act of Congress known as the Fair Labor Standards Act of one thousand nine hundred thirty-eight, approved June twenty-fifth, one thousand nine hundred thirty-eight, and is further authorized to accept payment and/or reimbursement for its services as provided by said act of Congress. Any such agreement may be subject to the regulations of the administrator of the wage and hour division, or the chief of the children's bureau of the United States department of labor, as the case may be, and shall be subject to the approval of the director of the state budget. Nothing in this section shall be construed as authorizing the state department of labor to spend in excess of its appropriation from state funds, except to the extent that such excess may be paid and/or reimbursed to it by the United States department of labor. All payments received by the state department of labor under this section shall be deposited in the state treasury and are hereby appropriated to the state department of labor to enable it to carry out the agreements entered into under this section. (1939, c. 245.)

Art. 2. Maximum Working Hours.

§ 95-15. Title of article.—This article shall be known and may be cited as the "Maximum Hour Law." (1937, c. 409, s. 1.)

§ 95-16. Declaration of public policy; enactment under police power.—As a guide to interpretation and application of this article, the public policy of this state is declared as follows: The relationship of hours of labor to the health, morals and general welfare of the people is a subject of general concern which requires appropriate legislation to limit hours of labor to promote the general welfare of the people of the state without jeopardizing the competitive position of North Carolina business and industry.

The general assembly, therefore, declares that in its considered judgment the general welfare of the state requires enactment of this law under the police power of the state. (1937, c. 409, s. 2.)

§ 95-17. Limitations of hours of employment; exceptions.—No employer shall employ a female person for more than forty-eight hours in any one week or nine hours in any one day, or on more than six days in any period of seven consecutive days.

No employer shall employ a male person for more than fifty-six hours in any one week, or more than twelve days in any period of fourteen consecutive days or more than ten hours in any one day, except that in case where two or more shifts of eight hours each or less per day are employed, any shift employee may be employed not to exceed double his regular shift hours in any one day whenever a fellow employee in like work is prevented from working because of illness or other cause: Provided, that any male person employed working in excess of fifty-five hours in any one week shall be paid time and a half at their regular rate of pay for such excess hours: Provided, in case of emergencies, repair crews, engineers, electricians, firemen, watchmen, office and supervisory employees and employees engaged in hereinafter defined continuous process operations and in work, the nature of which prevents second shift operations, may be employed for not more than sixty hours in any one week: Provided, also, that the ten hours per day maximum shall not apply to any employee when his employment is required for a longer period on account of an emergency due to breakdown, installation or alteration of equipment: Provided, that boys over fourteen years of age delivering newspapers on fixed routes and working not more than twenty-four hours per week, and watchmen may be employed seven days per week: Provided further, that from the eighteenth of December to and including the following twenty-fourth of December and for two periods of one week's duration each during the year for purpose of taking inventory, female persons over sixteen years of age in mercantile establishments may be employed not to exceed ten hours in any one day: Provided further, that female persons engaged in the operation of seasonal industries in the process of conditioning and preserving perishable or semi-perishable commodities may be employed for not more than ten hours in any one day and not more than fifty-five hours in any one week.

No provision in this article shall be deemed to authorize the employment of any minor in violation of the provisions of any law expressly regulating the hours of labor of minors or of any regulations made in pursuance of such laws.

Where the day is divided into two or more work periods for the same employee, the employer shall provide that all such periods shall be within twelve consecutive hours, except that in the case of employees of motion picture theatres, restaurants, dining-rooms, and public eating places, such periods shall be within fourteen consecutive hours:

Provided, that the transportation of employees to and from work shall not constitute any part of the employees' work hours.

Nothing in this section or any other provisions of this article shall apply to the employment of persons in agricultural occupations, ice plants, cotton gins and cottonseed oil mills or in domestic service in private homes and boarding houses, or to the work of persons over eighteen years of age in bona fide office, foremanship, clerical or supervisory capacity, executive positions, learned professions, commercial travelers, motion picture theatres, seasonal hotels and club houses, commercial fishing or tobacco redrying plants, tobacco warehouses, employers employing a total of not more than eight persons in each place of business, charitable institutions and hospitals: Provided further, that nothing in this section or in any other provision of this article shall apply to railroads, common carriers and public utilities subject to the jurisdiction of the interstate commerce commission or the North Carolina utilities commission, and utilities operated by municipalities or any transportation agencies now regulated by the federal government: Provided, nothing in this article shall apply to the state or to municipal corporations or their employees, or to employees in hotels.

When, by reason of a seasonal rush of business, any employer finds or believes it to be necessary that the employees of his or its manufacturing plant shall work for more than fifty-six hours per week, the employer may apply to the commissioner of labor of the state of North Carolina for permission to allow the employees of such establishment to work a greater number of hours than fifty-six for a definite length of time not exceeding sixty days; and the commissioner, after investigation, may, in his discretion, issue such permit on the condition that all such employees shall receive one and one-half times the usual compensation for all hours worked over fifty-six per week: Provided, this shall not apply to the hours of any female person or any person under the age of eighteen years: Provided further, employees in all laundries and dry cleaning establishments shall not be employed more than fifty-five hours in any one week: Provided further, nothing contained in this article shall be construed to limit the hours of employment of any outside salesmen on commission basis. Provided, that this article shall not apply to male clerks in mercantile establishments. Provided, that this article shall not apply to retail or wholesale florists nor to employees of retail or wholesale florists during the following periods of each year: one week prior to and including Easter, one week prior to and including Christmas, and one week prior to and including Mother's Day. (1937, cc. 406, 409, s. 3; 1939, c. 312, s. 1; 1943, c. 59.)

Cross Reference.—Compare sections 95-26 and 95-27.

Editor's Note.—The 1939 amendment added the last proviso.

The 1943 amendment substituted "fifty-six" for "fifty-five" in line two of the second paragraph and in lines four, nine and fourteen of the last paragraph. It also inserted the first proviso in the second paragraph.

The state commissioner of labor or his duly authorized representative shall, for the purpose of examination, have access to and the right to copy from such time book and/or record for the purpose of prosecuting violations of the provisions of the article. Any employer who fails to keep such time book and/or record, or knowingly and intentionally makes any false statement therein, or refuses to make such time book and/or record accessible, upon request, to the state commissioner of labor or his duly authorized representative shall be deemed to have violated this section. (1937, c. 409, s. 6.)

§ 95-21. Enforcement by commissioner of labor.—It shall be the duty of the state commissioner of labor to enforce all the provisions of this article. The state commissioner of labor and his authorized representatives shall have the power and authority to enter any place of employment, and, in the enforcement of this article, the state commissioner of labor and his authorized representatives may enter and inspect as often as practicable all such places of employment. (1937, c. 409, s. 8.)

§ 95-23. Violation a misdemeanor.—Any person who, whether on his own behalf or for another, or through an agent, manager, representative, foreman or other person, shall knowingly and intentionally violate any provisions of this article, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (1937, c. 409, s. 9.)

for remedying the aforesaid conditions. (1937, c. 409, s. 10.)

§ 95-25. Intimidating witnesses. — Whoever shall, by force, intimidation, threat of procuring dismissal from employment, or by any other manner whatsoever, induce or attempt to induce an employee to refrain from giving testimony in any investigation or proceeding relating to or arising under this article, or whoever discharges or penalizes any employee for so testifying, shall be subject to a fine of not less than ten ($10.00) dollars nor more than fifty ($50.00) dollars, or by imprisonment for not more than thirty days. (1937, c. 409, s. 11.)

Art. 3. Various Regulations.

§ 95-26. Week's work of women to be fifty-five hours.—Not more than fifty-five hours shall constitute a week's work for women over sixteen in any laundry, dry-cleaning establishment, pressing club, work-shop, factory, manufacturing establishment, or mill, of the State, and no woman over sixteen employed in any of the above-named places shall be worked exceeding eleven hours in any one day or over fifty-five hours in any one week. Any employer of labor violating the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be fined not exceeding fifty dollars or imprisoned not exceeding thirty days, and each day's work exceeding the said hours shall constitute a separate offense. Provided, that this section shall not apply to those employed in the operation of seasonal industries in their process of conditioning and of preserving perishable or semi-perishable commodities, or to those engaged in agricultural work. Provided, further, that this section shall not apply to retail or wholesale florists nor to employees of retail or wholesale florists during the following periods of each year: one week prior to and including Easter, one week prior to and including Christmas, and one week prior to and including Mother's Day. (1915, c. 148, s. 2; 1931, c. 289; 1935, c. 406; 1939, c. 312, s. 2; C. S. 6554.)

Cross Reference.—For hours law applicable to employers hiring nine or more employees, see §§ 95-15 to 95-25.

Editor's Note.—The Act of 1931 struck out the former section which provided a sixty hour week for men and women, permitting the men to exceed it under special contract for overtime, and substituted a section making no provision for male workers.

The amendment of 1935 made this section applicable to laundries, dry-cleaning establishments, pressing clubs and work-shops.

The 1939 amendment added the second proviso.

§ 95-27. Hours of work for women in certain industries.—It shall be unlawful for any person, firm, or corporation, proprietor or owner of any retail, or wholesale mercantile establishment or other business where any female help is employed for the purpose of serving the public in the capacity of clerks, salesladies or waitresses and other employees of public eating places, to employ or permit to work any female longer than ten hours in any one day or over fifty-five hours in any one week; nor shall any female be employed or permitted to work for more than six hours continuously at any one time without an interval of at least half an hour except where the terms of employment do not call for more than six and a half hours in any one day or period.

Nothing in this section shall be construed to apply to females whose full time is employed as bookkeepers, cashiers or office assistants or to any establishment that does not have in its employment three or more persons at any one time.

Every employer shall post in a conspicuous place in every room of the establishment in which females are employed a printed notice stating the provisions of this section and the hours of labor. The printed form of such notice shall be furnished, upon request, by the commissioner of labor.

Any employer of labor violating the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be fined not exceeding one hundred dollars or imprisoned not exceeding sixty days and each day's work exceeding the said hours shall constitute a separate offense. (1933, c. 35; 1935, c. 407.)

Cross Reference.—For hours law applicable to employers hiring nine or more employees, see §§ 95-15 to 95-25.

Editor's Note.—The amendment of 1935 omitted a proviso, which formerly appeared in the second paragraph, stating that the section should not apply to establishments in towns of less than five thousand inhabitants.

§ 95-28. Working hours of employees in state institutions.—It shall be unlawful for any person or official or foreman or other person in authority in the state hospital at Raleigh, the state hospital at Morganton, the state hospital at Goldsboro, or any penal or correctional institution of the State of North Carolina, excepting the state prison and institutions under the control of the state commission of highways and public works, to require any employee to work for a greater number of hours than twelve (12) during any twenty-four (24) hour period, or not more than eighty-four (84) hours during any one one week, or permit the same, during which period the said employee shall be permitted to take one continuous hour off duty; except in case of an emergency as determined by the superintendent, in which case the limitation of twelve (12) hours in any consecutive twenty-four (24) shall not apply. Nothing in this section shall be construed to effect the hours of doctors and superintendents in these hospitals. Any violation of this section shall be a misdemeanor, punishable within the discretion of the court. (1935, c. 136.)

§ 95-29. Seats for women employees; failure to provide, a misdemeanor.—All persons, firms, or corporations who employ females in a store, shop, office, or manufacturing establishment, as clerks, operatives, or helpers in any business, trade, or occupation carried on or operated in the state of North Carolina, shall be required to procure and provide proper and suitable seats for all such females, and shall permit the use of such seats, rests, or stools as may be necessary, and shall not make any rules, regulations, or orders preventing the use of such seats, stools, or rests when any such female employee or employees are not actively employed or engaged in their work in such business or employment.

If any employer of female help fails to provide seats, as required in this article, or makes any rules, orders or regulations in his or its shop, store, or other place of business requiring females to remain standing when not necessarily employed or engaged in service or labor therein, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be punished by fine or imprisonment, or both, within the discretion of the court.

The Commissioner of Labor, or his duly authorized agents, may at any time enter and inspect all stores, shops, offices, or manufacturing or other establishments coming within the provisions of this section, and he may make such rules and regulations as he deems necessary to enforce the provisions of this section. It shall be unlawful for any person, firm or corporation to refuse permission to enter, obstruct, or prevent any duly authorized agent of the commissioner in his effort to make the inspection herein provided for. (1909, c. 857, ss. 1, 2; 1919, c. 100, s. 12; C. S. 6555.)

§ 95-30. Medical chests in factories; failure to provide, a misdemeanor.—Every person, firm, or corporation operating a factory or shop employing over twenty-five laborers, in which machinery is used for any manufacturing purpose, or for any purpose except for elevation or for heating or hoisting apparatus, shall at all times keep and maintain free of expense to the employees a medical or surgical chest which shall contain two porcelain pans, two tourniquets, gauze, absorbent cotton, adhesive plasters, bandages, antiseptic soap, one bottle of carbolic acid with directions on bottle, one bottle antiseptic tablets, one pair scissors, one folding stretcher, for the treatment of persons injured or taken ill upon the premises: Provided, this section does not require any employer to spend over ten dollars for such equipment.

Any person, firm, or corporation violating this section shall be subject to a fine of not less than five dollars nor more than twenty-five dollars for every week during which such violation continues. (1911, c. 57; C. S. 6556.)

§ 95-31. Acceptance by employer of assignment of wages. — No employer of labor shall be responsible for any assignment of wages to be earned in the future, executed by an employee, unless and until such assignment of wages is accepted by the employer in a written agreement to pay same. (1935, c. 410; 1937, c. 90.)

Editor's Note.—The 1937 amendment struck out the former proviso exempting Rowan, Iredell, Rockingham and Cabarrus counties from the provisions of this section.

Section Applies Only to Wages to Be Earned.—An assignment by an employee of wages earned and due him by the employer is valid without acceptance by the employer, and the assignee may sue the employer thereon, the provision of this section being applicable only to wages to be earned in the future. Rickman v. Holshouser, 217 N. C. 377, 8 S. E. (2d) 199.

It Is Constitutional.—The provisions of this section rendering an assignment invalid unless accepted in writing by the employer, does not deprive the assignee of due process of law or the equal protection of the laws. Morris v. Holshouser, 220 N. C. 293, 297, 17 S. E. (2d) 115, 137 A. L. R. 733.

When applied to contracts executed after its effective date this section cannot be held unconstitutional as impairing the obligations of contracts. Morris v. Holshouser, 220 N. C. 293, 17 S. E. (2d) 115, 137 A. L. R. 733.

This section is a regulation of contracts growing out of the relationship of employer and employee imposed for the general welfare and is a valid exercise of the police power of the state. Morris v. Holshouser, 220 N. C. 293, 17 S. E. (2d) 115, 137 A. L. R. 733.

The fact that this section permits an employer, at his election, to accept an assignment of unearned wages executed by his employee does not in itself constitute an unconstitutional discrimination, since in the absence of legislative restraint, one engaged in private business may exercise his own pleasure as to the parties with whom he will deal. Morris v. Holshouser, 220 N. C. 293, 17 S. E. (2d) 115, 137 A. L. R. 733.

Purpose.—The end in view was not only to relieve the employer of unnecesary responsibility, but also to restrain the activities of those who were engaged in the business of buying at a discount the unearned wages of employees. Morris v. Holshouser, 220 N. C. 293, 298, 17 S. E. (2d) 115, 137 A. L. R. 733.

Art. 4. Conciliation Service and Mediation of Labor Disputes.

§ 95-32. Declaration of policy.—It is hereby declared as the public policy of this state that the best interests of the people of the state are served by the prevention or prompt settlement of labor disputes; that strikes and lockouts and other forms of industrial strife, regardless of where the merits of the controversy lie, are forces productive ultimately of economic waste; that the interests and rights of the consumers and the people of the state, while not direct parties thereto, should always be considered, respected and protected; and that the conciliation and voluntary mediation of such disputes under the guidance and supervision of a governmental agency will tend to promote permanent industrial peace and the health, welfare, comfort and safety of the people of the state. To carry out such policy, the necessity for the enactment of the provisions of this article is hereby declared as a matter of legislative determination. (1941, c. 362, s. 1.)

§ 95-33. Scope of article.—The provisions of this article shall apply to all labor disputes in North Carolina. (1941, c. 362, s. 2.)

§ 95-35. Conciliation service established; personnel; removal; compensation.—There is hereby established in the department of labor a conciliation service. The commissioner of labor may appoint such employees as may be required for the consummation of the work under this article, prescribe their duties and fix their compensation, subject to existing laws applicable to the appointment and compensation of employees of the state of North Carolina. Any member of or employee in the conciliation service may be removed from office by the commissioner of labor, acting in his discretion. (1941, c. 362, s. 4.)

§ 95-36. Powers and duties of commissioner and conciliator.—Upon his own motion in an existent or imminent labor dispute, the commissioner of labor may, and, upon the direction of the governor, must order a conciliator to take such steps as seem expedient to effect a voluntary, amicable and expeditious adjustment and settlement of the differences and issues between employer and employees which have precipitated or culminated in or threaten to precipitate or culminate in such labor dispute.

The conciliator shall promptly put himself in communication with the parties to such controversy, and shall use his best efforts, by mediation, to bring them to agreement. (1941, c. 362, s. 5.)

ployment agency within the meaning of this article shall include any business operated by any person, firm or corporation for profit and engaged in procuring employment for any person, firm or corporation in the State of North Carolina and making a charge on the employee or employer for the service. § 95-38. License from Commissioner of Labor; investigation of applicant.—No person, firm or corporation shall engage in the business of operating any employment agency, as designated in § 95-37, in North Carolina without first making a written application to the Commissioner of Labor and being licensed by him as herein provided, to engage in such business. Upon receiving an application from such person, firm or corporation it shall be the duty of the Commissioner of Labor to make an investigation into the character and moral standing of the person, firm or corporation. If after such investigation, the Commissioner of Labor shall be satisfied that such person, firm or corporation is of such character and moral standing as to warrant the issuance of a license to engage in the business covered by this article, he shall issue a license to such person, firm or corporation as provided herein. (1929, c. 178, s. 2; 1931, c. 312, s. 3.)

§ 95-39. Rules and regulations governing issuance of licenses.—The Commissioner of Labor is authorized and empowered to make general rules and regulations in relation to the licensing of such employment agencies and for the general supervision thereof in accordance with this article. (1929, c. 178, s. 3; 1931, c. 312, s. 3.)

§ 95-40. Investigation of records of agencies; hearing; rescission of licenses.—The Commissioner of Labor may investigate the books and records of any employment agency licensed under this article, and may rescind the license of the agency for cause if he finds that the agency is not complying with the terms and conditions of this article. No license shall be revoked until the Commissioner shall hold a hearing at the Court House of the County in which the licensee is doing business. The licensee shall be given ten days' notice to appear at the hearing and show cause why the license should not be revoked. At the hearing the result of the Commissioner's investigation shall be presented under oath, and the licensee may present evidence to show that the license should not be revoked. The licensee may appeal to the Superior Court within ten days after the Commissioner's decision. (1929, c. 178, s. 4; 1931, c. 312, s. 3.)

§ 95-41. Subpoenas; oaths.—The Commissioner of Labor, his Assistant or deputy shall be empowered to subpoena witnesses and administer oaths in making investigations and taking testimony to be presented at the hearing to be held before the Commissioner of Labor as hereinbefore provided for. (1929, c. 178, s. 5; 1931, c. 312, s. 3.)

§ 95-42. Service of subpoenas and fees for, governed by general law.—The County Sheriffs and their respective deputies shall serve all subpoenas of the Commissioner of Labor, and shall receive the same fees as are now provided by law for like services, and each witness who appears in obedience to such subpoena shall receive for attendance the fees and mileage for witnesses in civil cases of courts of the County in which the hearing is held. (1929, c. 178, s. 6; 1931, c. 312, s. 3.)

Local Modification.—Harnett, Lee, Johnston, Northampton, Sampson, Cleveland, Rutherford, Polk, and Henderson: C. S. 6564.

(1919, c. 100, s. 7; 1931, c. 312, ss. 12, 14; C. S. 6563(a).)

Art. 7. Board of Boiler Rules and Bureau of Boiler Inspection.

§ 95-54. Board of boiler rules created; members, appointment, and qualifications; terms of office; vacancies; meetings.—There is hereby created the North Carolina board of boiler rules consisting of five members, of whom four shall be appointed to the board by the governor, one for a term of one year, one for a term of two years, one for a term of three years and one for a term of four years. At the expiration of their respective terms of office, their successors shall be appointed for terms of four years each. Upon the death or incapacity of any member, the vacancy for the remainder of the term shall be filled with a representative of the same class. Of these four appointed members, one shall be a representative of the owners and users of steam boilers within the State of North Carolina, one a representative of the boiler manufacturers or a boiler maker who has had not less than five years practical experience as a boilermaker within the State of North Carolina, one a representative of a boiler inspection and insurance company licensed to do business within the State of North Carolina, and one a representative of the operating steam engineers in the State of North Carolina. The fifth member shall be the commissioner of labor, who shall be chairman of the board. The board shall meet at least twice yearly at the state capital or other place designated by the board. (1935, c. 326, s. 1.)

§ 95-55. Formulation of rules and regulations.—The board shall formulate rules and regulations for the safe and proper construction, installation, repair, use and operation of steam boilers in this State. The rules and regulations so formulated shall conform as nearly as possible to the boiler code of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers and amendments and interpretations thereto made and approved by the council of the society. (1935, c. 326, s. 1.)

§ 95-56. Approval of rules and regulations by governor. — The rules and regulations formulated by the board of boiler rules shall become effective upon approval by the governor, except that rules applying to the construction of new boilers shall not become effective to prevent the installation of such new boilers until six months after approval by the governor. Changes in the rules which would raise the standards governing the methods of construction of new boilers or the quality of material used in them shall not become effective until six months after approval by the governor. (1935, c. 326, s. 2.)

§ 95-57. Compensation and expenses of board.—The members of the board of boiler rules, exclusive of the chairman thereof, shall serve without salary and shall receive their actual expenses, not to exceed their actual railroad fare plus four dollars ($4.00) per day each, for not to exceed twenty days in any year while in the performance of their duties as members of the board, to be paid in the same manner as in case of other state officers. The chairman of the board of boiler rules shall countersign all vouchers for expenditures under this section. (1935, c. 326, s. 3.)

§ 95-58. Effect of article on boilers installed prior to enactment.—This article shall not be construed as in any way preventing the use or sale of steam boilers in this State which shall have been installed or in use in this State prior to the taking effect of this article and which shall have been made to conform to the rules and regulations of the board of boiler rules governing existing installations as provided in § 95-66. (1935, c. 326 s. 4.)

§ 95-59. Commissioner of labor empowered to appoint chief inspector; qualifications; salary.—After the passage of this article and at any time thereafter that the office may become vacant, the commissioner of labor shall appoint, and may remove for cause when so appointed, a citizen of this State who shall have had at the time of such appointment not less than five years' practical experience with steam boilers as a steam engineer, mechanical engineer, boilermaker or boiler inspector, or who has passed the same kind of examination as that prescribed for deputy or special inspectors in § 95-63, to be chief inspector for a term of two years or until his successor shall have been appointed, at an annual salary to be fixed by the commissioner of labor with the approval of the assistant director of the budget. (1935, c. 326, s. 5; 1943, c. 469.)

Editor's Note.—Prior to the 1943 amendment the salary was fixed at $2,000.

§ 95-60. Certain boilers excepted.—This article shall not apply to boilers under federal control or to stationary boilers used by railroads which are inspected regularly by competent inspectors, or to boilers used solely for propelling motor road vehicles; or to boilers of steam fire engines brought into the state for temporary use in times of emergency to check conflagrations; or to portable boilers used for agricultural purposes only or for pumping or drilling in the open field for water, gas or coal, gold, talc or other minerals and metals; or to steam heating boilers which carry pressures not exceeding fifteen pounds per square inch, built in accordance with the boiler code of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers. (1935, c. 326, s. 6; 1937, c. 125, s. 1.)

Editor's Note. — Prior to the 1937 amendment this section excepted boilers used for heating purposes.

§ 95-61. Powers of commissioner of labor; creation of bureau of boiler inspection. — The commissioner of labor is hereby charged, directed and empowered:

(a) To set up in the division of standards and inspections of the department of labor, a bureau of boiler inspection to be supervised by the chief inspector provided for in § 95-59 and one or more deputy inspectors of boilers, who shall have passed the examination provided for in § 95-63, at a salary not to exceed the salary of a senior factory inspector, and such office help as may be necessary.

(b) To have free access for himself and his chief boiler inspector and deputies, during reasonable hours, to any premises in the State where a steam boiler is built or where a steam boiler or power plant apparatus is being installed or operated, for the purpose of ascertaining whether such boiler is built, installed and operated in accordance with the provisions of this article.

(c) To prosecute all violators of the provisions of this article.

(d) To issue, suspend and revoke inspection certificates allowing steam boilers to be operated, as provided in this article.

(e) To enforce the laws of the State governing the use of steam boilers and to enforce the rules and regulations of the board of boiler rules.

(f) To keep a complete record of the type, dimensions, age, condition, pressure allowed upon, location and date of the last inspection of all steam boilers to which this article applies.

(g) To publish and distribute among boiler manufacturers and others requesting them, copies of the rules and regulations adopted by the board of boiler rules. (1935, c. 326, s. 7.)

§ 95-62. Provision for special inspectors; examination required. — In addition to the deputy boiler inspectors authorized by § 95-61, the commissioner of labor shall, upon the request of any company authorized to insure against loss from explosion of boilers in this State, issue to any boiler inspectors of said company commissions as special inspectors: Provided, that each such inspector before receiving his commission shall pass satisfactorily the examination provided for in § 95-63, or, in lieu of such examination, shall hold a certificate of competency as an inspector of steam boilers for a state that has a standard of examination equal to that of the State of North Carolina, or a certificate from the national board of boiler and pressure vessel inspectors. The fee for such commission shall be one dollar ($1.00) and one dollar ($1.00) for each annual renewal thereof. Such special inspectors shall receive no salary from, nor shall any of their expenses be paid by, the State, and the continuance of a special inspector's commission shall be conditioned upon his continuing in the employ of a boiler inspection and insurance company duly authorized as aforesaid and upon his maintenance of the standards imposed by this article. Such special inspectors shall inspect all steam boilers insured by their respective companies, and the owners of such insured boilers shall be exempt from the payment of the fees provided for in § 95-68. Each company employing such special inspectors shall, within thirty days following each annual internal inspection made by such inspectors, file a report of such inspection with the commissioner of labor. (1935, c. 326, s. 8.)

§ 95-63. Examination for inspectors; revocation of commission.—Examination for deputy or special inspectors shall be given by the board of boiler rules or by at least two examiners to be appointed by said board and must be written or part written and part oral recorded in writing and must be confined to questions the answers to which will aid in determining the fitness and competency of the applicant for the intended service and must be of uniform grade throughout the State. In case an applicant for an inspector's appointment or commission fails to pass this examination, he may appeal to the board of boiler rules for a second examination which shall be given by said board, or if by examiners appointed by said board, then by examiners other than those by whom the first examination was given and these examiners shall be appointed forthwith to give said second examination. Upon the result of this examination on appeal, the board shall determine whether the applicant be qualified. The record of any applicant's examination, whether original or on appeal, shall be accessible to him and his employer.

A commission may be revoked by the commissioner of labor upon the recommendation of the chief inspector of steam boilers, for the incompetence or untrustworthiness of the holder thereof or for wilful falsification of any matter or statement contained in his application or in a report of any inspection. A person whose commission is revoked may appeal from the revocation to the board of boiler rules which shall hear the appeal and either set aside or affirm the revocation and its decision shall be final. The person whose commission has been revoked shall be entitled to be present in person and by counsel on the hearing of the appeal. If a certificate or commission is lost or destroyed, a new certificate or commission shall be issued in its place without another examination. A person who has failed to pass the examination for a commission or whose commission has been revoked shall be entitled to apply for a new examination and commission after ninety days from such failure or revocation. (1935, c. 326, s. 9.)

§ 95-64. Boiler inspections; fee; certificate; suspension.—On and after April first, nineteen hundred and thirty-five, each steam boiler used or proposed to be used within this State, except boilers exempt under § 95-60, shall be thoroughly inspected internally and externally while not under pressure by the chief inspector or by one of the deputy inspectors or special inspectors provided for herein, as to its design, construction, installation, condition and operation; and if it shall be found to be suitable, and to conform to the rules and regulations of the board of boiler rules, the owner or user of a steam boiler as required in this article to be inspected shall pay to the chief inspector the sum of one dollar ($1.00) for each inspection certificate issued, and the chief inspector shall issue to the owner or user thereof an inspection certificate specifying the maximum pressure which it may be allowed to carry. Such inspection certificate shall be valid for not more than fourteen months from its date, and it shall be posted under glass in the engine or boiler room containing such boiler, or an engine operated by it, or, in the case of a portable boiler, in the office of the plant where it is located for the time being. No inspection certificate issued for a boiler inspected by a special inspector shall be valid after the boiler for which it was issued shall cease to be insured by a duly authorized insurance company. The chief inspector or any deputy inspector may, at any time, suspend an inspection certificate when, in his opinion, the boiler for which it was issued may not continue to be operated without menace to the public safety, or when the boiler is found not to comply with the rules herein provided for and a special inspector shall have corresponding powers with respect to inspection certificates for boilers insured by the company employing him. Such suspension of an inspection certificate shall continue in effect until said boiler shall have been made to conform to the rules and regulations of the board of boiler rules and until said inspection certificate shall have been reinstated by a state inspector, if the inspection certificate was suspended by a state inspector, or by a special inspector, if it was suspended by a special inspector. Not more than fourteen months shall elapse between such inspections and there shall be at least four such inspections in thirty-seven consecutive months. Each such boiler shall also be inspected externally while under pressure with at least the same frequency, and at no greater intervals. (1935, c. 326, s. 10; 1937, c. 125, s. 2; 1939, c. 361, s. 1.)

Editor's Note.—The 1937 amendment, which struck out the fee provision in the first sentence, was repealed by the 1939 amendment.

§ 95-65. Operation of unapproved boiler prohibited.—On and after July first, nineteen hundred and thirty-five, it shall be unlawful for any person, firm, partnership or corporation to operate under pressure in this State a steam boiler to which this article applies without a valid inspection certificate as provided for in this article. The operation of a steam boiler without an inspection certificate, shall constitute a misdemeanor on the part of the owner, user or operator thereof and be punishable by a fine not exceeding one hundred dollars ($100) or imprisonment not to exceed thirty days, or both, in the discretion of the court. (1935, c. 326, s. 11.)

§ 95-66. Installation of boilers not conforming to requirements prohibited; boilers now in use to conform.—No steam boiler which does not conform to the rules and regulations formulated by the board of boiler rules governing new installations shall be installed in this State after six months from the date upon which the said rules and regulations shall become effective by the approval of the governor.

All steam boilers installed and ready for use, or being used, before the said six months shall have elapsed, shall be made to conform to the rules and regulations of the board of boiler rules governing existing installations and the formula therein prescribed shall be used in determining the maximum allowable working pressure for such boilers. (1935, c. 326, s. 12.)

§ 95-67. Inspection of boilers during construction in state; outside state.—All boilers to be installed after six months from the date upon which the rules and regulations of the board of boiler rules shall become effective by the approval of the governor shall be inspected during construction by an inspector authorized to inspect boilers in this State, or if constructed outside the State, by an inspector holding a certificate of authority from the commissioner of labor of this State, which certificate shall be issued by the said commissioner of labor to any inspector who holds a certificate of authority to inspect steam boilers issued by a State which shall have adopted boiler rules that require standards of construction and operation substantially equal to those of this State, or an inspector who holds a certificate of inspection issued by the national board of boiler and pressure vessel inspectors. (1935, c. 326, s. 12.)

§ 95-68. Fees for internal and external inspections.—The owner or user of a steam boiler, required by this article to be inspected by the chief boiler inspector or a deputy inspector, shall pay to the inspector six ($6.00) dollars for each fire tube boiler over thirty inches in diameter internally inspected and four ($4.00) dollars for each fire tube boiler over thirty inches in diameter externally inspected while under pressure and shall pay to the inspector four ($4.00) dollars for each fire tube boiler up to and including thirty inches in diameter internally inspected and three ($3.00) dollars for each fire tube boiler up to and including thirty inches in diameter externally inspected while under pressure. All water tube boilers shall be charged six ($6.00) dollars for each internal inspection and four ($4.00) dollars for each external inspection while under pressure.

Not more than ten ($10.00) dollars shall be collected for any one fire tube boiler over thirty inches in diameter for any one year. Not more than seven ($7.00) dollars shall be collected for any one fire tube boiler up to and including thirty inches in diameter for any one year. Not more than ten ($10.00) dollars shall be collected for any water tube boiler for any one year: Provided, that one ($1.00) dollar of each internal inspection fee shall be the fee for the certificate of inspection required by § 95-64. The inspector shall give receipts for said fees and shall pay all sums so received to the commissioner of labor, who shall pay the same to the treasurer of the state. The treasurer of the state shall hold the fees collected under this section and under § 95-64 in a special account to pay the salaries and expenses incident to the administration of this article, the surplus, with the approval of the director of the budget, to be added to the appropriation of the division of standards and inspections of the department of labor for its general inspectional service. (1935, c. 326, s. 13; 1937, c. 125, s. 3; 1939, c. 361, s. 2.)

Editor's Note.—The 1939 amendment struck out this section as amended and inserted the above in place thereof.

§ 95-69. Bonds of chief inspector and deputy inspectors.—The chief inspector shall furnish a bond in the sum of five thousand dollars ($5,000), and each of the deputy inspectors shall furnish a bond in the sum of one thousand dollars ($1,000), conditioned upon the faithful performance of their duties and upon a true account of moneys handled by them respectively, and the payment thereof to the proper recipient. The cost of said bonds shall be paid by the state treasurer out of the special fund provided for in § 95-68. (1935, c. 326, s. 14; 1937, c. 125, s. 4.)

Editor's Note.—Prior to the 1937 amendment this section excepted certain counties and ground sawmills.

Art. 8. Bureau of Labor for the Deaf.

§ 95-70. Creation.—There shall be created in the department of labor a division devoted to the deaf. (1923, c. 122, s. 1; 1931, c. 312, s. 3; C. S. 7312(j).)

§ 95-71. Appointment of chief of bureau; duties.—The commissioner of labor shall appoint a competent deaf man to take charge of such division, who shall devote his time to the special work of labor for the deaf under the supervision of the commissioner of labor, and who shall be designated chief of the bureau of labor for the deaf. He shall collect statistics of the deaf, ascertain what trades or occupations are most suitable for them and best adapted to promote their interest, and use his best efforts to aid them in securing such employment as they may be fitted to engage in. He shall study the methods in use in the education of the deaf as exemplified in the deaf themselves, with a view to determining their practicability and respective values in lifting them to become self-supporting, useful citizens and enabling them to obtain the greatest amount of happiness in life. He shall keep a census of the deaf and obtain facts, information and statistics as to their condition in life, with a view to the betterment of their lot. He shall endeavor to obtain statistics and information of the condition of labor and employment and education of the deaf in other states, with a view to promoting the general welfare of the deaf in this state. He shall make reports and recommendations from time to time as may be provided by law, and he shall also issue special reports or pamphlets as may be deemed necessary, giving results and information that may be helpful. (1923, c. 122, ss. 2, 3; 1931, c. 312, s. 3; C. S. 7312(k).)

§ 95-72. Assignment of other duties.—In case the duties herein enumerated should not occupy all of the time of such chief of the bureau of labor for the deaf, he shall perform such other duties in the department of labor as may be assigned him by the commissioner of labor. (1923, c. 122, s. 5; 1931, c. 312, s. 3; C. S. 7312(m).)

Art. 9. Earnings of Employees in Interstate Commerce.

§ 95-73. Collections out of state to avoid exemptions forbidden.—No resident creditor or other holder of any book account, negotiable instrument, duebill or other monetary demand arising out of contract, due by or chargeable against any resident wage-earner or other salaried employee of any railway corporation or other corporation, firm, or individual engaged in interstate business shall send out of the state, assign, or transfer the same, for value or otherwise, with intent to thereby deprive such debtor of his personal earnings and property exempt by law from application to the payment of his debts under the laws of the state of North Carolina, by instituting or causing to be instituted thereon against such debtor, in any court outside of this state, in such creditor's own name or in the name of any other person, any action, suit, or proceeding for the attachment or garnishment of such debtor's earnings in the hands of his employer, when such creditor and debtor and the railway corporation or other corporation, firm, or individual owing the wages or salary intended to be reached are under the jurisdiction of the courts of this state. (1909, c. 504, s. 1; C. S. 6568.)

§ 95-75. Remedies for violation of section 95-73 or 95-74; damages; indictment.—Any person violating any provision of § 95-73 or 95-74 shall be answerable in damages to any debtor from whom any book account, negotiable instrument, duebill, or other monetary demand arising out of contract shall be collected, or against whose earnings any warrant of attachment or notice of garnishment shall be issued, in violation of the provisions of § 95-73, to the full amount of the debt thus collected, attached, or garnisheed, to be recovered by civil action in any court of competent jurisdiction in this state; and any person so offending shall likewise be guilty of a misdemeanor, punishable by a fine of not more than two hundred dollars. (1909, c. 504, s. 3; C. S. 6570.)

§ 95-76. Institution of foreign suit, etc., evidence of intent to violate.—In any civil or criminal action instituted in any court of competent jurisdiction in this state for any violation of the provisions of §§ 95-73 and 95-74, proof of the institution or prosecution of any action, suit, or proceeding in violation of the provisions of § 95-73, or the issuance of service therein of any warrant of attachment, notice, or garnishment or other like writ for the garnishment of earnings of the defendant therein, or of the payment by the garnishee therein of any final judgment rendered in any such action, suit, or proceeding shall be deemed prima facie evidence of the intent of the creditor or other holder of the debt sued upon to deprive such debtor of his personal earnings and property exempt from application to the payment of his debts under the laws of this state, in violation of the provisions of this article. (1909, c. 504, s. 4; C. S. 6571.)

Chapter 96. Unemployment Compensation.

Art. 1. Unemployment Compensation Commission.

Art. 2. Unemployment Compensation Division.

Art. 3. Employment Service Division.

Art. 1. Unemployment Compensation Commission.

§ 96-1. Title. — This chapter shall be known and may be cited as the "Unemployment Compensation Law." (Ex. Sess., 1936, c. 1, s. 1.)

Editor's Note. — For article discussing unemployment compensation, see 15 N. C. Law Rev. 377.

For article on the 1939 amendments to this chapter, see 17 N. C. Law Rev. 415.

Weight to Be Given Federal Constructions.—Our state unemployment compensation act was passed pursuant to a plan national in scope, and therefore serious consideration is to be given to the construction placed upon similar language of the federal statute by the commissioner of internal revenue, but the interpretation of the act is finally for our courts, and neither the ruling of the commissioner nor that of the state unemployment compensation commission is conclusive. Unemployment Compensation Comm. v. Wachovia Bank, etc., Co., 215 N. C. 491, 2 S. E. (2d) 592.

§ 96-2. Declaration of state public policy. — As a guide to the interpretation and application of this chapter, the public policy of this state is declared to be as follows: Economic insecurity due to unemployment is a serious menace to the health, morals, and welfare of the people of this state. Involuntary unemployment is therefore a subject of general interest and concern which requires appropriate action by the legislature to prevent its spread and to lighten its burden which now so often falls with crushing force upon the unemployed worker and his family. The achievement of social security requires protection against this greatest hazard of our economic life. This can be provided by encouraging employers to provide more stable employment and by the systematic accumulation of funds during periods of employment to provide benefits for periods of unemployment, thus maintaining purchasing power and limiting the serious social consequences of poor relief assistance. The legislature, therefore, declares that in its considered judgment the public good and the general welfare of the citizens of this state require the enactment of this measure, under the police powers of the state, for the compulsory setting aside of unemployment reserves to be used for the benefit of persons unemployed through no fault of their own. (Ex. Sess., 1936, c. 1, s. 2.)

Construction.—The intent of the legislature to provide a wide scope in the application of this chapter to mitigate the economic evils of unemployment, and to bring within its provisions employments therein defined beyond the scope of existing definitions or categories, is apparent from the language used, and all doubts as to constitutionality should be resolved in favor of the validity of the chapter and all its provisions. State v. Willis Barber, etc., Shop, 219 N. C. 709, 15 S. E. (2d) 4.

The various compensation acts of the different states should be liberally construed to the end that the benefits thereof should not be denied upon technical, narrow and strict interpretation. Graham v. Wall, 220 N. C. 84, 90, 16 S. E. (2d) 691.

Provisions of this chapter seeking to maintain neutrality on the part of the state in labor disputes will be given effect, by the courts, since the matter of policy is in the exclusive province of the legislature and the courts will not interfere therewith unless the provisions relating thereto have no reasonable relation to the end sought to be accomplished. In re Steelman, 219 N. C. 306, 13 S. E. (2d) 544, 135 A. L. R. 929.

§ 96-3. Unemployment compensation commission.—(a) Organization.—There is hereby created a commission to be known as the unemployment compensation commission of North Carolina. The commission shall consist of seven (7) members to be appointed by the governor on or before July 1, 1941. The governor shall have the power to designate the member of said commission who shall act as the chairman thereof. The chairman of the commission shall not engage in any other business, vocation or employment, and no member of the commision shall serve as an officer or a committee member of any political party organization. Three (3) members of the commission shall be appointed by the governor to serve for a term of two (2) years. Three (3) members shall be appointed to serve for a term of four (4) years, and upon the expiration of the respective terms, the successors of said members shall be appointed for a term of four (4) years each, thereafter, and the member of said commission designated by the governor as chairman shall be appointed for a term of four (4) years from and after his appointment. Any member appointed to fill a vacancy occurring in any of the appointments made by the governor prior to the expiration of the term for which his predecessor was appointed shall be appointed for the remainder of such term. The governor may at any time after notice and hearing, remove any commissioner for gross inefficiency, neglect of duty, malfeasance, misfeasance, or nonfeasance in office.

(b) Divisions.—The commission shall establish two co-ordinate divisions: the North Carolina state employment service division, created pursuant to § 96-20, and the unemployment compensation division. Each division shall be responsible for the discharge of its distinctive functions. Each division shall be a separate administrative unit with respect to personnel and duties, except in so far as the commission may find that such separation is impracticable.

(c) Salaries.—The chairman of the unemployment compensation commission of North Carolina, appointed by the governor, shall be paid from the unemployment compensation administration fund a salary payable on a monthly basis, which salary shall be fixed by the governor with the approval of the council of state; and the members of the commission, other than the chairman, shall each receive ten dollars ($10.00) per day including necessary time spent in traveling to and from their place of residence within the state to the place of meeting while engaged in the discharge of the duties of his office and his actual traveling expenses, the same to be paid from the aforesaid fund.

(d) Quorum.—The chairman and three (3) members of the commission shall constitute a quorum. (Ex. Sess., 1936, c. 1, s. 10; 1941, c. 108, s. 10, c. 279, ss. 1-3; 1943, c. 377, s. 15.)

Editor's Note.—The first 1941 amendment struck out the word "budget" from the last sentence of subsection (b). The second 1941 amendment, effective July 1, 1941, increased the membership of the commission from three to seven and made other changes in subsection (a). It also made changes in subsections (c) and (d).

Section 6 of the second amendatory act provides: "The unemployment compensation commission of North Carolina, created by this act, shall automatically succeed to all the rights, powers, duties, and obligations of the present unemployment compensation commission of North Carolina and of the state advisory council."

For comment on the 1941 amendment, see 19 N. C. Law Rev. 444.

The 1943 amendment inserted in subsection (c) the words "including necessary time spent in traveling to and from their place of residence within the state to the place of meeting."

Commission Is State Agency.—The commission is an agency created by statute for a public purpose and is an agency of the state. Prudential Ins. Co. v. Powell, 217 N. C. 495, 8 S. E. (2d) 619.

§ 96-4. Administration.—(a) Duties and Powers of Commission. — It shall be the duty of the commission to administer this chapter. The commission shall meet at least once in each sixty days and may hold special meetings at any time at the call of the chairman or any three (3) members of the commission, and the commission shall have power and authority to adopt, amend, or rescind such rules and regulations, to employ such persons, make such expenditures, require such reports, make such investigations, and take such other action as it deems necessary or suitable in the administration of this chapter. Such rules and regulations shall be effective upon publication in the manner, not inconsistent with the provisions of this chapter, which the commission shall prescribe. The commission shall determine its own organization and methods of procedure in accordance with the provisions of this chapter, and shall have an official seal which shall be judicially noticed. The chairman of said commission shall, except as otherwise provided by the commission, be vested with all authority of the commission, including the authority to conduct hearings and make decisions and determinations, when the commission is not in session and shall execute all orders, rules and regulations established by said commission. Not later than November twentieth preceding the meeting of the general assembly, the commission shall submit to the governor, a report covering the administration and operation of this chapter during the preceding biennium, and shall make such recommendation for amendments to this chapter as the commission deems proper. Such report shall include a balance sheet of the moneys in the fund in which there shall be provided, if possible, a reserve against the liability in future years to pay benefits in excess of the then current contributions which reserve shall be set up by the commission in accordance with accepted actuarial principles on the basis of statistics of employment, business activity, and other relevant factors for the longest possible period. Whenever the commission believes that a change in contribution or benefit rates will become necessary to protect the solvency of the fund, it shall promptly so inform the governor and the legislature, and make recommendations with respect thereto.

(b) Regulations and General and Special Rules. —General and special rules may be adopted, amended, or rescinded by the commission only after public hearing or opportunity to be heard thereon, of which proper notice has been given by mail to the last known address in cases of special rules, or by publication as herein provided, and by one publication as herein provided as to general rules. General rules shall become effective ten days after filing with the secretary of state and publication in one or more newspapers of general circulation in this state. Special rules shall become effective ten days after notification to or mailing to the last known address of the individuals or concerns affected thereby. Regulations may be adopted, amended, or rescinded by the commission and shall become effective in the manner and at the time prescribed by the commission.

(c) Publication.—The commission shall cause to be printed for distribution to the public the text of this chapter, the commission's regulations and general rules, its biennial reports to the governor, and any other material the commission deems relevant and suitable, and shall furnish the same to any person upon application therefor.

(d) Personnel.—Subject to other provisions of this chapter, the commission is authorized to appoint, fix the compensation, and prescribe the duties and powers of such officers, accountants, attorneys, experts, and other persons as may be necessary in the performance of its duties. It shall provide for the holding of examinations to determine the qualifications of applicants for the positions so classified, and except for temporary appointments not to exceed six months in duration, shall appoint its personnel on the basis of efficiency and fitness as determined in such examinations. All positions shall be filled by persons selected and appointed on a nonpartisan merit basis. The commission shall not employ or pay any person who is an officer or committee member of any political party organization. The commission may delegate to any such person so appointed such power and authority as it deems reasonable and proper for the effective administration of this chapter, and may, in its discretion, bond any person handling moneys or signing checks hereunder.

(e) Advisory Councils.—The governor shall appoint a state advisory council and local advisory councils, composed in each case of an equal number of employer representatives and employee representatives who may fairly be regarded as representative because of their vocation, employment, or affiliations, and have such members representing the general public as the governor may designate. Such councils shall aid the commission in formulating policies and discussing problems related to the administration of this chapter, and in assuring impartiality and freedom from political influence in the solution of such problems. Such local advisory councils shall serve without compensation, but shall be reimbursed for any necessary expenses. The state advisory council shall be paid ten dollars per day per each member attending actual sitting of such council, including necessary time spent in traveling to and from their place of residence within the state to the place of meeting, and mileage and subsistence as allowed to state officials.

(f) Employment Stabilization. — The commission, with the advice and aid of its advisory councils, and through its appropriate divisions, shall take all appropriate steps to reduce and prevent unemployment; to encourage and assist in the adoption of practical methods of vocational training, retraining and vocational guidance; to investigate, recommend, advise, and assist in the establishment and operation, by municipalities, counties, school districts, and the state, of reserves for public works to be used in times of business depression and unemployment; to promote the re-employment of unemployed workers throughout the state in every other way that may be feasible; and to these ends to carry on and publish the results of investigations and research studies.

(g) Records and Reports. — Each employing unit shall keep true and accurate employment records, containing such information as the commission may prescribe. Such records shall be open to inspection and be subject to being copied by the commission or its authorized representatives at any reasonable time and as often as may be necessary. The commission may require from any employing unit any sworn or unsworn reports, with respect to persons employed by it, which the commission deems necessary for the effective administration of this chapter. Information thus obtained shall not be published or be open to public inspection (other than to public employees in the performance of their public duties) in any manner revealing the employing unit's identity, but any claimant at a hearing before an appeal tribunal or the commission shall be supplied with information from such records to the extent necessary for the proper presentation of his claims. Any individual may be supplied with information as to his potential benefit rights from such records. Any employee or member of the commission who violates any provision of this section shall be fined not less than twenty dollars ($20.00) nor more than two hundred dollars ($200.00), or imprisoned for not longer than ninety days, or both. All reports, statements, information and communications of every character so made or given to the commission, its deputies, agents, examiners and employees, whether same be written, oral or in the form of testimony at any hearing, or whether obtained by the commission from the employing unit's books and records shall be absolute privileged communications in any civil or criminal proceedings other than proceedings instituted pursuant to this chapter and proceedings involving the administration of this chapter: Provided, nothing herein contained shall operate to relieve any employing unit from disclosing any information required by this chapter or as prescribed by the commission involving the administration of this chapter.

(h) Oaths and Witnesses.—In the discharge of the duties imposed by this chapter, the chairman of an appeal tribunal and any duly authorized representative or member of the commission shall have power to administer oaths and affirmations, take depositions, certify to official acts, and issue subpœnas to compel the attendance of witnesses and the production of books, papers, correspondence, memoranda, and other records deemed necessary as evidence in connection with a disputed claim or the administration of this chapter.

(i) Subpœnas.—In case of contumacy by, or refusal to obey a subpœna issued to any person, any court of this state within the jurisdiction of which the inquiry is carried on or within the jurisdiction of which said person guilty of contumacy or refusal to obey is found or resides or transacts business, upon application by the commission or its duly authorized representative, shall have jurisdiction to issue to such person an order requiring such person to appear before a commissioner, the commission, or its duly authorized representative, there to produce evidence if so ordered, or there to give testimony touching the matter under investigation or in question; and any failure to obey such order of the court may be punished by said court as a contempt thereof. Any person who shall without just cause fail or refuse to attend and testify or to answer any lawful inquiry or to produce books, papers, correspondence, memoranda, and other records in obedience to a subpoena of the commission, shall be punished by a fine of not less than fifty dollars ($50.00) nor more than two hundred dollars ($200.00) or by imprisonment for not longer than sixty days, or by both such fine and imprisonment, and each day such violation continues shall be deemed to be a separate offense.

(j) Protection against Self-Incrimination. — No person shall be excused from attending and testifying or from producing books, papers, correspondence, memoranda, and other records before the commission or in obedience to the subpœna of the commission or any member thereof, or any duly authorized representative of the commission, in any cause or proceeding before the commission, on the ground that the testimony or evidence, documentary or otherwise, required of him may tend to incriminate him or subject him to a penalty or forfeiture; but no individual shall be prosecuted or subjected to any penalty or forfeiture for or on account of any transaction, matter, or thing concerning which he is compelled, after having claimed his privilege against self-incrimination, to testify or produce evidence, documentary or otherwise, except that such individual so testifying shall not be exempt from prosecution and punishment for perjury committed in so testifying.

(k) State-Federal Co-Operation.—In the administration of this chapter, the commission shall cooperate, to the fullest extent consistent with the provisions of this chapter, with the social security board, created by the Social Security Act, approved August fourteenth, one thousand nine hundred and thirty-five, as amended; shall make such reports, in such form and containing such information as the social security board may from time to time require, and shall comply with such provisions as the social security board may from time to time find necessary to assure the correctness and verification of such reports; and shall comply with the regulations prescribed by the social security board governing the expenditures of such sums as may be allotted and paid to this state under Title III of the Social Security Act for the purpose of assisting in the administration of this chapter. The commission shall further make its records available to the railroad retirement board, created by the Railroad Retirement Act and the Railroad Unemployment Insurance Act, and shall furnish to the railroad retirement board at the expense of the railroad retirement board, such copies thereof as the board shall deem necessary for its purposes in accordance with the provisions of section three hundred three (c) of the Social Security Act as amended.

Upon request therefor, the commission shall furnish to any agency of the United States charged with the administration of public works or assistance through public employment, the name, address, ordinary occupation, and employment status of each recipient of benefits, and such recipient's rights to further benefits under this chapter.

The commission is authorized to make such investigations, secure and transmit such information, make available such services and facilities and exercise such of the other powers provided herein with respect to the administration of this chapter as it deems necessary or appropriate to facilitate the administration of any unemployment compensation or public employment service law, and in like manner, to accept and utilize information, services and facilities made available to this state by the agency charged with the administration of such other unemployment compensation or public employment service law.

(l) Reciprocal Benefit Arrangements. — (1) The commission is hereby authorized to enter into reciprocal arrangements with appropriate and duly authorized agencies of other states or of the federal government, or both, whereby:

(A) Services performed by an individual for a single employing unit for which services are customarily performed in more than one state shall be deemed to be services performed entirely within any one of the states (i) in which any part of such individual's service is performed or (ii) in which such individual has his residence or (iii) in which the employing unit maintains a place of business, provided there is in effect, as to such services, an election by the employing unit, approved by the agency charged with the administration of such state's unemployment compensation law, pursuant to which the services performed by such individual for such employing unit are deemed to be performed entirely within such state;

(B) Potential rights to benefits accumulated under the unemployment compensation laws of one or more states or under one or more such laws of the federal government, or both, may constitute the basis for the payment of benefits through a single appropriate agency under terms which the commission finds will be fair and reasonable as to all affected interests and will not result in any substantial loss to the fund;

(C) Wages or services, upon the basis of which an individual may become entitled to benefits under an unemployment compensation law of another state or of the federal government, shall be deemed to be wages for insured work for the purpose of determining his rights to benefits under this chapter, and wages for insured work, on the basis of which an individual may become entitled to benefits under this chapter shall be deemed to be wages or services on the basis of which unemployment compensation under such law of another state or of the federal government is payable, but no such arrangement shall be entered into unless it contains provisions for reimbursements to the fund for such of the benefits paid under this chapter upon the basis of such wages or services, and provisions for reimbursements from the fund for such of the compensation paid under such other law upon the basis of wages for insured work, as the commission finds will be fair and reasonable as to all affected interests; and

(D) Contributions due under this chapter with respect to wages for insured work shall for the purposes of § 96-10 be deemed to have been paid to the fund as of the date payment was made as contributions therefor under another state or federal unemployment compensation law, but no such arrangement shall be entered into unless it contains provisions for such reimbursement to the fund of such contributions and the actual earnings thereon as the commission finds will be fair and reasonable as to all affected interests.

(2) Reimbursements paid from the fund pursuant to clause (C), of paragraph (1) of this subsection shall be deemed to be benefits for the purpose of §§ 96-6, 96-9 and 96-12. The commission is authorized to make to other states or federal agencies and to receive from such other state or federal agencies, reimbursements from or to the fund, in accordance with arrangements entered into pursuant to Paragraph (1) of this subsection.

(3) To the extent permissible under the laws and constitution of the United States, the commission is authorized to enter into or cooperate in arrangements whereby facilities and services provided under this chapter and facilities and services provided under the unemployment compensation law of any foreign government, may be utilized for the taking of claims and the payment of benefits under the employment security law of this state or under a similar law of such government.

(m) The commission after due notice shall have the right and power to hold and conduct hearings for the purpose of determining the rights, status and liabilities of any "employing unit" or "employer" as said terms are defined by § 96-8(e) and § 96-8(f) and subsections thereunder of this chapter. The commission shall have the power and authority to determine any and all questions and issues of fact or questions of law that may arise under the Unemployment Compensation Law that may affect the rights, liabilities and status of any employing unit or employer as heretofore defined by the Unemployment Compensation Law including the right to determine the amount of contributions, if any, which may be due the commission by any employer. All hearings shall be conducted and held at the office of the commission and shall be open to the public and shall be stenographically reported and the commission shall provide for the preparation of a record of all hearings and other proceedings. The commission may provide for the taking of evidence by a deputy in which event he shall swear or cause the witnesses to be sworn and shall transmit all testimony to the commission for its determination. From all decisions or determinations made by the commission any party affected thereby shall be entitled to an appeal to the superior court. Before such party shall be allowed to appeal, he shall within ten days after notice of such decision or determination, file with the commission exceptions to the decision or the determination of the commission, which exceptions will state the grounds of objection to such decision or determination. If any one of such exceptions shall be overruled then such party may appeal from the order overruling the exceptions, and shall, within ten days after the decision overruling the exceptions, give notice of his appeal. When an exception is made to the facts as found by the commission, the appeal shall be to the superior court in term time but the decision or determination of the commission upon such review in the superior court shall be conclusive and binding as to all questions of fact supported by any competent evidence. When an exception is made to any rulings of law, as determined by the commission, the appeal shall be to the judge of the superior court at chambers. The party appealing shall, within ten days after the notice of appeal has been served, file with the commission exceptions to the decision or determination overruling the exception which statement shall assign the errors complained of and the grounds of the appeal. Upon the filing of such statement the commission shall, within ten days, transmit all the papers and evidence considered by it, together with the assignments of errors filed by the appellant to a judge of the superior court holding court or residing in some district in which such appellant either resides, maintains a place of business or conducts business. If there be no exceptions to any facts as found by the commission the facts so found shall be binding upon the court and it shall be heard by the judge at chambers at some place in the district, above mentioned, of which all parties shall have ten days notice.

(n) The cause shall be entitled "State of North Carolina on Relationship of the Unemployment Compensation Commission of North Carolina against (here insert name of appellant)," and if there are exceptions to any facts found by the commission it shall be placed on the civil issue docket of such court and shall have precedence over other civil actions except those described in § 96-10(b), and such cause shall be tried under such rules and regulations as are prescribed for the trial of other civil causes. By consent of all parties the appeal may be held and determined at chambers before any judge of a district in which the appellant either resides, maintains a place of business or conducts business, or said appeal may be heard before any judge holding court therein, or in any district in which the appellant either resides, maintains a place of business or conducts business. Either party may appeal to the supreme court from the judgment of the superior court under the same rules and regulations as are prescribed by law for appeals, except that if an appeal shall be taken on behalf of the Unemployment Compensation Commission of North Carolina it shall not be required to give any undertaking or make any deposit to secure the cost of such appeal and such court may advance the cause on its docket so as to give the same a speedy hearing.

(o) The decision or determination of the commission when docketed in the office of the clerk of the superior court of any county and when properly indexed and cross indexed shall have the same force and effect as a judgment rendered by the superior court, and if it shall be adjudged in the decision or determination of the commission that any employer is indebted to the commission for contributions, penalties and interest or either of the same, then said judgment shall constitute a lien upon any realty owned by said employer in the county only from the date of

docketing of such decision or determination in the office of the clerk of the superior court and upon personalty owned by said employer in said county only from the date of levy on such personalty, and upon the execution thereon no homestead or personal property exemptions shall be allowed; provided, that nothing herein shall affect any rights accruing to the commission under § 96-10. The provisions of this section, however, shall not have the effect of releasing any liens for contributions, penalties or interest, or either of the same, imposed by other law, nor shall they have the effect of postponing the payment of said contributions, penalties or interest, or depriving the said Unemployment Compensation Commission of North Carolina of any priority in order of payment provided in any other statute under which payment of the said contributions, penalties and interest or either of the same may be required. The superior court or any appellate court shall have full power and authority to issue any and all executions, orders, decrees, or writs that may be necessary to carry out the terms of said decision or determination of the commission or to collect any amount of contribution, penalty or interest adjudged to be due the commission by said decision or determination. In case of an appeal from any decision or determination of the commission to the superior court or from any judgment of the superior court to the supreme court all proceedings to enforce said judgment, decision, or determination shall be stayed until final determination of such appeal but no proceedings for the collection of any amount of contribution, penalty or interest due on same shall be suspended or stayed unless the employer or party adjudged to pay the same shall file with the clerk of the superior court a bond in such amount not exceeding double the amount of contribution, penalty, interest or amount due and with such sureties as the clerk of the superior court deems necessary conditioned upon the payment of the contribution, penalty, interest or amount due when the appeal shall be finally decided or terminated.

(p) The conduct of hearings shall be governed by suitable rules and regulations established by the commission. The manner in which appeals and hearings shall be presented and conducted before the commission shall be governed by suitable rules and regulations established by it. The commission shall not be bound by common law or statutory rules of evidence or by technical or formal rules of procedure but shall conduct hearings in such manner as to ascertain the substantial rights of the parties.

(q) All subpoenas for witnesses to appear before the commission, and all notices to employing units, employers, persons, firms or corporations shall be issued by the commission or its secretary and be directed to any sheriff, constable or to the marshal of any city or town, who shall execute the same and make due return thereof as directed therein, under the penalties prescribed by law for a failure to execute and return the process of any court. All bonds or undertakings required to be given for the purpose of suspending or staying execution shall be payable to the Unemployment Compensation Commission of North Carolina, and may be sued on as are other undertakings which are payable to the state.

(r) None of the provisions or sections herein set forth in this amendment shall have the force and effect nor shall the same be construed or interpreted as repealing any of the provisions of § 96-15 which provide for the procedure and determination of all claims for benefits and such claims for benefits shall be prosecuted and determined as provided by said § 96-15. (Ex. Sess., 1936, c. 1, s. 11; 1939, c. 2, c. 27, s. 8, c. 52, s. 5, cc. 207, 209; 1941, c. 279, ss. 4, 5; 1943, c. 377, ss. 16-23.)

Editor's Note.—The 1939 amendments inserted a proviso in subsection (d), added the last sentence and proviso to subsection (g), inserted the second sentence in subsection (k) and added subsections (m)-(r). The 1941 amendment made changes in subsections (a) and (e). Prior to the amendment subsection (e) provided also for a state advisory council.

The 1943 amendment inserted in the fifth sentence of subsection (a) the words "including the authority to conduct hearings and make decisions and determinations." Prior to the amendment the first clause of the sixth sentence read: "Not later than the first day of February of each year." The amendment substituted in said sixth sentence the word "biennium" for the words "calendar year." It changed "annual" in line four of subsection (c) to "biennial," and omitted the former proviso to the second sentence of subsection (d) which had been inserted by the 1939 amendment. Prior to the amendment subsection (e) provided for local advisory councils appointed by the commission. The amendment inserted the fifth sentence of subsection (g), added the third paragraph of subsection (k) and rewrote subsection (l). It also omitted the words "if it is in his power so to do" formerly appearing after the word "records" in line five of the second sentence of subsection (i).

Merits of Labor Disputes.—The commission is charged with administering the benefits provided in this chapter in accordance with the objective standards and criteria set up in the chapter, but the merits of labor disputes do not belong to the commission, these being matters properly pertaining to the field of labor relations. In re Steelman, 219 N. C. 306, 13 S. E. (2d) 544, 135 A. L. R. 929.

Scope of Review in Superior Court.—The mandatory provisions in subsection (m) of this section are controlling, and the trial in the superior court on appeal must be subject to the limitation that the decision or determination of the commission upon such review in the superior court "shall be conclusive and binding as to all questions of fact supported by any competent evidence." State v. Willis Barber, etc., Shop, 219 N. C. 709, 712, 15 S. E. (2d) 4.

When, in a proceeding under this chapter to determine the liability of a defendant for taxation as an employer, exceptions are taken to the findings of fact made by the commission in accordance with the procedure prescribed, defendant is not entitled to a trial de novo of the issues raised by his exceptions. Id.

Under this section the commission is made a fact-finding body. The finding of facts is one of its primary duties and it is the accepted rule that when the facts are found they are, when supported by competent evidence, conclusive on appeal and not subject to review by the superior court or by the supreme court. Graham v. Wall, 220 N. C. 84, 88, 16 S. E. (2d) 691.

Jury Trial.—The provisions of this section that the commission's findings of fact in a proceeding before it should be conclusive on appeal when supported by competent evidence is constitutional, and objection thereto on the ground that it deprives a defendant of his right to trial by jury is untenable, since the provision relates to the administrations of a tax law and the machinery for the collection of taxes, and further, since in addition to the remedy of appeal from the decision of the commission, the act provides that a defendant may pay the tax under protest and sue for its recovery. State v. Willis Barber, etc., Shop, 219 N. C. 709, 15 S. E. (2d) 4.

Appeal by Commission from Judgment of Superior Court.—The commission is not entitled to appeal from judgment of the superior court that employer does not come within this chapter, entered in a proceeding by an employee for compensation, and if the commission desires to have the liability of the employer for unemployment compensation contributions judicially determined on its contentions that the employer and another concern controlled by the same interests constituted but a single employing unit, it must follow the procedure prescribed by section 96-10. In re Mitchell, 220 N. C. 65, 16 S. E. (2d) 476, 142 A. L. R. 931.

§ 96-5. Unemployment compensation administration fund.—(a) Special Fund.—There is hereby created in the state treasury a special fund to be known as the unemployment compensation administration fund. All moneys which are deposited or paid into this fund shall be continuously available to the commission for expenditure in accordance with the provisions of this chapter, and shall not lapse at any time or be transferred to any other fund. The unemployment compensation administration fund, except as otherwise provided in this chapter, shall be subject to the provisions of the Executive Budget Act (§ 143-1 et seq.) and the Personnel Act (§ 143-35 et seq.). All moneys in this fund which are received from the federal government or any agency thereof or which are appropriated by this state for the purpose described in § 96-20 shall be expended solely for the purposes and in the amounts found necessary by the Social Security Board for the proper and efficient administration of this chapter. The fund shall consist of all moneys appropriated by this state, all moneys received from the United States of America, or any agency thereof, including the Social Security Board, and all moneys received from any other source for such purpose, and shall also include any moneys received from any agency of the United States or any other state as compensation for services or facilities supplied to such agency, any amounts received pursuant to any surety bond or insurance policy or from other sources for losses sustained by the unemployment compensation administration fund or by reason of damage to equipment or supplies purchased from moneys in such fund, and any proceeds realized from the sale or disposition of any such equipment or supplies which may no longer be necessary for the proper administration of this chapter. All moneys in this fund shall be deposited, administered, and disbursed in the same manner and under the same conditions and requirements as is provided by law for other special funds in the state treasury, and shall be maintained in a separate account on the books of the state treasury. The state treasurer shall be liable on his official bond for the faithful performance of his duties in connection with the unemployment compensation administration fund provided for under this chapter. Such liability on the official bond shall be effective immediately upon the enactment of this provision, and such liability shall exist in addition to any liability upon any separate bond existent on the effective date of this provision, or which may be given in the future. All sums recovered on any surety bond for losses sustained by the unemployment compensation administration fund shall be deposited in said fund.

(b) Replacement of Funds Lost or Improperly Expended.—If any moneys received after June thirtieth, one thousand nine hundred and forty-one, from the Social Security Board under Title III of the Social Security Act, or any unencumbered balances in the unemployment compensation administration fund as of that date, or any moneys granted after that date to this state pursuant to the provisions of the Wagner-Peyser Act, or any moneys made available by this state or its political subdivisions and matched by such moneys granted to this state pursuant to the provisions of the Wagner-Peyser Act, are found by the Social Security Board, because of any action or contingency, to have been lost or been expended for purposes other than, or in amounts in excess of, those found necessary by the Social Security Board for the proper administration of this chapter, it is the policy of this state that such moneys shall be replaced by moneys appropriated for such purpose from the general funds of this state to the unemployment compensation administration fund for expenditure as provided in subsection (a) of this section. Upon receipt of notice of such a finding by the Social Security Board, the commission shall promptly report the amount required for such replacement to the governor and the governor shall at the earliest opportunity, submit to the legislature a request for the appropriation of such amount. This subsection shall not be construed to relieve this state of its obligation with respect to funds received prior to July first, one thousand nine hundred and forty-one, pursuant to the provisions of Title III of the Social Security Act. (Ex. Sess. 1936, c. 1, s. 13; 1941, c. 108, ss. 12, 13.)

§ 96-6. Unemployment compensation fund. — (a) Establishment and Control.—There is hereby established as a special fund, separate and apart from all public moneys or funds of this state, an unemployment compensation fund, which shall be administered by the commission exclusively for the purposes of this chapter. This fund shall consist of (1) all contributions collected under this chapter, together with any interest thereon collected pursuant to § 96-10; (2) all fines and penalties collected pursuant to the provisions of this chapter; (3) interest earned upon any moneys in the fund; (4) any property or securities acquired through the use of moneys belonging to the fund; and (5) all earnings of such property or securities. All moneys in the fund shall be mingled and undivided, except that within the unemployment compensation fund "reserve accounts" and a "partially pooled account" shall be maintained as provided in § 96-9. To the "reserve accounts" established under § 96-9 shall be credited such portion of the contributions computed as provided in § 96-9, and the "partially pooled account" to be credited with the balance of such contributions paid as well as the remaining portions and additions thereto of the unemployment compensation fund which have not heretofore been set aside as employer "reserve accounts" within the fund under prior amendments to this chapter. Provided, however, that the "partially pooled account" established hereunder and the "reserve accounts of employer," as defined by section one (a) of the Railroad Unemployment Insurance Act, shall be subject to such withdrawals and transfers as are provided for by this section.

(b) Accounts and Deposit.—The state treasurer shall be ex officio the treasurer and custodian of the fund who shall disburse such fund in accordance with the directions of the commission and in accordance with such regulations as the commission shall prescribe. He shall maintain within the fund three separate accounts: (1) a clearing account, (2) an unemployment trust fund account, and (3) a benefit account. All moneys payable to the fund, upon receipt thereof by the commission, shall be forwarded immediately to the treasurer who shall immediately deposit them in the clearing account. Refunds payable pursuant to § 96-10 may be paid from the clearing account upon warrants issued upon the treasurer by the state auditor under the requisition of the commission. After clearance thereof, all other moneys in the clearing account shall be immediately deposited with the secretary of the treasury of the United States of America to the credit of the account of this state in the unemployment trust fund, established and maintained pursuant to section nine hundred and four of the Social Security Act, as amended, any provision of law in this state relating to the deposit, administration, release, or disbursement of moneys in the possession or custody of this state to the contrary notwithstanding. The benefit account shall consist of all moneys requisitioned from this state's account in the unemployment trust fund. Moneys in the clearing and benefit accounts may be deposited by the treasurer, under the direction of the commission, in any bank or public depository in which general funds of the state may be deposited, but no public deposit insurance charge or premium shall be paid out of the fund. The treasurer shall give a separate bond, conditioned upon the faithful performance of those duties as custodian of the fund, in an amount fixed by the commission and in a form prescribed by law or approved by the attorney-general. Premiums for said bond shall be paid from the administration fund.

(c) Withdrawals. — Moneys shall be requisitioned from this state's account in the unemployment trust fund solely for the payment of benefits and in accordance with regulations prescribed by the commission. The commission shall, from time to time, requisition from the unemployment trust fund such amounts, not exceeding the amounts standing to its account therein, as it deems necessary for the payment of benefits for a reasonable future period. Upon receipt thereof the treasurer shall deposit such moneys in the benefit account and shall pay all warrants drawn thereon by the state auditor requisitioned by the commission for the payment of benefits solely from such benefit account. Expenditures of such moneys in the benefit account and refunds from the clearing account shall not be subject to approval of the budget bureau or any provisions of law requiring specific appropriations or other formal release by state officers of money in their custody. All warrants issued upon the treasurer for the payment of benefits and refunds shall bear the signature of the state auditor, as requisitioned by a member of the commission or its duly authorized agent for that purpose. Any balance of moneys requisitioned from the unemployment trust fund which remains unclaimed or unpaid in the benefit account after the expiration of the period for which such sums were requisitioned shall either be deducted from estimates for, and may be utilized for the payment of, benefits during succeeding periods, or, in the discretion of the commission, shall be re-deposited with the secretary of the treasury of the United States of America, to the credit of this state's account in the unemployment trust fund, as provided in subsection (b) of this section.

(d) Management of Funds upon Discontinuance of Unemployment Trust Fund.—The provisions of subsections (a), (b), and (c), to the extent that they relate to the unemployment trust fund, shall be operative only so long as such unemployment trust fund continues to exist, and so long as the secretary of the treasury of the United States of America continues to maintain for this state a separate book account of all funds deposited therein by this state for benefit purposes, together with this state's proportionate share of the earnings of such unemployment trust fund, from which no other state is permitted to make withdrawals. If and when such unemployment trust fund ceases to exist, or such separate book account is no longer maintained, all moneys, properties, or securities therein belonging to the unemployment compensation fund of this state shall be transferred to the treasurer of the unemployment compensation fund, who shall hold, invest, transfer, sell, deposit, and release such moneys, properties, or securities in a manner approved by the commission, in accordance with the provisions of this chapter: Provided, that such moneys shall be invested in the following readily marketable classes of securities: Bonds or other interest-bearing obligations of the United States of America or such investments as are now permitted by law for sinking funds of the state of North Carolina; and provided further, that such investment shall at all times be so made that all the assets of the fund shall always be readily convertible into cash when needed for the payment of benefits. The treasurer shall dispose of securities or other properties belonging to the unemployment compensation fund only under the direction of the commission.

(e) Benefits shall be deemed to be due and payable under this chapter only to the extent provided in this chapter and to the extent that moneys are available therefor to the credit of the unemployment compensation fund, and neither the state nor the commission shall be liable for any amount in excess of such sums. (Ex. Sess. 1936, c. 1, ss. 9, 18; 1939, c. 27, s. 7, c. 52, s. 4, c. 208; 1941, c. 108.)

Editor's Note.—The 1941 amendment added that part of subsection (a) beginning with the word "except" in line sixteen. Public Laws 1939, c. 27, s. 7, which had added somewhat similar provisions at the same place, was not noticed by the amendemnt.

§ 96-7. Representation in court.—(a) In any civil action to enforce the provisions of this chapter, the commission and the state may be represented by any qualified attorney who is designated by it for this purpose.

(b) All criminal actions for violation of any provision of this chapter, or of any rules or regulations issued pursuant thereto, shall be prosecuted as now provided by law by the solicitor or by the prosecuting attorney of any county or city in which the violation occurs. (Ex. Sess. 1936, c. 1, s. 17; 1937, c. 150.)

Editor's Note.—The 1937 amendment omitted the requirement that the attorney be a regular salaried employee of the commission.

Art. 2. Unemployment Compensation Division.

§ 96-8. Definitions.—As used in this chapter, unless the context clearly requires otherwise:

(a) (1) On and after January first, one thousand nine hundred and forty-one, "annual pay roll" means the total amount of wages paid by an employer (regardless of the time of payment) for employment during a calendar year.

(2) "Average annual pay roll" means the average of the annual pay rolls of any employer for the last three or five preceding calendar years, whichever average is higher.

(b) "Benefits" means the money payments payable to an individual, as provided in this chapter, with respect to his unemployment.

(c) "Commission" means the unemployment compensation commission established by this chapter.

(d) "Contributions" means the money payments to the state unemployment compensation fund required by this chapter.

(e) "Employing unit" means any individual or type of organization, including any partnership, association, trust, estate, joint-stock company, insurance company, or corporation, whether domestic or foreign, or the receiver, trustee in bankruptcy, trustee or successor thereof, or the legal representative of a deceased person which has, on or subsequent to January first, one thousand nine hundred and thirty-six, had in its employ one or more individuals performing services for it within this state. All individuals performing services within this state for any employing unit which maintains two or more separate establishments within this state shall be deemed to be employed by a single employing unit for all the purposes of this chapter. Whenever any employing unit contracts with or has under it any contractor or subcontractor for any employment which is part of its usual trade, occupation, profession, or business, unless the employing unit as well as each such contractor or subcontractor is an employer by reason of subsection (f) of this section, or § 96-11 (c), the employing unit shall, for all the purposes of this chapter, be deemed to employ each individual in the employ of each such contractor or subcontractor for each day during which such individual is engaged in performing such employment, except that each such contractor or subcontractor who is an employer by reason of subsection (f) of this section or § 96-11 (c) shall alone be liable for the contributions measured by wages paid to individuals in his employ, and except that any employing unit who shall become liable for and pay contributions with respect to individuals in the employ of any such contractor or subcontractor who is not an employer by reason of subsection (f) of this section or § 96-11 (c), may recover the same from such contractor or subcontractor. Each individual employed to perform or to assist in performing the work of any agent or employee of an employing unit shall be deemed to be employed by such employing unit for all the purposes of this chapter, whether such individual was hired or paid directly by such employing unit or by such agent or employee, provided the employing unit had actual or constructive knowledge of such work: Provided, however, that nothing herein, on or after July first, one thousand nine hundred thirty-nine, shall be construed to apply to that part of the business of such "employers" as may come within the meaning of that term as it is defined in section one (a) of the Railroad Unemployment Insurance Act.

(f) "Employer" means (1) Any employing unit which in each of twenty different weeks within either the current or the preceding calendar year (whether or not such weeks are or were consecutive) has, or had in employment, eight or more individuals (not necessarily simultaneously and irrespective of whether the same individuals are or were employed in each such week): Provided, however, that for purposes of this subsection "employment" shall include services which would constitute "employment" but for the fact that such services are deemed to be performed entirely within another state pursuant to an election under and arrangement entered into by the commission pursuant to subsection (l) of § 96-4, and an agency charged with the administration of any other State or Federal Unemployment Compensation Law.

(2) Any employing unit which acquired the organization, trade or business or substantially all the assets thereof, of another which at the time of such acquisition was an employer subject to this chapter;

(3) Any employing unit which acquired the organization, trade, or business, or substantially all the assets thereof, of another employing unit and which, if treated as a single unit with such other employing unit, would be an employer under paragraph (1) of this subsection;

(4) Any employing unit which, having become an employer under paragraphs (1), (2), or (3), has not, under § 96-11, ceased to be an employer subject to this chapter; or

(5) For the effective period of its election pursuant to § 96-11 (c) any other employing unit which has elected to become fully subject to this chapter.

(6) Any employing unit not an employer by reason of any other paragraph of this subsection, for which within either the current or preceding calendar year services in employment are or were performed with respect to which such employing unit is liable for any federal tax against which credit may be taken for contributions required to be paid into a state unemployment compensation fund.

(g) (1) "Employment" means service, including service in interstate commerce, except "employment" as defined in the Railroad Retirement Act and the Railroad Unemployment Insurance Act, performed for remuneration or under any contract of hire, written or oral, express or implied.

(2) The term "employment" shall include an individual's entire service, performed within or both within and without this state if:

(A) The service is localized in this state; or

(B) The service is not localized in any state but some of the service is performed in this state, and (i) the base of operations, or, if there is no base of operations, then the place from which such service is directed or controlled, is in this state; or (ii) the base of operations or place from which such service is directed or controlled is not in any state in which some part of the service is performed, but the individual's residence is in this state.

(3) Services performed within this state but not covered under paragraph (2) of this subsection shall be deemed to be employment subject to this chapter, if contributions are not required and paid with respect to such services under an unemployment compensation law of any other state or of the federal government.

(4) Services not covered under paragraph (2) of this subsection, and performed entirely without this state, with respect to no part of which contributions are required and paid under an unemployment compensation law of any other state or of the federal government, shall be deemed to be employment subject to this chapter if the individual performing such service is a resident of this state and the commission approves the election of the employing unit for whom such services are performed that the entire service of such individual shall be deemed to be employment subject to this chapter, and services covered by an election duly approved by the commission in accordance with an arrangement pursuant to subsection (l) of § 96-4 shall be deemed to be employment during the effective period of such election.

(5) Service shall be deemed to be localized within a state if

(A) The service is performed entirely within such state; or

(B) The service is performed both within and without such state, but the service performed without such state is incidental to the individual's service within the state; for example, is temporary or transitory in nature or consists of isolated transactions.

(6) Services performed by an individual for remuneration shall be deemed to be employment subject to this chapter unless and until it is shown to the satisfaction of the commission that:

(A) Such individual has been and will continue to be free from control or direction over the performance of such services, both under his contract of service and in fact; and

(B) Such service is either outside the usual course of the business for which such service is performed, or that such service is performed outside of all the places of business of the enterprise for which such service is performed; and

(C) Such individual is customarily engaged in an independently established trade, occupation, profession, or business.

(7) The term "employment" shall not include:

(A) Service performed in the employ of this state, or of any political subdivision thereof, or of any instrumentality of this state or its political subdivisions;

(B) Service performed in the employ of any other state or its political subdivisions, or of the United States government, or of an instrumentality of any other state or states or their political subdivisions or of the United States. From and after March 10, 1941, service performed in the employ of the United States government or an instrumentality of the United States exempt under the Constitution of the United States from the contributions imposed by this chapter, except that to the extent that the Congress of the United States shall permit states to require any instrumentalities of the United States to make payments into an unemployment fund under a State Unemployment Compensation Law, all of the provisions of this Chapter shall be applicable to such instrumentalities, and to services performed for such instrumentalities, in the same manner, to the same extent and on the same terms as to all other employers, employing units, individuals and services: Provided, that if this state shall not be certified for any year by the Social Security Board under section one thousand six hundred and three (c) of the Federal Internal Revenue Code, the payments required of such instrumentalities with respect to such year shall be refunded by the commission from the fund in the same manner and within the same period as is provided in § 96-10(e) with respect to contributions erroneously collected.

(C) Service with respect to which unemployment compensation is payable under an unemployment compensation system established by an act of congress: Provided, that the commission is hereby authorized and directed to enter into agreements with the proper agencies under such act of congress, which agreements shall become effective ten days after publication thereof in the manner provided in § 96-4 (b) for general rules, to provide reciprocal treatment to individuals who have, after acquiring potential rights to benefits under this chapter, acquired rights to unemployment compensation under act of congress, or who have, after acquiring potential rights to unemployment compensation under such act of congress, acquired rights to benefits under this chapter;

(D) Agricultural labor;

(E) Domestic service in a private home;

(F) Service performed as an officer or member of the crew of a vessel on the navigable waters of the United States;

(G) Service performed by an individual in the employ of his son, daughter, or spouse, and service performed by a child under the age of twenty-one in the employ of his father or mother;

(H) Service performed in the employ of a corporation, community chest, fund, or foundation, organized and operated exclusively for religious, charitable, scientific, literary, or educational purposes, or for the prevention of cruelty to children or animals, no part of the net earnings of which inures to the benefit of any private shareholder or individual;

(I) Service performed on and after March 10, 1941 by an individual for an employing unit or an employer as an insurance agent or as an insurance solicitor or as a securities salesman if all such service performed by such individual for such employing unit or employer is performed for remuneration solely by way of commission;

(J) From and after March 10, 1941 service performed in any calendar quarter by any officer, individual or commiteeman of any building and loan association organized under the laws of this state, or any federal savings and loan association, where the remuneration for such service does not exceed forty-five dollars in any calendar quarter;

(K) From and after March 10, 1941 service in connection with the collection of dues or premiums for a fraternal benefit society, order or association performed away from the home office, or its ritulistic service in connection with any such society, order or associations;

(L) Service performed by an individual under the age of eighteen in the delivery or distribution of newspapers or shopping news, not including delivery or distribution to any point for subsequent delivery or distribution.

(M) Except as provided in paragraph (1) of subsection (f) of this section, service covered by an election duly approved by the agency charged with the administration of any other State or Federal Unemployment Compensation Law in accordance with an arrangement pursuant to subsection (l) of § 96-4 during the effective period of such election.

(N) Notwithstanding any of the other provisions of this subsection, services shall be deemed to be in employment if with respect to such services a tax is required to be paid under any federal law imposing a tax against which credit may be taken for contributions required to be paid into a state unemployment compensation fund.

(h) "Employment office" means a free public employment office, or branch thereof, operated by this state or maintained as a part of a state-controlled system of public employment offices.

(i) "Fund" means the unemployment compensation fund established by this chapter, to which all contributions required and from which all benefits provided under this chapter shall be paid.

(j) "State" includes, in addition to the states of the United States of America, Alaska, Hawaii, and the District of Columbia.

(k) "Total and partial unemployment."

(1) An individual shall be deemed "totally unemployed" in any week with respect to which no remuneration is payable to him and during which he performs no services (other than odd jobs or subsidiary work for which no remuneration, as used in this subsection, is payable to him).

(2) An individual shall be deemed partially unemployed in any week in which, because of lack of work, he works less than sixty per cent of the customary scheduled full time hours of the industry or plant in which he is employed and in which he earns less than the ineligible amount shown in Column III of the table set forth in § 96-12 (b): Provided, however, that the commission may find the customary scheduled full time hours of any individual to be less or more than the customary scheduled full time hours of the industry or plant in which he is employed, if such individual customarily performs services in an occupation which requires that he customarily work a greater or smaller number of hours than the customary scheduled full time hours of the industry or plant in which he is employed.

(3) As used in this sub-section, the term "remuneration" shall include only that part of remuneration for odd jobs or subsidiary work, or both, which is in excess of $3.00 in any one week.

(4) An individual's week of unemployment shall be deemed to commence only after his registration at an employment office, except as the commission may by regulation otherwise prescribe.

(l) "Unemployment compensation administration fund" means the unemployment compensation administration fund established by this chapter, from which administrative expenses under this chapter shall be paid.

(m) From and after March 10, 1941, "wages" means all remuneration for services from whatever source.

(n) From and after March 10, 1941, "wages" shall include commissions and bonuses and the cash value of all remuneration in any medium other than cash. Gratuities customarily received by an individual in the course of his work from persons other than his employing unit shall be treated as wages received from his employing unit. The reasonable cash value of remuneration in any medium other than cash, and the reasonable amount of gratuities, shall be estimated and determined in accordance with rules prescribed by the commission: Provided, that the term "wages" shall not include the amount of any payment with respect to services performed from and after March 10, 1941 to, or on behalf of, an individual in its employ under a plan or system established by an employing unit which makes provision for individuals in its employ generally or for a class or classes of such individuals (including any amount paid by an employing unit for insurance or annuities, or into a fund, to provide for any such payment), on account of (A) retirement, or (B) sickness or accident disability, or (C) medical and hospitalization expenses in connection with sickness or accident disability, or (D) death: Provided, the individual in its employ (i) has not the option to receive, instead of provision for such death benefit, any part of such payment, or, if such death benefit is insured, any part of the premiums (or contributions to premiums) paid by his employing unit, and (ii) has not the right under the provisions of the plan or system or policy of insurance providing for such death benefit, to assign such benefit, or to receive cash consideration in lieu of such benefit either upon his withdrawal from the plan or system providing for such benefit or upon termination of such plan or system or policy of insurance or of his services with such employing unit.

(o) "Week" means such period or periods of seven consecutive calendar days ending at midnight as the commission may by regulations prescribe.

(p) "Calendar quarter" means the period of three consecutive calendar months ending on March thirty-first, June thirtieth, September thirtieth or December thirty-first, excluding, however, any calendar quarter or portion thereof which occurs prior to January first, one thousand nine hundred and thirty-seven, or the equivalent thereof as the commission may by regulation prescribe.

(q) "Weekly benefit amount." An individual's "weekly benefit amount" means the amount of benefits he would be entitled to receive for one week of total unemployment.

(r) "Benefit year" with respect to any individual means the one-year period beginning with the first day of the first week with respect to which such individual first registers for work and files a valid claim for benefits, and after the termination of such benefit year the next benefit year shall be the next one-year period beginning with the first day of the first week with respect to which such individual registers for work and files a valid claim for benefits; a valid claim shall be deemed to have been filed if such individual, at the time the claim is filed, is unemployed and has been paid wages for employment amounting to at least one hundred and thirty dollars in the applicable base period: Provided, however, that any individual whose employment under this chapter prior to July first, one thousand nine hundred and thirty-nine, shall have been for an employer subject after July first, one thousand nine hundred and thirty-nine, to the Railroad Unemployment

Insurance Act and some other employer subject to this chapter, such individual's benefit year, if established before July first, one thousand nine hundred and thirty-nine, shall terminate on that date and if again unemployed after July first, one thousand nine hundred and thirty-nine, he shall establish another benefit year after such date with respect to employment subject to this chapter.

(s) For benefit years beginning on or after February fifteenth, one thousand nine hundred thirty-nine, the term "base period" shall mean the completed calendar year immediately preceding the first day of an individual's benefit year as defined in subsection (r) of this section, if the benefit year begins subsequent to July first; and if the benefit year begins prior to July first, the base period shall be the next to the last completed calendar year, notwithstanding the fact that an otherwise eligible individual may have exhausted wage credits to his account prior to February fifteenth, one thousand nine hundred thirty-nine, for any such calendar year. Except that for weeks of unemployment of any individual after July first, one thousand nine hundred thirty-nine, who has worked in employment for an employer which after July first, one thousand nine hundred thirty-nine, is subject to the Railroad Unemployment Insurance Act, then only the wages payable to such an individual earned in employment during the base period for an employer other than one subject to the Railroad Unemployment Insurance Act shall be used in determining his weekly benefit amount after July first, one thousand nine hundred thirty-nine.

(t) Wages payable to an individual with respect to covered employment performed prior to January first, one thousand nine hundred and forty-one, shall, for the purpose of § 96-12 and § 96-9, be deemed to be wages paid within the calendar quarter with respect to which such wages were payable. (Ex. Sess. 1936, c. 1, s. 19; 1937, c. 448, s. 5; 1939, c. 27, ss. 11-13, c. 52, ss. 6, 7, c. 141; 1941, cc. 108, 198; 1943, c. 377, ss. 31-34; 1943, c. 552, ss. 1, 2.)

Editor's Note.—The 1939 amendments added the proviso to subsection (e), inserted the exception clause in paragraph (1) of subsection (g), and changed subsections (r) and (s).

The first 1941 amendment, effective March 10, 1941, substituted "paid" for "payable" in paragraph (1) of subsection (a), and also in line thirty-two of subsection (e); repealed former paragraph (4) of subsection (f) and struck out the reference thereto formerly appearing in paragraph (5); inserted the second sentence and proviso of clause (B) of paragraph (7) of subsection (g) and added clauses (I), (J) and (K) of said paragraph (7); rewrote subsections (m), (n) and (r) and added subsection (t).

The second 1941 amendment added clause (L) of paragraph (7) of subsection (g).

The first 1943 amendment added paragraph (6) of subsection (f), and the last clause of paragraph (4) of subsection (g) containing the reference to § 96-4. It also added the proviso and made other changes in paragraph (2) of subsection (k). That part of subsection (r) appearing before the proviso was also changed by the amendment.

The second 1943 amendment added the proviso to paragraph (1) of subsection (f), and clauses (M) and (N) to paragraph (7) of subsection (g).

The general assembly has power to determine scope of the unemployment compensation act, and the definitions and tests therein prescribed will be applied by the courts in accordance with the legislative intent. Unemployment Compensation Comm. v. City Ice, etc., Co., 216 N. C. 6, 3 S. E. (2d) 290.

Employments taxable under this chapter are not confined to the common-law relationship of master and servant, but the legislature, under its power to determine employments which shall be subject to the tax, has, by the definitions contained in the chapter and the administrational procedure set up therein for determining whether an employment is subject to the chapter, enlarged its coverage beyond the common-law definition of master and servant, and the scope of the chapter must be determined upon the facts of each particular case. Unemployment Compensation Comm. v. National Life Ins. Co., 219 N. C. 576, 14 S. E. (2d) 689, 139 A. L. R. 895.

This section is not violative of constitutional provisions when properly interpreted and applied. State v. Willis Barber, etc., Shop, 219 N. C. 709, 15 S. E. (2d) 4.

Subsection f(4) of this section, when properly interpreted and applied, is not open to successful attack on the ground that it would result in the deprivation of property without due process of law or constitute a denial of the equal protection of the laws. State v. Willis Barber, etc., Shop, 219 N. C. 709, 715 15 S. E. (2d) 4.

Liberal Construction.—The terms "employment," "employer," "employing unit," "wages," and "remuneration" as used in this chapter must be liberally construed to effectuate the purpose of the act to relieve the evils of unemployment, and the definition of the terms as contained in the act are controlling and are broader than the common law meaning of the terms, and the act includes in its scope relationships which might be excluded by a strict common law application of the definition of an independent contractor. Unemployment Compensation Comm. v. Jefferson Standard Life Ins. Co., 215 N. C. 479, 2 S. E. (2d) 584.

Employer.—An individual who operates three places of business, employing in the aggregate more than 8 employees, is an "employer" as defined in this section. State v. Willis Barber, etc., Shop, 219 N. C. 709, 15 S. E. (2d) 4.

Single Employing Unit.—Where the agreed statement of facts disclosed that the three defendant corporations have common officers and directors and substantially identical stockholders, and that they maintain a central business office where each keeps its records and handles all clerical matters, the three corporations are owned and controlled directly or indirectly by the same interest within the meaning of subdivision (f) (4) of this section and constitutes but a single employing unit within the meaning of the act. Unemployment Compensation Comm. v. City Ice, etc., Co., 216 N. C. 6, 3 S. E. (2d) 290.

The words in the provision of this section that enterprises "controlled" by the same "interests" shall be considered but a single employing unit will be given their distinct, definite, and commonly understood meaning. Id.

Services of Insurance Soliciting Agents Constitute Employment.—Soliciting agents and managers, in their capacity as soliciting agents, are subject to a high degree of control by the insurance company employing them under their written contract, and usually their services are rendered to the company in the offices of the company, and are directly related and contribute to the primary purpose for which the company is organized, and therefore their services constitute an "employment" within this chapter. Unemployment Compensation Comm. v. Jefferson Standard Life Ins. Co., 215 N. C. 479, 2 S. E. (2d) 584.

Burden of Proving Services Rendered for Remuneration Do Not Constitute Employment.—Where services are rendered for remuneration, this section provides that the burden is on the party for whose benefit the services are rendered to prove that they are rendered free from his control or direction over the performance of such services, that they are outside the usual course of the business for which the services are performed, and that the person performing the services is customarily engaged in an independently established trade, occupation, profession, or business, and since the matters of exemption are stated conjunctively, all three elements must be shown in order that exemption from the act be secured. Unemployment Compensation Comm. v. Jefferson Standard Life Ins. Co., 215 N. C. 479, 2 S. E. (2d) 584.

§ 96-9. Contributions. — (a) Payment.—(1) On and after January first, one thousand nine hundred and thirty-six, contributions shall accrue and become payable by each employer for each calendar year in which he is subject to this chapter, with respect to wages for employment (as defined in § 96-8 (g)). Such contributions shall become due and be paid by each employer to the commission for the fund in accordance with such regulations as the commission may prescribe, and shall not be deducted in whole or in part from the remuneration of individuals in his employ, provided that, on and after July first, one thousand nine hundred and forty-one, contributions shall be paid for each calendar quarter with respect to wages paid in such calendar quarter for employment after December thirty-first, one thousand nine hundred and forty. Contributions shall become due on and shall be paid on or before the last day of the month following the close of the calendar quarter in which such wages are paid and such contributions shall be paid by each employer to the commission for the fund in accordance with such regulations as the commission may prescribe, and shall not be deducted in whole or in part from the remuneration of individuals in his employ, provided, further, that if the commission shall be advised by its duly authorized officers or agents that the collection of any contribution under any provision of this chapter will be jeopardized by delay, the commission shall, whether or not the time otherwise prescribed by law for making returns and paying such tax has expired, immediately assess such contributions (together with all interest and penalties, the assessment of which is provided for by law). Such contributions, penalties and interest shall thereupon become immediately due and payable, and immediate notice and demand shall be made by the commission for the payment thereof. Upon failure or refusal to pay such contributions, penalties, and interest, it shall be lawful to make collection thereof as provided by § 96-10 and subsections thereunder and such collection shall be lawful without regard to the due date of contributions herein prescribed, provided, further, that nothing in this paragraph shall be construed as permitting any refund of contributions heretofore paid under the law and regulations in effect at the time such contributions were paid.

(2) In the payment of any contributions a fractional part of a cent shall be disregarded unless it amounts to one-half cent or more, in which case it shall be increased to one cent. For the purposes of this section, the term "wages" shall not include that part of the remuneration which, after remuneration equal to $3,000 has become payable to an individual by an employer with respect to employment during the calendar year 1940, becomes payable to such individual by such employer with respect to employment during such calendar year, and which, after remuneration equal to $3,000 has been paid to an individual by an employer with respect to employment during the calendar year 1941, and during any calendar year thereafter, is paid to such individual by such employer with respect to employment occurring during such calendar year but after December 31, 1940.

(b) Rate of Contributions.—Each employer shall pay contributions equal to the following percentages of wages payable by him with respect to employment:

(1) Nine-tenths of one percentum with respect to employment during the calendar year one thousand nine hundred and thirty-six;

(2) One and eight-tenths percentum with respect to employment during the calendar year one thousand nine hundred and thirty-seven;

(3) Two and seven-tenths percentum with respect to employment during the calendar year one thousand nine hundred and thirty-eight, and each year thereafter: Provided, however, that each employer shall pay contributions equal to two and seven-tenths percentum of wages paid by him during the calendar year one thousand nine hundred and forty-one, and during each calendar year thereafter, with respect to employment occurring after December thirty-first, one thousand nine hundred and forty, which shall be deemed the standard rate of contributions payable by each employer except as provided herein.

(4) Variations from the standard rate of contributions shall be determined in accordance with the following requirements:

(A) If, as of any computation date, the commission finds that: Compensation has been payable from an employer's account throughout the year preceding the computation date; and the balance of such account amounts to not less than five times the largest amount of compensation paid from such account within any one of the three years preceding such date; and the balance of such account as of the computation date amounts to not less than two and one-half percentum of that part of the payroll or payrolls in the three years preceding such date by which contributions were measured; and such contributions were payable to such account with respect to the three years preceding the computation date, contribution rates for the calendar year following such computation date shall be determined pursuant to paragraph (B) of this subsection. The term "year" as used in this section (except when preceded by the word "calendar") means the twelve month period ending on June 30th of any calendar year.

(B) If, as of any computation date, the cumulative total of all an employer's contributions which were paid and accredited to his "reserve account" before such computation date exceeds the cumulative total benefits which were chargeable to his "reserve account" and were paid before such computation date; and if such excess of contributions over benefits paid and chargeable to such account exceeds that percentage of his wages by which contributions were measured, during the thirty-six consecutive calendar month period preceding such computation date, which percentage is shown in Column 1 of the table below, and does not exceed the percentage opposite thereto in Column 2 of the table below, his contribution rate in the ensuing calendar year shall be equal to that percentum of the wages for employment, paid by him during such ensuing year, which is shown in Column 3 of the table below. Of the payments so made, there shall be credited to the "partially pooled account" the percentage shown opposite thereto in Column 4 of the table below, and there shall be credited to the "reserve account" of the employer that percentage of the wages for employment, paid by him during such calendar year, which is shown opposite thereto in Column 5 of the table below:

Column 1 Over but	Column 2 not to exceed	Column 3 Rate of Contribution	Column 4 Cr. Pool Account	Column 5 Credit Reserve Account
2.5%	2.8%	2.50%	.27%	2.23%
2.8	3.1	2.13	.27	1.86
3.1	3.4	1.76	.27	1.49
3.4	3.8	1.39	.27	1.12
3.8	4.2	1.02	.27	.75
4.2	4.6	.65	.27	.38
4.6	5.	.27	.27	.0
5% & in excess thereof		.27	.27	.0

(C) The computation date for any contribution rates shall be July first of the calendar year preceding the calendar year with respect to which such rates are effective.

(D) Should the commission be of the opinion that the balance to the credit of the "partially pooled account" is insufficient to provide adequate security in the payment of all compensation to all eligible individuals, it shall direct such fact to the attention of the council of state, and, upon finding of the council that such a situation exists and a declaration that emergency steps are advisable, the commission is hereby authorized and empowered to require the payment by all employers of as much as 60% of the standard rate to be credited entirely to the "partially pooled account," and if such additional credit to the "partially pooled account" as required by this section exceeds the rate for any employer as fixed under § 96-9 (b) (4) (B), his rate shall be such percentage of the standard rate with no credit to his reserve account. If the additional credit to the "partially pooled account" as required by this subsection is less than the standard rate or rate for any employer as fixed under § 96-9 (b), (4), (B), such employer shall pay the standard rate or the rate of contributions as provided in § 96-9 (b), (4), (B) and his reserve account be credited with the balance of payment after crediting the "partially pooled account" with the additional credit as provided in this subsection. Any increased contribution rate thus required by the commission shall be applicable with respect to contributions on wages paid during the quarter in which such finding of the council of state occurred, and shall continue to be applicable with respect to contributions on wages paid up to the last day of the calendar quarter preceding the quarter in which, upon recommendation by the commission, the council of state shall find that the balance to the credit of the "partially pooled account" is sufficient to provide adequate security for the payment of all compensation to all eligible individuals.

(E) Any employer may at any time make voluntary contributions, additional to the contributions required under this chapter, to the fund to be credited to his reserve account and such voluntary contributions when made shall for all intents and purposes be deemed "contributions required" as said term is used in § 96-8 (i). The commission in accepting a voluntary contribution shall not be bound by any condition stipulated in or made a part of such voluntary contribution by any employer.

(F) If within the calendar month next following the computation date, the commission finds that any employing unit failed to file any report required in connection therewith, or has filed a report which the commission finds incorrect or insufficient, the commission shall make an estimate of the information required from such employing unit on the basis of the best evidence reasonably available to it at the time, and shall notify the employing unit thereof by registered mail addressed to its last known address. Unless such employing unit shall file the report or a corrected or sufficient report as the case may be, within fifteen days after the mailing of such notice, the commission shall compute such employing unit's rate of contributions on the basis of such estimates, and the rate as so determined shall be subject to increases but not to reduction, on the basis of subsequently ascertained information.

(c) (1) The commission shall maintain a separate fiscal account for each employer and shall credit his account with all the contributions which he has paid or is paid on his own behalf. On and after January 1, 1939, the commission shall establish and maintain an employer's "reserve account" for each employer subject to this chapter, to which account the commission shall credit out of the unemployment compensation fund an amount equal to fifty percent of the contributions paid by such employers pursuant to § 96-9 (b) with respect to employment during the calendar year 1938 for the purpose of paying out of such accounts compensation payable to all eligible individuals in accord with the provisions of paragraph (2) of this subsection. To these "reserve accounts" shall also be credited seventy-five per cent of all contributions paid each year pursuant to this act from and after January 1, 1939, the remaining twenty-five per cent of the contributions to be credited to the "partially pooled account" and for each calendar year, beginning January 1, 1941, to these "reserve accounts" shall be credited ninety percentum of all contributions paid each calendar year pursuant to the act, the remaining ten percentum to be credited to the "partially pooled account," except as provided in subsection (b) (4) hereof, and as hereinafter provided. Provided further, that no provision of this section shall in any way be subject to or affected by any provisions of the Executive Budget Act, as amended.

(2) All benefits for weeks of unemployment paid during the twelve months preceding June thirtieth of each year to any eligible individual shall be paid out of the reserve account of such individual's employer or employers by whom he was employed during his base period. In accordance with the regulations of the commission, such payments shall be charged against all employers of such individual during his base period in the same ratio that the wages paid to such individual by each base period employer bears to the total wages paid him by all his employers during the base period. In the event that an employer's credits in his reserve account become exhausted through the payment of benefits chargeable to such account, the benefit payments which are chargeable to such account shall be paid out of the "partially pooled account" and at the same time the reserve account of the employer shall be debited accordingly. Whenever through inadvertence or mistake erroneous charges or credits are found to have been made to reserve accounts, the same shall be readjusted as of the date of discovery and such readjustment shall not affect any computation made under this section prior to the date of discovery.

(3) As of June thirtieth of each year, and at least fifteen days prior to the effective date of any variation from standard rate of contributions, the commission shall determine the balance of each employer in his reserve account and shall furnish him with a statement of all charges and credits thereto. At the same time the commission shall notify each employer of his rate of contributions as determined for the succeeding calendar year pursuant to this section. Such determination shall become final unless the employer files an application for review or redetermination within thirty days after the effective date of such rates.

(4) The commission may prescribe regulations for the establishment, maintenance, and dissolution of joint accounts by one or more employers having the relationship of parent and subsidiary companies. Any employer who is or becomes subject to the provisions of this chapter under the terms of § 96-8 (f), whose organization, trade or business, or substantially all the assets thereof are transferred by sale, lease or otherwise shall have the privilege of transferring to his successor or assignee the reserve account herein established for such employer except that the purchaser, lessee or assignee shall not be entitled to any credit as provided herein except where compensation has been payable from such account throughout one previous year, and that after such condition has been met the reserve account then meets all other conditions as prescribed hereinbefore. Notice of such transfers shall be given to the commission immediately. The commission may make regulations to govern such transfers of reserve accounts. In the event any employer subject to this chapter ceases to be such an employer through the termination of coverage as provided in § 96-11, the reserve account standing to the credit of such employer shall immediately upon such termination of coverage revert to the partially pooled (account) established herein and the reserve account shall be closed. In the event any employer subject to this chapter has not had any individuals in employment for a period of five consecutive years, the reserve account of such employer shall at the end of such five-year period revert to the partially pooled account established herein and the reserve account shall be closed.

(d) In order that the commission shall be kept informed at all times on the circumstances and conditions of unemployment within the state and as to whether the stability of the fund is being impaired under the operation and effect of the system provided in subsection (c) of this section, the actuarial study now in progress shall be continued and such other investigations and studies of a similar nature as the commission may deem necessary shall be made. (Ex. Sess. 1936, c. 1, s. 7; 1939, c. 27, s. 6; 1941, c. 108, ss. 6, 8, c. 320; 1943, c. 377, ss. 11-14.)

Editor's Note.—The first 1941 amendment substituted new paragraph (1) of subsection (a) and new subsections (b) and (c). It also re-enacted subsection (d) without change. The second 1941 amendment added paragraph (2) of subsection (a).

The 1943 amendment changed paragraph (1) of subsection (a) by substituting at the end of the second sentence the words "in such calendar quarter for employment after December thirty-first, one thousand nine hundred and forty" for the words "for employment in all pay periods ending within such calendar quarter." It also substituted near the beginning of the third sentence the words "last day" for the words "twenty-fifth day." The amendment changed paragraph (4) of subsection (b) by substituting "§ 96-8(i)" for "§ 96-8(d)," in line seven of clause (E), and by adding the second sentence of the clause. It also amended clause (F) thereof by substituting "it" for "him" in line nine. The amendment changed paragraph (4) of subsection (c) by omitting the word "calendar" which formerly appeared before the word "year" in line sixteen. It also added the last sentence of said paragraph and substituted, in the next to the last sentence, the words "partially pooled account" for the words "pooled fund."

Contributions Constitute a Tax.—Contributions imposed on employers within the purview of the unemployment compensation act are compulsory and therefore constitute a tax, and they are not rendered any less a tax by reason of the provision that they should be segregated in a special fund for distribution in furtherance of the purpose of the act. Prudential Ins. Co. v. Powell, 217 N. C. 495, 8 S. E. (2d) 619.

Payment of Contributions for Calendar Year 1936 Cannot Be Required.—Since the state unemployment compensation act, ch. 1, Public Laws of 1936, is in effect a tax upon an act or acts, and since the statute was not ratified until 16 December, 1936, and the determination of "employment" within the coverage of the act must be determined from records for the calendar year 1936, and since no benefits therefrom could be obtained by employees for the calendar year 1936, in so far as the act attempts to require the payment of contributions for the calendar year 1936, it is retroactive and void as being in conflict with Art. I. § 32, of the state Constitution. Unemployment Compensation Comm. v. Wachovia Bank, etc., Co., 215 N. C. 491, 2 S. E. (2d) 592.

State Bank Member of Federal Reserve System Not Exempt.—A bank organized under the laws of this state is not an instrumentality of the federal government so as to exempt it from the tax imposed by this chapter, notwithstanding that the bank may be a member of the federal reserve system, since its existence and powers are derived from its state charter and its membership in the federal reserve system is voluntary and may be relinquished by it without destroying its corporate existence. Unemployment Compensation Comm. v. Wachovia Bank, etc., Co., 215 N. C. 491, 2 S. E. (2d) 592.

A state bank which is a member of the federal reserve system is not exempt from taxation under this chapter because of its connection with the federal deposit insurance corporation nor may it claim such exemption because the tax would discriminate against it in favor of national member banks, since to relieve it from such taxation would discriminate in favor of it against nonmember state banks. Id.

Contributions Are Required for Services of Insurance Soliciting Agents.—Since the services of soliciting agents and managers, in their capacity as soliciting agents, constitute "employment" within the meaning of this chapter, the insurance company for which the services are performed is liable for contributions for such employment. Unemployment Compensation Comm. v. Jefferson Standard Life Ins. Co., 215 N. C. 479, 2 S. E. (2d) 584.

Declaratory Judgment as to Inclusion of Certain Salaries Cannot Be Obtained.—An action to determine whether salaries paid certain employees should be included in computing the contributions to be paid by an employer under the unemployment compensation act involves solely an issue of fact and does not involve any right, status or legal relation, and the employer may not maintain proceedings under the declaratory judgment act to determine the question. Prudential Ins. Co. v. Powell, 217 N. C. 495, 8 S. E. (2d) 619.

An action against the unemployment compensation commission seeking judgment that salaries paid to certain of plaintiff's employees should not be included in computing the amount of the contributions plaintiff should pay under the unemployment compensation act is an action against a state agency and directly affects the state, since the amount of tax it is entitled to collect is involved, and the action is properly dismissed upon demurrer, since there is no statutory provision authorizing such action. Id.

§ 96-10. Collection of contributions.—(a) Interest on Past-Due Contributions.—Contributions unpaid on the date on which they are due and payable, as prescribed by the commission, shall bear interest at the rate of one-half of one per centum per month from and after such date until payment plus accrued interest is received by the commission. Interest collected pursuant to this subsection shall be paid into the unemployment compensation fund. If any employer, in good faith, pays contributions to another state, prior to a determination of liability by this commission, which contributions were legally payable to this state, such contributions, when paid to this state, shall be deemed to have been paid by the due date under the law of this state if paid by the due date of such other state.

(b) Collection.—If, after due notice, any employer defaults in any payment of contributions or interest thereon, the amount due shall be collected by civil action in the name of the commission, and the employer adjudged in default shall pay the costs of such action. Civil actions brought under this section to collect contributions or interest thereon from an employer shall be heard by the court at the earliest possible date, and shall be entitled to preference upon the calendar of the court over all other civil actions except petitions for judicial review under this chapter and cases arising under the Workmen's Compensation Law of this state; or, if any contribution imposed by this chapter, or any portion thereof, and/or penalties duly provided for the nonpayment thereof shall not be paid within thirty days after the same become due and payable, and after due notice and reasonable opportunity for hearing, the commission under the hand of its chairman, may certify the same in duplicate and forward one copy thereof to the clerk of the superior court of the county in which the delinquent resides or has property, and additional copies for each county in which the commission has reason to believe such delinquent has property located, which copy so forwarded to the clerk of the superior court shall be immediately docketed by said clerk and indexed on the cross index of judgment, and from the date of such docketing shall constitute a preferred lien upon any property which said delinquent may own in said county, with the same force and effect as a judgment rendered by the superior court. The duplicate of said certificate shall be forwarded by the commission to the sheriff or sheriffs of such county or counties, or to a duly authorized agent of the commission, and in the hands of such sheriff or agent of the commission shall have all the force and effect of an execution issued to such sheriff or agent of the commission by the clerk of the superior court upon the judgment of the superior court duly docketed in said county. Provided, however, that notwithstanding any provision of this subsection, upon filing one written notice with the commission the sheriff of any county shall have the sole and exclusive right to serve all executions and make all collections mentioned in this subsection and in such case no agent of the commission shall have the authority to serve any executions or make any collections therein in such county. A return of such execution shall be made to the commission, together with all moneys collected thereunder, and when such order or execution is referred to the agent of the commission for service the said agent of the commission shall be vested with all the powers of the sheriff to the extent of serving such order or execution and levying or collecting thereunder. The agent of the commission to whom such order or execution is referred shall give a bond not to exceed two thousand dollars ($2,000.00) approved by the commission for the faithful performance of such duties. The liability of said agent shall be in the same manner and to the same extent as is now imposed on sheriffs in the service of executions. If any sheriff of this state or any agent of the commission who is charged with the duty of serving executions shall wilfully fail, refuse, or neglect to execute any order directed to him by the said commission and within the time provided by law, the official bond of such sheriff or of such agent of the commission shall be liable for the contributions, penalty, interest, and costs due by the employer.

(c) Priorities under Legal Dissolution or Distributions.—In the event of any distribution of an employer's assets pursuant to an order of any court under the laws of this state, including any receivership, assignment for benefit of creditors, adjudicated insolvency, composition, or similar proceeding, contributions then or thereafter due shall be paid in full prior to all other claims except taxes, and claims for remuneration of not more than two hundred and fifty dollars to each claimant, earned within six months of the commencement of the proceeding. In the event of an employer's adjudication in bankruptcy, judicially confirmed extension proposal, or composition, under the Federal Bankruptcy Act of one thousand eight hundred and ninety-eight, as amended, contributions then or thereafter due shall be entitled to such priority as is provided in section sixty-four (b) of that act (U. S. C., Title II, sec. 104 (b), as amended.

(d) Collections of Contributions upon Transfer or Cessation of Business.—The contribution or tax imposed by § 96-9, and subsections thereunder, of this chapter shall be a lien upon the assets of the business of any employer subject to the provisions hereof who shall lease, transfer or sell out his business, or shall cease to do business and such employer shall be required, by the next reporting date as prescribed by the commission, to file with the commission all reports and pay all contributions due with respect to wages payable for employment up to the date of such lease, transfer, sale or cessation of the business and such employer's successor in business shall be required to withhold sufficient of the purchase money to cover the amount of said contributions due and unpaid until such time as the former owner or employer shall produce a receipt from the commission showing that the contributions have been paid, or a certificate that no contributions are due. If the purchaser of a business or a successor of such employer shall fail to withhold purchase money or any money due to such employer in consideration of a lease or other transfer and the contributions shall be due and unpaid after the next reporting date, as above set forth, such successor shall be personally liable to the extent of the assets of the business so acquired for the payment of the contributions accrued and unpaid on account of the operation of the business by the former owner or employer.

(e) Refund.—If not later than three years from the last day of the period with respect to which a payment of any contributions or interest thereon was made, or one year from the date on which such payment was made, whichever shall be the later, an employer who has paid such contributions or interest thereon shall make application for an adjustment thereof in connection with subsequent contribution payments, or for a refund thereof because such adjustment cannot be made, and the commission shall determine that such contributions or interest or any portion thereof was erroneously collected, the commission shall allow such employer to make an adjustment thereof, without interest, in connection with subsequent contribution payments by him, or if such adjustment cannot be made, the commission shall refund said amount, without interest, from the fund. For like cause and within the same period, adjustment or refund may be so made on the commission's own initiative: Provided, that nothing in this section or in any other section of this chapter shall be construed as permitting refund of moneys due and payable under the law and regulations in effect at the time such moneys were paid.

(f) No injunction shall be granted by any court or judge to restrain the collection of any tax or contribution or any part thereof levied under the provisions of this chapter nor to restrain the sale of any property under writ of execution, judgment, decree or order of court for the non-payment thereof. Whenever any employer, person, firm or corporation against whom taxes or contributions provided for in this chapter have been assessed, shall claim to have a valid defense to the enforcement of the tax or contribution so assessed or charged, such employer, person, firm or corporation shall pay the tax or contribution so assessed to the commission; but if at the time of such payment he shall notify the commission in writing that the same is paid under protest, such payment shall be without prejudice to any defenses or rights he may have in the premises, and he may, at any time within thirty days after such payment, demand the same in writing from the commission; and if the same shall not be refunded within ninety days thereafter, he may sue the commission for the amount so demanded; and if, upon the trial it shall be determined that such tax or contribution or any part thereof was for any reason invalid, excessive or contrary to the provisions of this chapter, the amount paid shall be refunded by the commission accordingly. The remedy provided by this subsection shall be deemed to be cumulative and in addition to such other remedies as are provided by other subsections of this chapter. No suit, action or proceeding for refund or to recover contributions or payroll taxes paid under protest according to the provisions of this subsection shall be maintained unless such suit, action or proceeding is commenced within one year after the expiration of the ninety days mentioned in this subsection, or within one year from the date of the refusal of said commissioner to make refund should such refusal be made before the expiration of said ninety days above mentioned. The one-year limitation here imposed shall not be retroactive in its effect, shall not apply to pending litigation nor shall the same be construed as repealing, abridging or extending any other limitation or condition imposed by this chapter.

(g) Any employer refusing to make reports required under this chapter, after ten days written notice sent by the commission to the employer's last known address by registered mail, may be enjoined from operating in violation of the provisions of this chapter upon the complaint of the commission, in any court of competent jurisdiction, until such reports shall have been made. When an execution has been returned to the commission unsatisfied, and the employer, after ten days written notice sent by the commission to the employer's last known address by registered mail, refuses to pay contributions covered by the execution, such employer may be enjoined from operating in violation of the provisions of this chapter upon the complaint of the commission, in any court of competent jurisdiction, until such contributions have been paid. (Ex. Sess. 1936, c. 1, s. 14; 1939, c. 27, ss. 9, 10; 1941, c. 108, ss. 14-16; 1943, c. 377, ss. 24-28.)

Editor's Note.—The 1939 amendment added subsections (c1) and (e). The 1941 amendment inserted the words "one-half of" in subsection (a), added the proviso to subsection (d) and added the last two sentences of subsection (e).

The 1943 amendment added the last sentence of subsection (a), rewrote subsection (b), and made changes in subsection (e). It reduced the limitation named in the last two sentences of subsection (f) from three years to one year, and added subsection (g).

This chapter provides remedies for an employer who claims a valid defense to the enforcement of the tax or to the collection of the contributions assessed. In addition to right of appeal from the decision of the commission, it is provided that he may pay the tax under protest and sue for its recovery. The remedy provided by this section must be pursued in the manner therein prescribed. State v. Willis Barber, etc., Shop, 219 N. C. 709, 714, 15 S. E. (2d) 4.

The remedies provided by this chapter are adequate and preclude an employer from maintaining suit in the superior court seeking judgment that salaries paid certain of its employees should not be included in computing the amount of contributions it should pay. Prudential Ins. Co. v. Powell, 217 N. C. 495, 8 S. E. (2d) 619.

Judgment That Certain Salaries Be Not Included Cannot Be Obtained.—A judgment that salaries paid to certain of plaintiff's employees should not be included in computing the amount of the contributions plaintiff should pay under the unemployment compensation act would in effect enjoin the commission from seeking further to collect the amount of contributions which it contends are justly due, and it being expressly provided in the act that injunction should not lie to restrain the collection of any tax or contribution levied under Public Laws of 1939, ch. 27, § 10, the court is without jurisdiction of an action seeking such relief, since it may not do indirectly what it is prohibited from doing directly. Prudential Ins. Co. v. Powell, 217 N. C. 495, 8 S. E. (2d) 619.

Single Employing Unit.—Where the commission contends that the employer and another concern controlled by the same interests jointly constitute a single employment unit liable for the payment of unemployment compensation contributions and it wishes to have this liability judicially adjudged, it must follow the procedure prescribed by this section. In re Mitchell, 220 N. C. 65, 67, 16 S. E. (2d) 476, 142 A. L. R. 931.

§ 96-11. Period, election, and termination of employer's coverage.—(a) Any employing unit which is or becomes an employer subject to this chapter within any calendar year shall be subject to this chapter during the whole of such calendar year; provided, however, that on and after July first, one thousand nine hundred thirty-nine, this section shall not be construed to apply to any part of the business of an employer as may come within the terms of section one (a) of the Federal Railroad Unemployment Insurance Act.

(b) Except as otherwise provided in subsections (a) and (c) of this section, an employing unit shall cease to be an employer subject to this act only as of the first day of January of any calendar year, if it files with the commission prior to the thirty-first day of January of such year a written application for termination of coverage and the commission finds that there were no twenty different weeks within the preceding calendar year (whether or not such weeks are or were consecutive) within which said employing unit employed eight or more individuals in employment (not necessarily simultaneously and irrespective of whether the same individuals were employed in each such week). For the purpose of this subsection, the two or more employing units mentioned in paragraphs two or three of § 96-8, subsection (f), of this chapter shall be treated as a single employing unit.

(c) (1) An employing unit, not otherwise subject to this chapter, which files with the commission its written election to become an employer subject hereto for not less than two calendar years shall, with the written approval of such election by the commission, become an employer subject hereto to the same extent as all other employers, as of the date stated in such approval, and shall cease to be subject hereto as of January one of any calendar year subsequent to such two calendar years only if, at least thirty days prior to such first day of January, it has filed with the commission a written notice to that effect.

(2) Any employing unit for which services that do not constitute employment as defined in this chapter are performed may file with the commission a written election that all such services performed by individuals in its employ, in one or more distinct establishments or places of business, shall be deemed to constitute employment for all the purposes of this chapter for not less than two calendar years. Upon the written approval of such election by the commission such services shall be deemed to constitute employment subject to this chapter from and after the date stated in such approval. Such services shall cease to be deemed employment, subject hereto as of January one of any calendar year subsequent to such two calendar years only if, at least thirty days prior to such first day of January, such employing unit has filed with the commission a written notice to that effect. (Ex. Sess. 1936, c. 1, s. 8; 1939, c. 52, ss. 2, 3; 1941, c. 108, s. 9.)

Editor's Note.—The 1939 amendment added the proviso to subsection (a) and inserted the reference to subsection (a) in the second line of subsection (b). The 1941 amendment rewrote subsection (b).

§ 96-12. Benefits. — (a) Payment of Benefits. —Twenty-four months after the date when contributions first accrue under this chapter benefits shall become payable from the fund. All benefits shall be paid through employment offices, in accordance with such regulations as the commission may prescribe.

(b) Each eligible individual whose benefit year begins on or after March 10, 1941 and who is totally unemployed in any week (as defined by § 96-8 (k) (1)) shall be paid with respect to such week or weeks benefits at the rate per week appearing in the following table in Column II opposite which in Column I appear the wages paid to such individual during his base period with respect to "employment": Provided, however, after July first, one thousand nine hundred and thirty-nine, for any individual whose employment prior to such date was in employment for an employer who after such date was or is subject to the Railroad Unemployment Insurance Act, and who worked for some other employer subject to this act, only the wages paid to such individual for employment performed for an employer not subject to said Railroad Unemployment Insurance Act after July first, one thousand nine hundred and thirty-nine, shall be used in determining wages paid during his base period.

(c) Weekly Benefit for Partial Unemployment. —Each eligible individual who is partially unemployed (as defined in § 96-8 (k) (2)) in any week shall be paid with respect to such week a partial benefit. Such partial benefit shall be an amount, figured to the nearest multiple of fifty cents (0.50), equal to the difference between his weekly benefit amount (as defined in § 96-8 (q)) and five-sixths of his remuneration (as defined in § 96-8 (n)) for such week.

(d) Duration of Benefits.—The maximum benefits payable to any eligible individual whose benefit year begins after February fifteenth, one thousand nine hundred and thirty-nine, shall be sixteen times his weekly benefit amount during any benefit year. After February fifteenth, one thousand nine hundred and thirty-nine, the commission shall maintain accounts for each individual who earns wages in such manner and form as the commission may prescribe as being adequate to administer the provisions of this chapter.

(e) Benefit Rights of Trainees in Military Service.—(1) Notwithstanding any inconsistent provisions of this chapter, the benefit rights of trainees shall be determined in accordance with the following provisions of this subsection for the periods and with respect to the matters specified herein. Except as herein otherwise provided, all other provisions of this chapter shall continue to be applicable in connection with such benefits.

(2) The term "military service" as used in this subsection means active service in the land or naval forces of the United States, but the service of an individual in any reserve component of the land or naval forces of the United States who is ordered to active duty in any such force for a period of thirty days or less shall not be deemed to be active service in any such force during such period.

(3) The term "trainee" as used in this subsection means an individual who entered military service after July first, one thousand nine hundred and forty, who continued in such service for not less than ninety consecutive days, and who files a claim within six months after the termination of his military service.

(4) With respect to any trainee, the first benefit year following the termination of his military service, shall be the one-year period beginning with the first day of the first week following the date of such termination; and the second benefit year following the termination of his military service shall be the next one-year period beginning with the first day of the first week following the termination of such first benefit year.

(5) With respect to the first benefit year defined in paragraph (4) of this subsection, the base period shall be the two completed calendar years preceding the date of the trainee's entry into military service; and with respect to the second benefit year defined in paragraph (4) of this subsection, the base period shall be the complete calendar year preceding the date of the trainee's entry into military service plus the portion of a calendar year intervening between the end of such completed calendar year and the date of the trainee's entry into military service, plus (but only in the event that the military service ends between July 1 and December 31 of any year) the portion of a calendar year intervening between the date of the trainee's termination of service and the last day of such calendar year; provided that for the purposes of this subsection such portion of a calendar year intervening between the date of a trainee's termination of service and the last day of such calendar year shall be deemed to be included in the calendar year in which the trainee entered military service.

(6) The provisions of § 96-13 (d) with respect to waiting period shall not be applicable to the first benefit year defined in paragraph (4) of this subsection.

(7) An otherwise eligible trainee shall be eligible to receive benefits with respect to any week beginning in either of the benefit years defined in paragraph (4) of this subsection only if he has earned wages in an amount of $130 or more in either of the two calendar years included within the base period for that benefit year in which occurs the week with respect to which benefits are claimed.

(8) A trainee's weekly benefits amount with respect to each of the two benefit years defined in paragraph (4) of this subsection shall be the amount appearing in Column II of the table of subsection (b) opposite which amount there appears in Column I of such table the wages payable to such individual with respect to "employment" during that calendar year of the base period of such benefit year in which such trainee's wages payable with respect to "employment" were greatest.

(9) An otherwise eligible trainee shall be entitled during the first benefit year defined in paragraph (4) of this subsection to a total amount of benefits equal to whichever is the lesser of (a) sixteen times his weekly benefit amount and (b) thirty-two times his weekly benefit amount less the amount of any benefits paid him under this act for unemployment prior to his entry into military service on the basis of his wages in any part of the base period of such benefit year.

(10) An otherwise eligible trainee shall be entitled during the second benefit year defined in paragraph (4) of this subsection to a total amount of benefits equal to whichever is the lesser of (a) sixteen times his weekly benefit amount, and (b) four times his weekly benefit amount times the number of calendar quarters (completed or uncompleted) in the base period of such benefit year and less the amount of any benefits paid him under this act for unemployment prior to his entry into military service on the basis of his wages in any part of the base period of such benefit year.

(11) With respect to any benefit year of a trainee as defined in § 96-8 (r) which begins subsequent to the second benefit year defined in paragraph (4) of this subsection and has a base period containing less than four completed calendar quarters in which no military service was performed, the term "wages payable during base period" as used in subsection (b) shall be deemed to mean the wages payable to such individual during such base period with respect to "employment" divided by the number of completed calendar quarters in such base period in which no military service was performed and multiplied by four.

(12) If under an Act of Congress, payments with respect to the unemployment of individuals who have completed a period of military service are payable by the United States, a trainee shall be disqualified for benefits with respect to any week beginning within a benefits year as defined in paragraph (4) of this subsection until he has exhausted all his rights to such payments from the United States. (Ex. Sess., 1936, c. 1, s. 3; 1937, c. 448, s. 1; 1939, c. 27, ss. 1-3, 14, c. 141; 1941, c. 108, s. 1; c. 276; 1943, c. 377, ss. 1-4.)

Editor's Note.—The 1937 amendment inserted at the end of the second sentence of subsection (e) the words "except where the commission may find other forms of reports adequate."

The 1939 amendments added the provisos to subsections (b), (d) and (e). It also inserted the words "figured to the nearest multiple of fifty cents" in the second sentence of subsection (c).

The first 1941 amendment directed that subsection (b) of this section be amended by adding and inserting a paragraph and table to be known as paragraph (b) (1). The second 1941 amendment added subsection (f).

The 1943 amendment substituted the word "paid" for the word "payable" in the sixth line from the end of the paragraph preceding the table in subsection (b). It also made changes in paragraphs (3) and (4) of subsection (e). The amendment called for further changes that had already been made in the section upon its codification.

§ 96-13. Benefit eligibility conditions.—An unemployed individual shall be eligible to receive benefits with respect to any week only if the commission finds that—

(a) He has registered for work at and thereafter has continued to report at an employment office in accordance with such regulations as the commission may prescribe;

(b) He has made a claim for benefits in accordance with the provisions of § 96-15 (a);

(c) He is able to work, and is available for work: Provided, however, that no individual shall be considered able and available for work for any week during the three-month period immediately before the expected birth of a child to such individual, and for any week during the three-month period immediately following the birth of a child to such individual: Provided further, however, that no individual shall be considered available for work for any week, not to exceed two in any benefit year, in which the commission finds that his unemployment is due to a customary and well established vacation. This provision shall apply only if it is found by the commission that employment will be available to him at the end of such vacation.

(d) Prior to any week for which he claims benefits he has been totally unemployed for a waiting period of one week (and for the purposes of this subsection two weeks of partial unemployment shall be deemed to be equivalent to one week of total unemployment. Such weeks of partial unemployment need not be consecutive.) No week shall be counted as a week of total unemployment for the purposes of this subsection;

(1) If benefits have been paid with respect thereto;

(2) Unless the individual was eligible for benefits with respect thereto in all respects except for the requirements of subsection (b) of this section.

Any individual whose benefit year begins on or after February fifteenth, one thousand nine hundred thirty-nine, who has served such one waiting period week within his benefit year, as provided in subsection (d) hereof, shall not be required to accumulate any more waiting period weeks during his benefit year. (Ex. Sess. 1936, c. 1, s. 4; 1939, c. 27, ss. 4, 5, c. 141; 1941, c. 108, s. 2; 1943, c. 377, s. 5.)

Editor's Note.—The 1939 amendment added a proviso to former subsection (e).

Prior to the 1941 amendment the waiting period prescribed by subsection (d) was two weeks.

The 1943 amendment added the part of subsection (c) beginning with the first proviso, and called for changes in subsection (d) which had already been made by the 1941 amendment and by the Division of Legislative Drafting and Codification of Statutes.

§ 96-14. Disqualification for benefits.—An individual shall be disqualified for benefits:

(a) For not less than four, nor more than twelve consecutive weeks of unemployment, which occur within a benefit year, beginning with the first day of the first week after the disqualifying act occurs with respect to which week an individual files a claim for benefits (in addition to the waiting period) if it is determined by the commission that such individual is, at the time such claim is filed, unemployed because he left work voluntarily without good cause attributable to the employer, and the maximum benefits due said individual during his then current benefit year shall be reduced by an amount determined by multiplying the number of such consecutive weeks of unemployment by the weekly benefit amount.

(b) For not less than five, nor more than twelve consecutive weeks of unemployment, which occur within a benefit year, beginning with the first day of the first week after the disqualifying act occurs with respect to which week an individual files a claim for benefits (in addition to the waiting period) if it is determined by the commission that such individual is, at the time such claim is filed, unemployed because he was discharged for misconduct connected with his work, and the maximum amount of benefits due said individual during his then current benefit year shall be reduced by an amount determined by multiplying the number of such consecutive weeks of unemployment by the weekly benefit amount.

(c) For not less than four, nor more than twelve consecutive weeks of unemployment, which occur within a benefit year, beginning with the first day of the first week after the disqualifying act occurs with respect to which week an individual files a claim for benefits (in addition to the waiting period) if it is determined by the commission that such individual has failed without good cause (i) to apply for available suitable work when so directed by the employment office of the commission; or (ii) to accept suitable work when offered him; or (iii) to return to his customary self-employment (if any) when so directed by the commission.

Provided, however, that no week or weeks of disqualification, as provided in subsections (a), (b) and (c) of this section, may be canceled unless an individual shows to the satisfaction of the commission that he is not unemployed.

(1) In determining whether or not any work is suitable for an individual, the commission shall consider the degree of risk involved to his health, safety, and morals, his physical fitness and prior training, his experience and prior earnings, his length of unemployment and prospects for securing local work in his customary occupation, and the distance of the available work from his residence.

(2) Notwithstanding any other provisions of this chapter, no work shall be deemed suitable and benefits shall not be denied under this chapter to any otherwise eligible individual for refusing to accept new work under any of the following conditions: (a) If the position offered is vacant due directly to a strike, lockout, or other labor dispute; (b) if the remuneration, hours, or other conditions of the work offered are substantially less favorable to the individual than those prevailing for similar work in the locality; (c) if as a condition of being employed the individual would be required to join a company union or to resign from or refrain from joining any bona-fide labor organization.

(d) For any week with respect to which the commission finds that his total or partial unemployment is due to a stoppage of work which exists because of a labor dispute at the factory, establishment, or other premises at which he is or was last employed, provided that this subsection shall not apply if it is shown to the satisfaction of the commission that—

(1) He is not participating in or financing or directly interested in the labor dispute which caused the stoppage of work; and

(2) He does not belong to a grade or class of workers of which, immediately before the commencement of the stoppage, there were members employed at the premises at which the stoppage occurs, any of whom are participating in or financing or directly interested in the dispute: Provided, for the purpose of this subsection (d), that if in any case separate branches of work which are commonly conducted as separate business in separate premises are conducted in separate departments of the same premises, each such department shall be deemed to be a separate factory, establishment, or other premises.

(e) For any week with respect to which he is receiving or has received remuneration in the form of remuneration in lieu of notice: Provided, that if such remuneration is less than the benefits which would otherwise be due under this chapter he shall be entitled to receive for such week, if otherwise eligible, benefits reduced by the amount of such remuneration.

(f) If the commission finds he is customarily self-employed and can reasonably return to self-employment.

(g) For any week after June thirtieth, one thousand nine hundred thirty-nine with respect to which he shall have or assert any right to unemployment benefits under an unemployment compensation law of either the federal or a state government, other than the state of North Carolina. (Ex. Sess., 1936, c. 1, s. 5; 1937, c. 448, ss. 2, 3; 1939, c. 52, s. 1; 1941, c. 108, ss. 3, 4; 1943, c. 377, ss. 7, 8.)

Editor's Note.—The 1941 amendment struck out former subsections (a), (b), (c), (d) and (e) and inserted new subsections in lieu thereof. The amendment also struck out the former second and third paragraphs of subsection (f).

The 1943 amendment rewrote subsections (a) and (b), and all of subsection (c) except paragraphs (1) and (2). It omitted from subsection (e) a provision relating to remuneration in the form of primary insurance payments with respect to old age benefits under the Social Security Act.

This section prevails over the provision of section 96-2 stating the general policy of the act to provide for benefits to workers who are "unemployed through no fault of their own." In re Steelman, 219 N. C. 306, 13 S. E. (2d) 544, 135 A. L. R. 929.

Labor Dispute.—The evidence tended to show that employee-claimants not only did not work during the period of stoppage of work at the employer's plant caused by a labor dispute, but also that they did not resume work after operations at the plant were resumed, and after notification by the employer that jobs were available. There was also evidence on behalf of claimants that they did not return to their jobs because of the labor dispute. The commission ruled that claimants were not entitled to benefits during the stoppage of work. It was held that the employer is not prejudiced by the further order of the commission that the eligibility of claimants to benefits subsequent to the resumption of operations at the plant should be determined, since it must be presumed the commission will determine eligibility of each claimant for such benefits in accordance with objective standards or criteria set up in the act, but the existence and effect of a labor dispute may have an essential bearing upon the eligibility of claimants, the suitableness of work offered, and the disqualifications for benefits. In re Steelman, 219 N. C. 306, 13 S. E. (2d) 544, 135 A. L. R. 929.

Under the provisions of this section employees who participate in, finance or who are directly interested in a labor dispute which results in stoppage of work, or who are members of a grade or class of workers which has members employed at the premises at which the stoppage occurs, any of whom, immediately before the stoppage occurs, participate in, finance or are directly interested in such labor dispute, are not entitled to unemployment compensation benefits during the stoppage of work, and each employee-claimant is required to show to the satisfaction of the commission that he is not disqualified under the terms of this section. In re Steelman, 219 N. C. 306, 13 S. E. (2d) 544, 135 A. L. R. 929.

Burden of Proof.—Each claimant is required to show to the satisfaction of the commission that he is not disqualified for benefits under this section. In re Steelman, 219 N. C. 306, 310, 13 S. E. (2d) 544, 135 A. L. R. 929.

§ 96-15. Claims for benefits. — (a) Filing. — Claims for benefits shall be made in accordance with such regulations as the commission may prescribe. Each employer shall post and maintain printed statements of such regulations in places readily accessible to individuals in his service, and shall make available to each such individual, at the time he becomes unemployed, a printed statement of such regulations. Such printed statements shall be supplied by the commission to each employer without cost to him.

(b) Initial Determination. — A representative designated by the commission and hereinafter referred to as a deputy shall promptly examine the claim and, on the basis of the facts found by him, shall either determine whether or not such claim is valid, and if valid, the week with respect to which benefits shall commence, the weekly benefit amount payable and the maximum duration thereof, or shall refer such claim or any question involved therein to an appeal tribunal or to the commission, which shall make its determination with respect thereto in accordance with the procedure described in subsection (c) of this section. The deputy shall promptly notify the claimant and any other interested party of his decision and the reason therefor. Unless the claimant or any such interested party, within five calendar days after such notification was mailed to his last known address, files an appeal from such decision, such decision shall be final and benefits shall be paid or denied in accordance therewith, and for the purpose of this subsection, the commission shall be deemed an interested party: Provided, however, that any individual who files his claim outside of this state shall have eight calendar days from the date of mailing such notification to his last known address in which to perfect his appeal. If an appeal is duly filed, benefits with respect to the period prior to the final determination of the commission shall be paid only after such determination: Provided further, however, that if an appeal tribunal affirms a decision of a deputy, or the commission affirms a decision of an appeal tribunal, allowing benefits, such benefits shall be paid regardless of any appeal which may thereafter be taken, but if such decision is finally reversed, no employer's reserve account shall be charged with benefits so paid and such payments shall be charged to the pooled account.

(c) Appeals.—Unless such appeal is withdrawn, an appeal tribunal, after affording the parties reasonable opportunity for fair hearing, shall affirm or modify the findings of fact and decision of the deputy. The parties shall be duly notified of such tribunal's decision, together with its reasons therefor, which shall be deemed to be the final decision of the commission, unless within ten days after the date of notification or mailing of such decision further appeal is initiated pursuant to subsection (e) of this section.

(d) Appeal Tribunals.—To hear and decide disputed claims, the commission shall establish one or more impartial appeal tribunals consisting in each case of either a salaried examiner or a body consisting of three members, one of whom shall be a salaried examiner, who shall serve as chairman, one of whom shall be a representative of employers and the other of whom shall be a representative of employees; each of the latter two members shall serve at the pleasure of the commission and be paid a fee of not more than five dollars per day of active service on such tribunal plus necessary expenses. No person shall participate on behalf of the commission in any case in which he is an interested party. The commission may designate alternates to serve in the absence or disqualification of any member of an appeal tribunal. The chairman shall act alone in the absence or disqualification of any other member and his alternates. In no case shall the hearings proceed unless the chairman of the appeal tribunal is present.

(e) Commission Review.—The commission may on its own motion affirm, modify, or set aside any decision of an appeal tribunal on the basis of the evidence previously submitted in such case, or direct the taking of additional evidence, or may permit any of the parties to such decision to initiate further appeals before it, or may provide for group hearings in such cases as the commission may deem expedient. The commission shall permit such further appeal by any of the parties interested in a decision of an appeal tribunal which is not unamimous. The commission may remove to itself or transfer to another appeal tribunal the proceedings on any claim pending before an appeal tribunal. Any proceedings so removed to the commission shall be heard by a quorum thereof in accordance with the requirements in subsection (c) of this section. The commission shall promptly notify the interested parties of its findings and decision.

(f) Procedure.—The manner in which disputed claims shall be presented, the reports thereon required from the claimant and from employers, and the conduct of hearings and appeals shall be in accordance with rules prescribed by the commission for determining the rights of the parties, whether or not such rules conform to common law or statutory rules of evidence and other technical rules of procedure. A full and complete record shall be kept of all proceedings in connection with a disputed claim. All testimony at any hearing upon a disputed claim shall be recorded, but need not be transcribed unless the disputed claim is further appealed.

(g) Witness Fees.—Witnesses subpœnaed pursuant to this section shall be allowed fees at a rate fixed by the commission. Such fees and all expenses of proceedings involving disputed claims shall be deemed a part of the expense of administering this chapter.

(h) Appeal to Courts.—Any decision of the commission, in the absence of an appeal therefrom as herein provided, shall become final ten days after the date of notification or mailing thereof, and judicial review thereof shall be permitted only after any party claiming to be aggrieved thereby has exhausted his remedies before the commission as provided by this chapter. The commission shall be deemed to be a party to any judicial action involving any such decision, and may be represented in any such judicial action by any qualified attorney who has been designated by it for that purpose.

(i) Appeal Proceedings. — The decision of the commission shall be final, subject to appeal as herein provided. Within ten days after the decision of the commission has become final, any party aggrieved thereby may appeal to the superior court of the county of his residence. In case of such appeal, the court shall have power to make party-defendant any other party which it may deem necessary or proper to a just and fair determination of the case. In every case in which appeal is demanded, the appealing party shall file a statement with the commission within the time allowed for appeal, in which shall be plainly stated the grounds upon which a review is sought and the particulars in which it is claimed the commission is in error with respect to its decision. The commission shall make a return to the notice of appeal, which shall consist of all documents and papers necessary to an understanding of the appeal, and a transcript of all testimony taken in the matter, together with its findings of fact and decision thereon, which shall be certified and filed with the superior court to which appeal is taken within thirty days of said notice of appeal. The commission may also, in its discretion, certify to such court questions of law involved in any decision by it. In any judicial proceeding under this section the findings of the commission as to the facts, if there is evidence to support it, and in the absence of fraud, shall be conclusive, and the jurisdiction of said court shall be confined to questions of law. Such actions and the questions so certified shall be heard in a summary manner, and shall be given precedence over all civil cases, except cases arising under the Workmen's Compensation Law of this state. An appeal may be taken from the decision of the superior court, as provided in civil cases. No bond shall be required upon such appeal. Upon the final determination of the case or proceeding the commission shall enter an order in accordance with such determination. Such an appeal shall not act as a supersedeas or stay of any judgment, order, or decision of the court below, or of the commission unless the commission or the court shall so order as to the decision rendered by it. (Ex. Sess. 1936, c. 1, s. 6; 1937, cc. 150, 448, s. 4; 1941, c. 108, s. 5; 1943, c. 377, ss. 9, 10.)

Editor's Note.—The first 1937 amendment omitted the requirement that attorneys representing the commission as mentioned in subsection (h) be regular employees of the commission. The second 1937 amendment inserted the words beginning "or may provide" at the end of the first sentence of subsection (e).

The 1941 amendment rewrote subsection (b).

The 1943 amendment added to the third sentence of subsection (b) the provision that the commission shall be deemed an interested party. It also added the proviso to said sentence. The amendment omitted the words "and by the deputy whose decision has been overruled or modified by an appeal tribunal" formerly appearing at the end of the second sentence of subsection (e).

Appeal by Commission.—Under this section the exact status of the commission as a party to an action is not defined and the part it is to play as such is left somewhat in the realm of speculation, and there is nothing in the provision which constitutes the commission guardian or trustee for a claimant or which would warrant the conclusion that it is authorized to prosecute an appeal from a judgment against a claimant when the claimant is content. Nor may it do so for the purpose of adjudicating issues which are merely incidental to the claimant's cause of action. In re Mitchell, 220 N. C. 65, 67, 16 S. E. (2d) 476, 142 A. L. R. 931.

Finding of Fact on Appeal.—Upon appeal to the superior court from any final decision of the commission, the findings of the commission as to the facts, if supported by evidence, and in the absence of fraud, are conclusive, the jurisdiction of the superior court on appeal being limited to questions of law. In re Steelman, 219 N. C. 306, 13 S. E. (2d) 544, 135 A. L. R. 929.

§ 96-16. Seasonal industries. — Whenever the commission finds that on account of seasonal conditions it is highly impracticable or impossible for an employer in a particular industry or branch thereof to operate for a period or periods of not less than four weeks nor more than thirty-six weeks in a calendar year and the employer cus-tomarily operates entirely or in a branch of his industry only during a regularly recurring period or periods of not less than four weeks nor more than thirty-six weeks in a calendar year, then the rights to benefits payable to an otherwise eligible individual engaged in such a seasonal industry, or branch thereof, who earned as much as ten ($10.00) dollars during the preceding seasonal period, shall be limited in each calendar year to weeks of unemployment during the longest seasonal period or periods as determined by the commission, upon application by the employer, to be customary in such industry or branch of such industry; provided only that the employer tenders at the beginning of each season, and makes available during the season, employment equivalent to employment during the preceding seasonal period to each individual employed by him who earned as much as ten ($10.00) dollars during the preceding seasonal period. The employer shall tender work to such individual prior to the commencement of the seasonal period at such time and in such manner as the commission may by regulation prescribe. Notice when given in accordance with such regulations shall be conclusive as to the fact of tender of work by the employer to the employee; and provided further, that if such individual fails without good cause to report for and accept such work at the time when tendered his right to compensation shall be barred for the duration of the season, but no individual shall be disqualified for benefits for failing to report for or refuse to accept work if such work is not suitable work as provided in § 96-14 (c) of this chapter. It shall be the duty of the commission, upon request and application of each employer, to ascertain and determine, or re-determine, such seasonal period or periods for each such seasonal employer. During a current season an otherwise eligible individual previously employed in a prior season and unemployed during such subsequent season through no fault of his own, shall be paid benefits for each week of such unemployment within the seasonal period, in accordance with the provisions of this chapter, and all such benefits thus paid for unemployment during the current season shall be paid out of and charged against the "reserve" account of the employer by whom he was employed during the previous season. The maximum benefits payable to an otherwise eligible individual whose employment is only in a seasonal industry shall be limited to sixteen times his weekly benefit amount in a benefit year; however, any individual who during a current calendar year is eligible for payment of compensation during any week or weeks other than weeks of the calendar year embracing the seasonal period, and who, during the preceding calendar year was employed in a seasonal industry or branch thereof, shall only be entitled to maximum benefit payments as follows:

If for any weeks of total unemployment which occur and for which benefits are payable during any period not within the seasonal period as prescribed by the commission the maximum benefit amount shall be an amount equal to sixteen times his weekly benefit amount divided by his total wages in the base period and multiplied by the wages paid in his base period in covered employment not within the seasonal period, and the maximum benefits payable for such individual during the seasonal period shall be an amount equal to sixteen times the individual's weekly benefit amount divided by the wages paid in the base period and multiplied by the wages paid within the seasonal period in covered employment in the base period. The earnings of a worker who has earned wages in seasonal employment shall be taken into consideration together with all other wages earned in employment subject to this chapter in determining his qualifications and eligibility for benefits. Where an employer in its branches or divisions carries on both seasonal and full-time operations, this section shall apply only to that portion of such industry or occupation as is determined by the commission to be seasonal after application for such determination has been made by the employer, and notice thereof posted conspicuously by the employer in his seasonal establishments. (1939, c. 28; 1941, c. 108, s. 7; 1943, c. 377, s. 14½.)

Editor's Note.—The 1943 amendment changed the proviso to the first sentence.

§ 96-17. Protection of rights and benefits.—(a) Waiver of Rights Void.—Any agreement by an individual to waive, release, or commute his rights to benefits or any other rights under this chapter shall be void. Any agreement by any individual in the employ of any person or concern to pay all or any portion of an employer's contributions, required under this chapter from such employer, shall be void. No employer shall directly or indirectly make or require or accept any deduction from the remuneration of individuals in his employ to finance the employer's contributions required from him, or require or accept any waiver of any right hereunder by any individual in his employ. Any employer or officer or agent of an employer who violates any provision of this subsection shall, for each offense, be fined not less than one hundred dollars nor more than one thousand dollars or be imprisoned for not more than six months, or both.

(b) Limitation of Fees.—No individual claiming benefits shall be charged fees of any kind in any proceeding under this chapter by the commission or its representatives or by any court or any officer thereof. Any individual claiming benefits in any proceeding before the commission or a court may be represented by counsel; but no such counsel shall either charge or receive for such services more than an amount approved by the commission. Any person who violates any provision of this subsection shall, for each such offense, be fined not less than fifty dollars nor more than five hundred dollars or imprisoned for not more than six months, or both.

(c) No Assignment of Benefits; Exemptions.—Any assignment, pledge, or encumbrance of any right to benefits which are or may become due or payable under this chapter shall be void; and such rights to benefits shall be exempt from levy, execution, attachment, or any other remedy whatsoever provided for the collection of debt; and benefits received by any individual, so long as they are not mingled with other funds of the recipient, shall be exempt from any remedy whatsoever for the collection of all debts except debts incurred for necessaries furnished to such individual or his spouse or dependents during the time when such individual was unemployed. Any waiver of any exemption provided for in this subsection shall be void. (Ex. Sess. 1936, c. 1, s. 15; 1937, c. 150.)

Editor's Note.—Prior to the 1937 amendment the individual mentioned in subsection (b) could be represented by a duly authorized agent as well as by counsel.

§ 96-18. Penalties. — (a) Whoever makes a false statement or representation knowing it to be false or knowingly fails to disclose a material fact, to obtain or increase any benefit or other payment under this chapter, either for himself or for any other person, shall be punished by a fine of not less than twenty dollars ($20.00) nor more than fifty dollars ($50.00), or by imprisonment for not longer than thirty days; and each such false statement or representation or failure to disclose a material fact shall constitute a separate offense.

(b) Any employing unit or any officer or agent of an employing unit or any other person who makes a false statement or representation knowing it to be false, or who knowingly fails to disclose a material fact, to prevent or reduce the payment of benefits to any individual entitled thereto, or to avoid becoming or remaining subject hereto, or to avoid or reduce any contribution or other payment required from an employing unit under this chapter, or who wilfully fails or refuses to furnish any reports required hereunder, or to produce or permit the inspection or copying of records as required hereunder, shall be punished by a fine of not less than twenty dollars nor more than two hundred dollars or by imprisonment for not longer than sixty days, or by both such fine and imprisonment; and each such false statement or representation or failure to disclose a material fact, and each day of such failure or refusal, shall constitute a separate offense.

(c) Any person who shall wilfully violate any provision of this chapter or any rule or regulation thereunder, the violation of which is made unlawful or the observance of which is required under the terms of this chapter, and for which a penalty is neither prescribed herein nor provided by any other applicable statute, shall be punished by a fine of not less than twenty dollars nor more than two hundred dollars, or by imprisonment for not longer than sixty days, or by both such fine and imprisonment, and each day such violation continues shall be deemed to be a separate offense.

(d) Any person who, by reason of the non-disclosure or misrepresentation by him or by another of a material fact (irrespective of whether such non-disclosure or misrepresentation was known or fraudulent), has received any sum as benefits under this chapter while any conditions for the receipt of benefits imposed by this chapter were not fulfilled in his case, or while he was disqualified from receiving benefits, shall, in the discretion of the commission, either be liable to have such sum deducted from any future benefits payable to him under this chapter, or shall be liable to repay to the commission for the unemployment compensation fund a sum equal to the amount so received by him, and such sum shall be collectible in the manner provided in § 96-10 (b) for the collection of past-due contributions.

(e) An individual shall not be entitled to receive benefits for the remainder of any benefit year during which he has been found to have received any sum as benefits under this chapter by reason of the intentional non-disclosure or misrepresentation by him, or by another with his knowledge, of a material fact.

(f) Any individual discharged for larceny or embezzlement in connection with his employment, if such individual is convicted thereof in a court of competent jurisdiction, or if the commission finds that he has made a voluntary confession of guilt, shall not be entitled to receive any benefits based on wages earned in the base period applicable at the time of such discharge. (Ex. Sess. 1936, c. 1, s. 16; 1943, c. 319; 1943, c. 377, ss. 29, 30.)

Editor's Note.—The first 1943 amendment struck out the words "to make any such contributions or other payments or" formerly appearing after the word "refuses" in line ten of subsection (b). The second 1943 amendment added subsections (e) and (f), and omitted the words "or by both such fine and imprisonment" formerly appearing after the word "days" in line nine of subsection (a).

§ 96-19. Enforcement of unemployment compensation law discontinued upon repeal or invalidation of federal acts.—It is the purpose of this chapter to secure for employers and employees the benefits of Title III and Title IX of the Federal Social Security Act, approved August fourteenth, one thousand nine hundred thirty-five, as to credit on payment of federal taxes, of state contributions, the receipt of federal grants for administrative purposes, and all other provisions of the said Federal Social Security Act; and it is intended as a policy of the state that this chapter and its requirements for contributions by employers shall continue in force only so long as such employers are required to pay the federal taxes imposed in said Federal Social Security Act by a valid act of congress. Therefore, if Title III and Title IX of the said Federal Social Security Act shall be declared invalid by the United States supreme court, or if such law be repealed by congressional action so that the federal tax cannot be further levied, from and after the declaration of such invalidity by the United States supreme court, or the repeal of said law by congressional action, as the case may be, no further levy or collection of contributions shall be made hereunder. The enactment by the Congress of the United States of the Railroad Retirement Act and the Railroad Unemployment Insurance Act shall in no way affect the administration of this law except as herein expressly provided.

All federal grants and all contributions theretofore collected, and all funds in the treasury by virtue of this chapter, shall, nevertheless, be disbursed and expended, as far as may be possible, under the terms of this chapter: Provided, however, that contributions already due from any employer shall be collected and paid into the said fund, subject to such distribution; and provided further, that the personnel of the state unemployment commission shall be reduced as rapidly as possible.

The funds remaining available for use by the North Carolina unemployment commission shall be expended, as necessary, in making payment of all such awards as have been made and are fully approved at the date aforesaid, and the payment of the necessary costs for the further administration of this chapter, and the final settlement of all affairs connected with same. After complete payment of all administrative costs and full payment of all awards made as aforesaid, any and all moneys remaining to the credit of any employer shall be refunded to such employer, or his duly authorized assignee: Provided, that the state employment service, created by chapter one hundred six, Public Laws of one thousand nine hundred thirty-five, and transferred by chapter one, Public Laws of one thousand nine hundred thirty-six, Extra Session, and made a part of the unemployment compensation commission of North Carolina, shall in such event return to and have the same status as it had prior to enactment of chapter one, Public Laws of one thousand nine hundred thirty-six, Extra Session, and under authority of chapter one hundred six, Public Laws of one thousand nine hundred thirty-five, shall carry on the duties therein prescribed; but, pending a final settlement of the affairs of the unemployment compensation commission of North Carolina, the said state employment service shall render such service in connection therewith as shall be demanded or required under the provisions of this chapter or the provisions of chapter one, Public Laws of one thousand nine hundred thirty-six, Extra Session. (1937, c. 363; 1939, c. 52, s. 8.)

Editor's Note.—The 1939 amendment added the last sentence to the first paragraph.

Art. 3. Employment Service Division.

§ 96-20. Duties of division; conformance to Wagner-Peyser Act; organization; director; employees.—The employment service division of the Unemployment Compensation Commission shall establish and maintain free public employment offices in such number and in such places as may be necessary for the proper administration of this article, and for the purpose of performing such duties as are within the purview of the act of Congress entitled "An act to provide for the establishment of a national employment system and for cooperation with the states in the promotion of such system and for other purposes," approved June sixth, one thousand nine hundred and thirty-three (48 Stat., 113; U. S. C., Title 29, sec. 49(c)), as amended. The said division shall be administered by a full-time salaried director, who shall be charged with the duty to cooperate with any official or agency of the United States having powers or duties under the provisions of the said act of congress, as amended, and to do and perform all things necessary to secure to this state the benefits of the said act of congress, as amended, in the promotion and maintenance of a system of public employment offices. The provisions of the said act of congress, as amended, are hereby accepted by this state, in conformity with section four of said act, and this state will observe and comply with the requirements thereof. The state employment service division is hereby designated and constituted the agency of this state for the purpose of said act. The commission is directed to appoint the director, other officers, and employees of the state employment service. Such appointments shall be made in accordance with regulations prescribed by the director of the United States employment service. (Ex. Sess. 1936, c. 1, s. 12; 1941, c. 108, s. 11.)

§ 96-21. Cooperation with federal board for vocational education.—The employment service division shall cooperate with the federal board for vocational education, division for rehabilitation of crippled soldiers and sailors, in endeavoring to secure suitable employment and fair treatment of the veterans of the world war. (1921, c. 131, s. 3; Ex. Sess. 1936, c. 1, s. 12; C. S. 7312(c).)

§ 96-22. Employment of minors; farm employment; promotion of Americanism.—The employment service division shall have jurisdiction over all matters contemplated in this article pertaining to securing employment for all minors who avail themselves of the free employment service. The employment service division shall have power to so conduct its affairs that at all times it shall be in harmony with laws relating to child labor and compulsory education; to aid in inducing minors over sixteen, who cannot or do not for various reasons attend day school, to undertake promising skilled employment; to aid in influencing minors who do not come within the purview of compulsory education laws, and who do not attend day school, to avail themselves of continuation or special courses in existing night schools, vocational schools, part-time schools, trade schools, business schools, library schools, university extension courses, etc., so as to become more skilled in such occupation or vocation to which they are respectively inclined or particularly adapted; to aid in securing vocational employment on farms for town and city boys who are interested in agricultural work, and particularly town and city high school boys who include agriculture as an elective study; to cooperate with various social agencies, schools, etc., in group organization of employed minors, particularly those of foreign parentage, in order to promote the development of real, practical Americanism through a broader knowledge of the duties of citizenship; to investigate methods of vocational rehabilitation of boys and girls who are maimed or crippled and ways and means for minimizing such handicap. (1921, c. 131, s. 4; Ex. Sess. 1936, c. 1, s. 12; C. S. 7312(d).)

Editor's Note.—This section is summarized in 1 N. C. Law Rev. 308.

§ 96-23. Job placement; information; research and reports.—The employment service division shall make public, through the newspapers and other media, information as to situations it may have applicants to fill, and establish relations with employers for the purpose of supplying demands for labor. The division shall collect, collate, and publish statistical and other information relating to the work under its jurisdiction; investigate economic developments, and the extent and causes of unemployment and remedies therefor within and without the state, with the view of preparing for the information of the general assembly such facts as in its opinion may make further legislation desirable. (1921, c. 131, s. 5; Ex. Sess. 1936, c. 1, s. 12; C. S. 7312(e).)

§ 96-24. Local offices; cooperation with United States service; financial aid from United States.—The employment service division is authorized to enter into agreement with the governing authorities of any municipality, county, township, or school corporation in the state for such period of time as may be deemed desirable for the purpose of establishing and maintaining local free employment offices, and for the extension of vocational guidance in cooperation with the United States employment service, and under and by virtue of any such agreement as aforesaid to pay, from any funds appropriated by the state for the purposes of this article, any part or the whole of the salaries, expenses or rent, maintenance, and equipment of offices and other expenses. (1921, c. 131, s. 6; 1935, c. 106, s. 4; 1931, c. 312, s. 3; Ex. Sess. 1936, c. 1, s. 12; C. S. 7312(f).)

Editor's Note.—Prior to the amendment of 1935, this section applied to vocational guidance of minors. The section was extended by the amendment.

§ 96-25. Acceptance and use of donations.—It shall be lawful for the employment service division to receive, accept, and use, in the name of the people of the state, or any community or municipal corporation, as the donor may designate, by gift or devise, any moneys, buildings, or real estate for the purpose of extending the benefits of this article and for the purpose of giving assistance to deserving maimed or crippled boys and girls through vocational rehabilitation. (1921, c. 131, s. 7; 1931, c. 312, s. 3; Ex. Sess. 1936, c. 1, s. 12; C. S. 7312(g).)

§ 96-26. Cooperation of towns, townships, and counties with division.—It shall be lawful for the governing authorities of any municipality, county, township, or school corporation in the state to enter into cooperative agreement with the employment service division and to appropriate and expend the necessary money upon such conditions as may be approved by the employment service division and to permit the use of public property for the joint establishment and maintenance of such offices as may be mutually agreed upon, and which will further the purpose of this article. (1921, c. 131, s. 8; 1931, c. 312, s. 3; 1935, c. 106, s. 5; Ex. Sess. 1936, c. 1, s. 12; C. S. 7312(h).)

Editor's Note.—The amendment of 1935 inserted the clause reading "upon such conditions as may be approved by the commissioner of labor."

§ 96-27. Method of handling employment service funds.—All federal funds received by this state under the Wagner-Peyser Act (48 Stat. 113; Title 29, U. S. C., § 49) as amended, and all state funds appropriated or made available to the employment service division shall be paid into the unemployment compensation administration fund, and said moneys are hereby made available to the state employment service to be expended as provided in this article and by said act of Congress. For the purpose of establishing and maintaining free public employment offices, said division is authorized to enter into agreements with any political subdivision of this state or with any private, nonprofit organization, and as a part of any such agreement the commission may accept moneys, services, or quarters as a contribution to the unemployment compensation administration fund. (1935, c. 106, s. 7; Ex. Sess. 1936, c. 1, s. 12; 1941, c. 108, s. 11.)

Editor's Note.—The 1941 amendment struck out the words "the special employment service account in" formerly appearing after the word "into" in line five of the text of this section.

§ 96-28. Annual appropriation.—There is hereby appropriated to the unemployment compensation commission seventy-five thousand dollars annually, for the purpose of paying the state's contribution towards the expenses of the employment service division. (Ex. Sess. 1936, c. 1, s. 13; 1941, c. 108, s. 12.)

Chapter 97. Workmen's Compensation Act.

Sec. Art. 1. Workmen's Compensation Act.

Art. 1. Workmen's Compensation Act.

§ 97-1. Official title.—This article shall be known and cited as "The North Carolina Workmen's Compensation Act." (1929, c. 120, s. 1.)

In General.—It was the purpose of the General Assembly in providing for compensation for an employee, that the North Carolina Industrial Commission, created by the act for that purpose, shall administer its provisions to the end that both employee and employer shall receive the benefits and enjoy the protection of the act. The act contemplates mutual concessions by employee and employer; for that reason, its validity has been upheld, and its policy approved. Winslow v. Carolina Conference Ass'n, 211 N. C. 571, 578, 191 S. E. 403.

It is not the purpose of the Workmen's Compensation Act to exculpate or absolve employers from the consequences of their negligent conduct. Tscheiller v. National Weaving Co., 214 N. C. 449, 452, 199 S. E. 623.

Judicial Notice.—Our courts will take judicial notice of a public statute of the state, which therefore need not be pleaded, and the North Carolina Workmen's Compensation Act is a public statute. Miller v. Roberts, 212 N. C. 126, 193 S. E. 286.

Construction.—The Workmen's Compensation Act is to be construed liberally to effectuate the broad intent of the act to provide compensation for employees sustaining an injury arising out of and in the course of the employment, and no technical or strained construction should be given to defeat this purpose. Johnson v. Asheville Hosiery Company, 199 N. C. 38, 153 S. E. 591. See Roberts v. City Ice, etc., Co., 210 N. C. 17, 185 S. E. 438; Barbour v. State Hospital, 213 N. C. 515, 516, 196 S. E. 812.

However, the rule of liberal construction cannot be extended beyond the clearly expressed language of the act. Gilmore v. Hoke County Board of Education, 222 N. C. 358, 23 S. E. (2d) 292.

Nor can the rule of liberal construction be carried to the point of applying it to employments not within its stated scope, or not within its intent or purpose. Wilson v. Mooresville, 222 N. C. 283, 290, 22 S. E. (2d) 907.

The provisions of the Workmen's Compensation Act are to be liberally construed to effectuate the legislative intent as gathered from the act to award compensation for the injury or death of an employee arising out of and in the course of his employment, irrespective of the question of negligence. Reeves v. Parker-Graham-Sexton, Inc., 199 N. C. 236, 154 S. E. 66.

The various provisions of the Workmen's Compensation Act are to be construed in their relations to each other as a whole to effectuate the intent of the Legislature to provide compensation to an employee for injury arising out of and in the course of his employment. Rice v. Denny Roll & Panel Co., 199 N. C. 154, 154 S. E. 69.

The Workmen's Compensation Act must be liberally construed and liberally applied. Thomas v. Raleigh Gas Co., 218 N. C. 429, 11 S. E. (2d) 297.

The Workmen's Compensation Act will be construed as a whole to effectuate the intent of the general assembly. Morris v. Laughlin Chevrolet Co., 217 N. C. 428, 8 S. E. (2d) 484, 128 A. L. R. 132.

Constitutionality.—The Workmen's Compensation Act of North Carolina has been held to be constitutional by the supreme court of that state, and the supreme court of the United States has upheld the constitutionality of similar compensation acts. Jenkins v. American Enka Corp., 95 F. (2d) 755.

The contention that the workmen's compensation act is unconstitutional on the ground that it destroys the right of trial by jury is untenable. McCune v. Rhodes-Rhyne Mfg. Co., 217 N. C. 351, 8 S. E. (2d) 219.

Basis of Liability.—The Workmen's Compensation Act takes into consideration certain elements of a mutual concession between the employer and employee by which the question of negligence is eliminated, and liability under the act rests upon the employer upon the condition precedent of an injury by accident occurring in the course of employment and arising out of it. Conrad v. Cook-Lewis Foundry Co., 198 N. C. 723, 153 S. E. 266.

State Statute Governs Rights of Parties.—The rights of employer, employee, and insurance carrier under a workmen's compensation statute are governed by the law of the state of the statute. Betts v. Southern Ry. Co., 71 F. (2d) 787, 789.

The Industrial Commission has exclusive jurisdiction of the rights and remedies herein afforded. Hedgepeth v. Lumbermen's Mut. Cas. Co., 209 N. C. 45, 47, 182 S. E. 704.

Jurisdiction.—Findings of fact of the industrial commission, supported by competent evidence, were to the effect that defendant's employee was temporarily employed in pumping water from a barge which was being loaded with logs on a navigable river, that the barge careened, that the employee fell or jumped from the shore side of the barge and was actually killed on land as a result of the barge crushing him. It further appeared that the barge was without means of propulsion and was at the time incapable of navigation, and that both the employee and the defendant had accepted, and were amenable to this chapter. Held: The N. C. industrial commission had jurisdiction to hear and determine the claim for compensation for the employee's death, its jurisdiction not being ousted by the admiralty and maritime jurisdiction of the United States. Johnson v. Foreman-Blades Lbr. Co., 216 N. C. 123, 4 S. E. (2d) 334.

It must appear affirmatively by evidence or by admission of record that a defendant sought to be held liable under this chapter had in his employ five or more employees in order to sustain the jurisdiction of the commission, and when this fact is not made to appear, the award of compensation against such defendant must be reversed. Chadwick v. North Carolina Department of Conservation, etc., 219 N. C. 766, 14 S. E. (2d) 842.

Proceeding Should Not Be in Name of Deceased Employee.—A proceeding under the Workmen's Compensation Act to determine liability of defendants to the next of kin of a deceased employee should not be brought in the name of the deceased employee. Slade v. Willis Hosiery Mills, 209 N. C. 823, 184 S. E. 844.

Applied in Davis v. Mecklenburg County, 214 N. C. 469, 199 S. E. 604.

§ 97-2. Definitions.—When used in this article, unless the context otherwise requires—

(a) Employment.—The term "employment" includes employment by the State and all political subdivisions thereof, and all public and quasi-public corporations therein and all private employments in which five or more employees are regularly employed in the same business or establishment, except agriculture and domestic services and sawmills and logging operators in which less than fifteen employees are regularly employed.

(b) Employee.—The term "employee" means every person engaged in an employment under any appointment or contract of hire or apprenticeship, express or implied, oral or written, including aliens, and also minors, whether lawfully or unlawfully employed, but excluding persons whose employment is both casual and not in the course of the trade, business, profession or occupation of his employer, and as relating to those so employed by the State, the term "employee" shall include all officers and employees of the State, except only such as are elected by the people, or by the General Assembly, or appointed by the Governor, either with or without the confirmation of the Senate; as relating to municipal corporations and political subdivisions of the State, the term "employee" shall include all officers and employees thereof, except such as are elected by the people or elected by the council or other governing body of said municipal corporation or political subdivision, who act in purely administrative capacities, and to serve for a definite term of office. The term "employee" shall include members of the North Carolina National Guard, except when called into the service of the United States, and members of the North Carolina State Guard, and members of these organizations shall be entitled to compensation for injuries arising out of and in the course of the performance of their duties at drill, in camp, or on special duty under orders of the Governor. The term "employee" shall include deputy sheriffs and all persons acting in the capacity of deputy sheriffs, whether appointed by the sheriff or by the governing body of the county and whether serving on a fee basis or on a salary basis, or whether deputy sheriffs serving upon a full time basis or a part time basis, and including deputy sheriffs appointed to serve in an emergency, but as to those so appointed, only during the continuation of the emergency. The sheriff shall furnish to the board of county commissioners a complete list of all deputy sheriffs named or appointed by him immediately after their appointment, and notify the board of commissioners of any changes made therein promptly after such changes are made. Any reference to an employee who has been injured shall, when the employee is dead, include also his legal representative, dependents, and other persons to whom compensation may be payable: Provided, that the third and fourth sentences herein shall not apply to Pender, Cherokee, Avery, Perquimans, Gates, Macon, Watauga, Ashe, Union, Wilkes, Hyde, Caswell, Bladen and Carteret Counties.

(c) Employer.—The term "employer" means the State and all political subdivisions thereof, all public and quasi-public corporations therein, every person carrying on any employment and the legal representative of a deceased person or the receiver or trustee of any person. The board of commissioners of each county of the state, for the purposes of this law, shall be considered as "employer" of all deputy sheriffs serving within such county, or persons serving or performing the duties of a deputy sheriff, whether such persons are appointed by the sheriff or by the board of commissioners and whether serving on a fee basis or salary basis. Each county is authorized to insure its compensation liability for deputy sheriffs to the same extent it is authorized to insure other compensation liability for employees thereof: Provided, that the last two sentences herein shall not apply to Pender, Cherokee, Avery, Perquimans, Gates, Macon, Watauga, Ashe, Union, Wilkes, Hyde, Caswell, Bladen and Carteret Counties.

(d) Person.—The term "person" means individual, partnership, association or corporation.

(e) Average Weekly Wage.—"Average weekly wages" shall mean the earnings of the injured employee in the employment in which he was working at the time of the injury during the period of fifty-two weeks immediately preceding the date of the injury,divided by fifty-two; but if the injured employee lost more than seven consecutive calendar days at one or more times during such period, although not in the same week, then the earnings for the remainder of such fifty-two weeks shall be divided by the number of weeks remaining after the time so lost has been deducted. Where the employment prior to the injury extended over a period of less than fifty-two weeks, the method of dividing the earnings during that period by the number of weeks and parts thereof during which the employee earned wages shall be followed; provided, results fair and just to both parties will be thereby obtained. Where, by reason of a shortness of time during which the employee has been in the employment of his employer or the casual nature or terms of his employment, it is impracticable to compute the average weekly wages as above defined, regard shall be had to the average weekly amount which during the fifty-two weeks previous to the injury was being earned by a person of the same grade and character employed in the same class of employment in the same locality or community.

But where for exceptional reasons the foregoing would be unfair, either to the employer or employee, such other method of computing average weekly wages may be resorted to as will most nearly approximate the amount which the injured employee would be earning were it not for the injury.

Wherever allowances of any character made to an employee in lieu of wages are specified part of the wage contract they shall be deemed a part of his earnings.

(f) Injury.—"Injury and personal injury" shall mean only injury by accident arising out of and in the course of the employment, and shall not include a disease in any form, except where it results naturally and unavoidably from the accident.

(g) Carrier.—The term "carrier" or "insurer" means any person or fund authorized under § 97-93 to insure under this article, and includes self-insurers.

(h) Commission. — The term "commission" means the North Carolina Industrial Commission, to be created under the provisions of this article.

(i) Disability.—The term "disability" means incapacity because of injury to earn the wages which the employee was receiving at the time of injury in the same or any other employment.

(j) Death.—The term "death" as a basis for a right to compensation means only death resulting from an injury.

(k) Compensation.—The term "compensation" means the money allowance payable to an employee or to his dependents as provided for in this article, and includes funeral benefits provided herein.

(l) Child, Grandchild, Brother, Sister. — The term "child" shall include a posthumous child, a child legally adopted prior to the injury of the employee, and a stepchild or acknowledged illegitimate child dependent upon the deceased, but does not include married children unless wholly dependent upon him. "Grandchild" means a child as above defined of a child as above defined. "Brother" and "sister" include stepbrothers and stepsisters, half brothers and half sisters, and brothers and sisters by adoption, but does not include married brothers nor married sisters unless wholly dependent on the employee. "Child," "grandchild," "brother," and "sister" include only persons who at the time of the death of the deceased employee are under eighteen years of age.

(m) Parent.—The term "parent" includes stepparents and parents by adoption, parents-in-law, and any person who for more than three years prior to the death of the deceased employee stood in the place of a parent to him, if dependent on the injured employee.

(n) Widow.—The term "widow" includes only the decedent's wife living with or dependent for support upon him at the time of his death; or living apart for justifiable cause or by reason of his desertion at such time.

(o) Widower.—The term "widower" includes only the decedent's husband who at the time of her death lived with her and was dependent for support upon her.

(p) Adoption.—The term "adoption" or "adopted" means legal adoption prior to the time of the injury.

(q) Singular.—The singular includes the plural and the masculine includes the feminine and neuter.

(r) Hernia.—In all claims for compensation for hernia or rupture, resulting from injury by accident arising out of and in the course of the employee's employment, it must be definitely proven to the satisfaction of the Industrial Commission:

First. That there was an injury resulting in hernia or rupture.

Second. That the hernia or rupture appeared suddenly.

Third. That it was accompanied by pain.

Fourth. That the hernia or rupture immediately followed an accident.

Fifth. That the hernia or rupture did not exist prior to the accident for which compensation is claimed.

All hernia or rupture, inguinal, femeral or otherwise, so proven to be the result of an injury by accident arising out of and in the course of employment, shall be treated in a surgical manner by a radical operation. If death results from such operation, the death shall be considered as a result of the injury, and compensation paid in accordance with the provisions of § 97-38. In non-fatal cases, if it is shown by special examination, as provided in § 97-27, that the injured employee has a disability resulting after the operation, compensation for such disability shall be paid in accordance with the provisions of this article.

In case the injured employee refuses to undergo the radical operation for the cure of said hernia or rupture, no compensation will be allowed during the time such refusal continues. If, however, it is shown that the employee has some chronic disease, or is otherwise in such physical condition that the Commission considers it unsafe for the employee to undergo said operation, the employee shall be paid compensation in accordance with the provisions of this article. (1929, c. 120, s. 2; 1933, c. 448; 1939, c. 277, s. 1; 1943, cc. 543, 672, s. 1.)

Cross Refreence.—As to jurisdiction of commission dependent on showing of employment of five or more, see note to § 97-1.

Editor's Note.—Public Laws of 1933, c. 448, added, to subsection (a) of this section, the clause applicable to saw-mills and logging operators.

The 1939 amendment inserted the second and third sentences in subsection (b) and added the second and third sentences to subsection (c).

The first 1943 amendment added the proviso at the end of subsection (b) and the proviso at the end of subsection (c). The second 1943 amendment inserted the second sentence in subsection (b).

The condition antecedent to compensation is the occurrence of an injury (1) by accident (2) arising out of and (3) in the course of employment. Wilson v. Mooresville, 222 N. C. 283, 22 S. E. (2d) 907.

Injury Arising out of and in the Course of Employment.—Under the Compensation Act injuries by accident arising out of and in the course of the employment are compensable (Love v. Lumberton, 215 N. C. 28, 1 S. E. (2d) 121) regardless of whether the accident was the result of the employer's negligence, but injuries not resulting from an accident arising out of and in the course of the employment, and diseases which do not result naturally and unavoidably from an accident are not compensable. Lee v. American Enka Corp., 212 N. C. 455, 193 S. E. 809.

In construing this act the words "out of and in the course of the employment," used in connection with injuries compensable thereunder, is not to be determined by the rules controlling in negligent default cases at common law, but an accidental injury is compensable thereunder if there is a causal relation between the employment and injury, if the injury is one which, after the event, may be seen to have had its origin in the employment, and it need not be shown that it is one which ought to have been foreseen or expected. Conrad v. Cook-Lewis Foundry Co., 198 N. C. 723, 153 S. E. 266; Ashley v. F.-W. Chevrolet Co., 222 N. C. 25, 21 S. E. (2d) 834.

This definition presents a double aspect. "In the course of" refers to the time, place and circumstances under which the accident occurred. This is, in most cases, a fairly simple question. The real difficulty arises in determining whether the accident is one "arising out of the employment." That this is considered as a mixed question of law and fact makes the problem all the more difficult. In the final analysis it means that there must be apparent "to the rational mind, upon consideration of all the circumstances, a casual connection between the conditions under which the work is required to be performed and the resulting injury." For instance, an injury occasioned by an assault of a co-employee and growing out of differences in regard to the employment was held to be within the definition. But where the assault grew out of personal malice unconnected with the employment, no compensation was awarded. In the further case of an unprovoked assault by a third person upon an employee, the risk having arisen out of the employment, a recovery was allowed. Moreover, if the injury occurs from a prank played by a fellow workman, compensation is given. But if the injured employee engaged in the play, no recovery is permitted. 8 N. C. L. Rev. 418.

The words "out of" refer to the origin or cause of the accident. The words "in the course of" refer to the time, place, and circumstances under which an accident occurs. Plemmons v. White's Service, 213 N. C. 148, 195 S. E. 370; Wilson v. Mooresville, 222 N. C. 283, 22 S. E. (2d) 907.

These terms have been so often defined by the supreme court that they now have an established and well recognized meaning. Bryan v. Loving Co., 222 N. C. 724, 24 S. E. (2d) 751.

This chapter does not contemplate compensation for every injury an employee may receive during the course of his employment but only those from accidents arising out of, as well as, in the course of employment. Where an injury cannot fairly be traced to the employment as a contributing proximate cause, or comes from a hazard to which the workman would have been equally exposed apart from the employment or from a hazard common to others, it does not arise out of the employment. The causative danger must be peculiar to the work and not common to the neighborhood. It must be incidental to the character of the business and not independent of the relation of master and servant. Bryan v. Loving Co., 222 N. C. 724, 24 S. E. (2d) 751.

The definition of injury given in § 97-2(f) also provides that it "shall not include a disease in any form, except where it results naturally and unavoidably from the accident." In applying this to the following case the Commission evinced a willingness to construe definitions liberally. Plaintiff, a truck driver, sustained an injury to his eye while cleaning a carburetor. The injury irritated his eye and resulted in ulcer. Seven days after the accident the plaintiff was treated by a doctor, who gave the plaintiff some lotion to use. He visited the doctor three times. Then gonorrhea opthalmia showed up, which was on the thirteenth day after the accident. As a result of the infection the plaintiff lost one eye and suffered a partial loss of use in the other eye. Compensation was allowed. The Commission said that the disease was "natural" because one infection opened the way for other infections. There was more trouble with the word "unavoidably." The Commission quotes from the opinions rendered in other jurisdictions to illustrate that "unavoidably" does not mean "absolutely inescapable," but that "a thing is generally considered unavoidable when common prudence and foresight cannot prevent it." And since no evidence was presented that the plaintiff had been careless, and since the plaintiff had no reason to suspect a possible infection of this nature, the disease was found to have resulted unavoidably from the accident. This liberal construction tends to effectuate the general purpose of the Workmen's Compensation Act. 8 N. C. L. Rev. 421.

In construing sub-section (f) of this section the words "arising out of the employment" in regard to injuries compensable are broad and comprehensive, and must be determined in the light and circumstances of each case, and the act, applying only to industries employing more than five workmen, contemplates the gathering together of workmen of varying characteristics, and the risks and hazards of such close contact, joking and pranks by the workmen, are incidents to the business and grow out of it, and are ordinary risks assumed by the employer under the act. Chambers v. Union Oil Co., 199 N. C. 28, 153 S. E. 594. See also, Wilson v. Mooresville, 222 N. C. 283, 22 S. E. (2d) 907.

The question of whether compensation is recoverable under this act depends upon whether the accident complained of arises out of and in the course of the employment of the one injured, and its determination depends largely upon the facts of each particular case as matters of fact and conclusions of law, and general definitions are unsatisfactory. Harden v. Thomasville Furniture Co., 199 N. C. 733, 155 S. E. 728.

If one employee assault another solely from anger, hatred, revenge, or vindictiveness, not growing out of or as an incident to the employment, the injury is to be attributed to the voluntary act of the assailant, and not as an incident of the employment. But if the assault be incidental to some duty of the employment, the injuries suffered thereby may properly be said to arise out of the employment. Ashley

v. F-W. Chevrolet Co., 222 N. C. 25, 21 S. E. (2d) 834, wherein finding held to sustain award.

Where in a proceeding under this act the evidence tends to show that the employee was a moulder in the employer's foundry, and that he struck his negro assistant with a shovel after the assistant had spoken words to him he deemed insulting, whereupon the assistant left the employment and returned and shot the claimant while he was doing his work, causing permanent injury, is sufficient within the intent and meaning of the terms "injury by accident arising out of and in the course of the employment." Conrad v. Cook-Lewis Foundry Co., 198 N. C. 723, 153 S. E. 266.

In order for compensation to be recovered for the death of an employee under this act it is required that the injury causing death result from an accident arising out of and in the course of the employment, as a proximate cause, and where compensation is sought for the killing of one employee by another for purely personal and unrelated grounds, or when one was employed at night and the other by day, and the killing at night was a result of personal enmity alone, and these facts are found by the Commission and approved by the trial judge, the judgment denying the right of compensation will be affirmed on appeal. Harden v. Thomasville Furniture Co., 199 N. C. 733, 155 S. E. 728.

An injury compensable under subsection (f) of this section, is one by accident arising out of and in the course of the employment, the words "out of" referring to the origin or cause of the accident, and the words "in the course of" to the time, place and circumstances under which the accident occurred. Ridout v. Rose's 5-10-25c. Stores, 205 N. C. 423, 171 S. E. 642.

Whether an accident arises "out of the employment" is a mixed question of law and fact to be determined in the light of the facts and circumstances of each case, but the term requires that there be some causal connection between injury and the employment or that the risk be incidental to the employment. Id.

Where intestate died of hydrophobia resulting from a dog bite received by him while engaged in his duties as attendant in a filling station, it was held that claimant was not entitled to compensation for the employees's death, since there was no causal connection between the employment and the bite of a dog running at large, and the accident was not from a risk incidental to the employment. Plemmons v. White's Service, 213 N. C. 148, 195 S. E. 370.

Where a deliveryman was driving a truck in the course of his employment and, while passing a group of boys playing baseball, a baseball struck the windshield and a piece of glass from the windshield struck him in the eye, resulting in serious injury, it was held that the injury resulted from an accident arising out of and in the course of the employment, within the meaning of this section. Perkins v. Sprott, 207 N. C. 462, 177 S. E. 404.

Evidence that claimant was not sure that the mill in which he was employed would be operated on the day in question and that he rode to work with another employee, requesting his son to follow in his car to ride him home in case the mill was not operated, and that upon getting to work and ascertaining that the mill would be operated, he put his lunch in the room where he worked and went to a platform at the front of the mill to tell his son not to wait for him, and that he there slipped on ice and fell to his injury is sufficient to support the finding that the injury resulted from an accident arising out of and in the course of his employment. Gordon v. Thomasville Chair Co., 205 N. C. 739, 172 S. E. 485.

Plaintiff while about his employer's business, was struck on the back of the head by hides he was jerking from hooks about 10 feet from the floor, and had to stop work for a very short time. As a result of the blow plaintiff contracted hemorrhagic pachymeningitis which caused his total disability. It was held to be an injury by accident, arising out of and in the course of his employment within this section. Eller v. Lawrence Leather Co., 222 N. C. 23, 21 S. E. (2d) 809.

The evidence before the industrial commission tended to show that the deceased employee, for whose death compensation was sought, had been in exceptionally good health up to the time of the accident, that he fell from a platform, breaking his leg, and lay where he fell for about half-hour, exposed to the cool weather, that he was then discovered and carried into the office, where he had to wait some two hours for medical attention. There was expert opinion testimony to the effect that the exposure was a contributing factor causing acute nephritis resulting in death, and that the accident and exposure accelerated the employee's death. It was held that the evidence is sufficient to support the finding of the industrial commission that the disease resulted naturally and unavoidably from the accident. Doggett v. South Atlantic Warehouse Co., 212 N. C. 599, 194 S. E. 111.

In Plyler v. Charlotte Country Club, 214 N. C. 453, 199 S. E. 622, the evidence was insufficient to support finding that injury arose out of employment.

Injury Arising Out of and in the Course of Employment.—Evidence tending to show that a night watchman employed to watch over one section of a highway under construction came over to a night watchman employed to watch over another section thereof, and engaged in an altercation relating to matters foreign to the employment, and that one of them killed the other as a result thereof, is sufficient to support the finding of the industrial commission that the deceased's death was not the result of an accident arising out of and in the course of the employment, and therefore such finding is conclusive on the courts. McNeill v. Ragland Const. Co., 216 N. C. 744, 6 S. E. (2d) 491.

The findings of fact of the industrial commission, supported by the evidence, were to the effect that deceased employee was a night watchman, that his duties were to make periodic inspection and to attend the furnaces and to get up steam, that on the night in question he procured his son to help him, that he instructed his son to do certain of his duties in the boiler room, that he placed a small box and plank on a walkway eight or nine feet high, with one end of the plank resting on the box, and lay down on the plank, that his son called him in time to make a periodic inspection some thirty minutes later, and that in getting up from his recumbent position, while his son was engaged in the performance of the employee's active duties in the boiler room, the employee fell from the walkway and was fatally injured. The facts do not compel the conclusion, as a matter of law, that at the time of injury the employee had not deviated from, or abandoned his employment, and therefore the award of the industrial commission denying compensation must be upheld. Stallcup v. Carolina Wood Turning Co., 217 N. C. 302, 7 S. E. (2d) 550.

Injury to Salesman on Week-End Trip.—Evidence that plaintiff, a traveling salesman, used his employer's car for week-end trip and was injured in a wreck in returning is held to support the finding of the industrial commission that the accident did not arise out of and in the course of the employment, notwithstanding that the injured employee, at the destination of the trip, met and conversed with a representative of the employer without appointment or direction of the employer, primarily in regard to a personal matter. Porter v. Noland Co., 215 N. C. 724, 2 S. E. (2d) 853.

As a general rule an injury suffered by an employee while going to or returning from his work does not arise out of and in the course of his employment. Bray v. Weatherly & Co., 23 N. C. 160, 165 S. E. 332.

Where the evidence showed that a policeman was killed in an accident, while returning to work from a leave of absence, the conclusion that he did not sustain injury by accident arising out of and in the course of his employment was sustained. McKenzie v. Gastonia, 222 N. C. 328, 22 S. E. (2d) 712.

Where the evidence tended to show that plaintiff's intestate, a civilian guard of a construction company, stationed at a main gate of a Marine Base to direct traffic and parking about such gate and on the highway immediately adjoining, was at the time of the accident on his way to his place of employment to report for work and was killed, after alighting from a bus, on the public highway immediately in front of such main gate, as he attempted to cross the highway ahead of an oncoming car, an award was error, as deceased was not on the premises of his employer and his injury and death did not arise out of and in the course of his employment. Bryan v. Loving Co., 222 N. C. 724, 24 S. E. (2d) 751.

While ordinarily an employer is not liable under this chapter for an injury suffered by an employee while going to or returning from work, the employer may be held liable when he furnishes the means of transportation as an incident to the contract of employment. Smith v. Gastonia, 216 N. C. 517, 5 S. E. (2d) 540.

Where an employer was under obligation to transport its employees from the woods where they worked to a camp, and provided for that purpose a safety car attached to its railroad train, having forbidden its employees to use the more hazardous log train, and deceased was killed in attempting to get on the log train and thus return to camp, the employee was killed as result of injury by accident arising out of and in the course of his employment. Archie v. Greene Bros. Lbr. Co., 222 N. C. 477, 23 S. E. (2d) 834.

The evidence tended to show that defendant's employees were required to check in at the office in the morning, were then transported to the job, and after completion of the day's work were transported back to the office where they received instructions as to the next day's work before checking out, their working time being computed from the time of checking in until the time of checking out, that on the date in question they were carried to the job in a truck, but that the president's car was sent to bring them back because of rain, that when the employee in question started to get in the car there were already six persons, including the driver, in the car, that the foreman said he could crowd in the car or ride in with another employee who was driving his own car, and that the employee was fatally injured in an accident occurring after they had reached the city in which plaintiff's place of business was maintained and while they were on their way to defendant's office to check out. The evidence is sufficient to support the finding of the industrial commission that death resulted from an accident arising out of and in the course of the employment, the general rule of nonliability for an accident occurring while an employee is being transported to or from work in a conveyance of a third person over which the employer has no control, not being applicable upon the evidence. Mion v. Atlantic Marble, etc., Co., 217 N. C. 743, 9 S. E. (2d) 501.

A compensable death is one which results from an injury by accident arising out of and in the course of the employment. There must be an accident followed by an injury by such accident which results in harm to the employee before it is compensable under our statute. Slade v. Willis Hosiery Mills, 209 N. C. 823, 825, 184 S. E. 844. See also, Gilmore v. Hoke County Board of Education, 222 N. C. 358, 23 S. E. (2d) 292; Ashley v. F-W. Chevrolet Co., 222 N. C. 25, 21 S. E. (2d) 834.

In order for the death of an employee to be compensable it must result from an injury by accident arising out of and in the course of the employment. McGill v. Lumberton, 215 N. C. 752, 3 S. E. (2d) 324.

Claimant was in the plant of his employer when it was struck by a tornado and was injured as a result of the partial collapse of the building. It was held that the accident resulting in the injury did not arise out of the employment, there being no casual relation between the employment and the accident. Walker v. Wilkins, 212 N. C. 627, 194 S. E. 89.

Casual Employment.—Section 97-13 of this act providing that the act shall not apply to casual employees, is not totally repugnant to this section providing for compensation for an injury to an employee while "in the course of the trade, business," etc., and an employee is entitled to compensation even if the employment is casual if he is injured in the course of the trade, business, etc. Johnson v. Asheville Hosiery Co., 199 N. C. 38, 153 S. E. 591.

The restriction of this act excluding injuries sustained in casual employment will not exclude an applicant under the provisions of the act when he sustains injuries in the course of the general trade, business, etc., of the employer and material or expedient therein, and the painting of the interior of a machine room to give the employees therein a better light or for the protection of the permanent structure is not a casual employment and is one in the general course of business, and the Workmen's Compensation Act applies to an injury received by a workman engaged in such painting. Johnson v. Asheville Hosiery Company, 199 N. C. 38, 153 S. E. 591.

Employment is not casual because intermittent. The Commission has said: ". . . we must conclude that the legislature did not contemplate an employment to be continuous in order to bring it within the act, as they certainly would not enact a statute with such requirements that common knowledge would show to be a nullity under such construction." Employment that is definite, whether for a day or for a year, is not casual. 8 N. C. L. Rev. 422.

This chapter excludes persons whose employment is casual and not in the course of the trade, business, profession or occupation of the employer, and specifically excepts from its provisions casual employees, farm laborers and domestic servants. Burnett v. Palmer-Lipe Paint Co., 216 N. C. 204, 4 S. E. (2d) 507.

An "accident" within the meaning of this act is an unlooked for and untoward event which is not expected or designed by the injured employee. Love v. Lumberton, 215 N. C. 28, 1 S. E. (2d) 121; Slade v. Willis Hosiery Mills, 209 N. C. 823, 825, 184 S. E. 844; Conrad v. Cook-Lewis Foundry Co., 198 N. C. 723, 153 S. E. 266; McNeely v. Carolina Asbestos Co., 206 N. C. 568, 174 S. E. 509.

The mere fact that the injury is the result of a wilful and criminal assault of a fellow-servant does not of itself prevent the injury from being accidental. Conrad v. Cook-Lewis Foundry Co., 198 N. C. 723, 153 S. E. 266.

The word "accident" within the meaning of this act should be construed in its wide and practical sense to give effect to the intent of the act, and an injury produced by inhaling asbestos dust for a period of five months is an accidental injury within the terms of this section, the test being not the amount of time taken to produce the injury but whether it was produced by unexpected and unforeseen, and therefore, accidental means. McNeely v. Carolina Asbestos Co., 206 N. C. 568, 174 S. E. 509.

An "accident" within the contemplation of this chapter is an unusual and unexpected or fortuitous occurrence, there being no indication that the legislature intended to put upon the usual definition of this term any further refinements. Smith v. Cabarrus Creamery Co., 217 N. C. 468, 8 S. E. (2d) 231.

An injury, in order to be compensable under this chapter, must result from an accident, and injuries which are not the result of any fortuitous occurrence but are the natural and probable result of the employment are not compensable. Id.

The industrial commission found, upon supporting evidence, that claimant became temporarily sick and blind while performing usual manual labor in the usual manner, that his condition improved and he went back to work and that shortly thereafter he again suffered a similar disability. The findings support the conclusion that the injury did not result from an accident arising out of and in the course of claimant's employment within the purview of this chapter. Buchanan v. State Highway, etc., Comm., 217 N. C. 173, 7 S. E. (2d) 382.

Death from injury by accident implies a result produced by a fortuitous cause. Slade v. Willis Hosiery Mills, 209 N. C. 823, 825, 184 S. E. 844.

If an employee is injured as a result of the horse-play of a fellow-workman the injured employee is not precluded from recovering his damages under this act if he did not participate therein. Chambers v. Union Oil Co., 199 N. C. 28, 153 S. E. 594.

A newsboy engaged in selling papers is held not to be an employee of the newspaper within the meaning of that term as used in this section, the newsboy not being on the newspaper's payroll and being without authority to solicit subscriptions and being free to select his own methods of effecting sales, although some degree of supervision was exercised by the newspaper. Creswell v. Charlotte News Pub. Co., 204 N. C. 380, 168 S. E. 408.

The secretary and treasurer of a automobile sales company who was injured while traveling to collect accounts due the company was an employee of the company within the intent and meaning of this section at the time of the injury. Hunter v. Hunter Auto Co., 204 N. C. 723, 169 S. E. 648.

A municipal corporation is subject to the Workmen's Compensation Act, even though it employs less than five employees, under this section, the legislative intent to classify municipal corporations with the state and its political subdivisions being consonant with reason and being indicated by § 97-13, which does not include municipal corporations employing less than five employees in listing employers exempt from the act, and § 97-7, which provides that neither the state nor any municipal corporation nor any subdivision of the state, nor employees of the same, shall have the right to reject the provisions of the act, and it being required that these sections be construed in pari materia to determine the legislative intent. Rape v. Huntersville, 214 N. C. 505, 199 S. E. 736.

A worker employed by a city under a contract stipulating the wages to be received by the worker is an employee of the city within the meaning of this section, and the fact that the city obtains the money to pay the wages from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation is immaterial on the question of the relationship between the worker and the city. Mayze v. Forest City, 207 N. C. 168, 176 S. E. 270.

A county board of education is the sole employer of one under contract to teach vocational agriculture in a county school, where such teacher's salary is paid in part from funds furnished as a gift to such board by the state and federal governments, and, as such sole employer, is liable, with its insurance carrier, under this chapter for the death of such teacher from an injury by accident arising out of and in the course of his employment. Callihan v. Board of Education, 222 N. C. 381, 23 S. E. (2d) 297.

Death of a fireman from heart failure brought on by excitement and exhaustion in fighting a fire, is not the result of an accident within the meaning of the Workmen's Compensation Act, heat, smoke, excitement, and physical exertion being the ordinary and expected incidents of the employment. Neely v. Statesville, 212 N. C. 365, 193 S. E. 664.

Person Receiving Federal Relief Not an Employee.—A person furnished work for the relief of himself and family and paid with funds provided by the Federal Relief Administration is not an "employee" of the relief administrative agencies within the meaning of this section. Jackson v. North Carolina Emergency Relief Administration, 206 N. C. 274, 173 S. E. 580. See Barnhardt v. Concord, 213 N. C. 364, 196 S. E. 310.

An employee of the state engaged in the cultivation of food crops on lands of the state used by the state hospital is an employee of the state within the coverage of this and § 97-13, and his death from an accident arising out of and in the course of his employment is compensable. Barbour v. State Hospital, 213 N. C. 515, 196 S. E. 812.

A person employed by a graded school district as teacher and director of athletics is an employee of a political subdivision of the State, and is entitled to the benefits of the Compensation Act under this section. Perdue v. State Board of Equalization, 205 N. C. 730, 172 S. E. 396.

Whether an injured person is an executive officer or an employee within the meaning of this section, is to be determined by the nature of the act performed by him at the time of the injury, but mere desultory, disconnected, and infrequent acts of manual labor not reasonably required by the exigencies of the situation will not classify an executive officer as an employee in the performance of such acts. Nissen v. Winston-Salem, 206 N. C. 888, 175 S. E. 310.

Deputy Sheriff as Employee.—Where a deputy sheriff acting upon his own responsibility and contrary to the instructions of the sheriff received a fatal injury from a person whom he had arrested, he was not an employee of the county within the meaning of this act. Saunders v. Allen, 208 N. C. 189, 179 S. E. 754.

Deputies sheriff are not employees of the sheriff within the meaning of the North Carolina Workmen's Compensation Act, and are not entitled to compensation for injuries resulting from an accident arising out of and in the course of the discharge of their duties, since they occupy a public office and their compensation is fixed and paid as prescribed by statute and not by the sheriff, and the discharge of their duties is not an "employment" within the meaning of that term as used in this section. Borders v. Cline, 212 N. C. 472, 193 S. E. 826.

The provision of ch. 277, Public Laws of 1939, providing that deputy sheriffs should be deemed employees of the county for the purpose of determining the rights of the parties under the Workmen's Compensation Act does not apply to accidents occurring prior to the enactment of the amendment. Clark v. Sheffield, 216 N. C. 375, 5 S. E. (2d) 133.

The evidence tended to show that defendant civic association was incorporated to further the interest of the community, and that its charter specifically empowered it to employ deputy sheriffs to act as police in the community under the provisions of law, that intestate was appointed deputy by the sheriff of the county, but was paid by the association, that the association obtained a compensation policy specifically covering intestate, and that intestate was killed while serving a warrant in the community in the performance of his duties. Held: The evidence is sufficient to support the finding of the industrial commission that at the time intestate was an employee of the civic association, and the association and its insurance carrier are liable for the payment of the award rendered in favor of intestate's dependants. Id.

Employment as Deputy Sheriff or as Jailer.—Where the evidence tended to show that the deceased employee had been appointed by the sheriff as a deputy and had been employed by the county as jailer, that while in the jail he was advised that a man in the vicinity of the jail had shot his wife, that he left the jail and was killed while attempting to arrest the man as he was preparing to flee, the employee, in attempting to make the arrest, was acting in his capacity as deputy sheriff, such act being outside the scope of his employment as jailer, and the evidence is insufficient to support a finding by the industrial commission that he was fatally injured in an accident arising out of and in the course of his employment as jailer. Gowens v. Alamance County, 216 N. C. 107, 3 S. E. (2d) 339.

Injury to Chief of Police.—Where claimants' evidence tended to show that deceased was employed as chief of police of defendant municipality and that deceased died as a result of a shot from a pistol while he was in office, proof of death by violence raises a presumption of accidental death, casting the burden of going forward with the evidence upon the employer and insurance carrier to show that deceased killed himself, when relied on by them, and claimants' evidence is sufficient to support the finding of the industrial commission that death resulted from an accident arising out of and in the course of the employment. McGill v. Lumberton, 218 N. C. 586, 11 S. E. (2d) 873.

Injury to Deputized Policeman Aiding in Arrest.—Evidence that claimant was injured while attempting to aid a policeman in serving a warrant for breach of the peace, and that claimant had been duly deputized by the policeman to aid in making the arrest, is held sufficient to support the finding of the Industrial Commission that at the time of injury claimant was an employee of defendant town under a valid appointment. Tomlinson v. Norwood, 208 N. C. 716, 182 S. E. 659.

Injury to Policeman Pursuing Offender Beyond Jurisdiction.—Where a policeman, in an effort to arrest without warrant a person who has in his presence committed an offense less than a felony, pursues such person beyond the boundaries of the town or district in which by statute he is authorized to act and, in such pursuit, is injured by accident outside of such boundaries, injuries so suffered did not arise out of and in the course of his employment. Wilson v. Mooresville, 222 N. C. 283, 22 S. E. (2d) 907.

Employee Collecting Accounts. — Where there is evidence that it was the employee's duty to collect accounts of his employer for goods sold upon the installment plan and that the employee endeavored to collect an account from a debtor and was struck by another also owing an account to the employer, the injury resulting in death, the evidence is sufficient to sustain a finding by the Industrial Commission that the injury was the result of an accident arising out of and in the course of the employment, and such a finding of fact is conclusive and binding. Winberry v. Farley Stores, 204 N. C. 79, 167 S. E. 475.

Salesman as Employee.—Deceased, at the time of his fatal injury, was engaged in selling the products of defendant. Letters to him from defendant's home office were introduced in evidence which contained instructions for the collection of an account which, as an exception, had been charged directly to the purchaser by defendant, and also a letter stating that defendant would fill his orders C. O. D. without deducting commissions and at the end of the week would then figure his commissions and send him check therefor plus any difference "to make up the $25.00 salary" and also stating that a certain sum was due for social security and asking for his social security number. Held: The evidence, with other evidence in the case, was sufficient to support the finding of the industrial commission that the deceased was an employee of the defendant, and not a jobber or independent contractor. Cloninger v. Ambrosia Cake Bakery Co., 218 N. C. 26, 9 S. E. (2d) 615.

Employee Mowing Employer's Lawn.—When a compensation insurance policy provides coverage solely in connection with the employer's business having a definite location, the policy does not cover injury to an employee sustained while mowing the lawn at the employer's residence. Burnett v. Palmer-Lipe Paint Co., 216 N. C. 204, 4 S. E. (2d) 507.

Hernia.—It is sufficient for the Commission to find the facts required under this section and award compensation if the pain immediately followed the accident although the hernia was not discovered until diagnosis by a physician some days thereafter. Ussery v. Erlanger Cotton Mills, 201 N. C. 688, 161 S. E. 307.

In Moore v. Engineer, etc., Co., 214 N. C. 424, 199 S. E. 605, it was held that claimant's injury resulted from an accident within the contemplation of the compensation act and that the evidence justified the Industrial Commission in finding that hernia appeared "suddenly" within the meaning of this section.

The evidence tended to show that the injured employee was employed to deliver milk, that in delivering milk to a cafe in the regular course of his employment he attempted to lift a box containing chipped ice, and weighing from 125 to 150 pounds, out of a larger box in order to place the milk he was delivering beneath it, that while lifting the box he felt a sharp pain and that it was later determined that he had suffered a hernia. The evidence is sufficient to sustain the finding of the industrial commission that the injury resulted from an accident, since it resulted from an unusual and fortuitous occurrence happening within the body of the employee, which was not a natural and probable result of his employment. Smith v. Cabarrus Creamery Co., 217 N. C. 468, 8 S. E. (2d) 231.

Employee Contracting Pneumonia. — Where an employee got wet in washing certain machines, although furnished with special clothes, and while removing ashes, was in the sunshine and open air, and the sudden change in temperature caused him to contract pneumonia, from which he died: Held, not accidental injury. Slade v. Willis Hosiery Mills, 209 N. C. 823, 184 S. E. 844.

Injury from Occupational Disease. — Where claimant worked in an asbestos plant for six or seven years, and a dust removing system was not installed until about a year before claimant's discharge when a medical examination disclosed that he was suffering from asbestosis, the evidence shows the injury was the result of an occupational disease not compensable under the Workmen's Compensation Act prior to its amendment by ch. 123, Public Laws of 1935. Swink v. Carolina Asbestos Co., 210 N. C. 303, 186 S. E. 258.

Compensation for Disease Resulting from Accident Not Precluded.—Section 97-80 providing that only the occupational diseases therein specified should be compensable, relates only to occupational diseases, which are those resulting from long and continued exposure to risks and conditions inherent and usual in the nature of the employment, and this section does not preclude compensation for a disease not inherent in or incident to the nature of the employment when it results from an accident arising out of and in the course of the employment. MacRae v. Unemployment Comm., 217 N. C. 769, 9 S. E. (2d) 595.

Executive Performing Manual Labor.—Where evidence showed claimant went to another city to inspect a job which defendant employer was completing, and did manual labor on the job in installing radiators, and was injured in an automobile accident occurring while he was returning home from the job, it was held that the claimant, at the time of his accidental injury, had not been off on a mission of a purely executive nature, but at the time was doing the work of an ordinary laborer or employee. Rowe v. Rowe-Coward Co., 208 N. C. 484, 181 S. E. 254.

Under the dual capacity doctrine executive officers of a corporation will not be denied compensation merely because they are executive officers if, as a matter of fact, at the time of the injury they are engaged in performing manual labor or the ordinary duties of a workman. To come within this doctrine it is not sufficient to show that an executive officer sustained injuries while performing manual or mechanical labor which was no part of his duties. Nor are desultory, disconnected, infrequent acts of manual labor performed by an executive sufficient to classify him as a workman when so engaged. The test is, was he at the time of his injury, as a part of his duties, engaged in performing ordinary, detail, mechanical or manual labor or other ordinary duties of a workman? Gassaway v. Gassaway, 220 N. C. 694, 696, 18 S. E. (2d) 120.

Employee Injured in Alighting from Moving Truck.—Where employer hired two employees to ride on truck to help the driver unload and, on the last trip, the driver consented to let the employees off at the place on his route nearest their homes, in accordance with established custom, and one of the employees attempted to alight before the truck had completely stopped, contrary to express orders, and fell to his mortal injury, the evidence was sufficient to sustain the finding that the accident arose out of and in the course of the employment. Latham v. Southern Fish, etc., Co., 208 N. C. 505, 181 S. E. 640.

A proceeding before the industrial commission for compensation is not a lawsuit in the strict sense, and many of the prerequisites of an action at law are not required. Thus, an infant employee may prosecute his claim directly without the appointment of a next friend or guardian. Lineberry v. Mebane, 218 N. C. 737, 12 S. E. (2d) 252.

Review of Decision.—If there was no conflicting evidence and the Industrial Commission decided as a matter of law that there was no sufficient competent evidence that the injury to plaintiff was "by accident arising out of and in the course of employment", the question is one of law and is reviewable by the court upon appeal. Massey v. Board of Education, 204 N. C. 193, 167 S. E. 695.

Where there is any competent evidence in support of the finding of the Industrial Commission that the accident in question arose out of and in the course of the employment, the finding is conclusive on the courts upon appeal. Latham v. Southern Fish, etc., Co., 208 N. C. 505, 181 S. E. 640.

The finding of fact of the industrial commission that the disease causing an employee's death resulted naturally and unavoidably from an accident is conclusive on appeal when supported by competent evidence. Doggett v. South Atlantic Warehouse Co., 212 N. C. 599, 194 S. E. 111.

Where Record Silent as to Material Fact at Issue.—Where in proceedings under this act there is no finding or adjudication in reference to the contention of the employer that the claimant's injury was occasioned by his wilful intention to injure his assailant, a fellow-servant, the cause will be remanded for a definite determination of the question. Conrad v. Cook-Lewis Foundry Co., 198 N. C. 723, 153 S. E. 266.

Average Weekly Wages.—When, in determining the amount to be awarded the dependents of a deceased employee, the methods of computing the "average weekly wage" enumerated in the first paragraph of subsection "e," of this section, would be unfair because of exceptional circumstances, the industrial commission is authorized by the second paragraph of said subsection to use such other method of computation as would most nearly approximate the amount which the employee would be earning if living, and the provisions of the second paragraph of the subsection apply to all three of the methods of computation enumerated in the first paragraph, and such other method of computation may be invoked for exceptional reasons even though the employee had been constantly employed by the employer for fifty-two weeks prior to the time of the injury causing death. Early v. Basnight & Co., 214 N. C. 103, 198 S. E. 577.

Claimant was employed as janitor, his compensation for such work being paid in part by the state school commission, and was also employed in school maintenance work, his compensation for the maintenance work being paid exclusively by the municipal board of education. He was injured while engaged in duties pertaining exclusively to school maintenance work. It was held that an award computed on the basis of the total compensation customarily earned by claimant, rather than the compensation earned solely in school maintenance work, upon the commission's finding of exceptional conditions was proper. Casey v. Board of Education, 219 N. C. 739, 14 S. E. (2d) 853.

The industrial commission found upon supporting evidence that the deceased employee had been employed by defendant employer for a number of years, that he had been promoted successively from truck driver to stock clerk to salesman with increased wages from time to time, and that he had been given a raise in the last position less than three months prior to the time of injury resulting in death, part of the supporting evidence being testimony by the employee's superior that "with the business he was getting" he would have had further increases. It was held that the findings are sufficient in law to constitute "exceptional reasons" within the meaning of subsection "e," of this section, and the employee's "average weekly wage" was properly fixed at the amount he was earning weekly at the time of the injury, it being patent that the wages he was then receiving were not temporary and uncertain, but constituted a fair basis upon which to compute the award to his dependents. Id.

Plaintiff was employed practically continuously for thirty-three weeks prior to the injury resulting in death, but during that period his wages were twice increased. In the absence of a finding supported by evidence that the average weekly wage for the entire period of employment would be unfair, compensation should have been based thereon, and the computation of the average weekly wage on the basis of the wage during the period after the last increase in pay is not supported by the evidence. Mion v. Atlantic Marble, etc., Co., 217 N. C. 743, 9 S. E. (2d) 501.

§ 97-3. Presumption that all employers and employees have come under provisions of chapter. —From and after July 1, 1929, every employer and employee, except as herein stated, shall be presumed to have accepted the provisions of this article respectively to pay and accept compensation for personal injury or death by accident arising out of and in the course of the employment, and shall be bound thereby, unless he shall have given, prior to any accident resulting in injury or death, notice to the contrary in the manner herein provided. (1929, c. 120, s. 4.)

Presumption of Acceptance.—In Pilley v. Greenville Cotton Mills, 201 N. C. 426, 160 S. E. 479, it is said: "Under the Workmen's Compensation Act every employer and employee, except as therein stated, is presumed to have accepted the provisions of the act and to pay and accept compensation for personal injury or death as therein set forth. The plaintiff, not being in the excepted class, is bound by the presumption." Miller v. Roberts, 212 N. C. 126, 131, 193

S. E. 286. See Lee v. American Enka Corp., 212 N. C. 455, 193 S. E. 809.

An allegation that the intestate had not accepted the provisions of the Workmen's Compensation Act is immaterial for the reason that this section provides in substance that every employer and employee coming within the purview of the act is presumed to have accepted the provisions thereof. Hanks v. Southern Public Utilities Co., 204 N. C. 155, 156, 167 S. E. 560.

Where the evidence does not show that the employer has regularly in service as many as five employees in the same business within this State, the presumption under this section is not operative. Thompson's Dependents v. Johnson Funeral Home, 205 N. C. 801, 803, 172 S. E. 500.

Notwithstanding the presumption contained in this section, there are provisions in the act whereby employers, as well as employees, may except themselves from the operation thereof, and the presumption of acceptance may be rebutted by proof of nonacceptance. Calahan v. Roberts, 208 N. C. 768, 182 S. E. 657.

Plaintiff and his employer were bound by the provisions of the Workmen's Compensation Act. Plaintiff's injury occurred while he was allowed by his employer to use certain machinery for his own personal ends. Compensation was denied since the accident did not arise out of and in the course of the employment. Thereafter plaintiff sued alleging negligence on the part of the employer. But it was held that, conceding the evidence established negligence of defendant employer, the Compensation Act barred all other rights and remedies of defendant employee except those provided in the act. Francis v. Carolina Wood Turning Co., 208 N. C. 517, 181 S. E. 628.

An infant employee is bound by the terms of the North Carolina Workmen's Compensation Act regardless of his age. Lineberry v. Mebane, 219 N. C. 257, 13 S. E. (2d) 429.

Ordinarily, the parties may not by agreement or conduct extend the provisions of this chapter, but continued and definite recognition of the relationship of employer and employee, based on knowledge of the work performed, and acceptance of benefits of that status, may work an estoppel after loss. Pearson v. Pearson, 222 N. C. 69, 21 S. E. (2d) 879.

§ 97-4. Notice of non-acceptance and waiver of exemption.—Either an employer or an employee, who has exempted himself by proper notice from the operation of this article, may at any time waive such exemption, and thereby accept the provisions of this article by giving notice as herein provided.

The notice of non-acceptance of the provisions of this article and notice of waiver of exemption heretofore referred to shall be given thirty days prior to any accident resulting in injury or death: Provided, that if any such accident occurred less than thirty days after the date of employment, notice of such exemption or acceptance given at the time of employment shall be sufficient notice thereof. The notice shall be in writing or print, in substantially the form prescribed by the Industrial Commission, and shall be given by the employer by posting the same in a conspicuous place in the shop, plant, office, room, or place where the employee is employed, or by serving it personally upon him; and shall be given by the employee by sending the same in registered letter, addressed to the employer at his last known residence or place of business, or by giving it personally to the employer or any of his agents upon whom a summons in civil action may be served under the laws of the State. A copy of the notice in prescribed form shall also be filed with the Industrial Commission.

In any suit by an employer or an employee who has exempted himself by proper notice from the application of this article, a copy of such notice duly certified by the Industrial Commission shall be admissible in evidence as proof of such exemption. (1929, c. 120, s. 5.)

Where, under the facts alleged, the parties were presumed to have accepted the provisions of the Compensation Act, but the complaint further alleged that in respect to the employee's work defendants "were not operating under the Compensation Act," the allegation that defendants were not operating under the act involves both law and fact, and the allegation is sufficient to admit of proof of nonacceptance of the provisions of the act, and it was error for the court to sustain defendants' demurrer on the ground that the industrial commission had exclusive jurisdiction, it being a question of law for the court, when the plaintiff introduces his evidence, to determine whether defendant employer was not operating under the act. Cooke v. Gillis, 218 N. C. 726, 12 S. E. (2d) 250.

§ 97-5. Presumption as to contract of service.—Every contract of service between any employer and employee covered by this article, written or implied, now in operation or made or implied prior to July 1, 1929, shall, after that date, be presumed to continue, subject to the provisions of this article; and every such contract made subsequent to that date shall be presumed to have been made subject to the provisions of this article, unless either party shall give notice, as provided in § 97-4, to the other party to such contract that the provisions of this article other than §§ 97-14, 97-15, 97-16, and 97-92 are not intended to apply.

A like presumption shall exist equally in the case of all minors, unless notice of the same character be given by or to the parent or guardian of the minor. (1929, c. 120, s. 6.)

Applied in Miller v. Roberts, 212 N. C. 126, 193 S. E. 286.

§ 97-6. No special contract can relieve an employer of obligations.—No contract or agreement, written or implied, no rule, regulation, or other device shall in any manner operate to relieve an employer, in whole or in part, of any obligation created by this article, except as herein otherwise expressly provided. (1929, c. 120, s. 7.)

§ 97-7. State or subdivision and employees thereof.—Neither the State nor any municipal corporation within the State, nor any political subdivision thereof, nor any employee of the State or of any such corporation or subdivision, shall have the right to reject the provisions of this article relative to payment and acceptance of compensation, and the provisions of §§ 97-4, 97-5, 97-14, 97-15, and 97-16 shall not apply to them: Provided, however, that any county or special school district may, at its option, by action of the governing body of such county or school district at a regular meeting of such governing body, exempt itself entirely from the operation of this article: Provided, however, that such action on the part of such governing body shall not become effective until thirty days after such action is taken, and notice thereof filed with the Industrial Commission: and, Provided further, that such action on the part of any county or special school district exempting itself from the operation of this article shall not have the effect of relieving such county or school district in any degree from any liability against such county or school district already accrued prior to the taking of such action, or accruing during the said thirty-day period after the taking of such action. (1929, c. 120, s. 8; 1931, c. 274, s. 1.)

Editor's Note.—The Act of 1931 added the provisos to this section.

§ 97-8. Prior injuries and deaths unaffected. — The provisions of this article shall not apply to injuries or deaths, nor to accidents which occurred prior to July 1, 1929. (1920, c. 120, s. 9.)

Applied in Hafleigh & Co. v. Crossingham, 206 N. C. 333, 173 S. E. 619.

§ 97-9. Employer to secure payment of compensation. — Every employer who accepts the compensation provisions of this article shall secure the payment of compensation to his employees in the manner hereinafter provided; and while such security remains in force, he or those conducting his business shall only be liable to any employee who elects to come under this article for personal injury or death by accident to the extent and in the manner herein specified. (1929, c. 120, s. 10.)

§ 97-10. Other rights and remedies against employer excluded; employer or insurer may sue third party tort-feasor; attorney's fees; subrogation; amount of compensation as evidence; minors illegally employed.—The rights and remedies herein granted to an employee where he and his employer have accepted the provisions of this article, respectively, to pay and accept compensation on account of personal injury or death by accident, shall exclude all other rights and remedies of such employee, his personal representative, parents, dependents or next of kin, as against his employer at common law, or otherwise, on account of such injury, loss of service, or death: Provided, however, that in any case where such employee, his personal representative, or other person may have a right to recover damages for such injury, loss of service, or death from any person other than the employer, compensation shall be paid in accordance with the provisions of this chapter: Provided, further, that after the industrial commission shall have issued an award, or the employer or his carrier has admitted liability in writing and filed same with the industrial commission, the employer or his carrier shall have the exclusive right to commence an action in his own name and/or in the name of the injured employee or his personal representative for damages on account of such injury or death, and any amount recovered by the employer shall be applied as follows: First to the payment of actual court costs, then to the payment of attorneys' fees when approved by the industrial commission; the remainder or so much thereof as is necessary shall be paid to the employer to reimburse him for any amount paid and/or to be paid by him under the award of the industrial commission; if there then remain any excess, the amount thereof shall be paid to the injured employee or other person entitled thereto: Provided further that the amount of attorney's fees paid out in the distribution of the above recovery shall be a charge against the amount due and payable to the employer and employee in proportion to the amount each shall receive out of the recovery. If, however, the employer does not commence such action within six months from the date of such injury or death, the employee, or his personal representative, shall thereafter have the right to bring the action in his own name, and any amount recovered shall be paid in the same manner as if the employer had brought the action.

The amount of compensation paid by the employer, or the amount of compensation to which the injured employee or his dependents are entitled, shall not be admissible as evidence in any action against a third party.

When any employer is insured against liability for compensation with any insurance carrier, and such insurance carrier shall have paid any compensation for which the employer is liable or shall have assumed the liability of the employer therefor, it shall be subrogated to all rights and duties of the employer, and may enforce any such rights in the name of the injured employee or his personal representative; but nothing herein shall be construed as conferring upon the insurance carrier any other or further rights than those existing in the employer at the time of the injury to or death of the employee, anything in the policy of insurance to the contrary notwithstanding.

In all cases where an employer and employee have accepted the workmen's compensation act, any injury to a minor while employed contrary to the laws of this state shall be compensable under this article the same and to the same extent as if said minor were an adult. (1929, c. 120, s. 11; 1933, c. 449, s. 1; 1943, c. 622.)

Editor's Note.—Public Laws of 1933, c. 449, struck out this section as it formerly appeared and inserted the above in lieu thereof. A comparison of the old with the new is necessary to determine the changes.

The 1943 act added the third proviso to the first sentence. it also struck out in the second proviso thereto the words "the employer may" and inserted in place thereof the words "or the employer or his carrier has admitted liability in writing and filed same with the industrial commission, the employer or his carrier shall have the exclusive right to."

In General.—This section assigns the injured person's right of action against a tort-feasor to the employer or to the employer's insurer and enables the assignee to maintain the action which the employee could have maintained had no such assignment been made. Phifer v. Berry, 202 N. C. 388, 392, 163 S. E. 119.

The remedy under the Workmen's Compensation Act is exclusive and under the express terms of this section an employer is relieved of all further liability for injury to or death of an employee, and where the administrator of a deceased employee brings action against third persons for the employee's wrongful death, the motion of the defendants that the deceased's employer be made a party as a joint tort-feasor with them should be denied. Brown v. Southern R. Co., 202 N. C. 256, 162 S. E. 613.

Manifestly the statute was designed primarily to secure prompt and reasonable compensation for an employee, and at the same time to permit an employer or his insurance carrier, who had made a settlement with the employee, to recover the amount so paid from a third party causing the injury to such employee. Moreover, the statute was not designed as a city of refuge for a negligent third party. Brown v. Southern R. Co., 204 N. C. 668, 671, 169 S. E. 419.

The insurance carrier who has paid compensation to an injured employee for which the employer was liable under this chapter may maintain an action against a third person upon allegations that the negligence of such third person caused the injury, but the rights and liabilities of such third person are in nowise affected by the chapter. Hinson v. Davis, 220 N. C. 380, 17 S. E. (2d) 348.

When an action is maintained by the insurance carrier in the name of the injured employee against the third person tort-feasor causing the injury, the tort-feasor is liable for the amount ascertained by the jury as sufficient to compensate the employee for the injuries sustained, which the statute prescribes shall be first applied to the actual court costs, then to the payment of attorneys' fees when approved by the commission, then to the reimbursement of the insurance carrier for money paid by it under the award, and any remaining excess to the injured employee, and an instruction on the issue of damages that defendant would be liable for such sum as would reimburse the insurance carrier and would fairly compensate the injured employee is error. Rogers v. Southeastern Construction Co., 214 N. C. 269, 199 S. E. 41.

The meaning of this section is both clear and logical, namely, that if after the expiration of six months from the date of the injury or death, the employer has not commenced an action, the employee, or his personal representative, shall thereafter have the right to bring an action in his own name, and that any amount recovered shall be paid in the same manner as if the employer had brought the action. Ikerd v. North Carolina R. Co., 209 N. C. 270, 272, 183 S. E. 402.

Employee's Action against Tort-Feasor Is Not a Prior Action Pending.—Where it appears that an injured employee's action against the third person tort-feasor is instituted prior to the institution of an action by the compensation insurance carrier against the tort-feasor, defendant's plea in abatement in the employee's action on the ground of the pendency of a prior action cannot be sustained. Thompson v. Virginia, etc., R. Co., 216 N. C. 554, 6 S. E. (2d) 38. For comment on this case, see 18 N. C. Law Rev. 375.

Words "and the employer" in First Paragraph Are Surplusage.—The words "and the employer," appearing near the end of the first paragraph, have no proper grammatical place in the sentence, and render the whole sentence ambiguous and doubtful. So we are impelled to hold, in construing the sentence, that these words are surplusage, and as such must be disregarded. Ikerd v. North Carolina R. Co., 209 N. C. 270, 272, 183 S. E. 402.

Joinder of Insurance Carrier Properly Denied.—More than six months after the injury complained of, the original defendants filed a petition and moved that the employer's insurance carrier also be made a party defendant, the motion was denied, and defendants appealed. The motion for joinder of the insurance carrier was properly denied under the provisions of this section, the statute giving the right to an employee to maintain an action against a third person tort-feasor if the employer fails to institute such action within six months from date of the injury. Peterson v. McManus, 208 N. C. 802, 182 S. E. 483.

Intent of Section.—After filing proceedings for compensation claimant filed a counterclaim in a suit at law instituted against him by a third person, which suit involved the same accident resulting in the injuries for which he sought compensation. Claimant was not barred by filing the counterclaim from thereafter prosecuting his claim before the Industrial Commission, since he recovered no judgment, and the intent of this section, being that an injured employee should be compensated either by an award or by the "procurement of a judgment in an action at law," the rights of the parties being determined by the act prior to the 1933 amendment. Rowe v. Rowe-Coward Co., 208 N. C. 484, 181 S. E. 254.

Employer Is Not Relieved of Liability by Insurer's Insolvency after Recovery against Third Person.—An administratrix was only a nominal party to a suit against a third person tort-feasor and had no control over the recovery and could not safeguard it for the purpose of paying the award, and the employer, who selected the insurance carrier for his own protection, is not relieved of his primary obligation to the dependents of the employee by reason of the insurer's recovery from the third person and default in payment because of insolvency, nor does the fact that the employer had no notice of the suit, by the insurer against the third person alter this result. Roberts v. City Ice, etc., Co., 210 N. C. 17, 185 S. E. 438.

Remedy Is Exclusive.—Where the allegations and evidence in an action for damages at common law show that the injury in suit was caused by an accident arising out of and in the course of plaintiff's employment, defendant's motion of nonsuit will be granted, as plaintiff's remedy under this act is exclusive of all other remedies. McNeely v. Carolina Asbestos Co., 206 N. C. 568, 174 S. E. 509. See Tscheiller v. National Weaving Co., 214 N. C. 449, 199 S. E. 623; Miller v. Roberts, 212 N. C. 126, 193 S. E. 286; Lee v. American Enka Corp., 212 N. C. 455, 193 S. E. 809; Champion v. Vance County, Board of Health, 221 N. C. 96, 99, 19 S. E. (2d) 239.

Under the 1933 amendment an injured employee may pursue his remedies against the employer under the workmen's compensation act and also maintain action against the third person whose tortious act caused his injury. Whitehead v. Branch, 220 N. C. 507, 17 S. E. (2d) 637.

It was said in Thompson v. Virginia, etc., R. Co., 216 N. C. 554, 6 S. E. (2d) 38, referring to this section, that the rights and remedies granted by the act to an employee to secure compensation for an injury by accident, as against his employer, were exclusive, but that the provision making the remedy exclusive did not appear in the clause relating to suits against third persons. This statement of the law was cited with approval in Mack v. Marshall Field & Co., 217 N. C. 55, 6 S. E. (2d) 889. Whitehead v. Branch, 220 N. C. 507, 509, 17 S. E. (2d) 637.

But the right of the administrator to maintain an action for death by wrongful act is not defeated, in view of this section, as a result of the widow's acceptance of compensation. Betts v. Southern Ry. Co., 71 F. (2d) 787.

However in Bright v. N. B., etc., Motor Lines, 212 N. C. 384, 193 S. E. 391, it was held that an award by the industrial commission to the widow of an employee excludes all other rights and remedies, and the administrator of the employee may not maintain an action against the employer for wrongful death, and the fact that the injury resulted from negligence in the violation by the employer of a criminal statute does not alter this result.

Deceased was an employee of a subcontractor in the construction of a building, and was killed while performing his duties in the structural steel work when a steel beam came into contact with an uninsulated, highly charged electric wire. This action was instituted by the administrator of the employee against defendants upon allegations that defendants were negligent in permitting the uninsulated, highly charged wire to remain where it would likely cause injury to the structural steel workers and in failing to give proper warning of the danger. The employer of plaintiff's intestate was not a party to the action. Defendants demurred on the ground that upon the face of the complaint it appeared that the superior court was without jurisdiction and that the industrial commission had exclusive original jurisdiction. Under § 28-173 only the personal representative may maintain an action for wrongful death and the complaint alleged a cause of action therefor against defendants, and their demurrer was properly overruled, defendants having no interest in the disposition of any recovery in accordance with the provisions of this section. Mack v. Marshall Field & Co., 217 N. C. 55, 6 S. E. (2d) 889.

In an action instituted by an administratrix to recover for wrongful death of intestate, defendant's answer alleged facts upon which it contended that the cause alleged was within the exclusive jurisdiction of the industrial commission, that an award had been made under the compensation act and any right of action against defendant assigned, and that plaintiff did not have the right, or sole right, to maintain the action. Plaintiff moved to strike such allegations from the complaint. Upon the record as constituted plaintiff's motion to strike should have been granted. Sayles v. Loftis, 217 N. C. 674, 9 S. E. (2d) 393.

Right under Death by Wrongful Act Statute of Another State Not Affected.—The acceptance of compensation under this act cannot affect the right to pursue a remedy against a third person under the wrongful death statute of another state, unless there is something in the law of the latter state which so provides. Betts v. Southern Ry. Co., 71 F. (2d) 787, 789.

But Assignment of Such Claim Is Governed by Law of This State.—The assignment of the right of recovery against a third person under the wrongful death statute of one state as the result of acceptance by the beneficiary of compensation from the employer under the compensation act of this state, in the absence of any provision to the contrary in the law of the state of the injury, is governed by the law of this state. Betts v. Southern Ry. Co., 71 F. (2d) 787, 789.

Action by Insurer to Be in Name of Employee or Personal Representative.—The reference in this section to the right of subrogation accruing to the insurance carrier upon payment of the compensation awarded is coupled with the designation that the enforcement of such right be in the name of the injured employee or his personal representative. Whitehead v. Branch, 220 N. C. 507, 509, 17 S. E. (2d) 637.

Necessity for New Action against Third Person.—Whether the employer or insurance carrier who has paid compensation may proceed in the action which has been instituted against a third person by an injured employee or his personal representative, or must institute a new and independent action, is a question of procedure and under the law of this state it is proper to proceed in the action which has been instituted. Betts v. Southern Ry. Co., 71 F. (2d) 787, 791.

Because of the provisions of this section, the employer is not a joint tort-feasor, and an acceptance of an award against said employer for compensation would not discharge a third person whose negligence had contributed to the injury or death of the employee. Id.

Employee of Subcontractor May Maintain Action against Main Contractor.—An employee of a subcontractor is not precluded by the workmen's compensation act from maintaining an action at common law against the main contractor for injuries resulting from alleged negligence on the part of the main contractor, since the action is not against plaintiff's employer but against a third person. Cathey v. Southeastern Const. Co., 218 N. C. 525, 11 S. E. (2d) 571.

Punitive Damages.—Where both the plaintiff and corporate defendant are presumed to have accepted the provisions of the workmen's compensation act they are bound thereby, and the rights and remedies therein granted are exclusive, and the contention that since the compensation act does not provide for the award of punitive damages, plaintiff had not waived his right to trial by jury for the ascertainment thereof, is untenable. McCune v. Rhodes-Rhyne Mfg. Co., 217 N. C. 351, 8 S. E. (2d) 219.

Setting up Employer's Negligence.—In an action begun under this section a third person tort-feasor may set up the employer's negligence in bar of recovery, since the employer will not be allowed to profit by his own wrong in causing the employee's death. Brown v. Southern R. Co., 204 N. C. 668, 169 S. E. 419.

Acts of Employer as Affecting Rights of Insurer Subrogee.—A collision between a bus and a car caused the death of the driver of the car and injury to the driver of the bus. The insurance carrier paid compensation to the driver of the bus for which the bus driver's employer was liable under the Workmen's Compensation Act, and instituted an action in the name of the employee against the administrator of the estate of the driver of the car. Thereafter the employer paid the administrator a certain sum in full settlement for the death of intestate. The administrator set up this accord as a bar in the action instituted by the insurance carrier in the name of the employee. It was held that the insurance carrier had been subrogated to the right to maintain the action, and that the employer could not affect that right by any act to which the insurance carrier was not a party, and that an accord to which neither the employee nor the insurance carrier were parties could not bar their right of action. Hinson v. Davis, 220 N. C. 380, 17 S. E. (2d) 348.

Double Recovery.—See article entitled, "Settlement with a Third Party," 8 N. C. L. Rev. 424.

Applied in Lincoln v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 207 N. C. 787, 178 S. E. 601; Jones v. Raney Chevrolet Co., 217 N. C. 693, 9 S. E. (2d) 395.

§ 97-11. Employer not relieved of statutory duty. — Nothing in this article shall be construed to relieve any employer or employee from penalty for failure or neglect to perform any statutory duty. (1929, c. 120, s. 12.)

§ 97-12. Intoxication or willful neglect of employee; willful disobedience of statutory duty, safety regulation or rule.—No compensation shall be payable if the injury or death was occasioned by the intoxication of the employee or by the wilful intention of the employee to injure or kill himself or another. When the injury or death is caused by the wilful failure of the employer to comply with any statutory requirement or any lawful order of the Commission, compensation shall be increased ten per cent. When the injury or death is caused by the wilful failure of the employee to use a safety appliance or perform a statutory duty or by the wilful breach of any rule or regulation adopted by the employer and approved by the Commission and brought to the knowledge of the employee prior to the injury, compensation shall be reduced ten per cent. The burden of proof shall be upon him who claims an exemption or forfeiture under this section. (1929, c. 120, s. 13.)

The negligence of the employee does not disbar him from compensation, except only in cases where the injury is occasioned by his intoxication or willful intention to injure himself or another. Archie v. Greene Bros. Lbr. Co., 222 N. C. 477, 23 S. E. (2d) 834.

Use of Safety Appliances and Observation of Rules.—This section does not deny compensation when it appears that an injury was caused by the willful failure of an employee to use a safety appliance, or by the willful breach of a rule or regulation adopted by the employer and approved by the industrial commission but only subjects the injured employee to the penalty of a reduction in the compensation to be awarded. Archie v. Greene Bros. Lbr. Co., 222 N. C. 477, 481, 23 S. E. (2d) 834.

Evidence Sufficient.—In Brooks v. Carolina Rim, etc., Co., 213 N. C. 518, 196 S. E. 835, it was held that the evidence was sufficient to support finding of industrial commission that the accident causing injury was not the result of the employee's intoxication, although defendants introduced evidence in conflict therewith.

Where the dependents of a deceased employee show that his death resulted from a bullet wound, such showing raises a prima facie case only of death by accident, placing upon the employer the burden of going forward with evidence to show that the employee killed himself within the exemption or forfeiture under this section. McGill v. Lumberton, 215 N. C. 752, 3 S. E. (2d) 324.

§ 97-13. Exceptions from provisions of article.—(a) Employees of Certain Railroads.—This article shall not apply to railroads or railroad employees nor in any way repeal, amend, alter or affect article eight (8) of chapter sixty (60), or any section thereof, relating to the liability of railroads for injuries to employees; nor, upon the trial of any action in tort for injuries not coming under the provisions of this article, shall any provision herein be placed in evidence or be permitted to be argued to the jury: Provided, however, that the foregoing exemption to railroads and railroad employees shall not apply to electric street railroads or employees thereof; and this article shall apply to electric street railroads and employees thereof, and to this extent the provisions of article eight (8) of chapter sixty (60) are hereby amended.

(b) Casual Employment, Domestic Servants, Farm Laborers, Federal Government, Employer of Less than Five Employees.—This article shall not apply to casual employees, farm laborers, federal government employees in North Carolina, and domestic servants, nor to employees of such persons, nor to any person, firm or private corporation that has regularly in service less than five employees in the same business within this state, unless such employees and their employers voluntarily elect, in the manner hereinafter specified, to be bound by this article: Provided, however, that when an employee files a claim with the North Carolina industrial commission and it shall appear that the employer has insured his liability under the Workmen's Compensation Act in any authorized corporation, association, or in any mutual insurance association formed by a group of employers so authorized, this shall be prima facie evidence that such employer and his employees have elected to be bound by this article, and, in such cases upon failure of the defendant and/or the insurance carrier to show by competent and sufficient evidence that the defendant employer was not bound by, or subject to the provisions of, the Workmen's Compensation Act at the time of the injury, compensation may be awarded by the industrial commission without any express findings in their award as to acceptance of the article by the parties.

(c) Prisoners.—This article shall not apply to prisoners being worked by the State or any subdivision thereof, except to the following extent: Whenever any prisoner assigned to the State Highway and Public Works Commission shall suffer accidental injury arising out of and in the course of the employment to which he had been assigned, if the results of such injury continue until after the date of the lawful discharge of such prisoner to such an extent as to amount to a disability as defined in this article, then such discharged prisoner may have the benefit of this article by applying to the Industrial Commission as any other employee; provided, such application is made within twelve months from the date of discharge; and provided, further, that the maximum compensation to any prisoner shall not exceed fifteen dollars per month and the period of compensation shall relate to the date of his discharge rather than to the date of the accident, and prisoners who have been discharged prior to March 15, 1941, who are covered by the terms of the subsection may have twelve months from March 15, 1941, in which to apply for its benefits, but as to such prisoners their compensation shall be computed only from the date of their application and shall not be cumulative for any prior period; and no award shall be made for facial disfigurement, and no award other than burial expenses shall be made for any prisoner whose accident results in death; and no award shall be made for any injury where there is no apparent or outward physical evidence of such injury, unless it is clearly established by medical opinion and supporting testimony that the matter complained of results solely from the accident arising out of and in the course of employment. If any person who has been awarded compensation under the provisions of this section shall be recommitted to prison upon conviction for an offense committed subsequent to the award, such compensation shall immediately cease and determine. Any awards made under the terms of this subsection shall be paid by the State Highway and Public Works Commission from the funds available for the operation of the Prison Department.

(d) Sellers of Agricultural Products.—This article shall not apply to persons, firms or corporations engaged in selling agricultural products for the producers thereof on commission or for other compensation, paid by the producers, provided the product is prepared for sale by the producer. (1929, c. 120, s. 14; 1933, c. 401; 1935, c. 150; 1941, c. 295; 1943, c. 543.)

Local Modification.—Mecklenburg: 1933, c. 401.

Editor's Note. — Public Laws of 1933, c. 401, inserted the provisos at the end of subsection (a) of this section.

The proviso to subsection (b) was added by the 1935 amendment.

The 1941 amendment rewrote subsection (c). For comment on this amendment, see 19 N. C. Law Rev. 545.

The 1943 amendment substituted "eight (8)" for "seven (7)" in lines four and sixteen of subsection (a).

Services Rendered Out of State.—When the contract of employment is for services to be rendered exclusively outside the state and such services in fact are performed in their entirety elsewhere than in this state this chapter has no application. Mallard v. Bohannon, 221 N. C. 227, 19 S. E. (2d) 880.

Number of Regular Employees.—Where in a hearing before the Industrial Commission the employer testifies that he employed three men other than himself, and another witness testifies that at the time of the injury in suit there were two men working besides the employer and that the other employees were on vacation, the evidence is insufficient to support the finding that the parties were bound by this act, since the evidence tends to show that the employer regularly employed less than five employees. Thompson's Dependents v. Johnson Funeral Home, 205 N. C. 801, 172 S. E. 500.

Where the findings of fact of the Industrial Commission that the deceased was an employee of the defendant and that the defendant employed more than five workers, are not supported by any evidence in the hearing before it, the findings are jurisdictional, and upon appeal to the Superior Court the award should be set aside and vacated. Poole v. Sigmon, 202 N. C. 172, 162 S. E. 198. See also, Chadwick v. North Carolina Department of Conservation, etc., 219 N. C. 766, 14 S. E. (2d) 842.

A demurrer to an action for death of an employee, on the ground that the action is cognizable only by the Industrial Commission, is properly overruled when it does not appear on the face of the complaint that the defendant employed more than five men in this State. Hanks v. Southern Public Utilities Co., 204 N. C. 155, 167 S. E. 560. See also Allen v. American Cotton Mills, 206 N. C. 704, 175 S. E. 98.

Prima Facie Evidence.—This section merely facilitates proof that the employer and its employees are subject to the terms of the workmen's compensation act. Proof that the employer obtained insurance and a claim was filed is, under this section, prima facie evidence that the employer and the employee have elected to be bound by the act. Gassaway v. Gassaway, 220 N. C. 694, 698, 18 S. E. (2d) 120.

The provisions of this section that proof that the employer obtained insurance and filed claim should be prima facie evidence that the employer and employee have elected to be bound by the act does not have the effect of raising a presumption that an executive officer injured in the course of his duties was at the time engaged in the duties of an employee rather than those of an executive. Gassaway v. Gassaway, 220 N. C. 694, 18 S. E. (2d) 120.

Applied in Aycock v. Cooper, 202 N. C. 500, 163 S. E. 569; Rape v. Huntersville, 214 N. C. 505, 199 S. E. 736; Young v. Mayland Mica Co., 212 N. C. 243, 193 S. E. 285.

Cited in Borders v. Cline, 212 N. C. 472, 193 S. E. 826.

§ 97-14. Employers not bound by article may not use certain defenses in damage suit.—An employer who elects not to operate under this article shall not, in any suit at law instituted by an employee subject to this article to recover damages for personal injury or death by accident, be permitted to defend any such suit at law upon any or all of the following grounds:

(a) That the employee was negligent.

(b) That the injury was caused by the negligence of a fellow employee.

(c) That the employee has assumed the risk of the injury. (1929, c. 120, s. 15.)

This section cannot be held to have abolished the simple tool doctrine as a ground of defense. Newbern v. Great Atlantic, etc., Tea Co., 68 F. (2d) 523, 526, 91 A. L. R. 781.

Contributory Negligence.—Where it is admitted that defendant employer had a sufficient number of employees to bring him under this chapter, but that he had elected not to do so, the defense of contributory negligence is properly excluded. Lee v. Roberson, 220 N. C. 61, 16 S. E. (2d) 459.

Cited in Calahan v. Roberts, 203 N. C. 768, 182 S. E. 657.

§ 97-15. Electing employer may use such defenses against non-electing employee.—An employee who elects not to operate under this article shall, in any action to recover damages for personal injury or death brought against an employer accepting the compensation provisions of this article, proceed at common law, and the employer may avail himself of the defenses of contributory negligence, negligence of a fellow servant, and assumption of risk, as such defenses exist at common law. (1929, c. 120, s. 16.)

§ 97-16. Defenses denied to non-electing employer as against non-electing employee.—When both the employer and employee elect not to operate under this article, the liability of the employer shall be the same as though he alone rejected the terms of this article, and in any suit brought against him by such employee the employer shall not be permitted to avail himself of any of the common-law defenses cited in § 97-14. Provided, however, that in Pender, Cherokee, Avery, Perquimans, Gates, Macon, Watauga, Ashe, Union, Wilkes, Hyde, Caswell, Bladen and Carteret Counties any sheriff may exempt himself and any and all deputies appointed by him from the provisions of this article by notice in writing to the industrial commission, such notice to be made on forms prescribed by the industrial commission. (1929, c. 120, s. 17; 1931, c. 274, s. 2; 1939, c. 277, s. 2; 1943, c. 543.)

Editor's Note.—The 1931 amendment added a proviso permitting sheriffs to exempt themselves and their deputies from the act. The 1939 amendment deleted the proviso. The cases treated below were decided prior to the 1939 amendment.

The 1943 amendment added the proviso.

The amendment permitting a sheriff to exempt himself from the operation of the act by giving the notice prescribed, cannot have the effect of bringing deputies sheriff within the intent and meaning of the act, nor may the fact that a sheriff purchases insurance to cover his compensation liability have the effect of enlarging or extending the language of the act. Borders v. Cline, 212 N. C. 472, 193 S. E. 826.

Cited in Calahan v. Roberts, 208 N. C. 768, 182 S. E. 657.

§ 97-17. Settlements allowed in accordance with article. — Nothing herein contained shall be construed so as to prevent settlements made by and between the employee and employer so long as the amount of compensation and the time and manner of payment are in accordance with the provisions of this article. A copy of such settlement agreement shall be filed by employer with and approved by the Industrial Commission. (1929, c. 120, s. 18.)

§ 97-18. Prompt payment of compensation required; installments; notice to commission; penalties.—Compensation under this article shall be paid periodically, promptly and directly to the person entitled thereto unless otherwise specifically provided.

(a) The first installment of compensation payable under the terms of an agreement shall become due on the fourteenth day after the employer has knowledge of the injury or death, on which date all compensation then due shall be paid. Thereafter compensation shall be paid in installments weekly except where the Commission determines that payment in installments should be made monthly or at some other period.

(b) The first installment of compensation payable under the terms of an award by the Commission, or under the terms of a judgment of the court upon an appeal from such an award, shall become due seven days from the date of such an award or from the date of such a judgment of the court, on which date all compensation then due shall be paid. Thereafter compensation shall be paid in installments weekly, except where the Commission determines that payment in installments shall be made monthly or in some other manner.

(c) Upon making the first payment, and upon suspension of payment for any cause, the employer shall immediately notify the Commission, in accordance with the form prescribed by the Commission, that payment of compensation has begun or has been suspended, as the case may be.

(d) If any installment of compensation payable in accordance with the terms of an agreement approved by the Commission without an award is not paid within fourteen days after it becomes due, as provided in sub-division (a) of this section, or if any installment of compensation payable in accordance with the terms of an award by the Commission is not paid within fourteen days after it becomes due, as provided in subdivision (b) of this section, there shall be added to such unpaid installment an amount equal to 10 per centum thereof, which shall be paid at the same time as, but in addition to, such installment, unless such non-payment is excused by the Commission after a showing by the employer that owing to conditions over which he had no control such installment could not be paid within the period prescribed for the payment.

(e) Within sixteen days after final payment of compensation has been made, the employer shall send to the Commission a notice, in accordance with a form prescribed by the Commission, stating that such final payment has been made, the total amount of compensation paid, the name of the employee and of any other person to whom compensation has been paid, the date of the injury or death, and the date to which compensation has been paid. If the employer fails to so notify the Commission within such time, the Commission shall assess against such employer a civil penalty in the amount of $25.00. (1929, c. 120, s. 18½.)

§ 97-19. Liability of principal contractors; certificate that sub-contractor has complied with law; right to recover compensation of those who would have been liable; order of liability.—Any principal contractor, intermediate contractor, or sub-contractor who shall sublet any contract for the performance of any work without requiring from such sub-contractor or obtaining from the Industrial Commission a certificate, issued by the Industrial Commission, stating that such sub-contractor has complied with § 97-93 hereof, shall be liable, irrespective of whether such sub-contractor has regularly in service less than five employees in the same business within this state, to the same extent as such sub-contractor would be if he had accepted the provisions of this article for the payment of compensation and other benefits under this article on account of the injury or death of any employee of such sub-contractor, due to an accident arising out of and in the course of the performance of the work covered by such sub-contract. If the principal contractor, intermediate contractor, or sub-contractor shall obtain such certificate at the time of sub-letting such contract to sub-contractor, he shall not thereafter be held liable to any employee of such sub-contractor for compensation or other benefits under this article. The Industrial Commission, upon demand, shall furnish such certificate, and may charge therefor the cost thereof, not to exceed twenty-five (25) cents.

Any principal contractor, intermediate contractor, or sub-contractor paying compensation or other benefits under this article, under the foregoing provisions of this section, may recover the amount so paid from any person, persons, or corporation who, independently of such provision, would have been liable for the payment thereof.

Every claim filed with the Industrial Commission under this section shall be instituted against all parties liable for payment, and said Commission, in its award, shall fix the order in which said parties shall be exhausted, beginning with the immediate employer. (1929, c. 120, s. 19; 1941, c. 358, s. 1.)

Editor's Note.—The 1941 amendment added the words "irrespective of whether such sub-contractor has regularly in service less than five employees in the same business within the state" in the first sentence.

In General.—This section is not in reality an amendment in the sense that it changed an existing law, but really amounts to an amendment for the purpose of expressing the full legislative intent under the existing law. Graham v. Wall, 220 N. C. 84, 90, 16 S. E. (2d) 691.

This section relates to contractors and subcontractors and not to employers and independent contractors. Beach v. McLean, 219 N. C. 521, 14 S. E. (2d) 515.

§ 97-20. Priority of compensation claims against assets of employer.—All rights of compensation granted by this article shall have the same preference or priority for the whole thereof against the assets of the employer as is allowed by law for any unpaid wages for labor. (1929, c. 120, s 20.)

§ 97-21. Claims unassignable and exempt from taxes and debts; agreement of employee to contribute to premium or waive right to compensation, void; unlawful deduction by employer.—No claim for compensation under this article shall be assignable, and all compensation and claims therefor shall be exempt from all claims of creditors and from taxes.

No agreement by an employee to pay any portion of premium paid by his employer to a carrier or to contribute to a benefit fund or department maintained by such employer for the purpose of providing compensation or medical services and supplies as required by this article shall be valid, and any employer who makes a deduction for such purpose from the pay of any employee entitled to the benefits of this article shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof shall be punished by a fine of not more than $500.00. No agreement by an employee to waive his right to compensation under this chapter shall be valid. (1929, c. 120, s. 21.)

Editor's Note.—For a discussion of this section, see 8 N. C. Law Rev. 477, et seq. And see 15 N. C. Law Rev. 286.

§ 97-22. Notice of accident to employer. — Every injured employee or his representative shall immediately on the occurence of an accident, or as soon thereafter as practicable, give or cause to be given to the employer a written notice of the accident, and the employee shall not be entitled to physician's fees nor to any compensation which may have accrued under the terms of this article prior to the giving of such notice, unless it can be shown that the employer, his agent or representative, had knowledge of the accident, or that the party required to give such notice had been prevented from doing so by reason of physical or mental incapacity, or the fraud or deceit of some third person; but no compensation shall be payable unless such written notice is given within thirty days after the occurrence of the accident or death, unless reasonable excuse is made to the satisfaction of the Industrial Commission for not giving such notice, and the Commission is satisfied that the employer has not been prejudiced thereby. (1929, c. 120, s. 22.)

Finding That Employer Not Prejudiced.—A finding by the commission that the employer has not been prejudiced by the failure of the plaintiff to give notice of the injury within 30 days after the accident, suffices to sustain the award from and after such notice; but not for benefits which may have accrued prior thereto. Eller v. Lawrence Leather Co., 222 N. C. 604, 24 S. E. (2d) 244.

A finding by the commission that plaintiff was not capable of coherent, normal thought at the time of his examination by physicians falls short of a finding that he was prevented from giving written notice of his injury by reason of physical or mental incapacity so as to entitle him to the benefits which may have accrued prior to the giving of such notice. Eller v. Lawrence Leather Co., 222 N. C. 604, 24 S. E. (2d) 244.

It is not required that an injured employee, or the dependents of a deceased employee, file claim with the industrial commission, it being incumbent on the employer to file a written report of the accident with the industrial commission upon notice given by the injured employee, or his representative, and where the employer has filed a report with the commission within the prescribed time upon verbal information elicited from the representative of the employee by its claim agent, the representative being unable to read or write, and, the employer admitting liability, the report has been filed with the industrial commission as a claim within one year from date of the accident and contains all facts necessary to make an award. Hanks v. Southern Public Utilities Co., 210 N. C. 312, 186 S. E. 252.

Applied in Lilly v. Belk Bros., 210 N. C. 735, 188 S. E. 319.

Cited in Wilson v. Clement Co., 207 N. C. 541, 542, 177 S. E. 797.

§ 97-23. What notice is to contain; defects no bar; notice personally or by registered letter. —The notice provided in the foregoing section shall state in ordinary language the name and address of the employee, the time, place, nature, and cause of the accident, and of the resulting injury or death; and shall be signed by the employee or by a person on his behalf, or, in the event of his death, by any one or more of his dependents, or by a person in their behalf.

No defect or inaccuracy in the notice shall be a bar to compensation unless the employer shall prove that his interest was prejudiced thereby, and then only to such extent as the prejudice.

Said notice shall be given personally to the employer or any of his agents upon whom a summons in civil action may be served under the laws of the State, or may be sent by registered letter addressed to the employer at his last known residence or place of business. (1929, c. 120, s. 23.)

Applied in Lilly v. Belk Bros., 210 N. C. 735, 188 S. E. 319.

Cited in Wilson v. Clement Co., 207 N. C. 541, 542, 177 S. E. 797.

§ 97-24. Right to compensation barred after one year.—(a) The right to compensation under this article shall be forever barred unless a claim be filed with the industrial commission within one year after the accident, and if death results from the accident, unless a claim be filed with the commission within one year thereafter.

(b) If any claim for compensation is hereafter made upon the theory that such claim or the injury upon which said claim is based is within the jurisdiction of the industrial commission under the provisions of this article, and if the commission, or the supreme court on appeal, shall adjudge that such claim is not within the article, the claimant, or if he dies, his personal representative, shall have one year after the rendition of a final judgment in the case within which to commence an action at law. (1929, c. 120, s. 24; 1933, c. 449, s. 2.)

Editor's Note. — Public Laws of 1933, c. 449, added subsection (b) to this section.

When the employer has filed with the Commission a report of the accident and claim of the injured employee, the claim is filed with the Commission within the meaning of this section. Hardison v. Hampton, 203 N. C. 187, 188, 165 S. E. 355.

Implied Agreement Not to Plead Statute.—Where the injured party was led to believe that his wages were accruing to his benefit, and he delayed filing his claim for more than twelve months, it was held that the facts do not bring the case within the principle of equitable estoppel, there being no request by defendant that claimant delay the pursuit of his rights, nor an express or implied agreement not to plead the statute. Wilson v. Clement Co., 207 N. C. 541, 177 S. E. 797.

Effect of Dismissal on Rights of Dependents.—Where the claim of an employee under the Compensation Act is dismissed because not filed within one year of the accident, as provided by this section, and pending appeal the employee dies as a result of the accidental injury, his dependents' claim for compensation for his death brought one month after his death is not barred, the dependents not being parties in interest in the prior proceeding, and their claim being an original right enforceable only after his death. Wray v. Carolina Cotton, etc., Co., 205 N. C. 782, 172 S. E. 487. Note.—This case was decided under this section as it stood prior to the 1933 amendment.

The provisions of this section constitute a condition precedent to the right to compensation, and not a statute of limitation. For this reason, where a claim for compensation under the provisions of the North Carolina Workmen's Act has not been filed with the Industrial Commission within one year after the date of the accident which resulted in the injury for which compensation is claimed, or where the Industrial Commission has not acquired jurisdiction of such claim within one year after the date of such accident, the right to compensation is barred. Winslow v. Carolina Conference Ass'n, 211 N. C. 571, 582, 191 S. E. 403.

The requirement that an injured employee file notice of his claim within twelve months from the date of injury, is not a statute of limitations, but a condition precedent to the right to compensation. Lineberry v. Mebane, 218 N. C. 737, 12 S. E. (2d) 252.

Report Filed on Verbal Information Is Proper.—Where an employer files a report with the Commission within the prescribed time upon verbal information given by the representative of the employee, the representative not being able to read or write, and the employer admits liability, the report has been properly filed with the Industrial Commission as a claim and it acquires jurisdiction. Hanks v. Southern Public Utilities Co., 210 N. C. 312, 186 S. E. 252.

Prosecuting Common Law Action and Failing to File Application for Hearing Is Not Abandonment of Filed Claim. —The prosecution of a suit at common law and the failure to file application for a hearing when requested did not amount to an abandonment of the claim for compensation, and no final award having been made at the time of the filing of formal petition for an award, the matter was pending at that time before the Commission, and it was error to deny compensation on the ground that claimant was barred by failure to file claim within one year after the death of the deceased employee. Hanks v. Southern Public Utilities Co., 210 N. C. 312, 186 S. E. 252.

Claim Not Filed within Time Prescribed.—Where an employee did not file a claim until more than twelve months after injury, and the employer did not file a report of the accident because it did not have knowledge thereof, although it delivered claimant's wages to him after the disability resulting from the injury, but thought the disability was due to a prior injury, had no knowledge of the subsequent injury, and made no representations that the wages delivered to the claimant were in lieu of compensation, the evidence supports the findings that the claim was not filed within the time prescribed by this section. Lilly v. Belk Bros., 210 N. C. 735, 188 S. E. 319.

Limitation Tolled as to Employee under Eighteen and without Guardian.—The limitation of time provided by this section as against an employee under 18 years of age, who is without guardian or other legal representative, is tolled until he arrives at the age of 18. Lineberry v. Mebane, 219 N. C. 257, 13 S. E. (2d) 429.

§ 97-25. Medical treatment and supplies. — Medical, surgical, hospital, and other treatment, including medical and surgical supplies as may reasonably be required, for a period not exceeding ten weeks from date of injury to effect a cure or give relief and for such additional time as in the judgment of the commission will tend to lessen the period of disability, and in addition thereto such original artificial members as may be reasonably necessary at the end of the healing period shall be provided by the employer. In case of a controversy arising between the employer and employee relative to the continuance of medical, surgical, hospital, or other treatment, the industrial commission may order such further treatments as may in the discretion of the commission be necessary.

The commission may at any time upon the request of an employee order a change of treatment and designate other treatment suggested by the injured employee subject to the approval of the commission, and in such a case the expense thereof shall be borne by the employer upon the same terms and conditions as hereinbefore provided in this section for medical and surgical treatment and attendance.

The refusal of the employee to accept any medical, hospital, surgical or other treatment when ordered by the industrial commission, shall bar said employee from further compensation until such refusal ceases, and no compensation shall at any time be paid for the period of suspension unless in the opinion of the industrial commission the circumstances justified the refusal, in which case, the industrial commission may order a change in the medical or hospital service.

If in an emergency on account of the employer's failure to provide the medical or other care as herein specified, a physician other than provided by the employer is called to treat the injured employee, the reasonable cost of such service shall be paid by the employer if so ordered by the industrial commission: Provided, however, if he so desires, an injured employee may select a physician of his own choosing to attend, prescribe and assume the care and charge of his case, subject to the approval of the industrial commission. (1929, c. 120, s. 25; 1931, c. 274, s. 4; 1933, c. 506.)

Editor's Note.—The Act of 1931 amended this section by striking out all of the provisions on voluntary treatment furnished by the employer and inserting a sentence empowering the commission on request of the employee to order a change of treatment at the employer's expense. 9 N. C. Law Rev. 405.

Public Laws of 1933, c. 506, inserted the proviso at the end of this section relating to the selection of a physician.

Insurer's Obligation to Furnish Medical Attention.—An employee brought action against the insurance carrier and its agent, alleging that after his injury the agent, on behalf of insurer, induced him to dispense with the services of his physician and consult physicians selected by insurer, and that insurer promised to provide hospitalization and surgical service recommended by insurer's physicians, but failed to do so to plaintiff's permanent injury. It was held that insurer's obligation to furnish medical attention necessary to plaintiff's complete recovery was founded on this section, and the Industrial Commission has exclusive jurisdiction of plaintiff's claim. Hedgepeth v. Lumbermen's Mut. Cas. Co., 209 N. C. 45, 182 S. E. 704.

Medical, etc., Expenses Not Included in Maximum Amount Recoverable for One Injury.—See Morris v. Laughlin Chevrolet Co., 217 N. C. 428, 8 S. E. (2d) 484, 128 A. L. R. 132.

Additional Medical Treatment to Lessen Period of Disability.—The provision of this section that the employer should be liable for additional medical treatment to effect a cure or give relief is limited by the provision of this section to cases in which such additional medical treatment would tend to lessen the period of the employee's disability, and the discretionary power to award such additional medical treatment is also subject to this limitation; nor may liability for medical attention be extended upon the ground that public policy demands that the care of a permanently disabled employee should not be cast upon the state, the extent of liability under the act being definitely prescribed by its provisions. Millwood v. Firestone Cotton Mills, 215 N. C. 519, 2 S. E. (2d) 560.

§ 97-26. Liability for medical treatment measured by average cost in community; malpractice of physician.—The pecuniary liability of the employer for medical, surgical, hospital service or other treatment required, when ordered by the Commission, shall be limited to such charges as prevail in the same community for similar treatment of injured persons of a like standard of living when such treatment is paid for by the injured person, and the employer shall not be liable in damages for malpractice by a physician or surgeon furnished by him pursuant to the provisions of this section, but the consequences of any such malpractice shall be deemed part of the injury resulting from the accident, and shall be compensated for as such. (1929, c. 120, s. 26.)

Injury or suffering sustained by an employee in consequence of the malpractice of a physician or surgeon furnished by the employer or carrier is not ground for an independent action; under this section it is a constituent element of the employee's injury for which he is entitled to compensation. In such event the employer and the carrier are primarily liable and the question of secondary liability is eliminated. Hoover v. Globe Indemnity Co., 202 N. C. 655, 657, 163 S. E. 758.

§ 97-27. Medical examination; facts not privileged; refusal to be examined suspends compensation; autopsy.—After an injury, and so long as he claims compensation, the employee, if so requested by his employer or ordered by the Industrial Commission, shall submit himself to examination, at reasonable times and places, by a duly qualified physician or surgeon designated and paid by the employer or the Industrial Commission. The employee shall have the right to have present at such examination any duly qualified physician or surgeon provided and paid by him. No fact communicated to or otherwise learned by any physician or surgeon who may have attended or examined the employee, or who may have been present at any examination, shall be privileged, either in hearings provided for by this article or any action at law brought to recover damages against any employer who may have accepted the compensation provisions of this article. If the employee refuses to submit himself to or in any way obstructs such examination requested by and provided for by the employer, his right to compensation and his right to take or prosecute any proceedings under this article shall be suspended until such refusal or objection ceases, and no compensation shall at any time be payable for the period of obstruction, unless in the opinion of the Industrial Commission the circumstances justify the refusal or obstruction. The employer, or the Industrial Commission, shall have the right in any case of death to require an autopsy at the expense of the party requesting the same. (1929, c. 120, s. 27.)

§ 97-28. Seven-day waiting period; exceptions. — No compensation shall be allowed for the first seven calendar days of disability resulting from an injury, except the benefits provided for in § 97-25. Provided, however, that in the case the injury results in disability of more than twenty-eight (28) days, the compensation shall be allowed from the date of the disability. (1929, c. 120, s. 28.)

§ 97-29. Compensation rates for total incapacity. — Where the incapacity for work resulting from the injury is total, the employer shall pay, or cause to be paid, as hereinafter provided, to the injured employee during such total disability, a weekly compensation equal to 60 per centum of his average weekly wages, but not more than twenty-one dollars, nor less than seven dollars, a week; and in no case shall the period covered by such compensation be greater than four hundred weeks, nor shall the total amount of all compensation exceed six thousand dollars. In case of death the total sum paid shall be six thousand dollars less any amount that may have been paid as partial compensation during the period of disability, payable in one sum to the personal representative of deceased. The basis for compensation of members of the North Carolina national guard and the North Carolina state guard shall be the maximum amount of eighteen dollars per week as fixed herein. The basis for compensation of deputy sheriffs, or those acting in the capacity of deputy sheriffs, who serve upon a fee basis shall be the minimum amount of seven dollars a week as fixed herein. Provided, that the last sentence herein shall not apply to Pender, Cherokee, Avery, Perquimans, Gates, Macon, Watauga, Ashe, Union, Wilkes, Hyde, Caswell, Bladen and Carteret Counties. (1929, c. 120, s. 29; 1939, c. 277, s. 1; 1943, c. 502, s. 3; 1943, cc. 543, 672, s. 2.)

Editor's Note.—For a discussion of this section, see 8 N. C. L. Rev. 427, et seq.

The 1939 amendment added the last sentence, the proviso to which was added by the second 1943 amendment.

The first 1943 amendment increased the maximum weekly compensation from eighteen to twenty-one dollars. The third 1943 amendment, inserting the third sentence, ignored this increase. The second 1943 amendment added the proviso at the end.

Construction.—Construing this act as a whole to effectuate the intent and purpose of the Legislature, it is held that the purpose of the act is to provide compensation for the employee injured in case the injury is not fatal, and for those dependent upon him in case the injury is fatal, and the clause of this section purporting to provide for the personal representative of the deceased is construed to be repugnant to and irreconcilable with the other provisions of the act, and should be disregarded in giving effect to its other provisions, §§ 97-38 and 97-40 providing in clear language and comprehensive detail for a full legal method of determining compensation for fatal injuries, and where a dependent has been awarded compensation under said sections she is not entitled to the maximum award as administratrix under this section. Smith v. Carolina Power & Light Co., 198 N. C. 614, 152 S. E. 805.

This section should be construed in pari materia with § 97-31 allowing compensation for the loss of members, and so construed it is held that where an employee has suffered an injury to his hand arising out of and in the course of his employment, and the injury causes him total temporary disability in the course of its healing, and renders it necessary to amputate certain parts of certain fingers of the hand, he is entitled to receive compensation under § 97-29 for total temporary disability, and in addition thereto compensation for the loss of the parts of his fingers under § 97-31, there being no provision in the act that the latter should preclude the former, compensation for the latter to begin upon expiration of the compensation for the former. Rice v. Denny Roll & Panel Co., 199 N. C. 154, 154 S. E. 69.

§ 97-30. Partial incapacity. — Except as otherwise provided in § 97-31, where the incapacity for work resulting from the injury is partial, the employer shall pay, or cause to be paid, as hereinafter provided, to the injured employee during such disability, a weekly compensation equal to 60 per centum of the difference between his average weekly wages before the injury and the average weekly wages which he is able to earn thereafter, but not more than twenty-one dollars a week, and in no case shall the period covered by such compensation be greater than three hundred weeks from the date of injury. In case the partial disability begins after a period of total disability, the latter period shall be deducted from the maximum period herein allowed for partial disability. (1929, c. 120, s. 30; 1943, c. 502, s. 4.)

Editor's Note.—The 1943 amendment increased the maximum weekly compensation from eighteen to twenty-one dollars.

The employee sustained injuries resulting in disability of a general nature such as would entitle him to compensation under this section. In addition to such injuries, he had also sustained injuries of a specific nature such as to entitle him to compensation under section 97-31. He is entitled to compensation for the specific injuries under section 97-31, and then, if still disabled as a result of the other injuries, compensation will be paid under this section. Morgan v. Norwood, 211 N. C. 600, 601, 191 S. E. 345, citing Baughn v. Richmond Forging Co., Claim No. 70-597 which latter case gives a construction of the corresponding sections of the Virginia law by the Virginia Industrial Commission.

When an award has been entered for total disability for certain length of time, and for partial disability thereafter for a total of three hundred weeks, under this section, the industrial commission may not increase the award of compensation to that allowed for total disability, upon its finding that at the time of the review of the award claimant's condition was unchanged and that he was at the time only 50 per cent disabled. Murray v. Nebel Knitting Co., 214 N. C. 437, 199 S. E. 609, distinguishing Smith v. Swift & Co., 212 N. C. 608, 194 S. E. 106.

Applied in Smith v. Swift & Co., 212 N. C. 608, 194 S. E. 106.

§ 97-31. Schedule of injuries; rate and period of compensation.—In cases included by the following schedule the compensation in each case shall be paid for disability during the healing period and in addition the disability shall be deemed to continue for the periods specified, and shall be in lieu of all other compensation, including disfigurement, to-wit:

(a) For the loss of a thumb, sixty per centum of the average weekly wages during sixty-five weeks.

(b) For the loss of a first finger, commonly called the index finger, sixty per centum of the average weekly wages during forty weeks.

(c) For the loss of a second finger, sixty per centum of the average weekly wages during thirty-five weeks.

(d) For the loss of a third finger, sixty per centum of the average weekly wages during twenty-two weeks.

(e) For the loss of a fourth finger, commonly called the little finger, sixty per centum of the average weekly wages during sixteen weeks.

(f) The loss of the first phalange of the thumb or any finger shall be considered to be equal to the loss of one-half of such thumb or finger, and the compensation shall be for one-half of the periods of time above specified.

(g) The loss of more than one phalange shall be considered the loss of the entire finger or thumb: Provided, however, that in no case shall the amount received for more than one finger exceed the amount provided in this schedule for the loss of a hand.

(h) For the loss of a great toe, sixty per centum of the average weekly wages during thirty-five weeks.

(j) For the loss of one of the toes other than a great toe, sixty per centum of the average weekly wages during ten weeks.

(k) The loss of the first phalange of any toe shall be considered to be equal to the loss of one-half of such toe, and the compensation shall be for one-half of the periods of time above specified.

(l) The loss of more than one phalange shall be considered as the loss of the entire toe.

(m) For the loss of a hand, sixty per centum of the average weekly wages during one hundred and seventy weeks.

(n) For the loss of an arm, sixty per centum of the average weekly wages during two hundred and twenty weeks.

(o) For the loss of a foot, sixty per centum of the average weekly wages during one hundred and forty-four weeks.

(p) For the loss of a leg, sixty per centum of the average weekly wages during two hundred weeks.

(q) For the loss of an eye, sixty per centum of the average weekly wages during one hundred and twenty weeks.

(r) The loss of both hands, or both arms, or both feet, or both legs, or both eyes, or any two thereof, shall constitute total and permanent disability, to be compensated according to the provisions of § 97-29.

(s) For the complete loss of hearing in one ear, sixty per centum of the average weekly wages during seventy weeks; for the complete loss of hearing in both ears, sixty per centum of the average weekly wages during one hundred and fifty weeks.

(t) Total loss of use of a member or loss of vision of an eye shall be considered as equivalent to the loss of such member or eye. The compensation for partial loss of or for partial loss of use of a member or for partial loss of vision of an eye shall be such proportion of the payments above provided for total loss as such partial loss bears to total loss, except that in cases where there is eighty-five per centum, or more, loss of vision in an eye, this shall be deemed "industrial blindness" and compensated as for total loss of vision of such eye.

(u) The weekly compensation payments referred to in this section shall all be subject to the same limitations as to maximum and minimum as set out in § 97-29.

(v) In case of serious facial or head disfigurement, the industrial commission shall award proper and equitable compensation not to exceed two thousand five hundred dollars. In case of enucleation where an artificial eye cannot be fitted and used, the industrial commission may award compensation as for serious facial disfigurement.

(w) In case of serious bodily disfigurement, including the loss or permanent injury to any important organ of the body for which no compensation is payable under the preceding subsections, but excluding the disfigurement resulting from permanent loss or permanent partial loss of use of any member of the body for which compensation is fixed in the above schedule, the industrial commission may award proper and equitable compensation not to exceed two thousand five hundred dollars. (1929, c. 120, s. 31; 1931, c. 164; 1943, c. 502, s. 2.)

Editor's Note.—The Act of 1931 added a proviso making serious or permanent injury to any member or organ of the body, not provided for, disfigurement, in an apparent effort to meet the decisions in the cases of Henninger v. Industrial Commission, 1 N. C. I. C. 3; Porter v. Jennings Cotton Mills, 1 N. C. I. C. 218. See 8 N. C. Law Rev. 423-424, 9 N. C. Law Rev. 405.

The 1943 amendment rewrote the section.

The cases treated below were decided under former provisions of this section.

Prior Astigmatism Does Not Bar Recovery.—In Schrum v. Catawba Upholstering Co., 214 N. C. 353, 199 S. E. 385, claimant was held entitled to full compensation for total loss of vision of eye by this section. It was held error to first deduct forty per cent loss due to astigmatism and award claimant only sixty per cent of the amount recoverable for total loss of vision, and this result was not altered by § 97-33.

The effect of the proviso in subsec. (t) of this section relating to serious disfigurement is to exclude the compensation for facial and head disfigurement only from the "weekly compensation payments" contained in the "foregoing schedule of compensation," and does not exclude such compensation from the limitation upon total compensation under the act. Arp v. Wood & Co., 207 N. C. 41, 42, 175 S. E. 719.

Section Is Constitutional.—This section, authorizing the industrial commission to award compensation for bodily disfigurement, is sufficiently certain and prescribes the standard for the computation of an award thereunder with sufficient definiteness, and the provision is valid and constitutional and not void as a delegation of legislative power in contravention of Art. I, § 8 of the state Constitution. Baxter v. Arthur Co., 216 N. C. 276, 4 S. E. (2d) 621.

Determining Award for Serious Disfigurement.—In awarding compensation for serious disfigurement the commission, in arriving at the consequent diminution of earning power, should consider the natural physical handicap resulting, the age, training, experience, education, occupation and adaptability of the employee to obtain and retain employment. Stanley v. Hyman-Michaels Co., 222 N. C. 257, 22 S. E. (2d) 570.

Such Award Is Separate.—Weekly compensation under the schedules cannot be increased by the inclusion of compensation for disfigurement. Compensation for disfigurement, if allowed, must be a separate award and the aggregate awards in no case may exceed the total compensation fixed in this section. Stanley v. Hyman-Michaels Co., 222 N. C. 257, 261, 22 S. E. (2d) 570.

And No Award if One Made for Total Permanent Disability.—No award can be made for disfigurement where an award has been made for total permanent disability. Likewise, disfigurement must be serious in order that compensation may be allowed therefor. Stanley v. Hyman-Michaels Co., 222 N. C. 257, 265, 22 S. E. (2d) 570.

Disfigurement and Partial Loss of Arm.—Under this section the industrial commission has authority to award compensation for facial and bodily disfigurement, in this case resulting from scar tissue from burns, and to award compensation for partial loss of the use of the arm resulting from such scar tissue, when such awards are supported by competent evidence, provided the award for the disfigurement does not exceed the $2,500 maximum provided by the act, and provided further that the aggregate of all awards does not exceed the $6,000 maximum prescribed by § 97-29. Baxter v. Arthur Co., 216 N. C. 276, 4 S. E. (2d) 621.

Loss of Eye and Loss of Vision.—In construing this chapter, the words of the statute must be taken in their natural or ordinary meaning, and upon such construction the phrases "the loss of an eye" and "total . . . loss of vision of an eye" in prescribing the amount of compensation to be allowed for injury thereto, mean the state or fact of loss of an eye or total destruction of the vision of an eye as distinguished from the partial loss of such vision. Logan v. Johnson, 218 N. C. 200, 10 S. E. (2d) 653.

The evidence before the industrial commission was to the effect that plaintiff has "slight peripheral vision but only slight perception in center of cornea" of one eye, and that he had only a small percentage of normal vision in the eye. Held: The evidence does not support a finding that claimant had total loss of vision in the eye, and such finding and the award of compensation based thereon, is set aside and the cause remanded to the industrial commission for a proper finding from the evidence as to the extent or percentage of loss of vision claimant had sustained. Id.

Enumeration of Total Permanent Disabilities Is Not Exclusive.—The fact that this section states that certain injuries shall be deemed permanent and total disabilities does not mean that permanent and total disabilities can be found only in those cases enumerated, but that such injuries are conclusively presumed to be permanent total disabilities, and the commission shall so find. Stanley v. Hyman-Michaels Co., 222 N. C. 257, 22 S. E. (2d) 570.

Quoted in Maley v. Thomasville Furniture Co., 214 N. C. 589, 200 S. E. 438.

§ 97-32. Refusal of injured employee to accept suitable employment as suspending compensation. —If an injured employee refuses employment procured for him suitable to his capacity he shall not be entitled to any compensation at any time during the continuance of such refusal, unless in the opinion of the Industrial Commission such refusal was justified. (1929, c. 120, s. 32.)

§ 97-33. Prorating permanent disability received in other employment. — If any employee has a permanent disablity or has sustained a permanent injury in service in the Army or Navy of the United States, or in another employment other than that in which he received a subsequent permanent injury by accident, such as specified in § 97-31 he shall be entitled to compensation only for the degree of disability which would have resulted from the later accident if the earlier disability or injury had not existed. (1929, c. 120, s. 33.)

Applied in Schrum v. Catawba Upholstering Co., 214 N. C. 353, 199 S. E. 385.

§ 97-34. Employee receiving an injury when being compensated for former injury.—If an employee receives an injury for which compensation is payable, while he is still receiving or entitled to compensation for a previous injury in the same employment, he shall not at the same time be entitled to compensation for both injuries, unless the later injury be a permanent injury such as specified in § 97-31; but he shall be entitled to compensation for that injury and from the time of that injury which will cover the longest period and the largest amount payable under this article. (1929, c. 120, s. 34.)

§ 97-35. How compensation paid for two injuries; employer liable only for subsequent injury. — If any employee receives a permanent injury as specified in § 97-31 after having sustained another permanent injury in the same employment, he shall be entitled to compensation for both injuries, but the total compensation shall be paid by extending the period and not by increasing the amount of weekly compensation, and in no case exceeding five hundred weeks.

If an employee has previously incurred permanent partial disability through the loss of a hand, arm, foot, leg, or eye, and by subsequent accident incurs total permanent disability through the loss of another member, the employer's liability is for the subsequent injury only. (1929, c. 120, s. 35.)

§ 97-36. Accidents taking place outside state; employee receiving compensation from another state.—Where an accident happens while the employee is employed elsewhere than in this State which would entitle him or his dependents to compensation if it had happened in this State, the employee or his dependents shall be entitled to compensation, if the contract of employment was made in this State, if the employer's place of business is in this State, and if the residence of the employee is in this State; provided his contract of employment was not expressly for service exclusively outside of the State; provided, however, if an employee shall receive compensation or damages under the laws of any other State nothing herein contained shall be construed so as to permit a total compensation for the same injury greater than is provided for in this article. (1929, c. 120, s. 36.)

Editor's note.—For a discussion of this section, see 8 N. C. L. Rev. 427, et seq.

Temporary Removal from State Not Bar to Recovery.—Claimant testified that he was injured in an automobile accident while he was returning from a salesman's meeting in this State, which he was required to attend, to his home in Florence, S. C.; that he had moved his family to Florence temporarily so he could take them to a nearby beach occasionally; that his headquarters were in Charlotte, N. C., and that he had not given up his residence in this state. It was held that the evidence supports the finding of the industrial commission that the employee was a resident of the state at the time of the accident, and that he was covered by the Compensation Act. Brooks v. Carolina Rim, etc., Co., 213 N. C. 518, 196 S. E. 835.

Exclusion of Non-Resident Employees Involves No Unconstitutional Discrimination.—The provision of the North Carolina compensation act excluding from its coverage nonresident employees involves no unconstitutional discrimination, the inadvisability of attempting to give the act extraterritorial effect being a sufficient basis for the provision. Reaves v. Earle-Chesterfield Mill Co., 216 N. C. 462, 5 S. E. (2d) 305.

Concurrence of Three Factors Is Requisite for Jurisdiction.—In order to give the industrial commission jurisdiction of the rights of the parties arising out of an injury received by the employee while out of the state, it must appear that the contract of employment was made in this state, that the employee's place of business is in this state, and that the residence of the employee is in this state, and the concurrence of all three facts is prerequisite to its jurisdiction of such injury. Reaves v. Earle-Chesterfield Mill Co., 216 N. C. 462, 5 S. E. (2d) 305; Mallard v. Bohannon, 220 N. C. 536, 543, 18 S. E. (2d) 189.

Whether a contract of emplyoment is expressly for service exclusively outside the state is a question of fact for the determination of the industrial commsision. Mallard v. Bohannon, 220 N. C. 536, 18 S. E. (2d) 189.

Burden of Proof.—Where claimant establishes the jurisdictional facts, the burden is upon the employer and the insurance carrier to show that the contract of employment was expressly for service exclusively outside the state and thus bring themselves within the proviso of this section. Mallard v. Bohannon, 220 N. C. 536, 18 S. E. (2d) 189.

§ 97-37. Where injured employee dies before total compensation is paid.—When an employee receives or is entitled to compensation under this article for an injury covered by § 97-31 and dies from any other cause than the injury for which he was entitled to compensation, payment of the unpaid balance of compensation shall be made to his next of kin dependent upon him for support, in lieu of the compensation the employee would have been entitled to had he lived.

Provided, however, that if the death is due to a cause that is compensable under this article, and the dependents of such employee are awarded compensation therefor, all right to unpaid compensation provided by this section shall cease and determine. (1929, c. 120, s. 37.)

An award inadvertently entered by the Industrial Commission after the death of the claimant on appeal from the award is irregular, but not void, and the proceedings do not abate, this section providing that payment of the unpaid balance should be made to his next of kin dependent upon him at the time of his death. Butts v. Montague, 204 N. C. 389, 168 S. E. 215.

§ 97-38. Where death results proximately from the accident; dependents; burial expenses; compensation to aliens; election by partial dependdents.—If death results proximately from the accident and within two years thereafter, or while total disability still continues, and within six years after the accident, the employer shall pay for or cause to be paid, subject, however, to the provisions of the other sections of this article in one of the methods hereinafter provided, to the dependents of the employee, wholly dependent upon his earnings for support at the time of accident, a weekly payment equal to 60 per centum of his average weekly wages, but not more than twenty-one dollars, nor less than seven dollars, a week for a period of three hundred and fifty weeks from the date of the injury, and burial expenses not exceeding two hundred dollars. If the employee leaves dependents only partly dependent upon his earnings for support at the time of the injury, the weekly compensation to be paid, as aforesaid, shall equal the same proportion of the weekly payments for the benefit of persons wholly dependent as the amount contributed by the employee to such partial dependents bears to the annual earnings of the deceased at the time of his injury: Provided, when the partial dependents are all next of kin as defined in § 97-40, and all so elect, they may receive benefits under § 97-40 instead of under this section. When weekly payments have been made to an injured employee before his death, the compensation to dependents shall begin from the date of the last of such payments, but shall not continue more than three hundred and fifty weeks from the date of the injury. Compensation under this article to aliens not residents (or about to become non-residents) of the United States or Canada shall be the same in amount as provided for residents, except that dependents in any foreign country shall be limited to surviving wife and child or children, or if there be no surviving wife or child, or children, to surviving father or mother whom the employee has supported, either wholly or in part for the period of one year prior to the date of the injury, and except that the Commission may, at its option, or upon the application of the insurance carrier shall, commute all future installments of compensation to be paid to such aliens by paying or causing to be paid to them one-half of the commuted amount of such future installments of compensation as determined by the Commission. (1929, c. 120, s. 38; 1943, cc. 163, 502, s. 5.)

Cross Reference.—For definitions of terms, see § 97-2.

Editor's Note.—The first 1943 amendment added the proviso to the second sentence, and the second 1943 amendment increased the maximum weekly payment specified in the first sentence from eighteen to twenty-one dollars.

For a discussion of this section, see 8 N. C. Law Rev. 427, et seq.

Proximate Cause.—The employer is required to pay compensation for death of employee only when the death results proximately from injury by accident arising out of and in the course of employment. Gilmore v. Hoke County Board of Education, 222 N. C. 358, 23 S. E. (2d) 292.

Total Dependency.—Where the evidence tended to show that the mother of the deceased employee lived with him, that he paid the rent, bought groceries and supported her for a period of years, but that for two months prior to his death she did washing and nominal services for, and stayed with, an aged bedridden person and earned $5.75 per week thereby, which she deposited in a bank or used to buy small luxuries, the fact that the mother earned small amounts of money in temporary and casual employment does not indicate any dependable source of income other than that she received from her son and the conclusion of the industrial commission that she was totally dependent upon her son within the meaning of the compensation act is sustained. Thomas v. Raleigh Gas Co., 218 N. C. 429, 11 S. E. (2d) 297.

Finding as to Dependency Binding on Appeal.—While it may be admitted that in some instances the question of dependency may be a mixed question of fact and of law, where the facts admitted or found by the commission upon competent evidence support the conclusion of the commission in regard thereto, its award is binding on the court. Thomas v. Raleigh Gas Co., 218 N. C. 429, 11 S. E. (2d) 297.

§ 97-39. Widow, widower, or child to be conclusively presumed to be dependent; other cases determined upon facts; division of death benefits among those wholly dependent; when division among partially dependent. — A widow, a widower, and/or a child shall be conclusively presumed to be wholly dependent for support upon the deceased employee. In all other cases questions of dependency, in whole or in part, shall be determined in accordance with the facts as the facts may be at the time of the accident; but no allowance shall be made for any payment made in lieu of board and lodging or services, and no compensation shall be allowed unless the dependency existed for a period of three months or more prior to the accident. If there is more than one person wholly dependent, the death benefit shall be divided among them; the persons partly dependent, if any, shall receive no part thereof. If there is no one wholly dependent, and more than one person partially dependent, the death benefit shall be divided among them according to the relative extent of their dependency.

The widow, or widower and all children of deceased employees shall be conclusively presumed to be dependents of deceased and shall be entitled to receive the benefits of this article for the full periods specified herein. (1929, c. 120, s. 39.)

Cross Reference.—For definition of terms "widow", "widower", and "child", see § 97-2.

Editor's Note.—The determination of the extent of the dependency of partial dependents has proven troublesome. See 8 N. C. L. Rev. 426.

The common-law wife of a deceased employee is not entitled to compensation under the provisions of this act. Reeves v. Parker-Graham-Sexton, Inc., 199 N. C. 236, 237, 154 S. E. 66.

An illegitimate child, born after the death of its father, who before his death had acknowledged his paternity of the child, is a dependent of its deceased father within the meaning of this section, and such child is entitled to share with children of its deceased father who were born of his marriage to their mother, from whom their father had been divorced prior to his death, in compensation awarded under this act to his dependents. Lippard v. Southeastern Exp. Co., 207 N. C. 507, 177 S. E. 801.

§ 97-40. Commutation of benefit and payment on absence of dependents; second injury fund. — If the deceased employee leaves no dependents the employer shall pay to the next of kin as herein defined the commuted amount provided for in § 97-38 for whole dependents; but if the deceased left no next of kin as herein defined, then said commuted amount shall be paid to the Industrial Commission to be held and disbursed by it in the manner hereinafter provided; one-half of said commuted amount shall be retained by the Industrial Commission and the other one-half paid to the personal representative of the deceased to be by him distributed to the next of kin as defined in the Statutes of Distribution; but if there be no next of kin as defined in the Statutes of Distribution, then the personal representative shall pay the same to the Industrial Commission after payment of costs of administration. For the purpose of this section the term "next of kin" shall include only the father, mother, widow, child, brother or sister of the deceased.

Amounts paid to the Industrial Commission under this section shall constitute a Second Injury Fund, to be held by the commission and disbursed by it in unusual cases of second injuries as follows: (1) To provide additional compensation in case of second injuries referred to in § 97-33: Provided, however, such additional compensation when added to the compensation awarded under said section shall not exceed the amount which would have been payable for both injuries had both been sustained in the subsequent accident. (2) To provide for an injured employee who has sustained permanent total disability, in the manner referred to in § 97-35, compensation in addition to the compensation which shall be awarded under said section; such additional compensation, however, when added to the compensation awarded under said section shall not exceed the compensation for permanent total disability as provided in § 97-29.

The additional compensation herein provided for is to be paid out of the Second Injury Fund exclusively and only to the extent which the assets of said fund shall permit. (1929, c. 120, s. 40; 1931, c. 274, s. 5; 1931, c. 319.)

Editor's Note.—This section formerly provided for a payment to the personal representative of a deceased employee who left no dependents. It was amended by the Act of 1931 so as to direct payment to a narrow class of next of kin specially defined by the section. Failing such persons, a more complicated arrangement is provided. The original Act was criticised as providing an unjustifiable windfall for non-dependent next of kin. The present amendment makes a half-hearted move toward cutting off this bounty for relatives at the expense of the employer, the industry and eventually the public, by turning a part of the money over to the Commission in some cases. A clerical error in the amending Act was corrected by Public Laws 1931, c. 319. 9 N. C. Law Rev. 406.

For a discussion of this section, see 8 N. C. L. Rev. 427, et seq.

While there is no commuted amount provided by this section for payment to the personal representative of a deceased employee for death resulting from an injury compensable thereunder, the act provides the method by which such amount can be commuted, which is payable to the personal representative for the benefit of the heirs at law of the deceased employee. Reeves v. Parker-Graham-Sexton, Inc., 199 N. C. 236, 237, 154 S. E. 66.

When a deceased employee leaves no dependents, an award of compensation should be made to his next of kin, under this section, the employee's mother in this case, and the evidence is held sufficient in this case to support the finding that the employee left no dependent or dependents. Hamby v. Cobb, 214 N. C. 813, 1 S. E. (2d) 101.

§ 97-41. Total compensation not to exceed $6,000.—The total compensation payable under this article shall in no case exceed Six Thousand ($6,000) Dollars. (1929, c. 120, s. 41.)

The amount allowed by the Industrial Commission for serious facial or head disfigurement is to be included with other amounts allowed an injured employee in determining the total compensation allowed such employee, which in no case may exceed six thousand dollars. Arp. v. Wood & Co., 207 N. C. 41, 175 S. E. 719.

In computing the $6,000.00 maximum amount recoverable for any one injury, the amount paid by the employer or insurance carrier for medical and surgical treatment and/or hospitalization or other treatment, including medical and surgical supplies, should not be included, since the compensation act does not include such medical and hospital expense in defining the word "compensation" but defines compensation as to the money allowance payable to an employee or his dependents, including funeral benefits provided by the act. Morris v. Laughlin Chevrolet Co., 217 N. C. 428, 8 S. E. (2d) 484, 128 A. L. R. 132.

§ 97-42. Deduction of payments. — Any payments made by the employer to the injured employee during the period of his disability, or to his dependents, which by the terms of this article were not due and payable when made, may, subject to the approval of the Industrial Commission, be deducted from the amount to be paid as compensation. Provided, that in the case of disability such deductions shall be made by shortening the period during which compensation must be paid, and not by reducing the amount of the weekly payment. (1929, c. 120, s. 42.)

§ 97-43. Commission may prescribe monthly or quarterly payments.—The Industrial Commission, upon application of either party, may, in its discretion, having regard to the welfare of the employee and the convenience of the employer, authorize compensation to be paid monthly or quarterly instead of weekly. (1929, c. 120, s. 43.)

§ 97-44. Lump sums.—Whenever any weekly payment has been continued for not less than six weeks, the liability therefor may, in unusual cases, where the parties agree and the Industrial Commission deems it to be to the best interest of the employee or his dependents, or where it will prevent undue hardships on the employer or his insurance carrier, without prejudicing the interests of the employee or his dependents, be redeemed, in whole or in part, by the payment by the employer of a lump sum which shall be fixed by the Commission, but in no case to exceed the commutable value of the future installments which may be due under this article. The Commission, however, in its discretion, may at any time in the case of a minor who has received permanently disabling injuries, either partial or total, provide that he be compensated, in whole or in part, by the payment of a lump sum, the amount of which shall be fixed by the Commission, but in no case to exceed the commutable value of the future installments which may be due under this article. (1929, c. 120, s. 44.)

Editor's Note.—For a discussion of this section, see 8 N. C. L. Rev. 427, et seq.

§ 97-45. Reducing to judgment outstanding liability of insurance carriers withdrawing from state. — Upon the withdrawal of any insurance carrier from doing business in the state that has any outstanding liability under the workmen's compensation act, the insurance commissioner shall immediately notify the North Carolina industrial commission, and thereupon the said North Carolina industrial commission shall issue an award against said insurance carrier and commute the installments due the injured employee, or employees, and immediately have said award docketed in the superior court of the county in which the claimant resides, and the said North Carolina industrial commission shall then cause suit to be brought on said judgment in the state of the residence of any such insurance carrier, and the proceeds from said judgment after deducting the cost, if any, of the proceeding, shall be turned over to the injured employee, or employees, taking from such employee, or employees, the proper receipt in satisfaction of his claim. (1933, c. 474.)

§ 97-46. Lump sum payments to trustee; receipt to discharge employer. — Whenever the Industrial Commission deems it expedient, any lump sum, subject to the provisions of § 97-45, shall be paid by the employer to some suitable person or corporation appointed by the Superior Court in the county wherein the accident occurred, as trustee, to administer the same for the benefit of the person entitled thereto, in the manner provided by the Commission. The receipt of such trustee for the amount as paid shall discharge the employer or any one else who is liable therefor. (1929, c. 120, s. 45.)

§ 97-47. Change of condition; modification of award. — Upon its own motion or upon the application of any party in interest on the grounds of a change in condition, the Industrial Commission may review any award, and on such review may make an award ending, diminishing, or increasing the compensation previously awarded, subject to the maximum or minimum provided in this article, and shall immediately send to the parties a copy of the award. No such review shall affect such award as regards any moneys paid but no such review shall be made after twelve months from the date of the last payment of compensation pursuant to an award under this article. (1929, c. 120, s. 46; 1931, c. 274, s. 6.)

Editor's Note.—The Act of 1931 struck out the words "last award" formerly ending this section and inserted in lieu thereof the words "last payment of compensation pursuant to an award under this chapter."

Change in Condition.—The industrial commission is given authority to review an award and end, diminish or increase the compensation previously awarded only when there has been a "change in condition" of the claimant. Murray v. Nebel Knitting Co., 214 N. C. 437, 199 S. E. 609.

Where there is ample evidence to support a finding of a change in claimant's condition as contemplated by this section, and evidence which would support a contrary finding, the finding of the industrial commission from the conflicting evidence is conclusive. Knight v. Ford Body Co., 214 N. C. 7, 197 S. E. 563.

Delay in Seeking Review.—Where the findings of the Industrial Commission, supported by evidence, are to the effect that a review of the award of compensation is sought by an employee more than twelve months from the date of the last payment, the order of the Commission denying further compensation will be upheld by the courts in view of this section. Lee v. Rose's 5-10-25c. Stores, 205 N. C. 310, 171 S. E. 87.

Applied in Smith v. Swift & Co., 212 N. C. 608, 194 S. E. 106; Knight v. Ford Body Co., 214 N. C. 7, 197 S. E. 563.

§ 97-48. Receipts relieving employer; payment to minors; when payment of claims to dependents subsequent in right discharges employer.—(a) Whenever payment of compensation is made to a widow or widower for her or his use, or for her or his use and the use of the child or children, the written receipt thereof of such widow or widower shall acquit the employer: Provided, however, that in order to protect the interests of minors or incompetents the Industrial Commission may at its discretion change the terms of any award with respect to whom compensation for the benefit of such minors or incompetents shall be paid.

(b) Whenever payment is made to any person eighteen years of age or over, the written receipt of such person shall acquit the employer.

(c) Payment of death benefits by an employer in good faith to a dependent subsequent in right to another or other dependents shall protect and discharge the employer, unless and until such dependent or dependents prior in right shall have given notice of his or their claims. In case the employer is in doubt as to the respective rights of rival claimants, he may apply to the Industrial Commission to decide between them. (1929, c. 120, s. 47; 1931, c. 274, s. 7.)

Editor's Note.—The Act of 1931 struck out the former section and substituted the above.

§ 97-49. Benefits of mentally incompetent or minor employees under 18 may be paid to a trustee, etc.—If an injured employee is mentally incompetent or is under eighteen years of age at the time when any right or privilege accrues to him under this article, his guardian, trustee, or committee may in his behalf claim and exercise such right or privilege. (1929, c. 120, s. 48.)

This section is a mere declaration of the common law rule. Lineberry v. Mebane, 219 N. C. 257, 13 S. E. (2d) 429.

§ 97-50. Limitation as against minors or mentally incompetent.—No limitation of time provided in this article for the giving of notice or making claim under this article shall run against any person who is mentally incompetent, or a minor dependent, as long as he has no guardian, trustee, or committee. (1929, c. 120, s. 49.)

This section is applicable only to the mentally incompetent and the minor dependent. Lineberry v. Mebane, 219 N. C. 257, 13 S. E. (2d) 429.

Cited in Lineberry v. Mebane, 218 N. C. 737, 12 S. E. (2d) 252.

§ 97-51. Joint employment; liabilities.—Whenever an employee, for whose injury or death compensation is payable under this article, shall at the time of the injury be in joint service of two or more employers subject to this article, such employers shall contribute to the payment of such compensation in proportion to their wages liability to such employee; provided, however, that nothing in this section shall prevent any reasonable arrangement between such employers for a different distribution as between themselves of the ultimate burden of compensation. (1929, c. 120, s. 50.)

§ 97-52. Occupational disease made compensable; "accident" defined.—Disablement or death of an employee resulting from an occupational disease described in § 97-53 shall be treated as the happening of an injury by accident within the meaning of the North Carolina Workmen's Compensation Act and the procedure and practice and compensation and other benefits provided by said act shall apply in all such cases except as hereinafter otherwise provided. The word "accident," as used in the Workmen's Compensation Act, shall not be construed to mean a series of events in employment, of a similar or like nature, occurring regularly, continuously or at frequent intervals in the course of such employment, over extended periods of time, whether such events may or may not be attributable to fault of the employer, and disease attributable to such causes shall be compensable only if culminating in an occupational disease mentioned in and compensable under this article: Provided, however, no compensation shall be payable for asbestosis and/or silicosis as hereinafter defined if the employee, at the time of entering into the employment of the employer by whom compensation would otherwise be payable, falsely represented himself in writing as not having previously been disabled or laid off because of asbestosis or silicosis. (1935, c. 123.)

The rights and remedies of an employee under the Compensation Act exclude all other rights and remedies, and an employee bound by the act, may not maintain an action at common law against the employer and his foreman to recover for injuries caused by an occupational disease not enumerated in this and the following section, even though the disease is the result of negligence. Murphy v. American Enka Corp., 213 N. C. 218, 195 S. E. 536.

This section, providing that only the occupational diseases therein specified should be compensable, relates only to occupational diseases, which are those resulting from long and continued exposure to risks and conditions inherent and usual in the nature of the employment, and does not preclude compensation for a disease not inherent in or incident to the nature of the employment when it results from an accident arising out of and in the course of the employment. MacRae v. Unemployment Compensation Comm., 217 N. C. 769, 9 S. E. (2d) 595. See also, Blassingame v. Southern Asbestos Co., 217 N. C. 223, 7 S. E. (2d) 478.

§ 97-53. Occupational diseases enumerated; when due to exposure to chemicals.—The following diseases and conditions only shall be deemed to be occupational diseases within the meaning of this article:

1. Anthrax.
2. Arsenic poisoning.
3. Brass poisoning.
4. Zinc poisoning.
5. Manganese poisoning.
6. Lead poisoning. Provided the employee shall have been exposed to the hazard of lead poisoning for at least thirty days in the preceding twelve months' period, and; provided further only the employer in whose employment such employee was last injuriously exposed shall be liable.
7. Mercury poisoning.
8. Phosphorus poisoning.
9. Poisoning by carbon bisulphide, methanol, naphtha or volatile halogenated hydrocarbons.
10. Chrome ulceration.
11. Compressed-air illness.
12. Poisoning by benzol, or by nitro and amido derivatives of benzol (dinitrol-benzol, anilin, and others).
13. Infection or inflammation of the skin or eyes or other external contact surfaces or oral or nasal cavities due to irritating oils, cutting compounds, chemical dust, liquids, fumes, gases or vapors.

14. Epitheliomatous cancer or ulceration of the skin or of the corneal surface of the eye due to tar, pitch, bitumen, mineral oil, or paraffin, or any compound, product, or residue of any of these substances.

15. Radium poisoning or injury by X-rays.

16. Blisters due to use of tools or appliances in the employment.

17. Bursitis, of the knee or elbow, due to intermittent pressure in the employment.

18. Miner's nystagmus.

19. Bone felon due to constant or intermittent pressure in employment.

20. Synovitis, caused by trauma in employment.

21. Tenosynovitis, caused by trauma in employment.

22. Carbon monoxide poisoning.

23. Poisoning by sulphuric, hydrochloric or hydrofluoric acid.

24. Asbestosis.

25. Silicosis.

Occupational diseases caused by chemicals shall be deemed to be due to exposure of an employee to the chemicals herein mentioned only when as a part of the employment such employee is exposed to such chemicals in such form and quantity, and used with such frequency as to cause the occupational disease mentioned in connection with such chemicals. (1935, c. 123.)

Conflicting expert testimony on the question of whether the deceased employee died as a result of an occupational disease, caused by exposure to benzol poisoning, arising out of and in the course of his employment, was sufficient to sustain the commission's award of compensation to the employee's dependent. Tindall v. American Furniture Co., 216 N. C. 306, 4 S. E. (2d) 894.

§ 97-54. "Disablement" defined. — The term "disablement" as used in this article as applied to cases of asbestosis and silicosis means the event of becoming actually incapacitated, because of such occupational disease, from performing normal labor in the last occupation in which remuneratively employed; but in all other cases of occupational disease shall be equivalent to "disability" as defined in § 97-2, paragraph (i). (1935, c. 123.)

§ 97-55. "Disability" defined.—The term "disability" as used in this article means the state of being incapacitated as the term is used in defining "disablement" in § 97-54. (1935, c. 123.)

§ 97-56. Limitation on compensable diseases. —The provisions of this article shall apply only to cases of occupational disease in which the last exposure in an occupation subject to the hazards of such diseases occurred on or after March 26, 1935. (1935, c. 123.)

§ 97-57. Employer liable.—In any case where compensation is payable for an occupational disease, the employer in whose employment the employee was last injuriously exposed to the hazards of such disease, and the insurance carrier, if any, which was on the risk when the employee was so last exposed under such employer, shall be liable. (1935, c. 123.)

This section makes no provision for a partnership in responsibility, has nothing to say as to the length of the last employment or the degree of injury which the deleterious exposure must inflict to merit compensation. It takes the breakdown practically where it occurs—with the last injurious exposure. Haynes v. Feldspar Producing Co., 222 N. C. 163, 170, 22 S. E. (2d) 275.

§ 97-58. Claims for certain diseases restricted; time limit for filing claims.—An employer shall not be liable for any compensation for asbestosis, silicosis or lead poisoning unless disablement or death results within three years after the last exposure to such disease, or, in case of death, unless death follows continuous disability from such disease, commencing within the period of three years limited herein, and for which compensation has been paid or awarded or timely claim made as hereinafter provided and results within seven years after such last exposure. Claims for all other occupational diseases shall be barred unless claims shall be filed with the industrial commission within one year from the disablement or death caused by such occupational disease. (1935, c. 123.)

§ 97-59. Employer to provide treatment. — In the event of disability from an occupational disease, the employer shall provide reasonable medical and/or other treatment for such time as in the judgment of the industrial commission will tend to lessen the period of disability or provide needed relief; provided, however, medical and/or other treatment for asbestosis and/or silicosis shall not exceed a period of three years nor cost in excess of three hundred thirty-four ($334.00) dollars in any one year; and, provided further, all such treatment shall be first authorized by the industrial commission after consulting with the advisory medical committee. (1935, c. 123.)

§ 97-60. Examination of employees by advisory medical committee; designation of industries with dust hazards. — The compulsory examination of employees and prospective employees as herein provided applies only to persons engaged or about to engage in an occupation which has been found by the industrial commission to expose them to the hazards of asbestosis and/or silicosis. The industrial commission shall designate by order each industry found subject to any such hazard and shall notify the employers therein before such examinations are required. On and after March 26, 1935, it shall be the duty of every employer, in the conduct of whose business his employees or any of them are subjected to the hazards of asbestosis and/or silicosis, to provide prior to employment necessary examinations of all new employees for the purpose of ascertaining if any of them are in any degree affected by asbestosis and/or silicosis or peculiarly susceptible thereto; and every such employer shall from time to time, as ordered by the industrial commission, provide similar examinations for all of his employees whose employment exposes them to the hazards of asbestosis and/or silicosis. At least one member of the advisory medical committee or other physician designated by the industrial commission shall make such examinations or be present when any such examination is made. The refusal of an employee to submit to any such examination shall bar such employee from compensation or other benefits provided by this article in the event of disablement and/or death resulting from exposure to the hazards of asbestosis and/or silicosis subsequent to such refusal. It shall be the duty of the industrial commission to make and/or order inspections of employments and to keep a record of all employments subjecting employees to the hazards of asbestosis and/or silicosis, and to notify the employer in any case where such hazard shall have been found to exist. The unreasonable failure of an employer to provide for any examination or his unreasonable refusal to permit any inspection herein authorized shall constitute a misdemeanor and shall be punishable as such. (1935, c. 123.)

§ 97-61. Compensation for employee temporarily removed from hazardous employment; payment for training for readjustment to other work; waiver of right to compensation.—Where an employee, though not actually disabled, is found by the industrial commission to be affected by asbestosis and/or silicosis, and it is also found by the industrial commission that such employee would be benefited by being taken out of his employment and that such disease with such employee has progressed to such a degree as to make it hazardous for him to continue in his employment and is in consequence removed therefrom by order of the industrial commission, he shall be paid compensation as for temporary total or partial disability, as the case may be, until he can obtain employment in some other occupation in which there are no hazards of such occupational disease: Provided, however, compensation in no such case shall be paid for a longer period than twenty weeks to an employee without dependents, nor for a longer period than forty weeks to an employee with dependents, and in either case said period shall begin from the date of removal from the employment, unless actual disablement from such disease results later and within the time limited in § 97-58. When in any such case the forced change of occupation shall in the opinion of the industrial commission require that the employee be given special training in order to properly readjust himself there shall be paid for such training and incidental traveling and living expenses an additional sum which shall not exceed three hundred ($300.00) dollars, in the case of an employee without dependents, and which shall not exceed five hundred ($500.00) dollars in the case of an employee with dependents, such payment to be made for the benefit of the employee to such person or persons as the industrial commission may direct; provided, however, no such payment shall be made unless the employee accepts the special training herein provided, nor shall payment be made for a longer period of time than the employee shall accept such special training. If an employee has been so compensated, and whether or not specially trained for another occupation, and he thereafter engages in any occupation which exposes him to hazards of silicosis and/or asbestosis without first having obtained the written approval of the industrial commission, neither he, his dependents, personal representative nor any other person shall be entitled to any compensation for disablement or death from silicosis and/or asbestosis: Provided, however, that an employee so affected, as an alternative to forced change of occupation, may, subject to the approval of the industrial commission, waive in writing his right to compensation for any aggravation of his condition that may result from his continuing in his hazardous occupation; but in the event of total disablement and/or death as a result of asbestosis and/or silicosis with which the employee was so affected compensation shall nevertheless be payable, but in no case, whether for disability or death or both, for a longer period than one hundred (100) weeks. Such written waiver must be filed with the industrial commission, and the commission shall keep a record of each waiver, which record shall be open to the inspection of any interested person. (1935, c. 123.)

§ 97-62. "Silicosis" and "abestosis" defined.—The word "silicosis" shall mean the characteristic fibrotic condition of the lungs caused by the inhalation of dust of silica or silicates. "Asbestosis" shall mean a characteristic fibrotic condition of the lungs caused by the inhalation of asbestos dust. (1935, c. 123.)

§ 97-63. Period necessary for employee to be exposed. — Compensation shall not be payable for disability or death due to silicosis and/or asbestosis unless the employee shall have been exposed to the inhalation of dust of silica or silicates or asbestos dust in employment for a period of not less than two years in this state, provided no part of such period of two years shall have been more than ten years prior to the last exposure. (1935, c. 123.)

§ 97-64. General act to control as regards benefits. — Except as herein otherwise provided, in case of disablement or death from silicosis and/or asbestosis, compensation shall be payable in accordance with the provisions of the North Carolina Workmen's Compensation Act. (1935, c. 123.)

§ 97-65. Reduction of rate where tuberculosis develops.—In case of disablement or death due primarily from silicosis and/or asbestosis and complicated with tuberculosis of the lungs compensation shall be payable as hereinbefore provided, except that the rate of payments may be reduced one-sixth. (1935, c. 123.)

§ 97-66. Requirement as to written notice of disease to employer or industrial commission; waiver of notice and claim where payments are made; claim where benefits are discontinued. — Unless written notice of the first distinct manifestation of an occupational disease shall be given to the employer in whose employment the employee was last injuriously exposed to the hazards of such disease or to the industrial commission within thirty (30) days after such manifestation and, in case of death, unless also written notice of such death shall be given by the beneficiary hereunder to the employer or the industrial commission within ninety (90) days after occurrence, and unless claim for disability and/or death shall be made within one (1) year after the disablement or death, respectively, all rights to compensation for disability or death from an occupational disease shall be forever barred: Provided, however, that notice and/or claim shall be deemed waived in case of disability or death where the employer or insurance carrier voluntarily makes compensation payments therefor, or, within the time above limited, has actual knowledge of the incurrence of the disease or of the death and its cause, or by his or its conduct misleads the injured employee or claimant reasonably to believe that notice and/or claim has or have been waived; and, Provided further, that where compensation payments have been made and discontinued, and further compensation is claimed, whether for disability or death from asbestosis, silicosis or lead poisoning, the claim for such further compensation shall be made within two years after the last payment, but in all other cases of occupational disease claim for further compensation shall be made within one year after the last payment. (1935, c. 123.)

"Distinct Manifestation."—When an employee dies as a result of an occupational disease, but had no knowledge that he had contracted or was suffering from the disease, he has no "distinct manifestation" of the disease within the purview of this section, and his failure to give notice thereof to his employer does not bar his dependents from recovering compensation for his death. Blassingame v. Southern Asbestos Co., 217 N. C. 223, 7 S. E. (2d) 478.

This section does not provide that notice to employer should be a condition precedent to recovery of compensation, the provision that the claim "shall be forever barred" applying only to the requirement that claim for disability or death should be made within one year after the disablement or death, and not to the requirement of notice to the employer within 90 days from the date of death. Blassingame v. Southern Asbestos Co., 217 N. C. 223, 7 S. E. (2d) 478.

Claim Filed witbin Ninety Days after Autopsy Reports Sufficient under Circumstances.—When a widow does not know that her husband had an occupational disease resulting in death until after the autopsy reports, almost two months after his death, notice and claim filed with the employer by her within 90 days after the report is sufficient, since under the circumstances it would be humanly impossible for her to have given notice and filed claim within 90 days of her husband's death. Blassingame v. Southern Asbestos Co., 217 N. C. 223, 7 S. E. (2d) 478.

§ 97-67. Post-mortem examinations; notice to next of kin and insurance carrier.—Upon the filing of a claim for death from an occupational disease where in the opinion of the industrial commission a post-mortem examination is necessary to accurately ascertain the cause of death, such examination shall be ordered by the industrial commission. A full report of such examination shall be certified to the industrial commission. The surviving spouse or next kin and the employer or his insurance carrier, if their identity and whereabouts can be reasonably ascertained, shall be given reasonable notice of the time and place of such post-mortem examination, and, if present at such examination, shall be given an opportunity to witness the same. Any such person may be present at and witness such examination either in person or through a duly authorized representative. If such examination is not consented to by the surviving husband or wife or next of kin, all right to compensation shall cease. (1935, c. 123.)

§ 97-68. Controverted medical questions. — If on the hearing of a claim for compensation for asbestosis and/or silicosis, any controverted medical question or questions shall arise, the industrial commission shall reserve its decision and award until it shall have received a report from the advisory medical committee; and the industrial commission may in its discretion refer to said committee controverted medical questions arising out of other occupational disease claims. (1935, c. 123.)

§ 97-69. Examination by advisory medical committee; inspection of medical reports.—The advisory medical committee, upon reference to it of a case of occupational disease shall notify the employee, or, in case he is dead, his dependents or personal representative, and his employer to appear before the advisory medical committee at a time and place stated in the notice. If the employee be living, he shall appear before the advisory medical committee at the time and place specified then or thereafter and he shall submit to such examinations including clinical and x-ray examinations as the advisory medical committee may require. The employee, or, if he be dead, the claimant and the employer shall be entitled to have present at all such examinations, a physician admitted to practice medicine in the state who shall be given every reasonable facility for observing every such examination whose services shall be paid for by the claimant or by the employer who engaged his services. If a physician admitted to practice medicine in the state shall certify that the employee is physically unable to appear at the time and place designated by the advisory medical committee, such committee may, upon the advice of the industrial commission, and on notice to the employer, change the place and/or time of the examination so as to reasonably facilitate the examination of the employee, and in any such case the employer shall furnish transportation and provide for other reasonably necessary expenses incidental to necessary travel. The claimant and the employer shall produce to the advisory medical committee all reports of medical and x-ray examinations which may be in their respective possession or control showing the past or present condition of the employee to assist the advisory medical committee in reaching its conclusions. (1935, c. 123.)

§ 97-70. Report of committee to industrial commission.—The advisory medical committee, shall, as soon as practicable after it has completed its consideration of a case, report to the industrial commission its opinion regarding all medical questions involved in the case. The advisory medical committee shall include in its report a statement of what, if any, physician or physicians were present at the examination on behalf of the claimant or employer and what, if any, medical reports and x-rays were produced by or on behalf of the claimant or employer. (1935, c. 123.)

§ 97-71. Filing report; right of hearing on report.—The advisory medical committee shall file its report in triplicate with the industrial commission, which shall send one copy thereof to the claimant and one copy to the employer by registered mail. Unless within thirty days from receipt of the copy of said report the claimant and/or employer shall request the industrial commission in writing to set the case for further hearing for the purpose of examining and/or cross-examining the members of the advisory medical committee respecting the report of said committee, said report shall become a part of the record of the case and shall be accepted by the industrial commission as expert medical testimony to be considered as such in connection with all the evidence in the case in arriving at its decision. (1935, c. 123.)

§ 97-72. Appointment of advisory medical committee; terms of office; duties and functions;

salaries and expenses.—There shall be an advisory medical committee consisting of three members, who shall be licensed physicians in good professional standing and peculiarly qualified in the diagnosis and/or treatment of occupational diseases. They shall be appointed by the industrial commission with the approval of the governor, and one of them shall be designated as chairman of the committee by the industrial commission. The members of committee shall be appointed to serve terms as follows: One for a term of two years, one for a term of four years, and one for a term of six years. Upon the expiration of each term as above mentioned the industrial commission shall appoint a successor for a term of six years; except that the terms of the members first appointed shall expire June thirtieth, one thousand nine hundred thirty-six. The function of the committee shall be to conduct examinations and make reports as required by §§ 97-68 to 97-71, and to assist in any post-mortem examinations provided for in § 97-67 when so directed by the industrial commission. Members of the committee shall devote to the duties of the office so much of their time as may be required in the conducting of examinations with reasonable promptness, and they shall attend hearings as scheduled by the industrial commission when their attendance is desired for the purpose of examining and cross-examining them respecting any report or reports made by them.

The members of the advisory medical committee shall be paid such salaries and/or fees and expenses, and in monthly installments or in such other manner as may be determined by the governor and approved by the advisory budget commission. (1935, c. 123.)

§ 97-73. Expenses of making examinations.—The industrial commission shall establish a schedule of reasonable charges to defray expenses incurred in making examinations pursuant to §§ 97-60 and 97-67, such charges to be collected in accordance with rules and regulations which shall be adopted by the industrial commission. Said charges shall be collected from employers who by order of the industrial commission are determined to be subject to the hazards of asbestosis and/or silicosis. (1935, c. 123.)

§ 97-74. Expense of hearings taxed as costs in compensation cases; fees collected directed to general fund.—In hearings arising out of claims for disability and/or death resulting from occupational diseases the industrial commission shall tax as a part of the costs in cases in which compensation is awarded a reasonable allowance for the services of members of the advisory medical committee attending such hearings and reasonable allowances for the services of members of the advisory medical committee for making investigations in connection with all claims for compensation on account of occupational diseases, including uncontested cases, as well as contested cases, and whether or not hearings shall have been conducted in connection therewith. All such charges, fees and allowances to be collected by the industrial commission shall be paid into the general fund of the state treasury to constitute a fund out of which to pay the expenses of the advisory medical committee. (1935, c. 123.)

§ 97-75. Making up deficiency by assessment upon employers in hazardous industries; provision for annual fund.—In the event the amount appropriated by the general assembly and the charges, fees and allowances so assessed and collected and paid into the state treasury shall not be sufficient to pay the full cost incurred by the advisory medical committee in making examinations of employees, and conducting post-mortem examinations, and in making investigations of claims arising under this article, and in testifying before the industrial commission, the industrial commission shall assess against the employers found by the industrial commission to be subject to the hazards of asbestosis and/or silicosis an amount sufficient to pay such cost, said amount to be assessed against such employers pro rata on the basis of annual payroll. The industrial commission is authorized to assess and collect in advance in the beginning of any year from the employers subject to such hazard an amount estimated as necessary to pay such cost. Said amount when so assessed shall be paid by such employers within ten days after the notice of assessment, and when collected by the industrial commission shall be paid into the state treasury as a part of the fund out of which to pay the expenses of the advisory medical committee. In the event such amount so assessed shall be found to be in excess of the cost incurred by such advisory medical committee in the performance of its duties under this article, such excess shall be credited against the estimate of the cost to be incurred by said committee for the succeeding year. In case the amount so assessed shall be insufficient to pay such cost the industrial commission is authorized to make an additional assessment to be made at the end of the regular assessment period and to be collected from the employers subject to the hazards of asbestosis and/or silicosis. (1935, c. 123.)

§ 97-76. Inspection of hazardous employments; refusal to allow inspection made misdemeanor.—The industrial commission shall make inspections of employments for the purpose of ascertaining whether such employments, or any of them, are subject to the hazards of asbestosis and/or silicosis, and for the purpose of making studies and recommendations with a view to reducing and/or eliminating such hazards. The industrial commission, and/or any person selected by it, is authorized to enter upon the premises of employers where employments covered by this article are being carried on to make examinations and studies as aforesaid. Any employer, or any officer or agent of an employer, who unreasonably prevents or obstructs any such examinations or study shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (1935, c. 123.)

§ 97-77. North Carolina Industrial Commission created; members appointed by Governor; terms of office; chairman.—There is hereby created a commission to be known as the North Carolina Industrial Commission, consisting of three commissioners who shall devote their entire time to the duties of the Commission. The Governor shall appoint the members of the Commission, one for a term of two years, one for a term of four years, and one for a term of six years. Upon the expiration of each term as above mentioned, the Governor shall appoint a successor for a term of six years, and thereafter the term of office of each commissioner shall be six years. Not more than one appointee shall be a person who, on account of his previous vocation, employment or affiliations, can be classed as a representative of employers, and not more than one appointee shall be a person who, on account of his previous vocation, employment or affiliations, can be classed as a representative of employees. One member, to be designated by the Governor, shall act as chairman. (1929, c. 120, s. 51; 1931, c. 274, s. 8.)

Editor's Note.—The Act of 1931 struck out the following words formerly appearing at the end of this section: "And such member so selected as chairman shall not be one who, on account of his previous vocation, employment or affiliations, can be classed either as representative of employers or as representative of employees."

The Industrial Commission is primarily an administrative agency of the state, charged with the duty of administering the provisions of the North Carolina Workmen's Compensation Act. Hanks v. Southern Public Utilities Co., 210 N. C. 312, 319, 186 S. E. 252, citing In re Hayes, 200 N. C. 133, 156 S. E. 791.

But Is Special Tribunal When Considering Claims.—When a claim for compensation has been filed and the employer and employee have failed to reach an agreement, the statute authorizes the Commission to hear and determine all matters in dispute. Thereupon, the Commission is constituted a special or limited tribunal, and is invested with certain judicial functions, and possesses the powers and incidents of a court, within the provisions of the act, and necessary to determine the rights and liabilities of employees and employers. Hanks v. Southern Public Utilities Co., 210 N. C. 312, 319, 186 S. E. 252.

§ 97-78. Salaries and expenses; secretary and other clerical assistance; annual report.—(a) The salaries of the chairman and each of the other Commissioners shall be fixed by the Governor, subject to the approval of the Advisory Budget Commission, such salaries to be payable in monthy installments.

(b) The Commission may appoint a secretary whose duties shall be prescribed by the Commission, and whose salary shall be fixed by the Governor and Council of the State and who, upon entering upon his duties, shall give bond in such sum as may be fixed by the Commission, and who may be removed at the will of the Commission. The Commission may also employ such clerical or other assistance as it may deem necessary, and fix the compensation of all persons so employed, such compensation to be in keeping with the compensation paid to the persons employed to do similar work in other State departments.

(c) The members of the Commission and its assistants shall be entitled to receive from the State their actual and necessary expenses while traveling on the business of the Commission, but such expenses shall be sworn to by the person who incurred the same, and shall be approved by the chairman of the Commission before payment is made.

(d) All salaries and expenses of the Commission shall be audited and paid out of the State Treasury, in the manner prescribed for similar expenses in other departments or branches of the State service, and to defray such salaries and expenses a sufficient appropriation shall be made under the general appropriation act as made to other departments, commissions and agencies of the State government.

(e) The Commission shall publish annually for free distribution a report of the administration of this article, together with such recommendations as the Commission deems advisable. (1929, c. 120, s. 52; 1931, c. 274, s. 9; 1941, c. 358, s. 2.)

Editor's Note.—Prior to the 1931 amendment the salary of the chairman was fixed at $4500 a year and each of the other commissioners received $4000.

Prior to the 1941 amendment the salary of the secretary was to be not more than $3,600 a year.

§ 97-79. Offices and supplies; deputies with power to subpoena witnesses and to take testimony; meetings; hearings.—(a) The Commission shall be provided with adequate offices in which the records shall be kept and its official business transacted during regular business hours; it shall also be provided with necessary office furniture, stationery, and other supplies.

(b) The Commission may appoint deputies, who shall have the power to subpoena witnesses and administer oaths, and who may take testimony in such cases as the Commission may deem proper. Such testimony shall be transmitted in writing to the Commission, and the Commission shall fix the compensation of such deputies.

(c) The Commission or any member thereof may hold sessions at any place within the State as may be deemed necessary by the Commission.

(d) Hearings before the Commission shall be open to the public and shall be stenographically reported, and the Commission is authorized to contract for the reporting of such hearings. The Commission shall by regulation provide for the preparation of a record of the hearings and other proceedings. (1929, c. 120, s. 53; 1931, c. 274, s. 10.)

Editor's Note.—The Act of 1931 amended subsection (a) of this section by striking out after the word "offices" the following: "in the capitol, or some other suitable building in the City of Raleigh."

§ 97-80. Rules and regulations; subpoena of witnesses; examination of books and records; depositions; costs.—(a) The Commission may make rules, not inconsistent with this article, for carrying out the provisions of this article. Processes and procedure under this article shall be as summary and simple as reasonably may be. The Commission or any member thereof, or any person deputized by it, shall have the power, for the purpose of this article, to subpoena witnesses, administer or cause to have administered oaths, and to examine or cause to be examined such parts of the books and records of the parties to a proceeding as relate to questions in dispute. Any party to a proceeding under this article may, upon application to the Commission, which application shall set forth the materiality of the evidence to be given, cause the depositions of witnesses residing within or without the State to be taken, the costs to be taxed as other costs by Commission. Such depositions shall be taken after giving the notice and in the manner prescribed by law for depositions in actions at law, except that they shall be directed to the Commission, the Commissioner, or the Deputy Commissioner before whom the proceedings may be pending.

(b) The County Sheriffs and their respective deputies shall serve all subpoenas of the Commission or its deputies, and shall receive the same fees as are now provided by law for like services; each witness who appears in obedience to such subpoena of the Commission shall receive for attendance the fees and mileage for witnesses in civil cases in courts of the county where the hearing is held.

(c) The Superior Court shall, on application of the Commission or any member or deputy thereof, enforce by proper proceedings the attendance and testimony of witnesses and the production and examination of books, papers and records. (1929, c. 120, s. 54.)

Editor's Note.—For a discussion of this section, see 8 N. C. L. Rev. 427, et seq.

Rehearing.—While there is no direct statutory provision giving the Industrial Commission power to order a rehearing of an award made by it for newly discovered evidence, the Commission has such power in proper instances in accordance with its rules and regulations, as provided by this section, it being the intent of the Legislature, as gathered from the whole act, to give the Industrial Commission continuing jurisdiction of all proceedings begun before it with appellate jurisdiction in the Superior Court on matters of law only. Butts v. Montague Bros., 208 N. C. 186, 179 S. E. 799.

Construction of Rules.—Under this section the North Carolina Industrial Commission has the power not only to make rules governing its administration of the act, but also to construe and apply such rules. Its construction and application of its rules, duly made and promulgated, in proceedings pending before the said Commission, ordinarily are final and conclusive and not subject to review by the courts of this state, on an appeal from an award made by said Industrial Commission. Winslow v. Carolina Conference Ass'n, 211 N. C. 571, 579, 191 S. E. 403.

Rule of industrial commission requiring notice to it of cancellation of policy does not become a part of the policy contract. Motsinger v. Perryman, 218 N. C. 15, 9 S. E. (2d) 511.

The rules of the industrial commission, adopted pursuant to this section, relative to the introduction of new evidence at a review by the full commission, are in accord with the decisions of the supreme court as to granting new trials for newly discovered evidence. Tindall v. American Furniture Co., 216 N. C. 306, 4 S. E. (2d) 894.

Procedure before the industrial commission need not necessarily conform strictly to judicial procedure in courts of law unless the statute so requires or the court of last resort shall consider such procedure indispensable to the preservation of the essentials of justice and the principles of due process of law, and procedure adopted by the commission with respect to the reception and consideration of evidence will be given liberal treatment by the courts, since this section empowers the commission to make rules for carrying out the provisions of the act, and requires processes and procedure to be summary and simple. Maley v. Thomasville Furniture Co., 214 N. C. 589, 200 S. E. 438.

Jurisdiction Limited.—In its functions as a court, the jurisdiction of the industrial commission is limited, and jurisdiction cannot be conferred on it by agreement or waiver. Chadwick v. North Carolina Department of Conservation, etc., 219 N. C. 766, 14 S. E. (2d) 842.

§ 97-81. Blank forms and literature; statistics; safety provisions; accident reports; studies and investigations and recommendations to General Assembly; to co-operate with other agencies for prevention of injury.—(a) The Commission shall prepare and cause to be printed, and upon request furnish, free of charge to any employee or employer, such blank forms and literature as it shall deem requisite to facilitate or prompt the efficient administration of this article.

(b) The Commission shall tabulate the accident reports received from employers in accordance with § 97-92 and shall publish the same in the annual report of the Commission and as often as it may deem advisable, in such detailed or aggregate form as it may deem best. The name of the employer or employee shall not appear in such publications, and the employers' reports shall be private records of the Commission, and shall not be open for public inspection except for the inspection of the parties directly involved, and only to the extent of such interest. These reports shall not be used as evidence against any employer in any suit at law brought by any employee for the recovery of damages.

(c) The Commission shall make studies and investigations with respect to safety provisions and the causes of injuries in employments covered by this article, and shall from time to time make to the General Assembly and to employers and carriers such recommendations as it may deem proper as to the best means of preventing such injuries.

(d) In making such studies and investigations the Commission is authorized (1) to co-operate with any agency of the United States charged with the duty of enforcing any law securing safety against injury in any employment covered by this article, or with any State agency engaged in enforcing any laws to assure safety for employees, and (2) to permit any such agency to have access to the records of the Commission. In carrying out the provisions of this section the Commission or any officer or employee of the Commission is authorized to enter at any reasonable time upon any premises, tracks, wharf, dock, or other landing place, or to enter any building, where an employment covered by this article is being carried on, and to examine any tool, appliance, or machinery used in such employment. (1929, c. 120, s. 55.)

§ 97-82. Memorandum of agreement between employer and employee to be submitted to Commission on prescribed forms for approval.— If after seven days after the date of the injury, or at any time in case of death, the employer and the injured employee or his dependents reach an agreement in regard to compensation under this article, a memorandum of the agreement in the form prescribed by the Industrial Commission, accompanied by a full and complete medical report, shall be filed with and approved by the Commission; otherwise such agreement shall be voidable by the employee or his dependents.

If approved by the Commission, thereupon the memorandum shall for all purposes be enforceable by the court's decree as hereinafter specified. (1929, c. 120, s. 56.)

§ 97-83. In event of disagreement, Commission is to make award after hearing.—If the employer and the injured employee or his dependents fail to reach an agreement, in regard to compensation under this article within fourteen days after the employee has knowledge of the injury or death, or if they have reached such an agreement which has been signed and filed with the Commission, and compensation has been paid or is due in accordance therewith, and the parties thereto then disagree as to the continuance of any weekly payment under such agreement, either party may make application to the Industrial Commission for a hearing in regard to the matters at issue, and for a ruling thereon.

Immediately after such application has been received the Commission shall set the date for a hearing, which shall be held as soon as practicable, and shall notify the parties at issue of the time and place of such hearing. The hearing shall be held in the city or county where the injury occurred, unless otherwise agreed to by the parties and authorized by the Industrial Commission. (1929, c. 120, s. 57.)

Cited in Hanks v. Southern Public Utilities Co., 210 N. C. 312, 186 S. E. 252.

§ 97-84. Determination of disputes by Commission.—The Commission or any of its members shall hear the parties at issue and their representatives and witnesses, and shall determine the dispute in a summary manner. The award, together with a statement of the findings of fact, rulings of law, and other matters pertinent to the questions at issue shall be filed with the record of the proceedings, and a copy of the award shall immediately be sent to the parties in dispute. The parties may be heard by a deputy, in which event he shall swear or cause the witnesses to be sworn, and shall transmit all testimony to the Commission for its determination and award. (1929, c. 120, s. 58.)

Fact-Finding Body.—Under this section the commission is made a fact-finding body. The finding of facts is one of its primary duties. Beach v. McLean, 219 N. C. 521, 525, 14 S. E. (2d) 515.

Cited in Champion v. Vance County Board of Health, 221 N. C. 96, 19 S. E. (2d) 239.

§ 97-85. Review of award.—If application is made to the Commission within seven days from the date when notice of the award shall have been given, the full Commission shall review the award, and, if good ground be shown therefor, reconsider the evidence, receive further evidence, rehear the parties or their representatives, and, if proper, amend the award. (1929, c. 120, s. 59.)

Objection to the admission of incompetent evidence should be made before the hearing commissioner, and objection taken for the first time at the hearing before the full commission on appeal is too late. Maley v. Thomasville Furniture Co., 214 N. C. 589, 200 S. E. 438.

An appellant to the full commission has no substantive right to require it to hear new or additional testimony, but the commission's duty to do so applies only if good ground therefor be shown, and its rules in regard thereto, adopted pursuant to § 97-80, are in accord with the decision of the supreme court relating to the granting of new trials for newly discovered evidence. Tindall v. American Furniture Co., 216 N. C. 306, 4 S. E. (2d) 894.

Cited in Champion v. Vance County Board of Health, 221 N. C. 96, 19 S. E. (2d) 239.

§ 97-86. Award conclusive as to facts; appeal; certified questions of law.—The award of the Commission, as provided in § 97-84, if not reviewed in due time, or an award of the Commission upon such review, as provided in § 97-85, shall be conclusive and binding as to all questions of fact; but either party to the dispute may, within thirty days from the date of such award, or within thirty days after receipt of notice to be sent by registered mail of such award, but not thereafter, appeal from the decision of said Commission to the Superior Court of the county in which the alleged accident happened, or in which the employer resides or has his principal office, for errors of law, under the same terms and conditions as govern appeals in ordinary civil actions. The Commission, of its own motion, may certify questions of law to the Supreme Court, for decision and determination by the said Court. In case of an appeal from the decision of the Commission, or of a certification by said Commission of questions of law, to the Supreme Court, said appeal or certification shall operate as a supersedeas, and no employer shall be required to make payment of the award involved in said appeal or certification until the questions at issue therein shall have been fully determined in accordance with the provisions of this article. (1929, c. 120, s. 60.)

Jurisdictional Facts Not Conclusive on Appeal.—Both a proper construction of the language of this section, and well-settled principles of law lead to the conclusion that where the jurisdiction of the Industrial Commission to hear and consider a claim for compensation under the provisions of the Workmen's Compensation Act, is challenged by an employer, on the ground that he is not subject to the provisions of the act, the findings of fact made by the Commission, on which its jurisdiction is dependent, are not conclusive on the Superior Court, and that said court has both the power and the duty, on the appeal of either party to the proceeding, to consider all the evidence in the record, and find therefrom the jurisdictional facts, without regard to the finding of such facts by the Commission. Aycock v. Cooper, 202 N. C. 500, 505, 163 S. E. 569.

Evidence Not Considered on Appeal.—Under this section an award of the Industrial Commission is conclusive and binding as to all questions of fact when supported by sufficient, competent evidence, and neither the Supreme Court nor the Superior Court can consider the evidence for the purpose of determining the facts on appeal. Reed v. Lavender Bros., 206 N. C. 898, 172 S. E. 877. See Walker v. Wilkins, 212 N. C. 627, 194 S. E. 89.

The findings of fact by the Industrial Commission as to whether injury to an employee was by accident arising out of and in the course of his employment are conclusive on the courts upon appeal when the findings are supported by competent evidence of sufficient probative force. Perdue v. State Board of Equalization, 205 N. C. 730, 172 S. E. 396.

The jurisdiction of the Superior Court is limited to questions of law only. Byrd v. Gloucester Lbr. Co., 207 N. C. 253, 176 S. E. 572.

On appeal from the North Carolina Industrial Commission, the Superior Court has no power to review the findings of fact by the Commission. It can consider only errors of law appearing in the record, as certified by the Industrial Commission. Winslow v. Carolina Conference Ass'n, 211 N. C. 571, 191 S. E. 403.

Where there is evidence that the driver of the employer's oil truck habitually carried a pistol in order to protect his employer's property, and that the employer acquiesced therein, and that the plaintiff was injured while filling a fuel tank in the course of his employment by the accidental explosion of the pistol carried by the driver when the driver threw it back into his truck after he and the plaintiff had joked about whether the pistol would shoot, the evidence discloses that the injury arose out of the employment and is sufficient to support the finding of fact by the Industrial Commission to that effect, which is conclusive and binding on appeal. Chambers v. Union Oil Co., 199 N. C. 28, 153 S. E. 594.

Findings Supported by Competent Evidence Are Conclusive on Appeal.—Where each of the essential facts found by the Industrial Commission is supported by competent evidence, the findings are conclusive on appeal, even though some incompetent evidence was also admitted upon the hearing. Carlton v. Bernhardt-Seagle Co., 210 N. C. 655, 188 S. E. 77. See also, Tomlinson v. Norwood, 208 N. C. 716, 182 S. E. 659; Swink v. Carolina Asbestos Co., 210 N. C. 303, 186 S. E. 258. See Porter v. Noland Co., 215 N. C. 724, 2 S. E. (2d) 853; Baxter v. Arthur Co., 216 N. C. 276, 4 S. E. (2d) 621; Tindall v. American Furniture Co., 216 N. C. 306, 4 S. E. (2d) 894; Stallcup v. Carolina Wood Turning Co., 217 N. C. 302, 7 S. E. (2d) 550; MacRae v. Unemployment Compensation Comm., 217 N. C. 769, 9 S. E. (2d) 595; Miller v. Caudle, 220 N. C. 308, 17 S. E. (2d) 487; Archie v. Greene Brothers Lbr. Co., 222 N. C. 477, 23 S. E. (2d) 834; Stanley v. Hyman-Michaels Co., 222 N. C. 257, 22 S. E. (2d) 570; Haynes v. Feldspar Producing Co., 222 N. C. 163, 22 S. E. (2d) 275; Kearns v. Biltwell Chair, etc., Co., 222 N. C. 438, 23 S. E. (2d) 310; Blevins v. Teer, 220 N. C. 135, 16 S. E. (2d) 659.

The findings of fact of the industrial commission are conclusive on the courts when the findings are supported by any competent evidence, notwithstanding that the court, if it had been the fact-finding body, might have reached a different conclusion, the finding of facts from the evidence being the exclusive function of the industrial commission. McGill v. Lumberton, 218 N. C. 586, 11 S. E. (2d) 873.

The findings of fact of the industrial commission, when supported by competent evidence, are binding upon the courts upon appeal, but findings not supported by competent evidence are not conclusive and must be set aside. Logan v. Johnson, 218 N. C. 200, 10 S. E. (2d) 653.

The findings of the industrial commission that deceased was an employee of defendant at the time of his fatal injury is conclusive on the courts if supported by competent evidence, notwithstanding that the court might have reached a different conclusion if it had been the fact finding body. Cloninger v. Ambrosia Cake Bakery Co., 218 N. C. 26, 9 S. E. (2d) 615.

When the record contains evidence to support either a finding that the accident did or did not arise out of and in the course of employment, the findings of the industrial commission are conclusive on appeal. Ashley v. F-W. Chevrolet Co., 222 N. C. 25, 21 S. E. (2d) 834.

The industrial commission has the exclusive duty and authority to find the facts relative to controverted claims, and its findings of fact, with exception of jurisdictional findings, are conclusive on the courts when supported by any competent evidence. Buchanan v. State Highway, etc., Comm., 217 N. C. 173, 7 S. E. (2d) 382; Mallard v. Bohannon, 220 N. C. 536, 18 S. E. (2d) 189.

The statutes regulating appeals from a justice of the peace are applicable and control in appeals from the Industrial Commission to the Superior Court, this section failing to provide the procedure for such appeals. Higdon v. Nantahala Power, etc., Co., 207 N. C. 39, 175 S. E. 710.

But see Winslow v. Carolina Conference Ass'n, 211 N. C. 571, 191 S. E. 403, wherein it is said that statutory provisions with respect to appeals from judgments of justices of the peace to the Superior Court, where the trial must be de novo, are not controlling with respect to appeals from awards of the Industrial Commission to the Superior Court, where only errors of law appearing in the record may be considered.

Since the workmen's compensation act does not provide any specific machinery governing appeals to the superior court, resort may be had to statutes regulating appeals in analogous cases, ordinarily those regulating appeals from a justice of the peace, so far as same are reasonably applicable and consonant with the language of the statute and the legislative intent. Summerell v. Chilean Nitrate Sales Corp., 218 N. C. 451, 11 S. E. (2d) 304.

An appellant from an award of the industrial commission is required to docket his appeal at the next term of the superior court, civil or criminal, beginning after the expiration of the 30 days from the award, or receipt of notice of the award by registered mail, allowed by this section for appeal, this being consonant with the legislative intent and the language of the section, and with the analogous statute requiring appeals from a justice of the peace to be taken to the next term of the superior court beginning after the expiration of the 10 days allowed for service of notice of appeal, § 7-179, and the fact that notice of appeal from the award of the industrial commission is given prior to a term of the superior court beginning prior to the expiration of 30 days after appellant's receipt of notice of the award by registered mail, does not vary this result, and the appeal is improperly dismissed for failure to docket same before or during such intervening term of court. Id.

Time within Which Transcript of Record Must Be Filed.—In the absence of any requirement of the statute as to the time within which a transcript of the record in a proceeding before the Industrial Commission must be docketed in the Superior Court, when there has been an appeal from the award of the Commission, such docketing at any time before the convening of the next ensuing regular term of the Superior Court, or before said time has expired, is sufficient to perfect the appeal. Winslow v. Carolina Conference Ass'n, 211 N. C. 571, 581, 191 S. E. 403.

Newly Discovered Evidence.—When a proceeding for compensation under the provisions of this act has been duly docketed in the Superior Court, upon an appeal from an award of the Industrial Commission, the Superior Court has the power in a proper case to order a rehearing of the proceeding by the Industrial Commission on the ground of newly discovered evidence, and to that end to remand the proceeding to the Commission. Byrd v. Gloucester Lbr. Co., 207 N. C. 253, 255, 176 S. E. 572.

Remand.—Where it appears that the industrial commission has found the facts under a misapprehension of the law the cause will be remanded for findings by the commission upon consideration of the evidence in its true legal light. McGill v. Lumberton, 215 N. C. 752, 3 S. E. (2d) 324.

When the findings of the industrial commission are insufficient for a proper determination of the question involved, the proceeding will be remanded to the industrial commission for additional findings. Farmer v. Bemis Lbr. Co., 217 N. C. 158, 7 S. E. (2d) 376.

Right to Reverse and Remand Cause.—Where all the facts are admitted and the Industrial Commission denies compensation on the facts as a matter of law, the Superior Court, on appeal, has jurisdiction, in view of this section, to reverse the Industrial Commission and remand the cause. Perkins v. Sprott, 207 N. C. 462, 177 S. E. 404.

Applied in Smith v. Hauser & Co., 206 N. C. 562, 174 S. E. 455; Latham v. Southern Fish, etc., Co., 208 N. C. 505, 181 S. E. 640.

Cited in Early v. Basnight & Co., 214 N. C. 103, 198 S. E. 577; Raynor v. Louisburg Com'rs, 220 N. C. 348, 17 S. E. (2d) 495; Champion v. Vance County Board of Health, 221 N. C. 96, 19 S. E. (2d) 239.

§ 97-87. Agreement approved by Commission or awards may be filed as judgments; discharge or restoration of lien. — Any party in interest may file in the Superior Court of the county in which the injury occurred a certified copy of a memorandum of agreement approved by the Commission, or of an order or decision of the Commission, or of an award of the Commission unappealed from or of an award of the Commission affirmed upon appeal; whereupon said court shall render judgment in accordance therewith, and notify the parties. Such judgment shall have the same effect, and all proceedings in relation thereto shall thereafter be the same, as though said judgment had been rendered in a suit duly heard and determined by said court: Provided, if the judgment debtor shall file a certificate duly issued by the Industrial Commission, showing compliance with § 97-93, with the Clerk of the Superior Court in the county or counties where such judgment is docketed, then such clerk shall make upon the judgment roll an entry showing the filing of such certificate, which shall operate as a discharge of the lien of the said judgment, and no execution shall be issued thereon; provided, further, that if at any time there is default in the payment of any installment due under the award set forth in said judgment the court may, upon application for cause and after ten days' notice to judgment debtor, order the lien of such judgment restored, and execution may be immediately issued thereon for past due installments and for future installments as they may become due. (1929, c. 120, s. 61.)

Where No Appeal Taken.—The procedure for the enforcement of an award of the industrial commission when no appeal is taken therefrom is by filing a certified copy of the award in the superior court, whereupon said court shall render judgment in accordance therewith and notify the parties. Champion v. Vance County Board of Health, 221 N. C. 96, 19 S. E. (2d) 239.

Mandamus to Compel County Board of Health to Pay Award.—Mandamus to compel a municipal corporation, governmental agency or public officer to pay a claim is equivalent to execution, and therefore a suit to compel a county board of health to pay an award rendered against it by the industrial commission from which no appeal was taken will not lie until judgment on the award has been rendered by the superior court in accordance with the procedure outlined by this section. Champion v. Vance County Board of Health, 221 N. C. 96, 19 S. E. (2d) 239.

§ 97-88. Expenses of appeals brought by insurers.—If the Industrial Commission at a hearing on review or any court before which any proceedings are brought on appeal under this article, shall find that such hearing or proceedings were brought by the insurer, and the Commission or court by its decision orders the insurer to make, or to continue, payments of compensation to the injured employee, the Commission or court may further order that the cost to the injured employee of such hearing or proceedings, including therein reasonable attorney's fee to be determined by the Commission shall be paid by the insurer as a part of the bill of costs. (1929, c. 120, s. 62; 1931, c. 274, s. 11.)

Editor's Note.—This section was radically changed by the Act of 1931. It formerly allowed costs in any proceeding found to have been prosecuted or defended without reasonable grounds to be thrown on the party so acting unreasonably. 9 N. C. Law Rev. 407.

This section is valid. Russell v. Western Oil Co., 206 N. C. 341, 174 S. E. 101.

Discretion of Court.—The power given the court under this section to order that the cost to the injured employee of such proceedings, including a reasonable attorney's fee to be determined by the Commission, shall be paid by the insurer as part of the bill of costs is within the discretion of the court, and an order appearing in the judgment will not be reviewed by this Court. Perdue v. State Board of Equalization, 205 N. C. 730, 735, 172 S. E. 396.

The allowance of attorneys' fee to claimant's attorneys in a proceeding under the Compensation Act, held, authorized by this section, and defendants' assignment of error thereto is untenable. Brooks v. Carolina Rim, etc., Co., 213 N. C. 518, 196 S. E. 835.

Applied in Williams v. Thompson, 203 N. C. 717, 166 S. E. 906.

§ 97-89. Commission may appoint qualified physician to make necessary examinations; expenses; fees. — The Commission or any member thereof may, upon the application of either party, or upon its own motion, appoint a disinterested and duly qualified physician or surgeon to make any necessary medical examination of the employee, and to testify in respect thereto. Said physician or surgeon shall be allowed traveling expenses and a reasonable fee to be fixed by the Commission, not exceeding ten dollars for each examination and report, but the Commission may allow additional reasonable amounts in extraordinary cases. The fees and expenses of such physician or surgeon shall be paid by the employer. (1929, c. 120, s. 63; 1931, c. 274, s. 12.)

Editor's Note.—The Act of 1931 substituted the word "employer" for the word "state" formerly ending this section.

§ 97-90. Legal and medical fees to be approved by Commission; misdemeanor to receive fees unapproved by Commission, or to solicit employment in adjusting claims.—(a) Fees for attorneys and physicians and charges of hospitals for services under this article shall be subject to the approval of the Commission; but no physician shall be entitled to collect fees from an employer or insurance carrier until he has made the reports required by the Industrial Commission in connection with the case.

(b) Any person (1) who receives any fee, other consideration, or any gratuity on account of services so rendered, unless such consideration or gratuity is approved by the Commission or such court, or (2) who makes it a business to solicit employment for a lawyer or for himself in respect of any claim or award for compensation, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall, for each offense, be punished by a fine of not more than $500 or by imprisonment not to exceed one year, or by both such fine and imprisonment. (1929, c. 120, s. 64.)

§ 97-91. Commission to determine all questions.—All questions arising under this article if not settled by agreements of the parties interested therein, with the approval of the Commission, shall be determined by the Commission, except as otherwise herein provided. (1929, c. 120, s. 65.)

§ 97-92. Employer's record and report of accidents; records of Commission not open to public; supplementary report upon termination of disability; penalty for refusal to make report; when insurance carrier liable.—(a) Every employer shall hereafter keep a record of all injuries, fatal or otherwise, received by his employees in the course of their employment on blanks approved by the Commission. Within ten days after the occurrence and knowledge thereof, as provided in § 97-22, of an injury to an employee, causing his absence from work for more than three days, a report thereof shall be made in writing and mailed to the Industrial Commission on blanks to be procured from the Commission for this purpose.

(b) The records of the Commission, in so far as they refer to accidents, injuries, and settlements, shall not be open to the public, but only to the parties satisfying the Commission of their interest in such records and the right to inspect them.

(c) Upon the termination of the disability of the injured employee, or if the disability extends beyond a period of sixty days, then, also, at the expiration of such period the employer shall make a supplementary report to the Commission on blanks to be procured from the Commission for the purpose.

(d) The said report shall contain the name, nature, and location of the business of the employer, and name, age, sex, and wages and occupation of the injured employee; and shall state the date and hour of the accident causing injury, the nature and cause of the injury, and such other information as may be required by the Commission.

(e) Any employer who refuses or neglects to make the report required by this section shall be liable for a penalty of not less than five dollars and not more than twenty-five dollars for each refusal or neglect. The fine herein provided may be assessed by the Commission in an open hearing, with the right of review and appeal as in other cases. In the event the employer has transmitted the report to the insurance carrier for transmission by such insurance carrier to the Industrial Commission, the insurance carrier wilfully neglecting or failing to transmit the report shall be liable for the said penalty. (1929, c. 120, s. 66.)

Report as Evidence.—The report signed by the manager of an incorporated employer and filed with the industrial commission as required by this section, is competent upon the hearing and statements contained therein not within the personal knowledge of the manager are competent as an admission against interest. Carlton v. Bernhardt-Seagle Co., 210 N. C. 655, 188 S. E. 77, wherein the instant section was inadvertently referred to as § 8181(vvv).

Report as Claim.—Where the employer has filed a report with the commission within the prescribed time upon verbal information elicited from the representative of the employee by its claim agent, the representative being unable to read or write, and, the employer admitting liability, the report has been filed with the industrial commission as a claim within one year from date of the accident and contains all facts necessary to make an award. Hanks v. Southern Public Utilities Co., 210 N. C. 312, 186 S. E. 252.

§ 97-93. Employers required to carry insurance or prove financial ability to pay for benefits.—Every employer who accepts the provisions of this article relative to the payment of compensation shall insure and keep insured his liability thereunder in any authorized corporation, association, organization, or in any mutual insurance association formed by a group of employers so authorized, or shall furnish to the Industrial Commission satisfactory proof of his financial ability to pay direct the compensation in the amount and manner and when due, as provided for in this article. In the latter case the Commission may require the deposit of an acceptable security, indemnity or bond to secure the payment of the compensation liabilities as they are incurred. (1929, c. 120, s. 67; 1943, c. 543.)

Editor's Note.—The 1943 amendment changed the word "ability" to the word "liability."

For comment on the provisions of this and other sections in relation to the law of contracts, see 13 N. C. Law Rev. 102.

Employer Primarily Liable.—An award was entered in favor of the dependents of a deceased employee for payment of compensation in weekly installments for the death of the employee. After the insurance carrier had paid several installments, it defaulted in the payment of the balance because of insolvency. Under the provisions of the Compensation Act the employer is primarily liable to the employee, which obligation is unimpaired by its contract with an insurer for insurance protection, or by the insurer's subrogation to the rights of the employer upon paying or assuming the payment of an award, and the employer is not relieved of its liability to the dependents of the deceased employee for the balance of the weekly payments because of the insolvency of the insurer. Roberts v. City Ice, etc., Co., 210 N. C. 17, 185 S. E. 438.

The employer, held liable for the balance of an award after the insolvency of the insurer, is not entitled to a credit for the amount paid the dependents out of the judgment against the third person tort-feasor or for the amount paid plaintiff's attorneys in that action, the amount paid the dependents out of the judgment being an amount in addition to the award, and the award not being subject to reduction by such amount. Id.

Stated in Thompson's Dependents v. Johnson Funeral Home, 205 N. C. 801, 807, 172 S. E. 500.

§ 97-94. Employers required to give proof within 30 days that they have complied with preceding section; fine for not keeping liability insured; review; liability for compensation.—(a) Every employer accepting the compensation provisions of this article shall, within thirty days, after this article takes effect, file with the Commission, in form prescribed by it, and thereafter, annually or as often as may be necessary, evidence of his compliance with the provisions of § 97-93 and all others relating thereto.

(b) Any employer required to secure the payment of compensation under this article who refuses or neglects to secure such compensation shall be punished by a fine of ten cents for each employee at the time of the insurance becoming due, but not less than one dollar nor more than fifty dollars for each day of such refusal or neglect, and until the same ceases; and he shall be liable during continuance of such refusal or neglect to an employee either for compensation under this article or at law in the same manner as provided in § 97-14.

The fine herein provided may be assessed by the Commission in an open hearing, with the right of review and appeal as in other cases. (1929, c. 120, s. 68.)

Quoted in Roberts v. City Ice, etc., Co., 210 N. C. 17, 185 S. E. 438.

§ 97-95. Actions against employers failing to effect insurance or qualify as self-insurer.—As to every employer subject to the provisions of this article who shall fail or neglect to keep in effect a policy of insurance against compensation liability arising hereunder with some insurance carrier, as provided in § 97-93, or who shall fail to qualify as a self-insurer as provided in the article, in addition to other penalties provided by this article, such employer shall be liable in a civil action which may be instituted by the claimant for all such compensation as may be awarded by the industrial commission in a proceeding properly instituted before said commission, and such action may be brought by the claimant in the county of his residence or in any county in which the defendant has any property in this state; and in said civil action, ancillary remedies provided by law in civil actions of attachment, receivership, and other appropriate ancillary remedies shall be available to the plaintiff therein. Said action may be instituted before the award shall be made by the industrial commission in such case for the purpose of preventing the defendant from disposing of or removing from the state of North Carolina for the purpose of defeating the payment of compensation any property which the defendant may own in this state. In said action, after being instituted, the court may, after proper amendment to the pleadings therein, permit the recovery of a judgment against the defendant for the amount of compensation duly awarded by the North Carolina industrial commission, and subject any property seized in said action for payment of the judgment so awarded. The institution of said action shall in no wise interfere with the jurisdiction of said industrial commission in hearing and determining the claim for compensation in full accord with the provisions of this article. That nothing in this section shall be construed to limit or abridge the rights of an employee as provided in subsection (b) of § 97-94. (1941, c. 352.)

This section affects procedure only and does not disturb any vested rights. Byrd v. Johnson, 220 N. C. 184, 16 S. E. (2d) 843.

The provisions of this section, in force from its ratification on 15 March, 1941, are available to claimants who instituted a civil action alleging that the industrial commission had awarded them compensation in a stipulated sum, that defendant employer had failed and neglected to keep in effect a policy of compensation insurance and had failed to qualify as a self-insurer, that defendant was disposing of and removing all his property from the state, and prayed that a writ of attachment issue against defendant's property, and defendant's exception to the refusal of the court to vacate the writ of attachment theretofore issued in the cause was without error. It appeared that the award of the industrial commission was entered 24 March, 1941. Byrd v. Johnson, 220 N. C. 184, 16 S. E. (2d) 843.

§ 97-96. Certificate of compliance with law; revocation and new certificate. — Whenever an employer has complied with the provisions of § 97-93, relating to self-insurance, the Industrial Commission shall issue to such employer a certificate, which shall remain in force for a period fixed by the Commission, but the Commission may, upon at least sixty days' notice and a hearing to the employer, revoke the certificate upon satisfactory evidence for such revocation having been presented. At any time after such revocation the Commission may grant a new certificate to the employer upon his petition. (1929, c. 120, s. 69.)

§ 97-97. Insurance policies must contain clause that notice to employer is notice to insurer; etc. —All policies insuring the payment of compensation under this article must contain a clause to the effect that, as between the employer and the insurer, the notice to or acknowledgment of the occurrence of the injury on the part of the insured employer shall be deemed notice or knowledge as the case may be, on the part of the insurer; that jurisdiction of the insured for the purposes of this article shall be jurisdiction of the insurer, that the insurer shall in all things be bound by and subject to the awards, judgments, or decrees rendered against such insured employer, and that insolvency or bankruptcy of the employer and/or discharge therein shall not relieve the insurer from the payment of compensation for disability or death sustained by an employee during the life of such policy or contract. (1929, c. 120, s. 70.)

§ 97-98. Policy must contain agreement promptly to pay benefits; continuance of obligation of insurer in event of default.—No policy of insurance against liability arising under this article shall be issued unless it contains the agreement of the insurer that it will promptly pay to the person entitled to same all benefits conferred by this article, and all installments of the compensation that may be awarded or agreed upon, and that the obligation shall not be affected by any default of the insured after the injury or by any default in giving notice required by such policy or otherwise. Such agreement shall be construed to be a direct promise by the insurer to the person entitled to compensation enforceable in his name. (1929, c. 120, s. 71.)

§ 97-99. Law written into each insurance policy; form of policy to be approved by Insurance Commissioner; single catastrophe hazards. —(a) Every policy for the insurance of the compensation herein provided, or against liability therefor, shall be deemed to be made subject to the provisions of this article. No corporation, association, or organization shall enter into any such policy of insurance unless its form shall have been approved by the Insurance Commissioner.

(b) This article shall not apply to policies of insurance against loss from explosion of boilers or fly-wheels or other similar single catastrophe hazards: Provided, that nothing herein contained shall be construed to relieve the employer from liability for injury or death of an employee as a result of such explosion or catastrophe. (1929, c. 120, s. 72.)

§ 97-100. Rates for insurance; carrier to make reports for determination of solvency; tax upon premium; returned or canceled premiums; reports of premiums collected; wrongful or fraudulent representation of carrier punishable as misdemeanor; notices to carrier; employer who carries own risk shall make report on payroll.—(a) The rates charged by all carriers of insurance, including the parties to any mutual insurance association writing insurance against the liability for compensation under this article, shall be fair, reasonable, and adequate, with due allowance for merit rating; and all risks of the same kind and degree of hazard shall be written at the same rate by the same carrier. No policy of insurance against liability for compensation under this article shall be valid until the rate thereof has been approved by the Commissioner of Insurance; nor shall any such carrier of insurance write any such policy or contract until its basic and merit rating schedules have been filed with, approved, and not subsequently disapproved by the Commissioner of Insurance.

(b) Each such insurance carrier shall report to the Commissioner of Insurance, in accordance with such reasonable rules as the Commissioner of Insurance may at any time prescribe, for the purpose of determining the solvency of the carrier and the adequacy of its rates; for such purpose the Commissioner of Insurance may inspect the books and records of such insurance carrier, and examine its agents, officers, and directors under oath.

(c) Every person, partnership, association, corporation, whether organized under the laws of this or any other state or country, every mutual company or association and every other insurance carrier insuring employers in this State against liability for personal injuries to their employees, or death caused thereby, under the provisions of this article, shall, as hereinafter provided, pay a tax upon the premium received, whether in cash or notes, in this State, or on account of business done in this State, for such insurance in this State, at the rate provided in the Revenue Act then in force, which tax shall be in lieu of all other taxes on such premiums, which tax shall be assessed and collected as hereinafter provided; provided, however, that such insurance carriers shall be credited with all canceled or returned premiums actually refunded during the year on such insurance.

(d) Every such insurance carrier shall, for the six months ending December thirty-first, nineteen hundred and twenty-nine, and semi-annually thereafter, make a return, verified by the affidavit of its president and secretary, or other chief officers or agents, to the Commissioner of Insurance, stating the amount of all such premiums and credits during the period covered by such return. Every insurance carrier required to make such return shall file the same with the Commissioner of Insurance within thirty days after the close of the period covered thereby, and shall at the same time pay to the State Insurance Commissioner the tax provided in the Revenue Act then in force on such premium ascertained, as provided in sub-section (c) hereof, less returned premium on canceled policies.

(e) If any such insurance carrier shall fail or refuse to make the return required by this article, the said Commissioner of Insurance shall assess the tax against such insurance carrier at the rate herein provided for, on such amount of premium as he may deem just, and the proceedings thereon shall be the same as if the return had been made.

(f) If any such insurance carrier shall withdraw from business in this State before the tax shall fall due, as herein provided, or shall fail or neglect to pay such tax, the Commissioner of Insurance shall at once proceed to collect the same; and he is hereby empowered and authorized to employ such legal process as may be necessary for that purpose, and when so collected he shall pay the same into the State

Treasury. The suit may be brought by the Commissioner of Insurance, in his official capacity, in any court of this State having jurisdiction. Reasonable attorney's fees may be taxed as costs therein, and process may issue to any county of the State, and may be served as in civil actions, or in case of unincorporated associations, partnerships, inter-indemnity contracts, upon any agent of the parties thereto upon whom process may be served under the laws of this State.

(g) Any person or persons who shall in this State act or assume to act as agent for any such insurance carrier whose authority to do business in this State has been suspended, while such suspension remains in force, or shall neglect or refuse to comply with any of the provisions of this section obligatory upon such person or party, or who shall wilfully make a false or fraudulent statement of the business or condition of any such insurance carrier, or false or fraudulent return as herein provided, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be punished by a fine of not less than one hundred nor more than one thousand dollars, or by imprisonment for not less than ten nor more than ninety days, or both such fine and imprisonment in the discretion of the court.

(h) Whenever by this article, or the terms of any policy contract, any officer is required to give any notice to an insurance carrier, the same may be given by delivery, or by mailing by registered letter properly addressed and stamped, to the principal office or general agent of such insurance carrier within this State, or to its home office, or to the secretary, general agent, or chief officer thereof in the United States, or the State Insurance Commissioner.

(i) Any insurance carrier liable to pay a tax upon premiums under this article shall not be liable to pay any other or further tax upon such premiums, under any other law of this State.

(j) Every employer carrying his own risk under the provisions of § 97-93 shall, under oath, report to the Commission his payroll, subject to the provisions of this article. Such report shall be made in form prescribed by the Commission, and at the times herein provided for premium reports by insurer. The Commission shall assess against such payroll a maintenance fund tax computed by taking such per cent of the basic premiums charged against the same or most similar industry or business taken from the manual insurance rate then in force in this State as is assessed in the Revenue Act against the insurance carriers for premiums collected on compensation insurance policies. (1929, c. 120, s. 73; 1931, c. 274, s. 13.)

Construction.—The moneys received under sub-section (j) of this section is a special fund available to the Industrial Commission for its maintenance, but comes within the statute creating the Budget Bureau, and the two statutes should be construed in pari materia, and the Budget Bureau is authorized and required to allocate to the Industrial Commission so much of the special fund created by said sub-section as is necessary to carry out its function efficiently, and also allocate additional money from funds of a similar nature to the extent and amount necessary to the Industrial Commission for this purpose. North Carolina Industrial Commission v. O'Berry, 197 N. C. 595, 150 S. E. 44.

§ 97-101. Collection of fines and penalties.—The Industrial Commission shall have the power by civil action brought in its own name to enforce the collection of any fines or penalties provided by this article, and fines or penalties collected by the Commission shall become a part of the maintenance fund referred to in sub-section (j) of § 97-100. (1931, c. 274, s. 14.)

Art. 2. Compensation Rating and Inspection Bureau.

§ 97-102. Compensation Rating and Inspection Bureau created; objects, functions, etc.—There is hereby created a Bureau to be known as the Compensation Rating and Inspection Bureau of North Carolina, with the following objects, functions and sources of income:

(a) To maintain rules and regulations and fix premium rates for Workmen's Compensation Insurance and equitably adjust the same as far as practicable, in accordance with the hazards of individual risks by inspection by the Bureau.

(b) To furnish upon request of any employer in the State of North Carolina or to any member of the compensation rating and Inspection Bureau of North Carolina, upon whose risk a compensation rate has been promulgated, information as to the rating, including the method of its compilation, and to encourage employers to reduce the number and severity of accidents by offering reduced premium rates for improved working conditions under such uniform system of merit or schedule rating as may be approved by the Insurance Commissioner of the State of North Carolina.

(c) The Bureau shall make a rating survey of each risk inspected which survey shall clearly show the location of all ratable items: Provided, however, that the Bureau shall not describe the items or make any recommendations for accident prevention, such service being reserved as a proper and essential field for the competitive enterprise of its individual members. (1931, c. 279, s. 1.)

Cross Reference.—As to automobile rate administrative office established in the bureau created by this section, see §§ 58-246 et seq.

§ 97-103. Membership in Bureau of carriers of insurance; acceptance of rejected risks; rules and regulations for maintenance; Insurance Commissioner or deputy ex-officio Chairman. — Before the Insurance Commissioner shall grant permission to any mutual association, reciprocal or stock company, or any other insurance organization to write compensation or employers' liability insurance in this State, it shall be a requisite that they shall subscribe to and become members of the Compensation Rating and Inspection Bureau of North Carolina.

It shall be the duty of all companies underwriting workmen's compensation insurance in this State and being members of the compensation rating and inspection bureau of North Carolina, as defined in this section, to insure and accept any workmen's compensation insurance risk which shall have been tendered to and rejected by any three members of said bureau in the manner hereinafter provided. When any such rejected risk is called to the attention of the compensation rating and inspection bureau of North Carolina and it appearing that said risk is in good faith entitled to such coverage, the bureau shall fix the initial premium therefor, (subject to the approval of the insurance commissioner), and upon its payment said bureau shall designate a member whose duty it shall be to issue a standard workmen's compensation policy of insurance containing the usual and customary provisions found in such policies therefor. Before any such risk shall be assigned under the provisions of this section such risk shall, if demanded, furnish the bureau a certificate of the division of standards and inspection of the department of labor that he is complying with the rules and regulations of that department. The bureau shall within thirty days after March 8, 1935, make and adopt such rules as may be necessary to carry this article into effect, subject to final approval of the insurance commissioner. As a prerequisite to the transaction of workmen's compensation insurance in this State every member of said bureau shall file with the insurance commissioner written authority permitting said bureau to act in its behalf as provided in this section, and an agreement to accept such risks as are assigned to said insurance by said bureau, as provided in this section.

(a) Each member of the Compensation Rating and Inspection Bureau writing compensation insurance in the State of North Carolina shall, as a requisite thereto, be represented in the aforesaid Bureau and shall be entitled to one representative and one vote in the administration of the affairs of the Bureau. They shall, upon organization, elect a governing committee, which governing committee shall be composed of equal representation by participating and non-participating members.

(b) The Bureau, when created, shall adopt such rules and regulations for its procedure as may be necessary for its maintenance and operation. The expense of such bureau shall be borne by its members by quarterly contributions to be made in advance, such necessary expense to be advanced by prorating such expense among the members in accordance with the amount of gross Workmen's Compensation premiums written in North Carolina during the preceding year ending December the thirty-first, one thousand nine hundred and thirty, and members entering since that date to advance an amount to be fixed by the governing committee. After the first fiscal year of operation of the bureau the necessary expenses of the bureau shall be advanced by the members in accordance with rules and regulations to be established and adopted by the governing committee.

(c) The Insurance Commissioner of the State of North Carolina, or such deputy as he may appoint, shall be ex officio chairman of the Compensation Rating and Inspection Bureau of North Carolina, and the Insurance Commissioner or such deputy designated by him shall preside over all meetings of the governing committee or other meetings of the Bureau and it shall be his duty to determine any controversy that may arise by reason of a tie vote between the members of the governing committee. (1931, c. 279, s. 2; 1935, c. 76.)

Editor's Note.—All of this section preceding subsection (a) except the first sentence was inserted by the 1935 amendment.

§ 97-104. Governing committee; production of books and records for compilation of appropriate statistics; rates subject to approval of Insurance Commissioner.—In order to carry into effect the objects of this article the Bureau members shall immediately elect its governing committee who shall employ and fix the salaries of such personnel and assistance as is necessary, subject to the approval of the Insurance Commissioner, and the Insurance Commissioner is hereby authorized to compel the production of books, data, papers, and records relating to or bearing upon such data as is necessary to compile statistics for the purpose of determining the pure cost and expense loading of Workmen's Compensation Insurance in North Carolina and this information shall be available and for the use of the Compensation Rating and Inspection Bureau, for the compilation and promulgation of rates on Workmen's Compensation Insurance. All such rates compiled and promulgated by such Bureau shall be submitted to the Insurance Commissioner for approval as provided in § 97-100. (1931, c. 279, s. 3.)

Art. 3. Security Funds.

§ 97-105. Title of article.—This article shall be known as the Workmen's Compensation Security Fund Act. (1935, c. 228, s. 1.)

Editor's Note.—The 1941 amendment inserted the words "and any reciprocal or inter-insurance exchange" in the paragraph defining "mutual carrier."

§ 97-107. Stock workmen's compensation security fund created.—There is hereby created a fund to be known as "The Stock Workmen's Compensation Security Fund," for the purpose of assuring to persons entitled thereto the compensation provided by the workmen's compensation act for employments insured in insolvent stock carriers. Such fund shall be applicable to the payment of valid claims for compensation or death benefits heretofore or hereafter made pursuant to the workmen's compensation act, and remaining unpaid, in whole or in part, by reason of the default, after the effective date of this article, of an insolvent stock carrier. Expenses of administration also shall be paid from the fund as herein provided. Such fund shall consist of all contributions received and paid into the fund by stock carriers, as herein defined, all property and securities acquired by and through the use of moneys belonging to the fund, and of interest earned upon moneys deposited or invested as herein provided. The fund shall be administered by the commissioner of this State in accordance with the provisions of this article. (1935, c. 228, s. 3.)

§ 97-108. Verified report of premiums to be filed by stock carrier.—Every stock carrier shall, on or before the first day of September, nineteen hundred and thirty-five, file with the treasurer of the State and with the commissioner identical returns, under oath, on a form to be prescribed and furnished by the commissioner, stating the amount of net written premiums for the six months' period ending June thirtieth, nineteen hundred thirty-five on policies issued, renewed or extended by such carrier, to insure payment of compensation pursuant to the workmen's compensation act. For the purposes of this article "net written premiums" shall mean gross written premiums less return premiums on policies returned not taken, and on policies canceled. Thereafter, on or before the first day of March and September of each year, each such carrier shall file similar identical returns, stating the amount of such net written premiums for the six months' period ending, respectively, on the preceding December thirty-first and June thirtieth, on policies issued, renewed or extended by such carrier. (1935, c. 228, s. 4.)

§ 97-109. Contributions by stock carriers of 1% of net written premiums.—For the privilege of carrying on the business of workmen's compensation insurance in this State, every stock carrier shall pay into the stock fund on the first day of September, nineteen hundred thirty-five, a sum equal to one per centum (1%) of its net written premiums as shown by the return hereinbefore prescribed for the period ending June thirtieth, nineteen hundred thirty-five, and thereafter each such stock carrier, upon filing each semi-annual return, shall pay a sum equal to one per centum (1%) of its net written premiums for the period covered by such return. (1935, c. 228, s. 5.)

§ 97-110. Contributions to stop when stock fund equals 5% of loss reserves; resumption of contributions. — When the aggregate amount of all such payments into the stock fund, together with accumulated interest thereon, less all its expenditures and known liabilities, becomes equal to five per centum (5%) of the loss reserves of all stock carriers for the payment of benefits under the workmen's compensation act as of December thirty-first, next preceding, no further contributions to said fund shall be required to be made; provided, however, that whenever, thereafter, the amount of said fund shall be reduced below five per centum (5%) of such loss reserves as of said date by reason of payments from and known liabilities of said stock fund, then such contribution to said fund shall be resumed forthwith, and shall continue until said fund, over and above its known liabilities, shall be equal to five per centum (5%) of such reserves. (1935, c. 228, s. 6.)

§ 97-111. Rules and regulations for administration of stock fund; examination of books and records; penalty for failure to file report or pay assessment; revocation of license.—The commissioner may adopt, amend and enforce rules and regulations necessary for the proper administration of said stock fund. In the event any stock carrier shall fail to file any return or make any payment required by this article, or in case the commissioner shall have cause to believe that any return or other statement filed is false or inaccurate in any particular, or that any payment made is incorrect, he shall have full authority to examine all the books and records of the carrier for the purpose of ascertaining the facts and shall determine the correct amount to be paid and may proceed in any court of competent jurisdiction to recover for the benefit of the fund any sums shown to be due upon such examination and determination. Any stock carrier which fails to make any statement as required by this article, or to pay any contribution to the stock fund when due, shall thereby forfeit to said fund a penalty of five per centum (5%) of the amount of unpaid contribution determined to be due as provided by this article plus one per centum (1%) of such amount for each month of delay, or fraction thereof, after the expiration of the first month of such delay, but the commissioner may upon good cause shown extend the time for filing of such return or payment. The commissioner shall revoke the certificate of authority to do business in this State of any carrier which shall fail to comply with the provisions of this article or to pay any penalty imposed in accordance with this article. (1935, c. 228, s. 7.)

§ 97-112. Separation of stock fund; disbursements; investment; sale of securities.—The stock fund created by this article shall be separate and apart from any other fund so created and from all other state moneys. The state treasurer shall be the custodian of said fund; and all disbursements from said fund shall be made by the state treasurer upon vouchers signed by the commissioner as hereinafter provided. The moneys of said fund may be invested by the state treasurer only in the bonds or securities which are the direct obligations of or which are guaranteed as to principal and interest by the United States or this State. The state treasurer may sell any of the securities in which said fund is invested, if advisable for its proper administration or in the best interests of such fund, and all earnings from the investments of such fund shall be credited to such fund. (1935, c. 228, s. 8.)

§ 97-113. Payment of claim from stock fund when carrier insolvent; subrogation of employer paying claim; recovery against employer or receiver of insolvent carrier.—A. A valid claim for compensation or death benefits, or installments thereof, heretofore or hereafter made pursuant to the workmen's compensation act, which has remained or shall remain due and unpaid for sixty days, by reason of default by an insolvent stock carrier, shall be paid from the stock fund in the manner provided in this section. Any person in interest may file with the commissioner an application for payment of compensation or death benefits from the stock fund on a form prescribed and furnished by the commissioner. If there has been an award, final or otherwise, a certified copy thereof shall accompany the application. The commissioner shall thereupon certify to the state treasurer such award for payment according to the terms of the same, whereupon payment shall be made by the state treasurer.

B. Payment of compensation from the stock fund shall give the fund no right of recovery against the employer.

C. An employer may pay such award or part thereof in advance of payment from the stock fund and shall thereupon be subrogated to the rights of the employee or other party in interest against such fund to the extent of the amount so paid.

D. The state treasurer as custodian of the stock fund shall be entitled to recover the sum of all liabilities of such insolvent carrier assumed by such fund from such carrier, its receiver, liquidator, rehabilitator or trustee in bankruptcy and may prosecute an action or other proceedings therefor. All moneys recovered in any such action or proceedings shall forthwith be placed to the credit of the stock fund by the state treasurer to reimburse the stock fund to the extent of the moneys so recovered and paid. (1935, c. 228, s. 9.)

§ 97-114. Mutual workmen's compensation security fund created. — There is hereby created a fund to be known as "The Mutual Workmen's Compensation Security Fund," for the purpose of assuring to persons entitled thereto the compensation provided by the workmen's compensation act for employments insured in insolvent mutual carriers. Such fund shall be applicable to the payment of valid claims for compensation or death benefits heretofore or hereafter made pursuant to the workmen's compensation act, and remaining unpaid, in whole or in part, by reason of the default, after the effective date of this article, of an insolvent mutual carrier. Expenses of administration also shall be paid from the fund as herein provided. Such fund shall consist of all contributions received and paid into the fund by mutual carriers, as herein defined, of property and securities acquired by and through the use of moneys belonging to the fund and of interest earned upon moneys deposited or invested as herein provided. The fund shall be administered by the commissioner in accordance with the provisions of this article. (1935, c. 228, s. 10.)

§ 97-115. Verified report of premiums to be filed by mutual carrier; equalization of payments by reciprocal or inter-insurance exchanges.—Every mutual carrier shall, on or before the first day of September, nineteen hundred thirty-five, file with the treasurer of the State and with the commissioner identical returns, under oath, on a form to be prescribed and furnished by the commissioner of insurance, stating the amount of net written premiums for the six months' period ending June thirtieth, nineteen hundred thirty-five, on policies issued, renewed or extended by such carrier, to insure payment of compensation pursuant to the workmen's compensation act during said period. For the purpose of this article "net written premiums" shall mean gross written premiums less return premiums on policies returned not taken and on policies cancelled. Thereafter, on or before the first day of March and September, of each year, each such carrier shall file similar identical returns, stating the amount of such net written premiums for the six months' periods ending, respectively, on the preceding December thirty-first and June thirtieth, on such policies issued, renewed or extended by such carrier.

Any reciprocal or inter-insurance exchange writing workmen's compensation insurance in North Carolina on September first, one thousand nine hundred and thirty-five and continuing to underwrite this class of insurance shall, upon the fund reaching its maximum contribution and the discontinuance of any collection thereof, continue to pay into said mutual fund as provided in this section for a period of six years after the other members of the mutual fund have discontinued said payments in order to equalize the contribution of all members of the mutual fund, and thereafter such reciprocal or inter-insurance exchanges shall be subject to the provisions of this section. (1935, c. 228, s. 11; 1941, c. 298, s. 2.)

Editor's Note.—The 1941 amendment added the last sentence to this section.

§ 97-116. Contributions by mutual carriers of 1% of net written premiums.—For the privilege of carrying on the business of workmen's compensation insurance in this State, every mutual carrier shall pay into the mutual fund on the first day of September, nineteen hundred thirty-five, a sum equal to one per centum (1%) of its net written premiums, as shown by the return hereinbefore prescribed for the period ending June thirtieth, nineteen hundred thirty-five, and thereafter each such mutual carrier, upon filing each semi-annual return, shall pay a sum equal to one per centum (1%) of its net written premiums, as shown for the period covered by such return. (1935, c. 228, s. 12.)

§ 97-117. Distribution of excess when mutual fund equals to 5% of loss reserves; distribution of fund when liabilities liquidated. — Whenever the mutual fund, less all its known liabilities, shall exceed five percentum (5%) of the loss reserves of all mutual carriers for the payments of losses under the workmen's compensation act, as of December thirty-first next preceding, distribution of such excess shall be made as repayments for successive fund years, commencing with the first fund year, to the mutual carriers in the proportion in which they respectively made contributions for such fund year: Provided, however, no such distribution shall reduce the fund, less all its known liabilities, below an amount equal to five per centum (5%) of such loss reserves as of said date. Such repayments shall be made from time to time until the mutual carriers for the first fund year shall have received their proportionate shares of the contributions for the first fund year including interest, if any. Such repayments for succeeding fund years in their order shall be made on the same basis. The insolvency of any mutual carrier shall automatically terminate its right to such repayments and the withdrawal of any mutual carrier from the transaction of workmen's compensation insurance business in this State shall automatically suspend its right to such repayments until all its liabilities for workmen's compensation losses in this State shall have been fully liquidated. If and when all liabilities of all mutual carriers for workmen's compensation losses in this State shall have been fully liquidated, distribution shall be made of the remaining balance of the mutual fund in the proportion in which each such mutual carrier made contributions to the mutual fund. (1935, c. 228, s. 13.)

§ 97-118. Administration, custody, etc., of mutual fund. — The provisions of §§ 97-111, 97-112, and 97-113 shall apply to the administration, custody and investment of and payments from the mutual fund and to this end those sections shall be read with the necessary changes in detail to adopt their provisions to mutual funds. (1935, c. 228, s. 14.)

§ 97-119. Notice of insolvency; report of claims and unpaid awards.—Forthwith upon any carrier becoming an insolvent stock carrier, or an insolvent mutual carrier, as the case may be, the commissioner shall so notify the North Carolina industrial commission, and the North Carolina industrial commission shall immediately advise the commissioner (a) of all claims for compensation pending or thereafter made against an employer insured by such insolvent carrier, or against such insolvent carrier; (b) of all unpaid or continuing agreements, awards or decisions made upon claims prior to or after the date of such notice from the commissioner; and (c) of all appeals from or applications for modifications or rescission or review of such agreements, awards or decisions. (1935, c. 228, s. 15.)

§ 97-120. Right of commissioner to defend claims against insolvent carriers; arrangement with other carriers to pay claims.—The commissioner or his duly authorized representative may investigate and may defend before the North Carolina industrial commission or any court any or all claims for compensation against an employer insured by an insolvent carrier or against such insolvent carrier and may prosecute any pending appeal or may appeal from or make application for modification or rescission or review of an agreement, award or decision against such employer or insolvent carrier. Until all such claims for compensation are closed and all such awards thereon are paid, the commissioner, the administrator of the funds, shall be a party in interest in respect to all such claims, agreements and awards. For the purposes of this article the commissioner shall have exclusive power to select and employ such counsel, clerks and assistants as may be deemed necessary and to fix and determine their powers and duties, and he may also, in his discretion, arrange with any carrier or carriers to investigate and defend any or all such claims and to liquidate and pay such as are valid and the commissioner may from time to time reimburse, from the appropriate fund, such carrier or carriers for compensation payments so made, together with reasonable allowance for the services so rendered. (1935, c. 228, s. 16.)

§ 97-121. Expenses of administering funds.— The expense of administering the stock fund shall be paid out of the stock fund and the expense of administering the mutual fund shall be paid out of the mutual fund. The commissioner shall serve as administrator of each fund without additional compensation, but may be allowed and paid from either fund expenses incurred in the performance of his duties in connection with that fund. The compensation of those persons employed by the commissioner shall be deemed administration expenses payable from the fund in the manner provided in § 97-112. The commissioner shall include in his regular report to the legislature a statement of the expense of administering each of such funds for the preceding year. (1935, c. 228, s. 17.)

§ 97-122. Contributions relieving carrier of posting bond or making special deposit.—Contributions made by any stock or mutual carrier to the funds created by this article shall relieve such carriers from filing any surety bond or making any deposit of securities required under the provisions of any law of this State for the purpose of securing the payment of workmen's compensation benefits only. (1935, c. 228, s. 18.)

Division XIV. Miscellaneous Provisions.

Chapter 98. Burnt and Lost Records.

§ 98-1. Copy of destroyed record as evidence; may be recorded.—When the office of any registry is destroyed by fire or other accident, and the records and other papers thereof are burnt or destroyed, the copies of all such proceedings, instruments and papers as are of record or registry, certified by the proper officer, though without the seal of office, shall be received in evidence whenever the original or duly certified exemplications would be. Such copies, when the court is satisfied of their genuineness, may be ordered to be recorded or registered. (Rev., s. 327; Code, s. 55; C. S. 365.)

Admissibility of Parol Evidence.—As this chapter constitutes an enabling Act where it is attempted to prove by oral evidence and by copy the contents of the original report, the oral evidence is not excluded by its provisions. Hughes v. Pritchard, 153 N. C. 23, 63 S. E. 906. Varner v. Johnston, 112 N. C. 570, 576, 17 S. E. 483; Mobley v. Watts, 98 N. C. 284, 286, 3 S. E. 677.

But when a deed is lost or destroyed a copy must be produced if there be one, but if none, parol evidence may be admitted to prove its contents. Cowles v. Hardin, 91 N. C. 233; Dumas v. Powell, 14 N. C. 103; Baker v. Webb, 2 N. C. 43.

Same—Statements of One Not a Party.—A statement that he owned no interest in the property made by one not a party to the suit, and under whom the plaintiff does not claim, is not admissible under this section. Jones v. Ballou, 139 N. C. 526, 52 S. E. 254.

Same—Not Admissible to Change Certified Copy.—This section does not permit parol evidence to be introduced to show that the lost or destroyed original had a different description and thus correct a recorded certified copy of a deed. Hopper v. Justice, 111 N. C. 420, 16 S. E. 626.

§ 98-2. Originals may be again recorded.—All original papers, once admitted to record or registry, whereof the record or registry is destroyed, may, on motion, be again recorded or registered, on such proof as the court shall require. (Rev., s. 328; Code, s. 56; C. S. 366.)

Original Recorded upon Sufficient Evidence to Clerk. — Where the registry of partition is destroyed and a paper purporting to be the original is presented to the clerk, it is his duty, after satisfying himself upon evidence that the paper is the original one, to record it. Hill v. Lane, 149 N. C. 267, 62 S. E. 1067.

Effect of Failure to Re-register.—In Waters v. Crabtree, 105 N. C. 394, 402, 11 S. E. 240 the court said, in referring to this section: "This statutory provision, at least, admonished all persons having such original papers to prove and register them anew in the way prescribed, and good faith required that they should do so. It, moreover, gave the public reason to expect that it would be faithfully observed by persons interested. However where the plaintiff has been negligent in again registering or recording a deed, such re-registration will not defeat the rights of bona fide purchasers."

§ 98-3. Establishing boundaries and interest, where conveyance and copy lost. — When any conveyance of real estate, or of any right or interest therein, is lost, the registry thereof being also destroyed, any person claiming under the same may cause the boundaries thereof to be established in the manner provided in the chapter entitled Boundaries, or he may proceed in the following manner to establish both the boundaries and the nature of his estate:

He shall file his petition before the clerk of the superior court, setting forth the whole substance of the conveyance as truly and specifically as he can, the location and boundaries of his land, whose land it adjoins, the estate claimed therein, and a prayer to have his own boundaries established and the nature of his estate declared.

All persons claiming any estate in the premises, and those whose lands adjoin, shall be notified of the proceedings. Unless they or some of them, by answer on oath, deny the truth of all or some of the matters alleged, the clerk shall order a surveyor to run and designate the boundaries of the petitioner's land, and return his survey, with a plot thereof, to the court. This, when confirmed, shall, with the declaration of the court as to the nature of the estate of the petitioner, be registered and have, as to the persons notified, the effect of a deed for the same, executed by the person possessed of the same next before the petitioner. But in all cases, however, wherein the process of surveying is disputed, and the surveyor is forbidden to proceed by any person interested, the same proceedings shall be had as under the chapter entitled Boundaries.

If any of the persons notified deny by answer the truth of the conveyance, the clerk shall transfer the issues of fact to the superior court at term, to be tried as other issues of fact are required by law to be tried; and on the verdict and the pleadings the judge shall adjudge the rights of the parties, and declare the contents of the deed, if any deed is found by the jury, and allow the registration of such judgment and declaration, which shall have the force and effect of a deed. (Rev., s. 328; Code, s. 56; C. S. 367.)

Cross Reference.—As to boundaries, see chapter 38.

Remedy Additional and Not Exclusive.—This section is an enabling statute providing, not an exclusive remedy, but merely an additional one. Jones v. Ballou, 139 N. C. 526, 52 S. E. 254; Mobley v. Watts, 98 N. C. 284, 3 S. E. 677.

It does not repeal but aids the common law rules for establishing deeds, and a party may choose either mode. Cowles v. Hardin, 91 N. C. 233.

Evidence Must Show Existence, Nature, and Loss.—Before the deed can be made, the plaintiff must clearly prove that a deed did exist, its legal operation, and the loss thereof. Plummer v. Baskerville, 36 N. C. 252; Loftin v. Loftin, 96 N. C. 94, 1 S. E. 837.

Judgment has Only Force of Original.—A judgment under this section has only such force as the original conveyance would have as evidence had it not been destroyed. McNeely v. Laxton, 149 N. C. 327, 63 S. E. 278.

Private Acts.—In a special proceeding under a private act, similar to this section, to restore certain records lost by fire or other casualty, it is necessary to conform exactly to all the terms prescribed by the statute. Cowles v. Hardin, 79 N. C. 577.

§ 98-4. Copy of lost will may be probated.—In counties where the original wills on file in the office of the clerk of superior court, and will-books containing copies, are lost or destroyed, if the executor or any other person has preserved a copy of a will (the original being so lost or destroyed) with a certificate appended, signed by a clerk of the court in whose office the will was, or is required to be filed, stating that said copy is a correct one, this copy may be admitted to probate, under the same rules and in the same manner as now prescribed by law for proving wills. The proceedings in such cases shall be the same as though such copy was the original offered for the first time for probate, except that the clerk who signed such certificate shall, on oath, acknowledge his signature, or in case it appears that he has died or left the state, then his signature shall be proved by a competent witness; and the witness or witnesses to the original, who may be examined, shall be required to swear that he or they signed in the presence of the testator and by his direction a paper-writing purporting to be his last will and testament. (Rev., s. 329; Code, s. 57; C. S. 368.)

Cross Reference.—As to probate of wills generally, see §§ 31-12 et seq.

Probated before Clerk.—The probate of a lost will must be made before the clerk of the Superior Court, he alone having jurisdiction. McCormick v. Jernigan, 110 N. C. 406, 14 S. E. 971.

Statute of Limitation Does Not Apply.—The statute of limitation does not apply to the simple taking probate of a will, hence it has no application to proceedings under this section. McCormick v. Jernigan, 110 N. C. 406, 14 S. E. 971.

§ 98-5. Copy of lost will as evidence; letters to issue.—In any action or proceeding at law, where it becomes necessary to introduce such will to establish title, or for any other purpose, a copy of the will and of the record of the probate, with a certificate signed by the clerk of the superior court for the county where the will may be recorded, stating that said record and copy are full and correct, shall be admitted as competent evidence; and when a copy of a will is admitted to probate, the clerk shall thereupon issue letters testamentary. (Rev., s. 330; Code, s. 58; C. S. 369.)

§ 98-6. Establishing contents of will, where original and copy destroyed.—Any person desirous of establishing the contents of a will destroyed as aforesaid, there being no copy thereof, may file his petition in the office of the clerk of the superior court, setting forth the entire contents thereof, according to the best of his knowledge, information and belief. All persons having an interest under the same shall be made parties, and if the truth of such petition is denied, the issues of fact shall be transferred to the superior court at term for trial by a jury, whether the will was recorded, and if so recorded, the contents thereof, and the declarations of the judge shall be recorded as the will of the testator. Any devisee or legatee is a competent witness as to the contents of every part of said will, except such as may concern his own interest in the same. (Rev., s. 331; Code, s. 59; C. S. 370.)

Parol Evidence.—Parol evidence may be introduced to show the contents of a will which has been lost or destroyed. Cox v. Lumber Co., 124 N. C. 78, 32 S. E. 381; Varner v. Johnston, 112 N. C. 570, 17 S. E. 483.

And such evidence is also admissible to show existence of such a will, its probate and registration. Cox v. Lumber Co., 124 N. C. 78, 32 S. E. 381.

§ 98-7. Perpetuating destroyed judgments and proceedings.—Every person desirous of perpetuating the contents of destroyed judgments, orders or proceedings of court, or any paper admitted to record or registration, or directed to be filed for safe keeping, other than wills or conveyances of real estate, or some right or interest therein, or any deed or other instrument of writing, required to be recorded or registered, but not having been recorded or registered, it being competent to register or record said deed or other instrument at the time of its loss or destruction, may file his petition in the court having jurisdiction of like matters with the original proceeding, setting forth the substance of the whole record, deed, proceeding, or paper, which he desires to perpetuate. If, on the hearing, the court shall declare the existence of such record, deed, or proceeding, or paper at the time of the burning of the office wherein the same was lodged or kept, or other destruction thereof, and that the same was there destroyed, and shall declare the contents thereof, such declaration shall be recorded or registered, or filed, according to the nature of the paper destroyed. (Rev., s. 332; Code, s. 60; C. S. 371.)

Restored Record Free from Collateral Attack. — Where the destroyed record has been restored, the record so restored cannot be collaterally attacked. Branch v. Griffin, 99 N. C. 173, 5 S. E. 393, 398.

§ 98-8. Color of title under destroyed instrument.—Every person who has been in the continual, peaceable and quiet possession of land, tenements, or hereditaments, situated in the county, claiming, using and occupying them as his own, for the space of seven years, under known boundaries, the title thereto being out of the state, is deemed to have been lawfully possessed, under color of title, of such estate therein as has been claimed by him during his possession, although he may exhibit no conveyance therefor: Provided, that such possession commenced before the destruction of the registry office, or other destruction as aforesaid, and also that any such person, or any person claiming by, through or under him, makes affidavit and produces such proof as is satisfactory to the court that the possession was rightfully taken; and if taken under a written conveyance, that the registry thereof was destroyed by fire or other means, or was destroyed before registry as aforesaid, and that neither the original nor any copy thereof is in existence: Provided further, that such presumption shall not arise against infants, persons of nonsane memory, and persons residing out of the state, who were such at the time of possession taken, and were not therefore barred, nor were so barred at the time of the burning of the office or other destruction. (Rev., s. 333; Code, s. 61; C. S. 372.)

Cross Reference.—As to title by adverse possession generally, see §§ 1-35 et seq.

Adverse Possession — Presumption of Grant. — In an action to recover land under this section, the plaintiff showed title out of the State by a thirty years' possession, it was held, that this statute did not make it necessary to show seven years' adverse possession in addition to the thirty years. The lapse of seven years' adverse possession concurrently with the thirty years is sufficient. Hill v. Overton, 81 N. C. 393.

§ 98-9. Action on destroyed bond.—Actions on official or other bonds lodged in any office which are destroyed with the registry thereof may be prosecuted by petition against the principal and sureties thereto, and the proceedings shall be as in the former courts of equity. (Rev., s. 334; Code, s. 62; C. S. 373.)

Nature of Proceedings Is Equitable. — The nature of the proceedings under this section is equitable. McCormick v. Jernigan, 110 N. C. 406, 14 S. E. 971.

§ 98-10. Destroyed witness tickets; duplicates may be filed.—The court having jurisdiction of the action may allow other witness tickets to be filed in place of such as may be destroyed, upon the oath of the witness or other satisfactory proof. (Rev., s. 335; Code, s. 63; C. S. 374.)

§ 98-11. Replacing lost official conveyances.—Where any conveyance executed by any person, sheriff, clerk and master, or commissioner of court has been lost, and registry thereof destroyed as aforesaid, and there is no copy thereof, such persons, whether in or out of office, may execute another of like tenor and date, reciting therein that the same is a duplicate, and such deed shall be evidence of the facts therein recited, in all cases wherein the parties thereto are dead, or are incompetent witnesses to prove the same, to the extent as if it was the original conveyance. (Rev., s. 336; Code, s. 64; C. S. 375.)

§ 98-12. Court records as proof of destroyed instruments set out therein.—The records of any court in or out of the state, and all transcripts of such records, and the exhibits filed therewith in any case, are admissible to prove the existence and contents of all deeds, wills, conveyances, depositions and other papers, copies whereof are therein set forth or exhibited, in all cases where the records and registry of such as were or ought to have been recorded and registered, or the originals of such as were not proper to be recorded or registered, have been destroyed as aforesaid, although such transcripts or exhibits have been informally certified; and when offered in evidence have the like effect as though the transcript or record was the record of the court whose records are destroyed, and the deeds, wills and conveyances, depositions and other papers therein copied or therewith exhibited were original. (Rev., s. 337; Code, s. 65; C. S. 376.)

Evidence of Court Records as Proof. — When papers have been lost and under competent evidence and instructions, the jury has found their contents to be as contended by the plaintiff, the plaintiff prevails. Fain v. Gaddis, 144 N. C. 765, 57 S. E. 1111.

§ 98-13. Copies contained in court records may be recorded.—The copies aforesaid of all such deeds, wills, conveyances and other instruments proper to be recorded or registered, as are mentioned in § 98-12, may be recorded or registered on application to the clerk of the superior court and due proof that the original thereof was genuine. (Rev., s. 338; Code, s. 66; C. S. 377.)

§ 98-14. Rules for petitions and motions.—The following rules shall be observed in petitions and motions under this chapter:

1. The facts stated in every petition or motion shall be verified by affidavit of the petitioner that they are true according to the best of his knowledge, information, and belief.

Affidavit by Agent Not Sufficient. — In a proceeding under this section an affidavit by the agent of the petitioner that the facts set forth in the complaint "are true to the best of his knowledge, information and belief," is an insufficient verification. Cowles v. Hardin, 79 N. C. 577.

2. The instrument or paper sought to be established by any petition shall be fully set forth in its substance, and its precise language shall be stated when the same is remembered.

3. All persons interested in the prayers of the petition or decree shall be made parties.

Parties.—It seems that all persons whose estate may be effected by a proceeding to restore lost records, should be made parties. Cowles v. Hardin, 79 N. C. 577.

4. Petitions to establish a record of any court shall be filed at term in the superior court of the county where the record is sought to be established. Other petitions may be filed in the office of the clerk.

5. The costs shall be paid as the court may decree.

6. Appeals shall be allowed as in all other cases, and where the error alleged shall be a finding by the superior court at term, of a matter of fact, the same may be removed on appeal to the supreme court, and the proper judgments directed to be entered below.

7. It shall be presumed that any order or record of the court of pleas and quarter sessions, which was made and has been lost or destroyed, was made by a legally constituted court, and the requisite number of justices, without naming said justices. (Rev., s. 339; Code, s. 67; 1893, c. 295; C. S. 378.)

§ 98-15. Records allowed under this chapter to have effect of original records.—The records and registries allowed by the court in pursuance of this chapter shall have the same force and effect as original records and registries. (Rev., s. 340; Code, s. 68; C. S. 379.)

No More Effect than Originals.—The copies have only the same force and effect as the lost or destroyed deeds would have had, if produced. McNeely v. Laxton, 149 N. C. 327, 63 S. E. 278.

Bona Fide Purchaser—True Purpose of Original. — But it would seem that if the true purpose of the deed was to serve as a mortgage, and the plaintiff has been negligent in registering it, it will not have that effect against one who subsequently purchases without notice and for value. Waters v. Crabtree, 105 N. C. 402, 11 S. E. 240.

§ 98-16. Destroyed court records proved prima facie by recitals in conveyances executed before their destruction.—The recitals, reference to, or mention of any decree, order, judgment or other record of any court of record of any county in which the courthouse, or records of said courts, or both, have been destroyed by fire or otherwise, contained, recited or set forth in any deed of conveyance, paper-writing, or other bona fide written evidence of title, executed prior to the destruction of the courthouse and records of said county, by any executor or administrator with a will annexed, or by any clerk and master, superior court clerk, clerk of the court of pleas and quarter sessions, sheriff, or other officer, or commissioners appointed by either of said courts, and authorized by law to execute said deed or other paper-writing, are deemed, taken and recognized as true in fact, and are prima facie evidence of the existence, validity and binding force of said decree, order, judgment or other record so referred to or recited in said deed or paper-writing, and are to all intents and purposes binding and valid against all persons mentioned or described in said instrument of writing, deed, etc., as purporting to be parties thereto, and against all persons who were parties to said decree, judgment, order or other record so referred to or recited, and against all persons claiming by, through or under them or either of them. (Rev., s. 341; Code, s. 69; C. S. 380.)

Constitutionality.—This section, making recitals in deeds, etc., of judgments, records, etc., evidence, etc., upon condition that the courthouse, records, etc., have been destroyed by fire, etc., is constitutional. Barefoot v. Musselwhite, 153 N. C. 208, 209, 69 S. E. 71.

Evidence Must Show Destruction of Records. — The fact of the destruction by fire or otherwise of the records must be shown before the recitals, reference to, or mention of any decree, judgment, or other record recited in a deed of conveyance, etc., shall have the effect of evidence under this section. Barefoot v. Musselwhite, 153 N. C. 208, 69 S. E. 71. See also Dail v. Suggs, 85 N. C. 104.

Application of Section. — This section was applied where a deed made in compliance to a decree of court was destroyed, the recitals in the decree being taken as prima facie evidence of facts and authority. Irvin v. Clark, 98 N. C. 444, 4 S. E. 30. See also Isler v. Isler, 88 N. C. 576.

Conversely, the recitals in a deed, which refer to the decree, so as to identify it, are of themselves prima facie evidence of its binding force and validity as against all persons who were parties to said decree. Pinnell v. Burroughs, 172 N. C. 182, 183, 90 S. E. 218; Everett v. Newton, 118 N. C. 925, 23 S. E. 961; Hare v. Hollomon, 94 N. C. 14; Pinnell v. Burroughs, 168 N. C. 315, 84 S. E. 364.

Where the original papers of the judgment roll have been lost, the minute docket of the court may be introduced to prove the contents thereof. Everett v. Newton, 118 N. C. 925, 23 S. E. 961; Hare v. Hollomon, 94 N. C. 14.

§ 98-17. Conveyances reciting court records prima facie evidence thereof.—Such deed of conveyance, or other paper-writing, executed as aforesaid, and registered according to law, may be read in any suit now pending or which may hereafter be instituted in any court of this state, as prima facie evidence of the existence and validity of the decree, judgment, order, or other record upon which the same purports to be founded, without any other or further restoration or reinstatement of said decree, order, judgment, or record than is contained in this chapter. (Rev., s. 342; Code, s. 70; C. S. 381.)

Constitutionality. — The constitutionality and validity of this section cannot now be open to dispute. Barefoot v. Musselwhite, 153 N. C. 208, 211, 69 S. E. 71.

§ 98-18. Court records and conveyances to which chapter extends.—This chapter shall extend to records of any court which have been or may be destroyed by fire or otherwise, and to any deed of conveyance, paper-writing, or other bona fide evidence of title executed before the destruction of said records. (Rev., s. 343; Code, s. 71; C. S. 382.)

Local Modification.—Moore: C. S. 383; Cherokee, Graham, Haywood, and Madison: C. S. 384; 1935, c. 25.

§ 98-19. Replacement of stolen, lost or destroyed state or municipal bonds; indemnity bond. —The State Treasurer of the State of North Carolina, by and with the consent and approval of the governor and council of State, and the governing boards of the several counties, cities and political sub-divisions of the State, is hereby authorized and empowered to make settlement for or issue new bonds for bonds of the State or any of the political sub-divisions thereof, which have been stolen, lost or destroyed: Provided, that there is furnished an indemnity bond in double the amount of the said bonds, said indemnity bond to be approved by the State Treasurer or the governing boards of any political sub-division of the State issuing said replacement bonds: Provided further, that said indemnity bond shall clearly designate the bonds which have been stolen, lost or destroyed. (1935, c. 292, s. 1.)

§ 98-20. Expenses borne by applicant. — All expenses in connection with printing and issuing any replacement bonds provided for in this article shall be borne by the person making application therefor. (1935, c. 292, s. 2.)

Chapter 99. Libel and Slander.

§ 99-1. Libel against newspaper; defamation by or through radio or television station; notice before action.—(a) Before any action, either civil or criminal, is brought for the publication, in a newspaper or periodical, of a libel, the plaintiff or prosecutor shall at least five days before instituting such action serve notice in writing on the defendant, specifying the article and the statements therein which he alleges to be false and defamatory.

(b) Before any action, either civil or criminal, is brought for the publishing, speaking, uttering, or conveying by words, acts or in any other manner of a libel or slander by or through any radio or television station, the plaintiff or prosecutor shall at least five days before instituting such action serve notice in writing on the defendant, specifying the time of and the words or acts which he or they allege to be false and defamatory. (Rev., s. 2012; 1901, c. 557; 1943, c. 238, s. 1; C. S. 2429.)

Cross References.—As to criminal statutes on libel and slander, see §§ 14-47 and 14-48. As to the making of derogatory reports concerning banks, see § 53-128. Concerning building and loan associations, see § 54-44. As to pleadings in libel and slander, see § 1-158. As to statute of limitations for libel, see § 1-54; for slander, see § 1-55. As to allowance of costs in an action for libel and slander, see § 6-18.

Editor's Note.—The 1943 amendment added subsection (b).

Definition.—The accepted definition of a libel is expressed, in White v. Nicholls, 3 How. 266, 11 L. Ed. 591 as follows: "Every publication, either by writing, printing or pictures, which charges upon or imputes to, any person that which renders him liable to punishment, or which is calculated to make him infamous or odious, or ridiculous is prima facie a libel."

Constitutionality.—This and the two following sections providing that a newspaper publishing a libel may avoid, under certain conditions, the payment of punitive damages is not discriminatory, but a constitutional enactment. Pentuff v. Park, 194 N. C. 146, 138 S. E. 616, 53 A. L. R. 626.

This and section 1-585 have no relation one to the other. The provision for service of notice in this section refers to an act to be performed as a condition precedent to the institution of the action, whereas the provision as to service of notices in section 1-585 refers to acts to be performed after an action is instituted. Roth v. Greensboro News Co., 214 N. C. 23, 24, 197 S. E. 569.

Complaint Must Allege Notice.—Under this section a complaint in an action for libel must allege the giving of five days' notice to the defendant in writing, specifying the article and the statements therein alleged to be false. Williams v. Smith, 134 N. C. 249, 46 S. E. 502.

Same—Failure Demurrable.—In an action against a newspaper for libel, the failure of the complaint to allege the five days' notice renders it demurrable. Osborn v. Leach, 135 N. C. 628, 47 S. E. 811.

Same—Same—Amendment.—Where a demurrer was sustained to a complaint for libel against a newspaper because it failed to appear that notice of the action had been given, the trial court may permit an amendment showing that fact. Osborn v. Leach, 135 N. C. 628, 47 S. E. 811.

Letter as Sufficient Notice.—A letter written by plaintiff and received by defendant, in which demand is made for a retraction and apology for a clearly specified article, in which the alleged false and defamatory statements are plainly indicated, is a sufficient notice in writing as required by this section, the provisions of section 1-585 relating to notice in judicial proceedings after suit has been instituted, not being applicable. Roth v. Greensboro News Co., 214 N. C. 23, 197 S. E. 569.

When Notice Unnecessary.—In an action for libel, where the newspaper publishes a retraction, no notice need be given. Osborn v. Leach, 135 N. C. 628, 47 S. E. 811.

As to whether this section and the following sections of this chapter, as to notice to the defendant in an action for libel, looking to retraction and apology, applies to individuals having no connection with a newspaper publishing the libel, Query? Paul v. National Auction Co., 181 N. C. 1, 105 S. E. 881.

Failure of Notice.—In an action for libel against a newspaper the failure to give notice of the action as required only relieves the paper of punitive damages. Osborne v. Leach, 135 N. C. 628, 47 S. E. 811.

Compensatory Damages.—This section and the following sections in this chapter, having significance only on the question of punitive damages, do not include compensatory damages for "pecuniary loss, physical pain, mental suffering, and injury to reputation." Paul v. National Auction Co., 181 N. C. 1, 105 S. E. 881.

Applied in Harrell v. Goerch, 209 N. C. 741, 184 S. E. 489.

§ 99-2. Effect of publication or broadcast in good faith and retraction.—(a) If it appears upon the trial that said article was published in good faith, that its falsity was due to an honest mistake of the facts, and that there were reasonable grounds for believing that the statements in said article were true, and that within ten days after the service of said notice a full and fair correction, apology and retraction was published in the same editions or corresponding issues of the newspaper or periodical in which said article appeared, and in as conspicious place and type as was said original article, then the plaintiff in such case, if a civil action, shall recover only actual damages, and if, in a criminal proceeding, a verdict of "guilty" is rendered on such a state of facts, the defendant shall be fined a penny and the costs, and no more.

(b) If it appears upon the trial that such words or acts were conveyed and broadcast in good faith, that their falsity was due to an honest mistake of the facts, or without prior knowledge or approval of such station, and if with prior knowledge or approval that there were reasonable grounds for believing that the words or acts were true, and that within ten days after the service of said notice a full and fair correction, apology and restraction was conveyed or broadcast by or over such radio or television station at approximately the same time of day and by the same sending power so as to be as visible and audibile as the original acts or words complained of, then the plaintiff in such case, if a civil action, shall recover only actual damages, and if, in a criminal proceeding, a verdict of "guilty" is rendered on such state of facts, the defendant shall be fined a penny and costs, and no more. (Rev., s. 2013; 1901, c. 557; 1943, c. 238, s. 2; C. S. 2430.)

Editor's Note.—The 1943 amendment added subsection (b).

Section Constitutional.—This section taking away from a person the right to recover punitive damages in case of libel is constitutional. Osborn v. Leach, 135 N. C. 628, 47 S. E. 811.

A recovery of actual damages does not abridge the freedom of the press, as inhibited by our Constitution, Art. 1, sec. 20. Pentuff v. Park, 194 N. C. 146, 138 S. E. 616, 53 A. L. R. 626.

Same—Applies Equally to All.—Where a statute for libel applies equally to all newspapers and periodicals, it does not amount to unconstitutional discrimination. Osborn v. Leach, 135 N. C. 628, 47 S. E. 811.

Form of Retraction.—While this section does not prescribe any particular form of retraction, it does require a categorical retraction and apology, and the mere statement that defendant had come into possession of information contra to that theretofore published is insufficient to meet the requirements of this section, nor was it incumbent on plaintiff to approve or disapprove thereof, and his failure to do so does not exculpate defendant or preclude the submission of an issue of punitive damages. Roth v. Greensboro News Co., 217 N. C. 13, 6 S. E. (2d) 882.

"Actual Damages."—The "actual damages" recoverable in a suit for libelous publication by a newspaper in the event of a retraction, allowed by the statute, is for pecuniary loss, direct or indirect, or for physical pain and inconvenience. Pentuff v. Park, 194 N. C. 146, 138 S. E. 616, 53 A. L. R. 626. Actual damages also include mental suffering and injury to reputation. Osborn v. Leach, 135 N. C. 628, 47 S. E. 811.

Damages When Defendants Do Not Comply.—Where the defendants did not avail themselves of the privilege given them under this section, the damages that may be awarded would include punitive as well as actual damages. Pentuff v. Park, 194 N. C. 146, 158, 138 S. E. 616, 53 A. L. R. 626.

Damages as "Property."—The right to have punitive damages assessed is not property, but the right to recover actual or compensatory damages is property. Osborn v. Leach, 135 N. C. 628, 633, 47 S. E. 811.

Only Actual Damages Where Publication Is Made in Good Faith and There Has Been a Correction.—Where plaintiff's evidence establishes a false publication, and defendant's evidence shows that the publication was made in good faith through error, and that a correction and retraction was published upon defendant's ascertaining the facts, plaintiff is entitled to recover the actual damage sustained by him. Lay v. Gazette Pub. Co., 209 N. C. 134, 183 S. E. 416.

And No Punitive Damages in the Absence of Malice, or Wantonness and Recklessness.—Lay v. Gazette Pub. Co., 209 N. C. 134, 183 S. E. 416.

When Malice May Not Be Inferred by Jury.—Malice may not be inferred by the jury from a false publication when defendant's uncontradicted evidence rebuts the presumption by showing that the publication was made in good faith through error, and that a correction and retraction was published upon defendant's ascertaining the facts. Lay v. Gazette Pub. Co., 209 N. C. 134, 183 S. E. 416.

Defendant's Pleading.—In an action for libel against a newspaper, the paper having pleaded a retraction of the publication, it is necessary for the defendant to show that the publication was made in good faith, and with reasonable ground to believe it to be true, in order to relieve the paper from punitive damages. Osborn v. Leach, 135 N. C. 628, 47 S. E. 811.

§ 99-3. Anonymous communications.—The two preceding sections shall not apply to anonymous communications and publications. (Rev., s. 2014; 1901, c. 557, s. 3; C. S. 2431.)

An article signed "Smith" is not an anonymous publication under this section. Williams v. Smith, 134 N. C. 249, 46 S. E. 502.

§ 99-4. Charging innocent woman with incontinency.—Whereas doubts have arisen whether actions of slander can be maintained against persons who may attempt, in a wanton and malicious manner, to destroy the reputation of innocent and unprotected women, whose very existence in society depends upon the unsullied purity of their character, therefore any words written or spoken of a woman, which may amount to a charge of incontinency, shall be actionable. (Rev., s. 2015; Code, s. 3763; R. C., c. 106; 1808, c. 478; C. S. 2432.)

Cross Reference.—As to criminal liability for slandering innocent women, see § 14-48.

Editor's Note.—See 12 N. C. Law Rev. 120.

Positive Terms.—This section in the operative part is explicit and positive. Bowden v. Bailes, 101 N. C. 612, 616, 8 S. E. 342.

Meaning of "Innocent Woman."—There is a manifest reason why the words "an innocent woman," in sec. 14-48 and "innocent and unprotected woman" in this section, should be construed to mean innocent of illicit sexual intercourse, as affecting her reputation when the slanderous words are spoken, for the purpose of those sections is to protect women who, however imprudent they may have been in other respects, have not so far "stooped to folly" as to surrender their chastity and become incontinent, or who have regained their characters if a "slip has been made," from "the wanton and malicious slander" of persons who may attempt to destroy their reputations and blast and ruin their characters. State v. Ferguson, 107 N. C. 841, 849, 12 S. E. 574; State v. Johnson, 182 N. C. 883, 886, 109 S. E. 786.

Must Charge Adultery or Fornication.—Words which impute to a female a wanton and lascivious disposition only are not actionable. Lucas v. Nichols, 52 N. C. 32.

The words, which amount to a charge of incontinency, must import not merely a lascivious disposition, but the criminal act of adultery or fornication. McBrayer v. Hill, 26 N. C. 136.

Same—May Be Question for Jury.—When the words are ambiguous and admit of a slanderous interpretation, it becomes a question for the jury to determine whether they amounted to the slanderous charge in the reasonable apprehension of the hearers. State v. Howard, 169 N. C. 312, 84 S. E. 807.

Where a telegraph company sends a message containing words that amount to a charge of incontinency against a woman, demurrer to the evidence, as in case of nonsuit, is properly denied. Parker v. Edwards, 222 N. C. 75, 21 S. E. (2d) 876.

Complaint.—It is not necessary that the complaint should allege that the words were "wantonly and maliciously" uttered. Bowden v. Bailes, 101 N. C. 612, 8 S. E. 342.

Action by Husband.—An action by a husband for slander of his wife, the wife not being a party and the complaint alleging no special damage to the husband, will be dismissed on motion of the defendant, or ex mero motu, for failure of the complaint to state a cause of action. Harper v. Pinkston, 112 N. C. 293, 17 S. E. 161.

Evidence.—Testimony by the witnesses of statements made by defendant charging in effect that plaintiff had been guilty of illicit sexual intercourse, is competent although not in the exact words alleged in the bill of particulars, it being sufficient if the testimony is confined in substance to the bill of particulars. Bryant v. Reedy, 214 N. C. 748, 200 S. E. 896.

Damages.—In an action by a woman for slander, for words alleged to have been spoken, amounting to a charge of incontinency, the plaintiff may, in the absence of proof of actual special damages, recover compensatory damages; and upon proof that the words were spoken with malice, or that the conduct of the defendant was marked by gross and wilful wrong, or was oppressive, vindictive damages may be awarded. Bowden v. Bailes, 101 N. C. 612, 8 S. E. 342.

Words charging an innocent women with conduct amounting to incontinency are actionable per se, under this section, and the law will presume damages in such cases which naturally, proximately and necessarily result therefrom, including mental suffering, humiliation and embarrassment, and testimony of such mental suffering, humiliation and embarrassment is competent without specific allegation thereof. Bryant v. Reedy, 214 N. C. 748, 200 S. E. 896.

As under this section the charge of incontinency made against an innocent woman, in whatever words written or spoken, conveyed to the hearer, is per se actionable, their utterance must be followed by the same consequence as to damages as the publishing of other defamatory imputations. Bowden v. Bailes, 101 N. C. 612, 616, 8 S. E. 342.

Examples.—Sec. 14-48 is the criminal statute making it a misdemeanor to slander an innocent woman. The wording is similar to this section and the following expressions which were held to amount to a charge of incontinency, though decided in criminal cases, apply equally here.

Charging a woman with having had sexual intercourse with a male dog amounts to a charge of incontinency. State v. Hewlin, 128 N. C. 571, 37 S. E. 952.

The words: "If the plaintiff (an unmarried woman) did not give birth to a child, she missed a good chance of having it," themselves imply an illicit sexual intercourse. Sowers v. Sowers, 87 N. C. 303.

Calling an innocent woman "a d—d whore," in a loud and angry manner in the hearing alone of the wife of the speaker, is a charge of incontinency within the meaning of the statute. State v. Shoemaker, 101 N. C. 690. 8 S. E. 332.

To say of a woman, that "she was kept by a man" is actionable as a slander under our act of assembly. McBrayer v. Hill, 26 N. C. 136.

Same—Not Sufficient.—The words that a woman "looked like a woman who had miscarried," do not, per se imply a charge of incontinence. State v. Benton, 117 N. C. 788, 790, 23 S. E. 432.

Calling a woman a "damned bitch" held not a charge of incontinency. State v. Harwell, 129 N. C. 550, 553, 40 S. E. 48.

Stated in Harshaw v. Harshaw, 220 N. C. 145, 16 S. E. (2d) 666, 136 A. L. R. 1411.

Chapter 100. Monuments, Memorials and Parks.

Art. 1. Memorials Commission.

§ 100-1. Memorials commissions created; members; officers; quorum, etc.—A memorials commission in and for the state of North Carolina is hereby created, to consist of the following officials, ex-officio: The governor of North Carolina, the secretary of the North Carolina historical commission, the head of the art department of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, the head of the history department of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, and the head of the department of architecture of the North Carolina State College of Agriculture and Engineering. The memorials commission shall have the power to adopt its own rules and to elect such officers from its own members as may be deemed proper. Three commissioners shall constitute a quorum. The members shall serve without compensation. (1941, c. 341, s. 1.)

§ 100-2. Approval of memorials before acceptance by state; regulation of existing memorials, etc.; "work of art" defined; highway markers.—No memorial or work of art shall hereafter become the property of the state by purchase, gift or otherwise, unless such memorial or work of art or a design of the same, together with the proposed location of the same, shall first have been submitted to and approved by said memorials commission; nor shall any memorial or work of art, until so submitted and approved, be contracted for, placed in or upon or allowed to extend over any property belonging to the state. No existing memorial or work of art owned by the state shall be removed, relocated, or altered in any way without approval of the memorials commission. The term "work of art" as used in this section shall include any painting, portrait, mural decoration, stained glass, statue, bas-relief, sculpture, monument, tablet, fountain, or other article or structure of a permanent character intended for decoration or commemoration. This section, however, shall not apply to markers set up by the state highway and public works commission in coöperation with the department of conservation and development and the state historical commission as provided by chapter one hundred and ninety-seven of the Public Laws of one thousand nine hundred and thirty-five. (1941, c. 341, s. 2.)

§ 100-3. Approval of design, etc., of certain bridges and other structures.—No bridge, arch, gate, fence or other structure intended primarily for ornamental or memorial purposes and which is paid for either wholly or in part by appropriation from the state treasury, or which is to be placed on or allowed to extend over any property belonging to the state, shall be begun unless the design and proposed location thereof shall have been submitted to said memorials commission and approved by it. Furthermore, no existing structures of the kind named and described in the preceding part of this section owned by the state, shall be removed or remodeled without submission of the plans therefor to the commission and approval of said plans by the commission. This section shall not be construed as amending or repealing chapter one hundred and ninety-seven of the Public Laws of one thousand nine hundred and thirty-five. (1941, c. 341, s. 3.)

§ 100-4. Governor to accept works of art approved by commission.—The governor of North Carolina is hereby authorized to accept, in the name of the state of North Carolina, gifts to the state of works of art as defined in § 100-2. But no work of art shall be so accepted unless and until the same shall have been first submitted to said memorials commission and by it judged worthy of acceptance. (1941, c. 341, s. 4.)

§ 100-5. Duties as to buildings erected or remodeled by state.—Upon request of the governor and the board of public buildings and grounds, said memorials commission shall act in an advisory capacity relative to the artistic character of any building constructed, erected, or remodeled by the state. The term "building" as used in this section shall include structures intended for human occupation, and also bridges, arches, gates, walls, or other permanent structures of any character not intended primarily for purposes of decoration or commemoration. (1941, c. 341, s. 5.)

§ 100-6. Disqualification to vote on work of art, etc.; vacancy.—Any member of said memorials commission who shall be employed by the state to execute a work of art or structure of any kind requiring submission to the commission, or who shall take part in a competition for such work of art or structure, shall be disqualified from voting thereon, and the temporary vacancy thereby created may be filled by appointment by the governor. (1941, c. 341, s. 6.)

§ 100-7. Construction.—The provisions of this article shall not be construed to include exhibits of an educational nature arranged by museums or art galleries administered by the state or any of its agencies or institutions, or to prevent the placing of portraits of officials, officers, or employees of the state in the offices or buildings of the departments, agencies, or institutions with which such officials, officers, or employees are or have been connected. But upon request of such museums or agencies, said memorials commission shall act in an advisory capacity as to the artistic qualities and appropriations of memorial exhibits or works of art submitted to it. (1941, c. 341, s. 7.)

§ 100-8. Memorials to persons within twenty-five years of death; acceptance of commemorative funds for useful work.—No monument, statue, tablet, painting, or other article or structure of a permanent nature intended primarily to commemorate any person or persons shall be purchased from state funds or shall be placed in or upon or allowed to extend over state property within twenty-five years after the death of the person or persons so commemorated: Provided, nevertheless, that nothing in this article shall be interpreted as prohibiting the acceptance of funds by state agencies or institutions from individuals or societies who wish to commemorate some person or persons by providing funds for educational, health, charitable, or other useful work. The agency or institution to which such funds are offered for memorial enterprises shall exercise its discretion as to the acceptance and expenditure of such funds. (1941, c. 341, s. 8.)

Art. 2. Memorials Financed by Counties and Cities.

§ 100-9. County commissioners may protect monuments.—When any monument has been or shall hereafter be erected to the memory of our Confederate dead or to perpetuate the memory and virtues of our distinguished dead, if such monument is erected by the voluntary subscription of the people and is placed on the courthouse square, the board of county commissioners of such county are permitted to expend from the public funds of the county an amount sufficient to erect a substantial iron fence around such monument in order that the same may be protected. (Rev., s. 3928; 1905, c. 457; C. S. 6934.)

Cross Reference.—As to criminal liability for defacing or removing monuments, see § 14-148.

§ 100-10. Counties, cities, and towns may contribute toward erection of memorials. — Any county, city or town by resolution first adopted by its governing body may become a member of any memorial association or organization for perpetuating the memory of the soldiers and sailors of North Carolina who served the United States in the great world war, or who fought in the war between the states, and may subscribe and pay toward the cost of the erection of any memorial to the memory of such soldiers and sailors such sums of money as its governing body may determine, and may be represented in such association or organization by such persons as its governing body may select. Any contribution so made shall be paid out of the general fund of such county, city, or town making same, on such terms as may be agreed upon by its governing body, and the officers having the control and management of the association or organization to which subscription and contributions are made. (1919, c. 21, ss. 1, 2, 3; 1924, c. 200; C. S. 6938.)

Editor's Note.—By amendment Public Laws 1923, ch. 200, there was added to this section the provision for perpetuating the memory of the soldiers and sailors of the Civil War.

Art. 3. Mount Mitchell Park.

§ 100-11. Duties.—The Board of Conservation and Development shall have complete control, care, protection and charge of that part of Mitchell's park acquired by the state. (1919, c. 316, s. 3; 1915, c. 76; 1921, c. 222, s. 1; 1925, c. 122, s. 23; C. S. 6940.)

Editor's Note.—Public Laws 1921, c. 222, made the North Carolina geological and economic survey and the geological board the successor of the Mount Mitchell Park Commission and the Mitchell Peak Park Commission. The survey and board were in turn replaced by the board of conservation and development by authority of Public Laws 1925, c. 122.

§ 100-12. Roads, trails, and fences authorized; protection of property.—The Board of Conservation and Development is authorized and empowered to enter upon the land hereinbefore referred to, and to build a fence or fences around the same, also roads, paths, and trails and protect the property against trespass and fire and injury of any and all kinds whatsoever; cut wood and timber upon the same, but only for the purpose of protecting the other timber thereon and improving the property generally. (1919, c. 316, s. 5; 1921, c. 222, s. 1; 1925, c. 122, s. 23; C. S. 6942.)

§ 100-13. Fees for use of improvements; fees for other privileges; leases; rules and regulations.—The Board of Conservation and Development is further authorized and empowered to charge and collect fees for the use of such improvements as have already been constructed, or may hereafter be constructed, on the park, and for other privileges connected with the full use of the park by the public; to lease sites for camps, houses, hotels, and places of amusement and business; and to make and enforce such necessary rules and regulations as may best tend to protect, preserve, and increase the value and attractiveness of the park. (1921, c. 222, s. 2; 1925, c. 122, s. 23; C. S. 6942(a).)

§ 100-14. Use of fees and other collections.—All fees and other money collected and received by the Board of Conservation and Development in connection with its proper administration of Mount Mitchell state park shall be used by said board for the administration, protection, improvement, and maintenance of said park. (1921, c. 222, s. 3; 1925, c. 122, s. 23; C. S. 6942(b).)

§ 100-15. Annual reports.—The Board of Conservation and Development shall make an annual report to the governor of all money received and expended by it in the administration of Mount Mitchell state park, and of such other items as may be called for by him or by the general assembly. (1921, c. 222, s. 4; 1925, c. 122, s. 23; C. S. 6942(c).)

Art. 4. Toll Roads or Bridges in Public Parks.

§ 100-16. Private operation of toll roads or bridges in public parks prohibited.—No person, firm or corporation shall have the right or privilege to privately operate any toll road or toll bridge in this state upon lands belonging to the state, set apart or designated as a public park.

In the event any such toll road or bridge is on March 17, 1939 being privately operated under any real or assumed right, privilege, or lease, the state institution or department having such state-owned property in charge or under its supervision shall immediately give notice to such person, firm or corporation so operating such toll road or toll bridge to discontinue the operation of the same.

Any person, firm or corporation who sustains any legal damage by reason of the exercise of the authority hereinbefore granted shall be entitled to just compensation therefor, and, in the event satisfactory settlement cannot be made with the department or state agency exercising the authority herein contained, the amount of just compensation may be determined by a special proceeding instituted by the claimant against the department or agency having such property in custody under the provisions of the chapter on Eminent Domain, in so far as the same may be applicable hereto: Provided, such proceeding shall be instituted within six months from the time such notice is given. Any compensation awarded shall be a valid claim against the state of North Carolina, payable out of the funds of the department or state agency having such property in charge. (1939, c. 127.)

Chapter 101. Names of Persons.

§ 101-1. Legislature may regulate change by general but not private law.—The general assembly shall not have power to pass any private law to alter the name of any person, but shall have power to pass general laws regulating the same. (Rev., s. 2146; Const., Art. II, s. 11; C. S. 2970.)

Cross References.—As to changing name of minor child upon adoption, see § 48-7. As to resumption of maiden name by a woman after divorce, see § 50-12. As to duty to disclose real name when trading as "company" or "agent," see § 59-89. As to trademarks, etc., see chapter 80.

§ 101-2. Procedure for changing name; petition; notice.—A person who wishes, for good cause shown, to change his name must file his application before the clerk of the superior court of the county in which he lives, having first given ten days' notice of the application by publication at the courthouse door. (Rev., s. 2147; 1891, c. 145; C. S. 2971.)

§ 101-3. Contents of petition. — The applicant shall state in the application his true name, the name he desires to adopt, his reasons for desiring such change, and that his name has never been changed before by law. (Rev., s. 2147; 1891, c. 145; C. S. 2972.)

§ 101-4. Proof of good character to accompany petition.—The applicant shall also file with said petition proof of his good character, which proof must be made by at least two citizens of the county who know his standing. (Rev., s. 2148; 1891, c. 145; C. S. 2973.)

§ 101-5. Clerk to order change; certificate and record.—If the clerk thinks that good and sufficient reason exists for the change of name, it shall be his duty to issue an order changing the name of the applicant from his true name to the name sought to be adopted. He shall issue to the applicant a certificate under his hand and seal of office, stating the change made in the applicant's name, and shall also record said application and order on the docket of special proceedings in his court. (Rev., ss. 2149, 2150; 1891, c. 145; C. S. 2974.)

§ 101-6. Effect of change; only one change.—When the order is made and the applicant's name changed, he is entitled to all the privileges and protection under his new name as he would have been under the old name. No person shall be allowed to change his name under this chapter but once. (Rev., ss. 2147, 2149; 1891, c. 145; C. S. 2975.)

Chapter 102. Official Survey Base.

§ 102-1. Name and description. — The official survey base for the state of North Carolina shall be a system of plane coördinates to be known as the "North Carolina Coördinate System," said system being defined as a Lambert conformal projection of Clarke's spheroid of one thousand eight hundred sixty-six, having a central meridian of 79°—00′ west from Greenwich and standard parallels of latitude of 34°—20′ and 36°—10′ north of the equator, along which parallels the scale shall be exact. All coördinates of the system are expressed in feet, the x coördinate being measured easterly along the grid and the y coördinate being measured northerly along the grid. The origin of the coördinates is hereby established on the meridian 79°—00′ west from Greenwich at the intersection of the parallels 33°—45′ north latitude, such origin being given the coördinates x=2,000,000 feet, y=0 feet. The precise position of said system shall be as marked on the ground by triangulation or traverse stations or monuments established in conformity with the standards adopted by the United States coast and geodetic survey for first- and second-order work, whose geodetic positions have been rigidly adjusted on the North American datum of one thousand nine hundred twenty-seven, and whose plane coördinates have been computed on the system defined. (1939, c. 163, s. 1.)

§ 102-2. Physical control. — Any triangulation or traverse station or monument established as described in § 102-1 may be used in establishing a connection between any survey and the above-mentioned system of rectangular coördinates. (1939, c. 163, s. 2.)

§ 102-3. Use of name.—The use of the term "North Carolina Coördinate System" on any map, report, or survey, or other document, shall be limited to coördinates based on the North Carolina coördinate system as defined in this chapter. (1939, c. 163, s. 3.)

§ 102-4. Damaging, defacing, or destroying monuments.—If any person shall willfully damage, deface, destroy, or otherwise injure a station, monument or permanent mark of the North Carolina coördinate system, or shall oppose any obstacles to the proper, reasonable, and legal use of any such station or monument, such person shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be liable to fine or imprisonment at the discretion of the court. (1939, c. 163, s. 4.)

§ 102-5. Limitations of use.—No coördinates based on the North Carolina coördinate system purporting to define the position of a point on a land boundary shall be presented to be recorded in public land records or deed records unless such point in the survey is within one-half mile of a station or monument of the North Carolina coordinate system: Provided, that the administrative agency for said system may, by rules and regulations, increase or decrease such limiting distance for the whole state, or any area or areas thereof. (1939, c. 163, s. 5.)

§ 102-6. Legality of use in descriptions.—For the purpose of describing the location of any survey station or land boundary corner in the state of North Carolina, it shall be considered a complete, legal, and satisfactory description to define the location of such point or points by means of coördinates of the North Carolina coordinate system as described herein, and within the limitations of § 102-5. (1939, c. 163, s. 6.)

§ 102-7. Use not compulsory. — Nothing contained in this chapter shall be interpreted as requiring any purchaser or mortgagee to rely wholly on a description based upon the North Carolina coördinate system. (1939, c. 163, s. 7.)

§ 102-8. Administrative agency. — The administrative agency of the North Carolina coördinate system shall be the North Carolina department of conservation and development, through its appropriate division, hereinafter called the "Agency." (1939, c. 163, s. 8.)

§ 102-9. Duties and powers of the agency. — It shall be the duty of the agency to make or cause to be made from time to time such surveys and computations as are necessary to further or complete the North Carolina coördinate system. The agency shall endeavor to carry to completion as soon as practicable the field monumentation and office computations of the coördinate system. For the purpose of this work the agency shall have the power to accept grants for the specific purpose of carrying on the work; to coördinate, organize, and direct any federal or other assistance which may be offered to further the work; to coöperate with any individual, firm, company, public or private agency, state or federal agencies, in the prosecution of the work; to enter into contracts or coöperative agreements with other state or federal agencies in promoting the work of the coördinating system. The agency shall further have the power to adopt necessary rules, regulations, and specifications relating to the establishment and use of the coördinate system as defined in this chapter, consistent with the standards and practice of the United States coast and geodetic survey. (1939, c. 163, s. 9.)

§ 102-10. Prior work. — The system of stations, monuments, traverses, computations, and other work which has been done or is under way in North Carolina by the so-called North Carolina geodetic survey, under the supervision of the United States coast and geodetic survey, is, where consistent with the provisions of this chapter, hereby made a part of the North Carolina coördinate system. The surveys, notes, computations, monuments, stations, and all other work relating to the coördinate system, which has been done by said North Carolina geodetic survey, under the supervision of and in coöperation with the United States coast and geodetic survey and federal relief agencies, hereby are placed under the direction of, and shall become the property of, the administrative agency, subject to the agreement of the federal Works Progress Administration. (1939, c. 163, s. 10).

§ 102-11. Vertical control.—Whereas the foregoing provisions of this chapter heretofore are related to horizontal control only, the administrative agency may adopt standards for vertical control or levying surveys consistent with those recommended by and used by the United States coast and geodetic survey, and make or cause to be made such surveys as are necessary to complete the vertical control of North Carolina, in accordance with the provisions for horizontal control surveys as defined in this chapter. (1939, c. 163, s. 11.)

Chapter 103. Sundays and Holidays.

§ 103-1. Work in ordinary calling on Sunday forbidden.—On the Lord's day, commonly called Sunday, no tradesman, artificer, planter, laborer, or other person shall, upon land or water, do or exercise any labor, business or work, of his ordinary calling, works of necessity and charity alone excepted, nor employ himself in hunting, fishing or fowling, nor use any game, sport or play, upon pain that every person so offending, being of the age of fourteen years and upwards, shall forfeit and pay one dollar. (Rev., s. 2836; Code, s. 3782; R. C. c. 115; 1741, c. 30, s. 2; C. S. 3955.)

Local Modification.—Forsyth: C. S. 3957; Johnston: 1925, c. 185; Robeson: Pub. Loc. 1925, c. 451.

Cross References.—As to Sunday fishing, see § 113-247. As to catching oysters on Sunday, see § 113-210. As to unloading oysters on Sunday, see § 113-211.

Editor's Note.—The theory is often advanced that Christianity is a part of the law of the land, and, hence, independent of any statute, contracts made on Sunday are illegal, and that the statute forbidding labor on Sunday was enacted solely for religious reasons. However, to show the fallacy in this argument, it need only be stated. Under our constitution, both State and Federal, no act can be required or forbidden by statute because such act may be in accordance with or opposed to the religious views of anyone. If, therefore, the cessation of labor or the prohibition or performance of any act were provided by statute for religious reasons, the statute could not be maintained.

Some economic or political ground must be found upon which to sustain the Sunday laws, because religious grounds will avail us nothing. Apparently the only ground upon which the "Sunday laws" can be sustained is that, in pursuance of the police power, the State can and ought to require a cessation of labor upon specified days, to protect the masses from being worn out by incessant and unremitting toil. If such days as the Legislature may care to designate happen to be those upon which the larger part of the people observe a cessation of toil for religious reasons, it is not an objection but a convenience. For a complete review of the Sunday laws, see Rodman v. Robinson, 134 N. C. 503, 47 S. E. 19.

Acts Which May Be Lawfully Done on Sunday.—It is said in State v. Ricketts, 74 N. C. 187, 192: "In this State every act may lawfully be done on Sunday which may lawfully be done on any other day, unless there is some statute forbidding it to be done on that day." Rodman v. Robinson, 134 N. C. 503, 507, 47 S. E. 19.

Keeping "Open Shop" on Sunday.—This section does not make keeping open shop and selling goods on Sunday an indictable offense, and an ordinance of a town, passed in pursuance of this section, for the better government of the town, prohibiting keeping open stores and other places of business on Sunday for the purpose of buying and selling, excepting ice, drugs and medicines, and permitting drug stores to sell soft drinks, etc., within certain hours, is not objectionable on the ground that the offense is covered by this section for the ordinance is passed under the police powers of the town, its violation is indictable, and in furtherance of local government, which the statute contemplates. State v. Medlin, 170 N. C. 682, 86 S. E. 597.

It is against the public policy of this State that one should pursue his ordinary business calling on Sunday, and such may not only be regulated by town ordinances, but altogether prohibited on that day; and an ordinance of this kind is not rendered invalid, as unduly discriminative, by reason of an exception in favor of drug stores or on account of this section. State v. Burbage, 172 N. C. 876, 89 S. E. 795.

Same—Powers of Towns.—Commissioners of a town may, by valid ordinance, prohibit the opening of places of business in the town on Sunday, excepting drug stores. State v. Medlin, 170 N. C. 682, 86 S. E. 597.

Power to Prohibit Labor—Public and Private.—The Legislature has power to prohibit labor of this kind on Sunday, on the ground of public decency. But when it goes further and prohibits labor which is done in private, the power is exceeded and the statute is void. Rodman v. Robinson, 134 N. C. 503, 507, 47 S. E. 19.

Sunday Contracts.—"In Melvin v. Easley, 52 N. C. 356, it was conceded by the whole court . . . that a contract made on Sunday was illegal, and could not support an action." Covington v. Threadgill, 88 N. C. 186, 189.

"In the language of Caldwell, J., in Swann v. Swann, 21 Fed., at p. 305, 'It would be downright hypocrisy for a court to affect to believe that the moral sense of the community would be shocked by compelling a man to pay a note given for an honest debt because it was executed on the Lord's Day.' And the same is true of the enforcement of any contract which is not forbidden by statute to be made on Sunday." Rodman v. Robinson, 134 N. C. 503, 513, 47 S. E. 19.

Same—Check.—Where a mechanic has repaired an automobile for its owner during the week, and delivered possession to him on Sunday on receipt of his check to cover his charges, the fact that the check was dated on Sunday does not render it invalid under this section, or permit the owner to stop its payment and retain the car in his possession, so as to release it from the lien thereon for the amount of the repairs. Maxton Auto Co. v. Rudd, 176 N. C. 497, 97 S. E. 477.

Same—Sale with Warranties.—The sale, privately, of a horse on Sunday by a horse-dealer to one knowing of the calling of the seller, was held not to be such a violation by the buyer of the section as to prevent him from recovering in an action for a deceit and false warranty against the seller. Melvin v. Easley, 52 N. C. 356.

Sufficiency of Indictment.—An indictment charging that the defendant was a common Sabbath-breaker and prophaner of the Lord's day, commonly called Sunday was held to be insufficient. State v. Brown, 7 N. C. 224.

Cited in Riddle v. Whisnant, 220 N. C. 131, 134, 16 S. E. (2d) 698.

§ 103-2. Hunting or going armed on Sunday.—If any person shall, except in defense of his own property, hunt on Sunday with a dog, or shall be found off his premises on Sunday, having with him a shotgun, rifle or pistol, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and pay a fine not exceeding fifty dollars, or be imprisoned not exceeding thirty days. (Rev., s. 3842; Code, s. 3783; 1868-9, c. 18, ss. 1, 2; C. S. 3956.)

Local Modification.—Perquimans: 1935, c. 145.

Creates Two Offenses.—The section creates two offenses: 1st, Hunting on the Sabbath with a dog. 2d, Being found off one's premises having a shot-gun, rifle or pistol. State v. Howard, 67 N. C. 24.

Sufficiency of Indictment.—A conviction is sustainable under an indictment charging the defendant with being "found off his premises on the Sabbath day, having with him a shot-gun, contrary to the form of the statute," etc. State v. Howard, 67 N. C. 24.

Same—"Sabbath."—It is immaterial that the indictment used the expression "the Sabbath" instead of "Sunday." State v. Drake, 64 N. C. 589.

Same—Must State Act Committed on Sunday.—An indictment for an act which is criminal when committed upon Sunday, must state that the act in question was committed upon Sunday; but if it do so, no exception can be taken to it for reference to the same day by a wrong day of the month. State v. Drake, 64 N. C. 589.

§ 103-3. What process executed on Sunday.—It shall not be lawful for any sheriff, constable, or other officer to execute any summons, capias, or other process on Sunday, unless the same be issued for treason, felony or misdemeanor. (Rev., s. 2837; Code, s. 928; R. C., c. 31, s. 54; 1777, c. 118, s. 6; C. S. 3958.)

Cross Reference.—As to prohibition against arrest in civil cases on Sunday, see § 1-410.

Execution of Writ or Other Process.—It is unlawful for an officer to execute any writ or other process on Sunday. Devries & Co. v. Summit, 86 N. C. 126.

Summons in a civil action served on Sunday is invalid and does not bind defendant, and the status of the process is the same as if service had not been made. Mintz v. Frink, 217 N. C. 101, 6 S. E. (2d) 804.

A levy of an execution on Sunday is void. Bland v. Whitfield, 46 N. C. 122.

Distress for Penalty under Revenue Act.—The sheriff may proceed on Sunday by distress to enforce the penalty authorized by a revenue Act of the Legislature for peddling without license. Cowles v. Brittain, 9 N. C. 204.

Sunday is not a juridical day, hence an adjournment of the court from Saturday night to Monday morning during the progress of a trial for murder is not violative of the act requiring the adjournment to be "from day to day." State v. Howard, 82 N. C. 623.

When Court May Sit on Sunday.—There have been some instances in the judicial proceedings in this State where the courts have held their sessions on Sunday, but the cases are rare, and whenever it has been done, exception has generally been taken to the course of the court, upon the ground that it could not legally sit on that day. But the Supreme Court has held that in special cases ex necessitate the Court might sit on Sunday. State v. Ricketts, 74 N. C. 187; State v. McGimsey, 80 N. C. 377; State v. Howard, 82 N. C. 623, 626.

Term of Court Embraces Sunday.—When a term of court is set by statute to begin on a certain Monday, and to last for "one week," (or two or three weeks, as the case may be), it embraces the Sunday of each week (unless sooner adjourned), and the term expires by limitation at midnight of that day. Taylor v. Ervin, 119 N. C. 274, 25 S. E. 875.

Verdict of Jury.—The rendition by the jury of a verdict on Sunday is not invalid for that cause. Tuttle v. Tuttle, 146 N. C. 484, 59 S. E. 1008.

There being no inhibition of a verdict rendered on Sunday, either at common law or by statute, a judgment entered on that day (by virtue of the statute, that it shall be entered up at once on the verdict) is valid. Taylor v. Ervin, 119 N. C. 274, 25 S. E. 875.

A verdict entered on Sunday of a week set for the duration of a court, in the absence of an earlier adjournment, is legally entered. Taylor v. Ervin, 119 N. C. 274, 26 S. E. 875.

A notice to take a deposition on Sunday is not good, and a deposition taken on such notice must be rejected. Sloan v. Williford, 25 N. C. 307.

§ 103-4. Dates of public holidays.—The first day of January, the nineteenth day of January, the twenty-second day of February, Easter Monday, the twelfth day of April, the tenth day of May, the twentieth day of May, the thirtieth day of May, the fourth day of July, the first Monday in September, the eleventh day of November, Tuesday after the first Monday in November when a general election is held, the day appointed by the governor as a Thanksgiving Day, and the twenty-fifth day of December of each and every year, are declared to be public holidays; and whenever any such holiday shall fall upon Sunday, the Monday following shall be a public holiday: Provided, that Easter Monday and the thirtieth day of May shall be holidays for all State and National Banks only. (Rev., s. 2838; Code, s. 3784; 1891, c. 58; 1899, c. 410; 1901, c. 25; 1881, c. 294; 1907, c. 996; 1909, c. 888; 1919, c. 287; 1935, c. 212; C. S. 3959.)

Editor's Note.—Public Laws 1935, chapter 212, inserted "Easter Monday" and the "thirtieth day of May" in this section.

Effect of Legal Holiday Generally.—The statute declaring certain days public holidays, does not prohibit the pursuit of the usual avocations of citizens, nor public officers, or the courts from exercising their respective functions on those days. While it might be the attendance of jurors, witnesses and suitors will not be enforced, and the courts will not sue out or enforce process on such days, yet the courts may lawfully proceed with the business before them. State v. Moore, 104 N. C. 743, 10 S. E. 183.

The section simply declares that certain days therein specified, in each year, shall be public holidays, and the following section prescribes when papers coming due on such days, or on Sunday, shall be payable. It does not purport, in terms or effect, to prohibit persons from pursuing their usual avocations on such days, nor is there any inhibition upon public officers to exercise their offices, respectively; nor, particularly for the present purpose, is there any inhibition upon the courts to sit on such days and exercise their functions and authority. There is no such statutory inhibition; nor, indeed, is there any, except such as may arise in the application of general principles of law. It has never been understood to be the law in this State that a public holiday is dies non juridicus, except perhaps to a limited extent; it is very certainly not wholly so. The courts, particularly the superior courts, very frequently sit on such days and hear and try causes and dispatch the business that ordinarily comes before them, especially when there is no objection. Id.

Deposition Opened on Holiday.—A legal holiday has not the same status in respect to legal proceedings as Sunday; and while depositions opened on the latter day are void, they are not so when they are opened on a legal holiday. Latta v. Catawba Elec. Co., 146 N. C. 285, 59 S. E. 1028.

§ 103-5. Acts to be done on Sunday or holidays.—Where the day or the last day for doing an act required or permitted by law to be done falls on Sunday or on a holiday the act may be done on the next succeeding secular or business day. (Rev., s. 2839; Code, ss. 3784, 3785, 3786; 1899, c. 733, s. 194; C. S. 3960.)

Cross References.—As to computing time when last day falls on Sunday, see § 1-593. As to time negotiable instrument becoming due on Sunday is payable, see § 25-91.

Chapter 104. United States Lands.

Art. 1. Authority for Acquisition.

§ 104-1. Acquisition of lands for specified purposes authorized; concurrent jurisdiction reserved.—The United States is authorized, by purchase or otherwise, to acquire title to any tract or parcel of land in the state of North Caroilna, not exceeding twenty-five acres, for the purpose of erecting thereon any customhouse, courthouse, postoffice, or other building, including lighthouses, lightkeepers' dwellings, life-saving stations, buoys and coal depots and buildings connected therewith, or for the establishment of a fishcultural station and the erection thereon of such buildings and improvements as may be necessary for the successful operations of such fishcultural station. The consent to acquisition by the United States is upon the express condition that the state of North Carolina shall so far retain a concurrent jurisdiction with the United States over such lands as that all civil and criminal process issued from the courts of the state of North Carolina may be executed thereon in like manner as if this authority had not been given, and that the state of North Carolina also retains authority to punish all violations of its criminal laws committed on any such tract of land. (Rev., s. 5426; Code, ss. 3080, 3083; 1887, c. 136; 1899, c. 10; 1870-1, c. 44, s. 5; C. S. 8053.)

§ 104-2. Unused lands to revert to state.—The consent given in § 104-1 is upon consideration of the United States building lighthouses, lighthouse-keepers' dwellings, life-saving stations, buoys, coal depots, fish stations, post-offices, customhouses, and other buildings connected therewith, on the tracts or parcels of land so purchased, or that may be purchased; and that the title to land so conveyed to the United States shall revert to the state unless the construction of the aforementioned buildings be completed thereon within ten years from the date of the conveyance from the grantor. (Rev., s. 5426; Code, ss. 3080, 3083; 1899, c. 10; 1887, c. 136; 1870-1, c. 44, s. 5; C. S. 8054.)

§ 104-3. Exemption of such lands from taxation.—The lots, parcels, or tracts of land acquired under this chapter, together with the tenements and appurtenances for the purpose mentioned in this chapter, shall be exempt from taxation. (Rev., s. 5428; Code, s. 3082; 1870-1, c. 44, s. 3; C. S. 8055.)

When Exemption Begins.—A contract to convey lands to the United States Government reservation, under the Federal statute, does not vest the title in the Government until survey made, acreage determined, purchase price paid, or conveyance made and title approved by the Attorney-General, and until then the land is subject to State taxes under the State statutes. Caldwell Land, etc., Co. v. Commissioners, 174 N. C. 634, 94 S. E. 406.

§ 104-4. Conveyances of such lands to be recorded.—All deeds, conveyances, or other title papers for the same shall be recorded, as in other cases, in the office of the register of deeds of the county in which the lands so conveyed may lie, in the same manner and under the same regulations as other deeds and conveyances are now recorded, and in like manner may be recorded a sufficient description by metes and bounds, courses and distances, of any tract or legal division of any public land belonging to the United States, which may be set apart by the general government for the purpose before mentioned, by an order, patent, or other official document or paper so describing such land. (Rev., s. 5429; Code, s. 3081; 1870-1, c. 44, s. 2; 1872-3, c. 201; C. S. 8056.)

§ 104-5. Forest reserve in North Carolina authorized; powers conferred.—The United States is authorized to acquire by purchase, or by condemnation with adequate compensation, except as hereinafter provided, such lands in North Carolina as in the opinion of the federal government may be needed for the establishment of a national forest reserve in that region. This consent is given upon condition that the state of North Carolina shall retain a concurrent jurisdiction with the United States in and over such lands so far that civil process in all cases, and such criminal process as may issue under the authority of the state of North Carolina against any person charged with the commission of any crime without or within said jurisdiction, may be executed thereon in like manner as if this consent had not been given. Power is hereby conferred upon the congress of the United States to pass such laws as it may deem necessary to the acquisition as hereinbefore provided, for incorporation in such national forest reserve such forest-covered lands lying in North Carolina as in the opinion of the federal government may be needed for this purpose, but as much as two hundred acres of any tract of land occupied as a home by bona fide residents in this state on the eighteenth day of January, one thousand nine hundred and one, shall be exempt from the provisions of this section. Power is hereby conferred upon congress to pass such laws and to make or provide for the making of such rules and regulations, of both civil and criminal nature, and to provide punishment therefor, as in its judgment may be necessary for the management, control, and protection of such lands as may be from time to time acquired by the United States under the provisions of this section. (Rev., s. 5430; 1901, c. 17; 1929, c. 67, s. 1; C. S. 8057.)

Editor's Note.—The Act of 1929 struck out the word "Western" whenever appearing in this section and inserted "North" in the title.

§ 104-6. Acquisition of lands for river and harbor improvement; reservation of right to serve process.—The consent of the legislature of the state is hereby given to the acquisition by the United States of any tracts, pieces, or parcels of land within the limits of the state, by purchase or condemnation, for use as sites for locks and dams, or for any other purpose in connection with the improvement of rivers and harbors within and on the borders of the state. The consent hereby given is in accordance with the seventeenth clause of the eighth section of the first article of the constitution of the United States, and with the acts of congress in such cases made and provided; and this state retains concurrent jurisdiction with the United States over any lands acquired and held in pursuance of the provisions of this section, so far as that all civil and criminal process issued under authority of any law of this state may be executed in any part of the premises so acquired, or the buildings or structures thereon erected. (1907, c. 681; C. S. 8058.)

§ 104-7. Acquisition of lands for public buildings; cession of jurisdiction; exemption from taxation.—The consent of the state is hereby given, in accordance with the seventeenth clause, eighth section, of the first article of the constitution of the United States, to the acquisition by the United States, by purchase, condemnation, or otherwise, of any land in the state required for the sites for customhouses, courthouses, postoffices, arsenals, or other public buildings whatever, or for any other purposes of the government.

Exclusive jurisdiction in and over any land so acquired by the United States shall be and the same is hereby ceded to the United States for all purposes except the service upon such sites of all civil and criminal process of the courts of this state; but the jurisdiction so ceded shall continue no longer than the said United States shall own such lands. The jurisdiction ceded shall not vest until the United States shall have acquired title to said lands by purchase, condemnation, or otherwise.

So long as the said lands shall remain the property of the United States when acquired as aforesaid, and no longer, the same shall be and continue exempt and exonerated from all state, county, and municipal taxation, assessment, or other charges which may be levied or imposed under the authority of this state. (1907, c. 25; C. S. 8059.)

§ 104-8. Further authorization of acquisition of land.—The United States is hereby authorized to acquire lands by condemnation or otherwise in this State for the purpose of preserving the navigability of navigable streams and for holding and administering such lands for National Park purposes: Provided, that this section and § 104-9 shall in no wise affect the authority conferred upon the United States and reserved to the State in §§ 104-5 and 104-6. (1925, c. 152, s. 1.)

§ 104-9. Condition of consent granted in preceding section.—This consent is given upon condition that the State of North Carolina shall retain a concurrent jurisdiction with the United States in and over such lands so far that civil process in all cases, and such criminal process as may issue under the authority of the State of North Carolina against any person charged with the commission of any crime, without or within said jurisdiction, may be executed thereon in like manner as if this consent had not been given. (1925, c. 152, s. 2.)

§ 104-10. Migratory bird sanctuaries or other wild life refuges. — The United States is authorized to acquire by purchase, or by condemnation with adequate compensation, such lands in North Carolina as in the opinion of the Federal Government may be needed for the establishment of one or more migratory bird sanctuaries or other wild life refuges. This consent is given upon condition that the State of North Carolina shall retain a concurrent jurisdiction with the United States in and over such lands so far that civil process in all cases, and such criminal process as may issue under the authority of the State of North Carolina against any person charged with the commission of any crime without or within said jurisdiction, may be executed therein in like manner as if this consent had not been given. Power is hereby conferred upon the Congress of the United States to pass such laws as it may deem necessary to the acquisition as hereinbefore provided, for incorporation in such sanctuaries or refuges such lands lying in North Carolina as in the opinion of the Federal Government may be suitable and needed for this purpose. Power is hereby conferred upon Congress to pass such laws and to make or provide for the making of such rules and regulations, of both civil and criminal nature, and to provide punishment therefor, as in its judgment may be necessary for the management, control and protection of such lands as may be from time to time acquired by the United States under the provisions of this section. (1929, c. 163, s. 1.)

§ 104-11. Utilities Commission to secure rights-of-way, etc., for waterway improvements by use of federal funds.—Hereafter whenever any waterway improvement in North Carolina by the use of federal funds is provided for upon condition that the state or locality shall furnish rights-of-way, permits for the dumping of dredged material, or furnish or do any other thing in connection with the proposed waterway improvement, the Utilities Commission is authorized and empowered to represent the State or locality in such matter of securing the rights-of-way, permits for the dumping of dredged material, or other things so required in connection with such waterway improvement; and in prosecuting such undertaking, the Utilities Commission may follow the same procedure provided in article two for the acquisition of rights-of-way for the intercoastal waterway from the Cape Fear river to the South Carolina line: Provided, however, that said Utilities Commission is not hereby authorized to enter into obligation or contract for the payment of any money or proceeds through condemnation or otherwise without the express approval of the governor and council of state. (1935, c. 240; 1937, c. 434.)

Art. 2. Inland Waterway.

§ 104-12. Acquisition of land for inland waterway from Cape Fear River; grant of state lands.—For the purpose of aiding in the construction of the proposed inland waterway by the United States from the Cape Fear River at Southport to the North Carolina-South Carolina State line, the Secretary of State is hereby authorized to issue to the United States of America a grant to the land located within said inland waterway, right-of-way, which is to be one thousand feet to seventeen hundred fifty feet wide in so far as such land is subject to grant by the State of North Carolina, the said grant to issue upon a certificate furnished to the Secretary of State by the Secretary of War, or by any authorized officer of the corps of engineers of the United States Army, or by any other authorized official, exercising control over the construction of the said waterway. Whenever in the construction of such inland waterway within this State, lands theretofore submerged shall be raised above the water by the deposit of excavated material, the land so formed shall become the property of the United States if within the limits of said inland waterway, right-of-way, herein set out one thousand feet to seventeen hundred fifty feet and the Secretary of State is hereby authorized to issue to the United States a grant to the land so formed within the limits above specified, the grant to issue upon a certificate furnished to the Secretary of State by some authorized official of the United States, as above provided. If said lands so required for the inland waterway right-of-way shall be marshlands, or sound lands, the title to which has heretofore been vested in the State Board of Education, the Governor of the State, as President thereof, and the Superintendent of Public Instruction as Secretary, are hereby authorized and required to execute proper conveyance to the United States of America for said marshlands or sound lands, free of cost, both to the State and to the United States Government, upon a certificate furnished to said Board of Education by the Secretary of War, or by any authorized officer of the corps of engineers of the United States Army, or by any other authorized official exercising control over the construction of the said inland waterway. (1931, c. 2, s. 1.)

§ 104-13. Utilities Commission to secure right-of-way over private lands; condemnation by United States.—If the title to any part of the lands acquired by the United States Government for the construction of such inland waterway from the Cape Fear River at Southport to the North Carolina-South Carolina State line shall be in any private person, company or corporation, railroad company, street railway company, telephone or telegraph company, or other public service corporation or shall have been donated or condemned for any public use by any political sub-division of the State, or if it may be necessary, for the purpose of obtaining the proper title to any lands, the title to which has heretofore been vested in the State Board of Education, then the Utilities Commission, in the name of the State of North Carolina, is hereby authorized and empowered, acting for and in behalf of the State of North Carolina, to secure a right-of-way one thousand to seventeen hundred fifty feet wide for said inland waterway across and through such lands or any part thereof, by purchase, donation or otherwise, through agreement with the owner or owners where possible, and when any such property is thus acquired, the Governor and Secretary of State shall execute a deed for the same to the United States; and if for any reason the said commission shall be unable to secure such right-of-way across any such property by voluntary donation by and/or with the owner or owners, the said Commission acting for and in behalf of the State of North Carolina is hereby vested with the power to condemn the same, and in so doing, the ways, means, methods and procedure of the chapter of this Code, entitled "Eminent Domain," shall be used by it as near as the same is suitable for the purposes of this article, and in all instances, the general and special benefits to the owner thereof shall be assessed as offsets against the damages to such property or lands.

As such condemnation proceedings might result in delay in the acquiring of title to all parts of the right-of-way and in the construction of the said inland waterway by the United States, said Utilities Commission is authorized to enter any of said lands and property and take possession of the same at the time hereinafter provided as needed for this use in behalf of the State or the United States Government for the purposes herein set out, prior to the bringing of the proceeding for condemnation and prior to the payment of the money for such land or property under any judgment in condemnation. In the event the owner or owners shall appeal from the report of the commissioners appointed in any condemnation proceeding hereunder, it shall not be necessary for said commission, acting in behalf of the State of North Carolina, or the United States Government, to deposit the money assessed by said commissioners with the clerk.

Whenever proceedings in condemnation are instituted in pursuance of the provisions of this section, the said commission upon the filing of the petition or petitions in such proceedings, shall have the right to take immediate possession, on behalf of the State, of such lands or property to the extent of the interest to be acquired and the order of the Clerk of the Superior Court of the county where the action is instituted, shall be sufficient to vest the title and possession in the State through the Utilities Commission. The Governor and Secretary of State shall, upon vesting of the title and possession, execute a deed to the United States and said lands or property may then be appropriated and used by the United States for the purposes aforesaid: Provided, that in every case the proceedings in condemnation shall be diligently prosecuted to final judgment in order that the just compensation, if any, to which the owners of the property are entitled may be ascertained and when so ascertained and determined, such compensation, if any, shall be promptly paid as hereinafter in this article provided.

If the United States Government shall so determine, it is hereby authorized to condemn and use all lands and property which may be needed for the purposes herein set out and which is specifically described and set out in the paragraph next preceding, under the authority of said United States Government, and according to the provisions existing in the Federal Statutes for condemning lands and property for the use of the United States Government. In case the United States Government shall so condemn said land and property, the said Utilities Commission is hereby authorized to pay all expenses of the condemnation proceedings and any award that may be made thereunder, out of the money which may be appropriated for said purposes.

All sums which may be agreed upon between the said Utilities Commission and the owner of any property needed by the United States Government for said inland waterway and all sums which may be assessed in favor of the owner of any property condemned hereunder, shall constitute and remain a fixed and valid claim against the State of North Carolina until paid and satisfied in full, but the order of the clerk when entered in any condemnation proceeding shall divest the owner of the land condemned of all right, title, interest and possession in and to such land and property. (1931, c. 2, s. 2; 1937, c. 434.)

§ 104-14. Use declared paramount public purpose. — In such condemnation proceedings the uses for which such land or property is condemned are hereby declared to be for a purpose paramount to all other public uses, and the fact that any portion of it has heretofore been condemned by a railroad company, a street railway company, telephone or telegraph company, or other public service corporation, or by any political subdivision of the State of North Carolina, for public uses, or has been conveyed by any person or corporation for any such public uses, or vested in the State Board of Education, or by any other act dedicated to any public use, shall in no way affect the right of the State of North Carolina, or the United States Government, to proceed and condemn such land and property as hereinbefore provided. (1931, c. 2, s. 3.)

§ 104-15. Method of payment of expenses and awards.—Whenever said Commission has agreed with the owner of any such land or property as to the purchase price thereof, or the damage for the construction of the inland waterway has finally been determined in any condemnation proceeding necessary to secure such land or property, the said Commission is hereby authorized and directed to pay all of said sums and other expenses incident thereto by proper warrant upon the sum which may be appropriated for said purpose, and all such sums shall constitute and remain a fixed and valid claim against the State of North Carolina until paid and satisfied in full. (1931, c. 2, s. 4.)

§ 104-16. State and United States may enter upon lands for survey, etc.—For the purpose of determining the lands necessary for the uses herein set out, the Utilities Commission or the United States Government, or the agents of either, shall have the right to enter upon any lands along the general line of the right-of-way in this article specified, and make such surveys, and do such other acts as in their judgment may be necessary for the purpose of definitely locating the specific lines of said right-of-way and the lands required for said purposes, and there shall be no claim against the State of North Carolina or the United States for such acts as may be done in making said surveys. (1931, c. 2, s. 5; 1937, c. 434.)

§ 104-17. Maintenance of bridges over waterway.—The State Highway and Public Works Commission or the road governing body of any political subdivision of the State of North Carolina is hereby authorized and directed to construct, maintain and operate in perpetuity, all bridges over the waterway without cost to the United States. (1931, c. 2, s. 7; 1933, c. 172, s. 17.)

§ 104-18. Concurrent jurisdiction over waterway.—The State of North Carolina retains concurrent jurisdiction with the United States over any lands acquired and held in pursuance of the provisions of this chapter, so far as that all civil and criminal process issued under authority of any law of this State may be executed in any part of the premises so acquired for such inland waterway, or for the buildings or constructions thereon erected for the purposes of such inland waterway. (1931, c. 2, s. 8.)

§ 104-19. Acquisition of land for inland waterway from Beaufort Inlet; grant of state lands.—For the purpose of aiding in the construction of the proposed inland waterway by the United States from Beaufort Inlet in the State of North Carolina to the Cape Fear River, the secretary of State is hereby authorized to issue to the United States of America a grant to the land located within said inland waterway, right-of-way, which is to be one thousand feet wide, in so far as such land is subject to grant by the State of North Carolina, the said grant to issue upon a certificate furnished to the Secretary of State by the Secretary of War, or by any authorized officer of the corps of engineers of the United States Army, or by any other authorized official, exercising control over the construction of the said waterway. Whenever in the construction of such inland waterway within this State, lands theretofore submerged shall be raised above the water by the deposit of excavated material, the land so formed shall become the property of the United States if within the limits of said inland waterway, right-of-way, herein set out one thousand feet, and the Secretary of State is hereby authorized to issue to the United States a grant to the land so formed within the limits above specified, the grant to issue upon a certificate furnished to the Secretary of State by some authorized official of the United States, as above provided. If said lands so required for the inland waterway right-of-way shall be marshlands, the title to which has heretofore been vested in the State Board of Education, the Governor of the State, as President thereof, and the Superintendent of Public Instruction as Secretary, are hereby authorized and required to execute a proper conveyance to the United States of America for said marshlands, free of cost, both to the State and to the United States Government, upon a certificate furnished to said Board of Education by the Secretary of War, or by any authorized officer of the corps of engineers of the United States Army, or by any other authorized official exercising control over the construction of the said inland waterway. (1927, c. 44, s. 1.)

§ 104-20. Utilities Commission to secure right-of-way; condemnation by United States.—If the title to any part of the lands required by the United States Government for the construction of such inland waterway from Beaufort Inlet to the Cape Fear River shall be in any private person, company or corporation, railroad company, street railway company, telephone or telegraph company, or other public service corporation, or shall have been donated or condemned for any public use by any political subdivision of the State or if it may be necessary, for the purpose of obtaining the proper title to any lands, the title to which has heretofore been vested in the State Board of Education, then the Utilities Commission in the name of the State of North Carolina, is hereby authorized and empowered, acting for and in behalf of the State of North Carolina, to secure a right-of-way one thousand feet wide for said inland waterway across and through such lands or any part thereof, if possible by purchase, donation or otherwise, through agreement with the owner or owners, and when any such property is thus acquired, the Govenor and Secretary of State shall execute a deed for the same to the United States; and if for any reason the said Commission shall be unable to secure such right-of-way across any such property by voluntary agreement with the owner or owners as aforesaid, the said Commission acting for and in behalf of the State of North Carolina, is hereby vested with the power to condemn the same, and in so doing, the ways, means, methods and procedure of chapter forty of the General Statutes of North Carolina, entitled "Eminent Domain," shall be used by it as near as the same is suitable for the purposes of this act, and in all instances, the general and the special benefits to the owner thereof shall be assessed as offsets against the damages to such property or lands.

As such condemnation proceedings might result in delay in the acquiring of title to all parts of the right-of-way and in the construction of the said inland waterway by the United States, said Utilities Commission is authorized to enter any of said lands and property and take possession of the same at the time hereinafter provided as needed for this use in behalf of the State or the United States Government for the purposes herein set out prior to the bringing of the proceeding for condemnation and prior to the payment of the money for such land or property under any judgment in condemnation. In the event the owner or owners shall appeal from the report of the Commissioners appointed in the condemnation proceeding it shall not be necessary for said Commission, acting in behalf of the State of North Carolina, the State of North Carolina, or the United States Government, to deposit the money assessed by said Commissioners with the clerk.

Whenever proceedings in condemnation are instituted in pursuance of the provisions of this section, the said Commission upon the filing of the petition or petitions in such proceedings, shall have the right to take immediate possession on behalf of the State of such lands or property to the extent of the interest to be acquired and the Governor and Secretary of State shall thereupon execute a deed to the United States and said lands or property may then be appropriated and used by the United States for the purposes aforesaid. Provided, that in every case the proceedings in condemnation shall be diligently prosecuted to final judgment in order that the just compensation to which the owners of the property are entitled may be ascertained and when so ascertained and determined such compensation shall be promptly paid as hereinafter in this act provided.

If the United States Government shall so determine, it is hereby authorized to condemn and use all lands and property which may be needed for the purposes herein set out and which is specifically described and set out in the preceding paragraphs, under the authority of said United States Government, and according to the provisions existing in the federal statutes for condemning lands and property for the use of the United States Government. In case the United States Government shall so condemn said land and property, the said Utilities Commission is hereby authorized to pay all expenses of the condemnation proceedings and any award that may be made thereunder, out of the money which may be appropriated for said purposes. (1927, c. 44, s. 2; 1929, cc. 4, 7, s. 1; 1937, c. 434.)

§ 104-21. Use declared paramount public purpose.—In such condemnation proceedings the uses for which such land or property is condemned are hereby declared to be for a purpose paramount to all other public uses, and the fact that any portion of it has heretofore been condemned by a railroad company, street railway company, telephone or telegraph company, or other public service corporation, or by any political subdivision of the State of North Carolina, for public uses, or has been conveyed by any person or corporation for any such public uses, or vested in the State Board of Education, shall in no way affect the right of the State of North Carolina, or the United States

Government, to proceed and condemn such land and property as hereinbefore provided. (1927, c. 44, s. 3.)

§ 104-22. Method of payment of expenses and awards.—Whenever said commission has agreed with the owner of any such land or property as to the purchase price thereof, or the damage for the construction of the inland waterway has finally been determined in any condemnation proceeding necessary to secure such land or property, the said commission is hereby authorized and directed to pay all of said sums and other expenses incident thereto by proper warrant upon the sum which may be appropriated for said purpose, and all such sums shall constitute and remain a fixed and valid claim against the State of North Carolina until paid and satisfied in full. (1927, c. 44, s. 4.)

§ 104-23. Maintenance of bridges over waterway.—The State Highway and Public Works Commission or the road governing body of any political subdivision of the State of North Carolina is hereby authorized and directed to take over and maintain and operate in perpetuity, by contract with the United States Government, if necessary, or otherwise, any bridge or bridges which may be subject to their respective control and which the United States Government may construct across said inland waterway. (1927, c. 44, s. 6; 1929, cc. 4, 7, s. 2.)

§ 104-24. Concurrent jurisdiction over waterway.—The State of North Carolina retains concurrent jurisdiction with the United States over any lands acquired and held in pursuance of the provisions of this chapter, so far as that all civil and criminal process issued under authority of any law of this State may be executed in any part of the premises so acquired for such inland waterway, or for the buildings or constructions thereon erected for the purposes of such inland waterway. (1927, c. 44, s. 7.)

§ 104-25. Lands conveyed to United States for inland waterway.—For the purpose of aiding in the construction of a proposed inland waterway by the United States from the city of Norfolk, in the state of Virginia, to Beaufort inlet, in the state of North Carolina, the secretary of state is hereby authorized to issue to the United States of America a grant to the land located within a distance of one thousand feet on either side of the center of the said inland waterway, in so far as such land is subject to grant by the state of North Carolina, the said grant to issue upon a certificate furnished to the secretary of state by the secretary of war, or by any authorized officer of the corps of engineers of the United States army, or by any other authorized official, exercising control of the construction of the said waterway.

Wherever, in the construction of the said inland waterway, lands theretofore submerged shall be raised above the water by deposit of excavated material, the lands so formed shall become the property of the United States for a distance of one thousand feet on either side of the center of such canal or channel, and the secretary of state is hereby authorized to issue to the United States a grant to the land so formed within the distance above mentioned, the grant to issue upon a certificate furnished to the secretary of state by some authorized official of the United States as above provided. (1913, c. 197; 1937, c. 445; C. S. 7583.)

Editor's Note.—The 1937 amendment struck out the words "or in the improvement of any other waterway within this state" formerly appearing after the word "waterway" in the second line of the second paragraph.

§ 105-1. Title and purpose of subchapter.—The title of this subchapter shall be "The Revenue Act." The purpose of this subchapter shall be to raise and provide revenue for the necessary uses and purposes of the government and state of North Carolina during the next biennium and each biennium thereafter, and the provisions of this subchapter shall be and remain in full force and effect until changed by law. (1939, c. 158, ss. A, B; 1941, c. 50, s. 1.)

Editor's Note.—The 1941 amendment added the provision relating to remaining in force until changed by law.

Art. 1. Schedule A. Inheritance Tax.

§ 105-2. General provisions.—A tax shall be and is hereby imposed upon the transfer of any property, real or personal, or of any interest therein or income therefrom, in trust or otherwise, to persons or corporations, in the following cases:

First. When the transfer is by will or by the intestate laws of this state from any person dying, seized or possessed of the property while a resident of the state.

Second. When the transfer is by will or intestate laws of this or any other state of real property or of goods, wares, and merchandise within this state, or of any property, real, personal, or mixed, tangible or intangible, over which the state of North Carolina has a taxing jurisdiction, including state and municipal bonds, and the decedent was a resident of the state at the time of death; when the transfer is of real property or intangible personal property within the state, or intangible personal property that has acquired a situs in this state, and the decedent was a non-resident of the state at the time of death.

Third. When the transfer of property made by a resident, or non-resident, is of real property within this state, or of goods, wares and merchandise within this state, or of any other property, real, personal, or mixed, tangible or intangible, over which the state of North Carolina has taxing jurisdiction, including state and municipal bonds, by deed, grant, bargain, sale, or gift made in contemplation of the death of the grantor, vendor, or donor, or intended to take effect in possession or enjoyment at or after such death, including a transfer under which the transferor has retained for his life or any period not ending before his death (a) the possession or enjoyment of, or the income from, the property or (b) the right to designate the persons who shall possess or enjoy the property or the income therefrom. Every transfer by deed, grant, bargain, sale, or gift, made within three years prior to the death of the grantor, vendor, or donor, exceeding three per cent (3%) of his or her estate, or in the nature of a final disposition or distribution thereof, and without an adequate valuable consideration, shall, in the absence of proof to the contrary, be deemed to have been made in contemplation of death within the meaning of this section.

Fourth. When any person or corporation comes into possession or enjoyment, by a transfer from a resident, or from a non-resident decedent when such non-resident decedent's property consists of real property within this state or tangible personal property within the state, or intangible personal property that has acquired a situs in this state, of an estate in expectancy of any kind or character which is contingent or defeasible, transferred by any instrument taking effect after March 24, 1939, or of any property transferred pursuant to a power of appointment contained in any instrument.

Fifth. Whenever any person or corporation shall exercise a power of appointment derived from any disposition of property made either before or after the passage of this article, such appointment when made shall be deemed a transfer taxable under the provisions of this article, in the same manner as though the property to which such appointment relates belonged absolutely to the donee of such power, and had been bequeathed or devised by such donee by will, and the rate shall be determined by the relationship between the beneficiary under the power and the donor; and whenever any person or corporation having such power of appointment so derived shall, for any reason whatever, omit or fail to exercise the same, in whole or in part, or where for any reason the said power has not been exercised, a transfer taxable under the provisions of this article shall be deemed to take place, to the extent of such omission or failure, in the same manner as though the persons or corporations thereby becoming entitled to the possession or enjoyment of the property to which such power related had succeeded thereto by will of the donee of the power failing to exercise the same, taking effect at the time of such omission or failure.

Sixth. Whenever any real or personal property, or both, of whatever kind or nature, tangible or intangible, is disposed of by will or by deed to any person or persons for life, or the life of the survivor, or for a term of years, or to any corporation for a term of years, with the power of appointment in such person or persons, or in such corporation, or reserving to the grantor or devisor the power of revocation, the tax, upon the death of the person making such will or deed, shall, on the whole amount of property so disposed of, be due and payable as in other cases, and the said tax shall be computed according to the relationship of the first donee or devisee to the devisor.

Seventh. Where real property is held by husband and wife as tenants by the entirety, the surviving tenant shall be taxable on one-half of the value of such property.

Eighth. Where the proceeds of life insurance policies are payable as provided in § 105-13.

However, nothing in this article shall be construed as imposing a tax upon any transfer of intangibles not having a commercial or business situs in this State, by a person, or by reason of the death of a person, who was not a resident of this State at the time of his death, and, if held or transferred in trust, such intangibles shall not be deemed to have a commercial or business situs in this State merely because the trustee is a resident or, if a corporation, is doing business in this State, unless the same be employed in or held or used in connection with some business carried on in whole or in part in this State. (1939, c. 158, s. 1; 1941, c. 50, s. 2; 1943, c. 400, s. 1.)

Editor's Note.—The 1941 amendment made changes in subsections first and second and directed that the last paragraph be added at the end of the section.

For comment on the 1941 amendment, see 19 N. C. Law Rev. 526.

The 1943 amendment inserted the eighth paragraph.

The annotations under this and the following sections are constructions of the corresponding sections (sections 7772 et seq.) of the Consolidated Statutes and of subsequent revenue acts.

For history of the inheritance tax statute, see State v. Scales, 172 N. C. 915, 90 S. E. 439.

See note 12 N. C. Law Rev. 180, on "Fate of the Trust as Device to Escape Inheritance Taxes."

For article discussing this subchapter, see 15 N. C. Law Rev. 387.

Constitutionality.—The provisions of section 7772 of the prior law were held not in conflict with Art. I, § 17, of the State Constitution or of the Fourteenth Amendment to the Constitution of the United States in Rhode Island Hospital Trust Co. v. Doughton, 187 N. C. 263, 121 S. E. 741, discussed in 3 N. C. Law Rev. 107. The judgment of this court, however, was reversed, on a writ of error, by the Supreme Court of the United States. Trust Co. v. Doughton, 270 U. S. 69, 46 S. Ct. 256, 70 L. Ed. 475, 43 A. L. R. 1374. It was there held that the statute under which the tax was assessed and collected was invalid, upon the principle that the subject to be taxed must be within the jurisdiction of the state assessing and collecting the tax, and that this principle applies as well in the case of a transfer tax as in that of a property tax. Rotan v. State, 195 N. C. 291, 141 S. E. 733.

Liberal Construction.—A liberal construction will be given to inheritance tax statutes to the end that all property fairly and reasonably coming within their provision may be taxed. State v. Scales, 172 N. C. 915, 90 S. E. 439. See, also, Norris v. Durfey, 168 N. C. 321, 84 S. E. 687; Reynolds v. Reynolds, 208 N. C. 578, 581, 182 S. E. 341.

Under this liberal construction in favor of the government, every transfer of property that could be reasonably brought within the purview of the law has been subjected to taxation. Norris v. Durfey, 168 N. C. 321, 84 S. E. 687.

Basis of Inheritance Tax.—"The theory on which taxation of this kind on the devolution of estates is based and its legality upheld is clearly established and is founded upon two principles: (1) A succession tax is a tax on the right of succession to property, and not on the property itself. (2) The right to take property by devise or descent is not one of the natural rights of man, but is the creature of the law." Brown, J., in In re Morris Estate, 138 N. C. 259, 262, 50 S. E. 682, cited and approved in Rhode Island Hospital Trust Co. v. Doughton, 187 N. C. 263, 267, 131 S. E. 741. See Waddell v. Doughton, 194 N. C. 537, 140 S. E. 160.

Transfer Necessary.—The thing taxed is the privilege of transferring and it is essential that there shall be a transfer, within the meaning of this section, from decedent to the beneficiary by reason of death. There must be a transfer of something before there can be a tax upon its transfer and where the decedent had no interest in or control over the policy which could be transferred by his death its proceeds are not subject to this article. Wachovia Bank, etc., Co. v. Maxwell, 221 N. C. 528, 532, 20 S. E. (2d) 840.

Situs for Taxation.—"The personal property of a decedent, whatever its character and wherever located, is subject to an inheritance tax in the State in which its owner was a resident at the time of his death. Bullen v. Wisconsin, 240 U. S. 625, 36 S. Ct. 473. This position is upheld upon the principle that the situs of personal property, for the purpose of taxation, is said to be in the State where the owner resides and has his domicile. Mobila sequuntur personam." Rhode Island Hospital Trust Co. v. Doughton, 187 N. C. 263, 268, 121 S. E. 741.

Thus if the testator or intestate has his domicile abroad and his personal estate were also, no tax would be demanded of the legatee or next of kin, though they might be resident in the state. State v. Brim, 57 N. C. 300, 301. After the legacy or distributive share has been received, it then becomes a part of the property of one of the citizens of the state, and then it may be taxed in common with any other property of the like kind. Id.

Transfers Subject to Tax.—The right to impose an inheritance tax does not depend upon the kind of property transferred. In re Morris Estate, 138 N. C. 259, 50 S. E. 682.

A widow's dower and year's allowance allotted to her upon her dissent from her husband's will, is property passing by will or by intestate laws within the meaning of this statute. State v. Dunn, 174 N. C. 679, 94 S. E. 481.

The corresponding section of the prior law includes and lays a tax upon an interest made subject by will to the appointment of a third person. In re Inheritance Tax, 172 N. C. 170, 90 S. E. 203.

Under the provisions of the will in suit, the entire beneficial interest in the estate vested in testator's three sons upon testator's death with the right of full enjoyment postponed until the termination of the trust. One of the sons died during minority, prior to the termination of the trust, leaving his two brothers as his sole heirs at law. Held: The surviving brothers took under the laws of descent and distribution, and the estate so inherited is subject to the appropriate state and federal inheritance taxes and is encumbered by the lien for such taxes. Coddington v. Stone, 217 N. C. 714, 9 S. E. (2d) 420.

Same—Shares of Corporate Stock.—Under the provisions of the prior law an inheritance or transfer tax is imposed upon the right of nonresident legatees or distributees to take by will or to receive, under the intestate laws of another State, from a nonresident testator or intestate, shares of stock in a corporation of another State domiciled here, under the laws of this State, as a condition precedent to the right to have said stock transferred on the books of the corporation having the statutory proportion of its property located within this State and conducting its business here. The constitutionality was upheld. Rhode Island Hospital Trust Co. v. Doughton, 187 N. C. 263, 121 S. E. 741. See dissenting opinion as to constitutionality. A discussion of this case may be found in a note contained in 3 N. C. Law Rev. 107.

Settlement of Taxes Claimed by Compromise. — The settlement of taxes claimed under this section by compromise, in a court of competent jurisdiction, in view of the bona fide controversies between the parties, and the facts and circumstances of the case, was affirmed on appeal, the matter being a legitimate subject of compromise and all parties affected being duly represented. Reynolds v. Reynolds, 208 N. C. 578, 580, 182 S. E. 341.

§ 105-3. Property exempt. — The following property shall be exempt from taxation under this article:

(a) Property passing to or for the use of the state of North Carolina, or to or for the use of municipal corporations within the state or other political subdivisions thereof, for exclusively public purposes.

(b) Property passing to religious, charitable, or educational corporations, or to churches, hospitals, orphan asylums, public libraries, religious, benevolent, or charitable organizations, or passing to any trustee or trustees for religious, benevolent, or charitable purposes, where such religious, charitable, or educational institutions, corporations, churches, trusts, etc., are located within the state and not conducted for profit.

(c) Property passing to religious, educational, or charitable corporations, foundations or trusts, not conducted for profit, incorporated or created or administered under the laws of any other state: If such other state levies no inheritance or estate taxes on property similarly passing from residents of such state to religious, educational or charitable corporations, foundations or trusts incorporated or created or administered under the laws of this state; or if such corporation, foundation or trust is one receiving and disbursing funds donated in this state for religious, educational or charitable purposes.

(d) The amount of twenty thousand dollars ($20,000.00), only, of the total proceeds of life insurance policies, when such policy or policies are payable to a beneficiary or beneficiaries named in such policy or policies, and such beneficiary or beneficiaries are any such person or persons as are designated in § 105-4, subsection (a): Provided, that no more than twenty thousand dollars ($20,000.00) of any such policy or policies shall be exempt from taxation, whether in favor of one beneficiary or more, and the exemption thus provided shall be prorated between the beneficiaries in proportion to the amounts received under the policies, unless otherwise provided by the decedent; and also proceeds of all life insurance policies payable to beneficiaries named in subsections (a), (b), and (c) of this section. And also proceeds of all policies of insurance and the proceeds of all adjusted service certificates that have been or may be paid by the United States Government, or that have been or may be paid on account of policies required to be carried by the United States government or any agency thereof, to the estate, beneficiary, or beneficiaries of any person who has served in the armed forces of the United States or in the merchant marine during the first or second World War; and proceeds, not exceeding the sum of ten thousand dollars ($10,000.00), of all policies of insurance paid to the estate, beneficiary or beneficiaries of any person whose death was caused by enemy action during the second World War. This provision will be operative only when satisfactory proof that the death was caused by enemy action is filed by the executor, administrator or beneficiary with the commissioner of revenue. (1939, c. 158, s. 2; 1943, c. 400, s. 1.)

Editor's Note.—The 1943 amendment added the last sentence and rewrote the next to the last sentence of subsection (d).

For comment on exemption of property passing to foreign eleemosynary organizations, see 17 N. C. L. Rev. 381.

Section 7773 was the corresponding provision of the Consolidated Statutes.

Exemptions of property from taxation are to be strictly construed. Benson v. Johnston County, 209 N. C. 751, 185 S. E. 6.

Property is liable for county taxes where it is not used by the city for a governmental purpose, and therefore does not come within the constitutional provision for the exemption of property from taxation (N. C. Const. Art. V, § 5), or within the scope of this section enacted pursuant thereto. Benson v. Johnston County, 209 N. C. 751, 185 S. E. 6.

Same—Property Held for Business Purposes.—Property was held subject to taxation by the county in which the property is situate although owned by a municipal corporation, where the property was held by the municipal corporation purely for business purposes and not for any governmental or necessary public purpose. Board of Financial Control v. Henderson County, 208 N. C. 569, 181 S. E. 636, 101 A. L. R. 783.

Cited in Weaverville v. Hobbs, 212 N. C. 684, 194 S. E. 860.

§ 105-4. Rate of tax—Class A.—(a) Where the person or persons entitled to any beneficial interest in such property shall be the lineal issue, or lineal ancestor, or husband or wife of the person who died possessed of such property aforesaid, or stepchild of the person who died possessed of such property aforesaid, or child adopted by the decedent in conformity with the laws of this state or of any of the United States, or of any foreign kingdom or nation, at the following rates of tax (for each one hundred dollars ($100.00) or fraction thereof) of the value of such interest:

First $	10,000	above exemption	...	1 per cent

(b) The persons mentioned in this class shall be entitled to the following exemptions: Widows, ten thousand dollars ($10,000.00); each child under twenty-one years of age, five thousand dollars ($5,000.00); all other beneficiaries mentioned in this section, two thousand dollars ($2,000.00) each: Provided, a grandchild or grandchildren shall be allowed the single exemption or pro rata part of the exemption of the parent, when the parent of any one grandchild or group of grandchildren is deceased or when the parent is living and does not share in the estate: Provided, that any part of the exemption not applied to the share of the parent may be applied to the share of a grandchild or group of grandchildren of such parent. The same rule shall apply to the taking under a will, and also in case of a specific legacy or devise: Provided, that when any person shall die leaving a widow and child or children under twenty-one years of age, and leaving all or substantially all of his property by will to his wife, the wife shall be allowed an additional exemption of five thousand dollars ($5,000.00) for each child under twenty-one years of age. (1939, c. 158, s. 3.)

Cross Reference.—As to kinds of property contemplated by this section, see § 105-2.

Real Property, as well as personal, is included in this section. Norris v. Durfey, 168 N. C. 321, 84 S. E. 687.

Who Entitled to Exemption.—The court in State v. Scales, 172 N. C. 915, 90 S. E. 439, in construing the words "all other beneficiaries in this section," contained in sub-division one of the corresponding section of the prior law holds that the word "section" was intended and meant for the subdivision in which it was placed and does not apply to the whole section to exempt strangers of the blood of the testator along with the beneficiaries of the first class. It is to be noted, however, that the word "section" is no longer included in this clause, the word "subchapter" having been substituted therefor.

Interest under Discretionary Control of Another Taxable.—The interest acquired by the child of testator is taxable and does not escape by reason of the fact that the testator placed it under the discretionary control and disposition of its mother. In re Inheritance Tax, 172 N. C. 170, 90 S. E. 203.

§ 105-5. Rate of tax—Class B.—Where the person or persons entitled to any beneficial interest in such property shall be the brother or sister or descendant of the brother or sister, or shall be the uncle or aunt by blood of the person who died possessed as aforesaid, at the following rates of tax (for each one hundred dollars ($100.00) or fraction thereof) of the value of such interest:

First $	5,000		...	4 per cent
Over $	5,000	and to $ 10,000	..	5 per cent

§ 105-6. Rate of tax—Class C.—Where the person or persons entitled to any beneficial interest in such property shall be in any other degree of relationship or collateral consanguinity than is hereinbefore stated, or shall be a stranger in blood to the person who died possessed as aforesaid, or shall be a body politic or corporate, at the following rates of tax (for each one hundred dollars ($100.00) or fraction thereof) of the value of such interest:

§ 105-7. Estate tax.—(a) A tax in addition to the inheritance tax imposed by this schedule is hereby imposed upon the transfer of the net estate of every decedent dying after March 24, 1939, whether a resident or nonresident of the state, where the inheritance tax imposed by this schedule is in the aggregate of a lesser amount than the maximum credit of eighty per cent (80%) of the federal estate tax allowed by the Federal Estate Tax Act as contained in the Federal Revenue Act of one thousand nine hundred and twenty-six, or subsequent acts and amendments, because of said tax herein imposed, then the inheritance tax provided for by this schedule shall be increased by an estate tax on the net estate so that the aggregate amount of tax due this state shall be the maximum amount of credit allowed under said Federal Estate Tax Act; said additional tax shall be paid out of the same funds as any other tax against the estate.

(b) Where no tax is imposed by this schedule because of the exemptions herein or otherwise, and a tax is due the United States under the Federal Estate Tax Act, then a tax shall be due this state equal to the maximum amount of the credit allowed under said Federal Estate Tax Act.

(c) The administrative provisions of this schedule, wherever applicable, shall apply to the collection of the tax imposed by this section. The amount of the tax as imposed by subsection (a) of this section shall be computed in full accordance with the Federal Estate Tax Act as contained in the Federal Revenue Act of one thousand nine hundred and twenty-six, or subsequent acts and amendments. (1939, c. 158, s. 6.)

Editor's Note.—In 1924 the Federal Government provided in its estate tax act that the estate of the decedent should be credited up to 25% of Federal tax therein imposed for any payment of estate, inheritance, legacy, or succession taxes actually made to any of the several states, in respect of any property included in the gross estate. See Federal Revenue Act of 1924, Title III, part I, section 301(b). Since such credit is made to the estate, the Federal Government does not collect the 25% or less for the state, but leaves it to the state to make such collections under its own laws.

As a result, the legislatures of the several states, including New York, Massachusetts, Georgia and Pennsylvania, have amended their inheritance tax statutes to take advantage of such provisions. And this section was enacted with that view.

See 13 N. C. Law Rev. 271, 281, for article on "The Federal Estate Credit Clause."

§ 105-8. Credit allowed for gift tax paid.—In case a tax has been imposed under Schedule G of the Revenue Act of one thousand nine hundred and thirty-seven, or under subsequent acts, upon any gift, and thereafter upon the death of the donor, the amount thereof is required by any provision of this article to be included in the gross estate of the decedent, then there shall be credited against and applied in reduction of the tax, which would otherwise be chargeable against the beneficiaries of the estate under the provisions of this article, an amount equal to the tax paid with respect to such gift. Any additional tax found to be due because of the inclusion of gifts in the gross estate of the decedent, as provided herein, shall be a tax against the estate and shall be paid out of the same funds as any other tax against the estate. (1939, c. 158, s. 6½.)

Editor's Note.—For comment on this section, see 17 N. C. Law Rev. 381.

§ 105-9. Deductions.—In determining the clear market value of property taxed under this article, or schedule, the following deductions, and no others, shall be allowed:

(a) Taxes accrued and unpaid at the death of the decedent and unpaid ad valorem taxes accruing during the calendar year of death.

(b) Drainage and street assessments (fiscal year in which death occurred).

(c) Reasonable funeral and burial expenses.

(d) Debts of decedent.

(e) Estate and inheritance taxes paid to other states, and death duties paid foreign countries, and the net amount of federal estate taxes as finally assessed under the Revenue Act of one thousand nine hundred and twenty-six. No deduction will be allowed for federal estate taxes levied by subsequent acts and amendments.

(f) Amount actually expended for monuments not exceeding the sum of five hundred dollars ($500.00).

(g) Commissions of executors and administrators actually allowed and paid.

(h) Costs of administration, including reasonable attorneys' fees. (1939, c. 158, s. 7; 1941, c. 50, s. 2.)

Editor's Note.—Prior to the 1941 amendment, subsection (a) read, "Taxes that have become due and payable and the pro rata part of taxes accrued for the fiscal year that have not become due and payable."

No Corresponding Deduction Where Amount of Federal Tax Increased.—It is proper for a state statute levying inheritance and transfer taxes to refer to a federal statute in allowing deductions for amounts paid the federal government in estate taxes and in excepting from deductible amounts additional taxes levied by the federal government under a federal act effective on a certain date, and a taxpayer relying on the state statute for the right to make deductions may not complain that additional federal taxes not deductible, were computed according to an amendment of the federal act changing the schedule of rates but depending upon the original act for the tax-levying provisions, although the amendment was enacted subsequent to the enactment of the state revenue act, since in such case the additional federal estate taxes are levied by the original federal act, although the amount thereof is computed under the amendment changing the schedule of rates. Harwood v. Maxwell, 213 N. C. 55, 195 S. E. 54.

§ 105-10. Where no personal representative appointed, clerk of superior court to certify same to commissioner of revenue.—Whenever an estate subject to the tax under this article shall be settled or divided among the heirs-at-law, legatees or devi-sees, without the qualification and appointment of a personal representative, the clerk of the superior court of the county wherein the estate is situated shall certify the same to the commissioner of revenue, whereupon the commissioner of revenue shall proceed to appraise said estate and collect the inheritance tax thereon as prescribed by this article. (1939, c. 158, s. 8.)

§ 105-11. Tax to be paid on shares of stock before transferred, and penalty for violation.—(a) Property taxable within the meaning of this article shall include bonds or shares of stock in any incorporated company incorporated in this state, regardless of whether or not such incorporated company shall have any or all of its capital stock invested in property outside of this state and doing business outside of this state, and the tax on the transfer of any bonds and/or shares of stock in any such incorporated company owning property and doing business outside of the state shall be paid before waivers are issued for the transfer of such shares of stock. No corporation of this state shall transfer any bonds or stock of said corporation standing in the name of or belonging to a decedent or in the joint names of a decedent and one or more persons, or in trust for a decedent, unless notice of the time of such transfer is served upon the commissioner of revenue at least ten days prior to such transfer, nor until said commissioner of revenue shall consent thereto in writing. Any corporation making such a transfer without first obtaining consent of the commissioner of revenue as aforesaid shall be liable for the amount of any tax which may thereafter be assessed on account of the transfer of such bonds and/or stock, together with the interest thereon, and in addition thereto a penalty of one thousand dollars ($1,000.00), which liability for such tax, interest, and penalty, may be enforced by an action brought by the state in the name of the commissioner of revenue. The word "transfer" as used in this article shall be taken to include the passing of property or any interest therein, in possession or enjoyment, present or future, by distribution, or by statute, descent, devise, bequest, grant, deed, bargain, sale, gift, or otherwise. A waiver signed by the commissioner of revenue of North Carolina shall be full protection for any such company in the transfer of any such stock.

(b) Any incorporated company not incorporated in this state and owning property in this state which shall transfer on its books the shares of stock of any resident decedent holder of bonds and/or shares of stock in such company exceeding in value two hundred dollars ($200.00) before the inheritance tax, if any, has been paid, shall become liable for the payment of said tax; and any property held by such company in this state shall be subject to execution to satisfy same. A receipt or waiver signed by the commissioner of revenue of North Carolina shall be full protection for any such company in the transfer of any such stock. (1939, c. 158, s. 9.)

§ 105-12. Commissioner of revenue to furnish blanks and require reports of value of shares of stock.—(a) The commissioner of revenue shall prepare and furnish, upon application, blank forms covering such information as may be necessary to determine the amount of inheritance tax due the state of North Carolina on the transfer of any such bonds and/or stock; he shall determine the value of such bonds and/or stock, and shall have full authority to do all things necessary to make full and final settlement of all such inheritance taxes due or to become due.

(b) The commissioner of revenue shall have authority, under penalties provided in this article, to require that any reports necessary to a proper enforcement of this article be made by any such incorporated company owning property in this state. (1939, c. 158, s. 10.)

§ 105-13. Life insurance proceeds. — The proceeds of life insurance policies, payable at or after the death of the decedent, shall, in the following instances, be taxable at the rates provided in this article, subject to the exemptions in § 105-3:

1. When such insurance proceeds are receiveable by the executor as insurance under policies upon the life of the decedent, regardless of whether the premiums thereon were paid by the decedent.

2. When such insurance proceeds are receivable by all other beneficiaries as insurance under policies upon the life of the decedent—

(a) Where such insurance was purchased with premiums, or other consideration, paid directly or indirectly by the decedent, in the proportion that the amount so paid by the decedent bears to the total premiums paid for the insurance. In all such cases, it is declared that life insurance and the transfer of the proceeds thereof is testamentary in nature, and therefore, the payment of the premiums or other consideration by the decedent shall be deemed to effect a transfer from him at his death of benefits equal to such insurance proceeds, or such rateable proportion thereof regardless of (1) whether the decedent had taken or retained any incidents of ownership in said policies or (2) whether the decedent applied for said insurance or (3) whether the decedent was under a legal duty to pay said premiums or (4) whether said policies had been assigned irrevocably or otherwise, except as hereinafter stated. For the purpose of determining the amount of premiums or other consideration paid by decedent, if the decedent transferred, by assignment or otherwise, a policy of insurance, the amount paid directly or indirectly by the decedent shall be reduced by an amount which bears the same ratio to the amount paid directly or indirectly by the decedent as the consideration in money or money's worth received by the decedent for the transfer bears to the value of the policy at the time of the transfer;

(b) Or where, with respect to such insurance, the decedent possessed at his death any of the incidents of ownership, exercisable either alone or in conjunction with any other person. The term "incident of ownership," as used herein, does not include a reversionary interest: Provided, if the premiums or other considerations have been paid in whole or in part upon such insurance by a beneficiary thereof, said beneficiary shall not be taxed on that proportion of the insurance proceeds that the amount of the premiums or other consideration paid by said beneficiary bears to the total premiums paid on said insurance.

The decedent shall not be demed to have paid premiums or other consideration, within the meaning of this section, where the decedent has made a gift, either before or after the issuance of the policy, or money or property and the gift tax, if any, has been paid with respect to such gift, and the said money or property has been used by the donee to pay any premium or premiums.

This section shall not apply to the proceeds of insurance policies transferred, by assignment or otherwise, during the life of the decedent if the transfer did not constitute a gift, in whole or in part, under article 6, Schedule G, of this chapter, or in case the transfer was made at a time when said article was not in effect, or if the transfer would not have constituted a gift, in whole or in part, under said article had it been in effect at such time.

If a gift tax has been paid with respect to any gift of an insurance policy by the decedent, the amount of tax so paid shall be credited against the amount of inheritance tax due on the proceeds of such policy under this article, and if there was more than one beneficiary to such insurance, such credit shall be apportioned against the inheritance tax payable by each beneficiary in the ratio that the interest receivable by each beneficiary bears to the total amount of the insurance proceeds. (1939, c. 158, s. 11; 1943, c. 400, s. 1.)

Editor's Note.—The 1943 amendment rewrote this section.

Proceeds of Policy Procured by Beneficiary under Former Statute.—Section 11, ch. 127, Public Laws 1937, could not be construed to impose a separate and independent excise tax upon the receipt of the proceeds of life insurance policies when such policies were issued to the beneficiary who retained all rights and liabilities thereunder, in addition to imposing an inheritance tax on the proceeds of policies when they were issued to the insured or insured retained the right to change the beneficiary or some other incidents of ownership, since that section had to be construed as a part of the whole act, and when so construed, no such intent appeared from its language. Wachovia Bank, etc., Co. v. Maxwell, 221 N. C. 528, 20 S. E. (2d) 840.

Where the wife procured a policy of insurance upon the life of her husband, the policy being issued on her application and all rights and liabilities thereunder being retained by her, upon the husband's death the proceeds of the policy were not subject to a tax under the provisions of § 11, ch. 127, Public Laws 1937, as a gift inter vivos to take effect at or after death, even though the husband during his life voluntarily paid all premiums, since he did not procure the issuance of the policy and each payment of premium constituted a completed gift. § 105-14. Recurring taxes. — Where property transferred has been taxed under the provisions of this article, such property shall not be assessed and/or taxed on account of any other transfer of like kind occurring within two years from the date of the death of the former decedent: Provided, that this section shall apply only to the transferees designated in §§ 105-4 and 105-5. (1939, c. 158, s. 12.)

Cross Reference.—As to definition of "transfer," see § 105-11.

§ 105-15. When all heirs, legatees, etc., are discharged from liability.—All heirs, legatees, devisees, administrators, executors, and trustees shall only be discharged from liability for the amount of such taxes, settlement of which they may be charged with, by paying the same for the use aforesaid as hereinafter provided. (1939, c. 158, s. 13.)

§ 105-16. Discount for payment in six months; interest after twelve months; penalty after two years.—All taxes imposed by this article shall be due and payable at the death of the testator, intestate, grantor, donor, or vendor, and if the same are paid within six months from the date of the death of the testator, intestate, grantor, donor, vendor, a discount of three per centum (3%) shall be allowed and deducted from such taxes; if not paid within twelve months from date of death of the testator, intestate, grantor, donor, or vendor, such tax shall bear interest at the rate of six per centum (6%) per annum, to be computed from the expiration of twelve months from the date of the death of such testator, intestate, grantor, donor, or vendor until paid: Provided, that if the taxes herein levied shall not be paid in full within two years from date of death of testator, intestate, grantor, donor, or vendor, then and in such case a penalty of five per centum (5%) upon the amount of taxes remaining due and unpaid shall be added: Provided further, that the penalty of five per centum (5%) herein imposed may be remitted by the commissioner of revenue in case of unavoidable delay in settlement of estate or of pending litigation, and the commissioner of revenue is further authorized, in case of protracted litigation or other delay in settlement not attributable to laches of the party liable for the tax, to remit all or any portion of the interest charges accruing under this schedule, with respect to so much of the estate as was involved in such litigation or other unavoidable cause of delay: Provided, that time for payment and collection of such tax may be extended by the commissioner of revenue for good reasons shown. (1939, c. 158, s. 14.)

§ 105-17. Collection to be made by sheriff if not paid in two years.—If taxes imposed by this article are not paid within two years after the death of the decedent, it shall be the duty of the commissioner of revenue to certify to the sheriff of the county in which the estate is located the amount of tax due upon such inheritance, and the sheriff shall collect the same as other taxes, with an addition of two and one-half per cent (2½%) as sheriff's fees for collecting same, which fees shall be in addition to any salary or other compensation allowed by law to the sheriffs for their services; and the sheriff is hereby given the same rights of levy and sale upon any property upon which the said tax is payable as said officer is given for the collection of any and all other taxes. The sheriff shall make return to the commissioner of revenue of all such taxes within thirty days after collection. (1939, c. 158, s. 15.)

§ 105-18. Executor, etc., shall deduct tax.—The executor or administrator or other trustee paying any legacy or share in the distribution of any estate subject to said tax shall deduct therefrom at the rate prescribed, or if the legacy or share in the estate be not money, he shall demand payment of a sum to be computed at the same rates upon the appraised value thereof for the use of the state; and no executor or administrator shall pay or deliver any specific legacy or article to be distributed, subject to tax, except on the payment into his hands of a sum computed on its value as aforesaid; and in case of neglect or refusal on the part of said legatee to pay the same, such specific legacy or article, or so much thereof as shall be necessary, shall be sold by such executor or administrator at public sale, after notice to such legatee, and the balance that may be left in the hands of the executor or administrator shall be distributed as is or may be directed by law; and every sum of money retained by any executor or administrator or paid into his hands on account of any legacy or distributive share for the use of the state shall be paid by him to the proper officer without delay. (1939, c. 158, s. 16.)

§ 105-19. Legacy for life, etc., tax to be retained, etc., upon the whole amount.—If the legacy or devise subject to said tax be given to a beneficiary for life or for a term of years, or upon condition or contingency, with remainder to take effect upon the termination of the life estate or the happening of the condition or contingency, the tax on the whole amount shall be due and payable as in other cases, and said tax shall be apportioned between such life tenant and the remainderman, such apportionment to be made by computation based upon the mortuary and annuity tables set out as §§ 8-46 and 8-47, and upon the basis of six per centum (6%) of the gross value of the estate for the period of expectancy of the life tenant in determining the value of the respective interests. When property is transferred or limited in trust or otherwise, and the rights, interest, or estate of the transferees or beneficiaries are dependent upon contingencies or conditions whereby they may be wholly or in part created, defeated, extended, or abridged, a tax shall be imposed upon said transfer at the highest rate, within the discretion of the revenue commissioner, which on the happening of any of the said contingencies or conditions would be possible under the provisions of this article, and such tax so imposed shall be due and payable forthwith out of the property transferred, and the commissioner of revenue shall assess the tax on such property. (1939, c. 158, s. 17.)

§ 105-20. Legacy charged upon real estate, heir or devisee to deduct and pay to executor, etc.—Whenever such legacy shall be charged upon or payable out of real estate, the heir or devisee of such real estate, before paying the same to such legatee, shall deduct the tax therefrom at the rates aforesaid, and pay the amount so deducted to the executor or administrator or the commissioner of revenue, and the same shall remain a charge upon such real estate until paid, and in default thereof the same shall be enforced by the decrees of the court in the same manner as the payment of such legacy may be enforced: Provided, that all taxes imposed by this article shall be a lien upon the real and personal property of the estate on which the tax is imposed or upon the proceeds arising from the sale of such property from the time said tax is due and payable, and shall continue a lien until said tax is paid and receipted for by the proper officer of the state: Provided further, that no lien for inheritance or estate taxes which accrued prior to May first, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-eight shall attach or affect the land. (1939, c. 158, s. 18.)

§ 105-21. Computation of tax on resident and non-resident decedents.—A tax shall be assessed on the transfer of property, including property specifically devised or bequeathed, made subject to tax as aforesaid in this state of a resident or non-resident decedent, if all or any part of the estate of such decedent, wherever situated, shall pass to persons or corporations taxable under this article, which tax shall bear the same ratio to the entire tax which the said estate would have been subject to under this article if such decedent had been a resident of this state, and all his property, real and personal, had been located within this state, as such taxable property within this state bears to the entire estate, wherever situated. It shall be the duty of the personal representative to furnish to the commissioner of revenue such information as may be necessary or required to enable the commissioner to ascertain a proper computation of his tax. Where the personal representative fails or refuses to furnish information from which this assessment can be made, the property in this state liable to tax under this article shall be taxed at the highest rate applicable to those who are strangers in blood. (1939, c. 158, s. 19.)

§ 105-22. Duties of the clerks of the superior court.—(a) It shall be the duty of the clerk of the superior court to obtain from any executor or administrator, at the time of the qualification of such executor or administrator, the address of the personal representative qualifying, the names and addresses of the heirs-at-law, legatees, distributees, devisees, etc., as far as practical; the approximate value and character of the property or estate, both real and personal; the relationship of the heirs-at-law, legatees, devisees, etc., to the decedents, and forward the same to the commissioner of revenue on or before the tenth day of each month; and the commissioner of revenue shall furnish the several clerks blanks upon which to make said report, but the failure to so furnish blanks shall not relieve the clerk from the duty herein imposed. The clerk shall make no report of a death where the estate of a decedent is less than two thousand dollars ($2,000.00) in value, when the beneficiary is husband or wife or child or grandchild of the decedent. Any clerk of the superior court who shall fail, neglect, or refuse to file such monthly reports as required by this section shall be liable to a penalty in the sum of one hundred dollars ($100.00) to be recovered by the commissioner of revenue in an action to be brought by the commissioner of revenue.

(b) It shall also be the duty of the clerk of the superior court of each of the several counties of the state to enter in a book, prepared and furnished by the commissioner of revenue, to be kept for that purpose, and which shall be a public record, a condensed copy of the settlement of inheritance taxes of each estate, together with a copy of the receipt showing payment, or a certificate showing no tax due, as shall be certified to him by the commissioner of revenue.

(c) For these services, where performed by the clerk, the clerk shall be paid by the commissioner of revenue, when certificates and receipts are sent in to be recorded, as follows: For recording the certificate of the commissioner of revenue showing no tax due, the sum of fifty cents (50c). For recording the certificate of the commissioner of revenue showing that the tax received by the state is one hundred dollars ($100.00) or less, he shall be paid the sum of one dollar ($1.00). For recording the certificate of the commissioner of revenue showing that the tax received by the state is more than one hundred dollars ($100.00) and not over five hundred dollars ($500.00) he shall be paid the sum of two dollars ($2.00). For recording the certificate of the commissioner of revenue showing that the tax received by the state is more than five hundred dollars ($500.00) he shall be paid the sum of five dollars ($5.00), which sum shall be the maximum amount paid for recording the certificate of the commissioner of revenue for any one estate: Provided, that where the decedent owns real estate in one or more counties, other than the county in which the administration of the estate is had, then the fee of the clerks of the courts of such other counties for recording the certificates of the commissioner of revenue shall be fifty cents (50c) each, and the same fee shall be paid for like service by the clerks in case of the settlement of the estates of non-residents. The clerk of the superior court shall receive the sum of one dollar ($1.00) for making up and transmitting to the commissioner of revenue the report required in this section, containing a list of persons who died leaving property in his county during the preceding month, etc.: Provided further, that where the clerk of the superior court has failed or neglected to make the report required of him in this section, in that case he shall only receive for recording the certificate of the commissioner of revenue the sum of fifty cents (50c).

The clerks of the superior courts of the several counties shall be allowed the fees provided for in this section in addition to other fees or salaries received by them, and any and all provisions in local acts in conflict with this section are hereby repealed. (1939, c. 158, s. 20; 1943, c. 400, s. 1.)

Editor's Note.—The 1943 amendment increased the fee, in line thirty-one of subsection (c), from fifty cents to one dollar.

§ 105-23. Information by administrator and executor.—Every administrator shall prepare a statement in duplicate, showing as far as can be ascertained the names of all the heirs-at-law and their relationship to decedent, and every executor shall prepare a like statement, accompanied by a copy of the will, showing the relationship to the decedent of all legatees, distributees, and devisees named in the will, and the age at the time of the death of the decedent of all legatees, distributees, devisees to whom property is bequeathed or devised for life or for a term of years, and the names of those, if any, who have died before the decedent, together with the postoffice address of executor, administrator, or trustee. If any of the heirs-at-law, distributees, and devisees are minor children of the decedent, such statement shall also show the age of each of such minor children. The statement shall also contain a complete inventory of all the real property of the decedent located in and outside the state, and of all personal property, wherever situate, of the estate, of all insurance policies upon the life of the decedent, together with an appraisal under oath of the value of each class of property embraced in the inventory, and the value of the whole, together with any deductions permitted by this statute, so far as they may be ascertained at the time of filing such statement; and also the full statement of all gifts or advancements made by deed, grant, or sale to any person or corporation, in trust or otherwise, within three years prior to the death of the decedent. The statement herein provided for shall be filed with the commissioner of revenue at Raleigh, North Carolina, within six months after the qualification of the executor or administrator, upon blank forms to be prepared by the commissioner of revenue. If any administrator or executor fails or refuses to comply with any of the requirements of this section, he shall be liable to a penalty in the sum of five hundred dollars ($500.00), to be recovered by the commissioner of revenue in an action to be brought by the commissioner of revenue to collect such sum in the superior court of Wake county against such administrator or executor. The commissioner of revenue, for good cause shown, may remit all or any portion of the penalty imposed under the provisions of this section. Every executor or administrator may make a tentative settlement of the inheritance tax with the commissioner of revenue, based on the sworn inventory provided in this section: Provided, that this does not apply to estates of less than two thousand dollars ($2,000.00) in value when the beneficiaries are husband or wife or children or grandchildren, or parent or parents of the decedent. If any executor, administrator, collector, committee, trustee or any other fiduciary within or without this state holding or having control of any funds, property, trust or estate, the transfer of which becomes taxable under the provisions of this article, shall fail to file the statements herein required, within the times herein required, the commissioner of revenue is authorized and shall be required to secure the information herein required from the best sources available, and therefrom assess the taxes levied hereunder, together with the penalties herein and otherwise provided. (1939, c. 158, s. 21.)

§ 105-24. Access to safe deposits of a decedent; withdrawal of bank deposit, etc., payable to either husband or wife or the survivor.—No safe deposit company, trust company, corporation, bank, or other institution, person or persons having in possession or control or custody, in whole or in part, securities, deposits, assets, or property belonging to or standing in the name of a decedent, or belonging to or standing in the joint names of a decedent and one or more persons, shall deliver or transfer the same to any person whatsoever, whether in a representative capacity or not, or to the survivor or to the survivors when held in the joint names of a decedent and one or more persons, without retaining a sufficient portion or amount thereof to pay taxes or interest which would thereafter be assessed thereon under this article; but the commissioner of revenue may consent in writing to such delivery or transfer, and such consent shall relieve said safe deposit company, trust company, corporation, bank or other institution, person or persons from the obligation herein imposed. Provided: The clerk of superior court of the resident county of a decedent may authorize in writing any bank, safe deposit company, trust company, or any other institution to transfer to the properly qualified representative of the estate any funds on deposit in the name of the decedent or the decedent and one or more persons when the total amount of such deposit or deposits is three hundred dollars ($300.00) or less, and when such deposit or deposits compose the total cash assets of the estate. Such authorization shall have the same force and effect as when issued in writing by the commissioner of revenue. Every safe deposit company, trust company, corporation, bank or other institution, person, or persons engaged in the business of renting lock boxes for the safe keeping of valuable papers and personal effects, or having in their possession or supervision in such lock boxes such valuable papers or personal effects shall, upon the death of any person using such lock box, as a condition precedent to the opening of such lock box by the executor, administrator, personal representative, or co-tenant of such deceased person, require the presence of the clerk of the superior court of the county in which such lock box is located. It shall be the duty of the clerk of the superior court, or his representative, in the presence of an officer or representative of the safe deposit company, trust company, corporation, bank, or other institution, person or persons, to make an inventory of the contents of any such lock box and to furnish a copy of such inventory to the commissioner of revenue, to the executor, administrator, personal representative, or co-tenant of the decedent, and a copy to the safe deposit company, trust company, corporation, bank, or other institution, person, or persons having possession of such lock box. The clerk of the superior court shall be paid for his services rendered as hereinbefore described by the representative of said estate at the time of his qualification the sum of two ($2.00) dollars for the first hour or portion thereof actually required for said services, and the sum of one ($1.00) dollar for each additional hour or portion thereof actually required for said services, subject to a maximum fee of five ($5.00) dollars, and in addition thereto he shall receive the same mileage as is now allowed by law to witnesses for going from his office to any place located in his county to perform such services. The clerks of the superior court of the several counties shall be allowed the fees provided for in this section in addition to other fees or salaries received by them, and any and all provisions in local acts in conflict with this article are hereby repealed. Notwithstanding any of the provisions of this section any life insurance company may pay the proceeds of any policy upon the life of a decedent to the person entitled thereto as soon as it shall have mailed to the commissioner of revenue a notice, in such form as the commissioner of revenue may prescribe, setting forth the fact of such payment; but if such notice be not mailed, all of the provisions of this section shall apply.

Notwithstanding any of the provisions of this section, in any case where a bank deposit has been heretofore made or is hereafter made, or where building and loan stock has heretofore been issued or is hereafter issued, in the names of a husband and wife and payable to either or the survivor of them, such bank or building and loan association may, upon the death of either of such persons, upon mailing notice to the commissioner of revenue in such form as may be prescribed by the commissioner stating the facts with respect to such deposits or stock, allow the survivor to withdraw as much as eighty per cent of such deposit or stock, and the balance thereof shall be retained by the bank or building and loan association to cover any taxes that may thereafter be assessed against such deposit or stock under this article. When such taxes as may be due on such deposit or stock are paid, or when it is ascertained that there is no liability of such deposit or stock for taxes under this article, the commissioner of revenue shall furnish the bank or building and loan association his written consent for the payment of the retained percentage to the survivor; and the commissioner of revenue may furnish such written consent to the bank or building and loan association upon the qualification of a personal representative of the deceased. No bank or building and loan association shall be liable for any failure to withhold the specified percentage of such deposit or stock if the same was paid out prior to actual notice of the death of the deceased.

Failure to comply with the provisions of this section shall render such safe deposit company, trust company, corporation, bank or other institution, person or persons liable for the amount of the taxes and interest due under this article on the succession to such securities, deposits, assets, or property, but in any action brought under this provision it shall be a sufficient defense that the delivery or transfer of securities, deposits, assets, or property was made in good faith without knowledge of the death of the decedent and without knowledge of circumstances sufficient to place the defendant on inquiry. (1939, c. 158, s. 21½; 1943, c. 400, s. 1.)

Editor's Note.—The 1943 amendment changed the sentence of the first paragraph relating to clerk's fee, and inserted the second paragraph.

§ 105-25. Supervision by commissioner of revenue.—The commissioner of revenue shall have complete supervision of the enforcement of all provisions of the Inheritance Tax Act and the collections of all inheritance taxes found to be due thereunder, and shall make all necessary rules and regulations for the just and equitable administration thereof. He shall regularly employ such deputies, attorneys, examiners, or special agents as may be necessary for the reasonable carrying out of its full intent and purpose. Such deputies, attorneys, examiners, or special agents shall, as often as required to do so, visit the several counties of the state to inquire and ascertain if all inheritance taxes due from estates of decedents, or heirs-at-law, legatees, devisees, or distributees thereof have been paid; to see that all statements required by this article are filed by administrators and executors, or by the beneficiaries under wills where no executor is appointed; to examine into all statements filed by such administrators and executors; to require such administrators and executors to furnish any additional information that may be deemed necessary to determine the amount of tax that should be paid by such estate. If not satisfied, after investigation, with valuation returned by the administrator or executor, the deputy, attorney, examiner, or appraiser shall make an additional appraisal after proper examination and inquiry, or may, in special cases, recommend the appointment by the commissioner of revenue of a special appraiser who, in such case, shall be paid five dollars ($5.00) per day and expenses for his services. The administrator or executor, if not satisfied with such additional appraisal, may appeal within thirty days to the commissioner of revenue, which appeal shall be heard and determined as other cases. From this decision the administrator or executor shall have the right to appeal to the superior court of the county in which said estate is situated for the purpose of having said issue tried; said appeal to be made in the same way and manner as is now provided by law for appeals from the decisions of the public utilities commission: Provided, that the tax shall first be paid, or satisfactory surety bond in double the amount of any alleged deficiency shall be filed with the commissioner pending an appeal; and if it shall be determined upon trial that said tax or any part thereof was illegal or excessive, judgment shall be rendered therefor with interest, and the amount of tax so adjudged overpaid or declared invalid shall be certified by the clerk of court to the commissioner of revenue, who is authorized and directed to draw his account on the state treasurer for the amount thereof. (1939, c. 158, s. 22.)

§ 105-26. Proportion of tax to be repaid upon certain conditions.—Whenever debts shall be proven against the estate of a decedent after the distribution of legacies from which the inheritance tax has been deducted in compliance with this article, and the legatee is required to refund any portion of the legacy, a proportion of the said tax shall be repaid to him by the executor or administrator if the said tax has not been paid into the state treasury, or shall be refunded by the state treasurer, if it has been so paid in, upon certificate of the commissioner of revenue. (1939, c. 158, s. 23.)

§ 105-27. Commissioner of revenue may order executor, etc., to file account, etc.—If the commissioner of revenue shall discover that reports and accounts have not been filed, and the tax, if any, has not been paid as provided in this article, he shall issue a citation to the executor, administrator, or trustee of the decedent whose estate is subject to tax, to appear at a time and place therein mentioned, not to exceed twenty days from the date thereof, and show cause why said report and account should not be filed and said tax paid; and when personal service cannot be had, notice shall be given as provided for service of summons by publication in the county in which said estate is located; and if said tax shall be found to be due, the said delinquent shall be adjudged to pay said tax, interest and cost; if said tax shall remain due and unpaid for a period of thirty days after notice thereof, the commissioner of revenue shall certify the same to the sheriff, who shall make collection of said tax, cost and commissions for collection, as provided in § 105-16. (1939, c. 158, s. 24.)

§ 105-28. Failure of administrator, executor, or trustee to pay tax.—Any administrator, executor, or trustee who shall fail to pay the lawful inheritance taxes due upon any estate in his hands or under his control within two years from the time of his qualification shall be liable for the amount of the said taxes, and the same may be recovered in an action against such administrator, executor, or trustee, and the sureties on his official bond. Any clerk of the court who shall allow any administrator, executor, or trustee to make a final settlement of his estate without having paid the inheritance tax due by law, and exhibiting his receipt from the commissioner of revenue therefor, shall be liable upon his official bond for the amount of such taxes. (1939, c. 158, s. 25.)

§ 105-29. Uniform valuation.—(a) If the value of any estate taxed under this schedule shall have been assessed and fixed by the federal government for the purpose of determining the federal taxes due thereon prior to the time the report from the executor or administrator is made to the commissioner of revenue under the provisions of this article, the amount or value of such estate so fixed, assessed, and determined by the federal government shall be stated in such report. If the assessment of the estate by the federal government shall be made after the filing of the report by the executor or administrator with the commissioner of revenue, as provided in this article, the said executor or administrator shall, within thirty days after receipt of notice of the final determination by the federal government of the value or amount of said estate as assessed and determined for the purpose of fixing federal taxes thereon, make report of the amount so fixed and assessed by the federal government, under oath or affirmation, to the commissioner of revenue. If the amount of said estate as assessed and fixed by the federal government shall be in excess of that theretofore fixed or assessed under this schedule for the purpose of determining the amount of taxes due the state from said estate, then the commissioner of revenue shall reassess said estate and fix the value thereof at the amount fixed, assessed, and determined by the federal government, unless the said executor or administrator shall, within thirty days after notice to him from the commissioner of revenue, show cause why the valuation and assessment of said estate as theretofore made should not be changed or increased. If the valuation placed upon said estate by the federal government shall be less than that theretofore fixed or assessed under this article, the executor or administrator may, within thirty days after filing his return of the amount so fixed or assessed by the federal government, file with the commissioner of revenue a petition to have the value of said estate reassessed and the same reduced to the amount as fixed or assessed by the federal government. In either event the commissioner of revenue shall proceed to determine, from such evidence as may be brought to his attention or which he shall otherwise acquire, the correct value of the said estate, and if the valuation is changed, he shall reassess the taxes due by said estate under this article and notify the executor or administrator of such fact. In the event the valuation on said estate shall be decreased, and if there shall have been an overpayment of the tax, the said commissioner shall, within sixty days after the final determination of the value of said estate and the assessment of the correct amount of tax against the same, refund the amount of such excess tax theretofore paid.

(b) If the executor or administrator shall fail to file with the commissioner of revenue the return under oath or affirmation, stating the amount or value at which the estate was assessed by the federal government as provided for in this section, the commissioner of revenue shall assess and collect from the executor or administrator a penalty equal to twenty-five per cent (25%) of the amount of any additional tax which may be found to be due by such estate upon reassessment and reappraisal thereof, which penalty shall under no condition be less than twenty-five dollars ($25.00) or more than five hundred dollars ($500.00) and which cannot be remitted by the commissioner of revenue except for good cause shown. The commissioner of revenue is authorized and directed to confer quarterly with the department of internal revenue of the United States government to ascertain the value of estates in North Carolina which have been assessed for taxation by the federal government, and he shall cooperate with the said department of internal revenue, furnishing to said department such information concerning estates in North Carolina as said department may request. (1939, c. 158, s. 26.)

§ 105-30. Executor defined.—Wherever the word "executor" appears in this article it shall include executors, administrators, collectors, committees, trustees, and all fiduciaries. (1939, c. 158, s. 27.)

§ 105-31. Additional remedies for enforcement of tax. — In addition to all other remedies which may now exist under the law, or may hereafter be established, for the collection of the taxes imposed by the preceding sections of this article, the tax so imposed shall be a lien upon all of the property and upon all of the estate, with respect to which the taxes are levied, as well as collectible out of any other property, resort to which may be had for their payment; and the said taxes shall constitute a debt, which may be recovered in an action brought by the commissioner of revenue in any court of competent jurisdiction in this state, and/or in any court having jurisdiction of actions of debt in any state of the United States, and/or in any court of the United States against an administrator, executor, trustee, or personal representative, and/or any person, corporation, or concern having in hand any property, funds, or assets of any nature, with respect to which such tax has been imposed. No title or interest to such estate, funds, assets, or property shall pass, and no disposition thereof shall be made by any person claiming an interest therein until the said taxes have been fully paid. (1939, c. 158, s. 28.)

§ 105-32. Reciprocal relations in respect to death taxes.—(a) The terms "death tax" and "death taxes" as used in the five following subsections, shall include inheritance, succession, transfer and estate taxes and any taxes levied against the estate of a decedent upon the occasion of his death.

(b) At any time before the expiration of eighteen months after the qualification in any probate court in this commonwealth of any executor of the will or administrator of the estate of any nonresident decedent, such executor or administrator shall file with such court proof that all death taxes, together with interest or penalties thereon, which are due to the state of domicile of such decedent, or to any political subdivision thereof, have been paid or secured, or that no such taxes, interest or penalties are due, as the case may be, unless it appears that letters testamentary or of administration have been issued on the estate of such decedent in the state of his domicile in the four following subsections called the domiciliary state.

(c) The proof required by subsection (b) may be in the form of a certificate issued by the official or body charged with the administration of the death tax laws of the domiciliary state. If such proof has not been filed within the time limited in subsection (b), and if within such time it does not appear that letters testamentary or of administration have been issued in the domiciliary state, the register of probate shall forthwith upon the expiration of such time notify by mail the official or body of the domiciliary state charged with the administration of the death tax laws thereof with respect to such estate, and shall state in such notice so far as is known to him (a) the name, date of death and last domicile of such decedent, (b) the name and address of each executor or administrator, (c) a summary of the values of the real estate, tangible personalty, and intangible personalty, wherever situated, belonging to such decedent at the time of his death, and (d) the fact that such executor or administrator has not filed theretofore the proof required in subsection (b). Such register shall attach to such notice a plain copy of the will and codicils of such decedent, if he died testate, or, if he died intestate, a list of his heirs and next of kin, so far as they are known to such register. Within sixty days after the mailing of such notice the official or body charged with the administration of the death tax laws of the domiciliary state may file with such probate court in this commonwealth a petition for an accounting in such estate, and such official or body of the domiciliary state shall, for the purposes of this section, be a party interested for the purpose of petitioning such probate court for such accounting. If such petition be filed within said period of sixty days, such probate court shall decree such accounting, and upon such accounting being filed and approved shall decree either the payment of any such tax found to be due to the domiciliary state or subdivision thereof or the remission to a fiduciary appointed or to be appointed by the probate court, or other court charged with the administration of estates of decedents, of the domiciliary state, of the balance of the intangible personalty after the payment of creditors and expenses of administration in this commonwealth.

(d) No final account of an executor or administrator of a nonresident decedent shall be allowed unless either (1) proof has been filed as required by subsection (b), or (2) notice under subsection (c) has been given to the official or body charged with the administration of the death tax laws of the domiciliary state, and such official or body has not petitioned for an accounting under said subsection within sixty days after the mailing of such notice, or (3) an accounting has been had under said subsection (c), a decree has been made upon such accounting and it appears that the executor or administrator has paid such sums and remitted such securities, if any, as he was required to pay or remit by such decree, or (4) it appears that letters testamentary or of administration have been issued by the domiciliary state and that no notice has been given under said subsection (c).

(e) Subsections (a) to (d), inclusive, shall apply to the estate of a non-resident decedent, only in case the laws of the domiciliary state contain a provision, of any nature or however expressed, whereby this commonwealth is given reasonable assurance, as finally determined by the commissioner, of the collection of its death taxes, interest and penalties from the estates of decedents dying domiciled in this commonwealth, when such estates are administered in whole or in part by a probate court, or other court charged with the administration of estates of decedents, in such other state.

(f) The provisions of subsections (a) to (e), inclusive, shall be liberally construed in order to insure that the domiciliary state of any non-resident decedent whose estate is administered in this commonwealth shall receive any death taxes, together with interest and penalties thereon, due to it from the estate of such decedent. (1939, c. 158, s. 29.)

Art. 2. Schedule B. License Taxes.

§ 105-33. Taxes under this article.—Taxes in this article or schedule shall be imposed as state license taxes for the privilege of carrying on the business, exercising the privilege, or doing the act named, and nothing in this article shall be construed to relieve any person, firm, or corporation from the payment of the tax prescribed in this article or schedule: Provided, the obtaining of a license required by this article shall not of itself authorize the practice of a profession, business, or trade for which a state qualification license is required.

(a) If the business made taxable or the privilege to be exercised under this article or schedule is carried on at two or more separate places, a separate state license for each place or location of such business shall be required.

(b) Every state license issued under this article or schedule shall be for twelve months, shall expire on the thirty-first day of May of each year, and shall be for the full amount of tax prescribed: Provided, that where the tax is levied on an annual basis and the licensee begins such business or exercises such privilege after the first day of January and prior to the thirty-first day of May of each year, then such licensee shall be required to pay one-half of the tax prescribed other than the tax prescribed to be computed and levied upon a gross receipts and/or percentage basis for the conducting of such business or the exercising of such privilege to and including the thirty-first day of May, next following. Every county, city and town license issued under this article or schedule shall be for twelve months, and shall expire on the thirty-first day of May or thirtieth day of June of each year as the governing body of such county, city or town may determine: Provided, that where the licensee begins such business or exercises such privilege after the expiration of seven months of the current license year of such municipality, then such licensee shall be required to pay one-half of the tax prescribed other than the tax prescribed to be computed upon a gross receipts and/or percentage basis.

(c) The state license issued under §§ 105-41, 105-42, 105-43, 105-45, 105-48, 105-53, 105-54, 105-55, 105-56, 105-57, 105-58 and 105-59 shall be and constitute a personal privilege to conduct the profession or business named in the state license, shall not be transferable to any other person, firm or corporation and shall be construed to limit the person, firm or corporation named in the license to conducting the profession or business and exercising the privilege named in the state license to the county and/or city and location specified in the state license, unless otherwise provided in this article or schedule. Other license issued for a tax year for the conduct of a business at a specified location shall upon a sale or transfer of the business be deemed a sufficient license for the succeeding purchaser for the conduct of the business specified at such location for the balance of the tax year: Provided, that if the holder of a license under this schedule moves the business for which a license has been paid to another location, a new license may be issued to the licensee at a new location for the balance of the license year, upon surrender of the original license for cancellation and the payment of a fee of five dollars ($5.00) for each license certificate reissued.

(d) Whenever, in any section of this article or schedule, the tax is graduated with reference to the population of the city or town in which the business is to be conducted or the privilege exercised, the minimum tax provided in such section shall be applied to the same business or privilege when conducted or exercised outside of the municipality, unless such business is conducted or privilege exercised within one mile of the corporate limits of such municipality, in which event the same tax shall be imposed and collected as if the business conducted or the privilege exercised were inside of the corporate limits of such municipality: Provided, that with respect to taxes in this article, assessed on a population basis, the same rates shall apply to incorporated towns and unincorporated places or towns alike, with the best estimate of population available being used as a basis for determining the tax in unincorporated places or towns. The term "places or towns" means any unincorporated community, point or collection of people having a geographical name by which it may be generally known, and is so generally designated.

(e) All state taxes imposed by this article shall be paid to the commissioner of revenue, or to one of his deputies; shall be due and payable on or before the first day of June of each year, and after such date shall be deemed delinquent, and subject to all the remedies available and the penalties imposed for the payment of delinquent state license and privilege taxes: Provided, that if a person, firm, or corporation begins any business or the exercise of any privilege requiring a license under this article or schedule after the thirty-first day of May and prior to the thirty-first day of the following May of any year, then such person, firm, or corporation shall apply for and obtain a state license for conducting such business or exercising any such privilege in advance, and before the beginning of such business or the exercise of such privilege; and a failure to so apply and to obtain such state license shall be and constitute a delinquent payment of the state license tax due, and such person, firm, or corporation shall be subject to the remedies available and penalties imposed for the payment of such delinquent taxes.

(f) The taxes imposed and the rates specified in this article or schedule shall apply to the subjects taxed on and after the first day of June, one thousand nine hundred thirty-nine, and prior to said date the taxes imposed and the rates specified in the Revenue Act of one thousand nine hundred thirty-seven shall apply.

(g) It shall be the duty of a grantee, transferee, or purchaser of any business or property subject to the state license taxes imposed in this article to make diligent inquiry as to whether the state license tax has been paid, but when such business or property has been granted, sold, transferred, or conveyed to an innocent purchaser for value and without notice that the vendor owed or is liable for any of the state license taxes imposed under this article, such property, while in the possession of such innocent purchaser, shall not be subject to any lien for such state license taxes.

(h) All county or municipal taxes levied by the board of county commissioners of any county, or by the board of aldermen or other governing body of any municipality within this state, under the authority conferred in this article, shall be collected by the sheriff or tax collector of such county and by the tax collector of such city, and the county or municipal license shall be issued by such officer.

(i) Any person, firm, or corporation who shall willfully make any false statement in an application for a license under any section of this article or schedule shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be fined and/or imprisoned in the discretion of the court, which fine shall not be less than the amount of tax specified under such section, and shall be in addition to the amount of such tax.

(j) Wherever the business taxed in §§ 105-61, 105-62, 105-79 and/or 105-84 is of a seasonal character at summer or winter resorts, license may be issued for such seasonal business at one-half of the annual license tax for the four months period from June first to October first in summer resorts and from December first to April first in winter resorts. (1939, c. 158, s. 100; 1943, c. 400, s. 2.)

Editor's Note.—The 1943 amendment added the proviso to the first paragraph. It substituted near the beginning of subsection (c) the references to the enumerated sections for the words "thus obtained." The amendment also inserted in said subsection the provision relating to sale or transfer of business.

Several Kinds of Business Conducted by Individual.—Where several occupations are conducted in a town by the same individual, a privilege tax on one does not prevent a similar tax on another. Guano Co. v. Tarboro, 126 N. C. 68, 35 S. E. 231.

Where Goods Manufactured in Another State.—The right of a state to tax traders, professions and avocations within the borders of the state is unquestionable, though the goods dealt in be manufactured in another state. State v. Gorham, 115 N. C. 721, 20 S. E. 179.

Cited in State v. Warren, 211 N. C. 75, 189 S. E. 108.

§ 105-34. Amusement parks. — Every person, firm, or corporation engaged in the business of operating a park, open to the public as a place of amusement, and in which there may be either a bowling alley, trained animal show, penny or nickel machine for exhibiting pictures, theatrical performance, or similar entertainment, shall apply for and obtain from the commissioner of revenue a state license for the privilege of conducting such amusement park, and shall pay for such license the following tax:

State license for four months	400.00
State license for eight months	600.00
State license for twelve months	800.00

This section shall not apply to bathing beaches which are not operated for more than four months each year.

(a) The licensee shall have the privilege of doing any or all of the things set out in this section; but the operation of a carnival, circus, or a show of any kind that moves from place to place shall not be allowed under the state license provided for in this section.

(b) Counties shall not levy a license tax on the business taxed under this section. (1939, c. 158, s. 102.)

§ 105-35. Amusements—traveling theatrical companies, etc.—Every person, firm, or corporation engaged in the business of a traveling theatrical, traveling moving picture, and/or traveling vaudeville company, giving exhibitions or performances in any hall, tent, or other place not licensed under §§ 105-34 or 105-37, whether on account of municipal ownership or otherwise, shall apply for and obtain from the commissioner of revenue a state license for the privilege of engaging in such business, and pay for such license a tax of twenty-five dollars ($25.00) for each day or part of a day's exhibits or performances: Provided, that

(a) Artists exhibiting paintings or statuary work of their own hands shall only pay two dollars ($2.00) for such state license.

(b) Such places of amusement as do not charge more than a total of fifty cents (50c) for admission at the door, including a reserved seat, and shall perform or exhibit continuously in any given place as much as one week, shall be required to pay for such state license a tax of twenty-five dollars ($25.00) per week.

(c) The owner of the hall, tent, or other place where such amusements are exhibited or performances held shall be liable for the tax.

(d) In lieu of the state license tax, hereinbefore provided for in this section, such amusement companies, consisting of not more than ten performers, may apply for an annual statewide license, and the same may be issued by the commissioner of revenue for the sum of three hundred dollars ($300.00), paid in advance, prior to the first exhibition in the state, and shall be valid in any county of this state, and shall be in full payment of all state license taxes imposed in this section.

(e) Any traveling organization which exhibits animals or conducts side shows in connection with its exhibitions or performances shall not be taxed under this section, but shall be taxed as herein otherwise provided.

(f) The owner, manager, or proprietor of any such amusements described in this section shall apply in advance to the commissioner of revenue for a state license for each county in which a performance is to be given.

Upon all performances taxable under this section there is levied, in addition to the license tax levied in this section, a tax upon the gross receipts of such business at the rate of tax levied in Sched-

tile E, §§ 105-164 to 105-187, upon retail sales of merchandise. The license tax herein levied shall be treated as an advance payment of the tax upon gross receipts herein levied, and the license tax shall be applied as a credit upon or advance payment of the gross receipts tax. The commissioner of revenue may adopt such regulations as may be necessary to effectuate the provisions of this section and shall prescribe the form and character of reports to be made, and shall have such authority of supervision as may be necessary to effectuate the purposes of this subchapter.

(g) Counties, cities and towns may levy a license tax not in excess of the license tax levied by the state.

(h) Where the taxpayer elects to pay an annual state-wide license in the sum of three hundred dollars ($300.00) in advance, as provided for in subsection (d) of this section, counties, cities and towns may each levy a license tax not in excess of ten dollars ($10.00) per week, provided such places of amusement do not charge more than a total of fifty cents (50c) for admission at the door, as provided for in subsection (b) of this section. Any person, firm, or corporation engaged under contract or for compensation in the business of checking the attendance of any moving picture or show for the purpose of ascertaining attendance or amount of admission receipts at any theatre or theatres shall apply for and obtain from the commissioner of revenue a state-wide license for the privilege of engaging in such business in this state, and shall pay for such license an annual tax of two hundred and fifty dollars ($250.00).

It is the intent of this subsection that every vehicle used in transporting circus property or personnel, whether owned by the circus or by others, shall be counted in computing the tax.

(c) Every person, firm, or corporation by whom any show or exhibition taxed under this section is owned or controlled shall file with the commissioner of revenue, not less than five days before entering this state for the purpose of such exhibitions or performances therein, a statement, under oath, setting out in detail such information as may be required by the commissioner of revenue covering the places in the state where exhibitions or performances are to be given, the character of the exhibitions, the mode of travel, the number of cars or other conveyances used in transferring such shows, and such other and further information as may be required. Upon receipt of such statement, the commissioner of revenue shall fix and determine the amount of state license tax with which such person, firm, or corporation is chargeable, shall endorse his findings upon such statement, and shall transmit a copy of such statement and findings to each such person, firm, or corporation to be charged, to the sheriff or tax collector of each county in which exhibitions or performances are to be given, and to the division deputy of the commissioner of revenue, with full and particular instructions as to the state license tax to be paid. Before giving any of the exhibitions or performances provided for in such statement, the person, firm, or corporation making such statement shall pay the commissioner of revenue the tax so fixed and determined. If one or more of such exhibitions or performances included in such statement and for which the tax has been paid shall be canceled, the commissioner of revenue may, upon proper application made to him, refund the tax for such canceled exhibitions or performances. Every such person, firm, or corporation shall give to the commissioner of revenue a notice of not less than five days before giving any of such exhibitions or performances in each county.

(d) The sheriff of each county in which such exhibitions or performances are advertised to be exhibited shall promptly communicate such information to the commissioner of revenue; and if the statement required in this section has not been filed as provided herein, or not filed in time for certified copies thereof, with proper instructions, to be transmitted to the sheriffs of the several counties and the division deputy commissioner, the commissioner of revenue shall cause his division deputy to attend at one or more points in the state where such exhibitions or performances are advertised or expected to exhibit, for the purpose of securing such statement prescribed in this section, of fixing and determinining the amount of state license tax with which such person, firm, or corporation is taxable, and to collect such tax or give instructions for the collection of such tax.

(e) Every such person, firm, or corporation by whom or which any such exhibition or performance described in this section is given in any county, city or town, or within five miles thereof, wherein is held an annual agricultural fair, during the week of such annual agricultural fair, shall pay a state license of one thousand dollars ($1,000.00) for each exhibition or performance in addition to the license tax first levied in this section, to be assessed and collected by the commissioner of revenue or his duly authorized deputy.

(f) The provisions of this section, or any other section of this article, shall not be construed to allow without the payment of the tax imposed in this section, any exhibition or performance described in this section for charitable, benevolent, educational, or any other purpose whatsoever, by any person, firm, or corporation who is engaged in giving such exhibitions or performances, no matter what terms of contract may be entered into or under what auspices such exhibitions or performances are given. It being the intent and purpose of this section that every person, firm, or corporation who or which is engaged in the business of giving such exhibitions or performances, whether a part or all of the proceeds are for charitable, benevolent, educational, or other purposes or not, shall pay the state license tax imposed in this section.

(g) Every such person, firm, or corporation who shall give any such exhibitions or performances mentioned in this section within this state, before the statement provided for has been filed with the commissioner of revenue, or before the state license tax has been paid, or which shall, after the filing of such statement, give any such exhibitions or performances taxable at a higher rate than the exhibition or performance authorized by the commissioner of revenue upon the statement filed, shall pay a state license tax of fifty per cent (50%) greater than the tax hereinbefore prescribed, to be assessed and collected either by the commissioner of revenue or by his division deputy.

Upon all performances taxable under this section there is levied, in addition to the license tax levied in this section, a tax upon the gross receipts of such business at the rate of tax levied in Schedule E, §§ 105-164 to 105-187, upon retail sales of merchandise. The license tax herein levied shall be treated as an advance payment of the tax upon gross receipts herein levied, and the license tax shall be applied as a credit upon or advance payment of the gross receipts tax. The commissioner of revenue may adopt such regulations as may be necessary to effectuate the provisions of this section and shall prescribe the form and character of reports to be made, and shall have such authority of supervision as may be necessary to effectuate the purposes of this subchapter.

(h) In lieu of the tax levied in § 105-86, each circus, or other form of amusement taxed under this section, advertising by means of outdoor advertising displays, a bill posting or as otherwise defined in § 105-86, shall pay a tax of one hundred dollars ($100.00) for a statewide license for the privilege of advertising in this manner, said tax to be in addition to the other taxes levied in this section.

(i) Counties, cities, and towns may levy a license tax on the business taxed under this section not in excess of one-half of the license tax levied by the state, but shall not levy a parade tax or a tax under subsection (h) of this section. (1939, c. 158, s. 106.)

§ 105-39. Amusement—carnival companies, etc. —Every person, firm, or corporation engaged in the business of a carnival company or a show of like kind, moving picture and vaudeville shows, museums and menageries, merry-go-rounds, ferris wheels, riding devices, and other like amusements, and enterprises, conducted for profit, under the same general management, or an aggregate of shows, amusements, eating places, riding devices, or any of them operating together on the same lot or contiguous lots or streets, traveling from place to place, whether owned and actually operated by separate persons, firms, or corporations or not, filling week-stand engagements, or giving week-stand exhibitions, under canvas or not, shall apply for and obtain from the commissioner of revenue a state license for the privilege of engaging in such business or amusement, and shall pay for such license for each week, or part of a week, a tax based according to the population of the city or town in which such carnival is showing as follows:

In cities or towns of less than 2,500 population	$100.00
In cities or towns of 2,500 population and less than 10,000	200.00
In cities or towns of more than 10,000 population	300.00

Provided that any carnival operating within a radius of five miles of any city shall pay the same tax as if they were actually showing within the city limits of said town. Provided further that if such a carnival operates over five miles from any city or town such a carnival shall be liable for a tax of one hundred dollars ($100.00) per week or part of a week.

Provided, that when a person, firm, or corporation exhibits only riding devices which are not a part of, nor used in connection with any carnival company, the tax shall be ten dollars ($10.00) per week for each such riding device, provided that counties, cities and towns may levy and collect a license tax upon such riding devices not in excess of five dollars ($5.00) for each such device.

Provided, further, that it shall be unlawful under this section for the owners and/or operators of riding devices to operate, or cause to be operated, any show, game, stand or other attraction whatsoever.

(a) This section shall not repeal any local act prohibiting any of the shows, exhibitions, or performances mentioned in this section, or limit the authority of the board of county commissioners of any county, or the board of aldermen or other governing body of any city or town, in prohibiting such shows, exhibitions, or performances.

If the commissioner of revenue shall issue a state license for any such show, exhibition, or performance in any county or municipality having a local statute prohibiting the same, then the said state license shall not authorize such show, exhibition, or performance to be held in such county or municipality, but the commissioner of revenue shall refund, upon proper application, the tax paid for such state license.

(b) No person, firm, or corporation, nor any aggregation of same, giving such shows, exhibitions, or performances, shall be relieved from the payment of the tax levied in this section, regardless of whether or not the state derives a benefit from same. Nor shall any carnival operating or giving performances or exhibitions, in connection with any fair in North Carolina, be relieved from the payment of tax levied in this section. It is the intent and purpose of this section that every person, firm, or corporation, or aggregation of same which is engaged in the giving of such shows, exhibitions, performances, or amusements, whether the whole or a part of the proceeds are for charitable, benevolent, educational, or other purposes whatsoever, shall pay the state license taxes provided for in this section.

It is not the purpose of this article to discourage agricultural fairs in the state, and to further this cause, no carnival company will be allowed to play a "Still Date" in any county where there is a regularly advertised agricultural fair, fifteen days prior to the dates of said fair. An agricultural fair shall be construed as meaning one that has operated at least one year prior to March 24, 1939.

Upon all performances taxable under this section there is levied, in addition to the license tax levied in this section, a tax upon the gross receipts of such business at the rate of tax levied in Schedule E, §§ 105-164 to 105-187, upon retail sales of merchandise. The license tax herein levied shall be treated as an advance payment of the tax upon the gross receipts herein levied, and the license tax shall be applied as a credit upon or advance payment of the gross receipts tax. The commissioner of revenue may adopt such regulations as may be necessary to effectuate the provisions of this section and shall prescribe the form and character of reports to be made, and shall have such authority or supervision as may be necessary to effectuate the purposes of this subchapter.

Nothing herein contained shall prevent American Legion Posts in North Carolina from holding fairs or tobacco festivals on any dates which they may select, provided said fairs and festivals have heretofore been held as annual events.

(c) Counties, cities and towns may levy a license tax on the business taxed hereunder not in excess of one-half of that levied by the state. (1939, c. 158, c. 107; 1941, c. 50, s. 3.)

Editor's Note.—The 1941 amendment struck out the third paragraph of this section and inserted the above in place thereof.

Every person engaged in the public practice of accounting as a principal, or as a manager of the business of public accountant, shall pay for such license twenty-five dollars ($25.00), and in addition shall pay a license of twelve and fifty one-hundredths dollars ($12.50) for each person employed who is engaged in the capacity of supervising or handling the work of auditing, devising or installing systems of accounts.

Every licensed mortician or embalmer shall in like manner apply for and obtain from the commissioner of revenue a state-wide license for practicing his profession, whether for himself or in the employ of another of ten dollars ($10.00).

(a) Only one-half of the tax levied in this section shall be collected from those persons whose gross receipts from the business or profession for the preceding year did not exceed one thousand dollars ($1,000.00).

Such rule shall be served by the sheriff upon said person twenty days before the next term of the court, and if at the return term of court such person fails to show sufficient cause, the said judge may enter a judgment suspending the professional license of such person until all such tax as may be due shall have been paid, and such order of suspension shall be binding upon all courts, boards and commissions having authority of law in this state with respect to the granting or continuing of license to practice any such profession.

Editor's Note.—The 1941 amendment struck out a provision of subsection (c) excepting photographers, etc.

The 1943 amendment added the last sentence of the fourth paragraph. It also directed that former subsection (d), providing an exception as to certain temporary photography, be sericken out. This subsection had already been omitted upon codification.

Persons Making "Negatives" Are Photographers Subject to License Tax.—To solicit persons to have their photographs taken, arrange for the sitting, and actually have the camera present and take what is popularly called a picture, but in fact is a "negative," which is the outline of the subject on glass, is engaging within the state in the profession or business of photography within the meaning of this section. Lucas v. Charlotte, 14 F. Supp. 163, 167.

Although the "negatives" are sent to another state for development the assessment of the tax under this section on photographers does not constitute an interference with or burden upon interstate commerce. Id.

This section gives to each county and city the privilege of levying a similar tax upon photographers. Lucas v. Charlotte, 14 F. Supp. 163, 165.

State v. Warren, 211 N. C. 75, 189 S. E. 108.

Quoted in State v. Dixon, 215 N. C. 161, 1 S. E. (2d) 521.

No county shall levy any license tax on the business taxed under this section, but cities and towns may levy a license tax not in excess of that levied by the state. (1939, c. 158, s. 114.)

§ 105-47. Dealers in horses and/or mules.—Every person, firm, or corporation engaged in the business of purchasing for the purpose of resale, either at wholesale or retail, horses and/or mules shall apply for and procure from the commissioner of revenue a state license for the privilege of engaging in such business in this state and shall pay for such license an annual tax for each location where such business is carried on as follows:

Where not more than one carload of horses and/or mules is purchased for the purpose of resale	$ 25.00
Where more than one carload and not more than two carloads of horses and/or mules are purchased for the purpose of resale 50.00

Where more than two carloads of horses and/or mules are purchased for the purpose of resale 100.00

For the purpose of calculating the amount of tax due under the above schedule, a carload of horses and/or mules shall be twenty-five (25) and purchases for the preceding license tax year shall be used as a medium for arriving at the amount of tax due for the ensuing year: Provided, however, that if during the current license year horses and/or mules are purchased for the purpose of resale in such quantities that would establish liability for a greater tax than that previously paid, it shall be immediately remitted to the commissioner of revenue with the license which has already been issued in order that it may be canceled and a corrected license issued.

In addition to the above license, every person, firm, or corporation engaged in the business of purchasing for the purpose of resale and/or selling horses and/or mules at public auction, either on his or its own behalf or for any other person, whether a commission or fee is or is not charged, shall apply for and procure from the commissioner of revenue a state license for each place of auction and shall pay for such license an annual tax of one hundred dollars ($100.00).

In addition to the above license, every transient vendor of horses and/or mules who has no permanent or established place of business in this state shall apply for and procure from the commissioner of revenue a state license for each county in which horses and/or mules are sold and shall pay for such license an annual tax of three hundred dollars ($300.00).

(a) In addition to the annual licenses levied in this section, every person, firm, or corporation, engaged in the business of purchasing for the purpose of resale, either at wholesale or retail, horses and/or mules shall pay a tax of three dollars ($3.00) per head on all such horses and/or mules purchased for the purpose of resale. "Purchase" shall be taken to mean and shall include all horses and/or mules acquired or received as a result of outright purchase or on consignment, account or otherwise for resale, either at wholesale or retail: Provided, however, that "purchases" shall not include the acquisition of horses and/or mules which are acquired or received as a result of an allowance for credit for horses and/or mules taken in part payment on horses and/or mules subject to the tax imposed in this section nor shall it include horses and/or mules which have been repossessed as a result of nonpayment of the original sales or purchase price. "Purchases" shall include all horses and/or mules acquired for the purpose of resale, either at wholesale or retail, whether such horses and/or mules are shipped into this state by railroad or brought in otherwise.

The original or first dealer or consignee, purchasing or receiving horses and/or mules in this state, shall be primarily liable for payment of the additional per-head tax levied in this section. Horse and/or mule auctioneers, engaged in the business of purchasing, acquiring or receiving on consignment, account or otherwise, either as principal or agent, horses and/or mules from out-of-state dealers or other persons and selling same at either private or public auction, shall be primarily liable for payment of the additional per-head tax levied in this section unless sold to a licensed dealer for the purpose of resale. In order to avoid double taxation, dealers purchasing or acquiring horses and/or mules from another established dealer located within this state may be relieved of reporting the additional per-head tax on such horses and/or mules acquired from another dealer located within this state, provided an official receipt or statement from the commissioner of revenue or his duly authorized agents is produced, showing that the additional per-head tax levied in this section has been paid.

(b) The additional per-head tax levied in this section on purchases of horses and/or mules purchased for the purpose of resale, either at wholesale or retail, shall be due and payable immediately upon receipt of such horses and/or mules within this state. The commissioner of revenue may, however, in his discretion, where he thinks circumstances justify it, permit licensed and established dealers to file monthly reports, which reports shall be due to be filed on or before the fifteenth (15th) of each month for all purchases during the preceding month, and such report when filed shall be accompanied by a remittance for the amount of tax shown to be due. Reports shall be filed in such form and in such manner as may be prescribed by the commissioner of revenue, and failure to file the report herein prescribed and pay the tax as shown to be due thereon shall subject such dealer to a penalty of five per cent (5%) of the amount of tax due for each month or fraction thereof that such report may be delinquent.

(c) Every person, firm, or corporation engaged in the business of purchasing for the purpose of resale, either at wholesale or retail, horses and/or mules shall keep a full, true and accurate record of all purchases and sales, including purchase invoices and freight bills covering such purchases and sales of all horses and/or mules until such purchases and sales, including purchase invoices and freight bills, have been checked by a duly authorized agent of the commissioner of revenue. Failure to comply with the provisions of this section in this respect shall be prima facie evidence of attempting to evade the additional taxes levied in this section and shall subject such dealer, in addition to all other penalties imposed by this article, to the additional per-head tax on all purchases and/or sales from whatever source such horses and/or mules are acquired or received, and it shall be the duty of the commissioner of revenue or his duly authorized agents to assess the additional tax upon an estimation of purchases and/or sales from the best information obtainable.

(d) As a condition to the issuance or the continuance of the annual license levied in this section, and in order to secure the payment of the additional per-head tax levied on purchases and/or sales in this section, the commissioner of revenue may in his discretion, when it appears reasonably necessary therefor, require any dealer in horses and/or mules, applying for a license under this section, to post a surety bond or other adequate security sufficient to guarantee and secure the payment of any tax due under this section.

(e) Any person, firm, or corporation, required to procure from the commissioner of revenue a license under this section, who shall purchase and sell or offer for sale by principal or agent any horses and/or mules without first having obtained such license, or shall fail, neglect or refuse to file any report and pay the additional taxes levied in this section when due and payable, shall in addition to the other penalties imposed by this article, be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction shall be fined not to exceed one hundred dollars ($100.00) and/or imprisoned not less than thirty (30) days within the discretion of the court.

(f) Counties, cities and towns may levy an annual license tax on the business taxed under this section not in excess of twelve dollars and fifty cents ($12.50). (1939, c. 158, s. 115; 1941, c. 50, s. 3.)

Editor's Note.—The 1941 amendment added at the end of the second sentence of the second paragraph of subsection (a) the following: "unless sold to a licensed dealer for the purpose of resale."

§ 105-48. Phrenologists.—Any person engaged in the practice of phrenology for compensation shall procure from the commissioner of revenue a state license for engaging in such practice, and shall pay for same a tax of two hundred dollars ($200.00) for each county in which such person does business.

Counties, cities, and towns may levy any license tax on the business taxed in this section. (1939, c. 158, s. 116.)

§ 105-49. Bicycle dealers.—Any person, firm, or corporation engaged in the business of buying and/or selling bicycles, supplies and accessories shall apply for and procure a state license from the commissioner of revenue for the privilege of transacting such business, and shall pay tax for such license as follows:

In cities and towns of less than 10,000 population	$10.00
In cities and towns of 10,000 and less than 20,000 population	20.00
In cities or towns of 20,000 population or more	25.00

Counties shall not levy a license tax on the business taxed under this section, but cities and towns may levy a license tax not in excess of that levied by the state. (1939, c. 158, s. 117.)

Cross Reference.—For temporary reduction of the taxes levied under this section, see § 105-113.1.

§ 105-50. Pawnbrokers. — Every person, firm, or corporation engaged in and conducting the business of lending or advancing money or other things of value for a profit, and taking as a pledge for such loan specific articles of personal property, to be forfeited if payment is not made within a definite time, shall be deemed a pawnbroker, and shall pay for the privilege of transacting such business an annual license as follows:

In cities or towns of less than 10,000 population	$200.00
In cities or towns of 10,000 and less than 15,000 population	250.00
In cities or towns of 15,000 and less than 20,000 population	300.00
In cities or towns of 20,000 and less than 25,000 population	350.00
In cities or towns of 25,000 population or more	400.00

(a) Before such pawnbroker shall receive any article or thing of value from any person or persons, on which a loan or advance is made, he shall issue a duplicate ticket, one to be delivered to the owner of said personal property and the other to be attached to the article, and said ticket shall have an identifying number on the one side, together with the date at the expiration of which the pledger forfeits his right to redeem, and on the other a full and complete copy of this subsection; but such pawnbroker may, after the pledger has forfeited his right to redeem the specific property pledged, sell the same at public auction, deducting from the proceeds of sale the money or fair value of the thing advanced, the interest accrued, and the cost of making sale, and shall pay the surplus remaining to the pledger.

(b) Any person, firm, or corporation transacting the business of pawnbroker without a license as provided in this section, or violating any of the provisions of this section, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and fined not less than fifty dollars ($50.00) nor more than five hundred dollars ($500.00).

(c) Counties, cities, and towns may levy a license tax on the business taxed under this section not in excess of that levied by the state. (1939, c. 158, s. 118.)

Broker and Pawnbroker Distinguished.—There is a great difference between the terms "broker" and "pawnbroker." A broker is an agent, middleman or negotiator, who works for a commission. A pawnbroker is not an agent at all. He is one who lends money upon personalty pledged as security. Brokers and pawnbrokers constitute distinct classes, and entirely different license taxes may be assessed upon them. Schaul & Co. v. Charlotte, 118 N. C. 733, 24 S. E. 526.

§ 105-51. Cash registers, adding machines, typewriters, refrigerating machines, washing machines, etc.—Every person, firm, or corporation engaged in the business of selling and/or delivering and/or renting cash registers, typewriters, adding or bookkeeping machines, billing machines, check protectors or protectographs, kelvinators, frigidaires, or other refrigerating machines, lighting systems, washing machines, mechanically or electrically operated burglar alarms, addressograph machines, multigraph and other duplicating machines, vacuum cleaners, mechanically or electrically operated oil burners and coal stokers, card punching, assorting and tabulating machinery, shall apply for and procure from the commissioner of revenue a state license for each place where such business is transacted in this state, and shall pay for such license a tax of ten dollars ($10.00).

Counties, cities, and towns shall not levy a license tax on the business taxed under this section. (1939, c. 158, s. 119.)

Cross Reference.—For temporary reduction of the taxes levied under this section, see § 105-113.1.

§ 105-52. Sewing machines.—(a) Every person, firm, or corporation engaged in the business of selling sewing machines within this state shall apply for and obtain from the commissioner of revenue a state-wide license for the privilege of engaging in such business and shall pay for such license a tax of one hundred dollars ($100.00) per annum for each such make of machines sold or offered for sale.

(b) In addition to the annual license tax imposed in subsection (a) of this section, such person, firm, or corporation engaged in the business taxed under this section shall pay a tax at the rate of tax levied in Schedule E, §§ 105-164 to 105-187, on retail sales of merchandise on the total receipts during the preceding year from the sale, lease, or exchange of sewing machines and/or accessories within the state, which said tax shall be paid to the commissioner of revenue at the time of securing the annual license provided for in subsection (a) of this section: Provided, that the tax on sales in the preceding year, levied in this subsection, shall apply only for the fiscal year ending May thirty-first, one thousand nine hundred thirty-five: Provided further, that on and after June first, one thousand nine hundred thirty-five, the additional tax on sales levied in this subsection shall be assessed and collected under the provisions of Schedule E, §§ 105-164 to 105-187, the same as the tax on sales of other merchandise.

(c) Any person, firm, or corporation obtaining a license under the foregoing sections may employ agents and secure a duplicate copy of such license for each such agent by paying a tax of ten dollars ($10.00) to the commissioner of revenue. Each such duplicate license so issued shall contain the name of the agent to whom it is issued, shall not be transferable, and shall license the licensee to sell or offer for sale only the sewing machines sold by the holder of the original license.

(d) Any merchant or dealer who shall purchase sewing machines from a manufacturer or a dealer who has paid the license tax provided for in this section may sell such sewing machines without paying the annual state-wide license tax provided for in subsection (a), but shall procure the duplicate license provided for in subsection (c) of this section: Provided, that the tax imposed by this subsection shall be the only tax required to be paid by dealers in secondhand sewing machines exclusively.

(e) Any person, firm, or corporation who or which violates any of the provisions of this section shall, in addition to all other penalties imposed in this article, pay an additional tax of double the state-wide annual license, and the duplicate tax imposed in this section.

(f) No county shall levy a license tax on the business taxed under this section, except that the county may levy a license tax not in excess of five dollars ($5.00) on each agent in a county who holds a duplicate license provided for in this section.

Cities and towns shall not levy a license tax on the business taxed under this section. (1939, c. 158, s. 120.)

§ 105-53. Peddlers.—(a) Any person, firm, or corporation who or which shall carry from place to place any goods, wares, or merchandise, and offer to sell or barter the same, or actually sells or barters the same, shall be deemed a peddler, except such person, firm, or corporation who or which is a wholesale dealer, with an established warehouse in this state and selling only to merchants for resale, and shall apply for and procure from the commissioner of revenue a state license for the privilege of transacting such business, and shall pay for such license the following tax:

Peddler, on foot, for each county	$10.00
Peddler, with horse or other animal, and with or without vehicle, each county, for each vehicle	15.00
Peddler, with vehicle propelled by motor or other mechanical power, for each county, for each vehicle	25.00

(b) Any person, firm, or corporation employing the service of another as peddler, whether on a salary or commission basis, or furnishing merchandise to be sold by a peddler under any kind of contractual agreement, shall be liable for the payment of the taxes levied above in this section, instead of the peddler.

Provided, however, any person peddling fruits, vegetables, or products of the farm shall pay a license tax of twenty-five dollars ($25.00) per year, which license shall be state-wide. Counties, cities and towns may levy a tax under this subsection not in excess of one-half of the state tax. Provided, however, no county, city or town shall issue any license, or permit any person, firm, or corporation to do any business under the provisions of this subsection, until and unless such person shall produce and exhibit to the tax collector of such county, city or town, his or its state license for the privilege of engaging in such business.

(c) Any person, firm, or corporation who or which sells or offers to sell from a cart, truck, automobile, or other vehicle operated over and upon the streets and/or highways within this state any fresh fruits and/or vegetables shall be deemed a peddler within the meaning of this section and shall pay the annual license tax levied in subsection (a) of this section with reference to the character of the vehicle employed. Any person, firm, or corporation who or which sells or offers for sale from any railway car fresh fruits and/or vegetables shall be deemed a peddler within the meaning of this section, and shall pay an annual tax of twenty-five dollars ($25.00). Nothing in this section shall apply to the sale of farm products raised on the premises owned or occupied by the person, firm, or corporation, his or its bona fide agent or employee selling same.

(d) Every itinerant salesman or merchant who shall expose for sale, either on the street or in a building occupied, in whole or in part, for that purpose, any goods, wares or merchandise, not being a regular merchant in such county, shall apply for in advance and procure a state license from the commissioner of revenue for the privilege of transacting such business, and shall pay for such license a tax of one hundred dollars ($100.00) in each county in which he shall conduct or carry on such business.

Any salesman or merchant, offering for sale goods, wares or merchandise, other than fruits and farm products, shall be deemed an itinerant, within the meaning of this subsection, who conducts said business within the county for less than six consecutive months, except in case of discontinuance for one of the reasons hereinafter mentioned. When any salesman or merchant, beginning said business, does not pay the tax herein levied in advance, on the ground of stated intention to become a regular merchant, the commissioner of revenue may, in his discretion, require said salesman or merchant to post satisfactory bond, or make a cash deposit, in the sum of one hundred dollars ($100.00), which bond or deposit shall be forfeited in payment of the tax herein levied in case such salesman or merchant discontinues said business in the county within less than six months for any reason other than death or disablement of said salesman or merchant, or insolvency of said business, or destruction of the stock by fire or other catastrophe. In like manner the tax collector of any county or city levying a tax, as permitted by subsection (g), on the business taxed in this subsection, may, in his discretion, require posting of satisfactory bond or cash deposit in an amount equivalent to the tax so levied by said county or city; and said bond or deposit shall in like manner be subject to forfeiture in payment of said tax. Any salesman or merchant failing to post such bond or make such deposit within three days after being notified to do so by the commissioner or collector, shall immediately become liable for the taxes levied or authorized to be levied on the business taxed in this subsection. When any salesman or merchant, having been required to post such bond or deposit, has conducted said business for six consecutive months, or has discontinued said business within six months for one of the reasons specifically mentioned herein, he shall be entitled to have said bond canceled or said deposit returned.

(e) The provisions of this section shall not apply to any person, firm, or corporation who sells or offers for sale books, periodicals, printed music, ice, wood or fuel, fish, beef, mutton, pork, bread, cakes, pies, products of the dairy, poultry, eggs, livestock, or articles produced by the individual vendor offering them for sale, but shall apply to medicines, drugs, or articles assembled.

(f) The board of county commissioners of any county in this state, upon proper application, may exempt from the annual license tax levied in this section Confederate soldiers, disabled veterans of the Spanish-American War, disabled soldiers of the World War, who have been bona fide residents of this state for twelve or more months continuously, and the blind who have been bona fide residents of this state for twelve or more months continuously, widows with dependent children; and when so exempted, the board of county commissioners shall furnish such person or persons with a certificate of exemption, and such certificate shall entitle the holder thereof to peddle within the limits of such county without payment of any license tax to the state.

(g) Counties, cities, or towns may levy a license tax on the business taxed under this section not in excess of the annual license levied by the state. But the board of county commissioners of any county may levy a license tax on the business taxed in this section not in excess of that levied by the state for each unincorporated town or village in the county with a population of one thousand or more within a radius of one mile in which such business is engaged in; and any county or city may levy on peddlers of goods, wares, or merchandise with vehicle propelled by motor or other mechanical power, taxed by the state under subsection (a) of this section, a tax not exceeding two hundred dollars ($200.00) for each vehicle, which said tax may, in the discretion of the governing body, be graduated in accordance with the size or weight of said vehicles, the amount of merchandising space in and on said vehicles, the average value of goods carried, the types of products offered for sale, or any other reasonable principle, except that the tax levied hereunder on account of a vehicle of one-half ton capacity or less shall not exceed twenty-five dollars ($25.00).

No county, city, or town shall levy any license tax under this section upon the persons so exempted in this section, nor upon drummers selling by wholesale. (1939, c. 158, s. 121; 1941, c. 50, s. 3; 1943. c. 400, s. 2.)

Cross Reference.—The tax imposed by this section does not apply to the sale of gasoline to dealers for resale. See § 105-89, subsection (1), subdivision (d).

Editor's Note.—The 1941 amendment struck out former subsection (e), relating to display of samples, etc., in hotel rooms, etc., and relettered the remaining subsections.

The 1943 amendment inserted in the first paragraph of subsection (b) the provision as to furnishing merchandise to be sold under agreement.

Peddler Defined.—A peddler is one who sells and delivers the identical goods he carries about with him. State v. Lee, 113 N. C. 681, 18 S. E. 713.

A peddler is primarily one who travels around on foot, selling or bartering the identical goods he carries. State v. Frank, 130 N. C. 724, 41 S. E. 785.

Former Subdivision Requiring License for Display of Goods by One Not Regular Retailer Was Unconstitutional.—Former subdivision (e) requiring one not a regular retail merchant in North Carolina to obtain a $250 license to entitle him to display goods for purpose of securing orders for retail sale, violated "commerce" clause of federal constitution as applied to a New York merchandise establishment which rented display room in a North Carolina hotel for several days and took orders for goods corresponding to samples, which orders were filled by shipping direct to customers from New York City, where regular retail merchants in North Carolina were subject to only an annual $1 license tax for privilege of doing business. Best & Co. v. Maxwell, 311 U. S. 454, 61 S. Ct. 334, 85 L. Ed. 275. For note on this case, see 18 N. C. Law Rev. 48.

Nature of Peddling.—To peddle is not a matter of right under our laws, which any person can demand upon the payment of the tax. It is a privilege. It is discretionary with the county commissioners whether or not they will grant a license to a peddler. The privilege is personal to the applicant, and is not assignable. State v. Rhyne, 119 N. C. 905, 907, 26 S. E. 126.

Power of Legislature.—Under the N. C. Const. Art. V., sec. 3, the General Assembly may tax trades, etc. The term "trade" includes the business of peddling. Smith v. Wilkins, 164 N. C. 135, 80 S. E. 168.

Nature of Tax.—Peddlers and transient dealers are commonly taxed a specific sum because they are likely to escape any other. A peddler's tax is on the occupation, not on the goods, and one who engages in the business, whether as agent or owner, must pay it. State v. Rhyne, 119 N. C. 905, 907, 26 S. E. 126.

Presumption as to Having License.—The case of State v. Crump, 104 N. C. 763, 10 S. E. 468, contains a dictum to the effect that if a peddler is required by proper authorities to exhibit his license and he fails to do so the presumption is that he has none.

Discretion of County Commissioners.—The discretion vested in the county commissioners to exempt from the peddler's tax the "poor and infirm" is necessary to the administration of statutes like this, and will not be interfered with unless arbitrarily exercised. Smith v. Wilkins, 164 N. C. 135, 80 S. E. 168.

Not Applicable to Citizens of Other States.—The provision of a statute similar to this was held unconstitutional on the grounds that it was made to apply to citizens of other states, thus regulating interstate commerce. In re Spain, 47 Fed. 208. See also, In re Flinn, 57 Fed. 496.

Sales by Samples.—This section does not apply to sales by sample of goods not at the time of sale within the state, and ready for immediate delivery, but applies only where goods are actually exposed and offered for sale, and ready for delivery at once to the purchaser. In re Flinn, 57 Fed. 496.

Applications.—A picture dealer, who contracts to sell pictures, has them sent out to him, delivers to the purchaser, and receives the price agreed upon beforehand, is no peddler. Greensboro v. Williams, 124 N. C. 167, 32 S. E. 492.

A person who travels from house to house on foot selling goods by sample, and afterwards delivers them on foot, is not a peddler. State v. Frank, 130 N. C. 724, 41 S. E. 785.

The words "any articles of the farm" are used to embrace all the products of the farm and a farmer who butchers cattle raised on his farm and sells the beef is not a peddler. State v. Smith, 173 N. C. 772, 92 S. E. 325. See 14 N. C. Enc. Dig. 287.

This section does not apply to a person selling watermelons in wholesale lots in the city of Salisbury, to be shipped from a nearby town, and only delivered to those from whom he had taken orders. State v. Ninestein, 132 N. C. 1039, 43 S. E. 936.

One who sells goods by sample, which goods are shipped to purchaser in care of one who sold them and delivered by him, is a peddler. State v. Franks, 127 N. C. 510, 37 S. E. 70.

Paragraphs (e) and (g) relate exclusively to privilege taxes upon peddlers. State v. Bridgers, 211 N. C. 235, 238, 189 S. E. 869.

Subsection (g) Does Not Prohibit Levying of City Tax.—A tax levied under the general authority given a city in its charter, authorizing the levying of a tax upon trades and businesses carried on within its corporate limits is not such a tax as is prohibited by subsection (g) of this section. The prohibition relates to license taxes levied "under this section." The tax complained of was not levied "under this section." State v. Bridgers, 211 N. C. 235, 239, 189 S. E. 869.

Cited in Kohn v. Elizabeth City, 199 N. C. 529, 531, 155 S. E. 152.

§ 105-54. Contractors and construction companies.—(a) Every person, firm, or corporation who, for a fixed price, commission, fee, or wage, offers or bids to construct within the state of North Carolina any building, highway, street, sidewalk, bridge, culvert, sewer or water system, drainage or dredging system, electric or steam railway, reservoir or dam, hydraulic or power plant, transmission line, tower, dock, wharf, excavation, grading or other improvement or structure, or any part thereof, the cost of which exceeds the sum of ten thousand dollars ($10,000.00), shall apply for and obtain from the commissioner of revenue an annual state-wide license, and shall pay for such license a tax of one hundred dollars ($100.00) at the time of or prior to offering or submitting any bid on any of the above enumerated projects.

(b) In addition to the tax levied in subsection (a) of this section, every person, firm, or corporation who, for a fixed price, commission, fee, or wage, undertakes or executes a contract for the construction, or who superintends the construction of any of the above enumerated projects, shall, before or at the time of entering into such projects and/or such contract, apply for and procure from the commissioner of revenue a state-wide license, and shall pay for such license the following tax:

When the total contract price or estimated cost of such project is over:

$ 5,000	and not more than $ 10,000	...$ 25.00
10,000	and not more than $ 50,000	... 50.00
50,000	and not more than $ 100,000	... 125.00
100,000	and not more than $ 250,000	... 175.00
250,000	and not more than $ 500,000	... 300.00
500,000	and not more than $ 750,000	... 400.00
750,000	and not more than $1,000,000	... 500.00
1,000,000	.....	625.00

(c) The application for license under subsection (b) of this section shall be made to the commissioner of revenue and shall be accompanied by the affidavit of the applicant, stating the contract price, if known, and if the contract price is not known, his estimate of the entire cost of the said improvement or structure, and if the applicant proposes to construct only a part of said improvement or structures, the contract price, if known, or his estimated cost of the part of the project he proposes to superintend or construct.

In the event the construction of any of the above mentioned improvements or structures shall be divided and let under two or more contracts to the same person, firm, or corporation, the several contracts shall be considered as one contract for the purpose of this article, and the commissioner of revenue shall collect from such person, firm, or corporation the license tax herein imposed as if only one contract had been entered into for the entire improvement or structure.

(d) In the event any person, firm, or corporation has procured a license in one of the lower classes provided for in subsection (b) of this section, and constructs or undertakes to construct or to superintend any of the above mentioned improvements or structures or parts thereof, the completed cost of which is greater than that covered by the license already secured, application shall be made to the commissioner of revenue, accompanied by the license certificate held by the applicant, which shall be surrendered to the commissioner of revenue, and upon paying the difference between the cost of the license surrendered and the price of the license applied for, the commissioner of revenue shall issue to the applicant the annual state-wide license applied for, showing thereon that it was issued on the surrender of the former license and payment of the additional tax.

(e) No employee or sub-contractor of any person, firm, or corporation who or which has paid the tax herein provided for, shall be required to pay the license tax provided for in this section while so employed by such person, firm, or corporation.

(f) Counties shall not levy any license tax on the business taxed under this section, but cities and towns may levy an annual contractor's license tax not in excess of ten dollars ($10.00) when the license provided for under this section has been paid: Provided, that this subsection shall not be construed to prevent the collection of building, electrical, and plumbing inspection charges by municipalities to cover the actual cost of said inspection.

(g) The tax under this section shall not apply to the business taxed in § 105-91. (1939, c. 158, s. 122.)

§ 105-55. It also directed a similar change as to the last line of subsection (b). These changes had already been made upon the codification of this section.

Tables measuring more than 3½ feet wide and 8 feet long	25.00

Provided, each such billiard or pool table so licensed shall receive a number and receipt from the commissioner of revenue when the license is issued, and it shall be the duty of each operator to attach said numbered license to said table or machine and display the same at all times. Failure to have such license and receipt on display attached to said machine or table shall be prima facie evidence that the tax has not been paid hereunder.

(a) This section shall not apply to fraternal organizations having a national charter, American Legion Posts, Young Men's Christian Associations, and Young Women's Christian Associations.

(b) If the commissioner of revenue shall have issued any such state license to any person, firm, or corporation to operate any billiard or pool tables in any city or town, the board of aldermen or other governing body of such city or town shall have the right at any time, and notwithstanding the issuance of such state license, to prohibit any billiard or pool tables within its limits, unless otherwise provided in its charter; and in the event any city or town shall exercise the right to prohibit the keeping and operation of such billiard or pool tables, the commissioner of revenue shall refund the proportion of the tax thereof during the time which the right is not allowed to be exercised bears to the time for which the tax is paid. And, where the commissioner of revenue has issued any such license and the said billiard or pool tables is or are to be, or are operated outside of the corporate limits of any incorporated city or town, the board of county commissioners may by resolution request that such license be revoked, and upon receipt of such resolution the commissioner of revenue shall forthwith revoke said license and refund the proportion of the tax thereof during the time which the right is not allowed to be exercised bears to the time for which the tax is paid.

(c) Counties may levy a license tax on the business taxed under this section upon such billiard or pool tables as are located outside of incorporated cities or towns, and cities and towns may levy a license tax upon such as are within the city limits, but in neither case shall the license tax so levied be in excess of the tax levied by the state. (1939, c. 158, s. 129; 1943, c. 400, s. 2.)

Editor's Note.—Prior to the 1943 amendment this section also applied to bowling alleys.

Constitutionality.—A license tax imposed upon a business is not void as contravening the State Constitution upon the theory that the statute gives an invalid arbitrary power to the county commissioners with reference to the issuance of the license among applicants therefor, as to locality or otherwise; and the tax so imposed will nevertheless remain, these different portions of the law not being so interdependent that one must fall with the other. Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co. v. Mecklenburg, 181 N. C. 386, 107 S. E. 317.

Same—License without City Limits.—Billiard and pool tables kept open for indiscriminate use by the public are liable to become a source of disorder and demoralization, coming within the police powers, and requiring, in the nature of the business, that power be lodged in some governmental board to withhold or revoke a license imposed by statute for the conduct of the business, and such power lodged in the board of county commissioners, differentiating as to licenses to be issued within and without the city limits, the latter not subject to the same degree of police protection, and requiring a greater license fee, and certain publicity before the license may be issued, etc., is not an unconstitutional discrimination, or the exercise of an invalid arbitrary power, the decision of the commissioners being reviewable in the courts upon the question of whether this power has been arbitrarily and unjustly exercised. Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co. v. Mecklenburg, 181 N. C. 386, 107 S. E. 317.

§ 105-64.1. Bowling alleys.—Every person, firm, or corporation who shall rent, maintain, or own a building wherein there is a bowling alley or alleys of like kind shall apply for and procure from the commissioner of revenue a state license for the privilege of operating such bowling alley or alleys, and shall pay for such license a tax of ten dollars ($10.00) for each alley kept or operated.

(a) This section shall not apply to fraternal organizations having a national charter, American Legion Posts, Young Men's Christian Associations, and Young Women's Christian Associations.

(b) If the commissioner of revenue shall have issued any such state license to any person, firm, or corporation to operate any bowling alley or alleys, in any city or town, the board of aldermen or other governing body of such city or town shall have the right at any time, and notwithstanding the issuance of such state license, to prohibit any bowling alley or alleys of like kind within its limits, unless otherwise provided in its charter; and in the event any city or town shall exercise the right to prohibit the keeping and operation of such bowling alley or alleys of like kind, the commissioner of revenue shall refund the proportion of the tax thereof during the time which the right is not allowed to be exercised bears to the time for which the tax is paid. And, where the commissioner of revenue has issued any such license and the said bowling alley or alleys is or are to be, or are operated outside of the corporate limits of any incorporated city or town, the board of county commissioners may by resolution request that such license be revoked, and upon receipt of such resolution the commissioner of revenue shall forthwith revoke said license and refund the proportion of the tax thereof during the time which the right is not allowed to be exercised bears to the time for which the tax is paid.

(c) Counties may levy a license tax on such bowling alley or alleys of like kind as are located outside of incorporated cities or towns, and cities and towns may levy a license tax upon such as are within the city limits, but in neither case shall the license tax so levied be in excess of the tax levied by the state. (1943, c. 400, s. 2.)

§ 105-65. Operators of Music Machines	$100.00
Operators of Cigarette Vendors	100.00
Operators of Slot Drink Vendors	100.00
Operators of Food Vending or Merchandising Machines	25.00
Operators of Weighing Machines	25.00

(2) In addition to the above annual operator's license, every person, firm, or corporation operating any of the above machines, shall apply for and obtain from the commissioner of revenue, what shall be termed a statewide license for each machine operated and shall pay therefor the following annual tax:

Music Machines	$10.00

1c Food Vending or Merchandising Machines	.50
5c Food Vending or Merchandising Machines	1.00

Provided, that the above tax on food vending or merchandising machines shall not apply to machines that vend solely peanuts, neither shall the tax apply to machines that vend candy containing fifty per cent (50%) or more peanuts, nor to penny self-service machines contributing twenty per cent (20%) of their gross revenue to work for the visually handicapped.

(3) The applicant for license under this section shall, in making application for license, specify the serial number of the machine or machines proposed to be operated, together with a description of the merchandise or service offered for sale thereby, and the amount of deposit required by or in connection with the operation of such machine or machines. The license shall carry the serial number to correspond with that on the application, and no such license shall under any condition be transferable to any other machines. It shall be the duty of the person in whose place of business the machine is operated or located to see that the proper state license is attached in a conspicuous place on the machine before its operation shall commence: Provided, that when application is made under this section for license to operate a machine vending bottled drinks or cigarettes, the applicant for such license shall specify the serial number of the license issued under § 105-79 or § 105-84, as the case may be, and this serial number shall be placed upon the license issued for such machine.

(4) If any person, firm, or corporation shall fail, neglect or refuse to comply with the terms and provisions of this section or shall fail to attach the proper state license to any machine as herein provided, the commissioner of revenue, or his agents, or deputies, shall forthwith seize and remove such machine, and shall hold the same until the provisions of this section have been complied with. In addition to the above provision the applicant shall be further liable for the additional tax imposed under § 105-112.

(5) Sales of merchandise herein referred to shall be subject to the provisions of Schedule "E", §§ 105-164 to 105-187, and the tax therein levied shall be paid by the operator of such machines.

(6) Counties, cities and towns may levy and collect a license tax not in excess of fifty per cent (50%) of the total amount collected by the state from music machines, weighing machines, and 1c and 5c food vending machines: Provided, that counties, cities and towns shall not levy and collect an annual operator's occupational license levied for the operation of the above named machines, neither shall any county, city or town levy and collect any tax whatsoever from operators of soft drink vendors: Provided, further, that counties, cities and towns shall not levy and collect any per machine license tax from operators of cigarette vendors. Counties, cities and towns may levy and collect an annual operator's occupational license on cigarette vendors not in excess of ten dollars ($10.00).

Counties, cities and towns levying a tax under the provisions of this section shall have power through their tax collecting officers, upon nonpayment of the tax levied by them, or of any interest or penalty thereon, or upon failure to attach the evidence of license issued by them to any such machines, to seize, remove and hold such machines until all such defaults have been remedied. (1939, c. 158, s. 130; 1941, c. 50, s. 3; 1943, c. 105; 1943, c. 400, s. 2.)

Editor's Note.—The 1941 amendment substituted the above for the former section.

The cases below were decided under the statute as it read prior to the 1941 amendment.

The first 1943 amendment added at the end of subsection (2) the provision as to penny self-service machines. The second 1943 amendment added the proviso at the end of subsection (3).

All of the subsections of this section must be construed in pari materia, and upon such construction the section discloses the legislative intent to impose a license tax of $30.00 on slot machines vending soft drinks as an exception to the general classification of mechanical vending machines. Snyder v. Maxwell, 217 N. C. 617, 9 S. E. (2d) 19.

Tax on Vendors of Soft Drinks Is Based on Reasonable Classification.—The provision of this section, imposing a license tax of $30.00 on the privilege of operating a vending machine selling soft drinks at the retail price of five cents while imposing a smaller tax on vending machines selling other kinds of merchandise at the same price, prescribes classifications based upon real and reasonable distinctions, since it is a matter of common knowledge that the sale of soft drinks has obtained a unique commercial place, affording unusual opportunities for gainful returns, thus justifying the imposition of a higher license tax upon the privilege of selling this kind of merchandise by vending machine. Snyder v. Maxwell, 217 N. C. 617, 9 S. E. (2d) 19.

Criminal Provisions Not Repealed.—The provisions of the Flanagan Act, chapter 196 Public Laws of 1937, § 14-304 et seq., proscribing the possession and distribution of a coin slot machine in the operation of which the user may secure additional chances or rights to use the machine, is not repealed by this section, since subsection 5 expressly negatives the intention to license or legalize any gaming slot machine or device, and since subsection 1 excludes from its licensing provisions slot machines which "automatically vend" any prize, coupon or reward which may be used in the further operation of such machine, the word "vend" being equivalent to the word "give" and the intent being to exclude from the licensing provisions a machine which provides a player with additional plays or games as a premium, prize, or reward irrespective of whether physical tokens of such premium, prize or reward are, or are not, delivered to the player. State v. Abbott, 218 N. C. 470, 11 S. E. (2d) 539, followed in 218 N. C. 480, 481, 482, 11 S. E. (2d) 545, 546, 547.

Injunction.—Plaintiff, the owner of certain slot machines which had been seized by officers of the law, instituted action to restrain the officers from interfering with the operation of the said machines, alleging that plaintiff had paid state and county licenses thereon and that the machines were lawful under the provisions of this section and that if defendants were not restrained plaintiff would be forced out of his lawful business. The court dissolved the temporary restraining order theretofore issued on the ground that it was without jurisdiction to interfere with the enforcement of the criminal laws of the state in any event, and refused to hear evidence or to find facts as to whether the machines in question were lawful. It was error for the court to dissolve the temporary order without finding whether the machines were lawful, since in the absence of such finding the supreme court is unable to determine whether the case falls within the general rule that courts of equity will not interfere with the administration of the criminal laws of the state or whether it comes within the exception to that rule that the enforcement of a criminal law may be enjoined when necessary to protect constitutional rights and prevent irremedial injury. McCormick v. Proctor, 217 N. C. 23, 6 S. E. (2d) 870.

Cited in State v. Finch, 218 N. C. 511, 11 S. E. (2d) 547.

(c) Every foreign dealer, as dealer is hereinbefore defined, who shall maintain an office in this state, or have a salesman in this state, shall apply for and procure from the commissioner of revenue a state license for the privilege of transacting such business, and shall pay for such license the tax hereinbefore imposed.

(d) If such person, firm, or corporation described in sub-section (a) of this section maintains and/or operates a leased or private wire and/or ticker service in connection with such business the annual license tax shall be as follows:

In cities and towns of less than 10,000 population	$ 150.00
In cities and towns of 10,000 and less than 15,000 population	250.00
In cities and towns of 15,000 and less than 20,000 population	350.00
In cities and towns of 20,000 to 25,000 population	450.00
In cities and towns of 25,000 or more..	600.00

Provided, that the tax levied in subsection (d) shall not apply to private wire service not connected with or handling quotations of a stock exchange, grain or cotton exchange.

(e) Counties shall not levy any license tax on the business taxed under this section, but cities and towns may levy a license tax not in excess of fifty dollars ($50.00). (1939, c. 158, s. 132.)

Cross Reference.—For temporary reduction of the taxes levied under this section, see § 105-113.1.

Reports shall be made to the commissioner of revenue in such form as he may prescribe within the first ten days of each month, covering all such gross receipts for the previous month, and the tax herein levied shall be paid monthly at the time such reports are made. If such tax be paid within thirty days after notice by the commissioner, then there shall be added not more than ten per centum as damages per month from the time such tax was due until paid.

The commissioner for good cause may extend the time for making any report required under the provisions of this section, and may grant such additional time within which to make such report as he may deem proper, but the time for filing any such report shall not be extended beyond the fifteenth day of the month next succeeding the regular due date of such report. If the time for filing a report be extended, interest at the rate of one-half of one per centum per month from the time the report was required to be filed to the time of payment shall be added and paid. (1939, c. 158, s. 150; 1943, c. 400, s. 2.)

Cross Reference.—For temporary reduction of the taxes levied under this section, see § 105-113.1.

Constitutionality.—A provision in a former statute as to the reduction of the license tax if three-fourths of the assets are invested in this state was held constitutional in Bethlehem Motors Corp. v. Flynt, 178 N. C. 399, 100 S. E. 693.

The decision in this case was appealed from, and the question was presented to the United States Supreme Court. The court construed the statute as discriminating against nonresident manufacturers doing business in the state by reducing the tax from $500 to $100 if the manufacturer of automobiles has three-fourths of his entire assets invested in bonds of the state or any of its counties, cities or towns, or in other property situated therein and returned for taxation, and as discriminating in favor of the product of resident manufacturers by attempting to regulate interstate commerce. See Bethlehem Motors Corp. v. Flynt, 256 U. S. 421, 41 S. Ct. 571, 65 L. Ed. 1029. But this decision has not been understood as to invalidate the entire statute since the proviso in question was separable from the remainder of the statute. American Exch. Nat. Bank v. Lacy, 188 N. C. 25, 28, 123 S. E. 475.—Ed. Note.

Auto trucks come within the designation of automobiles used in this section in taxing manufacturers of automobiles. Bethlehem Motors Corp. v. Flynt, 178 N. C. 399, 100 S. E. 693.

Bank as "Dealer."—Where a dealer in automobiles has sold to the bank, to which he was indebted, his automobiles on hand, for the purpose of securing the debt, under further provisions that he was to sell and collect and hold the proceeds in trust for the purpose stated, and has thereafter left the State, and the bank has assumed to continue the sales and make collection therefor, the bank may not avoid payment of the tax upon the ground that it was not a dealer, etc., in contemplation of the statute, and thus evade the practical efficiency of the statute and reduce it to a nullity. American Exch. Nat. Bank v. Lacy, 188 N. C. 25, 123 S. E. 475.

Tax on Operators of Gasoline Pumps.—The provision of this section, prescribing that no county, city or town shall levy a license tax on the business of selling gasoline at retail in excess of one-fourth of the State license tax does not preclude a city from levying a tax on operators of gasoline pumps located on sidewalks along certain streets between the curb and the property line when such city tax is levied in the nature of a permit in the exercise of regulatory police power. State v. Evans, 205 N. C. 434, 171 S. E. 640.

§ 105-90. Emigrant and employment agents.—(a) Every person, firm, or corporation, either as agent or principal, engaged in soliciting, hiring, and/or contracting with laborers, male or female, in this state for employment out of the state shall apply for and obtain from the commissioner of revenue a state license for each county for the privilege of engaging in such business, and shall pay for such license a tax of five hundred dollars ($500.00) for each county in which such business is carried on.

(b) Every person, firm, or corporation who or which engages in the business of securing employment for a person or persons and charging therefor a fee, commission, or other compensation shall apply for and obtain from the commissioner of revenue a state license for the privilege of engaging in such business in this state, and shall pay for such license the following annual tax for each location in which such business is carried on:

In unincorporated communities and in cities and towns of less than 2,500 population	$100.00
In cities or towns of 2,500 and less than 5,000 population	200 00
In cities or towns of 5,000 and less than 10,000 population	300.00
In cities or towns of 10,000 or more population	500.00

Provided, that this section shall not apply to any employment agency operated by the federal government, the state, any county or municipality, or whose sole business is procuring employees for work in the production and harvesting of farm crops within the state: And provided further, that under this section the tax on any employment agency whose sole business is the placement of teachers and/or other school employees and which has been approved by the state superintendent of public instruction shall be twenty-five dollars ($25.00): Provided further, that the tax on employment agencies where the sole business is the placement of domestic servants or unregistered nurses for employment within the state shall be twenty-five dollars ($25.00).

(c) Any person, firm, or corporation violating the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and fined, in addition to other penalties, not less than one thousand dollars ($1,000.00) and/or imprisoned, in the discretion of the court.

(d) Counties, cities and towns may levy a license tax on the business taxed under this section not in excess of that levied by the state. (1939, c. 158, s. 154.)

Generally.—This statute is a severe measure imposing a tax upon the business of hiring hands, and its validity can be sustained only upon this view. Lane v. Commissioners, 139 N. C. 443, 445, 52 S. E. 140. See also State v. Hunt, 129 N. C. 686, 40 S. E. 216.

The occupation of an "emigrant agent," as defined in chapter 75, Acts of 1891, similar to this section, does not belong to that class of trades or occupations which are so inherently harmful or dangerous to the public that they may, either directly or indirectly, be restricted or prohibited. State v. Moore, 113 N. C. 697, 698, 18 S. E. 342.

Scope of Section.—In Theus v. State, 114 Ga. 53, 39 S. E. 913, Lewis, J., construing a section worded exactly as this, says, "The legislative enactment imposing a tax upon emigrant agents, and providing a penalty for the failure to register and pay such tax, was clearly intended to apply to persons who, as agents of others, make it their business to hire laborers in this state to be sent beyond the limits of the state and then employed by others. To extend its application to a resident of another state, who, being in this state, incidentally employs laborers on his own behalf to work for him beyond the limits of this state, would be entirely unwarranted." Cited and approved in Carr v. Commissioners, 136 N. C. 125, 127, 48 S. E. 597.

Employment of Laborers for Work in Another State.—This section does not apply to a person who comes into this state and employs laborers to work for him in another state. Carr v. Commissioners, 136 N. C. 125, 48 S. E. 597.

An officer of a foreign corporation coming into this state and hiring hands for employment by himself as the officer of the corporation, is not "engaged in the business of hiring hands," etc., and is not liable for the tax on emigrant agents, under this section. Lane v. Commissioners, 139 N. C. 443, 52 S. E. 140.

Amount of Tax Not Reviewable.—A tax on the business of procuring laborers for employment outside the state being an exercise of the power of the state to levy taxes, the amount is not reviewable by the courts. State v. Roberson, 136 N. C. 587, 48 S. E. 595. The court said: "When the constitution confers upon the legislature the power to levy taxes, the amount of the tax to be levied is committed to that department of the government and not open to review by the judicial department. We may inquire into the question of power, but not as to the manner of its exercise."

§ 105-91. Plumbers, heating contractors, and electricians.—Every person, firm, or corporation engaged in the business of a plumber, installing plumbing fixtures, piping or equipment, steam or gas fitter, or installing hot-air heating systems, or installing electrical equipment, or offering to perform such services, shall apply for and obtain from the commissioner of revenue a state license for the privilege of engaging in such business, and shall pay for such license the following tax based on population:

Municipalities of less than two thousand population	$ 5.00
Municipalities of two thousand and less than five thousand population	7.50
Municipalities of five thousand and less than ten thousand population	10.00
Municipalities of ten thousand and less than twenty thousand population	12.50
Municipalities of twenty thousand and less than thirty thousand population	15.00
Municipalities of thirty thousand and less than forty thousand population	17.50
Municipalities of forty thousand and less than fifty thousand population	20.00
Municipalities of fifty thousand population or more	25.00

Provided, that when a licensed plumber employs only one additional person the tax shall be one-half: Provided further, that any person, firm, or corporation engaged exclusively in the businesses enumerated in and licensed under this section shall not be liable for the tax provided in §§ 105-54 to 105-56. All plumbing inspectors in cities or towns shall make a monthly report to the commissioner of revenue of all installation or repair permits issued for plumbing or heating.

Counties shall not levy any license tax on the business taxed under this section, but cities and towns may levy a license tax not in excess of the base license tax levied by the state. (1939, c. 158, s. 155.)

§ 105-92. Trading stamps.—Every person, firm, or corporation engaged in the business of issuing, selling, and/or delivering trading stamps, checks, receipts, certificates, tokens, or other similar devices to persons, firms, or corporations engaged in trade or business, with the understanding or agreement, expressed or implied, that the same shall be presented or given by the latter to their patrons as a discount, bonus, premium, or as an inducement to secure trade or patronage, and that the person, firm, or corporation selling and/or delivering the same will give to the person presenting or promising the same, money or other thing of value, or any commission or preference in any way on account of the possession or presentation thereof, shall apply for and obtain from the commissioner of revenue a state license for the privilege of engaging in such business, and shall pay for such license a tax of two hundred dollars ($200.00).

(a) This section shall not be construed to apply to a manufacturer or to a merchant who sells the goods, wares, or merchandise of such manufacturer, offering to present to the purchaser or customer a gift of certain value as an inducement to purchase such goods, wares or merchandise.

(b) Counties, cities, or towns may levy a license tax on the business taxed under this section and not in excess of that levied by the state. (1939, c. 158, s. 156.)

Trading Stamp Dealers.—Dealers in trading stamps do not come within the provision of an ordinance taxing "gift enterprises." Winston v. Beeson, 135 N. C. 271, 47 S. E. 457.

§ 105-93. Process tax.—(a) In every indictment or criminal proceeding finally disposed of in the superior court, the party convicted or adjudged to pay the cost shall pay a tax of two dollars ($2.00): Provided, that this tax shall not be levied in cases where the county is required to pay the cost.

(b) At the time of suing out the summons in a civil action in the superior court or other court of record, or the docketing of an appeal from the lower court in the superior court, the plaintiff or the appellant shall pay a tax of two dollars ($2.00):

Provided, that this tax shall not be demanded of any plaintiff or appellant who has been duly authorized to sue or appeal in forma pauperis; but when in cases brought or in appeals in forma pauperis the costs are taxed against the defendants the tax shall be included in the bill of costs: Provided, that this tax shall not be levied in cases where the county is required to pay the cost and in tax foreclosure suits.

(c) No county, city, or town, or other municipal corporation shall be required to pay said tax upon the institution of any action brought by it, but whenever such plaintiff shall recover in such action, the said tax shall be included in the bill of costs and collected from the defendant.

(d) In any case where the party has paid the aforesaid cost in a civil action and shall recover in the final decision of the case, then such cost so paid by him shall be retaxed against the losing party adjudged to pay the cost, plus five per cent (5%) which the clerk of the superior court may retain for his services, and this shall be received by him, whether he is serving on a salary or fee basis, and if on a salary basis, shall be in addition to such salary.

(e) This section shall not apply to cases in the jurisdiction of magistrates' courts, whether civil or criminal, except upon appeals to the superior court from the judgment of such magistrate, and shall not apply for the docketing in the superior court of a transcript of a judgment rendered in any other court, whether of record or not.

(f) The tax provided for in this section shall be levied and assessed by the clerk of the superior court or other court in all cases described herein; and on the first Monday in January, April, July, and October of each and every year he shall make to the commissioner of revenue a sworn statement and report in detail, showing the number of the case on the docket, the name of the plaintiff or appellant in civil action, or the defendant in criminal action, and accompany such report and statement with the amount of such taxes collected, or which should have been collected, by him in the preceding three months. Any clerk of the superior court failing to make the report and pay the amount of tax due under this section within the first fifteen days of the month in which such report is required to be made, shall be liable for a penalty of ten per cent (10%) on the amount of tax that may be due at the time such report should be made. (1939, c. 158, s. 157.)

Where Appeal Is from Clerk to Judge.—Where an appeal is taken from an order of the clerk of the Superior Court to the judge thereof, the judge has jurisdiction by mandate of § 1-276, and no "docketing" is involved within the meaning of this section, nor is the clerk a "lower court," so the two dollar tax as here provided is inapplicable to the Superior Court with respect to appeals, and the judge acquires jurisdiction without the payment of the tax. Windsor v. McVay, 206 N. C. 730, 175 S. E. 83.

§ 105-94. Morris Plan or industrial banks.— Every person, firm, or corporation engaged in the business of operating a Morris Plan or industrial bank in the state shall apply for and obtain a state license from the commissioner of revenue for the privilege of engaging in such business, and shall pay for such license the following tax:

When the total resources as of December thirty-first of the previous calendar year are—

Less than $250,000	$ 75.00
$250,000 and less than $500,000	150.00
$500,000 and less than $1,000,000	225.00
$1,000,000 and less than $2,000,000	300.00
$2,000,000 and less than $5,000,000	450.00
$5,000,000 and over	600.00

(a) Any such bank that shall begin business during the current tax year applicable to this article, the tax shall be calculated on the total resources at the beginning of business.

(b) Every person, firm, or corporation engaged in the business of soliciting loans or deposits for a Morris Plan or other industrial bank not licensed as such by the state for the county in which such person, firm, or corporation solicits business shall apply for and obtain from the commissioner of revenue a state license for the privilege of engaging in such business, and shall pay for such license a tax of fifty dollars ($50.00) per annum, in each county in which business is solicited.

(c) Counties shall not levy any license tax on the business taxed under this section, but cities and towns may levy a license tax not in excess of one-half (½) of that levied by the state. (1939, c. 158, s. 158.)

§ 105-95. Marriage license. — There shall be levied on all marriage licenses a state license tax of three dollars on each such license, which shall be assessed and collected by the register of deeds of the county in which the license is issued.

The register of deeds of each county shall submit to the commissioner of revenue, on the first Monday in January, April, July, and October of each year a sworn statement or report in detail, showing the names of the persons to whom such license has been issued during the preceding three months, and accompany such sworn report or statement with the amount of such state taxes collected by him or that should have been collected by him in the preceding three months.

The counties may levy one dollar ($1.00) upon such marriage license, to be assessed and collected by the register of deeds and accounted for to the county treasurer at the same time and in the same manner as he accounts to the commissioner of revenue for the state tax. (1939, c. 158, s. 159.)

§ 105-96. Marble yards.—Every person, firm, or corporation engaged in the business of manufacturing, erecting, jobbing, selling, or offering for sale monuments, marble tablets, gravestones or articles of like kind, or, if a non-resident, selling and erecting monuments, marble tablets, or gravestones at retail shall apply for and obtain from the commissioner of revenue a state license for the privilege of engaging in such business in this state, and shall pay for such license the following tax:

In unincorporated communities and cities or towns of less than 2,000 population	$15.00
In cities or towns of 2,000 and less than 5,000 population	25.00
In cities or towns of 5,000 and less than 10,000 population	30.00
In cities or towns of 10,000 and less than 15,000 population	40.00
In cities or towns of 15,000 and less than 20,000 population	50.00

In cities or towns of 20,000 and less than 25,000 population	60.00
In cities or towns of 25,000 population or over	70.00

In addition to the license tax levied in this section, an additional tax shall be paid by the person, firm, or corporation engaged in the business taxed under this section of ten dollars ($10.00) for each person soliciting or selling.

Counties shall not levy any license tax on the business taxed under this section, but cities and towns in which the principal office or plant of any such business is located may levy a license tax not in excess of that levied by the state. (1939, c. 158, s. 160.)

§ 105-97. Manufacturers of ice cream.—(a) Every person, firm, or corporation engaged in the business of manufacturing or distributing ice cream at wholesale shall apply for and obtain from the commissioner of revenue a state license for each factory or place where manufactured and/or stored for distribution, and shall pay an annual state license tax of ten dollars ($10.00) in cities and towns of less than two thousand five hundred (2,500) population; twenty-five dollars ($25.00) in cities and towns having population between two thousand five hundred (2,500) and ten thousand (10,000), and in cities and towns having a population of more than ten thousand (10,000), fifty dollars ($50.00), and an additional tax of one-half cent for each gallon manufactured, sold, and/or distributed. Reports shall be made to the commissioner of revenue in such form as he may prescribe within the first ten days of each month covering all such gross sales for the previous month, and the additional tax herein levied shall be paid monthly at the time such reports are made.

(b) For the purpose of this section the words "ice cream" shall apply to ice cream, frozen custards, sherbets, water ices, and/or similar frozen products.

(c) Every retail dealer selling at retail ice cream purchased from a manufacturer other than a manufacturer who has paid the tax imposed in subsection (a) of this section shall pay an annual license tax for the privilege of doing business in this state of ten dollars ($10.00).

(d) Counties shall not levy a license tax on the business taxed under this section, but cities and towns may levy a license tax not in excess of one-fourth of the above. (1939, c. 158, s. 161.)

Cross Reference.—For temporary reduction of the taxes levied under this section, see § 105-113.1.

§ 105-98. Branch or chain stores.—Every person, firm, or corporation engaged in the business of operating or maintaining in this state, under the same general management, supervision, or ownership, two or more stores, or mercantile establishments where goods, wares, and/or merchandise is sold or offered for sale, or from which such goods, wares, and/or merchandise are sold and/or distributed at wholesale or retail, or who or which controls by lease, either as lessor or lessee, or by contract, the manner in which any such store or stores are operated, or the kinds, character, or brands of merchandise which are sold therein, shall be deemed a branch or chain store operator, and shall apply for and obtain from the commissioner of revenue a state license for the purpose of engaging in such business of a branch or chain store operator, and shall pay for such license a tax according to the following schedule:

On each and every such store operated in this state in excess of one—

For not more than four additional stores, for each such additional store	$ 65.00
For five additional stores and not more than eight, for each such additional store	85.00
For nine additional stores and not more than twelve, for each such additional store	95.00
For thirteen additional stores and not more than sixteen, for each such additional store	105.00
For seventeen additional stores and not more than twenty, for each such additional store	115.00
For twenty-one additional stores and not more than thirty, for each such additional store	140.00
For thirty-one additional stores and not more than fifty, for each such additional store	175.00
For fifty-one additional stores and not more than one hundred, for each such additional store	200.00
For one hundred and one additional stores and not more than two hundred, for each such additional store	225.00
For two hundred and one additional stores and over, for each such additional store	250.00

The term "chain store" as used in this section shall include stores operated under separate charters of incorporation, if there is common ownership of a majority of stock in such separately incorporated companies, and/or if there is similarity of name of such separately incorporated companies, and/or if such separately incorporated companies have the benefit in whole or in part of group purchase of merchandise, or of common management. And in like manner the term "chain store" shall apply to any group of stores where a majority interest is owned by an individual or partnership.

Counties shall not levy a license tax on the business taxed under this section, but cities and towns may levy a license tax not in excess of fifty dollars ($50.00) for each chain store located in such city or town. For the purpose of ascertaining the particular unit in each chain of stores not subject to taxation by the state under this section, and therefore not liable for city license tax, the particular store in which the principal office of the chain in this state is located shall be designated as the unit in the chain not subject to this tax.

In enforcing the provisions of this section, the commissioner of revenue may prorate the total amount of tax for a chain to the several units and the amount so prorated may be recovered from each unit in the chain in the same way as other taxes levied in this article.

This section shall not apply to retail or wholesale dealers in motor vehicles and automotive equipment and supply dealers at wholesale who are not liable for tax hereunder on account of the sale of other merchandise. (1939, c. 158, s. 162.)

Constitutionality and Nature of Tax.—The classification

in this section is a reasonable one based upon a substantial difference. The statute applies equally to all within the class, and it is constitutional and valid. Great A. & P. Tea Co. v. Maxwell, 199 N. C. 433, 154 S. E. 838.

This section, imposes a license tax for the purpose of raising revenue, and not an ad valorem tax. Nor does the statute seek to regulate chain stores under the police power, and the tax is in accord with the fiscal policy of the State of raising revenue for State purposes by the imposition of taxes on trades, professions, franchises and incomes, and leaving to the counties and municipalities for their support ad valorem taxes on real and personal property. Great A. & P. Tea Co. v. Maxwell, 199 N. C. 433, 154 S. E. 838.

Prior Law Invalid.—The prior law, which imposed a license tax of fifty dollars each on stores operated in this State when there were six or more such stores under the same management, but which imposed no such tax on other mercantile establishments doing the same business when there were less than six stores under one management, was held an arbitrary classification, and unconstitutional. Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co. v. Doughton, 196 N. C. 145, 144 S. E. 701.

Corporation Operating Coal and Ice Yards Liable for Tax.—A corporation operating coal and ice yards at established places of business in several cities of the state, one or more yards being operated in each of the cities, and maintaining scales, bins, etc., and a staff composed of a yard foreman and other employees at each establishment, was held liable for the tax imposed by this section. Atlantic Ice, etc., Co. v. Maxwell, 210 N. C. 723, 188 S. E. 381.

Whether or Not Such Yards Constitute "Stores."—It was held not necessary to decide whether such establishments constitute "stores" in the common acceptation or the legal meaning of the word, since the application of the statute is not limited to stores. Atlantic Ice, etc., Co. v. Maxwell, 210, N. C. 723, 188 S. E. 381.

§ 105-99. Wholesale distributors of motor fuels.—Every person, firm, or corporation engaged in the business of distributing or selling at wholesale any motor fuels in this state shall apply to the commissioner for an additional annual license to engage in such business, and shall pay for such privilege an additional annual license tax determined and measured by the number of pumps owned or leased by the distributor or wholesaler through which such motor fuels are sold, at retail, according to the following schedule:

For the first 100 pumps	$ 4.00 per pump
For 101 additional pumps and not more than 200 pumps	5.00 per pump
For 201 additional pumps and not more than 300 pumps	6.00 per pump
For 301 additional pumps and not more than 400 pumps	7.00 per pump
For 401 additional pumps and not more than 500 pumps	8.00 per pump
For 501 additional pumps and not more than 600 pumps	9.00 per pump
For all over 600 pumps	10.00 per pump

Any contract or agreement, oral or written, express or implied by the terms or the effects of which the tax herein imposed shall be passed on directly or indirectly to any person, firm, or corporation not engaged in the business hereby taxed is hereby declared to be against the public policy of this state and null and void, and any person, firm, or corporation negotiating such an agreement, or receiving the benefits thereof, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and fined or imprisoned in the discretion of the court.

The tax herein imposed shall be in addition to all other taxes imposed by this chapter or under any other laws.

Counties, cities and towns shall not levy any tax by reason of the additional tax imposed by this section, but this section shall in no way affect the right given to counties, cities, and towns to levy taxes under § 105-89.

The business taxed under this section shall not be taxed under § 105-98. (1939, c. 158, s. 162½.)

Cross Reference.—For temporary reduction of the taxes levied under this section, see § 105-113.1.

§ 105-100. Patent rights and formulas.—Every person, firm, or corporation engaged in the business of selling or offering for sale any patent right or formula shall apply in advance and obtain from the commissioner of revenue a separate state license for each and every county in this state where such patent right or formula is to be sold or offered for sale, and shall pay for each such separate license a tax of ten dollars ($10.00).

Counties, cities, or towns may levy a license on the business taxed under this section not in excess of the taxes levied by the state. (1939, c. 158, s. 163.)

In General.—It is within the legislative power of taxation, in respect to corporations, to levy any two or more of the following taxes simultaneously (1) on the franchise (including corporate dividends); (2) on the capital stock; (3) on the tangible property of the corporation, and (4) on the shares of the capital stock in the hands of the stockholders. The tax on the two subjects last named is imperative. Board v. Blackwell Durham Tobacco Co., 116 N. C. 441, 21 S. E. 423.

License Tax by State Exclusive.—The general assembly may require a corporation to pay a license tax for the privilege of carrying on its business, and forbid counties or other municipalities to exact any other license tax or fee. Loan Ass'n v. Commissioners, 115 N. C. 410, 414, 20 S. E. 526.

§ 105-101. Tax on seals affixed by officers.—Whenever the seal of the state, of the state treasurer, the secretary of state, or of any other public officer required by law to keep a seal (not including clerks of courts, notaries public, and other county officers) shall be affixed to any paper, the tax to be paid by the party applying for same shall be as follows:

For the Great Seal of the state, on any commission	$2.50
For the Great Seal of the state on warrants of extradition for fugitives from justice from other states, the same fee and seal tax shall be collected from the state making the requisition which is charged in this state for like service. For the seal of the state department, to be collected by the secretary of state	1.00
For the seal of the state treasurer, to be collected by him	1.00
For a scroll, when used in the absence of a seal, the tax shall be on the scroll, and the same as for the seal.

(a) All officers shall keep a true, full, and accurate account of the number of times any of such seals or scrolls are used, and shall deliver to the governor of the state a sworn statement thereof.

(b) All seals affixed for the use of any county of the state, used on the commissions of officers of the national guard, and any other public officer not having a salary, under the pension law, or under any process of court, or to any commission issued by the governor to any person in the employ of the state, or to be employed by the state shall be exempt from taxation. (1939, c. 158, s. 166.)

§ 105-102. Junk dealers.—Every person, firm, or corporation engaged in the business of buying and/or selling or dealing in what is commonly known as junk, including scrap metals, glass, waste paper, waste burlap, waste cloth and cordage of every nature, kind and description, shall apply for and obtain from the commissioner of revenue a state license for the privilege of engaging in such business in this state and shall pay for such license an annual tax for each location where such business is carried on, according to the following schedule:

In unincorporated communities and in cities or towns of less than 2,500 population	$ 25.00
In cities or towns of 2,500 and less than 5,000 population	30.00
In cities or towns of 5,000 and less than 10,000 population	50.00
In cities or towns of 10,000 and less than 20,000 population	75.00
In cities or towns of 20,000 and less than 30,000 population	100.00
In cities or towns of 30,000 population or more	125.00

Provided, that if any person, firm, or corporation shall engage in the business enumerated in this section within a radius of two miles of the corporate limits of any city or town in this state, he or it shall pay a tax based on the population of such city or town according to the schedule above set out. Counties, cities and towns may levy a license tax not in excess of one-half of that levied by the state; provided, however, that any person, firm, or corporation dealing solely in waste paper shall not be liable for said tax; and provided further, the licenses levied herein shall not apply to persons engaged in the collection of scrap, who maintain no regular place of business, but sell only to licensed dealers or manufacturers using scrap engaged in shipment in interstate commerce; and further that salvage committees operating, under state or federal sponsorship, community scrap yards where personal profit does not accrue, shall not be required to pay license under this section. (1939, c. 158, s. 168; 1943, c. 400, s. 2.)

Editor's Note.—The 1943 amendment added the last proviso.

Municipal Tax.—Facts agreed were conflicting and cause was remanded in Weinstein v. Raleigh, 218 N. C. 549, 11 S. E. (2d) 560.

The findings of fact made by the trial court under the agreement of the parties were held to support the court's conclusion of law that plaintiff, although his place of business was located one-half mile outside the limits of defendant municipality, was engaged in the business of buying and selling junk within the municipality, and the judgment holding plaintiff liable for license tax levied by the municipality under authority of this section was affirmed. Weinstein v. Raleigh, 219 N. C. 643, 14 S. E. (2d) 661.

Administrative Provisions of Schedule B.

§ 105-103. Unlawful to operate without license. —When a license tax is required by law, and whenever the general assembly shall levy a license tax on any business, trade, employment, or profession, or for doing any act, it shall be unlawful for any person, firm, or corporation without a license to engage in such business, trade, employment, profession, or do the act; and when such tax is imposed it shall be lawful to grant a license for the business, trade, employment, or for doing the act; and no person, firm, or corporation shall be allowed the privilege of exercising any business, trade, employment, profession, or the doing of any act taxed in this schedule throughout the state under one license, except under a state-wide license. (1939, c. 158, s. 181.)

§ 105-104. Manner of obtaining license from the commissioner of revenue. — (a) Every person, firm, or corporation desiring to obtain a state license for the privilege of engaging in any business, trade, employment, profession, or of the doing of any act for which a state license is required, shall, unless otherwise provided by law, make application therefor in writing to the commissioner of revenue, in which shall be stated the county, city, or town and the definite place therein where the business, trade, employment, or profession is to be exercised; the name and resident address of the applicant, whether the applicant is an individual, firm, or corporation; the nature of the business, trade, employment, or profession; number of years applicant has prosecuted such business, trade, employment, or profession in this state, and such other information as may be required by the commissioner of revenue. The application shall be accompanied by the license tax prescribed in this article.

(b) Upon receipt of the application for a state license with the tax prescribed by this article, the commissioner of revenue, if satisfied of its correctness, shall issue a state license to the applicant to engage in the business, trade, employment, or profession in the name of and at the place set out in the application. No license issued by the commissioner of revenue shall be valid or have any legal effect unless and until the tax prescribed by law has been paid, and the fact of such shall appear on the face of the license. (1939, c. 158, s. 182.)

§ 105-105. Persons, firms, and corporations engaged in more than one business to pay tax on each. — Where any person, firm, or corporation is engaged in more than one business, trade, employment, or profession which is made under the provisions of this article subject to state license taxes, such persons, firms, or corporations shall pay the license tax prescribed in this article for each separate business, trade, employment, or profession. (1939, c. 158, s. 183.)

§ 105-106. Effect of change in name of firm.— No change in the name of a firm, partnership, or corporation, nor the taking in of a new partner, nor the withdrawal of one or more of the firm, shall be considered as commencing business; but if any one or more of the partners remain in the firm, or if there is change in ownership of less than a majority of the stock, if a corporation, the business shall be regarded as continuing. (1939, c. 158, s. 184.)

§ 105-107. License may be changed when place of business is changed. — When a person, firm, or corporation has obtained a state license to engage in any business, trade, employment, or profession at any definite location in a county, and desires to remove to another location in the same county, the commissioner of revenue may, upon proper application, grant such person, firm, or corporation permission to make such move, and may endorse upon the state license his approval of change in location. (1939, c. 158, s. 185.)

§ 105-108. Property used in a licensed business not exempt from taxation.—A state license, issued under any of the provisions of this article shall not be construed to exempt from other forms of taxation the property employed in such licensed business, trade, employment, or profession. (1939, c. 158, s. 186.)

§ 105-109. Engaging in business without a license.—(a) All state license taxes under this article or schedule, unless otherwise provided for, shall be due and payable annually on or before the first day of June of each year, or at the date of engaging in such business, trade, employment and/or profession, or doing the act.

(b) If any person, firm, or corporation shall continue the business, trade, employment, or profession, or to do the act, after the expiration of a license previously issued, without obtaining a new license, he or it shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be fined and/or imprisoned in the discretion of the court, but the fine shall not be less than twenty per cent (20%) of the tax in addition to the tax and the costs; and if such failure to apply for and obtain a new license be continued, such person, firm, or corporation shall pay additional tax of five per centum (5%) of the amount of the state license tax which was due and payable on the first day of June of the current year, in addition to the state license tax imposed by this article, for each and every thirty days that such state license tax remains unpaid from the date that same was due and payable, and such additional tax shall be assessed by the commissioner of revenue and paid with the state license tax, and shall become a part of the state license tax. The penalties for delayed payment hereinbefore provided shall not impair the obligation to procure a license in advance or modify any of the pains and penalties for failure to do so.

The provisions of this section shall apply to taxes levied by the counties of the state under authority of this article in the same manner and to the same extent as they apply to taxes levied by the state.

(c) If any person, firm, or corporation shall commence to exercise any privilege or to promote any business, trade, employment, or profession, or to do any act requiring a state license under this article without such state license, he or it shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be fined and/or imprisoned in the discretion of the court; and if such failure, neglect, or refusal to apply for and obtain such state license be continued, such person, firm, or corporation shall pay an additional tax of five per centum (5%) of the amount of such state license tax which was due and payable at the commencement of the business, trade, employment or profession, or doing the act, in addition to the state license tax imposed by this article, for each and every thirty (30) days that such state license tax remains unpaid from the date that same was due and payable, and such additional tax shall be assessed by the commissioner of revenue and paid with the state license tax and shall become a part of the state license tax.

(d) If any person, firm, or corporation shall fail, refuse, or neglect to make immediate payment of any taxes due and payable under this article, additional taxes, and/or any penalties imposed pursuant thereto, upon demand, the commissioner of revenue shall certify the same to the sheriff of the county in which such delinquent lives or has his place of business, and such sheriff shall have the power and shall levy upon any personal or real property owned by such delinquent person, firm, or corporation, and sell the same for the payment of the said tax or taxes, penalty and costs, in the same manner as provided by law for the levy and sale of property for the collection of other taxes; and if sufficient property is not found, the said sheriff or deputy commissioner shall swear out a warrant before some justice of the peace or recorder in the county for the violation of the provisions of this article and as provided in this article. (1939, c. 158, s. 187.)

§ 105-110. Each day's continuance in business without a state license a separate offense.—Each and every day that any person, firm, or corporation shall continue to exercise or engage in any business, trade, employment, or profession, or do any act in violation of the provisions of this article, shall be and constitute a distinct and a separate offense. (1939, c. 158, s. 188.)

§ 105-111. Duties of commissioner of revenue.—(a) Except where otherwise provided, the commissioner of revenue shall be the duly authorized agent of this state for the issuing of all state licenses and the collection of all license taxes under this article, and it shall be his duty and the duty of his deputies to make diligent inquiry to ascertain whether all persons, firms, or corporations in the various counties of the state who are taxable under the provisions of this article have applied for the state license and paid the tax thereon levied.

(b) The commissioner of revenue shall continually keep in his possession a sufficient supply of blank state license certificates, with corresponding sheets and duplicates consecutively numbered; shall stamp across each state license certificate that is to be good and valid in each and every county of the state the words "state-wide license," and shall stamp or imprint on each and every license certificate the words "issued by the commissioner of revenue."

(c) Neither the commissioner of revenue nor any of his deputies shall issue any duplicate license unless expressly authorized to do so by a provision of this article or schedule, and unless the original license is lost or has become so mutilated as to be illegible, and in such cases the commissioner of revenue is authorized to issue a duplicate certificate for which the tax is paid, and shall stamp upon its face "duplicate." (1939, c. 158, s. 189.)

§ 105-112. License to be procured before beginning business.—(a) Every person, firm, or corporation engaging in any business, trade, and/or profession, or doing any act for which a state license is required and a tax is to be paid under the provisions of this article or schedule, shall, annually in advance, on or before the first day of June of each year, or before engaging in such business, trade, and/or profession, or doing the act, apply for and obtain from the commissioner of revenue a state license for the privilege of engaging in such business, trade, and/or profession, or doing such act, and shall pay the tax levied therefor.

(b) Licenses shall be kept posted where business is carried on. No person, firm, or corporation shall engage in any business, trade, and/or profession, or do the act for which a state license is required in this article or schedule, without having such state license posted conspicuously at the place where such business, trade, and/or profession is carried on; and if the business, trade, and/or profession is such that license cannot be so posted, then the itinerant licensee shall have such license required by this article or schedule in his actual possession at the time of carrying on such business, trade, and/or profession, or doing the act named in this article or schedule, or a duplicate thereof.

(c) Any person, firm, or corporation failing, neglecting, or refusing to have the state license required under this article or schedule posted conspicuously at the place of business for which the license was obtained, or to have the same or a duplicate thereof in actual possession if an itinerant, shall pay an additional tax of twenty-five dollars ($25.00) for each and every separate offense, and each day's failure, neglect, or refusal shall constitute a separate offense. (1939, c. 158, s. 190.)

§ 105-113. Sheriff and city clerk to report.—The sheriff of each county and the clerk of the board of aldermen of each city or town in the state shall, on or before the fifteenth day of June of each year, make a report to the commissioner of revenue, containing the names and the business, trade, and/or the profession of every person, firm, or corporation in his county or city who or which is required to apply for and obtain a state license under the provisions of this article or schedule, and upon such forms as shall be provided and in such detail as may be required by the commissioner of revenue. (1939, c. 158, s. 191.)

§ 105-113.1. Privilege taxes payable in advance; reduction.—The license taxes levied under this article upon the business of selling particular kinds of merchandise or commodities are levied for the privilege of engaging in the business of selling such articles, merchandise or commodities in the normal course of business.

The taxes are required to be paid in advance at the beginning of the tax year with no provision for refund for any cause with possible exception of the indirect method prescribed by the one thousand nine hundred and forty-three amendment to the Revenue Act providing for the transfer of such licenses under certain conditions.

War conditions have affected business licenses levied under Schedule B more than any other taxes levied by the state.

Under war conditions priorities, rationing, and restrictions upon the sale of particular articles of merchandise have so restricted business opportunities in many lines as to make the application of the license taxes now levied wholly unreasonable, and relief must be granted to those businesses which have suffered severely, and provisions must be made to provide relief for those businesses which will suffer severely before the convening of the next general assembly; therefore, Schedule B license privilege taxes levied by the state under this article are reduced as follows:

(a) The taxes levied by the state under § 105-49 are reduced 50%.

(b) The taxes levied by the state under § 105-51 are reduced 50%.

(c) The taxes levied by the state under § 105-61 are reduced 50%.

(d) The taxes levied by the state under § 105-67 are reduced 50%.

(e) The taxes levied by the state under § 105-79 are reduced 50%.

(f) The taxes levied by the state under § 105-82 are reduced 50%.

(g) The taxes levied by the state under § 105-89 are reduced 75%.

(h) The taxes levied by the state under § 105-97 are reduced 30%.

(i) The taxes levied by the state under § 105-99 are reduced 75%.

(j) The taxes levied by the state under § 105-86 are reduced 50%.

The reductions in taxes herein authorized shall not be applicable to counties, cities and towns. It is the intent of this section that counties, cities and towns may continue to levy privilege taxes within the same limits authorized by the Revenue Act of one thousand nine hundred and thirty-nine, as amended, prior to the enactment of this section.

This section shall be in full force and effect from and after its ratification, but the reductions in license taxes authorized herein shall be effective only from and after June first, one thousand nine hundred and forty-three.

This section shall be in effect until June first, one thousand nine hundred and forty-five. (1943, c. 400, s. 2.)

Art. 3. Schedule C. Franchise Tax.

§ 105-114. Defining taxes in this article.—The taxes levied and assessed in this article or schedule shall be paid as specifically herein provided, and shall be for the privilege of engaging in or carrying on the business or doing the act named; and, if taxpayer be a corporation, shall be a tax also for the continuance of its corporate rights and privileges granted under its charter, if incorporated in this state, or by reason of any act of domestication if incorporated in another state, and such taxes and taxpayers shall be subject to other pertinent regulations mentioned in this chapter. The taxes levied in this article or schedule shall be for the fiscal year of the state in which said taxes become due. (1939, c. 158, s. 201; 1943, c. 400, s. 3.)

Editor's Note.—The 1943 amendment struck out former provisions of the last sentence relating to lien of taxes.

See 11 N. C. Law Rev. 258, for general amount of increase made in these taxes by the 1933 act.

Franchise Tax on Corporation.—The franchise tax imposed upon every corporation doing business in the State is a tax upon the privilege of being a corporation, and its payment does not relieve it, or its lessee, from the payment of a tax imposed upon the privilege of carrying on the particular kind of business for which the corporation was chartered. Cobb v. Commissioners, 122 N. C. 307, 30 S. E. 338.

Whenever a tax is imposed upon a corporation directly by the legislature and is not assessed by assessors, and the amount depends on the amount of business transacted by the corporation, and the extent to which it has exercised the privileges granted in its charter, without reference to the value of its property or the nature of the investments made of it, it is a franchise tax. Burroughs on Tax., 169; Worth v. Petersburg R. Co., 89 N. C. 301, 302, 306.

Tax on Gross Receipts.—A tax on the gross receipts of an insurance company is a privilege tax. Insurance Co. v. Stedman, 130 N. C. 221, 41 S. E. 279.

§ 105-115. Franchise or privilege tax on railroads.—Every person, firm, or corporation, domestic or foreign, owning and/or operating a railroad in this state shall, in addition to all other taxes levied and assessed in the state, pay annually to the commissioner of revenue a franchise, license, or privilege tax for the privilege of engaging in such railroad business within the state of North Carolina, as follows:

(a) Such person, firm or corporation shall during the month of June each year furnish to the commissioner of revenue a copy of the report and statement required to be made to the state board of assessment by the Machinery Act in effect at the time such report is due, and such other and further information as the commissioner of revenue may require.

(b) The value upon which the tax herein levied shall be assessed by the commissioner of revenue and the measure of the extent to which every such railroad company is carrying on intrastate commerce within the state of North Carolina shall be the value of the total property, tangible and intangible, in this state, for each such railroad company, as assessed for ad valorem taxation during the calendar year in which such report is due.

(c) The franchise or privilege tax which every such railroad company shall pay for the privilege of carrying on or engaging in intrastate commerce within this state shall be seventy-five one-hundredths of one per cent (75/100%) of the value ascertained as above by the commissioner of revenue, and tax shall be due and payable within thirty days after date of notice of such tax.

(d) If any such person, firm, or corporation shall fail, neglect, or refuse to make and deliver the report or statements provided for in this section, the commissioner of revenue shall estimate, from the reports and records on file with the state board of assessment, the value upon which the amount of tax due by such company under this section shall be computed, and shall assess the franchise or privilege tax upon such estimate, and shall collect the same, together with such penalties herein imposed for failure to make the report and statement.

(e) It is the intention of this section to levy upon railroad companies a license, franchise, or privilege tax for the privilege of engaging in intrastate commerce carried on wholly within this state, and not a part of interstate commerce; that the tax provided for in this section is not intended to be a tax for the privilege of engaging in interstate commerce, nor is it intended to be a tax on the business of interstate commerce, nor is it intended to be a tax having any relation to the interstate or foreign business or commerce in which any such railroad company may be engaged in addition to its business in this state.

(f) No county, city or town shall levy a license, franchise, or privilege tax on the business taxed under this section. (1939, c. 158, s. 202.)

Cross References.—As to requirement of uniformity, see N. C. Const., Art. V, § 3, and note to Worth v. Petersburg R. Co., 89 N. C. 301, under § 105-241.

(a) The total gross receipts for the three months ending the last day of the month immediately preceding such return from such business within and without this state.

(b) The total gross receipts for the same period from such business within this state.

(c) The total gross receipts from the commodities or services described in this section sold to any other person, firm, or corporation engaged in selling such commodities or services to the public, and actually sold by such vendee to the public for consumption and tax paid to this state by the vendee, together with the name of such vendee, with the amount sold and the price received therefor.

(d) The total amount and price paid for such commodities or services purchased from others engaged in the above named business in this state, and the name or names of the vendor.

(2) From the total gross receipts within this state there shall be deducted the gross receipts reported in subsection (1) (c) of this section: Provided, that this deduction shall not be allowed where the sale of such commodities was made to any person, firm, or corporation or municipality which is exempted by law from the payment of the tax herein imposed upon such commodities when sold or used by it.

(3) On every such person, firm or corporation there is levied an annual franchise or privilege tax of six per cent (6%), payable quarterly, of the total gross receipts derived from such business within this state, after the deductions allowed as herein provided for, which said tax shall be for the privilege of carrying on or engaging in the business named in this state, and shall be paid to the commissioner of revenue at the time of filing the report herein provided for: Provided, the tax upon privately owned water companies shall be four per cent (4%) of the total gross receipts derived from such business within this state: Provided further, the tax on gas companies shall be at the rate of four per cent (4%) upon the first twenty-five thousand dollars ($25,000.00) of the total gross receipts, and the tax on all gross receipts in excess of twenty-five thousand dollars ($25,000.00) shall be at the rate of six per cent (6%).

(4) Any person, firm, or corporation failing to file report and pay tax found to be due in accordance with the provisions of this section at the time herein provided for shall, in addition to all other penalties prescribed by this article, pay an additional tax of ten per cent (10%) and interest at the rate of six per cent (6%) per annum on the total amount of tax due and additional tax incurred, which said additional tax shall in no case be less than two dollars ($2.00), and shall be added to the tax, together with interest accrued, and shall become an integral part of the tax.

(5) The report herein required of gross receipts within and without the state, shall include the total gross receipts for the period stated of all properties owned and operated by the reporting person, firm, or corporation on the first day of each calendar quarter year, whether operated by it for the previous annual period, or whether intermediately acquired by purchase or lease, it being the intent and purpose of this section to measure the amount of privilege or franchise tax in each calendar quarter year with reference to the gross receipts of the property operated for the previous calendar quarter year and to fix liability for the payment of the tax on the owner, operator, or lessor on the first day of January, April, July and October of each year.

(6) Companies taxed under this section shall not be required to pay the franchise tax imposed by §§ 105-122 or 105-123 unless the tax levied by §§ 105-122 and 105-123 exceed the tax levied in this section, and no county shall impose a franchise or privilege tax upon the business taxed under this section, and no city or town shall impose a greater privilege or license tax upon such companies than the aggregate privilege or license tax which is now imposed by any such city or town. (1939, c. 158, s. 203.)

Section Held Inapplicable. — This section, imposing a franchise tax of six per cent of the total gross earnings on businesses therein enumerated, does not apply to the operation of buses for hire within a city, even though operated on definite routes, unless used in connection with or in substitution for a street railway. Safe Bus v. Maxwell, 214 N. C. 12, 197 S. E. 567.

§ 105-117. Franchise or privilege tax on Pullman, sleeping, chair, and dining cars.—(1) Every person, firm, or corporation, domestic or foreign, engaged in the business of operating in this state any Pullman, sleeping, chair, dining or other similar cars, where an extra charge is made for the use or occupancy of same, shall annually, on or before the first day of August, make and deliver to the commissioner of revenue, upon such forms, blanks, and in such manner as may be required by him, a full, accurate, and true report and statement, verified by oath of the officer or authorized agent making such report, of the total gross receipts of such person, firm, or corporation from such business wholly within this state during the year ending the thirtieth day of June of the current year.

(a) The average amount of invested capital employed within and without the state in such business during the year ending the thirtieth day of June of the current year.

Where the net income of the average capital invested during the year ending the thirtieth day of June of the current year is six per cent (6%) or less, fifteen dollars ($15.00) per mile of railroad lines over which operated.

More than six per cent (6%) and less than eight per cent (8%), twenty-one dollars ($21.00) per mile of railroad lines over which operated.

Eight per cent (8%) and over, twenty-five dollars ($25.00) per mile of railroad lines over which operated.

(3) Every such person, firm, or corporation, domestic or foreign, who or which engages in such business without having had previous receipts upon which to levy the franchise or privilege tax, shall report to the commissioner at the time of beginning business in this state and pay for such privilege of engaging in business in this state a tax of seven dollars and fifty cents ($7.50) per mile of the railroad lines over which operated or proposed to operate.

Cross References.—As to requirement of uniformity, see N. C. Const., Art. V, § 3, and note to Worth v. Petersburg R. Co., 89 N. C. 301, under § 105-241.

Constitutionality.—A tax upon express companies of $15.00 per mile of track over which they operate in this State, when the net income is six per cent or less, levied under the provisions of the former statute, was held valid under the provisions of our State Constitution, Art. V, sec. 3. Railway Express Agency v. Maxwell, 199 N. C. 637, 155 S. E. 553.

Where a tax levied on an express company under the provisions of the statute is $15.00 per mile of track over which it operates in this State, amounting to slightly in excess of 12 per cent of its gross revenue exclusively derived from intrastate business, not taking into account large gross receipts from interstate business, it will not be held as a matter of law that the tax is unconstitutional as being confiscatory. Railway Express Agency v. Maxwell, 199 N. C. 637, 638, 155 S. E. 553.

Question of Earnings within and without State Immaterial.—Where a statute imposes a tax upon express companies based upon the mileage of track in this State over which they operate, levying a tax of $15.00 per mile when the net income of the company is six per cent or less, $18.00 when the net income does not exceed eight per cent, and $21.00 per mile when the net income exceeds eight per cent, and the State levies the minimum tax on an express company, which sues to recover the amount so paid, the question of the ratio of the company's net earnings in this and other States, and the amount of the net income are immaterial to the conclusion as to whether the tax is valid, the tax levied being constant regardless of income or the ratio between interstate and intrastate business, and the validity of the higher rate of taxes levied by the statute is not directly presented for decision. Railway Express Agency v. Maxwell, 199 N. C. 637, 638, 155 S. E. 553.

§ 105-119. Franchise or privilege tax on telegraph companies.—(1) Every person, firm or corporation, domestic or foreign, engaged in operating the apparatus necessary for communication by telegraph between points within this state, shall annually, on or before the first day of August, make and deliver to the commissioner of revenue, upon such forms and in such manner as required by him, a report verified by the oath of the officer or authorized agent making such report and statement, containing the following information:

(a) The total gross receipts from business within and without this state for the entire calendar year next preceding due date on such return.

(b) The total gross receipts for the same period from business within this state.

(2) On every such person, firm or corporation there is hereby levied an annual franchise or privilege tax of six per cent (6%) of the total gross receipts derived from business within this state. Such gross receipts shall include all charges for services, all rentals, fees, and all other similar charges from business which both originates and terminates in the state of North Carolina, whether such business in the course of transmission goes outside this state or not. The tax herein levied shall be for the privilege of carrying on or engaging in the business named in this state, and shall be paid to the commissioner of revenue at the time of filing the report herein provided for: Provided, that the tax on the first one thousand dollars ($1,000.00) of gross receipts of any such telegraph company shall be at the rate of four per cent (4%), and all gross receipts in excess of said first one thousand dollars ($1,000.00) shall be taxed at the rate of six per cent (6%).

(3) The report herein required shall include the total gross receipts for the period stated of all properties owned, leased, controlled and/or over which operated by such person, firm or corporation in this state.

(5) (a) Nothing in this section shall be construed to authorize the imposition of any tax upon interstate commerce.

(b) Counties shall not levy a franchise, privilege, or license tax on the business taxable under this section, and municipalities may levy the following license tax:

Less than 5,000 population	$10.00
5,000 and less than 10,000 population	15.00
10,000 and less than 20,000 population	20.00
20,000 population and over	50.00

§ 105-120. Franchise or privilege tax on telephone companies.—(1) Every person, firm or corporation, domestic or foreign, owning and/or operating a telephone business for the transmission of messages and/or conversations to, from, through, in or across this state, shall, within thirty days after the first day of January, April, July and October of each year, make and deliver to the commissioner of revenue a quarterly return, verified by the oath of the officer or authorized agent making such return, showing the total amount of gross receipts of such telephone company for the three months ending the last day of the month immediately preceding such return, and pay, at the time of making such return, the franchise, license or privilege tax herein imposed.

(2) An annual franchise or privilege tax of six per cent (6%), payable quarterly, on the gross receipts of such telephone company, is herein imposed for the privilege of engaging in such business within this state. Such gross receipts shall include all rentals, other similar charges, and all tolls received from business which both originates and terminates in the state of North Carolina, whether such business in the course of transmission goes outside of this state or not: Provided, where any city or town in the state has heretofore sold at public auction to the highest bidder the right, license and/or privilege of engaging in such business in such city or town, based upon a percentage of gross revenue of such telephone company, and is now collecting and receiving therefor a revenue tax not exceeding one per cent of such revenues, the amount so paid by such operating company, upon being certified by the treasurer of such municipality to the commissioner of revenue, shall be from time to time credited by the commissioner of revenue to such telephone company upon the tax imposed by the state under this section of this chapter.

(3) Any such person, firm or corporation, domestic or foreign, who or which fails, neglects, or refuses to make the return, and/or pay the tax at the time provided for in this section, shall pay an additional tax of ten per cent (10%) and interest at the rate of six per cent (6%) per annum on the total amount of tax due and additional tax incurred, which said additional tax shall not be less than two dollars ($2.00) in any case, and shall be added to the tax, together with the interest accrued, and shall become an integral part of the tax.

(4) Nothing in this section shall be construed to authorize the imposition of any tax upon interstate commerce.

(5) Counties, cities and towns shall not levy any franchise, license, or privilege tax on the business taxed under this section. (1939, c. 158, s. 207.)

§ 105-121. Franchise or privilege tax on insurance companies.—Every person, firm, or corporation, domestic or foreign, which contracts on his, their, or its account to issue any policies for or agreements for life, fire, marine, surety, guaranty, fidelity, employers' liability, liability, credit, health, accident, livestock, plate glass, tornado, automobile, automatic sprinkler, burglary, steam boiler, and all other forms of insurance shall apply for and obtain from the insurance commissioner a state license for the privilege of engaging in such business within this state and shall pay for such state license the following tax:

(1) The annual license or privilege tax, due and payable on or before the first day of April of each year, shall be for each such license issued to:

An insurance rate-making company or association	$200.00
A life insurance company or association	250.00
A fire insurance company or association of companies operating a separate or distinct plant of agencies	200.00
An accident or health insurance company or association	200.00
A marine insurance company or association	200.00
A fidelity or surety company or association	200.00
A plate-glass insurance company or association	200.00
A boiler insurance company or association	200.00
A foreign mutual insurance company or association	200.00
A domestic farmers' mutual insurance company or association	10.00
A fraternal order	25.00
A bond, investment, dividend, guaranty, registry, title guaranty, credit, fidelity, liability, or debenture company or association	200.00
All other insurance companies or associations except domestic mutual burial associations	200.00

When the paid-in capital stock and/or surplus of an insurance company does not exceed one hundred thousand dollars ($100,000.00), the license tax levied in subsection one shall be one-half the amount named.

All such license fees shall be subject to the provisions of § 58-64 as to additional classes of business.

(2) Every such person, firm, or corporation, domestic or foreign, engaged in the business hereinbefore described in this section, shall by its general agent, president, or secretary, within the first fifteen days of February and August of each year, file with the insurance commissioner of this state a full, accurate, and correct report and statement, verified by the oath of such general agent or president, secretary, or some officer at the home or head office of the company or association in this country, of the total gross premium receipts including premiums or deposits on annuity contracts derived from such insurance business from the residents of this state, or on property located therein, during the preceding six months of the previous calendar year, and at the time of making such report and statement shall, except as hereinafter provided, pay to the insurance commissioner, in addition to other license taxes imposed in this section, a license or privilege tax for the privilege of engaging in such business in this state, a license tax of two and one-half per cent (2½%) upon the amount of such gross premium receipts, with no deduction for dividends, whether returned in cash or allowed in payment or reduction of premiums or for additional insurance, and without any deduction except for return premiums or return assessments. The rate of tax on premiums for liability under the Workmen's Compensation Act for all insurance companies collecting such premiums shall be four per cent (4%) on all premiums collected in this state on such liability insurance, and a corresponding rate of tax shall be collected from self-insurers: Provided, if any general agent shall file with the insurance commissioner a sworn statement showing that fifteen per centum of the entire assets of his company are invested and are maintained in any of the following securities or property, to-wit: bonds of this state or any county, city, town, or school district of this state; or in loans to citizens or corporations or organizations in this state; or stock in corporations of this state; or property situated within this state, then such tax shall be three-fourths per centum of such gross premium receipts: Provided, that the provisions herein as to tax and premium receipts shall not apply to domestic farmers' mutual fire insurance companies, nor to fraternal orders or societies that do not operate for a profit and do not issue policies on any person except its members.

(3) Every special or district agent, manager, or organizer, general agent, local canvassing agent, resident or non-resident adjuster, or non-resident broker, representing any company referred to in this section, shall on or before the first day of April of each year apply for and obtain from the insurance commissioner a license for the privilege of engaging in such business in this state, and shall pay for such license for each company represented the following annual tax:

Special or district agent, manager, or organizer (including seal)	$ 5.00
General agent	6.00
Local or canvassing agent (including seal)	2.50
Resident fire insurance adjuster	2.00
Non-resident fire insurance adjuster	5.00
Non-resident broker	10.00

But any such company having assets invested and maintained in this state as provided in subsection three of this section shall pay the following license fees: for

Special agent (including seal)	$2.50
Local canvassing agent (including seal)	1.00

Any person not licensed as an insurance agent on April first, one thousand nine hundred and thirty-three, and applying for license thereafter, shall pay an examination fee of ten dollars

($10.00), to be paid to the insurance commissioner as other license fees and taxes: Provided, agents for farm mutual fire insurance companies shall not be required to take an examination and pay the examination fee.

In the event a license issued under this subsection is lost or destroyed, the insurance commissioner, for a fee of fifty cents ($0.50) may certify to its issuance, giving number, date, and form, which may be used by the original party named thereon in lieu of the said original license. There shall be no charge for the seal affixed to such certificate of said license.

(4) Any person, firm, or corporation, domestic or foreign, exchanging reciprocal or inter-insurance contracts as provided herein, shall pay through their attorneys an annual license fee, due and payable on the first day of April of each year, of two hundred dollars ($200.00) and two and one-half per cent (2½%) of the gross premium deposits, and also all other regular fees prescribed by law, to be reported, assessed, and paid as other gross premium taxes provided for in this section: Provided, the tax on workmen's compensation insurance premiums shall be the same as that fixed in subsection two of this section.

(5) Companies paying the tax levied in this section shall not be liable for franchise tax on their capital stock, and no county, city, or town shall be allowed to impose any additional tax, license, or fee, other than ad valorem taxes, upon any insurance company, association or agent paying the tax levied in this section. The license fees and taxes imposed in this section shall be paid to the insurance commissioner. (1939, c. 158, s. 208; 1941, c. 50, s. 4; 1943, c. 60, s. 1; 1943, c. 400, s. 3.)

Editor's Note.—The 1941 amendment reduced the license tax on insurance rate-making companies or associations from $350 to $200. For comment on this amendment, see 19 N. C. Law Rev. 529.

The first 1943 amendment struck out a former provision of subsection (1) relating to mutual burial associations. The second 1943 amendment omitted the word "life" formerly appearing before the word "insurance" in line two of the next to the last paragraph of subsection (1). It also substituted in the first proviso of subsection (2) the words "fifteen per centum" for the word "one-fifth."

Constitutionality.—Foreign corporations do business here by comity of the state, and the latter may impose a license tax as a condition upon which such corporations may do business here under the protection of our laws, where such is not an interference with interstate commerce, or the tax is not otherwise invalid. Pittsburgh Life, etc., Co. v. Young, 172 N. C. 470, 90 S. E. 568; and it is no valid objection that such tax is higher than that imposed on similar domestic corporations. Id.

The license tax imposed upon the gross receipts of insurance companies on business written within the borders of our State, is not in contravention of the fourteenth amendment to the Constitution of the United States, as to due process and equal protection of the law, nor a burden upon interstate commerce, being restricted to intrastate commerce, and not extending beyond the boundaries of the State. Pittsburg Life, etc., Co. v. Young, 172 N. C. 470, 90 S. E. 568.

The determination of the question as to just how far a state legislature could go in prohibiting foreign corporations from doing business within the state or just what restrictions and conditions could be validly imposed has given rise to many conflicting decisions. The cases, over a long period of time, were far from being harmonious and the various courts could not agree as to where the line of demarcation should be drawn. Finally the question was presented to the United States Supreme Court and the substance of the present rules in regard to this subject appears to be this: (1) a state may validly close her doors to a foreign corporation and prohibit it from coming within her borders to do business. (2) A state, upon granting admittance to a foreign corporation, may validly impose any and all restrictions and conditions it sees fit, and such corporation cannot object that a compliance with the same conditions is not exacted of a domestic corporation.

This seems to be the limit of the state's power, and the line is drawn when (3) it is held that a state, upon permitting a foreign corporation to do business within her borders, cannot require that if a suit or action is brought against such corporation, then the corporation cannot carry the case to a federal court.—Ed. Note.

Tax on Gross Earnings.—The tax on gross receipts means all receipts from business done in the state, whether the money is paid here or forwarded to the main office. Pittsburg Life, etc., Co. v. Young, 172 N. C. 470, 90 S. E. 568.

Same—A License Tax.—The tax imposed upon the gross earnings of foreign life insurance companies doing business within this state, derived within this state, is a license or occupation tax. Pittsburg Life, etc., Co. v. Young, 172 N. C. 470, 90 S. E. 568.

§ 105-121.1. Mutual burial associations.—An annual franchise or privilege tax on all domestic mutual burial associations shall be due and payable to the commissioner of revenue on or before the first day of April of each year. The amount of this franchise or privilege tax shall be based on the membership of such associations according to the following schedule:

Membership less than 3,000	$15.00
Membership of 3,000 to 5,000	20.00
Membership of 5,000 to 10,000	25.00
Membership of 10,000 to 15,000	30.00
Membership of 15,000 to 20,000	35.00
Membership of 20,000 to 25,000	40.00
Membership of 25,000 to 30,000	45.00
Membership of 30,000 or more	50.00

§ 105-122. Franchise or privilege tax on domestic and foreign corporations.—(1) Every corporation, domestic and foreign, incorporated or, by any act, domesticated under the laws of this state, except as otherwise provided in this article or schedule, shall, on or before the thirty-first day of July of each year, make and deliver to the commissioner of revenue in such form as he may prescribe a full, accurate and complete report and statement verified by the oath of its duly authorized officers, containing such facts and information as may be required by the commissioner of revenue as shown by the books and records of the corporation as at the close of its last calendar or fiscal year next preceding July thirty-first of the year in which report is due.

(2) Every such corporation taxed under this section shall determine the total amount of its issued and outstanding capital stock, surplus and undivided profits; no reservation or allocation from surplus or undivided profits shall be allowed other than for definite and accrued legal liabilities, except as herein provided; taxes accrued, dividends declared and reserves for depreciation of tangible assets as permitted for income tax purposes shall be treated as deductable liabilities. Treasury stock shall not be considered in computing the capital stock, surplus and undivided profits as the basis for franchise tax, but shall be excluded proportionately from said capital stock, surplus and undivided profits as the case may be upon the basis and to the extent of the cost thereof. The capital stock for the purposes of this section shall be deemed to be inadequate to the extent that additional loans, credits, goods, supplies or other capital of whatsoever nature is furnished by the parent or affiliated corporation.

Every corporation doing business in this state which is a subsidiary of another corporation shall add to its capital stock, surplus and undivided profits all indebtedness owed to or endorsed or guaranteed by the parent corporation as a part of the capital used in its business in this state, and as a part of the base for franchise tax under this article. The term "indebtedness" used in this paragraph shall include all loans, credits, goods, supplies or other capital of whatsoever nature furnished by the parent corporation, or by any subsidiary of the parent corporation. The term "subsidiary corporation" as used in this paragraph shall mean any corporation, a majority of stock in which is owned by a parent corporation. The term "parent corporation" shall include any subsidiary of the parent corporation. If any part of the capital used by the parent corporation is borrowed capital, the subsidiary may deduct from its indebtedness to the parent corporation such proportion of its indebtedness as the indebtedness of the parent corporation is to the total assets of such corporation.

(3) After ascertaining and determining the amount of its capital stock, surplus and undivided profits, as herein provided, every such corporation permitted to do business in this state shall allocate to such business in this state a proportion of the total amount of its capital stock, surplus and undivided profits as herein defined, according to the following rules:

(A) If the principal business of a company in this state is manufacturing, or if it is in any form of collecting, buying, assembling, or processing goods and materials within this state the total amount of capital stock, surplus and undivided profits of such corporation shall be apportioned to North Carolina on the basis of the ratio obtained by taking the arithmetical average of the following two ratios:

(a) The ratio of the book value of its real estate and tangible personal property in this state on the date of the close of the calendar or fiscal year of such corporation in the income year is to the book value of its entire real estate and tangible personal property then owned by it, with no deductions on account of encumbrances thereon.

(b) The ratio of the total cost of manufacturing, collecting, buying, assembling, or processing within this state during the income year to the total cost of manufacturing, collecting, assembling, or processing within and without the state. The term "cost of manufacturing, collecting, buying, assembling, or processing within and without this state" as used herein shall be interpreted in a manner to conform as nearly as may be to the best accounting practice in the trade or business. Unless in the opinion of the commissioner of revenue the peculiar circumstances in any case justify a different basis, this term shall be generally interpreted to include as elements of cost within and without this state the following:

(c) The total cost of all goods, materials, and supplies used in manufacturing, assembling, or processing, regardless of where purchased.

(d) The total wages and salaries paid or accrued during the income year in such manufacturing, assembling, or processing activities.

(e) The total overhead or manufacturing burden properly assignable according to good accounting practice to such manufacturing, assembling, or processing activities, not including, however, property, privilege, stamp or other taxes.

(f) The term "book value" as used herein shall be defined to mean original cost plus additions and improvements less reserve for depreciation on the date of the close of the calendar or fiscal year of such company, unless in the opinion of the commissioner of revenue the peculiar circumstances in any case justify a different basis.

(g) The words "tangible personal property" shall be taken to mean corporeal personal property such as machinery, tools, implements, goods, wares and merchandise, and shall not be taken to mean cash on hand or in bank, shares of stock, bonds, notes, accounts receivable, credits, special privileges, franchises, good will, or evidence of an interest in property and evidences of debt.

(h) The word "manufacturing" shall be defined as mining and all processes of fabricating or of curing raw material.

(B) If the principal business of a company in this state is selling, distributing, or dealing in tangible personal property within this state, the total amount of capital stock, surplus and undivided profits of such company shall be apportioned to North Carolina on the basis of the ratio obtained by taking the arithmetical average of the following two ratios:

(a) The ratio of the book value of its real estate and tangible personal property in this state on the date of the close of the calendar or fiscal year of such company in the income year is to the book value of its entire real estate and tangible personal property then owned by it, with no deduction on account of encumbrances thereon.

(b) The ratio of the total sales made through or by offices, agencies, or branches located in North Carolina during the income year to the total sales made everywhere during said income year.

(c) The word "sales" as used in this section shall be defined as sale or rental of real estate and sale or rental of tangible properties.

(d) The term "book value" as used herein shall be defined to mean original cost plus additions and improvements less reserve for depreciation on the date of the close of the calendar or fiscal year of such company, unless in the opinion of the commissioner of revenue the peculiar circumstances in any case justify a different basis.

(e) The words "tangible personal property" shall be taken to mean corporeal personal property such as machinery, tools, implements, goods, wares and merchandise, and shall not be taken to mean cash on hand or in bank, shares of stock, bonds, notes, accounts receivable, credits, special privileges, franchises, good will, or evidence of an interest in property and evidences of debt.

(C) If the principal business in this state of a corporation is other than that described in subsection (A) or subsection (B) of this section, then the total amount of capital stock, surplus and undivided profits of such corporation shall be apportioned to North Carolina on the basis of the ratio of its gross receipts in this state during the income year to its gross receipts for such year within and without the state.

(a) The words "gross receipts" as used in this subsection shall be taken to mean and include the entire receipts for business done by such corporation.

(D) If any corporation believes that the method of allocation or apportionment hereinbefore described as administered by the commissioner of revenue has operated or will so operate as to subject it to taxation on a greater portion of its capital stock, surplus, and undivided profits than is reasonably attributable to business within the state, it shall be entitled to file with the commissioner a petition setting forth the facts upon which its belief is based and its argument with respect to the application of the allocation formula. This petition shall be filed in such form and within such time as the commissioner may prescribe. If, after a consideration of the matters involved, it shall be found by the commissioner upon evidence offered which is clear, cogent and convincing that the application of the allocation formula subjects the corporation to taxation on a greater portion of its capital stock, surplus and undivided profits than is reasonably attributable to business within this state, the commissioner shall be authorized to add to the factors of the applicable allocation formula, or substitute for one of the factors of the applicable allocation formula, depending upon whether such addition or such substitution in the opinion of the commissioner more accurately reflects the capital stock, surplus, and undivided profits attributable to this state, the following factor:

The ratio of the expenditure of the wages, salaries, commissions, or other compensation of whatsoever kind to its officers or employees, assignable to this state as hereinafter provided, to the total expenditure of the corporation for wages, salaries, commissions, or other compensation of whatsoever kind to all its officers or employees. The amount assignable to this state of the expenditure of the corporation for wages, salaries, commissions or other compensation to its officers or employees shall be such expenditure for the taxable year as represents the compensation of officers or employees not chiefly situated at, connected with or sent out from premises for the transaction of business owned or rented by the corporation outside the state.

The relief herein authorized shall be granted by the commissioner only in cases of clear, cogent, and convincing proof that the petitioning taxpayer is entitled thereto. There shall be a presumption that the allocation formulae prescribed in subsection (3) of this section reasonably attribute to North Carolina the proportion of the corporation's capital stock, surplus and undivided profits used in connection with its business in this state, and the burden shall rest upon the corporation to show the contrary. No corporation shall use this alternative factor in making a franchise tax report or return to this state except upon order in writing of the commissioner, and any return in which the alternative factor is used without the permission of the commissioner shall not be a lawful return.

(E) The proportion of the total capital stock, surplus and undivided profits of each such corporation so allocated shall be deemed to be the proportion of the total capital stock, surplus and undivided profits of each such corporation used in connection with its business in this state and liable for annual franchise tax under the provisions of this section.

(4) After determining the proportion of its total capital stock, surplus and undivided profits as set out in subsection three of this section, which amount so determined shall in no case be less than the total assessed value (including total gross valuation returned for taxation of intangible personal property) of all the real and personal property in this state of each such corporation for the year in which report is due nor less than its total actual investment in tangible property in this state, every corporation taxed under this section shall annually pay to the commissioner of revenue, at the time the report and statement are due, a franchise or privilege tax, which is hereby levied, at the rate of one dollar and seventy-five cents ($1.75) per one thousand dollars ($1,000.00) of the total amount of capital stock, surplus and undivided profits as herein provided. The tax imposed in this section shall in no case be less than ten dollars ($10.00) and shall be for the privilege of carrying on, doing business, and/or the continuance of articles of incorporation or domestication of each such corporation in this state: Provided, that the basis for the franchise tax on all corporations, eighty per cent (80%) of whose outstanding capital stock is owned by persons or corporations to whom or to which such stock was issued prior to January first, one thousand nine hundred thirty-five, in part payment or settlement of their respective deposits in any closed bank of the state of North Carolina, shall be the total assessed value of the real and tangible personal property of such corporation in this state for the year in which report and statement is due under the provisions of this section. The term "total actual investment in tangible property" as used in this section shall be construed to mean the total original purchase price or consideration to the reporting taxpayer of its tangible properties, including real estate, in this state plus additions and improvements thereto less reserve for depreciation as permitted for income tax purposes, and also less any indebtedness incurred and existing by virtue of the purchase of any real estate and any permanent improvements made thereon.

(5) The report, statement and tax required by this section shall be in addition to all other reports required or taxes levied and assessed in this state.

Counties, cities and towns shall not levy a franchise tax on corporations taxed under this section. (1939, c. 158, s. 210; 1941, c. 50, s. 4; 1943, c. 400, s. 3.)

Editor's Note.—The 1941 amendment inserted the last sentence of the first paragraph of subdivision (2). It also made changes in subsection (C) of subdivision (3) and designated a following paragraph under said subdivision as (D).

The 1943 amendment rewrote portions of subsection (2). It also inserted subdivision (D) of subsection (3) and changed former subdivision "(D)" to "(E)."

Tax Is on Privilege of Existence.—By the express terms of P. L. 1931, ch. 427, § 210, which was superseded by this section, the corporation was liable for the annual franchise tax for each year during which it enjoyed the privilege of the continuance of its charter. It was immaterial whether or not the corporation exercised its privilege of doing or carrying on the business authorized by its charter or certificate of incorporation; it was liable so long as it enjoyed the privilege granted by the state of "being" a corporation. Stagg v. Nessen Co., 208 N. C. 285, 180 S. E. 658.

§ 105-123. New corporations.—(1) No corporation, domestic or foreign, shall be permitted to do business in this state without paying the franchise tax levied in this article or schedule. When such domestic corporation is incorporated under laws of this state or such foreign corporation is domesticated in this state, and has not heretofore done business in the state, upon which a report might be filed under § 105-122 notice in writing thereof shall be given to the commissioner of revenue by such corporation, and it shall be competent for the commissioner of revenue and he is hereby authorized to obtain such information concerning the basis for the levy of the tax from such other information he can obtain and to that end may require of such corporation to furnish him such a report as may clearly reflect and disclose the amount of its issued and outstanding capital stock, surplus and undivided profits as set out in § 105-122, and information as to such other factors as may be necessary to determine the basis of the tax. When this has been determined, in accordance with the provisions of § 105-122 as far as the same may be applicable, and upon the information which he has secured, the commissioner of revenue shall thereupon determine the amount of franchise tax to be paid by such new corporation, and said tax shall be due and payable within thirty days from date of notice thereof from the commissioner of revenue, which tax, in no event, shall be less than a ratable proportion of the tax for the franchise privilege extended for one year on the determined basis, nor less than the minimum tax of ten dollars ($10.00); the tax levied in this section shall be for the period from date of incorporation or domestication to June thirtieth next following.

(2) Any corporation failing to notify the commissioner of revenue as provided for in subsection (1) of this section within sixty days after date of the incorporation or domestication of such corporation in this state shall be subject to all penalties and remedies imposed for failure to file any report required under this article or schedule.

(3) The provisions of this section shall apply only to corporations newly incorporated or newly domesticated in this state. (1939, c. 158, s. 211.)

§ 105-124. Review of returns—additional taxes.—Upon receipt of any report, statement and tax as provided by this article or schedule, the commissioner of revenue shall cause same to be reviewed and examined for the purpose of ascertaining if same constitute a true and correct return as required by this article or schedule. If the commissioner of revenue discovers from the examination of any return, or otherwise, that the franchise or privilege tax of any taxpayer has not been correctly determined, computed and/or paid, he may at any time within three years after the time when the return was due, give notice in writing, to the taxpayer of such deficiency plus interest at the rate of six per cent (6%) per annum from date when return was due, and any over-payment of the tax shall be returned to the taxpayer within thirty days after it is ascertained. In the case of any taxpayer who has failed to file any return or statement required under this article or schedule, the limitation of three years shall not apply and the commissioner of revenue shall, from facts within his knowledge, prepare tentative returns for such delinquent taxpayer, and shall assess the taxes, penalties and interest upon these findings; this provision shall not be construed to relieve said taxpayer from liability for a return or from any penalties and remedies imposed for failure to file proper return. Any taxpayer feeling aggrieved by such proposed assessment shall be entitled to a hearing before the commissioner of revenue, if within thirty days after date of notice of such proposed assessment, the taxpayer shall apply in writing for such hearing, explaining in detail his objections to same. If no request for such hearing is made, such proposed assessment shall be final and conclusive. If the request for hearing is made, the taxpayer shall be heard by the commissioner of revenue, and after such hearing the commissioner of revenue shall render his decision. The taxpayer shall be advised of his decision by mail, and such amount shall be due and payable within ten days after date of notice thereof. (1939, c. 158, s. 212.)

§ 105-125. Corporations not mentioned.—None of the taxes levied in §§ 105-122 and 105-123 shall apply to religious, fraternal, benevolent, or educational corporations not operating for a profit; nor to banking and insurance companies; nor to business leagues, boards of trade, clubs organized and operated exclusively for pleasure, recreation and other non-profitable purposes, civic leagues operated exclusively for the promotion of social welfare, or chambers of commerce and merchants associations not organized for profit, and no part of the net earnings of which inures to the benefit of any private stockholder, individual, or other corporations:

Provided, that each such corporation must, upon request by the commissioner of revenue, establish in writing its claim for exemption from said provisions. The provisions of §§ 105-122 and 105-123 shall apply to electric light, power, street railway, gas, water, Pullman, sleeping and dining car, express, telegraph, telephone, motor bus, and truck corporations to the extent and only to the extent that the franchise tax levied in §§ 105-122 and 105-123 exceed the franchise taxes levied in other sections of this article or schedule. The exemptions in this section shall apply only to those corporations specifically mentioned, and no other. (1939, c. 158, s. 213.)

§ 105-126. Penalties for non-payment or failure to file report.—(1) Any person, firm, or corporation, domestic or foreign, failing to pay the license, privilege, or franchise tax levied and assessed under this article or schedule when due and payable shall, in addition to all other penalties prescribed in this article, pay an additional tax of ten per cent (10%) and interest at the rate of six per cent (6%) per annum on the total amount of tax due and additional tax incurred, which said additional tax shall not be less than two dollars ($2.00) in any case, and shall be added to the tax, together with the interest accrued, and shall become an integral part of the tax.

(2) Any person, firm, or corporation failing to file the report required in this article or schedule on or before the date specified shall pay a penalty of ten per cent (10%) of the tax found to be due, which penalty shall in no case be less than five dollars ($5.00). (1939, c. 158, s. 214.)

§ 105-127. When franchise or privilege taxes payable. — (1) Every corporation, domestic or foreign, from which a report is required by law to be made to the commissioner of revenue shall, unless otherwise provided, pay to said commissioner annually the franchise tax as required by §§ 105-122 and 105-123.

(2) It shall be the duty of the commissioner of revenue to mail to the registered address, last listed with the commissioner of revenue, of every such corporation, report forms to be used in complying with the provisions of this article or schedule, which forms shall contain a copy of so much of this and other sections of this article as relates to penalties for failure to pay said taxes.

(3) It shall be the duty of the treasurer or other officer having charge of any such corporation, domestic or foreign, upon which a tax is herein imposed, to transmit the amount of the tax due to the commissioner of revenue within the time provided by law for payment of same.

(4) Individual stockholders in any corporation, joint stock association, limited partnership, or company paying a tax on its entire capital stock shall not be required to list or pay ad valorem taxes on the shares of stock owned by them.

(5) Corporations in the state legally holding shares of stock in other corporations, upon which the tax has been paid to the state by the corporation issuing the same, shall not be required to list or pay an ad valorem tax on said shares of stock. (1939, c. 158, s. 215.)

§ 105-128. Power of attorney.—The commissioner of revenue shall have the authority to require a proper power of attorney of each and every agent for any taxpayer under this article. (1939, c. 158, s. 217.)

§ 105-129. Extension of time for filing returns; fraudulent return made misdemeanor. — (1) The return required by this article or schedule shall be due on or before the dates specified unless written application for extension of time in which to file, containing reasons therefor, is made to the commissioner of revenue on or before due date of such return. The commissioner of revenue for good cause may extend the time for filing any return under this article or schedule, provided interest at the rate of six per cent (6%) per annum from date return is due is paid upon the total amount of tax due.

(2) The provisions of this article with respect to revision and appeal shall apply to the tax so assessed. The limitation of three years to the assessment of such tax or additional tax shall not apply to the assessment of additional taxes upon fraudulent return. Any officer or agent of a corporation who shall knowingly make a fraudulent return under this article or schedule shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be fined not less than one hundred dollars ($100.00) nor more than one thousand dollars ($1,000.00) and/or imprisoned at the discretion of the court. (1939, c. 158, s. 216.)

Art. 4. Schedule D. Income Tax.

§ 105-130. Short title.—This article shall be known and may be cited as the income tax article of the revenue act. (1939, c. 158, s. 300.)

§ 105-131. Purpose.—The general purpose of this article is to impose a tax for the use of the state government upon the net income in excess of the exemption herein allowed, for the calendar year one thousand nine hundred and thirty-nine and each year thereafter collectible in the year one thousand nine hundred and forty and annually thereafter:

(a) Of every resident of the state.

(b) Of every domestic corporation.

(c) Of every foreign corporation and of every non-resident individual having a business or agency in this state or income from property owned, and from every business, trade, profession or occupation carried on in this state.

(d) The tax imposed upon the net income of corporations in this article is in addition to all other taxes imposed under this act. (1939, c. 158, s. 301.)

§ 105-132. Definitions. — For the purpose of this article, and unless otherwise required by the context:

1. The word "taxpayer" includes any individual, corporation, or fiduciary subject to the tax imposed by this article.

2. The word "individual" means a natural person.

3. A "head of a household" is an individual who actually maintains and supports in one household in this state one or more individuals who are closely related by blood relationship, relationship by marriage, or by adoption, and whose right to exercise family control and provide for these dependent individuals is based on some moral or legal obligation.

4. The word "fiduciary" means a guardian, trustee, executor, administrator, receiver, conservator, or any person, whether individual or corporation, acting in any fiduciary capacity for any person, estate or trust.

5. The word "person" includes individuals, fiduciaries, partnerships.

6. The word "corporation" includes joint stock companies or associations and insurance companies.

7. The words "domestic corporation" mean any corporation organized under the laws of this state.

8. The words "foreign corporation" mean any corporation other than a domestic corporation.

9. The words "tax year" mean the calendar year in which the tax is payable.

10. The words "income year" mean the calendar year or the fiscal year upon the basis of which the net income is computed under this article; if no fiscal year has been established, they mean the calendar year.

11. The words "fiscal year" mean an income year, ending on the last day of any month other than December.

12. The word "paid", for the purposes of the deductions under this article, means "paid or accrued" and the words "paid or accrued" shall be construed according to the method of accounting upon the basis of which the net income is computed under this article. The word "received", for the purpose of the computation of the net income under this article, means "received or accrued", and the words "received or accrued" shall be construed according to the method of accounting upon the basis of which the net income is computed under this article.

13. The word "resident" applies only to individuals and includes, for the purpose of determining liability for the tax imposed with reference to the income of any income year, all individuals who, at any time during such income year, are domiciled in this state, or who, whether regarding their domicile as in this state or not, reside within this state for other than a temporary or transitory purpose. In the absence of convincing proof to the contrary, any individual who is present within the state for more than six months during such income year shall be deemed to be a resident of the state; but absence from the state for more than six months shall raise no presumption that the individual is not a resident of the state.

In cases in which it is demonstrated to the satisfaction of the commissioner of revenue that an individual was a resident of this state for only part of the income year, having moved into or removed from the state during such year, such individual shall, as to income received by him during the period of his residence, report for taxation all income required to be so reported by residents and shall, as to income received by him during the remainder of such year, report for taxation all income required to be so reported by nonresidents: Provided, that in the case of an individual removing from the state during such year, he shall not be regarded as having become a nonresident until he shall have both established a definite residence elsewhere and abandoned any domicile he may have acquired in this state.

The fact that an individual is a nonresident of the state at the time the tax becomes due and payable shall not affect his liability for the tax.

14. The words "foreign country" mean any jurisdiction other than the one embraced within the United States. The words "United States", when used in a geographical sense, include the states, and territories of Alaska and Hawaii, the District of Columbia, and the possessions of the United States. (1939, c. 158, s. 302; 1941, c. 50, s. 5.)

Editor's Note.—The 1941 amendment substituted subsection (13) for the former subsection 13. For comment on this amendment, see 19 N. C. Law Rev. 530. See 17 N. C. Law Rev. 382, for comment on definition of "head of household."

Salary of Federal Officer Not Taxable.—A state cannot tax the salary of a federal officer, nor of a state officer whose office is created by the constitution. Purnell v. Page, 133 N. C. 125, 45 S. E. 534.

Imposition of Income Tax.

§ 105-133. On the excess over the amount legally exempted, up to two thousand dollars, three per cent (3%).

On the excess above two thousand dollars, and up to four thousand dollars, four per cent (4%).

On the excess above four thousand dollars, and up to six thousand dollars, five per cent (5%).

On the excess over six thousand dollars, and up to ten thousand dollars, six per cent (6%).

On the excess over ten thousand dollars, seven per cent (7%). (1939, c. 158, s. 310.)

§ 105-134. Corporations.

I. Domestic Corporations. — Every corporation organized under the laws of this state shall pay annually an income tax equivalent to six per cent on the entire net income, as herein defined, received by such corporation during the income year.

II. Foreign Corporations. — Every foreign corporation doing business in this state shall pay annually an income tax equivalent to six per cent of a proportion of its entire net income, to be determined according to the following rules:

1. If the principal business of a company in this state is manufacturing, or if it is any form of collecting, buying, assembling, or processing goods and materials within this state, the entire net income of such corporation shall be apportioned by North Carolina on the basis of the ratio obtained by taking the arithmetical average of the following two ratios:

(a) The ratio of the book value of its real estate and tangible personal property in this state on the date of the close of the calendar or the fiscal year of such corporation in the income year is to the book value of its entire real estate and tangible personal property then owned by it, with no deductions on account of encumbrances thereon.

(b) The ratio of the total cost of manufacturing, collecting, buying, assembling, or processing within this state during the income year to the total cost of manufacturing, collecting, buying, assembling, or processing within and without the state. The term "cost of manufacturing, collecting, buying, assembling, or processing within and without this state", as used herein, shall be interpreted in a manner to conform as nearly as may be to the best accounting practice in the trade or business. Unless in the opinion of the commissioner of revenue the peculiar circumstances in any case justify a different basis, this term shall be generally interpreted to include as elements of cost within and without this state the following:

(c) The total cost of all goods, materials, and supplies used in manufacturing, assembling, or processing, regardless of where purchased.

(d) The total wages and salaries paid or accrued during the income year in such manufacturing, assembling or processing activities.

(e) The total overhead or manufacturing burden properly assignable according to good accounting practice to such manufacturing, assembling or processing activities, not including, however, property, privilege, stamp, or other taxes.

(f) The term "book value" as used herein shall be defined to mean original cost plus additions and improvements less reserve for depreciation on the date of the close of the calendar or fiscal year of such company, unless in the opinion of the commissioner of revenue the peculiar circumstances in any case justify a different basis.

(g) The words "tangible personal property" shall be taken to mean corporeal personal property such as machinery, tools, implements, goods, wares and merchandise, and shall not be taken to mean cash on hand or in bank, shares of stock, bonds, notes, accounts receivable, credits, special privileges, franchises, good will, or evidence of an interest in property and evidences of debt.

(h) The word "manufacturing" shall be defined as mining and all processes of fabricating or of curing raw materials.

2. If the principal business of a company in this state is selling, distributing or dealing in tangible personal property within this state, the entire net income of such company shall be apportioned to North Carolina on the basis of the ratio obtained by taking the arithmetical average of the following two ratios.

(a) The ratio of the book value of its real estate and tangible personal property in this state on the date of the close of the calendar or fiscal year of such company in the income year is to the book value of its entire real estate and tangible property then owned by it, with no deduction on account of encumbrances thereon.

(b) The ratio of the total sales made through or by offices, agencies, or branches located in North Carolina during the income year to the total sales made everywhere during said income year.

(c) The word "sales" as used in this section shall be defined as sale or rental of real estate and sale or rental of tangible properties.

(d) The term "book value" as used herein shall be defined to mean original cost plus additions and improvements less reserve for depreciation on the date of the close of the calendar or fiscal year of such company, unless in the opinion of the commissioner of revenue the peculiar circumstances in any case justify a different basis.

(e) The words "tangible personal property" shall be taken to mean corporeal personal property such as machinery, tools, implements, goods, wares and merchandise, and shall not be taken to mean cash on hand or in bank, shares of stock, bonds, notes, accounts receivable, credits, special privileges, franchises, good will, or evidence of an interest in property and evidences of debt.

(f) Foreign insurance companies doing business in this state and returning premium receipts to the insurance commissioner, and paying the tax upon such premium receipts as provided in § 105-121 shall be exempt from this tax on income in so far as the income is derived from their insurance business. However, in case of a foreign insurance company owning real estate in this state from which rents are received it is required to file an income tax return reporting income received from such real estate in this state and take credit for actual expenses incurred in connection therewith.

3. If the principal business in this state of a corporation is other than that described in subsection 1 or subsection 2 of subdivision II of this section, then the total income of such corporation shall be apportioned to North Carolina on the basis of the ratio of its gross receipts in this state during the income year to its gross receipts for such year within and without the state.

(a) The words "gross receipts" as used in this subsection shall be taken to mean and include the entire receipts for business done by such company.

4. If any corporation believes that the method of allocation or apportionment hereinbefore described as administered by the commssioner of revenue has operated or will so operate as to subject it to taxation on a greater portion of its net income than is reasonably attributable to business or earnings within the state, it shall be entitled to file with the commissioner a petition setting forth the facts upon which its belief is based and its argument with respect to the application of the allocation formula. This petition shall be filed in such form and within such time as the commissioner may prescribe. If, after a consideration of the matters involved, it shall be found by the commissioner upon evidence offered which is clear, cogent and convincing that the application of the allocation formula subjects the corporation to taxation on a greater portion of its income or earnings than is reasonably attributable to business or earnings within this state, the commissioner shall be authorized to add to the factors of the applicable allocation formula, or substitute for one of the factors of the applicable allocation formula, depending upon whether such addition or such substitution in the opinion of the commissioner more accurately reflects the income attributable to this state, the following factor:

The ratio of the expenditure of the wages, salaries, commissions or other compensation of whatsoever kind to its officers or employees, assignable to this state as hereinafter provided, to the total expenditure of the corporation for wages, salaries, commissions, or other compensation of whatsoever kind to all its officers or employees. The amount assignable to this state of the expenditure of the corporation for wages, salaries, commissions or other compensation to its officers or employees shall be such expenditure for the taxable year as represents the compensation of officers or employees not chiefly situated at, connected with or sent out from premises for the transaction of business owned or rented by the corporation outside the state.

The relief herein authorized shall be granted by the commissioner only in cases of clear, cogent, and convincing proof that the petitioning taxpayer is entitled thereto. There shall be a presumption that the allocation formulae prescribed in subdivisions one (1), two (2), and three (3) of Part II of this section reasonably attribute to North Carolina the proportion of the corporation's income earned in this state, and the burden shall rest upon the corporation to show the contrary. No corporation shall use this alternative factor in making a report or return of its income to this state except upon order in writing of the commissioner, and any return in which the alternative factor is used without the permission of the commissioner shall not be a lawful return. (1939, c. 158, s. 311; 1941, c. 50, s. 5; 1943, c. 400, s. 4.)

Editor's Note.—The 1941 amendment changed subsection 3 of subdivision II.

The 1943 amendment added subsection 4.

For an excellent note on constitutionality of income allocation formulae as applied to corporations, see 9 N. C. Law Rev. 470.

For case construing the early income tax laws, see Hans Rees' Sons v. North Carolina, 283 U. S. 123, 51 S. Ct. 385, 75 L. Ed. 879.

Corporation Must Show Allocation Unconstitutional.—Where the commissioner of revenue has assessed an income tax against a foreign corporation operating a manufacturing plant in this State in accordance with the provisions of this section, without regard to its intangible property, the commissioner's assessment will be upheld by the courts upon appeal where the corporation has failed to show that such method of allocation is unconstitutional in its application to the corporation. State v. Kent-Coffey Mfg. Co., 204 N. C. 365, 168 S. E. 397.

§ 105-135. Income from stock in foreign corporations.—Income from stock in foreign corporations, in cash dividends, received by individuals, fiduciaries, partnerships (to be reported by partners on their individual returns) or corporations, resident in this state, or by non-resident fiduciary if held for a resident of this state, shall be reported and taxed as other income taxable under this article. Every individual, fiduciary, partnership, or corporation owning such shares of stock, and receiving dividends from same, shall report such income to the commissioner of revenue, at the time required by this article for reporting other income, and shall pay the tax herein imposed at the same time and in the same way as tax upon other income is payable. With respect to corporations paying a tax in this state on a proportionate part of their total income, the holder of shares of stock in such corporation shall pay on the total dividends received an amount equaling the percentage of the corporation's income on which it has not paid an income tax to the state of North Carolina for the year in which said dividends are received by the taxpayer. (1939, c. 158, s. 311½.)

Stock Received as Dividend Taxable.—Where plaintiff, owning stock in a foreign investment corporation, received as a dividend on such stock, stock of another foreign corporation, the stock received as a dividend was taken from the surplus of the investment corporation and was equivalent to a cash dividend, and was taxable as income from stock in a foreign corporation. Maxwell v. Tull, 216 N. C. 500, 5 S. E. (2d) 546.

§ 105-136. Railroads and public-service corporations.—The basis of ascertaining the net income of every corporation engaged in the business of operating a steam, electric railroad, express service, telephone or telegraph business, or other form of public service, when such company is required by the interstate commerce commission to keep records according to its standard classification of accounting, shall be the "net revenue from operations" of such corporation as shown by their records, kept in accordance with that standard classification of accounts when their business is wholly within this state, and when their business is in part within and in part without the state, their net income within this state shall be ascertained by taking their gross "operating revenues" within this state, including in their gross "operating revenues" within this state the equal mileage proportion within this state of their interstate business, and deducting from their gross "operating revenues" the proportionate average of "operating expense" or "operating ratio" for their whole business, as shown by the interstate commerce commission standard classification of accounts:

Provided, that if the standard classification of operating expenses prescribed by the interstate commerce commission for railroads differs from the standard classification of operating expenses prescribed by the interstate commerce commission for other public-service corporations, such other public-service corporations shall be entitled to the same operating expenses as prescribed for railroads. From the net operating income thus ascertained shall be deducted "uncollectible revenue" and taxes paid in this state for the income year other than income taxes, and the balance shall be deemed to be their net income taxable under this article. That in determining the taxable income of a corporation engaged in the business of operating a railroad under this section, in the case of a railroad located entirely within this state, the net operating income shall be increased or decreased to the extent of any credit or debit balance received or paid, as the case may be, on account of car or locomotive hire; and when any railroad is located partly within and partly without this state, the said net operating income shall be increased or decreased to the extent of an equal mileage proportion within this state of any credit or debit balance received or paid, as the case may be, on account of car or locomotive hire.

For the purposes of this section the words "interstate business" shall mean, as to transportation companies, operating revenue earned within the state by reason of the interstate transportation of persons or property into, out of, or through this state, and as to transmission companies the interstate transmission of messages into, out of, or through the state.

The words "equal mileage proportion within the state" shall mean the proportion of revenue received by the company operating in this state from interstate business as defined in the preceding paragraph, which the distance of movement over lines in this state bears to the total distance of movement over lines of the company receiving such revenue. If the commissioner of revenue shall find, with respect to any particular company, that its accounting records are not kept so as to reflect with exact accuracy such division of revenue by state lines as to each transaction involving interstate revenue, the commissioner of revenue may adopt such regulations, based upon averages, as will approximate with reasonable accuracy the proportion of interstate revenue actually earned upon lines in this state.

The words "proportionate average of 'operating expenses' or 'operating ratio'" shall mean the proportion of gross revenue of a company, on its whole business absorbed in operating expenses, as defined in the interstate commerce commission classification of accounts.

In determining the taxable income of a railroad company operating two or more lines of railroad not physically connected, and when one of such railroad lines is located wholly within this state, the actual earnings and expenses of such line in this state, in so far as they may be severable, shall be used in determining net income taxable in this state.

With respect to leased lines operated in this state where the operating company pays a tax on the income earned on such leased lines, without deduction for lease rental, and on a sum properly allocable to such leased lines equal to the amount of lease rental paid, such lease rental shall not be taxable income against the lessor; provided that the stockholders of any such lessor corporation who receive dividends on their stock in such corporation shall be entitled to such income tax exemption with respect to such dividends as they would have had if the lessor corporation had paid an income tax on such exempted lease rental.

All other public service corporations shall file

Editor's Note.—The 1941 amendment added the proviso to the next to the last paragraph of this section.

Commissioner of Revenue Must Follow Formula Provided by Section.—In assessing income taxes against a corporation the Commissioner of Revenue must follow this section, leaving the question of whether the result is arbitrary or unwarranted to the determination of the courts upon appeal of the corporation. Maxwell v. Norfolk, etc., Ry. Co., 208 N. C. 397, 181 S. E. 248.

For ascertaining the net income of an interstate railway taxable within this state the formula provided by this section is not void upon its face, but may be unworkable or unfair when applied to a particular railway in particular conditions. Norfolk, etc., Ry. Co. v. North Carolina, 297 U. S. 682, 56 S. Ct. 625, 80 L. Ed. 977.

And Burden of Proving Use of Formula Wrong Is on Claimant.—The burden of proving that the use of the formula provided by this section arbitrarily attributes net income to the part of its line within this state derived from its business outside of the state is upon the railway claimant. Norfolk, etc., Ry. Co. v. North Carolina, 297 U. S. 682, 56 S. Ct. 625, 80 L. Ed. 977. See also, Maxwell v. Norfolk, etc., Ry. Co., 208 N. C. 397, 181 S. E. 248.

§ 105-137. Taxable year. — The tax imposed by this article for the year one thousand nine hundred and thirty-nine shall be assessed, collected, and paid in the year one thousand nine hundred and forty and for the year one thousand nine hundred and forty and years thereafter shall be assessed, collected, and paid in the year following the year for which the assessment is made. (1939, c. 158, s. 313.)

§ 105-138. Conditional and other exemptions. —The following organizations shall be exempt from taxation under this article:

1. Fraternal beneficiary societies, orders or associations.

(a) Operating under the lodge system or for the exclusive benefit of the members of a fraternity itself operating under the lodge system, and

(b) Providing for the payment of life, sick, accident, or other benefits to the members of such society, order or association, or their dependents.

2. Building and loan associations and cooperative banks without capital stock, organized and operated for mutual purposes and without profit.

3. Cemetery corporations and corporations organized for religious, charitable, scientific, or educational purposes, or for the prevention of cruelty to children or animals, no part of the net earnings of which inures to the benefit of any private stockholder or individual.

4. Business leagues, chambers of commerce, merchants' associations, or boards of trade not organized for profit, and no part of the net earnings of which inures to the benefit of any private stockholder or individual.

5. Civic leagues or organizations not organized for profit, but operated exclusively for the promotion of social welfare.

6. Clubs organized and operated exclusively for pleasure, recreation, and other non-profitable purposes, no part of the net earnings of which inures to the benefit of any private stockholder or member.

7. Farmers' or other mutual hail, cyclone, or fire insurance companies, mutual ditch or irrigation companies, mutual or cooperative telephone companies, or like organizations of a purely local character the income of which consists solely of assessments, dues and fees collected from members for the sole purpose of meeting expenses.

8. Farmers', fruit growers', or like organizations organized and operated as sales agents for the purpose of marketing the products of members and turning back to them the proceeds of sales, less the necessary selling expenses, on the basis of the quantity of product furnished by them.

9. Mutual associations formed under §§ 54-111 to 54-128, formed to conduct agricultural business on the mutual plan; or to marketing associations organized under §§ 54-129 to 54-158. (1939, c. 158, s. 314.)

§ 105-139. Fiduciaries.—The tax imposed by this article shall be imposed upon resident fiduciries having in charge funds or property for the benefit of a resident of this state, and/or income earned in this state for the benefit of a non-resident, and upon a non-resident fiduciary having in charge funds or property for the benefit of a resident of this state, which tax shall be levied, collected and paid annually with respect to:

(a) That part of the net income of estates or trusts which has not become distributable during the income year.

(b) The net income received during the income year by deceased individuals who, at the time of death, were residents and who have died during the tax year or the income year without having made a return.

(c) The entire net income of resident, insolvent, or incompetent individuals, whether or not any portion thereof is held for the future use of the beneficiaries, where the fiduciary has complete charge of such net income.

(d) The tax imposed upon a fiduciary by this article shall be a charge against the estate or trust. (1939, c. 158, s. 315.)

§ 105-140. Net income defined. — The words "net income" mean the gross income of a taxpayer, less the deductions allowed by this article. (1939, c. 158, s. 316.)

§ 105-141. Gross income defined.—1. The words "gross income" mean the income of a taxpayer derived from salaries, wages, or compensation for personal service, of whatever kind and in whatever form paid, or from professions, vocations, trades, business, commerce or sales, or dealings in property, whether real or personal, located in this or any other state or any other place, growing out of the ownership or use of or interest in such property, also from interest, rent, dividends, securities, or the transactions of any business carried on for gain or profit, or gains or profits, and income derived from any source whatever and in whatever form paid. The amount of all such items shall be included in the gross income of the income year in which received by the taxpayer, unless, under the methods of accounting permitted under this article, any such amounts are to be properly accounted for as of a different period. The term "gross income" as used in this article shall include the salaries of all constitutional state officials taking office after the date of the enactment of this article by election, reelection or appointment, and all acts fixing the compensation of such constitutional state officials are hereby amended accordingly. The term "gross income" and the words "business, trade, profession, or occupation," and the words "salaries, wages, or compensation for personal services," as used in this article, shall include compensation received for personal service as an officer or employee of the United States, any territory or possession or political subdivision thereof, the District of Columbia, or any agency or instrumentality of any one or more of the foregoing, including compensation as an officer or employee of the executive, legislative, or judicial branches of the government of the United States and of the military, naval, coast guard or other services thereof.

The term "gross income" as used in this article shall include income from annuities based on three per cent (3%) of the consideration or cost of the annuity or contract as income yearly: Provided, that during the continuance of the second World War persons serving in the armed forces of the United States, military, naval, marine or coast guard, shall not be required to include in gross income their salary compensation for such service from the government of the United States. This exemption shall not extend to any other income of person serving in the armed forces.

2. The words "gross income" do not include the following items, which shall be exempt from taxation under this article, but shall be reported in such form and manner as may be prescribed by the commissioner of revenue:

(a) The proceeds of life insurance policies and contracts paid upon the death of the insured to beneficiaries or to the estate of the insured.

(b) The amount received by the insured as a return of premium or premiums paid by him under life insurance endowment contracts, either during the term or at the maturity of the term mentioned in the contracts or upon surrender of the contract.

(c) The value of property acquired by gift, bequest, devise or descent (but the income from such property shall be included in gross income).

(d) Interest upon the obligations of the United States or its possessions, or of the state of North Carolina, or of a political subdivision thereof: Provided, interest upon the obligations of the United States, shall not be excluded from gross income unless interest upon obligations of the state of North Carolina or any of its political subdivisions is excluded from income taxes imposed by the United States. Except that interest upon the obligations of the United States or its possessions, or of the state of North Carolina, or of a political subdivision thereof, shall in no case be included in the "gross income" of any banking corporation organized under the banking laws of North Carolina.

(e) Any amounts received through accident or health insurance or under the Workmen's Compensation Act, as compensation for personal injuries or sickness, plus the amount of any damages received, whether by suit or agreement, on account of such injuries or sickness.

(f) In the case of domestic insurance companies or associations paying a tax on their gross premiums the following shall be excluded from gross income in addition to the above: (a) the net addition required by law to be made within the taxable year to reserve funds, including the actual deposit of sums with the commissioner of insurance or the treasurer of the state, pursuant to the law, as additions to guarantee or reserve funds for the benefit of policyholders; (b) the net addition to special contingency reserve funds established to cover possible losses arising from the increased mortality rates due to war, such an amount not to exceed ten per centum of the amount of reserves on life, annuity and endowment contracts allowed under subdivision (a) of this paragraph; and (c) an amount equal to the sums paid within the taxable year to policyholders on policy and annuity contracts. No exclusion shall be allowed under subdivision (b) of this paragraph except for amounts transferred to such special contingency reserves as shall have been established with the approval of the commissioner of insurance separate from the general surplus of any of said domestic insurance companies or associations, and which shall continue to be subject to the supervisory control of the commissioner of insurance as to the ultimate use or disposal of said special contingency reserves. If such special contingency reserves are released by the commissioner of insurance to the general surplus as reserves, they shall be considered taxable income to the company. (1939, c. 158, s. 317; 1941, c. 50, s. 5, c. 283; 1943, c. 400, s. 4.)

Editor's Note.—The first 1941 amendment changed the last sentence of the first paragraph of subdivision 1. The second 1941 amendment merely made a change in the first amendment.

The 1943 amendment added the proviso to the second paragraph of subsection 1 to apply as of Jan. 1, 1942, and rewrote paragraph (f) of subsection 2 to take effect as of Jan. 1, 1943.

Exemption Applies to Individuals Only.—The provision of this section exempting from income tax that part of gross income received from salaries, wages, or other compensation from the Federal Government applies to individuals only and not to corporations, foreign or domestic. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. v. Maxwell, 207 N. C. 746, 178 S. E. 592.

§ 105-142. Basis of return of net income.—1. The net income of a taxpayer shall be computed in accordance with the method of accounting regularly employed in keeping the books of such taxpayer, but such method of accounting must be consistent with respect to both income and deductions, but if in any case such method does not clearly reflect the income, the computation shall be made in accordance with such method as in the opinion of the commissioner does clearly reflect the income, but shall follow as nearly as practicable the federal practice, unless contrary to the context and intent of this article.

2. A taxpayer may, with the approval of the commissioner of revenue, and under such regulations as he may prescribe, change the income year from fiscal year to calendar year or otherwise, in which case his net income shall be computed upon the basis of such new income year: Provided, that such approval must be obtained from the commissioner at least thirty days prior to the end of such income year.

3. An individual carrying on business in partnership shall be liable for income tax only in his individual capacity, and shall include in his gross income, whether distributed or not, his distributive share of the net income of the partnership and dividends from foreign corporations for each income year. If an established business in this state is owned by a nonresident individual or by a partnership having one or more nonresident members, the manager of the business in this state shall report the earnings of such business in this state, and the distributive share of the income of each nonresident owner or partner and pay the tax as levied on individuals in this article for each such nonresident owner or partner. The exemption and other deductions allowed individuals in this article may be deducted on a pro rata basis if the nonresident owner or partner furnishes to the manager of such business in this state complete information as to the total net income and total deductions allowable under this article to residents of this state, so that the same may be prorated in proportion to the income and deductions in this state and in the state of residence. The individual or partnership business carried on in this state may deduct the payment required to be made for such nonresident individual or partner or partners from their distributive share of the profits of such business in this state.

4. Every individual taxable under this article who is a beneficiary of an estate or trust shall include in his gross income the distributive share of the net income of the estate or trust received by him or distributable to him during the income year. Unless otherwise provided in the law, the will, the deed, or other instrument creating the estate, trust, or fiduciary relation, the net income shall be deemed to be distributed or distributable to the beneficiaries (including the fiduciary as a beneficiary, in the case of income accumulated for future distribution), ratable in proportion to their respective interest. (1939, c. 158, s. 318; 1943, c. 400, s. 4.)

Editor's Note.—The 1943 amendment added that part of subsection 3 beginning with the second sentence.

§ 105-143. Subsidiary corporations. — The net income of a corporation doing business in this state which is a subsidiary or affiliate of another corporation shall be determined by eliminating all payments to or charges by the parent corporation or other subsidiaries or affiliates of the parent corporation in excess of fair compensation for all services performed for or commodities or property sold, transferred, leased, or licensed to the parent or to its other subsidiary or affiliated corporations by the corporation doing business in this state. If the commissioner of revenue shall find as a fact that a report by such subsidiary or affiliated corporation does not disclose the true earnings of such corporation on its business carried on in this state, the commissioner may require that such subsidiary or affiliated corporation file a consolidated return of the entire operations of such parent corporation and of its subsidiaries and affiliates, including its own operations and income, and may determine the true amount of net income earned by such subsidiary or affiliated corporation in this state by taking the factor of investment in real estate and tangible personal property in this state and volume of business in this state and by relating these factors to the total investment of the parent corporation and its subsidiaries and affiliated corporations in real estate and tangible personal property in and out of this state and their total volume of business in and out of this state. The authority hereby given to require consolidated returns as aforesaid and to ascertain the true amount of income earned in this state on the basis herein prescribed may also be used by the commissioner as the basis of ascertaining the true net income earned in this state during the calendar year one thousand nine hundred and forty and for the three calendar years prior thereto. For the purposes of this section, a corporation shall be deemed a subsidiary of another corporation when, directly or indirectly, it is subject to control by such other corporation by stock ownership, interlocking directors, or by any other means whatsoever exercised by the same or associated financial interests, whether such control is direct or through one or more subsidiary, affiliated, or controlled corporations, and a corporation shall be deemed an affiliate of another corporation when both are directly or indirectly controlled by the same parent corporation or by the same or associated financial interests by stock ownership, interlocking directors, or by any other means whatsoever, whether such control be direct or through one or more subsidiary, affiliated or controlled corporations. Upon such finding by the commissioner, the consolidated returns authorized by this section may be required whether the parent or controlling corporation or interest or its subsidiaries or affiliates are or are not doing business in this state. The provisions of this section do not apply to corporations subject to regulation by a regulatory body of this state which are required to maintain accounts in such manner as to reflect separately the business done in this state and file a report thereof with such regulatory body. This section shall not apply unless the commissioner further finds that the business in this state is handled or effected in such manner as to distort or not reflect the true income earned in this state and finds in addition either or both of the following facts: (a) that the several corporations are owned or controlled by the same financial interests or (b) that they are members of a group of corporations associated together in carrying on a unitary business or are branches or parts of a unitary business or are engaged in different phases of the same general business or industry. If such consolidated return is required and is not filed within sixty days after demand, said subsidiary or affiliated corporation shall be subject to the penalty provided in this act for failure to file returns and in addition shall be subject to the penalty provided in § 105-230, and in such event the provisions of subsection 5 of § 105-161 shall apply.

Every subsidiary of a parent corporation doing business in this state shall not be allowed to deduct interest on indebtedness owed to or endorsed or guaranteed by the parent corporation and used by the subsidiary in carrying on its business in this state. The term "indebtedness" used in this paragraph shall include all loans, credits, goods, supplies or other capital of whatsoever nature furnished by the parent corporation, or by any subsidiary of the parent corporation. The term "subsidiary corporation" as used in this paragraph shall mean any corporation, a majority of stock in which is owned by a parent corporation. The term "parent corporation" shall include any subsidiary of the parent corporation. If any part of the capital used by the parent corporation is borrowed capital, the subsidiary may deduct from its gross income interest paid to the parent corporation in such proportion as the borrowed capital of the parent corporation is to the total assets of such parent corporation. The term "borrowed capital" used in this paragraph shall include all loans and credits obtained by the parent corporation and also all goods, supplies or other capital of whatever nature borrowed by the parent corporation.

Such subsidiary or affiliated corporation shall incorporate in its returns required under this section and article such information as the commissioner may reasonably require for the determination of the net income taxable under this article, and shall furnish such additional information as the commissioner may reasonably require. If the return does not contain the information therein required or such additional information is not furnished within thirty days after demand, the corporation shall be subject to a penalty of one hundred dollars a day for each day's omission, in addition to the penalty provided in § 105-230.

If the commissioner finds that the determination of the income of a subsidiary or affiliated corporation under a consolidated return as herein provided will produce a greater or lesser figure than the amount of income earned in this state, he may readjust the determination by reasonable methods of computation to make it conform to the amount of income earned in this state; and if the corporation contends the figure produced is greater than the earnings in this state, it shall, within thirty days after notice of such determination, file with the commissioner a statement of its objections and of an alternative method of determination with such detail and proof as the commissioner may require, and the commissioner shall consider the same in determining the income earned in this state. In making such determination the findings and conclusions of the commissioner shall be presumed to be correct and shall not be set aside unless shown to be plainly wrong. (1939, c. 158, s. 318½; 1941, c. 50, s. 5; 1943, c. 400, s. 4.)

Editor's Note.—The 1941 amendment substituted the above in lieu of the former section.

The 1943 amendment rewrote the second paragraph.

§ 105-144. Determination of gain or loss.—For the purpose of ascertaining the gain or loss from the sale or other disposition of property, real, personal, or mixed, the basis shall be, in the case of property acquired before January first, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-one, the fair market price or the value of such property as of that date and in all other cases the cost thereof. The cost of such property acquired prior to January first, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-one, would be used in all cases if such cost is known or determinable: Provided, that in the case of property which was included in the last preceding annual inventory used in determining net income in a return under this article, such inventory value shall be taken in lieu of costs or market value. The final distribution to the taxpayer of the assets of a corporation shall be treated as a sale of the stock or securities of the corporation owned by him, and the gain or loss shall be computed accordingly: provided, no gain or loss shall be recognized upon the receipt of a corporation of property distributed in complete liquidation of another corporation, if the corporation receiving such property was on the date of the adoption of the plan of liquidation and has continued to be at all times until the receipt of the property the owner of stock (in such other corporation), possessing at least eighty per centum (80%) of the total combined voting power of all classes of stock entitled to vote, and the owner of at least eighty per centum (80%) of the total number of shares of all other classes of stock (except non-voting stock which is limited and preferred as to dividends). (1939, c. 158, s. 319; 1941, c. 50, s. 5.)

Editor's Note.—The 1941 amendment substituted the word "or" for the word "of" in the third line of the last sentence.

§ 105-145. Exchanges of property.—1. When property is exchanged for other property of like kind, the property received in exchange shall be considered as a conversion of assets from one form to another, from which no gain or loss shall be deemed to arise.

2. In the case of the organization of a corporation, the stock or securities received shall be considered to take the place of property transferred therefor, and no gain or loss shall be deemed to arise therefrom.

3. (a) No gain or loss shall be recognized if stock or securities in a corporation a party to a reorganization are, in pursuance of the plan of reorganization, exchanged solely for stock or securities in such corporation or in another corporation a party to the reorganization.

(b) No gain or loss shall be recognized if a corporation a party to a reorganization exchanges property, in pursuance of the plan of reorganization, solely for stock or securities in another corporation a party to the reorganization.

(c) As used in this section, the term "reorganization" includes a statutory merger or consolidation, a transfer by a corporation of all or a part of its assets to another corporation, if immediately after the transfer the transferor or its shareholders, or both, are in control of the corporation to which the assets are transferred, or a recapitalization, or a mere change in identity, form, or place of organization, however effected.

(d) As used in this section, the term "a party to a reorganization" includes the corporation resulting from a reorganization and includes both corporations in the case of a reorganization resulting from the acquisition by one corporation of stock or properties of another, and the term "control" means the ownership of stock possessing at least eighty (80) per cent of the total combined voting power of all classes of stock entitled to vote and at least eighty (80) per cent of the total number of shares of all other classes of stock of the corporation.

4. The basis of property received by a corporation upon a distribution in complete liquidation of another corporation within the meaning of § 105-144 shall be the same as it would be in the hands of the transferor. (1939, c. 158, s. 320; 1943, c. 400, s. 4.)

Editor's Note.—The 1943 amendment rewrote subsection 3.

§ 105-146. Inventory.—Whenever, in the opinion of the commissioner of revenue, it is necessary, in order clearly to determine the income of any taxpayer, inventories shall be taken by such taxpayer upon such basis as the commissioner of revenue may prescribe, conforming as nearly as may be to the best accounting practice in the trade or business and most clearly reflecting the income. (1939, c. 158, s. 321.)

§ 105-147. Deductions.—In computing net income there shall be allowed as deductions the following items:

1. All the ordinary and necessary expenses paid during the income year in carrying on any trade or business, including:

(a) As to individuals, reasonable wages of employees for services rendered in producing such income.

(b) As to partnerships, reasonable wages of employees and a reasonable allowance for co-partners or members of a firm, for services actually rendered in producing such income, the amount of such salary allowance to be included in the personal return of the co-partner receiving same.

(c) As to corporations, wages of employees and salaries of officers, if reasonable in amount, for services actually rendered in producing such income.

2. Rentals or other payments required to be made as a condition of the continued use or possession for the purpose of the trade of property to which the taxpayer has not taken or is not taking title, or in which he has no equity.

3. Unearned discount and all interest paid during the income year on indebtedness except interest paid or accrued in connection with the ownership of real or personal property the current income from which is not taxable under this article, and except interest paid by a subsidiary to a parent corporation as defined in § 105-143. Interest on indebtedness incurred for the purchase of stock of corporations paying a tax on their entire net income under this article shall be deductible, and a ratable proportion of such interest with respect to corporations paying a tax on a proportion of their net income.

4. Taxes paid or accrued during the income year, except income taxes, gift taxes, taxes levied under § 105-135, inheritance and estate taxes, and taxes assessed for local benefit of a kind tending to increase the value of the property assessed. No deduction shall be allowed under this section for gasoline tax, sales tax, automobile license or registration fee by individuals not engaged in trade or business, nor shall deduction be allowed for taxes paid or accrued in connection with the ownership of property, the current income from which is not taxable under this article. All payments made by an employer into a federal fund as provided by the provisions of Title VIII and Title IX of the Federal Social Security Act, and all payments made by an employer as provided by a state unemployment compensation law: Provided, that none of the foregoing provisions shall apply to that part of such payments required to be deducted by an employer from the earnings of an employee. "Income taxes" which are not allowed to be deducted under this section shall be construed to include taxes that are in fact based upon net income, although such taxes may be levied in another state as franchise or excise taxes. The exclusion or deduction of income taxes in another state shall in each case depend upon whether the tax was in fact a tax upon net income by whatever name called.

5. Dividends from stock in any corporation, the income of which shall have been assessed, and the tax on such income paid by the corporation under the provisions of this article: Provided, that when only part of the income of any corporation shall have been assessed under this article, whether paid directly to the taxpayer or paid to the taxpayer by a trustee of a distributable trust, only a corresponding part of the dividends received therefrom shall be deducted.

5½. Interest received by a parent corporation on indebtedness owed to it by a subsidiary corporation doing business in North Carolina, which, in the determination of the taxable net income of such subsidiary corporation was not allowed as a deduction from gross income under the provisions of § 105-143.

6. Losses actually sustained during the income year of property used in trade or business or of property not connected with trade or business, if arising from fire, storm, shipwreck, or other casualties or theft and if not compensated for by insurance or otherwise. No deduction shall be allowed under this subsection for losses arising from personal loans or endorsements or other transactions of a personal nature not entered into for profit. A taxpayer shall be allowed to deduct losses in connection with the sale of securities only to the extent of the security gains during the income year, unless such losses resulted from the sale of stocks or bonds held by the taxpayer for a period of two years or more prior to the sale of such stocks or bonds. Losses may be carried forward by the taxpayer for two succeeding tax years as a credit against income received in either of the two succeeding years subject to the following limitations: First, no carry-over loss shall accrue from any tax year except to the extent that the loss of such year shall exceed any income not taxable under this article received in the same year; Second, the carry-over loss from any prior year or years may be deducted from the taxable income of any tax year only to the extent that such carry-over loss shall exceed any nontaxable income received in such tax year; and Third, any loss carry-over from the sale of securities may be deducted only from gains from the sale of securities in the two succeeding years. The deduction authorized herein shall be permitted in determining any income tax which shall become due and payable on or after January first, one thousand nine hundred and forty-four.

7. Debts ascertained to be worthless and actually charged off within the income year, if connected with business and, if the amount has previously been included in gross income in a return under this article.

8. A reasonable allowance for depreciation and obsolescence of property used in the trade or business shall be measured by the estimated life of such property; and in case of mines, oil and gas wells, other natural deposits and timber, a reasonable allowance for depletion. The cost of property acquired since January first, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-one, plus additions and improvements, shall be the basis for determining the amount of depreciation, and if acquired prior to that date the book value as of that date of the property shall be the cost basis for determining depreciation.

In cases of mines, oil and gas wells, and other natural deposits, the cost of development not otherwise deducted will be allowed as depletion, and in the cases of leases, the deduction allowed may be equitably apportioned between the lessor and lessee.

In case the federal government determines depreciation or depletion of property for income tax purposes upon the basis of book value instead of original cost, the depreciation allowed under this article shall be upon the same basis.

9. Contributions or gifts made by individuals, firms, partnerships and corporations within the income year to corporations, trusts, community chests, funds, foundations or associations organized and operated exclusively for religious, charitable, literary, scientific, or educational purposes or for the prevention of cruelty to children or animals, no part of the net earnings of which inures to the benefit of any private stockholder or individual: Provided, that in the case of such contributions or gifts by corporations and partnerships, the amount allowed as a deduction hereunder shall be limited to an amount not in excess of five (5%) per centum of the corporation's or partnership's net income, as computed without the benefit of this subdivision; and provided that in the case of such contributions or gifts by individuals, the amount allowed as a deduction shall be limited to an amount not in excess of ten (10%) per centum of the individual's net income, as computed without the benefit of this section.

10. Resident individuals and domestic corporations having an established business in another state, or investment in property in another state, may deduct the net income from such business or investment if such business or investment is in a state that levies a tax upon such net income. The deduction herein authorized shall not include income received by residents of this state and domestic corporations from personal services (except as provided in § 105-151), stocks, bonds, notes, mortgages, securities, or bank or other deposits or credits, nor in any case shall it operate to reduce the taxable income actually earned in this state or properly allocable as income earned in this state: Provided, however, that resident individuals or domestic corporations who or which have an established business or investment in another state which does not levy an income tax shall treat any gain or loss from such business or investment as though it occured from a business or investment in North Carolina.

The provision in this subsection for deductions of income that is earned and taxed in another state as net income shall be construed to include income that is earned and taxed in another state, although such tax may be levied in another state as franchise or excise taxes. The deduction of income earned and taxed in another state shall depend upon whether the tax was in fact a tax upon net income by whatever name called.

11. In the case of a non-resident individual, the deductions allowed in this section shall be allowed only if and to the extent that they are connected with income arising from sources within the state; and the proper apportionment and allocation of the deductions with respect to sources of income within and without the state shall be determined under rules and regulations prescribed by the commissioner of revenue.

12. In computing net income no deduction shall be allowed under this section relating to salaries, wages, or other expenses, rentals or other similar payments, interest or taxes, if (1) the same are not actually paid within the taxable year or within two and one-half (2½) months after the close thereof; and (2) if, by reason of the method of accounting of the person or corporation to whom the payment is to be made, the amount thereof is not, unless actually paid, includible in the gross income of such person or corporation for the taxable year in which or with which the taxable year of the taxpayer ends. (1939, c. 158, s. 322; 1941, c. 50, s. 5; 1943, c. 400, s. 4; 1943, c. 668.)

Editor's Note.—The 1941 amendment substituted the second sentence of subsection 10 for the former two last sentences.

The first 1943 amendment added the second exception in the first sentence of subsection 3, and the last two sentences of subsections 4 and 6. It inserted subsection 5½, rewrote subsection 9 and added the proviso and the second paragraph of subsection 10. The second 1943 amendment also rewrote subsection 9 effective as of Jan. 1, 1943.

For comment on subdivision 12, see 17 N. C. Law Rev. 383.

§ 105-148. Items not deductible.—In computing net income no deduction shall in any case be allowed in respect of:

(a) Personal, living, or family expenses.

(b) Any amount paid out for new buildings or for permanent improvements or betterments, made to increase the value of any property or estate.

(c) Premiums paid on any life insurance policy.

(d) Income, excess profits and gift taxes, including federal tax on undistributed earnings.

(e) Social Security and unemployment tax paid by employee.

(f) Contributions to individuals.

(g) Commutation expenses.

(1939, c. 158, s. 323; 1941, c. 50, s. 5; 1943, c. 400, s. 4.)

Editor's Note.—The 1941 amendment added former subsection (i) at the end of this section.

The 1943 amendment omitted provisions relating to contributions or gifts by corporations and partnerships, and provided that it should be effective as of Jan. 1, 1943.

§ 105-149. Exemptions. — 1. There shall be deducted from the net income the following exemptions:

(a) In the case of a single individual, a personal exemption of one thousand dollars ($1,000.00).

(b) In the case of a married man with a wife living with him, two thousand dollars ($2,000.00), or in the case of a person who is the head of a household and maintains the same and therein supports one or more dependent relatives, under eighteen years of age, or, if over eighteen years of age, incapable of self-support because mentally or physically defective, two thousand dollars ($2,000.00).

(c) A married woman having a separate and independent income, one thousand dollars ($1,000.00).

(d) In the case of a widow or widower having minor child or children, natural or adopted, two thousand dollars ($2,000.00).

(e) Two hundred dollars ($200.00) for each individual (other than husband and wife) dependent upon and receiving his chief support from the taxpayer, if such dependent individual is under eighteen years of age or is incapable of self-support because mentally or physically defective. Exemptions for the children of taxpayers shall be allowed under this subsection only to the person entitled to the $2,000.00 exemption provided in subsection (b) of this subdivision.

(f) In the case of a fiduciary filing a return for that part of the net income of estates or trusts which has not become distributable during the income year one thousand dollars ($1,000.00).

In the case of a fiduciary filing a return for the net income received during the income year of a deceased resident or nonresident individual who has died during the tax year or income year without having made a return, two thousand dollars ($2,000.00) if the individual was a married man, and one thousand dollars ($1,000.00) if the individual was single or a married woman not qualifying as "head of a household."

In the case of a fiduciary filing a return for an insolvent or incompetent individual resident or non-resident where the fiduciary has complete charge of such net income the same exemption to which the beneficiary would be entitled.

2. The exemptions allowed by this section shall not apply to a resident of this state having income from a business or agency in another state, or with respect to non-resident having a taxable income in this state unless the entire income of such resident or non-resident individual is shown in the return of such resident or non-resident; and if the entire income is so shown, the exemption shall be prorated in the proportion of the income of this state to the total income.

3. The status on the last day of the income year shall determine the right to the exemptions provided in this section: Provided, that a taxpayer shall be entitled to such exemption for husband or wife or dependents who have died during the income year. (1939, c. 158, s. 324; 1941, c. 50, s. 5; 1943, c. 400, s. 4.)

Editor's Note.—The 1941 amendment made changes in subdivision (b) of subsection 1 and added the second sentence of subdivision (e) of said subsection 1.

The 1943 amendment made changes in the second paragraph of subdivision (f) of subsection 1.

§ 105-150. Exemption as to insurance or other compensation received by veterans.—Any American residing in the State of North Carolina who joined any of the allied armies during the World War and who, on account of injuries received while in service, receives insurance or compensation from any of the allied countries is hereby exempt from liability for income tax on such insurance or compensation in the State of North Carolina. (1929, c. 184.)

§ 105-151. Exemption of compensation for personal services of residents taxed elsewhere; credit allowed nonresident taxpayer. — 1. The salaries, wages, or other compensation received during the income year by a resident of this state for personal services rendered outside of this state shall not be taxable in this state if he is required to pay an income tax thereon to another state or taxing jurisdiction other than the United States; but the same shall be included in his return to this state for the purpose of prorating the exemptions allowed by § 105-149, as therein provided.

2. Whenever a taxpayer other than a resident of the state has become liable to income tax to the state or country where he resides upon his net income for the taxable year, derived from sources within this state and subject to taxation under this article, the commissioner of revenue shall credit the amount of income tax payable by him under this article with such proportion of the tax so payable by him to the state or country where he resides as his income subject to taxation under this article bears to his entire income upon which the tax so payable to such other state or country was imposed: Provided, that such credit shall be allowed only if the laws of said state or country (1) grant a substantially similar credit to residents of this state subject to income tax under such laws, or (2) impose a tax upon the personal incomes of its residents derived from sources in this state and exempt from taxation the personal incomes of residents of this state. No credit shall be allowed against the amount of the tax on any income taxable under this article which is exempt from taxation under the laws of such other state or country. The exemption of credits allowed in this subsection shall not apply to the income of established unincorporated businesses in this state subject to tax under subsection three (3) of § 105-142. (1939, c. 158, s. 325; 1941, c. 50, s. 5, c. 204, s. 1; 1943, c. 400, s. 4.)

Editor's Note.—The 1941 amendments substituted paragraph one in lieu of the former section.

The 1943 amendment added paragraph 2.

§ 105-152. Returns.—1. The following persons shall file with the commissioner of revenue an income tax return under affirmation, showing therein specifically the items of gross income and the deductions allowed by this article, and such other facts as the commissioner may require for the purpose of making any computation required by this article:

(a) Every resident and nonresident who is a single person and who has a net income during the income year of over one thousand dollars ($1000.00) which is taxable in this state.

(b) Every resident or nonresident who is married but is not living with his or her wife or husband, and who has a net income during the income year of over one thousand dollars ($1000.00) which is taxable in this state.

(c) Any resident or nonresident married woman, whether or not she is living with her husband, who has a net income during the income year of over one thousand dollars ($1000.00) which is taxable in this state.

(d) Every resident or nonresident man who is married and is living with his wife, and who has a net income during the income year of over two thousand dollars ($2000.00), which is taxable in this state.

(e) Every resident or nonresident who is "head of a household" as defined in § 105-149 (1) (b) and who has a net income during the income year of over two thousand dollars ($2000.00) which is taxable in this state.

(f) Every resident of this state having a gross income from a business, agency or profession in excess of five thousand dollars ($5000.00).

(g) Every nonresident having a gross income from a business, agency or profession within this state in excess of five thousand dollars ($5000.00).

(h) Every resident or nonresident who is a widow or widower, having minor child or children, natural or adopted, and who has a net income during the income year of over two thousand dollars ($2000.00) which is taxable in this state.

(i) Every resident or nonresident who has an income during the income year from sources both within and without this state in excess of the prorated exemption provided for by § 105-149 (2).

(j) Every partnership having a place of business in the state as provided in § 105-154.

(k) Every corporation doing business in this state.

(l) Any person or corporation whom the commissioner believes to be liable for a tax under this article, when so notified by the commissioner and requested to file a return.

2. If the taxpayer is unable to make his own return, the return shall be made by a duly authorized agent or by a guardian or other person charged with the care of the person or property of such taxpayer.

3. The return by a corporation shall be sworn to by the president, vice-president, or other principal officer, and by the treasurer or assistant treasurer.

4. The return of an individual, who, while living, received income in excess of the exemption during the income year, and who has died before making the return, shall be made in his name and behalf by the administrator, or executor of the estate, and the tax shall be levied upon and collected from his estate.

5. When the commissioner of revenue has reason to believe that any taxpayer so conducts the trade or business as either directly or indirectly to distort his true net income and the net income property attributable to the state, whether by the arbitrary shifting of income, through price fixing, charges for service, or otherwise, whereby the net income is arbitrarily assigned to one or another unit in a group of taxpayers carrying on business under a substantially common control, he may require such facts as he deems necessary for the proper computation of the entire net income and the net income properly attributable to the state, and in determining same the commissioner of revenue shall have regard to the fair profit which would normally arise from the conduct of the trade or business.

6. When any corporation liable to taxation under this article conducts its business in such a manner as either directly or indirectly to benefit the members or stockholders thereof or any person interested in such business by selling its products or goods or commodities in which it deals at less than the fair price which might be obtained therefor, or where a corporation, a substantial portion of whose capital stock is owned either directly or indirectly by another corporation, acquires and disposes of the products of the corporation so owning a substantial portion of its stock in such a manner as to create a loss or improper net income for either of said corporations, or where a corporation, owning directly or indirectly a substantial portion of the stock of another corporation, acquires and disposes of the products of the corporation of which it so owns a substantial portion of the stock in such manner as to create a loss or improper net income for either of said corporations, the commissioner of revenue may determine the amount of taxable income of either or any such corporations for the calendar or fiscal year, having due regard to the reasonable profits which, but for such arrangement or understanding, might or could have been obtained by the corporation or corporations liable to taxation under this article from dealing in such products, goods or commodities. (1939, c. 158, s. 326; 1941, c. 50, s. 5; 1943, c. 400, s. 4.)

Editor's Note.—The 1941 amendment struck out former subsection 5, relating to required return and settlement of tax by corporation before dissolution, and renumbered former subsections 6 and 7 to appear as 5 and 6 respectively. The 1943 amendment rewrote subsection 1.

§ 105-153. Fiduciary returns.—1. Every fiduciary subject to taxation under the provisions of this article, as provided in § 105-139, shall make a return under oath for the individual, estate or trust for whom or for which he acts, if the net income thereof exceeds the personal exemptions.

2. The return made by a fiduciary shall state specifically the items of gross income and the deductions and exemptions allowed by this article, and such other facts as the commissioner of revenue may prescribe.

3. Fiduciaries required to make returns under this article shall be subject to all the provisions of this article which apply to individuals. (1939, c. 158, s. 327.)

§ 105-154. Information at the source.—1. Every individual, partnership, corporation, joint-stock company or association, or insurance company, being a resident or having a place of business in this state, in whatever capacity acting, including lessors or mortgagors of real or personal property, fiduciaries, employers, and all officers and employees of the state or of any political subdivision of the state, having the control, receipt, custody, disposal, or payment of interest (other than interest coupons payable to bearer), rent, salaries, wages, premiums, annuities, compensations, remunerations, emoluments or other fixed or determinable annual or periodical gains, profits, and incomes above exemptions allowed in this article, paid or payable during any year to any taxpayer, shall make complete return thereof to the commissioner of revenue under such regulations and in such form and manner and to such extent as may be prescribed by him.

2. Every partnership having a place of business in the state shall make a return, stating specifically the items of its gross income and the deductions allowed by this article, and shall include in the return the names and addresses of the individuals who would be entitled to share in the net income if distributable, and the amount of the distributive share of each individual, together with the distributive shares of corporation dividends. The return shall be sworn to by one of the partners.

3. Every corporation doing business or having a place of business in this state shall file with the commissioner of revenue, on such form and in such manner as he may prescribe, the names and addresses of all taxpayers, residents of North Carolina, to whom dividends have been paid and the amount of such dividends during the income year. (1939, c. 158, s. 328.)

§ 105-155. Time and place of filing returns.—Returns shall be in such form as the commissioner of revenue may from time to time prescribe, and shall be filed with the commissioner at his main office, or at any branch office which he may establish, on or before the fifteenth day of March in each year, and for all taxpayers using a fiscal year, within seventy-five days after expiration of the fiscal year. In case of sickness, absence, or other disability or whenever in his judgment good cause exists, the commissioner may allow further time for filing returns.

There shall be annexed to the return the affirmation of the taxpayer making the return in the following form; "I hereby affirm that this return, including the accompanying schedules and statements (if any) has been examined by me, and, to the best of my knowledge and belief, is true and complete and is made in good faith covering the taxable period stated, pursuant to the Revenue Act of one thousand nine hundred and thirty-nine, as amended and the regulations issued under authority thereof, and that this affirmation is made under the penalties of perjury. The return shall also be signed by a competent witness of the signature." Any individual who wilfully makes and subscribes a return which he does not believe to be true and correct as to every material matter, shall be guilty of a felony, and, upon conviction thereof, shall be subject to the penalties prescribed for perjury. The commissioner shall cause to be prepared blank forms for the said returns, and shall cause them to be distributed throughout the state, and to be furnished upon application; but failure to receive or secure the form shall not relieve any taxpayer from the obligation of making any return herein required. (1939, c. 158, s. 329; 1943, c. 400, s. 4.)

Editor's Note.—The 1943 amendment rewrote all of the second paragraph except the last sentence.

Applied in Winston-Salem v. Powell Paving Co., 7 F. Supp. 424.

§ 105-156. Failure to file returns; supplementary returns.—If the commissioner of revenue shall be of the opinion that any taxpayer has failed to file a return or to include in a return filed, either intentionally or through error, items of taxable income, he may require from such taxpayer a return or supplementary return, under oath, in such form as he shall prescribe, of all the items of income which the taxpayer received during the year for which the return is made, whether or not taxable under the provisions of this article. If from a supplementary return or otherwise the commissioner finds any items of income, taxable under this article, have been omitted from the original return, or any items returned as taxable that are not taxable, or any item of taxable income over-stated, he may require the items so omitted to be disclosed to him under oath of the taxpayer, and to be added to or deducted from the original return. Such supplementary return and the correction of the original return shall not relieve the taxpayer from any of the penalties to which he may be liable under any provision of this article. The commissioner may proceed under the provisions of § 105-159, whether or not he requires a return or a supplementary return under this section. (1939, c. 158, s. 331.)

Collection and Enforcement of Income Tax.

§ 105-157. Time and place of payment of tax.—(1) The full amount of the tax payable, as shown on the face of the return, shall be paid to the commissioner of revenue at the office where the return is filed at the time fixed by law for filing the return. The amount of said tax may be paid in four equal installments, one-fourth at the time of filing the report, one-fourth on or before June fifteenth, one-fourth on or before September fifteenth, and one-fourth on or before December fifteenth. Such deferred payments may be made with interest at four per cent (4%), but if any deferred payment is not made when due, the whole amount of deferred payments shall become due and interest at the rate of four per cent (4%) per annum shall be added to such deferred payment from March fifteenth until paid. This provision for deferred payments shall become effective as of January first, one thousand nine hundred and forty-four.

(2) If the time for filing the return be extended, interest at the rate of four per cent (4%) per annum from the time when the return was originally required to be filed to the time of payment shall be added and paid.

(3) The tax may be paid with uncertified check during such time and under such regulations as the commissioner of revenue shall prescribe; but if a check so received is not paid by the bank on which it is drawn, the taxpayer by whom such check is tendered shall remain liable for the payment of the tax and for all legal penalties the same as if such check had not been tendered. (1939, c. 158, s. 332; 1943, c. 400, s. 4.)

Editor's Note.—Prior to the 1943 amendment, if the amount of the tax exceeded fifty dollars it was payable in two installments. The amendment changed the interest rate from six to four per cent.

Applied in Winston-Salem v. Powell Paving Co., 7 F. Supp. 424.

§ 105-158. Examination of returns.—1. As soon as practicable after the return is filed the commissioner of revenue shall examine and compute the tax, and the amount so computed by the commissioner shall be the tax. If the tax found due shall be greater than the amount theretofore paid, the excess shall be paid to the commissioner within thirty days after notice of the amount shall be mailed by the commissioner, and any over-payment of tax shall be returned within thirty days after it is ascertained.

2. If the return is made in good faith and the under-statement of the tax is not due to any fault of the taxpayer, there shall be no penalty or additional tax added because of such under-statement, but interest shall be added to the amount of the deficiency at the rate of one-half (½) of one per cent (1%) per month or fraction thereof from the time said return was required by law to be filed until paid.

3. If the under-statement is due to negligence on the part of the taxpayer, but without intent to defraud, there shall be added to the amount of the deficiency five per cent (5%) thereof, and, in addition, interest at the rate of one-half (½) of one per cent (1%) per month or fraction thereof from time said return was required by law to be filed until paid.

4. If the under-statement is found by the commissioner of revenue to be false or fraudulent, with intent to evade the tax, the tax on the additional income discovered to be taxable shall be doubled and interest at the rate of one-half (½) of one per cent (1%) per month or fraction thereof from time said return was required by law to be filed until paid. The provisions of this article with respect to revision and appeal shall apply to a tax thus assessed. (1939, c. 158, s. 333.)

§ 105-159. Corrections and changes.—If the amount of the net income for any year of any taxpayer under this article, as returned to the United States treasury department, is changed and corrected by the commissioner of internal revenue or other officer of the United States of competent authority, such taxpayer, within thirty days after receipt of internal revenue agent's report or supplemental report reflecting the corrected net income, shall make return under oath or affirmation to the commissioner of revenue of such corrected net income. If the taxpayer fails to notify the commissioner of revenue of assessment of additional tax by the commissioner of internal revenue the statute of limitations shall not apply. The commissioner of revenue shall thereupon proceed to determine, from such evidence as he may have brought to his attention or shall otherwise acquire, the correct net income of such taxpayer for the fiscal or calendar year, and if there shall be any additional tax due from such taxpayer the same shall be assessed and collected; and if there shall have been an over-payment of the tax the said commissioner shall, within thirty days after the final determination of the net income of such taxpayer, refund the amount of such excess: Provided, that any taxpayer who fails to comply with this section as to making report of such change as made by the federal government within the time specified shall be subject to all penalties as provided in § 105-161, in case of additional tax due, and shall forfeit his rights to any refund due by reason of such change. (1939, c. 158, s. 334.)

Prescribed Procedure Exclusive.—The procedure prescribed by this section, that such new return be made within thirty days of redetermination by the Federal Government is exclusive and must be followed to entitle the taxpayer to the relief therein provided. State v. Hinsdale, 207 N. C. 37, 175 S. E. 847.

§ 105-160. Additional taxes.—If the commissioner of revenue discovers from the examination of the return or otherwise that the income of any taxpayer, or any portion thereof, has not been assessed, he may, at any time within three years (except where the taxpayer has failed to notify the commissioner of additional assessment by the federal department—see § 105-159) after the time when the return was due, give notice in writing to the taxpayer of such deficiency. Any taxpayer feeling aggrieved by such proposed assessment shall be entitled to a hearing before the commissioner of revenue, if within thirty days after giving notice of such proposed assessment he shall apply for such hearing in writing, explaining in detail his objections to same. If no request for such hearing is so made, such proposed assessment shall be final and conclusive. If the request for hearing is made, the taxpayer shall be heard by the commissioner of revenue, and after such hearing the commissioner of revenue shall render his decision. The taxpayer shall be advised of his decision and such amount shall be due within ten days after notice is given. The provisions of this article with respect to revision and appeal shall apply to the tax so assessed. The limitation of three years to the assessment of such tax or an additional tax shall not apply to the assessment of additional taxes upon fraudulent returns. Upon failure to file returns and in the absence of fraud the limitation shall be five years. (1939, c. 158, s. 335.)

Editor's Note.—See 12 N. C. Law Rev. 21, 35.

§ 105-161. Penalties.—1. If any taxpayer, without intent to evade any tax imposed by this article, shall fail to file a return of income and pay the tax, if one is due, at the time required by or under the provisions of this article, but shall voluntarily file a correct return of income and pay the tax due within sixty days thereafter, there shall be added to the tax an additional amount equal to five per cent thereof, but such additional amount shall in no case be less than one dollar and interest at the rate of one-half of one per cent (½%) per month or fraction thereof from the time said return was required by law to be filed until paid.

2. If any taxpayer fails voluntarily to file a return of income or pay the tax, if one is due, within sixty days of the time required by or under the provisions of this article, there shall be added to the tax an additional amount equal to twenty-five per cent (25%) thereof and interest at the rate of one-half of one per cent (½%) per month or fraction thereof, from the time such return was required to be filed until paid, but the penalty shall not be less than five dollars ($5.00).

3. If any taxpayer fails to file a return within sixty days of the time prescribed by this article, any judge of the superior court, upon petition of the commissioner of revenue or of any ten taxable residents of the state, shall issue a writ of mandamus requiring such person to file a return. The order of notice upon the petition shall be returnable not later than ten days after the filing of the petition. The petition shall be heard and determined on the return day or such day thereafter as the court shall fix, having regard to the speediest possible determination of the case consistent with the rights of the parties. The judgment shall include costs in favor of the prevailing party. All writs and processes may be issued from the clerk's offices in any county, and, except as aforesaid, shall be returnable as the court shall order.

4. The failure to do any act required by or under the provisions of this article shall be deemed an act committed in part at the office of the commissioner of revenue in Raleigh. The certificate of the commissioner of revenue to the effect that a tax has not been paid, that a return has not been filed, or that information has not been supplied, as required by or under the provisions of this article, shall be prima facie evidence that such tax has not been paid, that such return has not been filed, or that such information has not been supplied.

5. If any taxpayer who has failed to file a return or has filed an incorrect or insufficient return, and has been notified by the commissioner of revenue of his delinquency, refuses or neglects within twenty days after such notice to file a proper return, or files a fraudulent return, the commissioner shall determine the income of such taxpayer, according to his best information and belief, and assess the same at not more than double the amount so determined. The commissioner may, in his discretion, allow further time for the filing of a return in such case.

6. Any person required under this article to pay any tax or required by law or regulations made under authority thereof to make a return, keep any records, or supply any information for the purposes of computation, assessment or collection of any tax imposed by this article, who wilfully fails to pay this tax, make such return, keep such records or supply such information at the time or times required by law or regulations, shall, in addition to other penalties provided by law, be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof, shall be fined not more than five hundred dollars ($500.00) or imprisoned not exceeding six months, or punished by both such fine and imprisonment at the discretion of the court, within the limitations aforesaid. (1939, c. 158, s. 336.)

Revision and Appeal.

§ 105-162. Revision by commissioner of revenue.—A taxpayer may apply to the commissioner of revenue for revision of the tax assessed against him at any time within three years from the time of the filing of the return or from the date of the notice of assessment of any additional tax. The commissioner shall grant a hearing thereon, and if upon such hearing he shall determine that the tax is excessive or incorrect, he shall resettle the same according to the law and the facts, and adjust the computation of tax accordingly. The commissioner shall notify the taxpayer of his determination, and shall refund to the taxpayer the amount, if any, paid in excess of the tax found by him to be due. (1939, c. 158, s. 340.)

Revision Barred by Lapse of Time.—Where a taxpayer fails to apply to the Commissioner of Revenue for a revision within three years from the filing of its return, its claim is barred, under this section, and the fact that the application for a revision is made within three years of redetermination of income tax by the Federal Government, will not avail the taxpayer where he does not make a new return within thirty days after such redetermination by the Federal Government, as provided by § 105-159, since the limitation prescribed by the instant section is explicit and unequivocal. State v. Hinsdale, 207 N. C. 37, 175 S. E. 847.

§ 105-163. Appeal. — Any taxpayer may file formal exceptions to a finding by the commissioner of revenue, under the provisions of this article with respect to his taxable income, either to a matter of fact or law, as far as possible stating such exceptions separately. After they are filed, the commissioner shall pass upon the same formally, and notify the taxpayer immediately of his findings upon these exceptions. The taxpayer may, within ten days after notification of the commissioner's ruling upon these exceptions, appeal to the superior court of Wake county, upon paying the tax assessed by the commissioner and giving a bond for costs in the sum of two hundred dollars ($200.00): Provided, the taxpayer may within the above prescribed time first appeal to the state board of assessment on the exceptions to the findings of the commissioner; and provided further, that the commissioner may in his discretion require a surety bond or a deposit of state or government bonds in double the amount of the alleged deficiency. Appeal may then be taken by either the taxpayer or the commissioner to the superior court of Wake county as provided herein. Upon receipts of such notice and the taxes paid, and the filing of the cost bond in the sum of two hundred dollars ($200.00), the commissioner shall certify the record to the superior court of Wake county. In the superior court the proceedings shall be as follows:

The cause shall be entitled, "State of North Carolina on Relation of the Commissioner of Revenue vs. Appellant" (giving name). If there are exceptions to facts found by the commissioner, it shall be placed on the civil issue docket of such court and shall have precedence over other civil actions, and shall be tried under the same rules and regulations as are prescribed for the trial of such civil actions, except that the findings of the commissioner shall be prima facie correct. If only issues of law, or if issues of fact are raised, and the appellant shall waive jury trial at the time of taking the appeal, the appeal may be had to the superior court of the county in which the appellant resides, and the cause shall be heard by the judge holding court in the judicial district in which the appeal is docketed, at chambers, upon ten days notice to the parties of the time and place of hearing, and the said judge shall pass upon and determine all issues, both of law and fact, the state hereby waiving in such cases a trial by jury. Either party may appeal to the supreme court from the judgment of the superior court under the rules and regulations prescribed by law for appeals, except that the state, if it should appeal, shall not be required to give any undertaking or make any deposit to secure the cost of such appeal, and the supreme court may advance the cause on its docket so as to give the same a speedy hearing. Any taxes, interest, or penalties paid, found by the court to be in excess of those which can be legally assessed, shall be ordered refunded to the taxpayer, with interest from the time of payment. (1939, c. 158, s. 341.)

Art. 5. Schedule E. Sales Tax.

§ 105-164. Short title.—This article shall be known and and may be cited as the sales tax article of the revenue act. (1939, c. 158, s. 400.)

§ 105-165. Purpose.—The taxes levied in this article are to provide revenue for the support of the public schools of the state in substitution for the taxes formerly levied on property for this purpose. They are levied for the biennium of fiscal years beginning July first, one thousand nine hundred thirty-nine, and ending June thirtieth, one thousand nine hundred forty-one, and thereafter until otherwise provided by law.

The tax upon the sale of tangible personal property in this state is levied as a license or privilege tax for engaging or continuing in the business of a "wholesale" or "retail" merchant as defined in this article. Retail merchants may add to the price of merchandise the amount of the tax on the sale thereof, and when so added shall constitute a part of such price, shall be a debt from purchaser to merchant until paid, and shall be recoverable at law in the same manner as other debts. It is the purpose and intent of this article that the tax levied herein on retail sales shall be added to the sales price of merchandise and thereby be passed on to the consumer instead of being absorbed by the merchant.

Any retail merchant who shall, by any character of public advertisement, offer to absorb the tax levied in this article upon the retail sale of merchandise, or in any manner, directly or indirectly, advertise that the tax herein imposed is not considered as an element in the price to the consumer, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. Any violations of the provisions of this section reported to the commissioner of revenue shall be reported by the commissioner of revenue to the attorney general of the state, to the end that such violations may be brought to the attention of the solicitor of the court of the county or district whose duty it is to prosecute misdemeanors in the jurisdiction. It shall be the duty of such solicitor to investigate such alleged violations and if he finds that this section has been violated to prosecute such violations. The provisions of this section are deemed necessary to prevent fraud and unfair practices, but it is the intent of the general assembly that if one or both of such provisions be held unconstitutional and void, that such invalid provision or provisions be considered separable and that the balance of this article be given effect. (1939, c. 158, s. 401.)

§ 105-166. Contingency.—If the Congress of the United States shall, at any time hereafter, enact any form of sales or production tax distributable in whole or in part to the several states, the governor and council of state shall estimate the proportion of such tax distributable to this state, and shall, by proclamation of the governor, abate a uniform percentage of all the taxes levied in this article equal in estimated revenue yield to the estimated proportion of yield of such federal tax, and from and after the effective date of such proclamation the commissioner of revenue shall enforce and collect only the remaining percentage of taxes levied in this article. (1939, c. 158, s. 402.)

§ 105-167. Definitions.—For the purposes of this article.

1. The word "person" shall mean any person, firm, partnership, association, corporation, estate or trust.

2. The word "commissioner" shall mean the commissioner of revenue of the state of North Carolina.

3. The word "merchant" shall include any individual, firm, corporation, domestic or foreign, estate or trust, subject to the tax imposed by this article.

4. The words "wholesale merchant" shall mean every person who engages in the business of buying any article of commerce and selling same to merchants for resale. For the purposes of this article any person, firm, corporation, estate or trust engaged in the business of manufacturing, producing, processing or blending any articles of commerce and maintaining a store or stores, warehouse or warehouses, or any other place or places, separate and apart from the place of manufacture or production, for the sale or distribution of its products to other manufacturers or producers, wholesale or retail merchants, for the purpose of resale shall be deemed a "wholesale merchant."

5. The words "wholesale sale" or "sale at wholesale" shall mean a sale of tangible personal property by a wholesale merchant to a manufacturer, jobber or dealer, wholesale or retail merchant, for the purpose of resale, but does not include a sale to users or consumers not for resale. The term "wholesale sale" shall include a sale of tangible personal property to a manufacturer which enters into or becomes an ingredient or component part of the tangible personal property which is manufactured.

6. The words "retail merchant" shall mean every person who engages in the business of buying or acquiring, by consignment or otherwise, any articles of commerce and selling same at retail.

7. The word "retail" shall mean the sale of any articles of commerce in any quantity or quantities for any use or purpose on the part of the purchaser other than for resale.

8. The word "sale" or "selling" shall mean any transfer of title or possession, or both, exchange, or barter of tangible personal property, conditional or otherwise, however effected and by whatever name called, for a consideration paid or to be paid, in installments or otherwise, and shall include any of said transactions whereby title or ownership is ultimately to pass notwithstanding the retention of title or possession, or both, for security or other purposes, and shall further mean and include any bailment, loan, lease, rental or license to use or consume tangible personal property for a consideration paid or to be paid, in installments or otherwise: Provided, the provisions of this subsection shall not apply to the lease or rental of motion picture films used for exhibition purposes and for which a tax of three per cent is paid on the total admissions for such exhibitions.

9. The words "gross sales" shall mean the gross sales price at which such sales were made, whether for cash or on time, and if on time, the price charged on the books for such sales, without allowance for cash discount, and shall be reported as sales with reference to the time of delivery to the purchaser, except as this provision is modified by § 105-171. (1939, c. 158, s. 404; 1941, c. 50, s. 6.)

Editor's Note.—The 1941 amendment changed subsection 8. For comment on this amendment, see 19 N. C. Law Rev. 536. For an analysis of provisions of former law, see 11 N. C. Law Rev. 420. For decisions under former laws, see McCanless Motor Co. v. Maxwell, 210 N. C. 725, 188 S. E. 389; Powell v. Maxwell, 210 N. C. 211, 186 S. E. 326; Leonard v. Maxwell, 216 N. C. 89, 3 S. E. (2d) 316.

§ 105-168. Licenses; wholesale and retail sales tax rates; use tax on motor vehicles.—If any person, after the thirtieth day of June, one thousand nine hundred thirty-nine, shall engage or continue in any business for which a privilege tax is imposed by this article, such person shall apply for and obtain from the commissioner, upon the payment of the sum of one dollar ($1.00), a license to engage in and conduct such business upon the condition that such person shall pay the tax accruing to the state of North Carolina under the provisions of this article; and he shall thereby be duly licensed to engage in and conduct such business. The license tax levied in this section shall be a continuing license until revoked for failure to comply with the provisions of this article. License issued under Article V, chapter four hundred forty-five, Public Laws of one thousand nine hundred thirty-three, for the year one thousand nine hundred thirty-four—one thousand nine hundred thirty-five; under chapter three hundred seventy-one, Public Laws of one thousand nine hundred thirty-five, for the biennium one thousand nine hundred thirty-five—one thousand nine hundred thirty-seven, and chapter one hundred twenty-seven, Public Laws of one thousand nine hundred thirty-seven, for the biennium one thousand nine hundred thirty-seven—one thousand nine hundred thirty-nine, shall be deemed a continuing license under this section.

An additional tax is hereby levied for the privilege of engaging or continuing in the business of selling tangible personal property, as follows:

(a) Wholesale Merchants.—Upon every wholesale merchant as defined in this article, an annual license tax of ten dollars ($10.00). Such annual license shall be paid in advance within the first fifteen days of July in each year or, in the case of a new business, within fifteen days after business is commenced. There is also levied on each wholesale merchant an additional tax of one-twentieth of one per cent (1/20th of 1%) of the total gross sales of the business.

The sale of any article of merchandise by any "wholesale merchant" to any one other than to a licensed retail merchant for resale shall be taxable at the rate of tax provided in this article upon the retail sale of merchandise. In the interpretation of this article the sale of any articles of commerce by any "wholesale merchant" to any one not taxable under this article as a "retail merchant," except as otherwise provided in this article, shall be taxable by the wholesale merchant at the rate of tax provided in this article upon the retail sale of merchandise. The commissioner of revenue is authorized to make appropriate regulations, consistent with this article, to prevent abuse with respect to existing regulations defining transactions entitled to the rate of tax levied on sales at wholesale.

(b) Retail Merchants.—Upon every retail merchant, as defined in this article, a tax of three per cent (3%) of the total gross sales of the business of every such retail merchant: Provided, however, the maximum tax that shall be imposed upon the sale of any single article of merchandise shall be fifteen dollars ($15.00).

(c) Motor Vehicles.—In addition to the taxes levied in this article or in any other law, there is hereby levied and imposed upon every person, for the privilege of using the streets and highways of this state, a tax of three per cent (3%) of the sales or purchase price of any new or used motor vehicle purchased or acquired for use on the streets and highways of this state requiring registration thereof under the Motor Vehicle Laws of this state, which said amount shall not exceed fifteen dollars ($15.00), and shall be paid to the commissioner of revenue at the time of applying for certificate of title or registration of such motor vehicle. No certificate of title or registration plate shall be issued for same unless and until said tax has been paid: Provided, however, if such person so applying for certificate of title or registration and license plate for such motor vehicle shall furnish to the commissioner of revenue a certificate from a motor vehicle dealer licensed to do business in this state, upon a form furnished by the commissioner, certifying that such person has paid the tax thereon levied in this article, the tax herein levied shall be remitted to such person to avoid in effect double taxation on said motor vehicle under this article. The term "motor vehicle" as used in this section shall include trailers. It is declared to have been the purpose of this subsection that whenever a motor vehicle chassis is or has been purchased separately from the body which is thereafter installed thereon, the maximum tax herein levied shall be imposed only on the sale of the chassis and no additional tax shall be imposed upon the body mounted upon the same. It is not the intention of this section to impose any tax upon a body mounted upon the chassis of a motor vehicle which temporarily enters the state for the purpose of having such body mounted thereon by the manufacturer thereof. The commissioner of revenue is authorized to cancel any taxes assessed contrary to the provisions hereof. (1939, c. 158, s. 405; 1943, c. 400, s. 5.)

Editor's Note.—The 1943 amendment added the last three sentences of subsection (c).

§ 105-169. Exemptions.—The taxes imposed in this article shall not apply to the following:

(a) Sales by manufacturers or producers of their own manufactured products when sold to other manufacturers, producers, wholesale or retail merchants, for the purpose of resale except as this subsection is limited and modified by subsections four and five of § 105-167. The exemption in this subsection shall not extend to or include sales by manufacturers or producers of their own manufactured products when sold to users or consumers and not for the purpose of resale.

(b) It is not the intent of this article to exempt gasoline from the retail sales tax levied in this article, nor is it considered expedient to levy a tax upon the wholesale distribution of gasoline, payable at the source of distribution, and an additional tax upon the retail sale. Therefore, to carry out the intent of this article, a proportion of the tax of six cents per gallon, to be determined in the manner herein set out, shall be deemed in satisfaction of the tax upon retail sales levied in this article. The director of the budget, the chairman of the state highway and public works commission and the commissioner of revenue shall in the first fifteen days of each quarterly period, determine the total amount of gasoline sold in the state in the preceding three months, and the average retail price, inclusive of gasoline tax, and shall on this basis compute the amount of tax liability at the rate of tax levied in this article on retail sales, and the sum so computed shall be deducted from the tax of six cents per gallon, and credited by the state treasurer to the sales tax revenue levied in this article. These sums shall be available only after full provision is made for the expense of collecting highway revenues, for the administration of the highway and public works commission, for the service of the debt, and for reasonable maintenance of state and county highways, nor shall the application herein made become available to the general fund unless the director of the budget shall find such sum to be reasonably necessary to meet appropriations from the general fund. The amount so allocated to the general fund shall not be transferred from the highway fund, or become a definite charge against it until the surplus in the general fund at the end of the present fiscal year, together with current revenues, shall have been exhausted, or until the director of the budget shall find as a fact that such transfer is necessary to prevent a deficit in the general fund; nor shall such transfer or any part thereof be made until the appropriations from the highway fund, hereinabove referred to, have been provided for. In construing this provision the director of the budget shall not be required to take into account an incidental credit balance of the general fund.

(c) Sale of commercial fertilizer on which the inspection tax is paid, and lime and land plaster used for agricultural purposes whether the inspection tax is paid or not.

(d) Sales made to the state of North Carolina or any of its subdivisions, including sales of merchandise and articles of commerce to agencies of state or local governments for distribution in public welfare or relief work. This exemption shall not apply to sales made to organizations, corporations, and institutions that are not governmental agencies, owned and controlled by the state or local governments. Sales of building material made directly to state and local governments in this state shall be exempt from the tax on building material levied in this article, and sales of building material to contractors to be used in construction work for state or local governments shall be construed as direct sales.

Where any person, firm or corporation has entered into a contract with the federal, state, or local governments, or any agency thereof, or with any private person, firm or corporation, or other party whatsoever, to manufacture or fabricate tangible personal property including ships, boats, aircraft, equipment, ordnance, or any other products or articles of commerce, for cost or for cost plus a fixed fee, sales to such manufacturer or fabricator of materials which shall enter into and become an ingredient or component part of the product manufactured or fabricated shall not be subject to retail sales tax or use tax.

(e) The gross receipts from sales of tangible personal property which the state is prohibited from taxing under the constitution or laws of the United States of America or under the constitution of this state.

(f) Accounts of purchasers, representing taxable sales, on which the tax imposed by this article has been paid, that are found to be worthless and actually charged off for income tax purposes may, at corresponding periods, be deducted from gross sales in so far as they represent taxable sales made after July first, one thousand nine hundred thirty-three, and to be added to gross sales if afterwards collected.

(g) Sales of public school books on the adopted list and the selling price of which is fixed by state contract, and Holy Bibles.

(h) Sales of used articles taken in trade, or a series of trades, as a credit or part payment on the sale of a new article, provided the tax levied in this article is paid on the full gross sales price of the new article. In the interpretation of this subsection, new article shall be taken to mean the original stock in trade of the merchant, and shall not be limited to newly manufactured articles. The resale of articles repossessed by the vendor shall likewise be exempt from gross sales taxable under this article.

(i) Conditional exemptions; sales by retail merchants of food and food products for human consumption.—The term "food and food products for human consumption" shall be given its usual and ordinary meaning, but shall not include malt or vinous beverages, soft or carbonated drinks, sodas, or beverages such as are ordinarily sold or dispensed at stores, bars, stands or soda fountains or in connection therewith, candies or confectioneries, medicines, tonics, and preparations in liquid, powdered, granular, tablet, capsule, or pill form sold as dietary supplements; nor does "food and food products for human consumption" include prepared meals or foods sold or served on or off the premises by restaurants, cafes, cafeterias, hotel dining rooms, drug stores, or other places where prepared meals or foods are sold or served.

(j) Sales of ice, whether sold by the manufacturer, producer, wholesale or retail merchants.

(k) Sales of medicines sold on prescriptions of physicians, or medicines compounded, processed or blended by the druggist offering the same for sale at retail.

(l) Sales of products of farms, forests, mines, and waters when such sales are made by the producers in their original or unmanufactured state. Fish and sea foods shall be likewise exempt when sold by the fishermen.

(m) For the purposes of this article, sales of mill machinery or mill machinery parts and accessories to manufacturing industries and plants may be classified as wholesale sales and, therefore, only subject to the wholesale rate of tax.

(n) Sales of horses and/or mules.

(o) Sales of coffins or caskets which do not sell for more than one hundred dollars ($100.00).

(p) Sales of cotton, tobacco, peanuts and other farm products sold to manufacturers for further manufacturing or processing.

(q) Sales of tangible personal property to hospitals not operated for profit, churches, orphanages, and other charitable or religious institutions or organizations not operated for profit, and educational institutions principally supported by the state of North Carolina, when such tangible personal propery is purchased for use in carrying on the work of such institutions or organizations.

(r) Sales of crutches, and sales of artificial limbs, artificial eyes, artificial hearing devices, when the same are designed to be worn on the person of the owner or user, and sales of orthopedic appliances.

Every merchant selling merchandise to other merchants for resale shall deliver to the customer a bill of sale for each sale of merchandise, whether sold for cash or on credit, and shall make and retain a duplicate or carbon copy of each such bill of sale, and shall keep a file of all such duplicate bills of sale for at least three years from date of sale, or until inspected and audited by a representative of the department of revenue. Failure to comply with the provisions of this paragraph shall subject the seller to liability for tax upon such sales at the rate of tax levied in this article upon retail sales.

Unless records are kept in such manner as will accurately disclose separate accounting of sales of taxable and non-taxable merchandise and in such form as may be accurately and conveniently checked by the representative of the department of revenue, the exemptions herein made shall not be allowed, and it shall be the duty of the commissioner or his agents to assess a tax upon the total gross sales at the rate of tax levied upon retail sales, and if records are not kept showing total gross sales, it shall be the duty of the commissioner or his agents to assess a tax upon an estimation of sales upon the best information obtainable. (1939, c. 158, s. 406; 1941, c. 50, s. 6; 1943, c. 400, s. 5.)

Editor's Note.—The 1941 amendment added the words "and Holy Bibles" at the end of subsection (g), changed subsection (i) and inserted subsections (p) and (q).

The 1943 amendment struck out references to the federal government in the third sentence of subsection (d) and added the second paragraph thereof. The amendment also struck out former subsection (p) relating to sales to trustees of churches, changed former paragraph (q) to (p) and inserted subsections (q) and (r). The amendment of subsection (d) became effective on April 1, 1943, and did not affect any lump sum or unit price contract which was awarded, or upon which bids were received, prior to that date.

§ 105-170. Taxes payable; failure to make return; duty and power of commissioner.—The taxes levied in this article shall be due and payable in monthly installments on or before the fifteenth day of the month next succeeding the month in which the tax accrues. Every taxpayer liable for the tax imposed by this article shall, on or before the fifteenth day of the month, make out or prepare a return on the blank report form furnished by the commissioner of revenue, showing the total gross sales, the sales exempted from the tax, the net taxable sales, the amount of tax covering sales in the preceding month, and shall mail same, together with the remittance for the amount of the tax, to the commissioner. Such monthly return shall be signed by the taxpayer or a duly authorized agent of the taxpayer. Every taxpayer who pays the tax imposed by this article and Article 8, Schedule I, shall be entitled to deduct from the amount of the tax for which he is liable and which he actually pays, a discount of three per cent (3%): Provided, however, the commissioner may deny a taxpayer the benefits of this subsection for failure to pay the full tax when due, as well as in cases of fraud, evasion, and failure to keep accurate and clear records as provided in § 105-169: Provided, further, that in order to secure the benefits of this subsection, the taxpayer must deduct the three per cent (3%) discount at the time of making his monthly remittance of tax to the department of revenue.

(a) Delayed Returns.—If a delinquent return or a return without remittance for the amount of tax shown to be due is received by the commissioner or his duly authorized agents, the taxpayer shall be assessed with a five per centum penalty plus interest at one-half of one per centum per month from the date the tax was due. The penalty provided in this subsection shall not be less than one dollar ($1.00).

(b) Failure to Make Returns.—If the taxpayer shall fail to make or refuse to make the returns required under this article, then such returns shall be made by the commissioner or his duly authorized agents from the best information available, and such returns shall be prima facie correct for the purposes of this article, and the amount of tax due thereby shall be a lien against all the property of the taxpayer until discharged by payments, and if payment not be made within thirty days after demand therefor by the commissioner or his duly authorized agents, there shall be added not more than one hundred per centum as damages, together with interest at the rate of one per centum per month from the time such tax was due. If such tax be paid within thirty days after notice by the commissioner, then there shall be added not more than ten per centum as damages, and interest at the rate of one per centum per month from the time such tax was due until paid.

(c) Not to Issue Certificate of Title or License.—As an additional means of enforcement of the payment of the tax herein levied the department of revenue shall not issue a certificate of title or a license plate for any new or used motor vehicle sold by any merchant or dealer licensed to do business in this state until the tax levied for the sale of same in this article has been paid, or a certificate, duly signed by a dealer licensed to do business in this state, is filed at the time the application for title or license plate is made for such motor vehicle; such certificate to be on such form as may be prescribed by the commissioner of revenue, and that such certificate shall show that the said licensed dealer has assumed the responsibility for the payment of the tax levied under this article and agrees to report and remit the tax in his next regular monthly sales tax report required to be filed under this article. (1939, c. 158, s. 407; 1943, c. 400, s. 5.)

Editor's Note.—The 1943 amendment added to the first paragraph the last sentence with provisos.

§ 105-171. Credit sales.—Any person taxable under this article having cash and credit sales may report such cash and credit sales separately, and upon making application therefor may obtain from the commissioner an extension of time for the payment of taxes due on such credit sales. Such extension shall be granted under such rules and regulations as the commissioner may prescribe. When such extension is granted, the taxpayer shall thereafter include in each monthly report all collections made during the month next preceding and shall pay taxes due thereon at the time of filing such report. (1939, c. 158, s. 408.)

§ 105-172. Forms for making returns. — The monthly returns required under this article shall be made upon forms to be prescribed and provided by the commissioner. (1939, c. 158, s. 411.)

§ 105-173. Extension of time for making returns.—The commissioner for good cause may extend the time for making any return required under the provisions of this article, and may grant such additional time within which to make such return as he may deem proper, but the time for filing any such return shall not be extended beyond the fifteenth day of the month next succeeding the regular due date of such return. If the time for filing a return be extended, interest at the rate of one-half of one per centum per month from the time the return was required to be filed to the time of payment shall be added and paid. (1939, c. 158, s. 412.)

§ 105-174. Commissioner to correct error.—As soon as practicable after the return is filed the commissioner shall examine it; if it then appears that the correct amount of tax is greater or less than that shown in the return, the tax shall be recomputed.

Excessive Payments.—If the amount already paid exceeds that which should have been paid, on the basis of the tax so recomputed, the excess shall be credited or refunded to the taxpayer in accordance with the provisions of this article.

Deficiency of Amount.—(a) If the amount already paid is less than the amount which should have been paid, the difference to the extent not covered by any credits under this article, together with interest thereon at the rate of one-half of one per centum per month from the time the tax was due, shall be paid upon notice and demand by the commissioner.

(b) If any part of the deficiency is due to negligence or intentional disregard of authorized rules and regulations, with knowledge thereof, but without intent to defraud, there shall be added as damages ten per centum of the total amount of the deficiency in the tax, and interest in such a case shall be collected at the rate of one per centum per month of the amount of such deficiency in the tax from the time it was due, which interest and damages shall become due and payable upon notice and demand by the commissioner; provided, however, in the absence of fraud, no assessment authorized by this article shall extend to sales made more than three (3) years prior to the date of assessment; and in cases where an audit shall have been made under the direction of the commissioner of revenue any assessment in respect to such audit shall be made within one year after the completion of the audit.

(c) If any part of the deficiency is due to fraud with intent to evade the tax, then there shall be added as damages not more than one hundred per centum of the total amount of the deficiency in the tax, and in such case the whole amount of tax unpaid, including charges so added, shall become due and payable upon notice and demand by the commissioner, and an additional one per centum per month on the tax shall be added from the date such tax was due until paid.

(d) If the amount already paid is less than the amount which should have been paid, the commissioner or his duly authorized agent shall notify the taxpayer of the balance due, plus such interest and damages as are set forth in (a), (b), and (c) just preceding, and if this total amount is not paid or no appeal is taken within thirty days from the date of notice, such action shall be considered as a refusal on the part of the taxpayer to make a return, and the taxpayer shall be subject to such penalties or provisions as are provided in this article for failure to make a return.

If any taxpayer, subject to the provisions of this article, goes into bankruptcy, receivership, or turns over his stock of merchandise by voluntary transfer to creditors, the tax liability under this article shall constitute a prior lien on such stock of merchandise, subject to execution, and it shall be the duty of the transferee in any such case to retain the amount of the tax due from the first sales from such stock of merchandise and to pay the same to the commissioner of revenue. (1939 c. 158, s. 414; 1941, c. 50, s. 6.)

Editor's Note.—The 1941 amendment added the proviso to subsection (b).

§ 105-175. Taxpayer must keep records.—It shall be the duty of every person engaging or continuing in this state in any business for which a privilege tax is imposed by this article to keep and preserve suitable records of the gross income, gross receipts and/or gross receipts of sales of such business, and such other books or accounts as may be necessary to determine the amount of tax for which he is liable under the provisions of this article. And it shall be the duty of every such person to keep and preserve, for a period of three years, all invoices of goods and merchandise purchased for resale, and all such books, invoices, and other records shall be open for examination at any time by the commissioner or his duly authorized agent. (1939, c. 158, s. 415.)

§ 105-176. Tax shall be lien.—The tax imposed by this article shall be a lien upon the stock of goods and/or any other property of any person subject to the provisions hereof who shall sell out his business or stock of goods, or shall quit business, and such person shall be required to make out the return provided for under § 105-170 within thirty days after the date he sold out his business or stock of goods, or quit business, and his successor in business shall be required to withhold sufficient of the purchase money to cover the amount of said taxes due and unpaid until such time as the former owner shall produce a receipt from the commissioner showing that the taxes have been paid, or a certificate that no taxes are due. If the purchaser of a business or stock of goods shall fail to withhold purchase money as above provided, and the taxes shall be due and unpaid after the thirty-day period allowed, he shall be personally liable for the payment of the taxes accrued and unpaid on account of the operation of the business by the former owner. (1939, c. 158, s. 416.)

§ 105-177. Aggrieved person may file petition.—If any person having made the return and paid the tax as provided by this article feels aggrieved by the assessment made upon him by the commissioner, or, in the absence of a report, if an assessment has been made by the commissioner under the provisions of this article, the taxpayer may apply to the commissioner by petition, in writing, within thirty days after the notice is mailed to him, for a hearing and a correction of the amount of the tax so assessed upon him by the commissioner, in which petition he shall set forth the reasons why such hearing should be granted and the amount in which such tax should be reduced. The commissioner shall promptly consider such petition, and may grant such hearing or deny the same. If denied, the petitioner shall be forthwith notified thereof; if granted, the commissioner shall notify the petitioner of the time and place fixed for such hearing. After such hearing the commissioner may make such order in the matter as may appear to him just and lawful, and shall furnish a copy of such order to the petitioner. Any person improperly charged with any tax and required to pay the same may recover the amount paid, together with interest, in any proper action or suit against the commissioner, and the superior court of the county in which the taxpayer resides or is located shall have original jurisdiction of any action to recover any tax improperly collected. In any suit to recover taxes paid or to collect taxes, the court shall adjudge costs to such extent and in such manner as may be deemed equitable.

Either party to such suit shall have the right to appeal to the supreme court of North Carolina as now provided by law. In the event a final judgment is rendered in favor of the taxpayer in a suit to recover illegal taxes, then it shall be the duty of the state auditor, upon receipt of a certified copy of such final judgment, to issue a warrant directed to the state treasurer in favor of such taxpayer to pay such judgment, interest, and costs. It shall be the duty of the state treasurer to honor such warrant and pay such judgment out of any funds in the state treasury.

No injunction shall be awarded by any court or judge to restrain the collection of the taxes imposed by this article, or to restrain the enforcement of this article. (1939, c. 158, s. 417.)

§ 105-178. Warrant for collection of tax; tax shall constitute debt due state.—If any tax imposed or any portion of such tax be not paid within thirty days after the same becomes due, the commissioner shall proceed to enforce the payment of such tax in the manner provided by § 105-242. (1939, c. 158, s. 418, c. 370, s. 1.)

§ 105-179. Additional tax; remittances made to commissioner; records. — The tax imposed by this article shall be in addition to all other licenses and taxes levied by law as a condition precedent to engaging in any business taxable hereunder, except as in this article otherwise specifically provided. But no county, municipality, or district shall be authorized to levy any tax by virtue of the provisions of this article.

Remittances, How Made.—All remittances of taxes imposed by this article shall be made to the commissioner by bank draft, check, cashier's check, money order, or money, who shall issue his receipts therefor to the taxpayers, when requested, and shall deposit daily all monies received to the credit of the state treasurer as required by law for other taxes: Provided, no payment other than cash shall be final discharge of liability for the tax herein assessed and levied unless and until it has been paid in cash to the commissioner.

The commissioner shall keep full and accurate records of all monies received by him, and how disbursed; and shall preserve all returns filed with him under this article for a period of three years. (1939, c. 158, s. 420.)

§ 105-180. Letters in report not to be divulged.—Unless in accordance with the judicial order or as herein provided, the state department of revenue, its agents, clerks or stenographers, shall not divulge the gross income, gross proceeds of sales, or the amount of tax paid by any person as shown by the reports filed under the provisions of this article except to members and employees of the state department of revenue for the purpose of checking, comparing, and correcting returns, or to the governor, or to the attorney general, or any other legal representative of the state in any action in respect to the amount of tax due under the provisions of this article. (1939, c. 158, s. 421; 1941, c. 50, s. 6.)

Editor's Note.—The 1941 amendment struck out the former provision of the section relating to withholding certificate of dissolution of corporation until payment of tax levied under this article.

§ 105-181. Unlawful to refuse to make returns; penalty.—It shall be unlawful for any person to fail or refuse to make the return provided to be made in this article, or to make any false or fraudulent return or false statement in any return of the tax, or any part thereof, imposed by this article; or for any person to aid or abet another in any attempt to evade the payment of the tax, or any part thereof, imposed by this article; or for the president, vice-president, secretary or treasurer of any company to make or permit to be made for any company or association any false return, or any false statement in any return required by this article, with the intent to evade the payment of any tax hereunder; or for any person to fail or refuse to permit the examination of any book, paper, account, record, or other data by the commissioner or his duly appointed agent, as required by this article, or to fail or refuse to permit the inspection or appraisal of any property by the commissioner or his duly appointed agent, or to refuse to offer testimony or produce any record as required in this article. Any person violating any of the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction thereof shall be fined not more than five hundred dollars ($500.00) or imprisoned not exceeding six months, or punished by both such fine and imprisonment, at the discretion of the court within the limitations aforesaid. In addition to the foregoing penalties, any person who shall knowingly swear to or verify any false or fraudulent statement, with the intent aforesaid, shall be guilty of the offense of perjury, and, on conviction thereof, shall be punished in the manner provided by law. Any company for which a false return or a return containing a false statement shall be made as aforesaid, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and may be punished by a fine of not more than one thousand dollars ($1,000.00). (1939, c. 158, s. 422.)

§ 105-182. Commissioner to make regulations.—The commissioner shall from time to time promulgate such rules and regulations not inconsistent with this article for making returns and for the ascertainment, assessment, and collection of the tax imposed hereunder as he may deem necessary to enforce its provisions, and upon request shall furnish any taxpayer with a copy of such rules and regulations. (1939, c. 158, s. 423.)

§ 105-183. Commissioner or agent may examine books, etc.—The commissioner, or his authorized agents, may examine any books, papers, records, or other data bearing upon the correctness of any return, or for the purpose of making a return where none has been made, as required by this article, and may require the attendance of any person and take his testimony with respect to any such matter, with power to administer oaths to such person or persons. If any person summoned as a witness shall fail to obey any summons to appear before the commissioner or his authorized agent, or shall refuse to testify or answer any material question or to produce any book, record, paper, or other data when required to do so, such failure or refusal shall be reported to the attorney general or the district solicitor, who shall thereupon institute proceedings in the superior court of the county where such witness resides to compel obedience to any summons of the commissioner, or his authorized agent. Officers who serve summonses or subpoenas, and witnesses attending, shall receive like compensation as officers and witnesses in the superior courts, to be paid from the proper appropriation for the administration of this article. (1939, c. 158, s. 424.)

§ 105-184. Excess payments; refund.—If upon examination of any monthly return made under this article it appears that an amount of tax has been paid in excess of that properly due, then the amount in excess shall be credited against any tax or installment thereof then due from the taxpayer, under any other subsequent monthly return, or shall be refunded to the taxpayer by certificate of over-payment issued by the commissioner to the state auditor, which shall be investigated and approved by the attorney general, and the auditor shall issue his warrant on the treasurer, which warrant shall be payable out of any funds appropriated for that purpose. (1939, c. 158, s. 425.)

§ 105-185. Prior rights or actions not affected by this subchapter.—Nothing in this subchapter shall affect or defeat any claim, assessment, appeal, suit, right or cause of action for taxes due, under the Revenue Act of one thousand nine hundred thirty-seven, prior to March 24, 1939, whether such assessment, appeal, suit, claim or action shall have begun before March 24, 1939 or shall thereafter be begun; and the sections of the Revenue Act of one thousand nine hundred thirty-seven, amended or repealed by this subchapter, are expressly continued in full force, effect, and operation for the purpose of assessment and collection of any taxes due under any such laws prior to March 24, 1939, and for the imposition of any penalties, forfeitures, or claims for a failure to comply therewith. (1939, c. 158, s. 426.)

§ 105-186. To prevent unfair trade practices, commissioner of revenue may require tax passed on to consumer.—In order that fair trade practices may be encouraged and any deleterious effect of the retail sales tax levy may be minimized, the commissioner of revenue is empowered and directed to devise, promulgate and enforce regulations under which retail merchants shall collect from the consumers, by rule uniform as to classes of business, the sales tax levied upon their business by this article: Provided, that the commissioner of revenue shall have the power to change the regulations and methods under which the merchants shall collect the tax from the consumers, from time to time, as experience may prove expedient and advisable. Methods for the passing on by merchants to their customers the retail sales tax on sales to said customers may include plans which require both more and less than the prescribed rate of the tax on the sale price, the purpose being to enable the merchants to collect approximately the amount of the tax imposed on their total sales volume. The commissioner of revenue is hereby authorized and empowered to make and adopt rules and regulations requiring merchants to use tokens or stamps, or other means, if found to be practical, which may be determined by the commissioner to provide a method whereby the amount of the tax collected by the merchant from the customer shall be as nearly as possible the prescribed rate of the tax on each purchase. Such regulations as herein authorized shall be promulgated by the commissioner of revenue to become effective after reasonable notice to the retail merchants and when so promulgated they shall have the full force and effect of law. Any merchant who violates such rules and regulations shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction shall be fined not less than five dollars ($5.00) nor more than five hundred dollars ($500.00) or be imprisoned for not more than six months, or be both fined and imprisoned in the discretion of the court: Provided, however, that every such violation shall be a separate offense hereunder. It shall be the duty of the solicitors of the several judicial districts of the state to prosecute violations of this section.

The provisions of this section shall not affect in any manner the character or validity of the sales tax levy as a merchants' license tax, and they may not be pleaded or considered in the event any provision of this subchapter is attacked as unconstitutional. (1939, c. 262.)

Editor's Note.—See 12 N. C. Law Rev. 99, 102, for an article on "Sales Tax and Transactions."

§ 105-187. Tax on building materials.—There is hereby levied and there shall be collected from every person, firm or corporation, an excise tax of three per cent of the purchase price of all tangible personal property purchased or used subsequent to June thirtieth, one thousand nine hundred thirty-nine, which shall enter into or become a part of any building or any other kind of structure in this state, including all materials, supplies, fixtures and equipment of every kind and description which shall be annexed thereto or in any manner become a part thereof, except rough and dressed lumber (but not millwork), brick or hollow tile, sand, gravel, crushed stone, rock and granite.

The provisions of this section shall not apply:

(a) In respect to the use of any such article of tangible personal property, the sale or use of which has already been subjected to a tax equal to or in excess of that imposed by this section, whether under the laws of this state or of some other state or territory of the United States: Provided, that if the tax imposed on the sale or use of such tangible personal property imposed by other laws on the sale or use of such property is less than the tax imposed by this section, the provisions of this section shall apply, but at a rate measured by the difference between the rate herein fixed and the rate by which the previous tax upon the sale or use of such property was computed: Provided, that the tax upon the use of a single article of merchandise shall be limited as provided in Schedule E, and shall not apply to tangible personal property exempt from tax and /or classified, when sold, as wholesale sales under the provisions of Schedule E preceding this section in Schedule E.

(b) In respect to such tangible personal property as shall enter into any building or structure erected or constructed under any contract with the state of North Carolina or any of its agencies or with any county or municipality in North Carolina or any of their agencies.

Every person liable for the tax imposed by this section shall report to the commissioner of revenue and pay the taxes herein levied in accordance with the provisions of Schedule E and in so far as the provisions of said article are appropriate and not inconsistent herewith, shall be liable for all penalties and shall be subject to all of the provisions of said article. The provisions of said article relating to the administration of said subchapter, auditing of returns and as to the authority and powers of the commissioner to make rules and regulations for the administration of this section, shall be deemed and taken as a part of this section. The definitions of terms, so far as may be applicable to this section, contained in Schedule E, shall be treated as definitions applicable to this section.

The taxes levied in this section shall be levied against the purchaser of the articles named. If purchases of building materials that are not exempt from tax are made by a contractor there shall be joint liability for the tax against both contractor and owner, but the liability of the owner shall be satisfied if affidavit is required of the contractor, and furnished by him, before final settlement is made, showing that the tax herein levied has been paid in full.

(c) A receipt given by a retail merchant maintaining a place of business in this state, showing thereon that the retail sales tax imposed by Schedule E, will be paid by such retail merchant on the articles of commerce included within said purchase, shall be sufficient to relieve the purchaser from further liability for tax imposed by this section: Provided further, that the commissioner may, by rule and regulation, provide that a similar receipt from a retailer who does not maintain a place of business in this state shall also be sufficient to relieve the purchaser of further liability for the tax to which such receipt may refer.

The term "retail merchant," as used in this subsection, shall include wholesalers, jobbers, manufacturers, or their agents, selling taxable building materials for use or consumption in this state to others than merchants for resale. (1939, c. 158, s. 427; 1943, c. 400, s. 5.)

Editor's Note.—The 1943 amendment struck out the words "with the federal government or any of its agencies, or" which formerly appeared after the word "contract" in the third line of subsection (b). The amendment became effective on April 1, 1943, and did not affect any lump sum or unit price contract which was awarded, or upon which bids were received, prior to that date.

Art. 6. Schedule G. Gift Taxes.

§ 105-188. Gift taxes; classification of beneficiaries; exemptions; rates of tax. — State gift taxes, as hereinafter prescribed, are hereby levied upon the shares of the respective beneficiaries in all property within the jurisdiction of this state, real, personal and mixed, and any interest therein which shall in any one calendar year pass by gift made after March 24, 1939.

The taxes shall apply whether the gift is in trust or otherwise and whether the gift is direct or indirect. In the case of a gift made by a nonresident, the taxes shall apply only if the property is within the jurisdiction of this state. The taxes shall not apply to gifts made prior to March 24, 1939.

The tax shall not apply to the passage of property in trust where the power to revest in the donor title to such property is vested in the donor, either alone or in conjunction with any person not having substantial adverse interest in the disposition of such property or the income therefrom, but the relinquishment or termination of such power (other than by the donor's death) shall be considered to be a passage from the donor by gift of the property subject to such power, and any payment of the income therefrom to a beneficiary other than the donor shall be considered to be a passage by donor of such income by gift.

Gifts to any one donee not exceeding a total value of one thousand dollars ($1,000.00) in any one calendar year shall not be considered gifts taxable under this article, and where gifts are made to any one donee in any one calendar year in excess of one thousand dollars ($1000.00), only that portion of said gifts exceeding one thousand dollars ($1000.00) in value shall be subject to the tax levied by this article.

The amount of tax on all gifts made taxable under this article shall be based on the relationship between the donor and donee, and graduated in proportion to the amount of such gifts. The rates of tax shall be as follows:

(a) Where the donee is lineal issue, or lineal ancestor, or husband, or wife of the donor, or child adopted by the donor in conformity with the laws of this state, or of any of the United States, or of any foreign kingdom or nation, or stepchild of the donor, (for each one hundred dollars ($100.00) or fraction thereof):

(c) Where the donee is in any other degree of relationship than is hereinbefore stated, or shall be a stranger in blood to the donor, or shall be a body politic or corporate (for each one hundred dollars ($100.00) or fraction thereof):

First $ 10,000		8 per cent
Over $ 10,000	and to $ 25,000	9 per cent

Over $1,500,000	and to $2,500,000	16 per cent
Over $2,500,000		17 per cent

A donor shall be entitled to a total exemption of twenty-five thousand dollars ($25,000.00) to be deducted from gifts made to donees named in subsection (a) of this section, less the sum of amounts claimed and allowed as an exemption in prior calendar years. The exemption, at the option of the donor, may be taken in its entirety in a single year, or may be spread over a period of years. When this exemption has been exhausted, no further exemption is allowable. When the exemption or any portion thereof is applied to gifts to more than one donee in any one calendar year, said exemption shall be apportioned against said gifts in the same ratio as the gross value of the gifts to each donee is to the total value of said gifts in the calendar year in which said gifts are made. No exemption shall be allowed to a donor for gifts made to donees named in subsections (b) and (c) of this section.

It is expressly provided, however, that the tax levied in this article shall not apply to so much of said property as shall so pass exclusively: (1) for state, county or municipal purposes within this state; (2) for charitable, educational, or religious purposes within this state; (3) to or for the exclusive benefit of any institution, association or corporation in this state, the property of which is exempt from taxation by the laws of this state; and (4) to or for the exclusive benefit of charitable, religious and educational corporations, foundations and trusts, not conducted for profit, incorporated or created or administered under the laws of any other state, when such other state levies no gift taxes upon property similarly passing from residents of such state to charitable, educational or religious corporations, foundations and trusts incorporated or created or administered under the laws of this state, or when such corporation, foundation or trust receives and disburses funds donated in this state for religious, charitable and educational purposes. (1939, c. 158, s. 600; 1943, c. 400, s. 7.)

Editor's Note.—The 1943 amendment added to the fourth paragraph the provision relating to gifts exceeding one thousand dollars. It also made changes in the second paragraph of subsection (c) by rewriting the second sentence and inserting the third and fourth sentences.

For article on gift tax, see 16 N. C. Law Rev. 194. For comment on this enactment, see 17 N. C. Law Rev. 389.

§ 105-189. Transfer for less than adequate and full consideration. — Where property is transferred for less than an adequate and full consideration in money or money's worth, then the amount by which the value of the property exceeded the value of the consideration shall, for the purpose of the tax imposed by this article, be deemed a gift and shall be included in computing the amount of gifts made during the calendar year. (1939, c. 158, s. 601.)

§ 105-190. Gifts made in property. — If the gift is made in property, the fair market value thereof at the date of the gift shall be considered the amount of the gift. (1939, c. 158, s. 602.)

§ 105-191. Manner of determining tax; time of payment; application to department of revenue for correction of assessment. — The tax imposed by this article shall be paid by the donor on or before the fifteenth day of March following the close of the calendar year.

Report of the gifts shall be made by the donor to the state department of revenue on blank forms prepared by the state department of revenue and furnished on application to any taxpayer, and the amount of tax due shall be paid at the time such report is made. The department of revenue shall audit the returns made under this article, and if it is found that the amount of tax paid is less than the amount lawfully due under the provisions of this article shall forward a statement of the taxes determined to the person or persons primarily chargeable with the payment thereof, such additional taxes to be collected under the same rules and regulations contained in this subchapter for the collection of other taxes, and if an over-payment should be found to have been made, a refund of such over-payment shall be made to the taxpayer. Within one year after the tax has been determined, any person aggrieved by the determination, may apply in writing to the department of revenue, which may make such corrections of the taxes as it may determine proper: Provided, however, that the rejection of the application in whole or in part by the department of revenue shall not prevent any person from applying to the court, as hereinafter provided, for the correction of said taxes. (1939, c. 158, s. 603.)

§ 105-192. Penalties and interest.—In any case where a donor fails to file a return at the proper time, the department of revenue shall assess a penalty of ten per centum (10%) of the tax determined by it, together with interest upon such tax and penalty at the rate of six per centum (6%) per annum from the date when such report should have been filed until the date of the assessment.

If any tax, or any assessment of tax, penalties and interest, or any part thereof, be not paid when due it shall bear interest at six per centum (6%) per annum from the date of assessment until paid. (1939, c. 158, s. 604.)

§ 105-193. Lien for tax; collection of tax.— The tax imposed by this article shall be a lien upon all gifts that constitute the basis for the tax for a period of ten years from the time they are made. If the tax is not paid by the donor when due, each donee shall be personally liable, to the extent of their respective gifts, for so much of the tax as may have been assessed, or may be assessable thereon. Any part of the property comprised in the gift that may have been sold by the donee to a bona fide purchaser for an adequate and full consideration in money or money's worth shall be divested of the lien hereby imposed and the lien, to the extent of the value of such gift, shall attach to all the property of the donee (including after-acquired property) except any part sold to a bona fide purchaser for an adequate and full consideration in money or money's worth.

If the tax is not paid within thirty days after it has become due, the department of revenue may use any of the methods authorized in this subchapter for the collection of other taxes to enforce the payment of taxes assessed under this article.

In any proceeding by warrant or otherwise to enforce the collection of said tax, the donor shall be liable for the full amount of the tax due by reason of all the gifts constituting the basis for such tax, and each donee shall be liable only for so much of said tax as may be due on account of his respective gift. (1939, c. 158, s. 605.)

§ 105-194. Period of limitation upon assessment; assessment upon failure or refusal to file proper return. — Except as provided in the next succeeding paragraph the amount of taxes imposed by this article shall be assessed within three years after the return was filed.

In the case of a false or fraudulent return with intent to evade tax or of a failure to file a return the tax may be assessed at any time.

If a donor should fail or refuse on demand to file a correct and proper return as required by this article, the department of revenue may make an estimate of the amount of taxes due the state by such donor, and by the respective donees, from any information in its possession, and assess the taxes, penalties and interest due the state by such taxpayers. (1939, c. 158, s. 606.)

§ 105-195. Tax to be assessed upon actual value of property; manner of determining value of annuities, life estates and interests less than absolute interest. — Said taxes shall be assessed upon the actual value of the property at the time of the transfer by gift. In every case where there shall be a gift to take effect in possession or enjoyment after the expiration of one or more life estates, or at any time in the future, the tax shall be assessed on the actual value of the property or the interest of the beneficiary therein at the time when he or she becomes entitled to the same in possession or enjoyment. The value of an annuity or a life interest in such property, or any interest therein less than an absolute interest, shall be determined by the annuity tables provided for by § 8-47, and upon the basis of six per centum (6%) of the gross value of the estate for the period of expectancy of the life tenant or for the period of the duration of said estate, if said estate is other than a life estate, in determining the value of the respective interests. In every case in which it is impossible to compute the present value of any interest in property so passing, the department of revenue may effect such settlement of the tax as it shall deem to be for the best interest of the state, and payment of the same so agreed upon shall be a full satisfaction of such taxes. (1939, c. 158, s. 607; 1943, c. 400, s. 7.)

Editor's Note.—The 1943 amendment added that part of the third sentence appearing after "§ 8-47."

§ 105-196. Application for relief from taxes assessed; appeal.—A taxpayer may apply to the commissioner of revenue for revision of the tax assessed against him at any time within three years from the time of the filing of the return or from the date of the notice of assessment of any additional tax. The commissioner shall grant a hearing thereon, and if upon such hearing he shall determine that the tax is excessive or incorrect, he shall resettle the same according to law and the facts, and adjust the computation of tax accordingly. The commissioner shall notify the taxpayer of his determination, and shall refund to the taxpayer the amount, if any, paid in excess of the tax found by him to be due. The taxpayer shall have the right of appeal from any assessment, made by the commissioner of revenue in the same manner and form as set out in § 105-163 with respect to income taxes. (1939, c. 158, s. 608.)

§ 105-197. Returns; time of filing; extension of time for filing.—Any person who within the calendar year nineteen hundred thirty-nine, after March 24, 1939, or any calendar year thereafter, makes any gift or gifts taxed by this article shall report in duplicate, under oath, to the department of revenue, on forms provided for that purpose, showing therein an itemized schedule of all such gifts, the name and residence of each donee and the actual value of the gift to each, the relationship of each of such persons to the donor, and any other information which the department of revenue may require. Such returns shall be filed on or before the fifteenth day of March following the close of the calendar year. The department of revenue may grant a reasonable extension of time for filing a report whenever in its judgment good cause exists. (1939, c. 158, s. 609.)

Art. 7. Schedule H. Intangible Personal Property.

§ 105-198. Intangible personal property.—The intangible personal properties enumerated and defined in this article or schedule are hereby classified under authority of section three, Article V of the Constitution, and the taxes levied thereon are for the benefit of the state and the political subdivisions of the state as hereinafter provided and said taxes so levied for the benefit of the political subdivisions of the state are levied for and on behalf of said political subdivisions of the state to the same extent and manner as if said levies were made by the governing authorities of the said subdivisions for distribution therein as hereinafter provided. (1939, c. 158, s. 700.)

Editor's Note.—For comment on this enactment, see 17 N. C. Law Rev. 390.

County Board of Education Denied Recovery of Funds Allocated to Municipality from Intangible Tax.—In Board of Education v. Wilson, 215 N. C. 216, 1 S. E. (2d) 544, it was held that the county board of education was not entitled to recover from municipality funds allocated to it by state from intangible tax provided by this section, even though municipality is in nowise liable for maintenance of constitutional school term, since it could not expend the funds as agent of the municipality in discharging the debts of the municipality for school purposes since the municipality had no such debt, nor could it expend such funds for school purposes in any of its districts since there was no district coterminous with the municipal limits and such expenditure would take taxes collected from citizens of the municipality and expend same in part for the benefit of those living outside its limits, and since the act does not provide for distribution of the funds to the county board of education in such cases and such provisions may not be interpolated therein, and since by a proper construction of the act the provision for expenditure for school purposes may relate to counties rather than to cities and towns.

§ 105-199. Money on deposit.—All money on deposit (including certificates of deposit and postal savings) with any bank or other corporation, firm or person doing a banking business, whether such money be actually in or out of this state, having a business, commercial or taxable situs in this state, shall be subject to an annual tax, which is hereby levied, of ten cents (10c) on every one hundred dollars ($100.00) of the total amount of such deposit without deduction for any indebtedness or liabilities of the taxpayer.

For the purpose of determining the amount of deposits subject to this tax every such bank or other corporation, firm or person doing a banking business shall set up the credit balance of each depositor on the fifteenth day of each March, June, September and December in the calendar year next preceding the due date of tax return, and the average of such quarterly credit balances shall constitute the amount of deposit of each depositor subject to the tax herein levied; for the purposes of this section accounts having an average of quarterly balances for the year of less than one hundred dollars ($100.00)) may be disregarded.

The tax levied in this section upon money on deposit shall be paid by the cashier, treasurer or other officer or officers of every such bank or other corporation, firm or person doing a banking business in this state by report and payment to the commissioner of revenue on or before March fifteenth of each year; any taxes so paid as agent for the depositor shall be recovered from the owners thereof by the bank or other corporation, firm or person doing a banking business in this state by deduction from the account of the depositor on December sixteenth of each year or on such date thereafter as in the ordinary course of business it becomes convenient to make such charge. The tax on deposits represented by time certificates shall be chargeable to the original depositor unless such depositor has given notice to the depository bank of transfer of such certificate of deposit. Accounts that have been closed during the year, leaving no credit balance against which the tax can be charged, may be reported separately to the commissioner of revenue and the tax due on such accounts shall become a charge directly against the depositor, and such tax may be collected by the commissioner of revenue from the depositor in the same manner as other taxes levied in this act; the bank or other corporation, firm or person doing a banking business in this state shall not be held liable for the payment of the tax due on accounts so reported. None of the provisions of this section shall be construed to relieve any taxpayer of liability for a full and complete return of postal savings and of all money on deposit outside this state having business, commercial or taxable situs in this state.

The tax levied in this section shall not apply to deposits by one bank in another bank, nor to deposits of the United States, state of North Carolina, political subdivisions of this state or agencies of such governmental units. Deposits representing the actual payment of benefits to World War veterans by the federal government, when not reinvested, shall not be subject to the tax levied in this section. (1939, c. 158, s. 701.)

§ 105-200. Money on hand. — All money on hand (including money in safe deposit boxes, safes, cash registers, etc.) on December thirty-first of each year, having a business, commercial or taxable situs in this state, shall be subject to an annual tax, which is hereby levied, of twenty-five cents (25c) on every one hundred dollars ($100.00) of the total amount of such money on hand without deduction for any indebtedness or liabilities of the taxpayer. (1939, c. 158, s. 702.)

§ 105-201. Accounts receivable. — All accounts receivable on December thirty-first of each year, having a business, commercial or taxable situs in this state, shall be subject to an annual tax, which is hereby levied, of twenty-five cents (25c) on every one hundred dollars ($100.00) of the face value of such accounts receivable: Provided, that from the face value of such accounts receivable there may be deducted the accounts payable of the taxpayer: provided further, that no deduction in any case shall be allowed under this section of any indebtedness of the taxpayer on account of capital outlay, permanent additions to capital or purchase of capital assets. The term "accounts payable" as used in this section shall not include: (a) reserves, secondary liabilities or contingent liabilities except upon satisfactory showing that the taxpayer will actually be compelled to pay the debt or liability; (b) taxes of any kind owing by the taxpayer; (c) debts owed to a corporation of which the taxpayer is parent or subsidiary or with which the taxpayer is closely affiliated by stock ownership or with which the taxpayer is subsidiary of same parent corporation unless the credits created by such debts are listed if so required by law for ad valorem or property taxation, for taxation at the situs of such credits; or (d) debts incurred to purchase assets which are not subject to taxation at the situs of such assets.

From the total face value of accounts receivable returned to this state for taxation by or in behalf of any taxpayer who or which also owns other such accounts receivable as have situs outside of this state, accounts payable of the taxpayer may be deducted only in the proportion which the total face value of accounts receivable taxable under this section bears to the total face value of all accounts receivable of the taxpayer.

The term "accounts payable" as used in this section shall be deemed to include current notes payable of the taxpayer incurred to secure funds which have been actually paid on his current accounts payable within one hundred and twenty days prior to the date as of which the intangible tax return is made. (1939, c. 158, s. 703; 1941, c. 50, s. 8.)

Editor's Note.—The 1941 amendment added the paragraph at the end of this section.

For comments on the amendments, see 19 N. C. Law Rev. 539.

§ 105-202. Bonds, notes, and other evidences of debt.—All bonds, notes, demands, claims and other evidences of debt however evidenced, whether secured by mortgage, deed of trust, judgment or otherwise, or not so secured, having a business, commercial or taxable situs in this state on December thirty-first of each year shall be subject to annual tax, which is hereby levied of fifty cents (50c) on every one hundred dollars ($100.00) of the actual value thereof: Provided, that from the actual value of such bonds, notes, demands, claims and other evidences of debt there may be deducted like evidences of debt owed by the taxpayer on December thirty-first of the same year. The term "like evidences of debt" deductible under this section shall not include: (a) accounts payable; (b) taxes of any kind owing by the taxpayer; (c) reserves, secondary liabilities or contingent liabilities except upon satisfactory showing that the taxpayer will actually be compelled to pay the debt or liability; (d) evidences of debt owed to a corporation of which the taxpayer is parent or subsidiary or with which the taxpayer is closely affiliated by stock ownership or with which the taxpayer is subsidiary of same parent corporation, unless the credits created by such evidences of debt are listed, if so required by law for ad valorem or property taxation, for taxation at the situs of such credits; or (e) debts incurred to purchase assets which are not subject to taxation at the situs of such assets.

From the total actual value of bonds, notes, demands, claims and other evidences of debt returned to this state for taxation by or in behalf of any taxpayer who or which also owns other such evidences of debt as have situs outside of this state, like evidences of debt owed by the taxpayer may be deducted only in the proportion which the total actual value of evidences of debt taxable under this section bears to the total actual value of all like evidences of debt owned by the taxpayer.

The tax levied in this section shall not apply to bonds, notes and other evidences of debt of the United States, state of North Carolina, political subdivisions of this state or agencies of such governmental units, but the tax shall apply to all bonds and other evidences of debt of political subdivisions and governmental units other than those specifically excluded herein.

In every action or suit in any court for the collection on any bonds, notes, demands, claims or other evidences of debt, the plaintiff shall be required to allege in his pleadings or to prove at any time before final judgment is entered (1) that such bonds, notes or other evidences of debt have been assessed for taxation for each and every tax year, under the provisions of this article, during which the plaintiff was owner of same, not exceeding five years prior to that in which the suit or action is brought; or (2) that such bonds, notes or other evidences of debt sued upon are not taxable hereunder in the hands of the plaintiff; or (3) that the suitor has not paid, or is unable to pay such taxes, penalties and interest as might be due, but is willing for the same to be paid out of the first recovery on the evidence of debt sued upon. When in any action at law or suit in equity it is ascertained that there are unpaid taxes, penalties and interest due on the evidence of debt sought to be enforced, and the suitor makes it appear to the court that he has not paid or is unable to pay said taxes, penalties and interest, but is willing for the same to be paid out of the first recovery on the evidence of debt, the court shall have authority to enter as a part of any judgment or decretal order in said proceedings that the amount of taxes, penalties and interest due and owing shall be paid to the proper officer out of the first collection on said judgment or decree. The title to real estate heretofore or hereafter sold under a deed of trust shall not be drawn in question upon the ground that the holder of the notes secured by such deed of trust did not list and return the same for taxation as required by this article. (1939, c. 158, s. 704.)

Judgment Provision as to Payment of Taxes.—Nonpayment of taxes on a note in suit is nullified by a provision in the judgment on the note that taxes, penalties and interest due shall be paid to the proper officers out of the first collections on the judgment. This is in accord with this section. Roberts v. Grogan, 222 N. C. 30, 21 S. E. (2d) 829.

§ 105-203. Shares of stock. — All shares of stock owned by residents of this state or having business, commercial or taxable situs in this state on December thirty-first of each year, with the exceptions hereinafter provided, shall be subject to an annual tax, which is hereby levied, of thirty cents (30c) on every one hundred dollars ($100.00) of the total fair market value thereof.

The tax herein levied shall not apply to shares of stock in banks, banking associations, trust companies or insurance companies not exempted from an income tax under subsection 2(f) of § 105-134, which are otherwise taxed in this state, nor to shares of stock in building and loan associations which pay a tax as levied under § 105-73; nor shall the tax apply to shares of stock in corporations which pay to this state a franchise tax on their entire capital stocks, surplus and undivided profits or entire gross receipts as provided under Schedule C, §§ 105-114 to 105-129, together with the tax upon all of the net income, if any, of such corporations as provided under §§ 105-130 to 105-163. With respect to corporations which pay to this state a franchise tax on a part of their capital stock, surplus and undivided profits or part of their gross receipts as provided in Schedule C, §§ 105-114 to 105-129, and a tax upon a part of the net income of such corporations as provided under §§ 105-130 to 105-163, when such income is earned, there shall be exempt so much of the fair market value of such shares of stock as is represented by the percentage of net income on which tax is paid to this state.

Indebtedness incurred directly for the purchase of shares of stock may be deducted from the total value of such shares: Provided, the specific shares of stock so purchased are pledged as collateral to secure said indebtedness; provided, further, that only so much of said indebtedness may be deducted as is in the same proportion as the taxable value of said shares of stock is to the total value of said shares of stock. (1939, c. 158, s. 705; 1941, c. 50, s. 8.)

Editor's Note.—The 1941 Amendment added the paragraph at the end of this section.

§ 105-204. Beneficial interest in foreign trusts. —The beneficial or equitable interest on December thirty-first of each year of any resident of this state, or of a nonresident having a business, commercial or taxable situs in this state, in any trust, trust fund or trust account (including custodian accounts) held by a foreign fiduciary, shall be subject to an annual tax, which is hereby levied, of thirty cents (30c) on every one hundred dollars ($100.00) of the total actual value thereof. (1939, c. 158, s. 706; 1941, c. 50, s. 8.)

Editor's Note.—The 1941 amendment inserted the above in lieu of the former section.

§ 105-205. Funds on deposit with insurance companies.—All funds on deposit with insurance companies on December thirty-first of each year, belonging to or held in trust for a resident of this state or having acquired a taxable situs in this state, shall be subject to an annual tax, which is hereby levied, of twenty-five cents (25c) on every one hundred dollars ($100.00) thereof. The term "funds on deposit" as used in this section shall mean all funds accrued or accruing by virtue of the death of the insured or the original maturity of a policy contract where the party or parties entitled to receive such funds might withdraw same at their option upon stipulated notice; provided, that in the determination of the tax liability under this section the first twenty thousand dollars ($20,000.00) of such funds on deposit or paid over to and held by a bank as trustee shall be disregarded where such funds on deposit are payable wholly and exclusively to a widow and/or children of the person deceased whose death created such funds on deposit.

The tax levied in this section shall be paid by the treasurer, cashier or other officer or officers of every insurance company doing business in this state by report and payment to the commissioner of revenue on or before March fifteenth of each year; any taxes so paid as agent for the party or parties entitled to receive such funds shall be recovered from the owners thereof by deduction from the account of the owner on December thirty-first of each year or at such other time as in the ordinary course of business it becomes convenient to make such charge. (1939, c. 158, s. 707; 1941, c. 50, s. 8.)

Editor's Note.—The 1941 amendment inserted the proviso at the end of the first paragraph.

§ 105-206. When taxes due and payable; date lien attaches; non-residents; forms for returns; extensions.—All taxes levied in this article or schedule shall become due and payable on the fifteenth day of March of each year, and the lien of such taxes shall attach annually to all real estate of the taxpayer within this state as of December thirty-first next preceding the date that such taxes become due and payable, regardless of the time at which liability for the tax may arise or the exact amount thereof be determined; and said lien shall continue until such taxes, with any interest, penalty and costs which shall accrue thereon, shall have been paid.

Every person, firm, association, corporation, clerk of court, guardian, trustee, executor, administrator, receiver, assignee for creditors, trustee in bankruptcy or other fiduciary owning or holding any intangible personal properties defined and classified and/or liable for or required to pay any tax levied, in this article or schedule, either as principal or agent, shall make and deliver to the commissioner of revenue in such form as he may prescribe a full, accurate and complete return of such tax liability; such return, together with the total amount of tax due, shall be filed on or before the fifteenth day of March in each year.

For the purpose of protecting the revenue of this state and to avoid discrimination and prevent evasion of the tax imposed by this article, every resident or nonresident person, firm, association, trustee or corporation, foreign or domestic, engaged in this state, either as principal or as agent or representative of or on behalf of another, in buying, selling, collecting, discounting, negotiating or otherwise dealing in or handling any of the intangible property defined in this article, shall be deemed to be doing business in this state for the purposes of this article, and the principal, superior or person on whose behalf such business is carried on in this state shall likewise be deemed to be doing business in this state, for the purpose of this article, and where such business is carried on in this state by a corporation, foreign or domestic, it and its parent corporation or the corporation which substantially owns or controls it, by stock ownership or otherwise, shall be deemed to be doing business in this state, for the purpose of this article, and in all such cases the said intangible property acquired in the conduct of such business in this state, and outstanding on December 31 of each year, shall be deemed to have a situs in this state and subject to the tax imposed by this article, notwithstanding any transfer between any of such parties and notwithstanding that the same may be kept or may then be outside of this state, and any of the intangible property defined in this article and acquired in the conduct of any business carried on in this state, and/or having a business, commercial or taxable situs in this state, shall be subject to said tax and returned for taxation by the owner thereof or by the agent, person, or corporation in this state employed by such owner to handle or collect the same.

The commissioner of revenue shall cause to be prepared blank forms for said returns and shall cause them to be distributed throughout the state, and to be furnished upon application; but failure to receive or secure form shall not relieve any taxpayer from the obligation of making full and complete return of intangible personal properties as provided in this article or schedule.

The return required by this article or schedule shall be due on or before the date specified unless written application for extension of time in which to file, containing reasons therefor, is made to the commissioner of revenue on or before due date of return. The commissioner of revenue for good cause may extend the time for filing any such return, provided interest at the rate of six per cent (6%) per annum from due date of return is paid upon the total amount of tax due. (1939, c. 158, s. 708; 1941, c. 50, s. 8.)

Editor's Note.—The 1941 amendment rewrote the third paragraph of this section.

§ 105-207. Penalties; unlawful to refuse to make returns.—If any taxpayer, without intent to evade any tax imposed by this article or schedule, shall fail to file a return and pay the tax, if any be due, at the time required by or under the provisions of this article or schedule, but who shall voluntarily file a complete and correct return and pay the tax due within sixty days after due date, there shall be added to the tax an additional amount equal to five per cent (5%) thereof, said additional amount in no case to be less than one dollar ($1.00), together with interest at the rate of one-half of one per cent (½ of 1%) per month or fraction thereof from the time said return was required to be filed until paid.

If any taxpayer fails voluntarily to file a return and/or pay the tax, if any be due, within sixty days after due date as required by this article or schedule, there shall be added to the tax an additional amount equal to twenty-five per cent (25%) thereof, said additional amount in no case to be less than two dollars ($2.00), together with interest at the rate of one-half of one per cent (½ of 1%) per month or fraction thereof from time said return was required to be filed until paid.

If any taxpayer who has failed to file a return or has filed an incorrect or insufficient return, and who has been notified by the commissioner of revenue of such delinquency, refuses or neglects within thirty days after such notice to file a proper return, the commissioner of revenue shall determine the tax liability of such taxpayer, according to his best information and belief, and shall assess the same at double the amount so determined plus the penalties and interest provided in this section for failure voluntarily to file return within sixty days after due date; the assessment so made by the commissioner of revenue shall be prima facie correct.

It shall be unlawful for any person to fail or refuse to make the return provided for in this article or schedule, or to make any false or fraudulent return or false statement in any return of the tax, or any part thereof, imposed by this article; or for any person to aid or abet another in any attempt to evade the payment of the tax, or any part thereof, imposed by this article; or for the president, vice-president, secretary, or treasurer of any company to make or permit to be made for any company or association any false return, or any false statement in any return required by this article, with the intent to evade the payment of any tax hereunder; or for any person to fail or refuse to permit the examination of any book, paper, account, record, or other data by the commissioner of revenue or his duly appointed agent, or to refuse to offer testimony or produce any record as required. Any person violating any of the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction thereof shall be fined not more than five hundred dollars ($500.00) or imprisoned not exceeding six months, or punished by both such fine and imprisonment, at the discretion of the court within the limitations aforesaid. In addition to the foregoing penalties, any person who shall knowingly swear to or verify any false or fraudulent statement, with the intent aforesaid, shall be guilty of the offense of perjury, and, on conviction thereof, shall be punished in the manner provided by law for the offense of perjury. Any company for which a false return shall be made or a return containing a false statement as aforesaid, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and may be punished by a fine of not more than one thousand dollars ($1,000.00). (1939, c. 158, s. 709.)

§ 105-208. Examination of returns; additional taxes.—As soon as practicable after the return is filed the commissioner of revenue shall examine same together with any other facts within his knowledge, and shall compute the tax, and the amount so computed shall be the tax. If the tax found due shall be greater than the amount theretofore paid, the deficiency shall be paid to the commissioner of revenue within thirty days after date of notice to the taxpayer of such deficiency, and any over-payment of tax shall be returned to the taxpayer within thirty days after it is ascertained.

If the return is made in good faith and the under-statement of the tax is not due to any fault of the taxpayer, there shall be no penalty or additional tax added because of such under-statement, but interest shall be added to the amount of the deficiency at the rate of six per cent (6%) per annum until paid. If the under-statement is due to negligence on the part of the taxpayer, but without intent to defraud, there shall be added to the amount of the deficiency five per cent (5%) thereof, together with interest at the rate of six per cent (6%) per annum until paid. If the understatement is found by the commissioner of revenue to be false or fraudulent, with intent to evade the tax, any additional tax found to be due and payable shall be doubled together with interest at the rate of six per cent (6%) per annum upon the total amount of tax so found. The interest provided for in this section shall in all cases be computed from the date the tax was originally due to the date of payment.

If the commissioner of revenue discovers from the examination of the return or otherwise that the intangible personal property of any taxpayer, or any portion thereof, has not been assessed, he may, at any time within three years after the time when the return was due, give notice in writing to the taxpayer of such deficiency. Any taxpayer feeling aggrieved by such proposed assessment shall be entitled to a hearing before the commissioner of revenue, if within thirty days after giving notice of such proposed assessment he shall apply for such hearing in writing, explaining in detail his objections to same. If no request for such hearing is so made, such proposed assessment shall be final and conclusive. If the request for hearing is made, the taxpayer shall be heard by the commissioner of revenue, and after such hearing the commissioner of revenue shall render his decision. The taxpayer shall be advised of his decision and such amount shall be due within ten days after notice is given. The provisions of this article with respect to revision and appeal shall apply to the tax so assessed. The limitation of three years to the assessment of such tax or an additional tax shall not apply to the assessment of additional taxes upon fraudulent returns nor upon failure to file returns. (1939, c. 158, s. 710.)

§ 105-209. Information from the source; commissioner of revenue empowered to make regulations.—In addition to the other requirements of this article or schedule it shall be the duty of every domestic corporation and every foreign corporation doing business and/or owning property in this state, the shares of stock and bonds of which are subject to tax under the provisions of this article or schedule, to report not later than the fifteenth day of March of each year to the commissioner of revenue, in such form and manner as he may prescribe, the name and address of each registered stockholder or bondholder resident in this state as of the thirty-first day of December of each year; such report shall also include the number of shares of stock and/or the number of bonds, the par or face value of each, the dividends or interest paid on each such security during the calendar year next preceding date of report, all transfers of record made from residents of this state between the first and thirty-first days of December next preceding the date of the report herein required, and such other and further information as the commissioner of revenue may require.

The commissioner of revenue shall from time to time promulgate such rules and regulations, not inconsistent with this article or schedule for making returns and for the ascertainment, assessment and collection of the taxes imposed hereunder as he may deem necessary to enforce its provisions. (1939, c. 158, s. 711.)

§ 105-210. Moneyed capital coming into competition with the business of national banks.—On all moneyed capital coming into competition with the business of national banks there is hereby annually levied a tax at the same rate as is assessed upon the shares of stock of national banks located in this state at the place of residence of such national banks, less deduction of real estate otherwise taxed in this state, to the same extent and under the same corresponding conditions as this deduction is allowed in the assessment of such shares of stock of national banks located in this state: Provided, that bonds, notes or other evidences of indebtedness in the hands of individual citizens not employed or engaged in the banking or investment business and representing merely personal investments not made in competition with such business shall not be deemed moneyed capital within the meaning of this section. (1939, c. 158, s. 712.)

§ 105-211. Conversion of intangible personal property to evade taxation not to defeat assessment and collection of proper taxes; taxpayer's protection.—Any taxpayer who shall, for the purpose of evading taxation under the provisions of this article or schedule, within thirty days prior to December thirty-first of any year, either directly or indirectly, convert any intangible personal property taxable under the provisions of this article or schedule, or with like intent shall, either directly or indirectly, convert such intangible personal property into a class of property which is taxable in this state at a lower rate than the intangible personal property so converted, shall be taxable on such intangible personal property as if such conversion had not taken place; the fact that such taxpayer within thirty days after December thirty-first of any year, either directly or indirectly, converts such property non-taxable in this state or taxable at the lower rate in this state into intangible personal property taxable at the higher rate shall be prima facie evidence of intent to evade taxation by this state, and the burden of proof shall be upon such taxpayer to show that the first conversion was for a bona fide purpose of investment and not for the purpose of evading taxation by this state.

Taxpayers making a complete return on or before March fifteenth of each year of all their holdings of intangible personal property as provided by this article or schedule (or by similar provisions of prior Revenue Act) shall not thereafter be held liable for failure to list such intangible personal property with the local taxing units of this state in previous years; the taxes levied in this article or schedule shall be in lieu of all other property taxes in this state on such intangible personal property. (1939, c. 158, s. 713.)

§ 105-212. Institutions exempted; conditional and other exemptions.—None of the taxes levied in this article or schedule shall apply to religious, educational, charitable or benevolent organizations not conducted for profit, nor to any funds held irrevocably in trust exclusively for the maintenance and care of places of burial; insurance companies reporting premiums to the insurance commissioner of this state and paying a tax thereon under the provisions of § 105-121 shall not be subject to the provisions of §§ 105-201, 105-202 and 105-203; building and loan associations paying a tax under the provisions of § 105-73 shall not be subject to the provisions of §§ 105-201, 105-202 and 105-203; state credit unions organized pursuant to the provisions of subchaper III, chapter fifty-four, paying the supervisory fees required by law, shall not be subject to any of the taxes levied in this article or schedule; banks, banking associations and trust companies shall not be subject to the tax levied in this article or schedule on evidences of debt held by them when said evidences of debt represent investment of funds on deposit with such banks, banking associations and trust companies: provided, that each such institution must, upon request by the commissioner of revenue, establish in writing its claim for exemption as herein provided. The exemptions in this section shall apply only to those institutions, and only to the extent, specifically mentioned, and no other.

A clerk of any court of this state may, upon written application therefor, obtain from the commissioner of revenue a certificate relieving the depository bank of such clerk from the duty of collecting the tax levied in this article or schedule from deposits of said clerk: Provided, that such clerk of court shall be liable under his official bond for the full and proper remittance to the commissioner of revenue under the provisions of this article or schedule of taxes due on any deposits so handled. (1939, c. 158, s. 714; 1943, c. 400, s. 8.)

Editor's Note.—The 1943 amendment inserted the provision relating to state credit unions.

§ 105-213. Separate records by counties; disposition and distribution of taxes collected; purpose of tax.—The commissioner of revenue shall keep a separate record by counties of taxes collected under the provisions of this article or schedule, and shall not later than the twentieth day of July of each year submit to the state board of assessment an accurate account of such taxes collected during the fiscal year ending June thirtieth next preceding, showing separately by sections the total collections less refunds in each county of the state. The state board of assessment shall examine such reports and, if found to be correct, shall certify a copy of same to the state auditor and state treasurer. Twenty-five per cent (25%) of the total amount of such revenue shall be retained by the state for use in the maintenance and operation of the public school system of the state, and seventy-five per cent (75%) of such revenue shall be distributed to the counties and municipalities of the state on the following basis:

The amount distributable to each county and to the municipalities therein from the revenue collected under §§ 105-200, 105-201, 105-202 to 105-204 shall be determined upon the basis of the amounts collected in each county; the amount distributable to each county and to the municipalities therein from the revenue collected under §§ 105-199 and 105-205 shall be determined upon the basis of population in each county as shown by the latest federal decennial census. The amounts so allocated to each county shall in turn be divided between the county and all municipalities therein in proportion to the total amount of ad valorem taxes levied by each during the fiscal year preceding such distribution. Upon certification by the state board of assessment of the allocations herein provided for, it shall be the duty of the state auditor to issue a warrant on the state treasurer to the treasurer or other officer authorized to receive public funds of each county and municipality in the amount so allocated to each such county and municipality. It shall be the duty of the chairman of the board of county commissioners of each such county and the mayor of each such municipality therein to report to the state board of assessment such information as it may request for its guidance in making said allotments to said units; and upon failure of any such county or municipality to make such report within the time prescribed by said state board of assessment, said board may disregard such defaulting unit in making said allotments. The amounts so allocated to each county and municipality shall be distributed and used by said county or municipality in proportion to other property tax levies made for the various funds and activities of the taxing unit receiving said allotment. (1939, c. 158, s. 715; 1941, c. 50, s. 8.)

Editor's Note.—The 1941 amendment changed the percentages in the last sentence of the first paragraph from "forty" and "sixty" to "twenty-five" and "seventy-five," respectively.

§ 105-214. Provision for administration. — For the administration of this article or schedule an appropriation is hereby made for the use of the department of revenue in addition to the appropriation in the Appropriation Act of a sum equal to four per cent (4%) of the total revenues collected under this article to be expended under allotments made by the director of the budget of such part of the whole appropriation as may be found necessary for the administration of this article.

The director of the budget may make estimates of the yield of revenue under this article and make advance appropriations based upon such estimate and to provide for the necessary expense of providing materials, supplies and other needful expenses to be incurred prior to the actual collection of taxes made under and by virtue of this article or schedule. The director of the budget may make such advance allotments from such estimates of revenue yield as he may find proper for the convenient and efficient administration of this article.

Out of the amounts which may become due and payable to the counties and municipalities there shall be deducted pro rata the cost of collection, enforcement and administration as determined by the director of the budget. (1939, c. 158, s. 716.)

§ 105-215. Unconstitutionality or invalidity; interpretation; repeal.—If any clause, sentence, paragraph, or part of this article or schedule shall for any reason be adjudged by any court of competent jurisdiction to be invalid, such judgment shall not affect, impair, or invalidate the remainder of this article or schedule, but shall be confined in its operation to the clause, sentence, paragraph, or part thereof directly involved in the controversy in which such judgment shall have been rendered. No caption of any section or set of sections shall in any way affect the interpretation of this act or any part thereof. All acts and parts of acts inconsistent with the provisions of this article or schedule are specifically hereby repealed. (1939, c. 158, s. 717.)

§ 105-216. Reversion to local units in case of invalidity.—If any clause, sentence, paragraph, or part of this article or schedule shall for any reason be adjudged by any court of competent jurisdiction to be invalid, and if by virtue of said judgment any one or all of the several taxes classified and levied in this article or schedule is/are held invalid, then the particular class or classes of intangible personal property affected by said judgment shall become subject to listing, assessment and taxation by the county, municipality, and other taxing jurisdictions in which said intangible personal property has situs in the same manner and at the same rates as applicable to real estate and other tangible properties: provided, that in such case said listing, assessment and taxation of such intangible personal property by said local taxing units shall become valid and effective as of the tax listing date next preceding March 24, 1939, and shall continue thereafter with full force and effect as if such properties were made taxable by the local taxing units by direct statutory enactment. (1939, c. 158, s. 718.)

§ 105-217. Power of attorney.—The commissioner of revenue shall have authority to require a proper power of attorney of each and every agent for any taxpayer under this article or schedule. (1939, c. 158, s. 719.)

Art. 8. Schedule I. Compensating Use Tax.

§ 105-218. Short title.—This article shall be known and may be cited as the "Compensating Use Tax Article." (1939, c. 158, s. 800; 1941, c. 50, s. 9.)

Editors Note.—The 1941 amendment struck out this article and inserted in lieu thereof the present article, effective as of July 1, 1941. The amendment provides that the former article, designated the "Compensation Use Tax Article of 1939," shall be and continue in full force and effect with respect to all acts and transactions done or occurring prior to July 1, 1941, or which ought to be affected by its terms and provisions, and with respect to all liabilities, criminal as well as civil, incurred, or which ought to have been incurred with respect to said acts and transactions done or occurring prior to July 1, 1941.

For comment on the 1939 enactment, see 17 N. C. Law Rev. 386.

§ 105-219. Definitions.—The following words, terms, and phrases when used in this article have the meanings ascribed to them in this section, except where the context clearly indicates a different meaning:

(a) "Storage" means and includes any keeping or retention of possession in this state for any purpose except sale in the regular course of business of tangible personal property purchased from a retailer.

(b) "Use" means and includes the exercise of any right or power or dominion whatsoever over tangible personal property by a purchaser thereof and includes, but is not limited to, any withdrawal from storage, installation, affixation to real or personal property, exhaustion or consumption of tangible personal property by the owner or purchaser thereof, but shall not include the sale of tangible personal property in the regular course of business.

(c) The word "sale" or "selling" shall mean any transfer of title or possession, or both, exchange, or barter of tangible personal property, conditional or otherwise, however affected and by whatever name called, for a consideration paid or to be paid, in installments or otherwise, and shall include any of said transactions whereby title or ownership is ultimately to pass notwithstanding the retention of title or possession, or both, for security or other purposes, and shall further mean and include any bailment, loan, lease, rental or license to use or consume tangible personal property for a consideration paid or to be paid, in installments or otherwise: Provided, the provisions of this subsection shall not apply to the lease or rental of motion picture films used for exhibition purposes and for which a tax of three per cent is paid on the total admission for such exhibitions.

(d) "Purchase" means the buying of, giving an order for, or offering to buy tangible personal property as a result of which there occurs a sale or delivery of tangible personal property by a retailer to a person for the purpose of storage, use, or consumption in this state, and includes the procuring of a retailer to erect, install, or apply tangible personal property for use in this state.

(e) "Sales price" means the total amount for which tangible personal property is sold, including all cost of transportation or delivery to the purchaser, whether paid by the purchaser to the retailer or to the carrier, and any services that are a part of the sale, valued in money, whether paid in money or otherwise, and includes any amount for which credit is given to the purchaser by the seller, without any deduction therefrom on account of the cost of the property sold, the cost of materials used, labor or service cost, interest charged, losses, or any other expenses whatsoever: Provided, however, that the cost for labor or services rendered in erecting, installing, or applying property sold shall not be included as a part of the sales price: Provided, further, that where a manufacturer, producer or contractor erects, installs, or applies tangible personal property for the account of or under contract with the owner of realty or other property, the sales price shall be the fair market value of such property at the time and place of sale.

(f) "Person" means and includes any individual, firm, copartnership, joint adventure, association, corporation, estate, trust, business trust, receiver, syndicate, or any other group or combination acting as a unit, and the plural as well as the singular number.

(g) "Retailer" means and includes every person engaged in the business of making sales of tangible personal property, or peddling the same, or soliciting or taking orders for sales, whether for immediate or future delivery, for storage, use or consumption in this state, and every manufacturer, producer, or contractor engaged in business in this state and selling, delivering, erecting, installing, or applying tangible personal property for use in this state notwithstanding that said property may be permanently affixed to a building or to realty or to other tangible personal property: Provided, however, that when in the opinion of the commissioner it is necessary for the efficient administration of this article to regard any salesmen, solicitors, representatives, consignees, peddlers, or canvassers as agents of the dealers, distributors, consignors, supervisors, principals or employers under whom they operate or from whom they obtain the tangible personal property sold by them, irrespective of whether they are making sales on their own behalf or on behalf of such dealers, distributors, consignors, supervisors, principals, or employers, the commissioner may so regard them and may regard the dealers, distributors, consignors, supervisors, principals, or employers as retailers for purposes of this article.

(h) "Commissioner" means commissioner of revenue of the state of North Carolina.

(i) "Tangible personal property" means personal property which may be seen, weighed, measured, felt, touched, or is in any other manner perceptible to the senses, but shall not include electricity, gas or water delivered by or through main lines or pipes either for commercial or domestic use or consumption.

(j) "Engaged in business in this state" shall mean the selling or delivering in this state or any activity in this state in connection with the selling or delivering in this state of tangible personal property for storage, use, or consumption in this state, and includes, but is not limited to, any of the following acts or methods of transacting business: Maintaining, occupying or using, permanently or temporarily, directly, indirectly, or through a subsidiary or agent, by whatever name called, any office, place of distribution, sales or sample room or place, warehouse or storage place, or other place of business, or, permanently or temporarily, directly or through a subsidiary, having any representative, agent, salesman, canvasser, or solicitor operating in the state in such selling or delivering, and the fact that any corporate retailer, agent, or subsidiary, engaged in business in this state, may not be legally domesticated or qualified to do business in this state, shall be immaterial.

(k) "In this state" or "in the state" means within the exterior limits of the state of North Carolina, and includes all territory within such limits owned by or ceded to the United States of America. (1939, c. 158, s. 801; 1941, c. 50, s. 9.)

§ 105-220. Taxes levied.—An excise tax is hereby levied and imposed on the storage, use, or consumption in this state of tangible personal property purchased from a retailer within or without this state on or after July first, one thousand nine hundred and forty-one (1941), for storage, use or consumption in this state at the rate of three per cent of the sales price of such property, regardless of whether said retailer is or is not engaged in business in this state.

Where a retail sales tax has already been paid with respect to said property in this state by the purchaser thereof, then the amount of said tax shall be credited upon the tax imposed by this article.

Every person storing, using or otherwise consuming in this state tangible personal property purchased or received from a retailer either within or without this state shall be liable for the tax imposed by this article, and the liability shall not be extinguished until the tax has been paid to this state: Provided, however, that a receipt from a registered retailer engaged in business in this state given to the purchaser in accordance with the provisions of this article shall be prima facie sufficient to relieve the purchaser from further liability for the tax to which such receipt may refer, and the liability of the purchaser shall be extinguished upon payment of the tax by any retailer from whom he has purchased said property.

The maximum tax imposed upon any single article of tangible personal property shall be limited as provided in § 105-168. (1939, c. 158, s. 802; 1941, c. 50, s. 9.)

§ 105-221. Exemptions.—The storage, use or consumption in this state of the following tangible personal property is hereby specifically exempted from the tax imposed by this article:

(a) Tangible personal property expressly specified and exempted from the retail sales tax imposed by Schedule E, §§ 105-164 to 105-187.

(b) Tangible personal property, the sale of which is classified as a wholesale sale under the provisions of Schedule E.

(c) Tangible personal property, the storage, use or consumption of which is exempt from taxation under the Constitution of North Carolina and the Constitution of the United States.

(d) Motor fuels defined and taxed in subchapter V, as now or hereafter amended or supplemented, and upon which the said gasoline tax has been paid.

(e) Tangible personal property purchased or acquired prior to coming into this state and brought into this state by a person a nonresident thereof for his, her, its or their own use or enjoyment while temporarily in this state. (1939, c. 158, s. 803; 1941, c. 50, s. 9.)

§ 105-222. Registration. — Every retailer, engaged in business in this state, except those registered under Schedule E, §§ 105-164 to 105-187, who shall thereby be deemed to be registered under this article, selling or delivering tangible personal property for storage, use or consumption in this state shall within thirty days after July 1, 1941, register with the commissioner and give the name and address of all agents operating in this state and the counties in this state in which they operate, the location of any and all distribution or sales houses or offices or other places of business in this state, the number, location and place of use of all motor vehicles, motorcycles, or other vehicles or conveyances, used or operated in this state by said retailer or in the business of said retailer, or for or under the authority of or under contract with or license from said retailer, and such other information as the commissioner may require. (1939, c. 158, s. 804; 1941, c. 50, s. 9.)

§ 105-223. Retailer to collect tax from purchaser.—Every retailer engaged in the business of selling, or delivering tangible personal property for storage, use, or consumption in this state shall at the time of selling or delivering said tangible personal property or collecting the sales price thereof, add to the sales price of such tangible personal property the amount of the tax on the sale thereof, and when so added said tax shall constitute a part of such price, shall be a debt from the purchaser to the retailer until paid, and shall be recoverable at law in the same manner as other debts. Said tax shall be stated and charged separately from the sales price and shown separately on the retailer's sales records, and shall be paid by the purchaser to the retailer as trustee for and on account of the state, and the retailer shall be liable for the collection thereof and for its payment to the commissioner, and the retailer's failure to charge to or collect said tax from the purchaser shall not affect such liability. It is the purpose and intent of this article that the tax herein levied and imposed shall be added to the sales price of tangible personal property when sold at retail and thereby be borne and passed on to the purchaser instead of being absorbed by the retailer.

Any retailer who shall by any character of public advertisement offer to absorb the tax levied in this article, or in any manner, directly or indirectly, advertise that the tax herein imposed is not considered as an element in the price to the purchaser, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. Any violations of the provisions of this section reported to the commissioner of revenue shall be reported by him to the attorney general of the state to the end that such violations may be brought to the attention of the solicitor of the court of the county or district whose duty it is to prosecute misdemeanors in the jurisdiction. It shall be the duty of such solicitor to investigate such alleged violations and if he finds that this section has been violated, prosecute such violators in accordance with the law.

Every retailer engaged in business in this state, as defined in this article, shall collect said tax notwithstanding (a) that the purchaser's order or the contract of sale is delivered, mailed, or otherwise transmitted by the purchaser to the retailer at a point outside of this state as a result of solicitation by the retailer through the medium of a catalog or other written advertisement, or (b) that the purchaser's order or the contract of sale is made or closed by acceptance or approval outside of this state or before said tangible personal property enters this state, or (c) that the purchaser's order or the contract of sale provides that said property shall be, or it is in fact, procured or manufactured at a point outside of this state and shipped directly to the purchaser from the point of origin, or (d) that said property is mailed to the purchaser in this state from a point outside this state or delivered to a carrier at a point outside this state, f.o.b., or otherwise, and directed to the purchaser in this state, regardless of whether the cost of transportation is paid by the retailer or by the purchaser, or (e) that said property is delivered directly to the purchaser at a point outside this state, if it is intended to be brought to this state for storage, use, or consumption in this state: Provided, that in the event of direct delivery to the purchaser at a point outside of this state the tax imposed by this article shall be credited with any retail sales tax lawfully imposed and paid with respect to said property in the state where such delivery occurred, or (f) any combination, in whole or in part, of any two or more of the foregoing statements of fact. (1939, c. 158, s. 805; 1941, c. 50, s. 9; 1941, c. 204, s. 1.)

lic Laws 1941. As to the first amendment, see editor's note under § 105-218. The second amendment, which changed the third paragraph, is effective as of July 1, 1941.

§ 105-224. Taxes payable; when returns are to be filed by retailer.—The tax imposed by this article shall be due and payable to the commissioner monthly on or before the fifteenth day of the month next succeeding the month in which the tax accrues. Every retailer engaged in business in this state shall, on or before the fifteenth day of the month following the month in which the tax accrues, file with the commissioner a return for the preceding month, in such form as may be prescribed by the commissioner, showing the total sales price of the tangible personal property sold and/or delivered by the retailer during such preceding month, the storage, use or consumption of which is subject to the tax imposed by this article, and such other information as the commissioner may deem necessary for the proper administration of this article. The return shall be accompanied by a remittance of the amount of tax herein required to be paid by the retailer during the month covered by the return. Returns shall be signed by the retailer or his duly authorized agent but need not be verified by oath. (1939, c. 158, s. 807; 1941, c. 50, s. 9.)

§ 105-225. Taxes payable; when returns are to be filed by purchaser.—The commissioner of revenue shall have authority to require every person storing, using or consuming tangible personal property in this state to file with the commissioner a return for the preceding month in such form as may be prescribed by him showing the total sales price of the tangible personal property purchased or received by such person during such preceding month, the storage, use or consumption of which is subject to the tax imposed by this article, and such other information as the commissioner may deem necessary for the proper administration of this article. The return shall be accompanied by a remittance of the amount of tax herein imposed during the month covered by the return. Returns shall be signed by the person liable for the tax or his duly authorized agent but need not be verified by oath.

No return or report shall be required under this section, however, of any person storing, using or consuming tangible personal property purchased from a registered retailer engaged in business in this state to whom said person has paid the tax imposed by this article. (1939, c. 158, s. 808; 1941, c. 50, s. 9.)

§ 105-226. Sales presumed to be for storage, use or consumption.—For the purpose of the proper administration of this article and to prevent evasion of the tax and the duty to pay the same herein imposed, it shall be prima facie presumed that tangible personal property sold by any person for delivery in this state, however made and by carrier or otherwise, is sold for storage, use or other consumption in this state, and a like presumption shall apply to tangible personal property delivered without this state and brought to this state by the purchaser thereof. (1939, c. 158, s. 809; 1941, c. 50, s. 9.)

§ 105-227. Provisions of other articles applicable.—All provisions not inconsistent with this article in Schedule E, §§ 105-164 to 105-187, and Schedule J, §§ 105-229 to 105-269, relating to administration, auditing, and making returns, promulgation of rules and regulations by the commissioner, imposition and collection of tax and the lien thereof, assessments, refunds, and penalties, are hereby made a part of this article and shall be applicable hereto. (1939, c. 158, s. 810; 1941, c. 50, s. 9.)

§ 105-228. Failure to register and file returns misdemeanor.—Any retailer failing or refusing to register and give the information required in this article, and any retailer or other person failing or refusing to make any return required to be made under this article, or failing or refusing to make a supplemental return or to furnish other data or information required by the commissioner, or rendering a false or fraudulent return, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and subject to a fine of not exceeding five hundred dollars ($500.00) for each such offense.

Any person required by this article to make, render or sign any return or report or to furnish other data or information, who makes any false or fraudulent return or report, or who furnishes any false data or information, with intent to defeat or evade the assessment or determination of any tax due under this article, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall for each such offense be fined not less than three hundred dollars ($300.00) and not more than five thousand dollars ($5,000.00) or be imprisoned not exceeding one year in the county jail or be subject to both said fine and imprisonment in the discretion of the court.

Any wilful violation of the provisions of this article, except as otherwise herein provided, shall be a misdemeanor and punishable as such. (1939, c. 158, s. 811; 1941, c. 50, s. 9.)

Art. 8A. Schedule I-A. Gross Earnings Taxes in Lieu of Ad Valorem Taxes.

§ 105-228.1. Defining taxes levied and assessed in this article.—The purpose of this article is to levy a fair and equal tax under authority of article V, section three of the constitution of North Carolina and to provide a practical means for ascertaining and collecting it. The taxes levied and assessed in this schedule shall be upon the gross earnings as defined in the article, and shall be in lieu of ad valorem taxes upon the properties of individuals, firms, or corporations so taxed herein. (1943, c. 400, s. 8.)

§ 105-228.2. Tax upon freight car line companies.—(1) For purposes of taxation under this section the property of freight line companies as defined is declared to constitute a special class of property. In lieu of all ad valorem taxes by either or both the state government and the respective local taxing jurisdictions, a tax upon gross earnings in the state as elsewhere defined shall be imposed.

(2) Any person or persons, joint stock association or corporation, wherever organized or incorporated, engaged in the business of operating cars or engaged in the business of furnishing or leasing cars not otherwise listed for taxation in this state, for the transportation of freight (whether such cars be owned by such company or any other person or company), over any railway or lines, in whole or in part, within this state, such line or lines not being owned, leased or operated by such company, whether such cars be termed box, flat, coal, ore, tank, stock, gondola, furniture, or refrigerator car or by some other name, shall be deemed a freight line company.

(3) For the purposes of taxation under this section all cars used exclusively within the state, or used partially within and without the state, and a proportionate part of the intangible values of the business as a going concern, are hereby declared to have situs in this state.

(4) Every freight line company, as hereinbefore defined, shall pay annually a sum in the nature of a tax at three per centum upon the total gross earnings received from all sources by such freight line companies within the state, which shall be in lieu of all ad valorem taxes in this state of any freight company so paying the same.

(5) The term "gross earnings received from all sources by such freight line companies within the state" as used in this article is hereby declared and shall be construed to mean all earnings from the operation of freight cars within the state for all car movements or business beginning and ending within the state and a proportion, based upon the proportion of car mileage within the state to the total car mileage, or earnings on all interstate car movements or business passing through, or into or out of the state.

(6) Every railroad company using or leasing the cars of any freight line company shall, upon making payment to such freight line company for the use or lease, after June thirtieth, one thousand nine hundred and forty-three, of such cars withhold so much thereof as is designated in this section. On or before March first of each year such railroad company shall make and file with the commissioner of revenue a statement showing the amount of such payment for the next preceding twelve-month period ending December thirty-first, and of the amounts so withheld by it, and shall remit to the commissioner of revenue the amounts so withheld. If any railroad company shall fail to make such report or fail to remit the amount of tax herein levied, or shall fail to withhold the part of such payment hereby required to be withheld, such railroad company shall become liable for the amount of the tax herein levied and shall not be entitled to deduct from its gross earnings for purposes of taxation the amounts so paid by it to freight line companies.

It is not the purpose of this subdivision to impose an unreasonable burden of accounting on railroad companies operating in this state, and the commissioner of revenue is hereby authorized, upon the application of any railroad company, to approve any method of accounting which he finds to be reasonably adequate for determining the amount of mileage earnings by any car line company whose equipment is operated within the state by or on the lines of such railroad company. Further, if in the opinion of the revenue commissioner the tax imposed by this section can be satisfactorily collected direct from the freight line companies, he is hereby authorized to fix rules and regulations for such direct collection, with the authority to return at any time to the method of collection at source above provided in this subdivision.

(7) Every car line company shall file such additional reports annually, and in such form and as of such date as the commissioner of revenue may deem necessary to determine the equitable amount of tax levied under this section.

(8) Upon the filing of such reports it shall be the duty of the commissioner of revenue to inspect and verify the same and assess the amount of taxes due from freight line companies therein named. Any freight line company against which a tax is assessed under the provisions of this article may at any time within fifteen days after the last day for the filing of reports by railroad companies, appear before the commissioner of revenue at a hearing to be granted by the commissioner and offer evidence and argument on any matter bearing upon the validity or correctness of the tax assessed against it, and the commissioner shall review his assessment of such tax and shall make his order confirming or modifying the same as he shall deem just and equitable, and if any overpayment is found to have been made it shall be refunded by the commissioner.

(9) If any such freight line company or railroad company shall fail to pay the tax levied herein when due a penalty of ten (10%) per cent thereof shall immediately accrue and thereafter one (1%) per cent per month shall be added to such tax and penalty while such tax remains unpaid. All provisions of laws for enforcing payment of taxes levied in this article shall be applicable to the gross earnings taxes of freight line companies. Any freight line company against which a tax is assessed under the provisions of this article may appear and defend in any action brought for the collection of such tax.

(10) The provisions of this article shall apply to all freight line gross earnings accuring from and after June thirtieth, one thousand nine hundred and forty-three. (1943, c. 400, s. 8.)

Art. 9. Schedule J. General Administration—Penalties and Remedies.

§ 105-229. Failure of person, firm, corporation, public utility and/or public service corporation to file report.—If any person, firm, or corporation required to file a report under any of the provisions of Schedules B and C of this subchapter fails, refuses, or neglects to make such report as required herein within the time limited in said schedule for making such report he or it shall pay a penalty of ten dollars ($10.00) for each day's omission. (1939, c. 158, s. 900.)

§ 105-230. Charter canceled for failure to report.—If a corporation required by the provisions of this subchapter to file any report or return or to pay any tax or fee, either as a public utility (not as an agency of interstate commerce) or as a corporation incorporated under the laws of this state, or as a foreign corporation domesticated in or doing business in this state, or owning and using a part or all of its capital or plant in this state, fails or neglects to make any such report or return or to pay any such tax or fee for ninety days after the time prescribed in this subchapter for making such report or return, or for paying such tax or fee, the commissioner of revenue shall certify such fact to the secretary of state. The secretary of state shall thereupon suspend the articles of incorporation of any such corporation which is incorporated under the laws of this state by appropriate entry upon the records of his office, or suspend the certificate of authority of any such foreign corporation to do business in this state by proper entry. Thereupon all the powers, privileges, and franchises conferred upon such corporation by such articles of incorporation or by such certificate of authority shall cease and determine. The secretary of state shall immediately notify by registered mail every such domestic or foreign corporation of the action taken by him, and also shall immediately certify such suspension to the clerk of superior court of the county in which the principal office or place of business of such corporation is located in this state with instructions to said clerk, and it shall be the clerk's duty, to make appropriate entry upon the records of his office indicating suspension of the corporate powers of the corporation in question. (1939, c. 158, s. 901.)

§ 105-231. Penalty for exercising corporate functions after cancellation or suspension of charter.—Any person, persons or corporation who shall exercise or by any act attempt to exercise any powers, privileges, or franchises under articles of incorporation or certificate of authority after the same are suspended, as provided in any section of this subchapter, shall pay a penalty of not less than one hundred dollars ($100.00) nor more than one thousand dollars ($1,000.00), to be recovered in an action to be brought by the commissioner of revenue in the superior court of Wake county. Any corporate act performed or attempted to be performed during the period of such suspension shall be invalid and of no effect. (1939, c. 158, s. 902.)

§ 105-232. Corporate rights restored.—Any corporation whose articles of incorporation or certificate of authority to do business in this state has been suspended by the secretary of state, as provided in § 105-230, or similar provisions of prior Revenue Acts, upon the filing, within ten years after such suspension or cancellation under previous acts, with the secretary of state, of a certificate from the commissioner of revenue that it has complied with all the requirements of this subchapter and paid all state taxes, fees, or penalties due from it (which total amount due may be computed, for years prior and subsequent to said suspension or cancellation, in the same manner as if said suspension or cancellation had not taken place), and upon payment to the commissioner of revenue, to be transferred to the secretary of state, of an additional penalty of ten dollars ($10.00) to cover the cost of reinstatement, shall be entitled to exercise again its rights, privileges, and franchises in this state; and the secretary of state shall cancel the entry made by him under the provisions of § 105-230 or similar provisions of prior Revenue Acts, and shall issue his certificate entitling such corporation to exercise again its rights, privileges, and franchises, and certify such reinstatement to the clerk of superior court in the county in which the principal office or place of business of such corporation is located with instructions to said clerk, and it shall be his duty to cancel from his records the entry showing suspension of corporate privileges. (1939, c. 158, s. 903; 1939, c. 370, s. 1; 1943, c. 400, s. 9.)

Editor's Note.—The 1943 amendment struck out in line sixteen the words "secretary of state" and inserted in lieu thereof the words "commissioner of revenue, to be transferred to the secretary of state."

§ 105-233. Officers, agents, and employees; misdemeanor failing to comply with tax law.—If any officer, agent, and/or employee of any person, firm, or corporation subject to the provisions of this subchapter shall wilfully fail, refuse, or neglect to make out, file, and/or deliver any reports or blanks, as required by such law, or to answer any question therein propounded, or to knowingly and wilfully give a false answer to any such question wherein the fact inquired of is within his knowledge, or upon proper demand to exhibit to such commissioner of revenue or any of his duly authorized representatives any book, paper, account, record, memorandum of such person, firm, or corporation in his possession and/or under his control, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and fined not less than one hundred dollars ($100.00) nor more than one thousand dollars ($1,000.00) for each offense. (1939, c. 158, s. 904.)

§ 105-234. Aiding and/or abetting officers, agents, or employees in violation of this subchapter a misdemeanor.—If any person, firm, or corporation shall aid, abet, direct, cause or procure any of his or its officers, agents, or employees to violate any of the provisions of this subchapter, he or it shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and fined not less than one hundred dollars ($100.00) nor more than one thousand dollars ($1,000.00) for each offense. (1939, c. 158, s. 905.)

§ 105-235. Every day's failure a separate offense.—The wilful failure, refusal, or neglect to observe and comply with any order, direction, or mandate of the commissioner of revenue, or to perform any duty enjoined by this subchapter, by any person, firm, or corporation subject to the provisions of this subchapter, or any officer, agent, or employee thereof, shall, for each day such failure, refusal, or neglect continues, constitute a separate and distinct offense. (1939, c. 158, s. 906.)

§ 105-236. Penalty for bad checks.—When any uncertified check is tendered in payment of any obligation to the department of revenue, and such check shall have been returned to the office of the commissioner of revenue unpaid on account of insufficient funds of the drawer of said check in the bank upon which same is drawn, then and in that event an additional tax shall be imposed equal to ten per cent (10%) of the tax due; and in no case shall the increase of said tax because of such failure be less than one dollar ($1.00) nor exceeding two hundred dollars ($200.00), and the said additional tax shall not be waived or diminished by the commissioner of revenue. This section shall apply to all taxes levied or assessed by the state. (1939, c. 158, s. 907.)

§ 105-237. Discretion of commissioner over penalties. — The commissioner of revenue shall have power, upon making a record of his reasons therefor, to reduce or waive any penalties provided for in this subchapter, except the penalty provided in § 105-236 relating to unpaid checks. (1939, c. 158, s. 908; 1939, c. 370, s. 1.)

§ 105-238. Tax a debt.—Every tax imposed by this subchapter, and all increases, interest, and penalties thereon, shall become, from the time it is due and payable, a debt from the person, firm, or corporation liable to pay the same to the state of North Carolina. (1939, c. 158, s. 909.)

Cross Reference.—As to taxes not being a debt subject to set-off and counterclaim, see note to § 105-441.

For prior law see Worth v. Wright, 122 N. C. 335, 29 S. E. 361; Gatling v. Commissioners, 92 N. C. 536; Commissioners v. Hall, 177 N. C. 490, 491, 99 S. E. 372.

§ 105-239. Action for recovery of taxes.—Action may be brought at any time and in any court of competent jurisdiction in this state or other state, in the name of the state and at the instance of the commissioner of revenue, to recover the amount of any taxes, penalties, and interest due under this subchapter. This remedy is in addition to all other remedies for the collection of said taxes and shall not in any respect abridge the same. Any judgment shall be declared to have such preference and priority against the property of the defendant as is provided by law for taxes levied by this subchapter, and free from any claims for homestead or personal property exemption of the defendant therein. (1939, c. 158, s. 910.)

§ 105-240. Tax upon settlement of fiduciary's account.—No final account of a fiduciary shall be allowed by the probate court unless such account shows, and the judge of said court finds, that all taxes imposed by the provisions of this subchapter upon said fiduciary, which have become payable, have been paid, and that all taxes which may become due are secured by bond, deposit, or otherwise. The certificate of the commissioner of revenue and the receipt for the amount of tax herein certified shall be conclusive as to the payment of the tax to the extent of said certificate.

For the purpose of facilitating the settlement and distribution of estates held by fiduciaries, the commissioner of revenue, with the approval of the attorney general, may, on behalf of the state, agree upon the amount of taxes at any time due or to become due from such fiduciaries under the provisions of this subchapter, and the payment in accordance with such agreement shall be full satisfaction of the taxes to which the agreement relates. (1939, c. 158, s. 911.)

§ 105-241. Taxes payable in national currency; for what period, and when a lien.—The taxes herein designated and levied shall be payable in the existing national currency. State, county, and municipal taxes levied for any and all purposes pursuant to this subchapter shall be for the fiscal year of the state in which they become due, except as otherwise provided, and the lien of such taxes shall attach annually to all real estate of the taxpayer within the state on the date that such taxes are due and payable, and said lien shall continue until such taxes, with any interest, penalty, and costs which shall accrue thereon, shall have been paid; in the settlement of the estate of any decedent where, by any order of court or other proceeding, the real estate of the decedent has been sold to make assets to pay debts, such sale shall not have the effect of extinguishing the lien upon the land so sold for state taxes, nor shall the same be postponed in any manner to the payment of any other claim or debt against the estate, save funeral expenses and cost of administration.

Whenever the property of any taxpayer liable to any tax imposed by this subchapter or under its authority shall be taken into receivership, the lien of the taxes upon the real estate shall not thereby be in any manner disturbed, and the personal property of the taxpayer liable to said tax upon which there is no prior specific lien shall be subject to a lien for the taxes imposed by this subchapter, or under its authority, from the time the receivership went into effect, subject to prior payment of costs of the receivership only.

The provisions of this section shall not have the effect of releasing any lien for state taxes imposed by other law, nor shall they have the effect of postponing the payment of the said state taxes or depriving the said state taxes of any priority in order of payment provided in any other statute under which payment of the said taxes may be required. (1939, c. 158, s. 912.)

Power to Tax and Manner of Exercise.—The subject of taxation is regulated entirely by statute, and the revenues of this state are collected under the operation of what is known as the Machinery act. Wade v. Commissioners, 74 N. C. 81.

The general assembly have an unlimited right to tax all persons domiciled within the state, and all property within the state, except so far as this right has been limited by the provisions of the constitution, either expressly or by necessary implication. Pullen v. Commissioners, 66 N. C. 361.

Same—Delegation of Power.—The legislature may authorize a municipal corporation to lay taxes on the town property, the persons, and the subject of taxation incident to the persons, of those who have a business residence in town, though they have a residence also out of town. Worth v. Commissioners, 60 N. C. 617.

Statement of Object.—The North Carolina Const. Art. V, section 7, requires that every act levying taxes shall state the objects to which they shall be appropriated. This provision, however, has no application to taxes levied by county authorities for county purposes. Parker v. Commissioners, 104 N. C. 166, 10 S. E. 137.

Constitutional Provisions—Uniformity Required. — Under North Carolina Const. Art. V, section 3, the same rule of uniformity applies as to the taxing of "trades, professions, franchises and incomes" as to the other species of property therein named; and there must be also uniformity in the mode of assessment. Worth v. Petersburg R. Co., 89 N. C. 301. Uniformity, in its legal and proper sense, is inseparably incident to the power of taxation, whether applied to taxes on property or to those imposed on trades, professions, etc. State v. Moore, 113 N. C. 697, 698, 18 S. E. 342.

Fiscal Year and Tax Year.—Welding this and § 153-114 together by established rules of correct interpretation, the fiscal year and the tax year are coterminous and coincident, and the liability of the landowner for taxes for any year arises and begins on 1 July, of that year. State v. Champion Fibre Co., 204 N. C. 295, 297, 168 S. E. 207.

Applied in Winston-Salem v. Powell Paving Co., 7 F. Supp. 424.

§ 105-242. Warrant for the collection of taxes.—1. If any tax imposed by this subchapter, or any other tax levied by the state and payable to the commissioner of revenue, or any portion of such tax be not paid within thirty days after the same becomes due and payable, and after the same has been assessed, the commissioner of revenue shall issue an order under his hand and official seal, directed to the sheriff of any county of the state, commanding him to levy upon and sell the real and personal property of the taxpayer found within his county for the payment of the amount thereof, with the added penalties, additional taxes, interest, and cost of executing the same, and to return to the commissioner of revenue the money collected by virtue thereof within a time to be therein specified, not less than sixty days from the date of the order. The said sheriff shall, thereupon, proceed upon the same in all respects with like effect and in the same manner prescribed by law in respect to executions issued against property upon judgments of a court of record, and shall be entitled to the same fees for his services in executing the order, to be collected in the same manner.

2. Bank deposits, rents, salaries, wages, and all other choses in action or property incapable of manual levy or delivery, hereinafter called the intangible, belonging, owing, or to become due to any taxpayer subject to any of the provisions of this subchapter, or which has been transferred by such taxpayer under circumstances which would permit it to be levied upon if it were tangible, shall be subject to attachment or garnishment as herein provided, and the person owing said intangible, matured or unmatured, or having same in his possession or control, hereinafter called the garnishee, shall become liable for all sums due by the taxpayer under this subchapter to the extent of the amount of the intangible belonging, owing, or to become due to the taxpayer subject to the set-off of any matured or unmatured indebtedness of the taxpayer to the garnishee. To effect such attachment or garnishment the commissioner of revenue shall serve or cause to be served upon the taxpayer and the garnishee a notice as hereinafter provided, which notice may be served by any deputy or employee of the commissioner of revenue or by any officer having authority to serve summonses. Said notice shall show:

(1) The name of the taxpayer and his address, if known:

(2) The nature and amount of the tax, and the interest and penalties thereon, and the year or years for which the same were levied or assessed, and

(3) Shall be accompanied by a copy of this subsection, and thereupon the procedure shall be as follows:

If the garnishee has no defense to offer or no set-off against the taxpayer, he shall, within ten days after service of said notice, answer the same by sending to the commissioner of revenue by registered mail a statement to that effect, and if the amount due or belonging to the taxpayer is then due or subject to his demand, it shall be remitted to the commissioner with said statement, but if said amount is to mature in the future, the statement shall set forth that fact and the same shall be paid to the commissioner upon maturity, and any payment by the garnishee hereunder shall be a complete extinguishment of any liability therefor on his part to the taxpayer. If the garnishee has any defense or set-off, he shall state the same in writing under oath, and, within ten days after service of said notice, shall send two copies of said statement to the commissioner by registered mail; if the commissioner admits such defense or set-off, he shall so advise the garnishee in writing within ten days after receipt of such statement and the attachment or garnishment shall thereupon be discharged to the amount required by such defense or set-off, and any amount attached or garnished hereunder which is not affected by such defense or set-off shall be remitted to the commissioner as above provided in cases where the garnishee has no defense or set-off, and with like effect. If the commissioner shall not admit the defense or set-off, he shall set forth in writing his objections thereto and shall send a copy thereof to the garnishee within ten days after receipt of the garnishee's statement, or within such further time as may be agreed on by the garnishee, and at the same time he shall file a copy of said notice, a copy of the garnishee's statement, and a copy of his objections thereto in the superior court of the county where the garnishee resides or does business where the issues made shall be tried as in civil actions.

If judgment is entered in favor of the commissioner of revenue by default or after hearing, the garnishee shall become liable for the taxes, interest and penalties due by the taxpayer to the extent of the amount over and above any defense or set-off of the garnishee belonging, owing, or to become due to the taxpayer, but payments shall not be required from amounts which are to become due to the taxpayer until the maturity thereof, nor shall more than ten per cent of any taxpayer's salary or wages be required to be paid hereunder in any one month. The garnishee may satisfy said judgment upon paying said amount, and if he fails to do so, execution may issue as provided by law. From any judgment or order entered upon such hearing either the commissioner of revenue or the garnishee may appeal as provided by law. If, before or after judgment, adequate security is filed for the payment of said taxes, interest, penalties, and costs, the attachment or garnishment may be released or execution stayed pending appeal, but the final judgment shall be paid or enforced as above provided. The taxpayer's sale remedies to question his liability for said taxes, interest, and penalties shall be those provided in this subchapter, as now or hereafter amended or supplemented. If any third person claims any intangible attached or garnished hereunder and his lawful right thereto, or to any part thereof, is shown to the commissioner, he shall discharge the attachment or garnishment to the extent necessary to protect such right, and if such right is asserted after the filing of said copies as aforesaid, it may be established by interpleader as now or hereafter provided by law in cases of attachment and garnishment. In case such third party has no notice of proceedings hereunder, he shall have the right to file his petition under oath with the commissioner at any time within twelve months after said intangible is paid to him and if the commissioner finds that such party is lawfully entitled thereto or to any part thereof, he shall pay the same to such party as provided for refunds by § 105-407, and if such payment is denied, said party may appeal from the determination of the commissioner to the superior court of Wake county or to the superior court of the county wherein he resides or does business and the provisions of § 105-163 shall apply on such appeal. The intangibles of a taxpayer shall be paid or collected hereunder only to the extent necessary to satisfy said taxes, interest, penalties, and costs. Except as hereinafter set forth, the remedy provided in this section shall not be resorted to unless a warrant for collection or execution against the taxpayer has been returned unsatisfied: Provided, however, if the commissioner is of opinion that the only effective remedy is that herein provided, it shall not be necessary that a warrant for collection or execution shall be first returned unsatisfied, and in no case shall it be a defense to the remedy herein provided that a warrant for collection or execution has not been first returned unsatisfied: Provided, however, that no salary or wage at the rate of less than two hundred dollars ($200.00) per month, whether paid weekly or monthly, shall be attached or garnished under the provisions of this section.

3. In addition to the remedy herein provided, the commissioner of revenue is authorized and empowered to make a certificate setting forth the essential particulars relating to the said tax, including the amount thereof, the date when the same was due and payable, the person, firm, or corporation chargeable therewith, and the nature of the tax, and under his hand and seal transmit the same to the clerk of the superior court of any county in which the delinquent taxpayer resides or has property; whereupon, it shall be the duty of the clerk of the superior court of the county to docket the said certificate and index the same on the cross-index of judgments, and execution may issue thereon with the same force and effect as an execution upon any other judgment of the superior court (said tax shall become a lien on realty only from the date of the docketing of such certificate in the office of the clerk of the superior court and on personalty only from the date of the levy on such personalty and upon the execution thereon no homestead or personal property exemption shall be allowed).

4. The remedies herein given are cumulative and in addition to all other remedies provided by law for the collection of said taxes. (1939, c. 158, s. 913; 1941, c. 50, s. 10.)

Cross Reference.—As to interpleader in cases of attachment and garnishment, see § 1-471.

Editor's Note.—The 1941 amendment inserted subsection 2 and numbered the original paragraphs of the section as 1, 3 and 4.

For comment on the 1941 amendment, see 19 N. C. Law Rev. 541.

§ 105-243. Taxes recoverable by action.—Upon the failure of any corporation to pay the taxes, fees, and penalties prescribed by this subchapter, the commissioner of revenue may certify same to the sheriff of the county in which such company may own property, for collection as provided in this subchapter; and if collection is not made, such taxes or fees and penalties thereon may be recovered in an action in the name of the state, which may be brought in the superior court of Wake county, or in any county in which such corporation is doing business, or any county in which such corporation owns property. The attorney general, on request of the commissioner of revenue, shall institute such action in the superior court of Wake county, or of any such county as the commissioner of revenue may direct. In any such action it shall be sufficient to allege that the tax, fee, or penalty sought to be recovered is delinquent, and that the same has been unpaid for the period of thirty days after due date. (1939, c. 158, s. 914.)

§ 105-244. Additional remedies. — In addition to all other remedies for the collection of any taxes or fees due under the provisions of this subchapter, the attorney general shall, upon the request of the commissioner of revenue, whenever any taxes, fees, or penalties due under this subchapter from any public utility (not an agency of interstate commerce) or corporation shall have remained unpaid for a period of ninety days, or whenever any corporation or public utility (not an agency of interstate commerce) has failed or neglected for ninety days to make or file any report or return required by this subchapter, or to pay any penalty for failure to make or file such report or return, apply to the superior court of Wake county, or of any county in the state in which such public utility (not an agency of interstate commerce) or corporation is located or has an office or place of business, for an injunction to restrain such public utility (not an agency of interstate commerce) or corporation from the transaction of any business within the state until the payment of such taxes or fees and penalties thereon, or the making and filing of such report or return and payment of penalties for failure to make or file such report or return, and the cost of such application, which shall be fixed by the court. Such petition shall be in the name of the state; and if it is made to appear to the court, upon hearing, that such public utility (not an agency of interstate commerce) or corporation has failed or neglected, for ninety days, to pay such taxes, fees, or penalties thereon, or to make and file such reports, or to pay such penalties, for failure to make or file such reports or returns, such court shall grant and issue such injunction. (1939, c. 158, s. 915.)

§ 105-245. Failure of sheriff to execute order.—If any sheriff of this state shall wilfully fail, refuse, or neglect to execute any order directed to him by the commissioner of revenue and within the time provided in this subchapter, the official bond of such sheriff shall be liable for the tax, penalty, interest, and cost due by the taxpayer. (1939, c. 158, s. 916.)

§ 105-246. Actions, when tried.—All actions or processes brought in any of the superior courts of this state, under provisions of this subchapter, shall have precedence over any other civil causes pending in such courts, and the courts shall always be deemed open for trial of any such action or proceeding brought therein. (1939, c. 158, s. 917.)

§ 105-247. Municipalities not to levy income and inheritance tax.—No city, town, township, or county shall levy any tax on income or inheritance. (1939, c. 158, s. 918.)

§ 105-248. State taxes; purposes.—The taxes levied in this subchapter are for the expenses of the state government, the appropriations to its educational, charitable, and penal institutions, pensions for Confederate soldiers and widows, the interest on the debt of the state, for public schools, and other specific appropriations made by law, and shall be collected and paid into the general fund of the state treasurer.

The taxes levied under authority of Section four hundred ninety-two of chapter four hundred twenty-seven of the Public Laws of one thousand nine hundred thirty-one, and remaining unpaid, shall be collected in the same manner as other county taxes and accounted for in the same manner as other taxes under the Daily Deposit Act. The county treasurer or other officer receiving such taxes in each county shall remit to the treasurer of the state on the first and fifteenth days of each month all taxes collected up to the time of such remittance under the levy therein provided for, and such remittance to the state treasurer shall also include the proportion of all poll taxes collected required by the constitution of the state to be used for educational purposes.

The tax levy therein provided for shall be subject to the same discounts and penalties as provided by law for other county taxes, and there shall be allowed the same percentage for collecting such taxes as for other county taxes. The obligation to the state under the levy therein provided for shall run against all taxes that become delinquent; and with respect to any property that may be sold for taxes, any public officer receiving such delinquent taxes, when and if such property may be redeemed or such tax obligations in any manner satisfied, shall remit such proportionate part of such tax levy to the state treasurer within fifteen days after receipt of same. At the end of each fiscal year the county accountant shall furnish the state treasurer a statement of the total amount of taxes levied in accordance with the provisions of this section, that are uncollected at the end of the fiscal year.

Whenever in any law or act of incorporation, granted either under the general law or by special act, there is any limitation or exemption of taxation, the same is hereby repealed, and all the property and effects of all such corporations, other than the bonds of this state and of the United States government, shall be liable to taxation, except property belonging to the United States and to municipal corporations, and property of churches, religious societies, charitable, educational, literary, or benevolent institutions or orders, and also cemeteries: Provided, that no property whatever, held or used for investment, speculation, or rent, shall be exempt, other than bonds of this state and of the United States government, unless said rent or the interest on or income from such investment shall be used exclusively for religious, charitable, educational, or benevolent purposes, or the interest upon the bonded indebtedness of said religious, charitable, or benevolent institutions. (1939, c. 158, s. 919.)

Cross Reference.—As to authorization for adjustment of claims for taxes arising pursuant to corresponding section of Public Laws of 1931, see Public Laws 1939, c. 206.

Editor's Note.—See 12 N. C. Law Rev. 23.

§ 105-249. Free privilege licenses for blind people.—Any blind person of the age of twenty-one years or more, desiring to operate a legitimate business of any kind to provide a livelihood for himself and dependents, if any, may apply to the welfare officer of the county in which he resides for free privilege license.

No one shall be eligible to the benefits provided for in this section who is not a blind person (the term "blind person" shall for the purposes of this section be construed to mean one who has suffered the total loss of his eyesight, or whose eyesight is so impaired as to unfit the person applying for the benefits under this section to engage in any labor, profession, or ordinary work in competition with his fellowmen with any degree of success, and/or any person suffering with impaired visions likely to produce total blindness), or who has an income of any kind amounting to twelve hundred ($1200.00) dollars, or more net per annum, or whose husband or wife has an income of any kind amounting to twelve hundred ($1200.00) dollars or more net per annum.

It shall be the duty of the county commissioners upon receipt of application from anyone applying for the benefits under this section, to make a thorough investigation to determine whether or not the applicant is entitled to the privilege or other license as provided for in this section. When the commissioners are satisfied that the applicant is capable of operating the business for which said privilege or other license is asked and that he is a deserving person, the commissioners shall then present to the state license department a letter requesting necessary privilege or other license to operate the aforesaid business, and the state license department shall issue free of charge the license requested. The commissioners shall present to the county license department a letter requesting county privilege license necessary to operate the aforesaid business, and the county license department shall likewise issue free of charge the privilege license requested. The county commissioners shall also present, when necessary, to the municipal license department a letter requesting city privilege license necessary to operate aforesaid business, and the municipal license department shall issue free of charge privilege license requested: Provided, that the free privilege license of this section shall not apply to the sale of any kind of fireworks.

Any veteran of the United States armed forces to whom a privilege license was issued free under this section prior to one thousand nine hundred and forty-one shall be entitled to free privilege licenses hereunder so long as such veteran shall continue to be visually handicapped. (1933, c. 53; 1935, c. 162; 1939, c. 306; 1943, c. 122.)

Editor's Note.—The amendment of 1935 added the proviso at the end of the third paragraph.

The 1939 amendment directed that the words "or other" be inserted between the words "privilege" and "license" where they occur in lines five, nine, twelve and fourteen of what is the third paragraph of this section. Such words do not occur together in line fourteen, and hence the insertions were made in only lines five, nine and twelve. However, such words appear in several other lines of the section and it may have been the legislative intent to make insertions in such instances.

The 1943 amendment added the last paragraph.

§ 105-249.1. Members of armed forces and merchant marine exempt from license taxes and fees.—(a) License Taxes.—Any person serving in any branch of the armed forces of the United States or in the merchant marine during the period of such service shall be exempt from liability for any and all license taxes levied by the state or by any county or city in the state for the privilege of engaging in or carrying on any trade or profession in the state, which trade or profession such a person immediately prior to being called into such service was engaged in: Provided, that nothing herein contained shall relieve such person of any license tax for carrying on any trade or profession conducted through agents or employees or which is conducted in the name of and under the license of such person so entering into the service of the United States.

(b) License Fees.—Any person entering into the armed forces of the United States or in the merchant marine shall be during the period of such service exempt from paying any license fees to any licensing board or commission or to the state of North Carolina in which the payment of such license fees is by law required as a condition to the continuance of the privilege to engage in any trade or profession. Such a person upon being discharged from such service shall have all the rights and privileges to engage in such profession upon payment of such fees as may thereafter become due, to the same extent as though such activity had not been suspended during the period of such service. (1943, c. 438, ss. 1, 2.)

§ 105-250. Law applicable to foreign corporations.—All foreign corporations, and the officers and agents thereof, doing business in this state, shall be subject to all the liabilities and restrictions that are or may be imposed upon corporations of like character, organized under the laws of this state, and shall have no other or greater powers. (1939, c. 158, s. 920.)

§ 105-251. Information must be furnished. — Each company, firm, corporation, person, association, co-partnership, or public utility shall furnish the commissioner of revenue in the form of returns prescribed by him, all information required by law and all other facts and information in addition to the facts and information in this act specifically required to be given, which the commissioner of revenue may require to enable him to carry into effect the provisions of the laws which the said commissioner is required to administer, and shall make specific answers to all questions submitted by the commissioner of revenue. (1939, c. 158, s. 921.)

§ 105-252. Returns required.—Any company, firm, corporation, person, association, co-partnership, or public utility receiving from the commissioner of revenue any blanks, requiring information, shall cause them to be properly filled out so as to answer fully and correctly each question therein propounded, and in case it is unable to answer any question, it shall, in writing, give a good and sufficient reason for such failure.

The answers to such questions shall be verified under oath by such persons, or by the president, secretary, superintendent, general manager, principal accounting officer, partner, or agent, and returned to the commissioner of revenue at his office within the period fixed by the commissioner of revenue. (1939, c. 158, s. 922.)

§ 105-253. Personal liability of officers, trustees, or receivers.—Any officer, trustee, or receiver of any corporation required to file report with the commissioner of revenue, having in his custody funds of the corporation, who allows said funds to be paid out or distributed to the stockholders of said corporation without having satisfied the state board of assessment or commissioner of revenue for any state taxes which are due or have accrued, shall be personally responsible for the payment of said tax, and in addition thereto shall be subject to a penalty of not more than the amount of the tax, nor less than twenty-five per cent (25%) of such tax found to be due or accrued.

The secretary of state shall withhold the issuance of any certificate of dissolution to, or withdrawal of, any corporation, domestic or foreign, until the receipt by him of a notice from the commissioner of revenue to the effect that any such corporation has met the requirements with respect to reports and taxes required by this subchapter. (1939, c. 158, s. 923; 1941, c. 50, s. 10.)

Editor's Note.—The 1941 amendment added the paragraph at the end of this section.

§ 105-254. Blanks furnished by commissioner of revenue. — The commissioner of revenue shall cause to be prepared suitable blanks for carrying out the purposes of the laws which he is required to administer, and, on application, furnish such blanks to each company, firm, corporation, person, association, co-partnership, or public utility subject thereto. (1939, c. 158, s. 924.)

§ 105-255. Commissioner of revenue to keep records.—The commissioner of revenue shall keep books of account and records of collections of taxes as may be prescribed by the director of the budget; shall keep an assessment roll for the taxes levied, assessed, and collected under this subchapter, showing in same the name of each taxpayer, the amount of tax assessed against each, when assessed, the increase or decrease in such assessment; the penalties imposed and collected, and the total tax paid; and shall make monthly reports to the director of the budget and to the auditor and/or state treasurer of all collections of taxes on such forms as prescribed by the director of the budget. (1939, c. 158, s. 925.)

§ 105-256. Publication of statistics.—The commissioner of revenue shall prepare and publish annually statistics reasonably available, with respect to the operation of this subchapter, including amounts collected, classifications of taxpayers, income and exemptions, and such other facts as are deemed pertinent and valuable. (1939, c. 158, s. 926.)

§ 105-257. Report on system of other states. —The commissioner of revenue shall biennially make report to the general assembly, the said report to contain all available data that may be assembled by his department with respect to the tax laws and systems of this and other states, and making such recommendations as may be useful in improving the tax laws and system of this state. (1933, c. 88, s. 2.)

Editor's Note.—For the compiling of such report, outside assistance seems almost a necessity, in view of the present load of the Commissioner of Revenue. See 11 N. C. Law Rev. 250.

§ 105-258. Powers of commissioner of revenue; assistant commissioner may sign and verify pleadings, etc.—The commissioner of revenue, for the purpose of ascertaining the correctness of any return or for the purpose of making an estimate of the tax due by any taxpayer under this subchapter, shall have the power to examine or cause to be examined, by any agent or representative designated by him for that purpose, any books, papers, records, or memoranda bearing upon the matters required to be included in the return, and may require the attendance of the taxpayer or of any other person having knowledge in the premises, and may take testimony and require proof material for his information, and may administer oaths to such person or persons.

In any action, proceeding, or matter of any kind, to which the commissioner of revenue is a party or in which he may have an interest, all pleadings, legal notices, proofs of claim, warrants for collection, certificates of tax liability, executions, and other legal documents may be signed and verified by the assistant commissioner on behalf of the commissioner. (1939, c. 158, s. 927; 1943, c. 400, s. 9.)

Editor's Note.—The 1943 amendment added the second paragraph.

§ 105-259. Secrecy required of officials—penalty for violation.—Except in accordance with proper judicial order, or as otherwise provided by law, it shall be unlawful for the commissioner of revenue, any deputy, agent, clerk, other officer, employee, or former officer or employee, to divulge and make known in any manner the amount of income, income tax or other taxes, set forth or disclosed in any report or return required under this subchapter.

Nothing in this section shall be construed to prohibit the publication of statistics, so classified as to prevent the identification of particular reports or returns, and the items thereof; the inspection of such reports or returns by the governor, attorney general, or their duly authorized representative; or the inspection by a legal representative of the state of the report or return of any taxpayer who shall bring an action to set aside or review the tax based thereon, or against whom an action or proceeding has been instituted to recover any tax or penalty imposed by this subchapter; nor shall the provisions of this section prohibit the department of revenue furnishing information to other governmental agencies, of persons and firms properly licensed under Schedule B, §§ 105-33 to 105-113. The department of revenue may exchange information with the officers of organized associations of taxpayers under Schedule B, §§ 105-33 to 105-113, with respect to parties liable for such taxes and as to parties who have paid such license taxes.

Reports and returns shall be preserved for three years, and thereafter until the commissioner of revenue shall order the same to be destroyed.

Any person, officer, agent, clerk, employee, or former officer or employee violating the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and fined not less than two hundred dollars ($200.00) nor more than one thousand dollars ($1,000.00) and/or imprisoned, in the discretion of the court; and if such offending person be an officer or employee of the state, he shall be dismissed from such office or employment, and shall not hold any public office or employment in this state for a period of five years thereafter.

Notwithstanding the provisions of this section, the commissioner of revenue may permit the commissioner of internal revenue of the United States, or the revenue officer of any other state imposing any of the taxes imposed in this subchapter, or the duly authorized representative of either, to inspect the report or return of any taxpayer; or may furnish such officer or his authorized agent an abstract of the report or return of any taxpayer; or supply such officer with information concerning any item contained in any report or return, or disclosed by the report of any investigation of such report or return of any taxpayer. Such permission, however, shall be granted or such information furnished to such officer, or his duly authorized representative, only if the statutes of the United States or of such other state grants substantially similar privilege to the commissioner of revenue of this state or his duly authorized representative. (1939, c. 158, s. 928.)

§ 105-260. Deputies and clerks.—The commissioner of revenue may appoint such deputies, clerks and assistants under his direction as may be necessary to administer the laws relating to the assessment and collection of all taxes provided for in this subchapter; may remove and discharge same at his discretion, and shall fix their compensation within the rules and regulations prescribed by law. (1939, c. 158, s. 929.)

§ 105-261. Commissioner and deputies to administer oaths.—The commissioner of revenue and such deputies as he may designate shall have the power to administer an oath to any person or to take the acknowledgment of any person in respect to any return or report required by this subchapter or under the rules and regulations of the commissioner of revenue, and shall have access to all the books and records of any person, firm, corporation, county, or municipality in this state. (1939, c. 158, s. 930.)

§ 105-262. Rules and regulations.—The commissioner of revenue may, from time to time, make, prescribe, and publish such rules and regulations, not inconsistent with this subchapter, as may be needful to enforce its provisions. (1939, c. 158, s. 931.)

§ 105-263. Time for filing reports extended.—The commissioner of revenue, when he deems the same necessary or advisable, may extend to any person, firm, or corporation or public utility a further specified time within which to file any report required by law to be filed with the commissioner of revenue, in which event the attaching or taking effect of any penalty for failure to file such report or to pay any tax or fee shall be extended or postponed accordingly. Interest at the rate of six per cent (6%) per annum from the time the report or return was originally required to be filed to the time of payment shall be added to and paid with any tax that might be due on returns so extended. (1939, c. 158, s. 932.)

§ 105-264. Construction of the subchapter; population.—It shall be the duty of the commissioner of revenue to construe all sections of this subchapter imposing either license, franchise, inheritance, income, or other taxes. Such decisions by the commissioner of revenue shall be prima facie correct, and a protection to the officers and taxpayers affected thereby. Where the license tax is graduated in this subchapter according to the population, the population shall be the number of inhabitants as determined by the last census of the United States government: Provided, that if any city or town in this state has extended its limits since the last census period, and thereafter has taken a census of its population in these increased limits by an official enumeration, either through the aid of the United States government or otherwise, the population thus ascertained shall be that upon which the license tax is to be graduated. (1939, c. 158, s. 933.)

Authority of Commissioner to Construe.—The Commissioner of Revenue is given authority to administratively construe, in the first instance, all sections of the revenue law. Powell v. Maxwell, 210 N. C. 211, 186 S. E. 326.

Stated in Clark v. Greenville, 221 N. C. 255, 20 S. E. (2d) 56.

§ 105-265. Authority for imposition of tax.— This subchapter shall constitute authority for the imposition of taxes upon the subject herein revised, and all laws in conflict with it are hereby repealed, but such repeal shall not affect taxes listed or which ought or should have been listed, or which may have been due, or penalties or fines incurred from failure to make the proper reports, or to pay the taxes at the proper time under any of the schedules of existing law, but such taxes and penalties may be collected, and criminal offenses prosecuted under such law existing on March 24, 1939, notwithstanding this repeal. (1939, c. 158, s. 935.)

§ 105-266. Overpayment of taxes to be refunded with interest. — If the commissioner of revenue discovers from the examination of any return, or otherwise, that any taxpayer has overpaid the correct amount of tax (including penalties, interests and costs, if any), such overpayment shall be refunded to the taxpayer within sixty days after it is ascertained together with interest thereon at the rate of six per cent (6%) per annum: Provided, that interest on any such refund shall be computed from a date ninety (90) days after date tax was originally paid by the taxpayer: Provided, further, that demand for such refund is made by the taxpayer within three years from the date of such overpayment. (1939, c. 158, s. 937; 1941, c. 50, s. 10.)

Editor's Note.—The 1941 amendment added the second proviso.

§ 105-267. Taxes to be paid; suits for recovery of taxes. — No court of this state shall entertain a suit of any kind brought for the purpose of preventing the collection of any tax imposed in this subchapter. Whenever a person shall have a valid defense to the enforcement of the collection of a tax assessed or charged against him or his property, such person shall pay such tax to the proper officer, and notify such officer in writing that he pays same under protest. Such payment shall be without prejudice to any defense of rights he may have in the premises, and he may, at any time within thirty days after such payment, demand the same in writing from the commissioner of revenue of the state, if a state tax, or if a county, city, or town tax, from the treasurer thereof for the benefit or under the authority or by request of which the same was levied; and if the same shall not be refunded within ninety days thereafter, may sue such official in the courts of the state for the amount so demanded. Such suit, if against the state commissioner of revenue, must be brought in the superior court of Wake county, or in the county in which the taxpayer resides, if the sum demanded is upwards of two hundred dollars ($200.00), and if for two hundred dollars ($200.00) or less, before any state court of competent jurisdiction in Wake county. If for a county, city or town tax, suit must be brought in a state court of competent jurisdiction in the county where the tax is collectible, and the defendant official has his official residence. If upon the trial it shall be determined that such tax or any part thereof was levied or assessed for an illegal or unauthorized purpose, or was for any reason invalid or excessive, judgment shall be rendered therefor, with interest, and the same shall be collected as in other cases. The amount of state taxes for which judgment shall be rendered in such action shall be refunded by the state. (1939, c. 158, s. 936.)

Cross References.—As to refund of taxes illegally collected, see § 105-407 and note thereto. For similar provision, see § 105-406, which seems to have been superseded by this section.

Editor's Note.—See 12 N. C. Law Rev. 23.

Since a debtor may direct application of payment, and if neither debtor nor creditor makes application before institution of suit, the law will apply a payment to the unsecured or most precariously secured debt, when a taxpayer makes anticipatory payment not under protest, and thereafter pays under protest the balance of the taxes levied against his property, in his action under this section, to recover the taxes the entire amount paid under protest may be recovered when unlawful levies equal such amount, and the recovery will not be limited to the proportionate part which the unlawful levies bear to the entire tax levy, since it will not be presumed that the county intended to make an unlawful levy or that the taxpayer intended to pay tax illegally levied. Nantahala Power, etc., Co. v. Clay County, 213 N. C. 698, 197 S. E. 603.

To Recover Tax Illegally Collected Statutory Procedure Must Be Complied with.—In order for a taxpayer to avoid the payment of a tax claimed by him to have been illegally assessed by the State, he must comply with the procedure provided in the statute and where the statute specifies that he must pay the tax to the proper officer and notify him in writing that he pays under protest, and at any time within thirty days demand its refund from the State Commissioner in writing, and if not refunded in ninety days, bring action to recover the amount, the remedy given must be followed in order for the taxpayer to recover the amount, and the failure of the taxpayer to make the demand required until nearly two years after the payment of the tax is fatal; section 105-407, requiring the State Auditor to issue his warrant in certain instances, has no application. Bunn v. Maxwell, 199 N. C. 557, 155 S. E. 250.

In an action under the Revenue Act of 1933 it was held that an allegation that the tax was paid under compulsion was a mere conclusion of the pleader, and a demurrer of the Commissioner of Revenue was sustained. Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Distributing Corp. v. Maxwell, 209 N. C. 47, 182 S. E. 724.

Suit in Equity.—The remedy provided by this section cannot, in case of a class suit instituted in behalf of a large number of taxpayers, be deemed an adequate remedy as compared with the suit in equity which eliminates so much useless and cumbersome litigation. Gramling v. Maxwell, 52 F. (2d) 256, 261.

A suit in equity to enjoin the collection of state tax, alleged to be violative of the Fourteenth Amendment on the ground of an arbitrary and excessive assessment, will not lie in the federal court, since the plaintiff has a plain, adequate, and complete remedy at law by first paying the tax and then suing to recover it. Catholic Society, etc. v. Madison County, 74 F. (2d) 848, 850.

Section Provides Adequate Remedy at Law.—A suit to enjoin the collection of the photographer's tax imposed by § 105-41 was held not maintainable as there is an adequate remedy at law under the provisions of this section. Lucas v. Charlotte, 14 F. Supp. 163.

Editor's Note.—For an analysis of this section, see 13 N. C. Law Rev. 405.

§ 105-269. Extraterritorial authority to enforce payment.—The commissioner of revenue, with the assistance of the attorney general, is hereby empowered to bring suits in the courts of other states to collect taxes legally due this state. The officials of other states which extend a like comity to this state are empowered to sue for the collection of such taxes in the courts of this state. A certificate by the secretary of state, under the Great Seal of the state, that such officers have authority to collect the tax shall be conclusive evidence of such authority. Art. 10. Liability for Failure to Levy Taxes.

§ 105-270. Repeal of laws imposing liability upon governing bodies of local units.—All laws and clauses of laws, statutes and parts of statutes, imposing civil or criminal liability upon the governing bodies of local units, or the members of such governing bodies, for failure to levy or to vote for the levy of any particular tax or rate of tax for any particular purpose, are hereby repealed, and said governing bodies and any and all members thereof are hereby freed and released from any civil or criminal liability heretofore imposed by any law or statute for failure to levy or to vote for the levy of any particular tax or tax rate for any particular purpose. (1933, c. 418.)

Applied in State v. Davis, 214 N. C. 787, 199 S. E. 927, treated under § 18-1.

Article 12. State Board of Assessment.

§ 105-273. Creation; officers.—The director of the department of tax research, the commissioner of revenue, the chairman of the public utilities commission, the attorney general, and the director of local government are hereby created the state board of assessment with all the powers and duties prescribed in the subchapter. The director of the department of tax research shall be the chairman of the said board, and shall, in addition to presiding at the meetings of the board, exercise the functions, duties, and powers of the board when not in session. The board may employ an executive secretary, whose entire time may be given to the work of the said board, and is authorized to employ such clerical assistance as may be needed for the performance of its duties; all expenses of said board shall be paid out of funds appropriated out of the general fund to the credit of the department of revenue of the state. (1939, c. 310, s. 200; 1941, c. 327, s. 6.)

Cross Reference.—As to Department of Tax Research, see §§ 105-450 to 105-457.

Editor's Note.—The 1941 amendment, which substituted the above in lieu of the former section, is effective as of July 1, 1941.

Suits against State Board of Assessment.—The corporation commission (under the prior law constituting the board) acts as a body and in a corporate capacity and an action or proceeding to compel that body to perform its ministerial duties must be brought against it in that capacity and not against its members, for its functions are not individual or personal, but corporate. Hence, mandamus to compel the refund of taxes alleged to have been paid under an excessive valuation of property will not be against two of the commissioners as individuals. Jenkins Bros. Shoe Co. v. Travis, 168 N. C. 599, 84 S. E. 1036. This would seem to be applicable to the board as now constituted.

Cited in Catholic Society, etc. v. Madison County, 74 F. (2d) 848.

§ 105-274. Oath of office.—The members of the board shall take and subscribe to the constitutional oath of office and file the same with the secretary of state. (1939, c. 310, s. 201.)

Cross Reference.—As to form of oath, see § 11-7.

Cited in Catholic Society, etc. v. Madison County, 74 F. (2d) 848, 849.

§ 105-275. Duties of the board. — The state board of assessment shall exercise general and specific supervision of the systems of valuation and taxation throughout the state, including counties and municipalities, and in addition it shall be and constitute a state board of equalization and review of valuation and taxation in this state. It shall be the duty of said board:

(1) To confer with and advise boards of county commissioners, tax supervisors, assessing officers, list takers, and all others engaged in the valuation and assessment of property, in the preparation and keeping of suitable records, and in the levying and collection of taxes and revenues, as to their duties under this subchapter or any other act passed with respect to valuation of property, assessing, levying or collection of revenue for counties, municipalities and other subdivisions of the state, to insure that proper proceedings shall be brought to enforce the statutes pertaining to taxation and for the collection of penalties and liabilities imposed by law upon public officers, officers of corporations, and individuals failing, refusing or neglecting to comply with this subchapter; and to call upon the attorney general or any prosecuting attorney in the state to assist in the execution of the powers herein conferred.

(2) To prepare a pamphlet or booklet for the instruction of the boards of county commissioners, tax supervisors, assessing officers, list takers, and all others engaged in the valuation of property, preparing and keeping records, and in the levying and collecting of taxes and revenue, and have the same ready for distribution at least thirty (30) days prior to the date fixed for listing taxes. The said pamphlet or booklet shall, in as plain terms as possible, explain the proper meaning of this subchapter and the revenue laws of this state; shall call particular attention to any points in the law or in the administration of the laws which may be or which have been overlooked or neglected; shall advise as to the practical working of the revenue laws and the Machinery Act, and shall explain and interpret any points that seem to be intricate and upon which county or state officers may differ.

(3) To hear and to adjudicate appeals from boards of county commissioners and county boards of equalization and review as to property liable for taxation that has not been assessed or of property that has been fraudulently or improperly assessed through error or otherwise, to investigate the same, and if error, inequality, or fraud is found to exist, to take such proceedings and to make such orders as to correct the same. In case it shall be made to appear to the state board of assessment that any tax list or assessment roll in any county in this state is grossly irregular, or any property is unlawfully or unequally assessed as between individuals, between sections of a county, or between counties, the said board shall correct such irregularities, inequalities and lack of uniformity, and shall equalize and make uniform the valuation thereof upon complaint by the board of county commissioners under rules and regulations prescribed by it, not inconsistent with this subchapter: Provided, that no appeals shall be considered or fixed values changed unless notice of same is filed within sixty (60) days after the final values are fixed and determined by the board of county commissioners or the board of equalization and review, as hereinafter provided: Provided, further, that each taxpayer or ownership interest shall file separate and distinct appeals; no joint appeals shall be considered except by and with consent of the state board of assessment.

(4) To require from the register of deeds, auditor, county accountant, tax clerk, clerk of the court or other officer of each county, and the mayor, clerk or other officer of each municipality, on forms prepared and prescribed by the said board, such annual and other reports as shall enable said board to ascertain the assessed valuation of all property listed for taxation in this state under this or any other act, the rate and amount of taxes assessed and collected, the amount returned delinquent, tax sales, certificates of purchase at such tax sales held by the state, county or municipality, and such other information as the board may require, to the end that it may have full, complete, and accurate statistical information as to the practical operation of the tax and revenue laws of the state.

(5) To require the secretary of state, and it shall be his duty, to furnish monthly to the said board a list of all domestic corporations incorporated, charter amended or dissolved, all foreign corporations domesticated, charter amended, dissolved or domestication withdrawn during the preceding month, in such detail as may be prescribed by said board.

(6) To make diligent investigation and inquiry concerning the revenue laws and systems of taxation of other states, so far as the same are made known by published reports and statistics and can be ascertained by correspondence with officers thereof.

(7) To report to the general assembly at each regular session, or at such other times as it may direct, the total amount of revenue or taxes collected in this state for state, county, and municipal purposes, classified as to state, county, township, and municipality, with the sources thereof; to report to the general assembly the proceedings of the board and such other information and recommendations concerning the public revenues as required by the general assembly or that may be of public interest; to cause two thousand copies of said report to be printed on or before the first day of January in the year of the regular session of the general assembly, and place at the disposal of the state librarian one hundred (100) copies of said report for distribution and exchange, if and when funds are available for said purpose; and to forward a copy of said report to each member of the general assembly as soon as printed.

(8) To discharge such other duties as may be prescribed by law, and take such action, do such things, and prescribe such rules and regulations as may be needful and proper to enforce the provisions of this subchapter and the Revenue Act.

(9) To prepare for the legislative committee of succeeding general assemblies such suggestions of revision of the revenue laws, including the Machinery Act, as it may find by experience, investigation, and study to be expedient and wise.

(10) To report to the governor, on or before the first day of January of each year, the proceedings of said board during the preceding year, with such recommendations as it desires to submit with respect to any matters touching taxation and revenue.

(11) To keep full, correct and accurate records of its official proceedings.

(12) To properly administer the duties prescribed by Schedule H, §§ 105-198 to 105-217, with respect to division and certification of taxes collected thereunder; the state board of assessment shall hear and pass upon any matters relative thereto.

(13) To perform the duties imposed upon it with respect to the classification and assessment of property. (1939, c. 310, s. 202.)

Unless the land is properly listed for taxation, it is not subject to sale by the sheriff for non-payment of taxes. Stone v. Phillips, 176 N. C. 457, 97 S. E. 375.

Where Entry Copied from Former Tax Book.—In Rexford v. Phillips, 159 N. C. 213, 74 S. E. 213, neither the owner nor his agent had given in the land, and list taker had copied the entry from the former tax book, and it was held that the land was not rightfully on the tax list, and a sale for taxes pursuant thereto was invalid. This case is discussed with approval in the Stone case, supra.—Ed. Note.

Review of Assessment. — Under the prior law original proceedings before the State Board of Assessment to have the value of property reduced for taxation will be disregarded and considered as a nullity when the question involved is solely as to whether such value theretofore fixed and agreed upon be reduced. Caldwell County v. Doughton, 195 N. C. 62, 141 S. E. 289.

Appeal from Assessment—Sufficiency of Board's Report.—The method provided by statute for assessment and appeal from the assessment must be followed. In the instant case the Board reported results of the appraisement and did not report the individual items upon which the appraisement was made, and the appraisement of the value of the stock held in a foreign corporation was not so separated from the other property as to permit a variation of this rule. Manufacturing Co. v. Commissioners of Pender, 196 N. C. 744, 147 S. E. 284.

Applied in Catholic Society, etc. v. Madison County, 74 F. (2d) 848.

§ 105-276. Powers of the board.—To the end that the board may properly discharge the duties placed upon it by law, it is hereby accorded the following powers:

(1) It may, in its discretion, prescribe the forms, books, and records that shall be used in the valuation of property and in the levying and collection of taxes, and how the same shall be kept; to require the county tax supervisors, clerks or boards of county commissioners, or auditor of each county to file with it, when called for, complete abstracts of all real and personal property in the county, itemized by townships and as equalized by the county board of equalization and review; and to make such other rules and regulations, not included in this subchapter or the Revenue Act, as said board may deem needful effectually to promote the purposes for which the board is constituted and the systems of taxation provided for in this and the Revenue Act.

(2) The board, its members or any duly authorized deputy shall have access to all books, papers, documents, statements, records and accounts on file or of records in any department of state, county or municipality, and is authorized and empowered to subpoena witnesses upon a subpoena signed by the chairman of the board, directed to such witnesses, and to be served by any officer authorized to serve subpoenas; to compel the attendance of witnesses by attachment to be issued by any superior court upon proper showing that such witness or witnesses have been duly subpoenaed and have refused to obey such subpoena or subpoenas; and to examine witnesses under oath to be administered by any member or authorized agent of the board.

(3) The board, its members or any duly authorized deputy are authorized and empowered to examine all books, papers, records or accounts of persons, firms and corporations, domestic and foreign, owning property liable to assessment for taxes, general or specific, levied by this state or its subdivisions. Said board, its members or any duly authorized deputy are also given power and authority to examine the books, papers, records or accounts of any person, firm or corporation where there is ground for believing that information contained in such books, papers, records and accounts is pertinent to the decision of any matter pending before said board, regardless of whether such person, firm or corporation is a party to the proceeding before the board. Books, papers, records or accounts examined under authority of this subdivision of this section shall be examined only after service of a proper subpoena, signed by the chairman of the board and served by an officer authorized to serve subpoenas upon the person having the custody of such books, papers, records or accounts.

Any person, persons, member of a firm, or any officer, director or stockholder of a corporation, bank or trust company who shall refuse permission to inspect any books, papers, documents, statements, accounts or records demanded by the state board of assessment, the members thereof, or any duly authorized deputy provided for in this subchapter or the Revenue Act, or who shall willfully fail, refuse, or neglect to appear before said board in response to its subpoena or to testify as provided for in this subchapter and the Revenue Act, shall, in addition to all other penalties imposed in this subchapter or the Revenue Act, be guilty of a misdemeanor and fined and/or imprisoned in the discretion of the court.

(4) The board is authorized and empowered to direct any member or members of the board to hear complaints, to make examinations and investigations, and to report his or their findings of fact and conclusions of law to the board. Upon demand of any party to an appeal pending before the board, the board shall send one of its members or a special representative designated by it to make an actual examination of the property and other similar property in the same county and report to the board. The cost of making said examination shall be advanced by the county: Provided, that in cases in which the examination is demanded by a taxpayer, if the board's decision does not substantially affirm the contentions of the taxpayer, the board in its decision shall direct that the county advancing the cost may add such cost to the taxes levied against the property.

(5) The board shall have power to certify copies of its records and proceedings, attested with its official seal, and copies of records or proceedings so certified shall be received in evidence in all courts in this state with like effect as certified copies of other public records.

(6) The board may, upon its own motion or upon request of any tax supervisor or county board of commissioners, transmit or make available to a supervisor or duly authorized representative of such board of commissioners any information contained in any report to said state board, or in any report to the department of revenue or other state department to which said state board may have access, or any other information which said state board may have in its possession when, in the opinion of said board, such information will assist said supervisor or representative of the commissioners in securing an adequate listing of property for taxation or in assessing taxable property.

Except as herein specified, and except to the governor or his authorized agent or solicitor or authorized agent of the solicitor of a district in which such information would affect the listing or valuation of property for taxes, the state board shall not divulge or make public the reports made to it or to other state departments: Provided, this shall not interfere with the publication of assessments and decisions made by said board or with publication of statistics by said board; nor shall it prevent presentation of such information in any administrative or judicial proceedings involving assessments or decisions of said board.

Information transmitted or made available to local tax authorities under this section shall not be divulged or published by such authorities, and shall be used only for the purposes of securing adequate tax lists, assessing taxable property and presentation in administrative or judicial proceedings involving such lists or assessments.

(7) The board is authorized to exercise all powers reasonably necessary to perform the duties imposed upon it by this subchapter or other acts of this state. (1939, c. 310, s. 203.)

§ 105-277. Sessions of board, where to be held.—The regular sessions of the state board of assessment shall be held in the city of Raleigh at the office of the chairman, and other sessions may be called at any place in the state to be decided by the board. (1939, c. 310, s. 204.)

Art. 13. Quadrennial and Annual Assessment.

§ 105-278. Listing and assessing in quadrennial years.—In one thousand nine hundred forty-one, and quadrennially thereafter, all property, real and personal, subject to taxation, shall be listed and assessed for ad valorem tax purposes: Provided, that in one thousand nine hundred forty-one, and quadrennially thereafter, the county boards of commissioners may determine whether real property in the respective counties and townships shall be revalued by horizontal increase or reduction or by actual appraisal thereof, or both. Where the horizontal method is used, the provisions of § 105-279 shall also apply: Provided, that the boards of county commissioners of the various counties of the State may, in their discretion, defer or postpone the revaluation and reassessment of real property required herein in the year one thousand nine hundred and forty-one, and all proceedings and actions heretofore taken by said board of county commissioners in any county in the State as to postponement, or as to increases or reductions or by actual appraisal thereof, are hereby in all respects ratified, validated, and confirmed; any such board of county commissioners may, in its discretion, defer or postpone any such revaluation, reassessment, or reappraisal for the years one thousand nine hundred and forty-two and one thousand nine hundred and forty-three. But this second proviso shall not apply to any county for which a revaluation board of assessors or a board of equalization and review has been created or provided for by any act of the General Assembly of one thousand nine hundred and forty-one. Provided, further, that if the board of commissioners of any county shall neglect to provide for a general revaluation of all real property in the county in any revaluation year, such neglect shall not have the effect of invalidating existing valuations and tax levies. (1939, c. 310, s. 300; 1941, c. 282, ss. 1, 1½; 1943, c. 634, s. 1.)

Local Modification.—Ashe, Rowan: 1941, c. 282, s. 2.

Editor's Note.—The 1941 amendment added the second proviso. The amendment further provided that it shall not repeal or affect any public-local or private act of the general assembly of 1941.

For comment on the 1941 amendment, see 19 N. C. Law Rev. 525.

The 1943 amendment added the proviso at the end of the section.

Deferring Revaluation.—Under the 1941 amendment to this section the commissions of a county are authorized to defer the revaluation due to be made in the year 1941 to the year 1942, or to any year prior to the revaluation due to be made in the year 1945. Moore v. Sampson County, 220 N. C. 232, 17 S. E. (2d) 22.

§ 105-279. Listing and assessing in years other than quadrennial years.—In the year one thousand nine hundred thirty-nine and in other than quadrennial years all property, real and personal, subject to taxation, shall be listed for ad valorem tax purposes. Property not subject to reassessment in such years shall be listed at the value at which it was assessed at the last quadrennial assessment. In all such years the following property shall be assessed or reassessed:

(1) All personal property (which for purposes of taxation shall include all personal property whatsoever, tangible or intangible, except personal property expressly exempted by law).

(2) All machinery, service station equipment, merchandise and trade fixtures, barber shop equipment, meat market equipment, restaurant and cafe fixtures, drug store equipment and similar property not permanently affixed to the real estate.

(3) All real property (which for purposes of taxation shall include all lands within the state and all buildings and fixtures thereon and appurtenances thereto) which:

(a) Was not assessed at the last quadrennial assessment.

(b) Has increased in value to the extent of more than one hundred dollars ($100.00) by virtue of improvements or appurtenances added since the last assessment of such property.

(c) Has decreased in value to the extent of more than one hundred dollars ($100.00) by virtue of improvements or appurtenances damaged, destroyed or removed since the last assessment of such property.

(d) Has increased or decreased in value since the last assessment of such property by virtue of some extraordinary circumstances, such circumstances being those of unusual occurrence in trade or business, and the facts in connection with which shall be found by the board of equalization in each case and entered upon the proceedings of said board.

(e) Has been subdivided into lots located on streets already laid out and open, and sold or offered for sale as lots, since the date of the last assessment of such property. This shall apply to all cases of subdivision into lots, regardless of whether the land is situated within or without an incorporated municipality: Provided, that where lands have been subdivided into lots, and more than five acres of any such subdivision remain unsold by the owner thereof, the unsold portion may be listed as land acreage, in the discretion of the tax supervisor.

(f) Was last assessed at an improper figure as the result of a clerical error.

(g) Was last assessed at a figure which manifestly is unjust by comparison with the assessment placed upon similar property in the county: Provided, that the power to reassess under this subdivision shall be exercised only by the board of equalization and review, subject to appeal to the state board of assessment. (1939, c. 310, s. 301.)

§ 105-280. Date as of which assessment is to be made.—All property, real and personal, shall be listed or listed and assessed, as the case may be, in accordance with ownership and value as of the first day of April, one thousand nine hundred thirty-nine, and thereafter all property shall be listed or listed and assessed in accordance with ownership and value as of the first day of January each year. (1939, c. 310, s. 302.)

When Lien Attaches.—The lien for taxes attaches to realty on the first day of April of each year, the date on which land is required to be listed in the name of the owner. Bemis Hardwood Lbr. Co. v. Graham County, 214 N. C. 167, 198 S. E. 843.

§ 105-281. Property subject to taxation.—All property, real and personal, within the jurisdiction of the state, not especially exempted, shall be subject to taxation. (1939, c. 310, s. 303.)

Editor's Note.—For cases construing former § 7971(18), now repealed, which defined what should be included as personal property see Lawrence v. Shaw, 210 N. C. 352, 361, 186 S. E. 504; Mecklenburg County v. Sterchi Bros. Stores, 210 N. C. 79, 185 S. E. 454.

Taxation of Personal Property of Nonresidents Is Constitutional.—The taxation of personal property of nonresidents by this state when such personal property has acquired a taxable situs here does not violate the provisions of the 14th Amendment of the Federal Constitution, the rule that personal property follows the domicile of the owner being subject to an exception when such personalty is held in such a manner as to create a "business situs" for the purpose of taxation. Mecklenburg County v. Sterchi Bros. Stores, 210 N. C. 79, 185 S. E. 454, construing former § 7971(18), now repealed.

§ 105-282. Article subordinate to sections 105-198 to 105-217.—None of the provisions contained in any of the sections of this article shall be construed to conflict with Schedule H, §§ 105-198 to 105-217, but rather shall they be subordinate thereto. (1939, c. 310, s. 304.)

Art. 14. Personnel for County Tax Listing and Assessing.

§ 105-283. Appointment and qualifications of tax supervisors.—At or before the regular meeting next preceding the date as of which property is to be listed and assessed, the board of county commissioners of each county shall appoint as tax supervisor some person who shall be a freeholder in the county, who shall for one year immediately preceding the appointment, have been a resident of the county, and whose experience in the valuation of real and personal property is satisfactory to the board.

In counties in which there is an auditor, tax clerk, county accountant, all-time chairman of the board of county commissioners, or other similar officer, either may be designated as supervisor by the board of county commissioners. (1939, c. 310, s. 400.)

§ 105-284. Term of office and compensation of supervisors.—The tax supervisor shall serve for one year or for such shorter period of time as the board may designate. In the case he is appointed for one year, he shall serve until his successor is appointed and has qualified, subject to removal for cause by the board of commissioners at any time. Any vacancy shall be filled by appointment by the board of commissioners.

The compensation of the supervisor shall be fixed by the board of commissioners, and he shall be allowed such expenses as the commissioners may approve. (1939, c. 310, s. 401.)

§ 105-285. Oath of office of supervisor.—Immediately after his appointment, and before entering upon the duties of his office, the supervisor shall file with the clerk of the board of commissioners the following oath, subscribed and sworn to before the chairman of the board of commissioners or some other officer qualified to administer oaths:

"I, ..., County Tax Supervisor for ..... County, North Carolina, for the year ....., do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I will discharge the duties of my office as supervisor according to the laws in force governing such office; so help me, God.

§ 105-286. Powers and duties of tax supervisor.—(1) The supervisor shall have general charge of the listing and assessing of all property in the county in accordance with the provisions of law.

(2) He shall appoint the list takers and assessors, subject to the approval of the commissioners, as hereinafter provided.

(3) He shall, on the second Monday preceding the date as of which property is to be assessed or at some time during the week which includes said Monday, convene the list takers and assessors for general consideration of methods of securing a complete list of all property in the county, and of assessing, in accordance with law, all property which is to be assessed during the approaching listing period.

(4) He shall visit each list taker at least once during the period of listing, and shall confer with each list taker during said period as often as he or the list taker deems necessary, to the end that all property shall be listed and assessed according to law, and that assessments shall be equalized as between the various townships.

(5) He shall have power to subpoena any person for examination under oath and to subpoena any books, papers, records or accounts whenever he has reasonable grounds for the belief that such person has knowledge of such books, papers, records and accounts containing information which is pertinent to the discovery or the valuation of any property subject to taxation in the county, or which is necessary for compliance with the requirements as to what the tax list shall contain, hereinafter set forth. The subpoena shall be signed by the chairman of the county board of equalization and served by an officer qualified to serve subpoenas.

(6) He may require that any or all persons, firms and corporations, domestic and foreign, engaged in operating any business enterprise in the county shall submit, in connection with his or its regular tax list, a detailed inventory, statement of assets and liabilities, or other similar information pertinent to the discovery of valuation of property taxable in the county. Inventories, statements of assets and liabilities or other information not expressly required by this subchapter to be shown on the tax list itself, secured by the supervisor under the terms of this subdivision, shall not be open to public inspection.

Any supervisor or other official disclosing information so obtained, except as such disclosure may be necessary in listing or assessing property or in administrative or judicial proceedings relating to such listing or assessing, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and punishable by fine not exceeding fifty dollars ($50.00).

(7) He shall have power, for good cause, and prior to the first meeting of the board of equalization and review, to change the valuation placed upon any property by the list taker, provided such property is subject to assessment for the current year, and provided that notice of such change is given to the taxpayer prior to the meeting of said board.

(8) He shall perform such other duties as may be imposed upon him by law, and shall have and exercise all powers reasonably necessary in the performance of his duties, not inconsistent with the constitution or the laws of this state. (1939, c. 310, s. 403.)

§ 105-287. Appointment, qualifications, and number of list takers and assessors.—Subject to the approval of the county commissioners, the supervisor, on or before the second Monday preceding the date as of which property is to be assessed, shall appoint some competent person to act as list taker and assessor in each township. With the approval of the commissioners he may appoint more than one such person for any township in which is situated an incorporated town or part of an incorporated town. In quadrennial years three such persons shall be appointed in each township, and more than three may be appointed in townships in which is located an incorporated town or part of an incorporated town; and in such years, at the time of their appointment, such appointees shall have been resident freeholders of the county for at least twelve months: Provided, that in any county adopting the horizontal method of revaluations in one thousand nine hundred forty-one, and quadrennially thereafter, the commissioners may appoint less than three list takers and assessors per township: Provided, further, that in quadrennial years the board of county commissioners may appoint one list taker and assessor in each township if in addition thereto at least two county-wide list takers and assessors are appointed; or said board may appoint not more than three qualified assessors to assess all real estate in the county. In every year the persons appointed shall be persons of character and integrity, and shall have such experience in the valuation of types of property commonly owned in the county as shall satisfy the supervisor and the commissioners. (1939, c. 310, s. 404.)

§ 105-288. Term of office and compensation of list takers and assessors.—The list takers and assessors shall serve for such period as may be fixed by the commission. They shall receive for their services such compensation as the commissioners may fix. No list taker shall receive compensation until the supervisor has checked over the lists accepted by him, as hereinafter required, and certified that his work has been satisfactory. Each list taker shall make out his account in detail, specifying each day's services, which account shall be audited by the county accountant and approved by the commissioners. (1939, c. 310, s. 405.)

§ 105-289. Oath of list takers and assessors.—Before entering upon his duties each list taker and assessor shall take the following oath, which shall be filed with the clerk to the board of commissioners after having been subscribed and sworn to before some officer qualified to administer oaths:

"I, ..., List Taker and Assessor for ..... Township, ... County, North Carolina, do hereby solemnly swear (or affirm) that I will discharge the duties of my office according to the laws in force that govern said office; so help me, God.

§ 105-290. Powers and duties of list takers and assessors.—(1) At least ten days before the date as of which property is to be assessed, each list taker shall post, in five or more public places in his township, a notice containing at least the following: (a) The date as of which property is to be assessed; (b) the date on which listing will begin; (c) the date on which the listing will end; (d) the times and places between the last two dates mentioned at which lists will be accepted; (e) a notice that all persons who, on the date as of which property is to be assessed, own property subject to taxation must list such property within the period set forth in the notice, and that failure to do so will subject such persons to the penalties prescribed by law.

In townships in which more than one list taker has been appointed the posting of these notices shall be the duty of one of them, to be designated by the supervisor.

In case the period of listing in any township shall be extended by the commissioners, as hereinafter permitted, it shall be the duty of the list taker who first posted the notices to post new notices in the same places, giving notice of the extension and notice of the times and places at which lists will be accepted during the extended period.

(2) Each list taker shall attend the meeting referred to in subdivision three of § 105-286.

(3) The list takers and assessors, under the supervision of the supervisor, shall secure lists of all real and personal property and polls subject to taxation in their townships, and shall assess all such property as is subject to assessment under the provisions of this subchapter. To this end they shall secure from each taxpayer or person whose duty it is to list property or poll in their respective townships a list containing the information hereinafter specified, and shall have the authority to visit any such person or his property, to investigate the value of any such property, and to examine under oath any such person present before them for the purpose of listing property. The supervisor may, in his discretion, require any list taker and assessor to visit each person in his township whose property or poll is subject to taxation.

(4) Each list taker and assessor shall have power to subpoena any person for examination under oath whenever he has reasonable grounds for belief that such person has knowledge which is pertinent to the discovery or valuation of property subject to taxation in his township or which is necessary for compliance with the requirements, hereinafter set forth, as to what the tax list shall contain.

(5) The list takers and assessors shall perform such duties in connection with the making up of the tax records and in connection with the discovery of unlisted property as hereinafter specified.

(6) The list takers and assessors shall perform such other duties as may be by law imposed upon them; and they shall have and exercise all powers necessary to the proper discharge of their duties not inconsistent with the constitution or the statutes of this state. (1939, c. 310, s. 407.)

§ 105-291. Employment of experts.—The board of county commissioners in each county, at the request of the county supervisor of taxation, may in their discretion employ one or more persons having expert knowledge of the value of specific kinds or classes of property within the county, such as mines, factories, mills and other similar property, to aid and assist the county supervisor of taxation and the list takers and assessors in the respective townships, or to advise with, aid and assist the board of equalization and review in arriving at the true value in money of the property in the county. Such expert, or experts, so employed by the board of county commissioners shall receive for their services such compensation as the board of county commissioners shall designate. (1939, c. 310, s. 408.)

§ 105-292. Clerical assistants. — The county commissioners may, in their discretion, upon recommendation of the supervisor, employ such clerical assistants to the supervisor as they deem proper, and at such compensation and for such terms as they deem proper. Such assistants shall perform such duties as the commissioners or the supervisor may assign to them. (1939, c. 310, s. 409.)

§ 105-293. Tax commission.—In all counties having a tax commission, said commission shall do and perform all the duties required by this subchapter to be performed by county commissioners except levying taxes, and all expenses incurred by said tax commission or its appointees in accordance with this subchapter shall be paid by the county commissioners out of the general county funds. (1939, c. 310, s. 410.)

Art. 15. Classification, Valuation and Taxation of Property.

§ 105-294. Taxes to be on uniform ad valorem basis as to class.—All property, real and personal, shall as far as practicable, be valued at its true value in money, and taxes levied by all counties, municipalities and other local taxing authorities shall be levied uniformly on valuations so determined. The intent and purpose of this subchapter is to have all property and subjects of taxation assessed at their true and actual value in money, in such manner as such property and subjects are usually sold, but not by forced sale thereof, and the words "market value," "true value," or "cash value," whenever used in the tax laws of this state, shall be held to mean for what the property and subjects can be transmuted into cash when sold in such manner as such property and subjects are usually sold: Provided, nothing in this section shall be construed as conflicting with or modifying the provisions of Schedule H, §§ 105-198 to 105-217, or the provisions of this subchapter classifying other property.

It is hereby declared to be the policy of this state so to use its system of real estate taxation as to encourage the conservation of natural resources and the beautification of homes and roadsides, and all tax assessors are hereby instructed to make no increase in the tax valuation of real estate as a result of the owner's enterprise in adopting any one or more of the following progressive policies:

1. Planting and care of lawns, shade trees, shrubs and flowers for non-commercial purposes.
2. Repainting buildings.
3. Terracing or other methods of soil conservation, to the extent that they preserve values already existing.
4. Protection of forests against fire.
5. Planting of forest trees on vacant land for reforestation purposes (for ten years after such planting). (1939, c. 310, s. 500.)

§ 105-295. Land and buildings.—In determining the value of land the assessors shall consider as to each tract, parcel or lot separately listed at least its advantages as to location, quality of soil, quantity and quality of timber, water power, water privileges, mineral or quarry or other valuable deposits, fertility, adaptability for agricultural, commercial or industrial uses, the past income therefrom, its probable future income, the present assessed valuation, and any other factors which may affect its value.

In determining the value of a building the assessors shall consider at least its location, type of construction, age replacement cost, adaptability for residence, commercial or industrial uses, the past income therefrom, the probable future income, the present assessed value, and any other factors which may affect its value. Buildings partially completed shall be assessed in accordance with the degree of completion on the day as of which property is assessed. (1939, c. 310, s. 501.)

Art. 16. Exemptions and Deductions.

§ 105-296. Real property exempt.—The following real property, and no other, shall be exempted from taxation:

(1) Real property owned by the United States or this state, and real property owned by the state for the benefit of any general or special fund of the state, and real property lawfully owned and held by counties, cities, townships, or school districts, used wholly and exclusively for public or school purposes. The repeal of the exemption of real property indirectly owned by federal, state or local governments shall be effective for the tax year one thousand nine hundred and forty-three, and such property indirectly owned shall be placed upon the tax books for one thousand nine hundred and forty-three and subject to the tax rates levied on real estate in the year one thousand nine hundred and forty-three.

(2) Real property, tombs, vaults and mausoleums set apart for burial purposes, except such as are owned and held for purposes of sale or rental.

(3) Buildings, with the land upon which they are situated, lawfully owned and held by churches or religious bodies, wholly and exclusively used for religious worship or for the residence of the minister of any such church or religious body, together with the additional adjacent land reasonably necessary for the convenient use of any such building.

(4) Buildings, with the land actually occupied, wholly devoted to educational purposes, belonging to, actually and exclusively occupied and used for public libraries, colleges, academies, industrial schools, seminaries, or any other institutions of learning, together with such additional adjacent land owned by such libraries and educational institutions as may be reasonably necessary for the convenient use of such buildings, and also buildings thereon used as residences by the officers or instructors of such educational institutions.

(5) Real property belonging to, actually and exclusively occupied by Young Men's Christian Associations and other similar religious associations, orphanages, or other similar homes, hospitals and nunneries not conducted for profit, but entirely and completely as charitable.

(6) Buildings, with the land actually occupied, belonging to the American Legion or Post of the American Legion or any benevolent, patriotic, historical, or charitable association used exclusively for lodge purposes by said societies or associations, together with such additional adjacent land as may be necessary for the convenient use of the buildings thereon.

(7) The exemptions granted in subsections three, four, five, six and ten, of this section shall apply to real property of foreign religious, charitable, educational, literary, benevolent, patriotic or historical corporations, institutions or orders when such property is exclusively used for religious, charitable, educational or benevolent purposes within this state.

(8) The real property of Indians who are not citizens, except lands held by them by purchase.

(9) Real property falling within the provisions of § 55-11, appropriated exclusively for public parks and drives.

(10) Real property actually used for hospital purposes, including homes for nurses employed by or in training in such hospitals, held for or owned by hospitals organized and operated as non-stock, non-profit, charitable institutions, without profit to the members or their successors, notwithstanding that patients able to pay are charged for services rendered: Provided, all revenues or receipts of such hospitals shall be used, invested, or held for the purposes for which they are organized; and provided, further, that where hospital property is used partly for such hospital purposes and partly rented out for commercial and business purposes, then only such proportion of the value of such building and the land on which it is located shall be exempt from taxation as is actually used for such hospital purposes. The provisions of this section shall be effective as to taxes for the year one thousand nine hundred and thirty-six and subsequent years. (1939, c. 310, s. 600; 1941, c. 125, ss. 1, 2; 1943, c. 634, s. 2.)

Editor's Note.—The 1941 amendment added subsection (11) and inserted reference thereto in subsection (8). For comment on this amendment, see 19 N. C. Law Rev. 520.

The 1943 amendment rewrote subsection (1) and struck out former subsection (7). It also struck out the words "or the income therefrom is exclusively used for" formerly appearing after the word "for" in line six of subsection (7).

By an interpretation of Michie's Code of 1935, § 7971(17) which some thought to be unnecessarily literal, the court had held foreign eleemosynary corporations deprived of the exemptions otherwise granted to such organizations on property used in their work in the state. Catholic Soc. v. Gentry, 210 N. C. 579, 187 S. E. 795. The exemptions are now granted in specific terms by subsection (7) of this and the following section. 15 N. C. Law Rev. 391.

For article on exemption of property owned by the state and municipal corporations, see 16 N. C. Law Rev. 309.

Property Used for Religious, Charitable, etc., Purposes.—It is fundamental that the property of these institutions, to be exempt, must be used exclusively for the purposes enumerated, Southern Assembly v. Palmer, 166 N. C. 75, 82 S. E. 18, and the rents arising from such property must be so applied. Id. See also, United Brethren v. Commissioners, 115 N. C. 489, 20 S. E. 626.

The former exemptions contained in subsection (7), though broad enough in their terms to exempt business property owned by an educational institution and rented for offices and business purposes to private enterprises, the net profit derived therefrom being devoted exclusively to educational purposes, they were, when applied to the facts, beyond the scope of the constitutional grant of permissive power of exemption contained in Art. V, § 5 of the Constitution, and therefore the property was subject to ad valorem assessment and taxation. Rockingham County v. Board of Trustees, 219 N. C. 342, 13 S. E. (2d) 618.

Plaintiff association was empowered by its charter inter alia to hold real estate provided the profits therefrom, if any, were used for the benefit of widows and orphans of deceased members or for such charitable and benevolent purposes as it deemed necessary or expedient to the successful prosecution of its charter provisions. During the years 1934 through 1939 it owned a building in which it maintained its lodge rooms and rented the remainder of the building for use as offices and stores on the basis of a commercial enterprise and used the entire rents therefrom for repairs and the payment of the mortgage indebtedness on the building. Held: Since the building is held for business or commercial purposes it is subject to the assessment of ad valorem taxes of the city and county in which it is situate for the years in question. Same—Income from Solvent Credits.—The income from the solvent credits held by a religious society, if devoted and applied exclusively to educational, religious and charitable purposes, are exempt from taxation. United Brethren v. Commissioners, 115 N. C. 489, 20 S. E. 626.

Subsection eleven was made retroactive. Piedmont Memorial Hospital v. Guilford County, 221 N. C. 308, 314, 20 S. E. (2d) 332.

Property of Hospital Not Exempt.—The property of a hospital organized as a business corporation and charging all patients according to a fixed schedule is not exempt from taxation, under this section or those immediately following, although patients unable to pay were relieved of payment and classed as charity patients, and although its stockholders, though not waiving their right to dividends, did not expect to receive dividends when they subscribed for stock, and no dividends were paid thereon for the years for which taxes were assessed, the hospital not being a charitable corporation, nor its property used entirely for charitable purposes. Salisbury Hospital v. Rowan County 205 N. C. 8, 169 S. E. 805.

Land Adjacent to Church.—A lot purchased by trustees of a church for the purpose of erecting a new church, and pending the accumulation of sufficient funds to erect the new church, used exclusively for religious purposes, is properly adjacent to the church property and reasonably necessary for the convenient use of the church property within the meaning of subsection (3) exempting such property from taxation, even though the lot purchased, because of unavailability of adjoining land, is four or five blocks distant from the church, the word "adjacent" meaning lying close together but not necessarily in contact. Harrison v. Guilford County, 218 N. C. 718, 12 S. E. (2d) 269.

§ 105-297. Personal property exempt.—The following personal property, and no other, shall be exempt from taxation:

(1) Personal property, directly or indirectly owned by this state and by the United States, and that lawfully owned and held by the counties, cities, towns, and school districts of the state, used wholly and exclusively for county, city, town, or public school purposes.

(2) The furniture and furnishings of buildings lawfully owned and held by churches or religious bodies, wholly and exclusively used for religious worship or for the residence of the minister of any church or religious body, and private libraries of such ministers and the teachers of the public schools of this state.

(3) The furniture, furnishings, books, and instruments contained in buildings wholly devoted to educational purposes, belonging to and exclusively used by churches, public libraries, colleges, academies, industrial schools, seminaries, or other institutions.

(4) The endowment and invested funds of churches and other religious associations, charitable, educational, literary, benevolent, patriotic or historical institutions, associations or orders, when the interest or income from said funds shall be used wholly and exclusively for religious, charitable, educational or benevolent purposes, or to pay the principal or interest of the indebtedness of said associations.

(5) Personal property belonging to Young Men's Christian Associations and other similar religious associations, orphan and other similar homes, reformatories, hospitals, and nunneries which are not conducted for profit and entirely and completely used for charitable and benevolent purposes.

(6) The furniture, furnishings, and other personal property belonging to any American Legion, or Post of American Legion, patriotic, historical, or any benevolent or charitable association, when used wholly for lodge purposes and meeting rooms by said association or when such personal property is used for charitable or benevolent purposes.

(7) The exemptions granted in subsections two, three, four, five, six and eleven of this section shall apply to personal property of foreign religious, charitable, educational, literary, benevolent, patriotic or historical corporations, institutions or orders when such property is exclusively used or the income therefrom is exclusively used for religious, charitable, educational or benevolent purposes within this state.

(8) Wearing apparel, household and kitchen furniture, the mechanical and agricultural instruments of farmers and mechanics, libraries and scientific instruments, provisions and live stock, not exceeding the total value of three hundred dollars ($300.00), and all growing crops: Provided, that said three hundred dollars ($300.00) exemption shall be limited to: (1) each household, consisting of the head of the household and all the dependents, one three hundred dollars ($300.00) exemption to be distributed among the members of the household as they see fit; and (2) each single person, not residing with persons on whom he is dependent, as to eligible property actually owned by him.

(9) The intangible personal property referred to in Schedule H, §§ 105-198 to 105-217, which said intangible personal property shall be taxed or exempt in accordance with the provisions of said Schedule H, §§ 105-198 to 105-217: Provided, that the provisions of this subsection shall not be construed to modify the provisions of Article 25 or Article 26 of this subchapter.

(10) Tangible personal property held at any seaport destined for and awaiting foreign shipment.

(11) The furniture, furnishings, books, instruments, and all other tangible or intangible personal property held for or owned by hospitals organized and operated as non-stock, non-profit, charitable institutions, notwithstanding that patients of such hospitals able to pay are charged for services rendered: Provided, all revenues or receipts of such hospitals shall be used, invested, or held for the purposes for which they are organized. The provisions of this section shall be effective as to any assessment for taxes for the year one thousand nine hundred and thirty-six and subsequent years.

(12) All cotton, tobacco or other farm products owned by the original producer, or held by the original producer in any public warehouse and represented by warehouse receipts, or held by the original producer for any cooperative marketing or grower's association, shall be exempt from taxation for the year following the year in which grown, but not for any year thereafter. (1939, c. 310, s. 601; 1941, c. 125, ss. 3, 4; 1941, c. 221, s. 2.)

Editor's Note.—The first 1941 amendment added subsection (11) and inserted reference thereto in subsection (7). The second 1941 amendment added subsection (12).

It may be questioned whether postal savings are not a federal governmental instrumentality immune from state taxation. However, the postal savings system seems more of a business function than a governmental function. See 11 N. C. Law Rev., 260.

Hospital Property.—Where plaintiff's hospital was organized solely for charity but collected from patients able to pay, and defendant county levied personal property taxes on plaintiff's hospital beds, equipment and furnishings, only the personal property used exclusively for charitable purposes is exempt from taxation under subsection (5). § 105-298. Deductions and credits.—(a) Private hospitals shall not be exempt from property taxes and other taxes lawfully imposed, but in consideration of the large amount of charity work done by them, the boards of commissioners of the several counties are authorized and directed to accept, as valid claims against the county, the bills of such hospitals for attention and services voluntarily rendered to afflicted or injured residents of the county who are indigent and likely to become public charges, when such bills are duly itemized and sworn to and are approved by the county physician or health officer as necessary or proper; and the same shall be allowed as payments on and credits against all taxes which may be or become due by such hospital on properties strictly used for hospital purposes, but to that extent only will the county be liable for such hospital bills: Provided, that the board of aldermen or other governing boards of cities and towns shall allow similar bills against the municipal taxes for attention and services voluntarily rendered by such hospitals to paupers or other indigent persons resident in any such city or town: Provided further, that the governing boards of cities and towns shall require a sworn statement to the effect that such bills have not and will not be presented to any board of county commissioners as a debt against that county, or as a credit on taxes due that county. The provisions of this subsection shall not apply to public hospitals or to hospitals organized and operated as non-stock, non-profit, charitable institutions, which, for the purposes of this subchapter, shall be deemed public hospitals: Provided, however, that nothing in this subsection shall affect the liability of counties, cities, and towns to public hospitals, as herein defined, for services heretofore or hereafter rendered indigent patients or public charges and for which such counties, cities, or towns are or may be otherwise liable.

(b) All bona fide indebtedness incurred in the purchase of fertilizer and fertilizer materials owing by a taxpayer as principal debtor may be deducted from the total value of all fertilizer and fertilizer materials as are held by such taxpayer for his own use in agriculture during the current year: Provided, further, that from the total value of cotton stored in this state there may be deducted by the owner thereof all bona fide indebtedness incurred directly for the purchase of said cotton and for the payment of which the cotton so purchased is pledged as collateral. (1939, c. 310, s. 602; 1941, c. 125, s. 5, c. 221, s. 3.)

Local Modification.—Buncombe, Rockingham: 1939, c. 310, s. 602.

Editor's Note.—The first 1941 amendment inserted the next to the last sentence in subsection (a). The second 1941 amendment changed subsection (b).

Amendment Prospective. — The 1941 amendment which provides that this section should not apply to nonprofit hospitals is prospective in effect and not retroactive. Piedmont Memorial Hospital v. Guilford County, 221 N. C. 308, 20 S. E. (2d) 332.

Plaintiff hospital instituted suit to recover ad valorem taxes for the year 1940, paid by it under protest. On appeal it was held that the hospital was liable for taxes for that year, and final judgment was entered in accordance therewith. Thereafter the hospital, upon the same agreed facts, instituted suit to recover the same taxes, upon its contention that the 1941 amendment exempted its property from taxation retroactively. It was held that the act of 1941, insofar as the status of plaintiff hospital for taxes for the year 1940 was concerned, was an attempt to annul the effect of a final judgment, and was unconstitutional and void. Id.

It contains no provision authorizing refund of taxes theretofore paid by such hospitals nor machinery for the recovery of such taxes, and therefore a hospital which paid real property taxes for 1940 under protest and unsuccessfully sued for their recovery under § 7880(194) is not empowered by the act of 1941 to maintain another suit for the recovery of the same taxes. Piedmont Memorial Hospital v. Guilford County, 221 N. C. 308, 20 S. E. (2d) 332.

Real Property of Private Hospitals Controlled by Section.—The real property of private hospitals is made a separate and distinct classification under subsection (a) of this section and it is the legislative intent that the provisions of this section should control rather than the provisions of § 105-296, subsection (7), exempting from taxation property of churches, religious societies and charitable institutions and orders, the language of said subsection (7), strictly construed, not being sufficiently broad to include property of private hospitals in view of the fact that subsection (a) specifically deals with property of such institutions. Piedmont Memorial Hospital v. Guilford County, 218 N. C. 673, 12 S. E. (2d) 265.

Use of Building.—Where the first floor of plaintiff's building is rented out for stores and shops, the second floor is rented for offices for physicians and surgeons, the third and fourth floors are used for a hospital, as to the first two floors, the general assembly is without authority to grant any exemption from taxation, and as to the third and fourth floors, subsection (a) is applicable, and in accordance with its provisions, bills for services rendered the indigent poor may be allowed as a credit on taxes levied against this part of its property, but it is not exempt from taxation. Piedmont Memorial Hospital v. Guilford County, 218 N. C. 673, 12 S. E. (2d) 265.

Distinction between Private and Public Hospitals.—In determining the question of exemption from taxation, a nonprofit hospital established solely for charitable purposes through individual donations and which is governed by a self-perpetuating board of trustees named by the incorporators, is a private hospital as contradistinguished from a public hospital, which is one supported, maintained and controlled by public authority, and the distinction observed between charitable hospitals and those operated for gain or profit in determining liability for negligence, has no bearing in determining the question of tax exemption. Piedmont Memorial Hospital v. Guilford County, 218 N. C. 673, 12 S. E. (2d) 265.

§ 105-299. Article subordinate to sections 105-198 to 105-217.—None of the provisions contained in any of the sections of this article shall be construed to conflict with Schedule H, §§ 105-198 to 105-217, but rather shall they be subordinate thereto. (1939, c. 310, s. 603.)

Art. 17. Real Property—Where and in Whose Name Listed.

§ 105-300. Place for listing real property.—All real property subject to taxation, and not hereinafter required to be assessed originally by the state board of assessment, shall be listed in the township or place where such property is situated. (1939, c. 310, s. 700.)

§ 105-301. In whose name real property to be listed; information regarding ownership; permanent listing.—(1) Except as hereinafter specified, real property shall be listed in the name of its owner; and it shall be the duty of the owner to list the same. To this end the board of county commissioners in any county may require the register of deeds, when any transfer of title is recorded, other than a mortgage or deed of trust, to certify the same to the supervisor (or if there be no supervisor acting at the time, to the person in charge of the tax records), and the record of the transfer shall be entered upon the tax records. The certification from the register to the supervisor or other person shall include the name of the person conveying the property, the name of the person to whom it is conveyed, the township in which the property is situated, a description of the property sufficient to identify it, and a statement as to whether the parcel is conveyed in whole or in part. For his services in this respect the register shall be allowed, if on fees, the sum of ten cents (10c) per transfer certified, to be paid by the county, and if on salary, such allowance as may be made by the board of commissioners.

It shall also be within the power of any board of commissioners, in its discretion, to require that each person recording such conveyance of real property shall, before presenting it to the register of deeds, present it to the person in charge of the tax records, in order that the conveyance may be noted on the tax records and in order that adequate information concerning the location of the property may be obtained from the person recording the conveyance. If such presentation is required by the commissioners of any county, the register of deeds of that county shall not accept for recording any conveyance which has not first been submitted to the person in charge of the tax records and such person has obtained information for the tax records which he regards as satisfactory. The commissioners may allow the person in charge of the tax records such compensation for this service as they deem appropriate, but they shall not require the person presenting the deed to pay any fee therefor.

It shall also be within the power of the commissioners to authorize the installation of a system for the permanent listing of real estate, under which all real estate may be carried forward by the supervisor, the list takers or some person or persons designated by the supervisor, in the name of the proper person as defined by this subchapter, without requiring that such real estate be listed each year by such person. No such system shall be installed without the approval of the state board of assessment; and when such a system is installed, with the approval of the board, the board may authorize the commissioners to make such modifications of the listing requirements of this subchapter as the board may deem necessary: Provided, that nothing herein shall require the board's approval for any such system installed prior to April 3, 1939.

Any county may, in the discretion of the commissioners, require that all real estate be listed only in the name of the owner of record at the close of the day as of which property is listed and assessed.

(2) For purposes of tax listing and assessing, the owner of the equity of redemption in any property which is subject to a mortgage or deed of trust shall be considered the owner of such real estate.

(3) Real property of which a decedent died possessed, not under the control of an executor or administrator, may be assessed to the heirs or devisees of the deceased without naming them until they have given notice of their respective names to the supervisor and of the division of the estate. It shall be the duty of any executor or administrator having control of real property to list it in his fiduciary capacity until he shall have been divested of control of such property. The right of an administrator, administering upon the estate of an intestate decedent, to petition for the sale of real estate to make assets shall not be considered as control of such real estate for purposes of this subdivision.

(4) A trustee, guardian or other fiduciary having legal title to real property shall be regarded as the owner of such property for purposes of tax listing, except as elsewhere in this section provided, and he shall list such property in his fiduciary capacity.

(5) Where undivided interests in real property are owned by tenants in common, not being copartners, the supervisor, upon request and in his discretion, may allow the property to be listed by the respective owners in accordance with their respective undivided interests.

(6) Real property belonging to a partnership or unincorporated association shall be listed in the name of such partnership or association.

(7) Real property owned by a corporation shall be listed in the name of the corporation.

(8) When land is owned by one party and improvements thereon or mineral, timber, quarry, water power, or similar rights therein are owned by another party, the parties may list their interests separately or may, in accordance with contractual relations between them, have the entire property listed in the name of the owner of the land. Where in such a case the land and improvements or rights are listed by the separate owners, the taxes levied on the improvements, or rights, shall be a lien on the land, and the land shall be subject to foreclosure for non-payment of such taxes in the same manner as if such taxes were levied directly against said land: Provided, nothing herein contained shall prevent said taxes from being also a lien on said improvements, or rights.

(9) A life tenant or tenant for the life of another shall be considered the owner of real property for purposes of tax listing, but he shall indicate when listing such property that he is a life tenant. The taxes levied on property listed in the name of a life tenant shall be a lien on the entire fee: Provided, that this shall not prevent the life tenant from being liable for the taxes under § 105-410.

(10) If the owner or person in whose name the real property should properly be listed, as set forth in the foregoing subdivisions of this section, is unknown, the property may be listed in the name of the occupant, and either or both shall be liable for the taxes; and if there be no occupant, then it may be listed as property the owner of which is unknown: Provided, that wherever the property is so listed against the occupant or an unknown owner, or through error the property has been listed against some person other than the owner as defined in this section, and the name of the true owner is subsequently ascertained, the tax records may be changed so as to list said property against the owner, and the change shall have the same force and effect as if the property has been listed against the owner in the first instance. (1939, c. 310, s. 701.)

In Whose Name Listed.—Land should be listed for taxation in the name of the individual owners and not in the name of the "estate" of one deceased. Morrison v. McLauchlin, 88 N. C. 251.

Same—Improper Listing as Affecting Purchaser's Title.—A tax-title devised by a purchaser at a sheriff's sale of land listed in the name of the "estate" of one deceased is defective. Morrison v. McLauchlin, 88 N. C. 251.

Art. 18. Personal Property—Where and in Whose Name Listed.

§ 105-302. Place for listing tangible personal property.—(1) In general, all tangible personal property and polls shall be listed at the residence of the owner, except as otherwise provided in this section. For purposes of this section the residence of a person who has two or more places in which he occasionally dwells shall be the place at which he resided for the longest period of time during the year preceding the date as of which property is assessed. The residence of a corporation, partnership or unincorporated association, domestic or foreign, shall be the place of its principal office in this state, and if a corporation, partnership or unincorporated association has no principal office in this state, its tangible personal property may be listed at any place at which said property is situated provided said property has a taxable situs within the state.

(2) Farm products produced in this state, owned by the producers, shall be listed where produced.

(3) Tangible personal property taxable in this state, owned by an individual nonresident of this state, shall be listed where situated.

(4) Subject to the provisions of subsection two of this section, tangible personal property shall be listed at the place where such property is situated, rather than at the residence of the owner, if the owner or person having control thereof hires or occupies a store, mill, dockyard, piling ground, place for the sale of property, shop, office, mine, farm, place for storage, manufactory or warehouse therein for use in connection with such property. Property stored in public warehouses and merchandise in the possession of a consignee or broker shall be regarded as falling within the provisions of this subdivision.

(5) The tangible personal property of a decedent whose estate is in the process of administration or has not been distributed shall be listed at the place at which it would be listed if the decedent were still alive and still residing at the place at which he resided at the time of his death.

(6) Tangible personal property held by a trustee, guardian or other fiduciary having legal title thereto shall be listed at the place where such property would be listed if the beneficiary were the owner; and if there are several beneficiaries in a case in which such property would be listed at the residence of the owner, the value of the property shall be listed at the various residences of the beneficiaries in accordance with their respective interests. This subdivision shall effect only cases in which the beneficiaries are residents of this state, but it shall apply whether the fiduciary is a resident or nonresident of this state. Property delivered by executors or administrators to themselves or others as testamentary trustees shall be controlled by this subsection rather than by subsection five of this section.

(7) In any case where the beneficiary is a nonresident of this state, tangible personal property having a taxable situs in this state, held by a trustee, guardian or other fiduciary having legal title, shall be listed at the place it would be listed if the trustee or other fiduciary were the beneficial owner of such property. (1939, c. 310, s. 800.)

Generally.—The rules and regulations fixed by the "Revenue Act" and the "Machinery Act" for the guidance of the officers charged with the listing and assessment of property for purposes of state taxation govern and control the action of county and other municipal officers charged with the listing and assessment of property for municipal taxation. Wiley v. Commissioners, 111 N. C. 397, 400, 16 S. E. 542 and cases there cited. The conclusion, therefore, is that the legislature has adopted a "uniform rule" which must be observed. Id.

Fixing Situs of Property.—It is for the legislature to determine the situs of personal property for purposes of taxation, and it may provide different rules for different kinds of property, change them from time to time, and the courts may not, for consideration of expediency, disregard the legislative will. Planters Bank, etc., Co. v. Lumberton, 179 N. C. 409, 102 S. E. 629.

Same—Application of Maxim Mobilia Personam Sequentur.—In Alvany v. Powell, 55 N. C. 51, Chief Justice Pearson declares that the true principle upon which to determine whether personal property is liable to be taxed, is the situs of the property, and that the distinction attempted to be made between personalty and real estate, depending upon the domicile of the owner, is based upon a fiction which has no application to questions of revenue.

Where Domicile and Residence Separate.—This section clearly makes the residence of the taxpayer the place where his personalty shall be listed. Ordinarily a person's residence is at the place of domicile, but this is not necessarily true, and where they are at separate and distinct places then he is to list his property at the place at which he has resided the greater part of the year regardless of whether such place is considered as his domicile or residence. In view of this fact it is doubtful whether or not the distinction between the two terms can ever be material with reference to this section, and this notwithstanding that the court has drawn the distinction in its reasoning in at least one case. See the decision in Roanoke Rapids v. Patterson, 184 N. C. 135, 113 S. E. 603, which turned upon the fact that the defendant had actually dwelt at one place a greater part of the year. See also Ransom v. Board, 194 N. C. 237, 139 S. E. 232, to the same effect.

Property of Corporation Taxable at Principal Office.—Where a corporation has its place of business in one town, with a part of the personal property located in another town, such property is only taxable in the town where its place of business is located. Winston v. Salem, 131 N. C. 404, 42 S. E. 889. The same is true of a partnership. Id.

Shares of Stock—Taxable at Principal Office.—The property in shares of stock in a corporation doing business outside the corporate limits of a town, and owned by persons residing therein does not follow and is not fixed by the situs of the residence of its owner, but is fixed by the legislature prescribing where and how it shall be listed and taxed, i. e., at its principal place of business. Wiley v. Commissioners, 111 N. C. 397, 16 S. E. 542.

§ 105-303. Intangible personal property.—The listing, assessing, and taxation of intangible personal properties and the administration relative thereto shall be subject to the provisions of Schedule H, §§ 105-198 to 105-217. (1939, c. 310, s. 801.)

§ 105-304. In whose name personal property should be listed.—(1) In general, personal property shall be listed in the name of the owner thereof on the day as of which property is assessed; and it shall be the duty of the owner to list the same. The owner of the equity of redemption in personal property subject to a chattel mortgage shall be considered the owner of the property; and the vendee of personal property under a conditional bill of sale, or under any other sale contract by virtue of which title to the property is retained in the vendor as security for the payment of the purchase price, shall be considered the owner of the property, provided he has possession of such property or the right to use the same.

(2) Personal property of a corporation, partnership, firm or unincorporated association shall be listed in the name of such corporation, partnership, firm, or unincorporated association.

(3) Personal property of which a decedent died possessed, not under the control of an executor or administrator, may be assessed to the next of kin or legatees of the decedent without naming them until they have given notice of their respective names to the supervisor and have likewise given notice of the distribution of the estate; and for this purpose such next of kin or legatees may be designated as "heirs." It shall be the duty of an executor or administrator having control of such property to list it in his fiduciary capacity until he shall have been divested of such control.

(4) A trustee, guardian, or other fiduciary having legal title to personal property shall be regarded as the owner thereof for purposes of this section.

(5) In cases in which two or more persons are joint owners of personal property, each shall list the value of his interest.

(6) If any dispute shall arise as to the true owner of personal property, the person in possession thereof shall be regarded as the owner unless the list taker or supervisor shall be convinced that some other person is the true owner. (1939, c. 310, s. 802.)

§ 105-305. Article subordinate to sections 105-198 to 105-217.—None of the provisions contained in any of the sections of this article shall be construed to conflict with Schedule H, §§ 105-198 to 105-217, but rather shall they be subordinate thereto. (1939, c. 310, s. 803.)

Art. 19. What the Tax List Shall Contain and Miscellaneous Matters Affecting Listing.

§ 105-306. What the tax list shall contain.—Each taxpayer or person whose duty it is to list property for taxation shall file with the proper list taker a tax list setting forth, as of the day on which property is assessed, the following information:

(1) The name and residence address of the taxpayer.

(2) The age of the taxpayer, if he is a male taxpayer, listing in the township of his residence.

(3) Each parcel of real property owned or controlled in the township, not subdivided into lots, together with the number of acres cleared for cultivation, waste land, woods and timber, mineral, quarry lands, and lands susceptible of development for water power, and the total acreage. Each separate parcel shall be described by name, if it has one, and by specifying at least two adjoining landowners, or by such other description as shall be sufficient to locate and identify said land by parol testimony. If all or part of such land shall lie within the boundaries of any incorporated town or any district in which a special tax is levied, such fact shall be specified.

(4) Each parcel of manufacturing property owned or controlled in the township, not subdivided into lots, together with the number of acres in said parcel or the dimensions thereof, the name of such parcel, if any, and the names of at least two adjoining land owners, or such other description as shall be sufficient to locate and identify said property by parol testimony. If all or part of such land shall lie within the boundaries of any incorporated town or any district in which a special tax is levied, such fact shall be specified.

(5) Each lot owned or controlled in the township together with the dimensions of said lot, the location of said lot, its street number, if any, its number or location on any map filed in the office of the register of deeds or such other description as shall be sufficient to locate and identify it by parol testimony. If any such lot shall lie within the boundaries of an incorporated town or any district in which a special tax is levied, such fact shall be specified.

(6) In conjunction with the listing of any real property listed under subdivisions (3), (4), or (5) of this section, a short description of any improvements thereon, belonging to the taxpayer listing such real property, shall be given. And if some person other than the taxpayer listing such real property shall own mineral, quarry, timber, water power or other separate rights with respect thereto, or shall own any improvements thereon, such fact shall be specified, together with the name of the person owning such rights or improvements, and a short description of such rights or improvements; though the owner of the land may or may not list such separate rights or improvements for taxes in accordance with the provisions of this subchapter.

(7) All mineral, quarry, timber, water power or other separate rights owned by the taxpayer with respect to the lands of another, and all improvements owned by such taxpayer located upon the lands of another. Such rights or improvements shall be listed separately with respect to each parcel or lot of land which is listed separately by the owner thereof, and such parcel or lot shall be identified in the same manner as it is identified on the tax list of the person listing the same: Provided, that such rights or improvements shall not be taxed against the owner thereof if, under the provisions of this subchapter, they are listed for taxes by the owner of the land.

(8) Every person listing real property shall list, in connection with each parcel or lot, every encumbrance thereon, together with the amount due on such encumbrance and the name and address of the person to whom such amount is due.

(9) The amount and value of all machinery and fixtures.

(10) A special description of any improvements, having a value in excess of one hundred dollars ($100.00), which have been begun, erected, damaged or destroyed since the time of the last assessment of such property.

(11) A list of horses, mules, jacks and jennets, cattle, hogs, sheep, goats and other live stock, poultry and dogs, with the number and value of each class shown separately.

(12) The number of open female dogs and the number of other dogs.

(13) The amount and value of farm machinery, farm utensils, and carriages, carts, wagons, buggies, or other vehicles and harness.

(14) The amount and value of household and kitchen furniture, libraries, scientific instruments, tools of mechanics, wearing apparel, and provisions of all kinds.

(15) The amount and value of merchandise, manufactured goods, or goods in the process of manufacture. This subdivision is intended to include all tangible personal property whatever held for the purpose of sale or exchange or held for use in the business of the taxpayer.

(16) The amount and value of all office furniture, fixtures and equipment.

(17) The number and value of all motor vehicles, tractors, trailers, bicycles, flying machines, pleasure boats of any and all kinds, and their appliances.

(18) The number and value of all seines, nets, fishing tackle, boats, barges, schooners, vessels, and all other floating property.

(19) The number and value of billboards and signboards and the value of other property used in outdoor advertising.

(20) The number and value of radios, talking machines and musical instruments.

(21) The value of plated or silverware, clocks, watches, firearms and jewelry.

(22) The amount and value of all cotton, tobacco or other farm products owned by the original producer, or held by the original producer in any public warehouse and represented by warehouse receipts, or held by the original producer for any cooperative marketing or grower's association, together with a statement of the amount of any advance against said products: Provided, the same need not be listed if grown in the preceding year, and shall not be subject to taxation for the year following the year in which grown, but shall be listed and taxed for any year thereafter.

(23) The amount and value of all other cotton, tobacco or other farm products.

(24) The amount and value of all fertilizer and fertilizer materials.

(25) The value and a description of all other property whatever, not especially exempted by law.

(26) An itemized list of any type of personal property when such itemization is required by the list taker or supervisor.

(27) A statement setting forth a list of license taxes for which the person, firm or corporation listing may be liable to the state under the provisions of Schedule "B", §§ 105-33 to 105-113; and also a statement of liability for tax on intangible personal property owned.

(28) The oath of the taxpayer hereinafter set forth. (1939, c. 310, s. 900; 1941, c. 221, s. 1.)

Editor's Note.—The 1941 amendment added the proviso to subsection (22).

Compliance with Statutory Procedure Essential. — The listing of property must be done in the manner prescribed by this section. Rexford v. Phillips, 159 N. C. 213, 74 S. E. 337. This means that the listing must be done by the owner or by his duly accredited agent in cases where listing by an agent is permissible. Stone v. Phillips, 176 N. C. 457, 97 S. E. 375.

Listing by Guardian or Executor.—Where a testator appointed executors of his will who were also therein named as trustees for certain beneficiaries, who in May of a certain year moved to another town, after the matters of executorship had been closed, leaving those of the trusteeship continuing, it was held, the personal property should have been listed at the place of residence of the beneficiaries in June of that year; and the taxes not having been listed at all, it was proper for the commissioners of the town of residence of the beneficiaries to cause the personalty to be listed there and impose the penalty prescribed by former section 7924. Smith v. Dunn, 160 N. C. 174, 76 S. E. 242.

Funds in Custodia Legis—Listing by Clerk.—The clerk of the court is both a "receiver" and "accounting officer" of funds paid into his hands in the course of litigation, within the meaning of the statute, and thereunder should properly list such funds for taxation on May first of each year, when no adjudication as to the rightful owners has been made. Edgecombe County v. Walston, 174 N. C. 55, 93 S. E. 460.

Time of Making List.—Property can be listed for taxation only in the year, and for the year, in which taxes are due. North Carolina R. Co. v. Commissioners, 77 N. C. 4; Johnson v. Royster, 88 N. C. 194.

Sufficiency of Description.—The listing of land as a certain number of acres lying in a named township is too vague to support a valid assessment, the land being insufficiently described. Rexford v. Phillips, 159 N. C. 213, 74 S. E. 337.

Same—As between Taxpayer and Purchaser.—A description on a tax list made under the direction of the taxpayer in the words, "Tax list in No. 2 township, C. county, for the year 1893," was held sufficient, as between the taxpayer and a purchaser of his land at a tax sale, where it was the only land owned by the former in the townships. Fulcher v. Fulcher, 122 N. C. 101, 29 S. E. 91.

Under the Act of 1784 if the owner fails to attend at the time and place appointed to receive the lists of taxable property, the justice may make out a list for himself to the best of his knowledge. Tores v. Justices, 6 N. C. 167.

Where land, listed in the name of one person, belonging to another, has been sold for unpaid taxes and it is discovered, before the deed has been accepted, that the real owner has not listed it as required by this section, the deed is insufficient to pass title, for the methods provided by this section must be followed. Wake County v. Faison, 204 N. C. 55, 167 S. E. 391.

An amount set apart by a mutual insurance company as a reserve for the rebate of unearned premiums to its policyholders upon cancellation of policies in accordance with its by-laws is properly deducted by the insurance company in listing its solvent credits for taxation. Hardware Mut. Fire Ins. Co. v. Stinson, 210 N. C. 69, 185 S. E. 449, construing former § 7971(46), now repealed.

§ 105-307. Duty to list; penalty for failure.— It shall be the duty of every person, firm or corporation, in whose name any property or poll is to be listed under the terms of this subchapter, to list said property or poll with the proper list taker or the supervisor, within the time allowed by law, on a list setting forth the information required by this subchapter. In addition to all other penalties prescribed by law, any person, firm or corporation whose duty it shall be to list any poll or property, real or personal, who willfully fails, refuses or neglects to list the same within the time allowed by law, or who removes or conceals property for the purpose of evading taxation, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor; and any person, firm or corporation aiding or abetting the removal or concealment of property for the purpose of evading taxation shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. The failure to list shall be prima facie evidence that such failure was wilful, and the board of county commissioners shall present the names of all such persons, firms and corporations to the grand jury. (1939, c. 310, s. 901.)

Failure to List Solvent Credits.—The failure to list solvent credits does not destroy the cause of action, but postpones recovery thereon until they are listed and the tax thereon is paid; this is because the statute does not make the failure to list an absolute bar to their recovery. Martin v. Knight, 147 N. C. 564, 61 S. E. 447. The court said: "It was not the purpose of the legislature to release the debtor for failure to list by the creditor, but to postpone the recovery of the debt, if subject to taxation, until the tax is paid."

Subsection 3 of this section will not be construed to work a forfeiture, and does not prevent a recovery on evidence of debt not listed, but postpones the recovery of judgment thereon until listed and the taxes paid, and where in an action on a note this defense is pleaded, the trial court has the power to allow the plaintiff to list it and pay taxes thereon during the trial and give judgment. Wooten v. Bell, 196 N. C. 654, 146 S. E. 705.

Same—How Pleaded.—Unless the failure to list a note and due bill for taxation, "with a view to evade the payment of taxes thereon," is pleaded, it may not be made the subject of an issue. Martin v. Knight, 147 N. C. 564, 61 S. E. 447. Whether or not this is an affirmative defense which must be set up in the answer or whether it may be taken advantage of upon the general denial is left undecided.

Payment into Court.—The amount of taxes due upon solvent credits may be paid into court, Corey v. Hooker, 171 N. C. 229, 232, 88 S. E. 236, and when this is done it permits the party to proceed to judgment. Hyatt v. Holloman, 168 N. C. 386, 84 S. E. 407.

A possessory action to recover a horse secured by chattel mortgage, brought by the assignee of the mortgage note against one to whom the mortgagee had sold the horse, is not an action upon the note upon which the statute requires that the taxes be given in and paid before the owner may be permitted to sue thereon. Hyatt v. Holloman, 168 N. C. 386, 84 S. E. 407.

A former statute which made it a misdemeanor for "any person to evade the payment of taxes by surrendering or exchanging certificates of deposit in any bank of this State or elsewhere for nontaxpaying securities" did not apply to the purchase before the tax listing date of nontaxable United States or State bonds by funds subject to taxation, and thereafter selling the bonds and redepositing the amount, when the transaction was made in good faith and the bonds were bought and sold on the open market and the title thereto passed absolutely in both transactions, and the purchaser of the bonds could not be taxed on the purchase price. Trust Co. v. Nash County, 196 N. C. 704, 146 S. E. 861.

§ 105-308. Oath of the taxpayer.—Before accepting any completed tax list, it shall be the duty of the list taker to read and actually to administer the following oath (or so much thereof as may be pertinent) which shall be subscribed by the person filing the list:

"I, ..., do solemnly swear (or affirm) (that I am an officer or agent of the taxpayer named on the attached list, that as such I am duly authorized to submit said list, that I am familiar with the extent and value of all said taxpayer's property subject to taxation in this township) that the above and foregoing list is a full, true and complete list of all and each kind of property which it is the duty of the above named taxpayer to list as owner or fiduciary, as said list indicates, in ..... Township, ... County, North Carolina; and that I have not in any way connived at the violation or evasion of requirements of law in relation to the assessment of property; so help me, God.

So much of the foregoing oath as appears in the second parentheses shall be used only in cases in which the list is submitted by an officer or agent. Any list taker who accepts a list without administering said oath shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (1939, c. 310, s. 902.)

§ 105-309. Listing by agents. — Corporations, partnerships, firms and unincorporated associations, females, nonresidents of the township in which the property is to be listed, and persons physically unable to attend and file a list may have their lists submitted and sworn to by an officer or agent; but the list shall be filed in the name of the principal. (1939, c. 310, s. 903.)

Editor's Note.—As to irregularity in listing taxes by agent as affecting tax sales, see Rexford v. Phillips, 159 N. C. 213, 74 S. E. 337.

§ 105-310. Listing by mail.—All tax lists submitted by mail must be accompanied by the oath of the taxpayer, as prescribed in this subchapter, duly sworn to before a notary public or other officer authorized to administer oaths, and must be mailed to the supervisor. The supervisor may accept or reject any such list in his discretion. (1939, c. 310, s. 904.)

§ 105-311. Length of the listing period; preliminary work.—Tax listing shall begin on the day as of which property is assessed (or on the first business day thereafter if said day is a Sunday or a holiday) and shall continue for thirty days. The board of county commissioners of any county may extend the time for listing for not more than an additional thirty days: Provided, that in years of quadrennial assessment the board of county commissioners may extend the time for listing for not more than an additional sixty days.

Nothing in this section shall be construed to prevent any preparatory work, prior to the beginning of listing, which may be necessary or expedient in connection with an efficient listing or assessing of property; nor shall it prevent the assessment of real property by the list takers prior to the actual time at which it is listed by its owner or carried forward on the tax records: Provided, that no final assessment shall be made by a list taker prior to the day as of which property is required by law to be assessed. (1939, c. 310, c. 905.)

§ 105-312. Records of tax exempt property.—The person making up the tax records shall enter, in regular order, the name of the owner, a clear description of all real and personal property exempt from taxation, together with a statement of its value, for what purpose used, and the rent, if any, obtained therefrom. Each list taker shall secure the necessary information with respect to such property in his township. The list of such exempt property, when completed, shall be delivered by the county supervisor of taxation to the register of deeds of the county on or before the first day of October, and the register of deeds, on or before the first day of November, shall make duplicates thereof and transmit such duplicates to the state board of assessment and shall file the original list of exempt property in his office. (1939, c. 310, s. 906.)

§ 105-313. Forms for listing and assessing property.—All forms and books used in the listing and assessing of property for taxation shall have the approval of the state board of assessment. The board may, in its discretion, design and prescribe such forms and make arrangements for their purchase and distribution through the division of purchase and contract, the cost of same being billed to the counties. (1939, c. 310, s. 907.)

§ 105-314. Article subordinate to sections 105-198 to 105-217.—None of the provisions contained in any of the sections of this article shall be construed to conflict with Schedule H, §§ 105-198 to 105-217, but rather shall they be subordinate thereto. (1939, c. 310, s. 908.)

§ 105-314.1. Certain new motor vehicles in dealers' stock may be assessed at reduced value during war.—While the existing state of war continues between the United States and any foreign nation, any dealer in motor vehicles who has in stock on January first a new model motor vehicle, the sale of which is subject to priorities, rationing and restrictions by federal government regulations on account of the war, shall be classified as war restricted motor vehicles and the governing bodies of the tax assessing units of the several counties are hereby authorized in their discretion to assess same for taxation at a reduced value. (1943, c. 81.)

Art. 20. Special Provisions Affecting Motor Vehicle Owners, Warehousemen, etc.

§ 105-315. Information to be given by motor vehicle owners applying for license tags.—Every motor vehicle owner applying to the state department of motor vehicles for motor vehicle license tags shall specify in the application the county in which each such motor vehicle is subject to ad valorem taxation. If any such vehicle is not subject to ad valorem taxation in any county of this state, such fact, with the reason therefor, shall be stated in the application. No state license tags shall be issued to any applicant until the requirements of this subdivision have been met. The commissioner of motor vehicles shall, upon request from any county, send to the supervisor of such county a list of motor vehicles subject to ad valorem taxation in such county as shown by the commissioner's records of applications filed during the year preceding the day as of which property is to be assessed, and shall charge the county the sum of thirty cents (30c) per hundred names for the same, said amount to be used by the commissioner as compensation for the preparation of said list. (1939, c. 310, s. 1000; 1941, c. 36, s. 4.)

§ 105-316. Warehouses and co-operative growers' or marketing associations to furnish lists.—(1) Every warehouse company or corporation and every growers' or marketing association receiving for storage cotton, tobacco or other products, commodities or property, and issuing warehouse receipts for same, shall, on the day as of which property is assessed, furnish to the supervisor of the county in which such property is stored a full and complete list of all persons, corporations, partnerships, firms or associations for whom such property is stored, except in cases in which farm produce is stored for its original producer who is a resident of another county in this state, together with the amount of such property stored for each owner and the amount advanced against such property by the warehouse or association. In all cases in which farm produce is stored for its original producer, who is a resident of another county in this state, the names of such producers shall be sent to the supervisors of the respective counties in which such producers reside, together with the amount of such produce stored for them and the amount advanced against such produce by the warehouse or association.

(2) Warehouse companies and corporations and growers' and marketing associations shall not be liable for taxation on the property stored with them by others, provided lists of the owners and amounts of such property are furnished to the respective supervisors under the provisions of subdivision (1) of this section. If such lists are not so furnished within fifteen days after the day as of which property is assessed, such warehouse or association shall be liable to the respective counties for the tax upon the full value of such property; and if failure to furnish such list is continued for ten days after demand for same by the supervisor of any county, such warehouse or association shall be liable for a penalty of two hundred fifty dollars ($250.00), in addition to the taxes, to be recovered by the proper county in an action in the superior court, and both tax and penalty may be recovered in the same action. (1939, c. 310, s. 1001.)

§ 105-317. Reports by consignees and brokers.—Every person, corporation, partnership, or unincorporated association in possession of property on consignment, and all brokers dealing in tangible personal property who have in their possession such property belonging to others, shall file with the supervisor of taxation of the county in which such property is located a full and complete list of the owners of such property, together with the amount of such property owned by each: Provided, that if such property is farm produce owned by the original producer, who is a resident of this state, the name of the owner and the amount of such property shall be reported to the supervisor of the county of which such owner is a resident. Consignees and brokers failing to make such reports shall be liable to payment of the tax, and a penalty of two hundred fifty dollars ($250.00), in the same manner and under the conditions set forth in subdivision (2) of § 105-316. (1939, c. 310, s. 1002.)

§ 105-318. Private banks, bankers, brokers and security brokers.—Every bank (not incorporated), banker, broker or security broker, at the time fixed by this subchapter for listing and assessing all real and personal property, shall make out and furnish to the list takers and assessors a sworn statement showing:

(1) The amount of property on hand and in transit.

(2) The amount of funds owned in the hands of other banks, bankers or brokers.

(3) The amount of checks or other cash items, the amount of which is not included in either of the preceding items.

(4) The amount of bills receivable, discounted or purchased, bonds and other credits due or to become due, including interest receivable and accrued, but not due, and interest due and unpaid.

(5) All other property appertaining to said business, other than real estate, which real estate shall be listed under this subchapter.

(6) The amount of deposits made with them by any other person, firm or corporation.

(7) The amount of all accounts payable, other than current deposit accounts. (1939, c. 310, s. 1003.)

§ 105-319. Persons, firms, banks and corporations dealing in securities on commission taxed as a private banker.—No person, bank, or corporation, without a license authorized by law, shall act as a stockbroker or private banker. Any person, bank, or corporation that deals in foreign or domestic exchange, certificates of debt, shares in any corporation or charter companies, bank or other notes, for the purpose of selling the same or any other thing for commission or other compensation, or who negotiates loans upon real estate securities, shall be deemed a security broker. Any person, bank, or corporation engaged in the business of negotiating loans on any class of security or in discounting, buying or selling negotiable or other papers or credits, whether in an office for the purpose or elsewhere, shall be deemed to be a private banker. Any person, firm, or corporation violating this section shall pay a fine of not less than one hundred nor more than five hundred dollars for each offense. (1939, c. 310, s. 1004.)

§ 105-320. Partnerships; liability of partners for tax.—For the purpose of listing and assessing property, a copartnership shall be treated as an individual, and its property, real and personal, shall be listed in the name of the firm. Each partner shall be liable for the whole tax. (1939, c. 310, s. 1005.)

§ 105-321. Article not to be construed in conflict with sections 105-198 to 105-217.—None of the provisions contained in any of the sections of this article shall be construed to conflict with Schedule H, §§ 105-198 to 105-217, but rather shall they be subordinate thereto. (1939, c. 310, s. 1006.)

§ 105-322. Review of abstracts by supervisor and list takers.—After the close of the list taking period, and not later than the first meeting of the board of equalization and review, the supervisor shall examine the abstracts turned in by each list taker, and, unless he is satisfied that said list taker has satisfactorily performed the duties of a list taker, shall not approve payment of any compensation to said list taker.

The supervisor shall meet with each of the list takers not later than the first meeting of the board of equalization, for the purpose of reviewing the abstracts generally to ascertain if the same scales of value have been used in all townships in the county, and if property has been listed at the valuation prescribed by law. (1939, c. 310, s. 1100.)

§ 105-323. Making up the tax records.—The list takers for their respective townships, or such other persons as the commissioners may designate, shall make out, on forms approved by the state board of assessment, tax records which may consist of a scroll designed primarily to show tax valuations and a tax book designed primarily to show the amount of taxes or may consist of one record designated to show both valuations and taxes. Such records for each township shall be divided into four parts: (1) White individual taxpayers (including lists filed by corporate fiduciaries for white individual beneficiaries); (2) colored individual taxpayers (including lists filed by corporate fiduciaries for colored individual beneficiaries); (3) Indian individual taxpayers (including lists filed by corporate fiduciaries for Indian individual beneficiaries); and (4) corporations, partnerships, business firms and unincorporated associations. All changes in valuations affected between the close of the listing period and the meeting of the board of equalization and review shall be reflected on such records, and so much of such records as may have been prepared shall be submitted to the board at its meetings. Changes made by said board shall also be reflected upon such records, either by correction, rebate or additional charge. (1939, c. 310, s. 1101.)

§ 105-324. Tax receipts and stubs.—Such persons as the county commissioners may designate shall fill out the receipts and stubs for all taxes charged upon the tax books. The form of such receipts and stubs shall be approved by the state board of assessment and shall show at least the following:

Cross Reference.—See annotations under § 156-105.

§ 105-326. Compensation of officer computing taxes.—The board of county commissioners shall make an order for the payment to the register of deeds, auditor, tax clerk, supervisor, or other official such sum as may be in their discretion a proper compensation for the work of computing taxes, making out the tax book and copies thereof, and the making of such reports as may be required by the state board of assessment; but the compensation allowed for computing the taxes and making out the tax book is not to exceed ten cents (10c.) for each name appearing on the tax book, which shall include the original and duplicate tax book and also the receipts and stubs provided for in this subchapter. (1939, c. 310, s. 1104.)

§ 105-327. County board of equalization and review.—(1) Personnel.—The county board of equalization and review of each county shall be composed of the board of county commissioners. Nothing in this subchapter shall be construed as repealing any law creating a special board of equalization and review, or creating any board charged with the duty of equalization and review in any county.

(2) Compensation.—The members of the board of equalization and review shall be allowed the same per diem compensation and traveling expense, while actually engaged in the performance of their duties, as is ordinarily paid to the members of the board of county commissioners, such compensation to be paid by the county.

(3) Oath.—Before entering upon their duties each member of the board of equalization and review shall take and subscribe to the following oath and file the same with the clerk of the board of county commissioners: "I do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I will faithfully discharge my duties as a member of the Board of Equalization and Review of ..... County, North Carolina; and that I will not allow my actions as a member of said board to be influenced by personal or political friendships or obligations.

(Signature.)

(4) Clerk.—The supervisor shall act as clerk to said board, shall be present at all meetings and give to the board such information as he may have or can obtain with respect to the valuation of taxable property in the county.

(5) Time of Meeting.—Said board shall hold its first meeting on the eleventh Monday following the day on which tax listing began, and may adjourn from time to time as its duties may require; but it shall complete its duties not later than the third Monday following its first meeting.

(6) Notice of Meeting.—Notice of the time, place and purpose of the first meeting of said board shall be given by publishing said notice at least three times in some newspaper published in the county, the first publication to be at least ten days prior to said meeting.

(7) Powers and Duties.—(a) It shall be the duty of the board of equalization and review to equalize the valuation of all property in the county, to the end that such property shall be listed on the tax records at the valuation required by law; and said board shall correct the tax records for each township so that they will conform to the provisions of this subchapter.

(b) The board shall, on request, hear any and all taxpayers who own or control taxable property assessed for taxation in the county in respect to the valuation of such property or the property of others.

(c) The board shall examine and review the tax lists of each township for the current year; shall, of its own motion or on sufficient cause shown by any person, list and assess any real or personal property or polls subject to taxation in the county omitted from said lists; shall correct all errors in the names of persons, in the description of property, and in the assessment and valuation of any taxable property appearing on said lists; shall increase or reduce the assessed value of any property which in their opinion shall have been returned below or above the valuation required by law; and shall cause to be done whatever else shall be necessary to make said lists comply with the provisions of this subchapter: Provided, that said board shall not change the valuation of any real property from the value at which it was assessed for the preceding year except in accordance with the terms of §§ 105-278, and 105-279.

(d) The board may appoint committees, composed of its own members or other persons, to assist it in making any investigations necessary in its work. It may also employ expert appraisers in its discretion. The expense of the employment of committees or appraisers shall be borne by the county: Provided, that the board may, in its discretion, require the taxpayer to pay the cost of any appraisal by experts demanded by him when said appraisal does not result in material reduction of the valuation of the property appraised and where such valuation is not subsequently reduced materially by the board or by the state board of assessment.

(e) The board may subpoena witnesses, or books, records, papers and documents reasonably considered to be pertinent to the decision of any matter pending before it; and any member of the board may administer oaths to witnesses in connection with the taking of testimony. The chairman of the board shall sign the subpoena, and such subpoena shall be served by any officer qualified to serve subpoenas. (1939, c. 310, s. 1105.)

Local Modification.—Mecklenburg: 1941, c. 209; Wayne: 1941, c. 69.

Editor's Note.—The 1941 amendment added the proviso to subsection (5).

Purpose of Notice.—The notice required before the meeting in June is general, and has reference to a general revision of the lists of the whole county, with a view to an equal and uniform assessment among the several townships, and it is to give opportunity to all who may be dissatisfied with the valuation of their property to make complaint and have it corrected. Commissioners v. Atlanta, etc., Ry. Co., 86 N. C. 541, 544.

Valuation by Owner Subject to Review by Board.—The valuation upon personal property is made by the taxpayer when he lists his property, and is binding upon the list-taker, but it may be corrected by the county commissioner or board of equalization at the dates fixed by the statute, upon due notice to the taxpayer. Pocomoke Guano Co. v. New Bern, 172 N. C. 258, 260, 90 S. E. 202.

Revision without Notice Void.—Where the value of the solvent credits of a taxpayer are increased without due notice to him or his agent, such increase in value is a nullity. Wolfeden v. Commissioners, 152 N. C. 83, 67 S. E. 319.

Designated Date of Meeting Exclusive of Others.—See Wolfenden v. Commissioners, 152 N. C. 83, 67 S. E. 319.

Before Whom Complaint Made.—The complaint against excessive valuation must be made before the board of county commissioners, and the aldermen of the city have no jurisdiction to change such valuation. Pocomoke Guano Co. v. New Bern, 172 N. C. 258, 261, 90 S. E. 202.

Requisites of Complaint.—The complaint in an action against a city to recover for taxes paid must allege that the valuation complained of is greater than that fixed by the county board of equalization, or the tax he was forced to pay was greater than it would have been if correctly computed at the legal rate on the valuation properly ascertained, or a demurrer thereto will be sustained. Pocomoke Guano Co. v. New Bern, 172 N. C. 258, 90 S. E. 202.

Decision of Board Final.—The county commissioners have exclusive original jurisdiction to grant relief against excessive valuation of property for taxation, and unless they proceed upon some erroneous principle, there is no appeal. Wade v. Commissioners, 74 N. C. 81 and cases cited.

When Duties and Powers Cease.—After the board of county commissioners has completed the revision of the tax lists as authorized by this section its duties and powers as a revising board, cease and determine until the time appointed by the statute for the next succeeding year. Wolfenden v. Commissioners, 152 N. C. 83, 67 S. E. 319.

Cited in Brooks v. Brooks, 220 N. C. 16, 16 S. E. (2d) 403.

§ 105-328. Giving effect to the decisions of the board.—All changes in names, descriptions or valuations made by the board of equalization shall be reflected upon the tax records by correction. rebate or additional charge; and when all such changes have been given effect, and the scroll or tax book has been totaled, the members of the board of equalization, or a majority thereof, shall sign a statement at the end of the scroll or tax book to the effect that the scroll is the fixed and permanent tax list and assessment roll for the current year, subject to the provisions of this subchapter. The omission of such endorsement shall not affect the validity of said scroll or tax book, or of any taxes levied on the basis of the valuations appearing in it. (1939, c. 310, s. 1106.)

§ 105-329. Appeals from the board of equalization and review to the state board of assessment.—Any property owner, taxpayer, or member of the board of county commissioners may except to the order of the board of equalization and review and appeal therefrom to the state board of assessment by filing a written notice of such appeal with the clerk of the board of county commissioners within sixty days after the adjournment of the board of equalization and review. At the time of filing such notice of appeal the appellant shall file with the clerk to the board of county commissioners a statement in writing of the grounds of appeal, and shall, within ten days after filing such notice of appeal with the clerk to the board of county commissioners, file with the state board of assessment a notice of such appeal and attach thereto a copy of the statement of the grounds of appeal filed with the clerk to the board of county commissioners. Each taxpayer or ownership interest shall file separate and distinct appeals; no joint appeals shall be considered except by and with consent of the state board of assessment.

The state board of assessment shall fix a time for the hearing of such appeal, and shall hear the same in the city of Raleigh, or such other place within the state as the said board may designate; shall give notice of time and place of such hearing to the appellant, appellee, and to the clerk to the board of county commissioners at least ten days prior to the said hearing; shall hear all the evidence or affidavits offered by the appellant, appellee, and the board of county commissioners, shall reduce, increase, or confirm the valuation fixed by the board of equalization and review and enter it accordingly, and shall deliver to the clerk of the board of county commissioners a certified copy of such order, which valuation shall be entered upon the fixed and permanent tax records and shall constitute the valuation for taxation. (1939, c. 310, s. 1107.)

Valuation Final and Conclusive.—This section contemplates that valuation fixed by the state board shall be final and conclusive where no error of law or abuse of discretion is alleged. Belk's Department Store v. Guilford County, 222 N. C. 441, 448, 23 S. E. (2d) 897.

§ 105-330. Powers of the commissioners with respect to the records after adjournment of the board of equalization.—After the board of equalization has finished its work and the changes effected by it have been given effect on the tax records, the board of county commissioners may not authorize any changes to be made on said records except as follows:

(1) To give effect to the decision of the state board of assessment on appeal.

(2) To add to the records any valuation certified by the state board of assessment with respect to property assessed in the first instance by said state board, or to give effect to any valid corrections made in such assessments by the state board.

(3) To correct the name of any taxpayer appearing on said records erroneously, or to substitute the name of the person who should have listed property for the name appearing on the records as listing said property, or to correct descriptions on said records, and any such corrections or substitutions shall have the same force and effect as if the name of the taxpayer or the description had been correctly listed in the first instance.

(4) To correct valuations or taxes appearing erroneously on the records as the result of clerical errors.

(5) To add any discovered property under the provisions of this subchapter.

(6) To reassess property when the supervisor reports that, since the completion of the work of the board of equalization, facts have come to his attention which render it advisable to raise or lower the assessment of some particular property of a given taxpayer: Provided, that no such reassessment shall be made unless it could have been made by the board of equalization had the same facts been brought to the attention of said board of equalization: Provided further, that this shall not authorize reassessment because of events or circumstances not taking place or arising until after the tax listing day.

(7) The board of county commissioners may give the supervisor general authority to make any changes under this section except those under subsection (six); but neither the board nor the supervisor shall make any changes under subsection (three) or (six) which adversely affect the interests of any taxpayer without giving such taxpayer written notice and an opportunity to be heard prior to final determination. (1939, c. 310, s. 1108.)

§ 105-331. Discovery and assessment of property not listed during the regular listing period. —(1) Duty of Commissioners, Supervisors and List Takers; Carrying Forward Real Estate.—It shall be the duty of the members of the board of commissioners, the supervisor and the list takers to be constantly looking out for property and polls which have not been listed for taxation. After any tax list or abstract has been delivered to a list taker, the supervisor or the board of county commissioners, and such list taker, supervisor or board of county commissioners shall have reason to believe or sufficient evidence upon which to form a belief that the person, firm or corporation making such list or abstract, in person or by agent, has other personal property, tangible or intangible, money, solvent credits, or other thing liable for taxation, they or either of them shall take such action as may be needful to get such property on the tax list.

Either the list takers for the respective townships, the clerical assistants to the supervisor or the supervisor, as the supervisor may designate, shall examine the tax lists for the current year and the tax records for the preceding year, and carry forward all real property which was listed for the preceding year which has not been listed for the current year. In the discretion of the supervisor, such property may be listed on an abstract signed by the official or employee carrying it forward in the name of the taxpayer, or may be entered directly on the tax scroll or tax book by such official or employee. When such property is so listed in the name of the owner or in the name of the person last listing the same, the listing shall be as valid in every respect as if made by the owner; provided, that such listing shall not render any person individually liable to pay the taxes who is not under a duty to list such property.

(2) Procedure upon Discovery.—When property or polls are discovered they shall be listed in the name of the taxpayer by the supervisor or some person designated by him. The clerk to the board of commissioners or the supervisor shall mail a notice to the taxpayer at his last known address (or, if unknown, to the occupant or person in possession of such property) to the effect that the board of equalization at a designated meeting (or the county commissioners at their next regular meeting, in case the discovery is not made in time for consideration by the board of equalization) will assess the value of said property or approve the listing of said poll. At such meeting the board shall hear any objections presented by said taxpayer, render its decision and, if necessary under said decision, assess said property, subject to appeal to the state board of assessment, or approve the listing of said poll. Said property and polls may then be added to the regular tax records or placed in a separate record designated "Late Listings," which shall have the same force and effect as the regular records: Provided, nothing herein shall prevent valuation of such property or listing of such polls by agreement between the supervisor and taxpayer without action by the board of equalization or board of commissioners: Provided, further, nothing herein shall prevent the carrying forward of real estate, listed for the prior year in accordance with the terms of this subchapter, without notice to the owner or last person listing said realty unless, in years other than revaluation years, the valuation of such property is raised.

All property and polls not listed during the regular listing period shall, when eventually listed under this section or by the person carrying forward real estate, immediately be subject to the taxes for the various years for which listed or assessed, together with the penalties hereinafter set forth.

(3) Assessment for Previous Years; Penalties. —The county commissioners may assess any such property or list such poll for the preceding years during which it escaped taxation, not exceeding five, in addition to the current year. When real property is discovered which should have been listed for the current year, it shall be presumed that it should have been listed by the same taxpayer for the preceding five years unless the taxpayer shall produce satisfactory evidence that such property was actually listed for taxes during those years or some of them; provided, that this presumption shall not apply when real property is carried forward from the preceding year's records.

When personal property is discovered which should have been listed for the current year, it shall be presumed that such property should have been listed by the same taxpayer for the preceding five years, unless the taxpayer shall produce satisfactory evidence that such property was not in existence, that it was actually listed for taxation or that it was not his duty to list the same during said years or some of them. Where it is shown that such property should have been listed by some other taxpayer during a part or all of such preceding years, it may be assessed against such other taxpayer for the proper years, with the penalties as hereinafter prescribed.

In a proper case, property may be listed for one or more prior years during which it escaped taxation, even though it has been regularly listed for the current years, is no longer in existence or is no longer subject to taxation in this state.

The penalty for failure to list property or a poll before the close of the regular listing period shall be ten per cent (10%) of the tax levied for the current year on such property or poll. Where such property or poll is taxed for years preceding the current year, the penalty, in addition to that for the current year, shall be ten per cent (10%) per annum. The minimum penalty shall be one dollar ($1.00). Taxes assessed for years preceding the current year shall be assessed at the rate of tax prevailing in the various preceding years.

The taxes and penalties for each year shall be shown separately on the records, but for the purpose of tax collection and foreclosure the total of all such taxes and penalties shall be regarded as taxes for the current year; and the schedule of discounts and penalties for payment or nonpayment of current taxes shall apply to such taxes and penalties for failure to list, despite the fact that such taxes and penalties for failure to list may not have been levied until the penalties for failure to pay have already accrued.

(4) Commissioners' Power to Compromise.—The board of county commissioners or the governing body of any municipal corporation is hereby authorized and empowered to settle or adjust all claims for taxation arising under this section or any other section authorizing them to place on the tax list any property omitted therefrom.

(5) Application to Cities and Towns.—The provisions of this section shall extend to all cities, towns and other municipal corporations having power to tax property or polls, and the power conferred and the duties imposed upon the board of county commissioners shall be exercised and performed by the governing body of the municipal corporation.

(6) Power to Employ Searchers.—The county commissioners, either separately or in conjunction with one or more municipal corporations in the county, may employ one or more competent men to make a diligent search and to discover and report to the board or the supervisor any unlisted property within the county, to the end that the same may be listed and assessed for taxation as provided in this section: Provided, nothing herein shall be construed as allowing a board of commissioners to appoint a tax collector unless it is otherwise authorized to do so by law.

(7) Tax Receipts.—Tax receipts for the taxes and penalties assessed against the property discovered shall be made up under the provisions of this subchapter, shall be delivered to the sheriff or tax collector, who shall be charged with the same, and shall have the same force and effect and shall be a lien on the property in the same manner as if they had been delivered to the sheriff or tax collector at the time of the delivery of the regular tax bills for the current year.

(8) Appeals.—Appeals may be had from the assessment fixed by the board of equalization or commissioners to the state board of assessment. Notice of said appeal must be served upon the clerk to the board of commissioners within sixty days after the assessment is fixed, and said appeal shall be in conformity with the provisions of this subchapter respecting appeals from boards of equalization. Each taxpayer or ownership interest shall file separate and distinct appeals; no joint appeals shall be considered except by and with consent of the state board of assessment.

(9) Classified Property.—Any property, discovered and listed under the provisions of this section, entitled to classification under the provisions of this subchapter, shall be classified and assessed in accordance with said provisions. (1939, c. 310, s. 1109.)

Editor's Note.—The cases in the following note construe the somewhat similar provisions of former § 7971(50), now repealed.

Discovery and Listing of Omitted Property.—This section provides for discovery of taxable property not listed, by certain tax authorities, and listing same. Hardware Mut. Fire Ins. Co. v. Stinson, 210 N. C. 69, 77, 185 S. E. 449.

Where the plaintiff guardian paid taxes on property of his ward, and thereafter, in accordance with a ruling that the property was nontaxable, obtained a refund of the tax and did not list the property again, and the property of the ward was not exempt from taxation, it was held that the prior ruling of the county commissioners to the effect that the property was nontaxable does not prevent them from listing the property for taxation for the prior five years, including the year for which the tax was refunded. Lawrence v. Shaw, 210 N. C. 352, 186 S. E. 504.

Compromise Settlement Is Binding Unless Made in Bad Faith.—In the absence of a finding that the board of commissioners acted in bad faith in making a compromise settlement of a tax, or abused its discretion in so doing, mandamus to compel the commissioners to list and assess will be denied. Stone v. Board of Com'rs, 210 N. C. 226, 186 S. E. 342.

Construed as Whole.—The court in Madison County v. Coxe, 204 N. C. 58, 167 S. E. 486, construing Public Laws, 1927, c. 71, § 73, (superseded by this section) declared that the section must be construed as a whole, not piecemeal.

Rebuttal of Presumption.—The presumption created by statute, that the person who was in possession of the personal property involved in this controversy was the owner and in possession of said property on 1 April of the five preceding years, is rebutted by the facts of this case. Coltrane v. Donnell, 203 N. C. 515, 516, 166 S. E. 397.

Stated in Pocomoke Co. v. New Bern, 172 N. C. 258, 90 S. E. 202.

Applied in Smith v. Dunn, 160 N. C. 174, 76 S. E. 242.

Art. 22. Assessment Procedure of Cities and Towns.

§ 105-332. Status of property and polls listed for taxation.—All property and polls validly listed for taxation in any county, municipal corporation or taxing district shall be thereby also validly listed for taxation by any county, municipal corporation or taxing district in which it has a taxable situs. Said situs shall be determined by the rules prescribed in this subchapter. (1939, c. 310, s. 1200.)

§ 105-333. Tax lists and assessment powers of cities and towns.—All cities and towns may obtain their tax lists from the county records without securing lists signed by the taxpayers, or may set up their own machinery for securing lists from the taxpayers, in the discretion of the governing body.

All cities and towns not situated in more than one county shall accept the valuations fixed by the county authorities, as modified by the state board of assessment, under the provisions of this subchapter: Provided, that nothing in this section shall be construed to modify the authority given to cities and towns under this subchapter with respect to discovered property.

With the exception of the provisions relating to dog taxes, the provisions of §§ 105-323 to 105-326 shall apply to cities and towns; and city and town governing bodies shall have the same powers conferred and the duties imposed by said sections upon the board of county commissioners, and wherever counties are referred to in said sections it shall be construed to include also cities and towns. (1939, c. 310, s. 1201.)

§ 105-334. Cities and towns situated in more than one county.—For the purpose of municipal taxation, all real and personal property and polls subject to taxation by cities and towns situated in two or more counties shall be listed and assessed as hereinafter set forth.

(1) The governing body of each such city or town shall, in quadrennial years, on or before the date fixed for the appointment of the county supervisor, appoint a city supervisor of taxation, and two or more persons to act as list takers and assessors, each of whom, including the supervisor, shall have been resident freeholders in such city or town for a period of not less than twelve months. In years other than quadrennial years such governing body shall, on or before the date fixed for appointment of the county supervisor, appoint one resident freeholder as city supervisor of taxation and, in its discretion, one or more persons to act as list takers and assessors, each of whom shall have been a resident of such city or town for at least twelve months.

(2) With respect to property to be listed for taxation in the city or town the city supervisor shall have the same powers and duties given to the county supervisor under the terms of this subchapter; and the city list takers and assessors shall have the same powers and duties given to county list takers and assessors under the terms of this subchapter; and the procedure of listing and assessing shall be, as nearly as possible, the same as that specified for county listing and assessing under the terms of this subchapter.

(3) The governing body of each such city or town may designate some officer or employee of the city or appoint some other person to supervise the preparation of the tax records and receipts, and to make such reports as the state board of assessment may request or require, and may employ such clerical assistance in this connection as it may deem advisable.

Such governing body shall also be vested with the same powers and duties, with respect to the listing of property for city taxation, as are vested by this subchapter in the county commissioners with respect to the listing of property for county taxation, and shall, with the city supervisor as chairman, sit as a board of equalization and review; and appeals may be taken from said city board of equalization to the state board of assessment in the same manner as provided in this subchapter for appeals from the county boards of equalization.

(4) The intent and purpose of this section is to provide such cities and towns as lie in two or more counties only with the machinery necessary for listing and assessing taxes for municipal purposes. The powers to be exercised by and the duties imposed on such boards of aldermen, boards of commissioners or other governing bodies, boards of equalization and review, city supervisor of taxation, list takers and assessors, city clerk and taxpayers shall be the same, and they shall be subjected to the same penalties as provided in this subchapter for all boards of county commissioners, county auditors, registers of deeds, clerks of boards of county commissioners, county supervisors, list takers and assessors. The county commissioners in their discretion may adopt the tax lists, scroll, or assessment roll of such city or town as fixed and determined by the board of equalization and review of such cities or towns, and when so adopted, shall be considered to all intent and purpose the correct and valid list and the fixed and determined assessment roll for the purpose of county taxation.

(5) All expenses incident to the listing and assessing of the property for the purpose of municipal taxation as aforesaid shall be borne by the city or town for whose benefit the same is undertaken; provided, that where the county or counties in which such city or town lies shall adopt the list and the fixed, determined assessment of the city board of equalization and review, the county board of commissioners may reimburse the governing body in such amounts as in their discretion may be proper. (1939, c. 310, s. 1202.)

Art. 23. Reports to the State Board of Assessment and Local Government Commission.

§ 105-335. Report of valuation and taxes.—The clerk of the board of county commissioners, auditor, tax supervisor, tax clerk, county accountant or other officer performing such duties shall, at such time as the board may prescribe, return to the state board of assessment on forms prescribed by said board an abstract of the real and personal property of the county by townships, showing the number of acres of land and their value, the number of town lots and their value, the value of the several classes of live stock, the number of white and negro polls, separately, and specify every other subject of taxation and the amount of county tax payable on each subject and the amount payable on the whole. At the same time said clerk, auditor, supervisor or other officer shall return to the state board of assessment an abstract or list of the poll, county and school taxes payable in the county, setting forth separately the tax levied on each poll and on each hundred dollars value of real and personal property for each purpose, and also the gross amount of every kind levied for county purposes, and such other and further information as the state board of assessment may require. (1939, c. 310, s. 1300.)

§ 105-336. Clerks of cities and towns to furnish information.—The clerk or auditor of each city and town in this state shall annually make and transmit to the state board of assessment, on blanks furnished by said board, a full, correct, and accurate statement showing the assessed valuation of all property, tangible and intangible, within his city or town, and separately the amount of all taxes levied therein by said city or town, including school district, highway, street, sidewalk, and other similar improvement taxes for the current year, and the purposes for which the same were levied; and shall annually furnish to the local government commission a complete and detailed statement of the bonded and other indebtedness of the city or town, the accrued interest on the same, whether not due or due and unpaid, and the purposes for which said indebtedness was incurred. (1939, c. 310, s. 1301.)

§ 105-337. County indebtedness to be reported.—The auditor or county accountant of each county in this state shall make and deliver annually to the local government commission a full, correct and accurate statement of the bonded and other indebtedness of his county, including township, school districts, and special tax districts, the purposes for which the same was incurred, and all accrued interest, whether not due or due and unpaid. (1939, c. 310, s. 1302.)

§ 105-338. Penalty for failure to make report.—Every register of deeds, auditor, county accountant, supervisor of taxation, assessor, sheriff, clerk of superior court, clerk of board of county commissioners, county commissioners, board of Aldermen or other governing body of a city or town, mayor, clerk of city or town, or any other public officer, who shall willfully fail, refuse, or neglect to perform any duty required, to furnish any report to the state board of assessment or local government commission as prescribed in this subchapter or the revenue act, or who shall wilfully and unlawfully hinder, delay or obstruct said board in the discharge of its duties, shall, for every such failure, neglect, refusal, hindrance or delay, in addition to the other penalties imposed in this subchapter and the revenue act, pay to the state board of assessment or local government commission for the general fund of the state the sum of one hundred dollars ($100.00), such sum to be collected by said board or local government commission. A delay of thirty days to make and furnish any report required or to perform a duty imposed shall be prima facie evidence that such delay was wilful. (1939, c. 310, s. 1303.)

Art. 24. Levy of Taxes and Penalties for Failure to Pay Taxes.

§ 105-339. Levy of taxes.—The tax levying authorities of the several counties, cities, towns and special districts shall, not later than Wednesday after the third Monday in August, levy such rate of tax for the general county purposes as may be necessary to meet the general expense of the county, not exceeding the legal limitation, and such rates for other purposes as may be authorized by law. (1939, c. 310, s. 1400.)

§ 105-340. Date as of which lien attaches.—The lien of taxes levied on property and polls listed pursuant to this subchapter shall attach to real estate as of the day as of which property is listed, regardless of the time at which liability for the tax may arise or the exact amount thereof be determined.

All penalties, interest and costs allowed by law shall automatically be added to the amount of such lien and shall be regarded as attaching at the same time as the lien for the principle amount of the taxes. Said lien shall attach to all real property of the taxpayer in the taxing unit.

Taxes, interest, penalties and cost shall be a lien on personal property from and after levy on or attachment and garnishment of such property. (1939, c. 310, s. 1401.)

Editor's Note.—A modification of the law to meet an unacceptable interpretation of the former statute is found in this section which fixes a lien as of the date the property is listed. Under the old law no lien attached until July first and a transfer between April first and July first seemed to shed the burden of taxes entirely under the decision of the court in State v. Champion Fibre Co., 204 N. C. 295, 168 S. E. 207. No reason appears why a lien cannot be effective to cover obligations yet to be ascertained and it is believed the new section cures a glaring defect in our tax law. 15 N. C. Law Rev. 391.

Cited in Bemis Hardwood Lbr. Co. v. Graham County, 214 N. C. 167, 198 S. E. 843.

§ 105-341. Levy of poll tax.—(1) There shall be levied by the board of county commissioners in each county a tax of two dollars ($2.00) on each taxable poll or male person between the ages of twenty-one and fifty years, and the taxes levied and collected under this section shall be for the benefit of the public school fund and the poor of the county.

(2) The board of county commissioners of every county shall have the power to exempt any person from the payment of poll taxes on account of indigency, and when any such person has been once exempted he shall not be required to renew his application unless the commissioners shall revoke the exemption. When such exemption shall have been made, the clerk of the board of county commissioners shall furnish the person with a certificate of such exemption, and the person to whom it is issued shall be required to list his poll, but upon exhibition of such certificate the list taker shall annually enter in the column intended for the poll the word "exempt," and the poll shall not be charged in computing the list.

(3) Cities and towns may levy a poll tax not exceeding that authorized by the constitution, and poll taxes so levied and collected may be used for any purpose permitted by law.

(4) While the existing state of war between the United States and any foreign nation continues and for the next tax listing period thereafter, members of the armed forces of the United States and members of the United States merchant marine shall be exempt from all poll taxes and no county or city shall levy any poll tax on such persons, and poll tax which such person was required to list prior to induction into the armed forces of the United States or joining the merchant marine which has not been paid, shall be cancelled and such person relieved of such liability to pay the same. (1939, c. 310, s. 1402; 1943, c. 3.)

Editor's Note.—The 1943 amendment added subsection (4). See 12 N. C. Law Rev. 23, 33.

§ 105-342. What veterans exempt from poll tax; world war veterans. — Any honorably discharged veteran of any of the wars of the United States, now a resident of, and subject to capitation or poll tax in this State, and who received injuries in the line of duty in the military service, whether compensable or not, and all such honorably discharged veterans that have been, or are now, receiving compensation from the Federal Government for disability of service connected origin, shall be conclusively considered and presumed as having physical infirmities sufficient to warrant exemption from the payment of the capitation or poll tax under Article five, section one, of the Constitution of North Carolina: Provided, however, that with respect to veterans of the World War, this section and § 105-343 shall apply only to those who served not less than ninety days during the period between April sixth, one thousand nine hundred seventeen, and November eleventh, one thousand nine hundred eighteen, or to those of such veterans who served with the United States forces in Russia during the period between April sixth, one thousand nine hundred seventeen, and April first, one thousand nine hundred twenty. (1931, c. 193, s. 1.)

§ 105-343. Proof of service and injury must be furnished; exemption by county commissioners. — The veteran or soldier claiming exemption under § 105-342 shall furnish proof of such service and injury by producing to the board of commissioners of his county his or her discharge or release or certificate of such service or injury, signed by a recognized official of the United States War Department or the Adjutant General's office of this State, and said discharge, release or certificate shall be recorded with the register of deeds of such county prior to tax listing date in the year in which exemption is claimed under §§ 105-342 and 105-343. It shall be the duty of the register of deeds at or before tax listing time in each county, to notify the board of county commissioners of the registration with him of such discharge, release or certificate and thereupon, upon application of the veteran, said board of county commissioners may take the action authorized by §§ 105-342 and 105-343. (1931, c. 193, s. 2.)

§ 105-344. Exemption of pensions or compensations from taxation.—Every person receiving a pension or compensation from the state, or United States, or any foreign country or government, for and on account of wounds or physical disabilities contracted or sustained during the late war between the United States and Germany, and any of the allied countries coöperating with the United States, shall not be required to pay any tax of any kind upon such pension or compensation, but the same shall be exempted from any and all taxes. This section shall apply to all such taxes for the year one thousand nine hundred and twenty-three, and thereafter. (1923, c. 259; C. S. 5168(aa).)

§ 105-345. Penalties and discounts for nonpayment of taxes.—All taxes assessed or levied by any county, city, town, special district or other political subdivision of this state, in accordance with the provisions of this subchapter, shall be due and payable on the first Monday of October of the year in which they are so assessed or levied, and if actually paid in cash:

(1) On or before the first day of November next after due and payable, there shall be deducted a discount of one-half of one per cent (½ of 1%).

(2) After the first day of November and on or before the first day of February next after due and payable, the tax shall be paid at par or face value.

(3) After the first day of February and on or before the first day of March next after due and payable, there shall be added to the tax a penalty of one per cent (1%).

(4) After the first day of March and on or before the first day of April next after due and payable, there shall be added to the tax a penalty of two per cent (2%).

(5) On and after the second day of April the penalty shall be, in addition to said two per cent (2%), one-half of one per cent per month or fraction thereof until paid from said day on the principal amount of such taxes, which shall continue to accrue on taxes not included in a certificate of sale and which, on taxes included in a certificate of sale, shall continue to accrue until the date of such certificate.

(6) Should any taxpayer desire to make a prepayment of his taxes between July first and October first of any year, he may do so by making payment to the county or city accountant, city clerk, auditor or treasurer, as the governing body may determine, and shall be entitled to the following discounts: If paid on or before July first, a deduction of two per cent (2%); if paid during the month of July, a deduction of one and one-half per cent (1½%); if paid during the month of August, a deduction of one per cent (1%); if paid during the month of September, a deduction of one per cent (1%). (1939, c. 310, s. 1403; 1943, c. 667.)

Local Modification.—Beaufort: 1937, c. 65; Camden: 1943, c. 705; Franklin (towns of Louisburg, Bunn and Youngsville): 1943, c. 293; Iredell: 1941, c. 332; Surry (and towns of Mount Airy and Elkin): 1943, c. 710, s. 1.

Editor's Note.—The 1943 amendment added at the end of subsection (6) the words "if paid during the month of September, a deduction of one per cent (1%)."

Discrimination between Different Counties.—A statute which discriminates between the different counties of the State, as to the times when the payment of taxes can be compelled, is not unconstitutional, since its provisions affect every one alike in the localities, to which they are applicable and contain no violation of the principle of equation of taxation. State v. Jones, 121 N. C. 616, 28 S. E. 347.

Art. 25. Banks, Banking Associations, Trust Companies and Building and Loan Associations.

§ 105-346. Banks, banking associations and trust companies.—The value of shares of stock of banks, banking associations, and trust companies shall be determined as follows:

(1) Every bank, banking association, industrial bank, savings institution, trust company, or joint-stock land bank located in this state shall list its real estate and tangible personal property, except money on hand, in the county in which such real estate and tangible personal property is located for the purpose of county and municipal taxation, and shall, during the second calendar month following the month in which local tax listing begins each year, list with the state board of assessment, on forms provided by the said state board, in the name of and for its shareholders, all the shares of its capital stock, whether held by residents or nonresidents, at its actual value on the day as of which property is assessed under this subchapter.

(2) The actual value of such shares for the purpose of this section shall be ascertained by adding together the capital stock, surplus, and undivided profits, and deducting therefrom the assessed value of such real and tangible personal property which such banking institutions shall have listed for taxation in the county or counties of this state wherein such real and tangible personal property is located, together with an amount according to its proportion of tax value of any buildings and lands wholly or partially occupied by such banking associations, institutions or trust companies, owned and listed for taxation by a North Carolina corporation in which such banking associations or institutions own ninety-nine per cent (99%) of the capital stock.

(3) In addition to the deductions allowed in item two of this section, there may be deducted from the items of surplus and undivided profits an amount not exceeding five per cent (5%) of the bills and notes receivable of such banking associations, institutions, or trust companies to cover bad or insolvent debts, investments in North Carolina state bonds, United States government bonds, joint-stock land bank bonds, and federal land bank bonds, at the actual cost of said bonds owned on and continuously for at least ninety days prior to the day as of which property is assessed in the current year. The value of such shares of capital stock of such banking associations, institutions, or trust companies shall be found by dividing the net amount ascertained above by the number of shares in the said banking associations, institutions or trust companies.

(4) If the state board of assessment shall have reason to believe that the actual value of such shares of stock of such banking associations, institutions, or trust companies, as listed with it, is not the true value in money, then the said board shall ascertain such true value by such an examination and investigation as seems proper, and increase or reduce the value as so listed to such an amount as it ascertains to be the true value for the purposes of this section.

(5) The value of the capital stock of all such banking associations, institutions, and trust companies as found by the state board of assessment, in the manner herein described, shall be certified to the county and municipality in which such bank or institution is located: Provided, that if any such banking association, institution, or trust company shall have one or more branches, the state board of assessment shall make an allocation of the value of the capital stock so found as between the parent and branch bank or banks or trust company in proportion to the deposits of the parent and branch bank, banks, or trust company, and certify the allocated values so found to the counties and municipalities in which the parent and the branch bank, banks, or trust company are located.

(6) The taxes assessed upon the shares of stock of any such banking associations, institutions, or trust companies shall be paid by the cashier, secretary, treasurer, or other officer or officers thereof, and in the same manner and at the same time as other taxes are required to be paid in such counties, and in default thereof such cashier, secretary, treasurer, or other accounting officer, as well as such banking association, institution, or trust company, shall be liable for such taxes, and in addition thereto for a sum equal to ten per cent (10%) thereof. Any taxes so paid upon any such shares may, with the interest thereon, be recovered from the owners thereof by the banking association, institution, or trust company or officers thereof paying them, or may be deducted from the dividends accruing on such shares. The taxation of such shares of capital stock shall not be at a greater rate than is assessed upon other moneyed capital in the hands of individual citizens of this state coming in competition with the business of such banking associations, institutions, or trust companies.

(7) In case of the failure or refusal of any bank, banking association or trust company to make and deliver to the state board of assessment any statement or statements required by this subchapter, such bank, banking association or trust company shall forfeit and pay to the state of North Carolina the sum of one hundred dollars ($100.00) for each additional day such report is delinquent beyond the last day of the month in which said report is required to be made, such penalty to be sued for and recovered in any proper form of action in the name of the state of North Carolina on the relation of the state board of assessment, and such penalty, when collected, shall be paid into the general fund of the state. (1939, c. 310, s. 1500.)

Where Capital Invested in State Bonds.—Bank stock is taxable at its full value after deducting the assessed value of the bank's real and personal property, though the capital of the bank be invested in North Carolina state bonds. Pullen v. Corporation Comm., 152 N. C. 548, 68 S. E. 155.

Listing Bank Stock.—This section changes the policy of the State as declared in ch. 234, sec. 42, Laws of 1917, as to the listing shares of bank stock by the holders where they reside, and fixing the situs of the shares for the purpose of county schools and municipal taxation at the residence of the owner, by omitting entirely the requirements of the Act of 1917 that the owner of the shares shall list them at the place of his residence, and by imposing this duty on the cashier of the bank, requiring him to pay the State, county, special and municipal taxes, the intent of the statute being to require the bank to pay all taxes on the shares of its stock where it is located, and to relieve the owners from listing or paying them, except as he may be required to reimburse the bank. Planters Bank, etc., Co. v. Lumberton, 179 N. C. 409, 102 S. E. 629.

Deduction of Indebtedness.—In the taxation of shares of stock in a national bank, under the Revenue Act of 1885, the owner of such shares has the right to deduct from the assessed value thereof the amount of his bona fide indebtedness, as in case of other investments of moneyed capital. McAden v. Board, 97 N. C. 355, 2 S. E. 670.

Fixing Amount of Capital Stock.—Notes due a corporation are to be considered in estimating the value of the capital stock, and not as a separate item for taxation. Caldwell Land, etc., Co. v. Smith, 151 N. C. 70, 65 S. E. 641.

The imposition upon a corporation of a tax on its "capital stock" in addition to a requirement that it shall list for taxation and pay the taxes assessed on the shares of its stock-holders, does not make "double taxation." Board v. Blackwell Durham Tobacco Co., 116 N. C. 441, 21 S. E. 423.

The tax on shares of stock of a bank is payable by the bank under the provisions of this section, it being required that the cashier or other proper officer of the bank pay the tax to the municipality levying it. Rockingham v. Hood, 204 N. C. 618, 169 S. E. 191.

Effect of Failure to Follow Prescribed Procedure. — Where the method prescribed by this section for determining the value of bank stock for taxation, has not been followed, a bank may restrain the board of commissioners of a county from listing its shares of stock for taxation. Virginia-Carolina Joint Stock Land Bank v. Board of County Com'rs, 207 N. C. 50, 175 S. E. 705.

§ 105-347. Building and loan associations.—(1) The secretary of each building and loan association organized and/or doing business in this state shall list with the local assessors all the tangible real and personal property owned on the day as of which property is assessed each year, which shall be assessed and taxed as like property of individuals.

(2) All foreign building and loan associations doing business in this state shall list for taxation, during the second calendar month following the month in which local tax listing begins each year, with the state board of assessment, through their respective agents, its stock held by citizens of this state, with the name of the county, city, or town in which the owners of said stock reside. In listing said stock for taxation the withdrawal value as fixed by the by-laws of each such association shall be furnished to the said board, and the stock shall be valued for taxation at such withdrawal value.

Any association or officer of such association doing business in the state who shall fail, refuse or neglect to so list shares owned by citizens of this state for taxation shall be barred from doing business in this state; any local officer or other person who shall collect dues, assessments, premiums, fines, or interest from any citizen of this state for any such association which has failed, neglected, or refused to so list for taxation the stock held by citizens of this state shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and fined and/or imprisoned in the discretion of the court.

When the assessment shall have been made by the state board of assessment in accordance with § 105-358, the board shall thereupon notify the officer attesting such report of the amount assessed against it, and such sleeping-car company shall have twenty days within which to appear and make objection, if any it shall have, to said assessment. If no objection be made within twenty days, the state board of assessment shall certify to the county commissioners of the several counties through which such cars are used the value of the property of such sleeping-car company within such county in the proportion that the number of miles of railroad over which such cars are used in said county bears to the number of miles of railroad over which such cars are used within the state, together with the name and postoffice address of the officers attesting such report of such sleeping-car company, with the information that tax bills, when assessed, are to be sent to him by mail; and such value, so certified, shall be assessed and taxed the same as other property within said county. Ninth. Such other and further information as the state board of assessment may require. (1939, c. 310, s. 1605.)

§ 105-356. State board of assessment may require additional information. — Upon the filing of the statements required in the preceding sections the state board of assessment shall examine the same and, if the board shall deem the same insufficient, or in case it shall deem that other information is requisite, it shall require such officer to make such other and further statements as said board may call for. In case of the failure or refusal of any bank, association, company, copartnership, or corporation to make out and deliver to the state board of assessment any statement or statements required by this subchapter, such bank, association, company, copartnership, or corporation shall forfeit and pay to the state of North Carolina one hundred dollars ($100.00) for each additional day such report is delayed beyond the last day of the month in which required to be made, to be sued for and recovered in any proper form of action in the name of the state of North Carolina on the relation of the state board of assessment, and such penalty, when collected, shall be paid into the general fund of the state. (1939, c. 310, s. 1606.)

§ 105-357. State board of assessment shall examine statements.—The state board of assessment shall thereupon value and assess the property of each association, company, copartnership, or corporation in the manner hereinafter set forth, after examining such statements and after ascertaining the value of such properties therefrom and upon such other information as the board may have or obtain. For that purpose it may require the agents or officers of said association, company, copartnership, or corporation to appear before it with such books, papers, and statements as it may require, or may require additional statements to be made, and may compel the attendance of witnesses in case the board shall deem it necessary to enable it to ascertain the true cash value of such property. (1939, c. 310, s. 1607.)

§ 105-358. Manner of assessment.—Said state board of assessment shall first ascertain the true cash value of the entire property owned by the said association, company, copartnership, or corporation from said statement or otherwise for the purpose, taking the aggregate value of all the shares of capital stock, in case shares have a market value, and in case they have none, taking the actual value thereof or of the capital of said association, company, copartnership, or corporation in whatever manner the same is divided, in case no shares of capital stock have been issued: Provided, however, that in case the whole or any portion of the property of such association, company, copartnership, or corporation shall be encumbered by a mortgage or mortgages, such board shall ascertain the true cash value of such property by adding to the market value of the aggregate shares of stock, or to the value of the capital in case there should be no such shares, the aggregate amounts of such mortgage or mortgages, and the result shall be deemed and treated as the true cash value of the property of such association, company, copartnership, or corporation. Such state board of assessment shall, for the purpose of ascertaining the true cash value of property within the state of North Carolina, next ascertain from such statements or otherwise the assessed value for taxation, in the localities where the same is situated, of the several pieces of real estate situated within and without the state of North Carolina and not in any manner used in the general business of such associations, companies, copartnerships or corporations, which assessed value for taxation shall be by said board deducted from the gross value of the property as above ascertained. Said state board of assessment shall next ascertain and assess the true cash value of the property, including intangible personal property, of the associations, companies, copartnerships, or corporations within the state of North Carolina by taking as a guide, as far as practicable, the proportion of the whole aggregate value of said associations, companies, copartnerships as above ascertained, after deducting the assessed value of such real estate without the state which the length of lines of said associations, companies, copartnerships or corporations, in the case of telegraph and telephone companies, within the state of North Carolina bears to the total length thereof, and in the case of express companies and sleeping-car companies the proportion shall be in proportion of the whole aggregate value after such deduction, which the length of lines or routes within the state of North Carolina bears to the whole length of lines or routes of such associations, companies, copartnerships or corporations, and such amounts so ascertained shall be deemed and held as the entire value of the property of said associations, companies, copartnerships or corporations within the state of North Carolina: Provided, the board shall, in valuing the fixed property in this state, give due consideration to the amount of gross and net earnings per mile of line in this state, and any other factor which would give a greater or less value per mile in this state than the average value for the entire system. From the entire value of the property within the state so ascertained there shall be deducted by the state board of assessment the assessed value for taxation of all real estate, structures, machinery, and appliances within the state listed with the local taxing authorities of this state if used in the general business of the taxpayer and subject to local taxation in the counties, as hereinbefore described in §§ 105-352 to 105-357, inclusive, and the assessed value for taxation of all intangible personal property returned and assessed under the provisions of Schedule H, §§ 105-198 to 105-217, and the residue of such value as ascertained, after deducting therefrom the assessed value of such properties, shall be by said board assessed to said associations: Provided, the state board of assessment shall also assess the value for taxation of all structures, machinery, appliances, pole lines, wire and conduit of telephone and telegraph companies within the state subject to local taxation, but land and buildings located thereon owned by said companies shall be assessed in like manner and by the same officials as though such property was owned by individuals in this state. (1939, c. 310, s. 1608.)

§ 105-359. Value per mile.—Said state board of assessment shall thereupon ascertain the value per mile of the property within the state by dividing the total value as above ascertained, after deducting the specific properties locally assessed within the state, by the number of miles within the state, and the result shall be deemed and held as value per mile of the property of such association, company, copartnership, or corporation within the state of North Carolina: Provided, the value per mile of telephone and telegraph companies shall be determined on a wire mileage basis. (1939, c. 310, s. 1609.)

§ 105-360. Total value for each county and municipality.—Said board of assessment shall thereupon, for the purpose of determining what amount shall be assessed by it to said association, company, copartnership, or corporation in each county in the state through, across, and into or over which the lines of said association, company, copartnership or corporation extend, multiply the value per mile, as above ascertained, by the number of miles in each of such counties as reported in said statements or as otherwise ascertained, and the result thereof shall be by the secretary of said state board certified to the chairman of the board of county commissioners, respectively, of the several counties through, into, over, or across which the lines or routes of said association, company, copartnership, or corporation extend: Provided, the total value of street railways, electric light, power and gas companies, as determined in § 105-358 to be certified to each county, shall be the proportion which the locally assessed value of the physical property in each county bears to the total assessed value of the physical property in the state. Distribution and certification by the state board of assessment to the municipalities and other local taxing jurisdictions shall follow the same general rules governing such distribution to the several counties of the state with respect to value per mile and total value as herein set out. All taxes due the state from any corporation taxed under the preceding sections shall be paid by the treasurer of each company direct to the commissioner of revenue. (1939, c. 310, s. 1610.)

§ 105-361. Companies failing to pay tax; penalty.—In case any such association, company, copartnership, or corporation as named in this subchapter shall fail or refuse to pay any taxes assessed against it in any county, municipality or other taxing jurisdiction in this state, in addition to other remedies provided by law for the collection of taxes, an action may be prosecuted in the name of the state of North Carolina by the solicitors of the different judicial districts of the state on the relation of the board of commissioners of the different counties of this state and the judgment in said action shall include a penalty of (50%) of the amount of taxes as assessed and unpaid, together with reasonable attorney's fees for the prosecution of such action, which action may be prosecuted in any county into, through, over or across which the lines or routes of any association, company, copartnership, or corporation shall extend, or in any county where such association, company, copartnership, or corporation shall have an office or agent for the transaction of business. In case such association, company, copartnership, or corporation shall have refused to pay the whole of the taxes assessed against the same by the state board of assessment, or in case such association, company, copartnership, or corporation shall have refused to pay the taxes or any portion thereof assessed to it in any particular county or counties, such action may include the whole or any portion of the taxes so unpaid in any county or counties; but the attorney general may, at his option, unite in one action the entire amount of the tax due, or may bring separate actions to each separate county or adjoining counties, as he may prefer. All collection of taxes for or on account of any particular county made in any such suit or suits shall be by said board accounted for as a credit to the respective counties for or on account of which such collections were made by the said board at the next ensuing settlement with such county, but the penalty so collected shall be credited to the general fund of the state, and upon such settlement being made the treasurers of the several counties shall, at their next settlement, enter credits upon the proper duplicates in their offices, and at the next settlement with such county, report the amount so received by him in his settlement with the state, and proper entries shall be made with reference thereto: Provided, that in any such action the amount of the assessments fixed by said state board of assessment and apportioned to such county shall not be controverted. (1939, c. 310, s. 1611.)

§ 105-362. State board made appraisers for public utilities. — The state board of assessment herein established is constituted a board of appraisers and assessors for railroad, canal, steamboat, hydroelectric, street railway, and all other companies exercising the right of eminent domain. (1939, c. 310, s. 1612.)

§ 105-363. Returns to state board by railroads, etc., companies.—The president, secretary, superintendent or other principal accounting officer within this state of every railroad, telegraph, telephone, street railway company, whether incorporated by the laws of this state or not, shall, during the second calendar month following the month in which local tax listing begins each year, return to the state board of assessment, verified by the oath or affirmation of the officer making the return, all the following described property belonging to such corporation within the state, viz:

A list of such property shall be filed by such company with the state board of assessment. It shall be the duty of the tax supervisor, county accountant and register of deeds, if requested so to do by the state board of assessment, to certify and send to the said board a statement giving a description of the property mentioned in the foregoing proviso, and showing the assessed valuation thereof, which value shall be deducted from the total value of the property of such railroad company as arrived at by the board in accordance with § 105-365, before the apportionment is made to the counties and municipalities. The tax supervisor, county accountant and register of deeds shall also certify to the board the local rate of taxation for county purposes as soon as the same shall be determined, and such other information obtained in the performance of the duties of their offices as the said board shall require of them; and the mayor of each city or town shall cause to be sent to the said board the local rate of taxation for municipal purposes. (1939, c. 310, s. 1613.)

Section Constitutional.—This section is not in conflict with N. C. Const., Art. V, sec. 3, providing that such assessment be uniform and ad valorem. Atlantic, etc., R. Co. v. New Bern, 147 N. C. 165, 60 S. E. 925.

Taxation of Accessories, etc.—The railroad, right of way and superstructures thereon, main and side tracks, depot buildings and depot grounds, etc., by reasonable interpretation and under constitutional powers, are included in the language of this section, delegating to the Corporation Commission the power to assess railroad properties, and such are excluded from the power of local tax assessors. Wilmington, etc., R. Co. v. Alsbrook, 110 N. C. 137, 14 S. E. 652, construing prior law.

§ 105-365. Railroads; tangible and intangible property assessed separately. — (a) At such dates as real estate is required to be assessed for taxation the said board of assessment shall first determine the value of the tangible property of each division or branch of such railroad or rolling stock and all the other physical or tangible property. This value shall be determined by a due consideration of the actual cost of replacing the property, with a just allowance for depreciation on rolling stock, and also of other conditions, to be considered as is in the case of private property.

(b) They shall then assess the value of the franchise, which shall be determined by due consideration of the gross earnings as compared with the operating expenses, and particularly by consideration of the value placed upon the whole property by the public (the value of the physical property being deducted) as evidenced by the market value of all capital stock, certificates of indebtedness, bonds, or any other securities, the value of which is based upon the earning capacity of the property.

(c) The aggregate value of the physical or tangible property, and the franchise, as thus determined, shall be the true value of the property for the purpose of ad valorem taxation, and shall be apportioned in the same proportion that the length of such road in such county bears to the entire length of each division or branch thereof, and the state board of assessment shall certify, on or before the first day of September, or as soon thereafter as practicable, to the chairman of the county commissioners and to the mayor of each city or incorporated town the amounts apportioned to his county, city or town. The board of county commissioners of each county through which said railroad passes shall assess against the same only the tax imposed for county, township, or other taxing district purposes, the same as is levied on other property in such county, township, or special taxing districts. (1939, c. 310, s. 1615.)

§ 105-366. Railroads; valuation where road both within and without state.—When any railroad has part of its road in this state and part thereof in any other state, the said board shall ascertain the value of railroad track, rolling stock, and all other property liable to assessment by the state board of assessment of such company as provided in § 105-365, and divide it in the proportion to the length such main line of road in this state bears to the whole length of such main line of road and determine the value in this state accordingly: Provided, the board shall, in valuing the fixed property in this state, give due consideration to the character of roadbed and fixed equipment, number of miles of double track, the amount of gross and net earnings per mile of road in this state, and any other factor which would give a greater or less value per mile of road in this state than the average value for the entire system. On or after the first Monday in the month following the month in which said reports are required to be made, the said board shall give a hearing to all the companies interested, touching the valuation and assessment of their property. The said board may, if they see fit, require all argument and communications to be presented in writing. (1939, c. 310, s. 1616.)

§ 105-367. Railroads; in cases of leased roads.—If the property of any railroad company be leased or operated by any other corporation, foreign or domestic, the property of the lessor or company whose property is operated shall be subject to taxation in the manner hereinbefore directed; and if the lessee or operating company, being a foreign corporation, be the owner or possessor of any property in this state other than that which it derives from the lessor or company whose property is operated, it shall be assessed in respect to such property in like manner as any domestic railroad company. (1939, c. 310, s. 1617.)

§ 105-368. Railroads; board may subpoena witnesses and compel production of records; penalty for failure to furnish required information.—The state board of assessment shall have power to summon and examine witnesses and require that books and papers shall be presented to them for the purpose of obtaining such information as may be necessary to aid in determining the valuation of any railroad company. Any president, secretary, receiver, or accounting officer, servant or agent of any railroad or steamboat company having any proportion of its property or roadway in this state who shall refuse to attend before the said board when required to do so, or refuse to submit to the inspection of said board any books or papers of such railroad company in his possession, custody, or control, or shall refuse to answer such questions as may be put to him by said board, or order touching the business or property, monies and credits, and the value thereof, of said railroad company, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction thereof before any court of competent jurisdiction shall be confined in the jail of the county not exceeding thirty days, shall be fined in any sum not exceeding five hundred dollars ($500.00) and costs, and any president, secretary, accounting officer, servant, or agent aforesaid so refusing as aforesaid shall be deemed guilty of contempt of such board, and may be confined, by order of said board, in the jail of the proper county until he shall comply with such order and pay the cost of his imprisonment. (1939, c. 310, s. 1618.)

§ 105-369. Taxes on railroads shall be a lien on property of the same.—The taxes upon any and all railroads in this state, including roadbed, right-of-way, depots, side tracks, ties, and rails, now constructed or hereafter to be constructed, are hereby made a perpetual lien thereupon, commencing from the day as of which property is assessed in each current year, against all claims or demands whatsoever of all persons or bodies corporate except the United States and this state, and the above described property or any part thereof may be taken and held for payment of all taxes assessed against said railroad company in the several counties of this state. (1939, c. 310, s. 1619.)

§ 105-370. Board of assessment to certify apportionment of valuation to counties and municipalities; payment of local taxes.—The state board of assessment shall, upon completion of the assessment directed in the preceding sections, certify to the register of deeds or tax supervisor of the counties and the clerk of the board of commissioners of the municipalities through which said companies operate the apportionment of the valuations as hereinbefore determined and apportioned by the board, and the board of county commissioners and taxing authorities of municipalities or other taxing jurisdictions respectively, shall assess against such valuation the same tax imposed for county, township, town, or other tax district purposes, as that levied on all other property in such county, township, town, or other taxing districts. This tax shall be paid to the sheriff or tax collector of the county and municipality. (1939, c. 310, s. 1620.)

§ 105-371. Canal and steamboat companies.—The property of all canal and steamboat companies in this state shall be assessed for taxation as above provided for railroads. In case any officer fails to return the property provided in this section, the board shall ascertain the length of such property in this state, and shall assess the same in proportion to the length at the highest rate at which property of that kind is assessed by them. (1939, c. 310, s. 1621.)

Art. 27. Collection and Foreclosure of Taxes.

§ 105-372. Definitions.—As used in this article, unless the context otherwise indicates:

(1) "Tax collector" or "collector" means sheriffs, tax collectors and all other officials charged with the duty of collecting taxes levied by or for counties, cities, school districts, road districts or other political subdivisions of this state.

(2) "Taxes" means property taxes (other than taxes levied under Schedule H, §§ 105-198 to 105-217), poll taxes and dog taxes levied by or for counties, cities, school districts, road districts or other political subdivisions of this state.

(3) "Taxing unit" means any county, city, school district, road district or other political subdivision of this state by or for which taxes are levied.

(4) "City" means any incorporated city or town.

(5) "District" means any taxing unit other than counties and cities.

(6) "Person" means any individual, firm, corporation, company, partnership, trust, estate, or fiduciary. (1939, c. 310, s. 1700.)

§ 105-373. Appointment, terms, qualifications and bond of city tax collectors.—The governing body of each city in this state shall appoint a tax collector, who shall be some person of character and integrity, with experience in business or in collection work, to collect taxes levied by the city governing body. The governing body may, in its discretion, designate some official or employee of the city who has other duties, to perform also the duties of tax collector. The governing body shall fix the compensation of said collector and, subject to the provisions of this article, shall prescribe the amount of his bond and approve the sureties thereon. Any premiums on said bond shall be paid in such manner as the governing body may direct. No tax collector shall be allowed to begin his duties until he shall have furnished bond satisfactory to the governing body; nor shall any collector be permitted to continue collecting taxes after his bond has expired without renewal; nor shall any collector be allowed to collect any taxes not covered by his bond.

The collector shall serve for a term of one year and until his successor has been appointed and has qualified. The governing body may, during his term, remove him from office, for good cause shown, upon notice in writing and after giving him an opportunity to appear and be heard at a public session of said governing body: Provided, that no hearing shall be necessary in case of removal for failure to meet the conditions prerequisite prescribed by this article for the delivery of the tax books. Any vacancy caused by removal, resignation, death or otherwise shall be filled, for the unexpired term, by appointment of the governing body, unless otherwise provided by this article.

Appointments under this article shall be made during the first week in July, one thousand nine hundred thirty-nine, and annually thereafter. Until the first such appointments are made, city taxes shall be collected by the collectors now provided by law, notwithstanding any repealing clauses contained in this article.

Nothing in this section shall be construed to change the manner of appointment or term of any collector who collects both city and county taxes, or of any city collector whose manner of appointment or term is governed by the city charter. (1939, c. 310, s. 1701.)

§ 105-374. County sheriffs and tax collectors.—County and district taxes shall be collected by the sheriffs or tax collectors as provided by law: Provided, that district taxes levied by county commissioners and collected by county officials may, for collection and foreclosure purposes, be treated in the same manner as county taxes. (1939, c. 310, s. 1702.)

§ 105-375. General duties of tax collectors. — It shall be the duty of each tax collector to employ all lawful means for the collection of all taxes in his hands; to give such bond as may be required of him; to perform such duties in connection with the preparation of the tax records, receipts and stubs as the governing body may direct; to keep adequate records of all collections; and to account for all moneys coming into his hands. At each regular meeting of the governing body he shall submit a report of the amount collected on each year's taxes in his hands, the amount remaining uncollected, and the steps he is taking to encourage or enforce payment. The governing body may, at any time, require him to make settlement in full for all taxes in his hands. The governing body may also, at any time, require the collector to send out tax bills or notices, make personal calls upon delinquent taxpayers, or proceed to enforce payment by any lawful means. In addition to the taxes hereinbefore in this article defined, all license, privilege and franchise taxes levied by the taxing unit by which he is employed shall be collected by the collector.

The successor in office of any tax collector may continue and complete any process of tax collection, or any proceeding authorized by this article, begun by his predecessor. (1939, c. 310, s. 1703.)

§ 105-376. The tax lien and discharge thereof.—(a) Priority of the Tax Lien on Real Property.—(1) The lien of taxes shall attach to real property at the time hereinbefore in this subchapter prescribed.

(2) The liens of taxes of all taxing units shall be of equal dignity and shall be superior to all other assessments, charges, rights, liens, and claims of any and every kind in and to said property, regardless of by whom claimed and regardless of whether acquired prior or subsequent to the attachment of said lien for taxes: Provided, that nothing herein shall be construed as affecting such relative priority as may be prescribed by the Revenue Act for the lien of state taxes.

(3) The priority of the lien shall not be affected by transfer of title to the real property after the lien has attached, nor shall it be affected by death, receivership or bankruptcy of the owner of said property.

(b) Discharge of the Lien on Realty; Release of Separate Parcels.—The tax lien shall continue until the taxes, plus interest, penalties, and costs as allowed by law, have been fully paid.

When the lien of taxes of any taxing unit for any year attaches to two or more parcels of real estate owned by the same taxpayer, said lien may be discharged as to any parcel, at any time prior to advertisement of tax foreclosure sale, in the following manner: (1) Upon payment, by or on behalf of the listing taxpayer, of the taxes for said year on the parcel or parcels sought to be released, with penalties and interest thereon, plus all personal property, poll and dog taxes owed by said taxpayer for the same year, with interest and penalties thereon, and all costs allowed by law; or (2) upon payment, by or on behalf of any person (other than said listing taxpayer) having an interest in said property, of the taxes for said year on the parcel or parcels sought to be released, with interest and penalties thereon, plus a proportionate part of personal property, poll and dog taxes owed by said listing taxpayer for the same year, with interest and penalties thereon, and a proportionate part of costs allowed by law. The proportionate parts shall be determined by the percentage of the total assessed value of the taxpayer's real estate represented by the assessed value of the parcel or parcels sought to be released.

Nothing in this section shall be construed to affect the rights of any holder of a tax sale certificate, other than a taxing unit, with respect to any certificate held on April 3, 1939.

When real estate listed as one parcel is subdivided, a part thereof may be released in the same manner, after the value of such part for tax purposes has been determined by the county tax supervisor or, if there is no supervisor, by the county accountant, and certified by him to the collector.

It shall be the duty of every collector accepting a payment, made under this section for the purpose of releasing less than all of the taxpayer's real property, to give the person making the payment a receipt setting forth the description of such property appearing on the tax list and bearing a statement that such property is being released; and it shall also be his duty to indicate the property released on the official records of his office. In case of failure on the part of the collector to issue such receipt or make such record, the omission may be supplied at any time.

When any parcel of real estate has been released, under this section, from the lien of taxes of any taxing unit for any year, such property shall not thereafter be subject to the lien of any other regularly assessed taxes of the same taxing unit for the same year, whether such other taxes be levied against the listing owner of said property or against some other person acquiring title thereto. No tax foreclosure judgment for such other taxes shall become a lien on such released property; and, upon appropriate request and satisfactory proof of release by any interested person, the clerk of the superior court shall indicate on the judgment docket that such judgment is not a lien on said released property: Provided, that failure to make such entry shall not have the effect of making said judgment a lien on said released property.

(c) Priority of Lien on Personal Property.—The tax lien, when it attaches to personal property, shall, in so far as it represents taxes assessed against the property to which it attaches, be superior to all other liens and rights, whether such other liens and rights are prior or subsequent to the tax lien in point of time. In so far as said tax lien represents taxes not assessed against such property, said tax lien on personal property shall be inferior to prior valid liens and superior to all subsequent liens. As between the liens of different taxing units, the lien first attaching shall be superior.

(d) Preference Accorded Taxes in Liquidation of Debtor's Estates.—In all cases in which a taxpayer's assets are in the hands of a receiver or assignee for the benefit of creditors, or are otherwise being liquidated or managed for the benefit of creditors, the taxes owed by such debtor, together with interest, penalties and costs, shall be a preferred claim, second only to administration expenses and specific liens: Provided, that this shall not be construed to modify or reduce the priority by this subchapter given to tax liens on real property or, in case of levy or attachment, the priority by this subchapter given to tax liens on personal property. (1939, c. 310, s. 1704.)

Duration of Lien.—The general assembly, pursuant to the constitution, has established the procedure for levying and collecting taxes, and when levied "The tax lien shall continue until the taxes, plus interest, penalties and costs, as allowed by law, have been fully paid." Charlotte v. Kavanaugh, 221 N. C. 259, 266, 20 S. E. (2d) 97.

§ 105-377. All interested persons charged with notice of taxes.—All persons who have or may acquire any interest in any property which may be or may become subject to a lien for taxes are hereby charged with notice that such property is or should be listed for taxation, that taxes are or may become a lien thereon, and that if taxes are not paid such proceedings may be taken against said property as are allowed by law. Such notice shall be conclusively presumed, whether such persons have actual notice or not. (1939, c. 310, s. 1705.)

§ 105-378. Prepayments.—Payments on taxes, made before the tax books have been turned over to the collector, shall be made to such official as the governing body of the taxing unit may designate, and the official so designated shall give bond satisfactory to said governing body. If, at the time of such prepayment, the tax rate has not been finally fixed or the valuation of the taxpayer's property has not been finally determined, the prepayment may be made on the basis of the best information available to the collecting official. If it subsequently develops that there has been an overpayment, the excess shall be refunded by the taxing unit, without interest. If it develops that there has been an underpayment, the taxpayer shall be required to pay the balance due, and shall be allowed the same discount or charged the same penalty on such balance as in force with respect to other taxes for the same year at the time such balance is paid. Receipts issued for payments made on the basis of an estimate shall so state, and such receipts shall not release property from the tax lien; but official and final receipts, effecting such release, shall be made available to the taxpayer as soon as possible after determination that the tax has been fully paid. (1939, c. 310, s. 1706.)

§ 105-379. Delivery of tax books to collector; prerequisites thereto; procedure upon default.—(a) Time of Delivery.—The tax books shall be delivered to the collector, upon order of the governing body, on or before the first Monday in October, as hereinbefore in § 105-325 provided.

(b) Settlement and Bond as Prerequisites; Prepayments.—The tax books for the current year shall not be delivered to the collector until he shall have: (1) delivered to the chief accounting officer of the taxing unit the duplicates or stubs of such receipts as he may have issued for prepayments lawfully received by him; (2) demonstrated to the satisfaction of said chief accounting officer that all moneys received by him as such prepayments have been deposited to the credit of the taxing unit; (3) made his annual settlement, as hereinafter defined, for all taxes in his hands for collection; and (4) provided bond or bonds for the current taxes and all prior taxes in his hands for collection satisfactory to the governing body: Provided, that this shall not authorize any governing body of any unit to accept a bond of lesser amount than that prescribed by any valid local statute applying to said unit.

Any other official who has accepted prepayments shall, prior to the delivery of the tax books to the collector, deliver the prepayment receipt duplicates or stubs to the chief accounting officer of the unit and shall demonstrate to the satisfaction of said chief accounting officer that all moneys received by him as such prepayments have been deposited to the credit of the taxing unit: Provided, that where said chief accounting officer has himself lawfully accepted prepayments, he shall, not later than the day on which the tax books are delivered to the collector, make settlement therefor with the governing body in such manner and form as said governing body may prescribe.

It shall be the duty of said chief accounting officer: (1) to reduce the original charge made against the tax collector by deducting from the total amount of taxes levied so much of the amount received as prepayments as need not be refunded under the provisions of this article; (2) to secure and retain in his office, available to the taxpayers upon request, the regular receipts for taxes paid in full by prepayments, and to credit such payments on the tax books or accounts delivered to the collector; (3) to prepare refunds for overpayments made by way of prepayment (such disbursements to be made in the same manner as other disbursements of funds of the taxing unit are made); and (4) to credit all partial prepayments as partial payments on the regular receipts or tax accounts.

(c) Procedure upon Default.—If, on or before the first Monday in October, the regular tax collector shall not meet the requirements prescribed in subsection (b), the governing body is hereby required immediately to appoint a special collector, not connected with the regular collector, and deliver to him the tax books for the current year. Said special collector shall give satisfactory bond in the same amount as would be required of the regular collector. He shall receive as compensation two per cent (2%) of his collections or such amount as may be fixed by the governing body; and the compensation received by him and the cost of his bond may, in the discretion of the governing body, be deducted from the compensation of the regular collector. If and when the regular collector shall meet the requirements specified in the preceding subsection, the special collector shall make full settlement, in the manner hereinafter provided for collectors retiring from office, and shall then turn over the tax books to the regular collector.

(d) Civil and Criminal Penalties.—(1) Any member of the governing body of any taxing unit who shall vote to deliver the tax books or tax receipts to a tax collector, before said collector has met the requirements prescribed in this section, shall be individually liable for the amount of taxes due by said collector; and any such member so voting, or who willfully fails to perform any duty imposed by this section, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, punishable by fine or imprisonment, or both, in the discretion of the court.

(2) Any tax collector or other official who shall fail to account for prepayments received in the manner prescribed by this section, and any chief accounting officer failing to perform the duties imposed upon him by this section, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, subject to fine or imprisonment, or both, in the discretion of the court. (1939, c. 310, s. 1707.)

§ 105-380. Installment payments. — The governing body of any taxing unit may, in its discretion, allow payment of taxes in not more than four equal installments, the last of which shall be payable not later than the week preceding the day fixed for the beginning of advertisement of the tax sale. The governing body of any unit permitting such installment payments, shall: (a) provide that, upon default in any installment, penalties shall accrue immediately upon the entire balance remaining unpaid at the same rate which would have accrued had such installment plan not been adopted; or (b) provide that, upon default in any installment, penalties shall accrue upon the amount of such installment at the same rate which would have accrued had such installment plan not been adopted. Payments made to taxing units adopting installment plans shall not be credited on any installment until all prior installments, together with any penalties thereon, have been paid.

It shall be the duty of each governing body and each collector of a taxing unit adopting an installment plan to indicate, on the tax receipts and on any bills or notices sent to taxpayers, the due dates of the installments and the method by which penalties will be ascertained upon default in payment of any installment: Provided, that failure to fulfill this requirement shall not affect the validity of the taxes. (1939, c. 310, s. 1708.)

§ 105-381. Partial payments. — Unless otherwise directed by the governing body, the tax collector shall, at any time, accept partial payments on taxes and issue a partial payment receipt therefor. In crediting a payment on the tax for any year or on any instaliment, the payment shall first be applied to accrued penalties, interest and costs and then to the principal amount of such tax or installment. (1939, c. 310, s. 1709.)

§ 105-382. Payment of taxes; notes and checks. —Taxes shall be payable in existing national currency.

No tax collector shall accept a note of the taxpayer in payment of taxes.

Any collector may, in his discretion and at his own risk, accept checks in payment of taxes, and either issue the tax receipt immediately or withhold said receipt until the check has been collected. In any case in which a collector accepts a check and issues a receipt, and said check is thereafter returned unpaid, without negligence on the part of said collector in presenting said check for payment, the taxes for which said check was given shall be deemed unpaid; and the collector shall immediately correct his records and shall proceed to collect said taxes either by civil suit on the check or by the use of any remedy allowed for the collection of taxes: Provided, that the lien for said taxes shall be inferior to the rights of purchasers for value and of persons acquiring liens of record for value, when such purchasers or lienholders acquire their rights, in good faith and without actual knowledge that such check has not been collected, after examination of the collector's records during the time such records showed the taxes as paid or after examination of the official receipt issued to the taxpayer.

In addition to penalties for nonpayment of taxes provided by this subchapter, and in addition to any criminal penalties provided by law for the giving of worthless checks, the penalty for giving, in payment of taxes, a check which is returned because of insufficient funds or nonexistence of an account of the drawer, shall be ten per cent (10%) of the amount of such check, which shall be added to and collected in the same manner as such taxes. (1939, c. 310, s. 1710.)

Editor's Note.—For acts authorizing counties and municipalities to accept deeds for real property in payment of taxes or special assessments and to sell such property, see Session Laws 1943, c. 465 (Catawba county and municipalities therein); c. 418 (Guilford county); c. 577 (Durham county and city of Durham); c. 533 (city of High Point).

Failure to Follow Statutory Procedure upon Return of Check.—The fact that a county tax collector accepted a check in payment of taxes, and the check was returned, and he paid the taxes in his settlement with the board of county commissioners does not give him a lien which may be foreclosed under § 105-414. The collector, having failed to correct the tax record so as to show the check had been returned and that the taxes were not paid, the tax lien was not reinstated. He could have protected himself and preserved the tax lien if he had followed the procedure outlined in this section; this he failed to do and the returned check was but a simple promise to pay. Since the provisions of this section enacted for the protection of the collector were not complied with and he elected to hold the returned check as evidence of the nonpayment of the taxes, he is in no better position than if he had accepted a note in lieu of the check. Miller v. Neal, 222 N. C. 540, 542, 23 S. E. (2d) 852.

§ 105-383. Statements of amount of taxes due.—Any tax collector shall, at the request of the owner or occupant of any land within the taxing unit, or of any person having a lien thereon or interest or estate therein, or of the duly authorized agent or attorney of any such person, furnish a written certificate of the amount of the taxes and assessments levied upon such land for the current year, if such amount has been definitely determined, and for all prior years for which taxes and assessments may be due, together with penalties, interest and costs accrued thereon: Provided, that this shall not require any collector to furnish information regarding taxes not in his hands for collection: Provided, further, that the person making such request shall specify in whose name said land was listed for taxation for each year for which such information is sought.

Any collector failing or refusing to furnish such certificate, upon request in good faith made as herein provided, shall be liable for a penalty of fifty dollars ($50.00). (1939, c. 310, s. 1711.)

§ 105-384. Place for collection of taxes.—Taxes shall be payable at the office of the collector: Provided, that the governing body of any taxing unit may for the convenience of the taxpayers, require the collector, in person or by deputy, to attend at other places, at times to be designated by said governing body, for the collection of taxes. Fifteen days' notice of such times and places shall be given by the collector by advertisement published in some newspaper published in the county, and, if there be no such newspaper published in the county, then by posting such notice at three or more places in said unit. (1939, c. 310, s. 1712.)

§ 105-385. Remedies against personal property.—(a) Time for.—From the first day of the fiscal year until taxes become due the collector shall not proceed against the personal property of the taxpayer, in the manner herein provided, unless there is reasonable ground for believing that the taxpayer is about to remove his property from the state. The collector may proceed against such personal property, in the manner herein provided, at any time after taxes are due and before filing of a tax foreclosure complaint or docketing of a judgment for said taxes as hereinafter provided. Every official charged with the duty of collecting taxes, current or delinquent, shall have power and authority to proceed against such personal property in the manner herein provided.

(b) Relation between Remedies against Personal Property and Remedies against Real Property.—The collector may proceed against the personal property of the taxpayer, as herein provided, in his discretion; and he shall proceed against such property: (1) if directed so to do by the governing body; or (2) upon demand by the taxpayer, mortgagee or other person holding a lien upon the real property of the taxpayer: Provided, that said taxpayer, mortgagee or other person making said demand shall furnish the collector with a written memorandum describing such personal property and stating where it can be found.

After the sale of a tax sale certificate, no person shall be allowed to attack the validity of the sale on the ground that the tax should have been procured from personal property; but this shall not be construed as prohibiting proceedings against personal property after said sale.

(c) Levy upon Personal Property.—Subject to the provisions of this article governing the priority of the lien acquired, the following property may be levied upon and sold for failure to pay taxes: (1) any personal property of the taxpayer, regardless of the time at which it was acquired and regardless of the existence or date of creation of mortgages or other liens thereon; (2) any personal property transferred by the taxpayer to relatives of the taxpayer; (3) personal property in the hands of a receiver for the taxpayer and in such cases it shall not be necessary for the collector to apply for an order of the court directing payment or authorizing the levy, but said collector may proceed as if the property were not in the hands of a receiver or in the custody of the law; (4) personal property of a deceased taxpayer: Provided, the levy is made prior to final settlement of the estate; (5) personal property transferred by the taxpayer, after the taxes levied for were due, by any type of transfer other than those hereinbefore mentioned in this subsection and other than by bona fide sale for value: Provided, the levy is made within sixty days after such transfer.

The levy and sale shall be governed by the laws regulating levy and sale under execution: Provided, that it shall not be necessary for said levy to be made or said sale to be conducted by the sheriff, and the collector is hereby given the same authority as a sheriff to make said levy and conduct said sale. The collector shall be entitled to fifty cents for each levy and fifty cents for each actual sale. Said fees, plus actual advertising costs, shall be added to and collected in the same manner as the taxes. The advertising costs, when collected, shall be used to reimburse the taxing unit, which shall advance the cost of said advertising; and the levy and sale fees, when collected, shall be treated in the same manner as other fees collected by said official.

(d) Attachment and Garnishment.—Subject to the provisions of this article governing the priority of rights acquired, the collector may attach wages or other compensation, rents, bank deposits, the proceeds of property subject to levy and sale, or other property incapable of manual delivery: Provided, the same belongs to the taxpayer or has been transferred to another under circumstances which would permit it to be levied upon if it were tangible, or is due to the taxpayer or may become due to him within the calendar year; and the person owing same or having same in his possession shall become liable for the taxes to the extent of the amount he owes or has in his possession: Provided, that not more than ten per cent of wages or other compensation for personal services shall be liable to attachment and garnishment for failure to pay taxes.

To proceed under this subsection, the collector shall serve or cause to be served upon the taxpayer and the person owing or having in his possession the wages, rents, debts or other things sought to be attached, a notice showing at least: (1) the name of the taxpayer; (2) the amount of the taxes, penalties and costs (including the fees allowed by this subsection) and year or years for which such taxes were levied; (3) the name of the taxing unit or units by which such taxes were levied; (4) a brief description of the thing sought to be attached; and (5) a statement that the person served has the right to appear, within ten days after service, before some designated justice of the peace or (if the amount is beyond the jurisdiction of a justice of the peace) the superior court in the county in which the taxing unit lies, and show cause why he should not be compelled to pay said taxes, penalties and costs.

Notices concerning two or more taxpayers may be combined if they are to be served upon the same person, but in such case the taxes, penalties and costs charged against each taxpayer must be set forth separately.

A copy of each notice shall be retained by the collector and a copy shall be filed, not later than the first business day following the day of service, with the justice or court before which the notice is returnable, together with a notation of service. Upon entry of judgment, by default or after appearance and hearing, in favor of the taxing unit, the person so served shall become liable for the taxes, penalties and costs: Provided, that payment shall not be required from amounts which are to become due to the taxpayer until they actually become due.

The fee for serving said notice shall be fixed by the governing body of the taxing unit, not exceeding twenty-five cents if the tax is less than ten dollars and fifty cents if the tax is ten dollars or more: Provided, if the taxes of more than one taxpayer are included in the notice, the service fee shall not exceed fifteen cents per taxpaper. The justice's fee shall be twenty-five cents if the tax is less than ten dollars and one dollar if the tax is ten dollars or more plus one dollar for each hearing actually held, but no justices' fees shall be charged except in cases in which judgment is actually entered. Costs in the superior court shall be the same as in other proceedings therein. Fees and costs shall be added to and collected as part of the taxes: Provided, that if judgment is rendered against the taxing unit such costs and fees shall be paid by the taxing unit. All fees collected by officers shall be disposed of in the same manner as other fees collected by such officers.

(e) Employees of State and Its Subdivisions.—Tax collectors may proceed against the wages, salary or other compensation of officials and employees of this state and its agencies and instrumentalities and officials and employees of political subdivisions of this state and their agencies and instrumentalities in the manner provided by subsection (d) of this section. In such cases the notice shall be served upon the treasurer of the employing government or agency or instrumentality and, if there is no treasurer, then upon the chief financial officer thereof. In the case of notices served upon the state treasurer, the notice shall state the place and character of the taxpayer's employment.

(f) Lists of Employees.—Any person, firm or corporation who shall, after written demand therefor, refuse to give the tax collector or tax supervisor a list of all employees of such person, firm or corporation who may be liable for taxes, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (1939, c. 310, s. 1713.)

Sale by Assignee Prior to Levy.—Where an assignee for the benefit of the creditors of a taxpayer sells personal property of his assignor, on which a tax had been assessed, but not levied, prior to the assignment, the proceeds in the hands of the assignee are not subject to garnishment for the payment of the tax, but belong to the creditors. Shelby v. Tiddy, 118 N. C. 792, 24 S. E. 521.

§ 105-386. Collection of taxes outside the taxing unit.—If a taxpayer has no property in the taxing unit to which the taxes are due, but does have property in some other unit, or if the taxpayer has removed from the taxing unit in which the taxes are due and has left no property there and is known to be in some other unit in this state, it shall be the duty of the collector to send a copy of the tax receipt, with a certificate stating that such taxes are unpaid, to the collector of the unit in which such property is located or in which such taxpayer is known to be. Such receipt and certificate shall have the force and effect of a tax list of his own unit in the hands of the collector receiving it, and it shall be the duty of such collector to proceed immediately to collect such taxes by any means by which he could lawfully collect taxes of his own unit. The collector receiving such receipt and certificate shall report, within thirty days after such receipt, to the collector who sent the same, either that he has collected the same or is unable to collect the same by any lawful means or that he has begun proceedings for the collection of same. All collections made under this section shall be remitted to the unit levying the tax within five days after such collection, but the collector making collection shall retain ten per centum of the amount thereof, which shall be for his personal use. All reports under this section, reporting that the tax is uncollectible, shall be under oath and shall state that the collector has used due diligence and is unable to collect said taxes by levy, garnishment or otherwise. Upon failure to make such sworn report the collector receiving such receipt and certificate shall be liable on his bond for such taxes.

It shall be the duty of the governing body of each taxing unit to require reports from the tax collector, at such times as it may prescribe (but not less frequently than in connection with each annual settlement), concerning the efforts he has made to locate taxpayers who have removed from the unit, the efforts he has made to locate property in other units belonging to delinquent taxpayers, and the efforts he has made under this section to collect the taxes. (1939, c. 310, s. 1714.)

§ 105-387. Sales of tax liens on real property for failure to pay taxes.—(a) Report of Delinquent Taxes Which Are Liens on Real Property. —The tax collector of each county and district shall, on the first Monday in April each year, and the tax collector of each city shall, on the second Monday in April each year, report a list of all taxpayers owing taxes for the current year which are liens on real property, and the governing body shall thereupon order sale of the tax lien on said real property of said taxpayers to be held at one of the times hereinafter prescribed. For purposes of all subsections of this section, district taxes collected by city tax collectors shall be regarded as city taxes.

(b) Date of Sale; Effect of Delay.—The county and district sale shall be held on the first Monday, and the city sale on the second Monday, in May or in any of the four succeeding months. Failure to hold said sale within the time prescribed shall not affect the validity of the taxes or the tax liens, nor shall it affect the validity of the sale when thereafter held. All sales held shall begin, in the case of county and district taxes, on the first Monday of the month and, in the case of city taxes, on the second Monday in the month: Provided, that where county and city taxes are collected by the same collector, the sale may be held on either of said Mondays.

No sale shall be delayed or restrained by order of any court of this state.

(c) Advertisement of Sale.—Public notice of the time, place and purpose of such sale shall be given by advertisement at the door of the courthouse or city hall for four successive weeks preceding such sale, and by advertisement once each week for four successive weeks preceding such sale in some newspaper published in the county. If there be no newspaper published in the county, such advertisement shall be posted in at least one public place in each township, in the case of county taxes, and in at least three public places in the city in the case of city taxes.

Said advertisement shall set forth, in addition to the time, place and purpose of such sale: (1) the name of each taxpayer owing taxes which are a lien on real estate; (2) a brief description of the land listed in the name of each; (3) the principal amount of the taxes owed by each. Failure to include penalties and costs in the amount advertised shall not be construed as a waiver of same, but such advertisement shall state generally that the amounts advertised are subject to be increased by such penalties and costs.

(d) Place and Hour of Sale. — All county and district sales shall be held at the courthouse door, and city sales shall be held at the courthouse door or at the city hall door as the collector may advertise. All sales shall begin at such hour as may be specified in the advertisement, and they may be continued from day to day, if continuance is necessary in order to complete the sales, without further advertisement.

(e) Manner of Sale.—The sale may be conducted by the collector or any deputy designated by him for the purpose. The tax liens on all parcels advertised against one taxpayer shall be sold as one lot at public outcry to the highest bidder: Provided, that in case of county sales, liens on parcels in different townships may be sold separately. The collector may, in his discretion, demand immediate payment from any successful bidder, and reject such bid upon failure to comply with said demand. No bid shall be received unless for an amount at least equal to the principal amount of the taxes plus all penalties and costs accrued thereon. In the absence of a bid at least equal to such sum the taxing unit shall become the purchaser, without submitting a formal bid, for an amount equal to such sum.

In all cases in which bids are accepted which exceed such sum the tax collector shall immediately report such excess to the governing body, and said governing body shall order such excess paid directly to the person entitled thereto or order it paid to the clerk of superior court for distribution as the court may direct.

(f) Costs of Sale.—Costs of sale, which shall be included in the minimum sale price, shall consist of actual advertising cost and a sale fee not exceeding fifty cents (50c) per parcel. Actual advertising cost per parcel shall be determined by the collector, and may be determined upon an advertising lineage basis or an average cost per insertion basis or by any other reasonable method. The taxing unit shall pay all advertising expense, and all advertising cost collected shall be paid to it for use as its governing body may direct. All sale fees collected shall be treated in the same manner as other fees collected by said collector.

(g) Payments during the Advertising Period.— At any time between the beginning of the advertisement and the time of actual sale, any parcel may be withdrawn from the sale list by payment of taxes and penalties as required by law and a proportionate part of the advertising cost as determined by the collector. Thereafter, such parcel shall be eliminated from the advertisement: Provided, that failure to eliminate such parcel shall not subject the collector to liability if the lien on said parcel is not thereafter actually sold.

(h) Failure of Collector to Attend Sale.—If any collector shall fail to attend any duly advertised sale, in person or by competent deputy, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and liable on his bond to a penalty of three hundred dollars.

(i) Land Listed in Wrong Name. — No sale shall be void because such real estate was charged in the name of any other person than the rightful owner, if such real estate be in other respects correctly described on the tax list: Provided, no sale of the lien on real estate listed in the name of the wrong person shall be valid when the rightful owner has listed the same and paid the taxes thereon.

(j) Irregularities Immaterial.—No irregularities in making assessments or in making the returns thereof in the equalization of property as provided by law, or in any other proceeding or requirement, shall invalidate the sale of tax liens on real estate or sale of real estate in tax foreclosure proceedings, nor in any manner invalidate the tax levied on any property or charged against any person. The following defects, omissions, and circumstances occurring in the assessment of any property for taxation, or in the levy of taxes, or elsewhere in the course of the proceedings, shall be deemed to be irregularities within the meaning of this subsection; the failure of the assessors to take or subscribe an oath or attach an oath to an assessment roll; the omission of a dollar mark or other designation descriptive of the value of figures used to denote an amount assessed, levied, or charged against any property or the valuation of any property upon any record; the failure to make or serve any notice mentioned in this chapter; the failure or neglect of the collector to offer any tax lien or real estate for sale at the time mentioned in the advertisement or notice of such sale; failure of the collector to adjourn the sale from day to day, or any irregularity or informality in such adjournment; any irregularity or informality in the order or manner in which tax liens or real estate may be offered for sale; the failure to assess any property for taxes or to levy any tax within the time prescribed by law; any irregularity, informality or omission in any such assessment or levy; any defect in the description, upon any assessment book, tax list, sales book, or other record, of real or personal property, assessed for taxation, or upon which any taxes are levied, or which may be sold for taxes, provided such description be sufficiently definite to enable the collector, or any person interested, to determine what property is meant or intended by the description, and in such cases a defective or indefinite description, on any book, list, or record, or in any notice or advertisement, may be made definite by the collector at any time by correcting such book, list or record, or may be made definite by using a correct description in any tax foreclosure proceeding authorized by this subchapter, and any such correction shall have the same force and effect as if said description had been correct on the tax list; any other irregularity, informality, or omission or neglect on the part of any person or in any proceedings, whether mentioned in this subsection or not; the neglect or omission to tax or assess for taxation any person or property; the overtaxation of persons or property liable to be taxed.

(k) Acts of De Facto Officers.—In all actions, proceedings, and controversies involving the title to real property held under and by virtue of a tax sale or any tax foreclosure proceedings authorized by this article, all acts of assessors, clerks, sheriffs, collectors, supervisors, commissioners and other officers de facto shall be deemed and construed to be of the same validity as acts of officers de jure.

(l) Proof of Sale.—The books and records of the office of the collector making the sale, or copies thereof properly certified, shall be deemed sufficient evidence to prove the sale of the tax lien on any real property under this section, the redemption thereof or the payment of taxes thereon.

(m) Wrongful Sale.—Any collector or deputy collector who shall sell, or assist in selling, the tax lien on any real property, knowing the same not to be subject to taxation, or that the taxes for which the lien is sold have been paid, or shall knowingly and willingly sell or assist in selling the tax lien on any real property for payment of taxes to defraud the owner of such real property, or shall knowingly and willingly cause foreclosure proceedings to be instituted against real property so sold, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and be liable to a fine of not less than one thousand nor more than three thousand dollars, or to imprisonment not exceeding one year, or to both fine and imprisonment, and to pay the injured party all damages sustained by such act; and all such sales shall be void.

When by mistake or wrongful act of the collector a tax lien on real property has been sold on which no tax was due, the taxing unit shall reimburse the purchaser by paying to him the amount expended by him in such purchase, with interest thereon at six per cent per annum; and the collector shall be liable to the taxing unit upon his bond for all amounts so expended by it in excess of the amount received by it from said sale. Any amount paid by a taxing unit under this section for state taxes shall, on proper certificate from the chairman of the governing body, be allowed by the auditor and paid by the treasurer of the state, and the state shall have the right of recovery against the collector on his bond to the amount so paid.

(n) Joint Sales by Several Taxing Units.—Wherever the taxes of two or more taxing units are collected by the same collector, one sale shall be held for the taxes of both at such time as is prescribed by law for sales by either; and in the absence of bids the larger unit may become the purchaser, or such units may become joint purchasers, for the benefit of all according to their respective interests: Provided, that this shall not repeal any local law designating the purchaser in case of joint sales. (1939, c. 310, s. 1715.)

Local Modification.—Wayne: 1941, c. 40; Cumberland: 1941, c. 44, s. 1(a).

The power to sell real estate for taxes was repealed by chapter 310, Public Laws 1939, and the sheriff or tax collector is limited to the sale of the tax lien. Crandall v. Clemmons, 222 N. C. 225, 227, 22 S. E. (2d) 448.

The tax lien can be enforced only by an action in the superior court in the county in which the land is situated in the nature of an action to foreclose a mortgage. Crandall v. Clemmons, 222 N. C. 225, 227, 22 S. E. (2d) 448. See § 105-391.

Power of Redemption.—Under this section the first sale by the sheriff has no more significance than to put the purchaser in the position of a lienor as represented by his certificate of sale, which he must enforce, as in the case of mortgage, by a foreclosure of the equity of redemption. The imminence of injury to the remainderman by "disherison" or loss of his estate through operation of the first sale has been almost altogether removed, since, to secure foreclosure, the purchaser must institute and carry to conclusion a suit in which all interested persons must be made parties and notified, and thereby the period of redemption for the life tenant and others interested is necessarily greatly enlarged. Cooper v. Cooper, 220 N. C. 490, 493, 17 S. E. (2d) 655 (dis. op.).

§ 105-388. Certificates of sale.—(a) Issued to Private Purchasers.—As soon as possible after sale, but not earlier than payment of the purchase price, the collector shall issue to each successful bidder, other than taxing units, a certificate of sale, for the tax lien on real property of each delinquent, purchased by him, dated as of the day of sale. Property held jointly by two or more owners shall be construed as the property of one delinquent for this purpose. Said certificate shall be in substantially the following form:

"North Carolina, ... (taxing unit) .....

I, ... tax collector of ..... (taxing unit) ..... do hereby certify that the tax lien on the following described real property in said taxing unit, to wit: ..... (describing the same) ....., was, on the ..... day of ....., ..., duly sold by me in the manner provided by law, for the delinquent taxes of ..... for the year ....., amounting to $....., including penalties thereon and costs allowed by law, when and where ..... (name of purchaser) ..... purchased said lien on said real property at the price of $ ....., said amount being the highest and best bid for same. And I further certify that unless payment of said lien is made, within the time and in the manner provided by law, said ..... (name of purchaser) ....., his heirs or assigns, shall have the right to foreclose said real property by any proceeding allowed by law.

"In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand this ..... day of .....

Tax Collector."

A copy of each such certificate shall be retained by the collector in a special book or file designated "Certificates of Sale for Taxes for the Year .....". All payments made on any such certificate shall be made to the collector for the use of the owner of such certificate, and all such payments shall be credited by the collector on the copy of the certificate in his possession, and shall be remitted to the owner of the certificate upon proper receipt therefor. For failure to account for and pay over any such payments the collector shall be liable on his bond to the person entitled thereto. The copies of such certificates in the collector's office shall be the official records for the purpose of determining whether a lien exists in favor of any certificate owner other than a taxing unit. The owner of a certificate may assign it at any time, but said assignment shall not be effective until the collector shall have actually received written notice thereof from the assignor. Each such purchaser, his heirs or assignees, shall have a lien on the real property for the amount of the purchase price, plus interest thereon at the rate of eight per centum per annum, of the same dignity as similar liens owned by taxing units, and shall have the right to foreclose said lien, by action in the nature of an action to foreclose a mortgage, in the manner hereinafter prescribed: Provided, that the eight per cent per annum interest herein provided shall accrue only on so much of the purchase price as represents the amount of the tax, penalties to the date of sale, and the costs of advertising and sale. Each such purchaser, his heirs and assignees, shall also have a lien for other taxes and assessments levied against said property, paid by him after acquisition of said certificate, whether such taxes or assessments were charged before or after such acquisition. Said lien shall be entitled to the same priorities as the original lien of the taxes and assessments so paid.

(b) Issued to Taxing Units.—The governing body of each taxing unit which becomes the purchaser at a tax sale, as hereinbefore provided, shall determine whether or not it is necessary to issue certificates to and in the name of such unit. If, in the opinion of said governing body, the issuance of such certificates is not necessary in order to provide adequate records of tax liens and tax collections, the said certificates may be dispensed with and the collector ordered to mark or stamp the original tax receipts or accounts "Sold to ..... (name of tax unit) .....". If issuance of certificates is deemed necessary, they shall be issued in substantially the form set forth in subsection (a) of this section, with stubs or duplicates on which shall be reflected all payments or assignments. In either case, the taxing unit shall have the right to foreclose the real property by any method authorized by law; and in either case interest at the rate of eight per cent per annum shall accrue, on the amount bid by said unit, from the date of the sale.

(c) Prima Facie Case.—A certificate issued, or a tax receipt or account marked or stamped, in accordance with the provisions of subdivisions (a) or (b) of this section, shall be presumptive evidence of the regularity of all prior proceedings incident to the sale and of the due performance of all things essential to the validity thereof. (1939, c. 310, s. 1716.)

Local Modification.—Camden: 1943, c. 705; Cumberland: 1941, c. 44, s. 1(b); Franklin (towns of Louisburg, Bunn and Youngsville): 1943, c. 293; Surry (and towns of Mount Airy and Elkin): 1943, c. 710, s. 6.

§ 105-389. Assignment of liens by taxing unit after sale.—At any time after the sale hereinbefore provided for, any taxing unit may assign any lien owned by it to any person who pays an amount which, if paid by the taxpayer, would be sufficient to discharge said lien. If a certificate has already been issued to the taxing unit, it shall be assigned to the person making the payment, and the copy of stub of such certificate or a copy of such stub, showing such assignment, shall be filed in the manner provided for certificates originally issued to private purchasers. If no certificate has been issued to the taxing unit, a certificate shall immediately be so issued, and said certificate shall be assigned to the person making such payment in the manner set forth in the preceding sentence. The collector to whom the payment is made shall have authority to make all such assignments and issue all such certificates.

The provisions of this section shall be construed as being in addition to the provisions of this article with respect to release of individual parcels of real property from the tax lien. The person making a payment, after the sale hereinbefore provided for, shall have the right to pay the entire amount or to pay an amount sufficient under the provisions of this article to release one or more specified parcels; and such person shall also have the right to demand either assignment of the lien on the property for which the payment is made or to demand complete release of such property from the lien, in his discretion. In cases in which an assignment is made upon payment of an amount less than the amount of the lien on all the real property in one certificate, new certificates may be made to effect the separation. (1939, c. 310, s. 1717.)

Local Modification.—Cumberland: 1941, c. 44, s. 1(c).

§ 105-390. Settlements. — (a) Annual Settlement of Tax Collector.—(1) Preliminary report. On the second Monday following the sale of certificates, the tax collector shall, under oath, report to the governing body: (1) action with respect to such sale; and (2) a list of those not listing land for taxes whose taxes remain unpaid, making oath that he has made diligent effort to collect such taxes out of the personal property of such taxpayers or by other means open to him for collection of such taxes, and reporting such other information as to such taxpayers as may be of interest to or required by the governing body (including a report on his efforts to make collection outside the taxing unit under the provisions of this article.)

(2) Insolvents. The governing body shall, upon receipt of said report, enter upon its minutes the list of such taxpayers listing no land as may be found by said governing body to be insolvents, and shall by resolution designate said list so entered in the minutes as the insolvent list to be credited to the collector in his settlement.

(3) Settlement for current taxes. On the first Monday of the month following sale of certificates, but not earlier than the first Monday of July, the collector shall make full settlement with the governing body of the taxing unit for all taxes, in his hands for collection, for the year involved in said sale. In such settlement the collector shall be charged with: (1) the total amount of all taxes for said year, in his hands for collection, including amounts originally charged to him and all subsequent amounts charged on account of discovered property; (2) all penalties, interest and costs collected by him in connection with taxes for said year; and (3) all other sums to be collected by said collector. He shall be credited with: (1) all sums deposited by him to the credit of the taxing unit, or receipted for by the proper official of said unit, on account of taxes for said year; (2) releases allowed by the governing body as prescribed by statute; (3) the principal amount of taxes included in certificates sold to the taxing unit, for which he shall produce certificates duly executed or receipts or accounts duly stamped in accordance with the provisions of this article; (4) the principal amount of taxes for said year included in the insolvent list, determined as hereinbefore provided; (5) discounts allowed by law; and (6) commissions, if any, lawfully payable to him as compensation. For any deficiency the collector shall be liable on his bond, and, in addition, thereto, shall be liable to all criminal penalties provided by law.

Said settlement, together with the action of the governing body with respect thereto, shall be entered in full upon the minutes of said governing body.

(4) Disposition of tax books after settlement. Uncollected taxes allowed as credits in the settlement prescribed in the preceding subsection, whether represented by sales to the taxing unit or included in the list of insolvents, shall be recharged to the collector or charged to some other person, in accordance with the provisions of any valid local statute governing tax collection in the particular taxing unit. In the absence of any local statute determining the matter: (1) Such taxes in cities, and in counties having tax collectors other than sheriffs, shall be recharged to the collector; and (2) such taxes, in counties having sheriffs as tax collectors, shall be charged to such other county officer or employee as the governing body may designate to perform the duties of delinquent tax collector.

The person so charged or recharged shall give bond satisfactory to the governing body; shall receive the tax receipts, certificates and records representing such uncollected taxes; shall have and exercise and perform all powers and duties conferred or imposed by law upon tax collectors; and shall receive such compensation as may be fixed by valid local statute or, in the absence of such statute, as the governing body may determine.

(b) Settlements for Delinquent Taxes. — Annually, at the time prescribed for the settlement hereinbefore in this section provided, all persons having in their hands for collection any taxes for years prior to the year involved in said settlement hereinbefore provided, shall settle with the governing body of the taxing unit for collections made on the taxes for each such prior year. Such settlement for the taxes of prior years shall be in such form as may be satisfactory to the chief accounting officer and the governing body of the taxing unit, and shall be entered in full upon the minutes of the governing body.

(c) Settlement at End of Term.—Whenever any tax collector or other person collecting taxes, current or delinquent, shall fail to succeed himself at the end of his term of office, he shall, on the last business day of his term, make full and complete settlement for all taxes in his hands and deliver the tax records, receipts and accounts to his successor in office. Such settlement shall be in such manner and form as may be satisfactory to the chief accounting officer and governing body of the taxing unit, and shall be entered in full upon the minutes of the governing body.

(d) Settlement upon Vacancy During Term.—In case of voluntary resignation of any person collecting taxes he shall, upon his last day in office, make full settlement for all taxes in his hands in the same manner as required herein for settlements made at the end of a term of office. In default of such settlement, or in case of a vacancy occurring during a term for any other reason, it shall be the duty of the chief accounting officer or, in the discretion of the governing body, of some duly qualified person appointed by it, immediately to prepare and submit to the governing body a report in the nature of a settlement made on behalf of the ex-collector; and such report, together with the action of the governing body, shall be entered in full upon the minutes of the governing body. In such cases the governing body may turn over the tax books to the successor collector immediately upon occurrence of the vacancy, or may make such temporary arrangements for collection of taxes as may be expedient: Provided, that no person shall be permitted to collect taxes until he shall have given bond satisfactory to the governing body.

(e) Effect of Approval.—Approval of any settlement by the governing body shall not relieve the collector or his bondsmen of liability for any shortage actually existing and thereafter discovered; nor shall it relieve the collector of any criminal liability.

(f) Penalties.—In addition to all other civil and criminal penalties, provided by law, any member of a governing body, collector, person collecting taxes, or chief accounting officer failing to perform any duty imposed upon him by this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, punishable by fine or imprisonment, or both, in the discretion of the court. (1939, c. 310, s. 1718.)

Local Modification.—Cumberland: 1941, c. 44, s. 1(d), (e).

Cross Reference.—For earlier statute relating to settlement, see § 105-424.

Legislative Power to Penalize. — The Legislature has the power to impose penalties on the sheriff for his delay or failure to make settlement with the proper county authorities within a stated time. State v. Gentry, 183 N. C. 825, 112 S. E. 427. The court said: "The power to coerce prompt collection and settlement of taxes is no less necessary than the power to levy and assess them, and both are essential to the maintenance of the government."

An extension of time within which a sheriff may settle state taxes, does not exonerate the sureties upon his bond. Worth v. Cox, 89 N. C. 44.

Applied in Berry v. Davis, 158 N. C. 170, 73 S. E. 900.

§ 105-391. Foreclosure of tax liens by action in nature of action to foreclose a mortgage.—(a) Time for Beginning Such Action.—Actions for the foreclosure of tax liens brought under this section shall be brought not less than six months after the sale hereinbefore provided for.

(b) Private Purchasers. — Foreclosure under this section shall be the sole remedy of certificate owners other than taxing units.

(c) Taxing Units.—Taxing units may proceed under this section, either on the original tax lien or the lien acquired at the tax sale hereinbefore provided for, with or without a certificate of sale, and the amount of recovery in either case shall be the same. To this end it is hereby declared that the original attachment of the tax lien is sufficient to support a tax foreclosure action by a taxing unit, that the issuance of tax sale certificates to a taxing unit is a matter of convenience in record keeping, within the discretion of the governing body of such unit, and that issuance of such certificates is not a prerequisite to perfection of said tax lien.

(d) General Nature of the Action.—The foreclosure action shall be an action in superior court, in the county in which the land is situated, in the nature of an action to foreclose a mortgage.

(e) Parties.—The listing taxpayer and spouse, if any, the current owner, all other taxing units having tax liens, all other lien-holders of record, and all persons who would be entitled to be made parties to a court action (in which no deficiency judgment is sought) to foreclose a mortgage on such property, shall be made parties and served with summons in the manner provided by § 1-89: Provided, that alias summonses may be issued or service by publication begun at any time within one year after the issuance of the original summons.

The fact that the listing taxpayer or any other defendant is a minor, is incompetent or is under any other disability shall not prevent or delay the collector's sale or the foreclosure of the tax lien; and all such defendants shall be made defendants and served with summons in the same manner as in other civil actions.

Persons who have disappeared or cannot be located and persons whose names and whereabouts are unknown, and all possible heirs or assignees of such persons may be served by publication; and such persons, their heirs and assignees may be designated by general description or by fictitious names in such action. It is hereby declared that service of summons by publication against such persons, in the manner provided by law, shall be as valid in all respects as such service against known persons who are non-residents of this state.

(f) Complaint as a Lis Pendens.—The complaint in an action brought under this section shall, from the time of the filing thereof in the office of the clerk of superior court, serve as notice of the pendency of such action, and every person whose interest in such property is subsequently acquired or whose interest therein is subsequently registered or recorded shall be bound by all proceedings taken in such action after the filing of said complaint in the same manner as if said persons had been made parties to such action. It shall not be necessary to have said complaint cross indexed as a notice of action pending to have the effect prescribed by this subsection.

(g) Subsequent Taxes.—The complaint in a tax foreclosure action brought under this section by a taxing unit shall, in addition to alleging the tax lien on which the action is based, include a general allegation of subsequent taxes which are or may become a lien on the same property in favor of the plaintiff unit. Thereafter it shall not be necessary to amend said complaint to incorporate said taxes by specific allegation. In case of redemption before judgment of confirmation, the person redeeming shall be required to pay, before said action is discontinued, at least all taxes on said property which have at the time of discontinuance been due to plaintiff unit for more than one year, plus interest, penalties and costs thereon. Immediately prior to judgment of sale in such action, if there has been no redemption, the tax collector, or the attorney for plaintiff unit, shall file in said action a certificate setting forth all taxes which are a lien on said property in favor of the plaintiff unit, other than taxes the amount of which has not been definitely determined.

Any plaintiff in a tax foreclosure action, other than a taxing unit, may include in his complaint, originally or by amendment, all other taxes and assessments paid by him which were liens on the same property.

(h) Joinder of Parcels.—All real estate within one township, subject to liens for taxes levied against the same taxpayer by the same taxing unit for the first year involved in the action, shall be joined in one action: Provided, that where property is transferred by the listing taxpayer subsequent to such year, all subsequent taxes, penalties, interest and costs, for which said property is ordered sold under the terms of this subchapter, shall be prorated to such property in the same manner as if payments were being made to release such property under the provisions of this subchapter.

(i) Special Benefit Assessments.—A cause of action for the foreclosure of the lien of any special benefit assessment may be included in any complaint filed under this section.

(j) Joint Foreclosure by Two or More Taxing Units.—Liens of different taxing units on the same parcel, representing taxes in the hands of the same collector, shall be foreclosed in one action. Liens of different taxing units of the same parcel, representing taxes in the hands of different collectors, may be foreclosed in one action in the discretion of the governing bodies.

Liens of taxing units made parties defendant in any such action shall be alleged in an answer filed by such unit, and the collector of each such answering unit shall, prior to judgment, file a certificate of subsequent taxes similar to that filed by the collector of the plaintiff unit, and the taxes of each such answering unit shall be of equal dignity with the taxes of the plaintiff unit; and any such answering unit may, in case of payment of the plaintiff's taxes, continue such action until all taxes due to it for more than one year have been paid. It shall not be necessary for any such defendant unit to file a separate foreclosure action or proceed under § 105-392 with respect to any such taxes.

All taxes of any taxing unit which is properly served as a party defendant in such action, and which does not answer and file the certificate as aforesaid, shall be barred by the judgment of sale except to the extent that the purchase price at foreclosure sale, after payment of costs and of the liens of all taxing units whose liens are properly alleged by complaint or answer and certificates, may be sufficient to pay said taxes: Provided, that if a defendant unit is plaintiff in another action pending against the same property, or has begun a proceeding under § 105-392, its answers may allege said fact in lieu of alleging its liens, and the court, in its discretion, may order consolidation of such actions or such other disposition thereof, and such disposition of the costs therein, as it may deem advisable: And provided, further, that any such order may be made by the clerk of the superior court, subject to appeal in the same manner as appeals are taken from other orders of said clerk.

(k) Costs.—Costs may be taxed in any action brought under this section in the same manner as in other civil actions, subject to the provisions of this subsection; and upon collection of said costs, either upon redemption or upon payment of the purchase price at foreclosure sale, the fees allowed officers shall be paid to those entitled to receive the same: Provided, that the fees allowed any officer, whether for the personal use of such officer or for the benefit of the unit of which he is an official shall not exceed one-half the fees allowed in other civil actions: Provided, further, that no process tax for the use of the state shall be levied or collected in tax foreclosure actions, and, where the plaintiff is a taxing unit, no prosecution bond shall be required in such actions.

Said costs may include one reasonable attorney's fee for the plaintiff, which shall not exceed five dollars: Provided, that the governing body of any unit may, in its discretion, pay a greater sum to its attorney as a suit fee and said governing body may, in its discretion, allow a reasonable commission to its attorney on delinquent taxes collected by him after said taxes have been placed in his hands; or said governing body may arrange with its attorney for the handling of tax suits on a salary basis or make such other reasonable agreement with its attorney or attorneys as said governing body may approve; and any arrangement made may provide that attorney's fees collected as costs be collected for the use of the taxing unit: And provided, further, that when any taxing unit is made a party defendant in a tax foreclosure action and files answer therein, there may be included in the costs an attorney's fee for said defendant not exceeding three dollars.

In any action in which real property is actually sold after judgment, costs shall include a commissioner's fee to be fixed by the court, not exceeding five per centum of the purchase price; and in case of redemption between the date of sale and judgment of confirmation, said fee shall be added to the amount otherwise necessary for redemption. In case more than one sale is made of the same property in any action, the commissioner's fee may be based on the highest amount bid, but said commissioner shall not be allowed a separate fee for each such sale. The governing body of any plaintiff unit may request the court to appoint as commissioner a salaried official, attorney or employee of the unit and, if such appointment is made, may require that such commissioner's fees, when collected, be paid to plaintiff unit for use as it may direct.

(l) Contested Actions. — Any action brought under this section, in which an answer raising an issue requiring trial is filed within the time allowed by law, shall be entitled to a preference as to time of trial over all other civil actions.

(m) Judgment of Sale.—Any judgment in favor of the plaintiff or any defendant taxing unit in an action brought under this section shall order the sale of the property, or so much thereof as may be necessary for the satisfaction of: (1) taxes adjudged to be liens in favor of the plaintiff, other than taxes the amount of which has not been definitely determined, together with interest, penalties and costs thereon; and (2) taxes adjudged to be liens in favor of other taxing units, other than taxes the amount of which has not yet been definitely determined, if said taxes have been alleged in answers filed by said units, together with interest, penalties and costs thereon.

Said judgment shall appoint a commissioner to conduct said sale and shall order that the property be sold in fee simple, free and clear of all interests, rights, claims and liens whatever, except that said sale shall be subject to taxes the amount of which cannot be definitely determined at the time of said judgment, subject to taxes and assessments of taxing units which are not parties to said action, and, in the discretion of the court, subject to taxes alleged in other tax foreclosure actions or proceedings pending against the same property.

In all cases in which no answer is filed within the time allowed by law, and in cases in which answers filed do not seek to prevent sale of said property, the clerk of the superior court may render said judgment, subject to appeal in the same manner as appeals are taken from other judgments of said clerk.

(n) Advertisement of Sale.—The sale shall be advertised, and all necessary resales shall be advertised, in the manner provided by §§ 1-327, 1-328, or by such statute as may be enacted in substitution therefor.

(o) Sale.—The sale shall be by public auction to the highest bidder, and shall, in accordance with the judgment, be held at the courthouse door on any day of the week except a Sunday or legal holiday: Provided, that in actions brought by any city which is not a county seat the court may, in its discretion, direct said sale to be held at the city hall door. The commissioner conducting such sale may, in his discretion, require from any successful bidder a deposit equal to not more than twenty per centum of his bid, which said deposit, in the event that said bidder refuses to take title and a resale becomes necessary, shall be applied to pay the costs of sale and any loss resulting: Provided, that this shall not deprive the commissioner of the right to sue for specific performance of the contract.

(p) Report of Sale.—Within three days following said sale the commissioner shall report said sale to the court, giving full particulars thereof.

(q) Exceptions and Increased Bids.—At any time within twenty days after the filing of said report of sale any person having an interest in the property may file exceptions to said report, and at any time within said period an increased bid may be filed in the amount specified by and subject to the provisions (other than provisions in conflict herewith) of § 45-28, or to the provisions (other than provisions in conflict herewith) of any law enacted in substitution for said section.

(r) Judgment of Confirmation.—At any time after the expiration of said twenty days, if no exception or increased bid has been filed, the commissioner may apply for judgment of confirmation; and in like manner he may apply for such judgment after the court has passed upon any exceptions filed, or after any necessary resales have been held and reported and twenty days have elapsed: Provided, that the court may, in its discretion, order resale of the property, in the absence of exceptions or increased bids, whenever it deems such resale necessary for the best interests of the parties.

Said judgment of confirmation shall direct the commissioner to deliver the deed upon payment of the purchase price.

Said judgment may be rendered by the clerk of superior court, subject to appeal in the same manner as appeals are taken from other judgments of said clerk.

(s) Application of Proceeds of Sale; Final Commissioner's Report.—After delivery of the deed and collection of the purchase price, the commissioner shall apply the proceeds as follows; first, to payment of all costs of the action, including commissioner's fee and attorney's fee, which said costs shall be paid to the officials or funds entitled thereto; then to the payment of taxes, penalties and interest for which said property was ordered to be sold, and in case the funds remaining are insufficient for this purpose they shall be distributed pro rata to the various taxing units for whose taxes the property was ordered sold; then pro rata to the payment of any special benefit assessments for which said property was ordered sold, together with interest and costs thereon; then pro rata to payment of taxes, penalties, interest and costs of taxing units which were parties to said action but which filed no answers therein; then pro rata to payment of special benefit assessments of taxing units which were parties to said action but which filed no answers therein, together within interest and costs on said assessments; and any balance then remaining shall be paid in accordance with any directions given by the court and, in the absence of such directions, shall be paid into court for the benefit of the persons entitled thereto. The commissioner in all such cases shall make a full report to the court, within five days after delivery of the deed, showing delivery of the deed, receipt of the purchase price, and the disbursement of the proceeds, accompanied by receipts evidencing all such disbursements.

In case the purchaser is a taxing unit such unit may proceed in accordance with the provisions hereinafter set forth in this section; and the commissioner shall make report accordingly.

(t) Bids by Taxing Units.—Any taxing unit, or two or more units jointly, may bid at foreclosure sale, and any taxing unit which becomes the successful bidder may assign its bid, or portion thereof, at any time, by private sale, for not less than the amount thereof.

(u) Payment of Purchase Price by Taxing Units; Status of Property Purchased by Taxing Units.—Any taxing unit which becomes the purchaser at final tax foreclosure sale may, in the discretion of its governing body, pay only such part of the purchase price as would not be distributed to itself and other taxing units on account of taxes, interest, penalties and such costs as accrued prior to the beginning of the foreclosure action. Thereafter, in such case, it shall hold said property for the benefit of all taxing units which have an interest in such property as hereinafter in this subsection defined. All net income from said property and the proceeds thereof, when resold, shall be first used to reimburse the purchasing unit for disbursements actually made by it in connection with the foreclosure action and the purchase of said property, and any balance remaining shall be distributed to the taxing units having an interest therein in proportion to their interests. The total interest of each taxing unit, including the purchasing unit, shall be determined by adding: (1) taxes of such unit, with interest, penalties and costs (other than costs already reimbursed to the purchasing unit), to satisfy which said property was ordered sold; (2) other taxes of such unit, with interest, penalties and costs, which would have been paid from the purchase price had said purchase price been paid in full; (3) taxes of such unit, with interest, penalties and costs, to which said sale was made subject; and (4) the principal amount of all taxes which may become liens on said property after purchase at foreclosure sale or which would have become liens but for such purchase: Provided, that no amount shall be included under clause (4) hereof for taxes for years in which, on the tax listing day, said property is being used by said purchasing unit for a public purpose.

If the amount of net income and proceeds of resale distributable exceeds the total interests of all units hereinbefore defined, the remainder shall be applied to any special benefit assessments to satisfy which said sale was ordered or to which said sale was made subject, and any balance then remaining shall accrue to the purchasing unit.

When any property, purchased as hereinbefore provided in this subsection, is permanently dedicated for use for a public purpose, the purchasing unit shall make settlement with other taxing units having an interest in such property, as hereinbefore defined, in such manner and in such amount as may be agreed upon by the governing bodies; and if no agreement can be reached the amount to be paid shall be determined by the resident judge of the superior court.

Nothing in this subsection shall be construed as requiring the purchasing unit to secure the approval of other interested taxing units before reselling said property or as requiring said purchasing unit to pay said other units in full if the net income and resale price are insufficient to make such payments.

Any taxing unit purchasing property at foreclosure sale may, in the discretion of its governing body, instead of following the foregoing provisions of this subsection, make full payment of the purchase price and thereafter it shall hold said property as sole owner in the same manner as it holds other real property, subject only to taxes and assessments, with interest, penalties and costs, to which said sale was made subject.

(v) Resale of Property Purchased by Taxing Units.—Property purchased at tax foreclosure sale by a taxing unit may be resold at any time for such price as the governing body may approve. Such resales shall be conducted in the manner provided by law for sales of other property of the various taxing units: Provided, that a city may, in the discretion of its governing body, resell such property to former owner or other person formerly having an interest in said property, at private sale, for an amount not less than its interest therein, if it holds said property as sole owner, or for an amount not less than the total interests of all taxing units (other than assessments due the city holding title), if it holds said property for the benefit of all such units. (1939, c. 310, s. 1719.)

Local Modification.—Cumberland: 1941, c. 44, s. 1(f); High Point: 1941, c. 174.

Cross Reference.—For earlier statute governing foreclosure of tax liens, see § 105-414.

The court has authority to reject the bid made at the foreclosure sale of a tax sale certificate and order a resale, even in the absence of exceptions or an increased bid, under the provisions of subsection (r). Bladen County v. Squires, 219 N. C. 649, 14 S. E. (2d) 665.

§ 105-392. Alternative method of foreclosure.—(a) Docketing Taxes as a Judgment.—In lieu of following the procedure set forth in § 105-391, the governing body of any taxing unit may order the collecting official to file, not less than six months or more than two years (four years as to taxes of the principal amount of five dollars or less) following the collector's sale of certificates, with the clerk of superior court a certificate showing the name of the taxpayer listing the real estate on which such taxes are a lien, together with the amount of taxes, interest, penalties and costs which are a lien thereon, the year for which such taxes are due, and a description of such real property sufficient to permit its identification by parol testimony. The clerk of superior court shall enter said certificate in a special book entitled "Tax Judgment Docket for Taxes for the Year ....." and shall index the same therein in the name of the listing taxpayer. Immediately upon said docketing and indexing, said taxes, interest, penalties and costs shall constitute a valid judgment against said property, with the priority hereinbefore provided for tax liens, which said judgment, except as herein expressly provided, shall have the same force and effect as a duly rendered judgment of the superior court directing sale of said property for the satisfaction of the tax lien, and which judgment shall bear interest at the rate of six per cent per annum. The clerk shall be allowed fifty cents per certificate for such docketing and indexing, payable when such taxes are collected or such property is sold, and shall account for said fees in the same manner as other fees of his office are accounted for: Provided, that the governing body of any county, if said clerk is on salary, or said clerk, if he is on fees or salary plus fees, may require such fees to be advanced by the taxing unit.

The collecting official filing said certificate shall, at least two weeks prior to the docketing of said judgment, send a registered letter to the listing taxpayer, at his last known address, stating that the judgment will be docketed and that execution will issue thereon in the manner provided by law. However, receipt of said letter by said listing taxpayer, or receipt of actual notice of the proceeding by said taxpayer or any other interested person, shall not be required for the validity or priority of said judgment or for the validity or priority, as hereinafter provided, of the title acquired by the purchaser at the execution sale. It is hereby expressly declared to be the intention of this section that proceedings brought under it shall be strictly in rem. It is further declared to be the intention of the section to provide a simple and inexpensive method of enforcing payment of taxes necessarily levied, to the knowledge of all, for the requirements of local governments in this State; and to recognize, in authorizing such proceeding, that all those owning interests in real property know, or should know, without special notice thereof, that such property may be seized and sold for failure to pay such lawful taxes.

Nothing in this section shall be construed as a limitation of time on the right to foreclose a tax lien under § 105-391.

(b) Motion to Set Aside.—At any time prior to issue of execution, any person having an interest in said property may appear and move to set aside said judgment on the ground that the tax has been paid or that the tax lien on which said judgment is based is invalid.

(c) Issue of Execution.—At any time after six months and before two years from the indexing of said judgment, execution shall be issued at the request of the governing body of the taxing unit, in the same manner as executions are issued upon other judgments of the superior court, and said property shall be sold by the sheriff in the same manner as other property is sold under execution: Provided, that no debtor's exemption shall be allowed; and provided, further, that in lieu of any personal service of notice on the owner of said property, registered mail notice shall be mailed to the listing taxpayer, at his last known address, at least one week prior to the day fixed for said sale. The purchaser at said sale shall acquire title to said property in fee simple, free and clear of all claims, rights, interest and liens except the lien of other taxes and assessments not paid from the purchase price and not included in the judgment: Provided, that if a taxing unit has, by virtue of the taxes included in such a judgment, been made a defendant in a foreclosure action brought under § 105-391, it shall file answer therein and thereafter all proceedings shall be governed by order of court in accordance with the provisions of that section.

(d) Cancellation upon Payment.—Upon payment in full of any judgment docketed under this section, together with interest thereon and costs accrued to the date of payment, it shall be the duty of the collecting official receiving such payment immediately to certify the fact of such payment to the clerk of superior court, who shall thereupon cancel the judgment, the fee for such cancellation to be fifty cents (50c), which fee shall be included as part of accrued costs.

(e) Consolidation of Liens.—By agreement between the governing bodies, two or more taxing units may consolidate their liens for purposes of docketing judgment, or may have one execution issued for separate judgments, against the same property. In like manner one execution may issue for separate judgments in favor of one or more taxing units against the same property for different years' taxes.

In any advertisement or posted notice of sale under execution the sheriff may (and, at the request of the governing body of the taxing unit, shall) combine the advertisements or notices for properties to be sold under executions, against the properties of different taxpayers, in favor of the same taxing unit or group of units: Provided, that the property included in each judgment shall be separately described and the name of the listing taxpayer specified in connection with each.

(f) Special Assessments.—Street, sidewalk and other special assessments may be included in any judgment for taxes taken under this section; or such assessments may be included in a separate judgment docketed under this section, which is hereby declared to be made available as a method of foreclosing the lien of such assessments.

(g) Purchase and Resale by Taxing Unit.—Any taxing unit may become a bidder at said sale under execution, and may assign its bid by private sale, for not less than the amount of such bid. Property purchased by any taxing unit may be resold at any time in the manner provided by law for sale of other property of such unit: Provided, a city may resell property to the former owner or other person formerly having an interest therein, at private sale, for not less than the amount of said unit's interest in such property (other than special assessments).

(h) Procedure if Section Declared Unconstitutional.—If any provisions of this section are declared invalid or unconstitutional by a court of competent jurisdiction, all taxing units which have proceeded under this section shall have one year from the date of the filing of such opinion (or, in case of appeal, from the date of the filing of the opinion on appeal) in which to institute foreclosure actions under § 105-391 for all taxes included in judgments taken under this section and for subsequent taxes due or which, but for purchase of such property by the taxing unit, would have become due; and such opinion shall not have the effect of invalidating the tax lien or disturbing the priority thereof. (1939, c. 310, s. 1720.)

Local Modification.—Cumberland: 1941, c. 44, s. 1(g).

§ 105-393. Time for contesting validity of tax foreclosure title.—No action or proceeding shall be brought to contest the validity of any title to real property acquired, by a taxing unit or by a private purchaser, in any tax foreclosure action or proceeding authorized by this subchapter or by other laws of this state in force at the time of acquisition of said title, nor shall any motion to reopen or set aside the judgment in any such tax foreclosure action or proceeding be entertained, after one year from the date on which the deed is recorded: Provided, that in cases of deeds recorded prior to April 3, 1939, such action or proceeding may be brought or motion entertained within one year after said date: Provided, further, that this shall not be construed as enlarging the time within which to bring such action or proceeding or entertain such motion. (1939, c. 310, s. 1721.)

§ 105-394. Facsimile signatures.—In the institution or prosecution of any suits or other proceedings under this subchapter, or in tax foreclosure proceedings under laws heretofore or hereafter in force, and in the giving of any notice preliminary to the institution thereof, it shall be sufficient and a compliance with the law that where any official or attorney required to sign summons, complaints, verifications of pleadings, notices, judgments or other papers, the name of said official or attorney may be affixed to said documents by stamping thereon the facsimile of the signature of said official or attorney with a rubber stamp by any person authorized by said official or attorney so to do; and said documents so stamped shall have the same legal force and effect as if said signature had been written by said official or attorney with his own hand, and all such signatures stamp as aforesaid shall be conclusively presumed to have been so stamped at the direction of the official or attorney whose signature it purports to be. (1939, c. 310, s. 1722.)

§ 105-395. Application of article.—All provisions of this article shall apply to all taxes originally due within fiscal years beginning on or after July first, one thousand nine hundred thirty-nine. With the exception of the provisions of §§ 105-378 to 105-380, the provisions of this article shall also apply to all taxes uncollected on April 3, 1939, originally due within the fiscal year beginning July first, one thousand nine hundred thirty-eight. Sections 105-373 to 105-377, 105-381 to 105-386, 105-390, 105-393, 105-394, and subsections (k) to (v), inclusive, of § 105-391 shall also apply, to the extent that such application does not affect any action already taken or affect private rights already vested on April 3, 1939, to all taxes, due and owing to taxing units on April 3, 1939, originally due within fiscal years beginning on or before July first, one thousand nine hundred thirty-seven, whether such taxes have heretofore been included in tax sales certificates or not, and whether such taxes are included in pending foreclosure actions or not; and § 105-392, and subsections (a) to (j), inclusive, of § 105-391 shall also apply to all taxes, due and owing to taxing units on April 3, 1939, originally due within fiscal years beginning on or before July first, one thousand nine hundred thirty-seven, which have not been included in any tax foreclosure proceedings pending or completed on April 3, 1939: Provided, that with respect to such taxes originally due within the fiscal years beginning on or before July first, one thousand nine hundred thirty-seven, the provisions of said § 105-392, and subsections (a) to (j), inclusive, of § 105-391 shall be in addition to, and not in substitution for, the provisions of laws in force immediately prior to April 3, 1939: Provided, further, that proceedings may be begun under the provisions of §§ 105-391 and 105-392, with respect to such taxes originally due within the fiscal years beginning on or before July first, one thousand nine hundred thirty-seven, at any time after six months and within one year following April 3, 1939 or within a longer period otherwise permitted by the terms of this article.

Except as in this section provided, the collection and foreclosure of taxes originally due within fiscal years beginning on or before July first, one thousand nine hundred thirty-eight, shall be under the provisions of laws in force immediately prior to April 3, 1939, including § 105-414. In all actions which may be brought under the provisions of section eight thousand thirty-seven of the Consolidated Statutes of North Carolina, the general advertisement, or six months' notice, prescribed by said section need not be made; and the failure to make such advertisement in any action heretofore brought under said section is hereby ratified, confirmed and approved, and, despite such failure, such action, with respect to defendants served with process in such action, either by personal service or service by publication, is hereby validated to the same extent as if said advertisement had been made.

Section 105-414 is hereby preserved in full force and effect as an alternative method for the foreclosure of taxes orginally due within fiscal years beginning on or after July first, one thousand nine hundred thirty-eight: Provided, that the provisions of subsections (f) to (v), inclusive, of § 105-391 shall apply in any such foreclosure action brought under said § 105-414.

Nothing in this section or this article shall be construed to require foreclosure of any taxes under the provisions of § 105-392, and subsections (a) to (j), inclusive, of § 105-391, if such taxes have been or by the terms of this section may be included in any action instituted under laws in force immediately prior to April 3, 1939, whether such taxes be included in said action by the original complaint or by amendment thereto.

To the extent indicated in this section the laws in force immediately prior to April 3, 1939, are hereby preserved in full force and effect, any repeal clauses contained in this article or subchapter to the contrary notwithstanding. (1939, c. 310, s. 1723.)

Art. 28. General Provisions.

§ 105-396. Foreign corporations not exempt.—Nothing in this subchapter shall be construed to exempt from taxation at the value prescribed by law any property situated in this state belonging to any foreign corporation, unless the context clearly indicates the intent to grant such exemption. (1939, c. 310, s. 1800.)

Determining Liability.—A nonresident corporation is liable for taxation for such proportion of its capital stock as the value of its tangible property within the state bears to the value of all its tangible property. Commissioners v. Old Dominion Steamship Co., 128 N. C. 558, 39 S. E. 18.

Cited in Madison County v. Catholic Society of Religious, etc., Education, 213 N. C. 204, 195 S. E. 354.

§ 105-397. General purpose of subchapter.—It is the purpose of this subchapter except as otherwise herein provided to provide the machinery for the listing and valuing of property, and the levy and collection of taxes, for the year one thousand nine hundred thirty-nine, and annually thereafter, and to that end this subchapter shall be liberally construed, subject to the provisions set out in Schedule H, §§ 105-198 to 105-217. (1939, c. 310, s. 1802.)

Art. 29. Validation of Listings.

§ 105-398. Real property listings validated.—Listings of any real estate not otherwise listed, which have been carried forward on the tax list of any person by the county supervisor of taxation, list taker or assessor, at the same assessed value of said property as it was valued at in the last quadrennial assessment of taxes, unless the value thereof has been changed by the board of county commissioners as provided by law, are hereby validated, and are hereby declared to be legal and valid listings of the same as if listed by the owner or owner's agent or by the chairman of the board of county commissioners or otherwise, as provided by law.

This section shall be retroactive so as to include the period of time from the first day of May, one thousand nine hundred twenty-seven, to and including the eleventh day of May, one thousand nine hundred thirty-five.

The counties of Alamance, Ashe, Beaufort, Bertie, Brunswick, Cabarrus, Camden, Carteret, Clay, Currituck, Dare, Durham, Greene, Halifax, Harnett, Henderson, Hertford, Hoke, Hyde, Iredell, Johnston, Macon, Moore, Northampton, Pasquotank, Pitt, Polk, Randolph, Richmond, Robeson, Rowan, Rutherford, Sampson, Surry, Transylvania, Wake, Warren, and Wayne are hereby exempted from the provisions of this section. (1937, c. 259, ss. 1-3.)

Local Modification.—Nash: 1939, c. 298.

SUBCHAPTER III. COLLECTION OF TAXES.

Art. 30. General Provisions.

§ 105-399. Subchapter to remain in force.—The provisions of this subchapter shall continue in force whether or not brought forward in subsequent acts to raise revenue or acts to provide for the assessment and collection of taxes, commonly called "revenue acts" and "machinery acts," unless and until expressly repealed or amended by, or clearly inconsistent with, subsequent legislation; it being the intention of the general assembly that this subchapter shall be a standing provision for the government of the matters embraced herein, and not to be repealed by implication because omitted in whole or in part from subsequent legislation on the subject of taxation. (Rev., s. 2849; C. S. 7972.)

§ 105-400. Application and construction.—The provisions of this subchapter shall apply to all taxes as defined in this chapter, whether state, county, town, city, or other municipal subdivision; and shall be liberally construed in favor of, and in furtherance of, the collection of such taxes. (Rev., s. 2850; C. S. 7973.)

§ 105-401. Terms defined.—Unless such construction or definition would be manifestly inconsistent with or repugnant to the context, the words and phrases following, whenever used in this subchapter, shall be construed to include in their meaning the definitions set opposite the same in this section:

1. "Tax," "taxes." Any taxes, special assessments or costs, interest or penalty imposed upon property or polls.

2. "He." Male, female, company, corporation, firm, society, singular or plural number.

3. "Real property." Real estate, land, tract, lot—not only the land itself, whether laid out in town or city lots or otherwise with all things therein, but also all buildings, structures, and improvements and other permanent fixtures of whatever kind thereon, and all rights and privileges belonging or in any wise appertaining thereto, and all estates therein.

4. "Sheriff." Every person who is by law authorized to collect taxes, either state or municipal. (Rev., s. 2851; C. S. 7974.)

§ 105-402. Sheriff includes tax collector.—Whenever in this chapter a duty is imposed upon the sheriff of a county of which a tax collector has been or may be appointed, it shall be incumbent upon the tax collector to perform such office instead of the sheriff, and such tax collector shall collect all the taxes, have all the emoluments and be subject to all the penalties as provided in case of sheriffs in this chapter, and it shall be the duty of all persons having tax moneys in hand to account for and settle with such tax collector. (Rev., s. 5263; 1917, c. 234, s. 111; 1919, c. 92, s. 111; C. S. 7975.)

§ 105-403. No taxes released. — No board of county commissioners, or council, or board of aldermen or commissioners of any city or town shall have power to release, discharge, remit, or commute any portion of the taxes assessed and levied against any person or property within their respective jurisdictions for any reason whatever; and any tax so discharged, released, remitted, or commuted may be recovered by civil action from the members of any such board at the suit of any citizen of the county, city, or town, as the case may be, and when collected shall be paid to the proper treasurer. Nothing in this section shall be construed to prevent the proper authorities from refunding taxes as provided in this chapter; nor to interfere with the powers of any officers or boards sitting as a board of equalization of taxes; nor construed to exempt any taxpayer or property from liability for taxes released, discharged, remitted, or commuted in violation of this section. (Rev., s. 2854; 1901, c. 558, s. 31; C. S. 7976.)

Duty of Commissioner to Rescind.—It is not only competent, but the duty of county commissioners to rescind an order improvidently granted to release one from the assessment of a legal tax upon property. Lemly v. Commissioners, 85 N. C. 379.

§ 105-404. Uncollected inheritance taxes remitted after 20 years.—All inheritance taxes levied by the State which remain uncollected twenty years or more after the death of the person upon whose estate said taxes were levied shall be, and they are hereby remitted. (1935, c. 483.)

§ 105-405. Taxing authorities authorized to release or remit taxes.—The board of county commissioners or city council or board of aldermen or city commissioners, or any other governing body in any city or town, shall have power to release, discharge, remit or commute any portion of the taxes assessed and levied against any person or property within their respective jurisdictions when there has been destruction or partial destruction or any damage to the property assessed for valuation when such destruction, partial destruction or damage occurs between midnight of April first and midnight of June thirtieth of any year, and when said destruction or partial destruction or damage has been caused by tornado, cyclone, hurricane or other wind or windstorm: Provided, application for release, discharge, remission or commutation is made to the aforesaid governing body within one year of the date of said destruction, partial destruction or damage: Provided further, that in cases of applicants for such relief who have received, or may receive, reimbursements for such damage or destruction from insurance policy contracts or otherwise, or whose property has been restored or rehabilitated, wholly or partially, by the Red Cross or any public welfare agency or organization without full value having been paid therefor by the property owner, such applicant shall, as a condition precedent to the relief herein provided for, list for taxation for the year for which relief is asked the equivalent in value of such reimbursement or restoration or rehabilitation; and provided further, that such governing body shall apply this section uniformly to all persons and property within its jurisdiction. This section shall be retroactive to and including April first, one thousand nine hundred and thirty-six. (1937, c. 15.)

§ 105-405.1. Governing boards of counties, cities and towns authorized to refund taxes illegally collected.—The board of county commissioners of any county or the governing body of any city or town, upon the passage and recording in the minutes of a proper resolution finding as a fact that any funds received by such municipality were required to be paid through clerical error or by a tax illegally levied and assessed, is authorized and empowered to remit and refund the same upon the taxpayer making demand in writing to the proper board for such remission and refund within two years from the date the same was due to be paid. (1943, c. 709.)

§ 105-406. Remedy of taxpayer for unauthorized tax.—Unless a tax or assessment, or some part thereof, be illegal or invalid, or be levied or assessed for an illegal or unauthorized purpose, no injunction shall be granted by any court or judge to restrain the collection thereof in whole or in part, nor to restrain the sale of any property for the nonpayment thereof; nor shall any court issue any order in claim and delivery proceedings or otherwise for the taking of any personalty levied on by the sheriff to enforce payment of such tax or assessment against the owner thereof. Whenever any person shall claim to have a valid defense to the enforcement of a tax or assessment charged or assessed upon his property or poll, such person shall pay such tax or assessment to the sheriff; but if, at the time of such payment, he shall notify the sheriff in writing that he pays the same under protest, such payment shall be without prejudice to any defenses or rights he may have in the premises, and he may, at any time within thirty days after such payment, demand the same in writing from the treasurer of the state or of the county, city, or town, for the benefit or under the authority or by request of which the same was levied; and if the same shall not be refunded within ninety days thereafter, may sue such county, city, or town for the amount so demanded, including in his action against the county both state and county tax; and if upon the trial it shall be determined that such tax or any part thereof was levied or assessed for an illegal or unauthorized purpose, or was for any reason invalid or excessive, judgment shall be rendered therefor, with interest, and the same shall be collected as in other cases. The amount of state taxes for which judgment shall be rendered in such action shall be refunded by the state treasurer. (Rev., s. 2855; 1901, c. 558, s. 30; C. S. 7979.)

Cross Reference.—For similar provision, see § 105-267, which seems to have superseded this section.

Editor's Note.—See 12 N. C. Law Rev. 22.

For a case in which injunctive relief against the collection of taxes was granted, see Barber v. Benson, 200 N. C. 683, 158 S. E. 245.

Constitutionality.—This section is constitutional. Railroad Co. v. Reidsville, 109 N. C. 494, 13 S. E. 865.

Adequate Remedy at Law.—Under this section the taxpayer has an adequate remedy at law by first paying the tax and then suing to recover it. Henrietta Mills v. Rutherford County, 281 U. S. 121, 50 S. Ct. 270, 74 L. Ed. 737.

Exclusiveness of Statutory Remedy.—The taxpayer is restricted to the remedy provided by the statute, and, in order to avail himself of it, he must comply with all the requirements thereof. Wilson v. Green, 135 N. C. 343, 47 S. E. 469; Railroad Co. v. Reidsville, 109 N. C. 494, 13 S. E. 865. Assumpsit for money had and received does not lie to recover improperly listed taxables. Huggins v. Hinson, 61 N. C. 126.

Quo warranto is the sole remedy to test the validity of an election to public office, but not to test the validity of a tax even though it is levied under the authority of a popular election. Barbee v. Board of Com'rs, 210 N. C. 717, 188 S. E. 314.

Burden on Taxpayer.—Where a taxpayer seeks equitable relief against the alleged unlawful assessment of taxes against its property by the county authorities, it must allege and show that the amount claimed as excessive was in fact an excessive valuation. Norfolk-Southern R. Co. v. Board, 188 N. C. 265, 124 S. E. 560.

Payment under Protest.—Where the owner resists the payment of taxes as unlawful, he is required to pay them under his protest and sue to recover them. Carstarphen v. Plymouth, 168 N. C. 90, 118 S. E. 905; Galloway v. Board of Education, 184 N. C. 245, 114 S. E. 165. See also, State v. Snipes, 161 N. C. 242, 76 S. E. 243.

To test the legality of a tax imposed, the taxpayer should pay the same and sue to recover it in accordance with the provisions of this section. Southeastern Express Co. v. Charlotte, 186 N. C. 668, 120 S. E. 475.

Same—Necessary Allegations.—In order to recover money paid under protest to the sheriff as taxes on land within the county, it is necessary to allege that the taxes sought to be recovered were illegally imposed or unlawfully collected, and in the absence of such allegation an injunction against the sale of the land for the payment of the taxes due will be denied. Hunt v. Cooper, 194 N. C. 265, 139 S. E. 446.

Same—When Not Recoverable.—Where a corporation under Public Laws of 1925, ch. 102, submits its report to the State Board of Assessment and the board in accordance with the statute certifies to the register of deeds of the county where the property is situated the corporate excess liable for local taxation, the exclusive remedy of the corporation if dissatisfied with the report of the board is to file exceptions with the board in accordance with the statute, with the right of appeal from the board upon a hearing by it, and the corporation may not pay the tax under protest and seek to recover it under the provisions of this section. Manufacturing Co. v. Commissioners of Pender, 196 N. C. 744, 147 S. E. 284.

Same—Written Demand within Thirty Days.—The General Assembly, as far back as 1887, enacted that demand for the return of taxes must be made within thirty days after payment, and it was held in Railroad Co. v. Reidsville, 109 N. C. 494, 13 S. E. 865, and Teeter v. Wallace, 138 N. C. 264, 50 S. E. 701, that the statute applied to all taxes, that the remedy provided was exclusive, and that a failure to make demand within the time prescribed was fatal to the right to maintain an action to recover the tax. Blackwell v. Gastonia, 181 N. C. 378, 379, 107 S. E. 218. The requirement of making a demand within the prescribed time is mandatory. Railroad Co. v. Reidsville, 109 N. C. 494, 13 S. E. 865. It must also be made in writing. Bristol v. Morganton, 125 N. C. 365, 34 S. E. 512.

The requirement of demand is not confined to claim for refunding any particular taxes or taxes alleged to be invalid on any particular account. Railroad Co. v. Reidsville, 109 N. C. 494, 13 S. E. 865.

Same—Alleging Demand to Refund.—A complaint which fails to allege that the demand was made within thirty days is insufficient in demurrer. Railroad Co. v. Reidsville, 109 N. C. 494, 13 S. E. 865.

Same—Right to Sue.—Upon the failure of the county treasurer to refund within 90 days, the person so paying the tax may maintain an action against the county, including in his demand both the state and county taxes. Brunswick-Balke Co. v. Mecklenburg, 181 N. C. 386, 107 S. E. 317.

When the party has complied with the condition of this section he has a present right of action for the recovery of the tax without the necessity of having made the presentation and demands to the proper municipal authorities referred to in section 153-64. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. v. Brunswick Co., 178 N. C. 254, 100 S. E. 428; Sou. R. Co. v. Cherokee County, 177 N. C. 86, 97 S. E. 758.

Where a town ordinance imposes a license tax upon those selling at wholesale or peddling therein, and provides that its violation be punishable as a misdemeanor, the remedy to test the validity of the ordinance is to pay the tax under protest and bring action to recover it back, in accordance with this section, and equity will not enjoin the town from executing its threat to arrest for violations of the ordinance, it not appearing that the plaintiff would be irreparably damaged by the payment of the tax, and the legal remedy to recover the tax affording adequate relief. Loose-Wiles Biscuit Co. v. Sanford, 200 N. C. 467, 157 S. E. 432.

Exception—Injunction.—Injunction is the appropriate relief to prevent the collection of an illegal and invalid tax. This constitutes the exception in the statute and gives the taxpayer an additional remedy (see Purnell v. Page, 133 N. C. 125, 45 S. E. 534) to test the validity of a tax, Range Co. v. Carver, 118 N. C. 328, 331, 24 S. E. 352, but only the collection of the tax will be enjoined, until the merits of the controversy can be determined. North Carolina Railroad Co. v. Commr's, 82 N. C. 260.

Same—When Granted.—An injunction will lie to restrain the collection of taxes and to restrain the sale of property under distraint, for three reasons, to wit: (1) If the taxes or any part thereof be assessed for an illegal or unauthorized purpose. (2) If the tax itself be illegal or invalid. (3) If the assessment of the tax be illegal or invalid. Purnell v. Page, 133 N. C. 125, 45 S. E. 534; Sherrod v. Dawson, 154 N. C. 525, 528, 70 S. E. 739.

Same—Portion of Levy Enjoined.—The courts will not enjoin the collection of an entire levy of taxes if the portion conceded to be valid can be separated from the portion alleged to be unconstitutional. Railroad v. Commissioners, 148 N. C. 220, 61 S. E. 690.

Same—Failure to Give Taxpayer Notice.—An injunction will be granted to the hearing against the sheriff for collecting back taxes on a solvent credit, upon the ground that the plaintiff was not given notice of the assessment or opportunity to be heard before the board of assessors or the tribunal having the power to list or assess much property. Lumber Co. v. Smith, 146 N. C. 199, 59 S. E. 653.

Same—Parties.—The sheriff is the proper party defendant, but the commissioners may make themselves parties if they think the rights of the county require it. Lumber Co. v. Smith, 146 N. C. 199, 59 S. E. 653.

Same—Special Assessment for Improvements.—Where an owner of a town lot resists payment of an assessment of his property for the cost of paving or laying down a sidewalk on the ground of excessive cost, discrimination, or for other causes, the remedy of injunction is an improper one, for the owner should pay, under protest, the assessment levied and bring his action to recover it or the excess over a proper charge. Marion v. Pilot Mountain, 170 N. C. 118, 87 S. E. 53.

Same—Levy for School Purposes.—Injunctive relief is not available to the taxpayers of a county, where a tax levy for school purposes has been made, when it appears that under the levy complained of the moneys have been raised and distributed to the branches of government entitled thereto, some of which are not parties to this suit. Semble, the only remedy for the injured taxpayers is to pay the illegal tax under protest and sue to recover the same, as provided by statute. Galloway v. Board, 184 N. C. 245, 114 S. E. 165.

Applied in Hilton v. Harris, 207 N. C. 465, 177 S. E. 411.

§ 105-407. Refund of taxes illegally collected and paid into state treasury.—Whenever taxes of any kind are or have been through clerical error, or misinterpretation of the law, or otherwise, collected and paid into the state treasury in excess of the amount legally due the state, the state auditor shall issue his warrant for the amount so illegally collected, to the person entitled thereto, upon certificate of the head of the department through which said taxes were collected or his successor in the performance of the functions of that department, with the approval of the attorney-general, and the treasurer shall pay the same out of any funds in the treasury not otherwise appropriated: Provided, demand is made for the correction of such error or errors within two years from the time of such payment. (Ex. Sess. 1921, c. 96; C. S. 7979(a).)

Cross Reference.—As to suits for recovery of taxes paid paid under protest, see § 105-267.

The difference between this section and § 105-267 is this: When a refund is ordered, simply upon demand and notice by the taxpayer, no interest is allowed, but when the demand for a refund is denied, and the taxpayer is required to bring suit, and recovers, it is provided that "judgment shall be rendered therefor, with interest." This is a reasonable difference between the two statutes. Cannon v. Maxwell, 205 N. C. 420, 422, 171 S. E. 624.

Where the Commissioner of Revenue, with the approval of the Attorney-General, orders a refund of taxes paid under protest in accordance with this section, merely upon demand and notice of the taxpayer, no suit having been brought to recover the taxes, the taxpayer is not entitled to interest on the amount refunded. Id.

Art. 31. Rights of Parties Adjusted.

§ 105-408. Taxes paid in judicial sales and sales under powers.—In all civil actions and special proceedings wherein the sale of any real estate shall be ordered, the judgment shall provide for the payment of all taxes then assessed upon the property and remaining unpaid, and for the payment of such sums as may be required to redeem the property, if it has been sold for taxes and such redemption can be had; all of which payments shall be adjudged to be made out of the proceeds of sale. The judgment shall adjust the disbursements for such taxes and expenses of redemption from tax sales between the parties to the action or proceeding in accordance with their respective rights. And whenever any real estate shall be sold by any person under any power of sale conferred upon him by any deed, will, power of attorney, mortgage, deed of trust, or assignment for the benefit of creditors, the person making such sale must pay out of the proceeds of sale all taxes then assessed upon such real estate and such sums as shall be necessary to redeem the land, if it has been sold for taxes and such redemption is practicable. This section shall apply both to taxes and special assessments for paving, drainage, or other improvements; provided, that the person making such sale, whether under order of court or in the exercise of a power, shall be required, in cases where special assessments are payable in installments, to pay only such installments of special assessments as have become due at the date of such sale. The failure to comply with this section and pay such taxes or assessments shall not vacate or affect the lien of such taxes or assessments, but such lien shall be discharged only to the extent payment is actually made. (Rev., s. 2857; 1901, c. 558, s. 47; 1929, c. 231, s. 1; C. S. 7980.)

Cross Reference.—As to lien of mortgagee who pays taxes, see § 105-409 and note thereto.

Editor's Note.—The Act of 1929 added the last two sentences to this section and provided that the act should not apply to sales already advertised at the time of its ratification, which was on March 18, 1929.

Purpose of Section.—The object of the law embraced in this and section 105-410 is not only to preserve the property for the benefit of all interested parties, but to pass a clear title to the purchaser when it is sold. Smith v. Miller, 158 N. C. 98, 103, 73 S. E. 118. This being the true purpose, an order directing a commissioner to pay "all such taxes and assessments as are and have been levied" thereon is valid. Id.

Foreclosure of Mortgage.—Land sold on the foreclosure of a mortgage is liable for taxes assessed after the execution of the mortgage. Wooten v. Sugg, 114 N. C. 295, 19 S. E. 148.

The rule that taxes assessed at the death of decedent come within the third class for payment is not affected by the provisions of this section, requiring that taxes assessed against the property should be paid from the proceeds of foreclosure sale. Farmville Oil, etc., Co. v. Bourne, 205 N. C. 337, 171 S. E. 368.

Same—Respective Duty of Mortgagor and Mortgagee.—It is the duty of the mortgagor in possession to list the land for taxation and to pay to the proper officer the tax levied on it for each year, and it is incumbent on the mortgagee, the owner of the legal title, to see to it that this is done. Wooten v. Sugg, 114 N. C. 295, 297, 19 S. E. 148. Section 105-409 provides a method whereby he may pay such taxes without loss to himself, and he should take advantage of their privilege to save his security, where the mortgagor fails to discharge the lien. Exum v. Baker, 115 N. C. 242, 243, 20 S. E. 448. But it seems that he does not have to do this even though his lien is secondary to the lien for taxes. Insurance Co. v. Day, 127 N. C. 133, 37 S. E. 158.

Applied in Guilford County v. Estates Administration, 213 N. C. 763, 197 S. E. 535.

§ 105-409. Tax paid by holder of lien; remedy.—Any person having a lien or encumbrance of any kind upon real estate may pay the taxes due by the owner thereof in so far as the same are a lien upon such real estate, and the amount of taxes so paid shall, from the time of payment, operate as a lien upon such real estate in preference to all other liens, which lien may be enforced by action in the superior court in term. The money so paid may also be recovered by action for moneys paid to his use against the person legally liable for the payment of such taxes. (Rev., s. 2858; Code, s. 3700; 1901, c. 558, s. 46; 1879, c. 71, s. 55; C. S. 7981.)

Lien of Mortgagee.—Money paid by a mortgagee to acquire a tax title on the mortgaged lands becomes a lien on the land. Cauley v. Sutton, 150 N. C. 327, 64 S. E. 3. But his purchase of the tax title does not deprive the mortgagor of his equity of redemption. Id. As to duty of mortgagee to pay taxes, see Wooten v. Sugg, 114 N. C. 295, 297, 19 S. E. 148.

Cited in King v. Lewis, 221 N. C. 315, 20 S. E. (2d) 305.

§ 105-410. Forfeiture by life tenant failing to pay.—Every person shall be liable for the taxes assessed or charged upon the property or estate, real or personal, of which he is tenant for life. If any tenant for life of real estate shall suffer the same to be sold for taxes by reason of his neglect or refusal to pay the taxes thereon, and shall fail to redeem the same within one year after such sale, he shall thereby forfeit his life estate to the remainderman or reversioner. The remainderman or reversioner may redeem such lands, in the same manner that is provided for the redemption of other lands. Moreover, such remainderman or reversioner shall have the right to recover of such tenant for life all damages sustained by reason of such neglect or refusal on the part of such tenant for life. If any tenant for life of personal property suffer the same to be sold for taxes by reason of any default of his, he shall be liable in damages to the remainderman or reversioner. (Rev., s. 2859; Code, ss. 3698, 3699; 1901, c. 558, s. 45; 1879, c. 71, ss. 53, 54; C. S. 7982.)

Life Tenant Has Same Protection as Others.—The statutes now in effect in this state for the enforcement of the collection of taxes on real property give the life tenant the same protection as any other interested party. The interest of the life tenant, as well as that of all other interested parties, including lienholders, can be divested only at the final tax sale, authorized by a judgment entered in a tax foreclosure suit in which they were made parties and duly served with process. Under this section life estates are no longer forfeited. Crandall v. Clemmons, 222 N. C. 225, 227, 22 S. E. (2d) 448.

Forfeiture Occurs before Tax-Sale Certificate Is Foreclosed.—By the express terms of this section, a life tenant forfeits his interest in lands to the remaindermen when he fails and refuses to pay taxes thereon and suffers the lands to be sold for taxes and fails to redeem same within one year from such sale, and the contention that the estate of the life tenant is not forfeited until the tax-sale certificate is foreclosed and the land sold by a commissioner is untenable. Sibley v. Townsend, 206 N. C. 648, 175 S. E. 107.

Set-Off.—Where a life tenant, whose estate has been forfeited for failure to pay taxes on the property, has a judgment for debt against the remaindermen, the remaindermen may be allowed to offset the unpaid taxes against the judgment. Meadows v. Meadows, 216 N. C. 413, 5 S. E. (2d) 128.

When Remainderman May Exercise Right.—In Smith v. Miller, 158 N. C. 98, 102, 73 S. E. 118, the court raises the question whether or not the remainderman or reversioner, in operating under this section, must wait until there is a sale and the accumulation of costs and expenses, before he can exercise his right to redeem. The court says that the evident purpose of this section is that if the life tenant does not pay, and thereby exposes the land to sale, he may intervene and prevent a sale by paying the tax.

It is not required that a remainderman should settle for the taxes against the property before bringing action against the life tenant under this section, to have her estate forfeited for allowing the property to be sold for taxes and failing to redeem same within the time prescribed by law. Bryan v. Bryan, 206 N. C. 464, 174 S. E. 269.

Payment after Suit Instituted Does Not Affect Forfeiture.—Where a life tenant has permitted the lands to be sold for nonpayment of taxes and has failed to redeem same within one year of sale, the remaindermen are entitled to have the life estate declared forfeited in their suit thereafter instituted and the fact that after the institution of the suit the life tenant pays the taxes, interest and penalties, does not affect the forfeiture. Cooper v. Cooper, 220 N. C. 490, 17 S. E. (2d) 655.

Nor Does Insufficient Description on Tax List.—A life tenant who has forfeited her estate by failing to redeem the land within one year after sale of the tax lien by the sheriff cannot be permitted to avoid the forfeiture on the ground of the insufficiency of the description of the property on the tax list, since she herself listed the property for taxation and could not have been misled by any alleged insufficiency in the description. Cooper v. Cooper, 221 N. C. 124, 19 S. E. (2d) 237.

What Interest Passes—Prior Law.—Under the old law a sale and conveyance by the sheriff, of lands of a life tenant for default in payment of taxes on his part, operated to convey only the interest of the life tenant and did not convey the interest of the remainderman. Smith v. Proctor, 139 N. C. 314, 51 S. E. 889. Under the present law the property itself passes and not simply the interest of the delinquent. This section, however, protects the right of the remainderman.

A widow who has a homestead allotted her in the lands of her deceased husband in lieu of dower is a tenant for life thereof, within the meaning of this section. Tucker v. Tucker, 180 N. C. 235, 237, 13 S. E. 5.

Taxes Constitute Claim against Life Tenant's Estate.—A life tenant is liable for taxes assessed against the property during his lifetime, and when he dies without paying the same they constitute a claim against his estate for taxes assessed previous to his death within the meaning of § 28-105, and are payable in the third class stipulated by that section. Rigsbee v. Brogden, 209 N. C. 510, 184 S. E. 24.

Purpose of Section.—The fact that the remainderman is given the right of forfeiture and redemption under this section in case the life tenant suffer the land to be sold for taxes, is in recognition of the duty resting upon the life tenant to keep the property free from tax liens, so that it may pass to the remainderman unencumbered by such liens. Rigsbee v. Brogden, 209 N. C. 510, 513, 184 S. E. 24.

Cited in Hutchins v. Mangum, 198 N. C. 774, 153 S. E. 409.

§ 105-411. Remedies of cotenants and joint owners.—Any one of several tenants in common, or joint tenants or copartners shall have the right to pay his share of the taxes assessed or due upon the real estate held jointly or in common, or, if such estate has been sold for taxes, he may redeem his share by paying his proportionate part of the amount required for redeeming the whole. Where he has paid his share of the taxes or amount required for the redemption and the land has been or shall be divided by actual partition the share set apart to him in severalty shall be free from the lien of, and shall not be liable to be subjected in any manner to, the payment of the residue of taxes assessed upon such property; but such residue of taxes and the costs and penalties incident thereto shall be a lien upon the residue of such real estate, which residue shall be subjected to the satisfaction thereof; and when he has paid his share of the taxes, or amount necessary to redeem, and the real estate is sold under judicial proceedings for partition, his share of the proceeds shall not be diminished by disbursements for the residue of such taxes or for redeeming the property, and the costs and penalties incident thereto. Any such part owner in real estate shall have the right to pay the whole of the taxes assessed thereon and all costs and penalties incident to such taxes, and to redeem such real estate as a whole when it has been sold for taxes, and all sums by him so paid in excess of his share of such taxes, costs, and penalties and amounts required for redemption, shall constitute a lien upon the shares of his cotenants or associates, payment whereof, with interest, he may enforce in proceedings for partition, actual or by sale, or in any other appropriate judicial proceeding. When one tenant in common, joint tenant, or copartner shall have paid his proportionate part of the taxes, as allowed by this section, before a sale for taxes, the sheriff shall except his undivided interest from the sale and in the certificate of sale and deed for the property. (Rev., s. 2860; 1901, c. 558, ss. 13, 14, 47; C. S. 7983.)

Payment of Share by One Tenant.—One tenant in common may pay his or her part of the tax and let the other share go, and three years possession by the purchaser under the tax deed bars the former rightful owner, under section 1-52, subsection 10. Ruark v. Harper, 178 N. C. 249, 100 S. E. 584.

Petitioners in a proceeding for sale of land for partition may not object to the allowance of a sum advanced by one of the parties to pay taxes on the property, as provided by this section, when there is no exception or appeal entered of record by the testator's administrator. Everton v. Rodgers, 206 N. C. 115, 173 S. E. 48.

Where One Tenant in Possession.—This section refers to cases where all the tenants are on the same footing, all or none being in possession. It does not authorize one tenant in common to take title for the whole tract, nor does it apply to a case where one tenant was in possession. Smith v. Smith, 150 N. C. 81, 83, 63 S. E. 177.

§ 105-412. Fiduciaries to pay taxes.—It shall be the duty of every guardian, executor, administrator with the will annexed, agent, trustee, receiver, or other fiduciary in whose care or control any property or estate, real or personal, may be, to pay the taxes thereon out of the trust funds in his hands, if any there be; and if he fail so to do he shall become personally liable for such taxes, and such liability may be enforced by an action against him in the name of the sheriff. If he permit such property to be sold by reason of his negligence to pay the taxes when he has funds in hand, he shall be liable to his ward, principal, or cestui que trust for all actual damages incident to such neglect. This section shall not have the effect of relieving the estates held in trust or under the control of fiduciaries from the lien of such taxes. (Rev., s. 2862; Code, ss. 3698, 1595; 1879, c. 71, s. 53; R. C., c. 54, s. 27; 1868-9, c. 201, s. 32; 1762, c. 69, s. 14; C. S. 7985.)

In General.—The method prescribed by this section for collection of taxes from a decedent's estate is a deduction from the ancillary method for collecting taxes. Sherrod v. Dawson, 154 N. C. 525, 529, 70 S. E. 739.

An order directing the trustee to pay taxes on a house and lot and to keep same in repair, even though the comparatively small amount necessary therefor would be at the expense of the beneficiaries under the residuary trust, is proper, such construction of the will being necessary to effectuate the primary purpose of testator to provide a home for life for his aged and crippled employee. Latta v. McCorkle, 213 N. C. 508, 196 S. E. 867.

Art. 32. Tax Liens.

§ 105-413. Tax lien on railroad property.—The taxes upon any and all railroads in this state, including roadbed, right of way, depots, sidetracks, ties and rails, now constructed or hereafter to be constructed, are hereby made a perpetual lien thereupon, commencing from the first day of May in each current year, against all claims or demands whatsoever of all persons or bodies corporate, except the United States and this state; and the above described property or any part thereof may be taken and held for payment of all taxes assessed against such railroad company in the several counties in this state. (Rev., ss. 2865, 5296; 1917, c. 234, s. 98; 1919, c. 92, s. 98; C. S. 7989.)

§ 105-414. Tax lien enforced by action to foreclose.—A lien upon real estate for taxes or assessments due thereon may be enforced by an action in the nature of an action to foreclose a mortgage, in which action the court shall order a sale of such real estate, or so much thereof as shall be necessary for that purpose, for the satisfaction of the amount adjudged to be due on such lien, together with interest, penalties, and costs allowed by law, and the costs of such action. When such lien is in favor of the state or county, or both, such action shall be prosecuted by and in the name of the county; when the lien is in favor of any other municipal corporation the action shall be prosecuted by and in the name of such corporation. When such lien is in favor of any private individual or private corporation holding a certificate of tax sale or deed under a tax sale, whether as original purchaser at a tax sale or as assignee of the county or other municipal corporation or of any other holder thereof, such action shall be prosecuted in the name of the real party in interest. (Rev., s. 2866; 1901, c. 558, ss. 42, 43; C. S. 7990.)

Local Modification.—Wayne: Pub. Loc. 1939, c. 190.

Cross Reference.—For subsequent statute governing foreclosure of tax lien, see § 105-391.

Summary Proceeding Unnecessary.—Where the Legislature has authorized a municipality to collect back taxes, and in an action for that purpose it appears that the taxes, of the defendant are due, and were properly assessed against lots of land within the limits of the municipality subject to the lien therefor, it is not necessary that the plaintiff should first have resorted to the summary method of levy and sale, for recourse may be had directly by suit to foreclose the lien, under this section. Wilmington v. Moore, 170 N. C. 52, 86 S. E. 775. Commission v. Epley, 190 N. C. 672, 130 S. E. 497.

Prescribed Remedy Optional with State.—The fact that the Revenue Act prescribes a specific remedy for the collection of taxes does not restrict the State to pursue that method, nor preclude it from seeking the aid of the Superior Court through a creditor's suit. The specific remedy pointed out restricts only the officers who collect only the revenue and not the sovereign. State v. Georgia Co., 112 N. C. 34, 17 S. E. 10.

Tax Collector Has No Lien Where Check Returned Unpaid.—The fact that a county tax collector accepted a check in payment for taxes, and the check was returned unpaid, and the collector in his settlement with the county paid the taxes in question, does not give him a lien which may be enforced under this section. Having failed to correct the tax record so as to show the check returned and the taxes unpaid, the tax lien was not reinstated. Miller v. Neal, 222 N. C. 540, 23 S. E. (2d) 852.

The notice must correctly name or describe the parties defendant served by the publication in order for the court to acquire jurisdiction. Board of Com'rs v. Gaines, 221 N. C. 324, 20 S. E. (2d) 377.

Alias Summons.—In an action to enforce a lien for public improvements it was held that the allegations constituted the action one to foreclose the original lien under this section, notwithstanding that a purported alias summons was issued 91 days after the institution of the action, as permitted in an action instituted under repealed § 8037, since the nature of an action is determined by the allegations of the complaint and not by the time the purported alias summons was issued. Asheboro v. Miller, 220 N. C. 298, 17 S. E. (2d) 105.

The receiver of a drainage district may proceed in an action in the nature of an action to foreclose a mortgage under this section for the collection of such drainage assessments. Nesbit v. Kafer, 222 N. C. 48, 52, 21 S. E. (2d) 903.

Statute of Limitation.—The action provided by this section to collect the assessment is as one upon a judgment to foreclose a lien and is not barred within ten years. The statute providing that an action or a liability created on statute shall be brought within three years has no application. Drainage District v. Huffstetler, 173 N. C. 523, 525, 92 S. E. 368. This is on the well settled principle that statutes of limitation, even if applicable to a given case, do not apply to the sovereign unless expressly named therein. New Hanover County v. Whiteman, 190 N. C. 332, 334, 129 S. E. 808. See also, Charlotte v. Kavanaugh, 221 N. C. 259, 20 S. E. (2d) 97.

Whether such lien be a plain lien arising from the bare purchase at the sale or payment of taxes or such as may be evidenced by a certificate of sale executed by the proper officers, the sovereign may proceed under this section to foreclose the lien, in which event no statute of limitations is applicable. Logan v. Griffith, 205 N. C. 580, 582, 172 S. E. 348.

Where a municipality elects to enforce a lien against land for paving assessments by action under this section, no statute of limitations is applicable, and the pleadings in this action are held sufficient to bring the action within the procedure under this statute. Asheboro v. Morris, 212 N. C. 331, 193 S. E. 424.

An action to enforce the lien for public improvements, even though instituted under this section, is barred after ten years from default in the payment of the assessments, or, if the assessments are payable in installments, each installment is barred after ten years from default in payment of same unless the time for payment has been extended as provided by law. Charlotte v. Kavanaugh, 221 N. C. 259, 20 S. E. (2d) 97.

Same—Complaint.—Where a county brings suit to foreclose a tax lien on the lands of the taxpayer and draws its complaint according to the provisions of section 105-414, other taxes due after the commencement of the action are properly included in the judgment therein rendered in its favor. New Hanover County v. Whiteman, 190 N. C. 332, 129 S. E. 808.

Class Representation of Contingent Remainderman.—In an action under this section to enforce the lien for taxes against lands affected by a contingent limitation over, in which each class of contingent remaindermen is represented by defendants actually served and answering, the judgment is binding upon all contingent remaindermen by class representation. Rodman v. Norman, 221 N. C. 320, 20 S. E. (2d) 294.

Taxes Not Subject to Set-Off or Counterclaim.—Taxes are not debts in the ordinary sense of the word and they do not rest upon contract or consent of the tax payer. Pleas of set-off and counter-claim are not allowed because to do so would delay the collection and payment of taxes, and would deprive the Government of means of performing its functions. Commissioners v. Hall, 177 N. C. 490, 491, 99 S. E. 372; Graded School v. McDowell, 157 N. C. 316, 72 S. E. 1083.

Amount of Interest Recoverable.—Since no rate of interest is fixed by the section, only six per cent interest can be recovered. Wilmington v. State, 122 N. C. 395, 30 S. E. 12.

Section 105-422 destroys tax liens for 1926 and prior years and, hence, this section would not afford a remedy. Raleigh v. Jordan, 218 N. C. 55, 9 S. E. (2d) 507.

Where Clerk's Order Confirming Sale and Decreeing Execution of Deed Is Void.—Where, in the foreclosure of the tax liens upon lands under this section, the clerk's order confirming the commissioner's sale and decreeing that he execute deed was void because entered on a day other than Monday, the owners were entitled to redeem the land from the tax sale upon tender, and such tender having been made two days prior to the effective date of ch. 107, Public Laws of 1939, amending § 1-209 and relating to the clerk's power to enter certain judgments in actions instituted under this section and ratifying judgments and orders theretofore entered by clerks of superior courts in such actions, the effect of this latter statute need not be considered, and the sale being set aside, the authority of the clerk at that time to enter judgment by default final and ordering sale of the lands need not be determined. Beaufort County v. Bishop, 216 N. C. 211, 4 S. E. (2d) 525.

Applied in Bladen County v. Breece, 214 N. C. 544, 200 S. E. 13.

Art. 33. Time and Manner of Collection.

§ 105-415. Sureties of sheriff may collect, when.—If any sheriff shall die during the time appointed for collecting taxes, his sureties may collect them, and for that purpose shall have all power and means for collecting the same from the collectors and taxpayers as the sheriff would have had, and shall be subject to all the remedies for collecting and settling the taxes, on their bond or otherwise, as might have been had against the sheriff if he had lived. (Rev., ss. 2868, 5264; 1917, c. 234, s. 112; 1919, c. 92, s. 112; C. S. 7993.)

§ 105-416. Sheriff collecting by deputy.—When the sheriff shall collect by his deputies they shall, before the clerk of the board of commissioners or before a justice of the peace of the county, take and subscribe an oath faithfully and honestly to account for the taxes with the sheriff or other person authorized to receive the same. Such oath shall be filed with the register of deeds and kept in the office of the board of commissioners, and for failure of any deputy sheriff to pay over such taxes as he may collect he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Rev., s. 5241; 1917, c. 234, s. 88; 1919, c. 92, s. 88; C. S. 7995.)

§ 105-417. Compromise of tax claims due by railroad companies in which state owns majority of stock, authorized.—The commissioner of revenue of the state of North Carolina and the governing bodies of any county, municipality, or other taxing subdivision in this state, are hereby authorized within their discretion to accept in full settlement for all taxes which have heretofore become due settlements thereof which may be less than the full amount of such taxes, penalties and costs as to any taxes which may be due by any railroad company in North Carolina in which the state of North Carolina is the owner of more than a majority of the outstanding capital stock; and said settlement may be accepted by said officials if in their judgment the acceptance of the same will be for the best interests and to the advantage of the respective taxing units holding such tax claims. (1939, c. 76.)

Art. 33A. Agreements with United States or Other States.

§ 105-417.1. Agreements to coordinate the administration and collection of taxes.—The commissioner of revenue is hereby authorized, with the approval of the governor and council of state, to enter into agreements with the United States government or any department or agency thereof, or with a state or any political subdivision thereof, for the purpose of coördinating the administration and collection of taxes imposed by this state and administered and collected by said commissioner with taxes imposed by the United States or by any other state or political subdivision thereof. (1943, c. 747, s. 1.)

§ 105-417.2. Expenditures and commitments authorized to effectuate agreements.—The commissioner of revenue with the approval of the governor and council of state is authorized and empowered to undertake such commitments and make such expenditures, within the appropriations provided by law, as may be necessary to effectuate such agreements. (1943, c. 747, s. 2.)

§ 105-417.3. Returns to be filed and taxes paid pursuant to agreements.—Notwthstandng any other provision of law, returns shall be filed and taxes paid in accordance with the provisions of any agreement entered into pursuant to this article. (1943, c. 747, s. 3.)

Local Modification.—Durham, Mecklenburg: 1933, c. 177.

§ 105-420. Taxes sales for 1933-34 and certificates validated.—All sales of land for failure to pay taxes held or conducted by any sheriff or any tax collector of any county, city, town or other municipality during the years one thousand nine hundred thirty-three and one thousand nine hundred thirty-four or on any date subsequent to or other than the date prescribed by law and all certificates of sale executed and issued pursuant to and in accordance with such sales be and the same are hereby approved, confirmed and validated and shall have the same force and legal effect as if said sales had been held and conducted on the date prescribed by law.

All actions instituted in any county, city, town or other municipality for the foreclosure of certificates of sale issued for the taxes of the years one thousand nine hundred twenty-seven, one thousand nine hundred twenty-eight, one thousand nine hundred twenty-nine, one thousand nine hundred thirty, one thousand nine hundred thirty-one and one thousand nine hundred thirty-two subsequent to October first, one thousand nine hundred thirty-four, and all such actions instituted before October first, one thousand nine hundred thirty-five, shall be and the same are hereby approved, validated and declared to be legally binding and of the same force and effect as if said actions were instituted prior to October first, one thousand nine hundred thirty-four: Provided, that this section shall not be construed to repeal any private or local act passed by the general assembly of one thousand nine hundred thirty-five. (1935, c. 331.)

§ 105-421. Notices of sale for taxes by publication validated.—All sales of real property under tax certificate foreclosures, made since January first, one thousand nine hundred twenty-seven, where the original notice of sale was published for four successive weeks, and any notice of resale was published for two successive weeks, preceding said sales, whether the notice of sale was required to be published in a newspaper or at courthouse door, or both, shall be, and the same are in all respects validated as to publication of said notice: Provided said publication was completed as above set out within ten days of the date of the sale.

Local Modification.—McDowell: 1933, c. 399; Pamlico, Richmond: 1933, c. 181. s. 7.

An action by a municipality to foreclose the lien for taxes for the years 1925 and 1926 under § 105-414 is barred by this section, since the legislative intent to bar the enforcement of all liens for unpaid taxes for the year 1926 and the years prior thereto, under whatever guise attempted, is apparent from the use of the phrase "all tax liens" and the fact that at the time of the passage of this section foreclosure of tax sales certificates under former § 8037 was already barred, and the fact that this part provides for the refunding of taxes only for the years subsequent to 1926. Raleigh v. Jordan, 218 N. C. 55, 9 S. E. (2d) 507.

§ 105-423. (1933, c. 181, s. 14, cc. 226, 314, 329, 351, 377, 389, s. 2, 391, 424, 427, s. 2, 471, 502.)

Art. 35. Sheriff's Settlement of Taxes.

§ 105-424. Time and manner of settlement. — The sheriff or other accounting officer shall, on or before the second Monday of January in each year, settle his estate tax account with the commissioners of his county and pay the amount for which said sheriff or collector is liable to the treasurer of the state, in such manner or at such place as he shall direct, on or before the third Monday of said month: Provided, the state treasurer may extend the time on a sufficient amount to cover the state tax on the land sales in each county to the first Monday in May. The commissioners shall forthwith report to the state auditor the amount due from such accounting officer, setting forth therein the net amount due to each fund; and the treasurer, upon a statement from the state auditor, shall open an account against such officer and debit him accordingly. Upon the failure of the board of county commissioners to make this report to the state auditor on or before the third Monday of January of each year, or if a report has been filed which is not correct and the commissioners fail to file an amended and corrected report within thirty days after being notified so to do by the state auditor, the commissioners of such county shall each personally be liable to a penalty of one hundred dollars, and it shall be the duty of the state auditor forthwith to institute an action in the county of Wake to enforce the same. The sheriff or tax collector, in making his settlements as aforesaid, shall file with the commissioners a duplicate of the list required in this chapter. In such settlement the sheriff or other officer shall be charged with the amount of public tax as the same appears by the abstract of the taxables transmitted to the state auditor; also with all double taxes on unlisted property by him received, and with other tax which he may have collected or for which he is chargeable. The state auditor shall give to each sheriff or tax collector a certified statement embracing the subjects of taxation contained in both lists and the amount of tax on each subject which the sheriff or tax collector shall deposit with the clerk of the commissioners of his county for public inspection. The sheriffs and tax collectors shall receive five per cent on all taxes collected by them for state, county, township, school district, or other purposes whatsoever, up to the sum of fifty thousand dollars, and upon all such sums so collected by him in excess thereof he shall receive two and one-half per cent commission, and the sheriffs or tax collectors shall receive for their own use, in addition to other fees or salary received by them, a commission of five per cent on all privilege and license taxes collected under schedule B of the revenue act, and any provision in any local act in conflict with this provision is hereby repealed. (Rev., s. 5245; 1917, c. 234, s. 101; 1919, c. 92, s. 101; C. S. 8042.)

Local Modification.—Buncombe: C. S. 8042; Perquimans: 1943, c. 745.

Cross References.—For subsequent statute relating to settlement, see § 105-390. As to sheriff's duty to settle school tax, and penalty for failure to do so, see § 115-106 and note thereto.

The Settlement Has Attributes of Contract.—An account stated and settlement between a county and its tax collector have the force of a contract, and operate as a bar to a subsequent accounting, except upon a specific allegation of fraud or mistake. Settle v. Doggett, 87 N. C. 203.

Failure of Sheriff to Pay—Action by Commissioners.—It was held in Commissioners v. Clarke, 73 N. C. 255, that no action upon the bond of a sheriff for a failure to pay taxes could be brought on the relation of the commissioner except on the failure or refusal of the county treasurer to bring the action.

Fees of Sheriff Regulated by Legislature.—The regulation of the sheriff's fees is within the control of the legislature and may be reduced during the term of the incumbent. Commissioner v. Stedman, 141 N. C. 448, 54 S. E. 269.

Same—Basis of Compensation Changed—(1) Right of Out-Going Sheriff.—A sheriff whose term of office expires is entitled to collect the taxes on the lists in his hands and to receive commissioner therefor, notwithstanding the office has been placed upon a salary basis for his successor. Commissioner v. Bain, 173 N. C. 377, 92 S. E. 176.

Same—Same—(2) Where Sheriff Re-Elected.—Upon the re-election of the sheriff he receives only the salary fixed by the act of legislature changing the basis of compensation. Miller v. Deaton, 170 N. C. 386, 87 S. E. 123.

Same—Drainage Districts.—This section, allowing sheriffs a commission of 5 per cent on "assessments collected," refers only to taxes collected for general governmental purposes, and not to assessments in drainage districts imposed for the special benefits to the lands therein, and commissions on assessments for maintenance are limited to 2 per cent by Laws 1909; and this construction is not affected by the repeal of sec. 36, Laws 1909, by ch. 152, sec. 2, Laws 1917. Commissioners v. Davis, 182 N. C. 140, 108 S. E. 506.

SUBCHAPTER IV. LISTING OF AUTOMOBILES IN CERTAIN COUNTIES.

§ 105-425. Listing by owner required.—Every owner of a motor vehicle in the counties specified herein shall list such motor vehicle for taxes in such counties at the same time residents of such counties are or may be required by law to list real and/or personal property for taxation. (1931, c. 392, s. 1.)

§ 105-426. Commissioner of motor vehicles to furnish list of registered automobiles to counties. —The Commissioner of Motor Vehicles shall furnish to the tax listing authorities of the counties enumerated in § 105-429, or to the tax collectors thereof, a list showing the names and addresses of all owners of motor vehicles in such counties as of January first in each year. The list shall also show the make, type and character of such motor vehicle and the date of registration thereof. This list shall be furnished as soon after the first day of January in each year as it can be prepared and furnished. The cost of preparing such lists shall be paid by the authorities of the enumerated counties to which the lists are furnished. (1931, c. 392, s. 2.)

§ 105-427. Listing by county authorities where owners fail to list.—The tax listing authorities of the counties specified herein shall compare said list of motor vehicle owners with the tax lists of such counties and if it appears that any owner of a motor vehicle has failed to list any motor vehicle registered in his name, it shall be the duty of such tax listing authorities or of the tax collectors of such counties to list such motor vehicle for purposes of taxation, together with any other property of such person, and the tax collectors of such counties shall collect the taxes thereon in the same manner as other taxes of such counties. (1931, c. 392, s. 3.)

§ 105-428. Basis of tax valuation.—All motor vehicles shall be valued or appraised for purposes of taxation upon the rule or standard of valuation established by "The Automobile Blue Book," or any other standard of value which may be reasonable, equitable and just. (1931, c. 392, s. 4.)

§ 105-429. Counties to which article applicable. — This article shall apply to the following counties: Alamance, Buncombe, Cabarrus, Camden, Caswell, Chowan, Currituck, Cleveland, Columbus, Durham, Gates, Guilford, Halifax, Harnett, Henderson, Hertford, Johnston, Iredell, Lee, Nash, Moore, McDowell, Orange, Pasquotank, Perquimans, Pitt, Polk, Rowan, Rutherford, Swain, Wayne and Watauga. SUBCHAPTER V. GASOLINE TAX.

Art. 36. Gasoline Tax.

§ 105-430. Definitions; "motor fuel," "distributor". — The following words, terms, and phrases hereinafter used for the purpose of this article are defined as follows:

(a) "Motor Fuel" shall mean (a) all products commonly or commercially known or sold as gasoline (including casinghead and absorption or natural gasoline) regardless of their classification or uses; and (b) any liquid prepared, advertised, offered for sale or sold for use as or commonly and commercially used as a fuel in internal combustion engines, which when subjected to distillation in accordance with the standard method of test for distillation of gasoline, naphtha, kerosene and similar petroleum products (American Society for Testing Materials Designation D-86) shows not less than ten per centum (10%) distilled (recovered) below three hundred forty-seven degrees (347°) Fahrenheit (one hundred seventy-five degrees (175°) Centigrade) and not less than ninety-five per centum (95%) distilled (recovered) below four hundred sixty-four degrees (464°) Fahrenheit (two hundred forty degrees (240°) Centigrade); with the exception that the term "motor fuel" shall not include commercial solvents which distill, by American Society for Testing Materials Method D-86, not more than nine (9%) per centum at 176° F. and which have a distillation range of 125° F. or less, of liquefied gases which would not exist as liquids at a temperature of 60° Fahrenheit and a pressure of 14.7 pounds per square inch absolute.

(b) "Distributor" is any person, firm, association of persons, corporation, municipality, county, or other political subdivision or agency that has on hand or in his or its possession in this State, or that produces, refines, manufactures, or compounds such motor fuels in this State for sale, distribution, or use herein. (1927, c. 93, s. 1; 1931, c. 145, s. 24; 1941, c. 376, s. 1.)

Editor's Note.—Sections 2613(c)-2613(i) of Michie's Code as passed in 1921 were repealed by the Act of 1927 and reenacted.

The Act of 1931 amended these sections as amended by the act of 1927 and Public Laws 1929, c. 40, to read as appearing in §§ 2613(i1)-2613(i15) of Michie's Code.

The 1941 amendment, effective July 1, 1941, changed subsection (a) of this section.

For comment on the 1941 amendment, see 19 N. C. Law Rev. 516.

A county purchasing gasoline for use by it in trucks and automobiles in the discharge of its governmental function of maintenance of its highways is not a "distributor" within the purview of this chapter, imposing an excise tax upon distributors of gasoline, since general statutes do not bind the sovereign unless the sovereign is expressly mentioned, and under the express language of the statute the Legislature could not have intended to include counties thereunder since counties could not be subject to the procedure for its enforcement nor liable for the penalty for its evasion. As to whether Article V, § 5, of the State Constitution prohibits the General Assembly from levying such a tax on a county, quaere, but not decided, the question not being necessary to the determination of the case. O'Berry, State Treasurer v. Mecklenburg County, 198 N. C. 357, 151 S. E. 880.

§ 105-431. Purpose of article; double taxation not intended.—The purpose of this article is to provide for the payment and collection of a tax on the first sale of motor fuels when sold, or the use, when used, in this State; double taxation is not intended. Motor fuels manufactured, produced, or sold for exportation, and exported are not taxable and should not be included in the reports hereinafter required to be made by distributors. (1927, c. 93, s. 2; 1931, c. 145, s. 24.)

§ 105-432. Sales in tank car shipments.—In the administration of this article the first sale shall not be construed to embrace the sale in tank car shipments from port terminals to licensed distributors within the State, but the tax hereinafter levied on such motor fuel shall be levied against and paid by such licensed distributor. (1927, c. 93, s. 2½; 1931, c. 145, s. 24.)

§ 105-433. Application for license as distributor.—Any distributor engaged in business on April 1, 1931, shall, within thirty days thereafter, and any other distributor shall, prior to the commencement of doing business, file a duly acknowledged application for a license with the Commissioner of Revenue on a form prescribed and furnished by him setting forth the name under which such distributor transacts or intends to transact business within this State, the address of each place of business and a designation of the principal place of business. If such distributor is a firm or association, the application shall set forth the name and address of each person constituting the firm or association, and if a corporation, the names and addresses of the principal officers and such other information as the Commissioner of Revenue may require. Each distributor shall at the same time file a bond in such amount, not exceeding twenty thousand dollars ($20,000) in such form and with such surety or sureties as may be required by the Commissioner of Revenue, conditioned upon the rendition of the reports and the payment of the tax hereinafter provided for. Upon approval of the application and bond, the Commissioner of Revenue shall issue to the distributor a non-assignable license with a duplicate copy for each place of business of said distributor in this State, which shall be displayed in a conspicuous place at each such place of business and shall continue in force until surrendered or cancelled. No distributor shall sell, offer for sale, or use any motor fuels within this State until such license has been issued. Any distributor failing to comply with or violating any of the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof shall be fined not less than one hundred dollars ($100.00), nor more than five thousand dollars ($5,000.00), or imprisoned for not more than twenty-four months, or both. (1927, c. 93, s. 3; 1931, c. 145, s. 24.)

§ 105-434. Gallon tax.—There is hereby levied and imposed a tax of six cents per gallon on all motor fuels sold, distributed, or used within this State. The tax hereby imposed and levied shall be collected and paid by the distributor producing, refining, manufacturing, or compounding within this State, or holding in possession within this State motor fuels for the purpose of sale, distribution, or use within the State, and shall be paid by such distributor to the Commissioner of Revenue in the manner and at the times hereinafter specified. No county, city, or town, or political sub-division shall levy or collect any tax upon the sale or distribution of motor fuels herein defined. For the purpose of determining the amount of the tax, it shall be the duty of every distributor to transmit to the Commissioner of Revenue not later than the twentieth day of each month, upon forms prescribed and furnished by such commissioner, a report under oath or affirmation showing the quantity of motor fuel sold, distributed, or used by such distributor within this State during the preceding calendar month, and such other information as the said commissioner may require: Provided, that any distributor may, if he elects to do so, use as the measure of the tax levied and assessed against him by this section the gross quantity of motor fuel purchased, produced, refined, manufactured, and/or compounded by such distributor, plus the amount of motor fuel on hand at the beginning of the period when such method of computation is used, less a tare of two per cent (2%) on gross monthly receipts of motor fuels not exceeding 150,000 gallons, and less a tare of one and one-half per cent (1½%) on gross monthly receipts of such fuels in excess of 150,000 gallons and not exceeding 250,000 gallons, and less a tare of one per cent (1%) on gross monthly receipts of such fuels in excess of 250,000 gallons. Provided, that if any licensed distributor who has elected to pay the tax levied herein on the amount of motor fuel purchased, produced, refined, manufactured, or compounded, in lieu of the amount sold, distributed, or used, shall lose any such fuel by reason of fire, lightning, flood, windstorm, wrecking of transportation conveyance, acts of war, or any accidental or providential cause, and such loss is clearly proved to the satisfaction of the commissioner of revenue, the amount of motor fuel lost shall be excluded from the measure of his tax. Provided, further, that the commissioner of revenue shall have power under such rules and regulations as he may adopt for the purpose to refund to any non-licensed distributor the tax on any motor fuel purchased by and delivered to him tax paid that is lost by fire, lightning, flood, windstorm, acts of war, or any accidental or providential cause, after it is delivered to him and before it is sold, but such loss must be clearly proved to the satisfaction of the commissioner. (1927, c. 93, s. 4; 1929, c. 40, s. 1; 1931, c. 145, s. 24; 1941, cc. 16, 146; 1943, c. 113.)

Editor's Note.—The first 1941 amendment, adding the last provisos to this section, does not apply to any loss suffered prior to July 1, 1940. Prior to the second 1941 amendment this section provided for a tare of one per cent.

Prior to the 1943 amendment the last two provisos related only to losses by lightning, flood or windstorm. The 1943 amendment is not applicable to any loss sustained prior to March 1, 1943.

Our state gasoline tax is an excise and not a property tax. Stedman v. Winston-Salem, 204 N. C. 203, 167 S. E. 813.

And It May Be Levied on Municipality.—Under the provisions of our Constitution, Art. V, sec. 5, the General Assembly is prohibited from levying a property tax on property owned by municipal corporations, but the prohibition does not extend to excise taxes, and under the provisions of this section, a municipality is liable for the gasoline tax on gasoline bought by it in bulk and distributed by it to its various departments for use in its governmental functions. Stedman v. Winston-Salem, 204 N. C. 203, 167 S. E. 813.

§ 105-435. Tax on fuels not included in definition; permits to operate vehicles; reports by holders of permits.—(a) Every person who owns or operates over the highways of this state, any motor vehicle propelled by a motor which uses any product not included within the definition of "motor fuels" hereinbefore set out to generate power for the propulsion of said vehicle, shall pay to the commissioner of revenue, for the use of the highways of this state, a tax of six cents (6c) per gallon on the fuel used in such vehicle upon the highways of this state.

(b) The owner or operator of such a vehicle on July 1, 1941, or any person who purchases such a vehicle subsequent thereto, shall, before it is operated on the highways of this state, apply to the commissioner of revenue, on forms prescribed by him, for a permit to operate such vehicle on the highways of the state and shall make the tax payments herein levied direct to the department of revenue. Upon receipt and approval of such application the commissioner of revenue shall issue to such owner or operator a non-assignable permit which shall remain in effect until new license plates are required to be purchased and at that time shall be surrendered and a new permit showing the correct license number shall be issued. This permit shall at all times be in the possession of the operator of such vehicle and subject to inspection by any agent of the department of revenue or any dealer from whom such operator desires to purchase fuel. The holder of a permit issued under the provisions of this section shall be subject to the same laws and to the rules and regulations of the commissioner of revenue in regard to the payments of tax and filing reports that licensed distributors of motor fuel are subject to, and such person shall also be subject to any other rules and regulations promulgated by the commissioner of revenue for the proper administration of this section: Provided, however, no bond shall be required. Provided, further, any person duly licensed as a motor fuel distributor under the provisions of this article who owns and operates motor vehicles for his own use and utilizes in such vehicles fuel not defined as motor fuel in this article, is authorized to pay the tax levied in this section on such fuel at the same time and in the same manner as is provided for motor fuel distributors, and such tax shall be subject to the tares allowed by law to motor fuel distributors. In the event that a person elects to qualify as a motor fuel distributor and pay the tax as authorized by this proviso, it shall not be necessary for such person to secure the permit or make the reports required by this section, but such person shall comply with all the laws relating to motor fuel distributors.

(c) For the purpose of determining the amount of tax due, the owner or operator of every motor vehicle holding a permit issued under the provisions of this section shall file a report on or before the twentieth day of each month showing the number of miles each vehicle was operated over the highways of the state, the amount of fuel used during the preceding month and such other information as the commissioner of revenue may require. At the time of filing his report, said person shall pay to the commissioner of revenue the tax levied in paragraph (a) of this subsection.

(d) It shall be unlawful for any distributor, dealer or other person knowingly to sell fuel for use in such vehicles to owners or operators who do not hold permits as required by this section without collecting the tax herein levied and remitting the same to the commissioner of revenue as required on sales of motor fuel. It shall also be unlawful for any person who does not hold a permit, as provided herein, to operate such vehicles over the highways of the state on fuel on which the tax is not paid as provided herein.

If the owner or operator of any such vehicle shall fail to secure a permit, file a report or pay the tax as herein provided, his motor vehicle license shall be cancelled. It shall be the duty of the commissioner of revenue, upon such failure, to certify the same to the department of motor vehicles or such agency of the state as has charge of issuing motor vehicle licenses and upon receipt of such certification the department of motor vehicles or such other agency of the state as has charge of issuing motor vehicle licenses shall immediately have the license of the vehicle or vehicles returned for cancellation.

(e) Any person violating any of the provisions of this section shall be required to pay to the commissioner of revenue all taxes found to be due and, in addition thereto, a penalty of twenty-five per centum (25%) thereof, and such person shall also be guilty of a misdemeanor and, upon conviction, shall be fined or imprisoned in the discretion of the court. (1941, c. 376, s. 2.)

Editor's Note.—This section is effective as of July 1, 1941.

§ 105-436. Payment of tax.—Every distributor, at the time of making the report required by § 105-434, shall pay to the Commissioner of Revenue, the amount of tax due for the month covered by such report. The tax so paid shall be transferred promptly by the said commissioner to the State Treasurer as other receipts of his office and the State Treasurer shall place the same to the credit of the "State Highway Fund." (1927, c. 93, s. 5; 1931, c. 145, s. 24.)

§ 105-437. Action by commissioner of revenue if distributor fail to report.—If any distributor shall wilfully fail, neglect or refuse to make the reports required by § 105-434 within the time therein provided, the Commissioner of Revenue shall immediately inform himself as best he may as to all matters and things required to be set forth in such reports, and from such information as he may be able to obtain, determine and fix the amount of the tax due the State from such delinquent distributor for the period covering the delinquency, adding to the tax so determined and as a part thereof, an amount equal to twenty-five per cent (25%) of the tax, to be collected and paid. The said Commissioner shall proceed immediately to collect the tax including the additional twenty-five per cent and transmit the same in the manner provided in § 105-436 for the disposition of other taxes. (1927, c. 93, s. 6; 1931, c. 145, s. 24.)

§ 105-438. Record of transactions.—Every distributor of motor fuels shall keep a record of all such fuels purchased, received, sold, delivered or used by him, which shall include the number of gallons so purchased, received, sold, delivered, or used, and the dates of such purchases and sales, which records shall be preserved for a period of two years and shall at all times during the business hours of the day be subject to inspection by the Commissioner of Revenue or his deputies, or such other officers as may be duly authorized by said Commissioner. (1927, c. 93, s. 8; 1931, c. 145, s. 24.)

§ 105-439. Rebates for fuels sold to U. S. Government or for use in aircraft. — The Commissioner of Revenue is authorized under such rules and regulations as he may adopt for that purpose, to relieve any distributor from the payment of the tax herein levied for any motor fuels sold to the United States Government, and/or gasoline of such quality that it is not adapted for use in ordinary automotive vehicles, but is designed for and sold and used exclusively in aircraft motors, when it appears to the satisfaction of the Commissioner of Revenue that the tax herein imposed has not been added to the sale price of such motor fuel, and the Commissioner of Revenue is likewise authorized to refund by warrant drawn upon the State Treasurer to the person paying the same, any tax paid under the provisions of this article which constitutes an unlawful burden upon interstate commerce, in conflict with the provisions of the Constitution of the United States: Provided, that any claims for such rebate, which are not filed with the Commissioner of Revenue in accordance with forms to be provided by the Commissioner of Revenue within sixty days after the payment of said tax, shall be deemed to have been waived. (1931, c. 145, s. 24.)

§ 105-440. Penalty for making false claim for rebate. — Any person who shall wilfully make any false or fraudulent report as the basis for claim for rebate or deduction under the provisions of this article, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be fined and imprisoned in the discretion of the court. (1927, c. 93, s. 10; 1931, c. 145, s. 24.)

§ 105-441. Enumeration of acts constituting misdemeanor; cancellation of license and bond.—Any distributor who shall fail, neglect, or refuse to make the reports herein required or pay the taxes herein imposed, or who shall refuse to permit the Commissioner of Revenue or any agent appointed by him, to examine the books and records of such distributor pertaining to the motor fuels made taxable by this article or who shall make any false, or fraudulent report or statement hereunder, or who does, or attempts to do, anything whatsoever to avoid a full disclosure of the quantity of motor fuels sold, distributed or used within this State shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and, on conviction, shall be fined not less than one hundred dollars ($100.00) and not more than five thousand dollars ($5,000.00) or, in the case of an individual or the officer or employee charged with the duty of making such report for a corporation, to be imprisoned not exceeding twenty-four months, or both; and the commissioner of revenue may forthwith cancel the license of such distributor and notify him in writing of such cancellation by registered mail to be sent to his last known address. In the event that the license of any distributor is cancelled as above provided, and in the event such distributor shall have paid to the state of North Carolina all the taxes due and payable by him under this article, together with any and all penalties accruing under the provisions of this article, then the Commissioner of Revenue shall cancel and surrender the bond theretofore filed by said distributor. (1927, c. 93, s. 11; 1931, c. 145, s. 24; 1933, c. 544, s. 10.)

§ 105-442. Actions for tax; double liability.—If any person, firm or corporation shall fail to pay the amount of tax levied in § 105-434 within the time specified in § 105-436 it shall be the duty of the commissioner of revenue to proceed at once to enforce the payment of said tax, and to this end the commissioner of revenue shall have and may exercise all the remedies provided in the revenue laws of the state for enforcing payment of other taxes, including the right of execution through the sheriffs of the several counties of the state upon any property of the delinquent taxpayer, and shall, with the assistance of the attorney general whenever necessary, bring appropriate action in the courts of the state for the recovery of such tax. If it shall be found as a fact that such failure to pay was willful on the part of such person, firm or corporation, judgment shall be rendered against such person, firm or corporation for double the amount of tax found to be due, together with interest, and the amount of taxes and penalties shall be paid into the state treasury to the credit of the state highway fund. All remedies which now or may hereafter be given by the laws of the state of North Carolina for the collection of taxes are expressly given herein for the collection of taxes levied in this article or of judgment recovered under authority of this article. It shall also be the duty of the commissioner of revenue to revoke the license of any licensed distributor who shall refuse, fail or neglect to pay the taxes levied in § 105-434 within the time specified in § 105-436, and whose account shall remain delinquent for any part of said tax for ten days thereafter. (1927, c. 93, s. 12; 1931, c. 145, s. 24; 1933, c. 137, s. 1.)

Editor's Note.—Public Laws of 1933, c. 137, repealed this section as it formerly read and substituted the above in lieu thereof. A comparison of the two sections is necessary to determine the changes.

§ 105-443. Auditing books of licensed distributors.—It shall be the duty of the commissioner of revenue, by competent auditors, to have the books and records of every licensed distributor in the state examined at least twice each year to determine if such distributor is keeping complete records as provided in § 105-438, and to determine if correct reports have been made to the state department of revenue by every such distributor covering the total amount of tax liability of such licensed distributor. It shall also be the duty of such auditors to check the records of each distributor with the records of shipment by railroad companies, or by boats or trucks, or other available sources of information, and also to check the records covering the receipt and distribution of any other liquid petroleum products handled by each distributor. (1933, c. 137, s. 1.)

§ 105-444. License constitutes distributor trust officer of state for collection of tax.—The licensing of any person, firm or corporation as a wholesale distributor of gasoline shall constitute such distributor an agent or trust officer of the state for the purpose of collecting the tax on the sale of gasoline imposed in this article. When any such person, firm or corporation who adds the amount of the tax levied in this article to the customary market price for gasoline and collects the same, shall fail to remit the gasoline tax to the commissioner of revenue upon the terms and as provided herein, such failure shall constitute embezzlement of state funds, and upon conviction under this section any individual, partner or officer or agent of any association, partnership or corporation shall be guilty of a felony, and upon conviction shall be fined or imprisoned in the discretion of the court. (1933, c. 137, s. 1.)

§ 105-445. Application of proceeds of gasoline tax.—The fund derived from the tax herein levied shall be for the exclusive uses of the purposes set out in this article, and disbursed on vouchers drawn by the State Highway and Public Works Commission in accordance with the acts of the General Assembly dealing with the subject matter herein referred to. (1931, c. 145, s. 24; 1933, c. 172, s. 17.)

§ 105-446. Tax rebate fuels not used in motor vehicles on highways.—Any person, association, firm, or corporation, who shall buy in quantities of ten gallons or more at any one time any motor fuels as defined in this article for the purpose of use, and the same is actually used, for a purpose other than the operation of a motor vehicle designed for use upon the highways, on which motor fuels the tax imposed by this article shall have been paid, shall be reimbursed at the rate of five cents per gallon of the amount of such tax or taxes paid under this article: Provided, however, that motor vehicles designed for use but not used upon the highways of this state shall be entitled to the refund of gasoline tax as herein provided, upon the following conditions and in the following manner:

(a) Before using such motor fuels the person, association, firm, or corporation proposing to use the same shall apply to the commissioner of revenue, upon blanks to be furnished by him, for a refund permit. Such application shall state the use for which the motor fuels for which taxes are to be refunded are to be used. If such motor fuels are to be used in a gasoline motor or engine, the application shall state the make and kind of such motor, the serial number thereof, and the purpose for which it is proposed to use the same. If such motor fuels are to be used for some purpose other than the operation of an engine, the application shall state the nature and kind of process in which such motor fuels are to be used, and the method and manner in which such motor fuels are to be used, stored and kept. In all cases such application shall state the approximate number of gallons of such motor fuels to be used per month, and shall give such other information as the commissioner of revenue shall require. In making application for refund permit, the person making application may combine one or more of the uses above specified in the same application. Dealers in motor fuel engaged in selling such fuel to motor boats owned by nonresidents, and which boats are not documented in this state, may apply to the commissioner of revenue for a permit on forms to be prescribed by the commissioner of revenue, which permit shall entitle the said dealer to be furnished with blanks by the commissioner of revenue in such form as may be prescribed by him, for the use of such non-resident boat owners to file applications for refunds as provided in this article, and said non-resident boat owners shall not be required to secure permits. Such application for refund shall be filed in the name of the nonresident boat owner on blanks furnished by dealers holding permits. Said applications must be accompanied by an invoice of the dealer holding permit, showing the number of gallons of motor fuel delivered into the tanks of said boats and shall furnish such other information as the commissioner of revenue shall require. Applications must be sworn to before a notary public of this state and filed with the commissioner of revenue. Upon approval of said applications by the commissioner of revenue, said applications shall be paid as other applications for refund are paid: Provided, however, that such non-residents must file applications with the commissioner of revenue within thirty days from the date of purchase of said gasoline and that said applications may be paid immediately upon approval. The application shall be accompanied by a fee of one dollar, to be returned if the refund permit is not issued. Such fees, if retained, shall be paid by the commissioner of revenue to the state treasurer, to be credited by him to the state highway fund.

(b) If, upon the filing of such application, the commissioner of revenue shall be satisfied that the same is made in good faith and that the motor fuels upon which the said tax refund is requested are to be used exclusively for one of the purposes set forth above and specified in said application, he shall issue to said applicant a refund permit specifying the terms and conditions under which refunds on such motor fuels will be made, which refund permits will expire with the fiscal year in which it is issued. Refund permits issued under this article shall state the name of the person, association, firm, or corporation to whom and for whose benefit it is issued, the purposes for which the motor fuels upon which tax refunds are to be made under the provisions thereof are to be used and the approximate number of gallons expected to be used per month for such purposes, and the commissioner of revenue shall determine such amount. Such refund permits shall bear serial numbers and shall not be transferable, nor shall any right or claim for refund under the same be transferable: Provided, however, that the commissioner of revenue shall not be required to issue any refund permit for use of motor fuels unless and until the applicant therefor shall have satisfied the commissioner of revenue that provisions have been made for the storage of such motor fuels in a manner prescribed by the commissioner of revenue, so as to segregate the same from motor fuels for use in vehicles upon the highways.

(c) All claims for refunds for tax or taxes for motor fuels under the provisions of this article shall be filed with the commissioner of revenue on forms to be prescribed by him, between the first and the fifteenth day of January, April, July, and/or October of each year, and at such periods only, and shall cover only the motor fuels so used during the three months immediately preceding the filing of such application. Such application shall be accompanied by ticket, invoice, or other document from the retail dealer or distributor for motor fuels, issued at the time of purchase of such motor fuel and showing the purchase of the number of gallons of motor fuels on which said refund is requested, and upon which shall be written or stamped at the time of purchase appropriate words showing the purpose for which the said motor fuel is purchased and that refund will be requested. The application shall be sworn to before the clerk of the superior court or a notary public of the county in which the applicant resides or has his place of business, and such attesting officer is authorized to charge therefor a fee of not exceeding twenty-five cents. Provided, that claims for refund of the tax on motor fuel that are not filed with the Commissioner of Revenue within the time specified in this section, but that are filed within 30 days thereafter, may be paid by the Commissioner of Revenue after first deducting 10% from said claims as a penalty for not filing them within the time specified. Provided that the invoices or delivery tickets issued by the retail dealer or distributor and filed as a part of any claim for a refund of tax on motor fuel, shall be marked paid by the dealer or distributor and shall show the date of purchase and the date of payment.

(d) If the commissioner of revenue shall be satisfied that the motor fuels specified in such application for refund have been legitimately used for the purpose specified in the refund permit issued to such applicant, he shall issue to such applicant a warrant upon the state treasurer for the said taxes paid on such motor fuels under this article.

(e) No refund of tax or taxes shall be paid on motor fuels except under a refund permit and to the person, association, firm, or corporation named in said refund permit in the manner herein provided for.

(f) If the commissioner of revenue shall be satisfied that the holder of any refund permit issued under the provisions of this article has violated the conditions thereof, or has collected or sought to collect any refund of tax or taxes thereunder upon any motor fuels not used in strict accordance with said refund permit, he shall issue notice to the holder of such refund permit to show cause why the refund permit should not be cancelled, which notice shall state a time and place of hearing upon said notice. If upon such hearing the commissioner shall find as a fact that the permit holder has violated the terms of his permit, he shall cancel such refund permit and the holder thereof shall be required to repay all tax or taxes which have been refunded to him under such permit.

(g) Any applicant for a refund permit or any holder of a refund permit may appeal from the decision of the commissioner of revenue upon any matters arising under this section to the state board of assessment, who shall hear the matters presented on such appeal at a time and place to be fixed by said state board of assessment. Such state board of assessment shall have authority to cause the attendance of witnesses in behalf of such applicant or of the commissioner of revenue, and shall have authority to administer oaths and take testimony.

(h) The commissioner of revenue is hereby authorized and directed, if at any time in his opinion there is reason to doubt the accuracy of the facts set forth in any application for tax refund, to refer the matter to any agent of the department of revenue or to any member of the state highway patrol, and such person so designated shall make a careful investigation of all the facts and circumstances relating to said application in the use of the motor fuel therein referred to, and shall have a right to have access to the books and records of any retailer or distributor of motor fuel products for the purpose of obtaining the necessary information concerning such matters, and shall make due report thereof to the commissioner of revenue.

(i) If any court of last resort shall hold that the provisions for refund herein set out shall render the levying and collecting of the tax hereinbefore provided invalid, it is the intention of the general assembly that such provisions for refund shall be annulled and the tax shall be levied without any provisions for such refund and that this article shall be so construed.

Any person making a false return or affidavit for the purpose of securing a refund to which he is not entitled under the provisions of this article shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be fined not exceeding five hundred dollars ($500.00), or imprisoned not exceeding two years, in the discretion of the court. (1931, c. 145, s. 24, c. 304; 1933, c. 211; 1937, c. 111; 1941, c. 15; 1943, c. 123.)

Editor's Note.—The 1941 amendment, adding the first proviso to subsection (c), does not apply to claims filed prior to Jan. 1, 1940. The amendment took no notice of the prior 1933 amendment which changed the wording of the subsection.

The 1943 amendment added the last proviso to subsection (c).

§ 105-447. Reports of carriers. — Every person, firm or corporation engaged in the business of, or transporting motor fuel, whether common carrier or otherwise, and whether by rail, water, pipe line or over public highways, either in interstate or in intrastate commerce, to points within the state of North Carolina, and every person, firm or corporation transporting motor fuel by whatever manner to a point in the state of North Carolina from any point outside of said state shall be required to keep for a period of two years from the date of each delivery records on forms prescribed by, or satisfactory to, the commissioner of revenue of all receipts and deliveries of motor fuel so received or delivered to points within the state of North Carolina, including duplicate original copies of delivery tickets or invoices covering such receipts and deliveries, showing the date of the receipt or delivery, the name and address of the party to whom each delivery is made, and the amount of each delivery; and shall report, under oath, to the commissioner of revenue, on forms prescribed by said commissioner of revenue, all deliveries of motor fuel so made to points within the state of North Carolina. Such reports shall cover monthly periods, shall be submitted within the first ten days of each month covering all shipments transported and delivered for the previous month, shall show the name and address of the person to whom the deliveries of motor fuel have actually and in fact been made, the name and address of the originally named consignee if motor fuel has been delivered to any other than the originally named consignee, the point of origin, the point of delivery, the date of delivery, and the number and initials of each tank car, and the number of gallons contained therein if shipped by rail; the name of the boat, barge or vessel, and the number of gallons contained therein, and the consignor and consignee if shipped by water; the license number of each tank truck and the number of gallons contained therein, and the consignor and consignee if transported by motor truck; if delivered by other means the manner in which such delivery is made; and such other additional information relative to shipments of motor fuel as the commissioner of revenue may require: Provided, that the commissioner of revenue may modify or suspend the provisions of this section with regard to reports of interstate or intrastate shipments or deliveries upon application of any licensed distributor: Provided, also, that the commissioner of revenue shall have full power to require any distributor to make additional reports and to produce for examination duplicate originals of delivery tickets or invoices covering both receipts and deliveries of products as herein provided. The reports herein provided for shall cover specifically gasoline, kerosene, benzine, naphtha, crude oil, or any distillates from crude petroleum. Any person, firm or corporation refusing, failing or neglecting to make such report shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be fined or imprisoned in the discretion of the court. (1929, c. 230, s. 1; 1933, c. 137, s. 1.)

Editor's Note.—Public Laws of 1933, c. 137, repealed this section as it formerly read and substituted the above in lieu thereof. A comparison of the two sections is necessary to determine the changes.

§ 105-448. Forwarding of information to other states.—The commissioner of revenue of the state of North Carolina shall, upon request duly received from the officials to whom are intrusted the enforcement of the motor fuel tax laws of any other state, forward to such officials any information which he may have in his possession relative to the manufacture, receipt, sale, use, transportation or shipment by any person of motor fuel. (1933, c. 137, s. 1.)

§ 105-449. Exemption of gasoline used in public school transportation; false returns, etc. — 1. Any person, firm or corporation holding a North Carolina state contract for the sale of gasoline to be used in public school transportation in North Carolina shall invoice gasoline so sold and delivered to the county boards of education at the prevailing contract price, less the state tax on gasoline. A copy of such invoice showing the board of education to whom the gasoline is delivered, the kind of gasoline sold, the gallons sold, and the contract price per gallon, shall be submitted to the North Carolina department of revenue each month, supported with an official purchase order from the county board or boards of education, which invoice or invoices and supporting purchase order shall exempt the gasoline purchased by said board or boards of education for use in North Carolina public school transportation from the six cents tax per gallon state gasoline tax.

2. The commissioner of revenue of North Carolina is hereby authorized and directed to accept such invoices and supporting purchase orders, duly notarized, in lieu of the six cents per gallon tax imposed by the laws of North Carolina upon said gasoline: Provided, when any authorized dealer has already paid the state gasoline gallon tax and furnishes the commissioner of revenue with proper invoices and supporting purchase orders as required in subsection one of this section, then such dealer shall be entitled to a refund by the commissioner of revenue of six cents per gallon from the gasoline fund for each gallon so sold and delivered to the county boards of education for use in public school transportation in school busses, service trucks, and gasoline delivery wagons used only for school purposes.

3. It is the intent and purpose of this section to relieve gasoline used in the public school system of North Carolina from the six cents gasoline tax now imposed by the state and thereby to that extent reduce the cost of public school transportation.

4. Any person making a false return or affidavit for the purpose of securing a refund to which he is not entitled under the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be fined not exceeding five hundred dollars ($500.00), or imprisoned not exceeding two years, in the discretion of the court. (1941, c. 119.)

Editor's Note.—This section was effective as of July 1, 1941.

SUBCHAPTER VII. PAYMENTS RECEIVED FROM TENNESSEE VALLEY AUTHORITY IN LIEU OF TAXES.

Art. 38. Equitable Distribution between State and Local Governments.

§ 105-458. Apportionment of payments in lieu of taxes between state and local units.—The payments received by the state and local governments from the Tennessee Valley Authority in lieu of taxes under section thirteen of the Act of Congress creating it, and as amended, shall be apportioned between the state and the local governments in which the property is owned or an operation is carried on, on the basis of the percentage of loss of taxes to each, determined as hereinafter provided: Provided, however, that the minimum annual payment to any local government from said fund, including the amounts paid direct to said local government by the Authority, shall not be less than the amount of annual actual tax loss to such local government based upon the two year average of taxes on said property next prior to its being taken over by the Authority. (1941, c. 85, s. 1.)

§ 105-459. Determination of amount of taxes lost by virtue of T. V. A. operation of property; proration of funds.—The state board of assessment shall determine each year, on the basis of current tax laws, the total taxes that would be due to both the state of North Carolina and the local governments in the same manner as if the property owned and/or operated by the Authority were owned and/or operated by a privately owned public utility: Provided, however, in making said calculations the state board of assessment shall use the tax rate fixed by the local government unit and taxing district involved for the tax year next preceding such calculations. The state board of assessment and the treasurer of the state of North Carolina shall then prorate the funds received from the Authority by the state and local governments between the state and local governments upon the basis of the foregoing calculations. (1941, c. 85, s. 2.)

§ 105-460. Distribution of funds by state treasurer.—The treasurer of the state of North Carolina shall then ascertain the payments to be made to the state and local governments upon the basis of the provisions of § 105-459 and he is authorized and directed to distribute the same between the state and local governments in accordance with the foregoing provisions of § 105-459. The treasurer of the state of North Carolina is further authorized and directed to pay said sums to the state and local governments each month or so often as he shall receive payments from the Authority, but not more often than once each month, after first deducting from any sum to be paid a local government such amount as has theretofore been paid direct to said local government by the Authority for the same period: Provided, however, that the minimum annual payment to any local government from said fund shall not be less than the average annual tax on the property taken by the Authority for the two years next preceding the taking. (1941, c. 85, s. 3.)

§ 105-461. Duty of county accountant, etc.—The county accountant or other proper officer of each local government to which this subchapter is applicable shall:

(a) Certify to the state board of assessment and the treasurer of the state of North Carolina the tax rate fixed by the governing body of such local government immediately upon the fixing of the same;

(b) certify each month to the treasurer of the state of North Carolina a statement of the amount received by the local government direct from the Authority. No local government shall be entitled to receive its distributive share of said fund from the treasurer of the state of North Carolina until the foregoing information has been properly furnished. If any such local government shall fail to furnish the information herein required within ten days from and after receipt by it from the state board of assessment of request for the same, forwarded by registered mail, then and in that event it shall be barred from participating in the benefits provided for the period for which the same is requested. (1941, c. 85, s. 4.)

§ 105-462. Local units entitled to benefits; prerequisite for payments.—Any local governments within the state in which the authority now or may hereafter own property or carry on an operation shall be entitled to the benefits arising under this subchapter: Provided, however, that no payment shall be made to them by the treasurer of the state of North Carolina until such time as such local governments shall have certified to the state board of assessment and the treasurer of the state of North Carolina the average annual tax loss it has sustained by the taking of said property for the two years immediately preceding the taking thereof: Provided, further, that in the event of any disagreement between said local governments and the treasurer of the state of North Carolina as to such annual tax loss, then the same shall be determined by the state board of assessment, and its decision thereon shall be final. (1941, c. 85, s. 5.)
