declare a trust in land. Shandall v. Ingram, 133 N. C. 254, 45 S. E. 578.

Action for Delinquent Taxes.—Neither the three nor the ten years' statute of limitations applies to an action authorizing the State or a county or city to recover delinquent taxes unless such act expressly so provides. Wilkinson v. Crouly, 132 N. C. 331, 49 S. E. 9.

Application to Judgments of State Courts.—The words "any State" appearing in sec. 1-47, subsec. 1, must be taken to mean the judgment of a court of any State including our own, but it could make no material difference even if not construed to include this state, since, every action for recovery of delinquent taxes, under such a construction of this section, would be commenced within the same period of ten years after the cause of action shall have accrued. McDonald v. Dickson, 85 N. C. 248, 252.

SUBCHAPTER III. PARTIES.

Art. 6. Parties.

§ 1-57. Real party in interest; grantees and assigns.—Every action must be prosecuted in the name of the real party in interest, except as otherwise provided; but this section does not authorize the assignment of a thing in action not arising out of contract. An action may be maintained by a grantee of real estate in his own name, when he or any grantor or other person through whom he derives title might maintain such action, notwithstanding the conveyance of the grantor is void, by reason of the actual possession of a person claiming under a title adverse to that of the grantor, or other person, at the time of the delivery of the conveyance. In case of an assignment of a thing in action the action by the assignee is without prejudice to any set-off or other defense existing at the time of, or before notice of, the assignment; but the assignee cannot apply to a negotiable promissory note or bill of exchange, transferred in good faith, upon good consideration, and before maturity. (Rev. s. 400; Code, s. 177; C. C. P., s. 55; 1874-5, c. 256; C. S. 446.)

I. REAL PARTIES IN INTEREST.

A. In General.

Purpose.—The provision requiring every action to be prosecuted in the name of the real party in interest, was necessary to let in all defenses, equitable as well as legal, against the real party in interest, and save a resort to another action, so as to harmonize with the constitution. Art. II, [IV Sec. 1. Abrams v. Cureton, 74 N. C. 477.]

Enabling Act.—The section does not confer a right of action; it only enables the enforcement of a right of action already accrued. Usry v. Suit, 91 N. C. 417.

Strikes.—No strike is a matter of public wrong; there is no middle ground; for whenever the action can be brought in the name of the real party in interest it must be so done. Rogers v. Gooch, 87 N. C. 444. See also, McGuinn v. High Point, 219 N. C. 148, 13 S. E. 2d 543.

Who Is Real Party in Interest. — The real party in interest is the party who would be benefited or injured by the judgment in the case. An interest which warrants bringing an action is not a right of action involved merely, but some interest in the subject matter of the litigation. 5 Western Taw Monthly 80.

The requirement that an action must be maintained by the real party in interest, under the provisions of this section, as the real party in interest, maintain an action against a third person by the injured employee or his personal representative. Betts v. Southern Ry. Co., 71 N. C. 243, 16 S. E. 2d 780.

Exception Does Not Apply to Fire Insurance Companies.—If the exception in this section ("But this section does not apply to fire insurance companies, on paying a loss, from suing the one whose negligence caused the loss, it was repealed by Laws 1899, ch. 154, sec. 43 (see now § 58-177), which provides that the insurer against fire insurance companies, on paying a loss, may bring an action against the one whose negligence caused the loss, to recover the amount paid for the same,") is not a sound discretion to be exercised where the circumstances render it proper that the action be prosecuted in the name of the transferee rather than in that of the original consignee to transfer the title by delivery of the bill of lading, to sustain the plaintiff's right to maintain his action as the real party in interest. Lawshe v. P. R. R., 119 N. C. 1437, 51 S. E. 343.

Rights of Insured.—When an insurer against fire has completely indemnified the insured, he is subject to the rights of the insured, in respect of the indemnity, under this section, as the real party in interest, maintain an action against the wrongdoer. Cunningham v. Railroad, 139 N. C. 437, 51 S. E. 162.

Employer Subrogated to Rights of Injured Employee.—Where an employee has accepted compensation awarded by the Industrial Commission for an injury sustained by him in the course of his employment he cannot maintain an action in his own right against the one whose negligence caused the injury, for the employee insurance carrier were subrogated to the right of action against the third person, and the injured employee is a "real party in interest.

And May Sue Third Persons.—Under this section an insurance carrier who has paid compensation to an injured employee may proceed in an action which has been instituted against a third person by the injured employee or his personal representative. Betts v. Southern Ry. Co., 71 N. C. 243, 16 S. E. 2d 780.

Endorsor Subrogated to Rights of Payee.—Where a person presenting a note to a bank is required to endorse the note, the note is received by the bank and taken by it in payment of the note, and the check is not paid and is charged to the bank, the endorser is subrogated to the rights of the payee under this section, as the real party in interest.

Rights of Undisclosed Principal on Contract.—An undisclosed principal holding the business rights and interest under a contract, may sustain the action thereon. Peanut Co. v. R. R., 135 N. C. 148, 71 S. E. 71; Williams v. peanut Co., 160 N. C. 109, 156 S. E. 521.

Liability of Bank Directors to Each Other.—Where directors of a bank have paid the liability of others under an agreement, each one of them may maintain his action against each of the defaulting members under this section, and such is not a misjoinder of parties prohibited by statute. Taylor v. Everett, 188 N. C. 247, 124 S. E. 316.

Agent as Real Party in Interest.—Where, under agreement with his principal, the agent of a manufacturer is obligated to pay the freight charges on shipments made to him, and upon demand of the carrier he has paid his unlawful charges on a shipment, he is the party aggrieved, within the meaning of this section, as the real party in interest, to recover the excess, and also the penalty when entitled thereunto. Tilley v. R. R., 172 N. C. 563, 90 S. E. 309.

Assignment for Collection.—An agent for the collection of rents is not the real party in interest. Martin v. Mask, 158 N. C. 436, 74 S. E. 343.

A rental agent may not maintain a suit in ejectment or for the collection of rents, either in his own right, or on behalf of the lessor, and a bond given to indemnify a bank from any loss it might sustain by reason of its taking over the assets and discharging the liabilities of another bank is assignable. North Carolina Bank, etc., Co. v. Lockert, 214 N. C. 1, 197 S. E. 551.

Heek, 92 N. C. 415.

Transferee of Claim. — The discretion conferred by § 1-74 is a sound discretion to be exercised where the circumstances render it proper that the action be prosecuted in the name of the transferee rather than in that of the original plaintiff; and one circumstance calling for the exercise of the discretion is the fact that the transferee, as in this case, has parted with all interest to the transferee, since this section requires that the action be prosecuted in the name of the real party in interest. Hood v. Bell, 84 F. (2d) 138.

Shippers Are Real Parties in Interest in Action for Discrimination in Rates.—Where certain carriers by truck sought injunctive relief against certain cities and against certain commodities, it was held that the basis for injunctive relief must be a threat to interfere with the right of the petitioner, not of a third party and that the shippers would be the real parties in interest not the contract truck carriers. Carolina Motor Service v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 210 N. C. 36, 185 S. E. 479, 184 A. L. R. 1165.

Suit by Retiring State Officer. — Where a state officer has parted with all interest to the transferee, since this action was brought by a husband, without making the wife a party thereunto, for slander of title, being a real party in interest. Plotkin v. Bank, 188 N. C. 711, 125 S. E. 541.

Claim under Workmen's Compensation Act.—It is required by the statute in question that a real party in interest be involved, and where an order made by the court be vacated on the ground that they had not been duly made parties or given consent that judgment be rendered out of term, etc. It is otherwise if the plaintiff who has been named as a beneficiary who has neither been duly made a party nor given consent to the agreed case or the further action of the court thereon. Action of Tenant for Trespass. — Under the provisions of this section, the court has the power to order the owner of the title to be made a party in the tenant's action for trespass, so that he may be held jointly to both the possession and to the inheritance. Tripp v. Little, 186 N. C. 215, 119 S. E. 825.

Foreclosure as Party. — The rents arising from the real estate of a feme covert belong to her under the constitution of 1868, Art. 10, sec. 6, therefore an action therefor must be brought by the wife, she being the real party in interest. Thompson v. Wiggins, 109 N. C. 299, 14 S. E. 301.

A suit by mortgagee to correct mortgage, which through fraud or mistake or the negligence of the register of deeds in cross-indexing has failed to give a priority of lien to one of several mortgages entitled thereto, will be entertained in equity, as he is a real party in interest. Gray v. Ector, 121 N. C. 346, 26 S. E. 653.

Reformation of Deed of Trust. — Where a substituted trustee brings an action to reform a deed of trust and certain mortgage notes which are negotiable, the holders of the notes are necessary parties. First Nat. Bank v. Thomas, 294 N. C. 599, 169 S. E. 189.

II. ACTIONS BY GRANTEES.

Constitutionality. — This section permitting a grantee of real estate to maintain an action in his own name is not unconstitutional. It is concerned only with the mode of prosecution, and the courts have discretion to decide the manner in which the equitable interest may be asserted. Mc? v. Eddings, 75 N. C. 584; Buie v. Carver, 75 N. C. 563.

Rights of Grantee in Ejectment Suit. — An action of ejectment may be maintained by a grantee in his own name whenever the grantor has a right to sue, notwithstanding the person in actual possession claims under a title adverse to that of such grantor. Osborne v. Anderson, 89 N. C. 263; Johnson v. Prairie, 94 N. C. 775; Buie v. Carver, of N. C. 561; Bland v. Beays, 145 N. C. 168, 58 S. E. 993. As to summary ejectment, see sec. 42-26, and the note thereeto.

III. ASSIGNMENTS.

Effect in General. — A construction was given to this section in Harris v. Burnwell, 65 N. C. 584, where Pearson, C. J., says, "it abrogates the principle of the common law, that a chose in action cannot be assigned—confers an unlimited right to assign 'anything in action' arising out of contract, and subjects the assignee to any set-off or other defense existing at the time of or before notice of the assignment; the only saving being in regard to 'negotiable promissory notes and bills of exchange transferred in good faith and upon good consideration before due.' This language is as broad as it well can be; so that a note assigned by a holder in due course, a half bank note, or a bill of exchange transferred to any set-off or other defense that the maker had against any one or all of the assignees at the date of the assignment, may be avoided.

General Rule. — It would seem that something of a general rule concerning the relation of this section to assignability was laid down in Woodcock v. Bostic, 118 N. C. 830, 24 S. E. 362, in which Montgomery, J., says: "If an assignee can make no possible use of the thing assigned to him, the assignment is a vain thing. If the courts would not and could not entertain a suit at the hands of an assignee against the person in actual possession, in respect of the thing transferred, how can it be said that such a thing is assignable? The law could not say that a matter, the thing transferred, can ever be assigned, and it appeared that the judgment was brought by another, the plaintiff was made during the pendency of the appeal, the court would have no jurisdiction of the cause at all."

Assignment of a Judgment Pending Appeal. — Where an assignment of the judgment for one of the defendants against the plaintiff was made during the pendency of the appeal, the court would have no jurisdiction of the cause at all. Vaughan v. Jeffreys, 119 N. C. 144, 26 S. E. 94; Guthrie v. Moore, 182 N. C. 24, 108 S. E. 334. See also Capell v. Littler, 64 N. C. 17; Mason v. Goodwin, 162 N. C. 561.

Past Due Notes Subject to Defenses. — A note taken after it is due is subject to any set-off, or any other defense existing at the time of or before notice of assignment; Vaughan v. Jeffreys, 119 N. C. 144, 26 S. E. 94; Guthrie v. Moore, 182 N. C. 24, 108 S. E. 334. See also Capell v. Littler, 64 N. C. 17; Mason v. Goodwin, 162 N. C. 561.

Action on Assignment Non-Negotiable Note. — The assignee of a non-negotiable note can maintain an action thereon; and so can the owner where there is no written assignment. Wilcoxon v. Logan, 91 N. C. 180.

When Judgments Treated as Contracts. — While judgments are not treated as contracts for all purposes, they are so treated for the purpose of distinguishing them from causes of action arising ex delicto, and are not embraced by this section, forbidding the assignment of things in an action not arising out of contract. Moore v. Norvell, 94 N. C. 270, 26 S. E. 812.

Assignment of Contract Not a Party. — The vendee under a contract for the sale and delivery of cotton cannot maintain an action thereon where it unconstitutionally appears from his own evidence and he has assigned the contract by third parties, not to the action, and has no further interest therein. Vaughan v. Davenport, 157 N. C. 156, 72 S. E. 842.

Executive Contracts Assignable. — As a general rule, executory contracts of an ordinary kind are now assignable, except that contracts involving a personal relation, or imposing liabilities which by express terms or by necessary construction of the law must remain in the hands of the person, such person, and not the nominal assignee, should be substituted as plaintiff. Field v. Wheeler, 120 N. C. 270, 26 S. E. 812.

Installments of Penalties. — Installments of a penalty payable in the future are not assignable. Gill v. Dixon, 131 N. C. 37, 48 S. E. 538.

name of the state. (Rev., ss. 401, 402; Code, ss. 1212, 1213; R. C., c. 35, ss. 47, 48; C. S. 447.)

Editor's Note. — The three provisions permitting the plaintiff to reply fraud to a plea of release in a suit for penalty; the defendant to plead satisfaction in a suit on bonds; and that the sum due, with interest and costs, and discharges penalty bonds, were secs. 932, 933, 934 of the Code of 1893 and secs. 1521, 1522, 1523 of the Revisal of 1905. They were again inserted by Public Laws 1925, c. 21. See §§ 1-59 to 1-63.

The construction of this section in Norman v. Dunbar, 53 N. C. 319, is that the suit should be in the name of the person claiming the penalty, and to whom, upon a recovery, it belongs, while in the subsequent case of Duncan v. Philpot, 64 N. C. 479, it is held that it should be prosecuted in the name of the state. Goodwin v. Fertilizer Works, 119 N. C. 153, is that the suit should be brought in good faith by any person to recover a penalty prescribed by statute against railroads for failure to make returns can only be recovered in an action under a law of this state, or of the United States, in good faith by any person to recover a penalty against railroads for failure to make returns in good faith, may reply that the said money had been expended in any suit upon such bond, the said money shall be deemed and taken to be in full satisfaction and discharge of said bond, and the court shall give judgment accordingly. (Rev., s. 1523; Code, s. 934; R. C., c. 31, s. 102; 4 Anne, c. 16; 1925, c. 21; C. S. 447(c).)

§ 1-61. Payment into court of sum due discharges penalty of bonds.—If at any time, pending an action on any bond with a penalty, the defendant shall bring into court, where the action shall be pending, all the properties, money, and interest due, and also all such costs as have been expended in any suit upon such bond, the said money shall be deemed and taken to be in full satisfaction and discharge of said bond, and the court shall give judgment accordingly. (Rev., s. 1522; Code, s. 933; R. C., c. 31, s. 101; 4 Hen. VII, c. 20; 1925, c. 21; C. S. 447(b).)

§ 1-62. Action by purchaser under judicial sale. —Any one given possession under a judicial sale confirmed, where the title is retained as a security for the price, is the legal owner of the property for all purposes of bringing suits for injuries thereto, after the day of sale, by trespass or wrongful possession, in the same manner as if the title had been conveyed to him on day of sale, unless restrained by some order of the court directing the sale; and the suit brought is under the control of the court ordering the sale. (Rev., s. 403; Code, s. 942; 1858-9, c. 50; C. S. 448.)

No Rights Acquired by Bidder before Confirmation. — In Attorney-General v. Navigation Co., 86 N. C. 307, it is said: "The doctrine has been settled in this state, that the bidder at a judicial sale acquired no right before the confirmation of the report of the commissioner who made the report under the order of the court." In re Deceased, 111 N. C. 114, 55 S. E. 1025, holds: "The sale then, not having been confirmed, the commissioner's deed has not yet divested the title out of the petitioner. While a formal direction to make a title is not always necessary, a confirmation of the sale cannot be dispensed with." Both cases being quoted, approved and followed in Vanderbilt v. Brown, 126 N. C. 499, 50, 59 S. E. 36.

But when confirmation is made, the bargain is then complete, and it relates back to the day of sale. Vass v. Arrington, 54 N. C. 119, 122, 129, 33 S. E. 330.

Collection of Purchase Price. — The remedy to enforce a decree under confirmed sale of land for the collection of the purchase price of the land is by motion in the cause. Davis v. Pierce, 167 N. C. 135, 55 S. E. 182.

§ 1-63. Action by executor or trustee. — An executor or administrator, the principal and interest due by the condition or defeasance of such bond, though such payments were not made strictly according to the condition or defeasance; or if such obligor, his heirs, executors or administrators have before action brought made satisfaction to the plaintiff of the principal and interest due by the condition or defeasance of such bond, in other manner than by performance thereof, yet the said payment or satisfaction may be pleaded in bar of such action, and shall be effectual as a bar thereof, in like manner as if the money had been paid at the day and place, according to the condition or defeasance, and so pleaded. (Rev., s. 1522; Code, s. 933; R. C., c. 31, s. 101; 4 Hen. VII, c. 20; 1925, c. 21; C. S. 447(b).)
whose name, a contract is made for the benefit of another. (Rev., s. 494; Code, s. 179; C. C. P., s. 57; C. S. 449.)

An express trust is defined to be a trust created by the direct and positive acts of the parties, by some writing or deed, or will. 22 N. Y. 389; 23 Ind. 112. See Hepburn's cases on Code Pl. 546, 552 n.

It often seems difficult to distinguish between such trustees and those with whom or in whose name contracts are made for the benefit of others, and many of the Code states (including North Carolina) in this section) make the term "party to an express trust" cover this latter class of persons. Bliss Code Pl. § 55.

As illustrations of the former may be mentioned: An assignee for the benefit of creditors, 4 Abb Pr. 106; an obligee in possession of money upon trust for the benefit of others, 1 C. S. 330; trustees appointed to take and collect subscriptions for colleges and other similar purposes, 34 Howard 320; an answer setting forth that B is the real owner of a note sued upon, but that it was assigned to the plaintiff, is to be taken as meaning that the plaintiff is trustee of an express trust, and so is properly plaintiff. Rankin v. Alliso, 116 N. C. 166, 108 S. E. 500.

An answer setting forth that B is the real owner of a note sued upon, but that it was assigned to the plaintiff, is to be taken as meaning that the plaintiff is trustee of an express trust, and so is properly plaintiff. Rankin v. Alliso, 116 N. C. 166, 108 S. E. 500.

Speaking Demurrer Not Allowed. — Where the holder of a promissory note in due course, etc., sues thereon, who, as it appears, is a trustee of an express trust to collect certain certificates of deposit, and apply the proceeds to its payment for the benefit of himself and the holders of the certificates, a demurrer that the plaintiff is, in fact, acting as agent of the holders of the certificates, and that they are in truth parties, is a speaking demurrer, and bad. Union Trust Co. v. Wilson, 182 N. C. 166, 108 S. E. 500.

Qualities of Trustee to Be Raised on Appeal.—See note to § 1-57. Cited in Orr v. Twiggs, 210 N. C. 578, 187 S. E. 791.

§ 1-64. Infants, etc., sue by guardian or next friend.—In actions and special proceedings where any of the parties plaintiff are infants, idiots, lunatics, or persons non compos mentis, whether in suits of original action or proceeding, they must be represented in court by their general or testamentary guardian, or by a next friend appointed by the court, as a necessary party, to appear by their legal representative, and to maintain the action or proceeding for the benefit of such infants, or persons non compos mentis, as the case may be. The court may appoint such guardian or next friend in its discretion, whenever it deems such representation necessary, and cause to be given such directions as it deems proper, to be observed by the guardian or next friend, as to the management of the infant's or person's estate, for the benefit of which proceedings are instituted, or for the benefit of which such infant or person is represented in court.

§ 1-64. Infants, etc., sue by guardian or next friend.—In actions and special proceedings where any of the parties plaintiff are infants, idiots, lunatics, or persons non compos mentis, whether in suits of original action or proceeding, they must be represented in court by their general or testamentary guardian, or by a next friend appointed by the court, as a necessary party, to appear by their legal representative, and to maintain the action or proceeding for the benefit of such infants, or persons non compos mentis, as the case may be. The court may appoint such guardian or next friend in its discretion, whenever it deems such representation necessary, and cause to be given such directions as it deems proper, to be observed by the guardian or next friend, as to the management of the infant's or person's estate, for the benefit of which proceedings are instituted, or for the benefit of which such infant or person is represented in court.

Court's Duty to Exercise Care in Making Appointment.—In Morris v. Gentry, 89 N. C. 248, 254, it was said, "It is the duty of courts to have special regard for infants, their rights and interests, when they come within their cognizance. The law makes this so, for the good reason, they cannot adequately take care of themselves. It is a serious mistake to suppose that a next friend or a guardian ad litem should be appointed upon simple suggestion; this should be done upon proper application in writing, and due consideration by the court. The court should know who is appointed, and that such person is capable and able to act, and to appear by their general or testamentary guardian, if there are any within the state; but if the action or proceeding is against such guardian, or if there is no such guardian, then said persons may appear by their next friend. The duty of the state solicitors to prosecute in the cases specified in chapter entitled Guardian and Ward is not affected by this section. (Rev., s. 405; Code, s. 180; 1893, c. 5; C. C. P., s. 55; 1870-1, c. 233; 1871-2, c. 95; C. S. 450.)

Presumption of Proper Appointment. — Where the lands of infants are sold under an order of the Superior Court upon an ex parte petition, in which the infants are represented by their next friends, the court proceeded with the sale without a newborn notice to the infants, and the court failed to see to it that the infants were adequately taken care of and represented in court.

Appointment of Next Friend in Justice's Court. — When the holder of a promissory note in due course, etc., sues thereon, who, as it appears, is a trustee of an express trust to collect certain certificates of deposit, and apply the proceeds to its payment for the benefit of himself and the holders of the certificates, a demurrer that the plaintiff is, in fact, acting as agent of the holders of the certificates, and that they are in truth parties, is a speaking demurrer, and bad. Union Trust Co. v. Wilson, 182 N. C. 166, 108 S. E. 500.

Appointment of Next Friend in Justice's Court. — Where the holder of a promissory note in due course, etc., sues thereon, who, as it appears, is a trustee of an express trust to collect certain certificates of deposit, and apply the proceeds to its payment for the benefit of himself and the holders of the certificates, a demurrer that the plaintiff is, in fact, acting as agent of the holders of the certificates, and that they are in truth parties, is a speaking demurrer, and bad. Union Trust Co. v. Wilson, 182 N. C. 166, 108 S. E. 500.

Appointment of Next Friend in Justice's Court. — When the holder of a promissory note in due course, etc., sues thereon, who, as it appears, is a trustee of an express trust to collect certain certificates of deposit, and apply the proceeds to its payment for the benefit of himself and the holders of the certificates, a demurrer that the plaintiff is, in fact, acting as agent of the holders of the certificates, and that they are in truth parties, is a speaking demurrer, and bad. Union Trust Co. v. Wilson, 182 N. C. 166, 108 S. E. 500.
he was designated as guardian and not as next friend. Ex parte Huffstetler, 203 N. C. 796, 798, 167 S. E. 65.

Foreign Guardian Sues as Next Friend. — A guardian appointed in another state has no authority to represent his wards in suits and proceedings in this state, but when he brings suit for them as guardian it will be treated as if he were next friend. Tate v. Mott, 96 N. C. 19, 2 S. E. 176.

Foreign or Domestic Corporation Can Not Be Appointed Next Friend. — Where the party has been appointed as guardian, or has appointed a person to act as next friend, the court, on the application of the attorney or person who procured the appointment, may, after notice, hear and dispose of the application, granting the appointment, or vacating it, and imposing such conditions as may be proper.

Widow of Deceased Minors Can Not Sue For and by Next Friend. — Where the widow or next friend of a minor absent from the state, has not been properly appointed, the court has no authority to make a new appointment, or to authorize a new suit to be brought in another state, for the benefit of the minor.

Interest of Guardian or Next Friend. — Any person who is a next friend or guardian of the infant, in a suit or proceeding, is a real party in interest. The right of the infant to sue or to be sued, and his right to be represented by next friend or guardian ad litem, is subject to the right of the next friend or guardian ad litem to be appointed, and to the right of the infant to make a new appointment. The court may, of its own motion, or on the application of any party, make such discoveries, or render such orders, as may be necessary to enable the infant to present his case, or to enable the court to ascertain his interest, or to enable the court to determine the interest of the infant, as may be necessary. The court may, in any suit or proceeding in which such irregularities exist, make such orders, as may be necessary, to enable the infant to present his case, or to enable the court to ascertain his interest, or to enable the court to determine the interest of the infant, as may be necessary.

§ 1-65. Infants, etc., defend by guardian ad litem. — In all actions and special proceedings when any of the defendants are infants, idiots, lunatics, or persons non compositi mensis, whether residents or nonresidents of this state, they must be defended by their general or testamentary guardian, if they have one within this state; and if they have no general or testamentary guardian in the state, and any of them has been summoned, the court in which said action or special proceeding is pending, upon motion of any of the parties, may appoint some discreet person to act as guardian ad litem to defend the interest of the infant, idiot, lunatic, or person non compositi mensis. The guardian so appointed shall, if the cause is a civil action file his answer to the complaint within the time required for other defendants, unless the time is extended by the court; and if the cause is a special proceeding, a copy of the complaint, with the summons, must be served on him.

Cross Reference. — As to service of summons on minor or insane, see § 41-11; when infants are 2 and 3.

Editor's Note. — This section and section 1-97, par. (2) were reenacted to afford protection to infants, persons non compositi mensis, etc., against the able and the cunning who might seek to take advantage of their handicaps. There can be no question but what the requirement as to service of summons upon persons falling within the purview of these sections should be strictly observed.

However, the question inevitably arises as to what is the legal effect of failure to make such service. In Allen v. Shields, 72 N. C. 504, it is doubted by the court whether personal service on an infant is indispensable, with a strong intimation that it is. But it appears that our authorities are fairly uniform on the point, and the doctrine has, in this state, and also generally prevailed, that the infant has been summoned, and an answer having been filed by his general guardian, or guardian ad litem, the failure to serve on the minor personally was only an irregularity, to be corrected, if at all, by motion in the cause. Groves v. Ware, 182 N. C. 553, 556, 109 S. E. 568; Harris v. Bennett, 160 N. C. 339, 76 S. E. 217; Gilson v. Gilson, 153 N. C. 185, 65 S. E. 55; Rackley v. Womack, 147 N. C. 201, 57 S. E. 970; Test v. Lassiter, 139 N. C. 145, 91 S. E. 968; Matthews v. Joyce, 85 N. C. 512.

Should Be Strictly Observed. — The provisions of the statute in regard to the appointment of guardians ad litem should be strictly observed, but mere irregularities in observing them, not affecting a substantial right, will necessarily defeat judgments rendered, or declarations of final rights in the proceeding in which such irregularities exist. Ward v. Lowndes, 96 N. C. 367, 2 S. E. 591; White v. Morris, 107 N. C. 419, 31 S. E. 877; Syme v. Trice, 96 N. C. 243, 1 S. E. 490.

When Infant Reaches Majority Pendente Lite. — Where in an action an infant is the defendant, and a guardian ad litem is appointed for him at full age before the trial, the judgment is binding on both plaintiff and defendant. Hicks v. Bean, 112 N. C. 462, 464, 14 S. E. 490.
Enforced as Mandatory. — In Moore v. Gidney, 75 N. C. 34, 39; Bynum, J., speaking for the court, says: "Infants and their guardians ad litem must be respectively informed of and these forms enacted as safeguards thrown around the helpless, who are often the victims of the crafty, are enforced as being mandatory, and not directory only. Those who venture to act in the face of the risk of their action being declared void, or set aside."

The object of the appointment of a guardian ad litem is to protect the interest of the infant defendants in which protection he is entitled at every stage of the proceeding. Gray v. Floyd, 214 N. C. 77, 81, 197 S. E. 873.

When Clerk May Appoint. — In a special proceeding by and against a minor, the clerk, when the suit is brought, may appoint a guardian ad litem for an infant defendant, where the executor is the general guardian of such infant. Carraway v. Lassiter, 139 N. C. 145, 51 S. E. 968.

Removal of the Officers. — In Raway v. Lassiter, 139 N. C. 145, 152, 51 S. E. 968, it was said: "The Superior Court has, independently of this section, the power to appoint a guardian ad litem for an infant defendant. It may at any time during the progress of the cause, for sufficient reason looking to the proper protection of the infant’s interests, remove a guardian theretofore appointed and appoint another.

The object to be obtained is the protection of the infant, whose interests are represented by the court. If the guardian ad litem is the officer of the court, and we can see no good reason or conflict with well-settled principles why it may not for any good reason appoint such guardian.

Nominal Plaintiff Disqualified to Represent Infant. — Where an infant feme covert cestui que trust who has no general guardian, appears in a proceeding for the appointment of a trustee by guardian ad litem, the husband need not appear. Roseman v. Vann, 194 N. C. 497, 139 S. E. 578.

Ward Protected by Court. — Where a guardian ad litem has been duly appointed to represent a party, who is under disability, in an action, the court will protect his interest, and any decree or judgment in the cause shall operate as if there had been personal service on such persons, practical harm would result therefrom to the ward where a guardian ad litem has been appointed, and the service of the summons or other process upon the guardian ad litem may be appointed on motion at the time of his appointment as guardian ad litem, so long as his name is inscribed on the record, and he accepts the service of summons and process thereon.

Vacation of Irregular Judgment. — Where it appears that there was no service of process upon infant defendants, and no guardian was appointed to protect their interests, a judgment rendered against them is absolutely void ab initio, and may be set aside at any time for irregularity. Larkins v. Bullard, 88 N. C. 35, 36; Mason v. Miles, 63 N. C. 564. See also, Pearson v. Nesbit, 14 N. C. 315; White v. Albertson, 14 N. C. 214.

Appointment Valid When Infant Not Regularly Served. — The appointment of a guardian ad litem is valid, although the infant has not been regularly served with process, where he has only accepted service thereof. Cates v. Pickett, 97 N. C. 21, 1 S. E. 763.

Jury Trial Waived. — It is competent for the attorney and guardian ad litem to waive a jury trial for infants, even where they have not been regularly served with summons. White v. Morris, 107 N. C. 93, 12 S. E. 80.

Mere Colorable Interest Disqualifies. — A mere colorable interest, if at all adverse, is sufficient to disqualify either a guardian ad litem or his attorney from appearing for infant defendants. Ellis v. Massenburg, 126 N. C. 134, 35 S. E. 240; Molyneux v. Huey, 81 N. C. 106.

Supreme Court May Appoint. — The Supreme Court may appoint a guardian ad litem, where the clerk has failed to attend to his appointment as guardian ad litem, so long as his name appears on the record. Ellis v. Massenburg, 126 N. C. 134, 35 S. E. 240; Molyneux v. Huey, 81 N. C. 106.

Applied in Wyatt v. Berry, 205 N. C. 118, 170 S. E. 121; as an infant defendant was a person in holding, in Hoed v. Hoeld, 205 N. C. 141, 105 S. E. 768; Robeson v. Hodges, 105 N. C. 49, 11 S. E. 263.

Appointed guardian ad litem in actions begun by publication. — In all actions and special proceedings wherever any of the defendants are infants, idiots, lunatics, or persons non compos mentis, and it shall become necessary to appoint a guardian ad litem for an infant defendant, where they have not been regularly served with summons. Applied in Wyatt v. Berry, 205 N. C. 118, 170 S. E. 121; as an infant defendant was a person in holding, in Hoed v. Hoeld, 205 N. C. 141, 105 S. E. 768; Robeson v. Hodges, 105 N. C. 49, 11 S. E. 263.

§ 1-66. Appointment of guardian ad litem in actions begun by publication. — In all actions and special proceedings wherever any of the defendants are infants, idiots, lunatics, or persons non compos mentis, and it shall become necessary to appoint a guardian ad litem for an infant defendant, where they have not been regularly served with summons.

A plaintiff of record, though nominal and made so without his consent, is utterly disqualified to appear for any infant defendants. His most faithful performance of duty and energetic and persistent defense, in every way commendable, and approved by the Court, do not relieve the impropriety of his appointment as guardian ad litem, so long as his name appears on the record. Ellis v. Massenburg, 126 N. C. 134, 35 S. E. 240; Molyneux v. Huey, 81 N. C. 106.

§ 1-68. Who may be plaintiffs.—All persons having an interest in the subject of the action and in obtaining the relief demanded may be joined as plaintiffs, either jointly, severally, or in the alternative. This is a form of alternative pleading explained in 9 N. C. Law Rev. 24.

There May Be Several Plaintiffs Whose Interests Are Not Identical.—In a suit for damages to a truck where, as well as the cause of action of the corporate plaintiff for the loss of his security by reason of the damage to said truck, both arose out of the same transaction or transaction connected with the same subject of action, namely, the damage to the same truck proximately caused by the same negligent act of the same defendant, it was held that both parties could be joined as plaintiffs. Clearly both parties had an interest in the subject of this action and in obtaining the relief demanded and, as between the original parties to the action, may, in some instances, be made defendants, jointly, severally, or in the alternative. This is a form of alternative pleading explained in 9 N. C. Law Rev. 24.

Interest in Controversy.—In Wade v. Sanders, 70 N. C. 278, Pearson C. J., while construing the phrase "any person who claims an interest in the controversy adverse to the plaintiff," added that the phrase did not contemplate the determination of two separate and distinct causes of action, as between the plaintiff and a third party, or the defendant and a third party, in the same action. It is only intended to make "any person who claims an interest in the controversy adverse to the plaintiff" a wider scope. Bryant v. Kenlaw, 90 N. C. 337, 342.

This section contemplates that all persons necessary to a complete determination of the controversy, the matter in litigation, and affected by the same in some way, as between the original parties to the action, may, in some instances, and must in others, be made parties plaintiff or defendant. But it does not imply that any persons who may have a cause of action against the plaintiff alone, or cause of action against the defendant alone, unaffected by the cause of action as between the plaintiff and defendant, or whose interest is adverse to the interests of the parties as to entitle them to intervene in the proceedings, are material or interested, that it is proper to make them parties. McDonald v. Morris, 89 N. C. 99, 100; Batchelor v. Macon, 67 N. C. 181, 184; Harkey v. Houston, 65 N. C. 133, 139.

§ 1-69. Who may be defendants.—All persons may be made defendants, jointly, severally, or in the alternative, who have, or claim, an interest in the controversy adverse to the plaintiff, or who are necessary parties to a complete determination or settlement of the questions involved. In an action to recover the possession of real estate, the landlord and tenant may be joined as defendants. Any person claiming title of, right, or interest, can arise by allowing them to come in at the beginning, by commencing the proceeding." See also, Ex parte Moore, 64 N. C. 98.

Trustee as Plaintiff.—A duly appointed trustee of a religious society may maintain an action for the removal of faithless or incompetent trustees, and compel them to convey the property held by them to the purposes for which it was designed, and such trustee may also maintain an action to set up a lost deed executed for the benefit of the cestui que trust. Nash v. Sutton, 109 N. C. 559, 560.

Non-residents Not Barred.—Non-residents may be parties plaintiff in the courts of this state. Thompson v. Washburn Union Tel. Co., 107 N. C. 449, 456, 12 S. E. 427; Waiters v. Breder, 48 N. C. 64; Miller v. Black, 47 N. C. 342.

Uninterested Party as Co-Plaintiff.—It is wholly immaterial that a person with no interest or claim in the subject of the action, and the relief sought, is a defendant. Perkins v. Berry, 103 N. C. 131, 134; Colgrove v. Koontz, 76 N. C. 363.

Creditors as Plaintiff.—In Pelletier v. Saunders, 67 N. C. 261, 262, Rodman J., who delivered the opinion, said, "In a proceeding for the sale of lands, the creditors are not barred. Nevertheless, as they have an interest, as well as in the taking of the administration accounts as in the terms on which the land shall be sold, and the a guardian ad litem is appointed, he shall file an answer in the action or special proceeding, admitting or denying the allegations thereof. The costs and expenses of the answer, in all applications to sell or divide the real estate of said infants, shall be paid out of the proceeds of the property, or in case of division shall be charged upon the land if the sale or division is ordered by the court, and, if not ordered in another manner the court directs. (Rev., s. 407; Code, s. 182; 1870-1, c. 235, s. 4; C. S. 453.)

Minors Not Properly Represented Not Bound.—Where, in a proceeding to caveat a will, the interests of minors are involved, who are not properly represented, the issue of defective representation of the minors is an independent ground for the removal of any person who claims an interest in the subject of the action and the relief sought. Id.

Joinder where they have a common interest in the subject of action, and in obtaining the relief demanded may be made defendants, either jointly, severally, or in the alternative, except as otherwise provided. (Rev., s. 410; Code, s. 184; C. C. P., s. 61; 1931, c. 344, s. 2; C. S. 456.)

Ex parte Holloman, 163 N. C. 124, 79 S. E. 40.

Same — Adverse Holder to Title to Both Parties. — In an action for the recovery of real estate, a third party who filed a counterclaim and adverse holder to title to both parties, is not bound to assert title adverse to the principal defendant, if a party to the action. Colgrove v. Koone, 76 N. C. 363.

Same — Authority of Clerk. — The clerk of the Superior Court, under § 1-69, may exercise the authority to permit persons claiming an interest in the land to be made a party defendant. Empire Mfg. Co. v. Spurll, 169 N. C. 618, 86 S. E. 522.

Surety. — Where a contractor gives a surety bond for the faithful performance of a contract for the cutting of timber, it is not necessary to first ascertain by action or otherwise who is the principal defendant in the action for the recovery of the contract price, to make his surety a party to action for damages for its breach, the surety being a proper party for the complete determination or settlement of the question involved. Watson v. King, 118 N. C. 527, 20 S. E. 416.

Joinder of Beneficiaries in Deeds of Trust. — In an action against a beneficiary in a deed of trust for the recovery of conveyances of property by deeds of trust and mortgages as made to hinder, delay and defraud him in the collection of his judgment under execution, the joinder of all the beneficiaries was not necessary parties, as it was not objectionable as a misjoinder and demurrer to the complaint alleging such conveyances entered on the records of the register of deeds of trust and parties, and that it failed to state a cause of action is properly overruled. It was held that the facts alleged were not in the alternative, but that the complaint alleged the claim and made a definite and connected story, and under the provisions of this section, plaintiff, being in doubt as to those from whom he had to recover, should be permitted to sue the general officers of defendants in the alternative under § 1-123, and defendants' demurrer for misjoinder of parties and causes is properly overruled. Peitman v. Zebulon, 219 N. C. 473, 14 S. E. (2d) 246.

Parties.—In Rutty v. Claywell, 91 N. C. 306, 308, it was said: "The result is to render contracts joint in form, several in legal effect, and to neutralize, if not to displace, those provisions which operate only upon contracts that are joint in form, severally in legal effect, thereby passing the inherent quality of being joint as well as several in law, cannot render available provisions which, in terms, are applicable to such as are joint only. It is solely to remove the resulting inconveniences of an action, presented § 1-73, judgment against part of those whose obligation is joint only, that the remedy is provided, and it becomes needless when the obligations of other parties, the court must cause them to be brought in. McKeel v. Holloman, 163 N. C. 132, 134, 79 S. E. 445; Maxwell v. Bar-}
§ 1-74, Abatement of actions.—1. No action abates by the death, or disability of a party, or by the transfer of an interest therein, if the cause of action survives, or continues in the hands of the deceased, except in suits for penalties and for damages merely vindictive, or in case of the disability of a party, the court, on motion at any time within one year thereafter, or afterwards on a supplemental complaint, may allow the action to be continued, by, or against, his representative or successor in interest. In case of any other transfer of interest, the action shall be continued in the name of the original party, or the court may allow the person to whom the transfer is made to be substituted in the action.

2. After a verdict is rendered in any action for a wrong, the action does not abate by the death of a party.

3. At any time after the death or disability of the party plaintiff, the court in which an action is pending, upon notice to such persons as it directs and upon application of any person aggrieved, may order that the action be abated, unless it is continued by the proper parties, within a time fixed by the court, not less than six nor more than twelve months from the granting of the order.

4. No action against a receiver of a corporation abates by reason of his death, but, upon suggestion of the facts in the record, it continues against his successor, or against the corporation in case a new receiver is not appointed. (Rev., s. 415; Code, s. 188; 1901, c. 2, s. 85; C. C. P., s. 64; R. C., c. 1, s. 4; c. 46, s. 43; C. S. 461.)

Cross References.—As to survival of actions, see § 28-172. As to actions which do not survive, see § 28-175. As to receivers for corporations, see § 55-147 et seq.

Section Changes Common Law Rule.—The rule of the common law that a personal right of action dies with the person has been changed by this § 28-172 and, except in the instances specified in § 28-175, an action originally maintainable by or against a deceased person is now maintainable by or against his personal representative, or against his assigns. (Rev., s. 415; Code, s. 188; 1901, c. 2, s. 85; C. C. P., s. 64; R. C., c. 1, s. 4; c. 46, s. 43; C. S. 461.)
Right of Counterclaim Survives to Executor.—Under the laws of New York State, and of North Carolina and under this section which provide that, on the death of any person, the personal representative of him may set up a counterclaim in an action brought in North Carolina against the owner of such claim by the executors of a general partner in such firm of factors doing business in New York, arising out of a consignment of goods to such firm for sale, may be set up as a counterclaim in an action brought in North Carolina against the administrator de bonis non of the estate of a person doing business in New York, where the injury does not cause death by this section, provided the action is not for personal injuries which do not survive. Watts v. Vanderhill, 167 N. C. 567, 84 S. E. 831.

Actions for Personal Torts.—At common law, a right of action for personal injuries arising out of a collision of railroad trains survives the tort feasor, and the doctrine is not changed where the injury does not cause death by this section, provided that no action shall abate by death, etc., or that the cause of action shall continue, etc., these provisions relating to such actions as survive, and not to actions for personal injuries, which do not survive. Watts v. Vanderhill, 167 N. C. 567, 84 S. E. 831.

Right of Counterclaim Survives to Executor.—Under the laws of New York State, and of North Carolina and under this section which provide that, on the death of any person, the personal representative of him may set up a counterclaim in an action brought in North Carolina against the owner of such claim by the executors of a general partner in such firm of factors doing business in New York, arising out of a consignment of goods to such firm for sale, may be set up as a counterclaim in an action brought in North Carolina against the administrator de bonis non of the estate of a person doing business in New York, where the injury does not cause death by this section, provided the action is not for personal injuries which do not survive. Watts v. Vanderhill, 167 N. C. 567, 84 S. E. 831.

Actions for Personal Torts.—At common law, a right of action for personal injuries arising out of a collision of railroad trains survives the tort feasor, and the doctrine is not changed where the injury does not cause death by this section, provided that no action shall abate by death, etc., or that the cause of action shall continue, etc., these provisions relating to such actions as survive, and not to actions for personal injuries, which do not survive. Watts v. Vanderhill, 167 N. C. 567, 84 S. E. 831.

Death of Part of Plaintiffs.—Where two or several of plaintiffs died and, there being no personal representative within a year thereafter, no motion was made to continue the action as to them, but the cause remained upon the docket and was proceeded with by the remaining plaintiffs, whose rights were finally determined, and the defendants did not apply to have the action abated as to the deceased parties, the court was bound to allow the personal representative of such deceased parties to file a supplementary complaint and prosecute the action, his motion to be allowed to do so having been made before the final judgment which was rendered in the cause. State v. Flythe, 114 N. C. 274, 19 S. E. 701.

Judgment Ex Mero Mctu.—A judgment is necessary to abate an action where the court may, ex mero motu, enter a judgment when it appears that plaintiff failed for a year to prosecute his action against the representatives or successors in interest of the original defendant, whose rights have been determined by judgment or decree; there had been no discontinuance of the action. Rogerson v. Leggett, 145 N. C. 7, 58 S. E. 596.

b. n. or c. t. a. as party in proceeding for final settlement, see § 28-168.

Continuity of Action. — In an action begun by or against a party in his right or interest, and in which the action is by or against his representative or successor in interest, this section requires that, in such instances, the summons shall be returnable before the clerk and in effect the action shall be a new and independent trial, thus recognizing the continuity of the action and the trial thereof in the county in which it had been brought. Latham v. Latham, 178 N. C. 12, 13, 100 S. E. 131.

Duty of Adverse Party. — When either party to a suit dies before judgment, it is the duty of the adverse party to suggest the death to the court. Wood v. Watson, 107 N. C. 52, 69 S. E. 49.

Upon the suggestion of death of defendant, it is the duty of the clerk to issue summons to the representatives or persons who succeed to the rights or liabilities of the deceased party; and the law does not contemplate that a plaintiff may keep his action in semidormant condition until it suits his pleasure or interest to call the heir at law into court, when by such conduct he has become disabled to make his defense. Rorer v. Leggett, 145 N. C. 7, 58 S. E. 596.

Presumption When Administrator Defends. — Where the record shows that a party through his counsel assumed the defense of an action as administrator, the regularity of his admission as a party in place of his intestate is sufficiently established, though the death of the intestate as having occurred during the progress of the cause was not suggested, as the service of the notice issued to him appeared to have been made. Alexander v. Patton, 90 N. C. 57.

Administrator of Obligee on Bond Made a Party. — Where the obligee on a bond given for the support of another for life, and for a valuable consideration, has failed to comply therewith, and the obligee has since died, leaving the obligor responsible under the terms of the bond for moneys due for the former's reasonable support, the action upon the bond, brought by the obligee, does not abate upon his death, and the superior court clerk has the authority to make his administrator a party under this section. Martin v. Martin, 162 N. C. 41, 77 S. E. 1104.

Action for Account. — In an action for an account and settlement, the death of the defendant being suggested, his executor comes in and is made a party defendant. Grant v. Bell, 91 N. C. 495.

Judgment Set Aside Where No One Authorized to Represent Estate at Trial. — Where it appears that at the time of trial there was no one authorized to represent the estate, this constitutes a meritorious reason for setting aside the judgment, not essential to jurisdiction.

These sections relating to venue all refer to "actions" and have no reference to the writ of habeas corpus which has been denominated a "high prerogative writ." McEachern v. Pate-Pacheco, 210 N. C. 102, 184 S. E. 434.

Venue a Matter of Legislative Control. — The venue of civil actions is a matter for legislative regulation, and is not governed by the rules of common-law. Interstate Cooperative Co. v. Eureka Lumber Co., 151 N. C. 455, 456, 66 S. E. 434. It deals with procedure and is not jurisdictional, in the absence of statutory provision to that effect. Southern Railway Co. v. Ainsworth, 151 N. C. 506; Latham v. Latham, 178 N. C. 12, 13, 100 S. E. 131; Clark v. Carolina Homes, 189 N. C. 703, 128 S. E. 20, 25.

This subchapter is in restraint of the common law, as, without such express enactment, the plaintiff might make a choice of venue anywhere within the state. State v. Stone, 52 N. C. 382.

Contract Stipulation Regarding Venue. — There is a difference between the venue of an action, the place of trial, and jurisdiction of the court over the subject-matter of the action, and the parties to such contract may, in advance of any disagreement arising thereunder, designate a jurisdiction exclusive of others, and confine the trial therefor in opposition to the will of the Legislature expressed by this section; and a motion to remove a cause brought in the proper jurisdiction on the ground that the contract otherwise specified it, will be denied. Gathier v. Charlotte Motor Car Co., 183 N. C. 498, 109 S. E. 362.

Determining Nature of Transaction. — In Council v. Bailey, 154 N. C. 54, 59, 69 S. E. 760, it is said; "This Court has recently held in Bridges v. Ormond, 148 N. C. 375, 62 S. E. 422, that such a motion as this one (as to proper venue) must be considered with reference to the questions as to whether the jurisdiction of the court was exercised by the pleadings, and does not depend on their decision solely upon the allegations of the complaint."

Applicability to Trials before Justices. — In Fisher v. Bullard, 109 N. C. 574, 13 S. E. 799, the Court said: We do not find a statute subordinating the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure (this section), as to the place for trial, applicable to trials before a justice." But section 7-149 provides that the whole chapter on civil procedure is applicable in certain attachment cases before justices. Mohn v. Creesey, 193 N. C. 568, 571, 137 S. E. 718.

An action by an administrator is not within any of the subdivisions of this section. Whitford v. North State Life Ins. Co., 154 N. C. 43, 52 S. E. 69.

II. ACTIONS RELATING TO REAL PROPERTY.

A suit to set aside a deed of trust for lands, and to establish a prior lien thereon in plaintiff's favor, involves an estate heating way on trains, see § 69-104; for receiving stolen goods, see § 14-71; for discrimination against the Atlantic and North Carolina Railroad, see § 60-8. As to venue in partition proceedings, see § 46-2. See note under § 1-82.

I. IN GENERAL.

Editor's Note. — That the differences between venue and jurisdiction have been the source of some confusion in North Carolina, as elsewhere, is apparent from a perusal of the cases pertaining to the subject of this article. In order to bring out these distinctions existing between these two subjects the following excerpt, appearing in most of the later text treatises, is quoted insofar as it is applicable to North Carolina.

Lile, in his admirable treatise on Equity Pleading and Practice contrasts jurisdiction and venue as follows:

"1. Jurisdiction connotes the powers of the court—venue the otherwise specified it, will be denied. Gathier v. Charlotte Motor Car Co., 183 N. C. 498, 109 S. E. 362.

Determining Nature of Transaction. — In Council v. Bailey, 154 N. C. 54, 59, 69 S. E. 760, it is said; "This Court has recently held in Bridges v. Ormond, 148 N. C. 375, 62 S. E. 422, that such a motion as this one (as to proper venue) must be considered with reference to the questions as to whether the jurisdiction of the court was exercised by the pleadings, and does not depend on their decision solely upon the allegations of the complaint."
or interest therein, within the intent and meaning of this section. Henrico Lumber Co. v. Dare Lumber Co., 180 N. C. 150, 152, 154, 156, 158. Where the wife of a debtor is made party defendant in an action in the nature of a creditors' bill in order to set aside his deed to her for fraud and subject the land to the satisfaction of a claim, it is not essential to the proof of the plaintiffs' claims that the action be brought in the county in which the property is located. Wofford-Falk Co. v. Commonwealth, 173 N. C. 660, 66 S. E. 341, 342.

Setting Aside Sale.—A suit by a purchaser of land to set aside the purchase and to cancel certain of his notes for money judgment against the owner alleging a fraudulent representation by the owner as to the quantity of land in dispute in one of the lots, without which he would not have purchased, the controversy involves an interest in the land which can be moved from the county where it is located. Vaughan v. Fallin, 133 N. C. 318, 111 S. E. 513.

An action to impress a parol trust upon lands and for an accounting accounting involves a determination of an interest in lands, and the proper venue, under this section, therefore, is in the county in which the land is situated. Williams v. McKearney, 208 N. C. 361, 119 S. E. 746.

Action on Note Secured by Deed of Trust.—An action against the endorser of a negotiable note, secured by a deed of trust on land, is not an action involving an estate in land, and, therefore, does not have venue in the county where the land is located. White v. Rankins, 205 N. C. 104, 173 S. E. 282.

Specific Performance.—The fact that there are other questions to be tried in the county where the land is situated, does not alter the venue of the recognition of the suit to be one defendant (trustee) to sell and another defendant to convey land in one of the lots. Wofford-Falk Co. v. Commonwealth, 173 N. C. 660, 66 S. E. 341, 342.

An action to subrogation to the rights of the vendor and to recover the purchase price, latter, with intention to bring the action is pending. Falls, etc., Mfg. Co. v. Brower, 105 N. C. 440, 111 S. E. 313.

Conversion as Aggravation of Damages.—Where the intention of the pleading was to sue for a trespass on the land, and the cause of action was not one of conversion, the refusal of the lower court upon motion to remove the same to the county in which the land was situated, was erroneous. Rackan v. Fain & Co., 173 N. C. 686, 92 S. E. 612.

Setting Aside Grant or Patent.—This section applies to the exclusion of section 146-27, which controls where there are separate transactions affecting distinct pieces of property lying wholly in different counties. Kanawha Hardwood Co. v. Waldo, 161 N. C. 196, 76 S. E. 680.

Docketed judgments confer no estate or interest in real estate, and do not produce the subdivision of the section, but merely the right to subject the realty to the payment of the judgments by sale under execution, and hence an action to set aside such judgment was inserted in aggravation of damages, the refusal of the lower court upon motion to remove the same to the county in which the land was situated, was erroneous. Advertising Works v. Roper Lumber Co., 161 N. C. 318, 75 S. E. 270.

Removal of Action to County Where Land Lies.—In an action for wrongful conversion of oysters taken from oyster beds, the defendant is not entitled to a change of venue to the county in which the beds are situated. Makely v. Kitchen Lbr. Co., 207 N. C. 144, 176 S. E. 195.

IV. FORECLOSURE OF A MORTGAGE OF REAL PROPERTY.

Editor's Note.—Section 46-2, in the article on Partition, is substantially the same as subdivision two of this section. The two provisions seem to constitute simply an illustration or application of the first subdivision of this section, as proceedings for partition certainly determine “a right or interest in real estate” in real estate in real estate in all cases.

This sub-section has never received a direct construction from the courts, but in The Matter of Skinner, 22 N. C. 63, decided prior to the merger of the courts of law and equity, it is held that there is no situs of the land for partition by a decree of the court of equity of either county.
Subrogation.—An action by the holder of certain notes given for the purchase of land against the purchaser of the land, and others, to be subrogated to the rights of the vendor, in the contract of sale of the land, which is substantially the same as an action "for the foreclosure of a mortgage of real estate," must be tried in the county in which the land is situated within the meaning of this subdivision. Fraley v. Portis, 53 N. C. 160, 5 S. E. 592.

In Connor v. Dillard, 129 N. C. 50, 39 S. E. 641, it is said: The action is "substantially for the foreclosure of a mortgage." (Granville v. Hulbert, 66 N. C. 160), and the judgment could be enforced only by subjecting a particular tract of real estate in another county. The enforcement of the judgment against that land is the sole object of the action. Falls, etc., v. Hulbert, 66 N. C. 160, 39 S. E. 345. The action had been for a mere personal judgment, though on a mortgage note, it could have been brought where plaintiff resides, and docketing the judgment would not convey to the plaintiff any estate in debtor's land. Gammon v. Johnson, 126 N. C. 64, 35 S. E. 185; McLean v. Shaw, 125 N. C. 491, 34 S. E. 634.

Land in Two Counties.—A foreclosure sale of land lying in two counties under a mortgage registered in both one county is authorized by this subdivision. King v. Portis, 81 N. C. 382.

Injunction.—The section of the Ohio code was not applicable to an injunction against a sheriff. A lien claimed to be invalid. 8 Circuit Court Reports 614, 619.

V. RECOVERY OF PERSONAL PROPERTY.

Editor's Note.—In Smithdeal v. Wilkersen, 100 N. C. 52, 6 S. E. 71, it was held that the requirements of subsection 4 of this section, were restricted to personal property, "dis- trained for any cause." Thereupon the 1889 construction section made the venue for the "recovery of personal property" in all cases in the county where the property is situated. Brown v. Cogdell, 136 N. C. 32, 48 S. E. 515.

It is not held that the venue of actions for the recovery of personal property is in the county where the property is situated, though the ancillary remedy of claim and delivery is not resorted to. Brown v. Cogdell, 136 N. C. 32, 48 S. E. 515.

Recovery as Sole Object.—Where the recovery of personal property is not the sole or chief relief demanded, it need not be brought in the county in which the property is located. Woodard v. Sauls, 134 N. C. 274, 46 S. E. 507; Bowen Piano Co. v. Newell, 177 N. C. 533, 98 S. E. 774.

As an action being for an accounting, and the question of ownership of notes and bonds being raised only incidentally, it need not be brought in the county in which they are situated. Clay v. McNeill, 167 N. C. 212, 48 S. E. 356.

Setting Aside Transfer.—An action to set aside the transfer of personal property as fraudulent, and for the appointment of a receiver, is not an action for the recovery of such property, and hence need not be brought in the county where the same is located, as provided by this subdivision of the section. Baruch v. Long, 117 N. C. 509, 23 S. E. 447.

§ 1-77. Where cause of action arose.—Actions for the following causes must be tried in the county where the cause, or some part thereof, arose, subject to the power of the court to change the place of trial, in the cases provided by law:

1. Recovery of a penalty or forfeiture, imposed by statute; except that, when it is imposed for an offense committed on a sound, bay, river, or other body of water, situated in two or more counties, the action may be brought in any county bordering on such body of water, and opposite to the place where the offense was committed.

2. Against a public officer or person especially appointed to execute his duties, for an act done by him by virtue of his office; or against a person who by his command or in his aid does anything touching the duties of such officer. (Rev., s. 140; Code, s. 191; C. C. P., s. 67; C. S. 461.)

Cross References.—As to suit on official bond, by board of county commissioners, of sheriff, etc., see § 155-18. As to neglect of duty by member of board of county commis- sioners, a managers to such board, of action against registers of deeds, see §§ 161-16, 161-27. As to corporate powers of municipal corporation, see § 160-2. As to quo warranto, see § 1-514 et seq. As to mandants, see § 1-311 et seq.

Editor's Note.—In spite of the fact that section 1-76 provides that actions for injuries to realty must be brought in the county where the land lies, it is held that damage to lands occasioned by the acts of public officers in counties other than where the land lies, must be brought, as provided in this section, where the cause arose. For example in Cecil v. High Point, 165 N. C. 431, 81 S. E. 616 it was held that commissioners, 67 N. C. 130; Jones, did incorporate town damages to the lands of an owner situated in an adjoining or different county, caused by the improper method of emptying its sewage into an insufficient stream of water, is properly in the county wherein the town is situated, for such cause arose by reason of the official conduct of municipal officers and consequently is regulated by this section.

This interpretation is not irreconcilable with the provision of the preceding section; it merely constitutes an illustration of the doctrine that the courts will be reluctant to declare any part of a statute invalid. The rule should be harmonized with other seemingly inconsistent parts—in this instance by interpreting this section as an exception to the preceding section whenever necessary, i. e. whenever the recovery of personal property fairly comes within the meaning of this subsection.

By His Command or In His Aid.—The words, "in his command," were meant to extend the immunity to all who assisted and took part in the act with his assent, though not by his direct orders, for all such stand upon the same foot- ing. Harvey v. Brevard, 98 N. C. 93, 3 S. E. 911.

The obligors on a bond to indemnify a sheriff against loss, etc., in seizing and selling property under execution, are not included in that class of persons "who by his command, or in his aid shall do anything touching the duties of such office." Harvey v. Brevard, 98 N. C. 93, 3 S. E. 911.

Officers of Counties and Cities.—The Supreme Court has repeatedly and uniformly held that actions against county commissioners and other county officers and officials, and the county of which they are officers, and cities and towns are of the like nature, and should stand upon the same footing as to actions against them. Johnston v. Board, 67 N. C. 101; Almstead v. Commissioners, 67 N. C. 322; Jones v. Statesville, 69 N. C. 412; Steele v. Commissioners, 70 N. C. 137; Jones v. Statesville, 97 N. C. 86, 88, 2 S. E. 346.

In Jones v. Statesville, 97 N. C. 86, 2 S. E. 2, 346, this section was construed by this Court, in the following language, to embrace a municipal corporation: "The defendant is a munici- pal corporation, public in its nature; it is an artificial per- son, created and recognized by the law, invested with im- portant corporate powers, public and, in a sense, artificial in their nature, and charged with public duties, which it executes by and through its officers and agents. We there- fore think that the action of the county was a county action, the meaning of and are embraced by the statutory provision first above recited (this section)," Brevard Light, etc., Co., v. Board, 151 N. C. 588, 566, 66 S. E. 569.

Action against Municipality Is Action against Public Officer.—The municipal corporation, as such, and its officers and agents, an action against a municipality is an action against "a public officer" within the meaning of this section. Murphy v. High Point, 12 S. E. (2d) 1.

Action against Municipality.—The venue of an action against a municipality is the county where the cause of action, or some part thereof, arose. Murphy v. High Point, 12 S. E. (2d) 1.

Where Cause of Action Arose.—The complaint alleged damage to plaintiff's land resulting from the negligent operation of defendant municipality's sewage disposal plant. The action was instituted in the county in which the land Fees and in which the municipality maintained and operated its sewage disposal plant and the municipality made a motion that the action be removed to the county in which it is located.

Applicable to All Actions Against Administrators.—"The object of the statute," says Mr. Justice Reade, speaking for the Court, "was to have suits against these persons, whether upon the bonds of the administratrix or administratrix or for the purpose of holding him liable for any act of his, or for any liability of his intestate incurred in his lifetime, must be brought in the county where the bond was given. If the principal or any of his sureties is in such county.

The same case criticizes and refuses to follow the dictum in State v. Peebles, 100 N. C. 348, 351, 6 S. E. 788, where it was stated that the" "instituent" action is to bring an action. Here a difference is apparent from the language of this section, in that the words of this section, such an action must be instituted in the county where the bonds took out letters and where they make their returns and settlements and transact all the business of the estate in their hands." Stanley v. Mason, 9 N. C. 1; Foy v. Morehead, 69 N. C. 69; Biggs v. Jordan, 45 N. C. 452. The same principle is recognized, in reference to an action upon a guardian bond, in State v. Staton, 78 N. C. 235, where the same eminent judge delivers the opinion.

Under this section an action against an administrator of a decedent, where the action was once brought as to the administrator or for the purpose of holding him liable for any act of his, or for any liability of his intestate incurred in his lifetime, must be brought in the county where the bond was given. If the principal or any of his sureties is in such county.

To Foreclose Tax Liens.—An action against the estate of a deceased person to foreclose a tax sale certificate must be brought in the county where the land is situate. Guilford County v. Estates Administration, Inc., 213 N. C. 563, 194 S. E. 195.

Applies to Actions Not Against By Administrators.—This section applies to actions against administrators and not to actions brought by them. Whitford v. North State Life Ins. Co., 156 N. C. 42, 72 S. E. 85.

The clear inference from this section is that it was the purpose of the Legislature to make a distinction between actions by and against administrators, and when it is said that actions against administrators shall be brought in the county where the bond is filed, and nothing is said as to actions by administrator, it excludes the idea that actions instituted by the administrator are necessarily to be brought in the county in which letters are granted. Whitford v. North State Life Ins. Co., 156 N. C. 43, 72 S. E. 85.

The clear inference from this section is that it was the purpose of the Legislature to make a distinction between actions by and against administrators, and when it is said that actions against administrators shall be brought in the county where the bond is filed, and nothing is said as to actions by administrator, it excludes the idea that actions instituted by the administrator are necessarily to be brought in the county in which letters are granted. Whitford v. North State Life Ins. Co., 156 N. C. 43, 72 S. E. 85.

Istituted."—The word "institutes" as used in this section signifies the commencement of the proceedings—to institute an action is to bring an action. Here a difference is apparent from the language of this section, in that the words of this section, such an action must be instituted where they provide as they provide that the action shall be "tried." In consequence of this distinction it is held that this section has no application where an action has been commenced in another county since the death of the decedent, and his administrator has been made a party. Latham v. Latham, 178 N. C. 12, 100 S. E. 131.

Where plaintiff instituted an action in the county of his residence to collect damages resulting from an automobile collision, and the defendant died prior to service of process and thereupon defendant's administratrix as joined as a party defendant, the administratrix may not claim that the action is not properly pending because not instituted in the county in which she had given bond, since venue is governed by the status of the parties at the commencement of the action, and not by the death of the administratrix. State v. Staton, 78 N. C. 235, 47 S. E. 535.

Action for Account and Settlement. — Where an action involves an account and settlement of an estate, by the express words of this section, such an action must be instituted in the county in which the estate is located. In the case of Roberts v. Connor, 125 N. C. 45, 34 S. E. 107, does not conflict with this position. That was a suit which concerned the conduct of a bank as administrator, and the decision was on the express ground that the official acts and conduct of the executor were in no wise involved. Thomas v. Ellington, 162 N. C. 131, 132, 78 S. E. 12.

Cases against Administrators. — An action against an administrator of B, in Halifax County, and gave bond there. Afterwards A died in Northampton, and C qualified as his administratrix. In that county, B, an administratrix, in the county of the sureties on the bond of A, resided in Northampton, and were sued in Halifax County on the bond of A, by a residents of Halifax: Held, that the action was properly brought in Halifax under this section. State v. Peobles, 101 N. C. 348, 6 S. E. 796.

An action against an executrix to recover on a guardianship bond executed by testator is properly brought in the county where the cause was instituted, and the sureties thereto resided and in which the administrators of the sureties qualified, and the motion of defendant executrix to remove as a matter of right to the county in which the sureties qualified is overruled. McCarter v. Garret et al., 85 N. C. 564. Hence the trial judge in the exercise of a sound discretion has the power to remove the cause to another county for trial since the wording of this section does not necessarily mean that the cause should be actually tried in the county where the bond was given and the residence of the sureties and not the solvency or insolvency of the sureties.

Quoted in Bohannon v. Wachovia Bank, etc., Co., 210 N. C. 679, 188 S. E. 390.

§ 1-79. Domestic corporations.—For the purpose of suing and being sued the principal place of business of a domestic corporation is its residence. (Rev., s. 422; 1903, c. 806; C. S. 466.)

Cross Reference.—As to actions against railroads, see § 1-81.

Editor's Note.—Prior to the passage of this section, there was no express statute regulating the venue in actions against domestic corporations and such actions were controlled by sec. 1-82. Farmers State Alliance v. Murrell, 119 N. C. 124, 25 S. E. 785. See also Clive v. Byson, etc., Co., 116 N. C. 83, 21 S. E. 791.

The purpose of this section was not to change the provisions of section 1-81 or to deny plaintiff's right to sue a domestic corporation in the county where the corporation is regularly engaged in carrying on business. In re Holmes, 115 N. C. 580, 18 S. E. 591. Hence the section being that actions on official bonds should be instituted in the county in which the bonds were given if the principal place of business of the corporation is in the county of the venue, the court declined to remove the action to another county which had jurisdiction under sec. 1-81. State v. Patterson, 213 N. C. 138, 195 S. E. 399.

In an action on a guardianship bond instituted in the county in which the bond was given and the sureties resided, the court may remove the action to another county where the administrators of the sureties were joined to prevent removal to the county in which the executrix of the principal on the bond qualified, is untenable, since the controlling factors are the residence of the sureties and not the solvency or insolvency of the sureties.

Quoted in Bohannon v. Wachovia Bank, etc., Co., 210 N. C. 679, 188 S. E. 390.

§ 1-80. Foreign corporations.—An action against a corporation created by or under the law of any other state or government may be brought in the superior court of any county in which the cause of action arose, or in which the corporation usually did business, or has property, or in which the plaintiffs, or either of them, reside, in the following cases:

1. By a resident of this state, for any cause of action.

2. By a nonresident of this state in any county where he or they are regularly engaged in carrying on business.

3. By a plaintiff, not a resident of this state, when the cause of action arose or the subject of the action is situated in this state. (Rev., s. 423; Code, s. 194; C. C. P., s. 361; 1876-7, c. 170; 1907, c. 460; C. S. 467.)

Cross References.—As to actions against railroads, see § 1-81. As to foreign corporations doing business in state, see sec. 1-82.

Does Not Affect Jurisdiction. — This section is under the subject of venue and not jurisdiction, and, though it enumerates certain cases, it does not purport to restrict the jurisdiction of the court or to prevent the exercise of such jurisdiction as therefores existed; and under our own decisions and those of New York, from which the statute was adopted, it does not interfere with the jurisdiction of our courts of transitory causes of actions.

In Robinson v. The Oceanic Steam Co., 112 N. Y. 322, construing the prototype of this section, it is said: "This section did not affect jurisdiction. It was assumed by the parties in all the cases in which actions could be brought against foreign corporations, and did not absolutely limit the power and jurisdiction of the courts mentioned. It specified the cases in which foreign corporations could compulsorily, by service or process in the mode prescribed by law, be subjected to the jurisdiction of the courts. It did not deprive the courts of any of their general jurisdiction." See Ledford v. Western Union Tel. Co., 179 N. C. 63, 101 S. E. 533.

Section 1-81 an Exception. — The enactment of section 1-81 does not repeal this section, but the latter will be confined to actions against corporations other than railroads. State v. Patterson, 213 N. C. 138, 195 S. E. 399.

Applicability to Justices Court. — This section refers only to actions of which the superior court has jurisdiction, and was not intended to give such courts jurisdiction of civil actions founded on contract wherein the sum demanded shall not exceed $200. Howard v. Mutual Reserve Fund Life Assn., etc., Co., 100 N. C. 463, 10 S. E. 765.

Cutting Timber. — Where a nonresident plaintiff sues to recover from a nonresident defendant the value of timber alleged to have been cut and removed by the defendant to a different county from the place where the timber was cut and brought in the county where the conversion is alleged to have occurred, to maintain his action in the latter county he must show that the defendant conducted business, or had property therein, or the cause of action arose in the county where the land is situated that being the county wherein the cause of action arose. Richmond Cedar Works v. Roper Lumber Co., 161 N. C. 603, 604, 77 S. E. 499.

An action for a penalty can be brought against a foreign defendant before a justice of the peace in any county in which the defendant does business or has property, or where plaintiff resides. Allen-Fleming Co. v. Southern R. Co., 145 N. C. 37, 58 S. E. 793.

Fraternal Lodge. — Where defendant, the head lodge, had a local lodge in the county of the venue, in which members were received, the usual business of such lodges transacted, and membership fees collected and remitted to it, held, the transactions of the local lodge were such usual or continuous business as contemplated by the statute, and brings his action in the county where the conversion is alleged to have occurred, to maintain his action in the latter county he must show that the defendant conducted business or had property therein, or the cause of action arose in the county where the land is situated that being the county wherein the cause of action arose. Ange v. Sovereign Camp, W. O. W., 171 N. C. 251, 11 S. E. 470.

Claim of State. — Where a receiver of an insolvent foreign corporation was appointed under the corporation act of 1901, a claim by the state which chartered the corporation for annual license fees, was provable; this section, as to actions against foreign corporations, not applying to this proceeding. Holshouser v. Copper Co., 138 N. C. 248, 48 S. E. 170.

Garnishment against Salesmen. — The courts of this state have jurisdiction to proceed against a foreign corporation in... garnishment proceedings in an action brought in the state according to the laws of the state, the cause of action against it in favor of the salesmen having arisen here, is the subject of the action being situated here. Goodwin v. Claytor, 137 N. C. 224, 225, 49 S. E. 173.

(2) Actions for Death by Wrongful Act. — A foreign corporation may be sued by an administrator for the wrongful death of his intestate either in the county wherein the cause of action arose or that of the personal representative appointed herein. Hannon v. Southern Power Co., 173 N. C. 520, 93 S. E. 355.

§ 1-81. Actions against railroads. — In all actions against railroads the action must be tried either in the county where the cause of action arose or where the plaintiff resided at that time, or in some county adjoining that in which the cause of action arose, subject to the power of the court to change the place of trial as provided by statute. (Rev., s. 424; C. S. 468.)

Editor's Note. — This section was first enacted as a provision of section 424 of the Revisal. Section 424 (now §§ 1-81, 1-82) expressly added personal injuries. Propst v. Railroad, 139 N. C. 397, 51 S. E. 173; see note under § 1-76. This purpose of this section as originally enacted and as amended was primarily to serve the convenience of resident parties. Palmer v. Lowe, 194 N. C. 703, 705, 140 S. E. 769.

Construed with Other Provisions for Venue. — This section is general in its terms and subject to the provisions of section 1-76. Wofford-Fain & Co. v. Hampton, 173 N. C. 689, 117 S. E. 615.

Section 1-77, providing, among other things, that an action against a public officer be brought in the county wherein the cause of action arose, subject to the power of the court to change the place of trial, is general in its terms, and this section should be construed as an exception thereto, allowing an administrator to sue at his election in his own county for the wrongful death of his intestate. Hannon v. Southern Power Co., 173 N. C. 520, 93 S. E. 355.

Section Pertains to Venue Not Jurisdiction. — This section relates solely to venue and has no application to taking jurisdiction of an action brought here by a nonresident plaintiff against a railroad company, incorporated in North Carolina. McGovern & Co. v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 180 N. C. 219, 104 S. E. 354.

The word "personal" as used in this section means parties to the record. Rankin v. Allison, 64 N. C. 673.

Action for Personal Services to Administrator. — An action brought to recover for services rendered personally to an administrator or a receiver is a personal action against the administrator, etc., and can be brought at the election of the plaintiff in the county where either he or the defendant resides. Craven v. Bynum, 150 N. C. 107, 60 S. E. 373.

Action by Administrator. — An action by an administrator upon a life insurance policy of his intestate is properly brought in the county where the administrator resides, not against the administrator in person, but in the name of the decedent, words, "administrator, etc.," being descriptive of his title or the capacity in which he sues. Whitford v. North State Life Ins. Co., 156 N. C. 42, 72 S. E. 85. See notes of this case under section 1-78.

Personal Action against Administrator. — Where judgment was rendered against the estate of plaintiff's deceased guardian for money due the guardianship estate, and after reaching his majority plaintiff instituted this action alleging that defendant as executrix of the deceased guardian had paid over to herself, as sole devisee and legatee, money which plaintiff contended was wholly for the benefit of defendant as executrix but against her individually on a liability imposed upon her as legatee and devisee, and defendant's motion to remove from the county of plaintiff's residence to the county in which she was adjudged as executrix, was properly denied. Rose v. Patterson, 218 N. C. 212, 10 S. E. (2d) 678.

Action by Nonresidents on Foreign Judgment. — In an action against the defendant in the state, plaintiff's attachment of lands of defendant situate in a county in this state was rendered by judgment of a foreign court against defendant brought here by a nonresident plaintiff was entitled to maintain the action in any court of this state she might designate, the defendant's motion to remove to the county in which the real estate attached is not well taken, and of which attachment a copy is not properly filed. Austin v. Matheny, 216 N. C. 212, 10 S. E. (2d) 434.

Action by Receiver. — Where a receiver of a corporation...
§ 1-83. Change of venue.—If the county designated for that purpose in the summons and complaint is not the proper one, the action may, however, be tried therein, unless the defendant, before the time of answering expires, demands in writing that the trial be conducted in the proper county, and the place of trial is thereupon changed by consent of parties, or by order of the court.

The court may change the place of trial in the following cases:

1. When the county designated for that purpose is not the proper one.
2. When the convenience of witnesses and the ends of justice would be promoted by the change.
3. When the judge has, at any time, been interested as party or counsel. (Rev., s. 425; Code, s. 195; C. C. P., s. 69; R. C., c. 31, ss. 115, 118, 1870-1, c. 20; C. S. 470.)

I. IN GENERAL.

Section 1 relates to Venue Not Jurisdiction.—It has been held repeatedly that these statutes, sections 1-76 to 1-83, relate to venue and not jurisdiction, and that if an action is brought in the wrong county, it should be dismissed and removed for trial to the county wherein the bank conducts its business. Curlee v. National Bank, 187 N. C. 119, 121 S. E. 194.

An action on a note by the commissioner of banks, etc., is properly brought in the county in which the insolvent bank is situated and of which the liquidating agent is a resident, and defendants' motion for change of venue to the county of their residence is properly refused. Hood v. Progressive Stores, 209 N. C. 35, 183 S. E. 694.

Nonresident Plaintiffs.—The county of the residence of that plaintiff cannot be made a defendant, and the venue of the action is laid in the county wherein the building is situated, but comes removed to the county wherein the bank conducts its business. Curlee v. National Bank, 187 N. C. 119, 121 S. E. 194.

An action under § 209; .193 S. E. Wise v. Dudley, 219 Durham, in Durham County, North Carolina, and the defendant, in an action upon alleged breach of contract is determined by the place of residence of the defendant, in an action for alimony without divorce, where a husband forced his wife to leave his home at night and she was compelled to seek the shelter of his neighbor, she could acquire a separate domicile, and may sue the husband for alimony without divorce in the county of her residence and he cannot remove the case to the county of his residence. Hannon v. Southern Power Co., 173 N. C. 33, 190 S. E. 750.

In an action for alimony without divorce, although § 50-16 provides that "the wife may institute an action in the superior court of the county in which the cause of action arose," the venue, thus prescribed, is not exclusive, if either plaintiff or defendant reside in another county at the commencement of the action. Dudley v. Dudley, 219 N. C. 384, 14 S. E. (2d) 787.

Where Bank and Its Officers Sued Jointly.—Where in good faith a citizen and resident of one county, sues jointly in tort a national bank located in another county, and its officers, the defendant may not as of right have the cause removed for trial to the county wherein the bank conducts its business. Curlee v. National Bank, 187 N. C. 119, 121 S. E. 194.

complaint of the plaintiff; we think the tenor and object of the two statutes are the same, i. e., to require the defendant to object to the jurisdiction in limine by moving to remove as soon as the defendant has had an opportunity to be heard by the clerk to have plaintiff's action against him removed to the proper county by filing an affidavit in writing that the trial be conducted in the proper county.

II. WAIVER "F RIGHT TO CHANGE.

Effect of Failure to Comply with Section.—The matter of venue is not jurisdictional in the first instance, and the defendant will lose his right to have an action against him removed from the proper county to another if he fails to move to remove complies with the provisions of this section, and that before the expiration of the time for filing his answer he must demand in writing that the county in which he is to be found be the proper county. Roberts v. Moore, 185 N. C. 254, 116 S. E. 728.

Venue cannot be jurisdiction and it may always be waived. Clark v. Carolina Homes, 189 N. C. 703, 128 S. E. 205. See also, Wynne v. Conrad, 220 N. C. 355, 17 S. E. (2d) 514. When venue was motion when neither "made in writ-
In Craven v. Munger Lumber Co., 170 N. C. 424, 426, 87 S. E. 216, it is said: "The statute is explicit that the judge 'may' remove the cause to another county when it appears that the convenience of witnesses or the ends of justice may be subserved thereby. Its language makes it a matter of discretion in the court, and in the only four cases in which the matter has ever been contested by appeal this Court has sustained the plain meaning of the words as giving "94 N. C. 787.""

A motion for the removal of a cause from one county to another for convenience of witnesses and to promote the ends of justice under this section is addressed to the sound discretion of the judge subject to the control of the courts when it is suggested on oath or affirmation that a fair and impartial trial cannot be had in the county in which the action is brought. The plain language of its subject matter makes it a matter of discretion in the court, and in the only four cases in which the matter has ever been contested by appeal this Court has sustained the plain meaning of the words as giving "94 N. C. 787."

What Constitutes Abuse of Discretion—Illustrated.—Under the provisions of secs. 1-82, 1-83, it is within the sound discretion of the trial judge to change the venue of an action sounding in tort, to another, when in his judgment the county in which it is removed, is not such an abuse thereof as to reverse his judgment on appeal. Curlee v. National Bank, 187 N. C. 119, 121 S. E. 194.

Second Appeal.—Upon refusal of defendant's motion to transfer a cause for improper venue, the defendant gave notice of appeal which he did not perfected and at such time as the subsequent term renewed the motion, but upon another ground—for the convenience of witnesses and to promote the ends of justice, it was held, and the appeal perfected. Held, the granting or refusal of the second motion was in the discretion of the trial judge, and upon the record the appeal will be held frivolous by this Court, and the judgment appealed from affirmed as therein properly made. Ludwig v. Mining Co., 171 N. C. 61, 87 S. E. 949.

§ 1-84. Removal for fair trial.—In all civil and criminal actions in the superior and criminal courts, when it is suggested on oath or affirmation, on behalf of the state or the traverser of the bill of indictment, or of the plaintiff or defendant, that there are probable grounds to believe that a fair and impartial trial cannot be obtained in the county in which the action is pending, the judge may order a copy of the record of the action removed to some adjacent county for trial, if he is of the opinion that a fair trial cannot be had in said county, after hearing all the testimony offered on either side by affidavits. The county from which the cause is removed must pay to the county in which the cause has been transferred the full amount paid by the trial county for jurors' fees, and the full costs in the cause which are not taxable against or cannot be recovered from a party to the action, and for which the trial county is liable. (Rev., s. 426; Code, s. 196; 1879, c. 45; 1899, c. 104, 508; 1806, c. 693, s. 12; 1917, c. 44; C. S. 471.)

Reasons for Removal.—An affidavit for the removal of a cause, which does not set forth the reason of affiants' believing that a fair and impartial trial cannot be had in the county, is insufficient. State v. Tyrty, 9 N. C. 248.

A statement that a fair and impartial trial cannot be had will not suffice. Id. p. 259.

Discretion of Trial Judge.—Change of venue on ground of local prejudice is addressed to the discretion of the trial judge. Stroud v. United States, 231 U. S. 15, 64 L. Ed. 103, 40 S. Ct. 50. See also State v. Davis, 203 N. C. 13, 26, 164 S. E. 736; State v. Godwin, 216 N. C. 49, 3 S. E. (2d) 347.

Counter Affidavit.—When the judge is not satisfied by the affidavits offered, it is immaterial that counter affidavits are not presented. Benton v. R. R., 122 N. C. 1059, 30 S. E. 333.

Appeal.—The findings of fact by the court that the defendants could secure a fair trial is conclusive, and the court's refusal to remove the cause for the convenience of witnesses and to promote the ends of justice is not reviewable. Albertson v. Terry, 109 N. C. 9, 13 S. E. 713, and cases cited. State v. Smarr, 121 N. C. 659, 28 S. E. 549; State v. Turner, 143 N. C. 651, 57 S. E. 158; State v. Johnson, 170 N. C. 780, 82 S. E. 237.

This is true, even though the judge further states in his order that his findings were based on his personal observation. Gilliken v. Norcom, 193 N. C. 352, 137 S. E. 136.

The rule of law governing motions for removal for the causes specified, is thus declared in Phillips v. Lents, 83 N. C. 240; "The distinction seems to be where there are no facts stated in the affidavit as grounds for removal, the ruling of the court below may be reviewed; but where there are facts set forth, their sufficiency rests in the discretion of the judge and his decision upon them is final."

Admission of Facts.—The affidavit is required to make the facts appear to the Court, if they are admitted, or agreed on by the parties, this is sufficient, and it is not necessary that they should appear in the record or order of removal. Emry v. Hardie, 94 N. C. 787.

It is within the power of counsel to consent that the Court might hear and consider the facts as if stated in an affidavit. Kright v. Harbison & Co., 173 N. C. 532, 176 S. E. 257.

When it is stated in the order, that the motion is heard "as on affidavit," the implication is, nothing else appearing, that all the parties consented to accept the facts as stated in the affidavit. Hunter v. Hartsell, 172 N. C. 293, 185 S. E. 194.

Cited in McFadden v. Maxwell, 198 N. C. 223, 151 S. E. 250.

§ 1-85. Affidavits on hearing for removal; when removal ordered.—No action, civil or criminal, shall be removed, unless the affidavit sets forth particularly and in detail the ground of the application. It is competent for the other side to controvert the allegations of fact in the application, and to offer counter affidavits to that end. The judge shall order the removal of the action, if he is satisfied after thorough examination of the evidence as aforesaid that the ends of justice demand it. (Rev., s. 437; Code, s. 197; 1879, c. 45; 1899, c. 104, s. 2; C. S. 472.)

See notes preceding section.

§ 1-86. Additional jurors from other counties instead of removal.—Upon suggestion made as provided by § 1-84 or on his own motion, the presiding judge, instead of making order of removal may cause as many jurors as he deems necessary to be summoned from any county in the same judicial district or in an adjoining district by the sheriff or other proper officer thereof, to attend, at such time as the judge designates, and serve as jurors in said action. The judge may direct the required number of names to be drawn from the jury box in said county in such manner as he may direct, and a list of the same to be delivered to the sheriff or other proper officer of the county, who shall at once summon the jurors so drawn to appear at the time and place specified in the order. In case a jury is not obtained from those so summoned the judge may, in like manner, from time to time, order additional jurors summoned in the county where the trial is being held, until a jury is obtained. These jurors are subject to challenge for cause as other jurors, but not for nonresidence in the county of trial, or service within two years, or not being freeholders, and all jurors so summoned are entitled to compensation for mileage and time, to be paid by the county to which they are summoned, at the rate now provided by law for regular jurors in the county of their residence. Provided, that when the judge shall determine that it is necessary to have a special venire drawn from an adjoining county, instead of directing the jurors to appear at the courthouse in the county where the trial is pending, he may order them to summon additional jurors in their own county, and in lieu of their receiving mileage in going from their own county to the county in which the trial is held, it shall be optional with the county where the trial is held to provide transportation to said jurors from their own county seat to the place of trial and return instead of paying mileage to the jurors in going from their county seat to the place of trial. (1913, c. 4, ss. 1, 2; 1931, c. 308; 1933, c. 248; C. S. 473.)

Local Modification.—Ashe, Durham: 1933, c. 248.

Cross Reference.—As to jurors generally, see § 9-1 et seq.

Editor's Note.—The Act of 1931 amended this section to allow the presiding judge "on his own motion" to cause additional jurors to be summoned from any county in "an adjoining district" to try a case in the county where it is pending and from which removal of the cause was sought because of the possibility of an unfair trial by a local jury. He was restricted to "any adjoining county in the same judicial district" by the former law. See 9 N. C. Law Rev. 379.

The proviso at the end of this section relating to special venires to save mileage allowance, was added by Public Laws 1933, c. 248.

Discretion of Judge. — The trial judge, when refusing defendant's motion to remove an action for homicide to another county, may, in the exercise of his sound discretion, have the jurors summoned from any adjoining county, or from any county in the same judicial district, or have jurors drawn from the jury box of such county. State v. Kincaid, 183 N. C. 709, 110 S. E. 612; State v. Baxter, 238 N. C. 90, 179 S. E. 450. Under this section the granting of a solicitor's motion that the jury be drawn from the body of another county is within the court's discretion. State v. Shipman, 202 N. C. 518, 163 S. E. 685. Applied in State v. Beard, 187 N. C. 673, 178 S. E. 242. In State v. Green, 207 N. C. 369, 177 S. E. 120.

§ 1-87. Transcript of removal; subsequent proceedings. — When a case is directed to be removed, the clerk shall transmit to the court to which it is removed a transcript of the record of the case, with the prosecution bond, bail bond, and the depositions, and all other written evidences filed therein; and all other proceedings shall be had in the county to which the place of trial is changed, unless otherwise provided by the consent of the parties in writing duly filed, or by order of court. (Rev. s. 428; Code, ss. 195, 198; R. C., c. 31, s. 118; 1805, c. 694, s. 12; 1810, c. 787; C. C. P., s. 69; C. S. 474.)

Time to Deposit. — When an action is ordered removed to another county, it is error in the Judge presiding in the Superior Court of the county from which the cause is removed, at the close of term of the Court in the county to which it was removed, to direct that the action be dismissed if the cost of the transcript be not paid in a time specified. The party procuring the order of removal has until the term of the Court to which the cause is removed to deposit his transcript. Fisher v. Cid. Copper Mining Co., 105 N. C. 123, 10 S. E. 1055.

SUBCHAPTER V. COMMENCEMENT OF ACTIONS.

Art. 8. Summons.

§ 1-88. Civil actions commenced by.—Civil actions shall be commenced by issuing a summons; but no summons need issue in controversies submitted without action, and in confessions of judgment without action. (Rev., s. 429; Code, s. 199; C. C. P., s. 70; C. S. 475.)

Cross References.—As to submission of controversy without action, see § 1-250. As to confessions of judgments, see § 1-144. As to confessions of judgment without action, see § 1-144.

Secretary for Service of Summons. — Service of process or notice to appear is essential to make the jurisdiction of all courts, as sufficiently appears from the well known legal maxim, that no one shall be condemned in his person without notice, and without opportunity to be heard in his defense. Smith v. Woolfolk, 135 U. S. 143, 149, 9 S. Ct. 1194, 33 L. Ed. 357; Renaud v. Abbott, 116 U. S. 277, 288, 6 S. Ct. 1194, 29 L. Ed. 629.

Art. 8. Summons. — Service of process or notice to appear is essential to make the jurisdiction of all courts, as sufficiently appears from the well known legal maxim, that no one shall be condemned in his person without notice, and without opportunity to be heard in his defense. Smith v. Woolfolk, 135 U. S. 143, 149, 9 S. Ct. 1194, 33 L. Ed. 357; Renaud v. Abbott, 116 U. S. 277, 288, 6 S. Ct. 1194, 29 L. Ed. 629.

Service of summons is issued on defendant, who is required to appear at the time and place named and make his defense. Scott v. Jarrell, 180 N. C. 584, 861, 24 S. E. 668.

When necessary. — A civil action shall be commenced by issuing a summons, except, in cases where the defendant is not within reach of the process of the court and cannot be personally served, when it shall be commenced by the filing of the affidavit to be followed by publication. McClure v. Fellows, 131 N. C. 598, 42 S. E. 951, overruled. Grocery Co. v. Bag Co., 142 N. C. 174, 55 S. E. 467.

Same—Injunction Prior to Summons. — An injunction ordered by the judge upon reading the complaint, coupled with an order at the same time to issue a copy of the complaint and an order to serve a summons on the defendant, was irregular and premature, and therefore should be dissolved. Patrick v. Joyner, 63 N. C. 573. But this irregularity, if waived by the defendant, will not be noticed by the court sua sponte, see Horne v. Board, 122 N. C. 466, 29 S. E. 581; Armstrong v. Kinsell, 36 N. C. 151. An injunction is "ordered" within the meaning of this section when it passes from the clerk's office, or the office of a justice of the peace, under the sanction and authority of the officer, for the purpose of being served. Missouri v. Lewis, 197 N. C. 79, 80, 147 S. E. 729.

An action is pending from the issuance of summons until final determination by judgment. McPeters v. McPeters, 219 N. C. 731, 14 S. E. (2d) 831.

Suit Pending from Issuance of Summons.—A civil action is commenced when the summons is issued and, as this section fixes the inception of the action, suit is pending from that time and not exclusively from the time when the summons is served. Atkinson v. Greene, 197 N. C. 118, 120, 147 S. E. 811; Morrison v. Lewis, 197 N. C. 79, 147 S. E. 819.

Delivery to Sheriff. — A summons is issued when it is delivered to the sheriff, or some one for him; this is the consummation and it then relates back to the time when the summons is made by publication, such service by publication shall be completed within fifty days from the date of its issue; and upon serving the same, the officer shall note in writing upon the copy thereof, delivered to the defendant, the date of service, but failure to comply with this requirement shall not invalidate the service, and, if not served within sixty (60) days after the date of its issue upon every defendant, must be returned by the officer holding the same for service, to the clerk of the court issuing the summons, without notation thereon of its non-service and the reasons therefor as to every defendant not served. In all cases where service of summons is made by publication, such service by publication shall be completed within sixty days from the order of publication. Provided, that in all actions for tax foreclosures, street assessment foreclosures and sidewalk assessment foreclosures, summons must be served by the sheriff to whom it is addressed for service within sixty (60) days after the date of its issue; and upon serving the same, the officer shall note in writing upon the copy thereof, delivered to the defendant, the date of service, but failure to comply with this requirement shall not invalidate the service, and, if not served within sixty (60) days after the date of its issue upon every defendant, must be returned by the officer holding the same for service, to the clerk of the court issuing the summons, without notation thereon of its non-service and the reasons therefor as to every defendant not served. (Rev., ss. 430, 431; Code, ss. 200, 203, 213; C. C. P., s. 74; 1876-7, cc. 85, 241; 1919, c. 304, s. 1; Ex. Sess. 1920, c. 96, s. 1; Ex. For an analysis of this section, see 13 N. C. Law Rev., No. 4, 1938, pg. 105.

Editor's Note.—In view of the importance of the changes in this section effected by recent sessions of the legislature, it is thought that an outline of the procedure under the various acts may be of service. Prior to the amendment of 1935 service was required to be completed within fifty days from the commencement of the action instead of from the order of publication. The 1929 amendment added the words 'demanding expiration of the period of service.' These words have been retained. The proviso does not affect litigation pending on February 8, 1939.

Self.—Under the Original Code of Civil Procedure. — "The original Code of Civil Procedure required the defendant to appear and answer within a certain number of days after service of summons, in no case to be less than twenty days, thus making the day of service the determining date and the pleadings were made up at the next succeeding term. This eliminated very much delay and expense in legal proceedings, for no cases could be on the docket before the judge at term for which an answer was filed. When summons was made returnable to the term instead of before the clerk, this act was said: 'This system has been continued in all the States, unchanged, in which the new procedure had been adopted, it is believed, except in this State. In this State, at that time, our people were much embarrassed by the results of the war, and instead of desiring expedition in the determination of actions there was a desire to put off as long as possible the rendition of judgments for debt. Accordingly, the General Assembly, in the year 1868 [the year of the passage of this act], enacted that in all cases, within which the issues of fact had been formulated before the clerk, and that all pleadings should be made up and perfected before him, and when an issue of law is raised an appeal should lie to the judge at chambers, and be promptly acted on by him and returned. And further, that when an issue of fact arose upon the pleadings, as in cases in which the issues of fact had been formulated before the clerk, and the pleadings were made up at the next succeeding term, the cause should be turned over to the judge at term for trial except those in which the issues of fact had been formulated before the clerk by the pleadings.' See Campbell v. Campbell, 179 N. C. 413, 415, 102 S. E. 737.

In Campbell v. Campbell, 179 N. C. 413, 102 S. E. 737, it was said: 'Reference is made to the system of procedure in this State, unchanged, in which the new procedure had been adopted, it is believed, except in this State. In this State, at that time, our people were much embarrassed by the results of the war, and instead of desiring expedition in the determination of actions there was a desire to put off as long as possible the rendition of judgments for debt. Accordingly, the General Assembly, in the year 1868, enacted that in certain cases, entitled, an act suspending the Code of Civil Procedure, in certain cases,' ch. 76 Laws 1863-9, ratified 22 March, 1869, was enacted, which provided that summons should be made returnable to the term instead of before the clerk. This act... provided, sec. 13, that the suspending act should be temporary and in force only "until 1 January, 1971," But, owing to the generality, the act was sustained indefinitely, and then by oversight, though contradictory to the concept and intent of the Code of Civil Procedure (which required all process to be issued returnable before the clerk), it was held that the act was presented. A summons is a process issued by the court on the application or in the name of a plaintiff requiring a defendant to appear and answer the complaint. Since an appeal, the cause of action has not been obtained, it is believed, in any other State."

Same—Under Section 470 (G. S. 1-81) of the Consolidated Statutes.—By the Public Laws of 1919 what is commonly known as the "Crisp Act" was enacted. Formerly the summons was required to be returnable before the clerk at a date named therein, not less than ten nor more than twenty days from its issuance. The defendant was required to answer within twenty days of its return.

Same—Public Laws of 1923.—The Public Laws of 1923, c. 53, s. 2, read as follows: "When any summons is issued by any clerk of the Superior Court in North Carolina is not served upon any one or more of the defendants therein named ten days before the return day thereof, but is served before the return day thereof, such failure to serve the said summons shall not affect the pendency of the action, and as touching the defendant or defendants therein named upon whom service has not been made ten days before the return day named in the summons, the return day as to such defendants shall be the tenth day after the service of the summons on the said defendant or defendants."

The original return day under this act was the same as that pointed out in discussing the law under the Consolidated Statutes. Formerly it was claimed that if service was not made within ten days of the original return day then the return day was postponed automatically to ten days from the date of the service. For example if a summons issued on June 1 and served on June 10 were not perfected until June 15 the return day was extended to June 25.

This provision was amended by the act of 1927 which amended this section (as explained in a succeeding paragraph). The act was submitted to the following criticism in 1 N. C. Law Rev. 261: "The present change introduces again the element of uncertainty, since the plaintiff cannot know when the summons will be served, and his right to proceed at a definite time depends upon the diligence of the officer or other circumstances not within his control. It would seem desirable that the definite return day named in the summons should still control, not only for the sake of definiteness and uniformity in procedure, but because it enables the plaintiff to know when to look to the case, and at the same time gives reasonable protection to the defendant by giving him twenty days in all cases to answer, with the power in the clerk to extend the time for good cause shown." 1 N. C. L. R. 261.

This criticism probably prompted the passage of the 1927 Act.

Same—The Extra Session of 1921.—This act provided that the provisions of that section of the Crisp Act not altered by the Public Laws of 1927 are still in effect. This provision was omitted in the 1927 amendment, as the method of service is there specifically mentioned.

Same—Public Laws of 1927.—This section as amended by the 1921 Act constitutes more or less a reversion to the procedure extant before the passage of the "Crisp Act." There is no specified return day; appearance and answer are always thirty days after service (in conformity with the criticism cited above); service must be ten days after issuance; if not served within ten days it must be returned with reasons for non-service.

The rights of the defendant cannot be doubted by irregularity in making the summons require an appearance within less than the twenty days (now thirty after service) allowed by this section. Such summons is not necessarily repugnant, but on the other, or rather the first affords an additional and more effective method of service than the other, and the defendant is provided with a means of informing the court of his whereabouts. The meaning of return is also new.

Same—The Extra Session of 1920.—"In Campbell v. Campbell (179 N. C. 413, 110 S. E. 727) the summons was issued on July 21, returnable before the clerk on August 8; but since the defendant was a nonresident, and service was to be made by publication, the time of publication was extended by the court to August 23. It appears that the time was necessarily extended by operation of law, so that the return day for the defendant was August 23." See also N. C. C. P. § 1-89.

To meet this case, ch. 96, of the Public Laws, Extra Session 1920 enacted a proviso that the summons was to be returnable within forty days. This proviso was enacted by the Act of 1927, and the time is extended from forty to ninety days.

Same—Public Laws of 1929.—This act amended this section by striking out the following: "Upon the return of a summons not served for want of time to make service, as to any defendant or defendants not served, the Clerk shall, within thirty (30) days after issue, issue an alias or pluries summons, as the case may require."

Previous to this amendment the clerk was required to issue such summons if the process officer had not had time to serve the defendant within the thirty (30) days allowed by the statute, without the necessity of the plaintiff in the action applying therefor. Neely v. Minus, 196 N. C. 345, 145 S. E. 767. See note under § 1-89.

Notice that Relief Will Be Demanded.—Whether the omission of notice that "the plaintiff will apply to the court for the relief demanded in the complaint" would be futile under the words of the 1927 Act, the Court stated that this has become a material part of pleading.

Excuse for Failure to Answer or Demand in Time.—See note under § 1-104. R. 281. A summons must be served as now provided by law."

Summons in Quo Warranto Proceedings Must Meet Requirements of Section.—In order for a valid service of summons in quo warranto proceedings, the summons must be served on the clerk of the Superior Court in the county from which it was issued. "The term 'return' implies that the process is taken back to the place from which it was issued." In re Crittenden, 2 Plip., 215. It is the "bringing" that is required, a process which courts have said is not properly described as "return." Harmony v. Childress, 3 Yeag., 329. The summons must be served on the officer to make his return to the Superior Court of Northampton County, and as the return should not therefore be made elsewhere, it must be the return of the court. The plaintiff or the county cannot so serve the summons. Watson v. Mitchell, 108 N. C. 364, 12 S. E. 835.

When Summons Returnable.—Public Laws 1927 made material changes in the law theretofore existing. Formerly no summons was returnable before the clerk "at a date named therein not less than ten nor more than twenty days from the date of issuance," and if not served within ten days, it must be returned with reasons for non-service. It is now necessary that the true copy of the summons be served on the true copy of the complaint, and that the true copy of the complaint be served on the true copy of the defendant. The plaintiff or the county cannot therefore serve the summons. Watson v. Mitchell, 108 N. C. 364, 12 S. E. 835.

Meaning of Return.—The Code of 1883, sec. 200, expressly required a sheriff to whom a summons was directed to execute the same within ten days after the return day as to such defendants shall be the tenth day after the service of the summons on the said defendant or defendants.

This criticism probably prompted the passage of the 1927 Act. The summons must be served as now provided by law.
The similarity of this section and § 7-138 is striking and it follows that the two should be interpreted the same. Johnson v. Chambers, 219 N. C. 709, 770, 14 S. E. (2d) 789.

§ 1-90. Issued to several counties.—The plaintiff may issue a summons, directed to the sherifof any county where a defendant is most likely to be found, noting on each summons that it is issued in the same action. When the summons is returned, it shall be docketed as if only one had issued, and if any defendant is not served with such process, the same proceeding shall be had in the same action. When the summons was issued out of a recorder's court to another county in the same action, the recorder's court of Reidsville Township was authorized by this section. Williams v. Cooper, 222 N. C.
589, 591, 24 S. E. (2d) 404.

§ 1-93. Amount requisite for summons to run outside of county.—No summons in civil suits or proceedings shall run outside the county where issued, unless the amount involved in the litigation is more than two hundred dollars in matters arising out of contract and more than fifty dollars in matters arising in tort:
Provided, that this section shall not affect or limit the provisions of §§ 7-138, 7-140 to 7-143. (1939, c. 81.)

Editor's Note.—The Public Laws of 1923 added the part of the section, relating to service in case of danger of injury to the person. This applies to all courts, since the words used are 'when the summons is issued by any court of this state.' The first purpose is to relieve the officer from liability to a penalty for failure to serve the summons to run outside of county, and the issuance of a summons to another county addressed to the sheriff of that county was authorized by this section. Williams v. Cooper, 222 N. C.
589, 591, 24 S. E. (2d) 404.

§ 1-94. When officer must execute and return.
—The officer to whom the summons is addressed must note on it the day of its delivery to him and serve it by delivering a copy thereof to each of the defendants. In all cases when a summons is issued by any court of this state, and the officer to whom said summons is directed shall find that the person or persons against whom said summons is issued cannot be served without danger of injury to said person or persons on account of the condition of said person or persons arising from illness, accident or otherwise, the officer shall file with the clerk thereof a certificate from a reputable physician certifying to this fact, and said return shall relieve the said officer from any liability by reason of failure to actually serve the summons. The said officer shall as soon as possible make actual service of said summons, and when actually served the cause of action shall be deemed to have been commenced as of the date of the original summons, and the defendant shall have thirty days from the date of actual service within which to demur, answer or otherwise plead.
(Rev., s. 432; Code, s. 204; R. C., c. 51, s. 44; 1789,
c. 314, ss. 1, 2; 1813, c. 14, s. 2; C. S. 477.)

§ 1-91. When directed to officer of adjoining county.—If at any time there is not in the county a proper officer to whom summons or other proc-sedure may be directed and the sheriff is directed to be served, who can lawfully execute it; or if such officer refuses or neglects to execute the same, the clerk of the court from which it has issued or shall issue, upon the facts being verified before him by written affidavit, subscribed by the plaintiff or his agent, shall issue such summons or process to the sheriff of any adjoining county, who has power to and shall execute the same in like manner as if he were sheriff of the county. In all cases where the sheriff of any county is inter-tested, if there is no coroner in the county, proccess may be issued to and shall be executed by the sheriff of any adjoining county. (Rev., ss.

1530, 1531; Code, ss. 920, 980; R. C., c. 51, s. 55;
1779, c. 150; 1923, c. 4090; 882, c. 1132; 1846, c.
61; 1860-70, c. 175; C. S. 475.)

§ 1-92. Uniform pleading and practice in inferior courts where summons issued to run outside of county.—In all cases in which any court in North Carolina inferior to the Superior Court, except courts of Justices of the Peace, shall issue any summons to run outside the county of such inferior court, the case in which such summons is issued shall, as to the summons and the filing of all pleadings, be subject to, and governed by, the laws and rules applicable to actions in the Superior Court of North Carolina. (1931, c. 420.)

Cross References.—As to when coroner acts as sheriff, see § 152-8. As to rules of pleading generally, see § 1-143.

The recorder's court of Reidsville Township was authorized by the statute creating it to issue a summons run-ing out of the county, and the issuance of a summons to another county addressed to the recorder of that county was authorized by this section. Williams v. Cooper, 222 N. C.
589, 591, 24 S. E. (2d) 404.
When Discontinuance Occurs.—A discontinuance under this section occurs only when the summons has not been served. Rogers v. Leggett, 145 N. C. 7, 58 S. E. 596; Gomer v. Clayton, 214 N. C. 399, 199 S. E. 77.

The failure of service of the original summons in an action must be followed by an alias or pluries writ or a summons successively and properly issued in order to preserve a continuous single action referable to the date of its issue, for otherwise it is a discontinuance as to the defendant. And alias or pluries summons for the break in the chain is a new action. Hatch v. Alamance R. Co., 183 N. C. 617, 112 S. E. 329.

Under this section where in a civil action alias or pluries summonses are issued in the event of nonservice of the original, a break in the chain of summonses works a discontinuance, and where a summons is thereafter served it commences a new action. Neely v. Minus, 196 N. C. 345, 147 S. E. 771.

Where service of the original summons in this action was void because made on a Sunday and an "alias" summons thereafter issued was ineffective because not in the form prescribed by statute, upon the expiration of 90 days from the date of the original summons there was a discontinuance, and the court was without authority thereafter to order the issuance of an alias summons. Mints v. Frink, 217 N. C. 101, 6 S. E. (2d) 834.

§ 1-97. Service by copy.—The manner of delivering summons in the following cases shall be as hereinafter stated:

1. If the action is against a corporation, to the president or other head of the corporation, secretary, cashier, treasurer, director, managing agent for the purpose of this section. Such service may be in any manner as hereinafter stated:

2. If against a minor under the age of fourteen years, to the minor personally, and also to his father, mother or guardian, or if there are none within the state, to any person having the care, custody or control of the minor, or to whose care, custody or control he resides, or in whose service he is employed.

3. If against a person judicially declared of unsound mind, or incapable of conducting his own affairs in consequence of habitual drunkenness, and for whom a committee or guardian has been appointed, to such committee or guardian, and to the defendant personally. If the superintendent or acting superintendent of an insane asylum informs the sheriff or other officer who is charged with the duty of serving a summons or other judicial process, or notice, on an insane person confided in such asylum, that the summons, or process, or notice, cannot be served without danger to the person or property of the insane person, the officer must return the same without actual service, but with an endorsement that it was not personally served because of such information; and when an insane person is confined in a common jail it is sufficient for an officer charged with service of a notice, summons, or other judicial process, to return the same with the endorsement that it was not served because of similar information as to the danger of service on such insane person given by the physician of the county in which the jail is situated.

4. Every unincorporated, fraternal, beneficial organization, fraternal benefit order, association and/or society issuing certificates and/or policies for a continuous single action referable to the date of its issue, for otherwise it is a discontinuance as to the defendant. And alias or pluries summons for the break in the chain is a new action. Hatch v. Alamance R. Co., 183 N. C. 617, 112 S. E. 329.
of insurance, whether foreign or domestic, now or hereafter doing business in this state, shall be subject to service of process, in the same manner as is now or hereafter provided for service of process on corporations: Provided, this paragraph shall only apply in actions concerning such certificates and/or policies of insurance.

5. Every nonresident individual who is engaged in business in this state and who conducts such business through an agent, employee, trustee, or other representative in this state, or who is a member of a partnership, firm, or unincorporated organization or association, or beneficiary or shareholder in a business trust doing business in this state, shall be subject to process in any action or proceeding in any court of competent jurisdiction in this state arising out of or connected with such business in this state, and such process may be served upon such agent, employee, trustee, or other representative or upon any person in this state receiving or collecting money with respect to such business, or upon any member of such partnership, firm, organization or association residing in this state or upon any person residing in this state who is authorized to act or contract for or collect or receive money on behalf of such partnership, firm, organization, association, or business trust with respect to its business in this state. Within five days after such service the plaintiff or petitioner or his attorney shall send by registered mail to said nonresident individual at his last address, if known, a copy of the summons and a copy of the complaint or petition with a statement calling attention to the provisions hereof and of the expiration of the time to answer or demur. Such service shall bind such individual as fully and effectually as if it had been made upon him personally.

6. Any unincorporated association or organization, whether resident or nonresident, desiring to do business in this state by performing any of the acts for which it was formed, shall, before any such acts are performed, appoint an agent in this state upon whom all processes and precepts may be served, and certify to the clerk of the superior court of each county in which said association or organization does business in this state by performing any of the acts for which it was formed, shall, within thirty days from the ratification of this subsection, appoint an agent upon whom processes and precepts may be served, as provided in this subsection, and in the absence of such appointment, processes and precepts may be served upon the secretary of state, as provided in this subsection. Upon such service, the secretary of state shall forward a copy of the process or precept to the last known address of such unincorporated association or organization. (Rev. s. 440; Code, s. 217; C. C. P., s. 82; 1874-5, c. 168; 1899, c. 89; 1933, c. 24; 1941, c. 256; 1943, c. 478; C. S. 483.)

I. IN GENERAL.

Editor's Note.—The 1933 amendment added subsection 4, the 1941 amendment added subsection 5 and the 1943 amendment added subsection 6.

For comment on the 1941 amendment, see 19 N. C. Law Rev. 286.

Applicability to Criminal Actions. — This section though primarily intended as a regulation in the institution of a civil action, is equally appropriate in a criminal action, and its terms are sufficiently comprehensive to embrace both. State v. Western, etc., R. Co., 89 N. C. 584, 586.

Applicability in Justices' Court. — This section does not embrace a process returnable before a magistrate, Kirkland v. Rogers, 101 N. C. 144, nor do those provisions, in regard to the service of process upon corporations, apply to justices' courts. Katzenstein v. Raleigh, etc., R. Co., 78 N. C. 286, 297.

What Constitutes Delivery. — It would seem that the use of the word “delivery” in this section contemplates a delivery to the defendant in person, or his qualified agent or representative in this state, or who is authorized to act or contract for or receive money on behalf of such corporation in this state. R. v. Sutton, 185 N. C. 128, 197 S. E. 592. Delivery to any such person, whether resident or nonresident, is a valid delivery, and a separate copy of the summons must be served on and left with the agent in person, or his qualified agent or representative in this state. Atkinson v. Atkinson, 139 N. C. 1, 71 S. E. 630; Cox v. Cox, 221 N. C. 189, 15 S. E. (2d) 373.

II. SERVICE ON CORPORATIONS.

A. Corporations Generally.

Requirement Mandatory. — This requirement as to the mode of service on corporations must be strictly observed. Hatch v. Alamance R. Co., 183 N. C. 617, 621, 112 S. E. 529; Jones v. Vanstory, 200 N. C. 582, 157 S. E. 697.

The provisions of this section must be strictly followed, and a separate copy of the summons must be served on and left with the agent or corporate defendant. Hershey Corp. v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 200 N. C. 184, 165 S. E. 550.

The provisions of this section as to service of summons on private corporations must be strictly observed. In such cases the officers, directors of a corporation, are served with process as trustees, it will not be effectual as service on the corporation, but only on the individuals named. Jones v. Vanstory, 200 N. C. 582, 157 S. E. 697.
Local Agent. — The term local pertains to place, and a local agent to receive and collect money, ex officiis, means an agent residing either permanently or temporarily for the purpose of his agency, and was not intended to embrace a mere transient agent. Moore v. Freeman’s Nat. Bank, 92 N. C. 590, 596.

But the authority to receive money is not the exclusive test of the statute, but this is not the controlling test of agency. Cape Fear Rys. v. Cobb, 190 N. C. 375, 377, 129 S. E. 828. A local agent receiving premiums or commissions for a bonding company doing business in this State with a local office or agency in this State was within the contemplation of this section. Pardue v. Absher, 174 N. C. 676, 94 S. E. 414.

...had not intended to limit the service to such a class of agents, but rather to extend the word "agent" to embrace a mere transient agent. Moore v. Freeman’s Nat. Bank, 92 N. C. 590, 596.

A local agent receiving premiums or commissions for a bonding company doing business in this State with a local office or agency in this State was within the contemplation of this section. Pardue v. Absher, 174 N. C. 676, 94 S. E. 414.

Service on Bank Director. — The service of process authorized to be made on a director of a corporation, under this section, as applied to a bank, means one of the eleven principal directors, annually elected by the stockholders, and not a director appointed by the authorities of the bank for its branches or agencies. Webb v. President and Directors, 50 N. C. 288.

Service on Receiver. — An action against the receivers of a corporation is in fact an action against the corporation, and not against a management agent found here. A reason follows the proviso as to who shall be considered local agents for the purpose of the section, and the last clause establishes certain conditions, restrictive in their nature, which are required to be present before the service of process can be made on foreign corporations. That is, service on the persons designated in the first clause, shall only be good as to foreign corporations: (1) when they have property in the State, (2) when the cause of action arose therein, (3) when the plaintiff resides in the State, and then a fourth method is established, (4) when service can be made within the State personally on the president, treasurer, or secretary thereof.

This construction has been held also in McDonald v. McArthur Bros. Co., 154 N. C. 122, 69 S. E. 382; Higgs & Co. v. Sperry, etc., 139 N. C. 259, 45 S. E. 219, following Higgs & Co. v. Sperry, etc., Co., 139 N. C. 299, 51 S. E. 1020, and holding also that the fact that such agent received money for the corporation on a single instance does not alter this result.

A local agency for a foreign corporation acting as its general agent, and collecting and receiving money in the State, is not a local agent upon whom service of summons for the foreign corporation can be served. Moore v. Freeman’s Nat. Bank, 92 N. C. 590.

Superintendent. — The agent of a foreign corporation with superintendent, and collecting and receiving money in the State, is not a “local agent” for the purpose of service of summons under this section. Clinard v. White, 129 N. C. 250, 39 S. E. 960.

President before Court in Individual Capacity. — Where a bill was amended so as to make a corporation a party, it was held to be proper to serve the president of the corporation with a copy of the bill, although he was already before the court in his individual capacity. McRae v. Guion, 58 N. C. 129.

Agent of Telephone Company as Agents of Telegraph Company. — In Brown v. Western Union Tel. Co., 169 N. C. 599, 86 S. E. 290, it was held that the fact that an agent of a telephone company received messages for a telegraph company, and used the same equipment, was sufficient to be submitted to the jury on the question of whether the agent of the telephone company was such an agent of the telegraph company as for the purpose of service of summons. See Blades Lbr. Co. v. Finance Co., 204 N. C. 285, 168 S. E. 219, following Higgins & Co. v. Sperry, etc., Co., 139 N. C. 299, 51 S. E. 1020, and holding also that the fact that such agent received money for the corporation on a single instance does not alter this result.

A local agency for a foreign corporation acting as its general agent, and collecting and receiving money in the State, is not a “local agent” for the purpose of service of summons under this section. Clinard v. White, 129 N. C. 250, 39 S. E. 960.

An attorney for a foreign corporation, who presents an account to the plaintiff and requested payment thereof, and then sent to himself, but presented the account without authority and received no money, is not a “local agent” (under this section) for the purpose of service of summons. Higgins & Co. v. Sperry, etc., Co., 139 N. C. 299, 51 S. E. 1020.

Superintendent. — The agent of a foreign corporation with superintendent, and collecting and receiving money in the State, is not a “local agent” for the purpose of service of summons under this section. Clinard v. White, 129 N. C. 250, 39 S. E. 960.

A local agency for a foreign corporation acting as its general agent, and collecting and receiving money in the State, is not a “local agent” for the purpose of service of summons under this section. Clinard v. White, 129 N. C. 250, 39 S. E. 960.

A local agency for a foreign corporation acting as its general agent, and collecting and receiving money in the State, is not a “local agent” for the purpose of service of summons under this section. Clinard v. White, 129 N. C. 250, 39 S. E. 960.

A local agency for a foreign corporation acting as its general agent, and collecting and receiving money in the State, is not a “local agent” for the purpose of service of summons under this section. Clinard v. White, 129 N. C. 250, 39 S. E. 960.
place at which the cause of action arose are not material questions to be determined to maintain jurisdiction if the corporation can be found and served. Steel v. Western Union Telegraph Co., 132 N. C. 223, 17 S. E. 585.

When a foreign corporation has a place of business in this state and is here present transacting its corporate business through local agents, such corporation is amenable to service of summons under this section, depends upon the facts and the circumstances of this case. McDonald Service Co. v. People's Nat. Bank, 218 N. C. 533, 11 S. E. (2d) 556.

In the absence of any express authority, the question of whether a person or corporation residing in this state is the local agent of a foreign corporation for the purpose of service of summons under this section, depends upon the surrounding facts and the circumstances which the court may properly draw from them. Id.

An "agent" of a foreign corporation for the purpose of service of summons under this section is a person or corporation residing in this state properly or actually present for the purpose of the agency. McDonald Service Co. v. People's Nat. Bank, 218 N. C. 533, 11 S. E. (2d) 556.

The facts found by the court below upon the uncontested evidence appearing by affidavit and by stipulation of the parties, were to the effect that the bank, chartered by this state, upon which process was served, acted as a depository for the nonresident defendant bank, received money of the defendant for deposit, charged checks from the bank, and checked deposits by this state, upon which process was served, acted as a depository for the nonresident defendant bank, received money of the defendant for deposit, charged currency to defendant and when requested, and discounted notes of defendant's customers for defendant. Held: The depository bank was engaged in the discharge of the very functions for which it was organized, and it was conducting its own business and not that of the defendant, and the relation existing between the banks was that of creditor and debtor and not of agent and principal. Whether the depository bank was not the local agent of the nonresident bank for the purpose of service of summons under this section. Further, it would seem that the nonresident bank was not doing business in North Carolina, since the business transactions acted here was the business of the depository bank. Id.

A foreign express company, while a member of the Federal Government Control Act, a war measure, does not fall within the provisions of this section as to local process as required by this section, but for whom a guardian ad litem was appointed for the purpose of service of summons under this section, it being necessary only that the incompetent be given notice. Steele v. Western Union Telegraph Co., 117 N. C. 549, 55 S. E. 870.

A "local" agent of a foreign corporation for the purpose of service of summons under this section is a person or corporation residing in this state properly or actually present for the purpose of the agency. McDonald Service Co. v. People's Nat. Bank, 218 N. C. 533, 11 S. E. (2d) 556.

A "local" agent of a foreign corporation for the purpose of service of summons under this section is a person or corporation residing in this state properly or actually present for the purpose of the agency. McDonald Service Co. v. People's Nat. Bank, 218 N. C. 533, 11 S. E. (2d) 556.

A "local" agent of a foreign corporation for the purpose of service of summons under this section is a person or corporation residing in this state properly or actually present for the purpose of the agency. McDonald Service Co. v. People's Nat. Bank, 218 N. C. 533, 11 S. E. (2d) 556.

A "local" agent of a foreign corporation for the purpose of service of summons under this section is a person or corporation residing in this state properly or actually present for the purpose of the agency. McDonald Service Co. v. People's Nat. Bank, 218 N. C. 533, 11 S. E. (2d) 556.

§ 1-98. Service by publication.—Where the person on whom the service of the summons is to be made cannot, after due diligence, be found in the state, and that fact appears by affidavit to the satisfaction of the court, or a judge thereof and it in like manner appears that a cause of action exists against the defendant in respect to whom service is to be made, or that he is a proper party to an action relating to real property in this state, such court or judge may grant an order that the service be made by publication of a notice in either of the following cases:

1. Where the defendant is a foreign corporation and has property, or the cause of action arose, in the state.

2. Where the defendant, a resident of this state, has departed therefrom or keeps himself concealed therein with intent to defraud his creditors or to avoid the service of a summons.

3. Where he is not a resident, but has property in this state, and the court has jurisdiction of the subject of the action.

4. Where the subject of the action is real or personal property in this state, and the defendant has departed from or kept himself concealed, and the cause of action consists wholly or partly in excluding him from any actual or contingent lien or interest therein.

5. Where the action is for divorce.

6. Where the stockholders of a corporation are deemed to be necessary parties to an action and their names or residences are unknown; or where the names or residences of parties interested in real estate are unknown to the plaintiff, and his residence is a necessity party to an action and interested in the subject matter thereof is known, and he is a resident of the state, the court having jurisdiction may, upon affidavit that after due diligence the names or residences of such parties cannot be ascertained, authorize service by publication.

7. Where in actions for the foreclosure of mortgages on real estate, if any party having any interest in, or lien upon, such mortgaged premises, is unknown to the plaintiff, and his residence, with reasonable diligence, is ascertained, and such fact is made to appear by affidavit.

8. Where no officer or agent of a domestic corporation upon whom service can be made can, after due diligence, be found in the state, and such facts are made to appear by affidavit. This subsection also applies to all summonses, orders to show cause, orders and notices issued by any board of aldermen, board of town or county commissioners, or by individuals. I. IN GENERAL.

Strictly Construed.—The service of the summons or notice, as an original process in the action, in the manner prescribed exists in any particular case before it grants the order of publication. Otherwise the publication will be unauthorized, irregular and fatally defective, unless in some way such irregularity shall be waived or cured.

Unless the provisions of this section are observed the service of a summons by publication in such cases will be ineffective. Martin v. Martin, 205 N. C. 157, 159, 170 S. E. 661.

Not only must it be shown that the defendant has property in this state; the cause of action must be stated with such clearness and comprehensiveness as may enable the court to determine its sufficiency. Id.

Same—When Made.—It seems that the affidavit may be made after the order, provided the order remains in abeyance until the affidavit is filed. Bank v. Blossom, 92 N. C. 629.

Same—Allegations.—Everything necessary to dispense with personal service must appear by affidavit. Wheeler v. Cobb, 84 N. C. 494.

Same—Proper Party and Cause of Action Must Be Shown.—A brief summary of the facts constituting the cause of action, or of the facts showing that the parties are necessary to the action and the subject matter thereof is known, and he is a resident of the state, the court having jurisdiction may, upon affidavit that after due diligence the names or residences of such parties cannot be ascertained, authorize service by publication.

Where, upon the facts alleged, no judgment can be rendered affecting lands, it must follow that the defendant is a necessary party to the action. If, according to the statute, the defendant is not a necessary party, the party seeking to be made parties are necessary parties. It is the province and duty of the court to see the facts and determine that a cause of action exists, or that the parties are necessary for some appropriate purpose. Same—Necessity for Averment of Due Diligence.—The authorities seem to be decisive that, under this section as now framed, the allegation that a defendant cannot be found in the state after diligent search, is an essential averment to a service of original process by publication. Sawyer v. Camden Run Drainage Dist., 179 N. C. 182, 185, 102 S. E. 273; Wheeler v. Cobb, 75 N. C. 21; Faulk v. Smith, 84 N. C. 501; Grocery Co. v. Call Co., 142 N. C. 174, 55 S. E. 99; Denton v. Vassilides, 212 N. C. 513, 193 S. E. 737.

This allegation as to diligence is the very cornerstone to obtain jurisdiction by publication. Fowler v. Fowler, 190 N. C. 536, 540, 130 S. E. 315.
An averment, by affidavit or otherwise, that the defendant "cannot, after due diligence, be found in the state," is an essential requirement to obtain service of summons by publication, under section 493, and it must be made "in order to effectuate the purpose of the statute." Groce v. Groce, 214 N. C. 398, 399, 199 S. E. 388.

And the fact that the defendant is a nonresident, is not a sufficient averment of the affidavits. In order to show that after due diligence he cannot be found within the state, Davis v. Davis, 179 N. C. 185, 102 S. E. 270. A publication based upon the mere allegation that the defendant is an absconding defendant, is insufficient to confer jurisdiction under the section. Flint v. Coffin, 176 Fed. 872.

Same.—What Constitutes Due Diligence.—When the affidavit for publication sets out the reasons why the defendant cannot be found "after due search," this is tantamount to "due diligence." Rose v. Davis, 140 N. C. 266, 269, 52 S. E. 780.

But, as will be seen from a later paragraph, this section does not require the issuance and return of summons not served. The preceding paragraph is only an illustration of the diligence that will suffice. Ed. Note.

Same—Specific Allegation of Jurisdiction.—There is no requirement in this section that an allegation as to the court's jurisdiction shall be made specifically in the affidavit. If the jurisdiction of the court, as to the subject of the action, appears from the facts alleged in the affidavit, and that the defendant was beyond the limits of the state, which were ascertainable by the time the orders were made, this was sufficient. Page v. McDonald, 159 N. C. 38, 43, 74 S. E. 642; Bacon v. Johnson, 110 N. C. 114, 14 S. E. 598; Davis v. Davis, 179 N. C. 383, 102 S. E. 270.

County Sav. Bank v. Tolbert, 192 N. C. 126, 129, 133 S. E. 558.

Same—Other Allegations.—Specific allegations necessary to obtain the order under the particular subdivisions of this section will be found under the following analysis line of this note. Ed. Note.

Same—Amendment.—Where the affidavit for the publication of a summons was defective, it was proper for the judge to permit an amendment and grant an alias order of publication instead of dismissing the action. Mullen v. Norfolk, etc., Canal Co., 120 N. C. 109, 16 S. E. 551, cited in Proceedings to Foreclose Tax Certificate.—Where the summons in proceedings to foreclose a tax certificate of the sale of lands in the action against the listed owner of the lands has been returned the defendant 'not found,' it is not required as under the provisions of this section, that this fact be made to appear by affidavit to the satisfaction of the court in order for valid service. Orange County v. Jenkins, 200 N. C. 202, 203, 156 S. E. 774.

Process Must Name Parties Correctly.—In actions for foreclosure of mortgages on real estate, in the nature of which are tax foreclosure proceedings, under § 151-270, N. C. 1941, no notice is given to the mortgagee. If, upon, such mortgaged premises, is unknown to the plaintiff, and his residence cannot, with reasonable diligence, be ascertained, and such fact is made to appear by affidavit, "the court, in its discretion, may have made a publication of a notice of the action. But, in accordance with the rule that notice to a party defendant is required in order to give the court jurisdiction, the process, must correctly name the parties. This requirement is mandatory. Board of Com'rs v. Gaines, 221 N. C. 324, 328, 20 S. E. (2d) 377.

Issuance and Return of Summons Not a Prerequisite. — This section does not require the issuance and return of summons not served as the basis of or condition precedent to the publication. Groce Co. v. Collins Bag Co., 142 N. C. 77, 54 S. E. 50, overruling McClure v. Fellows, 131 N. C. 309, 42 S. E. 591, and reinstating Best v. British, etc., 131 N. C. 311, 33 S. E. 799.

Rights of Heirs May Be Determined Where Service Is by Publication.—A judgment entered in an action to determine the heirs at law of intestate for the purpose of disposing of the estate, in which the court was in the position of administrator and the funds in his hands, and some of the heirs appear in court and the other heirs are duly served by publication, is void, the judgment being entered without compliance with this section. Ferguson v. Price, 206 N. C. 202, 203, 156 S. E. 774.

Where the suit is merely in personam to determine the personal rights and obligations of the defendants, constructive service of process for attachment; Hinton v. Penn. Mut. Life Ins. Co., 126 N. C. 18, 35 S. E. 182.

II. SERVICE BY PUBLICATION ON FOREIGN CORPORATION.

Editor's Note.—Section 55-38, providing for service on a statutory agent of a foreign corporation, would seem to apply only to all the sections of the Act as prescribed by this subsection would occur. In view of the holding in Pardue v. Absher, 174 N. C. 676, 94 S. E. 414, it is probable that the two sections would be construed as creating no more than the privilege of the defendant to exercise an option as to the method of procedure.

Under this subsection, the unpaid balances due a foreign corporation on subscriptions to its stock by subscribers residing in this state are property of such corporation. Cooper v. Adel Security Co., 122 N. C. 463, 30 S. E. 348.

III. SERVICE BY PUBLICATION ON NONRESIDENT WITH PROPERTY WITHIN STATE.

In General.—A valid service by publication cannot be had on a nonresident defendant upon a cause of action arising out of a transaction made in this state. Everett v. Austin Bros., 169 N. C. 622, 86 S. E. 523, and it is necessary to set forth this fact in the affidavit. Bacon v. Johnson, 110 N. C. 114, 14 S. E. 598.

Where the summons has been duly returned "defendant not to be found in the state," at the time of its issuance it was alleged in a verified complaint and in supporting affidavits that the cause of action was for money had and received, and that the defendant was beyond the limits of the state, his domicile was unknown, and it was a state in which he was a resident, and in which the cause of action has been substantially complied with and the validity of the service is upheld. Bethell v. Lee, 200 N. C. 753, 158 S. E. 496.

Attachment Necessary. — In an action in personam, in which no attachment has been or can be issued, service by publication on a nonresident is ineffectual for any purpose. Winfrey v. Bagley, 102 N. C. 515, 9 S. E. 198. See also Price v. Cox, 83 N. C. 261; Wilson v. St. Louis Cook Mfg. Co., 88 N. C. 5.

Where an action is for the recovery of a debt and there is no attachment of the property to confer jurisdiction there can be no service by publication of the summons, or hence, actual service in another state "in lieu of publication" would be invalid. Long v. Home Ins. Co., 114 N. C. 465, 466, 19 S. E. 347; Bernhardt v. Brown, 118 N. C. 700, 701, 14 S. E. 347.

General Judgment Cannot Be Taken.—A plaintiff cannot take a general and personal judgment against a defendant, who is a nonresident, upon a service by publication and not even when an attachment has been levied on his property, the court having jurisdiction to adjudge against him only to the extent of the property seized. May v. Getty, 137 N. C. 583, 55 S. E. 774.

One who has left the State for an indefinite time, his return depending upon a doubtful contingency, is a nonresident for the purpose of service of summons by publication. In actions where service has been made without attachment, there may have retained his domicile in this state. And the cause of his absence from the state is immaterial if such absence prevents personal service for an indefinite period. Cooper v. Hanes, 194 N. C. 571, 140 S. E. 392. See note under § 1-41.

IV. SERVICE BY PUBLICATION WHERE LIEN IS SUBJECT OF LITIGATION.

In General.—In Pennoyer v. Neff, 95 U. S. 714, 24 L. Ed. 655, it is said: "Such service (by publication) may also be sufficient in cases where the object of the action is to reach and dispose of property in the state, or of some interest therein, by enforcing a contract or lien respecting the same, or to partition it among different owners, or, where the property is public, to condemn and appropriate it for a public purpose." This is cited and approved in Winfrey v. Bagley, 102 N. C. 515, 516, 9 S. E. 198; and Long v. Home Ins. Co., 114 N. C. 465, 466, 19 S. E. 347; Bernhardt v. Brown, 118 N. C. 700, 701, 14 S. E. 347.

A judgment to enforce a mechanic's lien is a proceeding in rem, and service by publication is authorized by this subsection. Bernhardt v. Brown, 118 N. C. 700, 701, 14 S. E. 347.

V. SERVICE BY PUBLICATION IN ACTIONS FOR DIVORCE.

For article on "North Carolina and Jurisdiction for Divorce," mentioning this section, see 1 N. C. Law Rev. 95 et seq.

The Affidavit. — The requirements of this section are mandatory, and must be followed in good faith in actions of divorce to obtain an order of publication of service of summons, and where the plaintiff in divorce fails to make affi-
§ 1-99. Manner of publication. The order must direct the publication in one or two newspapers to be designated as most likely to give notice to the person to be served, and for such length of time as is deemed reasonable, not less than once a week for four successive weeks of a notice, giving the title and number of the action, the name of the defendant, the time appointed to appear, and answer, or demur to the complaint at a time and place therein mentioned; and no publication of the summons, or mailing of the summons and complaint, is necessary. The cost of publishing in a newspaper shall not exceed one dollar and fifty cents an inch of solid type, and shall in no case exceed six dollars for the notice. (Rev., s. 443; Code, s. 219; 1903, c. 134; C. C. P., s. 84; 1876-7, c. 241, s. 3; C. S. 485.)

Cross Reference.—As to cost of legal advertising, see § 1-104.

Sufficiency of Publication.—It is sufficient if the publication contains the substantial elements of the summons, and the fact that it is not a literal copy will not render the service insufficient. (Gulf County v. Georgia Co., 109 N. C. 316, 13 S. E. 861.)

Service of summons made by publication from 3 of August to 31 of August, the term of the court to which the process was returnable beginning on the latter day, is a sufficient publication of "once a week for four weeks," and a sufficient compliance with the statutes in that respect. Guilford County v. Georgia Co., 109 N. C. 310, 13 S. E. 861.

There being no specific requirement of statute that an order for the publication of summons state that the paper in which the publication is ordered to be printed is the one "most likely to give notice to the person to be served," a judgment that the clerk be restrained from ordering publication in a certain paper without such finding in the order is erroneous, and would seem to be discriminatory, and on appeal the judgment will be modified; an order for publication of summons being made by a court of record there is a presumption in favor of the correctness of its decree, and it will be presumed that the statutory findings and determination had been made, without specific adjudication in the order. Elmore v. Wooten, 198 N. C. 733, 153 S. E. 323.

Warrant of Attachment Insufficient.—The publication of the warrant of attachment does not serve the purpose of this section, as the section specifies that the publication of notices must be in a newspaper. Ditmore v. Goin, 128 N. C. 325, 327, 49 S. E. 61.

§ 1-100. When service by publication complete. —In the cases in which service by publication is allowed, the summons is deemed served at the expiration of the time prescribed by the order of publication, and the party is then in court; and the defendant shall have twenty days thereafter in which to answer or demur, or within ten days in special proceedings in which to answer. (Rev., s. 445; Code, s. 327; C. C. P., s. 88; 1939, c. 19, s. 1; C. S. 487.)

Editor's Note.—The 1939 amendment added the part of this section appearing after the semicolon.

For comment on the 1939 amendatory act, see 17 N. C. Law Rev. 345.

§ 1-101. Jurisdiction acquired from service.—From the time of service of the summons, in a civil action, or the allowance of a provisional remedy, the court is deemed to have acquired jurisdiction, and to have control of all subsequent proceedings. (Rev., s. 445; Code, s. 229; C. C. P., s. 90; C. S. 488.)

Cross Reference.—As to when action is commenced, see § 1-14.

§ 1-102. Proof of service.—Proof of the service of the summons or notice must be—

1. By the certificate of the sheriff or other proper officer.
2. In case of publication, the affidavit of the printer, or of his foreman or principal clerk, showing the same.
3. The written admission of the defendant. (Rev., s. 446; Code, s. 228; C. C. P., s. 89; C. S. 489.)

This section is exhaustive and proof of the service of a notice must be established as required by this section. Allen v. Strickland, 100 N. C. 225, 74 S. E. 795.

Necessity for Proof.—Where service of process on nonresidents was necessary it is error for the judge of probate (or clerk of the inferior court) to order or allow the sale of lands without adjudging by the proofs required by this section that the defendants had been regularly served with process by publication in the manner prescribed. Hyman v. Jarnigan, 65 N. C. 90.

Written Admission.—Where service is accepted in writing, it will be treated as "the written admission of" service as contemplated by this section. First Nat. Bank v. Wilson, 80 N. C. 489; Nichols, 10 N. C. 44. Godwin v. Monds, 106 N. C. 476, 10 S. E. 444.

It is manifest that no verbal admission of service or assent to the service as made will be a service within the provision appearing after the semicolon. First Nat. Bank v. Wilson, 80 N. C. 200, 202.

Personal service of a copy of the summons on a defendant, or his written admission thereof, is necessary to constitute a case in court. A copy left with defendant's wife is not a legal service, and proof of its delivery to him by her, or of his recognition of or verbal assent thereto, will not make it sufficient. First Nat. Bank v. Wilson, 80 N. C. 200.
§ 1-103. Voluntary appearance by defendant.—
A voluntary appearance of a defendant is equivalent to personal service of the summons upon him. (Rev., s. 447; Code, s. 229; C. C. P., s. 90; C. S. 490.)
"By making a general appearance and filing an answer upon the merits the defendant waived any defect in the service of the summons. The statute provides that the voluntary appearance of a defendant is equivalent to personal service of the summons."
An appearance for the purpose of filing a demurrer or answer to the complaint is a general appearance and waiving a proper service of summons. Reel v. Boyd, 195 N. C. 273, 141 S. E. 891; Abbitt v. Gregory, 195 N. C. 203, 141 S. E. 857.
The giving of a replevy bond is equivalent to a general appearance entered by a defendant in attachment, and is a waiver of the irregularities, if any, in the service of summons, or the necessity of such service, and estops the defendant from denying ownership of the property levied on, but it does not estop defendant from traversing the truth of the allegation on which the attachment is based. Bizell v. Mitchell, 195 N. C. 484, 143 S. E. 706.
What Constitutes a General Appearance.—A motion to dismiss for failure of plaintiff to file security for costs, pertains to a procedural question apart from the merits of the allegation on which the attachment is based. Mintz v. Frink, 217 N. C. 101, 6 S. E. (2d) 944.
§ 1-104. Personal service on nonresident.—When the place of residence of a person out of the state is known and the same is made to appear by affidavit, in lieu of publication in a newspaper it is sufficient to mail a copy of the summons, or other process, accompanied by a statement as to the nature of the action or proceeding, to the sheriff or other process officer of the county and state where the defendant resides, who shall serve same according to its tenor. The process officer who serves the paper shall, in making his return, use a form of certificate substantially as follows:
State of ........................................
County of ....................................
Affidavit of Service of Summons;
Clerk's Certificate
I, .......... [Sheriff or other process officer] of the county [or city] of ............., State of ............., being duly sworn, do certify that on the .... day of ...., 19 .... I served the summons and accompanying statement hereto attached by delivering a copy of the same to .......... the defendant(s) therein named.

I, .......... [Sheriff or other process officer]
Clerk of the Court of the County [or City] of .......... State of ............., do certify that said court is a court of record having the seal hereto attached; that ............ is well known to me as .......... [Sheriff or other process officer] of said county [or city] of ............., and that he has full power and authority to serve any and all legal processes issuing from courts of this state; that said .......... personally appeared before me this day and made and subscribed the above affidavit relative to service of summons on ............
This the .... day of ...., 19 ....
Clerk of the ............. Court of the County [or City] of ............., State of .............

Editor's Note.—The 1943 amendment inserted the form of affidavit of service of summons, and changed the form of civil process to serve as a general appearance.
When Service by Mail Permitted.—The service of summons and other process authorized by this section is in lieu of publication in a newspaper, and can only be made in those cases where publication could be made, to wit, in actions which are virtually suits in rem or quasi in rem, and in which the jurisdiction as to nonresidents only authorizes a judgment acting upon the property, and not upon the person of the defendant. Mintz v. Frink, 217 N. C. 101, 6 S. E. (2d) 944.
Cumulative Method.—The method of mailing the process is optional and not exclusive of service by publication in cases in which this last is proper. Mullen v. Norfolk, et al., 148 N. C. 106, 66 S. E. 263; 114 N. C. 518, 51 S. E. 316.
Jurisdiction Acquired.—The courts of this State have jurisdiction of the persons of nonresident defendants to the extent required in proceedings in rem or quasi in rem, when personal service is made by complying with the requirements of this section and the property is situated here. Vick v. Flournoy, 147 N. C. 209, 60 S. E. 978.
Omission to Clerk's Seal.—A summons issued without the seal of the clerk of the court is void as to nonresident defendants under this section, is an irregularity. Vick v. Flournoy, 147 N. C. 209, 60 S. E. 978.
This section permits service of process on the location of the defendant is determined and personal service has been made, an exception to the validity of the service on the ground that the place of residence of the defendant in another state was not made to appear by affidavit to the clerk prior to the mailing of the summons cannot be sustained, the provisions of this section having been substantially complied with. Fidelity, etc., Co. v. Green, 200 N. C. 535, 157 S. E. 797. But a different rule applies to § 1-98, relating to service by publication where the defendant's rights may be lost through lack of knowledge and lapse of time. In re Application to sell realty, 140 N. C. 203, 48 S. E. 170.
motor vehicle on the public highways of the state other than as so permitted or regulated, shall be deemed equivalent to the appointment by such non-resident of the Commissioner of Motor Vehicles, or of his successor in office, to be his true and lawful attorney upon whom may be served all summonses or other lawful process in any action or proceeding against him, growing out of any accident or collision in which said non-resident may be involved by reason of the operation by him, or under his control or direction, express or implied, of a motor vehicle on such public highway of this State, and said acceptance or operation shall be a signification of his agreement that he shall be subject to the jurisdiction of the courts of this State, and be bound by the judgment of the court, and the commissioner of the revenue under the provisions of this section, and therefore service of process on the commissioner of revenue under the provisions of this section is valid. Bogen v. Bogen, 219 N. C. 51, 12 S. E. (2d) 649.

Findings by Trial Court That Defendant Was a Nonresident Is Conclusive on Appeal.—Upon motion to dismiss an action on the ground that the defendant was a nonresident of this state and was served with summonses under a statute authorizing service on nonresidents, the finding of the superior court judge that the defendant was a nonresident, based upon competent evidence, is conclusive on appeal. Bigham v. Poor, 201 N. C. 14, 158 S. E. 548.

This section makes no provision for service on the personal representative of a deceased automobile owner who was involved by reason of the operation of his automobile in this state. Lindsay v. Short, 210 N. C. 287, 186 S. E. 239.

Cited in Howard v. Queen City Coach Co., 213 N. C. 201, 193 S. E. 186.

§ 1-106. Record of such processes; delivery of return.—The Commissioner of Motor Vehicles shall keep a record of all such processes, which shall show the day and hour of service of the summonses or other lawful process, accompanied by his certificate that the summonses and complaint had been served on him, the sheriff or other process officer of the county and state where the defendant or defendants reside. This sheriff or other process officer, authorized to serve process in the state to which it is sent, shall serve the same according to its

§ 1-108. Defense after judgment on substituted service. — The defendant against whom publication is ordered, or who is served under the provisions of §§ 1-104 through 1-107, or his representatives, on application and sufficient cause shown at any time before judgment, must be allowed to defend the action; and, except in an action for the foreclosure of county or municipal taxes, the defendant against whom publication is ordered, or his representatives, may in like manner, upon good cause shown, be allowed to defend after judgment, or at any time within one year after notice thereof, and within five years after its rendition, on such terms as are just; and if the defense is successful and the judgment or any part thereof has been collected or otherwise enforced, such restitution may be compelled as the court directs. Title to property sold under such judgment to a purchaser in good faith is not thereby affected. No fiduciary officer or trustee who has made distribution of a fund under such judgment in good faith is personally liable if the judgment is changed by reason of such defense made after its rendition; nor in case the judgment was rendered for the partition of land, and the defendant who has sold the land in such partition shall be held for error for the clerk's failure to more specifically find the facts constituting such meritorious defense, and it is within the discretion of the judge of the Superior Court on appeal to enter an order allowing an extension of time for filing answer as provided by sections 1-112, 1-276. Vann v. Coleman, 206 N. C. 451, 174 S. E. 301.

§ 1-109. Vacations of judgment. — Under this section the defendant, where his affidavit fully justifies the findings of fact made by the court, and brings him within the terms of the section, has a legal right to have the judgment vacated. Such a right is absolute and not within the discretion of the presiding judge. Rhodes v. Rhodes, 125 N. C. 191, 37 S. E. 275; Savage v. Moore, 139 N. C. 38, 74 S. E. 452; Moore v. Rankin, 172 N. C. 599, 600, 90 S. E. 759.

The allegations of the complaint particularly describing the lands situate hereof of the nonresident husband sought to be subjected to the wife's claim for alimony in her suit for divorce, and the judgment therein directing it to be or of conflicting facts that have been judicially found and of nearly five years, the defendant had actual knowledge. S. EB. 216, § 1-109 CH. 1.

ought not to be construed as limiting or modifying the right to defend, which is an absolute, legal right of the defendant. The right to defend an action, and the death of the wife has caused the following alimony to the wife pendente lite her action for divorce, or in a suit to declare him her trustee in taking title to lands bought with her money and without her consent, and the defendant's motion under this section, and in proceedings regular upon their face, when the motion has been made after a lapse of nearly five years, the defendant had actual knowledge of the occurrence of the events, and seven years after the same relative position, with reference to the subject-matter of the litigation, the defendant must either have known, or been required to answer the complaint, in accordance with the provisions of the statute or general rule of court, and thus to raise issues of fact to be tried by a jury, or issues of law to be tried by the court. Burton v. Smith, 191 N. C. 599, 132 S. E. 605. It ought not to be held that he has waived, or by publication, with respect to property within its jurisdiction, or by such orders, designed to protect the plaintiff who had recovered the judgment, set aside and vacated upon the motion of the defendant, upon service of summons on the defendant as provided by the laws of this state, from loss which might result to him from the action of the court. Burton v. Smith, 191 N. C. 599, 132 S. E. 605. It ought not to be held that he

dent owner, by service of summons by publication, may be set aside upon defendant's motion under this section, in the sum of two hundred dollars, with the condition on such terms as may be just, with restitution, etc., to declare the defendant had notice, to pay the wife alimony which had been allowed her. White v. White, 179 N. C. 592, 103 S. E. 216. See note of this case under § 50-15. Exception as to Lands Sold in Divorce Proceedings. — The provisions of this section, as to setting aside judgments against nonresident defendants served by publication, upon motion showing sufficient cause, made within a year after notice, and within five years after its rendition on such terms as may be just, with restitution, etc., does not apply where the lands have been regularly sold under an order of court in divorce proceedings, of which the defendant had notice, to pay the wife alimony which had been allowed her. White v. White, 179 N. C. 592, 103 S. E. 216. See note of this case under § 50-15.

Attachment of Lands — Alimony — Notice. — Attachment of the lands situated here of the nonresident husband, is not necessary to subject it to the payment of alimony pendente lite, for divorce, upon publication of summons, or to declare the husband her trustee in his purchase of lands with her separate money, to which he had taken title in himself, without the want of some additional notice, or by publication beyond publica-

The defense intended to be allowed, under this section, to put plaintiff and defendant, as near as may be, in the same relative position, with reference to the subject-matter of the litigation, the defendant must either have known, or been required to answer the complaint, in accordance with the provisions of the statute or general rule of court, and thus to raise issues of fact to be tried by a jury, or issues of law to be tried by the court. Burton v. Smith, 191 N. C. 599, 132 S. E. 605. It ought not to be held that he has waived, or by publication, with respect to property within its jurisdiction, or by such orders, designed to protect the plaintiff who had recovered the judgment, set aside and vacated upon the motion of the defendant, upon service of summons on the defendant as provided by the laws of this state, from loss which might result to him from the action of the court. Burton v. Smith, 191 N. C. 599, 132 S. E. 605. It ought not to be held that he

Art. 9. Prosecution Bonds.

§ 1-109. Plaintiff's, for costs.—Before issuing the summons the clerk shall require the plaintiff to do one of the following:

1. Give an undertaking with sufficient surety in the sum of two hundred dollars, with the condition that it will be void if the plaintiff pays the defendant all costs which the latter recovers of him in the action.

2. Deposit two hundred dollars with him as security to the defendant for these costs, in which event the clerk must give to the plaintiff and defendant a certificate to that effect.

3. File with him a written authority from a judge or clerk of a superior court, authorizing the plaintiff to sue as a pauper: Provided, however, that the requirements of this section shall not apply to cities and towns; provided, further, that cities and towns may institute civil actions and special proceedings without being required to give a prosecution bond or make deposit in lieu of bond. (Rev., s. 450; Code, s. 209; R. C. c. 31, s. 40; C. C. P., s. 71; 1935, c. 398; C. S. 493.)

Editor's Note.—The amendment of 1935 adds the two provisions at the end of subsection (3), relating to cities and towns.

The object of the prosecution bond is not to secure the officers but to secure the defendant in the recovery of costs usually paid out. Waldo v. Wilson, 177 N. C. 461, 100 S. E. 182.

Who Can Take Bond. — The action of the Clerk in taking, proceeding under its provisions, or in refusing to do so, shall be ministerial. They may be taken by a deputy clerk, and are habitually taken by attorneys, who have authority from the clerks for that purpose, but are not their deputies. Shepherd v. Lee, 113 N. C. 585; 63 N. C. 591; Marsh & Co. v. Cohen, 68 N. C. 238, 283.

§ 1-110. Suit as a pauper; counsel.—Any judge or clerk of the superior court may authorize a person to sue as a pauper in their respective courts when he proves, by one or more witnesses, that he has a good cause of action, and makes affidavit that he is unable to comply with the preceding section. The court to which such summons is returnable may assign to the person suing as a pauper learned counsel, who shall prosecute his action. (Rev., ss. 451, 432; Code, ss. 210, 211; C. C. Exemption Under Section.—This section is in the nature of an exception to the general rule in section 1-109. Dale v. Plessen, 119 N. C. 489, 492, 26 S. E. 27.

Undertaking Does Not Apply to Appeals.—The leave to sue as a pauper, under this section, is an exception in equity and does not extend in civil actions, beyond the trial in the superior court, his appeal being governed by section 1-288, which requires the sureties to give security for the costs of the appeal, but he may pay the fees as to the appeal due the officers of both courts for services rendered. Speller v. Speller, 119 N. C. 356, 26 S. E. 160. See Martin v. Chas-ter, 15 N. C. 96; Bailey v. Brown, 105 N. C. 127, 130, 10 S. E. 1054.

Court Has Discretion.—The right to sue as a pauper is a favor granted the plaintiff, and is in the discretion of the Court. Dale v. Plessen, 119 N. C. 489, 492, 26 S. E. 27.

§ 1-110. Suit as a pauper; counsel.—Any judge or clerk of the superior court may authorize a person to sue as a pauper in their respective courts when he proves, by one or more witnesses, that he has a good cause of action, and makes affidavit that he is unable to comply with the preceding section. The court to which such summons is returnable may assign to the person suing as a pauper learned counsel, who shall prosecute his action. (Rev., ss. 451, 432; Code, ss. 210, 211; C. C. P., s. 72; 1868-9, c. 96, s. 2; C. S. 494.) a pauper does not raise the presumption that the attorney took the case for a contingent fee and was therefore a party in interest. Allison v. Southern R. Co., 129 N. C.
230, 39 S. E. 91.

Where Plaintiff Assigns Interest Pending Action.—
Where a plaintiff, pending an action brought in forma pauperis, assigns his interest in the land, which was the subject of the action, the court will require the assignee to give security, or it will withdraw the privilege given to the assignor and dismiss the action. Davis v. Higgins, 91 N. C. 189, 51 S. E. 576; Allen v. winter, 121 N. C. 239, 50
S. E. 375. Cf. see § 1-211, paragraph 4.

§ 1-111. Defendant’s, for costs and damages in actions for land.—In all actions for the recovery or possession of real property, the defendant, before he is permitted to plead, must execute and file in the office of the clerk of the superior court of the county where the suit is pending, a bond in advancing sufficient surety, in an amount fixed by the court, not less than two hundred dollars, to be void on condition that the defendant pays to the plaintiff all costs and damages which the latter recovers in the action, including damages for the loss of rents and profits. (Rev. s. 453; Code, s. 237; 1869-70, c. 193; C. S. 495.)

Cross References.—As to judgment by default final upon failure of defendant to file undertaking or of his sureties to justify, see § 1-211, paragraph 4.

§ 1-125. Relation to Other Sections of Code.—This section and section 1-122 and the note thereto. Time in which to File Bond.—Where the complaint in an action to recover the lands the defendant has also pursued as vendee in possession. —Where a vendee is let into pos-property or its possession, upon the approval of the defendant's bond by the clerk of the Superior Court for continuing the suit without bond, the defendant must swear it is not necessary to file the bonds, before answer, required by this section, when he is in possession of and claiming title to land, the subject of the action, or to give the undertaking required, and his counsel certified that he was not worth the amount of the said undertaking, nor does section 350 [now § 109-29] authorize the party, of whom an undertaking may be required in any property whatsoever. (Rev., s. 454; Code, s. 257; 1869-70, c. 193; C. S. 496.)

Editor's Note. — This section appeared formerly as a part of section 323, already discussed. In reference to this proviso (now this section) the court said in Wilson v. Fowler, 110 N. C. 471, 10 S. E. 489: "The terms of the proviso are clear, explicit and exclusive. It declares 'that when it appears that the defendant was diligent in insisting upon his rights and has done nothing that could be regarded as a waiver thereof.'"

Art. 10. Joint and Several Debtors.

§ 1-113. Defendants jointly or severally liable.—Where the action is against two or more defendants, and the summons is served on one or more, but not on all of them, the plaintiff may proceed as follows:

1. If the action is against defendants jointly indebted upon contract, he may proceed against the defendants served, unless the court otherwise directs, and if he recovers judgment it may be entered against all the defendants thus jointly indebted, so far only as that it may be enforced against the joint property of all and the separate property of the defendants served, and if they are not so joint, against the persons of the defendants served.

2. If the action is against defendants severally liable, he may proceed against the defendants served, in the same manner as if they were the only defendants.

3. If all the defendants have been served, judgment may be taken against any or either of them severally, when the plaintiff would be entitled to judgment against such defendant or defendants if the action had been against them or any of them alone.

4. If the name of one or more partners has, for any cause, been omitted in an action in which judgment has been rendered against the defendants named in the summons, and the omission was not pleaded in the action, the plaintiff, in case the judgment remains unsatisfied, may by court order require the partners served to give the certificate of counsel applies only to the action as then constituted, and not to any other possible action that might be brought by plaintiff for same or similar relief. Wilson v. Fowler, 110 N. C. 471, 10 S. E. 489.

Example of Sufficient Compliance.—In an action to recover land, this section was sufficiently complied with when the defendant made affidavit that he was not worth two hundred dollars in any property whatever, and was unable to give the undertaking required, and his counsel certified that he had examined his case and were of opinion he had a good defense to the action." Wilson v. Fowler, 110 N. C. 471, 10 S. E. 489.

Costs.—This section allowing a defendant in an action of ejectment to defend without giving bond, and section 1-288 allowing an appeal without bond, go no further than dispensing with the bond, and neither exempts the party from paying his own costs nor forbids his recovering costs. Speller v. Speller, 119 N. C. 356, 357, 26 S. E. 105; Justice v. Edgings, 72 N. C. 381; Lambert v. Kinney, 74 N. C. 348; Bailey v. Brown, 105 N. C. 127, 129, 10 S. E. 1054.

all, upon a verdict in plaintiff's favor, a judgment is properly entered binding upon the partnership's joint property, and upon the individual members served, but not individually upon those not so served with process. Hancock v. South-tract, 106 N. C. 278, 119 S. E. 364.

Same—Purpose of Section.—This section was intended to prevent a partner, who was not served with the summons, from benefiting under the judgment on the ground that judgment had already been taken against his co-partner; and so the cause of action was merged in the judgment, and authorizes an action against him separately, provided the

§ 1-114. Summoned after judgment; defense.—
When a judgment is recovered against one or more of several persons jointly indebted upon a contract in accordance with the preceding section, those who were not originally summoned to answer the complaint may be summoned to show cause why they should not be bound by the judgment, in the same manner as if they had been originally summoned. A party so summoned may answer within the time specified denying the judgment, or setting up any defense thereto which has arisen subsequent to such judgment; and may make any defense which he might have made to the action if the summons had been served on him originally. (Rev., ss. 456, 457; Code, ss. 223, 224; C. C. P., ss. 318, 322; C. S. 498.)

Statute of Limitations May Bar Action.—Where an action was begun against certain administrators and the sureties on their bond, and one surety was not served with summons and more than three years thereafter this latter surety was served, it was held that a new action of limitations was a bar to the action against the surety. Kocone v. Pelletier, 115 N. C. 233, 20 S. E. 391; See Rutsy v.
Claywell, etc., Co., 93 N. C. 301.

When Motion in Cause Proper.—Where a motion is taken against two of three partners who are liable jointly and severally, the proper method to enforce the liability of the third partner is by an action against A. B. & Co., upon a bill of exchange, and C, who was a secret partner in the firm, was not joined as defendant, and the plaintiff afterwards, and more than three years after the cause of action accrued, discovered that C was a partner and instituted an action against him: Held, that the action was barred by the statute of limitations. Navassa Guano Co. v. Willard, 73 N. C. 521.

§ 1-115. Pleadings and proceedings same as in action.—The party issuing the summons may demur or reply to the answer, and the party summoned may demur to the reply. The answer and reply must be verified in list cases and manner and be subject to the same rules that apply in an action, and the issues may be tried and judgment given in the same manner as in action and enforced by execution if necessary. (Rev., ss. 458, 459; Code, ss. 225, 226; C. C. P., ss. 323, 324; C.
S. 499.)

Art. 11. Lis Pendens.

§ 1-116. Filing of notice of suit.—In action af-fearing the title to real property, the plaintiff, at or any time after the time of filing the complain or when or any time after a warrant of attachment is issued, or a defendant when he sets up an affirmative cause of action in his answer and demands substantive relief, at or any time after the time of filing his answer, if it is intended to affect real estate, may file with the clerk of each county in which the property is situated a notice of the pendency of the action, containing the names of the parties, the object of the action, and the description of the property in that county affected thereby. (Rev., s. 460; Code, s.
229; C. C. P., s. 90; 1917, c. 106; C. S. 500.)

Cross Reference.—As to execution, levy, and lien in attachment, see § 1-449.

In General.—The general doctrine of lis pendens is familiary and is firmly established. It may be stated to be that When a person buys property pending an action of which he has notice, actual or presumed, in which the title to it is in issue, from one of the parties to the action, he is bound by the judgment in the action, just as if he had him whom he bought would have been. The rule is absolutely necessary to give effect to the judgments of courts, because if it were not so held, a party could always defeat the cause of action by bringing in an antecedent judgment of the stranger, and the plaintiff would be compelled to commence a new action against him, and so on indefinitely. Rollins v.
Henderson, 78 N. C. 42, 351.

The principle of lis pendens is that the specific property must be so pointed out by the pleadings as to warn the whole world that they meddle with it at their peril, and the pendency of such suit duly prosecuted is notice to a purchaser so as to bind his interest. Todd eto., Co. v. Outlaw, 79 N. C. 235, 239.

The established rule is that a lis pendens, duly prosecuted, and not collateral, in the state courts, is a notice to the purchaser so as to bind his interest by necessary to give many instances very harsh in its operation; and one who relies upon it to defeat a bona fide purchaser must under-thand that his case is strictly just. Arrington v. Arrington, 114 N. C. 153, 15 S. E. 678.

Section Similar to English and New York Statutes.—This section is in substance a copy of 2 Victoria, which has received a construction by the English courts. It is there held that no right of attachment pending nisi prius shall express notice, will now bind him unless it be duly registered. The provisions of the New York Code for the filing of lis pendens, is similar to ours, and has received the same construction as the English statute. Todd eto., Co.

Modifies Common Law Rule.—The common law rule, was that the real estate to be affected by the judgment or decree were situated in several counties, it would all be bound by the lis pendens arising from the pendency of a suit in the county in which only a part of it lies, since,"all persons be acquainted to a certain extent with the Courts of Justice"; whereas the plain purpose of this section is to modify the rule so as to require notice in all counties where there is any real estate. Collingwood v.
Brown, 105 N. C. 362, 368, 10 S. E. 668.

As to real property, there is but one rule of lis pendens in North Carolina, and the provisions of this section are a substitute for the common law. Collingwood v. Brown, 106 N. C. 362, 367, 10 S. E. 988.

Section Adequately Protects Rights of Trustor.—In a suit attacking the validity of a foreclosure sale under a deed of trust, a temporary order enjoining further transfer of the property by the cestui que trust, the purchaser at the sale, is properly dissolved, since plaintiff trustor has an adequate remedy at law by filing notice of lis pendens in accordance with this act and subsections 1 and 3 thereof.
Collingwood v. North Carolina Joint Stock Land Bank,
207 N. C. 229, 176 S. E. 745.

This section and § 1-449 are to be construed in pari materia, and where notice of levy of attachment on defendant's land in a county has been given under the provisions of § 1-449, by certification of the levy to the clerk of the county, and publication of the notice in the pende-ting the title to the property by the cestui que trust, the attachment constitutes a lien superior to that of a judgment rendered in favor of another, and a later judgment in the attachment proceedings relates back to the filing and indexing of the attachment, and where such notice under § 1-449 has been given, the filing of lis pendens in the same county under these provisions is unnecessary. Pierce v. mallard, 197 N. C. 679, 150 S. E. 342.

Jurisdiction of Court.—In order that the right to real property and personal chattels may be affected by lis pendens, they must be within the jurisdiction of the court and subject to its power. Enfield v. Jordan, 119 U. S. 690, 6 S. Ct. 824, 29 L. Ed. 847.

Continuous Litigation.—In order for the doctrine of lis pendens to apply, there must be continuous litigation. Lee County v. Rogers, 132 N. C. 138, 19 S. E. 461.

Applies to Action in Another County.—Strangers to an action are not affected with constructive notice of an action involving the title to lands situate in a county other than that in which the action is pending. Unless the notice, lis pendens, is given under this section, Spencer v. Credle, 110 N. C. 68, 8 S. E. 910.

Action Not Affecting Title to Realty.—Where the mortgage is sold, and the action is to be had on the mortgage, the mortgagee may cure the mortgage and to set aside a deed of the mortgagee of lands brings an action to recover on the note securing the mortgage and to set aside a deed of the mortgagee. Enfield v. Jordan, 119 U. S. 225, 3 S. Ct. 197, 28 L. Ed. 220.

Registration as Notice of Pendency of Foreclosure Suit.—An action was instituted to foreclose a duly registered deed of trust in which the trustee and the cestuis and the owner of the equity of redemption by mesne conveyances, were made parties, and while the action was pending the owner of the equity sold the property. It was held that the duly registered deed of trust was constructive notice, not only of the lien, but also of the pendency of the foreclosure suit, since it would have been discovered by a prudent examiner, and therefore notice of the suit under this section was not required. Massachusetts Bonding, etc., Co. v. Knox, 220 N. C. 725, 18 S. E. (2d) 436, 138 A. L. R. 1438.

§ 1-118. Effect on subsequent purchasers.—From the cross-indexing of the notice of lis pendens only in the pending action, the doctrine of lis pendens has no effect on a purchaser or incumbrancer of the property affected thereby; and every person whose conveyance or incumbrance is subsequently executed or subsequently registered is a subsequent purchaser or incumbrancer, and is bound by all proceedings taken after the cross-indexing of the notice to the same extent as if he were made a party to the action. For the purposes of this section an action is pending from the time of cross-indexing the notice. (Rev., s. 462: Code, s. 229; C. C. P., s. 90; 1919, c. 31; C. S. 502.)

Editor's Note.—Previous to the adoption of section 1-117, regarding a cross index the filing of notice as provided in § 1-116 was all that was necessary for the protection of subsequent purchasers with notice. See Toms v. Warson, 66 N. C. 417, 419.

Judgment Requires Back to Beginning of Suit.—If a suit is pending against a person for certain property where cross-indexing is required in the judgment, that judgment relates to the commencement of the suit and binds subsequent purchasers. Briley v. Cherry, 13 N. C. 291, 8 S. E. 608; Martin v. Whitfield, 4 N. C. 266; Dancy v. Duncan, 56 N. C. 111, 116, 1 S. E. 455.

Fraudulent Purchaser of Lands.—Where the president of a corporation, a substantial owner of its shares of stock, has personally bought in the lands which the company is under a binding contract to convey, before suit brought to enforce the contract, and with full knowledge of the plaintiff's right, taken deed for same from his company, without notice of suit, and before complaint filed, he and his corporation are concluded from setting up the doctrine of lis pendens as a defense, and his purchase will be held ineffective and fraudulent as to the decree rendered and the rights established in the plaintiff's favor, for specific performance. Morris v. Basmight, 179 N. C. 256, 102 S. E. 389.

Purchase before Complaint Filed.—A purchaser of land after the filing of a lis pendens, but before the filing of the complaint in the action, is not charged with constructive notice of any defects in the title. Morgan v. Bostic, 132 N. C. 743, 751, 44 S. E. 639.

Filing or Service of Litigation.—The doctrine of lis pendens, as it ordinarily prevails, only affects third persons who may take title to lands after the nature of the claim and the property affected are pointed out with reasonable and sufficient description of the land to be affected to enable any person to locate said lands. The clerk shall be entitled to a fee of twenty-five cents for indexing said notice, to be paid as are other costs in the pending action. (Rev., s. 464; 1903, c. 472; 1919, c. 31; C. S. 501.)

Construed with Section 47-18.—Lis pendens and registration each have the purpose of giving constructive notice by the registration of the existence of a controversy in pari materia, and while the lis pendens statute do not affect the registration laws, the converse is not true. Massachusetts Bonding, etc., Co. v. Knox, 220 N. C. 725, 18 S. E. (2d) 436, 138 A. L. R. 1438.
takes it subject to the right of appeal and of the judgment which may be entered therein, and he is conclusively fixed with notice of the litigation. Rollins v. Henry, 76 N. C. 342; Dancy v. Duncan, 96 N. C. 111, 1 S. E. 455, Bird v. Gillis, 125 N. C. 76, 34 S. E. 136.

§ 1-119. Notice void unless action prosecuted.—The notice of lis pendens is of no avail unless it is followed by the first publication of notice of the summons or by an order therefor, or by the personal service on the defendant within sixty days after the cross-indexing. (Rev., s. 461; Code, s. 229; C. C. P., s. 90; 1919, c. 31; C. S. 503.)

Service Within 60 Days Required.—Where a party lives in a different county from the state, and claims as his bona fide purchaser, to affect him with notice of lis pendens the service of the summons or by an order therefor, or by the personal service on the defendant within sixty days after its filing. Powell v. Dail, 172 N. C. 261, 90 S. E. 194.

§ 1-120. Cancellation of notice.—The court in which the said action was commenced may, at any time after it is settled, discontinued or abated, on application of any person aggrieved, on good cause shown, and on such notice as is directed or approved by the court, order the notice authorized by this article to be canceled of record, by the clerk of any county in whose office the same has been filed or recorded; and this cancellation must be made by an endorsement to that effect on the margin of the record, which shall refer to the order. (Rev., s. 463; Code, s. 229; C. C. P., s. 90; C. S. 504.)

Notice Continues Until Cancelled.—Where the suit has been prosecuted with proper diligence the lis pendens continues until the final judgment, or until it has been canceled under the directions of the court. Arrington v. Arrington, 114 N. C. 151, 159, 18 S. E. 351.

Loss or Destruction of Notice.—The mere loss or destruction of the notice will not affect its efficacy, if the statute has been fully complied with. Arrington v. Arrington, 114 N. C. 151, 159, 18 S. E. 351.

Same—When by Act of Party.—If the party, by any act of his own has, contrary to the usual course of the court, consented to the service of the summons on the defendant by giving up the defendant's copy of the notice of lis pendens, or by voluntarily leaving the defendant's copy of such notice of lis pendens in the hands of the clerk, it is the duty of the court to dismiss the action.

SUBCHAPTER VI. PLEADINGS.

§ 1-121. First pleading and its filing.—The first pleading on the part of the plaintiff is the complaint. It must be filed in the clerk's office at or before the time of the issuance of summons and a copy thereof delivered to the defendant, or defendants, at the time of the service of summons; provided, that the clerk may at the time of the issuance of summons on application of plaintiff by written order extend the time for filing complaint to a day certain not to exceed twenty (20) days, and a copy of such order shall be delivered to the defendant, or defendants, at the time of the service of summons in lieu of a copy of the complaint: Provided further, said application and order shall state the nature and purpose of the suit. The clerk shall not extend the time for filing complaint beyond the time specified in such order; except that when application is made to the court, under article forty-six of this chapter, for leave to examine the defendant prior to filing complaint and it is found that such examination of defendant is necessary to enable the plaintiff to file his complaint, and such examination is allowed, the clerk shall extend the time for filing complaint until twenty (20) days after the report of the examination is filed as required by § 1-571. When the complaint is not filed at the time of the issuance of the summons, the plaintiff shall, when he files complaint, likewise file at least one copy thereof for the use of the defendant and his attorney. When there are more than one defendant the clerk, may, by written notice to the plaintiff, require the filing of additional (not to exceed six) copies of the complaint within the time specified in such notice, not to exceed ten days. Such notice may be served by mailing to the plaintiff or his attorney of record. (Rev., ss. 465, 466; Code, ss. 206, 232, 238; C. C. P., s. 92; 1868-9, c. 76, s. 3; 1870-1, c. 42, s. 3; 1919, c. 304, s. 2; 1927, c. 66, s. 3; C. S. 505.)

Editor's Note. — By the amendment of 1919 a clause "otherwise the suit may, on motion, be dismissed" which originally appeared in the section was omitted, but subsequently was reinserted by the Consolidated Statutes. In changing other provisions of ch. 156 of the laws of 1919, this section in its original form was reenacted without change by the Extra Session of the Public Laws of 1929.

The act of 1927, ch. 66, not only materially enlarged the provisions of the statute but changed the time of the filing of the complaint. Prior to this amendment the complaint was to be filed on or before the return day of the summons, on pain of suit being dismissed at the cost of the plaintiff. After the change by the Extra Session of the Public Laws of 1929, prior to the amendment, the complaint was to be filed on or before the third day of the term to which the action was brought. See Hill v. Hotel Co., 188 N. C. 586, 588, 125 S. E. 266.

Similarity to Former Equity Practice. — The Code and the constitution authorize the granting or dening of a new complaint as to new defendant. Wilson v. Moore, 78 N. C. 558, 561; Staton v. Webb, 137 N. C. 35, 39, 49 S. E. 55. (Decided under the former law.) The summons no more precedes the complaint under the present law, save under the exceptional circumstances designated in the section as amended. Ed. Note.

New Complaint as to New Defendant. — A new or an amended complaint must be filed against a new defendant brought in subsequent to the filing of the original complaint. And a judgment by default for want of an answer where no such complaint is filed is irregular and void as being a nullity at law. Vass v. People's Bldg., etc., Ass'n. 91 N. C. 55, 56.

Extension of Time. — Prior to 1921, (the time when the Civil Code of procedure was restored) it was discretionary with the judge to allow the time for the service of summons to be extended beyond the time of filing for filing complaint; and the motion to extend the time of filing the complaint should be made before the judge, and not before the clerk. See Arrington v. Arrington, 125 N. C. 76, 34 S. E. 196. But this is no longer the rule. See Campbell v. Asheville, 184 N. C. 424, 114 S. E. 835.

Where the clerk of the court has extended the time for filing the complaint in accordance with this section, and the defendant has appealed to the Superior Court, it is within the sound legal discretion of the trial judge, given by § 1-152, to allow the complaint to be filed, and his sustaining the clerk's order to that effect is an exercise of this dis-what are the proper issues, both as to form and to number. The principles of good pleading are retained in our present system. Hunt v. Eure, 189 N. C. 482, 127 S. E. 593, 603.

Defendant Must Not Be Left in Doubt.—The facts should be so stated as to leave the defendant in no doubt as to alleged cause of action against him, so that he may know what his defense must be. Hussey v. Norfolk, etc., R. Co., 98 N. C. 34, 3 S. E. 923.

Right to Demand Filing of Amended Complaint.—Several elements of damages may be alleged on one cause of action, or upon several causes of action, and the defendant must be required to file his answer. Jackson v. Bushue, 107 N. C. 599, 172 S. E. 196.

Sufficiency of the Facts.—If the facts stated in the complaint, together with those drawn into issue on the answer of the defendants, constitute a right to any relief whatever, the plaintiff is entitled to have it on the case as it was, without amendment. Jones v. Mial, 82 N. C. 252, 258.

Avemment of Willingness in Reciprocal Contract.—Where the plaintiff sues on a contract involving the performance of reciprocal acts between himself and the defendant, he must aver and show a readiness and willingness to perform on his part. Jones v. Mial, 79 N. C. 165.

Facts Warranted by the Evidence Should Be Alleged.—Under the new system, two causes of action are sought to be joined in the same complaint, the complaint must state such facts as would show that the two causes of action can be united under section 1-123. Allison v. Citizens' Bank Commissioners v. McPherson, 79 N. C. 524, 525; Citizens Bank v. Grady, 103 N. C. 106, 5 S. E. 196.

"A plain and concise statement of facts," within the meaning of this section, means a statement of all the facts necessary to enable the plaintiff to recover. By a "plain" statement of facts is meant a direct and positive averment of fact, which does not leave the existence of the fact to be inferred merely from the existence of some other fact. Commissioner v. McPherson, 79 N. C. 524, 525; Citizens Bank v. Grady, 103 N. C. 106, 5 S. E. 196.

Redundancy in pleading does not present quite the theoretical and technical problems posed by the subject of redundant evidence. Redundancy is that which is unnecessary to "a plain and concise statement of the facts constituting a cause of action," such as unnecessary repetition, and the detailed statement of evidential matters, however relevant the latter may be when presented upon the trial. Parrish v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 221 N. C. 292, 298, 20 S. E. (2d) 299.

A party to an action is entitled as a matter of right to present the facts constituting his cause of action, and the facts constituting his cause of action, or defense, and nothing more. Patterson v. Southern Ry. Co., 214 N. C. 38, 42, 198 S. E. 364; Wadesboro v. Cox, 215 N. C. 708, 2 S. E. (2d) 876.

In any case where a party is entitled to present the material and essential facts constituting plaintiff's cause of action, as to so as to disclose the issuable facts determinative of plaintiff's right to relief, and should not contain collateral, irrelevant, redundant or evidential matter. Barron v. Cain, 216 N. C. 282, 4 S. E. (2d) 618.

Facts Must Be Stated, Not Conclusions or Evidence.—The code of civil procedure modifying the method of pleading, discards the old principle of pleading facts or circumstances constituting the cause of action must be pleaded and not the pleading's conclusion. The pleading must state every material fact as true as ever. With respect to the statement of these facts there has been no relaxation of the requisite in the new form, and no alteration from the old, except that the plaintiff need not aver in his pleading all the matter set forth in the complaint. Moore v. Hobbs, 79 N. C. 535, 537; Lasstler v. Roper, 114 N. C. 17, 19, 18 S. E. 946; Gossler v. Wood, 120 N. C. 69, 73, 27 S. E. 33.

A complaint which merely states a conclusion of law is demurrable both at common law and under the Code. Rountree v. Brinson, 98 N. C. 107, 3 S. E. 747.

Defenses Must Not Be Left in Doubt.—If it is alleged that the consideration for the debt or the note sued upon is value, and plaintiffs must not be left in doubt as to whether the consideration for the debt or the note sued upon is value. Jones v. Mial, 82 N. C. 252, 258; Lassiter v. Norfolk, etc., R. Co., 98 N. C. 34, 3 S. E. 923.

Relief Should Correspond to Proof.—Under this section a party is not restricted to the specific relief demanded by him, but may have any additional and different relief which the pleadings and facts proved show to be just and proper. Knight v. Houghtaling, 85 N. C. 17; McNeill v. Hodges, 105 N. C. 51, 11 S. E. 265; Randon v. North Carolina R. Co., 127 N. C. 110, 37 S. E. 155.

V. DEMAND FOR RELIEF.

Relief Prayed and Afforded.—It is the apparent purpose of the new system, while simplifying the method of procedure, to afford any relief to which the plaintiff may be entitled upon the facts set out in his complaint, although misconceived and not specially demanded in his prayer. Jones v. Mial, 82 N. C. 252, 258.

Relief Prayed Should Correspond to Proof.—The relief to be granted in an action does not depend upon that asked for in the complaint; but upon whether the matters alleged prove in fact, and are consistent with the petition, and not the prayer of the party. Knight v. Houghtaling, 85 N. C. 17; McNeill v. Hodges, 105 N. C. 51, 11 S. E. 265; Randon v. North Carolina R. Co., 127 N. C. 110, 37 S. E. 155.

What Determines the Measure of Relief.—Under the Code system the demand for relief is made wholly irrelevant, and that it is the case made by the pleadings and facts proved, and not the prayer of the party. The court must first determine the measure of relief to be administered, the only restriction being that the relief given must not be inconsistent with the procedure and facts proved. In other words, the court has adopted the old equity practice, when granting relief, the party to the relief granted, and this is so in the absence of any prayer for relief. Bryan v. Canady, 116 N. C. 579, 86 S. E. 584.

Party Not Limited to Specific Relief Prayed.—Under this section a party is not restricted to the specific relief demanded by him, but may have any additional and different relief which the pleadings and facts proved show to be just and proper. Knight v. Houghtaling, 85 N. C. 17; McNeill v. Hodges, 105 N. C. 51, 11 S. E. 265; Randon v. North Carolina R. Co., 127 N. C. 110, 37 S. E. 155.

What Determines the Measure of Relief.—Under the Code system the demand for relief is made wholly irrelevant, and that it is the case made by the pleadings and facts proved, and not the prayer of the party. The court must first determine the measure of relief to be administered, the only restriction being that the relief given must not be inconsistent with the procedure and facts proved. In other words, the court has adopted the old equity practice, when granting relief, the party to the relief granted, and this is so in the absence of any prayer for relief. Bryan v. Canady, 116 N. C. 579, 86 S. E. 584.

Alternative Relief.—The form of the prayer for judgment is not material, and the plaintiff may unite two causes of action relating to the same transaction and obtain alternative relief. Herring v. Cumberland Lumber Co., 159 N. C. 382, 74 S. E. 1011.

V. STATEMENT OF CONSIDERATION FOR THE PURCHASE OF LAND.

See § 1-136 and clause 5 of § 1-313 and the notes thereto.

§ 1-123. What causes of action may be joined.—

The plaintiff may unite in the same complaint several causes of action, of legal or equitable nature, or both, where they all arise out of—

1. The same transaction, or transaction connected with the same subject of action.
2. Contract, express or implied.
3. Injuries with or without force to person or property.
4. Injuries to character.
5. Claims to recover real property, with or without damages for the withholding thereof, and the rents and profits of the same.
6. Claims to recover personal property, with or without damages for the withholding thereof; or, 7. Claims against a trustee, by virtue of a contract, or by operation of law. But the causes of action so united must all belong to one of these classes, and, except in actions for the foreclosure of mortgages, must affect all the parties to the action, and not require different places of trial, and must be separately stated.

In actions to foreclose mortgages, the court may adjudge and direct the payment by the mortgagor of any residue of the debt remaining unsatisfied after a sale of the mortgaged premises, in cases in which the mortgagor is personally liable for the debt secured; and if there is not enough to cover it, the court may adjudge payment of the residue of the debt remaining unsatisfied after a sale of the mortgaged premises, against the other person, and may enforce such judgment as in other cases. (Rev., s. 469; Code, s. 267; C. C. P., s. 126; C. S. 507.)

As to parties generally, see § 5-57 et seq. As to who may be defendants, see § 1-69. As to improper joinder of causes of action as ground for demurrer, see § 1-127, subsection 5. As to section prohibiting deficiency judgments in foreclosures of purchase money mortgages, see § 45-36.

I. IN GENERAL.

See notes under §§ 1-69, 1-127.

The common law does not generally allow the joinder of causes of action of different natures because it leads to prolixity, the multiplication of issues and confusion. Gregory v. Hobbs, 93 N. C. 1, 4.

The purpose of this section is to extend the right of plaintiffs to join actions, not merely by including equitable as well as legal causes of action, but to make the ground broad enough so that a plaintiff may have against a defendant, so that the court may not be forced "to take two bites at a cherry," but may dispose of the whole subject of controversy and its incidents and corollaries in one action. Hamlin v. Tucker, 72 N. C. 502, 503; Livingston v. Tanner, 12 Barb. 486; Vandervoot v. Gould, 36 N. Y. 645; Gregory v. Hobbs, 93 N. C. 1, 3.

Joinder Not Mandatory but Permissive.—The provisions of this section are permissive. They are not mandatory to compel the joinder of separate causes of action arising out of the same transaction. Gregory v. Hobbs, 93 N. C. 1; old system the lost or destroyed deed could only be established in a court of equity, where a decree for title and such other relief as might be proper could be made and enforceable according to the principles of that court. Jennings
v. Reeves, 101 N. C. 474, 470, 7 S. E. 897.

Cited in Berger v. Stevens, 197 N. C. 234, 237, 148 S.

E. 729; Hodges v. Wilmington, etc., R. Co., 105 N.
C. 170, 171, 10 S. E. 917. For example in Hamlin v. Tucker, 72 N.
C. 502, it was held that a plaintiff may in the same complaint join as separate causes of action: (1) the harboring and maintaining of a wife; (2) the conversion of personal property belonging to property, to which the plaintiff is entitled jure maritari; (3) inducing the wife while harbored and maintained to execute to defendant a deed for land, under which he had received deeds, and (4) converting or selling certain mules, farming utensils, etc., set out in a marriage settlement executed by the plaintiff and his wife. Hawk v. Pine Builder Co., 141 N. C. 256, 63 S. E. 7.

Likewise in Young v. Young, 81 N. C. 92, the court held that a complaint containing several causes of action, viz:
(1) to declare one defendant a trustee of land, (2) to recover judgment of other defendants for purchase-value of same, (3) and to recover possession of the land with damages for withholding it, is not demurrable.

Stockholder’s Suit against Corporate Officers. — Where the stockholders of a corporation have brought an action for damages for their mismanagement and negligence in accepting worthless paper, and inducing the plaintiffs to become indorsers thereon to their loss and damage, and in filing its answers they, as parties to the action, asked the plaintiffs to dismiss their answer and to ask for a further judgment to do so, the causes of action are properly joined, one sounding in tort and the other being an equitable right arising out of transactions connected with the same subject-matter. Ayers v. Bailey, 105 N.
C. 209, 78 S. E. 66.

Suit against Defaulting Corporate Officer and Surety.— A cause by the corporation and its surety for suit against a defaulting officer and the surety or guarantor for his honesty or fidelity is not objectionable as a misjoinder of parties and causes of action, the alleged default of the principal having occurred that created the surety’s liability within the terms and conditions of its bond. Shuford v. Yarborough, 197
N. C. 150, 151 S. E. 834, distinguishing Clark v. Bonsol, 157
N. C. 270, 72 S. E. 954, and citing Carswell v. Talley, 192
N. C. 137, 133 S. E. 677. Shuford v. Yarborough, 197
N. C. 256, 125 S. E. 621; S. v. Bank, 193 N. C. 524, 137 S.
E. 933; Shuford v. Yarborough, 197 N. C. 150, 151, 147 S.
E. 584.

Actions on Insurance Policies. — In McGowan v. Life Insurance Co., 141 N. C. 367, 54 S. E. 287, the complaint alleged that the plaintiff had been induced to take fifteen policies on her life from the corporation for the purpose of providing for the support of her children by means of certain false and fraudulent representations made to her by the defendant’s agents that they were ten-year tontine policies; that after paying her premiums and assessing the policies for ten years when she demanded performance it was refused, and she discovered that the policies did not mean what the defendant’s agents had represented to her.
It was held that the causes of action properly joined were (1) a demand for judgment for the possession of the premiums paid for the policies, (2) a suit against the agents of the defendant for damages arising out of a transaction connected with the same subject of action. See also, Pretzelfelder & Co. v. Merchants Inc., 116 N. C. 491, 54 S. E. 730, to Engrat Parol Trust on Land.—Where the plaintiff in a suit to engraft a parol trust upon the title unfavour of a husband and wife, alleges that they had a mortgage on three tracts of land, the husband having sold that in two of them and his wife in the other, and that the husband for himself and as agent for his wife had agreed with a third person that the latter should bid it in at the sale and hold the title in trust for them upon the following conditions: (1) that all the children of of the alleged deceased trustee, the complaint was not demurtable upon the ground of a misjoinder of parties and E. 734. In an action to recover land on the ground that the sale under execution was void, it was held that all matter of the title was in favor of a husband and wife, and the cause of action was not joined with one founded on contract; but in Hocutt v. Richmond Cedar Works, etc., R. Co., 105 N. C. 170, 10 S.
E. 917, this rule was stated and explained and so as to permit such a joinder of action, provided they arose out of the same transactions or subject of action. Hodgens v. Wakefield
Co., 135 N. C. 73, 47 S. E. 234; Richmond Cedar Works v. Roper Co., 161 N. C. 603, 77 S. E. 770, 774. In an action on all the cases of Logan v. Wallace, 76 N. C. 416, and Doughty v. Atlantic, etc., R. Co., 197 N. C. 119, 110 S.
E. 916, it was broadened to state that a cause of action founded on a tract of land could not be joined with one founded on contract; but in Hocutt v. Richmond Cedar Works, etc., R. Co., 105 N. C. 170, 10 S.
E. 917, this rule was stated and explained and so as to permit such a joinder of action, provided they arose out of the same transactions or subject of action. Hodgens v. Wakefield
Co., 135 N. C. 73, 47 S. E. 234; Richmond Cedar Works v. Roper
Co., 161 N. C. 603, 77 S. E. 770, 774. In an action on the cases of Logan v. Wallace, 76 N. C. 416, and Doughty v. Atlantic, etc., R. Co., 78 N. C. 22, it was broadly stated that a cause of action founded on a tract of land could not be joined with one founded on contract; but in Hocutt v. Richmond Cedar Works, etc., R. Co., 105 N. C. 170, 10 S.
E. 917, this rule was stated and explained and so as to permit transactions or subject of action. Hodgens v. Wakefield

Co., 135 N. C. 73, 47 S. E. 234; Richmond Cedar Works v. Roper
Co., 161 N. C. 603, 77 S. E. 770, 774. false arrest of the male plaintiff and abuse of process in swearing out a peace warrant against him and his false imprisonment, the defendant's demurrer on the ground of misjoinder of parties and causes of action was properly sustained and the case dismissed, the several causes of action not affecting all the parties to the action as required by this section and § 52-10, authorizing a married woman to bring suit for personal injuries without the joinder of her husband. Sass v. Bullard, 199 N.
C. 562, 155 S. E. 248.

Scheme and Conspiracy to Defraud.—The complaint allleged fraud and conspiracy on the part of defendants including plaintiffs to sign a deed describing not only the property intended to be conveyed by plaintiffs, but also other property of such plaintiffs. The prayer was a motion for judgment for fraud and conspiracy to deprive plaintiffs of the purchase price of the property intended to be conveyed, which was to be paid in cash or secured by registered lien, defendant grantees executed without notes, thereby defrauding and defendant attorney wrongfully withheld one of the notes so executed, and prayed for reformation of the deed and for judgment on the notes.
Held: Defendants' demurrer on the ground of joinder of parties and causes of action was properly overruled, since all the matters alleged arose out of the same transaction or transactions connected with the same subject of action. Griggs v.

Warranties—Predecessors in Title.—A grantee of lands against whom a recovery has been had for a part thereof may sue his grantor for damages upon the covenant of warranty in the deed. This is true not only of the express warranty but of an implied warranty of quiet title. This chain of title, separately or in the same action, the subject-matter being the same, our Code system not favoring multiplicity of suits. Winders v. Southlander, 174 N.
C. 591, 159 S. E. 726.

Proceedings under § 59-16.—A complaint in proceedings by the wife under § 50-16, for allowance for subsistence and consul fees, with allegations that the husband had frauduently withheld his lands to his wife for a discharge of her husband, to deprive the plaintiff of her marital rights, and afterwards had grossly abused her and coerced her into accepting a deed of separation is good and a demurrer thereto is improper. Where, however, the allegations are such as to show that the trial court had jurisdiction in the action, the plea of in forma pauperis does not prevent the issuance of

SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE AND ACTION FOR DAMAGES. — It is well settled, a cause of action for specific performance may be joined with one for damages resulting from a breach of the contract, or from a delayed performance, or from unauthorized performance, and the action for injunction may be joined in one complaint. Bryan v. Stewart, 123
359, 55 S. E. 853.

A cause of action for a penalty for unreasonable delay in delivery of goods may be joined with one for recovery of the value of goods delivered. Doughty v. Atlantic, etc., R. Co., 78 N. C. 22, 23; Hodges v. Wilmington etc., R. Co., 140 N. C. 604, 55 S. E. 191.

Claim for penalties against the same defendant may unite several such causes of action in the same complaint.
Lykes v. Hughes, 116 N. C. 430, 437, 21 S. E. 971; Carter v. Wilmington, etc., R. Co., 126 N. C. 437, 36 S.
E. 487.

IV. CAUSES OF ACTION FOR TORT TO PERSON OR PROPERTY.

Injury to Person and Property May be United.—Causes of action for personal injuries by assault and battery, or property, or to either, may be united, and different causes of action for such injuries may be united against one or more defendants, provided that each of such causes affects all the parties to the action. Howell v. Fuller, 151 N.
C. 315, 66 S. E. 131.

Trespass and Assault.—A count in trespass for forcibly entering the plaintiff's close may be joined with a count for assault and battery. Flynn v. Anderson, 31 N. C.
328.

Destroying Property and Trespass.—An action for wrongfully destroying a building may be joined with a count for trespass in entering the plaintiff's premises. Rip-pee v. Miller, 46 N. C. 479.

Trespass Vi Et Armis and on the Case.—In an action for false imprisonment, under the Code, the common-law actions of trespass vi et armis and of trespass on the case may be joined in one complaint. Bryan v. Stewart, 123
359, 55 S. E. 853.

A cause of action for a penalty for unreasonable delay in delivery of goods may be joined with one for recovery of the value of goods delivered. Doughty v. Atlantic, properly sustained, since one of the causes sounds in contract while the others sound in tort, and since the causes alleged do not affect all the parties to the action. Ellis v. Balk, 117 N. C. 567.

Injuries to Father and Son by the Same Negligence. — The joinder of a cause of action brought by a son, an employee, to recover of his employer damages for personal injury alleged to have been caused by the latter's negligence, with that of the father to recover for the loss of the son's services alleged to have been caused by the same negligence, is proper. A party may have two separate causes of action, one for a personal injury and the other for loss of services, and may sue either or both. Alford v. Atlantic, etc., R. Co., 160 N. C. 81, 181 S. E. 1.

Actions Against Different Insurance Companies. — Where a person was insured in several companies, and each policy limited the amount of his recovery thereunder to the portion of the loss which the policy should bear to the total insurance, it was proper, in an action to recover for a loss, to make each company a party defendant. Pretzfelder & Co. v. Merchants' Ins. Co., 116 N. C. 491, 21 S. E. 605.

Action against Partner. — A cause of action against one on a contract as a partner may be joined with a cause of action against such partner individually. Logan v. Wallis, 76 N. C. 415.

Actions upon Administrator's and Clerk's Bonds. — A complaint in which are joined two causes of action, one upon a clerk and one upon an executor, agrees irrevocably to have it tried in a place named. Thigpen v. Cottons Mills, 151 N. C. 97, 63 S. E. 750.

A appearing in the same cause of action is a full and sufficient defense to the action. Thigpen v. Cot-tons Mills, 151 N. C. 97, 63 S. E. 750.

Joinder of Contract and Tort Actions against Different Defendants. — A cause of action against one defendant, not being delivered, agrees irrevocably to have it tried in a place named. Thigpen v. Cot-tons Mills, 151 N. C. 97, 63 S. E. 750.

Action against Two Carriers. — Where a carrier has accepted a shipment beyond its own line, and upon notification of its loss a party to have it restored to the starting point, and delivery is made there in bad condition, a joinder of causes of action against the two de-fendants to recover damages to the shipment while in their possession is proper. Lyon v. Atlantic, etc., R. Co., 165 N. C. 143, 81 S. E. 1.

Joinder of Contract and Tort Actions against Different Parties. — A party may have one or more of several causes of action stated in the complaint, and answer to the residue. (Rev. C. S. 1907, ss. 470, 471; Code, ss. 238, 246; C. C. P., ss. 94, 103; C. S. 508.)

Cross Reference. — As to counterclaim in answer, see § 1-140.

Applies to Several Causes of Action Not to Several Allegations. — A party may have one cause of action not to be joined with another. See § 1-126, infra, as to the general rule. A party may, for example, assert that A wronged him, and also that B wronged him, and also that C wronged him, in the same cause of action. Such allegations are not joined. The joinder of two causes of action is proper. Thigpen v. Cot-tons Mills, 151 N. C. 97, 63 S. E. 750.

§ 1-125. When defendant appears and pleads; extension of time; clerk to mail answer to plain-tiff.— The defendant must appear and demur or answer within thirty (30) days after the service of summons upon him, or within thirty (30) days after the final determination of a motion to remove as a matter of right, or after the final determination of a motion to dismiss upon a special appearance, or after the final determination of any other motion required to be made prior to the filing of the answer, or after final judgment overruling demurrer, or after the final determination of a motion to set aside a judgment by default under § 1-220, or to set aside a judgment under § 1-142. If the director of a court of record overrules a demurrer to the complaint, then the defendant shall have thirty (30) days after the final day fixed by such extension in which to plead. The clerk shall not extend the time for filing answer or demurrer more than once nor for a period of time exceeding twenty days except by consent of parties. The defendant shall, when he files answer, likewise file at least one copy thereof for the use of the plaintiff, and his attorney; and the clerk shall not receive and file any answer until and unless such copy is filed therewith. The clerk shall forthwith mail the copy of answer filed to the plaintiff or his at-torney of record. This section shall also apply to all courts of record inferior to the superior court, where any defendant resides out of the county from which the summons is issued, and in such case the court of record inferior to the superior court shall fix such return date at least three (3) days. (Rev. 1937, ss. 473; Code, ss. 207; 1971, ch. 42, s. 4; 1919, c. 304, s. 3; Ex. Sess. 1921, c. 92, s. 1, par. 3; 1927, c. 66, s. 4; 1935, c. 267; C. S. 509.)

Cross Reference. — As to judgment by default final, see § 1-211. As to judgment by default and inquiry, see § 1-212. As to extension of time for filing of answer or by judge upon such conditions as the court may order, see § 1-126. As to provisions on summons, see sections 1-98 et seq. 1 N. C. L. Rev. p. 9 et seq.

For an analysis of summons in inferior courts, see § 1-126.

Editor's Note. — This section underwent material changes both in its phraseology and substance by every amendment since 1920, cited at the end thereof. As it originally stood in the Consolidated Statutes, it required that the defendant must appear and demur or answer within twenty days after the return day of the summons, and in case of extension of time for the filing of the complaint, twenty days from the filing of such complaint with an authority in the clerk to extend the time for filing the answer or demurrer for good cause shown; otherwise the defendant would be the judge of the case.

By the laws of 1921 (Ex. Sess. 1921, ch. 92, sec. 1, par. 3), these provisions were so framed, as to allow the filing of the answer or demurrer twenty days after service of complaint, or within twenty days after the final determina-tion of a motion to remove as a matter of right.

The same amendment inserted a provision to the effect that in case the complaint was not served, for good cause shown, the clerk may extend the time to a day certain; and a limitation upon the power of the clerk not to extend beyond twenty days after service of the complaint upon each of the defendants. (To this latter effect see, Battle v. Mercer, 187 N. C. 437, 122 S. E. 4; Lerch v. McKinne, 185 N. C. 244, 119 S. E. 189, where it was said that this limitation is a material part of the statute the object of which is to give the defendant twenty days after he is in-formed of the complaint.)

The amendment of 1927 changed the bases of the time within which the demurrer or the answer was to be filed. While formerly this was dependent upon the return day of the summons and the summons was served being time within which the defendant was required to file for the section as amended, the return day of the summons has no bearing upon the time for filing the answer or the demurrer, the basis of such time now being the service of the summons. As to changes wrought into section 1-125 fixing the time of filing the complaint, see section 1-89 relative to the service and return of process.

This amendment also increased (from twenty to thirty days) the number of days within which the answer may be filed where the time is extended for the filing of the complaint. The time for filing an answer may be extended by the court, but such extension once is also new. So also is the requirement for filing a copy of the answer for the use of the plaintiff.

The Act of 1927, ch. 132, was to amend an amendatory act of 1925, ch. 150 (1925, c. 150, § 1-129) but did not affect any part of this section individually.

The amendment of 1935 added the last sentence of the section relating to courts to which it is applicable.

Note

1-120. Contrary to § 1-129. Construing the acts amendatory of this section and section 1-140 together there is no repugnancy between them so as to repeal by implication the provision of the latter, that an answer of defendant setting up a colorable defense, or a demurrer to any pleading, if of record, is served on the plaintiff or his attorney. Williams-Fulgren Lumber Co. v. Welch, 197 N. C. 249, 148 S. E. 250. Heffner v. Jefferson Standard Life Ins. Co., 214 N. C. 73, 195 S. E. 292.

Motion to Dismiss on Special Appearance.—Defendant mak- ing a special appearance and moving to dismiss is entitled to the right to extend the time for filing of plaintiff's motion for judgment by default. Bank of Fife- hurst v. Derby, 215 N. C. 669, 2 S. E. (2d) 875.

Extension of Time. — It has been held that the power of court to extend the time for filing of the complaint in which to answer under a misapprehension of the law or of any other act is neither affected nor curtailed by the provisions of this section. See McNair v. Yarbrough, 186 N. C. 111, 118 S. E. 913; Roberts v. Merritt, 189 N. C. 194, 126 S. E. 912; Edwards v. Harrell, 174 S. E. 919.

Same.—Consent of Defendant. — The clerk has authority, upon request of the defendant, to extend the time for filing the answer beyond the twenty days allowed by this section. Guedon v. Merrimon, 122 N. C. 731, 29 S. E. 321; United, etc., Baptist Church N. E. Conference v. Meeke, 122 N. C. 790, 796, 29 S. E. 781.

Same.—Beyond Time Requested. — Where a defendant has acted within the time allowed him by law to file his motion to dismiss, and the answer of the defendant, instead of extending the time for filing the answer, extends the time for filing of the complaint, though under a misapprehension as to the statutory time he has requested the clerk to allow him two weeks in which to file his answer, this assignment of error is not reversible. See Stevens Lumber Co. v. Arnold, 179 N. C. 269, 102 S. E. 409.

Same.—On Appeal. — The defendant against whom the judgment by default has been rendered, may on appeal apply to the judge for an extension of time. Brooks v. Weatherby, 105 N. C. 655, 11 S. E. 764.

Same.—Modification of Order at Subsequent Term. — An order extending time for defendant to plead, and providing that, in case he did not do so within the time limited, judgment by default should be entered, did not make such order conclusive as to affecting rights and interests of the parties. If not made so by defendant's consent to entry of such order, and hence it may be modified by another judge at a subsequent term. See Brooks v. Merrimon, 122 N. C. 731, 30 S. E. 321; United, etc., Baptist Church N. E. Conference v. United, etc., Baptist Church, N. W. Conference, 158 N. C. 564, 74 S. E. 14; Cook v. Bank, 131 N. C. 96, 42 S. E. 837.

Same.—Sufficient with Order. — If defendant prays time to answer and afterwards within the time he answers, denying combination and demurs for the residue, that is sufficient compliance with the order of deJohn v. Burton, 3 N. C. 127.

Plaintiff May Have Judgment by Default. — If the complaint is filed in compliance with section 1-123, and the defendant fails to appear and answer at the same term, plaintiff may have a judgment by default. Brown v. Rhinehart, 112 N. C. 772, 775, 16 S. E. 840.

§ 1-120. Contrary to § 1-129. Construing the acts amendatory of this section and section 1-140 together there is no repugnancy between them so as to repeal by implication the provision of the latter, that an answer of defendant setting up a colorable defense, or a demurrer to any pleading, if of record, is served on the plaintiff or his attorney. Williams-Fulgren Lumber Co. v. Welch, 197 N. C. 249, 148 S. E. 250. Heffner v. Jefferson Standard Life Ins. Co., 214 N. C. 73, 195 S. E. 292.

Motion to Dismiss on Special Appearance.—Defendant making a special appearance and moving to dismiss is entitled to the right to extend the time for filing of plaintiff's motion for judgment by default. Bank of Fifehurst v. Derby, 215 N. C. 669, 2 S. E. (2d) 875.

Extension of Time. — It has been held that the power of court to extend the time for filing of the complaint in which to answer under a misapprehension of the law or of any other act is neither affected nor curtailed by the provisions of this section. See McNair v. Yarbrough, 186 N. C. 111, 118 S. E. 913; Roberts v. Merritt, 189 N. C. 194, 126 S. E. 912; Edwards v. Harrell, 174 S. E. 919.

Same.—Consent of Defendant. — The clerk has authority, upon request of the defendant, to extend the time for filing the answer beyond the twenty days allowed by this section. Guedon v. Merrimon, 122 N. C. 731, 29 S. E. 321; United, etc., Baptist Church N. E. Conference v. United, etc., Baptist Church, N. W. Conference, 158 N. C. 564, 74 S. E. 14; Cook v. Bank, 131 N. C. 96, 42 S. E. 837.

Same.—Beyond Time Requested. — Where a defendant has acted within the time allowed him by law to file his motion to dismiss, and the answer of the defendant, instead of extending the time for filing the answer, extends the time for filing of the complaint, though under a misapprehension as to the statutory time he has requested the clerk to allow him two weeks in which to file his answer, this assignment of error is not reversible. See Stevens Lumber Co. v. Arnold, 179 N. C. 269, 102 S. E. 409.

Same.—On Appeal. — The defendant against whom the judgment by default has been rendered, may on appeal apply to the judge for an extension of time. Brooks v. Weatherby, 105 N. C. 655, 11 S. E. 764.

Same.—Modification of Order at Subsequent Term. — An order extending time for defendant to plead, and providing that, in case he did not do so within the time limited, judgment by default should be entered, did not make such order conclusive as to affecting rights and interests of the parties. If not made so by defendant's consent to entry of such order, and hence it may be modified by another judge at a subsequent term. See Brooks v. Merrimon, 122 N. C. 731, 30 S. E. 321; United, etc., Baptist Church N. E. Conference v. United, etc., Baptist Church, N. W. Conference, 158 N. C. 564, 74 S. E. 14; Cook v. Bank, 131 N. C. 96, 42 S. E. 837.

Same.—Sufficient with Order. — If defendant prays time to answer and afterwards within the time he answers, denying combination and demurs for the residue, that is sufficient compliance with the order of deJohn v. Burton, 3 N. C. 127.

Plaintiff May Have Judgment by Default. — If the complaint is filed in compliance with section 1-123, and the defendant fails to appear and answer at the same term, plaintiff may have a judgment by default. Brown v. Rhinehart, 112 N. C. 772, 775, 16 S. E. 840.
Discretion of the trial judge to permit the defendant to answer after overruling a demurrer to the complaint, though the objection may not be taken advantage of by demurrer on appeal. — The refusal to hold a demurrer or answer frivolous and to render judgment thereon is not appealable (Walters v. Starnes, 118 N. C. 842, 24 S. E. 713; Abbott v. Hermann, 196 N. C. 585, 150 S. E. 271, where it was held that the defendant was entitled to an injunction); where the action of the judge of the Superior Court in passing upon the demurrer or answer to the court in refusing to strike out the defendant's answer as sham and frivolous, under this section, is upon a matter of law requiring exception thereto the defendant has a right of appeal to the Supreme Court. Wells v. Lassiter, 200 N. C. 470, 157 S. E. 434.

The Superior Court has the power and authority to determine on appeal the order of the clerk of the court in refusing to strike out the defendant's answer on the ground that it was sham and frivolous, under this section. Wells v. Lassiter, 200 N. C. 470, 157 S. E. 434.

§ 1-127. Grounds for.—The defendant may demur to the complaint when it appears upon the face thereof, either that:
1. The court has no jurisdiction of the person of the defendant, or of the subject of the action; or,
2. The plaintiff has not legal capacity to sue; or,
3. There is another action pending between the same parties for the same cause; or,
4. There is a defect of parties plaintiff or defendant; or,
5. Several causes of action have been improperly joined; or,
6. The complaint does not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action. (Rev., s. 474; Code, s. 239; C. C. P., s. 95; C. S. 511.)

IN GENERAL

All Demurrers Special.—Under our practice all demurrers are special, and serve only for the causes specified in this section. Shaffer v. Morris Bank, 201 N. C. 415, 417, 160 S. E. 481.

Demurrer Does Not Admit Conclusions of Law.—A demurrer challenges the sufficiency of the pleading, taking as true the facts alleged and the relevant inferences of facts deducible therefrom, but the demurrer does not admit inferences or conclusions of law. Cathey v. Southwestern Const. Co., 218 N. C. 525, 11 S. E. (2d) 571.

Defect Must Appear on Face of Complaint.—Demurrer to the jurisdiction on ground that summons was issued out of a recorder's court to another county in a action ex contractu involving less than $200,000, is bad as a pleading, since the defect does not appear on the face of the complaint. Four County Agricultural Credit Corp. v. Satterfield, 218 N. C. 296, 19 S. E. (2d) 914.

Enumeration of Grounds Exclusive.—The enumeration in this section of the grounds upon which a demurrer may be based is exclusive; the ground thus specified is the only ground which shall be considered when the demurrer is a plea to the jurisdiction of the court. Four County Agricultural Credit Corp. v. Satterfield, 218 N. C. 296, 19 S. E. (2d) 914.

Plea to the jurisdiction of the court is a plea to the cause of action set out in the complaint. Williams v. Cooper, 222 N. C. 589, 24 S. E. (2d) 844.

Motion Ore Tenus.—A motion which is demurrable on this ground may also be taken advantage of by a motion ore tenus. Tucker v. Baker, 86 N. C. 1, 3. See sec. 1-134. No demurrer to the jurisdiction of the court in an action ex contractu involving less than $200,000 is bad as a plea to the cause of action, since the demand is not by plea but by motion ore tenus. Dunn v. Barnes, 73 N. C. 273.

 objsions Waived.—All objections except those on the ground that the court has no jurisdiction of the person of the defendant or the subject matter of the action, and that the complaint does not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action, are waived unless they are taken by demurrer or answer. But the exceptions referred to may be taken advantage of by demurrer on appeal to the appellate court. Clements v. Rogers, 91 N. C. 63, 64; Raleigh v. Hatcher, 220 N. C. 613, 18 S. E. (2d) 207. See sec. 1-134 and notes thereto.

Same.—No Cause Stated.—The objection that the complaint states no cause of action or that the court has no jurisdiction to make the complaint more definite and certain, and not by demurrer. Jones v. Henderson, 147 N. C. 120, 60 S. E. 854; Allen v. Carolina Company of R. Co., 120 N. C. 548, 27 S. E. 76. See § 1-133, and notes thereto.

Alternative, Argumentative, or Hypothetical Allegations.—That a complaint is "argumentative, hypothetical, and in consistency of Causes.—A complaint is not always demurrable because two alleged causes of action are to some extent inconsistent. Worth v. Knickerbocker Trust Co., 132 N. C. 243, 67 S. E. 907.

Inconsistency of Causes.—A complaint is not always demurrable because two alleged causes of action are to some extent inconsistent. Worth v. Knickerbocker Trust Co., 132 N. C. 243, 67 S. E. 907.

Inability to Demand for Judgment.—Any inutility in the demand for judgment in a complaint is not ground for demurrer, and must be disregarded when the sum demanded, and how it is due, sufficiently appear from the allegations and complaint. Dunn v. Barnes, 73 N. C. 273.

By filing answer defendants waive right to demurrer except for want of jurisdiction or for failure to state the remedy of a defendant desiring a more definite statement of the alleged negligence is by motion to make the complaint more definite and certain, and not by demurrer. Jones v. Henderson, 147 N. C. 120, 60 S. E. 854; Allen v. Carolina Company of R. Co., 120 N. C. 548, 27 S. E. 76. See § 1-133, and notes thereto.

Motion to Make More Certain.—Where a pleading is indefinite and uncertain, it is not subject to demurrer, but the proper remedy is to make the pleading more certain. Seaboard Air Line R. Co. v. Main, 132 N. C. 445, 41 S. E. 930.

The same rule applies where the complaint does not fully state the terms of the contract sued on. Wood v. Kincare, 144 N. C. 393, 57 S. E. 4.

Where a complaint alleging negligence states a cause of action the remedy of a defendant desiring a more definite statement of the alleged negligence is by motion to make the complaint more definite and certain, and not by demurrer. Jones v. Henderson, 147 N. C. 120, 60 S. E. 854; Allen v. Carolina Company of R. Co., 120 N. C. 548, 27 S. E. 76. See § 1-133, and notes thereto.

in this state, the plea to the jurisdiction should be overruled. Southerland v. Harrell, 204 N. C. 675, 169 S. E. 423.

Demurrer for Want of Proper Service of Summons.—When a defendant wishes to demur to the jurisdiction of the court for the want of proper service of summons on him, he must enter a special appearance for that purpose and confine his demur to that objection alone; and when this section the defendant may demur to the complaint when it appears upon its face, the court had no jurisdiction of the person of defendant, and the right to dismiss an action for want of jurisdiction by entering a special appearance for the purpose is included in the rule. Smith v. Haughton, 206 N. C. 587, 588, 174 S. E. 204.

III. LACK OF LEGAL CAPACITY.

In General.—Demurrer lies where a partnership does not show a right to sue, 13 O. S. 210; where it appears upon the face of the pleading that plaintiff suing as a corporation does not show a right to sue, 13 O. S. 210; where it appears upon the face of the pleading that plaintiff suing as an executor without showing authority to act as executor, 3 Abb Pr. 119; and where it appears upon the face of the pleading that plaintiff suing as a corporation does not show a complete title to sue as executor, 26, How. Pr. 15; and that incapacity to sue may arise from want of jurisdiction upon the same subject-matter, cases between the same parties, and that incapacity to sue may arise from want of jurisdiction over the subject-matter of the action. Dailey Motor Co. v. Reeves, 181 N. C. 260, 114 S. E. 175.

Under this section the defendant may demur to the complaint when it appears upon its face, the court had no jurisdiction of the person of defendant, and the right to dismiss an action for want of jurisdiction by entering a special appearance as to the merits, waiving the objection as to jurisdiction, and the defendant may demur to the complaint when it appears that the court has no jurisdiction of the subject-matter of the action. Dailey Motor Co. v. Reeves, 181 N. C. 260, 114 S. E. 175.

Must Appear on the Face of Complaint.—Unless the lack of legal capacity appears on the face of the complaint, a demurrer cannot be sustained based on that objection. Fisher v. Traders' Mut. Life Ins. Co., 126 N. C. 217, 219, 48 S. E. 667.

Action for Death by Wrongful Act.—Where an action for wrongful death is instituted by an administrative official appointed by the court of another state, the defect may be taken by demurrer, since such plaintiff does not have legal capacity to sue and the complaint does not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action. Menil v. Hazlewood, 218 N. C. 215, 10 S. E. (2d) 673.

IV. PENDENCY OF ANOTHER ACTION.

In General.—The character of the prior action is not material if all full relief could have been given therein, 16 Barb, 461; but if it was for relief, which could not be granted in the action demurred to, the demurrer will not be sustained. 5 N. Y. 35.

Pendency in This State Prerequisite.—Upon a demurrer on the ground of pendency of action, it must appear that the claim, or one of the causes of action, is pending in the courts of this state, and not elsewhere, or that the court is competent to render judgment on the claim. Co. v. Hanes, 162 N. C. 46, 47, 77 S. E. 1101; Ridley v. Seaboard, etc., R. Co., 118 N. C. 956, 24 S. E. 730; Sloan & Co. v. McDowell, 75 N. C. 164, 5 S. E. 2d, in another county.—A demurrer to a complaint, setting up the prior pendency in another county of an action upon the same subject-matter between the same parties, will be sustained, under this section, and when such action was not so pending in the pleading objection to the pendency of the second action may be taken by answer. Allen v. Salley, 179 N. C. 147, 171 S. E. 545.

Availed of by Demurrer or Answer.—If the pendency of the former action appear on the face of the complaint, it may be availed of by demurrer, or by answer. Allen v. Salley, 179 N. C. 147, 148, 101 S. E. 545; Curtis v. Piedmont Lumber, etc., Co., 109 N. C. 401, 13 S. E. 494; Reed v. Carolina Mtg. Co., 207 N. C. 27, 175 S. E. 515.

Conclusiveness of Prior Judgment.—Under this section the rights of the plaintiff are remitted to a prior judgment, and the right to dismiss an action for want of jurisdiction by entering a special appearance as to the merits, waiving the objection as to jurisdiction, and the defendant may demur to the complaint when it appears that the court has no jurisdiction of the subject-matter of the action. Dailey Motor Co. v. Reeves, 181 N. C. 260, 114 S. E. 175.

V. DEFECT OF PARTIES.

As to joinder of parties, see sec. 1-70 and notes.

Defect of Necessary Parties.—When a substituted trustee brings an equitable action to reform a deed of trust and certain mortgage notes which are negotiable and the holder of these notes is not parties plaintiff a demurrer may be sustained. First Nat. Bank v. Thomas, 204 N. C. 590, 169 S. E. 189.

The rule of the common law requiring the non-joinder of defendants actions ex contractu to be pleaded and maintained, has been changed, and the omission of a necessary party defendant may, under this section be taken advantage of by demurrer when the defect appears upon the face of the complaint. Merwin v. Cooper, 104 N. Y. 647, 50 N. Y. St. 669. A plea alleging want of jurisdiction is a sham plea. The objection must be raised by demurrer. Flack v. Dawson, 69 N. C. 49.

The non-joinder of parties plaintiff may not be taken advantage of under a general issue. It must be raised by demurrer. Lewis v. McNatt, 65 N. C. 63.

A motion to dismiss the action is an inappropriate method of raising the question of capacity to sue. This issue must be raised by a demurrer. Davidson v. Eims, 67 N. C. 222.

How Defect of Party Cured.—Where there is a defect of parties, the question may be raised by demurrer, and when so raised the defect may be cured by making the lacking party a party to the action. Graves v. Barrett, 126 N. C. 207, 27 S. E. 511.

Same—Correction of Misjoinder of Parties.—A misjoinder of parties plaintiff may upon demurrer or motion be corrected by taxing the plaintiff with such costs as are incurred by the misjoinder. Pritchard v. Mitchell, 139 N. C. 54, 56, 51 S. E. 783.

A motion to dismiss the action is an inappropriate method of raising the question of whether the plaintiff has no corporate capacity.—In a suit against a railroad company, it may be designated as a company by its corporate name, without an averment of its corporate capacity, and if this is disputed, it should be by answer and not by demurrer. Stanley v. Richmond, etc., R. Co., 89 N. C. 331.

VI. MISJOINDER OF SEVERAL CAUSES OF ACTION.

As to what causes may be joined, see sec. 1-123, and the notes thereto.

What Constitutes Misjoinder.—A complaint in an action which is not so prolix as to mislead or confuse the defendants or to conceal or obscure, by its elaboration or redundancy of the facts, the real character of the transaction, or the matter alleged is not held to be a misjoinder. Where matters alleged arise out of one and the same transaction, or series of transactions, forming one course of dealings, all tending to one end, narrating the transaction as a whole.
The cause stated is not objectionable as multifarious. Lee v. Thornton, 171 N. C. 209, 88 S. E. 232.

It does not lie on this ground when causes of action which may be stated in one pleading, but in no case separately stated, have been improperly mingled in one count, 46 N. Y. 173; the remedy is by motion, 14; 20 O. S. 144; 6 Kas. 547; nor where the petition (or complaint) contains more than one cause of action, 30 O. S. 308; 13 Kas. 351; nor where the petition (or complaint) states a single cause of action, 32 N. Y. 399, on the ground that it fails to state a cause of action, 199 N. C. 375, before the pleading in its entirety, it is sufficient in one or more of its parts that the demurrer is that the complaint sucd on was a wagering game, and no recovery could be had under § 16-3, and two causes of action are alleged. If one cause of action is good, the demurrer should be overruled. Meyer v. Fenner, 195 N. C. 476, 146 S. E. 82.

Same—Motion to Make More Certain.—Where the several causes of action are of such a nature that they can be prop- erly joined under section 1-123, but they are not put together in a very logical way, the proper method of taking advan- tage of the defect is not by demurrer but by a motion to make more certain and definite. State v. McCanless, 193 N. C. 200, 206, 136 S. E. 371.

Procedure—Pleas—Demurrer.—The purpose of this section seems to be to give an op- portunity to ask for an amendment when a defect admits of cure, or permits further costs to be avoided if the defect is incurable, since the party, upon the particulars being in- quired of, may become satisfied of the invalidity of his cause of action and discontinue further proceedings. Thompson v. Poovey, 65 N. C. 430, 433.

The purpose of this section seems to be to give an oppor- tunity to ask for an amendment when a defect admits of cure, or permits further costs to be avoided if the defect is incurable, since the party, upon the particulars being in- quired of, may become satisfied of the invalidity of his cause of action and discontinue further proceedings. Thompson v. Poovey, 65 N. C. 430, 433.
Upon an appeal from a judgment overruling a demurrer to the complaint the merits of the controversy are not presented, and the court will determine only whether a cause of action has been sufficiently alleged. Star Furniture Co. v. Carolina Co., et al., 195 N. C. 636, 143 S. E. 242.

Strictness of the Requirement.—In Love v. Commissioners, 64 N. C. 706, the court said: "It is so easy to specify the ground of objection that the court is not disposed to relax the rule. There is no use in having a scribe unless you cut up your brief and boggle, 85 N. C. 203; Allford v. McCormick, 90 N. C. 159.

A demurrer that "the complaint states no cause of action whatever" against the defendant, will be disregarded. It must distinctly specify the grounds of objection to the complaint. Goss v. Walker, 90 N. C. 149.

A demurrer is also insufficient which states generally that "there is a defect of parties" or that plaintiff has no legal capacity to sue. 9 Misc. N. Y. 91.

Motion to Dismiss Must Also Specify Grounds.—A motion to dismiss an action because the complaint does not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action is a demurrer, and should be disregarded unless it states the particular defect of the alleged defect. Elam v. Barnes, 110 N. C. 73, 148 S. E. 621.

Demurring to Some Allegations and Replying to Others.—The latter sentence of this section clearly refers to a complaint containing several causes of action; or an answer taking two distinct grounds. Hence a party may not demur to some of the allegations supporting the same cause of action and reply to others. Ransom v. McClesky, 64 N. C. 706, the court said: "It is so easy to specify the grounds of objection to the complaint. Goss v. Walker, 90 N. C. 149."

§ 1-129. Amendment; hearing.—If a demurrer is filed the plaintiff may be allowed to amend. If plaintiff fail to amend within five days after notice, the parties may agree to a time and place of hearing the same before some judge of the superior court, and it shall be the duty of the clerk of the superior court forthwith to send the complaint and demurrer to the judge holding the courts of the district, or to the resident judge of the district, who shall hear and pass upon the demurrer: Provided, if there be no agreement between the parties as to the time and place of hearing the same before the judge of the superior court, then it shall be the duty of the clerk of the superior court to send the complaint and demurrer to the judge holding the courts of the district, or to the resident judge of the district, who shall hear and pass upon the demurrer at that term of the court. (1919, c. 304, s. 4; Ex. Sess. 1921, c. 92, s. 5; C. S. 513.)

Editor's Note.—Prior to the amendment of 1921 the plaintiff was allowed to amend within three days, and upon failure to amend within such time, and in the absence of agreement between the parties as to the time and place of hearing the demurrer, it was made the duty of the clerk to send the complaint and the demurrer to the judge holding the courts of the district or to the resident judge of the district who was required to fix the time and place of hearing the demurrer, when he shall hear and pass upon the demurrer. There was no provision made as to the procedure in case there was no agreement between the parties. Besides these substantial changes, the phraseology of the section was also materially affected.

As to the changes affected upon this and other sections, see article entitled "Changes in North Carolina Procedure," in C. S. 513.

Presumption on Appeal.—Where the plaintiff has not been asked to be permitted to file an amendment to his complaint upon a demurrer being interposed thereto on the ground that it is insufficient, and he has failed to file a demurrer, it will be considered on appeal that he has concluded to rely solely on the pleading he has filed. Ballinger v. Thomas, 195 N. C. 517, 142 S. E. 761.

§ 1-130. Appeals.—Upon the rendering of the decision upon the demurrer, if either party desires to appeal, notice shall be given and the appeal perfected as is now provided in case of appeals from decisions in term time. (1919, c. 304, s. 5; Ex. Sess. 1921, c. 92, s. 6; C. S. 514.)

Cross Reference.—As to appeal from judicial order or determination in superior court, see § 1-277.

Editor's Note.—The words "judgment" was substituted for the word "return" near the beginning of the section, and the words "from decisions" were inserted near the end of the section by the amendment of 1921.

Cited in Williams v. Cooper, 222 N. C. 589, 24 S. E. (2d) 484.

§ 1-131. Procedure after return of judgment.—Within ten days after the return of the judgment upon the demurrer, if there is no appeal, or within ten days after the receipt of the certificate from the superior court, there is an appeal, if the demurrer is overruled the plaintiff may move, upon three days notice, for leave to amend the complaint. If this is not granted, judgment shall be entered dismissing the action. If the demurrer is overruled the answer shall be filed within ten days after the receipt of the judgment, if there is no appeal, or within ten days after the receipt of the certificate of the supreme court, if there is an appeal. Otherwise the plaintiff shall be entitled to judgment by default final or by default and inquiry according to the course and practice of the court. (1919, c. 304, ss. 6, 7; Ex. Sess. 1921, c. 92, ss. 7, 8; C. S. 515.)

Cross Reference.—As to pleading over after demurrer interposed in good faith, see § 1-129.

Editor's Note.—By the amendment of 1921 the word "judgment" was substituted for the words "decision overruling the demurrer" in the sentence preceding the last. See Editor's Note by Commentator. The words "demurrer Overruled" should also be liberally construed and applied, to the end that actions may be tried on their merits and not dismissed because of defective pleadings. Morris v. Dent, 197 N. C. 253, 148 S. E. 253; Citizens Bank v. Gabagan, 210 N. C. 464, 188 S. E. 464.

Discretion of Court.—A demurrer to a complaint will be overruled upon the insufficiency of the complaint to state a cause of action, and where a judgment sustaining such demurrer has been appealed from and upheld by the Supreme Court, the trial court has the power under this section to reverse its former decision, to allow the plaintiff to amend the original complaint upon motion made within ten days after receipt by the clerk of the Supreme Court of the certificate from the supreme court that the judgment of the Superior Court had been affirmed. Morris v. Dent, 197 N. C. 253, 148 S. E. 253, affirmed in McKeel v. Latham, 202 N. C. 318, 162 S. E. 747; Hood v. Elder Motor Co., 209 N. C. 303, 183 S. E. 529.

A motion for leave to amend a complaint under this section is addressed to the sound discretion of the trial court, and his order denying the motion is not subject to review on appeal in the absence of gross abuse of this discretion. McKeel v. Latham, 203 N. C. 246, 185 S. E. 694.

Judgment Should Not Be Rendered at Same Time Demurrer Overruled.—The action of the court in overruling a demurrer is an expeditious administration of justice and should be liberally construed and applied, to the end that actions may be tried on their merits and not dismissed because of defective pleadings. Morris v. Dent, 197 N. C. 253, 148 S. E. 253, affirmed in McKeel v. Latham, 202 N. C. 318, 162 S. E. 747; Hood v. Elder Motor Co., 209 N. C. 303, 183 S. E. 529.

A motion for leave to amend a complaint under this section is addressed to the sound discretion of the trial court, and his order denying the motion is not subject to review on appeal in the absence of gross abuse of this discretion. McKeel v. Latham, 203 N. C. 246, 185 S. E. 694.

Dismissal Unless Motion to Amend Is Made.—Where a motion to amend is not interposed in the Supreme Court it is sustained, questions of law presented by appellant's exception to the overruling of his written demurrers by the lower court need not be considered, and the case will be remanded with direction that it be dismissed, unless in apt time plaintiff moves for leave to amend as provided by this section. White v. Charlotte, 207 N. C. 721, 178 S. E. 219.

Amendment After Demurrer Sustained.—Under this section where the supreme court affirms the judgment of the inferior court below sustaining the demurrer of one of defendants, the decision is without prejudice to plaintiff's right to amend the complaint, if so advised. Byrd v. Waldrop, 210

§ 1-132. Division of actions when misjoinder.—If the demurrer is sustained for the reason that several causes of action have been improperly united, the judge shall, upon such terms as are just, order the action to be divided into as many actions as are necessary for the proper determination of the causes of the action therein mentioned. (Rev., s. 476; Code, s. 272; C. C. P., s. 141; C. S. 516.)

Provisions of Section Mandatory. — It is the duty of the judge on just and proper ground to divide the action into as many separate trials. Gattis v. Kilgo, 125 N. C. 133, 136, 34 S. E. 246.

With or Without Terms. — The judge may permit an amendment to divide the action, with or without terms. State v. Roberts, 108 N. C. 174, 177, 12 S. E. 890.

Different Venues. — Where causes of action have been improperly joined, the court may order the action to be divided undividedly by dismissal in different counties. Richmond Cedar Works v. Roper Lumber Co., 161 N. C. 601, 604, 77 S. E. 770.

Dismissal of One of Two Causes for Lack of Jurisdiction. — Where two causes of action are improperly joined, but one of them, because of the amount involved, is not within the jurisdiction of the court, it may be dismissable as to the one over with jurisdiction, and the other under jurisdiction. Taylor v. Postal Life Ins Co., 182 N. C. 120, 108 S. E. 502; Rose v. Freemont Warehouse, etc., Co., 182 N. C. 107, 109, 137 S. E. 389; Citizens Nat. Bank v. Angelo, 193 N. C. 576, 137 S. E. 705.

§ 1-133. Grounds not appearing in complaint.—When any of the matters enumerated as grounds of demurrer do not appear on the face of the complaint, the objection may be taken by answer. (Rev., s. 477; Code, s. 241; C. C. P., s. 98; C. S. 517.)

Cross Reference.—As to grounds for demurrer, see § 1-129.

Controverting Allegations of Complaint. — Where the defendant controverts the truth of the allegations contained in the complaint, this must be done in the answer, and not by a demurrer. Laney v. Hutton, 149 N. C. 264, 62 S. E. 1082.

§ 1-132. Division of actions when misjoinder.—If the demurrer is sustained for the reason that several causes of action have been improperly united, the judge shall, upon such terms as are just, order the action to be divided into as many actions as are necessary for the proper determination of the causes of the action therein mentioned. (Rev., s. 476; Code, s. 272; C. C. P., s. 141; C. S. 516.)

Cross Reference.—As to grounds for demurrer, see § 1-129.

Controverting Allegations of Complaint. — Where the defendant controverts the truth of the allegations contained in the complaint, this must be done in the answer, and not by a demurrer. Laney v. Hutton, 149 N. C. 264, 62 S. E. 1082.
Pendency of Another Suit. — Where another action is pending for the same cause and between the same parties, which fact does not appear on the face of the complaint, the objection may be taken by demurrer or motion to dismiss. Cook v. Gantt, 195 N. C. 535; Allen v. Salley, 179 N. C. 147, 101 S. E. 545. It is a ground of demurrer, if it appears on the complaint. See ante, section 1-127, clause 3, and annotations.

This rule was followed in State v. Gant, 201 N. C. 211, 229, 159 S. E. 427; Thompson v. Virginia, etc., So. R. Co., 216 N. C. 554, 5 S. E. (3d) 38; Johnson v. Smith, 215 N. C. 369, 11 S. E. (2d) 73; and see also, ante, sec. 1-157.

Defect of parties which does not appear on the face of the complaint must be taken advantage of by answer, otherwise it will be deemed as waived. Lunn v. Shermer, 92 N. C. 450, 55 S. E. (2d) 518.

But where the defect does appear on the face of the complaint, it is a ground of demurrer and cannot be taken advantage of in any other way. Burns v. Ashworth, 72 N. C. 496.

Stated in Cheshire v. First Presbyterian Church, 220 N. C. 393, 17 S. E. (2d) 344.

§ 1-134. Objection waived.—If objection is not taken either by demurrer or answer, the defendant waives the same, except the objection to jurisdiction of the court and that the complaint does not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action. Rev., s. 478; Code, s. 242; C. C. T., s. 90; C. S. 518.

See note under § 1-122.

The following section of the N. C. Code means that when objection is not taken by demurrer, when that mode is proper, or by answer in cases where that is the proper method, it is waived. Stated in Smoak v. Muller, 93 N. C. 252, 255; Gurganus v. McLawhorn, 217 N. C. 377, 193 S. E. 444; Raleigh v. Hatcher, 220 N. C. 613, 18 S. E. (2d) 207.

Same.—In the Supreme Court. — The want of jurisdiction and the failure of the complaint to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action may be waived and may be taken advantage of at any time even in the Supreme Court. Hunter v. Varrarough, 86 N. C. 472; Clement v. G. C. C., 91 N. C. 63, 64; Knowles v. Norfolk, etc., R. Co., 102 N. C. 59, 62, 9 S. E. 7; Raleigh v. Hatcher, 220 N. C. 613, 18 S. E. (2d) 207.

Defective Statement and Defective Cause Distinguished. —A defective statement of a good cause of action must be taken advantage of by demurrer, and will be deemed to constitute a cause of action, or in other words when it appears that the objection there can be no waiver, and objections may be made at any time. Johnson v. Finch, 93 N. C. 205, 208. Halstead v. Hunter v. Yarborough, 92 N. C. 68, 70; Tucker v. Baker, 63 N. C. 151, 49 S. E. 2d 49; McCune v. Rhodes-Rhyne Mfg. Co., 217 N. C. 351, 8 S. E. (2d) 219.

Defect of Parties.—The defect of nonjoinder of a plaintiff unless waived by d. murrer or by plea shall be deemed to have been waived. Lewis v. McNatt, 65 N. C. 63. The general rule is that defects of parties must be raised by demurrer or answer, Ussy v. Suit, 91 N. C. 465, 474; Godwin v. Jernigan, 174 N. C. 76, 93 S. E. 443; Knowles v. Norfolk, etc., R. Co., 102 N. C. 59, 62, 9 S. E. 7; Mizzell v. Ruffin, 118 N. C. 569, 71, 23 S. E. 927. See ante, section 1-127, cl. 4, and below and annotations thereto.

Arrest of Judgment for Defective Causes. — The provisions of this section as regards complaints which do not contain a statement of facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action are satisfied by arresting the judgment in cases where they apply. Love v. Commissioners, 64 N. C. 706.

Prosecution of a Motion against an Executor. — An action against an executor the objection that the action is prematurely commenced should be set up by the defendant in his answer. Clements v. Rogers, 91 N. C. 63, 64.

Demurrer after Answer. — A demurrer to the jurisdiction of the court or that the complaint does not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action, may be entered after answer filed, and the principle upon which it is ordinarily required that the answer be first withdrawn, or that the objection to the complaint, does not apply. Cherry v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 185 N. C. 90, 116 S. E. 192.

Demurrer ore tenus does not lie where answer has been filed and the demurrer is based on the objection to the jurisdiction or that complaint does not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action. Roberts v. Grogan, 222 N. C. 30, 21 S. E. (2d) 829.

Art. 15. Answer.

§ 1-135. Contents.—The answer of the defendant must contain—

1. A general or specific denial of each material allegation of the complaint controverted by the defendant, or of any knowledge or information thereof sufficient to form a belief.

2. A denunciation of the plaintiff, constituting a defense or counterclaim, in ordinary and concise language, without repetition. (Rev., s. 479; Code, s. 243; C. C. P., s. 100; C. S. 519.)
I. IN GENERAL

Any Defense Available under Old System, Available under the New.—Under the Code the defendant may avail himself of any defense that would have been available under the old mode of procedure, either legal or equitable. Clark v. Bourn, 227 N. C. 655, 660.

Must State Facts. — The answer, like the complaint, must state facts upon which the validity of the defense rests. An averment of a general principle of law will not discharge the defendant from the performance of the particular facts which they intended to controvert. To require the defendant to deny the truth of the allegations of the complaint, if he can, or, if he cannot, then to admit the truth of them, or to specifically admit the truth of them, so far as they are true, and to require of plaintiffs, by the facts; and he is further required to state such facts as he may have as to the allegations of the complaint and puts plaintiff to proof; while a general denial, that "no allegation of the complaint is true," is not a sufficient answer under this section, because such a plea may put in one issue several matters of fact, some of which are triable by the court, and others by the jury. Black v. Dawson, 69 N. C. 42; Brown v. Cooper, 89 N. C. 527.

Specific Denial. — An answer denying "the truth of the averments contained in the first, second, third, fourth, fifth and sixth paragraphs of the complaint" being the number contained in the complaint, is a specific denial of each allegation and a sufficient compliance with this section. Brown v. Cooper, 89 N. C. 237.

Effect of Failure to Deny. — If an allegation in the complaint is not denied in the answer, it is admitted, and the effect as if found by a jury. Bonham v. Craig, 80 N. C. 224.

Where the only controverted fact has no bearing on the rights of the parties, judgment may be rendered on the pleadings upon the facts admitted. Jeffreys v. Boston Ins. Co., 202 N. C. 168, 162 S. E. 761.

B. Denial of Information or Knowledge.

Denial of Both Knowledge and Information Necessary. — A denial of knowledge without a denial of information sufficient to form a belief is not sufficient to fulfill the requirements of this section. Truett v. Goolsby, 166 S. E. 555; Fagg v. Southern Bldg., etc., Ass'n, 113 N. C. 364, 366, 18 S. E. 632.

Defendant's Denial. — The only controverted fact to personal transaction may be denied on information and belief. Grimes v. Lexington, 216 N. C. 735, 6 S. E. (2d) 595.

Allegations of fraud may be denied on information and belief of a count of the complaint alleging a fraud or in a declaratory action to a personal transaction may be denied on information and belief. Woodcock v. Bostic, 128 N. C. 243, 18 S. E. 881; Fagg v. Southern Bldg., etc., Ass'n, 113 N. C. 364, 18 S. E. 632.

A denial of the allegations of the complaint, made in the form prescribed, i. e., of any knowledge or information thereof, sufficient to form a belief, being allowed by the Code of Civil Procedure, raises, when interposed, a sufficient issue; and such answer is not subject to the objection of being insufficient or frivolous. Farmers, etc., Bank v. Board, 75 N. C. 45.

However where a complaint alleges a matter to be within the personal knowledge of the defendant an answer "that defendant has no knowledge or information sufficient to form a belief" stated no defense and was an admission of the truth of the allegation of the complaint. Lay Gas Mach. Co. v. Falls, etc., Mfg. Co., 91 N. C. 74.

In an action on notes given for the price of land, denial on information and belief of a count of the complaint alleging that the notes were not paid is not sufficient to discharge the allegation was sufficient. Willis v. Williams, 174 N. C. 760, 94 S. E. 519.

In an action for specific performance of a lost bond for title, which denies that the bond embraces the land in controversy according to defendant's best recollection and belief, is sufficient and raises an issue of fact. Conder v. Stallings, 161 N. C. 270, 29 S. E. 283, 33.

III. NEW MATTER IN DEFENSE.

New Matter Equitable or Legal. — The answer may contain new matter in defense whether equitable or legal. Bean v. Western, etc., R. Co., 107 N. C. 731, 741, 12 S. E. 600.

Matters in Justification. — Under the old system of pleading, upon the general issue matter in justification could not be proved; it must be pleaded specially. Barker v. Johnson, 130 N. C. 366, on pages 356, and 371; Bush v. Parker, 1 Bing, N. C. 312; Brown v. Burnett, 5 Cowen, 181; Chitty on Pl., 501. Under the Code practice the principle is not changed. A defense which can not be maintained by a denial of the allegations in the complaint, must be set up as new matter in the answer. Raynor v. Wilming- ton Searcoat R. Co., 129 N. C. 195, 57 S. E. 821.

§ 1-136. Debt for purchase money of land denied. — If the defendant shall deny in his answer that the obligation sued on was for the purchase money of the land described in the complaint, it shall be the duty of the court to submit the issue so joined to the jury. (Rev., s. 480; Code, s. 235; 1870, c. 217; 1921, c. 43; C. S. 520.)

Cross Reference.—See also, § 1-122, paragraph 4.

Editor's Note. — The amendment of 1921, substituted the word "shall deny" near the beginning of this section, for the word "denies." For a similar provision requiring the plaintiff to state that the consideration of debt was the purchase money of land, see section 1-122.

Defendant Entitled to Have Issue Determined by Jury. — In an action on a note alleged to have been given for the purchase money of land, the defendant, if he demands it in his answer and tenders an appropriate issue, has the right to have the question submitted to the jury as to whether or not the note was given for the purchase money of the land. (Rev., s. 226, 13 S. E. 735; Garrett v. Love, 89 N. C. 205, 207.)

Waiver of Right of Jury Trial. — Although the defendant is under this section, entitled to have the issue determined by the court in furtherance of this most desirable and beneficial principle is not changed. A defense which can not be main-

§ 1-137. Counterclaim.—The counterclaim mentioned in this article must be one existing in favor of a defendant and against a plaintiff between whom a several judgment might be had in the action, and arising out of one of the following causes of action:

1. A cause of action arising out of the contract or transaction set forth in the complaint as the foundation of the plaintiff's claim, or connected with the subject of the action.

2. In an action arising on contract, any other cause of action arising also on contract, and existing at the commencement of the action. (Rev., s. 481; Code, s. 244; C. C. P., s. 101; C. S. 521.)

I. IN GENERAL.
A. Editor's Note.
Settlement of two independent disputes between the same parties in the action was beyond the conception of the common law system of pleading and practice. Claims in favor of defendant arising out of the same transaction as sued upon by the plaintiff, for example a breach of warranty for which the defendant is not responsible, could not be made the subject of an independent suit. But the inefficiency thus shown in this method of procedure and the injustices resulting therefrom lead to the enactment of the statute of set-off, under which liquidated claims arising out of different transactions could be availed of by the defendant against the plaintiff's demand in the same action. As in the case of recoupment, no recovery over the plaintiff's claim could be had. Another distinction of defenses available by way of set-off, and those by way of settlement was the in-
A. General Rules and Instances.

Counterclaim for Independent Tort Not Allowed.—Under this section a counterclaim is not permissible for a distinct independent tort, and applying the principle, in an action to recover a tract of land alleged to belong to the plaintiff, a counterclaim for a trespass by the plaintiff on a different tract of land belonging to defendant is not maintainable. See, e.g., Nichols v. Smith, 114 N. C. 534, 189 S. E. 2d 186.

Note.—A demurrer to a counterclaim sounding in tort not arising of the contract sued on, that the defendant had been damaged; Held, that the subject of the counterclaim was the trespass committed, and not the land, and hence the counterclaim was not connected with the cause of action and hence not maintainable. Bazemore v. Bridgers, 105 N. C. 191, 10 S. E. 888.

What Constitutes "Subject of the Action"—Example.—In an action for trespass for wrongful entry on land and cutting timber, the defendants filed a counterclaim, alleging that the plaintiffs had wrongfully raised a dam and caused water to back on defendant's land, which was part of the land described in the complaint as that on which the alleged trespass had been committed; Held, that the subject of the counterclaim was the trespass committed, and not the land, and hence the counterclaim was not connected with the cause of action and hence not maintainable. Bazemore v. Bridgers, 105 N. C. 191, 10 S. E. 888.

What Constitutes "Arising Out of the Same Transaction"—Example.—Where the cause of action alleged was an obstruction of the defendant's way by a building and the counterclaim attempted to be set up was that the plaintiff had placed an obstruction on the lower edge of his own land, it was held that these were two separate and distinct torts, and that the latter did not arise out of the transaction set forth in the complaint, nor was it "connected with the subject of the action." Street v. Andrews, 115 N. C. 417, 422, 20 S. E. 450.

An action for damages resulting from an automobile collision does not abate upon the death of the defendant, but may be continued upon the joinder of defendant's personal representative as a party defendant. And when action is brought for what would have been formerly denominated a tort, the defendant may set up a counterclaim for damages arising out of the same transaction or vice versa. Banning v. Thaxton, 72 N. C. 541; Walsh v. Hall, 66 N. C. 233. Smith v. Young Bros., 102 N. C. 224, 84 S. E. 2d 169.

 Payment and Counterclaim Compared.—A payment pursuant to a contract extinguishes the debt eo instanti and is itself thereby extinguished, so that neither remains any longer the subject of an action. On the contrary, a counterclaim which may not be claimed as a set-off or counterclaim the indebtedness of the State to him. Battle v. Thompson, 65 N. C. 406, 407.

Waiver of Exemption by United States.—Although direct suits cannot be maintained against the United States, yet, when the United States institutes a suit, they waive their exemption so far as to allow a presentation by the defendant of meritorious claims to the extent of the debt against the plaintiff; and if there is, then such cause of action is a counterclaim. Battle v. Thompson, 65 N. C. 406.

A few exceptions, growing out of public policy, the rules of law which apply to the government and individuals are the same. McKnight v. United States, 98 U. S. 179, 186, 25 L. Ed. 115.

Waiver of Exemption by United States.—Although direct suits cannot be maintained against the United States, yet, when the United States institutes a suit, they waive their exemption so far as to allow a presentation by the defendant of meritorious claims to the extent of the debt against the plaintiff; and if there is, then such cause of action is a counterclaim. Battle v. Thompson, 65 N. C. 406.

Counterclaim Where Lien upon Property Involved.—In an action upon a contract, though a lien upon property is involved, it is competent for the defendant to extinguish the debt, due to the plaintiff, by a proof of counterclaim. Poston v. Rose, 87 N. C. 279.

Equitable Counterclaim.—An equitable cause of action may be set up as a counterclaim against a legal cause of action. Diem v. Peerless, 189 N. C. 188.

Counterclaim Where Lien upon Property Involved.—In an action upon a contract, though a lien upon property is involved, it is competent for the defendant to extinguish the debt, due to the plaintiff, by a proof of counterclaim. Poston v. Rose, 87 N. C. 279.

 II. CLAIMS ARISING OUT OF PLAINTIFF'S DEMAND.

 A. General Rules and Instances.

Counterclaim for Independent Tort Not Allowed.—Under this section a counterclaim is not permissible for a distinct and independent tort, and applying the principle, in an action to recover a tract of land alleged to belong to the plaintiff, a counterclaim for a trespass by the plaintiff on a different tract of land belonging to defendant is not maintainable. See, e.g., Nichols v. Smith, 114 N. C. 534, 189 S. E. 2d 186.

Same.—But Permissible if it Grows Out of Same Transaction.—The contention that a tort can not under any circumstances constitute a counterclaim although "connected with the subject of the action" contained in the complaint is unfounded. The contrary is decided in Walsh v. Hall, 66 N. C. 233, and Bitting v. Thaxton, 72 N. C. 541; Lee v. Eure, 93 N. C. 120, 127.

Tort against Contract Claim.—If it arises out of the same transaction or is connected with the subject of the action, a tort claim may be pleaded as a counterclaim against a contract claim. McKinnon v. Morrison, 104 N. C. 354, 189 S. E. 2d 186. The same rule is applicable to tort actions. Branch v. Chappell, supra.

Damages for slander cannot be set up as a counterclaim to an action for debt. Merritt Milling Co. v. Finlay, 110 N. C. 411, 15 S. E. 4; Weiner v. Engel's Style Shop, 210 N. C. 705, 198 S. E. 331.

There is no reason to continue the plea in bar as the liability is not a tort liability, and the counterclaim, since this section gives full relief by admitting demands of the defendant on the counterclaim, is not permissible. The same result is reached in Merchants' National Bank v. Lane, 221 N. C. 199, 198, 19 S. E. 2d 849.

 Enumeration of Grounds Excluding.—A defendant cannot set up as a defense or counterclaim any and every cause of action. The subdivision of this section in which the counterclaim is sustained is whether the cause of action is connected with the plaintiff; and if there is, then such cause of action is a counterclaim. Byerly v. Humphrey, 95 N. C. 151.
Same—Counterclaim for Malicious Prosecution.—Where plaintiff instituted action alleging that defendant had formed a dummy corporation to which he had transferred all his assets, including chattels on which plaintiff had liens, was collecting from the corporation for services of minor children, and was wrongfully refusing to pay over to plaintiff, and was dissipating and jeopardizing the assets of the business, and defendant set up a counterclaim alleging want of good faith on the part of plaintiff in maintaining and prosecuting the action and the ancillary remedies and that such wrongful acts had damaged defendant in a large sum, it was held that the counterclaim did not arise out of the transaction set out in the complaint and was not a counterclaim. The subject of plaintiff's action within subsection 1, and therefore plaintiff's demurrer to the counterclaim was properly sustained. Manufacturers, etc., Finance Corp. v. Lane, 221 N. C. 189, 19 S. E. 2d 568.

B. Time of Existence.

See post, this note, "Time of Existence" III, B.

The counterclaims referred to in this clause must be existent and continue to exist between the same parties in the same right at the time they are offered and they must be due at the time the answer is filed, that is, not demands to become due in the future, but they need not be due at the time of commencement of the action. And they must state a cause of action, so that not only a counterclaim for the foundation of plaintiff's claim, or they must be connected with the subject of the action which is, generally speaking, the interest involved in the litigation, and very frequently this is the property itself. Smith v. French, 141 N. C. 1, 58 S. E. 435.

III. CLAIMS ARISING OUT OF INDEPENDENT CONTRACT.

A. General Rules and Instances.

Relation to Original Cause.—This section goes beyond the common-law pleading and practice, and under its provisions a defendant in an action on contract may file a counterclaim for a separate independent harm arising out of the same matter of controversy without or against the consent of the other. "A counterclaim is a defense to an action, and exists only in favor of the defendant against the plaintiff for the purpose of having his opposing claims must be adjudicated. The plaintiff then up his counterclaim, it becomes a cross-action, and both counters brought in issue, and naturally the defendant has the same right, and neither has the right to go out of court without or against the consent of the other." McCue v. Frohman, 207 N. C. 475, 180 S. E. 327.

Damages for Slander of Title in Action to Establish Title.—Where the plaintiffs' action is to establish their title to a 5-acre tract of land, and defendants set up as a counterclaim damages alleged to have been caused by the plaintiffs' slander of their title in 500-acre tract: Held, the cross-action alleged is for damages founded upon a tort, and not on contract, and does not fall within the equitable principle of a suit to quiet title, under the provisions of this section and §§ 1-135, 1-138, and a demurrer thereto is good. Thompson v. Buchanan, 195 N. C. 155, 141 S. E. 152.

An unpaid judgment in favor of a party to an action rendered previously to the commencement of the present action is in legal effect a contract upon which a counterclaim may be based and defendant set up a counterclaim alleging want of good faith on the part of plaintiff in maintaining and prosecuting the action and the ancillary remedies and that such wrongful acts had damaged defendant in a large sum, it was held that the counterclaim did not arise out of the transaction set out in the complaint and was not a counterclaim. The subject of plaintiff's action within subsection 1, and therefore plaintiff's demurrer to the counterclaim was properly sustained. Manufacturers, etc., Finance Corp. v. Lane, 221 N. C. 189, 19 S. E. 2d 568.

B. Time of Existence.

See paragraphs under preceding analysis line.

In General.—The requirement restricting a counterclaim to one that exists at the time the action was commenced is only stated in reference to the class of counterclaims described in this clause, and the very just and obvious reason that, when a plaintiff rightfully sues a defendant who owes him at the time the action is commenced, he shall not be put in the wrong and subjected to judgment rendered previously to the commencement of the action, if it existed at the commencement of the action, the defense of set-off has, by this section, been merged in that of accord and satisfaction, wherein the court may determine whether the amount due to defendant is greater for the purpose of having his opposing claims must be adjudicated. The plaintiff then up his counterclaim, it becomes a cross-action, and both counters brought in issue, and naturally the defendant has the same right, and neither has the right to go out of court without or against the consent of the other." McCue v. Frohman, 207 N. C. 475, 180 S. E. 327.

Collateral Demand against Assignee of Note.—The defense of set-off has, by this section, been merged in that of accord and satisfaction, wherein the court may determine whether the amount due to defendant is greater.
the assignment, unless such counterclaim had attached itself to the cause in note before the assignment. Haywood v. McNair, 19 N. C. 283; Wharton v. Hopkins, 33 N. C. 505; McNamogue v. Chambers, 64 N. C. 284, approved. Neal v. Lea, 64 N. C. 678.

In Neal v. Lea, 64 N. C. 678, it is held that by the proper construction of this section, no collateral demand against the assignor of a note can be set up against the assignee, and "that to make it available, the demand must have attached itself to the note in the hands of the assignor; for instance, a payment made to him not entered on the note, or a claim, which the assignor had agreed should be taken in satisfaction." The doctrine of Haywood v. McNair, 19 N. C. 283, was repudiated and that of Borough v. Moss, 10 B. & C. 558 adopted. Harris v. Burwell, 65 N. C. 584, 585.

A set-off at law must exist at the time the action is brought; in equity, every set-off or counterclaim must be shown before decree, and this is also the case under the Code. Hogan v. Kirkland, 64 N. C. 250, 253.

IV. PLEADING AND PRACTICE.

A. Rules of Pleading.

Allegation of Facts.—The counterclaim must disclose such a state of facts as would entitle the defendant to his action, as if he were plaintiff in the prosecution of his suit, and should contain the substance of a complaint, and not merely a plain and concise statement of the facts constituting a cause of action. There is no formula prescribed and in determining its effects, its allegations shall be liberally construed. The doctrine of Haywood v. McNair, 19 N. C. 283, was repudiated and that of Borough v. Moss, 10 B. & C. 558 adopted. Harris v. Burwell, 65 N. C. 584, 585. It is held in the United States Supreme Court that a counterclaim is unavailable unless set up by defendant in his pleading. McGowan v. American Express Co., Tan Bk Co., 121 U. S. 575, 7 S. Ct. 1315, 30 L. Ed. 1027.

Same—Demand of Relief.—Strictly, a counterclaim is a cross-action against the plaintiff in which the defendant may have affirmative relief; but it must, like a complaint, state the cause of action and demand relief which to the defendant alleges he is entitled. Hurst, etc., Cov. E. 257; McLamb v. McPhail, 126 N. C. 218, 35 S. E. 426.

Particularity in Alleging.—A counterclaim is in substance a cross-action and it should be set out with the same particularity and accuracy required in stating a cause of action. In the complaint, State v. Scott, 84 N. C. 184, 187.

For instance a counterclaim which only alleges that the plaintiff is indebted to the defendant, without alleging further the nature, extent, and kind of indebtedness, and how it arose, is imperfectly pleaded, and should be disregarded. American Nat. Bank v. Northcutt, 169 N. C. 219, 85 S. E. 216.

Allegation as to Time of Existence.—An answer setting up a counterclaim, but which fails to show that the same subsisted between the parties when the action was begun, or that it arose out of, or was connected with the subject of the action, is demurrable. Reynolds v. Smathers, 121 N. C. 146, 28 S. E. 266.

Replication to Counterclaim.—Whenever a counterclaim is pleaded the plaintiff must make a replication, or else the defendant may have affirmative relief; but it must, like a complaint, contain the substance of a complaint, and contain the allegations as to the nature, extent, and kind of indebtedness existing at the commencement of the action, and as to the others except one to which the judge has been joined as defendants, the plaintiff may be permitted to take a nonsuit, or not pros. notwithstanding the fact that they have filed answers asserting counterclaims and asking for affirmative relief. Lee v. Eure, 93 N. C. 5.

Same—Against One of Several Defendants. — And where there are several defendants against whom the charge is joined, several, 87 N. C. 24, 25.

Same—As to Parties Not Necessary. — As to persons who are not necessary or proper parties, and who have been joined as defendants, the plaintiff may be permitted to take a nonsuit or not pros. at any time to enter to a nonsuit, or not pros. notwithstanding the fact that they have filed answers asserting counterclaims and asking for affirmative relief. Lee v. Eure, 93 N. C. 5.

Same—Against Several Defendants. — Where there are several defendants against whom the charge is joined, several, 87 N. C. 24, 25.

Law Rev. 224; and annotations to section 1-204.

Same—In Several Counterclaims.—Where several counter claims are pleaded in the same action, the aggregate sum will be taken as the jurisdictional amount. General Electric Co. v. Williams, 123 N. C. 51, 31 S. E. 288.

Jurisdictional Amount in Justice's Court. — The counterclaims must be on the same subject of action, and must therefore come within the jurisdiction of the court. It cannot exceed $200 in a justice's court. General Electric Co. v. Williams, 123 N. C. 51, 31 S. E. 288.

§ 1-138. Several defenses.—The defendant may set forth by answer as many defenses and counterclaims as he has, whether they are of a legal or equitable nature, or both. They must be separately stated and numbered, and refer to the cause of action which they are intended to answer in such manner that they may be intelligibly distinguished. (Rev., s. 462; Code, s. 245; C. C. P., s. 102; C. S. 522.)

Same—Certainty of a Complaint Required. — The defenses in the answer must be as certain as the allegations of the complaint, so that the jury may separately determine the merits of each issue. See Gossler v. Wood, 120 N. C. 69, 57 S. E. 257; McLamb v. McPhail, 126 N. C. 218, 35 S. E. 426.

All matters equitable in their nature should be alleged in the pleadings with such reasonable fullness, and particularly as to the constituent facts which will enable the court to see clearly the character of the right or wrong of each party, and the purpose of the pleading and the issues raised. Bean v. Western, etc., R. Co., 107 N. C. 731, 741, 12 S. E. 600.

Contradictory Defenses.—Under this section every counterclaim and every answer in the plaintiff's action are demurrable. Where there is a subdivision of this section, he may, as a matter of right, in his answer, set up a counterclaim as allowed by this section, as to the cause of action arising on contract, existing at the commencement of the action, and not embraced within the first subdivision of this section, in the plaintiff's action, the defendant may have affirmative relief; but it must, like a complaint, contain the substance of a complaint, and contain the allegations as to the nature, extent, and kind of indebtedness existing at the commencement of the action, and as to the others except one to which the judge has been joined as defendants, the plaintiff may be permitted to take a nonsuit, or not pros. at any time to enter to a nonsuit, or not pros. notwithstanding the fact that they have filed answers asserting counterclaims and asking for affirmative relief. Lee v. Eure, 93 N. C. 5.

Same—As to Parties Not Necessary. — As to persons who are not necessary or proper parties, and who have been joined as defendants, the plaintiff may be permitted to take a nonsuit, or not pros. at any time to enter to a nonsuit, or not pros. notwithstanding the fact that they have filed answers asserting counterclaims and asking for affirmative relief. Lee v. Eure, 93 N. C. 5.

Same—Against One of Several Defendants. — And where there are several defendants against whom the charge is joined, several, 87 N. C. 24, 25.

Law Rev. 224; and annotations to section 1-204.

Same—In Several Counterclaims.—Where several counter claims are pleaded in the same action, the aggregate sum will be taken as the jurisdictional amount. General Electric Co. v. Williams, 123 N. C. 51, 31 S. E. 288.

Jurisdictional Amount in Justice's Court. — The counterclaims must be on the same subject of action, and must therefore come within the jurisdiction of the court. It cannot exceed $200 in a justice's court. General Electric Co. v. Williams, 123 N. C. 51, 31 S. E. 288.
I have, whether denominated legal or equitable, or both, and there was some doubt as to whether the fact of contributory to have such relief, affirmative or negative, as may be legally stated. McLamb v. McPhail, 126 N. C. 218, 35 S. E. 426.

But the cases are now uniform in holding that whatever doubt that may have existed upon the question, is removed of proving contributory negligence rests on the defendant; Moore defendant must properly plead the negligence of the pair no vested right. It was competent for the Legisla- Norfolk, etc., R. Co., 160 N. C. 196, 76 S. E. 212.

contributory negligence, even in the absence of a statute issue submitted to jury under this section. Murphy v. Western, etc., R. Co., 160 N. C. 49, 75 S. E. 860.

Assumption of Risk. — While there is a marked distinc- tion between the doctrines of assumption of risks and contribu- tory negligence, it is proper, in pertinent cases, to consider the application of the law relating to an assump- tion of risk under the issue of contributory negligence, pleads the issue of contributory negligence, with the burden on the plaintiff. Hence, where the answer denies the allegations of the complaint, the defendant is not en- titled to have the issue submitted to jury under this section. Miller v. Scott, 185 N. C. 93, 116 S. E. 86.

The general rule inculcated by this section is that the defendant must properly plead the negligence of the plaintiff as a defense, and he must also assume the burden of proving contributory negligence if the defendant wishes to take advantage of the doctrine of last clear chance, the burden is on him. 5 N. C. L. R. 63. Cox v. Norfolk, etc., Railroad, 122 N. C. 878, 55 S. E. 296.

Equitable Counterclaim. — Where Court Explains to the Jury the Testimony. — While it is better practice to submit an issue in regard to contributory negligence, when pleaded, and there is evidence to sustain the plea, the omission to submit the issue is not reversible error, where the court fully explained to the jury the several phases of the testimony referred to upon show contributory negligence and it was appre- hensive that the defendant had been given the benefit of such testimony with its application. Ruffin v. Norfolk, etc., 142 N. C. 120, 35 S. E. 484.

Contributory negligence pleaded and proved. — In all actions to recover damages by reason of the negligence of the defendant, where contributory negligence is relied upon as a defense, it must be set up in the answer and proved on the trial. (Rev. s. 483; 1887, c. 33; C. S. 523.)

§ 1-139. Contributory negligence pleaded and proved. — This section brings within the sphere of the contributory negligence upon the defendant affects only the remedy and im- pairs no vested right. It was competent for the Legisla- ture to enact it. Wallace v. Western etc., R. Co., 104 N. C. 491, 29 S. E. 450.

The same — Where Complaint Negatives Contributory Negligence. — The defendant can avail himself of anything appearing in plaintiff's evidence which tends to disprove contributory negligence, but this does not change the burden of proving contributory negligence rests on the defendant; v. Chicago Bridge, etc., Works, 183 N. C. 438, 440, 111 S. E. 776.

Same — Burden of Proof in Supreme Court. — The Fed- eral Supreme Court has held repeatedly that the burden of negating contributory negligence rests on the defendant; hence, it is not to be negated or disproved by the plaintiff. Union Pacific R. Co. v. O'Brien, 161 U. S. 451, 456, 16 S. Ct. 618, 40 L. Ed. 766; Texas, etc., R. Co. v. Volk, 151 U. S. 73, 77, 14 St. Ct. 239, 38 L. Ed. 78.

The law presumes that a person found dead and killed by the alleged negligence of another has exercised due care and skill in his own behalf. Humphrey v. Wilmington, etc., R. Co., 123 N. C. 852, 44 S. E. 618.

How the Burden of Negligence Shifts. — The burden of proof is on the plaintiff to show that his injury was caused by the negligence of the defendant. Anderson v. Hoke, 121 N. C. 580, 26 S. E. 238, 35 S. E. 737.

Both Equitable and Legal Defenses — Affirmative Relief. — The defendant may set up as many defenses as he may have, whether denominated equitable or affirmative, or both, and he may rely upon any evidence or proof as may be necessary for the purpose of proving his defense authorized on the facts constituting his defense. Covington v. Ingram, 64 N. C. 123; Melvin v. Stephens, 82 N. C. 264, 288.

The inconsistent defenses, however, must be separately pleaded, since the enactment of this section, to submit only the burden of proof on the defendant pleading it. Pigford v. Norfolk, etc., R. Co., 160 N. C. 94, 75 S. E. 860.

Motion to Nonsuit — Scintilla of Evidence. — This section imposes the burden of proving contributory negligence upon the defendant. It therefore follows, that on a motion to nonsuit, the court can only consider the evidence relating to the negligence of the defendant, and if there is more than a mere scintilla of evidence tending to prove such negligence, the motion must be denied and the case submitted to the jury. Cox v. Norfolk & etc., Railroad, 122 N. C. 694, 55 S. E. 864.

Where there is evidence at the trial tending to sustain the allegations of the complaint, the defendant is not en- titled to a judgment as of nonsuit, unless all the evidence, considered in its light and in the light of the pleadings, sustains the defenses, e. g., contributory negligence, relied upon by the defendant in bar of plaintiff's recovery. Pittman Downing, 29 N. C. 219, 222, 183 S. E. 362.

Question for Jury. — The question whether the plaintiff was guilty of contributory negligence is to be determined by the jury upon proof offered at the trial pursuant to this section. Milne v. Scott, 185 N. C. 93, 116 S. E. 86.

Hence the trial judge cannot submit a verdict on a plea of contributory negligence, but must submit the issue to the jury. United States Leather Co. v. Howell, 151 Fed. 464.

It is not error, even when contributory negligence is pleaded, since the enactment of this section, to submit only the question whether the injury was caused by the de- fendant's negligence, and not the plaintiff's negligence, or the negative if they find that the plaintiff, by concurrent carelessness, contributed to cause the injury. McAadoo v. Richmond & etc., R. Co., 105 N. C. 140, 11 S. E. 316.

Satisfaction — What Cases in Court. — In Federal courts. — While it is better practice to submit an issue in regard to contributory negligence, when pleaded, and there is evidence to sustain the plea, the omission to submit the issue is not reversible error, where the court fully explained to the jury the several phases of the testimony referred to upon show contributory negligence and it was appre- hensive that the defendant had been given the benefit of such testimony with its application. Ruffin v. Norfo- l契, 142 N. C. 120, 55 S. E. 86.

A Specific Application. — The plea that an employee of the plaintiff was injured and negligent, rests on the de- fendant. It therefore follows that he has shown such negligence if the defendant wishes to plead contributory negligence as a defense, the burden is on him to show that the plaintiff was guilty of contributory neg- ligence. After the defendant has shown this, if the plaintiff is ever to take advantage of the doctrine of last clear chance, the burden is on him. 5 N. C. L. R. 63. Cox v. Norfolk, etc., Railroad, 122 N. C. 878, 55 S. E. 296.

What Law Governs — Federal or State. — The procedure for deciding a motion to nonsuit is as to whether the case has been defined and approved under numerous decisions construing the State statutes which control contributory negligence, as referred to in the Federal Statutes, and it has been de- clared that the State should be considered as the defense, coming within the terms of the local law, and to make the same available it must be set up in the answer and proved in the same proceeding. Murphy v. Norfolk, etc., R. Co., 160 N. C. 197, 76 S. E. 212.

As the Federal act makes no specific regulations as to at the beginning of the section, requiring service of the counterclaim upon the party having the right to require its service thereto; and the provision prescribing the effect of failure to serve the counterclaim as required, was introduced by the amendment of 1924, see 3 N. C. Law Rev. 24.

Powers of Court under Section 1-132 Not Affected.—The restriction put upon the power of the clerk to extend the time of filing, does not affect the broad powers conferred upon the court by section 1-152. Roberts v. Merritt, 189 N. C. 194, 157 S. E. 250.

Failure to Serve Copy of Answer Setting up Counterclaim.—It is proper for the judge of the Superior Court to set aside a judgment by default on the defendant's counterclaim under this section when the plaintiff, or his attorney, is not served with a copy thereof, since the law denies the allegations of the counterclaim when such service is not made. Williams-Fulghum Lumber Co. v. Welch, 197 N. C. 269, 188 S. E. 250.

Where no service of answer is made upon plaintiffs they are under no compulsion to file a reply even though the answer sets up a counterclaim for them. Miller v. Grimsley, 220 N. C. 514, 17 S. E. (2d) 642.

§ 1-141. Content; demurrer to answer.—When the answer contains new matter constituting a counterclaim, the plaintiff may reply to the new matter, denying generally or specifically each allegation controverted by him or any knowledge or information thereof sufficient to form a belief; and he may allege in ordinary and concise language, without repetition, any new matter not inconsistent with the complaint, constituting a defense to the new matter in the answer. The plaintiff may in all cases demur to an answer containing new matter, where, upon its face, it does not constitute a counterclaim or defense; and he may demur to one or more of such defenses or counterclaims, and reply to the residue. Such demurrer shall be heard and determined as provided for demurrers to the complaint. In other cases, when an answer contains new matter constituting a defense by way of avoidance, the court may in its discretion, on the defendant's motion, requires a reply to such new matter, and such reply shall be subject to the same rules as a reply to a counterclaim. (Rev., s. 485; Code, s. 248; C. C. P., s. 105; 1919, c. 304; C. S. 525.)

Cross Reference.—As to demurrer, see § 1-127 et seq.

Matter in Defense Deemed as Denial without Replication.—If the new matter in the answer does not constitute a counterclaim or defense, the party who has no connection with the matter alleged in the answer, or to which there is no connection, such new matter is to be deemed controverted by the plaintiff as upon a direct denial. Wilson v. Brown, 134 N. C. 400, 407, 46 S. E. 760; Pittman v. Shelton, 95 N. C. 519; Williams v. Hutton, etc., Co., 164 N. C. 216, 80 S. E. 257; Smith v. Bruton, 137 N. C. 79, 49 S. E. 64.

For in such a case no replication is necessary, unless required by the court. Simon v. Masters, 192 N. C. 731, 115 S. E. 861; Flishbane v. Fidelity Co., 140 N. C. 589, 594, 53 S. E. 354; Jones v. Cohen, 82 N. C. 75, 80. It is only when a counterclaim is relied on that the plaintiff's failure to reply may afford ground for a judgment for the defendant, but not when the matter constitutes a defense to the action merely. Barnhardt v. Smith, 86 N. C. 473, 483.

The Court May Require Reply.—Though no counterclaim is included in the answer, the court may require the plaintiff to file any defence set up in the answer or may allow it to be filed as a matter of discretion. James v. Western, etc., R. Co., 121 N. C. 474, 51 S. E. 28.

May Contain New Matter.—The plaintiff may not only reply to a counterclaim, but may allege "new matter" which has no connection with the matter alleged in the counterclaim or the new matter alleged in the complaint, the requirement being that it shall not be inconsistent with the complaint. Boyett v. Vaughan, 79 N. C. 528, s. c. 85 N. C. 369.

Reply Only to New Matter in Answer.—A reply can be made only to new matter brought out in the answer. Olmstead v. Raleigh, 130 N. C. 243, 11 S. E. 292.

Must Not Be Radically Inconsistent.—A party will not be allowed to maintain radically inconsistent positions, or to state one cause of action in the complaint and in the replication state another which is entirely inconsistent. Berry v. Hyde County Land, etc., Co., 133 N. C. 384, 386, 111 S. E. 704.

Plaintiffs may file a reply to a new matter appearing in the answer by way of counterclaim, but by express provisions of this section the allegations of the reply must not be entirely inconsistent with the complaint. Miller v. Grimsley, 220 N. C. 514, 17 S. E. (2d) 642.

Waiver by Failure to Demur.—Where an answer is defective in failing to allege that the plaintiff had knowledge of the fraud, a failure to demur thereto will have the effect of waiving such defect. Printing Co. v. McAden, 131 N. C. 178, 179, 42 S. E. 572.

Reply to Demurrer.—An answer having alleged a set-off, the replication thereto alleged that such answer is "une true and denied" and reiterated the cause of action stated in the complaint: Held, sufficient to put the plea of set-off in issue and require evidence in its support. Stubbs v. Motz, 113 N. C. 458, 18 S. E. 381.

An appeal will be from an order overruling a demurrer to the answer which admits the cause alleged and sets up an affirmative defense. Cody v. Hovey, 213 N. C. 391, 5 S. E. (2d) 165.

Amendment of Answer upon Demurrer Sustained.—The provisions of § 1-131, that plaintiff, after judgment sustaining a demurrer to the complaint must move to be allowed to amend within ten days after the return of the judgment or the demurrer, are applicable in the superior courts where summons to run out of state. Held, the certificate from the superior court, apply solely to amendment of the complaint after demurrer thereto is sustained, and the ten-day period prescribed by that section does not apply to an amendment of the defendant's answer, and demurrer sustaining the affirmative defense set up therein, the procedure regulating demurrer to an answer being provided by this section which contains no reference to § 1-131, and this conclusion is in accord with the rule of the ancient rules relating to civil procedure and with the principles that the adjective law will be liberally construed to promote justice and not to defeat or delay it by technical construction. Cody v. Hovey, 217 N. C. 407, 8 S. E. (2d) 479.

When a demurrer to the answer is sustained, defendant has the right to amend, if he so elects. Barber v. Edwards, 218 N. C. 731, 12 S. E. (2d) 234.

Cited in Herndon v. Massey, 217 N. C. 610, 8 S. E. (2d) 914.

§ 1-142. Demurrer to reply.—If a reply of the plaintiff to a defense set up by the answer of the defendant is insufficient, the defendant may demur thereto, and must state the grounds thereof. (Rev., s. 468; Code, s. 250; C. C. P., s. 107; C. S. 526.)

Amended Reply.—A judgment will not be reversed for error in sustaining a demurrer to the complaint when the plaintiff, on leave, files an amended reply, presenting, in addition to others, the same issues, and the same proceeds to trial and final judgment upon the issues thus presented. 22 Ohio St. Reports, construing a similar section of the Ohio Code.

Reply Set up New Matter.—In construing the Ohio statute it was held that where a reply, which sets up new matter sufficient to avoid the defense, is on demurrer erroneously held insufficient, and the case is finally disposed of by a finding against the plaintiff on issues of fact, under which the special matter in the reply is not available to the plaintiff, the error of the court in sustaining the demurrer constitutes a good ground for reversing the final judgment, and awarding a new trial, unless the record shows such error to have been otherwise waived. 18 Ohio State Reports 851.

If Reply Is a Departure.—If reply is a departure, demurrer must be sustained. 1 Cincinnati Superior Court Reporter 125. Construing the Ohio Code.

Failure to Demurr to Reply.—A failure to demur to a reply that does not contain matter sufficient to avoid a defense set up in the answer, is not a waiver of the right to object to the sufficiency of the reply, and will not affect the judgment to be rendered. 11 Ohio State Reporter 492, so held in construing the Ohio Code.

Art. 17. Pleadings, General Provisions.

§ 1-143. Forms of pleading.—The forms of pleading in civil actions in courts of record, and the rules by which the sufficiency of the pleadings is to be determined, are those prescribed by this chapter. (Rev., s. 487; Code, s. 231; C. C. P., s. 91; C. S. 527.)

Cross References.—As to abolition of differences between actions at law and suits in equity, see § 1-142. General Effect of New Form of Procedure.—The subtle science of pleading heretofore in use is not merely relaxed but abolished by the Code, so that the forms of pleading in civil actions, and the rules by which their sufficiency is to be determined, are those prescribed in this chapter. The new system inaugurated thereby is such that few, if any, of the ancient rules are now applicable. Moore v. Edmiston, 70 N. C. 516, 518.

In construing the Ohio Code, it was held that when the facts set out in the petition entitled the plaintiff to judgment, it is immaterial what the form of action would have been at law. 21 Ohio State Reporter 596, 603.

A replication has no reference to § 1-131, and this conclusion is reversed, on the ground that the meaning of the pleader must be fairly ascertained from the whole instrument without regard to technical rules. If legal or technical words are used they are to be taken in their recognized sense, unless the context shows another sense was intended. 42 Ohio State Reporter 565, 9 Circuit Court Reports 421.

§ 1-144. Subscription and verification of pleading.—Every pleading in a court of record must be subscribed by the party or his attorney, and when any pleading is verified, every subsequent pleading, except a demurrer, must be verified also. (Rev., s. 488; Code, s. 257; C. C. P., s. 116; C. S. 528.)

When Verification Necessary.—The provisions of this section which are applicable also to special proceedings, do not require the verification of the petition (or any other pleading) be, at events, verified. It simply requires that when one pleading is verified every subsequent one, except a demurrer, be verified. Lindsay v. Beaman, 128 N. C. 189, 190, 38 S. E. 811.

Requirement One of Substance.—The requirement as to the verification of pleadings is one of substance, and not of form, and a defect therein is jurisdictional. Martin v. Martin, 270 N. C. 40, 115 S. E. 272; Anderton v. Holloman, 127 N. C. 15, 37 S. E. 68; Nichols v. Nichols, 128 N. C. 108, 38 S. E. 296.

The object of the verification is, that if the defendant does not deny the allegations, the cause shall stand as if the jury had been empaneled, and the court, for the purpose of being to avoid the delay of trial upon uncontested points. Griffin v. Asheville Light Co., 111 N. C. 434, 16 S. E. 423.

In the absence of such a letter a convenient substitute for the old bill of discovery in equity, and to eliminate all issues of a fatal defect for which judgment will be arrested. Cowles v. Hartford, 65 N. C. 187. See Reynolds v. Cambridge, supra; Griffin v. McCormac, 90 N. C. 151, 152.

V. Effect of Non-Verification. — Where a pleading is not verified in compliance with this and the two succeeding sections, the other party is entitled to believe the facts stated therein. Griffin v. McCormac, 111 N. C. 434, 438, 16 S. E. 423.

Substantial Compliance. — The requirements of this section must be substantially complied with. Miller v. Curl, 162 N. C. 1, 77 E. 579.

§ 1-145. Form of verification. — The verification must be in substance that the same is true to the knowledge of the person making it, except as to those matters stated on information and belief, and as to those matters he believes it to be true; and must be by affidavit of the party, or if there are several parties united in interest and pleading together, by one at least of such parties acquainted with the facts, if the party is in the county where the attorney resides and is capable of making the affidavit. (Rev., s. 489; Code, s. 258; C. C. P., s. 117; 1868-9, c. 159, s. 7; C. S. 529.)

Cross Reference. — As to requirements of plaintiff's affidavit to be filed with complaint in divorce action, see § 59-3.

§ 1-146. Verification by agent or attorney. — The pleading of a non-resident may be verified by an affidavit of one or more residents of the state who can administer oaths. The one, or the other of these facts is essential to this section, requiring that verifications made by agents shall be under oath, and not to those ancillary remedies intended to be under oath, and not to those ancillary remedies intended to be administered by one authorized to administer oaths. Alford v. McCormac, 90 N. C. 151, 152.

Oath — By Whom Administered. — It is sufficient if the oath is administered by one authorized to administer oaths. Alford v. McCormac, 90 N. C. 151, 152.

§ 1-146. Verification by agent or attorney. — The affidavit may also be made by the agent or attorney, if the action or defense is founded upon a written instrument for the payment of money only and the instrument is in possession of the agent or attorney, or if all the material allegations of the pleadings are within the personal knowledge of the agent or attorney. When the pleading is verified by any other person than the party, he shall set forth in the affidavit his knowledge or the grounds of his belief on the subject, and the reasons why it is not made by the party. (Rev., s. 490; Code, s. 258; C. C. P., s. 117; 1868-9, c. 159, s. 7; C. S. 530.)

Editor's Note. — This section contemplates only two cases where the affidavit may be made by the attorney. The one, when the action is founded upon a written instrument for the payment of money only and the instrument is in possession of the agent or attorney; and the other, when the material allegations of the pleadings are within the personal knowledge of the attorney. The one or the other of these facts is essential to the validity of a verification and as to the other of the facts it is necessary to prove that the attorney possesses the knowledge that the party or attorney possesses.
edge, etc.—A verification to a complaint made by an officer of a corporation need not set forth "his knowledge or the grounds of his belief on the subject and the reason why the party himself did not make the verification. Miller v. Curl, 162 N. C. 293.

When a corporation is a party the verification may be made by any officer, or managing or local agent thereof upon whom summons might be served; and when the state or any officer thereof in its behalf is the party, the verification may be made by any person acquainted with the facts. (Rev. s. 491; Code, s. 258; 1001, c. 610; C. C. P., s. 117; 1868-9, c. 159, s. 7; C. S. 531.)

Cross Reference.—As to service of summons against corporation, see § 1-97, paragraph 1.

Editor's Note.—Formerly it was held that a verification by an officer, managing or local agent, and the agent of a corporation was inoperative, and that it must be made by a corporate officer. Bank v. Gay Mfg. Co., 120 N. C. 202, 12 S. E. 741; Piher v. Traveler's Ins. Co., 123 N. C. 465, 46, 31 S. E. 715. But now, this section in terms provides for verification by "managing or local agent." To this latter effect, see Godwin v. Carolina Tel., Co., 136 N. C. 258, 48, 8 S. E. 636. And see § 1-97 and notes thereto.

Knowledge or Ground of Belief of Corporate Agent.—See the following: Best v. Hutchison, 87 N. C. 22, in the annotations to the preceding section.

The city manager of a municipal corporation is its "managing or local agent" and is authorized to verify the municipal answer in an answer instituting an action against it. Grimes v. Lexington, 216 N. C. 735, 6 S. E. (2d) 505.

§ 1-148. Verification before what officer.—Any officer competent to take the acknowledgment of deeds, and any judge or clerk of the superior court, notary public, in or out of the state, or justice of the peace, is competent to take affidavits for the verification of pleadings in any court or county in the state, and for general purposes. (Rev. s. 492; Code, s. 238; 1891, c. 140; C. C. P., s. 117; 1868-9, c. 159, s. 7; C. S. 533.)

Editor's Note.—Many decisions of the superior court had formerly declared that the notaries public authorized to take affidavits for the verification of the pleadings were those of the county where the other action was pending in the superior court, 76 N. C. 113; Hinton v. Life Ins. Co., 116 N. C. 22, 24, 21 S. E. 201. But this has now been changed by the express terms of this section which permit verification to be taken by notaries in as well as out of the state. See Hinton v. Life Ins. Co., supra.

And it seems that the phrase "in or out of the state" immediately succeeding the words "notary public," has reference not only to notaries, but to the other officers designated in the section. Thus in Hinton v. Life Ins. Co., 116 N. C. 22, 21 S. E. 201, the verification was made before the clerk of the Hustings Court of Richmond, Va., and it was held valid, the court announcing the general rule that courts take judicial notice of the seals of the courts of other states just as they do of the seals of foreign courts of admiralty and notaries public.

§ 1-149. When verification omitted; use in criminal prosecutions.—The verification may be omitted when an admission of the truth of the allegation might subject the party to prosecution for felony. No pleading can be used in a criminal prosecution against the party who made it, unless the party is alleged to have omitted it. (Rev. s. 493; Code, s. 258; C. C. P., s. 117; 1868-9, c. 159, s. 7; C. S. 533.)

In a prosecution for embezzlement the admission in evidence of defendant's objection of pleadings in civil actions against defendant, involving the funds he is alleged to have embezzled, is erroneous in view of this section. State v. Ray, 200 N. C. 736, 152 S. E. 109.

No Pleading Can Be Used in Criminal Prosecution.—It is error to permit the solicitor, while cross-examining defendant in a criminal prosecution to read certain allegations of fact in a complaint in a civil action relating to the same subject matter and to ask defendant if he had failed to deny them by answer. State v. Wilson, 217 N. C. 123, 7 S. E. (2d) 57.

Where defendant moved to set aside the verdict on ground that the jury, without defendant's consent, took into its room the complaint in a civil action relating to the subject matter of the prosecution, which had been admitted as evidence without objection, and typed notes of the argument of counsel for the prosecution containing reference to defendant's failure to testify, it was error to permit the jury to take such papers into the jury room and retain same while in its deliberations, and defendant's motion to set aside the verdict should have been allowed. State v. Stephenson, 219 N. C. 310, 15 S. E. (2d) 57.

§ 1-150. Items of account; bill of particulars.—It is not necessary for a party to set forth in a pleading the items of an account alleged in it; but he must deliver to the adverse party, within ten days after a demand therefor in writing, a copy of the items of account alleged in it. Every account alleged in a pleading, if it is clarified, must be verified by his own oath or that of his agent or attorney if within the personal knowledge of the agent or attorney, to the effect that he believes it to be true, or be precluded from giving evidence thereof. The court or judge may order a further account when the one delivered is defective, and may, in all cases, order a bill of particulars of the claim of either party to be furnished. (Rev. s. 494; Code, s. 259; C. C. P., s. 118; C. S. 534.)

Cross References.—For similar provision applicable to proceeding in court of justices of the peace, see § 7-149, rule 10. Cross references for provision applicable to the furnishing of a bill of particulars of the claim of either party to be furnished in a proceeding in court of justices of the peace, not to exceed fifty dollars, see § 8-56 et seq. See also, §§ 1-153, 15-143.

Purpose and Effect of Section.—This section, which, in case of a disregard of the demand, shuts out all proof of the items of the claim unless the claim is alleged in a pleading, is intended to close the mouth of the party making it, is intended to meet the case of a complaint that does not set out the particulars, and confines the evidence at the trial to such as are set out in the pleading. The object is to supply an omission to give them in the pleadings, and hence, when furnished, they become substantially and in legal effect as part of the complaint itself. Wiggins v. Guthrie, 101 N. C. 661, 675, 7 S. E. 761.

Indefinite Statement of Cause.—An uncertain or an indefinite statement of a cause of action may be corrected by an determined not on the merits of the controversy but on sheer technicalities such as using the verb "to have" in the past tense, instead of in the present. These ideas have entirely swapped the old English Practice of Civil Procedure, wherever adopted. In England, after a series of improvements, beginning in 1834, when the celebrated "Rules of Term" were enacted, the English Practice of Civil Procedure had been destroyed by fire, plaintiff is not precluded by his failure to comply with the order from establishing the debt taining a bill of particulars in criminal proceedings, similarity to that in civil actions, see State v. Brady, 197 N. C. 437, 77 S. E. 627, 130 S. E. 53. Same rule applies to an answer. Pridgen v.

Hise, 192 N. C. 246, 134 S. E. 656; Elam v. Barnes, 110 N. C. 73, 14 S. E. 621.
A complaint cannot be overthrown by a demurrer unless it be wholly insufficient. If in any portion of it, or to any extent, it presents facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action, or if facts sufficient for that purpose can be fairly gathered from it, the complaint is good, and the demurrer shall be overruled. This rule, especially when it affects book records and other

Although under this section allegations of pleadings are to be construed liberally "with a view to substantial justice between the parties," § 1-122 makes it a necessary requirement of pleading that the party must state "a concise statement of the facts constituting a cause of action," which means that it shall contain a plain and concise statement of all the facts necessary to enable the plaintiff to recover. Chesapeake & Ohio Railroad Co. v. Citizens Bank v. Gahagan, 219 N. C. 464, 466, 187 S. E. 590.

The material allegations of the complaint are that at the foreclosure sale by the secretary of the corporate mortgagee, and that this official was "acting in said capacity at the time he purchased said land at the foreclosure sale,..." and was acting as the agent of said treasurer of said mortgagee, and that this official conveyed the land to the mortgagee, which thus indirectly purchased at its own sale. Held that the complaint is not so wholly insufficient that it cannot be overthrown by a demurrer. Comanche Joint Stock Land Bank, 211 N. C. 262, 265, 189 S. E. 777.

In spite of this section, a complaint must allege a cause of action under the liberal construction provided by this section, must allege all the material facts not essential to produce certainty of issues. Turner v. McKee, 137 N. C. 251, 259, 49 S. E. 330. See also Fairson v. Felton Beauty Supply Co., 222 N. C. 439, 23 S. E. (2d) 369.

Same—Judged from Whole Pleading. — When it is apparent from the whole pleading that the complaint alleges a good cause of action, it will be sustained under the rule of liberal construction. Muse v. Ford Motor Co., 175 N. C. 352, 55 S. E. 900; Dixon v. Green, 178 N. C. 205, 100 S. E. 263.

Extent of Liberal Construction Rule. — The rule of liberal construction does not mean that a pleading shall be considered as sufficient if it does not contain 'what is to be seen from its general scope that a party has a cause of action or defense he will not be deprived of its time merely because he has not stated it with technical accuracy. Chesapeake & Ohio Railroad Co. v. Citizens Bank v. Gahagan, 219 N. C. 464, 466, 187 S. E. 590. Nor is it intended thereby to repeal those rules of pleading which are essential to produce certainty of issues. Turner v. McKee, 137 N. C. 251, 259, 49 S. E. 330. See also Fairson v. Felton Beauty Supply Co., 222 N. C. 439, 23 S. E. (2d) 369.

Errors in Language and Use of Words. — A plea that a cause of action did not "arise" within the time prescribed by the statute for the commencement of an action, while not strictly accurate, will be construed under the liberal construction of pleading in force under this section, to mean that it did not "accrue" within that time. Stubbs v. Motz, 113 N. C. 458, 18 S. E. 387.

Answer Not Rejected Unless Fatally Defective. — Under the liberal principle provided by this section, an answer must be fatally defective before it will be rejected as insufficient and every reasonable intendment and presumption must be indulged in favor of the pleader. Commerce Ins. Co. v. McCraw, 215 N. C. 105, 108, 1 S. E. (2d) 369.

And an Amended Answer May Sufficiently State Cause of Action. — Where an amended answer is insufficient, and the amended answer, after the time limited for the filing of the amended answer, is interposed, overruling of the demurrer was proper, the amended answer being sufficient under a liberal construction to sustain the plain error, and the court will not interfere with the plea of the time. Dorsey v. Corbett, 190 N. C. 783, 130 S. E. 842.

Conflicts of Laws. — The rules of construction of the pleadings are governed by the lex fori, i. e. by the law of the state in which the cause is being litigated. McNinch v. American Trust Co., 183 N. C. 331, 110 S. E. 660.

Variances. — Under the liberal principle which this section inculcates, a variance between the pleadings and proof will not be regarded as material unless it misleads the court or prejudices the rights of either party, unless it misleads the court or prejudices the rights of either party, unless it misleads the court or prejudices the rights of either party. Turner v. McKee, 137 N. C. 251, 259, 49 S. E. 330.

Inherent Power to Extend Time. — Even independent of this section, and a fortiori under this section, the superior court possesses an inherent discretionary power to amend pleadings or allow them to be filed at any time, unless by consent of the parties. Sheek v. Sain, 127 N. C. 633; Bynum v. Fidelity Bank, 219 N. C. 129, 47 S. E. 393; Hill v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 222 N. C. 740, 24 S. E. (2d) 633; Belk's Department Store v. Guilford County, 222 N. C. 441, 23 S. E. (2d) 897 (dist. op.).

§ 1-152. Time for pleading enlarged. — The judge may likewise, in his discretion, and upon such terms as may be just, allow an answer or reply to be made, or other act to be done, after the time limited, or by an order may enlarge the time.

Editor's Note. — It will be noticed that this section confers upon the judge two supplementary powers: (a) To allow an answer to be filed after the time limited for its filing; which presupposes that the power is to be exercised after the expiration of such time; (b) a power to extend the time of filing the answer or reply, which presupposes that the power is to be exercised before the expiration of the time limited for the filing of the answer or reply.

While it is true the line of cases cited under this section, refer more particularly to filing answer, no sound reason occurs why the same power does not exist for enlarging the time for filing complaint. Smith v. New York Life Ins. Co., 236 N. C. 99, 102, 179 S. E. 457.

Inherent Power to Extend Time. — Even independent of this section, and a fortiori under this section, the superior court possesses an inherent discretionary power to amend pleadings or allow them to be filed at any time, unless by consent of the parties. Sheek v. Sain, 127 N. C. 633; Bynum v. Fidelity Bank, 219 N. C. 129, 47 S. E. 393; Hill v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 222 N. C. 740, 24 S. E. (2d) 633; Belk's Department Store v. Guilford County, 222 N. C. 441, 23 S. E. (2d) 897 (dist. op.).

Review of Discretion. — It is generally held that whenever the judge is vested with a discretion, his doing or refusing to do the act in question is not reviewable upon appeal. United Am., etc., Baptist Church v. United Am., etc., Baptist Church, 138 N. C. 564, 74 S. E. 14; Wilington v. McDonald, 135 N. C. 548, 45 S. E. 864; Beck v. Bellamy, 93 N. C. 157; Board of Education v. Bryant, 102 N. C. 42 S. E. 456. This discretion however is not an arbitrary but a legal discretion. Hodgins v. White, 65 N. C. 393.

Power to Plead or Practice. — In Austin v. Clarke, 70 N. C. 458, 459, the court has held that this section invests the Court with ample powers, in all questions of practice and procedure, to be exercised at the discretion of the judge who is presumed to know best what orders and what indulgence will promote the ends of justice in each particular case. With the exercise of discretion we cannot interfere, and it is not the subject of appeal.

Extension Not to Be Encouraged. — After the defendant has failed to file a verified answer, the court may in its discretion extend the time for filing it, though such extension does not extend the time for pleading beyond the next term of court, unless by consent of the parties. G. C. 70, Ashevile Light Co., 111 N. C. 434, 438, 16 S. E. 423.

Extension beyond Next Term. — The trial court cannot extend the time for pleading beyond the next term of court, unless by consent of the parties. Sheek v. Sain, 127 N. C. 633, 74 S. E. 334.

Extension after Supreme Court's Decision. — The trial court cannot extend the time for pleading after the Supreme Court has decided that judgment should have been entered by default for the plaintiff. Cook v. American Exch. Bank, 130 N. C. 183, 41 S. E. 67.

Procedure Before Setting Aside Default. — The judge of the Superior Court where a civil action has been brought has the discretionary power to enlarge the time in which an answer may be filed to the complaint beyond that limited by the statute, and to order that an answer be filed after the time limited, in an order to that effect. Aldridge v. Greensboro Fire Ins. Co., 194 N. C. 683, 140 S. E. 706. See also Vann v. Coleman, 206 N. C. 431, 174 S. E. 306.

Setting Aside Default.—On an appeal from an order of the clerk of the superior court denying motion to set aside a default judgment the judge of such court has jurisdiction under this and § 1-276 to set aside the judgment [202] enlarge the time for filing the defendant's answer.

Upon a proper finding of a meritorious defense and after hearing, the judge of the Superior Court, on appeal from the clerk, has authority under § 1-220 to set aside a judgment rendered by the clerk, against the defendant by default of pleadings, and to permit an answer to be filed under this section. Dunn v. Jones, 195 N. C. 354, 142 S. E. 320.

At the Time of Trial.—It is in the discretion of the court to allow filing of the answer or demurrer even where the case is reached for trial. Morgan v. Harris, 141 N. C. 358, 360, 54 S. E. 381.

Filing Answer after Five Years.—In Mallard v. Patterson, 108 N. C. 253, 13 S. E. 93, the defendant filed an unverified answer, the complaint in the action having been verified, and the defendant, after a lapse of five years, asked to be allowed to file an answer properly verified, and the court allowed him the leave, though he was not entitled to it as a matter of right. The Supreme Court approved of the order, and declared that the exercise of the discretion by the judge was not reviewable. Best v. British, etc., Mortg. Co., 131 N. C. 70, 42 S. E. 456.

Irrespective of Laches.—Even if the delay in filing the pleading was unreasonable, it is in the discretion of the presiding judge to permit it to be filed. McMillan v. Baxley, 112 N. C. 578, 583, 16 S. E. 845.

Delay in Motion for Judgment May Be Considered.—In proper case the court may in its discretion consider the delay of the plaintiff in moving for judgment. Horney v. Mills, 199 N. C. 724, 142 S. E. 111.

Answer to Amended Complaint.—The trial judge has the discretionary power conferred on him by this section to allow the defendant to file an answer to the amended complaint, which exception has not been reviewed on appeal when an abuse of this discretion has not been shown. Brown v. Hillboro, 185 N. C. 368, 117 S. E. 41.

Effect of Section 1-125.—Section 1-125 prohibits the clerk of the time of commencing a suit to make the averments more definite by amendment. Martin v. Goode, 111 N. C. 268, 16 S. E. 232; Allen v. Carolina Cent. R. Co., 120 N. C. 548, 550, 27 S. E. 76.

But it may direct the same upon the application of a defendant. Id. There was no error in the trial court's ordering it stricken out upon motion under this section, the test being whether the allegation is of a probative or of an ultimate fact. Revis v. Asheville, 207 N. C. 237, 176 S. E. 738.

Motions to confirm a foreclosure sale are properly stricken from the answer upon motion, under this section, since plaintiff, relying on a city carrying accident and liability insurance was an allegation of an evidential and probative fact and not of a material, essential, or ultimate fact, and there was no error in the trial court's ordering it stricken out under this section. Id.

Equitable matters in defense relevant only upon the motion to confirm a foreclosure sale are properly stricken from the record; an order seeking a legal remedy only and invoking no equitable jurisdiction of the court, and the foreclosure sale cannot be collaterally attacked in plaintiff's action to recover the deficiency.再, First-Stock Land Bank v. Stewart, 238 N. C. 139, 179 S. E. 463.

Power to Make Explicit Ex Mero Motu.—The court has a right ex mero motu to direct that pleadings shall be made more explicit. Martin v. Goode, 111 N. C. 268, 16 S. E. 232; Allen v. Carolina Cent. R. Co., 120 N. C. 548, 550, 27 S. E. 76. Or it may direct the same upon the application of a defendant. Id.

Motions to confirm a foreclosure sale are properly stricken from the answer upon motion, under this section, since plaintiff. Id. It may direct the same upon the application of a defendant. Id.

Manner of Correction May Not Be Directed.—While the trial judge is authorized in the exercise of his discretion to order that a pleading be made more definite under the provisions of this section, he may not direct the manner in which this may be done. Hensley v. McDowell Furniture Co., 164 N. C. 148, 80 S. E. 154.

Argumentative, Hypothetical or Alternative Pleadings.—The proper method of taking advantage of an argumentative, hypothetical or alternative pleading is an abortive motion not play off-murder but by a motion under this section to make more explicit. Daniels v. Baxter, 120 N. C. 14, 18, 26 S. E. 635.

Discretion of Court.—A motion to make a pleading more definite and certain is addressed to the discretion of the court. Womack v. Carter, 160 N. C. 286, 75 S. E. 1102. See also, Allen v. Carolina Cent. R. Co., 120 N. C. 548, 27 S. E. 76; Smith v. Summerfield, 158 N. C. 384, 12 S. E. 997; Conley v. Richmond, etc., R. Co., 109 N. C. 692, 14 S. E. 176. See also Temple v. Western Union Tel. Co., 205 N. C. 441, 171 S. E. 630; Tickle v. Hobgood, 212 N. C. 762, 194 S. E. 461.

If the pleader thinks that it is impossible to make the allegations of his pleading more definite, this fact must be addressed to the judge who has a large discretion in such matters, and if it appears to him that such was the case, he will disallow a motion to make such pleading more definite and certain. Bristol v. Carolina, etc., R. Co., 175 N. C. 359, 95 S. E. 850.

If irrelevant or redundant matter is inserted in a pleading, it may be stricken out on motion of any person aggrieved thereby, but this motion must be made before answer or demurrer, or before an extension of time to plead is granted. When the allegations of a pleading are so indefinite or uncertain that the precise nature of the charge or defense is not manifest, the court may permit the pleading to be made definite and certain by amendment. (Rev., § 496; Code, s. 561; C. C. P., s. 120; C. S. 537.)

Cross-References.—As to bill of particulars in certain cases, see § 1-135. As to sham and irrelevant defenses, motion to strike, see § 1-125.

For note on use of the motion to strike, see 19 N. C. L. A. 193.

Editor's Note.—The true doctrine to be gathered from all the cases is that, if the substantial facts which constitute a cause of action are stated in the complaint, then the same has been done through reasonable intention, though the allegations are imperfect, incomplete and defective, and such insufficiency pertains rather to the form than to the substance, the proper mode of correction is not by demurrer nor by excluding evidence at the trial but by a motion, before the trial, to make the averments more definite by amendment. To this effect see, Moore v. Edmistion, 70 N. C. 510; Stokes v. Taylor, 104 N. C. 294, 297, 10 S. E. 565; Nye v. Williams, 141 N. C. 129, 45 S. E. 950; 109 N. C. 605, 13 S. E. 92; Blackmore v. Winders, 144 N. C. 212, 56 S. E. 874; Bristol v. Carolina, etc., R. Co., 175 N. C. 509, 95 S. E. 880; Leach v. Page, 211 N. C. 625, 191 S. E. 349.

Motion to Strike Under § 1-223, the superior court has power to strike out an answer whenever it appears to the satisfaction of the court that it is irrelevant or frivolous. Commissioners v. Fletcher, 72 N. C. 114, 11 S. E. 430.

The Test of Right to Have Allegation Stricken.—Whether evidence in support of an allegation would be competent evidence in the trial of the case does not determine whether it stricken out upon motion under this section, the test being whether the allegation is of a probative or of an ultimate fact. Revis v. Asheville, 207 N. C. 237, 176 S. E. 738.

If the court determines that an allegation is irrelevant or frivolous, a pleading containing such an allegation as an evidential and probative fact and not of a material, essential, or ultimate fact, and there was no error in the trial court's ordering it stricken out under this section. Id.
and certain. Sayles v. Loftis, 217 N. C. 674, 9 S. E. (2d) 243.

If defendant, in a negligent injury action, desires more specific and detailed allegations in the complaint as to the character of negligent act, the party requesting that the court require the pleading to be made more definite and certain or request a bill of particulars. Livingston v. Essex Inv. Co., 217 N. C. 109, 12 S. E. (2d) 896.

Action to Establish Donatio Mortis Causa.—In an action to establish a donatio mortis causa, allegations setting forth facts tending to show motive, the setting, the relationship between the parties, the intention of the donor, the state of his health and the circumstances surrounding his death, are proper, and defendant administrator's motion to strike such allegations from the complaint is properly denied. Bynum v. Fidelity Bank, 219 N. C. 109, 12 S. E. (2d) 898.

Waiver or Cure of Defects in Absence of Motion.—If the defect of uncertainty or indefiniteness is not raised by a motion to strike out certain portions of the pleadings, the court, in the presence of the jury, will be prejudicial if defendant, in a negligent injury action, desires more specific and detailed allegations in the complaint as to the character of negligent act, the party requesting that the court require the pleading to be made more definite and certain or request a bill of particulars. Livingston v. Essex Inv. Co., 217 N. C. 109, 12 S. E. (2d) 896.

When there is a defective cause of action, although in due form, the plaintiff cannot recover unless the court in its discretion, on reasonable terms, allows an amendment. With a good cause of action set out, but in due form, the court may require the pleadings to be made definite and certain by amendment. Bowling v. Fidelity Bank, 209 N. C. 463, 184 S. E. 13, citing Allen v. Carolina Cen. R. Co., 121 N. C. 506, 28 S. E. 265.

Review of Refusal of Motion to Strike.—The refusal of a motion to strike out certain portions of a bill of particulars as irrelevant and immaterial, under this section, will be affirmed where it appears that the lower court did not abuse its discretion by correct rulings on the admissibility of evidence offered in support of both alleged irrelevant and immaterial matter. Eggers v. Carolina Cent. R. Co., 205 N. C. 599, 172 S. E. 196; Scott v. Bryant, 210 N. C. 478, 187 S. E. 756.

An appeal will lie immediately from the denial of a motion to strike made under this section, if it clearly appears that the court, in striking out certain paragraphs from the complaint on the ground of irrelevancy and redundancy, has not made a proper motion to strike out the paragraphs on the ground of irrelevancy and redundancy. In re: Goldsboro Union Ins. Co., 211 N. C. 202, 19 S. E. (2d) 207.

On appeal from the denial of a motion to strike made under this section, the duty rests upon the supreme court to sustain the objections which relate to any allegation of scandalous and impertinent matter. Where a motion to strike is timely made and made on the eve of the trial, it should be denied for the reason that it is not made in apt time. But even though a motion to strike out is timely made, the court in striking out certain portions of the pleadings, the court, in the presence of the jury, will be prejudicial if defendant, in a negligent injury action, desires more specific and detailed allegations in the complaint as to the character of negligent act, the party requesting that the court require the pleading to be made more definite and certain or request a bill of particulars. Livingston v. Essex Inv. Co., 217 N. C. 109, 12 S. E. (2d) 896.

An appeal will lie immediately from the denial of a motion to strike made under this section, if it clearly appears that the court, in striking out certain paragraphs from the complaint on the ground of irrelevancy and redundancy, has not made a proper motion to strike out the paragraphs on the ground of irrelevancy and redundancy. In re: Goldsboro Union Ins. Co., 211 N. C. 202, 19 S. E. (2d) 207.

In a negligent injury action, where the complaint was filed at October term, 1916, and the motion to strike out was not made until December term, 1917, the motion was correctly denied. But even though a motion to strike out is timely made, the court in striking out certain portions of the pleadings, the court, in the presence of the jury, will be prejudicial if defendant, in a negligent injury action, desires more specific and detailed allegations in the complaint as to the character of negligent act, the party requesting that the court require the pleading to be made more definite and certain or request a bill of particulars. Livingston v. Essex Inv. Co., 217 N. C. 109, 12 S. E. (2d) 896.

A motion to strike out alleged improper matter from a pleading must be taken in accordance with the rules of the court. Where a motion is made on the eve of the trial, it should be denied for the reason that it is not made in apt time. But even though a motion to strike out is timely made, the court in striking out certain portions of the pleadings, the court, in the presence of the jury, will be prejudicial if defendant, in a negligent injury action, desires more specific and detailed allegations in the complaint as to the character of negligent act, the party requesting that the court require the pleading to be made more definite and certain or request a bill of particulars. Livingston v. Essex Inv. Co., 217 N. C. 109, 12 S. E. (2d) 896.

A motion to strike out does not challenge sufficiency of the complaint as a whole to state the facts conferring jurisdiction, but the judgment or determination may be stated to have been duly given or made. If this allegation is controverted, the party pleading must establish, on the trial, the facts conferring jurisdiction. (Rev., s. 497; Code, s. 262; C. C. P., s. 121; C. S. 538.)

§ 1-155. Pleading judgments.—In pleading a judgment or other determination of a court or of an officer of special jurisdiction, it is not necessary to state the facts conferring jurisdiction, but the judgment or determination may be stated to have been duly given or made. If this allegation is controverted, the party pleading must establish, on the trial, the facts conferring jurisdiction. (Rev., s. 497; Code, s. 262; C. C. P., s. 121; C. S. 538.)

§ 1-156. How conditions precedent pleaded.—In pleading the performance of conditions precedent in a contract, it is not necessary to state the facts showing performance, but it may be stated generally that the party duly performed all the conditions on his part. If this allegation is controverted, the party pleading must establish, on the trial, the facts showing performance. (Rev., s. 198; Code, s. 263; C. C. P., s. 122; C. S. 539.)

In Actions upon Insurance Policy.—In Britt v. Mutual Ben. Life Ins. Co., 105 N. C. 175, 178, 10 S. E. 896, it was held under this section that, in an action upon an insurance policy, the truth of the representations alleged in the application as conditions precedent must be averred generally, stating that the party duly performed all the conditions on his part.

§ 1-156. How instrument for payment of money pleaded.—In an action or defense founded upon an instrument for the payment of money only, it is sufficient for the party pleading to give a copy of the instrument, and to state that there is due to him thereon, from the adverse party, a specified sum which he claims. (Rev., s. 499; Code, s. 263; C. C. P., s. 122; C. S. 540.)

This section does not require that the entire writing be made a part of the complaint, and, a demurrer ore tenus does not lie where answer has been filed and no objection taken by demurrer to the jurisdiction of the court or that the complaint did not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action. Roberts v. Grogan, 222 N. C. 30, 21 S. E. (3d) 829.

§ 1-157. How private statutes pleaded. — In pleading a private statute or right derived therefrom it is sufficient to refer to the statute by its title or the day of its ratification, and the court shall thereafter, upon demand, take judicial notice thereof without the necessity of its being pleaded. Hancock v. Norfolk, etc., R. Co., 124 N. C. 222, 32 S. E. 679. And conversely, the fact that a private statute is made a part of the complaint, and, a demurrer ore tenus taken by demurrer to the jurisdiction of the court or that it does not contain such provisions it must be specifically pleaded. Hancock v. Norfolk, etc., R. Co., 124 N. C. 222, 32 S. E. 679.

Public Law Published in Private Laws, and Vice Versa.—Notwithstanding the fact that a public statute is erroneously published in the private laws, the court will take judicial notice thereof without the necessity of its being pleaded. See Code, s. 264; C. C. P., s. 123; C. S. 541.)

Private Statute with Public Provisions.—A private statute does not assume the character of a public statute by being published among the public statutes will not make it a public statute so as to do away with the necessity of pleading. Hancock v. Norfolk, etc., R. Co., 108 N. C. 399, 402, 12 S. E. 1040, 13 S. E. 1. A fortiori where it does not contain such provisions it must be specifically pleaded. Hancock v. Norfolk, etc., R. Co., 108 N. C. 399, 402, 12 S. E. 1040, 13 S. E. 1. A fortiori where it does not contain such provisions it must be specifically pleaded. Hancock v. Norfolk, etc., R. Co., 108 N. C. 399, 402, 12 S. E. 1040, 13 S. E. 1.

Nature of a Statute is a Question of Law. — Whether a statute is public or private is a question of law which the courts must determine in the absence of a statutory enactment declaring and settling its nature. Humphries v. Baxter, 28 N. C. 437; State v. Wallace, 94 N. C. 827.

Qualification of the Rule in Supreme Court.—While the court may not accept an ordinance or act, take judicial notice of a private statute or its terms and will require that it shall be specially pleaded in the manner required by this section, this rule will not be allowed to prevail when a private statute relating to and effectually settling the matter in controversy has, after due notice, been formally brought to the attention of the Supreme Court; for then only an ab abatement to be entered. Durham v. Richmond, etc., R. Co., 108 N. C. 399, 402, 12 S. E. 1040, 13 S. E. 1. A fortiori where it does not contain such provisions it must be specifically pleaded. Hancock v. Norfolk, etc., R. Co., 108 N. C. 399, 402, 12 S. E. 1040, 13 S. E. 1.

§ 1-158. Pleadings in libel and slander.—In an action for libel or slander it is not necessary to state in the complaint any extrinsic facts for the purpose of showing the application to the plaintiff of the defamatory matter out of which the cause of action arose, but it is sufficient to state generally that the same was published or spoken concerning the plaintiff, and if such allegation is controverted, the plaintiff is bound to establish on trial that it was so published or spoken.

The defendant may in his answer allege both the truth of the matter charged as defamatory, and any mitigating circumstances to reduce the amount of damages; and whether he proves the justification or not, he may give in evidence the mitigating circumstances. (Rev., s. 501, 502; Code, ss. 265, 266; C. C. P., ss. 124, 125; C. S. 543.)

Cross Reference.—As to libel and slander generally, see § 99-1 et seq.

For an article entitled "Restrictions on a Free Press," wherein various phases of rights arising out of libel are discussed, see 4 N. C. Law Rev. 24.

Flea Prerequisite to Evidence of Mitigation.—A plea of justification or of mitigation is a prerequisite to the allowance of evidence of the truth of the charge. Without it such evidence is incompetent. Burris v. Bush, 170 N. C. 394, 87 S. E. 97; Upchurch v. Robertson, 127 N. C. 127, 128, 57 S. E. 127; Dickerson v. Dail, 159 N. C. 541, 75 S. E. 803; Bryant v. Reddy, 214 N. C. 748, 753, 200 S. E. 896.

Where the truth of words alleged to be slanderous is not specifically pleaded, evidence thereof was held properly referred to in the complaint that the slanderous words were spoken of the plaintiff, the facts which point to them and convey to the hearing the sense in which they are used are matters of proof before the jury. Wozelsk v. Hettrick, 93 N. C. 10.

Sufficient Publication.—Under this section where the complaint in an action for libel alleges that the defendant sent the plaintiff an open post card through the mails containing libelous matter, without an allegation that such matter was read by some third person, the allegation of publication is insufficient. McKeel v. Latham, 202 N. C. 318, 162 S. E. 747.

Evidence of Justification under General Issue.—When the defendant pleads the general issue, he may not introduce evidence of justification or mitigation. Upchurch v. Robertson, 127 N. C. 127, 37 S. E. 157.

Where defendants had not pleaded privilege, justification, etc., it was error to withhold case from the jury. Harris v. Goen, 274 N. C. 250, 162 S. E. 747.

In the absence of a plea of privilege, justification, or mitigating circumstances, the evidence was sufficient to be submitted to the jury on the question of whether the generation was defamatory, where the plaintiff had shown by evidence in uttering certain slanderous words in an action therefor against the corporation. Alley v. Long, 209 N. C. 245, 183 S. E. 294.

§ 1-159. Allegations not denied, deemed true. — Every material allegation of the complaint not controverted by the answer, and every material allegation of new matter in the answer, constituting a counterclaim, not controverted by the reply, is to be deemed controverted by the adverse party as upon a direct denial or avoidance, as the case requires. (Rev., s. 503; Code, s. 268; C. C. P., s. 127; C. S. 543.)

Editor's Note.—The rule established by this section disposed of the necessity of submitting to the jury matters which the law deems as admitted in the absence of denial. New Matter Not Amounting to Counterclaim.—If the new matter in the answer does not amount to a counterclaim such matter will be deemed as denied by the operation of law. Wagon Co. v. Byrd, 119 N. C. 460, 26 S. E. 144; McQueen v. People's Nat. Bank, 111 N. C. 509, 513, 16 S. E. 270. Thus in an action for the purchase price of land sold, the allegation of defective title is a matter of defense, and will not be considered as a counterrequirement, even though not specifically denied by the operation of law. Bank v. Loughran, 122 N. C. 668, 674, 30 S. E. 17.

When such new matter does not raise issues of fact but presents only questions of law, the court may render judgment on the pleadings, there being no controverted issues of fact for the determination of the jury. Dunn v. Tew, 212 N. C. 286, 13 S. E. 246.

The allegations of the complaint, and every material allegation of new matter constituting a counterclaim in an answer, directly admitted or not denied, have the effect of changing the nature of the case, as the case requires. Bonhote v. W. N. C. 224; Heims v. Green, 105 N. C. 251, 263, 11 S. E. 470.

As a corollary to this general principle it follows that new matter in the answer not amounting to counterclaim disposed of the necessity of a replication. McLamb v. McPhail, 126 N. C. 218, 221, 35 S. E. 426; Wilson v. Brown, 134 N. C. 400, 408, 46 S. E. 763; Smith v. Bruten, 137 N. C. 79, 80, 49 S. E. 64; Askew v. Koonce, 118 N. C. 526, 24 S. E. 218.

Admission as Basis for Referee's Finding.—Allegations in Pleading lost, copy used.—If an original pleading or paper is lost or withheld by any person, the court may authorize a copy to be filed and used instead of the original. (Rev., s. 504; Code, s. 600; C. C. P., s. 357; C. S. 541.)

Before Cause Argued in Supreme Court.—The lost pleading or paper should always be supplied by a copy, before the cause is argued in the supreme court. Blackmore v. Winders, 144 N. C. 212, 219, 56 S. E. 874.

Order of Substitution Not Reviewable. — Judgments of trial courts permitting lost pleadings to be substituted, are not reviewable. Bray v. Creekmore, 109 N. C. 49, 13 S. E. 723.

Art. 18. Amendments.

§ 1-161. Amendment as of course.—Any pleading may be once amended of course, without costs, and without prejudice to the proceedings already had, at any time before the period for answering it expires; or it can be so amended at any time, unless it is made to appear to the court that it was done for the purpose of delay, and the plaintiff or defendant will thereby lose the benefit of a term for which the cause is, or may be, docketed for trial; and if it appears to the court or judge that the amendment was made for that purpose, it may be stricken out, and such terms imposed as seem just to the court or judge. (Rev., s. 505; Code, s. 272; C. C. P., s. 131; C. S. 545.)

Cross References.—As to enlargement of time in discretion of judge, see § 1-152. As to amendment to make pleading more definite and certain, see § 1-153. As to amendment of pleadings, etc., to correct mistake, to insert material allegations, etc., in discretion of court, see § 1-163.

Editor's Note.—The resultant frustration of justice from the absurd technicalities of the common law system of procedure, as well as the absurdity of the act of 1872, it was discretionary with the judge to permit any amendment the provision being: the judge "may, in his discretion," etc. Matthews v. Copeland, 80 N. C. 30. But now the requirement is mandatory under proper circumstances. See Moore v. Hobbs, 77 N. C. 65, 66. A defendant demurs to a petition for divorce the court here must consider the demurrer as a concession, not only that the facts alleged are true, but that they can and will be proved. See § 1-163.

Application in Divorce Actions.—Divorces are granted only when the facts constituting a sufficient cause, under a properly made pleading, are proved by the evidence found by the jury. McQueen v. McQueen, 82 N. C. 471. The admissions of the parties are not competent evidence, as in other actions, of the truth of the material allegations of the pleadings. (Rev., s. 1-152; C. C. P., s. 357; C. S. 541.)

§ 1-162. Pleading over after demurrer.—After the decision on a demurrer, the judge shall, if it appear that the demurrer was interposed in good faith, allow the party to plead over upon such terms as may be just. (Rev., s. 506; Code, s. 272; C. C. P., s. 131; 1871-2, c. 173; C. S. 546.)

Cross References.—As to procedure after return of judgment upon demurrer, see § 1-151. As to motion for judgment on frivolous demurrer, see § 1-159. At the trial of a suit where the demurrer is interposed in good faith the judge shall allow the party to plead over, has no application to actions on contracts entered into.
§ 1-163 Amendments in discretion of court —

I. IN GENERAL.

See notes under §§ 1-129, 1-131.

Amplest Powers of Amendment — In civil actions, the amplest powers of amendment are given to the courts to amend any process, pleading or proceeding in such actions either in form or substance for the furtherance of justice, on such terms as may be proper, amend any pleading, process or proceeding, by adding or striking out the name of any party; by correcting a mistake in the name of a party, or a mistake in any other respect; by inserting other allegations material to the case; or when the amendment does not change substantially the claim or defense, by conforming the pleading or proceeding to the fact proved.

When a proceeding taken by a party fails to conform to law in any respect, the trial judge may permit an amendment of the proceeding so as to make it conformable thereto. (Rev., ss. 507, 512; Code, ss. 273, 274; C. C. P., ss. 132, 133; C. S. 547.)

II. amendments to the pleadings.

IV. Conforming Pleadings to Facts Found.

V. Amendments of Process.

VI. Amendments as to Parties.

VII. Amendments Before Justices of the Peace.

VIII. Specific Instances.

I. IN GENERAL.

Amplest Powers of Amendment — In civil actions, the amplest powers of amendment are given to the courts to amend any process, pleading or proceeding in such actions either in form or substance for the furtherance of justice, on such terms as may be proper, amend any pleading, process or proceeding, by adding or striking out the name of any party; by correcting a mistake in the name of a party, or a mistake in any other respect; by inserting other allegations material to the case; or when the amendment does not change substantially the claim or defense, by conforming the pleading or proceeding to the fact proved.

When a proceeding taken by a party fails to conform to law in any respect, the trial judge may permit an amendment of the proceeding so as to make it conformable thereto. (Rev., ss. 507, 512; Code, ss. 273, 274; C. C. P., ss. 132, 133; C. S. 547.)

To the same effect in Gilchrist v. Kitchen, 86 N. C. 20, the Court says: “But, independent of the Code, we hold that the right to amend pleadings in the cause and allow amendments of the pleadings ‘in furtherance of justice, and on such terms as shall be just, at any time before or after the judgment rendered therein.’ State v. Vaughan, 91 N. C. 532, 535.

Power to Amend Independent of Statute — Even independent of the Code the courts have power to allow amendments to pleadings or allow them to be filed at any time unless prohibited by some statute, or unless vested rights are interfered with, and a fortiori under the amplest powers of amendment given by the Code. Doss v. Herring, 127 N. C. 81, 53 S. E. 83.

Inherent Power of Amendment — The superior courts possess an inherent discretionary power to amend pleadings or allow them to be filed at any time, unless prohibited by some statute, or unless vested rights are interfered with. Gilchrist v. Kitchen, 86 N. C. 20.

§ 1-163. Amendments in discretion of court —

The judge or court may, before and after judgment, in furtherance of justice, and on such terms as may be proper, amend any pleading, process or proceeding, by adding or striking out the name of any party; by correcting a mistake in the name of a party, or a mistake in any other respect; by inserting other allegations material to the case; or when the amendment does not substantially change the claim or defense, by conforming the pleading or proceeding to the fact proved.

When a proceeding taken by a party fails to conform to law in any respect, the trial judge may permit an amendment of the proceeding so as to make it conformable thereto. (Rev., ss. 507, 512; Code, ss. 273, 274; C. C. P., ss. 132, 133; C. S. 547.)

I. IN GENERAL.

See notes under §§ 1-129, 1-131.

Amplest Powers of Amendment — In civil actions, the amplest powers of amendment are given to the courts to amend any process, pleading or proceeding in such actions either in form or substance for the furtherance of justice, on such terms as may be proper, amend any pleading, process or proceeding, by adding or striking out the name of any party; by correcting a mistake in the name of a party, or a mistake in any other respect; by inserting other allegations material to the case; or when the amendment does not change substantially the claim or defense, by conforming the pleading or proceeding to the fact proved.

When a proceeding taken by a party fails to conform to law in any respect, the trial judge may permit an amendment of the proceeding so as to make it conformable thereto. (Rev., ss. 507, 512; Code, ss. 273, 274; C. C. P., ss. 132, 133; C. S. 547.)

Power to Amend Independent of Statute — Even independent of the Code the courts have power to allow amendments to pleadings or allow them to be filed at any time unless prohibited by some statute, or unless vested rights are interfered with, and a fortiori under the amplest powers of amendment given by the Code. Doss v. Herring, 127 N. C. 81, 53 S. E. 83.

Inherent Power of Amendment — The superior courts possess an inherent discretionary power to amend pleadings or allow them to be filed at any time, unless prohibited by some statute, or unless vested rights are interfered with. Gilchrist v. Kitchen, 86 N. C. 20.
There is no force in the argument, that an amendment which removes the objections must be made before they are taken, and cannot be made afterwards, since it is precisely for such a purpose the power is conferred to be exercised in furtherance of the ends of justice, at the discretion of the judge, in order that such as are trivial, and do not affect the substantial and understood matters in controversy, may be removed.

Amendment after Judgment.—If necessary, the pleadings may be reformed even after judgment to conform to the facts proved. Hendon v. North Carolina R. Co., 127 N. C. 110, 12 S. E. 257.

Same.—The court may in its discretion even after judgment allow an answer to be amended to conform to the facts proved. Waters v. Waters, 125 N. C. 590, 593, 34 S. E. 548.

Amendment after Demurrer.—The trial court has the discretionary power to allow plaintiff to amend his complaint in furtherance of the ends of justice, at the discretion of the judge, so as to allege that the negligence complained of was the proximate cause of the injury. Bailey v. Roberts, 208 N. C. 532, 181 S. E. 278.

Amendment after Verdict.—The court has power to allow an amendment after verdict, so as to supply the omission of an averment in the pleading. Pearce v. Mason, 78 N. C. 375; Smith v. Bithell & N. C. 35; Roberson v. Hodges, 105 N. C. 49, 11 S. E. 263.

After Reversal.—Under this section upon the receipt of a certificate of reversal of judgment overruling a demurrer, the lower court has the discretionary authority to permit plaintiff to amend his complaint in accordance with the opinion. Commissioner of Banks v. Harvey, 202 N. C. 380, 162 S. E. 894.

Amendment after Order and Confirmation of Sale.—In State v. Smith, 178 N. C. 19, 198 S. E. 878, it was held that the trial court, when affirming the order of sale and confirmation of sale, had discretion to allow plaintiff to amend his complaint to include another tract of land not mentioned, and that the judge would have no power to amend the petition upon parole evidence that a tract of land had been omitted therefrom. The presumption of facts supporting amendment.—The trial judge will be presumed to have found the facts necessary to support a claim for judgment even when no facts are stated in the record. Patterson v. Champion Lumber Co., 175 N. C. 90, 94 S. E. 692.

Relation Back Doctrine.—An amendment when properly allowed will date back to the time of the institution of the suit. Leifer v. Lane & Co., 170 N. C. 181, 86 S. E. 1022.

An amended summons, under this section, relates back to the commencement of the action unless the amendment changes the relief or introduces a new party, in which event the amendment is effective only from the date it was granted. Lee v. Hoff, 221 N. C. 233, 237, 19 S. E. (2d) 230.

Jurisdiction.—In order to allow an amendment, the court must have jurisdiction of the cause. An amended summons, related back under the statute, gives jurisdiction to the court, whether he shall reinstate them. Grant v. Burgwyn, 88 N. C. 95.

Reinstatement of Nonsuited Causes.—Where plaintiff voluntarily amends his complaint by entering a nol pros as to nonsuited causes, and presents a new action in the court, whether he shall reinstate them. Grant v. Burgwyn, 88 N. C. 95.

Costs.—When the superior court has power to amend, the question of costs is entirely in its discretion. Robinson v. Willoughby, 67 N. C. 84.

III. INTRODUCING NEW CAUSE OF ACTION, DEFENSE OR RELIEF.

Permissible When It Introduces No New Cause.—Unless the plaintiff can add a new cause of action, based upon the subject-matter of the original action, no objection can be successfully urged where the amendment is germane to the original action, involving substantially the same transaction or event, and present a different demand by an amendment which is broad enough to warrant the action of the referee in allowing a partner to come in as party plaintiff and adopt complaint previously filed by copartner. Sheffield v. Alexander, 194 N. C. 744, 745, 140 S. E. 726. See note under § 1-163.

Instances of New Cause Not Introduced.—In an action to recover damages for a conspiracy to prevent the employment by others of a discharged employee, under §§ 14-355, 14-356, the cause of action alleged was not substantially changed by allowing an amendment to the effect that the plaintiff had been employed by the defendant prior to the time of the alleged conspiracy. Goins v. Sargent, 196 N. C. 478, 146 S. E. 131.

An amendment to a complaint in an action to set aside a conveyance of land for fraud is not substantially changed by an amendment allowing the plaintiff in the discretion of the court to allege that the conveyance was voidable as directly resulting therefrom. Parker v. Mecklenburg Realty, et al., Co., 195 N. C. 644, 143 S. E. 254.

Where the complaint in an action for nonpayment of draft alleged that defendant failed to pay when it was received, it was held not error to allow an amendment alleging that defendant had in fact accepted the draft by entering it on its books and had held it for more than 24 hours thereafter during which time it failed and refused to return it accepted or nonaccepted. Morris v. Cleve, 197 N. C. 253, 148 S. E. 253.

Second.—One may correct a summons. —Where one administratrix has renounced her right, and a second has been appointed, and the second administratrix has brought action and made its mark to the complaint, the action of the trial judge in correcting the summons and in changing the name of the first administratrix to that of the second does not change the cause of action, and does not constitute error. Hill v. Norfolk So. Ry. Co., 195 N. C. 695, 143 S. E. 129.

Consent Necessary when New Cause Introduced.—The court cannot, except by consent, allow an amendment which changes the cause of action and is not simply a correction, striking out “horse” and inserting “cow”, or else the jury must find the facts specially or the case must be submitted to the jury “on issues,” so that the pleading may be amended and be allowed to conform to the evidence established by the plaintiffs, and not merely to the terms as the judge may deeme proper, "unless the amendment affects the merits and substantially changes the claim or defense." Shelton v. Davis, 69 N. C. 324, 328.

The court has discretionary power to allow a pleading to be amended after the introduction of evidence so as to make the pleading conform to the evidence. Hicks v. Collier, 69 Mo. 176; Scoville v. Gasherm, 79 Mo. 490.

Defective Statement of a Good Cause. —A defective statement of a good cause of action, as distinguished from a failure to state a cause of action, is not of this nature, and may be allowed. Blalock v. Clark, 133 N. C. 306, 308, 45 S. E. 642. To the same effect see also, Fidelity, etc., Co. v. Jordan, 134 N. C. 236, 244, 46 S. E. 18.

Adding New Plea after Appeal Reached Supreme Court.—The power and duty of the judge in respect to amendments after the appeal has reached this court depend on these sections, and there is nothing in these sections requiring the judge to allow a new plea to be put in, though he may do so on payment of all costs up to that time. The Court of Appeals, in Ely v. Early, 94 N. C. 1, 253, 148 S. E. 253: "It would be in violation of one of the most important provisions of the Code and Constitution of the State, if a party to an action, upon the ground that the complaint is not as it should have been, from the facts established by the proofs in the case, to allow such an objection now to fail a party to a suit and be deprived of any evidence that the alteration shall not disturb or impair any intervenors of the process, particularly as to the signature and official origin, and of the purpose for which it was issued, and the broad discretion with which judges are clothed by this section may be freely exercised, subject only to the restriction that the alteration shall not disturb or impair any intervening rights of third parties. Cheatham v. Crews, 81 N. C. 341; Thomas v. Womack, 64 N. C. 657; Redmond v. Mullinen, 113 N. C. 505, 510, 18 S. E. 708.

A complaint which introduces a substantially new defence. Hinton v. Means, 75 N. C. 18, 20. This section is curable by amendment, even after verdict. Ely v. Early, 94 N. C. 1.

Amendment of Insufficient Affidavit.—The court has the power to allow the amendment of an affidavit upon which a warrant of attachment had issued, although the former affidavit is wholly insufficient. Brown, etc., Co. v. Hawkins, 84 N. C. 645.

IV. CONFORMING PLEADINGS TO FACTS FOUND. —See sections 1-165, 1-168.

Leave to Amend to Conform Pleadings to Facts. —Under this section and section 1-168, a plaintiff may sue for a horse and recover a cow; but in order to do this, when the variance appears, the plaintiff must be allowed to amend by striking out “horse” and inserting “cow”, or else the jury must find the facts specially or the case must be submitted to the jury "on issues," so that the pleading may be amended and be allowed to conform to the evidence established by the plaintiffs, and not merely to the terms as the judge may deem proper, "unless the amendment affects the merits and substantially changes the claim or defense." Shelton v. Davis, 69 N. C. 324, 328.

In Dickens v. Perkins, 134 N. C. 220, 223, 46 S. E. 490, the court said: "If the plaintiffs were unable to show by the proof that the contract was made as alleged, and by the evidence established a different agreement, they could have availed themselves of the latter and have enforced the same only by an amendment, provided the cause of action was not thereby substantially changed." Phipps v. York, 127 N. C. 325, 37 S. E. 435.

V. AMENDMENTS OF PROCESS. — Generally. —If the paper bear internal evidence of its official origin, and of the purpose for which it was issued, it comes within the definition of original process, and the broad discretion with which judges are clothed by this section may be freely exercised, subject only to the restriction that the alteration shall not disturb or impair any intervenors of the process, particularly as to the signature and official seal thereof, see Henderson v. Graham, 84 N. C. 496.

Not Permissable as to Prejudice Acquired Interest. —Amendments of original process are not permisssble as to prejudice acquired interest, and no process can be amended to prejudice acquired interests or take away any defense which could be made to an action begun at the time of the amendments. Phillips v. Holland, 78 N. C. 31; Henderson v. Graham, 84 N. C. 496, 498.

Defects Curable by General Appearance Amendable. —With reference to the amendment of a process, it is held that whether a summons should be amended is a discretion in the matter and not reviewable (Henderson v. Graham, 84 N. C. 496). From this is to be deduced the rule, in regard to the amendment of process, that any defect or omission of a formal character, which would be waived or disregarded by a trial tribunal and on which the merits, may be treated as a matter which can be remedied by amendment at the discretion of the court, when the rights of other persons are not affected and no prejudice will be to prejudice acquired interests or take away any defense which could be made to an action begun at the time of the amendments. Phillips v. Holland, 78 N. C. 31; Henderson v. Graham, 84 N. C. 496, 498.

Absence of Clerk's Signature.—Under this section the appeal of the clerk is not that whether a summons should be amended is a discretion in the matter and not reviewable (Henderson v. Graham, 84 N. C. 496). From this is to be deduced the rule, in regard to the amendment of process, that any defect or omission of a formal character, which would be waived or disregarded by a trial tribunal and on which the merits, may be treated as a matter which can be remedied by amendment at the discretion of the court, when the rights of other persons are not affected and no prejudice will be to prejudice acquired interests or take away any defense which could be made to an action begun at the time of the amendments. Phillips v. Holland, 78 N. C. 31; Henderson v. Graham, 84 N. C. 496, 498.

Absence of Clerk's Signature.—Under this section the appeal of the clerk is not that whether a summons should be amended is a discretion in the matter and not reviewable (Henderson v. Graham, 84 N. C. 496). From this is to be deduced the rule, in regard to the amendment of process, that any defect or omission of a formal character, which would be waived or disregarded by a trial tribunal and on which the merits, may be treated as a matter which can be remedied by amendment at the discretion of the court, when the rights of other persons are not affected and no prejudice will be to prejudice acquired interests or take away any defense which could be made to an action begun at the time of the amendments. Phillips v. Holland, 78 N. C. 31; Henderson v. Graham, 84 N. C. 496, 498.

Statute of Limitation. —Where a distinct cause of action is allowed to be inserted in a complaint, by amendment, it is tantamount to bringing a new action, and the statute of limitation runs to the time when the amendment is allowed; but where the cause of action is allowed by the amendment constitutes a part of the original cause of action, Ely v. Early, 94 N. C. 1, 253, 148 S. E. 253; once a suit is allowed, the court allowed the plaintiff to amend, so as to set up a new matter in an existing suit, in a deed, the statute only runs against the relief demanded by the amended complaint to the time when the action was commenced. Ely v. Early, 94 N. C. 1.
evidence of genuineness as to all process to be served in the county in which his court is held, yet, if he issue to the county a summons in the usual form, attested by his official seal, but not subscribed, and containing his name only as printed in the body of the paper, the court, having the power, after the defendant has entered an appearance, to amend by allowing the clerk to sign his name. Henderson v. Graham, 84 N. C. 496; Redmond v. Mullenaux, 113 N. C. 431.

On the other hand, when a summons is issued to an adjacent county, signed by the clerk of the superior court, but not proved, the court in the county in which the action was brought, having been returned by the officer who sold. Clark v. Hellen, 113 N. C. 431; Seawell v. Bank, 14 N. C. 79; Purcell v. McFarland, 23 N. C. 34. Redmond v. Mullenaux, 113 N. C. 431.

The seal, though not required, or the signature, though not imparting authenticity in the county to which the summons issues, is evidence of the fact that the clerk has approved the process, and the defendant waived the irregularity in the manner of service, and the face of the paper to give assurance that it had received the sanction of the court before it was delivered to the officer to serve. Clark v. Hellen, 23 N. C. 421; Seawell v. Bank, 14 N. C. 79; Purcell v. McFarland, 23 N. C. 34. Redmond v. Mullenaux, 113 N. C. 431.

Same.—Process Issued Out of County.—By amendment a process may be affixed to a process issued out of the county after its return. McArter v. Rhea, 122 N. C. 614, 89 S. E. 642.

Informalities Cured.—Informalities in the process may be cured by amendment, if allowed by the court. Page v. McDonald, 159 N. C. 38, 74 S. E. 642.

Amendment to Give Effectual Jurisdiction.—Where process is erroneously made returnable to the clerk, instead of to the term of the court, the court at term, having acquired jurisdiction, may make all necessary amendments of the process without the consent of any of the parties, in order to give the court jurisdiction, if no intervening and vested right is injuriously affected, and when the process is thus amended, it justifies the original service of any officer who previously served the original process. Page v. McDonald, 159 N. C. 38, 74 S. E. 642.

Amendment in Attachment Proceedings.—Amendment under this section may not be permitted where the rights of the parties are substantially affected by the failure to correct the officer's return to show the correct names of the defendants. Lee v. Hoff, 221 N. C. 233, 19 S. E. (2d) 893.

VI. AMENDMENTS AS TO PARTIES.

Allegations as to Value Supplied.—Where in an action of claim and delivery, personal injury,衡, or in an action to recover for damages caused by omission in the summons, the justice of the peace properly allowed a motion to amend by filling in the blank left for such allegation. Cox v. Grisham, 113 N. C. 279, 18 S. E. 705.

VI. AMENDMENTS AS TO PARTIES.

Generally.—The power to make additional parties to an action is settled, especially when the amendment did not change the cause of action, nor work any injustice to the opposing party. Mills v. Callahan, 126 N. C. 279, 41 S. E. 754; South Carolina Bank, etc., Co. v. Williams, 209 N. C. 866, 183 S. E. 18.

Limitation on Operation of Rule.—The rule has the power to make additional parties to a pending action or defendant. However, where a court permits parties to an action to institute a new action against the defendant as to the new party and the action as to him does not relate to the date of the institution of the original cause so as to deprive the defendants of the right to plead the statute of limitations in bar of recovery in such action. Home Real Estate, etc., Co. v. Locker, 214 N. C. 1, 2, 197 S. E. 555.

Discouraging and Not Reviewable.—It very rarely happens that a party is permitted to insert a new defendant, thereby impressing him with liabilities, and hence ordering such parties are discretionary with the trial court, and are not reviewable upon appeal. Tillery v. Candler, 118 N. C. 888, 899, 24 S. E. 709; Bernard v. Haney, 107 N. C. 59, 12 S. E. 551; Redmond v. Mullenax, 113 N. C. 431. See also 40 Am. Jur., Judgments, 708; 116 N. C. 430, 21 S. E. 971; State v. Arrington, 101 N. C. 197, 7 S. E. 652; Maggett v. Roberts, 108 N. C. 174, 12 S. E. 652. Washington v. Board of Education, 219 N. C. 197, 193 S. E. 763.

New Parties to a Pending Action.—By amendment proper new parties may be brought into a pending action. Dobson v. McPherson, 159 N. C. 38, 97 S. E. 642.

Making Parties after Judgment.—In a proper case additional parties can be made even after judgment. Bird v. Gilliam, 125 N. C. 76, 78, 34 S. E. 195.

Jointly-Paying Parties.—Statute of Limitation.—Where a note is made to the husband and his wife as joint payees, and the action thereon is brought by the husband alone, an amendment joining the wife as a party to the action, after the property is charged, the amendments is in effect the Instituting of a new action, which also will be barred. Fishall v. Evans, 193 N. C. 660, 137 S. E. 865.

Correction of Names as to the Parties Defendant.—Where a mistake has been made in designating the parties defendant to the action it is within the discretionary power of the superior court to allow the plaintiff to correct the mistake, buy the process and proceedings in order to give it effectual jurisdiction, the court had discretionary power to permit the officer to testify that in fact the summons was served on the proper party. Page v. McDonald, 159 N. C. 38, 97 S. E. 642.

Discharging Misjoinder Parties.—Where there has been a misjoinder of parties as well as causes of action, it is that the discretion of the court to allow an amendment to correct the verdict or adverse decision, to permit the withdrawal of one of the parties, the leaving the action to proceed singly as to the remaining cause and to allow a proper amendment of the pleadings as to the remaining cause. Fishall v. Evans, 193 N. C. 660, 137 S. E. 865. See "Introducing New Cause of Action, Defense or Relief."
As to the proper determination of the matters in controversy, the proceeding is conducted by consent into an administration suit, and petition is precluded by the agreement from objecting to an order requiring her to be made a party in her own right and, if she account for certain money paid to her individually or as the widow of the deceased, the agreement not constituting the proceeding a controversy without action in which the authority of the court is involved, is not limited. Ely v. Mathews, 218 N. C. 171, 10 S. E. 52 (2d) 619.

Making Trustee Party.—Where money is borrowed to pay off a prior mortgage and the lender takes another mortgage as security for that sum borrowed, the judgment is declared invalid for improper acknowledgment, and the lender brings action to foreclose unless the first mortgage is in the due course of proceedings after the deed is signed, the court may make a party by amendment if it should be necessary. Investment Securities Co. v. Gash, 203 N. C. 126, 154 S. E. 628.

Making New Parties upon Appeal to Superior Court.—A connecting line of carriers had been sued in a justice's court for the statutory penalty in failing to transport the shipment within a reasonable time, and appealed to the superior court from an adverse judgment. It was held proper for the court in its discretion to order them to be made a party therein, though the amount involved was less than $200, without the necessity of remanding the case to the inferior court. Sellar v. Florence Mills v. Southern R. Co., 174 N. C. 449, 93 S. E. 952.

Substitution of Plaintiff upon Appeal to Superior Court.—In a suit for a warrant to attach, the judgment as amended did not affect the substantial form, at any time before or after judgment in any action pending before him, either civil or criminal, either in form or in substance. Edney v. Mathews, 218 N. C. 279, 18 S. E. 212.

Under this section the form of the prayer for judgment is not material. It is the facts alleged that determine the nature of the relief to be granted. Bolich v. Prudential Ins. Co., 206 N. C. 144, 150, 173 S. E. 320.

of Causes upon Their Merits.—It is manifest from this and other sections of the Code that the system, in its whole structure and scope, looks to a trial of a cause upon its merits, and discontinuances objections for defects which may be corrected and removed when made in apt time, and will not entertain them after trial and verdict. Halstead v. Mullen, 93 N. C. 232, 235.

The court or judge shall, in every stage of the action, disregard any error or defect in the pleadings or proceedings which do not affect the substantial rights of the adverse party; and no judgment may be reversed or affected by reason of such error or defect. (Rev., s. 509; Code, s. 576; R. C., c. 3, ss. 5, 6; C. C. P., s. 135; C. S. 549.)

Cross Reference.—As to variance, material and immaterial, between pleading and proof, see § 1-168.

VI. AMENDMENTS BEFORE JUSTICES OF THE PEACE.

Setting up Mistake in Deed.—In an action to recover land, the Court may be allowed even on the trial in the superior court, to make it appear that the justice's jurisdiction was not improperly exercised. Cox v. Grisham, 113 N. C. 279, 18 S. E. 212.

VIII. SPECIFIC INSTANCES.

Setting up Mistake in Deed.—In an action to recover land, the Court may be allowed even on the trial in the superior court, to make it appear that the justice's jurisdiction was not improperly exercised. Cox v. Grisham, 113 N. C. 279, 18 S. E. 212.
verified by a proper agent, though by apparent clerical error it was stated in its beginning to have been made by a member of the firm, the power of the trial judge to allow amendments being plenary under the provisions of this section. May Co. v. Menzies Shoe Co., 186 N. C. 144, 119 S. E. 272.

Defective Return of Process—Defect in Name.—A defective or informal return of process will be cured after judgment, Crawford v. Bank, 61 N. C. 185; it will also be a defect in the name of a defendant in the summons. Clawson v. Wolfe, 77 N. C. 100.

Mistake in Name.—Names are used to designate persons, and therefore the identity is certain a variance in the name is immaterial, and hence will be disregarded. Patterson v. Walton, 119 N. C. 500, 26 S. E. 43.

By the Supreme Court.—The Supreme Court will disregard proper defects in the pleadings or proceedings in the Superior Court, which are immaterial and where no substantial rights of the appellant will be injuriously affected thereby. Ricks v. Brooks, 127 N. C. 204, 125 S. E. 207.

The interpretation put upon a similar section in the courts of New York is that such defects as would be remediable by amendment that does not change substantially the claim or defense, will not sustain an application to dismiss the action. Loundsbury v. Purdy, 18 N. Y. S. 515. Halstead v. Mullen, 93 N. C. 252, 255.

§ 1-166. Supplemental pleadings.—The plaintiff or defendant respectively may be allowed on motion to make a supplemental complaint, answer or reply, alleging facts material to the case occurring after, or of which the party was ignorant when his former pleading was filed. Either party may set up by a supplemental pleading, the judgment or decree of any court of competent jurisdiction, rendered since the commencement of an action, determining all or any part of the matter in issue between the parties and the affidavit of the party or his attorney certifying that the matters to him are ascertained, there seems to be no necessity for supplemental pleading. Hughes v. Hodges, 94 N. C. 56. When a nonsuit has been entered, it is too late to file a supplemental answer containing a counterclaim, Sybron Pump etc., Co. v. Rocky Mount Ice Co., 125 N. C. 83, 34 S. E. 198.

Defect of Title Raised by Plea Puis Darrein.—When a plaintiff cannot recover upon the title accruing after the commencement of an action to recover land, its title will be permitted by an amendment to his answer in the nature of a plea since last continuance to plead defects in the plaintiff's title, or matter validating his own, which accrued since the action began. Taylor v. Goob, 110 N. C. 397, 15 S. E. 2.

§ 1-167. Supplemental pleadings.—The plaintiff or defendant respectively may be allowed on motion to make a supplemental complaint, answer or reply, alleging facts material to the case occurring after, or of which the party was ignorant when his former pleading was filed. Either party may set up by a supplemental pleading, the judgment or decree of any court of competent jurisdiction, rendered since the commencement of an action, determining all or any part of the matter in issue between the parties and the affidavit of the party or his attorney certifying that the matters to him are ascertained, there seems to be no necessity for supplemental pleading. Hughes v. Hodges, 94 N. C. 56. When a nonsuit has been entered, it is too late to file a supplemental answer containing a counterclaim, Sybron Pump etc., Co. v. Rocky Mount Ice Co., 125 N. C. 83, 34 S. E. 198.

Defect of Title Raised by Plea Puis Darrein.—When a plaintiff cannot recover upon the title accruing after the commencement of an action to recover land, its title will be permitted by an amendment to his answer in the nature of a plea since last continuance to plead defects in the plaintiff's title, or matter validating his own, which accrued since the action began. Taylor v. Goob, 110 N. C. 397, 15 S. E. 2.

§ 1-168. Supplemental complaint or answer is required from new parties.—When a supplemental complaint or answer is required from new parties only when the previous record of the cause does not show how they are connected with the controversy or interested in its result; but where the death of the original party or his successor in interest occurs, the parties to him are ascertained, there seems to be no necessity for supplemental pleading. Hughes v. Hodges, 94 N. C. 56. When a nonsuit has been entered, it is too late to file a supplemental answer containing a counterclaim, Sybron Pump etc., Co. v. Rocky Mount Ice Co., 125 N. C. 83, 34 S. E. 198.

Defect of Title Raised by Plea Puis Darrein.—When a plaintiff cannot recover upon the title accruing after the commencement of an action to recover land, its title will be permitted by an amendment to his answer in the nature of a plea since last continuance to plead defects in the plaintiff's title, or matter validating his own, which accrued since the action began. Taylor v. Goob, 110 N. C. 397, 15 S. E. 2.

§ 1-166. Variance, material and immaterial.—1. No variance between the allegation in a pleading and the proof shall be deemed material, unless it has actually misled the adverse party to his prejudice in maintaining his action upon the merits. Whenever it is alleged that a party has been so misled, that fact and in what respect he has been misled must be proved to the satisfaction of the court; and thereafter the judge may order the pleading to be amended upon such terms as shall be just.

2. Where the variance is not material as herein provided, the judge may direct the fact to be found according to the evidence, or may order an immediate amendment without costs. (Rev., ss. 515, 516; Code, ss. 269, 270; C. C. P., ss. 128, 129; C. S. 552.)

Cross Reference.—As to error or defect in pleadings or proceedings which does not affect substantial rights, see § 1-169.

Editor's Note.—Under this section two situations may present themselves: (1) If the variance is not material, the court may direct the facts to be found according to the evidence; (2) If the variance is material and the adverse party has been taken by surprise or been misled, the court may allow an amendment upon such terms as may be just. Deligny v. Tate Furniture Co., 170 N. C. 189, 86 S. E. 980; Brown v. Morris, 83 N. C. 252, 256; Wills v. Branch, 94 N. C. 142, 146.

In construing the provision of the Ohio Code it is said: To constitute a variance between the allegations and the proof, the proof must wholly or partly fail to connect the facts drawn by the pleadings, 27 O. S. 159, 268.

Difference of the Old and New Rule on Variations.—The only observable difference between the old and the new rule is that a variance, so slight and unimportant that the adverse party cannot have been misled by it, is deemed immaterial. If an order is given to amend without terms, or will consider the pleading as if amended, and permit evidence to be given under it. And even in the case of a material variance, so substantial that the adverse party has been taken by surprise or been misled, the court, under the Code system does not avoid the necessity that the proof must correspond with the allegation, for proof without allegation is as unavailing as allegation without proof; and where the differences between the allegations and the proof are so slight, if the proofs have an apparent relation to and connection with the allegations, the court will allow an amendment, though upon terms. But where the proof establishes a case wholly different from the one alleged and inconsistent therewith, then no amendment is permitted, but the cause of action must fail. Carpenter v. Huffsteller, 87 N. C. 273, 278.

Uniformity of Allegata et Probata Not Wholly Dispersed.—The uniformity of pleadings under the Code system does not avoid the necessity that the proof must correspond with the allegation, for proof without allegation is as unavailing as allegation without proof; and where the differences between the allegations and the proof are so slight, if the proofs have an apparent relation to and connection with the allegations, the court will allow an amendment, though upon terms. But where the proof establishes a case wholly different from the one alleged and inconsistent therewith, then no amendment is permitted, but the cause of action must fail. Carpenter v. Huffsteller, 87 N. C. 273, 278.

The chief purpose of pleading is to enable the parties to litigate their rights intelligently and fairly and prevent shifts and undue advantage. It is a well-settled rule that there must be a variance of allegations. The rule that the court should not receive evidence that is not pertinent in some aspect of materiality is inapplicable, nor should the court hear evidence to prove a cause of action not alleged. McKee v. Lineberger, 69 N. C. 217; McLaurin v. Cronly, 90 N. C. 58; Brinton v. Daniels, 93 N. C. 781; Greer v. Herren, 93 N. C. 497; 6 S. E. 227; Faulk v. Thornton, 108 N. C. 314, 330, 12 S. E. 998.

Evidence Not Rejected unless Party Misled.—Even though there may have been a variance with the allegations and the evidence adduced, the evidence should not be rejected unless the variance will mislead the other party to his prejudice. Mode v. Penland, 93 N. C. 292, 293, 295; Moore v. Bailey, 93 N. C. 352, 355.

Accordingly it is held that where a railroad company is sued by a passenger for a wrongfully ejection from its train alleged to have been at a certain one of its stations, and upon the admission of the parties that a railroad company is not in the vicinity to a certain other of its stations, the variation will not be deemed material. Edwards v. Southern R. Co., 162 N. C. 146, 162 S. E. 219.

Leave to Amend in Case of Substantial Variance.—Where there is a substantial variance between the allegations of the pleading and the proof, the proper procedure is to ask leave to amend the pleading to conform to the proof, which will be allowed without cost and it cannot be maintained that the judge should disregard evidence contrary to the pleadings or neglect evidence contrary to the pleadings and evidence contrary to the pleadings and to variance according to the proof irrespective of the allegations of the pleading. Haughton v. Newberry, 69 N. C. 456, 459.

Cross Reference.—To render the pleading a variance where there is a variance between the allegations of the pleadings and the proof, when prejudicial and misleading, etc., should be taken in apt time. Patterson v. Champion Lumber Co., 175 N. C. 94 S. E. 149, 150.

Defendant Must Pursue Remedy Prescribed.—In the case of a variance between the allegations of the complaint and the proof upon the trial, the defendant must pursue the remedy prescribed in this section. In accord with the liberal practice of construction, will be deemed material. Simmons v. Roper Lumber Co., 174 N. C. 220, 221, 93 S. E. 726. See also, Whichard v. Lipe, 211 N. C. 51, 19 S. E. 720, 721, 129 A. L. 1147 (dis. opn.).

The adverse party must allege that he was misled, and must prove that fact "to the satisfaction of the court," and must prove that the variance was such as to mislead the other party. The sole object is that the case shall be tried and determined upon its merits. Wright v. Teutonia Ins. Co., 138 N. C. 488, 496, 51 S. E. 55.

Allegations of time and place are not in general material, and a variance thereof by proof is not such as to mislead the other party. Where the adverse party claims that the variance is such as to mislead the other party, the court will disregard the variance. Pegram v. Stolts, 67 N. C. 144, 147.

Examples of Immaterial Variances.—In an action against a railroad company for injuries sustained, the plaintiff alleged that at the time of the injury he was employed by the defendant to replace the derailed car on the track, and that he first connected the rod with the car and then with the rail, and he was permitted to enter the railroad tracks and the track was in a "near-by" point, and telephoned to A, by the defendant's agent there, and there is nothing to indicate that the defendant was misled, or was unprepared to meet the evidence introduced, or was thereby prejudiced. Held, the variance between the allegation and the proof was neither material nor fatal. Brown v. Western Union Tel. Co., 119 N. C. 593, 109 S. E. 509.

Where the answer averred a mutual understanding between the intestate and feme defendant, that an adequate compensation should be provided in the former's will, "to the amount of $50.00, less $20.00". By the intestate, held to be an immaterial one which should be disregarded. Lilly v. Baker, 89 N. C. 151, 522.

Where a plaintiff, in his complaint, alleged and set out a case in trover, and the proof showed that it should have been in the nature of an assumpsit for money had and received, it was held, that the plaintiff was entitled to recover, notwithstanding the variance. Oates, etc., Co. v. Krall, 67 N. C. 336.

In an action for the recovery of the possession of personal property where the proof revealed that the defendant did not have the possession of such property, though he had converted it, the complaint may be so amended as to change the relief sought from that for the possession of the property to that for the recovery of the value thereof, since the defendant will not be misled thereby. Anderson v. Newberry, 69 N. C. 456; Whichard v. Lipe, 211 N. C. 51.

§ 1-169. Total failure of proof.—Where the allegation of the cause of action or defense to which the proof is directed is improved, not in some particular or particulars only, but in its entire scope and meaning, it is not deemed a case of variance, but a failure of proof. (Rev., s. 517; Code, s. 397; C. C. P., s. 223; C. S. 553.)
No Amendment Where Proofs Wholly Different from Allegations.—No amendment of pleadings will be allowed where the cause of action proved is wholly different from that alleged. Grant v. Burgwyn, 88 N. C. 95.

Amendment of Pleadings.—A plaintiff may sue upon one contract and prove another essentially different contract. This is a failure of proof. 10 Barb. 321; 2 N. Y. 300.

No Issue Joined Where Proofs Wholly Different from Allegations.—No amendment of pleadings will be allowed where the cause of action proved is wholly different from that alleged. Grant v. Burgwyn, 88 N. C. 95.

Time of Filing Answer.—An answer is a variance only, but if there is total want of any allegation in the pleading of the subject matter as a cause of action or ground of defense, it is a failure of proof. 10 Barb. 321; 2 N. Y. 300.

Mere Variance Not Waiver of Jury Trial.—A variance is mere variance; it is a failure of proof. 10 Barb. 321; 2 N. Y. 300.

Issue Joined.—The evidence in support of the special relief sought is upon one contract and prove another essentially different contract. This is a more than a mere variance; it is a failure of proof. But if he sues for specific relief, to which he is not entitled, he may be adjudged to have that relief to which he is in law entitled. Wright v. Teutonia Ins. Co., 138 N. C. 488, 490, 50 S. E. 553.

No Amendment Where Proofs Wholly Different from Allegations.—No amendment of pleadings will be allowed where the cause of action proved is wholly different from that alleged. Grant v. Burgwyn, 88 N. C. 95.

Amendment of Pleadings.—A plaintiff may sue upon one contract and prove another essentially different contract. This is a failure of proof. 10 Barb. 321; 2 N. Y. 300.

Issue Joined.—The evidence in support of the special relief sought is upon one contract and prove another essentially different contract. This is a more than a mere variance; it is a failure of proof. But if he sues for specific relief, to which he is not entitled, he may be adjudged to have that relief to which he is in law entitled. Wright v. Teutonia Ins. Co., 138 N. C. 488, 490, 50 S. E. 553.

SUBCHAPTER VII. TRIAL AND ITS INCIDENTS.

Art. 19. Trial.

§ 1-170. Defined.—A trial is the judicial examination of the issues between the parties, whether they be issues of law or of fact. (Rev. s. 526; Code, s. 397; C. C. P., s. 223; C. S. 533.)

Summary Proceedings.—In construing the section of the Old Testament which mentions the trial of the controversy, the court says in Railway v. Thurstin, 44 O. S. 523, 528 says: "It seems clear that the issues here referred to are those which arise upon the pleadings and do not relate to controversies involved in summary proceedings like the one now under consideration, although the pendency of the action in which it is involved depends upon the disposition of it by the court."

Impaneling a Jury is embraced in a "trial" 42 Ohio State Reports.

Quoted in Dunn v. Tew, 219 N. C. 286, 13 S. E. (2d) 536.

§ 1-171. Joinder of issue and trial.—Pleadings shall be made up and issues joined before the clerk. After pleadings have been so made up and issues joined, the clerk shall forthwith transmit the original papers in the cause to the court at term for trial upon the issues, when the case shall be proceeded with according to the course and practice of the court, and on appeal with the same procedure as is now in force. (1919, c. 304, s. 8; Ex. Sess. 1921, c. 92, s. 13; C. S. 555.)

Editor's Note.—This section was re-enacted without change by the Public Laws of 1921, Extra Session.

§ 1-172. How issue tried.—An issue of law must be tried by the judge or court, unless it is referred. An issue of fact must be tried by the jury, unless a trial by jury is waived or a reference ordered. Every other issue is triable by the court, or judge, who, however, may order the whole issue, or any specific question of fact involved therein, to be tried by a jury, or may refer it. (Rev. s. 527; Code, ss. 398, 399; C. C. P., ss. 224, 225; C. S. 556.)

Cross References.—As to reference: by consent of parties, see § 1-188; by direction of the court, see § 1-189. As to waiver of jury trial, see § 1-184 and the North Carolina Constitution, Article IV, section 13.

Plaintiff Entitled to Jury Trial.—In all actions under the C. C. P., where legal rights are involved and issues of fact are joined by the pleadings, the plaintiff is entitled to a trial by jury, and cannot be deprived of this right except by his consent. Andrews v. Pritchett, 66 N. C. 357; approving Hatchell v. Odom, 19 N. C. 302.

Methods of Waiving Jury Trial.—There are three modes of waiving a jury trial, but not the questions of fact which arise when, by consent of the parties, the judge is substituted for the jury. Lee v. Pearce, 68 N. C. 76, 89, overruling Goldbeck v. Cates, 67 N. C. 522.

What the evidence would have been had a jury been impaneled could not be anticipated by the court, and the court was without jurisdiction under this section to try the issues of fact which arose when the pleadings were filed. Hensley Corp. v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 206 N. C. 122, 124, 176 S. E. 265.

Judge May Disregard Agreement to Waive Jury Trial.—The trial judge, in the exercise of a sound discretion, may disregard the agreement of the parties that a jury trial be held in the county from which it was issued; and those issues which are merely evidential, and not the questions of fact which arise when, by consent of the parties, the judge is substituted for the jury. Lee v. Pearce, 68 N. C. 76, 89, overruling Goldbeck v. Cates, 67 N. C. 522.

Equitable Element Cannot Defer Right to Jury Trial.—A party has no right to a trial to a jury, although the evidence and the facts are such as would support the case for a jury at the same trial, when the pleadings were filed. Hensley Corp. v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 206 N. C. 122, 124, 176 S. E. 265.

Submission of Evidential Issues Error.—The only issues proper to be submitted to the jury are those raised by the constitutive facts alleged on the one side and denied on the other side, and not those issues which are merely evidential, and when found by the jury, only furnish facts which would be evidence to prove the main issue, should never be submitted. Fatton v. Western, etc., R. Co., 96 N. C. 455, 456, 1 S. E. 663.

Jury Impaneled but No Evidence Adduced.—On the trial of a civil action when the jury were sworn and impaneled and issues framed, but no evidence adduced on either side, and the jury were discharged without verdict it was held, (1) That the parties stood at issue on the pleadings just as they were before the jury were sworn. (2) That in such case the judge has no right to pass upon the issues, except in accordance with section 1-184. Chasten v. Odom, 19 N. C. 302.

Appeal.—Where the parties waive a jury trial and agree to trial by the court, the court's findings of fact from the evidence are binding and conclusive upon appeal. Berry v. Payne, 219 N. C. 171, 13 S. E. (2d) 247.

§ 1-173. Issues of fact.—Every issue of fact joined on the pleadings, and inquiry of damages ordered to be tried by a jury, must be tried at the term of the court next ensuing the joinder of issue or order for inquiry, if the issue was joined or order made more than ten days before such term, but if not, they may be tried at the second term after the joiner or order. (Rev. s. 528; Code, s. 400; C. C. P., s. 228; 1923, c. 54; 1925, c. 5; C. S. 557.)

Editor's Note.—Prior to the passage of the Act of 1923 the time specified by this section was thirty days before the term. The same act substituted the word "may" for "must" in the next to the last line of the section.

Acts 1923, c. 5 did not affect the wording of the section but corrected an error in the amending act of 1923.

Power of Judge to Compel Party to Proceed.—The judge is without authority to compel a party to a action to proceed with the trial of a causa transferred to the civil issue docket when the issue has been joined within ten days from the commencement of the term. Calhoon v. Everett, 187 N. C. 369, 121 S. E. 612.

Amended Answer Raising Additional Issue.—Where, at trial term, an amended answer to an amended complaint raises additional issues of fact, the defendant is entitled to a continuance. Dobson v. Southern Ry. Co., 129 N. C. 289, 40 S. E. 42.

Issue of Insanity.—In an indictment for murder, there being no allegation that the prisoner was insane at the time of the trial, no issue as to insanity need be submitted. State v. Spivey, 132 N. C. 989, 43 S. E. 475.

Cited in Denmark v. Atlantic, etc., R. Co., 107 N. C. 182, 8 S. E. 742; Simms v. Sampson, 221 N. C. 379, 380, 20 S. E. (2d) 554.

§ 1-174. Issues of fact before the clerk.—All issues of fact joined before the clerk shall be transferred to the superior court for trial at the next succeeding term, and in case of such transfer neither party is required to give an undertaking for costs. (Rev., s. 529; C. S. 557.)

Denial of Good Faith in Condemnation Proceedings.—When in proceedings by a railroad company to condemn lands, the answer denies the intention of the petitioners in good faith to construct the proposed railroad, the pleadings, in substantial part, present an issue of fact to be transferred to and tried by the Superior Court in term, under the provisions of this section. Madison County R. Co. v. Gahagan, 161 N. C. 190, 76 S. E. 696.

Review of Clerk's Decisions.—The rulings or decisions of the clerks of the court must, as stated in this section, be transferred to trial for trial to the next succeeding term of the Superior Court, if determinative issues arise on the pleadings in any action or suit where litigants are present; and if there be issues of law or material questions of fact decided by the clerk, they may be reviewed by the judge of the term to which the cause is transferred, and in passing upon these questions of fact, the court may act on the evidence already received, or if this is not satisfactory, it may ordinarily require the production of other evidence in order to enable it to determine the questions of fact presented. Mills v. McDaniel, 161 N. C. 112, 76 S. E. 551.

§ 1-175. Continuance before term; affidavit.—A party to an action may apply to the court in which it is pending, or to the judge thereof, by affidavit, thirty days before the trial term, and after three days notice in writing to the adverse party, to have the trial continued to a term subsequent to that in which it is regularly triable. The court or judge may continue the trial as asked for, on such terms as may be just, if satisfied—

1. That the applicant has used due diligence to have his case ready for trial.

2. That by reason of circumstances beyond his control, which he must set forth, he cannot have a fair trial at the regular trial term. If the application is made by reason of the expected absence of a witness, it must state the name and residence of the witness, the facts expected to be proved by him, the grounds for the expectation of his nonattendance, and that the applicant expects to procure his evidence at or before some named subsequent term. The applicant must in all cases pay the costs of the application. (Rev., s. 550; Code, 401; C. C. P., s. 227; C. S. 559.)

Continuance Lies in Discretion of Judge.—The matter of granting or refusing a continuance of a cause for trial rests in the discretion of the trial judge, and the exercise of such discretion is not reviewable on appeal, in the absence of gross abuse. Piedmont Wagon Company v. Bostic, 114 N. C. 758, 24 S. E. 525.

Continuance Not Favorable by Law.—Continuances are not favored by the law. The immortal provisions of the Magna Charta is that justice shall neither be delayed nor denied, and these are coupled together, for a delay of justice is often a denial of justice. Piedmont Wagon Company v. Bostic, 114 N. C. 759, 24 S. E. 525.

Who May Make Affidavit.—In the United States Supreme Court it has been held that an affidavit for a continuance must be made by one interested in the suit or action. See Hunter v. Kennedy, 1 Dall. 509, 1 L. Ed. 46.

§ 1-176. Continuance during term.—The judge at any time during the term at which an action is triable may continue the trial on the application of either party, and on such terms as shall be just, if satisfied—

1. That the applicant has used due diligence to be ready for trial.

2. That he cannot have a fair trial at that term, by reason of circumstances stated, and if the ground of application is the nonattendance of a witness, the affidavit must contain the particulars required by subdivision two of § 1-175. Unless the applicant also sets forth in his affidavit that the facts upon which his application is grounded occurred or came to his knowledge too late to allow him to apply as prescribed in § 1-175, and that his application is made as soon as it reasonably could be after the knowledge of those facts, the continuance shall not be granted, except on the payment of the costs of the continuance at the cost for the term for the application for the term. (Rev., s. 531; Code, s. 402; C. C. P., s. 228; R. C., c. 31, s. 57; C. S. 560.)

The court cannot lay down a general rule for the continuance of causes; but must, on the circumstances of the case, take care that injustice is not done, either by precipitate trials or wanton delays, and where there appears to be a fair ground for the postponement, the case will be continued. Symes v. Irvine, 2 Dall. 383, 384, 1 L. Ed. 425.

The absence of a party or witness must be accounted for before a cause will be continued on these grounds. Crites v. Lanier, 1 N. C. 109.

Attorney Son of Trial Judge.—The fact that an attorney in an action is the son of the trial judge is not a ground for continuance. Allison v. So. R. Co., 129 N. C. 336, 40 S. E. 91.

Sickness of members of a defendant's family may be a ground on which the judge, in his discretion, may grant a continuance. Skinner v. Byers, 75 S. C. 207.

Insanity of Defendant.—Where defendant becomes insane pending an action against him for divorce, the action should be continued if there is any hope of recovery. Stratfrod v. Strongford, 92 N. C. 418.

To Prove Bad Character of Witnesses.—Where defendant has asked for a continuance under this section without complying with the requirements and the purpose given for seeking the continuance, the second deposition as to the bad character of the State's witnesses when defendant has already been permitted to cross-examine the witnesses and the attorney has been allowed to procure evidence for criminal offenses, refusal of the trial judge to grant the continuance is no abuse of discretion. State v. Banks, 204 N. C. 233, 167 S. E. 558.

Amendment of Pleadings.—Refusal of a continuance on a defendant filing on the day of trial, an answer substantially Like that of the other defendants, and raising no additional issues as an act of discretion. Slingluff v. Hall, 124 N. C. 397, 32 S. E. 729.

But where an amendment is such as to cause surprise, it is cause for continuance, Martin v. Bank, 131 N. C. 121, 43 S. E. 106. Thus, in McEvoy v. E. H. Johnson, etc., obop, 219 S. N. C. 709, 712, 715 (1927), by order of the court, the allowance of an amendment alleging fraud, if such as to take defendant by surprise, entitles him to a continuance. Dockery v. Fairbanks Morse Co., 172 N. C. 529, 90 S. E. 501. See also Bostic v. Southern Railway Co., 129 N. C. 289, 49 S. E. 42, under § 1-173. Likewise if an allegation of time, when placed on the civil issue docket, or, where there is a misjoinder of parties, the court in its discretion can do the same. Pretzfelder, etc. v. Merchants' Ins. Co., 116 N. C. 491, 496, 21 S. E. 525.

§ 1-177. Counter affidavits as to continuance.—It is competent in all civil cases only for the opposing side to controvert the allegations of fact in applications for continuance, and to offer counter affidavits to that end. The judge shall not allow the continuance unless satisfied, after thorough examination of the evidence aforesaid, that the ends of justice demand it. (Rev., s. 532; 1885, c. 394; C. S. 561.)

In General.—As the two preceding sections, in the judgment of the legislature, were not sufficient to protect against the delay of the party by issuance of a writ, this does not necessarily follow, nor compel the conclusion that the failure of the party, who, in his opinion, would be allowed by the court when, in its opinion, justice will thereby be promoted. (Rev., s. 535; Code, s. 413; C. C. P., s. 229; C. S. 562.)

§ 1-178. Order of business.—The criminal calendar must be first disposed of, unless, by consent of counsel, or for reasons satisfactory to the judge, particular criminal actions may be deferred. The issue on the civil calendar must be disposed of in the following order, unless, for the convenience of parties or the dispatch of business, the court otherwise directs:

1. Issues of fact to be tried by a jury.
2. Issues of fact to be tried by the court.
3. Issues of law.

(Rev., s. 533; Code, s. 403; C. C. P., s. 229; C. S. 562.)

Cross Reference.—As to civil cases at criminal terms, see § 7-72.

Generally.—While placing a case on the civil issue docket usually indicates a trial by jury of issues of fact, this does not necessarily follow, nor compel the conclusion that the legislature so intended, as there may be, and frequently are, issues of law and questions of fact, triable by the judge, which properly find their way to this docket. State v. Williams, 289 N. C. 709, 217 S. E. (2d) 464.

§ 1-179. Separate trials.—A separate trial between a plaintiff and any of several defendants may be allowed by the court when, in its opinion, justice will thereby be promoted. (Rev., s. 534; Code, s. 407; C. C. P., s. 230; C. S. 563.)

Severance Not a Matter of Right.—It is within the sound discretion of the court, on motion of the defendants, or any of them, to allow severance and a separate trial as to each defendant if thereby justice will be promoted. However it was error for the court to hold that the defendants had a right to demand it, and a judgment rendered upon such demand will be reversed. Bryan v. Spivey, 106 N. C. 95, 11 S. E. 570.

Division Allowed in Case of Misjoinder.—Where there is a misjoinder of causes of action, the court may allow the action to be divided, or, where there is a misjoinder of parties, the court in its discretion can do the same. Bostic v. Piedmont Wagon Co., 118 N. C. 758, 759, 24 S. E. 525.

Result of Order of Severance.—An order of severance is equivalent to dividing the action into several suits, with all the usual provisions for costs, etc., incident thereto. Bryan v. Spivey, 106 N. C. 95, 11 S. E. 570.

§ 1-180. Judge to explain law, but give no opinion on facts.—No judge, in giving a charge to the petit jury, either in a civil or criminal action, shall give an opinion whether a fact is fully or sufficiently proven, that being the true office and province of the jury; but he shall state in a plain and correct manner the evidence given in the case and declare and explain the law arising thereon.

An expression of an opinion by the judge as to an essential fact involved in an issue is condemned by this section.

Evans v. Moore, 193 N. C. 489, 135 S. E. 468.

The provisions of Equal Dignity.—This section proscribes the judge in charging the jury from expressing an opinion as to the weight and credibility of the evidence, and this opinion as to the weight and credibility of the evidence, and prescribes that he declare and explain the law arising in the course of the trial. See the opinion in Wilson, 1909 N. C. 819, 130 S. E. 834; Ryals v. Carolina

A Substantial Right of Litigants.—This section gives the parties to the action a substantial right. The jury has the sole and exclusive function of finding the facts from the evidence, and it is not its duty to pronounce an opinion on the evidence. State v. Wiley, 199 N. C. 489, 100 S. E. 361; State v. Pugh, 183 N. C. 800, 111 S. E. 849.

Evidence Must Be Stated Impartially.—It has been accepted as the proper construction and meaning of the act of 1899, that it is not the function of the judge to express an opinion on the weight of determines whether the party whose right to a fair trial has been impaired is entitled to a new trial. State v. Bryant, 189 N. C. 112, 126 S. E. 107, 108; State v.

Material and Immaterial.—The probable effect or determines whether the party whose right to a fair trial has future conduct, are not to be considered as

What Remarks Presumed Correct.—The remarks of
A Venire de NoVo for Violation. — Under this section the trial judge is restricted to stating plainly and correctly the evidence and declaring and explaining the law arising therefrom, and must be particular of opinion. If in any manner in presenting or arraying the evidence indicates his opinion upon the facts, or conclusion of facts, a venire de novo will be ordered. Withers v. Lane, 144 N. C. 184, 59 S. E. 557.

Exceptions after Verdict. — The fact that exception was not entered at the time a remark was uttered is immaterial. The statute is mandatory, and all expressions of opinion by the judge during the trial are prohibited, unless accompanied by the admission of evidence made incompetent by statute, may be excepted to after the verdict. State v. Bryant, 189 N. C. 120, 130 S. E. 107, 108 S. E. 393.

Record on Appeal Must Show Error. — If an appeal is taken on the ground that the judge, by his manner or emphasis intimated an opinion upon the facts, the record must show the occasion, its nature, and what was said. Davis v. Blevins, 125 N. C. 433, 34 S. E. 541. Citing State v. Wilson, 76 N. C. 120; State v. Jones, 67 N. C. 285.

An assignment of error to a charge shall state wherein the charge fails to comply with this section. Switzerland Co. v. North Carolina State Highway, etc., Comm., 216 N. C. 432, 100 S. E. 645; 33 S. E. 325.

Cited in Hunsinger v. Carolina, etc., Ry., 194 N. C. 679, 681, 140 S. E. 508; State v. Newsome, 195 N. C. 552, 143 S. E. 318; State v. Brown, 100 N. C. 519, 6 S. E. 568. In that case it was held that an objection made after verdict was too late.

In General. — This section has been interpreted to mean that no judge, in giving a charge to the jury, or at any time during the trial, shall intimate whether a fact is or is not true, or whether a fact is or is not of sufficient weight to affect the verdict. Sample v. Spencer, 222 N. C. 580, 24 S. E. (2d) 221.

What Constitutes an Opinion. — 1. A correct charge of the court upon the evidence in a case will not be held for error as containing an expression of opinion prohibited by this section, when nothing of this nature appears from a careful perusal of the charge. State v. Sawyer, 198 N. C. 459, 152 S. E. 153; Brown v. Postal Telegraph-Cable Co., 198 S. E. 309; Wilson v. Inter-Ocean Cas. Co., 210 N. C. 585, 188 S. E. 102; State v. Jones, 211 N. C. 462, 190 S. E. 720; State v. Johnson, 211 N. C. 462, 190 S. E. 720; State v. John-} Possibility of Unfair Inference Insufficient. — It is not sufficient to show, that what the judge did or said might have had an unfair influence, or that his words, critically interpreted, would make it reasonably certain that it would have had an unfair influence, or that his words, critically interpreted, were such as to suggest the weight of evidence or to use language which, fairly interpreted, would make it reasonably certain that it would have had an unfair influence.

Direct Language Not Necessary to Constitute Error. — Where an intimation as to whether any fact is sufficiently proved is reasonably inferred from the manner of the judge in discussing or for language of the evidence, or in his presentation thereof or his form of expression, or by the tone or general tenor of the trial, giving advantage to the appellee thereby, such as to impair the credit which might otherwise have been accorded to the fact, and made essential to his case, there will be error. State v. Hart, 186 N. C. 582, 120 S. E. 345; State v. Rhinehart, 209 N. C. 150, 153, 183 S. E. 398.

Insufficient. — It is not sufficient to show, that what the judge did or said might have had an unfair influence, or that his words, critically interpreted, would make it reasonably certain that it would have had an unfair influence; but it must appear, with ordinary certainty, that his manner of arraying and presenting the evidence was unfair, and likely to be prejudicial, or that his language, when critically interpreted, was likely to convey to the jury his opinion on the weight of the evidence. State v. Jones, 67 N. C. 285.

Section Applies to Issues. — The facts on which this section restrains the judge from expressing an opinion to the jury are those respecting which the parties take issue in the cause, upon which the jury was called to find a verdict in the present instance, that is, those respecting which the evidence, as found by the jury, has had an unfair influence, or that his words, critically interpreted, would make it reasonably certain that it would have had an unfair influence. See Speed v. Perry, 167 N. C. 122, 83 S. E. 176; Sample v. Spencer, 222 N. C. 580, 24 S. E. (2d) 221.

Remarks Made in Mere Pleasantry. — Remarks made in mere pleasantry by the trial judge in the presence of the jury will not be held for error as containing an expression of opinion forbidden by statute, when it could not reasonably have had any appreciable effect upon the jury, and could only have been regarded by them in the manner in which it was uttered. State v. Jones, 181 N. C. 549, 154 S. E. 337.

Remarks That Fact Is "Sufficiently Proved."—The mortuary tables (see § 8-46), are but evidence of life expectancy, to be taken in connection with other evidence of health, constitution, and habits, and an instruction that intestate's life expectancy was so many years, based upon the tables, violates this rule and the rule against an expression of opinion by the court as to whether a fact is sufficiently proven. Chase v. Atlantic Greyhound Lines, 210 N. C. 93, 190 S. E. 330.

Charge Predicated on Jury Findings. — Where the trial judge, in charging the jury, predicated his instructions upon the facts, and the jury may find the facts to be, it is not an expression of opinion forbidden by this section. Ivie v. King, 167 N. C. 41, 43 S. E. 339.

Positive or Negative Testimony. — It is not error, as a general proposition, for a judge to say that positive testimony is entitled to more weight than negative. Henderson v. Crouse, 53 N. C. 633.

Assumption of Truth of Fact. — An instruction which assumes the truth of controverted facts is erroneous, as invading the province of the jury. Bradley v. Ohio River, etc., Co., 126 N. C. 735, 36 S. E. 181; Pigford v. Norfolk, etc., R. Co., 160 N. C. 87, 75 S. E. 860.

Assumption of Non-Existence of Facts. — A new trial will be awarded, where the charge of the court assumed the non-existence of controverted facts, and left the decision of such questions from the jury. Powell v. Wilmington, etc., R. Co., 68 N. C. 359.

Uncontroverted Facts. — An instruction is not erroneous in assuming the existence of uncontroverted facts. Crampton v. Ivie, 124 N. C. 391, 32 S. E. 968.

Uncontroverted Evidence. — Where the defense is based on the uncontroverted testimony of a witness, it is proper for the court to address the jury in such manner as to indicate that they believe such witness. Love v. Gregg, 117 N. C. 467, 21 S. E. 332; Purifoy v. Richmond, etc., R. Co., 108 N. C. 129, 11 S. E. 714; Chemical Co. v. Johnson, 101 N. C. 223, 7 S. E. 770, 775.

However, this principle does not apply where the evidence, if true, is susceptible of more than one deduction. Armour Packing Co. v. Matsuyama, 170 N. C. 206, 185 S. E. 568.
Instruction That There Is No Evidence.—If any testimony that the state calls upon which the court may not intimate an opinon, the evidence for the State and for the defendant, is not been in some way prejudiced by the remarks or conduct of ordinary certainty that the rights of either party have Hypothetical Statements by Judge. — Merely hypothetical instructions are erroneous, and should not be indulged in, as they proceed on an assumption of facts. State v.

Wilson v. Holley, 66 N. C. 408.

Remarks to Counsel. — Remarks of the judge, made, not as distinctly to another and a different contract, it is not error to charge that, if the jury find that plaintiff has stated the contract correctly, they will find for him, but, Barringer v. Burns, 108 N. C. 779, 30 S. E. 2; Newsome v.

phrases, "the evidence tends to show," and "evidence tend-

Credibility of Witnesses. — Where there is a disputed fact depending upon the testimony of witnesses, the credibility of the witnesses is always a question for the jury, and this is so though the testimony may be all on one side. In this case, the judge may charge the jury, if they find the facts to be as testified by the wittestifies distinctly and without qualification, the phrases, "the evidence tends to show," and "evidence tend-in, as they proceed on an assumption of facts. State v.

remark of the judge, made, not in his charge but to counsel during the introduction of the evidence, are not a ground for a new trial, unless it reasonable appears that a party is prejudiced in the minds of the jury by such remarks. Williams v. Crosby Lumber Co., 118 N. C. 928, 24 S. E. 800.

Remarks Concerning the Plaintiff's Motions for New Trial. — Where the judge, in giving the motion for new trial, stated that the state has a number of witnesses and only defendant was called, he had not understood the summons which was very material, and that upon plaintiff's request the deficiency in the record was supplied, it was held that the remarks of the court did not constitute a reversible error, as opinion upon the deficiency inferred by this section, but were within the court's sound discretion in discharging its duty to see to it that each side has a fair and impartial trial. Miller v. Greenwood, 218 N. C. 146, 197 S. E. (2d) 79S.

Amount of Recovery. — Mathematical computations in a ing on the weight of evidence, to use in instructions the a question it is within the discretion of the trial judge to relieve the witness from answering substantially the same question; and his statement before the jury that the witness had already fully answered, is not an expression of his opinion as to the credibility of the witness. State v. Mansell, 192 N. C. 20, 133 S. E. 190.

Referring to Eyewitnesses.—Upon the trial under an indictment for assault and larceny, where some of the State's witnesses were eye-witnesses, and some were not, the court and the defendant had admitted he was present at the time, an instruction as to the first class "now that is the testing of their stories," followed by correct instructions as to the second class "a reasonable doubt," was held to be an expression of opinion by the trial judge forbidden by this section. State v. Boswell, 195 N. C. 496, 142 S. E. 583.

Statute Held Not Objectionable.—The statement that the evidence was too equivocal to corrobore witness, and failure to strike it out, was not expression of opinion on weight of evidence. State v. Starnes, 215 N. C. 539, 11 S. E. (2d) 553.

c. Remarks Concerning Weight and Credibility

Instruction Based on Law.—Where there is evidence of fraud and undue influence in the making of a will, and it appears that it was by a woman who derived the property from her first husband, of which marriage there was one child, and of the property by the children of her second marriage, an instruction to the jury to the effect that the court was evidently stating the contentions of the parties, and that the court was familiar with the handwriting of deceased, and had compared the handwriting of the purported will, and that they were familiar with the handwriting of deceased, and had compared the handwriting of the purported will, and had given it as their opinion that the paper writing and handwriting were not fraudulent, and that the handwriting of the purported will, which may be considered with the other evidence in the case as evidence upon the question of mental capacity and of undue influence, is not objectionable as an expression of opinion by the judge. In re Will of Hardie, 197 N. C. 383, 148 S. E. 660.

Statement That Phases of Case Were Admitted.—A trial judge in an action for damages who stated to the jury that there was no evidence apparently admitted by the defendant's counsel, and if not, to be passed upon by the jury, did not violate this section. Means v. Carolina Cent. R. Co., 126 N. C. 424, 35 S. E. 813.

Statement Concerning Admission.—It is not a violation of this section for the trial judge to tell the jury that the evidence that the defendant had admitted execution of a bond, if believed by the jury to be true, is entitled to more weight than the opinion of experts to the genuineness of the signature, and that such opinions should be received with caution. Buxly v. Buxton, 92 N. C. 479.

Reference to Testimony of One Witness.—Where the court was evidently stating the contentions of the parties as to the force of the evidence taken as a whole, his reference to the testimony of one witness is not improper as tending to restrict the consideration of the jury to it alone. Wheeler v. Cole, 164 N. C. 378, 80 S. E. 241.

Charge Based on Uncontradicted Testimony.—A charge by the court for the jury to return a verdict of guilt if they believed or found, as true the testimony of an uncontradicted witness, is not an expression of opinion on the weight and credibility of the evidence. State v. Moore, 192 N. C. 269, 137 S. E. 135.

Refusal on Evidence of Character of Defendant.—An instruction that "there was evidence tending to show that he (the defendant) is a man of bad character," said while stating the contentions of the state, cannot be held for an expression of opinion by the court on the weight or credibility of the testimony in violation of this section. State v. Sims, 213 N. C. 590, 197 S. E. 176.

Statement That Evidence Satisfies "Beyond Reasonable Doubt."—In a criminal case in which the court told the jury "the evidence tends to show a homicide committed in the perpetration of a robbery," and that the State has offered evidence "sufficient, beyond a reasonable doubt, and should satisfy you, gentlemen, beyond a reasonable doubt," etc.: Held, the charge will not be held for error on defendant's exception on the ground that it contained an expression of the opinion by the court on the weight of the evidence, appearing that the court, prior to this instruction, went into detail in citing cavators' testimony. In re Williams' Will, 215 N. C. 259, 1 S. E. (2d) 857.

d. Miscellaneous Remarks.

Where Defense Not Applicable to Issue.—Where the testimony of all the officers of a bank conversant with the facts that the bank was an indorsee for value and a holder in due course of the note sued on was not contradicted, and the other facts not solely dependent upon the inquiring note, the court properly charged that if the jury believed the evidence, the verdict should be for the bank. First Nat. Bank v. Griffin, 153 N. C. 72, 68 S. E. 919.

Statement Concerning Admission of Document and a Tip Book Are Same Under the Statute.—"That if you find this defendant guilty" will not be held for error as an expression of opinion on the evidence when the phrase is immediately followed by "if not, to be passed upon by the defendant's counsel, and did not convey an opinion of anything that the State offered in evidence that the defendant had admitted execution of a will, which may be considered with the other evidence in the case as evidence upon the question of mental capacity and of undue influence, is not objectionable as an expression of opinion by the judge. In re Williams' Will, 215 N. C. 259, 1 S. E. (2d) 857.

A reference in the charge to "these gambling devices" will not be held prejudicial as an expression of opinion on the evidence when it is apparent that the charge referred to the devices mentioned in the warrant and not to those about which evidence had been taken. Id.

Comment Upon Admission of Confession in Evidence.—The comment of the trial court upon the admission of defendant's confession in evidence that the court had held the confession competent because it appeared that it was taken without hope of reward or without extortion or fear, after it had been given only as an expression of opinion by the court, is no more than stating that the confession had been admitted in evidence and the reasons for admitting it, and will not be held for error as an expression of opinion by the court upon this section. State v. Webster, 218 N. C. 692, 12 S. E. (2d) 287.

Statement to Jury.—Where the jury has returned for a verdict, an instruction to the jury that, in the event of a breach of warranty, a suggestion by the judge, that a good test would be for each party to select a man and a woman, and swear to his summary that the prosecutrix had said that she did not know a certain woman, to which the judge said, "his summary that the prosecutrix had said that she did not know a certain woman," followed by correct instructions as to the second class "a reasonable doubt," etc.: Held, the charge will not be held for error on defendant's exception on the ground that it contained an expression of the opinion by the court on the weight of the evidence when it is apparent that the charge referred to the devices mentioned in the warrant and not to those about which evidence had been taken. Id.

Remark Concerning Recall of Witness.—A remark by a judge, when he permitted a witness to be recalled, and asked a question to impeach his credibility, that he if he had known the counsel intended to ask that question he would not have allowed the witness to be recalled, is not an expression of opinion about which evidence had been taken. Id.

Question to Counsel.—Where the judge asked defendant's counsel in the hearing of the jury, if he thought that an objection to certain proof in the case "would be fair," it was held that the remark of the judge was no violation of this section. State v. Pugh, 183 N. C. 800, 111 S. E. 849.

Remark Concerning Recall of Witness.—A remark by a judge, when he permitted a witness to be recalled, and asked a question to impeach his credibility, that he if he had known the counsel intended to ask that question he would not have allowed the witness to be recalled, is not an expression of opinion about which evidence had been taken. Id.

Response to Request of Counsel.—Where the prisoner's counsel called attention to the judge's failure to state in his summary that the prosecutrix had said that she did not know a certain woman, to which the judge said, "Yes, I believe that she did say that," it was held, that such remarks were a sufficient response to the request of the prisoner's counsel, and did not convey an opinion of anything that the State offered in evidence that the defendant had admitted execution of a will, which may be considered with the other evidence in the case as evidence upon the question of mental capacity and of undue influence, is not objectionable as an expression of opinion by the judge. In re Williams' Will, 215 N. C. 259, 1 S. E. (2d) 857.

Suggestion of Method of Settlement.—In an action for the purchase price of a horse, defended upon the ground of a breach of warranty, a suggestion by the judge, that a good test would be for each party to select a man and a woman. drive the horse sufficiently to see what his condition was, as not an expression of opinion. Long v. Byrd, 169 N. C. 698, 87 S. E. 279.

Matters Subject to Mathematical Calculation.—Where the answers to the issues as to the amounts recoverable, in case the defendants were found liable to the plaintiffs, is a matter of mathematical calculation, peremptory instructions in regard thereto do not constitute prejudicial or reversible error under this section. State v. Morgan, 136 N. C. 628, 629, 48 S. E. 670.

2. Remarks Held Error.
a. Remarks Concerning a Party to the Trial.
Character of Accused. — It was held to be error for a judge to tell the jury that,"in plain case, a good character would not help the prisoner; but in a doubtful case, he would have all the benefit of the good character." Such an expression in the charge as to the defendant's character, unless it is shown by the evidence to be a bad character, is an expression of opinion by the trial judge upon the evidence that the defendant had a good character. Where the evidence is admissible in regard to the defendant's character, the expression of opinion by the trial judge upon the evidence that the defendant had a good character, amounts to an expression of an opinion upon the facts. Faulkner v. King, 159 S. E. 427.

Ordinary Care. — An instruction that, where the defendant was at fault in causing an injury, it was his duty to use such ordinary care as a reasonable man would have exercised under the circumstances, was error. Sanders v. Atlantic Commerce Co, 160 N. C. 526, 76 S. E. 553.

Comment on Absence of Defendants. — Where the trial judge recited the benefits conferred by corporate action against a telegraph company it is error for the court to instruct the jury that the evidence rebuts it and overrules the defendants' exceptive assignments of error thereto must be sustained. State v. Winckler, 210 N. C. 555, 187 S. E. 792.

Motive. — A charge, "While it is permissible to show a motive as a circumstance to be considered by the jury, it is not necessary. All the State has to do is to satisfy the jury beyond a reasonable doubt that the defendant did the act," was held to be error under this section. State v. Jenkins, 85 N. C. 544.

Identification of Defendant. — Where the only evidence connecting the defendant with operating a still was a coat found in the accused's room, but did not prove them to be the defendant's, the charge was held to be an expression of opinion forbidden by this section. Greene v. Newsome, 184 N. C. 77, 113 S. E. 569.

 Corporations. — An instruction, that a party, interested in getting one claim in return, and intimated that he would not permit the money to be used in any way which the judge computes error. State v. Sparks, 184 N. C. 745, 114 S. E. 755.

b. Remarks Concerning Witnesses.
Remarks Having Effect of Impeaching Witnesses. — Where questions propounded by the court have the effect of impeaching witnesses they are in violation of this section and defendants' exceptive assignments of error thereto must be sustained. State v. Winckler, 210 N. C. 555, 187 S. E. 792.

Remark That Witness was "Admirably Lucid." — The expression of the opinion of the court as to the "admirably lucid" testimony of a medical expert witness constitutes reversible error. State v. Horne, 171 N. C. 787, 88 S. E. 432.

Comments on Witnesses. — The expression, "This witness has the weakest voice or the shortest memory of any witness I ever saw"—is clearly susceptible of the construction that the testimony of the witness was at least qualified by the opinion of the court on his character and credit," was held to be error. State v. Bryant, 189 N. C. 112, 126 S. E. 107, 109.

Questioning Non-Resident As to Professional Ethics. — In an action to recover damages for personal injury, where a release from liability was set up, it is an inadmissible error for the judge, during the trial and in the presence and hearing of the jury, to stop the testimony of the defendant's witness, a nonresident attorney who had procured the release, and question her as to professional ethics involved and the standard in his own State, of such conduct; which reflected on the witness. Morris v. Kramer Bros Co, 183 N. C. 755, 161 S. E. 593.

Witness Included in Same Indictment. — Where there is a severance on the trial of defendants, and another party charged in the bill testifies in behalf of the accused, it is an indication of the opinion of the court on the facts that the evidence of that witness should be considered by the jury to charge that the very fact that the witness is included in the same indictment will impair his testimony, and that the same should not be placed on the same plane or footing with that of a witness of undoubted character who is disinterested. State v. Jenkins, 85 N. C. 544.

Interest of Witness.—It is error to charge the jury that they are bound to believe a witness whose story is impeached in his pocket by the evidence of the state was circumstantial. State v. Jenkins, 85 N. C. 544.

Matters Subject to Mathematical Calculation—Where the testimony of two witnesses contradicted each other, the court erred in instructing the jury that they are bound to believe a witness who is unimpeached and uncontradicted. "Though he tells a credible story, his connection with the parties may shake the jury's confidence." Bonner v. Hodges, 111 N. C. 66, 15 S. E. 881.

Identification of Witness. — Where the evidence be uncontradicted and even though the fact of guilt may be inferred from defendant's own testimony, it is an error for the court to refer in its charge to the "proverbial slowness of the messenger boy." Meadows v. Western Union Tel. Co., 182, N. C. 187, 109 S. E. 381.

Remark That Circumstance Was a "Strong Badge of Fraud." — Where the evidence was uncontradicted and even though the fact of fraud may be inferred from defendant's own testimony, the inference that there was fraud is sufficient ground for a new trial. Sneed v. Creath, 8 N. C. 309.

c. Remarks Concerning Weight and Credibility of Testimony.
Remarks That Circumstances Was a "Strong Badge of Fraud." — Where a creditor postponed taking judgment because the debtor alleged that he was making arrangements to borrow the money, but before the expiration of the extended time the defendant made an assignment, pre- ferre other creditors, an instruction that the circumstance was a strong badge of fraud was held to be error. Bonner v. Hodges, 111 N. C. 66, 15 S. E. 881.

Instruction As to Former Marriage. — In an indictment for bigamy an instruction that the weight of the evidence was that there had been no first marriage, is a violation of this section. State v. Parker, 106 N. C. 711, 11 S. E. 517.

Determination of Preponderance. — A request in a civil action that, "when the minds of the court are in doubt, they must find for the defendant," is error. Willis v. Atlantic, etc., R. Co., 122 N. C. 905, 29 S. E. 941.

Instruction That Evidence Rebuts a Prima Facie Case. — When the plaintiff makes out a prima facie case, then to instruct the jury that the evidence rebuts it and overcomes it, is to invade the province of the jury and violates this section. Sherrill v. Western Union Tel. Co, 116 N. C. 655, 657, 21 S. E. 231.

Instruction That Guilt Is Established. —This section prohibits the court in its charge to the jury from expressing any opinion as to the weight and credibility of the evidence, and, defendants' exceptive assignments of error for the court to charge the jury in effect that the fact of guilt is established by the evidence, even though the evidence be contradicted and even though the guilt may be inferred from defendant's own testimony, since the credibility of the evidence is in the exclusive provin the judge to designate a single witness who is contradicted by other witnesses, and to instruct the jury that if they believe the testimony of such witness, then the prisoner is guilty. State v. Rogers, 93 N. C. 532.

50. — Contradictory Evidence. — Where evidence was conflicting, an instruction, "if the jury believe the evidence, the answer to the first issue should be no," was a misstatement of this section. Rickett v. Southern R. Co., 133 N. C. 565, 69 S. E. 497; Leak v. Covington, 99 N. C. 559, 6 S. E. 241.

Where the case is tried upon special issues, an instruction that plaintiffs are not entitled to recover if the jury believe the evidence is improper. Jones v. Railway, 144 N. C. 61, 69 S. E. 827; Baker v. Brem, 103 N. C. 72, 9 S. E. 659. See Cauley v. Dunn, 167 N. C. 32, 83 S. E. 16.

Degree of Crime. — Although the defendant in a trial for murder introduced no evidence, and all the evidence for the State tended to show only murder in the first degree, it was error to instruct the jury that if they believed the evidence they should find the defendant guilty of murder in the first degree. State v. Gaddbery, 117 N. C. 811, 23 S. E. 479.

When No Presumption at Law. — A trial judge cannot say to the jury that any fact proved or admitted, that does not in law raise a presumption of the truth of the allegation of fraud, is a strong circumstance tending to prove it. National Bank v. Glimer, 116 N. C. 694, 703, 22 S. E. 2.

Arguing Law to Jury. — For the judge to argue that a case cited by counsel for plaintiff, and relied on to establish his position, was an authority directly against that position, and that counsel for defendant had admitted that the case was to be held to be error. Perry v. Perry, 144 N. C. 328, 57 S. E. 1063.

Trial for Attempted Rape. — On a trial of an indictment for an assault with intent to commit rape, where there was evidence that the defendant had been found on the six year old child, while on her back with her clothes up, it was held to be error for the court in its charge to the jury to remark with emphasis, "Why was she on her back, and why was he on her?" State v. Dancy, 78 N. C. 437.

Insurance. — A requested charge that, if insured was twelve years of age at the time of the accident, and the association was not liable on the policy, "as the same was procured under a misrepresentation of the age" of the insured, was properly refused as an expression of opinion not authorized. Hargrove v. Royal Ben. Soc., 165 N. C. 263, 30 S. E. 1068.

Regarding Duty of Railroad to Build Culvert. — It was held error in a trial judge's instruction to the jury that it was the duty of a railroad company to build a culvert over a certain ravine, and it was also held error to express the opinion that the said branch, regarding which there was conflicting evidence, was not a natural water-course. Fleming v. Wilmington, etc., R. Co., 115 N. C. 676, 20 S. E. 714.

Effect of Easement on Adjoining Land. — In a proceeding to condemn the easement for a telephone line, the respondent's land for a high voltage transmission line, where the court in ruling upon the admissibility of evidence stated that the steel towers on the land and the power lines running over the land did not affect the value of the land, the court on the side of the easement, it was held that the remarks of the court constituted a determination, as a matter of law, of an issue of fact within the province of the jury in violation of this section. National Flyway, etc., Co. v. Carriger, 220 N. C. 57, 16 S. E. (2d) 453.

Validity of Lien. — In an action involving the validity of a lien on certain crops, an instruction that the lien was void because, while the crops resided in another, involves an expression of opinion as to the facts of the case. Weisenfield v. McLean, 96 N. C. 248, 24 S. E. 56.

Bill and Notes. — In an action on a note, where defendant testified that he signed as surety, with the knowledge of the payee, and the payee testified to the contrary, it was error to instruct the jury that if they believed the evidence they should find that defendant knew that defendant signed as a surety. Harris v. Carrington, 115 N. C.

157, 20 S. E. 78.

II. Admissibility of Evidence. — In an action for damages plaintiff testified that the property destroyed was worth a specified sum, and defendant introduced as a witness the tax lister who testified that plaintiff stated that a much lower valuation was the property destroyed. McMillan v. Street, 119 N. C. 332, and modified the rule laid down in State v.

Boyle, 104 N. C. 800, 10 S. E. 696, in a series of adjudications that followed it, it was not intended that the jury that the court had the uncontroverted evidence of plaintiff as to the value of the property destroyed rendered Emry v. Raleigh, etc., R. Co., 109 N. C. 589, 14 S.

Inconsistent or Contradictory Instructions. — An incon-sidered charge by the trial court may be the result of errors as to the law applicable to their findings upon an issue is

Blanton Grocery Co. v. Taylor, 162 N. C. 307, 78 S. E. 276;

Erroneous Instruction Not Cured by Correct Instruction.

— An error in giving an erroneous instruction is not cured by subsequently correctly stating the law. State v.

McDowell, 129 N. C. 523, 39 S. E. 961.

The use of the words “you want to find” in charging the jury to the elements of the offense charged, construing the charge as a whole, merely placed the burden on the jury to prove the charge, and not the burden of an expression of opinion or a direction or intimation that the jury should so find. State v. Smith, 221 N. C. 400, 30 S.

E. (2d) 500.

The use of the words “the state has offered evidence which tends to show” in a charge to the jury does not constitute an expression of opinion in violation of this sec-

Weight of Defendant’s Testimony. — The testimony of defendant if accepted as true, by the jury, is given the same credibility as that of a disinterested witness, and a charge to the effect, after instructing the jury to consider the evidence submitted by either party. Hunt v. Eure, 189 N.

C. 160, 77 S. E. 706.

When Charge Contains a “Powerful Summing up.” — In the trial judge in his general charge gives "every reasonable conclusion that may be drawn from the facts of the case. Blackwell v. Lynchburg, etc., Railroad,

111 N. C. 151, 16 S. E. 13, 17 L. R. A. 729, 32 Am. St. Rep:

1657.

Where Charge Favorable to Appellant. — The failure of the court to comply with this section will not be sufficient ground for reversal, where no prejudice is shown and it appears the jury could not have been misled thereby. Evans

v. Howell, 84 N. C. 461.

§ 1-180 GENERAL CONSIDERATIONS OF THE CHARGE. — The chief object contemplated in the charge of the judge is to explain the law of the case, to point out the essentials to be proved on the theory that the jury has a right to find as true all the facts of the case. Blackwell v. Lynchburg, etc., Railroad,

111 N. C. 151, 16 S. E. 13, 17 L. R. A. 729, 32 Am. St. Rep:

1657.

Defendants can not complain that the court embodied in the charge, as an abstract proposition, what is known as the “rule of the prudent man” in response to its requests, where, in specific instructions, the court correctly applies the law of negligence to the particular facts of the case.

Blackwell v. Lynchburg, etc., Railroad, 111 N. C. 151, 16 S.

Where Charge Favorable to Appellant. — The failure of the court to comply with this section will not be sufficient ground for a new trial, where the case on appeal shows that the charge of the court presents the case in the most favorable light for the defendant. State v. Frittsch, 106 N.

C. 607, 668, 11 S. E. 357.

Requests for Instructions Must Be Timely. — A party desiring more specific instructions than those given in the general charge must make his request in a timely manner, or his failure to do so will be taken as acquiescence in the charge, made after verdict, is too late. Simmons v. Davenport, 140 N. C. 407, 53 S. E. 225. See also State v. Brady, 115 N. C. 822, 12 S. E. 738.

Exemption Must Be Specific. — An exception to the charge on the ground that it failed to explain and apply the law to the evidence as required by this section may be disregarded as a broadside exception. State v. Webster, 218 N. C. 692, 12 S. E. (2d) 272.

An exception to the charge on the ground that it did not explain the evidence and did not declare and explain the law arising from the evidence as required by the indictment for the reasons given by the defendant, is too general and cannot be sustained. Jackson v. Ayden Lumber Co., 158 N. C. 377, 74 S. E. 350.

Rule Stated. — It is held under the requirements of this section, to be the duty of the judge in charging the jury, to segregate the material facts of the case, array the facts on both sides, and apply the principles of law to each, so that the jury may decide the case according to the credibility of the witnesses and the weight of the evidence. State v. Rogers, 84 N. C. 511; citing State v. Dunlop, 63 N. C. 417; State v. Jones, 87 N. C. 547; Guy v. Council, 213 N. C. 654, 197 S. E. 121.

He is required to state clearly and distinctly the particular issues arising on the evidence, and on which the jury are to decide, and to give them the law applicable to the facts as the jury might find them from the evidence, and is not a simple or self-explanatory principle of law, but every state of the facts which upon the evidence they may reasonably find to be a true one. State v. Matthews, 78 N. C. 533, 537.

And in criminal cases this section requires the court to give to the jury such instructions as will enable them to understand the nature of the crime and properly determine each material fact upon which may depend the guilt or innocence of the accused. State v. Fulford, 124 N. C. 798, 891, 32 S. E. 377.

An instruction meets the requirements of this section when it clearly applies the law to the evidence introduced upon the trial and gives to the jury the law applicable to each, so that the jury may decide the case according to the credibility of the witnesses and the weight of the evidence. State v. Graham, 194 N. C. 459, 140 S. E. 35.

The duty of the court in its charge to the jury explains the law applicable and gives the contentions of the parties, but fails to instruct the jury as to the application of the law to the substantial features of the case, the charge is insufficient to meet the requirements of this section and a new trial will be awarded. Com'r of Banks v. Florence Mills, 202 N. C. 509, 163 S. E. 598.

In both criminal and civil causes under this section, a judgment may be obtained by the party who shall have secured every substantial and essential feature of the case embraced within the issue and arising on the evidence, and this without any special prayer for instructions to that effect. He should state clearly and distinctly the particular issues arising on the evidence in such a way as to make plain to the jury what law is to be applied, and explain the law arising thereon, and a failure to do so, when properly presented, shall be held for error. Mebane Contracting Co. v. Alamance County, 211 N. C. 213, 226, 189 S. E. 873, citing State v. Merrick, 171 N. C. 788, 135 S. E. 658.

Where evidence is in the record defendant is entitled to judgment except where the evidence is insufficient to meet the requirements of this section and a new trial will be awarded. State v. Anderson, 222 N. C. 148, 151, 22 S. E. (2d) 272.

Where the charge of the court fails to point out the distinction between the counts in the indictment, and leaves the jury with the impression that both counts are valid when there is only one question to be answered constitutes reversible error under this section. State v. Ray, 237 N. C. 642, 178 S. E. 224.

Scope of Instruction. — The court should instruct the jury on all the issues presented by the pleadings and the evidence. Patterson v. North Carolina Lumber Co., 145 N. C. 42, 58 S. E. 437.

Where the effect of a charge of the court to the jury is to eliminate from the case an instruction upon a principle of law, and the charge was taken by the respective parties as to the prominent and controlling features which make for the ascertainment of the facts. State v. Wilcox, 213 N. C. 654, 140 S. E. 26.

Same—Failure to Call Judge's Attention to Error. — Where there are several contentions or claims for damages, and the charge was correctly given by the court to the former, and for the reasons given by the defendant, it is too general and cannot be sustained. Jackson v. Ayden Lumber Co., 158 N. C. 377, 74 S. E. 350.

Where the judge in his charge to the jury should present every substantive feature of the case, and as to subordinate features, the prisoner should have aptly tendered prayers for instructions to that effect. He should have the law arising thereon explained and applied by the judge in his charge to the jury should present every substantive feature of the case, and as to subordinate features, the prisoner should have aptly tendered prayers for instructions. State v. Reynolds, 87 N. C. 544; State v. Grady, 83 N. C. 643.

Instructions to the jury should be addressed to specific issues, but, where the issues are simple, and they do not carry the jury with the impression that both counts are valid when there is only one question to be answered constitutes reversible error. Craig v. Stewart, 163 N. C. 531, 79 S. E. 1100. See State v. Cox, 128 S. E. 471: Parker v. Thomas, 192 N. C. 798, 803, 136 S. E. 118. See Fowler v. Champion Fibre Co., 191 N. C. 42, 141 S. E. 390.

Duty of Judge in Civil and Criminal Cases.—In civil cases this section requires the court to state the contentions of the parties to the jury, and the practice has grown up in our courts as a helpful and accepted procedure, and a failure to do so, where the issues are simple, and they do not carry the jury with the impression that both counts are valid when there is only one question to be answered constitutes reversible error. Duckworth v. Orr, 126 N. C. 674, 677, 59 S. E. 1048; for error upon exception. Rocky Mount Sav., etc., Co. v. Aetna Life Ins. Co., 204 N. C. 282, 167 S. E. 854.

An objection to the charge on the ground that the court did not call the attention of the jury to the contentions of the state, amounting to an expression of opinion on the facts, held untenable, since the charge construed as a whole stated only contentions legitimately arising on the evidence, and the court properly instructed thereon. State v. Wilcox, 213 N. C. 665, 197 S. E. 156.

Explanation of Subordinate Features of Case.— The charge of the court may not fail to comply with the provisions of this section if it sufficiently pointed out and explained the substantive features of the case, and as to subordinate features the prisoner should have aptly tendered prayers for instructions. State v. Ellis, 230 N. C. 963, 167 S. E. 67.

In the absence of a special request for instructions, the failure of the court to declare and explain the law as to a subordinate feature of the case will not be held for error. State v. Puckett, 211 N. C. 66, 189 S. E. 183.

Duty Cannot Be Omitted. — The duty of the court to call the attention of the respective prisoners to the issues arising on the evidence, and to explain the law as to those issues, but, where the issues are simple, and they do not carry the jury with the impression that both counts are valid when there is only one question to be answered constitutes reversible error. Robinson v. Standard Transp. Co., 214 N. C. 489, 199 S. E. 725.

The trial judge in an action against a corporate and an individual defendant the trial court charged the jury as though the corporate defendant was the sole party sued, it was held that the individual defendant is entitled to a new trial for failure of the charge to declare and explain the law arising upon the evidence as it related individually to him and involving his contentions.

The trial judge should instruct the jury "that if the jury find from the evidence" and not "if they believe the evidence." State v. Green, 134 N. C. 660, 65 S. E. 761; State v. Seaboard Airline R., 145 N. C. 570, 58 S. E. 264.

But where instructions consisting of several clauses contain at the beginning the words, "If the jury find from the evidence," it is not necessary to repeat such words in subsequent clauses. Williams v. Parker, 121 N. C. 373, 37 S. E. 234. Rehearing in 128 N. C. 113, 38 S. E. 289.

2. Statement of Evidence.

In General. — All that is required of a charge by this section is that the essential evidence offered at the trial shall be stated in a plain and correct manner, together with an explanation of the law arising thereon. State v. Fleming, 202 N. C. 512, 514, 163 S. E. 453; In re Beale, 202 N. C. 618, 163 S. E. 549.

By virtue of this section where the charge of a trial court fails to state the evidence of a party relative to a material point and which directly bears on the amount recoverable, a new trial will be awarded. Myers v. Foreman, 202 N. C. 246, 162 S. E. 549.

Slight inaccuracies in the statement of the evidence in the instructions to the jury will not be held reversible error when not called to the attention of the judge at the time and the charge substantially complies with this section. State v. Sterling, 200 N. C. 18, 19, 156 S. E. 96.

Restricting Evidence Inadmissible.—This is performed by simply repeating the testimony in the order in which it was delivered, or in a general statement of the principles of law applicable to the case; but it requires the judge to clearly and distinctly the particular issues arising in the controversy; to eliminate the controverted facts; to arrange the testimony in its bearing on their different aspects, and to instruct the jury with regard to the applicable thereto in such manner as will enable them to see and comprehend the matters which are essential to an intelligent and impartial verdict. State v. Boyle, 104 N. C. 130, 15 S. E. 696.

Possibilities of Fact.—There are several possibilities of fact, different from the inference tended to be drawn from the evidence offered, a judge is not required to note such possibilities in its instructions, but merely to bring it to the attention of the jury. State v. Clara, 53 N. C. 23.

Restricting Evidence to Purpose for Which Admissible.—It is error to admit evidence, competent for one purpose only, to be considered and acted on generally by the jury, without instructions restricting it to the special purpose for which it is admissible. Burton v. Wilkinson, etc., R. Co., 84 N. C. 193. See also, State v. Ballard, 79 N. C. 63.

Recapitulation Unnecessary.—The judge is not bound to recapitulate all the evidence in his charge to the jury; it is sufficient for him to direct the attention of the jury to the specific questions they have to try, and to explain the applicable thereto so as to make it plain and correct. Boon v. Murphy, 108 N. C. 187, 12 S. E. 1032; State v. Gould, 90 N. C. 658.

But the rule stated in Bank v. Rochamora, 193 N. C. 1, at p. 8, 136 S. E. 259, that "where the instruction is proper so far as it goes, a party desiring a more specific instruction must require it," is applied to subordinate elaboration, but requires that the court apply the law to the evidence in the case and instruct the jury as to the circumstances presented by the evidence under which the issue should be answered in the affirmative or the negative. State v. Jordan, 194 N. C. 450, 140 S. E. 71; Murphy v. Power Co., 196 N. C. 484, 146 S. E. 204. See Graham v. State, 194 N. C. 459, 140 S. E. 71. The failure of the court to instruct the jury, in conformity with this section, is reversible error. Ryals v. Carolina Coach Co., 197 N. C. 12, 15, 147 S. E. 170.

Second Recapitulation Not Required.—The trial judge is not required to recapitulate the testimony a second time, although one of the parties may request it to be done. State v. Jordan, 193 N. C. 409, 136 S. E. 630.

Judge May Omit Testimony.—Unless there be some reason why the judge should remark particularly on the testimony of a witness, he may with propriety, decline to comply with a request to do so. Findly v. Ray, 50 N. C. 125.

Agreement of Counsel.—The failure of a judge to recite the testimony in his charge to the jury is not error, where it was agreed by the counsel on both sides that the testimony should be omitted. McCall v. Lumber Co., 196 N. C. 597, 130 S. E. 724; State v. Johnson, 208 N. C. 249, 180 S. E. 91.

Effect of a "Slip of the Tongue."—A mere inadvertent "slip of the tongue" in stating the evidence, will not be held as error in the absence of a request by the party injury or prejudice. The judge is not bound to have called attention thereto and had it corrected then and there. State v. Sinodis, 189 N. C. 565, 127 S. E. 601.

Weight and Credibility.—Where the trial judge gives the weight and credibility of the evidence. Williams v. Eastern Carolina Coach Co., 197 N. C. 12, 15, 147 S. E. 170.

Slight inaccuracies in the statement of the evidence in the instructions to the jury will not be held reversible error when not called to the attention of the judge at the time and the charge substantially complies with this section. State v. O'Neal, 187 N. C. 22, 24, 120 S. E. 817; Blake v. Smith, 163 N. C. 74, 79 S. E. 956; Bowen v. Schnibben, 184 N. C. 248, 191 S. E. 585.

As was said in State v. Matthews, 78 N. C. 523, 537, the requirements of this section are not met by a general statement of legal principles which bear more or less directly but not sufficiently to certain issues made by the evidence. Williams v. Eastern Carolina Coach Co., 197 N. C. 12, 15, 147 S. E. 435.

This is the duty of the trial court without request for special instructions to declare and explain the law arising upon the evidence in the case, which duty is not discharged if the judge simply states the applicable principles of law in a general manner, but requires that the court apply the law to the evidence in the case and instruct the jury as to the circumstances presented by the evidence under which the issue should be answered in the affirmative or the negative. Smith v. Kappas, 219 N. C. 850, 15 S. E. (2d) 375.

Trial by jury vouchsafed in the constitution contemplate a verdict of the jury rendered upon the evidence guided by correct instructions as to the law applicable thereto, and not substantive, material and essential features of the charge. McCa v. Lumber Co., 196 N. C. 597, 602, 146 S. E. 204. The duty of the court in charging the jury to do so without request for special instructions, and the failure of the judge to explain the law arising upon the evidence constitutes reversible error. Ryan v. Carolina Contracting Co., 219 N. C. 479, 14, 15 S. E. (2d) 315.

When a judge has charged generally on the essential features of the case, if a litigant desires that some subordinate elaboration should be given, the evidence of such testimony shall be more fully explained, he should call the attention of the court to it. Acme Mfg. Co. v. McPhail, 179 N. C. 383, 388, 103 S. E. 611; Riverview Milling Co. v. State Highway Comm., 190 N. C. 620, 139 S. E. 724; State v. Johnson, 193 N. C. 701, 135 S. E. 19; State v. Jordan, 216 N. C. 356, 3 S. E. (2d) 156.

Where the charge of the court is sufficiently full to meet the requirements of this section, it will not be held for reversible error on defendant's exceptions, it being incumbent on defendant, if he desires more specific instructions, to make a request therefor. By his contents to apply make request therefor. State v. Caudle, 208 N. C. 249, 180 S. E. 91.

To the indictment is that the evidence constitutes reversible error. Ryals v. Carolina Coach Co., 197 N. C. 12, 15, 147 S. E. 170.

If the indictment does not fully charge the offense, and this was read to the jury by the court, then the charge is in compliance with this section, it being the duty of the defendant, if he desires more elaborate instruction, to apply therefor. State v. Gore, 207 N. C. 618, 15 S. E. 209.

Defendant desiring more full or detailed instructions as to any particular phase of evidence or law should request special instructions. State v. Hendricks, 207 N. C. 621, 178 S. E. 557.

The failure of the court to charge the jury as to the law applicable thereto, and nor corroborated in every respect by other evidence, will not be held for error in the absence of a special request, whether such charge should be given being in the sound discretion of the trial court. State v. Reedy, 216 N. C. 627, 5 S. E. (2d) 533.
The failure of the court to instruct the jury that the fact that a defendant did not testify in his own behalf raises no presumption against him, will not be held for error in the absence of a request for instructions, the matter being in the sound discretion of the trial court. Id.

Explanation Must Cover Any Authorized Finding.—It is the duty of the judge to explain and adapt the law to any authorized finding of the jury under a prayer for instructions. Lawson v. Giles, 90 N. C. 374, 375, 379; State v. Jones, 87 N. C. 547.

Law on Facts and Inferences.—It is necessary to state the law on the various phases of the evidence, and on all facts which the jury should find from the evidence, when such facts constitute a part of the basis for the answers to the issues. Wilson v. Wilson, 190 N. C. 819, 821, 130 S. E. 183. Instructions Based on Assumption.—When instructions are asked for upon an assumed state of facts, which there is evidence tending to prove, and thus questions of law are raised which are pertinent to the case, it is the duty of the judge to answer the question so presented, and to instruct the jury distinctly what the law is, if they shall find the assumed state of facts to be true, and so in respect to every state of facts which may be reasonably assumed upon the evidence. State v. Dunlop, 65 N. C. 288.

But where a prayer for instructions assumes certain facts to be true, and the opinion of the judge thereon is not evidence tending to prove them, he ought to say so, and thus not embarrass the jury by the consideration both of the assumed facts and of the questions of law predicated on them. Jones v. Y. & H. R. R., 191 N. C. 289.

Instruction Necessary to Reach Verdict.—Where an instruction upon the law is necessary for the jury to arrive at a verdict upon a material issue, it is the duty of the trial judge to so instruct the jury. Thus, if the judge thereon is not evidence tending to prove them, he ought to say so, and thus not embarrass the jury by the consideration both of the assumed facts and of the questions of law predicated on them. Jacob Stove Works v. Boyd, 191 N. C. 522, 132 S. E. 257.

Substantial Compliance with Request Sufficient.—The trial judge is not required to give special instructions in the precise words asked, even when unobjectionable. A substantial compliance is sufficient. State v. Booker, 123 N. C. 796, 50 S. E. 284.

Instruction as to Statutory Provisions.—In automobile accident cases it is the duty of the court to charge the jury upon the provisions of the Motor Vehicle Law arising upon the evidence and a charge in respect to the provisions of the common law is not sufficient. Barnes v. Teer, 219 N. C. 833, 15 S. E. (2d) 379.

Charge Covering Subordinate Features.—When a judge has instructed on the general and influential facts and generally on the essential features of the case, if a litigant desires that some subordinate feature of the cause or some particular phase of the testimony shall be fully explained, he should supply the requested instruction by prayer for instructions or other proper procedure; but on the substantive features of the case arising upon the evidence, the judge is required to give the instruction concerning the same provisions of the common law as are under different obligations is erroneous. State v. Hardy, 189 N. C. 799, 128 S. E. 152.

Request for Special Instructions.—Where the trial judge has instructed the jury correctly but generally on the essential features of the case, if a litigant desires that some subordinate feature of the cause or some particular phase of the testimony shall be more fully explained, he should supply the requested instruction by prayer for instructions or other proper procedure; but on the substantive features of the case arising upon the evidence, the judge is required to give the instruction concerning the same provisions of the common law as are under different obligations. Bannister v. Hedgespeth, 184 N. C. 114, 113 S. E. 602.

Waiver of Error.—A failure to comply with this section is error which is not waived by failure to request special instructions. Phillips Bros. v. Velvertons, 185 N. C. 314, 172 S. E. 249.

Refusal to Correct Special Request for Instructions.—When a prayer for instructions to the jury is refused, every correct principle applying under the evidence in the case and all of the special prayers, it is not objectionable that the court refused to correct special requests for instructions under § 15-172.

Charge on Degrees of Crime.—Where a person indicted for a crime may be convicted of a lesser degree of the same crime and there is no evidence tending to support the lesser verdict, he is entitled to have the law with respect to the lesser offense submitted to the jury under a correct charge. A statement of the contentions or of certain phases of the evidence not accompanied with the issue of a lesser principle is not a compliance with this section. State v. Hardee, 192 N. C. 533, 535, 135 S. E. 345, citing State v. Dedmon, 199 N. C. 840, 130 S. E. 838; Wilson v. Wilson, 190 N. C. 819, 130 S. E. 834; State v. Williams, 185 N. C. 685, 116 S. E. 735.

If the defendant admits his guilt of murder in the second degree, it is not error for the trial court to act on the assumption, and after fully charging the elements of murder in the first degree, and defining murder in the second degree, to instruct the jury to return a verdict of murder in the second degree if they should fail to find any one of the elements of first degree murder, as defined, beyond a reasonable doubt. State v. Grier, 209 N. C. 398, 183 S. E. 272.

Instruction Should Apply to Facts Adduced.—An instruction which correctly defines and explains negligence and proximate cause, and assigns to the court the application of the law to the facts adduced by the evidence fails to meet the requirements of this section, and a new trial will be awarded on appellant's exception. Smith v. Safe Bus. Co., 216 N. C. 676, 110 S. E. 2d, 125.

A charge defining negligence and proximate cause and stating the contents of the parties and properly placing the burden of proof, but which fails to apply the law to the evidence, which is held to be within the assumption that the jury may find them to be from the evidence, is a submission of the case to the jury, but must not be given even in the absence of a prayer for instructions. Massey v. Marshall Field & Co., 218 N. C. 697, 12 S. E. (2d) 235.

Waiver of Error.—The failure of the court to explain the law arising on the evidence is not error, where the court charged as to law on the facts as shown by the evidence, and mere silence of counsel upon the statement of the court after charging the law arising upon plaintiff's evidence that it would not recaptulate the evidence is not a waiver of the substantial rights conferred by this section. Carruthers v. Atlantic, etc., Co., 215 N. C. 675, 2 S. E. (2d) 878.

Any Substantial Error Is Material.—Any substantial error in the portion of the charge applying the law to the facts of the case is perforce material. Templeton v. Kel- ley, 216 N. C. 497, 5 S. E. (2d) 355.

Point of Charge: Instruct to such extent on Self Defense.—See State v. Thornton, 211 N. C. 413, 190 S. E. 758; State v. Godwin, 211 N. C. 419, 190 S. E. 761; State v. Greer, 218 N. C. 660, 12 S. E. (2d) 238.

Failure to Charge on Second Degree Murder.—See note under § 15-172.

C. Illustrative Cases.

Instructions on Interest of Counsel.—An instruction that "it is the business of counsel to make their side appear the better" is erroneous. State v. Steedle, 189 N. C. 799, 128 S. E. 152.

Failure to Define "Conspiracy."—Where the court charged that the defendant and others had conspired, it was error even if one of the others fired the fatal shot, if it was fired in the execution of their unlawful conspiracy and agreement and the defendant excepted on the ground that...

the court did not define "conspiracy," it was held that the evidence in the case did not justify the giving of the special request for instructions, the term "conspiracy" being used synonymously with "agreement," and the charge being clear and easily understood, and defendant being guilty of no error. It was held that there was no conspiracy, regardless of the existence of a technical conspiracy. State v. Packett, 211 N. C. 66, 189 S. E. 135.

Instruction as to Presumption of Character.—Where the character of a witness had not been impeached either by contradictory evidence or the manner of his cross-examination, it is presumed to be good, and the testimony of other witnesses thereto will be excluded; and where in a criminal action the case has been given to the jury, who return to court with a request for further instruction as to whether a witness's character is considered good until proven bad, the judge's reply that it is presumed to be good until the contrary is shown, is free from error. State v. Pugh, 183 N. C. 800, 111 S. E. 847.

Omission of Necessary Instruction.—Where the defendant, charged with murder, introduced evidence of an alibi which was material to his defense, but the judge in his charge to the jury did not refer to this evidence, it was held to be reversible error. State v. Smith, 163 N. C. 274, 79 S. E. 596.

Charge as Essay.—Though the charge of a judge presiding over a trial for murder is correct as a general essay on homicide, and his propositions taken generally are supported by the authorities, still it is not a full compliance with the mandate of this section and constitutes reversible error. McCracken v. Smathers, 119 N. C. 617, 26 S. E. 157.

Omission in Charge.—Where a charge excluded from consideration important evidence in the case bearing upon the essential inquiry whether defendant had waived, or surrendered, all rights under an agreement, if he had any, and agreed to go back to an original contract, it was erroneous. Aene Mfg. Co. v. McPhail, 179 N. C. 383, 387, 102 S. E. 111.

Instruction as to Subordinate Features.—In the absence of a special request for a further instruction as to whether a witness's character is considered good until proven bad, the judge explained that the degree of care required of a child is not reversible error under this section for the trial judge to have failed to instruct the jury that they should scrutinize the testimony of declarants; that the evidence presented by the plaintiff and the defendant, the same being as to subordinate and not substantive features of the evidence in the case. State v. O'Neal, 187 N. C. 22, 130 S. E. 817.

Prosecution over a Trial for Murder is Correct as a General Essay.—Though the charge of a trial judge was held insufficient in Bradshaw v. Warren, 215 N. C. 442, 2 S. E. (2d) 375.

Duty of Judge in Issue of Contributory Negligence.—When requests for instruction are made by counsel as to the application of the law to the testimony bearing upon an issue involving contributory negligence, it is the duty of the court to give the general definitions of fraud, negligence, mistake, and mistake care. McCracken v. Smathers, 119 N. C. 617, 26 S. E. 157.

Same—Fraud Necessary to Violate Deed.—It is not required to charge the jury with the full definitions of fraud upon which equity will set aside a deed, the subject of the action, if he instructs them correctly and clearly upon such of the principles as are applicable to the issue under the relevant evidence in the case, and the general charge, as so given, is within the intent and meaning of this section. Weeks v. Hedgepeth, 184 N. C. 122, S. E. 17.

Same—Bills and Note.—Where from the pleadings and evidence an issue is raised for the jury to determine whether the holder of a note had elected to sue the original payee instead of the maker, under the provisions of this section, it is the duty of the trial judge to give the general law arising from the evidence. Fisher v. Kennedy, 196 N. C. 64, 146 S. E. 66, distinguishing Bowen v. Schnibben, 184 N. C. 248, 114 S. E. 170.

Negligence in Injury to Passenger.—In an action to recover damages of a bus line where of defendant was the sole proximate cause of the accident, plaintiff's exception to the charge for its failure to submit the question of contributory negligence cannot be sustained. Smith v. Bonney, 215 N. C. 181, 1 S. E. (2d) 37.

Particulars of Duty Required of Automobile Driver.—Where the plaintiff was not walking along the highway at the time of his injury, and not being notified of the collision, the charge that the driver of the car for which injury he seeks to recover damages should not be sustained. Smith v. Buchanan, 215 N. C. 183, 10 S. E. (2d) 371.

Instruction as to Presumption of Character.—Where the judge explained that the degree of care required of a child is not reversible error under this section, it was held that the judge's reply that it is presumed to be good until the contrary is shown, is free from error. State v. Melton, 120 N. C. 591, 597, 26 S. E. 933; State v. Edmonson v. Cox, 121 N. C. 64, 147 S. E. 653.

Instruction as to Contributory Negligence of 8 year old child, held to fully comply with this section, where the judge explained that the degree of care required of a child that he exercised in the circumstances was shown. Leach v. Varley, 211 N. C. 207, 210, 189 S. E. 636.

Concurrent Negligence.—Where the theory of trial in the lower Court was that of defendant was the sole proximate cause of the accident, plaintiff's exception to the charge for its failure to submit the question of contributory negligence cannot be sustained. Smith v. Bonney, 215 N. C. 181, 1 S. E. (2d) 37.

Negligence in Injury to Passenger.—In an action to recover damages of a bus line where defendant was the sole proximate cause of the accident, plaintiff's exception to the charge for its failure to submit the question of contributory negligence cannot be sustained. Smith v. Bonney, 215 N. C. 181, 1 S. E. (2d) 37.

Negligence in Injury to Passenger.—In an action to recover damages of a bus line where defendant was the sole proximate cause of the accident, plaintiff's exception to the charge for its failure to submit the question of contributory negligence cannot be sustained. Smith v. Bonney, 215 N. C. 181, 1 S. E. (2d) 37.

Court as to whether these two sections should be read together. In Craddock v. Barnes, 142 N. C. 89, 54 S. E. 1003, it was held that these two sections should not be read together and the time limit expressed in section 1-182 had no bearing on this section. In Barringer v. Deal, 246 N. C. 687, 100 S. E. 2d, the headnote into this section and the headnote to the case stated that requests for special instructions had to be made before the close of the evidence. The reason for this, however, for special instructions in this case were handed up after the conclusion of the charge. The headnote to Merrill v. Whitmire, 110 N. C. 367, 15 S. E. 3, also, defined "apt time" as "at or before the close of the evidence." This definition is dicta, therefore, the headnote to Ward v. Albemarle, etc., R. Co., 112 N. C. 168, 47 S. E. 201, makes the same error. Herein, the request for special instructions was made during argument.

The discrepancy here is more apparent than real and the error seems to have crept into the headnotes rather than into the decisions. The Craddock case seems correct. In that case at the close of the testimony the court adjourned until the next day, and at the opening of the court the next morning the plaintiff tendered in writing certain special instructions and the refusal of the judge to consider them was held to be error. There seems to be no reason, other than the construction of the section, as to why the request for special instructions was not considered in that case. The true rule, as garnered from the decided cases, seems to be that requests for special instructions must be made before the beginning of argument. This rule apparently fits all the reasons for permitting the judge to have the case on appeal is sufficient to present the matter on appeal, though no written instruction on the subject was prayed for. Lee v. Williams, 111 N. C. 260, 16 S. E. 175.

The appellate is entitled to have its assignments of error for refusing or granting special instructions, if set out by him in his statement of the case on appeal, incorporated by the court in the case settled. If they are omitted, certiorari will lie. Lowe v. Elliott, 107 N. C. 718, 12 S. E. 383.

Failure to Sign—Discretion of Court.—The trial judge can debar any oral utterance which is in exact accord with the request for special instructions was made after argument had opened. The definition of the court as to "apt time" is dicta, therefore, the headnote to Ward v. Albemarle, etc., R. Co., 112 N. C. 168, 47 S. E. 201, makes the same error. Herein, the request for special instructions was made during argument.

mandatory in criminal as well as civil cases and if the judge fails to comply with a request duly made that he reduce his charge to writing, a new trial will be ordered. Currie v. Clark, 50 N. C. 355; State v. Connelly, 107 N. C. 463, 12 S. E. 251. The question is not whether the record contains the instructions actually given in court, but whether the request being admitted in regard to it, but whether the request was duly made and refused and the refusal followed by an exception. State v. Block, 109 N. C. 556, 1 S. E. 937.

The court must put its charge, as to the law, in writing, however inconvenient, if the request is made in apt time. Jenkins v. Wilmington, etc., R. Co., 110 N. C. 438, 15 S. E. 835.

Applies to Later Instructions.—It is error to charge the jury orally upon any point when they return into court for instructions, when counsel has requested written instructions. State v. Stewart, 129 N. C. 161, 51 S. E. 815.

“Instructions” Defined.—The word “instructions” as used in this section, relates to the principles of law applicable to the case, and which would influence the action of the jury, after finding the facts, in shaping their responses to the issue. State v. Dewey, 139 N. C. 556, 51 S. E. 937.

Does Not Include Evidence.—A request to give instructions in writing, but is merely dicta.

Request Must be Specific.—A request that the trial judge “charge the jury in writing, and as follows” is a request solely to deliver those instructions to the jury, and is not a request to write them in writing. Phillips v. Wilmington, etc., R. Co., 130 N. C. 582, 41 S. E. 805.

But where the defendant at the close of the evidence requested the court “to put the charge to the jury in writing and in part to charge the jury as follows,” and the whole charge on the law was not put in writing, this was held to be error. Sawyer v. Lumber Co., 142 N. C. 161, 55 S. E. 84.

Oral Instructions Same as Written.—Where the court gave oral instruction from those set out in the written charge, and the appellant makes no suggestion to the contrary, his exception to the oral part of the charge does not constitute ground for a new trial. Currie v. Clark, 50 N. C. 355.

Exception.—An exception to the failure of the judge to put his charge in writing, when asked “at or before the close of the evidence,” is lost if in time no. One of the parties made in apt time, refused by the Supreme Court. State v. Connelly, 107 N. C. 463, 12 S. E. 251.

Judge’s Statement of Oral Instructions Controlling.—A statement by the trial judge, that he had set out in his charge, was not put to his election to move for a judgment of nonsuit. State v. Houston, 155 N. C. 432, 71 S. E. 855.

Effect of Violation.—When it appears from inspection of the record, that the court below refused to put its charge in writing, at the request of one of the parties made in apt time, it will be error. State v. Watson, 143 N. C. 240, 55 S. E. 625.

Request Made after Charge in Hands of Jury.——When the trial judge, having at the request of plaintiff put his charge in writing, read and handed it to the clerk in open court that it was not put in writing, the plaintiff objected upon the ground that the court had not been requested to hand the written charge to the jury. Thereupon, and after his Honor had made those observations, it was handed to the clerk, and the whole charge on the law was not put in writing, this was held to be error. Sawyer v. Lumber Co., 142 N. C. 161, 55 S. E. 48. The headnote to Phillips v. Wilmington, etc., Ry. Co., 130 N. C. 582, 41 S. E. 805, is not the holding of this case.

An exception “for refusal of prayers for instructions” does not embrace a refusal or failure to grant a prayer to put the charge in writing. State v. Adams, 115 N. C. 775, 26 S. E. 863.

Data Other than Charge.—It is error for the trial judge, upon objection, to charge the jury in writing, or to request the court to put the charge to the jury in writing, or to require the clerk to certify to the charge, or to permit the court to announce in open court an involuntary nonsuit and to charge the jury to consider the evidence in their deliberations. Nicholson v. Eureka Lumber Co., 156 N. C. 39, 72 S. E. 85. So with the charge as given, 157 N. C. 93, 78 S. E. 604. An account rendered. Watson v. Davis, 52 N. C. 178. Depositions read on trial. Lafson v. Shearin, 118 N. C. 391, 12 S. E. 1003. An account rendered. Phillips v. Wilmington, etc., R. Co., 68 N. C. 395; Merrill v. Whitmire, 119 N. C. 367, 15 S. E. 3; Cressler v. Asheville, 138 N. C. 518, 15 S. E. 1003; Barringer v. Deal, 164 N. C. 246, 80 S. E. 161.

§ 1-183. Motion for nonsuit. When on trial of an issue of fact in a civil action or special proceeding, the plaintiff has introduced his evidence and rested his case, the defendant may move to dismiss the action, or for judgment as in case of nonsuit. If the motion is refused the defendant may except, and if the defendant introduces no evidence the jury shall pass upon the issues in the action, and the defendant has the benefit of his exception on appeal to the supreme court. After the motion is refused he may waive his exception and introduce his evidence just as if he had not made the motion, and he may again move to dismiss after all the evidence on both sides is in. If the motion is refused he may except, and after the jury has rendered its verdict, he has the benefit of the latter exception on appeal to the supreme court. (Rev., c. 539, 1897, c. 109; 1899, c. 131; 1901, c. 594; C. S. 567.)

Editor’s Note.—The power of the superior court to grant an involuntary nonsuit is altogether statutory, and did not exist prior to the passing of this section in 1897. See Riley v. Stone, 109 N. C. 241, 422, 86 S. E. 348.

Under this section as originally passed, Acts 1897, chap. 109, upon the defendant’s motion being refused, he could introduce evidence, and at the close of the evidence of both sides, renew the motion to dismiss, on the first motion and also on the second motion. Purnell v. Raleigh, etc., R. Co., 122 N. C. 822, 29 S. E. 250, 107 N. C. 527, C. S. 177. But under the amendment of 1899, Acts of 1899, chap. 138, this practice is not allowed. The defendant may stop his case at the close of the plaintiff’s evidence, and move to dismiss upon the ground that the plaintiff has failed to make out a prima facie case. And if his motion is refused he has the right of appeal from the ruling of the court.

But if he does not stop his case and appeal, and introduce evidence, he loses the benefit of any new evidence, he may again move to dismiss upon the ground that the plaintiff has not made out a case, and the only difference between this motion and the one made at the close of the plaintiff’s evidence, is that the plaintiff’s evidence stands as it stood when the first motion was made, and he also has the benefit of any new evidence that may have been introduced since that motion was made, by either side, favorable to the plaintiff.

The rule now seems to stand just as it did before the passage of the Act 1897, chap. 109, and the amendment of 1899, except that the plaintiff has the right of appeal with the defendant whether he will introduce evidence after the motion to dismiss, or not; while before these acts, it was discretionary with the court whether he would allow the defendant to introduce evidence, and making the motion. See Means v. Carolina Central R. R. Co., 126 N. C. 424, 35 S. E. 813.

This was held in Watson v. Wilkes, 52 N. C. 355. This statute did not apply to criminal cases. Thereupon the legislature enacted chap. 73, Laws 1913 (Sec. 15-273), extending this section to all criminal courts. For Criminal Cases, see section 1381.

Section Explained.—Under this section the defendant is not put to his election to move for a judgment of nonsuit or proceed with the evidence unless the plaintiff has produced his evidence and rested his case. If the defendant in his argument or in his written statement of what the plaintiff had offered to withdraw the written charge from the jury in writing, it was held that it was not error upon this ground to permit the jury to take plats of or other evidence in court. Depositions read on trial. Tafoon v. Shearin, 95 N. C. 391.

States not Included.—Where the charge of the court was taken to the jury room on retirement, but by oversight the special prayers asked by appellant and given were not also handed to the jury, this does not constitute error. The exception is not saved as the record did not then, or at any time before verdict, call the matter to the attention of the court. Gaither v. Carpenter, 143 N. C. 240, 55 S. E. 625.

§ 1-183. CH. 1. CIVIL PROCEDURE—TRIAL § 1-183
It was not intended to deprive parties of the right to try by jury where there is any evidence to sustain the allegations of the complaint. Fox v. Asheville Army Store, 215 N. C. 124, 16 S. E. 2d 718; and Fox v. Asheville Army Store, 215 N. C. 124, 16 S. E. 2d 718.

Time to Make Motion to Nonsuit.—The allowance of a motion as of nonsuit is based upon purely statutory grounds, and the determination must be strictly followed, and where the defendant fails to move for judgment as of nonsuit at the close of the plaintiff's evidence, his exception to the refusal of his motion thereon is ineffective to raise the point. See Penn v. French Broad Hotel, 199 N. C. 314, 154 S. E. 406.

A demurrer to the evidence is a motion to nonsuit, which waives all objection to its competency, and admits the evidence; and it is regarded in general as analogous to a demurrer upon the facts alleged in pleading. Van Stone v. Stillwell, et al., Mfg. Co., 142 U. S. 128, 134, 12 S. Ct. 151, 125 N. C. 385, 14 S. E. 459.

When Motion Should Be Disallowed.—Defendant's motion as of nonsuit, will be denied when the evidence, taken in the light most favorable to the plaintiff, and every reasonable intendment therefrom, is sufficient to take the case to the jury. While this section requires a consideration of the whole evidence; and it is regarded in general as analogous to a demurrer upon the facts alleged in pleading. Van Stone v. Stillwell, et al., Mfg. Co., 142 U. S. 128, 134, 12 S. Ct. 151, 125 N. C. 385, 14 S. E. 459.

Consideration of Defendant's Evidence.—Upon a motion as of nonsuit the defendant's evidence will be considered only where favorable to the plaintiff. In cases of demurrer to the evidence, which wavers all objection to its competency, and admits the evidence; and it is regarded in general as analogous to a demurrer upon the facts alleged in pleading. Additional Evidence Allowable. — Where a motion to non- suit under this section is made, it is discretionary with the judge, before passing on it, to allow the plaintiff to introduce additional evidence. Featherston v. Wilson, 123 N. C. 623, 31 S. E. 843.

The trial court, after the plaintiff had rested his case, and before the defendant had offered any evidence, or was not sure if the defendant was not sure if the defendant's motion for nonsuit was denied, if there was any evidence or of the sufficiency of the evidence by introducing evidence in his own behalf and not renewing his motion after the close of all the evidence. Fannie F. Bank, etc., Co. v. Mackrell, 195 N. C. 741, 143 S. E. 518.

In an action for negligence of defendant's delivery truck driver, evidence as to the driver's sight at the time of injury was admitted and, in view of employment at time of injury, is sufficient to take the case to the jury and deny defendant's motion for a nonsuit. Mischheimer v. Hay- man, 195 N. C. 613, 120 S. E. 428.

In an action for injuries against a municipality for failure to keep highway in safe condition, defendant's motion for judgment as in case of nonsuit, provided for by this section, was properly denied. Pearl v. Southern R. Co., 205 N. C. 113, 110 S. E. 146.

State v. Houppe, 207 N. C. 377, 172 S. E. 790.

McGee v. Frohman, 207 N. C. 475, 177 S. E. 327.

When Nonsuit Proper.—Where the evidence of plaintiff is not sufficient to be submitted to the jury it is proper for the court to sustain defendant's motion for judgment as of nonsuit. Wheelock v. Lloyd v. Speight, 195 N. C. 179, 180, 141 S. E. 574; Blackwell v. Coca-Cola Bottling Co., 208 N. C. 712, 183 S. E. 165.

Same—Illustrative Cases.—Where a contract creating a local representative for the sale of automobiles by interpretation as to its effect, creates the relationship of vendor and purchaser, the local representative may not bind the vendor upon a warranty of the machines, and the vendor is not liable for representations or warranties made by the local dealer, and an action against it on the same contract declared upon by the plaintiff, the defendant's motion at the close of all the evidence, for judgment as of nonsuit is properly denied. Ford v. Willys-Overland, 197 N. C. 147, 147 S. E. 822.

Evidence tending to show that the plaintiff was injured by an explosion of a cartridge which the defendant's agent was using in discharging a firearm, and that the son was helping his father therein, is insufficient to hold his father liable in damages, and defendant's motion as of nonsuit in properly granted. Norman v. Porter, 197 N. C. 222, 185 S. E. 41.

A contract of hire at a stipulated hourly wage, without reference to the number of hours the employment was to continue, gives the employer no right of action for damages because he was employed a fewer number of hours than other employees engaged at the same time, and it was held in the principal case of Sherrill v. Graham County, 205 N. C. 178, 170 S. E. 636.

Same—Evidence Sufficient to Deny Nonsuit.—Where the evidence was sufficient to overrule defendant's motion as of nonsuit upon the issue of defendant's contributory negligence, it was held that defendant's demurrer to the evidence should have been sustained. Peters v. Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co., 194 N. C. 172, 138 S. E. 687.

And the justice of the peace for the lack of evidence and the plaintiff finally discharged: It was held, a question defendant’s night watchman was acting within the scope of was properly denied. Butler v. Holt-Williamson Mfg. Co., 182 N. W. 547, 182 S. E. 852.

Joinder in Demurrer.—No judgment can be rendered upon a demurrer to the evidence, until there is a joinder in de- murrer. Fowl v. Alexandria, 11 Wheat. 320, 6 L. Ed. 484. But it is a matter of discretion with a court, whether it will compel a party to join in demurrer to evidence. Young v. Black, 63 S. E. 553, 6 L. Ed. 440.

One party cannot insist upon the other party joining in demurrer, without distinctly admitting upon the record, every fact, where he was non-suited in the absence of evidence for his adversary conduced to prove. Young v. Black supra.

1. By failing to appear at the trial.
2. By written consent, in person or by attorney, filed with the clerk.
3. By oral consent, entered in the minutes. (Rev., s. 540; Code, s. 416; C. C. P., s. 420; C. S. 568.)

Consent is Waived by Failure to Make Motion in Apt Time.—The parties to an action may waive their right to trial by jury guaranteed by our State Constitution, Article IV, § 1, by failing to move for a trial by jury under § 1-513, but makes such motion after the judge has heard the evidence and argument, and is ready to decide the facts at issue and enter judgment thereon, the motion shall be considered a waiver of the right to trial by jury. Morisey v. Swinson, 104 N. C. 555, 10 S. E. 10.

Waiver of Motion in Apt Time.—When a trial by jury is waived, the facts found and conclusions of law are conclusive on appeal if there is evidence appearing on the trial of the questions of fact his findings thereof are conclusive on appeal where the judge has heard the evidence and argument, and is ready to decide the facts at issue and enter judgment thereon, the motion shall be considered a waiver of the right to trial by jury. Buchanan v. Clark, 116 N. C. 78, 80 S. E. 1064; Yarbrough v. Moore, 151 N. C. 116, 65 S. E. 763.

§1-185. Findings of fact and conclusions of law by judge.—Upon trial of an issue of fact by the court, its decision shall be given in writing, and shall contain a statement of the facts found, and the conclusions of law separately. Upon trial of an issue of law, the decision shall be made in the same manner, stating the conclusions of law. Such decision must be filed with the clerk during the court at which the trial takes place, and judgment upon it shall be entered accordingly. (Rev., s. 541; Code, s. 417; C. C. P., s. 241; C. S. 569.)

Cross Reference.—As to how the issue shall be tried, see §1-172.

Consent Necessary.—On the trial of a civil action a jury was sworn and impaneled and issues framed, but no evidence adduced on either side, and the court thereupon charged without rendering a verdict, it was held that the judge had no right to pass upon the issues, except upon a waiver of jury trial in accordance with this section. Chasteen v. Martin, 61 N. C. 71.

Sufficient Compliance.—Where the court does nothing more than indicate from what source the facts may be gleaned, it is not sufficient compliance with the requirements of this section that the court's decision shall contain a statement of the facts found. Shore v. Norfolk National Bank of Commerce, 208 N. C. 568, 178 S. E. 572.

Separate Conclusions of Facts and Law.—As to the Superior Court, in passing upon a mixed question of fact and law, should, as required by this section, state the facts found and conclusions of law separately. Walker v. Pattershall, 67 N. C. 453; Walker v. Walker, 204 N. C. 210, 197 S. E. 818. See also, Harrison v. Brown, 222 N. C. 613, 24 S. E. (2d) 470.

The decision of the judge in writing, with a separate statement of his findings of fact and conclusions of law is sufficient under this section. Eley v. Atlantic, etc., R. Co., 197 N. C. 766, 150 S. E. 621.

§1-186. Exceptions to decision of court. — 1. For the purposes of an appeal, either party may except to a decision on a matter of law arising upon a trial by the court within ten days after the entry of judgment, in the same manner and with the same effect as upon a trial by jury. Where the decision does not authorize a final judgment, it directs further proceedings before a referee or otherwise, either party may except thereto, and make a case or exception as above provided in case of an appeal.

2. Either party desiring a review, upon the evidence appearing on the trial of the questions of fact of the court, shall make a case or exception in writing, and proceed in the same manner, stating the conclusions of law. Such decision must be filed with the clerk during the court at which the trial takes place, and judgment upon it shall be entered accordingly. (Rev., s. 541; Code, s. 417; C. C. P., s. 241; C. S. 569.) law, may at any time within ten days after the judgment, or within such time as is prescribed by the rules of the court, make a case or exceptions in like manner as upon a trial by jury, except that the judge in settling the case must be bound by the language of the first two subdivisions of section 1-544, and his conclusions of law. (Rev., s. 542; Code, s. 418; C. C. P., s. 249; C. S. 570.)

See the next foregoing section and the note thereto.

Editor's Note. — In Green v. Castlebury, 70 N. C. 20, which since its decision has been cited as the case particularly necessary to be reviewed by the Supreme Court, unless exceptions appear to have been aptly taken, or error is distinctly pointed out. Chastain v. Coward, 79 N. C. 543.

§ 1-187. Proceedings upon judgment on issue of law.—On a judgment for the plaintiff upon an issue of law, he may proceed in the manner prescribed by the first two subdivisions of section 1-211 herein upon failure of the defendant to answer, where the summons was personally served. If judgment is for the defendant, upon an issue of law, and if taking of an account or the proof of any fact is necessary to enable the court to complete the judgment, a reference or assessment by jury may be ordered, as provided in section 1-212 herein. (Rev., s. 543; Code, s. 419; C. C. P., s. 243; C. S. 571.)

Art. 20. Reference.

§ 1-188. By consent.—Any or all of the issues in an action, whether of fact or law, may be referred, upon the written consent of the parties, except in actions to annul a marriage, or for divorce or annulment. (Rev., s. 518; Code, s. 450; C. C. P., s. 244; C. S. 572.)

Cross References.—As to how issues shall be tried, see § 1-172. As to compulsory reference, see § 1-189.

Editor's Note. — A trial by reference cannot have the effect of withdrawing the actions or the causes of action from the jurisdiction of the court. The referee, by consent of the parties, becomes a mere adjunct, and acts in the place of the court, and, in appropriate cases, in the place of the court and jury, in respect to the trial. However, his report, with his record, proceedings and actions, and his report, unless objected to in the way prescribed, stands as the decision of the court, and on application to the court, the court may enter judgment upon the same. If the judge does not formally find the facts, it is presumed that he accepts the facts as found by the referee. A reference, by consent of the parties, of an entire cause, for the determination of questions of law, though not strictly a submission of the controversy to arbitration—a proceeding which is governed by special rules—is a submission of the controversy to a tribunal of the parties' own selection, to be governed by the rules of that tribunal. It will be noted that this section is a part of the law of cases, which will be supplied by the administration of justice in tribunals established by law. Oteri v. Scalzo, 145 U. S. 578, 12 S. Ct. 895, 36 L. Ed. 834.

It was not intended by this and the following sections to deprive parties of the right to refer all or any matters in controversy to arbitrators with power to make an award, which should be a rule of the court. It was said by the court in Lusk v. Clayton, 70 N. C. 185, 187, that "the parties can undoubtedly make such a reference, and the only question possible would be whether the judge would recognize the award and make it a rule of court, enforceable by its process, or leave the parties to their action on the arbitration bond or other like remedy. We can not suppose it was intended to provide carefully of the leading rights by indirection, and we think that the power to make an award a rule of court still exists as included to every court under its power to enter judgment by consent." It is often seen by the parties to have been argued that these sections have repealed the common law practice of reference to arbitrators, and that the practice is still extant, notwithstanding them. See Keener v. Goodson, 89 N. C. 623, 626, and citations.

The common law practice was extant until the legislature of 1927 passed a statute regulating arbitration and award. This statute has been codified as §§ 1-544 et seq., and the note thereto. See Keener v. Goodson, 89 N. C. 623, 626, and citations.

What May Be Referred.—All or any of the issues in an action may be referred by consent of the parties. Lusk v. Clayton, 70 N. C. 184, 185, 259, 260.

Waiver of Jury Trial.—A reference made by consent is a waiver of the right of trial by a jury. Green v. Castlebury, 70 N. C. 20; In re Parker, 209 N. C. 693, 184 S. E. 248; Anderson v. McCoe, 211 N. C. 197, 199 S. E. 639. Judge May Disregard Agreement to Refer. — The trial judge, in the exercise of a sound discretion, may disregard the agreement of parties that a reference shall be made. Lusk v. Clayton, 70 N. C. 184, 185, 259, 260.

Strict Words of Statute Not Required. — It is proper that the agreement to refer should specify in terms the "issues of law and fact," but where the purpose is obvious, the strict words of the statute will not be required. Morissey v. Swinson, 104 N. C. 555, 10 S. E. 754; Vaughan v. Lewellyn, 94 N. C. 472.

Order Entered of Record Sufficient. — An order of reference of law or fact entered of record is a sufficient compliance with this section requiring the same to be in writing. And when entered must stand until a full report is made. White v. Upchurch, 86 N. C. 553.

Plea in Bar.—A reference of a cause cannot be ordered when anything is pleaded in bar of plaintiff's right of action, until such plea is tried. Jones v. Beamam, 117 N. C. 259, 25 S. E. 448.

Reference Does Not Deprive Court of Jurisdiction. — Sending a case to be tried by a referee does not deprive the court of its jurisdiction, and it can make any and all necessary orders therein pending the trial before the referee. McNeill v. Lawson, 97 N. C. 16, 1 S. E. 401.

Plaintiff May Take Non-Suit.—A plaintiff may take a non-suit while the case is pending before a referee, if the case be one in which he is entitled to do so. McNeill v. 97 N. C. 16, 1 S. E. 401.

No Appeal from Order of Reference. — Upon a consent reference to try a cause, the question as to whether all the issues raised by the pleadings are to be considered as submitted to the referee under the agreement of the parties and the finding of the trial court is conclusive. Barrett v. Henry, 85 N. C. 332.

Referee Must Discharge Duties. — The referee selected by the parties must remain in the discharge of his duties, unless with like consent another is substituted in his place, thereby revoked; it continues, and a second trial may be had before the same referee, unless with like consent another is substituted in his place. Perry v. Tupper, 77 N. C. 413.

When for cause the referee's report is set aside, the order of reference is not thereby revoked; it continues, and a second trial may be had before the same referee, although a party may not apply for such order of reference. Perry v. Tupper, 77 N. C. 413.

Consent Necessary to Vacate Reference. — Where an action is once referred the order of reference cannot be vacated by the consent of all parties. Keystone Driller Co. v. Worth, 117 N. C. 515, 23 S. E. 427; Morissey or for carrying a judgment or order into effect.
Mrmev., s. 519: Code, s. 421; 1897, c. 237, ss. 1, 2; 532, 125 S. E. 119; Andrews v. Jordan, 205 N. C. 618, 623, § 1-189 GH 1.

because in the compulsory reference the parties reserve their any stage of the action.

and decide the whole issue, or to report upon any specific question of fact involved therein.

The compulsory reference under this section does not deprive either party of his constitutional right to a trial by jury of the issues of fact arising on the pleadings, but such trial shall be only upon the facts as taken before the referee.

(Rev., s. 519; Code, s. 421; 1897, c. 237, § 1; C. C. P., s. 245; 1917, c. 280; 1919, c. 7; C. S. 573.)

III. Illustrative Cases.

I. EDITOR'S NOTE.

Editor's Note. — It is the order of reference that extends the jurisdiction and controls the relation of the court to the trial of the issues of fact and law, and extends its authority to compel the parties to the action, by proper judgments and orders in the regular course of procedure, to do and submit to what ought to be done as the result of the reference.

The referee, once appointed, is like the judge when there is a waiver of a jury trial, invested with the powers of both, but it would be useless to take an account, if the plea in bar would defeat the plaintiff's action, if found for the defendant. But it is otherwise where the matter pleaded in bar would not defeat the plaintiff's action, if found for the defendant. Humble v. Mebane, 89 N. C. 410. This is so for the reason that what is pleaded in bar is not a bar.

When a reference is ordered for any of the reasons set forth in this section, it should appear clearly and affirmatively that the cause of action of which the rights of the parties have been found. See Kerr v. Hicks, 133 N. C. 175, 177, 45 S. E. 529.

No order of reference should be permitted by the court until the pleadings are in and the parties are at issue. The failure to observe the law of procedure in connection with mechanical and time consuming causes is too common a cause for the dismissal of cases. See Pomona Mills, 206 N. C. 768, 175 S. E. 150.

What Constitutes a "Long Account."—There is no sta-development of a "long account," but a correct conclusion as to whether an account was "long" would depend upon the facts and circumstances of each case. The account in controversy was correctly classified as a "long account." Dayton Rubber Mfg. Co. v. Horn, 203 N. C. 367, 167 S. E. 42.

What constitutes a "long account" must be determined upon the facts of each particular case, it not being necessary that the action be for an accounting, it being sufficient if a long account is directly and not merely collateral-

Where action was instituted to recover for services rendered for the defendant in circumstances of the same transaction or series of transactions are properly joined in the complaint, the court may not ordinarily order that one of them be referred to a referee, but under the facts and circumstances of this case the court's order of compulsory reference of one of the causes of action was upheld, it ap-tearing that the action involved a long account and that controversy where the facts and circumstances of the case be judi-

cally presented to a jury, this section being liberally construed to afford the salutary procedure therein provided. Fry v. Pomona Mills, 206 N. C. 768, 175 S. E. 150.

No Waiver of Jury Trial. — By a compulsory reference the parties waive nothing, and are still entitled to a trial by jury, on the issues as if no reference had been made.

But a failure to object to an order of reference, at the time it is made, is a waiver of the right to a trial by jury.

To an exception to an order of reference to a referee, and submitting issues, secures his right thereby to a trial by jury upon the evidence thus taken, unless he waives his right during the progress of the reference; and while an issue determinative of the action should first be tried before a reference is ordered, a party excepting to the order may not successfully insist upon the determination of the issue of fact by the referee provided for by this section. Green Sea Lumber Co. v. Pemberton, 188 N. C. 532, 125 S. E. 119.

A party duly and aptly excepting to an order of reference and also to the admissions of evidence before the referee, and submitting issues, secures his right thereby to a trial by jury upon the issues presented by him. Brown v. Manor excavation, 194 N. C. 149, 137 S. E. 792.

But the failure of a party to except to an order for compulsory reference and to file exceptions in apt time to particular findings of fact by the referee when the re-court is unfavorable and to tender issues on the exceptions and demand a jury trial thereon will be deemed a waiver of his right to trial by jury. Section 1-189. Booker v. Highlands, 198 N. C. 282, 151 S. E. 635.

[237]

A party who would preserve his right to a jury trial in a compulsory reference should have his request, in writing, at the time it is made, and on the coming in of the report of the referee. If it be advisable, he should reasonably file exceptions to particular findings of fact made by the referee, and on the coming in of the exceptions, the facts pointed out in the exceptions and raised by the pleadings, and demand a jury trial on each of the issues thus tendered. Marshville Cotton Mills v. Maslin, 200 N. C. 328, 329, 156 S. E. 484.

Where a case is one properly subject to a compulsory refercence under this section, a party excepting to the order of reference has a right to have issues tendered, and on the hearing of exceptions to the referee's report submitted to the jury when the issues do not arise upon the exceptions. Atlantic Joint Stock Land Bank v. Fisher, 206 N. C. 412, 173 S. E. 987.

Where defendant sets up no plea in bar, and the pleadings indicate the necessity of examining a long account between the parties, defendant's exception to an order of compulsory reference will not be sustained under this sec-

Common Law Arbitration. — The provisions of the code of civil procedure have not abrogated the common law practice of reference to arbitrators. Keener v. Goodson, 99 N. C. 233, 270.

Judge of Probate Court Cannot Refer. — A judge of the court of probate cannot refer the taking of the account to a referee, and, if he does, the account will be set aside as irregularly taken. This section does not extend the juridicion of the probate judge. Rowland v. Thompson, 5 N. C. 110.

Power of Court to Vacate Reference.—Where the trial judge has ordered a compulsory reference upon the ground that the complaint stated a long and involved account, and where no exception is taken to the order by either party, the court is without authority to set aside the order of reference and submit the case to the jury when upon his rulings the referee has committed error in excluding certain evidence materially bearing upon the controversy.
American Trust Co. v. Jenkins, 196 N. C. 428, 146 S. E. 68.

Motion to Refer Must Be Timely. — A motion for a compulsory reference should be made in an action before the jury has been impaneled, or the rights of a party thereto will be considered as waived. Peyton v. Hamilton-Brown Shoe Co., 167 N. C. 280, 83 S. E. 487.

It is not error to refuse a compulsory reference, when the motion to refer is not until after the close of the evidence.

Reference Should Follow Pleas. — A reference should not be had, and a compulsory reference should be made in an action before the jury has been impaneled, or the rights of a party thereto will be considered as waived. Peyton v. Hamilton-Brown Shoe Co., 167 N. C. 280, 83 S. E. 487.

But it is irregular to proceed with a reference to state an account while there are matters of defense left open which, if sustained by evidence, would bar the claim to Reference Precedes Court Adjudication of Liability. — A reference may precede the determination of matters in controversy, under this section, precedes any adjudication by the court of the liability of the parties. Governor v. Lassiter, 83 N. C. 254, 58 S. E. 1091. (2) Account stated. Kerr v. Hicks, 126 N. C. 320, 35 S. E. 588. (3) Account referred to without notice of plea. Duckworth v. Duckworth, 144 N. C. 620, 57 S. E. 396.

Consent Necessary to Vacate Reference. — Where an action is once referred the order of reference cannot be

Failure to Refer Not Error. — Where the controversy involves the taking of a long account, it should be referred but where it has otherwise been tried, without error or prejudice to the appellant, the judgment of the trial court will not be disturbed.

Appeal before Judgment Premature. — In Leroy v. Sal-burn, 182 N. C. 575, 108 S. E. 303, it was said: "The jury having found that the partnership existed, an appeal from the order of reference before judgment, when the same is allowed by this section and the compulsory reference is once referred the order of reference cannot

It has been said, however, that where an amendment of the pleadings is allowed, after the report is in, containing an additional charge, the parties ought to be allowed to offer evidence before the jury as to such charge, for it was not embraced in the reference. See Moore v.

Applied in Marshville Cotton Mills v. Maslin, 200 N. C. 328, 156 S. E. 484; Perry v. Pulley, 206 N. C. 701, 702, 175 S. E. 89.

III. ILLUSTRATIVE CASES.

Division of Line. — A compulsory reference may be ordered by the trial judge in an action involving the true location of a dividing line between the owners of adjoining lands, where the same was carefully surveyed by a surveyor of timber, where the location of the line is complicated or requires a personal view of the premises. Waller v. Dud-low, 113 N. C. 235, 8 S. E. 467, 94 S. E. 467.
adultery is in bar of the wife's right, and whether the compulsory order of reference be treated as one of consolidation and reference of the consolidated action, or a reference to a complaint on an administration bond of "performance of the covenant of the condition of the bond by payment to the next of kin," is good in substance, and an issue taken upon it may be decided by the jury does not require a view of the premises, entitling the party requesting it to a compulsory order of reference under the provisions of this section. Kearns v. Haskell & Florence Mfg. Co., 176 N. C. 179, 97 S. E. 106.

Suit on Confessed Judgment. — A compulsory reference cannot be ordered by the court in a suit on a judgment confessed by the defendant before the Civil War, where the only matters of defense are payments made by them in Confederate currency during the war, and alleged counter-claims for notes due from the plaintiffs to themselves, as executors. Hall v. Craige, 65 N. C. 51.

Suit on Confessed Judgment. — A compulsory reference cannot be ordered by the court in a suit on a judgment confessed by the defendant before the Civil War, where the only matters of defense are payments made by them in Confederate currency during the war, and alleged counter-claims for notes due from the plaintiffs to themselves, as executors. Hall v. Craige, 65 N. C. 51.

Action by Farquhar against Guard.—Where in an action by a guardian to impeach a former decree, it appeared that alleged expenditures for the benefit of the ward should be ascertained, and the parties of the same term of court, the amount to be determined by the jury does not require a view of the premises, entitling the party requesting it to a compulsory order of reference under the provisions of this section. Sutton v. Schonwald, 80 N. C. 20.

Action on Administration Bond. — A plea in an answer to an administration bond of "performance of the condition of the bond by payment to the next of kin," is good in substance, and an issue taken upon it may be decided by the jury does not require a view of the premises, entitling the party requesting it to a compulsory order of reference under the section. Fleck v. Dawson, 69 N. C. 42.

Suit by Creditor against Executor. — In an action by a creditor against an executor if the defendant is made to answer a debt, and the amount or existence of the debt is tried in the ordinary way: and if the debt be established a reference is to be had to ascertain the amount of the debts and their several classes, the course of the coming into court, just as the court would have upon the trial of the case, and constitute a part of the record. (Rev., s. 1354, Code, 6.-423; C.-C.) P., 9. 247: C) S, 574.)

§ 1-190. How referee chosen or appointed.—In all cases of reference the parties as to whom issues are joined in the action (except when the defendant is an infant or an absentee) may agree in writing upon a person or persons, not exceeding three, and a reference shall be ordered to have such three, and to no other person or persons. And if such parties do not agree, the court shall appoint an odd number of referees, not more than three, who are free from exception. No person may be appointed referee to whom all parties in the action object. No judge or justice of any court may sit as referee in action pending in the court of which he is judge or justice, and not already referred, unless the parties otherwise stipulate. (Rev., s. 520; Code, s. 423; C. C. P., s. 247; C. S. 574.)

§ 1-191. Referees may administer oaths.—Every referee has power to administer oaths in any proceeding before him, and has generally the power vested in a referee by law. (Rev., s. 521; Code, s. 599; C. C. P., s. 356; C. S. 575.)

§ 1-192. Powers of referee of trial.—The trial by referees shall be conducted in the same manner as a trial by the court. Referees have the same power to grant adjournments and to allow amendments to pleadings and to the summons as the court upon such trial, upon the same terms and with like effect. They shall have the same power to preserve order and punish all violations thereof upon such trial, and to compel the attendance of witnesses before them by attachment and to punish them as for contempt or nonattendance or refusal to testify, as is possessed by the court. (Rev., s. 522; Code, s. 422; C. C. P., s. 246; C. S. 576.)

Referee Has No Inherent Power.—A referee has no inherent or original powers and can only do those things expressly enumerated by statute, and such as he is authorized to do by the court which sends him the case. While he may "allow amendments to pleadings," he is not authorized to allow a defendant who has not previously done so to file an answer, except by consent. Jones v. Hites, 137 N. C. 569, 48 S. E. 576.

May Make New Parties.—Under this section, a referee has power to admit new parties to an action. Perkins v. Berry, 103 N. C. 131, 9 S. E. 621.

Before a notice issued by a referee and served upon a surety on the administrator's bond to appear before him, no order having been made to make sure such party is, is not a legal process effective to bring him into court. Koonce v. Pelletier, 105 N. C. 582, 10 S. E. 48; Waller v. Dudley, 194 N. C. 139, 138 S. E. 595; Bank of Rose Hill v. Graham, 198 N. C. 530, 532, 132 S. E. 493; Nissen v. Baker, 198 N. C. 433, 134 S. E. 34, 35.

§ 1-193. Testimony reduced to writing.—The testimony of all witnesses on both sides must be reduced to writing by a referee, or under his direction, and signed by the writer. In case such evidence so taken and signed shall be filed in the cause, and constitute a part of the record. (Rev., s. 523; 1897, c. 247, s. 3; C. S. 577.)

The referee should ordinarily enter his rulings on each objection to the evidence taken before him; but where the objections are very numerous and relate to a single ground of objection, it is sufficient compliance with this section for the referee to incorporate in his report a general statement of his rulings sufficient to give the parties and the reviewing court full opportunity to consider the referee's rulings on each objection. Pack v. Katsin, 215 N. C. 233, 1 S. E. (2d) 556.

§ 1-194. Report; review and judgment.—The referee shall make and deliver a report, within the time limited by the court, to the clerk of the court in which the action is pending. Either party, during the term or upon ten days notice to the adverse party out of term, may move the judge to review the report, and set aside, modify or confirm it in whole or in part, and no judgment may be entered on any reference except by order of the judge. (Rev. s. 524; Code, s. 423; C. C. P., s. 247; C. S. 578.)

See note under § 1-195.

Editor's Note. — Originally, as cited in C. C. P. sec. 247, the time limit of the referee's report was 69 days, and default of either party would end the reference. The power of the trial judge over the referee's report is broad and comprehensive. Dumas v. Morrison, 175 N. C. 431, 95 S. E. 775. In the exercise of the power the trial judge may recommit the report for the correction of errors and irregularities, or for more definite statement of facts or conclusions of law, and such order recommitting the report for such purpose is not appealable. Mills v. Apex Ins., etc., Realty Co., 196 N. C. 223, 225, 145 S. E. 470. In such cases the court must act with due care and discretion, and its ruling in the latter respect is not reviewable unless it appears that such discretion has been abused. Cummings v. Sweepson, 124 N. C. 579, 39 S. E. 566.

Reference to Another Referee. — Where a compulsory reference is made, and the report filed containing findings of fact and conclusions of law, the trial judge may not refuse to accept the report. If a referee refuses to proceed, either party may apply to the court for action upon the unapproved parts. Mills v. Apex Ins., etc., Co., 196 N. C. 223, 145 S. E. 26, citing Commissioners v. Magnin, 85 N. C. 115; Dumas v. Morrison, 175 N. C. 431, 95 S. E. 775; State v. Jackson, 183 N. C. 695, 158 S. E. 136; California Mineral Co. v. Young, 211 N. C. 387, 188 S. E. 508; Carolina Mineral Co. v. Young, 211 N. C. 387, 193 S. E. 165; Holder v. Home Ind. Ins. Co., 212 N. C. 241, 193 S. E. 165; Garner v. Mitchell, 196 N. C. 223, 145 S. E. 470.

§ 1-195. Report, contents and effect.—The referee must state the facts found and the conclusions of law separately. His decision must be given, and may be excepted to by either party within thirty days from the filing of the report and reviewed in like manner and with like effect in all respects as in cases of appeal; and he may in like manner settle a case or exceptions. The report of the referee upon the whole issue stands as the decision of the court, and judgment may be entered thereon upon application of the judge. When the reference is to report the facts, the report has the effect of a special verdict. (Rev. s. 525; Code, s. 428; C. C. P., s. 246; 1948, c. 219; C. S. 579.)

Cross Reference. — As to reviewing case, findings of fact by referee, see § 1-194 and the note thereto.

For reference by consent, see annotations under sect. 1-188. As to compulsory reference, see annotations under sect. 1-189. For a striking illustration of the use of a reference, see note under § 1-196. When Decisions Reviewable. — The decision of the judge in revising the report of a referee, is available as to questions of law, but not as to the findings of fact. Vaughan v. Lewellyn, 94 N. C. 472. The Superior Court has no power to review the conclusions of fact as found by the referee and sustained by the judge, unless it appears that such findings have no evidence to support them. Boyle v. Stallings, 140 N. C. 524, 6 S. E. 280.

The court retains the cause and its jurisdiction in every case of reference, with power to review and reverse the conclusions of law of the referee; and a discretion is vested in the court, and its ruling in the latter respect is not reviewable unless it appears that such discretion has been abused. Cummings v. Sweepson, 124 N. C. 579, 39 S. E. 566.

One valid objection may be raised to the findings of fact by the referee adopted by the judge, directly or by failure to modify them, or to those of the judge substituted for the referee's, but this raises in reality only a question of law, i. e., whether there is any evidence to support the conclusions of fact. When no such objection is made in apt time, the findings of the judge, whether made or adopted, are final and not subject to review.

One exception to the order of the court should conform to the ruling of the Supreme Court in Keystone Driller Co. v. Worth, 117 N. C. 515, 23 S. E. 427. For a striking illustration of the confusion and uncertainty into which the rights of the parties litigant are thrown by these provisions of the holdings thereunder, see Kerr v. Hicks, 133 N. C. 175, 45 S. E. 529.

Referee's Duty under This Section. — It is the duty of a referee to state positively and definitely all the facts constituting the grounds of action or defence, and not to inference what is the precise fact intended to be found. Conclusions of law and fact must be stated separately; otherwise the appellate court cannot review the referee's conclusions of law, and the report of the referee will be set aside as being defective. Earp v. Richardson, 75 N. C. 84; State v. McKenzie, 65 N. C. 102.

§ 1-196. Defined.—Issues arise upon the pleadings, when a material fact or conclusion of law is maintained by one party and controverted by the other. They are of two kinds:

1. Of law.
2. Of fact.

(Rev., s. 544; Code, s. 391; C. C. P., s. 519; C. S. 550.)

In General. — An issue is a single, certain and material point, arising out of the allegations or pleadings of the parties, and, generally, should be made up by an affirmative and negative. Simonton v. Winner, 2 Pet. 141, 160, 8 L. Ed. 75.

An issue is a statement of a material fact in the pleadings of one party which is denied in the pleadings of another party. 7 Ohio Law 163, 164.

Form of Issues. — Defendant cannot complain of the form of the issues where he did not except or submit other issues. Dreeman v. Wilkes, 178 N. C. 513, 103 S. E. 9.

Failure to Submit Issue. — Where defendant in a proceeding proceeding did not tender any issues, and did not except to the ones submitted, he can not complain on appeal that no issue of title was submitted, particularly where he offered no evidence to support his allegations of title. Exum v. Chase, 180 N. C. 95, 104 S. E. 67.

Province of Judge and Jury. — The province of the jury is restricted to passing upon issues of fact raised by the pleadings in the light of the testimony offered. When no testimony is offered, it is the duty of the trial judge to determine the issues of law, if any are raised, and then to proceed to enter such judgment as either of the parties may have the right to demand upon the admissions of fact contained in the pleadings and the issues of law or controverted questions of law. McQueen v. Peoples Nat. Bank, 111 N. C. 599, 513, 15 S. E. 270.

§ 1-197. Of law. — An issue of law arises upon a demurrer to the complaint, answer or reply, or to some part thereof. (Rev., s. 545; Code, s. 392; C. C. P., s. 220; C. S. 581.)

§ 1-198. Of fact. — An issue of fact arises—
1. Upon a material allegation in the complaint controverted by the answer; or,
2. Upon new matter in the answer, controverted by the reply; or,
3. Upon new matter in the reply, unless an issue of law is joined thereon. (Rev., s. 546; Code, s. 393; C. C. P., s. 221; C. S. 582.)

Pleadings Must Raise Issues. — The issues in a cause are made by the pleading, and it is not error to refuse to submit an issue which the pleadings do not raise. McQueen v. Blackwell Co., 120 N. C. 345; Wright v. Cain, 93 N. C. 296; Patton v. Western N. C. R. Co., 96 N. C. 455, 1 S. E. 863. But see Lackett v. Rumbaugh, 45 Fed. 21. See also, Ellis Motor Co. v. Belcher, 204 N. C. 769, 169 S. E. 708.

An issue should be directed to the matter alleged on the one side and denied on the other. The judge may, in addition to the issue, submit an issue of law or controverted by the defendant, but he is not compelled to do so and his refusal is not reviewable. Crawford v. Masters, 140 N. C. 205, 52 S. E. 653.

However, it is error to submit an issue as to a contract different from that alleged in the complaint. Dickens v. Perkins, 134 N. C. 220, 46 S. E. 490.

In an action for the recovery of land, if the defendant wishes to disclaim as to any portion of the locus in quo, and put in issue the title to only a specific portion, he... should do so in his answer. Crawford v. Masters, 140 N. C. 205, 52 S. E. 663.

Error to Submit Issue Not Raised by Pleadings.—Where the contract sued on is admitted in the answer, and there is no existence of the contract in the pleadings, and it is error for the court to submit such issue to the jury. Fairmont School v. Bevis, 210 N. C. 565, 185 S. E. 366.

Issue Cannot Be Raised by Evidential Fact. — Where there are no allegations in the pleadings which suggest the matter set out in the issue, it is improper to submit such issue to the jury. Teague v. Blount, 176 N. C. 217, 199 S. E. 235.

It is only necessary to submit such issues as arise out of the pleadings material to be tried and such as will admit all material evidence upon the whole matter in controversy. Cull v. Hender- son, 129 N. C. 246, 58 S. E. 481.

Refusal to Submit Defendant's Issue. — Where an issue raised by the new matter in the answer, controverted by the reply, is material to the defense, there is error in refusing to submit the issue tendered by defendants, or at least an issue involving the matters relied upon by the defendants, and alleged in their answer. Brown v. Ruffin, 189 N. C. 265, 220 S. E. 280.

Cited in Abbott v. Georgia, etc., R. Co., 90 N. C. 452.

§ 1-189. Order of trial.—Issues both of law and of fact may arise upon different parts of the pleadings in the same action. Where the issues are not satisfactorily made up from the pleadings, the first trial must be first, unless the court otherwise directs. (Rev., s. 547; Code, s. 394; C. C. P., s. 222; C. S. 583.)

Editor's Note.—Pleads in bar must be tried before a reference is ordered. See annotations under sections 1-188, 1-189.

§ 1-200. Form and preparation.—Issues shall be framed in concise and direct terms, and prolixity and confusion must be avoided by not having too many issues. The issues arising upon the pleadings, material to be tried, must be made up by the attorneys appearing in the action, or by the judge presiding, and reduced to writing, before or during the trial. (Rev., ss. 548, 549; Code, ss. 395, 396; C. S. 584.)

Editor's Note.—The Supreme Court in construing this section has laid down three rules: (1) only issues of fact raised by the pleadings must be submitted; (2) the verdict, whether in response to one or many issues must establish the substance of the law and fact, so that justice may be administered between the parties litigant with regularity and certainty." See Tucker v. Satterthwaite, 120 N. C. 118, 27 S. E. 45; Braswell v. Johnston, 108 N. C. 150, 12 S. E. 911.

If the pleadings fail to state the provisions and requirements of this section see Piedmont Wagon Co. v. Byrd, 11D N. C. 460, 26 S. E. 144.

When Sufficient. — It seems that the law is settled that if the issues submitted by the pleadings are such as to present all phases of the controversy, there is no ground for exception to the same. Bailey v. Hassell, 113 N. C. 380, 17 S. E. 865.

Issues Precede Testimony. — This section contemplates that the issues shall be drawn before the introduction of testimony. Besley v. Surles, 140 N. C. 605, 53 S. E. 360. See annotations under sections 1-188, 1-189.

Complaint Differs with Issue. — Where a contract alleged in the complaint from one set forth in the issue, it is error. Dickens v. Perkins, 134 N. C. 220, 46 S. E. 490.

Issues Not Determinative. — A judgment upon the verdict of the jury upon issues raised by the pleadings which are not determinative of the controversy between the parties, is erroneously entered. Merchants Nat. Bank v. Carolina Broom Co., 188 N. C. 508, 125 S. E. 12.

Insufficient Issues. — When issues of fact are raised by the pleadings it is error to submit only the question whether the plaintiff is entitled to recover; that is a question arising after verdict and addressed solely to the court. Braswell v. Johnston, 108 N. C. 150, 12 S. E. 911.

Example of Insufficient Issues. — Where in an action for damages it was alleged that the plaintiff's injuries were caused by (1) were plaintiff's injuries caused by the defendant's negligence? (2) Was there contributory negligence on the part of the plaintiff? (3) What damage was the plaintiff entitled to recover? The court adding the issues of contributory negligence and alleged in the complaint, Griffin v. Atlantic, etc., R. Co., 134 N. C. 101, 46 S. E. 7.

Inconsistent Causes of Action. — Where the pleadings alleged inconsistent causes of action in different counts of his complaint, it was error for the court to submit the case on two distinct causes of action as to the same injury. Satterthwaite v. Satterthwaite, 120 N. C. 118, 27 S. E. 45.

It should be born in mind that the code system contemplates distinct findings upon material issues. These should be submitted where it can be done without repetition or confusion. Emery v. Raleigh, etc., R. Co., 102 N. C. 249, 9 S. E. 139. It is not necessary that the language of the pleadings should be incorporated into the issues, or that they should be clearly followed in drawing them.

While the pleadings are to be construed liberally with a view to substantial justice between the parties, the proof must be limited strictly to the issues as submitted by the Supreme Court in Parsley v. Nicholson, 65 N. C. 297. 209. "The rules of pleadings at common law have not been abrogated by the Code of Civil Procedure, the principles still remain, and have only been modified as to the technicalities and matters of form. The object of pleading, both in the old and the new system, is to produce issue arising on the pleadings, but the plaintiff waived this contention, and allowing the case to be tried on that theory. Ammons v. Fisher, 208 N. C. 712, 182 S. E. 479.

Art. 22. Verdict.

§ 1-201. General and special.—A general verdict is that by which the jury pronounce generally upon all or any of the issues, either in favor of the plaintiff or defendant. A special verdict is that by which the jury finds the facts only, leaving the judgment to the court. (Rev. s. 550; Code, s. 408; C. C. P., s. 232; C. S. 585.)

I. General Consideration.

II. Rendition and Reception.

III. Polling Jury.

I. GENERAL CONSIDERATION.

General Verdict.—The verdict is general when the jury, under appropriate instructions from the court as to the law applicable, simply respond affirmatively or negatively to the issues submitted. Porter v. Western, etc., R. Co., 97 N. C. 66, 71, 2 S. E. 591; Morrison v. Watson, 95 N. C. 479. The right of the parties to have a special verdict on the ground that it is inconsistent with the general verdict on the ground that it is inconsistent with the general verdict it must appear that the special findings are necessarily repugnant to it. To be inconsistent with the general verdict the court must admit of no rational conclusion which is consistent with the general verdict.

Special Verdict.—The adoption of this section wrought a radical change upon the old practice in regard to what should be stated in special verdicts. Under the former practice, after finding as to all the facts necessary in determining the rights of the parties, with a prayer for the advice of the court as to the law arising thereon, the special verdict concluded conditionally, that if, upon the whole matter, the court shall be of opinion that the plaintiff has a cause of action, the jury will find in favor of the plaintiff.

Under the law as it now stands it is no longer necessary for the plaintiff to demand that the verdict be stated in writing, and may direct a written special finding to prevail over a general (under section 1-202) one has no application. Porter v. Western, etc., R. Co., 97 N. C. 558, 62 S. E. 851.

II. RENDITION AND RECEIPTION.

Presence of Court.—A special verdict requires the presence and assent of the court. Suydam v. Williamson, 20 How. 427, 15 L. Ed. 978.

If it is not received by the court, nor in any way made known to the court, and where, with the assent of the attorney of the party in whose favor it was given, the jury retire by the court’s direction and consider further of their findings, it is of no weight as evidence for any purpose. United States v. Addyson, 6 Wall. 291, 18 IL. Ed. 919.

Where Findings of Jury in Conflict.—If there be an irreconcilable conflict in the findings of the jury upon the issues submitted, or between the verdict and the judgment, the court shall set aside the verdict and require a new trial. See 69 Ohio State Reports 101. In other words the special verdict must admit of no rational conclusion which is inconsistent with the general verdict.

Editor’s Note.—It is well settled by the reported cases in other states, construing provisions of their codes similar to this section, that a general verdict should stand unless the special findings are necessarily repugnant to it. To be inconsistent with the general verdict it must appear that the special findings are irreconcilable, in a legal sense, with the general verdict; and to justify the court in setting aside the general verdict on the ground that it is inconsistent with such findings the conflict must be clear and irreconcilable. See 69 Ohio State Reports 101. In other words the special verdict must admit of no rational conclusion which is consistent with the general verdict. See note of Porter v. Western, etc., R. Co., 97 N. C. 66, 2 S. E. 581, under sec. 1-201, analysis line “General Considerations.”

§ 1-203. Character of, for different actions.—In an action for the recovery of specific personal property, if the property has not been delivered to the plaintiff, or the defendant by his answer claims a return thereof, the jury shall assess the value of the property, if their verdict is in favor of the plaintiff; or if they find in favor of the defendant, and that he is entitled to a return thereof, they may at the same time assess the damages, if any are claimed in the complaint or answer which the jury finds the plaintiff is entitled to by reason of the detention or taking and withholding the property. In every action for the recovery of money only, or specific real property, the jury, in their discretion, may render a general or special verdict. In all other cases, the court may direct the jury to find a special verdict in writing, upon all or any of the issues; and in all cases may instruct them, if they render a general verdict, to find upon particular questions of fact to be stated in writing, and may direct a written finding thereon. The special verdict or finding shall be filed with the clerk, and entered upon the

§ 1-204. Jury to assess damages; counterclaim.

When a verdict is found for the plaintiff in an action for the recovery of money, or for the delivery of personal property, when the property cannot be re-delivered by plaintiff in specie, the value thereof, in case of the judgment for the defendant, should be assessed at the time of the trial and not at the time of its seizure by the sheriff. Holmes v. Godwin, 69 N. C. 467, 468.

Account and Settlement of Trust Fund.—The court has the power in certain cases, to direct a special finding of the issue in an action for an account and settlement of a trust fund, and so also in all other cases except where the suit is for ‘money only’ or for ‘specific real property.’

§ 1-205. Entry of verdict and judgment.

Exceptions as Condition for Appeal.—See section 1-282 and 2. If there is error, either in the refusal of the court to give or in its instructions generally, the same is deemed excepted to without the filing of any formal objections. (Rev., s. 554; Code, s. 412; C. C. P., s. 236; C. S. 589.)

To Whom Returnable.—The verdict should be returned before the presiding judge, Zagier v. Southern Exp. Co., 171 N. C. 692, 89 S. E. 43, but by consent of the counsel, the clerk of the superior court can represent the judge in taking the verdict. Barger Bros. v. Alley, 167 N. C. 362, 83 N. C. 612.

The discretionary act of the trial judge in rendering judgment upon a verdict of the jury returned during recess of the court without the consent of counsel will not be reviewed on appeal when it appears from the finding of the court that the jury had not discussed the case before delivering it to the clerk, although several of them so thereafter with appellée’s attorney; that the verdict was agreed to before the jurors separated, no improper influence had induced it, and the issues were not recorded until after the verdict was returned to the judge. Zagier v. Southern Express Co., 171 N. C. 692, 89 S. E. 43.

An agreement empowering the judge to sign judgment “out of terms” gave him no power after the adjournment of the term to hear and pass upon a motion to set the verdict aside. Knowles v. Savage, 140 N. C. 372, 374, 52 S. E. 930.

Verdict Must Be Accepted.—Before a verdict returned upon an open court by a jury is complete, it must be accepted by the court as a whole. See § 1-204, and it is the duty of the judge to look after the form and substance of a verdict, so as to prevent a doubtful or insufficient finding from passing into the records. State v. Godwin, 138 N. C. 582, 50 S. E. 277.

In Informal and Irregular Verdict.—When a jury returns an informal, insensible, or a repugnant verdict, or one that is not responsive to the issues submitted, they may be directed by the court to retire and reconsider the matter and bring in a verdict in proper form; but it is incumbent upon the judge not even to suggest the alteration of a verdict in substance. State v. Godwin, 138 N. C. 582, 50 S. E. 277.

§ 1-206. Exceptions.

If an exception is taken upon the trial, it must be reduced to writing at the time with so much of the evidence or subject matter as may be material to the exception taken; the same must be entered in the judge’s minutes and filed with the clerk as a part of the case upon appeal.

2. If there is error, either in the refusal of the judge to grant a prayer for instructions, or in granting a prayer, or in his instructions generally, the same is deemed excepted to without the filing of any formal objections. (Rev., s. 554; Code, s. 412; C. C. P., s. 236; C. S. 590.)
II. INSTRUCTIONS.

§ 1-207. Motion to set aside.—The judge who tries the case may, after hearing the argument, grant a motion to set aside a verdict, before rendering judgment, and where the attention of the court was not called to any error in the record, and the consent of the party against whose judgment it is sought to be set aside is obtained, the exercise of the discretion is not in the nature of an appeal, and the court may set aside a verdict, as against the weight of the evidence, or to correct an inadequate or defective verdict, or for insufficiency of evidence, or for excessive damages; but such motion can only be heard at the same term at which the trial is had. When the motion is heard and decided upon the minutes of the judge, and an appeal is taken from the decision, a case or exceptions must be settled in the usual form, upon which the argument of the appeal must be had. (Rev., s. 534; Code, s. 412; C. C. P., s. 236; C. S. 591.)

§ 1-207. Motions to Grant a Prayer for Instructions.—Motions to grant a prayer for instructions have been construed as not to require the attorneys for the excepting party to prepare them in writing. Buckner v. Madison County R. Co., 164 N. C. 201, 80 S. E. 63.

Section Should Be Specific.—Exceptions taken upon the trial should be as specific as possible and should point out the nature of the error complained of. Williams v. Johnston, 94 N. C. 631; State v. English, 164 N. C. 497, 498, 80 S. E. 72, and cases cited.

Indefinite Exception.—An indefinite exception will be overruled. Stroud v. Stroud, 145 N. C. 357, 9 S. E. 112; Hendrick v. Randell, 162 N. C. 523, 77 S. E. 1011.

Motions to set aside a verdict or to set aside a verdict and grant a new trial upon exceptions, as provided by this section, was made at the trial. Staev. v. Harvell, 208 N. C. 103, 106, 179 S. E. 448.

The court under this section has the power to set aside the verdict, but none to reverse the answers of the jury. Risen v. Smith, 68 N. C. 354, 345; Lee v. Pearce, 68 N. C. 77, 80; McCown v. Sims, 69 N. C. 159, 161.

While the trial court has the power to set aside a verdict when he is of the opinion that it is not supported by the evidence or is against the weight of the evidence, under this section he may not modify the verdict as modified by his opinion the jury made an error in computing the amount returned in their answer, and a new trial will be ordered upon agreement of the judgment rendered on the verdict as modified by the court. Edwards v. Upchurch, 212 N. C. 249, 193 S. E. 439.

Agreement Made by Attorney for Client.—Where the trial judge has announced his decision to set aside a verdict unless the parties should agree in a certain particular, to which the plaintiff’s attorney agreed without the consent of his client and against her instructions, and the judgment so agreed is entered, the plaintiff’s attorney is estopped from resisting the entry of judgment setting aside the verdict nunc pro tunc. Bizzell v. Auto Tire, etc., Co., 182 N. C. 98, 108 S. E. 439.

Where Matter Determined Out of Term. — Where the judgment is for money to be paid after the trial, as within the statutory discretion of the trial judge, and the judge intimates he will grant the motion, but the parties agree that he may determine the matter out of the term, and the judgment is thus agreed upon by the court and the parties, they acquire the matter, and not hearing from the parties the judge renders his previous intimation, and sets a time and place for hearing, at which one of the parties appears and refuses to consent to the trial of the motion, the verdict is then set aside within his reasonable discretion deals with the record as it originally stood, and is not a substitute for the discretion given him by this section. Bailey v. Dibrell Mineral Co., 183 N. C. 525, 112 S. E. 29.

SUBCHAPTER VIII. JUDGMENT.

§ 1-208. Defined.—A judgment is either interlocutory or the final determination of the rights of the parties in the action. (Rev. s. 555; Code, s. 384; C. C. P., s. 210; C. S. 592.)

Definition of Final Judgment. — A judgment is final which decides the case upon its merits without reservation for other and future directions of the court. Sanders v. Michael, 173 N. C. 47, 91 S. E. 526; Fleming v. Roberts, 84 N. C. 532.

Definition of Interlocutory Order. — An interlocutory order or decree is provisional or preliminary only. It does not finally adjudge and determine the rights of the parties, but it remains subject to further proceedings preparatory to the final decree. Johnson v. Robertson, 171 N. C. 194, 88 S. E. 231.

It remains in the control of the court to modify or rescind at any time, and on good cause shown they may be amended, modified, charged or rescinded, as the court may think proper. Maxwell v. Blair, 95 N. C. 317, 318.

Jurisdiction. — It is a well established principle that in order that a judgment or decree may be valid and binding, the court rendering the same must have jurisdiction over both the parties and of the subject matter. Wetmore v. Karrik, 235 U. S. 141, 34 S. Ct. 141, 45 L. Ed. 743, 744, 14 S. E. (2d) 833.

Nature of Judgment. — In its ordinary acceptation, a judgment is the conclusion of the law or facts admitted or established in the case. Sedbury v. Southern Exp. Co., 107 N. C. 350, 10 S. E. 94. 212 S. E. 197.

JUDGMENT AS A CONTRACT. — While judgments are some- times spoken of as contracts, that is not the case in the ordinary acceptation of the term, in view of attempting to compromise the disputed rights and claims of the parties, equitable as well as legal. Hutchinson v. Smith, 68 N. C. 354, 355; Lee v. Pearce, 68 N. C. 77, 80; McCown v. Sims, 69 N. C. 159, 161.

Judgment Granted. — Since the gist of the accepted definition of a judgment is “the final determination of the rights of the parties to an action,” courts are required to recognize both the legal and equitable rights of the parties, and the judgment is not to be confined to the rights of the parties, equitable as well as legal. Hutchinson v. Smith, 68 N. C. 354, 355; Lee v. Pearce, 68 N. C. 77, 80; McCown v. Sims, 69 N. C. 159, 161.

Judgment as a Contract. — While judgments are sometimes spoken of as contracts, they are not in reality contracts, and are never so considered in reference to the clause in the federal constitution which forbids that contracts should be required by the state legislature. Motto v. Davis, 131 N. C. 217, 65 S. E. 969.

However, judgments are considered as contracts to distinguish a cause of action thereon from one ex delicto. Moore v. Lowell, 94 N. C. 299.

A judgment for damages, estimated in money, is sometimes called by text-writers a specialty or contract of re- cord, because it establishes a legal obligation to pay the amount recovered, and, by a fiction of law, the promise to pay is implied where such legal obligation exists. Louisiana v. New Orleans, 109 U. S. 285, 3 S. Ct. 211, 27 L. Ed. 936.

It is upon this principle that an action in form ex con- tractu will lie on a judgment rendered on Contracts § 70. Garrison v. New York, 21 Wall. 196, 22 L. Ed. 612. But this fiction cannot convert a transaction wanting the assent of parties into one which necessarily falls under the term contracts. Louisiana v. New Orleans, 109 U. S. 285, 3 S. Ct. 211, 27 L. Ed. 936.

Operation of Judgment in Rem as Passing Title. — A condemnation in a proceeding in rem does not necessarily involve all the interests of those which were seized, but does not vest the property in the condemnor. Day v. Mico, 18 Wall. 156, 156 L. Ed. 860. In admiralty cases and in revenue cases a condemnation does not pass the entire property to the thing condemned and sold. Day v. Mico, 18 Wall. 156, 156 L. Ed. 893.

But such is not the case in many proceedings which are in reality suits to quiet title or to enforce a priority of the plaintiff directing sales for the payment of a decedent’s debt or for distribution are proceedings in rem. So are sales under attachments or proceedings to foreclose a mortgage in rem. In none of these is anything more sold than the estate of the decedent, or of the debtor, or of the mortgagor in the thing sold. The interests of others are not cut off or affected, Day v. Mico, 18 Wall. 156, 156 L. Ed. 890.

Extrinsic Evidence. — Extrinsic evidence to aid in the interpretation of a judgment or decree is inadmissible, unless, after reference to the pleadings and proceedings, there remains some ambiguity or uncertainty in it. Burthe v. Dibrell, 191 N. C. 314, 137 S. E. 365.

§ 1-209. Judgments authorized to be entered by clerk; sale of property; continuance pending sale; writs of assistance and possession.—The clerks of the superior courts are authorized to enter the following judgments: (a) All judgments of voluntary nonsuit. (b) All consent judgments. (c) In all actions upon notes, bills, bonds, stated accounts, balances struck, and other evidences of indebtedness within the jurisdiction of the superior court. (d) All judgments by default final and default and inquiry as are authorized by §§ 1-211, 1-212, 1-213, and in this section provided. (e) In cases where the clerks of the superior court enter judgment by default on any debt secured by mortgage, deed of trust, conditional sale contract or other conveyance of any kind, either real or personal property, or by a pledge of property, the said clerks of the superior court are authorized and empowered to order a foreclosure of such mortgage, deed of trust, conditional sale contract, or other conveyance, and order a sale of the property so conveyed or pledged upon such terms as appear to be just; and the said clerks of the superior court shall have all the power

§ 1-210. Return of execution; order for disbursement of proceeds.—In all executions issued by the clerk of the Superior Court upon judgment before the clerk of the Superior Court, under § 1-200, and execution issued thereon, the sheriff shall make his return to the clerk of the Superior Court, who shall make the final order directing the sheriff to disburse the proceeds arising from the sale, and may issue writs of assistance and possession upon ten days notice to parties in possession. The commissioners appointed to make foreclosure sales, as herein authorized, may proceed to advertise such sales immediately after the date of entering judgment and order of foreclosure, unless otherwise provided in said judgment and order.

In any tax foreclosure action pending on March 15, 1939 or thereafter brought under the provisions of § 105-144 in which there is filed no answer which seeks to prevent entry of judgment for tax or for judgment of foreclosure of a lien created by said tax, the court may, in its discretion, confirm the report of sale or to order a resale, to receive the reports thereof, and to make all necessary orders disbursing the funds arising from the sale, and may issue writs of assistance and possession upon ten days notice to parties in possession. The commissioners appointed to make foreclosure sales, as herein authorized, may proceed to advertise such sales immediately after the date of entering judgment and order of foreclosure, unless otherwise provided in said judgment and order.

Local Modification.—Vance: 1941, c. 139, s. 1.

Editor's Note.—The primary object of this section is to provide for the hearing and determination of uncontested rights involved in the particular class of actions enumerated herein. It was settled even when the section provided for a different return day, that this section was not repugnant to section 1-89 which purports to apply to "all civil actions in the superior court," and hence the general repealing clause of that section did not serve to "all civil actions in the superior court," and hence the general repealing clause of that section did not serve to repeal the remedy herein provided for in these specifically designated actions. Under the circumstances, the courts, in their endeavor to effect a speedy hearing and determination of uncontested rights involved in the particular class of actions enumerated herein, have construed the two sections together and section 1-209, although ratified four days prior to the amendments of section 1-89 in 1919, was considered an exception to that section and the remedy prescribed thereby to be an additional and more speedy method of relief in the stated classes of suits. Young v. Davis, 182 N. C. 200, 108 S. E. 630.

Prior to the amendment of this section by the Public Laws 1921, the section pertained merely to what is now the third class (c); the other classes (a), (b), (d) and (e), were added by the act of 1921. See 1 N. C. Law Rev. 16.

This section was amended twice by the Public Laws 1929, Ch. 32. The amendment added the words "without taking any other action under the provisions of the statute regulating an appeal from a judgment entered by the clerk, and to appeal therefrom to the judge, as provided by the statute for appeals from orders and judgments upon other grounds. The proper practice, we think, is for the complaining party to except to the judgment, as entered by the clerk, and to appeal therefrom to the judge, as in other cases provided for in the statute. An appeal will then lie from the judgment of the superior court to the Superior Court. Caldwell v. Caldwell, 189 N. C. 805, 128 S. E. 329; McFetters v. Caldwell, 219 N. C. 731, 14 S. E. (2d) 833.

Appeals from Clerk to Judge.—There is no provision in the statute authorizing an appeal from a judgment rendered by the clerk under the authority of the statute upon the ground that such judgment is erroneous. It would seem that the appeal from judgment, upon this ground, may be taken from the clerk to the judge, as provided by the statute for appeals from orders and judgments upon other grounds. The proper practice, we think, is for the complaining party to except to the judgment, as entered by the clerk, and to appeal therefrom to the judge, as in other cases provided for in the statute. An appeal will then lie from the judgment of the superior court to the Superior Court. Caldwell v. Caldwell, 189 N. C. 805, 128 S. E. 329, 332.

In Ward v. Agullo, 194 N. C. 321, 139 S. E. 451, cited in Howard v. Queen City Coach Co., 211 N. C. 339, 331, 190 S. E. 478, it was held that the statute was not intended to provide an additional and more speedy method of relief in the stated classes of suits. This statute is an enabling act and regarded as an additional and more speedy method of relief in the stated classes of suits. Young v. Davis, 182 N. C. 200, 108 S. E. 630.

§ 1-210. Return of execution; order for disbursement of proceeds.—In all executions issued by the clerk of the Superior Court upon judgment before the clerk of the Superior Court, under § 1-200, and execution issued thereon, the sheriff shall make his return to the clerk of the Superior Court, who shall make the final order directing the sheriff to disburse the proceeds received by him under said execution: Provided, that any interested party may appeal to the Superior Court, where the matter shall be heard de novo. (1925, c. 222, s. 1.)

§ 1-211. By default final.—Judgment by default final may be had on failure of defendant to answer—

1. Where the complaint sets forth one or more causes of action, each consisting of the breach of an express or implied contract to pay, absolutely or upon a contingency, a sum or sums of money fixed by the terms of the contract, or capable of being ascertained therefrom by computation. Upon proof of personal service of summons, or of service of summons by publication, on one or more of the defendants, and upon the complaint being verified, judgment shall be entered for the amount mentioned in the complaint, against the defendant or defendants, or against one or more of several defendants.

2. Where the defendant, by his answer in such action, does not deny the plaintiff’s claim, but sets up a counterclaim, amounting to less than the plaintiff’s claim, judgment may be had by the plaintiff for the excess of his claim over the counterclaim, in like manner in any such action, upon the plaintiff’s filing with the court a statement admitting the counterclaim, which statement must be annexed to and be a part of the judgment roll. Or the court may in its discretion, order the pleadings to be so amended and the action severed as to entitle the plaintiff to judgment upon all of the claims admitted over and above the setoff or counterclaim pleaded by the defendant; and, upon application of the plaintiff, shall enter judgment for the plaintiff for so much of the claim as is admitted. The action shall thereupon be continued as to subsequent proceedings, as if it had been brought for the remainder of the claim, and the counterclaim or setoff as pleaded by the defendant shall apply thereto. Said remainder of the claim shall in any event be sufficient to cover the full amount of the principal and interest set up by the defendant in the counterclaim or setoff, and an amount in excess thereof, if in the discretion of the court the same is necessary, the court being empowered to designate and determine what part of the plaintiff’s claim shall be held for the subsequent proceedings herein referred to.

3. In actions where the service of the summons was by publication, the plaintiff may, in like manner, apply for judgment, and the court may thereupon require proof to be made of the demand mentioned in the complaint, and if the defendant is not a resident of the state, must require the plaintiff or his agent to be examined on oath respecting any payments that have been made to the plaintiff, or to any one for his use on account of such demand, and may render judgment for the amount which he is entitled to receive. But the court may in its discretion require the plaintiff to cause to be filed satisfactory security to abide the order of the court touching the restitution of any estate or effects which may be directed by such judgment to be transferred or delivered, or the restitution of any money that may be collected under and by virtue of said judgment, in case the defendant or his representatives apply and are admitted to defend the action, and succeed in such defense.

4. In actions for the recovery of personal property, or for the possession thereof, upon the failure of the defendant to file the undertaking required by law, or upon failure of his sureties to justify according to law, unless the defendant is excused from giving such undertaking before answering.

5. In actions for the recovery of personal property, or for the possession thereof, or to have the plaintiff or plaintiffs adjudged the owner or owners thereof, if the complaint be verified. VI. Setting Aside.

I. IN GENERAL.

A. Failure to File Answer.

Cross Reference.—See also, § 1-209.

Against State.—It has been held in several instances by the U. S. Supreme Court that judgment by default for want of appearance may be entered against a state. United States v. Girault, 11 How. 22; 13 1. Bd. 587.

Time to Answer.—As to time for answering, see sec. 1-69 and the notes thereto. As to time of filing complaint and extension thereof, see sec. 1-121 and notes thereto.

In a suit to set aside certain deeds alleged to be void and to declare the plaintiff the owner of the title to lands, a judgment by default is regularly entered when the defendant has failed to file an answer within the statutory time, and the summons has been duly served. Jernigan v. Jernigan, 178 N. C. 84, 100 S. E. 184.

Where a complaint in an action set up two causes of action, one for indebtedness due on a note and the other for fraudulent conversion of money, the court may, where the defendant makes no appearance or defense, enter judgment by default of the first charge but not as to the second. Stewart v. Bryan, 121 N. C. 46, 28 S. E. 18.

Where Answer Insufficient.—When matters are alleged in the complaint to be in the personal knowledge of the defendant, an averment in the answer thereto that he "has no knowledge or information sufficient to form a belief as to the truthfulness thereof and, therefore, denies the same," is insufficient, and judgment can be rendered for want of an answer if such allegation goes to the cause of action. Streator v. Streator, 145 N. C. 337, 59 S. E. 112.

Effect of Failure Promptly to Take Judgment by Default.—A failure to take a judgment by default as soon as the same is allowable does not work a discontinuance. Governor v. Lassiter, 83 N. C. 38.

B. The Complaint.

Should Conform to the Complaint.—Judgment by default should be so drawn as to be in strict conformity with the complaint filed. Currie v. Mining Co., 157 N. C. 359, 72 S. E. 981.

Complaint Should Be Definite.—A pleader desiring a judgment by default must set forth clearly the facts upon which the admission of which, by failure to answer, he bases his right to relief, that the court may, upon the interpretation by the complaint, adjudge his rights to correspond with such facts, for otherwise the judgment would be irregular. Currie v. Mining and Milling Co., 157 N. C. 209, 72 S. E. 989.

Court Must Construe Complaint.—Upon motion made before the clerk to set aside a judgment by default final for the want of an answer, under this section, and also when an appeal in, or to, the failure of the defendant to have filed his answer only admits the truth of the facts alleged in the complaint, leaving the court to construe the complaint to ascertain if the facts alleged are sufficient to sustain the judgment, and if not, the judgment will be set aside. Beard v. Sovereign Lodge, 184 N. C. 154, 113 S. E. 663.
New Parties. — Where a complaint was filed against the defendant, and in the progress of the action another party defendant is brought in, the complaint must be amended or a new complaint filed as to him, unless he waive his right to the same by answer or contest. Vass v. Building, etc., Ass'n, 91 N. C. 55. If no complaint is filed as to such new parties the judgment is irregular and cannot be confirmed.

Verification of Complainant Essential. — A complaint which is not verified as required by statute is insufficient and must be regarded as unverified, upon which a final judgment can not be rendered, for it is only when the complaint is properly verified that the court before an officer authorized to administer oaths, Currie v. Mining Co., 157 N. C. 209, 72 S. E. 980; Miller v. Curl, 162 N. C. 1, 77 S. E. 952.

Same—Where Complaint Improperly Verified. — Where a properly verified complaint would entitle a plaintiff to a judgment final, for want of an answer, if the complaint is not properly verified, the judgment should be by default and inquiry. Cole v. Boyd, 125 N. C. 466, 34 S. E. 557.

Breach of Contract. — In order to authorize a judgment by default final in an action based on the contract the complainant must establish not only that the alleged breach, so that the court may determine proper to render a final judgment when the complaint is verified. Witt v. Long, 93 N. C. 388.

Same-Substantial Compliance Sufficient. — While it is essential that the complaint fully and specifically set out the facts essential to the judgment final, each of the alleged breaches, but the alleged breach, so that the court may determine whether the action as stated can be maintained. Baker v. Corey, 195 N. C. 299, 141 S. E. 892.

II. NATURE AND ESSENTIALS.

A. Definite Debt.

Editor's Note. — This section, authorizing the clerk to enter judgment in all cases where the defendant fails to answer, which has been entered in the due course of practice of the courts, such judgment will be upheld. Bost v. Tripp, 111 N. C. 264, 265, 52 S. Biv. L. 577.

Express Promise to Pay. — When personal service on the defendant has been properly made, a judgment by default for want of an answer may be obtained, if the complaint alleges an express promise to pay a sum due. Currie v. Mining and Milling Co., 157 N. C. 209, 72 S. E. 980.

Express Promise to Pay. — When the allegation is of a sum certain expended for the benefit of the defendant and there is a failure to render an account, the judgment should be by default and inquiry. Hartman v. Farrier, 95 N. C. 177, 178.

Goods Sold and Delivered. — Where the action is on an implied contract to pay for goods sold and delivered the judgment rendered should be by default and inquiry and not by default final. Jefferies v. Aaron, 120 N. C. 167, 52 S. E. 73.

On Note. — A judgment by default on a note for the payment of money only, against one who fails to appear and answer the complaint, is regular in all respects. Morehead Banking Co. v. Duke, 121 N. C. 110, 28 S. E. 191.

Failure to Allege Promise to Pay. — Where the complaint only alleges the value of the goods sold without also alleging a promise to pay, upon a default in the defense to a refusal to render an account there is no need of proof, as the judgment by default admits the claim. Adrian v. Jackson, 75 N. C. 536, 539.

 DAMAGES Must Be Certain. — When the amount of the debt is precise and final by the agreement of the parties, or can be ascertained by computation, there is no need of proof, as the judgment by default admits the claim. Adrian v. Jackson, 75 N. C. 536, 539.

Same—Breach of an Official Bond. — In an action on an official bond, on failure of a defendant to answer, a judgment entered against him on account cannot be final since the action is not for the breach of an express or implied contract to pay a definite sum of money. Battie v. Baird, 110 N. C. 529, 14 S. E. 248.

Same—Bail Bond. — A judgment by default final for want of an answer in a suit upon a bail bond cannot be sustained. It should be by default and inquiry. Roulhae v. Miller, 205 U. S. 141, 27 S. Ct. 434, 51 L. Ed. 745.

Sum Certain or Computable. — A judgment by default final is irregularly entered upon a pleading that does not allege a sum certain or computable, due upon contract, ex-
Judgment is sought against a defendant it is essential that personal service of summons on him. Currie v. Mining Co., 157 N. C. 209, 72 S. E. 980.

Charged with Notice. — Notice to the adverse party of a motion in term for a judgment by default for the want of an answer is void, for in legal contemplation, the defendant is in court by service of a summons and is charged with notice of whatever action the court takes during the pendency of the suit. Reynolds v. Greensboro Boiler, etc., Co., 157 N. C. 342, 69 S. E. 248; Jernigan v. Jernigan, 178 N. C. 84, 100 S. E. 184.

III. AFFIRMATIVE RELIEF BY DEFENDANT.

Judgment by Default Not Allowed Where Court Permits Formal Denial. — The defendant is not entitled to judgment by default on his counterclaim where the court in the exercise of its discretion allows a formal denial to be entered. Tillinghast Co. v. Cotton Mills, 143 N. C. 268, 55 S. E. 621; Bernhardt v. Dutton, 146 N. C. 206, 59 S. E. 651.

IV. REAL PROPERTY.

Recovery of the Property Sought. — Where in an action to recover land, the defendant fails to file, or is not excused even if there has been a failure to file an answer arising from excusable neglect. Vick v. Baker, 122 N. C. 98, 100, 29 S. E. 64.

Possession of the Property. — In an action to recover possession of land, where the defendant fails to file a bond or the required bond, and does not ask leave to answer without giving bond until the time for answering has expired, it is proper to enter judgment by default. Jones v. Baker, 122 N. C. 98, 100, 29 S. E. 64.

Where a tenant is joined with his landlord as co-defendant, and the tenant fails to give the required undertaking, judgment may be entered against him. Harkey v. Houston, 150 N. C. 417, 60 S. E. 117.

Time of Filing. — The trial judge, in his discretion, may permit a defendant at the trial to file the required bond. Carraway v. Stancill, 157 N. C. 472, 49 S. E. 957.

Notice. — Upon the failure of the defendant to file the necessary bond, it is error to strike out his answer and judgment by default without due notice and an opportunity to show cause. Cooper v. Warlick, 109 N. C. 672, 14 S. E. 106. See also, McMillan v. Baker, 92 N. C. 111.

Waiver of Bond. — The bond required of the defendant is for the benefit of the plaintiff and he can waive it, and will be deemed to have done so even if there has been a failure to file an answer and judgment by default without due notice and an opportunity to show cause. Cooper v. Warlick, 109 N. C. 672, 14 S. E. 106. See also, McMillan v. Baker, 92 N. C. 111.

Failure to "Justify" Bond. — A failure to file a "justified" bond, as is required, does not necessarily avoid the bond, but it is a defect which may be cured by waiver. Becton v. Dunn, 137 N. C. 559, 560, 59 S. E. 269.

V. PERSONAL PROPERTY.

Editor's Note.—The Act of 1929 added subsection 5.

VI. SETTING ASIDE.

Meritorious Defense. — A judgment by default final for want of an answer, when it is made to appear on appeal that one by default and inquiry should have been entered, is an irregular judgment, but on defendant's motion to set aside, he must show a meritorious defense. Baker v. Corey, 195 N. C. 299, 141 S. E. 892. See also, Marshal Supply Co. v. Vance Farm Co., 195 N. C. 629, 143 S. E. 248.

Remand for Determination of Question. — Where on appeal from the setting aside an irregular judgment of default final does not appear or pass upon, and that the movant intended to allege one, the case will be remanded for the determination of this question as to whether the defendant has such meritorious defense to pass upon as to render the judgment void. Baker v. Corey, 195 N. C. 299, 141 S. E. 892.

§ 1-212. By default and inquiry. — In all other actions, except those mentioned in §§ 1-211, when the defendant fails to answer and upon a like proof, judgment by default and inquiry may be had, and inquiry shall be executed at the next succeeding term. If the taking of an intricate or long account is necessary to execute properly the inquiry, the court, at the return term, may order the account to be taken by the clerk of the court or some other fit person, and the referee shall make his report at the next succeeding term; in all other cases the inquiry shall be executed by a jury, unless by consent the court is to try the facts as well as the law. (Rev., s. 557; Code, s. 386; C. S. 596).

Cross References.—See also, § 1-209. See note under § 1-209.

Editor's Note. — This section is somewhat in the nature of a "residual clause," the provisions of which are applicable to all those classes of cases not falling within the provisions of section 1-211. The same purpose found in section 1-211 is likewise embodied in this section, although the procedure herein provided is more time-consuming since it is necessary in these cases to determine, by way of inquiry, the respective rights of the parties and, more particularly the precise amount of recovery the one is entitled to receive.

Nature in General. — A judgment by default is one that results from default and inquiry. It consists of two things. There are two kinds of judgments by default—one final, the other interlocutory. In actions sounding in damages recovery of the property sought is an interlocutory judgment, which is rendered for want of an answer, is an admission or confession of the cause of action; and there follows a writ of inquiry by means of which the damages are to be assessed. (Black v. Womble, 170 N. C. 577, 148 S. E. 285; 286, 49 S. E. 474. See also Bowie v. Tucker, 206 N. C. 55, 173 S. E. 28, also referring to sections 1-209 to 1-211.

A judgment by default and inquiry for the want of an answer establishes the cause of action and leaves the question of the amount of damages open to the inquiry. Farmer-Cole Plumbing Co. v. Wilson Hotel Co., 168 N. C. 577, 84 S. E. 1038; Armstrong v. Ashbury, 170 N. C. 160, 189 S. E. 266.

A judgment by default and inquiry is conclusive that the plaintiff has a cause of action and entitles him to nominal damages without further proof. Foster v. Hyman, 197 N. C. 189, 148 S. E. 36.

A judgment by default final as authorized by § 1-211, is different in effect and result from a judgment by default and inquiry as authorized by this section. The former establishes the allegations of the complaint and concludes the action. The latter does not but it goes beyond such as are nominal still rests upon the plaintiff. Hill v. Hotel Co., 188 N. C. 586, 125 S. E. 266.

A judgment by default and inquiry is conclusive that the plaintiff has a cause of action and entitles him to nominal damages without further proof. Moore v. Mitchell, 61 N. C. 304.

In actions sounding in damages, as in assumpsit, covenant and a trespass, the amount of the final judgment is ascertained by a hearing in damages and final judgment thereon. DeHoff v. Black, 206 N. C. 667, 689, 175 S. E. 179.

Where Action Sounds in Damages. — In an action sounding in damages, for a violation of an official bond, the action should be by default and inquiry. Moore v. Mitchell, 61 N. C. 304.

In actions sounding in damages, as in assumpsit, covenant and a trespass, the amount of the final judgment is ascertained by a hearing in damages and final judgment thereon. DeHoff v. Black, 206 N. C. 667, 689, 175 S. E. 179.

Where Action Sounds in Damages. — In an action sounding in damages, for a violation of an official bond, the action should be by default and inquiry. Moore v. Mitchell, 61 N. C. 304.

In actions sounding in damages, as in assumpsit, covenant and a trespass, the amount of the final judgment is ascertained by a hearing in damages and final judgment thereon. DeHoff v. Black, 206 N. C. 667, 689, 175 S. E. 179.

Where Action Sounds in Damages. — In an action sounding in damages, for a violation of an official bond, the action should be by default and inquiry. Moore v. Mitchell, 61 N. C. 304.
tion or be fixed by the terms of the contract sued on, it is proper to enter judgment by default and inquiry. Skinner v. Terry, 107 N. C. 103, 12 S. E. 118.

Time of the Inquiry.—An inquiry as to damages cannot be made in the same term for which judgment by default is rendered, unless it is expressly allowed by statute. Brown v. Rinehart, 112 N. C. 772, 774, 16 S. E. 846.

Where it appears on appeal that the inquiry was made at the same term the cause will be remanded so that the inquiry may be made as this section provides. And this is true although the defendant was in the courtroom and did not except to the inquiry or to the submission of the issues there in the capacity of a witness for plaintiff. As to whether a party may waive this provision of the statute, see Qu andre v. Gregory, 148 S. E. 28.

Cited in Ward & Ward v. Agrillo, 196 N. C. 95, 96, 144 S. E. 697.

§ 1-213. By default for defendant.—If the answer contains a statement of new matter constituting a counterclaim, and the plaintiff fails to reply or demur thereto, the defendant may move for such judgment as he is entitled to upon such statement; and if the court finds that the defendant is entitled to the recovery of damages by a jury may be made. (Rev., s. 558; Code, s. 249; C. C. P., s. 106; C. S. 597.)

Editor's Note.—In the dissenting opinion by Walker, J., in Wilmington v. Bryan, 141 N. C. 666, 682, 54 S. E. 543, it is intimated that in view of the fact that the section does not expressly allow the defendant to take judgment for the excess of his counterclaim, as is the case of the plaintiff whose claim exceeds the defendant's counterclaim, it is contemplated that there be rendered a separation of damages and judgment for the respective claims of the parties.

But there was an inclination to construe the section so as to conform with the general spirit of the code that all controversies should be settled in one action and as far as possible by judgment on the counterclaim.

Section Applicable Only Where Affirmative Relief Sought.—It is only when a counterclaim is relied on as grounds for the recovery of damages that the plaintiff’s failure to reply or demur thereto, as set forth in the defendant’s answer, can be made a basis of a judgment by default. Where the plaintiff seeks affirmative relief in his answer, the defendant's counterclaim, and the plaintiff fails to reply or demur thereto, he is not entitled to judgment by default. (Rev., s. 558; Code, s. 249; C. C. P., s. 106; C. S. 597.)

Recovery by Administrator Prior to That on Defendant's Counterclaim.—Where an administrator recovers judgment upon his cause of action, and the defendant also upon his counterclaim, the former is entitled to an execution for the entire amount of his recovery; but the execution on the defendant’s judgment will be stayed until it is ascertained whether the estate of the intestate is applicable thereto. Rountree v. Britt, 94 N. C. 104.

Where in an action in which defendants set up a counterclaim, the plaintiff failed to reply thereto, and the defendant moved for judgment by default, it was held, that the defendants had waived the right to judgment on their counterclaim for failure to except. Foust v. Louden, 117 N. C. 170, 171, 21 S. E. 173.

Recovery by Administrator Prior to That on Defendant’s Counterclaim.—Where an administrator recovers judgment upon his cause of action, and the defendant also upon his counterclaim, the former is entitled to an execution for the entire amount of his recovery; but the execution on the defendant’s judgment will be stayed until it is ascertained whether the estate of the intestate is applicable thereto. Rountree v. Britt, 94 N. C. 104.

§ 1-214. Judgment by default where no answer filed; record; force; docket.—If no answer is filed, the plaintiff shall be entitled to judgment by default, whether the judgment be of the same force and effect as if rendered in term and before a judge of the superior court and be of the same force and effect as if rendered in term and before a judge of the superior court, and in all cases of judgment by default and inquiry rendered by the clerk, the clerk shall docket the case in the superior court at term time for trial upon the issues raised before a jury, or otherwise, as provided by law, and all judgments by default and inquiry shall be of the same force and effect as if rendered in term and before a judge of the superior court. (Ex. Sess., 1921, c. 92, s. 9; C. S. 597(a).)

§ 1-215. Time for rendering judgments and orders.—Judgments and orders may be rendered by the clerk on any day of the week except Sundays. All judgments rendered by the clerk in any county on the same day and docketed on that day, or within ten days thereafter, are held and deemed to have been rendered and docketed on the same day for the purpose only of establishing equal priority as among such judgments. In a special proceeding, the clerk may enter any judgment or order, either interlocutory or final, and confirm any sale on any day of the week except Sundays. (Ex. Sess., 1921, c. 92, s. 10; 1923, c. 68; 1943, c. 301, s. 2; C. S. 597(b).)

Editor's Note.—Prior to the 1941 amendment, which made this section applicable to orders, judgments were required to be entered by the clerk on Mondays.

As to judgments authorized to be entered by clerk, see § 1-209. As to validation of certain deeds and judgments made after foreclosure of mortgages and deeds of trust wherein confirmation of sale was made on a day other than the first or third Monday of the month, see § 45-31.

§ 1-215.1. Judgments or orders not rendered on Mondays validated.—In any case where, prior to the ratification of this section, any judgment or order, required to be rendered or signed on Monday, has been rendered or signed by any clerk of the superior court on any day other than a Monday, such judgment or order is hereby declared to be valid and of the same force and effect as if the day on which it was signed or rendered had been a Monday; and any conveyance executed by any commissioner or other person authorized to make a conveyance in any action or special proceeding where the appointment of the commissioner or other person, the order of sale, the order of resale, or the confirmation of sale was made on a day other than Monday, is hereby declared to be valid and to have the same force and effect as if the day on which such judgment or order was rendered had been a Monday. (1943, c. 301, s. 4.)

Editor’s Note.—The act from which this section derives was ratified February 26, 1943.

§ 1-216: Repealed by Session Laws 1943, c. 301, s. 3.

§ 1-217. Certain default judgments validated.—In every case where, prior to the first day of January, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-seven, a judgment by default final and having been entered by the clerk of the Superior Court of any county in this state on a day other than Monday, contrary to §§ 1-215 and 1-216, such judgment shall be deemed to have been entered as of the first Monday immediately following the default and is hereby to all intents and purposes validated; [ 251 ] provided, however, nothing in this section shall be construed to affect the rights of any interested party, as provided in section 1-220 other than for irreality as to date of entry of the judgment by the clerk of the court. (1927, c. 187.)

§ 1-217.1. Judgments based on summons erroneously designated alias or pluries validated.— In all civil actions and special proceedings where the defendants were served with summons and judgment thereafter entered, or any final decree made, the said judgments or decrees shall not be invalidated by reason of the fact that the summons, although designated an alias or pluries, was not actually such: Provided, that this section shall not apply where the first summons was issued more than five years preceding March 6, 1943. (1943, c. 532.)

§ 1-218. Rendered in vacation; confirmation of judicial sales.—In all cases where the superior court in vacation has jurisdiction, and all of the parties unite in the proceedings, they may apply for relief to the superior court in vacation, or in term time, at their election.

Sales made by receivers or commissioners appointed by the superior court, unless governed by the provisions of § 45-28, as amended, may after ten days from the date of sale, in the absence of objection or raise in bid, be confirmed, or in case of objection or raise in bid, resales may be ordered, without notice, in chambers in any county in the judicial district, in which the proceedings are pending, by the resident judge or the judge holding the courts of said district; but this shall not diminish the power of the court in term time to act in such matters as now provided by law where no order has been made under this section. (Rev., s. 599; Code, s. 230; 1871-3, c. 3; 1937, c. 361; C. S. 598.)

Cross References.—As to jurisdiction, in vacation and at term, see § 7-65. As to appeal from decision of utilities commission, at term or in vacation, see §§ 62-20, 62-22. As to relief in mandamus, at term or in vacation, see § 1-513. For corresponding sections to the second paragraph of this section, see also, §§ 1-404, 1-506, 55-154, 45-28, 46-45.

Editor's Note.—The 1937 amendment added the second paragraph of this section.

For article discussing effect of amendment, see 15 N. C. Law Rev. 338.

Judgment May Be Taken out of Term by Consent.—By consent of the counsel of both sides, a judgment may be entered in vacation. Westhall v. Hoyle, 141 N. C. 337, 53 S. E. 863, and cases cited.

Amendment of Judgment after Adjournment without Consent Invalidation.—An amendment of a judgment made by a judge after the last session of the court, in his room at a hotel, or at his home, without the consent, and in the absence of the counsel opposing counsel, is invalid, Hinton v. Insurance Co., 115 N. C. 22, 21 S. E. 201.

Recalls.—Where a commissioner, appointed to hold a foreclosure sale, advertises and sells the property in conformity with the order, but reports that the last and highest bid is less than the value of the property and recommends a resale, and the clerk orders a resale, the judge of the superior court, upon the appeal of one of the trustees from the order of the clerk, has jurisdiction to hear and determine the matter and order a resale at chambers while holding the answer frivolous, no appeal lies, but the plaintiff's counsel may apply to the court or judge for judgment thereon, which may be given accordingly. (Rev., s. 560; Code, s. 388; C. C. P., s. 218; C. S. 599.)

Cross References.—As to sham or irrelevant defenses, stricken out on motion, see § 1-126. As to irrelevant or redundant matter in pleading, stricken on motion, see § 1-153.

Purpose of the Section.—The main object of this section is to prevent the rights of the one from being prejudiced by the impertinent and unwarranted pleadings of the other, and to accomplish this result the provision of the section, when brought into operation, simply sets the demurrer (or answer) aside, and leaves the question to be determined by it to obtain his judgment as if it had not been filed. Shinner v. Terry, 107 N. C. 103, 12 S. E. 118.

Nature of Frivolous Answer.—A frivolous answer, entitling the plaintiff to a judgment on the pleadings, is one which is manifestly impertinent, as alleging matters which do not affect the plaintiff's right to recover. Dail & Bros. v. Harper, 83 N. C. 5, 100 S. E. 271.

When the answer is filed in good faith, and the matter of it is not manifestly impertinent, the defendant is entitled to have the facts alleged therein admitted by demurrer or passed on by the jury. Dail & Bros. v. Harper, 83 N. C. 5, 100 S. E. 271.

Its Bad Character Should Be Apparent.—An answer should never be held frivolous unless it is so clearly and purely bad in its tendency to remove a cause of action as to show its character. Hull Co. v. Carter, 83 N. C. 249.

Manner of Objecting.—On the refusal of the court to hold the answer frivolous, no appeal lies, but the plaintiff's counsel may apply their exception noted in the record, and if they should lose their case at the trial term the exception would then come up on appeal from the final judgment, or by motion for judgment non obstante veredicto. Bylars v. Starres, 118 N. C. 111, 113, 16 S. E. 917; Abbott v. Hancock, 123 N. C. 89, 90, 31 S. E. 271.

Judgment on Frivolous Answer.—When the complaint in an action on a note is verified, judgment may be rendered on a frivolous answer. Bank v. Pearson, 119 N. C. 494, 26 S. E. 46.

Nature of Frivolous Demurrer.—A demurrer is not frivolous that raises a question fit for consideration or discussion. New Bern Banking Co. v. Duffy, 156 N. C. 83, 72 S. E. 96.

Relief.—When a demurrer to the complaint is frivolous, the plaintiff is entitled to judgment by default, unless the trial court is of the opinion that in the exercise of a discretion the facts justify permission to answer over. Morgan v. Harris, 141 N. C. 358, 54 S. E. 381.

§ 1-220. Mistake, surprise, excusable neglect.—The judge shall decide as terms may be just, at any time within one year after notice thereof, relieve a party from a judgment, order, verdict or other proceeding taken against him through his mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect, and may supply an omission in any proceeding. The clerk may hear and pass upon motions to set aside judgments rendered by him, whether for irregularity or under this section, and an appeal from his order on such motion shall lie to the judge at the next term, who shall hear and pass upon such motion de novo: Provided, however, nothing in this section shall be construed to affect the rights of innocent purchasers for value in foreclosure proceedings where personal service is obtained. (Rev., s. 513; Code, s. 274; 1893, c. 81; C. C. P., s. 133; Ex. Sess. 1921, c. 92, s. 14; C. S. 600.)

I. IN GENERAL.

Editor's Note.—The last provision of this section was added by the Ex. Sess. of 1921.

The older decisions indicate that this section was received, at first, with caution, because the court was seeking relief hereunder was required to show that his case fell within the accepted definition, which was a rigid one, of the particular term on which he based his request. However, the courts, in the meantime, have more generally recognized that it is remedial in its nature and bespeaks the legislative intent for the courts to discover the substantial rights and equities of the parties and to prevent as far as possible the miscarriages of justice in the courts from which the judgment is sought to be set aside.

In reference to the conflicting decisions under this section, the court in Depriest v. Patterson, 85 N. C. 376, 378, said: "The cases are numerous and not, without reason, particularly in the nature of the cause, which enforces the necessity of some restriction, which enforces the authority of the court over its own judgments, and permits, in specified cases, their reversal (or modification) within a year after notice of their rendition, at the discretion of the court." (Parentheses supplied.)

Applies only to Matters of Fact.—This section does not extend to matters as to which the law applicable, but only as to matters of facts by which the party may reasonably be misled or surprised. Skinner v. Terry, 107 N. C. 103, 13 S. E. 118.

The remedy provided by this section is restricted to the parties aggrieved by the judgment or order sought to be set aside. The court has no power to set aside a judgment or order once rendered upon motion of a stranger to the cause. In re Hood, 208 N. C. 509, 511, 187 S. E. 268; Duke v. New Bern, 73 N. C. 305; Edwards v. Phillips, 91 N. C. 355.

Applicable to Both Adult and Infant Parties.—In application for relief under this section no distinction is made between adult and infant parties. Where the application is presented according to the requirements of the law and the practice of the court, Mauney v. Gidney, 88 N. C. 200.

Not Applicable to Irregular Verdicts.—Where an irregular verdict is rendered on the court the same cannot be set aside or altered under the provisions of this section. Becton v. Dunn, 137 N. C. 559, 50 S. E. 269; Gough v. Bell, 187 N. C. 266, 197 S. E. 355; Hood v. Stewart, 203 N. C. 424, 162 S. E. 944.

Where Judgment Rendered on Verdict.—The statute, in conferring the power, confines its exercise to judgments rendered under the specified conditions, and does not embrace such as necessarily follow the verdict, and the setting aside of which, without at the same time disturbing the verdict, would be of no advantage to the party, for it must again be shown, in a former term, for the party's benefit, that there was a sufficient ground for setting aside a judgment entered by default. However, the courts, in the meantime, have more generally recognized that it is remedial in its nature and bespeaks the legislative intent for the courts to discover the substantial rights and equities of the parties and to prevent as far as possible the miscarriages of justice in the courts from which the judgment is sought to be set aside.

The "Mistake, etc.," Must Be of the Party Seeking Relief.—In order to set aside a judgment for mistake, surprise or excusable neglect, there must be a showing of a meritorious defense so that the courts can reasonably pass upon the question whether another trial, if granted, would result advantageously to the party seeking relief. Farmers, etc., Bank v. Duke, 187 N. C. 385, 123 S. E. 1; Hill v. Huffman Hotel Co., 188 N. C. 386, 125 S. E. 265. And see also Fellos v. Allen, 202 N. C. 375, 162 S. E. 905; Hookery v. (agent; 216 N. C. 162, 162 S. E. 903), 319:150 S. E. 200; Jones v. Gregory, 195 N. C. 203, 141 S. E. 236; Garrett v. Trent, 216 N. C. 163, 162 S. E. 93.

A party seeking to have a judgment set aside on the ground of excusable neglect must at least set forth in his application facts which will entitle him to relief. Gardiner v. Parson, 111 N. C. 248, 16 S. E. 319. Hence, where a judgment has been rendered upon motion of a stranger to the cause, the record disclosing that the answer of the party to whom the judgment was rendered was signed by movent's attorney without authority, the court corrects a judgment he has inadvertently signed because the court was seeking relief hereunder was required to show that his case fell within the accepted definition, which was a rigid one, of the particular term on which he based his request. Where, upon a motion to set aside a judgment for excusable neglect and the showing of a meritorious defense, the court has had entered, without notice to defend or to be heard, a judgment by default and inquiry for the want of authority by movent's attorney, the finding is conclusive on the Supreme Court upon appeal, and the supreme court will not consider affidavits for the purpose of finding facts in motions of this sort. Clayton v. Clark, 212 N. C. 374, 193 S. E. 604.

When Voluntary Motions.—A judgment obtained against one who was non compos mentis is not void, but voidable, and can only be set aside for excusable neglect and the showing of a meritorious defense. Farmers, etc., Bank v. Duke, 187 N. C. 386, 123 S. E. 1.

Under this section a verification of a complaint which is sworn to with uplifted hand rather than on the Bible is not a sufficient ground for setting aside a judgment entered by default. Fellos v. Allen, 202 N. C. 375, 162 S. E. 905.

Where the trial court upon conflicting evidence finds as a fact that the summons in the action was in fact served on the defendant, the finding is conclusive. Hookery v. (agent; 216 N. C. 162, 162 S. E. 903), 319:150 S. E. 200; Jones v. Gregory, 195 N. C. 203, 141 S. E. 236; Garrett v. Trent, 216 N. C. 163, 162 S. E. 93.

Consent Judgment.—Where the court enters a judgment on its record appearing to have been by the consent of the defendant, it cannot be set aside. Where a judgment has been rendered on a verdict the judgment and verdict may not be set aside for excusable neglect under this section. Brown v. Craig, 137 N. C. 546, 16 S. E. 840; Clemons v. Field, 59 N. C. 400, 6 S. E. 790.

Applicable only to Judgments Rendered at Prior Terms.—A motion to set aside a judgment for excusable neglect, made at the time the judgment was signed, will be denied, unless matters being in fieri during the term, as this section applies only to judgments rendered at prior terms. Gold v. Maxwell, 172 N. C. 149, 90 S. E. 115.

Excusable Neglect and Meritorious Defense.—A judgment may be set aside upon motion if the moving party can show excusable neglect, and that he has a meritorious defense. Dunn v. Jones, 195 N. C. 354, 356, 142 S. E. 330. And see Henderson Chevrolet Co. v. Ingle, 202 N. C. 365, 162 S. E. 905; Jones v. Craddock, 211 N. C. 382, 190 S. E. 224.

The action of the trial court in setting aside the judgment for excusable neglect, and the finding of the parties in statu quo, will be upheld on appeal, under this section, the record disclosing that the answer of the defendant was a valid defense. Cagle v. Williams, 200 N. C. 727, 158 S. E. 391.

The court's order setting aside the judgment by default because the court was seeking relief hereunder was required to show that his case fell within the accepted definition, which was a rigid one, of the particular term on which he based his request. Where, upon a motion to set aside the judgment of the clerk of court, the finding is conclusive on the Supreme Court upon appeal, and the order refusing the motions will be upheld. Alton v. Southern Ry. Co., 207 N. C. 114, 176 S. E. 292.

The "Mistake, etc." Must Be of the Party Seeking Relief.—This section applies only where the mistake, surprise, etc., is that of the party seeking to have the judgment set aside. Where a motion is made to correct an erroneous judgment rendered at a former term if it appears that the error committed was that of the court and not that of the party. Simmons v. Dowd, 77 N. C. 155.

Time.—A party operating under this section has a right to set aside a judgment rendered against him within a year after notice thereof, Howell v. Harrell, 71 N. C. 161, 162; Long v. Cole, 74 N. C. 267; and where the motion is not made within such time it is fatal to the proceedings. Young v. Greenlee, 85 N. C. 593, 594. But an irregular judgment need not be rendered within this period. Monroe v. Whited, 79 N. C. 508, 510.

Same—Estimation of Period Allowed.—Where the judgment complained of is rendered on a summons personally served within the four years of this one-year period shall be ame-

Personal Notice Required.—The language "through his" contained in this section indicates that notice must be personally served, Foster v. Allison Corp., 191 N. C. 166, 131 S. E. 648. Where no personally served, the party may make his motion within twelve months after actual notice of the judgment. McLean v. Allison Corp., 191 N. C. 366, 427; Jernigan v. Jernigan, 178 N. C. 84, 109 S. E. 184.

Where a party has been brought into court by the personal service of a summons, or voluntarily does so as a party defendant, he is presumed to take notice of all the various legal steps in the proceedings, and when he seeks to have a judgment therein rendered set aside after notice, etc., he must show the surprise, mistake or excusable neglect necessary for his purpose within one year, under the provisions of this section. Foster v. Allison Corp., 191 N. C. 166, 131 S. E. 648; Askew v. Capchart, 79 N. C. 17.

Where a judgment is rendered against the defendant in a justice's court, from which he appealed to the superior court, the judgment taken against him through his "inadvertence or excusable neglect, as a ground for relieving a party against a judgment taken against him, where it appears that a defendant had no notice of the judgment, it was held to be error. McDaniel v. Watkins, 76 N. C. 39.

Same—Where Service Had by Publication.—The question in this section, in terms, applies only to a judge of the superior court, the spirit and equity of its provisions extend equally to the Supreme Court, and the same power resides here to relieve from a judgment rendered against a party through "mistake, inadvertence, surprise or excusable negligence." Wade v. New Bern, 73 N. C. 318, 319.

Facts Must be Stated.—Before a judge can vacate a judgment under this section on the grounds of excusable neglect he must find and state the facts. Clegg v. New York White Soapstone Co., 66 N. C. 391; Powell v. Weith, 66 N. C. 423. Notice of the motion must be personally served, unless the negligence is not excusable, and where a court has the right to relieve a party from a judgment, it must be shown that there was no notice to the party, either in person or by attorney, even although he supposed he was not required by the law to answer the complaint until served with a copy, Churchill v. Brooklyn Life Ins. Co., 16 N. Y. 221.

Mistake as to Nature of Summons.—The fact that a defendant supposed a summons which was served on him to be a paper in another cause pending between himself and plaintiff, that the summon did not contain any measure to answer the complaint, is not such excusable neglect as entitled him to relief. White v. Snow, 71 N. C. 232, 233. See Holden v. O'Briant, 183 N. C. 163, 167, 13 S. E. 484, where relief was granted a party who thought he was being summoned as a witness when in fact he was summoned as the defendant.

Where Party Very Old And Forgotten.—That the defendants were old and feeble, although of sound mind, and that they forgot about the service of summons upon them, and therefore took no steps to defend the action does not show excusable neglect. Pierce v. Eller, 167 N. C. 672, 83 S. E. 758.

Sickness of Party.—Where the defendant was of sound mind when the summons was served, but his health failed, and although he carried on business and defended other suits, a default judgment against such defendant will not be vacated on account of excusable neglect, because of his infirmities. Jernigan v. Jernigan, 179 N. C. 287, 102 S. E. 301.

Sickness of Family.—Where the defendant indorser of a note was required by the illness of his wife to be outside the state, and the complaint was filed on the first day of the term at which the default was entered, later, there was sufficient excuse for failure to answer to justify the opening of the default. Bank v. Brock, 174 N. C. 37, 94 S. E. 77.

Where Party Obligated to Question His Counsel.—When, as a general rule a client will be relieved against a judgment by default taken against him through the negligence of his attorney, yet where it devolves upon the client to question his counsel in regard to his case, his failure to do so is invalid. He v. McLaurin, 125 N. C. 185, 34 S. E. 269. As to setting aside a judgment taken against him through his "inadvertence, mistake, surprise, or excusable neglect." Injunction Improper. — An injunction to restrain a plaintiff from executing his judgment against defendant will not be granted. The proper remedy to remove an alleged grievance is an application to modify the terms of the judgment. Parker v. Fumbee, 87 N. C. 143, 80 S. E. 292.

Modification by One Judge of Judgment Rendered By Another.—Where a party supposes that he is entitled to relief against a judgment rendered against him, where it appears that a party who thought he was being summoned as a witness when in fact he was summoned as the defendant.

III. APPLICATION OF THE PRINCIPLES.

A. Neglect of Party.

For the personal inattention of a suitor no relief can be granted under this section. Royster & Co. v. Wicker, 87 N. C. 65.

Where Summons Regularly Served.—A party is guilty of inexcusable neglect, and is not entitled to relief against a judgment rendered against him, where it appears that a party who thought he was being summoned did not take any measure to answer the complaint, as to either person or by attorney, even although he supposed he was not required by the law to answer the complaint until served with a copy. Churchill v. Brooklyn Life Ins. Co., 16 N. Y. 221.

B. Neglect of Attorney.

Where a party has been brought into court by the personal service of a summons, or voluntarily does so as a party defendant, he is presumed to take notice of all the various legal steps in the proceedings, and when he seeks to have a judgment therein rendered set aside after notice, etc., he must show the surprise, mistake or excusable neglect necessary for his purpose within one year, under the provisions of this section. Foster v. Allison Corp., 191 N. C. 166, 131 S. E. 648; Askew v. Capchart, 79 N. C. 17.

He v. McLaurin, 125 N. C. 185, 34 S. E. 269.

Mislaid by Conversation of Counsel.—The fact that the party was misled by a conversation between his counsel and the opposing counsel may not be resorted to under this section. Hutchinson v. Rumfelt, 83 N. C. 441, 443.

Change of Post Office.—A judgment by default will not be set aside on the ground of excusable neglect, when it appears that defendant's attorney was not served with the answer and did not receive the answer mailed to them by their counsel until eleven months after it was mailed, no inquiry for letters having been made by them at the post office, and no communication being addressed to their counsel contained in the answer. Abbit v. Gregory, 195 N. C. 203, 141 S. E. 587.

Where a defendant has employed a licensed, reputable attorney of good standing, residing in one county of the state, to defend an action brought against him in another county, and that attorney put him in possession of the facts constituting his defense, and the attorney has prepared and duly filed an answer, and the cause been calendared and called for trial without notice to the defendant or his attorney, upon a judgment being obtained by default against the defendant, the defendant may, upon his motion made, have the judgment set aside, and seeks to set aside a judgment by default therein entered against him for his excusable neglect, the negligence of the attorney, if any, not being imputed to the client, and the latter being without fault. Meece v. Commercial Credit Co., 201 N. C. 561.

This section has no bearing on a case of neglect to file answer to a summons and complaint. Washington v. Johnson, 200 N. C. 269, 106 S. E. 568.

Where Counsel Instructed to Employ Other Counsel.—Where the defendant in an action has retained an attorney to defend, of high character and reputation for diligence and fidelity, and it appears that the defendant was misled by a conversation concerning the litigation, the defendant had no cause to complain, and the court was right in denying motion to set aside judgment. Clegg v. New York White Soapstone Co., 67 N. C. 302, 304.

Where the trial court finds that defendant and their attorney were present in court, that defendants' motion for a continuance was refused, and that defendants and their attorney thereupon left the court room without definite agreement with the court or opposing counsel, and did not return to defend the case, and that both defendants and their attorney were present in court, the refusal of the motion to set aside the judgment will be affirmed. Carter v. Anderson, 206 N. C. 529, 181 S. E. 750.

B. Neglect of Counsel.

Editor's Note.—As to what acts of an attorney are or are not excusable neglect, see an article under this section, entirely in accord. All seem to adhere to the same general principles, but an almost irreconcilable conflict arises upon the application of these principles to the particular cases. The cases in each case had been predicated upon one or two outstanding features found therein, and the great weight attached thereto by the courts. A few of the leading cases illustrative of the applicability of the provisions of this section to this particular subject are found in the following passages.

Dividing Line between the Cases Difficult to Determine.—It is impossible to draw a well-defined line separating those neglects that are, from those that are not excusable in the sense of the statute, and hence the facts referred to must be arranged on the one and then on the other side of that line, in each case as they arise. Mebane v. Mebane, 80 N. C. 34, 40.

Gross Negligence of Attorney.—The omission of an attorney, not having a good excuse, to perform his duty as such, in the conduct of the cause is excusable neglect in the party, and the judgment may be vacated under this section. Wiley v. Brown, 94 N. C. 514, 566; Griel v. Vernon, 65 N. C. 76; and this is especially true where the counsel is insolvent and unable to respond in damages for his neglect. Ice Mfg. Co. v. Raleigh, etc., R. Co., 125 N. C. 17, 24, 34 S. E. 100, 197 S. E. 497, and also in Deal v. Palmer, 68 N. C. 215.

Where Reputable Counsel Employed.—Where a party to an action employs a reputable attorney and is guilty of no negligence himself, the attorney's neglect in failing to appear and answer will not be imputed to the client proceeding to vacate default judgment, but the law will excuse the party and afford him relief. Stallings v. Spruill, 176 N. C. 96, 98 S. E. 277.

Where defendants who employed counsel, learned in the law, and skillful and diligent in its practice, whose zeal and fidelity to the cause of a client are unquestioned, verified by the finding of the court, that in the defendants' case they were imputed to them by their attorneys for filing, attorneys' failure to attend and perform the duty required by law was not due to such negligence on part of defendants as deprived the judge of power to grant them relief from a default judgment under this section. Abbit v. Gregory, 195 N. C. 203, 141 S. E. 587.

Where a defendant has employed a licensed, reputable attorney of good standing, residing in one county of the state, to defend an action brought in another county, and that attorney put him in possession of the facts constituting his defense, and the attorney has prepared and duly filed an answer, and the cause has been calendared and called for trial without notice to the defendant or his attorney, upon a judgment being obtained by default against the defendant, the defendant may, upon his motion made, have the judgment set aside, and seeks to set aside a judgment by default therein entered against him for his excusable neglect, the negligence of the attorney, if any, not being imputed to the client, and the latter being without fault. Meece v. Commercial Credit Co., 201 N. C. 561.

This section has no bearing on a case of neglect to file answer to a summons and complaint. Washington v. Johnson, 200 N. C. 269, 106 S. E. 568.

Where Counsel Instructed to Employ Other Counsel.—Where the defendant in an action has retained an attorney to defend, of high character and reputation for diligence and fidelity, and it appears that the defendant was misled by a conversation concerning the litigation, the defendant had no cause to complain, and the court was right in denying motion to set aside judgment. The court's permitting counsel for defendant to withdraw from the case, upon the calling of the case for trial, in the absence of order, of course, does not entitle defendant to have the judgment set aside in the absence of a showing of a meritorious defense. Seeliger v. Santos, 217 N. C. 95, 6 S. E. (2d) 801.

Mistaken Legal Advice.—Mistaken legal advice by counsel acted on by client, is not remediable under this section—being a mistake of law and not of fact. Phifer v. Travellers Ins. Co., 123 N. C. 405, 406, 31 S. E. 715.

Order of Court Not on Motion of Party.—On motion to set aside a judgment on the ground of excusable negligence, it appeared that the defendant had twice called on the clerk to enter upon the docket the name of the attorney whom he had employed, and the clerk refused to do so. The attorney himself applied to the clerk to examine the plaintiff's complaint, but was unable to see it, and during the remainder of the term was absent in obedience to a summons made by the court to hold that the defendant's neglect was excusable. Wynne v. Prairie, 85 N. C. 73.

Where Negligence of Attorney Attributable to Party.—A judgment will not be set aside for irregularity and surprise when it appears that it had to come and was regularly set upon the trial docket, and judgment entered in the due course and practice of the court, the only grounds upon which relief is sought being the employment of nonresident attorneys, who were not notified, though means of easy communication in ample time were available, the neglect of the attorneys being personally attributable to the party of the moving party, who also failed to employ attorneys, as well as to employ attorneys for the purpose. Hyde County Land, etc., Co. v. Thomasville Chair Co., 190 N. C. 437, 139 S. E. 514.

Failure of Defendant's Attorney to File Answer.—Where it appears upon the defendant's motion to set aside a judgment by default, pursuant to this section, that the same was rendered, the findings of fact made by the trial court on relevant findings of the trial judge, including that of meritorious defense, the action of the trial judge in setting aside the judgment and permitting the defendant to file an answer will not be disturbed on appeal. Abbitt v. Gregory, 195 N. C. 203, 141 S. E. 597.

Removal to Federal Court.—Where the clerk has erroneously granted defendants' motion to remove a cause to the Federal Court under § 1-256, the moving defendants may assume that no further proceedings will be had in the State Court. The order has been made from the Superior Court, and where a function by default and inquiry has been entered therein for the want of an answer, without notice, nothing else appearing to have occurred, laches cannot be set aside by motion under the provisions of the statute. Gaster v. Thomas, 188 N. C. 346, 124 S. E. 69; but where no laches are attributable to the client he will be granted relief. Geer v. Reams, 89 N. C. 477.

Omissions.

IV. PLEADING AND PRACTICE

Burden of Proof.—A party seeking to vacate a judgment under this section is always at default and the burden is upon him to show which the petitioner, in order to sustain his motion, must show that the facts upon which the motion is founded are true. Carter v. Anderson, 82 N. C. 469, 470.

May Not Be Collaterally Attacked.—The effect of an amendment made by the court cannot be collaterally attacked on a motion for an order of judgment for excusable negligence, the judge does not state the ground on which he ordered his action will be upheld if in any aspect of the case it would be proper. Foley, Bro. & Co. v. Blank, 92 N. C. 476.

In setting aside a judgment under this section, the court is required to find the facts not only in regard to the excusable neglect relied on, but also the facts in regard to a meritorious defense, and a finding of a "meritorious defense" without finding the facts showing a meritorious defense, is insufficient. Parnell v. Ivey, 213 N. C. 644, 197 S. E. 728.

Rehearing.—A rehearing under this section is not a matter of right, but rests in the sound discretion of the court. Williams v. Alexander, 70 N. C. 665.

Failure of Defendant's Attorney to File Answer.—Where it appears upon the defendant's motion to set aside a judgment entered by the clerk, as authorized by statute, may be made before and passed upon by either the judge or the clerk. From an order made by the judge, upon defendant's motion to vacate judgment, the defendant may, by appeal, pass upon the jurisdiction to pass upon and determine all matters of law or legal inference duly presented by appeal. Const. of N. C., art. 4, § 12. In order made by the clerk, upon such motion, an appeal will lie to the judge and the clerk of the court on the motion, de novo. Caldwell v. Caldwell, 189 N. C. 805, 128 S. E. 329, 332.

Right of Appeal May be Lost.—The right of appeal from a judgment, and a review thereof for errors of law in it, cannot be restored to a party who has lost the right by a failure of defendant's attorney to file answers to the complaint within the time required by statute. Weil & Bro. v. Woodard, 104 N. C. 355, 10 S. E. 259.

C. Questions Requiring Appeal. —Whether upon the facts found by the judge, the neglect of attorneys for defendants, will be corrected, and the motion remanded, to the end that the findings of fact are based upon sufficient evidence in the absence of exceptions to the findings, and the order will be affirmed if the findings sustain the court's holding that movents have shown excusable neglect and a meritorious defense. Pfeiffer v. Royal Pines Park, 207 N. C. 309, 176 S. E. 285.

Questions Requiring Appeal.—Whether upon the facts found by the judge, the neglect of attorneys for defendants, will be corrected, and the motion remanded, to the end that the findings of fact are based upon sufficient evidence in the absence of exceptions to the findings, and the order will be affirmed if the findings sustain the court's holding that movents have shown excusable neglect and a meritorious defense. Pfeiffer v. Royal Pines Park, 207 N. C. 309, 176 S. E. 285.

Pfeiffer v. Royal Pines Park, 207 N. C. 309, 176 S. E. 285.

Pfeiffer v. Royal Pines Park, 207 N. C. 309, 176 S. E. 285.
§ 1-221. Stands until reversed.—Every judgment given in a court of record having jurisdiction of the subject is, and continues to be, in force until reversed according to law. (Rev., s. 561; Code, s. 935; R. C., c. 31, s. 105; 4 Hen. IV, c. 23; C. S. 601.)

Editor's Note.—See 11 N. C. Law Rev. 251, for note on the “Effect of judgment pending” with reference to this section.

Injurial Judgments.—Even though the judgment is irregular it stands until vacated or reversed, Stearns v. Goebel, 123 N. C. 19, 20, 31 S. E. 265; and such judgment may be corrected only in a direct proceeding. Pinnell v. Burroughs, 168 N. C. 115, 117, 75 S. E. 354; Brown v. Harding, 170 N. C. 253, 86 S. E. 1093.

Applied in Myers v. Wilmington-Wrightsboro, etc., Causeway Co., 204 N. C. 260, 167 S. E. 858.

§ 1-222. For and against whom given; failure to prosecute.—1. Judgment may be given for or against one or more of several plaintiffs, and for or against one or more of several defendants; and it may determine the ultimate rights of the parties on each side, as between themselves.

2. It may grant to the defendant any affirmative relief to which he may be entitled.

3. In an action against several defendants, the court may, in its discretion, render judgment against one or more of them, leaving the action to proceed against the others, whenever a sever judgment is proper.

4. The court may also dismiss the complaint, with costs in favor of one or more defendants, in case of unreasonable neglect on the part of the plaintiff to serve the summons on other defendants, or to proceed in the cause against the defendant or defendants served. (Rev., s. 563; Code, s. 424; C. C. P., s. 248; C. S. 602.)

Editor's Note.—The primary object of the provisions of this section is to prevent as far as possible multiplicity of actions, and to avoid expense to suit all the controverted matters arising or likely to arise out of the transaction. That this end may be accomplished, the courts, wherever the peculiar case can be justly and equitably brought within the provisions of this section, have allowed, and sometimes compelled, the parties to submit and litigate all the issues that may be presented, whether the respective claim be against a party on the same side or against one on the other side.

Judgments Not to Be Cumulative.—The courts in North Carolina are required to recognize both the legal and equitable rights of the parties, and to frame their judgments under this section so as to determine all the rights of the parties, equitable as well as legal. Hutchinson v. Deaton, 11 N. C. 354, 355, 4 Hen. IV, c. 23; Melvin v. Stephens, 82 N. C. 284, 288. And this is true of any relief to which the facts alleged and proved entitle him, whether it be an Injunctive Relief or not. McNeil v. Hodges, 105 N. C. 53, 55, 11 S. E. 365.

Anyone or All May Be Compelled to Answer.—The proper construction of this section is that where the plaintiff brings the defendant into court to answer a claim for a debt which he owes them, he cannot only require them, but either one or all of them, to answer for a debt due him, whether it is a debt specially with their debt against him or is an independent claim. Sloan & Co. v. McDowell, 71 N. C. 356, 357.

The Rights and Liabilities of the Parties May Be Determined.—The court is fully empowered under this section to determine the rights and liabilities of the defendants, not to the plaintiff but among themselves. Clark v. Williams, 70 N. C. 29, 48; Melvin v. Stephens, 82 N. C. 284, 288. And where a judgment is rendered in favor of a plaintiff and an affirmative one in favor of a defendant, they constitute but one judgment, if written and attested separately. Hall v. Youngs, 87 N. C. 283.

Where the Defense Set up Applies to Entire Res.—When a bill is filed for the specific performance of a contract to convey a tract of land, it is the defendant's right to determine that the tract consists of two parts, of which he admits that he is the owner of one, but avers that the other belongs to his wife, and sets up a defense which, if good, applies to the whole contract, it is proper to make a decree in favor of the plaintiff as to the part of which the defendant admits he is the owner, and to reserve the question as to the other part. Swepson v. Brown, 65 N. C. 431.

Primary and Secondary Liability.—The primary and secondary liability as between two joint tort-feasors should be adjusted in the same action, where there are two defendants for the same act or transaction alleged in the complaint, and judgment in the consolidated action may be rendered under this section. Bowman v. Greensboro, 190 N. C. 611, 130 S. E. 502.

Where Action is in Suit Pending.—The entire spirit of our code procedure is to avoid multiplicity of actions and where an action for damages arising by tort from a collision between two automobiles has been brought by one of the parties, he may successfully move to dismiss the action brought against him by the opposing party in another county, and have it dismissed, the remedy of the defendant in the action for damages against the other defendant is an equitable relief to which he may be entitled, pursuant to this section; and that relief may be asked for and granted. But where an action does not affect the fact that the subject of both actions is the same acts or transactions, to be determined by one judgment either in favor of one or against the other in the case. Allen v. Salley, 179 N. C. 147, 101 S. E. 545.

“Cross Complaint” Allowed.—Under this section the defendant is entitled to file a cross complaint1 to establish his rights in the premises and to seek the appropriate relief. Dillon v. Raleigh, 124 N. C. 184, 186, 32 S. E. 548.

Same.—Conformity to Original Claim Required.—A cross action by a defendant against a co-defendant or third party must be in reference to the claim made by the plaintiff and based upon an adjustment of that claim. Independent and unrelated causes of action cannot be litigated by cross action. Bowman v. Greensboro, etc., Causeway Co., 204 N. C. 260, 167 S. E. 858.

A defendant may file a cross action against a co-defendant or a third party only if such cross action is founded upon or is necessarily connected with the subject matter and purpose of plaintiff’s action, and must not be directed to the discovery of questions of primary and secondary liability and the right to contribution as between joint tort-feasors, it does not permit cross actions between defendants which are independent of the suit against him. Montgomery v. Blades, 217 N. C. 654, 9 S. E. (2d) 297.

Recovery on Counterclaim.—Where an action on contract has originally and properly been brought in the superior court because of an equity involved, or its being for the possession of personal property, the recovery on a counterclaim, in the superior court, will not be denied for want of jurisdiction on the ground that the demand thereof was for a less sum than two hundred dollars, the jurisdiction as to matters of counterclaim coming within the provisions of G. S. sections 1-135, 1-137, and this section. Singer Sewing Mach. Co. v. Bur- ger, 116 N. C. 582, 11 S. E. 365.

Where There is Concert of Action Among the Defendants.—Where an injury is caused by the separate action of several persons who are adverse to the plaintiff, it is proper under this section, to join them all in the single action for damages. Long v. Swindell, 77 N. C. 176.

Where, however, there is no unity of design or concert of action and the injuries are not adverse to the plaintiff, the single injury, the share of each in causing it is separable and may be accurately measured. In such case the jury can properly assess several damages. Long v. Swindell, 77 N. C. 176.

General of Railroads, following the opinion of the Supreme Court of the United States, there is no liability upon the railroad company, but the car owner may be sued against the railroad company for the provisions of this section. Where there is a joint and several judgment, each several judgment may be rendered. Kimbrough v. R. R. Ante, 214, cited and applied. Smith v. Seaboard Air Line R. Co., 182 N. C. 290, 109 S. E. 22.

Dismissal "as of Nonsuit."—A nonsuit under § 1-183 is permissible only on demurrer to the evidence, and when the court refuses plaintiff's motion for a continuance, it is error for the court to enter an involuntary nonsuit, but the court should allow an involuntary nonsuit and discontinue the action if the defendant should refuse to go to trial, the court may then dismiss the cause "as of nonsuit" under this section or in its inherent power. Sykes v. Blakey, 215 N. C. 61, 200 E. 171; City of Greenville v. Speed, 163 N. C. 702, 12 S. E. (2d) 553; Bost v. Metcalfe, 219 N. C. 607, 14 S. E. (2d) 648.

§ 1-223. Against married women.—In an action brought by or against a married woman, judgment may be given against her for costs or damages or both, in the same manner as against other persons, to be levied and collected solely out of her separate estate. (Rev., 593: C. S. 603.)

Cross Reference.—As to statutes concerning married women generally, see § 52-1 et seq.

Where the Wife Can Sue and be Sued Alone.—It is not required that the wife, as such, prosecute or defend an action concerning the lands by guardian or next friend. Craddock v. Brinkley, 177 N. C. 125, 98 S. E. 280.

Same—Husband, When Joined, is the Agent of the Wife.—The joinder of the husband in an action maintainable against the wife alone, though unnecessary, makes the husband the agent of the wife for the purpose of the suit. Craddock v. Brinkley, 177 N. C. 125, 98 S. E. 280.

Consent Not Binding on The Wife.—Where a married woman, pending an appeal by her from a personal judgment rendered against her husband on notes given for property bought by her husband and secured partly by a mortgage on her land, consented to withdraw the appeal and to allow a compromise judgment to be entered against her husband for a certain amount payable in installments, it was held, that she had no power to consent to such judgment, and it was held that the judgment was void, as no binding force on her although she was personally present, for the purpose of the suit. Craddock v. Brinkley, 177 N. C. 125, 98 S. E. 280.

§ 1-224. Nonsuit not allowed after verdict.—In actions where a verdict passes against the plaintiff, judgment shall be entered against him. (Rev., s. 1530; Code, s. 938; R. C., c. 31, s. 110; 2 Hen. IV., c. 7; C. S. 604.)

Cross Reference.—As to entry of verdict and judgment, see § 1-226.

Theory of Nonsuit Explained.—"A plaintiff can at any time before verdict withdraw his suit, or, as it is termed, 'take a nonsuit,' by absence himself at the trial term. If he chooses to take an after-verdict nonsuit, by authority of his attorney, the court directs a nonsuit to be entered, the cost is taxed against him, and that is an end of the case. Even when the plaintiff appears at the trial, takes a part in the trials, with his witnesses, examining and cross-examining witnesses, and by the argument of his counsel, if he finds from an intimation of the court that the charge will be against him, he may submit to a nonsuit and appeal. This is every day's practice. It is based upon the idea that the plaintiff announces his purpose not to answer when called to hear the verdict, and the advantage is that the plaintiff can have his Honor's opinion reviewed, and should the decision of the Su- preme Court be against him, he can commence another action; whereas if he allows a verdict to be entered it is conclusively lost unless set aside." Graham v. Tate, 77 N. C. 120; Southern Cotton Oil Co. v. Shore, 171 N. C. 51, 55, 87 S. E. 938.

The Principle Stated.—The principle would seem to be that a plaintiff may elect to be nonsuited in every case where no binding force for costs can be recovered against him by the defendant, and when such judgment may be recovered he cannot so elect. McKesson v. Mendenhall, 64 N. C. 502, 504; Retirement of Jury for Correction of Formal Defect.—It is too late to withdraw a verdict for formal defects of form after a plaintiff has taken a nonsuit; and when the jury, after rendering a verdict, had returned to the jury-room to correct a mere formal defect in the verdict, and as they retired the counsel for the plaintiff desired the jury to withdraw, the plaintiff would not be allowed to take a nonsuit, there was no error in refusing it. Strauss v. Sawyer, 133 N. C. 64, 45 S. E. 346.

When Dismissal "as of Nonsuit."—Where, when the pleadings, the plaintiff ceases to be merely an actor, and becomes also a defendant, as, for example, if the defendant seeks affirmative relief and demands judgment, the right to take a nonsuit ceases. McKesson v. Mendenhall, 64 N. C. 502, 504; McLean v. McDonald, 173 N. C. 429, 92 S. E. 148. But after a plea of tender or payment of money into court the plaintiff may take a nonsuit. Id.

General Relief Where Answer Filed.—If there be an answer to the complaint which is consistent with the case made by the complaint and embraced within the issue, although other and different relief may be sought by the pleader and demanded in the prayer for judgment, Wright v. Teclina Co. Affirmative Relief.—When, by the pleadings, the plaintiff ceases to be merely an actor, and becomes also a defendant, as, for example, if the defendant demands affirmative relief, the right to take a nonsuit ceases. Teclina Co. v. Wright, 133 N. C. 488, 492, 51 S. E. 55; Bryan v. Canady, 169 N. C. 579, 86 S. E. 584; Council v. Bailey, 154 N. C. 54, 69 S. E. 760.

Relief Limited To That Demanded Where No Answer Filed.—
§ 1-227. Where no answer is filed then the relief shall not exceed that demanded in the complaint. Jones v. Mial, 83 N. C. 252, 257. And when judgment grants relief in excess thereof it is irregular and rendered, in the discretion of the court, to have it set aside. Simms v. Sampson, 221 N. C. 379, 20 S. E. (2d) 554.

Where Improper Action Brought.—Where a plaintiff, in his complaint alleged and set out a case in trover, and the proof showed that it should have been in the nature of an assessment for money had and received, it was held that the plaintiff was entitled to recover, notwithstanding the variance. Oats, et al. v. Kendall, 67 N. C. 241.

Where Amount Tendered is Larger than Amount Due.—The verdict of the jury rendered in an action upon a mortgage note will not be affected by a tender of a larger amount made before the return of the verdict of the action, which was refused and not kept good, and the judgment was to be entered as it was held to be due. DeBruhl v. Hood, 156 N. C. 52, 72 S. E. 83.

§ 1-227. When passes legal title.—In any action wherein the court declares a party entitled to the possession of real or personal property, the legal title of which is in another party to the suit, and the court orders a conveyance of such legal title to him so declared to be entitled, or where, for any cause, the court orders that one of the parties holding property in trust shall convey the legal estate therein to another person although not a party, the court after declaring the right and ordering the conveyance, has power, also, to be used in its discretion, to declare in the order then made, or in any made in the progress of the cause, that the effect thereof is to transfer to the party to whom the conveyance is directed to be made the legal title of the said property, to be held in the same plight, condition and estate as though the conveyance ordered were in fact executed; and shall bind and entitle the parties ordered to execute or to take benefit of the conveyance, in and to all such provisions, conditions and covenants as are adjudged to attend the conveyance, in the same manner and to the same extent as the conveyance would if the same were executed according to the order. A party taking benefit under the judgment has the same redress at law on account of the matter adjudged as he might have on conveyance, if the same had been executed. (Rev., s. 566; Code, s. 428; R. C., c. 32, s. 24; 1850, c. 107; 1874-5, c. 17; C. S. 607.)

Strict Conformity with the Section Required.—A decree does not operate as a conveyance, unless it complies with the requirements of this section and section 1-228 declaring that it shall be regarded as a conveyance of the described estate and the mere fact that the court, while omitting this statement, intended that the decree should have such effect, is not sufficient for this purpose. Morris v. White, 96 N. C. 91, 2 S. E. 254.

This decision was criticized in the case of Evans v. Brendle, 173 N. C. 149, 91 S. E. 723; it was said that a too narrow construction was being given to the statute. The precise point arose in both cases, namely, the failure of the court to insert in the decree the words "that it shall be regarded as a deed of conveyance," although it was left undecided in the Evans case, the court expressing an intention to do so, and the former holding and then restoring its own decision upon a different ground. In the dissenting opinion in Evans v. Brendle, it was said, "The court had the power to include such a provision in the decree, but until it was made a part of the decree it was not a conveyance."

Same—Where Specific Performance Asked for.—If a decree of court adjudges a deed to be void, no marginal cancellation of record, as in the case of mortgages and deeds of trust, is required, but it is commendable and convenient practice. Smith v. King, 107 N. C. 271, 277, 12 S. E. 57.

Cited in Ayden v. Lancaster, 197 N. C. 556, 563, 150 S. E. 40.

Marginal Cancellation Not Essential but Advisable.—When a decree of court adjudges a deed to be void, no marginal cancellation of record, as in the case of mortgages and deeds of trust, is required, but it is commendable and convenient practice. Smith v. King, 107 N. C. 271, 277, 12 S. E. 57.

Cited in Ayden v. Lancaster, 197 N. C. 556, 563, 150 S. E. 40.

§ 1-228. Certified registered copy evidence.—In all legal proceedings, touching the right of parties derived under such judgment, a certified copy from the register's books is evidence of its existence and of the matters therein contained, as fully as if proved by a perfect transcript of the whole case. (Rev., s. 560; Code, s. 428; R. C., c. 32, s. 26; 1850, c. 107, s. 3; 1874-5, c. 17, s. 3; C. S. 609.)

§ 1-230. In action for recovery of personal property.—In an action to recover the possession of personal property, judgment for the plaintiff may be for the possession, or for the recovery of possession, or for the value thereof in case a delivery cannot be had, and damages for the detention. If the property has been delivered to the plaintiff, and the defendant claims a return thereof, judgment for the defendant may be for a return of the property, or for the value thereof in case a return cannot be had, and damages for taking and withholding the same. (Rev., s. 570; Code, s. 431; C. C. F., c. 251; C. S. 610.)

Cross References.—As to the provisional remedy of claim and delivery for personal property, see § 1-42 et seq.
ings, in an action to declare valid a sale of property under personal property, see § 1-203.

Defendant, if successful, is entitled to judgment "for a return of the property" and issues were properly submitted to the jury to ascertain the value of the property alleged to have been wrongfully taken and detention, with interest thereon, together with the cost of the action. Orange Trust Co. v. Hayes, 191 N. C. 542, 132 S. E. 466.

Where the defendant in the action has retained possession of the property in claim and delivery, and the plaintiff is successful in the action, the latter is entitled to summary judgment against the surety on the replevin bond given in accordance with this section, is liable for the full amount thereof to be discharged upon the return of the property and the payment of damages and cost recovered by the plaintiff; and, second, if the return cannot be had, the judgment should order that the surety be discharged upon the payment of the plaintiff of the amount of his recovery, within the amount limited in the bond, for the value of the property at the time of its wrongful taking and detention, with interest thereon, together with the cost of the action. Orange Trust Co. v. Hayes, 191 N. C. 542, 132 S. E. 466.

Applicability of Doctrine of Res Judicata.—Where judgment rendered against the defendant and the surety on his bond in claim and delivery, and therein no issue is submitted to the jury on the question of damages for the wrongful detention of the property, the plaintiff shall not, after obtaining judgment for an independent action to recover such damages. Moore v. Edwards, 192 N. C. 446, 135 S. E. 302; Woody v. Jordan, 69 N. C. 189.

Same—Where Judgment Unsatisfied.—Where the plaintiff, who had recovered judgment in an action of claim and delivery (in which he was defendant) for the return of the property, but the same had not been returned, thereafter brought suit against the plaintiff in such action for damages for the conversion of the property, it was held that he was entitled to recover. Asher v. Reizenstein, 103 N. C. 213, 10 S. E. 887.

Same—Applicable Only as to Matters Litigated upon.—The fundamental reasons for the application of the doctrine of res adjudicata are that there should be an end of litigation and that a person or corporation cannot twice for the same cause therefor, when the defendant in claim and delivery proceedings has recovered of the plaintiff therein such damages for his wrongful seizure of the defendant's property as allowed by this section and he has claimed no more, he may, by an independent action, sue for such damages to his business as may have been caused by the malicious prosecution of the plaintiff's action, for such was not the subject of recovery in the claim and delivery proceedings. The doctrine of res adjudicata has no application. Ludwig v. Penny, 158 N. C. 104, 105, 73 S. E. 228.

Where Counterclaim Filed.—A suit for maliciously prosecuting a preceding action of claim and delivery for the purpose of breaking up the business of another will not lie before the termination of the case and delivery proceedings, and the defendant in such proceedings cannot therefore set up a counterclaim in that action for the damages he may have sustained in his business. Ludwig v. Penny, 158 N. C. 104, 105, 73 S. E. 228.

Measure of Damages When Property Beyond Control of Court.—In an action of claim and delivery, where it appears that the defendant was in possession under a contract of sale, and the property had been placed beyond the control of the court, the defendant is not entitled to judgment for the full amount of the indebtedness, but is entitled to judgment for the balance due upon the debt, and for the benefit of the surety, in the event of his being made liable for the action of conversion being a tort and the damages unliquidated; and when on appeal the judgment of the court is erroneous in this respect only, it will be ordered to be amended and affirmed. Penny v. Ludwig, 152 N. C. 375, 67 S. E. 919.

Where Additional Item Allowed by Consent.—When the defendant in such proceedings, when the defendant in the action has retained possession of the property in claim and delivery, and the plaintiff is successful in the action, the latter is entitled to summary judgment against the surety on the replevin bond given in accordance with this section, is liable for the full amount thereof to be discharged upon the return of the property and the payment of damages and cost recovered by the plaintiff; and, second, if the return cannot be had, the judgment should order that the surety be discharged upon the payment of the plaintiff of the amount of his recovery, within the amount limited in the bond, for the value of the property at the time of its wrongful taking and detention, with interest thereon, together with the cost of the action. Orange Trust Co. v. Hayes, 191 N. C. 542, 132 S. E. 466.

Where the defendant in the action has retained possession of the property in claim and delivery, and the plaintiff is successful in the action, the latter is entitled to summary judgment against the surety on the replevin bond given in accordance with this section, is liable for the full amount thereof to be discharged upon the return of the property and the payment of damages and cost recovered by the plaintiff; and, second, if the return cannot be had, the judgment should order that the surety be discharged upon the payment of the plaintiff of the amount of his recovery, within the amount limited in the bond, for the value of the property at the time of its wrongful taking and detention, with interest thereon, together with the cost of the action. Orange Trust Co. v. Hayes, 191 N. C. 542, 132 S. E. 466.

§ 1-231. What judge approves judgments.—In all cases where a judgment, decree or order of the superior court is required to be approved by a judge, it shall be approved by the judge, having jurisdiction of receivers and injunctions. (Rev., s. 571; Code, s. 432; 1876-7, c. 223, s. 3; 1879, c. 633; 1881, c. 51; C. S. 611.)

Motions for the appointment of a receiver may be made before the resident judge of the district, or one assigned to the district, or one holding the courts thereof by express or for the purpose of circumventing the operation of the moratorium. Corbin v. Berry, 84 N. C. 25.

Restraining Orders must be made returnable before the judge in the district in which the action is pending. Galbreath v. Everett, 84 N. C. 546.

§ 1-232. Judgment roll.—Unless the party or his attorney furnishes a judgment roll, the clerk, immediately after entering the judgment, shall attach together and file the following papers which constitute the judgment roll:

1. In case the complaint is not answered by any defendant, the summons and complaint, or copies thereof, proof of service, and that no answer has been received, the report, if any, and a copy of the judgment.

2. In all other cases, the summons, pleadings, or copies thereof, and a copy of the judgment, with any verdict or report, the offer of the defendant, exceptions, case, and all orders and papers in any way involving the merits and necessarily affecting the judgment. (Rev., s. 572; Code, s. 434; C. C. P., s. 253; C. S. 612.)

Section Directory.—The provisions of this section as to the permanent judges are subject to the control by the superior court, and the clerk's failure to "attach together" the papers did not vitiate the judgment which was entered of record and regular in form. See Brown v. Harding, 117 N. C. 686, 59 S. E. 226. The provision of the house's resolutions of May 31, 1915, § 12-138, 39, 13 S. E. 923, to the effect that a judgment to constitute a lien must be docketed in the "prescribed manner."
ing; and the clerk shall keep a cross-index of the whole, with the dates and numbers thereof. In all cases affecting the title to real property the clerk shall enter upon the judgment docket the number and page of the minute docket where the judgment is recorded, and if the judgment does not contain particular description of the lands, but refers to a description contained in the pleadings, the clerk shall enter upon the minute docket, immediately following the judgment, the description so referred to.

All judgments rendered in any county by the superior court, during a term of the court, and docketed during the same term, or within ten days thereafter, are held and deemed to have been rendered and docketed on the first day of said term, for the purpose only of establishing equality of priority among such judgments. (Rev., c. 573; Code, s. 433; C. C. P., s. 522; Supr. Ct. Rule VIII; 1909, c. 709; 1929, c. 183; 1943, c. 301, s. 415; C. S., 613.)

Local Modification.—Durham: 1929, c. 88.

Editor's Note.—The Act of 1929 added to the second paragraph the words "for the purpose only of establishing equality of priority among such judgments."

The purpose in the first paragraph is to enforce the requirement that the entry contain the hour and minute of docketing.

For article on Names—Married Women—Change of Name by Judgment see 11 N. C. Law Rev. 365, 367.

Strict Compliance Necessary.—The observance of this law is regarded as so important to subsequent purchasers and mortgagees that it is a system of docketing obtains, a very strict compliance with its requirements is required. Jones v. Currie, 190 N. C. 260, 129 S. E. 605.

Clerk Liable upon Failure to Index Judgment.—An action of trespass to wit, personation his name, in an index a judgment, such neglect resulting in damage to the plaintiff. Shackelford v. Staton, 117 N. C. 73, 23 S. E. 101.

Same.—Duty of Judgment Creditor to See Judgment Properly Docketed.—It is the duty of a judgment creditor to see that his judgment is properly docketed. If the clerk neglects to docket the judgment, subsequent encumbrancers and claimants under the judgment debtor are not to be prejudiced thereby, and the remedy of the judgment creditor is against the clerk for loss suffered by reason of the failure to docket the judgment. Holman v. Miller, 103 N. C. 118, 9 S. E. 459.

When Judgment is Recorded in Foreign County.—Where the transcript of a judgment recovered in one county is sent to another for docketing, the transcript must not only be docketed but must be entered on the cross-index, giving the names of all judgment debtors and the name of at least one plaintiff. Jones v. Currie, 190 N. C. 260, 129 S. E. 605; Dewey v. Sugg, 109 N. C. 328, 13 S. E. 923.

Contents of the Index and Purpose Thereof.—When there are several judgment debtors in the docketed judgment, the index should and must specify the name of each one, because the index as to one would not point to all or any of the others. The purpose is, that the index shall point to a judgment against the particular person inquired about if there be a judgment on the docket against him. A judgment not thus indexed does not serve the purpose of the statute, and a judgment not thus recorded renders the judgment invalid under the provisions of this section, is a lien upon the equitable estate of the judgment debtor. McKeithan v. Walker, 66 N. C. 86.

§ 1-234. Where and how docketed; lien.—Upon filing a judgment roll upon a judgment affecting the title of real property, or directing in whole or in part the payment of money, it shall be docketed on the judgment docket of the superior court of the county where the judgment roll was filed, and may be docketed on the judgment docket of the superior court of any other county upon the filing of the clerk thereof of a transcript of the original docket, and is a lien on the real property in the county where the same is docketed of every person against whom any such judgment is rendered, and which he has at the time of the docketing thereof in the county in which such real property is situated, or which he acquires at any time thereafter, for ten years from the date of the rendition of such judgment. But the time during which the party recovering or owning such judgment shall be, or shall have been, restrained from proceeding thereon by an order of injunction, or other order, or by the operation of any appeal, or by a statutory prohibition, does not constitute any part of the ten years aforesaid, as against the defendant in such judgment, or the party obtaining such orders or making such appeal, or any other person who is not a purchaser, creditor or mortgagee in good faith (Rev., s. 574; Code, s. 435; C. C. P., s. 254; C. S. 614.)

L. IN GENERAL.

See 11 N. C. Law Rev. 255.

Applicable to Legal and Equitable Estates.—This section is sufficiently comprehensive to include equitable as well as legal estates. Mayo v. Staton, 137 N. C. 697, 50 S. E. 321. The principle is equally applicable when the sale to satisfy the judgment is made by an administrator. Mannix v. Irrie, 76 N. C. 299, 301.

Where a debtor executes a deed in trust to a trustee to secure certain debt and mortgages, and the conveyance to the trustee does not contain the name of the debtor or the corporation as well as the name of the corporation, the deed is void. Ray v. Chastain, 117 N. C. 738, 23 S. E. 101.
A judgment from the time it is docketed has a lien on all the interest of whatever kind the defendant has in real estate, whether it be such as can be seized under execution or not. Glenn Co. v. Shober, 69 N. C. 154. No property is ever freed from the lien of judgment while in the possession of the judgment debtor, and the lien is a mere matter of procedure. So far as it relates to lands, it is a technical term, that means a charge upon the lands running with them, and incumbering them in every change of ownership. In re, supra, 77 Fed. 189, 216, 1 L. Ed. 167.

Property converted from its original nature, as land into money, is not subject to the lien of a judgment, or to sale under execution issued thereon, although the statute gives a lien on personal property in the county, in which the property is situate. By virtue of the judgment, the court orders the sheriff to levy on the property, and advertise it for sale. Hopkins v. Bowers, 111 N. C. 175, 175, 16 S. E. 1; see also, section 1-233 and notes thereto.

Liability of Trustee. — A trustee having a surplus in his hands after the sale of land under a conveyance to secure a judgment lien, who is affected with notice by docketing of judgments against the trustee, or the one who otherwise is entitled to receive it, under the provisions of this section may not pay the same to the trustor without incurring liability; and in an action brought for the purpose the judgment creditors are necessary parties, and a final judgment therein entered without them is reversible error. Barrett v. Barnes, 156 N. C. 154, 119 S. E. 154.

Requirement That Clerk to Docket Judgment Mandatory. — A judge cannot, under this section, validly issue an order to the clerk not to docket a judgment pending the appointment of persons as receiver of the property, or to order the receiver to file his report, etc., until an order has been given by the court to docket the judgment. Hopkins v. Bowers, 111 N. C. 175, 175, 16 S. E. 1; see also, section 1-233 and notes thereto.

II. CREATION OF THE LIEN AND PRIORITIES.

A. Sufficiency.

1. Realty.

Docketing Fixes the Lien. — The docketed judgment fixes the lien and the debtor cannot escape it; if he sells thereafter the purchaser takes subject to the statutory lien given by this section. Moore v. Jordan, 117 N. C. 85, 89, 23 S. E. 259. The mere rendition of a judgment will not constitute a lien, Alsop v. Mosely, 104 N. C. 60, 63, 10 S. E. 134; nor does the execution fix the lien. Pasour v. Rhyme, 82 N. C. 149, 152.

A judgment having become final, duly docketed, constitutes a lien on realty under § 15-185, and attaches immediately upon the docketing of the judgment under the provisions of this section. Osborne v. Board of Education, 207 N. C. 503, 187 S. E. 669.

In other words, the section specifies two requisites as conditions precedent to the fixing of the lien, namely (1) rendition and (2) docketing; and the lien attaches as of the date of rendition. Ed. Note.

Same—Subsequent Purchasers. — The docketing of the judgment having fixed the lien, the rights of the judgment creditor become fixed thereby, and the subsequent registration of a deed or mortgage to or on the same property cannot divest those rights. Cowen v. Withrow, 112 N. C. 736, 741, 17 S. E. 375. See post, this note, "Priorities" II, B.

Same—Not Essential to Issuing an Execution. — Docketing is not a condition precedent to the enforceability of the judgment, nor to the levy of the proceeds of the land. Martin v. Brown, 122 N. C. 587, 594, 29 S. E. 884. See also, Holmon v. Miller, 103 N. C. 119, 8 S. E. 429, where it was said, "under the present system no lien is acquired on land in the possession of an executory or levy until the judgment has been docketed."

Strict Compliance with Requirement as to Docketing.— To be available as a real estate lien, the judgment must be docketed in the office of the clerk of the superior court of the county where such property is situate. And, for a lien to be obtained, the requirement as to docketing must be strictly complied with. Southern Dairies v. Banks, 92 F. (2d) 282, 286.

Docketing First in County of Rendition. — A judgment rendered in one county can not be a lien upon lands first docketed in the county where it was rendered. Mcdan v. Banister, 61 N. C. 479; Essex Inv. Co. v. Pickelsamer, 210 N. C. 541, 187 S. E. 813.

B. Priorities.

Record as Notice. — A plaintiff will be charged with notice of a judgment entered at a regular term of court as of the time of the entry. Sluder v. Graham, 118 N. C. 835, 23 S. E. 982.

Consent Judgments, under this section, have priority in accordance with the section, providing the title of the judgment debtor is at the time the judgment is docketed a lien on the land of the defendant from the time when they were docketed, and will have a priority over judgments obtained in any other county against the same defendant at a subsequent time, and though an execution be issued on the latter and the sheriff levies it on the land and advertises it for sale, yet, if the sale execution be issued on a part of the judgment debtor's land, and are placed in the hands of the sheriff, the proceeds of the sale of the land must be first applied to the payment of all the justice's judgments. Faye v. Morris, 63 N. C. 157.

A prior assignee of a judgment for a valuable consideration takes the title of his assignor unaffected by a subsequent assignment of the same judgment by the assignor to another for a valuable consideration without notice of the prior assignment, in the absence of fraud, even though the second assignee has his assignment first recorded on the judgment docket, and not an assignment of a judgment to be recorded. In re Wallace, 212 N. C. 490, 193 S. E. 819.

Between Docketed Judgment and Unrecorded Deed. The lien of a judgment docketed in the superior court is superior to a claim under an unrecorded deed from the judgment debtor. Eaton v. Doub, 190 N. C. 14, 128 S. E. 494.

Between judgments, under this section, have priority in accordance with the section, providing the title of the judgment debtor is at the time the judgment is docketed a lien on the land of the defendant from the time when they were docketed, and will have a priority over judgments obtained in any other county against the same defendant at a subsequent time, and though an execution be issued on the latter and the sheriff levies it on the land and advertises it for sale, yet, if the sale execution be issued on a part of the judgment debtor's land, and are placed in the hands of the sheriff, the proceeds of the sale of the land must be first applied to the payment of all the justice's judgments. Faye v. Morris, 63 N. C. 157.

Between Lien and Subsequent Purchaser.—Upon the docketing of a judgment it becomes a lien on all the land to which the judgment debtor has title for a period of ten years from the time of docketing, under this section, and the land is not relieved of the judgment lien by a subsequent transfer of title by the judgment debtor. Moses v. Morgan v. Jordan, 117 N. C. 86, 89, 23 S. E. 259.

A judgment creditor or his assignee has a lien on the lands of the judgment debtor, and where the judgment is duly docketed, under this section, the lien exists against a subsequent purchaser from the judgment debtor, carrying with it the right to subject the property and improvements thereto to the satisfaction of the debt, but the judgment lien has no title or estate in the lands. Byrd v. Pilot Fire Ins. Co., 201 N. C. 407, 160 S. E. 458.

A judgment upon individual debt against holder of mere legal title held in trust for another has no lien upon the standing timber. Jackson v. Thompson, 214 N. C. 539, 543, 200 S. E. 16.

Title to Standing Timber. — An estate created by a deed conveying standing timber, with a right to cut and remove the same within a specified time, is, while it exists, subject to the lien of a docketed judgment and to the ordinary methods of enforcing collection of the same as in other cases of realty. Fowle v. McLean, 168 N. C. 537, 146 S. E. 853.

Property converted from its original nature, see note of Clifton v. Owens, ante this note, analysis line "In General" I.

Homestead Not Subject to Judgment Lien. — The mere right of homestead is not such an estate or interest in lands as is subject to a lien by judgment. Kirkwood v. Peden, 173 N. C. 407, 189 S. E. 256.

Same—Reversionary Interest May Be Subjected. — The only reason for keeping a judgment in full force and effect during the existence of the homestead is to subject the reversionary interest in payment when the homestead expires, as such interest cannot be sold under execution during the life of the homestead. Kirkwood v. Peden, 173 N. C. 460, 52 S. E. 264.

A docketed judgment is a lien on all the land of the debtor in the county where docketed from the date of the docketing, and the creditor may presently enforce the lien on all of the debtor's land outside of the homestead boundaries, but this right is subject to the homestead estate to subject the land to which it pertains, and no act of the debtor can change or impair the creditor's right under such lien. Vanstory v. Thornton, 112 N. C. 196, 204, 17 S. E. 556.

A judgment upon individual debt against holder of mere legal title held in trust for another has no lien upon the land so held. Jackson v. Thompson, 214 N. C. 539, 543, 200 S. E. 16.

B. After-Acquired Property.

In General. — Under the section of the lien docketed judgments attaches to after-acquired lands in the same manner at the moment that the title vests in the judgment debtor, and the proceeds of a sale under such judgments should be distributed pro rata without reference to the date when the judgment debtor acquired. Moore v. Jordan, 117 N. C. 86, 87, 23 S. E. 529.

The lien extends to and embraces only such estate as the judgment debtor has at the time of the docketing thereof, or thereafter acquires while the judgment subsists. Thompson v. Avery County, 216 N. C. 465, 5 S. E. (2d) 146. See also, Durham v. Pollard, 219 N. C. 750, 14 S. E. (2d) 218.

Judgment by Confession. — Though a judgment by confession is given out of the ordinary course of procedure, nevertheless, inasmuch as the judgment becomes a lien upon the judgment debtor's real property. Sharp v. R. R., 106 N. C. 308, 319, 11 S. E. 530; Keel v. Bailey, 214 N. C. 159, 198 S. E. 69.

Judgments against Land Held in Remainder. — The docketing of judgments against a debtor who holds land in remainder, dependent upon a life estate in another, creates a lien on the life estate, which, not being susceptible of immediate occupancy, is not protected from sale under execution by the Constitution and laws relating to homestead exemptions. Stern Bros. v. Lee, 115 N. C. 426, 190 S. E. 72.

Successive Transfers of Different Tracts. — Where there is a judgment lien on land, part of which is sold by the debtor, the remaining portion will be first sold in satisfaction of the judgment before resorting to the land first sold, and the rule applies equally in the case of land from the judgment debtor, but this equity is never enforced against the creditor when he will in any substantial way be prejudiced by it. Brown v. Harding, 170 N. C. 253, 86 S. E. 1010, rehetting 171 N. C. 656, 99 S. E. 222.

Attaches upon Conveyance to Judgment Debtor. — The lien of a judgment attaches when the land is conveyed to the judgment debtor. The judgment lien is subject to the lien of any prior lien or mortgage on land which heo his grantor could retain by a parol agreement or a subsequently recorded conveyance. Colonial Trust Co. v. Sterchi Brothers, 169 N. C. 21, 85 S. E. 40.

C. Nature of Right Acquired.

No Estate Vested. — The lien created by a docketing judgment does not vest any estate or interest subject to it in the judgment creditor, but only secures to the creditor the right to have the property applied to the satisfaction of his judgment, and such lien extends only to such estate, legal or equitable, as may be sold or disposed Title to Property in Third Party. — A docketed judgment constitutes no lien upon real property purchased and paid for by the debtor, where title to the property was acquired prior to the time it attaches. Bruce v. Nicholson, 109 N. C. 202, 13 S. E. 790.

Same—Remedy of Creditor. — In such case the creditor has a right to follow the fund in equity, but the institution of an appropriate suit, and entering and maintaining thereof, will effect more than to give the creditor first bringing his suit a priori over other creditors, and to disable the holder of the property from defeating, by a conveyance, the object of the proceedings. Dixon v. Dixon, 81 N. C. 323, 324.

Persons Entitled to Enforce. — In an action to enforce the lien of judgments against land formerly owned by the judgment debtor, it was no concern of the defendants that the person in whose name the judgments were taken was not the beneficial owner of the judgments, as defendant was not the holder of the property from which the lien arose. Dixon v. Dixon, 81 N. C. 323, 324.

Where Equitable Execution and Accounting Necessary. — Where there was a conflict as to the priorities of the secured creditors the plaintiff, whose docketed judgment constituted a lien on the resulting trust in a deed of trust, could not enforce his lien by the ordinary process of execution, nor resort to an action of assumpsit, but could only by an equitable execution where an account could be taken. Trimble v. Hunter, 104 N. C. 129, 134, 10 S. E. 291.

Purpose. — The sole office of the execution is to enforce the lien of a judgment docketed under this section, and the motion is heard and execution issued after ten years from the date of its rendition in the superior court, and an action to enforce the lien by the sale of the land upon which it has attached. Pasour v. Rhyne, 82 N. C. 149, 152.

Time Allowed. — Leave to issue execution upon a docketed judgment may be granted at any time within ten years from the docketing. Adams v. Guy, 106 N. C. 275, 278, 11 S. E. 535.

Same—Appeal. — The motion for leave to issue execution is made in apt time, though the ten years expired pending the appeal and though no undertaking is given; this is true because the time during which the judgment creditor was restrained by the operation of the appeal is not to be counted, as the appeal had the effect to prevent the issuing of execution within the time prescribed. Adams v. Guy, 106 N. C. 278, 11 S. E. 535.

Motion to Revive. — Where a judgment creditor de lays issuing execution until within a short time before the expiration of the lien of his judgment and then gives notice of judgment to revive and moves for an order to issue, the motion is heard and execution issued after ten years from the date of the judgment, a purchaser at the execution sale of land gets no title as against one who bona fide bought the land during the ten years. Pipkin v. Adams, 114 N. C. 201, 19 S. E. 105; Lilly v. West, 97 N. C. 276, 1 S. E. 834. The same principle applies where the execution is levied before the expiration of the lien but the sale does not take place until after the expiration of the lien. Spicer v. Gambill, 93 N. C. 378, 383.

Failure to Docket Judgment. — If a party who obtains judgment below neglects to docket it in any county, then upon the failure to docket and file for an action to enforce the lien by condemning land of the judgment debtor to be sold is barred by the statute when sale of the land cannot be made and concluded within the ten-year period, even though the action is instituted within such period, when the running of the statute is not interrupted at any time or in any manner by order restraining and proceeding on the judgment. Lupton v. Edmundson, 220 N. C. 188, 16 S. E. (2d) 840.

Appeal as Stopping Statute. — Where judgment was taken in 1926, and in 1931 defendant moved before the clerk to set the judgment aside, motion denied and appeal taken to the judge, and the clerk ordered that execution should not issue until the adjournment of the August, 1931, term of court, and the appeal to the judge was never heard, the appeal was valid, and execution should not issue until the effect of stopping the statute and the judgment was barred in 1939 by the ten years statute of limitations. Exum v. Carolina R. & R. Co., 222 N. C. 222, 22 S. E. (2d) 424.

V. LOSS OF THE LIEN. In General. — The lien of a judgment docketed under this section is lost by the lapse of ten years from the date of the docketing of the judgment, provided it is so docketed as required. Adams v. Guy, Pasour v. Rhyne, 82 N. C. 149, 152; Lyon v. Russ, 84 N. C. 588.

The life of the lien of a judgment is ten years from the date of its rendition in the superior court, and an action to enforce the lien by condemning land of the judgment debtor to be sold is barred by the statute when sale of the land cannot be made and concluded within the ten-year period, even though the action is instituted within such period, when the running of the statute is not interrupted at any time or in any manner by order restraining and until then) in the proper county the judgment forms a lien upon the land on which the judgment debtor sat; the lien of the judgment is a lien upon the property of the judgment debtor, and the judgment debtor is estopped to deny the existence and enforcement of the lien formed by the judgment.

Rendition Does Not Perfect Lien.—The simple rendition of a judgment in a court of record in another State will not constitute a lien upon the judgment debtor's land until "docketed" in the county where the land lies, as required by the statute. Alspach v. Moseley, 104 N. C. 60, 64, 10 S. E. 124.

Issuing Execution Prior to Docketing.—See note of Bernard v. Brown, under section 1-235.

Judgment of Supreme Court Applied to Docketed Lower Court Judgment.—The defendant, by a decree in the Supreme Court, had recovered from the plaintiff a sum of money; while the execution was in the hands of the sheriff the plaintiff recovered from the defendant, by a magistrate order, a like amount for items in their account not allowed in the case in the Supreme Court. These latter judgments were docketed as to the plaintiff by any court of record, heretofore certified under the official seal of said court, by any person other than the clerk, shall be made in the presence of the clerk or his deputy, who shall witness the same, and when entries of full payment or satisfaction have been made, the clerk or his deputy shall enter upon the judgment index kept by him, opposite and on a line with the names of the parties to the judgment, the words "Paid" or "Satisfied." (Rev. S. 577; Code, s. 438; R. C., 31, s. 127; 1823. c. 1212; 1911, c. 76; C. S. 617.)

Payment Made to Clerk.—A trustee may properly pay money to the clerk as part payment in satisfaction of a judgment, Sugg v. Bernard, 127 N. C. 155, 156, 29 S. E. 221.

A judgment debtor under this section is entitled to credit on the judgment for amounts paid by him on the judgment and the clerk of the Superior Court in whose office the judgment is docketed, although the clerk fails to enter payment on the judgment docket, the judgment debtor being under no duty to make entry of payment. New England Trust Co. v. Wood, 163 N. Y. 160, 58 N. E. 1094, 57 Am. St. 392.

§ 1-236. Fees for filing transcripts of judgments by clerks of superior courts.—The fee for filing, docketing and indexing transcripts of judgments in the offices of the several clerks of the superior court in North Carolina shall be the same fee charged for filing, docketing and indexing transcripts of judgments in the office of the clerk of the superior court of the county from which the transcript of judgment is sent to said county. (1933, c. 435, s. 1.)

§ 1-236.1. Transcripts of judgments certified by deputy clerks validated.—Each transcript of judgment from the original docket of the superior court of a county where the same was rendered and docketed, heretofore certified under the official seal of said court, by a deputy clerk thereof, in his own name as such deputy clerk, and docketed on the judgment docket of another county in the state, is hereby validated and declared of full force and effect in such county where docketed, from the date of docketing of the same, to the same extent and with the same effect as if said transcript of judgment had been certified in the name of the clerk of the superior court of said original county, and under his hand and official seal. (1943, c. 11.)

§ 1-237. Judgments of federal courts docketed; lien on property; recordation; conformity with federal law.—Judgments and decrees rendered in the district courts of the United States within this state may be docketed on the judgment dockets of the superior courts in the several counties of this State for the purpose of creating liens upon property in the county where docketed; and when a judgment or decree is registered, docketed and indexed in a county in like manner as is required of judgments and decrees of the courts of this state, it shall become a lien and shall have all the rights, force and effect of a judgment or decree of the superior court of said county. When a judgment roll of a district court is filed with the clerk of the superior court, the clerk shall docket it as judgments of the superior court are required to be docketed. It is the intent and purpose of this section to conform the state law to the requirements of the Act of Congress entitled "An Act to Regulate the Liens on Judgments and Decrees of the Courts of the United States" being the Act of August first, one thousand eight hundred and eighty-eight, Chapter seven hundred and twenty-nine. (Rev. S. 576; 1889, C. 439; 1943, C. 543; C. S. 616.)

Editor’s Note.—Prior to the 1943 amendment this section also applied to judgments and decrees rendered in the federal circuit courts. This amendment made other changes in the wording of the section.

Judgment Rendered in District Court.—Judgment rendered by the district courts of the United States may take advantage of any state or federal statute or provision of this section authorizing the docketing of judgments and decrees of the federal courts on the judgment dockets of the superior courts of this state for the purpose of creating liens, such judgments on a money demand are liens on real property only from the date of their docketing in the county where the land is situated. Riley v. Carter, 165 N. C. 1104, 81 S. E. 414.

§ 1-239. Repealed by Session Laws 1943, c. 543.

§ 1-239. Paid to clerk; docket credited; transcript to other counties.—The party against whom a judgment for the payment of money is rendered, by any court of record, may pay the whole, or any part thereof, to the clerk of the court in which the same was rendered, at any time thereafter, although the execution is in the hands of the sheriff. The judgment rendered in the Supreme Court will not constitute a lien of the judgment in its favor though barred by the three years limitation contained in this statute. United States v. Minor, 235 Fed. 101.

§ 1-240. Date of Docketing Fixes the Lien.—Under the act of Congress as to docketing judgments of federal courts, and the provisions of this section authorizing the docketing of judgments and decrees of the federal courts on the judgment dockets of the superior courts of this state for the purpose of creating liens, such judgments on a money demand are liens on real property only from the date of their docketing in the county where the land is situated. Riley v. Carter, 165 N. C. 1104, 81 S. E. 414.

§ 1-241. Where execution is in the hands of the sheriff. — A debtor has no right to pay the money to the clerk when the execution is in the hands of the sheriff. Bynum v. Barefoot, 127 N. C. 155, 156, 29 S. E. 221.

Clerk Receiving Depreciated Currency.—Whenever it is sought to establish an authority in a clerk to bind a plaintiff by the receipt of depreciated currency in payment of a judgment, it must be shown either that the receipt was expressly authorized by the plaintiff or that the plaintiff has done acts in furtherance that he was so authorized. Purvis v. Jackson, 69 N. C. 474.

Misappropriation of Payment by Clerk.—Where a judgment debtor has paid the judgment entered against him in the office of the clerk of the Superior Court, and the clerk has misappropriated the payment, so that the debtor has again paid the judgment, the equitable doctrine as to whether he is subrogated to the right of the judgment creditor does not apply, and a right action will lie against the surety on the clerk's bond for the direct misappropriation of the money. Gilmore v. Walker, 196 N. C. 460, 142 S. E. 579.

Liability for Loss.— The clerk of the Superior Court and the surety on his bond are liable for loss resulting to the owner of a judgment from the clerk's failure to perform his statutory duty to enter the judgment and pay the judgment debt, and a right action will lie against the surety on the judgment debtor, as provided by this section. Dalton v. Strickland, 238 N. C. 27, 179 S. E. 20.

§ 1-240. Payment by one of several; transfer to trustee for payee.—In all cases in the courts of this state wherein judgment has been, or may hereafter be, rendered against two or more persons or corporations, who are jointly and severally liable for its payment either as joint obligors or joint tort-feasors, and the same has not been paid by all the judgment debtors by each paying his proportionate part thereof, if one of the judgment debtors shall pay the judgment creditor, either before or after execution has been issued, the amount due on said judgment, and shall, at the time of paying the same, demand that said judgment be transferred to a trustee for his benefit, it shall be the duty of the judgment creditor or his attorney to transfer without recourse such judgment to a trustee for the benefit of the judgment debtor paying the same; and a transfer of such judgment as herein contemplated shall have the effect of preserving the lien of the judgment and of keeping the same in full force as against any judgment debtor who does not pay his proportionate part thereof to the extent of his liability thereon in law and in equity, and in the event the judgment was obtained in an action arising out of a joint tort, and only one, or not all of the joint tort-feasors, were made parties defendant, those tort-feasors made parties defendant, and against whom judgment was obtained, may, in an action therefor, have the assignment of the judgment, which it transferred to payee, who brought suit thereon against the makers. Held: the commissioner of banks in the payment of the judgment and in taking the assignment represented the bank and such acts were taken in the same right and with the effect as though the bank had been the transferee, and therefore the commissioner of banks may not act as a trustee for the transfer of judgment under this section, and the payment of the judgment by the commissioner of banks extinguished such judgment lien and enforce it for his reimbursement, is required on payment to have it assigned to some third person for his benefit, and in case of collateral security, he is in such instances entitled to the full equitable doctrine of subrogation; but if he pays the judgment debt on which he himself is bound, without having it assigned, as indicated, he then becomes the simple contract creditor of his principal. Bank v. Sprinkle, 180 N. C. 580, 104 S. E. 477.

Assignment to Third Party Necessary to Claim Subrogation.— A surety defendant in a judgment with the principal according to principles heretofore obtaining in North Carolina, without the aid of a statute, in order to preserve the judgment lien and enforcing an equality of obligation between them. Fowle v. Mclean, 168 N. C. 537, 84 S. E. 852.

Proportionate Liability of Sureties.— The liability of sureties among themselves is controlled by the equitable principle of equality arising out of a common risk, and in case of insolvent co-sureties and have the same action, as contemplated by this section, shall not thereafter be entitled to an execution against the judgment debtor so tendering payment. (1919, c. 194, ss. 1, 2; 1929, c. 68; C. S. 618.)

Editor’s Note.— The Act of 1929 amended the first paragraph of this section by permitting contribution between joint tort-feasors, and the joinder of joint tort-feasors not made parties. The amendment, of course, does not apply to a judgment creditor by payment of a fraction of the amount of the judgment, he is entitled to an assignment of the judgment to a trustee for his benefit under this section, and is entitled to recover from each of his codefendants the proportionate part of such codefendant’s liability in the amount of the compromise settlement, he being entitled to contribution on the basis of the amount actually paid into the compromise fund. (2d) 23.

Judgment Should Be Transferred to Trustee Not the Debtor.— A bank holding a note hypothecated by the payee bank obtained judgment thereon against the payee bank and the makers. Thereafter, the paying and insolvent defendant, commissioner of banks, made a payment on the judgment out of the assets of the payee bank and obtained an assignment of the judgment, which it transferred to plain- tiff, who brought suit thereon against the makers. Held: the commissioner of banks in the payment of the judgment and in taking the assignment represented the bank and such acts were taken in the same right and with the effect as though the bank had been the transferee, and therefore the commissioner of banks may not act as a trustee for the transfer of judgment under this section, and the payment of the judgment by the commissioner of banks extinguished such judgment lien and enforce it for his reimbursement, is required on payment to have it assigned to some third person for his benefit, and in case of collateral security, he is in such instances entitled to the full equitable doctrine of subrogation; but if he pays the judgment debt on which he himself is bound, without having it assigned, as indicated, he then becomes the simple contract creditor of his principal. Bank v. Sprinkle, 180 N. C. 580, 104 S. E. 477.

Subrogation Applicable between Co-Sureties.— A surety may preserve the lien of judgment against the principal and himself pay the judgment debt and have it assigned to a third person for his own credit, and this also applies to a judgment against his co-sureties and himself in enforcing an equality of obligation between them. Fowle v. Mclean, 168 N. C. 537, 84 S. E. 852.

What Constitutes a Refusal to Transfer.— Under a proper interpretation of the relevant parts of this section the refusal of the judgment creditor to transfer the judgment to some person whose personal rights in the judgment are superior to the surety, tendering payment of the same, means his final refusal to do so, and not when the status of the parties remain the same, and the judgment creditor subsequently offers and stands willing to assign judgment to the person requiring it requires. Bank v. Sprinkle, 180 N. C. 580, 104 S. E. 477.

The entry of transfer of judgment by the attorney of the judgment creditor upon the margin of the judgment as recorded in the office of the clerk of the superior court is prima facie evidence of transfer. Harrington v. Buchanan, 222 N. C. 698, 24 S. E. (2d) 534.

Surety Cannot Raise Question of Liability after Judgment
Section Does Not Apply to Insurers of Tort-Feasors.—An insurer of one joint tort-feasor paying the judgment recovered against both joint tort-feasors is not entitled to equitable subrogation as by its express terms it applies only to joint tort-feasors and to joint judgment debtors. Gaffney v. Lumbermen's Mut. Cas. Co. v. United States Fidelity, etc., Co., 211 N. C. 13, 188 S. E. 634.

Defendants May File Cross Action to Join Others as Joint Tort-Feasors.—Defendants in an action to recover for negligence in respect to this section, precluding plaintiff from taking a voluntary nonsuit, alleging that such defendant was entitled to keep the codefendant in the case as a joint tort-feasor, there being no relation between the tort-feasors outside the provision of the statute upon which the doctrine of equitable subrogation can be based, and the insurers of the tort-feasors, which defendants contend with the right of contribution in regard to consideration. Lumbermen's Mut. Cas. Co. v. United States Fidelity, etc., Co., 211 N. C. 13, 188 S. E. 634.

When a defendant in a negligent injury action files answers denying negligence but alleges in effect that the entire tort-feasor there being no relation between the tort-feasors outside the provision of the statute upon which the doctrine of equitable subrogation can be based, and the insurers of the tort-feasors, which defendants contend with the right of contribution in regard to consideration. Lumbermen's Mut. Cas. Co. v. United States Fidelity, etc., Co., 211 N. C. 13, 188 S. E. 634.

Voluntary Nonsuit Not Permitted as to Joint Tort-Feasor Against Whom Other Tort-Feasor Claims Relief.—Defendants in an action to recover for negligence in respect to this section, precluding plaintiff from taking a voluntary nonsuit, alleging that such defendant was entitled to keep the codefendant in the case as a joint tort-feasor, there being no relation between the tort-feasors outside the provision of the statute upon which the doctrine of equitable subrogation can be based, and the insurers of the tort-feasors, which defendants contend with the right of contribution in regard to consideration. Lumbermen's Mut. Cas. Co. v. United States Fidelity, etc., Co., 211 N. C. 13, 188 S. E. 634.

Lumbermen's Mut. Cas. Co. v. United States Fidelity, etc., Co., 211 N. C. 13, 188 S. E. 634.

Lumbermen's Mut. Cas. Co. v. United States Fidelity, etc., Co., 211 N. C. 13, 188 S. E. 634.

Lumbermen's Mut. Cas. Co. v. United States Fidelity, etc., Co., 211 N. C. 13, 188 S. E. 634.
such is not in the purview of the statute, and not enforceable by him under the statute of frauds. Brown v. Hobbs, 154 N. C. 544, 70 S. E. 906.

Amount Paid Plaintiff on Covenant Not to Sue as Credit.—Where joint tort-feasors, sued as joint tort-feasors, pay plaintiff a sum in consideration of a covenant not to sue, and thereafter the action is prosecuted against the other defendants, and judgment recovered against them, the defendant against whom judgment was rendered is entitled to have the judgment credited with the amounts paid by the other defendants for the covenant not to sue upon the motion made prior to the judgment, and in proper instances the court may decree a resale of the land if the purchaser does not pay within a specified time.—Ten Days' Notice Required.—Any court, which orders a judicial sale, or having possession of bonds taken on such sale, may, on motion, after ten days' notice, enter judgment, directing the clerk to resell the land if the purchaser does not pay within a specified time, and in proper instances the court may decree a resale of the land if the purchaser does not pay within a specified time.—In this case, sixty days. Davis v. Pierce, 167 N. C. 135, 8 S. E. 182.

Constitutionality.—This section is constitutional and does not contravene the right of trial by jury. Ex parte Cotten, 62 N. C. 79, 61.

§ 1-243. Proper Method to Enforce Contract.—An independent action upon an obligation to secure the payment of money given on a purchase under a judicial sale will not be entertained if objection be made in the proper time; the proper course is to affirmatively impeach the judgment on the ground that the sale is decreed. Lackey v. Pearson, 101 N. C. 651, 8 S. E. 121; but this matter is within the control of the court and in proper instances the court may decree a resell of the land if the purchaser does not pay within a specified time.—In this case, sixty days. Davis v. Pierce, 167 N. C. 135, 8 S. E. 182.

Failure of Purchaser to Comply with His Bid.—If a purchaser at a judicial sale fails to comply with his bid, the court may either declare, first, that he specially perform his contract, or, second, that the land be resold and the purchaser released, or third, that without releasing the purchaser the land be resold; but in this case the purchaser must undertake, as a condition precedent to the order of sale, to pay to the clerk of the superior court all the costs and to make good any deficiency in the price. Hudson v. Coble, 97 N. C. 260, 1 S. E. 688.

Ten Days' Notice Required.—Any court, which orders a judicial sale, has the power to make a decree for the money after ten days' notice thereof. Ex parte Cotten, 62 N. C. 79.

Waiver of Right to Jury Trial.—Although the defendant under this section is entitled to have a decree of a judgment, as provided by this section, the plaintiff is not bound in the event of confession which is not in the purview of the statute, and not enforcible by him under the statute of frauds. Brown v. Hobbs, 154 N. C. 544, 70 S. E. 906.

Amount Paid Plaintiff on Covenant Not to Sue as Credit.—Where joint tort-feasors, sued as joint tort-feasors, pay plaintiff a sum in consideration of a covenant not to sue, and thereafter the action is prosecuted against the other defendants, and judgment recovered against them, the defendant against whom judgment was rendered is entitled to have the judgment credited with the amounts paid by the other defendants for the covenant not to sue upon the motion made prior to the judgment, and in proper instances the court may decree a resale of the land if the purchaser does not pay within a specified time.—Ten Days' Notice Required.—Any court, which orders a judicial sale, or having possession of bonds taken on such sale, may, on motion, after ten days' notice, enter judgment, directing the clerk to resell the land if the purchaser does not pay within a specified time, and in proper instances the court may decree a resale of the land if the purchaser does not pay within a specified time.—In this case, sixty days. Constitutionality.—This section is constitutional and does not contravene the right of trial by jury. Ex parte Cotten, 62 N. C. 79, 61.

Judgment by Confession.—It is essential that the court have jurisdiction before a judgment on confession can be validly entered. Slocumb v. Shingle Co., 110 N. C. 24, 14 S. E.

Same.—May Be Collaterally Impeached.—Judgment, void if for want of jurisdiction in the court, if such appears upon the record, may be collaterally impeached in any court in which the question arises. Harvey v. Edmunds, 68 N. C. 243.

Now, if a judgment has been obtained by confession, being a final judgment, cannot be collaterally attacked for fraud, this must be done by an independent action proper constituted for that purpose. Sharp v. Danville etc. R. R. Co., 106 N. C. 308, 11 S. E. 537; Uzzle v. Vinson, 111 N. C. 138, 16 S. E. 6.

For What Judgment May Be Confessed.—A judgment by confession is for a present debt or a future debt. Bank v. Higginbottom, 9 Pet. 48, 9 L. Ed. 46.

So also a judgment may, it seems, be confessed for a specific sum claimed, subject to the right of the party confessing to reduce the amount, and in case of failure or omission to do so the whole amount will be collectible. Gear v. Parish, 5 How. 168, 12 L. Ed. 100.

Confession by Partner.—It would seem to be well settled that every partner has the power to confess a judgment so as to bind his copartners. Hall v. Lanning, 91 U. S. 109, 14 L. Ed. 271.

Confession by Guardian.—A judgment confessed by a guardian of a minor or incompetents, under the provisions of this section, if the statement required be verified by the guardian in the absence of fraud, is not irregular. McAden v. Hooker, 74 Ky. 944.

In White v. Albertson, 14 N. C. 241, the process had been served on the guardian above, [alone] and not on the infants also, as it should have been, and the guardian permitted judgment to be entered where the infant by his guardian was not notified of the court action. Even though the judgment was not irregular, although in that case it was said the court had acted unadvisedly in permitting the guardian whose interests were opposed to those of the ward to act in this manner, a judgment for money due to a minor or incompetent, is conclusive as against the minor or incompetents, in the absence of fraud, is not irregular. In re "C,, 264.

A judgment confessed by executors on a debt created after the death of the testator and during the time of administration will bind them in their individual capacity, though they style themselves as executors in making such a confession. Hall v. Craigie, 65 N. C. 51.

Confession May be Made to State.—A person may confess a judgment, or recognize on record, to the state for a sum agreed upon, to represent him in that case. The analogy between infants and wards is, however, a close one. A judgment does indeed create a contract; but it is only on the face of the proceedings. Smith v. Smith, 117 N. C. 348, 18 S. E. 765, the latter case holding that the confession is sufficient when it is for "goods sold and delivered," although omitting the time of sale, quantity, price and value of the goods.

Confession by Corporation.—A corporation, nothing to the contrary appearing, may by the action of its proper officers confess judgments as a natural person, if the essential requirements of the statute are complied with, Sharp v. Danville's real estate as of the date the judgment is docketed. Keel v. Bailey, 214 N. C. 159, 196 S. E. 654.

Parol Evidence Not Admissible.—Where a judgment is confessed by one against himself, and so entered of record, parol evidence is not admissible to show that it was intended to have been entered against another. Davidson v. Alexander, 84 N. C. 630.

Mistake as Ground for Relief.—If a judgment be confessed and a clear mistake, a court of law will set the judgment aside, if application be made, and the mistake shown, while the judgment in its power. Walden v. Skinner, 101 U. S. 577, 25 L. Ed. 963.

If it be clear that the judgment is no longer in the power of a court of law, relief may be obtained in a court of chancery. Id.

§ 1-248. Debtor to make verified statement.—A statement in writing must be made, signed, and verified by the defendant, to the following effect:

1. It must state the amount for which judgment may be confessed, and authorize the entry of judgment therefor.

2. If it is for money due, or to become due, it must state concisely the facts out of which it arose, and must show that the sum confessed is justly due, or to become due.

3. It is for the purpose of securing the plaintiff against a contingent liability, it must state concisely the facts constituting the liability, and must show that the sum confessed does not exceed the same. (Rev., s. 581; Code, s. 571; C. C. P., s. 326; C. S. 624.)

Editor's Note.—This section must be read in connection with Sec. 23-§ 1-248, as compliance with the provisions of this section, if one without the other is not sufficient. As was said in Sharp v. Danville etc. R. R. Co., 106 N. C. 308, 319, 11 S. E. 530, "It is not sufficient simply to confess and enter judgment. It is essential that the confession and entry shall have the additional requisites further prescribed by the statute." (Reference being made to this section.)

Section Statute.—In strict compliance with the provisions of this section is required, and if all the requirements are not met the judgment is void because of a want of jurisdiction in the court to render judgment, which is apparent on the face of the proceedings. Smith v. Smith, 117 N. C. 348, 191 S. E. 270.

It is essential to the validity of a judgment by confession that it be confessed and entered of record according to the provisions of this section. These are essential requirements required by the section to confer jurisdiction on the court, and to insure validity of the judgment. Farmers' Bank v. Culler, 196 N. C. 569, 146 S. E. 965.

Where the statutory requirements with respect to the form and contents of the statement have been fully complied with, as in the instant case, the court acquires jurisdiction, and authorizes the entry of judgment by the debtor in the statement, is valid for all purposes. Cline v. Cline, 209 N. C. 531, 535, 183 S. E. 904.

The verified statement is jurisdictional, both as to its filing and as to its contents. Gibbs v. Weston & Co., 221 N. C. 7, 9, 18 S. E. (2d) 698.

Verified Statement of Facts Required.—A judgment confessed under this section must contain a verified statement of the facts and transactions out of which the indebtedness arose. Davenport v. Leary, 25 N. C. 203, 204. And a mere statement that the debts are bona fide due, without embracing the amount and dates, is insufficient. Id. See also, Davidson v. Alexander, 84 N. C. 630, and Merchants Bank v. Newton Cotton Mills, 115 N. C. 507, 20 S. E. 765, the latter case holding that the confession is sufficient when it is for "goods sold and delivered," although omitting the time of sale, quantity, price and value of the goods.

Debts Evidence by Note or Bond.—A judgment confessed under this section must contain a verified statement of the facts and transactions out of which the indebtedness arose. Davenport v. Leary, 25 N. C. 203, 204. And a mere statement that the debts are bona fide due, without embracing the amount and dates, is insufficient. Id. See also, Davidson v. Alexander, 84 N. C. 630, and Merchants Bank v. Newton Cotton Mills, 115 N. C. 507, 20 S. E. 765, the latter case holding that the confession is sufficient when it is for "goods sold and delivered," although omitting the time of sale, quantity, price and value of the goods.

Debts Evidence by Note or Bond.—A judgment confessed under this section must contain a verified statement of the facts and transactions out of which the indebtedness arose. Davenport v. Leary, 25 N. C. 203, 204. And a mere statement that the debts are bona fide due, without embracing the amount and dates, is insufficient. Id. See also, Davidson v. Alexander, 84 N. C. 630, and Merchants Bank v. Newton Cotton Mills, 115 N. C. 507, 20 S. E. 765, the latter case holding that the confession is sufficient when it is for "goods sold and delivered," although omitting the time of sale, quantity, price and value of the goods.

Debts Evidence by Note or Bond.—A judgment confessed under this section must contain a verified statement of the facts and transactions out of which the indebtedness arose. Davenport v. Leary, 25 N. C. 203, 204. And a mere statement that the debts are bona fide due, without embracing the amount and dates, is insufficient. Id. See also, Davidson v. Alexander, 84 N. C. 630.
Same.—This Requirement Mandatory.—The filing of the concise statement of the facts out of which the indebtedness arose, required of the party confessing judgment, is mandatory. Davidson v. Alexander, 84 N. C. 623, 625.

Same.—Reason for the Rule.—A confession of judgment being the proceeding in derogation of a common right, the statute requires, as a protection against the perpetration of fraud, that the consideration out of which the debt arose be stated, so as to form a basis for the debt for which the judgment is confessed “is justly due.” Smith v. Smith, 117 N. C. 448, 350, 23 S. E. 270.

Confession of Judgment with Defeasance.—It is a well recognized practice in our statute law to confess a judgment with a defeasance, and the courts will take notice of the condition, and will not permit an execution to issue in violation of it. Hardy v. Reynolds, 69 N. C. 5.

A mere irregularity in the confession of judgment that no execution shall issue thereon within a time specified is not such a reservation for the benefit of the debtor as impairs the rights of other creditors, and does not vitiate the judgment. Merchants Nat. Bank v. Newton Cotton Mills, 115 N. C. 597, 20 S. E. 765.

Where a judgment confessed by a wife in favor of her husband shows only that it was based upon a sum alleged to be due from time to time to take care of obligations due at the banks by the wife, and fails to state the items constituting the advanced and to whom, and that the considerations for the same were not gifts to the wife, the judgment is insufficient to meet the requirements of the statute, and is void. Farmers’ Bank v. McCullers, 201 N. C. 440, 441, 160 S. E. 694.

Showing that Debt is Due Sufficient without Statement.—A confession of judgment which states the amount for which the judgment is confessed, and states that the same is due, is sufficiently to comply with the statute; and that the consideration for the same was an article sold and delivered, sufficiently conforms to the statute provided the statement is true, for then it follows that it is shown that the amount “is justly due.” Bank v. Newton Cotton Mills, 115 N. C. 597, 20 S. E. 765.

Description of the Nature of the Indebtedness Sufficient.—The failure to make in the confession of judgment a description of the nature of the indebtedness does not invalidate the judgment, provided the confession contains a sufficient description of the nature of the indebtedness to enable a party to make inquiry and ascertain the truth of the matter. Bank v. Newton Cotton Mills, 115 N. C. 597, 20 S. E. 765.

Where Judgment Does Not Expressly Authorize Filing.—Although a confession of judgment does not contain words competent to authorize the clerk to file the same upon the records, yet, if the record shows that the confession was sworn to and filed and judgment thereupon entered, the filing is valid, provided the clerk at the time of entering judgment thereon as if an action were pending, in all other respects comports with the requirements of the statute, and sufficiently conforms to the statute. Bank v. Newton Cotton Mills, 115 N. C. 597, 20 S. E. 765.

Mere Filing and Entry of a Verified Statement.—Although a confession of judgment contains a provision for a defeasance, or other evidence of indebtedness does not invalidate the judgment, provided the confession contains a sufficient description of the nature of the indebtedness to enable a party to make inquiry and ascertain the truth of the matter. Bank v. Newton Cotton Mills, 115 N. C. 597, 20 S. E. 765.

Judgment Is a Lien for the Amount Named.—A judgment confessed to provide security against a contingent liability is a lien and must be so treated; and the full amount named till the actual loss is determined at a lesser sum. Darvin v. Blount, 126 N. C. 247, 250, 35 S. E. 479.

Judgment Containing Irregularities.—Ordinarily, a judgment by confession which contains any irregularities, the party confessing the judgment being presumed to have waived them; but where the judgment is void for a cause appearing in the record, or the record omits some essential element, it shall not be set aside or squashed. Nickolls v. Cape Fear Shingle Co., 110 N. C. 20, 22, 14 S. E. 622.

Same.—Judgments by Confession May Be Amended as Other Judgments.—Such irregularities as a confession of judgment which contains any irregularities, the party confessing the judgment being presumed to have waived them; but where the judgment is void for a cause appearing in the record, or the record omits some essential element, it shall not be set aside or squashed, are irregularities they may be cured by amendment. Bank v. Newton Cotton Mills, 115 N. C. 597, 20 S. E. 765.

Same.—Irregularities Only May Be Cured by Amendment.—If the proceedings are defective in form and substance, that it is void upon its face, no amendment can be made to give it life; but if there are irregularities, they may be cured by amendment. Bank v. Newton Cotton Mills, 115 N. C. 597, 20 S. E. 765.

§ 1-249.—Who May Set Aside the Judgment.—A judgment may be set aside for irregularities upon the application of a party thereto. Uzlee v. Vinson, 111 N. C. 138, 16 S. E. 6.

§ 1-250.—Judgment; execution; installment debt. —The statement may be filed with the clerk of the superior court of the county in which the defendant resides, or if he does not reside in the state, of some county in which he has property. The clerk shall indorse upon it and enter on his judgment docket a judgment of the court for the principal confessed, with interest, after costs, and may demand payment, together with disbursements. The statement and affidavit, with the judgment indorsed thereon as if an action were pending, forthwith become the judgment roll. Executions may be issued and enforced thereon in the same manner as upon judgments in other cases in such courts. When the debt for which the judgment is recovered is not all due, or is payable in installments, and the installments are not all due, the execution may issue upon such judgment for the collection of such installments as have become due, and shall be in the usual form; but must have indorsed thereon, by the attorney or person issuing it, a direction to the sheriff to collect the amount due on such judgment, with interest and costs, which amount shall be stated, with interest thereon, fell due at the time of the confession, and endorse it as such. The judgment remains as security for the installments thereafter to become due; and whenever any further installment becomes due, execution may, in like manner, be issued for its collection and enforcement. (Rev., s. 582; Code, s. 573; C. C. P., s. 327; C. S. 625.)

Substantial Compliance Required.—The requirements of this section, like those contained in the two preceding sections, must be, at least, substantially complied with. Sharp v. Danville, etc., R. Co., 106 N. C. 398, 211, 11 S. E. 590. The rendition of judgment in a proceeding of this kind is a distinct office of the court, not to be confused with the ministerial acts of filing and docketing: Nickolls v. Western & N.C. Ry., 221 N. C. 7, 10, 18 S. E. (2d) 698.

When and Where Judgment Entered.—The mere fact that the judgments were entered in the night time and in the law office of counsel, which was near to the courthouse and convenient, did not render them void or irregular. Sharp v. Danville, etc., R. Co., 106 N. C. 398, 321, 11 S. E. 530.

Failure to Endorse Judgment on Verified Statement Does Not Affect Validity.—The endorsement on the verified statement was an irregularity which does not affect the validity of the judgment, which the entry on the judgment docket made by the clerk, or under his immediate supervision, shows was rendered by the court. Cline v. Cline, 209 N. C. 531, 535, 183 S. E. 504.

§ 1-255. Submission of Controversy without Action.—Parties to a question in difference which might be the subject of a civil action may, without action, agree upon a case containing the facts upon which the controversy depends, and present a submission of the same to any court which would have jurisdiction if an action had been brought. But it is essential that the case contained in the affidavit that the controversy is real, and that the proceedings in good faith to determine the rights of the controversy. The judge shall hear and determine the case, and render judgment thereon as if an action were pending. (Rev., s. 803; Code, s. 567; C. C. P., s. 315; C. S. 626.)

Editor’s Note.—The prime (and practically the only) object an agreement as to the facts and for the court to rule the law, in a suit to quiet title to lands, differs from a controversy submitted without action under the provisions of § 1-250 CH. 1. CIVIL PROCEDURE—JUDGMENT § 1-250 of this section is to prevent excessive litigation. This true, its provisions are quite limited in their operation. They are applicable only to a case where there are parties to a question of law, and the parties to a question of law are parties to a controversy submitted without action, a judgment might be rendered for one party against the other.

The purpose of this section is to enable parties to a question in difference, which might be the subject of a civil action, where they agree as to the facts involved, to submit the facts to the court, for its decision on the question involved, and to have a judgment rendered, without the expense and formalities required for a civil action. Hicks v. Greene County, 200 N. C. 73, 76, 156 S. E. 54.

Where the parties submit to the court questions of law arising upon facts agreed, without showing that they have rights involved in the questions, upon which they would be entitled to judgment, in a civil action the court is without jurisdiction, under this section, and should decline to consider the questions submitted for its decision. Id.

The jurisdiction to render advisory opinions with respect to, or judgments declaring the rights and liabilities of parties to actions or proceedings on an agreed statement of facts, was not conferred by this section. Wright v. Wilmington & W. R. Co. 119 N. C. 553, 554, 26 S. E. 955.

Court Must Have Jurisdiction.—The submission of a controversy without action under this section must be to a court of competent jurisdiction over the subject matter. Ruffin v. Ruffin, 112 N. C. 779, 16 S. E. 1021. Where the superior court has no jurisdiction over an action to recover a town tax of $5 paid to an incorporated town under written protest, an action therefor in that court should be dismissed. Greene v. Sta dien, 197 N. C. 472, 149 S. E. 685.

Not Applicable to Justice's Court.—This section has no application to a case where justice of the peace. Wilmington v. Atkinson, 88 N. C. 54, 55.

The difference between the operation of the Declaratory Judgment Act, which is to prevent expensive litigation. This being the case, the court must have jurisdiction to render advisory opinions with respect to, or judgments declaring the rights and liabilities of parties to actions or proceedings on an agreed statement of facts. Such jurisdiction was not conferred by this section. Tryon v. Duke Power Co., 222 N. C. 200, 203, 22 S. E. (2d) 450.

Verification by Affidavit Essential.—It is essential that the submission be verified by an affidavit. Millikan v. Fox, 84 N. C. 648.

In contrast with a special judge under such circumstances there is a failure to file an affidavit to the effect that the controversy is real, and the proceedings are in good faith. Where a submission is made to the court on a case agreed interrogatories in respect thereto, there is a failure to file an affidavit that a real case exists, and that the controversy is submitted in good faith to determine the rights involved in the questions. Dowling v. So. Ry. Co., 194 N. C. 488, 140 S. E. 363.

There is no "question of difference" between them, the proceeding being a request for advice of law, not a question in difference, which might be the subject of a civil action. E. C. L. D. & N. R. Co. v. Reidsville, 101 N. C. 404, 8 S. E. 124.

Parties.—All persons having an interest in the controversy must be parties to the case, and that interest must be manifest. Edney v. Mathews, 218 N. C. 171, 10 S. E. (2d) 619.

Record on Appeal.—Upon appeal from judgment entered in a submission of controversy without action, the agreed facts with the required affidavits, are necessary parts of the record proper. Consolidated Realty Corp. v. Koon, 215 N. C. 439, 2 S. E. (2d) 360.

No Prayer for Judgment Necessary.—In an action submitted under this section, a prayer for judgment is not necessary. Williams v. Commissioners, 132 N. C. 300, 43 S. E. 895.

Exhibits Containing Facts Not Attached.—The summary made by the court for the purpose of the section for the submission of an action upon a case agreed, contemplated the court's jurisdiction to render advisory opinions with respect to a determination of the questions submitted shall be fully stated in the case agreed; and where it appeared that the case agreed is not sufficiently identified so that it may be known which exhibits were attached, and that leave was given the parties to add other matters, the cause was remanded to be perfected. Piedmont R. Co. v. Reidsville, 101 N. C. 644, 8 S. E. 124.

Plaintiff's Plea Not Affidavits Attached.—Where, when the case was docketed in the Supreme Court, no affidavit had been filed as required by this section, the plain tiff's plea was allowed with leave to file, but the affidavit was not lodged. Bank v. Trust Co., 119 N. C. 553, 554, 26 S. E. 131.

Parties.—All persons having an interest in the controversy must be parties to the case, and that interest must be manifested by the affidavits to the effect that the controversy is real, and that the parties are parties to the case, and that the controversy is submitted to the court for its decision. Dowling v. So. Ry. Co., 194 N. C. 488, 140 S. E. 363.

Section Contemplates the Rendition of a Judgment.—The true construction of this section is that it does not confer a jurisdiction over an action without showing that they have rights involved in the questions, upon which they would be entitled to judgment, in a civil action the court is without jurisdiction, under this section, and should decline to consider the questions submitted for its decision. Id.

The jurisdiction to render advisory opinions with respect to, or judgments declaring the rights and liabilities of parties to actions or proceedings on an agreed statement of facts, was not conferred by this section. Wright v. Wilmington & W. R. Co. 119 N. C. 553, 554, 26 S. E. 955.

Same— Sufficiency of Facts Stated.—The statement of facts agreed upon should contain sufficient averments to constitute a cause of action. Bank v. Atkinson, 88 N. C. 54, 55, 16 S. E. 1021.

When a case is heard under this summary method authorized by the Code, the judgment should be final and complete, with nothing further to be done except to carry the judgment into effect that the parties are parties to the case, and that the controversy is submitted to the court for its decision. Id.

Same— Where Question of Great Public Concern Involved.—Where, under this section a controversy is submitted which involves matters of great public concern and which is supported by an affidavit that the controversy is real, and the parties agree as to the facts involved, to submit the case to the court for its decision, and thereafter the court shall hear and determine the case and render judgment thereon as if an action were pending. McGhan v. Biggs, 191 N. C. 315, 325, 22 S. E. 2; Little v. Thorne, 100 N. C. 399, 409.

Same— Statement of Facts Should Include Only Pertinent Facts Agree Upon.—In the submission of a controversy without action the statement of facts agreed should include only pertinent facts and matters as to which the parties agree are necessary and the statute must be strictly construed. Consolidated Realty Corp. v. Koon, 216 N. C. 295, 4 S. E. (2d) 450.

Administration Suit Distinguished from Submission of Controversy.—Where, in proceedings to sell lands to make assets, defendants pleaded the statute of limitations as to certain indebtedness alleged in petitioner's bill of particulars and asked for an accounting, and the parties thereto agreed that any controversy should be heard by the judge without a jury upon an affidavit of the facts and that the judge might find such additional facts as he may consider necessary to complete determination of the controversy. The process was not a submission of controversy as defined by the section and is not subject to the provisions of the statute. Ruffin v. Ruffin, 112 N. C. 779, 16 S. E. 1021.

Interests Must Be Antagonistic.—For the courts to pass upon a controversy submitted under the provisions of this section the interest of the parties must be antagonistic, and the case will be dismissed if it appears that the parties are parties to a question of law, but are not parties to a controversy submitted without action. Hicks v. Greene County, 200 N. C. 73, 76, 156 S. E. 54.

Where it appears that an action is instituted solely to obtain a judgment and the controversy be finally adjudicated as in favor of one party against another, the action will be dismissed. Ruffin v. Ruffin, 112 N. C. 779, 16 S. E. 1021.

Parity of Street Assessment with Tax Liens.—The question presented for determination under this section and § 1-252 in the case of Saluda v. Polk County, 207 N. C. 180, 176 S. E. 513, was whether a street assessment constitutes a lien on a parity and of equal dignity with tax lien.

§ 1-251. Judgment roll.—Judgment shall be entered on the judgment docket, as in other cases, but without cost for any proceedings prior to trial. The case, the submission, and a copy of the judgment, constitute the judgment roll. (Rev., s. 804; Code, s. 588; C. C. P., s. 316; C. S. 627.)

Judge May Sign Judgment in Vacation.—A judge of the superior court has a right, with consent of parties, to sign
§ 1-252. Judgment enforced; appeal.—The judgment may be enforced in the same manner as if it had been rendered in an action, and is subject to appeal in like manner. (Rev., s. 805; Code, s. 569; C. C. P., s. 317; C. S. 628.)

No particular assignment of error is necessary, when the appeal is taken from a judgment on an agreed statement of facts. Davenport v. Leary, 95 N. C. 203, 204.

For declaratory judgments, wherein the facts agreed in a controversy without action show no cause of action, an appeal from a judgment thereon will be dismissed in the Supreme Court, as where the plaintiff claims title under a deed, averred that her purchaser was prevented from accepting her deed by the claims of the defendants, without allegation of the facts and circumstances or setting forth sufficiently the terms of the deeds, or making her purchaser and other necessary parties, parties to her action, thus presenting a moot question which the court will not decide. Waters v. Boyd, 179 N. C. 180, 102 S. E. 196.

§ 1-253. Courts of record permitted to enter declaratory judgments of rights, status and other legal relations.—Courts of record within their respective jurisdictions shall have power to declare rights, status, and other legal relations, whether further relief is or is not forthcoming or could be claimed. No action or proceeding shall be open to objection on the ground that a declaratory judgment or decree is prayed for. The declaration may be either affirmative or negative in form and effect; and such declarations shall have the force and effect of a final judgment or decree. (1931, c. 102, s. 1.)

Editor's Note.—See 12 N. C. Law Rev. 57, for note on this section.

Section 14 of the act from which this article is codified provides that no action or proceeding is excepted except sections one and two, and the same is hereby declared of general application and the invalidity, if any, of any part or feature thereof shall not affect or render the remainder of the act invalid or inoperative."

This valuable legislation is passed in substantially the form of the Uniform Act recommended by the National Conference of Commissioners on Uniform State Laws, and contains nothing to prevent its application effectively to local procedure. See the explanation and comments in 9 N. C. Law Rev. 20-24.

One has only to look at the state of the law in North Carolina to realize how valuable it is, and how necessary. Edgerton v. Groover, 200 N. C. 73, 156 S. E. 164, by way of contrast to appreciate the improvement which the Declaratory Judgment Act brings to procedure in this state. 9 N. C. Law Rev. 352, 353.

This and subsequent sections applied in Edgerton v. Hood, 205 N. C. 816, 172 S. E. 481, to determine the rights and duties of the parties with respect to the administration of assets of the Rutherford Bank under the provisions of Chapter 344, public local laws of North Carolina, 1931.

In General.—This article does not extend to the submission of the theoretical problem or a mere abstraction, and it is not intended to vest in the courts of the judicial power vested in them by the constitution, to give advisory opinions, or to answer most questions, or to maintain a legal bureau for those who may chance to be interested, for the time being, in the pursuit of some academic matter. Allison v. Sharp, 209 N. C. 477, 481, 184 S. E. 27, citing Poore v. Poore, 201 N. C. 791, 161 S. E. 522; Carolina Power, etc., Co. v. Isleley, 203 N. C. 811, 167 S. E. 56.

This article affords a means of testing the validity of a statute requiring persons presenting themselves for registration or otherwise acquiring the utility of the defendant, without a declaratory judgment or decree brings to procedure in this state. 9 N. C. Law Rev. 20-24.

An ex parte proceeding to determine petitioner's declaratory judgment of rights, status and other legal relations is affected by a statute, municipal ordinance, contract or franchise, may have determined any question of construction or validity arising under the instrument, statute, ordinance, contract, or franchise, and may have determined any question of construction or validity arising under the instrument, statute, ordinance, contract, or franchise, and obtain a declaration of rights, status, or other legal relation affecting the parties, the courts have jurisdiction to determine only the civil matters. Calcutt v. McGee, 231 N. C. 1, 195 S. E. 49.

§ 1-254. Courts given power of construction of all instruments.—Any person interested under a deed, will, written contract or other writings constituting a contract, or whose rights, status or other legal relations are affected by a statute, municipal ordinance, contract or franchise, may have determined any question of construction or validity arising under the instrument, statute, ordinance, contract, or franchise, and obtain a declaration of rights, status, or other legal relations affecting the parties, the courts may construe the contract either before or after there has been a breach thereof. (1931, c. 102, s. 2.)

A paper writing in the handwriting of deceased, found among his valuable papers after his death, and bearing upon its face the animus testandi, will be declared his will

§ 1-255. Who may apply for a declaration.—
Any person interested as or through an executor, administrator, trustee, guardian or other fiduciary, creditor, devisee, legatee, heir, next of kin, orcestui que trust, in the administration of a trust, or of the estate of a decedent, an infant, lunatic, or insolvent, may have a declaration of rights or legal relations in respect thereto: (a) To ascertain any class of creditors, devisees, legatees, heirs, next of kin or others; or (b) To direct the executors, administrators, or trustees to do or abstain from doing any particular act in their fiduciary capacity; or (c) To determine any question arising in the administration of the estate or trust, including questions of construction of wills and other writings. (1931, c. 103, s. 3.)

An executor and trustee may institute an action in the superior court to obtain the advice of the court as to whether inheritance taxes should be paid from the corpus of the estate or deducted from annuities provided for in the will, and such action may be maintained under this section. Wachovia Bank, etc., Co. v. Lambeth, 213 N. C. 576, 197 S. E. 129, 117 A. L. R. 117.

§ 1-256. Enumeration of declarations not exclusive.—The enumeration in sections 1-254 and 1-255 does not limit or restrict the exercise of the general powers conferred in section 1-253 in any proceedings where declaratory relief is sought, in which a judgment or decree will terminate the controversy or remove an uncertainty. (1931, c. 103, s. 4.)

This section enlarges the specific categories mentioned elsewhere in the statute. Tryon v. Duke Power Co., 222 N. C. 200, 265, 22 S. E. (2d) 450.

§ 1-257. Discretion of court.—The court may refuse to render or enter a declaratory judgment or decree where such judgment or decree, if rendered or entered, would not terminate the uncertainty or controversy giving rise to the proceeding. (1931, c. 103, s. 5.)

§ 1-258. Review.—All orders, judgments and decrees under this article may be reviewed as other orders, judgments and decrees. (1931, c. 102, s. 6.)

§ 1-259. Supplemental relief. — Further relief based on a declaratory judgment or decree may be granted whenever necessary or proper. The application therefor shall be by petition to a court having jurisdiction to grant the relief. If the application be deemed sufficient, the court shall, on reasonable notice, require any adverse party whose rights have been adjudicated by the declaratory judgment or decree, to show cause why further relief should not be granted forthwith. (1931, c. 102, s. 7.)

§ 1-260. Parties.—When declaratory relief is sought, all persons shall be made parties who have or claim any interest which would be affected by the declaration, and no declaration shall prejudice the rights of persons not parties to the proceedings. In any proceeding which involves the validity of a municipal ordinance or franchise, such municipality shall be made a party, and shall be entitled to be heard, and if the statute, ordinance or franchise is alleged to be unconstitutional, the attorney general of the State shall also be served with a copy of the proceeding and be entitled to be heard. (1931, c. 102, s. 8.)

§ 1-261. Jury trial.—When a proceeding under this article involves the determination of an issue of fact, such issue may be determined in the same manner as issues of fact are tried and determined in other civil actions in the court in which the proceeding is pending. (1931, c. 102, s. 9.)

Cross Reference.—As to how issues are tried, see § 1-172 et seq.

§ 1-262. Hearing before judge where no issues of fact raised or jury trial waived; what judge may hear.—Proceedings under this article shall stand for trial at a term of court, as in other civil actions. If no issues of fact are raised, or if such issues are raised and the parties waive a jury trial, by agreement of the parties the proceedings may be heard before any judge of the Superior Court. If in such case the parties do not agree upon a judge for the hearing, then upon motion of the plaintiff the proceeding may be heard by the resident judge of the district, or the judge holding the courts of the district, or by any judge holding a term of the Superior Court within the district. Such motion shall be in writing, with ten days notice to the defendant, and the judge so designated shall fix a time and place for the hearing and notify the parties. Upon notice given, the Clerk of the Superior Court in which the action is pending shall forward the papers in the proceeding to the judge designated. The hearing by the judge shall be governed by the practice for hearing in other civil actions before a judge without a jury. The term "Superior Court Judge" used in this section shall include emergency and special judges of the Superior Court. (1931, c. 101, s. 10.)

Cross References.—As to trial generally, see § 1-170 et seq. As to waiver of jury trial and findings of fact by judge, see §§ 1-184, 1-185.

§ 1-263. Costs.—In any proceeding under this article the court may make such award of costs as may seem equitable and just. (1931, c. 102, s. 11.)

§ 1-264. Liberal construction and administration.—This article is declared to be remedial; its purpose is to settle and to afford relief from uncertainty and insecurity with respect to rights, status, and other legal relations, and it is to be liberally construed and administered. (1931, c. 103, s. 12.)

§ 1-265. Word "person" construed.—The word "person" wherever used in this article, shall be construed to mean any person, partnership, joint stock company, unincorporated association, or society, or municipal corporation or other corporation of any character whatsoever. (1931, c. 109, s. 13.)

§ 1-266. Uniformity of interpretation. — This article shall be so interpreted and construed as to effectuate its general purpose to make uniform the law of those states which enact it, and to harmonize, as far as possible, with Federal laws and regulations on the subject of declaratory judgments and decrees. (1931, c. 103, s. 15.)

§ 1-267. Short title.—This article may be cited as the Uniform Declaratory Judgment Act. (1931, c. 102, s. 16.)
SUBCHAPTER IX. APPEAL.

Art. 27. Appeal.

§ 1-268. Writs of error abolished.—Writs of error in civil actions are abolished, and the only mode of reviewing a judgment, or order, in a civil action, is that prescribed by this chapter. (Rev. s. 583; Code, s. 544; C. C. P., s. 296; C. S. 629.)

Editor’s Note.—Prior to the adoption of the Code of Civil Procedure writs of error were allowed in proper cases. But in Smith v. Cheek, 50 N. C. 213, it was held that the Supreme Court had no power to issue a writ of error. Section 296 abolishes writs of error and substituted appeals therefor. Lynn v. Lowe, 88 N. C. 478; White v. Morris, 16 S. E. 929. Cited in King v. Wilmington, etc., Ry., 112 N. C. 318, 16 S. E. 929.

§ 1-269. Certiorari, recordari, and supersedeas.—Writs of certiorari, recordari, and supersedeas are authorized as heretofore in use. The writs of certiorari and recordari, when used as substitutes for an appeal, may issue when ordered upon the applicant filing a written undertaking for the costs only; but the supersedeas, to suspend execution, shall not issue until an undertaking is filed or a deposit made to secure the judgment sought to be vacated, in all cases of appeal where execution is stayed. (Rev. s. 584; Code, s. 545; 1874-5, c. 109; C. S. 630.)

F. Issuance of Writ from Superior Court.

G. When Granted.

H. Discretion of Supreme Court. — The granting or refusing of a writ of certiorari is a matter within the discretion of the Supreme Court. King v. Taylor, 188 N. C. 450, 124 S. E. 751; Walker v. Dudley, 193 N. C. 354, 137 S. E. 140; Peoples Bank, etc., Co. v. Parks, 191 N. C. 263, 131 S. E. 637.

When Certiorari a Matter of Right.—Certiorari will be granted, as a matter of right, where it appears that appellant has been deprived of his appeal by the conduct of the opposing party. Wiley v. Lineberry, 88 N. C. 68; State v. Reid, 18 N. C. 377.

If a party prays an appeal, and the court refuses to allow it, the certiorari is granted as “a matter of course.” White v. Snow, 48 N. C. 100.

Cannot Be Denied by Certiorari.—Certiorari is a discretionary writ, and counsel may not dispense with it by agreement. In re McCade, 183 N. C. 242, 111 S. E. 3; State v. Hooker, 183 N. C. 763, 111 S. E. 352.

Persons Entitled.—To entitle one to a writ of certiorari he must have some interest in the proceeding sought to be reviewed, and sustain injury thereby. Petty v. Jones, 23 N. C. 408. See Shober v. Wheeler, 119 N. C. 471, 26 S. E. 25; Otey v. Rogers, 26 N. C. 534.

Finality of Determination. — Where the judgment against a party is retained for further orders, the judgment is interlocutory and certiorari will not be granted. Smith v. Miller, 155 N. C. 247, 71 S. E. 355.

Negligent Delay. — One who negligently allows the time for bringing his appeal to expire without seeking such remedy is not entitled to the remedy by certiorari. Suiter v. Britt, 92 N. C. 53; In re Britain, 91 N. C. 587.

Necessity of Filing Record. — The appellant must apply file a record proper in the case appealed from as a prerequisite for the Supreme Court to grant his motion for a certiorari to bring up the case for review. Brock v.
Ellis, 193 N. C. 540, 137 S. E. 558; Lindsey v. Knights of Honor, 172 N. C. 618, 90 S. E. 1013.

Certiorari — A writ of certiorari is but a substitute for an appeal, it can only be allowed on the same security, and justification thereof, as in cases of appeal. Chastain v. Chastain, 87 N. C. 286.

But the Supreme Court has the power, in a proper case, to allow the writ to issue without such undertaking. Brittain v. Mull, 93 N. C. 490. The contrary is apparently held in Weber v. Taylor, 66 N. C. 412, but this was in relation to the “appellant’s case.”

Imposition of Terms on Applicant. — When granted the appellant may be laid under terms not to avail himself of a technical advantage. Collins v. Nall, 14 N. C. 224.

Certiorari Denied When Transcript cannot be Docketed. — Under a writ of certiorari, the object of which is only to bring up the record, and where the return of a certiorari, substituted for an appeal, is owing to no fault of the appellant, but to the fault of the clerk, he shall have his cause carried up by a certiorari. Chambers v. Smith, 2 N. C. 365; Graves v. Hines, 106 N. C. 362, 10 S. E. 362.

But not where the clerk fails to send up the transcript. Pittman v. Kimberly, 92 N. C. 562.

Neglect of Counsel. — Where the appellant’s counsel told him that he would do everything necessary toward preparing his appeal, but the counsel failed to file a proper appeal bond it was held, no ground for a certiorari. Warner v. Byrd, 92 N. C. 7.

Sickness of Appellant. — Sickness of appellant is a sufficient excuse for failure to perfect an appeal so as to entitle him to certiorari as a substitute therefor. Howerton v. Henderson, 86 N. C. 836.

Effect of Certiorari. — Where a defendant has lost his appeal, but is granted a writ of certiorari in lieu thereof, the granting of the writ has the effect of an appeal to stay of execution, and if the officer is available, he is entitled to appear and to take the same course of action as if the writ of certiorari had been granted. Walters, 97 N. C. 689, 24 S. E. 592. See Pender v. Mallett, 122 N. C. 163, 30 S. E. 324.

Docketing as a Condition Precedent for Certiorari. — All of the transcript that can be obtained must be docketed at the first term and certiorari asked to complete the transcript. Pittman v. Kimberly, 92 N. C. 562; Scolumb v. Construction Co., 142 N. C. 349, 55 S. E. 196; Walsh v. Burleson, 154 N. C. 174, 69 S. E. 680.

Same—Waiver. — Requirement of Supreme Court that on application for certiorari for case on appeal transcript of the record proper must be docketed cannot be waived byappellee. Murphy v. Carolina Elect. Co., 174 N. C. 785, 93 S. E. 556.

Same—When Transcript Cannot Be Docketed. — Where the papers constituting the record proper have been misplaced without any laches of an appellant, the proper practice is to file the case on appeal settled by the trial judge, and make an order allowing the same. Southern R. Co., 121 N. C. 501, 504, 28 S. E. 347; McMillan v. Young, 142 N. C. 410, 29 S. E. 721.

When certiorari is addressed to boards of assessment or boards of assessment and equalization, where that practice is permitted, it is generally held that the power of review, as in other instances of jurisdiction, extends over questions of valuation, and even to jurisdictional or procedural irregularities or errors of law. Belk’s Dept. Store v. Guilford County, 222 N. C. 441, 445, 23 S. E. (2d) 897, and cases cited therein.

Cited in In re Guerin, 206 N. C. 834, 175 S. E. 181.

C. Illustrative Cases.

Failure to Serve a Case on Appeal. — A petition or a writ of certiorari to bring up the case on appeal will not be granted where the appeal was lost by failure to serve the case on appeal. Zell Guano Co. v. Hicks, 120 N. C. 29, 26 S. E. 362.

Waiver of Statutory Requirements. — When there is an alleged waiver of the statutory requirements in setting case on appeal, a certiorari will issue if the allegations of the petition are not denied. Holmes v. Holmes, 84 N. C. 833, 844.

Delay of Judge. — Where the delay in prosecuting the appeal is owing to no fault of the appellant, but to the fault of the clerk, the clerk may be allowed a writ of certiorari. Sparks v. Sparks, 92 N. C. 359; Haynes v. Coward, 116 N. C. 840, 21 S. E. 690.

Retirement of Judge before Preparing Case. — Where on application for certiorari for case on appeal transcript of the record proper cannot be obtained, a writ of certiorari will be issued. Held in Weber v. Taylor, 66 N. C. 412, but this was in relation to the “appellant’s case.”

Loss Caused by Mistake of Clerk. — After a party has prayed an appeal and offered its sureties, if he be defeated of his prayer, and by the act of the clerk, the clerk, he shall have his cause carried up by a certiorari. Chambers v. Smith, 2 N. C. 365; Graves v. Hines, 106 N. C. 362, 10 S. E. 362.

But not where the clerk fails to send up the transcript. Pittman v. Kimberly, 92 N. C. 562.

Section 1-269
D. Requirements of Application.

Editor's Note. — Under the analysis line “General Considerations,” under this note, will be found many cases pertaining to, though not expressly referring to, the application. These cases considering the subject generally should be consulted with reference to the requisites of the application.

Affidavit Required. — The writ of certiorari or recordari to review the judgment of a lower court will be issued only on a proper showing of merits, on affidavit filed. Taylor v. Superior Court, 135 N. C. 469, 38 S. E. 900; Tate v. N. C., 23 S. E. 290; B. General Consideration.

Mistake Must Be Apparent. — Certiorari to correct a mistake stated on appeal will not be granted unless it is shown by the affidavit of the appellant that there were questions of law which he had a right to have heard, or that there were questions of fact which he had a right to have heard and determined by the superior court. Britt v. Patterson, 31 N. C. 197.

Loss of Papers. — Where an application for recordari states that the papers asked to be sent up were lost, but does not aver that steps have been taken to supply them, the writ will not issue. Sanders v. Thompson, 114 N. C. 382, 19 S. E. 225.

Failure to Show Reason for Neglect. — Where a petition for a writ of recordari did not allege that the adverse party prevented defendants from taking an appeal, and it did not appear that an appeal was ever taken, and no notice was given to the inferior court, the writ was denied, without reference to the merits. Collins v. Nall, 14 N. C. 224; McConnell v. Caldwell, 15 N. C. 554; Taylor v. Superior Court, 125 N. C. 197, 34 S. E. 100.

Case Inaccurately Made. — When it is suggested that the case on appeal is inaccurately made out, the Supreme Court will award a certiorari, if the party, upon a proper showing, may make correcion. State v. Gay, 94 N. C. 821.

Omitted Matter Must Be Relevant. — A certiorari will be denied where it does not appear that the matter omitted was relevant or pertinent to the case presented on appeal. City Nat. Bank v. Bridgers, 114 N. C. 107, 19 S. E. 276; Clark v. Socio-Pettee Mach. Works, 150 N. C. 88, 63 S. E. 15.

Mistake Must Be Apparent. — Certiorari to correct a mistake stated on appeal will not be granted unless it is shown by the affidavit of the appellee, rejecting that of the appellant, that the record shows a written agreement of counsel of which the appellee was not aware, and that the agreement is oral and disputed, and such waiver can be shown by affidavit of the appellee, rejecting that of the appellant.

Tacit Agreement to Waive Delay. — Where there is an unexpressed tacit agreement to waive delay certiorari will issue. Holmes v. Holmes, 84 N. C. 583; Willis v. Atlantic, etc., R. Co., 119 N. C. 718, 23 S. E. 793.

III. RECORDARI.

A. Editor's Note.

The writ of recordari under the former practice, and retained in the new, is used for two purposes; the one in order to have a new trial of the case upon its merits, and this is a substitute for an appeal from a judgment rendered before a justice; the other, for the purpose of making a defense in the county court, which can be made in the superior court as well as in the county court, and this is a substitute for an appeal from a decision of a justice, and the writ of recordari is the substitute for a writ of certiorari. Lyon v. McPherson, 48 N. C. 174.

But a mere suggestion of fraud is insufficient. McLaughlin v. McLaughlin, 47 N. C. 319. See also Haddock v. Stocks, 167 N. C. 70, 83 S. E. 9.

B. General Consideration.

Scope of Recordari. — If a party has merits and desires a new trial in the superior court, upon a matter heard before a justice of the peace, he must, by proper application, obtain a writ of recordari as a substitute for an appeal. Ledbetter v. Interstate, 66 N. C. 379. It is in the nature of an extension of the power of appeal. Webb v. Durham, 29 N. C. 130.
Writ of False Judgment or Substitute for Appeal.—The writ of recordari may be treated as a substitute for an appeal from a justice's judgment to have a new trial on the merits, or as a writ of false judgment. Marler-Dalton-Gilmer Co. v. Wadesboro Clothing, etc., Co., 150 N. C. 519, 64 S. E. 366; Mote v. Rippy, 84 N. C. 611; Caldwell v. Beatty, 69 N. C. 355.

The writ of recordari is authorized by this section and recognized by the decisions of this court, both as a substitute for an appeal from a judgment of a justice of the peace, in order to have a new trial on the merits, and as a writ of "false judgment," to obtain a reversal of an erroneous judgment. King v. Wilmington & Weldon R. R. Co., 112 N. C. 171, 8 S. E. 829.

The writ of recordari may be used as a writ of false judgment. Parker v. Gilreath, 28 N. C. 221; Kearnery v. Jefferson, 58 N. C. 357, 359.

Lies to Inferior Tribunal Whose Proceedings Are Not Recorded.—The writ of recordari lies to an inferior tribunal, whose proceedings are not recorded. Hartsfield v. Taylor, 126 N. C. 129, 56 S. E. 125.

Jurisdiction of Superior Courts.—The writs of certiorari and recordari are to be applied for in orderly procedure to the superior courts of general jurisdiction vested by the state constitution and statutes with appellate and supervisory powers over the judicial action of all the inferior courts of the state. Taylor v. Johnson, 171 N. C. 64, 87 S. E. 747; Sossamon v. Polk, 158 N. C. 145, 76 S. E. 977.

Injunction Without Docket Appeal.—When an appeal from a justice's court has not been docketed within the time prescribed by section 1-300, the appellant should move for a recordari, or an application may be made to the superior court for an appeal from a justice's judgment to have a new trial on the merits, or as a writ of false judgment. Marler-Dalton-Gilmer Co. v. Wadesboro Clothing, etc., Co., 150 N. C. 519, 64 S. E. 366; Rippy v. Mote, 64 N. C. 519; March v. Thomas, 63 N. C. 249; In re Brittain, 91 N. C. 587.

Right to Object to Petition for Recordari Not Waived.—Appellant may object to a petition for recordari as a substitute for an appeal, where there is no showing of a meritorious defense. State v. Seaddy, 117 N. C. 709, 23 S. E. 164. See also, Boing v. Griffith, 117 N. C. 709, 23 S. E. 164.

Effect of Failure to Assign Errors.—Where no error is assigned, or none appears, the proper course is to dismiss the recordari, and award a procedendo. Leatherman v. Moody, 25 N. C. 129; Sossaman v. Hinson, 72 N. C. 578. Superseadae Should Accompany.—An order for a recordari should be accompanied with an order for a supersedeas, and suspension of execution until the hearing. Steadman v. Jones, 65 N. C. 388.

D. When Granted.

Loss of Appeal without Fault of Applicant.—A recordari is a substitute for an appeal, where the party has lost his right to appeal otherwise than by his own default. Marsh v. Bunker, 66 N. C. 283; Pickens v. Whitton, 182 N. C. 779, 109 S. E. 836.

Party Denied Right of Appeal.—If a party has been aggrieved in a trial before a justice of the peace and has been denied the right of appeal, he may obtain relief by a writ of recordari. Birdsey v. Harris, 68 N. C. 92; Ledbetter v. Osborne, 66 N. C. 379.

Loss of Appeal on Ground of Necessity of Recordari.—If an appeal be refused by a magistrate on frivolous ground, the remedy is by a writ of recordari. Bailey v. Bryan, 48 N. C. 357, 67 Am. Dec. 246.

Loss of Appeal by Excusable Neglect.—Where a party has lost his appeal by excusable neglect he may have relief by a writ of recordari as a substitute for an appeal. Navassa Guano Co. v. Bridgers, 53 N. C. 439.

Loss of Appeal by Misfortune.—If a party has lost his appeal by a technical default the superior court judge can have it brought up by recordari. Suttle v. Greene, 78 N. C. 76, 77.

Loss of Appeal by Misfortune.—The writ of recordari is not resorted to as a rule except in cases in which the party aggrieved has by his misfortune lost the opportunity of taking the ordinary statutory appeal. State v. Griffiths, 117 N. C. 709, 23 S. E. 164. See also, Boing v. Raleigh, etc., R. Co., 88 N. C. 62; Davenport v. Grissom, 113 N. C. 38, 41, 18 S. E. 78.

Assignments of Error to Agreement.—A writ of recordari is properly granted, where the defendant has merits, and lost his right to appeal without fault, having erroneously supposed that relief had been arranged with the attorney for the injured party. See also, Boing v. Raleigh, etc., R. Co., 88 N. C. 62; Davenport v. Grissom, 113 N. C. 38, 41, 18 S. E. 78.

Notice of Appeal Not Returned.—On appeal from a justice of the peace to the superior court, where justice did not make a return of the notice of appeal during the term following the hearing, the party's assignee, who had been authorized to file motion for a recordari during such next term to preserve his right to appeal, was without the case tried by the justice of the peace. Barnes v. Saleby, 177 N. C. 256, 98 S. E. 708.

E. When Denied.

When Appeal Vindicated.—When a party has a remedy by appeal which he willfully or negligently fails to exercise, he is not entitled to a writ of recordari. State v.
Supersedeas upon Judgment.—An appeal from an order granting a supersedeas upon a judgment leaves the judgment credit, unless allowed by the court, to the defendant, to prevent the enforcement of the judgment. Rayburn v. Sawyer, 28 N. C. 27; 37 S. E. 413.

When Appellant Has Not Perfected Appeal.—A motion for recordariri made in the superior court several terms after the trial, and before the trial court for failure to send up the transcript, should be denied, when the appellant has not paid the fees required or taken proper steps to perfect the appeal. Helsabe v. Grubb, 171 N. C. 383, 88 S. E. 473.

Review of Clerk's Decision.—A supersedeas is the propriety remedy to stay proceedings in a case, pending the review of the decision of the clerk in regard to the sufficiency of the undertaking for an appeal. Summerlin v. Morrisey, 168 N. C. 90, 81 S. E. 1060.

Injunction.—An appeal from an order granting an injunction does not stay the operation of the injunction pending the appeal. Green v. Griffin, 95 N. C. 59; Fleming v. Patterson, 98 N. C. 404, 6 S. E. 396.

An appeal from an order dismissing a temporary injunction could not stay the effect of continuing the injunction. Rayburn v. Sawyer, 28 N. C. 27; 37 S. E. 413.

It is not proper to allow a supersedeas for the purpose of continuing an injunction pending an appeal from an order depriving James v. Markham, 125 N. C. 145, 34 S. E. 241.

Supersedeas upon Judgment.—An appeal from an order granting a supersedeas upon a judgment leaves the judgment credit, unless allowed by the court, to prevent the enforcement of the judgment. Rayburn v. Sawyer, 28 N. C. 27; 37 S. E. 413.

When Granted—Case of Necessity. —A writ of supersedeas may issue to vacate the order of the court, and prevent the execution of the judgment, and give to the parties the right of appeal. Page v. Page, 166 N. C. 90, 81 S. E. 1060; Peltz v. Bailey, 157 N. C. 709, 23 S. E. 164; Clegg v. Clegg, 186 N. C. 28, 118 S. E. 610.

SECTION 1-270. The Appeal Is Filed in Time. — It is not enough that parties to a suit should engage counsel and leave the matter of taking an appeal entirely in his charge, as they should, in addition to this, give the matter all reasonable consideration. A party usually gives to his important business, and should to that extent see that the appeal was filed in time. Baltimore Bargain House v. Jefferson, 180 N. C. 22, 103 S. E. 922.

When Not Properly Taken. — A party is not entitled to a writ of recordari as a substitute for an appeal from a justice's court which was lost by delay through the negligence of his attorney. Being v. Raleigh, etc., R. Co., 88 N. C. 62.

Appeal Lost through Negligence of Applicant's Attorney. —A party is not entitled to a writ of recordari as a substitute for an appeal from a justice's court which was lost by delay through the negligence of his attorney. Being v. Raleigh, etc., R. Co., 88 N. C. 62.

Supersedeas. — A party is not entitled to a writ of recordari as a substitute for an appeal from a justice's court which was lost by delay through the negligence of his attorney. Being v. Raleigh, etc., R. Co., 88 N. C. 62.

Supersedeas. — A party is not entitled to a writ of recordari as a substitute for an appeal from a justice's court which was lost by delay through the negligence of his attorney. Being v. Raleigh, etc., R. Co., 88 N. C. 62.

Editor's Note. — See Supreme Court Rule 34 as to requirements for a writ. An appeal duly taken and regularly prosecuted of itself operates as a stay of all proceedings in the trial court. Section 1-294. Sykes v. Everett, 167 N. C. 600, 83 S. E. 559.

For supersedeas bond, see sec. 1-293 et seq., and annotations thereunder.

Definition and Scope of Writ. — "Supersedeas" is a writ issuing from an appellate court to prevent the status pending exercise of that court's jurisdiction, and issues only to hold the matter in abeyance pending review, and is granted only by court rendering order of cause, and is regulated by statute. Seaboard Air Line R. Co. v. Horton, 176 N. C. 115, 96 S. E. 954.

A writ of supersedeas may issue to vacate the order of the court, and prevent the execution of the judgment, and give to the parties the right of appeal. Page v. Page, 166 N. C. 90, 81 S. E. 1060; Peltz v. Bailey, 157 N. C. 709, 23 S. E. 164; Clegg v. Clegg, 186 N. C. 28, 118 S. E. 610.

When Granted—Case of Necessity. —A writ of supersedeas may issue to vacate the order of the court, and prevent the execution of the judgment, and give to the parties the right of appeal. Page v. Page, 166 N. C. 90, 81 S. E. 1060; Peltz v. Bailey, 157 N. C. 709, 23 S. E. 164; Clegg v. Clegg, 186 N. C. 28, 118 S. E. 610.

Supersedeas. — A party is not entitled to a writ of recordari as a substitute for an appeal from a justice's court which was lost by delay through the negligence of his attorney. Being v. Raleigh, etc., R. Co., 88 N. C. 62.

Appeal Lost through Negligence of Applicant's Attorney. —A party is not entitled to a writ of recordari as a substitute for an appeal from a justice's court which was lost by delay through the negligence of his attorney. Being v. Raleigh, etc., R. Co., 88 N. C. 62.

Supersedeas. — A party is not entitled to a writ of recordari as a substitute for an appeal from a justice's court which was lost by delay through the negligence of his attorney. Being v. Raleigh, etc., R. Co., 88 N. C. 62.
propounders were not the "parties aggrieved" by the order setting aside the verdict and could not appeal. In re Hanover Co. Bank, 126 N. C. 360, 17 S. E. 860.

A defendant, who asks for no affirmative relief, is not the "party aggrieved" by a judgment of nonsuit within the meaning of § 1-276, and cannot appeal. Gay v. Aetna Life Ins. Co., 236 N. C. 46, 142 S. E. 885.

But if defendants are not appealing from a nonsuit in their favor, but from a judgment upon the verdict which adversely affects their interest, they are entitled to an appeal under this section. Hargett v. Lee, 205 N. C. 536, 174 S. E. 496.

Application to Be Made by a Party Denied.—If an application to be made by a party defendant is denied, the applicant is "party aggrieved" for all the purposes of an appeal, under this section. Rollins v. Rollins, 76 N. C. 264.

Petition Denying Right to Intervene.—One whose claim to intervene in a suit has been rejected by the court can not appeal from the judgment rendered in the suit. Phelps v. Long, 31 N. C. 226; Evans v. Governor's, etc., Min., Co., 53 N. C. 212; Rollins v. Rollins, 76 N. C. 264.

Intervenors for Purpose of Appeal.—Where a judgment for costs is rendered in a claim and delivery proceeding against a person who is not a party thereto, and who does not appear on the record as a party, such person may appeal on a special appearance made for that purpose. Loven v. Parson, 127 N. C. 301, 37 S. E. 271.

Party Not Served with Process.—One not a party can not appeal from a joint judgment of a court of record. In re Central Bank, etc., Co., 206 N. C. 251, 172 S. E. 881.

Submission of Controversy.—Parties to an equity suit, who agree that the judge should find the facts, are precluded from filing a motion on appeal to review the finding. Runion v. Ramsay, 93 N. C. 410.

Joinder.—All parties against whom a joint judgment or decree is rendered must join in an appeal. Mastin v. Porter, 12 N. C. 1; Kelly v. Muse, 121 N. C. 182.

Appeal from Joint Verdict and Judgment.—One defendant can not sustain an appeal from a joint judgment against two or more, when all had joined in the pleadings, and the other has joined in the verdicts and judgments. Smith v. Cunningham, 30 N. C. 460.

Judgment against One of Two Parties.—Where an action is brought in the county court against two defendants, who plead severally, and a verdict and judgment are rendered in favor of one and against the other, the latter may alone appeal from the judgment rendered against him. Teel v. Settle, 23 N. C. 245.

In assumpsit against two, if the jury find against one and in favor of the other, the former may appeal alone to the Supreme Court. Sharpe v. Jones, 7 N. C. 306.

Appeal of County Court.—In a proceeding against the justices of a county, in their official capacity as justices of the county court, a judgment is rendered against them, they may appeal, although a minority of the court refused to join in the appeal. Kelly v. Justices, 24 N. C. 430.

Appeal by Statutory Receiver.—Objection that the statutory receiver has no right of appeal without the approval of the court is untenable when it appears that the Superior Court judge gave at least implied authority for appeal by approving the agreement of the parties as to what should be done in the case. In re Central Bank, etc., Co., 206 N. C. 251, 173 S. E. 340.

§ 1-272. Appeal from court to judge.—Appeals lie to the judge of the superior court having jurisdiction, either in term time or vacation, from judgments of the clerk of the superior court in all matters of law or legal inference. In case of such transfer or appeal neither party need give an undertaking for costs; and the clerk shall transfer same to the superior court, or to the judge thereof, the pleadings, or other papers, on which the issues of fact or of law arise. An appeal must be taken within ten days after the entry of the order or judgment of the clerk upon due notice in writing to be served on the appellee and a copy of which shall be filed with the clerk of the superior court. But an appeal can only be taken by a party aggrieved, who appeared and moved for, or opposed, the order or judgment appealed from, or who, being entitled to be heard thereon, had no opportunity of being heard, or of having the matter shown by affidavit or otherwise proved. (Rev., § 380, 610, 611; Code, ss. 116, 252, 253; C. C. P., ss. 109, 192; 1927, c. 15; 1927, C. S. 633.)

Editor's Note.—No notice was required by this section prior to 1927. At that time by Public Laws 1927, ch. 15 the portion relating to "due notice in writing" was added.

By this section any party may appeal from any decision of the clerk of the superior court, on an issue of law or legal inference, to the judge, without undertaking; but an appeal can only be taken by a party aggrieved, who appeared and moved for or opposed the order or judgment appealed from.

This section and sections 1-274 and 1-275, regulating appeals from orders and judgments made or rendered by the clerk in the exercise of jurisdiction conferred upon him by statute prior to chapter 92, Public Laws 1921, E. S. These sections do not apply to appeals from orders and judgments made or rendered by the court in the exercise of jurisdiction conferred upon him by statute subsequent to such chapter 92.

Action of Clerk Not Conclusive.—The action of the clerk is not conclusive and conclusive against the court. Hargrove, 207 N. C. 280, 176 S. E. 752.

The clerk is not a "lower court" to the superior court with respect to appeals. While he has original jurisdiction in some matters and in the decision thereof may be considered as a "separate tribunal," nevertheless, all his power is delegated by virtue of his office as clerk of the superior court. Windsor v. McVay, 206 N. C. 730, 175 S. E. 83.

Order of Clerk Not in Writing.—In the action of the clerk, although the clerk refused to sign a judgment in writing, he had no authority to refuse to sign it. Farmers Nat. Bank v. Burns, 107 N. C. 465, 12 S. E. 252.

§ 1-273. Clerk to transfer issues of fact to civil issue docket.—If issues of law and of fact, or of fact only, are raised before the clerk, he shall transfer the case to the civil issue docket for trial of the issues at the next ensuing term of the superior court. (Rev., s. 588; Code, s. 256; C. C. P., s. 115; C. S. 545.)

Rule Stated.—Where issues of fact are joined before the clerk, the parties have the right to insist that any of fact, properly determinable by the judge, under this section to transmit the court upon notice of appeal duly given, leaving nothing for the appellant to do in respect thereto, and there is no analogy therein to an appeal from the justice of the peace. Sneed v. State Highway Comm., 194 N. C. 46, 138 S. E. 350. The clerk shall be required by this section to transmit the entire record to the court upon notice of appeal duly given, leaving nothing for the appellant to do in respect thereto, and there is no analogy therein to an appeal from the justice of the peace. Sneed v. State Highway Comm., 194 N. C. 46, 138 S. E. 350.

§ 1-274. Duty of clerk on appeal.—On such appeal the clerk, within three days thereafter, shall prepare and sign a statement of the case, of his decision and of the appeal, and exhibit such statement to the parties or their attorneys on request. If the statement is satisfactory, the parties or their attorneys must sign it. If either party objects to the statement as partial or erroneous, he may put his objections in writing, and the clerk shall attach the writing to his statement, and file it with the court. Within twenty days thereafter he shall send such statement, together with the objections, and copies of all necessary papers, by mail or otherwise, to the judge residing in the district, or, in his absence to the judge holding the courts of the district, for his decision. (Rev., s. 612; Code, s. 254; C. C. P., s. 110; C. S. 635.)

Sneed v. State Highway Comm., 194 N. C. 46, 138 S. E. 350.
§ 1-275. Duty of judge on appeal.—It is the duty of the judge on receiving a statement of appeal from the clerk, or the copy of the record of an issue of law, to decide the questions presented within ten days. But if he has been informed in writing, by the attorney of either party, that he desires to be heard on the questions, the judge shall fix a time and place for the hearing, and give the attorneys of both parties reasonable notice. He must transmit his decision in writing, endorsed on or attached to the record, to the clerk, of the court, who shall immediately acknowledge its receipt, and deliver it to the clerk, in which case he may do so. The judge shall fix a time and place for the hearing and decide the questions of law present, and then remand the same and the pleadings or papers with the findings of the jury upon them, and the clerk will then proceed with the matter according to law. (Rev., s. 613; Code, s. 255; C. C. P., s. 110; C. S. 636.)

Full Jurisdiction of Case.—Under this section an appeal in partition action from order of the clerk overruuling demurrer carried the entire case into the superior court, and vested it with the full jurisdiction of the cause. Thompson v. Rospigliosi, 162 N. C. 145, 77 S. E. 113.

When Issues of Fact Tried.—When issues of fact are tried the court remands the same and the pleadings or papers with the findings of the jury upon them, and the clerk shall then proceed with the matter according to law. This provision has reference to issues of fact. Brittain v. Mull, 91 N. C. 496, 550.

Appeal May Be Heard Outside County.—Appeals from the clerk of the superior court and special proceedings to the judge residing or presiding in the district may be heard and determined by him. When the proceeding is pending, and within the district. Ledbetter v. Pinner, 120 N. C. 455, 27 S. E. 123.

Appeals from the clerk may be heard at chambers at any place in the district. Monroe v. Lewald, 107 N. C. 655, 12 S. E. 267.

When Notice Not Reasonable.—Where notice of appeal from action by the clerk is served on the day before the hearing, the notice is not reasonable within this section. Byrd v. Nivens, 189 N. C. 621, 127 S. E. 673.

Pending Appeal from Clerk.—A motion for a receiver to take possession of a debtor's property, in supplemental proceedings to partition, must be made before a judge, pending an appeal to him from the ruling of the clerk upon other questions. Coates Bros. v. Wilkes, 92 N. C. 375.

Provisions for Partition.—Where nothing in the record indicates that a judge, who rendered a judgment on an appeal from the clerk of the superior court, was requested in writing to fix a time for the hearing and to give him notice that it will be heard, it is presumed that the proceeding was rightly and regularly conducted. Ledbetter v. Pinner, 120 N. C. 455, 27 S. E. 123.

May Hear Any Evidence.—Upon an appeal from an order of the clerk, the judge hearing the proceeding may hear any evidence that would have been competent before the former, although in fact not introduced. McDade v. Banister, 63 N. C. 479.

Securities for Partition.—The controversy involved in a special proceeding for the partition of lands, as to whether there shall be an actual partition or a sale for the purpose, is not an issue of fact which should be settled by the clerk of the court, or by the judge on appeal. Ledbetter v. Pinner, 120 N. C. 455, 27 S. E. 123.

Proceedings to Sell Lands.—A proceeding to sell lands to make assets to pay debts of the deceased is appealable from the clerk of the superior court, and open to revision and such further orders or decrees on the part of the judge as justice and the rights of the parties may require, and the judge may require such additional evidence as he may deem necessary to aid him to a correct conclusion of the matter. Perry v. Perry, 179 N. C. 445, 102 S. E. 722.

Proceedings Dismissed by Clerk.—When clerk of superior court, pursuant to a judgment, dismisses a proceeding for the appointment of a receiver, upon appeal by some of the parties from the decision of the clerk upon the report of commissioners, alleging inequality and unfairness of the allotment—Involves questions of fact, properly determined by the judge, under this section. Ex parte Beckwith, 124 N. C. 111, 32 S. E. 393.

§ 1-276. Judge determines entire controversy; may remit.—Whenever a civil action or special proceeding begun before the clerk of a superior court is for any ground whatever sent to the superior court before the judge, the judge has jurisdiction; and it is his duty, upon the request of either party, to proceed to hear and determine all matters in controversy in such action, unless it appears to him that justice would be more cheaply and speedily administered by sending the action back to be proceeded in before the clerk, in which case he may do so. (Rev., s. 614; 1887, c. 276; C. S. 657.)

Cross Reference.—See note under sec. 1-152.

Editor's Note.—By passing this section in 1887, Acts 1887, ch. 276, the legislature considerably widened the power of judges on appeal. This section was enacted to remedy the inconvenience caused by the decision in Brittain v. Mull, 91 N. C. 498. In that case it was held that where the clerk had taken from the clerk the judge should hear the appeal and decide the questions of law present, and then remand the case, excluding his judgment. Because of its beneficial results this section has always received a liberal interpretation. Williams v. Dunn, 158 N. C. 399, 74 S. E. 9.

It was not contemplated by the legislature that by the provisions of this section a party who should be coram non judice before the clerk could take advantage of his own mistake or purposely make it in order to obviate a well grounded objection to the jurisdiction, and secure by its direction what he could not obtain directly. Nash v. Sutton, 109 N. C. 590, 14 S. E. 77.

Entire Controversy.—Under this section, the judge now has jurisdiction of the whole matter in controversy. Liette v. Chappell, 111 N. C. 347, 353, 16 S. E. 171. Faison v. Williams, 121 N. C. 152, 27 S. E. 261, 145 N. C. 254, 58 S. E. 1091; Hall v. Artis, 186 N. C. 105, 188 S. E. 901.

The clerk is but a part of the superior court, and when a proceeding before the clerk in any manner is brought before the judge, it is intended that the jurisdiction is not derivative, but it has jurisdiction to hear and determine all matters in controversy in the proceeding. Perry v. Bassegour, 129 N. C. 388, 15 S. E. (2d) 365. Finley v. Davis, 129 N. C. 599, 20 S. E. 265. See also, Ex parte Cates Bros., 92 N. C. 375; Coates Bros. v. Wilkes, 92 N. C. 375; Byrd v. Nivens, 189 N. C. 621, 127 S. E. 673.

After a motion is made before the clerk, the judge is not required to remand the cause to the clerk for the determination of the motion made before him. Wynne v. Combs, 129 N. C. 135, 45 S. E. 891.

Court May Remand.—The court has the right in its discretion to remand the cause to the clerk for further proceedings. York v. McCall, 160 N. C. 276, 280, 76 S. E. 84.
Appointment of Administrator.—On appeal from the order of a clerk appointing an administrator the Superior Court has jurisdiction whether the case be before the clerk or therefrom has been taken to the superior court, the judge to refuse to hear the controversy on the ground that the proceedings in condemnation to the superior court on issue joined between the parties, and an appeal therewith has been taken to the superior court, the judge thereof acquires jurisdiction for the bearing and determination of the controversy under the provisions of this section, and may order other proper or necessary parties to be made parties for further determination of the cause. Selma v. Nobles, 183 N. C. 77, 17 S. E. 2d 1112.

Question of Price of Land. — The discretion vested in the superior court judge on appeal from the clerk, by this section, to determine the controversy on the judge to pass upon the reasonableness of the price of land subject to the power of sale in a mortgage, wherein the clerk has no authority under § 45-28 to further pass thereon in the absence of an appeal, as in Mortgage Sale of Ware Property, 187 N. C. 693, 122 S. E. 12.

Where a commissioner, appointed to hold a foreclosure sale, advertises and sells the property in conformity with the order, but a sale below the bid is less than the value of the property and recommended by the court and the clerk orders a resale, the judge of the superior court cannot appoint the appeal of one of the trustees from the order of the clerk, has jurisdiction to hear and determine the matter and order a resale at chambers while holding a criminal term of court in the county. Harris v. Hughes, 230 N. C. 299, 155 S. E. 177.

Proceedings to Sell Land. — A proceeding to sell lands to make assets to pay the debts of the deceased is appealable from the clerk of the superior court, and open to review by the judge of the superior court on any ground the judge has jurisdiction to retain the cause, reverse the order of the clerk and appoint other administrators or a receiver to administrate the estate subject to the orders of the court, the entire matter being before the Superior Court on appeal. Wright v. Byrnes, 220 N. C. 209, 211, 158 S. E. 192.

When Judge Cannot Correct Error of Rulings. — Where special partition proceedings were begun before the clerk and he transferred the case to the judge in term, the judge was required to accept those of it on the merits, and had no power to merely reverse the order and send it back to him, though there may have been irregularities in the proceedings before the clerk. Little v. Duncan, 149 N. C. 84, 67 S. E. 771.

Judge May Make Amendments. — The judge has power to make amendments to give effect to his orders in proceedings to partition lands among tenants in common, nor can jurisdiction be conferred on the superior court on appeal, the latter having no concurrent or original jurisdiction. Southern Bank v. Leverette, 187 N. C. 743, 123 S. E. 68; Johnson v. W. & W. & B. R. R. Co., 180 N. C. 577, 184 S. E. 378. Where the clerk of the superior court ernonously heard a proceeding over which he does not have jurisdiction, an appeal to the superior court confers jurisdiction upon it to hear and determine the matter. Bradshaw v. Warren, 216 N. C. 354, 4 S. E. (2d) 881.

Agreement That Judge Shall Hear Appeal. — Where the parties agree that the judge shall hear an appeal in term, he has no authority to refuse to hear and determine the matter and order a resale at chambers while holding a criminal term of court in the county. Cushing v. Styron, 104 N. C. 338, 10 S. E. 258.

Such agreement cures all irregularities. Foreman v. Forrest, 200 N. C. 473, 17 S. E. (2d) 679.

Motion to Reverse Bill of Costs. — When a motion, to reverse a bill of costs in a case which originated before the clerk, is made after the case is made at the term after judgment is entered, it is a nullity where the judge has no power to entertain it. In re Shutt, 214 N. C. 684, 200 S. E. 372.

Provisions of the Code. — Section 1-277. Appeal from superior court judge.—An appeal may be taken from every judicial order or determination of a judge of a superior court, upon or involving a matter of law, decided by the judge, under the provisions of this section. In re Reynolds' Estate, 221 N. C. 449, 20 S. E. (2d) 348.

§ 1-277. Appeal from superior court judge.—An appeal may be taken from every judicial order or determination of a judge of a superior court, upon or involving a matter of law, decided by the judge, under the provisions of this section. In re Reynolds' Estate, 221 N. C. 449, 20 S. E. (2d) 348.

Thus the clerk of the superior court has erroneously heard a proceeding over which he does not have jurisdiction, an appeal to the superior court confers jurisdiction upon it to hear and determine the matter. Bradshaw v. Warren, 216 N. C. 354, 4 S. E. (2d) 881.

§ 1-276. Although under this section the right of appeal is very broad, the Supreme Court is inclined to think that much of the practice in appealing from orders, at every stage of the case, on objections which the party aggrieved could avail himself of after issue, as well as at the first steps in the proceedings, is dependent upon his observance of the rules regulating appeals. § 1-277. Purpose of Appeal. — "The purpose of an appeal is to submit to the decision of a superior court a cause which has been tried in an inferior tribunal. Its object is to review the whole case and secure a just judgment upon the merits." Rush v. Halcyon Steamboat Co., 67 N. C. 49, 49. Method of Correcting Errors. — Where an adjudication is based on the erroneous application of legal principles the proper remedy to correct the error is by a proceeding in coram nobis or by a proceeding in habeas corpus. § 1-278. Jurisdiction Properly Acquired. — As appellate jurisdiction is derived from that previously acquired in the court from which the cause is removed, the record must show the possession of that jurisdiction, and that the cause was then properly constituted. Rawls v. Mayo, 163 N. C. 177, 180, 79 S. E. 298.

§ 1-279. Appeals Not Conferred by Consent.—Jurisdiction of an appeal cannot be given by consent of parties. Cary Co. v. Allegood, 121 N. C. 54, 28 S. E. 61; Rodman v. Davis, 33 N. C. 46, 49.

§ 1-280. Appeal as a Matter of Right.—An appeal is not a matter of absolute right; but appellant must comply with the rules and statutes of court as to the time and manner of taking and perfecting the appeal. tion or seriously impairs some substantial right of the appeal. Martin v. Flippin, 101 N. C. 452, 8 S. E. 345. Judgments of Superior Court Final as to Matters of Fact.—The superior court is the court of final jurisdiction and has power to completely determine a controversy properly before it, and its judgment is final as to all matters of fact established in accordance with procedure and is subject to appeal and review only on matters of law. State v. Carolina Scenic Coach Co., 218 N. C. 233, 10 S. E. (2d) 824.

Amendment of Pleading.—A defendant's appeal is premature. Where an order of court allowing amendments to pleadings does not affect a substantial right, an appeal therefrom is fragmentary and premature, and the appeal will be dismissed. Nissen Company v. Nissen, 196 N. C. 808, 153 S. E. 450.

Judicial Nature of Decision.—An appeal lies in all cases from judgment applying the law to the facts found. Norton v. McLaurin, 125 N. C. 185, 34 S. E. 269; Lamm v. Holloman, 176 N. C. 686, 97 S. E. 161.

C. 484; Mitchell v. West, 74 N. C. 485.

Thomas v. Carteret, 180 N. C. 109, 104 S. E. 55.

Application for Citizenship.—Under this section an alien may appeal from decree of superior court denying application for citizenship. United States v. Owens, 13 F. (2d) 376. Morgan v. Donald, where one who confesses judgment has no right of appeal from such judgment, and his application for relief was not allowed, and the plaintiff failed to move to dismiss, the Supreme Court may pass by the irregularities and consider the errors. Rush v. Halsey Steamboat Co., 67 N. C. 47.

Decisions of Intermediate Courts.—An appeal lies from the dismissal of an action, or of an appeal from justice court; but the trial court's denial of motion for judgment upon special verdict should be noted, and an appeal lies from the final judgment. Bargain House v. Jefferson, 180 N. C. 32, 103 S. E. 922.

Decisions and Orders Favorable to Appellant.—See post, this note, "Estoppel to Allege Error," II, D.

Matters in Discretion of the Trial Court.—The discretion of the trial court will not be reviewed, unless it appears that such discretion was abused or that the ruling was based upon a matter of law. II, in the trial court, the verdict of the jury is, in the opinion of the judge, not supported by the evidence, he has a discretion to reverse the verdict, which discretion cannot be reviewed in an appellate court. Watts v. Bell, 71 N. C. 405.

When a question on which an order is based is made as a matter of right and is not addressed to the court's discretion, upon its denial the movent may appeal to the supreme court and have his motion decided there on its merits. Eastern Carolina Coast Line R. Co., 221 N. C. 292, 296, 20 S. E. (2d) 299.

Detached Rulings.—The supreme Court will not entertain appeals from detached rulings upon some of the matters in dispute; but all matters necessary to a disposition of the case should be passed on and settled in a single trial, and the whole case brought up on appeal. Arrington v. Arrington, 91 N. C. 301.

Removal of Public Officer.—An appeal from proceedings in superior court to remove a public officer for willful misconduct or maladministration is allowed by this section. State v. Hamme, 180 N. C. 684, 104 S. E. 174.

C. What Supreme Court Will Consider.

See post, this note, "Presumption on Appeal—Burden of Proof," II, E.

Record Discloses no Error.—Where the record discloses no error of law or legal inference made upon the trial, the Supreme Court on appeal cannot consider whether a miscarriage of justice has resulted in the case appealed. Rawls v. Jefferson, 179 N. C. 428, 137 S. E. 379.

Exception Not Considered by Trial Court.—An exception which the trial court, through inadvertence, did not consider, can not be reviewed on appeal, but the case will be considered the same as if the exception had been passed on. Sorens v. Stevenson, 100 N. C. 354, 6 S. E. 11.

Points Reviewed Must Have Been Passed on.—In case of an appeal, from the probate court to the judge, if there be further exceptions, the latter tribunal can review no points before the probate court that was not passed upon by the judge. Rowland v. Thompson, 64 N. C. 714.

Error Not Based on Exceptions.—An assignment of error not based on any exception in the record can not be considered. Morse v. Freeman, 137 N. C. 385, 72 S. E. 1056; Thompson v. Seaboard, etc., R. Co., 147 N. C. 412, 61 S. E. 269.

Will Not Go Behind Judge's Finding of Fact.—A finding by the trial judge as a fact that plaintiff moved to set aside a judgment as a matter of fact, and that his probable neglect prevents supreme court from considering any other ground. Shepherd v. Shepherd, 180 N. C. 494, 105 S. E. 4.

Questions Decisive of Appeal.—The supreme court will not consider unless it appears to matter of fact. The Supreme Court on appeal cannot consider whether a miscarriage of justice has resulted in the case appealed. Rawls v. Jefferson, 179 N. C. 428, 137 S. E. 379.

Supreme Court on appeal cannot consider whether amiscarriage of justice has resulted in the case appealed. Rawls v. Jefferson, 179 N. C. 428, 137 S. E. 379.

Appellate Court.—Supreme Court, state of New York, 182 N. C. 435, 10 S. E. 371.

Questions Which May Not Arise on New Trial.—Where a new trial must be granted for certain reasons, questions in controversy are not the subject of appeal. The Supreme Court on appeal cannot consider whether a miscarriage of justice has resulted in the case appealed. Smith v. Johnson, 65 S. E. 269.

Appellate Court.—Supreme Court, state of New York, 182 N. C. 435, 10 S. E. 371.

Questions Which May Not Arise on New Trial.—Where a new trial must be granted for certain reasons, questions in controversy are not the subject of appeal. The Supreme Court on appeal cannot consider whether a miscarriage of justice has resulted in the case appealed. Smith v. Johnson, 65 S. E. 269.

"Error alone is not sufficient to reverse, but there must be harm to the party who excepts, by reason thereof; not that he must affirmatively show injury, but if it appears that there is error, judgment for plaintiff in action of assumpsit, Carter v. Seaboard, etc., R. Co., 165 N. C. 244, 249, 81 S. E. 321.

Errors Not Affecting Result.—The finding for defendant upon issue renders harmless any error in regard to the matter which formed the ground for plaintiff's appeal. Vickers v. Leigh, 104 N. C. 248, 10 S. E. 308; Perry v. Insurance Co., 137 N. C. 402, 49 S. E. 889.

Error to be Prejudicial.—Where the trial of a cause is not sufficient grounds for reversal but it should be made to appear that the ruling was material and prejudicial to appellant's rights. Shaw Cotton Mills v. Acme Hosiery Mfg. Co., 180 N. C. 293, 127 S. E. 246; Equitable Life Assur. Soc., 170 N. C. 430, 78 S. E. 222.

Trivial Errors.— Courts do not lightly grant reversals or set aside verdicts, and a motion for such to be meritorious should be made manifestly without prejudice. Rierson v. Carolina Steel, etc., Co., 184 N. C. 363, 114 S. E. 467.

Technical Errors.—Verdicts and judgments will not be set aside for errors of form, though such errors may be prejudicial. Where the trial was a long drawn out and vigorous contest. On appeal, where the testimony objected to was stricken on the record, the portion of a charge on an issue which was immaterial under the controlling instructions, and which were expressly confined to other issues than the one involved in an appeal not properly before it where the matter in issue was whether the ruling was material and prejudicial to the appellant's rights. Carter v. Seaboard, etc., R. Co., 165 N. C. 244, 249, 81 S. E. 321.

Error Cured by Withdrawal.—An exception has no point on appeal, where the testimony objected to was stricken on the appellant's motion. In re Will of Staub, 172 N. C. 138, 90 S. E. 119; Raulf v. Elizabeth City Light, etc., Co., 176 N. C. 696, 197 S. E. 97.

Error Not Involved on Appeal.—Any error in instructions, which were expressly confined to other issues than the one involved on appeal, is harmless. In re Rawlings' Will, 179 N. C. 270, 158 S. E. 566.

Opinion in Case Not Properly Before Court.—The supreme court will sometimes express its opinion on a question involved in an appeal not properly before it where the matter in issue was whether the ruling was material and prejudicial to the appellant's rights. Carter v. Seaboard, etc., R. Co., 165 N. C. 244, 249, 81 S. E. 321.

Error Cured by Withdrawal.—An exception has no point on appeal, where the testimony objected to was stricken on the appellant's motion. In re Will of Staub, 172 N. C. 138, 90 S. E. 119; Raulf v. Elizabeth City Light, etc., Co., 176 N. C. 696, 197 S. E. 97.

Error Not Involved on Appeal.—Any error in instructions, which were expressly confined to other issues than the one involved on appeal, is harmless. In re Rawlings' Will, 179 N. C. 270, 158 S. E. 566.

Premature Appeal.—The supreme court will not entertain premature or fragmentary appeals. Thomas v. Carteret, etc., 182 N. C. 725, 109 S. E. 833; Joyner v. Reflector Co., 176 N. C. 274, 97 S. E. 44. 45.

Fragmentary appeals will not be entertained when no substantial right is put in jeopardy by such refusal. Brown v. McWhinck, 126 N. C. 588, 36 S. E. 420.

Where no final judgment was given, nor was there any interlocutory order or determination that put an end to the proceeding, or that could destroy or seriously impair some substantial right of the party appealed from, the appeal will be delayed until the final judgment, an appeal will not lie. Fragmentary appeals are not allowed. Leak v. Covington, 95 N. C. 193, and cases there cited; Martin v. Flippen, 111 N. C. 552, 47 S. E. 145.

When Appeal Is Premature.—Where the pleadings present issues of fact that have not been tried below, an appeal is premature. Goode v. Rogers, 120 N. C. 63, 35 S. E. 185.

Though exceptions are noted, an appeal before a final judgment is rendered is premature, and will be dismissed. Graded School Trustees v. Hinton, 156 N. C. 586, 71 S. E. 1067.

Same.—Effect of Dismissal.—Though an appeal is dismissed as premature, its entry is equivalent to "noting an exception." Gray v. James, 117 N. C. 139, 60 S. E. 906; Alexander v. Allene, 122 N. C. 421, 38 S. E. 121; Kerr v. Hicks, 154 N. C. 265, 70 S. E. 468; Bernard v. Shenwell, 139 N. C. 446, 52 S. E. 64.

Fictitious Action.—The supreme court will not hear an appeal in fictitious actions. Cameron v. Cameron, 170 N. C. 432, 35 S. E. 771.

Admission Rendering Question Academic.—That in a reference election, to amend city charter pursuant to a legislative enactment, no booth was provided, etc., becomes irrelevant and improvident through a decision of the court, which was given by the trial court at his request. Washburn v. Greensboro, 173 N. C. 423, 98 S. E. 771.

Case Not before Appellate Court.—An agreement that an appeal becomes irrelevant and improvident through a decision of the material questions in another appeal taken in the same case, it will be dismissed. Page v. Page, 167 N. C. 350, 83 S. E. 627; Cannon v. Commissioners, 170 N. C. 677, 87 S. E. 31.

D. Estoppel to Allegé Error. In General.—A defendant cannot ask that a party be brought in, and when it is so ordered object because he is surprised. Armstrong Co. v. Saleeby, 178 N. C. 298, 180 S. E. 611.

A party to an action cannot except to an instruction which was given by the trial court at his request. Washington Horse Exch. Co. v. Bonner, 180 N. C. 20, 103 S. E. 907; Bell v. Harrison, 179 N. C. 190, 102 S. E. 200.

The defendant cannot object on appeal to evidence to the same effect as that elicited by his cross-examination of the witness Jenkins v. Long, 170 N. C. 269, 87 S. E. 47.

Prevailing Parties.—A plaintiff has no right to appeal or bring error from a judgment in his own favor, particularly if he is not injured by it. Hoxe v. Carter, 34 N. C. 372; Lacy v. McFarland, 33 N. C. 265.

If a judgment is only partly in favor of a party, or is less favorable than he thinks it should be, he may appeal to the court which gave it judgment, as a favorable verdict and judgment on a new trial; but where the judgment is entirely in his favor, so that he does not desire a new trial his appeal must be dismissed. McCulloch v. North Carolina, etc., Co., 176 N. C. 256, 45 S. E. 657.

Favorable Instructions.—A party can not complain of
CH. 1. CIVIL PROCEDURE—APPEAL

A. Costs.

As to costs on appeal, see §§ 6-23 et seq., and the notes thereon.

B. Demurrer.

Demurrer to Whole Cause.—An appeal lies from an order sustaining or overruling a demurrer to a whole cause of action or defense. Shelby v. Charlotte Elect. R., etc., Co., 147 N. C. 537, 118 S. E. 770; Fender v. Magens, 122 N. C. 163, 50 S. E. 324; Abbott v. Hancock, 123 N. C. 89, 51 S. E. 374.

Demurrer Sustained but No Verdict Rendered.—The supreme court will not entertain an appeal from an order sustaining a demurrer to a counterclaim where no verdict or judgment was rendered. Teal v. Liles, 138 N. C. 678, 111 S. E. 617; Bazemore v. Bridges, 105 N. C. 191, 10 S. E. 888.

Overruling Demurrer.—On an overruling of its demurrer a party may be declared entitled to appeal, unless the demurrer has been held frivolous. Joyner v. Champion Fibre Co., 178 N. C. 634, 101 S. E. 372.

An appeal lies to the Supreme Court from an order below overruling a demurrer. Commissioners v. Maggin, 78 N. C. 181.

An order overruling demurrer to part of answer with leave to reply is not a final order and an appeal therefrom will be dismissed. Charlotte v. Seaboard Air Line R. Co., 172 N. C. 555, 90 S. E. 590.

Court, on appeal having considered those grounds of demurrer to complaint which may finally dispose of action, will not review the overruling of demurrer to allegation embracing only part of cause of action, and which, if sustained, will not dismiss it. Headman v. Board, 177 N. C. 261, 98 S. E. 770.

Refusal to Hold Demurrer or Answer Frivolous.—The refusal to hold a demurrer or answer frivolous, and to render judgment thereon is not appealable. Walters v. Weeks, 118 N. C. 842, 24 S. E. 713; Morgan v. Harris, 141 N. C. 358, 50 S. E. 381.

Withdrawal of Matter Demurred to.—An appeal cannot be taken from a refusal of the court to proceed on the action on the demurrer, after the withdrawal of the subject-matter to which it relates and the consequent order of continuance. Gay v. Brookshire, 82 N. C. 499, 411.

C. Granting or Denying New Trial.

In General.—An appeal from an order granting or refusing a new trial, originating from some order or judgment involving a matter of law or legal inference; that is, the order or judgment must be one that involves the question, whether or not the defendant's claim is entitled to a new trial as of right, and as a matter of law. Braid v. Lukins, 95 N. C. 123.

An application for a new trial, except for error of law in its conduct, is addressed solely to the discretion of the presiding judge, whose decision is not reviewable on appeal.
Carson v. Dellingler, 90 N. C. 226; Thomas v. Myers, 87 N. C. 446.

The Supreme Court has jurisdiction to review, upon appeal, the decision of the court below, granting or refusing to grant, a new trial, where a matter of law or legal inference is involved.

Johnson v. Bell, 74 N. C. 355.

Setting Aside Verdict and Granting New Trial.—The determination of a motion to set aside the verdict and grant a new trial is a matter within the sound discretion of the trial judge. Where there is no abuse of discretion, the court will not set aside a verdict. Coats v. Norris, 180 N. C. 77, 104 S. E. 71; Harrill v. Seaboard Air Line R. Co., 181 N. C. 315, 107 S. E. 136.

An order setting aside the award of damages as excessive is premature. Grove v. Baker, 174 N. C. 745, 94 S. E. 128.

Contents of Record when New Trial Granted or Refused. — To give parties the benefit of the provision of this section allowing an appeal from an order granting or refusing a new trial, it must be proved the order is one determined as to matters inducing the order, so that the appellate court can see whether the order presents a matter of law which is a subject of review, or matter of discretion which is not.

D. Injunction.

Order Refusing Injunction.—A plaintiff may appeal from a decision of a judge at chambers refusing an injunction. First National Bank v. Jenkins, 64 N. C. 719.

Interlocutory Injunction. — An appeal from an injunction pendente lite against counting and certifying the result of a special election granted on the ground that women, infants, and nonresidents, though freeholders, were not counted in determining the necessary number of the signers, is a subject of review, and not for fragmentary and premature. Gill v. Board, 160 N. C. 176, 76 S. E. 293.

Order Continuing Injunction.—Overruling a motion to dismiss is not ordinarily an appealable order, as no substantial right of the litigant is thereby affected. But, when an injunction has been issued, an order continuing the same affects a substantial right, and an appeal may be taken from an order entered on a motion to dismiss. Warlick v. Reynolds & Co., 131 N. C. 636, 66 S. E. 657.

Finding of Fact Reviewable in Injunction Cases. — While the Supreme Court may review findings of fact in an action for injunction, it will not disturb the findings of the trial court, unless it is seen that the court has not set forth the facts from which it deduced the conclusion. As to the correctness of a ruling delivering a restraining order will not be considered on appeal, when it is made to appear that the order is properly granted. Munick v. Durham, 181 N. C. 188, 106 S. E. 665; Allen v. Gardner, 182 N. C. 425, 109 S. E. 260.

overruling a demurrer to complaint for injunction. — An appeal taken from a judgment overruling demurrers to the complaint and allowing defendants to answer for the purposes of a motion to restrain one of defendants from suing plaintiff in the federal court, remains in the court below, and he must obtain relief there and not by appeal. Worth v. Knickerbocker Trust Co., 152 N. C. 242, 67 S. E. 590.

Seeking to Restrain Act Already Committed.—The correctness of a ruling dissolving a restraining order will not be considered on appeal, when it is made to appear that the order sought to be restrained has been committed. Kilpatrick v. Monument Co., 166 N. C. 211, 81 S. E. 170; Wallace v. North Wilkesboro, 151 N. C. 614, 66 S. E. 657; Galloway v. Board, 184 N. C. 245, 114 S. E. 165.

E. Nonsuit.

In General. — If, as a matter of law, plaintiff was not entitled to a verdict, he could not take a voluntary nonsuit, and the judgment taken must be reversed. But whether the nonsuit was voluntary or not is not an issue under consideration.

An appeal will lie from the judgment of the superior court reverting the clerk's order permitting the plaintiff to take a voluntary nonsuit. kaldew v. kaldew, 189 N. C. 385, 128 S. E. 327; Goldsboro v. Holmes, 183 N. C. 203, 111 S. E. 1.

An appeal cannot be taken from a nonsuit to test an adverse ruling of the judge, leaving issuable matter pending. Girouard v. Waccamaw Shingle Co., 167 N. C. 286, 83 S. E. 337.

Where Court Intimates Opinion. — Where the court on the trial intimates an opinion that such action should not be taken by defendant, he may take a judgment of nonsuit and appeal; and the appeal will not be dismissed on the ground that plaintiff voluntarily took a nonsuit. Morton v. Blades Lumber Co., 144 N. C. 416, 56 S. E. 511; Wharton v. Missioners, 82 N. C. 12; hirdred v. Pratt, 94 N. C. 101, 103; Midgett v. Manufacturing Co., 140 N. C. 361, 364, 53 S. E. 174.

A plaintiff may, in deference to an intimation from the court that he can not maintain his action, submit to a nonsuit and have the questions of law reviewed upon appeal. hirdred v. Pratt, 94 N. C. 101; Warner v. Western, etc. R. Co., 220.

Where court intimated that he would charge jury that certain deed did not convey land described in complaint, which was vital to plaintiff's recovery, plaintiff had the right to take the jury and appeal. Quech v. Futch, 172 N. C. 316, 90 S. E. 299.

But where the court intimated that the complaint stated a cause of action for rescission, and when rescission was not for the purpose of removing plaintiff, judgment was not appealable by defendant. Farr v. Babcock Lumber Co., 182 N. C. 425, 109 S. E. 260.

Construction of Evidence in Nonsuit Cases. — Where the Supreme Court passes on a motion to nonsuit, the plaintiff is entitled to have the evidence considered as true and correct, and on appeal is entitled to review its sufficiency most favorably for him, and he must also have the benefit of every inference that may reasonably be drawn therefrom. Munick v. Durham, 181 N. C. 188, 106 S. E. 665; Allen v. Gardner, 182 N. C. 425, 109 S. E. 260.

The court is not limited to a consideration of the evidence of defendant, but must examine all the evidence. Ridge v. Norfolk Southern R. Co., 167 N. C. 510, 83 S. E. 762.

F. Order of Reference and Referee's Report.

As to reference generally, see §§ 1-188 et seq., and the notes thereon.

Motion to Refer. — Where the answer in a proceeding to compel an accounting did not constitute a valid plea in bar, the denial of a motion to refer on the ground that such answer did not set up a valid plea in bar affected a substantial right, and was appealable. Jones v. Sugg, 136 N. C. 143, 48 S. E. 575.

Appointing Referee. — An appeal from a judgment adjudging plaintiff entitled to recover damages and appointing a referee to hear evidence as to the amount. Richardson v. Allen, 140 N. C. 416, 53 S. E. 657.

An appeal will not lie from an interlocutory judgment adjudging plaintiff entitled to recover damages and appointing a referee to hear evidence as to the amount. Richardson v. Allen, 140 N. C. 416, 53 S. E. 657.

Relating to Reference of Cause. — Where the court ordered a reference to take an account of partnership receipts and expenses, an appeal from such order before judgment on the account was premature. Leroy v. Saliba, 182 N. C. 757, 108 S. E. 333.

Plea in Bar. — When there is a plea in bar, a party to the action may except to an order of reference made by the trial judge and appeal at once, or wait until there is a final judgment on the reference appeal. Butcher v. Greensboro Supply Co., 153 N. C. 65, 69 S. E. 416.

An appeal lies from a judgment sustaining or overruling a plea in bar, and no reference should be ordered until the party pre empting the right to reference determined the same. Royster v. Wright, 152, 24 S. E. 746; Jones v. Beaman, 117 N. C. 239, 23 S. E. 248. Where a matter pleaded in bar is an estoppel was dis considered, other matters v. Ritterberger, 165 N. C. 269.

Submitting Issue on Plea in Bar. — An action on the part of the court submitting to the jury an issue on a plea in bar before ordering a reference decides no substantial right.
Interlocutory orders reviewed on appeal—Appeal by serving notice—Within the time prescribed in § 1-279, the appellant shall cause his appeal to be entered by the clerk on the judgment docket, and notice thereof to be given to the adverse party unless the record shows an appeal taken or prayed at the trial, which is sufficient to charge the appellee with notice, he having failed to designate a person to receive notices in the case. Brantley v. Jordan, 90 N. C. 25.

Appellee Entitled to Notice.—In all cases the appellee is entitled to notice of an appeal as provided by statute. Marler-Dalton-Gilmer Co. v. Farmers Bank, 115 N. C. 650, 72 S. E. 632. Brantley v. Jordan, 90 N. C. 25.

No Presumption of Notice.—Notice must be given in case of appeal; it will not be presumed, merely because the appellee was sufficiently charged with notice, he having failed to designate a person to receive notices in the case. Campbell v. Allison, 63 N. C. 568; Bryan v. Hubbs, 69 N. C. 423; Applewhite v. Fort, 85 N. C. 596; Brantley v. Jordan, 90 N. C. 25.

Record Must Show Notice.—The appeal will be dismissed, where the record does not show service of notice of appeal. Houston v. Iumber Co., 136 N. C. 135.

When Record Need Not Show Notice.—The record need not show service of notice of appeal, where the findings of fact and the judgment thereon, constituting the case on appeal, state that appeal was taken. Delozier v. Bird, 123 N. C. 659, 31 S. E. 834.

$ 1-280. Entry and notice of appeal.—Within the time prescribed in § 1-279, the appellant shall cause his appeal to be entered by the clerk on the judgment docket, and notice thereof to be given to the adverse party unless the record shows an appeal taken or prayed at the trial, which is sufficient to charge the appellee with notice, he having failed to designate a person to receive notices in the case. Brantley v. Jordan, 90 N. C. 25.

Appellee Entitled to Notice.—In all cases the appellee is entitled to notice of an appeal as provided by statute. Marler-Dalton-Gilmer Co. v. Farmers Bank, 115 N. C. 650, 72 S. E. 632. Brantley v. Jordan, 90 N. C. 25.

Record Must Show Notice.—The appeal will be dismissed, where the record does not show service of notice of appeal. Houston v. Lumber Co., 136 N. C. 135.

Brantley v. Jordan, 90 N. C. 25.

Record Must Show Notice.—The appeal will be dismissed, where the record does not show service of notice of appeal. Houston v. Iumber Co., 136 N. C. 135.

When Record Need Not Show Notice.—The record need not show service of notice of appeal, where the findings of fact and the judgment thereon, constituting the case on appeal state that appeal was taken. Delozier v. Bird, 123 N. C. 659, 31 S. E. 834.

given, and the other denies such statement. Pipkin v. Mc-Artan. 122 N. C. 194, 29 S. E. 334.
A statement in the case on appeal, that notice of appeal was waived, can not be contradicted for the first time on argument in the appellate court. Atkinson v. Asheville St.
R. Co., 113 N. C. 581, 18 S. E. 254.
Notice as a Waiver of Objection.—The fact that a notice of appeal was taken, at the expiration of the term at which judgment was rendered, stated only that the appeal was "on account of the erroneous rulings of the judge on motion for a new trial," did not constitute a waiver of an exception to the judgment. Ferrell v. Thompson, 107 N. C. 430, 12 S.
E. 109.
Entry of Appeal Not Absolutely Necessary.—That an appeal was not entered of record as required, where the fact of the appeal having been taken was not denied, and notice had been served. Barden v. Stickney, 130 N. C. 62, 40 S. E. 842.
The record need not show that an appeal was duly entered, when it affirmatively appears from the case on appeal, which bears date within the time within which an appeal could be taken, that the appeal was taken, and notice thereof waived. Atkinson v. Asheville St. R. Co., 111 N. C. 581, 18
S. E. 254.
Effect of Failure to Enter.—Failure of the clerk to enter the appeal is not ground for dismissal. Simmons v. Allison, 490, 8 S. E. 338. But see Moore v. Vanderbilt, 90 N. C. 10 and Bryan v. Hubbis, 69 N. C. 422.

§ 1-281. Appeals from judgments not in term time.—When appeals are taken from judgments of the clerk or judge not made in term time, the clerk is authorized to make an and all necessary orders for the perfecting of such appeals. (Ex.
Sess. 1921, c. 92, s. 19a; C. S. 642(a).) § 1-282. Case on appeal; statement, service, and return.—The appellant shall cause to be prepared a concise statement of the case, embodying the articles numbered, the errors alleged. A copy of within fifteen days from the entry of the appeal this statement shall be served on the respondent or specific amendments indorsed or attached; if respondent shall return the copy with his approval the case be approved by the respondent, it shall become the case and a notice thereof.
A statement in the case on appeal, that notice of appeal was waived, can not be contradicted for the first time on argument in the appellate court. Atkinson v. Asheville St.
R. Co., 113 N. C. 581, 18 S. E. 254.
Strict Observance Required.—The statutory requirements as to making up cases on appeal to the Supreme Court and docketing them are conditions precedent which must be complied with, or the appeal will be dismissed. Lindsey v. Knott, 191 N. C. 514, 133 S. E. 800.
Record Imports Verity.—The record on appeal imports
verity and the Supreme Court is bound thereby. State v.
Brown, 207 N. C. 156, 176 S. E. 260; Abernethy v. Burns, 210 N. C. 636, 188 S. E. 97; State v. Swiuster, 211 N. C.
278, 193 S. E. 868.
Distinction between Record and Case on Appeal.— The record on appeal consists of the "record proper," i. e., by the respondent or appellee, it becomes the case and a part of the record on appeal, and in connection with the for the proper presentation of exceptions. (Rev., s. 591; Code, s. 550; C.
§ 1-205; 1905, c. 156, s. 260. Abernethy v. Burns, 210 N. C. 636, 188 S. E. 97; State v. Swiuster, 211 N. C.
278, 193 S. E. 868.
No Presumption of Regularity.—An appeal being now the act of the appellant alone, no presumption of regularity arises because of its having been taken during a term of the Court from which it comes. Campbell v. Allison, 61 N. C.
509.
Necessity for Taking Appeal.—An appeal will be dismissed if the record fails to show affirmatively that an appeal was taken. Randleman Mfg. Co. v. Simmons, 97 N. C. 89, 1 S. E.
When Grouping of Exceptions Unnecessary.—Where exceptions are separately stated and numbered, but are not brought together at the end of the case, a motion by the appellee to affirm will be denied, if the error intended to be also provided in the document. The text continues with a discussion of the necessity of appeals, the role of the Clerk and the judge in the appeals process, and the requirements for preparing a proper case on appeal. The text also mentions the Supreme Court's role in the appeals process, including its strict observance of the statutory requirements and the importance of the record's verity.

I. EDITOR'S NOTE.
Prior to the adoption of the Reformed Procedure in 1868, all cases on appeal were settled by the judges, whose practice was to perform this duty before leaving the court at which the case was tried. It was thought that their duty in this respect might be lighter by changing the statute, so as to terminate the appeal on counsel to agree upon settlement of the case on appeal and to call in the aid of the judge only where counsel failed to agree. The time originally allowed for this was five days for the case on appeal and three days for the appellee to serve a counter case. This was lengthened from time to time until in this section it is now fifteen days to serve case on appeal and ten days to serve a counter case, except where the parties consent to extend the time. The result has not been beneficial. There has been an increasing tendency to postpone and put off the settlement of cases on appeal by lengthening the time in which to serve a case on appeal and counter case. The portion of the section which permitted the judges to extend the time even when counsel do not agree. But the Supreme Court has never changed its rule, of which it is sole judge, that in an instance when the case on appeal is not docketed in the time required, at the term, the appellant must docket the record proper and ask for a certiorari. Whenever this is not done, the case is treated as if the next following term will be dismissed. See State v. Johnson, 183 N. C. 730, 110 S. E. 782.
This section and Supreme Court Rule 19(3) require the assignment of errors relating to the trial and inserted in the case on appeal or record, preferably at the end.
Formerly when two or more appeals were taken in the same case separate transcripts were required but the Supreme Court has now adopted Rules at this changed to the one transcript is required but it shall contain separate statements of the cases on appeal. See Supreme Court Rule 19 (2).
II. GENERAL CONSIDERATIONS—COUNTER-Case.
Strict Observance Required.—The statutory requirements
as to making up cases on appeal to the Supreme Court and docketing them are conditions precedent which must be complied with, or the appeal will be dismissed. Lindsey v. Knott, 191 N. C. 514, 133 S. E. 800.
Record Imports Verity.—The record on appeal imports
verity and the Supreme Court is bound thereby. State v.
Brown, 207 N. C. 156, 176 S. E. 260; Abernethy v. Burns, 210 N. C. 636, 188 S. E. 97; State v. Swiuster, 211 N. C.

Distinction between Record and Case on Appeal.— The
record on appeal consists of the "record proper," i. e.,

§ 1-282

Same—Appeal from Judgment.—An appeal from a judgment of a district court, based on an order granting or refusing an injunction, no case on appeal is necessary, as the pleadings and affidavits constitute the record proper. Wallace v. Salisbury, 147 N. C. 58, 60 S. E. 282, 155 S. E. 519.

Same—Grant of Injunction.—On appeal from an order granting or refusing an injunction, no case on appeal is necessary, as the pleadings and affidavits constitute the record proper. Wallace v. Salisbury, 147 N. C. 58, 60 S. E. 282, 155 S. E. 519.

Same—Order of Reference.—It is not necessary to make a statement of the case on appeal from an order of reference, where the appeal itself and the exception noted in the record sufficiently raises the question of the validity of the order. Duckworth v. Duckworth, 144 N. C. 630, 57 S. E. 395; Cape Fear, etc., R. Co. v. Stewart, 132 N. C. 248, 43 S. E. 638.

Same—Appeal from Judgment.—An appeal from a judgment of a district court, based on an order granting or refusing an injunction, no case on appeal is necessary, as the pleadings and affidavits constitute the record proper. Wallace v. Salisbury, 147 N. C. 58, 60 S. E. 282, 155 S. E. 519.

Appeal from Construction of Will.—On an appeal involving the construction of a will in which it is essential, for a determination, to know whether or not a certain person died without issue, a statement in the case made up by counsel, that “plaintiffs claim that he died without issue,” is not sufficient. Arnold v. Hardy, 131 N. C. 113, 42 S. E. 553.

Rule as to Case on Appeal.—Where the exceptions to appellant's case on appeal are served within the required time, appellant can not complain that the statement of his case on appeal was not returned to him by appellee within the required time. Stevens v. Smathers, 123 N. C. 497, 31 S. E. 721.

Appeal May Be Based on Case Made.—Appellant may appeal to the Supreme Court from the action of the clerk in making full assignments of error. McMahan v. Southern R. Co., 203 N. C. 803, 167 S. E. 5.

Appellee May Make Specific Objections.—Upon the appeal of the Supreme Court from the action of the clerk in making full assignments of error, it is a sufficient compliance with the section. Horne v. Byerly, 115 N. C. 187, 20 S. E. 452; McDaniel v. Scurlock, 115 N. C. 295, 20 S. E. 451.

Effect of Failure to Serve Countercase.—Where the appellant's case on appeal is not properly constituted; and this, with the sum- mons, pleadings, verdict and judgment and the case on appeal, setting out so much of the proceedings at the trial as will throw light upon the exceptions taken, is all that is necessary. Sigman v. Southern R. Co., 135 N. C. 181, 47 S. E. 420.

Rule as to Case on Appeal.—Where the exceptions to appellant's case on appeal are not a concise statement of the case on appeal, the case on appeal is not properly constituted. Brewer v. Mineola Mfg., 108 N. C. 69, 12 S. E. 836.

Testimony Should Be in Narrative Form.—Testimony reported by the stenographer should be transmitted to this Court as part of the record, for the presentation of the evidence and the correction of the record. State v. Nelson, 157 N. C. 444, 73 S. E. 192. Although case on appeal was not a concise statement of the case it was held that the appeal would be allowed as a mis- take was shown by the counsel of justice. Messick v. Hickory, 211 N. C. 531, 191 S. E. 43.

Necessity of Setting Forth Evidence Excluded.—A judgment of the lower court, based on an order granting or refusing an injunction, no case on appeal is necessary, as the pleadings and affidavits constitute the record proper. Wallace v. Salisbury, 147 N. C. 58, 60 S. E. 282, 155 S. E. 519.

EXCEPTIONS. See Supreme Court Rule 19(1) and (3), 24.

Concise Statement of Case.—One of the essential requisites of an appeal from a judgment of the Supreme Court is that a "concise statement of the case" shall be made, and that it shall be served within the required time, nor any countercase served, it stands as the case is properly constituted; and this, with the sum- mons, pleadings, verdict and judgment and the case on appeal, setting out so much of the proceedings at the trial as will throw light upon the exceptions taken, is all that is necessary. Sigma v. Southern R. Co., 135 N. C. 181, 47 S. E. 420.

Appellant's case on appeal is not a concise statement of the case it was held that the appeal would be allowed as a mis- take was shown by the counsel of justice. Messick v. Hickory, 211 N. C. 531, 191 S. E. 43.

Necessity of Setting Forth Evidence Excluded.—The judgment should not be reversed because of the exclusion of evidence, where such evidence is not set out in the record. See State v. City Lumber Co. v. Childress, 167 N. C. 34, 83 S. E. 22.

The exclusion of evidence cannot be reviewed where the record does not disclose what the witness would have testified to, or what was proposed to be proven. In re Will of Scott, 19 N. C. 791, 7 S. E. 92.

Omission of Matter Not Pertinent to Issue.—Matter not pertinent to the points raised should be omitted. Hiton v. McDowell, 87 N. C. 364; Sampson v. Atlantic, etc., R. Co., 70 N. C. 739.

Exhibits Should Accompany Case.—Where deeds, records etc., are referred to, and make a necessary part of the case transmitted to the supreme court, it is the duty of the appellant to accompany the case. Waugh v. Andrews, 24 N. C. 75.

Surveys.—In an action for the diversion of surface water by the construction of a railway, surveys of the locality, made or obtained subsequent to the court's order, must accompany the record on appeal, or showing be made by appellant that he was prevented by the court or the opposite party from so doing. Walker v. Wilmington, etc., R. Co., 117 N. C. 614, 23 S. E. 437.

Exhibits.—Case Must Show Exceptions.—If the case on appeal does not show that exceptions were taken to the rulings of the court, the record on appeal will not show the same on appeal. Power v. Wilmington, 177 N. C. 361, 99 S. E. 804.

The presentation of matters for the first time in the assignments of error on appeal is too late. Bloxham v. Scott, 223 N. C. 377, 26 S. E. 1013.

Assignments of error must be based upon exceptions duly taken in apt time during the trial and preserved as required by this section and the rules of the supreme court. State v. Campbell, 184 N. C. 765, 114 S. E. 927.

Same.—Broadside Exceptions.—As a general rule a broadside exception to the judge's charge is inadmissible. In favorom vitae, in a capital case, the attorney-general will receive an assignment of error but will not consider broadside exceptions, nunc pro tunc. State v. Kinsauls, 120 N. C. 1055, 36 S. E. 31.

An "unpointed" broadside exception to the court's instructions to the jury will not be considered. Exceptions to the charge of the court in general terms, not sufficiently specific to call the attention of the court to the particular point claimed to be erroneous, cannot be considered by an appellate court. Clay v. Carolina, etc., R. Co., 173 S. E. 303; Arnold v. State Bank, etc., Co., 218 N. C. 433, 11 S. E. (2d) 241.

Same.—Must Point Out Error.—The Supreme Court will not consider exceptions, unless they point out in specific terms, by reasonable implication, the error intended to be reviewed. Singer Mfg. Co. v. Barrett, 95 N. C. 36.

What Need Not Be Set Out.—The Court will not consider any exceptions not set out in the "case on appeal," other than to the jurisdiction or because complaint does not state a cause of action, or to the sufficiency of an indictment. Walker v. Scott, 106 N. C. 56, 11 S. E. 364; Taylor v. Plummer, 105 N. C. 56, 11 S. E. 266.

The object of the "case on appeal" is to set forth the alleged errors appealed from, and, if it sufficiently discloses the nature of the error, its alleged cause, and what was done to correct it, it does not show formal exceptions. Singer Mfg. Co. v. Barrett, 95 N. C. 36.

Same.—Judge May Pass on Exceptions.—When exceptions are filed the recitals contained therein are not conclusive, but it is open to the appellee to controvert them, and to have the Judge pass upon their correctness in "settling the case on appeal." Walker v. Scott, 106 N. C. 56, 11 S. E. 364.

The object of an assignment of error is not to create a new exception, which was not taken at the hearing, but to state an exception, which was taken at the hearing, and then rely on after he has given more deliberate consideration to them than may have been possible during the progress of the trial or hearing. State v. Bittings, 206 N. C. 777, 173 S. E. 299.

Assignment of Error Considered.—The Supreme Court will not consider any assignments of error except those appearing on the record proper and in the case settled by appeal. Rodman v. Harvey, 102 N. C. 1, 8 S. E. 888; State v. Campbell, 184 N. C. 765, 114 S. E. 927.

The assignment of error must be based upon the exceptions taken at the proper time in the ordinary course of procedure, and should coincide with and be not more extensive than the exception itself. In other words, no assignment of error will be entertained which has not for its basis an exception taken in apt time. State v. Bittings, 206 N. C. 798, 801, 173 S. E. 299.

Requirements Mandatory.—The requirements that assignments of error be based upon exceptions duly taken during the trial to be considered on appeal are statutory, as well as mandatory under numerous decisions of the court. The supreme court on appeal exercises only appellate jurisdiction and it is necessary that the error alleged be presented as the law directs. State v. Bittings, 206 N. C. 798, 801, 173 S. E. 299.

Omission of Error Unnecessary.—No assignment of error is necessary where there is but a single exception and this is presented by the record, nor where the case is heard below on an agreed statement of facts, nor when the record shows that the judgment is the only one taken and the appeal itself is an exception thereto. North Carolina Bessemer Co. v. Piedmont Hdw. Co., 171 N. C. 728, 88 S. E. 807; Wallace v. Salisbury, 147 N. C. 58, 60 S. E. 712.

Assignment of Error Unnecessary.—No assignment of error is necessary where the record shows that counsel for both sides had agreed that all the papers in the case should constitute the case on appeal in which the judgment was rendered, in which case no error might be properly assigned. Holly v. Holly, 94 N. C. 639.

Affirmance.—On appeal from conviction of a capital crime, the "case on appeal" was served on the solicitor and then filed in the supreme court without agreement of the attorney-general or settlement by the judge, before expiration of the time allowed for filing exceptions or countercause under this section, and before the lapse of sufficient time for it to have been deemed approved under this section. Assignments of error were attached to the "case on appeal" but were not supported by exceptions. The supreme court considered the case on appeal and "deemed approved" the judgment appealed from, and considered the assignments of error, since the life of defendant is involved. Held: The assignments of error being without merit, and the case approved under § 1-283, the case was remanded, in order that error might be properly assigned. Holly v. Holly, 94 N. C. 639.

Exception Taken after Trial.—Exceptions to the judge's charge at the trial were not set out in the "case on appeal" and the evidence should be sent up to throw light thereon, and what propositions of law the appellee should be prepared to discuss. Cooke v. Stateville, 121 N. C. 301, 315, 28 S. E. 482.

Cooke v. Stateville, 121 N. C. 301, 315, 28 S. E. 482.

Error in Instructions Must Be Assigned.—The refusal to give instructions, if asked in writing and in apt time, like the charge as given, is deemed excepted to but none the less is it the duty of the appellee to assign such error as he finds in his statement of case on appeal and if this was not done, the exception is deemed waived. Taylor v. Plummer, 105 N. C. 56, 11 S. E. 266.

Assignment of Error Must Be Fully Presented.—Exceptions to the charge of the court must specifically relate to the complete portions upon which the appellant bases his exceptions, with each separately numbered in relation to the distinct principle upon which exception is taken, and it must appear from the record that the point is fully presented by the exception, or it will be ineffectual as being a broadside exception. Rawls v. Lupton, 193 N. C. 428, 137 S. E. 175.

Necessity of Case on Appeal.—The instructions cannot be hearing to the charge of the court must specifically relate to the complete portions upon which the appellant bases his exceptions, with each separately numbered in relation to the distinct principle upon which exception is taken, and it must appear from the record that the point is fully presented by the exception, or it will be ineffectual as being a broadside exception. Service of Original in Lieu of Copy.—A statement in the case on appeal that appellant's requests to charge were given "in substance" is insufficient to show what was given, and hence, where the requests are in writing, the judgment will not be disturbed.

Service by Counsel.—A service of the case on appeal by counsel is a sufficient service, even though counsel was not present in court at the time the judgment was rendered, or at the time the case was docketed in the superior court, and was not sworn to serve as counsel if they appear upon the record. If such agreement does not so appear, the supreme court will adhere to and follow the rules prescribed in the Code. Wade v. New Bern, 72 N. C. 496.

Service by Mail.—Where service of case on appeal is made by mail, on the last day on which service could have been made, instead of by officer, the failure to promptly return the case does not bar the right of the officer to serve the appellate case in due time. Service by Officer May Be Waived.—The improper service of a case on appeal is cured by the appellee's acceptance of the case and filing exceptions thereto, without objection to the mode of service, Asheville Woodworking Co. v. Southwestern Furniture Co., 120 N. C. 163, 27 S. E. 268, 197 S. E. 777.

Service of a Case on Appeal.—A new trial shall be granted if the judge has charged the jury in any case on appeal, except cases which are not appealable to the supreme court, with instructions which do not conflict with the general charge, or if the judge has set out what he charged in lieu of the general charge, he must serve on such codefendant his statement of case on appeal. after notice that counsel of both parties may appear before him. He then "settles" the case. In so doing he does not decide the points of law, but may disregard both cases, and should do so, if he finds that the facts of the trial were different. Slocumb v. Condence in narrative form, it is the duty of the trial judge to supervise and correct it. The exception is required.

Where appellant serves his statement of case on appeal and appellee returns same with objections and appellant requests the judge to settle case, within the time allowed by the court or by statute, it is the duty of the judge to settle the case on appeal and the judge may not strike appellant's statement of case on appeal. The appellee returns such objections on the ground that appellant's statement of case was insufficient to meet the requirements of this section and the rules of practice of the court. Chozen Confections v. Johnson, 220 N. C. 432, 25 S. E. 2d 555.

Judge's Action Conclusive.—The action of the Judge in settling the case on appeal, when the parties cannot agree, is final, and cannot be reviewed by the Supreme Court. State v. Gooch, 24 N. C. 922.

Where the trial judge has certified that the parties have been unable to agree upon the case on appeal, and that he has settled the case on appeal, and the record has been sent up to the Supreme Court and it will not be dismissed on the ground that no case on appeal had been stated and settled, Thompson v. Williams, 175 N. C. 696, 95 S. E. 100.

Supplemental Statement.—The appellate court will not conside assignments of error filed as a "supplemental state-

Case Not Signed by Judge.—Where the case as settled by the trial judge is not signed by him, and there is no agreed statement of the case, the record contains no proper statement of the case on appeal. Ingram v. Yadkin River Power Co., 189 N. C. 379, 177 S. E. 209.

Right of Judge to Make Stenographer's Notes Part of Record.—While a stenographer's notes are material for the con-

The remedy for a refusal to settle a case on appeal, when judgment has been entered by consent, is a motion to set aside the judgment. King v. Taylor, 189 N. C. 459, 124 S. E. 751.

Where the trial court at the time and place fixed for settle-tment of case on appeal fails to settle the case and erronously grants appellee's motion that appellant's case should be struck from the record, the supreme court will grant appellant's motion for certiorari to the end that the judge, after notice, may settle the case as provided in this section. Where appellee's failure to perfect the appeal is due to error of the court and not to any fault or neglect of appellee or his agent. Chozen Confections v. Johnson, 141 N. C. 350, 55 S. E. 2d 505.

Failure to Send up Correct Statement.—The failure of a judge to send up a correct statement is not sufficient ground for mandamus, but the mistake may be corrected by cor-

Prerequisites for Application for Certiorari.—If for any reason no appeal is taken from the case on which the appeal is for the appeal to be docketed in the supreme court, the appellant must bring up the record in its imperfect state and have it docketed, and then move for the proper orders to get the case on appeal before the Supreme Court. Way-

Laches of Appellant.—An application for a certiorari to a judge to settle a case on appeal, made seven months after the appeal was taken, will be denied in the absence of an affirmative showing of prejudice. State v. Dinh, 136 N. C. 112, 12 S. E. 44. A delay of two months, without excuse, is too long. Stroud v. Western, U. Tel. Co., 133 N. C. 234, 45 S. E. 928.

Disregard of Appellee's Counsel.—Where appellant in a pt time submitted the case on appeal to appellee, who declined to sign it, but suggested that he would prepare another, and get the judge to settle the case, and promised that no advantage would be taken if the judge was not bound by his promise. Mott v. Ramsay, 91 N. C. 249.

Authority of Judge after Settling Case.—Having "settled" the case, at the time of the settlement, the judge is functus officio unless, by agreement of parties, or by certiorari from supreme court upon proof of his readiness to make correction, opportunity is given him to correct such errors as may result from prejudice, mistake, misapprehension and the like. Slocumb v. Construction Co., 142 N. C. 349, 55 S. E. 196.

Authority of Supreme Court Over Settled Case.—The supreme court has no power to amend a settled case. Walker v. Scott, 102 N. C. 487, 9 S. E. 488.

Authority of Clerk.—The clerk has no authority to find the fact of such delay as provided by this section, nor to enter the same upon the record of his own knowledge. He can only enter the same upon the admission of facts, if it be required that the case on appeal in such instance be settled in an approved manner by agreement of counsel by the judge. Weaver v. Hampton, 206 N. C. 741, 171 S. E. 177.

Modification of Settled Case.—Where it is made to appear to the supreme court by proper evidence, that the Judge has committed an omission or mistake in the case on appeal, the Supreme Court will give him an opportunity to correct it, or to modify an inaccurate state-

When the trial judge has settled the case on appeal, in the exercise of his proper jurisdiction, that the Supreme Court, upon affidavit of error therein, and a letter | from the judge that he wishes to make the correction, will give him an opportunity. Barber v. Justice, 138 N. C. 20, 50 S. E. 445.

A judge cannot resettle a case on appeal; he can only correct such errors as have resulted from inadvertence, misapprehension, or the like. Buyer v. Teague, 136 N. C. 571, 11 S. E. 330.

Judge's Duty in Modifying Case.—Where a certiorari is ordered to correct a case on appeal, the trial judge should be given an opportunity to consider the case with reference to the corrections, and counsel should be present at the settlement thereof. Cameron v. Power Co., 137 N. C. 99, 49 S. E. 76.

Place of Settlement.—The requirement that the place appointed for the settlement of the case on appeal shall be within the district, if the judge has not left, is mandatory. State v. Humphrey, 160 N. C. 909, 154 S. E. 525.

An appeal will not be dismissed because the statement of the Judge below was made out of the district in which the suit was tried, unless the record shows that the appellee demanded to be present and that he reason of his absence was "prejudiced, especially when the error consist in the rejection of material and competent evidence. Whitesides v. Williams, 66 N. C. 141.

The trial judge has no absolute authority to settle a case on appeal outside of the county or district in which it was tried, except by agreement of the parties, or when the countercase or exception had been served, respectively, within the time prescribed by the statute. State v. Humphrey, 186 N. C. 533, 120 S. E. 85.

Effect of Absence of Judge from District.—The absence of the judge from the district in which the suit was tried, except by agreement of the parties, or when the countercase or exception had been served, respectively, within the time prescribed by the statute.

While it is provided by this section that when the judge from whose ruling appeal is taken to supreme court, has left the district before notice of disagreement as to case set for appeal, he may settle the case on appeal without returning to the district, he has no authority to do more, except by consent. White Way Laundry v. Underwood, 92 N. C. 561, 16 E. 2d 555.

Case May Be Settled After Expiration of Sixty Days.—
Although the failure of the Judge to settle a case on appeal within sixty days after the courts of the district closed subject him to a civil action for the penalty prescribed.
in the statute, he may, after that time, make up the case. State v. Williams, 109 N. C. 846, 13 S. E. 880.

Retirement of Judge.—The mere fact that a judge who tried a case has gone out of office will not prevent his settling the case on appeal. Ritter v. Grimm, 114 N. C. 371, 19 S. E. 230.

Where the Judge who presided at a trial goes out of the office without making up a case of appeal, and the appellant is in default, a new trial will be awarded. Simons v. Simonton, 80 N. C. 7.

Illness of Judge.—Where the judge is unable to settle the case on appeal on account of sickness and appellee, to expel matters, agrees to a new trial, and it appears that the judge will not be able to settle the case within a reasonable time, a new trial will be granted even though appellee opposes one. Turner v. Southern Gas Improv. Co., 171 N. C. 750, 1889, c. 135; C. C. P., s. 302; C. S. 645.

Impossible to Settle Case on Appeal.—Where it appeared by affidavit that the statement of a case upon appeal had been lost by no fault of the attorneys for appellant, and that, by reason of lapse of time, the judge had forgotten the exceptions, and a new case could not be prepared, a new trial will be granted. Board v. Old Dominion Steamship Co., 98 N. C. 163, 3 S. E. 955; Isler v. Haddock, 72 N. C. 119; Adams v. Reeves, 74 N. C. 106.

Affirmance.—On appeal from conviction of a capital crime, the "case on appeal" was served on the solicitor and then filed in the supreme court without agreement of the solicitor, matters, agrees to a new trial, and it appears that the time allowed for filing exceptions or counter-case, under this § 1-282, and before the lapse of sufficient time for it to have been deemed approved under § 1-282. Assignments of error being without merit, the case appeal was not prosecuted according to law, the appellee has the right to have a transcript of the record sent up, or a new trial, according to the state of the case, before expiration of the time allowed. Ritter v. Grimm, 114 N. C. 371, 19 S. E. 230.

Critz v. Springer, 121 N. C. 283, 28 S. E. 365.

Failure to Tender Required Fees.—Failure of the clerk of said court to transmit the record may be reviewed though there is no bill of exceptions. Cape Fear, etc., R. Co. v. Stewart, 132 N. C. 248, 172 N. C. 818, 90 S. E. 1013. Emmons v. McKeon, 58 N. C. 92, 846, 13 S. E. 638.

Section is Directory.—This section is directory merely, providing that the stenographer's notes shall be typewritten, and filed with the clerk of said court, and become a part of the record, does not make those notes a part of the record, and no bill of exceptions or case on appeal docketed, whether the statement of the case on appeal is settled or not, Owens v. Phelps, 91 N. C. 261.

When Appeal Not Properly Constituted.—Where an appeal is not prosecuted according to law, the appellee has the right to have a transcript of the record sent up, or a new trial, according to the state of the case, before expiration of the time allowed. Ritter v. Grimm, 114 N. C. 371, 19 S. E. 230.

Comission of Evidence and Charge.—The evidence and the charge of the court are properly omitted from the appeal record where there is no exception involving the same. Parker v. Southern Exp. Co., 132 N. C. 128, 43 S. E. 603.

Construed by the Court.—When two transcripts are sent, contrary to each other, and the parties do not agree which is correct, the court will direct the proper officer to transmit to the court in error the original papers from the court below. Lindsey v. Knights of Honor, 172 N. C. 818, 90 S. E. 1013. Emmons v. McKeon, 58 N. C. 92.

Duty to Transmit.—On the taking of an appeal, the record shall be transmitted to the appellate court, and the appeal docketed, whether the statement of the case on appeal is settled or not. Clayton v. Johnson, 132 N. C. 248, 172 N. C. 818, 90 S. E. 1013.

Bill of Exceptions Unnecessary.—Errors apparent on the record may be reviewed though there is no bill of exceptions. Cape Fear, etc., R. Co. v. Stewart, 132 N. C. 248, 172 N. C. 818, 90 S. E. 1013.

Demurrer.—A demurrer and the action of the court thereon are part of the record, and no bill of exceptions or case on appeal, or of the case on appeal. Cressler v. Asheville, 138 N. C. 482, 51 S. E. 53.

Terrorist's Notes.—A statute authorizing the employment of an official stenographer and providing that the stenographer's notes shall be typewritten, and filed with the clerk of said court, and become a part of the record, does not make those notes a part of the record, and no bill of exceptions or case on appeal, or of the case on appeal. Cressler v. Asheville, 138 N. C. 482, 51 S. E. 53.

Holding Effect of Record.—The Supreme Court is bound by the record, even though it seems improbable that it can be done. Davis v. Southern R. Co., 115 N. C. 578, 72 S. E. 622; McDaniel v. King, 89 N. C. 29, 30.

Amendment of Record.—The appellate court has no authority to make amendments of the record. Neal v. Coward, 71 N. C. 266.

Showing Additional Facts.—Where the findings of fact made the basis of a judgment denying a motion for vacation of a judgment, the evidence in the record, the record can be amended so as to show the facts on the request of a single party. Smith v. Whitten, 117 N. C. 389, 390, 23 S. E. 350.

Error in Record Corrected.—Errors in the record should be corrected by means of certiorari, and not by having the amendment made by the clerk below while the transcript is on file in the appellate court. State v. Jackson, 112 N. C. 849, 16 S. E. 906.

Response to an Appeal.—An appeal will not be dismissed because the response to the issue was omitted in printing the record, where the omission was palpably a printer's error; the response being recited and printed in the judgment. Bier v. Bier, 119 N. C. 553, 23 S. E. 120.

Failure of Judge to Return Papers.—Where the trial judge takes the papers and does not return them in time for the seasonable preparation of appellant’s transcript, a dismissal for failure to file will be vacated, and a certiorari may be issued to bring up the appeal. Sea v. Yarbrough, 94 N. C. 291; Rouhac v. Miller, 89 N. C. 390.

Proper Transcript Obtainable.—A transcript will not be dismissed because the record of the lower court fails to transmit a proper transcript, especially when a proper transcript is obtainable before the case will stand for argument. Bryan v. Moore, 5 S. E. 551.

III. CONTENTS OF TRANSCRIPT.

Transcript.—Essential.—Before the Supreme Court will entertain an appeal the appellant must cause to be properly filed and docketed therein a duly certified transcript of the record of the action in the court where the judgment was rendered. And, in the absence of proof to the contrary, the record as filed will be held to be the record as filed. State v. Preston, 104 N. C. 733, 734, 10 S. E. 84.

In General.—It must appear in the record, with reasonable certainty, that a superior court was opened and held for the county from which an appeal could be taken, and at the place and time prescribed by law. In all cases, it must appear that the court had jurisdiction of the parties and of the subject matter; and so much, not more, of the record as will properly present the exceptions taken, that is, as will show that they were taken, the rulings of the court to which they apply, and how they were taken. And, in any case, ought to appear in every record that the court was held and that the action was properly constituted before it. This requirement is not a mere matter of form that may be dispensed with. It is an essential part of the record, and is necessary in every action. And however informal a record may be, these essential requisites must appear in it, else the court cannot proceed to examine the alleged errors, and decide the questions of law sought to be presented.

A. When Appeal Remanded.

Imperfect Transcript.—Where the transcript of the record sent to the supreme court is imperfect, the appeal will not be dismissed, but the papers will be remanded, in order that a proper transcript may be sent up. Spence v. Tapsco, 92 N. C. 576, 577.

Essential Part of Record.—The transcript or record on appeal consists of the record proper (that is, summons, pleadings, and judgment) and the case on appeal, which is the exceptions taken, the rulings of the court, the evidence, prayers for instructions, and charge of the court. When the transcript does not show that any court was opened, held, and shows no process or pleading, the cause will be remanded. Rowland Bros. v. Mitchell, & Son, 99 N. C. 144, 12 S. E. 266.

Jurisdiction of Action.—It is the appeal that puts the Supreme Court to acquire jurisdiction, it must appear in the transcript that the record was taken, that the record was had, and that the Supreme Court must be able to see, from the record, the relation thus established. Moore v. Vanderburg, 90 N. C. 460.

Jurisdiction of Parties.—The transcript is imperfect if it does not contain so much of the case below as is necessary to present the matters excepted to for review. Cressler v. Asheville, 138 N. C. 482, 51 S. E. 53.

Proper Transcript.—A transcript which fails to show any process, or waiver thereof, or any pleading, by which defendant was brought into court, or any agreement between the parties, is insufficient, and the cause will be remanded for a proper transcript. Jones v. Hoggard, 107 N. C. 349, 12 S. E. 266.

Proper Proceedings below.—An appeal will be remanded where the transcript does not show that the action was properly constituted in the court below. Markham v. Hicks & Co., 90 N. C. 54.

B. When Appeal Certified.

Failure to Show Process and Pleading.—Where the transcript on appeal contains only the judgment of the court below, and no process or pleading leading to the cause will be remanded. Rowland Bros. v. Mitchell, & Son, 90 N. C. 649; Bethca v. Bayrd, 93 N. C. 141.

Failure to Show Contention of Parties.—Where the transcript on appeal contains no judgment of the court below, and no process or pleading leading to the cause will be remanded. Wyatt v. Lynchburg, 93 N. C. 150, 57 S. E. 895.

Failure to Show Entry of Judgment.—Where the record on appeal contains no judgment entry, the appeal or writ of error cannot be considered. Logan v. Harris, 90 N. C. 7; High v. Rich (N. C.), 1 S. E. 647; See Vann v. Winders, 184 N. C. 639, 113 S. E. 927.
§ 1-285. Undertaking on appeal; filing; waiver.

To render an appeal effective for any purpose in civil cases, or in special proceedings, a written undertaking must be executed on the part of the appellant, with good and sufficient surety, in such sum as may be ordered by the court, not exceeding two hundred and fifty dollars, to the effect that the appellant will pay all costs awarded against him on the appeal, and this undertaking must be filed with the clerk by whom the judgment or order was entered, or such sum as is ordered by the court must be deposited with the clerk by whom the judgment or order was entered, to abide the event of the appeal. The undertaking or deposit may be waived by a party having executed it, or by the clerk of the court where the undertaking or deposit was made. See Oakley v. Van Noppen, 100 N. C. 287, 5 S. E. 1.

Effect of Failure to Give Undertaking.—In the absence of an affidavit for leave to appeal without bond, an appeal must be dismissed where a party neither gives the appeal bond nor makes a deposit in lieu thereof. Lunsford v. Alexander, 162 N. C. 326, 123 S. E. 2d 92; McCannelly v. Reynolds, 90 N. C. 648; Applewhite v. Fort, 85 N. C. 596.

II. TIME OF FILING.

Presumption of Timely Filing.—Where an appeal bond has no date it will be presumed to have been filed on the day it is justified. Boyden v. Williams, 92 N. C. 546.

§ 1-285

Computation of Time.—The ten days within which the undertaking must be filed begins from the day on which the judgment is rendered, but from that on which the court adjourned. Chamblee v. Baker, 95 N. C. 3.

Ten Days after Rendition of Judgment.—The undertaking on appeal must be filed within ten days after the rendition of the judgment. Boyden v. Williams, 92 N. C. 546; Wade v. New Bern, 72 N. C. 498; Sever v. McLaughlin, 82 N. C. 332.

Ten Days after Trial.—Where an undertaking on appeal recited that the judgment appealed from was rendered on the last day of the term (presumably the first day, since all the business of a term is done on its first day), but it appeared that the trial took place during the second week, and the justification was filed within ten days after the trial, the court held that the bond was filed in time. Worthy v. Brady, 91 N. C. 265.

Day Facts Were Found.—Where the record does not show on what day the judgment appealed from was rendered, it having been rendered out of term by consent, an appeal bond filed on the same day that the facts were found, the case on appeal filed, and the amount of the bond fixed, is given in time. Gwathney v. Savage, 101 N. C. 103, 7 S. E. 661.

Delay in Filing Caused by Clerk.—An undertaking filed within a few days after the time agreed on will be treated as timely filed if the undertaking affirms that the appeal was in good faith that appellant made diligent effort from time to time to give the undertaking, but was prevented by the absence of the clerk, who was in the city, from delivering the undertaking within the time prescribed by the statute. Harrison v. Hoff, 102 N. C. 25, 8 S. E. 887; Jones v. Wilson, 103 N. C. 13, 9 S. E. 380.

Before Transmission of Record to Appellate Court.—An appeal bond signed and sent up with the record, is in time, provided it should be given before the record of the case is transmitted to the Supreme Court. In re Snow's Will, 128 N. C. 100, 38 S. E. 295; Howerton v. Sexton, 104 N. C. 633, 8 S. E. 631.

Reasonable Excuse Must Be Shown.—While the Supreme Court may allow an undertaking on appeal to be filed in time, the power thus conferred will not be exercised unless a reasonable excuse for a failure to give the undertaking within the time prescribed by this section. Harrison v. Hoff, 102 N. C. 25, 8 S. E. 887; Jones v. Asheville, 114 N. C. 630, 19 S. E. 631.

The same or excusable failure to file the appeal excuses the failure to file appeal bond. Graves v. Hinck, 106 N. C. 331, 11 S. E. 362.

Before or after Motion to Dismiss.—The Supreme Court may allow an undertaking on appeal within ten days after the appeal was filed, and the necessity of filing the appeal bond within the prescribed time may be waived by agreement. Wade v. New Bern, 72 N. C. 498.

Same—Must Appear of Record.—No agreement of parties waiving the necessity of timely filing of appeal bond will be respected by the appellate court unless it appears on the record. Wade v. New Bern, 72 N. C. 498.

Same—Verbal Agreements Disregarded.—Verbal agreements to waive the statutory requirements will not be respected by the appellate court unless they or other sureties justify the same, that is, unless a substantial compliance with all the requirements of the statute be shown. McCannless v. Reynolds, 91 N. C. 244; see also Skinner v. Bland, 91 N. C. 1.

Same—Delay in Making Objection.—Where the absence of a bond on appeal is not objected to for two years, and in the meantime the cause has been continued, and without objection to the defect, will be deemed to have waived objection to the defect. Arrington v. Smith, 96 N. C. 59.

Same—By Failure to Object.—Where the appellant is in continued possession of the judgment rendered without objection, and this is noted in the record, the court is convinced that it be a sufficient waiver in writing under the statute. Harshaw v. McDowell, 89 N. C. 18, 183; Howerton v. Henley, 76 N. C. 527.

Same—By Proceeding with Trial.—If the appellee let the case go to the jury in the appellate court, he thereby waives objections to defects in the appeal bond, but the court, in its discretion, may require further security. Ferguson v. McCarter, 114 N. C. 544.

IV. PARTIES.

Obligee.—An undertaking on appeal, though not so expressed, is, by implication, taken to be made with the appellee. City of Charlotte v. Riddle, 93 N. C. 198.

Omission of Obligor's Name.—The omission of the name of an obligor in the body of an appeal bond or undertaking is no substantial objection to it. Chamblee v. Baker, 95 N. C. 98.

Operates Favorably to Respondent.—The undertaking for costs and damages on appeal, operates in favor of the respondent, although he is not required to be named in it. Cooper v. Clerk's Office v. Huffsteller, 67 N. C. 467.

Made Payable to State.—An appeal bond made payable to the state is void. The state will not become a trustee for the satisfaction of the judgment, or of the rights, claims, or liabilities of the parties, in cases specially provided by law—as guardian bonds, etc. Dorsey v. Raleigh, etc., R. Co., 91 N. C. 201.

Necessity for Obligor's Signature.—The signature of the obligor is essential to the validity of the appeal or error. Cohoon v. Morton, 49 N. C. 256; Walker v. Williams, 88 N. C. 7.

Party Acting as Surety.—An undertaking on appeal may be good although signed by one of the parties defendant as surety, if the record shows that he is not affected by the appeal. Syne v. Badger, 91 N. C. 272.

Opposite Party.—A plaintiff cannot be principal obligor on an appeal bond, where an appeal is taken by defendant. Speed v. Harris, 4 N. C. 317.

Signature by Mark.—An appeal bond may be executed by a surety making his mark. State v. Byrd, 93 N. C. 624.

Name Signed by Magistrate.—A magistrate, who has rendered a judgment on a warrant, is not a fit person to sign the name of another as surety on an appeal bond. Weaver v. Parish, 8 N. C. 319.

§ 1-286. Justification of sureties.—The undertaking on appeal must be accompanied by the affidavit of one of the sureties that he is worth double the amount specified therein. The requisite affidavit by every surety must be filed within ten days after the notice of appeal; and unless they or other sureties justify within ten days thereafter, the appeal shall be regarded as if no undertaking had been given.

The justification must be upon a notice of not less than five days. (Rev., s. 594; Code, s. 560; C. C. P., s. 310; 1887, c. 121; C. S. 647.)

Editor's Note.—The purpose of this section is to protect the appellee in respect to costs. He has a substantial interest in the undertaking, upon appeal, and it cannot be disregarded without his consent in writing, unless a sum of money be deposited by the clerk by order of the court in lieu of the undertaking. The statute is careful to provide, in strong, peremptory and exacting terms, that the bond shall be made in the name of another as surety unless perfected in the way prescribed in it. The language is plain and mandatory, and very little is left to construction. The appellee has the substantial right under the statute to insist upon a substantial compliance with it in all respects.

Necessity of Justification.—An appeal bond is of no effect unless it be accompanied by the affidavit of one of the sureties that he is worth double the amount specified therein. Singer Mfg. Co. v. Barrett, 94 N. C. 219; Greenlee v. McCelvey, 92 N. C. 530.

Dismissal of Appeal.—An appeal will be dismissed when the surety on the undertaking dies, or becomes incapable of giving security for the amount thereof. McCannless v. Reynolds, 91 N. C. 244; State v. Roger, 94 N. C. 839.

Necessity of Excuse.—The justification of a surety to an undertaking on appeal, must be made by the surety himself. The affidavit of another as to the pecuniary reputation of the surety will not answer the demands of the law. McPherson v. ||

Failure to Show Proper Amount.—A justification of two sureties that each is worth the amount of the bond, is not a sufficient compliance with this section. Anthony v. McCole, 91 N. C. 295.

Need Not Mention Liabilities.—The justification of a surety on an appeal bond is sufficient under this section where it states that the surety is worth double the amount therein specified, without stating that it is justified in double liabilities and homestead and exemption allowed by law. Witt v. Long, 93 N. C. 388.

Justification Held Insufficient.—Where the appraisal of an unjustified bond is the act of the clerk, there is no waiver, unless the appellee is present, or afterwards assents. Gruber v. Dunn, 137 N. C. 579.

Indorsement of Clerk Not a Substitute for Justification.—An indorsement on the back of an appeal bond by the clerk, "The within bond is good," is not a sufficient compliance with the statutory requirement that the bond must be accompanied by an affidavit of the sureties showing their justification. Bryson v. Lucas, 85 N. C. 397.

Justification May Be Waived.—While this section seems to require that bond shall be justified in the first instance by at least one of the sureties swearing that he is worth double the amount therein specified, a failure to do this does not necessarily avoid a bond. It is a defect which may be cured by waiver. Becton v. Dunn, 137 N. C. 559, 563, 50 S. E. 289. McMillan v. Baker, 92 N. C. 111. McMillan v. Pruett, 92 N. C. 117.

Necessity of Written Waiver.—An acceptance by the appellee of the surety tendered on an appeal bond, constitutes a waiver of the justification required by statute. Greenlee v. McElvey, 92 N. C. 530.

Same—Appelee Present When Bond Taken.—When it appears by the record, or by affidavit of the appellee before the taking of the appeal bond, that the appellee was present when the appeal bond was taken, and made no objection to the sufficiency of the sureties, such objection will be deemed waived. Gruber v. Washington, etc., R. Co., 92 N. C. 607, 116 S. E. 565.

Same—Acceptance in Open Court.—The acceptance in court of an appeal bond not justified is a waiver of justification, and a subsequent motion to dismiss the appeal on the ground that the bond is not justifiable can not be sustained. Jones v. Potter, 89 N. C. 220.

Same—Signing Case on Appeal.—An objection to an appeal bond on the ground that the sureties failed to justify it is not waived when the counsel for the adverse party agrees to and signs the statement of the case on appeal. McMillan v. Nye, 90 N. C. 12, distinguishing Howerton v. Henderson, 86 N. C. 718, distinguished in Gruber v. Washington, etc., R. Co., 92 N. C. 1.

Same—Entry on Record.—An entry on the record, "bond fixed at $25; filed and approved," was held a sufficient written notice of the entry of a new bond. *Lytte v. Lytle, 90 N. C. 647.

When Waiver Not Required.—Where the record stated, "Plaintiff appealed. Notice waived. Bond filed," which was signed by the judge, it is a sufficient waiver in writing of a formal justification of the bond, and the appeal will not be dismissed because the sureties do not justify in double the amount. Singer Mfg. Co. v. Barrett, 94 N. C. 219.

An acceptance by the appellee of the surety tendered on an appeal bond, constitutes a waiver of the justification required by statute. Lytle v. Lytle, 90 N. C. 647.

Same—Appelee Present When Bond Taken.—When it appears by the record, or by affidavit of the appellee before the taking of the appeal bond, that the appellee was present when the appeal bond was taken, and made no objection to the sufficiency of the sureties, such objection will be deemed waived. Gruber v. Washington, etc., R. Co., 92 N. C. 607, 116 S. E. 565.

Same—Acceptance in Open Court.—The acceptance in court of an appeal bond not justified is a waiver of justification, and a subsequent motion to dismiss the appeal on the ground that the bond is not justifiable can not be sustained. Jones v. Potter, 89 N. C. 220.

Same—Signing Case on Appeal.—An objection to an appeal bond on the ground that the sureties failed to justify it is not waived when the counsel for the adverse party agrees to and signs the statement of the case on appeal. McMillan v. Nye, 90 N. C. 12, distinguishing Howerton v. Henderson, 86 N. C. 718, distinguished in Gruber v. Washington, etc., R. Co., 92 N. C. 1.

Same—Entry on Record.—An entry on the record, "bond fixed at $25; filed and approved," was held a sufficient written notice of the entry of a new bond. Lytte v. Lytle, 90 N. C. 647.

See also State v. Wagner, 91 N. C. 521.

§ 1-287. Notice of motion to dismiss; new bond or deposit.—Before the appellee is permitted to move to dismiss an appeal, either for any irregularity in the undertaking on appeal or for failure of sureties to justify, he must give notice in writing of the motion at least twenty days before the district from which the cause is sent up is called, and this notice must state the grounds upon which the motion is based. At least five days before the district from which the cause is sent up is called, the appellee may file with the clerk of the supreme court a new bond justified according to law and containing a penalty the same in amount as the penalty in the original bond, or he may deposit with the said clerk a sum of money equal to the penalty in the original bond. When a new bond has been thus filed or deposit made the cause stands as if the bond had been duly given or deposit duly made in the court below. (Rev., s. 596; 1867, c. 121; C. S. 648.)

As to the time of the motion to dismiss, see Supreme Court Rule 122.

Section is Mandatory.—A motion to dismiss because of imperfections in the undertaking on appeal, will not be entertained, unless the provisions of this section are complied with. Jones v. Slaughter, 96 N. C. 541, 2 S. E. 681.

Notice of Motion to Dismiss.—A notice is required to be given of a motion to dismiss an appeal when no appeal bond has been filed; the twenty days required for a motion to dismiss by the section applies only when there is an irregularity in the bond or in the justification of the sureties. Jones v. Asheville, 114 N. C. 638, 59 S. E. 683.

Nor When Not Filed in Time.—A failure to execute and file an undertaking on appeal within the time prescribed by law is not a mere "irregularity," and hence a motion to dismiss the appeal for such failure does not require the twenty days notice, as provided by this section. Bowen v. Bowers, 98 N. C. 56.

Necessity of Written Notice.—A motion to dismiss appeal for insufficient bond will not be entertained, unless after written notice, as required by this section. Mc Gee v. Fox, 107 N. C. 766, 12 S. E. 565.

At Hearing of Motion.—Though a void bond has been given on appeal from the county to the Superior Court, the court or the clerk of the superior court has made an order allowing the appellant to appeal as a pauper, and is unable, by reason of his poverty, to make the deposit or to give the security required by law for said appeal, it shall be the duty of the judge or clerk of said superior court to make an order allowing said party to appeal from the judgment to the supreme court as in other cases of appeal, without giving security therefor. The party desiring to appeal from said judgment shall within five days make affidavit that he is unable by reason of his poverty to give the security required by law, and that he is advised by counsel learned in the law that there is error in matter of law in the decision of the superior court in said action. The affidavit must be accompanied by a written statement from a practitioner that the party offers to appeal to the supreme court, and is of opinion that the decision of the superior court, in said action, is contrary to law. The appeal when passed upon and granted by the clerk shall be within ten days from the expiration by law of said term of court. The clerk of the superior court cannot demand his fees for the transcript of the record for the supreme court of a party appealing in forma pauperis, in case such appellant furnishes to the clerk two true and correctly typewritten copies of such record on appeal. Nothing contained in this section deprives the clerk of the superior court of his right to demand his fees for his certificate and seal as now allowed by law in such cases. Provided, that where the judge of the superior court or the clerk of the superior court has made an order allowing the appellant to appeal as a pauper and the appeal has been filed in the supreme court, and an error or omission has been made in the affidavit or certificate of counsel, and the error is called to the attention of the court before the hearing of the argument of the case, the court shall permit an amended affidavit or certificate to be filed correcting the error or omission. (Rev., s. 597; Code, s. 553; 1889, c. 161; 1873-4, c. 60; 1907, c. 878; 1937, c. 89; C. S. 649.)

Cross Reference.—As to appeal in forma pauperis in criminal actions, see § 15-181.

Editor's Note.—Appeals in forma pauperis were not originally allowed in civil cases at all, but were first provided for in ch. 60, Laws 1873-74, under which they could only be allowed, as in criminal cases, by the judge, and during the term. But in 1889, Laws 1889, ch. 161, this section was amended to permit an appeal in forma pauperis in any case by the clerk either at term or on affidavit filed within five days after court, or the clerk might pass upon and allow such application during term, or within ten days after its expiration. Formerly the clerk of the Superior Court was not bound to render his services gratuitously but in 1907, Acts 1907, ch. 587, this section was again amended and the clerk of the Superior Court was now allowed to demand bond for filing the transcript in appeals in forma pauperis. The 1937 amendment added the proviso at the end of this section. As to effect of amendment, see 15 N. C. Law Rev. 312.

Supreme Court Rule 22 offers appellants in forma pauperis the option of filing nine typewritten copies of the record, not required by this section.

Section Mandatory.—Where a party to a civil action which has been tried in the Superior Court, desires to appeal from a judgment rendered at such trial to this court, where such appeal is as required by this section, he must comply strictly with the provisions of this section, which are mandatory. McEntire v. McEntire, 203 N. C. 674, 160 S. E. 421.

Necessity of Affidavit.—In appeal pauper it is required by this section that appellant file the statutory affidavit in order to confer jurisdiction on the supreme court, and a party appealing in forma pauperis alleging to be pauper does not relieve plaintiff of the necessity of filing the jurisdictional affidavit or the twenty-five printed or mimeographed copies of the brief required by rule 22 of the supreme court. Brown v. Kress & Co., 207 N. C. 722, 188 S. E. 110.

The amendment permitting corrections of errors or omissions in the affidavit or certificate of counsel at any time allowing an appeal in forma pauperis without proper, supporting affidavit, and an affidavit made after the expiration of the statutory time is beyond the clerk's authority and the Supreme Court is without jurisdiction to entertain the appeal and it will be dismissed, the provisions of this section being mandatory and not directory. Alger v. Pullen, 204 N. C. 671, 168 S. E. 281; Franklin v. Gentry, 222 N. C. 41, 21 S. E. (2d) 528.

Applies to Administrators, etc.—Administrators and all civil actions from the payment of cost of transcript in advance. Speller v. Speller, 119 N. C. 356, 26 S. E. 160; Martin v. Chasten, 75 N. C. 96.

§ 1-289. Undertaking to stay execution on money judgment.—If the appeal is from a judgment directing the payment of money, it does not stay the execution of the judgment unless an undertaking is executed on the part of the appellant, by one or more sureties, to the effect that if the judgment appealed from, or any part thereof, is affirmed, or the appeal is dismissed, the sureties will pay the amount directed to be paid by the judgment, or the part of such amount as to which the judgment shall be affirmed, if affirmed only in part, and all damages which shall be awarded against the appellant upon the appeal. Whenever it is satisfactorily made to appear to the court that since the execution of the undertaking the sureties have been incapable of payment, the court may, by rule or order, require the appellant to execute, file and serve a new undertaking, as above. In case of neglect to execute such undertaking within twenty days after the service of a copy of the rule or order requiring it, the appeal may, on motion to the court, be dismissed with costs. Whenever it is necessary for a party to an action or proceeding to give a bond or an undertaking with surety or sureties, he may, in lieu thereof, deposit with the officer into court money to the amount of the bond or undertaking to be given. The court in which the action or proceeding is pending may direct what disposition shall be made of such money pending the action or proceeding. In a case where, by this section, the money is to be deposited with an officer, a judge of the court, upon the application of either party, may, at any time before the deposit is made, order the money deposited in court instead of with the officer; and a deposit made pursuant to such order is of the same effect as if made with the officer. The perfecting of an appeal by giving the undertaking mentioned in this section stays proceedings in the court below upon the judgment appealed from; except when the sale of perishable property is directed, the court below may order the property to be sold and the proceeds thereof to be deposited or invested, to abide the judgment of the appellate court. (Rev., s. 598; Code, s. 554; C. C. P., ss. 304, 311; C. S. 650.)

Undertaking Not Necessary to Appeal.—But security for payment of the judgment, in addition to the security for costs, is not necessary for a defendant appealed from, and the statute being sufficient indication of his desire at the time of trial. Russell v. Hearne, 113 N. C. 356, 18 S. E. 711.

Other Proceedings Not Stayed.—An order allowing a party to appeal in forma pauperis, or making a deposit, does not relieve the appellant in civil actions from the payment of cost of transcript in advance. Speller v. Speller, 119 N. C. 356, 26 S. E. 160; Martin v. Chasten, 75 N. C. 96.

No Particular Form Required.—No particular form is required for an undertaking to stay execution upon appeal; and if words are inserted in such undertaking repugnant to its intent, they will be rejected as surplusage. Oakley v. Van Noppen, 100 N. C. 267, § 5 S. E. 1.

II. Giving an Undertaking to Stay.—Where the judgment appealed from directs, to the effect that the appellant will obey the order of the court by which judgment was rendered and which must be specified in the undertaking, the execution of the judgment is not stayed, unless a bond is executed on the part of the appellant, with one or more sureties, to the effect that, during his possession of such property, he will not commit waste thereon, and that if the judgment is affirmed he will pay the value of the use and occupation of the property, from the time of the appeal until the delivery of possession thereof pursuant to the judgment, not exceeding a sum to be fixed by a judge of the court by which judgment was rendered and which must be specified in the undertaking. When the judgment is for the sale of mortgaged premises, and the payment of a deficiency arising upon the sale, the undertaking must also provide for the payment of this deficiency. (Rev., s. 601; Code, s. 557; C. C. P., s. 307; C. S. 653.)

III. Effect of Stay on Judgment.—Where an appeal is taken from the order of confirmation of a sale under decree of a foreclosure of a deed of trust and an appeal bond is filed to stay execution, under this section and sections 1-293, 1-294, and the judgment of the lower court is reversed on appeal, the purchaser at the sale may be held liable to the mortgagor for the former's taking of immediate possession of the property after the confirmation appealed from. Dixon v. Smith, 204 N. C. 480, 168 S. E. 825.

IV. Scope of Stay; Security limited for fiduciaries.—When an appeal is perfected as provided by this article it stays all further proceedings in the court below upon the judgment appealed from, or upon the matter embraced therein; but the court below may proceed upon other matters included in the action and not affected by the judgment appealed from. The court below may, in its discretion, dispense with or limit the security required, when the appellant is an executor, administrator, trustee, or other person acting in a fiduciary capacity. It may also limit such security to an amount not more than fifty thousand dollars, where it would otherwise exceed that sum. (Rev., s. 602; Code, s. 558; C. C. P., s. 308; C. S. 655.)

Cross Reference.—As to effect of stay on judgment, see § 1-251.

§ 1-297. Entire Cause Transferred to Appellate Court.—Under the North Carolina practice, an appeal carries the whole cause up to the Supreme Court, equally whether security is given Authority to hear motion.—An appeal does not take the case beyond the control of the superior court, until it is perfected. Coates Bros. v. Wilkes, 94 N. C. 174.

Authority of Lower Court Terminated.—The perfection of an appeal is a bar to further proceedings in the inferior court. Bank State v. Twitty, 13 N. C. 386.

An appeal duly taken and regularly prosecuted operates as a stay of all proceedings in the trial court, relating to the issues included therein, until the matters are determined in the Supreme Court. Pruet v. Charlotte Power Co., 167 N. C. 598, 63 S. E. 830.

Upon appeal from an interlocutory order the lower court has no power to proceed further with the case, and a motion to set aside a restraining order because of newly-discovered evidence cannot be entertained. Combes v. Adams, 150 N. C. 203, 60 S. E. 585.

An appeal, docketed within the time and regularly prosecuted, relates back to the time of trial; that is, it operates as a stay of proceedings within the meaning of the statute, and brings the cause within the principle of the cases which hold that the court below is without power to hear and determine questions involved in an appeal pending in the Supreme Court. Combes v. Adams, 150 N. C. 64, 70, 63 S. E. 186; Sykes v. Everett, 167 N. C. 600, 63 S. E. 585.

Where after appeal from a formal judgment overruling a demurrer the trial court proceeds to hear exceptions to the report of the referee, the superior court, upon affirming the judgment, has no power to overrule the judgment confirming the report of the referee stricken out because the parties were entitled to have the appeal from the judgment considered on that appeal, overruling the demurrer determined. Combes v. Adams, 150 N. C. 203, 60 S. E. 585.

Appeal Must Be Perfected.—An appeal does not take the case beyond the control of the court whose order is appealed from, and an order can not subsequently be made by that court discharging the attachment. Pasour v. Lineberger, 90 N. C. 139.

Appeal Does Not Carry up Fund.—An appeal from a final judgment does not bring up the fund, the court below retaining charge of its safe-keeping and investment pending the appeal. Hinson v. Adrian, 91 N. C. 230, 53 S. E. 407.

§ 1-295. Undertaking in one or more instruments; served on appellee.—The undertakings may be in one instrument or several, at the option of the appellant; and a copy, including the names and residences of the sureties, must be served on the adverse party, with the notice of appeal, unless the required deposit is made and notice thereof given. (Rev., s. 603; Code, s. 559; C. C. P., s. 309; C. S. 656.)

Cross References.—As to undertaking for costs, see § 1-285. As to undertaking to stay executions, see § 1-289 et seq.

Surety Insolvent.—Where the undertaking on appeal for the costs and the undertaking to stay execution are in one instrument, the appellee, upon filing the proper proofs of the insolvency of the surety, is entitled to have the appeal dismissed, but where the two undertakings are separate and distinct, the appellant has a right to have his appeal heard, although the surety to the undertaking to stay execution is insolvent. Alderman v. Rivenbark, 96 N. C. 134, 1 S. E. 644.

§ 1-296. Judgment not vacated by stay.—The stay of proceedings provided for in this article shall not be construed to vacate the judgment appealed from, but in all cases such judgment remains in full force and effect, and its lien remains unimpaired, notwithstanding the giving of the undertaking or making the deposit required in this chapter, until such judgment is reversed or modified by the supreme court. (Rev., s. 604; 1887, c. 192; C. S. 657.)

Editor’s Note.—This section was added to the code in 1887, Laws 1887, c. 192.

In Black v. Black, 111 N. C. 300, 16 S. E. 412, it was held that this section required that a motion for a new trial upon newly discovered evidence, made after appeal and final decree in Supreme Court, should be made in the superior court. Failing the appeal the practice remains the same as if the appeal had been taken. A new trial is necessary in such a case, and the appeal has no power to reverse the judgment of the lower court on this subject. Black v. Black, 111 N. C. 300, 16 S. E. 412.

Court v. Black, 111 N. C. 300, 16 S. E. 412. Where the undertaking on appeal for the costs and the undertaking to stay execution are in one instrument, the appellee, upon filing the proper proofs of the insolvency of the surety, is entitled to have the appeal dismissed, but where the two undertakings are separate and distinct, the appellant has a right to have his appeal heard, although the surety to the undertaking to stay execution is insolvent. Alderman v. Rivenbark, 96 N. C. 134, 1 S. E. 644.

§ 1-297. Judgment on appeal and on undertakings; restitution.—Upon an appeal from a judgment or order, the appellate court may reverse, affirm or modify the judgment or order appealed from, in the respect mentioned in the notice of appeal, and as to any or all of the parties, as the case may require, if necessary or proper, order a new trial. When the judgment is reversed or modified, the appellate court may make-plete restitution of all property and rights lost by the erroneous judgment. Undertakings for the prosecution of appeals and on writs of certiorari shall make a part of the record sent up to the supreme court on which judgment may be entered against the appellant or person prosecuting the writ of certiorari and his sureties, in order to restrict a new trial to the issues affected by the erroneous ruling, and shall be entered against the appellant or person prosecuting the writ.

Whole Case Taken Up.—Under the provisions of this section an appeal on the trial and determination of the cause in the inferior court carries the whole case to the Supreme Court for review, and such court has plenary jurisdiction to reverse, affirm, or modify the judgment. Hudson v. Charleston, etc., R. Co., 84 N. C. 192, 84 S. E. 692.

Power to Direct Judgment in Lower Court.—A party litigant has a substantial right in a verdict obtained in his favor and where one has been rendered on issues which are determinative, and in so far as such verdict is to be considered as part of the judgment of the court, and where no appeal has been taken from such part of the judgment, the court, on its own motion, may remand the cause, with proper instructions, to the inferior court for the purpose of determining the cause of action. Davis v. Southern R. Co., 176 N. C. 707, 97 S. E. 468.

Separate Judgments for Separate Parties.—Where two parties have been joined as parties defendant in an action, and issues have been submitted to the court, not inconsistent with the pleadings and the facts proved, Voorhees v. Porter, 134 N. C. 591, 47 S. E. 31.

Any Relief Consistent with Pleadings.—On appeal a case is heard on the facts alleged in the pleadings, and where the parties have set forth such facts as entitled them to a verdict for their respective parties, and the court, in its discretion, may grant a new trial for newly-discovered evidence, or may modify the judgment, as the case may require. Brown v. Wilson, 174 N. C. 122, 93 S. E. 471.

The court in its discretion may order a new trial for newly-discovered evidence, or modify the judgment, as the case may require. Brown v. Wilson, 174 N. C. 122, 93 S. E. 471.

Where the parties respective counsel on appeal agreed to the rendition and amendment of the judgment, the cause will be remanded to the trial court, with directions to carry out the agreement. Stokes-Grimes Grocery Co. v. Hillyard, etc., R. Co., 160 N. C. 156, 76 S. E. 238.

Setting Aside of Erroneous Part Only.—Where a judgment has been rendered on issues which are determinative of the cause of action, the erroneous part thereof can be segregated, the court will only set aside the erroneous part. Newberry v. Seaboard, etc., R. Co., 160 N. C. 156, 76 S. E. 238.

Power.—Appropriation of a number of judgment defendants appeal from the judgment of the superior court, the Supreme Court, in affirming the judgment, will remand the case, that the judgment of affirmance may be enforced against all such defendants. Baxter v. Wilson, 95 N. C. 137.

But the Supreme Court will not determine the rights of persons represented in the trial, who do not appeal. Van Dyke v. Aetna Life Ins. Co., 173 N. C. 700, 91 S. E. 600.

Same.—To Introduce New Evidence.—After appeal, the court on appeal may permit further proceedings, upon petition of the plaintiff, to enable him to take further proofs, upon terms. Springs v. Wilson, 17 N. C. 385.

Same.—When Necessary Party Absent.—Where it appears that a necessary party is missing from the case, or that an issue is not determinative of the cause of action, the court, on its own motion, may remand the cause, with orders for a new trial. Vaughan v. Davenport, 159 N. C. 199, 74 S. E. 927, modifying opinion on rehearing s. c., 159 N. C. 150, 72 S. E. 842.

When New Trial Granted.—When the judgment is not supported by the record (as where the record shows that there was no verdict), or is erroneous in holding the verdict unsatisfactory, or unsatisfactory verdict, a new trial must be granted. McCanless v. Fitchurch, 98 N. C. 358, 363, 4 S. E. 359. Where an appeal on a former judgment has been allowed, the Supreme Court may, in its discretion order a new trial and direct further proceedings in lower court. Williams v. Kearney, 177 N. C. 591, 98 S. E. 705.

Technical, Formal, or Trivial Defects.—The Supreme Court will not grant a new trial except to subserve the real ends of substantial justice, and unless there is a probability of benefit to the complainant. Cauble v. Southern Exp. Co., 182 N. C. 448, 100 S. E. 267.

To Amend Verdict, Findings or Judgment.—The Supreme Court will not render a case, so that there may be a fuller finding of facts by the trial judge, in order that the appeal may be more intelligently considered. Gulf Refin. Co. v. McKernan, 178 N. C. 83, 100 S. E. 121.

Emoluments.—On appeal an emolument in a cause may be remanded for a special finding as to the right to costs. Smith v. Smith, 108 N. C. 365, 12 S. E. 1045, 13 S. E. 113.

To Find Additional Facts.—Where the pleadings and affidavits are sufficient to enable the lower court to sustain the judgment in a cause, so that there may be a fuller finding of facts by the trial judge, the cause may be remanded for a special finding as to the right to costs. Smith v. Smith, 108 N. C. 365, 12 S. E. 1045, 13 S. E. 113.

In a proceeding before a township board of supervisors to lay out a cartway, where an appeal was taken to the county board of supervisors on the ground of no legal right to make a final assessment against the plaintiff, and amended the petition to one for the laying out of a public road, the Supreme Court on appeal will not dismiss the case, but will direct the superior court to strike out the void order and proceed therunder and to proceed according to law. Holmes v. Bullock, 178 N. C. 376, 100 S. E. 530.

A necessary finding in an action to recover money from an express company, alleged to have been lost from a valise which had been intrusted to the defendant for shipment, that the money was taken while the valise was in the defendant's care or control, and such finding being omitted from an agreed case submitted to the superior court, it is remanded so that the omission may be supplied. Selby v. Southern Exp. Co., 184 N. C. 363, 79 S. E. 261.

Plaintiff Entitled to Judgment against Sureties on Undertaking.—Upon the affirmation by the Supreme Court of a judgment of the superior court, in favor of the plaintiff, he is entitled, upon motion, to judgment against the sureties upon an undertaking to stay execution pending the appeal, and such affirmation is conclusive of the liability of the sureties. Oakley v. Van Noorden, 100 N. C. 287, 5 S. E. 1.

§ 1-298. Procedure after determination of appeal.—In civil cases, at the first term of the superior court after a certificate of the determination of an appeal is received, if the judgment is affirmed the court below shall direct the execution thereof to proceed, and if the judgment is modified, shall direct its modification and performance. If a new trial is ordered the cause shall be tendered against the party cast, and remain in the case to the court below, is without jurisdiction to make any orders therein. Seaboard Air Line R. Co. v. Horton, 176 N. C. 115, 96 S. E. 954; Davis v. Southern R. Co., 176 N. C. 185, 96 S. E. 5.

Jurisdiction of Appellate Court after Remand.—The Supreme Court, having affirmed or reversed a cause, so that there may be a case to the court below, is without jurisdiction to make any orders therein. Seaboard Air Line R. Co. v. Horton, 176 N. C. 115, 96 S. E. 954; Davis v. Southern R. Co., 176 N. C. 185, 96 S. E. 5.

Jurisdiction of Lower Court after Affirmation.—After a judgment of a subordinate court imposing a punishment for contempt for disobedience of its order has been affirmed by the Supreme Court it becomes final, and the court below in conformity with the certificate from the Supreme Court, shall direct the execution to proceed and not by motion in the cause at a subsequent term of the trial court. Phillips v. Ray, 190 N. C. 132, 129 S. E. 177.

§ 1-298. Appeal from justice heard de novo; judgment by default; appeal dismissed.—When an appeal is taken from the judgment of a justice of the peace to a superior court, it shall be therein reheard, on the original papers, and no new trial shall be granted, unless the judgment is by exception and appeal, and not by motion in the cause at a subsequent term of the trial court. Phillips v. Ray, 190 N. C. 132, 129 S. E. 177.

Pro Forma Order.—An order "that execution of said judgment do proceed" was pro forma under this section. North Carolina R. Co. v. Story, 193 N. C. 362, 366, 137 S. E. 166.

§ 1-298. As to manner of taking appeal, see § 7-179. As to effect of appeal, see § 7-178.

I. EDITOR'S NOTE.

The plain purpose of the legislature, as manifested in this section, was to expedite the disposition of appeals from the courts of justices of the peace by providing that in such cases they should stand for trial de novo on the dockets of the superior courts at the first term after the appeal should be taken; that if both parties should appear, judgment should be rendered on the issues raised in the trial before the justice, and that where the defendants should make default the judgment in cases of convictions of offenses against the public peace should be by default and inquired "to be executed forthwith." This section was subsequently amended (Laws of 1889, ch. 443) so that where the party appealing should fail to cause his appeal to be docketed before the next term of the superior court, the judgment appealed from may be vacated, and a trial de novo had in the superior court. But, in case an appeal is taken before the justice has reached the decision of the action, the superior court acquires no jurisdiction over the same by virtue of the appeal. Lower Creek Drainage Com'ts v. Sparks, 179 N. C. 526, 16 S. E. 161.

Derivative Jurisdiction.—The jurisdiction of the superior court on appeals from a justice of the peace is entirely derivative, so that, if the justice had no jurisdiction in an action as it was before him, the superior court can derive no jurisdiction from it. Chas. v. Fich, 137 N. C. 594, 71 S. E. 442; McMaurin v. McIntyre, 167 N. C. 350, 83 S. E. 657. Where a justice did not have jurisdiction of a party, the superior court cannot obtain it on an appeal from the justice, by ordering a summons to issue to bring the party before it. Durham Fertilizer Co. v. Marshburn, 125 N. C. 506, 34 S. E. 672.

Jurisdiction Can Not Be Conferred by Consent.—Where the superior court acquired no jurisdiction of a case on appeal from a justice's court without jurisdiction, the parties cannot confer jurisdiction upon the superior court by consent. Love v. Hufines, 151 N. C. 378, 66 S. E. 304.

Plaintiff Must Prove Case.—As on appeal from a justice on the whole case must be tried de novo in the superior court, the plaintiff, who has answered, and raised a material issue, does not relieve plaintiff from the necessity of establishing his cause of action, and it is error, where the action is upon a bond, to give the appeal the effect of a dismissal. Barnes v. Southern R. Co., 133 N. C. 130, 45 S. E. 531.

Appeal Waives Objections to Proceedings before Justice. —Where a party appealed from the judgment of a magistrate to the superior court, and a trial was had by jury, the matter being gone through with de novo, the defects in the proceedings before the magistrate are not material, as they are vacated by the appeal. Kearnv v. Jeffreys, 30 N. C. 56.

Where it did not appear in the summons, and there was no complaint that the amount sued for was over the jurisdictional amount limited to justice courts, the objection as to jurisdiction was not waived by the appeal. Cramer v. Marsha, 122 N. C. 563, 29 S. E. 836.

Trial De Novo.—On appeal from a judgment of a justice the court of a justice does not proceed according to the course of common law, and reviewable. McDonald v. Ingram, 124 N. C. 216, 29 S. E. 671. Where a Justice did not have jurisdiction of an action in his court, the judgment can not be reviewed; but, where a justice does not have jurisdiction of an action in his court, the superior court should only have dismissed the appeal. Phelps v. Worthington, 92 N. C. 270, 271.

Power to Allow New or Amended Pleadings.—Upon an appeal from a justice to the superior court, the superior court can not allow or deny improperly, the complaining party may appeal to the superior court. White v. American Acci. Co., 155 N. C. 581, 103 S. E. 142.

IV. POWER OF SUPERIOR COURT ON APPEAL.

Limiting Trial to Particular Issues.—The Superior Court may limit the trial on appeal to particular issues, where there is no evidence to support those excluded. Smith v. Newberry, 136 N. C. 435, 48 S. E. 839.

Incidental Questions.—An appeal from a court of a justice of the peace comprehend in its scope a new trial of the whole subject matter of the action, and any determination by the justice of facts not raised therein, though not directly appealed from, is, when relevant and necessary, to be considered and determined by the superior court. White v. American Peanut Co., 165 N. C. 132, 51 S. E. 134.

Amount Claimed Limited to Jurisdictional Amount of Justice's Court.—Where the Superior Court acquires jurisdiction on appeal from justice's court upon law and fact, the trial proceed in the superior court on the complaint, and not on the increased amount, and the Superior Court should only have dismissed the appeal. Meeneley v. Craven, 86 N. C. 564. See, as to applicability of section, Cowles v. Hayes, 67 N. C. 128.

May Disregard Finding of Facts.—On appeal to the Superior Court from an order of a justice denying a motion to open a default judgment the court may disregard the justice's finding of fact, and proceed to hear the matter anew. Turner v. Thrashing Mach. Co., 133 N. C. 381, 45 S. E. 781.

Same.—But Not in Summary Proceedings.—Where on a trial in summary proceedings before a justice, there is evidence to support the judgment of a justice, the Superior Court may disregard the justice's finding of fact, and proceed to hear the matter anew. Mason v. American Acci. Co., 109 N. C. 196, 13 S. E. 739.

Power to Allow New or Amended Pleadings.—Upon an appeal in a civil action from the court of a justice of the peace to the Superior Court, the matter has power to amend the pleadings and allow new pleas or matters of de-

Same—Discretion of Court.—The trial on appeal in the superior court from a justice's judgment is de novo, and the judge may, in his discretion, allow pleadings to be filed. Teal v. Templeton, 149 N. C. 32, 63 S. E. 737.

Same—Plea of Statute of Limitations.—The plea of the statute of limitations in an appeal before a justice cannot be set up on appeal in the superior court without leave. Amendment of pleadings in such case is matter of discretion. Foston v. Rewis, 107 N. C. 297, 18 S. E. 16.

Same—Error in Amount of Summons.—Where a summons issued by a justice failed to show the amount claimed, the insertion of such amount was properly permitted upon appeal to the superior court, and such amendment was retrospective. McPhail Bros. v. Johnson, 115 N. C. 298, 20 S. E. 373.

Same—Error in Initials of Party.—Error in one of the initials of defendant's name in a justice's summons, if the right man is served, and is not misled, does not vitiate judgment by default, and may be amended on an appeal. Clawson v. Wolfe, 77 N. C. 4.

May Allow Counterclaim.—The superior court may on appeal from a justice's court allow the defendant to set up a counterclaim not urged in justice court. Norfolk, etc., R. Co. v. Johnson, 171 N. C. 176, 88 S. E. 144. See, also, Thomas v. Simpson, 80 N. C. 4.

Same—Refusal to Allow Counterclaim.—Where it appeared that a defendant made no defense to the action, but suffered judgment by default, and may be amended on an appeal. Poston v. Rose, 87 N. C. 279.

Court Cannot Set Aside Judgment and Docket Case.—Where a judgment was obtained before a justice of the peace and docketed in the office of the Superior Court Clerk, the court has no power to set aside such a judgment and docket the cause upon the civil issue docket. Ledbetter v. Osborne, 66 N. C. 979.

May Allow Counterclaim.—Under this section the justice's court, on appeal from justice's judgment is authorized to bring in an additional defendant, though less than $200 might be recoverable against such defendant. Selph v. Southern R. Co., 174 N. C. 449, 93 S. E. 160.

Privilege of Appellee Only.—The power given by this section to the appellee to docket a case at the first term of the superior court, if the appellant does not, and to have the judgment entered, is independent of the rule, and the appellee can draw no argument against an appeal from his failure to use it. Davenport v. Grissom, 113 N. C. 38, 39, 18 S. E. 78.

Dismissal for Failure to Docket.—Effect of Failure to Docket in Time.—An appeal from justice court not docketed at the first term to which it was returnable is properly dismissed. Tedder v. Deston, 169 N. C. 479, 83 S. E. 466; Pelzl v. Bailey, 157 N. C. 164, 72 S. E. 978.

If appellant fails to docket his appeal by the next succeeding term of the superior court, the appellee may have the case placed on docket, and have the judgment affirmed. Simonds v.有限责任 Co., 55 N. C. 35, 83 S. E. 353.

Under this section the judgment of affirmation is, in substance, equivalent to a judgment dismissing the action, and the appellate court is not required to look into the record for the purpose of passing upon the merits of the exceptions. Blair v. Coskley, 156 N. C. 405, 84 S. E. 804.

Failure to Pay Clerk's Fees.—When the justice of the peace was paid for transcript of appeal, made it out the day of the trial and handed it to the clerk of the superior court, but the appellant neither tendered nor paid the clerk his fees nor requested that it be docketed, a motion to dismiss must be granted. Lentz v. Hinson, 166 N. C. 31, 59 S. E. 144; Ballard v. Gay, 108 N. C. 544, 13 S. E. 207.

Dismissal for Failure to Docket Not Reviewable.—The action of the superior court is not reviewable in allowing the motion of the appellee, from a judgment rendered in a court of the Justice of the Peace, to docket and dismiss an appeal when the appellant had neither paid the Clerk's fees nor tendered to docket the appeal. McClintock v. Life Ins. Co., 149 N. C. 35, 32 S. E. 775.

When Appeal Not Dismissed.—Where an appellant pays the fees for the return and docketing of an appeal from a justice's court, he may not be dismissed for the failure of the clerk of the superior court to docket the same. Johnson v. Andrews, 132 N. C. 376, 43 S. E. 926.

When, on appeal from a justice of the peace, the cause was remanded to the lower court to cause the fees for the service of process to be tendered or paid to the clerk, but the clerk did not demand his fees or notify the appellant that the appeal would not be docketed unless they were paid, it was no error for the judge to allow the appeal to be docketed two terms after the regular time, and as soon as the appellant was notified that this had not been done. West v. Reynolds, 94 N. C. 543.

Waiver of Right to Object to Docket in Time.—Where defendant failed to see that his appeal from justice's court was docketed in the office of the Superior Court Clerk, but appeal was on docket 15 years without notice from plaintiff that he intended to take advantage of irregularity, it was held that plaintiff waived his right to such objection. Poston v. Rose, 87 N. C. 279.

§ 1-300. Appeal from justice docketed for trial de novo.—When the return is made from the justice's court the clerk of the appellate court shall docket the case on his trial docket for a new trial of the whole matter at the ensuing term of said court. (Rev., s. 608; Code, s. 880; C. C. P., s. 539; 1870-7, c. 251, s. 8; C. S. 661.)

§ 1-300. Appeal from justice docketed for trial de novo.—When the return is made from the justice's court the clerk of the appellate court shall docket the case on his trial docket for a new trial of the whole matter at the ensuing term of said court. (Rev., s. 608; Code, s. 880; C. C. P., s. 539; 1870-7, c. 251, s. 8; C. S. 661.)
Docketed at Next Ensuing Term.—An appeal from the court of a justice of the peace should be docketed at the next ensuing term of the superior court if the judgment appealed from has been rendered more than ten days before the expiration of the ten days allowed for service of notice of appeal. Peltz v. Bailey, 157 N. C. 166, 72 S. E. 978; Southern Pants Co. v. Smith, 125 N. C. 388, 34 S. E. 595.

Same.—Judge Cannot Allow Docketing Later.—Under this section an appeal from justice court must be docketed at that term of the superior court which begins more than ten days after judgment in justice court, and the superior court has no right to dispense with such requirement. Helsabeck v. Grubbs, 171 N. C. 37, 88 S. E. 473; Barnes v. Saleby, 177 N. C. 256, 98 S. E. 708. Formerly the rule was different. See State v. Edwards, 110 N. C. 511, 14 S. E. 741.

Same.—Whether Civil or Criminal.—The phrase "next term," within rule requiring appeals from justice's court taken after that time, in the absence of indulgence or extension of time. Peltz v. Bailey, 157 N. C. 166, 72 S. E. 978; Southern Pants Co. v. Smith, 125 N. C. 388, 34 S. E. 595.

An appeal from the action of the county commissioners in altering a public road should be taken to the next term of the superior court, though it was a criminal term. Blair v. N. C. State Hwy. Bd., 186 N. C. 50, 166 S. E. 884.

Same.—Judge Cannot Allow Docketing Later.—Under this section an appeal from justice court must be tried at that term of the superior court which begins more than ten days after judgment in justice court, and the superior court has no right to dispense with such requirement. Helsabeck v. Grubbs, 171 N. C. 37, 88 S. E. 473; Barnes v. Saleby, 177 N. C. 256, 98 S. E. 708. Formerly the rule was different. See West v. Reynolds, 94 N. C. 333.

When Judge Does Not Attend Next Term.—When the judge does not attend the next term of court at which an appeal from a judgment of a justice of the peace should have been docketed, the appellant should see that the appeal is docketed at the next term, and if the appeal is admitted, has the same effect as an affirmation of a judgment thereof under section 1-299. McClintock v. Lile Jr., 149 N. C. 33, 62 S. E. 729.

V. Equity Proceedings.

Docketed at Next Ensuing Term.—An appeal from an order granting or denying a motion to dismiss de novo in the Superior Court, under this section, and when the account sued on is admitted in the former court, it is discretionary with the trial judge to permit the plea of the statute of limitations which is necessary to defendant's right to set it up. Fochtman v. Greer, 194 N. C. 674, 140 S. E. 442.

Effect of Dismissal.—The dismissal of an appeal from a court of a justice of the peace may result in the judgment of the justice court being docketed by the appellant at the term of the superior court prescribed by this section, has the same effect as an affirmation of a judgment thereof under section 1-299. McClintock v. Lile Jr., 149 N. C. 33, 62 S. E. 729.

§ 1-301. Plaintiff's cost bond on appeal from justice.—When a defendant appeals from the judgment of a justice of the peace to the superior court, or when the judgment of the justice is removed by the defendant, by recordarri or otherwise, to a superior court, the court having cognizance of the appeal or recordarri may, upon sufficient cause shown by affidavit, compel the plaintiff to give an undertaking, with sufficient surety, for payment of the costs of the suit, in the event of his failing to prosecute the same with effect. (Rev., s. 606; Code, s. 564; R. C. c. 31, s. 104; 1831, c. 29; C. S. 662.)

Cross References.—As to costs on appeal, see § 6-33 and annotations thereunder. As to undertaking to stay execution, see § 6-33.

Discretion of Judge as to Requiring of Security.—In an appeal by a defendant to the superior court from a judgment of a justice of the peace, it lies within the discretion of the presiding judge there to require the plaintiff to give security for the further prosecution of the suit, or not. Smith v. Richmond, etc., R. Co., 72 N. C. 62.

SUBCHAPTER X. EXECUTION.

Art. 28. Execution.

§ 1-302. Judgment enforced by execution.—Where a judgment requires the payment of money or the delivery of real or personal property it may be enforced in those respects by execution, as provided in this article. Where it requires the performance of any other act a certified copy of the judgment may be served upon the party against whom it is given, or upon the person or officer who is required thereby or by law to obey the same, and his obedience thereto enforced. If he refuses, he may be punished by the court as for contempt. (Rev., s. 615; Code, s. 444; C. C. P., s. 247; C. S. 603.)

Cross Reference.—As to provisions for punishment for contempt generally, see § 1-301.

In General.—An execution is a writ, issuing from a court, and is an authority to the sheriff or other officer to do what it commands. Wayman v. Southard, 10 Wheat. 1, 33 L. Ed. 251.

Every execution presupposes a judgment, and the right to issue the one implies the existence of the other. Sheppard v. Bland, 87 N. C. 163. The general rule is that the power to issue an execution is a necessary consequence to the power to render judgment. Bank v. Halstead, 10 Wheat. 51, 64, 6 L. Ed. 264.

A judgment creditor is entitled to have his judgment satisfied, if need be, by a sale of his debtor's property, except such parts thereof as may be exempt from execution. The ordinary process to enforce such a judgment is of execution against the property of the debtor, and this process the creditor may have from time to time while the judgment continues in force, until it shall be discharged. Vogelahn v. Smith, 102 N. C. 264, 13 S. E. 552.

Where the judgment of a judgment debtor is subjected to a specific lien for its payment, the judgment creditor may... proceed against the debtor in personam, may compel payment by proceeding in rem, or pursue both remedies at the Sealing Execution Issued to Another County.—Sealing is necessary to the validity of all executions issued to other counties, and a sealing under an unsealed writ, does not render it valid. Seawell v. Bank, 14 N. C. 279; Finley v. Smith, 15 N. C. 95; Shackelford v. McRea, 10 N. C. 226; Freeman v. Lewis, 27 N. C. 91; Taylor v. Taylor, 81 N. C. 116. Without a seal it confers no power on the sheriff, and his acting under it can not give it validity. Shackelford v. McRea, 30 N. C. 226; Shepherd v. Lane, 13 N. C. 148.

§ 1-304. Against married woman.—An execution may issue against a married woman, and it must direct the levy and collection of the amount of the judgment against her from her separate property, and not otherwise. (Rev., s. 618; Code, s. 442; C. C. P., s. 258; C. S. 664.)

Effect of the Restriction.—The provision of this section that the execution shall be levied upon her separate property can give no effect other than to exempt what she holds ex jure mariti, i. e., her contingent right of dower. There is nothing else to which the restriction could possibly apply. Harvey v. Johnson, 133 N. C. 155, 45 S. E. 644. See McLeod v. Williams, 122 N. C. 451, 30 S. E. 129.

Execution on All Separate Property Except Exemptions.—Liability in the case of personal property is determined by the law of the state where the property actually is, regardless of the domicile of the owner. Hervey v. R. I. Loan. & Trust Co., 17 R. I. 283, 28 L. Ed. 1003.

Debtor's Funds in Hands of Third Person.—When it appears, in proceedings supplementary to execution, that a third person has funds of the defendant available for the judgment, in order to prevent the same from being disposed of by making an execution against those third persons to dispose of the fund, Boseman v. McGill, 184 N. C. 215, 114 S. E. 10. As to garnishment, see §§ 1-440 et seq., and the notes thereto.

Application of Restriction as to Property Charged with Debt.—This section does not restrict the issue of execution against "the property she had charged with the debt." The words, "her separate property," evidently mean that an execution against her cannot be collected, as formerly, out of the husband, though he is still a necessary party to the execution. Harvey v. Johnson, 133 N. C. 155, 45 S. E. 644. See also, Spencer v. Hawkins, 39 N. C. 288.

A deputy clerk has power to issue execution in the name of the clerk. Miller v. Miller, 89 N. C. 638. Section 1-305 by Ordinance Section 305—In 1866 a temporary ordinance entitled "an ordinance to change the jurisdiction of the courts" forbade any execution to be issued within the term of 1867 without the permission of the court. This for the time being repealed the requirement making it a duty of the clerk to issue execution of his own motion within six weeks. And consequently under this the decisions of the Supreme Court that a writ of execution is not issued, within the meaning of this section, by the clerk of his own motion within six weeks. And consequently under this section a writ of execution issued prior to March 15, 1867, should not be affected.

§ 1-306. Enforcement as of course.—The party in whose favor judgment is given, and in case of his death, his personal representatives duly appointed, may at any time after the entry of judgment proceed to enforce it by execution, as provided in this article; Provided, however, that no execution upon any judgment which requires the payment of money or the recovery of personal property may be issued at any time after ten years from the date of the rendition thereof; but this proviso shall not apply to any execution issued solely for the purpose of enforcing the lien of a judgment upon any homestead, which has or shall hereafter be allotted within the ten years from the date of rendition of judgment, or any judgment directed to the satisfaction of almory. (Rev., s. 619; Code, s. 437; C. C. P., s. 255; 1927, c. 24; 1935, c. 98; C. S. 667.)

Editor's Note.—The amendment of 1935 added the proviso relating to time for issuing execution on judgments, and also provided that the validity or force of any execution issued prior to March 15, 1935, should not be affected. Preserving validity of judgment by successive executions. Where under this section the vitality of the judgment has been preserved by the issuance of executions in each successive period of three years (that being the limitation prior to 1935 amendment) after its rendition, the statutory bar of ten years which is the time prescribed for bringing actions on judgments, does not prevent an execution issued, out of time, under the limitation of this section, from changing the character of a personal property thereunder, after the expiration of the limited period. Williams v. Mullis, 87 N. C. 159. 160.

Sec. 1-307. Issued from and returned to court of rendition.—Executions and other process for the enforcement of judgments may issue only from the court in which the judgment for the enforcement of the execution or other final process was rendered; and the returns of executions or other final process shall be made to the court of the county from which it issued. (Rev., s. 623; Code, s. 444; 1871-5, c. 74; 1881, c. 75; C. S. 669.)

Cross Reference.—As to penalty for false return by sheriff, see section 162-14.

Return to Another County not Authorized. Since the passage of the act of 1870-71, ch. 42, the clerk of the superior court of any county may not render the execution or other process issued by him returnable in the superior court of another. Howerton v. Tate, 66 N. C. 431.

Sec. 1-308. To what counties issued.—When the execution is against the property of the judgment debtor it may be issued to the sheriff of any county where the judgment is docketed. No execution may issue from the superior court of any county upon a judgment until it is docketed in that county. When it requires the delivery of real or personal property it must be issued to the sheriff of the county where the property, or some part thereof, is situated. Executions may be issued at the same time to different counties. (Rev., s. 622; Code, s. 443; C. C. P., s. 259; 1871-2, c. 74; 1881, c. 75; 1903, c. 412; C. S. 670.)

Editor's Note.—Formerly this section did not require as a condition that the issuance of the execution that the judgment be already docketed in such other county at the time the execution was issued. The execution and the transcript of judgment for docketing were allowed to be be

§ 1-309. Sale of land under execution.—Real property adjudged to be sold must be sold in the county where it lies, by the sheriff of the county or by a referee appointed by the court for that purpose; and upon the sheriff or referee must execute a conveyance to the purchaser, which conveyance shall be effectual to pass the rights and interests of the parties adjudged to be sold. (Rev., s. 629; Code, s. 443; C. C. P., s. 259; C. S. 671.)

Cross Reference.—As to provisions requiring the sheriff to execute a deed, see section 1-339.

Foreclosure Sales Not Affected.—The provisions of this section regarding judicial sales are intended to apply to proceedings in the nature of execution sales of property in the hands of others charged with the payment of the judgment, and have no application to foreclosure proceedings, which are left to be governed by the old equity practice.

Where a sheriff has levied on lands and goods, and gone out of office, a general venditioni may issue to the new sheriff, where the goods have been delivered over to him. Tarkin v. Alexander, 19 N.C. 87, explaining and reciting the cases of Holland v. Eastwood, 12 N.C. 157, and Sanderson v. Rogers, 14 N.C. 38, with those of Barden v. McKinne, 11 N.C. 279, and Seawell v. Bank, 14 N.C. 250, where they are considered.

Upset Bid—Setting Aside Sale.—An execution sale, when closed, is not subject to an upset bid—§ 1-326, 45-26 and 46-32 not being applicable—and, when regularly made, an execution sale is not to be set aside, except for some trick, artifice, fraud, oppression or undue advantage, which must be alleged and proved, with each case to be judged by its own facts. Weir v. Weir, 196 N.C. 265, 269, 145 S. E. 281.

§ 1-310. When dated and returnable.—Executions shall be dated as of the day on which they were issued, and shall be returnable to the court from which they were issued not less than forty nor more than ninety days from said date, and no executions against property shall issue until the end of the term during which judgment was rendered. (Rev., s. 624; Code, s. 449; 1903, c. 544; 1870-1, c. 42, s. 7; 1873-4, c. 7; 1897, c. 110; 1931, c. 172; C. S. 672.)

Editor's Note.—The amendment of 1927, (Pub. Laws, ch. 110) materially changed the provisions of this section. Formerly, in lieu of the present provision relative to the dating of the execution, the section had provided for the attestation thereof as of the day of the return of the day on which it was issued. Then the execution was returnable to the next term of the court beginning not less than forty days after the issuance thereof.

The Act substituted ninety days for sixty days in this section as formerly amended, and inserted the words “to the court from which they were issued” in the third and fourth lines.

Computation of First and Last Day.—In computing the number of days within which the writ of execution must be returned, the day of the issuance of execution must be included and the day of its return must be excluded. This is by analogy to the rule applied to the return of a process. Taylor v. Harris, 32 N.C. 25.

Necessity of Recovery of Judgment.—No execution can issue against the person of the defendant, even though the complaint alleges facts to justify an arrest, unless the plaintiff had been released from arrest upon his own recognizance. Thus in Stewart v. Bryan, 121 N. C. 46, 50, 28 S. E. 18, the court enjoining this doctrine, said: "It will not do to carry the doctrine of State ex rel. Peck v. Foote, under this section, to its extreme conclusion, and to hold that the complaint plaintiff— that, because there is an allegation in the com- plaint, this fact entitles the plaintiff to an execution against the body of the defendant, whether the plaintiff recovered a judgment or not. The position would be in effect to nullify the constitution.

Two Alternative Conditions Prerequisite.—There are two alternative conditions which, to entitle the plaintiff to the issuance of an execution against the defendant. They are: (a) a lawful arrest before judgment, or (b) a complaint averring such facts as would have justified an order for arrest.

Facts Must Enter into Judgment.—An execution against the person can issue only when the facts alleged entitling the plaintiff thereto have been passed upon and entered into the judgment. Doyle v. Bush, 171 N. C. 10, 66 S. E. 165.

Facts Pleading and Proved and Issue Determined.—In or- der to issue an execution against the person of the defendant in cases where, when it is permissible, the cause of arrest must be pleaded and proved, the issue affirmatively de- termined by the jury and rendered. Turlington v. Aman, 183 N. C. 555, 79 S. E. 1102.

In the Absence of Order for Arrest, or Complaint.—Where there is no order of arrest before judgment nor any complaint filed alleging such facts as would have justified such order, a defendant cannot be arrested after judgment unless an order of arrest against the person of defendant is passed upon under this section. Houston v. Walsh, 79 N. C. 36.

Motion before the Clerk—Appeal to Superior Court.—Where a defendant has not been arrested before judgment, if, after the death of the person so taken and execution. (Rev., s. 626; Code, s. 469; R. C., c. 1. Against property—no lien on_ personal Liability in Damages for Malicious Prosecution.—Where a trial court of competent jurisdiction has regularly de- termined that the plaintiff in the action had the right to arrest the defendant on personal execution, and accordingly caused the defendant to be taken into custody under this sec- tion, the plaintiff in said action is not liable in damages in defendant's subsequent action for malicious prosecu- tion, even though the verdict and finding of the jury or findings for plaintiff in the former suit is thereafter set aside or re- vered on appeal or other ruling in the orderly progress of the case. Overton v. Combs, 182 N. C. 4, 108 S. E. 357.

Alienation of Malice.—In an action to recover for mal- practice of defendant, execution against the person of the defendant may not issue in the absence of allegation and evi- dence of actual malice. Glinger v. Camp, 215 N. C. 340, 1 S. E. (2d) 870.

Discharge of Person Under Execution.—The person ar-rested may be discharged, after judgment and without pay- ment, only when the facts alleged entitling the plaintiff to an execution of $50. Foster v. Hyman, 197 N. C. 189, 148 S. E. 36.

Order for execution against the person of defendant upon return of the execution against his property, and that the plaintiff was injured thereby: Held, sufficient to sustain the jury's verdict that the injury was inflicted wilfully and wantonly, and an order for execution against the person of defendant which was secured is proper under this section and § 1-410. Foster v. Aman, 197 N. C. 189, 148 S. E. 36.

Liability in Damages for Malicious Prosecution.—Where a trial court of competent jurisdiction has regularly de- termined that the plaintiff in the action had the right to arrest the defendant on personal execution, and accordingly caused the defendant to be taken into custody under this sec- tion, the plaintiff in said action is not liable in damages in defendant's subsequent action for malicious prosecu- tion, even though the verdict and finding of the jury or findings for plaintiff in the former suit is thereafter set aside or re- vered on appeal or other ruling in the orderly progress of the case. Overton v. Combs, 182 N. C. 4, 108 S. E. 357.

Alienation of Malice.—In an action to recover for mal- practice of defendant, execution against the person of the defendant may not issue in the absence of allegation and evi- dence of actual malice. Glinger v. Camp, 215 N. C. 340, 1 S. E. (2d) 870.

Discharge of Person Under Execution.—The person ar- rested may be discharged, after judgment and without pay-ment, only when the facts alleged entitling the plaintiff to an execution of $50. Foster v. Hyman, 197 N. C. 189, 148 S. E. 36.

Order for execution against the person of defendant upon return of the execution against his property, and that the plaintiff was injured thereby: Held, sufficient to sustain the jury's verdict that the injury was inflicted wilfully and wantonly, and an order for execution against the person of defendant which was secured is proper under this section and § 1-410. Foster v. Aman, 197 N. C. 189, 148 S. E. 36.
ment first out of the personality, is solely for the debtor's benefit, and is designed to produce his personality his lands may be sold. McCoy v. Beard, 9 N. C. 377, 379.

Lien as of What Time against Pachers.—Under this section the lien of execution against the personal property of the defendant, if it be bona fide purchasers, does not date from the date of such execution, but from the time of levy thereunder. Weinsfeld v. McLean, 96 N. C. 248, 22 E. R. 55.

The lien of an execution against the realty dates from the time of the rendition of judgment, provided it is docketed. See section 1-214.

Satisfaction Without Levy.—A sale of real estate under an execution issued on a judgment, which is a lien thereon, is valid without a levy. All that is essential to a valid sale of real estate under execution is that the requirements of the statues be observed and that it be fully made known at the sale what property is being sold. Farror v. Houston, 100 N. C. 369, 6 S. E. 72.

2. Against property in hands of personal representative.—If it is against real or personal property in the hands of personal representatives, heirs, devisees, legatees, tenants of real property or trustees it shall require the officer to satisfy the judgment out of such property.

3. Against the person.—If it is against the person of the judgment debtor, it shall require the officer to arrest him, and commit him to the jail of the county until he pays the judgment or is discharged according to law.

When Irregular.—An execution is irregular if it does not run in the name of the state and convey its authority to the officers to arrest the defendant. Houston v. Walsh, 79 N. C. 371.

Should Command the Sheriff.—Executions issued under this section should command the sheriff to arrest the defendant and commit him to the jail of the county from which it issued, until he shall pay the judgment or be discharged according to law. Kinney v. Laughenour, 97 N. C. 325, 2 S. E. 43.

4. For delivery of specific property.—If it is for delivery of the possession of real or personal property, it shall require the officer to deliver the possession of the same, particularly describing it, to the party entitled thereto, and may at the same time require the officer to satisfy the judgment, if the judgment is recovered by the same judgment, out of the personal property of the party against whom it was rendered, and the value of the property for which the judgment was recovered, to be specified therein, if a delivery cannot be had; and if sufficient personal property cannot be found, then out of the real property belonging to him on the day when the judgment was docketed, or at any time thereafter, and in that respect is deemed an execution against property.

5. For purchase money of land.—If the answer in an action for recovery of a debt contracted for the purchase of land does not deny, or if the jury finds, that the debt was so contracted, it is the duty of the court to have embodied in the judgment that the debt sued on was contracted for the purchase money of the land, describing it briefly; and it is also the duty of the clerk to set forth in the execution that the said debt was contracted for the purchase of the land, the description of which must be set out briefly as in the complaint. (Rev., s. 627; Code, ss. 234-236, 448; C. C. P., s. 261; 1863-9, c. 348; 1870, c. 217; 1875, § 1-315.)

Recital in Judgment Conclusive.—If the judgment of the court recites the fact that the debt was contracted for the purchase of land, as prescribed by this clause of the section, such recital is conclusive as between the parties to the record. Durham v. Wilson, 104 N. C. 595, 10 S. E. 681.

Reason of Recital as to Homestead Interest.—The homestead interest of the defendant is subject to execution upon a judgment recovered for the purchase money of such land sold. Toms v. Fite, 93 N. C. 274. Hence the requirement that it shall be set forth in the judgment and executed on, and claimed by the sheriff for the purchase money of such land, so that the sheriff may sell the land without regard to the homestead. Id.

Same.—Sale Not Void.—Land purchased but not yet paid for may not be exempt from the execution for the purchase money of such land. And the execution sale under which it is sold is valid even though there was no evidence of record that the judgment was for the purchase money of the land. Durham v. Bostick, 22 N. C. 333.

§ 1-314. Variance between judgment and execution.—When property has been sold by an officer by virtue of an execution or other process commanding sale, no variance from the judgment for the purchase money of such land. And the execution sale under which it is sold is valid even though there was no evidence of record that the judgment was for the purchase money of the land. Durham v. Bostick, 22 N. C. 333.

§ 1-315. Property liable to sale under execution. —The property of the judgment debtor, not exempted from sale under the constitution and laws of this state, may be levied on and sold under execution as hereinafter prescribed:

1. Goods, chattels, and real property belonging to him.

Common Law, and Historical Legislation.—For an excellent exposition of the historical development of legislation by which the lands of debtors became subject to execution, and changing the common law rule, see Jones v. Edmonds, 7 N. C. 415.

Public Property and Institutions.—Property held for necessary public uses and purposes, such as court-houses, jails, schoolhouses, etc., cannot be sold under execution. Montrose v. Roach, 95 N. C. 106, 110, the docket showed a judgment in favor of Hinton against a bond for $28; while the execution recited also other judgments and called for a larger sum than $28. It was held that the irregularity was cured by this section.

Technical Variance Immaterial.—Where a judgment was rendered against H for $112.20 and against other defendants, separately mentioned, for various amounts and an execution issued and issued recorded on the 16th of June for $112.20, and commanding the sheriff to satisfy it out of H's property, it was held, that the execution sufficiently informed to the judgment and the variance was technical and immaterial. Marshall v. Lashlie, 122 N. C. 227, 29 S. E. 371.

§ 1-315. Property liable to sale under execution. —The property of the judgment debtor, not exempted from sale under the constitution and laws of this state, may be levied on and sold under execution as hereinafter prescribed:

1. Goods, chattels, and real property belonging to him.

Common Law, and Historical Legislation.—For an excellent exposition of the historical development of legislation by which the lands of debtors became subject to execution, see Jones v. Edmonds, 7 N. C. 415.

Public Property and Institutions.—Property held for necessary public uses and purposes, such as court-houses, jails, schoolhouses, etc., cannot be sold under execution. Morgan v. Morgan, 118 N. C. 392, 56 S. E. 583; Gooch v. Gregory, 65 N. C. 142; Virginia v. Commissioner, 118 N. C. 636, 24 S. E. 425.

Life Estate.—Where a life estate is devised to the testator or to another, he descends to the title of the life tenant in the event a creditor should bring action against him for a debt: Held, the condition upon which the title is to be held is void and his title: Id.

Reason of Recital as to Homestead Interest.—The homestead interest of the defendant is subject to execution upon a judgment recovered for the purchase money of such land sold. Toms v. Fite, 93 N. C. 274. Hence the requirement that it shall be set forth in the judgment and executed on, and claimed by the sheriff for the purchase money of such land, so that the sheriff may sell the land without regard to the homestead. Id.

Same.—Sale Not Void.—Land purchased but not yet paid for may not be exempt from the execution for the purchase money of such land. And the execution sale under which it is sold is valid even though there was no evidence of record that the judgment was for the purchase money of the land. Durham v. Bostick, 22 N. C. 333.

§ 1-314. Variance between judgment and execution.—When property has been sold by an officer by virtue of an execution or other process commanding sale, no variance from the judgment for the purchase money of such land. And the execution sale under which it is sold is valid even though there was no evidence of record that the judgment was for the purchase money of the land. Durham v. Bostick, 22 N. C. 333.
§ 1-316. Sale of trust estates; purchaser's title.

Upon the sale under execution of trust estates whereof the judgment debtor is beneficiary the sheriff shall execute a deed to the purchaser, and the purchaser thereunder shall hold and enjoy the same freed and discharged from all encumbrances of the trustee. (Rev., s. 1-317.)

§ 1-317. Sheriff's deed on sale of equity of redemption.—The sheriff selling equitable and legal rights of redemption shall set forth in the forthcoming bond given to secure possession of property the whole beneficial estate in the debtor, and nothas a substitute for the property, as a condition requires its return to the sheriff. Amis v. Smith, 16 Pet. 303, 313, 10 L. Ed. 299, 310. 10 L. Ed. 308.

On the giving of a forthcoming bond, the property is placed in the possession of the claimant; his custody is substituted for the custody of the sheriff, but the property is not withdrawn from the custody of the law. The property in the hands of the claimant, under the bond for its delivery, is as free from the reach of other process as it would be in the hands of the sheriff. Hagan v. Lucas, 10 Pet. 471, 476, 9 L. Ed. 151.

According to the law of Indiana, the giving of the bond does not release the lien upon the property; the property, in contemplation of law, remains in possession of the officer. Krippendorf v. Hyde, 110 U. S. 276, 4 S. Ct. 27. The property held under a forthcoming bond, on being recovered, is to be put into the possession of the new claimant. Id.

Failure to Deliver Property.—On failure to deliver property held under a forthcoming bond, the bond, on being returned into the clerk's office, will have the effect of a judgment. Gwin v. Breedlove, 2 How. 29, 36, 11 L. Ed. 167.

Estopped to Deny.—A person by executing a forthcoming bond thereby recognizes and is estopped to deny a claim and the validity of a judgment against him rendered upon such claim; the execution of the bond is tantamount to a confession of judgment for the demand. Sample v. Barnes, 14 How. 70, 75, 14 L. Ed. 330. Miller v. Cribb, 14 How. 75, 14 L. Ed. 330.

Judgment Reversed.—If the original judgment be reversed, by the superior court, the forthcoming bond follows of course. Bartow v. Petit, 7 Cranch 288, 3 L. Ed. 468.

The obligation of a bond for the forthcoming of property is only that the property shall be delivered to the officer at the time designated, and not that the execution shall be satisfied. Gray v. Bowlus, 18 N. C. 437.

§ 1-321. Entry of returns on judgment docket; penalty.—When an execution is returned, the return of the sheriff or other officer must be noted by the clerk on the judgment docket; and when it is returned wholly or partially satisfied, it is the duty of the clerk of the court to which it is returned to send a copy of such last mentioned return, under his hand, to the clerk of the superior court of each county in which such judgment is docketed, who must note such copy in his judgment docket, opposite the judgment, and file the copy with the transcript of the docket of the judgment in his office. A clerk failing to send a copy of the payments on the execution or judgment to the clerks of the superior court of the counties wherein a transcript of the judgment has been docketed, and a clerk failing to note said payment on the judgment docket of his court, shall, on motion, be fined one hundred dollars nis, and the judgment shall be made absolute upon notice to show cause at the succeeding term of the superior court of his county. (Rev., ss. 637, 638; Code, ss. 455; 1871-2, c. 74, s. 2; 1873-4, c. 75; C. S. 684.)

Execution Returned Becomes Part of Record.—An execution returned into court with an entry of satisfaction endorsed, in whole or in part, extinguishes so much of the debt and becomes a part of the record in the case. Walters v. Moore, 50 N. C. 41.

§ 1-322. Cost of keeping livestock; officer's account.—The court or justice shall make a reasonable allowance to officers for keeping and maintaining horses, cattle, hogs, or sheep, and all other property taken into their custody under legal process, the keeping of which is chargeable to them; and this allowance may be retained by the officers out of the sales of the property, in preference to the satisfaction of the process under which the property was seized or sold. The officer must make out his account and, if required, give the debtor or his agent a copy of it, signed by his own hand, and must return the account with the execution or other process, under which the property has been seized or sold, to the officer authorized to make the sale, and the sale shall be made in the same manner, and upon the same conditions, as if the former sale had not been made within that time. Any other officer who has levied upon the property may keep and sell it. (Rev., ss. 637, 638; Code, ss. 455, 467; R. C., ss. 1807, c. 731; C. S. 684.)

§ 1-323. Purchaser of defective title; remedy against defendant.—Where real or personal property is sold on any execution or decree, by any officer authorized to make the sale, and the sale is made legally and in good faith, and the property did not belong to the person against whose estate the execution or decree was issued, by reason of which the purchaser has been deprived of the property, or been compelled to pay damages in lieu thereof to the owner, the purchaser, his executors or administrators, may sue the person against whom such execution or decree was issued, or the person legally representing him, in a civil action, and recover such sum as he may have paid for the property, with interest from the time of payment; but the property, if personal, must be present at the sale and actually delivered to the purchaser. (Rev., s. 639; Code, s. 458; K. C. v. 43, s. 27; 1807, c. 729; C. S. 653.)

Editor's Note.—The remedy provided by this section is available only in cases where the judgment debtor, whose property is sold under the execution, has no title at all to the property sold. If the judgment debtor has any title at all, the equitable subrogation by his own real owner, is nonetheless satisfied, and the remedy of the creditor is under this section not upon the judgment, but against the judgment debtor for reimbursement. Halcombe v. Loudermilk, 48 N. C. 491, 493; Wall v. Brown, 47 N. C. 105.

1-324. Costs on execution paid to clerk; penalty.
—The sheriff or other officer must pay the costs on all executions which are satisfied in whole or in part, to the clerk of the court from which the execution issued, and to no other person, on the second day of the term of the court, and any such officer who neglects or refuses to pay the costs as aforesaid, and who is guilty of willful wrongdoing, must forfeit and pay forty dollars for the benefit of the party aggrieved, under the same rules that are provided by law for amering sheriffs. (Rev., s. 640; Code, s. 472; R. S., c. 76, s. 5; 1822, c. 1149; C. S. 688.)

Art 29. Execution and Judicial Sales.

1-325. How advertised.—No real property shall be sold under execution, deed of trust, mortgage or other contracts, except as provided in other sections of this article until notice of sale has been posted at the courthouse door in the county for thirty days immediately preceding the sale, and also published once a week for four successive weeks in some newspaper published in the county, if a paper is published in the county; Provided, that if there be no newspaper published in said county the notice of such sale must be posted at the courthouse door and three other public places in the county for thirty days immediately preceding the sale. (Rev., s. 641; Code, s. 450; 1885, c. 38; 1905, c. 147; 1869-9, c. 237, s. 10; R. C. c. 45, s. 16; 1881, c. 278; 1909, c. 705; 1927, c. 253, s. 1; C. S. 687.)

Cross References.—As to advertisement of sale of personal property, see section 1-336. As to notice and place of sale of personalty sold under mortgage or other contracts, see section 1-337.

Editor's Note.—The amendment of 1927 (Pub. Laws, ch. 255) introduced some changes into this section. Prior to this amendment the notice of sale was to be posted at three public places in the county and published in the county newspaper, whereas under the section as amended the notice is to be posted at three public places in addition to the court-house door. The notice of sale may be posted not less than thirty days prior to the date of sale. The section as amended also provides for publication for "successive" weeks, formerly there being no requirement that the publication be successive.

Application to Mortgages, etc., under Power of Sale.—This section, which prescribes the notice of sale under mortg- age or other contracts, also has an operative form in cases where the parties have made no provisions of their own prescribing the giving of notice of sale. But it is the accepted rule that the notice given be in strict compliance with the provisions of the mortgage or trust deed, and that, in the absence of such provisions, in compliance with the terms of the instrument, and, if the execution sale is held after mortgage, in strict conformity with the notice given. (Rev., s. 384; Code, s. 190; 1899, s. 224; 1911, c. 196; 1917, c. 332, s. 95 S. E. 655; Eubanks v. Becton, 158 N. C. 230, 234, 73 S. E. 1009; Ferebee v. Sawyer, 167 N. C. 217, 147 S. E. 83; Wall v. Young, 155 N. C. 757, 65 S. E. 257.)

The advertisement of the sale in the newspaper in this county is to be made at the courthouse in the county for thirty days immediately preceding the sale. (Rev., s. 640; Code, s. 472; R. S. c. 76, s. 5; 1822, c. 1149; C. S. 688.)
§ 1-326. Advertisement on resale.—No resale of real property sold under execution, deed of trust, mortgage or other contracts shall be held to be valid and not obtained when the purchaser at a resale is not a bona fide purchaser for value, unless the advertisement on the resale is published in the county as follows:

§ 1-327. Judicial foreclosure; notice of sale and resale.—When any mortgage or deed of trust on real property shall be foreclosed by judicial proceedings it may be provided in the decree of foreclosure that the advertisement of the sale shall be begun at any time after the date of the decree of foreclosure, and such real property shall then be sold under judicial foreclosure proceedings only after notice of sale has been duly posted at the courthouse door and three other public places in the county for fifteen days immediately preceding the resale. (1913, c. 10; 1927, c. 255, s. 2; 1943, c. 543; C. S. 688.)

Editor's Note.—The 1943 amendment added the proviso to this section and made other changes.

§ 1-328. Notice defined.—In any sale of real property under execution, deed of trust, mortgage or other contracts made since February 21, 1929, where the original sale was published for four successive weeks and any re-sale published for two successive weeks shall be and the same are in all respects validated as to publication of notice. (1933, c. 96, s. 3.)

§ 1-329. Validation of certain sales.—All sales of real property under execution, deed of trust, mortgage or other contracts made since February 21, 1929, where the original sale was published for four successive weeks and any re-sale published for two successive weeks shall be and the same are in all respects validated as to publication of notice.

§ 1-330. Notice served on defendant; when on governor and attorney general.—In addition to the advertisement above required, the sheriff shall in every case, at least ten days before a sale of real property under execution, serve a copy of so much of the advertisement as relates to the real property of any defendant on him personally if he is found in the county, or on his agent if he has a known agent therein, or if he cannot be found within the county and has no known agent therein, but his address is known, by mail to such address; and the date of service shall be ascertained by the usual course of the mail from the place where sent to the place of its address. In case of the sale under execution, or under the order of any court, of any real or personal property in which the state is interested as a stockholder or otherwise, notice in writing must be served upon the governor and attorney general, at least thirty days before the sale, of the time and place of sale, and under what process it is made, otherwise the sale is invalid. (Rev., s. 642; Code, s. 457; 1858-9, c. 237, s. 11; 1876-7, c. 224; C. S. 689.)

Requirements Directory.—The requirements of section 3-225, that a sheriff advertise a sale under execution, and of this section, that he serve a copy upon the defendant ten days before the sale, are directory, and when not followed will not render the sale void as against a stranger without notice of the irregularity. Williams v. Dunn, 163 N. C. 206, 79 S. E. 512.

Notice Required in Resale.—Where after sale of property under execution the judgment creditor posts an advertisement within ten days and resale is ordered, and no notice of the resale is given the judgment debtor or the purchaser at the first sale, the judgment debtor is entitled to an order for a ressale, and if the order for a ressale is made, the requirement of the notice to the judgment debtor of sale of his property under execution being applicable to resales as well as to first sales. Bank of Pinehurst v. Gardner, 218 N. C. 594, 11 S. E. (2d) 872.

Procedure to Set Aside Sale.—The procedure to set aside a sale of lands under an execution which has not been advertised, and where notice has not been given the defendant in compliance with this section, is, as against a purchaser with notice of the irregularity, by motion in the cause, for the sale cannot be collateraly attacked. Williams v. Dunn, 163 N. C. 206, 79 S. E. 512.
§ 1-331. Sale days; place of sale; ratification of prior sales.—All real property sold under execution shall be sold at the courthouse door of the county in which all or a part of the property is situated, on any day of the week or month except Sunday, after advertising as required by law. All sales of real property sold under order of court shall be sold at the courthouse door of the county in which all or any part of the property is situated on any day of the week or month except Sunday, unless in the order directing such sale some other place and time are designated and then it shall be sold as directed in such order on any day of the week or month except Sunday, after advertising as required by law.

Sales and resales of real property under execution, or by order of court, or under the power of foreclosure in any deed of trust or mortgage may be made on any day of any week or month, except Sunday.

All sales made prior to March 2, 1939, under execution or by order of court on any day other than the first Monday in any month, or the first three days of any month, are hereby validated, ratified and confirmed. (Rev., s. 643; Code, s. 456; 1876-7, c. 216, ss. 2, 3; 1883, c. 94, ss. 1, 2; 1931, c. 23; 1937, c. 26; 1939, c. 71, 256; C. S. 690.)

Editor's Note.—Public Laws 1929, c. 71, effective March 2, 1939, struck out this section as amended in 1931 and added the following words in lieu thereof.

Public Laws 1939, c. 256, effective March 30, 1939, directed that the last paragraph be added to this section as amended in 1931 and 1937, apparently through inadvertence. The first three days in any month are hereby validated, ratified and confirmed. (Rev., s. 643; Code, s. 456; 1876-7, c. 216, ss. 2, 3; 1883, c. 94, ss. 1, 2; 1931, c. 23; 1937, c. 26; 1939, c. 71, 256; C. S. 690.)

Editor's Note.—Public Laws 1929, c. 71, effective March 2, 1939, struck out this section as amended in 1931 and added the following words in lieu thereof.

Public Laws 1939, c. 256, effective March 30, 1939, directed that the last paragraph be added to this section as amended in 1931 and 1937, apparently through inadvertence. The cases cited below were decided prior to the 1939 amendments. See 17 N. C. Law Rev. 372. The question whether a sale, not effected in accordance with the time and place at which this section requires that it should be effected, is void, so as to render the title of the purchaser invalid, has at various times given great difficulty to the court, which has resulted in conflicting decisions. Thus in Mayers v. Carter, 87 N. C. 146, it was held that an execution sale made at an improper time and place is void. For the same effect, see State v. Rivers, 27 N. C. 297. The abstract principle of law announced by these cases is that the non-observance, by the officer making the sale, of those provisions of law which are directory merely and relate to matters in form, in the execution of, or in the sale under, an execution or decree of the court, will not affect the title acquired under an execution sale. Thus it is stated in the last cited case that third persons need not show affirmatively the observance on the part of the sheriff of all legal prerequisites for the sale, nor are they charged to take notice of all the irregularities. That this is the rule is plainly shown by the annotations to section 1-325. But we can find no case which decides the question in controversy whether the requirement of time and place of the sale under this section is mandatory with the necessary result of avoiding the purchaser's title, or merely directory, so as to dispose of any question which would make such a sheriff to an action for damages. The decision reached in Mayers v. Carter, supra, tends to indicate that it is mandatory and yet the case with approval Brooks v. Katula, 49 N. C. 194, reached the same result, in which it was held that a sale made on Tuesday and Wednesday of the week will pass title, and the case of Wade v. Saunders, 70 N. C. 270, to the same effect.

§ 1-332. Sale hours.—No sale under an execution or decree shall commence before ten o'clock in the morning or continue after four o'clock in the afternoon of the day on which the sale is to be made, except that in towns or cities of more than five thousand inhabitants public sales of goods, wares and merchandise may be continued until ten o'clock p. m. Provided, a certain hour for such sales shall be named and the sale shall begin within one hour after the time fixed, unless postponed as provided by law, or delayed by other sales. (Rev., s. 644; Code, s. 459; R. C., c. 45, s. 17; 1794, c. 41; 1927, c. 19; C. S. 691.)

Editor's Note.—The proviso appearing at the end of this section was added by the amendment of 1927, Pub. Laws, ch. 19.

§ 1-333. Postponement.—The sheriff or other person making the sale, for the absence of bidders or any other just cause, may postpone the sale from day to day, but not for more than six days in all, and upon postponement he must post...

a notice thereof on the courthouse door of his county. (Rev., s. 645; Code, s. 455; 1868-9, c. 237, s. 9; C. S. 692.)

Sale on Friday upon Postponement.—A sheriff, who advertises a sale of land levied upon execution to take place on Monday, the first day of the term, as prescribed by law, which sale is postponed from day to day, has a right to sell the same on the Friday succeeding. Wade v. Saunders, 70 N. C. 270.

Sale of Provisions of Law not Applicable in Case of Postponement.—The strict compliance with the terms of the mortgage and statutory provisions required to make a valid sale upon foreclosure does not apply when a postponement is held, but if the sale is being postponed for other reasonable purposes, for in the absence of statutory or contract provisions to the contrary, as in this State, a notice of postponement made in good faith, and reasonably calculated to give proper publicity of the time and place, is held sufficient. Werebee v. Sawyer, 167 N. C. 199, 83 S. E. 17.

Application to Court Sales and Mortgage Sales.—This section, authorizing the postponement of the sale from day to day for not more than six days, is held to apply to sales by the sheriff or person acting under court decrees, and not to apply to sales under power contained in a mortgage. Werebee v. Sawyer, 167 N. C. 199, 83 S. E. 17.

 Sufficiency of Notice.—Under the facts of the case where a sale under a power contained in a mortgage was advertised and posted at the courthouse of the county, the notice of the postponement consisting of a mere memorandum at the bottom of one of the original notices was held insufficient. Werebee v. Sawyer, 167 N. C. 199, 83 S. E. 17.

§ 1-335. Certain sales validated.—All sales of realty made under executions issued prior to March the fifteenth, one thousand nine hundred and one, on judgments regularly obtained in courts of competent jurisdiction, are hereby validated, whether such sales were continued from day to day or for a longer period, not exceeding ten days: Provided, that such executions and sales are in all other respects regular: Provided further, that purchasers and their assigns shall have held continuous and adverse possession under a sheriff’s deed for three years: Provided further, that the rights of minors and married women shall in nowise be prejudiced hereby. (Rev., s. 646; 1901, c. 742; C. S. 693.)

§ 1-336. Advertisement as to personal property.

—No sale of personal property under execution may be made until it has been advertised for ten days at the door of the courthouse of the county in which it is to be sold, and at three other public places in the county, and the advertisement must designate the place and the time of sale. (Rev., s. 648; Code, s. 490; R. C., c. 45, s. 16; 1808, c. 753; 1820, c. 1066; C. S. 698.)

Cross References.—As to advertisement of sale of real property, see section 1-325. As to advertisement of personal property sold under the terms of a mortgage, see § 45-23.

Purchaser with Notice of Lack of Advertisement.—A purchaser at an execution sale of personal property, who has full knowledge of such irregularities as absence of advertisement, etc., required by this section, is not an innocent purchaser, and the rule that a purchaser at a sheriff’s sale is not bound to look further than to see that he is an officer who sells, empowered to do so by a valid execution, is not applicable to his case, for the rule presupposes that the purchaser is a bona fide purchaser. Phillips v. Hyatt, 167 N. C. 570, 373, 83 S. E. 894.

§ 1-337. Penalty for selling contrary to law.—A sheriff or other officer who makes any sale contrary to the true intent and meaning of this article shall forfeit two hundred dollars to any person suing for it, one-half for his own use and the other half to the use of the county where the offense is committed. (Rev., s. 649; Code, s. 461; R. C., c. 45, s. 18; 1820, c. 1066, s. 2; 1822, c. 1155, s. 3; C. S. 696.)

Cross Reference.—As to liability of sheriff’s bond, see sections 162-8, 162-13.

§ 1-338. Officer’s return of no sale for want of bidders; penalty.—When a sheriff or other officer returns upon an execution that he has made no sale for want of bidders, he must state in his return the several places he has advertised and offered for sale the property levied on; and an officer failing to make such statement is on motion subject to a fine of forty dollars; and every constable, for a like omission of duty, is subject to a fine of ten dollars, for the use and benefit of the plaintiff in the execution; for which, on motion of the plaintiff, judgment shall be granted by the court to which, or by justice to whom, the execution shall be returned. Nothing in, nor any recovery under, this section is a bar to any action for a false return against the sheriff or other officer. (Rev., s. 650; Code, s. 462; R. C., c. 45, s. 19; 1815, c. 887; C. S. 697.)

Cross Reference.—As to penalty for false return, see section 162-14.

§ 1-339. Officer to prepare deed for property sold.—Sheriffs or other officers selling lands by authority of any execution or process shall, upon payment of the price, prepare, execute and deliver to the purchaser a deed for the property purchased. The purchaser of land must furnish the officer with a description of it. (Rev., s. 651; Code, s. 471; R. C., c. 45, s. 30; 1848, c. 39; C. S. 698.)

Cross Reference.—As to execution of a deed of trust estate sold, see section 1-315.

A deputy clerk has power to issue executions in the name of the clerk. Miller v. Miller, 89 N. C. 402.

Means to Compel Sheriff.—A motion in the cause, and not a distinct action, is the proper means of compelling the sheriff to make title to the purchaser at the execution sale. Fox v. Kline, 85 N. C. 174.

Where the purchaser is implicated in the sheriff’s derelictions, he is not entitled to call for a conveyance. Skinner v. Warren, 81 N. C. 373.

Failure to Pay Purchase Money—Resale by Sheriff.—If a sheriff at a sheriff’s sale fails to pay his bid the sheriff shall not sell the property to the person paying the price, or may apply for a rule to compel payment, or he may at his own peril as to the plaintiff indulge the purchaser. Maynard v. Moore, 76 N. C. 158, 161, citing McKee v. Lineberger, 69 N. C. 277. A sheriff is not obliged to resell immediately, but may give the purchaser time in which to pay the purchase money, if neither party to the execution objects or complains. Id.

Recital in Deed Prima Facie Evidence.—The recital of execution and sale in a sheriff’s deed is prima facie evidence thereof. Wainwright v. Bobbitt, 127 N. C. 274, 37 S. E. 336.

Recitals in a sheriff’s deed are prima facie evidence of an execution sale, notwithstanding the return upon the execution may be imperfect. The fact that there was a sale may also be proved by parol. Miller v. Miller, 89 N. C. 462.

Necessity of Seal.—A deed of a sheriff without a seal attached is not competent evidence in ejectment to show title, and a sheriff will not be allowed to affix his seal to a deed which is not his. Title is set up in the complaint. Fisher v. Owens, 133 N. C. 686, 44 S. E. 369.

Art. 30. Betterments.

§ 1-340. Petition by claimant; execution suspended; issues found. — A defendant against whom a judgment is rendered for land may, at any time before execution, present a petition to the court rendering the judgment, stating that he, or those under whom he claims, while holding the premises under a color of title believed to be good, have made permanent improvements thereon, and praying that he may be allowed for the use and occupation of the land. The court may, if satisfied of the probable truth of the allegation, suspend the execution of the judgment and impain a jury to assess the damages of the plaintiff and the allowance to the defendant for the improvements. In any such action this inquiry and assessment may be made upon the trial of the case. (Rev., s. 659; Code, s. 473; 1871-2, c. 117; C. S. 609.)

Cross-references.—As to registration of conveyances, contracts to convey, and leases, see § 47-38. As to judgment for betterments having priority over homestead rights, see annotation "Judgment for Improvements," division III, under section 1-369.

Editor's Note.—In Scott v. Battle, 85 N. C., 185, 192, it was held that the purchaser of lands from a feme covert, who was not privily examined, and whose husband did not claim for betterments. This decision was based on Battle's asserts Same—Parol Contract to Convey.—A vendor in possession, who repudiates a parol contract to convey land, will not be permitted to evict a vendee who has entered and made improvements, until the latter has had the purchase money and compensated for betterments. Vann v. Newcomb, 80 N. C. 669.

One who was induced to enter on and improve land by a parol promise that it would be settled on him as an advancement or gratuity will not be evicted until compensation is paid. Baker v. Carson, 16 N. C. 316; Hedgepeth v. Rose, 95 N. C. 41.

Same—Fraudulent Misrepresentations.—Where, by fraudulent misrepresentations as to area of the vendor, a vendee is induced to purchase land, on a rescission of the contract he is entitled to reimbursements for improvements put on the land. Hill v. Brower, 76 N. C. 124.

Same—Unregistered Deed.—One who has improved land held by him under an unregistered deed is not entitled to the value of the betterments as against judgment creditors of his grantor. Eaton v. Dorib, 190 N. C. 14, 23, 128 S. E. 499.

Same—Notice Required.—Notice sufficient to bar the right to compensation is not a constructive notice, or such a notice as the petitioner might have acquired by a diligent inquiry of the title, but such facts and circumstances as might reasonably suggest to the ordinary citizen serious defects in his own title. Carolina Cent. R. Co. v. McCaskill, 98 N. C. 538.

Where the title to the land was in a feme covert who married in 1846, when under age, and she and her husband executed a bond to convey the land after she became of age. If the bond was never registered, and the defendant had no actual notice of any defect in his title, which he believed to be good, the doctrine of constructive notice of improvements, and the fact that he has been on the property since 1846, he is entitled to compensation under the section for permanent improvements made by him on the land. Justice v. Baxter, 93 N. C. 405.

Same—Reasonable Belief.—The petitioner must show not only an honest and bona fide belief in his title, but he must satisfy the jury, also, that he had good reason for such belief. Pritchard v. Williams, 176 N. C. 108, 109, 96 S. E. 733.

One holding under a tenant for life, making substantial and permanent improvements on the lands, under facts and circumstances which would have put a reasonable man upon inquiry, was entitled to recover for the betterments he has thus made. Harriett v. Harriett, 181 N. C. 565, 157 S. E. 103.

in evidence in an action to recover the land, that he has in good faith made permanent improvements after his estate had expired and their value to the extent of the rents and profits accrued against or damages for waste or other injury done by him, or those under whom he claims, and also the damages for waste or other injury to the premises committed by the defendant. The defendant is not liable for the annual value or for damages for waste or other injury for any longer time than three years before the suit, unless he claims for improvements. (Rev., ss. 653, 654; Code, ss. 477, 478; 1871-2, c. 147, ss. 2-3; C. S. 700.)

Three Year Limitation Inapplicable.—Where one in possession or interest thereon is entitled to recover, against the true owner, for betterments he has placed thereon, he will be charged with the use and occupation of the land, without regard to the three-year statute of limitation. Pritchard v. Williams, 176 N. C. 108, 109, 96 S. E. 733; Whitfield v. Boyd, 158 N. C. 451, 453, 74 S. E. 452. But this is because generally the owner of the land at the time of its recovery also owns the rents, and the law gives to each what belongs to him, it awards to the owner the land and his rents, and to the occupant the value of his improvements. Harriett v. Harriett, 181 N. C. 75, 77, 105 S. E. 221.

When Remaindermen May Not Recover.—When one holding under a tenant for life by deed apparently conveying the lands in fee after her death, is entitled to betterments, as aforesaid, the last-entitled if no improvements had been made, until that time, the remaindermen, after the death of the tenant for life, are not entitled to and may not recover such rents and profits, or have them credited on the value of the betterments, the jury shall find a verdict for the contrary being inapplicable. Harriett v. Harriett, 181 N. C. 75, 106 S. E. 221.

§ 1-342. Value of improvements estimated.—If the jury is satisfied that the defendant, or those under whom he claims, made on the premises, at a time when there was reason to believe the title good under which he or they were holding the premises, permanent and valuable improvements, they shall estimate in his favor the value of the improvements made before notice, in writing, of the title under which the plaintiff claims, not exceeding the amount actually expended in making them and not exceeding the amount for which the value of the premises is actually increased thereby at the time of the assessment. (Rev., ss. 653; Code, s. 477; 1871-2, c. 147, s. 4; C. S. 701.)

Value of Property Permanently Enhanced.—The sole matter for consideration is embraced in one proposition, and that is, "how much was the value of the property permanently enhanced, estimated as of the time of the recovery of the same, by the betterments put thereon by the labor and expenditure of the benevolently held property?" Pritchard v. Williams, 176 N. C. 108, 109, 96 S. E. 733.

Same.—Fact for the Jury to Find.—It is a matter of fact for the jury, rather than one of law, to estimate upon the use of the improvements thereon made by the betterments put thereon by the labor and expenditure of the benevolently held property. Pritchard v. Williams, 181 N. C. 46, 50, 106 S. E. 144.

§ 1-343. Improvements to balance rents.—If the sum estimated for the improvements exceeds the damages estimated against the defendant as aforesaid, the jury shall then estimate against him for any time before the said three years the rents and profits accrued against or damages for waste or other injury done by him, or those under whom he claims, so far as is necessary to balance his claim for improvements; but the defendant in such case shall not be liable for the excess, if any, of such rents, profits, or damages beyond the value of improvements. (Rev., ss. 656; Code, s. 477; 1871-2, c. 147, s. 5; C. S. 702.)

If the betterments exceed in value the rental and damages for waste, the rents and profits accruing prior to the three years may be assessed so far as to balance the improvements, but no further. Whitfield v. Boyd, 158 N. C. 451, 74 S. E. 452; Barker v. Owen, 93 N. C. 198, 202.

§ 1-344. Verdict, judgment, and lien.—After offsetting the damages assessed for the plaintiff, and the allowances to the defendant for any improvements, the jury shall find a verdict for the balance for the plaintiff or defendant, as the case may be, and judgment shall be entered therefor according to the verdict. Any such balance due to the defendant is a lien upon the land recovered by the plaintiff until it is paid. (Rev., ss. 657, 658; Code, ss. 477, 479; 1871-2, c. 147, ss. 6, 7; C. S. 703.)

The sum adjudged the defendant constitutes a lien upon the land, and this can only be made effectual and enforced, if not paid, by a sale of the premises. Barker v. Owen, 93 N. C. 198, 202.

In ejectment a writ of ouster should not issue until a verdict for betterments has been paid. Bond v. Wilson, 129 N. C. 325, 332, 40 S. E. 179.

§ 1-345. Life tenant recovers from remainder.
man.—If the plaintiff claims only an estate in life in the land recovered and pays any sum allowed to the defendant for improvements, he or his personal representative may recover at the determination of his estate from the remainderman or reversioner, the value of the said improvements as they then exist, not exceeding the amount as paid by him, and he has a lien thereon on the premises as if they had been mortgaged for the payment thereof, and may keep possession of said premises until it is paid. (Rev., s. 659; Code, s. 480; 1871-2, c. 147, s. 8; C. S. 704.)

General Rule.—It is the general rule that a life tenant is not entitled to compensation from the remainderman for the enhancement of the property by reason of his improvements. Harriett v. Harriett, 181 N. C. 75, 77, 106 S. E. 221.

A devise of lands for life with limitation over, does not entitle the life tenant to compensation for betterments he has placed on the land during his tenancy. Northcott v. Northcott, 175 N. C. 148, 149, 95 S. E. 104.

Same—Mistake of Contract.—The section does not apply to a situation where the tenant makes improvements upon land during his occupation, as lessee, where he believed he was entitled to the possession for the lessor's life, when under the contract he was not; nor does the fact that the lessee mistakenly proceeded in the putting up the improvements change the situation. Dunn v. Bagley, 88 N. C. 91.

§ 1-346. Value of premises without improvements.—When the defendant claims allowance for improvements, the plaintiff may by entry on the record require that the value of his estate in the premises without the improvements shall also be ascertained. The value of the premises in such cases shall be estimated as it would have been at the time of the inquiry, if no such improvements had been made by the tenant or any person under whom he claims, and shall be ascertained in the manner hereinbefore provided for estimating the value of improvements. (Rev., ss. 661, 662; Code, ss. 482, 483; 1871-2, c. 147, ss. 10-11; C. S. 705.)

The rents should be assessed upon the basis of the property without the improvements. Whittington v. Boyd, 139 N. C. 451, 453, 74 S. E. 452; Barker v. Owen, 93 N. C. 198.

§ 1-347. Plaintiff's election that defendant take premises.—The plaintiff in such case, if judgment is rendered for him, may, at any time during the same term, or before judgment is rendered on the assessment of the value of the improvements, in person or by his attorney in the cause, enter on the record his election to relinquish his estate in the premises to the defendant at the value as ascertained, and the defendant shall thenceforth hold all the estate that the plaintiff had therein at the commencement of the suit, if he pays therefor the said value with interest in the manner ordered by the court. (Rev., s. 663; Code, s. 484; 1871-2, c. 147, s. 12; C. S. 706.)

If the enhanced value is greatly disproportionate to the value of the land improved, so that it might almost be said that the owner is "improved out of his property," he has an election to let the land go, relinquishing his estate, upon payment by the defendant of its value as unimproved. Barker v. Owen, 93 N. C. 198, 199.

§ 1-348. Payment made to court; land sold on default.—The payment must be made to the plaintiff, or into court for his use, and the land is bound therefor, and if the defendant fails to make the payment within the time limited therefor, the court may order the land sold and the proceeds applied to the payment of said value and interest, and any surplus to be paid to the defendant; but if the net proceeds are insufficient to satisfy the said value and interest, the defendant is not bound for the deficiency. (Rev., s. 664; Code, s. 485; 1871-2, c. 147, s. 13; C. S. 707.)

§ 1-349. Procedure where plaintiff is under disability.—If the party by or for whom the land is claimed in the suit is a married woman, minor, or insane person, such value is deemed to be real estate, and shall be disposed of as the court considers proper for the benefit of the persons interested therein. (Rev., s. 665; Code, s. 486; 1871-2, c. 147, s. 14; C. S. 708.)

§ 1-350. Defendant evicted, may recover from plaintiff.—If the defendant, his heirs or assigns, after the premises are so relinquished to him, is evicted by force of a better title than that of the original plaintiff, the person so evicted may recover from the plaintiff or his representatives the amount paid for the premises, as so much money had and received by the plaintiff in his lifetime for the use of such person, with lawful interest thereon from the time of the payment. (Rev., s. 666; Code, s. 487; 1871-2, c. 147, s. 15; C. S. 709.)

§ 1-351. Not applicable to suit by mortgagee.—Nothing in this article applies to any suit brought by a mortgagee or his heirs or assigns against a mortgagor or his heirs or assigns for the recovery of the mortgaged premises. (Rev., s. 660; Code, s. 481; 1871-2, c. 147, s. 9; C. S. 710.)

When Section Inapplicable.—Where relationship of mortgagor and mortgagee is terminated by foreclosure prior to claimant's possession under mesne conveyances from mortgagor, this section, does not apply. Metropolitan Life Ins. Co. v. Allen, 208 N. C. 13, 179 S. E. 15.

In Wharton v. Moore, 84 N. C. 479, 483, it was said: "It is very probable the Legislature in making the exception had in view the generally admitted principle that the right to betterments is not conceded to mortgagors, for the current of authorities is to the effect that it has no application to them. In 2 Washburn Real Prop., it is laid down that, 'if the mortgagee or any one standing in his place enhances the value of the premises by improvements, they become additional security for the debt, and he can only claim the surplus, if any, upon such sale being made after satisfying the debt.'"

Art. 31. Supplemental Proceedings.

§ 1-352. Execution unsatisfied, debtor ordered to answer.—When an execution against property of a judgment debtor, or any one of several debtors in the same judgment, issued to the sheriff of the county where he resides or has a place of business, or if he does not reside in the state, to the sheriff of the county where a judgment roll or a transcript of a justice's judgment is filed, is returned wholly or partially unsatisfied, the judgment creditor at any time after the return, and within three years from the time of issuing the execution, is entitled to an order from the court to which the execution is returned or from the judge thereof, requiring such debtor to appear and answer concerning his property before such court or judge, at a time and place specified in the order, within the county to which the execution... was issued. (Rev. s. 667; Code, s. 458, subsec. 1; C. C. P., s. 264; 1806-9, c. 95, s. 2; C. S. 711.)

Cross Reference.—As to execution against debts due corporate defendants, see § 53-143.

Purpose of Proceedings Supplemental.—The purpose is to give supplemental execution, and only to perfect the power to reach property liable to execution, or to what is in the nature of execution, viz: proceedings to enforce its sale. Hutchison v. Symons, 67 N. C. 156, 159; McKeithan & Sons v. Walker, 66 N. C. 12.

The proceedings are intended to perfect the creditors' remedy in the same action and to supersede that which in a divided judgment debt by a judgment at law, and was unable to obtain satisfaction of the debt by a judgment at law, and was unable to obtain satisfaction of the debt. He must proceed by supplemental proceedings. Rand v. Rand, 78 N. C. 12, 15.

Supplemental proceedings are based upon an execution and may not be instituted against a defendant when there has been a personal judgment without three years within the time of the institution of such supplemental proceedings. International Harvester Co. v. Brockwell, 202 N. C. 805, 164 S. E. 322.

Same—Substitute for Creditor's Bill.—In Carson v. Oates, 64 N. C. 115, it was said: "Supplemental proceedings were intended to supply the place of proceedings in equity, where relief was given after a creditor had ascertained his property to be insufficient to pay the debt, and may not be instituted against a defendant when there has been a personal judgment without three years within the time of the institution of such supplemental proceedings. International Harvester Co. v. Brockwell, 202 N. C. 805, 164 S. E. 322.

Same—Complete Determination of Action. — Proceedings supplemental to execution are but a prolongation of the action necessary to the final discharge of the judgment, the purpose being that all matters affecting the complete satisfaction and enforcement of the judgment shall be settled in the same action, instead of by a multiplicity of suits. Rand v. Rand, 78 N. C. 12, 15.

Nature of Proceedings—Final Process. —They are in the nature of a final process, a proceeding a like as a substitute for a creditor's bill to enforce the payment of a judgment at law or as a proceeding having the essential qualities of an equitable fi. fa. Goodwin v. Clayton, 137 N. C. 224, 225, 226, 49 S. E. 173.

Same—Equitable Execution.—Such proceedings are in the nature of an equitable execution, and are intended to determine the interests of the creditors and the debtor; and in all matters affecting the complete satisfaction and enforcement of the judgment, the same are to be adjudged by the court, to be examined in a supplementary proceeding, without the necessity of a personal demand, to the process in a supplementary proceeding, and to subject a distribute the share of the judgment debtor in the estate to the satisfaction of the debt. He must proceed by supplemental proceedings. Rand v. Rand, 78 N. C. 12.

Three Year Limitation.—When the ordinary execution is returned unsatisfied in whole or part, the judgment creditor, at any time after such return, within three years from the date of the judgment, may apply by proceedings supplemental to execution, in aid of such execution, to subject the corporation and its stockholders, demanding an account to assure them of the proper distribution of the corporation's property.
some provision of the statute under which the garnishment suit is conducted." Rood on Garnishment, sec. 280, quoted in Bank v. Southern R. Co., 141 N. C. 164, 168, 53 S. E. 831.

Ten Days’ Notice Not Required.—The requirement of ten days’ notice of motions generally, has no reference to the examination of judgment debtors under supplemental proceedings, but such cases are governed by this section, which refers the time and place of examination to the discretion of the court or judge. Weiller & Co. v. Lawrence, 81 N. C. 65, 67.

Part of Judgment Owned by Person Other Than Defendant Cannot Be Attached.—In Armour Fertilizer Works v. Newbern, 210 N. C. 9, 185 S. E. 471, it was held that if the time of the rendition of a judgment another person was the equitable owner of a stipulated part thereof, so defendant had no legal or equitable interest in such part, and plaintiff was not entitled to attach such part in the supplemental proceedings instituted by it against defendant.

§ 1-353. Property withheld from execution; proceedings.—After the issuing of an execution against property, and upon proof by affidavit of a party, its agent or attorney, to the satisfaction of the court or a judge thereof, that any judgment debtor residing in the judicial district where such judgment or sheriff resides has property which he unjustly refuses to apply toward the satisfaction of the judgment, such court or judge may, by order, require the judgment debtor to appear to answer concerning the same; and proceedings may thereupon be had for the application of the property of the judgment debtor toward the satisfaction of the judgment as provided upon the return of an execution, and the judgment creditor is entitled to the order of examination of the debtor, if it does not negative such negative averments may be remedied by amendment.

§ 1-354. Proceedings against joint debtors.—Proceedings supplemental to execution may be taken upon the return of an execution unsatisfied, issued upon a judgment recovered in an action against joint debtors, in which some of the defendants have not been served with the summons by which the action was commenced, so far as relates to the joint property of such debtors; and all actions by creditors to obtain satisfaction of judgments out of the property of joint debtors are maintainable in like manner and to the like effect. These provisions apply to all proceedings and actions pending and to those terminated by final decree or judgment. (Rev., s. 669; Code, s. 490; C. C. P., s. 206; 1869-70, c. 79, s. 2; 1870-1, c. 245; C. S. 713.)

Joint, as well as single debtors, may be examined after the issuance of an execution, and before its return. Weiller & Co. v. Lawrence, 81 N. C. 65.

§ 1-355. Debtor leaving state, or concealing himself, arrested; bond.—Instead of the order requiring the attendance of the judgment debtor, the court or judge may, upon proof by affidavit or otherwise to his satisfaction that there is danger of the debtor leaving the state or concealing himself, and that there is reason to believe that he has property which he unjustly refuses to apply to the judgment, issue a warrant requiring the sheriff of any county where such debtor is to arrest him and bring him before the court or judge. Upon being brought before the court or judge, the debtor may be examined on oath, and, if it appears that there is danger of his leaving the state, and that he has property which he unjustly refuses to apply to the judgment, he shall be ordered to enter into an undertaking, with one or more sureties, that he will, from time to time, attend before the court or judge as directed, and that he will not, during the pendency of the proceedings, dispose of any property not exempt from execution. In default of entering into such undertaking, he may be committed to prison by warrant of the court or judge, as for contempt. (Rev., s. 671; Code, s. 488, subsec. 4; 1869-70, c. 148, s. 4; 1868-9, c. 277, s. 8; C. S. 714.)

§ 1-356. Examination of parties and witnesses.—On examination under this article either party may examine witnesses in his behalf, and the judgment debtor may be examined in the same manner as a witness; and the party or witnesses may be required to appear before the court or judge, or a referee appointed by either, and testify on any proceedings under this article in the same manner.
manner as upon the trial of an issue. If before a referee, the examination shall be taken by the referee, and certified to the court or judge. All examinations and answers before a judge or referee under this article must be on oath, except that when a corporate body answers, the answer shall be on the oath of an officer thereof. (Rev., ss. 488 [subsec. 2], 491, 492; C. C. P., ss. 264, 267, 268; 1868-9, c. 95, s. 2; 1871-2, c. 245; C. S. 713.)

Cross-Examination.—Where the judgment debtor is examined the creditor does not make him his witness, but may cross-examine and contradict him. Coates Bros. v. Wilkes, 92 N. C. 377.

Evidence Taken Down in Writing.—In supplemental proceedings the evidence should be taken down in writing. Coates Bros. v. Wilkes, 92 N. C. 377, 383.

Production of Documents.—Where, on examination of a debtor, it appears that his account books are material to the investigation, the court may require him to produce them. Coates Bros. v. Wilkes, 92 N. C. 377.

§ 1-357. Incriminating answers not privileged; not used in criminal proceedings.—No person, on examination pursuant to this article, is excused from answering any question on the ground that it will tend to convict him of the commission of a crime or that he has, before the examination, executed any conveyance, assignment or transfer of his property for any purpose, but his answer shall not be used as evidence against him in any criminal proceeding or prosecution. (Rev., s. 672; Code, s. 488, subsec. B; C. C. P., s. 264; 1868-9, c. 95, s. 2; C. S. 714.)

Witness Must Answer Questions.—A witness must answer the questions and he cannot shield himself behind his declaration that they involve self-crimination. LaFontaine v. Southern Underwriter's Ass'n, 83 N. C. 133.

So when called to testify as to his dealings in behalf of a defunct corporation, of which he was an officer, he cannot excuse himself on the ground the evidence thus elicited might be used on the trial of indictments pending against him and others for conspiring to cheat and defraud divers persons in the management of the affairs of such corporation. LaFontaine v. Southern Underwriters Association, 83 N. C. 133.

Not Available for Criminal Proceedings.—Facts developed in supplemental proceedings are forbidden to be used in evidence against them in any criminal proceeding or prosecution. State v. Mallett, 125 N. C. 718, 34 S. E. 651.

§ 1-358. Disposition of property forbidden.—The court or judge may, by order, forbid a transfer or other disposition of, or any interference with, the property of the judgment debtor not exempt from execution. (Rev., s. 673; Code, ss. 488 [subsec. 6], 491; C. C. P., ss. 284; 1868-9, c. 95, s. 2; C. S. 715.)

Only Parties May Be Restrained.—In supplemental proceedings, the court cannot restrain the transfer of property owned by one not a party to the action. Banks v. Burns, 109 N. C. 105, 13 S. E. 871.

Where one, who is charged or alleged to be the owner of such property, refuses to deliver it to the receiver, the court may, by order, require the spouse or other person who is not a party to the action, to deliver the property to the receiver. Coates Bros. v. Wilkes, 94 N. C. 174.

§ 1-359. Debtors of judgment debtor may satisfy execution.—After the issue of an execution against property, all persons indebted to the judgment debtor, or to any one of several debtors in the same judgment, may pay to the sheriff the amount of their debt, or as much thereof as is necessary to satisfy the execution; and the sheriff's receipt is a sufficient discharge for the amount paid. (Rev., s. 674; Code, s. 489; C. C. P., s. 265; C. S. 718.)

Protection to Debtors of Judgment Debtor.—The section furnishes an easily secured and safe protection to the debtors of the judgment debtor, who are called upon to satisfy the execution. Parks v. Adams, 113 N. C. 473, 477, 18 S. E. 265.

Authority of Sheriff.—A sheriff is authorized by this section to receive from debtors of the defendant in the execution, his answer containing the same. The court or judge may, by order, require such person or corporation, or any officer or members thereof, to appear at a specified time and place, and answer concerning the same. The court or judge may, in its discretion, require notice to the proceeding to be given to any party to the action, in such manner as seems proper. (Rev., s. 675; Code, s. 490; C. C. P., s. 266; 1869-70, c. 79, s. 2; 1870-1, c. 245; C. S. 719.)

When Proceedings May Commence.—The proceedings given by the section may be commenced before the sale of the property levied on, at the presentation of an affidavit or other proof of its insufficient value. McKeithan & Sons v. Walker, 66 N. C. 95, 99.

Purpose of Appearance and Answer.—The purpose of the appearance and answer required by the section is to determine whether the sum alleged, or any part thereof is due the judgment debtor. Rice v. Jones, 103 N. C. 226, 231, 95 S. E. 571.

Assignee May Be Examined.—An order for examination against the defendant's assignee. Bruce v. Crabtree, 116 N. C. 528, 21 S. E. 194.

Procedure.—The section expressly prescribes that persons having property of the judgment debtor may be examined as to the same, and mere notice is sufficient to bring them before the courts and make them subject to its jurisdiction for the purpose of securing the debtor's property, not for the purpose of contesting any right of such persons having the same, or the claims of the judgment debtor, or the same belongs to them, may properly suspect so. Banks v. Burns, 109 N. C. 105, 109, 13 S. E. 871; Bowers v. Charles, 65 N. C. 175.

Where one, who is charged in supplemental proceedings as holding property belonging to a judgment debtor, claims such property as his own, the question cannot be decided in the course of such proceedings, but must be settled by an independent action. Carson v. Oates, 64 N. C. 115.

Same.—Notice to Defendant.—Notice to the defendant is not required, though the court may, in its discretion, order notice to be given. Wright v. Southern R. Co., 141 N. C. 164, 168, 53 S. E. 831. Wilmington v. Sprunt, 114 N. C. 310, 19 S. E. 348.

§ 1-360. Where proceedings instituted and defendant examined.—Proceedings supplemental to execution must be instituted in the county in which the judgment was rendered; but the place designated where the defendant must appear and answer must be within the county where he resides. (Rev., s. 677; C. S. 720.)

Editor's Note.—This section is a substantial enactment of the rule laid down in Hasty v. Simpson, 77 N. C. 69, 70. In Upchurch v. Symons, 67 N. C. 156, it was held that proceedings supplementary should be instituted in the county in which the action was pending; that is, where the judgment was rendered. Hasty v. Simpson, supra, quoted, and approved this ruling, but not the other, viz., that the place designated for the appearance and answer of the defendant should be in the county of his residence. Thus a beneficial rule was formulated which was, apparently, followed by the legislature in enacting this section.

§ 1-362. Debtor's property ordered sold.—The court or judge may order any property, whether subject or not to be sold under execution (except the homestead and personal property exemptions of the judgment debtor), in the hands of the judgment debtor or of any other person, or due to the judgment debtor, to be applied towards the satisfaction of the judgment; except that the earnings of the debtor for his personal services, and any earnings of a non-debtor party to the proceeding, cannot be so applied when it appears, by the debtor's affidavit or otherwise, that these earnings are necessary for the use of a family supported wholly or partly by his labor. (Rev., s. 678; Code, s. 493; C. C. P., s. 269; 1870-1, c. 243; C. S. 721.)

Order for Condemnation of Debtor's Property.—In proceedings supplemental to execution, an order for the condemnation of the property of the judgment debtor not exempt from execution in the hands either of himself or any other person, or due to the judgment debtor, to be applied towards the satisfaction of the judgment shall have notice to appear before him, and shall likewise have notice of all subsequent proceedings in relation to the receivership. No more than one receiver of the property of a judgment debtor shall be appointed. The title of the receiver relates back to the service of the restraining order, herein provided for. (Rev., s. 679; Code, s. 494; C. C. P., s. 270; 1870-1, c. 245; 1876-7, c. 293; 1879, c. 63; 1881, c. 51; C. S. 722.)

Cross Reference.—As to duty of receiver generally, see secs. 1-591 to 1-594.

In a case of diligence between creditors under the supplementary proceedings, the earliest applicant is entitled to be entitled to the earliest appointment. Parks v. Sprinkle, 64 N. C. 637.

Use as Prerequisite to Appointment.—Where supplementary proceedings had discovered that the defendant held a specific fund which had been adjudged to belong to the plaintiff, and the clerk directed the defendant to pay over the fund to the plaintiff, the plaintiff had no other course than appeal to a judge to take charge of the fund until the plaintiff should institute an action to recover the specific fund. Ross v. Ross, 119 N. C. 109, 25 S. E. 792.

Evidence with Application.—The application for a receiver shall be made as in other cases, that is, the motion shall be supported by affidavits and other written or documentary evidence. Coates Bros. v. Wilkes, 92 N. C. 377, 383.

Motion Pending Appeal.—The motion for appointment of a receiver may be made before the judge, pending an appeal to him from the ruling of the clerk upon other questions. Coates Bros. v. Wilkes, 92 N. C. 377.

Subject to Review.—The appointment of a receiver in these proceedings does not rest solely in the discretion of the judge, and his action in appointing or refusing to appoint is subject to review by the Supreme Court. Coates Bros. v. Wilkes, 92 N. C. 377.

Reasonable Ground.—It is sufficient for the appointment of a receiver if there is reasonable grounds to believe that the judgment debtor has property which ought to be applied to the payment of the judgment. Coates Bros. v. Wilkes, 92 N. C. 377.

Judge to Ascertian if Other Proceedings Pending.—While it is the duty of a judge appointing a receiver under this section to ascertain if other supplementary proceedings are pending against the judgment debtor, and if so, to notify the plaintiff, wherein is the duty of the judge of a failure to do so does not require the reversal of an order appointing a receiver, where some of the creditors actually appear and make themselves parties, and all have an opportunity to interpose before the final distribution of the fund. Corbin v. Berry, 83 N. C. 28.

There Shall Be but One Receiver.—This section prescribes there shall be but one receiver of the property of a judgment debtor, to prevent a conflict of authority between the courts having a concurrent jurisdiction over the subject. Corbin v. Berry, 83 N. C. 28, 31.

Consolidation of Several Proceedings.—Where several supplementary proceedings are pending, and the same property is sought to be subjected, or where, in either of such proceedings, a receiver is appointed of property which is the subject of other proceedings, the court should, in proper cases, order that the same be consolidated, preserving the priorities acquired by the superior diligence of the various litigants. Marine Bros. & Co. v. Lewald, 107 N. C. 635, 32 S. E. 297.

§ 1-364. Filing and record of appointment; property vests in receiver.—When the court or a judge grants an order for the appointment of a receiver of the property of the judgment debtor, it shall be filed in the office of the clerk of the superior court of the county where the judgment roll in the action or transcript from justice's judgment, upon which the proceedings are taken, is filed; and the clerk shall record the order in a book to be kept for that purpose in his office, to be called Book of Orders Appointing Receivers of Judgment Debtors, and shall note the time of its filing therein. A certified copy of the order shall be delivered to the receiver named therein, and he is vested with the property and effects of the judgment debtor from the time of the service of the restraining order, if such restraining order has been made, and if not, from the time of the filing and recording of the order for the appointment of a receiver. The receiver of the judgment debtor is subject to the direction and control of the court in which the judgment was obtained upon which the proceedings are founded. (Rev., s. 680; Code, s. 495; C. C. P., s. 270; 1870-1, c. 215; C. S. 732.)

§ 1-365. Where order of appointment recorded. —Before the receiver is vested with any real property of the judgment debtor, a certified copy of the order of appointment must be filed and recorded on the execution docket, in the office of the clerk of the superior court of the county in which any real estate of the judgment debtor is situated, and also in the office of the clerk of the superior court of the county in which the debtor resides. (Rev., s. 681; Code, s. 496; C. C. P., s. 270; C. S. 724.)

Death of Judgment Debtor before Order Filed. —When the property belonging to him which may be in the hands of the clerk of the superior court, the property and estate of the debtor, or their proceeds, under the direction of the court. Rand v. Rand, 78 N. C. 12, 16.

While the court may exercise very great control over the administration of a receiver, it is not the duty of such receivers to take possession of the property of the debtor at once, and to bring actions to recover any property belonging to him which may be in the hands of third persons. Coates Bros. v. Wilkes, 92 N. C. 377.

§ 1-366. Receiver to sue debtors of judgment debtor. —If it appears that a person or corporation alleged to have property of the judgment debtor, or indebted to him, claims an interest in the property adverse to him, or denies the debt, such interest or debt is recoverable only in an action against such person or corporation by the receiver; but the court or judge may, by order, forbid a transfer or other disposition of such property or interest till a sufficient opportunity is given to the receiver to commence and prosecute the action to judgment and execution, but such order may at any time be modified or dissolved by the court on application of such receiver for security as he directs. (Rev. s. 682; Code, s. 497; C. C. P., s. 271; 1870-1, c. 245; C. S. 725.)

Cross Reference. —As to execution against debts due corporate defendants, see § 55-143.

Court May Restrain Transfer of Property. —Under this section when it is found that a third person, not a party to the action, claims an interest in the property, or denies the debt, which is sought by the plaintiff to be applied to his judgment as belonging to the judgment debtor, court may, by an order in the cause, restrain the transfer or other disposition of such property till the receiver can recover it, but such is brought by the receiver as the agent of the court. Ross v. Ross, 119 N. C. 109, 112, 25 S. E. 792.

Remedy of Debtor When Receiver Is Negligent. —If the receiver is negligent in the performance of his duty, the remedy of the judgment debtor might be in the removal of the receiver and appointment of a successor, or in seeking compensation in damages for the losses due to such negligence, and, if necessary, upon his bond to secure a faithful discharge of duty, he cannot interfere with the receiver's collection and control of the property. Turner v. Holden, 94 N. C. 70, 72.

Receiver Is under Direction of Court. —A receiver may be appointed who is invested with all the property and effects of the debtor, and may collect, preserve, and pay out the property and estate of the debtor, or their proceeds, under the direction of the court. Rand v. Rand, 78 N. C. 12, 16.

§ 1-368. Where order of appointment recorded. —Before the receiver is vested with any real property of the judgment debtor, a certified copy of the order of appointment must be filed and recorded on the execution docket, in the office of the clerk of the superior court of the county in which any real estate of the judgment debtor is situated, and also in the office of the clerk of the superior court of the county in which the debtor resides. Coates Bros. v. Wilkes, 92 N. C. 377.
§ 1-368. Disobedience of orders punished as for contempt.—Any person, party or witness, who disobeys an order of the court or judge or referee, duly served, may be punished by the judge as for a contempt. In all cases of commitment under this article the person committed may, in case of inability to perform the act required, or to endure the imprisonment, be discharged from the same. (Rev., 1864, c. 44; 1865, c. 51; 1866-7 Me., S. 250; 1868, c. 250; 1869-70, c. 79, s. 3; C. S. 727.)

Cross Reference.—As to commitment generally, see §§ 5-1 to 5-9.

Court May Enforce Its Lawful Orders.—It is an essential attribute of a court to enforce by proper process its lawful orders, and without this its essential functions would be paralyzed or destroyed. LaFontaine v. Southern Underwriters, 117 N. C. 132, 133; P. v. P., 80 N. C. 322.

As to whether the violation of a void order of a court constitutes contempt, see note in 12 N. C. Law Rev. 360.

Contempt of Referee Punished by Court.—When, in the course of proceedings supplementary to the execution, a witness is examined by a referee, a contempt, in refusing to answer the questions, must be punished by the court making the reference. LaFontaine v. Southern Underwriters, 83 N. C. 132, 133.

Judge Passes on Inability to Comply.—Where a party to an action, having been directed to perform an order of the court, otherwise to be in contempt, applied, after notice to have the order discharged, and offered to produce affidavits showing his inability to comply with the order, it was the duty of the judge to hear and pass on the affidavits. Childs v. Wiseman, 119 N. C. 497, 26 S. E. 126.

SUBCHAPTER XI. HOMESTEAD AND EXEMPTIONS.

Art. 32. Property Exempt from Execution.

§ 1-369. Property exempted. — The homestead and personal property exemptions as defined and declared by the article of the state constitution entitled Homesteads and Exemptions are exempt from sale under execution and other final process, as provided in the state constitution: Provided, the allotment of the homestead shall, as to all personal property therein embraced, suspend the running of the statute of limitations on all judgments against the homesteader during the continuance of the homestead. (Rev., 1864, c. 44; 1865, c. 51; 1868, c. 250; 1869-70, c. 79, s. 3; C. S. 727.)

As to conveyance of homestead, see sec. 1-370 and annotations thereto. See also, N. C. Constitution, Art. X, §§ 1, 2, 3, 4, 5 and 8.

I. IN GENERAL.
Editor's note.—In Poe v. Hardie, 65 N. C. 467, the homestead has been called a “domain, estate, and fee,” and in Littlejohn v. Egerton, 77 N. C. 379, it was spoken of as “a quality annexed to land whereby the estate is exempted from sale under execution.” These decisions point to the fact that from the debtor’s estate in the exempt land, he was debarred from selling the same and placing the proceeds of sale in a separate fund in which he could not be reached by his creditors.

The correct view is expressed by Bynum, J., in Bank v. Green, 78 N. C. 247, 252: “Their legal effect is simply to claim for the debtor the enjoyment of the land, not the estate in it, as a homestead, un molested by his creditors.” No new estate is conferred upon the owner, and no limitation is imposed upon his old estate. It is obvious that it would be quite correct to say that 5-1 has conferred upon him a determinable exemption from the payment of his debts in respect to the particular property allotted to him. It cannot be consistently maintained that the same is not applicable to any conveyance of land, nor does it profess to pass title. It only serves to indicate where the homestead is and whether there is any excess subject to levy and sale to pay judgment creditors. Keener v. Goodson, 69 N. C. 273; Methe v. Layton, 89 N. C. 396; Markham v. Hicks, 90 N. C. 204.

Favored by Law.—The law favors the homestead. Every safeguard is given the homesteader and the courts have parity to his rights as guaranteed by the Constitution. Cheek v. Walden, 195 N. C. 752, 754, 143 S. E. 465.

A. Nature of Homestead.

Exemptions to Homestead Exemption.—A homestead is exempt from sale under execution, except (1) for taxes; (2) for obligations contracted in the purchase of the premises; (3) for mechanics and laborer’s lien; (4) for debts contracted prior to the inception of the Constitution. Cheek v. Floyd, 89 N. C. 396; Cumming v. Bloodworth, 87 N. C. 83, 85.

Definition of a Homestead.—In Hager v. Nixon, 69 N. C. 108, 110, it is said: “No precise definition of a homestead is given in the constitution, and it would only mislead us if we should look into dictionaries or the laws of other states and take the definitions there given as fixing the meaning of the word as given in our laws. We must look to our own legislation alone to ascertain what it is.”

Same—Not an Estate.—A homestead is not an estate at all, but merely an exemption. Cudle v. Morris, 100 N. C. 168, 76 S. E. 17; Champion v. Sash, etc., Co. v. Parker, 153 N. C. 130, 69 S. E. 1; Thomas v. Fulford, 117 N. C. 607, 23 S. E. 635; Jones v. Britton, 102 N. C. 166, 9 S. E. 554. See also, Hicks v. Wooten, 171 N. C. 97, 96 S. E. 107. Cheek v. Floyd, 89 N. C. 396, 465, 143 S. E. 465, it was said: “In some of the earlier decisions it is treated as an estate and called a determinable fee, but this doctrine has long since been abandoned, and we are now pronounced decisions that hold the homestead is not an estate, but an exemption only.

Same—Not Color of Title.—The assignment of a homestead does not constitute color of title. Keener v. Goodson, 89 N. C. 273, 277.

Time of Application.—The “poor debtor” is in time if he makes his application and procures the assignment to be made at any time before the time of the order of commitment and converted by a sale. State v. Floyd, 33 N. C. 496, 498.

Assignment by Sheriff Not Needed to Vest Right.—The action of a sheriff in assigning a homestead by metes
B. Nature and Duration of Exemptions.

Effect of Exemption Laws.—Exemption laws have no extraterritorial force or effect. Goodwin v. Claytor, 137 N. C. 253, 49 S. E. 170; Colwell v. Mitchell, 137 N. C. 473, 43 S. E. 479; Balk v. Harris, 122 N. C. 64, 30 S. E. 318.

The exemption laws of this state protect the property of a debtor in this state from executions issued by the courts of this state and from the courts of the United States. Balk v. Harris, supra.

Exemptions relate only to the remedy, and the right to an exemption is not the law of the forum. Goodwin v. Claytor, 137 N. C. 225, 49 S. E. 173; Sexton v. Phoenix Ins. Co., 122 N. C. 1, 3, 43 S. E. 479.

Same—Remedial in Nature.—Exemption laws are remedial in their nature and should always receive a liberal construction. Goodwin v. Claytor, 137 N. C. 225, 236, 49 S. E. 173.

Same—Exchange of Exempt Goods.—If an article of property, which has been exempt from execution, is exchanged for another article, the one received in exchange is not exempt. Lloyd v. Durham, 60 N. C. 282, 283.

Presumption in Favor of Exemption.—There is a presumption, of fact in favor of the exemption, and the creditor who wishes to enforce a claim upon the property, must bring himself within one of the exceptions by proper averment and proof. Mebane v. Layton, 89 N. C. 396.

Duration of Exemption.—The personal property exemption exists only during the term of the life of Smith v. McDonald, 95 N. C. 163; Johnson v. Cross, 66 N. C. 167.

How Choices in Action Made Available.—Except in case of attachment proceedings wherein provision is made in exceptional and urgent cases, choices in action can only be made available to the creditor by civil action in the nature of an equitable fi. fa. or by the statutory method of supplemental proceedings, both of which remedies in ordinary instances are here still open to claimants. McIntosh Grocery Co. v. Newman, 184 N. C. 370, 373, 11 S. E. 335; Bowman v. McGill, 184 N. C. 215, 114 S. E. 10.

II. CONSTITUTIONAL PROVISIONS AND PURPOSE.

A. In General.

Favored by the Constitution.—The homestead interest is favored by the Constitution. Leak v. Gay, 107 N. C. 468, 12 S. E. 836.

Purpose of Homestead Provisions.—The framers of the Constitution meant exactly what they said and ordained, that a certain part of the real property of a debtor, being a homestead, or a part thereof, should be set apart for his use and occupation, where he might dwell with his family in peace and contentment without fear of creditors to molest or make him afraid, so long as he might live, and to extend the benefit of the exemption to the children of the intestate. Hinsdale v. Williams, 75 N. C. 251, 266, 11 S. E. 439; see also, Gregory v. Ellis, 86 N. C. 579, 583.

The homestead right is a vested right and is inalienable; it cannot be sold to satisfy a debt created before the ratification of the Constitution of 1868, one thousand dollars of the proceeds of sale, if that sum is left, or to mortgage it if he desires to raise money on the credit of it. Jenkins v. Bobbitt, 77 N. C. 387, 389.

Sale by Homesteader of Estate in Reversion.—A sale by the owner of a homestead of his estate in reversion stands as at common law, and the purchaser has full power to sell, or to mortgage it if he desires to raise money on the credit of it. Jenkins v. Bobbitt, 77 N. C. 387, 389.

B. Who Entitled to Homestead and Exemptions.

Only Residents Entitled to Homestead and Exemptions.—The homestead and personal property exemptions claimed only by residents of this state. Goodwin v. Claytor, 137 N. C. 225, 49 S. E. 173; Jones v. Alabrock, 115 N. C. 46, 54 S. E. 170.

Same—Constitutional Purpose.—The right of homestead provided and secured by the Constitution (Art. X, sections 2, 5, 6) is incident to residence in this state. Only residents having these rights are entitled thereto. A non-resident has no such right, although he may be the owner of a homestead situated in the state. The terms of the Constitution do not embrace him, and moreover, the plain purpose is to exempt the homestead and property connected therewith, "from sale under execution or other final process obtained on any debt." He has no home within the state for himself, and the reason for the exemption as to him does not exist. Baker v. Legget, 98 N. C. 304, 305, 4 S. E. 37.

Residents Defined.—The leading purpose of the Constitution, Article X, sec. 1, 2, 5, 6, is to secure the homestead to the debtor and his family and the term "resident" therein should be so construed as to accomplish that purpose, unless there should be found some positive or necessary and reasonable rule of law to the contrary. Chitty v. Chitty, 118 N. C. 647, 649, 24 S. E. 517.

The words "a resident of this state," employed in the Constitution, Art. X. Sec. 2, in respect to homesteads, have a more restricted meaning than that usually given to domicile. Lee v. Mosely, 101 N. C. 410, 414.

The residence must be actual, and not constructive. Monds v. Cassidy, 98 N. C. 538, 4 S. E. 353, 355.

Same—Forfeiture of Right.—If the person claiming a homestead voluntarily removes from the state, his right to make his home elsewhere, he forfeits his right in this respect. Finley v. Saunders, 98 N. C. 462, 4 S. E. 516.

Whether a debtor deceased be a resident of the state before his property became applicable to a creditor's claim is a matter of constitutional purpose. The general exemption laws of the state do not operate in the case of a widow. Where a person residing in another state, having the property in this state, and in the event of the death of the father or husband. The law does not embrace him, and moreover, the plain purpose is to exempt the homestead and property connected therewith, "from sale under execution or other final process obtained on any debt." He has no home within the state for himself, and the reason for the exemption as to him does not exist. Baker v. Legget, 98 N. C. 304, 305, 4 S. E. 37.

Neither the assignee nor the attaching creditors could get the benefit of the exemptions. Latta v. Bell, 122 N. C. 639, 30 S. E. 15. See also, Winn v. Craft, 90 N. C. 211.

Right Not Destroyed by Fraud.—A husband has sold his homestead to satisfy a debt created before the ratification of the Constitution of 1868, one thousand dollars of the proceeds of sale, if that sum is left, or to mortgage it if he desires to raise money on the credit of it. Jenkins v. Bobbitt, 77 N. C. 387, 389.

Evidence of Fraud.—The homestead cannot be sold by an administrator in a petition to make real estate assets during the minority of one of the children of the intestate. Hindsdale v. Williams, 75 N...

CH. 1. CIVIL PROCEDURE—HOMESTEAD

§ 1-370. Conveyed homestead not exempt.—The allotted homestead is exempt from levy so long as owned and occupied by the homesteader or by any one for him, but when conveyed by him in the mode authorized by the constitution, article ten, section eight, the exemption ceases so as to liens attaching prior to the conveyance. The homesteader who has conveyed his allotted homestead may have another allotted, and as often as is necessary. This section shall not have any retroactive effect. (Rev. s. 688; 1905, c. 111; C. S. 729.)

Construction of Constitution.—This section is in accordance with the views of the court, and expresses the proper construction of the Constitution. Article X, sec. 2, Chadbourn Sash, etc., Co. v. Parker, 153 N. C. 130, 92 S. E. 1; section eight, the exemption ceases so as to liens attaching prior to the conveyance. The homesteader who has conveyed his allotted homestead may have another allotted, and as often as is necessary. This section shall not have any retroactive effect. (Rev. s. 688; 1905, c. 111; C. resident of this state who is entitled to a homestead under this article, and the constitution of this state, the sheriff [or a deputy sheriff designated by the sheriff, and who shall be twenty-one years of age or over], or other officer charged with the levy shall summon three discreet persons qualified to act as jurors, to whom he shall administer the following oath: "I, A. B., do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I have no interest in the land or buildings or the use thereof, nor have any personal interest in the persons of the proceedings, and will perform my duty as a sheriff as nearly as possible, and according to Duty of Officer Mandatory.—This section enjoins upon the sheriff the mandatory duty of summoning three discreet persons to appraise the homestead to any judgment debtor who is entitled to such exemption, before levying an execution in his hands upon the land. Neither his ignorance of the rights of a debtor nor his obstinate refusal to § 1-373. Appeal as to reallotment.—From the order of the clerk commanding or refusing a reallotment, either party may appeal to the judge resident in the county where the homestead lies for an order for its reallocation, if there is in the hands of the sheriff of that county an execution issued by the proper court against said debtor. The application must be accompanied by the affidavits of three disinterested freeholders of the county in which the homestead lies, setting forth that, in their opinion, it has increased in value fifty per centum or more since the last allotment. Upon the filing of the application and affidavits the clerk shall issue notice to the judgment debtor to appear before him on a day not more than five days from the date of its service and show cause why his homestead should not be reallocated. The notice must state upon whose application it is issued. Upon the return day of the notice the clerk shall consider the return that he has received, and if he is of opinion that the homestead has probably appreciated in value fifty per centum or more since the last allotment, he shall order the sheriff to reallocate to the judgment debtor his homestead, in the same manner as if no homestead had been allotted. If upon the reallocation it is seen that there is not such an appreciation of the value of the homestead as is required by the act, the clerk shall order the sheriff to dispose of the surplus as if it were unregistered. This section does not prevent the judgment debtor from resorting to the equity jurisdiction of the courts for a reallocation of the homestead of his judgment debtor in any case.

Cross Reference.—As to costs, see sec. 6-21.

Procedure for Reallotment.—If the increase is 50 per cent or more, the creditor may have a reallocation in a proceeding before the clerk, in aid of an execution in the sheriff's hands. If the increase is less than 50 per cent, the judgment creditor can proceed by suit in the nature of an equitable action to subject the excess to his debt. McCaskill v. McKinnon, 125 N. C. 179, 34 S. E. 253; Vanstory v. Thornton, 110 N. C. 10, 14 S. E. 637.

Where a portion of the land included in the allotment was unencumbered, it was held, that he had the right to have his homestead allotted from the unencumbered lands without reference to whether they embraced his dwelling house and buildings. Flora v. Robbins, 93 N. C. 38, 47 S. E. 421.

Manner of Allotment.—The law does not intend that the defendant shall have the empty form of a homestead, but the substance as well, when he has land that may be laid off to him. Shoaf v. Frost, 123 N. C. 343, 344, 31 S. E. 653.

In the allotment of a homestead the appraisers shall estimate the value of the interest of the homesteader in the land and in the improvements thereon, and assign to him his interest in the land, and not the corpus itself. McCaskill v. McKinnon, 125 N. C. 179, 34 S. E. 253.

Debtor's Right to Select.—A judgment debtor is entitled to an opportunity to be present and exercise his constitutional right to select his homestead; and where it appears upon the return that he has not presented himself, no fault of his own, the appraisal and allotment of a homestead under an execution is void. McKeithen v. Blue, 142 N. C. 360, 55 S. E. 285; McGowan v. McGowan, 122 N. C. 440, 44 S. E. 172.

Same—What Constitutes.—Where a mortgagor conveyed his personal property, more than $500 in value, with a clause in the deed reserving his "personal property exempt from execution and to be selected by him" the title to the whole of it passed to the mortgagee and remained in him, until the extinguished articles were legally set apart; and the act of executing a second mortgage conveying a part of said personal property is not a selection of such part, nor a separation of the same from the bulk. Norman v. Craft, 90 N. C. 211.

Description of Allotment.—When the land is sufficiently identified to be readily located, an unregistered allotment is competent evidence, unless objected to in apt time. Gudger v. Penland, 118 N. C. 832, 833, 23 S. E. 921.

Same—When Less than $1,000.—An allotment of a homestead to the value of $600, laid off under execution, does not render the allotment void, even though the section, in an independent action contesting its validity has introduced the former record containing the proceedings for laying off the homestead, and contends on appeal that it was erroneously admitted in the trial court. Carstarphen v. Carstarphen, 193 N. C. 541, 137 S. E. 658.

Same—As Notice of Extent.—The direction contained in the section as to the disposition to be made of the report of the exemption, is not to give notice of its extent only, but to subject it to a motion made in a reasonable time to set aside. Burton v. Spiers, 87 N. C. 95, 50.

§ 1-374. Appeal as to reallotment.—From the order of the clerk commanding or refusing a reallocation, either party may appeal to the judge resident in or holding the courts of the district, who exceeds one thousand dollars in value. Campbell v. White, 55 N. C. 491, 494.

Where the jury return the tract at $2,000, the land should be divided into two parts of equal value, and the homesteader will take his choice. Shoaf v. Frost, 123 N. C. 343, 344, 31 S. E. 653.

Same.—When Less than $1,000.—An allotment of a homestead to the value of $600, laid off under execution, does not render the allotment void, even though the section, in an independent action contesting its validity has introduced the former record containing the proceedings for laying off the homestead, and contends on appeal that it was erroneously admitted in the trial court. Carstarphen v. Carstarphen, 193 N. C. 541, 137 S. E. 658.

Same—Conclusive.—The valuation placed on the tract by the jury is conclusive. Shoaf & Co v. Frost, 123 N. C. 343, 344, 31 S. E. 653.

Same.—May Take Present Value.—Judgment creditors cannot complain of the homesteader's election to take the present value of this homestead. Leak v. Gay, 107 N. C. 462, 12 S. E. 315.

Same.—Duty of Appraisers.—The duty of the appraisers extends no further than the valuation and allotment by bonds of the homestead. Aiken v. Gardner, 107 N. C. 235, 236, 239, 12 S. E. 253.

In the allotment of a homestead the appraisers should estimate the value of the interest of the homesteader in the land and improvements thereon, and assign to him his interest in the land, and not the corpus itself. McCaskill v. McKinnon, 125 N. C. 179, 34 S. E. 253.
shall hear the matter in chambers in any county of the judicial district to which belongs the county in which the proceedings were instituted. In other respects the proceedings upon such appeal are as now provided for appeals from the clerk on issues of law. (Rev., s. 691; 1893, c. 149; C. S. 733.)

§ 1-375. Levy on excess; return of officer.—The levy may be made upon the excess of the homestead, not laid off according to this chapter, and the officer shall make substantially the following return upon the execution: "A. B., C. D., and E. F., summoned and qualified as appraisers or assessors (as the case may be), who, acting off X. Y. Z., the homestead and by law "Levy made upon the excess." (Rev., s. 692; Code, s. 505; 1868-9, c. 137, s. 5; C. S. 734.)

The levy must be only upon the excess. Gardner v. McCornaghe, 127 N. C. 481, 483, 51 S. E. 125.

to be sold is all that the execution debtor has, he is entitled to have his homestead therein laid off to him, although the personal property exemption cannot be claimed as against a fine and costs in a criminal action. State v. Williams, 97 N. C. 414, 415, 23 S. E. 370.

Value of Exemption.—The section merely follows the language of the Constitution, Art. X, sec. 1, in giving each resident of the state a personal property exemption of $500, against execution or any other final process, Befarrah v. Spell, 178 N. C. 231, 233, 100 S. E. 321; Chemical Co. v. Sloan, 136 N. C. 122, 48 S. E. 577.

As to right to claim income from life insurance policies as exempt, see note in 12 N. C. Law Rev. 67.

Section Subsidiary to Constitution.—This section was enacted to carry out the provisions of Art. X section 1, Jones v. Allsbrook, 115 N. C. 46, 49, 20 S. E. 170.

Continuation of Levy.—In Befarrah v. Murrill, 90 N. C. 208, 210, the language of the section, "whenever the personal property of any resident of this state shall be levied upon,", etc., is held to mean, at any time, while it is levied upon, and the levy continues to the day of sale.

Same—Time of Allotment.—The complete capacity to make the allotment would be destroyed with the sale, and we can see no reason, certainly no substantial reason, why it might not be done on the day of the levy, or on any day before the sale, or on that day. Shepherd v. Morgan, 90 N. C. 208, 210. See Crow v. Morgan, 210 N. C. 153, 185 S. E. 686.

Unlike the homestead exemption, which must be allotted before levying upon the land, the right to personal property exemption is vested in the debtor at any time before sale, or appropriation of the property by the court. Befarrah v. Spell, 178 N. C. 231, 233, 100 S. E. 321; Chemical Co. v. Sloan, 136 N. C. 122, 48 S. E. 577.

Continuation of Levy.—In Shepherd v. Murrill, 90 N. C. 208, 210, the language of the section, "whenever the personal property of any resident of this state shall be levied upon,", etc., is held to mean, at any time, while it is levied upon, and the levy continues to the day of sale.

Order of Court as Final Process.—The order of the court directing the payment of money is "final process," within the meaning of the Constitution and this section. Befarrah v. Spell, 178 N. C. 231, 233, 100 S. E. 321.

Same—Choses in Action.—A chose in action may be chosen: by a sale, so that, in behalf of the debtor, the exemption may be enlarged if any property to which he is entitled has been omitted, and so that, in behalf of the creditor, no exemption shall be allowed to the debtor if it appears at the sale that he is not entitled to the same. Jones v. Allsbrook, 115 N. C. 46, 20 S. E. 170.

Property from Which Exemption is Made.—In lying off the personal property exemption of a debtor, the property upon which there is no lien must be first exempted. Cowan v. Phillips, 122 N. C. 72, 28 S. E. 901. See Crow v. Morgan, 210 N. C. 153, 185 S. E. 686.

A judgment is personal property, and, if it was required to make up the amount to which the person, in whose favor it was rendered, was entitled to exemption, it is the duty of the officer having the execution to so allot it. Curlee v. Thomas, 74 N. C. 51, 54.

Property Not Subject to Exemption.—A tenant cannot claim his personal property exemption out of the crops, as against his landlord, until the rents are paid. Hamer v. McCall, 121 N. C. 196, 197, 28 S. E. 297.

Fines and Costs in Criminal Action.—The personal property exemption is not claimed as a defense to fine and costs in a criminal action. State v. Williams, 97 N. C. 414, 415, 23 S. E. 370.

§ 1-378. Personal property appraised on demand.—When the personal property of any resident of this state is levied upon by virtue of an execution or other final process issued for the collection of a debt, and the owner or an agent, or attorney in his behalf, demands that the same, or any part thereof, be exempt from sale under such execution, the sheriff or other officer making the levy shall summon three appraisers, as heretofore provided, who, having been first duly sworn, shall appraise and lay off to the judgment debtor such articles of personal property as he is entitled to have his homestead allotted in his dwelling-house to be laid off as exempt, the appraisers shall make selection and Judicial Sales, Article 29.

A homestead may be laid off in two tracts of land not contiguous, the two not exceeding $1,000 in value. Martin v. Hughes, 67 N. C. 293.

§ 1-377. Homestead in tracts not contiguous.—Different tracts of land not contiguous may be included in the same homestead, when a homestead of contiguous land is not of the value of one thousand dollars. (Rev., s. 694; Code, s. 509; 1868-9, c. 137, s. 15; C. S. 736.)

Application of Section.—While it may have been supposed by the framers of the organic law that a debtor who usually elect to have his homestead allotted in his dwelling-house and the surrounding land, his choice is not positively restricted to that, nor to contiguous land. Fulton v. Roberts, 113 N. C. 421, 423, 18 S. E. 510. Hughes v. Hodges, 102 N. C. 256, 9 S. E. 437; Flora v. Robbins, 93 N. C. 38.

A homestead may be laid off in two tracts of land not contiguous, the two not exceeding $1,000 in value. Martin v. Hughes, 67 N. C. 293.

§ 1-378. Personal property appraised on demand.—When the personal property of any resident of this state is levied upon by virtue of an execution or other final process issued for the collection of a debt, and the owner or an agent, or attorney in his behalf, demands that the same, or any part thereof, be exempt from sale under such execution, the sheriff or other officer making the levy shall summon three appraisers, as heretofore provided, who, having been first duly sworn, shall appraise and lay off to the judgment debtor such articles of personal property as he is entitled to have his homestead allotted in his dwelling-house to be laid off as exempt, the appraisers shall make substantially the following return upon the execution: "A. B., C. D., and E. F., summoned and qualified as appraisers or assessors (as the case may be), who, acting off X. Y. Z., the homestead and by law "Levy made upon the excess." (Rev., s. 692; Code, s. 505; 1868-9, c. 137, s. 5; C. S. 734.)

A debtor is entitled to $500 as personal property as a personal property exemption, and when this amount has been once allotted, and has been diminished by use, loss or other cause, the debtor has a right to have any other per-
§ 1-379. Appraiser's oath and fees.—The persons summoned to appraise the personal property exemption must take the same oath and are entitled to the same fees as the appraisers of the homestead, and when both exemptions are claimed by the judgment debtor, at the same time, one board of appraisers may lay off both, and are entitled to but one fee. (Rev., s. 696; Code, s. 508; 1868-9, c. 137, s. 14; C. S. 738.)

§ 1-380. Returns registered.—It is the duty of the register of deeds to "indorse on each of said returns the date when received for registration, and to cause the same to be registered without unnecessary delay. He shall receive for registering the returns the same fees allowed him by law for other similar or equivalent services, which fees shall be paid by said resident applicant, his agent or attorney, upon the reception of the returns by the register. (Rev., s. 698; Code, s. 513; 1868-9, c. 137, s. 9; C. S. 739.)

§ 1-381. Exceptions to valuation and allotment; procedure.—If the judgment creditor for whom levy is made, or judgment debtor or other person entitled to homestead and personal property exemption, is dissatisfied with the valuation and allotment of the appraisers or assessors, he, within ten days thereafter, or any other creditor within six months and before sale under execution of the excess, may notify the adverse party and the sheriff having the execution in hand, and file with the clerk of the superior court of the county where the allotment is made a transcript of the return of the appraisers or assessors which they or the sheriff shall allow to be made upon demand, together with his objections in writing to said return.

Thereupon the said clerk shall put the same on the civil issue docket of the superior court for trial at the next term thereof as other civil actions, and such issue joined has precedence over all other issues at that term. The sheriff shall not sell the excess until after the determination of said action. The ten days and six months respectively begin to run from the date of the return of the valuation and allotment of the appraisers or assessors by the officer with the clerk of the superior court of the county from whence the execution issued. Cross References.—As to proof of service, see section 1-102. As to costs of reassessment, see sec. 6-29.

Editor's Note.—By the Act of 1858-69, ch. 127, it was provided that if a judgment creditor, or debtor entitled to a homestead, should be dissatisfied with the allotment of the appraisers, it should be the duty of the township trustees to examine the action of the appraisers, and make a report of their findings.

The township board of trustees was a quasi corporation, organized under the Constitution of 1868, with limited governmental functions. The duty of reassessing the allotment of homesteads, personal property, and real estate was vested in the board of commissioners, and not those duties and obligations imposed by legislative enactment. Hence, there was a failure to deposit elsewhere an appellate jurisdiction for revising the action of the appraisers. The remedy for a party aggrieved was a direct application to the court to which the execution and allotment were returnable, yet there was no basis for such procedure. The Legislature came to the relief of the situation by passing the Act of 1903, ch. 357, the first section of which constitutes this section. See Hartman v. Spiers, 94 N. C. 150; Jones v. Commissioners, 85 N. C. 278; Burton v. Spiers, 87 N. C. 87, 90; Hartman v. Spiers, 87 N. C. 28.

Estopped from Claiming Additional Allotment.—An allotment of a homestead to the debtor of lands less in value than one thousand dollars is final in form and unobjectionable to the within the time allowed by law, was an absolute estoppel to the debtor from claiming any additional allotment in other lands which he had at the time of the allotment. Whitehead v. Smith, 101 N. C. 256, 7 S. E. 885.

Time of Application.—The application for a re-assessment of a homestead by the township board of trustees (now the superior court) must be made before the sale of the excess by the sheriff. Hepinstall v.erry, 76 N. C. 190.

Service of Notice.—Notices of dissatisfaction with allotment of personal property exemption under the section cannot be served by mail or given orally. Allen v. Strickland, 100 N. C. 225, 6 S. E. 790.

Where Exception Filed.—Exceptions to the allotment of a homestead or personal property exemptions, in all cases, must be made in the office of the clerk of the superior court of the county where the allotment is made, together with a transcript of the allotment or appraisement. McAuley v. Morris, 101 N. C. 369, 7 S. E. 885.

The section does not require that the exception be filed in the court of a justice of the peace if the judgment shall be in or the execution shall issue thereupon from that court. McAuley v. Morris, 101 N. C. 369, 371, 7 S. E. 885.

Appraiser's Return.—The return of the appraisers of the personal property exemption in question should regularly have been made by the constable to the clerk of the superior court of the county where the allotment is made and filed there as directed in the statute; but that the return was inadvertently or improperly made to the court of the justice of the peace did not render the appraisal and allotment void. McAuley v. Morris, 101 N. C. 369, 372, 7 S. E. 883.

Collateral Attack of Allotment.—An allotment of a homestead cannot be challenged collaterally by the judgment debtor on the ground that the creditor was not entitled to the same under the Act of 1903, because the allotment was made in good faith, without fraud or mistake of any kind on the part of the judgment debtor. Welch v. Welch, 101 N. C. 865, 570, 8 S. E. 156.
§ 1-382. Revaluation demanded; jury verdict; commissioners; report.—When an increase of the exemption or an allotment in property other than that set apart is demanded, the party demanding must in his objections specify the property from which the increase or reallocation is to be had. If the appraisal or assessment is reduced, the jury shall assess the value of the property embraced therein; if increased, the value of the property specified in the objections from which the increase is demanded shall also be assessed; but if the allotment is made in property other than that first set apart, the jury shall assess the value of the property so allotted. The court shall appoint three disinterested commissioners to lay off and set apart the homestead and personal property exemption in accordance with the verdict of the jury and the judgment of the court, and in the manner prescribed by this law. The commissioners, who shall be summoned by the sheriff, must meet upon the premises and, after being sworn by the sheriff or a justice of the peace to faithfully perform the duties of appraisers or assessors in allotting and laying off the homestead or personal property exemption, or both, in accordance with the verdict and judgment aforesaid, must allot and lay off the same and file their report to the next term of the court, when it shall be heard by the court upon exceptions thereto. (Rev., s. 700; 1885, c. 347; C. S. 741.)

When Valuation by Jury Unnecessary.—Where the debtor designated the particular land which he desires to have allotted as an "increase of exemption" and the creditors assent thereto, neither party can demand that the property shall be valued by a jury. Bevans, etc. & Co. v. Goodrich, 98 N. C. 217, 220, 3 S. E. 516.

Appointments and Summons of Commissioners.—Upon an appeal from the appraisal of a homestead and personal property exemptions and the assessment of the value thereof by a jury, the commissioners to set apart the exemption in accordance with the verdict must be appointed by the court and summoned by the sheriff. Shoaf & Co. v. Frost, 116 N. C. 675, 21 S. E. 409.

Valuation by Jury Is Final.—Upon an appeal from the appraisal the valuation as determined by the verdict of the jury is final and the commissioners appointed by the court to set apart the exemptions in accordance with the verdict must be guided by that valuation. Shoaf & Co. v. Frost, 116 N. C. 675, 21 S. E. 409; Shoaf & Co. v. Frost, 121 N. C. 255, 28 S. E. 412.

§ 1-383. Undertaking of objector.—The creditor, debtor, or claimant objecting to the allotment made by the appraisers or assessors under execution or petition must file with the clerk of the superior court an undertaking to the adverse party of such costs as are adjudged against him. (Rev., s. 701; Code, s. 522; C. S. 742.)

§ 1-384. Set aside for fraud, or irregularity.—An appraisal or allotment by appraisers or assessors may be set aside for fraud, complicity, or other irregularity; but after an allotment or assessment is made or confirmed by the superior court at term time, as hereinafter provided, the homestead shall not thereafter be set aside or again laid off by any other creditor except for increase in value. (Rev., s. 702; Code, s. 523; C. S. 743.)

Cross References.—As to reallotment for increase of value, see sec. 1-373; as to appeal as to re-allotment, see sec. 1-374.

§ 1-385. Return registered; original or copy evidence.—When the homestead and personal property exemption is decided by the court at term time the clerk of the superior court shall immediately file with the register of deeds of the county a copy of the same, which shall be registered as deeds are registered; and in all judicial proceedings the original or a certified copy of the return may be introduced in evidence. (Rev., s. 703; Code, s. 524; C. S. 744.)

§ 1-386. Allotted on petition of owner.—When any resident of this state desires to take the benefit of the homestead and personal property exemption as guaranteed by article ten of the state constitution, or by this article, such resident, his agent or attorney, must apply to a justice of the peace of the county in which he resides, who shall appoint as assessors three disinterested persons, qualified to act as jurors, residing in said county. The jurors, on notice by the order of the justice, shall meet at the applicant's residence, and, after taking the oath prescribed for appraisers before some officer authorized to administer an oath, lay off and allot to the applicant a homestead with metes and bounds, according to the applicant's direction, not to exceed one thousand dollars in value, and make and sign a descriptive account of the same and return it to the office of the register of deeds.

Said assessors shall set apart of the personal property of said applicant, to be by him selected, articles of personalty to which he is entitled under this chapter, not exceeding in value the sum of five hundred dollars, and make, sign and return a descriptive list thereof to the register of deeds. (Rev., ss. 607, 704; Code, ss. 511, 512; 1868-9, c. 137, ss. 7, 8; C. S. 745.)

Cross References.—As to form of petition, see section 1-392, No. 23; as to form of return, see sec. 1-392, No. 3; as to who is a resident within the meaning of the section, see annotations under sec. 1-399; as to qualifications of assessors, see annotations under sec. 1-371; as to procedure generally, see annotations under sec. 1-369 to 1-372.

Who May Petition.—In Hughes v. Hodges, 102 N. C. 236, 254, 9 S. E. 437, Merrimon, J., dissenting, said as follows: "It is not true that the homestead right is operative and beneficial only when the owner is in debt, or pressed by final process, obtained upon any debt. It is ever operative; the owner has it at any time, though he might own nothing, and be possessed of great wealth, his wife and children have the benefit of it, and he could divest himself of it only with the assent of his wife. He might have it valued and sell it to him at any time, though ordinarily he would not do so."

Nature of Proceedings.—The allotment of a homestead is a quasi in rem proceeding. Williams v. Whitaker, 110 N. C. 593, 595, 14 S. E. 924.
§ 1-387. Advertisement of petition; time of hearing.—When a person entitled to a homestead and personal property exemption files the petition before a justice of the peace to have the same laid off and set apart under the preceding sections, the justice shall make advertisement in some newspaper published in the county, for six successive weeks, and if there is no newspaper in the county, then at the courthouse door of the county in which the petition is filed, notifying all creditors of the applicant of the time and place for hearing the petition. The petition shall not be heard nor any decree made in the cause in less than six nor more than twelve months from the day of making advertisement as above required. (Rev., s. 705; Code, s. 515; 1868-9, c. 137, s. 11; C. S. 746.)

§ 1-388. Exceptions, when allotted on petition.—When the homestead or personal property exemption is allotted on the petition of the person entitled thereto, any creditor may, within six months from the time of the assessment or appraisal, and upon ten days notice to the petitioner, file his objections with the register of deeds of the county in which the premises are situated, and the register of deeds shall return the same to the clerk of the superior court of that county, who shall place them on the civil issue docket, and they shall be tried as provided for homestead and personal property exemptions set off under execution. (Rev., s. 706; Code, s. 520; C. S. 747.)

§ 1-389. Allotted to widow or minor children on death of homesteader.—If a person entitled to a homestead exemption dies without the homestead having been set apart, his widow, if he leaves no children, or his child or children under the age of twenty-one years, if he leaves such, may proceed to have the homestead exemption laid off by petition. If the widow or children have failed to have the exemption set apart in the manner provided, then in an action brought by his personal representatives to subject the property to the payment of debts and charges of administration, it is the duty of the court to appoint three disinterested freeholders to set apart to such widow, child or children a homestead exemption under metes and bounds in the lands of the decedent. The freeholders shall under their hands and seals make return of the same to the court, which shall be registered in the same manner as homestead exemptions. (Rev., s. 707; Code, s. 514; 1868-9, c. 137, s. 10; 1893, c. 332; C. S. 748.)

Cross References.—As to constitutional provisions, see Art. X, § 3. As to proceedings and cases following and minors entitled to homestead, see annotations under sec. 1-369.

Purpose and Constitutionality.—The manifest purpose of the section is to prevent the widow and minor children from being prejudiced by the failure of one entitled to a homestead to carry it to be laid off in his lifetime. It cannot be supposed that the effect of the statute is to go beyond the Constitution when its professed object is to carry into effect its provisions. Watts v. Leggett, 66 N. C. 137. When Homestead Allotted.—If a person who has no homestead of her own, is entitled to have one allotted to her out of the lands of her deceased husband, even though no homestead was allotted to him during his life. Smith v. McDonald, 95 N. C. 163.

But a widow cannot, under this section, have a homestead laid off for herself and minor children after the death of her husband, when he died without leaving debts. Hager v. Nixon, 69 N. C. 108.

Unborn Child Entitled to Allotment.—A child in ventre sa mere at the time of its father's death is entitled to have a homestead allotted to it from the homestead of its father. In re Seabolt, 113 F. 766, 771. When to "Widow and Minor Children."—The fact that an assignment of a homestead was made to "the widow and minor children" of decedent does not make it void, since it will be considered surplusage as to the widow. Formeyduval v. Rockwell, 117 N. C. 330, 23 S. E. 483.

When Homestead Can Not Be Divested.—A homestead, whether laid off to a husband in his lifetime, or to his widow (there being no children), after his death, can not be divested in favor of the heir by the release or extinguishment of the deceased husband's debts. Tucker v. Tucker, 103 N. C. 170, 9 S. E. 299.

Widow Not Entitled to Exemption of Personalty.—The personal property exemption, whether laid off to a husband in his lifetime, or to his widow, except as herein provided, is guilty of a misdemeanor, and he and his sureties are liable to the owner of the homestead for all costs and damages in a civil action. (Rev., ss. 708, 5558; Code, s. 516; 1868-9, c. 137, s. 17; C. S. 749.)

Officer's Breach of Duty.—The section subjects the sheriff to indictment and to liability on his official bond for disregarding or performing his duty under the provisions of the law relating to homestead and personal property exemptions. Welch v. Welch, 101 N. C. 565, 559, 10 S. E. 176; Lebene v. Layton, 89 N. C. 396, 400. Richardson v. Wicker, 80 N. C. 172, 174; State v. Barefoot, 104 N. C. 224, 228, 10 S. E. 170.

And for such a breach of duty, an action on the officer's official bond lies in favor of the debtor. Scott v. Kenan, 95 N. C. 298, 299.

Where a complaint alleges that a judgment debtor demanded his personal property exemptions in apt time, but that the sheriff failed and refused to allot it to him, and afterwards sold the property and applied the money to executions in his hands, it sufficiently alleges a breach of the bond, Scott & Burton v. Kenan, 94 N. C. 298.

Meaning of Damage.—The measure of damages is the actual loss sustained, and not the value of the property at the time of the levy. Jones v. Allsbrough, 115 N. C. 46, 55, 20 S. E. 170.

§ 1-390. Liability of officer as to allotment, return and levy.—Any officer making a levy, who refuses or neglects to summon and qualify appraisers as herefore provided, or fails to make due return of his proceedings, or levies upon the homestead not set off by the personal property exemptions, except as herein provided, is guilty of a misdemeanor, and he and his sureties are liable to the owner of the homestead for all costs and damages in a civil action. (Rev., ss. 708, 5558; Code, s. 516; 1868-9, c. 137, s. 17; C. S. 749.)

Officer's Breach of Duty.—The section subjects the sheriff to indictment and to liability on his official bond for disregard or non-performance of his duty under the provisions of the law relating to homestead and personal property exemptions. Welch v. Welch, 101 N. C. 565, 559, 10 S. E. 176; Lebene v. Layton, 89 N. C. 396, 400. Richardson v. Wicker, 80 N. C. 172, 174; State v. Barefoot, 104 N. C. 224, 228, 10 S. E. 170.

And for such a breach of duty, an action on the officer's official bond lies in favor of the debtor. Scott v. Kenan, 95 N. C. 298, 299.

Where a complaint alleges that a judgment debtor demanded his personal property exemptions in apt time, but that the sheriff failed and refused to allot it to him, and afterwards sold the property and applied the money to executions in his hands, it sufficiently alleges a breach of the bond, Scott & Burton v. Kenan, 94 N. C. 298.

Meaning of Damage.—The measure of damages is the actual loss sustained, and not the value of the property at the time of the levy. Jones v. Allsbrough, 115 N. C. 46, 55, 20 S. E. 170.

§ 1-391. Liability of officer, appraiser, or assessor, for conspiracy or fraud.—Any officer, appraiser, or assessor who willfully or corruptly conspires with a judgment debtor, judgment creditor, or other person, to undervalue or to overvalue the homestead or personal property exemption of a debtor, or applicant, or assigns false metes and bounds, or makes or procures to be made a false and fraudulent return thereof, is guilty of a misdemeanor and is liable to the party injured thereby for all costs and damages in a civil action. (Rev., ss. 690, 3555, 3596; Code, ss. 517, 518; 1868-9, c. 137, s. 195; 1870, c. 730.)

Duty of Sheriff.—It is the duty of a sheriff to lay off the SUBCHAPTER XII. SPECIAL PROCEEDINGS.

Art. 33. Special Proceedings.

§ 1-393. Chapter applicable to special proceedings.—The provisions of this chapter on civil procedure are applicable to special proceedings, except as otherwise provided. (Rev., s. 710; Code, s. 278; C. S. 722.)

Statutory Provisions.—The provision that "any person may be made a defendant who has or claims an interest in the controversy adverse to the plaintiff, etc.," contained in section 1-69 is applicable in special proceedings. Welfare v. Welfare, 108 N. C. 272, 12 S. E. 1025. But in an action by the heirs at law for partition of an intestate's lands, the administrator cannot be made a party defendant, upon his opposition to the partition, as he does not come within the foregoing provision. Garrison v. Cox, 99 N. C. 478, 6 S. E. 124.

Regular Action Bars Right to Special Proceedings.—Where an action in the nature of a creditor's bill was brought by § 1-394. Some form of action or special proceeding is essential to the rendition of a judgment and in this state it must always be commenced by summons or an equivalent. Morris v. House, 125 N. C. 530, 560, 34 S. E. 712.

§ 1-395. Where Service Made Returnable to Court in Term.—Where a summons in special proceeding was improperly made returnable to the superior court in term, it is proper for the judge to remand the proceeding, with directions that the summons be amended so as to make it returnable before the clerk or county court instead of the superior court. Stafford v. Gallops, 123 N. C. 19, 31 S. E. 265.

§ 1-396. Return of summons.—The officer to whom the summons is addressed shall note on it the day of its delivery to him, and, if required by the plaintiff, shall execute it immediately. When executed, he shall immediately return the summons with the date and manner of its execution, by mail or otherwise, to the clerk of the court issuing it. (Rev., s. 713; Code, s. 280; C. C. P., s. 75; C. S. 754.)

Cross Reference.—See section 1-88 et seq. and notes thereunder.

The failure of the clerk to note on the summons the day it was received is irregular but does not render the summons void. Strayhorn v. Blalock, 92 N. C. 292, 294.

Before Whom Returnable.—The summons in special proceedings is returnable before the clerk. Tate v. Powe, 64 N. C. 644.

“Service” or Prima Facie Sufficient.—When the sheriff returns that he has “served” the summons, this is prima facie sufficient and implies that he has served it as the statute directs, until the contrary is made to appear in clear and proper way. Strayhorn v. Blalock, 92 N. C. 292, 294.

Fees.—Under the practice of the Code of Civil Procedure a sheriff is not required to execute process until his fees are paid or tendered by the person at whose instance the service is to be rendered; but this does not excuse him for a failure to make a return of the process. A writ of summons is a mandate of the court, and must be obeyed by its officer, and if he has any valid excuse for not executing the writ, he must state it in his return. Johnson v. Kennedy, 70 N. C. 436.

§ 1-398. Filing time enlarged.—The time for filing the complaint, petition, or any pleading may be enlarged by the court for good cause shown by affidavit, but may not be enlarged by more than ten additional days, nor more than once, unless the default was occasioned by accident over which the party applying had no control, or by the fraud of the opposing party. (Rev., s. 716; Code, s. 281; C. C. P., s. 75; C. S. 755.)

Editor's Note.—Prior to the 1943 amendment the plaintiff was required to file his complaint or petition at the time of issuing the summons or within ten days thereafter.

§ 1-397: Repealed by Session Laws 1943, c. 543.

§ 1-398: Filing time enlarged.—The time for filing the complaint, petition, or any pleading may be enlarged by the court for good cause shown by affidavit, but may not be enlarged by more than ten additional days, nor more than once, unless the default was occasioned by accident over which the party applying had no control, or by the fraud of the opposing party. (Rev., s. 716; Code, s. 283; C. C. P., s. 79; C. S. 715.)

Power of Clerk Extinguished.—Where an application was filed to remove an administrator, and no answer having been filed, the clerk proceeded to issue a commissioners' report. The judge reversed the order and remanded the case, the clerk had power to allow an answer to be filed. Patterson v. Wadsworth, 94 N. C. 538, 540.
§ 1-359. Defenses pleaded; transferred to civil issue docket; amendments.—In special proceedings a defendant or other party thereto may plead any equitable or other defense, or ask any equitable or other relief in the pleadings which it would be competent to ask in a civil action; and when such pleas are filed the clerk shall transfer the cause to the civil issue docket for trial during term upon all issues raised by the pleadings. The trial judge may, with a view to substantial justice between the parties, allow amendments to the pleadings and interpleas in behalf of any person claiming an interest in the property. (Rev., s. 717, 1903, c. 566; C. S. 758.)

Clerk Must Transfer Case Where Equitable Defense Pleaded.—"When a party shall plead any equitable or other defense, or ask for any equitable or other relief in the pleadings, it is required that the clerk shall transfer the cause to the civil issue docket, for trial during term, upon all issues raised by the pleadings, and the judge may allow amendments to the pleadings for the purpose of a hearing of the case upon its merits." Little v. Duncan, 149 N. C. 84, 85, 62 S. E. 770. See also, Ex parte Wilson, 222 N. C. 99, 22 S. E. (2d) 262 (con. op.).

149 N. C. 84, 85, 62 S. E. 770. See also, Ex parte Wilson, 222 N. C. 99, 22 S. E. (2d) 262 (con. op.).

Clerk May Not Grant Affirmative Equitable Relief.—The clerk, in special proceedings, has no power to make any order granting affirmative equitable relief. Equitable defenses may be set up in the answer in such proceedings by way of avoidance, and when such equitable defenses exist they should be so pleaded; but when pleaded they amount to no more than defenses, and cannot be affirmatively adjudicated. Injunctions, see section 38-1 for treatment of partition of land and settlement of boundary disputes, see section 38-1 et seq. and the notes thereto.

Ejectment.—When tenancy in common is denied and there is a plea of sole seisin, non tenent in simul, the proceeding in legal effect is converted into an action in ejectment and should be transferred, by virtue of this section, to the civil issue docket for trial at term on issue of title, the burden being upon the petitioners to prove their title as in ejectment. (Rev., s. 718; Code, s. 284; 1868-9, c. 93; C. S. 759.)

Partition.—While the clerk has original jurisdiction of special proceedings for the partition of land held by tenants in common, this jurisdiction is divested or suspended by the regular judge of the superior court. It is the duty of the clerk to notify the parties of the nature of the relief demanded. (Rev., s. 719; Code, s. 285; 1868-9, c. 93, s. 2; C. S. 760.)

All Parties Interested Must be Joined.—When in special proceedings, pending before the clerk, the parties have the right to insist upon a verdict upon all issues raised by the pleadings, and the judge may allow amendments to the pleadings for the purpose of a hearing of the case upon its merits. (Rev., s. 719; Code, s. 285; 1868-9, c. 93, s. 2; C. S. 760.)

Amendments on Appeal.—In cases of appeal from the probate court (now the clerk of the superior court) to the superior court the judge has the right to allow amendments to the pleadings as if the case had been constituted in his court. Suddeth v. McCombs, 67 N. C. 353.

Evidence Considered Upon Appeal.—If there be issues of law or material questions of fact decided by the clerk, they may be reviewed by the judge at term or in chambers, on appeal properly taken; and in passing upon these questions of fact, the court may act on the evidence already received, or if this is not satisfactory, it may ordinarily require the production of other evidence as an aid in the proper disposition of the question presented. Mills v. Mc- Cullock, 161 N. C. 112, 163 S. E. 544. See also, Ex parte Wilson, 222 N. C. 99, 22 S. E. (2d) 262 (con. op.).

Cited in Jackson v. Jernigan, 216 N. C. 401, 5 S. E. (2d) 143.

§ 1-400. Ex parte; commenced by petition.—If all the parties in interest join in the proceeding and ask the same relief, the commencement of the proceedings shall be by petition, setting forth the facts entitling the petitioners to relief, and the nature of the relief demanded. (Rev., s. 718; Code, s. 284; 1868-9, c. 93; C. S. 759.)
