Chapter 28. Administration.

Art. 1. Probate Jurisdiction.

§ 28-1. Clerk of superior court has probate jurisdiction.—The clerk of the superior court of each county has jurisdiction, within his county, to take proof of wills and to grant letters testamentary, letters of administration with the will annexed, and letters of administration, in cases of intestacy, in the following cases:

Character of Duties.—The powers and jurisdiction exercised by the clerk pursuant to this section are not those of a servant or ministerial officer or exercised as and for the superior court, but those of an independent tribunal of original jurisdiction. Edwards v. Cobb, 95 N. C. 4, followed in In re Styers, 202 N. C. 715, 164 S. E. 123.

Summary Proceedings.—The proceedings of the clerk in respect to the exercise of his probate jurisdiction are summary in their nature. Edwards v. Cobb, 95 N. C. 4, 5, 9.

Jurisdiction Exclusive. — Jurisdiction to appoint an administrator of a deceased person, who has died intestate, and to issue letters for the administration of his estate is conferred by this section exclusively upon the clerk of the Superior Court of the county in which decedent was domiciled at or immediately previous to his death. Bank v. Commissioners of Yancey, 195 N. C. 678, 680, 681, 143 S. E. 252.

When Jurisdiction Presumed.—Where it is admitted that the plaintiff was regularly appointed administrator, it will be presumed that the clerk acted within his jurisdiction. Vance v. Southern R. Co., 138 N. C. 460, 50 S. E. 860.

More than One Appointment.—When letters of administration are once issued to a person who qualified, the powers of the clerk in that respect are exhausted and the subsequent appointment of another person, before the first appointment is revoked, is void. In re Bowman's Estate, 121 N. C. 373, 28 S. E. 404.

Clerk May Vacate Order Admitting Will to Probate.—The clerk of the superior court, in his probate jurisdiction, has the power to vacate a previous order admitting a will to probate in common form on motion aptly made when it is clearly made to appear that the order of probate was improvidently granted, or that the court had been imposed upon and misled as to the essential and true conditions of the case. In re Smith's Will, 218 N. C. 161, 10 S. E. (2d) 676.

Collateral Attack.—When the clerk under this section has general jurisdiction of the subject matter of the inquiry, a decree appointing an executor or administrator may not be collaterally attacked. Batchelor v. Overton, 158 N. C. 395, 74 S. E. 20; Fann v. North Carolina R. Co., 155 N. C. 136, 71 S. E. 81; Tyer v. Blades Lumber Co., 188 N. C. 268, 124 S. E. 305. But where jurisdictional facts were lacking, it can be so attacked. Reynolds v. Lloyd Cotton Mills, 177 N. C. 412, 99 S. E. 240, and cases cited. And see Vance v. Southern R. Co., 138 N. C. 460, 462, 50 S. E. 860, where the court, after stating that jurisdiction is presumed, declares: "We do not mean to say that the validity of the letters cannot be questioned collaterally, the existence of such assets and their proper situs being jurisdictional matter."

The facts very generally recognized as jurisdictional are stated in this section and where, on application for letters of administration, these facts appear of record, the question of the qualification of the appointee cannot be collaterally assailed. Holmes v. Wharton, 194 N. C. 470, 472, 140 S. E. 93, citing Wharton v. Ins. Co., 178 N. C. 135, 100 S. E. 266. The only exception to this rule is that it may be shown collaterally that the person for whom an administrator has been appointed is not in fact dead, but is still living. Hines v. Foundation Co., 196 N. C. 322, 325, 145 S. E. 612. In such case, the order making the appointment being void, it may be attacked collaterally. Holmes v. Wharton, 194 N. C. 470, 473, 140 S. E. 93, citing Clark v. Homes, 189 N. C. 703, 128 S. E. 20.

A clerk has jurisdiction to appoint an administrator where the affidavit of the applicant presumes the death of the decedent from his absence of seven years and the lack of communication from him. The order and appointment can only be avoided by showing the person not to be in fact dead. Chamblee v. Security Nat. Bank, 211 N. C. 48, 188 S. E. 632.

Evidence that deceased was not domiciled in the county of the clerk, as required by subsec. 1 of this section, was inadmissible in an action for wrongful death. Holmes v. Wharton, 194 N. C. 470, 140 S. E. 93.

The burden of proof to show jurisdictional facts rests upon the person applying for letters. Reynolds v. Lloyd Cotton Mills, 177 N. C. 412, 99 S. E. 240.

1. Where the decedent at, or immediately previous to, his death was domiciled in the county of such clerk, in whatever place such death may have happened.

In General.—Where the facts stated in this subsection exist, a grant in any county other than that prescribed by the subsection is absolutely void. Johnson v. Corpenning, 39 N. C. 216; Collins v. Turner, 4 N. C. 541.

Domicile.—Reynolds v. Lloyd Cotton Mills, 177 N. C. 412, 99 S. E. 240, contains an excellent discussion of "domicile" as distinguished from "residence," "inhabiting," etc.

Change of County Lines.—The county referred to in this subsection is the county at the time of the death of the decedent, and not the one subsequently formed by a change of county lines. Hannon v. Southern Power Co., 173 N. C. 520, 92 S. E. 353.

2. Where the decedent at his death had places of residence in more than one county, the clerk of any such county has jurisdiction.

3. Where the decedent, not being domiciled in this state, died out of the state, leaving assets in the county of such clerk, or assets of such decedent thereafter come into the county of such clerk.

Assets.—If the assets are bona notabelia (chattels or goods of sufficient value to be accounted for) they are sufficient to convey jurisdiction to the clerk. Hyman v. Gaskins, 27 N. C. 267. The value of chattels sufficient to be accounted for has varied at different times, but was finally established at five pounds in 1603.

The time and manner of bringing the assets into the jurisdiction is immaterial. Shields v. Union Cent. Life Ins. Co., 119 N. C. 380, 25 S. E. 951.

Cited in Price v. Askins, 212 N. C. 583, 194 S. E. 284.

4. Where the decedent, not being domiciled in this state, died in the county of such clerk, leaving assets in the state, or assets of such decedent thereafter come into the state.

Provided, that in all cases where the clerk of the superior court is interested in an estate, the judge of the superior court resident in the district or the judge of the superior court holding the courts of the county by regular or special assignment shall have jurisdiction to take proof of wills and grant letters testamentary, letters of administration with the will annexed and letters of administration in cases of intestacy, to audit and approve the accounts of executors and administrators, to make orders and to do any and all things in connection with the administration of estates which the clerk of the superior court might or could have done, had he not been interested in the estate. (Rev., s. 16; Code, s. 1374; C. C. P., s. 433; R. C., c. 46, s. 1; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 115; 1931, c. 165; 1943, c. 543; C. S. 1.)

Cross References.—As to jurisdiction when clerk is disqualified, see § 31-12 and note, and also §§ 2-17 through 2-21. As to clerk's power to remove executors and administrators, see § 28-32 and note.

As to probate of wills generally, see § 31-12 et seq.

Editor's Note.—The Act of 1931 added the proviso to this section.

The 1943 amendment substituted, in subsection 2, the words "places of residence" for the words "his fixed place of domicile."

In General.—Where decedents were not domiciled in this state, but died intestate in Henderson county, leaving assets in the state, the clerk of the superior court of Henderson county had jurisdiction in said county to grant letters of administration. In re Franks, 220 N. C. 176, 180, 16 S. E. (2d) 831.

Death by Wrongful Act Sufficient Asset.—Where a nonresident is killed in this state the cause of action for death by wrongful act is sufficient under this section as a basis for the grant of letters in the county where the injury and death occured. Vance v. Southern R. Co., 138 N. C. 460. 50 S. E. 860; Fann v. North Carolina Co., 155 N. C. 136, 71 S. E. 81. See notes to sections 28-173, 28-174.

Cited in Edwards v. McLawhorn, 218 N. C. 543, 11 S. E. (2d) 562.

§ 28-2. Exclusive in clerk who first gains.—The clerk who first gains and exercises jurisdiction under this chapter thereby acquires sole and exclusive jurisdiction over the decedent's estate. (Rev., s. 17; Code, s. 1375; C. C. P., s. 434; C. S. 2.)

Domicile in Two Counties.—The provisions of this section apply even though the decedent at the time of his death was domiciled in both counties. And the jurisdiction first acquired cannot be collaterally impeached. Tyer v. Blades Lumber Co., 188 N. C. 274, 124 S. E. 306.

Superior Court to Determine Proper Grant.—Where two clerks of different counties have granted letters to different parties, and the judgments granting them have been respectively affirmed by the superior court, that court will determine which of the letters were properly granted. Tyer v. Blades Lumber Co., 188 N. C. 274, 124 S. E. 306.

Art. 2. Necessity for Letters and Their Form.

§ 28-3. Letters must issue; immediate rights of family.—No person shall enter upon the administration of any decedent's estate until he has obtained letters therefor, under the penalty of one hundred dollars, one-half to the use of the informer and the other half to the state; but nothing herein contained shall prevent the family of the deceased from using so much of the crop, stock and provisions on hand as may be necessary, until the widow's year's support is assigned therefrom, as prescribed by law. (Rev., s. 1; Code, s. 1522; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 93; C. S. 3.)

Penalty Not Incurred by Mere Possession.—To incur the penalty provided by this section, something more must be done than the mere taking of the property. Such taking may make the taker an executor de son tort, but it would not make him incur the penalty unless he entered upon the administration of the estate without first obtaining letters therefor. Administration implies management, not the mere holding the possession of property. Currie v. Currie, 90 N. C. 553, 556.

§ 28-4. Executor de son tort.—Every person who receives goods or debts of any person dying intestate, or any release of a debt due the intestate, upon a fraudulent intent, or without such valuable consideration as amounts to the value or thereabout, is chargeable as executor of his own wrong, so far as such debts and goods, coming to his hands, or whereof he is released, will satisfy. (Rev., s. 2; Code, s. 1494; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 67; 43 Eliz., c. 8; C. S. 4.)

Claim under Fraudulent Conveyance.—One who sets up a claim to goods of an intestate under a fraudulent conveyance, and thereby injures the sale of them, does not render himself an executor de son tort. Barnard v. Gregory, 14 N. C. 223. But under such a conveyance, which is void as to creditors, he will be liable to the creditors of the estate as an executor de son tort. Norfleet v. Riddick, 14 N. C. 221; McMorine v. Storey, 20 N. C. 83.

Time of Intermeddling.—One who intermeddles with goods of a decedent may be subject to liability as an executor de son tort although letters of administration afterwards issue. If administration is committed to him it entitles him to retain. But an intermeddling after a grant of administration does not make an executor de son tort, because he is answerable to the administrator. Norfleet v. Riddick, 14 N. C. 221; McMorine v. Storey, 20 N. C. 83.

A fraudulently donee of personalty, which he has in his possession after the donor's death, is answerable as executor de son tort. Sturdivant v. Davis, 31 N. C. 365.

Purchaser of Exempt Property.—A purchaser of property exempt from execution under the Homestead Act cannot be held liable as executor de son tort. Winchester v. Gaddy, 72 N. C. 115.

Intermeddling under Colorable Right.—An intermeddling

for which there is a colorable right will not make a wrongful executorship. Turner v. Child, 12 N. C. 25.

Bailee, etc., of Fraudulent Donee.—If a fraudulent donee of goods disposes of them to another who accepts them bona fide upon a purchase, or even to keep for the donee, the vendee or bailee would not be an executor de son tort. Bailey v. Miller, 27 N. C. 444.

An infant of tender years cannot be executor de son tort nor be sued as such. See Bailey v. Miller, 27 N. C. 444.

Character of Title.—It is not the paper title merely that makes one an executor of his own wrong, but it is the disposition, or possession and occupation of the effects. Bailey v. Miller, 27 N. C. 444.

§ 28-5. Form of letters.—All letters must be issued in the name of the state, and tested in the name of the clerk of the superior court, signed by him, and sealed with his seal of office, and shall have attached thereto copies of the section of this chapter requiring an inventory to be filed within three months, and of the section requiring annual accounts to be filed. (Rev., s. 36; Code, ss. 1399, 2172; C. C. P., ss. 471, 478; 1871-2, c. 46; C. S. 5.)

Cross Reference.—As to accounts to be filed, see § 28-117 and the note thereto.

Art. 3. Right to Administer.

§ 28-6. Order in which persons entitled.—Letters of administration, in case of intestacy, shall be granted to the persons entitled thereto and applying for the same, in the following order:

Effect of Appointment Out of Order.—The appointment as administrator of a person other than the one designated by the statute is not void, though the proper person has not renounced; but it may be set aside in favor of such proper person provided he has not waived his right to administer. Garrison v. Cox, 95 N. C. 353.

Where the executor dies, the next of kin, in the order named in the statute, or his appointee, is entitled to administration with the will annexed, in preference to the highest creditor. Little v. Berry, 94 N. C. 433.

Right to Renounce and Nominate Another for Appointment Is Recognized.—There is no express provision requiring the clerk to recognize the right of one belonging to a preferred class to renounce his right to qualify and at the same time nominate another for appointment in his stead, but this construction has been uniformly applied by the courts and has become firmly embedded in the law of administration in North Carolina. In re Estate of Smith, 210 N. C. 622, 624, 188 S. E. 202. See Ritchie v. McAuslin 2 N. C. 220; Carthey v. Webb, 6 N. C. 268; Smith v. Munroe, 23 N. C. 345; Pearce v. Castrix, 53 N. C. 71; Wallis v. Wallis, 60 N. C. 78; Hughes v. Pipkin, 61 N. C. 4; Little v. Berry, 94 N. C. 433; Williams v. Neville, 108 N. C. 559, 13 S. E. 240; In re Meyers, 113 N. C. 545, 18 S. E. 689; Boynton v. Heartt, 158 N. C. 488, 74 S. E. 470, Ann. Cas. 1913D, 616; In re Estate of Jones, 177 N. C. 337, 98 S. E. 827.

1. To the husband or widow, except as hereinafter provided.

Cross Reference.—For appointment of widow under twenty-one, see note to § 28-8, par. 1.

Estoppel against Widow.—Though the widow has a prior right to administration to a brother of the decedent, where it appears that at the time the letters were duly granted to the brother she has shown no disposition to set up her right before the clerk, the appointment of the brother will stand. Tyer v. Blades Lumber Co., 188 N. C. 268, 124 S. E. 305.

2. To the next of kin in the order of their degree, where they are of different degrees; if of equal degree, to one or more of them, at the discretion of the clerk.

Clerk's Discretion. — Where there are several persons entitled in equal degree to administer, the clerk may select the one who, in his discretion, is most fit. Garrison v. Cox, 95 N. C. 353.

Right Not Absolute or Exclusive. — The right of the next of kin to letters of administration is not absolute and exclusive; and if the next of kin does not apply for letters of administration or fail to give bond, some other person may be appointed. Stoker v. Kendall, 44 N. C. 242.

Nominee of Next of Kin.—The nominee of deceased's nearest of kin will be appointed administrator, if a fit and suitable person, as against those of lesser degree of kinship, provided that no person of the same class as the next of kin renouncing the right files a personal application for appointment. In re Estate of Smith, 210 N. C. 622, 188 S. E. 202.

Next of Kin Best Qualified.—The next of kin of a deceased person, after the widow, have the right, amongst themselves, of administration; but this right is not vested in one more than another, and the degree of propinquity does not give a legal priority. The court should select from the class, the person best qualified to take care of the estate. Atkins v. McCormick, 49 N. C. 274.

Between brothers, administration will be committed to the one most interested to execute it faithfully. Moore v. Moore, 12 N. C. 352.

Illiteracy of Next of Kin.—If none of the next of kin can read or write, it is proper for the clerk to refuse to appoint any one of them. In re Saville, 156 N. C. 172, 72 S. E. 220.

Appointee of Next of Kin.—When the next of kin resides abroad, it is in the power and is the duty of the court to grant administration to the appointee of such next of kin. Smith v. Munroe, 23 N. C. 345. See Ritchie v. McAuslin, 2 N. C. 220.

3. To the most competent creditor who resides within the state, and proves his debt on oath before the clerk.

Creditor Postponed to Next of Kin.—If administration cannot be granted to the nearest of kin owing to some incapacity, it shall be granted to the next after him, qualified to act, and the creditor shall be postponed, if such next of kin claims the right to administer within the time prescribed. Carthey v. Webb, 6 N. C. 268.

Assignee after Death Not a Creditor.—An assignment of debts of a person after his death does not make the assignee such a creditor as to entitle him to administer the estate of the deceased. Pearce v. Castrix, 53 N. C. 71.

Applied in Price v. Askins, 212 N. C. 583, 194 S. E. 284.

4. To any other person legally competent. (Rev., s. 3; Code, s. 1376; C. C. P., s. 456; R. C., c. 46, ss. 2, 3; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 115; C. S. 6.)

Cross References.—As to corporation acting as executor or administrator, see §§ 58-113 and 55-117. As to who may act in the event the executor fails to apply to have the will proved, see § 31-13. As to public administrator, see § 28-20.

Possessor of Insurance Policy.—The possession of a policy of life insurance authorizes the possessor to administer on the estate of the assured, a nonresident. Page v. Life Ins. Co., 131 N. C. 115, 42 S. E. 543. See Shields v. Union Cent. Life Ins. Co., 119 N. C. 380, 25 S. E. 951.

§ 28-7. Husband to administer wife's estate; right in surplus.—If any married woman dies wholly or partially intestate, the surviving husband shall be entitled to administer on her personal estate, and shall hold the same, subject to the claims of her creditors and others having rightful demands against her, to his own use, except as hereinafter provided. If the husband dies after his wife, but before administering, his executor or administrator or assignee shall receive the personal property of the said wife, as a part of the estate of the husband, subject as aforesaid, and except as provided by law. (Rev., s. 4; Code, s. 1479; 1871-2, c. 193, s. 32; C. S. 7.)

Exclusive Right to Administer.—The statute of distribution does not apply to the estate of feme covert dying intestate, and the husband is entitled to administer for his own benefit. Any other person administering is in equity considered as a trustee for the husband with respect to the residue after payment of debts. Hoppiss v. Eskridge, 37 N. C. 54.

Wife Intestate or Testate.—A husband has right to administer the estate of wife, whether she dies intestate or leaves a will without naming an executor. In re Meyer's Estate, 113 N. C. 545, 18 S. E. 689.

Transfer of Right.—He may transfer this right to another by appointment, or may cause another to be associated with him. And the right is not affected by the filing and probating in common form of a writing purporting to be the will of the wife. In re Meyer's Estate, 113 N. C. 545, 18 S. E. 689.

Realty under Equitable Conversion.—Where a wife devised real property under circumstances which by the doctrine of equitable conversion is reduced to personalty, her husband after her death is, under this section, entitled to the estate as personalty, subject to demands of creditors. McIver v. McKinney, 184 N. C. 393, 399, 114 S. E. 399.

Death of Husband before Administering.—If the husband dies after his wife, without having administered, there is no authority to appoint an administrator upon her estate. In such a case the representative of the husband is to administer the wife's estate. Wooten v. Wooten, 123 N. C. 219, 31 S. E. 491.

Partial Intestacy as to Damages for Wrongful Death.—Where a wife dies by wrongful death the recovery therefor is not a part of her personal assets. And where she has left a will disposing of all her property and naming another executor, her husband may not administer upon the theory that the wife died "partially intestate" as to damages recoverable for wrongful death. Hood v. American Tel., etc., Co., 162 N. C. 92, 77 S. E. 1094.

Wife's Estate in Remainder for Benefit of Husband.—Where wife, a remainderman in personal property after a life estate, dies before the life tenant, her administrator upon the death of life tenant will be entitled to such property for the benefit of her husband. Colson v. Martin, 62 N. C. 125.

Husband's Administrator as against Wife's Administrator.—Where a legacy is given to a trustee for the use of a married woman who dies without receiving the same, the personal representative of the husband (the husband surviving the wife, but dying before receiving the legacy in his wife's favor) is entitled to the legacy as against the wife's administrator. Coleman v. Hallowell, 54 N. C. 204.

Husband Entitled to Annuity Payable to Wife.—Where the beneficiary of an annuity dies intestate before the death of the testator, leaving a husband, the bequest which vests an interest in such beneficiary shall be paid to her husband. In re Shuford's Will, 164 N. C. 133, 80 S. E. 420.

Intestate Succession.—Insured named his wife as beneficiary in policies of insurance on his life. His wife predeceased him. There were no children born to the marriage. Upon the wife's death the husband was entitled to the wife's vested interest in the policies, even before reducing same to possession by administration, the provision of this section not having been modified by § 28-149, par. 8, in cases in which there are no surviving children; and upon the husband's death his heirs are entitled to the distribution of the proceeds of the policies. Wilson v. Williams, 215 N. C. 407, 2 S. E. (2d) 19.

Husband Becoming Non Compos Mentis.—Where a husband has qualified as the administrator of his deceased wife but removed on account of his since becoming non compos mentis, the administrator of the wife, de bonis non, and guardian of the husband, is entitled to her assets to be held by him for the benefit of the husband. Neill v. Wilson, 146 N. C. 242, 59 S. E. 674.

Applied in Bank v. Gilmer, 116 N. C. 684, 701, 22 S. E. 2, for the protection of creditors where there was an unfulfilled verbal executory contract that property was to be held in trust for children.

Cited in In re Estate of Wallace, 197 N. C. 334, 335, 148 S. E. 456.

§ 28-8. Disqualifications enumerated.—The clerk shall not issue letters of administration or letters testamentary to any person who, at the time of appearing to qualify—

1. Is under the age of twenty-one years.

A widow under 21 is not eligible to appointment as administratrix. The court may, however, appoint an administrator during her minority and, on arriving at full age, grant her the administration; or it may give the office to her appointee. Wallis v. Wallis, 60 N. C. 78.

2. Is a nonresident of this state; but a nonresident may qualify as executor.

Editor's Note.—Until the revisal of 1905, this subsection disqualified "an alien who is a nonresident of this state." And prior to 1868 there was no disqualification imposed upon aliens or nonresidents. It was formerly held that if a nonresident administrator took the oath and gave the bond required by law, he was not included in the disqualifications of this section. See Moore v. Eure, 101 N. C. 11, 16, 7 S. E. 471.

Nonresident Executor.—It is not a valid defense to a suit brought by an executor, that such executor was a nonresident. Batchelor v. Overton, 158 N. C. 395, 74 S. E. 20.

Nonresident Disqualified as Administrator.—A nonresident cannot be appointed an administrator; nor, having been appointed in the state of his intestate's residence, can he sue in the courts of this state. Hall v. Southern R. Co., 146 N. C. 345, 348, 59 S. E. 879; In re Estate of Banks, 213 N. C. 382, 196 S. E. 351.

Public administrator cannot be removed at the instance of nonresidents who have no right of appointment as administrator in consequence of not having the right to administer upon the estate in this state. Boynton v. Heartt, 158 N. C. 488, 74 S. E. 470.

Appointee of Nonresident Kin.—But a nonresident next of kin may appoint a resident, and it is within the power as well as the duty of the court to grant administration to the appointee. Smith v. Munroe, 23 N. C. 345; Ritchie v. McAuslin, 2 N. C. 220.

3. Has been convicted of a felony.

4. Is adjudged by the clerk incompetent to execute the duties of such trust by reason of drunkenness, improvidence or want of understanding.

Illiteracy as Incompetency.—Under this provision a person who can not write or read, and has no experience in keeping accounts or in settling estates, is "incompetent." Stephenson v. Stephenson, 49 N. C. 472.

5. Fails to take the oath or give the bond required by law.

Collateral Attack for Mere Irregularity.—When, in disregard of the requirements of this subsection, letters are issued to a foreign executor, this is a mere irregularity and cannot be collaterally attacked in an action by the executor. Batchelor v. Overton, 158 N. C. 395, 74 S. E. 20.

6. Has renounced his right to qualify. (Rev., s. 5; Code, ss. 1377, 1378, 2162; C. C. P., s. 457; C. S. 8.)

§ 28-9. Effect of disqualification of person entitled.—Where an executor named in the will, or any person having a prior right to administer, is under the disqualification of nonage, or is temporarily absent from the state, such person is entitled to six months, after coming of age or after his return to the state, in which to make application for letters testamentary, or letters of administration. (Rev., s. 6; Code, ss. 1379, 2165; C. C. P., ss. 452, 460; R. C., c. 46, s. 12; C. S. 9.)

During Widow's Minority.—The court may appoint an administrator during a widow's minority and, on her arriving at full age, grant her the administration. Wallis v. Wallis, 60 N. C. 78.

Application after Lapse of Six Months.—If those entitled to administration apply for letters at any time prior to the appointment of a public administrator, even though six months' period has elapsed, they will have priority to administer unless otherwise disqualified. In re Bailey's Will, 141 N. C. 193, 53 S. E. 844.

§ 28-10. Divorce a vinculo or felonious slaying is forfeiture.—When a marriage is dissolved a vinculo, the parties respectively, or when either party is convicted of the felonious slaying of the other, or of being accessory before the fact of such felonious slaying, the party so convicted shall thereby lose all his or her right to administer on the estate of the other, and to a distributive share in the personal property of the other, and every right and estate in the personal estate of the other. (Rev., s. 7; Code, s. 1480; 1889, c. 499; 1871-2, c. 193, s. 42; C. S. 10.)

Cross Reference.—As to acts barring reciprocal property rights of husband and wife, see §§ 52-19, 52-20, and 52-21.

Editor's Note.—In Owens v. Owens, 100 N. C. 240, 6 S. E. 794, it was held that a widow convicted as accessory before the fact to her husband's murder and confined in prison is entitled to dower. But this rule has in terms been abrogated by the provisions of this section, as to the right of the wife to administer and obtain her distributive share.

Where a husband has taken out a policy of life insurance on his own life with his wife as beneficiary and has feloniously killed his wife and then himself, under this section and sections 28-149 and 52-19, his heirs may not claim under him the proceeds of the policy since the law will not allow a man or those claiming under him to benefit by his own wrong, and the proceeds of the policy are descendible to the next of kin of the wife and not to his heirs at law. Parker v. Potter, 200 N. C. 348, 157 S. E. 68.

Cross Reference.—See § 52-20.

§ 28-12. Husband's conduct forfeiting rights in wife's estate.—If any husband shall separate himself from his wife, and be living in adultery at her death, or if she has obtained a divorce a mensa et thoro, and shall not be living with her husband at her death, or if the husband has abandoned his wife, or has maliciously turned her out of doors, and shall not be living with her at her death, he shall thereby lose all his right and estate of whatever character in and to her personal property, and all right to administer on her estate. (Rev., s. 9; Code, s. 1482; 1871-2, c. 193, s. 45; C. S. 12.)

Cross Reference.—See § 52-21.

Failure to Provide Support Tantamount to Abandonment.—Where the husband made his wife leave, or where she had to leave because he would not give her anything to eat, it was held that his conduct amounted to abandonment. High v. Bailey, 107 N. C. 70, 12 S. E. 45.

§ 28-13. Executor may renounce.—Any person appointed an executor may renounce the office by a writing signed by him, and on the same being acknowledged or proved to the satisfaction of the clerk of the superior court, it shall be filed. (Rev., s. 10; Code, s. 2163; C. C. P., s. 450; C. S. 13.)

Cross Reference.—As to resignation of executor or administrator, see § 36-9 et seq.

Common Law and Present Rule.—At common law an administrator or executor who has qualified and entered upon the performance of his duties had no right to resign his office at his own convenience. Nor can he resign now except for causes specified in the statute or for equivalent causes. McIntyre v. Proctor, 145 N. C. 288, 59 S. E. 39; Washington v. Blunt, 43 N. C. 253.

Must Appear on Record.—Renunciation of executor must appear of record to enable the court to appoint an administrator with the will annexed. Springs v. Irwin, 28 N. C. 27.

Time of Renunciation.—An executor may, by permission of the superior court, renounce all right to the executorship and withdraw from a suit. Sawyer v. Dozier, 27 N. C. 97.

A court of probate may accept this renunciation at any time before the executor intermeddled with the effects of his testator, even after he has proved the will. Mitchell v. Adams, 23 N. C. 298.

The same rule applies to an executor of an executor under a prior will. Mitchell v. Adams, 23 N. C. 298.

But after probate an executor cannot renounce at his own pleasure, and must do so by leave of the court. Mitchell v. Adams, 23 N. C. 298.

Powers of Administrator c. t. a.—After renunciation of the executor, the administrator with the will annexed is competent to exercise his (executor's) powers under the will. Saunders v. Saunders, 108 N. C. 327, 12 S. E. 909.

Revocation of Letters for Cause Only.—The clerk should revoke letters testamentary, where the executor has entered upon performance of his duties, only by reason of some unfitness or unfaithfulness on the part of trustee, and never simply because the parties desire it. McIntyre v. Proctor, 145 N. C. 288, 59 S. E. 39.

Retraction of Renunciation.—A renouncing executor may retract his renunciation at any time before administration granted, and then administer. Any intermeddling with the estate before qualifying is evidence of such retraction. Davis v. Inscoe, 84 N. C. 396.

Renunciation by Some of Several.—Where there are several persons of the same class entitled to administer renunciation by some of them does not affect the rights of those not renouncing to administer. In re Jones' Estate, 177 N. C. 337, 341, 98 S. E. 827.

Right of Reinstatement.—There are decisions that an executor who has renounced can, under some circumstances come in and qualify. See Davis v. Inscoe, 84 N. C. 396, 401; Wood v. Sparks, 18 N. C. 389. But there is no case in which he has renounced with the formalities of this statute and afterwards has qualified, certainly not after the lapse of twenty years. Ryder v. Oates, 173 N. C. 569, 92 S. E. 508.

§ 28-14. Renunciation of prior right required.—When any person applies for administration, and any other person has prior right thereto, a written renunciation of the person or persons having such prior right must be produced and filed with the clerk. (Rev., s. 11; Code, s. 1378; C. C. P., s. 459; C. S. 14.)

Expression of Intent Insufficient.—The mere expressed intent of such person entitled to administration by prior rights that he would not have anything to do with the administration is no valid renunciation. Williams v. Neville, 108 N. C. 559, 13 S. E. 240.

§ 28-15. Failure to apply as renunciation.—If any person, entitled to letters of administration, fails or refuses to apply for such letters within thirty days after the death of the intestate, the clerk, on application of any party interested, shall issue a citation to such person to show cause, within twenty days after service of the citation, why he should not be deemed to have renounced. If, within the time named in the citation, he neglects to answer or to show cause, he shall be deemed to have renounced his right to administer, and the clerk must enter an order accordingly, and proceed to grant letters to some other person. If no person entitled to administer applies for letters of administration on the estate of a decedent within six months from his death, then the clerk may, in his discretion, deem all prior rights renounced and appoint some suitable person to administer such estate. (Rev., s. 12; Code, s. 1380; C. C. P., s. 460(a); 1868-9, c. 203; C. S. 15.)

Cross Reference.—See note to § 28-20.

In General.—The true intent and meaning of this and the previous section is that the persons primarily entitled to administration may have six months after the death of the intestate to assert their rights and comply with the law; and a party wishing to quicken their diligence within that time must do so by citation—he (the latter) may not by obtaining letters within the six months, deprive the party primarily entitled to administration should such party apply for letters before the expiration of six months period. Williams v. Neville, 108 N. C. 559, 562, 13 S. E. 240.

Applicable to Intestacy Only. — The provisions of this section contemplate the cases of intestacy. Hence in cases of testacy where no executor is appointed in the will, the rights of the parties to administer are governed by section 28-6, without reference to the six months limitation contained in this section. In re Jones' Estate, 177 N. C. 337, 340, 98 S. E. 827.

Renunciation Presumed after Six Months. — After the expiration of six months from the death of the decedent, those entitled to prior rights having failed to apply, all rights of preference may be treated as renounced, and a suitable person to administer upon the estate may be appointed. Hill v. Alspaugh, 72 N. C. 402, 404.

Appointment within Six Months.—If the next of kin, in answer to citation, name his appointee, and such person, after appointment, fails to qualify, then, though six months had not expired, the clerk would be authorized to appoint another. Williams v. Neville, 108 N. C. 559, 13 S. E. 240.

Appointment Not Revoked after Six Months. — If the parties who have precedence to administer fail to apply within six months from the death of the deceased, an appointment by the clerk of a proper person after that period will not be revoked. Withrow v. DePriest, 119 N. C. 541, 26 S. E. 110.

Failure to Apply within Six Months—Public Administrator.—Though it is the duty of the public administrator to apply after six months, if, before his appointment at any time, even after six months, persons prior in rights to administer apply, they are entitled to appointment. In re Bailey's Will, 141 N. C. 193, 53 S. E. 844.

Unreasonable Delay.—No one who has precedence in a claim for letters loses such rights by delay merely, but by unreasonable delay, which is a matter of law. Hughes v. Pipkin, 61 N. C. 4.

Right Not Absolute or Exclusive.—The right of next of kin to letters of administration is not absolute and exclusive, but dependent upon their proper and due application therefor and their giving bond and security as the law requires. Stoker v. Kendall, 44 N. C. 242.

Effect of Appointment by Clerk.—Where the clerk has appointed an administrator under this section a debtor of the estate cannot maintain the position that the appointment of a public administrator was necessary to receive payment of the debt. Brooks v. Clement Co., 201 N. C. 768, 161 S. E. 403.

§ 28-16. Person named as executor failing to qualify or renounce.—If any person appointed an executor does not qualify or renounce within sixty days after the will is admitted to probate, the clerk of the superior court, on the application of any other executor named in the same will, or any party interested, shall issue a citation to such person to show cause why he should not be deemed to have renounced. If, upon service of the citation, he does not qualify or renounce within such time, not exceeding thirty days, as is allowed in the citation, an order must be entered by the clerk decreeing that such person has renounced his appointment as executor.

Where more than one executor is appointed in any last will and testament duly probated in any court of this State, and one or more of such executors shall have qualified before the clerk of such court, and the other executor or executors shall have failed, within thirty days thereafter to qualify or shall have renounced in writing, then the qualifying executor or executors shall be clothed with all the powers, rights and duties, and be subject to all the obligations imposed upon all of said executors, in and by the terms of said will and the laws of this State, in like manner as if the non-qualifying executor or executors had not been named in said will. This paragraph shall apply to all wills heretofore or hereafter probated. (Rev., s. 13; Code, s. 2164; C. C. P., s. 451; 1931, c. 183; C. S. 16.)

Cross Reference.—See § 28-20 and note thereto.

Editor's Note.—The Act of 1931 added the second paragraph to this section.

Sale by One of Joint Executors.—If one of the joint executors fails to qualify, a sale of lands by the one qualifying is sufficient to pass the estate, without its appearing that the other either has renounced the executorship or refused to join in the sale. Wood v. Sparks, 18 N. C. 389, 390.

Art. 4. Public Administrator.

§ 28-17. Appointment and term.—There may be a public administrator in every county, appointed by the clerk of the superior court for the term of four years. (Rev., s. 18; Code, s. 1389; 1868-9, c. 113; 1925, c. 253; C. S. 17.)

Editor's Note.—The amendment of 1925, ch. 253, reduced the number of years, for which a public administrator could be appointed, from "eight" to "four".

Property Right.—His office is a property right which can not be divested without due process of law. Trotter v. Mitchell, 115 N. C. 190, 20 S. E. 386.

Mistake of Clerk as to Term.—The appointment of public administrator is for the time specified in the section, and is not affected by a mistake of the clerk in stating in the appointment that it was for the unexpired term of his predecessor, or fixing the term of the new appointee for less period. Boynton v. Heartt, 158 N. C. 488, 74 S. E. 470.

Not an Office within Constitutional Prohibition.—A public administrator is not a holder of a public office within the constitutional prohibition against holding more than one office, and hence a quo warranto proceeding will not lie against him simply because he is also holding the office of recorder. State v. Smith, 145 N. C. 476, 59 S. E. 649.

§ 28-18. Oath.—The public administrator shall take and subscribe an oath (or affirmation) faithfully and honestly to discharge the duties of his trust; and the oath so taken and subscribed must be filed in the office of the clerk of the superior court. (Rev., s. 19; Code, s. 1393; 1868-9, c. 113, ss. 2, 5; C. S. 18.)

Cross Reference.—As to form of oath, see § 11-11.

§ 28-19. Bond.—The public administrator shall enter into bond, payable to the state of North Carolina, with two or more sufficient sureties to be justified before and approved by the clerk, or with a duly authorized surety company, in the penal sum of four thousand dollars ($4,000.00), conditioned upon the faithful performance of the duties of his office and obedience to all lawful orders of the clerk or other court touching the administration of the several estates that may come into his hands and such bonds, if executed by individual sureties, shall be renewed every two years. Whenever the aggregate value of the personal property belonging to the several estates in the hands of the public administrator exceeds one-half of his bond, if the bond is signed by personal sureties, or three-fourths of his bond, if the bond shall be executed by a duly authorized surety company, the clerk shall require him to enlarge his bond in an amount so as to cover at all times at least double the aggregate of the assets of the estates in the hands of said public administrator if the bond is signed by personal sureties or one and one-third times the assets if the bond shall be executed by a duly authorized surety company. If the personal property of any decedent is insufficient to pay his debts and the charges of administration and it becomes necessary for the said public administrator to apply for the sale of real estate for assets, upon the signing of a judgment ordering the said sale by the clerk of the superior court, or any other court, the clerk shall include the value of the real estate proposed to be sold in the aggregate value of the property belonging to the several estates in the hands of the public administrator. Whenever the aggregate value of the personal property and the real estate that the said administrator has been authorized to sell exceeds one-half of his bond, if the bond is executed by personal surety, or three-fourths of his bond if the bond shall be executed by a duly authorized surety company, the clerk shall require him to enlarge his bond as hereinbefore provided as though the aggregate consisted only of personal property. (Rev., s. 320; Code, ss. 1390, 1391, 1392; 1868-9, c. 113, ss. 2, 3, 4; 1915, c. 216; 1941, c. 243; C. S. 19.)

Editor's Note.—The 1941 amendment made changes in the first two sentences with reference to surety on bond, and added the remainder of the section.

Notice for Failure to Renew Bond. — A public administrator can not be removed for failure to renew his bond without being notified to show cause. Trotter v. Mitchell, 115 N. C. 190, 20 S. E. 386.

Quoted In re Brinson, 73 N. C. 278.

§ 28-20. When to obtain letters.—The public administrator shall apply for and obtain letters on the estates of deceased persons in the following cases:

1. When the period of six months has elapsed from the death of any decedent, and no letters testamentary, or letters of administration or collection, have been applied for and issued to any person.

Due Qualification Prerequisite. — A public administrator acquires no rights or interest to administer an estate until he is qualified after the period allowed to the relatives to qualify in the order prescribed. In re Neal's Will, 182 N. C. 405, 109 S. E. 70.

Six Months Is Reasonable Time to Apply for Appointment of Administrator.—Construing this section and §§ 28-15 and 28-16, together, the legislative intent is manifest that six months after the death of testator is a reasonable time within which application should be made, in proper instances, for appointment of administrator c. t. a. In re Estate of Smith, 210 N. C. 622, 188 S. E. 202.

Prior Right of Others after Six Months. — While after the expiration of six months prior rights to administration may be deemed renounced and a public administrator appointed, yet even after lapse of six months, if he is not as yet appointed, persons of prior right to administration may be appointed in preference to him. In re Bailey's Will, 141 N. C. 193, 53 S. E. 844; Hill v. Alspaugh, 72 N. C. 402.

After the expiration of six months, should the public administrator fail to apply, the field is open to the clerk of the superior court to treat all right of preference as renounced and to appoint, in the exercise of his discretion, some suitable person to administer the estate. Brooks v. Clement Co., 201 N. C. 768, 771, 161 S. E. 403.

2. When any stranger, or person without known heirs, shall die intestate in any county.

3. When any person entitled to administration shall request, in writing, the clerk to issue the letters to the public administrator. (Rev., s. 20; Code, s. 1394; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 6; C. S. 20.)

§ 28-21. Powers generally and on expiration of term.—The public administrator shall have, in respect to the several estates in his hands, all the rights and powers, and be subject to all the duties and liabilities of other administrators. On the expiration of the term of office of a public administrator, or his resignation, he may continue to manage the several estates committed to him prior thereto until he has fully administered the same, if he then enters into a bond as required by law for administrators. (Rev., s. 21; Code, s. 1395; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 7; 1876-7, c. 239; C. S. 21.)

Art. 5. Administrator with Will Annexed.

§ 28-22. When letters c. t. a. issue.—If there is no executor appointed in the will, or if, at any time, by reason of death, incompetency adjudged by the clerk of the superior court, renunciation, actual or decreed, or removal by order of the court, or on any other account there is no executor qualified to act, the clerk of the superior court shall issue letters of administration with the will annexed to one or more of the legatees named in said will; but if no legatee qualifies, then letters may be issued to some suitable person or persons in the order prescribed in this chapter. (Rev., s. 14; Code, s. 2166; C. C. P., s. 453; 1923, c. 63; C. S. 22.)

Editor's Note.—The effect of the amendment of 1923, ch. 63, was to give precedence, with respect to grant of letters c. t. a., to legatees named in the will over other persons entitled to administration under section 28-6. See 1 N. C. L. R. 315.

Appointment of Trustee Void.—The powers and duties (at least those personal) of an executor named in a will, devolve, upon his renunciation, on the administrator with the will annexed, and the appointment by the clerk of a trustee in place of the executor is void. Clark v. Peebles, 120 N. C. 31, 26 S. E. 924; Creech v. Grainger, 106 N. C. 213, 10 S. E. 1032. Council v. Averett, 95 N. C. 131; Hester v. Hester, 37 N. C. 330. He becomes a trustee for all trusts declared in the will as if he had been named executor. Jones v. Jones, 17 N. C. 387.

Powers of Administrator with the Will Annexed.—An administrator cum testamento annexo has all the rights, powers, and is subject to the same duties as if he had been named as executor. Smathers v. Moody, 112 N. C. 791, 17 S. E. 532.

Appointment When There is Executor. — An administrator cum testamento annexo cannot be appointed where there is an executor laboring under no disability, until the renunciation by the latter. And an appointment in derogation of this rule is void—not merely voidable. Springs v. Irwin, 28 N. C. 27.

Principle applied in Suttle v. Turner, 53 N. C. 403, 404.

Waiver of Right to Appointment.—Where a legatee entitled to preferential appointment as administrator c. t. a., fails to object to the appointment of an administrator c. t. a., but waits until after the death of the administrator appointed more than a year after testator's death before asserting his right and renouncing in favor of a third person, the legatee has waived his right, and his nominee is not entitled to appointment as against the nominee of the surviving sisters of testator. In re Estate of Smith, 210 N. C. 622, 188 S. E. 202.

And Right of Nomination and Substitution.—The right of nomination and substitution is confined to those themselves qualified for appointment, and where a legatee has waived his right to be appointed administrator c. t. a. by failing to apply within a reasonable time, he also waives his right of nomination and substitution. In re Estate of Smith, 210 N. C. 622, 188 S. E. 202. See § 28-6 and the note thereto.

§ 28-23. Qualifications and bond.—Administrators with the will annexed shall have the same qualifications and give the same bond as other administrators; but the executor of an executor shall not be entitled to qualify as executor of the first testator. (Rev., s. 15; Code, s. 2167; C. C. P., s 454; 1905, c. 286; C. S. 23.)

§ 28-24. Administrator c. t. a. must observe will.—In all cases where letters of administration with the will annexed are granted, the will of the testator must be observed and performed by the administrator with the will annexed, both in respect to real and personal property, and an administrator with the will annexed has all the rights and powers, and is subject to the same duties, as if he had been named executor in the will. (Rev., s. 3146; Code s. 2168; C. C. P., s. 455; C. S. 4170.)

Administrator, d. b. n., c. t. a., Not on Same Footing with Executor in All Respects.—The administrator de bonis non, cum testamento annexo, although clothed with the power, and required to execute the will, according to its legal effect as if he were executor, does not stand upon the same footing in all respects with an executor. He derives his authority, not from the will simply, but from the statute (this section) and he would not be treated as an executor in another state, nor would he have the power to sue there as administrator, because his authority is conferred by the law, and not by the will. Grant v. Reese, 94 N. C. 720, 730.

Duties and Liability of Administrator, c. t. a.—Ancillary Administration.—Where a testator died domiciled in this State, leaving debts due by parties in Virginia, the administrator de bonis non, cum testamento annexo, and the sureties on the bond, are not liable for a failure to return such notes on the inventory in this State and collect the same, when there is administration on the estate in Virginia. Grant v. Reese, 94 N. C. 720.

Personal Powers in Executor Extinct upon His Death.—Where the powers conferred upon the executor by the will are personal to and discretionary with the executor and become extinct at his death they can not be judicially prolonged and vested either in the administrator, c. t. a., nor in a substituted trustee. Young v. Young, 97 N. C. 132, 2 S. E. 78; Lewin on Trusts, 435; Creech v. Grainger, 106 N. C. 213, 219, 10 S. E. 1032.

Under a will directing the executor therein named to continue testator's business as long as the executor should think it profitable, and such of the profits as the executor might think actually necessary for the support of testator's wife and children to be paid to the wife; also, to invest six thousand dollars, bequeathed by testator to his children, and apply the interest, annually, to the education of the children; also, to have entire control of testator's business, to continue or discontinue it all, or any department of it, at any time he might find it not yielding a reasonable profit, and out of the profits pay to testator's wife, from time to time, such amounts as he might consider actually necessary for her support and the support of the children: Held, that upon the death of the executor and the appointment of an administrator d. b. n., c. t. a., the trust in respect to the investment of six thousand dollars, for the education of testator's children, passed to the administrator; the other trusts were personal to and discretionary with the executor, and became extinct at his death. Creech v. Grainger, 106 N. C. 213, 10 S. E. 1032.

Administrator c. t. a. as Trustee.—An administrator, with the will annexed, becomes a trustee for any trusts declared in the will which could pass and be transferred to any one, as much as if he had been named executor. Creech v. Grainger, 106 N. C. 213, 10 S. E. 1032.

Same—Recovery of Lands Held in Trust.—An administrator cum testamento annexo has all the rights and powers and is subject to the same duties as if he had been named as executor; therefore, where an executor was charged with the management of land, which implied the right of possession until the trust should be fully carried out, upon his death and the appointment of an administrator de bonis non, cum testamento annexo, the latter became entitled to the possession of the land, and can recover the same from those withholding it. Smathers v. Moody, 112 N. C. 791, 17 S. E. 532.

Will Presumed Executed in Contemplation of Section.—It will be presumed that a will is executed in contemplation of the statutes providing that an administrator c. t. a. succeeds to all the rights, powers and duties of the executor. Wachovia Bank, etc., Co. v. King Drug Co., 217 N. C. 502, 8 S. E. 593.

Power to Sell Real Estate.—Administrator c. t. a. may exercise all powers of sale granted the executors by the will regardless of whether they are given the executor virtute officii or nominatim, unless the language of the will definitely limits the exercise of the power of sale to the person named executor or unless the executor is made the donee of a special trust, given by reason only of peculiar or special confidence in him, and the mere appointment of an executor and the granting of power to him to sell real estate in his discretion, although evidencing confidence, does not necessarily constitute him the donee of a special trust so as to preclude the exercise of the power of sale by the administrator c. t. a. Wachovia Bank, etc., Co. v. King Drug Co., 217 N. C 502, 8 S. E. (2d) 593.

Art. 6. Collectors.

§ 28-25. Appointment of collectors.—When, for any reason, a delay is necessarily produced in the admission of a will to probate, or in granting letters testamentary, letters of administration, or letters of administration with the will annexed, the clerk may issue to some discreet person or persons, at his option, letters of collection, authorizing the collection and preservation of the property of the decedent. When, for any reason, a delay is necessary in the production of positive proof of the death of any one who may have disappeared under circumstances indicating death of such person, any person interested in the estate of such person so disappearing as heir at law, prospective heir at law, a creditor, a next friend, or any other person or persons interested, either directly or indirectly, in the estate of such person so disappearing, may file with the clerk of the superior court of the county in which the person so disappearing last resided, or in case such person so disappearing was at the time of his disappearance a nonresident of the State of North Carolina, with the clerk of the superior court of any county in which any property was or might have been located at the time of such disappearance, a petition for the appointment of a collector of the estate of such person so disappearing, or the property of such person so disappearing, located within the county of the clerk to whom application is made, which petition shall set forth the facts and circumstances surrounding the disappearance of such person, and which petition shall be duly verified and supported by affidavit of persons having knowledge of the circumstances under which such person so disappeared, and if from such petition and such affidavits it should appear to the clerk that the person so disappearing is probably dead, then it shall be the duty of the clerk to so find and to issue to some discreet person or persons, at his option, letters of collection authorizing the collection and the preservation of the property of such person so disappearing. (Rev., s. 22; Code, s. 1383; C. C. P., s. 463; R. C., c. 46, s. 9; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 115; 1924, c. 43; C. S. 24.)

Editor's Note.—That part of this section which provides for the appointment of collectors in case of delay in the production of positive proof of the unknown death of any person, was enacted by the amendment of 1924, ch. 43.

As to the effect upon this section of the amendment of 1924, see 3 N. C. L. R. 14.

Appointee in Discretion of Clerk. — It is discretionary with the clerk to appoint as collector either the person named as executor in the writing purporting to be the will, or some other person. In re Little's Will, 187 N. C. 177, 121 S. E. 453.

After a Will Admitted to Probate. — After a will has been admitted to probate in common form and letters testamentary have been issued, the clerk cannot remove the executor and appoint a collector, without a hearing based on notice to show cause why he should not be removed. In re Palmer's Will, 117 N. C. 133, 134, 23 S. E. 104.

Appointment When Proper.—A collector is appointed only when there is no one in rightful charge of the estate, and this section is applicable only to cases where there are difficulties in limine disconnected with controversy or contest over the will, preventing the admission of the will to probate or the issuing of letters testamentary, e. g., protracted absence of witnesses, illness of the executor, etc., also where a caveat is entered at the time the will is offered to probate. In re Palmer's Will, 117 N. C. 133, 134, 23 S. E. 104.

§ 28-26. Qualifications and bond.—Every collector shall have the qualifications and give the bond prescribed by law for an administrator. (Rev., s. 23; Code, s. 1384; C. C. P., s. 464; C. S. 25.)

§ 28-27. Powers of collectors.—Every collector has authority to collect the personal property, preserve and secure the same, and collect the debts and credits of the decedent, and for these purposes he may commence and maintain or defend suits, and he may sell, under the direction and order of the clerk, any personal property for the preservation and benefit of the estate. He may be sued for debts due by the decedent, and he may pay funeral expenses and other debts. (Rev., s. 24; Code, s. 1385; C. C. P., s. 465; R. C., c. 46, s. 6; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 115; C. S. 26.)

Power to Lease Land.—A collector has no power to enter upon and make leases of land. Lee v. Lee, 74 N. C. 70.

§ 28-28. When collector's powers cease; duty to account.—When letters testamentary, letters of administration or letters of administration with the will annexed are granted, the powers of such collector shall cease, but any suit brought by the collector may be continued by his successor, the executor or the administrator, in his own name. Such collector must, on demand, deliver to the executor or administrator all the property, rights and credits of the decedent under his control, and render an account, on oath, to the clerk of all his proceedings. Such delivery and account may be enforced by citation, order or attachment. (Rev., s. 25; Code, s. 1386; C. C. P., s. 466; R. C., c. 46, s. 7; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 115; C. S. 27.)

Allowance of Counsel Fee. — A collector who resists the claim of the executor is not entitled to an allowance for counsel fees paid by him in such litigation, where the executor prevails in the litigation. Johnson v. Marcom, 121 N. C. 83, 28 S. E. 58.

Art. 7. Appointment and Revocation.

§ 28-29. Facts to be shown on applying for administration.—On application for letters of administration, the clerk must ascertain by affidavit of the applicant or otherwise—

1. The death of the decedent and his intestacy.

Administration of Living Person's Estate.—Grant of administration upon the estate of a living man and a decree for the sale of his lands are void for lack of jurisdiction. Springer v. Shavender, 118 N. C. 33, 23 S. E. 976.

Appointment Based on Legal Presumption of Death.—Upon an affidavit showing that a person had been absent for over seven years and had not been heard from by relatives or friends, the fact that at the time of the appointment it was contemplated that an action should be brought to determine any question that might arise contrary to the legal presumption of death does not invalidate the appointment or nullify the proof afforded by the jurisdictional affidavit. Chamblee v. Security Nat. Bank, 211 N. C. 48, 188 S. E. 632.

2. That the applicant is the proper person entitled to administration, or that he applies after the renunciation of the person or persons so entitled.

3. The value and nature of the intestate's property, the names and residence of all parties entitled as heirs or distributees of the estate, if known, or that the same cannot, on diligent inquiry, be procured; which of said parties are minors, and whether with or without guardians, and the names and residences of such guardians, if known. Such affidavit or other proof must be recorded and filed by the clerk. (Rev., s. 26; Code, s. 1381; C. C. P., s. 461; C. S. 28.)

§ 28-30. Right to contest application for letters; proceedings. — Any person interested in the estate may, on complaint filed and notice to the applicant, contest the right of such applicant to letters of administration, and on any issue of fact joined, or matter of law arising on the pleadings, the cause may be transferred to the superior court for trial, or an appeal be taken, as in other special proceedings. (Rev., s. 27; Code, s. 1382; C. C. P., s. 462; C. S. 29.)

Cross Reference.—As to the running of the statute of limitations when there is contest, see § 1-24.

Title of Property Not Question of Fact. — A dispute as to the title of property of the decedent is not such an issue of fact as is contemplated by this section and required by this section to be transferred to the superior court for trial. In re Tapp's Estate, 114 N. C. 248, 19 S. E. 150.

Collateral Attack after Letters Issued.—Once the letters are issued and appointment made, they cannot be collaterally attacked. Thus in an action by the administrator against defendant for damages for killing the decedent negligently, the legality of his appointment on the ground of residence cannot be raised. Fann v. North Carolina R. Co., 155 N. C. 136, 71 S. E. 81; Batchelor v. Overton, 158 N. C. 395, 74 S. E. 20.

§ 28-31. Letters of administration revoked on proof of will.—If, after the letters of administration are issued, a will is subsequently proved and letters testamentary are issued thereon; or if, after letters testamentary are issued, a revocation of the will or a subsequent testamentary paper revoking the appointment of executors is proved and letters are issued thereon, the clerk of the superior court must thereupon revoke the letters first issued, by an order in writing to be served on the person to whom such first letters were issued; and, until service thereof, the acts of such person, done in good faith, are valid. (Rev., s. 37; Code, s. 2170; C. C. P., s. 469; C. S. 30.)

Cross References.—As to action begun before revocation, see §§ 28-33 and 28-181. As to resignation of executor or administrator, see § 36-9 et seq.

Cited in Edwards v. McLawhorn, 218 N. C. 543, 11 S. E. (2d) 562.

§ 28-32. Letters revoked on application of surviving husband or widow or next of kin, or for disqualification or default. — If, after any letters have been issued, it appears to the clerk, or if complaint is made to him on affidavit, that the surviving husband or widow or next of kin in the order of priority set out in subsections one and two of § 28-6 applies for letters of administration on said estate, and notwithstanding said applicants may have renounced their right to administer, if otherwise qualified, or that any person to whom they were issued is legally incompetent to have such letters, or that such person has been guilty of default or misconduct in the due execution of his office, or that issue of such letters was obtained by false representations made by such person, the clerk shall issue an order requiring such person to show cause why the letters should not be revoked. On the return of such order, duly executed, if the objections are found valid, the letters issued to such person must be revoked and superseded, and his authority shall thereupon cease. (Rev., s. 38; Code, s. 2171; C. C. P., s. 470; 1921, c. 98; C. S. 31.)

Editor's Note.—That part of this section which authorizes the revocation of letters upon the application of the surviving husband or widow or the next of kin, is introduced by the amendment of 1923, ch. 63. Prior to that, revocation was confined to causes of incompetency, default or misconduct of the representative in office.

Power to Revoke, Power to Refuse. — The power vested in clerk under this section to revoke letters for good cause carries with it the power to refuse to grant letters for cause for which a revocation would be justified. In re Will of Gulley, 186 N. C. 78, 80, 118 S. E. 839.

Clerk Has Primary and Original Jurisdiction.—The clerk under this section has original and primary jurisdiction of a probate judge to revoke letters, subject to review upon appeal by either party, and to this end he may require issues of fact to be tried by a jury in the superior court. Murrill v. Sandlin, 86 N. C. 54.

Clerk Exercises Discretion.—The exigencies of administration require the exercise of sound judgment, and this necessarily implies discretion in its supervision. Hence, the removal of administrators calls for the exercise of discretion by the clerk. Jones v. Palmer, 215 N. C. 696, 2 S. E. (2d) 850.

Refusal to Disclose Information. — Refusal on the part of the executor named in the will to disclose information as to the amount and nature of personalty coming into his possession, as to other matters relative to his fitness, is a ground for withholding or revoking letters testamentary and granting them to some other person. In re Will of Gulley, 186 N. C. 78, 118 S. E. 839.

Appeal from Order of Clerk.—The powers of the clerk to remove executors and administrators, conferred by this section, are reviewable on appeal to the judge of the Superior Court of the county. Wright v. Ball, 200 N. C. 620, 158 S. E. 192.

Where the Superior Court judge, upon appeal from the order of the clerk of the court removing executors or administrators of an estate, has exercised his discretion in retaining the cause in the Superior Court instead of remanding it to the clerk, the exercise of this discretion is not reviewable on appeal to the Supreme Court. Wright v. Ball, 200 N. C. 620, 158 S. E. 192.

It is in the province of the clerk to pass upon the matter of qualification of an executor, subject to the right of review by the superior court judge, and as to matters of law by the Supreme Court on appeal. In re Will of Gulley, 186 N. C. 78, 118 S. E. 839; In re Battle's Estate, 158 N. C. 388, 74 S. E. 23; Tulburt v Hollar, 102 N. C. 406, 9 S. E. 430; Edwards v. Cobb, 95 N. C. 4; Barnes v. Brown, 79 N. C. 401.

It is not required that he transfer the cause to the superior court for the trial of the issue. In re Battle, supra.

Necessity of Order to Show Cause. — The clerk cannot appoint a collector, (when the will has been probated and executor qualified) and remove the executor without a hearing based on notice to show cause why he should not be removed. In re Palmer's Will, 117 N. C. 133, 134, 23 S. E. 104. Nor can he remove a public administrator without such notice. Trotter v. Mitchell, 115 N. C. 190, 20 S. E. 386.

The procedure to remove an executor or administrator for default or misconduct is by order issued by the clerk to the executor or administrator to show cause, and in such proceeding the respondent must be given notice and an opportunity to be heard, with right of appeal. Edwards v. McLawhorn, 218 N. C. 543, 11 S. E. (2d) 562.

Statement of Belief in Affidavit.—A statement in an affidavit for the removal of executor, of a mere belief that he will misapply the funds is not sufficient for removal. It should state the facts or reasons upon which such belief is based. Neighbors v. Hamlin, 78 N. C. 42.

Failure to Discharge Duties — Ground of Removal. — Where the executor becomes bankrupt and is the owner of no property, and has neglected for six years to file an inventory or return of any sort, and has failed to convert the personal property into money, upon application of creditors he may be required to give bond or, in default, be removed, Barnes v. Brown, 79 N. C. 401; for failure to make statement of account, Armstrong v. Stowe, 77 N. C. 360.

Insolvency in Lifetime of Testator. — But an executor will not be removed for insolvency, if such was his condition in the lifetime of his testator and known to him, when there is no evidence of waste or misapplication of funds. In re Knowles' Estate, 148 N. C. 461, 62 S. E. 549.

Poverty of an executor is not of itself a reason for restraining him from administering the estate. There must be some maladministration or some danger of loss from his misconduct or negligence for which he will not be able to answer by reason of his insolvency. Wilkins v. Harris, 60 N. C. 592.

Nor is poverty a ground to require him to give bond as an alternative of giving up his office. Fairbairn v. Fisher, 57 N. C. 390.

Disqualification for Adverse Interest.—Where there is no evidence of bad faith or fraudulent concealment, a claim by the administrator that he owned jointly with the decedent a part of the personal estate of the latter, is not such an adverse interest as to disqualify him in his office. Morgan v. Morgan, 156 N. C. 169, 72 S. E. 206.

Pleading and Procedure.—The application to remove an executor may be made by any person rightfully interested, by petition or motion in writing, or formal complaint, setting forth the grounds of application supported by affidavit. The allegations thus made may be met by a demurrer in a proper case, or by answer. Edwards v. Cobb, 95 N. C. 4, 5, 9.

Filing of "Final Report" Does Not Create Vacancy.—The filing of a "final report" by an executor does not have the effect of removing him from office if in fact the estate has not been fully settled, and therefore the filing of the report does not create a vacancy and does not give the clerk authority to appoint an administrator c. t. a., d. b. n. Edwards v. McLawhorn, 218 N. C. 543, 11 S. E. (2d) 562.

Cited in In re Estate of Suskin, 214 N. C. 218, 198 S. E. 661.

§ 28-33. On revocation, successor appointed and estate secured.—In all cases of the revocation of letters, the clerk must immediately appoint some other person to succeed in the administration of the estate; and pending any suit or proceeding between parties respecting such revocation, the clerk is authorized to make such interlocutory order as, without injury to the rights and remedies of creditors, may tend to the better securing of the estate. (Rev., s. 35; Code, s. 1521; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 92; C. S. 32.)

Order to Make Return and Settlement. — The removed administrator may be ordered to make immediate return and settlement of the estate in his hands. Until that is done he is within the jurisdiction of the court. In re Brinson, 73 N. C. 278. See also, Taylor v. Biddle, 71 N. C. 1, where administrator was removed and an administrator de bonis non appointed.

Order to Surrender Funds. — It is proper for the clerk to order the displaced representative to surrender the funds in his possession belonging to the estate. Battle v. Duncan, 90 N. C. 546, 550.

Clerk Cannot Appoint until Vacancy Exists.—Since a person to whom letters testamentary have been issued has authority to represent the estate until his death, resignation or until he has been removed or the letters testamentary revoked in accordance with statutory procedure, the appointment by the clerk of an administrator c. t. a., d. b. n., upon petition of the residuary legatee alleging failure of the executor to account to the estate for rents and profits, is void, the clerk being without jurisdiction to make the appointment. Edwards v. McLawhorn, 218 N. C. 543, 11 S. E. (2d) 562.

Amount of Bond Dependent on What. — The framers of this section must have contemplated that the amount of bond should depend upon the application and examination of the principal named in it, unless the clerk preferred to examine another person. Williams v. Neville, 108 N. C. 559, 565, 13 S. E. 240.

Upon the examination of the applicant, the clerk may value the property at a higher figure than he had previously done. Williams v. Neville, 108 N. C. 559, 565, 13 S. E. 240.

Effect of Failure to Give Proper Bond. — The mere fact the bond of the representative is not justified before or approved by the clerk does not render the appointment void, or necessarily voidable. The provisions of this section requiring bond are directory and not essential to the appointment. It is only in the exercise of their jurisdictional functions that the clerks must observe these provisions as a condition precedent to the validity of their act. The only effect of noncompliance with these requirements is that the representative may be made to give the proper bond required. Garrison v. Cox, 95 N. C. 353, 357.

Good faith and the exercise of ordinary care and reasonable diligence are all that is required of executors and administrators, and covered by their bond. Moore v. Eure, 101 N. C. 11, 7 S. E. 471; Smith v. Patton, 131 N. C. 396, 42 S. E. 849; Atkinson v. Whitehead, 66 N. C. 296.

Money Received Covered by Bond.—Money applied for by an administrator, and paid to him as such, is received under color of his office and is covered by his bond. Lafferty v. Young, 125 N. C. 296, 34 S. E. 444.

Bond When Not Essential.—The execution of a bond, though incidental, is not an essential condition of an order admitting the plaintiff to prosecute an action as administrator. Hughes v. Hodges, 94 N. C. 56, 61.

Nor is the giving of the bond essential to the efficiency of the act of appointment itself. Howerton v. Sexton, 104 N. C. 75, 86, 10 S. E. 148; Hoskins v. Miller, 13 N. C. 360; Spencer v. Cahoon, 15 N. C. 225; Spencer v. Cahoon, 18 N. C. 27; Garrison v. Cox, 95 N. C. 353, 357.

When a foreign executor was regularly appointed and qualified his failure to give the bond specified by this section is only an irregularity and cannot be collaterally attacked. Batchelor v. Overton, 158 N. C. 395, 74 S. E. 20.

Art. 8. Bonds.

§ 28-34. Bond; approval; condition; penalty. — Every executor from whom a bond is required by law, and every administrator and collector, before letters are issued, must give a bond payable to the state, with two or more sufficient sureties, to be justified before and approved by the clerk, conditioned that such executor, administrator or collector shall faithfully execute the trust reposed in him and obey all lawful orders of the clerk or other court touching the administration of the estate committed to him. Where such bond is executed by personal sureties, the penalty of such bond must be, at least, double the value of all the personal property of the deceased, but where such bond shall be executed by a duly authorized surety company, the penalty in such bond may be fixed at not less than one and one-fourth times the value of all the personal property of the deceased. The value of said personal property shall be ascertained by the clerk by examination, on oath, of the applicant or of some other competent person. If the personal property of any decedent is insufficient to pay his debts and the charges of administration, and it becomes necessary for his executor or administrator to apply for the sale of real estate for assets, and the bond previously given is not double the value of both the real and personal estate of the deceased, such executor (if bond is required of him by law) or administrator shall, before or at the time of filing his petition for such sale, give another bond payable and conditioned as the one above prescribed and with like security, in double the value of the real estate for the sale of which application is made, provided, however, that where such bond shall be executed by a duly authorized surety company, the penalty of said bond need not exceed one and one-fourth times the value of said real estate. (Rev., s. 319; Code, s. 1388; 1870-1, c. 93; C. C. P., s. 468; 1935, c. 386; C. S. 33.)

Cross Reference.—As to when evidence as to default of principal admissible against sureties in actions on bonds of personal representatives, see § 109-38.

Editor's Note.—The amendment of 1935 changed the penalty of the bond as formerly prescribed by the second sentence and added the proviso appearing at the end of the section.

Action May Be Brought on Bond to Recover Amount Due Estate.—Where an administrator, who has not fully administered the estate of his intestate, has died or has been removed from his office, an action may be maintained against his personal representative or against him, as the case may be, and the surety on his bond, to recover the amount due by him to the estate of his intestate, by one who has been duly appointed and has duly qualified as administrator d. b. n. of his intestate. Tulburt v. Hollar, 102 N. C. 406, 9 S. E. 430. The failure to account for and to pay such amount is a breach of the statutory bond. State v. Dunn, 206 N. C. 373, 374, 173 S. E. 900.

Cited in Carolina Power & Light Co. v. Reeves, 198 N. C. 404, 405, 151 S. E. 871; Hicks v. Purvis, 208 N. C. 657, 182 S. E. 151.

§ 28-35. When executor to give bond.—Executors shall give bond as prescribed by law in the following cases:

Bankrupt Executor.—When an executor who is no owner of property has become bankrupt and has failed to file an inventory or return, the court (now the clerk) upon application of creditors may require him to give bond or in default remove him. Barnes v. Brown, 79 N. C. 401. But his insolvency known to the testator is no ground for requiring bond. Neighbors v. Hamlin, 78 N. C. 42.

Converting Assets into Money and Notes.—Where an executor converts his real and personal estate into notes and money, so as to lead to a reasonable apprehension that the assets are not sufficiently secure in his hands, it becomes the duty of the court to order that he give bond for the protection of the assets. Gray v. Gaither, 74 N. C. 237.

1. Where the executor resides out of the state. Except in the cases otherwise provided in this chapter, no foreign executor has any authority to intermeddle with the estate, until he has entered into bond, and the bond must be given not later than one year after the death of the testator.

Local Modification.—Buncombe, Madison, Yancey: Pub. Loc. Ex. Sess. 1924, c. 202.

Foreign Executors.—Under this subsection a foreign executor must apply to the clerk of the superior court for ancillary letters of administration and give bond. First Nat. Bank v. Pancake, 172 N. C. 513, 515, 90 S. E. 515.

Owing to the prohibition contained in this subsection, deeds made by foreign executors transferring lands situated in this state, under a power in the will to sell, convey no title until the statutory requirements have been complied with. Glascock v. Gray, 148 N. C. 346, 62 S. E. 433. But by section 28-39 of this chapter, (enacted subsequently) such conveyances executed under circumstances referred to prior to 1911, are validated by the express terms of that section.

But where such executor has been regularly appointed in all other respects, his failure to give bond under this subsection is only an irregularity and cannot be collaterally attacked in an action brought by him. Batchelor v. Overton, 158 N. C. 395, 396, 74 S. E. 20.

Removal to Federal Court.—A foreign executor will be required to give bond required by this section to remove a cause, instituted against his testate in his lifetime, to the Federal court on the ground of diversity of citizenship. First Nat. Bank v. Pancake, 172 N. C. 513, 514, 90 S. E. 515.

Meaning of Estate.—The use of the word "estate" in this subsection denotes real as well as personal estate. Glascock v. Gray, 148 N. C. 346, 62 S. E. 433.

2. When a man marries a woman who is an executrix, and if the husband in such case fail to give bond, the clerk, on application of any creditor or other party interested in the estate, shall revoke the letters issued to the wife and grant letters of administration with the will annexed to some other person.

Executrix's Remarriage and Wasting the Assets.—Where it appeared that a wife, executrix of her first husband, remarried and was using the estate carelessly and without accounting therefor, it was held proper to require her to account and give bond. Godwin v. Watford, 107 N. C. 168, 169, 11 S. E. 1051.

3. Where an executor, other than such as may have already given bond, obtains an order to sell any portion of the real estate for the payment of debts, as hereinafter provided, the court or clerk to whom application is made shall require, before granting any order of sale, such executor to enter into bond. (Rev., s. 28; Code, s. 1515; R. C., c. 46, ss. 12, 13; C. S. 34.)

§ 28-36. When executor may give bond after one year.—Where a nonresident of the state by will sufficient according to the laws of the state, and duly probated and recorded in the proper county, devises real property situated in this state, the executor acting under the will, if he has not intermeddled with the property devised in the will, and if no letters of administration in this state on the estate have been issued subsequent to the probate of the will, may, after the expiration of one year from the testator's death, give bond in double the value of the property devised, and he shall then be entitled to all the rights, powers and privileges of a resident executor. (1909, c. 825; C. S. 35.)

§ 28-37. No bond in certain cases of executor with power to convey.—Where a citizen or subject of a foreign country, or of any other state of the United States, by will sufficient according to the laws of this state, and duly probated and recorded in the proper county, devises to his executor, with power to sell and convey, real property situated in this state in trust for a person named in the will, the power being vested in the executor as such trustee, the executor may execute the power without giving bond in this state. (1909, c. 901; 1925, c. 284; C. S. 36.)

Editor's Note.—By the amendment of 1925, c. 284, citizens of other states of the United States were brought into the operation of this section.

§ 28-38. No bond where will does not require bond and co-executor a resident.—A nonresident executor appointed under a will which does not require the executor's bond shall not be required to give bond, if a resident of the state is appointed and qualifies as co-executor, unless the clerk of the court of the county where the will is first probated shall, upon the petition of the creditors or beneficiaries of the estate, deem the bond of the nonresident executor necessary for the protection of the creditors or beneficiaries. This section applies to nonresident executors who qualified before its enactment as well as to those qualifying afterwards. (1911, c. 176; Ex. Sess. 1920, c. 86; C. S. 37.)

Editor's Note.—The only effect of the amendment of 1920, c. 86, was to substitute the words "does not require the executor's bond," near the beginning of this section, for the original words "dispenses with the executor's bond."

§ 28-39. Certain executor's deeds without bond before 1911 validated.—Where prior to January first, one thousand nine hundred and eleven, a nonresident executor has sold and conveyed lands in this state under a power in the will of a citizen of another state or of a foreign country, and the will was executed according to the laws of this state and was duly proved and recorded in the state or foreign country where the testator and his family and the executor resided, the sale and conveyance is valid although the executor prior to the execution of the deed had not given bond or obtained letters in this state. (1911, c. 90; C. S. 38.)

Constitutionality.—This section validating conveyances therein referred to is not unconstitutional as impairing a vested right. Vaught v. Williams, 177 N. C. 77, 97 S. E. 737.

§ 28-40. Oath and bond required before letters issue.—Before letters testamentary, letters of administration with the will annexed, letters of administration or letters of collection are issued to any person, he must give the bond required by law and must take and subscribe an oath or affirmation before the clerk, or before any other officer of any state or country authorized by the laws of North Carolina to administer oaths, that he will faithfully and honestly discharge the duties of his trust, which oath must be filed in the office of the clerk. (Rev., s. 29; Code, ss. 1387, 1388, 2169; C. C. P., ss. 467, 468; 1870-1, c. 93; 1923, c. 56; C. S. 39.)

Editor's Note.—See 1 N. C. L. R. 315.

§ 28-41. Oath before notary; curative statute.—In all cases prior to January the first, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-two, in which any foreign executor qualified or attempted to qualify as such executor by taking and subscribing the oath or affirmation required by law, before a notary public of this or any other state or territory of the United States, instead of taking and subscribing said oath or affirmation before the clerk, and having in all other respects complied with the laws of North Carolina prescribed for and pertaining to the qualification and appointment of foreign executors, such qualification and the letters testamentary issued in all such cases are hereby validated and made legal and binding. In all cases mentioned in this section, wherein such foreign executor has entered upon the discharge of the duties of such office and has performed any duty or exercised the powers and authority of such office regularly and according to law, except for the defect in the qualification and issuance of letters testamentary, then all such acts of any such foreign executor are validated and are declared to be legal and binding. (1923, c. 19.)

§ 28-42. Right of action on bond.—Every person injured by the breach of any bond given by an executor, administrator or collector may put the same in suit and recover such damages as he may have sustained. (Rev., s. 30; Code, s. 1516; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 87; C. S. 40.)

Only Good Faith Cuaranteed.—Bonds of administrators, executors, guardians, etc., guarantee only good faith. Smith v. Patton, 131 N. C. 396, 397, 42 S. E. 849; Moore v. Eure, 101 N. C. 11, 7 S. E. 471.

Action in Whose Name.—Actions upon the bonds of guardians, administrators, executors and collectors must be brought in the name of the state. Norman v. Walker, 101 N. C. 24, 7 S. E. 468.

In fact actions on all bonds payable to the state must be brought in the name of the state. The statute requiring the real party in interest to prosecute does not apply to such actions. Carmichael v. Moore, 88 N. C. 29.

But the objection to the omission to bring in state's name may be obviated by a motion to amend. Wilson v. Pearson, 102 N. C. 290, 291, 9 S. E. 707. Amendment will be allowed even in the Supreme Court. Grant v. Rogers, 94 N. C. 755.

When an administrator dies, no one but an administrator de bonis non of his intestate can call his representative to account for the assets or sue on his bond. Merrill v. Merrill, 92 N. C. 657; State v. Goodman, 72 N. C. 508; Carlton v. Byers, 70 N. C. 691. And the next of kin cannot call for an account or settlement without having an administrator before the court. Lansdell v. Winstead, 76 N. C. 366, 367. (But see the dissenting opinion in Merrill v. Merrill, supra. See also, Neal v. Becknell, 85 N. C. 299, holding that the bond of an administrator whose appointment has been revoked may be sued on by his successor in office or by the next of kin.)

Thus where an administrator sells lands for assets to pay debts, and expends only a part of the fund for that purpose and dies before filing a final account, only an administrator de bonis non (not the next of kin) of his intestate can maintain an action on the bond to recover the unexpended balance. Neagle v. Hall, 115 N. C. 415, 20 S. E. 516; Tulburt v. Hollar, 102 N. C. 406, 9 S. E. 430. But where the administrator refuses to sue, creditors may sue, making him a party defendant. Wilson v. Pearson, 102 N. C. 290, 291, 9 S. E. 707.

Breach Not Merged in Judgment.—A judgment for damages on the breach of an administrator's bond does not merge the cause of action. The latter is satisfied only by actual payment. Wilson v. Pearson, 102 N. C. 290, 291, 9 S. E. 707.

Action against Sureties.—An action can be maintained on an administration bond against the sureties before obtaining judgment against the administrator. Chairman of Court v. Moore, 6 N. C. 22; Williams v. Hicks, 5 N. C. 437; Strickland v. Murphy, 52 N. C. 242; Bratton v. Davidson, 79 N. C. 423.

What Constitutes Breach of Bond.—Bonds of administrators, executors, etc., guarantee good faith and reasonable care only. Smith v. Patton, 131 N. C. 396, 42 S. E. 849; Moore v. Eure, 101 N. C. 11, 7 S. E. 471; Atkinson v. Whitehead, 66 N. C. 296; Syme v. Badger, 92 N. C. 706. Executors are not insurers. Nelson v. Hall, 58 N. C. 32; Beall v. Darden, 39 N. C. 76.

It is not breach of an administrator's bond to refuse to pay a claim until the same is established by judgment. Gill v. Cooper, 111 N. C. 311, 16 S. E. 316.

Where an administrator pays taxes out of the fund of the estate assessed against his intestate as guardian, it is an improper disbursement and his bond is liable therefor. Worthy v. Brower, 93 N. C. 344. So also where he pays inferior debts. Id.

Where a devastavit is charged the primary liability rests upon the administration bond. But a failure to apply for license to sell land for assets is not of itself a breach of such bond. Hawkins v. Carpenter, 88 N. C. 403.

Where an administrator fails to exhibit in court his final account at the end of two years from his qualification, the distributees may bring suit upon his bond, alleging such failure as a breach of the bond. Bratton v. Davidson, 79 N. C. 423.

An act of administrator done with the concurrence of the creditor will not entitle the latter to charge the former with a devastavit. Cain v. Hawkins, 50 N. C. 192.

Venue of Suit.—An administrator or executor must be sued as such in the county in which he took out letters of administration or letters testamentary, provided he or any one of his sureties lives in that county, whether he is sued upon his bond or simply as administrator or executor. Stanley v. Mason, 69 N. C. 1; Foy v. Morehead, 69 N. C. 512.

§ 28-43. Rights of surety in danger of loss.—Any surety on the bond of an executor, administrator or collector, who is in danger of sustaining loss by his suretyship, may exhibit his petition on oath to the clerk of the superior court wherein the bond was given, setting forth particularly the circumstances of his case, and asking that such executor, administrator or collector be removed from office, or that he give security to indemnify the petitioner against apprehended loss, or that the petitioner be released from responsibility on account of any future breach of the bond. The clerk shall issue a citation to the principal in the bond, requiring him, within ten days after service thereof, to answer the petition. If, upon the hearing of the case, the clerk deem the surety entitled to relief, he may grant the same in such manner and to such extent as may be just. And if the principal in the bond gives new or additional security, to the satisfaction of the clerk, within such reasonable time as may be required, the clerk may make an order releasing the surety from liability on the bond for any subsequent act, default or misconduct of the principal. (Rev., s. 33; Code, s. 1519; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 90; C. S. 41.)

§ 28-44. On revocation of letters, bond liable to successors.—When the letters of an executor, administrator or collector are revoked, his bond may be prosecuted by the person or persons succeeding to the administration of the estate, and a recovery may be had thereon to the full extent of any damage, not exceeding the penalty of the bond, sustained by the estate of the decedent by the acts or omissions of such executor, administrator or collector, and to the full value of any property received and not duly administered. Moneys so recovered shall be assets in the hands of the person recovering them. (Rev., s. 31; Code, s. 1517; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 88; C. S. 42.)

Cross Reference.—See annotations to § 28-42.

Administrator Must Sue.—The administrator de bonis non must first sue on the bond of a defaulting executor who preceded him, before he can obtain a license to sell the real estate for the payment of the debts. Carlton v. Byers, 70 N. C. 691. But where the preceding administrator is insolvent, his bond lost, and sureties unknown, the administrator de bonis non need not bring suit before he can obtain such license. Brittain v. Dickson, 104 N. C. 547, 10 S. E. 701.

Action—By Whom Brought.—The action on the bond of the removed representative must be brought by the administrator de bonis non, and not by the next of kin. Tulburt v. Hollar, 102 N. C. 406, 9 S. E. 430.

Cited in Edwards v. McLawhorn, 218 N. C. 543, 11 S. E. (2d) 562.

§ 28-45. When new bond or new sureties required.—If complaint be made on affidavit to the clerk of the superior court that the surety on any bond of an executor, administrator or collector is insufficient, or that one or more of such sureties is or is about to become a nonresident of this state, or that the bond is inadequate in amount, the clerk must issue an order requiring the principal in the bond to show cause why he should not give a new bond, or further surety, as the case may be. On the return of the order duly executed, if the objections in the complaint are found valid, the clerk shall make an order requiring the party to give further surety or a new bond in a larger amount within a reasonable time. (Rev., s. 32; Code, s. 1518; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 89; C. S. 43.)

Mortgage Instead of Bond. — An administrator who is also the heir of the intestate can not satisfy the requirement of an additional bond or security by mortgaging lands of his intestate, as such lands are already liable for the debts. In re Sellars, 118 N. C. 573, 24 S. E. 430.

§ 28-46. On failure to give new bond, letters revoked.—If any person required to give a new bond, or further security, or security to indemnify, under §§ 28-43 and 28-45, fails to do so within the time specified in any such order, the clerk must forthwith revoke the letters issued to such person, whose right and authority, respecting the estate, shall thereupon cease. (Rev., s. 34; Code, s. 1520; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 91; C. S. 44.)

Notice to Show Cause Essential. — A judgment removing a public administrator for failure to renew his bond, without notice to show cause, is not only irregular but void. Trotter v. Mitchell, 115 N. C. 190, 20 S. E. 386.

Clerk Has Jurisdiction.—The clerks of the superior courts have jurisdiction of proceedings for the removal of executors and administrators. Edwards v. Cobb, 95 N. C. 4.

Cited in Edwards v. McLawhorn, 218 N. C. 543, 11 S. E. (2d) 562.

Art. 9. Notice to Creditors.

§ 28-47. Advertisement for claims.—Every executor, administrator and collector, within twenty days after the granting of letters, shall notify all persons having claims against the decedent to exhibit the same to such executor, administrator or collector, at or before a day to be named in such notice; which day must be twelve months from the day of the first publication of such notice. The notice shall be published once a week for six weeks in a newspaper, if any there be published in the county. If there is no newspaper published in the county, then the notice shall be posted at the courthouse and four other public places in the county. (Rev., s. 39; Code, ss. 1421, 1422; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 29; 1881, c. 278, s. 2; C. S. 45.)

Local Modification.—Nash: 1931, c. 64.

Cost of Publication.—The last sentence of this section formerly provided "The cost of publishing in a paper shall in no case exceed two dollars and fifty cents". This provision was enacted by the Revisal of 1905, and appeared in all codes since that time. Section 1-596, which provides in substance that payment for legal advertising shall not be in excess of the local commercial rate of the newspaper selected, was enacted by P. L. 1919, c. 45, and had the effect of repealing the two dollar and fifty cent provision in view of the fact that section 1-596 was enacted by the General Assembly of 1919 and it was provided by C. S. 8101 that "all public and general statutes passed at the present session of the general assembly shall be deemed to repeal any conflicting provisions contained in the Consolidated Statutes." Therefore, the provisions of section 1-596 control the publication cost.

Time of Presenting Claims.—Before distribution of the estate to the next of kin, it is the duty of the administrator to pay the debts of the estate, provided such debts are presented within twelve months next after publication under this section. As against claims presented after that period he will not be chargeable with any distribution he may have made in good faith. Mallard v. Patterson, 108 N. C. 255, 13 S. E. 93.

Advertisement Essential to Bar Claims.—The mere lapse of time does not bar the creditor's claims against the estate. Only where the advertisement provided under this section has been made does the statute of limitation begin to run. Love v. Ingram, 104 N. C. 600, 10 S. E. 77. But see, Morissey v. Hill, 142 N. C. 355, 55 S. E. 193, where it was held that this section was enacted more for the protection of the representative, and hence a claim would be barred independent of whether the advertisement provided by this section was published or not. To the same effect, see also, Andres v. Powell, 97 N. C. 155, 2 S. E. 235; but see the dissenting opinion of Judge Merrimon.

Where the administrator neither avers nor proves that he gave the notice required by this section, the objection that the creditor has not shown that he ever presented his claim will not avail. Valentine v. Britton, 127 N. C. 57, 59, 37 S. E. 74; Love v. Ingram, supra. But see, Morissey v. Hill, supra.

Cited, in Park View Hospital Ass'n v. Peoples Bank, etc., Co., 211 N. C. 244, 189 S. E. 766.

§ 28-48. Proof of advertisement.—A copy of the advertisement directed to be posted or published in pursuance of § 28-47, with an affidavit, taken before some person authorized to administer oaths, of the proprietor, editor or foreman of the newspaper wherein the same appeared, to the effect that such notice was published for six weeks in said newspaper, or an affidavit stating that such notices were posted, shall be filed in the office of the clerk by the executor, administrator or collector. The copy so verified or affidavit shall be deemed a record of the court, and a copy thereof, duly certified by the clerk, shall be received as conclusive evidence of the fact of publication in all the courts of this state. (Rev., s. 40; Code, s. 1423; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 31; C. S. 46.)

Necessity of Proof. — When an administrator pleads to a bill the provision of law which prescribes the time of bringing suits against him, he is bound to show by proof that he advertised as required by the statute. Gilliam v. Willey, 54 N. C. 128.

§ 28-49. Personal notice to creditor.—The executor, administrator or collector may cause the notice to be personally served on any creditor, who shall, thereupon, within six months after personal service thereof, exhibit his claim, or be forever barred from maintaining any action thereon. (Rev., s. 41; Code, s. 1424; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 32; 1885, c. 96; C. S. 47.)

Cross Reference.—See annotations under § 28-47.

Art. 10. Inventory.

§ 28-50. Inventory within three months.—Every executor, administrator and collector, within three months after his qualification, shall return to the clerk, on oath, a just, true and perfect inventory of all the real estate, goods and chattels of the deceased, which have come to his hands, or to the hands of any person for him, which inventory shall be signed by him and be recorded by the clerk. He shall also return to the clerk, on oath, within three months after each sale made by him, a full and itemized account thereof, which shall be signed by him and recorded by the clerk. (Rev., s. 42; Code, s. 1396; R. C., c. 46, s. 16; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 8; C. S. 48.)

Conclusiveness of Inventory. — An inventory is but prima facie evidence to charge the executor with assets, so as to call on him for proof to rebut it. Hoover v. Miller, 51 N. C. 79. It is prima facie evidence of the solvency of persons owing debts to the estate and described in the inventory. It may be shown that the personal representative made errors in describing and noting the debts. But it seems that it is not evidence against an administrator de bonis non. Grant v. Reese, 94 N. C. 720.

Statement of Doubtful Debts. — Where an executor returns an inventory of debts without stating that some of the debts are doubtful, he will be held responsible for them, unless he can show that there were set offs against them, or that the debtors were insolvent. Graham v. Davidson, 22 N. C. 155. But where he inventories them as "doubtful", prima facie he will not be chargeable with them. Gay v. Grant, 101 N. C. 206, 8 S. E. 99, 106.

Return of Joint Executors. — Either one of joint executors making a joint return of inventory are answerable for what appears thereon, if it does not show what came to the hand of the other alone. Graham v. Davidson, 22 N. C. 155.

Barred of Commissions. — Failure to file an inventory coupled with acts of gross negligence and want of care in the management of the estate: Held, to deprive the personal representative of his right to commissions. Grant v. Reese, 94 N. C. 720; Stonestreet v. Frost, 125 N. C. 640, 31 S. E. 836.

Removal from Office. — Where the executor failed to file the inventory required and was also guilty of other acts of mismanagement it was held that he could be required to give bond or be removed from his office. Barnes v. Brown, 79 N. C. 401.

May Be Compelled to Account or File Inventory. — If the personal representative has failed to file his inventory or his accounts, he can be compelled to do so upon application to the clerk of the superior court. Atkinson v. Ricks, 140 N. C. 418, 53 S. E. 230.

Transfer of Funds to Other Jurisdiction. — The inventory required by this section must be filed before the transfer of moneys to another jurisdiction. Grant v. Rogers, 94 N. C. 755, 762.

Cited in In re Hege, 205 N. C. 625, 172 S. E. 345.

§ 28-51. Compelling the inventory.—If the inventory and account of sale specified in § 28-50 are not returned as therein prescribed, the clerk must issue an order requiring the executor, administrator or collector to file the same within the time specified in the order, which shall not be less than twenty days, or to show cause why an attachment should not be issued against him. If, after due service of the order, the executor, administrator, or collector does not, on the return day of the order, file such inventory or account of sale, or obtain further time to file the same, the clerk shall have power to vacate the office of administrator, executor or collector. And under all proceedings provided for in this section, the defaulting executor, administrator or collector shall be personally liable for the costs of such proceeding to be taxed against him by the clerk of the superior court, or deducted from any commissions which may be found due such executor, administrator or collector upon final settlement of the estate. And the sheriffs of the several counties to whom a process is directed under the provisions of this section shall serve the same without demanding their fees in advance. (Rev., s. 43; Code, s. 1397; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 9; 1929, c. 9, s. 1; 1933, c. 100; C. S. 49.)

Editor's Note.—The Act of 1929 added next to the last sentence to this section. Public Laws 1933, c. 100 added the last sentence of this section as it now reads.

Clerk's Original Jurisdiction. — Under this section the clerk has original jurisdiction to remove the representative for not filing the inventory required. Edwards v. Cobb, 95 N. C. 4, 8.

Clerk Has Power to Remove even Independent of Statute. —The clerk has power of removal for the failure of the administrator to discharge the duties of his office as prescribed by law. And even without invoking the aid of statute the power of removal is inherent in the office at common law, and must of necessity be so to prevent a failure of justice. Taylor v. Biddle, 71 N. C. 1, 5.

§ 28-52. New assets inventoried.—When further property of any kind, not included in any previous return, comes to the hands or knowledge of any executor, administrator or collector, he must cause the same to be returned, as hereinbefore prescribed, within three months after the possession or discovery thereof; and the making of such return of new assets, from time to time, may be enforced in the same manner as in the case of the first inventory. (Rev., s. 44; Code, s. 1398; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 10; C. S. 50.)

§ 28-53. Trustees in wills to file inventories and accounts.—Trustees appointed in any will admitted to probate in this state, into whose hands assets come under the provisions of the will, shall file in the office of the clerk of the county where the will is probated inventories of the assets and annual and final accounts thereof, such as are required of executors and administrators. The power of the clerk to enforce the filing and his duties in respect to audit and record shall be the same as in such cases. This section shall not apply to any will in which a different provision is made for filing inventories and accounts. (1907, c. 804; C. S. 51.)

Art. 11. Assets.

§ 28-54. Distinction between legal and equitable assets abolished.—The distinction between legal and equitable assets is abolished, and all assets shall be applied in the discharge of debts in the manner prescribed by this chapter. (Rev., s. 45; Code, s. 1406; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 14; C. S. 52.)

What Constitutes Assets — Rents Liable for Debts. — The rents on devised land may be subjected by the personal representative to the payment of the debts of deceased. Shell v. West, 130 N. C. 171, 41 S. E. 65.

Same—Rent Accruing before and after Death. — Rent due for the occupation of an equitable estate in land, in the lifetime of the cestui que trust, goes to his personal representative, that accruing after his death goes to his heirs. Fleming v. Chunn, 57 N. C. 422; Rogers v. McKenzie, 65 N. C. 218.

Same — All Chattels Assets. — All the chattels of an intestate are assets, if the administrator by reasonable diligence might have possessed himself, of them. Gray v. Swain, 9 N. C. 15.

Same—Warrant for Pension Not Asset. — A warrant for a pension issued after death of pensioner does not become a part of his assets, but must be returned to the state for cancellation. In re Smith, 130 N. C. 638, 41 S. E. 802.

Same — Lands as Assets. — Land is not an asset until it is sold and the proceeds received by the personal representative. Wilson v. Bynum, 92 N. C. 718; Fike v. Green, 64 N. C. 665; Edenton v. Wool, 65 N. C. 379; Hawkins v. Carpenter, 88 N. C. 403.

Same — Damages for Death by Wrongful Act. — The right to recover damages for wrongful death rests entirely on statute, and when a recovery is had therefor it is not a part of the personal assets of the deceased. Hood v. American Tel., etc., Co., 162 N. C. 92, 77 S. E. 1094.

Such damages when recovered are not assets of the estate available to creditors. Hines v. Foundation Co., 196 N. C. 322, 145 S. E. 612.

Duration of Homestead Exemptions.—The personal exemptions in Art. X of the Constitution exist only during the life of the "homesteader," and after his death pass to his personal representative, to be disposed of in a due course of administration. Johnson v. Cross, 66 N. C. 167.

§ 28-55. Trust estate in personalty.—If any trustee, or any person interested in any trust estate, dies leaving any equitable interest in personal estate which shall come to his executor, administrator or collector, the same estate shall be deemed personal assets. (Rev., s. 46; Code, s. 1403; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 11; C. S. 53.)

§ 28-56. Crops ungathered at death.—The crops of every deceased person, remaining ungathered at his death, shall, in all cases, belong to the executor, administrator or collector, as part of the personal assets, and shall not pass to the widow with the land assigned as dower; nor to the devisee by virtue of any devise of the land, unless such intent be manifest and specified in the will. (Rev., s. 47; Code, s. 1407; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 15; C. S. 54.)

The Principle Is Declaratory of the Common Law.—Flynt v. Conrad, 61 N. C. 190, 194.

This section does not control the title to crops not planted at the time of the death of the testator or devisor. Manifestly, in the forum of common sense, a crop could not be a crop until the seed were in the soil. The statute uses the expression, "crops . . . remaining ungathered at his death," etc. An ungathered crop is certainly not an unplanted crop. Carr v. Carr, 208 N. C. 246, 247. 180 S. E. 82.

Applied.—Upon the death of a cropper his personal representative is entitled to his share of the crop. Parker v Brown, 136 N. C. 280, 48 S. E. 657; Thomas v. Lines, 83 N C. 191.

§ 28-57. Proceeds of real estate sold to pay debts are personal assets.—All proceeds arising from the sale of real property, for the payment of debts, as hereinafter provided, shall be deemed personal assets in the hands of the executor, administrator or collector, and applied as though the same were the proceeds of personal estate. (Rev., s. 48; Code, s. 1404; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 12; C. S. 55.)

Stamped with Character of Realty. — Proceeds of sale of realty are in fact personalty, although they are stamped with the character of realty to indicate the channel in which they shall go. Lafferty v. Young, 125 N. C. 296, 300, 34 S. E. 444.

Applied in Linker v. Linker, 213 N. C. 351, 196 S. E. 329.

§ 28-58. Surplus of proceeds of realty sold for debts is real asset.—All proceeds from the sale of real estate, as hereinafter provided, which may not be necessary to pay debts and charges of administration, shall, notwithstanding, be considered real assets, and as such shall be paid by the executor, administrator or collector to such persons as would have been entitled to the land had it not been sold. (Rev., s. 49; Code, s. 1405; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 13; C. S. 56.)

Cross Reference.—See annotations to § 28-57.

Proceeds of Sale Held for Heirs. — Proceeds of sale of real estate in the hands of administrator are held, after payment of debts, for the heirs who upon the death of the administrator, may alone proceed against his personal representative. Alexander v. Wolfe, 88 N. C. 398. Such proceeds may not be applied to a judgment for widow's year's allowance. Denton v. Tyson, 118 N. C. 542, 24 S. E. 116.

But where he also holds other proceeds than from the sale of realty, the administrator de bonis non of the estate must join with such heirs in proceeding against the personal representative of the deceased administrator. Alexander v. Wolfe, supra. But see Neagle v. Hall, 115 N. C. 415, 20 S. E. 516, where it was held that only administrator de bonis non of the estate can sue for the unexpended proceeds of realty sold.

Applied in Linker v. Linker, 213 N. C. 351, 196 S. E. 329.

§ 28-59. Personalty fraudulently conveyed recoverable.—If there are not sufficient real and personal assets of the deceased to satisfy all the debts and liabilities of deceased, together with the costs and charges of administration, the personal representative shall have the right to sue for and recover any and all personal property which the deceased may in any wise have transferred or conveyed with intent to hinder, delay, or defraud his creditors, and any money or property so recovered shall constitute assets of the estate in the hands of the personal representative for the payment of debts. But if the fraudulent alienee of deceased has sold the property or estate so fraudulently acquired by him to a bona fide purchaser for value without notice of the fraud, then such fraudulent alienee shall be liable to the personal representative for the value of the property and estate so acquired and disposed of. If the whole recovery from any fraudulent alienee of a decedent shall not be necessary for the payment of the debts of decedent and the costs and charges of administration of his estate, the surplus shall be returned to such fraudulent alienee or his assigns. (Rev., s. 50; C. S. 57.)

Cross References.—As to realty, see § 28-84. As to fraudulent conveyances, see § 39-15 et seq.

§ 28-60. Debt due from executor not discharged by appointment.—The appointing of any person executor shall not be a discharge of any debt or demand due from such person to the testator. (Rev., s. 51; Code, s. 1431; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 40; C. S. 58.)

Applies to Executor whether He Acts or Not. — This section applies to an executor who acts as well as to one who does not act under the appointment. Moore v. Miller, 62 N. C. 359.

§ 28-61. Joint liability of heirs, etc., for debts.—All persons succeeding to the real or personal property of a decedent, by inheritance, devise, bequest or distribution, shall be liable jointly, and not separately, for the debts of such decedent. (Rev., s. 52; Code, s. 1528; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 99; C. S. 59.)

Editor's Note. — Not only persons succeeding to the property of the deceased are jointly liable (to the proper extent) for the payment of the debts, but also third persons who purchase the property. See post, section 28-83.

Purpose of Section. — This and the following sections are intended to limit the liability of heirs, devisees and distributees. Andres v. Powell, 97 N. C. 155, 160, 2 S. E. 235.

Claim for Unliquidated Damages Not a "Debt."—An action based on a claim for unliquidated damages, until reduced to judgment liquidating the amount of the claim, is not a debt under this section. Suskin v. Maryland Trust Co., 214 N. C. 347, 350, 199 S. E. 276.

In a stockholders' derivative suit to recover from the directors and officers the damages which they caused a corporation to suffer by unlawfully distributing a portion of the corporation's profits under a by-law alleged to be illegal, the action for unliquidated damages was not a debt within this section. Healey v. Reynolds Tobacco Co., 48 F. Supp. 207.

As between Legatees and Devisees.—See Badger v. Daniel, 79 N. C. 372.

Proportion of Devisee's Liability.—The whole debt, not exceeding the value of the devise, may be collected from the devisee; but in such a case he is entitled to contribution from the other devisees. That is, each devisee, heir, etc., is, to the extent of his share, a surety. Badger v. Daniel, 79 N. C. 372; Hinton v. Whitehurst, 71 N. C. 66, 68.

Executor as Sole Devisee and Legatee.—Where judgment was rendered against the estate of plaintiff's deceased guardian for money due the guardianship estate, and after reaching his majority plaintiff instituted this action alleging that defendant as executrix of the deceased guardian had paid over to herself, as sole devisee and legatee, money sufficient to discharge plaintiff's claim, the action is not against defendant as executrix but against her individually on a liability imposed upon her by this section as legatee and devisee, and defendant's motion to remove from the county of plaintiff's residence to the county in which she qualified as executrix, was properly denied. Rose v. Patterson, 218 N. C. 212, 10 S. E. (2d) 678.

Pleading.—Complaint alleged cause against defendant as devisee for personal enrichment at the expense of creditors of the estate, and not against her in her capacity as executrix, and her motion to remove to the county of her qualification was properly denied, notwithstanding that plaintiff's evidence tends to show devastavit, since an action is governed by the pleadings. Rose v. Patterson, 220 N. C. 60, 16 S. E. (2d) 458.

Variance.—Where the complaint alleges that defendant, as executrix, turned over to herself as legatee, personalty of the estate of plaintiff's debtor, and thus obtained personal enrichment at the expense of creditors of the estate, but the evidence tends to show, at most, devastavit, defendant's motion to nonsuit is properly allowed on the ground of variance between the allegation and the proof, since the burden is on plaintiff to prove the cause alleged in the complaint. Rose v. Patterson, 220 N. C. 60, 16 S. E. (2d) 458.

Applied in Moffitt v. Davis, 205 N. C. 565, 172 S. E. 317; Price v. Askins, 212 N. C. 583, 194 S. E. 284.

§ 28-62. Extent of liability of heirs, etc.—No person shall be liable, under § 28-61, beyond the value of the property so acquired by him, or for any part of a debt that might by action or other due proceeding have been collected from the executor, administrator or collector of the decedent, and it is incumbent on the creditor to show the matters herein required to render such person liable. (Rev., s. 53; Code, s. 1529; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 100; C. S. 60.)

Cross Reference.—See annotations to § 28-61.

The provisions in this section are intended to limit the liability of executors, administrators, next of kin and heirs of decedents, and after reasonable time, to give quiet and repose to the estates of dead men. Moffitt v. Davis, 205 N. C. 565, 567, 172 S. E. 317.

Devisee's Liability.—In an action under this section judgment can be entered against the devisee only to the extent of the property received under the will and no personal judgment can be entered against the devisee. Moffitt v. Davis, 205 N. C. 565, 172 S. E. 317.

Hence the heirs, by making personal appearance in an action against the estate for the recovery of money, in which attachment is issued against the lands of the estate, are not estopped to deny plaintiff's contention that the attachment gives priority to his judgment. Price v. Askins, 212 N. C. 583, 194 S. E. 284.

§ 28-63. Judgment against heirs, etc., apportioned; costs.—In any such action the recovery must be apportioned in proportion to the assets or property received by each defendant, and judgment against each must be entered accordingly. Costs in such actions must be apportioned among the several defendants, in proportion to the amount of the recovery against each of them. (Rev., s. 54; Code, s. 1530; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 101; C. S. 61.)

Cross Reference.—As to provision prohibiting creation of lien by suit against representative, see § 28-114 et seq.

§ 28-64. Persons liable for debts to observe priorities.—Every person who is liable for the debts of a decedent must observe the same preferences in the payment thereof as are established in this chapter; nor shall the commencement of an action by a creditor give his debt any preference over others. (Rev., s. 55; Code, s. 1531; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 102; C. S. 62.)

Cited in Price v. Askins, 212 N. C. 583, 194 S. E. 284.

§ 28-65. Existence of other debts of prior or equal class.—The defendants in such action may show that there are unsatisfied debts of a prior class or of the same class with that in suit. If it appears that the value of the property acquired by them does not exceed the debts of a prior class, judgment must be rendered in their favor. If it appears that the value of the property acquired by them exceeds the amount of debts which are entitled to a preference over the debt in suit, the whole amount which the plaintiff shall recover is only such a portion of the excess as is a just proportion to the other debts of the same class with that in suit. (Rev., s. 56; Code, s. 1532; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 103; C. S. 63.)

Who Are Defendants. — Debts against deceased persons must be sued by civil action against the personal representative. Hence the "defendants" referred to in this section are the executors and administrators. The phrase "the value of property acquired by them," refers to assets in the hands of the representative. Heilig v. Foard, 64 N. C. 710, 712.

§ 28-66. Debts paid taken as unpaid as against heirs, etc.—If any debts of a prior class to that in which the suit is brought, or of the same class, have been paid by any defendant, the amount of the debts so paid shall be estimated, in ascertaining the amount to be recovered, in the same manner as if such debts were outstanding and unpaid, as prescribed in § 28-65. (Rev., s. 57; Code, s. 1533; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 104; C. S. 64.)

§ 28-67. Compelling contribution among heirs, etc.—The remedy to compel contribution shall be by petition or action in the superior court or before the judge in term time against the personal representatives, devisees, legatees, and heirs also of the decedent if any part of the real estate be undevised, within two years after probate of the will, and setting forth the facts which entitle the party to relief; and the costs shall be within the discretion of the court. (Rev., s. 58; Code, s. 1534; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 106; C. S. 65.)

Application to Tenants in Common. — This section applies only to contributions sought to be enforced among devisees, and heirs to whom undevised land has descended. It has no application to contributions among tenants in common who claim by descent. Wharton v. Wilkerson, 92 N. C. 408, 414.

Section an Exception to Certain Rule.—The remedy given by this section is an exception to the rule that in actions for contribution, when the amount exceeds $200, the superior court in term has exclusive cognizance. Wharton v. Wilkerson, 92 N. C. 408, 414.

§ 28-68. Payment to clerk of sums not exceeding $300 due and owing intestates.—Where any person dies intestate and at the time of his or her death there is a sum of money owing to the said intestate not in excess of three hundred dollars, such sum may be paid into the hands of the clerk of the superior court, whose receipt for same shall be a full and complete release and discharge for such debt or debts, and the said clerk of the superior court is authorized and empowered to pay out such sum or sums in the following manner: First, for satisfaction of widow's year's allowance, after same has been assigned in accordance with law, if such be claimed; second, for payment of funeral expenses, and if there be any surplus the same to be disposed of as is now provided by law. This section shall apply to the counties of Randolph, Guilford, Edgecombe, Cabarrus, Iredell, Moore, Anson, Watauga, Wilson, Craven, Cumberland, Johnston, Rutherford, Stanly, Davidson, Currituck, Yadkin, Alexander, Stokes, Clay, Greene, Wayne, Franklin, Macon, Beaufort, Swain, Haywood, Caldwell, Burke, Gates, Rockingham, Graham, Lee, Person, Catawba, Dare, Tyrrell, Perquimans, Transylvania, Duplin, Hyde, Pender, Surry, Alamance, Lincoln, Granville, Chowan, Hoke, Vance, Montgomery, Durham, Wake, Harnett, Buncombe, Union, Onslow, Nash, Halifax, Hertford, Mecklenburg, Robeson, Orange, Pasquotank, McDowell, Rowan, New Hanover, Martin, Forsyth, Polk, Warren, Caswell, Yancey, Wilkes and Lenoir. (1921, c. 93; Ex. Sess. 1921, c. 65; Ex. Sess. 1924, cc. 15, 58; 1927, c. 7; 1929, cc. 63, 71, 121; 1931, c. 21; 1933, cc. 16, 94; 1935, cc. 69, 96; 367; 1937, cc. 13, 31, 55, 121, 336, 377; 1939, cc. 383, 384; 1941, c. 176; 1943, cc. 24, 114, 138, 560; C. S. 65(a).)

Local Modification.—Pitt: 1937, c. 336; 1939, cc. 169, 383, 384.

Editor's Note.—The 1943 amendments made this section applicable to Caswell, Yancey, Wilkes and Lenoir counties.

This section provides the debtor a permissive right and is in no wise mandatory upon him, such right as is given is alternative and not exclusive. In re Franks, 220 N. C. 176, 180, 16 S. E. (2d) 831.

Jurisdiction to Appoint Administrator.—This section does not have the effect of fixing the sum of $300.00 as bona notabilia in determining jurisdiction of the clerk of the superior court to appoint an administrator for a person not domiciled in this state who dies leaving assets herein. In re Franks, 220 N. C. 176, 16 S. E. (2d) 831.

Art. 12. Discovery of Assets.

§ 28-69. Examination of persons or corporations believed to have possession of property of decedent. — Whenever an executor or administrator makes oath before the clerk of the superior court of the county where the party to be examined resides or does business that he has reasonable ground to believe, setting forth the grounds of his belief, that any person, firm or corporation has in his or its possession any property of any kind belonging to the estate of his decedent, said clerk shall issue a notice to said person or the member of the firm or officer, agent or employee of the firm or corporation designated in the affidavit, to appear before said clerk at his office at a time fixed in said notice, not less than three days after the issuance of said notice, and be examined under oath by said executor or administrator or his attorney concerning the possession of said property. If upon such examination the person examined admits that he or the firm or corporation for which he works has in his or its possession any property belonging solely to the decedent, and fails to show any satisfactory reason for retaining possession of said property, the clerk of the superior court shall issue an order requiring said person, firm or corporation forthwith to deliver said property to said executor or administrator, and may enforce compliance with said order by an attachment for contempt of court, and commit said person to jail until he shall deliver said property to said executor or administrator: Provided, that in the case of a firm or corporation, whenever any person other than a partner or executive officer of such firm or corporation is examined, no such order shall be made until at least three days after service of notice upon a partner or executive officer of such firm or corporation to show cause why such order should not be made. (1937, c. 209, s. 1.)

Editor's Note.—The purpose of this section is to expedite the settlement of a decedent's estate by permitting the representative to discover assets of the estate through and upon the authority of the probate court without having to resort, independently, to the rather slow and expensive proceeding of claim and delivery. However, since the section seems to provide only for the situation where a party "admits" that the property held belongs to the decedent's estate and refuses for an inadequate reason to give it up, it would seem that the representative would still have to utilize claim and delivery proceedings in the case where the party in possession of the property denies that it belongs to the estate of the deceased. It is doubtful that the section would, by inference, authorize the clerk to try the title to such property. 15 N. C. Law Rev., 352.

§ 28-70. Right of appeal.—Any person aggrieved by the order of the clerk of the superior court may, within five days, appeal to the judge holding the next term of the superior court of the county after said order is made or to the resident judge of the district, but as a condition precedent to his appeal he shall give a justified bond in a sum at least double the value of the property in question, conditioned upon the safe delivery of the property and the payment of damages for its detention, to the executor or administrator in the event that the order of the clerk should be finally sustained. When said bond is executed and delivered to the court no attachment shall be served upon the appealing party, or, if he has already been committed, he shall be released pending the final determination of the appeal. If the appellant fails to have his appeal heard at the next term of the superior court held in his county, or by the resident judge of the district, within thirty days after giving notice of appeal, the clerk of the court may recommit the appellant to jail until he shall deliver the property to the executor or administrator as aforesaid. (1937, c. 209, s. 2.)

§ 28-71. Costs.—The party against whom the final judgment is rendered shall be adjudged to pay the costs of the proceedings hereunder. (1937, c. 209, s. 3.)

§ 28-72. Remedies supplemental.—The remedies provided in this article shall not be exclusive, but shall be in addition to any remedies which are now or may hereafter be provided. (1937, c. 209, s. 4.)

Art. 13. Sales of Personal Property.

§ 28-73. Executor or administrator may sell without court order.—Every executor and administrator shall have power in his discretion and without any order, except as hereinafter provided, to sell, as soon after his qualification as practicable, all the personal estate of his decedent. (Rev., s. 62; Code, s. 1408; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 16; C. S. 66.)

Cross Reference.—As to sale of property by a guardian, see §§ 33-31 and 33-32.

For Application of Proceeds Purchaser Not Responsible.—A purchaser of personalty from the personal representative does not, by virtue of the latter's absolute power to dispose of the personalty, have to see to the proper application of the purchase price. This, even though the decedent has created a particular separate fund for the payment of his debts. But if the purchase be tainted with collusion, he will be held responsible for its proper application. Tyrrell v. Morris, 21 N. C. 559; Bradshaw v. Simpson, 41 N. C. 243; Gray v. Armistead, 41 N. C. 74; Cox v. First Nat. Bank, 119 N. C. 302, 26 S. E. 22.

The purchaser gets good title, unless he purchased mala fide and for the purpose of devastavit. Polk v. Robinson, 42 N. C. 235; Wilson v. Doster, 42 N. C. 231. Where he receives the property in payment of fiduciary's personal debt, the transaction is presumptively mala fide. Hendrick v. Gidney, 114 N. C. 543, 546, 19 S. E. 598; Dancy v. Duncan, 96 N. C. 111, 117, 1 S. E. 455; Wilson v. Doster, supra; Latham v. Moore, 59 N. C. 167.

§ 28-74. Collector may sell only on order of court.—All sales of personal property by collectors shall be made only upon order obtained, by motion, from the clerk of the superior court, who shall specify in his order a descriptive list of the property to be sold. (Rev., s. 61; Code, s. 1409; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 17; C. S. 67.)

§ 28-75. Terms and notice of public sale.—All public sales of personal estate by executors, administrators or collectors shall be made on credit or for cash after twenty days' notification posted at the court house and four public places in the county. (Rev., s. 63; Code, ss. 1410, 1411; 1868-9, c. 113, ss. 18, 19; C. S. 68.)

Editor's Note.—This section was rewritten by the codifiers and, as rewritten, adopted by the General Assembly of 1943. As formerly written, it seemed to require that all sales of personal property should be publicly made. The view expressed in Pate v. Kennedy, 104 N. C. 234, 10 S. E. 188, that this statute, as formerly written, was mandatory, has not found acceptance in later cases, and it is now well established that a personal representative may sell at private sale under certain prescribed conditions. Felton v. Felton, 213 N. C. 194, 195 S. E. 533. See also § 28-76.

The case of Wynns v. Alexander, 22 N. C. 58, held that the common-law rule on this point is not repealed by this section and that the section is merely directory. See also Dickson v. Crawley, 112 N. C. 629, 17 S. E. 158; Cox v. First Nat. Bank, 119 N. C. 302, 305, 26 S. E. 22; Odell v. House, 144 N. C. 647, 648, 57 S. E. 395.

Liability of Fiduciary.—If the fiduciary sells at public sale the price actually obtained is his justification. But if he sells at a private sale, he is liable for the true value without reference to the price obtained. Cannon v. Jenkins, 16 N. C. 422, 427.

It seems, however, that a private sale of a chose in actions if made in good faith, is valid; though it is safer to follow the direction of this section to avoid any personal liability in case the fiduciary fails to obtain as much from the private sale as he would have obtained had he sold at public sale. Dickson v. Crawley, 112 N. C. 629, 632, 17 S. E. 158; Wynns v. Alexander, 22 N. C. 58; Gray v. Armistead, 41 N. C. 74.

Thus, in the absence of fraud or collusion, notes may be sold at private sale. But the burden of proof of fair and full price, in such a case, rests upon the representative Odell v. House, 144 N. C. 647, 57 S. E. 395.

What Constitutes Sale Other than Public.—Giving a part of the standing crop for hauling the remainder does not, within the meaning of this section, constitute selling otherwise than at public auction. McDaniel v. Johns, 53 N. C. 414.

§ 28-76. Clerk may order private sale in certain cases; advance bids.—Whenever the executor or administrator of any estate shall be of the opinion that the interests of said estate will be promoted and conserved by selling the personal property belonging to it at private sale instead of selling same at public sale, such executor or administrator may, upon a duly verified application to the clerk of the Superior Court, obtain an order to sell, and may sell, such personal property at private sale for the best price that can be obtained, and shall report such sales to the clerk for confirmation; and upon satisfactory proof that said personal property has been sold for a fair and adequate price, such sale shall be confirmed by the said clerk.

The said sale or sales of personal property shall not be deemed closed under ten days from the filing of such report; and if in ten days from the filing of such report the sale price is increased by the deposit of ten (10) per cent with the said clerk, the said clerk shall order a new sale thereof. The clerk may in his discretion, require the person making such advance bid to execute a good and sufficient bond in a sufficient amount to guarantee compliance with his said offer. If no advance bid is offered for the property and if no exception is filed thereto within said period of ten (10) days, the same shall be confirmed.

Where the estate consists in whole or in part of perishable property the executor or administrator may sell such perishable property at private sale without order or confirmation by the clerk of the Superior Court.

Where the property to be sold consists of stocks, bonds, or other securities, having a known or readily ascertainable market value, and which are bought or sold on any stock or securities exchange, supervised or regulated by the United States government or any of its agencies or departments, the executor or administrator may, upon first obtaining an order approving the sale from the clerk of superior court having jurisdiction of the estate, sell the same privately at the current market price, and such sale shall be valid and final. (Rev., s. 64; 1893, c. 346; 1919, c. 66; 1925, c. 267; 1939, c. 167; C. S. 69.)

Editor's Note.—The 1925 Act repealed the former law and substituted in lieu thereof the first, second, and third paragraphs of this section. The 1939 Act added the last paragraph. See also 4 N. C. L. Rev. 19.

This section was enacted for the protection of administrators in making private sales, a course which an administrator may, but is not required, to pursue. Felton v. Felton, 213 N. C. 194, 198, 195 S. E. 533.

Effect of Section upon Discretion of Judge and Clerk.—The provisions of this section do not take away from the clerk, or judge on appeal, the sound discretionary power of determining whether a public or a private sale would best subserve the interests of the parties, or prevent them from authorizing a private sale in proper cases. The section is permissive and not mandatory upon them. In re Brown's Estate, 185 N. C. 398, 117 S. E. 291; Felton v. Felton, 213 N. C. 194, 195 S. E. 533.

Presumption as to Refusal to Confirm.—In an appeal upon refusal to confirm the sale under this section, the presumption is that there was sufficient evidence to sustain the findings of fact upon which the refusal is based. In re Brown's Estate, 185 N. C. 398, 117 S. E. 291.

Review by Federal Court.—Where the clerk of the superior court of a county, upon a petition by the executors, authorized and approved a sale of certain shares of stock, bequeathed to the trustees of a church, to pay the debts of the estate, the court had jurisdiction of the parties and the subject matter, and the sale of stock under its order was not subject to review by the federal district court, as the sale was authorized by this section. King v. Richardson, 46 F. Supp. 510, 515.

§ 28-77. Confirmation required on objection of interested party.—When any person interested, either as creditor or legatee, on the day of sale objects to the completion of any sale on account of the insufficiency of the amount bid, title to such property shall not pass until the sale is reported to and confirmed by the clerk. (Rev., s. 63; Code, s. 1411; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 19; C. S. 70.)

Fair Sale at Inadequate Price. — In the absence of such objection, where the sale is perfected in all fairness and in compliance with the law, the mere fact that the property was sold to the widow of the decedent at a nominal price where the public would not bid, does not render the administrator liable for the inadequacy of the price. Woody v. Smith, 65 N. C. 116.

Creditor Consenting Estopped.—Where the creditor consents to the sale at an inadequate price at the time of the sale, he cannot thereafter raise the question. Cain v. Hawkins, 50 N. C. 192, 194.

§ 28-78. Security required; representative's liability for collection.—The proceeds of all sales of personal estate and rentings of real property by public auction or privately shall be secured by bond and good personal security, and such proceeds shall be collected as soon as practicable; otherwise the executor, administrator or collector shall be answerable for the same. (Rev., s. 65; Code, s. 1413; 1893, c. 346, s. 2; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 21; C. S. 71.)

Provisions Peremptory.—The provisions of this section are peremptory and leave no discretion in the representative. Hence a noncompliance with them renders him liable. Pate v. Kennedy, 104 N. C. 234, 10 S. E. 188.

What "Real Estate" Includes.—The "real estate" which the representative is authorized to lease under this section has reference to leasehold estates which belonged to the decedent. Reeves v. McMillan, 101 N. C. 479, 7 S. E. 906; Lee v. Lee, 74 N. C. 70.

Mere Bond Not Sufficient.—Taking no other security than the bond of the purchaser constitutes gross laches on the part of the representative. Roseman v. Pless, 65 N. C. 374, 375.

The amount and kind of security to constitute "good security" within the meaning of this section, differs in selling on short credit and in making a permanent investment. Camp v. Smith, 68 N. C. 537, 541.

§ 28-79. Hours of public sale; penalty.—All public sales or rentings provided for in this chapter shall be between the hours of ten o'clock a. m. and four o'clock p. m. of the day on which the sale or renting is to be made, except that in towns or cities of more than five thousand inhabitants public sales of goods, wares, and merchandise may be continued until the hour of ten o'clock p. m. Provided, a certain hour for such sales shall be named and the sale shall begin within one hour after the time fixed, unless postponed as provided by law, or delayed by other sales; and every executor, administrator or collector who otherwise makes any sale or renting shall forfeit and pay two hundred dollars to any person suing for the same. (Rev., s. 66; Code, s. 1414; 1893, c. 346, s. 3; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 22; 1927, c. 19, s. 2; C. S. 72.)

Editor's Note.—The part of this section which provides for forfeiture, must be construed strictly in accordance with the meaning of the words employed, and must not be extended by implication or construction when the act to be penalized does not clearly fall within the spirit and letter thereof. See Alexander v. Atlantic, etc., R. Co., 144 N. C. 93, 56 S. E. 697.

The proviso as to the hours designated was added by the Public Laws of 1927.

Object of Section.—This section was enacted to provide a way for the representative to relieve himself of liability, and realize something from the choses in action which were not collectible but which might have some prospective value. Odell v. House, 144 N. C. 647, 57 S. E. 395.

Application to Private Sales.—The provisions of this section do not apply to private sales. Odell v. House, 144 N. C. 647, 57 S. E. 395.

Provisions Peremptory.—The provisions of this section are peremptory and leave no discretion in the representative. Pate v. Kennedy, 104 N. C. 234, 10 S. E. 188. But for qualification to this rule, see annotations to section 28-75.

§ 28-80. Debts uncollected after year may be sold; list filed.—Every executor, administrator and collector, at any time after one year from the grant of letters, is authorized to sell at public auction, in the manner prescribed in this chapter, all bills, bonds, notes, accounts, or other evidences of debt belonging to the decedent, which he has been unable to collect or which may be deemed insolvent. Before offering such evidences of debt at public sale he shall file with the clerk a descriptive list thereof, and obtain an order of sale therefor from the clerk, and shall make return of the proceeds of such sale as in other cases of assets. (Rev., s. 67; Code, s. 1412; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 20; C. S. 73.)

Editor's Note.—This section is merely directory in two respects: (1) in that the representative under it is merely empowered and not directed to sell; (2) in that a purchaser from the representative at a sale made not in compliance with the terms of the statute, e.g., a private sale, nevertheless gets good title. See Odell v. House, 144 N. C. 647, 57 S. E. 395; Felton v. Felton, 213 N. C. 194, 195 S. E. 533.

Purpose of Statute.—This section was enacted to provide a way for the administrator to relieve himself of liability and at the same time realize something from choses in action which were not collectible but which might have some prospective value. Odell v. House, 144 N. C. 647, 57 S. E. 395.

Good Faith as to Insolvency.—A finding that the representative sold some of the assets belonging to the estate believing them to be insolvent will discharge him from liability although they were in fact collectible assets. Weisel v. Cobb, 118 N. C. 11, 22, 24 S. E. 782.

Art. 14. Sales of Real Property.

§ 28-81. Sales of realty ordered, if personalty insufficient for debts.—When the personal estate of a decedent is insufficient to pay all his debts, including the charges of administration, the executor, administrator or collector may, at any time after the grant of letters, apply to the superior court of the county where the land or some part thereof is situated, by petition, to sell the real property for the payment of the debts of such decedent. When there is dower or right of dower in the land petitioned to be sold as aforesaid, the person entitled thereto shall be made a party to said proceeding, and upon the consummation of sale pursuant to decree of confirmation, the fiduciary shall, based on the completed age of the person so entitled on such day of consummation, compute the value of her annuity at six per cent (6%) on one-third of the net sale price during her probable life or expectancy, and shall pay same to her absolutely out of the proceeds; or in lieu of such payment of the value of her annuity of six per cent (6%) on such one-third of the net sale price, at her election, one-third of the net proceeds shall be paid into the office of the clerk of the superior court and the income on said one-third shall be paid to her annually: Provided, that nothing herein contained shall be construed to deprive the widow from claiming her dower right by metes and bounds in her husband's land: Provided, further, if the person entitled to said dower shall not claim the same by metes and bounds in her husband's lands, or elect to receive the income from one-third of the net proceeds of said sale, within the time allowed by law for filing pleadings in such special proceeding, such person shall be presumed to have elected to receive said dower interest in cash as provided in this section.

Where land is sold as provided in this section, and in lieu of paying cash therefor the purchaser executes a note or notes secured by a mortgage or deed of trust, and there are insufficient funds from said sale with which to pay the person entitled to dower her interest in full as provided in this section, said person shall be entitled to the legal rate of interest on the unpaid balance of her dower interest until same is paid in full.

Proceedings for the sale of the real estate of a decedent brought by his personal representative to create assets with which to pay debts must be instituted in the county where the land or some part thereof lies. If the land to be sold consists of one or more contiguous tracts lying in more than one county or consists of two or more separate tracts lying in different counties, proceedings may be instituted in any county in which a part of the land is situate, and the court of such county wherein the proceedings for sale are first brought shall have jurisdiction to proceed to a final disposition of said proceedings as if all of said land were situate in the county where the proceedings were instituted. Where the land to be sold consists of one or more contiguous tracts lying in more than one county, said land shall be advertised in all counties in which any part of said land lies, but the sale shall be conducted at the courthouse door of the county in which the proceeding was instituted unless the court making the order of sale shall fix some place other than at the courthouse door of the county in which the proceeding was instituted; the place and time of sale shall be as directed in the order of the court. Where the land consists of two or more distinct tracts lying in different counties, each tract shall be advertised in and sold at the courthouse door of the county in which it lies. Certified copies of the proceedings under the seal of the court of the county in which the proceedings were instituted, together with certified copies of the letters testamentary or letters of administration of the personal representative, shall be filed in the office of the clerk of superior court of each county wherein any part of the land lies and shall be recorded in the record of orders and decrees in special proceedings in said office. (Rev., s. 68; Code, s. 1436; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 42; 1923, c. 55; 1935, c. 43; 1937, c. 70; 1943, c. 637; C. S. 74.)

Editor's Note.—The 1937 amendment inserted that part of the third sentence of the third paragraph beginning with the word "unless."

This amendment would seem to meet the demands of convenience where the part of the land to be sold is situated in a county different from that in which the proceedings to sell were instituted. It is likely that more interested purchasers will be found in the county where the land lies. 15 N. C. Law Rev. 352.

The provisions relating to the widow's dower were inserted by the Public Laws of 1923, ch. 55.

The amendment of 1935 added the third paragraph as it appeared before the 1937 amendment.

The 1943 amendment rewrote the second sentence of the first paragraph and inserted the second paragraph.

Rule Prior to This Section.—Before the enactment of this section the lands of the decedent could not be sold for the payment of his debts upon which a judgment quando had been rendered against the administrator. But this section changed this rule. Wilson v. Bynum, 92 N. C. 718.

Nature of Authority. — The authority of the representative under this section is a naked power without title or interest in the estate. He is a mere agent of the court. Floyd v. Herring, 64 N. C. 409, 411.

Land Not Assets until Sold.—Lands are not assets for the payment of the debts until they are sold and the proceeds received by the administrator. Wilson v. Bynum, 92 N. C. 718, 723.

Contents of Petition to Sell Lands.—In proceedings to sell lands to make assets the petition should set forth, inter alia, as required by § 28-86, the value of the personal estate, as near as may be ascertained, and the application thereof, and an allegation merely that the personalty is insufficient is defective. Neighbors v. Evans, 210 N. C. 550, 187 S. E. 796.

May Be Compelled to Sell.—Upon failure of the personal representative to apply for the sale of the lands for the payment of the debts, he may either be compelled by the clerk to do so or the creditor may file a creditor's bill. Whether he will be held liable on his bond for such failure, quaere. Wilson v. Bynum, 92 N. C. 718; Yarborough v. Moore, 151 N. C. 116, 65 S. E. 763; Pelletier v. Saunders, 67 N. C. 261; Clement v. Cozart, 109 N. C. 173, 181, 13 S. E. 862; Hobbs v. Cashwell, 152 N. C. 183, 67 S. E. 495; Lee v. McKoy, 118 N. C. 518, 24 S. E. 210.

Who May Sell.—The personal representative is the proper party to sell the homestead of deceased for distribution. Tarboro v. Pender, 153 N. C. 427, 69 S. E. 425, 636.

He has, however, no concern with the realty until a situation justifying a sale thereof under this section exists. Coggins v. Flythe, 113 N. C. 102, 119, 18 S. E. 96; Gilchrist v. Middleton, 108 N. C. 705, 715, 13 S. E. 227.

Claimant of Sole Seizin May Have Claim Adjudicated and Pay Debts to Prevent Sale of Lands.—While under this section, an administrator is entitled to sell lands of the deceased to make assets to pay debts of the estate when the personalty is insufficient, when a person claims sole seizin under a contract to devise as against the heirs of intestate, such person is entitled to adjudication of her claim of sole seizin before a sale of the property to make assets is ordered, since she may elect to discharge the debts of the estate and the costs of administration to prevent a sale of the lands. Chambers v. Byers, 214 N. C. 373, 199 S. E. 398.

Amount of Realty Which May Be Sold.—This section authorizing the sale of the lands of a decedent is in derogation of the common law and hence the Courts will not deny to an administrator the discretion of selling less land than is ordered to be sold if necessity should not arise for such sale; and, conversely, the administrator will be allowed to continue to sell lands embraced in the license so long as the necessity to raise assets exists. Sledge v. Elliott, 116 N. C. 712, 21 S. E. 797.

Personalty Must Be First Applied. — While the lands may be sold where the personal estate is insufficient, the general rule is that the personalty must be first applied before resorting to the realty; and this, even though the debts are secured by mortgage on realty. Mahoney v. Stewart, 123 N. C. 106, 31 S. E. 384; Sanderson v. Overman, 98 N. C. 235, 3 S. E. 502; Mosely v. Mosely, 192 N. C. 243, 134 S. E. 645, and cases cited; Wadford v. Davis, 192 N. C. 484, 135 S. E. 353; Gurganus v. McLawhorn, 212 N. C. 397, 193 S. E. 844.

Even though the debts are secured by a mortgage upon land, they must be paid out of personalty first; and only in the event this latter proves insufficient is a sale of the land under this section authorized. Moseley v. Moseley, 192 N. C. 243, 134 S. E. 645.

The creditor who has a judgment against the debtor which constitutes a lien upon the land, is not, after the death of the latter, permitted to sell the land under execution. Personalty is the primary source to satisfy the debt, and in case of its insufficiency the sale of the land may be effected by the procedure prescribed in this section. Tuck v. Walker, 106 N. C. 285, 288, 11 S. E. 183; Baker v. Carter, 127 N. C. 92, 94, 37 S. E. 81.

Under this section an administrator has the right, and it becomes his duty under certain conditions, to apply for license to sell the real estate of his intestate to make assets with which to pay debts, but it is necessary that the personal property shall first be exhausted. When this has been done and it has been ascertained that the personalty is insufficient to discharge the debts, resort may be had to the realty. The personalty, however, is always the primary fund for the payment of debts. Parker v. Porter, 203 N. C. 31, 34, 179 S. E. 28.

If the personalty has been wasted by the representative, his successor must first resort to his bond before proceeding against the lands. Lilly v. Wooley, 94 N. C. 412; Clement v. Cozart, 107 N. C. 695, 12 S. E. 254. Though not where the former is insolvent, his bond lost, and sureties unknown. Brittain v. Dickson, 104 N. C. 547, 10 S. E. 701.

Application of Personal Assets.—This section, construed in connection with the second clause of section 28-86, confers upon the representative the duty and the power to apply for license whenever the insufficiency of personalty, whether before or after an actual application thereof, can be shown. Shields v. McDowell, 82 N. C. 137, 140; Blount v. Pritchard, 88 N. C. 445; Clement v. Cozart, 107 N. C. 695, 697, 12 S. E. 254.

The cases of Wiley v. Wiley, 63 N. C. 182, and Bland v. Hartsoe, 65 N. C. 204, which contain expressions that no authority exists to decree a sale until the personal estate is actually exhausted, are distinguished in Shields v. McDowell, supra, and the true rule is announced to be that the mere showing of the insufficiency of the personal estate without showing its actual application is sufficient.

Statute of Limitations Does Not Bar Performance of Duty to Sell Realty.—As long as the estate remained unsettled, and real property of the decedent remained subject to sale, the administrator could unquestionably proceed by proper petition in the original proceeding to have the real property sold for the payment of outstanding debts and for the final settlement of the estate. No statute of limitations barred that right or the performance of that duty. Rocky Mount Savings, etc., Co. v. McDearman, 213 N. C. 141, 144, 195 S. E. 531.

As long as the estate remains unsettled no statute of limitations bars the right and duty of the personal representative to sell lands to make assets to pay the debts of the estate. Gibbs v. Smith, 218 N. C. 382, 11 S. E. (2d) 140.

Debts Barred. — But a representative cannot sell land to pay debts barred, Robinson v. McDowell, 133 N. C. 182, 45 S. E. 545; and, to an application for license to sell for the payment of debts upon which no judgment is obtained the heirs or devisees may plead the statute of limitations or any other defense. Bevers v. Park, 88 N. C. 456; Syme v. Riddle, 88 N. C. 463; Proctor v. Proctor, 105 N. C. 222, 10 S. E. 1036; Speer v. James, 94 N. C. 417, 418; Person v. Montgomery, 120 N. C. 111, 26 S. E. 645.

But if a judgment has been previously obtained for such debt the heirs or devisees are concluded thereby (except where fraud and collusion can be shown) and they cannot now plead any defense which could be, but was not plead by the representative. Long v. Oxford, 108 N. C. 280, 13 S. E. 112. See also, Woodlief v. Bragg, 108 N. C. 571, 13 S. E. 211; Lassiter v. Upchurch, 107 N. C. 411, 12 S. E. 63; Proctor v. Proctor, 105 N. C. 222, 10 S. E. 1036; Brittain v. Dickson, 104 N. C. 547, 10 S. E. 701; Smith v. Brown, 101 N. C. 347, 7 S. E. 890. (But see contra, Person v. Montgomery, 120 N. C. 111, 26 S. E. 645; apparently contra, Tilley v. Bivins, 112 N. C. 348, 16 S. E. 759.)

Even in such a case, however, the heirs or devisees may show that the personalty has not been administered, or remedies against representative's bond for devastavit have not been exhausted. Smith v. Brown, supra.

"May Apply to Superior Court, etc." — The phrase "may * * * apply to the superior court" as used in this section means "shall apply to the clerk of that court." Pelletier v. Saunders, 67 N. C. 261. It is the duty of the representative to apply. Clement v. Cozart, 109 N. C. 173, 13 S. E. 862. But the jurisdiction of the clerk is not exclusive. The order of sale may be obtained from the judge of the superior court. Johnson v. Futrell, 86 N. C. 122. Doubtful expression as to the soundness of this last announced rule is found in Moore v. Ingram, 91 N. C. 376; Creech v. Wilder, 212 N. C. 162, 193 S. E. 281.

"At Any Time."—The phrase "at any time" presupposes an application without undue delay. Pelletier v. Saunders, 67 N. C. 261; Clement v. Cozart, 109 N. C. 173, 13 S. E. 862; Creech v. Wilder, 212 N. C. 162, 193 S. E. 281.

Same — Homestead of Minors. — But the homestead of a minor child of a testator cannot be sold durante minoriate of such child. Bruton v. McRea, 125 N. C. 206, 34 S. E. 397; Hinsdale v. Williams, 75 N. C. 430. The child, however, who was made a party must have claimed homestead rights, otherwise he cannot subsequently claim as against the purchaser of the land. Dickens v. Long, 112 N. C. 311, 17 S. E. 150.

Proper Venue.—The proper venue to make the application provided by this section, is the superior court of the county where the land or some part thereof is situated. Ellis v. Adderton, 88 N. C. 472, 477.

County in Which Application Must Be Filed.—It is in the Superior Court of the county where the land or some part thereof lies, and not in the Superior Court of the county where the decedent was domiciled and administration granted, that the application for sale must be filed. Though formerly it could be filed in the county last referred to. Ellis v. Adderton, 88 N. C. 472, 477.

Removal to Proper County. — A petition filed in the wrong county may, upon application, be removed to the proper county. See Manufacturing Co. v. Brower, 105 N. C. 440, 11 S. E. 313.

Allotment of Dower in Lands in Another County.—Deceased died seized of lands lying in two counties, and an administrator, appointed in the county of his residence, instituted proceedings in the other county to sell lands to make assets. The widow appeared therein asking that the lands be sold subject to dower and averring that she would later institute proceedings for the allotment of dower by metes and bounds. The clerk, with the widow's consent, ordered that the widow's dower be allotted and that the remaining lands be sold to make assets, and a sheriff and jury from that county went into the county of deceased's residence and allotted dower by metes and bounds. It was held that the allotment was invalid, that the clerk of the other county was without authority to enter the order for the allotment of dower notwithstanding he had jurisdiction of the proceedings to sell lands to make assets, and might have ordered the lands sold subject to dower, that the only provisions of this section giving the clerk jurisdiction in regard to dower in lands outside his county was where the widow consents that the lands be sold clear of dower and that a certain part of the proceeds of sale be set apart to her in commutation of dower. High v. Pearce, 220 N. C. 266, 17 S. E. (2d) 108.

When Application Filed.—The application may be filed at any time after the administrator ascertains that there is an insufficiency of assets, even before he can possibly convert the personal estate into money and make an application of it to the debt. Blount v. Pritchard, 88 N. C. 445.

Notice to Creditors.—No notice to creditors is required to be given under this section. Thompson v. Cox, 53 N. C. 311.

Not Applicable to Executor Authorized to Sell. — The provisions of this section do not apply where the executor has, under the will, full power to sell the realty. It applies only to cases where otherwise the creditor would be compelled to resort to a scire facias against the heirs. Wiley v. Wiley, 61 N. C. 131.

Sale though Parties Not in Esse.—The application for sale may be made notwithstanding the existence of devises to parties not in esse. Carraway v. Lassiter, 139 N. C. 145, 51 S. E. 968.

Compulsory Sale by Judgment Creditor.—After the docketing of the judgment the judgment debtor conveyed the property. After the death of the judgment debtor, execution was issued, and the judgment creditor instituted this action to compel the sheriff to sell the land under the execution, the judgment debtor having left no estate, real or personal, and therefore no administrator having been appointed. Held: The execution issued after the death of the judgment debtor was not warranted by law, and a sale thereunder would be void. Flynn v. Rumley, 212 N. C. 25, 192 S. E. 868.

The Federal District Court has jurisdiction of a bill in equity by the United States to subject to payment of a judgment land situated in this state which had descended to the heirs of the judgment debtor, there being no personal assets. United States v. Minor, 254 Fed. 57.

Converting into Creditor's Suit. — When proceedings for the sale of land are instituted under this section by the representative, they cannot be converted into a creditor's suit. Brittain v. Dickson, 111 N. C. 529, 531, 16 S. E. 326.

Presumption of Regularity. — The regularity of the proceedings under this section will be presumed. Wadford v. Davis, 192 N. C. 484, 485, 135 S. E. 353.

Creditor Attacking Debt as Fraudulent. — A judgment creditor of a devisee desiring to attack a debt set forth in the petition to sell land as being fraudulent must do so in the same proceedings, and not by independent action. Wadford v. Davis, 192 N. C. 484, 135 S. E. 353.

Parties and Their Defenses. — In proceedings to sell land heirs and devisees are necessary parties. They may resist the sale by showing sufficient personal assets, or that the debts are not due by the estate. In such a case the usual course is to refer the matter for determination. Person v. Montgomery, 120 N. C. 111, 113, 26 S. E. 645.

Enforcement by Creditor.—It is only after the personal representative fails to perform his duty to sell the land under this section that the creditor can enforce the sale. Lee v. McKoy, 118 N. C. 518, 525, 24 S. E. 210.

Nature of Proceedings.—A proceeding to sell the land under this section is a special proceeding before the clerk who has original and exclusive jurisdiction of the matter. If, however, equities are involved in the case upon which the superior court acquires jurisdiction of a part, it will determine the whole matter. Baker v. Carter, 127 N. C. 92, 94, 37 S. E. 81.

Applied in Odom v. Palmer, 209 N. C. 93, 182 S. E. 741; Caffey v. Osborne, 210 N. C. 252, 186 S. E. 364; Toms v. Brown, 213 N. C. 295, 195 S. E. 781.

§ 28-82. When representatives authorized to rent, borrow or mortgage.—Such executor, administrator or collector, in lieu of asking for an order for the immediate sale of real estate, may ask for an order authorizing him to rent out the same for a term of not exceeding three years, and if it appears to the court that the best interests of the heirs at law and devisees of the deceased will be promoted by granting such order and that it is probable that the rents derived from the real estate during the term will be sufficient to pay off and discharge the debts and the costs of the administration, the superior court may, with the consent of the creditors, make such order upon such terms as may be best for the heirs at law, devisees and creditors of the estate; or if it is made to appear to the court that such executor, administrator or collector is able to borrow sufficient money with which to pay off and discharge all valid and just claims against the estate of the deceased, then the court shall have the power to authorize said executor or administrator to borrow money for the purpose of paying off and discharging such claims and authorizing him to rent the real estate for a term not exceeding three years and to apply the rents to the repayment of the money thus borrowed, and the said estate shall be and remain liable for the payment of such sums as may be borrowed under such order of the court to the same extent and no further as the estate was liable for the indebtedness of the deceased to pay off and discharge the debt for which the said sums were borrowed. All orders made by the court pursuant to this section shall be approved by the judge residing in or holding the courts of the district in which such county is situated.

In lieu of renting said property or borrowing on the general credit of the estate, as hereinbefore authorized, the said executor, or administrator, may apply by petition, verified by oath, to the Superior Court, showing that the interest of the beneficiaries of the estate, for which he is executor or administrator, would be materially promoted by mortgaging the said estate, in whole or in part to secure funds to be used for the benefit of said estate, setting out the application to be made of the proceeds of said loan and if all or a part of its creditors have agreed to accept an amount less than the full amount of their debt that fact shall appear, which proceeding shall be conducted as in other cases of special proceedings; and the truth of the matter alleged in the petition having been ascertained by satisfactory proof, a decree may thereupon be made that a mortgage be made by such executor, or administrator, in his representative capacity, in such way and on such terms as may be most advantageous to the interest of said estate: but no mortgage shall be made until approved by the judge of the court, nor shall the same be valid unless the order or decree therefor is confirmed and directed by the judge and the proceeds of the mortgage shall be exclusively applied and secured to such purposes and on such trusts as the judge shall specify: Provided, the proceeds from said sale shall be used exclusively for the discharge of all existing creditors, except such as shall file a writing in said cause agreeing to other terms set out in said writing.

The said executor or administrator shall not mortgage the property of said estate for a term of years in excess of the term fixed by the court in its decree. The word "mortgage" wherever used herein, shall be construed to include "deeds of trust." (Acts 1913, c. 49, s. 1; 1927, c. 222, s. 1; C. S. 75.)

Where an administrator, in good faith pending the mortgaging of property of the estate to pay debts, personally pays the debts of the estate, he is entitled to be subrogated to the rights of the creditors whose debts he had paid, and upon the execution of the mortgage, upon order of court, is entitled to repay himself from the proceeds of the loan. Caffey v. Osborne, 210 N. C. 252, 186 S. E. 364.

§ 28-83. Conveyance of lands by heirs within two years voidable; judicial sale for partition.—All conveyances of real property of any decedent made by any devisee or heir at law within two years of the death of the decedent shall be void as to the creditors, executors, administrators and collectors of such decedent, except as hereinafter provided, but such conveyances to bona fide purchasers for value and without notice, if made after two years from the death of the decedent, shall be valid even as against creditors: Provided, that if the decedent was a non-resident, such conveyances shall not be valid unless made after two years from the grant of letters. But such conveyances shall be valid, if made five years from the death of a non-resident decedent, notwithstanding no letters testamentary or letters of administration shall have been granted. Such conveyances, if made before the expiration of the time required by this section to have elapsed in order for same to be valid as against creditors, shall, upon the expiration of such time, become good and valid to the same effect as if made after the expiration of such time, unless in the meantime an action or proceeding shall have been instituted in the proper court to subject the land therein described to payment of the decedent's debts.

A judicial sale of real property of a decedent hereafter made under order of a court of competent jurisdiction for partition shall be valid as to creditors, executors, administrators and collectors of such decedent irrespective of the time made. If such sale is made within two years of death of such decedent or before the estate shall have been fully administered, the personal representative of such decedent must be joined as plaintiff or made a party defendant. The court shall in the order of confirmation of any sale made within two years of the death of a decedent set aside such part of the proceeds of sale representing the interest of such decedent for application upon the debts, if any, of the decedent by requiring payment of the same into the hands of such personal representative or of the court itself, to be held by such personal representative or the court subject to claims of creditors for a period of two years from date of death of decedent, or until such estate is fully administered. Personal representatives shall be allowed commissions on only so much of said proceeds of sale, so coming into their hands, as may be necessary to discharge the claims of creditors. (Rev., s. 70; Code, s. 1442; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 105; 1935, c. 355; 1939, c. 16; 1943, cc. 411, 763; C. S. 76.)

Editor's Note.—The amendment of 1935 made the limitation begin to run from the death of the decedent rather than from the grant of letters and added the proviso to the first sentence.

The 1939 amendment inserted the second sentence of the first paragraph. For comment on the 1939 amendatory act, see 17 N. C. L. Rev. 359.

The first 1943 amendment inserted in the first sentence the words "except as hereinafter provided." It also added the last sentence of the first paragraph. The amendatory act, which was ratified March 3, 1943, provided: "This act shall apply to conveyances heretofore made as well as to those hereafter made, except that conveyances heretofore made, if invalid at that time, shall not in any event become valid as against creditors until expiration of six months from the ratification of this act."

The second 1943 amendment added the second paragraph.

Many of the following cases were decided prior to the 1935 amendment which fact accounts for the references to two years from grant of letters rather than to two years from death of decedent.

Only Purchaser without Notice Protected. — Prior to 1869, a purchaser from the heirs after 2 years of the grant of letters, even though with notice of the existence of the debts, obtained a good title under this section. Brandon v. Phelps, 77 N. C. 44. It is noteworthy to observe that under the present section he must be a bona fide purchaser —without notice. Hooker v. Yellowley, 128 N. C. 297, 38 S. E. 889. For example actual notice of insolvency was held to invalidate purchaser's title. Arrington v. Arrington, 114 N. C. 151, 19 S. E. 351. But a judgment against the representative is not notice of insolvency. Id. Nor are proceedings for dower alleging insolvency such notice. Lee v. Giles, 161 N. C. 541, 77 S. E. 852.

Of course, even a purchaser with notice from a purchaser without notice shall be protected. Arrington v. Arrington, supra.

Heirs Liable for the Price. — The heirs having sold the land, even after 2 years of the grant of letters, are liable to the creditor for the price received, and for the whole price, not for aliquot shares of the debt. Hinton v. Whitehurst, 71 N. C. 66; Davis v. Perry, 96 N. C. 260, 1 S. E. 610; Andres v. Powell, 97 N. C. 155, 166, 2 S. E. 235.

Conditionally Void. — The conveyances under this section, are only conditionally void, i. e., contingent upon the personal estate proving insufficient to pay the debts. Davis v. Perry, 96 N. C. 260, 1 S. E. 610. See also First Nat. Bank v. Zollicoffer, 199 N. C. 620, 623, 155 S. E. 449.

Conveyances of real property within two years from the grant of letters are only void as to creditors and personal representatives, and as to them, only in case the personal assets are insufficient to pay the debts and costs of administration; they are not void—they never cease to operate as to the parties to them. Jefferson Standard Life Ins. Co. v. Buckner, 201 N. C. 78, 81, 159 S. E. 1. See also, Cox v. Wright, 218 N. C. 342, 11 S. E. (2d) 158.

Voidable Merely.—A conveyance to a purchaser not for value is not, under this section, ipso facto void, but at the most merely voidable. Gilbert v. Hopkins, 204 Fed. 196, 202.

Mortgage after Two Years Followed by Sale Is Valid. —Where an heir executed a deed of trust more than two years after the granting of letters testamentary, and it was foreclosed, and the purchaser at the sale transferred title to a bona fide purchaser who had no actual knowledge that the personal assets were insufficient to pay debts of the estate, it was held that the fact that it appeared from the records that the estate had not been settled does not amount to notice that the personalty was insufficient, and the purchaser was a bona fide purchaser without notice, and the land is not subject to sale. Johnson v. Barefoot, 208 N. C. 796, 182 S. E. 471.

Purchaser after, from a Purchaser before Two Years. — If the land is sold within the two years, and after the two years have expired resold by the vendee to a purchaser for value without notice, the latter gets good title. Murchison v. Whitted, 87 N. C. 465.

Agreement Consummated after Two Years.—An agreement by the heir for the sale of land, though entered into before the expiration of two years, if consummated after such time is valid as against creditors of the estate. Donoho v. Patterson, 70 N. C. 649.

To What Extent Purchaser Protected.—The purchaser for value contemplated by this section is, with respect to consideration paid by him, to be assimilated to a purchaser for value under the statute of 13 Eliz., viz.: he need not have paid all of the purchase money. The test of "purchaser for value" is not the same under this section with the test in certain equity cases where the purchaser is protected pro tanto, i. e., to the extent of his payment before he receives notice. Arrington v. Arrington, 114 N. C. 151, 166, 19 S. E. 351. Hence even a purchaser upon credit is a "purchaser for value." Arrington v. Arrington, supra; Beasley v. Bray, 98 N. C. 266, 3 S. E. 497.

Deed of trust creditor is a purchaser for value within the meaning of this section. Francis v. Reeves, 137 N. C. 269, 272, 49 S. E. 213.

A deed conveying the timber on the land descended falls within the purview of this section. Camp Mfg. Co. v. Liverman, 128 N. C. 52, 38 S. E. 27.

Admissibility of Evidence.—In proceeding for partition, defendants claimed sole seizin. The evidence tended to show that defendants' grantor owned an undivided interest in the locus in quo as tenant in common with her brother, that defendants' grantor was the sole heir at law of her brother and executed deed to defendants purporting to convey the entire tract of land less than two months after her brother's death. Plaintiff introduced in evidence testimony of the brother's administrator that he had sold the brother's interest in the land to make assets to pay debts of the estate, and offered in evidence court records of the summons, pleadings, judgment and confirmation, and deed executed by the commissioner to plaintiff in the proceeding to sell lands to make assets, and the judgment in plaintiff's favor against the estate of the brother. Held: Since a deed by an heir executed within two years of the intestate's death is ineffective as against creditors of intestate's estate, the record evidence, properly authenticated, was competent to prove plaintiff's title as tenant in common. Cox v. Wright, 218 N. C. 342, 11 S. E. (2d) 158.

§ 28-84. Conveyance by deceased in fraud of creditors.—The real estate subject to sale under this chapter shall include all the deceased may have conveyed with intent to defraud his creditors, and all rights of entry and rights of action and all other rights and interest in lands, tenements and hereditaments which he may devise, or by law would descend to his heirs: Provided, that lands so fraudulently conveyed shall not be taken from any one who purchased them for a valuable consideration and without a knowledge of the fraud. (Rev., s. 72; Code, s. 1446; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 51; C. S. 77.)

Cross References.—As to personalty see § 28-59. As to fraudulent conveyances, see § 39-15 et seq.

Conveyance Must Be by the Deceased.—Where A, being in embarrassed circumstances, purchased land from B, and caused B to convey to his (A's) son, it was held that the land could not be sold for the payment of A's debts. Rhem v. Tull, 35 N. C. 57.

Conveyance to Wife and Children. — Property conveyed by the decedent to his wife and children without consideration in fraud of his creditors while insolvent may, under this section, be recovered and sold by the administrator on behalf of the creditors. Webb v. Atkinson, 122 N. C. 683, 29 S. E. 949; Webb v. Atkinson, 124 N. C. 447, 32 S. E. 737.

Relation of Section 28-81 to This Section.—The provisions of this and section 28-81 hinge together. Hence a compliance with both is necessary. Clement v. Cozart, 107 N. C. 695, 697, 12 S. E. 254.

Conveyance Must Be in Fraud of Creditors. — Under this section lands conveyed cannot be sold unless it can be shown that they were conveyed in fraud of creditors. McCaskill v. Graham, 121 N. C. 190, 28 S. E. 264.

Innocent Purchasers Protected. — Under this section an administrator cannot be compelled to sell property fraudulently conveyed and in the hands of an innocent purchaser. Harrington v. Hatton, 129 N. C. 146, 39 S. E. 780.

Fraudulent Grantee's Rights as Creditor.—Where the wife is the fraudulent grantee and the creditor of her husband, in proceedings to set aside the conveyance to her, under this section, she is entitled to her pro rata claim out of the proceeds of the land the same as the other creditors are. Nadal v. Britton, 112 N. C. 188, 16 S. E. 915.

§ 28-85. Effect of bona fide purchase from fraudulent grantee.—When an executor, administrator or collector files his petition to sell lands which have been fraudulently conveyed, and of which there has been a subsequent bona fide sale, whereby he cannot have a decree of sale of the land, the court may give judgment in favor of such executor, administrator or collector for the value of the land, against all persons who may have fraudulently purchased the same; and if the whole recovery is not necessary to pay the debts and charges, the residue shall be restored to the person of whom the recovery was made. (Rev., s. 73; Code, s. 1447; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 52; C. S. 78.)

§ 28-86. Contents of petition for sale.—The petition, which must be verified by the oath of the applicant, shall set forth, as far as can be ascertained:

1. The amount of debts outstanding against the estate.

2. The value of the personal estate, and the application thereof.

3. A description of all the legal and equitable real estate of the decedent, with the estimated value of the respective portions or lots.

4. The names, ages and residences, if known, of the devisees and heirs at law of the decedent. (Rev., s. 77; Code, s. 1437; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 43; C. S. 79.)

The Purpose of Requisites in Application.—The personal estate, in law, is the primary fund and land is the secondary fund for the payment of debts, and the design of the act giving authority to the personal representative to sell and administer on the proceeds of lands in the requisites prescribed to a petition for a license to sell, evidently is to inform the Court of the condition of the estate with reference to its debts and the value and application of the personal estate, so that it may be seen that the personal estate is insufficient to pay the debts. If a petition be drawn in accordance with these requirements so as to show the insufficiency of the personal fund, the necessity to resort to the real estate to supply the deficiency will then be apparent. Shields v. McDowell, 82 N. C. 137, 138; Neighbors v. Evans, 210 N. C. 550, 187 S. E. 796. See also, Barkley v. Thomas, 220 N. C. 341, 346, 17 S. E. (2d) 482.

As the purpose of this section is to enable the court to see whether a sale is necessary, a petition which simply states that the personal estate "is wholly insufficient to pay intestate's debts," without setting forth the value of the personal estate, is defective. McNeill v. McBryde, 112 N. C. 408, 411, 16 S. E. 841.

A petition which simply states that the personal estate "is wholly insufficient to pay his (intestate's) debts and the costs and charges of administration," is deficient and fails to comply with this section. Barkley v. Thomas, 220 N. C. 341, 346, 17 S. E. (2d) 482.

Petition Should Set Forth Value of Personalty and Application Thereof.—In a proceeding to sell lands to make assets to pay debts of the estate, an averment that insufficient personalty remained in the hands of the petitioner to pay debts and legacies is insufficient and the petition is demurrable, since this section prescribed that the petition should set forth the value of the personal estate and the application thereof. Watson v. Peterson, 216 N. C. 343, 4 S. E. (2d) 881.

Statement "as Far as Can Be Ascertained."—The main and essential fact to be stated in the petition, is that there is an insufficiency of assets to pay the debts, and that the court may know this, the statute requires a statement of the amount of the debts and the value of the personal estate; but these statements are not required to be made with exact particularity, but only "as far as can be ascertained," for these quoted words used in this section, according to grammatical construction qualify each of the sub-divisions of this section. Blount v. Pritchard, 88 N. C. 446, 448.

Indebtedness Must Be Ascertained. — The fact that this section requires an oath to be made implies that the indebtedness ought to be ascertained, approximately at least, to show the necessity of a resort to the land. Williams v. McNair, 98 N. C. 332, 336, 4 S. E. 131, 133.

The petition must show by a direct allegation or by implication the requirements of this section. Clement v. Cozart, 107 N. C. 695, 697, 12 S. E. 254; Shields v. McDowell, 82 N. C. 137.

Burden of proof that the conveyance was fair and for a full consideration is upon the grantee. Webb v. Atkinson, 122 N. C. 683, 689, 29 S. E. 949.

Salable Interest.—Every interest in real estate, whether legal or equitable, is subject to sale. Mannix v. Ihrie, 76 N. C. 299; Waugh v. Blevins, 68 N. C. 167.

Only Debtor's Interest Subject to Sale.—Under this section only the interest of the deceased debtor in land which he may have conveyed in fraud of creditors, is subject to sale. Heck v. Williams, 79 N. C. 437; Egerton v. Jones, 107 N. C. 284, 290, 12 S. E. 434.

The petition need not show that the bond of the former administrator was sued on and exhausted. Monger v. Kelly, 115 N. C. 294, 20 S. E. 374. But see Lilly v. Wolley, 94 N. C. 412; Clement v. Cozart, 107 N. C. 695, 12 S. E. 254, which declare that such bond must have been exhausted.

Allegation that the assets of the decedent are insufficient to pay the debts, and that a sale of property fraudulently conveyed is necessary, is held sufficient. Sullivan v. Field, 118 N. C. 358, 24 S. E. 735.

A petition which fails to state the value of the personal estate and the application thereof is defective and demurrable. McNeill v. McBryde, 112 N. C. 408, 16 S. E. 841. See Blount v. Pritchard, 88 N. C. 445, where it is said that license may be granted even where there has been no application of the personalty, though where there has been an application the petition must so state.

Verification of Application.—In Stradley v. King, 84 N. C. 635, where the application for the sale of land was not verified by the administrator's oath, and the guardian for the infant defendant had not answered, the court said with regard to verification: "While we consider the statutory requirement that the petition for an order of sale of the decedent's lands shall be supported by oath and that an answer be put in on behalf of infant defendants, directory, and its nonobservance not fatal to the validity of the decree of sale made without, yet this departure from the statute, followed by the precipitate action of the Court in confirming the sale on the very day when it was reported and without opportunity afforded for objection, in our opinion warrants the order which reopens the case for such defenses as the infant defendants may be able to set up."

§ 28-87. Heirs and devisees necessary parties.—No order to sell real estate shall be granted till the heirs or devisees of the decedent have been made parties to the proceeding, by service of summons, either personally or by publication, as required by law: Provided, that in any proceedings for the sale of land to make assets, when there are heirs of said decedent, or there may be heirs of said decedent whose names and residences are unknown, and it is desired to make all unknown heirs of said decedent parties to said proceedings, and the personal representative shall make such representation in his petition, then all unknown heirs of the said decedent shall be made parties defendant in the same as the unknown heirs of said decedent naming him, and as thus denominated and under this name all said unknown heirs shall be served with summons by publication as now regularly provided by law for the service of summons by publication in the Superior Court, and upon such service being had, the court shall appoint some discreet person as guardian ad litem, for said unknown heirs, and summons shall issue to him as such. Said guardian ad litem shall file answer for said unknown heirs, and defend for them, and he may be paid such sum as the court may fix, to be paid as other costs out of the estate. Upon the filing of the answer by said guardian ad litem, all said unknown heirs shall be before the court for the purposes of the action to the same extent as if each had been served with summons by name, and any claim that they may make to said real estate so sold shall be transferred to the funds in the hands of the personal representative to the same extent as other distributees of said estate and no further. This proviso shall apply to actions now pending, and all proceedings to sell land for assets heretofore had, where unknown heirs have been summoned by publication, are hereby validated. (Rev., s. 74; Code, s. 1438, 1868-9, c. 113, s. 44; Ex. Sess. 1924, c. 3, s. 1; C. S. 80.)

Cross Reference.—As to joinder of beneficiary when the executor or administrator institutes an action, see § 1-63.

Editor's Note.—The proviso with regard to method of service of process upon unknown heirs, and the appointment of guardian ad litem to represent them, was introduced by the amendment of 1924, ch. 3, sec. 1.

"It has been held by the Supreme Court that generally the designation of the parties to an action as 'the heirs of M.' is insufficient. (Kerlee v. Corpening (1887), 97 N. C. 330, 2 S. E. 664.) Provision has been made for the joinder of unknown parties in a special proceeding for partition, (C. S., secs. 3218, 3245 [now G. S. §§ 46-6, 46-34]; Thompson v. Rospigliosi (1913), 162 N. C. 145, 77 S. E. 113), and for the sale of estates subject to contingent interest, (C. S., sec. 1744 [now G. S. § 41-11]; Ryder v. Oates (1917), 173 N. C. 569, 92 S. E. 508) and this amendment makes the same practice apply in the sale of land for assets. The Code of Civil Procedure provides for the service of summons by publication upon unknown parties who are interested in real estate as the subject of a civil action, and in actions to foreclose mortgages on real estate; (C. S., sec. 484 [now G. S. § 1-98] 6, 7) and the same rules of procedure apply in special proceedings; (C. S., sec. 752 [now G. S. § 1-393]) so that the case of unknown parties seems to be provided for under the general law. It places the question beyond controversy, however, to have it specially provided for in the cases mentioned." 3 N. C. L. R. 15.

All Heirs Necessary Parties.—An heir who was not made a party, or served, may subsequently assail the validity of the decree and proceed against the purchaser. Dickens v. Long, 109 N. C. 165, 13 S. E. 841. See also, Webb v. Atkinson, 122 N. C. 683, 29 S. E. 949.

As to him, whether he be an adult or an infant, the decree is absolutely void, not merely voidable, and can be collaterally attacked. Card v. Finch, 142 N. C. 140, 54 S. E. 1009. Harrison v. Harrison, 106 N. C. 282, 11 S. E. 356. Nor would the fact that he had knowledge of the sale and took no steps to prevent cure the lack of service. Id.

Applies to Infant Parties as Well.—This section applies to making heirs and devisees parties, whether infants or adults. Perry v. Adams, 98 N. C. 167, 3 S. E. 729; Stancill v. Gay, 92 N. C. 462; Harrison v. Harrison, 106 N. C. 282, 283, 11 S. E. 356.

Cited in Barkley v. Thomas, 220 N. C. 341, 17 S. E. (2d) 482.

§ 28-88. Adverse claimant to be heard.—When the land, which is sought to be sold, is claimed by another person under any pretense whatsoever, such claimant shall be admitted to be heard as a party to the proceeding, upon affidavit of his claim, and if the issue be found for the petitioner he shall have his writ of possession and order of sale accordingly. (Rev., s. 76; Code, s. 1441; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 47; C. S. 81.)

Issue as to Title.—Where the order of sale is granted without determining an issue of title raised under this section, the order is void, and the title of the purchaser with notice of such issue is voidable. Perry v. Peterson, 98 N. C. 63, 3 S. E. 834.

Any person who claims to be the owner of the land has the right to be made a party and to have an inquiry made as to his title. Gibson v. Pitts, 69 N. C. 155.

Claims of Undivided Interest.—One who claims an undivided interest in lands sought to be sold to pay debts, may be properly made a party to the proceedings. McKeel v. Holloman, 163 N. C. 132, 79 S. E. 445.

§ 28-89. Upon issues joined, transferred to term.—When an issue of law or fact is joined between the parties, the course of the procedure shall be as prescribed in such cases for other special proceedings. (Rev., s. 78; Code, s. 1440; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 46; C. S. 82.)

Issue of Law Submitted to Judge.—Where a demurrer is filed to the petition filed before the clerk, the issue of law thereby raised must, under this section, be certified to the judge at chambers. Then the judge must transmit his decision thereon to the clerk; it is error for him to direct an order of sale after overruling the demurrer. Jones v. Hemphill, 77 N. C. 42.

Procedure.—The rulings or decisions of the clerk must be transferred for trial to the next succeeding term of the Superior Court, if determinative issues arise on the pleadings; and if there be issues of law or material questions of fact decided by the clerk, they may be reviewed by the judge at term or in chambers, or appeal taken. In passing upon these questions of fact, the court may act on the evidence already received, or may require the production of other evidence. Mills v. McDaniel, 161 N. C. 112, 76 S. E. 551.

§ 28-90. Order granted, if petition not denied.—As soon as all proper parties are made to the proceeding, the clerk of the superior court before whom it is instituted, if the allegations in the petition are not denied or controverted, shall have power to hear the same summarily, and to decree a sale. (Rev., s. 79; Code, s. 1443; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 48; C. S. 83.)

Capacity of the Clerk.—The clerk of the Superior Court, for the purpose of decreeing a sale in case provided by this section represents and is the court, and has authority to exercise the discretionary powers conferred. Tillett v. Aydlett, 90 N. C. 551, 553.

§ 28-91. Notice of sale as on execution.—Notice of sale under this proceeding shall be the same as for the sale of real estate by sheriffs on execution: Provided, however, that in case a re-sale of such real property shall become necessary under such proceeding, that such real property shall then be re-sold only after notice of re-sale has been duly posted at the courthouse door in the county for fifteen days immediately preceding the re-sale and also published at any time during such fifteen day period once a week for two successive weeks of not less than eight days in some newspaper published in the county, if a newspaper is published in the county, but if there be no newspaper published in said county the notice of re-sale must be posted at the courthouse door and three other public places in the county for fifteen days immediately preceding the re-sale. (Rev., s. 81; Code, s. 1445; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 50; 1933, c. 187; C. S. 84.)

Cross Reference.—For execution sales, see § 1-325 et seq.

Editor's Note.—All of the proviso, now appearing in this section, was added by Public Laws 1933, c. 187.

§ 28-92. Court fixes terms of sale; title on confirmation.—The court may decree a sale of the whole or any specified parcel of the premises in such a manner, as to size of lots, place of sale, terms of credit, and security for payment of purchase money, as may be most advantageous to the estate, and may also authorize and empower the petitioner or any commissioner appointed by the court to subdivide the land in question, or any part thereof, in such manner as he may deem proper and for the best interest of the estate, and in making such division, to dedicate to the public such parts thereof as he may find necessary for public streets, alleys, and highways, and to sell such premises, either in bulk or in separate lots, with such streets, alleys, and highways excepted or reserved; but no sale, whether public or private, shall be concluded until reported to and approved and confirmed by the court. When any order for a public sale hereunder has been made or may hereafter be made by the court and the personal representative of a decedent, a commissioner or any other person is or has been appointed by the court to make such sale the provisions of § 45-28 shall apply and the provisions of § 1-404 shall not apply. Upon the coming in of the report of the sale and the confirmation thereof, title shall be made by such person, and at such time as the court may prescribe, and in all cases where the persons in possession have been made parties to the proceeding, the court may grant an order for possession. (Rev., s. 80; Code, s. 1444; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 49; 1917, c. 127, s. 1; 1935, c. 72; C. S. 85.)

Editor's Note.—The 1935 amendment inserted the next to the last sentence of the section relating to the nonapplicability of section 1-404.

Discretion. — This section confers upon the court a large power of discretion; but this discretion as to the quantity to be sold and the manner of selling is not an arbitrary one, but a sound legal discretion. Tillett v. Aydlett, 90 N. C. 551; Tillett v. Aydlett, 93 N. C. 15.

When Entitled to Possession.—The purchaser is not entitled to an order for possession if the defendants are not in possession when the order of sale is made. Marcom v. Wyatt, 117 N. C. 129, 23 S. E. 169.

Confirmation Necessary.—Before a purchaser at a judicial sale can be held to his bid, the sale must be confirmed by the court, and then in the same proceedings a rule issued to show cause why he should not be compelled to comply with his bid. An independent action for damages does not lie against him. Hudson v. Coble, 97 N. C. 260, 1 S. E. 688.

Conversely, the purchaser acquires no rights under such sale until confirmation—until then he being considered as a mere proposer. The bid may be rejected in the sound discretion of the court at any time before confirmation. Harrell v. Blythe, 140 N. C. 415, 53 S. E. 232.

Confirmation of the sale is a condition precedent to the exercise of the executor's right to convey title. Joyner v. Futrell, 136 N. C. 301, 47 S. E. 649.

Confirmation is also necessary to divest the title out of the party applying for the order of sale, and to validate the commissioner's deed to the purchaser. Foushee v. Durham, 84 N. C. 56.

Inadequacy of the bid or its being for the benefit of the administrator, warrants the exercise of the discretion to reject the bid. Harrell v. Blythe, 140 N. C. 415, 53 S. E. 232; Shearin v. Hunter, 72 N. C. 493.

After Confirmation.—After the confirmation of the sale, however, the jurisdiction of the court is at an end, and the biddings under such sale may not be opened. Thompson v. Cox, 53 N. C. 311, 312. Nor can the order to collect and make title be revoked. Evans v. Singletary, 63 N. C. 205.

Nor can the decree be collaterally attacked after confirmation of the sale; for it then becomes final and can only be assailed, in the absence of substantial irregularity, in a direct and independent proceeding. McLaurin v. McLaurin, 106 N. C. 331, 10 S. E. 1056; Coffin v. Cook, 106 N. C. 376, 11 S. E. 371.

Unsigned Decree of Sale.—It is not essential to the validity of the decree that it should be signed. Sledge v. Elliott, 116 N. C. 712, 21 S. E. 797.

Decree Not Conclusive of Debts.—The decree of the sale is not conclusive of the debts recited by the personal representative in his application for the sale of the land. Latta v. Russ, 53 N. C. 111.

Setting Aside Decree and Confirmation.—A decree and confirmation of sale will not be set aside as against bona fide purchasers, at the instance of infant heirs not served with process, if not made within a reasonable time, and in the absence of a valid defense to the sale. Glisson v. Glisson, 153 N. C. 185, 69 S. E. 55.

After decree of sale and the confirmation the judgment is final and can only be set aside in a direct proceeding for that purpose. Smith v. Gray, 116 N. C. 311, 21 S. E. 200.

Recital of Authority in the Deed.—When the representative exercises the power of sale conferred under an order of the court, but fails to recite in the deed the source of his authority, the implication is that he exercised the power so conferred. Coffin v. Cook, 106 N. C. 376, 11 S. E. 371.

§ 28-93. Court may order private sale; terms; sale reopened.—If it is made to appear to the court by petition and by satisfactory proof that it will be more for the interest of said estate to sell such real estate by private sale, the court may authorize said petitioner, or any commissioner appointed by the court, to sell the same at private sale, either in whole or in part, for cash in hand, or upon deferred payments, with interest from date of sale, in such a manner as to size of lots, place of sale, terms of credit and security for payment of purchase money as shall be fixed in the order of sale, and if upon a time sale the deferred payments to be secured by mortgage or deed of trust upon the property, or by the retention of the title thereto until the purchase money is paid. When any order for private sale has been or may hereafter be made by any superior court of the state, the provisions of § 45-28, not inconsistent with this section shall apply; and the court may also, upon motion of any person interested in the proceeds of such sale, filed in writing within ten days from the date and report of said sale, together with satisfactory proof that said real property has not been sold for its real value, require the sale to be reopened, and thereupon the court may issue an order for the sale of such premises at public sale, as required by § 45-28, and in such order the court may require such premises to be sold in such parcels and on such terms as to the court may seem most advantageous to the estate. All sales of land conducted prior to February 10, 1927 under authority of this section in which the deferred payments were extended over a period longer than two years, are hereby validated. (1917, c. 127, s. 2; 1927, c. 16; C. S. 86.)

Cross References.—See annotations under § 28-92. As to proceeds of realty sold to pay debts, see §§ 28-57 and 28-58.

Editor's Note. — The Public Laws of 1927 c. 16, omitted from this section the restriction limiting deferred payments to a period of two years, and added certain provisions as to the manner of sale.

Resale.—In a special proceeding by an administrator to sell land to make assets to pay debts whether the bid be raised under authority of this section and § 45-28, or motion be made by a party interested in the proceeds for an order of resale under this section only, it is clear that a private sale is open to either course for ten days from the date and report of sale. During that period the bidder acquires no right of possession or title. He is merely a preferred bidder. Howard v. Ray, 222 N. C. 710, 24 S. E. (2d) 529.

§ 28-94. Undevised realty first sold.—When any part of the real estate of the testator descends to his heirs by reason of its not being devised or disposed of by the will, such undevised real estate shall be first chargeable with payment of debts, in exoneration, as far as it will go, of the real estate that is devised, unless from the will it appears otherwise to be the wish of the testator. (Rev., s. 69; Code, s. 1430; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 39; C. S. 87.)

Cross Reference.—As to proceeds of realty sold to pay debts, see §§ 28-57 and 28-58.

Will Not Be Disturbed.—By virtue of this section a decree for the sale of the land should direct a sale in such a way as to disturb as little as practicable the will of the testator. Tillett v. Aydlett, 90 N. C. 551, 553.

Principle applied in Camp Mfg. Co. v. Liverman, 123 N. C. 7, 31 S. E. 346.

§ 28-95. Specifically devised realty; contribution.—If, upon the hearing of any petition for the sale of real estate to pay debts, under this chapter, the court decrees a sale of any part that may have been specifically devised, the devisee shall be entitled to contribution from other devisees, according to the principles of equity in respect to contribution among legatees. And the children and issue provided for in this chapter shall be regarded as specific devisees in such contribution. (Rev., s. 86; Code, s. 1535; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 107; C. S. 88.)

Cited in Anderson v. Bridgers, 209 N. C. 456, 184 S. E. 78.

§ 28-96. Under power in will, sales public or private.—Sales of real property made pursuant to authority given by will, unless the will otherwise directs, may be public or private, and on such terms as, in the opinion of the executor, are most advantageous to those interested therein. (Rev., s. 84; Code, s. 1503; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 75; C. S. 89.)

§ 28-97. Where executor with power dies, power executed by survivor, etc.—When any or all of the executors of a person making a will of lands to be sold by his executors die, fail or for any cause refuse to take upon them the administration; or, after having qualified, shall die, resign, or for any cause be removed from the position of executor; or when there is no executor named in a will devising lands to be sold, in every such case such executor or executors as survive or retain the burden of administration, or the administrator with the will annexed, or the administrator de bonis non, may sell and convey such lands; and all such conveyances which have been or shall be made by such executors or administrators shall be effectual to convey the title to the purchaser of the estate so devised to be sold. (Rev., s. 82; Code, s. 1493; 1889, c. 461; C. S. 90.)

Effect of Section on Common Law Rule.—At common law an executor had no control over realty, and hence a power conferred upon him by the will to sell the realty did not pass upon his death to the administrator d. b. n. c. t. a. But this section has changed the common law rule in this respect. Creech v. Grainger, 106 N. C. 213, 219, 10 S. E. 1032.

Sale by Administrator c. t. a.—The case of an administration with the will annexed where no executors were appointed is (at present) both within the letter and the spirit of this section. Hence where a testator empowers his executor to sell lands, but fails to designate any executor, the administrator c. t. a. can, under this section exercise that right. Hester v. Hester, 37 N. C. 330, 339.

Upon the death or removal of the executors named in the will, the administrator c. t. a. succeeds to all rights, powers and duties of the executors, and he may exercise all powers of sale granted the executors by the will regardless of whether they are given the executor virtute officii or nominatim, unless the language of the will definitely limits the exercise of the power of sale to the person named executor or unless the executor is made the donee of a special trust, given by reason only of peculiar or special confidence in him, and the mere appointment of an executor and the granting of power to him to sell real estate in his discretion, although evidencing confidence, does not necessarily constitute him the donee of a special trust so as to preclude the exercise of the power of sale by the administrator c. t. a. Wachovia Bank, etc., Co. v. King Drug Co., 217 N. C. 502, 8 S. E. (2d) 593.

Waiving Condition of Option.—Under this section, one of the two executors may not, in the absence of express power, waive the condition of time of an option given by them for the purchase of lands. Trogden v. Williams, 144 N. C. 192, 204, 56 S. E. 865.

It will be presumed that a will is executed in contemplation of the statutes providing that an administrator c. t. a. succeeds to all the rights, powers and duties of the executor. Wachovia Bank, etc., Co. v. King Drug Co., 217 N. C. 502, 8 S. E. (2d) 593.

Applied to sale by administrator c. t. a., and administrator d. b. n. c. t. a. in Saunders v. Saunders, 108 N. C. 327, 331, 12 S. E. 909; Orrender v. Call, 101 N. C. 399, 7 S. E. 878. Applied to sale by surviving executor in Simpson v. Simpson, 93 N. C. 373.

§ 28-98. Death of vendor under contract; representative to convey.—When any deceased person has bona fide sold any lands, and has given a bond or other written contract to the purchaser to convey the same, and the bond or other written contract has been duly proved and registered in the county where the lands are situated, if within the state, or, if not in the state, shall be proved before the clerk of the superior court and registered in the county where the obligee lives or obligor died, his executor, administrator or collector may execute a deed to the purchaser conveying such estate as shall be specified in the bond or other written contract; and such deed shall convey the title as fully as if it had been executed by the deceased obligor: Provided, that no deed shall be made but upon payment of the price, if that be the condition of the bond or other written contract. (Rev., s. 83; Code, s. 1492; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 65; 1874-5, c. 251; C. S. 91.)

Editor's Note.—Before the enactment of this section, the heirs of the vendor were the proper persons on whom the purchaser had the right to call for the conveyance. See Earle v. McDowell, 12 N. C. 16. Osborne v. McMillan, 50 N. C. 109; Twitty v. Lovelace, 97 N. C. 54, 2 S. E. 661.

Formerly this section applied only to cases where the vendor had executed a bond. It did not extend to agreements to convey made upon other considerations. Hodges v. Hodges, 22 N. C. 72.

Registration and Payment Prerequisites.—Unless the contract for the sale is proved and registered and the purchase money is paid in full, a deed made by the representative is inoperative. Taylor v. Hargrove, 101 N. C. 145, 7 S. E. 647.

Not Applicable to Restore Lost Deeds.—This section does not apply to cases where a deed is executed in performance of the condition of the bond to convey, but is lost after the death of the vendor and before its registration. Hodges v. Hodges, 22 N. C. 72.

Equitable Defense Against Bond.—Where the representative in compliance with this section executes the deed to the purchaser, any equitable defense against the bond may be set up against such deed. McCraw v. Gwin, 42 N. C. 55.

Remedy of Heirs for Purchase Money. — It was formerly held that the heirs may not enjoin the representative from making a deed, upon the ground that the purchase money had not been paid. Their remedy is to call the representative to account for the money, or call for specific performance of the contract. White v. Hooper, 59 N. C. 152, 154. (But now see the proviso at the end of section.)

Showing of Consideration.—The person claiming under the contract must, under this section, show that there was a valuable consideration therefor, and such other circumstances as would be equivalent to a payment of that consideration. Lindsay v. Coble, 37 N. C. 602.

Heirs as Necessary Parties.—In an action brought by the personal representative of an obligor in a bond for title to subject the land to the payment of the purchase money, the heirs of the obligor are necessary parties. But if the bond referred to in this section is proved and registered and the section has been complied with, in proceedings for the sale of such land, the presence of the heirs is perhaps not necessary. Grubb v. Lookabill, 100 N. C. 271, 6 S. E. 390.

Bilateral Contracts Contemplated. — This section contemplates only contracts of conveyance of a bilateral nature. Hence where the optionee of a vendor dies before the option is exercised the representative has, under this section, no power to convey; and the optionee's remedy is against the heir or the devisees. Mizell v. Dennis Simmons Lumber Co., 174 N. C. 68, 93 S. E. 436.

Warranty of Title. — This section empowers the representative to convey only such interest as the vendor could sell. Hence where the vendor contracts to sell his interest in the land, the representative cannot be expected to warrant the title of the land. Twitty v. Lovelace, 97 N. C. 54, 2 S. E. 661.

Deed Inoperative.—A deed executed by the representative before the contract for sale has been proven and registered and the purchase money paid in full, is inoperative. Taylor v. Hargrove, 101 N. C. 145, 7 S. E. 647.

Cited in Sears v. Braswell, 197 N. C. 515, 149 S. E. 846.

§ 28-99. Title in representative for estate; he or successor to convey.—When land is conveyed to a personal representative for the benefit of the estate he represents, he may sell and convey same upon such terms as he may deem just and for the advantage of said estate; which sale shall be public, after due advertisement, as for judicial sales, unless the conveyance is made to the party entitled to the proceeds. If such land is not conveyed by such personal representative during his life or term of office, his successor may sell and convey such land as if the title had been made to him: Provided, if the predecessor has contracted in writing to sell said lands, but fails to convey same, his successor in office may do so upon payment of the purchase price. (Rev., s. 71; 1905, c. 342; C. S. 92.)

§ 28-100. Sales of realty devised upon contingent remainder, executory devise or other limitation validated.—In all cases where real property devised upon contingent remainder, executory devise, or other limitation, shall have been sold and conveyed for a fair price in good faith by the executor named in said will, or by an administrator with the will annexed, for the purpose of making assets with which to pay the debts of said estate, under the mistaken belief that said will authorized such sale, and the proceeds of such sale shall have been applied to the payment of the indebtedness of such estate, and it shall be made to appear in any action brought by the purchaser of said land, or those claiming under such purchaser, that such executor, or other personal representative would have been entitled in a proper proceeding brought for that purpose to an order of court to sell said land for the purpose of making assets with which to pay the indebtedness of such estate, then such sale so made by such executor, or other representative, shall be valid and binding upon all such contingent remaindermen, executory devisees, or other person, who would have taken such property under said will upon the contingency or contingencies therein mentioned, notwithstanding said sale shall have been made by such executor or other personal representative without obtaining such order of the court. And in any such action instituted by the purchaser of such land, or those claiming under him, for the purpose of removing a cloud from the title thereto all contingent remaindermen, executory devisees, or other persons entitled to claim under any limitation in said will, if in being, and known to be residents of this state, shall be made parties defendant to such action, and served with summons as in other civil actions; all nonresidents, or persons whose names and residences are unknown, shall be served with summons by publication as now required by law, or such service in lieu of publication as now provided by law. In cases where the contingent remainder, executory devise, or other limitation will, or may, go to minors, or persons under other disabilities, or to persons not in being, or whose names and residences are not known, or who may in any contingency become interested in said land, but because of such contingency cannot be ascertained, the judge of the superior court shall, in any such action brought for the purpose aforesaid, after due inquiry of persons who are in no way interested in or connected with such proceedings, designate and appoint some discreet person as guardian ad litem to represent such contingent remaindermen, or executory devisees, upon whom summons shall be served in such action as provided by law for other guardians ad litem, and it shall be the duty of such guardian ad litem to defend such action, and when counsel is needed to represent him, to make this known to the judge, who shall by an order give instructions as to the employment of counsel and the payment of fees. And all contingent remaindermen, executory devisees, or other persons, who may be entitled to claim a contingent interest in said land, whether known or unknown, in being or not in being, shall be conclusively bound by any final judgment entered in such action, if made parties thereto, and represented therein in the manner hereinbefore provided: Provided, however, that this law shall not apply to any sale of land made in which the executor or other personal representative shall have been either directly or indirectly the purchaser thereof. (1923, c. 70, s. 1; C. S. 92(a).)

Editor's Note.—This section is confined in application to sales occurring prior to January 1, 1925. See § 28-102.

For a review of this act in the North Carolina Law Review, see 1 N. C. L. R. 315.

Validity, Operation and Effect. — This statute is curative and retrospective, and is constitutional, legal, and does not interfere with or destroy vested rights. A retrospective law, as in the case of this statute, curing defects in acts that have been done, or authorizing or confirming the exercise of powers, is valid in those cases in which the Legislature originally had authority to confer the power or to authorize the act. Charlotte Consol. Const. Co. v. Brockenbrough, 187 N. C. 65, 77, 121 S. E. 7.

§ 28-101. Presumption; burden of proof. — Where the purchaser of any lands made under the circumstances narrated in § 28-100, or any person holding or claiming the same under or through such purchaser, shall have been in the peaceable possession thereof for more than twenty years without any adverse claim having been asserted to the same by any person claiming under such will, and the records of the administration of the said estate do not affirmatively show what disposition has been made of the proceeds of the sale of such land, then it shall be presumed, prima facie, that the proceeds of the sale of the said land have been applied to the payment of the necessary indebtedness of the said estate and the cost of the administration thereof, and the burden of proof to the contrary shall be upon the defendants in said action. (1923, c. 70, s. 2; C. S. 92(b).)

Cross Reference.—See note under § 28-100.

Editor's Note.—This section is confined in application to sales occurring prior to January 1, 1925. See § 28-102.

§ 28-102. Application of sections 28-100 and 28-101.—Sections 28-100 and 28-101 shall apply only to sales of lands made under the circumstances narrated in those sections, occurring prior to January 1, 1925. (1923, c. 70, s. 3; 1925, c. 48; C. S. 92(c).)

Cross Reference.—See note under § 28-100.

Editor's Note. — Prior to the act of 1925, ch. 48, the application of the two preceding sections was confined to sales occurring prior to February 24, 1923.

§ 28-103. Validation of certain bona fide sales of real estate to pay debts made without order of court.—In all cases where sales of real estate have been made by administrators of deceased persons, in good faith and upon a valuable consideration, to obtain assets to pay debts of the estate, and deeds have been executed by such administrators to the purchasers, who have paid the purchase price thereof, and no action has been taken by the heirs of such deceased persons to annul such sales by litigation or otherwise, such sales are hereby validated. The recitals contained in such a deed that the sale was made under order or license of the court for the purpose of obtaining assets to pay debts of the estate and that the proceeds of sale of said land have been applied to the payment of the necessary indebtedness of the estate and the cost of administration thereof shall be presumed to be prima facie correct: Provided, however, that this section shall not apply to any sale of land in which the administrator of such deceased person shall have been directly or indirectly the purchaser thereof, and nothing herein shall prevent such sale from being impeached for fraud.

This section shall only apply to sales by administrators made prior to January 1, 1920. (1931, c. 146; 1935, c. 31.)

Editor's Note.—This Act became effective March 21, 1931. By the amendment of 1935, the section was made applicable to sales prior to 1920 rather than prior to 1900, as formerly provided.

As stated in 9 N. C. L. Rev. 404, the preamble of the act indicates that it is to apply where no order of court was obtained or where the court proceedings authorizing and confirming the sales have been lost without being recorded. As to its constitutionality against the charge of disturbing vested rights, see Charlotte Consol. Const. Co. v. Brockenbrough, 187 N. C. 65, 121 S. E. 7. As to validation of sales of real estate devised upon limitation made prior to January 1, 1925, see §§ 28-100 to 28-102.

§ 28-104. Validation of sales of realty by administrators d. b. n. of deceased trustees.—In all cases, prior to January first, nineteen hundred thirty-one, where a sale of real estate has been made by an administrator de bonis non of a deceased trustee in a deed in trust, and such administrator de bonis non advertised and conducted such sale prior to his qualification as administrator de bonis non of the deceased trustee, but qualified as such before the execution of the trustee's deed made pursuant to such sale, said sale and deed shall be valid and as effectual as though such advertisement and sale had occurred after the qualification of such administrator de bonis non. (1935, c. 381.)

Art. 15. Proof and Payment of Debts of Decedent.

§ 28-105. Order of payment of debts. — The debts of the decedent must be paid in the following order:

The intention of the Legislature is that the assets of a decedent shall be administered, as far as may be done, in one proceeding upon proper safeguards, for the benefit of all the creditors. Atkinson v. Ricks, 140 N. C. 418, 421, 53 S. E. 230.

Design of Section.—This section was only designed to recognize priorities among the creditors of the deceased and to establish the order of payment between claimants who have valid debts against the deceased. It was never intended to create a liability which did not otherwise exist. Bower v. Daugherty, 168 N. C. 242, 84 S. E. 265.

Recognizing priority of classes, this section provides for the administration of assets for the benefit of all the creditors according to definite and established rules. Farmville Oil, etc., Co. v. Bourne, 205 N. C. 337, 339, 171 S. E. 368.

Strict Construction. — This section being in derogation of the equity of a pro rata distribution, should be strictly construed so as not to confer a priority over other creditors unless clearly called for. Baker v. Dawson, 131 N. C. 227, 228, 42 S. E. 588; Park View Hospital Ass'n v. Peoples Bank, 211 N. C. 244, 189 S. E. 766.

Section Construed to Favor Bankruptcy Rule.—Upon the death of an obligor the administration laws step in and determine the settlement of his estate. These have heretofore been construed by the supreme court to favor the bankruptcy rule. Thus a secured creditor is required to exhaust his security and then prove his claim for any balance still remaining or unpaid. Rierson v. Hanson, 211 N. C. 203, 205. 189 S. E. 502.

If decedent's estate be not sufficient to pay his debts in full, then they are to be paid in classes, with those of the last class, if and when reached, sharing ratably in what is left. Rigsbee v. Brogden, 209 N. C. 510, 512, 184 S. E. 24, citing Farmville Oil, etc., Co. v. Bourne, 205 N. C. 337, 171 S. E. 368; First Security Trust Co. v. Lentz, 196 N. C. 398, 145 S. E. 776; Murchison v. Williams, 71 N. C. 135.

The fees of a referee taxed against an administrator are not a preferred debt under this section. Cobb v. Rhea, 137 N. C. 295, 49 S. E. 161.

This section creates no preference for payment on bank stock out of the assets of the estate of a deceased stockholder and none results from the application of the pertinent principles of equity. Hood v. Darden, 206 N. C. 566, 174 S. E. 460.

Duty of Representative. — To carry out the order designated by this section is a duty of the representative. State v. Oliver, 104 N. C. 467, 10 S. E. 709.

Testator Can Not Change Statutory Priority.—A testator may not so dispose of his estate as to avoid the payment of his debts in accordance with the priorities fixed by this section. First Security Trust Co. v. Lentz, 196 N. C. 398, 145 S. E. 776.

First class. Debts which by law have a specific lien on property to an amount not exceeding the value of such property.

A deed of trust executed to secure a debt which by law had a specific lien on property, as provided by the first class, has priority over the payment of taxes provided for eo nomine in the third subdivision of the statute. Farmville Oil, etc., Co. v. Bourne, 205 N. C. 337, 339, 171 S. E. 368.

The lien of a docketed judgment, which is eo nomine put in the fifth class, is not such a "specific lien on property," unless made so by its terms, as to come within the first class mentioned in the statute. Stewart v. Doar, 205 N. C. 37, 38, 169 S. E. 804.

Applied in State v. Oliver, 104 N. C. 467, 10 S. E. 709.

Second class. Funeral expenses.

Editor's Note. — The burial expenses, from the nature of things, are not an indebtedness of the deceased, for they accrue after his death; nor are they cost of administration. Yet from necessity they are chargeable upon the assets in preference to other claims hereinafter enumerated, both at common law and under our statute.

Expenses of Debtor Only. — The funeral and medical expenses referred to in this subdivision and subdivision 6 mean those of the debtor, and not of his wife, child or tenants. Baker v. Dawson, 131 N. C. 227, 42 S. E. 588.

See subsequent case, Bowen v. Daugherty, 168 N. C. 242, 84 S. E. 265, where it was held that the husband's estate is liable for the funeral expenses of his predeceased wife, in preference to the beneficiaries under his will.

Third Party Paying.—The provisions of this subdivision enures to the benefit of one who after having paid such expenses as a matter of affection and duty wants to recover the same from the estate. Ray v. Honeycutt, 119 N. C. 510, 26 S. E. 127.

Third class. Taxes assessed on the estate of the deceased previous to his death.

Scope.—Provisions of this section that taxes should be paid by the personal representative in the third class of priority has no application to the statutory action to foreclose the tax sale certificate. Guilford County v. Estates Administration, 213 N. C. 763, 197 S. E. 535.

This section has no application to the payment of assessments made against land by a municipality for the purpose of improving streets. Saluda v. County of Polk, 207 N. C. 180, 184, 176 S. E. 298; High Point v. Brown, 206 N. C. 664, 667, 175 S. E. 169.

Method of Collecting Taxes.—Section 105-412 construed in the light of this subdivision of this section indicates that the ordinary methods of collecting taxes by a sheriff do not apply to collection of taxes from a decedent's estate. Sherrod v. Dawson, 154 N. C. 525, 529, 70 S. E. 739.

Relation to and Effect of § 105-408.—The General Assembly by enacting § 105-408, providing that taxes assessed against land be paid from the proceeds of a foreclosure sale, did not intend to abolish the method definitely prescribed by this section for administering the estate of a person deceased or to modify the statutory direction as to the order in which the decedent's debts should be paid. Farmville Oil, etc., Co. v. Bourne, 205 N. C. 337, 339, 171 S. E. 368.

Tax-Sale Certificate Is Not a Preferred Claim.—A tax-sale certificate in the hands of a remainderman, representing taxes paid by the remainderman during the lifetime of the life tenant, may not be proved as a preferred claim against the estate of the life tenant, since the remainderman's sole remedy upon the tax-sale certificate is by foreclosure under the provisions of § 8028. Rigsbee v. Brogden, 209 N. C. 510, 184 S. E. 24. [C. S. 8028 was repealed by 1939, c. 310, s. 1725. Ed. note.]

Taxes Assessed Are Preferred Claim.—As a life tenant is liable for taxes assessed against the property during his lifetime, under § 105-410, when he dies without paying the same they constitute a claim against his estate and are payable in the third class. Rigsbee v. Brogden, 209 N. C. 510, 184 S. E. 24.

Charges for Water and Gas Connection Are Not a Preferred Claim as Taxes.—Charges for water and gas connections, incurred during the lifetime of a life tenant and unpaid at his death, do not constitute a preferred claim against his estate as taxes assessed on the estate prior to his death, since in no event would such charges stand upon a higher plane than assessments for permanent improvements. Rigsbee v. Brogden, 209 N. C. 510, 184 S. E. 24.

Nor Are Assessments for Public Improvements.—See Rigsbee v. Brogden, 209 N. C. 510, 184 S. E. 24.

Fourth class. Dues to the United States and to the state of North Carolina.

Fifth class. Judgments of any court of competent jurisdiction within this state, docketed and in force, to the extent to which they are a lien on the property of the deceased at his death.

Judgments Paid Out of Personalty.—The provision of this clause does not mean that the judgment shall be paid out of the realty of the decedent upon which it has become a lien. When a debtor dies, against whom there is a judgment docketed, his land descends to his heirs or vests in his devisees, and his personal property vests in his administrator or executor, just as if there were no judgment against him, and the whole estate is to be administered just as if there were no judgment, that is to say, the personal property must be sold if necessary and all the personal assets collected, and out of these personal assets all the debts must be paid, if there be enough to pay all docketed judgments as well as others. The reason for this mode of administration is that, although a lien on land exists, the judgment should be paid out of the personal estate, if any, in exoneration of the land for the benefit of the heir or devisee. Lee v. Eure, 82 N. C. 428.

When Priorities Determined.—The priorities among judgment creditors, which are dependent upon the date of their respective recordation, are to be determined as they existed at the death of the debtor, after which they remain unaffected by lapse of time until barred by the statute of limitations or by executions issued upon the judgment. Tarboro v. Penders, 153 N. C. 427, 430, 69 S. E. 425, 636; Mauney v. Holmes, 87 N. C. 431; Galloway v. Bradfield, 86 N. C. 163, 166; Farmville Oil, etc., Co. v. Bourne, 205 N. C. 337, 171 S. E. 368.

Expired Judgment Lien. — The expiration of the judgment lien terminates the authority of the representative to pay such lien. The judgment lien must be in force at the time of payment. Matthews v. Peterson, 150 N. C. 132, 134, 63 S. E. 721, 722.

Statute of Limitations not Affected. — The fact that under this subdivision judgments docketed and in force, which have become a lien upon decedent's property at the date of his death, have priority over certain other claims, does not stop the running of the statute of limitation upon such judgments. Daniel v. Laughlin, 87 N. C. 433, 436.

Application of Proceeds under a Consent Judgment to Sell Lands.—Where a consent judgment provides that a commissioner appointed for the purpose sell certain lands of a deceased person, and pay the net proceeds to the administratrix of the deceased to pay the debts of his estate, the distribution of these proceeds are thereunder to be made under the provisions of this section, and a judgment ordering them to be paid to a lien of a judgment creditor on the lands of the estate, adjudging it a prior lien, is reversible error. First National Bank v. Mitchell, 191 N. C. 190, 131 S. E. 656.

Application to Funds in Administrator's Hands. — The provision of this clause applies to funds in the administrator's hands. Matthews v. Peterson, 150 N. C. 134, 135, 63 S. E. 721.

Extent of the Lien.—If the real estate upon which the judgment is a lien is of less value than the amounts of the judgment, then the extent of the lien under this subdivision is the value of the land only. Jerkins v. Carter, 70 N. C. 500, 501. And if, in such a case, a part of the lien has been paid out of the personalty (which is first liable for the payment) the extent of the lien is the difference between the value of the land and amount paid out of the personalty. It is not the difference between the amount of the lien and the amount paid from the personalty. Murchison v. Williams, 71 N. C. 137.

Applied.—In Murchison v. Williams, 71 N. C. 137, 138.

Sixth class. Wages due to any domestic servant or mechanical or agricultural laborer employed by the deceased, which claim for wages shall not extend to a period of more than one year next preceding the death; or if such servant or laborer was employed for the year current at the decease, then from the time of such employment; for medical services within the twelve months preceding the decease; for drugs and all other medical supplies necessary for the treatment of such deceased person during the last illness of such person, said period of last illness not to exceed twelve months.

Cross Reference.—See annotation under Class 2 of this section.

Editor's Note.—The 1941 amendment added to the paragraph designated "Sixth class" the provision relating to drugs and medical supplies.

For comment on the 1941 amendment, see 19 N. C. Law Rev. 546.

The words "medical services," include all services rendered to the deceased, because of his illness, upon the advice of his physician, which were reasonably necessary for his care and comfort, and for his proper treatment by his physicians. Park View Hospital Ass'n v. Peoples Bank, etc., Co., 211 N. C. 244, 249, 189 S. E. 766.

The funeral and medical expenses referred to in this subdivision and subdivision two mean those of the debtor and not those of his wife, child, or tenants. Baker v. Dawson, 131 N. C. 227, 42 S. E. 588.

Board of Nurses Included in Medical Services.—The board of graduate nurses, who attended the deceased while he was a patient in plaintiffs' hospital, was a claim included in the term "medical services" as used in this section. Park View Hospital Ass'n v. Peoples Bank, etc., Co., 211 N. C. 244, 189 S. E. 766.

Seventh class. All other debts and demands. (Rev., s. 87; Code, s. 1416; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 24; 1941, c. 271; C. S. 93.)

§ 28-106. No preference within class.—No executor, administrator or collector shall give to any debt any preference whatever, either by paying it out of its class or by paying thereon more than a pro rata proportion in its class. (Rev., s. 88; Code, ss. 1417, 1418; 1868-9, c. 113, ss. 25, 26; C. S. 94.)

Editor's Note. — The prohibition embodied in this section is against the representative. Hence a solvent person in his lifetime may by his will make preferences in favor of persons who would otherwise be postponed. But, as upon his death his effects and property vest in his representative who must pay the debts first, if the estate is insolvent the representative cannot assent to the payment of preferences before the payment of prior debts as prescribed in the preceding section. The result is that preferences made by an insolvent decedent are rendered ineffective for all purposes. See Moore v. Byers, 65 N. C. 242.

Paying by Honest Mistake. — If the representative pays a debt belonging to an inferior class in preference to a superior debt, even though he does it through an honest mistake, he is chargeable for the same. Moye v. Albritton, 42 N. C. 62.

Stated in Park View Hospital Ass'n v. Peoples Bank, etc., Co., 211 N. C. 244, 189 S. E. 766.

§ 28-107. When payment out of class held valid.—Where any executor or administrator has paid any debt of his testator or intestate before all the debts of higher dignity have been paid and satisfied, and the estate of such testator or intestate was at the time of such payment solvent, but has since been rendered insolvent by the insolvency of the debtors of the estate, or other cause, without any fault or want of diligence on the part of the executor or administrator, in all such cases payments thus made shall be deemed and held valid in law, and shall be allowed to such executor or administrator in all suits by creditors of the estate seeking to charge such executor or administrator with assets of the estate or with devastavit thereof, without regard to the dignity of the debt thus paid, or on which such suit may be brought. (Rev., s. 96; Code, s. 1496; 1869-70, c. 150; C. S. 95.)

Section Declaratory of Existing Law.—Even in the absence of this section the principle which it inculcates would hold true under legal and equitable principles. Coggins v. Flythe, 113 N. C. 102, 114, 18 S. E. 96.

§ 28-108. Debts due representative not preferred.—No property or assets of the decedent shall be retained by the executor, administrator or collector in satisfaction of his own debt, in preference to others of the same class; but such debt must be established upon the same proof and paid in like manner and order as required by law in case of other debts. (Rev., s. 89; Code, s. 1420; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 28; C. S. 96.)

§ 28-109. Debts not due rebated.—Debts not due may be paid on a rebate of interest thereon for the time unexpired. (Rev., s. 90; Code, s. 1419; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 27; C. S. 97.)

§ 28-110. Affidavit of debt may be required.—Upon any claim being pesented against the estate, the executor, administrator or collector may require the affidavit of the claimant or other satisfactory evidence that such claim is justly due, that no payments have been made thereon, and that there are no offsets against the same, to the knowledge of the claimant; or if any payments have been made, or any offsets exist, their nature and amount must be stated in such affidavit. (Rev., s. 91; Code, s. 1425; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 33; C. S. 98.)

§ 28-111. Disputed debt may be referred.—If the executor, administrator or collector doubts the justness of any claim so presented, he may enter into an agreement, in writing, with the claimant, to refer the matter in controversy, whether the same be of a legal or equitable nature, to one or more disinterested persons, not exceeding three, whose proceedings shall be the same in all respects as if such reference had been ordered in an action. Such agreement to refer, and the award thereupon, shall be filed in the clerk's office where the letters were granted, and shall be a lawful voucher for the personal representative. The same may be impeached in any proceeding against the personal representative for fraud therein: Provided, that the right to refer claims under this section shall extend to claims in favor of the estate as well as those against it. (Rev., s. 92; Code, s. 1426; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 34; 1872-3, c. 141; C. S. 99.)

Purpose of Section. — The section was intended to create an expeditious and inexpensive mode by which controversies between executors, administrators or collectors and claimants against the estate of testators and intestates may be settled and determined. State v. Potter, 107 N. C. 415, 12 S. E. 55; In re Reynolds' Estate, 221 N. C. 449, 20 S. E. (2d) 348.

The proceeding authorized by this section is based upon agreement of the parties. It is not an action, nor a consent reference under the code. It lacks the ordinary incidents of a special proceeding which is begun before the clerk. In re Reynolds' Estate, 221 N. C. 449, 20 S. E. (2d) 348.

Effect of Agreement to Arbitrate. — An agreement to arbitrate and to award under this section is competent evidence to prove the indebtedness of the estate. Such an agreement is, where there is no fraud or collusion, binding upon the heirs even though they were not parties to the proceedings. Lassiter v. Upchurch, 107 N. C. 411, 12 S. E. 63.

Finding as Judgment. — The finding of arbitrators under this section is equivalent to a judgment, and the proceedings in which it is rendered can be impeached only for fraud or collusion. Lassiter v. Upchurch, 107 N. C. 411, 12 S. E. 63.

Fairly interpreting this section, the award of the referees, unless impeached for fraud and collusion, should have the effect, at least, to determine and put an end to the controversy, if not of a judgment in an action between the parties. In re Reynolds' Estate, 221 N. C. 449, 20 S. E. (2d) 348.

Only those having a pecuniary interest in the estate may be heard to impeach the result for collusion or fraud. In re Reynolds' Estate, 221 N. C. 449, 20 S. E. (2d) 348.

Not Applicable to Creditor's Suit under Sec. 28-122.—The proceedings authorized by this section are between a creditor and the personal representative, and have no application to creditor's bill under section 28-122 instituted to take the administration into the hands of the court. Dunn v. Beaman, 126 N. C. 766, 36 S. E. 172.

When Action on Claim against Executor Barred.—Where a claim against an executor is rejected by him in writing and is not referred in accordance with the provisions of this section, an action thereon is barred if not brought within six months after the rejection of the claim by the executor. Batts v. Batts, 198 N. C. 395, 151 S. E. 868.

Thus, while § 28-105 classifies funeral expenses as a debt of the estate, the amount due therefor cannot be regarded as a legacy in this State, and where a husband who has paid the funeral expenses of his wife makes claim therefor upon her executor and the claim is rejected, and is not referred in accordance with this section, an action on the claim is barred by his failure to bring it within six months from the time of its rejection by the executor. Batts v. Batts, 198 N. C. 395, 151 S. E. 868.

Vacation of Reference.—Where clerk appointed a referee to hear claims against the estate of a deceased under this section, and thereafter approved the report of the referee, but on appeal the superior court ruled that the clerk had no authority in the premises and this ruling was unchallenged, such ruling vacated the supposed reference, and ended the matter. In re Shutt, 214 N. C. 684, 200 S. E. 372.

Appeal.—Where a claimant and the personal representative voluntarily execute a written agreement referring the claim to disinterested persons under this section, the referees are not required to decide the matter according to law, and their report is conclusive and neither party is entitled to appeal therefrom upon exceptions, there being no provision in this section for appeal, the proceeding being neither a civil action nor a special proceeding nor a judicial order. In re Reynolds' Estate, 221 N. C. 449, 20 S. E. (2d) 348.

§ 28-112. Disputed debt not referred, barred in six months.—If a claim is presented to and rejected by the executor, administrator or collector, and not referred as provided in § 28-111, the claimant must, within six months, after due notice in writing of such rejection, or after some part of the debt becomes due, commence an action for the recovery thereof, or be forever barred from maintaining an action thereon. (Rev., s. 93; Code, s. 1427; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 35; 1913, c. 3, s. 1; C. S. 100.)

Cross Reference.—As to effect of admission of claim by personal representative upon running of statute of limitations, see § 1-22.

Strictly Construed. — The language of this section is positive and explicit, and must be enforced in accordance with the plain meaning of its terms. Morrisey v. Hill, 142 N. C. 355, 358, 55 S. E. 193.

A party asserting the right as assignee of an insurance policy to retain the proceeds thereof for obligations he contends were secured by the assignment is not barred, under this section, from asserting such right after the lapse of more than six months as against the administrator of the deceased insured in the administrator's action to recover the funds, the defense not constituting a prosecution of a claim against the administrator which had been denied. Sellars v. The First Nat. Bank, 214 N. C. 300, 199 S. E. 266.

Counterclaim Barred.—A claim barred under this section can not be pleaded even by way of counterclaim, in an action by the representative against the claimant, and this, regardless of the fact that the general notice provided for in section 28-47 had not been given. Morrisey v. Hill, 142 N. C. 555, 55 S. E. 193.

§ 28-113. If claim not presented in twelve months, representative discharged as to assets paid. —In an action brought on a claim which was not presented within twelve months from the first publication of the general notice to creditors, the executor, administrator or collector shall not be chargeable for any assets that he may have paid in satisfaction of any debts, legacies or distributive shares before such action was commenced; nor shall any costs be recovered in such action against the executor, administrator or collector. (Rev., s. 94; Code, s. 1428; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 37; C. S. 101.)

The purpose of this section is to relieve administrators, executors and collectors from liability for assets they may pay or distribute to a person or persons entitled to have the same as to claims not presented within the prescribed time, and as well to facilitate and encourage the prompt settlement of the estates of deceased persons. Mallard v. Patterson, 108 N. C. 255, 259, 13 S. E. 93.

Administrator May Hold Funds for Twelve Month Period.—Under this section a bank, acting as an administrator, has a legal right to hold the funds of the estate for one year after appointment and to refuse to settle claims of heirs during this period. Security Nat. Bank v. Bridgers, 207 N. C. 91, 176 S. E. 295.

Effect of Failure to Present Claim within Twelve Months. —Under this section a claimant who has not presented his claim within twelve months from the first publication of the general notice to creditors, is allowed to assert his demand only as against undistributed assets of the estate and without cost against the executor. In re Estate of Bost, 211 N. C. 440, 443, 190 S. E. 756.

Cited in Jackson v. Thomas, 211 N. C. 634, 191 S. E. 327; Strayhorn v. Aycock, 215 N. C. 43, 200 S. E. 912, treated under § 1-49.

§ 28-114. No lien by suit against representative. —No lien shall be created by the commencement of a suit against an executor, administrator or collector. (Rev., s. 95; Code, s. 1432; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 41; C. S. 102.)

Cited in Price v. Askins, 212 N. C. 583, 194 S. E. 284.

§ 28-115. When costs against representative allowed.—No costs shall be recovered in any action against an executor, administrator or collector, unless it appears that payment was unreasonably delayed or neglected, or that the defendant refused to refer the matter in controversy, in which case the court may award such costs against the defendant personally, or against the estate, as may be just. (Rev., s. 97; Code, s. 1429; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 38; C. S. 103.)

The purpose of this section is to urge the representatives to an early and prompt settlement of claims against the deceased, and to protect the estate, when proper diligence was used, from cost needlessly incurred by the creditors in prosecuting their claims. May v. Darden, 83 N. C. 239.

Exception to Secs. 6-18 to 6-20.—This section forms an exception to sections 6-18 to 6-20 which are general provisions as to cost. Whitaker v. Whitaker, 138 N. C. 205, 50 S. E. 630. See also, Bailey v. Hayman, 222 N. C. 58, 22 S. E. (2d) 6.

Unreasonable Delay or Neglect. — Where an action was brought within fifty-two days of the qualification of the administrator, it was held that payment had not been "unreasonably delayed or neglected" within the meaning of this section. Whitaker v. Whitaker, 138 N. C. 205, 207, 50 S. E. 630. A fortiori the same rule was applied, in May v. Darden, 83 N. C. 239, when the suit was instituted twenty days after appointment. See also, Morris v. Morris, 94 N. C. 617.

Appeal for Cost.—Although the general rule is that an appeal lies from a judgment for cost only, there is an exception to this rule in favor of fiduciaries, inferred from this section. May v. Darden, 83 N. C. 239.

Not Applicable When Funds Misapplied. — In proceedings to subject a representative to liability for misapplication of the funds, as distinguished from proceedings to recover a debt out of the estate, this section does not apply, and the representative is chargeable with the cost. Valentine v. Britton, 127 N. C. 57, 59, 37 S. E. 74.

Burden of Proof.—The burden is on the plaintiffs to show that they are entitled to recover cost under this section. Whitaker v. Whitaker, 138 N. C. 205, 207, 50 S. E. 630.

Land Chargeable with Cost.—In proceedings by the creditor to subject the land to the payment of debts, the land is subject to the payment of the cost, wherever the representative can be charged with the cost under the circumstances referred to in this section. Long v. Oxford, 108 N. C. 280, 13 S. E. 112.

§ 28-116. Obligations binding heirs collected as other debts.—Bonds and other obligations in which the ancestor has bound his heirs shall not be put in suit against the heirs or devisees of the deceased, but shall be paid as other debts of the same class in the manner provided in this chapter. (Rev., s. 98; Code, s. 1404; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 12; C. S. 104.)

Art. 16. Accounts and Accounting.

§ 28-117. Annual accounts.—Every executor, administrator and collector shall, within twelve months from the date of his qualification or appointment, and annually, so long as any of the estate remains in his control, file, in the office of the clerk of the superior court, an inventory and account, under oath, of the amount of property received by him, or invested by him, and the manner and nature of such investment, and his receipts and disbursements for the past year in the form of debit and credit. He must produce vouchers for all payments. The clerk may examine on oath such accounting party, or any other person, concerning the receipts, disbursements or any other matter relating to the estate; and, having carefully revised and audited such account, if he approve the same, he must endorse his approval thereon, which shall be deemed prima facie evidence of correctness. (Rev., s. 99; Code, s. 1399; C. C. P., s. 478; 1871-2, c. 46; C. S. 105.)

The word "accounts" as used in this section means "a statement in writing of debts and credits, or of receipts and payments; a list of items of debts and credits, with their respective dates." It does not include the idea of payment and settlement. State v. Dunn, 134 N. C. 663, 668, 46 S. E. 949.

Prima Facie Evidence Only. — The sworn account referred to in this section is only prima facie evidence. It is not conclusive as against any person adversely interested. The statute merely shifts the burden of proof. Allen v. Roysster, 107 N. C. 278, 282, 12 S. E. 134; Turner v. Turner, 104 N. C. 566, 571, 10 S. E. 606; In re Hege, 205 N. C. 625, 172 S. E. 345: Brady v. Pfaff, 210 N. C. 808, 186 S. E. 340.

A report showing all debts paid except a mortgage indebtedness cannot constitute a final account, since the duties and obligations of administraton continue until all debts are paid or all assets exhausted under this section. Creech v. Wilder, 212 N. C. 162, 193 S. E. 281.

Recorded Account Is Competent Evidence in Collateral Suit.—The account required by this section must be recorded as required in § 2-42. Such account therefore is not hearsay but is competent evidence in a collateral suit. Braddy v. Pfaff, 210 N. C. 248, 186 S. E. 340.

Duty of Clerk to Accept Executor's Annual Account.—Where property is devised or bequeathed by a will, upon certain trusts, and the testator does not appoint a trustee, it is the duty of the executor, to carry out the provisions of the will. It is error for the clerk to refuse to accept an annual account tendered by the executor for a year more than two years after the executor qualified but during the life of the trust estate. In re Wachovia Bank, etc., Co., 210 N. C. 385, 390, 186 S. E. 510. See § 28-121 and the note thereto.

And the representative himself is not estopped to impeach the account. Bean v. Bean, 135 N. C. 92, 47 S. E. 232.

Transfer of Funds to Other Jurisdiction. — The administrator in this state of the estate of a nonresident dying in his own state, before transferring the funds to the state of the domicile, must comply with the provisions of this section. Grant v. Rogers, 94 N. C. 755, 762.

Ex Parte Proceeding. — The jurisdiction for auditing accounts conferred upon the clerk by this section is an ex parte jurisdiction of examining the accounts and vouchers of such persons, and does not conclude parties interested or affect suits inter partes upon the same matter. Heilig v. Foard, 64 N. C. 713; Bean v. Bean, 135 N. C. 92, 93, 47 S. E. 253; Grant v. Hughes, 94 N. C. 231.

Meaning of "Auditing Accounts". — The provisions as to auditing the accounts of executors, administrators, have reference to the duty of examining the accounts to see that the account of charges correspond with the inventories, passing upon the vouchers and striking a balance after allowing commissions. Heilig v. Foard, 64 N. C. 713.

§ 28-118. Clerk may compel account.—If any executor, administrator or collector omits to account, as directed in § 28-117, or renders an insufficient and unsatisfactory account, the clerk shall forthwith order such executor, administrator or collector to render a full and satisfactory account, as required by law, within twenty days after service of the order. Upon return of the order, duly served, if such executor, administrator or collector fail to appear or refuse to exhibit such account, the clerk may issue an attachment against him for a contempt and commit him till he exhibit such account, and may likewise remove him from office. And the sheriffs of the several counties to whom a process is directed under the provisions of this section shall serve the same without demanding their fees in advance. (Rev., s. 100; Code, s. 1400; C. C. P., s. 479; 1933, c. 99; C. S. 106.)

Editor's Note.—The last sentence of this section as it now reads was added by Public Laws 1933, c. 99.

Original Jurisdiction.—Under this section the clerk has original jurisdiction to remove. Edwards v. Cobb, 95 N. C. 8.

Applied in In re Hege, 205 N. C. 625, 172 S. E. 345.

§ 28-119. Vouchers presumptive evidence. — Vouchers are presumptive evidence of disbursement, without other proof, unless impeached. If lost, the accounting party must, if required, make oath to that fact, setting forth the manner of loss, and state the contents and purport of the voucher. And this section shall apply to guardians, collectors, trustees and to all other persons acting in a fiduciary character. (Rev., s. 101; Code, s. 1401; C. C. P., s. 480; C. S. 107.)

Independent of this section receipts of living persons are not strictly legal evidence to show a full administration. Drake v. Drake, 82 N. C. 443.

What the Vouchers Must Show. — This section makes vouchers presumptive evidence of disbursements actually made, but not of their nature and purpose and the necessity for them. To make such vouchers presumptive evidence, they should state with reasonable particularity the purpose of them, the particular account upon which they were made, the time, etc., so as to make it appear that the expenditure or disbursement was a proper one. McLean v. Breese, 109 N. C. 564, 566, 13 S. E. 910.

Proof of Handwriting.—The handwriting of the person signing the voucher need be proven only when the voucher is relied on as presumptive evidence under this section. Costen v. McDowell, 107 N. C. 546, 549, 12 S. E. 432.

Presumptive Though Not Primary Evidence.—While this section makes the vouchers presumptive proof, it by no means provides that they shall be primary evidence, and therefore, actual payment may still be established in the same way as before the enactment of this section when the receipts of living persons were not strictly legal evidence to show a full administration. Costen v. McDowell, 107 N. C. 546, 549, 12 S. E. 432; Drake v. Drake, 82 N. C. 443, 445.

§ 28-120. Gravestones authorized.—It is lawful for executors and administrators to provide suitable gravestones to mark the graves of their testators or intestates, and to pay for the cost of erecting the same, and the cost thereof shall be paid as funeral expenses and credited as such in final accounts. The cost thereof shall be in the sound discretion of the executor or administrator, having due regard to the value of the estate and to the interests of creditors and needs of the widow and distributees of the estate. Where the executor or administrator desires to spend more than one hundred dollars for such purpose he shall file his petition before the clerk of the court, and such order as will be made by the court shall specify the amount to be expended for such purpose. Provided, however, that if the net estate is of a value in excess of fifteen thousand dollars ($15,000), the executor or administrator may, in his discretion, expend not more than five hundred dollars ($500) for this purpose without securing the order of court required herein. (Rev., s. 102; 1905, c. 444; 1925, c. 4; 1941, c. 102; C. S. 108.)

Editor's Note.—The third sentence of this section as it formerly stood provided that the order be approved by the resident judge of the district. This was omitted by the act of 1925.

The 1941 amendment added the proviso at the end of the section. For comment on this amendment, see 19 N. C. Law Rev. 546.

Scope of Section.—This section was held inapplicable where executors, in obedience to testamentary instructions, expended more than $100 for a gravestone without order of court when the estate appeared to be solvent though in fact it was insolvent. In re Estate of Bost, 211 N. C. 440, 190 S. E. 756.

§ 28-121. Final accounts.—An executor or administrator may be required to file his final account for settlement in the office of the clerk of the superior court by a citation directed to him, at any time after two years from his qualification, at the instance of any person interested in the estate; but such account may be filed voluntarily at any time; and, whether the accounting be voluntary or compulsory, it shall be audited and recorded by the clerk. (Rev., s. 103; Code, s. 1402; C. C. P., s. 481; C. S. 109.)

Jurisdiction.—Formerly the probate court had jurisdiction to make the representative account. Rowland v. Thompson, 65 N. C. 110, 112. Under this section the clerk of the superior Court has jurisdiction. McNeill v. Hodges, 105 N. C. 52, 54, 11 S. E. 265.

When Section Not Applicable.—This statutory requirement is not applicable where the duties imposed upon the executor by the will cannot be fully performed within two years from his qualification. In re Wachovia Bank, etc., Co., 210 N. C. 385, 390, 186 S. E. 510. See § 28-192.

Review of Order to File Final Account and Turn Over Assets.—Where the clerk orders an executor to file final account and turn over the assets of the trust estate to itself as trustee, which order is made as a matter of law upon the facts found and not as a matter of discretion, the order is reviewable by the Superior Court upon appeal. In re Wachovia Bank, etc., Co., 210 N. C. 385, 186 S. E. 510.

Ex Parte Proceeding No Estoppel.—The auditing by the clerk, whether under this or under § 28-117, is an ex parte proceeding, and does not work an estoppel upon the parties as a judgment in inter parte proceedings would. In this respect this section and the section just referred to are alike. Bean v. Bean, 135 N. C. 92, 93, 47 S. E. 232.

Presumption of Correctness of Account.—When ex parte accounts are filed under this section, they are, as a matter of law, to be taken as correct until shown to be erroneous. Turner v. Turner, 104 N. C. 566, 572, 10 S. E. 606.

Auditing a Judicial Act.—The phrase "audit an account" means something more than the statement of an account by an unauthorized person. It means the act of a court. Rowland v. Thompson, 65 N. C. 110, 112. Hence the auditing under this section must be performed by the clerk, and not by one of his ministerial officers for a clerk for his judicial functions can have no deputy. Id.

Auditing and Appeal Therefrom.—This section, which directs that the probate judge shall "audit" the account, implies that he shall pursue the usual course which has been found to be just and convenient in such cases. Consequently an appeal may not be had from the decision of the probate judge upon every question collaterally arising in the course of his investigation, in view of the inconveniences incident to such practice peculiar to common law action of account now superseded by the more expeditious proceedings in equity. Rowland v. Thompson, 64 N. C. 714, 717.

Filing of "final report" by executor does not have effect of removing him from office if in fact estate has not been fully settled, and therefore filing of report does not create vacancy and does not give clerk authority to appoint administrator c. t. a., d. b. n. Edwards v. McLawhorn, 218 N. C. 543, 11 S. E. (2d) 562.

Limitation for Action Against Representative.—An action against an administrator or executor is barred in ten years after the two years allowed under this section, even though no express demand is made by any party interested for the settlement of the estate. Edwards v. Lemmond, 136 N. C. 329, 332, 48 S. E. 737.

Applied in Security Nat. Bank v. Bridgers, 207 N. C. 91, 176 S. E. 295.

§ 28-122. Creditor's proceeding for accounting.—Any creditor of a deceased person may, within the times prescribed by law, prosecute a special proceeding or a civil action before the judge in his own name and in behalf of himself and all other creditors of the deceased without naming them, against the personal representative of the deceased, to compel him to an account of his administration, and to pay the creditors what may be payable to them respectively. (Rev., s. 104; Code, s. 1448; 1871-2, c. 213; 1876-7, c. 241, s. 6; C. S. 110.)

The purpose of this section was to unite all the creditors in one special proceeding, in order to bring the personal representative to an account after two years and to compel an application of the assets by payment to the creditors whose debts have been ascertained. Graham v. Tate, 77 N. C. 120, 125.

Other Creditors May Come In.—Where a creditor has instituted a special proceeding under this section, all or any of the creditors not designated by name are at liberty to come in and share the benefits of the suit. Every creditor has an inchoate interest in the suit, and is, in an essential sense, a party to the action. Dobson v. Simonton, 93 N. C. 268.

Process or General Notice Essential.—Unless personally served with notice, or unless a general notice is published as prescribed by section 28-126, creditors are not bound by special proceedings instituted under this section by another creditor. Hester v. Lawrence, 102 N. C. 319, 8 S. E. 915.

Summons and Complaints Necessary. — Special proceedings under this section must be by summons and complaint in the first instance. But creditors subsequently coming in need not file a complaint unless their claim is denied. Isler v. Murphy, 76 N. C. 52.

Enjoining Creditor.—A creditor who chooses not to come in, and resorts to an independent action, may be enjoined by the court as soon as the decree for an account is rendered in the main suit. Dobson v. Simonton, 93 N. C. 268, 270.

Creditor's Suit Distinguished.—A special proceeding under this section differs from a creditor's bill in that in the latter case all the creditors may make themselves parties, while in the former case they are required to do so. Patterson v. Miller, 72 N. C. 516.

Mere Filing of Claim.—The mere filing by a creditor of a claim with the clerk gives him a standing in the court, and is all that is required of him unless the claim is contested. Warden v. McKinnon, 94 N. C. 378.

Equitable Character of Proceedings.—The special proceedings under this section are of equitable character. Hence the court may in the same proceedings make the heirs and the next of kin parties, and compel the latter to account for the personalty received by him, or may order the realty to be sold for the payment of the debts. Warden v. McKinnon, 94 N. C. 378; Devereux v. Devereux, 81 N. C. 12.

Stops Running of Statute of Limitations. — Proceedings under this section instituted by one creditor not only prevent the running of the statute of limitations as to the claim of that creditor, but also of those in whose behalf they are instituted. Dobson v. Simonton, 93 N. C. 268, 271.

Personal Judgment Against Representative.—It is intimated that in special proceedings under this section the clerk has jurisdiction to render a personal judgment against the representative where the latter has committed devastavit, as well as a judgment in his representative capacity. Hester v. Lawrence, 102 N. C. 319, 325, 8 S. E. 915.

Termination of Special Proceedings.—Special proceedings commenced under this section are not terminated by being let off the docket, but continue until all the debts are discharged and there is a final judgment. When so dropped from the docket, they may be brought forward on a motion. Warden v. McKinnon, 94 N. C. 378.

Nor does the termination of collateral issues, such as on contested claims, terminate such proceedings. Id.

Concurrent Jurisdiction of Courts.—The act of 1876-77, ch. 241, sec. 6, which embodied also this section, which provided that action against the personal representative may be brought originally to the Superior Court at term time, and stipulated for the repeal of conflicting laws, is not in conflict with the jurisdiction of the Probate Court (before the clerk), and the jurisdiction is concurrent. Hence the court first acquiring jurisdiction of the controversy will retain it.

Thus, where under this section special proceedings were instituted by a creditor, in the Superior Court, and the representative thereafter instituted proceedings in the Probate Court (before the clerk) for the sale of land, it was held that the Superior Court had acquired jurisdiction of the matter and the representative could be restrained from further proceeding in the Probate Court. Haywood v. Haywood, 79 N. C. 42, 43; Pegram v. Armstrong, 82 N. C. 326.

Remedy against Settlement before Payment of Debts.—If an administrator should file a petition for the settlement of the estate before he has paid the debts the remedy of the creditor is by a creditor's bill in accordance with this section, or an action upon the administration bond. They cannot seek to be made parties to the settlement proceedings, Carlton v. Byers, 93 N. C. 302, 304; or to a petition by the representative to sell land for the payment of debts. Dickey v. Dickey, 118 N. C. 956, 24 S. E. 715.

Allegations as to Exhaustion of Personalty.—Whether the suit be by the representative to set aside fraudulent conveyances of the decedent, under § 28-84, or by the creditor under this section or under the general equity jurisdiction of the court, allegations and proof of the exhaustion or insufficiency of the personalty are necessary. Clement v. Cozart, 107 N. C. 695, 697, 12 S. E. 254; Clement v. Cozart, 109 N. C. 173, 181, 13 S. E. 862.

Effect of Irregularities.—Where, under this section, the court has jurisdiction of the person and subject matter, mere irregularities in the proceedings will not render them void, no objection being made as to such irregularities. Brooks v. Brooks, 97 N. C. 136, 1 S. E. 487.

Thus where the plaintiff does not purport to sue for himself and on behalf of all other creditors, in the absence of objection, the proceedings are not void. Id.

Jurisdiction of Judge in Term.—The proceedings under this section are exceptions to the rule that the judge in term has no jurisdiction over the settlement of intestate's estate. Moore v. Ingram, 91 N. C. 376, 379.

Each Complaint Distinct Proceedings.—In proceedings under this section each complaint of the several creditors constitutes a distinct proceeding to be proceeded in separately. Graham v. Tate, 77 N. C. 120.

Motion to Issue Execution.—In view of the remedy given to the creditors under this section and other sections of this chapter, a motion for leave to issue execution against the estate of a decedent cannot be allowed. Cowles v. Hall, 113 N. C. 359, 18 S. E. 329.

The costs of proceedings under this section are determined by the same provisions as are applicable to other proceedings. Patterson v. Miller, 72 N. C. 516, 518.

Nature of Superior Court's Jurisdiction.—Under this section the Superior Court has original jurisdiction over proceedings instituted against the representative. Bratton v. Davidson, 79 N. C. 423.

Correlation of Sec. 28-111 to This Section.—The proceedings authorized by section 28-111 are between a creditor and the representative, and have no application to situations arising under this section whose primary object is to take the administration into the hands of the court. Dunn v. Beaman, 126 N. C. 766, 36 S. E. 172.

Special Proceedings or Civil Action Optional.—Originally this section authorized the creditor to bring a "special proceeding" (which is always before the clerk of the court) and did not provide for "civil action." But the amendment of 1876-77 inserted the words "civil action." The effect of the amendment was to give the creditor an option to bring his action either before the clerk or at a regular term of the Superior Court. See Clement v. Cozart, 107 N. C. 695, 698, 12 S. E. 254.

Cited in In re Hege, 205 N. C. 625, 172 S. E. 345; Buchanan v. Oglesby, 207 N. C. 149, 176 S. E. 281.

§ 28-123. Rules which govern creditor's proceeding.—The special proceeding shall be governed by the rules of practice prescribed for special proceedings, except so far as the same are modified by this chapter. (Rev., s. 105; Code, s. 1449; 1871-2, c. 213, s. 2; C. S. 111.)

Cross Reference.—For general statutes governing procedure in special proceedings, see § 1-393 et seq.

Summons and Complaint.—As the proceedings under the preceding section are not ex parte proceedings, within the contemplation of section 1-400, but are adverse within the meaning of section 1-394, they must, under the provisions of this section, be commenced by summons and complaint. Isler v. Murphy, 76 N. C. 52, 53.

The creditors subsequently coming in, however, need not file a new complaint, unless their claim is denied. Id.

§ 28-124. When and where summons returnable.—The summons in said special proceeding shall be returnable before the clerk of the superior court of the county in which letters testamentary or of administration were granted, and on a day not less than forty nor more than one hundred days from the issuing thereof, and not less than twenty days after the service thereof. (Rev., s. 106; Code, s. 1450; 1871-2, c. 213, s. 3; C. S. 112.)

Effect of Irregularity in the Time of Return.—Notwithstanding the irregularity in the time of the return as required by this section, the proceedings are valid unless objected to. Brooks v. Brooks, 97 N. C. 136, 141, 1 S. E. 487.

§ 28-125. Clerk to advertise for creditors.—On issuing the summons, the clerk shall advertise for all creditors of the deceased to appear before him on or before the return day and file the evidences of their claims. (Rev., s. 107; Code, s. 1451; 1871-2, c. 213, s. 4; C. S. 113.)

Failure to Publish Assignable on Appeal.—Failure to publish as required by this and the succeeding section, is an error which may be assigned by the representative in an appeal from a judgment of the clerk to the Superior Court in term, even though no exception on this ground has been taken before the clerk. Hester v. Lawrence, 102 N. C. 319, 8 S. E. 915.

It is the duty of the clerk to advertise as directed by statute. Warden v. McKinnon, 94 N. C. 378, 388.

The proceedings, however, are not void for lack of advertisement (which is considered as a mere irregularity), unless objected to. Brooks v. Brooks, 97 N. C. 136, 12 S. E. 487.

The mode of advertisement under this section is regulated by the provisions of section 28-126. Hester v. Lawrence, 102 N. C. 319, 8 S. E. 915.

§ 28-126. Publication of advertisement. — The advertisement shall be published at least once a week for not less than four weeks in some newspaper which may be thought by the clerk the most likely to inform all the creditors, and shall also be posted at the courthouse door for not less than thirty days. If, however, the estate does not exceed three thousand dollars in value, and the creditors are supposed by the clerk all to reside within the county or to be known, publication in a newspaper may be omitted, and in lieu thereof the advertisement shall be posted at four public places in the county, besides the courthouse door. Proof of personal service on a creditor or that a copy of the advertisement was sent to him by mail at his usual address shall be as to him equivalent to publication. (Rev., s. 108; Code, s. 1452; 1903, c. 134; 1871-2, c. 213, s. 5; C. S. 114.)

Cross Reference.—See annotations under § 28-125.

Advertisement Both Published and Posted.—The advertisement under this section must be both published in a newspaper, and posted at the court house door. Hester v. Lawrence, 102 N. C. 319, 8 S. E. 915.

§ 28-127. Creditors to file claims and appoint agent.—The creditors of the deceased on or before the required day shall file with the clerk the evidences of their demands, and every creditor on filing such claim shall endorse thereon or otherwise name some person or place within the town in which the court is held, upon whom or where notices in the cause may be served or left; otherwise he shall be deemed to have notice of all motions, orders and proceedings in the cause filed or made in the clerk's office. (Rev., s. 109; Code, s. 1453; 1871-2, c. 213, s. 6; C. S. 115.)

§ 28-128. Proof of claims.—If the evidence of the demand is other than a judgment, or some writing signed by the deceased, it shall be accompanied by the oath of the creditor, or, if he be nonresident or infirm or absent, or in any other proper case, of some witness of the transaction, or of some agent of the creditor, that to the best of his knowledge and belief the claim is just, and that all due credits have been given. (Rev., s. 110; Code, s. 1454; 1871-2, c. 213, s. 7; C. S. 116.)

§ 28-129. Representative to file claims; notice to creditors.—On the day of his appearance the personal representative shall on oath give to the clerk a list of all claims against the deceased of which he has received notice or has any knowledge, with the names and residences of the claimants to the best of his knowledge and belief; and if any person so named has failed to file evidence of his claim, the clerk shall immediately cause a notice requiring him to do so to be served on him, which may be done by posting the same, directed to him at his usual address. (Rev., s. 111; Code, s. 1455; 1871-2, c. 213, s. 8; C. S. 117.)

§ 28-130. Clerk to exhibit to representative claims filed.—On the day fixed for the appearance of the personal representative, the clerk shall exhibit to him a list of all the claims filed in his office, with the evidences thereof. (Rev., s. 112; Code, s. 1456; 1871-2, c. 213, s. 9; C. S. 118.)

§ 28-131. If representative denies claim, creditor notified.—Within five days thereafter the personal representative shall state in writing on said list, or on a separate paper, which of said claims he disputes in whole or in part. The clerk shall then notify the creditor, as above provided, that his claim is disputed, and the creditor shall thereupon file in the office of the clerk a complaint founded on his said claim, and the pleadings shall be as in other cases. (Rev., s. 113; Code, s. 1457; 1871-2, c. 213, s. 10; C. S. 119.)

Each Complaint Distinct Proceeding.—Where, under this section, the claims of two or more creditors have been disputed and the issue joined upon the complaints sent to the superior court in pursuance of the succeeding section, the complaint of each creditor constitutes a distinct proceeding to be proceeded separately so as to "let each tub stand on its own bottom." Graham v. Tate, 77 N. C. 120, 124.

§ 28-132. Issues joined; cause sent to superior court.—If the issues joined be of law, the clerk shall send the papers to the judge of the superior court for trial, as is provided for by the chapter on Civil Procedure in like cases. If the issue shall be of fact, the clerk shall send so much of the record as may be necessary to the next term of the superior court for trial. (Rev., s. 114; Code, s. 1458; 1871-2, c. 213, s. 11; C. S. 120.)

Title of the Proceeding.—When, under this section, issues upon several complaints have been sent to the superior court, although the title of the cause should be in the name of the creditors who instituted the special proceedings, it is proper to make a further title setting out the name of the creditor upon whose complaint the issues are raised. Graham v. Tate, 77 N. C. 120, 124.

For example: x, (the original creditor) v. y. (administrator). Issues on the complaint of z. In this way the complaint of the several creditors will be kept separate and unnecessary confusion avoided.

§ 28-133. When representative personally liable for costs.—If any personal representative denies the liability of his deceased upon any claim evidenced as is provided in this chapter, and the issue is finally decided against him, the costs of the trial shall be paid by him personally, and not allowed out of the estate, unless it appears that he had reasonable cause to contest the claim and did so bona fide. (Rev., s. 115; Code, s. 1459; 1871-2, c. 213, s. 12; C. S. 121.)

Cross Reference.—See annotation under § 28-115.

Correlation of This and Section 28-122.—This section applies to cases where the administrator unreasonably denies a claim filed under section 28-122. Valentine v. Britton, 127 N. C. 57, 59, 37 S. E. 74.

§ 28-134. Court may permit representative to appear after return day.—If the personal representative fails to appear on the return day, the clerk or judge of the superior court may permit him afterward to appear and plead on such terms as may be just. (Rev., s. 116; Code, s. 1460; 1871-2, c. 213, s. 13; C. S. 122.)

§ 28-135. Clerk to state account.—Immediately after the return day the clerk or judge shall proceed to hear such evidence as shall be brought before him, and to state an account of the dealings of the personal representative with the estate of his deceased according to the course of his court. (Rev., s., 117; Code, s. 1461; 1871-2, c. 213, s. 14; C. S. 123.)

§ 28-136. Exception to report; final report and judgment.—After the clerk has stated the account and prepared his report, he shall notify all the parties to examine and except to the same. Any party may then except to the same in whole or in part. The clerk shall then pass on the exceptions and prepare and sign his final report and judgment, of which the parties shall have notice. (Rev., s. 118; Code, s. 1462; 1871-2, c. 213, s. 15; C. S. 124.)

Applied in In re Estate of Bost, 211 N. C. 440, 190 S. E. 756.

§ 28-137. Appeal from judgment; security for costs.—Any party may appeal from a final judgment of the clerk to the judge of the superior court in term time, on giving an undertaking with surety, or making a deposit, to pay all costs which shall be recovered against him. If any creditor appeals and gives such security, his appeal shall be deemed an appeal by all who are damaged by the judgment, and no other creditor shall be required to give any undertaking. (Rev., s. 119; Code, s. 1464; 1871-2, c. 213, s. 17; C. S. 125.)

Applied in In re Estate of Bost, 211 N. C. 440, 190 S. E. 756.

§ 28-138. Papers on appeal filed and cause docketed.—On an appeal the clerk shall file his report and judgment and all the papers in his office as clerk of the superior court, and enter the case on his trial docket for the next term. (Rev., s. 120; Code, s. 1465; 1871-2, c. 213, s. 18; C. S. 126.)

§ 28-139. Prior creditors not affected by appeal may docket judgments.—If the exceptions and questions, from the decision on which the appeal is taken, affect only the creditors in one or more classes, the creditors in the prior classes by the leave of the clerk, or of the judge of the superior court, may docket their judgments and issue execution thereon. (Rev., s. 121; Code, s. 1466; 1871-2, c. 213, s. 19; C. S. 127.)

§ 28-140. Judgment where assets sufficient to pay a class.—If upon taking the account it is admitted, or is found, without appeal, that the defendant has assets sufficient, after the deduction of all proper costs and charges, to pay all the claims which have been presented of any one or more of the classes, the clerk shall give judgment in favor of the creditors whose debts of such classes have been admitted, or adjudged by any competent court; and if any claim in any preferred class is in litigation, the amount of such claim, with the probable cost of the litigation, shall be left in the hands of the personal representative, and not carried to the credit of any subsequent class until the litigation is ended. (Rev., s. 122; Code, s. 1467; 1871-2, c. 213, s. 20; C. S. 128.)

§ 28-141. Judgment where assets insufficient to pay a class.—If the assets are insufficient to pay in full all the claims of any class, the amounts thereof having been found or admitted as aforesaid, the clerk may adjudge payment of a certain part of such claims, proportionate to the assets applicable to debts of that class. (Rev., s. 123; Code, s. 1468; 1871-2, c. 213, s. 21; C. S. 129.)

§ 28-142. Contents of judgment; execution.—All judgments given by a judge or clerk of the superior court against a personal representative for any claim against his deceased shall declare—

1. The certain amount of the creditor's demand.

2. The amount of assets which the personal representative has applicable to such demand. Execution may issue only for this last sum with interest and costs. (Rev., s. 124; Code, s. 1469; 1871-2, c. 213, s. 22; C. S. 130.)

§ 28-143. When judgment to fix with assets.—No judgment of any court against a personal representative shall fix him with assets, except a judgment of the judge or clerk, rendered as aforesaid, or the judgment of some appellate court rendered upon an appeal from such judgment. All other judgments shall be held merely to ascertain the debt, unless the personal representative by pleading expressly admits assets. (Rev., s. 125; Code, s. 1470; 1871-2, c. 213, s. 23; C. S. 131.)

A judgment against an executor or administrator in his representative capacity merely establishes the debt sued on and does not constitute a lien upon the lands of the estate, in the absence of a stipulation in the judgment to the contrary, until leave of court is granted for execution for failure of the representative to pay the ratable part of such judgment. Tucker v. Almond, 209 N. C. 333, 183 S. E. 407.

An absolute judgment against the representative neither fixes the defendant with assets nor disturbs the order of administration. It merely ascertains the debt sued on. Dunn v. Barnes, 73 N. C. 273, 277.

Where a warranty deed was not registered until several years after the death of the grantor, during which time several judgments were obtained against the personal representative of the grantor, and the grantee in the deed sold same after the judgments had been docketed to a purchaser for value by warranty deed, it was held that under the provisions of this and §§ 28-144 and 28-148 the judgments did not constitute a lien on the land in violation of the warranty against encumbrances. Tucker v. Almond, 209 N. C. 333, 183 S. E. 407.

Applied in Hood v. Stewart, 209 N. C. 424, 184 S. E. 36.

§ 28-144. Form and effect of execution.—All executions issued upon the order or judgment of the judge or clerk or of any appellate court against any personal representative, rendered as aforesaid, shall run against the goods and chattels of the deceased, and if none, then against the goods and chattels, lands and tenements of the representative. And all such judgments docketed in any county shall be a lien on the property for which execution is adjudged as fully as if it were against him personally. (Rev., s. 126; Code, s. 1471; 1871-2, c. 213, s. 24; C. S. 132.)

§ 28-145. Report is evidence of assets only at date.—The account and report and adjudication by the judge, clerk or any appellate court shall not be evidence as to the assets except on the day to which such adjudication relates. (Rev., s. 127; Code, s. 1472; 1871-2, c. 213, s. 25; C. S. 133.)

§ 28-146. Creditor giving security may show subsequent assets.—Any creditor may afterwards, on filing an affidavit by himself or his agent that he believes that assets have come to the hands of the personal representative since that day, and on giving an undertaking, with surety, or making a deposit for the costs of the personal representative, sue out a summons against him alleging subsequent assets, and the proceedings thereon shall be as hereinbefore prescribed, so far as the same may be necessary. (Rev., s. 128; Code, s. 1473; 1871-2, c. 213, s. 26; C. S. 134.)

§ 28-147. Suits for accounting at term.—In addition to the remedy by special proceeding, actions against executors, administrators, collectors and guardians may be brought originally to the superior court at term time; and in all such cases it is competent for the court in which said actions are pending to order an account to be taken by such person or persons as said court may designate, and to adjudge the application or distribution of the fund ascertained, or to grant other relief, as the nature of the case may require. (Rev., s. 129; Code, ss. 215, 1511; 1876-7, c. 241, s. 6; C. S. 135.)

In Nature of Bill in Equity.—A suit by the beneficiaries under a will to have the executor account for mismanagement of the estate is in the nature of a bill in equity to surcharge and falsify the executor's account. Thigpen v. Farmers' Banking, etc., Co., 203 N. C. 291, 165 S. E. 720.

Extent of Jurisdiction.—The jurisdiction and the powers of the court in actions of this nature is very comprehensive as to the purposes contemplated by them. Hence the court is vested with all powers, such as the power to grant injunctions, appoint receivers, etc., to effectuate a just and equitable settlement of the controversy. Godwin v. Watford, 107 N. C. 168, 171, 11 S. E. 1051.

Under this section the superior court has jurisdiction to entertain suits brought not only by creditors, but also by any party interested in the proper administration of an estate. It may bring the creditors in as defendants and protect the right of the parties by the appointment of a receiver. Fisher v. Trust Co., 138 N. C. 91, 98, 50 S. E. 592.

In an action instituted under this section to declare trust and to adjudge the liability of certain lands to the payment of legacies, the superior court (and also the supreme court) once having acquired jurisdiction of the controversy may retain the cause and incidentally grant the application of the personalty. Devereux v. Devereux, 81 N. C. 12, 18.

An action for the breach of representative's bond and for an account may, under this section, be brought before the superior court in term, without first seeking an account in the probate court. Bratton v. Davidson, 79 N. C. 423.

The venue of an action under this section is the county of decedent's last domicile where the will is probated. No objection, however, as to the wrong venue can be raised on an appeal if not raised in the court below. Devereux v. Devereux, 81 N. C. 12, 18.

Concurrent Jurisdiction.—This section was construed in Haywood v. Haywood, 79 N. C. 42; Fisher v. Trust Co., 138 N. C. 91, 50 S. E. 592; Pegram v. Armstrong, 82 N. C. 326; Bratton v. Davidson, 79 N. C. 423, 425, and other cases, in all of which it is held that concurrent original jurisdiction with the probate court is conferred on the Superior Court in a civil action to settle estates and subject real estate to the payment of debts. Shober v. Wheeler, 144 N. C. 403, 57 S. E. 152; Pegram v. Armstrong, 82 N. C. 326; Bratton v. Davidson, 79 N. C. 423. The jurisdiction of the clerk of the Superior Court in such cases is not exclusive but concurrent with that of the Superior Court. State v. McCanless, 193 N. C. 200, 204, 136 S. E. 371.

Under this section the distributees of an estate may bring suit originally in the Superior Court against the administrator for an accounting and for a breach of his bond. Leach v. Page, 211 N. C. 622, 191 S. E. 349.

"A special proceeding before the clerk, instituted by the personal representative of a decedent to sell land to make assets, is, by consent, converted into an administration suit and heard by the judge. C. S., 135 [this section]. Rigsbee v. Brogden, 209 N. C. 510, 184 S. E. 24. If the parties are content to proceed in this way, perhaps the court ought not to object sua sponte. Its jurisdiction is not questioned. Tillett v. Aydlett, 93 N. C. 15." Edney v. Mathews, 218 N. C. 171, 172, 10 S. E. (2d) 619.

Action to recover for personal services rendered testator's wife is properly brought in the Superior Court where it involves a construction of the will and an accounting. Meares v. Williamson, 209 N. C. 448, 184 S. E. 41.

Power of Judge in Term.—The expression in Moore v. Ingram, 91 N. C. 376, that "the judge in term has no jurisdiction over the settlement of intestates' estates" was made by inadvertence and only with reference to the situation presented in that case, not with reference to this section which confers this jurisdiction in express terms. Tillett v. Aydlett, 93 N. C. 15, 22.

Administration of Recovery.—In an action by the beneficiaries to recover assets of the estate alleged to have been wrongfully dissipated by defendant administrator to the profit of the other defendants alleged to have been in collusion with him, the fact that the administrator had been discharged will not preclude plaintiff's right to maintain the action for want of personal representative to administer any recovery that might be had, since the court has power by proper action to safeguard the rights of all parties. Johnson v. Hardy, 216 N. C. 558, 5 S. E. (2d) 853.

Cited in Gurganus v. McLawhorn, 212 N. C. 397, 193 S. E. 844.

§ 28-148. Proceedings against land, if personal assets fail.—If it appears at any time during, or upon, or after the taking of the account of a personal representative that his personal assets are insufficient to pay the debts of the deceased in full, and that he died seized of real property, it is the duty of the judge or clerk, at the instance of any party, to issue a summons in the name of the personal representative or of the creditors generally, to the heirs, devisees and others in possession of the lands of the deceased, to appear and show cause why said lands should not be sold for assets. Upon the return of the summons the proceeding shall be as is directed in other like cases. (Rev., ss. 130, 131; Code, ss. 1474, 1475; 1871-2, c. 213, ss. 27, 28; C. S. 136.)

Necessity of Summons.—In a case falling under the provisions of this section it is unnecessary for the clerk to issue the summons referred to in this section where the parties are all in court. Dickey v. Dickey, 118 N. C. 956, 958, 24 S. E. 715.

Exhaustion of Personalty. — Whether the proceedings to sell the real estate be under this section or section 28-122, it is essential that the insufficiency of the personalty be made to appear. Clement v. Cozart, 109 N. C. 173, 181, 13 S. E. 862.

Cited in Gurganus v. McLawhorn, 212 N. C. 397, 193 S. E. 844.

Art. 17. Distribution.

§ 28-149. Order of distribution.—The surplus of the estate, in case of intestacy, shall be distributed in the following manner, except as hereinafter provided:

In General.—At early common law the king took all the personalty. Afterwards the crown passed this prerogative to the church, which took all the personalty except the reasonable parts for the widow and the children, and the church officials claimed to dispose of it in pios usus. They were neither accountable for it nor required to pay the debts of the estate. By statute 13 Ed. III. (A. D. 1358) the churchmen were required to appoint an administrator who should be next of blood kin, and this relationship was computed by the civil law, and not by the common law, which was used in computing relationship in the descent of land. Subsequently by statute 21 Henry VIII (A. D. 1530) the administrator was appointed by the ordinary and was required to be the widow or next of kin, or both, who after paying the intestate's debts and the reasonable parts for the widow and children retained the surplus in their own right until the statutes of 22-23 and 29 Charles II, which required the surplus to be distributed among the next of kin in the manner provided in those statutes which became known as the Statute of distribution.

Under the English statutes 22, 23, and 29, Charles II, the mother as well as the father succeeded to all the personal effects of their children who died intestate and without wife or issue, to the exclusion of brothers and sisters of the deceased. And this is the law now in this state.

For an analysis of this section and the classification of the interest of the various classes of distributees thereunder, see Wells v. Wells, 158 N. C. 330, 333, 74 S. E. 114.

Distribution under Equitable Conversion. — While this section, as its subject matter implies, concerns the distribution of decedent's personalty, under circumstances which bring in the application of the doctrine of equitable conversion even realty or its proceeds is subject to the order of distribution prescribed under this section as if it had been personalty. McIver v. McKinney, 184 N. C. 393, 114 S. E. 399.

Wife Dissenting from the Will. — Even though a husband die testate, leaving a will in which he has provided for the wife, if she dissents from the will, as to her her husband has died intestate and she is entitled to her distributive right in accordance with this section, as if he had left no will. Hunter v. Husted, 45 N. C. 97.

Per Capita or Per Stirpes.—Where a fund consist of personalty and the claimants at the death of the intestate, were, and now are, all in equal degree the next of kin of the intestate, the distribution under this section must be per capita. Representation in the distribution of this kind of property, when allowed, is resorted to only when it is necessary to bring the claimants to equality of position as next of kin. Ellis v. Harrison, 140 N. C. 444, 53 S. E. 299.

Distribution Per Capita Where Heirs Are of Equal Degree.—Where intestate dies owning personalty and leaving as his sole heirs at law children of two deceased brothers and one deceased sister, the personalty must be equally divided among all his nephews and nieces per capita and not per stirpes, since each of the heirs at law are of equal degree of kinship. Nixon v. Nixon, 215 N. C. 377, 1 S. E. (2d) 828.

Husband as Next of Kin. — The husband of a deceased wife is not her next of kin so as to be entitled to a distributive share as such, within the purview of this section. Peterson v. Webb, 39 N. C. 56.

Illegitimate Child.—See note under § 28-152.

Applied in Lopez v. United States, 82 F. (2d) 982.

Cited in In re Estate of Pruden, 199 N. C. 256, 257, 154 S. E. 7.

1. If there are not more than two children, one-third part to the widow of the intestate, and all the residue by equal portions to and among the children of the intestate and such persons as legally represent such children as may then be dead.

2. If there are more than two children, then the widow shall share equally with all the children and be entitled to a child's part.

"Child's Part" Interpreted. — The phrase "child's part" as used in this section refers to the personal estate of the intestate, not to the real estate. McKrow v. Painter, 89 N. C. 438, 440.

3. If there is no child nor legal representative of a deceased child, then one-half the estate shall be allotted to the widow, and the residue be distributed equally to every of the next of kin of the intestate, who are in equal degree, and to those who legally represent them.

Intestate's Mother His Next of Kin. — When an intestate leaves no children, but a widow, a mother and sisters, the distribution of his estate is governed by this subdivision, and his mother is his next of kin and entitled to share equally in his personalty with his widow. His sisters are one degree farther than his mother. Wells v. Wells, 158 N. C. 330, 74 S. E. 114.

Representation among Collateral Relations.—This subsection changes the former rule under the Revised Code of 1854, so as to allow representation among collateral relations as to personalty to the same extent as in the descent of real property; and where the aunts and uncles of the deceased must take, the children of those who have died may take the part of the personalty their parents would have taken if living. Moore v. Rankin, 172 N. C. 599, 601, 90 S. E. 759.

Reason Where Terms Are Plain.—The terms of this subsection are plain and it is the duty of the court to observe them, even if it (the court) cannot supply the legislative reason therefor. Wells v. Wells, 156 N. C. 246, 72 S. E. 311.

4. If there is no widow, the estate shall be distributed, by equal portions, among all the children, and such persons as legally represent such children as may be dead.

5. If there is neither widow nor children, nor any legal representative of the children, the estate shall be distributed equally to every of the next of kin of the intestate, who are in equal degree, and those who legally represent them.

Mother as Next of Kin. — If there are no children, no widow of an intestate, there is no one in equal degree with the mother; and she as the next of kin is entitled to the personal estate of her son, under this subdivision. Wells v. Wells, 158 N. C. 330, 333, 74 S. E. 114.

Extent of Representation among Collaterals.—Under the former law (Rev. Code, ch. 64, sec. 2) it was held, in cases falling under this subsection, that among collateral kindreds no representative after brother's and sister's children shall be allowed to share in the distribution. See Nelson v. Blue, 63 N. C. 659; Johnson v. Chesson, 59 N. C. 146.—Ed. Note. But the provision upon which this conclusion is based no more appears.

The father and mother of an intestate under this subsection are next of kin of equal degree. Davis v. Railroad Co., 136 N. C. 115, 120, 48 S. E. 591.

Brother and Children of Deceased Brother—Husband of Deceased Niece.—The estate of the intestate descends to his surviving brother and the children of his deceased brother living at his death, who are entitled to the distribution of the estate as his next of kin, as also the husband of a deceased niece who was living at the death of the intestate, under the facts of this case. In re Estate of Wallace, 197 N. C. 334, 148 S. E. 456.

Sisters and Descendants of Brothers and Sisters.—Where intestate died leaving surviving him two sisters and the descendants of three brothers and two sisters who predeceased him, in the division of the personalty, the estate should be divided in seven equal parts, the surviving sisters each taking a part per capita, and the descendants of the deceased brothers and sisters taking the share of their ancestor per stirpes. In re Poindexter's Estate, 221 N. C. 246, 20 S. E. (2d) 49, 140 A. L. R. 1138.

Applied in In re Estate of Mizzelle, 213 N. C. 367, 196 S. E. 364.

6. If, in the lifetime of its father and mother, a child dies intestate, without leaving husband, wife or child, or the issue of a child, its estate shall be equally divided between the father and mother. If one of the parents is dead at the time of the death of the child, the surviving parent shall be entitled to the whole of the estate. The terms "father" and "mother" shall not apply to a step-parent, but shall apply to a parent by adoption: Provided, that a parent, or parents, who has willfully abandoned the care, custody, nurture and maintenance of such child to its kindred, relatives or other person, shall forfeit all and every right to participate in any part of said child's estate under the provisions of this section.

Editor's Note. — Prior to the amendment of 1915, (Pub. Laws, 1915, c. 37) this section entitled the father to the whole estate of his deceased child, to the exclusion of the mother. Hence it was formerly held that the mother of a deceased child in the lifetime of the father, may not recover for the mutilation of the child's body. Floyd v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 167 N. C. 55, 83 S. E. 12. By the Public Laws of 1927, c. 231, the proviso to this section was added.

Natural and Adopting Parents. — Natural parents, in case of adoption, are allowed to prevail over adopting parents in the distribution of a child's estate. Edwards v. Yearby, 168 N. C. 663, 85 S. E. 19; 5 N. C. L. R. 73.

Right of Divorced Husband to Share in Recovery for Death of His Child.—Where the husband has abandoned his wife and infant child, and the wife has obtained a divorce, and a recovery is had for the wrongful death of the child by her mother, who has again married, and has qualified as administratrix of her infant child, under the provisions of this clause of this section casting the inheritance upon the father and mother under stated conditions when both are living, the father is entitled to half the money recovered by the mother for the wrongful death of their infant child, though under a separate statute he has lost the right to its care and custody by a former adjudication of the court in the wife's action for divorce. Avery v. Brantley, 191 N. C. 396, 131 S. E. 721.

Right of Action for Mutilation of Child's Dead Body. — A father's relation to his minor child and the consequent duties imposed on him by law clothes him with a preferential right of action over the mother of the child to bring an action to recover damages for the mutilation of its dead body, and the provisions of this section do not affect the result. Stephenson v. Duke University, 202 N. C. 624, 163 S. E. 698.

Distribution of Proceeds for Wrongful Death.—Where the right of action created by statute for wrongful death does not constitute an asset of the estate, but belongs to the beneficiaries designated by this section and § 28-173 as the beneficiaries of the recovery, the administrator in bringing the action is pro hac vice their representative and not the representative of the estate. In such cases the prevailing view is to the effect that the negligence of the parent, directly or proximately contributing to the death of a child non sui juris, will bar the recovery in an action by the administrator, at least to the extent that the recovery, if any, would inure to the benefit of the parent so guilty of contributory negligence. Pearson v. National Manufacture, etc., Corp., 219 N. C. 717, 722, 14 S. E. (2d) 811.

Distributee of Proceeds of War Risk Insurance Policy. —Where the mother of a deceased soldier was dead at the time of his death, but his father was living, and the soldier had no wife or child or issue of a child at the time of his death, it was held that under this section the proceeds of a war risk insurance policy vested in the father as sole distributee under the intestate laws of this State. In re Hall, 205 N. C. 241, 243, 171 S. E. 61.

Funds Due under Policy as Assets of Estate.—Where a soldier having a war risk insurance policy died intestate, leaving his father and mother surviving him as sole heirs at law, and where neither had received as beneficiary in the war risk insurance policy any installment from the government during his or her life, it was held that the whole fund in contemplation of law was assets of the estate of the dead soldier, to be distributed immediately to the estates of his father and mother. The fact that one beneficiary lived longer than the other and was, therefore, entitled to receive more money in installments from the government, has nothing to do with the right of property as distributee. The intestate law of this State pegged that right at the death of the soldier. In re Estate of Reid, 206 N. C. 102, 103, 173 S. E. 49.

In McCullough v. Smith, 293 U. S. 228, 231, 55 S. Ct. 157, it was held that unpaid installments which accrued under a war risk insurance policy in favor of the father and mother of the deceased soldier as beneficiaries during their lives became the property of their respective estates. Also that installments which accrued to the assured during his lifetime, and the commuted value of the installments payable subsequent to the mother's death, became the property of his estate, thereby reversing In re Estate of Reid, 206 N. C. 102, 173 S. E. 49, which held that the installments which accrued to the beneficiaries—father and mother—during their lives should be treated as parts of the estate of the insured.

7. If there is no child nor legal representative of a deceased child nor any of the next of kin of the intestate, then the widow, if there is one, shall be entitled to all the personal estate of such intestate.

8. If a married woman die intestate leaving one child and a husband, the estate shall be equally distributed between the child and husband; if she leaves more than one child and a husband, the estate shall be distributed in equal portions and the husband shall receive a child's part, the child or children of any child or children of the intestate, who may have died prior to the mother, to represent his, her, or their parent in such distribution.

Editor's Note. — The provision at the end of this clause, that the child of the intestate's child shall represent his parent in the event such parent dies before the intestate's mother, was added by the act of 1921, ch. 54.

Husband's Note Set Up as a Counterclaim.—Where a husband is under this clause entitled to his distributive part in the personal property of his deceased wife, and she had a certain amount of money deposited in a bank, which has become insolvent and is in a receiver's hands, he may not successfully set up this interest under the provisions of section 1-137, as a counterclaim against his note, in an action by the receiver therein, until his wife's administrator has accounted for his trust or distributed the assets of his intestate's estate. Williams v. Williams, 192 N. C. 405, 135 S. E. 39.

Husband Entitled to His Distributive Share Only. — In Kilpatrick v. Kilpatrick, 176 N. C. 182, 96 S. E. 988, it was held that under this section as amended by the laws of 1923, the administrator of the wife may recover from the husband notes made payable to the wife and husband in consideration of the sale of her real property, and that the husband was entitled only to his distributive share through the administration.

9. If a married woman dies intestate, leaving a husband but no children, the surviving husband shall be entitled to all the personal estate of which his wife died intestate. (Rev., s. 132; Code, s. 1478; R. C., c. 64, s. 1; R. S., c. 64, s. 1; 1893, c. 82; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 53; 1913, c. 166; 1915, c. 37; 1921, c. 54; 1927, c. 231; C. S. 7, 137.)

Cross References.—As to husband's right to wife's personalty where she dies intestate without children, see § 28-7. As to inheritance under insurance policy where insured killed beneficiary and himself, see note to § 28-10. As to rules of descent, see § 29-1.

§ 28-150. Advancements to be accounted for.—Children who shall have any estate by the settlement of the intestate, or shall be advanced by him in his lifetime, shall account with each other for the same in the distribution of the estate in the manner as provided by the second rule in the chapter entitled descents, and shall also account for the same to the widow of the intestate in ascertaining her child's part of the estate. (Rev., s. 133; Code, s. 1483; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 54; C. S. 138.)

Advancement Defined. — An advancement is defined to be an irrevocable gift in presenti of money or property, real or personal, by a parent to a child to enable the latter to anticipate the inheritance or succession of the property of the former to the extent of the gift. Thompson v. Smith, 160 N. C. 256, 257, 75 S. E. 1010.

Creature of Statute Law.—Advancements are the creatures of statute law. Kiger v. Terry, 119 N. C. 456, 458, 26 S. E. 38.

Advancements are restricted by this section to gifts from a parent to a child, and ordinarily grandchildren may not be held accountable for gifts to themselves, but must account for gifts from their grandparents to their parent before they can inherit from their grandparent. Parker v. Eason, 213 N. C. 115, 195 S. E. 360.

Advancement a Matter of Intention.—The question whether a transfer of property from a parent to the child was a gift, loan or advancement is to be settled by the intention of the parent and surrounding circumstances at the time of the transfer, which may be shown by parol evidence. Kiger v. Terry, 119 N. C. 456, 26 S. E. 38.

Consideration and Presumption of Advancement.—Where a valuable and adequate consideration is recited, the presumption is against the conveyance being an advancement, and the burden to overcome this presumption is upon him who alleges it to be an advancement. Kiger v. Terry, 119 N. C. 456, 26 S. E. 38.

Presumption of Advancement Rebuttable.—The presumption is that property transferred or money paid by the parent is prima facie an advancement. But, this presumption being prima facie, is rebuttable by parol even where there is recital of consideration in deed, by a showing that the parent had a contrary intention at the time. The rule is not altered by this section. Thompson v. Smith, 160 N. C. 256, 75 S. E. 1010; Hollister v. Attmore, 58 N. C. 373; Harper v. Harper, 92 N. C. 300, 301.

Advancements by the Mother. — The original statute (1 Rev. Stat. ch. 64, sec. 2.) which provides for the accounting of advancements used the pronouns "he" and "she", and under this terminology it was held that the statute applied to advancements made by the mother as well as by the father. Daves v. Haywood, 54 N. C. 253, 256. Ed. Note.—The present section uses the words "advanced by him in his lifetime." It is believed that the construction put upon the original statute would still hold true.

But gifts made to the grandchildren are not so required. Daves v. Haywood, 54 N. C. 253; Skinner v. Wynne, 55 N. C. 41.

Return of Advancements as to the Widow.—Before the act of 1784, advancements were not required to be brought into the hotchpot for the benefit of the widow. But since that act, the policy of equality between the widow and the children as well as between the children themselves, is pronounced by the express terms of this section. Davis v. Duke, 1 N. C. 526, 527. This principal is applied in Eller v. Lillard, 107 N. C. 486, 491, 12 S. E. 462.

Dying Seized of Land Not a Prerequisite.—The advancements are to be accounted for even though the intestate has not died seized of any real estate. Headen v. Headen, 42 N. C. 159.

§ 28-151. Children advanced to render inventory; effect of refusal.—Where any parent dies intestate, who had in his or her lifetime given to, or put in the actual possession of, any of his or her children any personal property of what nature or kind soever, such child shall cause to be given to the administrator or collector of the estate an inventory, on oath, setting forth therein the particulars by him or her received of the intestate in his or her lifetime. In case any child who had, in the lifetime of the intestate, received a part of said estate, refuses to give such inventory, he shall be considered to have had and received his full share of the deceased's estate, and shall not be entitled to receive any further part or share. (Rev., ss. 134, 135; Code, ss. 1484, 1485; 1868-9, c. 113, ss. 55, 56; C. S. 139.)

Restricted Meaning of Section. — The general words of this section requiring the child to give an inventory of "any personal property of what nature or kind soever" have uniformly been held to have a restricted meaning, in that every gift of personal property by a donor is not necessarily an advancement. Bradsher v. Cannady, 76 N. C. 445, 446.

Expenses for Schooling, etc., Properly Charged as Advancements.—Intestate's grandchild, a daughter of intestate's deceased daughter, was charged with advancements for sums paid by intestate for her schooling and expenses incurred after she was eighteen or twenty years old, but no charge was made for expenses of rearing the grandchild. Upon the facts found by the referee the charge of advancements was correct. Wolfe v. Galloway, 211 N. C. 361, 190 S. E. 213.

§ 28-152. Illegitimates next of kin to mother and to each other.—Every illegitimate child of the mother dying intestate, or the issue of such illegitimate child deceased, shall be considered among her next of kin, and as such shall be entitled to a share of her personal estate as prescribed in this chapter. Illegitimate children, born of the same mother, shall be considered legitimate as between themselves and their representatives, and their personal estate shall be distributed in the same manner as if they had been born in lawful wedlock. And in case of the death of any such child or his issue, without leaving issue, his estate shall be distributed among his mother and all such persons as would be his next of kin if all such children had been born in lawful wedlock. (Rev., ss. 136, 137; Code, ss. 1486, 1487; 1868-9, c. 113, ss. 57, 58; C. S. 140.)

Cross References.—As to effects of legitimation, see § 49-11. As to descent of real property to and among illegitimates, see § 29-1, rules 9 and 10.

Editor's Note.—At common law bastards were incapable of being heirs, and no inheritable blood flows in their veins; hence, in the absence of other persons lawfully entitled to the property, the property escheated to the lord. They were considered the children of nobody, and consequently could have no ascending heirs, but only the issue of their own body. The reason of this rule was the uncertainty of the bastard's paternity. But this has been changed in this state in cases where there is no such uncertainty.

Brothers and Sisters of Bastard's Mother Do Not Inherit.—Under this section the mother and brothers and sisters of a bastard may inherit from him, but the rule extends no further, and the brothers and sisters of the bastard's mother may not inherit from him. Sharpe v. Carson, 204 N. C. 513, 168 S. E. 829.

Distributive Share of a Bastard's Niece. — Where a bastard died intestate leaving the daughter of a bastard brother, born of the same mother, his next of kin and a widow, it was held that the widow was entitled only to one-third of the personal estate and the daughter of his bastard brother to two-thirds. Coor v. Starling, 54 N. C. 243. Ed. Note.—This decision, however, now seems to be subject to the modifications in the amount of widow's distributive share under section 28-149.

Inheritance from Father of Mother who Predeceased Him.—An illegitimate child may not inherit as heir at law from her deceased grandfather, dying intestate, through her legitimate mother who predeceased him, under this section and section 28-149, clauses 4 and 5. In re Estate of Bullock, 195 N. C. 188, 141 S. E. 577, citing Waggoner v. Miller, 26 N. C. 480; Wilson v. Wilson, 189 N. C. 85, 126 S. E. 181; Wallace v. Wallace, 181 N. C. 158, 106 S. E. 501; and distinguishing Skinner v. Wynne, 55 N. C. 41.

Conflict of Laws.—In the case of Kenny v. Seaboard, etc., R. Co., 167 N. C. 14, 82 S. E. 968, an action was brought to recover damage for wrongful death under the Federal employers liability act which made the "next of kin," in the absence of other specified persons, the distributee of the decedent. It was held that the persons included in the phrase "next of kin" are to be determined by the laws of this state; and hence, the half brothers and sisters of the illegitimate child deceased were his "next of kin" within the meaning of this section, and entitled to their respective distributive shares as such.

§ 28-153. Allotment to after-born child in real estate.—The share of an after-born child in real estate shall be allotted to him out of any lands not devised, if there is enough for that purpose; and if there is none undevised, or not enough, then the whole share, or the deficiency, as the case may be, shall be made up of the lands devised; and so much thereof shall be taken from the several devisees according to their respective values, as near as may be convenient, as will make the proper share of such child. (Rev., s. 138; Code, s. 1536; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 108; C. S. 141.)

Cross References.—See § 31-45. As to compelling contribution among heirs, see § 28-67.

§ 28-154. Allotment to after-born child in personal property.—The share of an after-born child in the personal estate shall be paid and delivered to him out of any such estate not bequeathed, if there is enough for that purpose; and if there is none undisposed of, or not enough, then the whole share or the deficiency, as the case may be, shall be made up from the estate bequeathed; and so much shall be taken from the several legacies, according to their respective values, as will make the proper share of such child. (Rev., s. 139; Code, s. 1537; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 109; C. S. 142.)

Child Not en Ventre Sa Mere. — Before a child can be entitled to a distributive share under the statute of distribution in general, it must appear that he was either in being or en ventre sa mere at the time of the death of the intestate. Thus a half brother of the intestate born ten months and a half after her death is not entitled to a distributive share, though born before distribution. Grant v. Bustin, 21 N. C. 77.

Contributions as of What Time.—Contribution to make up the share of a child born after the execution of his father's will, must be made by the legatees in proportion to their respective interests under the will, dated as of the time when the estate was settled, or should have been settled, by the executor, bearing interest from such time. Johnson v. Chapman, 54 N. C. 130.

§ 28-155. Allotment of personalty from proceeds of realty.—If, after satisfaction of the child's share of real estate out of undevised lands, there is a surplus of such lands, and there is no personal estate undisposed of, or not enough to make up his share of such estate, then the surplus of undevised land, or as much as be necessary, shall be sold and the proceeds applied to making up his share of personal estate. And if, after satisfaction of the child's share of personal estate out of property undisposed of by the will, there is a surplus of such property, then the surplus thereof shall be applied, as far as it will go, in exoneration of land, both devised and descended; and the same shall be set apart and secured as real estate to such child, if an infant or non compos. (Rev., s. 140; Code, s. 1538; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 110; C. S. 143.)

§ 28-156. Effect of allotment of realty; contribution to equalize burden.—Upon the allotment to such child of any real estate in the manner aforesaid, he shall thenceforth be seised thereof in fee simple; and the court shall give judgment severally, in favor of such of the devisees and legatees of whose lands and legacies more has been taken away than in proportion to the respective values of said lands and legacies, against such of said devisees and legatees of whose lands and legacies a just proportion has not been taken away, for such sums as will make the contribution on the part of each and every of them equitable, and in the ratio of the values of the several devises and legacies. (Rev., s. 141; Code, s. 1539; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 111; C. S. 144.)

Cross Reference.—As to compelling contribution among heirs, see § 28-67.

§ 28-157. After-born child on allotment deemed devisee or legatee.—An after-born child after such decrees shall be considered and deemed in law a legatee and devisee as to his portion, shall be styled as such in all legal proceedings, and shall be liable to all the obligations and duties by law imposed on such: Provided, that all judgments or decrees bona fide obtained against the devisees and legatees previously to the preferring of any petition, and which were binding upon or ought to operate upon the lands and chattels devised or bequeathed, shall be carried into execution and effect notwithstanding, and the petitioner shall take his portion completely subject thereto: Provided further, that any suit instituted against the devisees and legatees previously to such petition shall not be abated or abatable thereby nor by the decree thereon, but shall go on as instituted, and the judgment and decree, unless obtained by collusion, be carried into execution; but on the filing of the petition, during the pendency of such suit, the petitioner, by guardian, if an infant, may become a defendant in the suit. (Rev., s. 142; Code, s. 1540; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 112; C. S. 145.)

§ 28-158. Before settlement executor may have claimants' shares in estate ascertained.—In case no petition is filed within two years, as herein prescribed, the executor or administrator with the will annexed, before he shall pay or deliver the legacies in the will given, or before paying to the next of kin of the testator any residue undisposed of by the will, shall call upon the legatees, devisees, heirs and next of kin, and the said after-born child, by petition in the superior court, to litigate their respective claims, and shall pray the court to ascertain the share to which said child shall be entitled, and to apportion the shares and sums to which the legatees, devisees, heirs or next of kin shall severally contribute toward the share to be allotted to said child, and the court shall adjudge and decree accordingly. (Rev., s. 143; Code, s. 1541; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 113; C. S. 146.)

§ 28-159. Legacy or distributive share recoverable after two years.—Legacies and distributiye shares may be recovered from an executor, administrator or collector by petition preferred in the superior court, at any time after the lapse of two years from his qualification, unless the executor, administrator or collector shall sooner file his final account for settlement. The suit shall be commenced and the proceeding therein conducted as prescribed in other cases of special proceedings. (Rev., s. 144; Code, s. 1510; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 83; C. S. 147.)

What Court Has Jurisdiction. — Under this section the Probate Court (i. e., the clerk of the Superior Court) has exclusive jurisdiction of proceedings for the recovery of legacies and distributive shares. When, however, a specific pecuniary legacy has been given, and has been assented to by the executor it becomes a debt, and must be recovered by action brought to the regular term of the Superior Court. Hendrick v. Mayfield, 74 N. C. 626, 632.

Proof of Assets.—While under this section a petition may be filed before the clerk of the Superior Court for the recovery of a legacy and prosecuted as in other cases of special proceedings unless the personal representative has assented to the legacy or the admission of assets is otherwise made to appear, a recovery can be had only upon proof that assets have either come or should have come into his hands applicable to the payment of the legacy. Unless this is done a judgment in legatee's favor is reversible error. York v. McCall, 160 N. C. 276, 278, 76 S. E. 884.

Jurisdiction in Special Proceeding. — Under this section the clerk of the superior court has original jurisdiction by special proceedings for the recovery of legacies, etc. But where an action is brought for the same to the regular term of the superior court, the defect is cured by the act of 1870, 1871, ch. 108 (Bat. Rev. ch. 17, secs. 425, 426). Bell v. King, 70 N. C. 330.

In special proceeding to remove administratrix, her rights as distributee may not be determined; such rights being determinable only in an action or proceeding in which both she and the administrator are parties. In re Banks' Estate, 213 N. C. 382, 196 S. E. 351.

§ 28-160. Payment to clerk after one year discharges representative pro tanto.—It is competent for any executor, administrator or collector, at any time after twelve months from the date of letters testamentary or of administration, to pay into the office of the clerk of the superior court of the county where such letters were granted, any moneys belonging to the legatees or distributees of the estate of his testator or intestate, and such payment shall have the effect to discharge such executor, administrator or collector and his sureties on his official bond to the extent of the amount so paid. (Rev., s. 145; Code, s. 1543; 1881, c. 305, s. 1; C. S. 148.)

The purpose of this section is to provide a safe public depository for such moneys and the exoneration of the personal representative. Ex parte Cassidey, 95 N. C. 225, 228.

Provisions Directory. — The provisions of this section are directory, and not mandatory. Moore v. Eure, 101 N. C. 11, 15, 7 S. E. 471; Thomas v. Connelly, 104 N. C. 342, 348, 10 S. E. 520.

Clerk's Responsibility. — Moneys paid to the clerk under this section, do not pass into the jurisdiction of the superior court, but the clerk receives and is chargeable with them, not, however, by virtue of his duties in connection with the court as a clerk, but as a safe public depository. Ex parte Cassidey, 95 N. C. 225, 227.

He receives them by virtue of his office as a clerk, and hence (his bond covering all moneys coming into his hands by virtue or color of his office) he is liable upon his bond. Presson v. Boone, 108 N. C. 78, 84, 12 S. E. 897, see Thomas v. Connelly, 104 N. C. 342, 10 S. E. 520.

Deposit of Moneys of Heirs. — The deposit authorized by this section refers to moneys belonging to the legatees or distributees of the estate. It does not refer to funds belonging to the heirs, such as proceeds of realty after payment of debts, which by the terms of sec. 28-58 are considered as realty belonging to the heirs or devisees. Thomas v. Connelly, 104 N. C. 342, 348, 10 S. E. 520.

Liability for Interest.—Where funds belonging to a minor are paid into the hands of the clerk of the Superior Court by an administrator under the provisions of this section, discharging the administrator and his sureties from liability in regard thereto, it is not required by §§ 28-166 and 2-46 that the clerk invest the funds, upon interest, unless so directed, the clerk being liable for such funds as an insurer, and the clerk and his sureties are not liable for the amount of interest the funds would have drawn if they had been so invested, but if the funds are actually invested by the clerk he is liable for the interest actually received therefrom, since a fiduciary will not be allowed to make a personal profit out of funds committed to his custody. Williams v. Hooks, 199 N. C. 489, 154 S. E. 828.

Where on appeal there is no agreed statement of fact or finding as to whether a deceased clerk of court invested and received interest, for which his estate must account, on a sum paid into his hands under the provisions of this section, the case will be remanded for a specific finding in regard thereto. Williams v. Hooks, 199 N. C. 489, 490, 154 S. E. 828.

§ 28-161. On payment clerk to sign receipt.—It is the duty of the clerk, in the cases provided for in § 28-160, to receive such money from any executor, administrator or collector, and to execute a receipt for the same under the seal of his office. (Rev., s. 146; Code, s. 1544; 1881, c. 305, s. 3; C. S. 149.)

Cross Reference.—See annotations under § 28-160.

Recovery of Moneys Paid into Clerk's Office.—A similar proceeding as provided in sections 28-147 and 28-159 may be maintained against the clerk either by special proceedings or civil action in the superior court in cases where the representative has paid the money in his hands into the office of the clerk under section 28-160. Ex parte Cassidey, 95 N. C. 225, 228.

Art. 18. Settlement.

§ 28-162. Representative must settle after two years. — No executor, administrator, or collector, after two years from his qualification, shall hold or retain in his hands more of the deceased's estate than amounts to his necessary charges and disbursements and such debts as he shall legally pay; but all such estate so remaining shall, immediately after the expiration of two years, be divided and be delivered and paid to the person to whom the same may be due by law or the will of the deceased; and the clerk of the superior court in each county shall require settlement of the balance in hand due distributees as shown by the final account of any administrator, executor, or guardian, and shall audit same: Provided, that the several clerks of the superior courts of this State may, in their discretion, for good cause shown, extend the time for the final settlement of any administrator or executor; provided, that nothing herein contained shall relieve any such administrator or executor of the duty of administering and distributing such funds and property in his hands as may be available for such purposes; provided, further, that any party having an interest in any such estate may, within ten days from the entry of an order extending the time for final settlement, appeal from such order to the resident or presiding judge of the district, which appeal shall be heard as is now or may hereafter be prescribed by law for the hearing of other appeals from the clerk. (Rev., s. 147; Code, s. 1488; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 59; 1919, c. 69; 1933, c. 188; 1935, c. 377; C. S. 150.)

Editor's Note.—The allowance of two years in this section is intended as a maximum limitation beyond which the representative may not retain any part of the estate; it is not a permissive limitation for a period of two years. It is based upon the supposition that many estates which are complicated cannot be settled in less time. Hence where there are no debts due from the estate, the representative will not be permitted to suspend the settlement for a period of two years. See Turnage v. Turnage, 42 N. C. 127.

By the 1935 amendment the proviso added by the 1933 amendment giving the clerk power to extend the time was changed and the two provisos at the end of the section were added.

The general policy of the laws regarding the settlement of the estate which is more specifically expressed in this section is that the personal representative shall regularly prepare the estate in his hands for final distribution immediately after the lapse of two years next after his qualification. The dissenting opinion in Andres v. Powell, 97 N. C. 156, 164, 2 S. E. 235.

Settlement within Two Years. — This section merely marks an utmost limit of time in which the representative must settle; it does not authorize him to withhold settlement for that length of time (two years) where there is no justification therefor. Hence the parties interested may call on him to account within that period. Snow v. Boylston, 185 N. C. 321, 117 S. E. 14. See also, Clements v. Rogers, 91 N. C. 63.

Time of Final Account and Settlement. — The final account always precedes the settlement, for without it there is no way of telling what is due. Self v. Shugart, 135 N. C. 185, 196, 47 S. E. 484.

Statute of Limitation.—After ten years from the expiration of the two years' period prescribed by this section, an action for settlement against the personal representative will be barred by the statute of limitation. Edwards v. Lemmond, 136 N. C. 329, 330, 48 S. E. 737.

This section gives the personal representative two years to make a final settlement but he may be sued within ten years thereafter. Healey v. Reynolds Tobacco Co., 48 F. Supp. 207, 210.

§ 28-163. Extension of time for final accounts when funds are in closed banks.—Where as much as twenty-five per cent of the estate of any decedent is represented by deposits in a bank or trust company in course of liquidation, the personal representative of such decedent shall, in the discretion of the clerk of the superior court, have ninety days after the payment of the final dividend in which to file his final account. The several clerks of the superior court of this State may, in their discretion, upon good cause shown, extend the time for the final settlement of any executor or administrator: Provided, that this section shall not relieve any personal representative of the duty of administering and distributing other funds and property in his hands, as now required by law. (1935, c. 244.)

§ 28-164. Retention of funds to satisfy claims not due or in litigation.—If, on a final accounting before the judge or clerk, it appears that any claim exists against the estate which is not due, or on which suit is pending, the judge or clerk shall allow a sum sufficient to satisfy such claim, or the proportion to which it may be entitled, to be retained in the hands of the executor, administrator or collector, for the purpose of being applied to the payment when due or when recovered, with the expense of contesting the same. The order allowing such sum to be retained must specify the amount and nature of the claim. (Rev., s. 148; Code, s. 1489; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 60; C. S. 151.)

No Allowance for Contingent Liabilities. — Claims for which an allowance will be made to the representative, within the contemplation of this section, are such claims as are existing and capable of being ascertained and not a mere contingent liability which may never ripen into a cause of action, such as the contingent liability of a surety or co-security on an administration bond. Adams v. Durham, etc., R. Co., 110 N. C. 325, 14 S. E. 857.

§ 28-165. After final account representative may petition for settlement.—An executor, administrator or collector, who has filed his final account for settlement, may, at any time thereafter, file his petition against the parties interested in the due administration of the estate, in the superior court of the county in which he qualified, or before the judge in term time, setting forth the facts, and praying for an account and settlement of the estate committed to his charge. The petition shall be proceeded on in the manner prescribed by law, and, at the final hearing thereof, the judge or clerk may make such order or decree in the premises as shall seem to be just and right. (Rev., s. 150; Code, s. 1525; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 96; C. S. 152.)

Payment of Debt Necessary. — The personal representative should pay all debts before beginning a proceeding under this section. Carlton v. Byers, 93 N. C. 302, 304.

Allegations of Petition.—Where the petition filed under this section does not state that the personal representative has filed a final account or that he has the funds ready in hand for distribution, the petition will be dismissed. Moore v. Rankin, 172 N. C. 599, 602, 90 S. E. 759; Self v. Shugart, 135 N. C. 185, 196, 47 S. E. 484.

§ 28-166. Payment into court of fund due absent defendant or infant.—When any balance of money or other estate which is due an absent defendant or infant without guardian is found in the hands of an executor, administrator or collector who has preferred his petition for settlement, the court or judge may direct such money or other estate to be paid into court, to be invested upon interest, or otherwise managed under the direction of the judge, for the use of such absent person or infant. (Rev., s. 151; Code, s. 1526; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 97; 1893, c. 317; C. S. 153.)

Cross Reference.—As to the manner of investment of funds in the hands of clerks of court under color of their office, see § 2-54 et seq. It has been suggested in 9 N. C. L. R. 399 that this section is impliedly repealed in part by those sections.

§ 28-167. Procedure where person entitled unheard of for seven years.—When the party entitled to the money has not been heard of for seven years or more, the fund shall be distributed among the next of kin of the absent deceased person as prescribed by statute, in the following manner: An administrator shall be appointed and made a party to a special proceeding in which a verified petition shall be filed setting forth the facts, with names of the parties entitled, and the proceedings conducted as other special the clerk in whose office said fund was deposited, and the proceedings conducted as other special proceedings; and the order disposing of the fund shall be approved and confirmed by the judge, either at term or at chambers. (Rev., s 151; Code, s. 1526; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 97; 1893, c. 317; C. S. 154.)

§ 28-168. Parties to proceeding for settlement.—In all actions and proceedings by administrators or executors for a final settlement of their estates and trusts, whether at the instance of distributees, legatees or creditors or of themselves, if the personal representative dies or is removed pending such actions or proceedings, the administrator de bonis non or administrator with the will annexed, as the case may be, shall be made party as provided in other cases, or in such judgment shall be rendered on the con- or proceeding shall be conducted to its end, and such way as the court may order, and the action firmation of the report, or upon the terms of settlement, if any shall be agreed upon by the parties, as will fully protect and discharge all parties to the record. (Rev., s. 154; 1893, c. 206; C. S. 155.)

§ 28-169. When legacies may be paid in two years.—It is in the power of the judge or court, on petition or action, within two years from the qualification of an executor, administrator or collector, to adjudge the payment in full or partially, of legacies and distributive shares, on such terms as the court deems proper, when there is no necessity for retaining the fund. (Rev., s. 155; Code, s. 1512; C. S. 156.)

Expiration of Two Years Not Prerequisite. — The provision of this section is only a legislative affirmance of the law as it existed before the code. The allowance of two years to the representative is intended as an indulgence; it does not authorize him to defer the settlement until the expiration of that time, without necessity. Clements v. Rogers, 91 N. C. 63, 65.

It follows that in a petition filed against the representative for settlement absence of allegation that two years have elapsed since his qualification is immaterial, where it is alleged that the estate is solvent and that there is no reason why the representative should further retain the fund. Leonard v. Leonard, 107 N. C. 168, 170, 11 S. E. 1051.

Call for Account within Two Years. — The representative may be called upon by the legatees or the next of kin to account for the distributive shares and legacies even before the expiration of two years from the time of grant of administration. Hobbs v. Craige, 23 N. C. 332.

§ 28-170. Commissions allowed representatives.—Executors, administrators, testamentary trustees, collectors, or other personal representatives or fiduciaries shall be entitled to commissions to be fixed in the discretion of the clerk not to exceed five per cent upon the amount of receipts, including the value of all personalty when received, and upon the expenditures made in accordance with law, which commissions shall be charged as a part of the costs of administration and, upon allowance, may be retained out of the assets of the estate against creditors and all other persons claiming an interest in the estate. In determining the amount of such commissions, both upon personalty received and upon expenditures made, the clerk shall consider the time, responsibility, trouble and skill involved in the management of the estate. Where land is sold to pay debts or legacies, the commission shall be computed only on the proceeds actually applied in the payment of debts or legacies. The clerk may make allowances on account of commissions on receipts of personalty and expenditures at any time during the course of the administration, but the total commissions allowed shall be determined on final settlement of the estate and shall not exceed the limit herein fixed. Nothing in this section shall prevent the clerk allowing reasonable sums for necessary charges and disbursements incurred in the management of the estate. Nothing in this section shall be construed to allow commissions on allotment of dower, on distribution of the shares of heirs, on distribution of the shares of distributees of personal property or on distribution of shares of legatees; and nothing herein contained shall be construed to abridge the right of any interested party to such administration to appeal from the clerk's order to the judge of the superior court. (Rev., s. 149; Code, s. 1524; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 95; 1869-70, c. 189; 1941, c. 124; C. S. 157.)

Editor's Note.—The 1941 amendment rewrote this section. For comment on the amendment, see 19 N. C. Law Rev. 543.

Object of Compensation. — The compensation is allowed to the representative in order to reward him not only for his time, labor and trouble but also for the responsibility incurred, and the fidelity with which he discharged the duties of his trust. It should not, however, be allowed where due to his neglect the estate has suffered loss. Kelly v. Odum, 139 N. C. 278, 280, 51 S. E. 953.

This same rule applies to the allowance of necessary charges and disbursements—such as counsel fees. Id. For example, where he resists a claim which has been adjudged against him in a prior litigation. Johnson v. Marcom, 121 N. C. 83, 28 S. E. 58.

Not Entitled at All Events. — The representative is not, under this section, entitled to commission at all events. He must have earned them by a just and reasonable discharge of his duties. It must appear that the "receipts and expenditures" referred to have been fairly made in the course of administration. The law will not allow compensation to one who disregards its commands. Grant v. Reese, 94 N. C. 720.

Commission on Specific Property Administered. — Specific articles merely inventoried by an executor and delivered to the legatee, are not "receipts," within the meaning of this section, upon which a commission is to be calculated. It may be proper, in estimating the commission, to take into consideration the trouble of managing such articles, but the value of such articles is not to be the basis of such computation. Walton v. Avery, 22 N. C. 405, 412.

Appeal on Commission under 5%. — Notwithstanding the fact that the amount of commissions allowed in a given case has not exceeded 5% on the receipts and disbursements, the allowance is reviewable upon appeal for inadequacy or excessiveness. It cannot strictly be said that the lower court has exclusive discretion within the limit of 5%. Bank v. Bank, 126 N. C. 531, 537, 36 S. E. 39.

Order for Commissions Final Judgment. — An order allowing commissions is a final judgment upon which an appeal may be taken. Bank v. Bank, 126 N. C. 531, 36 S. E. 39.

Commission on Both Receipts and Disbursements. — Commissions may be allowed to the representative on both receipts and disbursements, as separate acts. Bank v. Bank, 126 N. C. 531, 540, 36 S. E. 39.

Bank as Administrator and Guardian of Distributee.— Commissions are allowed where one person is both administrator and guardian of distributee. Rose v. Bank of Wadesboro, 217 N. C. 600, 9 S. E. (2d) 2.

Counsel Fees as Necessary Charges. — Besides commissions, the representative is allowed to retain his expenses for necessary charges and disbursements in the settlement of the estate. Among these necessary charges fees paid to counsel are embraced. Hester v. Hester, 38 N. C. 9; Love v. Love, 40 N. C. 201; Fairbairn v. Fisher, 58 N. C. 385, 387.

Attorney as Executor.—When a lawyer voluntarily becomes executor he assumes the office cum onere, and the exercise by him of his professional skill in the management of the estate does not entitle him to counsel fees, but his compensation is limited to the five per cent maximum allowed by this section. Lightner v. Boone, 221 N. C. 78, 19 S. E. (2d) 144.

Dower as an "Interest in the Estate". — Manifestly, a claim of dower is an "interest" in the estate. Hence the wording of this section lends direct support to a judgment giving priority to commissions due executors, reasonable attorney's fees and costs. Parsons v. Leak, 204 N. C. 86, 92, 167 S. E. 563.

Applied in In re Hege, 205 N. C. 625, 172 S. E. 345.

§ 28-171. Liability and compensation of clerk.— Every clerk of the superior court who may be intrusted with money or other estate in such case shall be liable on his official bond for the faithful discharge of the duties enjoined upon him by the judge in relation to said estate, and he may receive such compensation for his services as the judge may allow. (Rev., s. 152; Code, s. 1527; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 98; C. S. 158.)

Art. 19. Actions by and against Representative.

§ 28-172. Action survives to and against representative.—Upon the death of any person, all demands whatsoever, and rights to prosecute or defend any action or special proceeding, existing in favor of or against such person, except as hereinafter provided, shall survive to and against the executor, administrator or collector of his estate. (Rev., s. 156; Code, s. 1490; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 63; C. S. 159.)

Cross Reference.—As to abatement of actions, see § 1-74.

Editor's Note.—The rule of the common law is that a person's right of action dies with the person. But great changes in this respect have been wrought by legislation and the decisions of the courts, and the maxim actio personalis moritur cum persona has thereby lost much of its validity. As to pure torts to person, feeling or reputation, it still retains its ancient force and vigor, but it does not now apply to torts committed to property, personal or real. As to the first kind of property, it was repealed by the act, 4 Edward III, ch. 7, and as to the second kind by 3 and 4 William IV, ch. 42. These provisions have been substantially adopted by our legislature. See Mast v. Sapp, 140 N. C. 533, 536, 53 S. E. 350.

The rule of the common law that a personal right of action dies with the person has been changed by this section and § 1-74 and, except in the instances specified in § 28-175, an action originally maintainable by or against a deceased person is now maintainable by or against his personal representative. Suskin v. Maryland Trust Co., 214 N. C. 347, 350, 199 S. E. 276.

It was formerly held that this section did not change the common law rule that a right of action sounding in tort for personal injuries does not survive the tort feasor or the injured person where the injury did not cause death, in view of the express terms of sec. 28-175, which then declared inter alia, that injuries to person, not causing death to the injured party shall not survive, see Watts v. Vanderbilt, 167 N. C. 567, 83 S. E. 813; Harper v. Commissioners, 123 N. C. 118, 31 S. E. 384; Bolick v. Railroad, 138 N. C. 370, 50 S. E. 689; Strauss v. Wilmington, 129 N. C. 99, 39 S. E. 772.

So also, under the same provision, it was held that an action against a telegraph company for mental anguish caused by failure to deliver a telegram abates upon the death of the plaintiff under sec. 1-74, and does not survive. Morton v. Western Union Tel. Co., 130 N. C. 299, 302, 41 S. E. 484.

But this provision of section 28-175 no more exists. The inference, therefore, is that such actions, at least those based on a tangible physical injury do survive, under the broad provisions of this section, irrespective of whether the injury has caused death or not; and that the provisions of section 28-175 specifying the actions which will not survive are limited to actions therein designated. See Fuguay v. A. & W. Ry. Co., 199 N. C. 499, 500, 155 S. E. 167.

As to those actions which are not based on a tangible physical injury, however, such as for mental anguish, etc., this last conclusion is somewhat doubtful, in view of the analogy between such actions and actions for libel and slander which by express terms of section 28-175 are still declared not to survive.

Relation of Revival and Survival.—The general rule is that wherever an action can be revived against the representative, it will also survive against him. Butner v. Keelhn, 51 N. C. 60.

This section does not revive the action against a distributee, but against the personal representative. Healey v. Reynolds Tobacco Co., 48 F. Supp. 207, 210.

The breach of the condition subsequent contained in a deed entitles the grantor during his life, of his heirs after his death, to bring suit for the land or to declare the estate forfeited, but does not entitle the administrator to bring such suit, this section not being applicable. Barkley v. Thomas, 220 N. C. 341, 17 S. E. (2d) 482.

Vindictive Damages.—Though the cause of action for trespass may survive against the representative of the trespasser, no vindictive damages may be recovered in such action. Rippey v. Miller, 33 N. C. 247.

Cited in Price v. Askins, 212 N. C. 583, 194 S. E. 284.

§ 28-173. Death by wrongful act; recovery not assets; dying declarations.—When the death of a person is caused by a wrongful act, neglect or default of another, such as would, if the injured party had lived, have entitled him to an action for damages therefor, the person or corporation that would have been so liable, and his or their executors, administrators, collectors or successors shall be liable to an action for damages, to be brought within one year after such death, by the executor, administrator or collector of the decedent; and this notwithstanding the death, and although the wrongful act, neglect or default, causing the death, amounts in law to a felony. The amount recovered in such action is not liable to be applied as assets, in the payment of debts or legacies, except as to burial expenses of the deceased, but shall be disposed of as provided in this chapter for the distribution of personal property in case of intestacy.

In all actions brought under this section the dying declarations of the deceased as to the cause of his death shall be admissible in evidence in like manner and under the same rules as dying declarations of the deceased in criminal actions for homicide are now received in evidence. (Rev., s. 59; Code, ss. 1498, 1500; 1868-9, c. 113, ss. 70, 72, 115; R. C., c. 46, ss. 8, 9; 1919, c. 29; 1933, c. 113; C. S. 160.)

Editor's Note.—For critical appraisal of this section, see 11 N. C. Law Rev. 263. And see 16 N. C. Law Rev. 211.

Under the common law there was no civil action for the wrongful death of a human being. Although the harshness of this doctrine was obvious it was not until 1846 that the English Parliament passed the statute known as Lord Campbell's Act (9 & 10 Vict., c. 93) which made such actions possible.

The wrongful death acts in the different states in this country are generally based upon Lord Campbell's Act, although there are distinct differences. The English Statute seems to have been especially designed to aid the families of the deceased but in regard to the North Carolina Act the Supreme Court in Russell v. Windsor Steamboat Co., 126 N. C. 961, 965, 36 S. E. 191, says: This section unlike Lord Campbell's Act does not regard the family relation and is not for the purpose of "compensating the families of persons killed by accident."

The exception as to burial expenses to the exemption of the amount from payment of debts was inserted by Public Laws 1933, c. 113.

Not a Common-Law Right.—The right of recovery for death by wrongful act did not exist at common law, and rests entirely upon this section. Broadnax v. Broadnax, 160 N. C. 432, 76 S. E. 216; Hall v. Southern R. Co., 149 N. C. 108, 110, 62 S. E. 899; Harper v. Commissioners, 123 N. C. 118, 119, 31 S. E. 384; Hinnant v. Tidewater Power Co., 189 N. C. 120, 121, 126 S. E. 307.

Purpose of Section. — The purpose of this section was to withdraw claims of this kind from the effect and operation of the maxim actio personalis moritur cum persona, and to continue, as the basis of the claim of his estate, the wrongful injury to the person resulting in death. Mitchell v. Talley, 182 N. C. 683, 109 S. E. 882.

It Is Similar to the Georgia Statute.—The wrongful death statute of Georgia is not so dissimilar from this section in scope, meaning, and practical application as to deprive the trial courts of this state of jurisdiction to hear and determine a cause for the negligent killing in the state of Georgia of a resident of this state. Rodwell v. Camel City Coach Co., 205 N. C. 292, 171 S. E. 100.

Creates New Cause of Action. — The cause of action for personal injuries ceases with the death of the injured party and the action under this section is not a survival of the former but an entirely new action. Harper v. Commissioners, 123 N. C. 118, 119, 31 S. E. 384; Bolick v. Railroad, 138 N. C. 370, 50 S. E. 689; Taylor v. Cranberry, etc., Iron Co., 94 N. C. 526.

It creates a new cause of action, however, only in the sense that at common law the right did not survive to the personal representative. Mitchell v. Talley, 182 N. C. 683, 109 S. E. 882.

Liberal Construction. — This section is not penal but remedial in its nature, and it should be given such construction as will effectuate the intention of the legislature in enacting it. Hall v. Southern R. Co., 149 N. C. 108, 62 S. E. 899; Vance v. Railroad, 138 N. C. 460, 464, 50 S. E. 860.

Writ of Attachment May Issue.—A writ of attachment will issue under section 1-440, subsec. 4, to enforce the right created by this section. Mitchell v. Talley, 182 N. C. 683, 109 S. E. 882.

A Property Right. — This section gives clear indication of the purpose of the Legislature to impress upon the right of action the character of property as a part of the intestate's estate. Neill v. Wilson, 146 N. C. 242, 245, 59 S. E. 674.

Decedent Fully Compensated before Death. — Where the injured party has received in his lifetime full compensation for the injury which resulted in his death, a right of action arising from the same injury will not lie after his death for further damages for the benefit of his estate. Edwards v. Interstate Chemical Co., 170 N. C. 551, 87 S. E. 635.

What Constitutes a Cause of Action.—It is entirely immaterial for the purpose of establishing a cause of action under the provisions of this section whether the act was wanton or cruel. Facts showing a legal duty and neglect thereof on the part of defendant with a resulting injury to the plaintiff are sufficient to constitute a cause of action. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Catlett, 177 Fed. 71, 74.

McManus, 208 N. C. 802, 182 S. E. 483; Winslow v. Carolina Conference Ass'n, 211 N. C. 571, 191 S. E. 403; Taylor v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 213 N. C. 671, 197 S. E. 159.

Applied in Hancock v. Wilson, 211 N. C. 129, 189 S. E. 631; Lemings v. Southern Ry. Co., 211 N. C. 499, 191 S. E. 39; Mack v. Marshall Field & Co., 217 N. C. 55, 6 S. E. (2d) 889.

II. LIMITATION OF THE ACTION.

In General.—The limitation of the section is stated in Davis v. Norfolk Southern R. Co., 200 N. C. 345, 157 S. E. 11.

Condition Affecting Cause. — The provision that the action must be brought within one year is not a statute of limitation but is a condition affecting the cause of action itself. Trull v. Seaboard Air Line R. Co., 151 N. C. 545, 547, 66 S. E. 586. See also Mathis v. Camp Mfg. Co., 204 N. C. 434, 435, 168 S. E. 515; Curlee v. Duke Power Co., 205 N. C. 644, 647, 172 S. E. 329.

Hence it must be alleged and proved by the plaintiff to make out a cause of action and is not required to be pleaded as a statute of limitations. Bennett v. North Carolina R. Co., 159 N. C. 345, 74 S. E. 883; Hatch v. Alamance R. Co., 183 N. C. 617, 112 S. E. 529; Hanie v. Penland, 193 N. C. 800, 138 S. E. 165.

The requirement that the action shall be brought within one year is a condition annexed to the right of action and not to the person of the defendant and it must be shown by the plaintiff that he has complied therewith, and it is not necessary for the defendant to plead it as a statute of limitations. Neely v. Minus, 196 N. C. 345, 145 S. E. 771.

Provision as to Time Strictly Construed. — This provision requiring suit to be brought within one year after the death must be strictly complied with. Taylor v. Cranberry Iron, etc., Co., 94 N. C. 525, 526; Whitehead v. Branch, 220 N. C. 507, 17 S. E. (2d) 637. And no explanation as to why the action was not brought within such time can avail. Best v. Kinston, 106 N. C. 205, 10 S. E. 997. Therefore, the fact that no administrator was appointed does not vary the rule. Best v. Kinston, 106 N. C. 205, 10 S. E. 997.

Applies to Nonresident Defendant.—The provision that the action must be brought within one year applies with full force whether the defendant be a resident or a nonresident. Neely v. Minus, 196 N. C. 345, 347, 145 S. E. 771, citing McGuire v. Lumber Co., 190 N. C. 806, 131 S. E. 274.

After Nonsuit.—A new action under this section may be commenced within one year after a nonsuit, as provided in sec. 1-25. Neekins v. Norfolk, etc., R. Co., 131 N. C. 1, 2, 42 S. E. 333; Trull v. Seaboard, etc., R. Co., 151 N. C. 545, 548, 66 S. E. 586. See also Swainey v. Great Atlantic, etc., Tea Co., 204 N. C. 713, 715, 169 S. E. 618; Jones v. Bagwell, 207 N. C. 378, 388, 177 S. E. 170. See also, Blades v. Southern Ry. Co., 218 N. C. 702, 12 S. E. (2d) 553.

This section, construed with § 1-25, extends the time within which the action must be brought in case of nonsuit to the extreme limit of two years, and where the defendant has, under the Federal statutes, removed the cause from the State to the Federal Court, and there taken a nonsuit, and has commenced his action again in the State court, the fact that the second action between the same parties, upon the same subject-matter, was commenced in the State court more than one year after the date of the death does not bar the plaintiff's right of action. Brooks v. Suncrest Lumber Co., 194 N. C. 141, 138 S. E. 532, citing Fleming v. R. R., 128 N. C. 80, 38 S. E. 253.

After Discontinuance.—Where there is a break in the continuity in the issuance of alias and pluries summonses in a civil action to recover damages for a wrongful death there is a discontinuance, and service of a summons thereafter commences a new action, and if issued more than one year after the wrongful death of the action will be dismissed. Neely v. Minus, 196 N. C. 345, 145 S. E. 771.

Conflict of Laws.—This section confers a right not existing at common law, and the provision that the action be brought within one year is a condition annexed to the cause of action and also a statute of limitation in regard thereto, and an action brought against a resident defendant by a nonresident plaintiff for a wrongful death occurring in another State is controlled by our statute prescribing the time within which such action can be brought and not a general statute of the State in which the deatn occurred which allows a longer period. Tieffenbrun v. Flannery, 198 N. C. 397, 151 S. E. 857.

The fact that an action is not instituted within the limitation prescribed may be taken advantage of by demurrer when the dates appear as a matter of record. George v. Atlanta, etc., Ry. Co., 210 N. C. 58, 185 S. E. 431.

Where it appeared upon the face of the record that more than one year had elapsed between the accrual of the cause of action and the filing of the amended complaint, the demurrer of the corporate defendants was properly sustained, the action against them not having been instituted within the limitation prescribed by this section. Id.

Cited in Webster v. Charlotte, 222 N. C. 321, 22 S. E. (2d) 900.

III. PARTIES TO THE ACTION.

Action against Estate of One Causing Wrongful Death.—Where a person is alleged to have caused the death of another by his wrongful act, neglect, or default, and suit has been brought against him and is pending at his death, within one year after the wrongful death caused by him, an action will lie against the executor and administrator of the deceased defendant under the provisions of this section. Tonkins v. Cooper, 187 N. C. 570, 122 S. E. 294.

Where Deceased Is an Infant. — Under this section the administrator may sue for the death of an infant a few months old. Russell v. Windsor Steamboat Co., 126 N. C. 961, 36 S. E. 191; Davis v. Railroad Co., 136 N. C. 115, 116, 48 S. E. 591.

Action by Administrator of Child against Parents.—An unemancipated child living with his parents may not maintain an action in tort against them, nor can the administrator of the child recover damages against them for the child's wrongful death, as this section gives a right of action for wrongful death only where the injured party, if he had lived, could have maintained such action. Goldsmith v. Samet, 201 N. C. 574, 160 S. E. 835.

Joinder of Employer with Employee.—The right to maintain an action for the wrongful death of a deceased rests exclusively upon this section, and where the death is caused by the negligence of an employee while acting within the scope of his authority the employer may be joined as a defendant under the doctrine of respondeat superior. Brown v. Southern R. Co., 202 N. C. 256, 162 S. E. 613.

Action by Administrator of Employee Who Has Received Workman's Compensation.—Although an administratrix of a deceased employee who has received compensation for the employee's death under the provisions of the Workmen's Compensation Act is thereby barred from prosecuting any other remedy for the injury, she may, under this section, pending the hearing before the Industrial Commission, institute an action against a third person whose negligent acts caused the death of the intestate, and where the insurance carrier has paid the compensation later awarded, it is subrogated to the rights of the employer and may maintain the action against such third person in the name of the administratrix. Phifer v. Berry, 202 N. C. 388, 163 S. E. 119.

Since the North Carolina Workmen's Compensation Act expressly provides that the subrogated right of action against the third person tort-feasor in favor of the insurance carrier paying compensation for which the employer is liable, must be maintained in the name of the injured employee or his personal representative the act does not change or modify the requirement of this section that an action for wrongful death must be maintained by the administrator of the deceased, and the insurance carrier cannot maintain the action for wrongful death in its own name against the third person tort-feasor. Whitehead v. Branch, 220 N. C. 507, 17 S. E. (2d) 637.

Suit Must Be Brought by Personal Representative — The personal representative of the deceased, his executor or administrator, etc., can alone maintain an action for damages for his wrongful death under the provisions of this section. Hanes v. Southern Pub. Utilities Co., 191 N. C. 13, 16, 131 S. E. 402; Hood v. American Tel., etc., Co., 162 N. C. 70, 71, 77 S. E. 1096. See also, White v. Holding, 217 N. C. 329, 7 S. E. (2d) 825.

Nature of Suit. — The statute requires the suit to be brought by the administrator in his official and not in his private or individual capacity. He must sue as administrator. Hall v. Southern R. Co., 146 N. C. 345, 348, 59 S. E. 879.

Under this section an administrator sues in his own right and not en autre droit. Christian v. Railroad Co., 136 N. C. 321, 322, 48 S. E. 743.

Hence under this section an action cannot be maintained by a widow as such, but must be brought by the personal representative of the deceased. Bennett v. North Carolina R. Co., 159 N. C. 345, 74 S. E. 883; Howell v. Commissioners, 121 N. C. 362, 28 S. E. 362; Craig v. Suncrest Lumber Co., 189 N. C. 137, 126 S. E. 312, 313.

Nor can a husband as such sue for the wrongful death of his wife. Hood v. American Tel., etc., Co., 162 N. C. 70, 77 S. E. 1096. A father cannot maintain an action in his individual capacity for the death of his son. Killian v. Southern R. Co., 128 N. C. 261, 38 S. E. 873. Nor for the wrongful death of his daughter resulting from seduction. Scarlett v. Norwood, 115 N. C. 284, 285, 20 S. E. 459.

Appointment of Administrator. — A cause of action under this section is sufficient for the appointment of an administrator. Vance v. Railroad, 138 N. C. 460, 464, 50 S. E. 860. But where a deceased has left a will disposing of all his property and therein naming an executor, the right of action against a defendant for his wrongful death must be by the executor named. Hood v. American Tel., etc., Co., 162 N. C. 70, 93, 77 S. E. 1096.

Foreign Administrator Cannot Sue. — A foreign administrator cannot bring an action under this section. Hall v. Southern R. Co., 149 N. C. 108, 62 S. E. 899. Therefore when an administrator does not qualify in this state until after the commencement of the suit and the expiration of one year from the death of his intestate he cannot bring the action. Id. Vance v. Railroad, 138 N. C. 460, 50 S. E. 860.

Since an action for wrongful death exists solely by virtue of this section, it must be maintained and prosecuted in strict accord herewith, and an administratrix appointed by the court of another state may not maintain an action for wrongful death in this state. Such holding does not impinge Article IV, § 1, of, or the 14th Amendment to, the federal Constitution. Monfils v. Hazlewood, 218 N. C. 215, 10 S. E. (2d) 673.

Where an action for wrongful death is instituted in this state by an administratrix appointed by the court of another state, the defect may be taken by demurrer, since such plaintiff does not have legal capacity to sue and the complaint does not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action. Id.

IV. DISTRIBUTION OF RECOVERY.

In General.—With reference to the disposition of the recovery this section materially differs from the English statute and the statute in most of the states which generally provide for designated classes, such as the wife, the children. Furthermore, in some states the measure of damages is made to depend upon who takes the benefit of the recovery. In this state the measure of damages is not determined by such considerations, but is, in all cases, dependent upon considerations of fair and just compensation for the pecuniary injury resulting from such death.

The damages when recovered are not to be simply distributed, but disposed of as provided in case of intestacy and the complaint need not allege that intestate left next-of-kin. Warner v. Western, etc., R. Co., 94 N. C. 250, 255, 257.

Existence of Beneficiaries Immaterial. — The existence of persons who will be entitled to the recovery under section 28-149 is not a condition precedent to the right to bring the action. The purpose of the section is to give the action irrespective of who may become beneficiaries of the recovery. Warner v. Western, etc., R. Co., 94 N. C. 250, 258.

Rights of Distributees Fixed. — Under this section the rights of the distributees are fixed as of the time when the intestate died. Neill v. Wilson, 146 N. C. 242, 245, 59 S. E. 674.

Not Assets of Deceased's Estate. — The provision that the recovery is not to be applied as assets in the payment of debts or legacies extends to creditors of the intestate and not to creditors of the distributees. Neill v. Wilson, 146 N. C. 242, 245, 59 S. E. 674.

Damages for a wrongful death are not assets of the estate available to creditors, and are to be disposed of according to the canons of descent and distribution. Hines v. Foundation Co., 196 N. C. 322, 145 S. E. 612.

Not Subject to Widow's Year's Support. — The damages recovered are not subject to the widow's year's support, as such support is not provided for "in this chapter" as specified by the section. Broadnax v. Broadnax, 160 N. C. 432, 76 S. E. 216.

Recovery Held in Trust. — The administrator holds the amount recovered in trust for those that may be entitled thereto as distributees. Avery v. Brantley, 191 N. C. 396, 399, 131 S. E. 721; Baker v. Raleigh, etc., R. R., 91 N. C. 308.

Contributory Negligence of Beneficiary.—In an action to recover for wrongful death of a 2½-year-old child, contributory negligence on the part of its mother is a bar to so much of the recovery as would accrue to her as a beneficiary of the child's estate, but negligence of the child's mother will not be imputed to the child's father, and is no bar to the recovery of the amount which would inure to his benefit as beneficiary of the child's estate. Pearson v. National Manufacture, etc., Corp., 219 N. C. 717, 14 S. E. (2d) 811.

When Recovery Goes to University. — In action under this section for damages for negligently causing the death of the intestate, if there be no next-of-kin who are entitled to the recovery, under the statute of distributions, the recovery goes to the University. Warner v. Western, etc., R. Co., 94 N. C. 250.

Law of This State Governs. — Where a person was domiciled in another state and was killed in this state, and an administrator sues in this state, the funds recovered must be distributed under the laws of this state, though a prior administration had been taken out in the state of his domicile. Hartness v. Pharr, 133 N. C. 566, 45 S. E. 901. See Hall v. Southern R. Co., 146 N. C. 345, 350, 59 S. E. 879.

Recovery under Federal Employer's Liability Act.—In an action to recover damages under the Federal Employer's Liability Act, this state statute does not apply as to the distribution of the recovery. Horton v. Seaboard, etc., R. Co., 175 N. C. 472, 473, 95 S. E. 883. Overruling In re Stone, 173 N. C. 208, 91 S. E. 852.

V. ADMISSION OF DECLARATIONS.

Rule of Evidence Changed—Applies to Prior Cases.—The amendment of 1919 to this section, enlarging the rule of the admissibility of evidence of dying declarations to instances of wrongful death, does not change any vested rights, and is applicable in cases where such death was caused before its passage. This is a general statute changing the rule of evidence, in which no one has a vested interest and which the law-making power can extend, alter or repeal at will. Williams v. Randolph, etc., R. Co., 182 N. C. 267, 108 S. E. 915. And this change is valid and constitutional. Tatham v. Andrews Mfg. Co., 180 N. C. 627, 105 S. E. 423.

What Declarations Permitted. — This section permits in evidence declarations of the act of killing and circumstances immediately attendant on the act, which constitutes a part of the res gestae, uttered when the declarant was in actual danger of death, and made in full apprehension thereof, and when the death accordingly ensued. Tatham v. Andrews Mfg. Co., 180 N. C. 627, 105 S. E. 423.

The dying declarations of a deceased person for whose death an action has been brought under this section are competent as evidence, provided the preliminary facts are made to appear. Southwell v. R. R., 189 N. C. 417, 127 S. E. 361. Otherwise they are not admissible. Holmes v. Wharton, 194 N. C. 470, 475, 140 S. E. 93.

Where declarant was fatally injured in an automobile accident, declarations made by him the night before and two days before undertaking the journey are not admissible as dying declarations. Gassaway v. Gassaway, 220 N. C. 694, 18 S. E. (2d) 120.

Declarations Must Have Been Voluntary.—In case of the admission of dying declarations, as in criminal actions for homicide, the dying declarations of one whose wrongful death has been caused to be admissible upon the trial in an action to recover damages for his wrongful death, must have been voluntarily made while the declarant was in extremis or under a sense of impending death, and confined to the act of killing and the attendant circumstances forming a part of the res gestae. Dellinger v. Elliott Building Co., 187 N. C. 845, 123 S. E. 78.

§ 28-174. Damages recoverable for death by wrongful act.—The plaintiff in such action may recover such damages as are a fair and just compensation for the pecuniary injury resulting from such death. (Rev., s. 60; Code, s. 1499; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 71; R. C., c. 1, s. 10; C. S. 161.)

Mental Anguish Not to Be Considered. — Where the plaintiff brings an action, under this section, as administrator of his son, his recovery is limited to the value of the life and he is not entitled to any damages for mental anguish in this form of action, nor for the loss of the services of his child. Byrd v. Express Co., 139 N. C. 273, 51 S. E. 851.

Evidence as to Number of Children Inadmissible. — In an action for death under this section, evidence of the number of children left by the deceased is inadmissible as irrelevant and calculated to mislead the jury. Kesler v. Smith, 66 N. C. 154.

Annuity Act Not to Be Considered.—In estimating the damages under this section the court should not permit the jury to consider the provisions of sec. 8-47 (the Annuity Act) for the purposes of ascertaining the present value of intestate's life. Poe v. Railroad, 141 N. C. 525, 54 S. E. 406.

No "Hard and Fast Rule" Prescribed.—"This court has not prescribed any 'hard and fast rule' by which to bind the jury in making the estimate of what sum should be given or to require them to make the assessment of damages in any particular way." Poe v. Railroad, 141 N. C. 525, 528, 54 S. E. 406.

Nature and Quantum of Damages Recoverable. — It is well settled that no damages are to be allowed as a solatium or a punishment. Kesler v. Smith, 66 N. C. 154, 157; Bradley v. Ohio River, etc., R. Co., 122 N. C. 972, 974, 30 S. E. 8; Western Union Tel. Co. v. Catlett, 177 Fed. 71; Collier v. Arrington, 61 N. C. 356.

This section restricts the recovery for malpractice to compensatory damages. Gray v. Little, 127 N. C. 304, 37 S. E. 270.

In an action for wrongful death under this section the jury may consider evidence of the plaintiff's intestate's age, habits, industry, skill, means and business, and the admission of testimony that the deceased had a 200-acre farm, a comfortable home, and a plenty for his family to eat and wear, was not error. Hicks v. Love, 201 N. C. 773, 161 S. E. 394.

The reasonable expectation of pecuniary advantage from the continuance of the life of the deceased must, in all cases, guide the jury in determining the quantum of damages, to which end evidence as to the age, habits, industry, business, etc., of the deceased is indispensable. Burton v. Wilmington, etc., R. Co., 82 N. C. 505.

The instruction for the determination of the quantum of damages must be so specific as to contain an explanation of the consideration to be given to the whole evidence in fixing the worth of the life. An error due to such a defect will not be cured by judges reducing the amount of damages assessed. Burton v. Wilmington, etc., R. Co., 82 N. C. 505.

"In estimating the pecuniary value of this child to her next of kin, the jury could take into consideration all the probable or even possible benefits which might result to them from her life, modified, as in their estimation they should be, by all the chances of failure and misfortune." Russell v. Windsor Steamboat Co., 126 N. C. 961, 969, 36 S. E. 191.

The correct rule touching the quantum of damages is the reasonable expectation of pecuniary advantage from the continuance of the life of the deceased. Kesler v. Smith, 66 N. C. 154.

The measure of damages for the wrongful killing of a mother of children is the value of her labor or the amount of her earnings if she had lived out her expectancy, without regard to the number of her children and the intellectual and moral training she might have given them. Bradley v. Ohio River, etc., R. Co., 122 N. C. 972, 30 S. E. 8.

"It has been held by this court, in several similar cases, that the statute does not limit the recovery to the actual pecuniary loss proved on the trial." Russell v. Windsor Steamboat Co., 126 N. C. 961, 969, 36 S. E. 191.

Under the statute the jury assesses the value of the life of the decedent in solido, which is disbursed under the statute of distributions. Horton v. Seaboard, etc., R. Co., 175 N. C. 472, 477, 95 S. E. 883; Carpenter v. Asheville Power, etc., Co., 191 N. C. 130, 131 S. E. 400.

In ascertaining the net earnings the jury should deduct only the reasonably necessary personal expenses of the deceased, taking into consideration his age, manner of life, business calling or profession, etc., and the amount spent for his family, or those dependent upon him, should not be deducted. Carter v. Railroad, 139 N. C. 499, 52 S. E. 642.

The total amount or net accumulated income, upon which the compensation is based, must be ascertained as of the time when, according to his expectancy, the intestate would have died in due course of nature; but this total may be composed of many annual incomes of different amounts. The present value of that sum, whatever it may be, is what the jury should allow in the way of damages. Poe v. Railroad, 141 N. C. 525, 528, 54 S. E. 406.

The age, health, strength, skill, industry, habits, and character of the deceased are elements of importance to be considered in fixing the amount of compensation. Burton v. Wilmington, etc., R. Co., 82 N. C. 505; Poe v. Railroad, 141 N. C. 525, 528, 54 S. E. 406.

In such an action the value of the life before twenty-one as well as after twenty-one years of age is recoverable. Gurley v. Southern Power Co., 172 N. C. 690, 695, 90 S. E. 943.

The court cannot instruct the jury in any case, when death by the wrongful act of the defendant is shown, that upon any state of facts it is their duty to render a verdict against the plaintiff, as "the reasonable expectation of pecuniary advantages from the continuance of the life of the deceased," is necessarily an inference of fact from all of the evidence and can only be drawn by the jury. Carter v. Railroad, 139 N. C. 499, 52 S. E. 642.

The meaning of damages, in the case of the wrongful death of a child is the same as in the case of an adult. The difficulty is in the application. Russell v. Windsor Steamboat Co., 126 N. C. 961, 36 S. E. 191. See Gurley v. Southern Power Co., 172 N. C. 690, 695, 90 S. E. 943.

The damages recoverable for the wrongful death of another negligently caused is the net present pecuniary worth of the deceased, to be ascertained by deducting the probable cost of his own living and his ordinary or usual expenses, from the probable gross income derived from his own exertions, based upon his life expectancy. Carpenter v. Asheville Power, etc., Co., 191 N. C. 130, 131 S. E. 400; Purnell v. Rockingham R. Co., 190 N. C. 573, 130 S. E. 313; Russell v. Windsor Steamboat Co., 126 N. C. 961, 967, 36 S. E. 191.

In estimating damages under this section, the question is, did the relative suffer any pecuniary loss by reason of the fact that the deceased failed to live out his expectancy, and in determining it the jury must take into consideration the entire life, character, habits, health, capacity, etc., of the deceased. Carter v. Railroad, 139 N. C. 499, 52 S. E. 642.

In an action for death under this section it is competent to prove the age, strength, health, skill, industry, habits and character of the deceased, with a view to arrive at his pecuniary worth to his family. Kesler v. Smith, 66 N. C. 154.

Instructions as to Damages.—Where the evidence disclosed that intestate was a young man 18 years of age, of sober and industrious habits, that at the time of his death he was a newspaper photographer of skill and ability, and the court correctly instructed the jury as to the method of ascertaining the present net worth of deceased to his family, the refusal of a requested instruction that since the administrator had not shown the amount of any earning on the part of the intestate, the jury should not speculate as to what his earnings had been, is not error. Queen City Coach Co. v. Lee, 218 N. C. 320, 11 S. E. (2d) 341.

§ 28-175. Actions which do not survive.—The following rights of action do not survive:

1. Causes of action for libel and for slander, except slander of title.

2. Causes of action for false imprisonment and assault and battery.

3. Causes where the relief sought could not be enjoyed, or granting it would be nugatory, after death. (Rev., s. 157; Code, s. 1491; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 64; 1915, c. 38; C. S. 162.)

Cross Reference.—As to abatement of actions, see § 1-74.

Editor's Note.—This section formerly contained an additional provision to the effect that "injuries to person, where such injury does not cause the death of the injured party" shall not survive. But this provision was omitted by the amendment of 1915, ch. 38. See Editor's Note under section 28-172.

In General.—Except as specified in this section, an action originally maintainable by or against a deceased person is now maintainable by or against his personal representative. Suskin v. Maryland Trust Co., 214 N. C. 347, 199 S. E. 276.

§ 28-176. To sue or defend in representative capacity.—All actions and proceedings brought by or against executors, administrators or collectors, upon any cause of action or right to which the estate is the real party in interest, must be brought by or against them in their representative capacity. (Rev., s. 160; Code, s. 1507; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 79; C. S. 164.)

Cross References.—As to joinder of beneficiary, see § 1-63. As to when heirs and devisees are necessary parties, see § 28-87.

Heirs and Next of Kin as Parties.—The heirs and next of kin have no right to be made parties to an action on account against the personal representative, although they allege collusion between the plaintiff and the representative. Byrd v. Byrd, 117 N. C. 523, 23 S. E. 324.

Application to Administrator d. b. n.—The provisions of this section apply to suits brought by administrator de bonis non, as well as to original administrator, and are mandatory. There is no middle ground. Rogers v. Gooch, 87 N. C. 442.

§ 28-177. Service on or appearance by one binds all.—In actions against several executors, administrators or collectors they are all to be considered as one person, representing the decedent; and if the summons is served on one or more, but not all, the plaintiff may proceed against those served, and if he recovers, judgment may be entered against all. (Rev., s. 161; Code, s. 1508; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 81; C. S. 165.)

§ 28-178. When creditors may sue on claim; execution in such action.—An action may be brought by a creditor against an executor, administrator or collector on a demand at any time after it is due, but no execution shall issue against the executor, administrator or collector on a judgment therein against him without leave of the court, upon notice of twenty days and upon proof that the defendant has refused to pay such judgment its ratable part, and such judgment shall be a lien on the property of the defendant only from the time of such leave granted. (Rev., s. 162; Code, s. 1509; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 82; C. S. 166.)

Cross Reference.—See § 28-114.

Any Court May Entertain the Suit.—In construing this section, it was decided at a very early day after its enactment that any court having jurisdiction of the amount sued for could entertain the suit of the creditor so far as to establish his claim and give him judgment therefor. Heilig v. Foard, 64 N. C. 710; Vaughn v. Stephenson, 69 N. C. 212; Shields v. Payne, 80 N. C. 291, 293; Hoover v. Berryhill, 84 N. C. 133, 134.

Court to Grant Leave.—The court which, under this section, may grant leave to issue execution is the court which has jurisdiction of probate matters, and no other court. Vaughan v. Stephenson, 69 N. C. 212, 214.

Jurisdiction for Breach of Contract.—The superior court in term has, under this section, jurisdiction of an action by a creditor against an administrator for breach of a contract made by his intestate. Shields v. Payne, 80 N. C. 291.

§ 28-179. Service by publication on executor without bond.—Whenever process may issue against an executor who has not given bond, and the same cannot be served upon him by reason of his absence or concealment, service of such process may be made by publication in the manner prescribed in other civil actions. (Rev., s. 163; Code, s. 1523; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 94; C. S. 167.)

§ 28-180. Execution by successor in office.—Any executor, administrator or collector may have execution issued on any judgment recovered by any person who preceded him in the administration of the estate, or by the decedent, in the same cases and the same manner as the original plaintiff might have done. (Rev., s. 164; Code, s. 1513; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 84; C. S. 168.)

§ 28-181. Action to continue, though letters revoked.—In case the letters of an executor, administrator or collector are revoked, pending an action to which he is a party, the adverse party may, notwithstanding, continue the action against him in order to charge him personally. If such party does not elect so to do, within six months after notice of such revocation, the action may be continued against the successor of the executor, administrator or collector in the administration of the estate, in the same manner as in case of death. (Rev., s. 165; Code, s. 1514; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 85; C. S. 169.)

Art. 20. Representative's Powers, Duties and Liabilities.

§ 28-182. Representative may maintain appropriate suits and proceedings.—Executors, administrators or collectors may maintain any appropriate action or proceeding to recover assets, and to recover possession of the real property of which executors are authorized to take possession by will; and to recover for any injury done to such assets or real property at any time subsequent to the death of the decedent. (Rev., s. 159; Code, s. 1501; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 73; C. S. 170.)

Cross Reference.—As to discovery of assets, see §§ 28-69 to 28-72.

Recovery of Realty by Administrator d. b. n. c. t. a.—Where an executor is entitled, under this section, to the possession of the land, his successor, an administrator de bonis non, cum testamento annexo, is entitled to the same rights and remedies as his predecessor in office. Smathers v. Moody, 112 N. C. 791, 795, 175 S. E. 532.

§ 28-183. Representative may purchase for estate to prevent loss.—At any auction sale of real property belonging to the estate, the executor, administrator or collector may bid in the property and take a conveyance to himself as executor, administrator or collector for the benefit of the estate when, in his opinion, this is necessary to prevent a loss to the estate. (Rev., s. 85; Code, s. 1505; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 77; C. S. 171.)

In Sale of Realty Only.—This section authorizes the representatives to bid at the sale of realty only. Hence the non-statutory rule that a representative cannot bid at his own sale applies in sales of personalty. Woody v. Smith, 65 N. C. 116, 118.

§ 28-184. Representatives hold in joint tenancy.—Every estate vested in executors, administrators or collectors, as such, shall be held by them in joint tenancy. (Rev., s. 166; Code, s. 1502; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 74; C. S. 172.)

§ 28-185. Representatives liable for devastavit.—The executors and administrators of persons who, as rightful executors or as executors in their own wrong, or as administrators, shall waste or convert to their own use any estate or assets of any person deceased, shall be chargeable in the same manner as their testator or intestate might have been. (Rev., s. 167; Code, s. 1495; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 68; C. S. 173.)

§ 28-186. Nonresident executor or guardian to appoint process agent.—A nonresident qualifying in the state as an executor or guardian shall at the time of his qualification appoint in writing a resident agent in the county of his qualification, on whom may be served citations, notices, and all processes required by law to be served on such executor or guardian. The executor or guardian shall file the appointment with the clerk in the county of his qualification, and the clerk shall record it in the record book immediately after the record of qualification, and shall properly index it in the record book. All citations, notices, and processes served on such process agent shall be as effective as if served on the executor or guardian, but the return date shall not be sooner than ten days from the date of the issuance of the citation, notice, or process. No letters shall be granted to an executor nor shall a guardian be permitted to qualify, unless the process agent is named simultaneously with the application for letters or for qualification. (1917, c. 198, ss. 1, 2, 3; C. S. 174.)

§ 28-187. Executor or guardian removing from state to appoint process agent. — When a resident executor or guardian removes from the state, he shall, before removing or within thirty days thereafter, appoint a process agent in the manner as provided in the case of a nonresident, and upon failure to make the appointment within thirty days, the clerk shall remove him and appoint an administrator with the will annexed, or a new guardian, as the case may be. (1917, c. 198, s. 4; C. S. 175.)

§ 28-188. Nonresident's failure to obey process ground for removal.—The clerk may remove any nonresident executor or guardian who fails or refuses to obey any citation, notice or process served on the process agent appointed as provided in §§ 28-186, 28-187, and appoint a resident. (1917, c. 198, s. 5; C. S. 176.)

§ 28-189. Power to renew obligation; no personal liability.—Whenever a decedent is a maker, a surety, an endorser, or a guarantor of any note, bond or other obligation for the payment of money which is due at his death, or thereafter becomes due prior to the settlement of his estate, such obligation may be renewed under the following conditions:

(1) The executor, administrator or collector of the decedent's estate may execute in his official capacity a new obligation, in the same capacity as decedent was obligated, for an amount equal to or less but not greater than the sum due on the original obligation, which shall be in lieu of the original obligation of decedent, whether made payable to the original holder or another; and the executor, administrator or collector may renew the obligation from time to time, and it shall bind the decedent's estate in the same manner and to the same extent as the original obligation; but the maturity of the obligation or any renewal thereof by the executor, administrator or collector shall not extend beyond a period of two years from the qualification of the original executor, administrator or collector, except as hereinafter provided.

(2) If the court finds that it is for the best interest of the estate that the maturity of any such obligation be extended beyond two years from the qualification of the original executor, administrator or collector, the court in its discretion may authorize the executor, administrator or collector to renew the obligation for such additional period as the court may deem best. This additional period shall be for not more than two years unless the time for final settlement of the estate is extended, in which case, paragraph three, below, applies.

(3) When the time for final settlement of the decedent's estate has been extended from year to year for a longer period by order of the clerk of the superior court, approved by the resident judge of the superior court, the obligation may likewise be further extended, but not beyond the period authorized by the court for the final settlement of the decedent's estate.

(4) No obligation executed under this section shall bind the executor, administrator or collector personally. (1925, c. 86; 1933, cc. 161, 196, 498.)

Local Modification.—Mecklenburg, Pamlico, 1933, c. 161, s. 2.

Editor's Note.—For a descriptive survey of the 1933 amendment to this section, see 11 N. C. Law Rev. 264.

For review of statute, see 4 N. C. L. Rev. 18.

§ 28-190. Continuance of farming operations of deceased persons. — When any person shall die while engaged in farming operations, his executor or administrator shall be authorized to continue such farming operations until the end of the current calendar year, and until all crops grown during that year are harvested: Provided, that only the net income from such farming operations shall be assets of the estate, and any indebtedness incurred in connection with such farming operations shall be a preferred claim as to any heir, legatee, devisee, distributee, general or unsecured creditor of said estate. Nothing herein contained shall limit the powers of an executor under the terms of a will. (1935, c. 163.)

Art. 21. Construction and Application of Chapter.

§ 28-191. Where no time specified, reasonable time allowed; extension.—If no length of notice, or no time for the doing of an act, is stated in this chapter, the time shall be reasonable, and in any case it may be enlarged by the clerk from time to time, or by the judge of the superior court, on application to him or on appeal to him from the clerk. (Rev., s. 169; Code, s. 1463; 1871-2, c. 213, s. 16; C. S. 177.)

§ 28-192. Powers under will not affected.—Nothing in this chapter shall be construed to affect the discretionary powers, trusts and authorities of an executor or other trustee acting under a will, provided creditors be not delayed thereby nor the order changed in which by law they are entitled to be paid. (Rev., s. 170; Code, s. 1415; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 23; R. C., c. 46, ss. 12, 13; C. S. 178.)

Cross Reference.—See §§ 28-117, 28-121 and notes thereto.

Chapter 29. Descents.

Sec.
29-1. Rules of descent.

§ 29-1. Rules of descent. — When any person dies seized of any inheritance, or of any right thereto, or entitled to any interest therein, not having devised the same, it shall descend under the following rules: (Rev., s. 1556; Code, s. 1281; R. C., c. 38, s. 1; C. S. 1654.)

Cross References.—As to right of aliens to take by descent, see § 64-1. As to the distribution of estates, see §§ 28-149 et seq.

Editor's Note.—The English canons of descent were brought to this country by the early colonists and were established and prevailed here in the provincial governments. In North Carolina they survived the Revolution and remained in force until 1784. Certain principles found in the English Act, such as the males inheriting before the females, the eldest son only inheriting, and the half blood being excluded from the inheritance, seemed repugnant to the republican principles of the new land and thus the Legislature was led to make the changes which now distinguish this section from the English Act. For a detailed discussion of this subject, see Clement v. Cauble, 55 N. C. 82.

For cases dealing with the former provision governing descent to aliens, see Campbell v. Campbell, 58 N. C. 246; Rutherford's Heirs v. Wolfe, 10 N. C. 272.

Definition.—Descent is the devolution of real property to the heir or heirs of one who dies intestate, the transmission by succession or inheritance. See Bouvier's Law Dict., vol. 1, p. 550.

Kinds of Descent.—Descents are of two sorts: lineal, as from father to son, or grandfather to son or grandson; and collateral, as from brother to brother, and cousin to cousin, etc. See Levy v. McCarter, 6 Pet. 102, 8 L. Ed. 34.

A descent may be said to be mediate or immediate, in regard to mediate or immediate descent of the estate or right; or it may be said to be mediate or immediate, in regard to the mediateness or immediateness of the pedigree or degree of consanguinity. Id.

Descent Regulated by Statute.—Descents in this State are regulated, not by the common law, but by statutes. University v. Markham, 174 N. C. 338, 340, 93 S. E. 845. And thus are regulated entirely by the Legislature. Edwards v. Yearby, 168 N. C. 663, 85 S. E. 19.

By virtue of this section an heir takes only the undevised inheritance of which the ancestor was seized at the time of his death. Gosney v. McCullers, 202 N. C. 326, 327, 162 S. E. 746.

Title Vests Immediately.—Upon the death of an intestate ancestor, the title to his estate descends and vests at once in his heirs; it cannot stand in abeyance and vest in the future like an executory devise. Harris v. Russell, 124 N. C. 547, 32 S. E. 958.

"Lawful Heirs" as Used in Will.—The expression "lawful heirs" in a will, applied to describe those who are to take a bequest of personalty, means such as take that sort of property in cases of intestacy. Nelson v. Blue, 63 N. C. 659. As to wills, see chapter 31.

Section Held Not to Apply to Person Dying before Its Enactment.—The provisions of this section held not to affect the distribution of an estate of a person dying prior to the enactment of the statute, the provision of the statute that it should apply to estates of such persons whose estates had not then been distributed being inoperative, and an illegitimate person dying prior to the enactment of the statute leaving only the brothers of his mother, or their legal representatives, him surviving, leaves no person surviving him entitled to inherit from him, and his property, both real and personal held to vest immediately in the University of North Carolina under the Constitution and laws of this state. Carter v. Smith, 209 N. C. 788, 185 S. E. 15.

Rule 1, Lineal descent. Every inheritance shall lineally descend forever to the issue of the person who died last seized, entitled or having any interest therein, but shall not lineally ascend, except as hereinafter provided. (Rev., s. 1556; Code, s. 1281; R. C., c. 38, Rule 1; C. S. 1654.)

Cross Reference.—As to seizin, see notes under rule 12.

Actual or Legal Seizin Unnecessary.—By the terms of this paragraph and paragraph 12, neither actual nor legal seizin is necessary to make the stock in the devolution of estates. Sears v. McBride, 70 N. C. 152; Early v. Early, 134 N. C. 258, 267, 46 S. E. 503.

Descent of Remainders.—Where a remainderman dies before the life tenant, upon the death of the life tenant the remainder descends to the heirs at law of the original remainderman. Early v. Early, 134 N. C. 258, 46 S. E. 503. Distinguishing Lawrence v. Pitt, 46 N. C. 344 and King v. Scoggin, 92 N. C. 99, which cases were decided under the former provisions.

Rule 2, Females inherit with males, younger with older children; advancements. Females shall inherit equally with males, and younger with older children: Provided, that when a parent dies intestate, having in his or her lifetime settled upon or advanced to any of his or her children any real or personal estate, such child so advanced in real estate shall be utterly excluded from any share in the real estate descended from such parent, except so much thereof as will, when added to the real estate advanced, make the share of him who is advanced equal to the share of those who may not have been advanced, or not equally advanced. And any child so advanced in personal estate shall be utterly excluded from any share in the personal estate of which the parent died possessed, except so much thereof as will, when added to the personal estate advanced, make the share of him who is advanced equal to the share of those who may not have been advanced, or not equally advanced. And in case any one of the children has been advanced in real estate of greater value than an equal share thereof which may come to the other children, he or his legal representatives shall be charged in the distribution of the personal estate of such deceased parent with the excess in value of such real estate so advanced as aforesaid, over and above an equal share as aforesaid. And in case any of the children has been advanced in personal estate of greater value than an equal share thereof which shall come to the other children, he or his legal representatives shall be charged in the division of the real estate, if there be any, with the excess in value, which he may have received as aforesaid, over and above an equal distributive share of the personal estate. (Rev., s. 1556; Code, s. 1281; R. C., c. 38, s. 1, Rule 2; 1784, c. 204, s. 2; 1808, c. 739; 1844, c. 51, ss. 1, 2; C. S. 1654.)

Cross References.—As to advancements generally, see §§ 28-150 and 28-151. As to the right of adopted children to inherit, see § 48-6.

Priority Abolished.—This rule abolishes the priority of the male over the female line, and places them upon a perfect equality, both as to collateral and lineal descents. Bell v. Dozier, 12 N. C. 333, 334.

Provides for Equality.—This section was never intended to interfere in any case where the parent himself had by his will produced an inequality by giving to one of his children either land or chattels and not to the others. But where he dies totally intestate as to all his property of every kind, then the act provides for an equality, as near as it can, by directing that such of the children as have been advanced by the intestate in his lifetime, in either realty or personalty, shall acount for the advancement in the division of both. Jerkins v. Mitchell, 57 N. C. 207, 212.

Owner's Wishes Respected.—This section contains nothing to exclude the intent and circumstances of the case, but leaves in force the ancient principle that the owner of property may dispose of it according to his own desire. Kiger v. Terry, 119 N. C. 46, 458, 26 S. E. 38; Thompson v. Smith, 160 N. C. 256, 258, 75 S. E. 1010.

Where the deceased leaves a will disposing of his estate the doctrine of advancements to his child or children has no application. Prevette v. Prevette, 203 N. C. 89, 164 S. E. 623.

Advancements Regulated Early by Statute.—The doctrine of advancements was the subject of statutory enactments in England as early as the reign of Charles II (22 and 23 Car II., 1682-83). Nobles v. Davenport, 183 N. C. 207, 209, 111 S. E. 180.

Definitions of Advancement.—An advancement is said to be an irrevocable gift in praesenti of money or of property, real or personal, to a child by a parent, to enable the donee to anticipate his inheritance or succession to the extent of the gift. 14 Cyc., 162. Thompson v. Smith, 160 N. C. 256, 257, 75 S. E. 1010; Noble v. Davenport, 183 N. C. 207, 111 S. E. 180. For further definition of advancement, see Hollister v. Attmore, 58 N. C. 373; Meadows v. Meadows, 33 N. C. 148; Southern Distributing Co. v. Carraway, 189 N. C. 420, 127 S. E. 427; Parker v. Eason, 213 N. C. 115, 195 S. E. 360.

An advancement is a gift in praesenti by a parent to a child for the purpose of advancing the latter in life, and thus for the child to anticipate the inheritance to the extent of the advancement. Paschal v. Paschal, 197 N. C. 40, 147 S. E. 680.

Where a son insures his life for the benefit of his mother in case she survives him, and otherwise to his estate, and some of the premiums on the policy are paid by the insured and some by the mother, upon the prior death of the mother her administrator may not recover from the son the premiums paid by the mother on the theory that they were advancements to him to be accounted for, the arrangement appearing to be their joint enterprise. Id.

Same—Small Presents Not Included.—An advancement is a gift of money or property for the preferment and settling of a child in life, and not such as are mere presents of small value or such as are required for the maintenance or education of the child. The latter are the natural duties of the parent which he is required to perform. Meadows v. Meadows, 33 N. C. 148; Bradsher v. Cannady, 76 N. C. 445; Kiger v. Terry, 119 N. C. 456, 25 S. E. 38.

Applies Only in Case of Total Intestacy.—Under the English statute of distributions, as well as under our act on that subject, it has always been held that no advancements were to be accounted for except in cases of total intestacy. Brown v. Brown, 37 N. C. 309; Jerkins v. Mitchell, 57 N. C. 207, 210.

Hence advancements in land by a father are not to be brought into hotchpot and accounted for in the division among his children of his real estate, unless the father dies totally intestate. Jerkins v. Mitchell, 57 N. C. 207.

Presumption and Burden of Proof.—The doctrine of advancements is based on the idea that parents are presumed to intend, in the absence of a will, an equality of division among their children; hence a gift of property or money is prima facie an advancement, that is, property transferred or money paid in anticipation of a distribution of his estate. Ex parte Griffin, 142 N. C. 116, 54 S. E. 1007; James v. James, 76 N. C. 331; Thompson v. Smith, 160 N. C. 256, 258, 75 S. E. 1010; Noble v. Davenport, 183 N. C. 207, 111 S. E. 180.

Same—Nominal Consideration.—If land is conveyed by a deed reciting a nominal consideration or natural affection an advancement is presumed, and the burden of proof is then on the grantee or donee to show that an advancement was not intended. Kiger v. Terry, 119 N. C. 456, 459, 26 S. E. 38.

Same—Valuable Consideration.—But when the deed recites a valuable and substantial consideration, especially when it is near the full value of the land or other property, the burden then to prove it an advancement is upon the person claiming it to be such. Kiger v. Terry, 119 N. C. 456, 459, 26 S. E. 38.

Same—Intention of Parent Governs.—Making proper allowance for the burden of proof, as fixed by the presumption arising out of the nature or circumstances of the gift, the question of whether there was a clear gift, a loan, or an advancement, is to be settled by ascertaining what was the intention of the parent. Melvin v. Bullard, 82 N. C. 34, 40; Harper v. Harper, 92 N. C. 300; Kiger v. Terry, 119 N. C. 456, 26 S. E. 38; Thompson v. Smith, 160 N. C. 256, 258, 75 S. E. 1010.

Same—Parol Evidence.—And in the determination of whether a loan, a gift or an advancement was intended parol evidence is admissible. Kiger v. Terry, 119 N. C. 456, 458, 26 S. E. 38.

Value Determined.—Ordinarily the value of an advancement is to be determined as of the date of its making, and on an accounting no interest is to be charged against an advancement prior to the death of the testator or intestate, or the time fixed for division, where by will it is extended beyond the death of the parent or testator. Southern Distributing Co. v. Carraway, 189 N. C. 420, 127 S. E. 427. See also, Stallings v. Stallings, 16 N. C. 298, 301; Lamb v. Carroll, 28 N. C. 4.

Where an intestate had put slaves into the possession of his child, and afterwards made a deed of gift of them, the advancement must take effect and be estimated as of the date of the deed and not of the commencement of the possession. Shiver v. Brock, 55 N. C. 137; Ward v. Riddick, 57 N. C. 22.

Examples of Advancement.—Property put into the possession of a child on his setting out in life, suitable to housekeeping and family purposes, is not to be considered as a present but as an advancement. Shiver v. Brock, 55 N. C. 137.

Under this paragraph an estate, pur autre vie, given to a child by an intestate father, is subject to be brought into hotchpot as an advancement in the division of other lands. Dixon v. Coward, 57 N. C. 354.

One-half an estate in land given by an intestate by deed to his daughter and her husband is subject to be brought into hotchpot. Id.

Application to Grandchildren.—Grandchildren are bound to bring in the gift to their parents, but not those to themselves. This rule being restricted to gifts from a parent to a child, and not including donations to grandchildren. Headen v. Headen, 42 N. C. 159, 161. See Shiver v. Brock, 55 N. C. 137.

Rule 3, Lineal descendant represents ancestor. The lineal descendants of any person deceased shall represent their ancestor, and stand in the same place as the person himself would have done had he been living. (Rev., s. 1556; Code, s. 1281; R. C., c. 38, Rule 3; 1808, c. 739; C. S. 1654.)

A Copy of English Canon.—This section is an almost verbatim copy of the English canon and should receive the same constructions which have been given to that rule. Clement v. Cauble, 55 N. C. 82, 91.

Right of Representation Indefinite.—In rules of the descent of real estate, the right of representation is indefinite, as well among collateral as lineal kindred. Johnston v. Chesson, 59 N. C. 146, 147.

Realty Descends Per Stirpes.—In the descent of real estate, the next collateral relations of the person last seized, who are of equal degree, take per stirpes, and not per capita. Clement v. Cauble, 55 N. C. 82; Haynes v. Johnson, 58 N. C. 124; Crump v. Fawcett, 70 N. C. 345.

Personalty Distributed Per Capita.—Where a fund consists solely of personalty, and the claimants at the time of the intestate's death were and are now all in equal degree, the next of kin of the intestate, section 28-149 requires that the fund shall be distributed per capita. Ellis v. Harrison, 140 N. C. 444, 53 S. E. 299.

Heirs of Trustee Take Nothing.—Where a trustee, in accordance with a provision of the trust, passes his bare legal title to another, there was nothing to descend to his heirs at his death. Fleming v. Barden, 126 N. C. 450, 36 S. E. 17.

Rule 4, Collateral descent of estate derived from ancestor. On failure of lineal descendants, and where the inheritance has been transmitted by descent from an ancestor, or has been derived by gift, devise or settlement from an ancestor, to whom the person thus advanced would, in the event of such ancestor's death, have been the heir or one of the heirs, the inheritance shall descend to the next collateral relations, capable of inheriting, of the person last seized, who were of the blood of such ancestor, subject to the two preceding rules. (Rev., s. 1556; Code, s. 1281; R. C., c. 38, Rule 4; 1808, c. 739; C. S. 1654.)

Editor's Note.—Under rule 5, purchased estates—in the popular sense of the term purchase—descend to the nearest relations of the propositus whether of the paternal or maternal line. While under this rule descended estates and certain excepted purchased estates descend to the nearest relations of the propositus, who were of the blood of the ancestors from whom the estate moved. The purchased estates excepted, including those derived by gift, devise or settlement, are those where the purchaser would have been an heir in case of the ancestor's death, that is, these excepted purchasers are put on the same footing with a descent. The question whether the purchaser or donee would have been an heir is determined as of the time of the purchase. And thus where a purchaser at the time of the purchase would not have been an heir had the ancestor died, rule 5 applies and collateral relations of both paternal and maternal lines inherit, even though a subsequent act of the Legislature made such purchaser an heir. See Burgwyn v. Devereux, 23 N. C. 583.

This fourth rule has for its principal object the securing to the family of the man, by whose industry the property was acquired, the enjoyment of such property in preference to those who have no consanguinity with him. Poisson v. Pettaway, 159 N. C. 650, 652, 75 S. E. 930; Wilkerson v. Bracken, 24 N. C. 315.

In General.—When an estate goes to a person through a series of descents or settlements, and that person dies without issue, it results back to those of his collateral relations who would be heirs of the ancestor from whom it originally descended, or by whom it was originally settled. Wilkerson v. Bracken, 24 N. C. 315; Poisson v. Pettaway, 159 N. C. 650, 652, 75 S. E. 930.

Construed with Rule 6.—This rule and rule 6 are in pari materia and should be construed together, and it was clearly intended that they should be. Paul v. Carter, 153 N. C. 26, 27, 68 S. E. 905.

Under Rules 4, 5 and 6 of this section a grandson of the devisor of lands does not take lands by descent from him when his father is living at the time of his grandfather's death, even though he takes the same lands and interest under the devise that he would have taken under the descent had his father not been living, and he acquires a new estate by purchase, descendible to his heirs at law under the canons of descent. Peel v. Corey, 196 N. C. 79, 144 S. E. 559.

Applies When There Is No Will.—This rule is confined to cases where there is no other disposition of the land by the will which would interfere with the prescribed course of descent. Kirkman v. Smith, 174 N. C. 603, 606, 94 S. E. 423.

Blood of Ancestor Necessary.—In order for a collateral relation of the half blood to inherit under this paragraph, he must be of the blood of the purchasing ancestor from whom the lands descend. Poisson v. Pettaway, 159 N. C. 650, 75 S. E. 930; Little v. Buie, 58 N. C. 10; McMichal v. Moore, 56 N. C. 471; Noble v. Williams, 167 N. C. 112, 83 S. E. 180.

Collateral Relations Take Per Stirpes.—When lands descend to collateral relations under this section the collateral relations of equal degree take per stirpes and not per capita. Cromartie v. Kemp, 66 N. C. 382; Clement v. Cauble, 55 N. C. 82; Haynes v. Johnson, 58 N. C. 124.

Where Contingency Happens.—Under a deed of gift of lands from a father to his son with contingent limitation over to the issue of another son, in the event the former should die without issue, the limitation over is not to the heirs general, but to the children who take on the happening of the contingency which would divest the title of the first taker, and where this contingency has happened and the estate goes over to the contingent remainderman, the latter takes from the grantor under the deed. Stevens v. Wooten, 190 N. C. 378, 130 S. E. 13.

Failure of Contingency.—Where lands were devised to be sold upon the happening of a certain event which failed to happen, it was held that the land was never converted into personalty but remained realty and belonged to the heirs at law of the blood of the testator. Elliott v. Loftin, 160 N. C. 361, 76 S. E. 236.

Examples.—Where a person died intestate and without lineal descendants, the real estate inherited by him from his father descended to his brother, who was his next collateral relation capable of inheriting of the blood of his father. Jones v. Hoggard, 108 N. C. 178, 181, 12 S. E. 906, 907.

Where land was devised to a grandson by his paternal grandfather, and the devisee died in the lifetime of his father, it was held that, the devisee not being an heir or one of the heirs of the devisor, the estate passed to his uncles and aunts on the mother's side as well as those on the side of the father, the devisee's parents then being dead. Osborne v. Widenhouse, 56 N. C. 238.

Rule 5, Collateral descent of estate not derived from ancestor. On failure of lineal descendants, and where the inheritance has not been transmitted by descent or derived as aforesaid from an ancestor, or where, if so transmitted or derived, the blood of such ancestor is extinct, the inheritance shall descend to the next collateral relation, capable of inheriting, of the person last seized, whether of the paternal or maternal line, subject to the second and third rules. (Rev., s. 1556; Code, s. 1281; R. C., c. 38, Rule 5; 1808, c. 739; C. S. 1654.)

Cross Reference.—See editor's note under rule 4.

Descended Estate.—Where an estate has been transmitted by descent, and the blood of the acquiring ancestor has become extinct, upon the death of the person last seized intestate and without issue, the estate descends to the nearest collateral relations. University v. Brown, 23 N. C. 387.

Necessary Qualification.—In the descent of acquired estates the only qualifications necessary to a collateral is that he be the nearest relation of the person last seized. Bell v. Dozier, 12 N. C. 333.

Illegitimate Children.—A devise of lands by the testator to his wife for life and at her death to his and her heirs carries the title to the land upon the death of the wife to her illegitimate children as her heirs to the exclusion of his illegitimate child. Battle v. Shore, 197 N. C. 449, 149 S. E. 590.

Illegitimate Not Included.—An illegitimate child is not a collateral relation of, and capable of inheriting from, a legitimate child of the same mother, under this section. Wilson v. Wilson, 189 N. C. 85, 126 S. E. 181, 182.

Whether of Whole or Half Blood.—Where a son acquires land by deed from his father and pays a valuable consideration therefor, and dies without lineal descendants prior to his father's death, intestate, the land descends to the collateral relations of the son whether of the whole or half-blood, and the inheritance is not limited to the collateral relations of the son who are also of the blood of the father, the grantor. Ex parte Barefoot, 201 N. C. 393, 394, 160 S. E. 365.

Rule 6, Half blood inherits with whole; parents from child. Collateral relations of the half blood shall inherit equally with those of the whole blood, and the degrees of relationship shall be computed according to the rules which prevail in descents at common law: Provided, that in all cases where the person last seized leaves no issue capable of inheriting, nor brother, nor sister, nor issue of such, the inheritance shall vest in the father and mother, as tenants in common if both are living, and if only one of them is living, then in such survivor. (Rev., s. 1556; Code, s. 1281; R. C., c. 38, Rule 6; 1808, c. 739; 1915, c. 9, s. 1; C. S. 1654.)

In General.—The court, in McMichal v. Moore, 56 N. C. 471, said: "This general provision in favor of the father and mother expressly departs from the principle of keeping the inheritance in the blood of the first purchaser, which, for feudal reasons was strictly adhered to by the common law, and which is retained in our statutes in regard to collateral relations, except for the purpose of preventing an escheat. The parents are by the statute looked upon as lineal relations in the ascending line, and in respect to them the common-law principle is put entirely out of the way." Weeks v. Quinn, 135 N. C. 425, 426, 47 S. E. 596.

Construed with Rule 4.—This rule and rule 4 are in pari materia, and should be construed together and harmonized: and thus construed, the collateral relations of the half blood inherit equally with those of the whole blood, under the provisions of this rule, where, under the requirements of canon 4, they are of the blood of the ancestor from whom the estate was derived. Paul v. Carter, 153 N. C. 26, 68 S. E. 905; Noble v. Williams, 167 N. C. 112, 83 S. E. 180.

Personal Property.—Under this rule, claimants of the half blood are entitled to share equally with claimants of the whole blood in the distribution of personal property. In re Skinner's Estate, 173 N. C. 706, 707, 100 S. E. 882.

When Blood of Ancestor Immaterial.—The surviving father or mother of one seized of land, who dies without leaving issue capable of inheriting, or brothers, or sisters, or the issue of such, will take the inheritance under the proviso in the 6th rule without regard to the question whether such parent is of the blood of the purchasing ancestor. McMichal v. Moore, 56 N. C. 471.

Natural Parent Prevails.—Where a child by adoption dies seized of realty, without leaving a brother or sister, and the property is claimed by both the adopted and natural father, this section confers it upon the latter. Edwards v. Yearby, 168 N. C. 663, 85 S. E. 19. (By virtue of § 48-6 this rule no longer governs.)

Proviso Conditional.—The word "if" as used in the proviso to this rule is one of condition, and the estate will not vest if it is not complied with, it being, in this case, a condition precedent. University v. Markam, 174 N. C. 338, 342, 93 S. E. 845.

Thus the fact that the mother was living at the death of her child is made a condition precedent to the vesting of the estate, and the claimant cannot recover should the propositus have outlived the mother. University v. Markham, 174 N. C. 338, 93 S. E. 845.

Widow's Heirs Inherit.—Where one is survived by his daughter and widow, and the daughter inherits an estate from him and dies before the widow, the heirs of the widow, and not those of the husband, inherit the estate, and it is immaterial whether the daughter or widow were in possession. Weeks v. Quinn, 135 N. C. 425, 47 S. E. 596.

Effect of Amendment of 1915.—Upon the death of a minor child who takes an estate in remainder as a new propositus after the death of his mother, under his grandfather's will, without a brother or sister or issue of such, the inheritance is cast, under this rule of the canons of descent before the amendment of 1915, upon the father if living, the amendment having the effect of making the father and mother tenants in common if both are living, and, if only one of them is living then in such survivor. Allen v. Parker, 187 N. C. 376, 121 S. E. 665.

Rule 7, Unborn infant may be heir. No inheritance shall descend to any person, as heir of the person last seized, unless such person shall be in life at the death of the person last seized, or shall be born within ten lunar months after the death of the person last seized. (Rev., s. 1556; Code, s. 1281; R. C., c. 38, Rule 7; 1823, c. 1210; C. S. 1654.)

When Rule Applies.—This rule applies only where the person last seized has died since the passage of the rule. Rutherford v. Green, 37 N. C. 121.

Inheritance Vests Immediately.—Upon the death of the father seized of lands, his wife then being enciente, the inheritance will immediately vest in the child en ventre sa mere. Deal v. Sexton, 144 N. C. 157, 56 S. E. 691.

Child Born after Ten Months.—An estate is not divested out of one upon whom it has devolved by the birth of a child more than ten lunar months after the death of the propositus. Britton v. Miller, 63 N. C. 268.

Applied in Severt v. Lyall, 222 N. C. 533, 23 S. E. (2d) 829.

Rule 8, Widow or husband may take as heir. When any person dies intestate, leaving none who can claim as heir to such deceased person, but leaving surviving a widow or husband, such widow or husband shall be deemed his heir and as such inherit his estate. (Rev., s. 1556; Code, s. 1281; R. C., c. 38, Rule 8; 1801, c. 575, s. 1; 1925, c. 7; C. S. 1654.)

Editor's Note.—Previous to the amendment of this rule by ch. 7, Pub. Laws 1925, it was provided that a widow should be deemed an heir of her husband when he died leaving none other who could claim as an heir. The amendment makes the rule mutual between husband and wife.

The word "intestate" is inserted in the first line. Construing the original rule before this word was added the Supreme Court held that the rule could only apply to property not devised by the husband. Hence, if the husband's will gave a life estate to the widow, with remainder over to his "legal heirs," and the widow failed to dissent to the will, the rule would not apply. Therefore, in such case, if the husband had no legal heirs, the property, at the death of the wife, would escheat instead of going to the wife's heirs. See Grantham v. Jinnette, 177 N. C. 229, 98 S. E. 724. The addition of the word intestate seems to modify the Grantham v. Jinnette decision. Undoubtedly such terms will be construed to cover a partial, as well as a total, intestacy. See 4 N. C. Law Rev. 15.

When Rule Applies.—In express terms this paragraph provides that the widow shall be heir only when there is no one else who can claim as heir. University v. Markham, 174 N. C. 338, 93 S. E. 845; Powers v. Kite, 83 N. C. 156. Bryant v. Bryant, 190 N. C. 372, 374, 130 S. E. 21.

Same—No Will.—This paragraph applies only if there is no will, or a will not disposing of the entire estate. Grantham v. Jinnette, 177 N. C. 229, 232, 98 S. E. 724.

Widow Prevails Over Illegitimate Half-Brother.—Decedent left a wife and no descendants or collateral relatives except an illegitimate half-brother. The wife and not the half-brother is the heir in such case. Wilson v. Wilson, 189 N. C. 85, 126 S. E. 181.

Rule 9, Illegitimate children inherit from mother. Every illegitimate child of the mother and the descendants of any such child deceased shall be considered an heir: Provided, however, that where the mother leaves legitimate and illegitimate children such illegitimate child or children shall not be capable of inheriting of such mother any land or interest therein which was conveyed or devised to such mother by the father of the legitimate child or children; but such illegitimate child or descendant shall not be allowed to claim, as representing such mother, any part of the estate of her kindred, either lineal or collateral. (Rev., s. 1556, Rule 9; Code, s. 1281; R. C., c. 38, Rule 10; 1799, c. 522; 1913, c. 71; C. S. 1654.)

Cross References.—See also, rule 10 and annotations thereto. As to distribution of property among illegitimate children, see § 28-152. As to effects of legitimation, see § 49-11.

In General.—This rule breaks the connection at the mother in the ascending line when it is necessary to pursue that in order to reach the propositus, and expressly prohibits any direct lineal or collateral descent but that mentioned in the first clause, namely, from the mother herself to the illegitimate child or the descendant of any such child deceased, and the descent provided for in rule 10 as between illegitimates themselves and from them or their issue, as therein specially provided. Bettis v. Avery, 140 N. C. 184, 52 S. E. 584.

Rule Applies Only in Case of Illegitimates.—This rule provides only for descents from a mother who leaves surviving an illegitimate child or descendants of such child. Such a child is an heir of the mother, without regard to whether she leaves or does not leave a legitimate child. Wilson v. Wilson, 189 N. C. 85, 88, 126 S. E. 181. See also Paul v. Willoughby, 204 N. C. 595, 598, 169 S. E. 226.

Same—And Only to Inheritance from Mother.—This rule applies only to inheritance from the mother and not to the inheritance from a legitimate half-brother. Wilson v. Wilson, 189 N. C. 85, 126 S. E. 181.

Estate of Kindred Excluded.—This rule excludes the right to inherit, as the representative of an illegitimate mother, any part of the estate of the latter's kindred, either lineal or collateral. Bettis v. Avery, 140 N. C. 184, 52 S. E. 584.

Inheritance under Will.—Where a testator by his will gave property to a son and three daughters with a provision that, on the death of either of them intestate, or without heirs of his or her body, his or her share should go over, it was held that the intention was not that it should go over on the death of the mother of an illegitimate child, but that the latter was entitled to his mother's share. Fairly v. Priest, 56 N. C. 383.

As "Lawful Issue" of Mother.—An illegitimate child, under this section, is eligible to inherit from his mother, but he cannot take as the lawful issue of his mother under the terms of the will of his grandfather. Brown v. Holland, 221 N. C. 135, 137, 19 S. E. (2d) 255.

Rule 10, Heirs of illegitimate. Illegitimate children shall be considered legitimate as between themselves and their representatives, and their estates shall descend accordingly in the same manner as if they had been born in wedlock. And in case of the death of any such child or his issue, without leaving issue, his estate shall descend to such person as would inherit if all such children had been born in wedlock: Provided, that when any illegitimate child dies without issue, his inheritance shall vest in the mother in the same manner as is provided in rule six of this chapter. Provided, further, that when any illegitimate child dies without issue and his mother shall have predeceased said child and left legitimate children, his inheritance shall vest in the legitimate children of his mother in the same manner as provided in rule 6 of this chapter but nothing herein shall be construed to allow such illegitimates to inherit from legitimates of the same mother: Provided, further, that when any illegitimate child dies without any of the foregoing but his mother left brothers and sisters, his inheritance shall vest in said brothers and sisters of his mother, or their legal representatives. (Rev., s. 1556; Code, s. 1281; R. C., c. 38, Rule 11; 1935, c. 256; C. S. 1654.)

Editor's Note.—The 1935 act which added the last two provisos to Rule 10 provided: "That this act shall be in full force and effect from and after its ratification (29th April 1935) and shall apply to all estates which have not been actually distributed prior thereto." See Carter v. Smith, 209 N. C. 788, 185 S. E. 15.

Common Law Provision.—At common law there is no collateral descent to or from a bastard. Flintham v. Holder, 16 N. C. 345, 347.

General Effect of Rule.—There is nothing dubious about the rule, but on the contrary its language is plain, direct, and perfectly intelligible. University v. Markham, 174 N. C. 338, 341, 93 S. E. 845.

The construction given to this rule is, that if an illegitimate or natural-born child shall die intestate without leaving any child or children, his or her estate shall descend to and be equally divided among his or her brothers and sisters, born of the body of the same mother, and their representatives, whether legitimate or illegitimate, in the same manner and under the same regulations and restrictions as if they had been born in wedlock. Powers v. Kite, 83 N. C. 156, 157.

The illegitimates mentioned in this rule are those who are the children of the same mother, and they inherit as between themselves and their representatives, as if they were legitimate. Bettis v. Avery, 140 N. C. 184, 189, 52 S. E. 584.

Representatives Must Be Legitimate.—This rule was construed in Powers v. Kite, 83 N. C. 156. In considering that construction it will be noted that the words "whether legitimate or illegitimate" follow the words "and their representatives." But in Tucker v. Tucker, 108 N. C. 235, 236, 13 S. E. 5, Clark, J., held that while the rule allows illegitimate children to be legitimate as between themselves and their representatives, it contemplates that such representatives shall themselves be legitimate representatives of the illegitimate child. Bryant v. Bryant, 190 N. C. 372, 374, 130 S. E. 21.

Bastards Cannot Inherit from Legitimate.—The rule does not apply to descents from a legitimate child, and the law in this State, with respect to such descents, is the same now as it was when the opinion in Flintham v. Holder, 16 N. C. 345, 351, was delivered at December Term, 1829. It was then held to be the law that "bastards can never inherit but from the mother and from each other," thus the law remains. Wilson v. Wilson, 189 N. C. 85, 88, 126 S. E. 181.

Legitimates May Inherit from Bastards.—Where there are children of the same mother, some born in wedlock and some illegitimate, the former class may inherit from the latter. Flintham v. Holder, 16 N. C. 345. Thus where an illegitimate brother died intestate and without issue, his legitimate brothers and sisters shared in the inheritance. McBryde v. Patterson, 78 N. C. 412.

Law Ignores the Father.—There is no half blood between illegitimates; they are treated as children without a father of any kind. The law takes no notice of him, for they trace only through the mother. Ashe v. Camp Mfg. Co., 154 N. C. 241, 243, 70 S. E. 295.

Must Claim through Brother.—A legitimate, who does not claim directly from a brother or sister, or from the issue or heirs of either, but from an illegitimate first cousin, comes within neither the letter nor the reason of this paragraph. Bettis v. Avery, 140 N. C. 184, 52 S. E. 584.

As between Surviving Brothers and Widow.—Under this rule where an illegitimate son has married, leaving surviving illegitimate brothers and sisters of the same mother, they may collaterally inherit the estate and the inheritance cannot be cast upon his surviving widow, as his heir. Bryant v. Bryant, 190 N. C. 372, 130 S. E. 21.

Rule Applies to Issue of Slaves.—Persons born in slavery, of slave parents, and who were not legitimated by their parents marrying subsequent to the war, have the rights of illegitimates between themselves Hence, when there are two brothers coming under this description, and one dies leaving no issue or mother, the other brother inherits, and is the next in title. (Tucker v. Bellamy, 98 N. C. 31, 4 S. E. 34, and Jones v. Hoggard, 108 N. C. 178, 12 S. E. 906, 907, distinguished.) Tucker v. Tucker, 108 N. C. 235, 13 S. E. 5.

Rule 11, Estate for life of another, not devised, deemed inheritance. Every estate for the life of another, not devised, shall be deemed an inheritance of the deceased owner, within the meaning and operation of this chapter. (Rev., s. 1556; Code, s. 1281; R. C., c. 38, Rule 12; C. S. 1654.)

Rule Differs from Older Statutes.—This section was a departure from the English law as settled by 29 Charles II, which enacts (according to the ancient rule of law) that where there is no special occupant in whom the estate may vest, the tenant per autre vie may devise it by will, or it shall go to the executors or administrators, and be assets in their hands for payment of debts; and the other, that of 14 Geo. II, c. 20, which enacts that the surplus of such estate per autre vie, after payment of debts, shall go in a course of distribution like a chattel interest. Brown v. Brown, 168 N. C. 4, 13, 84 S. E. 25.

Rule 12, Seizin defined. Every person, in whom a seizin is required by any of the provisions of this chapter, shall be deemed to have been seized, if he may have had any right, title or interest in the inheritance. (Rev., s. 1556; Code, s. 1281; R. C., c. 38, Rule 13; C. S. 1654.)

Cross References.—See also, rule 1. As to distributees of illegitimates, see § 28-152. As to effects of legitimation, see § 49-11.

Seizin at Common Law.—At the common law, seizin signified the possession or occupation of the soil by a freeholder, one who has at least a life estate in the land. This seizin was of two kinds—seizin in deed or in fact, which was when the person had the actual seizin or possession or occupation of the land with the intent, as is sometimes said, to claim a freehold interest and seizin in law, which was a bare right to possess or occupy the land or freehold, or, as otherwise defined, a right of immediate possession according to the nature of the estate. Early v. Early, 134 N. C. 258, 264, 46 S. E. 503.

Same—Compared with Seizin under Rule.—The seizin, either in law or in deed, of the common law is not the seizin of the statute. The former requires that there shall be either actual possession or the right of immediate possession, while all that is required under the present section to constitute a sufficient seizin for the creation of a new stock of inheritance or stirpes of descent is that the person from whom the descent is claimed should have had, at the time of the descent cast, some right, title or interest in the inheritance, whether vested in possession or not; for the language of the statute is explicit that a person having any such right, title, or interest shall be deemed to have been seized thereof. Early v. Early, 134 N. C. 258, 267, 46 S. E. 503; Severt v. Lyall, 222 N. C. 533, 23 S. E. (2d) 829.

Trust for Wife Descends to Her Heirs.—The resulting trust in favor of the wife in lands the title to which has been acquired by her husband by deed is now descendible to her heirs under this rule, though she may not have been in separate possession thereof during her life. Barrett v. Brewer, 153 N. C. 547, 69 S. E. 614, cited and distinguished. Tyndall v. Tyndall, 186 N. C. 272, 119 S. E. 354.

New Propositus Created by Will.—A devise of land to testator's two daughters for life, and at the death of either or both of them, then said land shall go to the child or children of each, the child or children representing the mother in interest, it was held, upon the marriage of one of them, and having issue born alive, the issue so born takes by purchase under the will, and is a new propositus for the purpose of descent. Allen v. Parker, 187 N. C. 376, 121 S. E. 665.

Issue of Contingent Remainderman Inherit.—Under the provisions of rule 1 and this rule, a devise to the daughter of the testator and her issue, upon the death of the testator's son without issue, is such an interest as is descendible to the issue of the daughter when she has died before the happening of the contingency. Hines v. Reynolds, 181 N. C. 343, 107 S. E. 144.

Upon an estate to W. during his life, and at his death to his eldest son, not then in esse, with residuary clause to the testator's children; upon the happening of the contingency of the birth to W. of a son, it was held that the son takes upon his birth a vested interest, not depending upon his living longer than his father, and upon the falling-in of the life estate it descends, under our present canons of descent, to his next of kin, and does not fall within the residuary clause. Carolina Power Co. v. Haywood, 186 N. C. 313, 119 S. E. 500.

Rule 13, Issue of certain colored persons to inherit. The children of colored parents born at any time before the first day of January, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-eight, of persons living together as man and wife, are declared legitimate children of such parents or either one of them, with all the rights of heirs at law and next of kin, with respect to the estate or estates of any such parents, or either one of them. If such children be dead, their issue shall represent them with all the rights of heirs at law and next of kin provided by this section for their deceased parents or either of them if they had been living; and the provision of this section shall apply to the estates of such children as are now deceased or otherwise. (Rev., s. 1556; Code, s. 1281; 1897, c. 153; 1879, c. 73; C. S. 1654.)

Cross Reference.—As to marriages between slaves validated, see § 51-5 and notes.

Prior to Statute Children Were Illegitimate.—Prior to the passage of this paragraph children born prior to 1868 of colored parents who lived together as man and wife had only the rights of other illegitimates, and could only inherit from their mother, when there was no legitimate child, and from one another. Tucker v. Tucker, 108 N. C. 235, 238, 13 S. E. 5.

Relation to Section 51-5.—There is this marked distinction between this section and section 51-5, which is important in dealing with the competency of the declarations of a parent. Section 51-5 deals with marriage, and it is because the relationship of husband and wife is established that the children born in wedlock are legitimate, while this rule does not validate the cohabitation, but simply confers the right to inherit, and this right is limited to the estates of the parents. Bettis v. Avery, 140 N. C. 184, 187, 52 S. E. 584; Croom v. Whitehead, 174 N. C. 305, 310, 93 S. E. 854.

All Colored Parents Included.—This rule is a valid law as to descents after its passage, and renders legitimate the children of all colored parents living together as man and wife, born before 1 January, 1868, even the children of a woman of mixed blood, whose mother was a white woman, who lived with a slave as his wife at the time of their birth. Woodward v. Blue, 103 N. C. 109, 9 S. E. 492.

Rule Legitimates Children Only as to Inheritance.—Persons born in slavery, of slave parents, and who were not legitimated by their parents marrying subsequent to the war, are not legitimated by this paragraph, except to the extent of inheriting from their parents. Tucker v. Tucker, 108 N. C. 235, 13 S. E. 5.

Applies to Estate of Parents Only.—This paragraph conveys the right of inheritance upon the children only as to the estate of their parents, not as to collaterals. Tucker v. Bellamy, 98 N. C. 31, 4 S. E. 34; Tucker v. Tucker, 108 N. C. 235, 236, 13 S. E. 5; Bettis v. Avery, 140 N. C. 184, 52 S. E. 584; Croom v. Whitehead, 174 N. C. 305, 93 S. E. 854; Bryant v. Bryant, 190 N. C. 372, 374, 130 S. E. 21.

Operates Only Prospectively.—This rule operates only prospectively and cannot divest any estate theretofore acquired. Tucker v. Bellamy, 98 N. C. 31, 33, 4 S. E. 34; Jones v. Hoggard, 108 N. C. 178, 12 S. E. 906, 907.

No Rights Conferred on Collaterals.—This paragraph legitimates the children of colored parents, who were born before the first day of January, 1868, and merely extends the children's right of inheritance to the estate of the father, which was before that restricted to the estate of the mother, but it does not transmit any title to the plaintiff, who is claiming the land in dispute as heirs of an illegitimate first cousin. Bettis v. Avery, 140 N. C. 184, 52 S. E. 584.

Illegitimates Excluded.—Where a man and woman, both slaves, cohabited as husband and wife for several years, but separated prior to emancipation and children were born while this relation existed and after the separation the woman entered into a similar relation with another slave, which continued until after the end of the war, when the parties duly acknowledged and had recorded the fact of cohabition, the children of the last union were legitimate and inherited the lands of which their father died seized and they also inherited the lands of which their mother died seized, to the exclusion of her children born of the first union. Jones v. Hoggard, 108 N. C. 178, 12 S. E. 906, 907.

Two Conditions Essential.—The two essential conditions necessary to give effect to this paragraph are cohabitation existing at the birth of the child, and the paternity of the party from whom the property claimed is derived. Woodard v. Blue, 103 N. C. 109, 116, 9 S. E. 492; Woodard v. Blue, 107 N. C. 407, 410, 12 S. E. 453; Croom v. Whitehead, 174 N. C. 305, 310, 93 S. E. 854; Spaugh v. Hartman, 150 N. C. 454, 64 S. E. 198.

Cohabitation Is a Presumption Only.—The cohabiting does not alone confer legitimacy, though it furnishes presumptive evidence that the child is the issue of the persons thus living and indicating their relations; but the presumed fact is open to disproof, and to be determined, as other facts, upon the force of the evidence adduced, which may be sufficient to overcome the presumption. Woodward v. Blue, 103 N. C. 109, 116, 9 S. E. 492.

Cohabitation Must Have Been Exclusive.—In order to come within the provision of this paragraph, legitimatizing the children of colored parents living together as man and wife, etc., and thus giving them the rights of inheritance, an exclusive cohabitation must be shown, as signified by the expression, "living together as man and wife," and not casual sexual intercourse. Spaugh v. Hartman, 150 N. C. 454, 54 S. E. 198.

The cohabitation must be exclusive in the sense that it must show a single, not a polygamous, relation. Branch v. Walker, 102 N. C. 34, 40, 8 S. E. 896; Croom v. Whitehead, 174 N. C. 305, 310, 93 S. E. 854.

Same—Effect of Single Act of Infidelity.—It was not intended to require that living together as husband and wife should be "enduring or in strict personal fidelity while it continued," Hall v. Fleming, 174 N. C. 167, 93 S. E. 728; or that a single act of infidelity on the part of the parents should have the effect of destroying the provisions of the statutes, primarily enacted to legitimate the offspring. Croom v. Whitehead, 174 N. C. 305, 310, 93 S. E. 854.

Evidence.—The quasi marriage relation necessary to legitimatize the children of colored parents, under the provision of this paragraph may be shown in evidence by reputation, cohabitation, declarations and conduct, under the same general rule of evidence applicable to establish the fact of marriage. Nelson v. Hunter, 140 N. C. 598, 599, 53 S. E. 439, cited and approved; Spaugh v. Hartman, 150 N. C. 454, 64 S. E. 198.

Same—Rule Less Strict than Where Legal Marriage.—To repeal the inference of paternity, drawn from the mere fact of cohabitation, the same stringent rules do not prevail as in cases of established legal marriage, when, to bastardize the issue, there must be full, affirmative, repelling proof, such as impotency, nonaccess and the like, or the presumption of legitimacy will stand. Woodard v. Blue, 103 N. C. 109, 116, 9 S. E. 492.

Chapter 30. Widows.

Art. 1. Dissent from Will.

§ 30-1. Time and manner of dissent. — Every widow may dissent from her husband's will before the clerk of the superior court of the county in which such will is proved, at any time within six months after the probate. The dissent may be in person, or by attorney authorized in writing, executed by the widow and attested by at least one witness and duly proved. The dissent, whether in person or by attorney, shall be filed as a record of court. If the widow be an infant or insane, she may dissent by her guardian. (Rev., s. 3080; Code, s. 2108; 1868-9, c. 93, s. 37; C. S. 4096.)

Cross Reference.—See annotation to § 30-5.

See 11 N. C. Law Rev., 274, for suggested revision of this and subsequent sections.

Section a "Statute of Limitations."—This section is not a statute conferring a right of dower, but a statute of limitation upon that right, as it existed at common law. In other words its effect is to prescribe a limitation in respect to the time in which the widow may claim or reject the provisions of the will. Hinton v. Hinton, 61 N. C. 410, 412.

Purpose of Six Months' Period.—The object of giving the widow six months within which to make an election to take under the will or against it, under the law, is to enable the widow to fully learn the condition of the estate and the advantages to be derived under the provisions made for her, as compared with those occurring as in case of an intestacy, and thus to intelligently exercise her right to dissent. Yorkly v. Stinson, 97 N. C. 236, 240, 1 S. E. 452; Richardson v. Justice, 125 N. C. 409, 410, 412, 34 S. E. 441. And if the widow is acquainted with the condition of the estate and what is included therein, then her election once made is binding. Horton v. Lee, 99 N. C. 227, 5 S. E. 404.

Other Rights Not Impaired.—The right of the widow to dissent from her husband's will cannot be attended with the deprivation or impairment of other rights because of an unsuccessful opposition to the will. Under this principle the wife may, if the validity of the will is established, claim and accept any benefit given her by the will. Yorkly v. Stinson, 97 N. C. 236, 1 S. E. 452.

Failure to Dissent within Time Allowed.—Where a widow fails to dissent to a will and brings an action after six months from the probate thereof for a year's allowance given her by section 30-15, such action is not maintainable. Perkins v. Brinkley, 133 N. C. 86, 45 S. E. 465.

Same—Where the Estate Is Insolvent.—The failure of a widow to dissent from her husband's will within six months does not prevent her from claiming dower, or its equivalent in lands devised, when it appears that the estate is insolvent. Trust Co. v. Stone, 176 N. C. 270, 97 S. E. 8.

Dissent by Next Friend Where Widow an Infant.—Where the widow is a minor without a guardian, she may be represented by her next friend duly appointed, when dissenting from her deceased husband's will. Hollomon v. Hollomon, 125 N. C. 29, 34 S. E. 99.

When Dissent Made in Person.—Where a widow, being a minor and having no guardian, dissented in person and in open court from her husband's will, her dissent is made erroneously; however if she is assigned her dower by a court of competent jurisdiction her right to it cannot be impeached in an action of ejectment. Cheshire v. McCoy, 52 N. C. 376.

Acts Constituting Election.—The widow will not be precluded from the exercise of the legal right herein provided for by an agreement, even under seal, which she may be induced by the executor to sign, in ignorance of the condition of the estate. Richardson v. Justice, 125 N. C. 409, 410, 34 S. E. 441.

The institution of proceedings by the widow to have her dower allotted in order to protect her estate from creditors was held not to amount to a renunciation of the will. Lee v. Giles, 161 N. C. 541, 77 S. E. 852.

Where the widow entered a caveat to a will and contested its validity, it was held that she was not prevented from accepting any benefit given her by the will, nor was she prevented from entering her dissent thereto within the proper time. Yorkly v. Stinson, 97 N. C. 236, 1 S. E. 452. For other cases of acts amounting to an election thus preventing the widow from entering her dissent, see 12 N. C. Enc. Dig. 677 et seq.

Where a widow is appointed executrix and proves the will and qualifies, she cannot afterwards renounce and dissent, but must carry out the will in all its provisions. Yorkly v. Stinson, 97 N. C. 236, 1 S. E. 452.

Entry of Dissent.—The entry of a dissent to her husband's will by the widow, is an incident to the jurisdiction of the probate, and as this jurisdiction has been conferred upon the clerk of the superior court, the widow's dissent is to be made and entered in his office. Ramsour v. Ramsour, 63 N. C. 231.

Applicability of Doctrine of Estoppel.—Where a widow agrees to adhere to the provisions of a will, and in consequence thereof the executor proceeds to pay legacies and assume obligations which would cause loss to him if the widow were to dissent, she will be estopped by her agreement, and will not be allowed to dissent; but where in such case she offers to put the estate in statu quo, and the executor has not acted under her agreement so as to cause him any loss whatever, she is not estopped. Yorkly v. Stinson, 97 N. C. 236, 1 S. E. 452.

Dissent as Bar to Property in Foreign State. — If the widow does not enter her dissent in one state and takes under the will in that state, she cannot then go to a foreign state and enter her dissent and claim her dower. In other words she will not be allowed to take under the will in one state and against it in another. Jones v. Gerock, 59 N. C. 190, 195, citing Mendenhall v. Mendenhall, 53 N. C. 287.

§ 30-2. Effect of dissent.—Upon such dissent, the widow shall have the same rights and estates in the real and personal property of her husband as if he had died intestate. (Rev., s. 3081; Code, s. 2109; R. C., c. 118, s. 12; 1868-9, c. 93, s. 38; C. S. 4097.)

Cross References.—As to distribution in case of intestacy, see § 28-149. As to descent in case of intestacy, see § 29-1, class 8.

Generally.—The "estate" referred to is dower; the "rights" referred to are the year's support and child's support as a distributee, both of which are legal rights, enforcible at law, and not cognizable in a court of equity except when equity may be invoked to enforce her legal rights. Drewry v. Bank, etc., Co., 173 N. C. 664, 92 S. E. 593.

The words "as if he had died intestate" are not limited to the ordinary meaning of the husband dying without making a will, but include the case of his death without effectually disposing of his property. Corporation Commission v. Dunn, 174 N. C. 679, 685, 94 S. E. 481.

Method of Determining Widow's Share.—In ascertaining the distributive share of a widow who dissents from her husband's will, all of his personal estate, whether consisting of advancements heretofore made to children, or legacies to grandchildren or to strangers, is to be brought together, and her share is to be taken out of it pursuant to the statute of distributions. Arrington v. Dorten, 77 N. C. 367.

Dissent Accelerates the Vesting of the Property.—Where property is devised to the widow during her life and then to a university and she dissents thereto, such property vests immediately in the university if the property is not given to the widow in her dower. Trustees v. Borden, 132 N. C. 476, 44 S. E. 47.

Right Subject to Inheritance Tax.—The dower right in lands of the husband taken by the dissenting widow is subject to the inheritance tax. Corporation Commission v. Dunn, 174 N. C. 679, 685, 94 S. E. 481.

Widow as Donee of Power.—Where the widow is the donee of a discretionary power, by dissenting from the will she renounces all gifts whether of estates or powers under it, at least of such powers as imply personal trust and confidence. Hinton v. Hinton, 68 N. C. 100, 104.

§ 30-3. Widow's interest not liable for husband's debts.—The dower or right of dower of a widow, and such lands as may be devised to her by his will, if such lands do not exceed the quantity she would be entitled to by right of dower, although she has not dissented from such will, shall not be subject to the payment of debts due from the estate of her husband, during the term of her life. (Rev., s. 3082; Code, ss. 2104, 2105; R. C., c. 118, s. 8; 1868-9, c. 93, s. 34; 1791, c. 351, s. 4; C. S. 4098.)

Generally.—This section secures a provision out of the husband's land to the widow in two cases: (1) Where dower has been actually assigned, as in cases of intestacy, and dissent from the husband's will, and (2) where the husband devises lands to the wife, which are presumed to be in lieu of dower. Simonton v. Houston, 78 N. C. 408.

Exempt from Debts and Legacies.—Dower assigned to a widow who dissents from her husband's will is subject to neither debts nor legacies, Bray v. Lamb, 17 N. C. 372, 374, and where the personalty is insufficient to pay the debts the lands of the husband are sold subject to this right of dower. Curry v. Curry, 183 N. C. 83, 110 S. E. 579.

Lands Devised to Wife.—When, for the payment of a deceased husband's debts, it becomes necessary to resort to the lands devised by him to his wife, she is remitted to her right of dower, which, as in other cases, is not subject to those debts during her life. Ex parte Avery, 64 N. C. 113. But her right of dower is not protected against the debt due the vendor for the purchase money of the land. Kirby v. Dalton, 16 N. C. 195.

Where wife joins in mortgage of husband to exclude claim for inchoate dower therein, her relation to the transaction is that of surety, and should she survive him and the land is sold to satisfy the debt she becomes a creditor of the estate in the amount equal to her dower. American Blower Co. v. Mackenzie, 197 N. C. 152, 147 S. E. 829.

Stated in Boyd v. Redd, 118 N. C. 680, 686, 24 S. E. 429; Shackelford v. Miller, 91 N C. 181, 187.

Art. 2. Dower.

§ 30-4. Who entitled to dower.—Widows shall be endowed as at common law as in this chapter defined: Provided, if any married woman shall commit adultery, and shall not be living with her husband at his death, or shall be convicted of the felonious slaying of her husband, or being accessory before the fact to the felonious slaying of her husband, she shall thereby lose all right to dower in the lands and tenements of her husband; and any such adultery or conviction may be pleaded in bar of any action or proceeding for the recovery of dower. (Rev., s. 3083; Code, s. 2102; 1889, c. 499; 1868-9, c. 93, s. 32; 1871-2, c. 193, s. 44; C. S. 4099.)

Cross References.—As to the right to a year's support, see § 30-15 and annotations thereto. As to husband's curtesy, see § 52-16 and annotation under § 52-7. As to acts barring reciprocal property rights of husband and wife, see § 52-19 et seq.

Definition.—Dower is the provision which the law makes for a widow out of the lands or tenements of her husband, for her support and the nurture of her children. Bouvier's Law Dict., Vol. 1, p. 611.

Reconciliation May Prevent Forfeiture.—The forfeiture, by this section, takes effect, not when the wife shall commit adultery, but when she does so and "shall not be living with her husband at his death." In other words, the door stands open until the death of the husband for a reconciliation and return of the wife. Leonard v. Leonard, 107 N. C. 171, 172, 12 S. E. 60.

Single Act of Adultery Sufficient.—If the wife leaves her husband and once commits adultery with the adulterer, even though she does not continually remain in adultery, it is a "continuing" within the meaning of the act. Walters v. Jordan, 35 N. C. 361.

This decision was reached when the section read "if she willingly leave her husband and go away and continue with her adulterer," a requirement no longer found within the provision of this section. While the precise point in this case does not appear to have recently come before the courts, the present wording of the section would seem to furnish all the more reason for the justification of the ruling that a single act of adultery, without a reconciliation with the husband, is sufficient to constitute a bar to the wife's claim for dower.—Ed. Note.

Wrongdoing of Husband No Defense.—The violation of the marriage vows by the husband will not justify the wife in violating her vows, and since the dower right is given for the benefit of the guiltless and not those standing in pari delicto, her adultery will bar the widow's right to dower. Phillips v. Wiseman, 131 N. C. 402, 42 S. E. 861.

Stated in Lee v. Thornton, 176 N. C. 208, 97 S. E. 23; Higdon v. Higdon, 206 N. C. 62, 64, 173 S. E. 273.

§ 30-5. In what property widow entitled to dower.—Subject to the provision in § 30-4, every married woman, upon the death of her husband intestate, or in case she shall dissent from his will, shall be entitled to an estate for her life in one-third in value of all the lands, tenements and hereditaments whereof her husband was seized and possessed at any time during the coverture, in which third part shall be included the dwelling-house in which her husband usually resided, together with offices, out-houses, buildings and improvements thereunto belonging or appertaining; she shall in like manner be entitled to such an estate in all legal rights of redemption and equities of redemption or other equitable estates in lands, tenements and hereditaments whereof her husband was seized in fee at any time during the coverture, subject to all valid encumbrances existing before the coverture or made during it with her free consent lawfully appearing thereto. The jury summoned for the purpose of assigning dower to a widow shall not be restricted to assign the same in every separate and distinct tract of land, but may allot her dower in one or more tracts, having a due regard to the interest of the heirs as well as to the right of the widow. This section shall not be construed so as to compel the jury selected to allot dower to allot the dwelling-house in which the husband usually resided, when the widow shall request that the same be allotted in other property. (Rev., s. 3084; Code, s. 2103; R. C., c. 118, s. 3; R. S., c. 121, s. 3; 1827, c. 46; 1869-70, c. 176; 1883, c. 175; 1908, c. 132; C. S. 4100.)

I. GENERAL CONSIDERATION OF DOWER

Editor's Note.—It is practically impossible in a work of this nature to give a full treatment and discussion of the whole law of this important subject, for any one of the innumerable issues which arise in litigation on this topic could be the basis of a lengthy article. As will be seen from the frontal analysis, the editor has deemed it advisable from the viewpoint of the practitioner, to place hereunder cases which contain construction of this specific section and likewise to deal with those topics which appear to have given the most trouble in the decided cases.

Positive Law Is Basis of Dower.—The contract of marriage does not vest in the wife her right of dower. This right is not regarded as springing from contract, although the contract of marriage is a prerequisite to its existence, but from the positive terms of the common law or statute law. Corporation Commission v. Dunn, 174 N. C. 679, 681 94 S. E. 481; Rose v. Rose, 63 N. C. 391.

Right of Dower Is a Legal Right.—The right of a widow is a legal right and is prior to that of the heir. Campbell v. Murphy, 55 N. C. 357. It does not arise from the estate of the heir but is a continuation of that of her husband Everett v. Newton, 118 N. C. 919, 922, 23 S. E. 961; Williams v. Bennett, 26 N. C. 122.

As to exemption from debts and legacies, see note to Curry v. Curry, 183 N. C. 83, 110 S. E. 579, under section 30-3.

Law of Situs Governs. — The existence and incidents of the right of dower are determined by the law of the state in which the real estate lies and not by that of the place of the marriage or the domicile of the parties. Corporation Commission v. Dunn, 174 N. C. 679, 681, 94 S. E. 481. The law existing when the estate becomes consummate by the husband's death is the governing law. Id.

Where Dissent of Wife Not Necessary.—It will be noticed that the widow's right to claim dower is subject to the two contingencies, (1) that her husband die intestate, or (2) that she dissent from his will. In other words, this and the foregoing section give the widow the right to elect whether she will take under the provisions of the will or whether she will dissent therefrom and take under the law. There seems to be at least one case wherein the widow is not put to this election. It appears to be this: Where the husband takes a defeasible title to lands and the limitation is defeated at his death because of the non-performance of the condition thereof, then he has no legal title or estate in the lands which he could dispose of by will. Now when the husband dies leaving a will disposing of his other real and personal property, is the widow required to dissent from this will in order to lay claim to dower in the defeasible fee of which the husband was seized and possessed during coverture, but which limitation was terminated at his death? As stated above, it is held that she need not dissent. The reasons given are these: The dissent authorized by this section has reference to property which may be the subject of a devise. The husband in this case has no right to devise the defeasible fee, and his widow therefore is not claiming dower in opposition to the will. See Alexander v. Fleming, 190 N. C. 815, 819, 130 S. E. 867.—Ed. Note.

Not Consummate Until Death of Husband. — A married woman has an inchoate right or estate in one-third in value of all the lands of which her husband is seized and possessed during coverture, but its enjoyment is postponed by law until his death, and is contingent upon her surviving him. Gatewood v. Tomlinson, 113 N. C. 312, 313, 18 S. E. 318. And the wife cannot in the lifetime of her husband have her dower allotted even though his lands are sold under execution. Gatewood v. Tomlinson, 113 N. C. 312, 313, 18 S. E. 318.

Upon the death of a husband, the widow's right of dower becomes consummate, and is a fixed and vested right of property in the nature of a chose in action, which, upon assignment of dower, becomes a life estate in the property assigned, which estate is subject to all the incidents of any other life estate, and is considered a continuation of the husband's estate. Citizens Bank, etc., Co. v. Watkins, 215 N. C. 292, 1 S. E. (2d) 853.

The widow has no right under this section, to select the lands to constitute her dower, the provision providing that the commissioners need not select the dwelling-house if the widow requests otherwise, being merely to afford relief from the otherwise mandatory duty of the commissioners to select the dwelling-house, and not conferring the right of selection on the widow, and the commissioners being further required to equally protect the interests of the heirs and widow. Vannoy v. Green, 206 N. C. 77, 173 S. E. 277.

Valuation of Dower.—In determining the present value of inchoate dower or dower consummate, the full value of the dowerable lands, encumbered as well as unencumbered, and without deducting the mortgage debt, constitutes the proper basis of computation. Virginia Trust Co. v. White, 215 N. C. 565, 2 S. E. (2d) 568.

Nature of the Inchoate Dower.—The sections of the code pertaining to dower seem to recognize the right during the husband's life as a valuable interest that may pass by a conveyance. When she encumbers it by joining in a mortgage to secure his debt she becomes his surety. Gore v. Townsend, 105 N. C. 228, 232, 11 S. E. 160. In Bullard v. Briggs, 7 Pick. (Mass.) 533, cited and approved in Gore v. Townsend, supra, it is said: "It is a right and interest of which she cannot be divested but by her consent or crime, or by her dying before her husband."

An examination of the cases will show that no little difficulty has been encountered in fixing a precise and accurate definition of this inchoate right of dower possessed by the wife during the lifetime of her husband. But whatever contrariety may be found in the various statements made in reference to this right, all the courts adhere to the same established rules in the decision of the cases bearing on the subject, and substantiate the foregoing principles.

In summarizing the nature of this right, it is said in 2 Scriber on Dower 8: "It cannot properly be denominated an estate in lands nor indeed, a vested right therein, however it is a substantial right, possessing in contemplation of law, the attributes of property, and is to be estimated and valued as such." And in Dollin v. Coin, 14 Wall 472, 479, 20 L. Ed. 830, it is said: "A wife having only an inchoate right of dower has no present title to the land, either legal or equitable."—Ed. Note.

Where the husband's lands are sold by a receiver appointed by the court, and the husband and wife join in the receiver's deed to the purchaser, who assumes prior mortgage indebtedness thereon, and the parties agree that the wife's inchoate dower shall attach to the proceeds of the sale, the sale is not a foreclosure of the prior mortgages and the wife's rights of inchoate dower attaches to the proceeds of the sale, and the cash value of the inchoate right is computable and the wife is entitled thereto as against other creditors of the husband. American Blower Co. v. Mackenzie, 197 N. C. 152, 147 S. E. 829, laying down rule for computing present value of right of dower.

Although inchoate dower has a present value, the enjoyment of the estate is expressly postponed by statute until after the husband's death, and is contingent upon the wife surviving her husband. Higdon v. Higdon, 206 N. C. 62, 173 S. E. 273.

Cited in Honeycutt v. Burleson, 198 N. C. 37, 38, 150 S. E. 634.

II. PROPERTY SUBJECT TO DOWER.

A. In General.

Editor's Note.—The courts have followed the clear and unambiguous terms of this section in the determination of just what property is subject to the dower right of the widow. The cases given below will illustrate that the provisions herein contained constitute the formula which the property claimed by the wife must satisfy. The chief issue around which litigation has arisen is in regard to the nature of the seizin which the husband must have and whether or not he has such seizin in the property in question. This topic is thought to be of so great importance as to justify treatment under a separate analysis line.

Last Usual Residence Must Be Included.—In the allotment of the widow's dower, the provision pertaining to last usual residence of the husband has been given a literal interpretation, and it is held that this residence must be embraced therein and if the value thereof is as much as one-third of the realty of which the husband dies seized, then the widow has no interest in the balance of the estate. Howell v. Parker, 136 N. C. 373, 375, 48 S. E. 762. The widow cannot waive the right to the residence. Id. But note the effect of the last sentence of this section.—Ed. Note.

Same—Where Dwelling House Constitutes Entire Estate.—If the deceased had no other property but his dwelling house, then only a third can be set aside as dower. Caudle v. Caudle, 176 N. C. 537, 97 S. E. 472.

Valuation of Property.—A widow is not entitled to have dower of the improved value of her husband's estate, but she must take it according to the value as it was in his lifetime. Campbell v. Murphy, 55 N. C. 357.

Same—Right to Damages.—The widow's claim of dower becomes a vested right upon allotment, continuing from the death of her husband, and from that time she is entitled to damages, measured by the rental value, for the time she has been kept out of possession. In re Gorham, 177 N. C. 271, 98 S. E. 717.

Same—Where Lands Sold to Pay Debts of Deceased.—In case of a sale of the lands to make assets to pay the debts of the deceased, the widow is entitled to interest on her proportionate part from the sale until payment, charging her interest in return, for such sums as she may be indebted to the estate. In re Gorham, 177 N. C. 271, 98 S. E. 717.

Partnership Property.—Real estate belonging to a partnership is subject to dower in favor of a widow of one of the partners only so far as a surplus may be left after paying the partnership debts. Stroud v. Stroud, 61 N. C. 525.

This holding is based upon the reasoning stated in Summey v. Patton, 60 N. C. 601, which is to the effect that where the partnership realty is sold to pay partnership debts, the surplus retains its character as real estate and descends to the heir, so that the heir takes subject to the widow's right of dower.—Ed. Note.

Mortgaged Property.—Under this section where an entire transaction was in effect an indirect mortgage on the property of a father, and his children received no consideration and acquired no beneficial interest in the lands, the sole beneficial interest in the lands was in the father, and upon his death his widow is entitled to her dower rights in the lands. Stack v. Stack, 202 N. C. 461, 163 S. E. 589.

B. Estates and Interests.

1. Nature of Seizin Required.

Seizin of Estate of Inheritance Necessary.—The seizin to render the estate dowable must be of an estate of inheritance, with the freehold vested in the deceased husband. Barnes v. Roper, 90 N. C. 189, 190.

The widow's right to dower rests upon the theory that during coverture her deceased husband died intestate, seized of an estate which any child she may have borne him might have taken by descent. Alexander v. Fleming, 190 N. C. 815, 130 S. E. 867.

Same—Seizin in Law or in Deed.—A widow is entitled to dower only in an estate of inheritance of which her husband had a seizin in law or in deed at any time during the coverture, Houston v. Smith, 88 N. C. 312; the latter being the actual possession of a freehold estate and the former the right to the immediate possession or enjoyment of a freehold estate. Redding v. Vogt, 140 N. C. 562, 53 S. E. 337.

Possession Alone Will Not Suffice. — Possession cannot supply the seisin of an inheritable estate necessary to support the right of dower. Barnes v. Roper, 90 N. C. 189, 191, Efland v. Efland, 96 N. C. 488, 1 S. E. 858.

The original Act of 1784 read "seized or possessed." The section now reads "seized and possessed," the substitution of the word "and" for the word "or" having been made by the Act of 1836. This substitution, however, does not affect the substantive meaning and intent of the section, and is said in Weir v. Tate, 39 N. C. 264, 278, to be only a clerical error. This being true the section as it now reads is to be given the same construction as it received prior to the exchange of these words. Under this construction it would seem that the word "possessed" is surplusage, and at least one court has said that no member of the profession has ever understood why it was placed in the section. Weir v. Tate, supra. This view seems to be rested on the fact that if the requisite of seizin is satisfied, the possession, so far as is necessary, is likewise satisfied.—Ed. Note.

When Husband Deemed to Be Seized.—The husband is generally deemed to be seized of any land, "when he may have had any right, title or interest in the inheritance." Boyd v. Redd, 118 N. C. 680, 685, 24 S. E. 429.

2. Application.

Editor's Note. — The determination of the question as to whether or not the husband has been seized of the land, within the meaning of the judicial construction placed on the word as used in this section, probably has been the most fruitful source of litigation of the whole subject of dower. The contests which have been waged around this particular requisite have arisen in various forms, and have involved all kinds of estates and interests. However, the conclusions reached by the courts are believed to be placed on reasons which in turn, have as their foundation the basic principles hereinbefore set out. A few of what are believed to be the leading cases are given in the following passages, for it is believed that the constructions of the section on this particular point, handed down by the courts in these cases, are well established in the State of North Carolina.

Seizin of Estate in Remainder.—The widow of a remainderman is not entitled to dower where the life tenant survives the remainderman, because the husband in such case is never seized of such an estate of inheritance in the land as is required. Royster v. Royster, 61 N. C. 226, 229.

Seizin of Purchaser at Judicial Sale.—Where a purchaser at a judicial sale gave his bond for the purchase money and died before the sale was reported to or confirmed by the court, it was held that he was seized of such an equitable estate as would entitle the widow to dower in such lands. Klutts v. Klutts, 58 N. C. 80.

Devise by Will—Rule in Shelley's Case.—Where under his will a testator gave all his lands to his son for life, "and after his death to his lawful heirs, born of his wife," it was held that the son did not take a fee simple, under the rule in Shelley's case, so as to give his widow dower therein. Thompson v. Crump, 138 N. C. 32, 50 S. E. 457.

A testator devised land in trust for the sole benefit of his son and the son's family, specifying that the whole of the property, with all its increase, on the death of the son, was to go on to his lawful heirs, share and share alike; it was held that the son did not take the fee under the rule in Shelley's Case but only a life estate, and therefore his widow was not entitled to dower therein. Gilmore v. Sellars, 145 N. C. 288, 59 S. E. 73.

The general doctrine of the rule in Shelley's Case may well be mentioned at this point. If the rule of this case is applicable to the controversy in question, then the husband takes a fee simple to the lands out of which dower may be had, because the husband will have been seized during coverture of an estate of inheritance within the meaning of the word as used in this section. But if the rule in Shelley's Case is inapplicable, then the husband takes only a life estate out of which dower cannot be had, and this because the husband will not have been "seized" within the meaning of this section for, as we have already seen, seizin as here used means an estate of inheritance. See note of Barnes v. Roper, ante, this note, analysis line II, B, 1. The reason which prevented this doctrine from operating in the Thompson case, just noted, was the fact that the words "born of his wife" were held to qualify and explain "his lawful heirs," thus confining the remainder to the children of his will. For a discussion of the rule in Shelley's Case, see the note to section 41-1.—Ed. Note.

Seizin under Unrecorded Deed.—Where title to land is claimed under a deed it is essential that such deed be registered for otherwise the widow is not entitled to dower out of the premises covered by the unrecorded deed. Thomas v. Thomas, 32 N. C. 123. But see Tyson v. Harrington, 41 N. C. 329 where it is held that the widow of a man, to whom a deed for land had been delivered, but from whom it had been abstracted before registration, has a right to her dower in such land, the husband having an incomplete legal title. The case of Thomas v. Thomas, supra, was cited without disapproval.

Rent.—In a U. S. Supreme Court case, Herbert v. Wren, 7 Cranch 370, 3 L. Ed. 374, it was held that if a wife join her husband in a lease for years, she is still entitled to dower in the rent.

Estate at Will.—At common law a wife had no right of dower in an estate at will. See Duncan v. Navassa Phosphate Co., 137 U. S. 647, 34 L. Ed. 826.

III. PLEADING AND PRACTICE.

Only One Proceeding Necessary.—This section gives the widow dower in all the lands of which the husband was seized during coverture, and this provision contemplates that the dower was intended to be sought, and must be sought, in but one special proceeding for the purpose. Askew v. Bynum, 81 N. C. 350, 355. Proceedings for the assignment of dower instituted and determined in the county of the deceased husband's last residence are a bar to subsequent proceedings for the same purpose in another county to affect lands therein located. Id.

Where Petition Filed.—Petition for dower should be filed in the county of the husband's last usual residence, but the jury of allotment may assign the same in one or more tracts situated in one or more counties. Askew v. Bynum, 81 N. C. 350.

The rationale of this section tends to indicate that there should be only one proceeding for the allotment of dower, whether it is a dower proceeding or a proceeding for partition of land, in which widow is entitled to dower, and that proceeding should be in the county where "the dwelling house in which her husband usually resided" is situated. High v. Pearce, 220 N. C. 266, 274, 17 S. E. (2d) 108 (con. op.) and cases cited therein.

See section 30-12 and note thereto.

There is no statute of limitations in regard to the writ of dower; and if her case is not affected by the statute of presumptions the widow is not bound to account for a delay. Campbell v. Murphy, 55 N. C. 357.

Parties.—As to who are necessary parties, see section 30-12 and the note thereto.

§ 30-6. Dower not affected by conveyance of husband; exception.—No alienation of the husband alone, with or without covenant of warranty, shall have any other or further effect than to pass his interest in such estate, subject to the dower right of his wife: Provided, that a mortgage or trust deed by the husband to secure the purchase money, or any part thereof, of land bought by him, shall, without the wife executing the deed, be effectual to pass the whole interest according to the provisions of the said deed. (Rev., s. 3085; Code, s. 2106; 1868-9, c. 93, s. 35; C. S. 4101.)

Cross Reference.—As to private examination of wife, see § 39-7 and annotation thereto.

Editor's Note.—Under this section as it formerly stood no joinder of the wife in a conveyance by the husband was necessary, because as section 30-5 stood under the old law, the wife was given dower only in those lands of which the husband died seized. That section no longer requires seizin at the death of the husband, but only a seizin of inheritance at any time "during coverture." Hence under the prior law the husband had full power to defeat the dower right of the wife by making a conveyance of his lands, for in so doing he would destroy a prerequisite for the attachment of the right of dower. However, this power of the husband was taken away by the change of the wording of section 30-5, and the wife's right, although, in a sense, a qualified one, attaches to all lands seized by the husband during coverture, assuming of course, the existence of the other essential elements. It necessarily follows, then, that all purchasers, etc., take the property conveyed by the husband, subject to the dower right of the wife, and section 30-6 is merely a statutory protection thereof.

This section is modified by section 30-9 to the extent that the husband of an insane or lunatic wife may alienate his property without her joinder provided the terms of that section are complied with.

Generally.—It is an established principle that every citizen has the right to enjoy the fruits of his own labor, and when his earnings are invested in land, the rule is that he acquires with the title the incidental right of absolute and unrestrained alienation. However there are a few instances where the law has trammeled this right to reach some beneficent end; the provision that the wife must join in a conveyance by her husband constitutes one of these restrictions. But this and the other restrictions must be construed as to carry out the kindly purpose for which they were created, with no more restraint on the power of alienation than is necessary to make them effectual. Hughes v. Hodges, 102 N. C. 236, 9 S. E. 437.

Non Joinder of Wife—Dowable Property Retained.—Where the husband has sold and conveyed portions of his land for valuable consideration without the joinder of the wife, but retained lands, which descend to his heirs, of a kind and quantity which permit that dower be assigned out of the lands descended and according to the provisions of this section, the purchasers have a right to require that dower be allotted out of lands descended, and the lands which they have purchased and paid for be relieved of the widow's claim. Harrington v. Harrington, 142 N. C. 517, 55 S. E. 409.

Wife Not Joining in Execution of Deeds of Trust Acquires No Dower Right.—Where a debt secured by a purchase money deed of trust was divided, and two deeds of trust were substituted for the original deed of trust, which was canceled, and the wife of the grantee did not join in executing any of the deeds of trust, she acquired no dower right in the land, the original debt for the purchase money not having been extinguished. Case v. Fitzsimons, 209 N. C. 783, 184 S. E. 818.

§ 30-7. Dower conveyed by wife's joinder in deed.—The right to dower under this chapter shall pass and be effectual against any widow or person claiming under her upon the wife joining with her husband in the deed of conveyance and being privately examined as to her consent thereto in the manner prescribed by law. (Rev., s. 3086; Code, s. 2107; 1868-9, c. 93, s. 36; C. S. 4102.)

Cross Reference.—As to private examination of the wife, see § 39-7 and annotation thereto.

See annotations to § 30-8.

Inchoate Right of Dower as Collateral Security.—The wife by joining in her husband's mortgage given on his lands may convey, as additional security to his debt, her inchoate right of dower. Griffin v. Griffin, 191 N. C. 227, 131 S. E. 585.

Same—Foreclosure.—A deed of trust given by the husband and joined in by the wife unreservedly of her inchoate right of dower, may be enforced under its terms and conditions to pay off the debt it secures, and completely bars the inchoate right of dower. Griffin v. Griffin, 191 N. C. 227, 131 S. E. 585.

Where a wife joins in the execution of a mortgage or deed of trust she conveys her dower interest as security for the debt, and upon foreclosure after her husband's death she may not assert her dower in the land as against the purchaser at the foreclosure sale, although, her position being analogous to that of a surety, she is entitled to assert a claim against her husband's estate to the amount of the value of her dower. Realty Purchase Corp. v. Hall, 216 N. C. 237, 4 S. E. (2d) 514.

Same—Equity Will Not Intervene.—Equity will not interfere in behalf of the wife who has unreservedly joined in a mortgage on her husband's lands, to restrain the sale according to the terms of the instrument, by first ordering a foreclosure sale of the lands outside of the wife's inchoate interest, and if not sufficient, subject her interest to sale for the payment of her husband's debt. Griffin v. Griffin, 191 N. C. 227, 131 S. E. 585.

Joinder Makes Wife a Surety.—When the wife encumbers her inchoate right of dower by joining in a mortgage of his land to secure his debt she becomes his surety, Gore v. Townsend, 105 N. C. 228, 11 S. E. 160, and is entitled to call upon her husband to exonerate her estate from the debt. Id.

Dower Need Not Be Sold When Estate Is Solvent.—The widow may subject her dower to the payment of the debts of her husband's estate by joining in his mortgage deed or conveyance in conformity to the requirements of this section, yet if his estate is solvent the dower need not be sold, and in the event that it is insolvent the estate must be administered according to the established rules. Holt v. Lynch, 201 N. C. 404, 160 S. E. 469.

Cited in Higdon v. Higdon, 206 N. C. 62, 65, 173 S. E. 273.

§ 30-8. Conveyance of home site with wife's assent.—No deed or other conveyance, except to secure purchase money, made by the owner of a home site, which shall include the residence and other buildings together with the particular lot or tract of land upon which the residence is situated, whether actually occupied by said owner or not, shall be valid to pass possession or title during the lifetime of the wife without the voluntary signature and assent of his wife, signified on her private examination according to law: Provided, the wife does not commit adultery, or has not abandoned and does not abandon the husband and live separate and apart from him. Provided further, that all married women under the age of twenty-one shall have the same privilege to renounce their dower rights in and to the home site as is now conferred upon married women twenty-one years and over, and the deed or other conveyances thereof made by the owner of a home site with the voluntary signature and assent of his wife, signified on her private examination according to law, even though the wife be under twenty-one years of age, shall be valid and immediately pass possession and title thereto as though said married women were twenty-one years or over: Provided further, that all conveyances of a home site, as defined in this section, made prior to February 27, 1937, by the owner thereof, with the voluntary signature and assent of his wife, signified on her private examination according to law, shall be valid and pass the title and possession thereto as of the date thereof, even though the wife of said owner was under twenty-one years of age at the time of such signature and assent. (1919, c. 123; 1937, c. 69; C. S. 4103.)

Cross Reference.—As to mortgage of household and kitchen furniture, see § 45-3.

Editor's Note.—Section 30-9 passed by the Public Laws of 1923, is undoubtedly intended to modify this section in that it allows the husband in certain specified cases to alienate the property concerned without the joinder of his wife.

The 1937 amendment directed that the last two provisos be added at the end of this section.

In Coker v. Virginia-Carolina Joint-Stock Land Bank, 208 N. C. 41, 178 S. E. 863, it was held that § 30-10 had no application where a minor's wife joined in a mortgage placed by her husband upon his home site, and declared void the mortgage upon its disaffirmance by the wife within three years after she attained her majority. In order to obviate such a result in the future, the amendment was passed to make valid and binding the properly executed renunciation of her dower rights in her husband's home site by a married woman under the age of 21. This amendment is logical and will tend further to stabilize real estate titles. 15 N. C. Law Rev., No. 4, pp. 354, 355.

In General.—In Southern State Bank v. Summer, 188 N. C. 687, 688, 125 S. E. 489, the court said: "The value of the 'home site' is not fixed by the statute. It is not certain as to whether it is intended to be in addition to, or included within, the homestead right. Nothing is said as to whether it is superior to the rights of heirs or the claims of creditors. It has been suggested that the statute may apply, and probably was intended to apply only as against those claiming under a deed from the husband without his wife's proper joinder. We leave its interpretation for future consideration."

Validity of Section.—This section is valid, and does not fall within the principle that a statute too vaguely worded to express a definite meaning, and which is not susceptible of interpretation by the courts, will be declared void. Boyd v. Brooks, 197 N. C. 644, 150 S. E. 178.

Distinguished from § 45-3.—See note to § 45-3.

Property Constituting a "Home Site."—Where a mortgagor of lands at the time of the execution of the mortgage is in possession of a certain part thereof on which, with the usual outbuildings, he lives with his family as a home, such land is a "home site" within the meaning of this section and held in this case that a 54.75 acres of farm land is not excessive for the purpose. Boyd v. Brooks, 197 N. C. 644, 150 S. E. 178.

Deed to "Home Site" without Wife's Joinder Not Void.—This section limits the effect of the conveyance of a "home site" by a husband's deed or mortgage made without the privy examination of the wife, but does not make the conveyance void, and the effect of the statute is to postpone the title and the right of possession of the "home site" under such deed until the death of the husband, when it then passes to the grantee subject only to the dower right of the wife if she survives him. Boyd v. Brooks, 197 N. C. 644, 150 S. E. 178.

Rights of Parties under Foreclosure of Mortgage on "Home Site" in Which the Wife Did Not Join.—Where the wife does not join in a mortgage made by her husband on the statutory "home site" in his lands, or have her privy examination taken as required by statute, the mortgagee takes subject to the provisions of this section and the purchaser at the foreclosure sale of such mortgage does not acquire under his deed the right to immediate title or possession to the land. Boyd v. Brooks, 197 N. C. 644, 150 S. E. 178.

Homestead Distinguished. — Homestead exemption should not be confused with the wife's interest under this section. The wife's interest in the husband's "home site" exists by this section and a different principle applies as to a conveyance without her valid execution. Johnson v. Leavitt, 188 N. C. 682, 125 S. E. 490.

§ 30-9. Conveyance without joinder of insane wife; certificate of lunacy.—Every man whose wife is a lunatic or insane may bargain, sell, lease, mortgage, transfer and convey any of his real estate by deed, mortgage deed, deed of trust, or lease, without the signature or private examination of his wife: Provided, that the clerk of the superior court of the county in which the wife was adjudged a lunatic or declared insane, or the superintendent of an insane institution of the state, or any other state, shall certify under his hand and seal that she has been adjudged a lunatic or declared insane, and that her sanity has not been declared restored as is provided by law, and this certificate must be attached to the husband's deed, mortgage deed, deed of trust, or lease. Such deed, mortgage deed, deed of trust or lease executed, probated and registered in accordance with law shall convey all the estate and interest as therein intended of the grantor in the land conveyed, free and exempt from the dower rights and all other interests of his wife: Provided, this section shall not apply to the homestead of the husband which has been actually allotted. (1923, c. 65, s. 1; C. S. 4103(a).)

Cross Reference.—See annotations to § 30-8.

Editor's Note.—Attention is called to the fact that section two of the act of 1923, which enacted this section, provided that all sections conflicting with this section are repealed to the extent of this conflict and section 30-8 was specifically mentioned. As to the extent of the repeal of sections 30-6 and 30-8, see the editor's note under those sections.

§ 30-10. Renouncement of dower. — All married persons under the age of twenty-one years shall have the same privilege to renounce their dower rights and rights of curtesy and to give their written assent to conveyances of real property as are now conferred upon married persons twenty-one years old and over. (1923, c. 67, c. 2; 1935, c. 18; C. S. 4103(b).)

Cross Reference.—See also, § 52-13.

See annotations to § 30-8.

Editor's Note.—It was stated in 1 N. C. Law Rev. 271, that while this section does not refer to any section, it should be considered as an amendment to sections 39-7 and 30-7.

The amendment of 1935 made this section applicable to the renunciation of curtesy and assent to conveyances of real property.

See 13 N. C. Law Rev., No. 4, p. 375, for an analysis of this section.

Art. 3. Allotment of Dower.

§ 30-11. By agreement between widow and heir.—If the personal property of a decedent be sufficient to pay his debts and charges of administration, the heir or devisee with the widow may, by deed, agree to an assignment of her dower. (Rev., s. 3087; Code, s. 2110; 1868-9, c. 93, s. 39; C. S. 4104.)

There is nothing in this or the following section to indicate that the widow may select her dower or "endow herself." Vannoy v. Green, 206 N. C. 77, 79, 173 S. E. 277.

§ 30-12. Petition filed in superior court.—If no such agreement be made, the widow may apply for assignment of dower by petition in the superior court, and, if she fail to make such application within three months after the death of her husband, any heir or devisee may file a petition reciting the facts that the widow is entitled to dower on certain lands and has not applied for it, and demand that her dower be assigned to her. In all cases the widow and all heirs and devisees and persons in possession of, or claiming estates in, the lands shall be made parties, and the court shall hear and pass upon the petition in like manner as in other cases of special proceedings. (Rev., s. 3088; Code, ss. 2111, 2112; 1891, c. 133; 1868-9, c. 93, ss. 40, 41; C. S. 4105.)

Cross References.—As to the statute of limitations for allotment of dower upon lands not in actual possession of the widow, see § 1-47, sub-section 5. As to the settlement of dower on partition, see § 46-15 and annotations thereto.

In General.—The remedy by petition, as prescribed by this section, is a substitute for the action of dower at common law. McMillan v. Turner, 52 N. C. 436, 437.

Special Proceeding.—A proceeding for dower is a special proceeding. Tate v. Powe, 64 N. C. 644.

Where Equitable Element Involved.—While the assignment of dower is a special proceeding of which the clerk has jurisdiction, yet if any equitable element is involved, which under the former practice would have been cognizable in a court of equity, the superior court in term has jurisdiction, and the application for dower becomes a civil action. Efland v. Efland, 96 N. C. 488, 1 S. E. 858.

This section, providing a method for the allotment of dower, was not intended to deprive the superior court of its equitable jurisdiction in respect thereto. Citizens Bank, etc., Co. v. Watkins, 215 N. C. 292, 1 S. E. (2d) 853.

Where Question of Title Raised.—In a petition for a partition of land, in a court of law, where the defendant denies the tenancy in common by a plea of sole seizin in himself, the proper course is for the court to try the question of title thus raised, and not to force the plaintiff to resort to an action of ejectment for that purpose. Purvis v. Wilson, 50 N. C. 22.

Summons Returnable to Clerk.—A summons in a proceeding for the allotment of dower is returnable before the clerk of the superior court and not to the court in term. Gatewood v. Tomlinson, 113 N. C. 312, 18 S. E. 318.

Legal Right Personal to Widow.—The right to apply for allotment of dower by special proceeding under this section is a legal right, personal to the widow, and cannot be transferred by assignment. Parton v. Allison, 109 N. C. 674, 14 S. E. 107.

Dissent Essential to Jurisdiction.—The entry of a dissent by the widow is an incident to the jurisdiction of probate, and as this jurisdiction has been conferred upon the clerk of the superior court, the widow's dissent is to be made and entered in his office. Ramsour v. Ramsour, 63 N. C. 231.

Assignment before Allotment. — Where the right to a dower has been assigned before allotment, the assignee's remedy to enforce it is by civil action in term; the clerk of the superior court has no jurisdiction. Parton v. Allison, 109 N. C. 674, 14 S. E. 107.

Allotment by Heirs.—In McMillan v. Turner, 52 N. C. 436, 437, there is strong intimation that the heirs could assign the widow her dower, and also that twenty years continuous possession by the widow of a certain tract of land claimed as dower, is sufficient to raise a presumption that such assignment had been made. But as to the first point mentioned, i. e., allotment by heirs, see Freeman's Heirs v. Ramsey, 189 N. C. 790, 128 S. E. 404, where it is held that the statutory method of allotment of dower is exclusive.

Administrator as a Party.—If there is no prayer against the administrator he is not a necessary party to a bill for the assignment of dower. Campbell v. Murphy, 55 N. C. 357.

Creditors as Parties.—Creditors are not necessary parties to the proceedings, Ramsour v. Ramsour, 63 N. C. 231; but the court may permit a creditor of a person, who died seized and possessed of lands to be made a party to the proceeding and contest the claim of the widow. Welfare v. Welfare, 108 N. C. 272, 12 S. E. 1025.

Creditors Must Make Exceptions within Allowed Time.—While creditors of an estate may be permitted to contest the widow's allotment of dower in proper instances upon the ground that the allotment is excessive, they must pursue their remedy in apt time by excepting to the report of the jury, and their motion to be made parties in order to contest the allotment of dower, made almost three months after approval by the court of the clerk's confirmation of the jury's report, is too late. Poindexter v. Call, 208 N. C. 62, 179 S. E. 335.

Judgment Conclusive upon All Claimants.—The judgment in a special proceeding for the allotment of dower to a widow is intended by this section to be and is conclusive upon the heirs, devisees or other claimants who may be parties as to the title of the husband and the rights of the widow. Boyd v. Redd, 118 N. C. 680, 685, 24 S. E. 429.

Same—Where Lessee Not Made Party. — The lessee of lands for a term during the continuance of the lease after the death of the deceased owner, is a proper and necessary party to proceedings to lay off the widow's dower wherein the locus in quo had been included, and where he has not been made a party he is not bound by the judgment in his action of ejectment and to recover damages against the widow, administrator and heirs at law. Ingram v. Corbit, 177 N. C. 318, 99 S. E. 18.

Cited in High v. Pearce, 220 N. C. 266, 17 S. E. (2d) 108 (con. op.).

§ 30-13. Assignment of dower.—If dower be adjudged, it shall be assigned by a jury of three persons qualified to act as jurors, unless one of the parties demand a greater number, not exceeding twelve, who shall be summoned by the sheriff to meet on the premises or some part thereof, and being duly sworn by the sheriff or other person authorized to administer oaths, shall proceed to allot and set apart to the widow her dower in said premises according to law and make report of their proceedings under their hands within five days to the clerk of the superior court.

When the husband dies seized and possessed of lands in any other county than that in which dower is to be assigned, the clerk of the superior court of the county in which dower is to be assigned shall, upon application of the widow entitled to dower, issue a commission to the sheriff of such other county requiring him to summons three or more persons, as may be asked in said application, qualified to act as jurors, to go upon the lands of said husband in the county of said sheriff and assess the value of the same after being duly sworn by the sheriff for that purpose, and report their assessment under their hands and seals through the sheriff, who shall countersign the same as their report to the clerk issuing said commission; and said report in the hands of the jury summoned to assign the dower shall be considered by them a true valuation of the lands mentioned in the report, and said last-mentioned jury shall be deemed to have met on the lands thus assessed and shall assign the dower accordingly. But if agreeable to and convenient to the jury summoned or appointed, as the case may be, in the county where the proceeding is pending, for the allotment of dower, said jury may go upon, view and assign and allot the land which lies in any other county or counties; and when so viewed, assessed and allotted, if it or any part of it be allotted as dower, their acts shall be valid and their allotment of dower be as valid, as if all of the land of the deceased husband lay in the county where the proceeding was brought and pending, upon properly certified copy of such allotment being filed and recorded in such other county or counties, other than the county in which the original proceedings were instituted, in which lands acted upon do lie.

If either party to the proceeding shall demand it, the clerk shall appoint three persons qualified to act as jurors, unless one of the parties demands a greater number, and then not exceeding twelve, who shall meet on the premises or some part thereof, and after being duly sworn by the clerk or someone authorized to administer oaths, shall proceed to allot and set apart to the widow her dower in said premises according to law and make report of their proceedings under their hands, or the hands of a majority of them, within five days to the clerk of the Superior Court; and when the jurors are so appointed the sheriff will not countersign the report nor take any part in the proceedings, except that the clerk may cause notice to be served on the jurors so appointed, if he deems or finds it necessary. (Rev., s. 3089; Code, s. 2113; 1893, c. 314; 1868-9, c. 93, s. 42; 1931, c. 393; 1939, c. 339; C. S. 4106.)

Editor's Note.—The 1931 amendment added the last paragraph to this section.

The 1939 amendment added the second sentence of the second paragraph.

Signature of Sheriff Unnecessary.—It is not required that the sheriff attest the report of the jury by signing the same. Brickhouse v. Sutton, 99 N. C. 103, 5 S. E. 380.

Where Secondary Evidence of Report Admissible.—Where it appeared that the report of the jury fully described the dower of the widow, but had been lost, and the omission of a certain line in the report was made in copying it upon the record, it was held that the report is a part of the record and secondary evidence of its contents is admissible. Wells v. Harrell, 152 N. C. 218, 67 S. E. 584.

Manner of Allotment of Mortgaged Lands.—In a petition for dower, where the lands consisted principally of different parcels mortgaged in several deeds by husband and wife, the allotment should not be in part of the lands as if unencumbered or subject to the same encumberance, but in each parcel separately, and then the widow can work out her relief by asserting her equity against each creditor, as he seeks to enforce his security. Askew v. Askew, 103 N. C. 285, 290, 9 S. E. 646.

The remedy against an excessive assignment of dower is by exceptions to the report of the jury, upon the hearing of which it is competent for the court to hear affidavits, with a view to ascertain the facts. Welfare v. Welfare, 108 N. C. 272, 12 S. E. 1025.

Power of Court.—Ordinarily, the court, before which exceptions to the report of the jury in the allotment of dower is heard, is the sole judge whether a reassignment or successive reassignments shall be made. Poindexter v. Call, 208 N. C. 62, 179 S. E. 335.

Setting Aside the Allotment.—Where the report of the jury allotting dower is returned, and exceptions are taken by one thereby aggrieved, the court will set aside the allotment, and order a new allotment, if sufficient cause be shown. Stiner v. Cawthorn, 20 N. C. 640. But if the report is confirmed, a petition to set aside the allotment will not be heard at a subsequent term. Bowers v. Bowers, 30 N. C. 247.

Order Directing Reallotment of Dower. — The Supreme Court will not disturb an order directing a reallotment of dower, made after hearing the case on argument on both sides and all the papers, including conflicting affidavits concerning value, since the trial court, in the exercise of sound discretion, is the judge of how often, for just cause, it will direct a reallotment. Wilson v. Featherstone, 118 N. C. 840, 24 S. E. 714.

Stated in High v. Pearce, 220 N. C. 266, 17 S. E. (2d) 108 (con. op.).

§ 30-14. Notice to parties of meeting of jury.—The parties to such proceeding, or their attorneys, if within the county, shall be notified of the time and place of meeting of the jury appointed to assign dower, at least five days before the meeting. (Rev., s. 3090; Code, s. 2114; 1868-9, c. 93, s. 43; C. S. 4107.)

Art. 4. Year's Allowance.

Part 1. Nature of Allowance.

§ 30-15. When widow entitled to allowance.—Every widow of an intestate, or of a testator from whose will she has dissented, shall, unless she has forfeited her right thereto as provided by §§ 52-19 and 52-20, be entitled, in addition to her distributive share in her husband's personal estate, to an allowance therefrom of the value of five hundred dollars for her support for one year after his decease. Such allowance shall be exempt from any lien, by judgment or execution, acquired against the property of the husband. (Rev., s. 3091; Code, s. 2116; 1868-9, c. 93, s. 81; 1871-2, c. 193, s. 44; 1880, c. 42; 1889, c. 499, s. 2; C. S. 4108.)

Cross References.—As to property subject to allowance, see § 30-18 and annotations thereto. As to effect of wife's adultery, see § 52-20. As to when children entitled to an allowance, see § 30-17.

Purely a Statutory Right.—The right of a widow to a year's support is purely statutory. Broadnax v. Broadnax, 160 N. C. 432, 76 S. E. 216. See Drewry v. Raleigh Savings Bank and Trust Co., 173 N. C. 664, 92 S. E. 593.

Priority Over Creditors—Rule Stated.—The widow is given her right to her years support against all general creditors, but no better title to the property assigned her than her husband had. Hence, the rule to be deduced would seem to be this: She is entitled to her years allowance in preference to all general creditors, and also in preference to the special lien acquired by an execution bearing teste prior to the husband's death. In regard to other liens and equities, she takes the property in the same manner and plight in which her husband held it. Williams v. Jones, 95 N. C. 504. Her priority extends over the funeral expenses and costs of administration. Denton v. Tyson, 118 N. C. 542, 24 S. E. 116.

Same—Mortgage Registered after Husband's Death. — Where a husband mortgaged a horse, but the mortgage was not registered until after his death, and prior to its registration the horse was assigned to the widow as a part of her year's support, it was held that the widow took the property subject to the mortgage lien. Williams v. Jones, 95 N. C. 504.

Failure to Dissent from Will.—Where a widow fails to dissent from a will, and brings an action after six months from the probate for a year's allowance, such action is not maintainable. Perkins v. Brinkley, 133 N. C. 86, 45 S. E. 465.

Where husband predeceased by wife, see note of In re Stewart, 140 N. C. 28, 30, 52 S. E. 255, under section 30-17.

When Husband Died a Citizen of Foreign State. — The widow of a man who dies a citizen of another state is not entitled to a year's support out of the assets of the decedent in this State, and the fact that she became a citizen of this State after her husband's death is immaterial, since her relations to the estate and her right to share in it are fixed at the intestate's death, and by the laws of his domicil. Simpson v. Cureton, 97 N. C. 113, 2 S. E. 668; Medley v. Dunlap, 90 N. C. 527.

The decision in these cases appears to have been changed in the case of Jones v. Layne, 144 N. C. 600, 57 S. E. 372, in which it is held that a widow, whose husband died domiciled in another state, is entitled to her year's support in this State in which there is a fund due her husband, if the widow is a bona fide resident in the State. The reason given for this ruling is that the fiction of personal property being considered as belonging to the domicil of the owner applies only to the distribution of the assets of the one deceased, and has no application to payment of debts, legacies, costs of administration, etc. See Moye v. May, 43 N. C. 131, also Story Confl. Laws, 354. When it is recalled that the year's support given to the widow is superior to all these claims, then this, coupled with the fact that it seems well settled that the fiction that personal property follows the owner is limited in its operation to the case of distributing the assets of one deceased, would be ample reason for the ruling in the Jones case. Further support may also be found in the very purpose and object of the enactment of the Legislature giving to the widow her year's support. See In re Hayes, 112, N. C. 76, 77, 16 S. E. 904; Kimball v Deming, 27 N. C. 418.—Ed. Note.

Adultery Prior to Enactment of Section, Not a Bar. — A widow is not barred of her right to a year's support under this section by reason of adultery committed prior to the passage of the act. Cook v. Sexton, 79 N. C. 305.

Antenuptial Contract as a Bar.—A widow is barred from recovering a year's support by an antenuptial contract relinquishing all claim to any property of her husband. Perkins v. Brinkley, 133 N. C. 86, 45 S. E. 465.

Award under Will as Estoppel.—Where the widow and the executor by mutual consent selected three men to lay off the widow her year's support, provided for her in the husband's will, which was done, and both parties assented to the report in writing, it was held that the widow in the absence of fraud and undue influence was estopped by the award and cannot maintain a proceeding under this section. Flippin v. Flippin, 117 N. C. 376, 23 S. E. 321.

§ 30-16. Duty of personal representative or justice to assign allowance.—It shall be the duty of every administrator, collector, or executor of a will from which the widow of the testator has dissented, on application in writing, signed by the widow, at any time within one year after the decease of the husband, to assign to her the year's allowance as provided in this chapter, deducting therefrom the value of any articles consumed by her between the death of her husband and the time of the assignment.

If there shall be no administration, or if the personal representative shall fail or refuse to apply to a justice of the peace, as provided in § 30-20, for ten days after the widow has filed the aforesaid request, or if the widow is the personal representative, the widow may make the application to the justice, and it shall be the duty of the justice to proceed in the same manner as though the application had been made by the personal representative.

Where the widow and personal effects of the deceased husband shall have been removed from the township or county where the deceased husband resided before his death, the widow may apply to any justice of the peace of the township or county where such personal property is located, and it shall be the duty of such justice to assign the year's allowance as if the husband had resided and died in that township. (Rev., ss. 3096, 3098; Code, ss. 2120, 2122; 1868-9, c. 93, s. 12; 1870-1, c. 263; 1889, cc. 496, 531; 1891, c. 13; C. S. 4113, 4115.)

Next Friend as Representative of Minor Widow.—In dissenting from her husband's will and applying for a year's allowance, the widow, being a minor without guardian, may be represented by a next friend, duly appointed. Hollomon v. Hollomon, 125 N. C. 29, 34 S. E. 99.

Assignment under Section Not Exclusive.—The assignment of a year's provision under this section does not serve to preclude her right to an increase thereof under section 30-26 et seq. Mann v. Mann, 173 N. C. 20, 91 S. E. 355.

The reasons for this construction are two-fold. (1) The year's provision is intended for the immediate and pressing needs of the widow and children, and is not given them as a substitute for any or all that they may rightfully claim, (2) the words "further allowance," as used in section 30-26 contemplate the possibility of the right of the widow and children to lay claim to an additional sum, depending on the existence or non-existence of the circumstances mentioned in that section.—Ed. Note.

§ 30-17. When children entitled to an allowance.—Whenever any parent dies leaving any child under the age of fifteen years, including an adopted child, or a child with whom the widow may be pregnant at the death of her husband, or any other person under the age of fifteen years residing with the deceased parent at the time of the death to whom the deceased parent or the surviving parent stood in loco parentis, every such child shall be entitled, besides its distributive share of the personal estate of such deceased parent, to an allowance of one hundred fifty dollars ($150.00) for its support for the year next ensuing the death of such parent, less, however, the value of any articles consumed by said child since the death of said parent. Such allowance shall be exempt from any lien, by judgment or execution against the property of such parent. The personal representative of the deceased parent, within one year after the parent's death, shall assign to every such child the allowance herein provided for; but if there is no personal representative or if he fails or refuses to act within ten days after written request by a guardian or next friend on behalf of such child, the allowance may be assigned by a justice of the peace, upon application of said guardian or next friend.

If the child resides with the widow of the deceased parent at the time such allowance is paid, the allowance shall be paid to said widow for the benefit of said child. If the child resides with its surviving parent who is other than the widow of the deceased parent, such allowance shall be paid to said surviving parent for the use and benefit of such child. Provided, however, the allowance shall not be available to an illegitimate child of a deceased father, unless such deceased father shall have recognized the paternity of such illegitimate child by deed, will or other paper writing. If the child does not reside with a parent when the allowance is paid, it shall be paid to its general guardian, if any, and if none, to the clerk of the superior court who shall receive and disburse same for the benefit of such child. (Rev., s. 3094; 1889, c. 496; 1939, c. 396; C. S. 4111.)

Effect of Section.—The background and effect of this section are summarized in part as follows in 17 N. C. Law Review, 357: Since 1796 statutes have been in force in North Carolina providing for the allotment of a portion of the property of a deceased person for the support of his widow and family for one year after his death. See In re Stewart, 140 N. C. 28, 52 S. E. 255, 256. By these statutes the widow, in addition to her dower and distributive share of her husband's estate, has been given a year's allowance out of his personal property; the year's allowance has included not only a certain sum for her own maintenance, but also additional sum for each child of hers or her husband's under fifteen years of age. The entire amount of this allowance was at one time held to be personal to the widow—her own property to be used at her pleasure. Kimball v. Deming, 27 N. C. 418; Simpson v. Cureton, 97 N. C. 112, 116, 2 S. E. 668, 670. As a consequence, if the husband died leaving no widow, or if the widow died before her year's allowance was assigned to her, no allowance could be set aside for the surviving children as such. Kimball v. Deming, supra. To remedy this situation, a statute was passed in 1889 (c. 496, codified as § 30-17 of the General Statutes of N. C.), which provided that in case there was no widow, or if she died before the allowance had been set aside, an allotment still could be made for the benefit of the members of the family surviving under the age of fifteen years. See In re Stewart, supra. The 1939 amendment amended and rewrote this statute so as to dissociate completly the orphan's year's allowance from the concept of its inclusion in the widow's allotment, and to give him an independent legal status of his own for the purpose of receiving a year's allowance. The statute carefully stipulates that if the sum is paid to the surviving widow, it shall be paid to her for the child's benefit "in lieu of the allowance heretofore made such widow on account of such child."

Editor's Note.—For comment on the 1939 amendatory act, see 17 N. C. Law Rev. 357.

Death of Child before Filing of Application.—Where two children under fifteen years of age resided with the widow at the death of her husband, and one died before the application for the year's provision was filed, it was held that the widow was entitled to an allowance for two children. In re Hayes, 112 N. C. 76, 77, 16 S. E. 904.

This decision was rested on the ground that the chief object of this and the foregoing sections is to provide for the dependent family of the deceased residing with the widow at the death of the husband, and not at the date of her application. As was said in the early case of Kimball v. Deming, 27 N. C. 418, cited and approved in In re Hayes, supra, the purpose "was to make provision for the pressing wants of the widow personally, and to enable her at that mournful juncture to keep her family about her for a short season, and prevent the necessity of scattering her children abroad, until time was allowed for selecting suitable situations for them."—Ed. Note.

Entire Allowance to Widow.—It is proper to make the entire allowance to the widow and none to the minor children, but the existence of such children may be considered, the widow being charged with their care and support. Drewry v. Bank, etc., Co., 173 N. C. 664, 92 S. E. 593.

§ 30-18. From what property assigned.—Such allowance shall be assigned from the crop, stock and provisions or any other personal property of the deceased in his possession at the time of his death, if there be a sufficiency thereof in value; and if there be a deficiency, it shall be made up by the personal representative from the personal estate of the deceased. (Rev., s. 3095; Code, s. 2117; 1868-9, c. 93, s. 9; 1925, c. 92; C. S. 4112.)

Editor's Note.—The words "or any personal property" after the word "provisions" were inserted by the Public Laws of 1925. The insertion of these words takes away all doubt as to whether or not the enumerated classes of property herein contained were meant to exclude all other property. But it is submitted that the addition of these words to this section was not intended to make all the personal property of the deceased subject to the widow's allowance in the first instance. The general words "or any personal property," following the enumeration of specific classes, (crop, stock, and provisions) must, under the maxim ejusdem generis, be restricted to things of the same kind as those specifically mentioned and enumerated. This seems to be the only possible construction to give to the new words since the section in all its other respects is left without any change whatever, and note must be taken of the clause that "if there be a deficiency it shall be made up by the personal representative from the personal estate of the deceased." Unless the newly inserted words are given the limited meaning above referred to, then this last provision would not only be surplusage but would be meaningless. In other words, the door to the personal estate of the deceased has been opened wider but has not been opened to its fullest extent. For example, since the words used in this section seem to contemplate only personal property of a tangible nature, the intangible property would still be outside the scope of the property from which the widow's allowance may be taken, unless it is necessary to make up a deficiency.

"Stock."—In an early case, Van Norden v. Prim, 3 N. C. 149, the word "stock" contained in this section was construed to mean livestock.

Time of Valuation.—The widow's allowance must be made on the basis of the property's value at the time of the allowance, and not at the time of the testator's death. Hunter v. Husted, 45 N. C. 97.

Damages for Wrongful Death.—The right of action for wrongful death is conferred by statute at death, and any recovery therefor never belonged to the deceased and is not assets of the estate, therefore the widow is not entitled to have her year's support assigned to her therefrom. Broadnax v. Broadnax, 160 N. C. 432, 76 S. E. 216.

Failure to Pay Deficiency.—An administrator is personally liable if he has assets to pay a deficiency and he fails to pay it. Irvin v. Hughes, 82 N. C. 210.

Sale of Land—Retention of Character as Realty.—In case of the sale of lands for assets to pay debts of a decedent, the surplus, after paying the debts and costs, remains real estate and cannot be applied to the payment of a judgment against the administrator in favor of the widow for the balance of her year's allowance. Denton v. Tyson, 118 N. C. 542, 24 S. E. 116.

Part 2. Assigned by Justice of the Peace.

§ 30-19. Value of property ascertained. — The value of stock, crop and provisions or any other personal property assigned to the widow and children, as well as that of the articles consumed, shall be ascertained by a justice of the peace and two persons qualified to act as jurors of the county in which administration was granted or the will proved. (Rev., s. 3097; Code, s. 2121; 1868-9, c. 93, s. 13; C. S. 4114.)

§ 30-20. Procedure for assignment.—Upon the application of the widow, or whenever it shall appear that a child is entitled to an allowance as provided by § 30-17, the personal representative of the deceased shall apply to a justice of the peace of the township in which the deceased resided, or some adjoining township, to summon two persons qualified to act as jurors, who, having been sworn by the justice to act impartially as commissioners shall, with him, ascertain the person or persons entitled to an allowance according to the provisions of this chapter, and examine the crop, stock, and provisions and any other personal property on hand, and assign to the widow and to the children, if any, so much thereof as they shall be entitled to by law. Any deficiencies shall be made up from any of the personal estate of the deceased, and also from any debt or debts known to be due the deceased. Such assignment shall vest in the widow and children such property, and the right to collect the debts thus allotted. (Rev., s. 3098; Code, s. 2122; 1870-1, c. 263; 1891, c. 13; 1899, c. 531; C. S. 4115.)

Cross Reference.—As to recovery of deficiency, see § 30-18 and annotation thereto.

§ 30-21. Report of commissioners. — The commissioners shall make and sign three lists of the articles assigned to each person, stating their quantity and value, and the deficiency to be paid by the personal representative. Where the allowance is to the widow, one of these lists shall be delivered to her. Where the allowance is to a child, one of these lists shall be delivered to the widow or surviving parent with whom the child is living; or to the child's guardian or next friend if the child is not living with said widow or surviving parent; or to the child if said child is not living with the widow or surviving parent and has no guardian or next friend. One list shall be delivered to the personal representative. One list shall be returned by the justice, within twenty days after the assignment, to the Superior Court of the county, and the clerk shall file and record the same and enter judgment against the personal representative, to be paid when assets shall come into his hands, for any residue found in favor of the person entitled to the allowance. (Rev., s. 3099; Code, s. 2123; 1868-9, c. 93, s. 15; C. S. 4116.)

Filing of List of Articles Mandatory. — The filing and recording of the list of articles allotted to the widow, as her year's support, as required by this section, is essential to its validity, and to the vesting in her of the property or debt allotted to the widow. Kiff v. Kiff, 95 N. C. 72.

Reasonable Certainty Required. — The allotment to the widow must be made with such reasonable certainty, in regard to the thing allotted, as to indicate what property was intended by the commissioners, otherwise the allotment will be void. Kiff v. Kiff, 95 N. C. 72. Under this principle the item, "labor for 3½ years, $173," was held void. Id.

§ 30-22. Fees of commissioners. — Any person appointed by any justice of the peace to allot or set apart to any widow and/or child a year's allowance under the statute, and who shall serve, shall be paid the sum of one dollar a day or fraction of a day engaged, and the same shall be taxed as a part of the bill of costs of the proceeding. (1907, c. 223; 1913, c. 18; C. S. 3900.)

§ 30-23. Right of appeal.—The personal representative, or the widow, or child by his guardian or next friend, or any creditor, legatee or distributee of the deceased, may appeal from the finding of the commissioners to the superior court of the county, and, within ten days after the assignment, cite the adverse party to appear before such court on a certain day, not less than five nor exceeding ten days after the service of the citation. (Rev., s. 3100; Code, s. 2124; 1868-9, c. 93, s. 16; 1897, c. 442; C. S. 4117.)

Evidence to Support Findings as Bar to Appeal. — The findings of the judge in the special proceedings for the allotment of the year's support will not be reviewed on appeal where there is evidence to support such findings. Drewry v. Bank, etc., Co., 173 N. C. 664, 92 S. E. 593.

§ 30-24. Hearing on appeal.—At or before the day named, the appellant shall file with the clerk a copy of the assignment and a statement of his exceptions thereto, and the issues thereby raised shall be decided as other issues are directed to be. When the issues shall have been decided, judgment shall be entered accordingly, if it may be without injustice, without remitting the proceedings to the commissioners. (Rev., s. 3101; Code, s. 2125; 1868-9, c. 93, s. 17; C. S. 4118.)

§ 30-25. Personal representative entitled to credit.—Upon the settlement of the accounts of the personal representative, he shall be credited with the articles assigned, and the value of the deficiency assessed as aforesaid, if the same shall have been paid, unless the allowance be impeached for fraud or gross negligence in him. (Rev., s. 3102; Code, s. 2126; 1868-9, c. 93, s. 18; C. S. 4119.)

§ 30-26. When above allowance is in full.—If the estate of a deceased be insolvent, or if his personal estate does not exceed two thousand dollars, the allowances for the year's support of his widow and the children shall not, in any case, exceed the value prescribed above; and the allowances made to them as above prescribed shall preclude them from any further allowances. (Rev., s. 3103; Code, s. 2127; 1868-9, c. 93, s. 19; C. S. 4120.)

Allowance under section 30-20 does not preclude operation of this section, see note of Mann v. Mann, 173 N. C. 20, 91 S. E. 355, under section 30-20.

Part 3. Assigned in Superior Court.

§ 30-27. Widow or child may apply to superior court.—It shall not, however, be obligatory on a widow or child to have the support assigned as above prescribed. Without application to the personal representative, the widow, or the child through his guardian or next friend, may, at any time within one year after the decedent's death, apply to the superior court of the county in which administration was granted to have a year's support assigned. (Rev., s. 3104; Code, s. 2128; 1868-9, c. 93, s. 20; C. S. 4121.)

§ 30-28. Nature of proceeding; parties. — The application shall be by summons, as is prescribed for special proceedings, in which the personal representative of the deceased, if there be one other than the plaintiff, the largest known creditor, or legatee, or some distributee of the deceased, living in the county, shall be made defendant, and the proceedings shall be as prescribed for special proceedings between parties. (Rev., s. 3105; Code, s. 2129; 1868-9, c. 93, s. 21; C. S. 4122.)

§ 30-29. What complaint must show.—In the complaint the plaintiff shall set forth, besides the facts entitling plaintiff to a year's support and the value of the support claimed, the further facts that the estate of the decedent is not insolvent, and that the personal estate of which he died possessed exceeded two thousand dollars, and also whether or not an allowance has been made to plaintiff and the nature and value thereof; and if no allowance has been made, the quantities and values of the articles consumed by plaintiff since the death of decedent. (Rev., s. 3106; Code, s. 2130; 1868-9, c. 93, s. 22; C. S. 4123.)

§ 30-30. Judgment and order for commissioners. —If the material allegations of the complaint be found true, the judgment shall be that plaintiff is entitled to the relief sought; and the court shall thereupon issue an order to the sheriff or other proper officer of the county, commanding him to summon a justice of the peace and two indifferent persons qualified to act as jurors of the county, to assign to the plaintiff from the crop, stock and provisions, or any other personal property of the decedent on hand, a sufficiency for plaintiff's support for one year from decedent's death; and, if there be a deficiency, to assess such deficiency, to be paid by the personal representative from any other personal assets of the decedent, deducting, nevertheless, in all cases from such allowance the articles, or the value thereof, consumed by plaintiff before such assignment and also any sum previously assigned. (Rev., s. 3107; Code, s. 2131; 1868-9, c. 93, s. 23; C. S. 4124.)

§ 30-31. Duty of commissioners; amount of allowance.—The said commissioners shall be sworn by the justice and shall proceed as prescribed in this chapter, except that they may assign to the plaintiff a value sufficient for the support of plaintiff according to the estate and condition of the decedent and without regard to the limitations set forth in this chapter; but the value allowed shall be fixed with due consideration for other persons entitled to allowances for year's support from the decedent's estate; and the total value of all allowances shall not in any case exceed the one-half of the average annual net income of the deceased for three years next preceding his death. This report shall be returned by the justice to the court. (Rev., s. 3108; Code, s. 2132; 1868-9, c. 93, s. 24; C. S. 4125.)

Definition of Annual Net Income.—The provision of this section that the allowance shall not exceed "the one-half of the annual net income of the deceased for three years next preceding his death" means the one-half of one year's net income, determined by the average annual income for the three years next preceding the decease, and not one-half of the sum total of the annual net income for the three year period. Holland v. Henson, 189 N. C. 742, 128 S. E. 145.

Allowance Sustained Where Discretion Not Abused.— Where the estate of the deceased husband is large and in good condition, and he received a net annual income for three years prior to his death of over $38,500, an allowance of $12,500 for a year's support to his widow with minor son, less the value of the household furniture, is not an abuse of the superior court's discretion which the supreme court will review. Drewry v. Raleigh Sav. Bank, etc., Co., 173 N. C. 664, 92 S. E. 593.

§ 30-32. Exceptions to the report.—The personal representative, or any creditor, distributee or legatee of the deceased, within twenty days after the return of the report, may file exceptions thereto. The plaintiff shall be notified thereof and cited to appear before the court on a certain day, within twenty and not less than ten days after service of the notice, and answer the same; the case shall thereafter be proceeded in, heard and decided as provided in special proceedings between parties. (Rev., s. 3109; Code, s. 2133; 1868-9, c. 93, s. 25; C. S. 4126.)

§ 30-33. Confirmation of report; execution.—If the report shall be confirmed, the court shall so declare, and execution shall issue to enforce the judgment as in like cases. (Rev., s. 3110; Code, s. 2134; 1868-9, c. 93, s. 26; C. S. 4127.)

Chapter 31. Wills.

Art. 1. Execution of Will.

§ 31-1. Infants incapable.—No person shall be capable of disposing of real or personal estate by will until he shall have attained the age of twenty-one years. (Rev., s. 3111; Code, s. 2137; R. C., c. 119, s. 2; 1811, c. 280; C. S. 4128.)

Under the prior law, see Williams's Legatees v. Heirs at Law, 44 N. C. 271, where it was held that an infant between twenty-one and eighteen could dispose of personal estate by will.

A will executed by a minor's father is not sufficient grounds for a court of equity to refuse the petition of the minor's guardian to be authorized and directed to enter proceedings to attack a consent judgment on grounds of irregularity and that it was not binding on the minor, it appearing that the purported will executed by the minor's father seeking to divest the minor's interest in trust estates was void under this section, the minor's father at the time of executing the instrument being under twenty-one years of age. In re Reynolds, 206 N. C. 276, 173 S. E. 789.

§ 31-2. Married woman capable. — A married woman owning real or personal property may dispose of the same by will. (Rev., s. 3112; Code, s. 2138; R. C., c. 119, s. 3; 1844, c. 88, s. 8; C. S. 4129.)

Curtesy of Husband Defeated.—Since the Constitution of 1868 a married woman may by will deprive her husband of curtesy in her separate estate. Hallyburton v. Slagle, 132 N. C. 947, 44 S. E. 655; Watts v. Griffin, 137 N. C. 572, 50 S. E. 218.

§ 31-3. Formal execution. — No last will or testament shall be good or sufficient, in law, to convey or give any estate, real or personal, unless such last will shall have been written in the testator's life time, and signed by him, or by some other person in his presence and by his direction, and subscribed in his presence by two witnesses at least, no one of whom shall be interested in the devise or bequest of the estate, except as hereinafter provided; or, unless such last will and testament be found among the valuable papers and effects of any deceased person, or shall have been lodged in the hands of any person for safekeeping, and the same shall be in the handwriting of such deceased person, with his name subscribed thereto or inserted in some part of such will; and if such handwriting shall be proved by three credible witnesses, who verily believe such will and every part thereof is in the handwriting of the person whose will it appears to be, then such will shall be sufficient to give and convey real and personal estate. (Rev., s. 3113; Code, s. 2136; R. C., c. 119, s. 1; 1784, c. 204, s. 11; 1784, c. 225, s. 5; 1840, c. 62; 1846, c. 54; C. S. 4131.)

I. IN GENERAL.

Editor's Note.—The Statute of Frauds in England, in relation to wills, and this section upon the same subject, have in view the same object, namely, the protection of the heirs-at-law, and next of kin of a decedent, from the effect of a forged or false paper as a will. For that purpose, many forms and ceremonies are required to be observed in the execution of such instruments. With regard to attested wills, the requisites of the English statute, and this section, except as to the number of witnesses, are substantially the same. The courts, in both countries, have demanded a strict compliance with these provisions of the law. The same policy must govern the courts of this State when they come to decide whether the requisitions of this section have been complied with in the execution of a paper writing, propounded as a holograph will. See Little v. Lockman, 49 N. C. 495, 496.

Natural Right to Dispose of Property by Will.—The right to dispose of property by will is not a natural right, but one conferred and regulated by statute. Peace v. Edwards, 170 N. C. 64, 86 S. E. 807.

Necessity of Animus Testandi.—The distinguishing feature of all genuine testamentary instruments, whatever their form, is that the paper-writing must appear to be written animus testandi. It is essential that it should appear from the character of the instrument, and the circumstances under which it is made, that the testator intended it should operate as his will, or as a codicil to it. In re Perry, 193 N. C. 397, 398, 137 S. E. 145.

For a memorandum written and signed by the testator to take effect as his will, it must, among other requisites, show that it was made animus testandi, and where the other formalities have been observed, a "pack" of letters containing a note in his favor, with the indorsement written thereon, and signed by him, a long time prior to his death, "I want S. W. have this pack." will not operate either as a valid holograph will or codicil. Id.

Where the animus testandi appears as doubtful or ambiguous, the question is one for the jury. In re Will of Harrison, 183 N. C. 457, 111 S. E. 867.

Where propounders introduce ample evidence that the paper-writing was in the handwriting of deceased and there is no evidence to the contrary, and the paper-writing is dispositive on its face and unequivocally shows the intention of deceased that it should operate as his will, the animus testandi is conclusively presumed, and it is error for the court to submit the question of such intention to the jury over the objection of propounders. In re Rowland's Will, 206 N. C. 456, 174 S. E. 284.

Nuncupative Wills Not Precluded.—The language of this section does not preclude the validity of nuncupative wills in this State; for section 31-18 par. 3 expressly provides for their probate. The different sections of the code must be construed together. Kennedy v. Douglas, 151 N. C. 336, 66 S. E. 216.

Will Drafted from Dictations after Testator's Death.—A paper writing drafted by an attorney from a stenographer's notes taken from dictation of deceased as to the disposition of her property after death, unsigned and unwitnessed, is not admissible as a last will and testament. Kennedy v. Douglas, 151 N. C. 336, 66 S. E. 216.

Letter as Will.—A letter written by the deceased to his brother, signed by him "Brother Alex," just before the deceased had gone to a hospital for treatment, saying "Brother Richard, take good care of yourself and stay with William at the store. I am going to the hospital on account of not feeling well. I hope God nothing happens, but if it does, everything is yours. Got some money in the bank, but don't know how much we owe on house . . . . . I hope in a few days I will come back," etc., indicates the writer's present intention to dispose of his property, and is provable as his holograph will. Wise v. Short, 181 N. C. 320, 107 S. E. 124.

An agreement to adopt a minor and make her his heir, made between the person desiring to adopt the minor and the minor's parents, as the respective parties to the agreement, indicates that the instrument is not intended as a will. Chambers v. Byers, 214 N. C. 373, 199 S. E. 398.

II. SIGNING ATTESTATION AND DATE.

In General.—In order to be a valid written will with witnesses, the same should be signed by the testator or some other person in his presence and by his direction, or the signature should be acknowledged by the testator, and subscribed in his presence by at least two witnesses. Watson v. Hinson, 162 N. C. 72, 77 S. E. 1089.

Codicil must be executed with same formality as the will. Paul v. Davenport, 217 N. C. 154, 7 S. E. (2d) 352.

What Constitutes Signing and Subscribing.—The authorities make a distincton between statutes requiring instruments to be signed and those requiring them to be subscribed, holding with practical unanimity, in reference to the first class, that it is not necessary for the name to appear on any particular part of the instrument, if written with the intent to become bound; and, as to the second class, that the name must be at the end of the instrument. Peace v. Edwards, 170 N. C. 64, 66, 86 S. E. 807.

Name in Body of Will Sufficient Signature.—It is well settled that if the name of the testator appears in his handwriting in the body of the will this is a signing within the meaning of the statute. Hall v. Misenheimer, 137 N. C. 183, 49 S. E. 104, 107 Am. St. Rep. 474; Richards v. Ritter Lbr. Co., 158 N. C. 54, 73 S. E. 485; Boger v. Cedar Cove Lbr. Co., 165 N. C. 557, 81 S. E. 784, Ann. Cas. 1917D, 116; Burriss v. Starr, 165 N. C. 657, 81 S. E. 929, Ann. Cas. 1914D, 71; Peace v. Edwards, 170 N. C 64, 66, 86 S. E. 807.

Under this section a paper-writing in the testator's handwriting, dispositive on its face, with the name of the testator inserted therein in his own handwriting followed by the words "this being my will" is sufficient in form to constitute a holographic will. In re Rowland, 202 N. C. 373, 162 S. E. 897.

Same—For Example.—"I, John Jones, do make and publish this my last will and testament" is good if John Jones wrote the above even though he did nothing further in the way of signing or attesting the instrument concerned. 2 N. C. Law Rev. 107.

Signing in Presence of Witnesses Not Necessary.—This section does not require the testator to manually sign his will in the presence of the subscribing witnesses, and the validity of the written instrument in this respect will be upheld if the testator produces the will itself, and acknowledges and identifies it and his signature thereto, at the time the witnesses subscribe their names as such. Watson v. Hinson, 162 N. C. 72, 77 S. E. 1089; In re Fuller's Will, 189 N. C. 509, 127 S. E. 549, 550.

Witnesses Need Not Sign in Presence of Each Other.—It is not required that the subscribing witnesses sign the will in the presence of each other. Watson v. Hinson, 162 N. C. 72, 77 S. E. 1089; In re Will of Johnson, 182 N. C. 522, 109 S. E. 373.

Signature Made for Testatrix in Her Presence.—An instruction that it was not required that the will should be manually signed by the alleged testatrix if her name was signed thereto by some one in her presence, by her direction, or if such a signature was acknowledged by her as her signature to the instrument presented as her last will was held correct. In re Will of Johnson, 182 N. C. 522, 109 S. E. 373.

Signing Attestation by Both Witnesses in Presence of Testator Essential.—When a witness who had properly signed as such, no other witness signing, had the will copied upon different paper in the absence of the testator, signed the copy, left it at the home of the testator with the original, who afterwards procured the due attestation and signature of the other witness on the copy, both of which were found among the papers of the testator after his death, but the original was destroyed, the copy is not valid as a will, and evidence that the first draft was identical with the copy is incompetent, the first witness having signed before the testator, and not in his presence, there being no physical connection between the original and copy, and not upon the same paper as that of the signature of the testator. In re Baldwin, 146 N. C. 25, 59 S. E. 163.

Evidence tending to show that one of the subscribing witnesses signed the will as such in the presence of testatrix and the other subscribing witness warrants the jury in finding that the witness' subscription met the requirements of this section, notwithstanding that the witness wavered somewhat in her testimony. In re Redding's Will, 216 N. C. 497, 5 S. E. (2d) 544.

Attestation and Signing—Relation in Point of Time.—Some authorities hold that everything required to be done by the testator in the execution of a will shall precede in point of time the subscription by the attesting witness, and that, if the signature of the latter precede the signing by the testator, the will is void. Gardner on Wills, 263. Until the testator has signed, there is no will and nothing to attest. There are eminent authorities, however, which hold that where the signing of the testator and of the witnesses took place at the same time and constituted one transaction, it is immaterial who signed first. Gardner, supra. In re Baldwin, 146 N. C. 25, 29, 59 S. E. 163.

Where a witness subscribes his name to an instrument during the afternoon, and the purported testatrix signs the instrument the following night, but not in the presence of the witness, the signing of the instrument by the parties cannot be construed as one and the same transaction, and the instrument is not validly witnessed and attested by him, and, upon proof that the instrument was properly subscribed by one other witness, a peremptory instruction in favor of caveators is without error for want of proof that the instrument was subscribed by two witnesses. In re McDonald's Will, 219 N. C. 209, 13 S. E. (2d) 239.

Attestation and Subscription on the Same Sheet.—The attestation or subscription by witnesses must be on the same sheet of paper as that which contains the testator's signature, or else upon some paper physically connected with that sheet. In re Baldwin, 146 N. C. 25, 30, 59 S. E. 163.

Attestation Does Not Invalidate a Holographic Will.—The fact of there being a signature of one subscribing witness to a will of land does not prevent it from being proved as a holograph will; and it is no objection to the probate of a script as a holograph will that it has one subscribing witness, and was intended by the decedent to be proved by subscribing witnesses, which intent was frustrated by the fact that the second attesting witness was incompetent. Hill v. Bell, 61 N. C. 122, 124.

Necessity of Date—Signature Required.—The testator's signature to the will is required though it is not required that the paper-writing be subscribed or dated. Therefore an undated will, when the name of the testator, in his own handwriting, appears in the body thereof, has the same legal effect as those bearing dates and subscribed by the testator. Peace v. Edwards, 170 N. C. 64, 86 S. E. 807.

A paper-writing in the handwriting of testatrix, duly proven by three credible witnesses, signed by testatrix and found among her valuable papers after her death, which paper-writing contains dispositive words sufficient to dispose of the estate, is valid as a holograph will under this section and § 31-18, subsection 2, and it is not necessary that the writing be dated or show the place of execution. In re Parson's Will, 207 N. C. 584, 178 S. E. 78.

Same—Inconsistent Wills, Effect Intestacy.—Where the decedent has left several paper-writings purporting to be his last will, containing the opening declaration, as to each, that the testator made the same as his "last will and testament," but only one of them bears date and his name subscribed thereto, and each of them making a disposition of his property different from the other, the undated and unsubscribed wills have the same legal effect as the one dated and subscribed, though the testator had indorsed under his signature, thereon, the words "last will"; and in the absence of proof as to which of the wills was the last one, the legal effect is intestacy. Peace v. Edwards. 170 N. C. 64, 86 S. E. 807.

Question for Jury.—It is for the jury to determine whether the testatrix impliedly requested the attesting witnesses to attest the will, an implied request being sufficient to submit the question to the jury. In re Kelly's Will, 206 N. C. 551, 174 S. E. 453.

III. HOLOGRAPH WILLS—DEPOSIT WITH VALUABLE PAPERS.

Construction of Statute—Illustration.—The requirements of this section that a paper-writing sufficient to pass as a holograph will must be found after the death of the testator among his valuable papers and effects must be liberally construed, and where it is found among the deceased's papers and effects evidently regarded by him as his most valuable papers, and are in fact valuable, under circumstances showing his intention that that will should take effect as being so found, it is sufficient, and under the facts of this case the paper-writing was adjudged to be effective as his will when found after his death in the pockets of the clothes he was wearing, with large sums of money and other papers of value. In re Will of Groce, 196 N. C. 373, 145 S. E. 689.

When all the words appearing on a paper in the handwriting of the deceased person are sufficient to constitute a last will and testament, the mere fact that other words appear thereon, not in such handwriting, but not essential to the meaning of the words in such handwriting, cannot be held to defeat the intention of the deceased, otherwise clearly expressed, that such paper-writing is and shall be her last will and testament. In re Parson's Will, 207 N. C. 584, 587, 178 S. E. 78.

What Constitutes Proper Depositing under This Section—Example.—A script purporting to be a holograph will was found in a drawer inside of a desk, between a bag of gold coins and a bag of silver coins; and immediately above the drawer, in pigeon-holes, were found notes, bonds and other valuable papers, arranged in files; the drawer and pigeon-holes were secured by the same door and lock: It was held, that the script was properly deposited, under this section defining the requisites of holograph wills. Hughes v. Smith, 64 N. C. 493.

Deposit in Drawer of Bookcase with Deeds, etc.—Where the proof showed that the script propounded as a holograph will was found in a small drawer of a bookcase, in the room which the alleged testator occupied at his death, with his deeds and other papers, it was held to be such a finding "among the valuable papers of the decedent" as will, in connection with the other evidence required by the statute in respect to handwriting, authorizing its probate. Cornelius v. Brawley, 109 N. C. 542, 14 S. E. 78.

Deposit in a Trunk Left with Friend for Safe-keeping.—The placing of a holograph in a trunk, left for safe-keeping with a friend, and having it in the larger part of the valuable papers and money of the deceased, will satisfy the requirements of the statute upon the point of deposit. Hill v. Bell, 61 N. C 122.

Need Not Be Found among Most Valuable Papers.—The phrase, "among the valuable papers and effects of," etc., used in this section does not necessarily and without exception mean among the most valuable papers, etc. Winstead v. Bowman, 68 N. C. 170. So the fact that decedent kept valuable papers in a tin box in a bank which were intrinsically more valuable than papers kept in a trunk where the will was found would not prevent the latter from being a depository within the meaning of the section. Id.

Deposit among Useless Papers and Rubbish.—In the case of Little v. Lockman, 49 N. C. 495, the script propounded was found in the drawer of a bureau, among some useless papers and rubbish, and there were valuable papers and effects kept in another drawer of the same bureau. Under such circumstances the court properly held that the script was not found in such a place of deposit as was contemplated by the statute. Hughes v. Smith, 64 N. C. 493, 495.

It is proper to notice that this section does not say "among valuable papers or effects," or "among any valuable papers or effects," but uses the definite article, the saying "among the valuable papers and effects." Id. This case is criticized by some of the later cases holding that the will need not be deposited among the most valuable papers. But it seems that the holding can be distinguished, without disparaging its authority, by the fact that the will here was deposited with useless papers and rubbish which had little or no value when compared with other papers of the testator deposited elsewhere—Ed. Note.

Jury to Determine Intention in Depositng with Valuables.—It was entirely proper in the judge to leave it to the jury to determine whether, from all the circumstances, they believed that the paper-writing was deposited by the deceased among his valuable papers with the intention that it should be his will. Simms v. Simms, 27 N. C. 684; Hill v. Bell, 61 N. C. 122, 125.

Evidence of Finding among Valuables.—That a holograph script was seen among the valuable papers and effects of the decedent eight months before his death, is no evidence that it was found there at or after his death. Adams v. Clark, 53 N. C. 56.

Sufficiency of Evidence.—Evidence that the will and testament of the deceased, wholly written and signed by her, was found among her valuable papers after her death, in a desk where she kept her business papers and papers she desired to keep for their sentimental value, and that it was transferred after her death, together with the other papers, to her trunk where they were found, is held sufficient, under the circumstances of this case. In re Will of Westfeldt, 188 N. C. 702, 125 S. E. 531.

Found among the Valuable Papers "or" Effects.—The word "and" appearing in the phrase "among the valuable papers and effects" should be taken in its alternative rather than in its conjunctive sense. The change of the conjunction "or" which originally appeared in place of "and" did not affect the construction of the section. This for the reason that if the word "and" is taken in its strict conjunctive sense, the statute would be virtually repealed or its benefits greatly diminished, as only few persons who manage their business with order and system keep their valuable papers and effects mixed up together. Hughes v. Smith, 64 N. C. 493, 495.

What Constitutes Valuable Papers.—Valuable papers consist of such as are regarded by a decedent as worthy of preservation, and therefore in his estimation, of some value; much depends upon the condition and business and habits of the decedent in respect to keeping his valuable papers. Winstead v. Bowman, 68 N. C. 170.

Note Held to Be Codicil.—A note payable to the deceased, found with his holographic will in a box with his other valuable papers after his death, and endorsed thereon in the handwriting of the deceased and over his signature to his wife to take effect after his death, when proved as § 31-18 requires, is to be construed as a codicil to his will, and it is not necessary to such construction that it be physically attached to the holographic will. In re Will of Thompson, 196 N. C. 271, 145 S. E. 393.

What Constitutes Depositing with Someone for Safe Keeping.—In the case of Alston v. Davis, 118 N. C. 202, 24 S. E. 15, a brother in Texas wrote to his sister in North Carolina that if he got sick or died in Texas he wanted her to have his farm. He simply mailed her the letter. Subsequently he died in Texas and his sister undertook to probate the letter as a holographic will in this State. The question arose whether it had been deposited "with someone for safekeeping"; the court held that this constituted depositing with someone for safekeeping and that the will should be probated. In view of the fact that a testamentary disposition must be accompanied with animus testandi, the decision seems to be clearly unsound, inasmuch as the letter in question discloses no such intention. This conclusion is supported by later decisions of the court which in express terms refuses to follow the doctrine of Alston v. Davis, see Spencer v. Spencer, 163 N. C. 83, 79 S. E. 291. It is believed that if the writer of the letter indicates clearly that by mailing it to the addressee he intends to deposit it as a will, the letter would be admitted to probate as such. See the case of In re Ledford's Will, 176 N. C. 610, 97 S. E. 482; 12 N. C. Law Rev. 199.

§ 31-4. Execution of power of appointment by will.—No appointment, made by will in the exercise of any power, shall be valid unless the same be executed in the manner by law required for the execution of wills; and every will, executed in such manner, shall, so far as respects the execution and attestation thereof, be a valid execution of a power of appointment by will, notwithstanding it shall have been expressly required that a will made in exercise of such power should be executed with some additional or other form of execution or solemnity. (Rev., s. 3114; Code, s. 2139; R. C., c. 119, s. 4; 1844, c. 88, s. 9; C. S. 4132.)

Cross Reference.—See also, § 31-43.

Art. 2. Revocation of Will.

§ 31-5. Revocation by writing or by cancellation or destruction.—No will or testament in writing, or any clause thereof, shall be revocable otherwise than by some other will or codicil in writing, or other writing declaring the same, or by burning, canceling, tearing, or obliterating the same, by the testator himself, or in his presence and by his direction and consent; but all wills or testaments shall remain and continue in force until the same be burnt, canceled, torn, or obliterated by the testator, or in his presence and by his consent and direction; or unless the same be altered or revoked by some other will or codicil in writing, or other writing of the testator, signed by him, or some other person in his presence and by his direction, and subscribed in his presence by two witnesses at least; or unless the same be altered or revoked by some other will or codicil in writing, or other writing of the testator, all of which shall be in the handwriting of the testator, and his name subscribed thereto or inserted therein, and lodged by him with some person for safe-keeping, or left by him in some secure place, or among his valuable papers and effects, every part of which will or codicil or other writing shall be proved to be in the handwriting of the testator, by three witnesses at least. (Rev., s. 3115; Code, s. 2176; R. C., c. 119, s. 22; 1784, c. 204, s. 14; 1819, c. 1004, ss. 1, 2; 1840, c. 62; C. S. 4133.)

Material Alteration Necessary.—In order for there to be a revocation of a will, in whole or in part, under the provisions of this section there must not only exist the intent of the testator to cancel, but there must be the physical act of cancellation; and while it is not required that the words should be entirely effaced where the cancellation is in part, so as to make the same illegible, the portion erased must be of such significance as to effect a material alteration in the meaning of the will or the clause of the will that is challenged on the issue. In re Love's Will, 186 N. C. 714, 120 S. E. 479.

Same—Primary Controlling Clause Unaltered, Effect. — Where the primary or controlling clause of a will remains unaltered by the obliteration by the testator of words therein and the unobliterated words remaining are sufficient to carry the designated property to the devisee, it will not amount to a revocation within the intent and meaning of this section; nor will the obliteration of the name of another beneficiary be sufficient as to him, when it appears that the intent of the revocation by the testator was dependent upon the successful revocation of a principal devise wherein the erasures were insufficient to effectuate a legal cancellation. In re Love's Will, 186 N. C. 714, 120 S. E. 479.

Presumption as to Second Will.—A will may be revoked by a subsequent instrument executed solely for that purpose, or by a subsequent will containing a revoking clause or provisions inconsistent with those of the previous will, or by any of the other methods prescribed by law; but the mere fact that a second will was made, although it purports to be the last, does not create a presumption that it revokes or is inconsistent with one of a prior date. In re Wolfe's Will, 185 N. C. 563, 565, 117 S. E. 804. In this case it was held that where a testator devised a certain part of his lands to L., and by a later will gave his effects to his brothers and sisters, the two wills were not inconsistent and the latter did not revoke the former—Ed. Note.

Presumption of Revocation Where Will Cannot Be Found. —It being shown that a will was once in existence and last heard of in possession of the testator, but could not be found after his death, a presumption arises that it was destroyed by his consent with intent to cancel it. Scoggin v. Turner, 98 N. C. 135, 3 S. E. 719.

Such presumption is not conclusive, but it imposes upon the person asserting the will the burden of proving that it was not so destroyed, or that the testator was not of sound mind at the time of such presumed destruction. Scoggins v. Turner, 98 N. C. 135, 3 S. E. 719.

Revocation of Holographic Will.—It seems clear that a holographic will may be revoked just as an attested will may, i. e., (1) by burning, tearing, canceling or obliterating or (2) by another will, which may be holographic or attested, provided only that the statutory requirements in each case are complied with. No witnesses are necessary on the holographic revocation. See 14 L. R. A. N. S. 968 and 112 Am. St. Rep. 822, 2 N. C. Law Rev. 110.

Revocatory Paper Must Be a Testamentary Paper. — Where the writing offered as operating a revocation of the will of the testator contains none of the elements of a testamentary paper, it cannot be helped by evidence aliunde, and hence has no revocatory effect. Davis v. King, 89 N. C. 441.

Effect of Disposal of Articles Already Bequeathed.—A bequest of personal property in a trunk which contained the holograph will and other valuable papers of the deceased, after removing certain articles specifically bequeathed to others, is not a revocation of her will by the testatrix. In re Foy, 193 N. C. 494, 137 S. E. 427.

Interlineations and Annotations Held Insufficient to Show Revocation.—Where testator, in his own handwriting, makes certain interlineations and annotations upon his will, which had been properly executed, and marks through certain words of the will, and it appears that such alterations are insufficient to constitute a holographic will and were made with the intent of altering the will at some future date in accordance with the notations, but that such alterations were not made with the intent to revoke the will in whole or in part, such interlineations and annotations are insufficient to show a revocation of the will, intent to revoke being essential to revocation by defacement or obliteration of the will by testator under this section. In re Will of Roediger, 209 N. C. 470, 184 S. E. 74.

Revocation by Parol Prior to Section.—See early case of Giles v. Giles, 1 N. C. 377, prior to the enactment of this section, where it is held that a will of real estate in writing may be revoked by parol if the words of revocation denote a present intention to revoke.

Revival by Parol Declaration.—A revocation of a will of real estate carried completely into effect cannot be revived by any subsequent declaration by parol. Giles v. Giles, 1 N. C. 377.

Cited in re Will of Watson, 213 N. C. 309, 195 S. E. 772.

§ 31-6. Revocation by marriage; exception.—All wills shall be revoked by subsequent marriage of the maker except a will made in exercise of a power of appointment, when the real or personal estate thereby appointed would not, in default of such appointment, pass to his heirs, executor or administrator, or the person entitled as his next of kin, under the statute of distributions. (Rev., s. 3116; Code, s. 2177; R. C., c. 119, s. 23; 1844, c. 88, s. 10; C. S. 4134.)

Republication by Parol Not Effective.—Under this section the will of a married woman is revoked by another marriage contracted after the will was made, and her verbal declaration, during the last coverture, that said paperwriting was her last will and testament without any further execution thereof, in accordance with the statute, does not constitute a reexecution and republication of it. Means v. Ury, 141 N. C. 248, 53 S. E. 850.

Same—How Republished.—A holograph will revoked by the marriage of the testator, can only be revived and republished by a written instrument setting forth his intention, and duly attested by two witnesses, or by a writing by the testator himself, found among his valuable papers, or handed to one for safekeeping. Sawyer v. Sawyer, 52 N. C. 133.

Republication by Codicil.—A will which has been revoked by the marriage of the testator is revived and republished by a codicil properly executed subsequent to the marriage which refers to the prior will and expresses an intention of the testator that the will should be effective except as altered by the codicil. In re Coffield's Will, 216 N. C. 285, 4 S. E. (2d) 870.

Evidence of Undue Influence.—This section revokes any will made before marriage, and evidence that a will had been made prior thereto is not evidence of undue influence in the procurement of a subsequent will made in favor of the wife of the deceased. In re Will of Bradford, 183 N. C. 4, 110 S. E. 586.

Cited in In re Will of Watson, 213 N. C. 309, 195 S. E. 772.

§ 31-7. No revocation by altered circumstances.—No will shall be revoked by any presumption of an intention on the ground of an alteration in circumstances. (Rev., s. 3117; Code, s. 2178; R. C., c. 119, s. 24; 1844, c. 88, s. 11; C. S. 4135.)

Subsequent Birth or Adoption of Child.—The subsequent birth of a child or the adoption of one under our statute, does not revoke the will of the father under this section as in case of subsequent marriage under section 31-6. Sorrell v. Sorrell, 193 N. C. 439, 137 S. E. 306.

Right of After-born Child Does Not Effect Revocation.—While after-born children not provided for in the will of their deceased parent may claim by inheritance their part of the estate, under section 31-45, it does not amount to revocation of the entire will. Fawcett v. Fawcett, 191 N. C. 679, 132 S. E. 796.

Applied in In re Will of Watson, 213 N. C. 309, 195 S. E. 772.

§ 31-8. No revocation by subsequent conveyance.—No conveyance or other act made or done subsequently to the execution of a will of, or relating to, any real or personal estate therein comprised, except an act by which such will shall be duly revoked, shall prevent the operation of the will with respect to any estate or interest in such real or personal estate as the testator shall have power to dispose of by will at the time of his death. (Rev., s. 3118; Code, s. 2179; R. C., c. 119, s. 25; 1844, c. 88, s. 2; C. S. 4136.)

Parol Evidence to Fasten Constructive Trust.—Since the enactment of this section parol evidence is incompetent to fasten upon a devise of land a constructive or implied trust in favor of another. Chappell v. White, 146 N. C. 571, 60 S. E. 635.

This statute was enacted in view of the decision of this court, in 1843, in Cook v. Redman, 37 N. C. 623, in which a trust of this kind was upheld. Chappell v. White. 146 N. C. 571, 573, 60 S. E. 635.

Conveyance, etc., Not to Affect Provisions of Will.—No conveyance or act done after the execution of a will, unless it amounts to a revocation, will affect its provisions. Wood v. Cherry, 73 N. C. 110.

Where Construed, Approved and Cited.—This statute was construed in 1875 by an exceptionally able court, and the opinion delivered by Chief Justice Pearson in a notable case, which has been since repeatedly cited and approved. Wood v. Cherry, 73 N. C. 110, cited and approved in Avery v. Stewart, 136 N. C. 426, 48 S. E. 775; Sykes v. Boone, 132 N. C. 199, 43 S. E. 645; Cobb v. Edwards, 117 N. C. 244, 245, 23 S. E. 241; Herring v. Sutton, 129 N. C. 107, 39 S. E. 772; Pittman v. Pittman, 107 N. C. 159, 12 S. E. 61, and many other adjudications of this court. Chappell v. White, 146 N. C. 571, 573, 60 S. E. 635.

Cited in Wright v. Wright, 198 N. C. 754, 755, 153 S. E. 321.

Art. 3. Witnesses to Will.

§ 31-9. Executor competent witness.—No person, on account of being an executor of a will, shall be incompetent to be admitted a witness to prove the execution of such will, or to prove the validity or invalidity thereof. (Rev., s. 3119; Code, s. 2146; R. C., c. 119, s. 9; C. S. 4137.)

Purpose of Section.—This section was intended to give the benefit of an executor's testimony to every person who should be interested, either in the establishment, or defeat of a paper writing propounded as a will. Pannell v. Scoggin, 53 N. C. 408, 410.

Executor or Administrator C. T. A. Competent.—An executor or administrator cum testamento annexo, who is also a subscribing witness to a will, is competent to testify to the execution thereof; and the same rule applies to one who was competent at the time of the making of the will, but subsequently acquired an interest therein. Vester v. Collins, 101 N. C. 114, 7 S. E. 687.

Same—Rule Prior to Section.—An executor, before the enactment of this section, could not be a witness in favor of the will, even by renouncing and releasing his interest, and he is still incompetent as to any will that was made before January, 1856. Gunter v. Gunter, 48 N. C. 441.

May Be Examined for Both Parties.—Under this section one named as executor in a receipt, propounded as a will, though named as plaintiff in an issue devisavit vel non, may be examined as a witness for the caveator as well as for the propounder. Pannell v. Scoggin, 53 N. C. 408.

§ 31-10. Beneficiary competent; interest rendered void.—If any person shall attest the execution of any will, to whom or to whose wife or husband any beneficial devise, estate, interest, legacy, or appointment of or affecting any real or personal estate shall be thereby given or made, such devise, estate, interest, legacy, or appointment shall, so far only as concerns such person attesting the execution of such will or the wife or husband of such person, or any person claiming under such person, or wife or husband, be void; and such person so attesting shall be admitted as a witness to prove the execution of such will, or the validity or invalidity thereof. (Rev., s. 3120; Code, s. 2147; R. C., c. 119, s. 10; C. S. 4138.)

In General.—This section avoids only the devise or bequest to the attesting witness and to his and her wife and husband and privies, and leaves the other dispositions made of the testator's property in unimpaired force and operation. Vester v. Collins, 101 N. C. 114, 116, 7 S. E. 687.

Interest of Witness to Holographic Will Not Avoided.—One who is beneficiary under a holograph will may testify to such competent, relevant and material facts as tend to establish it as a valid will without rendering void the benefits he is to receive thereunder. It is otherwise as to an attesting witness of a will that the statute requires to be attested by witness thereto. In re Will of Westfeldt, 188 N. C. 702, 125 S. E. 531.

This section applies only to wills that have attesting witnesses, and to the attesting witness. Hence a devisee under a holographic will is a competent witness to prove the will without losing his interest thereunder. His interest in the results affects only the credit to be given to his testimony. Hampton v. Hardin, 88 N. C. 592.

Interest of One Who Does Not Sign as Witness Not Avoided.—One who signs his name on a will in the place where subscribing witnesses usually sign, is not deprived of benefits conferred upon him by the will, if he, in fact, did not sign as a subscribing witness. Boone v. Lewis, 103 N. C. 40, 9 S. E. 644.

Competency of Witness—Question of Law.—If a witness to a will is interested as a legatee thereunder, he is a competent witness to prove the will, the effect being to deprive him of the legacy and it is error in the Judge to submit the competency of a witness as a question of fact for the jury. The competency of a witness is a question for the court, to be raised when he offers to testify, and to be determined by the court. McLean v. Elliott, 72 N. C. 70.

Object in Avoiding Witnesses' Interest.—It was to remove all improper influences and secure impartiality, in such as are called to attest the execution of the will, that all gifts to them or to their husbands or wives are annulled, and all temptations to swerve from the truth are taken away. Hampton v. Hardin, 88 N, C. 592, 593.

Competency of Widow and Devisee.—The widow and devisee of the testator is a competent witness to prove the fact that the script propounded was found among the valuable papers of the deceased. Cornelius v. Brawley, 109 N. C. 542, 14 S. E. 78.

Application of Section 8-51.—Section 8-51 does not apply to wills, which are governed by this section. Cox v. Lumber C., 124 N. C. 78, 82, 32 S. E. 381.

Applied in Barrett v. Williams, 215 N. C. 131, 1 S. E. (2d) 366.

Art. 4. Depository for Wills.

§ 31-11. Depositories in offices of clerks of superior court where living persons may file wills.—The clerk of the superior court in each county of North Carolina shall be required to keep a receptacle or depository in which any person who desires to do so may file his or her will for safe keeping; and the clerk shall make a charge of fifty cents (50c) for the filing of such will, and shall, upon written request of the testator, or the duly authorized agent or attorney for the testator, permit said will or testament to be withdrawn from said depository or receptacle at any time prior to the death of the testator: Provided, that the contents of said will shall not be made public or open to the inspection of any one other than the testator or his duly authorized agent until such time as the said will shall be offered for probate. (1937, c. 435, s. 1.)

Local Modification.—Guilford: 1937, c. 435, s. 2.

Editor's Note.—This section, which makes it possible for a testator during his lifetime to file his will for safekeeping with the probate judge, represents a rather progressive step in the law of wills. If taken advantage of by testators, it may prevent the loss or fraudulent destruction of many validly executed wills, and may tend to prevent the offer of forged wills for probate and contests of wills upon the grounds of fraud, undue influence, and mental incapacity. Similar statutes have been enacted in several states in this country. 15 N. C. Law Rev. 353.

Art. 5. Probate of Will

§ 31-12. Executor may apply for probate; jurisdiction when clerk interested party.—Any executor named in a will may, at any time after the death of the testator, apply to the clerk of the superior court, having jurisdiction, to have the same admitted to probate. Such will shall not be valid or effective to pass real estate or personal property as against innocent purchasers for value and without notice, unless it is probated or offered for probate within two years after the death of the testator or devisor. If such will is fraudulently suppressed, stolen or destroyed, or has been lost, and an action or proceeding shall be commenced within two years from the death of the testator or devisor to obtain said will or establish the same as provided by law, then the limitation herein set out shall only begin to run from the termination of said action or proceeding, but not otherwise. If the clerk of the superior court having jurisdiction to probate any will be a subscribing witness thereto, or a devisee or legatee therein, or if said clerk shall have any pecuniary interest in the property disposed of by said will, then the clerk of the superior court of any adjoining county shall have jurisdiction to probate said will, and upon petition filed before him by any one interested in any way in said will, he shall proceed to have said will produced before him, and the said will shall thereupon be probated, recorded, and filed as provided by this chapter, and a duly certified copy of the said will, together with the probate of the same, and the said petition, under the hand and seal of the said clerk, shall be filed and recorded in the book of wills, in the office of the clerk of the superior court of the county whose clerk was a subscribing witness thereto, or a devisee or legatee therein, or who had a pecuniary interest in the property disposed of by said will and the clerk in said last mentioned county is hereby authorized to issue letters to personal representatives, who may qualify and administer the estate in said will as if originally probated in said county, and the title to all property, both real and personal, conveyed and devised in said will, shall be as good and effectual as if the said will had been originally probated and recorded in said last mentioned county. (Rev., s. 3122; Code, s. 2151; C. C. P., s. 439; 1919, c. 15; 1921, c. 99; 1923, c. 14; C. S. 4139.)

Cross References.—As to jurisdiction of the clerk see §§ 28-1 and 28-2. As to disqualification of clerk, see §§ 2-17 through 2-21. As to conveyances within two years of the death of the decedent where there is no will, see § 28-83. As to rights of innocent purchasers when will withheld from probate, see § 31-39.

Editor's Note.—The provisions of this section, which concern the probating of wills where the clerk of the superior court having jurisdiction to probate it is a subscribing witness thereto, are added by the amendment of 1921, (Public Laws 1921, c. 99), and the similar provisions where such clerk is a devisee or legatee under the will or has a pecuniary interest in the property disposed by the will, are added by the amendment of 1923, (Public Laws 1923, c. 14).

"While the amending statutes expressly refer to this section . . . . . they more particularly affect §§ 1 [28-1] and 2 [28-2], of the code defining the jurisdiction of the clerk in administrations, and §§ 939 [2-17], 940 [2-19] and 941 [2-20], as to disqualifications. By sec. 939 [2-17], the clerk is disqualified to act, if he is a subscribing witness to a will, but this disqualification ceases when the will has been admitted to probate by another clerk; and the same result follows from the amending statute. That the wife of the clerk is a subscribing witness also disqualifies the clerk, but this is not affected by the amendment. This defect may be waived by the parties interested, but the clerk cannot very well take the probate, when he is one of the two subscribing witnesses. Section 940 [2-19]; Trenwith v. Smallwood (1892) 111 N. C. 132, 15 S. E. 1030. The procedure would then be under the amended statute, or by application to the judge, as provided in sec. 941 [2-20]; and in either case, the will, after probate, would be returned to the clerk of the original county to proceed with the administration of the estate. If the clerk has an interest in the estate under the will, he is disqualified by sec. 939 [2-17]; but this may be waived, and he may then proceed as if the defect did not exist. Section 940 [2-19]. If this defect is not waived, what procedure is required? The recent amendment says that the petition may be filed and probate taken before the clerk of any adjoining county and when a certified return is made to the clerk of the original county, he may proceed to appoint the personal representative. Section 941 [2-20] provides that application may be made to the proper judge for an order to remove the proceedings to the clerk of an adjoining county in the same district; or the judge himself may make all necessary orders for the settlement of the estate. There appears to be a conflict between the two statutes in this respect, unless the recent amendment is limited to the mere fact of probate; but if that is all that is meant, the amendment is not necessary, since the same result may be readily obtained under the former statute. The appointment and qualification of the personal representative is as much a judicial act as any other order made in the settlement of the estate; and to allow the clerk who is interested to proceed in the matter without a waiver, would confer upon him the power to sit in judgment in his own cause, contrary to the general policy of the law. Land Co. v. Jennett, (1901), 128 N. C. 3, 37 S. E. 954. The obvious purpose of the two amending statutes was to provide a simple and speedy method of obtaining the probate of a will, when the clerk was disqualified, and this has been done; but how far it was intended to change the former practice, if at all, in case of interest, is not clearly shown." 1 N. C. Law Rev. 314.

In General.—This section and § 31-15, by implication at least, require the probate of a will. Wells v. Odum, 207 N. C. 226, 228, 176 S. E. 563.

No Limitation to Probate a Will—Exception.—In the absence of some statute to the contrary, there is no limit upon the time after a testator's death within which a will may be proven, and when duly proven it relates back to the death of the testator so as to vest title from that date as between the parties who claim under it. Steadman v. Steadman, 143 N. C. 345, 346, 55 S. E. 784. But this section sets a period of limitation after which a will may not be probated as to bona fide purchasers.—Ed. Note.

Title Descends to Heirs Subject to Be Divested.—The title of the land descends to the heirs of the testator, subject to be divested in favor of the devisee, when the will is duly admitted to probate. Floyd v. Herring, 64 N. C. 409, 411.

Limitation as to Lost Wills Prior to Statute.—See McCormick v. Jernigan, 110 N. C. 406, 14 S. E. 971, where it is held that no statute of limitation applies to the probate of a lost will. This case was decided prior to the amendment of 1919, which sets a limitation to the probate of lost wills where the right of bona fide purchasers are involved.

Citation to those in interest is not necessary to the probate of a will in common form, the proceeding being ex parte, and when probated the paper-writing is valid and operative as a will and may not be attacked collaterally. In re Rowland, 202 N. C. 373, 162 S. E. 897.

The probate of a will in common form without citation to those in interest "to see the proceedings," is an ex parte proceeding and not binding on caveators upon the issue of devisavit vel non raised in their direct attack upon the validity of the will, and the admission in evidence in the caveat proceedings of the order of probate constitutes reversible error. Wells v. Odum, 205 N. C. 110, 170 S. E. 145.

Appointment Is Reviewable.—The power, conferred by this section, to appoint administrators is reviewable to the judge of the Superior Court of the county. In re Estate of Wright and Wright v. Ball, 200 N. C. 620, 158 S. E. 192.

§ 31-13. Executor failing, beneficiary may apply.—If no executor apply to have the will proved within sixty days after the death of the testator, any devisee or legatee named in the will, or any other person interested in the estate, may make such application, upon ten days notice thereof to the executor. (Rev., s. 3123; Code, s. 2152; C. C. P., s. 440; C. S. 4140.)

Cross Reference.—As to who may apply for letters of administration in case of intestacy, see § 28-6 et seq.

Notice to Executor in Probating a Codicil.—Before others interested in the probate of a will may apply for its probate ten days previous notice must be given the executor therein named, and where an executor has probated and qualified under the will, it is equally necessary to give the statutory notice before offering for probate a separate paper-writing as a codicil. Spencer v. Spencer, 163 N. C. 83, 79 S. E. 291.

§ 31-14. Clerk to notify legatees and devisees of probate of wills. — The clerks of the superior court of the state are hereby required and directed to notify by mail, all legatees and devisees whose addresses are known, designated in wills filed for probate in their respective counties. All expense incident to such notification shall be deemed a proper charge in the administration of the respective estates. (1933, c. 133.)

While this requirement appears to be mandatory, it does not seem to be prerequisite to the probate of the will itself. Nor does it assume the status and importance of a citation to devisees and legatees as in the case of the probate of a will in solemn form. Apparently the purpose of the statute is to expedite the settlement of the estate of a person who has died testate. 11 N. C. Law Rev. 263.

§ 31-15. Clerk may compel production of will.—Every clerk of the superior court having jurisdiction, on application by affidavit setting forth the facts, shall, by summons, compel any person in the state, having in possession the last will of any decedent, to exhibit the same in his court for probate; and whoever being duly summoned refuses, in contempt of the court, to produce such will, or (the same having been parted with by him) refuses to inform the court on oath where such will is, or in what manner he has disposed of it, shall, by order of the clerk of the superior court, be committed to the jail of the county, there to remain without bail till such will be produced or accounted for, and due submission made for the contempt. (Rev., s. 3124; Code, s. 2154; C. C. P., s. 442; C. S. 4141.)

Cross References.—See annotations to § 31-12. As to larceny, concealment, or destruction of wills, see § 14-77.

In General.—A petition before the clerk of the superior court alleging that the respondents were in possession of a later will than that probated in another county, and that the petitioner was withholding this will for fraudulent purposes, etc., is a proceeding under this section to compel the production of a will. Williams v. Bailey, 177 N. C. 37, 97 S. E. 721.

Failure of Petitioners to Pursue Proceedings—Discharge of Respondents.—Where the respondents in proceedings to compel the production of a will appear before the clerk at the time set for the hearing, and in writing under oath fully deny the charges made, and the petitioners neither file reply, offer evidence, nor request an examination, no issues are raised requiring the matter to be transferred to the trial docket, and the rule against the respondents should be discharged at the petitioner's cost. Williams v. Bailey, 177 N. C. 37, 97 S. E. 721.

Issue of Wrong Venue No Excuse.—Where the clerk of the court of G. county issued a notice to the respondent, who had the will of the deceased in his possession, to exhibit the same for probate, it was the duty of the respondent to obey the summons, and he could have raised in his answer the question of whether the will should be probated in G. or L. county. In re Scarborough Will, 139 N. C. 423, 51 S. E. 931.

Impossibility to Comply with Order as Excuse.—An order of the clerk of the court of G. county which adjudges the respondent guilty of contempt and that he be committed to jail, until such will was produced, was properly reversed on appeal where it appears that the respondent can not comply with the condition upon which he might be discharged, because the clerk of L. county now has custody of the will and has refused to surrender it to the respondent. In re Scarborough Will, 139 N. C. 423, 51 S. E. 931.

Allowance of Reasonable Expenses.—Where the law imposes a duty upon a person, or group of persons, with respect to probating and establishing the validity of a will, in the performance of such duty, in good faith, reasonable expenses thereby incurred should be allowed and paid out of the fund or property which is the subject of the litigation. Wells v. Odum, 207 N. C. 226, 228, 176 S. E. 563.

Attachment for Contempt—Scope of Proceedings.—In a proceeding to attach the respondent for contempt in not producing for probate a will, the question whether the will should be probated in G. or L. county is not presented and can not be passed upon. In re Scarborough Will, 139 N. C. 423, 51 S. E. 931.

Motion to Dismiss Proceedings under This Section.—Where a rule issued under the provisions of this section in proceedings to compel the production of a will, should be discharged, a motion by the respondents to dismiss the proceedings will be treated as a motion to discharge them. Williams v. Bailey, 177 N. C. 37, 97 S. E. 721.

§ 31-16. What shown on application for probate.—On application to the clerk of the superior court, he must ascertain by affidavit of the applicant—

1. That such applicant is the executor, devisee or legatee named in the will, or is some other person interested in the estate, and how so interested.

2. The value and nature of the testator's property, as near as can be ascertained.

3. The names and residences of all parties entitled to the testator's property, if known, or that the same on diligent inquiry cannot be discovered; which of the parties in interest are minors, and whether with or without guardians, and the names and residences of such guardians, if known. Such affidavit shall be recorded with the will and the certificate of probate thereof, if the same is admitted to probate. (Rev., s. 3125; Code, s. 2153; C. C. P., s. 441; C. S. 4142.)

nesses touching the execution of a will, and he shall embody the substance of such proofs and examinations, in case the will is admitted to probate, in his certificate of the probate thereof, which certificate must be recorded with the will. The proofs and examinations as taken must be filed in the office. (Rev., s. 3126; Code, s. 2149; C. C. P., s. 437; C. S. 4143.)

Former Practice.—Formerly the court of pleas and quarter sessions had jurisdiction of the probate of wills, and there was at that time no provision in the statute requring the taking of the proofs in writing or for recording the probate. The practice was to exhibit the will before the court and offer the proofs of execution, and for an entry to be made upon the minutes of the adjudication, and the clerk, acting upon the authority of the court, then recorded the will upon the will book. In most instances he also recorded a memorandum of the proceedings before the court, but this was not done in all cases. Poplin v. Hatley, 170 N. C. 163, 166, 8 S. E. 1028.

Presumption of Valid Recordation.—The requirements of this section did not obtain in the probate of a will in the old practice before the court of pleas and quarter sessions; and where the records show that a will sought to be set aside for improper probate, valid on its face, has been transcribed upon the records of that court, it is presumed to have been duly admitted to probate and properly transcribed upon the record, the burden being upon the caveator to show to the contrary. Poplin v. Hatley, 170 N. C. 163, 86 S. E. 1028.

Same—Vacating Probate in Collateral Proceedings.—Probate of a will by the clerk of the superior court is a judicial act, and his certificate is conclusive evidence of the validity of the will, until vacated on appeal, or declared void by a competent tribunal in a proceeding instituted for that purpose. It cannot be vacated in a collateral manner. Mayo v. Jones, 78 N. C. 402; McClure v. Spivey, 123 N. C. 678, 31 S. E. 857.

Foreign Records Conformant to This Section Sufficient.—Where a non-resident testator devises land in this State, and the record of the foreign court of probate, duly certified, contains the certificate of probate, which refers to the certified examinations of the witnesses, in accordance with the requirements of this section, the whole forming one transaction, the exemplification of which and of the will being duly recorded in the county where the land lies, the will is sufficiently proved and passes the property. Roscoe v. Roper Lumber Co., 124 N. C. 42, 32 S. E. 389.

§ 31-18. Manner of probate.—Wills and testaments must be admitted to probate only in the following manner:

1. In case of a written will, with witnesses, on the oath of at least two of the subscribing witnesses, if living; but when any one or more of the subscribing witnesses to such will are dead, or reside out of the state, or cannot after due diligence be found within the state, or are insane or otherwise incompetent to testify, then such proof may be taken of the handwriting, both of the testator and of the witness or witnesses so dead, absent, insane or incompetent, and also of such other circumstances as will satisfy the clerk of the superior court of the genuineness and the due execution of such will. In all cases where the testator executed the will by making his mark, and where any one or more of the subscribing witnesses are dead or reside out of the state, or are insane or otherwise incompetent to testify, it shall not be necessary to proye the handwriting of the testator, but proof of the handwriting of the subscribing witness or witnesses so dead, absent, insane or incompetent shall be sufficient. The probate of all wills heretofore taken in compliance with the requirements of this section are hereby declared to be valid.

2. In case of a holograph will, on the oath of at least three credible witnesses, who state that they verily believe such will and every part thereof is in the handwriting of the person whose will it purports to be, and whose name must be subscribed thereto, or inserted in some part thereof. It must further appear on the oath of some one of the witnesses, or of some other credible person, that such will was found among the valuable papers and effects of the decedent, or was lodged in the hands of some person for safe-keeping.

3. In case of a nuncupative will, on the oath of at least two credible witnesses present at the making thereof, who state that they were specially required to bear witness thereto by the testator himself. It must also be proved that such nuncupative will was made in the testator's last sickness, in his own habitation, or where he had been previously resident for at least ten days, unless he died on a journey or from home. No nuncupative will shall be proved by the witnesses after six months from the making thereof, unless it was put in writing within ten days from such making; nor shall it be proved till a citation has been first issued or publication been made for six weeks in some newspaper published in the state, to call in the widow and next of kin to contest such will if they think proper. (Rev., s. 3127; Code, s. 2148; 1893, c. 269; 1901, c. 276; C. C. P., s. 435; C. S. 4144.)

Local Modification.—Burke, Scotland: C. S. 4154; Cleveland, Henderson, Transylvania, Wake: C. S. 4156; 1929, c. 313; 1939, c. 34; Halifax: 1924, c. 10; 1929, c. 313; 1939, c. 34; Haywood: C. S. 4157; Lee: 1929, c. 313; 1939, c. 34.

I. IN GENERAL—ATTESTED WILLS.

Evidence Must Show Subscribing in Presence of Testator.—Under sec. 31-3 and this section regulating the manner in which wills shall be attested and admitted to probate, it is essential, not only that the document shall be subscribed in the presence of the testator by at least two witnesses, but that the evidence upon which the will is admitted to probate must show that fact. In re Thomas, 111 N. C. 409, 411, 16 S. E. 226.

Proof of Handwriting of Testator Where One Witness Alive.—Upon an issue of devisavit vel non, purporting to be signed by testator himself, it is necessary for the propounders to show, in the superior court, the handwriting of the testator and his signature to the will, where only one of the subscribing witnesses to the will is alive, the matter of probate being de novo, and the record of the clerk not being competent evidence in this respect. Watson v. Hinson, 162 N. C. 72, 77 S. E. 1089.

II. HOLOGRAPHIC WILLS.

The phrase, "among the valuable papers and effects of," etc., used in this section, does not necessarily and without exception mean among the most valuable papers, etc., Winstead v. Bowman, 68 N. C. 170.

Testimony of witnesses that the paper writing propounded as the holograph will of deceased was found in his home in a washstand or bureau drawer in which he also kept deeds and receipts, is sufficient to be submitted to the jury on the question of whether the paper writing was found among his valuable papers and effects as required by this section since the requirement of the statute is met if the paper writing is found among papers and effects regarded by decedent as valuable. In re Williams' Will 215 N. C. 259, 1 S. E. (2d) 857.

Effect of Provisions of Section 8-51.—Where the validity of a holograph will depends upon its having been left with the beneficiary for safe keeping, his testimony thereof, after the death of the testator, is a transaction or communication of which he may not testify under section 8-51. McEwan v. Brown, 176 N. C. 249, 97 S. E. 20, overruling the case of Hampton v. Hardin, 88 N. C. 592.

Handwriting Goes to Jury on Testimony of Three Witnesses.—Testimony of three witnesses that the paper writing propounded as the holograph will of decedent was in his handwriting takes the case to the jury as to this requirement, notwithstanding conflicting testimony of caveator. In re Williams' Will, 215 N. C. 259, 1 S. E. (2d) 857.

Destroyed Will.—In an action to probate a destroyed holographic will, the propounder must show that the instrument in the handwriting of the deceased and signed by him once existed and was destroyed under circumstances that would defeat an inference of revocation. Upon failure of such proof, there is a failure of the proof of the res and a nonsuit is proper. Hewett v. Murray, 218 N. C. 569, 11 S. E. (2d) 867.

III. NUNCUPATIVE WILL.

Similarity with English Statute of Frauds.—The statutory provisions in relation to nuncupative wills have existed in this State since 1784, and they are substantially the same as those in the Statute of Frauds, 29 Car. II., ch. 3, secs. 19, 20; and these provisions have always been strictly construed and enforced by the courts, both in this State and in England. Smith v. Smith, 63 N. C. 637, 639.

Strict Compliance Necessary—Purpose of Requirements.—The requisites of this statutory provision must be strictly complied with and observed, in all material respects, in order to prevent opportunity for fraudulent practices on the part of such persons as would be disposed to obtain undue advantage of persons in their last sickness as to the final disposition of their property; and also to prevent mischiefs that might arise from the ignorance, misapprehension or dishonest purposes of persons called upon to be the witnesses of such wills. The purpose of such requisites is to prevent the fabrication of such wills; they are necessary, and it is essential to observe them strictly. Brown v. Brown, 6 N. C. 350; Rankin v. Rankin, 31 N. C. 156; Webster v. Webster, 50 N. C. 95; Haden v. Bradshaw, 60 N. C. 259; Smith v. Smith, 63 N. C. 637; Bundrick v. Haygood, 106 N. C. 468, 471, 11 S. E. 423; Long v. Foust, 109 N. C. 114, 118, 13 S. E. 889.

Witnesses Must Be Called in to Witness Transaction.—Where a woman in her last illness, without expressing any purpose to make a will said she wanted to give to her sister certain articles of personal property, and called her to her bedside and gave them to her, in the presence of two other persons but did not call them, or either of them, to witness the transaction: It was held that this did not constitute a nuncupative will. Bundrick v. Haygood, 106 N. C. 468, 11 S. E. 423.

It is necessary to the validity of a nuncupative will that the testator state her wishes in the presence of two witnesses and "specially require them to bear witness thereto." Kennedy v. Douglas, 151 N. C. 336, 66 S. E. 216.

Where a person, being in extremis, and conscious of it, sent for a friend with whom he had often talked on the subject of a will and told him what disposition he wanted to make of his property, and then such friend replied that if he wanted to do anything of that kind he had better have some other person in the room, and thereupon the speaker went out and brought in another person, and in the presence of the sick man repeated the proposed disposition of the property, to which the latter assented: It was held, to be a sufficient rogatio testium to satisfy the requirements of a nuncupative will. Smith v. Smith, 63 N. C. 637.

Same—Designation by Name Not Necessary.—It is sufficient that the testator saw the witnesses and charged them to bear witness to his will, and they did so, and it is not a good objection that he failed to designate them particularly by name. That he required them, each, all of them, to bear witness, was what the section requires. The purpose is that the testator shall require two witnesses at least to take notice and bear witness that he makes his will. He must require and direct a competent person, and that person must be able to testify that he was one of the persons—the witnesses—so required, and that he did take notice and bear witness. Long v. Foust, 109 N. C. 114, 119, 13 S. E. 889.

Same—Sufficiency of Showing.—Under this section, it is sufficient to show, on the question of the testator's requesting that the witness "bear witness" to the will, that believing himself to be in extremis, he told the witness during his last illness that he wanted to make a will, who, at his request, called in another and while they were at his bedside, testator gave specific directions for the disposition of his personal property; and though he had therefore expressed his wish to make a written will, and had failed in his effort to do so, the matters sought to be established as the nuncupative will were declared at a time when he was apprehensive that he would become unable to talk, and about four days before his death. In re Garland's Will, 160 N. C. 555, 76 S. E. 486.

No Probate Until Citation—Limitation of Six Months.—After the contents of the will are established within the time and in the manner prescribed by this section it cannot be admitted to probate until the citation or publication, and the probate based thereon shall be completed within six months from the making of the alleged will. The limitation of six months refers only to the proof and establishment of the contents, and that only where it is not reduced to writing within ten days of its making. In re Haygood's Will, 101 N. C. 574, 8 S. E. 222.

Same—May Be Proved before Citation.—It will be observed that it is not required that the will shall not be proved by the witnesses until the citation and notice provided for shall be made, but it shall not be proved—that is, proved in the sense of admitting it to probate at once—until citation shall be made, the purpose being to give the widow and next of kin opportunity to contest the will—the proof thereof by the witnesses thereof—if they shall see fit to do so. In re Haygood's Will, 101 N. C. 574, 577, 8 S. E. 222.

The purpose of the statute is not to prevent the examination of the witnesses of the will, after such lapse of six months, on the trial of the issue devisavit vel non in the course of a contest of it, but it is to require that they shall not be allowed to prove it in the first instance, when it is first presented for probate after that time, unless it shall have been put in writing within ten days next after the making thereof. In re Haygood's Will, 101 N. C. 574, 578, 8 S. E. 222.

If Reduced to Writing May Be Proved after Six Months.—A just interpretation of the provision relative to the proof of a nuncupative will is, that if such will shall be put in writing within ten days next after it was made, it may be proved by the witnesses thereof either before or after the lapse of six months next after the making thereof, because the will being in writing with the sanction of the witnesses, their recollection as to what it was is helped and strengthened thereby, and they could the better be trusted to testify as to the making of the same, and what it was in its detail, at any time within a reasonable period. In re Haygood's Will, 101 N. C. 574, 576, 8 S. E. 222.

Difference in Terminology of This and Section 31-5.—The statute with reference to revocation by holographic will and that with reference to probate of a holographic will are worded somewhat differently. As to revocation it must be "lodged by him with some person for safe-keeping or left by him in some secure place, or among his valuable papers and effects." As to probate it is sufficient if it "was found among the valuable papers and effects of the decedent, or was lodged in the hands of some person for safe-keeping." 2 N. C. Law Rev. 110.

Writing Postponed Execution as Nuncupative Will.—A paper writing which the deceased had theretofore dictated but postponed executing from time to time and which he finally declared to be his will without reading it, at a time he was in his last sickness not expecting to recover and physically unable to execute it, is invalid as a nuncupative will: (1) his intent that it should be a written will is evidenced by his conduct; (2) the dictation was not in law "during his last sickness." Kennedy v. Douglas, 151 N. C. 336, 66 S. E. 216.

The declaration of a testator made in the presence of two witnesses that a paper writing contained the disposition he desired made of his property and that he desired its provisions carried out, without reading or having the paper read at the time, but relying upon the assertion of a person then present that it contained his wishes as dictated by him several months before, is invalid as a nuncupative will. (1) the dictation was made to one witness alone; (2) there was no sufficient declaration then and there of the testator's wishes in the presence of two witnesses from which they could reduce their recollection to writing within ten days. Kennedy v. Douglas, 151 N. C. 336, 66 S. E. 216.

§ 31-19. Probate conclusive until vacated; substitution of consolidated bank as executor or trustee under will.—Such record and probate is conclusive in evidence of the validity of the will, until it is vacated on appeal or declared void by a competent tribunal. Provided, that whenever in a will so probated or recorded a bank or trust company shall be named executor and/or trustee and shall have at the time of such probate and recording become absorbed by or consolidated with another bank or trust company or shall have sold and transferred all its assets and liabilities to another bank or trust company doing business in North Carolina, such latter bank or trust company shall be deemed substituted for and shall have all the rights and powers of the former bank or trust company. (Rev., s. 3128; Code, s. 2150; C. C. P., c. 438; 1929, c. 150; 1941, c. 79; C. S. 4145.)

Editor's Note.—The Act of 1929 added the proviso with the exception of the words, "or shall have sold and transferred all its assets and liabilities to another bank or trust company doing business in North Carolina," which were added by the 1941 amendment.

Conclusively Valid Until Declared Void.—A will probated in common form before the clerk of the superior court is conclusively valid until declared void by a competent tribunal, and may be offered in evidence in proceedings to caveat the will. Holt v. Ziglar, 163 N. C. 390, 79 S. E. 805.

Cannot Be Attacked Collaterally.—Where a will has been admitted to probate a party claiming property disposed of by it to another can not, in an action to recover the same, be permitted to attack the will on the ground of the lack of testamentary capacity of the testatrix, and evidence offered for that purpose is properly excluded. Varner v. Johnston, 112 N. C. 570, 17 S. E. 483.

A will probated in common form is not subject to collateral attack, but is binding or conclusive until set aside in a direct proceeding. Mills v. Mills, 195 N. C. 595, 143 S. E. 130; In re Will of Cooper, 196 N. C. 418, 145 S. E. 782.

Until so set aside it is conclusively presumed to be the will of the testator. In re Will of Cooper, 196 N. C. 418, 145 S. E. 782.

A will which has been duly probated in common form may not be collaterally attacked even for fraud. Crowell v. Bradsher, 203 N. C. 492, 166 S. E. 731.

Probate a Judicial Act—Conclusive Presumption of Validity.—Probate of a will by the clerk of the superior court is a judicial act, and his certificate is conclusive evidence of the validity of the will, until vacated on appeal, or declared void by a competent tribunal in a proceeding instituted for that purpose. It cannot be vacated in a collateral manner. Mayo v. Jones, 78 N. C. 402; McClure v. Spivey, 123 N. C. 678, 31 S. E. 857.

An order of the clerk adjudging a will to be fully proved in common form is not "conclusive in evidence of the validity of the will" under this section, on the issue of devisavit vel non, raised by a caveat filed thereto. Wells v. Odum, 205 N. C. 110, 111, 170 S. E. 145.

Rents and profits of lands devised belonged to beneficiaries and their ancestors until the probate was set aside and the will adjudged void. Hinton v. Whitehurst, 214 N. C. 99, 101, 198 S. E. 579.

Effect of Revocation of Probate upon Administration.—The revocation of the probate in common form did not have the effect of annulling the administration properly granted. Floyd v. Herring, 64 N. C. 412.

Title of Innocent Purchasers Not Affected by Judgment Setting Aside Will.—Where the devisees named in a will, which has been duly probated in common form, sell and dispose of part of the lands devised to innocent purchasers for value without notice, and thereafter caveat proceedings are instituted and the will set aside, the heirs at law, by operation of the judgment setting aside the will, become tenants in common in the lands not disposed of, but the title conveyed by the devisees named in the paper writing to purchasers for value without notice, or knowledge of facts from which a purpose to file caveat proceedings could be intimated, is not affected, the probate in common form being conclusive evidence of the validity of the will until it is attacked by caveat proceedings duly instituted. Whitehurst v. Hinton, 209 N. C. 392, 184 S. E. 66.

When Devisees Entitled to Rents and Profits until Probate Set Aside.—Where there is no evidence tending to show that at any time prior to the institution of the caveat proceeding, the defendants, or their ancestors, had any knowledge or intimation that the plaintiffs would attack the validity of the will and there is no evidence tending to show that any of the devisees in said will procured its execution by undue or fraudulent influence, the defendants and their ancestors were entitled to the rents and profits of the lands devised to them until the probate was set aside and the will adjudged void. Whitehurst v. Hinton, 209 N. C. 392, 404, 184 S. E. 66.

§ 31-20. Wills filed in clerk's office.—All original wills shall remain in the clerk's office, among the records of the court where the same shall be proved, and to such wills any person may have access, as to the other records. If said will contains a devise of real estate, outside said county where said will is probated, then a copy of the said will, together with the probate of the same, certified under the hand and seal of the clerk of the superior court of said county may be recorded in the book of wills and filed in the office of the clerk of the superior court of any county in the state in which said land is situated with the same effect as to passing the title to said real estate as if said will had originally been probated and filed in said county and the clerk of the superior court of said last mentioned county had had jurisdiction to probate the same. (Rev., s. 3129; Code, s. 2173; R. C., c. 119, s. 19; 1777, c. 115, s. 59; 1921, c. 108, s. 1; C. S. 4146.)

Cross Reference.—See § 31-39.

Editor's Note.—All but the first sentence of this section was added by the amendment of 1921, Public Laws, ch. 108, § 1.

Will Taken from Record as Evidence of Testator's Handwriting.—An original will taken from the records of the court, is competent without further proof of its execution, as a basis of comparison in determining the genuineness of the handwriting of testator to the instrument in controversy. Croom v. Sugg, 110 N. C. 259, 14 S. E. 748.

§ 31-21. Validation of wills heretofore certified and recorded.—All wills which have prior to March 9, 1921, been certified and recorded in the office of the clerk of the superior court of any county, substantially following the provisions of § 31-20 are hereby validated and approved as to the conveyance and transfer of any title to real estate as contained therein, to the same extent as if said wills had originally been probated and filed in said county, and the clerk of the superior court of said county had had jurisdiction to probate the same, provided the probates and witnesses to the said wills are sufficient and according to law. (1921, c. 108, s. 2; C. S. 4146(a).)

§ 31-22. Certified copy of will proved in another state or country.—When a will, made by a citizen of this state, is proved and allowed in some other state or country, and the original will cannot be removed from its place of legal deposit in such other state or country, for probate in this state, the clerk of the superior court of the county where the testator had his last usual residence or has any property, upon a duly certified copy or exemplification of such will being exhibited to him for probate, shall take every order and proceeding for proving, allowing and recording such copy as by law might be taken upon the production of the original. (Rev., s. 3130; Code, s. 2157; C. C. P., s. 445; R. C., c. 44, s. 9; 1802, c. 623; C. S. 4147.)

Defective Certificate of Clerk.—The certificate of probate of a will executed in another state, disposing of real estate in this State, is defective which does not show affirmatively that the will was executed according to the laws of this State. Raleigh, etc., Ry. Co. v. Mining & Mfg. Co., 113 N. C. 241, 18 S. E. 208.

§ 31-23. Probate of will made out of the state: probate when witnesses out of state.—Whenever it is suggested to the clerk of the superior court, by affidavit or otherwise, that a will has been made without the state, or that a will has been made in the state and the witnesses thereto have moved out of the state, disposing of or charging land or other property within the state, the clerk of the superior court of the county where the property is situated may issue a commission to such person as he may select, authorizing the commissioner to take the examination of such witnesses as may be produced, touching the execution thereof, and upon return of such commission, with the examination, he may adjudge the will to be duly proved or otherwise, as in cases on the oral examination of witnesses before him, and if duly proved, such will shall be recorded. (Rev., s. 3131; Code, s. 2155; 1899, c. 55; C. C. P., s. 443; C. S. 4148.)

Defective Certificate.—Where a will, proved in another state, bore the certificate of the clerk of the court wherein the probate was had, to the oath of the attesting witnesses, but had no other authentication, it was held inadmissible in evidence, as departing from the requirements of this section. Hunter v. Kelly, 92 N. C. 285.

§ 31-24. Probate when witnesses are nonresident; examination before notary public.—Where one or more of the subscribing witnesses to the will of a testator, resident in this state, reside in another state, or in another county in this state than the one in which the will is being probated, the examination of such witnesses may be had, taken and subscribed in the form of an affidavit, before a notary public residing in the county and state in which the witnesses reside; and the affidavits, so taken and subscribed, shall be transmitted by the notary public, under his hand and official seal, to the clerk of the court before whom the will has been filed for probate. If such affidavits are, upon examination by the clerk, found to establish the facts necessary to be established before the clerk to authorize the probate of the will if the witnesses had appeared before him personally, then it shall be the duty of the clerk to order the will to probate, and record the will with the same effect as if the subscribing witnesses had appeared before him in person and been examined under oath. (1917, c. 183; 1933, c. 114; C. S. 4149.)

Editor's Note.—Public Laws 1933, c. 114, inserted, near the beginning of this section, the words "or in another county in this state than the one in which the will is being probated."

The 1933 amendment will facilitate the probate of wills where difficulty is encountered in securing the personal appearance of witnesses who reside within the state but at a distance from the county of probate. 11 N. C. Law Rev. 262.

§ 31-25. Probate when witnesses in another county.—When a will is offered for probate in one county of this state and the witnesses reside in another county, the clerk of the court before whom such will is offered shall have power and authority to issue a subpoena for the witnesses requiring them to appear before him and prove the will; and the clerk shall likewise have power and authority to issue a commission to take the deposition of such witnesses when they reside more than seventy-five miles from the place where the will is to be probated, such deposition and commission to be returned and the clerk to adjudge the will to be duly proven. Also, when it shall be found as a fact upon affidavit or other proof, by the clerk of any county where a will is to be probated, that any witness to the will resides outside of the county, or inside of the county, and seventy-five miles or less from the place where the will is to be probated, and that the witness is so infirm of body as to be unable to appear in person before the clerk to prove the will, then the clerk shall have the power and authority to issue a commission to take the deposition of the witness, the commission and deposition of the witness to be returned, and the clerk to adjudge the will to be duly proved thereon as if the witness had appeared in person before him. (Rev., s. 3132; 1899, c. 55; 1911, c. 13; 1923, c. 59; C. S. 4150.)

Editor's Note.—Public Laws of 1923, chapter 59 amended this section by adding after the words "resides out of the county" the words "or inside of the county," so that in case of physical disability of the witness, either within or out side of the county, the clerk may order the deposition to be taken. See 1 N. C. Law Rev. 315.

Depositions. — Depositions were taken in proceedings to caveat a will, referring to a paper-writing which was not attached, and it was held competent for the commissioner to identify the paper-writing as a part of the deposition. In re Clodfelter's Will, 171 N. C. 528, 88 S. E. 625.

§ 31-26. Probate of wills of members of the armed forces.—In addition to the methods already provided in existing statutes therefor, the will of a member of the armed forces of the United States, or the merchant marine, executed while in the active service of the United States, shall be admitted to probate (whether there were subscribing witnesses thereto or not, if they, or either of them, is out of the state at the time said will is offered for probate) upon the oath of at least three credible witnesses that the signature to said will is in the handwriting of the person whose will it purports to be. Such will so proven shall be effective to devise real property as well as to bequeath personal estate of all kinds. This section shall not apply to cases pending in courts and at issue on the date of its ratification. (1919, c. 216; Ex. Sess. 1921, c. 39; 1943, c. 218; C. S. 4151.)

Editor's Note.—Prior to the 1943 amendment, which was ratified on February 23, 1943, this section applied only to soldiers and sailors.

§ 31-27. Certified copy of will of nonresident recorded.—Whenever any will made by a citizen or subject of any other state or country is duly proven and allowed in such state or country according to the laws thereof, a copy or exemplification of such will and of the proceedings had in connection with the probate thereof, duly certified, and authenticated by the clerk of the court in which such will has been proved and allowed, if within the United States, or by any ambassador, minister, consul or commercial agent of the United States under his official seal, when produced or exhibited before the clerk of the superior court of any county wherein any property of the testator may be, shall be allowed, filed and recorded in the same manner as if the original and not a copy had been produced, proved and allowed before such clerk. But when any will contains any devise or disposition of real estate in this state, such devise or disposition shall not have any validity or operation unless the will is executed according to the laws of this state, and that fact must appear affirmatively from the testimony of a witness or witnesses to such will, or from findings of fact or recitals in the order of probate, or otherwise, in such certified copy or exemplification of the will and probate proceedings, and if it does not so appear, the clerk before whom the copy is exhibited shall have power to issue a commission for taking proofs touching the execution of the will, as prescribed in § 31-22, and the same may be adjudged duly proved, and shall be recorded as herein provided. (Rev., s. 3133; Code, s. 2156; 1885, c. 393;

Editor's Note.—The 1941 amendment inserted the words "and of the proceedings had in connection with the probate thereof," in the first sentence and made other changes in the section. The amendment, which became effective March 15, 1941, provided that it should not affect pending litigation.

For comment on this amendment, see 19 N. C. Law Rev. 547.

Note that the statement in the first syllabus of Whitton v. Peace, 188 N. C. 298, 124 S. E. 571, stating: "semble, a will properly attested and otherwise sufficient under the laws of another state would operate to pass title to lands situated here" is erroneous, unless it is qualified by saying: provided it also conforms to the requirements of the law of this State. The statute in plain and express terms declares such wills invalid as to realty devised in the State, unless the will is executed according to the laws of this State.

Orderly Arrangement of Pages of Exemplification.—Where the will has been admitted to probate in the court having jurisdiction to admit wills and testaments to probate, even though the pages of the manuscript exemplified copy are not orderly arranged, the will will be admitted to probate and record in this State, under the provisions of this section. Roscoe v. Lumber Co., 124 N. C. 42, 32 S. E. 389; Roper Lumber Co. v. Hudson, 153 N. C. 96, 99, 68 S. E. 1065.

Authentication by Clerk of Court and Not Register of Deeds.—It is necessary to the registration of a copy of a will in this State that the copy or exemplification of the will be duly certified and authenticated by the clerk of the court in which it had been proved or allowed, and if it has been allowed to be registered here under the certificate and seal of the register of deeds in another state it is ineffectual as evidence in a claimant's chain of title. Riley v. Carter, 158 N. C. 484, 74 S. E. 463.

Appearance and Examination of Attesting Witness Not Necessary.—Under the provisions of this section, it is not required that a will executed and admitted to probate in another state be also probated in this State by the appearance and examination of the attesting witnesses in order to pass title to property here when a copy or exemplification thereof duly certified and authenticated by the clerk of the court in which it had been proven and allowed shall be allowed, filed and recorded in the proper county in this State. The doctrine of Hunter v. Kelly, 92 N. C. 285, is no more the law. Vaught v. Williams, 177 N. C. 77, 97 S. E. 737.

Due Record and Certificate of Foreign Probate—Effect.—Where a nonresident testator devises land in this State, and the record of the foreign court of probate, duly certified, contains the certificate of probate, which refers to the certified examinations of the witnesses, in accordance with the requirements of section 31-17, the whole forming one transaction, the exemplification of which and of the will being duly recorded in the county where the land lies, the will is sufficiently proved and passes the property. Roscoe v. Roper Lumber Co., 124 N. C. 42, 32 S. E. 389.

Subscription by Two Witnesses Must Appear from Certificate.—Where a certified copy from another state has been recorded, the fact of subscribing by at least two witnesses must appear affirmatively "in the certificate probate or exemplification of the will." The mere recitation in the attestation clause is not affirmative evidence. Raleigh, etc., Ry. Co. v. Mining & Mfg. Co., 113 N. C. 241, 244, 18 S. E. 208.

§ 31-28. Probates validated where proof taken by commissioner or another clerk.—In all cases of the probate of any will made prior to March 8, 1899 in common form before any clerk of the superior courts of this state, where the testimony of the subscribing witnesses has been taken in the state or out of if by any commissioner appointed by said clerk or taken by any other clerk of the superior court in any other county of this state, and the will admitted to probate upon such testimony, the proceedings are validated. (Rev., s. 3134; 1899, c. 680; C. S. 4153.)

§ 31-29. Probates in another state before 1860 validated. — In all cases where any will devises land in this state, and the original will was duly admitted to probate in some other state prior to the year one thousand eight hundred and sixty, and a certified copy of such will and the probate thereof has been admitted to probate and record in any county in this state, and it in any way appears from such recorded copy that there were two subscribing witnesses to such will, and its execution was proved by the examination of such witnesses when the original was admitted to probate, such will shall be held and considered, and is hereby declared to be, good and valid for the purpose of passing title to the lands devised thereby, situated in this state, as fully and completely as if the original will had been duly executed and admitted to probate and recorded in this state in accordance with the laws of this state. (1913, c. 93, s. 1; C. S. 4155.)

§ 31-30. Validation of wills recorded without probate by subscribing witnesses.—In all cases where wills and testaments were executed prior to the first day of January, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-five (1875), and which appear as recorded in the record of last wills and testaments to have had two (2) or more witnesses thereto, and such last wills and testaments were admitted to probate and recorded in the record of wills in the proper county in this state prior to the first day of January, one thousand eight hundred and eighty-eight (1888), without having been duly proven as provided by law, and such wills were presented to the clerk of the superior court in any county in this state where the makers of said wills owned property, and where the makers of such wills lived and died, and were by such clerks recorded in the record of wills for his county, said wills and testaments or exemplified copies thereof, so recorded, if otherwise sufficient, shall have the effect to pass the title to real or personal property, or both, therein devised and bequeathed, to the same extent and as completely as if the execution thereof had been duly proven by the two (2) subscribing witnesses thereto in the manner provided by law of this state. Nothing herein shall be construed to prevent such wills from being impeached for fraud. (1921, c. 66; C. S. 4157(a).)

§ 31-31. Validation of wills admitted on oath of one subscribing witness.—In all cases where last wills and testaments which appear as recorded in the record of last wills and testaments to have had two witnesses thereto and such last wills and testaments were admitted to probate and recorded in the record of wills in the proper county in this state prior to the first day of January, one thousand eight hundred and ninety (1890) upon the oath and examination of one of the witnesses, such proof being taken in writing and recorded, and the certificate of probate of the Clerk of the Court states that such a will is proven by one of the subscribing witnesses thereto and the handwriting of the other subscribing witness being a non-resident is proven under oath, and such a will and certificate has been recorded in the record of wills of the proper county, such probate is hereby validated as fully as if the proof of the handwriting of the non-resident witness had been taken in regular form in writing and recorded. (1929, c. 41, ss. 1, 2.)

Art. 6. Caveat to Will.

§ 31-32. When and by whom caveat filed.—At the time of application for probate of any will, and the probate thereof in common form, or at any time within seven years thereafter, any person entitled under such will, or interested in the estate, may appear in person or by attorney before the clerk of the superior court and enter a caveat to the probate of such will: Provided, that if any person entitled to file a caveat be within the age of twenty-one years, or insane, or imprisoned, then such person may file a caveat within three years after the removal of such disability. (Rev., s. 3135; Code, s. 2158; C. C. P., s. 446; 1907, c. 862; 1925, c. 81; C. S. 4158.)

Cross Reference.—As to the widow's right to dissent from the will, see §§ 30-1 and 30-2.

Editor's Note.—Prior to the amendment of 1907 there was no express provision as to period of limitation upon the right to file a caveat. And by judicial construction the period of limitation was fixed at a reasonable time. See In re Hedgepeth, 150 N. C. 245, 63 S. E. 1025. In that case it was further held that the seven years' limitation intended by the amendment would apply to a caveat filed after the amendment to a will probated before the amendment. See also, In re Will Beauchamp, 146 N. C. 254, 59 S. E. 687; Etheridge v. Corprew's Executors, 48 N. C. 14; Gray v. Maer, 20 N. C. 41; In re Dupree, 163 N. C. 256, 259, 79 S. E. 611.

Until the amendment of 1925 married women were extended an additional period of three years after the removal of the disability of coverture. But the amendment of 1925 struck out this provision with the effect that married women were put upon the same place as other persons. But the amendatory act did not apply to caveats filed prior to the first day of January, 1926. See In re Witherington's Will, 186 N. C. 152, 119 S. E. 11, 12.

In General.—By this section, the legislature recognized that it is against the sound public policy to allow probate of wills and settlements of property rights thereunder to be left open to such uncertainties for an indefinite length of time. In re Will of Johnson, 182 N. C. 522, 109 S. E. 373.

The Limitation at Common Law.—While at common law there was no definiteness or uniformity in the adoption of a period of time wherein the right would be presumed to have been forfeited either by acquiescence or unreasonable delay, the period of twenty years was that more generally prevalent, and though this presumption might be rebutted by proper and sufficient evidence, when the facts were admitted, or had been properly established, it became a question for the court to determine whether on such facts the presumption prevailed. In re Dupree, 163 N. C. 256, 79 S. E. 611.

Common Law Limitation Applied After Amendment.—As the caveat in the case of In re Dupree's Will, 163 N. C. 256, 79 S. E. 611 was filed in 1911, the will being admitted to probate in 1887, from 1907 to 1911 the statutory period of seven years had not expired, but from 1887 to 1911 the common law limitation had expired, the court applied the common law limitation and held that the right to caveat the will was barred.

Forty Years of Laches.—An action to probate a will in solemn form will be dismissed when the petitioner had knowledge of the probate of the will in common form and qualification of the executors more than forty years prior to the action, of their removal from the State many years thereafter, of the appointment of an administrator c. t. a., and of his proceedings for final account and settlement, to which she was a party. In re Beauchamp, 146 N. C. 254, 59 S. E. 687.

Twenty-Three Years of Laches.—The devisee, and those who claim under him, having been in possession of the lands devised for twenty-three years, exercising absolute ownership, to the knowledge of the adversary party seeking to caveat the will, who had for that period of time lived only a short distance from the property: It is held, as a matter of law, that the right to caveat the will had, under the circumstances, been forfeited. In re Dupree, 163 N. C. 256, 79 S. E. 611.

Who May Caveat the Will.—The right to interfere in a question of probate belongs to a party in interest, which must mean some person whose rights will be affected by the probate of the instrument to the prejudice of the party. In re Thompson, 178 N. C. 540, 542, 101 S. E. 107; Armstrong v. Baker, 31 N. C. 109, 114.

In this state it takes only one interested person to caveat a will, under this section, and it becomes the duty of the clerk thereupon to bring in interested persons, under § 31-33. When they come in they may align themselves as they will. Bailey v. McLain, 215 N. C. 150, 154, 1 S. E. (2d) 372. For comment on this case, see 18 N. C. Law Rev. 76.

Persons Having Pecuniary Interest May Caveat. — This section, in authorizing a person "who is otherwise interested in sustaining or defeating the will" to appear and, at his election, to support or oppose its probate, means only a person who has a pecuniary interest to protect, either as an individual or in a representative capacity. An interest resting on sentiment or sympathy, or on any basis other than the gain or loss of money or its equivalent, is not sufficient, but any one who would be deprived of property in the broad sense of the word, or who would become entitled to property by the probate of a will, is authorized to appear and be heard upon the subject. In re Thompson, 178 N. C. 540, 542, 101 S. E. 107.

Person Interested May Caveat—Laches.—A person interested is entitled under this section to file a caveat to a will probated in common form and require the propounder to prove the will in solemn form, if the right has not been lost by acquiescence or unreasonable delay; as to whether laches can be imputed without notice of probate in common form, Quaere. In re Hedgepeth, 150 N. C. 245, 63 S. E. 1025.

Creditor of the Heir May Caveat.—It is also held, in Bloor v. Platt, 78 Ohio St., 49, and in 33 Mass. 265, that a creditor of the heir, who has acquired a lien, may caveat the will, the court saying in the Ohio case: "Any person who has such a direct, immediate, and legally ascertained pecuniary interest in the devolution of the testator's estate as would be impaired or defeated by the probate of the will, or be benefited by setting aside the will, is 'a person interested.'" In re Thompson, 178 N. C. 540, 543, 101 S. E. 107.

Purchasers from Heirs May File Caveat.—The purchasers of land from the heirs of the deceased owner "are interested in the estate" within the intent and meaning of this section, and thereunder, and under the rule of justice, reason, and authority, are entitled to caveat a will brought forward many years thereafter, and admitted to probate in common form. In re Thompson, 178 N. C. 540, 101 S. E. 107.

Heirs Not Cited under § 31-33.—The heirs at law of a deceased testator whose will is duly probated and who have no knowledge of proceedings to caveat the will, and who were not cited under the provisions of § 31-33, are not estopped to file a second caveat to the paper-writing, nor bound by the former judgment therein sustaining the validity of the paper-writing propounded. Mills v. Mills, 195 N. C. 595, 143 S. E. 130.

Proceedings Transferred to Civil Issue Docket.—Where a caveat to a will is duly filed, with the required bond, etc., at the same time the paper-writing is offered for probate, it is required of the clerk to transfer the proceedings to the civil-issue docket for the trial of the issue of devisavit vel non, and all further steps are stayed in the matter until its final adjudication, except such as may be necessary for the preservation of the estate. In re Little's Will, 187 N. C. 177, 121 S. E. 453.

Nature of Proceedings.—The proceedings in the matter of the probate of a will is summary and in rem, and at first it is ordinarily ex parte, and the contest of it is begun by a caveat under this section. In re Haygood's Will, 101 N. C. 574, 578, 8 S. E. 222.

Caveat a Proceeding in Rem—Nonsuit.—Proceedings to caveat a will are in rem involving the rights of the beneficiaries as named in the will, and those of the opposing heirs at law or next of kin depending upon the answer to the issues of devisavit vel non, and there being no parties, strictly speaking, upon whom a judgment as of nonsuit may be taken, the issue should be tried in the due course and practice of the court, and a motion of nonsuit should be denied. In re Will of Westfeldt, 188 N. C. 702, 125 S. E. 531.

Destroyed Will.—In an action to probate a destroyed holographic will, the propounder must show that the instrument in the handwriting of the deceased and signed by him once existed and was destroyed under circumstances that would defeat an inference of revocation. Upon failure of such proof, there is a failure of the proof of the res and a nonsuit is proper. Hewett v. Murray, 218 N. C. 569, 11 S. E. (2d) 867.

Suspension of Limitation—Application to Caveat Barred.—Chapter 78, Laws 1898, suspending the running of the statute of limitations, has no application to a caveat to a will theretofore barred and for which there was no such statute prior to 1907. In re Beauchamp, 146 N. C. 254, 59 S. E. 687.

Amendments Not Retroactive. — While amendment of 1907, fixes seven years after probate of a will in common form as a limitation, and permits seven years after its ratification as to wills theretofore proven, it will not apply to revive a cause of action theretofore barred. In re Beauchamp, 146 N. C. 254, 59 S. E. 687.

What Propounder Must Prove upon Caveat Being Filed.—Upon the filing of a caveat to a will probated in common form the propounder must prove the will per testes in solemn form, and the burden is upon him to show (1) the formal execution as prescribed by statute; (2) the contents, if the original was not produced; (3) the loss of the original will or that it had not been destroyed by the testator or with his consent or procurement. In re Hedgepeth, 150 N. C. 245, 63 S. E. 1025.

When an issue of devisavit vel non is raised by caveat, it is tried in the Superior Court in term by a jury. Upon such trial the propounder carries the burden of proof to establish the formal execution of the will. This he must do by proving the will per testes in solemn form. In re Rowland, 202 N. C. 373, 375, 162 S. E. 897.

Application to Clerk within the Time No Excuse, When.—Where parties seeking to caveat a will have forfeited their right to do so by unreasonable delay and acquiescence, the mere fact that they had applied to the clerk several times when their rights would have been allowed, and the clerk declined and refused to entertain the application because the parties failed to give a proper bond as required by law, does not affect the result, for no caveat is properly constituted until the statutory requirements are met; and if it had been so constituted, the absence of notice issued in reasonable time works a discontinuance. In re Dupree, 163 N. C. 256, 79 S. E. 611.

Probate in Common Form Valid Until Set Aside.—The probate of a will in common form is valid until set aside, and the right to require probate in solemn form may be forfeited, either by acquiescence or unreasonable delay, now seven years, under this section. In re Beauchamp, 146 N. C. 254, 59 S. E. 687.

Effect of Infancy, Absence from the State.—Where the common law presumption of forfeiture of the right to caveat a will from unreasonable delay or acquiescence prevails, the matters of infancy, (coverture,) and absence from the State are not necessarily controlling, but they are considered as relevant facts bearing on the question as to whether the presumption will prevail, and more especially is this true in its application to the absence from the State of a party claiming under the will, when he had first remained in possession of the property for more than a year and the cause is one where jurisdiction could be acquired by publication. In re Dupree, 163 N. C. 256, 79 S. E. 611.

Caveat in Spite of Outstanding Life Estate.—One who is authorized by law to caveat a will is not requried to await the falling-in of an outstanding life estate, and such time is not excluded from the computation of period limited in which a caveat to a will may be filed. In re Will of Witherington, 186 N. C. 152, 119 S. E. 11.

Good Faith Claimants Protected until Probate Attacked.—All persons who claim in good faith under a will which has been duly probated in common form as provided by statute are protected by its provisions, until the probate is attacked by a caveat proceeding instituted as provided by this section. Whitehurst v. Hinton, 209 N. C. 392, 403, 184 S. E. 66.

Applied in In re Will of Roediger, 209 N. C. 470, 184 S. E. 74.

§ 31-33. Bond given and cause transferred to trial docket.—Upon any caveator giving bond, with sufficient surety to be approved by the clerk, in the sum of two hundred dollars, payable to the propounder of the will, conditioned to pay all costs which may be adjudged against such caveator in the superior court by reason of his failure to prosecute his suit with effect, or deposit the money or give a mortgage in lieu of such bond, or shall file affidavits and satisfy the clerk of his inability to give such bonds or secure such costs, the clerk shall transfer the cause to the superior court for trial; and he shall also forthwith issue a citation to all devisees, legatees or other parties in interest within the state, and cause publication to be made, for four weeks, in some newspaper printed in the state, for nonresidents to appear at the term of the superior court, to which the proceeding is transferred and to make themselves proper parties to the proceeding, if they choose. At the term of court to which such proceeding is transferred, or as soon thereafter as motion to that effect shall be made by the propounder, and before trial, the judge shall require any of the persons so cited, either those who make themselves parties with the caveators or whose interests appear to him antagonistic to that of the propounders of the will, and who shall appear to him to be able so to do, to file such bond within such time as he shall direct and before trial; and on failure to file such bond the judge shall dismiss the proceeding. (Rev., s. 3136; Code, s. 2159; 1899, c. 13; 1901, c. 748; C. C. P., s. 447; 1909, c. 74; C. S. 4159.)

Bringing in Interested Persons.—In this state it takes only one interested person to caveat a will under § 31-32 and it becomes the duty of the clerk, under this section, to bring in interested persons. When they come in they may align themselves as they will. Bailey v. McLain, 215 N. C. 150, 1 S. E. (2d) 372

Trial by Jury.—The probate of a will in solemn form is a proceeding in rem, and the issue raised by the caveat must be tried by a jury and the propounder and caveator may not waive trial by jury and submit the issue to the court under an agreed statement of facts. In re Will of Roediger, 209 N. C. 470, 184 S. E. 74.

Cited in Mills v. Mills, 195 N. C. 595, 598, 143 S. E. 130.

§ 31-34. Prosecution bond required in actions to contest wills.—When any action is instituted to contest a will the clerk of the superior court will require the prosecution bond required in other civil actions: Provided, however, that provisions for bringing suit in forma pauperis shall also apply to the provisions of this section. (1937, c. 383.)

Editor's Note.—The purpose of this section is not entirely clear. The usual method of contesting a will is to file a caveat, either at the time the will is presented for probate, or within seven years thereafter. This is said to be neither a civil action nor a special proceeding, but is in the nature of a proceeding in rem, in which the propounder has the burden of establishing the formal execution of the will, and the caveators the burden of showing that it is not a valid will. It may be the purpose of the statute to require the propounder to give bond, when a caveat is filed, so as to have the costs secured by both parties. 15 N. C. Law Rev. 352.

§ 31-35. Affidavit of witness as evidence. — Whenever the subscribing witness to any will shall die, or be absent beyond the state, it shall be competent upon any issue of devisavit vel non to give in evidence the affidavits and proofs taken by the clerk upon admitting the will to probate in common form, and such affidavit and proceedings before the clerk shall be prima facie evidence of the due and legal execution of said will. (Rev., s. 3121; 1899, c. 680, s. 2; C. S. 4160.)

§ 31-36. Caveat suspends proceedings under will.—Where a caveat is entered and bond given, the clerk of the superior court shall forthwith issue an order to any personal representative, having the estate in charge, to suspend all further proceedings in relation to the estate, except the preservation of the property and the collection of debts and payment of all taxes and debts that are a lien upon the property of the decedent, as may be allowed by order of the clerk of the superior court, until a decision of the issue is had. (Rev., s. 3137; Code, s. 2160; C. C. P., s. 448; 1927, c. 119; C. S. 4161.)

Editor's Note.—By the amendment of 1927 (Pub. Laws, c. 119), the representative can not be made to stop, upon a caveat filed, the payment of all taxes and debts that are a lien upon the property of the decedent, as may be allowed by order of the clerk of the superior court.

Purpose of Section.—This section is manifestly intended in cases to which it is applicable, to dispense with the necessity of appointing an administrator pendente lite, and confers very similar forms upon the executor, and more especially when he has entered upon the duties of his office before the caveat is entered. Syme v. Broughton, 86 N. C. 153. The prosecution of the action in order to the collection of the debts, is evidently sanctioned by the statute and in furtherance of the purpose of its enactment. Hughes v. Hodges, 94 N. C. 57, 59.

The filing of a caveat suspends further proceedings in the administration of the estate, but does not deprive the executor or executrix of the right to the possession of the assets of the estate. Elledge v. Hawkins, 208 N. C. 757, 182 S. E. 468.

Effect of Caveat upon Rights and Duties of Representative.—The executor is not divested of all his representative powers; nor is the first probate vacated absolutely when the issue touching the will is made up to be tried; nor is there a necessity meanwhile for the appointment of an administrator pendente lite. The function of the executor is suspended only until the controversy is ended, and he is still required to take care of the estate in his hands and may proceed in the collection of debts due the deceased. Randolph v. Hughes, 89 N. C. 428; In re Palmer, 117 N. C. 133, 134, 138, 23 S. E. 104.

In the observance of the mandate to preserve the property the executor may operate and manage the property in the exercise of that degree of care, diligence and honesty which he would exercise in the management of his own property, or he may institute a civil action in which all persons having an interest are made parties and request the court in its equity jurisdiction to authorize such operation, or he may apply to the clerk in his probate jurisdiction for such authorization. Hardy & Co. v. Turnage, 204 N. C. 538, 168 S. E. 823.

Office of Representative Continued.—The proper construction of this section is that after probate is granted in common form and there is an executor who acts or an administrator with the will annexed appointed, his office is intended to be continued during a controversy about the will, and he has all the power and is subjected to all the liabilities of an administrator or an executor, except that his right to dispose of the estate according to the provisions of the will is suspended until the final determination of the suit. In re Palmer, 117 N. C. 133, 134, 137, 23 S. E. 104.

Effect of Absence of Order to Suspend Proceeding.—In the absence of an order to suspend further proceedings upon the filing of a caveat, as provided by this section, the acts of the executor in filing a petition or proceeding with the sale of the land were not void nor were the rights of purchasers affected. Carraway v. Lassiter, 139 N. C. 145, 51 S. E. 968.

May Be Sued, Sell Land, But May Not Pay Legacies.—An executor, or administrator c. t. a., after the will is proved in common form, may be sued, and by leave of court may sell property to pay debts, but cannot pay legacies or exercise other special powers given in the will, where issues upon a caveat are pending; the right to execute the will is suspended until the determination of the suit. Syme v. Broughton, 86 N. C. 153.

§ 31-37. Superior court clerks to enter notice of caveat on will book; final judgment also to be entered.—Wherever a caveat is filed with the clerk of the superior court of any county in the state to any last will and testament which has been admitted to probate in said office, it shall be the duty of such clerk, and he is hereby directed to give notice of the filing of such caveat by making an entry upon the page of the will book where such last will and testament is recorded, evidencing that such caveat has been filed and giving the date of such filing. When such caveat and proceedings resulting therefrom shall have resulted in final judgment with respect to such will, the clerk of the court shall make a further entry upon the page of the will book where such last will and testament is recorded to the effect that final judgment has been entered, either sustaining or setting aside such will. (1929, c. 81.)

Art. 7. Construction of Will.

§ 31-38. Devise presumed to be in fee.—When real estate shall be devised to any person, the same shall be held and construed to be a devise in fee simple, unless such devise shall, in plain and express words, show, or it shall be plainly intended by the will, or some part thereof, that the testator intended to convey an estate of less dignity. (Rev., s. 3138; Code, s. 2180; R. C., c. 119, s. 26; 1784, c. 204, s. 12; C. S. 4162.)

Editor's Note.—The trend of judicial decisions for years has been toward relaxing the rigor of the common-law rule, that without words of inheritance no estate of greater dignity than for life could be created by deed. While devises were held, after the statute of wills, to be but a species of alienation, the courts construed them more liberally than deeds; and where, without the use of the word "heirs," as by inserting the word "forever," the testator indicated an intent to pass an estate in fee, it was held, on the ground that testators were generally inops consilii, that the instrument should be so interpreted as to effectuate his purpose. Then followed the liberal principle incorporated in this section to the effect that a devise of real estate to any person should be held to be a devise in fee, unless it plainly appears from some part of the will that the testator intended to convey an estate of less dignity.

The liberal tendency of the age in reference to deeds culminated in the enactment of section 39-1, providing the same rule of construction for deeds as for devises. Vickers v. Leigh, 104 N. C. 248, 257, 10 S. E. 308.

The common-law rule that a devise without words of perpetuity or limitation conveyed a life estate only unless there is a manifest intention to convey the fee has been changed by this section. Henderson v. Western Carolina Power Co., 200 N. C. 443, 157 S. E. 425.

No technical words of conveyance are required in wills. Alston v. Davis, 118 N. C. 202, 24 S. E. 15; Keith v. Scales, 124 N. C. 497, 505, 514, 32 S. E. 809.

Intent of Testator Controls Interpretation.—The intent of the testator as gathered from the entire will controls its interpretation; and this rule applies to the construction of this section when it appears that the testator devised certain lands without the words of inheritance, and that his intent, gathered from a separate item of the will, was to create a defeasible estate in the first taker, contingent upon his dying at any time, whether before or after the death of the testator, leaving issue surviving him. Rees v. Williams, 165 N. C. 201, 81 S. E. 286.

The presumption established by this section that a devise of land shall be construed in fee, etc., gives way to the intent of the testator as gathered from the proper construction of the instrument as a related whole. Roberts v. Saunders, 192 N. C. 191, 134 S. E. 451.

Thus under a devise to the testator's wife of all of his "estate real and personal," and by a later paragraph all of the rest of the testator's property "as above stated" during her widowhood, and should she remarry her dower "according to law": It was held only a life estate, according to the testator's intent, is given to his widow, and her conveyance of a fee-simple title is ineffectual, the statutory presumption of a fee-simple title being inoperative. Roberts v. Saunders, 192 N. C. 191, 134 S. E. 451.

Where the testator, after bequeathing or devising property to a person, expresses a wish or desire as to its use or disposition, such expression will not be construed to create a trust in the legatee or devisee unless it clearly appears from the instrument as a whole that testator so intended, since the devise or bequest will be deemed absolute in the absence of a clearly expressed intention to convey an estate of less dignity, but precatory words will create a trust when it appears from the instrument as a whole that the testator so intended, provided testator has pointed out with sufficient clearness and certainty both the subject matter and objects of the intended trust. Brinn v. Brinn, 213 N. C. 282, 195 S. E. 793.

Unrestricted Devise Passes Fee.—The uniform holding, since the passage of this section has been that an unrestricted devise of real estate passes the fee. Barbee v. Thompson, 194 N. C. 411, 412, 139 S. E. 838.

A testator devised to his daughters, B. and M., all of his real estate after the death of his widow, and also to his daughter T. an equal life interest therein with B. and M., "or so long as the said T. may remain a widow." Upon the death of the testator's widow, B. and M. took in remainder a fee-simple estate, the intent of the testator being to provide for T., who remained unmarried and is now deceased, during her widowhood. Barbee v. Thompson, 194 N. C. 411, 139 S. E. 838.

A devise of lands to the wife of the testator for life, and at her death or remarriage to their two children, by name, for their natural lives for the heirs of their bodies: Held, after the death of the widow, the devise is not a trust created in the children as trustees for the "heirs of their bodies," and the devise not falling within the rule in Shelly's case, and there being no expression in the will to show an intent of the testator to create an estate of less degree than fee, it constitutes an estate tail, converted by our statute into a fee simple. Washburn v. Biggerstaff, 195 N. C. 624, 143 S. E. 210.

A devise of real estate to the testator's son for his own use and benefit with the expressed intent that it should vest in him absolutely with full right to dispose of it, with limitation over should he die without children surviving, if not disposed of by him during his life, under the provisions of this section, the devise being without clause limiting the estate to one of less dignity, the devisee took a fee-simple title thereto, and could convey a good title to the purchaser. Lineberger v. Phillips, 198 N. C. 661, 153 S. E. 118.

The rule that a general devise will be construed to be in fee, applies only when the language employed by testator fails to show a clear intent to convey an estate of less dignity. Hampton v. West, 212 N. C. 315, 193 S. E. 290.

An unrestricted devise of real estate passes the fee, but a general devise of realty does not pass the fee when it clearly appears from the language of the will that the testator intended to convey an estate of less dignity. Strickland v. Johnson, 213 N. C. 581, 197 S. E. 193.

A devise will be construed to be in fee simple unless an intention to convey an estate of less dignity is apparent from the will, and regard will be had to the natural objects of the testator's bounty, and the testator's intention as gathered from the whole instrument will be given effect unless it is contrary to some rule of law or public policy. Jolley v. Humphries, 204 N. C. 672, 169 S. E. 417.

Under this section the fee generally passes upon a devise of the proceeds of land when an intention to separate the income from the principal is not expressed, or where the devise is general and the devisee is given the power of disposition, or a limitation over is made of such part as may not be disposed of by the first taker. Hambright v. Carroll, 204 N. C. 496, 168 S. E. 817.

In construing wills the courts will endeavor to ascertain the intent of the testator as expressed in the words used, and in cases of doubt resort may be had to the usual canons of interpretation, and a devise will be construed to be in fee unless it appears from the will that the testator intended to convey an estate of less dignity. Bell v. Gillam, 200 N. C. 411, 157 S. E. 60.

A general devise to testator's wife with subsequent items providing that one-half the estate "remaining" at her death should go to his adopted son in fee, and the other half, in the event the wife did not dispose of the residue of the estate by will, to go to the children of L., is held to show an intent to convey an estate of less dignity than a fee simple to testator's wife, rebutting the presumption that the general devise to the wife should be construed to be in fee, the power of disposition of part of the estate, at least, being limited to disposition by will, and the widow does not have the power to convey the entire estate by deed in fee simple. Hampton v. West, 212 N. C. 315, 193 S. E. 290.

Devise for "Use and Benefit without Let or Hinderance."—Where testator left property in trust with power in his wife to demand that trustee turn over property to her "for her own use and benefit without let or hinderance," upon such demand and compliance therewith, the wife takes and can convey a fee simple, notwithstanding a further provision in the will that a third person should take a life estate in property remaining in the hands of trustees at the wife's death. O'Quinn v. Crane, 189 N. C. 97, 126 S. E. 174.

Devise with Power of Full Management and Control, etc.—A devise to the wife of all of the testator's property, real, personal or mixed, with full management and control thereof during her natural life; that she shall enjoy the full benefit thereof with power to sell and dispose of it at her discretion, and that it was the testator's will and desire that she shall devise whatever property she has not thus disposed of during her natural life, or the proceeds thereof, to the person who has been the "kindest to us in aiding and comforting us in our old age," it was held, that under the provisions of this section the wife acquired a fee-simple title. Weaver v. Kirby, 186 N. C. 387, 119 S. E. 564.

Devise with Full Power of Disposal.—A devise to a husband with full power of its disposal, but on certain conditions any part undisposed of by him to go to a nephew, vests a fee simple in the husband. Roane v. Robinson, 189 N. C. 628, 127 S. E. 626; Heefner v. Thornton, 216 N. C. 702, 6 S. E. (2d) 506.

Devise Absolutely as Testator Held Himself.—A devise and bequest to the testator's wife of all of his estate, real or personal, wherever located or however held, including that held at the time of his death, absolutely as he held it himself, declaring that she should not be considered as holding it in trust "technically so called, to be enforced by the judge or decree of any court other than her own conscience, judgment, and affection shall prompt her to so regard it": It was held the devise and bequest to the widow, under the clear terms of the will, was in fee absolute. Fellowes v. Durfey, 163 N. C. 305, 79 S. E. 621.

Fee Simple Defeasible upon a Condition. — An estate "loaned" to testator's daughter R. during her natural life and at her death "I lend all of the" designated land "to the lawful heirs of her body, and to the lawful begotten heirs of their bodies if any," standing alone, would convey the fee simple title, but with the further expression, "in case she should die leaving no lawful issue of her body then I give all the above described land to my son J., and his lawful heirs," the estate is defeasible in the event of the death of R. "leaving no lawful issue of her body." Jarman v. Day, 179 N. C. 318, 102 S. E. 402.

Where a testator devises realty to a grandson, and in the event of death of the latter without children, then the land to descend to other grandchildren, such devises vest a fee simple estate in the first devisee, defeasible only on condition that he dies without leaving heirs of his body. Whitfield v. Garris, 131 N. C. 148, 42 S. E. 568; Whitfield v. Garris, 134 N. C. 24, 45 S. E. 904.

Fee Simple with Power of Appointment.—A devise to A, and to such persons as he shall appoint, vests the absolute property in A, without an appointment. But if it be to him for life and after his death to such person as he shall appoint, he must make an appointment in order to entitle that person to anything. The express life estate to him repels the implication of a fee simple for himself. Levy v. Griffis, 65 N. C. 236, 239.

Same—Trust in Favor of Married Women.—A devise to a trustee in trust for the sole and separate use of a married woman with a power given to her of appointing the estate in fee by deed or will, will vest the trust in her in fee under this section. Levy v. Griffis, 65 N. C. 236.

Vested Remainder to Be Divested upon Condition.—A devise of lands to K. "his lifetime, then to go to" G. and M., "and if they should die without leaving bodily heirs, then to go to the Flow Heirs". It was held, after the falling in of the life estate, G. and M. take the fee in the remainder defeasible upon their dying without leaving "bodily heirs," in which event it would go to the ultimate devisees, upon the principles of a shifting use operating by way of an executory devise. Kirkman v. Smith, 174 N. C. 603, 94 S. E. 423.

Trust in Devised Lands—Precatory Words.—For precatory words used in a will to be regarded as mandatory to create a trust in lands devised, the intention of the testator to that effect must clearly appear by interpretation of the instrument, for otherwise these words must be given the ordinary significance of those of that character, both under our modern decisions and this section providing that a devise of land shall be construed to be in fee, unless the terms of the will clearly shows the testator's intent to pass an estate of less dignity. Springs v. Springs, 182 N. C. 484, 109 S. E. 839.

An unrestricted devise followed by a provision that in the event the devisee died intestate, testator wished such devisee's share to descend to her children, vests the fee in the devisee, the precatory words being repugnant to the estate previously devised and insufficient to limit or divest it. Croom v. Cornelius, 219 N. C. 761, 14 S. E. (2d) 799.

Conflicting Expressions—Which Controls.—Where a testator devises all of his estate to his wife, clearly and unmistakably in fee, a different intent may not be inferred from subsequent expressions used in the will. Fellowes v. Durfey, 163 N. C. 305, 79 S. E. 621.

Conflicting Interest—General Interest Prevails.—The provisions of this section, while laying down a rule of construction, still leave the question of the intention of the testator open for construction, and where there is a particular, and a general paramount interest apparent in the same will, and they clash, the general interest must prevail. Leeper v. Neagle, 94 N. C. 338.

Section Does Not Apply to Devise to Trustee.—Where a devise created no interest in certain lands in favor of testatrix' husband, but devised the lands to him in an active trust for the purpose of carrying out the wishes of her father for the care of his widow, this section has no application to the devise to the husband as trustee in an active trust with direction for the vesting of the lands in her heirs upon the termination of the trust. Stephens v. Clark, 211 N. C. 84, 189 S. E. 191.

Devise Creating a Life Estate.—In Alexander v. Alexander, 210 N. C. 281, 186 S. E. 319, it was held that the devise created an estate limited at most to the life of the widow, and did not convey to the widow a fee simple, notwithstanding the provisions of this section and notwithstanding the rule that a gift of an estate to a person generally or indefinitely with power of disposition ordinarily carries the fee, since it is apparent from the words of the devise that testator did not intend to confer the fee simple.

Void Restraint on Alienation.—Where a restraint on alienation was declared void, the devise was unrestricted and vested the fee in the devisee. Williams v. McPherson, 216 N. C. 565, 5 S. E. (2d) 830.

Applied in Morris v. Waggoner, 209 N. C. 183, 183 S. E. 353.

Stated in Early v. Tayloe, 219 N. C. 363, 13 S. E. (2d) 609; Perry v. Bassenger, 219 N. C. 838, 15 S. E. (2d) 365.

§ 31-39. Probate necessary to pass title; recordation in county where land lies; rights of innocent purchasers.—No will shall be effectual to pass real or personal estate unless it shall have been duly proved and allowed in the probate court of the proper county, and a duly certified copy thereof shall be recorded in the office of the superior court clerk of the county wherein the land is situate, and the probate of a will devising real estate shall be conclusive as to the execution thereof, against the heirs and devisees of the testator, whenever the probate thereof, under the like circumstances, would be conclusive against the next of kin and legatees of the testator: Provided, that the probate and registration of any will shall not affect the rights of innocent purchasers for value from the heirs at law of the testator when such purchase is made more than two years after the death of such testator, unless the will has been fraudulently withheld from probate. (Rev., s. 3139; Code, s. 2174; R. C., c. 119, s. 20; 1784, c. 225, s. 6; 1915, c. 219; C. S. 4163.)

Cross Reference.—As to further provisions relative to wills fraudulently withheld from probate, see § 31-12.

Probate an Indispensable Prerequisite.—The probate of a will in the proper court is an indispensable prerequisite to its validity as a conveyance of real or personal estate. Osborne v Leak, 89 N. C. 433; Paul v. Davenport, 217 N. C. 154, 7 S. E. (2d) 352.

No Statute of Limitation to Probate Will.—There is no statute of limitations as to when a will may be admitted to probate and section 47-18 has no application to wills: the probate, when proved, allowed and recorded, as the statute requires, becomes effective and relates back to the death of the devisor, passing the title from that date, avoiding all disposition or conveyances of the property by the heirs contrary to the provisions of the will, unless the claimants are protected by the statute of limitations or some recognized equitable principle. Cooley v. Lee, 170 N. C. 18, 86 S. E. 720.

Section Not Retroactive as to Recordation.—This section requiring copies of wills to be recorded in the county where the devised lands are situate, is prospective and refers only to the wills proved after November, 1, 1883—the time when the Code went into effect. Curles v. Smith, 91 N. C. 172.

Statute of Limitations Where Right of Purchasers Involved.—Under this section prior to the amendment by Laws of 1915, there was no limitation as to the time when a will could be probated and recorded, the ordinary registration acts having no application to wills; they became effective from the death of the testator, ordinarily passing the title to devisees from that date against all dispositions or conveyances from the heirs to the contrary. Barnhardt v. Morrison, 178 N. C. 563, 101 S. E. 218.

Same—Amendment Not Retroactive.—The amendment of this section by the laws of 1915 is prospective in effect, and the right of the devisees, under the section prior to the amendment, to have unlimited time to probate the will will not be affected except from the effective date of the amendment. Barnhardt v. Morrison, 178 N. C. 563, 101 S. E. 218. That is the devisees will have two years after the effective date of the amendment to have their will probated.—Ed. Note.

§ 31-40. What property passes by will.—Any testator, by his will duly executed, may devise, bequeath, or dispose of all real and personal estate which he shall be entitled to at the time of his death, and which, if not so devised, bequeathed, or disposed of, would descend or devolve upon his heirs at law, or upon his executor or administrator; and the power hereby given shall extend to all contingent, executory, or other future interest in any real or personal estate, whether the testator may or may not be the person or one of the persons in whom the same may become vested, or whether he may be entitled thereto under the instrument by which the same was created, or under any disposition thereof by deed or will; and also to all rights of entry for conditions broken, and other rights of entry; and also to such of the same estates, interests, and rights respectively, and other real and personal estate, as the testator may be entitled to at the time of his death, notwithstanding that he may become entitled to the same subsequently to the execution of his will. (Rev., s. 3140; Code, s. 2140; R. C., c. 119, s. 5; 1844, c. 88, s. 1; C. S. 4164.)

After-Acquired Lands—Devisability under English Statute.—As the statutes of devises, 32 and 34 Henry VIII., declares that "a man having lands may devise them," lands acquired subsequent to the devise do not pass by it, although the devisor expressly refers to all the lands he might have at his death; for at the time of the devise he had not the lands. Jiggitts v. Maney, 5 N. C. 258. This case was decided in 1809; under this section the contrary rule is established.—Ed. Note.

A conveyance of "all the property I possess," where there is no apparent motive for making an exception, conveys all property the party owned. Hollowell v. Manly, 179 N. C. 262, 265, 102 S. E. 386.

Right of Entry for Condition Broken.—"And also to all rights of entry for conditions broken," etc., evidently means rights of entry for conditions broken in the lifetime of the testator, and where he had the right of entry while living. Church v. Young, 130 N. C. 8, 12, 40 S. E. 691.

Same—Condition Broken during Lifetime of Testator.—Where a church receives an absolute fee in land, subject to be defeated only by the breach of a condition, and this condition is not broken until after the death of the grantor and a daughter, neither the grantor nor the daughter have any estate in the land (before the breach of the condition, the testator having a mere possibility of reverter) at the time of their death which can be willed or inherited, and upon breach of the condition the estate goes to the heirs at law of the grantor. Church v. Young, 130 N. C. 8, 40 S. E. 691.

Possibility of Reverter Not Devisable.—A mere possibility of reverter cannot be subject of a devise. Church v. Young, 130 N. C. 8, 9, 40 S. E. 691; Hollowell v. Manly, 179 N. C. 262, 265, 102 S. E. 386.

Where a will is susceptible to two reasonable constructions, one disposing of all of the testator's property, and the other leaving part of the property undisposed of, the former construction will be adopted and the latter rejected, there being a presumption against partial intestacy. Holmes v. York, 203 N. C. 709, 166 S. E. 889.

§ 31-41. Will relates to death of testator. — Every will shall be construed, with reference to the real and personal estate comprised therein, to speak and take effect as if it had been executed immediately before the death of the testator, unless a contrary intention shall appear by the will. (Rev., s. 3141; Code, s. 2141; R. C., c. 119, s. 16; 1844, c. 88, s. 3; C. S. 4165.)

The General Rule Expounded.—This general rule seems to be established, that where a testator uses general terms, as "all of my estate" or "all of my lands or real estate," then the devise will speak at the date of the death; but, where he refers to a specific subject of gift, with sufficient particularity in the description of the specific subject of it, showing that an object in existence at the date of his will was intended, referring to the existing state of things at the date of the will and not at his death, then the operation of the general rule is excluded. The death is a prospective event, but the date of the will refers to actual conditions. Hines v. Mercer, 125 N. C. 71, 74, 34 S. E. 106.

Exception to General Rule.—Ordinarily a will will be construed as though executed immediately prior to testator's death, and it is only when the will describes a specific subject of gift with sufficient particularity to show that an object in existence at the date of the execution of the will was intended that the general rule is excluded. Tyer v. Meadows, 215 N. C. 733, 3 S. E. (2d) 264.

Section Relates to Subject Matter, and Not the Objects of the Will.—This section, making the will speak from the death, relates to the subject matter of disposition only, and does not in any manner interfere with the construction in regard to the objects of the gift. The reason for this is that the objects of the testator's bounty were not found within the mischiefs which were intended to be prevented by the statute. Robbins v. Windley, 56 N. C. 286; Hines v. Mercer, 125 N. C. 71, 74, 34 S. E. 106.

This section has no retroactive effect, and does not apply to wills made prior to its enactment, though the testator dies subsequent to its enactment. Such wills, with reference to the property they devise, speak as of the date of their execution, and not as of the date of testator's death under the rule of construction promulgated by this section. Williamson v. Williamson, 58 N. C. 142.

Devise of "the Whole of My Lands" Passes After-Acquired Property.—A devise of "the whole of my lands" to devisees, includes land acquired by the testator after the publication of his will when no intention to the contrary appears. A subsequent clause in the will, directing "my other property of every kind not before mentioned to be sold," refers to other personal property. Edwards v. Warren, 90 N. C. 604.

Effect of Will Speaking as of Time of Testator's Death.—Inasmuch as a will speaks as of the time of testator's death, a devise by O. of her "undivided interest and property in the estate of the late G. C." passes no such part of the distributive share in such estate as has been collected and received by O., for, immediately upon its payment to O., it became her property and ceased to be a part of the estate of G. C. Aydlett v. Small, 115 N. C. 1, 20 S. E. 163.

Designation of Quantity of Land Does Not Prevent Operation of Rule.—Where a testator devised his lands south of a certain line, "containing by estimation two hundred acres,' and subsequently he purchased other lands south of the line, the reference to the number of acres did not prevent the latter lands being included in the devise. Brown v. Hamil ton, 135 N. C. 10, 47 S. E. 128.

Land under Contract of Purchase after Execution of Will.—In In re Champion, 45 N. C. 246, the devise was to testator's wife: Item 1: "All my real estate, consisting of several lots in Shelby," etc., and in item 2: "All of my personal estate of whatever nature." After the date of the will he contracted to purchase another tract, but had not paid for it at his death: it was held that his rights in the unpaid for land passed to his wife, and it was put on the ground that looking at the whole instrument, the intention to give the whole estate to his wife was manifest. Hines v. Mercer, 125 N. C. 71, 75, 34 S. E. 106.

§ 31-42. Lapsed and void devises pass under residuary clause.—Unless a contrary intention shall appear by the will, such real estate or interest therein as shall be comprised or intended to be comprised in any devise in such will contained which shall fail or be void by reason of the death of the devisee in the lifetime of the testator, or by reason of such devise being contrary to law or otherwise incapable of taking effect, shall be included in the residuary devise (if any) contained in such will: Provided, there shall be no lapse of the devise or legacy by reason of the death of the devisee or legatee during the life of the testator, if such devisee or legatee would have been an heir at law or distributee of such testator had he died intestate, and if such devisee or legatee shall leave issue surviving him; and if there is issue surviving, then the said issue shall have the devise or bequest named in the will. (Rev., s. 3142; Code, s. 2142; R. C., c. 119, s. 7; 1844, c. 88, s. 4; 1919, c. 28; C. S. 4166.)

In the Absence of Statute Heirs Prevail over Residuary Devise.—In the absence of statute, upon general principles, the heir at law is favored as much as possible, even to the detriment of a residuary devisee; and, accordingly, a specific devise lapsing by the death of a devisee, devolves upon the "heir" and not the residuary legatee, in fact, whether a devise lapsed or was void ab initio, the residuary devise does not absorb it. Holton v. Jones, 133 N. C. 399, 403, 45 S. E. 765.

Rights of Collateral Heirs.—Where the owner of real and personal property executed a will devising and bequeathing all his property, both real and personal, to his wife, the collateral heirs at law of the testator are entitled to the real property, the devise to the wife having lapsed by reason of her prior death, and the provisions of this section, not applying to prevent such lapse of the devise, since the wife would not have been an heir at law of testator had she survived him, but the children of the wife by a prior marriage are entitled to the personalty, since the wife would have been a distributee of the personal estate of her husband had she survived him, and this section providing that in such case the legacy should not lapse, but should go to the surviving issue of the legatee, the statute clearly recognizing the distinction between real and personal property for the purposes of devolution. Farnell v. Dongan, 207 N. C. 611, 178 S. E. 77.

Section a Prototype of English Statute.—This section enacted in 1844, is a copy of the English statute upon the same subject. It will be observed that it provides for such devises as shall fail or be void: (1) by reason of the death of the devisee during the lifetime of the testator; (2) by reason of such devise being contrary to law; (3) or otherwise incapable of taking effect. Holton v. Jones, 133 N. C. 399, 402, 45 S. E. 765.

This section should not be construed with § 31-44.—Neither section is ambiguous and they are not interrelated. Beach v. Gladstone, 207 N. C. 876, 877, 178 S. E. 546.

Construction of Residuary Clause in General.—In a specific gift, you must look to see whether that particular item is included. The question is whether it is included or not; but in a residuary gift large enough in its language to comprehend residue, the question is, not what is included, but what is excluded; and you must find words sufficiently large, sufficiently definite, sufficiently distinct, to enable you to say that some item is excluded, so that, to use the language of one of the authorities, what hitherto has purported to be the residuary gift is reduced to the level of a specific gift, and ceases to be a residuary gift. Faison v. Middleton, 171 N. C. 170, 173, 88 S. E. 141.

Construction of Residuary Clause to Prevent Intestacy.—A residuary clause in a will should be construed so as to prevent an intestacy as to any part of the testator's estate, unless there is an apparent intent to the contrary, plainly and unequivocally expressed in the writing. Faison v. Middleton, 171 N. C. 170, 88 S. E. 141.

Intestacy Not Favored.—No one supposes that he has failed in his intention to dispose of all of his property by his will, and the courts should endeavor to make out such an intention and to uphold the testamentary plan, so that the testator may not, as to some of his estate, have died intestate. Faison v. Middleton, 171 N. C. 170, 174, 88 S. E. 141.

Whether a clause is a residuary clause is not dependent upon any particular form of expression but upon the intention of the testator, and where a will provides that after the termination of a life estate that the whole estate should be reduced to cash and, after payment of certain specific bequests, distributed among a specific class, where the legacy of one of the class lapses by the death of the legatee prior to the testator's death, the amount of such legacy is thrown into the fund for distribution among the class named, and it does not go to the next of kin of the legatee. Stevenson v. Wachovia Bank, etc., Co., 202 N. C. 92, 161 S. E. 728.

"All of the Residue" Embraces Personalty and Realty.—General words in a residuary clause of a will, "all of the residue," etc., embrace every species of property, whether real or personal, owned by the testator at his death, unless restricted by the context. Faison v. Middleton, 171 N. C. 170, 88 S. E. 141.

Effect of Failure to Name Devisee.—A devise of land "to my . . . . . ." without naming the devisee, followed by a residuary clause of the will, "that all of the residue of my estate be sold, and if there should be any surplus over the payment of debts and expenses, that such surplus be equally divided and paid over" to certain named persons: it was held, the failure to name the devisee brings the devise within the terms of the statute as to void devises, or those incapable of taking effect, and the property devised will go to the residuary legatees, and not to the heirs at law. Faison v. Middleton, 171 N. C. 170, 88 S. E. 141.

Lapsed Devise for Misdescription.—A general residuary bequest carries lapsed and void legacies, and property which is the subject of a devise which fails by reason of a misdescription. 40 Cyc., 1563 to 1570; Gardner on Wills, 418; Faison v. Middleton, 171 N. C. 170, 172, 88 S. E. 141.

Subject-Matter of Void Legacy Is Included in Residuary Legacy.—Under the provisions of this section, the property which is the subject-matter of a void legacy, is included within the residuary legacy provided by the will, and should be delivered by the executor to the residuary legatees.

Wilmington Sav., etc., Co. v. Cowan, 208 N. C. 236, 238, 180 S. E. 87.

Lapse of Shares of Some of the Residuary Legatees.—Where the testator has named several beneficiaries in a residuary clause, and it appears upon the face of the will that several of these names have been run through with a pen, and the intention of the testator to revoke has been established, the beneficiaries whose names have been thus erased taking nothing, and the whole estate, under the residuary clause, goes to the others therein named together with such legacies as may have lapsed. Barfield v. Carr, 169 N. C. 574, 86 S. E. 498.

Rule Applied in Absence of Contrary Intention Only.—A lapsed devise of lands will not fall within the residuary clause of a will, under this section, where a contrary intent appears from the construction of a will itself; and where the testator has specifically devised his lands, making ample provisions for his widow, and gives her, in the residuary clause, "all other property not herein specified," and the use of the word "property," with the expression "not herein specified," shows the testator's intent that a lapsed devise of the realty should not fall within the residuary clause, but will go to the testator's next of kin instead of those of the widow or her devisees under her will. Howell v. Mehegan, 174 N. C. 64, 93 S. E. 438.

Legacy Not Lapsed by Fact That Legatee Predeceased Testator.—In Beach v. Gladstone, 207 N. C. 876, 178 S. E. 546, a judgment that a legacy did not lapse by reason of fact that legatee predeceased testator is affirmed, it appearing that legatee would have been distributee of testator had she survived him.

§ 31-43. General gift by will an execution of power of appointment.—A general devise of the real estate of the testator, or of his real estate in any place or in the occupation of any person mentioned in the will, or otherwise described in a general manner, shall be construed to include any real estate, or any real estate to which such description shall extend, as the case may be, which he may have power to appoint in any manner he may think proper; and shall operate as an execution of such power, unless a contrary intention shall appear by the will; and in like manner a bequest of the personal estate of the testator, or any bequest of personal property, described in a general manner, shall be construed to include any personal estate, or any personal estate to which such description shall extend, as the case may be, which he may have power to appoint in any manner he may think proper, and shall operate as an execution of such power, unless a contrary intention shall appear by the will. (Rev., s. 3143; Code, s. 2143; R. C., c. 119, s. 8; 1844, c. 88, s. 5; C. S. 4167.)

Cross Reference.—See also, § 31-4.

Power Not Exercised in Express Terms—Construction of Entire Will.—Where the execution by will of a power is not exercised in express terms by reference to the power or the subject, a construction must be given by looking to the whole instrument and giving effect to the intent therein manifested. Johnston v. Knight, 117 N. C. 122, 23 S. E. 92; Walsh v. Friedman, 219 N. C. 151, 13 S. E. (2d) 250.

Residuary Devise Executes Power, Unless Contrary Intention Shown.—Unless there is something to show a contrary intention on the part of a testator, a general residuary devise will operate as an execution of a power to dispose of property by will. Johnston v. Knight, 117 N. C. 122, 23 S. E. 92.

Where the donee of a power to dispose of property by will to certain persons devises the property to such persons by a residuary clause, without referring to the power, the devise will be considered an intentional and not an accidental exercise of the power. Id.

§ 31-44. Gifts to children dying before testator pass to their issue.—When any person, being a child or other issue of the testator, to whom any real or personal estate shall be devised or bequeathed for any estate or interest not determinable at or before the death of such person, shall die in the lifetime of the testator, leaving issue, and any such issue of such person shall be living at the death of the testator, such devise or bequest shall not lapse, but shall take effect and vest a title to such estate in the issue surviving, if there be any, in the same manner, proportions and estates as if the death of such person had happened immediately after the death of the testator, unless a contrary intention shall appear by the will. (Rev., s. 3143; Code, s. 2143; R. C., c. 119, s. 8; C. S. 4168.)

Former Law.—Prior to the year 1816, the law was such that if a devise or bequest were made by a testator to his child, and such child died in his lifetime, leaving issue, the devise or legacy would lapse and fall into the residuum, if there were any residuary clause in the will; or, if there were none, would be intestate property, and descend to the heirs-at-law, or be distributed among the next of kin of the testator, according to the nature of the property. Smith v. Smith, 58 N. C. 305, 307.

Section Not Intended for Benefit of Deceased Child's Creditors.—This section giving the legacy intended for a deceased child to his or her children, where such child died in the lifetime of the testator, was held not to be intended for the benefit of the creditors of such deceased child. Smith v. Smith, 58 N. C. 305.

Where Motive of Devise was Dependent upon Devisee's Surviving Testator.—Where it appeared that the sole motive with a testator for leaving the greater part of his estate to a son was that the latter should live with him and help him pay his debts, and also treat his parents with "humanity and kindness," and such son died in the lifetime of the testator, it was held, that the devise lapsed and that the son's interest in the condition was not "real or personal estate" within the meaning of this section, which gives such estate to the issue of a son dying under such circumstances. Lefler v. Rowland, 62 N. C. 143.

Legatee Not in Existence at Time of Bequest—Section Not Applicable.—This section was intended to apply to a lapsed, and not a void, legacy, and where the legacy is void by reason of the fact that the legatee was not in existence at the time the will was made, his (legatee's) children do not take anything under the will. Scales v. Scales, 59 N. C. 163, 166.

Devise to Brother—Right of Brother's Child.—A devise to a brother who dies before the testator does not come within the provisions of this section as to "a child or other issue of the testator" and lapses by reason of his prior death to that of the testator. Howell v. Mehegan, 174 N. C. 64, 93 S. E. 438. To the same effect see Gordon v. Pendleton, 84 N. C. 98. It is believed that this holding would not be true under the amendment of section 31-42 by the laws of 1919, c. 28, if at the time of the testator's death his brother, had he not died, would have been an heir or distributee at law of the testator. In such event the devise to the brother would not lapse, but would go to the brother's issue if such issue survived his parent and the testator.—Ed. Note.

§ 31-45. After-born children share in testator's estate.—Children born after the making of the parent's will, and whose parent shall die without making any provision for them, shall be entitled to such share and proportion of the parent's estate as if he or she had died intestate, and the rights of any such after-born child shall be a lien on every part of the parent's estate, until his several share thereof is set apart in the manner prescribed in §§ 28-153 to 28-158. (Rev., s. 3145; Code, s. 2145; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 62; C. S. 4169.)

Editor's Note.—See 12 N. C. Law Rev. 402, for note on "Inheritance by Child Adopted after Execution of Adopting Parent's Will."

Common Law and Civil Law Rules.—At common law, the subsequent birth of a child did not work a revocation of the parent's will; but the civil law adopted and applied a different rule, which apparently was based upon the presumed oversight or inadvertence of the parent in providing for an existing or a contingent situation. It has been suggested that the object of the law is to secure the moral influence of having before the mind of the testator a contingent event so momentous as the birth of a child. Ellis v.

Darden, 11 L. R. A. (Ga.), 51. Christian v. Carter, 193 N. C. 537, 137 S. E. 596.

Section Not Intended to Direct a Parent to Make Provision for Child.—This section is construed as not intending to control a parent as to the provision he should make for his child, but to apply when by inadvertence or mistake the after-born child has not been provided for. Unless the omission was intentional, or provision is made for the child, either under the will or some settlement or provision ultra, the after-born child takes his share, and the statute applies whether there was one or more children. Flanner v. Flanner, 160 N. C. 126, 75 S. E. 936.

"Without Making Any Provision" Construed.—The true meaning of the section has been held in Meares v. Meares, 26 N. C. 192, and King v. Davis, 91 N. C. at pp. 142, 147, to be that "without making any provision" is not intended to be construed to mean that there must be a gift of certain property or thing for the children, for that would be merely adopting the popular misconception of "cutting one off with a shilling," but that "without making any provision" means any arrangement or circumstances tending to show that the testator had these children in mind when the will was made and without any indication that it was his purpose to disinherit them. Thomason v. Julian, 133 N. C. 309, 310, 45 S. E. 636.

Express Exclusion of Children Tantamount to Making Provision.—A will expressly excluding the children of the testator born after the execution thereof "makes a provision for them" within the meaning of this section and such children do not share in the estate as though the testator had died intestate. Thompson v. Julian, 133 N. C. 309, 45 S. E. 636.

Inadequacy of Provision Immaterial.—If any provision is made for an after-born child, the court cannot say that it is inadequate. The statute only applies when no provision at all has been made. King v. Davis, 91 N. C. 142.

Knowledge of Testator as to Child En Ventre Sa Mere Immaterial.—The beneficent provisions of this section are not affected by the presumptive knowledge of the father, from the condition of his wife, that at the time he made the will he must have anticipated the birth, but upon the fact that the child was born thereafter. Christian v. Carter, 193 N. C. 537, 137 S. E. 596.

It is the subsequent birth, not the father's knowledge, which effects the partial revocation. Id.

Under Section 29-1 and This Section Child Will Inherit Land Subjected to Dower.—A child for whom no provision was made will, under the rule of descent, section 29-1, and under this section, inherit the real estate of which his father dies seized, subjected to the dower of the widow, his mother. Nicholson v. Nicholson, 190 N. C. 122, 129 S. E. 148.

Under this section where there is a devise to a wife "to do with as she thinks best for herself and the children," and a child is born two months after the testator's death, such child is not entitled to a share in the estate but is provided for as one of "the children" under the will in view of rule 7, § 29-1. Rowls v. Durham Realty, etc., Co., 189 N. C. 368, 127 S. E. 254.

Not Applicable to Adopted Children—Illegitimate Children.—This section applies only to natural born children of the testator, and does not apply to adopted children. Sorrell v. Sorrell, 193 N. C. 439, 137 S. E. 306. Illegitimate children subsequently adopted, however, fall within the class of natural children. King v. Davis, 91 N. C. 142.

Entire Will is Not Revoked.—While afterborn children not provided for in the will of their deceased parent may claim by inheritance their part of the estate, under this section, it does not amount to revocation of the entire will. Fawcett v. Fawcett, 191 N. C. 679, 132 S. E. 796.

Division VII. Fiduciaries.

Chapter 32. Fiduciaries.

§ 32-1. Short title.—This chapter may be cited as the Uniform Fiduciaries Act. (1923, c. 85, s. 14; C. S. 1864(d).)

Editor's Note.—This and the following sections constitute the Uniform Fiduciaries Act which was recommended by the national conference of commissioners on uniform state laws in 1922.

The general purpose is to establish uniform and definite rules in place of divers and indefinite rules now prevailing as to constructive notice or breaches of fiduciary obligations, and to facilitate the performance by fiduciaries of their obligations, rather than to favor any particular class of persons dealing with them. In order to prevent occasional breaches of trusts, the courts have sometimes adopted rules which can nevertheless be evaded by dishonest fiduciaries but at the same time seriously hamper honest fiduciaries in the performance of their obligations. Hence the need for regulations overcoming these difficulties and establishing uniformity.

With this general purpose in mind the law is framed so that its application is restricted to the liabilities of the persons dealing with fiduciaries and does not deal with the liabilities of the fiduciaries themselves. It contemplates only situations where the persons dealing with a fiduciary know him to be such so that questions relating to actual or constructive notice of the existence of the trust or other fiduciary obligations are not within the scope of the act. It was suggested by the commissioners that fear that inadequate protection to beneficiaries will result is partially dissipated by the fact that the English courts have adopted similar rules which work well in practice.

It should be observed that in none of the situations dealt with in this act is the standard of due care or negligence made the test of liability. While the act recognizes that there are instances when the person dealing with the fiduciary should be held liable, it proceeds upon the theory that this is true only when acting with actual knowledge or in bad faith, and in such instances only does the person deal with a fiduciary at his own peril.

Same—Prior Law.—Under the law of this State prior to this statute, the law as to the various classes of fiduciaries has varied just a little but it was held very generally that where one accepted the assets of the estate held in trust by the fiduciary in payment of an individual debt, he was charged with notice and considered a party to the wrong, and thus a dealer at his peril. So it has been held that in equity (in the early cases the rule at law was otherwise) the executor or administrator can make no valid sale or pledge of the assets as a security for or in payment of his own debt on the principle that the transaction itself gives the purchaser or mortgagee notice of the misapplication. Powell v. Jones, 36 N. C. 337, 338; Bradshaw v. Simpson, 41 N. C. 243, 246. Although the purchaser in good faith at a sale was protected. Gray v. Armistead, 41 N. C. 74. But it was the rule with respect to trustees that the purchaser must put himself on the footing of having an equal equity with the cestui que trust, and this he cannot do if he has notice, actual or constructive, of the trust; for, as the trustee has no right to sell, the sale amounts to a breach of duty, in which the purchaser, of necessity, participates, without reference to the application of the fund. Gray v. Armistead, 41 N. C. 74, 78. And where a party unites with a trustee in a breach of trust, or there were circumstances to put him on guard and awaken suspicion, he was required to repay to the trust fund any of its assets which he received in consequence of the breach of trust. Dancy v. Duncan, 96 N. C. 111, 1 S. E. 455.

To make the purchaser of a legal title trustee for the cestui que trust, it was not necessary that he should have notice of the particular trust. It was sufficient if he had notice that the person, from whom he bought, was but a naked trustee. He ought to have inquired and searched out the cestui que trust. Maples v. Medlin, 5 N. C. 220.

So it was, of course, held that where a guardian transferred a note, payable to him as guardian, without indorsement, to one of his creditors as security for his own debt, and became insolvent, the assignee, though he paid a valuable consideration for the note, having had notice of the trust, was, at the suit of the ward, restrained from collecting the note. Lockhart v. Phillips, 36 N. C. 342.

And where a bond was, on its face, payable to a guardian for the benefit of his ward, this was prima facie notice to one, who took an assignment of it, that it was the property of the ward and subject to his equities. More especially was this the case, where the bond was taken in payment of the personal debt of the guardian, and where it was taken at an oppressive discount. Exum v. Bowden, 39 N. C. 281.

It was settled law, therefore, that when a person got from an administrator, or other person acting in a fiduciary capacity, the trust fund or any part of it as payment of the trustee's own debt, that person could not hold the fund from the cestui que trust any more than the original trustee could have done. Gray v. Armistead, 41 N. C. 74; Wilson v. Doster, 42 N. C. 231; Hendrick v. Gidney, 114 N. C. 543, 546, 19 S. E. 598.

The purchasers from fiduciaries who had no right to sell were not protected even though they had no actual or constructive knowledge of the trust, it would seem, because the purchase itself was presumed to make them parties to the wrong and charge them with notice. And even when the fiduciary had a right generally to sell, much less than actual or particular knowledge in detail was sufficient to convert a person, who co-operated with a dishonest trustee in an act amounting to a breach of trust, into a trustee. Constructive notice from the possession of the means of knowledge, had that effect, although the party was actually ignorant, but ignorant merely because he did not investigate. It was well settled, that if anything appeared to a party calculated to attract attention or stimulate inquiry, the person was affected with knowledge of all that the inquiry would have disclosed. Buning v. Ricks, 22 N. C. 130, 134.

From what has been said in this note, it is evident that the law in this State was materially modified, although in the instance of a person dealing with a fiduciary known to be violating his trust or in bad faith the rule is not changed.

§ 32-2. Definition of terms.—1. In this chapter unless the context or subject-matter otherwise requires:

"Bank" includes any person or association of persons, whether incorporated or not, carrying on the business of banking.

"Fiduciary" includes a trustee under any trust, expressed, implied, resulting or constructive, executor, administrator, guardian, conservator, curator, receiver, trustee in bankruptcy, assignee for the benefit of creditors, partner, agent, officer of a corporation, public or private, public officer, or any other person acting in a fiduciary capacity for any person, trust or estate.

"Person" includes a corporation, partnership, or other association, or two or more persons having a joint or common interest.

"Principal" includes any person to whom a fiduciary as such owes an obligation.

2. A thing is done "in good faith" within the meaning of this chapter when it is in fact done honestly, whether it be done negligently or not. (1923, c. 85, s. 1; C. S. 1864(e).)

Cross Reference.—As to what constitutes the business of banking, see § 53-1.

Origin of Definitions—"Bank."—The definition of "banks" contained in this section was taken from the Uniform Negotiable Instruments Act, section 25-1.

Same—"Persons".—The word "persons" as here defined is a combination of the definitions in the Negotiable Instruments Law, G. S. § 25-1, the Uniform Warehouse Receipt Act, G. S. § 27-2, the Uniform Stock Transfer Act, G. S. § 55-102, the Uniform Partnership Act, G. S. § 59-32, and section 76 of the Uniform Sales Act (which latter act has not been adopted in North Carolina).

Same—"Fiduciary" and "Principal."—The definitions of "fiduciary" and "principal" are both new with this act. However, it is well to observe that two classes of fiduciaries are contemplated: (1) Those holding property in their own name, and (2) those dealing with property which is held in the name of the principal. Different provisions are necessarily made in some of the following sections in regard to these two classes of fiduciaries.

Same—"Good Faith."—The definition of "good faith" is taken verbatim from section 76 of the Uniform Sales Act; the Uniform Warehouse Receipt Act, G. S. § 27-2; section 52 of the Uniform Bills of Lading Act; the Uniform Stock Transfer Act, G. S. § 55-102. "Good Faith" is not defined in the N. I. L. sections 25-1 et seq.

It will probably be of interest to point out that in the tentative draft of this section by the National Commissioners it ended with a definition of "bad faith" in the following language: "And a thing is done in the bad faith when it is in fact done dishonestly." This was omitted by a vote of the National Conference. The N. I. L. contains no definition of "bad faith."

The courts have held that the test of good faith is the subjective test of honesty, and not the objective test of due care. See Brannan's Neg. Inst. Laws, pp. 187 et seq.

§ 32-3. Application of payments made to fiduciaries.—A person who in good faith pays or transfers to a fiduciary any money or other property which the fiduciary as such is authorized to receive, is not responsible for the proper application thereof by the fiduciary; and any right or title acquired from the fiduciary in consideration of such payment or transfer is not invalid in consequence of a misapplication by the fiduciary. (1923, c. 85, s. 2; C. S. 1864(f).)

Editor's Note.—It was pointed out by the commissioners drafting this act in submitting it to the conference that it applies only when the fiduciaries are authorized to receive the property or money transferred. Under such circumstances it applies to all transfers and not to payments of money only. It also applies to all fiduciaries and not merely trustees.

This section is based upon statutes existing in England, Alabama, Colorado, Delaware, Kansas, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Montana, New Jersey, New York, North Dakota, Ohio, Rhode Island, South Dakota, and Wisconsin.

It was stated in 1 N. C. Law Rev. 291 that this section accords with the North Carolina decisions, Tyrrell v. Morris, 21 N. C. 559; Gray v. Armistead, 41 N. C. 74; Kadis v. Weil, 164 N. C. 84, 80 S. E. 229, unless a change results from the elimination by the definition of "fiduciary" in section 32-2 of certain distinctions hitherto recognized between some classes of fiduciaries. Exum v. Bowden, 39 N. C. 281; Gray v. Armistead, supra.

§ 32-4. Registration of transfer of securities held by fiduciaries.—If a fiduciary in whose name are registered any shares of stock, bonds or other securities of any corporation, public or private, or company or other association, or of any trust, transfers the same, such corporation or company or other association, or any of the managers of the trust, or its or their transfer agent, is not bound to inquire whether the fiduciary is committing a breach of his obligation as fiduciary in making the transfer, or to see to the performance of the fiduciary obligation, and is liable for registering such transfer only when registration of the transfer is made with actual knowledge that the fiduciary is committing a breach of his obligation as fiduciary in making the transfer, or with knowledge of such facts that the action in registering the transfer amounts to bad faith. (1923, c. 85, s. 3; C. S. 1864(g).)

Editor's Note.—This section is based upon a Massachusetts statute which was passed in 1918 and amended in 1926 relating to trustees. See Gen. Laws, ch. 203, section 21, Cum. St. ch. 203, section 21. There are similar statutes in Delaware (R. C. 1915, section 3396); Kentucky (St. 1909, section 4169); Pennsylvania (Purdon's Dig. 13 ed. 4850, section 7), and a very recent statute in Illinois.

This section applies only when the stock or securities are registered in the name of the fiduciary and has no application when it is in the name of the principal; nor where registered in the name of the decedent and the executor or administrator wishes to transfer it to his own name or that of a third person. It does not, therefore, interfere with the provisions of the inheritance tax laws.

In submitting this section, the framers called attention to the various practices with respect to the manner of registering stock on the corporation registers. It was pointed out that in England by statute no notice of the trust is registered upon the books of the corporation, that similar provisions are often made in charters, and in the United States provisions are made especially in instruments creating trusts. The commission also denounced the practice of trustees registering stock held in trust in their own names without disclosing the relation, or registering it in the name of the broker to facilitate the transfer.

In cases where it is desirable to make a transfer of securities more difficult in order to reduce the amount of the fiduciaries' bond, it may be done by giving notice to the corporation that the stock shall be transferable only upon proof of certain facts, or only upon an order of the court. After such notice the corporation would be liable if it should improperly register the transfer.

This section appears to change the rule of Baker v. Railroad, 173 N. C. 365, 92 S. E. 170, which required a corporation before registering a transfer of stock held in the name of a fiduciary as such, to inquire whether the fiduciary was committing a breach of trust in making the transfer. 1 N. C. Law Rev. 291.

§ 32-5. Transfer of negotiable instrument by fiduciary.—If any negotiable instrument payable or indorsed to a fiduciary as such is indorsed by a fiduciary, or if any negotiable instrument payable or indorsed to his principal is indorsed by a fiduciary empowered to indorse such instrument on behalf of his principal, the indorsee is not bound to inquire whether the fiduciary is committing a breach of his obligation as fiduciary in indorsing or delivering the instrument, and is not chargeable with notice that the fiduciary is committing a breach of his obligation as fiduciary unless he takes the instrument with actual knowledge of such breach or with knowledge of such facts that his action in taking the instrument amounts to bad faith. If, however, such instrument is transferred by the fiduciary in payment of or as security for a personal debt of the fiduciary to the actual knowledge of the creditor, or is transferred in any transaction known by the transferee to be for the personal benefit of the fiduciary, the creditor or other transferee is liable to the principal if the fiduciary in fact commits a breach of his obligation as fiduciary in transferring the instrument. (1923, c. 85, s. 4; C. S. 1864(h).)

Editor's Note.—This and the two following sections deal with paper drawn or indorsed by fiduciaries.

One of the primary purposes of this section is to bring the rule as to instruments negotiated by or to fiduciaries as to notice of a defect in harmony with the N. I. L., section 25-62. Notwithstanding that section 25-62 provides that, to constitute notice of an infirmity in an instrument or defect in the title of the person negotiating it, the person to whom it is negotiated must have had actual knowledge of the defect or infirmity or knowledge of such facts as to make the taking amount to bad faith, the courts generally have ignored the N. I. L. and held that where the fiduciary relation is shown on its face, the payee or indorsee is bound to make inquiry. But if there is nothing upon the face of the instrument to indicate the relation one may be holder in due course whether negligent or not unless he acted in bad faith. So courts unconsciously substituted the objective test of negligence for the subjective test of the N. I. L. Thus it may be seen that instead of contradicting the N. I. L., these sections supplement it.

North Carolina has followed the uniform application of the N. I. L. See Smathers v. Toxaway Hotel Co., 162 N. C. 346, 78 S. E. 224; 167 N. C. 469, 83 S. E. 844; Setzer v. Deal, 135 N. C. 428, 47 S. E. 466; Ford v. Brown, 114 Tenn. 467, 88 S. W. 1036. And see 1 N. C. L. Rev. 291.

It is worth noting that these sections cover two situations requiring different rules. (1) Where the instrument is given in a transaction not known by the taker to be for the personal benefit of the fiduciary. Under such circumstances the taker is not bound to inquire but the transaction is presumed to be proper and is rebutted only by proof of actual knowledge that it is improper, or proof of bad faith. Under the last two circumstances the taker is liable in either case. To illustrate, if the taker suspects that the fiduciary's action is improper but refrains from investigating, he acts at his own peril. The test should be that of subjective test of bad faith and not that of objective test of negligence. (2) The next situation is where the taker knows the instrument to be given for the personal benefit of the fiduciary. Distinction is made between (a) cases where the instrument is made payable to the principal, or to the fiduciary in his representative capacity, and as such is indorsed in payment of or as security for a personal debt of the fiduciary [this is the case covered by this section]; (b) where the instrument is made or drawn by the fiduciary as such, payable to the personal creditors of the fiduciary, and delivered to such creditors in payment of or as security for the personal debt of the fiduciary on the one hand [this is the situation covered by section 32-6], and (c) cases where the instrument is drawn by the fiduciary on behalf of the principal payable to the fiduciary personally, or by the fiduciary as such to himself personally, and by the fiduciary indorsed to his personal debtor in payment of his personal debt [this is the situation covered by section 32-7]. In (a) and (b) there is strong presumption of improper action, but in (c) it is plausible that the instrument was given to the fiduciary in payment of a just debt owed by the principal, such as salary, commission, reimbursement for expenses, dividends or the like. Therefore in (c) the person taking the instrument in payment is liable only in case he had actual knowledge of the improper action, but in (a) and (b) he is liable unless the fiduciary in fact acted properly. See the discussion in 34 Harv. Law Rev. 454, note 25.

The language of these sections as to bad faith is made to conform to the similar language of bad faith in the N. I. L.

§ 32-6. Check drawn by fiduciary payable to third person.—If a check or other bill of exchange is drawn by a fiduciary as such, or in the name of his principal by a fiduciary empowered to draw such instrument in the name of his principal, the payee is not bound to inquire whether the fiduciary is committing a breach of his obligation as fiduciary in drawing or delivering the instrument, and is not chargeable with notice that the fiduciary is committing a breach of his obligation as fiduciary unless he takes the instrument with actual knowledge of such breach or with knowledge of such facts that his action in taking the instrument amounts to bad faith. If, however, such instrument is payable to a personal creditor of the fiduciary and delivered to the creditor in payment of or as security for a personal debt of the fiduciary to the actual knowledge of the creditor, or is drawn and delivered in any transaction known by the payee to be for the personal benefit of the fiduciary, the creditor or other payee is liable to the principal if the fiduciary in fact commits a breach of his obligation as fiduciary in drawing or delivering the instrument. (1923, c. 85, s. 5; C. S. 1864(i).)

Editor's Note.—See note under section 32-5.

Evidence Sufficient for Jury.—Admissions by defendant that it entered into contracts for the sale of certain lands to an individual and that in payment of the sum due upon the execution of the contracts it accepted checks drawn on the funds of a corporation by the individual as president of the corporation, together with evidence that the individual had no authority to so use the corporate funds, that the corporation was not indebted to him, and that the transaction was not made for the corporation, was sufficient to be submitted to the jury in an action by the receiver of the corporation under the provision of this section. LaVecchia v. North Carolina Joint Stock Land Bank, 218 N. C. 35, 9 S. E. (2d) 489.

Judgment on the Pleadings.—Allegations of defendant's acceptance of a corporate check in payment of individual obligation of the president does not entitle the plaintiff to judgment on the pleadings. LaVecchia v. North Carolina Joint Stock Land Bank, 216 N. C. 28, 3 S. E. (2d) 276.

§ 32-7. Check drawn by and payable to fiduciary.—If a check or other bill of exchange is drawn by a fiduciary as such or in the name of his principal by a fiduciary empowered to draw such instrument in the name of his principal, payable to the fiduciary personally, or payable to a third person and by him transferred to the fiduciary, and is thereafter transferred by the fiduciary, whether in payment of a personal debt of the fiduciary or otherwise, the transferee is not bound to inquire whether the fiduciary is committing a breach of his obligation as fiduciary in transferring the instrument, and is not chargeable with notice that the fiduciary is committing a breach of his obligation as fiduciary unless he takes the instrument with actual knowlege of such breach or with knowlege of such facts that his action in taking the instrument amounts to bad faith. (1923, c. 85, s. 6; C. S. 1864(j).)

Editor's Note.—See note under section 32-5.

§ 32-8. Deposit in name of fiduciary as such.—If a deposit is made in a bank to the credit of a fiduciary as such, the bank is authorized to pay the amount of the deposit or any part thereof upon the check of the fiduciary, signed with the name in which such deposit is entered, without being liable to the principal, unless the bank pays the check with actual knowledge that the fiduciary is committing a breach of his obligation as fiduciary in drawing the check or with knowledge of such facts that its action in paying the check amounts to bad faith.

If, however, such a check is payable to the drawee bank and is delivered to it in payment of or as security for a personal debt of the fiduciary to it, the bank is liable to the principal if the fiduciary in fact commits a breach of his obligation as fiduciary in drawing or delivering the check. (1923, c. 85, s. 7; C. S. 1864(k).)

Cross Reference.—As to deposits made in trust for infants, see § 53-59.

Editor's Note.—This and the three following sections deal with depositories of the funds of fiduciaries.

The purpose of these sections is to lay down uniform rules making banks acting solely as depositories liable only when they have actual knowledge of the fiduciary's breach of duty or when acting in bad faith. Where the bank acts as creditor, however, it is made liable to the same extent as other creditors.

The weight of authority has been to the effect that depositories are not bound to inquire into the fiduciary's authority to make deposits even though made as the fiduciary's personal account. Nor have depositories as a general rule been required to inquire into the purpose for which withdrawals have been made, whether payable to the fiduciary personally or as fiduciary, or to third persons. But a depository has been bound to make inquiry where the fiduciary pays a personal debt out of fiduciary funds deposited in the bank.

This and the two following sections are in accord with the tendency of the North Carolina decisions as indicated in Bank v. Clapp, 76 N. C. 482; Bank v. Insurance Co., 150 N. C. 770, 774, 64 S. E. 902; Miller v. Bank, 176 N. C. 152, 96 S. E. 977. They are also in accord with the general weight of authority. U. S. Fidelity, etc., Co. v. Bank, 77 W. Va. 665, 88 S. E. 109; Duckett v. Natl. Mechanics Bank, 86 Md. 400, 38 Atl. 983. See also 1 N. C. Law Rev. 291.

§ 32-9. Deposit in name of principal. — If a check is drawn upon the account of his principal in a bank by a fiduciary who is empowered to draw checks upon his principal's account, the bank is authorized to pay such check without being liable to the principal, unless the bank pays the check with actual knowledge that the fiduciary is committing a breach of his obligation as fiduciary in drawing such check, or with knowledge of such facts that its action in paying the check amounts to bad faith. If, however, such a check is payable to the drawee bank and is delivered to it in payment of or as security for a personal debt of the fiduciary to it, the bank is liable to the principal if the fiduciary in fact commits a breach of his obligation as fiduciary in drawing or delivering the check. (1923, c. 85, s. 8; C. S. 1864(l).)

Editor's Note.—See note under section 32-8.

§ 32-10. Deposit in fiduciary's personal account. —If a fiduciary makes a deposit in a bank to his personal credit of checks drawn by him upon an account in his own name as fiduciary or of checks payable to him as fiduciary or of checks drawn by him upon an account in the name of his principal if he is empowered to draw checks thereon, or checks payable to his principal and indorsed by him, if he is empowered to indorse such checks, or if he otherwise makes a deposit of funds held by him as fiduciary, the bank receiving such deposit is not bound to inquire whether the fiduciary is committing thereby a breach of his obligation as fiduciary; and the bank is authorized to pay the amount of the deposit or any part thereof upon the personal check of the fiduciary without being liable to the principal, unless the bank receives the deposit or pays the check with actual knowledge that the fiduciary is committing a breach of his obligation as fiduciary in making such deposit or in drawing such check, or with knowledge of such facts that its action in receiving the deposit or paying the check amounts to bad faith. (1923, c. 85, s. 9; C. S. 1864(m).)

Editor's Note.—See note under section 32-8.

§ 32-11. Deposit in names of two or more trustees.—When a deposit is made in a bank in the name of two or more persons as trustees and a check is drawn upon the trust account by any trustee or trustees authorized by the other trustee or trustees to draw checks upon the trust account, neither the payee nor other holder nor the bank is bound to inquire whether it is a breach of trust to authorize such trustee or trustees to draw checks upon the trust account, and is not liable unless the circumstances be such that the action of the payee or other holder or the bank amounts to bad faith. (1923, c. 85, s. 10; C. S. 1864(n).)

Cross Reference.—See note under § 32-8.

Editor's Note.—This section is limited in its application to trustees. It is a general rule that one trustee cannot bind his cotrustee unless authorized by him to do so, and that a trustee can delegate only such of his duties as are ministerial. It is questionable whether or not the drawing of a check is a ministerial duty as a general rule. Probably as to the principal it is, but not as to income. But be that as it may, neither the bank nor payees or other holders are put upon inquiry as to the authority.

This section applies only to trustees and not to other classes of fiduciaries, and its application is limited to checks, according to the opinion of the drafters.

See 1 N. C. L. Rev. 292, to the same effect.

§ 32-12. Cases not provided for in chapter.— In any case not provided for in this chapter the rules of law and equity, including the law merchant and those rules of law and equity relating to trusts, agency, negotiable instruments and banking, shall continue to apply. (1923, c. 85, s. 12; C. S. 1864(p).)

§ 32-13. Uniformity of interpretation. — This chapter shall be so interpreted and construed as to effectuate its general purpose to make uniform the law of those states which enact it. (1923, c. 85, s. 13; C. S. 1864(q).)

Chapter 33. Guardian and Ward.

Art. 1. Creation and Termination of Guardianship.

Art. 2. Guardian's Bond.

Art. 3. Powers and Duties of Guardian.

Art. 1. Creation and Termination of Guardianship.

§ 33-1. Jurisdiction in clerk of superior court.—The clerks of the superior court within their respective counties have full power, from time to time, to take cognizance of all matters concerning orphans and their estates and to appoint guardians in all cases of infants, idiots, lunatics, inebriates, and inmates of the Caswell training school: Provided, that guardians shall be appointed by the clerks of the superior courts in the counties in which the infants, idiots, lunatics, or inebriates reside, unless the guardians be the next of kin of such incompetents or a person designated by such next of kin in writing filed with the clerk, in which case, guardians may be appointed by the clerk of the superior court in any county in which is located a substantial part of the estates belonging to such incompetents. (Rev., s. 1766; Code, s. 1566; R. C., c. 54, s. 2; 1762, c. 69, ss. 5, 7; 1868-9, c. 201, s. 4; 1917, c. 41, s. 1; 1935, c. 467; C. S. 2150.)

Cross Reference.—As to guardianship of insane persons, see § 35-2 et seq.

Editor's Note.—The amendment of 1935 added the proviso at the end of this section.

In General.—The powers which the court of equity formerly had and exercised in regard to orphans and their estates are now conferred upon the clerk of the superior court by this section and section 33-6. Duffy v. Williams, 133 N. C. 195, 197, 45 S. E. 548.

Place of Appointment.—The domicile of an infant is universally held to be the fittest place for the appointment of a guardian of his person and estate, although, for the protection of either, a guardian may be appointed in any state where the person or any property of the infant may be found. Clarke v. Clarke, 178 U. S. 186, 193, 20 S. Ct. 873, 44 L. Ed. 1028.

Under this section the appointment of a guardian in a county other than the one in which the ward's surviving parent resides or the ward's estate is situate is void. Duke v. Johnston, 211 N. C. 171, 189 S. E. 504.

Appointment by Legislature.—An act of the Legislature authorizing a certain person "to act as guardian" of another without giving bond, is constitutional, and is in itself an appointment without intervention of the clerk. Henderson v. Bowd, 116 N. C. 795, 21 S. E. 692.

Matter of Discretion.—The appointment of a guardian is a matter of discretion, the exercise of which cannot be reviewable by the Supreme Court. Battle v. Vick, 15 N. C. 294.

Same—Choice of Infant.—The court in appointing a guardian was not bound by the choice of the minor, but could appoint the person, who, in his discretion, would best perform the duty. Wynne v. Always, 5 N. C. 38; Grant v. Whitaker, 5 N. C. 231.

Person Related to Ward.—Courts are empowered to appoint as guardian such person as they may think proper, without regard to the kinship of the guardian to the ward. Mills v. McAllister, 2 N. C. 303.

Custody of Child.—The jurisdiction of clerks of the superior court in the appointment of guardians of infants, etc., does not extend to a case where the petitioner asks for the custody of a child who had been placed by its mother under the control of another. In re Lewis, 88 N. C. 31.

Removal of Guardian.—A ward may not bring an action in the Superior Court by her next friend to remove her guardian appointed by the clerk under this section. Moses v. Moses, 204 N. C. 657, 169 S. E. 273.

§ 33-2. Appointment by parents; effect; powers and duties of guardian.—Any father, though he be a minor, may, by deed executed in his lifetime and with the written consent and privy examination of the mother, if she be living, or by his last will and testament in writing, if the mother be dead, dispose of the custody and tuition of any of his infant children, being unmarried, and whether born at his death or in ventre sa mere, for such time as the children may remain under twenty-one years of age, or for any less time. Or in case the father is dead and has not exercised his said right of appointment, or has willfully abandoned his wife, then the mother, whether of full age or minor, may do so. Every such appointment shall be good and effectual against any person claiming the custody and tuition of such child or children. Every guardian by deed or will shall have the same powers and rights and be subject to the same liabilities and regulations as other guardians: Provided, however, that in the event it is so specifically directed in said deed or will such guardian so appointed shall be permitted to qualify and serve without giving bond, unless the clerk of the superior court having jurisdiction of said guardianship shall find as a fact and adjudge that the interest of such minor or incompetent would be best served by requiring such guardian to give bond. (Rev., ss. 1762, 1763, 1764; Code, ss. 1562, 1563, 1564; R. C., c. 54; 1762, c. 69; 1868-9, c. 201; 1881, c. 64; 1911, c. 120; Ex. Sess. 1920, c. 21; 1941, c. 26; C. S. 2151.)

Cross References.—As to habeas corpus for custody of children, see §§ 17-39 and 17-40. As to adoption of children, see § 48-1 et seq.

Editor's Note.—In the second sentence of this section the words "or has willfully abandoned his wife" were added by Public Laws, Ex. Sess. 1920, ch. 21. The 1941 amendment added the proviso.

For comment on the 1941 amendment, see 19 N. C. L. Rev. 480.

Rights of Both Parents Recognized.—In this section and in others, the Legislature has recognized the human as well as the relation between parent and child, the paramount and the subordinate, the present and the inchoate, rights of the father and the mother, and has wisely provided that both the parents shall have adequate opportunity to be heard and, except in rare cases, shall give their consent before the legal relation is severed or the domestic circle is broken. Truelove v. Parker, 191 N. C. 430, 436, 132 S. E. 295.

Persons Entitled to Custody.—The father is, in the first instance, entitled to the custody of his children. In re Lewis, 88 N. C. 31. Newsome v. Bunch, 144 N. C. 15, 56 S. E. 509. See also, In re Turner, 151 N. C. 474, 66 S. E. 431.

And this right is superior to the claims of every one, except those to whom he may have committed their custody and tuition by deed, or unless he is found to be unfitted for their care and custody. Latham v. Ellis, 116 N. C. 30, 20 S. E. 1012.

The parents have, prima facie, the right to the custody and control of their infant children as a natural and substantive right not lightly to be denied or interfered with by action of the courts; but this right is not universal and absolute, and may be modified and disregarded by the court when it is made to appear that the welfare of the children clearly requires it. Brickell v. Hines, 179 N. C. 254, 102 S. E. 309; In re Warren, 178 N. C. 43, 100 S. E. 76; Atkinson v. Downing, 175 N. C. 244, 95 S. E. 487; In re Means, 176 N. C. 307, 97 S. E. 39; State v. Burnett, 179 N. C. 735, 102 S. E. 711.

Father Should Not Be Regarded as Wrongdoer When He Acts in Good Faith with Child's Money.—Since under this section the father is natural guardian for his minor children he should not be regarded as a trespasser or a wrongdoer when he acts in good faith with his child's money and makes purchases for its benefit. Lifsey v. Bullock, 11 F. Supp. 728.

Appointment by Deed or Will.—A father can not appoint a guardian for his children, nor impose on any one the duties and obligations of that office, except, pursuant to this section, "by deed executed in his life time, or by his last will and testament, in writing." Peyton v. Smith, 22 N. C. 325.

No one has a right to the guardianship of an infant, except as testamentary guardian or as appointed by the father by deed or by the court. Long v. Rhymes, 6 N. C. 122.

Same—Interpretation.—Where it can clearly be collected from the will of a father that certain persons are thereby appointed to have the custody of the persons and the estate of his children, until they arrive at age, such an appointment will be held to constitute them guardians, as though the appropriate term had been used. Peyton v. Smith, 22 N. C. 325.

Applies Only to Own Children.—A testator cannot appoint a testamentary guardian except to his own children. Camp v. Pittman, 90 N. C. 615.

Same—Grandchildren.—This section, allowing a father to appoint a guardian by deed or will to his children, does not authorize a grandfather so to appoint a guardian for his grandchildren. Williamson v. Jordan, 45 N. C. 46.

§ 33-3. Mother's guardianship on death of father.—In case of the death of the father of an infant, the mother of such child surviving such father shall immediately become the natural guardian of such child to the same extent and in the same manner, plight and condition as the father would be if living; and the mother in such case shall have all the powers, rights and privileges, and be subject to all the duties and obligations of a natural guardian. But this shall not be construed as abridging the powers of the courts over minors and their estates and over the appointment of guardians. (Rev., s. 1765; Code, s. 1565; 1883, c. 364; C. S. 2152.)

Mother Entitled to Custody.—If a child's mother is a suitable person she is entitled to its custody even though some other person may be more suitable. Ashby v. Page, 106 N. C. 328, 11 S. E. 283, citing Mitchell v. Mitchell, 67 N. C. 307.

Same—Cannot Dispose of Child.—It may be questioned, whether in this State a mother can make a disposition of her child, though a minor, so as to confer upon another the right to have the custody and control thereof. In re Lewis, 88 N. C. 31, 33.

§ 33-4. Appointment on divorce of parents.—When parents are divorced and a child is entitled to any estate, the court granting the divorce must certify that fact to the clerk of the superior court, to the end that he may appoint a fit and proper person to take the care and management of such estate, whose powers and duties shall be the same in all respects as other guardians, except that a guardian so appointed shall not have any authority over the person of such child, unless the guardian be the father or mother. (Rev., s. 1770; Code, s. 1571; R. C., c. 54, s. 4; 1838, c. 16; 1868-9, c. 201, s. 9; C. S. 2153.)

Cross Reference.—As to custody of children generally in case of divorce, see § 50-13.

§ 33-5. Appointment when father living.—The clerk of the superior court may appoint a guardian of the estate of any minor, although the father of such minor be living. And the guardian so appointed shall be governed in all respects by the laws relative to guardians of the estate in other cases, but shall have no authority over the person of such minor. (Rev., s. 1771; Code, s. 1572; R. C., c. 54, ss. 4, 7; 1806, c. 707; 1868-9, c. 201, s. 10; C. S. 2154.)

Cross Reference.—As to appointment of guardian when welfare of child within jurisdiction of juvenile court is thereby promoted, see § 110-37.

§ 33-6. Separate appointment for person and estate; yearly support specified; payments allowed in accounting.—Instead of granting general guardianship to one person, the clerk of the superior court may commit the tuition and custody of the person to one and the charge of his estate to another, whenever at any time during minority, inebriety, idiocy or lunacy, it appears most conducive to the proper care of the orphan's, inebriate's, idiot's, or lunatic's estate, and to his suitable maintenance, nurture and education. In such cases the clerk must order what yearly sums of money or other provisions shall be allowed for the support and education of the orphan, or for the maintenance of the idiot, lunatic or inebriate, and must prescribe the time and manner of paying the same; but such allowance may, upon application and satisfactory proof made, be reduced or enlarged, or otherwise modified, as the ward's condition in life and the kind and value of his estate may require. All payments made by the guardian of the estate to the tutor of the person, according to any such order, shall be deemed just disbursements and be allowed in the settlement of his accounts; but for the payment thereof by the one and the receipt thereof by the other merely, no commissions shall be allowed to either, though commissions may be allowed to the tutor of the person on his disbursements only. (Rev., ss. 1767, 1768, 1769; Code, ss. 1567, 1568, 1569; R. C., c. 54, s. 3; 1840, c. 31; 1868-9, c. 201, ss. 6, 7; C. S. 2155.)

Cross References.—As to expenses and disbursements credited to guardian, see § 33-42. As to commissions, see § 33-43.

§ 33-7. Proceedings on application for guardianship.—On application to any clerk of the superior court for the custody and guardianship of any infant, idiot, inebriate, lunatic, or inmate of the Caswell training school, it is the duty of such clerk to inform himself of the circumstances of the case on the oath of the applicant, or of any other person, and if none of the relatives of the infant, idiot, inebriate, lunatic, or inmate of the Caswell training school are present at such application, the clerk must assign, or for any other good cause he may assign, a day for the hearing; and he shall thereupon direct notice thereof to be given to such of the relatives and to such other persons, if any, as he may deem it proper to notify. On the hearing he shall ascertain, on oath, the amount of the property, real and personal, of the infant, idiot, inebriate, lunatic, or inmate of the Caswell training school, and the value of the rents and profits of the real estate, and he may grant or refuse the application, or commit the guardianship to some other person, as he may think best for the interest of the infant, idiot, inebriate, lunatic, or inmate of the Caswell training school. (Rev., s. 1772; Code, s 1620; C. C. P., s. 474; 1917, c. 41, s. 2; C. S. 2156.)

In General.—When a guardian is appointed he must assert his right to the custody of his ward by a civil action against the persons in charge of him, while they in turn, if so advised, can take appropriate steps to set aside the guardianship. In re Parker, 144 N. C. 170, 172, 56 S. E. 878.

Habeas Corpus Not Proper.—Except as between parents, under section 17-39, the right of the custody of a child cannot be determined under the writ of habeas corpus, the object of that writ is to remove an illegal restraint. In re Parker, 144 N. C. 170, 56 S. E. 878.

Application Should Be in Writing.—The interests of minors are under the care of the court, and to the end that the same may be protected in suits brought by or against them, the court should see that the next friend or guardian ad litem be appointed upon due consideration of an application in writing, and not upon a simple suggestion. Morris v. Gentry, 89 N. C. 248, 249.

Effect of Failure of Notice.—Failure to notify the relative in custody of the child of proceedings to appoint a guardian is an irregularity, under this section, which does not render the appointment of the guardian void, though it is not conclusive upon such relative. In re Parker, 144 N. C. 170, 56 S. E. 878.

While the failure to notify the relatives of an alleged incompetent of the hearing to determine her competency is an irregularity, such irregularity does not render the appointment of a guardian in the proceedings void, but gives the relatives an opportunity to attack such appointment, and where, upon such attack, the court finds upon supporting evidence that the guardian appointed is a fit and suitable person, the relatives are not entitled to the removal of the guardian. In re Barker, 210 N. C. 617, 188 S. E. 205.

§ 33-8. Letters of guardianship.—The clerk of the superior court must issue to every guardian appointed by him a letter of appointment, which shall be signed by him and sealed with the seal of his office. (Rev., s. 1773; Code, s. 1621; C. C. P., c. 475; C. S. 2157.)

The appointment of a guardian can be shown only by the records in the office of the clerk of the Superior Court by whom the appointment was made, or by letters of appointment issued by the clerk as required by this section, and parol evidence tending to show appointment is incompetent. Buncombe County v. Cain, 210 N. C. 766, 188 S. E. 399.

§ 33-9. Removal by clerk.—The clerks of the superior court have power, on information or complaint made, at all times to remove guardians and appoint successors, to make and establish rules for the better ordering, managing and securing infants' estates, and for the better education and maintenance of wards; and it is their duty to do so in the following cases:

1. Where the guardian wastes or converts the money or estate of the ward to his own use.

2. Where the guardian in any manner mismanages the estate.

3. Where the guardian neglects to educate or maintain the ward in a manner suitable to his or her degree.

4. Where the guardian is legally disqualified to act as a person would be to be appointed administrator.

5. Where the guardian or his sureties are likely to become insolvent or nonresidents of the state. (Rev., s. 1774; Code, s. 1583; R. C., c. 54, ss. 2, 13; 1762, c. 69; 1868-9, c. 201, s. 20; C. C. P., ss. 470, 476; C. S. 2158.)

Cross References.—As to disqualifications to act as administrator, see § 28-8. As to removal of an administrator, see § 28-32. As to criminal liability for embezzlement, see § 14-90. As to guardian removing from state without appointing process agent, see § 28-187.

Discretion of Clerk.—The choosing of a guardian by orphans in court does not necessarily destroy the authority of the first guardian, especially without notice and some evidence of his abusing the trust reposed in him. But the court may at any time remove a guardian, upon proper cause shown, and in the appointment of a successor has entire discretion. Bray v. Brumsey, 5 N. C. 227.

Removal without Cause Error.—An order by a superior court clerk in a cause pending before him for the removal of a testamentary guardian, where none of the provisions of this section are alleged nor found as a fact by the clerk, is improperly made, and will be set aside upon proceedings properly instituted to that end. Sanderson v. Sanderson, 79 N. C. 369.

Personal Use of Ward's Funds.—The use by a guardian of the funds of his ward for his own use is sufficient to warrant his removal. Ury v. Brown, 129 N. C. 270, 40 S. E. 4.

Funds in Jeopardy.—A testamentary guardian ought not to be removed without a showing of such waste, insolvency, or misconduct that the ward will be unable to recover the balance due on the final settlement. Sanderson v. Sanderson, 79 N. C. 369.

A ward may not bring an action in the Superior Court by her next friend to remove her guardian and appoint another, the Superior Court in such instance being without jurisdiction. Moses v. Moses, 204 N. C. 657, 169 S. E. 273.

Removal beyond State.—Where a guardian to an infant, appointed by a county court in this State, removed to another state, taking with him a part of the property of the infant, the court which made the appointment had the right to remove him without notice, and appoint another in his place. Cooke v. Beale, 33 N. C. 36.

§ 33-10. Interlocutory orders on revocation.—In all cases where the letters of a guardian are revoked, the clerk of the superior court may, from time to time, pending any controversy in respect to such removal, make such interlocutory orders and decrees as will tend to the better securing the estate of the ward, or other party seeking relief by such revocation. (Rev., s. 1775; Code, s. 1607; 1868-9, c. 201, s. 44; C. S. 2159.)

Cross References.—See also, § 36-9 et seq. As to appeal from the clerk's decision, see §§ 36-13 and 36-14. As to final account by the resigning guardian, see §§ 33-41 and 36-15. As to effective date of resignation, see § 36-16. As to appointment of a successor, see § 36-17.

Editor's Note.—In the second sentence of this section the words "or the clerk of the superior court may be appointed receiver of the estate of the ward and if so appointed" were added by Public Laws, 1921, ch. 95.

Liability Continues.—Where permission is given to a guardian by the judge of probate to file an ex-parte final account and turn over his guardianship to another, he is not thereby discharged from liabilities connected with his trust and arising before such resignation. He is still bound to account with the ward, or the succeeding guardian, when so required. Luton v. Wilcox, 83 N. C. 21.

Art. 2. Guardian's Bond.

§ 33-12. Bond to be given before receiving property.—No guardian appointed for an infant, idiot, lunatic, insane person or inebriate, shall be permitted to receive property of the infant, idiot, lunatic, insane person or inebriate until he shall have given sufficient security, approved by a judge, or the court, to account for and apply the same under the direction of the court. (Rev., s. 1777, Code, s. 1573; C. C. P., s. 355; C. S. 2161.)

Cross References.—As to giving bond in surety company, see § 109-17. As to giving a mortgage in lieu of bond, see § 109-24 et seq. As to terms and conditions of bond, see § 33-31. As to corporation acting as guardian without giving bond, see §§ 58-113 and 58-114.

Presumption of Giving of Bond.—When the fact that a guardian was appointed is admitted, a presumption arises that a guardian bond was given, since such a bond is a prerequisite to the appointment. Kello v. Maget, 18 N. C. 414.

Same—No Denial Permissible.—Where there is evidence that one had been appointed and had acted as guardian, neither he nor his administrators can deny that he was guardian on the ground that he had not given bond. Latham v. Wilcox, 99 N. C. 367, 6 S. E. 711.

Omission by the clerk to take the bond required on the appointment of a guardian does not destroy the efficacy of the appointment. Howerton v. Sexton, 104 N. C. 75, 10 S. E. 148, cited in note in 33 L. R. A., N. S., 762.

Liability. — A guardian and his bondsmen are liable for all moneys due his wards which he has collected or ought to have collected. Loftin v. Cobb, 126 N. C. 58, 35 S. E. 230.

Same—Guardian's Administrator Appointed.—Where the administrator of a former guardian himself becomes guardian, he and his guardian bondsmen become liable for any balance due from the solvent estate of the former guardian. Loftin v. Cobb, 126 N. C. 58, 35 S. E. 230.

Necessary Parties to Action on Bond.—Where an assistant clerk of the Superior Court has been appointed guardian of the estate of a minor by the clerk and has given bond and has defaulted, causing loss to the estate of the minor, upon the minor's coming of age he and the new guardian appointed may sue upon the guardianship bond and where he does so neither the clerk of the Superior Court nor his sureties on his bond is a necessary party, so far as his action is concerned. Phipps v. Royal Indemnity Co., 201 N. C. 561, 161 S. E. 69.

§ 33-13. Terms and conditions of bond; increased on sale of realty. — Every guardian of the estate, before letters of appointment are issued to him, must give a bond payable to the state, with two or more sufficient sureties, to be acknowledged before and approved by the clerk of the superior court, and to be jointly and severally bound. Where such bond is executed by personal sureties the penalty in such bond must be double, at least, the value of all personal property and the rents and profits issuing from the real estate of the ward, which value is to be ascertained by the clerk of the superior court by the examination, on oath, of the applicant for guardianship, or any other person, but where such bond shall be executed by a duly authorized surety company, the penalty in such bond may be fixed at not less than one and one-fourth times the value of all personal property and the rents and profits issuing from the real estate of the ward. Provided, however, the clerk of the superior court may accept bond in estates, where the value of all personal property and rents and profits from real estate exceeds the sum of one hundred thousand dollars, in a sum equal to the value of all the personal property and rents and profits from real estate, plus ten per cent of the value of all the personal property and rents and profits from real estate belonging to the estate. The bond must be conditioned that such guardian shall faithfully execute the trust reposed in him as such, and obey all lawful orders of the clerk or judge touching the guardianship of the estate committed to him. If, on application by the guardian, the court or judge shall decree a sale for any of the causes prescribed by law of the property of such infant, idiot, lunatic or insane person, before such sale be confirmed, the guardian shall be required to file a bond as now required in double the amount of the real property so sold, except where such bond is executed by a duly authorized surety company, in which case the penalty of said bond need not exceed one and one-fourth times the amount of said real property so sold. (Rev., ss. 323, 1778; Code, s. 1574; R. C., c. 54, s. 5; 1762, c. 69, s. 7; 1825, c. 1285, s. 2; 1833, c. 17; 1868-9, c. 201, s. 11; 1874-5, c. 214; 1925, c. 131; 1935, c. 385; C. S. 2162.)

Local Modification.—Craven: 1935, c. 147.

Cross References.—As to statute of limitations on the bond, see §§ 1-50 and 1-52. As to renewal of bond, see § 33-16. As to action on bond, see § 33-14 and notes. As to reduction of guardian's bond upon his delivery of registered securities to the clerk of court, see § 36-4. As to liability of clerk for taking insufficient bond, see § 33-18.

Editor's Note.—The proviso in regard to bonds where the value of all personal property and rents and profits exceeds one hundred thousand dollars was added by Public Laws 1925, c. 131.

Chapter 385 of the Public Laws of 1935 changed the penalty as specified in the second sentence in this section and added the exception appearing at the end of the section relating to cases where bond is executed by surety company.

This section contemplates that the bond shall be signed and acknowledged by the guardian as principal, as well as by the sureties. Cheshire v. Howard, 207 N. C. 566, 571, 178 S. E. 348.

Not Strictly a Record.—A guardian's bond is not strictly a record of the court, although the fact that it was made and accepted may be. An action may therefore be brought on the bond after its loss or destruction, without any previous application to the court to restore it as a record. Harrell v. Hare, 70 N. C. 658, 660.

Failure to Insert Penalty.—A guardian's bond is not binding on the sureties thereto where it did not state the amount of the penalty at the time it was signed, and they did not afterwards authorize any one to insert the amount. Rollins v. Ebbs, 137 N. C. 355, 49 S. E. 341.

Failure to Collect Money.—Where a guardian ought to receive a certain amount of money and does not, but takes something else, his own bond for instance, in place of the money, he and his sureties are liable. Avent v. Womack, 72 N. C. 397.

Bank Intermingling Trust Funds.—The bank, as guardian, in not investing the funds of its ward, but intermingling it with other funds of its bank, was faithless to the trust reposed in it; and, under the terms of this section, its bondsman must suffer the loss for such faithlessness. Roebuck v. National Surety Co., 200 N. C. 196, 202, 156 S. E. 531.

Responsible for Laches.—A guardian is responsible on his bond for any loss resulting from his laches in failing to sue. Cross v. Craven, 120 N. C. 331, 333, 26 S. E. 940.

Limit of Liability.—The guardian's bond is not responsible in any way for the realty beyond the rents and profits. Cross v. Craven, 120 N. C. 331, 333, 26 S. E. 940.

Same—Sureties Not Responsible.—The sureties on a guardian's bond are not responsible for the nonpayment of a note given by the guardian, and signed by him as guardian, for the board and tuition of his ward. McKinnon v. McKinnon, 81 N. C. 201.

Cited in Pierce v. Pierce, 197 N. C. 348, 349, 148 S. E. 438.

§ 33-14. To be recorded in clerk's office; action on bond.—The bond so taken shall be recorded in the office of the clerk of the superior court appointing the guardian; and any person injured by a breach of the condition thereof may prosecute a suit thereon, as in other actions. (Rev., s. 1779; Code, s. 1575; R. C., c. 54, s. 5; 1868-9, c. 201, s. 12; C. S. 2163.)

Acceptance without Guardian's Signature Is Irregularity.—The acceptance and approval of the bond by the clerk of the Superior Court without the signature of the guardian as principal is an irregularity, but such irregularity does not render the bond void either as to the principal or as to his sureties. Cheshire v. Howard, 207 N. C. 566, 571, 178 S. E. 348.

Jurisdiction.—The clerk has no jurisdiction of a suit on a guardian's bond. Such suit must be brought in the superior court. Rowland v. Thompson, 65 N. C. 110.

In Name of State.—An action on a guardian's bond should be in the name of the State, for the benefit of the plaintiff, and not in the name of the plaintiff. Carmichael v. Moore, 88 N. C. 29; Williams v. McNair, 98 N. C. 332, 4 S. E. 131, 133; Norman v. Walker, 101 N. C. 24, 25, 7 S. E. 468.

Proper Relator.—Under the old system, a trustee appointed by the court of equity was a proper relator in an action on a guardian's bond to recover a trust fund. Jones v. Brown, 67 N. C. 475, distinguishing State v. Lightfoot, 24 N. C. 306; Governor v. Deaver, 25 N. C. 56; Waugh v. Miller, 33 N. C. 235.

The share of an infant in an estate in the hands of his guardian is capable of being assigned; and, when so assigned, the assignee, and not the infant, is the proper relator in an action on the guardian's bond. Petty v. Rousseau, 94 N. C. 355.

A creditor of a guardian is not the proper relator in an action upon the guardian's bond. McKinnon v. McKinnon, 81 N. C. 201.

Condition Set Out.—In an action on a guardian's bond, it is necessary that conditions of the bond which are alleged to have been broken should be set forth in the complaint. McKinnon v. McKinnon, 81 N. C. 201.

Evidence.—Evidence of a balance in the hands of a guardian as shown of his annual account was admissible against a surety under the Laws of 1884. Loftin v. Cobb, 126 N. C. 58, 35 S. E. 230.

Same—Bond Must Be Proved.—A guardian's bond is not a record, and, before it can be read in evidence in any case, it must be proved like all other bonds. Butler v. Durham, 38 N. C. 589.

Defenses.—The same defense which might be made to an action at law or suit in equity, brought in the name of the ward himself against the guardian, is good in an action brought on the guardian's bond. Clark v. Cordon, 30 N. C. 179.

Same—Prior Settlement. — A full settlement of a suit brought by a ward on a guardian's bond, made after the ward becomes of age, in the presence of the ward's mother, and by the advice of her counsel, and a final judgment thereon, is a bar to a subsequent action on the bond. Dean v. Ragsdale, 80 N. C. 215.

Same—Statute of Limitations.—An action by the ward against the sureties on the bond of the guardian is barred after three years from the time the ward becomes twenty-one years old if the guardian makes no final settlement, and within six years if the guardian makes a final settlement. Self v. Shugart, 135 N. C. 185, 47 S. E. 484. See dissenting opinion.

Amount of Recovery.—In an action upon a guardian's bond the recovery against either the principal or the surety can not exceed the penalty thereof, but should be for the penal sum of the bond, and to be discharged on payment of the damages sustained. Anthony v. Estes, 101 N. C. 541, 8 S. E. 347.

Same—Measure of Damages.—The measure of damages in an action upon a guardian's bond for a failure to perform any duty required of him is the amount of the principal received, with compound interest at six per cent until the ward arrives at full age. Topping v. Windley, 99 N. C. 4, 5 S. E. 14.

§ 33-15. Where several wards with estate in common, one bond sufficient. — When the same person is appointed guardian to two or more minors, idiots, lunatics or insane persons possessed of one estate in common, the clerk of the superior court may take one bond only in such case, upon which each of the minors or persons for whose benefit the bond is given, or their heirs or personal representatives, may have a separate action. (Rev., s. 1780; Code, s. 1576; R. C., c. 54, s. 8; 1822, c. 1161; 1868-9, c. 201, s. 13; C. S. 2164.)

§ 33-16. Renewal of bond every three years; enforcing renewal. — Every guardian shall renew his bond before the clerk of the superior court every three years, during the continuance of the guardianship. The clerk of the superior court shall issue a citation against every guardian failing to renew his bond, requiring such guardian to renew his bond within twenty days after service of the citation; and on return of the citation duly served and failure of the guardian to comply therewith, the clerk shall remove him and appoint a successor: Provided, that this section shall not apply to a guardian whose bond is executed by a duly authorized surety company. (Rev., ss. 324, 1781, 1782; Code, ss. 1581, 1582; R. C., c. 54, s. 10; 1762, c. 69, s. 15; 1868-9, c. 201, ss. 18, 19; 1943, c. 167; C. S. 2165.)

Editor's Note.—The 1943 amendment added the proviso.

Same—Clerk's Liability.—The question of the clerk's liability for failure to enforce the renewal of the guardian's bond has caused some conflicting decisions. In Lee v. Watson, 29 N. C. 289, it was decided by a divided court that, "The clerk and his sureties are responsible for neglect in failing to enforce renewal of the bond, and were bound to make compensation to the orphans for any loss they sustained thereby." Later in Jones v. Biggs, 46 N. C. 364, on the same question a divided court decided that the clerk was not liable. That the clerk and his sureties are not liable was again decided in Sullivan v. Lowe, 64 N. C. 500, the opinion being per curiam, and this is the law today.

Where a guardian gives several successive bonds for the faithful discharge of his trust, the sureties on each bond stand in the relation of cosureties to the sureties on every other bond; the only qualification to the rule being that the sureties are bound to contribution only according to the amount of the penalty of the bond in which each class is bound. Thornton v. Barbour, 204 N. C. 583, 585, 169 S. E. 153; Jones v. Hays, 38 N. C. 502.

§ 33-17. Relief of endangered sureties. — Any surety of a guardian, who is in danger of sustaining loss by his suretyship, may file his complaint before the clerk of the superior court where the guardianship was granted, setting forth the circumstances of his case and demanding relief; and thereupon the guardian shall be required to answer the complaint within twenty days after service of the summons. If, upon the hearing, the clerk of the superior court deem the surety entitled to relief, the same may be granted by compelling the guardian to give a new bond, or to indemnify the surety against apprehended loss, or by the removal of the guardian from his trust; and in case the guardian fail to give a new bond or security to indemnify when required to do so within reasonable time, the clerk of the superior court must enter a peremptory order for his removal, and his authority as guardian shall thereupon cease. (Rev., s. 1783; Code, s. 1606; R. C., c. 54, s. 35; 1762, c. 69, ss. 21, 22; 1868-9, c. 201, s. 43; C. S. 2166.)

Giving New Bond with Other Sureties.—A surety to a guardian's bond is not discharged from his liability by the guardian giving a new bond with other sureties. Jones v. Blanton, 41 N. C. 115.

Liability of New Sureties.—When, under this section, new sureties are ordered to be given, the obligation of the bond given by the new sureties extends to the entire guardianship, retrospective as well as prospective. Such a bond is at least an additional and cumulative security for the ward. Bell v. Jasper, 37 N. C. 597.

Where Counter-Security Given.—Where the sureties of a guardian obtained an order for counter-security, and at that time the guardian owed his ward, and never afterwards returned an account nor made a payment, no presumption of satisfaction at that or any subsequent time arose from the fact that he was then able to pay the sum he owed; and the sureties on the first bond were liable for it, though the order for counter-security expressly released them. Foye v. Bell, 18 N. C. 475.

The clerk is not empowered by any express statute to release sureties, upon bonds approved by him, especially at a time when the principal is in default. This section provides a remedy for dissatisfied sureties upon guardian bonds, but release is not one of the remedies therein contemplated. Thornton v. Barbour, 204 N. C. 583, 587, 169 S. E. 153.

§ 33-18. Liability of clerk for taking insufficient bond.—If any clerk of the superior court shall commit the estate of an infant, idiot, lunatic, insane person or inebriate to the charge or guardianship of any person without taking good and sufficient security for the same as directed by law, such clerk shall be liable, on his official bond, at the suit of the party aggrieved, for all loss and damages sustained for want of security being taken; but if the sureties were good at the time of their being accepted, the clerk of the superior court shall not be liable. (Rev., s. 1784; Code, s. 1614; R. C., c. 54, s. 2; 1762, c. 69, ss. 5, 3; 1868-9, c. 201, s. 51; C. S. 2167.)

In General.—Clerks, and the sureties on their official bonds, are now liable, as the justices were under the old system, for any loss or damages resulting from a failure to take good bonds, and the record of the appointment of the guardian is sufficient evidence of such appointment. Topping v. Windley, 99 N. C. 4, 5 S. E. 14, 17.

Effect of Failure.—The giving of the bonds required of guardians and administrators is not essential to the validity of the appointment itself; the failure to take the bond, however, subjects the officer whose duty it is to see that it is made to the consequences of such omission. Howerton v. Sexton, 104 N. C. 75, 10 S. E. 148.

When Action Lies.—No action can be maintained on the bond given by a clerk conditioned for the faithful performance of his duty, except where there have been such damages sustained as would give the party a right to maintain an action on the case for the neglect of his official duty. Jones v. Briggs, 46 N. C. 364.

§ 33-19. Liability of clerk for other defaults.—If any clerk of the superior court shall willfully or negligently do, or omit to do, any other act prohibited, or other duty imposed on him by law, by which act or omission the estate of any ward suffers damage, he shall be liable therefor as directed in § 33-18. (Rev., s. 1785; Code, s. 1615; 1868-9, c. 201, s. 52; C. S. 2168.)

Editor's Note—Former Provision.—Formerly the clerk was required to make a record of and enter at large on the docket the names of the justices who were present at the granting of a guardianship; and he was also required to make the same entry on the guardian's bond. The purpose of this requirement was to furnish an easy means of proving which of the justices were on the bench in the event that they had been guilty of such negligence in respect to the sureties taken on the bond as to be liable to the action of the infant according to the provisions of the statute. State v. Koonce, 51 N. C. 379, 380.

Art. 3. Powers and Duties of Guardian.

§ 33-20. To take charge of estate. — Every guardian shall take possession, for the use of the ward, of all his estate, and may bring all necessary actions therefor. (Rev., s. 1786; Code, s. 1588; R. C., c. 54, s. 21; 1762, c. 69, s. 3; 1868-9, c. 201, s. 25; C. S. 2169.)

Cross References.—As to power of guardians to lend portions of the estates of their wards, see § 24-4. As to the personal liability of the guardian for stock held for the use of the ward, see §§ 53-40 and 55-65. As to voting as stockholder, see § 55-111. As to income taxes, see §§ 105-139, 105-153, and 105-154. As to payment of taxes, see § 105-412. As to investment and deposit of funds generally, see § 36-1 et seq. As to authority to invest in federal farm loans, see § 53-60; in bonds guaranteed by United States, see § 53-44; in mortgages of federal housing administration, etc., see § 53-45.

In General.—The rule of diligence established by the decided cases is that a guardian in the management of his ward's estate must act in good faith and with that care and judgment that a man of ordinary prudence exercises in his own affairs. Covington v. Leak, 67 N. C. 363; Freeman v. Wilson, 74 N. C. 368, 369; State v. Mebane, 63 N. C. 315; Luton v. Wilcox, 83 N. C. 21, 26.

The rights and powers of guardians are considered as strictly local; and not as entitling them to exercise any authority over the person or personal property of their wards in other states. Lamar v. Micou, 112 U. S. 452, 470, 5 S. Ct. 221, 28 L. E. 751.

Payment of funds to a guardian by Veterans' Bureau under War Risk Insurance Act vests title in the ward and operates to discharge the obligation of the United States. Hence the deposit of the funds in a bank which was duly appointed guardian and which later became insolvent does not entitle the surety on the bank's guardianship bond to a preference for the amount of the deposit, such sums not being an amount due the U. S. Government, the Government having discharged its obligation by payment to the guardian. In re Home Savings Bank, 204 N. C. 454, 168 S. E. 688.

Under this section the guardian can select the forum, as there is no statute to the contrary. Lawson v. Langley, 211 N. C. 526, 530, 191 S. E. 229.

Power to Bind Ward by Contract.—A contract made by a guardian within his authority, will be binding upon his ward upon his attaining full age. United States Mortgage Co. v. Sperry, 138 U. S. 313, 11 S. Ct. 321, 34 L. Ed. 969.

Recovery of Realty.—A guardian having no title to the land of his ward, it is not his duty to sue for the recovery of realty. Cross v. Craven, 120 N. C. 331, 26 S. E. 940.

Guardian May Exchange Property. — A guardian, having personal surety for a debt due to his ward, may exchange that personal for real security; and, if he does it bona fide, he is not responsible to his ward. Christman v. Wright, 38 N. C. 549.

Compromise of Claim.—A ward is not bound by a compromise of his general guardian of the former's claim for damages for a personal injury, unless made with the sanction of the court to which the guardian should account; and in no event when the compromise is due to the gross negligence of the guardian, or in bad faith, and is manifestly unfair to the ward, and for a grossly inadequate consideration; and when such are found to be the facts, legal fraud will be inferred and the compromise will be set aside without a specific finding of actual fraud. Bunch v. Foreman Blades Lumber Co., 174 N. C. 8, 93 S. E. 374.

Statute of limitations upon discovery of fraud, see Johnson v. Pilot Life Ins. Co., 217 N. C. 139, 7 S. E. (2d) 475, 128 A. L. R. 1375.

§ 33-21. How sales and rentals made. — All sales and rentings by guardians shall be publicly made, between the hours of ten o'clock a. m. and four o'clock p. m., after twenty days notice posted at the courthouse and four other public places in the county. But, upon petition by the guardian, the clerk of the superior court of the county in which the land of the ward is situated, or of the county wherein the guardian has qualified, may make an order, on satisfactory evidence, upon the oath of at least two disinterested freeholders acquainted with the said land, that the best interests of the said ward will be subserved by a private renting of said land, allowing the guardian to rent the land privately. The terms of all such rentings shall be reported to said clerk of the superior court and be approved by him. The proceeds of all sales of personal estate and rentings of real property, except the rentings of lands leased for agricultural purposes, when not for cash, shall be secured by bond and good security. (Rev., s. 1788; Code, s. 1590; 1891, c. 83; 1901, c. 97; R. C., c. 54, s. 26; 1793, c. 391; C. S. 2171.)

Public Renting Required.—This section impliedly declares it to be to the interest of the wards to rent the lands publicly. Duffy v. Williams, 133 N. C. 195, 198, 45 S. E. 548.

Same—Not Discretionary with Guardian.—The provisions of this section that all sales or renting of personal and real property by a guardian shall be made publicly, and, upon the terms therein prescribed, are peremptory and leave no discretion to such guardians. Pate v. Kennedy, 104 N. C. 234, 10 S. E. 188.

Same—Purpose of Provision.—The purpose of these precise and stringent regulations is to give notice to the public of the time, place and terms of such "sales and rentings," and thus encourage and promote competition and obtain better prices and higher rents for the property sold or let, and, also, to prevent the exercise of possible bad judgment, imprudence, lack of caution, collusion and fraud on the part of guardians. Pate v. Kennedy, 104 N. C. 234, 236, 10 S. E. 188.

Same—Effect of Violation.—Where a lease by the guardian of his ward's lands was not publicly made, as required by this section, nor approved by the clerk of the superior court, as required by section 33-22, the lessee may not hold the ward's estate liable for the false representation of the guardian's agent as to the value of the leased property for the lessee's purposes, nor for his false warranty thereof. Coxe v. Whitmire Motor Sales Co., 190 N. C. 833, 130 S. E. 841.

Same—Application.—This section, requiring sales by guardians to be publicly made, does not apply to sales made under directions of the superior court in exercise of its general jurisdiction in equity. Barcello v. Hapgood, 118 N. C. 712, 24 S. E. 124. The section restricts the guardian and not the court. Id.

Court May Order Private Sale.—It is not irregular or erroneous to order the sale of an infant's land to be made privately by the guardian. Barcello v. Hapgood, 118 N. C. 712, 24 S. E. 124.

§ 33-22. When lands may be leased. — The guardian may lease the lands of an infant for a term not exceeding the end of the current year in which the infant shall become of age, or die in nonage. But no guardian, without leave of the clerk of the superior court, shall lease any land of his ward without impeachment of waste, or for a term of more than three years, unless at a rent not less than three per centum on the assessed taxable value of the land. (Rev., s. 1789; Code, s. 1591; R. C., c. 54, s. 25; 1762, c. 69, s. 13; 1794, c. 413, s. 2; C. S. 2172.)

Editor's Note.—See note of Coxe v. Whitmire Motor Sales Co., 190 N. C. 838, 130 S. E. 841, under section 33-21.

Not a Limitation on Power of the Court.—This section is a restriction upon the power of guardians but not a limitation on the power of the court; and guardians may lease the real property of their infant wards for a period extending beyond the guardianship or the minority of the wards with the approval of a court of general equity jurisdiction. Coxe v. Charles Stores Co., 215 N. C. 380, 1 S. E. (2d) 848, 121 A. L. R. 959.

§ 33-23. When guardians to cultivate lands of wards. — Where any parent of a minor child qualifies as guardian of such child, and the ward owns or is entitled to the possession of any real estate used or which may be used for agricultural purposes, such guardian may make application to the clerk of the superior court of the county wherein the land is situate for permission to cultivate it, and the petition shall set forth the nature, extent and location of the same. It shall then be the duty of the clerk to appoint three disinterested resident freeholders, who shall go upon the land and, after being sworn to act impartially, assess the annual rental value thereof. The commissioners shall report their proceedings and findings to the clerk within ten days after the notification of their appointment, and if the clerk shall deem the same to be the interest of the ward he shall make an order allowing the guardian to cultivate the land for a term not exceeding three years at the annual rental value assessed by the commissioners to be paid to the ward by the guardian. The term, however, shall not extend beyond the minority of the minor. The commissioners shall receive as compensation for said services the same fees as are allowed commissioners in partition of real estate. (1909, c. 57; C. S. 2173.)

Cross Reference.—As to compensation of commissioners in partition of real estate, see § 1-408.

§ 33-24. Guardians' powers enlarged to permit cultivation of ward's lands or continuation of ward's business.—In addition to the powers given to guardians under the general laws of the State, all guardians may, upon presentation of satisfactory evidence, with approval of the clerk of superior court, which approval must be concurred in by the resident judge or other regular or special judge holding courts in the district, cause lands to be cultivated and make such contracts with reference thereto as said guardian may deem to the best interest of his ward's estate, and under the direction of the clerk of superior court, with the approval of the resident judge or other regular or special judge holding courts in the district, continue to operate any business or business enterprise of his ward and make such contract, agreements, and settlements with reference thereto as the clerk of superior court, with the approval of said resident judge or other regular or special judge holding courts in the district, may determine necessary or find to be to the best interest of the estate. (1935, c. 24.)

Editor's Note.—Section 1-A of Public Laws of 1935, chapter 24, provides that this section shall not affect litigation pending February 8, 1935.

§ 33-25. Guardians and other fiduciaries authorized to buy real estate foreclosed under mortgages executed to them.—On application of the guardian or other fiduciary of any idiot, inebriate, lunatic, non compos mentis or any person incompetent from want of understanding to manage his own affairs for any cause or reason, or any minor or infant, or any other person for whom such guardian or fiduciary has been appointed, by petition, verified upon oath, to the superior court, showing that the purchase of real estate is necessary to avoid a loss to the said ward's estate by reason of the inadequacy of the amount bid at foreclosure sale under a mortgage or deed of trust securing the re-payment of funds previously loaned the mortgagor by said guardian or other fiduciary, and that the interest of the ward would be materially promoted by said purchase the proceeding shall be conducted as in other cases of special proceedings; and the truth of the matter alleged in the petition being ascertained by satisfactory proof, or by affidavit of three disinterested freeholders over twenty-one years of age who reside in the county in which said land lies, a decree may thereupon be made that said real estate be purchased by such person; but no purchase of real estate shall be made until approved by a judge of the superior court, nor shall the same be valid, nor any conveyance of the title made, unless confirmed and directed by a judge, and then only in compliance with the terms and conditions set out in said order and judgment. (1935, c. 156.)

§ 33-26. Plate and jewelry to be kept. — All plate and jewelry shall be preserved and delivered to the ward at age, in kind, according to weight and quantity. (Rev., s. 1791; Code, s. 1597; 1895, c. 74; 1868-9, c. 201, s. 34; C. S. 2175.)

Cross Reference.—As to a mortgage to guardian, see § 45-19.

No Action between Administrators.—The administrator of a deceased ward is not entitled to recover, in an action against the administrator of the deceased guardian, moneys which came into the guardian's hands as proceeds of real estate belonging to the ward sold under a decree of court for partition. Allison v. Robinson, 78 N. C. 222.

§ 33-28. Collection of claims; duty and liability.—Every guardian shall diligently endeavor to collect, by all lawful means, all bonds, notes, obligations or moneys due his ward when any debtor or his sureties are likely to become insolvent, on pain of being liable for the same. (Rev., s. 1795; Code, s. 1593; R. C., c. 54, s. 23; 1762, c. 69, s. 10; 1868-9, c. 201, s. 30; C. S. 2177.)

Cross References.—As to compound interest on obligations due to guardians, see § 24-4. As to criminal liability of guardian for embezzlement of funds, see § 14-90.

General Liability.—A guardian is liable not only for what he does receive, but for what he ought to receive; and if he ought to receive a certain amount of money and does not, but takes something else, his own bond for instance, in the place of money, he and his sureties are liable. Avent v. Womack, 72 N. C. 397.

Same—Diligence and Good Faith.—A guardian is responsible, not only for what he receives, but for all he might have received by the exercise of ordinary diligence and the highest degree of good faith. Armfield v. Brown, 73 N. C. 81.

A guardian, who acted in good faith and was not guilty of culpable negligence, was held not to be responsible for omitting to collect a note during the late war, when it appeared that both of the two obligors were solvent during the war, and were made insolvent by its results. Love v. Logan, 69 N. C. 70.

Need Not Resort to Extraordinary Remedies.—Guardians are not responsible for losses to their wards attributable to their not having resorted to new and extraordinary remedies, the force and effect of which are doubtful. White v. Robinson, 64 N. C. 698.

Accepting Unsecured Note.—A guardian who accepts an unsecured note in payment of a debt due his ward is guilty of laches, and is liable to his ward for the amount of such note. Covington v. Leak, 65 N. C. 594.

Power to Collect and Compromise Debts.—It is held in the U. S. Supreme Court that a guardian, unless restricted by statute, may collect or compromise and release debts due to the ward, subject to the liability to be called to account if he has acted without due regard to the ward's interest. Maclay v. Equitable Life Assurance Society, 152 U. S. 499, 503, 38 L. Ed. 528.

Accepting Smaller Sum.—Where a guardian accepts from an administrator a smaller sum than the wards' share in the estate, the wards may, at their option, sue the guardian or the administrator for the deficiency. Alexander v. Alexander, 120 N. C. 472, 27 S. E. 121.

Failure to Ascertain Amount Due. — Where a guardian carelessly and without deliberation accepts for his wards from an insolvent debtor an amount less than they are entitled to receive from a fund, he is liable to the wards for what he failed to collect. Culp v. Stanford, 112 N. C. 664, 16 S. E. 761, distinguishing Luton v. Wilcox, 83 N. C. 21, and other decisions cited.

Failure to Sue before Insolvency.—Where a guardian fails to sue on note due his ward's estate until the parties thereto are insolvent, he is liable for his negligegnce. Coggins v. Flythe, 113 N. C. 102, 18 S. E. 96.

Failure to Sue Surety Knowing of Obligor's Insolvency.—Where a guardian waited six months after the principal in a note held by him as guardian died insolvent before he sued the surety, who also became insolvent before the suit was brought, the guardian having an opportunity all the time of knowing the true condition of the obligors, it was held that by his laches he made himself responsible for the loss of the debt. Williamson v. Williams, 59 N. C. 62, distinguishing Deberry v. Ivey, 55 N. C. 370; Davis v. Marcum, 57 N. C. 189.

§ 33-29. Liability for lands sold for taxes.—If any guardian suffer his ward's lands to lapse or become forfeited or be sold for nonpayment of taxes or other dues, he shall be liable to answer for the full value thereof to his ward. (Rev., s. 1796; Code, s. 1595; R. C., c. 54, s. 27; 1762, c. 69, s. 14; 1868-9, c. 201, s. 32; C. S. 2178.)

§ 33-30. Liability for costs.—All fees and costs of the superior court for issuing orders, citations, summonses or other process against guardians for their supposed defaults shall be paid by the party found in default. (Rev., s. 1797; Code, s. 1611; 1868-9, c. 201, s. 48; C. S. 2179.)

Cross Reference.—As to owelty to be paid by guardian, see § 46-12.

Art. 4. Sales of Ward's Estate.

§ 33-31. Special proceedings to sell; judge's approval required.—On application of the guardian by petition, verified upon oath, to the superior court, showing that the interest of the ward would be materially promoted by the sale or mortgage of any part of his estate, real or personal, the proceeding shall be conducted as in other cases of special proceedings; and the truth of the matter alleged in the petition being ascertained by satisfactory proof, a decree may thereupon be made that a sale or mortgage be had by such person, in such way and on such terms as may be most advantageous to the interest of the ward; but no sale or mortgage shall be made until approved by the judge of the court, nor shall the same be valid, nor any conveyance of the title made, unless confirmed and directed by the judge, and the proceeds of the sale or mortgage shall be exclusively applied and secured to such purposes and on such trusts as the judge shall specify. The guardian may not mortgage the property of his ward for a term of years in excess of the term fixed by the court in its decree. The word "mortgage" whenever used herein shall be construed to include deeds in trust. (Rev., s. 1798; Code, s. 1602; R. C., c. 54, ss. 32, 33; 1827, c. 33, 1868-9, c. 201, s. 39; 1917, c. 258, s. 1; 1923, c. 67, s. 1; C. S. 2180.)

Cross References.—As to sale of estate of an idiot, inebriate, or lunatic, see §§ 35-10 and 35-11. As to release of land condemned under the powers of eminent domain, see § 40-22.

Editor's Note.—In the next to the last sentence in this section a change was made by Public Laws 1923, ch. 67, section 1. The former provision was that a guardian could not mortgage his ward's property for a term of years "exceeding the minority of the ward." This limitation was stricken out and the term made dependent upon the decree of the court.

Not Applicable to Settlement or Partition.—This section does not apply either to the settlement of estates or to partition. Clark v. Carolina Homes, 189 N. C. 703, 128 S. E. 20, 26.

Presumption That Statutory Requirements Have Been Met.—Although this section must be strictly complied with, where a guardian has applied for permission to mortgage her wards' land, and the clerk has entered an order therefor, which order has been approved by the court, there is a presumption that the statutory requirements have been met. Quick v. Federal Land Bank, 208 N. C. 562, 181 S. E. 746.

Where the guardian's application for a loan stated that the proceeds thereof were to be used to purchase live stock necessary to the proper operation of the farm, to erect buildings on the land, and to provide improvements as defined by the Federal Farm Loan Board, it was held that under the presumption that the provisions of this section were followed, the mortgage is valid and binding upon the wards' estate as to the funds used for permanent improvements on the land, but as to the funds used to purchase live stock the mortgage is void as to the wards, such fund not having been used to materially promote their interest, and the mortgage on the wards' estate in remainder to the extent of the proceeds used to purchase live stock should be set aside upon their petition therefor filed upon their coming of age. Id.

Jurisdiction.—The previous court of equity had authority upon the ex parte petition of the plaintiffs, while they were infants, suing by their mother as next friend, to order and make a valid sale of their land mentioned for partition, and to pass the title thereto through its commissioner appointed for the purpose. Ex parte Dodd, 62 N. C. 97; Rowland v. Thompson, 73 N. C. 504; George v. High, 85 N. C. 113; Ivey v. McKinnon, 84 N. C. 651; Morris v. Gentry, 89 N. C. 248, 252.

Under the prevailing system of judicature in this State, the superior courts have succeeded to and possess the jurisdiction and power of the late courts of equity in respect to infants and their property; and there can be no question that these courts have authority in all proper cases to direct a sale of their property, both real and personal, for their benefit and advantage. Williams v. Harrington, 33 N. C. 616; Ex parte Dodd, 62 N. C. 97; Sutton v. Schonwald, 86 N. C. 198; Morris v. Gentry, 89 N. C. 248; Tate v. Mott, 96 N. C. 19, 22, 2 S. E. 176.

Same—Clerk.—By this section the clerk and court in term have concurrent jurisdiction in the manner of ordering a sale of infants' lands upon petition of their guardian. Barcello v. Hapgood, 118 N. C. 712, 24 S. E. 124.

Same—Contingent Interests.—This section does not confer jurisdiction on the clerks of courts to order the sale of contingent interests in lands, and suits to sell such interests, when the circumstances of the ward require it, should be determined in the superior court, in its equitable jurisdiction, which is required to order an investment of the funds in proper instances in accordance with the terms and conditions imposed by the conveyance, in order that the lawful intent of the donor may not be defeated. Smith v. Witter, 174 N. C. 616, 94 S. E. 402.

And a sale of such interests is void for the lack of jurisdiction, and the deed thereto of the guardian conveys nothing to his grantee. Smith v. Witter, 174 N. C. 616, 94 S. E. 402. As to procedure for the sale of contingent interests, see section 41-11.

Equity Court May Authorize Lease Extending Beyond Period of Minority.—Since the superior courts in proper instances have authority to order a sale of infants' real estate and to order and approve execution of a mortgage on same by the guardian for a period exceeding the minority of the wards, such statutory power, together with the inherent jurisdiction of courts of equity over the estates of infants, give courts of equity plenary jurisdiction to order and empower a guardian to execute a lease on the real estate belonging to his wards for a period exceeding the guardianship or the minority of the wards, upon its finding that such would be to the best interest of the infant wards. Coxe v. Charles Stores Co., 215 N. C. 380, 1 S. E. (2d) 848, 121 A. L. R. 959.

Must Be Represented.—The court may sell the land of minors for better investment, when they are properly represented before the court. Hutchinson v. Hutchinson, 126 N. C. 671, 36 S. E. 149.

Appointed by Court.—The next friend of an infant ought always to be appointed by the court, and really he is an officer of the court, under its supervision and control. Tate v. Mott, 96 N. C. 19, 2 S. E. 176.

Removal.—The court has power, for good cause shown, to remove the next friend of an infant litigant, and appoint another as often as may be necessary. Tate v. Mott, 96 N. C. 19, 2 S. E. 176.

Power of Representative.—The power of a guardian to make disposition of his ward's real estate is very carefully regulated and a sale is not allowed except on petition filed, and the order must in all cases have the supervision and approval of the judge. Morton v. Lumber Co., 178 N. C. 163, 166, 100 S. E. 322.

Representative Not a Party.—The guardian or next friend of an infant is not, properly speaking, a party to the action, although his name appears in the record. Tate v. Mott, 96 N. C. 19, 2 S. E. 176.

Notice to Infant Unnecessary.—It is not essential that the infant should know that an action has been brought in his favor by a next friend, as his incapacity to judge for himself is presumed, but the court may inquire into the propriety of the action and take such steps as may be necessary. Tate v. Mott, 96 N. C. 19, 2 S. E. 176.

Sale May Be Private.—The sale by order of the court may be either public or private. Barcello v. Hapgood, 118 N. C. 712, 24 S. E. 124. Section 33-21 does not apply when the sale is by order of court. Id.

Guardian Cannot Purchase. — It is well settled that a guardian can not purchase at his own sale, and that all such purchases may be treated as invalid, at the option of the wards, even when no unfairness in the sale and purchase has been shown. But this does not apply to a sale made by a master. Lee v. Howell, 69 N. C. 200, 203; Patton v. Thompson, 55 N. C. 285. As to power of guardians to purchase at foreclosure of mortgages executed to them, see § 33-25.

When Guardian Liable.—Where a guardian obtains a decree of a court of equity for the sale of his ward's land, it must appear, in order to make him liable for any loss in consequence of such sale, that he willfully practiced a deception on the court by false allegations and false evidence, or by industriously concealing material facts. Harrison v. Bradley, 40 N. C. 136.

Where an order confirming a sale of lands for partition does not provide for the disbursement of the funds, and the sum received in cash is properly paid into court and properly disbursed to the parties, the share of the minors therein being less than one hundred dollars and being paid to their mother for their benefit, under § 2-53, the sale was not void. Ex parte Huffstetler, 203 N. C. 796, 167 S. E. 65.

Where Order Violated.—It is proper for the court, before intervening rights have accrued, upon affidavit of one who has been adjudged an idiot in proceedings before the clerk, and guardian appointed, to grant a temporary restraining order, with notice to show cause, and at the hearing thereof to continue the order to the final hearing, when it appears that the guardian has sold the interest in lands of his ward and made title thereto, without having received the purchase price, contrary to the provisions of the order of sale. In re Propst, 144 N. C. 562, 57 S. E. 343.

Proof Required.—This section, contemplates that, in addition to the verified petition of the guardian, the clerk shall require other satisfactory proof of the truth of the matter alleged. The judge, exercising the functions of a chancellor, where sales of this character were made pursuant to proceedings in courts of equity, always referred the petition to the clerk and master, who took evidence and reported their conclusions to the court. It is usual, since these large and important equitable functions are conferred upon the clerks, to accompany the petition with affidavits showing the necessity for the sale. The practice is to be commended, and should not, without good cause, be departed from. In re Propst, 144 N. C. 562, 567, 57 S. E. 342.

Same—Sale May Be Set Aside.—Where the court, without taking any means to ascertain the necessity for a sale, directed it to be made, and that it should be "first advertised at the court house and three other public places," and no bid be received less than $125, and that the guardian should make conveyance, it was held, that it was not error to set aside the sale and direct another. In re Dickerson, 111 N. C. 108, 15 S. E. 1025.

Judgment.—Where an infant sues by his next friend he is as much bound by the judgment as an adult, and this rule applies to nonresident as much as to resident infants. Tate v. Mott, 96 N. C. 19, 2 S. E. 176.

Same—When Voidable.—A judgment for or against an infant, when he appears by attorney, but has no guardian or next friend, is not void, but only voidable. Tate v. Mott, 96 N. C. 19, 2 S. E. 176.

Confirmation of Sale.—While a formal direction to make title is not always necessary, a confirmation of the sale cannot be dispensed with. In re Dickerson, 111 N. C. 108, 114, 15 S. E. 1025.

An emergency judge has no power to approve and confirm an order of the clerk for the sale or mortgage of lands by a guardian when such emergency judge is not holding court in the county. Ipock v. North Carolina Joint Stock Land Bank, 206 N. C. 791, 175 S. E. 127.

Approval Nunc Pro Tunc.—Where a guardian executed a note and deed of trust under an order made by the clerk without the approval of the judge, and the judge later approved the order nunc pro tunc, the defect was cured so as to come within this section. Powell v. Armour Fertilizer Works, 205 N. C. 311, 170 S. E. 916; Ipcock v. North Carolina Joint Stock Land Bank, 206 N. C. 791, 797, 175 S. E. 127.

A guardian may not be authorized to join with the life tenant in executing a mortgage on lands in which his wards own the remainder in order to refund notes executed by the life tenant representing a part of the moneys expended by the life tenant in making permanent improvements upon the land, since, the remaindermen being in no way liable for the sums expended by the life tenant, the execution of the mortgage could not be to the interest of the remaindermen. Hall v. Hall, 219 N. C. 805, 15 S. E. (2d) 273.

Title Acquired.—Where land of an infant was sold under a decree of the court upon petition of a guardian, the title acquired is not rendered invalid by the reversal of the decree on account of irregularity in the proceeding of which the purchaser had no notice. Sutton v. Schonwald, 86 N. C. 198.

Same—Unauthorized Private Sale.—A guardian, having offered at public sale the land of his wards in accordance with an order of the court, and having failed to sell for want of a bid at a fair price, subsequently sold the land at private sale upon terms approved by the court: it was held that the purchaser at such private sale obtained a good title. Rowland v. Thompson, 73 N. C. 504.

When Foreign Guardian May Sell.—Where a foreign guardian has complied with the provisions of sections 33-48 and 33-49 which authorize him to withdraw the estate of his wards to the place of their residence and to a court of foreign jurisdiction, he may, in the same proceedings, and incident thereto, have the real property of his wards sold and converted into money in conformity with the provisions of this section, when the wards are represented therein by their next friend, and it is made to appear that their interests will be promoted thereby, etc. Cilley v. Geitner, 183 N. C. 528, 11 S. E. 866.

Petition Signed by Person Not a Qualified Guardian Confers No Jurisdiction on Clerk.—A clerk of the Superior Court has jurisdiction to order the sale of a ward's lands only upon petition verified by the duly appointed and qualified guardian of the ward, and where such petition is filed and signed by a person purporting to act as guardian, but who had not been appointed guardian and had not qualified by filing bond, the petition confers no jurisdiction on the clerk. Buncombe County v. Cain, 210 N. C. 766, 188 S. E. 399.

And in Such Case the Purchaser at Sale Acquires No Title Adverse to Infant.—A purchaser of an infant's property at a sale made under an order which is void because the clerk who made the order had no jurisdiction of the proceeding in which the order was made, acquires no right, title, interest, or estate in said property, adverse to the infant. Buncombe County v. Cain, 210 N. C. 766, 775, 188 S. E. 399.

Stated in Ex parte Quick, 206 N. C. 627, 630, 175 S. E. 119.

§ 33-32. Fund from sale has character of estate sold and subject to same trusts. —

Whenever, in consequence of any sale under § 33-31, the real or personal property of the ward is saved from demands to which in the first instance it may be liable, the final decree shall declare and set apart a portion of the personal or real estate thus saved, of value equal to the real and personal estate sold, as property exchanged for that sold; and in all sales by guardians whereby real is substituted by personal, or personal by real property, the beneficial interest in the property acquired shall be enjoyed, alienated, devised or bequeathed, and shall descend and be distributed, as by law the property sold might and would have been had it not been sold, until it be reconverted from the character thus impressed upon it by some act of the owner and restored to its character proper. (Rev., s. 1799; Code, s. 1603; R. C., c. 54, s. 33; 1827, c. 33, s. 2; 1868-9, c. 201, s. 40; C. S. 2181.)

In General.—Although it is the duty of a court, when the real estate of an infant is sold under its decree, to direct the proceeds to be held as real estate, yet a husband of such infant, who has received the proceeds from his wife's guardian, has no right to complain that such course has not been adopted. Harrison v. Bradley, 40 N. C. 136.

Application.—Where a female infant's land was sold for the benefit of the infant and she married and died before becoming of age, it was held that the money retained the character of real property. Wood v. Reeves, 58 N. C. 271.

§ 33-33. Sale of ward's estate to make assets.—

When a guardian has notice of a debt or demand against the estate of his ward, he may apply by petition, setting forth the facts, to the clerk of the superior court wherein the guardianship was granted, for an order to sell so much of the personal or real estate as may be sufficient to discharge such debt or demand; and the order of the court shall particularly specify what property is to be sold and the terms of sale; but no real estate shall be sold under this section, in any case, without the revision and confirmation of the order therefor by the judge of the superior court. The proceeds of sale under this section shall be considered as assets in the hands of the guardian for the benefit of creditors, in like manner as assets in the hands of a personal representative; and the same proceedings may be had against the guardian with respect to such assets as might be taken against an executor, administrator or collector in similar cases. (Rev., ss. 1800, 1801; Code, ss. 1604, 1605; R. C., c. 54, s. 34; 1789, c. 311, s. 5; 1868-9, c. 201, ss. 41, 42; C. S. 2182.)

Ascertaining That Debts Are Due. — The court should first ascertain that there are debts due from the ward, which render the sale of the property expedient, and they should also select the part or parts of his property which can be disposed of with least injury to the ward. Leary v. Fletcher, 23 N. C. 259.

An order authorizing a guardian, under certain circumstances, to sell the land of his ward, must first show that it was adjudged that there were debts due from the ward, and then specify what particular land is to be sold for their payment. Spruill v. Davenport, 48 N. C. 42.

Same—Amount Need Not Be Shown.—The amount of the debts, or to whom due, need not be set forth in the order. Pendleton v. Trueblood, 48 N. C. 96; Spruill v. Davenport, 48 N. C. 42.

Same—Sale Void Where Debt Not Shown.—A sale of a ward's land on petition of the guardian to pay debts is void, where it is not made to appear that the court passed on and ascertained the fact that there was a debt against the ward's estate. Coffield v. McLean, 49 N. C. 15.

Specifying Land to Be Sold.—An order that the guardian sell the land of his ward, or so much thereof as will be sufficient to discharge his debts, is fatally defective and void, and vests no title in those who bought at the sale.

Ducket v. Skinner, 33 N. C. 431; Leary v. Fletcher, 23 N. C. 259.

Where the order "to sell the land of the ward named in the petition, adjoining the lands of A., B., and others, containing about 110 acres," it not appearing that the ward had other land, this is a sufficient specification of the land under the statute. Pendleton v. Trueblood, 48 N. C. 96.

Mortgagee Not a Party.—In a petition to sell lands for assets to pay debts, a mortgagee of the interest of one of the heirs-at-law was improperly admitted a party defendant. Such claims cannot be set up in this proceeding. Battle v. Duncan, 90 N. C. 546.

Proceeds Subject to Attachment.—Money from the sale of land which belonged to wards is subject to attachment in the hands of the clerk after the confirmation of the sale. Leroy v. Jacobosky, 136 N. C. 443, 48 S. E. 796.

Priority in Payment.—When a guardian of an infant, under an order of court, sells his ward's land for payment of the debts of the ancestor, he is bound to observe the same priority in the payment of the debts as an administrator or executor in applying the personal assets. Merchant v. Sanderlin, 25 N. C. 501.

Sale of Lunatic's Property.—A guardian of a lunatic may, by order of the court, rightfully sell the personal property of his ward for the payment of his debts, provided there be no fraud in the proceeding. Howard v. Thompson, 30 N. C. 367. As to sale or renting of lunatics' estates, see sec. 35-10 et seq.

§ 33-34. To sell perishable goods on order of clerk. — Every guardian shall sell, by order of the clerk of the superior court, all such goods and chattels of his ward as may be liable to perish or be the worse for keeping. Every such order shall be entered in the order record of the superior court and must contain a descriptive list of the property to be sold, with the terms of sale. (Rev., s. 1787; Code, s. 1589; R. C., c. 54, s. 22; 1762, c. 69, s. 10; 1868-9, c. 201, s. 26; C. S. 2170.)

§ 33-35. When timber may be sold.—In case the land cannot be rented for enough to pay the taxes and other dues thereof, and there is not money sufficient for that purpose, the guardian, with the consent of the clerk of the superior court, may annually dispose of or use so much of the lightwood, and box or rent so many pine trees, or sell so much of the timber on the same, as may raise enough to pay the taxes and other duties thereon, and no more. (Rev., s. 1790; Code, s. 1596; R. C., c. 54, s. 27; 1762, c. 69, s. 14; 1868-9, c. 201, s. 33; C. S. 2174.)

Sale without Order of Court.—Where a guardian sold timber on the land of his ward without an order of the court, as required by this section, and took a note for the purchase money, the maker of such note cannot when sued on the same by the guardian and ward (the latter thereby ratifying the contract) set up the failure of the guardian to observe the statutory mandate. Evans v. Williamson, 79 N. C. 86.

Art. 5. Returns and Accounting.

§ 33-36. Return within three months.—Every guardian, within three months after his appointment, shall exhibit an account, upon oath, of the estate of his ward, to the clerk of the superior court; but such time may be extended by the clerk of the superior court, on good cause shown, not exceeding six months. (Rev., s. 1802; Code, s. 1577; R. C., c. 54, s. 11; 1762, c. 69, s. 9; 1868-9, c. 201, s. 14; C. S. 2183.)

In General.—It is the duty of the guardian within three months after his appointment to exhibit an account, upon oath, of the estate of his ward to the clerk of the superior court, and to make an annual return. Norman v. Walker, 101 N. C. 24, 26, 7 S. E. 468.

In the administration of the estate in behalf of the lunatic, the guardian is subject to the orders of the clerk by whom he was appointed and to whom he is required by this and following sections to account. Read v. Turner, 200 N. C. 773, 777, 158 S. E. 475.

§ 33-37. Procedure to compel return.—In cases of default to exhibit the return required by § 33-36, the clerk of the superior court must issue an order requiring the guardian to file such return forthwith, or to show cause why an attachment should not issue against him. If, after due service of the order, the guardian does not, on the return day of the order, file such return, or obtain further time to file the same, the clerk of the superior court shall issue an attachment against him, and commit him to the common jail of the county till he files such return. (Rev., s. 1803; Code, s. 1578; R. C., c. 54, s. 12; 1762, c. 69, s. 15; 1868-9, c. 201, s. 15; C. S. 2184.)

Cross Reference.—As to suits for accounting at term, see § 28-147.

§ 33-38. Additional assets to be returned.—Whenever further property of any kind, not included in any previous return, comes to the hands or knowledge of any guardian, he must cause the same to be returned within three months after the possession or discovery thereof; and the making of such return of new assets, from time to time, may be enforced in the same manner as prescribed in § 33-37. (Rev., s. 1804; Code, s. 1579; 1868-9, c. 201, s. 16; C. S. 2185.)

§ 33-39. Annual accounts.—Every guardian shall, within twelve months from the date of his qualification or appointment, and annually, so long as any of the estate remains in his control, file in the office of the clerk of the superior court an inventory and account, under oath, of the amount of property received by him, or invested by him, and the manner and nature of such investment, and his receipts and disbursements for the past year in the form of debit and credit. He must produce vouchers for all payments. The clerk of the superior court may examine on oath such accounting party, or any other person, concerning the receipts, disbursements or any other matter relating to the estate; and having carefully revised and audited such account, if he approve the same, he must indorse his approval thereon, which shall be deemed prima facie evidence of correctness. (Rev., s. 1805; Code, s. 1617; R. C., c. 54, ss. 11, 12; 1762, c. 69, ss. 9, 15; 1871-2, c. 46; C. S. 2186.)

Cross References.—As to clerk's power to audit the account of guardian, see § 2-16. As to vouchers being evidence of disbursement, see § 28-119.

Definition of "Account."—An account is defined to be "a statement in writing of debts and credits, or of receipts and payments; a list of items of debts and credits with their respective dates." Black's Dictionary, p. 17. In this section the word is used in this sense, and when not only an account, but payment or settlement is intended, additional words are used to express that idea. State v. Dunn, 134 N. C. 663, 664, 668, 46 S. E. 949.

Good Faith Essential.—There is no trust known to the law which so urgently calls for good faith as that which subsists between the guardian and his ward; and no higher evidence can be offered of that good faith than perfect candor, full information, and minute, detailed accounts. Moore v. Askew, 85 N. C. 199, 202.

What Set Out.—It is the duty of a guardian in making his annual returns to set out the manner in which he has invested the ward's estate, and the nature of the securities which he holds as guardian. State v. Gooch, 97 N. C. 186, 1 S. E. 653.

Accounts Prima Facie Correct.—The ex parte settlements made by guardians, executors and administrators with the courts having jurisdiction of such matters, are, when accepted by the court, prima facie correct, and while not conclusive upon creditors or next of kin, and strict proof and specific assignment of errors are not required as in actions to surcharge a stated account, nevertheless the burden is on the party attacking them to establish, by a preponderance of testimony, their incorrectness. State v. Turner, 104 N. C. 566, 10 S. E. 606.

Ward Can Demand Annual Statement.—A ward is entitled to demand of her guardian an annual statement of the manner and nature of his investments of her estate. Moore v. Askew, 85 N. C. 199.

Account as Evidence.—The annual account of a guardian is competent evidence against him, and presumptive evidence against his sureties. Loftin v. Cobb, 126 N. C. 58, 35 S. E. 230.

§ 33-40. Procedure to compel accounting.—If any guardian omit to account, as directed in § 33-39, or renders an insufficient and unsatisfactory account, the clerk of the superior court shall forthwith order such guardian to render a full and satisfactory account, as required by law, within twenty days after service of the order. Upon return of the order, duly served, if such guardian fail to appear or refuse to exhibit such account, the clerk of the superior court may issue an attachment against him for contempt and commit him till he exhibits such account, and may likewise remove him from office. And in all proceedings hereunder the defaulting guardian will be liable personally for the costs of the said proceeding, including the costs of service of all notices or writs incidental to, or thereby accruing, or the amount of the costs of such proceeding may be deducted from any commissions which may be found due said guardian on settlement of the estate. Where a corporation is guardian, the president, cashier, trust officer or the person or persons having charge of the particular estate for said corporation, or the person to whom the duty of making reports of said estate has been assigned by the officers or directors of said corporation, may be proceeded against and committed to jail as herein provided as if he or they were the guardian or guardians personally: Provided, it is found as a fact that the failure or omission to file such account or to obey the order of the court in reference thereto is willful on the part of the officer charged therewith: Provided further, the corporation itself may also be fined and/or removed as such guardian for such failure or omission. (Rev., s. 1806; Code, s. 1618; C. C. P., s. 479; 1929, c. 9, s. 2; 1933, c. 317; C. S. 2187.)

Editor's Note.—See 11 N. C. Law Rev. 232.

The Act of 1929 added the third sentence to this section. Public Laws 1933, c. 317, inserted the last two sentences of this section relating to compelling corporate guardians to account.

Ground for Removal.—Under this section authorizing the clerk of the superior court to remove a guardian from office upon his failure to account, pursuant to the order of the clerk, a guardian's refusal to account for rents and profits of a ward's land, and his improper claim to the rent adverse to the ward, was ground for his removal. In re Dixon, 156 N. C. 26, 72 S. E. 71.

For this omission to make their quarterly and annual returns, it is the duty of the clerk to require them to be made, and on failure to do so attach and emove the defendants from their office. Sanderson v. Sanderson, 79 N. C. 369, 371.

§ 33-41. Final account.—A guardian may be required to file such account at any time after six months from the ward's coming of full age or the cessation of the guardianship; but such account may be filed voluntarily at any time, and, whether the accounting be voluntary or compulsory, it shall be audited and recorded by the clerk of the superior court. (Rev., s. 1807; Code, s. 1619; C. C. P., s. 481; C. S. 2188.)

Cross References.—As to accounting for compound interest in final settlement, see § 24-4. As to necessity for payment of taxes before final accounting, see § 105-240. As to fees for auditing final account, see § 2-35.

In General.—This section is not intended to bestow upon the guardian the ward's moneys and properties for six months after he becomes of age, nor to deprive him of the right to bring an action to recover them during the period, but simply means that the guardian is presumed to have settled with his ward within such six months, and after its lapse the clerk can call on the guardian to file his final account, with the receipts of the ward, in full settlement, to complete the record in his office, for the section states that such return shall be "audited and recorded." Self v. Shugart, 135 N. C. 185, 189, 47 S. E. 484.

"Audit" Explained.—When the section directs that the clerk shall "audit" the account, it implies that he shall pursue the usual course which has been found to be just and convenient in such cases. Rowland v. Thompson, 64 N. C. 714, 717.

Jurisdiction.—The clerk of the superior court has jurisdiction of settlements between guardian and ward, and, of course, between the guardian and ward's personal representative. McLean v. Breece, 113 N. C. 390, 18 S. E. 694; McNeill v. Hodges, 105 N. C. 52, 11 S. E. 265; Rowland v. Thompson, 65 N. C. 110.

The superior court had no original jurisdiction of an action for an account by an existing guardian of infant children against their former guardian; such action should have been brought in the court of probate (now the clerk). Sudderth v. McCombs, 65 N. C. 186.

Same—Appeal.—From the judgment of the clerk an appeal will lie to the judge of the superior court, who having thus obtained jurisdiction of the cause will retain it until it is finally disposed of. Rowland v. Thompson, 65 N. C. 110.

Settlement as Defense. — Where in a suit on a guardian bond it appeared that the account between the guardian and the ward had been settled, and that the guardian gave his own bond to the ward, which was received by the latter in satisfaction of the balance due, and he then gave his guardian a receipt: Held, that this was a sufficient defense to the suit on the guardian bond. State v. Cordon, 30 N. C. 179.

Action Barred in Ten Years.—Ten years after the ward becomes of age bars an action by him against his guardian for settlement. Dunn v. Beaman, 126 N. C. 766, 36 S. E. 172.

When Action Barred as to Sureties.—An action for breach of the guardianship bond based upon this section is barred as to the sureties after three years from the date the guardian should have made payment, and the fact that the guardian continued to pay the ward interest on the amount due the ward for several years after the ward's majority does not affect the running of the statute as to the sureties. State v. Fountain, 205 N. C. 217, 171 S. E. 85. See Copley v. Scarlett, 214 N. C. 31, 197 S. E. 623.

Judgment Is an Estoppel.—The clerk of the superior court, having jurisdiction of proceedings against a guardian for a settlement, a judgment rendered therein is an estoppel to an action in the superior court between the same parties and upon the same question, and can not be attacked collaterally, but can be impeached for fraud only by a direct proceeding for that purpose. Donnelly v. Wilcox, 113 N. C. 408, 18 S. E. 339.

Distributees May Have Accounting.—The express trust existing between the guardian and ward terminates at death of the latter, and the ward's distributees may have letters of administration taken out and call for an accounting. Lowder v. Hathcock, 150 N. C. 438, 439, 64 S. E. 194.

Effect of Wrongful Settlement.—Where a guardian surrendered his office in March to one whom he supposed to be his legal successor and made a settlement with him, though he was not regularly appointed guardian until December following, but in the meantime acted as such in good faith, it was held that the management of the fund from March to December must be treated as an exercise of an agency of the former guardian, whose bond is responsible for any loss resulting therefrom. Jennings v. Copeland, 90 N. C. 572.

§ 33-42. Expenses and disbursements credited to guardian.—Every guardian may charge in his annual account all reasonable disbursements and expenses; and if it appear that he has really and bona fide disbursed more in one year than the profits of the ward's estate, for his education and maintenance, the guardian shall be allowed and paid for the same out of the profits of the estate in any other year; but such disbursements must, in all cases, be suitable to the degree and circumstances of the estate of the ward. (Rev., s. 1808; Code, s. 1612; R. C., c. 54, s. 28; 1762, c. 69, ss. 18, 19; 1799, c. 536, s. 2; 1868-9, c. 201, s. 49; C. S. 2189.)

Cross References.—As to payments allowed in accounting, see § 33-6. As to expense of bond being lawful expense, see § 109-23.

In General.—A guardian should be charged with what he receives, and credited with what he pays out, when it does not appear that he collected anything prematurely, or kept on hand any unreasonable sum. Freeman v. Wilson, 74 N. C. 368.

Paying Debts Due.—When the guardian in good faith pays debts that ought to be paid, and by so doing the ward's estate suffers no prejudice, he will be allowed credit for disbursements of assets in his hands in such respects. McLean v. Breece, 113 N. C. 390, 392, 18 S. E. 694; Adams v. Thomas, 83 N. C. 521.

Exceeding Income of Estate.—In paying the accounts of a guardian, he cannot, except under rare circumstances, be allowed disbursements beyond the income of his ward. Caffey v. McMichael, 64 N. C. 507; Johnston v. Haynes, 68 N. C. 514.

A guardian will not be permitted to use more than the accruing profits of his ward's estate in the maintenance and education of the ward, except with the sanction of the court, or in extreme cases of urgent necessity. Tharington v. Tharington, 99 N. C. 118, 5 S. E. 414.

Same—Clerk May Allow.—The clerk of the superior court may allow a guardian credit for money necessarily expended in the education of the ward, though the amount exceeded the income and was made without the permission of the clerk of the court. Duffy v. Williams, 133 N. C. 195, 45 S. E. 548.

Same—Lunatic's Debts.—Where, in the settlement of the guardian's account, the lunatic is dead and his only child is of age, and it appears that the guardian, in good faith, paid debts without prejudice to the estate, the disbursement would be allowed. McLean v. Breece, 113 N. C. 390, 18 S. E. 694.

Setting Ward up in Business.—A guardian who advances money for his ward over and above the income of his estate, in order to set him up in business, or for other purposes, without applying to the court for leave, is not entitled to charge the ward with it. Shaw v. Coble, 63 N. C. 377.

Counsel Fees.—A guardian should be allowed reasonable attorney's fees paid in good faith. Burke v. Turner, 85 N. C. 500, citing Whitford v. Foy, 65 N. C. 265.

But fees paid by a guardian to the counsel for services rendered in obtaining an unfair settlement with the ward, and in aiding the guardian to cover up the fraud, cannot be allowed the latter in his settlement. Johnston v. Haynes, 68 N. C. 509.

Father as Guardian.—A father, or his trustee, in settling his accounts as guardian for his children, has no right to charge the children with the amount expended for their education. Walker v. Crowder, 37 N. C. 478.

A father, though he be the guardian of his minor child's estate, is not ordinarily permitted to charge for its maintenance, and, if able, he is himself bound to maintain his child; if not so, he must, before applying any of his ward's income to that end, procure the sanction of the proper court. Burke v. Turner, 85 N. C. 500.

Stepfather as Guardian.—Where a stepfather becomes guardian to his stepchild, he is not entitled to charge for board and other necessaries furnished to his ward antecedently to his appointment as guardian; the infant being incompetent to contract therefor. Barnes v. Ward, 45 N. C. 93.

Payments to Mother for Board of Wards after Majority.—A guardian is not chargeable with moneys paid to the mother of his wards for their board after their arrival at full age, no objection being urged against the propriety or justness of the claim, or of the price paid. McNeill v. Hodges, 83 N. C. 505.

Gift by Ward to Guardian.—In the U. S. Supreme Court it is held that if after the ward comes of age, and into possession of his estate he thinks fit, when sui juris, and at liberty, he may make any reasonable grant by way of award for care and trouble. When done with his eyes open, the court will never set it aside. Ralston v. Turpin, 129 U. S. 663, 672, 9 S. Ct. 420, 32 L. Ed. 747.

Same—Limitation to Rule.—The courts guard against gifts by a ward to his guardian if made at the very time of accounting and delivering up the estate. Ralston v. Turpin, 129 U. S. 663, 673, 9 S. Ct. 420, 32 L. Ed. 747.

§ 33-43. Commissions.—The superior court shall allow commissions to the guardian for his time and trouble in the management of the ward's estate, in the same manner and under the same rules and restrictions as allowances are made to executors, administrators and collectors. (Rev., s. 1809; Code, s. 1613; R. C., c. 54, s. 28; 1762, c. 69, ss. 18, 19; 1868-9, c. 201, s. 50; C. S. 2190.)

Cross Reference.—As to commissions of executors and administrators, see § 28-170.

A Compensation to Guardian. — Commissions are only a compensation to the guardian for his time and trouble in managing his ward's estate. Walton v. Erwin, 36 N. C. 136.

The time spent by a guardian in the management of his ward's estate may be considered in fixing his commissions, but cannot be separately charged. Shutt v. Carloss, 36 N. C. 232.

Securities Delivered at Majority.—Commissions should be allowed a guardian on the amount of the notes and other securities for debt delivered to the ward upon the termination of the guardianship. Whitford v. Foy, 65 N. C. 265.

Bank as Administrator and Guardian of Distributee.—Where a bank, acting as administrator and as guardian for one of the distributees, pays over to itself as guardian the distributive share of its ward, such amount is cash received by it as guardian, and it is entitled by law to commissions thereon. Rose v. Bank of Wadesboro, 217 N. C. 600, 9 S. E. (2d) 2.

After Ward's Majority.—A guardian is not entitled to commissions upon any disbursement made after his ward arrives at full age. McNeill v. Hodges, 83 N. C. 505.

Failure to Keep Accounts. — A guardian is entitled to commissions, although he omitted to keep and render regular accounts, where no imputation is cast upon his integrity by reason of the neglect. McNeill v. Hodges, 83 N. C. 505. But where he is grossly negligent, it is otherwise. Topping v. Windley, 99 N. C. 4, 5 S. E. 14.

Using Ward's Money in Own Business.—A guardian will be allowed commissions, although he uses his ward's money in his business, if he makes regular returns, so as to show at all times what amount is due his ward. Carr v. Askew, 94 N. C. 194, distinguishing Burke v. Turner, 85 N. C. 500, 504. See also, Fisher v. Brown, 135 N. C. 198, 47 S. E. 398.

Same—Gross Negligence.—A guardian is not entitled to commissions on money collected and used by him in his own business where he was guilty of gross negligence in not making his returns. Burke v. Turner, 85 N. C. 500.

When Ward Boards with Guardian.—A guardian is entitled to commissions on payments made for his ward for goods bought of a firm of which the guardian was a member, but not on charges for board while the ward lived in his family. Williamson v. Williams, 59 N. C. 62.

Rate of Commissions. — Reasonable commissions will always be allowed to a guardian unless in cases of fraud or very culpable negligence. The rate will depend upon a variety of circumstances, such as the amount of the estate, the trouble in managing it, whether fees have been paid to counsel for assisting him in the management, the last of which will lessen it. Whitford v. Foy, 65 N. C. 265.

Same—Two and One-half Per Cent.—Two and one-half per cent was ample commission to a guardian receiving most of the ward's property, without litigation or difficulty, in the shape of notes payable to himself, which he retained 6 years collecting but little interest, when he voluntarily resigned and delivered the notes to his successor. Walton v. Erwin, 36 N. C. 136.

Same—Five Per Cent.—Five per cent was not an unreasonable allowance to a guardian as commissions on his receipts and disbursements, when these were numerous, and extended over a period of fourteen years. Covington v. Leak, 65 N. C. 594.

Same—Ten Per Cent.—A commission of ten per cent, the highest allowed by the statute, will be allowed to a guardian only in a case of the greatest merit, as where his duties have been troublesome and of long continuance. Walton v. Erwin, 36 N. C. 136.

Referee's Decision Adopted.—The amount of allowance of commissions to a guardian by a referee is usually adopted by the court, unless it is shown to be excessive. Johnston v. Haynes, 68 N. C. 514; Whitford v. Foy, 71 N. C. 527.

An appellate court will not review the finding of a referee as to the commissions allowed a guardian, unless such commissions are shown to be grossly erroneous. Whitford v. Foy, 71 N. C. 527.

Art. 6. Public Guardians.

§ 33-44. Appointment; term; oath.—There may be in every county a public guardian, to be appointed by the clerk of the superior court for a term of eight years. The public guardian shall take and subscribe an oath (or affirmation) faithfully and honestly to discharge the duties imposed upon him; the oath so taken and subscribed shall be filed in the office of the clerk of the superior court. (Rev., ss. 1758, 1759; Code, ss. 1556, 1560; 1874-5, c. 221, ss. 1, 5; C. S. 2191.)

§ 33-45. Bond of public guardian; increasing bond.—The public guardian shall enter into bond with three or more sureties, approved by the clerk in the penal sum of six thousand dollars, payable to the state of North Carolina, conditioned faithfully to perform the duties of his office and obey all lawful orders of the superior or other courts touching said guardianship of all wards, money or estate that may come into his hands. Whenever the aggregate value of the real and personal estate belonging to his several wards exceeds one-half the bond herein required the clerk of the superior court shall require him to enlarge his bond in amount so as to cover at least double the aggregate amount under his control as guardian. (Rev., ss. 321, 322; Code, ss. 1557, 1558; 1874-5, c. 221, ss. 2, 3; C. S. 2192.)

§ 33-46. Powers, duties, liabilities, compensation.—The powers and duties of said public guardian shall be the same as other guardians, and he shall be subject to the same liabilities as other guardians under the existing laws, and shall receive the same compensation as other guardians. (Rev., s. 1761; Code, s. 1561; 1874-5, c. 221, ss. 6, 7; C. S. 2193.)

Cross Reference.—As to payment of money due minor insurance beneficiary to public guardian, see § 2-52.

§ 33-47. When letters issue to public guardian.—The public guardian shall apply for and obtain letters of guardianship in the following cases:

1. When a period of six months has elapsed from the discovery of any property belonging to any minor, idiot, lunatic, insane person or inebriate, without guardian.

2. When any person entitled to letters of guardianship shall request in writing the clerk of the superior court to issue letters to the public guardian; but it is lawful and the duty of the clerk of the superior court to revoke said letters of guardianship at any time after issuing the same upon application in writing by any person entitled to qualify as guardian, setting forth a sufficient cause for such revocation. (Rev., s. 1760; Code, s. 1561; 1874-5, c. 221, ss. 6, 7; C. S. 2194.)

Art. 7. Foreign Guardians.

§ 33-48. Right to removal of ward's personalty from state.—Where any ward, idiot, lunatic or insane person, residing in another state or territory, or in the District of Columbia, or Canada, or other foreign country, is entitled to any personal estate in this state, or personal property substituted for realty by decree of court, or to any money arising from the sale of real estate, whether the same be in the hands of any guardian residing in this state, or of any executor, administrator or other person holding for the ward, idiot, lunatic or insane person, or if the same (not being adversely held and claimed) be not in the lawful possession or control of any person, the guardian of the ward, idiot, lunatic or insane person, duly appointed at the place where such ward, idiot, lunatic or insane person resides, or in the event no guardian has been appointed the court or officer of the court authorized by the laws of the state or territory or for the District of Columbia or Canada or other foreign country to receive moneys belonging to any infants, idiots, lunatics or insane persons when no guardian has been appointed for such person, may apply to have such estate removed to the residence of the infant, idiot, lunatic or insane person by petition filed before the clerk of the superior court of the county in which the property or some portion thereof is situated; which shall be proceeded with as in other cases of special proceedings. (Rev., s. 1816; Code, ss. 1598, 1601; R. C., c. 54, s. 29; 1820, c. 1044; 1842, c. 38; 1868-9, c. 201, ss. 35, 38; 1874-5, c. 168; 1913, c. 86, s. 1; 1937, c. 307; C. S. 2195.)

Cross Reference.—See also § 36-6 et seq.

Editor's Note.—The 1937 amendment made provision for the event "no guardian has been appointed." It also substituted "infant" for "ward" in a subsequent part of the section.

In General.—Where it appeared that the property in this State of a ward residing in another state consisted of good bonds at interest in the hands of his guardian here, a part of which arose from the sale of land, and the ward was nearly of age, and there was no special necessity made to appear for making a transfer of the property, the court of equity, in the exercise of its discretion, refused to order a transfer of the estate to the hands of a guardian appointed in such other state. Douglas v. Caldwell, 59 N. C. 20.

Local Guardian Not Necessary.—Where a foreign guardian has been duly appointed in the state of his own residence and that of his wards, and has filed a certified copy of his appointment, with a bond sufficient both as to the amount and the financial ability of the sureties to protect the estate of his wards and in conformity with this section and section 33-49, with his petition to the clerk of the court as required by these statutes, it is not necessary that a local guardian be appointed, but the court in this State, before which the matter is properly pending, may order that the foreign guardian be permitted to withdraw the estate of his wards to the place of foreign jurisdiction. Cilley v. Geitner, 183 N. C. 528, 111 S. E. 865.

Foreign Guardian as Next Friend.—A guardian appointed in another state has no authority to represent his wards in suits and proceedings in this State, but when he brings suit for them as guardian it will be treated as if he were their next friend. Tate v. Mott, 96 N. C. 19, 2 S. E. 176.

When Guardian Must Be Resident.—Where the infant grandchildren of the testator take upon a contingency, as directed by the will, properly probated here, it is required that the guardian appointed be a resident of this State, according to our law, unless the funds have been properly removed to another state, under this section and section 33-49; and the law of this State governs the interpretation of the will when the testator died domiciled here. Cilley Geitner, 182 N. C. 714, 110 S. E. 61.

A guardian in another State of nonresident wards may proceed to obtain possession of the property bequeathed to the wards and in the hands of an executor in this State under a will duly probated here under the provisions of this section; § 36-7, relating to property in the hands of a trustee residing in this State, is not applicable. Fidelity Trust Co. v. Walton, 198 N. C. 790, 153 S. E. 401.

§ 33-49. Contents of petition; parties defendant.—The petitioner must show to the court a copy of his appointment as guardian and bond duly authenticated, and must prove to the court that the bond is sufficient, as well in the ability of the sureties as in the sum mentioned therein, to secure all the estate of the ward wherever situated. Any person may be made a party defendant to the proceeding who may be made a party defendant in civil actions under the provisions of the chapter entitled Civil Procedure. (Rev., ss. 1817, 1818; Code, ss. 1599, 1600; R. C., c. 54, s. 30; 1820, c. 1044, s. 2; 1842, c. 38; 1868-9, c. 201, ss. 36, 37; C. S. 2196.)

Cross Reference.—As to who may be defendants, see § 1-69.

Art. 8. Estates without Guardian.

§ 33-50. Duty of grand jury as to orphans and guardians.—The grand jury of every county is charged with and shall present to the superior court the names of all orphan children that have no guardian or are not bound out to some trade or employment. They shall further inquire of all abuses, mismanagement and neglect of all such guardians as are appointed by the clerk of the superior court. The clerk of the superior court shall, at each term of the superior court, lay before the grand jury a list of all the guardians acting in his county or appointed by him. (Rev., s. 1810; Code, s. 1609; R. C., c. 54, s. 18; 1762, c. 69, s. 17; 1868-9, c. 201, s. 46; C. S. 2197.)

§ 33-51. Solicitor to apply for receiver for orphans' estates.—Whenever the name of an orphan, having any estate and for whom no suitable person will become guardian, is presented by a grand jury, the clerk of the superior court must give notice thereof forthwith to the solicitor of the state for the judicial district, who shall apply in behalf of the orphan to the judge of the superior court of the county where such presentment was made, to the end that a receiver be appointed. (Rev., s. 1811; Code, s. 1610; R. C., c. 54, s. 19; 1846, c. 43; 1868-9, c. 201, s. 47; C. S. 2198.)

§ 33-52. Solicitor to prosecute bond of guardian removed without a successor.—Whenever any guardian is removed, and no person is appointed to succeed in the guardianship, the clerk of the superior court shall certify the name of such guardian and his sureties to the solicitor of the judicial district, who shall forthwith institute an action on the bond of the guardian in the superior court, for securing the estate of the ward. (Rev., s. 1812; Code, s. 1584; R. C., c. 54, s. 14; 1844, c. 41; 1868-9, c. 201, s. 21; C. S. 2199.)

Infant Not a Party.—The action required by this section to be taken by the solicitor, in the cases provided for, is properly an action brought by him for the benefit of the ward when the guardian has been removed, and the infant is not a necessary, perhaps not a proper, party to it. Becton v. Becton, 56 N. C. 419; Temple v. Williams, 91 N. C. 82, 89.

Allowance Pendente Lite.—During the pendency of an action under this section against a guardian and the sureties on his bond by his ward for an account and settlement, and while the same is under reference and before the report of the referee is complete and finally acted on, and before any of the ward's estate is in possession of the court, the superior court has no power to order the guardian and his sureties to pay a certain sum into court for the ward's maintenance and support pendente lite, and a further sum for her attorney. State v. Harrison, 75 N. C. 432.

Same—Contempt.—If it is made to appear to the court, pending an action under this section, that a fund belonging to the ward is in possession of the guardian removed, the judge may, by process of contempt, compel its payment into court, where it will be subject to such orders and disposition as the necessities of the ward may require. State v. Harrison, 75 N. C. 432, 434.

§ 33-53. Judge to appoint receiver; his rights and duties.—The judge of the superior court, either residing in or presiding over the courts of the district, before whom such action is brought, shall have power to appoint the clerk of the superior court or some discreet person as a receiver to take possession of the ward's estate, to collect all moneys due to him, to secure, lend, invest or apply the same for the benefit and advantage of the ward, under the direction and subject to such rules and orders in every respect as the said judge may from time to time make in regard thereto; and the accounts of such receiver shall be returned, audited and settled as the judge may direct. The receiver shall be allowed such amounts for his time, trouble and responsibility as seem to the judge reasonable and proper; and such receivership may be continued until a suitable person can be procured to take the guardianship. (Rev., s. 1813; Code, s. 1585; R. C., c. 54, s. 15; 1844, c. 41, s. 2; 1868-9, c. 201, s. 22; C. S. 2200.)

Cross Reference.—As to receivers, see § 1-501 et seq.

When Appointed.—The mere poverty of the executor does not authorize the court, against the will of the testator, to remove him by placing a receiver in his place. There must be, in addition, some maladministration, or some danger of loss from the misconduct or negligence of the executor for which he will not be able to answer by reason of his insolvency. Camp v. Pittman, 90 N. C. 615, 617; Fairbain v. Fisher, 57 N. C. 395.

The appointment of a receiver for an insane person's estate should be made only on the motion of the solicitor, after the wife and one or more adult children, if there are such, or some near relative or friend, have been brought before the judge at chambers or in term. In re Hybart, 119 N. C. 359, 25 S. E. 963.

Clerk Appointed.—Under this section the court has authority to appoint a clerk of the superior court receiver of the infants' estate. Waters v. Melson, 112 N. C. 89, 16 S. E. 918.

Same—The Order.—Where, in an order of court appointing "J. A. M., clerk of the superior court," receiver of the infants' estate, the word "as" was omitted before the words "clerk of the superior court", it was held that the intention of the court to appoint M. as receiver in his official capacity was sufficiently indicated. Waters v. Melson, 112 N. C. 89, 16 S. E. 918.

Does Not Have Guardian's Power.—A receiver appointed to take charge of a ward's estate when the guardian is removed, is not invested with the powers of a guardian, but acts under the control of the court until another guardian is appointed. Temple v. Williams, 91 N. C. 82.

General Liability. — As a general rule, a receiver is responsible for his own neglect only, and is protected when he acts in entire good faith. State v. Gooch, 97 N. C. 186, 1 S. E. 653.

Same—Similar to Guardian's.—When a receiver is appointed to take charge of an infant's estate who has no guardian, and is directed to lend out the money and pay the income over to the ward, he will be held to the same accountability as a guardian. State v. Gooch, 97 N. C. 186, 1 S. E. 653.

Failure of Bank.—A receiver may keep money in a bank as a safe place of deposit, or may use the bank as a means of transmitting money to distant places, and if he uses reasonable diligence, he will not be held liable if the bank fails. State v. Gooch, 97 N. C. 186, 1 S. E. 653.

Where a receiver was appointed to take charge of an infant's estate and invest the same, and report to the court annually, and he deposited a portion of the money in a bank in another state to his credit as receiver, on which deposit he was paid interest by the bank, which afterwards failed, it was held that the receiver was liable for the loss, as he had failed to report to the court the manner in which he had invested the infant's estate, although he had acted in the best faith. State v. Gooch, 97 N. C. 186, 1 S. E. 653.

Official Bond Liable—Former Provisions.—The liability of a clerk as receiver arising under statutory provisions was not formerly embraced by his official bonds, because his office and duties as such clerk did not embrace the receivership and the duties and liabilities incident thereto. The receivership and its incidents were outside of and beyond his official duties as clerk, and hence not embraced by his official bond and its purposes. Kerr v. Brandon, 84 N. C. 128; State v. Odom, 86 N. C. 432; Syme v. Bunting, 91 N. C. 48, 52; State v. Boone, 108 N. C. 78, 83, 12 S. E. 897.

Same—Sureties.—But now when the clerk of the superior court is appointed receiver of a minor's estate under this section, he takes and holds the funds by virture of his office as clerk, and his sureties upon his official bond as such officer are liable for any failure of duty on his part in that respect. State v. Upchurch, 110 N. C. 62, 14 S. E. 642.

The sureties on the clerk's official bond are liable for any breach of his duties as receiver. Waters v. Melson, 112 N. C. 89, 16 S. E. 918.

Action against Receiver.—It is not necessary to obtain leave of the court before commencing an action for failure of the clerk to fulfill his duty when appointed receiver under this section. State v. Upchurch, 110 N. C. 62, 14 S. E. 642.

Same—Burden of Proof.—The burden is upon a receiver and his sureties to show that he used due diligence in investing the money in his hands. Waters v. Melson, 112 N. C. 89, 16 S. E. 918.

Same—Present Law.—Where the appointment of receiver is conferred upon the clerk under the statute authorizing the court to commit the estate of an infant to "some discreet person," it was held that the same is protected by his bond as clerk. State v. Odom, 86 N. C. 432.

§ 33-54. When receiver to pay over estate.—When another guardian is appointed, he may apply by motion, on notice, to the judge of the superior court for an order upon the receiver to pay over all the money, estate and effects of the ward; and if no such guardian is appointed, then the infant, on coming of age, or in case of his death, his executor, administrator or collector, and the heir or personal representative of the idiot, lunatic or insane person, shall have the like remedy against the receiver. (Rev., s. 1814; Code, s. 1587; R. C., c. 54, s. 17; 1844, c. 41, s. 4; 1868-9, c. 201, s. 24; C. S. 2201.)

Settlement Not Conclusive.—A settlement made with a receiver, even if had under direction of the court, is not conclusive against the ward, but only raises a presumption that the account and settlement are correct. Such presumption may be disproved. Temple v. Williams, 91 N. C. 82.

§ 33-55. Duties of solicitor.—The solicitor shall prosecute the action and take all necessary orders therein. (Rev., s. 1815; Code, s. 1586; 1895, c. 14; R. C., c. 54, s. 16; 1844, c. 41, s. 3; 1868-9, c. 201, s. 23; C. S. 2202.)

Art. 9. Guardians of Estates of Missing Persons.

§ 33-56. Appointment.—When it shall be made to appear to the satisfaction of the clerk of the superior court, or a judge of the superior court having jurisdiction of the appointment of guardians, that any person has disappeared from the community of his residence, and his whereabouts remains unknown in such community for a period of three (3) months, and cannot, after diligent inquiry, be ascertained; and that such person has property in the state and property rights within its jurisdiction which may be affected by his absence, or may need protection and administration; and that such person has made no provision for the management of his affairs; such clerk of the superior court or judge of the superior court may appoint a guardian of the estate and property of such person as may, by law be done in the case of minors and persons non compos mentis, and with the like powers and duties with respect to such estate. (1933, c. 49, s. 1.)

Editor's Note.—See 11 N. C. Law Rev. 231, for discussion and review of this section.

§ 33-57. Jurisdiction.—The clerk of the superior court of the county of the last residence of such absent person shall have prior right to jurisdiction of such appointment, but the appointment may be made by the clerk of the superior court of any county in the state where such person has property, after the expiration of six months from the time of such disappearance, if no prior appointment has been made. (1933, c. 49, s. 2.)

§ 33-58. Powers and duties; bond. — The guardian, so appointed, shall have all the powers and duties with respect to the property and estate of such absent person as are now, or may be hereafter, conferred by law upon guardians generally; and before entering into the discharge of the duties of his guardianship, he shall be required to enter into such bond as is now required by law in such cases, for the faithful performance of his trust and for the accounting of the property, moneys and assets of the estate coming into his hands as guardian. (1933, c. 49, s. 3.)

Cross Reference.—As to bond of guardians generally, see § 33-12 et seq.

§ 33-59. General laws applicable. — The public laws relating to guardianships, and particularly this chapter, as far as by their terms they may be applicable, and as far as they are not modified by this article, shall apply to guardians so appointed. (1933, c. 49, s. 3.)

§ 33-60. Other managerial powers conferred.—In addition to the powers given to guardians under the general laws of the state, such guardians may, by approval of the court, apply funds in his hands to the satisfaction of obligations of such absent person, renew notes and other obligations, pledge property for loans necessary in carrying on or liquidating the affairs of such absent person; cause lands to be cultivated, where such business was previously carried on, and make such contracts with reference thereto as he may deem to the best interest of the estate, and, under the direction of the court and with its approval, continue to operate any business or business enterprise of such person, and make such contracts, agreements and settlements in reference thereto as may be necessary, or to the best interests of the estate. (1933, c. 49, s. 4.)

§ 33-61. Discharge of guardian upon return of missing person.—Upon the return of such absent person, and within six months from the filing of the petition by such person to be restored to his property and to the management of his estate, the clerk of the superior court having jurisdiction of the said guardianship shall require a settlement of the estate by the guardian so appointed, and shall cause to be turned over to such person all of the said estate then in the hands of the said guardian, after the payment of such reasonable costs and commissions as may be authorized by law, and, upon the filing of a financial account by the said guardian, he shall be discharged. (1933, c. 49, s. 5.)

§ 33-62. Guardian not liable except for misconduct.—No action shall be maintained against such guardian, or the sureties on his bond, by reason of his appointment, taking over and managing the property of such absent person, or any of his acts with respect to the said estate, where it appears that they were done under authority of this article, but only for recovery because of the misconduct in office or bad faith of such guardian, or the waste of the assets of the estate through mismanagement, amounting to gross carelessness or in violation of the law. (1933, c. 49, s. 6.)

Chapter 34. Veterans' Guardianship Act.

§ 34-2. Definitions.—In this chapter:

The term "person" includes a partnership, corporation or an association.

The term "Bureau" means the United States Veterans' Bureau or its successor.

The terms "estate" and "income" shall include only moneys received by the guardian from the Bureau and all earnings, interests and profits derived therefrom.

The term "benefits" shall mean all moneys payable by the United States through the Bureau.

The term "Director" means the Director of the United States Veterans' Bureau or his successor.

The term "State Service Officer" means such appointee of the North Carolina Commissioner of Labor as provided by § 95-4.

The term "ward" means a beneficiary of the Bureau.

The term "guardian" as used herein shall mean any person acting as a fiduciary for a ward. (1929, c. 33, s. 2.)

§ 34-3. Appointment of guardian for wards entitled to benefits from United States Veterans' Bureau.—Whenever, pursuant to any law of the United States or regulation of the Bureau, the Director requires, prior to payment of benefits, that a guardian be appointed for a ward, such appointment shall be made in the manner hereinafter provided. (1929, c. 33, s. 3.)

§ 34-4. Guardian may not be named for more than five wards; exceptions; banks and trust companies, or where wards are members of same family.—Except as hereinafter provided it shall be unlawful for any person to accept appointment as guardian of any ward if such proposed guardian shall at that time be acting as guardian for five wards. If any case, upon presentation of a petition by an attorney of the Bureau under this section alleging that a guardian is acting in a fiduciary capacity for more than five wards and requesting his discharge for that reason, the court, upon proof substantiating the petition, shall require a final accounting forthwith from such guardian and shall discharge such guardian in said case.

The limitations of this section shall not apply where the guardian is a bank or trust company acting for the wards' estates only. An individual may be guardian of more than five wards if they are all members of the same family. (1929, c. 33, s. 4.)

§ 34-5. Petition for appointment of guardian.—A petition for the appointment of a guardian may be filed in any court of competent jurisdiction by or on behalf of any person who under existing law is entitled to priority of appointment. If there be no person so entitled or if the person so entitled shall neglect or refuse to file such a petition within thirty days after mailing of notice by the Bureau to the last known address of such person indicating the necessity for the same a petition for such appointment may be filed in any court of competent jurisdiction by or on behalf of any responsible person residing in this State.

The petition for appointment shall set forth the name, age, place of residence of the ward, the names and places of residence of the nearest relative, if known, and the fact that such ward is entitled to receive moneys payable by or through the Bureau and shall set forth the amount of moneys then due and the amount of probable future payments.

The petition shall also set forth the name and address of the person or institution, if any, having actual custody of the ward.

In the case of a mentally incompetent ward the petition shall show that such ward has been rated incompetent on examination by the Bureau in accordance with the laws and regulations governing the Bureau. (1929, c. 33, s. 5.)

§ 34-6. Certificate of Director prima facie evidence of necessity for appointment.—Where a petition is filed for the appointment of a guardian of a minor ward a certificate of the Director, or his representative, setting forth the age of such minor as shown by the records of the Bureau and the fact that the appointment of a guardian is a condition precedent to the payment of any moneys due the minor by the Bureau, shall be prima facie evidence of the necessity for such appointment. (1929, c. 33, s. 6.)

§ 34-7. Same in regard to guardianship of mentally incompetent wards.—Where a petition is filed for the appointment of a guardian of a mentally incompetent ward a certificate of the Director, or his representative, setting forth the fact that such person has been rated incompetent by the Bureau on examination in accordance with the laws and regulations governing such Bureau; and that the appointment of a guardian is a condition precedent to the payment of any moneys due such person by the Bureau, shall be prima facie evidence of the necessity for such appointment. (1929, c. 33, s. 7.)

§ 34-8. Notice of filing of petition.—Upon the filing of a petition for the appointment of a guardian, under the provisions of this chapter, the court shall cause such notice to be given as provided by law. (1929, c. 33, s. 8.)

§ 34-9. Qualifications of guardian; surety bond.—Before making an appointment under the provisions of this chapter the court shall be satisfied that the guardian whose appointment is sought is a fit and proper person to be appointed. Upon the appointment being made the guardian shall execute and file a surety bond to be approved by the court in an amount not less than the sum then due and estimated to become payable during the ensuing year. The said bond shall be in the form and be conditioned as required of guardians appointed under the guardianship laws of this state. The court shall have power from time to time to require the guardian to file an additional bond.

No bond shall be required of the banks and trust companies licensed to do trust business in North Carolina. (1929, c. 33, s. 9.)

Cross Reference.—As to bond required of guardians appointed under the guardianship laws of this state, see § 33-12 et seq.

§ 34-10. Guardian's accounts to be filed; hearing on accounts.—Every guardian, who shall receive on account of his ward any moneys from the bureau, shall file with the court annually, on the anniversary date of the appointment, in addition to such other accounts as may be required by the court, a full, true, and accurate account under oath of all moneys so received by him, of all disbursements thereof, and showing the balance thereof in his hands at the date of such account and how invested. A certified copy of each of such accounts filed with the court shall be sent by the guardian to the office of the bureau having jurisdiction over the area in which such court is located.

At the time such account is filed the clerk of superior court shall require the guardian to exhibit to the court all investments and bank statements showing cash balance and the clerk of superior court shall certify on the original account and the certified copy which the guardian sends the bureau that an examination was made of all investments and cash balance and that same are correctly stated in the account. If objections are raised to such an accounting, the court shall fix a time and place for the hearing thereon not less than fifteen days nor more than thirty days from the date of filing such objections, and notice shall be given by the court to the aforesaid bureau office and state service officer by mail not less than fifteen days prior to the date fixed for the hearing. Notice of such hearing shall also be given to the guardian. (1929, c. 33, s. 10; 1933, c. 262, s. 1.)

Editor's Note.—Public Laws of 1933, c. 262, omitted the last two sentences of this section as it formerly read and inserted the last three sentences of the present section in lieu thereof. The next to the last and the last sentence as they now read are practically the same as the omitted provision. The third from the last sentence is new with the amendment.

See 11 N. C. Law Rev. 232, for summary of this section.

§ 34-11. Failure to file account cause for removal.—If any guardian shall fail to file any account of the moneys received by him from the Bureau on account of his ward within thirty days after such account is required by either the court or the Bureau, or shall fail to furnish the Bureau a copy of his accounts as required by this chapter, such failure shall be grounds for removal. (1929, c. 33, s. 11.)

§ 34-12. Compensation at 5 per cent; additional compensation; premiums on bonds.—Compensation payable to guardians shall not exceed 5 per cent of the income of the ward during any year. In the event of extraordinary services rendered by such guardian the court may, upon petition and after hearing thereon, authorize additional compensation therefor, payable from the estate of the ward. Notice of such petition and hearing shall be given the proper office of the Bureau and the State Service Officer in the manner provided in § 34-10. No compensation shall be allowed on the corpus of an estate received from a preceding guardian. The guardian may be allowed from the estate of his ward reasonable premiums paid by him to any corporate surety upon his bond. (1929, c. 33, s. 12.)

Where the clerk entered an order allowing a guardian additional compensation for extraordinary services and the Veterans Administration failed to perfect its appeal from the clerk's order, and thereafter applied to the judge of the Superior Court for a writ of certiorari, the petition for certiorari was denied upon the court's finding of laches and demerit. In re Snelgrove, 208 N. C. 670, 182 S. E. 335.

§ 34-13. Investment of funds.—Every guardian shall invest the funds of the estate in any of the following securities:

(a) United States government bonds.

(b) State of North Carolina bonds issued since the year one thousand eight hundred seventy-two.

(c) By loaning the same upon real estate securities in which the guardian has no interest, such loans not to exceed fifty per cent (50%) of the actual appraised or assessed value, whichever may be lower, and said loans when made to be evidenced by a note, or notes, or bond, or bonds, under seal of the borrower and secured by first mortgage or first deed of trust. Said guardian before making such investment on real estate mortgages shall secure a certificate of title from some reputable attorney certifying that the same is the first lien on real estate and also setting forth the tax valuation thereof for the current year: Provided, said guardian may purchase with said funds a home or farm for the sole use of said ward or his dependents upon petition and order of the clerk of superior court, said order to be approved by the resident or presiding judge of the superior court, and provided further that copy of said petition shall be forwarded to said bureau before consideration thereof by said court.

It shall be the duty of guardians who shall have funds invested other than as provided for in this section to liquidate same within one year from the passage of this law: Provided, however, that upon the approval of the judge of the superior court, either residing in or presiding over the courts of the district, the clerk of the superior court may authorize the guardian to extend from time to time, the time for sale or collection of any such investments; that no extension shall be made to cover a period of more than one year from the time the extension is made.

The clerk of the superior court of any county in the state or any guardian who shall violate any of the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, punishable by fine or imprisonment or both in the discretion of the court. (1929, c. 33, s. 13; 1933, c. 262, s. 2.)

Editor's Note.—Prior to the amendment by Public Laws 1933, c. 262, this section merely provided that the guardian should invest the funds as allowed by the law or approved by the court.

Purchase of home for use of dependent sister, see Patrick v. Branch Bkg., etc., Co., 216 N. C. 525, 5 S. E. (2d) 724.

§ 34-14. Application of ward's estate.—A guardian shall not apply any portion of the estate of his ward for the support and maintenance of any person other than his ward, except upon order of the court after a hearing, notice of which has been given the proper officer of the Bureau and the State Service Officer in the manner provided in § 34-10. (1929, c. 33, s. 14.)

§ 34-15. Certified copy of record required by Bureau to be furnished without charge.—Whenever a copy of any public record is required by the Bureau or State Service Officer to be used in determining the eligibility of any person to participate in benefits made available by such Bureau, the official charged with the custody of such public record shall without charge provide the applicant for such benefits or any person acting on his behalf or the representative of such Bureau or State Service Officer with a certified copy of such record. (1929, c. 33, s. 15.)

§ 34-16. Commitment to Veterans' Administration, etc., for care or treatment.—(1) Whenever, in any proceeding under the laws of this state for the commitment of a person alleged to be of unsound mind or otherwise in need of confinement in a hospital or other institution for his proper care, it is determined after such adjudication of the status of such person as may be required by law that commitment to a hospital for mental disease or other institution is necessary for safekeeping or treatment and it appears that such person is eligible for care or treatment by the Veterans' Administration or other agency of the United States government, the court, upon receipt of a certificate from the Veterans' Administration or such other agency showing that facilities are available and that such person is eligible for care or treatment therein, may commit such person to said Veterans' Administration or other agency. The person whose commitment is sought shall be personally served with notice of the pending commitment proceeding in the manner as provided by the law of this state; and nothing in this section shall affect his right to appear and be heard in the proceedings. Upon commitment, such person, when admitted to any facility operated by any such agency within or without this state shall be subject to the rules and regulations of the Veterans' Administration or other agency. The chief officer of any facility of the Veterans' Administration or institution operated by any other agency of the United States to which the person is so committed shall, with respect to such person, be vested with the same powers as superintendents of state hospitals for mental diseases within this state with respect to retention of custody, transfer, parole or discharge. Jurisdiction is retained in the committing or other appropriate court of this state at any time to inquire into the mental condition of the person so committed, and to determine the necessity for continuance of his restraint, and all commitments pursuant to this section are so conditioned.

(2) The judgment or order of commitment by a court of competent jurisdiction of another state or of the District of Columbia, committing a person to the Veterans' Administration, or other agency of the United States government for care or treatment shall have the same force and effect as to the committed person while in this state as in the jurisdiction in which is situated the court entering the judgment or making the order; and the courts of the committing state, or of the District of Columbia, shall be deemed to have retained jurisdiction of the person so committed for the purpose of inquiring into the mental condition of such person, and of determining the necessity for continuance of his restraint; as is provided in subsection (1) of this section with respect to persons committed by the courts of this state. Consent is hereby given to the application of the law of the committing state or district in respect to the authority of the chief officer of any facility of the Veterans' Administration, or of any institution operated in this state by any other agency of the United States to retain custody, or transfer, parole or discharge the committed person.

(3) Upon receipt of a certificate of the Veterans' Administration or such other agency of the United States that facilities are available for the care or treatment of any person heretofore committed to any hospital for the insane or other institution for the care or treatment of persons similarly afflicted and that such person is eligible for care or treatment, the superintendent of the institution may cause the transfer of such person to the Veterans' Administration or other agency of the United States for care or treatment. Upon effecting any such transfer, the committing court or proper officer thereof shall be notified thereof by the transferring agency. No person shall be transferred to the Veterans' Administration or other agency of the United States if he be confined pursuant to conviction of any felony or misdemeanor or if he has been acquitted of the charge solely on the ground of insanity, unless prior to transfer the court or other authority originally committing such person shall enter an order for such transfer after appropriate motion and hearing.

Any person transferred as provided in this section shall be deemed to be committed to the Veterans' Administration or other agency of the United States pursuant to the original commitment. (1929, c. 33, s. 16; 1943, c. 424.)

Cross Reference.—As to rules and regulations for state hospitals and powers exercised by the superintendents thereof, see chapter 35.

Editor's Note.—The 1943 amendment rewrote this section.

§ 34-17. Discharge of guardian.—When a minor ward for whom a guardian has been appointed under the provisions of this chapter or other laws of this state shall have attained his or her majority, and if incompetent shall be declared competent by the Bureau and the court, and when any incompetent ward, not a minor, shall be declared competent by said Bureau and the court, the guardian shall upon making a satisfactory accounting be discharged upon a petition filed for that purpose. (1929, c. 33, s. 17.)

§ 34-18. Construction of chapter.—This chapter shall be construed liberally to secure the beneficial intents and purposes thereof and shall apply only to beneficiaries of the Bureau. (1929, c. 33, s. 18.)

Chapter 35. Insane Persons and Incompetents.

Art. 1. Inebriates.

§ 35-1. Inebriates defined. — Any person who habitually, whether continuously or periodically, indulges in the use of intoxicating liquors, narcotics or drugs to such an extent as to stupify his mind and to render him incompetent to transact ordinary business with safety to his estate, or who renders himself, by reason of the use of intoxicating liquors, narcotics or drugs, dangerous to person or property, or who, by the frequent use of liquor, narcotics or drugs, renders himself cruel and intolerable to his family, or fails from such cause to provide his family with reasonable necessities of life, shall be deemed an inebriate: Provided, the habit of so indulging in such use is at the time of inquisition of at least one year's standing. (Rev., s. 1892; Code, s. 1671; 1891, c. 15, s. 7; 1903, c. 543; 1879, c. 329; C. S. 2284.)

Art. 2. Guardianship and Management of Estates of Incompetents.

§ 35-2. Inquisition of lunacy; appointment of guardian.—Any person, in behalf of one who is deemed an idiot, inebriate, or lunatic, or incompetent from want of understanding to manage his own affairs by reason of the excessive use of intoxicating drinks, or other cause, may file a petition before the clerk of the superior court of the county where such supposed idiot, inebriate or lunatic resides, setting forth the facts, duly verified by the oath of the petitioner; whereupon such clerk shall issue an order, upon notice to the supposed idiot, inebriate or lunatic, to the sheriff of the county, commanding him to summon a jury of twelve men to inquire into the state of such supposed idiot, inebriate or lunatic. Upon the return of the sheriff summoning said jury, the clerk of the superior court shall swear and organize said jury and shall preside over said hearing, and the jury shall make return of their proceedings under their hand to the clerk, who shall file and record the same; and he shall proceed to appoint a guardian of any person so found to be an idiot, inebriate, lunatic, or incompetent person by inquisition of a jury, as in cases of orphans.

Either the applicant or the supposed idiot, inebriate, lunatic, or incompetent person may appeal from the finding of said jury to the next term of the superior court, when the matters at issue shall be regularly tried de novo before a jury, and pending such appeal, the clerk of the superior court shall not appoint a guardian for the said supposed idiot, inebriate, lunatic, or incompetent person, but the resident judge of the district, or the judge presiding in the district may in his discretion appoint a temporary receiver for the alleged incompetent pending the appeal. The trial of said appeal in the superior court shall have precedence over all other causes.

The jury shall make return of their proceedings under their hands to the clerk, who shall file and record the same; and he shall proceed to appoint a guardian of any person so found to be an idiot, inebriate, lunatic or incompetent person by inquisition of a jury, as in cases of orphans. If the person so adjudged incompetent shall be an inebriate within the definition of section 35-1, the clerk shall proceed to commit said inebriate to the department for inebriates at the state hospital in Raleigh for treatment and cure. He shall forward to the superintendent of said state hospital a copy of the record required herein to be made, together with the commitment, and these shall constitute the authority to said superintendent to receive and care for and cure said inebriate. The expenses of the care and cure of said inebriate shall constitute a charge against the estate in the care of his guardian. If, however, such estate is not large enough to pay such expenses, the same shall be a valid charge against the county from which said inebriate is sent. Provided, where the person is found to be incompetent from want of understanding to manage his affairs, by reason of physical and mental weakness on account of old age and/or disease and/or other like infirmities, the clerk may appoint a trustee instead of guardian for said person. The trustee appointed shall be subject to the laws now or which hereafter may be enacted for the control and handling of estates by guardians. The clerks of the superior courts who have heretofore appointed guardians for persons described in this proviso are hereby authorized and empowered to change said appointment from guardian to trustee. The sheriffs of the several counties to whom a process is directed under the provisions of this section shall serve the same without demanding their fees in advance. And the juries of the several counties upon whom a process is served under the provisions of this section shall serve and make their returns without demanding their fees in advance. (Rev., s. 1890; Code, s. 1670; C. C. P., s. 473; 1919, c. 54; 1921, c. 156, s. 1; 1929, c. 203, s. 1; 1933, c. 192; C. S. 2285.)

As to service of summons upon an insane person, see § 1-97.

Editor's Note.—In 1784 (Laws 1784, ch. 228) the county courts were authorized and required to appoint guardians for any idiot or lunatic possessed of property, either real or personal, upon the finding of a jury of idiocy or lunacy; and later other classes of persons than idiots and lunatics were added, for whom guardians may be appointed. Those added classes are "inebriates and those who are incompetent for want of understanding to manage their own affairs by reason of the excessive use of intoxicating drinks or other cause." These additions were made originally in the Code of Civil Procedure, and have been brought forward in subsequent codes.

This section was amended in 1919, Acts 1919, ch. 54, and the right of appeal given to the parties.

In 1921, Acts 1921, ch. 156, sec. 1, this section was again amended and the latter portion, regarding the commitment of inebriates to the State hospital, was added.

The Act of 1929 added the proviso to this section.

Public Laws 1933, c. 192, added the last two sentences abolishing advanced fees of sheriffs and juries.

The effect of this section is to provide that the proceeding may be commenced by the filing of the petition, and that the inquisition may be held upon the notice therein provided being served upon the alleged incompetent, thereby dispensing with the necessity of issuing a summons. The notice to an incompetent to appear at a time and place named to present evidence and show cause, if any, why he should not be declared incompetent serves every function of a summons. In re Barker, 210 N. C. 617, 620, 188 S. E. 205.

General Consideration.—This section clearly makes four classes of persons for whom guardians may be appointed, namely, idiots, lunatics, inebriates, and those who are incompetent from want of understanding to manage their own affairs by reason of the excessive use of intoxicating drinks or other cause.

(1) An idiot or natural fool is one that has no understanding from his nativity.

(2) A lunatic is one who has possessed reason, but through disease, grief, or other cause has lost it. The term is especially applicable to one who has lucid intervals and may yet in contemplation of the law recover his reason.

(3) An inebriate is defined in sec. 35-1.

(4) The fourth class of persons mentioned in this section must really be embraced under the head of lunatics, that is, their want of understanding in order to render them incompetent to manage their own affairs must be complete. As in lunacy, there must be a total privation of understanding; mere weakness of mind will not be sufficient to place a person in the list of those described in the fourth class mentioned in the statute. In re Anderson, 132 N. C. 243, 246, 43 S. E. 649.

Distribution as to Jurisdiction.—The effect of this action has been to confer upon the clerks original and exclusive jurisdiction to issue writs from time to time, as may be necessary, for the purpose of ascertaining, by the inquisition of a jury, whether a party be an idiot or a lunatic, or, if he had been once found to be a lunatic, whether he had become of sound mind again; and to make all orders that may be necessary upon the return of the inquisition. After an idiot or lunatic has been thus found to be such, and put under guardianship, a court of equity has jurisdiction over his estate, both real and personal, and has power to direct the sale of the same, or any part thereof, and to make all needful orders for the application of the proceeds to the necessities of the idiot or lunatic and his family. Dowell v. Jacks, 58 N. C. 417, 419.

An affidavit filed in accordance with this section, confers jurisdiction upon the clerk, and although the clerk's order of commitment be without warrant of law, the Superior Court obtains jurisdiction upon appeal from the denial of the motion before the clerk to strike out the order, which motion expressly requested that the cause "be reinstated upon the docket." In re Dewey, 206 N. C. 714, 175 S. E. 161.

Presence of Party.—The alleged lunatic has a right to be present at the inquest, and if this right be denied him, it is good cause for setting aside the inquisition. But where an inquisition, taken by order of a court of competent jurisdiction, is returned to and confirmed by the court, it is to be respected like other judgments of a court, until it be reversed or superseded. Bethea v. McLennon, 23 N. C. 523, cited in note in 23 L. R. A. 742.

A finding of the jury that a person, the subject of an inquisition of lunacy, is incompetent from want of understanding to manage his own affairs is such as to require the clerk to appoint a guardian for him, whatever the cause may be. In re Denny, 150 N. C. 423, 64 S. E. 187. And this is true even where the jury finds that the defendant is not a lunatic or idiot. In re Anderson, 132 N. C. 243, 43 S. E. 649, or that defendant was not wholly deprived of reason. In re Denny, 150 N. C. 423, 64 S. E. 187; In re Anderson, 132 N. C. 243, 43 S. E. 649.

Confirmation of Finding.—The report of the jury need not be formally "confirmed" by the clerk as the statute only requires it to be "filed and recorded." Sims v. Sims, 121 N. C. 297, 28 S. E. 407.

Conclusiveness of Adjudication.—An inquisition of lunacy finding a person a lunatic, is only prima facie evidence of the fact, and may be rebutted by proof. Christmas v. Mitchell, 38 N. C. 535.

Erroneous Instruction.—In a proceeding for the appointment of a guardian for respondent on the ground that he was incompetent for "want of understanding to manage his own affairs," respondent held entitled to a new trial for the reason that the court, although giving the respective contentions of the parties upon the issue, failed to define the legal meaning of the term or instruct the jury as to the standard of mental capacity recognized by the law. In re Worsley, 212 N. C. 320, 193 S. E. 666.

Presumed to Lack Capacity to Manage Affairs after Guardian Appointed.—Where a person has been adjudged incompetent for want of understanding to manage his own affairs, under this section, and the court appointed a guardian, and not a trustee, the ward is conclusively presumed to lack mental capacity to manage his own affairs, in so far as parties and privies to the proceeding are concerned; and, while not conclusive as to others, it is presumptive, and the presumption continues unless rebutted in a proper proceeding. Sutton v. Sutton, 222 N. C. 274, 22 S. E. (2d) 553.

Cited in In re Sylivant, 212 N. C. 343, 193 S. E. 422; In re Cook, 218 N. C. 384, 11 S. E. (2d) 142.

§ 35-3. Guardian appointed on certificate from hospital for insane.—If any person is confined in any State, territorial or Governmental asylum or hospital for the insane in this State, or in any other state or territory, or in the District of Columbia, or in any hospital licensed and supervised by the State of North Carolina, the certificate of the superintendent of such hospital declaring such person to be of insane mind and memory, which certificate shall be sworn to and subscribed before the clerk of the Superior Court or any notary public, or the clerk of any court of record in the county, in which such hospital is situated and certified under the seal of court, shall be sufficient evidence to authorize to appoint a guardian for such idiot, lunatic or insane person. Further, the clerks of the different counties of this State are also authorized to appoint guardians for any person entitled to the benefits of the War Risk Insurance Act, as amended, and the World War Veterans' Act of nineteen hundred and twenty-four as amended, where it shall appear from the certificate of the Regional Medical Officer of the United States Veterans' Bureau of North Carolina that such veteran of the World War has been declared by the United States Government as incompetent to receive the funds to be paid to him under said Acts of Congress, and such certificate shall be all the proof required as to the incapacity of said veteran to receive such funds and as to the necessity of a guardian. Guardians for such veterans shall be subject to the same provisions of law as guardians of idiots, inebriates, lunatics, and incompetent persons in this State.

Any guardian or trustee appointed prior to April 3, 1939, under the provisions of this section on certificate issued by the superintendent of any hospital licensed and supervised by the State of North Carolina, and any and all proceedings based thereon are hereby validated. (Rev., ss. 1891, 4609; Code, s. 1673; 1860-1, c. 22; 1907, c. 232; 1927, c. 160, s. 1; 1939, c. 330; C. S. 2286.)

Editor's Note.—The 1927 amendment added the latter part of the first paragraph relating to the appointment of guardians for World War veterans. The 1939 amendment inserted after the word "Columbia" in the fifth line the words "or in any hospital licensed and supervised by the State of North Carolina." It also added the second paragraph.

Certificate Must Be from Superintendent of Government Hospital.—The certificates of the superintendents of hospitals for the insane, which are to be received as sufficient evidence for the clerk to appoint a guardian for an insane person, relate to the superintendents of such hospitals under governmental control, and do not include within the meaning of the statute superintendents of private institutions of this character, and the appointment by the clerk of guardians ad litem on their certificates is void. Groves v. Ware, 182 N. C. 553, 109 S. E. 568.

Cited in Somers v. Board of Commissioners, 123 N. C. 582, 585, 31 S. E. 873.

§ 35-4. Restoration to sanity or sobriety; effect; how determined. — When any insane person or inebriate becomes of sound mind and memory, or becomes competent to manage his property, he is authorized to manage, sell and control all his property in as full and ample a manner as he could do before he became insane or inebriate, and a petition in behalf of such person may be filed before the clerk of the superior court of the county of his residence, or before the clerk of the superior court of the county wherein such person is confined or held; provided, however, that in all cases where a guardian has been appointed the cause of action shall be tried in the county where the guardianship is pending, and said guardian shall be made a party to such action before final determination thereof, setting forth the facts, duly verified by the oath of the petitioner (the petition may be filed by the person formerly adjudged to be insane, lunatic, inebriate or incompetent; or by any friend or relative of said person; or by the guardian of said person), whereupon the clerk shall issue an order, upon notice to the person alleged to be no longer insane or inebriate, to the sheriff of the county, commanding him to summon a jury of six freeholders to inquire into the sanity of the alleged sane person, formerly a lunatic, or the sobriety of such alleged restored person, formerly an inebriate. The jury shall make return of their proceedings under their hands to the clerk, who shall file and record the same, and if the jury find that the person whose mental or physical condition inquired of is sane and of sound mind and memory, or is no longer an inebriate, as the case may be, the said person is authorized to manage his affairs, make contracts and sell his property, both real and personal, as if he had never been insane or inebriate. (Rev., s. 1893; Code, s. 1672; 1901, c. 191; 1903, c. 80; 1879, c. 324, s. 4; 1937, c. 311; 1941, c. 145; C. S. 2287.)

Editor's Note.—The 1937 amendment inserted in this section the words appearing in parenthesis.

The 1941 amendment provided for filing the petition in the county of confinement, except, where a guardian has been appointed, in which case the petition is to be filed in the county where such guardianship is pending.

For comment on the 1941 amendment, see 19 N. C. Law Rev. 486.

Constitutionality of Section.—The constitutional provision preserving the right to a trial by jury applies only to cases in which the prerogative existed at common law or by statute at the time the Constitution was adopted, and this section, requiring that only six freeholders shall be summoned to inquire into the sanity of the person alleged to be insane, is constitutional, not requiring a jury of twelve. Groves v. Ware, 182 N. C. 553, 109 S. E. 568.

Removal of Guardian.—Ex parte proceedings to remove a guardian of an insane person, without notice to such guardian, are void. Sims v. Sims, 121 N. C. 297, 28 S. E. 407, 40 L. R. A. 737, 61 Am. St. Rep. 665.

Appeal.—Petitioner, who had been adjudged non compos mentis under section 35-2, filed this petition under this section, to have herself adjudged no longer insane, and prayed for the discharge of her guardian and the possession of her property. Upon the finding of the jury she was adjudged no longer insane and the prayers of her petition granted. Her guardian appealed to the superior court. It was held that the appeal should have been dismissed, since this section does not provide for appeal. Whether the clerk's order could be reviewed by the superior court pursuant to a writ of certiorari, and whether the clerk's order was void ab initio on the ground that the person adjudged insane cannot file a petition under this section, held not presented for decision, but semble, the clerk's order was voidable and not void, and it was error for the superior court to dismiss the proceeding. In re Sylivant, 212 N. C. 343, 193 S. E. 422.

A guardian of an incompetent may not appeal from the finding of the jury or the order of the clerk entered thereon declaring such person sane and competent in proceedings under this section, the guardian having no interest adverse to such declaration and there being no right of appeal given him by statute. In re Dry, 216 N. C. 427, 5 S. E. (2d) 142.

§ 35-5. Legal rights restored upon certificate of sanity by superintendent of hospital. — Any person who has been declared of unsound mind and memory under § 35-3, and for whom a guardian has been appointed, may be fully restored to his rights to manage his or her property by a certificate from the superintendent of the hospital where such person of unsound mind and memory has been confined stating that such insane person has been restored to sound mind and memory. This certificate shall be sworn to and subscribed before the clerk of the superior court or notary public for the county in which the hospital wherein such person had been confined is located, and certified under the seal of said court to the clerk of the superior court of the county wherein said person had his legal residence immediately before being declared of unsound mind and memory. The clerk of such resident county shall record the certificate and immediately issue a notice to the guardian of such person, requiring him to file his final account within sixty days from the date of service of the notice. From the date of docketing the record of such certificate the person formerly of unsound mind and memory shall be restored to all his legal rights. (1909, c. 176; C. S. 2288.)

§ 35-6. Estates without guardian managed by clerk. — When any person is declared to be of nonsane mind or inebriate, and no suitable person will act as his guardian, the clerk shall secure the estate of such person according to the law relating to orphans whose guardians have been removed. (Rev., s. 1894; Code, s. 1676; R. C., c. 57, s. 6; 1846, c. 43, s. 1; C. S. 2289.)

How Receiver Appointed.—The appointment of a receiver for an insane person's estate should be made only on the motion of the solicitor, after the wife and one or more adult children, if there are such, or some near relative or friend, have been brought before the judge at chambers or in term. § 35-7. Allowance to abandoned insane wife. —When any insane wife is abandoned by her husband, she may, by her guardian, or next friend, in case there be no guardian, apply to the clerk of the superior court for support and maintenance, which the clerk may decree as in cases of alimony, out of any property or estate of her husband. (Rev., s. 1895; Code, s. 1686; 1858-9, c. 52, s. 1; C. S. 2290.)

Cross Reference.—As to alimony, see § 50-16.

§ 35-8. Renewal of obligations by guardians.— In all cases where a guardian has been appointed for a person who has been judicially declared to be an inebriate, lunatic, or incompetent from want of understanding to manage his or her own affairs by reason of the excessive use of intoxicating drink or other causes, and said person is the maker or one of the makers, a surety or one of the sureties, an indorser or one of the indorsers of any note, bond, or other obligation for the payment of money, which is due or past due at the time of the appointment of the guardian, or shall thereafter become due prior to the settlement of the estate of said ward, the guardian of said ward's estate is hereby authorized and empowered to execute, as such guardian, a new note, bond, or other obligation for the payment of money, in the same capacity as the ward was obligated, for the same amount or less, but not greater than the sum due on the original obligation. Such new note shall be in lieu of the original obligation of the ward, whether made payable to the original holder or to another. Such guardian is authorized and empowered to renew said note, bond, or other obligation for the payment of money from time to time; and said note, bond, or other obligation so executed by such guardian shall be binding upon the estate of said ward to the same extent and in the same manner and with the same effect that the original bond, note, or other obligation executed by the ward was binding upon his estate: Provided, the time for final payment of the note, bond, or other obligation for the payment of money, or any renewal thereof by said guardian shall not extend beyond a period of two years from the qualification of the original guardian as such upon the estate of said ward. (1927, c. 45, s. 1.)

§ 35-9. Guardian not liable.—The execution of any note, bond or other obligation for the payment of money mentioned in § 35-8 by the guardian of the inebriate, lunatic, or incompetent, shall not be held or construed to be binding upon the said guardian personally. (1927, c. 45, s. 2.)

Art. 3. Sales of Estates.

§ 35-10. Clerk may order sale, renting or mortgage.—When it appears to any clerk of the superior court by report of the guardian of any idiot, inebriate or lunatic, that his personal estate has been exhausted, or is insufficient for his support, and that he is likely to become chargeable on the county, the clerk may make an order for the sale, mortgage or renting of his personal or real estate, or any part thereof, in such manner and upon such terms as he may deem advisable. Such order shall specify particularly the property thus to be disposed of, with the terms of renting or sale or mortgage, and shall be entered at length on the records of the court; and all sales and rentings and conveyances by mortgages or deeds in trust made under this section shall be valid to convey the interest and estate directed to be sold or conveyed by mortgage or deed in trust, and the title thereof shall be conveyed by such person as the clerk may appoint on confirming the sale; or the clerk may direct the guardian to file his petition for such purpose. (Rev., s. 1896; Code, s. 1674; R. C., c. 57, s. 4; 1801, c. 589; 1931, c. 184, s. 1; C. S. 2291.)

Cross References.—See annotations under § 35-11. As to manner in which sales and rentals shall be made, see § 33-21 et seq., and § 33-31.

Editor's Note.—The Act of 1931 amended this and § 35-11 to permit the mortgaging, under order of the Clerk of the Superior Court, of the personal or real estate of any idiot, inebriate, or lunatic in order that such incompetent may be adequately supported, his debts paid, or his property disposed of if such disposal be to his best interests. Under the former law his property could only be sold or rented. 9 N. C. Law Rev. 392.

Judicial Character of Sales.—Sales of real property of a lunatic in proceedings before the proper probate judge or clerk of the superior court of North Carolina acting as a probate court are judicial sales. Rexford v. Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co., 181 Fed. 462.

§ 35-11. Purposes for which estate sold or mortgaged; parties; disposition of proceeds. — When it appears to the clerk, upon the petition of the guardian of any idiot, inebriate or lunatic, that a sale or mortgage of any part of his real or personal estate is necessary for his maintenance, or for the discharge of debts unavoidably incurred for his maintenance, or when the clerk is satisfied that the interest of the idiot, inebriate or lunatic would be materially and essentially promoted by the sale or mortgage of any part of such estate; or when any part of his real estate is required for public purposes, the clerk may order a sale thereof to be made by such person, in such way and on such terms as he shall adjudge. The clerk, if it be deemed proper, may direct to be made parties to such petition the next of kin or presumptive heirs of such nonsane person or inebriate. And if on the hearing the clerk orders such sale or mortgage, the same shall be made and the proceeds applied and secured, and shall descend and be distributed in like manner as is provided for the sale of infants' estates decreed in like cases to be sold on application of their guardians, as directed in the chapter entitled Guardian and Ward. The word "mortgage" whenever used herein shall be construed to include deeds in trust. (Rev., s. 1897; Code, s. 1675; R. C., c. 57, s. 5; 1931, c. 184, s. 2; C. S. 2292.)

Cross References.—As to sale of estates of wards generally, see § 33-31 et seq. As to release of lands condemned under the power of eminent domain, see § 40-22.

Jurisdiction of Superior Court as to Prior Debts.—The superior courts have jurisdiction to hear and determine an action instituted by a creditor of a lunatic for the recovery of a debt contracted prior to the lunacy. Blake v. Respass, 77 N. C. 193.

Clerk Has No Power to Pay Prior Debts of Lunatic.—This section confers no power upon the clerk to provide for the payment of the debts of a lunatic contracted prior to the lunacy. Blake v. Respass, 77 N. C. 193.

How Property Sold for Pre-Existing Debt.—Property of a lunatic in the hands of a committee is to be regarded as in custodia legis, and no creditor can reach it for a debt pre-existing the inquisition of lunacy, except through the order of the superior court; and that order is never made until a sufficiency for the support of the lunatic and that of his family, if minors, is first ascertained and set apart. Adams v. Thomas, 81 N. C. 296.

Sale of Lunatic's Contingent Interest.—This section does not confer jurisdiction on the clerks of courts to order the sale of contingent interests of lunatics, in lands; and suits to sell such interests, when the circumstances of the lunatic require it, should be determined in the superior court, in its equitable jurisdiction. Smith v. Witter, 174 N. C. 616, 94 S. E. 402.

Clerk's Jurisdiction Not Affected by Petition for Sale.—The probate court having jurisdiction of a petition for the allotment of a maintenance for a lunatic and his family, to discharge debts unavoidably incurred for that purpose, and to direct sales of real estate to provide a fund therefor, and also to make provision for the care and preservation of the lunatic's estate, it was not ousted of jurisdiction because the guardian's petition also prayed for a sale to provide for the payment of pre-existing debts. Rexford v. Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co., 181 Fed. 462.

Title of Purchaser.—A purchaser of real property at a sale held by a lunatic's commissioner under a probate order is not chargeable with errors or irregularities in the proceedings; it is sufficient, if the court had jurisdiction of the parties and subject-matter, that the commissioner acted under a decree purporting to confer power of sale. Rexford v. Brunswick Balke-Collender Co., 181 Fed. 462.

How Judgment against Lunatic Satisfied.—If the lunatic has property which cannot be reached by execution, the court will ascertain its character and value, and then direct the guardian to apply to the clerk to ascertain and set apart a sufficiency for the support of the lunatic, out of the fund, and, in the meantime, stay further proceedings, and then apply the excess, if any, in satisfaction of the judgment. Blake v. Respass, 77 N. C. 193, 196.

§ 35-12. Sale of land of wife of lunatic upon petition.—Where the wife of a lunatic owns real estate in her own right the sale of which will promote her interest, a sale of the same may be made upon the order of the clerk of the superior court of the county where the land lies, upon the petition of the wife of said lunatic and the guardian of the lunatic husband, and the proceeds of said sale shall be paid to the wife of said lunatic.

Section Not Mandatory.—The remedies given by this section and sec. 52-5 are in the alternative, and optional by the wife as to which may be pursued. Lancaster v. Lancaster, 178 N. C. 22, 100 S. E. 120.

§ 35-13. Wife of insane person entitled to special proceeding for sale of his property.—Every woman whose husband is a lunatic or insane and is confined in an asylum in this state, and who was living with her husband at the time he was committed to such asylum, if she be in needy circumstances, shall have the right to bring a special proceeding before the clerk of the superior court to sell the property of her insane husband, or so much thereof as is deemed expedient, and have the proceeds applied to her support: Provided, that said proceeding shall be approved by the judge of the superior court holding the courts of the judicial district where the said property is situated. When the deed of the commissioner appointed by the court, conveying the lands belonging to the insane husband is executed, probated, and registered, it conveys a good and indefeasible title to the purchaser. (1911, c. 142, ss. 1, 2; C. S. 2294.)

Art. 4. Mortgage or Sale of Estates Held by the Entireties.

§ 35-14. Where one spouse or both incompetent; special proceeding before clerk.—In all cases where a husband and wife shall be seized of property as an estate by the entireties, and the wife or the husband or both shall be or become mentally incompetent to execute a conveyance of the estate so held, and the interest of said parties shall make it necessary or desirable that such property be mortgaged or sold, it shall be lawful for the mentally competent spouse and/or the guardian of the mentally incompetent spouse, and/or the guardians of both (where both are mentally incompetent) to file a petition with the clerk of the superior court in the county where the lands are located, setting forth all facts relative to the status of the owners, and showing the necessity or desirability of the sale or mortgage of said property, and the clerk, after first finding as a fact that either the husband or wife, or both, are mentally incompetent, shall have power to authorize the interested parties and/or their guardians to execute a mortgage, deed of trust, deed, or other conveyance of such property, provided it shall appear to said clerk's satisfaction that same is necessary or to the best advantage of the parties, and not prejudicial to the interest of the mentally incompetent spouse. (1935, c. 59, s. 1.)

Editor's Note.—For a complete analysis of this article, see 13 N. C. Law Rev. 376.

§ 35-15. General law applicable; approved by judge.—The proceedings herein provided for shall be conducted under and shall be governed by laws pertaining to special proceedings, and it shall be necessary for any sale or mortgage or other conveyance herein authorized to be approved by the resident judge or the judge holding the courts in the judicial district wherein the property is located. (1935, c. 59, s. 2.)

Cross Reference.—As to general law on special proceedings, see § 1-393 et seq.

§ 35-16. Proceeding valid in passing title. — Any mortgage, deed, or deed of trust executed under authority of this article by a regularly conducted special proceeding as provided shall have the force and effect of passing title to said property to the same extent as a deed executed jointly by husband and wife, where both are mentally capable of executing a conveyance. (1935, c. 59, s. 3.)

§ 35-17. Clerk may direct application of funds; purchasers and mortgages protected.—In all cases conducted under this article it shall be competent for the court, in its discretion, to direct the application of funds arising from a sale or mortgage of such property in such manner as may appear necessary or expedient for the protection of the interest of the mentally incompetent spouse: Provided, however, this section shall not be construed as requiring a purchaser or any other party advancing money on the property to see to the proper application of such money, but such purchaser or other party shall acquire title unaffected by the provisions of this section. (1935, c. 59, s. 4.)

§ 35-18. Prior sales and mortgages validated.—Any and all special proceedings under which estates by the entireties have been sold or mortgaged prior to March 5, 1935, under circumstances contemplated in this article are hereby in all respects ratified and confirmed, provided that such proceeding or proceedings are otherwise regular and conformable to law. (1935, c. 59, s. 5.)

Art. 5. Surplus Income and Advancements.

§ 35-19. Income of insane widowed mother used for children's support.—When a father dies leaving him surviving minor children and a widow who is the mother of such children, but leaving no sufficient estate for the support and maintenance and education of such minor children, and the mother is or becomes insane and is so declared according to law, and such insanity continues for twelve months thereafter, and she has an estate which is placed in the hands of a guardian or other person, as provided by law, the estate of such insane mother shall in such cases as are provided for in § 35-20 be made liable for the support, maintenance and education of the class of persons mentioned in said section to the same extent, in the same manner and under the same rules and regulations as applies to estates of fathers thereunder. (Rev., s. 1899; 1905, c. 546; C. S. 2295.)

§ 35-20. Advancement of surplus income to certain relatives.—When any nonsane person, of full age, and not having made a valid will, has children or grandchildren (such grandchildren being the issue of a deceased child), and is possessed of an estate, real or personal, whose annual income is more than sufficient abundantly and amply to support himself, and to support, maintain and educate the members of his family, with all the necessaries and suitable comforts of life, it is lawful for the clerk of the superior court for the county in which such person has his residence to order from time to time, and so often as may be judged expedient, that fit and proper advancements be made, out of the surplus of such income, to any such child, or grandchild, not being a member of his family and entitled to be supported, educated and maintained out of the estate of such person. Whenever any nonsane person of full age, not being married and not having issue, be possessed, or his guardian be possessed for him, of any estate, real or personal, or of an income which is more than sufficient amply to provide for such person, it shall be lawful for the clerk of the Superior Court for the county in which such person resided prior to insanity to order from time to time, and so often as he may deem expedient, that fit and proper advancements be made, out of the surplus of such estate or income, to his or her parents, brothers and sisters, or grandparents to whose support, prior to his insanity, he contributed in whole or in part. (Rev., s. 1900; Code, s. 1677; R. C., c. 57, s. 9; Ex. Sess. 1924, c. 93; C. S. 2296.)

Advancement to adult child or grandchild.—When such nonsane person is possessed of a real or personal estate in excess of an amount more than sufficient to abundantly and amply support himself with all the necessaries and suitable comforts of life and has no minor children nor immediate family dependent upon him for support, education or maintenance, such advancements may be made out of such excess of the principal of his estate to such child or grandchild of age for the better promotion or advancement in life or in business of such child or grandchild: Provided, that the order for such advancement shall be approved by the resident or presiding judge of the district who shall find the facts in said order of approval. (1925, c. 136, s. 1.)

§ 35-22. For what purpose and to whom advanced. — Such advancements shall be ordered only for the better promotion in life of such as are of age, or married, and for the maintenance, support and education of such as are under the age of twenty-one years and unmarried; and in all cases the sums ordered shall be paid to such persons as, in the opinion of the clerk, will most effectually execute the purpose of the advancement. (Rev., s. 1901; Code, s. 1678; R. C., c. 57, s. 10; C. S. 2297.)

§ 35-23. Distributees to be parties to proceeding for advancement.—In every application for such advancements, the guardian of the nonsane person and all such other persons shall be parties as would at that time be entitled to a distributive share of his estate if he were then dead. (Rev., s 1902; Code, s. 1679; R. C., c. 57, s. 11; C. S. 2298.)

§ 35-24. Advancements to be equal; accounted for on death.—The clerk, in ordering such advancements, shall, as far as practicable, so order the same as that, on the death of the nonsane person, his estate shall be distributed among his distributees in the same equal manner as if the advancements had been made by the person himself; and on his death every sum advanced to a child or grandchild shall be an advancement, and shall bear interest from the time it may be received. (Rev., s. 1903; Code, s. 1680; R. C., c. 57, s. 12; C. S. 2299.)

§ 35-25. Clerk may select those to advance.—When the surplus aforesaid or advancement from the principal estate is not sufficient to make distribution among all the parties, the clerk may select and decree advancement to such of them as may most need the same, and may apportion the sum decreed in such amounts as are expedient and proper. (Rev., s. 1904; Code, s. 1681; R. C., c. 57, s. 13; 1925, c. 136, s. 2; C. S. 2300.)

§ 35-28. Advancements only when insanity permanent. — No such application shall be allowed under this chapter but in cases of such permanent and continued insanity as that the nonsane person shall be judged by the clerk to be incapable, notwithstanding any lucid intervals, to make advancements with prudence and discretion. (Rev., s. 1907; Code, s. 1684; R. C., c. 57, s. 16; C. S. 2303.)

§ 35-29. Decrees suspended upon restoration of sanity.—Upon such insane person being restored to sanity, every order made for advancements shall cease to be further executed, and his estate shall be discharged of the same. (Rev., s. 1908; Code, s. 1685; R. C., c. 57, s. 17; C. S. 2304.)

Art. 6. Detention, Treatment, and Cure of Inebriates.

§ 35-30. "Inebriate" defined.—For the purposes of this article, the word "inebriate" is defined to be a person habitually so addicted to alcoholic drinks or narcotic drugs as to be a proper subject for restraint, care, and treatment. (1921, c. 156, s. 2; C. S. 2304(a).)

§ 35-31. Petition for examination; warrant for hearing; action without petition; evidence.—Upon petition of any two of the following persons, to-wit, the wife, husband, parent, child, committee of the estate of an inebriate, or next friends of such person, or, if there be no such persons, then of two citizens of the county wherein the alleged inebriate resides, the clerk of the superior court of the county in which the said alleged inebriate resides shall issue his warrant requiring the inebriate, on a day fixed, to be brought into court for a hearing. The petition shall not be considered unless it sets forth that the person named therein is an inebriate within the scope of this article, and unless it be accompanied by the affidavit or affidavits of at least two reputable physicians, stating that they have examined the alleged inebriate, and that he is a proper subject for restraint, care, and treatment, or the clerk may, on his own initiative, where he has information and reasonable grounds to believe that a particular person is an inebriate and is a fit subject for restraint, care, and treatment, cause such person to be brought before him and proceed to hear and try the question of whether or not he is an inebriate within the definition of § 35-30. If two reputable physicians shall certify before him that such person is an inebriate, he may commit such an inebriate as herein provided to the department of the state hospital at Raleigh provided for the care and treatment of such inebriate. (1921, c. 156, s. 3; 1941, c. 226; C. S. 2304(b).)

Editor's Note.—The 1941 amendment rewrote the first sentence of this section so as to permit the petition to be filed by any two citizens in the absence of those specified.

§ 35-32. Commitment for treatment; discharge.—If after such hearing the clerk is satisfied that the alleged inebriate is a proper subject for restraint, care, and treatment, he shall commit the inebriate to the department for inebriates at the state hospital in Raleigh, where he shall be treated, subject to the same rules and regulations as provided for the treatment and cure of curable insane persons, and he shall be discharged therefrom under the same rules and regulations. (1921, c. 156, s. 4; C. S. 2304(c).)

§ 35-33. Inquiry as to estate of inebriate; minors; costs; expenses.—After the clerk shall determine that an inebriate is a fit subject to be committed to the department for inebriates as aforesaid, he shall go further and inquire as to whether said inebriate is indigent or not in such way that he has not in his own right sufficient estate or property to bear the cost and expense of his restraint, care, and treatment while in the institution. If he is so indigent, then he shall inquire further whether or not the petitioning wife or husband has sufficient estate to pay such costs. If the inebriate is a minor he shall determine whether his particular guardian or parent has sufficient estate of the inebriate or his own, if a parent, to pay such costs. In any of these instances, if sufficient estate or property is found to pay such costs, the clerk shall adjudge the payment from such estate, and in all cases, if the petitioning parent has property sufficient to pay, he shall be adjudged to pay costs of the treatment of his minor child. But if in none of these cases sufficient property is found to pay such costs and expenses, the inebriate shall be declared indigent and the actual cost and expense of restraint, care, and treatment of indigent inebriates as herein defined shall be borne and paid by the county from which the inebriate is committed: Provided, that there shall not be included in such cost and expense any charge except for board and clothing. (1921, c. 156, s. 5; C. S. 2304(d).)

§ 35-34. Inebriate submitting himself for treatment.—Any inebriate within the definition of § 35-30 who wishes to submit himself for care and treatment in the department for inebriates at the state hospital in Raleigh, may be received therein as a patient upon his presentation of himself personally at the institution and making arrangements with the superintendent for the actual cost of his detention and treatment. He shall signify his desire in writing, and promise therein to submit himself to the rules and regulations for the government of the institution. When this is done he shall be detained therein and given adequate care and attention. After he has been so detained for thirty days he may secure his release and discharge by ten days notice in writing to the superintendent, or to any one of the assistant physicians in charge of such institution: Provided, said physician or physicians are satisfied that said inebriate has sufficiently recovered to return to his home and not become a menace or charge to society. (1921, c. 156, s. 6; C. S. 2304(e).)

§ 35-35. Department for inebriates. — It shall be the duty of trustees and superintendent of the state hospital at Raleigh to prepare and set apart a department for such inebriates on or before the first day of May, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-two: Provided that, if in the course of care and treatment of said inebriates it developes that they have criminal, mental, or other symptoms indicating they can not be properly taken care of in this department, the superintendent of the hospital is hereby authorized to transfer such patients to any other department under his care, that, in his opinion, the circumstances may justify. (1921, c. 156, s. 7; 1933, c. 341; C. S. 2304(f).)

Editor's Note.—Public Laws of 1933, c. 341, added the proviso relating to inebriates in the state hospital at Raleigh.

Art. 7. Sterilization of Persons Mentally Defective.

§ 35-36. State institutions authorized to sterilize mental defectives.—The governing body or responsible head of any penal or charitable institution supported wholly or in part by the state of North Carolina, or any subdivision thereof, is hereby authorized and directed to have the necessary operation for asexualization, or sterilization, performed upon any mentally diseased, feebleminded or epileptic inmate or patient thereof, as may be considered best in the interest of the mental, moral, or physical improvement of the patient or inmate, or for the public good: Provided, however, that no operation described in this section shall be lawful unless and until the provisions of this article shall first be complied with. (1933, c. 224, s. 1.)

Editor's Note.—See 11 N. C. Law Rev. 254, for full review of this and following sections.

Constitutionality.—The Act of 1929, c. 34, entitled, "an act to provide for the sterilization of the mentally defective and feeble-minded inmates of charitable and penal institutions of the state of North Carolina," was held unconstitutional, being in violation of the provisions of the Fourteenth Amendment, § 1, of the Constitution of the United States, and of the State Constitution, Art. I, § 17, there being no provision in the statute giving a person ordered to be sterilized notice and a hearing or affording him the right to appeal to the courts. Brewer v. Valk, 204 N. C. 186, 167 S. E. 638. The defect does not exist in the present statute. See § 35-48.

§ 35-37. Operations on mental defectives not in institutions.—It shall be the duty of the board of commissioners of any county of North Carolina, at the public cost and expense, to have one of the operations described in § 35-36, performed upon any mentally diseased, feeble-minded or epileptic resident of the county, not an inmate of any public institution, upon the request and petition of the superintendent of public welfare or other similar public official performing in whole or in part the functions of such superintendent, or of the next of kin, or the legal guardian of such mentally defective person: Provided, however, that no operation described in this section shall be lawful unless and until the provisions of this article shall be first complied with. (1933, c. 224, s. 2.)

§ 35-38. Restrictions on such operations.—No operation under this article shall be performed by other than a duly qualified and registered North Carolina physician or surgeon, and by him only upon a written order signed after complete compliance with the procedure outlined in this article by the responsible executive head of the institution or board, or the superintendent of public welfare, or other similar official performing in whole or in part the functions of such superintendent, or the next of kin or legal guardian having custody or charge of the feeble-minded, mentally defective or epileptic inmate, patient or non-institutional individual. (1933, c. 224, s. 3.)

§ 35-39. Prosecutors designated; duties.—If the person upon whom the operation is to be performed is an inmate or patient of one of the institutions mentioned in § 35-36, the executive head of such institution or his duly authorized agent shall act as prosecutor of the case. The county superintendent of public welfare may act as prosecutor or petitioner in instituting sterilization proceedings in the case of any feeble-minded, epileptic, or mentally diseased person who is on parole from a state institution, and in the case of any such person who is an inmate of a state institution, when authorized to do so by the superintendent of such institution. If the person upon whom the operation is to be performed is an inmate or patient of a charitable or penal institution supported by the county, the executive head of such institution or his duly authorized agent, or the county superintendent of welfare or such other official performing in whole or in part the functions of such superintendent of the county in which such county institution is situated, shall act as petitioner in instituting proceedings before the eugenics board. If the person to be operated upon is not an inmate of any such public institution, then the superintendent of welfare or such other official performing in whole or in part the functions of such superintendent of the county of which said inmate, patient, or non-institutional individual to be sterilized is a resident, shall be the prosecutor. It shall be the duty of such prosecutor promptly to institute proceedings as provided by this article in any or all of the following circumstances:

1. When in his opinion it is for the best interest of the mental, moral or physical improvement of the patient, inmate, or non-institutional individual, that he or she be operated upon.

2. When in his opinion it is for the public good that such patient, inmate or non-institutional individual be operated upon.

3. When in his opinion such patient, inmate, or non-institutional individual would be likely, unless operated upon, to procreate a child or children who would have a tendency to serious physical, mental, or nervous disease or deficiency.

4. When requested to do so in writing by the next of kin or legal guardian of such patient, inmate or non-institutional individual.

5. In all cases as provided for in § 35-55. (1933, c. 224, s. 4; 1935, c. 463, s. 1; 1937, c. 243.)

Cross Reference.—As to necessity of sterilization of one adjudged insane before issuance of marriage license, see § 51-12.

Editor's Note.—The 1935 amendment inserted the third sentence of this section, and the 1937 amendment inserted the second sentence.

§ 35-40. Eugenics board of N. C. created.—There is hereby created the eugenics board of North Carolina. All proceedings under this article shall be begun before the said eugenics board. (1933, c. 224, s. 5.)

§ 35-41. Quarterly meetings. — The board of eugenics shall meet at least quarterly in each year in Raleigh for the purpose of hearing all cases that may be brought before it and shall continue in session with appropriate adjournments until all current applications and other pending business have been disposed of. The members shall receive no additional compensation for their services. (1933, c. 224, s. 6.)

§ 35-42. Secretary of board and duties.—The board shall appoint a secretary not a member of the board who shall conduct the business of the board between the times of the regular meetings. Such secretary shall receive all petitions, keep the records, call meetings, and in general act as the executive of said board in such matters as may be delegated to him by said board. (1933, c. 224, s. 7.)

§ 35-43. Proceedings before board. — Proceedings under this article shall be instituted by the petition of said petitioner to the eugenics board. Such petition shall be in writing, signed by the petitioner and duly verfied by his affidavit to the best of his knowledge and belief. It shall set forth the facts of the case and the grounds of his opinion. The petition shall also contain a statement of the mental and physical status of the patient verified by the affidavit of at least one physician who has had actual knowledge of the case and who in the cases of inmates or patients of institutions described in § 35-36 may be a member of the medical staff of said institution. The eugenics board may require that the petitioner submit additional social and medical history in regard to the inmate, patient or individual resident and his family. The prayer of said petition shall be that an order be entered by said board authorizing the petitioner to perform, or to have performed by some competent physician or surgeon to be designated by him in the petition or by said board in its order upon said inmate, patient or individual resident named in said petition in its discretion that the operation of sterilization or asexualization as specified in § 35-36 which shall be best suited to the interests of the said inmate or patient or to the public good. (1933, c. 224, s. 8; 1935, c. 463, s. 2.)

Editor's Note.—This section was so changed by the 1935 amendment that a comparison is necessary to determine the full extent.

§ 35-44. Copy of petition served on patient.—A copy of said petition, duly certified by the secretary of the said board to be correct, must be served upon the inmate, patient or individual resident, together with a notice in writing signed by the secretary of the said board designating the time and place not less than fifteen days before the presentation of such petition to said board when and where said board will hear and act upon such petition. It shall be sufficient service if the copy of said petition and notice in writing be delivered to said inmate, patient or individual resident, and it shall not be necessary to read the above mentioned document to said patient, inmate or individual resident.

A copy of said petition, duly certified to be correct, and the said notice must also be served upon the legal or natural guardian and next of kin of the inmate, patient or individual resident. If no near relative is known, the copy and notice shall be sent to the solicitor of the county in which the inmate, patient or individual resident resides, and it shall be his duty to protect the rights and best interests of the said inmate, patient or individual resident.

If there is no next of kin and no solicitor in said county, or if there is no known guardian of said inmate, patient, or individual resident and the said inmate, patient or individual resident is of such mental condition as not to be competent reasonably to conduct his own affairs, then the said prosecutor shall apply to the superior court of the county in which the inmate, patient or individual resident resides or to the judge thereof in vacation, who shall appoint some suitable person to act as guardian of the said inmate during and for the purposes of proceedings under this article, to defend the rights and interests of the said inmate, patient or individual resident. And such guardian shall be served likewise with a copy of the aforesaid petition and notice, and shall under all circumstances be given at least fifteen days' notice of said hearing. Such guardian may be removed or discharged at any time by the said court or the judge thereof in vacation and a new guardian appointed and substituted in his place.

If the said inmate or patient be under twenty-one years of age and have a living parent or parents whose names and addresses are known or can by reasonable investigation be learned by said prosecutor, they or either of them, as the case may be, shall be served likewise with a copy of said petition and notice and shall be entitled to at least fifteen days' notice of the said hearing: Provided, that the procedure described in this section shall not be necessary in the case of any operation for sterilization or asexualization provided for in this article if the parent, legal or natural guardian, or spouse or next of kin of the inmate, patient or non-institutional individual shall submit to the superintendent of the institution of which the subject is a patient or inmate or to the superintendent of public welfare of the county in which the subject is residing, regardless of whether the subject is a legal resident of such county, a duly witnessed petition requesting that sterilization or asexualization be performed upon said inmate, patient or non-institutional individual, provided the other provisions of this article are complied with. Any operation authorized in accordance with this proviso may be performed immediately upon receipt of the authorization from the eugenics board. (1933, c. 224, s. 9; 1935, c. 463, ss. 3, 6.)

Editor's Note.—Public Laws 1935, chapter 463, section 6 added the proviso at the end of this section. Section 3 of the same act added the last sentence to the first paragraph.

§ 35-45. Consideration of matter by board.—The said board at the time and place named in said notice, with such reasonable continuances from time to time and from place to place as the said board may determine, shall proceed to hear and consider the said petition and evidence offered in support of and against the same: Provided, that the said board shall give opportunity to said inmate, patient or individual resident to attend the said hearings in person if desired by him or if requested by his guardian or next of kin, or the solicitor.

The said board may receive and consider as evidence at the said hearings the commitment papers and other records of the said inmate or patient with or in any of the aforesaid institutions as certified by the superintendent or executive official, together with such other evidence as may be offered by any party to the proceedings.

Any member of the said board shall have power for the purposes of this article to administer oaths to any witnesses at such hearing.

Depositions may be taken, as in other civil cases, by any party after due notice and read in evidence, if otherwise pertinent.

Any party to the said proceedings shall have the right to be represented by counsel at such hearings.

A stenographic transcript of the proceedings at such hearings duly certified by the petitioner and the inmate, patient or individual resident, or his guardian or next of kin, or the solicitor, shall be made and preserved as part of the records of the case. (1933, c. 224, s. 10.)

§ 35-46. Board may deny or approve petition.—The said board may deny the prayer of the said petition or if, in the judgment of the board, the case falls within the intent and meaning of one or more of the circumstances mentioned in § 35-39, and an operation of asexualization or sterilization seems to said board to be for the best interest of the mental, moral or physical improvement of the said patient, inmate or individual resident or for the public good, it shall be the duty of the board to approve said recommendation in whole or in part or to make such order as under all the circumstances of the case may seem appropriate, within fifteen days after the conclusion of said hearings, and to send to the prosecutor a written order, signed by at least three members of the board, directing him to proceed with the operation as provided in this article. Said order shall contain the name of the specific operation which is to be performed and the date when said operation is to be performed.

If the board disapproves the petition, the case may not be brought up again except on the request of the inmate, patient, or individual resident, or his guardian, or one or more of his next of kin, husband, wife, father, mother, brother, or sister, until one year has elapsed.

Nothing in this article shall be construed to empower or authorize the board to interfere in any manner with the right of the patient, inmate, or individual resident, or his guardian or next of kin to select a competent physician of his own choice for consultation or operation at his own expense. (1933, c. 224, s. 11.)

§ 35-47. Orders may be sent parties by registered mail; consenting to operation.—Any order granting the prayer of the petition, in whole or in part, may be delivered to the petitioner by registered mail, return receipt demanded, to all parties in the case, including the legal guardian, the solicitor and the next of kin of the inmate, patient, or individual resident. It shall be the duty of the said guardian, the solicitor and the next of kin to protect by such measures as may seem to them in their sole discretion sufficient and appropriate the rights and best interests of the said inmate, patient, or individual resident.

If the inmate, patient or individual resident, or the next of kin, legal guardian, solicitor of the county, and guardian appointed as herein provided, after the said hearing but not before, shall consent in writing to the operation as ordered by the board, such operation shall take place at such time as the said prosecutor petitioning shall designate. (1933, c. 224, s. 12.)

§ 35-48. Right of appeal to superior court.—If it appears to the inmate, patient or individual resident, or to his or her representative, guardian, parent or next of kin, or to the solicitor, that the proceedings taken are not in accordance with the law, or that the reasons given for asexualization or sterilization are not adequate or well founded, or for any other reason the order is not legal, or is not legal as applied to this inmate, patient or individual resident, he or she may within fifteen days from the date of such order have an appeal of right to the superior court of the county in which said inmate or patient resided prior to admission to the institution, or the county in which the non-institutional individual resides. This appeal may be taken by giving notice in writing to any member of the board and to the other parties to the proceeding, including the doctor who is designated to perform the said operation. Upon the giving of this notice the petitioner within fifteen days thereafter shall cause a copy of the petition, notice, evidence and orders of the said board certified by any member thereof to be sent to the clerk of the said court, who shall file the same and docket the appeal to be heard and determined by the said court as soon thereafter as may be practicable.

The presiding judge of said superior court may hear the appeal upon affidavit or oral evidence and in determining such an appeal may consider the record of the proceedings before the eugenics board, including the evidence therein appearing together with such other legal evidence as may be offered to the said judge by any party to the appeal. In hearing such an appeal the general public may be excluded and only such persons admitted thereto as have direct interest in the case.

Upon such appeal the said superior court may affirm, revise, or reverse the orders of the said board appealed from and may enter such order as it deems just and right and which it shall certify to the said board.

The pendency of such appeal shall automatically, and without more, stay proceedings under the order of the said board until the appeal be completely determined. Should the decision of the superior court uphold the plaintiff's objection, such decision unless appealed from will annul the order of the board to proceed with the operation, and the matter may not be brought up again until one year has elapsed except by the consent of the plaintiff or his next of kin, or his legal representatives. Should the court affirm the order of the board, then, if no notice of appeal to the supreme court is filed within ten days after such decision, said board's recommendation as affirmed shall be put into effect at a time fixed by the original prosecutor or his successor in office and the inmate, patient or individual shall be asexualized or sterilized as provided in this article.

In this appeal the person for whom an order of asexualization or sterilization has been issued shall be designated as the plaintiff, and the prosecutor presenting the original petition shall be designated as defendant. (1933, c. 224, s. 13; 1935, c. 463, s. 4.)

Cross Reference.—See note to § 35-36.

Editor's Note.—The second paragraph of this section was changed by the 1935 amendment. The amendment also inserted in the second sentence of the fourth paragraph the words "unless appealed from."

§ 35-49. Appeal costs.—The cost of appeal, if any, to the superior or higher courts, shall be taxed as in civil cases. If the case is finally determined in favor of the plaintiff, the costs shall be paid by the county. (1933, c. 224, s. 14; 1935, c. 463, s. 5.)

Editor's Note.—The amendment of 1935 omitted the paragraph of this section which provided that the record before the board was conclusive as to facts.

§ 35-50. Appeal to supreme court.—Any party to such appeal to the superior court may, within ten days after the date of the final order therein, apply for an appeal to the supreme court, which shall have jurisdiction to hear and determine the same upon the record of the proceedings in the superior court and to enter such order as it may find the superior court should have entered.

The pendency of an appeal in the supreme court shall operate as a stay of proceedings under any orders of the said board and the superior court until the appeal be determined by the said supreme court. (1933, c. 224, s. 15.)

§ 35-51. Civil or criminal liability of parties limited. — Neither the said petitioner nor any other person legally participating in the execution of the provisions of this article shall be liable, either civilly or criminally, on account of such participation, except in case of negligence in the performance of said operation. (1933, c. 224, s. 16.)

§ 35-52. Necessary medical treatment unaffected by article.—Nothing contained in this article shall be construed so as to prevent the medical or surgical treatment for sound therapeutic reasons of any person in this state, by a physician or surgeon licensed in this state, which treatment may incidentally involve the nullification or destruction of the reproductive functions. (1933, c. 224, s. 17.)

§ 35-53. Permanent records of proceedings before board.—Records in all cases arising under this article shall be filed permanently with the secretary of the said eugenics board. Such records shall not be open to public inspection except for such purposes as the court may from time to time approve. (1933, c. 224, s. 18.)

§ 35-54. Construction of terms.—Where the inmates, patients, or non-institutional individuals are referred to in this article as of the masculine or feminine gender, the same shall be construed to include the feminine or masculine gender as well. Wherever the term individual resident appears in this article, it shall be construed to mean non-institutional individual. (1933, c. 224, s. 19.)

§ 35-55. Discharge of patient from institution. —Before any inmate or patient designated in §§ 35-36 and 35-39, shall be released, paroled or discharged, it shall be the duty of the governing body or responsible head of any institution above mentioned to comply with the procedure set out in this article, whenever a written request for the asexualization or sterilization of said inmate or patient is filed with the governing body or responsible head of the institution in which such inmate or patient has been legally confined. This written request may be made by any public official or by the legal guardian or next of kin of any inmate or patient not later than thirty days prior to the date of said parole or discharge. Upon the receipt of the signed approval of the eugenics board as described in this article, it shall be the duty of said governing board or responsible head to issue an order for the performance of the operation upon said inmate or patient, and the operation must be performed before the release, parole or discharge of any such inmate or patient. (1933, c. 224, s. 20.)

§ 35-56. Existing rights of surgeons unaffected. —Nothing in Public Laws 1935, chapter 463 shall, in any way, interfere with any surgeon in the removal of diseased pathological tissue from any patient. (1935, c. 463, s. 7.)

§ 35-57. Temporary admission to state hospitals for sterilization.—Any feeble-minded, epileptic, or mentally diseased person, for whom the eugenics board of North Carolina has authorized sterilization, may be admitted to the appropriate state hospital for the performance of such operation. The order of the eugenics board authorizing a surgeon on the regular or consulting staff of the hospital to perform the operation will be sufficient authority to the superintendent of such hospital to receive, restrain, and control the patient until such time as it is deemed wise to release such patient. All such admissions shall be at the discretion of the superintendent of the state hospital, and in making any agreement with any county or any state institution to perform such operations, the state hospital may collect a fee which shall not be greater than the cost of such operation and the cost of care and maintenance for the duration of the operation and the time required for the patient to recuperate.

The order of the eugenics board and the agreement of the superintendent of the state hospital to admit such patient shall be full and sufficient authority for the prosecutor or the sheriff of the county to deliver such patient to the proper state hospital. (1937, c. 221.)

Art. 8. Temporary Care and Restraint of Inebriates, Drug Addicts and Persons Insane.

§ 35-58. Hospitals and sanatoriums may restrain and treat alcohol and drug addicts.—The superintendent, manager, or owner of any public or private hospital, sanatorium, or institution, upon the written request of two duly licensed physicians, not connected with any hospital, public or private, and the husband, wife, guardian, or in the case of an unmarried person having no guardian, by some one of the next of kin, may receive, care for and restrain in such hospital, sanatorium, or institution, as a patient, for a period not exceeding twenty days, any insane person needing immediate care and treatment; or any person needing immediate care, restraint and treatment because such person has become addicted to the intemperate use of narcotics, hypnotic drugs or alcoholic drinks, to such an extent that he has lost the power of self control. Such request for the admission of such patient shall be in writing and filed at such hospital, sanatorium, or institution, at the time of the reception of such patient, or within twenty-four hours thereafter, and such written request shall be held and considered as a commitment of such patient or person to said hospital, sanatorium, or institution, for a period of not exceeding twenty days. The superintendent, manager, or owner of such hospital, sanatorium, or institution shall not detain or restrain any person received as above provided for more than twenty days and shall not be liable in damages to such person or his personal representative or guardian on account of such restraint: Provided, the same is exercised and administered in a humane manner, without violence or personal injury. (1933, c. 213, s. 1.)

§ 35-59. Use of restraining devices limited. — No restraint in the form of muffs or mitts with lock buckles, or waist straps, wristlets, anklets, or camisoles, head-straps, protection sheets or simple sheets when used for restraint or other device interfering with freedom shall be imposed upon any patient in such hospital, sanatorium, or institution, unless applied in the presence of the superintendent, or of the physician, or of an assistant physician of such hospital, sanatorium, or institution. Such device shall be applied only in cases of extreme violence, active homicidal or suicidal intent, physical exhaustion, infectious disease, or following an operation, or accident which has caused serious bodily injury, or to prevent injury to such patient or others, except that in cases of emergency restraint may be imposed without the presence of the superintendent, physician or assistant physician; every such emergency case, after the imposition of such restraint, shall immediately be reported to the superintendent, or manager, physician, or assistant physician of such hospital, sanatorium or institution, who shall immediately investigate the case and approve or disapprove the restraint imposed. (1933, c. 213, s. 2.)

§ 35-60. Civil liability for corrupt admissions. —Nothing contained in this article shall be held or construed to relieve from liability in any suit or action, instituted in the courts of this state, any husband, wife, guardian, physician, or assistant physician, to such person or patient on account of collusion of such husband, wife, guardian, physician or assistant physician to unlawfully, wrongfully and corruptly commit any such person or patient to such hospital, sanatorium, or institution, under the provisions of this article. (1933, c. 213, s. 3.)

(Ex. Sess. 1921, c. 63; 1931, c. 257; C. S. 4018(a).)

Investment in building and loan and federal savings and loan associations.—Guardians, executors, administrators, clerks of the superior court and others acting in a fiduciary capacity may invest funds in their hands as such fiduciaries in stock of any building and loan association organized and licensed under the laws of this state: Provided, that no such funds may be so invested unless and until authorized by the insurance commissioner. Provided further, that such funds may be invested in stock of any federal savings and loan association organized under the laws of the United States, upon approval of an officer of the Home Loan Bank at Winston-Salem, or such other governmental agency as may hereafter have supervision of such associations. (1933, c. 549, s. 1; 1937, c. 14.)

Editor's Note.—The 1937 amendment added the second proviso.

§ 36-4. Investment in registered securities.—Any guardian having in hand surplus funds belonging to a minor ward may, if he so elects, invest the same in registered securities within the classes designated by §§ 36-1 and 36-2, the registration of said securities as to principal only to be in the name of said minor ward.

Upon delivery of such registered securities to the clerk of the superior court of the county in which the estate of said minor ward is being administered, said clerk of the superior court shall give said guardian a receipt for the same and said clerk of the superior court shall thereafter hold said securities for said ward, subject only to final disposition thereof to be approved by the resident judge or presiding judge of the superior court: Provided, however, all income accruing therefrom shall be paid to said guardian in the same manner and for the same purposes as any other income of said estate derived from other sources.

Whenever any guardian shall have delivered to the clerk of the superior court registered securities as hereinbefore provided, he shall be entitled to credit in his account as guardian for the amount actually expended for such securities, and his bond as such guardian shall thereupon be reduced in an amount equal in proportion to the total amount of the bond as the funds expended for the securities are to the total amount of the estate covered by such bond. § 36-4.1. Investment in life, endowment or annuity contracts of legal reserve life insurance companies.—(1) Executors, administrators c. t. a., trustees and guardians legally holding funds or assets belonging to, or for the benefit of, minors or others may, upon petition filed with the clerk of the superior court of the county in which said fiduciary has qualified, be authorized by an order of such clerk of superior court and approved by either the resident judge or a judge of the superior court at term time, to invest such funds or assets, or part thereof, in single premium life, endowment or annuity contracts; any such fiduciaries may be authorized by order of the clerk of the superior court, upon approval by the judge as above provided, to invest the earnings, or part thereof, of such trust funds or assets, without encroaching upon the principal, in any annual premium life, endowment or annuity contracts of legal reserve life insurance companies duly licensed and qualified to transact business within the state: Provided, that where any such annual premium contract has been purchased as herein authorized any such fiduciary may, upon authorization of the clerk of the superior court and approval of the judge as above specified, encroach upon and use the principal of such trust funds or assets in order to pay subsequent premiums and thereby prevent a lapsation or forfeiture of any such insurance contract purchased pursuant to the provisions of this section.

(2) Such contracts may be issued on the life, or lives, of a ward, or wards, and beneficiary, or beneficiaries of a trust fund, or upon the life of any person in whose life the said ward or beneficiary has an insurable interest, and shall be so drawn by the insuring company, that the proceeds or avails thereof shall be the sole property of the person, or persons whose funds are invested therein. Such contracts may not be purchased from any such company for which such executor, administrator c. t. a., guardian or trustee is acting as agent, or receives any commission, or part of any commission, directly or indirectly paid by such company to its agent soliciting and/or selling such contract.

(3) Notwithstanding anything contained in this section no insurance contracts as specified in subsection (1) may be purchased by any executor, administrator c. t. a., trustee, or guardian if the trust agreement or other instrument, if any, under which such fiduciary has qualified and is acting provides otherwise. (1943, c. 473, ss. 1-3.)

§ 36-5. Trust funds deposited at trustee's risk.—No provision in any charter or certificate of organization of any corporation permitting deposits therein by any guardian, executor or other trustee or fiduciary, or by any county, bonded or other officer, shall operate or be construed to relieve or discharge them, or either of them, from official responsibility, or to relieve them, or either of them, or their sureties, from liability on their official bonds. (Rev., s. 1793; 1889, c. 470; C. S. 4019.)

Cross Reference.—As to deposit of trust funds, see §§ 32-8 to 32-11.

Art. 2. Removal of Trust Funds from State.

§ 36-6. Proceeding to remove trust funds of nonresidents.—When any personal estate in this state is vested in a trustee resident therein, and those having the beneficial interest in the said estate are nonresidents of this state, the clerk of the superior court of the county in which the said trustee resides may, on a petition filed for that purpose, order him or his personal representative to pay, transfer, and deliver the said estate, or any part of it, to a nonresident trustee appointed by some court of record in the state in which the said beneficiary or beneficiaries reside. No such order of any clerk shall be valid and in force until approved by the resident judge of said judicial district, or the judge holding court in such district. (1911, c. 161, s. 1; C. S. 4020.)

Cross Reference.—As to guardian's right to remove ward's personalty from the state, see § 33-48.

Cited in Fidelity Trust Co. v. Walton, 198 N. C. 790, 793, 153 S. E. 401.

§ 36-7. Removal ordered on notice; bond of nonresident trustee.—No such order shall be made, in the case of a petition, until notice of the application shall have been given to all persons interested in such trust estate, as now required by law in other special proceedings, nor until the court shall be satisfied by authentic documentary evidence that the nonresident trustee, appointed as aforesaid, has given bond, with sufficient surety, for the faithful execution of the trust, nor until it is satisfied that the payment and removal of such estate out of the state will not prejudice the right of any person interested or to become interested therein. (1911, c. 161, s. 2; C. S. 4021.)

Cross References.—As to bond in surety company, see § 109-16 et seq. As to mortgage in lieu of bond, see § 109-24 et seq. As to cash deposit in lieu of bond, see § 109-32.

§ 36-8. Order of removal discharges resident trustee.—When any guardian or committee, trustee or other person in this state, shall pay over, transfer, or deliver any estate in his hands or vested in him, under any order or decree made in pursuance of this article, he shall be discharged from all responsibility therefor. (1911, c. 161, s. 3; C. S. 4022.)

Art. 3. Resignation of Trustee.

§ 36-9. Clerk's power to accept resignations.—The clerks of the superior courts of this state have power and jurisdiction to accept the resignation of executors, administrators, guardians, trustees, and other fiduciaries and to appoint their successors in the manner provided by this article. (1911, c. 39, s. 1; C. S. 4023.)

Cross Reference.—As to resignation of guardian, see also § 33-11.

Appointment by Clerk.—Where a charitable trust is created by a written instrument the court may appoint a trustee, in the exercise of its equitable jurisdiction, to execute the trust when the instrument fails to designate one, or the one designated fails or refuses to act, or one may be appointed under the provisions of this section. Ladies Benevolent Society v. Orrell, 195 N. C. 405, 142 S. E. 493.

Where the trustee appointed by will to administer an active trust dies, the clerk of the Superior Court is without authority to appoint a successor, since the clerk has no authority to administer an equity unless empowered to do so by statute, and this section authorizes the clerk to appoint a successor trustee only when the former trustee resigns. Cheshire v. First Presbyterian Church, 221 N. C. 205, 19 S. E. (2d) 855.

Section Not Extended to Give Jurisdiction. — The equitable jurisdiction of the Superior Courts does not extend to the clerks of court unless expressly given by statute, and this and following sections giving clerks of court a limited power to appoint trustees in certain instances will not be extended to give them jurisdiction of any proceeding unless clearly within the provisions of the statutes. In re Smith, 200 N. C. 272, 156 S. E. 494.

§ 36-10. Petition; contents and verification. — When any executor, administrator, guardian, trustee, or other fiduciary desires to resign his trust, he shall file his petition in the office of the clerk of the superior court of the county in which he qualified or in which the instrument under which he claims is registered. The petition shall set forth all the facts in connection with the appointment and qualification of the applicant as such fiduciary, with a copy of the instrument under which he acts; shall state the names, ages, and residences of all the cestuis que trustent and other parties interested in the trust estate; shall contain a full and complete statement of all debts or liabilities due by the estate, and a full and complete statement of all assets belonging to said estate, and a full and complete statement of all moneys, securities, or assets in the hands of the fiduciary and due the estate, together with a full statement of the reasons why the applicant should be permitted to resign his trust. The petition shall be verified by the oath of the applicant. (1911, c. 39, s. 2; C. S. 4024.)

§ 36-11. Parties; hearing; successor appointed.—Upon the filing of the petition, the clerk shall docket the cause as a special proceeding, with the fiduciary as plaintiff and the cestuis que trustent as defendants, and shall issue summons for the defendants, and the procedure shall be the same as in other special proceedings. If any of the defendants be nonresidents, summons may be served by publication; and if any be infants, a guardian ad litem must be appointed by the court to represent their interests in the manner now provided by law. The cestuis que trustent, creditors, or any other person interested in the trust estate, have the right to answer said petition or traverse the same and to offer evidence why the prayer of the petition should not be granted. The clerk shall then proceed to hear and determine the matter, and if it appears to the court that the best interests of the creditors and the cestuis que trustent demand that the resignation of the fiduciary be accepted, or if it appears to the court that sufficient reasons exist for allowing the resignation, and that the resignation can be allowed without prejudice to the rights of creditors or the cestuis que trustent, the clerk may, in the exercise of his discretion, allow the applicant to resign; and in such case the clerk shall proceed to appoint the successor of the petitioner in the manner provided in this article. (1911, c. 39, s. 3; C. S. 4025.)

§ 36-12. Resignation allowed; costs; judge's approval.—In making an order allowing the fiduciary to resign the clerk shall make such order concerning the costs of the proceedings and commissions to the fiduciary as may be just. If there is no appeal from the decision and order of the clerk within the time prescribed by law, the proceedings shall be submitted to the judge of the superior court and approved by him before the same become effective. (1911, c. 39, s. 3; C. S. 4026.)

§ 36-13. Appeal; stay effected by appeal.—Any party in interest may appeal from the decision of the clerk to the judge at chambers, and in such event the procedure shall be the same as in other special proceedings as now provided by law. If the clerk allows the resignation, and an appeal is taken from his decision, such appeal shall have the effect to stay the judgment and order of the clerk until the cause is heard and determined by the judge upon the appeal taken. (1911, c. 39, s. 4; C. S. 4027.)

§ 36-14. On appeal judge determines facts.—Upon an appeal taken from the clerk to the judge, the judge shall have the power to review the findings of fact made by the clerk and to find the facts or to take other evidence, but the facts found by the judge shall be final and conclusive upon any appeal to the supreme court. (1911, c. 39, s. 5; C. S. 4028.)

§ 36-15. Final accounting before resignation.—No executor, administrator, guardian, trustee, or other fiduciary shall be allowed or permitted to resign his trust until he shall first file with the court his final account of the trust estate, and until the court shall be satisfied that the said account is true and correct. (1911, c. 39, s. 6; C. S. 4029.)

Cross References.—As to vouchers being presumptive evidence, see § 28-119. As to fee for auditing final accounts, see § 2-35.

§ 36-16. Resignation effective on settlement with successor.—In case the resignation of the fiduciary is accepted by the court, the same shall not go into effect, or release or discharge the fiduciary from liability, until he shall have accounted to his successor in full for all moneys, securities, property or other assets or things of value in his possession or under his control or which should be in his possession or under his control belonging to the trust estate. (1911, c. 39, s. 6; C. S. 4030.)

§ 36-17. Court to appoint successor; bond required.—If the court shall allow any executor, administrator, guardian, trustee, or other fiduciary to resign his trust upon compliance with the provisions of this article, it shall be the duty of the court to proceed to appoint some fit and suitable person as the successor of such executor, administrator, guardian, trustee or other fiduciary; and the court shall require the person so appointed to give bond with sufficient surety, approved by the court, in a sum double the value of the property to come into his hands, conditioned upon the faithful performance of his duties as such fiduciary and for the payment to the persons entitled to receive the same of all moneys, assets, or other things of value which may come into his hands. All bonds executed under the provisions of this article shall be filed with the clerk, and shall be recorded in his office in a book kept for that purpose. (1911, c. 39, s. 7; C. S. 4031.)

Cross References.—As to bond in surety company, see § 109-16 et seq. As to mortgage in lieu of bond, see § 109-24 et seq. As to cash deposit in lieu of bond, see § 109-32.

§ 36-18. Rights and duties devolve on successor.—Upon the acceptance by the court of the resignation of any executor, administrator, guardian, trustee, or other fiduciary, and upon the appointment by court of his successor in the manner provided by this article, the substituted trustee shall succeed to all the rights, powers, and privileges, and shall be subject to all the duties, liabilities, and responsibilities that were imposed upon the original trustee. (1911, c. 39, s. 8; C. S. 4032.)

Art. 4. Charitable Trusts.

§ 36-19. Trustees to file accounts.—When real or personal property has been granted by deed, will, or otherwise, for such charitable purposes as are allowed by law, it shall be the duty of those to whom are confided the management of the property and the execution of the trust, to deliver in writing a full and particular account thereof to the clerk of the superior court of the county where the charity is to take effect, on the first Monday in February in each year, to be filed among the records of the court, and spread upon the record of accounts. (Rev., s. 3922; Code, s. 2342; R. C., c. 18, s. 1; 1832, c. 14, s. 1; 43 Eliz., c. 4; C. S. 4033.)

§ 36-20. Action for account; court to enforce trust.—If § 36-19 be not complied with, or there is reason to believe that the property has been mismanaged through negligence or fraud, it shall be the duty of the clerk of the superior court to give notice thereof to the attorney-general or solicitor who represents the state in the superior court for that county; and it shall be his duty to bring an action in the name of the state against the grantees, executors, or trustees of the charitable fund, calling on them to render a full and minute account of their proceedings in relation to the administration of the fund and the execution of the trust. The attorney-general or solicitor may also, at the suggestion of two reputable citizens, commence an action as aforesaid; and, in either case, the court may make such order and decree as shall seem best calculated to enforce the performance of the trust. (Rev., s. 3923; Code, ss. 2343, 2344;

R. C., c. 18, ss. 2, 3; 1832, c. 14, ss. 2, 3; C. S. 4034.)

Trust Estate Is Not Forfeited.—The trustees of a charitable trust who violate the provisions of the trust are subject to the procedure prescribed by this section, and where the trust is created by will the trust estate is not forfeited in favor of a residuary legatee solely upon the ground that the moneys derived have been diverted to other uses than the testator intended. Humphrey v. Board of Trustees, 203 N. C. 201, 165 S. E. 547.

§ 36-21. Not void for indefiniteness; title in trustee; vacancies.—No gift, grant, bequest or devise, whether in trust or otherwise, to religious, educational, charitable or benevolent uses or for the purpose of providing for the care or maintenance of any part of any cemetery, public or private, shall be invalid by reason of any indefiniteness or uncertainty of the objects or beneficiaries of such trust, or because said instrument confers upon the trustee or trustees discretionary powers in the selection and designation of the objects or beneficiaries of such trust or in carrying out the purpose thereof, or by reason of the same in contravening any statute or rule against perpetuities. If a trustee or trustees are named in the instrument creating such a gift, grant, bequest or devise, the legal title to the property given, granted, bequeathed or devised for such purpose shall vest in such trustee or trustees and its or their successor or successors duly appointed in accordance with the terms of such instrument. If no trustee or trustees be named in said instrument, or if a vacancy or vacancies shall occur in the trusteeship, and no method is provided in such instrument for filling such vacancy or vacancies, then the Superior Court of the proper county shall appoint a trustee or trustees, pursuant to § 36-9, to execute said trust in accordance with the true intent and meaning of the instrument creating the same. Such trustee or trustees when so appointed shall be vested with all the power and authority, discretionary or otherwise, conferred by such instrument. (1925, c. 264, s. 1.)

Editor's Note.—See 16 N. C. L. Rev. 22.

Charitable trusts are not subject to the rule against perpetuities, this section being merely declaratory of the existing law, and limitations over from one charity to another may be made to take effect after the period prescribed by the rule against perpetuities. Williams v. Williams, 215 N. C. 739, 3 S. E. (2d) 334.

Charitable trusts are not subject to the rule against perpetuities. Penick v. Bank of Wadesboro, 218 N. C. 686, 12 S. E. (2d) 253.

Appointment of Trustee upon Occurrence of Vacancy.—Where land is conveyed to trustees and their successors for specified charitable purposes, the court may appoint trustees upon failure of the successors to the original trustees, since equity will not permit a trust to fail for want of a trustee, but said trustees should be appointed by the court upon proper application. Lassiter v. Jones, 215 N. C. 298, 1 S. E. (2d) 845.

Trusts Held Valid.—A devise to "the authorities in control of the Deaf, Dumb and Blind Asylum of the State of North Carolina for the use and benefit of the indigent children therein, born blind, of the Caucasian race," constitutes a valid charitable trust. Hass v. Hass, 195 N. C. 734, 143 S. E. 541.

A devise of all the income and profits of lands in trust for a charitable organization of a certain church "to be used by the stewards of the church in defraying the expenses of the institution" is a sufficient designation of the stewards of that church as trustees for the execution of the trust contemplated by the instrument, and to vest in them the title and right of possession for its purposes. Ladies Benevolent Society v. Orrel, 195 N. C. 405, 142 S. E. 493.

The will in question established a trust with provisions that the income from the property should be used for the advancement of a religious denomination and defined the purposes which should be considered as embraced within that term as being the teaching of the gospel according to the church convention, building and repairing churches and parsonages, making donations to educational institutions of that faith and helping young men or women who expressed a desire to enter the church university to obtain the preparatory education therefor. The will further provided, by a proper construction of the instrument, for a contingent limitation over of the corpus of the estate in accordance with the provisions governing the uses of the income. Held: The contingent limitation over of the corpus of the estate is not void for uncertainty as to the purposes and beneficiaries intended, such purposes being sufficiently defined to be effective under this section. Williams v. Williams, 215 N. C. 739, 3 S. E. (2d) 334.

A gift to the trustees of a named church in trust for the home and foreign missions and benevolent causes of that church, was held valid under this section and good as against the contention that no cause was named capable of enforcing a lawful claim, as each benevolent cause supported by that church had an interest in the devise. King v. Richardson, 46 F. Supp. 510.

Trust Held Invalid.—Testator bequeathed a certain sum to his executors to be held in trust, and paid out in twenty years "to such corporations or associations of individuals as will in their judgment best promote the cause of preventing cruelty to animals in the vicinity of Asheville." It was held that although this section provides that a bequest for charitable purposes shall not be held void for indefiniteness of the beneficiary or because discretionary power is conferred upon the trustee to select and designate the beneficiary, in the present case not only is the purpose of the trust indefinite and the beneficiaries unnamed, but the sum is left to the uncontrolled discretion, not of the trustees, but of the beneficiaries to be selected by the trustees, and therefore goes one step beyond the curative provisions of the statute, and the bequest must be held void for uncertainty. Woodcock v. Wachovia Bank, etc., Co., 214 N. C. 224, 199 S. E. 20.

Details of Administration May Be Left to Trustee.—A charity in its legal sense is a gift to be applied consistently with existing laws for the benefit of an indefinite number of persons, and it is the policy of this State, as indicated by our statutes, not to declare such gift void because created for the benefit of an indefinite class, and if the founder describes the general nature of the charitable trust he may leave details of its administration to duly appointed trustees. Whitsett v. Clapp, 200 N. C. 647, 158 S. E. 183.

Cited in Johnson v. Wagner, 219 N. C. 235, 13 S. E. (2d) 419.

§ 36-22. Trusts created in other states valid.—Every such religious, educational or charitable trust created by any person domiciled in another state, which shall be valid under the laws of the state of the domicile of such creator or donor, shall be deemed and held in all respects valid under the laws of this State, even though one or more of the trustees named in the instrument creating said trust shall be domiciled in another state or one or more of the beneficiaries named in said trust shall reside or be located in a foreign state. (1925, c. 264, s. 2.)

§ 36-23. Application of section 36-22.—Section 36-22 shall apply to all trusts heretofore or hereafter created in which one or more of the beneficiaries or objects of such trust shall reside or be located in this State. (1925, c. 264, s. 3.)

Art. 5. Uniform Trusts Act.

§ 36-24. Definitions. — As used in this article unless the context or subject matter otherwise requires:

1. "Person" means an individual, a corporation, a partnership, an association, a joint stock company, a business trust, an unincorporated organization, or two or more persons having a joint or common interest.

2. "Trustee" includes trustees, a corporate as well as a natural person and a successor or substitute trustee.

3. "Relative" means a spouse, ancestor, descendant, brother or sister.

4. "Affiliate" means any person directly or indirectly controlling or controlled by another person, as hereinabove defined, or any person under direct or indirect common control with another person. It includes any person with whom a trustee has an express or implied agreement regarding the purchase of trust investments by each from the other, directly or indirectly, except a broker or stock exchange.

5. "Trust" means an express trust only. (1939, c. 197, s. 1.)

Editor's Note.—For comment on this uniform act, see 17 N. C. Law Rev. 396.

§ 36-25. Bank account to pay special debts.—1. Whenever a bank account shall, by entries made on the books of the depositor and the bank at the time of the deposit, be created exclusively for the purpose of paying dividends, interest or interest coupons, salaries, wages, or pensions or other benefits to employees, and the depositor at the time of opening such account does not expressly otherwise declare, the depositor shall be deemed a trustee of such account for the creditors to be paid therefrom, subject to such power of revocation as the depositor may have reserved by agreement with the bank.

2. If any beneficiary for whom such a trust is created does not present his claim to the bank for payment within one year after it is due, the depositor who created such trust may revoke it as to such creditor. (1939, c. 197, s. 2.)

§ 36-26. Loan of trust funds.—Except as provided in § 36-27, no corporate trustee shall lend trust funds to itself or an affiliate, or to any director, officer, or employee of itself or of an affiliate; nor shall any noncorporate trustee lend trust funds to himself, or to his relative, employer, employee, partner, or other business associate. (1939, c. 197, s. 3.)

§ 36-27. Funds held by bank for investment or distribution.—Funds received or held by a bank as fiduciary awaiting investment or distribution shall be promptly invested, distributed or deposited to the credit of the trust department as a demand deposit in the commercial department of the bank or another bank: Provided, that the bank or the commercial department shall first deliver to the trust department, as collateral security, securities eligible for the investment of the sinking funds of the state of North Carolina equal in market value to such deposited funds, or readily marketable commercial bonds having not less than a recognized "A" rating equal to one hundred and twenty-five per cent (125%) of the funds so deposited; and such collateral security shall be held by the trust department in trust and for the special benefit of the estate or fund for which the deposit was made, or, in case the deposit consists of uninvested or undistributed funds belonging to several estates or trust funds, then in trust for the special benefit of said estates or funds in proportion to their respective interest in such deposits. The said securities shall at all times be kept separate and apart from the other assets of the trust department and proper records shall be kept by the proper officer in connection therewith. If such funds are deposited in a bank insured under the provisions of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, the above collateral security will be required only for that portion of uninvested balances of each trust which are not fully insured under the provisions of that corporation. "Investment" and/or "invested" shall not be construed to include savings accounts or certificates or deposits in any bank. (1939, c. 197, s. 4.)

§ 36-28. Trustee buying from or selling to self.—No trustee shall directly or indirectly buy or sell any property for the trust from or to itself or an affiliate; or from or to a director, officer, or employee of such trustee or of an affiliate; or from or to a relative, employer, partner, or other business associate. (1939, c. 197, s. 5.)

§ 36-29. Trustee selling from one trust to another trust.—No trustee shall as trustee of one trust sell property to itself as trustee of another trust. (1939, c. 197, s. 6.)

§ 36-30. Corporate trustee buying its own stock.—No corporate trustee shall purchase for a trust shares of its own stock, or its bonds or other securities, or the stock, bonds or other securities of an affiliate. (1939, c. 197, s. 7.)

§ 36-31. Voting stock.—A trustee owning corporate stock may vote it by proxy, but shall be liable for any loss resulting to the beneficiaries from a failure to use reasonable care in deciding how to vote the stock and in voting it. (1939, c. 197, s. 8.)

Cross References.—As to trustee's power to vote stock, see also § 55-111. As to liability as stockholder, see § 60-17.

§ 36-32. Banks holding stock in name of nominee.—A bank holding stock as fiduciary may hold it in the name of a nominee, without mention of the trust in the stock certificate or stock registration book: Provided, that (1) the trust records and all reports or accounts rendered by the fiduciary clearly show the ownership of the stock by the fiduciary and the facts regarding its holdings; (2) the nominee shall not have possession of the stock certificate or access thereto except under the immediate supervision of the fiduciary. The fiduciary shall personally be liable for any loss to the trust resulting from any act of such nominee in connection with such stock so held. (1939, c. 197, s. 9.)

§ 36-33. Powers attached to office.—Unless it is otherwise provided by the trust instrument, or an amendment thereof, or by court order, all powers of a trustee shall be attached to the office and shall not be personal. (1939, c. 197, s. 10.)

§ 36-34. Powers exercisable by majority.—1. Unless it is otherwise provided by the trust instrument, or an amendment thereof, or by court order, any power vested in three or more trustees may be exercised by a majority of such trustees; but no trustee who has not joined in exercising a power shall be liable to the beneficiaries or to others for the consequences of such exercise, nor shall a dissenting trustee be liable for the consequences of an act in which he joins at the direction of the majority trustees, if he expressed his dissent in writing to any of his cotrustees at or before the time of such joinder.

2. Nothing in this section shall excuse a cotrustee from liability for inactivity in the administration of the trust nor for failure to attempt to prevent a breach of trust. (1939, c. 197, s. 11.)

Cross Reference.—As to right of trustee where only a naked trust is created, see § 41-3.

§ 36-35. Contracts of trustee. — 1. Whenever a trustee shall make a contract which is within his powers as trustee, or a predecessor trustee shall have made such a contract, and a cause of action shall arise thereon, the party in whose favor the cause of action has accrued may sue the trustee in his representative capacity, and any judgment rendered in such action in favor of the plaintiff shall be collectible (by execution) out of the trust property. In such an action the plaintiff need not prove that the trustee could have secured reimbursement from the trust fund if he had paid the plaintiff's claim.

2. No judgment shall be rendered in favor of the plaintiff in such action unless he proves that within thirty days after the beginning of such action, or within such other time as the court may fix, and more than thirty days prior to obtaining the judgment, he notified each of the beneficiaries known to the trustee who then had a present interest, or in the case of a charitable trust the attorney general and any corporation which is a beneficiary or agency in the performance of such charitable trust, of the existence and nature of the action. Such notice shall be given by mailing copies thereof in postpaid envelopes addressed to the parties to be notified at their last known addresses. The trustee shall furnish the plaintiff a list of the parties to be notified, and their addresses, within ten days after written demand therefor, and notification of the persons on such list shall constitute compliance with the duty placed on the plaintiff by this section. Any beneficiary, or in the case of charitable trusts the attorney general and any corporation which is a beneficiary or agency in the performance of such charitable trust, may intervene in such action and contest the right of the plaintiff to recover.

3. The plaintiff may also hold the trustee who made the contract personally liable on such contract, if the contract does not exclude such personal liability. The addition of the word "trustee" or the words "as trustee" after the signature of a trustee to a contract shall be deemed prima facie evidence of an intent to exclude the trustee from personal liability. (1939, c. 197, s. 12.)

Cross References.—As to endorsement of a negotiable instrument by trustee, see § 25-50. As to costs when trustee is a party to an action, see § 6-31.

§ 36-36. Exoneration or reimbursement for torts. —1. A trustee who has incurred personal liability for a tort committed in the administration of the trust is entitled to exoneration therefor from the trust property if he has not discharged the claim, or to be reimbursed therefor out of trust funds if he has paid the claim, if (1) the tort was a common incident of the kind of business activity in which the trustee was properly engaged for the trust or, (2) although the tort was not a common incident of such activity if neither the trustee nor any officer or employee of the trustee was guilty of personal fault in incurring the liability.

2. If a trustee commits a tort which increases the value of the trust property, he shall be entitled to exoneration or reimbursement with respect thereto to the extent of such increase in value, even though he would not otherwise be entitled to exoneration or reimbursement.

3. Nothing in this section shall be construed to change the existing law with regard to the liability of trustees of charitable trusts for torts of themselves or their employees. (1939, c. 197, s. 13.)

§ 36-37. Tort liability of trust estate.—1. Where a trustee of his predecessor has incurred personal liability for a tort committed in the course of his administration, the trustee in his representative capacity may be sued and collection had from the trust property, if the court shall determine in such action that (1) the tort was a common incident of the kind of business activity in which the trustee or his predecessor was properly engaged for the trust; or (2) that, although the tort was not a common incident of such activity, neither the trustee nor his predecessor, nor any officer or employee of the trustee or his predecessor, was guilty of personal fault in incurring the liability; or (3) that, although the tort did not fall within classes (1) or (2) above, it increased the value of the trust property. If the tort is within classes (1) or (2) above, collection may be had of the full amount of damage proved; and if the tort is within class (3) above, collection may be had only to the extent of the increase in the value of the trust property.

2. In an action against the trustee in his representative capacity under this section the plaintiff need not prove that the trustee could have secured reimbursement from the trust fund if he had paid the plaintiff's claim.

3. No judgment shall be rendered in favor of the plaintiff in such action unless he proves that within thirty days after the beginning of the action, or within such other period as the court may fix and more than thirty days prior to obtaining the judgment, he notified each of the beneficiaries known to the trustees who then had a present interest of the existence and nature of the action. Such notice shall be given by mailing copies thereof in postpaid envelopes addressed to such beneficiaries at their last known addresses. The trustees shall furnish the plaintiff a list of such beneficiaries and their addresses, within ten days after written demand therefor, and notification of the persons on such list shall constitute compliance with the duty placed on the plaintiff by this section. Any beneficiary may intervene in such action and contest the right of the plaintiff to recover.

4. The trustee may also be held personally liable for any tort committed by him, or by his agents or employees in the course of their employments, subject to the rights of exoneration or reimbursement provided in § 36-36.

5. Nothing in this section shall be construed to change the existing law with regard to the liability of trustees of charitable trusts for torts of themselves or their employees. (1939, c. 197, s. 14.)

§ 36-38. Withdrawals from mingled trust funds. —Where a person who is a trustee of two or more trusts has mingled the funds of two or more trusts in the same aggregate of cash, or in the same bank or brokerage account or other investment, and a withdrawal is made therefrom by the trustee for his own benefit, or for the benefit of a third person not a beneficiary or creditor of one or more of the trusts, or for an unknown purpose, such a withdrawal shall be charged first to the amount of cash, credit, or other property of the trustee in the mingled fund, if any, and after the exhaustion of the trustee's cash, credit, or other property, then to the several trusts in proportion to their several interests in the cash, credit, or other property at the time of the withdrawal. (1939, c. 197, s. 15.)

§ 36-39. Unenforceable oral trust created by deed.—1. When an interest in real property is conveyed by deed to a person on a trust which is unenforceable on account of the statute of frauds and the intended trustee or his successor in interest still holds title but refuses to carry out the trust on account of the statute of frauds, the intended trustee or his successor in interest, except to the extent that the successor in interest is a bona fide purchaser of a legal interest in the real property in question, shall be under a duty to convey the interest in real property to the settlor or his successor in interest. A court having jurisdiction may prescribe the conditions upon which the interest shall be conveyed to the settlor or his successor in interest.

2. Where the intended trustee has transferred part or all of his interest and it has come into the hands of a bona fide purchaser, the intended trustee shall be liable to the settlor or his successor in interest for the value of the interest thus transferred at the time of its transfer, less such offsets as the court may deem equitable. (1939, c. 197, s. 16.)

§ 36-40. Power of settlor.—The settlor of any trust affected by this article may, by provision in the instrument creating the trust if the trust was created by a writing, or by oral statement to the trustee at the time of the creation of the trust if the trust was created orally, or by an amendment of the trust if the settlor reserved the power to amend the trust, relieve his trustee from any or all of the duties, restrictions, and liabilities which would otherwise be imposed upon him by this article; or alter or deny to his trustee any or all of the privileges and powers conferred upon the trustee by this article; or add duties, restrictions, liabilities, privileges, or powers, to those imposed or granted by this article; but no act of the settlor shall relieve a trustee from the duties, restrictions, and liabilities imposed upon him by §§ 36-26, 36-27 and 36-28. (1939, c. 197, s. 17.)

§ 36-41. Power of beneficiary.—Any beneficiary of a trust affected by this article may, if of full legal capacity and acting upon full information, by written instrument delivered to the trustee relieve the trustee as to such beneficiary from any or all of the duties, restrictions, and liabilities which would otherwise be imposed on the trustee by this article, except as to the duties, restrictions, and liabilities imposed by §§ 36-26, 36-27 and 36-28. Any such beneficiary may release the trustee from liability to such beneficiary for past violations of any of the provisions of this article. (1939, c. 197, s. 18.)

§ 36-42. Power of the court.—A court of competent jurisdiction may, for cause shown and upon notice to the beneficiaries, relieve a trustee from any or all of the duties and restrictions which would otherwise be placed upon him by this article, or wholly or partly excuse a trustee who has acted honestly and reasonably from liability for violations of the provisions of this article. (1939, c. 197, s. 19.)

§ 36-43. Liabilities for violations of article.—If a trustee violates any of the provisions of this article, he may be removed and denied compensation in whole or in part; and any beneficiary, co-trustee, or successor trustee may treat the violation as a breach of trust. (1939, c. 197, s. 20.)

§ 36-44. Uniformity of interpretation. — This article shall be so interpreted and construed as to effectuate its general purpose to make uniform the law of those states which enact it. (1939, c. 197, s. 21.)

§ 36-45. Short title.—This article may be cited as the Uniform Trusts Act. (1939, c. 197, s. 22.)

§ 36-46. Time of taking effect. — This article shall take effect the first day of July, one thousand nine hundred and thirty-nine and shall apply in the construction of and operation under (a) all agreements containing trust provisions entered into subsequent to March 15, 1941; (b) all wills made by testators who shall die subsequent to March 15, 1941; and (c) all other wills and trust agreements and trust relations in so far as such terms do not impair the obligation of contract or deprive persons of property without due process of law under the Constitution of the State of North Carolina or of the United States of America. (1939, c. 197, s. 25; 1941, c. 269.)

Editor's Note.—The 1941 amendment struck out a part of the original section and substituted therefor that part of this section beginning with the words "in the construction." For comment on this amendment, see 19 N. C. Law Rev. 544.

Art. 6. Uniform Common Trust Fund Act.

§ 36-47. Establishment of common trust funds.—Any bank or trust company qualified to act as fiduciary in this state may establish one or more common trust funds for the purpose of furnishing investments to itself as fiduciary, or to itself and another or others, as co-fiduciaries; and may, as such fiduciary or co-fiduciary, invest funds which it lawfully holds for investment in interests in such common trust fund or funds, if such investment is not prohibited by the instrument, judgment, decree, or order creating such fiduciary relationship or by an amendment thereof, and if, in the case of co-fiduciaries, the bank or trust company procures the consent of its co-fiduciary or co-fiduciaries to such investment. (1939, c. 200, s. 1.)

Editor's Note.—For comment on this enactment, see 17 N. C. Law Rev. 394.

§ 36-48. Court accountings. — Unless ordered by a court of competent jurisdiction the bank or trust company operating such common trust fund or funds shall not be required to render a court accounting with regard to such fund or funds; but it may, by application to the superior court, secure approval of such an accounting on such conditions as the court may establish. This section shall not affect the duties of the trustees of the participating trusts under the common trust fund to render accounts of their several trusts. (1939, c. 200, s. 2.)

§ 36-49. Supervision of state banking commission.—All common trust funds established under the provisions of this article shall be subject to the rules and regulations of the state banking commission. (1939, c. 200, s. 3.)

§ 36-50. Uniformity of interpretation. — This article shall be so interpreted and construed as to effectuate its general purpose to make uniform the law of those states which enact it. (1939, c. 200, s. 4.)

§ 36-51. Short title.—This article may be cited as the Uniform Common Trust Fund Act. (1939, c. 200, s. 5.)

§ 36-52. Time of taking effect. — This article shall be in full force and effect on and after July first, one thousand nine hundred thirty-nine and shall apply to fiduciary relationships then in existence or thereafter established. (1939, c. 200, s. 8.)

Chapter 37. Uniform Principal and Income Act.

§ 37-1. Definition of terms.—"Principal" as used in this chapter means any realty or personalty which has been so set aside or limited by the owner thereof or a person thereto legally empowered that it and any substitutions for it are eventually to be conveyed, delivered or paid to a person, while the return therefrom or use thereof or any part of such return or use is in the meantime to be taken or received by or held for accumulation for the same or another person;

"Income" as used in this chapter means the return derived from principal;

"Tenant" as used in this chapter means the person to whom income is presently or currently payable, or for whom it is accumulated or who is entitled to the beneficial use of the principal presently and for a time prior to its distribution;

"Remainderman" as used in this chapter means the person ultimately entitled to the principal, whether named or designated by the terms of the transaction by which the principal was established or determined by operation of law;

"Trustee" as used in this chapter includes the original trustee of any trust to which the principal may be subject and also any succeeding or added trustee. (1937, c. 190, s. 1.)

§ 37-2. Application of the chapter; powers of settlor.—This chapter shall govern the ascertainment of income and principal, and the apportionment of receipts and expenses between tenants and remaindermen, in all cases where a principal has been established with, or, unless otherwise stated hereinafter, without the interposition of a trust; except that in the establishment of the principal provision may be made touching all matters covered by this chapter, and the person establishing the principal may himself direct the manner of ascertainment of income and principal and the apportionment of receipts and expenses or grant discretion to the trustee or other person to do so, and such provision and direction, where not otherwise contrary to law, shall control notwithstanding this chapter. (1937, c. 190, s. 2.)

§ 37-3. Income and principal; disposition. — (1) All receipts of money or other property paid or delivered as rent of realty or hire of personalty or dividends on corporate shares payable other than in shares of the corporation itself, or interest on money loaned, or interest on or the rental or use value of property wrongfully withheld or tortiously damaged, or otherwise in return for the use of principal, shall be deemed income unless otherwise expressly provided in this chapter.

(2) All receipts of money or other property paid or delivered as the consideration for the sale or other transfer, not a leasing or letting, or property forming a part of the principal, or as a repayment of loans, or in liquidation of the assets of a corporation, or as the proceeds of property taken on eminent domain proceedings where separate awards to tenant and remainderman are not made, or as proceeds of insurance upon property forming a part of the principal except where such insurance has been issued for the benefit of either tenant or remainderman alone, or otherwise as a refund or replacement or change in form of principal, shall be deemed principal unless otherwise expressly provided in this chapter. Any profit or loss resulting upon any change in form of principal shall inure to or fall upon principal.

(3) All income after payment of expenses properly chargeable to it shall be paid and delivered to the tenant or retained by him if already in his possession or held for accumulation where legally so directed by the terms of the transaction by which the principal was established, while the principal shall be held for ultimate distribution as determined by the terms of the transaction by which it was established or by law. (1937, c. 190, s. 3.)

§ 37-4. Apportionment of income. — Whenever a tenant shall have the right to income from periodic payments, which shall include rent, interest on loans and annuities, but shall not include dividends on corporate shares, and such right shall cease and determine by death or in any other manner at a time other than the date when such periodic payments should be paid, he or his personal representative shall be entitled to that portion of any such income next payable which amounts to the same percentage thereof as the time elapsed from the last due date of such periodic payments to and including the day of the determination of his right is of the total period during which such income would normally accrue. The remaining income shall be paid to the person next entitled to income by the terms of the transaction by which the principal was established. But no action shall be brought by the trustee or tenant to recover such apportioned income or any portion thereof until after the day on which it would have become due to the tenant but for the determination of the right of the tenant entitled thereto. The provisions of this section shall apply whether an ultimate remainderman is specifically named or not. Likewise when the right of the first tenant accrues at a time other than the payment dates of such periodic payments, he shall only receive that portion of such income which amounts to the same percentage thereof as the time during which he has been so entitled is of the total period during which such income would normally accrue; the balance shall be a part of the principal. (1937, c. 190, s. 4.)

Cross Reference.—As to apportionment in the case of renting real estate, see § 42-5 et seq.

§ 37-5. Corporate dividends and share rights.—(1) All dividends on shares of a corporation forming a part of the principal which are payable in the shares of the corporation shall be deemed principal. Subject to the provisions of this section, all dividends payable otherwise than in the shares of the corporation itself, including ordinary and extraordinary dividends and dividends payable in shares or other securities or obligations of corporations, other than the declaring corporation, shall be deemed income. Where the trustee shall have the option of receiving a dividend, either in cash or in the shares of the declaring corporation, it shall be considered as a cash dividend and deemed income, irrespective of the choice made by the trustee.

(2) All rights to subscribe to the shares or other securities or obligations of a corporation accruing on account of the ownership of shares or other securities in such corporation, and the proceeds of any sale of such rights, shall be deemed principal. All rights to subscribe to the shares or other securities or obligations of a corporation accruing on account of the ownership of shares or other securities in another corporation, and the proceeds of any sale of such rights, shall be deemed income.

(3) Where the assets of a corporation are liquidated, amounts paid upon corporate shares as cash dividends declared before such liquidation occurred or as arrears of preferred or guaranteed dividends shall be deemed income; all other amounts paid upon corporate shares on disbursements of the corporate assets to the stockholders shall be deemed principal. All disbursements of corporate assets to the stockholders, whenever made, which are designated by the corporation as a return of capital or division of corporate property shall be deemed principal.

(4) Where a corporation succeeds another by merger, consolidation or reorganization or otherwise acquires its assets, and the corporate shares of the succeeding corporation are issued to the shareholders of the original corporation in like proportion to, or in substitution for, their shares of the original corporation, the two corporations shall be considered a single corporation in applying the provisions of this section. But two corporations shall not be considered a single corporation under this section merely because one owns corporate shares of or otherwise controls or directs the other.

(5) In applying this section the date when a dividend accrues to the person who is entitled to it shall be held to be the date specified by the corporation as the one on which the stockholders entitled thereto are determined, or in default thereof the date of declaration of the dividend. (1937, c. 190, s. 5.)

§ 37-6. Premium and discount bonds.—Where any part of the principal consists of bonds or other obligations for the payment of money, they shall be deemed principal at their inventory value or in default thereof at their market value at the time the principal was established, or at their cost where purchased later, regardless of their par or maturity value; and upon their respective maturities or upon their sale any loss or gain realized thereon shall fall upon or inure to the principal. (1937, c. 190, s. 6.)

§ 37-7. Principal used in business.—(1) Whenever a trustee or a tenant is authorized by the terms of the transaction by which the principal was established, or by law, to use any part of the principal in the continuance of a business which the original owner of the property comprising the principal had been carrying on, the net profits of such business attributable to such principal shall be deemed income.

(2) Where such business consists of buying and selling property, the net profits for any period shall be ascertained by deducting from the gross returns during and the inventory value of the property at the end of such period, the expenses during and the inventory value of the property at the beginning of such period.

(3) Where such business does not consist of buying and selling property, the net income shall be computed in accordance with the customary practice of such business, but not in such way as to decrease the principal.

(4) Any increase in the value of the principal used in such business shall be deemed principal, and all losses in any one calendar year, after the income from such business for that year has been exhausted, shall fall upon principal. (1937, c. 190, s. 7.)

§ 37-8. Principal comprising animals. — Where any part of the principal consists of animals employed in business, the provisions of § 37-7 shall apply; and in other cases where the animals are held as a part of the principal, partly or wholly because of the offspring or increase which they are expected to produce, all offspring or increase shall be deemed principal to the extent necessary to maintain the original number of such animals and the remainder shall be deemed income; and in all other cases such offspring or increase shall be deemed income. (1937, c. 190, s. 8.)

§ 37-9. Disposition of natural resources.—Where any part of the principal consists of property in lands from which may be taken timber, minerals, oils, gas or other natural resources, and the trustee or tenant is authorized by law or by the terms of the transaction by which the principal was established to sell, lease or otherwise develop such natural resources, and no provision is made for the disposition of the net proceeds thereof after the payment of expenses and carrying charges on such property, such proceeds, if received as rent on a lease, shall be deemed income, but if received as consideration, whether as royalties or otherwise, for the permanent severance of such natural resources from the lands, shall be deemed principal to be invested to produce income. Nothing in this section shall be construed to abrogate or extend any right which may otherwise have accrued by law to a tenant to develop or work such natural resources for his own benefit. (1937, c. 190, s. 9.)

§ 37-10. Principal subject to depletion.—Where any part of the principal consists of property subject to depletion, such as leaseholds, patents, copyrights and royalty rights, and the trustee or tenant in possession is not under a duty to change the form of the investment of the principal, the full amount of rents, royalties or return from the property shall be income to the tenant; but where the trustee or tenant is under a duty, arising either by law or by the terms of the transaction by which the principal was established, to change the form of the investment, either at once or as soon as it may be done without loss, then the return from such property not in excess of five per centum per annum of its fair inventory value, or in default thereof its market value at the time the principal was established, or at its cost where purchased later, shall be deemed income and the remainder principal. (1937, c. 190, s. 10.)

§ 37-11. Unproductive estate.—(1) Where any part of a principal in the possession of a trustee consists of realty or personalty which for more than a year, and until disposed of as hereinafter stated, has not produced an average net income of at least one per centum per annum of its fair inventory value, or in default thereof its market value at the time the principal was established, or of its cost where purchased later, and the trustee is under a duty to change the form of the investment as soon as it may be done without sacrifice of value and such change is delayed, but is made before the principal is finally distributed, then the tenant, or in case of his death his personal representative, shall be entitled to share in the net proceeds received from the property as delayed income to the extent hereinafter stated.

(2) Such income shall be the difference between the net proceeds received from the property and the amount which, had it been placed at simple interest at the rate of five per centum per annum for the period during which the change was delayed, would have produced the net proceeds at the time of change, but in no event shall such income be more than the amount by which the net proceeds exceed the fair inventory value of the property or in default thereof its market value at the time the principal was established or its cost where purchased later. The net proceeds shall consist of the gross proceeds received from the property, less any expenses incurred in disposing of it and less all carrying charges which have been paid out of principal during the period while it has been unproductive.

(3) The change shall be taken to have been delayed from the time when the duty to make it first arose, which shall be presumed, in the absence of evidence to the contrary, to be one year after the trustee first received the property if then unproductive, otherwise one year after it became unproductive.

(4) If the tenant has received any income from the property or has had any beneficial use thereof during the period while the change has been delayed, his share of the delayed income shall be reduced by the amount of such income received or the value of the use had.

(5) In the case of successive tenants the delayed income shall be divided among them or their representatives according to the length of the period for which each was entitled to income. (1937, c. 190, s. 11.)

§ 37-12. Expenses; trust estates.—(1) All ordinary expenses incurred in connection with the trust estate or with its administration and management, including regularly recurring taxes assessed against any portion of the principal, water rates, premiums on insurance taken upon the estates of both tenant and remainderman, interest on mortgages on the principal, ordinary repairs, trustees' compensation except commissions computed on principal, compensation of assistants, and court costs and attorneys' and other fees on regular accountings, shall be paid out of income. But such expenses where incurred in disposing of, or as carrying charges on, unproductive estate as defined in § 37-11, shall be paid out of principal, subject to the provisions of sub-section two of § 37-11.

(2) All other expenses, including trustee's commissions computed upon principal, cost of investing or reinvesting principal, attorneys' fees and other costs incurred in maintaining or defending any action to protect the trust or the property or assure the title thereof, unless due to the fault or cause of the tenant, and cost of, or assessments for, improvements to property forming part of the principal, shall be paid out of principal. Any tax levied by any authority, federal, state or foreign, upon profit or gain defined as principal under the terms of sub-section two of § 37-3 shall be paid out of principal, notwithstanding said tax may be denominated a tax upon income by the taxing authority.

(3) Expenses paid out of income according to sub-section one which represent regularly recurring charges shall be considered to have accrued from day to day, and shall be apportioned on that basis whenever the right of the tenant begins or ends at some date other than the payment date of the expenses. Where the expenses to be paid out of income are of unusual amount, the trustee may distribute them throughout an entire year or part thereof, or throughout a series of years. After such distribution, where the right of the tenant ends during the period, the expenses shall be apportioned between tenant and remainderman on the basis of such distribution.

(4) Where the costs of, or special taxes or assessments for, an improvement representing an addition of value to property held by the trustee as part of principal are paid out of principal, as provided in sub-section two, the trustee shall reserve out of income and add to the principal each year a sum equal to the cost of the improvement divided by the number of years of the reasonably expected duration of the improvement. (1937, c. 190, s. 12.)

§ 37-13. Expenses; non-trust estates.—(1) The provisions of § 37-12, so far as applicable and excepting those dealing with costs of, or special taxes, or assessments for, improvements to property, shall govern the apportionment of expenses between tenants and remaindermen where no trust has been created, subject, however, to any legal agreement of the parties or any specific direction of the taxing or other statutes; but where either tenant or remainderman has incurred an expense for the benefit of his own estate, and without the consent or agreement of the other, he shall pay such expense in full.

(2) Subject to the exceptions stated in sub-section one the cost of, or special taxes or assessments for, an improvement representing an addition of value to property forming part of the principal shall be paid by the tenant, where such improvement cannot reasonably be expected to outlast the estate of the tenant. In all other cases a portion thereof only shall be paid by the tenant, while the remainder shall be paid by the remainderman. Such portion shall be ascertained by taking that percentage of the total which is found by dividing the present value of the tenant's estate by the present value of an estate of the same form as that of the tenant, except that it is limited for a period corresponding to the reasonably expected duration of the improvement. The computation of present values of the estates shall be made on the expectancy basis set forth in the "American Experience Tables of Mortality," and no other evidence of duration or expectancy shall be considered. (1937, c. 190, s. 13.)

§ 37-14. Uniformity of interpretation. — This chapter shall be so interpreted and construed as to effectuate its general purpose to make uniform the law of those states which enact it. (1937, c. 190, s. 14.)

§ 37-15. Short title.—This chapter may be cited as the Uniform Principal and Income Act. (1937, c. 190, s. 15.)

Division VIII. Real and Personal Property.

Chapter 38. Boundaries.

§ 38-1. Special proceeding to establish. — The owner of land, any of whose boundary lines are in dispute, may establish any of such lines by special proceedings in the superior court of the county in which the land or any part thereof is situated. (Rev., s. 325; 1893, c. 22; C. S. 361.)

Cross Reference.—As to special proceeding generally, see § 1-393 et seq.

Origin of the Doctrine of the Section. — This section grew out of and is in some respects similar to the common law "writ of perambulation," although the procedure hereunder tends greatly to simplify the procedure obtaining under the former law. Until the passage of this section the consent of both adjoining land owners was necessary in order to have the dispute as to the bounds of their respective estates judicially determined. Under the present law either of the adjoining proprietors as a matter of right is entitled to have the land processioned, without the other's consent, and, where there has been an appeal, to have all the controverted matters settled by the jury under the guidance of the court. Green v. Williams, 144 N. C. 60, 63, 58 S. E. 549.

Purpose of Processioning. — The primary object of this section and the following sections of this article is to faciliate the speedy determination of disputed boundaries between adjoining land owners who do not contest the other's title to their respective tracts. Parker v. Taylor, 133 N. C. 103, 45 S. E. 473. Title to the land is not in issue unless so made by the pleadings, Cole v. Seawell, 152 N. C. 349, 67 S. E. 753; but when placed in issue by the defendant's denial of the plaintiff's ownership then, by sec. 1-399, the pending special proceedings are converted into a civil action to quiet title and the court will try all the issues in controversy connected therewith. Woody v. Fountain, 143 N. C. 67, 55 S. E. 425.

Relief under the Section—Injunctions.—To warrant the granting of an injunction in the cases of special proceedings, the relief sought must be subsidiary to the relief asked in the special proceedings, Hunt v. Sneed, 64 N. C. 176; and since this section gives no substantive relief —settles no rights, or titles to property, but only locates the dividing lines between the parties, the plaintiff was denied an injunction to restrain the defendant from commissions of trespasses when such order was asked for in the special proceedings instituted to determine the boundary line between the adjoining estates. Wilson v. Alleghany Company, 124 N. C. 7, 32 S. E. 326.

Dispute as to Boundary Necessary.—To sustain an action to establish the true dividing line between adjoining owners of land, a dispute as to the location of the line must be shown or the case on appeal will be dismissed in the Supreme Court. Wood v. Hughes, 195 N. C. 185, 141 S. E. 569.

Effect of Binding Agreement.—Where, in proceedings to establish the disputed boundaries between adjoining lands, a binding executed agreement between the parties has been established by uncontradicted evidence, the plaintiff is estopped from proceeding under this section, and there is no error in the court's holding that the completed agreement of arbitration operated as an estoppel as a matter of law. Lowder v. Smith, 201 N. C. 642, 643, 161 S. E. 223.

Procedure.—As the procedure for the application of this section is that prescribed in § 38-3, subsec. 4, it is competent for the defendant under §§ 1-70 and 1-399 to plead the equitable relief of mutual mistake, having the cause transferred to the civil issue docket, and having the common grantor of the plaintiff and defendant made a party defendant. Smith v. Johnson, 209 N. C. 729, 184 S. E. 486.

§ 38-2. Occupation sufficient ownership. — The occupation of land constitutes sufficient ownership for the purposes of this chapter. (Rev., s. 326; 1893, c. 22; 1903, c. 21; C. S. 362.)

Sufficiency of Ownership—When Title Not in Dispute.— The courts have construed the term "occupation", as used in this section, to mean possession, and uniformly hold that one in (a) possession of the land, and (or) (b) whose title thereto is not disputed so that no issue is raised save only that of the location of the boundary, has sufficient ownership to avail himself of the special proceedings herein provided for. Williams v. Hughes, 124 N. C. 3, 32 S. E. 325; Parker v. Taylor, 133 N. C. 103, 45 S. E. 473.

Where it is admitted that plaintiff's title was not in dispute, and that defendant's title was not in dispute except as to the true boundary line, the refusal of the court to submit an issue as to plaintiff's title, in addition to the issue as to the true boundary line, will not be held error. Clark v. Dill, 208 N. C. 421, 181 S. E. 281.

Same—When Title is in Dispute. — Where, however, the defendant puts the title to the land in issue, and the case has taken the form of a civil action, then the plaintiff can no longer rest his case by merely proving his occupation of the land as evidencing the boundary, but must go further and prove his title to the land. Woody v. Fountain, 143 N. C. 67, 55 S. E. 425. See also Williams v. Hughes, 124 N. C. 3, 32 S. E. 325.

§ 38-3. Procedure. — 1. Petition; Summons; Hearing.—The owner shall file his petition under oath stating therein facts sufficient to constitute the location of such line as claimed by him and making defendants all adjoining owners whose interest may be affected by the location of said line. The clerk shall thereupon issue summons to the defendants as in other cases of special proceedings. If the defendants fail to answer, judgment shall be given establishing the line according to petition. If the answer deny the location set out in the petition, the clerk shall issue an order to the county surveyor or, if cause shown, to any competent surveyor to survey said line or lines according to the contention of both parties, and make report of the same with a map at a time to be fixed by the clerk, not more than thirty days from date of order; to which time the cause shall be continued. The cause shall then be heard by the clerk upon the location of said line or lines and judgment given determining the location thereof.

Cross Reference.—As to special proceedings generally, see § 1-393 et seq.

Compliance with the Procedural Steps Mandatory.—This section must be strictly followed in all material respects and any flagrant or negligent departure therefrom will be fatal to the proceedings. Forney v. Williamson, 98 N. C. 329, 4 S. E. 483. But the Court will look to the substance and not to the form of the pleadings, and where an affidavit contains a full and explicit denial of the line set out in the plaintiff's petition it will be treated as an answer since it contains all that is required by the section. Scott v. Kellum, 117 N. C. 664, 23 S. E. 180.

Effect of Misjoinder of Parties.—A proceeding under the provisions of this section to establish the true dividing line between adjoining owners of land, will be dismissed upon demurrer for misjoinder of parties and causes of action that involve the title or interests of others not related to the matter in dispute, and which are entirely independent thereof. Rogers v. Rogers, 192 N. C. 50, 133 S. E. 184.

Burden of Proof.—Upon the institution of the proceedings to ascertain the true dividing line between the lands the burden is on the plaintiff to establish such line, Woody v. Fountain, 143 N. C. 67, 55 S. E. 425; Hill v. Dalton, 140 N. C. 9, 52 S. E. 273, and this burden does not shift to the defendant merely because, in addition to denying the line to be as claimed by the plaintiff, he alleges another to be the dividing line. Garris v. Harrington, 167 N. C. 86, 83 S. E. 253.

The plaintiff is the actor and has the burden of establishing the true location of the dividing line. McCanless v. Ballard, 222 N. C. 701, 24 S. E. (2d) 525.

Applicability of Doctrine of Res Judicata—Title to Land Not in Issue.—Where the only fact in issue is the establishment and location of the boundary line, then the judgment of the clerk is, to this extent, binding on the parties and they may not again litigate on this precise point. Whitaker v. Garren, 167 N. C. 658, 83 S. E. 769. But his judgment may not estop the parties from asserting in a separate action title in the land, Nash v. Shute, 182 N. C. 528, 109 S. E. 353.

Same—Title in Issue.—Where, however, the parties join issue upon the title and the case is transferred to the regular term of the court a judgment therein estops the parties both as to the title and the location of the line. Whitaker v. Garren, 167 N. C. 658, 83 S. E. 759. See also, Nash v. Shute, 182 N. C. 528, 109 S. E. 353, the court in this case, saying: ". . . The law confers on the clerk no jurisdiction to settle questions of title. He can only authoritatively determine the location of a disputed line . . . The parties are therefore not concluded by his judgment in respect to [questions of title]."

When Title Is Put in Issue—Injunctive Relief.—When defendant in a processioning proceeding puts title in issue, the cause should be transferred to the civil issue docket for trial, but when he does not do so the proceeding does not involve title or right to possession, but solely the location of the true dividing line, and therefore injunctive relief will not lie at the instance of one party to enjoin the other from retaining possession of the disputed strip, pending the final determinaiton of the proceeding, even in the superior court on appeal, since the restraint sought is not germane to the subject of the action. Jackson v. Jackson, 216 N. C. 401, 5 S. E. (2d) 143.

Evidence — Generally. — The general rules for ascertaining boundaries apply equally well when recourse is had through special proceedings. Power Co. v. Savage, 170 N. C. 625, 87 S. E. 629. See also, Woodard v. Harrell, 191 N. C. 194, 132 S. E. 12, containing dicta to the effect that parol evidence of location of boundary line may be properly admitted, if the parties were merely locating the true boundary line, but not to show verbal agreement to change the true dividing line.

Same—The Surveyor's Report.—The surveyor, when acting under this section, is not in any sense a referee and his report to the court should not contain conclusions of law, but should only set forth a detailed account of the facts of the case and when it does this, it is entitled to great evidential weight although it is not conclusive as to the results contained therein. Norwood v. Crawford, 114 N. C. 513, 19 S. E. 349. See also Green v. Williams, 144 N. C. 60, 56 S. E. 549.

What Report of Processioners must Contain.—A report of a processioner is radically defective when it does not state, with precision, the claims of the respective parties, so as to show what lines were disputed or how far they were disputed, and no undue laxity in the proceedings in this respect will be tolerated by the court. Hoyle v. Wilson, 29 N. C. 466. So also where one of the parties objects to the processioner's proceeding, the processioner must, in his return to the court, state "all the circumstances of the case," as for instance, the nature of the objection, the line or lines claimed by each party, etc., Carpenter v. Whitworth, 25 N. C. 204.

When Transfer to Regular Term Required.—The jurisdiction of the clerk in these special proceedings is limited in its scope. It extends only to those cases in which the only fact in issue is the location of the boundary line between the lands. Where the title to the land is put in issue the clerk has no authority to pass on any question involved but must transfer the whole proceedings to the regular term of the court. Brown v. Hutchinson, 155 N. C. 205, 71 S. E. 302; Smith v. Johnson, 137 N. C. 43, 49 S. E. 62; Parker v. Taylor, 133 N. C. 103, 45 S. E. 473.

2. Appeal to Term.—Either party may within ten days after such determination by the clerk serve notice of appeal from the ruling of the clerk determining the said location. When notice of appeal is served it shall be the duty of the clerk to transmit the issues raised before him to the next term of the superior court of the county for trial by a jury, when the question shall be heard de novo.

Parties on Appeal.—Under the provision contained in this section for the appeal by either party to the regular term of the court, other parties having an interest in the locus in quo may, upon motion, be permitted to come in. Batts v. Pridgen, 147 N. C. 133, 60 S. E. 897.

3. Survey After Judgment.—When final judgment is given in the proceeding the court shall issue an order to the surveyor to run and mark the line or lines as determined in the judgment. The surveyor shall make report including a map of the line as determined, which shall be filed with the judgment roll in the cause and entered with the judgment on the special proceedings docket.

4. Procedure as in Special Proceedings.—The procedure under this chapter, the jurisdiction of the court, and the right of appeal shall, in all respects, be the same as in special proceedings except as herein modified. (Rev., s. 326; 1893, c. 22; 1903, c. 21; C. S. 363.)

§ 38-4. Surveys in disputed boundaries.—When in any suit pending in the superior court the boundaries of lands are drawn in question, the court may, if deemed necessary, order a survey of the lands in dispute, agreeable to the boundaries and lines expressed in each party's titles, and such other surveys as shall be deemed useful; which surveys shall be made by two surveyors appointed by the court, one to be named by each of the parties, or by one surveyor, if the parties agree; and the surveyors shall attend according to the order of the court, and make the surveys, and shall make as many accurate plans thereof as shall be ordered by the court; and for such surveys the court shall make a proper allowance, to be taxed as among the costs of the suit. (Rev., s. 1504; Code, s. 939; R. C., c. 31, s. 119; 1779, c. 157; 1786, c. 252; C. S. 364.)

Allowance for Costs of Survey.—The word "court", as used in the last provision of this section, refers to the judge, and not to the clerk, and where the trial judge has failed to make an order allowing compensation to the surveyor, the clerk has no power to make the allowance; but on appeal from the clerk's refusal, such order will be made by the judge of the Superior Court, Cannon v. Briggs, 174 N. C. 740, 94 S. E. 519; LaRoque v. Kennedy, 156 N. C. 360, 72 S. E. 454.

Discretion of Court.—This section vests in the court a sound discretion within the limits defined. Vance v. Pritchard, 218 N. C. 273, 10 S. E. (2d) 725.

Chapter 39. Conveyances.

Art. 1. Construction and Sufficiency.

Art. 2. Conveyances by Husband and Wife.

Art. 1. Construction and Sufficiency.

§ 39-1. Fee presumed, though word "heirs" omitted.—When real estate is conveyed to any person, the same shall be held and construed to be a conveyance in fee, whether the word "heir" is used or not, unless such conveyance in plain and express words shows, or it is plainly intended by the conveyance or some part thereof, that the grantor meant to convey an estate of less dignity. (Rev., s. 946; Code, s. 1280; 1879, c. 148; C. S. 991.)

Cross Reference.—As to presumption of conveyance in fee simple when deed and registry of conveyance destroyed, see § 8-21.

Editor's Note.—This section changes the common-law rule that in order to convey a fee simple the word "heirs" should appear either in the premises or the habendum of the deed. Carolina Real Estate Co. v. Bland, 152 N. C. 225, 67 S. E. 483. Even prior to the enactment of the section the courts of this State commenced to draw away from the strictness of the common-law rule in this respect, and a perusal of a large number of cases bearing upon and controlling the subject show a marked tendency to mitigate the harshness of the law. So an exception as to devises and equitable estate had already been made. (See Whichard v. Whitehurst, 181 N. C. 79, 106 S. E. 463; Hollowell v. Manly, 179 N. C. 262, 102 S. E. 386, relating to a conveyance in trust). And a series of cases established the proposition that the word "heirs," when used as indicative of the estate to be granted, no matter where the word appeared in the instrument, would be transposed and inserted so as to cause the instrument to operate as a fee simple. See Smith v. Proctor, 139 N. C. 314, 319, 51 S. E. 889. But perhaps the most radical departure from the early rule is found in the case of Vickers v. Leigh, 104 N. C. 248, 10 S. E. 308, where it was decided that if it appeared that the word "heirs" was omitted from the instrument because of ignorance, because of inadvertence or because of a mistake, the word would be supplied so as to pass title in fee in accordance with the intention of the grantor.

These early cases may be of importance as this section is not retroactive, and the construction of instruments enacted prior to its passage will be governed by the rules herein set out.

Same Rule as for Construction of Devises.—This section provides the same rule of construction of deeds as is contained in section 31-38 for construction of devises. Vickers v. Leigh, 104 N. C. 248, 10 S. E. 308.

Construction of Word Heir.—The word "heirs" is always a word of limitation and vests the absolute property in chattels as well as land. Cutlar v. Cutlar, 3 N. C. 154.

Word "Heirs" Unnecessary to Create Equitable Estate.—An equitable estate in fee may be declared without the use of the word "heirs," if an intention to pass such estate can be gathered from the instrument. Holmes v. Holmes, 86 N. C. 205; Smith v. Proctor, 139 N. C. 314, 51 S. E. 889.

Interpreted in Accord with Intent.—Where it is the manifest purpose of a deed to pass a fee, the court will effectuate this purpose, if it can do so by any reasonable interpretation. Ricks v. Pulliam, 94 N. C. 225.

The presumption of fee raised by this section is rebutted by the fact that the deed in this case intended to convey only a life estate which is manifest from the many restraining expressions contained therein. Boomer v. Grantham, 203 N. C. 230, 231, 165 S. E. 698.

Same—Fee Simple Presumed Unless Clear Intent Otherwise.—All conveyances of land executed since the passage of the act are to be taken to be in fee simple, unless the intent of the grantor is plainly manifest in some part of the instrument to convey an estate of less dignity. It is the legislative will that the intention of the grantor and not the technical words of the common law shall govern. Triplett v. Williams, 149 N. C. 394, 398, 63 S. E. 79.

And by this section, a deed though not using the word "heirs", is a conveyance in fee, unless the contrary intention appears. Holloway v. Green, 167 N. C. 91, 83 S. E. 243.

The section was applied where the intent of the donor, appearing by proper construction of a deed, was to give a fee simple estate to his grandchild upon the birth of her child by marriage. Sharpe v. Brown, 177 N. C. 294, 98 S. E. 825.

The granting clause of a deed was to one of the grantor's sons, his heirs and assigns, and following the description "this deed is conveyed to the said grantee to him his lifetime and then to his boy children" with habendum to the said son "and his heirs and not to assign only to his brothers their only use and behoof for ever" with warranty to the said son "and his heirs and assigns." It was held that the portion of the habendum restraining assignment except to the brothers of the grantee is equally consistent with an assignment of a life estate as with an assignment of the fee, and to hold that the grant to the "son and his heirs" conveyed the fee simple would require that other portions of the instrument expressive of the intent of the grantor be disregarded, and in accordance with the intention of the grantor as gathered from the entire instrument the deed conveys a life estate to the son with remainder to the son's male children, the intent of the grantor to convey an estate of less dignity than a fee being apparent. Jefferson v. Jefferson, 219 N. C. 333, 13 S. E. (2d) 745.

Section as Curing Repugnancy.—The premises of a deed to land read, among other things, "unto said M. G., her heirs and assigns;" and the habendum, "to herself, the said M. G. during her lifetime, and at her death said land is to be equally divided between" her children. It was held that since under this section, the same estate would have passed if the word "heirs," an established formula, had been omitted in the granting clause, there is no repugnance in this deed between the granting clause and habendum. Triplett v. Williams, 149 N. C. 394, 63 S. E. 79.

The limitation of the estate in the habendum, and the creation of an estate in remainder therein, were conclusive proof that there was no intention of the grantor to create an estate in fee, but an estate for life to M. G. with a remainder over to her children. Triplett v. Williams, 149 N. C. 394, 63 S. E. 79.

Deeds Executed Prior to Effective Force of Section.—Although a deed to lands executed and delivered prior to the effective force of this section would not pass an estate in fee simple if the deed entirely omitted the word "heirs" or other appropriate words of inheritance, a deed executed before such date to a school committee "and their successors in office in fee simple" is sufficient to pass a fee simple title to the lands conveyed therein. Tucker v. Smith, 199 N. C. 502, 154 S. E. 826.

Deed to Husband and Wife and Heirs of Wife.—A deed to a husband and wife, and only to the heirs of the latter, does not pass the fee to the former by virtue of this section, for as to him it is plainly intended that the grantor meant to convey an estate of less dignity. Sprinkle v. Spainhour, 149 N. C. 223, 62 S. E. 910.

Restraint of Alienation.—Where a conveyance is construed under this section to be in fee, any attempt of restraint upon alienation is void, but where relevant, the words therein used may be construed to ascertain whether the intent of the grantor was to convey a fee or an estate of less dignity. Holloway v. Green, 167 N. C. 91, 83 S. E. 243.

Correction of Instrument.—The court, in its equitable jurisdiction, may correct an instrument so as to pass a fee in land when the intent so appears in the submission of a case agreed. Whichard v. Whitehurst, 181 N. C. 79, 106 S. E. 463.

Purpose of Conveyance.—A habendum, "To have and to hold the aforesaid lands and premises to the party of the second part and their successors in office forever, for the only proper use and behalf of said Claremont Female College as aforesaid," does not have the effect of appropriating the specific property to school purposes under condition subsequent, but, unless there is imperative and express provision to the contrary, shall be held to express only the purpose of the grantor in making the deed, and as to third persons the power of the trustee or other corporate authority to convey the property is not impaired. Claremont College v. Riddle, 165 N. C. 211, 81 S. E. 283.

Reservation of Easement.—In Ruffin v. Seaboard Air Line Railway, 151 N. C. 330, 66 S. E. 317, this section was applied in holding that a reservation of an easement was a reservation in fee, as no contravening intent appeared from the conveyance.

Retention of Mineral Rights.—Under this section where a deed conveys land "with the exception of one half of all the mineral found upon the premises, which is hereby expressly reserved," the grantor retains the fee in one half the mineral rights. Central Bank, etc., Co. v. Wyatt, 189 N. C. 107, 126 S. E. 93.

Section does not change common law conveyance of inheritance to a conveyance of less effectiveness, i. e., to one conveying only a life estate. Whitley v. Arenson, 219 N. C. 121, 12 S. E. (2d) 906.

Applied in New York Life Ins. Co. v. Lassiter, 209 N. C. 156, 160, 183 S. E. 616.

Cited in Krites v. Plott, 222 N. C. 679, 683, 24 S. E. (2d) 531.

§ 39-2. Vagueness of description not to invalidate.—No deed or other writing purporting to convey land or an interest in land shall be declared void for vagueness in the description of the thing intended to be granted by reason of the use of the word "adjoining" instead of the words "bounded by," or for the reason that the boundaries given do not go entirely around the land described: Provided, it can be made to appear to the satisfaction of the jury that the grantor owned at the time of the execution of such deed or paper-writing no other land which at all corresponded to the description contained in such deed or paper-writing. (Rev., s. 948; 1891, c. 465, s. 2; C. S. 992.)

Cross Reference.—As to vagueness of description in paper-writing offered as evidence, see § 8-39.

Editor's Note.—In Blow v. Vaughan, 105 N. C. 198, 10 S. E. 891, it was held that a deed describing land "as adjoining lands of A, B, and others and containing 25 acres, more or less," etc., was too vague and indefinite to be aided by parol proof. A similar holding appears on p. 411 of the same volume of the reports where the case of Wilson v. Johnson is set out. These two cases, published in 1890, were received by the bar and the state with manifest disapproval and were the cause of much concern as to the validity of titles. Hence, the Legislature in 1891 enacted the salutary provisions of this section. The section does not operate retrospectively. Hemphill v. Annis, 119 N. C. 514, 519, 26 S. E. 152.

Description.—The word "description" imports such a description as is susceptible of being aided by parol proof. Hemphill v. Annis, 119 N. C. 514, 26 S. E. 152.

And a deed which fails to describe any land is as void now as it was prior to the passage of this section. Moore v. Fowle, 139 N. C. 51, 51 S. E. 776.

Application.—In Harris v. Woodard, 130 N. C. 580, 581, 41 S. E. 790, it was said: "The statute (§ 39-2), applies only where there is a description which can be aided, but not when, as in this case, there is no description." Quoted in Bryson v. McCoy, 194 N. C. 91, 95, 138 S. E. 420.

A deed which fails to describe with certainty the property sought to be conveyed, does not fix a beginning point or any of the boundaries, and contains no reference to anything extrinsic by reference to which the description could be made certain, is too vague and indefinite to admit of parol evidence of identification, and it being impossible to identify the land sought to be conveyed, the deed is inoperative, this section not applying to such cases. Katz v. Daughtrey, 198 N. C. 393, 151 S. E. 879.

Capable of Being Reduced to Certainty.—A description contained in a deed or contract to convey lands is sufficiently definite to admit of parol evidence of identification when it is capable of being reduced to certainty by reference to something extrinsic to which the instrument refers. Patton v. Sluder, 167 N. C. 500, 83 S. E. 818.

Application.—A description in a mortgage to a life estate in lands as being in a certain county and township, containing twenty acres more or less, a part of a certain estate, and giving the names of two parties whose lands join it, is sufficient to admit parol evidence to fit the locus in quo to the description in the instrument, and is not void for vagueness of description under this section. Bissette v. Strickland, 191 N. C. 260, 131 S. E. 655.

A description of land in a deed, which designates all that tract of land in two certain counties, lying on "both sides of old road between" designated points, and bounded by lands of named owners, "and others," being parts of certain state grants, conveyed by the patentee or enterer to certain grantees, etc., is sufficient under this section to admit of parol evidence in aid of the identification of the lands as those intended to be conveyed. Buckhorn Land, etc., Co. v. Yarbrough, 179 N. C. 335, 102 S. E. 630.

Same—Sufficiency of Description in Will.—Where a will leaves to the widow of the testator for life, "at least 75 acres of land * * * * * * * * to include the dwelling house and to be located as she may want it to be, and as near four-square as is consistent," it is sufficient under this section to be located by parol evidence. Heirs at Law of Freeman v. Ramsey, 189 N. C. 790, 128 S. E. 404.

§ 39-3. Conveyances to slaves.—When it is made to appear that any gift or conveyance has been made to any person, while a slave, of any lands or tenements, whether the same was conveyed by deed or parol, and the bargainee or donee has been placed in actual possession of the same, such gift or conveyance shall have the force and effect of transferring the legal title to the lands and tenements to such bargainee or donee: Provided, such possession shall have continued for the term of ten years prior to the ninth day of March, one thousand eight hundred and seventy: Provided, further, that any absence from the premises from the first day of May, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-one, to the first day of January, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-six, shall not be held as an abandonment or discontinuance of the possession: Provided, also, that this section shall not affect the interest of a bona fide purchaser for value from the grantor or bargainor of the lands or tenements in dispute. (Rev., s. 949; Code, s. 1278; 1869-70, c. 77; C. S. 993.)

Affects Remedy Only.—The statute affects the remedy only and does not interfere with vested rights. Buie v Carver, 75 N. C. 559, 563.

Former Laws Do Not Defeat Purpose of Section.—Whenever it shall judicially appear that a slave purchased and paid for any property, real or personal, and that conveyance thereof was made to him, or to any one for his use, such purchaser, or those lawfully representing him, shall be entitled to such property, anything in the former laws of this State forbidding slaves to acquire and hold property, to the contrary notwithstanding. Caldwell v. Watson, 74 N. C. 296.

Where Not Applicable to Will.—Where a man made a will in 1860 and dies in 1861, leaving certain property to his wife during her life and then to his slaves, naming them, and the widow died in 1899, the slaves cannot take under the will. Jervis v. Lewellyn, 130 N. C. 616, 41 S. E. 873.

Conveyor Must Have Had Title.—The section does not apply to a case where one having himself no title made a parol conveyance of land to a slave and put the slave in possession more than ten years before the passage of the act, but extends only to cases where the alleged donor or vendor had title himself. Buie v. Carver, 75 N. C. 559.

§ 39-4. Conveyances by infant trustees.—When an infant is seized or possessed of any estate in trust, whether by way of mortgage or otherwise, for another person who may be entitled in law to have a conveyance of such estate, or may be declared to be seized or possessed, in the course of any proceeding in the superior court, the court may decree that the infant shall convey and assure such estate, in such manner as it may direct, to such other person; and every conveyance and assurance made in pursuance of such decree shall be as effectual in law as if made by a person of full age. (Rev., s. 1036; Code, s. 1265; R. C., c. 37, s. 27; 1821, c. 1116, ss. 1, 2; C. S. 994.)

Editor's Note.—The general rule is that the contracts of an infant are voidable at the option of the infant, and when avoided, the contract is null and void ab initio. Pippen v. Mutual Ben. Life Ins. Co., 130 N. C. 23, 40 S. E. 822. To this general rule, there is one exception as old as the rule itself: "An infant may bind himself for necessaries." Jordan v. Coffield, 70 N. C. 110; Turner v. Gaither, 83 N. C. 357, 35 Am. Rep. 574. It would seem that this section added a second exception to the general rule in this State. It expressly creates a class of contracts which an infant is authorized to make, and which are as binding "as if made by a person of full age." See 3 N. C. Law Rev. 110.

Section Indicates Proceeding in Equity.—The language of this section that "the court may decree" is indicative of a proceeding in equity. Riddick v. Davis, 220 N. C. 120, 16 S. E. (2d) 662.

Exclusiveness of Remedy.—The remedy prescribed by this section, relating to the foreclosure of a deed of trust, must be, under our form of civil procedure, an action in the nature of an equitable proceeding to foreclose a mortgage. No other remedy is given by statute. Hence, it is exclusive and must be resorted to, and in the manner prescribed. Riddick v. Davis, 220 N. C. 120, 16 S. E. (2d) 662.

Trustors are necessary parties to action by purchaser at foreclosure sale to obtain authority for infant trustee to execute the deed. Riddick v. Davis, 220 N. C. 120, 16 S. E. (2d) 662.

§ 39-5. Official deed, when official selling or empowered to sell is not in office.—When a sheriff, coroner, constable or tax collector, in virtue of his office, sells any real or personal property and goes out of office before executing a proper deed therefor, he may execute the same after his term of office has expired; and when he dies or removes from the state before executing the deed, his successor in office shall execute it. When a sheriff or tax collector dies having a tax list in his hands for collection, and his personal representative or surety, in collecting the taxes, makes sale according to law, his successor in office shall execute the conveyance for the property to the person entitled. (Rev., ss. 950, 951; Code, s. 1267; R. C., c. 37, s. 30; 1891, c. 242; C. S. 995.)

Cross References.—As to authority of sheriff to execute deed to land sold under execution, see § 1-309. As to sheriff's deed for trust estate, see § 1-316. As to sheriff's deed on sale of equity of redemption, see § 1-317. As to duty of sheriff or other officers to execute deed for property sold under execution, see § 1-339.

A tax deed executed by an "ex-sheriff" may be authorized under this section. Manufacturing Co. v. Rosey, 144 N. C. 370, 57 S. E. 2; McNair v. Boyd, 163 N. C. 478, 79 S. E. 966.

When Executed by Successor.—A deed made by a succeeding sheriff (or coroner) operates by virtue of the section to pass the title to what was sold. Edwards v. Tipton, 77 N. C. 222; Isler v. Andrews, 66 N. C. 553.

Same—May Demand Clear Evidence.—Before a successor in office can be required to make a conveyance sought under this section he is entitled to demand clear and conclusive evidence that a sale was made by his predecessor, and also that the purchase price was paid. Isler v. Andrews, 66 N. C. 553; Harris v. Irwin, 29 N. C. 432.

Deeds as Evidence. — A sheriff's deed made pursuant to this section after he has gone out of office is still subject to the rule that such deeds are prima facie evidence of sale and execution. Curlee v. Smith, 91 N. C. 172. But the recitals in a deed made by a successor of the sheriff are only hearsay, as they constitute his opinion based on information and not from his own knowledge. Id. See also Edwards v. Tipton, 77 N. C. 222; McPherson v. Hussey, 17 N. C. 323.

Power of Court to Correct Deeds. — A sheriff's deed is under control of the court, and the court can compel a sheriff to correct his deed; if the sheriff who executes the deed dies, the court can compel his successor to correct the deed, pursuant to this section, hence, the court may on motion during the trial of the suit correct such a deed. Millsaps v. McCormick, 71 N. C. 531, 533.

Does Not Extend to Clerks.—This section does not extend to clerks, and they cannot exercise the power herein conferred after going out of office. Shew v. Call, 119 N. C. 450, 453, 26 S. E. 33.

§ 39-6. Revocation of deeds of future interest made to persons not in esse.—The grantor in any voluntary conveyance in which some future interest in real estate is conveyed or limited to a person not in esse may, at any time before he comes into being, revoke by deed such interest so conveyed or limited. This deed of revocation shall be registered as other deeds; and the grantor of like interest for a valuable consideration may, with the joinder of the person from whom the consideration moved, revoke said interest in like manner. The grantor, maker or trustor who has heretofore created or may hereafter create a voluntary trust estate in real or personal property for the use and benefit of himself or of any other person or persons in esse with a future contingent interest to some person or persons not in esse or not determined until the happening of a future event may at any time, prior to the happening of the contingency vesting the future estates, revoke the grant of the interest to such person or persons not in esse or not determined by a proper instrument to that effect; and the grantor of like interest for a valuable consideration may, with the joinder of the person from whom the consideration moved, revoke said interest in like manner: Provided that in the event the instrument creating such estate has been recorded, then the deed of revocation of such estate shall be likewise recorded before it becomes effective: Provided, further, that this section shall not apply to any instrument hereafter executed creating such a future contingent interest when said instrument shall expressly state in effect that the grantor, maker, or trustor may not revoke such interest: Provided, further, that this section shall not apply to any instrument heretofore executed whether or not such instrument contains express provision that it is irrevocable unless the grantor, maker, or trustor shall within six months after the effective date of this proviso either revoke such future interest, or file with the trustee an instrument stating or declaring that it is his intention to retain the power to revoke under this section: Provided, further, that in the event the instrument creating such estate has been recorded, then the revocation or declaration shall likewise be recorded before it becomes effective. (Rev., s. 1045; 1893, c. 498; 1929, c. 305; 1941, c. 264; 1943, c. 437; C. S. 996.)

Cross Reference.—As to registration of deeds, see §§ 47-17, 47-18 et seq.

Editor's Note.—The Act of 1929 added the last sentence to this section down to the second proviso. Formerly the section applied only to voluntary conveyances; as amended, it includes the creation of voluntary trusts in real or personal property, not only for the benefit of the grantor, maker, or trustor, and of persons not in esse, but for the benefit of persons determinable upon the happening of a future event. Furthermore, as amended, it applies to trusts heretofore created as well as to such as may be created hereafter. Stanback v. Citizens' Nat. Bank, 197 N. C. 292, 148 S. E. 313.

The 1941 amendment inserted before the first proviso the words beginning with "and the grantor." The amendment became effective March 15, 1941, and did not affect pending litigation. For comment on this enactment, see 19 N. C. Law Rev. 507.

The 1943 amendment added the last three provisos at the end of the section.

For article commenting on this section, see 20 N. C. Law Rev. 278.

Section Not Retroactive.—This section does not apply to deeds executed prior to its enactment. Roe v. Journegan, 175 N. C. 261, 95 S. E. 495; Roe v. Journigan, 181 N. C. 180, 106 S. E. 680.

Though vested rights may not be affected by retroactive laws, contingent interests may be affected thereby, and where there is a voluntary trust with the limitation over upon a contingency determinable at some future time as to the persons who take thereunder, the power of revocation of a trust given by this section is not within the constitutional inhibition. Stanback v. Citizen's Nat. Bank, 197 N. C. 292, 148 S. E. 313.

Constitutionality was upheld in Stanback v. Citizen's Nat. Bank, 197 N. C. 292, 148 S. E. 313. Mere expectancies of future contingent interests provided for persons not in esse do not constitute vested rights such as would deprive the legislature of the power to enact this section authorizing revocation of a voluntary grant. MacMillan v. Branch Banking, etc., Co., 221 N. C. 352, 355, 20 S. E. (2d) 276.

Voluntary Trusts.—A trust estate in personalty created by the donor in consideration of one dollar and natural love and affection is a voluntary trust revocable by the donor under this section. Stanback v. Citizens Nat. Bank, 197 N. C. 292, 148 S. E. 313.

Where a voluntary trust is created in bank stock for the life of the donor or until he reach the age of fifty years, and at the termination to his issue or in the absence of issue to his next of kin, those who take in remainder take upon a contingency, the vesting of which depends upon the uncertain happening of a future event, and the trust may be revoked by the donor. Stanback v. Citizens Nat. Bank, 197 N. C. 292, 148 S. E. 313.

Where a woman receives property without restriction from her father's estate and executes a deed in marriage settlement in trust without consideration, the deed is a voluntary trust in contemplation of this section. MacRae v. Commerce Union Trust Co., 199 N. C. 714, 715, 155 S. E. 614.

Revocation of Trust Settlement.—Where a woman executes a trust deed of settlement upon her marriage for the benefit of her children who may be born of the marriage, depending upon their reaching a certain age, the trust interest subject to be changed by her during her life, after the birth of children, their interests do not ipso facto become vested, and she may revoke the trust upon giving a sufficient deed to that effect and in compliance with the statute. MacRae v. Commerce Union Trust Co., 199 N. C. 714, 715, 155 S. E. 614.

Plaintiff executed a voluntary trust in personalty with direction that the income therefrom be paid to her for life and upon her death the trust estate be distributed to her surviving children, and in the event plaintiff should die without issue, the trust estate should be paid to a named beneficiary if living and if he were not then living then to plaintiff's heirs generally. Plaintiff has no children and executed an instrument in writing revoking the trust upon the payment of a specified sum to the only beneficiary of the remainder in esse, who consented to the revocation of the trust upon the payment to him of the amount agreed. It was held that under the provisions of this section plaintiff was entitled to the revocation of the trust. MacMillan v. Branch Banking, etc., Co., 221 N. C. 352, 20 S. E. (2d) 276.

Law Governing Power of Revocation of Trust Settlement.—Where the daughter of a British subject takes property absolutely from the trustees under his will upon her marriage, and marries in North Carolina, executing in this State a deed of settlement in trust, without consideration, for beneficiaries of this State, upon certain contingencies, the lex loci contractu governing the marriage settlement is that of North Carolina and controlled by the provisions of our statutes as to its revocation. MacRae v. Commerce Union Trust Co., 199 N. C. 714, 155 S. E. 614.

The waiver of the right of revocation by the trustor of a voluntary trust is without consideration and does not preclude trustor from exercising her right to revoke under this section. MacMillan v. Branch Banking, etc., Co., 221 N. C. 352, 20 S. E. (2d) 276.

Applied in Cutter v. American Trust Co., 213 N. C. 686, 197 S. E. 542.

Art. 2. Conveyances by Husband and Wife.

§ 39-7. Instruments affecting married woman's title; husband to execute; privy examination. — Every conveyance, power of attorney or other instrument affecting the estate, right or title of any married woman in lands, tenements or hereditaments must be executed by such married woman and her husband, and due proof or acknowledgment thereof must be made as to the husband and due acknowledgment thereof must be made by the wife, and her private examination, touching her voluntary assent to such instrument, shall be taken separate and apart from her husband, and such acknowledgment or proof as to the execution by the husband and such acknowledgment by the wife and her private examination shall be taken and certified as provided by law. Any conveyance, power of attorney, contract to convey, mortgage, deed of trust or other instrument executed by any married woman in the manner by this chapter provided, and executed by her husband also, shall be valid in law to pass, bind or charge the estate, right, title and interest of such married woman in and to all such lands, tenements and hereditaments or other estate, real or personal, as shall constitute the subject-matter or be embraced within the terms and conditions of such instrument or purport to be passed, bound, charged or conveyed thereby. I. GENERAL CONSIDERATIONS.

Editor's Note.—In arriving at the legislative intent and a sound construction of this section, it must be considered in connection with Article X, section 6 of the Constitution of North Carolina, and Chapter 52 of the General Statutes. The Constitution secures to a feme covert her property, real and personal, acquired before or after marriage, as her sole and separate estate and property. However, it requires the written consent of the husband before she can make a valid conveyance thereof.

The very year of the adoption of the Constitution the Legislature, in the endeavor to carry out and give effect to this provision, passed an act requiring that for the validity of a conveyance or other instrument, affecting the "estate, right or title of any married woman in lands, tenements or hereditaments," her privy examination must be taken by the proper officer. Code, Civil Procedure, sec. 429, sub-sec. 6. Re-enacted, with some slight modifications, Laws 1868, 69, ch. 277, sec. 15. This enactment continued, in substance, through the various codes and laws on the subject, appearing in Revisal 1905 as sec. 952. Council v. Pridgen, 153 N. C. 443, 445, 69 S. E. 404. The section was brought forward in a substantial manner as this section. Section 2113 of the Revisal, now § 52-23 of the General Statutes, conferred upon a free trader the "power to contract and deal as if she were a feme sole." In Council v. Pridgen, 153 N. C. 443, 69 S. E. 404, it was held that this referred to the ordinary contracts made in some business in which the feme might engage, and did not change her status as to conveyance, or contracts to convey her real estate. The Legislature of 1911, ch. 109, enacted the Martin Act, which is sec. 52-2 of the General Statutes.

Since this enactment it is held that contracts wrongfully broken by married women will subject them to liability for damages, even though they cannot be compelled to convey unless they have been privily examined according to forms of law. In other words they may be liable for damages, although specific performance cannot be required. Warren v. Dail, 170 N. C. 406, 87 S. E. 126; Lipinsky v. Revell, 167 N. C. 508, 83 S. E. 820; Royal v. Southerland, 168 N. C. 405, 84 S. E. 708; Pomeroy Contracts (2 Ed.), p. 11; Anson Contracts, pp. 384, 385.

See 12 N. C. Law Rev., 68, for comment in reference to this section.

Constitutionality.—This section is constitutional. Jackson v. Beard, 162 N. C. 105, 78 S. E. 6; Council v. Pridgen, 153 N. C. 443, 69 S. E. 404; Graves v. Johnson, 172 N. C. 176, 90 S. E. 113.

It is not in conflict with the constitutional provision which secures to the wife her entire estate, notwithstanding her coverture. Southerland v. Hunter, 93 N. C. 310.

This section is distinct from § 30-8, Coker v. Virginia-Carolina Joint-Stock Land Bank, 208 N. C. 41, 44, 178 S. E. 863.

Strict Compliance Necessary.—Unless the formalities of this section are complied with, the deed is absolutely void. Jackson v. Beard, 162 N. C. 105, 107, 78 S. E. 6, and cases cited.

Same—Creation of Trust.—A woman under coverture cannot create a trust in land by parol or in any other manner except by embodying it in a written instrument executed in accordance with this section. Ricks v. Wilson, 154 N. C. 282, 287, 70 S. E. 476.

Registration of Power of Attorney Unnecessary.—A power of attorney given by a married woman to dismiss an action concerning her land need not be registered to give it validity. Hollingsworth v. Harman, 83 N. C. 153, 154.

No Distinction between Legal and Equitable Interests.—The section admits no distinction between legal and equitable interests and embraces every "estate, right and title," which the married woman may possess in land, and such is the construction put upon it by the court. Clayton v. Rose, 87 N. C. 106, 109.

II. EXECUTED BY BOTH HUSBAND AND WIFE.

A. In General.

It is necessary that a wife's deed be signed by the husband and acknowledged by both husband and wife. Joiner v. Firemen's Ins. Co., 6 F. Supp. 103, 104.

Reason for Joinder of Husband.—The purpose of the section in making these requirements as to the deeds of feme covert is stated by Chief Justice Smith in Ferguson v. Kinsland, 93 N. C. 337, as follows: "The requirement that the husband should execute the same deed with the wife was to afford her his protection against the wiles and insidious arts of others, while her separate and private examination was to secure her against coercion and undue influence from him." And Connor, J., in Ball v. Paquin, 140 N. C. 83, 52 S. E. 410, says: "For the purpose of throwing around her the protection of her husband's counsel and advice, the Legislature declared that with certain exceptions she could not contract without the written consent of her husband." Jackson v. Beard, 162 N. C. 105, 108, 78 S. E. 6.

It is true that the husband, under our Constitution, Art. X, sec. 6, has no interest as husband in his wife's property, real or personal. The provision that he must give his written assent to conveyances by her of realty is the sole survival in our Constitution of the ancient idea that a wife must be under the guardianship and control of her husband and is incompetent to transact business. This requirement in our Constitution is omitted in nearly all the other State constitutions. It is not based upon his having any interest in his wife's land, nor on his having a vested interest therein at her death, for she has full authority to devise the same without his consent and deprive him of any interest as tenant by the curtesy. Accordingly, it is held that while his assent must be in writing, it need not be by deed, for he has nothing to convey; that his joining with her in the instrument is sufficient. Jones v. Craigmiles, 114 N. C. 613, 19 S. E. 638, and cases there cited, and that his signing the instrument merely as a witness is a sufficient "written assent." Jennings v. Hinton, 126 N. C. 48, 35 S. E. 187; or a letter written by him is sufficient. Prinkley v. Ballance, 126 N. C. 393, 35 S. E. 631. Stallings v. Walker, 176 N. C. 321, 323, 97 S. E. 25.

Execute Same Instrument.—This section clearly contemplates that the same instrument of writing shall be executed by both husband and wife. Slocomb v. Ray, 123 N. C. 571, 31 S. E. 829; Green v. Bennett, 120 N. C. 394, 27 S. E. 142.

Order of Procedure.—It is contemplated and required by the statute that the deed shall be first acknowledged by the husband and wife, and that her privy examination shall be taken afterwards; or if, for any of the causes specified in the statute, this cannot be done, then, first, the husband must acknowledge the execution of the deed, or it must be proved as to him by witnesses before a judge or the county court, and then, upon suggestion to the judge or county court, as directed by the statute, the commission may go out to take the acknowledgment and privy examination of the wife. Graves v. Johnson, 172 N. C. 176, 178, 90 S. E. 113.

Binding Dower Interest by Mortgage.—To bind the dower interest by mortgage the husband and wife must join in the execution of the deed, separate conveyances will not comply with the requirement of this section. Slocomb v. Ray, 123 N. C. 571, 31 S. E. 829.

B. Husband's Acknowledgment and Proof Thereof.

Time of Acknowledgment.—While the husband and wife must both be parties to the same deed, there is manifestly no requirement in the language of the section that the act of acknowledgment by both should be contemporaneous. Lineberger v. Tidwell, 104 N. C. 506, 512, 10 S. E. 758.

Same—Husband Executes First.—The deed is none the less effectual to pass the title of the wife because the husband not only executes it before she does, but after execution sends the officer to take her acknowledgment and privy examination at a point several miles distant, provided that she does then voluntarily assent and her acknowledgment and privy examination is taken and certified in form substantially the same as that prescribed by statute by a competent officer. Lineberger v. Tidwell, 104 N. C. 506, 511, 10 S. E. 758.

Must be Proved as to Husband.—The statute has been changed to permit the acknowledgment of the husband to be taken after that of the wife and before a different officer (§ 39-8), but this section still requires the acknowledgment of the husband or proof of his execution of the deed to pass the title or interest of the wife; and the principle announced, that the General Assembly has power to prescribe the form in which the assent of the husband to the execution of a deed by the wife shall be evidenced, is unimpaired, and was fully recognized in Warren v. Dail, 170 N. C. 406, 87 S. E. 126. Graves v. Johnson, 172 N. C. 176, 179, 90 S. E. 113.

The case of Southerland v. Hunter, 93 N. C. 310, which has been approved on this point in Lineberger v. Tidwell, 104 N. C. 506, 511, 10 S. E. 758, and in Slocomb v. Ray, 123 N. C. 571, 574, 31 S. E. 829, construes section 1256 of the Code (1883), Revisal, sec. 952, Consolidated Statutes, § 992, which is this section; and it is there held that a deed signed by the husband, but not proved as to him, was ineffectual to pass the title of the wife, although her acknowledgment and private examination were taken. The fact that the General Assembly saw fit to change the statute requiring proof as to the husband and wife to be taken before the same officer, and that proof as to the husband should precede proof as to the wife, after the decisions of McGlennery v. Miller 90 N. C. 215, 218, and Ferguson v. Kinsland, 93 N. C. 337, 339, and left the statute unchanged as to the requirements that the deed must be proved as to the husband to pass the title or interest of the wife, after the decision in Southerland v. Hunter, furnishes the strongest possible evidence that the General Assembly thought the latter a safeguard which ought to be retained. Graves v. Johnson, 172 N. C. 176, 179, 90 S. E. 113.

Acknowledgment after Wife's Death.—A deed to lands is only complete upon delivery, and a married woman's deed to her lands requires the written consent of her husband under the form provided for by this section requiring that such conveyance be signed by both the husband and wife; and a deed made and signed in due form by the wife, in which thereafter the husband writes in his name as a grantor, and after her death, acknowledges its execution before the clerk, is invalid to pass title. Hensley v. Blankinship, 174 N. C. 759, 94 S. E. 519.

Consent Proved and Recorded after Wife's Death.—No title is conveyed by a married woman's deed of her separate property where her husband's consent thereto was not proved and recorded until after the death of the wife. Green v. Bennett, 120 N. C. 394, 27 S. E. 142.

Evidence of Husband's Consent. — Where an instrument executed by a husband and wife specifically charges the latter's land with the payment of a debt, the consent of the husband need not be specifically set out in the deed, since his joining in the conveyance is sufficient evidence of his consent. Bank v. Ireland, 122 N. C. 571, 29 S. E. 835.

Effect of Husband's Minority.—The part of this section requiring execution by the husband when his wife's lands are conveyed, is contractual in its nature; and hence when the husband is a minor the conveyance is subject to the usual rules applying to infant's contracts, and he may avoid or ratify it upon reaching his majority. Jackson v. Beard, 162 N. C. 105, 78 S. E. 6.

Veto Power of Husband.—While the husband has no interest in the wife's property, he has a "veto" power over the alienation of her realty by withholding his written assent, without which her conveyances of realty are invalid. Stallings v. Walker, 176 N. C. 321, 324, 97 S. E. 25.

C. Acknowledgment and Privy Examinations of Feme Covert.

Origin of Privy Examination.—A provision for the privy examination is found for the first time in 18 Edw. I. It was first enacted in this State in 1715. Paul v. Carpenter, 70 N. C. 502, 504.

Deed Void without Privy Examination.—A deed of a feme covert, until she is privily examined by the proper authorities, is mere blank paper, so utterly void that even if it contains a stipulation in her own behalf, she cannot have the benefit thereof. Smith v. Ingram, 130 N. C. 100, 105, 40 S. E. 984; Askew v. Daniel, 40 N. C. 321, cited, quoted and approved in Scott v. Battle, 85 N. C. 185, 39 Am. Rep. 694, which in effect overrules Daniel v. Crumpler, 75 N. C. 184.

Where a conveyance of land is made under a power of attorney sufficient in form by the heirs at law of a deceased owner of land, as tenants in common, but one of them, a feme covert, at the time, had not had her privy examination taken under the provisions of this section, both the power of attorney and the deed predicated and dependent upon it are ineffective to convey her interest, and she holds as a tenant in common with the purchaser, or those who may have acquired title under his deed. Adderholt v. Lowman, 179 N. C. 547, 103 S. E. 1.

Where the private examination of a married woman is not taken to a deed of trust executed by her it is void. Boyett v. First Nat. Bank, 204 N. C. 639, 169 S. E. 231.

Same—When Executed in Antoher State.—A deed executed by a married woman in another state, according to the laws of such state, for realty in this state, without privy examination of the wife, as required by this section is void. Smith v. Ingram, 130 N. C. 100, 40 S. E. 984.

When Only Interest Is Dower.—Where the only interest of a married woman in land is her dower, her failure to sign the deed and to be privily examined does not preclude the grantee from recovering possession during her husband's life. Upon the husband's death however, her right of dower would arise. Deans v. Pate, 114 N. C. 194, 19 S. E. 146.

Time of Privy Examination.—Proof of acknowledgment of execution by one or both (husband and wife) must precede the examination in reference to the volition and freedom of the wife. Southerland v. Hunter, 93 N. C. 310, 312; Barrett v. Barrett, 120 N. C. 127, 26 S. E. 691. See the Curative Act, section 47-67 of this Code, which was held in the Barrett case not to apply so as to impair or divest the rights of intervening third persons. But the decision in these cases is now changed by § 39-8.

III. EFFECT OF FEME COVERT'S DEED.

How Lands of Feme Covert Bound.—In Green v. Branton, 16 N. C. 500, 504, the court says that a feme covert can be bound as to her land in only two ways: first, by her deed executed jointly with her husband with her privy examination thereto, and, secondly, by the judgment of a competent court. Smith v. Ingram, 130 N. C. 100, 105, 40 S. E. 984.

Delivery of Deed Not Presumed. — The delivery of a deed will not be presumed from the acknowledgment of the husband and the acknowledgment and privy examination of the wife. Tarlton v. Griggs, 131 N. C. 216, 42 S. E. 591.

When Deed Is Inoperative. — In Scott v. Battle, 85 N. C. 185, it is held that a feme covert's deed, not executed in the prescribed mode, is wholly inoperative. Clayton v. Rose, 87 N. C. 106, 110.

Same—Formalities Not Observed. — A purchase-money deed given by a feme covert, living with her husband, in which the husband does not join and which does not contain any privy examination of the wife, is void because not complying with this section and Art. X, sec. 6 of the Constitution. Hardy v. Abdallah, 192 N. C. 45, 133 S. E. 195.

Estoppel.—A married woman is not estopped by a deed not executed in the mode prescribed by the statute. Smith v. Ingram, 130 N. C. 100, 107, 40 S. E. 984, citing 11 A. & E. Enc. (2d) 393; Towles v. Fisher, 77 N. C. 437.

When Not Subject to Collateral Attack.—Where an infant feme covert acknowledged the execution of a deed, and her privy examination was taken before a judge of the superior court, the deed was then a conveyance of record and could not be collaterally impeached in an action of ejectment. Wright v. Player, 72 N. C. 94.

§ 39-8. Acknowledgment at different times and places; before different officers; order immaterial. —In all cases of deeds or other instruments executed by husband and wife and requiring registration, the probate of such instruments as to the husband and acknowledgment and private examination of the wife may be taken before different officers authorized by law to take probate of deeds, and at different times and places, whether both of said officials reside in this state or only one in this state and the other in another state or country. And in taking the probate of such instruments executed by husband and wife, including the private examination of the wife, it is immaterial whether the execution of the instrument was proven as to or acknowledged by the husband before or after the acknowledgment and private examination of the wife. (Rev., s. 953; 1899, c. 235, s. 9; 1895, c. 136; C. S. 998.)

Editor's Note. — Prior to the enactment of this section a deed made by husband and wife, conveying the wife's land, was required to be first acknowledged by the husband and wife, and then her privy examination taken. This order was regarded as material, and of the substance of the execution of such a deed. Unless this order of acknowledgment and probate was observed, the deed was ineffectual to pass any title or interest whatsoever. McGlennery v. Miller, 90 N. C. 215. And in Barrett v. Barrett, 120 N. C. 127, 129, 130, 26 S. E. 691, it was said that the only defect in the privy examination in question was that it was taken a few minutes or hours before the husband's acknowledgment on the same day of the execution of the deed by him.

Obviously such stringent and technical requirements could hardly be said to be in line with the spirit of a statute whose leading purpose was to facilitate alienation by married women, or as said in Barfield v. Combs, 15 N. C. 514, its object is to protect, not to hamper, married women. It is hard to see where any additional protection is afforded married women, while the evils and inconveniences resulting therefrom are only too apparent. This section offers a solution to the difficulty by removing the technicalities while in no wise decreasing the protection provided for married women. Burgess v. Wilson, 13 N. C. 306; Pierce

v. Wanett, 32 N. C. 446; Malloy v. Bruden, 88 N. C. 305; Barrett v. Barrett, 120 N. C. 127, 26 S. E. 691, citing Cooley Const. Lim. (6 Ed.), 463, 464; Graves v. Johnson, 172 N. C. 176, 90 S. E. 113.

Need Not Be at Same Time or before Officer.—It is not necessary that the husband should actually sign at the same time as the wife, or in her presence; nor is it necessary that the proof or acknowledgment of the execution should be at the same time or before the same officer. Lineberger v. Tidwell, 104 N. C. 506, 10 S. E. 758.

Cannot Be Taken over Telephone. — This section, providing the proper mode of conveyance of real property by husband and wife of his lands, tenements and hereditaments, contemplates that the acknowledgment and privy examination of the wife provided for shall be made in the presence of the officer, which is emphasized by sections 47-38 and 47-39, as to acknowledgments of grantors and married women; and acknowledgment and private examination taken of the wife over a telephone does not meet the statutory requirements, and renders the conveyance invalid as to her. Southern State Bank v. Sumner, 187 N. C. 762, 122 S. E. 848.

Acknowledgment of Husband Required. — The acknowledgment of the husband or proof of his execution of the deed is still required to pass the title or interest of the wife. Graves v. Johnson, 172 N. C. 176, 179, 90 S. E. 113.

§ 39-9. Absence of wife's examination does not affect deed as to husband.—When an instrument purports to be signed by a husband and wife the instrument may be ordered registered, if the acknowledgment of the husband is duly taken, whether the private examination of the wife is properly taken or not, but no such instrument shall be the act or deed of the wife unless her private examination is taken according to law. (Rev., s. 954; 1899, c. 235, s. 8; 1901, c. 637; C. S. 999.)

Cross Reference.—As to provision that clerk of the superior court pass on certificate of acknowledgment and order registration, see § 47-14.

When Assent of Wife Not Needed. — An unembarrassed owner of land, no matter when the land was acquired, can convey the same, absolutely, or by way of trust or mortgage, free of all homestead rights, without the assent of his wife, subject only to her right of dower, except in the following cases: (1) Where the land in question has been allotted to him as a homestead, either on his own petition or by an officer, in accordance with law; (2) where no homestead has been allotted, but there are judgments against him which constitute a lien on the land, and upon which execution might issue and make it necessary to have his homestead allotted; (3) where no homestead has been allotted, but he has made a mortgage, reserving an undefined homestead, which mortgage constitutes a lien on the land that could not be foreclosed without allotting a homestead; (4) where the conveyance is fraudulent as to creditors, and no homestead has been allotted in other lands. Hughes v. Hodges, 102 N. C. 236, 9 S. E. 437.

Constitutional Requirement as to Homestead. — By the eighth section of the tenth Article of the Constitution, a deed made by the owner of a homestead without the voluntary signature and assent of his wife is void. Wittkowsky v. Gidney, 124 N. C. 437, 441, 32 S. E. 731.

When Probate Does Not Authorize Registration.—Where probate deed recites the acknowledgment and privy examination of the wife of the grantor only, it is insufficient and does not authorize registration. Hatcher v. Hatcher, 127 N. C. 200, 37 S. E. 207.

§ 39-10. Officers authorized to take privy examination.—The officials authorized by law to take proofs and acknowledgments of the execution of any instrument are empowered to take the private examination of any married woman, when her private examination is necessary, touching her free and voluntary assent to the execution of any instrument to which her assent is or may be necessary, and to certify the fact of such private examination. (Rev., s. 955; 1899, c. 235, s. 6; C. S. 1000.)

Cross Reference.—As to officials authorized by law to take acknowledgments, see §§ 2-16, paragraph 13, 47-1, 47-2, 47-3, 10-5.

When Husband and Wife out of State. — When the husband and wife reside in a foreign country her acknowledgment, etc., may be taken by an ambassador, etc., of the United States, or by the mayor or other chief officer of any city or town. Paul v. Carpenter, 70 N. C. 502, 508.

Acknowledgment before Military Officer. — An acknowledgment and private examination taken by the provost marshal of the city of New Bern while that place was in possession of the United States military authorities, in the absence of fraud and the like, is good, having a similar effect as foreign judgments. Paul v. Carpenter, 70 N. C. 502.

When Officer Employee of Grantee. — The privy examination of a married woman as to her execution of a deed is not invalid because taken by a notary public who was a clerk in the office of the grantee, but had no interest in the transaction. Bank v. Ireland, 122 N. C. 571, 575, 29 S. E. 835.

When Officer Related to Parties. — Probate and private examinations taken before an officer are not invalid simply because he is related to the parties. McAllister v. Purcell, 124 N. C. 262, 32 S. E. 715.

Omission of Seal by Justice of the Peace. — The omission by a justice of the peace to attach his seal to a certificate of the proof of execution of a deed and privy examination of the wife will not invalidate his action, which is otherwise regular. Lineberger v. Tidwell, 104 N. C. 506, 10 S. E. 758.

Corrections after Expiration of Office. — A justice of the peace cannot correct his certificate made to a deed after his term of office has expired, such authority not having been given by statute. Cook v. Pittman, 144 N. C. 530, 57 S. E. 219.

§ 39-11. Certain conveyances not affected by fraud if privy examination regular. — No deed conveying lands nor any instrument required or allowed by law to be registered, executed by husband and wife since the eleventh of March, one thousand eight hundred and eighty-nine, if the private examination of the wife is thereto certified as prescribed by law, shall be invalid because its execution or acknowledgment was procured by fraud, duress or undue influence, unless it is shown that the grantee or person to whom the instrument was made participated in the fraud, duress or undue influence, or had notice thereof before the delivery of the instrument. Where such participation or notice is shown, an innocent purchaser for value under the grantee or person to whom the instrument was made shall not be affected by such fraud, duress or undue influence. (Rev., s. 956; 1889, c. 389; 1899, c. 235, s. 10; C. S. 1001.)

Cross Reference.—As to sufficiency of probate and registration without livery, see § 47-17 and annotations.

See 12 N. C. Law Rev., 71.

Presence and Undue Influence of Husband.—The presence and undue influence of the husband at the ceremony of the privy examination would not vitiate a certificate to a deed in all respects regular as against the grantee, unless the grantee had notice of it, and the burden would be upon the plaintiff attacking the validity of the deed for that reason. Brite v. Penny, 157 N. C. 110, 72 S. E. 964, citing Butner v. Blevins, 125 N. C. 585, 34 S. E. 629; Davis v. Davis, 146 N. C. 163, 59 S. E. 659.

When Fraud of Probate Office Alleged. — Where a married woman has signed a mortgage or deed of trust to secure borrowed money, she may not have it set aside upon allegation of fraud of a probate officer in taking her separate examination, when she admits that the examination was taken in substance of the requirement of the statute and she had signed the conveyance, and there is no evidence that the mortgagee participated in the fraud. Whitaker v. Sikes Co., 187 N. C. 613, 122 S. E. 468.

In Whitaker v. Sikes Co., 187 N. C. 613, 615, 122 S. E. 468, the court said: "Even if the justice practiced a fraud upon her, since she does not allege that the Sikes Company, the party to whom the instrument was made, had any knowledge thereof, or participated in any way in the alleged fraud, she is precluded now from having it adjudged invalid and set aside."

When Privy Examination Not Taken. — In an action to invalidate a deed to lands because, in fact, the privy examination of the feme covert, the owner and plaintiff, had not been taken, though expressed to have been taken, as required in the certificate of the justice of the peace, the plaintiff, may by clear, cogent, and convincing proof show that her examination had not been taken at all, and when, under a proper charge thereon from the judge, the jury has found that such examination was not taken, the verdict will stand, though the grantee may not have been fixed with notice. Davis v. Davis, 146 N. C. 163, 59 S. E. 659.

Same—Or Was Irregular. — Where the privy examination of a wife is not taken, or is taken in a manner insufficient to fulfill the requirements of the law, though the grantee has had no knowledge thereof, the matter is open to judicial investigation. Benedict v. Jones, 129 N. C. 470, 40 S. E. 221.

Must Allege Guilt of Grantee. — A defense by a married woman that her privy examination as to her execution of a deed was procured by fraud and imposition is unavailing unless supported by an allegation that the grantee had notice of or participated in the same. Bank v. Ireland, 122 N. C. 571, 29 S. E. 835.

Innocent Purchaser from Guilty Grantee. — The section also protects the title of an innocent purchaser for value from a grantee, who did have notice of such fraud, duress or undue influence. Butner v. Blevins, 125 N. C. 585, 34 S. E. 629.

Note Procured by Duress.—Upon the principle embodied in this section, a note given by a husband and wife, where the husband procures her execution by duress, is voidable only, and is good in the hands of a bona fide holder. L. A. Randolph Co. v. Lewis, 196 N. C. 51, 144 S. E. 545.

§ 39-12. Power of attorney of married woman.— All conveyances which may be made by any person under a power of attorney from any feme covert, freely executed by her with her husband, shall be valid to all intents and purposes to pass the estate, right and title which said feme covert may have in such lands, tenements and hereditaments as are mentioned or included in such power of attorney. (Rev., s. 957; Code, s. 1257; R. C., c. 37, s. 11; 1798, c. 510; C. S. 1002.)

Cross Reference.—As to registration of power of attorney, see § 47-28.

§ 39-13. Wife need not join in purchase-money mortgage. — The purchaser of real estate who does not pay the whole of the purchase money at the time when he takes a deed for title may make a mortgage or deed of trust for securing the payment of such purchase money, or such part thereof as may remain unpaid, which shall be good and effectual against his wife as well as himself, without requiring her to join in the execution of such mortgage or deed of trust. (Rev., s. 958, Code, s. 1272; 1868-9, c. 204; 1907, c. 12; C. S. 1003.)

Cross References.—As to dower generally, see § 30-4 et seq. As to property in which widow is entitled to dower, see § 30-5. As to deed of husband alone, purchase money mortgages as exception, see § 30-6.

Dower Right Subject to Defeat. — The dower right of a feme covert may be defeated by a mortgage of the husband alone, when for part of the purchase money. Corporation Comm. v. Dunn, 174 N. C. 679, 683, 94 S. E. 481.

Where Wife of Grantee Acquires No Dower Right.—Where two deeds of trust are executed and substituted for the original purchase money deed of trust, which is canceled, the wife of the grantee acquires no dower right in the land, the original debt for the purchase money not having been extinguished. Case v. Fitzsimons, 209 N. C. 783, 184 S. E. 818.

Editor's Note.—Chapter 65 of the Public Laws of 1923, now codified as section 30-9, was a re-enactment of this section. However, that act contained no specific repeal of this section. The 1943 act accomplished the repeal in specific terms.

Art. 3. Fraudulent Conveyances.

§ 39-15. Conveyance with intent to defraud creditors void.—For avoiding and abolishing feigned, covinous and fraudulent gifts, grants, alienations, conveyances, bonds, suits, judgments and executions, as well of lands and tenements as of goods and chattels, which may be contrived and devised of fraud, to the purpose and intent to delay, hinder and defraud creditors and others of their just and lawful actions and debts, every gift, grant, alienation, bargain and conveyance of lands, tenements and hereditaments, goods and chattels, by writing or otherwise, and every bond, suit, judgment and execution, at any time had or made, to or for any intent or purpose last before declared and expressed, shall be deemed and taken (only as against that person, his heirs, executors, administrators and assigns, whose actions, debts, accounts, damages, penalties and forfeitures, by such covinous or fraudulent devices and practices aforesaid, are, shall, or might be in anywise disturbed, hindered, delayed or defrauded) to be utterly void and of no effect; any pretense, color, feigned consideration, expressing of use, or any other matter or thing to the contrary notwithstanding; and in all actions by creditors to set aside gifts, grants, alienations and conveyances of lands and tenements and judgments purporting to be liens on the same on the ground that such gifts, grants, alienations, conveyances and judgments are feigned, covinous and fraudulent hereunder, it shall be no defense to the action to allege and prove that the lands and tenements alleged to be so conveyed or encumbered do not exceed in value the homestead allowed by law as an exemption: Provided, that nothing in this section shall be construed to authorize the sale under execution or other final process, obtained on any debt during the continuance of the homestead, of any interest in such land as may be exempt as a homestead. (Rev., s. 960; Code, s. 1545; 1893, c. 78; R. C., c. 50, s. 1; 50 Edw. III, c. 6; 13 Eliz., c. 5, s. 2; 1715, c. 7, s. 4; C. S. 1005.)

I. GENERAL CONSIDERATIONS.

Editor's Note. — This section is a substantial re-enactment of the statute 13 Eliz., C. 5, sec. 2. Bank v. Adrian, 116 N. C. 537, 547, 21 S. E. 792. Prior to its enactment it was necessary to invoke the aid of a court of equity to have a deed declared void for fraud, and where, under a statutory provision, deeds were pronounced void as against creditors in order to secure a formal declaration of their invalidity, the moving party must have asked for relief that would have been formerly administered solely in a court of equity. Farthing v. Carrington, 116 N. C. 315, 328, 22 S. E. 9. At an early period in the judicial history of this state, it was held that courts of law might hear evidence and pass even incidentally upon the question whether a deed was fraudulent under 13 Eliz. Logan v. Simmons, 18 N. C. 13, 16; Lee v. Flannagan, 29 N. C. 471; Hardy & Bro. v. Skinner, 31 N. C. 191; Helms v. Green, 105 N. C. 251, 259, 11 S. E. 470; Wharton on Evidence, sec. 131. 13 Eliz., is declaratory of the common law so far as regards existing creditors. The remedy given to subsequent creditors rests entirely upon the enactment of the statute. In this sense the statute is sometimes spoken of as being in affirmance of the common law. Long v. Wright, 48 N. C. 290, 293, citing Co. Lit. 290 b 3 Ba. Ab. Titl. "Fraud," p. 307.

The object of the English statute was to prevent debtors from dealing with their property in any way to the prejudice of their creditors. See Central Bank v. Hume, 128 U. S. 195, 203, 9 S. Ct. 41, 32 L. Ed. 370.

Scope of Section. — The statute dealing with fraudulent conveyances applies to the state as well as to individuals, and the state cannot rely on its prerogative. Hoke v. Henderson, 14 N. C. 12.

It applies to voluntary conveyances of personalty, as well as realty, as against creditors. Garrison v. Brice, 48 N. C. 85.

Prevents Passage of Any Estate. — The section makes fraudulent conveyances absolutely void, and in that way prevents the passing of any estate whatever, as against creditors of the grantor. Flynn v. Williams, 29 N. C. 32.

Same—Conveyance Made by Debtor. — The section operating, as it does, to wholly avoid the conveyances coming within its purview, can be applied only to conveyances made by the debtor himself. Gowing v. Rich, 23 N. C. 553.

Mortgagor Considered as Owner.—In expounding the statute against fraudulent conveyances, the mortgagor is considered the owner of the estate, and the mortgagee but an encumbrancer. Wall v. White, 14 N. C. 105, 107.

Cited in Askew v. Interstate Hotel Co., 195 N. C. 456, 142 S. E. 590; Vollers Co. v. Todd, 212 N. C. 677, 194 S. E. 84.

II. WHAT CONSTITUTES FRAUD.

A. In General.

Rule Stated. — In Aman v. Walker, 165 N. C. 224, 227, 81 S. E. 162, it was held that the principles to be deduced from the authorities as to fraudulent conveyances, are: (1) If the conveyance is voluntary, and the grantor retains property fully sufficient and available to pay his debts then existing, and there is no actual intent to defraud, the conveyance is valid. (2) If the conveyance is voluntary, and the grantor did not retain property fully sufficient and available to pay his debts then existing, it is invalid as to creditors; but it cannot be impeached by subsequent creditors without proof of the existence of a debt at the time of its execution which is unpaid, and when this is established and the conveyance avoided, subsequent creditors are let in and the property is subjected to the payment of creditors generally. (3) If the conveyance is voluntary and made with the actual intent upon the part of the grantor to defraud creditors, it is void, although this fraudulent intent is not participated in by the grantee, and although property sufficient and vailable to pay existing debts is retained. (4) If the conveyance is upon a valuable consideration and made with the actual intent to defraud creditors upon the part of the grantor alone, not participated in by the grantee and of which intent he had no notice, it is valid. (5) If the conveyance is upon a valuable consideration, but made with the actual intent to defraud creditors on the part of the grantor, participated in by the grantee or of which he has notice, it is void. Black v. Sanders, 46 N. C. 67; Warren v. Makely, 85 N. C. 12, 14; Credle v. Carrawan, 64 N. C. 422, 424; Worthy v. Brady, 91 N. C. 265, 268; Savage v. Knight, 92 N. C. 493, 498; Clement v. Cozart, 112 N. C. 412, 420, 17 S. E. 486; Hobbs v. Cashwell, 152 N. C. 183, 188, 67 S. E. 495; Powell Bros. v. McMullan Lumber Co., 153 N. C. 52, 58, 68 S. E. 926.

Employing an attorney who resides at some distance, and in another county, to draw the deed of assignment, and making a provision therein authorizing public or private sale for cash, are not circumstances of fraud. Barber v. Buffaloe, 111 N. C. 206, 16 S. E. 386.

Fraud a Compound Question of Law and Fact. — In Crow v. Holland, 12 N. C. 481, 482, it was said: "Fraud is a compound question of law and fact. The facts going to establish it are decided by a jury. Whether, when proved, they will amount to such a fraud as will vacate a grant is a question of law for the court to decide."

B. Intent.

Intent as Poisonous Element. — In Moore v. Hinnant, 89 N. C. 455, 459, Chief Justice Smith, speaking for the court said: "The intent is the essential and poisonous element in the transaction, and not merely the effect; since in every conveyance and appropriation of property, the property conveyed is placed beyond the creditor's reach, and he is so far obstructed in the pursuit of his remedy against the debtor's estate. But the inquiry is, was this the purpose of the assignment; and if so, and it was participated in by the assignee or party to take benefit under it, the assignment is invalid, though the debt or liability professed to be the object to be secured be bona fide due, and itself tinged with no vicious ingredient."

Sufficiency of Intent. — It is not necessary that there should have been an intent to hinder, delay, and defraud. An intent either to hinder and delay, or an intent to defraud, is sufficient. Peeler v. Peeler, 109 N. C. 628, 14 S. E. 59.

Same—Actual Delay Need Not Result. — In the language of Lord Ellenborough in Mieux v. Howell, 4 East., 1-13: "The Act of Parliament (and ours conforms to it) was meant to prevent deeds, etc., fraudulent in their concoction, and not merely such as in their effect might delay or hinder other creditors." Quoted in Moore v. Hinnant, 89 N. C. 455, 459.

"It is clear, however, from the language of the statute of 13 Elizabeth," remarks a recent author after a full discussion of the subject, and as his conclusion from a review of adjudged cases, "that its provisions were directed exclusively against conveyances made with an actual intent on the part of the debtors to hinder, delay or defraud creditors, as distinguished from the mere effect or operation of such conveyances. The expressions in the preamble, 'devised and contrived,' 'to the end,' 'purpose and intent,' etc., leave no room for doubt on this point. Hence it has been sometimes very expressively designated, as the statute against fraudulent intents in alienation." Moore v. Hinnant, 89 N. C. 455, 460, quoting Burrill Assign., sec. 332.

Intent as Objective Element. — The intention of a conveyance is to accomplish the objects that moved the maker to execute it, and if any of these latter be covinous, the intent is necessarily so. Stone v. Marshall, 52 N. C. 300, 302.

Acts fraudulent in view of the law, because of their necessary tendency to delay or obstruct the creditor in pursuit of his legal remedy, do not cease to be such because the fraud as an independent fact was not then in mind. If a person does and intends to do that which from its conveyances the law pronounces fraudulent, he is held to have intended the fraud inseparable from the act. Cheatham v. Hawkins, 80 N. C. 161, 163, cited in note in 23 L. R. A., N. S., 386.

Mutuality of Fraudulent Intent.—In Horback v. Hill, 112 U. S. 144, 148, 5 S. Ct. 81, 28 L. Ed. 670, it was said that the fraud which will vitiate a sale must be mutual, that is, must be intended by both parties, or by one with knowledge of the other's purpose, and thus acquiesced in and furthered, and actual notice or knowledge, of such intent of the grantor, or reasonable cause to suspect the existence of such intent, is sufficient. Shaver v. Alterton, 151 U. S. 607, 621, 14 S. Ct. 442, 38 L. Ed. 286.

Evidence of Intent.—The rule laid down by Mr. Justice Boyden in Reiger v. Davis, 67 N. C. 185, 189, was that when a debtor, much embarrassed, conveys property of much value to a near relative, and the transaction is secret and no one is present to witness the trade but these near relatives, it is regarded as fraudulent, but when these relatives are made witnesses in the cause, and dispose to the fairness and bona fides of the transaction, and that, in fact, there was no purpose of secrecy, it then becomes a question for the jury to determine the intent which influenced the parties, and to find it fraudulent, or otherwise, as the evidence may satisfy them. Helms v. Green, 105 N. C. 251, 263, 11 S. E. 470.

Same—Reservation of Exemptions. — The reservation of exemptions allowed by law in a deed of assignment is no evidence of a fraudulent intent. Barber v. Buffaloe, 111 N. C. 206, 16 S. E. 386.

Same—Conveyance Fraudulent on Face.—A conveyance sometimes contains provisions which in themselves justify the inference of a fraudulent intent. Peters v. Bain, 133 U. S. 670, 686, 10 S. Ct. 354, 33 L. Ed. 696.

Intent Not Clear—Badges of Fraud.—It is true that courts and juries cannot see and know the intent of an assignor except from his words and acts. Where he expresses his intent—his purpose to be—to defraud his creditors, we need not look further. This will avoid the assignment. But if he had not so declared his purpose, then we have to look to his acts to ascertain the intention with which the assignment was made—to what are called the "badges of fraud." Royster v. Stallings, 124 N. C. 55, 64, 32 S. E. 384. These "badges of fraud" constitute the subject of the next succeeding analysis line of this note.

C. Badges of Fraud.

Badges of Fraud Defined.—As stated in the last paragraph under the preceding analysis line of this note it frequently becomes necessary, in order to ascertain the debtor's intentions, to look for what are designated as "badges of fraud." These badges of fraud are suspicious circumstances that overhang a transaction, and where the parties to it withhold testimony that it is exclusively within their power to produce, and that would remove all uncertainty, if believed, as to its character, the law puts the interpretation upon such conduct most unfavorable to the suppressing party as it does in all cases where a party purposely or negligently fails to furnish evidence under his control and not accessible to his adversary. Helms v. Green, 105 N. C. 251, 11 S. E. 470.

The usual badges of fraud are continuation of possession, or a secret trust, or some provision for the ease and comfort or benefit of the assignor, or the insertion of some feigned debt not due by the assignor. Royster v. Stallings, 124 N. C. 55, 65, 32 S. E. 384.

Same—Possession Not Fraudulent Per Se.—Possession retained by the vendor of chattels does not, per se, make the sale fraudulent in law. It is but presumptive evidence of fraud, proper to be left to a jury. To repel this presumption the vendee may show that consideration passed, though none be stated in the bill of sale. Howell v. Elliott, 12 N. C. 76.

Same—Permitting Mortgagor to Remain in Possession of and Sell Stock of Merchandise. — Where mortgagees expressly agree to permit mortgagor to remain in possession of the stock of merchandise and sell the same in the usual course of trade, but do not require him to account for the proceeds of same, which the mortgagor does, until he is adjudged bankrupt, the mortgage is presumptively fraudulent in law and the burden is upon the mortgagor to rebut that presumption by proof that there were no pre-existing debts at the time the mortgage was executed, or that the mortgagor had assets sufficient and available to pay the existing debts exclusive of the property embraced in the mortgage. In re Joseph, 43 F. (2d) 252. See also Morris Plan Bank v. Cook, 55 F. (2d) 176, 179.

Same—Secrecy.—It is a mark of fraud if the transaction be secret; and it is meant by secrecy, if it be done in the presence only of near relatives, being such persons as may be relied on not to disclose what they know to the neighborhood; or if it be done at such distance from the neighborhood, that it is unlikely that the affair will become known to them. Vick v. Kegs, 3 N. C. 126.

That the only parties present at a conveyance of all the vendor's land in satisfaction of old debts were the vendor and vendee, who were brothers-in-law, and subscribing witness, also a brother-in-law of the vendee, is a fact calculated to throw suspicion upon the transaction, i. e., is a badge of fraud. Peebles v. Horton, 64 N. C. 374.

Same—Kinship.—The U. S. Supreme Court held in Gottlieb v. Thatcher, 151 U. S. 271, 279, 14 S. Ct. 319, 38 L. Ed. 157, that the relationship of brothers does not, of and in itself, cast suspicion upon a transfer from one to the other of property, or create such a prima facie presumption against its validity as would require the court to hold it to be invalid without proof that there was fraud on the part of the grantor participated in by the grantee.

Conveyance of Exempt Property. — The U. S. Supreme Court held in Rio Grande R. Co. v. Vinet, 132 U. S. 565, 571, 10 S. Ct. 168, 33 L. Ed. 438, that where a member of a firm covered his homestead with a mortgage, which was used to raise money by the firm to pay its debts, it was not a transaction that should be branded as a fraud by other creditors.

Wife's Separate Property.—In Schreyer v. Scott, 134 U. S. 405, 415, 10 S. Ct. 579, 33 L. Ed. 955, it was held that the transfer by a husband to his wife of the legal title to property of which she was prior thereto, the equitable owner, or in which she had at least a large equitable interest, is not voluntary.

III. RIGHTS AND LIABILITIES OF PARTIES AND PURCHASERS.

Bona Fide Purchaser without Notice.—A purchaser for a valuable consideration, and without notice, from a fraudulent grantee, acquires a good title against the creditors of the fraudulent grantor. Saunders v. Lee, 101 N. C. 3, 7 S. E. 590. And in Young v. Lathrop, 67 N. C. 63, 69, Chief Justice Pearson said: "Whatever may be said about fairness or unfairness towards creditors, the legislative will gives preference to a bona fide purchaser, for valuable consideration at full price and without notice of the fraud and covin."

Bona Fide Purchaser Prevails.—A bona fide purchaser of personal property, without notice, acquires a good title, though his vendor may have made a prior fraudulent conveyance to a third person. Plummer v. Worley, 35 N. C. 423.

Purchaser with Notice.—Since the passage of the Act of 1840 a purchaser of land with notice at the time of a former fraudulent conveyance is not protected in his purchase, although he paid value therefor. Triplett v. Witherspoon, 70 N. C. 589; Hiatt v. Wade, 30 N. C. 340.

Same—Constructive Notice.—A purchaser from a trustee, under a conveyance containing upon its face evidence of a fraudulent purpose to defeat creditors, takes with notice of such evidence. Eigenbrun v. Smith, 98 N. C. 207, 4 S. E. 122.

Repairs and Improvements.—In a U. S. Supreme Court case, Railroad Co. v. Soutter, 13 Wall. 517, 523, 20 L. Ed. 543, it was held that a fraudulent purchaser of property when deprived of its possession by attacking creditors, cannot recover of them for repairs or improvements, or for incumbrances lifted by him whilst in possession.

Valid against Maker.—A conveyance made with an intent to defraud creditors, is nevertheless valid against the maker and all others except creditors and those who purchase under a sale made for their benefit. Saunders v. Lee, 101 N. C. 3, 7 S. E. 590.

When Parties in Pari Delicto.—In York v. Merritt, 77 N. C. 213, the action was by the grantee against the grantor for possession of the land conveyed to defraud creditors. The court held that when the parties have united in a transaction to defraud another or others, or the public, or the due administration of justice, or which is against the public policy or contra bonos mores, the courts will not enforce it against either party. Bank v. Adrian, 116 N. C. 537, 540, 21 S. E. 792.

Although a purchaser may pay a full price for the property, yet if he purchased with the intent to aid his vendor to defeat the latter's creditors his purchase will be void. Eigenbrun v. Smith, 98 N. C. 207, 4 S. E. 122.

A bond given as a pretext to enable one person to set up a claim to the property of another, so as to defraud the creditors of that other, is void even as between the parties to the same. Powell & Co. v. Inman, 53 N. C. 436.

When Conveyance to Trustee Void.—A conveyance to a trustee for the use of creditors, if made with intent to defraud any one of the vendor's creditors, is void, though the trustee be ignorant of such intent, and his conduct is bona fide. Eigenbrun v. Smith, 98 N. C. 207, 4 S. E. 122.

Personal Liability of Wife.—It was held in Trust Co. v. Sedgwick, 97 U. S. 304, 24 L. Ed. 954, that where property is conveyed to a wife in fraud of her husband's creditors, a judgment in personam for its value cannot be taken against her, nor, in case of her death, against her executors.

Burden of Proof.—Where a conveyance from an insolvent husband to his wife is attacked for fraud, the onus is upon the wife to show that a consideration, in the shape of money paid, the discharge of a debt due from him to her, or something of value, actually passed. Peeler v. Peeler, 109 N. C. 628, 14 S. E. 59.

The burden is on the purchaser of property conveyed to defraud creditors to show that he bought for a valuable consideration and without notice. Cox v. Wall, 132 N. C. 730, 44 S. E. 635.

IV. RIGHTS AND REMEDIES OF CREDITORS.

Editor's Note.—It would seem that this Article dealing with fraudulent conveyances is the controlling law until the debtor makes an assignment for the benefit of creditors, whereupon sections 23-1 to 23-12, inclusive, govern. Under section 23-1 when a debtor executes a deed of trust, or deed of assignment, all of the debts of the said debtor shall become due and payable at once. The said deed shall not contain any preference whatsoever of one creditor over another, except as provided in Article 1, Chapter 23.

Section 23-3 makes it the duty of the trustee to recover any property which was conveyed by the debtor for the purpose of defrauding his creditors, or of giving a preference. In defining a preference, the section goes on to say that it shall be deemed to have been given when the conveyance is within four months of the registration of the deed of trust or deed of assignment. This definition is quite similar to section 60(a) of the Federal Bankruptcy Act.

Minor children are not creditors of their father for their past support furnished them by another, and for which their personal estate was not invaded, and a conveyance executed by him prior to the institution of their action may not be set aside by them under this section. Bryant v. Bryant, 212 N. C. 6, 192 S. E. 864.

Preference of Creditors.—It is stated in emphatic terms by Gaston, J., speaking for the court in Hafner v. Irwin, 23 N. C. 490, 496, thus: "Every conveyance of property by an insolvent or embarrassed man, to the exclusive satisfaction of the claims of some of his creditors, has necessarily a tendency to defeat or hinder his other creditors in the collection of their demands. But if the sole purpose of such a conveyance be the discharge of an honest debt, it does not fall under operation of the statute against fraudulent conveyances."

It is entirely well settled, both in England and America, that at common law a debtor, insolvent or in failing circumstances, has a right to prefer certain creditors to whom he is under special obligations, where done in good faith and without fraud, though by such preference the fund for the payment of other creditors be lessened or absorbed. See Huntley v. Kingman, 152 U. S. 527, 532, 14 S. Ct. 688, 38 L. Ed. 540.

But an agreement by which a conveyance, made for the purpose of preferring a creditor, is to be kept secret until the debtor has an opportunity to get beyond the reach of process issued by his other creditors, renders the conveyance fraudulent towards other creditors, as intended to hinder, delay, or defeat them. Hafner v. Irwin, 23 N. C. 490.

Conveyance to Defeat Claims for Torts.—A secret conveyance of a mill made to defeat, hinder or delay a party injured by the erection thereof in the recovery of his damages, is fraudulent and void as to such party, and the former owner of the mill, notwithstanding such conveyance, continues liable for the damage. Purcell v. McCallum, 18 N. C. 221.

Where a deed was executed to evade the payment of any judgment that might be recovered against the grantor in an action for slander pending at the time of its execution, it is fraudulent, under the section, as to his creditors. Helms v. Green, 105 N. C. 251, 11 S. E. 470.

Secret Trusts.—In Clement v. Cozart, 109 N. C. 173, 179, 13 S. E. 862, it was said that if a deed be made, showing upon its face a full valuable consideration, but upon the secret trust that the vendee shall not pay anything therefor, but shall hold the same in contemplation of insolvency for the benefit of the vendor, so as to protect and shield the property against any debts that he may owe at the time, or any liabilities that he may subsequently incur, such a deed would be void as to all persons whose claims are, shall or might be defrauded thereby. As to pre-existing debts such a deed would be ipso facto fraudulent and void. Morgan v. McLelland, 14 N. C. 82.

Same—Evidence.—In Barber v. Buffaloe, 122 N. C. 128, 129, 29 S. E. 336, it was held that there was sufficient evidence of fraud to take the case to the jury. There the party preferred, a relative of the assignor, went 16 miles on Sunday night with the attorney who drew the deed or assignment, brought in the property with the debt secured, and allowed the assignor to remain in possession free of rent; this was evidence of a secret trust and benefit to the assignor, and the turning point in the case. Royster v. Stallings, 124 N. C. 55, 65, 32 S. E. 384.

Absolute Transfers Intended as Security.—A deed absolute but executed upon a parol agreement for redemption, is, in law, fraudulent and void against the creditors of the vendor. Gregory v. Perkins, 15 N. C. 50.

A deed absolute on its face, which is mere security for a debt, is void as against creditors of the grantor. Bernhardt v. Brown, 122 N. C. 587, 29 S. E. 884.

Absolute Transfer Intended as Mortgage.—A deed absolute on its face, but intended as a mortgage only, is fraudulent and void against creditors and purchasers, and against subsequent as well as prior creditors. Halcombe v. Ray, 23 N. C. 340.

When Insolvent Debtor Improves Wife's Estate. — An insolvent debtor cannot withdraw money from his own estate and give it to his wife to be invested by her in the purchase or improvement of her property, and to that extent, when it is done, creditors may subject the property so purchased or improved to the payment of their claims. Michael v. Moore, 157 N. C. 462, 73 S. E. 104.

Prior and Subsequent Creditors. — Indebtedness, at the time of making a voluntary conveyance of part only of the grantor's property, is, in respect to subsequent creditors seeking satisfaction out of the property conveyed, merely evidence of fraud, the consideration of which belongs to the jury; but in respect to prior creditors where debts cannot be otherwise satisfied, it constitutes fraud in law to be declared by the court. O'Daniel v. Crawford, 15 N. C. 197.

Same—Surety on Bond.—The liability of a principal to indemnify a surety on a bond is an existing liability at the time the bond is executed, within the rule that conveyance with intent to defraud creditors is void as to existing obligations. Graeber v. Sides, 151 N. C. 596, 66 S. E. 600.

Void in Part Void in Toto.—If only a part of the consideration of a deed is fraudulent against creditors, the whole deed is void. Hafner v. Irwin, 23 N. C. 490.

Same—Fraud in Law.—As respects fraud in law as distinguished from fraud in fact where that which is valid can be separated from that which is invalid, without defeating the general intent, the maxim, "void in part, void in toto," does not necessarily apply, and the instrument may be sustained notwithstanding the invalidity of a particular provision. Peters v. Bain, 133 U. S. 670, 688, 10 S. Ct. 354, 33 L. Ed. 696.

When Deed of Trust Fraudulent.—A deed of trust executed by a corporation, or an individual for the purpose of gaining time at the expense of creditors, in order to dispose of property to advantage, and prevent a sacrifice by a sale for cash, when the company or individual has the means and resources from which enough might be realized to pay all the debts, is fraudulent and void as against creditors. London v. Parsley, 52 N. C. 313.

It is no ground for a court to pronounce a deed of trust fraudulent per se, as against other creditors, that the property conveyed was to be sold at a private sale. Burgin v. Burgin, 23 N. C. 453.

When Wife Participates in Husband's Bank Deposits. — Where the wife participates in her husband's depositing his money in her name at a bank for the purpose of defrauding his creditors, the attempted appropriation is void under this section which was enacted to prevent fraudulent gifts, and in an appropriate action the deposit will be considered and dealt with as if it stood in the name of the husband. Moore v. Greenville Banking, etc., Co., 173 N. C. 180, 91 S. E. 793.

When Trustee in Bankruptcy May Have Conveyance Set Aside.—A trustee in bankrutcy is entitled to have a fraudulent conveyance set aside and to recover the property transferred, provided any creditor of the bankrupt would be entitled to the same. Cox v. Wall, 132 N. C. 730, 44 S. E. 635.

Fraudulent Conveyance of Life Insurance Policy.—A life insurance policy issued to one for the benefit of himself is an integral part of his estate, and a voluntary assignment thereof to his children, made when he is insolvent, is fraudulent and void. Burton v. Farinholt, 86 N. C. 261.

Feigned and Covinous Judgment.—A feigned and covinous judgment is made utterly void as against the person who is in anywise hindered, delayed, or defrauded of his debts. Powell v. Howell, 63 N. C. 283, 285.

§ 39-16. Conveyance with intent to defraud purchasers void.—Every conveyance, charge, lease or encumbrance of any lands or hereditaments, goods and chattels, if the same be made with the actual intent in fact to defraud such person who has purchased or shall purchase in fee simple or for lives or years the same lands or hereditaments, goods and chattels, or to defraud such as shall purchase any rent or profit out of the same, shall be deemed utterly void against such person and others claiming under him who shall purchase for the full value thereof the same lands or hereditaments, goods and chattels, or rents or profits out of the same, without notice before and at the time of his purchase of the conveyance, charge, lease or encumbrance, by him alleged to have been made with intent to defraud; and possession taken or held by or for the person claiming under such alleged fraudulent conveyance, charge, lease or encumbrance shall be always deemed and taken as notice in law of the same. (Rev., s. 961; Code, s. 1546; R. C., c. 50, s. 2; 27 Eliz., c. 4, s. 2; 1840, c. 28, ss. 1, 2; C. S. 1006.)

Cross Reference.—As to registration, the Connor Act, see §§ 47-17, 47-18, 47-19, and 47-20.

Editor's Note.—The section is substantially the same as 27 Eliz. c. 4, sec. 2, with the exception of two important changes. The Act of 1860 amended it so as to limit its operation to the purchaser, both for full value and without notice, and gave to creditors of bargainors or mortgagors, and to such purchasers of their interests, but not to the bargainors or mortgagors themselves, the right to impeach conveyances on the ground that they were executed to hinder, delay or defeat, or defraud creditors or such purchasers. Bank v. Adrian, 116 N. C. 537, 547, 21 S. E. 792.

In Cadagan v. Kennett, Comp. 434, Lord Mansfield, in his sweeping manner, commences his opinion with this broad proposition, i. e., "The principles and rules of the common law, as now universally known and understood, are so strong against fraud in every shape, that the common law would have attained every end proposed by the statutes 13 and 2 Eliz." This proposition has never received the sanction of any adjudication, and is treated by writers as dictum. In Long v. Wright, 48 N. C. 290, 293, Pearson, J., speaks of it as "a striking illustration of his Lordship's proneness to break through the distinction between law and equity."

In Plummer v. Worley, 35 N. C. 423, Ruffin, C. J., uses this language "It is true that the statute of 27 Eliz. is in its terms confined to lands, but it has been often said that it is but in affirmance of the common law." It is apparent that reference is here made to the dictum of Lord Mansfield, and the inference is indistinctly suggested that the principle of 27 Eliz. might be extended to "things personal"; but the idea is not followed out in the decision. So it came to be a settled and unbroken holding in this State that the section applied only to land. However, the need for an extension of its provisions to "things personal" was keenly felt. So, while the rule was too well established for the courts to break away, the statute brought relief by extending the section to "goods and chattels," the change appearing for the first time in section 1546 of the Code of 1883.

Section Construed with Registration Act.—This section and the Registration Act (Sections 47-17 to 47-20) were both intended to prevent fraud, and must be construed together with that view. Austin v. Staten, 126 N. C. 783, 36 S. E. 338.

First Bona Fide Purchaser Protected.—27 Elizabeth being intended for the benefit of purchasers, the first bona fide purchaser, whether from the fraudulent vendor or vendee, is within its operation. Hoke v. Henderson, 14 N. C. 12.

"Purchaser" Defined. — The term "purchaser" is not used in the statute in its technical sense, for one who comes to an estate by his own act. It is to be received in its popular meaning as denoting one who buys for money, and, as we think, buys fairly and of course at a fair price. Fullenwider v. Roberts, 20 N. C. 420, 425, citing Upton v. Basset, Cro. Eliz. 445.

The Legislature thought proper in 1840 to declare that no person shall be deemed a purchaser unless he purchased the land for the full value thereof, without notice, at the time of his purchase, of the conveyance by him alleged to be fraudulent. Hiatt v. Wade, 30 N. C. 340, 342.

Second Purchaser Must Be Bona Fide.—The second purchaser must now, as before the Act of 1885, still be a bona fide purchaser, and for full value. We do not mean to say that he should have paid every dollar the land was worth, but he should have paid a reasonable fair price, such as would indicate fair dealing and not be suggestive of fraud. Austin v. Staten, 126 N. C. 783, 788, 36 S. E. 338.

Same—Equity Will Not Deprive of Legal Advantage.—No one has superior claims to the consideration of a court of equity than a purchaser without notice; and there is no case in which the court has interfered to deprive such a purchaser of a legal advantage. Crump v. Black, 41 N. C. 321, 324.

Curing Invalidity. — It is a settled principle that a deed voluntary or even fraudulent in its creation, and voidable by a purchaser, may become good by matter ex post facto. See Sumner v. Hicks, 2 Black 532, 535, 17 L. Ed. 355.

Consideration.—To constitute a good purchase, good faith and a fair price are requisite. Fullenwider v. Roberts, 20 N. C. 420, 428.

Same—A "Petty" Sum. — When the consideration is pecuniary, a "petty" sum, when compared with the value of the land, would not help a second over the head of a first conveyance. Fullenwider v. Roberts, 20 N. C. 420, 426.

Same—One-half or Two-thirds Value. — Under the section a man cannot be held to be a purchaser for a valuable consideration who gives for the land not more than one-half or two-thirds of the value. Harris v. DeGraffenreid, 33 N. C. 89.

Possession by Third Person Legal Notice. — Where one purchases land which he knows to be in the possession of a person other than the vendor, he is affected with legal notice and must inquire into the title of the possessor. Bost v. Setzer, 87 N. C. 187.

Burden of Proof. — Where both parties claim by deed from a common grantor, the deed of the plaintiff being the younger, but registered first—he makes out a prima facie case, and the burden of proof is shifted upon the defendant to attack the bona fides of the plaintiff's deed, and to defeat it, if he can, by establishing fraud. Austin v. Staten, 126 N. C. 783, 36 S. E. 338.

Same—Mortgages. — A mortgage to secure a present loan constitutes the mortgagee a purchaser for value within the meaning of the section. Fowle v. McLean, 168 N. C. 537, 541, 84 S. E. 852.

And the same principle obtains in reference to mortgages and deeds of trust to secure a part indebtedness, except as to an estate or interest existent in the property conveyed. Fowle v. McLean, 168 N. C. 537, 541, 84 S. E. 852; Brem v. Lockhart, 93 N. C. 191; Potts v. Blackwell, 57 N. C. 59.

Same—Deed in Trust. — A deed in trust to sell property and pay certain creditors is supported by a valuable consideration, and is valid against a prior deed of gift as being a subsequent sale to a purchaser for a valuable consideration under this section. Ward v. Wooten, 75 N. C. 413, 416.

Same—Assignee of Fraudulent Vendee. — An assignee of a fraudulent vendee for the benefit of creditors, incurring no new liability on the faith of his title, is not protected. Wallace v. Cohen, 111 N. C. 103, 105, 15 S. E. 892, which cites: Farley v. Lincoln, 51 N. H. 577; Harris v. Horner, 1 Dev. & Bat. Eq. 455, 30 Am. Dec. 182; Stevens v. Brennan, 79 N. Y. 254; Montgomery v. Bucyrus Mach. Works, 92 U. S. 257, 23 L. Ed. 656; Donaldson v. Farwell, 93 U. S. 631, 23 L. Ed. 993.

But such an assignee takes title subject to any equity, or other right, that attaches to the property in the hands of the debtor. Carpenter v. Duke, 144 N. C. 291, 293, 56 S. E. 938.

Possession. — It is clear that the possession here spoken of is not a possession continued by the fraudulent donor, but is that of the donee himself or his tenant, taken under the conveyance, and that such possession of the donee or for him amounts to notice in respect only of those tracts or parcels to which that possession extends, and cannot affect a person who buys a parcel which is not, at the time of his purchase, in the possession of the fraudulent donee. Wade v. Hiatt, 32 N. C. 302, 303.

§ 39-17. Voluntary conveyance evidence of fraud as to existing creditors.—No voluntary gift or settlement of property by one indebted shall be deemed or taken to be void in law, as to creditors of the donor or settler prior to such gift or settlement, by reason merely of such indebtedness, if property, at the time of making such gift or settlement, fully sufficient and available for the satisfaction of his then creditors, be retained by such donor or settler; but the indebtedness of the donor or settler at such time shall be held and taken, as well with respect to creditors prior as creditors subsequent to such gift or settlement, to be evidence only from which an intent to delay, hinder or defraud creditors may be inferred; and in any trial shall, as such, be submitted by the court to the jury, with such observations as may be right and proper. (Rev., s. 962; Code, s. 1547; R. C., c. 50, s. 3; 1840, c. 28, ss. 3, 4; C. S. 1007.)

Gifts of Visible Estate and Retention of Choses in Action. —Gifts of visible estates cannot be defeated, where the debtor has resources in stocks or other securities of value to meet his liabilities. Worthy v. Brady, 91 N. C. 265.

When Donor Is Unable to Pay Debts. — It is a well settled rule of law in this state, that no voluntary deed can be upheld as against creditors, when the bargainor is unable to pay his debts at the time of the execution of the deed. Hobbs v. Cashwell, 152 N. C. 183, 188, 67 S. E. 495; McCanless v. Flinchum, 89 N. C. 373.

When Conveyance Avoided Only as between Parties to Action. — When the court, in an action under this section has declared a voluntary conveyance void as to the plaintiff, and decreed that it be "set aside, revoked, rescinded, and annulled," it is avoided only as between the parties to the action. Sturges v. Portis Min. Co., 206 Fed. 534, 538; Allred v. Smith, 135 N. C. 443, 47 S. E. 597, 65 L. R. A. 924.

Legatee Must Suffer Loss. — The assent of an executor to a legacy, before he has paid all of the debts of his testator, is void as to the creditors; for it is a fraud, an act done in violation of the maxim, "A man must be just before he is generous." So long as the executor is solvent, no debt can be left unpaid, for he is liable to the creditors de bonis propriis, by reason of the devastavit. If the executor be insolvent, the loss must fall upon the legatee rather than upon a creditor. Barnawell v. Threadgill, 40 N. C. 86; Barnawell v. Threadgill, 56 N. C. 50, 62; Pullen v. Hutchins, 67 N. C. 428, 433.

A qualification is made in cases where the donor, at the time of the gift "retained property, fully sufficient and available for the satisfaction of all of his then creditors." This modification of the maxim "A man must be just before he in generous," is confined to gifts inter vivos. In respect to legacies, or gifts by will, there has been no modification of the maxim; on the contrary, the legislation upon the subject tends to enforce a strict adherence to it. Pullen v. Hutchins, 67 N. C. 428, 432.

Conveyance to Son. — Where a deed to the grantor's son is impeached as a voluntary gift upon the ground that he did not retain property "fully sufficient and available for the satisfaction of his then creditors," as required by the section, it was held that such a conveyance is valid if not made with a fraudulent intent and enough property is retained for all his creditors. Worthy v. Brady, 91 N. C. 265.

But where such a deed provides that the grantee shall support his invalid brothers (naming them) and comply with the conditions imposed, it is not voluntary within the meaning of the section, but rests upon a valuable consideration. Worthy v. Brady, 91 N. C. 265.

A voluntary conveyance to a son is not avoided by the fact that the grantor was indebted at the time, if he afterwards paid the debt. Smith v. Reavis, 29 N. C. 341.

A contract made in consideration of support by the son of his father and mother for life for one hundred dollars and certain shares of stock of the father, of the value of seven thousand dollars, and the father has not retained sufficient property out of which to pay his then existing creditors, and the son has acted in good faith without notice or knowledge, the transfer of the stock to the son is not valid as against his father's creditors beyond the amount he has expended for the support for which he was liable under the terms of the contract. Peoples Bank, etc., Co. v. Mackorell, 195 N. C. 741, 143 S. E. 518.

Same—When Void Per Se.—A voluntary deed of land or other property made to a son by a father unable to pay his debts is void per se as to creditors; indeed, such a deed to any person is void, and such a deed appearing, the court declares it void in law. Hobbs v. Cashwell, 152 N. C. 183, 188, 67 S. E. 495; McCanless v. Flinchum, 89 N. C. 373.

Conveyances to Wife. — A conveyance of lands to husband and wife by entireties which was paid for by the husband will not be considered as fraudulent with respect to his creditors, when he retained property amply sufficient to pay them at the time of the deed. Finch v. Cecil, 170 N. C. 114, 86 S. E. 991.

Where a husband makes a gift of land to his wife, without any valuable consideration, but it is admitted he had no fraudulent intent, and he retains property sufficient to pay his debts in existence at the time of the gift, it is not fraudulent as to creditors. Taylor v. Eatman, 92 N. C. 601, 602.

Same—Evidence. — When a deed from a husband to his wife is sought to be set aside by his creditors for fraud, evidence tending to show that she had a resulting trust by reason of her having conveyed the same land to her husband without consideration moving to her is inadmissible under the principle that a grantor in a deed to lands may not engratt a resulting trust upon his conveyance of the fee simple title with full covenants and warranty of title. Kelly Springfield Tire Co. v. Lester, 192 N. C. 642, 135 S. E. 778.

In an action to set aside a husband's deed to his wife for fraud as to his creditors, the presumption formerly arising from a voluntary conveyance is removed and the indebtedness of the husband is evidence only from which the intent may be inferred, and a requested instruction is properly refused which requires the defendant to satisfy the jury by the greater weight of the evidence that he retained property fully sufficient and available. Shuford v. Cook, 169 N. C. 52, 85 S. E. 142, citing Hobbs v. Cashwell, 152 N. C. 183, 67 S. E. 495.

Partition between Husband and Wife.—Where a bankrupt is allotted an undivided interest in certain lands as his homestead and the remainder in the undivided interest in such lands is sold to make assets, and at the sale it is bought by the wife of the bankrupt, and the land is partitioned by order of court, and in the partition proceeding the husband acknowledges the interest in remainder of his wife, the judgment in the partition proceeding estops the husband from denying the interest of his wife, and operates as a gift to her within the meaning of this section. Wallace v. Phillips, 195 N. C. 665, 143 S. E. 244.

Necessary Allegations to Set Aside Gift.—In order for a creditor of a husband to set aside a gift to his wife as fraudulent against creditors, his complaint must allege that at the time of the alleged gift the donor had not retained property fully sufficient and available to pay his then existing creditors, and in the absence of such allegation a demurrer thereto is good. Wallace v. Phillips, 195 N. C. 665, 143 S. E. 244.

Presumption and Burden of Proof. — The law presumes that the sale was made in good faith and with honest intentions; in the absence of proof to the contrary, the validity of the sale could not be questioned. See Shauer v. Alterton, 151 U. S. 607, 625, 14 S. Ct. 442, 38 L. Ed. 286.

The burden is on plaintiff in an action to set aside a deed as being fraudulent as to creditors to prove that the grantor failed to retain property sufficient and available to pay his then existing creditors. Hood v. Cobb, 207 N. C. 128, 176 S. E. 288.

Same—When Presumed Fraudulent.—If there is an existing debt, and the debtor makes a voluntary conveyance, and afterwards becomes insolvent, so that the creditor must lose his money, unless the property conveyed can be reached, such voluntary conveyance is presumed as a matter of law to be fraudulent. Black v. Sanders, 46 N. C. 67.

Deed Made for Benefit of Debtor's Family. — Where a deed, made without consideration by a debtor, expresses on its face that it is made for the benefit of the debtor and his family, the court can itself pronounce it fraudulent and void as against a then existing creditor. Sturdivant v. Davis, 31 N. C. 365.

Sufficiency of Property Retained. — A deed of gift may be fraudulent, though the donor, at the time of the gift, honestly believed that she had property sufficient to satisfy all her debts then existing, when in fact she was mistaken. Black v. Sanders, 46 N. C. 67.

In an action to set aside a deed, evidence that the grantor retained $11,625 to pay debts to the amount of $11,500 is not sufficient to show that the grantor retained property sufficient to pay his debts. Williams v. Hughes, 136 N. C. 58, 48 S. E. 518.

In an action to set aside a deed as being fraudulent as to creditors, under this section, evidence of the tax valuation of the other lands of the debtor at the time of the conveyance is competent on the issue of intent to hinder, delay and defraud creditors as tending to show the debtor had reason to believe he was retaining property sufficient and available to pay his then existing creditors. Hood v. Cobb, 207 N. C. 128, 176 S. E. 288.

Same—Question for Jury. — It is a question of fact for the determination of the jury whether the donor had retained property amply sufficient to pay his creditors at the time of his making a gift, within the intent and meaning of the section, which determines the validity of the transaction, and the question of his intent to defraud has no significance. Garland v. Arrowood, 177 N. C. 371, 99 S. E. 100.

When Value Determined.—A commissioner's deed of sale of part of the lands of the debtor, executed three years after the execution of the deed sought to be set aside as being fraudulent as to creditors, is held incompetent as evidence under this section, the issue being the value of all the debtor's lands at the itme of the voluntary deed attacked in the action. Hood v. Cobb, 207 N. C. 128, 176 S. E. 288.

Prior and Subsequent Creditors. — The controlling principle is stated in Aman v. Walker, 165 N. C. 224, 227, 81 S. E. 162, as follows: "If the conveyance is voluntary, and the grantor did not retain property fully sufficient and available to pay his debts then existing, it is invalid as to creditors; but it cannot be impeached by subsequent creditors without proof of the existence of a debt at the time of its execution, which is unpaid, and when this is established and the conveyance avoided, subsequent creditors are let in and the property is subjected to the payment of creditors generally." Sutton v. Wells, 177 N. C. 524, 527, 99 S. E. 365.

A voluntary conveyance is necessarily and in law fraudulent when opposed to the claim of a prior creditor; as against subsequent creditors, whether fraudulent or not, depends upon the bona fides of the transaction, and the question is one of intent to be passed upon by the jury. O'Daniel v. Crawford, 15 N. C. 197, in which the subject of fraudulent conveyances is elaborately discussed in concurring opinions by Ruffin, C. J., and Gaston, Daniel, JJ. Clement v. Cozart, 109 N. C. 173, 180, 13 S. E. 862.

When Question of Fraud for Jury. — The section only requires the question of fraud to be submitted to a jury, in cases where property fully sufficient and available to pay all creditors is retained by the donor. Black v. Sanders, 46 N. C. 67.

§ 39-18. Marriage settlements void as to existing creditors.—Every contract and settlement of property made by any man and woman in consideration of a marriage between them, for the benefit of such man or woman, or of their issue, whether the same be made before or after marriage, shall be void as against creditors of the parties making the same respectively, existing at the time of such marriage if the same is antenuptial, or at the time of making such contract or settlement if the same is postnuptial. (Rev., s. 963;

Code, ss. 1270, 1820; 1871-2, c. 193, s. 11; R. C., c. 37, s. 25; 1785, c. 238, s. 2; C. S. 1008.)

Cross References.—As to contracts between husband and wife, see § 52-13. As to antenuptial contracts of wife, see § 52-14. As to statutes concerning married women generally, see § 52-1 et seq.

Gifts between Husband and Wife Good Inter Se. — All gifts from a husband to his wife are good inter se, and against all persons claiming under them; and good against all persons, if he is not in debt at the time; but such gifts are voidable as to existing creditors, if their rights are not secured, and as to subsequent purchasers without notice, and creditors, if made with intent to delay or defraud them. Kelly Mar. Women, Chapter 6, sec. 9, at page 137, quoted in Walton v. Parish, 95 N. C. 259, 263.

May Surrender Curtesy Initiate. — Since the Act of 1848, a husband has the right to surrender his estate as tenant by the curtesy initiate and let it merge in the reversion of his wife, who, with the assent of her husband, may sell the same and receive the whole of the purchase money. Teague v. Downs, 69 N. C. 280.

Same—Proceeds to Separate Use of Wife. — And an agreement, that the wife shall receive such a price in personal property and hold the same to her separate use to enable her to lay it out in the purchase of another tract of land, is valid, such price not vesting in the husband jure mariti, so as to subject the same to the claims of his creditors. Teague v. Downs, 69 N. C. 280.

Application.—Where, in 1862, a husband about to enter military service made a deed to his wife of certain land for her support, but retained sufficient property to pay all of his existing debts, it was held, that the consideration was a meritorious one. Walton v. Parish, 95 N. C. 259.

§ 39-19. Purchasers for value and without notice protected.—Nothing contained in the preceding sections shall be construed to impeach or make void any conveyance, interest, limitation of use or uses, of or in any lands or tenements, goods or chattels, bona fide made, upon and for good consideration, to any person not having notice of such fraud. (Rev., s. 964; Code, s. 1548; R. C., c. 50, s. 4; 13 Eliz., c. 5, s. 6; 1785, c. 7, s. 6; C. S. 1009.)

See note under § 39-15.

Editor's Note. — In Reiger v. Davis, 67 N. C. 185; Lassiter v. Davis, 64 N. C. 498, and the class of cases of which they are the leading representatives, the question as to the burden of proof was not involved. The court decides in those cases merely that the fraudulent conveyance is void unless it appears that the vendee was not a party to the fraud, or purchased without any notice of the fraudulent intent. See Devries & Co. v. Phillips, 63 N. C. 53; Cox v. Wall, 132 N. C. 730, 741, 44 S. E. 635.

Intended as Proviso.—The purpose of the Legislature in enacting this section was to constitute an independent provision, operating as a proviso to the other sections on fraudulent conveyances. Cox v. Wall, 132 N. C. 730, 44 S. E. 635.

Scope and Effect.—In Young v. Lathrop, 67 N. C. 63, 72, 12 Am. Rep. 603, the court held that the section was a proviso to the preceding sections of the chapter, and Pearson, C. J., in referring to it, uses this language: "The proviso can only be made operative by giving to it the scope and effect of purging the original conveyance of the fraud with which it was tainted, by allowing the bona fides and the full valuable consideration of the second conveyance to supply the want of these qualities to the first, so as to perfect the title to the bona fide purchaser, by carrying it back to the donor and claiming the title from him, and thus prevent the title of the first purchaser from being impeached and made void." Cox v. Wall, 132 N. C. 730, 735, 44 S. E. 635.

Bona Fide Purchaser before Execution Sale. — Where a fraudulent grantee of land conveyed it to a bona fide purchaser for value without notice of the fraud, after a creditor of the fraudulent grantor had obtained a judgment against him, but before the land was sold under an execution issued on such judgment and teste of the terms where it was obtained, it was held that by force of the proviso obtained in this section (4th section of the 50th ch. of the Rev. Code, 13th Eliz., ch. 5, sec. 6), the title of the bona fide purchaser from the fraudulent grantee was to be preferred to that of the purchaser under the execution of the creditor of the fraudulent grantor. Young v. Lathrop, 67 N. C. 63.

Bona Fide Purchaser Gets Good Title.—Under this section a purchaser for value and without notice of any fraud gets good title by conveyance or transfer from fraudulent vendor. Peoples Bank, etc., Co. v. Mackorell, 195 N. C. 741, 745, 143 S. E. 518.

Trustees and Mortgagees Subject to Equities.—It is a settled principle, acted upon every day, that the trustee or mortgagee is a purchaser for a valuable consideration within the provisions of 13 and 27 Elizabeth; but it would seem they take subject to any equity that attached to the property in the hands of the debtor, and cannot discharge themselves from it on the ground of being purchasers without notice. Potts v. Blackwell, 56 N. C. 449, 453.

Good Consideration.—"Good consideration" means valuable consideration, or a fair price. Young v. Lathrop, 67 N. C. 63, 72; Arrington v. Arrington, 114 N. C. 151, 167, 19 S. E. 351, citing 2 Bigelow Frauds 443.

Onus Probandi.—When a grantor executes a deed with intent to defraud his creditors, the grantee can only protect his title by showing that he is a purchaser for a valuable consideration, and without notice of a fraudulent intent on the part of his grantor. Saunders v. Lee, 101 N. C. 3, 7 S. E. 590; Morgan v. Bostic, 132 N. C. 743, 44 S. E. 639; Cansler v. Cobb, 77 N. C. 30, 32.

In Bamberger v. Schoolfield, 160 U. S. 149, 16 S. Ct. 225, 40 L. Ed. 374, what is said by the court with reference to the burden of proof does not relate to the notice of the fraud, but to the fraud itself, and of course the burden to establish the latter was placed upon the contesting creditor. Cox v. Wall, 132 N. C. 730, 741, 44 S. E. 635.

When Wife Takes with Notice of Fraud.—Where a husband's conveyance to his wife is executed with a fraudulent intent, and the wife, with a knowledge of his purpose, accepts the benefit of the act and claims under it, she puts herself beyond the pale of the protection offered to innocent purchasers by the section. Peeler v. Peeler, 109 N. C. 628, 633, 14 S. E. 59.

Conveyance to Daughter in Consideration of Services. — Where A made a deed to his daughter, in consideration of services rendered and to be rendered in the future for attending upon him in his old age, with intent to defraud his creditors, the deed is void, even though the daughter had no knowledge of such fraudulent intent. Cansler v. Cobb, 77 N. C. 30.

§ 39-20. Bona fide purchaser of mortgaged property not affected by illegal consideration of note secured.—No conveyance or mortgage, made to secure the payment of any debt or the performance of any contract or agreement, shall be deemed void as against any purchaser for valuable or other good consideration of the estate or property conveyed, sold, mortgaged or assigned, by reason that the consideration of such debt, contract or agreement is forbidden by law, if such purchaser, at the time of his purchase, did not have notice of the unlawful consideration of such debt, contract or agreement. (Rev., s. 965; Code, s. 1549; R. C., c. 50, s. 5; 1842, c. 70; C. S. 1010.)

Cross Reference.—As to registration of conveyances affecting validity thereof, see § 47-18.

When Part of Debts Secured are Fictitious.—A purchaser for value without notice, under a deed in trust in which some of the debts secured are fictitious, gets a good title, even against the creditors of the fraudulent trustor. McCorkle v. Earnhardt, 61 N. C. 300.

Mortgage Note Tainted with Usury.—This section does not purport to protect the innocent holder of a mortgage note which is tainted with usury, but the "purchaser of the estate or property" at the sale under the mortgage, who buys without notice of the usurious taint in the debt secured. The only case in our reports that seems to mitigate against the otherwise uniform tenor of the decisions on this subject is Coor v. Spicer, 65 N. C. 401, which held that a mortgage given to secure a usurious bond might be enforced in the hands of an innocent purchaser for value. The case recognizes the general rule, but takes mortgages out of it upon the supposed wording of the section. Aside from the fact that this is held expressly otherwise in the latter case of Moore v. Woodward, 83 N. C. 531, an examination of the section will show that Coor v. Spicer was a palpable inadvertence. Ward v. Sugg, 113 N. C. 489, 493, 18 S. E. 717.

Where a deed of trust is made to secure certain specified debts one of which is tainted with usury, and a purchaser buys at the trustee's sale for a valuable consideration without notice of the illegality of the consideration of the said debt his title is not affected thereby. McNeill v. Riddle, 66 N. C. 290.

§ 39-21. Bona fide purchaser of fraudulently conveyed property treated as creditor.—Purchasers of estates previously conveyed in fraud of creditors or purchasers shall have like remedy and relief as creditors might have had before the sale and purchase. (Rev., s. 966; Code, s. 1550; R. C., c. 50, s. 6; C. S. 1011.)

§ 39-22. Persons aiding debtor to remove to defraud creditors liable for debts.—If any person removes or aids and assists in removing any debtor out of any county in which he has resided for the space of six months, or more, with the intent, by such removing, aiding or assisting, to delay, hinder or defraud the creditors, or any of them, of such debtor, the person so removing, aiding or assisting therein, and his executors or administrators, shall be liable to pay all the debts which the debtor removed may justly owe in the county from which he was so removed; and the same may be recovered by the creditors, their executors or administrators, by a civil action. (Rev., s. 1939; Code, s. 1551; R. C., c. 50, s. 14; 1820, c. 1063; C. S. 1012.)

What Constitutes Aid and Assistance.—Aid or assistance is the doing of some act whereby the party is enabled, or it is made easier for him to do the principal act, or effect some primary purpose. Wiley & Co. v. McRee, 47 N. C. 349, 351.

Where a party persuades a debtor, who is temporarily absent from the county of his residence, not to go back into that county, but to go to distant parts, and promises, if he will do so, to send his property from his residence to him, and does afterwards send such property to him, and aids him with money to abscond from where he then is, and goes part of the way with him, for the purpose of defrauding his creditors, he is liable under the section. Moore v. Rogers, 48 N. C. 91.

Where a party, having the money of his principal in his hands for a fair and honest purpose, paid it to his son fraudulently to assist him in absconding, the mere fact that, in a settlement of accounts between the principal and the agent, the former allowed the latter's bill for money thus applied does not amount to such a ratification as to subject the principal. Moore v. Rogers, 51 N. C. 297.

Same—Carrying Debtor to Railway Station.—Where a party, with his horse and buggy, carried a debtor to a railroad station, and there procured the money to enable him to leave the State, with the intent to assist him in the purpose of avoiding his creditors, it was held to be a fraudulent removal within the statute. Moffit v. Burgess, 53 N. C. 342.

Same—Property Not Carried Entirely Out of County. — Where a debtor removes out of a county with intent to defraud his creditors, a person who, knowing of such intent, helps him by carrying him or his property a part of the way in order to assist him in getting him out of the county, becomes bound for his debts, although he did not convey the debtor or his goods entirely out of the one county into another. Godsey v. Bason, 30 N. C. 260.

Same—Aid without Acts.—There is no distinction between frauds consisting mainly in acts, and those which consist mainly in words, the criterion of the plaintiff's right of action and the defendant's liability being, that the one should have been damaged in consequence of the fraud of the other. March v. Wilson, 44 N. C. 143.

Same—Mere Advice Insufficient. — Simply advising a debtor to run away, though the advice be given to delay, etc., is not equivalent to aiding and assisting, and will not sustain an action under the statute against the fraudulent removing of debtors. Wiley & Co. v. McRee, 47 N. C. 349.

Knowledge of Particular Debt Unnecessary. — Where a person who has removed a debtor out of a county is sued by a creditor it is not necessary to show that this person had a knowledge of any particular debt due from the debtor, but is sufficient if the circumstances of the case induce the jury to believe that the removal was made with a view to defraud creditors. Godsey v. Bason, 30 N. C. 260.

One Arrested under Writ of Capias Ad Respondendum. — The bail of a person arrested under a writ of capias ad respondendum may maintain an action on the case at common law against one for fraudulently aiding and assisting the principal to remove from the county, in consequence whereof he had to pay the debt sued on. March v. Wilson, 44 N. C. 143.

Surety on Constable's Bond Not Creditor.—A surety on a constable's bond, upon which there has been a breach, but no judgment nor payment by him, is not a creditor, so as to entitle him to recover against one for fraudulently removing his principal. Booe v. Wilson, 46 N. C. 182.

Measure of Damages.—In an action under this section the measure of damages is the amount of the debt due by the debtor to the plaintiff. Godsey v. Bason, 30 N. C. 260.

Same—Jury in Suit by Different Creditors.—An action on the case, brought by A. against B., for fraudulently removing a debtor, is tried, and a verdict found for defendant. The same jury are tendered in a case of C. against B. for the same act of removing, and are challenged by the plaintiff. They are under a legal bias by reason of having decided the case of A. against B., and the challenge ought to be allowed, and this although additional evidence is to be adduced in the second trial. Baker v. Harris, 60 N. C. 271.

Intent of Escaped Debtor Immaterial.—The declaration of a debtor fraudulently removed, that "he intended to get the defendant into a scrape," was held to be immaterial. Moffitt v. Burgess, 53 N. C. 342.

§ 39-23. Sales in bulk presumed fraudulent.—The sale in bulk of a large part or the whole of a stock of merchandise, otherwise than in the ordinary course of trade and in regular and usual prosecution of the seller's business, shall be prima facie evidence of fraud, and void as against the creditors of the seller, unless the seller, at least seven days before the sale, makes an inventory showing the quantity and, so far as possible, the cost price to the seller of such articles included in the sale, and shall seven days before the proposed sale notify the creditors of the proposed sale, and the price, terms and conditions thereof. If the owner of said stock of goods shall at any time before the sale execute a good and sufficient bond, to a trustee therein named, in an amount equal to the actual cash value of the stock of goods, and conditioned that the seller will apply the proceeds of the sale, subject to the right of the owner or owners to retain therefrom the personal property exemption or exemptions as are allowed by law, so far as they will go in payment of debts actually owing by the owner or owners, then the provisions of this section shall not apply. Such sale of merchandise in bulk shall not be presumed to be a fraud as against any creditor or creditors who shall not present his or their claim or make demand upon the purchaser in good faith of such stock of goods and merchandise, or to the trustee named in any bond given as provided herein, within twelve months from the date of maturity of his claim, and any creditor who does not present his claim or make demand either upon the purchaser in good faith or on the trustee named in a bond within twelve months from the date of its maturity shall be barred from recovering on his claim on such bond, or as against the purchaser, in good faith, of such stock of goods in bulk. Nothing in this section shall prevent voluntary assignments or deeds of trust for the benefit of creditors as now allowed by law, or apply to sales by executors, administrators, receivers or assignees under a voluntary assignment for the benefit of creditors, trustees in bankruptcy, or by any public officers under judicial process. (1907, c. 623; 1913, c. 30, s. 1; Ex. Sess. 1913, c. 66, s. 1; 1933, c. 190; C. S. 1013.)

Cross References.—As to power of corporation to sell, transfer and convey property in course of business, see § 55-26, cl. 9. As to assignments for benefit of creditors, see § 23-1, et seq.

Editor's Note.—The words "seven days before the proposed sale," near the end of the first sentence, were substituted by Public Laws 1933, c. 190, for the words "within said time."

Constitutionality.—This section is not unconstitutional or void as an unwarranted limitation of the right to sell and dispose of property. Pender v. Speight, 159 N. C. 612, 75 S. E. 851.

Same—Valid Exercise of Police Power.—This section regulating the sale of merchandise in bulk, with certain requirements as to notice to creditors, inventories, etc., making such sales, contrary to the provisions of the statute, prima facie evidence of fraud and void as against creditors of the seller, is a valid exercise of the police powers of government, and such sale is to be regarded as prima facie fraudulent in the trial of an issue, as to its validity. Raleigh Tire, etc., Co. v. Morris, 181 N. C. 184, 106 S. E. 562; Whitmire-Ligon Co. v. Hyatt, 175 N. C. 117, 119, 95 S. E. 38; Gallup & Co. v. Rozier, 172 N. C. 283, 90 S. E. 209; Pennell v. Robinson, 164 N. C. 257, 80 S. E. 417.

Construed Strictly.—The statute making void as against creditors a sale of a large part or the whole of a stock of merchandise in bulk, unless the requirements of the act are complied with, is in derogation of the common law, and must be strictly construed. Swift & Co. v. Tempelos, 178 N. C. 487, 101 S. E. 8.

A sale in bulk of a large part or the whole of a stock of merchandise under the conditions set forth in the statute, without an inventory and proper notice to creditors or without an adequate and proper bond to account for the proceeds, is absolutely void as to creditors and may be made available for their debts and claims. Gallup & Co. v. Rozier, 172 N. C. 283, 90 S. E. 209; Pennel v. Robinson, 164 N. C. 257, 80 S. E. 417; Whitmore-Ligon Co. v. Hyatt, 175 N. C. 117, 119, 95 S. E. 38.

Merchandise Defined.—Within the intent and meaning of the section the word "merchandise" is limited to things ordinarily bought and sold in the way of merchandise, the subject of commerce and traffic, and does not include a stock of provisions or supplies kept in a restaurant to be prepared and served to its customers for meals, or to the furniture and fixtures used therein in connection with conducting the business of a restaurant. Swift & Co. v. Tempelos, 178 N. C. 487, 101 S. E. 8.

"Sale" within Statute.—Where a bankrupt transfers a large part of his stock of goods to a corporation, which does not assume any of the debts, but merely issues its capital stock in payment, the sale is void as against creditors, in view of this section, the word "sale" in the statute meaning the transfer of property from one person to another for consideration of value, regardless of the mode of payment of consideration. First Nat. Bank v. Raleigh Sav. Bank & Trust Co., 37 F. (2d) 301.

Subsequent Creditors Not Included.—This section applies only as to creditors of the seller at the time of the sale and not to a subsequent creditor. Farmer's Bank, etc., Co. v. Murphy, 189 N. C. 479, 127 S. E. 527.

Vendor's Right to Personal Property Exemption.—A vendor of merchandise in bulk which is void under our statute is not deprived of his right to his personal property exemption under execution of his judgment creditor. Whitmore-Ligon Co. v. Hyatt, 175 N. C. 117, 95 S. E. 38.

When Question for Jury.—In an action to set aside the sale of a stock of merchandise in bulk as void against creditors, it is for the jury to determine the fact as to whether the seller had complied with the statutory requirement as to invoice, notice to creditors, etc., upon his evidence that he had done so, under proper instructions from the court; and a charge in effect that if he had failed in this respect the transaction was prima facie fraudulent, and not that it was void, is reversible error. Gallup & Co. v. Rozier, 172 N. C. 283, 90 S. E. 209.

Liability of Purchaser. — Where a dealer in automobile supplies has sold his stock of merchandise in bulk to those whose business it is to use such material in making repairs for their customers, the latter may not avoid liability to the creditors of the vendor on the ground that they were not dealers in such wares under the doctrine announced in Swift & Co. v. Tempelos, 178 N. C. 487, 101 S. E. 8, for the sale of the original creditor is itself void for noncompliance with this section. Raleigh Tire, etc., Co. v. Morris, 181 N. C. 184, 106 S. E. 562.

Purchaser Not Liable.—Under the provisions of this section a creditor, at most, would be entitled to have the transfer set aside, but not to hold the purchaser personally liable. Goldman & Co. v. Chank, 200 N. C. 384, 156 S. E. 919, discussing but not deciding whether sale was contrary to section.

Art. 4. Voluntary Organizations and Associations.

§ 39-24. Authority to acquire and hold real estate.—Voluntary organizations and associations of individuals organized for charitable, fraternal, religious, or patriotic purposes, when organized for the purposes which are not prohibited by law, are hereby authorized and empowered to acquire real estate and to hold the same in their common or corporate names: Provided, that voluntary organizations and associations of individuals, within the meaning of this article, shall not include associations, partnerships or copartnerships which are organized to engage in any business, trade, or profession. (1939, c. 133, s. 1.)

Cross References. — As to unlawfulness of associations, etc., maintaining places for receiving, keeping, etc., liquors, see § 18-15. As to secret political and military organizations forbidden, see § 14-10.

§ 39-25. Title vested; conveyance; probate. — Where real estate has been or may be hereafter conveyed to such organizations or associations in their common or corporate name the said title shall vest in said organizations, and may be conveyed by said organization in its common name, when such conveyance is authorized by resolution of the body duly constituted and held, by a deed signed by its chairman or president, and its secretary or treasurer, or such officer as is the custodian of its common seal with its official seal affixed, the said conveyance to be proven and probated in the same manner as provided by law for deeds by corporations, and conveyances thus made by such organizations, and associations shall convey good and fee simple title to said land. (1939, c. 133, s. 2.)

Cross References.—As to power of corporation to convey, see § 55-40. As to probate and registration for corporate conveyances, see §§ 47-41, 47-16.

§ 39-26. Effect as to conveyances by trustees. —Nothing in this article shall be deemed in any manner to change the law with reference to the holding and conveyance of land by the trustees of churches or other voluntary organizations where such land is conveyed to and held by such trustees. (1939, c. 133, s. 3.)

Cross Reference.—As to power of trustees of a religious body to convey property, see § 61-4.

§ 39-27. Prior deeds validated.—All deeds heretofore executed in conformity with this article are declared to be sufficient to pass title to real estate held by such organizations. (1939, c. 133, s. 4.)

Art. 5. Sale of Building Lots in North Carolina.

§ 39-28. Application for permit to sell.—After March 9, 1927, before a building lot or lots in a new sub-division of real estate is offered for sale or sold in North Carolina wherein it is represented or agreed that streets, sidewalks, water, sewer, lights or other improvements are to be made for the benefit of the purchaser or purchasers, the person, firm or corporation desiring to offer the same for sale shall first apply to the Clerk of the Superior Court of the county wherein the building lot or lots are situated for a permit to so sell said lots. (1927, c. 210, s. 1.)

§ 39-29. Contents of application.—The application for a permit to sell must state the location of the lots or lot with an estimate of the cost of the improvement proposed to be made on each lot as a whole; the estimate of cost so made shall be certified as approximately correct by a civil engineer or county surveyor licensed to practice in the State of North Carolina. (1927, c. 210, s. 2.)

§ 39-30. Investigation by clerk; bond. — Upon the filing of said application and the certificate of the cost of the improvement, the clerk of the court shall satisfy himself that the land or lots are located in his county and he shall also satisfy himself of the genuineness of the application and certificate of the engineer or county surveyor, and shall, if so satisfied, require a good and sufficient bond, in a sum equal to the amount certified by the engineer or county surveyor as the approximate cost of the improvement or improvements, with a corporation licensed to do business in the State of North Carolina as surety thereon, conditioned to save the purchaser or purchasers of each lot or lots harmless to the amount of the estimated and certified cost of the proposed improvement on each lot or lots so purchased. (1927, c. 210, s. 3.)

§ 39-31. Application, certificate, bond and order filed as permanent record.—The clerk of the Superior Court shall preserve the application, certificate and bond and his orders thereon as a permanent record for the benefit of any party whose rights are affected thereby and shall, when the provisions of this article have been fully complied with, and when a filing fee of one dollar has been paid, issue a permit to the applicant to sell said lot or lots. (1927, c. 210, s. 4.)

§ 39-32. Penalty for violation. — Any person, firm or corporation selling or offering for sale any building lot or lots in violation of the provisions of this article shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof shall be fined or imprisoned in the discretion of the court. (1927, c. 210, s. 5.)

Art. 6. Power of Appointment.

§ 39-33. Method of release or limitation of power.—A release or limitation of a power of appointment with respect to real or personal property exercisable by deed or will or otherwise may be effected, if such power may be released or limited under the laws of this state, by the execution by the holder of such power of an instrument in writing stating that the power is released or limited to the extent set forth therein, and the delivery of such instrument to any person who might be adversely affected if such power were exercised or to the fiduciary or one of the fiduciaries, if any, having possession or control of the property over which the power is exercisable. (1943, c. 665, s. 1.)

§ 39-34. Method prescribed in § 39-33 not exclusive.—The method of release prescribed in § 39-33 is not exclusive, and this article shall not invalidate or be construed to invalidate any instrument or contract of release or limitation of a power not executed and delivered in the manner provided in § 39-33, or as invalidating any other act of release or limitation of a power, whether such instrument, contract or act has been heretofore or may be hereafter executed, delivered or done. (1943, c. 665, s. 2.)

§ 39-35. Requisites of release or limitation as against creditors and purchasers for value.—No release or limitation of a power of appointment after the effective date of this article which is made by the owner of the legal title to real property in this state shall be valid as against creditors and purchasers for a valuable consideration until an instrument in writing setting forth the release or limitation is executed and acknowledged in the manner required for a deed and recorded in the county where the real property is. (1943, c. 665, s. 3.)

Editor's Note.—The act from which this article was codified was ratified March 8, 1943.

§ 39-36. Necessity for actual notice of release or limitation to bind fiduciary.—No fiduciary having possession or control of property over which a power of appointment is exercisable shall be bound or affected by any release or limitation of such power without actual notice thereof. (1943, c. 665, s. 4.)

Chapter 40. Eminent Domain.

Art. 1. Right of Eminent Domain.

Art. 2. Condemnation Proceedings.

Art. 1. Right of Eminent Domain.

§ 40-1. Corporation in this chapter defined.—For the purposes of this chapter, unless the context clearly indicates the contrary, the word "corporation" includes the bodies politic and natural persons, enumerated in the following section, which possess the power of eminent domain. (C. S. 1705.)

§ 40-2. By whom right may be exercised.—The right of eminent domain may, under the provisions of this chapter, be exercised for the purpose of constructing their roads, canals, pipe lines originating in North Carolina for the transportation of petroleum products, lines of wires, or other works, which are authorized by law and which involve a public use or benefit, by the bodies politic, corporation, or persons following:

1. Railroads, street railroads, plankroad, tramroad, turnpike, canal, pipe lines originating in North Carolina for the transportation of petroleum products, telegraph, telephone, electric power or lighting, public water supply, flume, or incorporated bridge companies.

2. Municipalities operating water systems and sewer systems and all water companies operating under charter from the state or license from municipalities, which may maintain public water supplies, for the purpose of acquiring and maintaining such supplies.

3. Person or persons, firms, corporations or copartnerships operating or authorized by law to operate electric light plants, or distributing electric current for lights or power, or for the purpose of constructing wires, poles or other necessary things, and for such purposes or things.

4. Public institutions of the state for the purpose of providing water supplies, or for other necessary purposes of such institutions.

5. School committees of public school districts, county boards of education, boards of trustees or of directors of any corporation holding title to real estate upon which any public school, private school, high school, academy, university or college is situated, in order to obtain a pure and adequate water supply for such school, college or university.

6. The department of conservation and development in the administration of the laws relating to fish and fisheries.

7. Any educational, penal, hospital or other institution incorporated or chartered by the state of North Carolina, for the furtherance of any of its purposes, such institution being wholly or partly dependent upon the state for maintenance, and such institution shall be in need of land for its location, or such institution shall be in need of adjacent land for necessary enlargement or extension, or for land for the building of a road or roads or a side-track for railroads, necessary to the proper operations and completion of any such institution, and shall so declare through its board of directors, trustees or other governing boards by a resolution inserted in the minutes at a regular meeting or special meeting called for that purpose, such institution shall have all the powers, rights and privileges of eminent domain given under this chapter, to condemn and procure such land, and shall follow the procedure established under this chapter.

8. Franchised motor vehicle carriers or union bus station companies organized by authority of the utilities commission, for the purpose of constructing and operating union bus stations: Provided, that this subsection shall not apply to any city or town having a population of less than sixty thousand. (Rev., s. 2575; Code, s. 1698; R. C., c. 61, s. 9; 1852, c. 92, s. 1; 1874-5, c. 83; 1907, cc. 39, 458, 783; 1911, c. 62, ss. 25, 26, 27; 1917, cc. 51, 132; 1923, c. 205; Ex. I. SOURCE OF POWER.

Editor's Note.—The phrase "eminent domain" was first used by Hugo Grotius, celebrated writer and publicist, in 1625. Grotius says, "The property of subjects is under the eminent domain of the State, so that the state or he who acts for it, may use and even alienate and destroy such property, not only in case of extreme necessity, in which even private persons have a right over the property of others, but for ends of public utility, to which ends those who founded civil society must be supposed to have intended that private ends should give way." Grotius De Jure Belli et Pacis, Lib., 3, c. 20.

Thus the right to take private property for public use is one of the inherent attributes of every sovereign state. It lies dormant in the state until the right to exercise it is granted by the state to some public or quasi public corporation or until it is exercised by the state itself. Foltz v. St. Louis, etc., R. Co., 60 Fed. 316, 317. See also Adirondack R. Co. v. New York State, 176 U. S. 335, 346, 20 S. Ct. 460, 44 L. Ed. 492.

As adopted in 1919 this section contained but five subsections. Subsection 6 was added by c. 118, Public Laws of 1924 and subsection 7 by c. 205, Public Laws 1923. Pub-Laws 1941, c. 254, added subsection 8. For comment on subsection 8, see 19 N. C. L. Rev. 480.

The 1937 amendment inserted the reference to pipe lines in the first sentence of this section, and also in subsection 1. The 1939 amendment changed subsection 3.

Definitions.—Eminent domain is the power of a government to take private property for public uses upon payment of a just compensation. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 195 U. S. 540, 583, 25 S. Ct. 133, 49 L. Ed. 312. It has also been defined to be the right of disposing in case of necessity and for the public safety of all of the wealth of the country. See United States v. Jones, 109 U. S. 513, 519, 3 S. Ct. 346, 27 L. Ed. 1015.

Founded on Necessity.—This power, or right of eminent domain is possessed by the government, and may be exercised by the Legislature or under its authority. Unless vested there, it can not be called into action, and without it neither the government nor the state could hold together. It is peculiarly fit to be wielded by the Legislature—it is a power founded on necessity. Raleigh, etc., R. Co. v. Davis, 19 N. C. 451, 458.

It was a right at common law and is not a right in equity or the creature of a statute. And while the time of its exercise may be prescribed by statute, the right itself is superior to any statute. Kohl v. United States, 91 U. S. 367, 377, 23 L. Ed. 449.

All private property is held subject to the necessities of the government, which may take personal or real property whenever its necessities or the exigencies of the occasion demand. United States v. Lynch, 188 U. S. 445, 465, 23 S. Ct. 349, 47 L. Ed. 539.

All property is held by tenure for the state, and all contracts are made subject to the right of eminent domain. Long Island Water Supply Co. v. Brooklyn, 166 U. S. 685, 692, 17 S. Ct. 718, 41 L. Ed. 1165.

Legislature Has Exclusive Control.—The method of taking land for a public use is within the exclusive control of the Legislature, limited by organic law, and the courts cannot help the injured landowner, where the statute has been strictly followed, until the question of compensation is reached. Durham v. Rigsbee, 141 N. C. 128, 53 S. E. 531.

A public service corporation has no power to condemn land by reasons of its being a riparian proprietor, but only under authority given by a valid statute to do so. Carolina-Tennessee Power Co. v. Hiawassee River Power Co., 175 N. C. 668, 96 S. E. 99.

II. STRICT CONSTRUCTION.

In General.—In construing statutes which are claimed to authorize the exercise of the power of eminent domain, a strict rather than liberal construction is the rule. Such statutes assume to call into active operation a power which, however essential to the existence of the Government, is in derogation of the ordinary rights of private ownership and control which the owner usually had of his property. Carolina, etc., R. Co. v. Pennearden Lumber, etc., Co., 132 N. C. 644, 652, 44 S. E. 358; Board v. Forrest, 193 N. C. 519, 137 S. E. 431.

The exercise of the power is in derogation of common right, and all laws conferring such power must be strictly construed. Durham, etc., R. Co. v. Richmond, etc., R. Co., 106 N. C. 16, 25, 10 S. E. 1041. And the right can be exercised only in the mode pointed out in the statute conferring it. Allen v. Wilmington, etc., Railroad, 102 N. C. 381, 9 S. E. 4.

For example, it has been held that the statutory authority given the county board of education to condemn land for school purposes is in derogation of a common-law right, and its terms will be strictly construed as to the extent or limit of the power given. Board v. Forrest, 193 N. C. 519, 137 S. E. 431.

A corporation furnishing electricity for public use may condemn lands of a private owner necessary for its transmission lines under the provisions of this section, but it is unlawful for a power company to enter upon and take the lands of the owner for such purpose without complying with the statutory procedure. Crisp v. Nanthala Power, etc., Co., 201 N. C. 46, 158 S. E. 845.

Power Not Implied.—The power of eminent domain cannot be implied or inferred from vague or doubtful language. Commissioners v. Bonner, 153 N. C. 66, 69, 68 S. E. 970.

If the legislative act is silent on the subject it is to be presumed that the Legislature intended that the necessary property should be obtained by contract. Commissioners v. v. Bonner, 153 N. C. 66, 69, 68 S. E. 970.

General Act Governs.—The provisions of the general railroad act prevail over provisions in the charter of a railroad company, unless the charter specifically designates and repeals these provisions of the general act. Durham, etc., R. Co. v. Richmond, etc., R. Co., 106 N. C. 16, 27, 10 S. E. 1041.

III. NATURE AND PURPOSE.

Purpose of Grant.—The right of eminent domain is granted because the public interest requires that private property shall be taken for public use under the circumstances and in the manner prescribed by law. Raleigh, etc., R. Co. v. Mecklenberg Mfg. Co., 166 N. C. 168, 173, 82 S. E. 5.

The right of eminent domain can only be exercised where the property taken is to be used for the benefit of the public, and under no circumstances can it be taken for a private use, as the taking of the property of one man for the benefit of another is not a constitutional exercise of this power. Strickley v. Highland Boy Gold Min. Co., 200 U. S. 527, 530, 26 S. Ct. 301, 50 L. Ed. 581.

Draining Public Road.—Digging a ditch across private land for the purpose of draining a public road, amounts to a taking of private property for a public use. State v. New, 130 N. C. 731, 41 S. E. 1033.

Remedy for Abuse.—If, after acquiring the land under condemnation for a public use, a company should devote it to private purposes, there is a remedy by quo warranto and otherwise. Wadsworth Land Co. v. Piedmont Tract. Co., 162 N. C. 314, 315, 78 S. E. 297.

IV. EXTENT OF POWER.

Discretion of Grantees.—A perusal of this entire chapter will clearly disclose that the extent and limit of the rights to be acquired are primarily and very largely referred to the companies or grantees of the power, and only becomes an issuable question, usually determinable by the court, on allegation of fact tending to show bad faith on the part of the companies or an oppressive or manifest abuse of their discretion. Yadkin River Power Co. v. Wissler, 160 N. C. 269, 274, 76 S. E. 267.

A railroad company may use and occupy a right of way acquired by it under condemnation proceedings when, in its own judgment, the proper management and business necessities of the road may require it. Virginia, etc., R. Co. v. McLean, 158 N. C. 498, 74 S. E. 461.

In Selma v. Nobles, 183 N. C. 322, 325, 111 S. E. 543, the court said:—"In construing this legislation, the court has held that where the general power to condemn exists, the right of selection as to route, quantity, etc., is left largely to the discretion of the company or corporation, and does not become the subject of judicial inquiry except on allegations of fact tending to show bad faith on the part of the company or corporation or an oppressive and manifest abuse of the discretion conferred upon them by the law."

A Continuing Power.—The power of eminent domain conferred on electric public service corporations by this section is not necessarily exhausted by a single exercise of the power, but, within the limits established by the general law or special charter, a subsequent or further exercise of the power may be permissible. Yadkin River Power Co. v. Wissler, 160 N. C. 269, 76 S. E. 267.

Rights Acquired.—Only an easement in lands passes from the owner to a railroad company under condemnation proceedings, divesting all the rights of owners who are parties to the proceedings in such easement during the corporate existence of the company, but allowing them to use and occupy the right of way in any manner not inconsistent with the easement acquired. Virginia, etc., R. Co. v. McLean, 158 N. C. 498, 74 S. E. 461; Phillips v. Postal Tel. Cable Co., 130 N. C. 513, 41 S. E. 1022.

Same—As to Part Not Needed.—To the extent that the right of way is not presently required for the purpose of the road it may be occupied and used by the original owner in any manner not inconsistent with the easement acquired. Goldsboro Lumber Co. v. Hines Bros. Lumber Co., 126 N. C. 254, 35 S. E. 458; Virginia, etc., R. Co. v. McLean, 158 N. C. 498, 74 S. E. 461.

Unless the land is needed for some use, the occupation and cultivation by the owner of the servient tenement will be disturbed only when it becomes necessary for the company to enter in order to remove something which endangers the safety of its passengers, or which might, if undisturbed, subject the owner to liability for injury to adjacent lands or property. Ward v. Wilmington, etc., R. Co., 113 N. C. 566, 18 S. E. 211, and Ward v. Wilmington, etc., R. Co., 109 N. C. 358, 13 S. E. 926; Blue v. Aberdeen, etc., R. Co., 117 N. C. 644, 649, 23 S. E. 275.

Land acquired by one railroad company under a legislative grant of the right of eminent domain, and unnecessary for the exercise of its franchise or the discharge of its duties, is liable to be taken under the law of eminent domain for the use of another railroad company. North Carolina, etc., R. Co. v. Carolina Cent. R. Co., 83 N. C. 489.

V. TO WHOM GRANTED.

Editor's Note.—The cross references above should be referred to for a list of the various corporations to which the right of eminent domain is especially granted by statute.

Public Service Corporations.—Where a corporation is authorized by its charter to generate and sell electricity, build dams and hydroelectric plants necessary to the generation of such hydroelectric power, and is therein given power of eminent domain to acquire the necessary rights of way and lands for its dams and the ponding of water, such corporation is a public-service corporation and has the power of eminent domain, as provided by this section, and it cannot be successfully contended that its taking of lands for ponding water necessary for one of its dams is a taking of private lands for a private use, nor does the fact that such public-service corporation also engages in private enterprises not connected with its public service alter this result. Whiting Mfg. Co. v. Carolina Aluminum Co., 207 N. C. 52, 175 S. E. 698.

Quasi-Public Corporations.—Where a corporation is authorized to conduct the quasi-public business of operating a street railway, it may exercise the right of eminent domain, in respect to this business, given to it by its charter and by this section, notwithstanding it is also authorized to conduct business of a private nature. Wadsworth Land Co. v. Piedmont Tract. Co., 162 N. C. 314, 78 S. E. 297.

The right of a corporation, having the statutory powers, to condemn lands for a public use is not affected or impaired because in the charter it may be given rights of a more private nature to which the right of condemnation may not attach. Mountain Retreat Ass'n v. Mt. Mitchell Develop. Co., 183 N. C. 43, 110 S. E. 524.

The use of the word "commercial railway" in a petition does not indicate that the land is to be used for private purposes, for the company engages in commerce when it carries articles of merchandise for the public. Wadsworth Land Co. v. Piedmont Tract. Co., 162 N. C. 314, 78 S. E. 297.

Stockholders of Railroad.—The Legislature may by the exercise of the power of eminent domain authorize the consolidation of railroads and, in effect, condemn the shares of dissenting stockholders. Spencer v. Railroad, 137 N. C. 107, 49 S. E. 96.

Overseer of Roads.—Rev. Code, c. 101, secs. 14, 15, and 16, giving power to overseers of roads to cut poles on adjacent land is an instance of the exercise on the part of the sovereign of the right to take private property for the use of the public, making compensation. Collins v. Creecy, 53 N. C. 333, cited in note in 42 L. R. A., N. S., 1046.

VI. COMPENSATION ESSENTIAL.

As to determining compensation, see note to section 40-17.

Definition of Compensation. — The word compensation imports that a wrong or injury has been inflicted, which must be expressed in money. Money must be paid to the extent of the injury, whether more or less than the value of the property. Bauman v. Ross, 167 U. S. 548, 17 S. Ct. 966, 42 L. Ed. 270.

Necessity for Compensation. — By the general law of European nations and the common law of England it was a qualification of the right of eminent domain that compensation should be made for private property taken or sacrificed for the public use. See Pumpelly v. Green Bay Co., 13 Wall. 166, 20 L. Ed. 557.

This qualification founded on justice and a due regard for basic property rights is applied in North Carolina. Bennett v. Winston-Salem South-Bound R. Co., 170 N. C. 389, 87 S. E. 133.

In Johnston v. Rankin, 70 N. C. 550, the court said, on page 555: "Notwithstanding there is no clause in the Constitution of North Carolina which expressly prohibits private property from being taken for public use without compensation, and although the clause to that effect in the Constitution of the United States applies only to acts by the United States, and not to the government of the State, yet the principle is so grounded in natural equity that it has never been denied to be a part of the law of North Carolina." See Phillips v. Postal Tel. Cable Co., 130 N. C. 513, 520, 41 S. E. 1022.

A citizen must surrender his private property in obedience to the necessities of a growing and progressive state, but in doing so he is entitled to be paid full, fair and ample compensation, to be reduced only by such benefits as are special and peculiar to his land. He has the right to have and enjoy the general benefits which are common to him and to his neighbors, without being required to pay therefor because it so happens that the use of his land is necessary for the needs of the public. Stamey v. Brunsville, 189 N. C. 39, 126 S. E. 103, 105.

Unconstitutional Unless Compensation Provided.—A statutory amendment to a former statute, which destroys and sensibly impairs vested property rights acquired under the former statute, or which attempts to transfer them either to the public or any other, except under the principles of eminent domain, and upon compensation duly made, is unconstitutional and invalid. Watts v. Lenoir, etc., Turnpike Co., 181 N. C. 129, 130, 106 S. E. 497.

Where a statute makes no provision for compensation, it is to be presumed that the Legislature did not intend that the power of eminent domain should be exercised. Commissioners v. Bonner, 153 N. C. 66, 68 S. E. 970.

When Implied.—Whenever the government in the exercise of its governmental rights takes property, the ownership of which it concedes to be in an individual, it impliedly promises to pay therefor. Lloyd v. Venable, 168 N. C. 531, 84 S. E. 855, 857.

See 15 N. C. Law Rev. 362.

§ 40-3. Right to enter on and purchase lands.—Such bodies politic, corporation, or persons, may at any time enter upon the lands through which they may desire to conduct the roads or works authorized under § 40-2 and lay out the same, and they may also enter upon such contiguous land along the route as may be necessary for depots, warehouses, engine sheds, workshops, water stations, tool-houses, and other buildings necessary for the accommodation of their officers, servants and agents, horses, mules and other cattle, and for the protection of their property; and shall pay to the proprietors of the land so entered on such sum as may be agreed on between them. (Rev., s. 2575; Code, s. 1698; R. C., c. 61, s. 9; 1852, c. 92, s. 1; 1874-5, c. 83; C. S. 1707.)

Nature of the Right.—The right of entry granted a railroad company under this section, is only for the purpose of marking out the route and designating the building sites desired, to the end that the parties may come to an intelligent agreement as to the price. State v. Wells, 142 N. C. 590, 55 S. E. 210. And without the consent of the owner the company cannot enter by virtue of this section, for the purpose of building its road. Id.

Company Not a Trespasser.—A railroad company having the right of eminent domain, entering upon and occupying lands for building its tracks, is not a trespasser. Abernathy v. South, etc., R. Co., 150 N. C. 97, 63 S. E. 180.

§ 40-4. Power of railroad companies to condemn land for union depots, double-tracking, etc. —Any railroad company operating a line of railroad in North Carolina whenever it shall find it necessary to occupy any land for the purpose of getting to a union depot which has been ordered by the utilities commission, or for the purpose of maintaining, operating, improving, or of straightening its line, or of altering its location, or of constructing double tracks, or of enlarging its yard or terminal facilities, or of connecting two of its lines already in operation not more than six miles apart, shall have the power to condemn all lands needed for such purpose under the provisions of this chapter. More than two acres may be condemned for yard or terminal facilities if required for due operation of the railroad. No lands in any incorporated towns shall be condemned under this section until approved by the utilities commission, nor shall any yard, garden or dwelling-house be condemned, unless the utilities commission, upon petition filed by the railroad seeking to condemn, shall, after due inquiry, find that the railroad company cannot make the desired improvement without condemning the yard, garden or dwelling-house, except at an excessive cost. The power to condemn land under this section shall be enforceable and matters arising in regard thereto shall be tried only in the courts created by or under the constitution of this state. No rights granted or acquired under the provisions of this section shall in any way destroy or abridge the rights of the state to regulate or control such railroad company or to exclude foreign corporations from doing business in this state. (1907, c. 458, ss. 1, 2, 3; 1933, c. 134, s. 8; 1941, c. 97, s. 1; C. S. 1708.)

Cross References.—As to when the utilities commission may order depots, etc., to be built, see §§ 62-41, 62-42, 62-43. As to powers and liabilities of railroads, see § 60-37, et seq.

In General.—This section confers on the roads the incidental right to make such changes in their line and route as are necessary to accomplish the purpose designed and to make the depot available a..d accessible to the traveling public as contemplated by the act. Dewey v. Railroad, 142 N. C. 392, 55 S. E. 292.

And it was intended to apply to all the cities and towns in the State, where, in the legal discretion of the commissioners, the move is practicable. Dewey v. Railroad, 142 N. C. 392, 55 S. E. 292.

Right of Access to Union Depot. — This section confers upon any railroad company the right to condemn land for the purpose of getting to a union depot required by the order of the Utilities Commission to be built. State v. Southern R. Co., 185 N. C. 435, 117 S. E. 563.

Section 60-49 Does Not Apply.—Section 60-49, requiring that a contemplated change in the route of a railroad in a city can only be made when sanctioned by a two-thirds vote of the aldermen, only applies where the railroad of its own volition, and for its own convenience, contemplates a change of route, and not to a case where the Utilities Commission, acting under express legislative authority and direction, requires the railroad to make the change for the convenience of the general public. Dewey v. Railroad, 142 N. C. 392, 55 S. E. 292.

Injunction Will Not Issue. — Where the Utilities Commission, acting under this section, has selected a site after due inquiry, the railroads will not be enjoined, at the instance of citizens and property owners, from erecting the depot, either on the ground that the city is being sidetracked or that their property will be damaged by the proposed change. Dewey v. Railroad, 142 N. C. 392, 55 S. E. 292.

§ 40-5. Condemning land for industrial sidings. —Any railroad company doing business in this state, whether such railroad be a domestic or foreign corporation, which has been or shall be ordered by the utilities commission to construct an industrial siding as provided in § 62-45, is empowered to exercise the right of eminent domain for such purpose, to condemn property as provided in this chapter, and to acquire such right of way as may be necessary to carry out the orders of the utilities commission. Whenever it is necessary for any railroad company doing business in this state to cross the streets or streets in a town or city in order to carry out the orders of the utilities commission, to construct an industrial siding, the power is hereby conferred upon such railroad company to occupy such street or streets of any such town or city within the state: Provided, license so to do be first obtained from the board of aldermen, board of commissioners, or other governing authorities of such town or city. (1911, c. 203; 1933, c. 134, s. 8; 1941, c. 97, s. 1; C. S. 1709.)

Cited in State v. Allen, 197 N. C. 684, 150 S. E. 337.

§ 40-6. Condemnation by schools for water supply.—If the school authorities mentioned in subsection 5 of § 40-2 shall be unable to agree with the owners of any lands which, or the use of which, it is necessary to appropriate in obtaining a pure and adequate water supply for the school, they shall file a petition for the condemnation of such lands in conformity with the provisions of this chapter. In addition to the particulars required to be set out in § 40-12, the petition shall state whether the water supply is desired to be obtained from a spring, from a stream, or by digging artesian wells. The proceedings for such condemnation shall conform to the requirements of this chapter. No greater amount of land in area or width shall be condemned under this section than is necessary to obtain a pure and adequate water supply.

Any person holding title to land upon which any school, public or private, is located is empowered to obtain water supplies from the springs, streams or artesian wells the use of which is acquired under this section by building intakes, reservoirs, digging ditches, laying pipes or doing such other things as may be needful to obtain the water supply. (1907, c. 671; C. S. 1710.)

Cross Reference.—As to condemning of land for school buildings, see § 115-85.

§ 40-7. Condemnation for steamboat wharves and warehouses.—Upon the order of the utilities commission that any steamboat company provide wharf and warehouse facilities as may be deemed reasonable and just, at any particular point, such company shall have power to condemn land for such purpose in accordance with the provisions of this chapter. (Ex. Sess. 1913, c. 52; 1933, c. 134, s. 8; 1941, c. 97, s. 1; C. S. 1711.)

Cross Reference.—As to power and duty of Utilities Commission to require steamboat companies to provide wharf and warehouse facilities, see § 62-39.

§ 40-8. May take material from adjacent lands. —For the purpose of constructing and operating its works and necessary appurtenances thereto, or of repairing them after they shall have been made, or of enlarging or otherwise altering them, the corporation entitled to exercise the powers of eminent domain may, at any time, enter on any adjacent lands, and cut, dig, and take therefrom any wood, stone, gravel, water or earth, which may be deemed necessary: Provided, that they shall not, without the consent of the owner, destroy or injure any ornamental or fruit trees. (Rev., s. 2576; Code, s. 1702; R. C., c. 61, s. 22; 1874-5, c. 83; 1907, c. 39, s. 2; C. S. 1712.)

In General.—The power of condemnation granted to these companies is not confined to a right of way, delimited by surface boundaries, but may be extended to cutting of trees or removing obstructions outside of these boundaries when required for the reasonable preservation and protection of their lines and other property. Yadkin River Power Co. v. Wissler, 160 N. C. 269, 275, 76 S. E. 267.

Liability to Adjacent Owners.—A corporation damaging adjacent property while constructing a railroad is liable in damages just as a private individual would be. Staton v. Norfolk, etc., Railroad, 111 N. C. 278, 16 S. E. 181.

Compensation Granted.—The owner of the land is entitled to compensatory damages for the cutting of cross-ties on land not included in the right-of-way, and the negligent filling of ditches instead of building bridges over them in constructing the roads necessary to remove the timber, and for breaking down fences. Waters v. Greenleaf-Johnson Lumber Co., 115 N. C. 648, 20 S. E. 718.

§ 40-9. How material paid for.—If for the value of the damages done to the owner by reason of the acts mentioned in § 40-8 the parties may be unable to agree, the same shall be valued in the manner hereinafter provided. (Rev., s. 2577; Code, s. 1703; R. C., c. 61, s. 23; 1874-5, c. 83; C. S. 1713.)

§ 40-10. Dwelling-houses and burial grounds cannot be condemned.—No such corporation shall be allowed to have condemned to its use, without the consent of the owner, his dwelling-house, yard, kitchen, garden or burial ground, unless condemnation of such property is expressly authorized in its charter or by some provision of this code. (Rev., s. 2578; C. S. 1714.)

Cross Reference.—As to acquisition of residence property, graveyards, etc., by electric, telegraph and power companies, see § 56-6.

Exercise of Discretion Not Permitted.—The principle arising under the general power to condemn, leaving the matter largely within the discretion of the governing authorities seeking condemnation, does not apply to the statutory exceptions. Selma v. Nobles, 183 N. C. 322, 111 S. E. 543.

No Application to Tenant Houses.—This section does not apply to tenant houses, but only to the dwellings of the owner of the lands, which is preserved to him for sentimental reasons; and which could not exist where such owner is a corporation renting the dwellings to its tenants. Raleigh, etc., R. Co. v. Mecklenberg Mfg. Co., 166 N. C. 168, 169, 82 S. E. 5.

Subsequent Use by Owner Not Protected.—When a provision in a charter of a railroad company or a deed granting it a right of way prohibited it from entering upon the yard, garden, burial ground, etc., of the defendants, but no portion of the right of way was so used at the date of its acquisition, the right of the company would not be interfered with by the fact that it has since been appropriated to such use. Railroad v. Olive, 142 N. C. 257, 55 S. E. 263; Dargan v. Carolina Cent. R. Co., 131 N. C. 623, 625, 42 S. E. 979.

Nuisance a Taking under Section. — The creation and maintenance of a nuisance which sensibly impairs the value of lands of private owners is a taking within the principle of eminent domain and condemnation proceedings thereunder, and within the exception contained in this section, withdrawing dwellings from the effect of the statute. Selma v. Nobles, 183 N. C. 322, 111 S. E. 543.

Municipal Corporations.—Where a city, under its charter, is given the same power to condemn lands of private owners for municipal purposes that is given to railroads and other public utilities, it is bound by the restrictions placed on them by this section. Selma v. Nobles, 183 N. C. 322, 111 S. E. 543.

House Not Property of Railroad. — A house standing on the right of way does not become the property of the company. Shields v. Norfolk, etc., R. Co., 129 N. C. 1, 6, 39 S. E. 582; Raleigh, etc., R. Co. v. Mecklenburg Mfg. Co., 166 N. C. 168, 82 S. E. 5.

The North Carolina National Park Commission created by Public Acts 1927, c. 48, is an agency of the State created by statute, vested with the power of eminent domain, and is not subject to the limitations provided in this section and § 40-11. Yarbrough v. Park Commission, 196 N. C. 284, 145 S. E. 563.

Art. 2. Condemnation Proceedings.

§ 40-11. Proceedings when parties cannot agree.—If any corporation, enumerated in § 40-2, possessing by law the right of eminent domain in this state, is unable to agree for the purchase of any real estate required for purposes of its incorporation or for the purposes specified in this chapter, it shall have the right to acquire title to the same in the manner and by the special proceedings herein prescribed. (Rev., s. 2579; Code, ss. 1943, 2009; 1885, c. 168; 1893, c. 63; 1901, cc. 6, 41, s. 2; 1899, c. 64; 1903, cc. 562, 159, s. 16; 1871-2, c. 138, s. 13; C. S. 1715.)

Cross Reference.—As to special proceedings generally, see § 1-393 et seq.

Proceeding Governed by Same Rules Laid Down for Civil Actions.—As a proceeding to condemn land under statutory power is a special proceeding and is so denominated by this section, the requirements of § 1-393 that, "except as otherwise provided," special proceedings shall be governed by the same rules laid down for civil actions are applicable thereto. Nantahala Power, etc., Co. v. Whiting Mfg. Co., 209 N. C. 560, 561, 184 S. E. 48.

Not Exclusive Remedy.—It has been held formerly that this statutory remedy, modifying the charters of the railroad companies, is the only one open to one whose land is appropriated as a right of way. Allen v. Wilmington, etc., Railroad, 102 N. C. 381, 9 S. E. 4; McIntire v. Western, etc., Co., 67 N. C. 278.

This doctrine has been limited however as only applying to the preliminary entry upon land and the acquisition of the same for such purposes. And where a railroad or other public service corporation has made the entry, appropriated the right of way, constructed its road and is operating the same, and neither party has seen fit to resort to the statutory method, the owner of the land has the right at his election to sue for permanent damages and on payment of the same the easement will pass to the defendant. Mason v. Durham County, 175 N. C. 638, 641, 96 S. E. 110, citing numerous cases.

Applies to All Railroads.—The method of proceeding for the condemnation of land by railroad corporations prescribed by this section is applicable to all railroads, whether formed under the general law or special act of incorporation. Allen v. Wilmington, etc., Railroad, 102 N. C. 381, 9 S. E. 4.

Prior Attempt to Agree Mandatory. — The statutory method of condemning a right of way can be exercised only when the parties are unable to agree upon the terms of acquirement. Allen v. Wilmington, etc., Railroad, 102 N. C. 381, 9 S. E. 4.

Attempt to Acquire Title. — The clause, "the corporation had not been able to acquire title thereto" has no reference to the pecuniary resources of the corporation; it may apply to the owner's refusal to sell except at a price which in the judgment of the corporation is excessive, to cases in which the owner by reason of some disability cannot convey his title, and likewise in other instances. Western Power Co. v. Moses, 191 N. C. 744, 746, 133 S. E. 5.

It is not required of a quasi public-service corporation authorized to condemn land under the provisions of section 40-2, that it first endeavor to agree with the owners, when it is made to appear that infants have an interest therein, and otherwise that a title to the lands could not be acquired in this way. Western Power Co. v. Moses, 191 N. C. 744, 133 S. E. 5.

No Right of Entry Until Payment.—In case the parties cannot agree, then the company may proceed to condemn the land, and the company does not acquire the right to enter for the purpose of constructing the road until the amount of the appraisement has been paid into court. State v. Wells, 142 N. C. 590, 55 S. E. 210.

No Application to Trespasser.—The provisions of this section only apply to the mode of acquiring title to real estate and getting a right of way, but it has no application to trespasses committed outside of the right of way in building the road. and for such trespasses the corporations are liable in a civil action. Bridgers v. Dill, 97 N. C. 222, 1 S. E. 767.

Condemnation by Board of Education.—Sections 40-11 to 40-19 apply only to those corporations enumerated in section 40-2, and have no application to a county board of education condemning land for school buildings, such proceedings are controlled by section 115-85. Board v. Forrest, 193 N. C. 519, 520, 137 S. E. 431.

The state highway and public works commission is an unincorporated agency of the state and may only be sued by the citizen when authority is granted by the general assembly, but in the matter of condemnation of land for highways and compensation therefor right of action lies. Yancey v. North Carolina State Highway, etc., Commission, 222 N. C. 106, 22 S. E. (2d) 256.

Cited in Winston-Salem v. Ashby, 194 N. C. 388, 139 S. E. 764; Reed v. State Highway, etc., Comm., 209 N. C. 648, 184 S. E. 513.

§ 40-12. Petition filed; contains what; copy served.—For the purpose of acquiring such title the corporation, or the owner of the land sought to be condemned, may present a petition to the clerk of the superior court of the county in which the real estate described in the petition is situated, praying for the appointment of commissioners of appraisal. Such petition shall be signed and verified according to the rules and practice of such court; and if filed by the corporation it must contain a description of the real estate which the corporation seeks to acquire; and it must, in effect, state that the corporation is duly incorporated, and that it is its intention in good faith to conduct and carry on the public business authorized by its charter, stating in detail the nature of such public business, and the specific use of such land; that the land described in the petition is required for the purpose of conducting the proposed business, and that the corporation has not been able to acquire title thereto, and the reason of such inability. The petition, whether filed by the corporation or the owner of the land, must also state the names and places of residence of the parties, so far as the same can by reasonable diligence be ascertained, who own or have, or claim to own or have, estates or interests in the said real estate; and if any such persons are infants, their ages, as near as may be, must be stated; and if any such persons are idiots or persons of unsound mind or are unknown, that fact must be stated, together with such other allegations and statements of liens or encumbrances on said real estate as the corporation or the owner may see fit to make. A summons as in other cases of special proceedings, together with a copy of the petition, must be served on all persons whose interests are to be affected by the proceedings, at least ten days prior to the hearing of the same by the court. (Rev., s. 2580; Code, s. 1944; 1893, c. 396; 1871-2, c. 138, s. 14; 1907, c. 783, s. 3; C. S. 1716.)

Cross References.—As to summons in contested special proceedings, see §§ 1-394, 1-395. As to service of map and profile in condemnation proceeding by a railroad, see § 60-71.

Editor's Note.—In Durham, etc., R. Co. v. Richmond, etc., R. Co., 106 N. C. 16, 23, 10 S. E. 1041 the court states that the reasons for the requirements which are found in this section are based upon past experience. Before this section was passed the roads could locate their route according to their discretion, and they could not be controlled by the courts unless they abused their discretion. The remedy was usually by injunction which caused a great deal of litigation and delay both to the road and to the landowner. It was therefore deemed necessary, so that the landowner might know what land was intended to be appropriated and could have his grievances adjusted, to require the filing of maps, profiles, etc.

Strict Compliance.—This section stating the requisites of a petition in condemnation proceedings must be strictly complied with, especially by a private corporation as distinguished from a public one or municipality. Johnson City, etc., R. Co. v. South, etc., R. Co., 148 N. C. 59, 61 S. E. 683. See also, Durham, etc., R. Co. v. Richmond, etc., R. Co., 106 N. C. 16, 10 S. E. 1041.

Summons Should Issue. — The proceeding authorized by this section is a special proceeding and a summons should issue as in all other cases. R. R. v. Lumber Co., 132 N. C. 644, 653, 44 S. E. 358.

General Language Permitted.—It is not essential that the particular language of the statute should be used. If the facts alleged plainly show that the petitioner has been unable to acquire title, and the reason why, that is a compliance with the statute. Durham v. Rigsbee, 141 N. C. 128, 53 S. E. 531.

What Petition Must Allege.—It is necessary for the petition in condemnation proceedings to allege, and the burden is upon the petitioner to show, a previous effort to acquire title to the right of way by agreement, and the reason of the failure to do so. In the absence of proof thereof the petition should be dismissed. Johnson City, etc., R. Co. v. South, etc., R. Co., 148 N. C. 59, 61 S. E. 683; Power Co. v. Moses, 191 N. C. 744, 746, 133 S. E. 5.

And the petition, whether filed by an owner or by the company, should state the names of all persons interested, and all of them should be in court before the Commissioners are appointed. Hill v. Glendon, etc., Mfg. Co., 113 N. C. 259, 18 S. E. 171.

Same—Where Landowner Files.—It is not necessary that the petition filed by a landowner in proceedings for the assessment of damages for land taken by a railroad company for a right of way, shall state that the petitioners and the company have failed to come to an agreement as to the sum to be paid, such averment being necessary only when the railroad company is the actor in such proceedings. Hill v. Glendon, etc., Mfg. Co., 113 N. C. 259, 18 S. E. 171; Durham v. Rigsbee, 141 N. C. 128, 130, 53 S. E. 531.

Description of Property Sought to Be Acquired Is Necessary.—A description of the property sought to be acquired and not merely a description of the entire tract over which the right of way, privilege, or easement is to run is necessary. Gastonia v. Glenn, 218 N. C. 510, 11 S. E. (2d) 459.

Map and Profile.—The filing of a proper profile is a condition precedent before an order of condemnation shall be granted to a railroad. Kinston, etc., R. Co. v. Stroud, 132 N. C. 413, 414, 43 S. E. 913; Holly Shelter R. Co. v. Newton, 133 N. C. 132, 45 S. E. 549. But the failure to so file the map and profile may be cured by amendment. R. R. v. Newton, supra; State v. Wells, 142 N. C. 590, 55 S. E. 210.

Fraudulent Deed May Be Set Aside.—Where a deed for a right of way was obtained from a landowner by fraud on the part of a railroad company, the superior court has jurisdiction to set aside the conveyance, but cannot go further in the same action, and ascertain and enforce payment of damages suffered by the grantor by reason of the appropriation of his land as a right of way by the company, although such appropriation was made by the company under the deed in question. Allen v. Wilmington, etc., Railroad, 102 N. C. 381, 9 S. E. 4.

Co-tenant Can File Petition.—The fact that a co-tenant of land has granted a right of way to a railroad company will not prevent another owner from instituting proceedings for the assessment of damages sustained by him, nor will such facts prevent the co-tenant who has made such grant from becoming a party to the proceedings and having his rights adjusted thereunder, upon a claim that the company had forfeited its right under the grant by failure to comply with the conditions thereof, and this, although such forfeiture did not occur until after the petition was first filed by his co-tenant. Hill v. Glendon, etc., Mfg. Co., 113 N. C. 259, 18 S. E. 171.

Clerk Has Jurisdiction.—The charter of a railroad company provided that it might condemn land by a proceeding commenced before a court of record having common law jurisdiction; it was held, that the clerk of a superior court has jurisdiction of such proceeding. Durham, etc., R. Co. v. Richmond, etc., R. Co., 106 N. C. 16, 10 S. E. 1041.

In condemnation proceedings, the statement required by this section, that the plaintiff has not been able to acquire title to the land, and the reason of such inability, is the allegation of a preliminary jurisdictional fact, not triable by the jury—a question of fact for the decision of the clerk in the first instance, and perhaps subject to review by the judge on appeal. Durham v. Rigsbee, 141 N. C. 128, 53 S. E. 531.

Clerk's Finding of Facts Not Final.—The finding of the fact of the clerk upon preliminary allegations, under this section, in condemnation proceedings are not final and may be appealed from. Johnson City, etc., R. Co. v. South, etc., R. Co., 148 N. C. 59, 61 S. E. 683.

Section Does Not Apply to Telegraph Companies.—Inasmuch as section 56-7 sets forth all the necessary statements for the petition of the telegraph company, and section 56-8 provides for its service, only so much of the railroad law as directs proceedings after the petition is before the court is made applicable to telegraph companies, and section 40-12 cannot be made to apply to telegraph companies. Phillips v. Postal Tel. Cable Co., 130 N. C. 513, 525, 41 S. E. 1022.

Limit of Plaintiff's Recovery Where Evidence Is Insufficient to Show Taking Was for Private Purpose.—Where there is no evidence upon the record showing that the taking over of a road was for a private purpose sufficient to raise an issue of fact, the plaintiff is remitted to his rights under this section and § 136-19 for the recovery of just compensation. Reed v. State Highway, etc., Comm., 209 N. C. 648, 184 S. E. 513.

Waiver of Preliminary Hearing.—Where it is stipulated by the parties in condemnation proceedings that a hearing before commissioners apppointed by the clerk under the provisions of this section should be waived, and judgment is rendered determining the amount of damages, and on appeal the Supreme Court affirms the judgment as to the compensation allowed and remands the cause for error in the exclusion of another element of compensation to which defendants are entitled, on the subsequent trial to determine the amount recoverable on such other element of compensation the parties are bound by the stipulation waiving a preliminary hearing by commissioners, and plaintiff's exception to the trial of the issue without such preliminary hearing will not be sustained. State v. Wilmington-Wrightsville Beach Causeway Co., 205 N. C. 508, 171 S. E. 859.

What Constitutes Waiver.—Where a city is sued for damages for running its water-supply pipe on the plaintiff's lands, and it is made to appear that the pipe line is upon the state's highway over the plaintiff's land, the plaintiff, as the servient owner, may maintain his action, and the denial of this title or right by the defendant is a waiver of its right that the plaintiff should have proceeded before the clerk under this section; and the plaintiff may maintain his action of trespass in the superior court. Rouse v. Kinston, 188 N. C. 1, 123 S. E. 482.

Cited in State v. Suncrest Lumber Co., 199 N. C. 199, 201, 154 S. E. 72.

§ 40-13. How process served.—The summons and a copy of the petition shall be served in the same manner as in special proceedings. (Rev., s. 2581; Code, s. 1944; 1871-2, c. 138, s. 14; C. S. 1717.)

Cross Reference.—As to service of summons in special proceedings generally, see §§ 1-394, 1-395.

Editor's Note.—In the case of Click v. Western, etc., R. Co., 98 N. C. 390, 4 S. E. 183, referring to a proceeding instituted against a railroad company by the owner of land the court said "This is neither a special proceeding nor a civil action as defined by the code. It is a summary proceeding."

This construction is overruled in Carolina, etc., R. Co. v. Permearden Lumber, etc., Co., 132 N. C. 644, 653, 44 S. E. 358, where the court decides that the Legislature has correctly called this a special proceeding and therefore a summons should issue as in all other cases.

§ 40-14. Service where parties unknown.—If the person on whom such service of summons and petition is to be made is unknown, or his residence is unknown and cannot by reasonable diligence be ascertained, then such service may be made under the direction of the court, by publishing a notice, stating the time and place within which such person must appear and plead, the object thereof, with a description of the land to be affected by the proceedings, in a paper, if there be one, printed in the county where the land is situated, once in each week, for four weeks previous to the time fixed by the court, and if there be no paper printed in such county, then in a newspaper printed in the city of Raleigh. (Rev., s. 2582; Code, s. 1944, subsec. 5; C. S. 1718.)

§ 40-15. Orders served as in special proceedings in absence of other provisions.—In all cases not herein otherwise provided for, service of orders, notices, and other papers in the special proceedings authorized by this chapter may be made as in other special proceedings. (Rev., s. 2583; Code, s. 1944, subsec. 7; C. S. 1719.)

Cross Reference.—As to special proceedings generally, see § 1-393 et seq.

§ 40-16. Answer to petition; hearing; commissioners appointed.—On presenting such petition to the superior court, with proof of service of a copy thereof, and of the summons, all or any of the persons whose estates or interests are to be affected by the proceedings may answer such petition and show cause against granting the prayer of the same, and may disprove any of the facts alleged in it. The court shall hear the proofs and allegations of the parties, and if no sufficient cause is shown against granting the prayer of the petition, it shall make an order for the appointment of three disinterested and competent freeholders who reside in the county where the premises are to be appraised, for the purposes of the company, and shall fix the time and place for the first meeting of the commissioners. (Rev., s. 2584; Code, s. 1945; 1871-2, c. 138, s. 15; C. S. 1720.)

Finding of Facts Conclusive. — In condemnation proceedings, when it is proper for the lower court to find the facts, his findings upon competent supporting evidence are conclusive. Johnson City, etc. R. Co. v. South, etc., R. Co., 148 N. C. 59, 61 S. E. 683.

Collateral Attack by Landowner.—The court will not sustain a collateral attack, and deny the right of condemnation, upon a suggestion that the petitioner may exceed its chartered right in the use of the property thus acquired by condemnation. Wadsworth Land Co. v. Piedmont Tract. Co., 162 N. C. 314, 317, 78 S. E. 297.

Same—Charter Cannot Be Attacked. — The charter of a corporation cannot be collaterally attacked, and a direct proceeding must be brought to annul it. But if the charter were on its face inoperative and void, a court would so declare it in any proceedings to condemn lands by virtue of the right of eminent domain claimed thereunder. Kinston, etc., R. Co. v. Stroud, 132 N. C. 413, 414, 43 S. E. 913; Holly Shelter R. Co. v. Newton, 133 N. C. 132, 45 S. E. 549.

Same—Advisability of Project.—The advisability of widening a street is a matter committed by law to the sound discretion of the aldermen, with the exercise of which neither the defendants nor the courts can interfere. It is a political and administrative measure of which the defendants are not even entitled to notice or to be heard. Durham v. Rigsbee, 141 N. C. 128, 53 S. E. 531.

Same—Denial That Land Necessary.—A railroad company is entitled to so much of the right of way as may be necessary for the purpose of the company, and the denial by a person in the possession of a portion of the right of way that the portion in controversy is necessary for the purposes of the company does not raise an issue of fact to be determined by a jury, as the company is the judge of the necessity and extent of such use. Railroad v. Olive, 142 N. C. 257, 55 S. E. 263.

What Matters Issuable.—A perusal of the entire statute discloses that the extent and limit of the rights to be acquired are primarily and very largely referred to the companies or grantees of the power, and only becomes an issuable question, usually determinable by the court, on allegation of fact tending to show bad faith on the part of the companies or an oppressive or manifest abuse of their discretion. Carolina Cent. R. Co. v. Love, 81 N. C. 434, cited and distinguished. Yadkin River Power Co. v. Wissler, 160 N. C. 269, 76 S. E. 267.

Where issuable matters are raised before the clerk under this section he should pass upon these matters presented in the record, have the land assessed through commissioners, as the statute directs, allowing the parties, by exceptions, to raise any question of law or fact issuable or otherwise to be considered on appeal to the superior court from his award of damages, as provided by law. Selma v. Nobles, 183 N. C. 322, 111 S. E. 543.

Rights Protected by Injunction. — And the rights of the parties may be protected in the meantime from interference by an injunction issued by the judge on application made in the cause, and in instances properly calling for such course. Selma v. Nobles, 183 N. C. 322, 111 S. E. 543.

Appointment of Appraisers.—The judge of the court may appoint the appraisers either in term or vacation, while the clerk can do so only in vacation, and then only as representing the court. Click v. Western, etc., R. Co., 98 N. C. 390, 4 S. E. 183.

No Appeal from Order Appointing Commissioners. — An order appointing commissioners to assess damages is interlocutory, and no appeal will be entertained until after final judgment upon the report of the commissioners. Telegraph Co. v. R. R., 83 N. C. 420; Commissioners v. Cook, 86 N. C. 18; Norfolk, etc., R. Co. v. Warren, 92 N. C. 620; Hendrick v. Carolina Cent. R. Co., 98 N. C. 431, 4 S. E. 184, and cases cited.

§ 40-17. Powers and duties of commissioners.— The commissioners, before entering upon the discharge of their duties, shall take and subscribe an oath that they will fairly and impartially appraise the lands mentioned in the petition. Any one of them may issue subpœnas, administer oaths to witnesses, and any two of them may adjourn the proceedings before them from time to time, in their discretion. Whenever they meet, except by the appointment of the court or pursuant to adjournment, they shall cause ten days notice of such meeting to be given to the parties who are to be affected by their proceedings, or their attorney or agent. They shall view the premises described in the petition, hear the proofs and allegations of the parties, and reduce the testimony, if any is taken by them, to writing; and after the testimony is closed in each case, and without any unnecessary delay, and before proceeding to the examination of any other claim, a majority of them all being present and acting, shall ascertain and determine the compensation which ought justly to be made by the corporation to the party or parties owning or interested in the real estate appraised by them. They shall report the same to the court within ten days. (Rev., s. 2585; Code, s. 1946; 1871-2, c. 138, ss. 16-18; 1891, c. 160; C. S. 1721.)

Editor's Note.—In the published Acts of 1871-72, ch. 138 a large part of section 18 was erroneously printed under section 16. This error was repeated in the Revisal, ch. 99. See note to American Union Tel. Co. v. Wilmington, etc., Railroad, 83 N. C. 420, 424. In the Code of 1883 section 1946 included sections 16-18 of ch. 138 supra. In the Consolidated Statutes sections 1721 and 1723 both contained a part of section 1946 of the Code of 1883. Those sections have been brought forward in the General Statutes as § 40-17 and § 40-19.

Just Compensation.—It seems to be the general rule in this jurisdiction that the compensation which ought justly to be made "just compensation," under our general statute, is such compensation after special benefits peculiar to the land are set off against damages. "The value of the land subject to such special benefits as may accrue to the remainder of the tract." Stamey v. Burnsville, 189 N. C. 39, 126 S. E. 103, 104.

Not an Interference with Right to Jury Trial.—It seems to have been settled in the case of Raleigh, etc., R. Co. v. Davis, 19 N. C. 451, that the Constitution (Art. 1, Sec. 19), guarantees the right to trial by jury in controversies respecting property only in cases where, under the common law, the demand that the facts should be so found could not have been refused, and that in fixing the quantum of compensation to the landowner for the right-of-way condemned to the use of a railroad, commissioners do not invade the province that, under the ancient law, belonged peculiarly and exclusively to the jury. The Chowan, etc., R. Co. v. Parker, 105 N. C. 246, 248, 11 S. E. 328.

Basis of Award.—The damages are not assessed upon the idea of a proposed actual dominion, occupation and perception of the profits of the whole right of way by the corporation, but the calculation is based upon the principle that possession and exclusive control will be asserted only over so much of the condemned territory as may be necessary for corporate purposes, such as additional tracks, ditches and houses to be used for stations and section hands. Blue v. Aberdeen, etc., R. Co., 117 N. C. 644, 649, 23 S. E. 275.

Measure of Damages.—In condemnation proceedings the measure of damages is not the difference between the value of the owner's property before and after the taking, but the fair value of the land taken reduced by any special benefits received. Stamey v. Burnsville, 189 N. C. 39, 126 S. E. 103.

The owner of lands, through which a railroad has acquired a right of way by condemnation, is entitled to recover therefor the damages done to the remainder of the tract or portions of the land used by him as one tract, deducting from the estimate the pecuniary benefits or advantages which are special and peculiar to the tract in question, but not those which are shared by him in common with other owners of lands of like kind in the same vicinity. Virginia, etc., R. Co. v. McLean, 158 N. C. 498, 74 S. E. 461.

Same—Market Value. — In awarding damages to the owner of lands for an easement therein acquired for railroad purposes, there should, as a general rule, be included the market value of the land actually covered by the right of way, subject to modification under special circumstances, as where there is a mineral deposit with the use of which the easement does not interfere. Virginia, etc., R. Co. v. McLean, 158 N. C. 498, 74 S. E. 461.

Same—General Benefits. — Prior to 1872 in estimating damages the jury were not allowed to deduct any benefits, arising from the railroad under construction, which were common to the owner and all other persons in the vicinity, but could set off any benefits peculiar to the particular tract involved. Freedle v. North Carolina R. Co., 49 N. C. 89. At the session of 1871-2 the Legislature changed this rule so that no benefits whatever could be deducted. Code section 1946. This latter provision was repealed in 1891, Laws 1891, ch. 160. The courts have subsequently construed this repeal to mean a restoration of the old rule as stated in Freedle's Case, supra. Southpart, etc., R. Co. v. Platt Land, 133 N. C. 266, 45 S. E. 589.

The Legislature has the power to allow municipal corporations to have the general benefits assessed as offsets against damages in an action to acquire land for a public purpose. But the power or authority must be given either by special charter or general state act. Stamey v. Brunsville, 189 N. C. 39, 126 S. E. 103, 104.

Date When Taken Governs.—For the purpose of determining the sum to be paid as compensation for land taken under the right of eminent domain, the value of the land taken should be ascertained as of the date of the taking, and the land is taken within the meaning of this principle when the proceeding is begun. Western Carolina Power Co. v. Hayes, 193 N. C. 104, 107, 136 S. E. 353.

Only Actual and Direct Damage Considered. — In estimating damages of any kind to lands taken by a railroad company it is only proper to consider actual damages, not those remote or speculative or dependent upon a future possible use of the property. Madison County R. Co. v. Galligan, 161 N. C. 190, 194, 76 S. E. 696.

The owner is entitled to compensation for the actual and direct damages which he may sustain by being deprived of his property. Raleigh, etc., R. Co. v. Mecklenberg Mfg. Co., 166 N. C. 168, 173, 82 S. E. 5.

Evidence Admissible.—In a proceeding to condemn land for a right of way, evidence to show the value of the land by its location and surroundings is admissible. Railroad v. Land Co., 137 N. C. 330, 49 S. E. 350. But a tax list is not admissible for that purpose. Id.

Damage to Adjoining Land.—The landowner will be entitled to have included in his assessment damages for injuries to lands adjoining those upon which the railroad is constructed. Hendrick v. Carolina Cent. R. Co., 101 N. C. 617, 8 S. E. 236.

The owner of land, a part of which is taken under the right of eminent domain, may recover as compensation not only the value of the land taken, but also the damages thereby caused, if any, to the remaining land. Western Carolina Power Co. v. Hayes, 193 N. C. 104, 107, 136 S. E 353.

These damages are limited to those which embrace the actual value of the property taken and the direct physical injuries to the remaining property. Raleigh, etc., R. Co. v. Mecklenberg Mfg. Co., 166 N. C. 168, 173, 82 S. E. 5.

Additional Burden.—When a railroad company puts additional burdens upon a right of way which it has acquired by condemnation not properly embraced in the general purpose for which it was obtained, the owner is entitled to compensation for them. Virginia, etc., R. Co. v. McLean, 158 N. C. 498, 74 S. E. 461.

A telegraph line along a railroad and on the right of way of the railroad is an additional burden upon the land, for which the landowner is entitled to just compensation. Phillips v. Postal Tel. Cable Co., 130 N. C. 513, 41 S. E. 1022, 89 Am. St. Rep. 868; Query v. Postal Tel. Cable Co., 178 N. C. 639, 101 S. E. 390, 8 A. L. R. 1290; Hodges v. Western Union Tel. Co., 133 N. C. 225, 45 S. E. 572. The same rule applies to electric light wires placed along the street. Brown v. Asheville Electric Light Co., 138 N. C. 533, 51 S. E. 62, 60 L. R. A. 631, 107 Am. St. Rep. 554. But the use of streets for a street railway is one of the ordinary purposes for which streets and highways may be used, and does not impose an additional burden or servitude so as to entitle the abutting property owner to further compensation. Hester v. Durham Traction Co., 138 N. C. 288, 50 S. E. 711, 1 L. R. A. (N. S.) 981.

Owner at Time of Taking Is One to Be Paid.—Compensation for property taken in the exercise of the power of eminent domain is due to the owner at the time of the taking, and not to the owner at an earlier or later date. Empie v. United States, 131 F. (2d) 481.

The right to flood lands in derogation of plaintiffs' easement of access does not arise merely upon the erection of the structure causing the flooding, but upon the institution of proceedings looking to the award of due compensation; and, until such proceedings are instituted by one side or the other, the flooding constitutes a mere invasion of rights which pass with a conveyance of the property to which they are attached. Id.

If plaintiff does not own the land upon which the defendant has constructed its road and imposed a burden, he has nothing to be "taken," and therefore nothing for which he is entitled to compensation. Abernathy v. South, etc., R. Co., 150 N. C. 97, 104, 63 S. E. 180.

Diversion of Water.—Damages caused by diversion of water are not covered by the statute, providing for the equipment of a right of way by railroad companies. Ward v. Albermarle, etc., R. Co., 112 N. C. 168, 16 S. E. 921.

Finding of Commissioners Conclusive.—The finding of commissioners that land taken for railroad purposes received no special benefit is conclusive. Southport, etc., Co. v. Platt Land, 133 N. C. 266, 45 S. E. 589.

Cited in Ayden v. Lancaster, 197 N. C. 556, 560, 150 S. E. 40.

§ 40-18. Form of commissioners' report.—When the commissioners shall have assessed the damages, they shall forthwith make and subscribe a written report of their proceedings, in substance as follows:

To the Clerk of the Superior Court of ..... County:

We, ..., commissioners appointed by the court to assess the damages that have been and will be sustained by ....., the owner of certain land lying in the county of ....., which the ..... corporation proposes to condemn for its use, do hereby certify that we met on ..... (or the day to which we were regularly adjourned), and, having first been duly sworn, we visited the premises of the owner, and after taking into full consideration the quality and quantity of the land aforesaid, the additional fencing likely to be occasioned by the work of the corporation, and all other inconveniences likely to result to the owner, we have estimated and do assess the damages aforesaid at the sum of $.....

We have estimated the special benefits which the said owner will receive from the construction of said works to be the sum of $.....

Given under our hands, the ..... day of ....., A. D. 19..... (Rev., s. 2586; Code, s. 1700; R. C., c. 61, s. 17; 1874-5, c. 83; C. S. 1722.)

Editor's Note.—It was formerly provided that the report of the commissioners should be under seal. In Hanes v. North Carolina R. Co., 109 N. C. 490, 13 S. E. 896 the court held that this provision was not mandatory but directory only and the omission of the seal was not a fatal defect.

Report Need Not State Particulars.—The report of the commissioners will not be set aside because it fails to show in what the benefits assessed consist, where no objection was made when the report was submitted. Wilmington, etc., R. Co. v. Smith, 99 N. C. 131, 5 S. E. 237.

Description of Land Not Essential.—A report of the commissioners is not invalid because it does not contain a description of the land, as that can be ascertained by reference to the location of the roadbed and right of way. Hanes v. North Carolina R. Co., 109 N. C. 490, 13 S. E. 896.

But as the easement is conveyed to the petitioner by the report of the commissioners when confirmed, it seems that the said easement should be described therein as fully and correctly as it would be in a grant. Railroad v. Land Co., 137 N. C. 330, 336, 49 S. E. 350.

Cited in Ayden v. Lancaster, 197 N. C. 556, 560, 150 S. E. 40.

§ 40-19. Exceptions to report; hearing; appeal; when title vests; restitution.—Within twenty days after filing the report the corporation or any person interested in the said land may file exceptions to said report, and upon the determination of the same by the court, either party to the proceedings may appeal to the court at term, and thence, after judgment, to the supreme court. The court or judge on the hearing may direct a new appraisal, modify or confirm the report, or make such order in the premises as to him shall seem right and proper. If the said corporation, at the time of the appraisal, shall pay into court the sum appraised by the commissioners, then and in that event the said corporation may enter, take possession of, and hold said lands, notwithstanding the pendency of the appeal, and until the final judgment rendered on said appeal. And if there shall be no appeal, or if the final judgment rendered upon said petition and proceedings shall be in favor of the corporation, and upon the payment by said corporation of the sum adjudged, together with the costs and counsel fees allowed by the court, into the office of the clerk of the superior court, then and in that event all persons who have been made parties to the proceedings shall be divested and barred of all right, estate and interest in such easement in such real estate during the corporate existence of the corporation aforesaid. A certified copy of such judgment under the seal of the court shall be registered in the county where the land is situated, and a copy of the same, or the original certified, may be given in evidence in all actions and proceedings as deeds for land are now allowed to be read in evidence. All real estate acquired by any corporation under and pursuant to the provisions of this chapter for its purposes shall be deemed to be acquired for the public use. But if the court shall refuse to condemn the land, or any portion thereof, to the use of such corporation, then, and in that event, the money paid into court, or so much thereof as shall be adjudged, shall be refunded to the corporation. And the corporation shall have no right to hold said land not condemned, but shall surrender the possession of the same, on demand, to the owner or owners, or his or their agent or attorney. And the court or judge shall have full power and authority to make such orders, judgments and decrees, and issue such executions and other process as may be necessary to carry into effect the final judgment rendered in such proceedings. If the amount adjudged to be paid the owner of any property condemned under this chapter shall not be paid within one year after final judgment in the proceeding, the right under the judgment to take the property or rights condemned shall ipso facto cease and determine, but the claimant under the judgment shall still remain liable for all amounts adjudged against him except the consideration for the property. (Rev., s. 2587; Code, s. 1946; 1893, c. 148; 1915, c. 207; C. S. 1723.)

Exceptions May Be General.—Upon proper denial of the matters alleged in the petition, exceptions to the clerk's order appointing commissioners in condemnation proceedings may be of a general character, and, upon appeal, will present any question appearing upon the record. Johnson City, etc., R. Co. v. South, etc., R. Co., 148 N. C. 59, 61 S. E. 683.

No Appeal to Judge at Chambers.—No appeal lies to the judge at chambers under this section. R. R. v. Stewart, 132 N. C. 248, 43 S. E. 638.

Effect of Appeal.—The appeal, provided by this section, from a judgment by the clerk of the superior court in condemnation proceedings, under sec. 40-12, takes the entire record up for review upon questions of fact to be tried by the court, and neither party is entitled to demand a trial by jury in term before the report of the jury of view has been made and confirmed. Johnson City, etc., R. Co. v. South, etc., R. Co., 148 N. C. 59, 61 S. E. 683.

Same—By Both Parties.—On appeal by both parties in proceedings to condemn land to the superior court in term, the trial is de novo; and where the defendant has substantially recovered damages for the taking of his land, the costs are taxable against the plaintiff, though the recovery is in a smaller sum than the amount theretofore awarded by the appraisers or viewers. Durham v. Davis, 171 N. C. 305, 88 S. E. 433.

Power of Judge.—The judge has authority unquestionably to set aside the report, and to direct a new appraisement by the same commissioners or others appointed in their stead, on the ground that the damage assessed was excessive. Hanes v. North Carolina R. Co., 109 N. C. 490, 492, 13 S. E. 896.

Same—No Appeal from Remanding Order.—An order of the superior court in condemnation proceedings remanding the cause to the clerk, that he may hear the same, is interlocutory, and no appeal lies therefrom. Cape Fear, etc., R. Co. v. King, 125 N. C. 454, 34 S. E. 541. This is true though a plea in bar was filed by the defendant. Holly Shelter R. Co. v. Newton, 133 N. C. 132, 45 S. E. 549.

Payment before Entry.—Formerly the landowner had no right to a jury trial in fixing compensation upon condemnation of the right of way, nor was the compensation required to be paid before entry. This section changed this by requiring the company to pay into court the sum assessed before entry. Holly Shelter R. Co. v. Newton, 133 N. C. 132, 134, 45 S. E. 549; State v. Jones, 139 N. C. 613, 620, 52 S. E. 240.

But Injunction Will Not Issue.—Where a railroad company, seeking to condemn land for its right of way, has given ample bond to cover any damages resulting from its wrongful entry upon the land, an injunction will not issue to restrain such company from entering upon the land before the appraisal of damages and the payment thereof into court. Wellington, etc., R. Co. v. Cashie, etc., R. Co., 116 N. C. 924, 20 S. E. 964; Holly Shelter R. Co. v. Newton, 133 N. C. 132, 45 S. E. 549.

The title of the landowner is not divested until final confirmation and the payment in full of the amount appraised. Nantahala Power, etc., Co. v. Whiting Mfg. Co., 209 N. C. 560, 562, 184 S. E. 48. See § 40-26 and note.

While the value of lands taken in condemnation proceedings is fixed as of the date the petition is filed, title to the land does not pass until the award, as assessed by the commissioners, is paid into court after confirmation of the commissioners' report, since this section provides that title shall pass at that time, and since petitioner may withdraw at any time prior thereto, and in proceedings instituted by the United States, the Federal practice requires that the proceedings shall conform, as nearly as may be, to the law of the state in which they are brought. Bemis Hardwood Lbr. Co. v. Graham County, 214 N. C. 167, 198 S. E. 843.

It is obvious that a procedural statute may specify the stage of a condemnation proceeding at which the taking of the property of the owner and the acquisition of title by the condemnor shall occur; and this is precisely what this section has been held to accomplish. Empie v. United States, 131 F. (2d) 481, 484.

If Value of Land Is Not Paid within Year the Right to Condemn Ceases.—After final judgment fixing petitioner's rights to condemn, if the appraised value of the land be not paid within one year, the petitioner's right to take the property shall end, and the petitioner or claimant shall not be liable for the consideration (value of the land). Nantahala Power, etc., Co. v. Whiting Mfg. Co., 209 N. C. 560, 562, 184 S. E. 48.

And Petitioners Are Liable for Costs.—This section contemplates that in the event, for any reason, the condemnation proceedings are not carried through, all the costs of the proceeding, except the appraised value of the land, shall be paid by the petitioners. Nantahala Power, etc., Co. v. Whiting Mfg. Co., 209 N. C. 560, 563, 184 S. E. 48.

Charter May Grant Power to Enter before Condemnation.—The Legislature may by charter empower a railroad company to enter land and construct their road before instituting condemnation proceedings. State v. Jones, 170 N. C. 753, 87 S. E. 235; Watauga, etc., R. Co. v. Ferguson, 169 N. C. 70, 85 S. E. 156; State v. Lyle, 100 N. C. 497, 5 S. E. 379. Compensation must be provided to warrant the taking, but it need not precede the taking and the owner is confined to the special remedy given him by the statute under which his property is seized. R. R. v. Ferguson, supra; State v. Lyle, supra.

Same—Power Must Be Express.—When the Legislature intended to confer the right to enter before the assessment is made or the damage paid, it has so declared in express terms in the charters. State v. Jones, 139 N. C. 613, 631, 52 S. E. 240.

When Counsel Fees Allowed.—The counsel fees authorized to be taxed in proceedings to condemn lands for railway uses under this section, can only be allowed and taxed in those cases where the court, under section 40-24, is directed to appoint an attorney to represent a party in interest who is unknown or whose residence is unknown. North Carolina R. Co. v. Goodwin, 110 N. C. 175, 14 S. E. 687; Durham v. Davis, 171 N. C. 305, 88 S. E. 433.

Judgment Should Fix Boundaries.—In an action for damages for the location of a railroad the judgment should definitely fix the land over which the road is located and the width of the right of way. Beal v. Railroad Co., 136 N. C. 298, 48 S. E. 674.

Section 24-5 Applies.—Damages given in proceedings under this section fall directly under section 24-5 and the law gives interest only from the rendition of the judgment. Hence a judgment allowing interest from the date of condemnation would be erroneous. Durham v. Davis, 171 N. C. 305, 308, 88 S. E. 433.

Effect of Judgment.—A railroad company by condemnation proceedings acquires an easement upon the land condemned with the right to actual possession of so much only thereof as is necessary for the operation of its road and to protect it against contingent damages. Phillips v. Postal Tel. Cable Co., 130 N. C. 513, 524, 41 S. E. 1022. And hence a house situated on the right of way at the time of the condemnation proceedings does not become the absolute property of the company. Shields v. Norfolk, etc., R. Co., 129 N. C. 1, 39 S. E. 582 and cases cited.

No Nonsuit after Order of Ejectment.—In proceedings by one railroad company to condemn a right of way upon which another has lawfully constructed its roadbed, the plaintiff may not, as a matter of right, submit to a judgment of nonsuit after a decree has been made, for rights which the defendant is entitled to have settled by the action have attached. Johnson City, etc., Co. v. South, etc., R. Co., 148 N. C. 59, 61 S. E. 683.

Cited in Carolina Power & Light Co. v. Reeves, 198 N. C. 404, 408, 151 S. E. 871.

§ 40-20. Provision for jury trial on exceptions to report.—In any action or proceeding by any railroad or other corporation to acquire rights of way or real estate for the use of such railroad or corporation, and in any action or proceeding by any city or town to acquire rights of way for streets, any person interested in the land, or the city, town, railroad or other corporation shall be entitled to have the amount of damages assessed by the commissioners or jurors heard and determined upon appeal before a jury of the superior court in term, if upon the hearing of such appeal a trial by a jury be demanded. (Rev., s. 2588; 1893, c. 148; C. S. 1724.)

Editor's Note.—Previous to 1893 if the parties did not demand trial by jury before the appointment of the commissioners they were deemed to have waived it and it would not be thereafter granted. This section however specifically grants the right of trial by jury upon an appeal from the report of the commissioners. Chowan, etc., R. Co. v. Parker, 105 N. C. 246, 11 S. E. 328; Durham v. Rigsbee, 141 N. C. 128, 133, 53 S. E. 531; Holly Shelter R. Co. v. Newton, 133 N. C. 132, 134, 45 S. E. 549.

Limits of Right to Jury Trial.—This section is a limitation upon the right to demand trial by jury and clearly excludes the idea that any such right is given in respect to the questions of the fact to be decided preliminary to the question of damages. Madison County R. Co. v. Gahagan, 161 N. C. 190, 193, 76 S. E. 696.

Thus a landowner is not entitled at the hearing before the clerk to have issues tried by a jury. Holly Shelter R. Co. v. Newton, 133 N. C. 132, 45 S. E. 549.

Municipal Corporations.—Where the charter of a city or town provides for condemning lands of private owners for cemetery purposes in the manner prescribed for condemnation thereof for street or other purposes, without specific provision for appeal in conformity with the constitutional due-process clause, under the general statute (this section), applying to municipal corporations, this right of appeal is preserved, and the charter provisions of the city or town will not be declared for that reason unconstitutional by the courts. Long v. Rockingham, 187 N. C. 199, 121 S. E. 461.

In condemnation proceedings instituted by a town for the taking of lands for a public municipal purpose, the owner is entitled to a trial by jury in the Superior Court to determine his damages when he has duly preserved the right by his exceptions and proper procedure, and when the trial judge has exercised his discretion in setting aside the amount theretofore awarded by the viewers, the cause continues in the court for the jury trial given him by statute; and an order directing the appointment of other commissioners by the clerk to go upon the land and assess the damages is erroneous. Ayden v. Lancaster, 195 N. C. 297, 142 S. E. 18.

Cited in Carolina Power & Light Co. v. Reeves, 198 N. C. 404, 405, 151 S. E. 871.

§ 40-21. When benefits exceed damage, corporation pays costs.—In any case where the benefits to the land caused by the erection of the railroad, street railway, telephone, telegraph, water supply, bridge, or electric power or lighting plant or other structure, are ascertained to exceed the damages to the land, then the corporation acquiring the same by right of eminent domain shall pay the costs of the proceeding except as provided by law, and shall not have a judgment for the excess of benefits over the damage. (Rev., s. 2589; 1891, c. 160; C. S. 1725.)

Cross Reference.—As to provision that petitioner pay costs in certain condemnation proceedings, see § 6-22, paragraph 3.

Costs in Trial Court.—Where, in an action to recover damages for the taking of land for use as a sidewalk by defendant municipality, the jury finds plaintiff is entitled to recover nothing, the court may properly tax the costs against defendant. Jervis v. Mars Hill, 214 N. C. 323, 199 S. E. 96.

Costs upon Appeal.—When it is decided by the superior court that the defendant's benefit equals the damages, the plaintiff corporation pays the costs, but if the defendant appeals and the decision of the lower court is affirmed then the cost of the appeal falls upon the defendant. Madison County R. Co. v. Gahagan, 161 N. C. 190, 76 S. E. 696.

§ 40-22. Title of infants, persons non compos, and trustees without power of sale, acquired.—In case any title or interest in real estate required by any corporation for its purposes shall be vested in any trustee not authorized to sell, release and convey the same, or in any infant, idiot, or person of unsound mind, the superior court shall have power, by a special proceeding, on petition, to authorize and empower such trustee or the general guardian or committee of such infant, idiot, or person of unsound mind, to sell and convey the same to such corporation, on such terms as may be just; and in case any such infant, idiot, or person of unsound mind has no general guardian or committee, the said court may appoint a special guardian or committee for the purpose of making such sale, release or conveyance, and may require such security from such general or special guardian or committee as said court may deem proper. But before any conveyance or release authorized by this section shall be executed, the terms on which the same is to be executed shall be reported to the court on oath; and if the court is satisfied that such terms are just to the party interested in such real estate, the court shall confirm the report and direct the proper conveyance or release to be executed, which shall have the same effect as if executed by an owner of said land having legal power to sell and convey the same. (Rev., s. 2590; Code, s. 1956; 1871-2, c. 138, s. 28; C. S. 1726.)

Cross References.—As to requirement that judge approve special proceeding where a petitioner is an infant, see § 1-402. As to sales of ward's estate by guardian, see §§ 33-31, 33-33. As to sale of land required for public use on cotenant's petition, see § 46-27.

§ 40-23. Rights of claimants of fund determined.—If there are adverse and conflicting claimants to the money, or any part of it, to be paid as compensation for the real estate taken, the court may direct the money to be paid into the said court by the corporation, and may determine who is entitled to the same and direct to whom the same shall be paid, and may in its discretion order a reference to ascertain the facts on which such determination and order are to be made. (Rev., s. 2591; Code, s. 1947; 1871-2, c. 138, s. 19; C. S. 1727.)

Editor's Note.—The purpose of this section is to prevent a corporation, having the right of eminent domain, from being indefinitely postponed in acquiring title and going on with its work or from being subjected to a succession of suits for compensation. Under the provisions of the section the company acquires the right of way and the court distributes the compensation. See Abernathy v. South, etc., R. Co., 150 N. C. 97, 104, 63 S. E. 180.

Applied in Stubbs v. United States, 21 F. Supp. 1007.

§ 40-24. Attorney for unknown parties appointed; pleadings amended; new commissioners appointed.—The court shall appoint some competent attorney to appear for and protect the rights of any party in interest who is unknown or whose residence is unknown, and who has not appeared in the proceedings by an attorney or agent, and shall make an allowance to said attorney for his services, which shall be taxed in the bill of costs. The court shall also have power at any time to amend any defect or informality in any of the special proceedings authorized by this chapter as may be necessary, or to cause new parties to be added, and to direct such further notices to be given to any party in interest as it deems proper; and also to appoint other commissioners in place of any who shall die, refuse or neglect to serve or be incapable of serving. (Rev., s. 2592; Code, s. 1948; 1871-2, c. 138, s. 20; C. S. 1728.)

Counsel fees for attorneys appointed under this section are provided for in section 40-19. See Durham v. Davis, 171 N. C. 305, 88 S. E. 433; North Carolina R. Co. v. Goodwin, 110 N. C. 175, 14 S. E. 687.

§ 40-25. Court may make rules of procedure in.—In all cases of appraisal under this chapter where the mode or manner of conducting all or any of the proceedings to the appraisal and the proceedings consequent thereon are not expressly provided for by the statute, the courts before whom such proceedings may be pending shall have the power to make all the necessary orders and give the proper directions to carry into effect the object and intent of this chapter, and the practice in such cases shall conform as near as may be to the ordinary practice in such courts. (Rev., s. 2593; Code, s. 1949; 1871-2, c. 138, s. 21; C. S. 1729.)

In General.—The provisions of the statute regarding the mode of procedure and rules of practice are indefinite and obscure, and the Legislature, recognizing the difficulty of doing more than outlining the practice so as to safeguard the rights of the parties, has conferred upon the court the power to make rules of procedure when they are not expressly provided by the statute. Abernathy v. South, etc., R. Co., 150 N. C. 97, 103, 63 S. E. 180.

Quoted in Nantahala Power, etc., Co. v. Whiting Mfg. Co., 209 N. C. 560, 184 S. E. 48.

§ 40-26. Change of ownership pending proceeding.—When any proceedings of appraisal shall have been commenced, no change of ownership by voluntary conveyance or transfer of the real estate or other subject-matter of the appraisal, or any interest therein, shall in any manner affect such proceedings, but the same may be carried on and perfected as if no such conveyance or transfer had been made or attempted to be made. (Rev., s. 2594; Code, s. 1950; 1871-2, c. 138, s. 22; C. S. 1730.)

Subsequent Purchaser May Recover.—An owner of land who acquires title subsequent to the location by a railroad company is not barred of his remedy for compensation where the road was not finished more than two years before he begins his action. Hendrick v. Carolina Cent. R. Co., 101 N. C. 617, 8 S. E. 236; Beattie v. Carolina Cent. R. Co., 108 N. C. 425, 429, 12 S. E. 913.

The purchaser of land subsequent to the location thereon of a railroad may recover permanent damages for the easement taken. Beal v. Railroad Co., 136 N. C. 298, 48 S. E. 674; Phillips v. Postal Tel. Cable Co., 130 N. C. 513, 41 S. E. 1022.

Until a purchase or condemnation, the corporation's occupation is without title, and the conveyance of the land will pass to the vendee the right to compensation for damages. Liverman v. Roanoke, etc., R. Co., 109 N. C. 52, 13 S. E. 734.

Action for Unlawful Entry Personal.—The damages incident to the act of an unlawful entry upon land by a railway corporation are personal to the owner of the land and do not pass by his subsequent conveyance of the premises. Liverman v. Roanoke, etc., R. Co., 109 N. C. 52, 13 S. E. 734.

The purchaser at the mortgage sale, while not entitled to the damages incident to the act of entry, might recover compensation for the land appropriated to the use of the company. Liverman v. Roanoke, etc., R. Co., 109 N. C. 52, 13 S. E. 734.

The right to convey the land is not affected by the mere filing of condemnation proceedings, nor by appraisement without confirmation and payment, as all rights would pass to the grantee. Nantahala Power, etc., Co. v. Whiting Mfg. Co., 209 N. C. 560, 562, 184 S. E. 48, citing Liverman v. Roanoke, etc., R. Co., 109 N. C. 52, 13 S. E. 734; Beal v. Durham, etc., R. Co., 136 N. C. 298, 48 S. E. 674.

§ 40-27. Defective title; how cured.—If at any time after an attempt to acquire title by appraisal of damages or otherwise it shall be found that the title thereby attempted to be acquired is defective, the corporation may proceed anew to acquire or perfect such title in the same manner as if no appraisal had been made, and at any stage of such new proceedings the court may authorize the corporation, if in possession, to continue in possession, and if not in possession, to take possession and use such real estate during the pendency and until the final conclusion of such new proceedings, and may stay all actions or proceedings against the corporation on account thereof, on such corporation paying into court a sufficient sum or giving security as the court may direct to pay the compensation therefor when finally ascertained, and in every such case the party interested in such real estate may conduct the proceedings to a conclusion if the corporation delays or omits to prosecute the same. (Rev., s. 2595; Code, s. 1951; 1871-2, c. 138, s. 23; C. S. 1731.)

§ 40-28. Title to state lands acquired.—The secretary of state shall have power to grant to any railroad company any land belonging to the people of this state which may be required for the purposes of its road, on such terms as may be agreed on by them, or such company may acquire title thereto by appraisal, as in the case of lands owned by individuals; and if any land belonging to a county or town is required by any company for the purposes of the road, the county or town officers having the charge of such land may grant such land to such company for such compensation as may be agreed upon. (Rev., s. 2596; Code, s. 1955; 1871-2, c. 138, s. 27; C. S. 1732.)

§ 40-29. Quantity which may be condemned for certain purposes:

1. Right of way of railroad.—The width of the land condemned for any railroad shall not be less than eighty feet nor more than one hundred, except where the road may run through a town, when it may be of less width; or where there may be deep cuts or high embankments, when it may be of greater width.

2. Plankroads, etc.—No greater width of land than sixty feet shall be condemned for the use of any plankroad, tramroad, canal, street railway or turnpike; or greater width than sixteen feet for the use of any flume.

3. Depot or station.—No greater quantity of land than two acres, contiguous to any railroad, plankroad, tramroad, turnpike, flume, or canal, shall be condemned at one place for a depot or station. (Rev. s. 2597; Code, ss. 1707, 1708, 1709; R. C., c. 61, ss. 27, 28, 29; 1852, c. 92; 1874-5, c. 83; 1907, c. 39; C. S. 1733.)

Cross Reference.—As to power of railroad companies to condemn more than two acres, see § 40-4.

In General.—"It is universally held in this jurisdiction that a railroad corporation acquires by condemnation an easement over that portion of its right of way not actually occupied by its roadbed, tracks, drains and side ditches. Ward v. R. R., 109 N. C. 358, 13 S. E. 926; Blue v. R. R., 117 N. C. 644, 23 S. E. 275; R. R. v. Sturgeon, 120 N. C. 225, 26 S. E. 779; Neal v. R. R., 128 N. C. 143, 38 S. E. 474; Shields v. R. R., 129 N. C. 1, 39 S. E. 582; McCullock v. R. R., 146 N. C. 316, 59 S. E. 882; R. R. v. McLean, 158 N. C. 498, 74 S. E. 461; Hendrix v. R. R., 162 N. C. 9, 77 S. E. 1001; R. R. v. Bunting, 168 N. C. 579, 84 S. E. 1009; Tighe v. R. R., 176 N. C. 239, 97 S. E. 164." Griffith v. Southerland Ry. Co., 191 N. C. 84, 87, 131 S. E. 413.

When Section Applies.—If the charter prescribes no maximum or minimum width of the right of way, then paragraph 1 of this section applies, and the law presumes the width therein specified subject to the right of the owner to recover compensation by compliance with section 1-51, paragraphs 1 and 2. Griffith v. R. R., 191 N. C. 84, 88, 131 S. E. 413.

Company May Use Entire Right of Way. — A railroad company may occupy its right of way to its full extent whenever the proper management and business necessities of the road, in its own judgment, may require it, though the owner of the land can use and occupy a part of the right of way not used by the railroad in a manner not inconsistent with its full enjoyment of the easement. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. v. Bunting, 168 N. C. 579, 84 S. E. 1009; Tighe v. Seaboard Air Line R. Co., 176 N. C. 239, 244, 97 S. E. 164.

A right of way of specified width must be located and constructed in order to be exclusive. Goldsboro Lumber Co. v. Hines Bros. Lumber Co., 126 N. C. 254, 35 S. E. 458.

Owner's Right to Use.—To the extent that the land covered by the right of way is not presently required for the purposes of the road, the owner may continue to occupy and use it in a manner not inconsistent with the full and proper enjoyment of the easement. Virginia, etc., R. Co. v. McLean, 158 N. C. 498, 74 S. E. 461; Earnhardt v. Southern R. Co., 157 N. C. 358, 72 S. E. 1062; Railroad v. Olive, 142 N. C. 257, 273, 55 S. E. 263; Goldsboro Lumber Co. v. Hines Bros. Lumber Co., 126 N. C. 254, 35 S. E. 458; Railroad Co. v. Sturgeon, 120 N. C. 225, 26 S. E. 779; Coit v. Owenby-Wofford Co., 166 N. C. 136, 138, 81 S. E. 1067.

Same—Permitting Others to Use.—The grant of a right of way of a specified width does not preclude the grantor from such use of his land himself or permitting the same to others, which is not in conflict therewith. Goldsboro Lumber Co. v. Hines Bros. Lumber Co., 126 N. C. 254, 35 S. E. 458.

Crop Raised Must Not Endanger Company's Business.— While land included in the right of way of a railroad company, not necessary for the purposes of the company, may be cultivated by the servient owner, the crop must not be of such inflammable or combustible nature when matured or maturing, as to endanger the safety of the company's passengers or cause injury to adjoining lands in case of ignition of such crops by sparks from the company's engines, for, in such case, the company would have the right to enter and remove such crops. Raleigh, etc., R. Co. v. Sturgeon, 120 N. C. 225, 26 S. E. 779.

Duty of Company to Clear Right of Way. — A railroad company is not negligent in failing to cut down bushes or weeds on the right of way beyond the portion over which it is exercising actual control for corporate purposes; but is required to keep the right of way clear of such growth to the outside of the side ditches on either side of the track. Ward v. Wilmington, etc., R. Co., 109 N. C. 358, 13 S. E. 926.

Same—Negligence. — Where a railroad company permits dry grass or leaves or other combustible rubbish to remain near its track, and the same take fire from sparks emitted from one of its locomotives which had no spark-arrester, and the fire is thereby communicated to the plaintiff's adjoining land, destroying timber, etc.: Held, that the injury resulted from the negligence of the defendant company. Aycock v. Raleigh, etc., Railroad, 89 N. C. 321.

Art. 3. Public Works Eminent Domain Law.

§ 40-30. Title of article.—This article may be referred to as the "Public Works Eminent Domain Law." (1935, c. 470, s. 1.)

Editor's Note.—For act authorizing North Carolina Cape Hatteras Seashore Commission, created by Public Laws 1939, c. 257, to condemn land according to the procedure contained in this article, see Public Laws 1941, c. 100.

§ 40-31. Finding and declaration of necessity. —(a) It is hereby declared that widespread unemployment exists throughout the State, making it impossible for many people in the State to support themselves and their families; that these conditions create a public emergency and constitute a menace to the health, safety, morals and welfare of the people of the State; that it is essential that public works projects, financed in whole or in part by the United States of America or by the State, be commenced as soon as possible in order to reduce and relieve this unemployment and prevent irreparable injury to the people of the State; that to this end, it is necessary to provide a method for the expeditious acquisition of any lands necessary for such public works projects; that such public works projects are hereby declared to be in furtherance of the public welfare and to be public uses and purposes for which public money may be spent and private property acquired; and the necessity in the public interest for the provision hereinafter enacted is hereby declared as a matter of legislative determination.

(b) Without limitation upon the generality of the foregoing paragraph hereof, it is hereby declared that insanitary or unsafe dwelling accommodations exist in various areas of the State and that consequently many persons of low income are forced to reside therein; that these conditions cause an increase in and spread of disease and crime, constitute a menace to the health, safety, morals and welfare of the citizens of the State, impair economic values and are not being, and cannot within a reasonable time be corrected by the investment of private capital available for profit-making enterprises; that the clearance, replanning and reconstruction of the areas in which insanitary or unsafe conditions exist and the provision of safe and sanitary dwelling accommodations for persons of low income are public uses and purposes for which private property may be acquired. (1935, c. 470, s. 2.)

§ 40-32. Definitions.—The following terms whenever used or referred to in this article shall have the following respective meanings unless a different meaning clearly appears from the context:

(a) "Public works project" shall mean any work or undertaking which is financed in whole or in part by a federal agency, as herein defined, or by a state public body, as herein defined.

(b) "Federal agency" shall mean the United States of America, the federal emergency administration of public works, or any other agency or instrumentality, corporate or otherwise, of the United States of America.

(d) "Authorized corporation" shall mean any corporation or association engaged or about to engage in any public works project, as herein defined, for a public use: Provided, that the construction of said public works project and its conduct thereafter by the corporation or association shall be subject to regulation or supervision by a federal agency, as heretofore defined, or a state public body, as herein defined, whether by virtue of an agreement, provision of law, or otherwise.

(e) "Real property" or "property" or "land" shall include all lands, including improvements and fixtures thereon, lands under water, all easements and hereditaments, corporeal or incorporeal, and every estate, interest and right, legal or equitable, in lands or water, and all rights, interests, privileges, easements, encumbrances, and franchises relating to the same, including terms for years and liens by way of judgment, mortgage or otherwise.

(f) "Court" shall mean the court in which jurisdiction over proceedings hereunder is vested by the provisions of § 40-33.

(g) "Petitioner" shall mean the one by whom proceedings for the acquisition of real property, as herein defined, are instituted hereunder pursuant to the provisions of § 40-33. (1935, c. 470, s. 3.)

§ 40-33. Filing of petition; jurisdiction of court; entry upon land by petitioner. — Any federal agency, state public body or authorized corporation may institute proceedings hereunder for the acquisition of any real property necessary for any public works project.

Such proceedings may be instituted in the superior court in any county in which any part of the real property or of the proposed public works project is situate. The court, whether during a term or during a vacation, shall cause said proceedings to be heard and determined without delay. All condemnation proceedings shall be preferred cases, and shall be entitled to precedence over all other civil cases.

The petitioner may enter upon the land proposed to be acquired for the purpose of making a survey and of posting any notice thereon which is required by this article: Provided, that such survey and posting of notice shall be done in such manner as will cause the least possible inconvenience to the owners of the real property. (1935, c. 470, s. 4.)

§ 40-34. Form of petition.—A proceeding may be instituted hereunder by the filing of a petition which shall be sufficient if it sets forth:

(c) A statement that the acquisition of such property by the petitioner is necessary for a public works project and a brief general description of said public works project.

(d) A statement that the proceedings are being instituted under this article.

(e) A suitable prayer for relief. (1935, c. 470, s. 5.)

§ 40-35. Inclusion of several parcels. — Any number of parcels of land, whether owned by the same or different persons and whether contiguous or not, may be included and condemned in one proceeding: Provided, such parcels are to be used for a single public works project. (1935, c. 470, s. 6.)

§ 40-36. Notice of proceedings.—Notice of such proceedings shall be given by one publication in a newspaper having a general circulation in each county in which any part of the property sought to be condemned is located. Such publication shall be at least twenty days and not more than thirty days prior to the date set for the hearing of the validity of the proceedings. Such notice shall be in substantially the following form (the blanks being appropriately filled):

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

Notice is hereby given that..... (here insert name of petitioner) has filed a petition in the above court under the Public Works Eminent Domain Law to acquire by condemnation for ..... (here give brief general description of the public works project for which the land is sought to be acquired) the following described land:

Notice is further given that on.....(here insert date of hearing, which must be at least twenty days and not more than thirty days after the date of publication) there will be a hearing in this court, at the opening thereof, for (1) determining the validity of said proceedings and the right of the petitioner, if it so elects, to take title to and possession of such property prior to final judgment, as authorized by § 40-45, of the Public Works Eminent Domain Law, and any persons having any interest in or lien upon the above described property shall be deemed to have waived their rights thereafter to object to the court's decision with respect to such issues, unless prior to said date they shall have filed in writing with the clerk of said court their objections thereto; (2) the appointment of a special master to determine the compensation to be awarded for such property and the persons entitled thereto; (3) the fixing of the date and place at which said special master shall hear and determine the compensation to be paid for such property and the person entitled thereto.

Notice is further given that all claims or demands for compensation because of the taking and condemnation of such property must be filed with the above court before.....(here insert date fifteen days after the date above specified for the court hearing), or the same shall be deemed waived.

Clerk of said Court.

Notice of such proceedings shall also be given (a) by posting a copy of the above notice in conspicuous places on the real property sought to be condemned, (b) by filing a copy thereof in the office of the clerk of the court in which such proceedings are pending, and (c) by filing a copy thereof in the proper office or offices for the filing of lis pendens in each county in which any part of the real property is situated.

Such publication, posting and filing shall constitute a legal and sufficient notice to all persons having any interest in or lien upon the property described in said notice. The filing of such notice in the aforesaid county office shall also be a constructive notice of the proceeding to any person who subsequently acquires any interest in or lien upon said property, and the petitioner shall take all property condemned under this article free of the claims of any such person. (1935, c. 470, s. 7.)

§ 40-37. Determination of issues raised by objections; waiver by failure to file; final judgment; guardian ad litem.—All persons who have not filed written objections with the court prior to the time of the hearing specified in the notice prescribed by § 40-36 shall be deemed to have waived the right to file objections as to the sufficiency and validity of the petition, the proceedings and the relief sought thereby, and as to the right of the petitioner to take title and possession prior to final judgment, as authorized by § 40-45.

The court, at the time specified in said notice, after hearing and determining all issues of fact and law raised by the objections which have been filed, if any there be, shall enter a final judgment with respect to such issues, and thereafter there shall remain for determination only the amount of the compensation to be paid and the persons entitled thereto.

If any infant or other person under a legal disability shall not have appeared in the proceedings by his duly authorized legal representative, the court shall appoint a guardian ad litem to represent such person's interest in the proceedings before the special master. (1935, c. 470, s. 8.)

§ 40-38. Appointment of special master.—The court, at the time of said hearing, shall appoint a special master to fix the amount of damages and compensation for the taking and condemnation of the property described in the petition and the persons entitled thereto, and to report thereon to the court. The special master shall be a disinterested person not related to any one having an interest in or lien upon the property sought to be condemned. The compensation of said special master shall not exceed fifteen ($15.00) dollars per day plus travel and subsistence expenses. The special master immediately after his appointment shall subscribe to an oath that to the best of his ability he will truly find and return the compensation for the taking and condemnation of the property and the persons entitled thereto. (1935, c. 470, s. 9.)

§ 40-39. Notice of hearing by special master. —Immediately after his appointment and taking of oath, the special master shall cause notice to be sent by registered mail to all persons who have appeared in the proceedings or to their attorneys of record and to all others having any interest in or lien upon the property sought to be condemned, as shown by the record of the proper county office or offices for the recording of documents pertaining to such real estate, and to all guardians ad litem appointed pursuant to the provisions of § 40-37, such notice to be addressed to such persons at their respective last known addresses. Such notice shall be substantially in the following form (with the blanks appropriately filled):

IN THE.....COURT FOR THE..... OF.....

(Here describe the land sufficiently for the identification thereof. Such description may be by use of a plat or map.)

All persons having an interest in or lien upon the above described property, for which compensation will be demanded, are hereby notified that all claims or demands for compensation by reason of the taking and condemnation of such property shall be filed in writing with said court before ..... (insert time and place fixed by the court for such hearing in blanks) with respect to (1) the amount of compensation to be paid for the property sought to be condemned, and (2) the persons entitled to such compensation.

Dated.....day of ....., A. D., ...

Special master appointed by said Court.

The special master shall also cause a copy of said notice to be posted in conspicuous places on the property sought to be condemned.

After such notice by mailing and posting, the special master, on the date for hearing specified in the aforesaid notice, shall proceed immediately to hear and determine the question of just compensation for the taking and condemnation of the property and the persons entitled to such compensation. To this end, the special master may issue subpoenas, administer oaths to witnesses, and receive evidence and cause same to be recorded. (1935, c. 470, s. 10.)

§ 40-40. Evidence admissible; increase in value; improvements.—For the purpose of determining the value of the land sought to be condemned and fixing just compensation therefor, the following evidence (in addition to other evidence which is relevant, material and competent) shall be relevant, material and competent and shall be admitted and considered by the special master:

(a) Evidence that a building or improvement is unsafe or insanitary or a public nuisance, or is in a state of disrepair, and of the cost to correct any such condition, notwithstanding that no action has been taken by local authorities to remedy any such condition.

(b) Evidence that any state public body, charged with the duty of abating or requiring the correction of nuisances or like conditions or demolishing unsafe or insanitary structures, issued an order directing the abatement or correction of any conditions existing with respect to said building or improvement or the demolition of said building or improvement, and of the cost which compliance with any such order would entail.

(c) Evidence of the last assessed valuation of the property for purposes of taxation and of any affidavits or tax returns made by the owner in connection with such assessment which state the value of such property and of any income tax returns of the owner showing sums deducted on account of obsolescence or depreciation of such property.

(d) Evidence that such buildings and improvements are being used for illegal purposes or are being so overcrowded as to be dangerous or injurious to the health, safety, morals or welfare of the occupants thereof and the extent to which the rentals therefrom are enhanced by reason of such use.

(e) Evidence of the price and other terms upon any sale or the rent reserved and other terms of any lease or tenancy relating to such property or to any similar property in the vicinity when the sale or leasing occurred or the tenancy existed within a reasonable time of the hearing.

The award of compensation shall not be increased by reason of any increase in the value of the property resulting from the public works project to be placed thereon.

No allowance shall be made for improvements begun on property after the publication of the notice specified in § 40-36, except upon good cause being shown. (1935, c. 470, s. 11.)

§ 40-41. Report of special master. — The report of the special master must be filed with the clerk of the court in which said proceeding is pending within thirty days after the date of the taking of the oath, unless further time is granted by the court. The court shall grant additional time for the filing of the report only on a showing that the report cannot, with all due diligence, be prepared within the time fixed. (1935, c. 470, s. 12.)

§ 40-42. Notice of report. — Upon the filing of such report by the special master, the court, without delay, shall fix a date for the hearing of any objections filed thereto. Notice that said report has been filed, that all objections thereto must be filed with the court within ten days after the date of the mailing of such notice and that the court has fixed a certain date (which shall be stated therein) for the hearing of such objections, shall be given by sending a copy of such notice by registered mail to all persons who have appeared in the proceeding or their attorneys of record at their last known addresses. Upon the expiration of ten days after the mailing of such notice, all objections to the report shall be deemed waived by all persons who have not filed written objections with the court. (1935, c. 470, s. 13.)

§ 40-43. Hearing of objections by the court. —If no objections are filed to the special master's report, the court (but only on motion of the petitioner unless title to the property has vested in the petitioner) shall enter a final judgment fixing the compensation to be paid for the property and the persons entitled to such compensation. If any objections are filed to the special master's report, the court on the date specified in the aforesaid order shall hear and determine such questions of law and fact as are raised by such exceptions and may approve, disapprove or modify the special master's findings or may reject the special master's report in toto. In the event the special master's report is rejected in toto, the court shall at once appoint another special master in the same manner that the first special master was appointed, and such special master shall have the same powers and duties as the special master first appointed, except that notice of the time for filing claims and of the hearing of the special master may be given by registered mail to all persons who have appeared in the proceedings or their attorneys of record at their last known addresses, and no other notice shall be necessary. If the court shall approve the special master's report, with or without modification, the court (but only on motion of the petitioner unless title to the property has previously vested in the petitioner) shall enter a final judgment, fixing the compensation to be paid for such property and the persons entitled to such compensation.

If title to said property has not previously been vested in the petitioner, the title and right to possession of said property shall vest in the petitioner immediately upon the entry of such final judgment and upon the deposit in court by the petitioner of the amount of the judgment fixed by the court as the compensation for such property. Upon the entry of such judgment and the vesting of title aforesaid, the court shall designate the day (not exceeding thirty days thereafter, except upon good cause shown) on which the parties in possession of said property shall be required to surrender possession to the petitioner. (1935, c. 470, s. 14.)

§ 40-44. Certified copy of judgment. — Upon the rendition of the final judgment vesting title in the petitioner, the clerk of the court shall make and certify, under the seal of the court, a copy or copies of such judgment, which shall be filed or recorded in the proper county office or offices for the recording of documents pertaining to the real property described therein, and such filing or recording shall constitute notice to all persons of the contents thereof. A copy of the judgment certified by the clerk of the court as aforesaid shall be competent and admissible evidence in any proceedings at law or in equity. (1935, c. 470, s. 15.)

§ 40-45. Declaration of taking; property deemed condemned; fixing day for surrender of property; security for compensation and payment of award. —At any time at or after the filing of the petition referred to in § 40-34, and before the entry of final judgment, the petitioner may file with the clerk of the court a declaration of taking signed by the duly authorized officer or agent of the petitioner declaring that all or any part of the property described in said petition is to be taken for the use of the petitioner.

Said declaration of taking shall be sufficient if it sets forth: (1) a description of the property, sufficient for the identification thereof, to which there may be attached a plat or map thereof; (2) a statement of the estate or interest in said property being taken; and (3) a statement of the sum of money estimated by the petitioner to be just compensation for the property taken.

Upon the filing of said declaration of taking and the deposit in court, to the use of the persons entitled thereto, of the amount of the estimated compensation stated in said declaration title to the property specified in said declaration shall vest in the petitioner and said property shall be deemed to be condemned and taken for the use of the petitioner, and the right to just compensation for the same shall vest in the persons entitled thereto. Upon the filing of the declaration of taking, the court shall designate a day (not exceeding thirty days after such filing, except upon good cause shown) on which the parties in possession shall be required to surrender possession to the petitioner. In the event that the petitioner is an authorized corporation, the court, prior to directing surrender of possession to the petitioner, shall require such security to be given, in addition to the amount deposited in court, as will reasonably assure the payment of any amount ultimately determined as the compensation to be paid.

The ultimate amount of compensation shall be fixed in the manner heretofore specified. If the amount so fixed shall exceed the amount so deposited in court by the petitioner, the court shall enter judgment against the petitioner in the amount of such deficiency, together with interest at the rate of six per centum per annum on such deficiency from the date of the vesting of title to the date of the entry of the final judgment (subject, however, to abatement for use, income, rents or profits derived from such property by the owner thereof subsequent to the vesting of title in the petitioner) and the court shall order the petitioner to deposit the amount of such deficiency in court. (1935, c. 470, s. 16.)

§ 40-46. Right to dismiss petition. — At any time prior to the vesting of title to the property in the petitioner, the petitioner may withdraw or dismiss its petition with respect to any or all of the property therein described. (1935, c. 470, s. 17.)

§ 40-47. Divesting title of owner.—Upon vesting of title to any property in the petitioner, all the right, title and interest of all persons having any interest therein or lien thereupon shall be divested immediately, and such persons thereafter shall be entitled only to receive compensations for such property. (1935, c. 470, s. 18.)

§ 40-48. Payment of award into court and disbursement thereof.—The payment into court by the petitioner of the amount of any award or the deposit into court by the petitioner of the amount of any award or the deposit in court of the amount estimated by the petitioner to be the just compensation for the property taken or condemned shall be deemed to be a payment or deposit of money for the use of the persons entitled thereto. Such payment or deposit shall constitute a payment to the persons entitled thereto to the extent of the moneys so paid or deposited into court.

Any such payment shall be as valid and effectual in all respects as if it were made by the petitioner directly to the person entitled thereto or, in the case of a person under legal disability, to his guardian, whether or not (a) such person or his whereabouts is known or unknown, (b) such person is under a legal disability, or (c) there are adverse or conflicting claims to such awards.

The money paid into court shall be secured in such manner as may be directed by the court and shall be paid out by the special master to the persons found to be entitled thereto by the final judgment of the court. (1935, c. 470, s. 19.)

§ 40-49. Recovery of award.—If an award shall be paid to a person not entitled thereto, the sole recourse of the person to whom it should have been paid shall be against the person to whom it shall have been paid. In such event the person entitled to the award may sue for and recover the same, with the lawful interest and costs of suit, as such money had and received to his use by the person to whom the same shall have been paid. (1935, c. 470, s. 20.)

§ 40-50. Appeal.—Any time within thirty days from the filing of any interlocutory or final order or judgment by the court, any person or persons of record in the proceedings, who shall have filed exceptions at any stage of the proceedings within the time and in the manner specified, may appeal therefrom, but only with respect to those questions or issues which were raised by such exceptions.

The taking of an appeal shall not operate to stay the proceedings under this article except when the person or persons appealing shall have obtained a stay of the execution of the judgment or order appealed from, in which event the proceedings shall be stayed only with respect to the person or persons appealing and their respective interests in the proceedings. Upon the taking of an appeal the proceedings shall be deemed severed as to the person or persons appealing and their respective interests in the proceedings.

Any interlocutory or final order or judgment shall be final and conclusive upon all persons affected thereby who have not appealed within the time herein prescribed.

Any petitioner, other than an authorized corporation, may appeal without giving bond; but any other person or persons appealing shall give bond, with good and sufficient surety, to be approved by the court, conditioned to pay all costs taxed against appellant on such appeal. (1935, c. 470, s. 21.)

§ 40-51. Costs.—If the petitioner, prior to the making of the award, shall have tendered to an interested person for his property or deposited in court for such property an amount which such interested person refused to accept or agree to as just compensation, all costs shall be assessed against such person in the event that the aforesaid amount tendered or deposited is equal to or in excess of the award fixed or confirmed by the court with respect to such parcel. (1935, c. 470, s. 22.)

§ 40-52. Powers conferred are supplemental.—The powers conferred by this article shall be in addition and supplemental to and not in substitution for the power conferred by any other law. The power of eminent domain may be exercised hereunder, notwithstanding that any other law may provide for the exercise of said power for like purposes and without regard to the requirements, restrictions or procedural provisions contained in any other law.

Procedure hereunder, which is not prescribed herein, shall be that which is otherwise prescribed by the law of the State. (1935, c. 470, s. 23.)

§ 40-53. Necessity for certificate of public convenience and necessity from utilities commission. — Notwithstanding any finding of public convenience and necessity, either in general or specific, by the terms of this article, the right of eminent domain shall not be exercised unless and until a certificate of public convenience and necessity for such project has been issued by the utilities commission of North Carolina, and the proceedings leading up to the issuing of such certificate of public convenience and necessity, and the right to appeal therefrom shall be as now provided by law and said rights are hereby expressly reserved to all interested parties in said proceedings. In addition to the powers now granted by law to the utilities commission of North Carolina, the said utilities commission is hereby vested with full power and authority to investigate and examine all projects set up or attempted to be set up under the provisions of this article and determine the question of the public convenience and necessity for said project. (1935, c. 470, s. 25.)

Chapter 41. Estates.

§ 41-1. Fee tail converted into fee simple. — Every person seized of an estate in tail shall be deemed to be seized of the same in fee simple. (Rev., s. 1578; Code, s. 1325; R. C., c. 43, s. 1; 1784, c. 204, s. 5; C. S. 1734.)

As to fee presumed, though word "heirs" omitted, see § 39-1.

I. GENERAL CONSIDERATIONS.

Editor's Note.—Estates are now held in the British Isles granted by William, the Conqueror (1085), and by Bruce. after the battle of Bannockburn, (1314), estates tail general or special, estates tail male and estates tail female. This system, one of the last relics of the feudal system, is so pregnant with involved technical problems, and so potent with possibilities of fraud, as to have no place in our present economic and social order. The heavy tax brought about by the World War has forced many of the estates to be divided and sold. Thus the land is gradually coming into the possession of the masses.

The system gained a foot-hold in America during Colonial days, but, with the advent of Independence, this hierarchy, under our conception of freedom, could not exist. So it was that primogeniture, which existed under the Mosaic as well as the English Law, never took root in the states of the American Union. Estates tail were soon abolished. Of these estates it is only necessary to say that they existed in this State in Colonial days; that by section 43 of the Constitution of 1776 it was provided that, "The future Legislature of this State shall regulate entails in such a manner as to prevent perpetuities;" that in 1784 the Legislature passed the act by which all estates tail then in existence were converted into fee-simple estates, and it was enacted that all such estates as should be thereafter created should be deemed to be in fee simple. Mordecai's Law Lectures, vol. 1, p. 498. Walter v. Trollinger, 192 N. C. 744, 747, 135 S. E. 871.

Under our form of government the law favors the early vesting of estates to the end that property may be kept in the channels of trade and commerce. This policy of the law is clearly indicated by Article 1. Secs. 30 and 31, of our constitution, which bars hereditary emoluments and perpetuities, and section 31-38 of this Code, providing that a devise shall be presumed to be in fee simple.

The word "estate" in its true legal significance embraces an interest in anything that is the subject of property, especially in lands. Preston defines it to be "the interest which any one has in lands or in any other subject of property." 1 Prest. Est., 20; 2 Blk. Com., 10; 2 Crabb Real Prop., p. 2, § 942. To the same effect are Coke and all other English authorities. Coke Litt., 345. In the American courts the word "estate" is a word of the greatest extension and broadest significance. It comprehends every species of property, real and personal. Glascock v. Gray, 148 N. C. 346, 349, 62 S. E. 433.

" 'Estate' is derived from status, and in its most general sense means position or standing in respect to the things and concerns of this world. In this sense it includes choses in action. Webb v. Bowler, 50 N. C. 362; Pippin v. Ellison, 34 N. C. 61; Hurdle v. Outlaw, 55 N. C. 75, 76. But it is also used in a much more restricted sense, and is then put in opposition to a chose in action, or mere right, to signify something which one has in possession, or a vested remainder, or reversion without dispute or adverse possession. Thus, we say, the estate is divested and put to a mere right by a disseisin or discontinuance; and so, in equity, where the trust is by agreement of the parties, we say the cestui qui trust has the estate, but where a decree is necessary, in order to convert one into a trustee against his consent, the party has a mere right." Taylor v. Dawson, 56 N. C. 87, 91.

The word "estate" was used in this later sense by the Rev. Stat., ch. 43, § 2, which enacted: "In all estates, real or personal, the part or share of any tenant dying shall not descend or go to the surviving tenant or tenants, but shall descend or be vested in the heirs, executors or administrators of the tenant so dying, in the same manner as estates held by tenancy in common," etc. Bond v. Hilton, 51 N. C. 180, 181.

Remainder Dependent upon Estate Tail.—The section will bar a remainder dependant upon an estate tail, in possession of tenant in tail, at the time of passing the section. Lane v. Davis, 2 N. C. 277.

Estates Tail Converted.—The section converted by one stroke of the legislative pen estates tail into fee simple. Hodges v. Lipscomb, 128 N. C. 57, 63, 38 S. E. 281.

"Heirs of their bodies" are equivalent to the words "heirs general." Revis v. Murphy, 172 N. C. 579, 90 S. E. 573; Cohoon v. Upton, 174 N. C. 88, 91, 93 S. E. 446.

Form of Acquisition Not Changed.—The Act of 1784, which subsequently converted the estate tail into a fee simple, did not change the original form of the acquisition, which still continued to be by purchase. Ballard v. Griffin, 4 N. C. 237.

Confirmation of Alienation in Fee.—The section converted no estates tail into estates in fee, but such whereof there was a person "seized and possessed," and confirmed only such alienations in fee as had been made by tenants in tail in possession since the year 1777. Wells v. Newbolt, 1 N. C. 537, 538.

II. RULE IN SHELLEY'S CASE.

Editor's Note.—The question has been raised as to the effect of this section upon the application of the Rule in Shelley's Case. It would be well to quote here from the excellent discussion of the subject in 1 N. C. Law Rev., 110, 111. "A disposition of property of frequent occurrence especially in wills, is (a) a life estate to A, who is usually a near relative, say son or daughter of the testator, settler, or grantor, followed by (b) an estate tail to the heirs of A's body, with (c) on failure of such heirs of the body or issue or the like, a limitation over in fee simple to the heirs general of A.

"The statute of 1784, C. S. sec. 1734 [G. S. § 41-1], changed an estate tail to a fee simple in the first taker under the entail. The Rule in Shelley's Case by its very terms unites the life estate, (a) above, with the remainder in tail, (b) above, into a fee tail in the ancestor, which the statute of 1784 thereupon converts to a fee simple. The limitation over, (c) above, can no longer be a remainder after a fee tail, as at common law, upon which the Rule could operate, but becomes instantly a limitation over after a fee simple, that is, an executory limitation, which is not within the operation of the Rule.

"There were two freeholds which the ancestor might take under the limitation within the Rule, an estate for life and an estate tail. But in North Carolina since the statute of 1784, sec. 1734 [G. S. § 41-1], there is left only a life estate which the ancestor may take under the limitation and which satisfies the conditions for the Rule. We might with a gain in simplicity and exactness embody this statutory result in our statement of the Rule, so as to make it, if Coke's language is adopted, read: 'When by any gift or conveyance the ancestor takes a life estate,' etc., or if Preston and Kent's statement is preferred, it could read: 'When a person takes a life estate legally or equitably....., etc.' " See the statements of the Rule in the words of Coke and Kent, who follows Preston, in Smith v. Proctor, 139 N. C. 314, 51 S. E. 889, 2 L. R. A. (N. S.) 172 (1905). See also, Walter v. Trollinger, 192 N. C. 744, 135 S. E. 871.

For further consideration including a resume of the rule, see the Editor's Note to § 41-6.

Force of Rule in North Carolina.—The common-law doctrine known as the rule in Shelley's case is in force in this state. Nichols v. Gladden, 117 N. C. 497, 23 S. E. 459. It has never been abolished in North Carolina. Dawson v. Quinnerly, 118 N. C. 188, 24 S. E. 483. And this section does not affect that principle of law. Dawson v. Quinnerly, 118 N. C. 188, 24 S. E. 483.

Statement of Rule.—"A good definition of the rule (in Shelley's case), and the most general, is as follows: 'That when the ancestors by any gift or conveyance taketh an estate of freehold, and in the same gift or conveyance an estate is limited either mediately or immediately to his heirs, in fee or in tail, the word "heirs" is a word of limitation of the estate and not a word of purchase.'" Nichols v. Gladden, 117 N. C. 497, 500, 23 S. E. 459.

Nature and Operation of Rule.—The rule in Shelley's case is a rule of law and not of construction, and, no matter what the intention of the grantor or testator may have been, if an estate is granted or given to one for life and after his death to his heirs or "heirs of his body," and no other words are superadded which to a certainty show that other persons than the heirs general of the first taker are meant, the rule applies and the whole estate vests in the first taker. Nichols v. Gladden, 117 N. C. 497, 23 S. E. 459.

"Heirs" or "Heirs of Body."—In order to an application of the rule in Shelley's case appreciation of the words "heirs" or "heirs of the body" must be taken in their technical sense, or carry the estate to the entire line of heirs to hold as inheritors under our canons of descent; but should these words be used as only designating certain persons, or confining the inheritance to a restricted class of heirs, the rule does not apply, and the ancestor or the first taker acquires only a life estate according to the meaning of the express words of the instrument. Wallace v. Wallace, 181 N. C. 158, 106 S. E. 501.

Fee Simple.—A limitation coming within the rule in Shelley's case, recognized as existent in this State, operates as a rule of property, passing when applicable a fee simple, both in deeds and wills, regardless of a contrary intent on the part of the testator or grantor appearing in the instrument. Wallace v. Wallace, 181 N. C. 158, 106 S. E. 501.

A devise of lands to the testator's named children "for life only and then to their body heirs," falls within the rule in Shelley's case, notwithstanding the use of the words "for life only," and carries to the remainderman a fee tail under the old law, converted by our statute into a fee-simple title. Harrington v. Grimes, 163 N. C. 76, 79 S. E. 301, cited and applied. Merchants Nat. Bank v. Dortch, 186 N. C. 510, 120 S. E. 60.

Where a husband conveys his lands to his wife for life and to her bodily heirs begotten by him, the estate conveyed is an estate tail special under the rule in Shelley's case, converted into a fee simple absolute by this section. Morehead v. Montague, 200 N. C. 497, 157 S. E. 793.

III. APPLICATION AND ILLUSTRATIVE CASES.

Deed Sufficient Formerly to Convey Fee Tail.—A deed, which was sufficient under the old law to confer a fee tail, is sufficient under this section, where a contrary intent may not be gathered from the instrument construed as a whole to convey an estate in a fee simple, but must be distinguished from cases in which the words "bodily heirs" are used in a conveyance as descriptio personarum, which merely conveys to them an estate in remainder and as purchasers from the grantor. Harrington v. Grimes, 163 N. C. 76, 79 S. E. 301. Decisions in support of this construction of deeds will be found in Perrett v. Bird, 152 N. C. 220, 67 S. E. 507; Sessoms v. Sessoms, 144 N. C. 121, 56 S. E. 687; Jones v. Ragsdale, 141 N. C. 200, 53 S. E. 842; Whitfield v. Garris, 134 N. C. 24, 45 S. E. 904, and many others. The well considered cases of Acker v. Pridgon, 158 N. C. 337, 74 S. E. 335, and Puckett v. Morgan, 158 N. C. 344, 74 S. E. 15, in no way militate against this position.

Same—Life Estate with Limitation over to Bodily Heirs.—A devise of lands for life, followed by a separate paragraph, to the "bodily heirs" of the devisees named after their death, creates an estate in fee tail, which is enlarged into a fee simple under this section. Keziah v. Medlin, 173 N. C. 237, 91 S. E. 836.

Where land is devised to a person for life at her death to vest in the children of the testator during their natural lives and at their death to vest in their lawful heirs, such children take a fee on the death of the life tenant. Wool v. Fleetwood, 136 N. C. 460, 48 S. E. 785.

Same—Conveyance to One and Heirs of the Body.—A conveyance of land to A. and "her heirs by the body of R. (her husband) and assigns forever" was a fee tail at common law, but under our statute, Revisal, sec. 1578, now this section, it is converted into a fee-simple absolute, unaffected by the fact that there were children of the marriage living at the time of the execution of the conveyance; and in this case, construing the instrument as a whole, it evidences the intent of the grantor that it should be so interpreted. Revis v. Murphy, 172 N. C. 579, 90 S. E. 573; Whitley v. Arenson, 219 N. C. 121, 12 S. E. (2d) 906.

A conveyance to a granddaughter and the heirs of her own body passed an estate in fee tail, which by this section was converted into a fee simple, defeasible under the terms of the deed if no child was born to her, but which became absolute upon the birth of a child. Sharpe v. Brown, 177 N. C. 294, 298, 98 S. E. 825.

Where a deed is executed to "M. and the heirs of her body by her husband S. begotten, or upon failure thereafter her death to the nearest heirs of S.," and at the date of the execution of the deed M. has children living, the deed conveys a fee tail special to M. which is converted to a fee simple by this section, defeasible upon her dying without surviving children by S., and her children do not take as tenants in common with her, § 41-6, providing that a limitation to the heirs of a living person shall be construed to be the children of such person, being applicable only when there is no precedent estate conveyed to the living person, and the condition as to the failure of heirs referring to the death of M. without surviving children and not to the birth of issue, there being issue born at the date of the execution of the deed, and the ulterior limitation is not barred by the birth of such issue. Sharpe v. Brown, 177 N. C. 294, 98 S. E. 825, cited and distinguished. Paul v. Paul, 199 N. C. 522, 154 S. E. 825.

A deed to a widow and the heirs of her body by her late husband creates an estate tail which is converted by this section, into a fee simple absolute in the widow, and her children by her deceased husband take no interest in the land, § 41-6, not being applicable, since it applies only when no preceding estate is conveyed to the "ancestor" of the "heirs." Bank of Pilot Mountain v. Snow, 221 N. C. 14, 18 S. E. (2d) 711.

A devise to testator's wife, "to her and her heirs by me," vests in the wife a fee tail special, converted by this section into a fee simple, and her estate is not affected or limited to a life estate with remainder in fee to the heirs of testator by subsequent provision in the item that testator's wife should have exclusive and sole use of the property and "should she have living heirs by me, then all my estate . . . shall belong to her and her heirs in fee simple," in the absence of a reverter or limitation over in the event the wife should not have children born to her marriage with testator. Sharpe v. Isley, 219 N. C. 753, 14 S. E. (2d) 814.

Same—Heiresses.—A devise to P, "during her natural life, and after her death to the begotten heirs or heiresses of her body," vested in P an absolute estate in fee simple. Leathers v. Gray, 101 N. C. 162, 7 S. E. 657.

Same—Devise to One and Lawful Heirs of the Body.—A devise to S. and the lawful heirs of his body forever confers an estate fee tail, converted into a fee simple under the section. Sessoms v. Sessoms, 144 N. C. 121, 56 S. E. 687.

Same—Conveyance a Defeasible Fee.—The interpretation that a deed for life and then to "the surviving heirs of her body" conveys the fee-simple title, under the section does not apply when the grantor uses the additional words, "but should she die without leaving such heir or heirs, then the same is to revert back to her nearest of kin according to law," for then the intent is manifest that the conveyance is of a defeasible fee depending upon whether the first taker died without leaving children surviving her. Smith v. Parke, 176 N. C. 406, 97 S. E. 209.

Where a testator devises realty to a grandson, and in the event of the death of the grandson without children, then the realty to descend to other grandchildren, such devise vests a fee simple estate in the first devisee, defeasible only on condition that he die without leaving heirs of his body. Whitefield v. Garris, 134 N. C. 24, 45 S. E. 904.

Devise to Daughter and Her "Bodily Heirs" Creates Fee-Simple Estate in Daughter.—A devise to testator's daughter and her bodily heirs, and if she dies without bodily heirs, then in trust for the heirs of testator's sisters, is held to create a fee-simple estate in the daughter, defeasible upon her dying without children or issue, it being apparent that the words "bodily heirs" used in the devise meant children or issue, as otherwise the limitation over to the heirs of testator's sisters would be meaningless. Murdock v. Deal, 208 N. C. 754, 182 S. E. 466.

The will in question devised certain lands to testator's son for life "and then to be divided equally among his male heirs, they to share and share alike" and it was held that even if it be conceded that the words "male heirs" should be construed "heirs" under the provisions of this section, the addition of the words "share and share alike" prevents the application of the rule in Shelley's Case, and upon the death of the son, his sole male heir takes the fee in the property by purchase under the will. Cheshire v. Drewry, 213 N. C. 450, 197 S. E. 1.

An estate in remainder to the testator's son "and to his children or issue, but in case he should die childless and without issue, then . . . to my heirs in equal degree in fee simple," there being no child or children of the son until long after the testator's death, was held to create an estate tail at common law, which is converted into a fee-simple by this section, defeasible upon the testator's son dying without issue, and where there is an ultimate limitation over to persons coming within its terms, the testator's son and his child or issue cannot convey a fee-simple title. Ziegler v. Love, 185 N. C. 40, 115 S. E. 887.

An estate to H. during his life, with remainder to the testator's son "and his bodily heirs," vests a life estate in the land in H., with an estate tail in remainder to the son, which, under our statute, is converted into a fee simple. And upon the falling in of the life estate, the son can convey a good fee-simple title. Chamblee v. Broughton, 120 N. C. 170, 27 S. E. 111; Leathers v. Gray, 101 N. C. 162, 7 S. E. 657, cited and distinguished. Howard v. Edwards, 185 N. C. 604, 116 S. E. 1.

Illustrative Cases.—A devise of lands to the wife of the testator for life, and at her death or remarriage to their two children, by name, for their natural lives for the heirs of their bodies, constitutes an estate tail, converted by this section into a fee simple. Washburn v. Biggerstaff, 195 N. C. 624, 143 S. E. 210.

A deed to a married woman and her heirs by her present husband, with granting clause, habendum and warranty to "parties of the second part, their heirs and assigns," is held to convey to the married woman a fee tail special, which is converted into a fee simple absolute by this section. Whitley v. Arenson, 219 N. C. 121, 12 S. E. (2d) 906.

Cited in Williamson v. Cox, 218 N. C. 177, 10 S. E. (2d) 662.

§ 41-2. Survivorship in joint tenancy abolished; proviso as to partnership.— In all estates, real or personal, held in joint tenancy, the part or share of any tenant dying shall not descend or go to the surviving tenant, but shall descend or be vested in the heirs, executors, or administrators, or assigns, respectively, of the tenant so dying, in the same manner as estates held by tenancy in common: Provided, that estates held in joint tenancy for the purpose of carrying on and promoting trade and commerce, or any useful work or manufacture, established and pursued with a view of profit to the parties therein concerned, are vested in the surviving partner, in order to enable him to settle and adjust the partnership business, or pay off the debts which may have been contracted in pursuit of the joint business; but as soon as the same is effected, the survivor shall account with, and pay, and deliver to the heirs, executors, administrators and assigns respectively of such deceased partner all such part, share, and sums of money as he may be entitled to by virtue of the original agreement, if any, or according to his share or part in the joint concern, in the same manner as partnership stock is usually settled between joint merchants and the representatives of their deceased partners. (Rev., s. 1579; Code, s. 1326; R. C., c. 43, s. 2; 1784, c. 204, s. 6; C. S. 1735.)

I. GENERAL CONSIDERATIONS.

Editor's Note.—Joint tenancy is a child of the common law, wholly without a statutory basis. It has long been looked upon by the Courts, especially in America, with marked disfavor. As a result of being singled out by the questioning eye of the judiciary, it has fallen easy prey to the Legislative knife. In most of the American States it has been abolished, either wholly or in part, by statutory enactment. The right of survivorship, its chief distinguishing feature, has been the one most disliked by Court and Legislature. This right has been very generally abolished by the statutes, being spared only when the instrument conveying the estate expressly, or by necessary implication, shows that the intention is to create such an estate.

A joint tenancy and a tenancy in common are similar in that in both cases the cotenants hold by unity of possession; but in the case of tenancy in common, the parties hold by separate rights and titles, or by separate rights under a single title, while in joint tenancy the cotenants hold by a single joint right and a single joint title. The difference is the basis of the right of survivorship in a joint tenancy, which, in the absence of a statute abolishing it, is an additional difference.

At common law the right of survivorship differentiated the joint tenancy from the partnership. In the case of the partnership the survivors held in the nature of trustees, until the deceased's interests were placed in the hands of those entitled thereto by law. This section, abolishing survivorship, accomplishes practically the same result in the case of joint tenancy in this state.

In the ancient language of the law joint tenants were said to hold "per my et per tout," the true interpretation of this being that these tenants were seized of the entire realty for the purpose of tenure and survivorship, while for the purpose of immediate alienation, each had only a particular part of the interest.

Scope of Section.—The section abolishes survivorship, where the joint tenancy would otherwise have been created by the law, but does not operate to prohibit persons from entering into written contracts as to land, or verbal agreements as to personalty, such as to make the future rights of the parties depend upon the fact of survivorship. Taylor v. Smith, 116 N. C. 531, 535, 21 S. E. 202; Jones v. Waldroup, 217 N. C. 178, 7 S. E. (2d) 366.

Joint tenancies are not abolished by the section. It abolishes the right of survivorship, only in joint tenancies in fee, but does not affect joint estates for life or estates by entirety. Vass v. Freeman, 56 N. C. 221; Powell v. Allen, 75 N. C. 450; Blair v. Osborne, 84 N. C. 417; Powell v. Morisey, 84 N. C. 421; Burton v. Cahill, 192 N. C. 505, 508, 135 S. E. 332.

Same—Joint Tenants for Life.—In Powell v. Allen, 75 N. C. 450, 452, in construing the act of 1784, now this section, Chief Justice Pearson says: "It is obvious that these words cannot be made to apply to joint tenants for life." Burton v. Cahill, 192 N. C. 505, 508, 135 S. E. 332.

Same—Estates of Inheritance.—Act 1784, converting joint tenancies into estates in common, applies only to estates of inheritance. Blair v. Osborne, 84 N. C. 417; Powell v. Morisey, 84 N. C. 421.

Same—Estates Less than of Inheritance.—If the purpose had been to include all estates in joint tenancy, that purpose would have been better served by abolishing the "jus accrescendi" in a few direct words to that effect, instead of resorting to words applicable only to estates of inheritance held in joint tenancy in real estate, and absolute estates held in joint tenancy in personalty. Powell v. Allen, 75 N. C. 450, 454.

Creation and Existence—Four Unities.—"When two or more acquire land by purchase, as distinguished from descent, and the four unities exist, to-wit: 'time, title, estate and possession,' they take as joint tenants unless there be an express provision that they shall take as tenants in common, and not as joint tenants. In devises, the rule has been further released by allowing such words, 'to take, share and share alike,' or 'to be equally divided between them,' to have the effect of making the devisees take as tenants in common and not as joint tenants, because of an inference from the use of these words that the devisor so intended. 2 Black Com." Powell v. Allen, 75 N. C. 450, 452.

Same—Verbal Agreement.—A verbal agreement between two parties owning a note, payable to them jointly, that upon the death of either without issue it shall belong to the survivor is valid. Taylor v. Smith, 116 N. C. 531, 21 S. E. 202.

Same—Act of Parties.—"The estate of joint tenancy is purely conventional, i. e., created by act of the parties—and never arises by operation of law." 2 Black 180; Mordecai's Law Lectures, vol. 1, 60; Burton v. Cahill, 192 N. C. 505, 507, 135 S. E. 332.

Same—Gift without Explanatory Words.—A deed to five grandchildren, without the use of any restrictive, exclusive, or explanatory words, conveys an estate for life in joint tenancy. Powell v. Morisey, 84 N. C. 421.

Same—Premises Enlarged by Habendum.—Where in the premises of a deed a life estate is given to a mother alone, and in the habendum the estate is given to her and her children, such deed operates to convey an estate for life to the mother and an estate for life in joint tenancy in remainder to her children. Blair v. Osborne, 84 N. C. 417.

Severance—By Marriage and Act of 1784.—A widow and her two children were joint tenants of a slave. By the marriage of the widow her joint tenancy was severed, as was that between the children, by the act of 1784. (See Rev. Code, ch. 43, § 2, now this section.) And in a suit in trover by one of the children he was allowed to recover only one-third part of the value. Witherington v. Williams, 1 N. C. 89.

Equal Rights to Possession.—Joint tenants of a chattel have equal rights to its possession. Cole v. Terry, 19 N. C. 252; Lucas v. Wasson, 14 N. C. 398.

Same—Division and Sale.—If one joint-owner of a crop sells to the other his share of it to pay a debt, and it is divided in the presence of both, for the purpose of ascertaining the amount to be credited on the debt, there is no trespass in the purchasing partner removing the property, though forbidden by the other. Warbritton v. Savage, 49 N. C. 382.

Same—Same—Title of Purchaser.—If one joint owner of a crop sells to the other his share of it, to pay a debt he owed him, and it is divided in the presence of both, for the purpose of ascertaining the amount to be credited on the debt, the title passes to the purchaser, whether the agreement for the sale was made before or after the division of the crop. Warbritton v. Savage, 49 N. C. 382.

Legatees May Hold as Joint Tenant.—The legatees may still hold by a joint tenancy in North Carolina, though the incident of survivorship was abolished by the Act of 1784, now this section. Vass v. Freeman, 56 N. C. 221, 227.

When Remaindermen Take as Tenants in Common.—A deed of gift, executed by W B to his son J B, "during his natural life only, and then to return to the male children of the said J B, lawfully begotten of his body, for the want of such to return to the male children of my other sons W and B, their proper use, benefit and behoof of him, them and every of them, and to their heirs and assigns forever," vested a life estate in J B, with remainder in fee to his sons as tenants in common under the section. Brown v. Ward, 103 N. C. 173, 9 S. E. 300.

Applied in Powell v. Malone, 22 F. Supp. 300.

II. ESTATES OF HUSBAND AND WIFE.

Conveyance to Husband and Wife.—The section abolishing survivorship, in joint tenancies, does not apply to conveyances to husband and wife. Phillips v. Hodges, 109 N. C. 248, 13 S. E. 769, cited in notes in 30 L. R. A. 328, 329, 1 L. R. A., N. S., 312.

The act of 1784, now this section, abolishing survivorship in joint tenancies does not apply to conveyances to husband and wife, for the reason assigned by Gaston, J., in Motley v. Whitemore, 19 N. C. 537, that "being in law but one person they have each the whole estate as one person; and on the death of either of them the whole estate continues in the survivor." Long v. Barnes, 87 N. C. 329; Phillips v. Hodges, 109 N. C. 248, 250, 13 S. E. 769.

In construing this statute, the Supreme Court held that it had no application to an estate granted to husband and wife, on the ground that it is not an estate in joint tenancy, but an entirety estate. Motley v. Whitemore, 19 N. C. 537; Gray v. Bailey, 117 N. C. 439, 443, 23 S. E. 318.

The right of survivorship applies to estates in land conveyed jointly to husband and wife, and title vests in the heirs of the one surviving the other. Murchison v. Fogleman, 165 N. C. 397, 81 S. E. 627.

Joint Tenancy or Entirety.—Where the husband and wife purchase property, each furnishing a portion of the purchase money, an estate in entirety and not a joint estate is created which they hold per tout et non per my. Ray v. Long, 132 N. C. 891, 44 S. E. 652, cited in note in 9 L. R. A., N. S., 1029.

Same—Creation.—Where, in a conveyance to a husband and wife, it appears that no such estate was intended, but the parties were to take and hold their interests as tenants in common, the intent as expressed in the deed must be allowed to prevail. (Isley v. Sellars, 153 N. C. 374, 69 S. E. 279; Stalcup v. Stalcup, 137 N. C. 305, 49 S. E. 210), * * * and that this intent must be arrived at from a perusal of the entire instrument. Hendricks v. Mocksville Furniture Co., 156 N. C. 569, 72 S. E. 592; Triplett v. Williams, 149 N. C. 394, 63 S. E. 79; Highsmith v. Page, 158 N. C. 226, 229, 73 S. E. 998.

In construing a deed to a husband and wife as a whole, to arrive at its intent, it is held that in a conveyance of land to them, "each a one-half interest," creates a tenancy in common, and the right of survivorship does not apply; and when the wife is dead, the husband remarries and then dies, leaving a widow, the widow is only entitled to dower in the undivided one-half interest in the lands. Eason v. Eason, 159 N. C. 439, 75 S. E. 797.

Same—Not Abolished.—It has been held in several well considered decisions of the Supreme Court that our constitution and the later statutes relative to the property and rights of married women have not thus far destroyed or altered the nature of this estate by entireties, a conveyance to a husband and wife. Jones v. Smith & Co., 149 N. C. 318, 62 S. E. 1092; West v. Railroad, 140 N. C. 620, 53 S. E. 477; Bynum v. Wicker, 141 N. C. 95, 53 S. E. 478; Bruce v. Nicholson, 109 N. C. 202, 13 S. E. 790; Ray v. Long, 132 N. C. 891, 44 S. E. 652; McKinnon, etc., Co. v. Caulk, 167 N. C. 411, 412, 83 S. E. 559.

This estate by entirety is an anomaly, and it is perhaps an oversight that the legislature has not changed it into a cotenancy, as has been done in so many states. This not having been done, it still possesses here the same properties and incidents as at common law. Long v. Barnes, 87 N. C. 329; West v. Railroad, 140 N. C. 620, 53 S. E. 477; Bynum v. Wicker, 141 N. C. 95, 96, 53 S. E. 478.

The estate by entireties was not created, either in England or in this State, by any statute, and it has been contended that it was abolished by our statute in 1784, now this section, converting all joint estates into tenancy in common, and still more so by the constitutional change (Article X, sec. 6), conferring upon a married woman the same rights in her property "as if she had remained single." By reason of similar statutes, or statutes especially repealing the estate by entireties, that anomalous estate has disappeared in all but a very few states in this country, and in them, as above said, there is no case to be found which does not hold that upon a joint judgment against husband and wife the estate by entirety can be sold. Martin v. Lewis, 187 N. C. 473, 476, 122 S. E. 180.

Incidents of Estate by Entireties.—"Where land is conveyed to 'husband and wife jointly, they will take and hold an estate by entireties, and that, on the death of one, the whole belongs to the survivor.'" Morton v. Blades Lumber Co., 154 N. C. 278, 70 S. E. 467; Hood v. Mercer, 150 N. C. 699, 64 S. E. 897; Jones v. Smith & Co., 149 N. C. 318, 62 S. E. 1092; West v. Railroad, 140 N. C. 620, 53 S. E. 477. Highsmith v. Page, 158 N. C. 226, 228, 73 S. E. 998.

Where a conveyance of land is made to husband and wife, they do not take interests, either as joint tenants or tenants in common, but they take estates in fee by entireties, and not by moieties. The husband can not, by his own conveyance, divest the wife's estate, and, on her surviving him. she is entitled to the whole estate. Needham v. Branson, 27 N. C. 426.

A conveyance to a husband and wife, as such, creates an estate of entirety, and does not make them joint tenants or tenants in common. Neither can alien without the consent of the other, and the survivor takes the whole. Needham v. Branson, 27 N. C. 426; Todd v. Zachary, 45 N. C. 286, cited in note to 30 L. R. A. 324; Woodford v. Highly, 60 N. C. 234; Long v. Barnes, 87 N. C. 329.

III. JOINT TENANCY IN PARTNERSHIP PROPERTY.

Joint Tenancy of Partnership in Land.—This section provides that land jointly purchased for partnership purposes shall, upon the death of one partner, survive the others for the purpose of paying the partnership debts. And when the partnership debts are satisfied, if there is any remainder, such share as would have fallen to the deceased partner, shall be delivered over to the heirs, executors, administrators or assigns; and real estate held and sued for partnership purposes is subject to partnership debts, to the exclusion of the heir or widow of the deceased. Stroud v. Stroud, 61 N. C. 525, 526.

Upon Settlement Descends as Real Estate.—Where land is purchased in fee by partnership funds and for partnership purposes, and one partner dies, upon the settlement of the partnership debts his share of the land descends to his heir as real estate. Summey v. Patton, 60 N. C. 601.

When lands are purchased by a partnership with partnership funds, upon the death of one of the partners, in the absence of any agreement in the articles of partnership to the contrary, his share therein descends to his heir at law as real estate, if the personal property of the partnership is sufficient to pay all the partnership debts and demands. Sherrod v. Mayo, 156 N. C. 144, 72 S. E. 216.

Same—Immaterial Whether Claim Is by Deed or Inheritance.—When the rule applies that lands purchased by partnership funds descend to the heir at law, it is immaterial whether the heir of the deceased partner claims his interest by deed from him or by inheritance. Sherrod v. Mayo, 156 N. C. 144, 72 S. E. 216.

Same—Heir Claiming by Deed.—The heir at law to whom a deceased partner had conveyed by deed his share of lands purchased with partnership funds is entitled to the lands against the rights of the surviving partner, in an action by the latter for possession for the purpose of winding up the partnership affairs, when it appears that the partnership personalty is sufficient for the purpose of paying the partnership debts and satisfying any claim the surviving partner may have, and there is no provision in the articles of the partnership agreement of a contrary purpose. Sherrod v. Mayo, 156 N. C. 144, 72 S. E. 216.

IV. ACTIONS BY, AGAINST, AND BETWEEN JOINT TENANTS.

Actions by and against Joint Tenants.—It seems to be well settled that joint tenants must sue jointly, differing in that respect from tenants in common. Mr. Freeman says: "Whenever the title of the cotenants, as in the case of joint tenancy and coparcenary, is joint, the action must also be joint, and whenever, as in tenancy in common, such tenant is deemed to possess a separate and distinct estate, the remedy of each must be separately and distinctly pursued. Joint tenants being seized per my et per tout and deriving but one and the same title, must jointly interplead and be interpleaded. If twenty joint tenants be, and they be disseized, they shall have, in all their names, but one assize, because they have but one joint title." Cotenancy, 329. To the same effect is Sedgwick and Wait Trials, etc., sec. 302. Cameron v. Hicks, 141 N. C. 21, 34, 53 S. E. 728.

"It was at one time held in this State that two tenants in common could not join in one demise, because there was no unity of title—one might recover and the other fail. It was afterwards held, for the reason set out by Ruffin, J., in Hoyle v. Stowe, 13 N. C. 318, that they could join in one demise. He says: 'It is the universal rule that the title must be truly stated in the declaration. A joint demise, therefore, can only be supported by showing a title in each to demise the whole. If one of the lessors has no title, the plaintiff must fail.' He says that this is 'common learning.' An examination of the opinion shows the ground upon which tenants in common are permitted to make a joint demise and recover in respect to their interests. Allred v. Smith, 135 N. C. 443, 47 S. E. 597. The difference is in this: Joint tenants must join in one demise because of the essential unities; tenants in common may join, or, if they prefer, may sue separately, because there is no unity of title. It would seem to follow that joint tenants must recover in respect to their title, and if they fail in that, they cannot recover at all." Cameron v. Hicks, 141 N. C. 21, 35, 53 S. E. 728.

Actions between Joint Tenants—Trover.—The exclusive possession of a chattel by one joint tenant will not entitle the other to maintain trover against him for it. Cole v. Terry, 19 N. C. 252.

A person claiming under a joint tenancy, which was severed, can recover only his proper proportion. Witherington v. Williams, 1 N. C. 89.

§ 41-3. Survivorship among trustees. — In all cases where only a naked trust not coupled with a beneficial interest has been created or exists, or shall be created, and the conveyance is to two or more trustees, the right to perform the trust and make estates under the same shall be exercised by any one of such trustees, in the event of the death of his cotrustee or cotrustees or the refusal or inability of the cotrustee or cotrustees to perform the trust; and in cases of trusts herein named the trustees shall hold as joint tenants, and in all respects as joint tenants held before the year one thousand seven hundred and eighty-four. (Rev., s. 1580; 1885, c. 327, s. 1; C. S. 1736.)

Cross References.—As to survivorship among trustees with power of sale, see § 45-8. As to limitation on actions by cotenants of personal property, see § 1-29.

The trustees of a trust estate hold as joint tenants, and not as tenants in common. Cameron v. Hicks, 141 N. C. 21, 53 S. E. 728; Webb v. Borden, 145 N. C. 188, 58 S. E. 1083.

Loss of Right to Trustee Is Loss to Cestui Que Trust.—When the right of entry is barred and the right of action lost by the trustee, through an adverse occupation, the cestui que trust is also concluded from asserting claim to the land. Cameron v. Hicks, 141 N. C. 21, 53 S. E. 728.

Cotrustee Barred.—When a trustee is barred the cotrustees are likewise barred. Cameron v. Hicks, 141 N. C. 21, 53 S. E. 728.

§ 41-4. Limitations on failure of issue.—Every contingent limitation in any deed or will, made to depend upon the dying of any person without heir or heirs of the body, or without issue or issues of the body, or without children, or offspring, or descendant, or other relative, shall be held and interpreted a limitation to take effect when such person dies not having such heir, or issue, or child, or offspring, or descendant, or other relative (as the case may be) living at the time of his death, or born to him within ten lunar months thereafter, unless the intention of such limitation be otherwise, and expressly and plainly declared in the face of the deed or will creating it: Provided, that the rule of construction contained in this section shall not extend to any deed or will made and executed before the fifteenth of January, one thousand eight hundred and twenty-eight. (Rev., s. 1581; Code, s. 1327; R. C., c. 43, s. 3; 1827, c. 7; C. S. 1737.)

Purpose.—This section was enacted for the primary purpose of making contingent limitations good by fixing a definite time when the estate of the first taker shall become absolute, and also to establish a rule of interpretation by which the estate of the first taker shall be affected with the contingency till the time of his death unless a contrary intent appears on the face of the instrument. Kirkman v. Smith, 174 N. C. 603, 94 S. E. 423; Harrell v. Hagan, 147 N. C. 111, 60 S. E. 909; Sain v. Baker, 128 N. C. 256, 138 S. E. 858; Bell v. Kessler, 175 N. C. 525, 528, 95 S. E. 881.

Provision Is Obligatory.—The rule laid down by the statute is obligatory on the courts and must be observed in all cases except, as provided by the statute, when a contrary intent is "expressly and plainly declared in the face of the deed or will." Patterson v. McCormick, 177 N. C. 448, 452, 99 S. E. 401.

Does Not Interfere with Rule in Shelley's Case.—The section does not interfere with the application of the principle laid down in Shelley's Case in determining the nature and extent of the precedent estate. This is declared in Sanderlin v. Deford, 47 N. C. 75, in construing a will executed in 1838. King v. Utley, 85 N. C. 59, 61. See under analysis line II, "Rule in Shelley's Case": section 41-1.

Provisions of Section Prevail over Rule of Stare Decisis.—A vested interest in lands cannot be established under the doctrine of stare decisis in direct conflict with the expressions of a statutory change of the rule to the contrary, nor where the decisions relied upon are upon a construction of a written instrument made or executed before the statutory enactment and excepted by it from its provisions, and the subsequent decisions of affirmance of the old rule of construction are either conflicting among themselves or upon prior executed instruments excepted by the statute, or without express reference thereto; and this section, changing the rule of construction as to the vesting of an interest contingent upon a death with issue, cannot be affected by the rule laid down in Hilliard v. Kearney, 45 N. C. 221, and subsequent decisions on the subject. Patterson v. McCormick, 177 N. C. 448, 99 S. E. 401.

Common Law Rule Superseded.—Where there was a devise of lands for life, then to J. and C. equally, and in case "they or either of them die without issue," then to the heirs of certain others and the survivor of J. and C. equally, it was held, the common-law doctrine that a limitation contingent upon death and an indefinite failure of issue is void for remoteness, gives place to the new rule of construction enacted by our statute, Rev., sec. 1581, now this section, made applicable since 15 January, 1828, without restriction as to immediate estates, and a contrary intent, not expressly and plainly declared in the face of the instrument, presently construed, the death without issue refers to the death of J. and C.; and it appearing that J. died without issue after the death of the first taker, and C. survives, with issue, the absolute fee-simple title to the lands is in C. and the other ulterior remaindermen, and their deed, otherwise sufficient, is valid. Patterson v. McCormick, 177 N. C. 448, 99 S. E. 401.

Rule in Hilliard v. Kearney.—Under the rule at common law a limitation contingent upon death without issue was void for remoteness because it referred to an indefinite failure of issue; and in order to give effect to the testator's intention the courts began to look for some intermediate time, such as the termination of the life estate, or some other designated period, and held that the phrase "dying without issue" was to be referred to this intermediate period. Hilliard v. Kearney, 45 N. C. 221; American Yarn, etc., Co. v. Dewstoe, 192 N. C. 121, 124, 133 S. E. 407.

Same—Changed.—This principle was entirely changed by the act of 1827, which is now this section. American Yarn, etc., Co. v. Dewstoe, 192 N. C. 121, 124, 133 S. E. 407.

In the following cases the court had under consideration the construction of a limitation in a will executed since 15 January, 1828, and which therefore came under the act of 1827, now this section; in each of these cases the court expressly referred to the Act of 1827 and construed the limitation in accordance with the plain words of that act and not according to the rule stated in Hilliard v. Kearney, 45 N. C. 221: Clapp v. Fogleman, 21 N. C. 467; Tillman v. Sinclair, 23 N. C. 183; Moore v. Barrow, 24 N. C. 436; Garland v. Watt, 26 N. C. 287; Jones v. Oliver, 38 N. C. 369, 370; Weeks v. Weeks, 40 N. C. 111, 115; Spruill v. Moore, 40 N. C. 284; Holton v. McAllister, 51 N. C. 12. Patterson v. McCormick, 177 N. C. 448, 453, 99 S. E. 401.

To those cases cited in Patterson v. McCormick may be added Love v. Love, 179 N. C. 115, 101 S. E. 562; Willis v. Mutual Loan, etc., Co., 183 N. C. 267, 111 S. E. 163; Vinson v. Gardner, 185 N. C. 193, 116 S. E. 412; Alexander v. Fleming, 190 N. C. 815, 130 S. E. 867; American Yarn, etc., Co. v. Dewstoe, 192 N. C. 121, 125, 133 S. E. 407.

Dying without Heirs Or Issue Construed.—The section has been construed by the Supreme Court at least twenty-six times, and in every case in which it has come before the court for construction it has uniformly been held that "Dying without heirs or issue," upon which a limitation over takes effect, is referable to the death of the first taker of the fee without issue living at the time of his death, and not to the death of any other person or to any intermediate period. See Patterson v. McCormick, 177 N. C. 448, 455, 99 S. E. 401, which lists the twenty-six decisions supporting the same holding.

As was said by Mr. Justice Hoke in Harrell v. Hagan, 147 N. C. 111, 113, 60 S. E. 909, 125 Am. St. Rep. 539, "the event by which the interest of each is to be determined must be referred, not to the death of the devisor, but to that of the several takers of the estate in remainder, respectively, without leaving a lawful heir." Williams v. Lewis, 100 N. C. 142, 5 S. E. 435.

Where a contingent limitation over is made to depend upon the death of the first taker without children or issue, the limitation takes effect when the first taker dies without issue or children living at the time of his death. Williamson v. Cox, 218 N. C. 177, 10 S. E. (2d) 662.

Same—Dependent upon Death of Donee without Issue.—A contingent remainder dependent upon the death of a certain donee without issue means, under the terms of this section without issue living at the time of death. Lee v. Oates, 171 N. C. 717, 88 S. E. 889.

Devise to One for Life with Limitation over.—As a general rule where a devise is made to one for life and after his death to the testator's next of kin, the next of kin who are to take are the persons who answer that description at the death of the testator and not those who answer the description at the death of the first taker. Jenkins v. Lambeth, 172 N. C. 466, 90 S. E. 513; Goode v. Hearne, 180 N. C. 475, 105 S. E. 5; Witty v. Witty, 184 N. C. 375, 114 S. E. 482; Dupree v. Daughtridge, 188 N. C. 193, 124 S. E. 148. It is otherwise, however, where it appears from the terms of the will that some intervening time is indicated. Citizens Bank v. Murray, 175 N. C. 62, 94 S. E. 665; American Yarn, etc., Co. v. Dewstoe, 192 N. C. 121, 124, 133 S. E. 407.

"Ordinarily a devise to the survivors of a class will take effect at the testator's death, but not if a particular estate is created and the remainder is given to those who survive the life tenant. Mercer v. Downs, 191 N. C. 203, 131 S. E. 575." American Yarn, etc., Co. v. Dewstoe, 192 N. C. 121, 124, 133 S. E. 407.

Intervening Life Estate.—The more recent cases where there were intervening life estates, in which the Supreme Court has held that the statute applies, are as follows: Cowand v. Meyers, 99 N. C. 198, 199, 6 S. E. 82; Dunning v. Burden, 114 N. C. 33, 34, 18 S. E. 969; Kornegay v. Morris, 122 N. C. 199, 29 S. E. 875; Harrell v. Hagan, 147 N. C. 111, 60 S. E. 909; Dawson v. Ennett, 151 N. C. 543, 544, 66 S. E. 566; Perrett v. Bird, 152 N. C. 220, 67 S. E. 507; Elkins v. Seigler, 154 N. C. 374, 70 S. E. 636; Hobgood v. Hobgood, 169 N. C. 485, 486, 86 S. E. 189; Vinson v. Wise, 159 N. C. 653, 75 S. E. 732; Whichard v. Craft, 175 N. C. 128, 95 S. E. 94; Kirkman v. Smith, 175 N. C. 579, 96 S. E. 51. The case of Vinson v. Wise construed the will of the late Chief Justice Smith, in which there were two intervening life estates, notwithstanding which the court held that:

"Under numerous decisions of the Court in a devise of this character, and unless a contrary intent appears from the will, the event by which the estate must be determined will be referred not to the death of the devisor, but the holder of the particular estate itself, and the determinable quality of such an estate, or interest, will continue to affect it till 'the event occurs by which same is to be determined, or the estate becomes absolute.'" Patterson v. McCormick, 177 N. C. 448, 456, 99 S. E. 401.

Rule When Ambiguity in Will.—Where there is ambiguity in a will as to whether the vesting of an estate devised for life with contigent limitation over, shall be at the death of the testatrix or that of the first taker, under the principle that the law favors the early vesting of estates, the former will be taken; and where it clearly appears from the terms of the will and surrounding circumstances that was the intent of the testatrix, it will not be affected by the section, by which a contingent limitation depending upon the dying of a person without heir, etc., is to vest at the death of such person. Westfeldt v. Reynolds, 191 N. C. 802, 133 S. E. 168.

Doctrine of Shifting Uses and Executory Devises.—The section is a rule of construction upholding the second and contingent estate upon the death of the first taker without heirs, etc., and does not change the application of the doctrine of shifting uses and executory devises in determining the nature and extent of the precedent estate. Sessoms v. Sessoms, 144 N. C. 121, 56 S. E. 687.

Same—Estate Created Direct to Second Taker.—When by the operation of the statute a fee tail is converted into a fee simple, with a limitation of a fee upon the death of the first taker without heirs, a separate estate is created direct from the testator to the second taker upon the happening of the contingency, under the doctrine of shifting uses and by way of executory devise, and is not a qualification of the estate of the first taker, or too remote since the enactment of the section. Sessoms v. Sessoms, 144 N. C. 121, 56 S. E. 687.

"Children" Does Not Extend to Grandchildren.—A devise to the "wife and children" of the testator will not include therein his grandchildren, unless the contrary intent is shown by necessary implication from the terms or expressions used in the will. Thompson v. Batts, 168 N. C. 530, 84 S. E. 858.

A Base and Unqualified Fee.—O. devised his lands to certain of his children S., D., and J. By item 3 of the will a certain tract was devised to D. and "the lawful heirs of his body lawfully begotten"; by item 9 it was provided that in case of death of either of the children, his portion should revert to the surviving one, with further contingent limitations. It was held, that these items should be construed together, and that the estate devised to D. was not in fee simple, but a base and qualified fee, defeasible on the death of D. without leaving living lineal descendants. Perrett v. Bird, 152 N. C. 220, 67 S. E. 507.

Illustrative Cases.—An estate to M. and her bodily heirs is converted into a fee simple under our statute, § 41-1, without further limitation, but followed by the words "if no heirs, said lands shall go back to my estate," the estate will go over to the heirs of the grantor at the death of M., upon the nonhappening of the event as a shifting use under the statute of uses, 27 Henry VIII, ch. 10; § 41-7, whereunder a fee may be limited after a fee, by deed, and under the provisions of this section that every contingent limitation in a deed or will made to depend upon the dying of any person without heir or heirs of the body, or issue, shall be held to be a limitation to take effect when such person dies not having such heir, or issue, or child living at the time of his death. Willis v. Mutual Loan, etc., Co., 183 N. C. 267, 111 S. E. 163.

When a testator devises land to his son with a limitation over to his daughters, provided the son dies without heirs, the son dying without children, cannot by will give his wife a life estate with the remainder to a third party. Sain v. Baker, 128 N. C. 256, 38 S. E. 858.

A devise of lands to B. in fee, "provided he has a child or children; but if he has no child, then to him for life," with limitation over to the testator's heirs at law, carries to the devisee a fee-simple estate, defeasible upon his death without having had a child, the contingent event by which the estate is determined referring to the death of the devisee and holder of the prior estate unless a contrary intent clearly appears from the will itself; and upon his death and nonhappening of the contingency named, the inheritance passes directly from the testator to the ultimate devisees. Burden v. Lipsitz, 166 N. C. 523, 82 S. E. 863.

A devise of land to L. with limitation that if she "shall die leaving issue surviving her, then to such issue and their heirs forever," but if she "die without issue surviving her, then the property to return to my eldest daughter," the vesting of the estate in remainder depends upon the contingency of the death of L. without leaving "issue" surviving her, and not upon the death of the testatrix. Rees v. Williams, 164 N. C. 128, 80 S. E. 247.

On devise of an estate to M. for life, then to G. and K., and if they should die without bodily heirs, then over, the creation and existence of the life estate, without more, does not, of itself, affect the statutory rule of construction as to estates in remainder, and the contingency affecting such estates will continue to affect the same till the death of the first takers in remainder. Kirkman v. Smith, 175 N. C. 579, 96 S. E. 51.

Same.—Where an estate is granted to M., and the heirs of her body in the premises, with warranty to her and the heirs of her body, it was held, that the intent of the grantor by proper construction was to limit over the estate to M. in case she should die without issue or bodily heirs. Willis v. Mutual Loan, etc., Co., 183 N. C. 267, 111 S. E. 163.

Same.—An estate to testator's daughter N. for life, and to the lawful heirs of her body, creates an estate tail converted by our statute into a fee simple; and a further limitation "and if she should die leaving no heirs, then the lands to return to the G. family," gives N. a fee defeasible upon her death without issue, children, etc., under this section and on her death, leaving children surviving, they take an unconditional fee, and can make an absolute conveyance thereof. Vinson v. Gardner, 185 N. C. 193, 116 S. E. 412.

Where father devised the land in question to plaintiff "to be hers and to her heirs, if any, and if no heirs, to be equally divided with my other children," and at the time plaintiff executed deed to defendant, which was refused by him, plaintiff was married, but had been abandoned by her husband, and had no children, it was held that the plaintiff's deed did not convey the indefeasible fee to the land free and clear of the claims of all persons, whether the limitation over be regarded as a limitation over on failure of issue, or as not coming within the rule in Shelley's case. Hudson v. Hudson, 208 N. C. 338, 180 S. E. 597.

Cases Where Wills Executed before 1828.—In the following cases the wills were executed before 15 January, 1828, but the Court, in delivering the opinions, adverts to the Act of 1827, and states that the law since the will was executed had been materially changed and that the construction of the limitation would be different under the act. Rice v. Satterwhite, 21 N. C. 69, opinion by Gaston, J.; Brown v. Brown, 25 N. C. 131, opinion by Ruffin, C. J.; Gibson v. Gibson, 49 N. C. 425, opinion by Battle, J. This last case was decided in 1857. Patterson v. McCormick, 177 N. C. 448, 453, 99 S. E. 401.

§ 41-5. Unborn infant may take by deed or writing.—An infant unborn, but in esse, shall be deemed a person capable of taking by deed or other writing any estate whatever in the same manner as if he were born. (Rev., s. 1582; Code, s. 1328; R. C., c. 43, s. 4; C. S. 1738.)

When Applicable.—In 13 Cyc., page 663, it is declared: "Where property is conveyed to a certain person and his children it has been determined that no title will pass to after-born children. But where a deed creates an estate for life with remainder over to the children, the remainder will vest in children already born, subject to be opened at the birth of each succeeding child." See, also, Adams v. Ross, 30 N. J. L. 505; Coursey v. Davis, 46 Pa. St. 25, to the same effect. Quoted with approval in Powell v. Powell, 168 N. C. 561, 563, 84 S. E. 860.

Under a deed to a woman "and her children" a child en ventre sa mere at the date of the conveyance will take, but children born more than a year thereafter will not. Heath v. Heath, 114 N. C. 547, 19 S. E. 155.

Remainder after Freehold Conveyed — Children Not in Esse. — Where there is a deed to lands to an unmarried grantee for life, with remainder to his children, not then in esse, the first taker holds the legal title until the birth of children after his marriage, at which time such estate becomes vested, such remainder being contingent until the birth of a child during the existence of the freehold estate, and then vests in such child or children who would then take and hold the interest. Johnson Bros. v. Lee, 187 N. C. 753, 122 S. E. 839.

Takes as Tenant in Common.—By virtue of this section a child if en ventre sa mere at the time the deed is executed takes as tenant in common with the living children. Campbell v. Everhart, 139 N. C. 503, 52 S. E. 201, 202.

Grant Directly to Children of Living Person.—A grant of land directly to the children of a living person conveys the title only to those who are alive at the time of the execution of the deed, including a child then en ventre sa mere. Powell v. Powell, 168 N. C. 561, 84 S. E. 860.

Life Estate to Parent with Limitation Over.—Where there is a reservation of a life estate in the parent or another, with limitation over to the children and all the children who are alive at the termination of the first estate, whether born before or after the execution of the deed, take thereunder. Powell v. Powell, 168 N. C. 561, 84 S. E. 860.

§ 41-6. "Heirs" construed "children" in certain limitations.—A limitation by deed, will, or other writing, to the heirs of a living person, shall be construed to be to the children of such person, unless a contrary intention appear by the deed or will. (Rev., s. 1583; Code, s. 1329; R. C., c. 43, s. 5; C. S. 1739.)

Editor's Note.—In many of the cases dealing with estates the rule in Shelley's Case is referred to and the question is raised as to whether or not the rule is abrogated by this section, and answered in the negative in the splendid opinion of Shepherd, C. J., in Starnes v. Hill, 112 N. C. 1, 16 S. E. 1011. For the purpose of showing the relation of the rule to this section, it will be fitting to give a brief resume of the rule.

The rule takes its name from an early case decided in the reign of Queen Elizabeth (Shelley's Case, 1 Rep. 94), though even at that time the principle it enunciated was looked upon as an ancient dogma of the common law. Indeed Justice Blackstone traced it to a case decided in the reign of Edward II. However, be that as it may, what is probably the earliest intelligible decision on the subject is the case of the Provost of Beverly, in the time of Edward III., and reported in the Year Books. Numerous theories have been suggested as furnishing a reason for the rule in the first instance, some respectable authorities with a show of much plausability tracing it to the same principle which applied originally to "heirs" when used in a conveyance. "It was at first understood that, in case of such a limitation, the estate was in fact to go to the heirs of the grantee named; that though he had a right to enjoy it during life, he had no right to cut off the descent by alienation, and that when, therefore, the word heirs in the progress of estates came to be regarded as a mere term of limitation, giving the grantee a complete ownership with an unrestricted right of alienation, it was not easy to distinguish between a case where the limitation was to one and his heirs, and that where it was to him for life, and after his death to his heirs, the effect at common law being the same in both forms of limitation." 2 Wash. Real Prop., 647; Williams Real Prop., 254.

Nor does it seem that this result worked any particular hardship to the heir, as in those days ready money was extremely scarce and the alienation of lands assumed the form of perpetual lease, granted in consideration of certain services or rents reserved to the grantor and his heirs, and, as such services or rents descended to the heir, it was not so great a disadvantage to him as at first might be supposed. Williams Real Prop., 39.

It is not to be doubted that this construction was aided and greatly strengthened by other considerations such as the prevention of frauds upon feudal lords and specially creditors (2 Fearne, ch. 12, sec. 3), the prevention of the inheritance from being, as was supposed, in abeyance (Justice Blackstone's argument in Perrin v. Blake, 1 Ex. Chamber, 4 Burr., 2,579), and to preserve the marked distinction between title by descent and purchase. Hargrave Law Tracts. "But whatever may have been the grounds of the rule in its origin, another reason subsequently existed as an inducement to the preservation of the rule from legislative abolition and judicial discouragements, after the feudal reason had ceased with the feudal system itself, and that subsequent reason is the desire to faciliate alienation by vesting the inheritance in the ancestor, instead of allowing it to remain in abeyance until his decease." 2 Fearne, sec. 421.

In Perrin v. Blake, 1 Ex. Chamber, 4 Burr., 2,579, Justice Blackstone said: "Another foundation of the rule probably was laid in a principle diametrically opposite to the genius of feudal institutions, namely, a desire to facilitate the alienation of land, and to show it into the track of commerce one generation sooner by vesting the inheritance in the ancestor." See, also, Rawle's Note, Williams Real Prop., 253.

In Polk v. Faris, 30 Am. Dec., 400, Reese, J., in a very able opinion in vindication of the rule, uses this language: "It is a rule or canon of property, which, so far from being at war with the genius of our institutions or with the liberal and commercial spirit of the age, which alike abhor the locking up and rendering inalienable real estate and other property, seems to be in perfect harmony with both. It is owing, perhaps, to this circumstance that the rule, a gothic column, found among the remains of feudality, has been preserved in all its strength to aid in sustaining the fabric of the modern social system." In Hillman v. Bauslaugh, 53 Am. Dec. 474, the distinguished Chief Justice Gibson says: "Though of feudal origin, it is not a relic of barbarism, or a part of the rubbish of the dark ages. * * * It has other than feudal objects, to wit, the unfettering of estates, by vesting the inheritance in the ancestor and making it alienable a generation sooner than it otherwise would be."

That this result accords most thoroughly with the general tendency of judicial evolution is apparent from the progress of the law and the gradual falling away of entails and other restraints on alienation from the times of Henry I to the present. It seems clear that in a highly complex state of society, with greatly diversified industries and immense commercial activities, it would be desirable to remove every clog on the free and easy alienability of all kinds of property, and that such has been the spirit of the legislation in this State is manifest from a perusal of the various statutes enacted upon the subject. Starnes v. Hill, 112 N. C. 1, 2, 15, 16 S. E. 1011.

The existence of this ancient rule has for many years been unquestionably recognized in the courts of this State as one of the "ligaments of property," the only doubt upon the subject having been suggested by dicta in a few cases. This section seems clearly not to abolish the rule. It would seem to be the opinion of many of the ablest law writers that the said rule is not abolished. Thus Mr. Washburn, in the fourth edition of his work on Real Property (Vol. 2, 607), undertakes to give a list of the states with reference to the acts which have abolished the rule, and he does not include North Carolina, although he was familiar with our act, as is shown by a reference to section 3, chapter 43, of the Revised Code. The same observation applies to Mr. Rawle, the learned editor of Williams on Real Property. He also gives a list of the states which have abolished the rule, without including North Carolina. The same may be said of Mr. Freeman, the very able and discriminating editor of the American Decisions, in a note to 30 Am. Dec., 415, and also of the editors of Jarman on Wills and Lawson R. & R.

It seems that the main object of the section is to convert a contingent into a vested remainder under certain circumstances. It seems also to have been the purpose of the act to sustain a direct conveyance to the heirs of a living person. As there can be no heirs during the life of the ancestor, such a conveyance at common law would have been void unless there was something in the deed which indicated "that by 'the heirs' was meant the children of the person named." 3 Washburn Real Prop., 282. The act in question provides that in such a case the word "heirs" shall be construed to mean "children" and the limitation therefore would be good. By this construction of the section it does not affect the rule in Shelley's case. Starnes v. Hill, 112 N. C. 1, 2, 23, 16 S. E. 1011; Hartman v. Flynn, 189 N. C. 452, 127 S. E. 517.

For further discussion of the rule, see the Editor's note to sec. 41-1.

Common-Law Rule Changed.—While as a general common-law rule, subject to some exceptions, a conveyance of an estate for life in lands to another, with remainder to the heirs of the grantor, could not divest the grantor of the fee, under the rule that nemo est haeres viventis, this does not prevail under the provisions of this section. Thompson v. Batts, 168 N. C. 333, 84 S. E. 347.

Same—Construed to Be Limitation.—A deed to "the heirs" of John A. Barrett, he being still alive, although void at common law, is good under the section, and is construed to be a limitation to the children of John A. Barrett, and includes after-born children. Graves v. Barrett, 126 N. C. 267, 35 S. E. 539.

Limitation Explained.—The word limitation has two-fold meaning. To quote the language of Mr. Fearne: "Great confusion has frequently arisen from not observing that the word limitation is used in two different senses; the one of which may, for the sake of convenience of distinction, be termed the original sense; namely, that of a member of a sentence, expressing the limits or bounds to the quantity of an estate; and the other, the derivative sense; namely, that of an entire sentence, creating and actually or constructively marking out the quantity of an estate." 2 Fearne on Remainders (4 Am. Ed.), sec. 24, marg. page 10. In our statute, the word is manifestly used in its derivative or secondary sense, which is made very clear to us by the learned, able and elaborate opinion of Chief Justice Shepherd in the leading case of Starnes v. Hill, 112 N. C. 1, 16 S. E. 1011; Campbell v. Everhart, 139 N. C. 503, 510, 52 S. E. 201.

This section would not apply when the limitation is to a living person and his heirs. Whitley v. Arenson, 219 N. C. 121, 12 S. E. (2d) 906.

Same—Applies Only When No Precedent Estate.—The Code of 1883, sec. 1329, now this section, providing that a limitation to the heirs of a living person shall be construed to be the children of such person, applies only when there is no precedent estate conveyed to said living person. Jones v. Ragsdale, 141 N. C. 200, 53 S. E. 842; Whitley v. Arenson, 219 N. C. 121, 12 S. E. (2d) 906.

If it were not true that the section applies only when there is no precedent estate conveyed to said living person, it would not only repeal the rule in Shelley's case, but would pervert every conveyance to "A and his heirs" into something entirely different from what those words have always been understood to mean. Marsh v. Griffin, 136 N. C. 333, 334, 48 S. E. 735.

This section applies only when there is "no precedent estate conveyed to said living person," nor is this section applicable "where there is a conveyance to a living person, with a limitation to his heirs." Bank of Pilot Mountain v. Snow, 221 N. C. 14, 16, 18 S. E. (2d) 711.

When Not Applicable—Intent.—Where a devise of lands is limited over should the first taker die without heirs, evidencing that the intent of the testator made the contingency to depend upon his dying without issue, this section has no application. Massengill v. Abell, 192 N. C. 240, 134 S. E. 641.

A devise to the "heirs" of a person will be construed to be his "children" in the absence of a contrary intention expressed in the instrument. Moseley v. Knott, 212 N. C. 651, 194 S. E. 100.

Conveyance Directly to Heirs of Living Person.—By virtue of the section a deed conveying land directly to the "heirs" of a living person, passes whatever title the grantor had to the children of such person. Campbell v. Everhart, 139 N. C. 503, 52 S. E. 201.

Limitation to Heirs of Living Person.—A limitation to the heirs of a living person, if no contrary intention appear in the deed or will, will be construed to be to the children of such person. Massengill v. Abell, 192 N. C. 240, 242, 134 S. E. 641.

An estate granted to D. for life and then to the heirs of S., who was then alive, is operative as to the conveyance of the remainder under Revisal, sec. 1583, now this section, which construes the word "heirs" to mean children, in such instances. Condor v. Secrest, 149 N. C. 201, 62 S. E. 921.

Lawfully Begotten Heirs of the Body.—In Lockman v. Hobbs, 98 N. C. 541, 544, 4 S. E. 627, it was held "that the lawfully begotten heirs of her body" in a will referred most obviously to the children of the devisee for life, of whom there were only two, and was construed to mean "the children of such person" since contrary intention did not appear from the will.

Bodily Heirs.—"The words 'bodily heirs' have the same meaning as 'heirs of the body,' and are words of limitation and not words of purchase." Marsh v. Griffin, 136 N. C. 333, 335, 48 S. E. 735.

Child Born during Life of Life Tenant.—A devise of lands to the widow of the testator for life, then to the heirs of his son J., and it appears that the son was living at the time and had living children at the death of the testator and one born thereafter, during the continuance of the life estate; it was held that the devise, being to the heirs of a living person, conveyed such interest to the children of the person designated, and being, in terms, to a class, it will include all who are members of the class and fill the description at the time the particular estate terminated, and therefore the child born after the death of the testator, but during the lifetime of the tenant for life, takes his share with the other children of J. Cooley v. Lee, 170 N. C. 18, 86 S. E. 720.

Devise to One with Conditional Limitation over.—Where a testator devises land to his son with a limitation over to his daughters, provided the son dies without heirs. the word "heirs" is construed to mean "children." Sain v Baker, 128 N. C. 256, 38 S. E. 858.

A conveyance of land in contemplation of marriage, to M., "to descend to the heirs of the body of the said M. in fee simple, the issue of such marriage, and on failure of issue to revert to the heirs of" the grantor, the "reverter" to his heirs, under the section meant to his children after the death of his wife and the nonhappening of the stated contingency. Thompson v. Batts, 168 N. C. 333, 84 S. E. 347.

Limitation to Heirs of One with Conditional Limitation over.—Where an estate was devised to A "and the heirs of his body, but if he die without heirs living at the time of his death, then to the heirs of B," "heirs" was construed to mean children. Smith v. Brisson, 90 N. C. 284.

Devise to "Heirs of His Children."—By his will, the testator devised the vacant lot to the trustees for twenty years from the date of his death, and at the expiration of such term to the "heirs of his children, to be equally divided between them, per stirpes." The testator left surviving two children, a son and a daughter, both of whom had children living at the date of testator's death. The son and daughter are now living. Under this section the word "heirs," used in item 11 of the will, must be construed to mean "children." Lide v. Wells, 190 N. C. 37, 128 S. E. 477, 480.

Application.—Where a testator, by separate devises, gives to each of his three daughters, who are his only heirs at law, a certain tract of his land, with provision in each item, "to her and the lawful heirs of her body in fee simple forever, and if she should die without a lawful heir of her body, then the property to go to the other surviving heirs," by the expression, "lawful heirs of her body," in the connection used, the testator intended "child" of his daughters. Kornegay v. Cunningham, 174 N. C. 209, 93 S. E. 754.

Where a testator devises land to his son with a limitation over to his daughters, provided the son dies without heirs, the word "heirs" is construed to mean "children." Sain v. Baker, 128 N. C. 256, 38 S. E. 858.

Same—When Children Illegitimates.—Where a bequest is immediate—not dependent upon a preceding limited estate—to the heirs of a living person, and the children of such person are illegitimate, they have the right to take under the section which declares that a limitation to the "heirs" shall be construed to be the "children" of such person, unless a contrary intention appears. Howell v. Tyler, 91 N. C. 207, 208.

Cited in Williamson v. Cox, 218 N. C. 177, 10 S. E. (2d) 662.

§ 41-7. Possession transferred to use in certain conveyances.—By deed of bargain and sale, or by deeds of lease and release, or by covenant to stand seized to use, or deed operating by way of covenant to stand seized to use, or otherwise, by any manner or means whatsoever it be, the possession of the bargainor, releasor, or covenanter shall be deemed to be transferred to the bargainee, releasee, or person entitled to the use, for the estate or interest which such person shall have in the use, as perfectly as if the bargainee, releasee or person entitled to the use had been enfeoffed at common law with livery of seizin of the land intended to be conveyed by such deed or covenant. (Rev., s. 1584; Code, s. 1330; R. C., c. 43, s. 6; 27 Hen. VIII, c. 10; C. S. 1740.)

Editor's Note.—After the Statute of Wills, 32 Hen. 8, a question was made, whether 27 Hen. 8, applied where one was seized to the use of another by force of a devise. The question, however, has long been at rest. Mr. Blackstone, in his learned commentaries, classifies the exceptions to the operation of the statute under three heads, and does not allude to the fact, that the question referred to, had ever been started, but passes it over as one of "the refinements and niceties suggested by the ingenuity of the times." 2 Black. 336. See also Broughton v. Langley, Salk 679, where Lord Holt treats the question as settled. The curious reader will find the subject treated of in Powell on Devises, 211, 13-14.

It is conceded, on all hands, that the Statute of Uses, 27 Hen. 8, chap. 10, was in force and in use, in this State, up to the passage of the Revised Statutes (1836). Indeed, all of the conveyances of land, adopted and used in this State, are based on, and take effect by, the operation of that statute. In the Rev. Stat., chap. 43, sec. 4, and the Rev. Code, ch. 43, sec. 6, the words used in 27 Hen. 8, chap. 10—i. e., "When one person or persons stand, or be seized, or at any time thereafter shall happen to be seized of land, etc., to the use of any other person, persons, or body politic, by reason of any bargain, sale, feoffment, etc., or otherwise, by any manner or means whatsoever it be, the persons, etc., having the use, shall have the legal estate, etc.," are omitted and the provision is simply "By deed of bargain and sale, lease and release and covenant to stand seized, the possession shall be transferred to the bargainee, releasee, covenantee, etc." Substantially in this form the section is carried through all the various codes up to this one. The tendency, while no material change, has been to make the section all inclusive by extending its application to every possible case involving the principle. Wilder v. Irelland, 53 N. C. 85, 90.

Necessity of Consideration.—A deed of bargain and sale is governed in this State by the same principles which were applied to it in England. It must have a pecuniary, or other valuable consideration. Blount v. Blount, 4 N. C. 389; Brocket v. Foscue, 8 N. C. 64; Bruce v. Faucett, 49 N. C. 391, 393.

If no consideration, either good or valuable, appear on the face of the instrument, or can be proved aliunde, it will be void. Springs v. Hanks, 27 N. C. 30; Jackson v. Hampton, 30 N. C. 457; Bruce v. Faucett, 49 N. C. 391, 393.

Same—Love and Affection.—Though in form, a deed of bargain and sale, yet if the only consideration is that of love and affection, it will operate as a covenant to stand seized. Slade v. Smith, 2 N. C. 248; Hatch v. Thompson, 14 N. C. 411; Cobb v. Hines, 44 N. C. 343; Bruce v. Faucett, 49 N. C. 391, 393.

Same Footing with Feoffments at Common Law.—Deeds of bargain and sale and covenants to stand seized to uses, are put on the same footing with feoffments at common law, with respect to seizin, the declaration of uses thereon, and the consideration. Love v. Harbin, 87 N. C. 249, and Ivey v. Granberry, 66 N. C. 224. A use may be limited on a use. Rowland v. Rowland, 93 N. C. 214, 221.

Common Law Rule.—At common law, where there was no consideration, the use would result to the feoffor, unless the declaration of the use or trust was contemporaneous with the transmutation of the legal title. Pittman v. Pittman, 107 N. C. 159, 12 S. E. 61.

When Legal and Equitable Title United.—In Lee v. Oates, 171 N. C. 717, 726, 88 S. E. 889, it was said: "As to Mrs. Lee's life estate, so long as her husband lived, it was necessary that the trust for her separate use and maintenance should continue, as it was then active; but when her husband died, and the disability of coverture was removed, and there was no longer any necessity for a trustee to protect her interest, and as the trust then became passive, the statute executed the use and united the legal and equitable estates in her." Cameron v. Hicks, 141 N. C. 21, 53 S. E. 728; Perkins v. Brinkley, 133 N. C. 154, 45 S. E. 541; Springs v. Hopkins, 171 N. C. 486, 88 S. E. 774. See also Security Nat. Bank v. Sternberger, 207 N. C. 817, 819, 178 S. E. 595.

This section merges the legal and equitable titles in the beneficiary of a passive trust, but as to active trust, the legal title vests and remains in the trustee for the purpose of the trust. Fisher v. Fisher, 218 N. C. 42, 9 S. E. (2d) 493.

Same—Merger. — "In Peacock v. Stott, 101 N. C. 149, 7 S. E. 885, Smith, C. J., said: 'Where one who has an equitable title acquires the legal title so that the same becomes united in the same person, the former is merged in the latter, and numerous decisions elsewhere are to the same effect.' Wills v. Cooper, 25 N. J. L., 137; Swisher v. Swisher, 157 Iowa, 55; Greene v. Greene, 125 N. Y. 506; Clark v. Listers, etc., 82 Neb. 85; Weeks v. Weeks, 197 N. Y. 304; Langley v. Conlan, 212 Mass. 135; Perry on Trusts (6 Ed.), sec. 347; 39 Cyc., 248; 2 Pomeroy's Equity, sec. 788." Quoted with approval in Odom v. Morgan, 177 N. C. 367, 369, 99 S. E. 195.

When Legal Title Passes to Trustee.—"Where the use is executed by the statute, the trustee takes no estate or interest, both the legal and equitable estates vesting in the cestui que trust; but where the use is not executed, the legal title passes to the trustee." 39 Cyc., 207, quoted with approval in Lee v. Oates, 171 N. C. 717, 88 S. E. 889.

Proceeds of Sale of Equitable Life Estate. — A deed in trust for the purpose of allowing the grantor's daughter to enjoy the "proceeds, rents, and income" during her natural life, with limitation over, creates an equitable estate for life, but upon a sale, the daughter would not be entitled to have the value of her life estate turned over to her. Braddy v. Dail, 156 N. C. 30, 72 S. E. 88.

Shifting Use to Take Effect.—"Whenever the event happens when a shifting or springing use is to take effect, the statute of uses vests the legal seizin and ownership in the person entitled by virtue of the use." Perry on Trusts, (5 Ed.), sec. 378. Lee v. Oates, 171 N. C. 717, 727, 88 S. E. 889.

Future Contingent Use.—In the case of Smith v. Smith, 46 N C. 135, other incidents which attached to deeds of bargain and sale in England were held to apply to them in this State. Thus, the Court said "it is settled that, a future contingent use to one unknown, or not in esse, cannot be raised by a deed of bargain and sale. It is also settled that a use cannot be raised by a general power of appointment given to the taker of the first estate in the use; and the case is much stronger where the power of appointment is given to a stranger." Bruce v. Faucett, 49 N. C. 391, 393.

Estates of Freehold to Commence in Futuro.—As estate of freehold to commence in futuro can be conveyed by a deed of bargain and sale operating under the section or by executory devise; therefore, an estate to H. for life and at her death to her children in fee, reserving a life estate to the grantor, is good. Savage v. Lee, 90 N. C. 320.

Life Estate to Woman with Limitation Over to Children.—Where one devised, in 1828, to a trustee, to the use and benefit of a woman, for her life, remainder to the use of all her children, it was held that the legal estate in the remainder, by force of the same statute, passed to the children she had at the time of the devise, subject to the participation of such as she might thereafter have. Wilder v. Ireland, 53 N. C. 85.

Fee Simple Limited after a Fee Simple.—A fee-simple may be limited after a fee-simple either by a deed or will by operation of the statute of uses; if by deed, it is a conditional limitation; if by will, it is an executory devise. Smith v. Brisson, 90 N. C. 284.

Possession Transferred. — The statute of uses, substituted for 27 Hen. VIII. (The Code, sec. 1330), now this section, provides that the possession of the bargainee shall be transferred to the bargainee as perfectly as if the bargainee "had been enfeoffed at common law with the livery of seizin of the land intended to be conveyed, etc." Kirby v. Boyette, 118 N. C. 244, 263, 24 S. E. 18.

When One Seized to the Use of Another.—It was said in Wilder v. Ireland, 53 N. C. 85: "Where one person is seized to the use of another, the statute carries the legal estate to the person having the use. But three classes of cases are made exceptions to its operation, i. e., (1) where a use is limited on a use, (2) where a trustee is not seized but only possessed of a chattel interest, and (3) where the purposes of the trust make it necessary for the legal estate and the use to remain separate, as in the case of land conveyed for the separate use and maintenance of a married woman." Kirby v. Boyette, 118 N. C. 244, 263, 24 S. E. 18.

"Sole and Separate Use" Construed.—The words "for the sole and separate use," or equivalent language, qualifying the estate of a trustee for a married woman, must be construed as manifesting the intent on the part of the grantor to limit her right of alienation to the mode and manner expressly provided in the instrument by which the estate is created. Kirby v. Boyette, 118 N. C. 244, 24 S. E. 18.

Covenant to Stand Seized to Use of Another.—"In Davenport v. Wynne, 28 N. C. 128, where there was a conveyance of real property upon the consideration of love and affection, reserving a life estate to the donor, it was held by the court that the conveyance was good; that it was a conveyance to stand seized to the use of the vendee on his death. To the same effect is Hodges v. Spicer, 79 N. C. 223. And in Sasser v. Blythe, 2 N. C. 259, overruling Ward v. Ward, 1 N. C. 59, a similar construction was given to an instrument of like import. In the note to that case Judge Battle says: 'There cannot be the least doubt but that a covenant to stand seized to the use of another, after his own life, is good to pass the estate intended; for the law raises in the grantor an estate for life in the meantime to support the future estate. This has been decided in a vast number of instances. There is no point better established by the authorities.' And he cites in support of the position, besides Coke, a number of English authorities." Savage v. Lee, 90 N. C. 320, 323.

Rule That Beneficial Use Is Converted into Legal Ownership Does Not Apply to Active Trusts.—While this section converts the beneficial use into the legal ownership and unites the legal and equitable estates in the beneficiary, this rule applies only to passive or simple trusts and not to active trusts. Chinnis v. Cobb, 210 N. C. 104, 108, 185 S. E. 638, citing Lee v. Oates, 171 N. C. 717, 88 S. E. 889; Patrick v. Beatty, 202 N. C. 454, 163 S. E. 572.

An active trust is one where there is a special duty to be performed by the trustee in respect to the estate, such as collecting the rents and profits, or selling the estate, or the execution of some particular purpose. Chinnis v. Cobb, 210 N. C. 104, 108, 185 S. E. 638, citing Perkins v. Brinkley, 133 N. C. 154, 45 S. E. 541.

§ 41-8. Collateral warranties abolished; warranties by life tenants deemed covenants.—All collateral warranties are abolished; and all warranties made by any tenant for life of lands, tenements or hereditaments, the same descending or coming to any person in reversion or remainder, shall be void; and all such warranties, as aforesaid, shall be deemed covenants only, and bind the covenanter in like manner as other obligations. (Rev., s. 1587; Code, s. 1334; R. C., c. 43, s. 10; 4 Anne, c. 16, s. 21; 1852, c. 16; C. S. 1741.)

Editor's Note. — The section is a re-enactment of the Statute of 4 Anne, c. 16, s. 21 made first because estates tail were converted into estates in fee simple. The last clause in the section was inserted to qualify the words "abolished" and "void," used in the two preceding clauses. By it such warranties, that is, collateral warranties, and all warranties descending upon an heir, entitled to a remainder or reversion, are allowed the effect of a personal covenant of quiet enjoyment, by which the heir if he receives real assets, is bound to pay a purchaser damages to the amount of the consideration paid for the land, in case of eviction by title paramount, in lieu of "other land of equal value," so as to put such warranties upon the same footing as lineal warranties which the Court had been forced after the action of ejectment was substituted for real actions, for the sake of giving a remedy, to treat as personal covenants for quiet enjoyment. This was by reason of the fact that there could not be "a vouchee" upon a covenant real or the old warranty, except in real actions. Rickets v. Dickens, 5 N. C. 342, 343; Williams v. Beeman, 13 N. C. 483; Southerland v. Stout, 68 N. C. 446, 449; Smith v. Ingram, 130 N. C. 100, 40 S. E. 984.

Estoppel and Rebutter by Warranty.—Mr. Mordecai in his instructive and valuable law lectures, volume 2, p. 858, says: "I shall take 'Estoppel by Warranty' to mean the effect which such covenants have in passing, so to speak, any title to the land which the bargainor in a deed may acquire after the execution of the deed; and 'Rebutter by Warranty,' to mean the effect which such modern covenants have in barring, estopping, or rebutting the heirs of the covenantor, should they assert title to the land conveyed by the covenanting ancestor." Olds v. Richmond Cedar Works, 173 N. C. 161, 164, 91 S. E. 846.

Where land is devised to a person for life, and at her death to her children, the children are not estopped by a deed with covenant of warranty executed by the life tenant. Hauser v. Craft, 134 N. C. 319, 46 S. E. 756.

Same—Warranty by Tenant by Curtesy.—Where a tenant by the curtesy sells land belonging to his wife, by deed or bargain and sale, in fee, with general warranty the right of the heir of the wife to the land is not rebutted by the warranty. Johnson v. Bradley, 31 N. C. 362.

Same—Remainder Not Defeated by Warranty. — A warranty in a deed of a life tenant cannot defeat the remainder of the heirs by way of rebutter. Moore v. Parker, 34 N. C. 123; Starnes v. Hill, 112 N. C. 1, 13, 16 S. E. 1011.

Warranty to Grantee but Not to Assigns.—Where a deed contains a warranty to the grantee, but not to his assigns, such assignees can neither maintain an action on such covenant nor defend under it against the grantor. Smith v. Ingram, 130 N. C. 100, 40 S. E. 984.

Burden of Proof.—Where in an action to recover lands the plaintiff claims by paper title to his ancestor, without claim of possession, and it appears that his ancestor has conveyed the land to a stranger with full covenants and warranty of title prior to his having acquired it, it was held, that the burden of proof is on the plaintiff to establish his title, and he cannot recover, for his ancestor's deed to the stranger, with covenant and warranty, destroys his right of action by rebutter, and passes the title to the grantee by estoppel. Olds v. Richmond Cedar Works, 173 N. C. 161, 91 S. E. 846.

§ 41-9. Spendthrift trusts. — It is lawful for any person by deed or will to convey any property, which does not yield at the time of the conveyance a clear annual income exceeding five hundred dollars, to any other person in trust to receive and pay the profits annually or oftener for the support and maintenance of any child, grandchild or other relation of the grantor, for the life of such child, grandchild or other relation, with remainder as the grantor shall provide; and the property so conveyed shall not be liable for or subject to be seized or taken in any manner for the debts of such child, grandchild or other relation, whether the same be contracted or incurred before or after the grant. (Rev., s. 1588; Code, s. 1335; 1871-2, c. 204, s. 1; C. S. 1742.)

Substantial Compliance Necessary. — The provisions of the section should be at least substantially met and complied with to create the trust with its incidents contemplated by the statute. Gray v. Hawkins, 133 N. C. 1, 6, 45 S. E. 363.

Same—Mere Declaration.—A mere declaration that it is the object of the deed, in part, to create a trust under this section, and that the appointment of a trustee is left to the court, does not create such a trust as the court would enforce by the appointment of a trustee. Gray v. Hawkins, 133 N. C. 1, 6, 45 S. E. 363.

Restricted as to Amount and Duration. — In Bank v. Heath, 187 N. C. 54, 64, 121 S. E. 24, the court said: "A perusal of the law will disclose that such trusts are only permissible for a restricted amount, 'an annual income not to exceed $500 net', and by correct interpretation to be applied to the support of the beneficiary for his life only."

Not a Passive Trust Subject to Debts.—A devise creating a spendthrift trust, under this section, for the trustees to receive and pay the profits, annually, or oftener for the support and maintenance of the testator's named son, is not a passive trust either as to the principal or income, nor is it one executed under the statute of uses, and it is not subject to the payment of the debts created by the cestui que trust, though he be a nonresident of the State. Fowler v. Webster, 173 N. C. 442, 92 S. E. 157.

"The courts cannot, without violating the right of property possessed by the trustor, and the proper discharge of the trust by the trustee, condemn any part of the income for the foreign purpose of paying the debts of the cestui que trust, since the whole idea and purpose of this trust is that the beneficiary is unfit to handle the income of the fund." Fowler v. Webster, 173 N. C. 442, 445, 92 S. E. 157.

Not Personal Property Exemption. — The effect of the spendthrift trust, Revisal, sec. 1588, now this section, is not to create a personal property exemption in favor of a nonresident cestui que trust in the income from the trust estate. Fowler v. Webster, 173 N. C. 442, 92 S. E. 157.

Not Subject to Alienation.—"In a spendthrift trust the beneficiary cannot 'exercise the highest right of property, namely, alienation' as to the income, nor will it 'upon his death undoubtedly be assets.' In spendthrift trusts authorized by the statute the beneficiary acquires no interest or property in the income any more than he does in the principal of the fund. He cannot alienate the income, he cannot direct its application in the purchase of any article whatever, or its disposal for any purpose." Fowler v. Webster, 173 N. C. 442, 444, 92 S. E. 157.

Trustee Makes All Disbursements.—The trustee holds the income just as he holds the principal, to be applied for the designated purposes. It is his duty to make the disbursement, whether for board or clothing or in any other method in his judgment required for the support of the beneficiary. Fowler v. Webster, 173 N. C. 442, 445, 92 S. E. 157.

Same—Not to Pay over Income to Cestui Que Trust.—The trustee is not authorized to pay over any part of the income to the beneficiary that he may spend it or use it or disburse it. The cardinal idea is that the cestui que trust is "incompetent and cannot be trusted with the handling of the income," (Beach on Trusts, § 554), which duty is to be discharged by the trustee. Fowler v. Webster, 173 N. C. 442, 445, 92 S. E. 157.

Trust Limitations Defeated by Fee Simple Devise.—In a fee simple devise with a subsequent provision that during the life of the devisee the property is to be "managed" by the trustees, paying to him the income and exempting the property from liability for his debts, the provision is repugnant to the fee, and the limitations imposed are void; and at the suit of a purchaser for value under a deed from the devisee and the trustee, judgment against the latter and in favor of the plaintiff for possession should be granted. Vaughan v. Wise, 152 N. C. 31, 67 S. E. 33.

Spendthrift Trust Held to Be an Active Trust as to Corpus of Estate.—A spendthrift trust directing the trustee to collect the rents and profits and pay same over to the beneficiary is an active trust so far as the corpus of the estate is concerned, upon which § 41-7 does not operate to unite the beneficial and legal interests. Chinnis v. Cobb, 210 N. C. 104, 185 S. E. 638.

Trustee May Defend Action without Appearance of the Cestui.—The trustee of a spendthrift trust may defend an action seeking to attach the interest of the cestui que trust, both in the Superior Court and in the Supreme Court on appeal, without the appearance of the cestui, the preservation and protection of the property being incumbent upon him under the terms of the trust. Chinnis v. Cobb, 210 N. C. 104, 185 S. E. 638.

The interest of the cestui que trust in a spendthrift trust is not subject to attachment under § 1-440 et seq., since by express provision of this section the property is not liable for the debts of the cestui que trust in any manner. Chinnis v. Cobb, 210 N. C. 104, 185 S. E. 638.

§ 41-10. Titles quieted. — An action may be brought by any person against another who claims an estate or interest in real property adverse to him for the purpose of determining such adverse claims; and by any man or woman against his or her wife or husband or alleged wife or husband who have not lived together as man and wife within the two years preceding, and who at the death of such plaintiff might have or claim to have an interest in his or her estate, and a decree for the plaintiff shall debar all claims of the defendant in the property of the plaintiff then owned or afterwards acquired: Provided, that no such relief shall be granted against such husband or wife or alleged wife or husband, except in case the summons in said action is personally served on such defendant.

If the defendant in such action disclaim in his answer any interest or estate in the property, or suffer judgment to be taken against him without answer, the plaintiff cannot recover costs. In any case in which judgment has been or shall be docketed, whether such judgment is in favor of or against the person bringing such action, or is claimed by him, or affects real estate claimed by him, or whether such judgment is in favor of or against the person against whom such action may be brought, or is claimed by him, or affects real estate claimed by him, the lien of said judgment shall be such claim of an estate or interest in real estate as is contemplated by this section. (Rev., s. 1589; 1893, c. 6; 1903, c. 763; 1907, c. 888; C. S. 1743.)

I. GENERAL CONSIDERATIONS.

Editor's Note.—The modern trend of Legislative enactments has been to remove, before sale, and as quickly and efficiently as possible, all defects of title to property sold under judicial process. The courts have been liberal in the construction of all such remedial legislation. In Campbell v. Cronly, 150 N. C. 457, 64 S. E. 213, Mr. Justice Connor, in an able and elaborate opinion, reviews the policy and effect of this legislation and the decisions of many courts, and says: "The wisdom of enlarging the power of the court to deal with the subject is manifest. It is highly important to private right and public interest that titles shall be rendered secure and certain.....The unanimity with which judges have recognized the wisdom of the legislation, giving it a liberal construction, has made it effective." The first legislative act of this state looking to this end was the act of 1893 (chapter 6). Under this act, the court held, in Daniels v. Baxter, 120 N. C. 14, 26 S. E. 635, "as to the fifth ground of demurrer, there is an allegation that the defendants claim that S. H. Fowler made a deed of trust, that what purports to be such is on record, and that defendants are holding under it. This is sufficient, under Laws 1893, ch. 6, to proceed to have the cloud removed, though the plaintiffs are not in possession." And in McLean v. Shaw, 125 N. C. 491, 34 S. E. 634, it was said: "Under a line of decisions of this Court, culminating with McNamee v. Alexander, 109 N. C. 242, 13 S. E. 777, it was held that a plaintiff could not maintain an action to remove a cloud upon his title unless it appeared affirmatively that he was rightfully in possession of the land. The act of 1893 (chapter 6) extended such relief to those who were not in possession. Daniels v. Baxter, 120 N. C.

14, 26 S. E. 635. It is not in contemplation of the act that a judgment lien should be included in the terms 'estate' and 'interest,' as they are used in the act." This case was decided at September Term, 1899. The Legislature, at its session in 1903, by chapter 763, amended the Public Laws 1893, ch. 6, sec. 1, by adding thereto the last sentence of the present section. Crockett v. Bray, 151 N. C. 615, 617, 66 S. E. 666.

This Section Is Highly Remedial.—Plotkin v. Merchants Bank, etc., Co., 188 N. C. 711, 715, 125 S. E. 541. This is a remedial statute which has been liberally construed quieting land titles, more comprehensive than the old suit in equity to remove a cloud from title. Jacobi Hdw. Co. v. Jones Cotton Co., 188 N. C. 442, 445, 124 S. E. 756; Maynard v. Holder, 216 N. C. 524, 5 S. E. (2d) 535.

This section and the amendatory acts thereto being remedial in nature, should have a liberal construction in order to execute fully the legislative intention and will. Stocks v. Stocks, 179 N. C. 285, 289, 102 S. E. 306. And to advance the remedy and permit the courts to bring the parties to an issue. Asheville Land Co. v. Lange, 150 N. C. 26, 30, 63 S. E. 164.

Does Not Deprive Defendant of Right.—The section deprives the defendant of no right, but affords him every opportunity of defending the validity of his title; but in the interest of peace and the settlement of controversies, it allows his adversary to put to the test of early judicial investigation, and does not compel plaintiff to wait on the defendant's pleasure as to the time when the inquiry shall be made, and thus give defendant an unfair advantage over him. Jersey City v. Lembeck, 31 N. J. Eq., 265; Carolina-Tennessee Power Co. v. Hiawassee River Power Co., 175 N. C. 668, 684, 96 S. E. 99.

Restraining Sale under Execution.—Under this section the sheriff's sale of land by execution under a judgment may now be restrained by suit in equity when it will cast an additional cloud upon the title of the owner of the lands. Mizell v. Bazemore, 194 N. C. 324, 139 S. E. 453.

An usurious charge of interest on notes does not affect the validity of the mortgage or deed of trust securing them, under § 24-2, and a suit brought to remove a cloud upon title to the lands under this section to the extent of the usurious charge of interest on the notes cannot be maintained. Briggs v. Industrial Bank, 197 N. C. 120, 147 S. E. 815.

Cited in Johnson v. Fry, 195 N. C. 832, 834, 143 S. E. 857; Sears v. Braswell, 197 N. C. 515, 526, 149 S. E. 846; Bechtel v. Bohannan, 198 N. C. 730, 731, 153 S. E. 316; Hinton v. Whitehurst, 214 N. C. 99, 198 S. E. 579.

II. NATURE AND SCOPE.

A. Purpose.

General Observations. — In a recent case the Supreme Court gave the section a broad interpretation in order to carry out the evident purpose of its enactment, and said: "Having reference to the broad and inclusive language of the statute, the mischief complained of and the purpose sought to be accomplished, we are of opinion that the law, as its terms clearly import, was designed and intended to afford a remedy wherever one owns or has an estate or interest in real property, whether he is in or out of possession, and another wrongfully sets up a claim to an estate or interest therein which purports to affect adversely the estate or interest of the true owner and which is reasonably calculated to burden and embarrass such owner in the full and proper enjoyment of his proprietary rights, including the right to dispose of the same at its fair market value. And it should and does extend to such adverse and wrongful claims, whether in writing or parol, whenever a claim by parol, if established, could create an interest or estate in the property, as in case of a parol trust or a lease not required to be in writing. And it should be allowed, too, when existent records or written instruments reasonably present such a claim, the statute preventing all hardship in such cases by its provision that if the holder does not insist on the same in his answer or does not answer at all, the plaintiff shall pay the costs." Satterwhite v. Gallagher, 173 N. C. 525, 528, 92 S. E. 369, citing Rumbo v. Gay Mfg. Co., 129 N. C. 9, 39 S. E. 581; Carolina-Tennessee Power Co. v. Hiawassee River Power Co., 175 N. C. 668, 684, 96 S. E. 99.

Referring to a similar statute of Nebraska, Mr. Justice Field said in Holland v. Challen, 110 U. S. 15, 3 S. Ct. 495, 28 L. Ed. 52, (cited in Christman v. Hilliard, 167 N. C. 4, 82 S. E. 949): "Any person claiming title to real estate, whether in or out of possession, may maintain the suit against one who claims an adverse estate in it for the purpose of determining such estate and quieting his title. It is certainly for the interest of the State that this jurisdiction of the court should be maintained, and that causes of apprehended litigation respecting real property necessarily affecting its use and enjoyment should be removed, for so long as they remain they will prevent improvement and consequent benefit to the public. It is a matter of everyday observation that many lots of land in our cities remain unimproved because of conflicting claims to them. It is manifestly to the interest of the community that conflicting claims to property thus situated should be settled so that it may be subject to use and improvement. To meet cases of this character, statutes like the one in Nebraska have been passed by several states, and they accomplish a most useful purpose." Carolina-Tennessee Power Co. v. Hiawassee River Power Co., 175 N. C. 668, 684, 96 S. E. 99.

Includes Any Adverse Interest. — The language of this section is broad and liberal, showing the purpose of General Assembly to permit any person to bring an action against another who claims an interest or estate in real property adverse to him. Plotkin v. Merchants Bank, etc., Co., 188 N. C. 711, 715, 125 S. E. 541.

To Leave Lands Unfettered.—The beneficial purpose of the statute is to free the land of the cloud resting upon it and make its title clear and indisputable, so that it may enter the channels of commerce and trade unfettered and without the handicap of suspicion, instead of remaining idle and unremunerative. Christman v. Hilliard, 167 N. C. 4, 82 S. E. 949; Carolina-Tennessee Power Co. v. Hiawassee River Power Co., 175 N. C. 668, 684, 96 S. E. 99; Plotkin v. Merchants Bank, etc., Co., 188 N. C. 711, 125 S. E. 541.

Effect of Busbee Cases.—In Plotkin v. Merchants Bank, etc., Co., 188 N. C. 711, 715, 125 S. E. 541, the Court further said: "In Rumbo v. Gay Mfg. Co., 129 N. C. 9, 10, 39 S. E. 591, Clark, C. J., says: It was because the General Assembly thought the equitable doctrines (as laid down in Busbee v. Macy, 85 N. C. 329, and Busbee v. Lewis, 85 N. C. 332, and like cases) inconvenient or unjust that the act of 1893 (this section) was passed."

To Broaden the Equitable Remedy.—This section giving the owner of lands the right to remove a cloud upon his title, is much broader in its scope and purpose than the equitable remedy theretofore allowed and administered in this State, and includes not only the right to remove an apparent lien under a docketed judgment, but also the potential claim of a wife to her inchoate right of dower in her husband's lands. Southern State Bank v. Sumner, 187 N. C. 762, 122 S. E. 848.

"The statute has been said to be an extension of the remedy in equity theretofore existing for the removal of clouds on title, and is intended to afford an easy and expeditious mode of determining all conflicting claims to land, whether derived from a common source or from different and independent sources. It is highly remedial and beneficial in its nature, and should therefore be construed liberally. It is also a statute of repose, and also for that reason is entitled to favorable consideration. Adler v. Sullivan, 115 Ala. 582; Walton v. Perkins, 33 Minn. 357; Holmes v. Chester, 26 N. J. Eq. 81." Christman v. Hilliard, 167 N. C. 4, 82 S. E. 949; Carolina-Tennessee Power Co. v. Hiawassee River Power Co., 175 N. C. 668, 683, 96 S. E. 99.

B. Interest Necessary to Bring Action.

Editor's Note.—In the case of Rutherford v. Ray, 147 N. C. 253, 61 S. E. 57, it was held that suit may be instituted by any person against any other person claiming an interest adverse to his title.

In Plotkin v. Merchants Bank, etc., Co., 188 N. C. 711, 715, 125 S. E. 541, it was held that "the contention that a plaintiff in an action brought under this section must allege and prove that at the commencement of the action and at its trial he had an estate in or title to the land, cannot be sustained. It is only required that he have such an interest in the land as that the claim of the defendant is adverse to him." It would seem that, in this case, the court lays down a much more liberal rule than had been formulated by any of the previous cases on the subject. It is interesting to note here the holding of a Federal Case, arising in North Carolina, Johnston v. Kramer Bros. & Co., 203 Fed. 733, 741, involving an interpretation of this statute, and decided prior to Plotkin v. Bank, supra, in which it was held that the plaintiff could maintain his action provided he had the legal title to either the whole or an undivided interest in the land. This holding was in perfect concord with the decided cases up to Plotkin v. Bank, supra, but is out of harmony with that case.

Apparent Invalidity of Defendant's Title.—The plaintiff is not required to have possession as a condition precedent to his right of action, nor will the apparent invalidity of defendant's title deprive him of the statutory remedy. Daniels v. Baxter, 120 N. C. 14, 26 S. E. 635; Rumbo v. Gay Mfg. Co., 129 N. C. 9, 39 S. E. 581; Beck v. Meroney, 135 N. C.

532, 47 S. E. 613; Campbell v. Cronly, 150 N. C. 457, 64 S. E. 213; Carolina-Tennessee Power Co. v. Hiawassee River Power Co., 175 N. C. 668, 684, 96 S. E. 99.

Remedy Given Whether in or out of Possession.—This section affords the remedy wherever one owns or has an estate or interest in real property, whether he is in or out of possession, and another sets up a claim to an estate or interest therein which purports to affect adversely the estate or interest of the true owner and which is reasonably calculated to burden and embarrass such owner in the full enjoyment or disposition of his property at a fair market value; the statute affords a remedy by disclaimer when the party does not in fact claim the "adverse interest" which is alleged to be a cloud on the title of the true owner. Satterwhite v. Gallagher, 173 N. C. 525, 92 S. E. 369; Vick v. Winslow, 209 N. C. 540, 183 S. E. 750.

Same—Former Law. — The authorities to the effect that only one in possession may maintain an action to remove a cloud from title, were decisions rendered prior to the act of 1893, Chapter 6; Revisal, sec. 1589. Since that statute, it is held that the action is maintainable, though plaintiff is not in the present possession or control of the property. Campbell v. Cronly, 150 N. C. 457, 64 S. E. 213; Daniels v. Baxter, 120 N. C. 14, 26 S. E. 635; Speas v. Woodhouse, 162 N. C. 66, 69, 77 S. E. 1000.

Adverse Claimant to Execution Debtor.—If real estate levied upon should be claimed by one other than the execution debtor, then nothing can more quickly bring up for trial the plaintiff's prayer to have the cloud removed from his title than to allow the execution sale to take place. If the purchaser should delay to commence suit for recovery of possession, then the claimant can commence proceedings under the section. McLean v. Shaw, 125 N. C. 491, 492, 34 S. E. 634.

Correction of Life Estate into Fee Simple. — Defendants have a right, in order to avoid multiplicity of suits, to ask for the correction of a life estate deed, under which they claim, into a fee simple deed, by way of counterclaim, not merely as a matter of defense, but to remove a cloud upon the title, under the section. McLamb v. McPhail, 126 N. C. 218, 35 S. E. 426.

Obscure Contingent Limitations.—The section enlarges the power of the courts to entertain suits to quiet titles, where the conditions were formerly such that a possessory action could not be brought; and this statute is liberally construed, so that the court can acquire jurisdiction to clear up obscure contingent limitations which are imposed upon titles. Campbell v. Cronly, 150 N. C. 457, 64 S. E. 213.

When Land Conveyed Pendente Lite.—Where the owner of lands in possession thereof or entitled thereto brings his action claiming as such owner to remove as a cloud upon his title the lien of one claiming under his mortgage, and pendente lite has conveyed the land to another with full warranty deed, he may continue to prosecute his suit against the mortgagee as to the title, being a real party in interest, § 1-57, without claim of the right to the possession, under the provisions of this section; and where issue has been joined, he may, if successful, recover his costs. Plotkin v. Merchants Bank, etc., Co., 188 N. C. 711, 125 S. E. 541.

Judgment Lien.—It is not in contemplation of the act that a judgment lien should be included in the terms "estate" and "interest" as they are used in the section. McLean v. Shaw, 125 N. C. 491, 492, 34 S. E. 634. This was changed by the Laws of 1903, C. 763. "Estate" and "Interest" now expressly embrace a judgment lien. See Editor's Note under Analysis line I, "General Considerations," of this section.

Action Lies to Prevent Creation of Cloud.—An action will lie, not only to remove an existing cloud on title, but also to prevent one from being created (Thomas v. Simmons, 103 Ind. 538), and where the object is merely preventive an injunction is the proper remedy to restrain the doing of the wrongful act. Carolina-Tennessee Power Co. v. Hiawassee River Power Co., 175 N. C. 668, 686, 96 S. E. 99.

C. What Constitutes Cloud.

Deed without Married Woman's Privy Examination.—A contract to convey the lands of the wife, signed by her and her husband, but without having taken her privy examination, when recorded is a cloud upon her title to the lands and subject to her suit to remove the same, as such, within the intent and meaning of the section, though she be and remain in possession of the land. Satterwhite v. Gallagher, 173 N. C. 525, 92 S. E. 369.

Invalid Judgment as Cloud.—A judgment, if invalid, would be such a cloud on the title, or such a direct menace to it, as to fall within the provisions of this section. Stocks v. Stocks, 179 N. C. 285, 289, 102 S. E. 306.

Same—Judgment Obtained by Fraud.—The complaint in this suit alleged, in effect, that the plaintiff had her dower laid off in the lands of her deceased husband, in which the defendant, her son, was properly represented, and thereafter the son, without the service of summons upon her, instituted an independent proceeding to annul the judgment, and falsely represented to her that the action had been withdrawn, and that she should not further consider it, and in consequence, and through his false representation, obtained a judgment in his favor, destroying her dower right, it is held, sufficient for her to maintain an independent action to set aside the former judgment upon the issue of fraud, and also under our statute to remove the former judgment as a cloud upon her title. Stocks v. Stocks, 179 N. C. 285, 102 S. E. 306.

Tax Deed as Cloud upon Title.—Where a judgment entered in favor of the county in an action against the owner for taxes has been set aside upon motion after notice to the parties, the owner, in an action to remove cloud upon title, is entitled to judgment canceling the tax deed. Galer v. Auburn-Asheville Co., 204 N. C. 683, 169 S. E. 642.

Proof Required of Plaintiff.—In a suit to remove a cloud upon the plaintiff's title under this section, the defendant claimed under a sale by foreclosure of a mortgage which the plaintiff attacked for fraud. It was held, that the burden of proof was on the plaintiff to show the fraud by the preponderance of the evidence, and not by clear, strong and cogent proof as required in the information or correction of a conveyance of land. Ricks v. Brooks, 179 N. C. 204, 102 S. E. 207.

Foreclosure of Mortgage Given by Tenant in Common Prior to Partition.—The purchaser of land from one tenant in common after the land had been allotted to the tenant in a special proceeding for partition may maintain a suit to restrain foreclosure of a mortgage executed by the other tenant in common prior to partition when the mortgagee advertises and seeks to sell a one-half interest in the entire tract, since such foreclosure would constitute a cloud on the purchaser's title. Rostan v. Huggins, 216 N. C. 386, 5 S. E. (2d) 162, 126 A. L. R. 410.

III. ACTIONS.

A. In General.

Treated as Suit in Ejectment.—A suit instituted to determine conflicting claims to real property, under Act of 1893, chap. 6, may be properly treated as an action of ejectment, when the complaint alleges ownership in the plaintiff and possession in the defendant. Hines v. Moye, 125 N. C. 8, 34 S. E. 103.

When Adverse Claim Invalid.—Under Laws 1893, ch. 6, where, in an action to determine conflicting claims to real property, plaintiff being in possession, the court finds the claim of defendant to be invalid, the action should not be dismissed. Rumbo v. Gay Mfg. Co., 129 N. C. 9, 39 S. E. 581.

But the court should enter its decree removing the cloud upon the title. Rumbo v. Gay Mfg. Co., 129 N. C. 9, 10, 39 S. E. 581.

A judgment binds parties and privies only. Hines v. Moye, 125 N. C. 8, 34 S. E. 103.

When Court Will Hear and Determine without Action.—The courts will hear and determine a controversy submitted without action in suits brought by and against the parties in interest, wherein the vendee has refused to accept the title on the ground of its being doubtful, either in its equitable jurisdiction as treating the controversy as a bill for specific performance or under the provisions of the section, for the purpose of removing clouds upon obscure titles. Campbell v. Cronly, 150 N. C. 457, 64 S. E. 213.

Costs.—Where the defendant disclaims title to lands in a suit to remove a cloud thereon, the plaintiff is chargeable with the costs under the express provisions of this section. Clemmons v. Jackson, 183 N. C. 382, 111 S. E. 609.

In an action for trespass and for damages, the plaintiff, after trial of issues as to trespass, etc., may not abandon these contentions upon the trial, and have the court consider the action as an equitable one to remove a cloud upon the title, and so avoid the payment of the full amount of the costs incident to the litigated issues. Clemmons v. Jackson, 183 N. C. 382, 111 S. E. 609.

B. Pleadings.

Sufficiency of Bill of Complaint.—Where a bill asserts that the complainant is the owner of certain designated lands, sets forth the chain of title, and alleges that the defendant claims an adverse interest in the said lands, which said claim renders sale impossible and otherwise casts a cloud over complainant's title, it sufficiently states a cause of action to quiet title under this section. North Carolina Min. Co. v. Westfieldt, 151 Fed. 290.

In an action to remove a cloud from plaintiffs' title, caused by a docket judgment alleged to be invalid, a demurrer to the complaint, as not stating a cause of action, was properly overruled, this section being sufficiently broad to entitle plaintiff to maintain an independent action. Exum v. Carolina R. Co., 222 N. C. 222, 22 S. E. (2d) 424.

Defendant Need Only Be Claimant.—It is true that under the act of the Legislature, 1893, ch. 6, now this section, a plaintiff may maintain an action to remove a cloud from his title without showing that the defendant is an occupant or any more than a claimant of the land in controversy. Duncan v. Hall, 117 N. C. 443, 446, 23 S. E. 362.

Same—Unnecessary to Allege Possession. — This section removed the necessity for alleging the defendant was in possession. The plaintiff may now set out his claim of title, and if defendant disclaims any adverse claim, the plaintiff pays the cost, and the title as between them is settled. Asheville Land Co. v. Lange, 150 N. C. 26, 30, 63 S. E. 164.

When Occupation Is Alleged.—But where he alleges an occupation as the cause of action, not only must the allegation and proof correspond, but the testimony offered to show possession is open to objection and exception on the ground of competency. Duncan v. Hall, 117 N. C. 443, 447, 23 S. E. 362.

Allegation of Nonpayment of Taxes. — In a suit to remove a cloud on the title to lands, the suggestion that plaintiff's ancestors have not, for many years, paid the tax on the land, is immaterial because to do so does not, under any statute in force in this state, work a forfeiture of title, otherwise than by a sale conducted in conformity with the law. Johnston v. Kramer Bros. & Co., 203 Fed. 733, 741.

Sufficient to Raise Issue.—Where the complaint in a suit to remove a cloud upon plaintiff's title to land, alleges that the plaintiff is the owner of the locus in quo, and asks for a reformation of his deed to the lands to show that by mutual mistake the name of the grantee therein was that of a private business enterprise he was conducting, and that accordingly the defendants claimed an interest therein, an allegation in the answer in reply that the defendant had no knowledge or information sufficient to form a belief as to whether the plaintiff was conducting a business in the name of the grantee in the deed, is sufficient to raise the issue, and a judgment in plaintiff's favor upon the pleadings is reversible error. Brinson v. Morris, 192 N. C. 214, 134 S. E. 453.

Issue as to Delivery of Deed.—Delivery of a deed is essential to its validity, and where the pleadings and evidence raise the question of delivery under this section the court's refusal to submit an issue thereon entitles appellant to a new trial. Ferguson v. Ferguson, 206 N. C. 483, 174 S. E. 304.

Pleadings Sufficient for Determination of Damages as in Condemnation.—Where, in addition to the fact that general relief was prayed, the parties specifically asked that their rights be determined, and defendant, relying upon the right of eminent domain, asserted its right to flood lands in which plaintiffs own mineral interests in derogation of plaintiffs' right of access, it was held that the damages resulting to plaintiffs from such floodings must be ascertained as in a suit for condemnation. Duke Power Co. v. Toms, 118 F. (2d) 443, 446.

C. Jurisdiction of Courts.

Advisory Jurisdiction of Courts.—The advisory jurisdiction of courts of equity does not extend to the mere construction of a will to ascertain the rights thereunder of devisees or legatees. Such is not sustained under this section, when not brought by the plaintiff against some person claiming an adverse estate or interest. Heptinstall v. Newsome, 146 N. C. 503, 60 S. E. 416.

Concurrent Jurisdiction.—Where there is an action pending in the State Courts to try the title to lands under this section, the State Courts have thereby acquired jurisdiction over the property, and the Federal Courts will not entertain a suit in equity on the same facts and for the same relief. Westfeldt v. North Carolina Min. Co., 166 Fed. 706.

Diverse Citizenship.—The Circuit Court of the United States for the Eastern District of Arkansas has jurisdiction of a suit in equity, brought by a citizen of Ohio against a citizen of Illinois, to remove a cloud from the title to real estate situated in that district. Dick v. Foraker, 155 U. S. 404, 15 S. Ct. 124, 39 L. Ed. 201.

The remedy given by statutes of this character may be enforced in the federal court when the parties are inhabitants of different states. Holland v. Challen, 110 U. S. 15, 3 S. Ct. 495, 28 L. Ed. 52. Johnston v. Kramer Bros. & Co., 203 Fed. 733, 741.

Equity Jurisdiction of Federal Courts.—In an action under this section, while it is true that a federal court of equity lacks jurisdiction of a suit brought against a number of defendants claiming severally different portions of the land in dispute, on the ground of avoiding a multiplicity of suits, that ground may oust the court's jurisdiction in respect to those defendants who raise the objection, and, where title and possession in the complainant is sufficiently alleged, it is error to dismiss it as to those defendants who have made no defense, but submitted themselves and their interests to the jurisdiction of the court. New Jersey, etc., Co. v. Gardner-Lacy Lumber Co., 178 Fed. 772.

This section does not enlarge the jurisdiction of federal courts of equity, as it merely regulates procedure and does not create any substantive right. And, even if it could be considered as creating an equitable right, it would not authorize the trial by a federal court of equity of what is in essence an action of ejectment, for the reason that in such action the defendant is entitled under the federal constitution to a trial by jury. Wood v. Phillips, 50 F. (2d) 714, 716.

§ 41-11. Sale, lease or mortgage in case of remainders.—In all cases where there is a vested interest in real estate, and a contingent remainder over to persons who are not in being, or when the contingency has not yet happened which will determine who the remaindermen are, there may be a sale, lease or mortgage of the property by a proceeding in the superior court, which proceeding shall be conducted in the manner pointed out in this section. Said proceeding may be commenced by summons by any person having a vested interest in the land, and all persons in esse who are interested in said land shall be made parties defendant and served with summons in the way and manner now provided by law for the service of summons in other civil actions, as provided by § 1-94, and service of summons upon nonresidents, or persons whose names and residences are unknown, shall be by publication as now required by law or such service in lieu of publication as now provided by law. In cases where the remainder will or may go to minors, or persons under other disabilities, or to persons not in being, or whose names and residences are not known, or who may in any contingency become interested in said land. but because of such contingency cannot be ascertained, the clerk of the superior court shall, after due inquiry of persons who are in no way interested in or connected with such proceeding, designate and appoint some discreet person as guardian ad litem, to represent such remainderman, upon whom summons shall be served as provided by law for other guardians ad litem, and it shall be the duty of such guardian ad litem to defend such actions, and when counsel is needed to represent him, to make this known to the clerk, who shall by an order give instructions as to the employment of counsel and the payment of fees.

The court shall, if the interest of all parties require or would be materially enhanced by it, order a sale of such property or any part thereof for reinvestment, either in purchasing or in improving real estate, less expense allowed by the court for the proceeding and sale, and such newly acquired or improved real estate shall be held upon the same contingencies and in like manner as was the property ordered to be sold. The court may authorize the loaning of such money subject to its approval until such time when it can be reinvested in real estate. And after the sale of such property in all proceedings hereunder, where there is a life estate, in lieu of said interest or investment of proceeds to which the life tenant would be entitled to, or to the use of, the court may in its discretion order the value of said life tenants' share during the probable life of such life tenant, to be ascertained as now provided by law, and paid out of the proceeds of such sale absolutely, and the remainder of such proceeds be reinvested as herein provided. Any person or persons owning a life estate in lands which are unproductive and from which the income is insufficient to pay the taxes on and reasonable upkeep of said lands shall be entitled to maintain an action, without the joinder of any of the remaindermen or reversioners as parties plaintiff, for the sale of said property for the purpose of obtaining funds for improving other non-productive and unimproved real estate so as to make the same profit-bearing, all to be done under order of the court, or reinvestment of the funds under the provisions of this section, but in every such action when the rights of minors or other persons not sui juris are involved, a competent and disinterested attorney shall be appointed by the court to file answer and represent their interests. The provisions of the preceding sentence, being remedial, shall apply to cases where any title in such lands shall have been acquired before, as well as after, its passage—March 7, 1927.

The clerk of the superior court is authorized to make all orders for the sale, lease or mortgage of property under this section, and for the reinvestment or securing and handling of the proceeds of such sales, but no sale under this section shall be held or mortgage given until the same has been approved by the resident judge of the district, or the judge holding the courts of the district at the time said order of sale is made.

The court may authorize the temporary reinvestment, pending final investment in real estate, of funds derived from such sale in any direct obligation of the United States of America or any indirect obligation guaranteed both as to principal and interest or bonds of the state of North Carolina issued since the year one thousand eight hundred and seventy-two; but in the event of such reinvestment, the commissioners, trustees or other officers appointed by the court to hold such funds shall hold the bonds in their possession and shall pay to the life tenant and owner of the vested interest in the lands sold only the interest accruing on the bonds, and the principal of the bonds shall be held subject to final reinvestment and to such expense only as is provided in this section. Temporary reinvestments, as aforesaid, in any direct obligation of the United States of America or any indirect obligation guaranteed both as to principal and interest or state bonds heretofore made with the approval of the court of all or a part of the funds derived from such sales are ratified and declared valid.

The court shall, if the interest of the parties require it and would be materially enhanced by it, order such property mortgaged for such term and on such condition as to the court seems proper and to the best interest of the interested parties. The proceeds derived from the mortgage shall be used for the purpose of adding improvements to the property or to remove existing liens on the property as the court may direct, but for no other purpose. The mortgagees shall not be held responsible for determining the validity of the liens, debts and expenses where the court directs such liens, debts and expenses to be paid. In all cases of mortgages under this section the court shall authorize and direct the guardian representing the interest of minors and the guardian ad litem representing the interest of those persons unknown or not in being to join in the mortgage for the purpose of conveying the interest of such person or persons. In all cases of mortgages under this section the owner of the vested interest or his or her legal representative shall within six months from the date of the mortgage file with the court an itemized statement showing how the money derived from the said mortgage has been expended, and shall exhibit to the court receipts for said money. Said report shall be audited in the same manner as provided for the auditing of guardian's accounts. The owner of the vested interest or his or her legal representative shall collect the rents and income from the property mortgaged and apply the proceeds first to taxes and discharge of interest on the mortgage and the annual curtailment as provided thereby, or if said person uses or occupies said premises he or she shall pay the said taxes, interest and curtailments and said party shall enter into a bond to be approved by the court for the faithful performance of the duties hereby imposed, and such person shall annually file with the court a report and receipts showing that taxes, interest and the curtailment as provided by the mortgage have been paid.

The mortgagee shall not be held responsible for the application of the funds secured or derived from the mortgage. The word mortgage whenever used herein shall be construed to include deeds in trust. I. GENERAL CONSIDERATIONS.

Editor's Note.—The 1925 amendment inserted in the fourth paragraph the provisions as to state bonds and made other changes.

The section was further amended by the Laws 1927, ch. 124, so as to permit a life tenant to bring an action for sale and reinvestment without joinder of remaindermen or reversioners. The rights of persons not sui juris are to be protected by a disinterested attorney appointed by the court. The amendment, being remedial in its nature, is made applicable to all cases where any title or interest in such lands was acquired before, as well as after, its enactment, with a proviso exempting pending litigation from its effect.

The only change effected by the 1933 amendment occurs in the second paragraph of the section. In the next to the last sentence of that paragraph, Public Laws of 1933, c. 123 inserted, following the word "property" and preceding the word "reinvestment", the words "for the purpose of obtaining funds for improving other non-productive," etc.

The amendment of 1935 inserted the provision at the end of the second sentence of the fifth paragraph relating to existing liens.

The 1941 amendment inserted the word "lease" in the first sentence of the first paragraph and in the third paragraph. It also added the provision that the mortgagees shall not be held responsible for determining the validity of liens, etc., where the court directs such liens, etc., to be paid. For comment on the 1941 amendment, see 19 N. C. L. Rev. 506.

The 1943 amendment made changes in the fourth paragraph. And, as amended by Acts 1943, c. 729, it expressly provided that its intent and purpose was "to provide for the temporary reinvestment of funds received from the sale of contingent remainders in United States bonds and bonds guaranteed as to principal and interest by the United States."

Constitutionality and Validity.—Revisal, sec. 1590, now this section, providing for the sale of contingent remainders, is constitutional and valid. Smith v. Miller, 151 N. C. 620, 66 S. E. 671.

This section does not interfere with the essential rights of ownership but operating in addition to those already possessed, is constitutional and valid. Pendlen v. Williams, 175 N. C. 248, 95 S. E. 500.

Retroactive Effect.—In Springs v. Scott, 132 N. C. 548, 44 S. E. 116, Mr. Justice Connor, speaking for the Court as to the validity of chapter 99, Laws 1903 (Rev., sec. 1509), now this section, in respect to its retrospective operation upon the will considered in that case and the estates that were created thereby, demonstrates by reason and authority that the act is valid, even when allowed to reach back and affect estates already created by will, so far though only as it is permitted to apply to interests not yet vested. Anderson v. Wilkins, 142 N. C. 154, 159, 55 S. E. 272.

The decision in Springs v. Scott was approved in Hodges v. Lipscomb, 133 N. C. 199, 45 S. E. 556, a case in which it appeared that the will was made prior to the passage of the Act of 1903. It was there held that the Act of 1903 operated retrospectively, so as to apply to contingent interest created by a will which had already taken effect by the death of the testator. Anderson v. Wilkins, 142 N. C. 154, 160, 55 S. E. 272.

Purpose of Section.—It was not the purpose of this section to destroy the interest of the remote contingent remaindermen, but to enable the present owners to sell the property and make a good title to the same, and to require that the proceeds be held as a fund, subject to the claims of persons who may ultimately be entitled thereto, and safeguard their rights in all respects. Poole v. Thompson, 183 N. C. 588, 112 S. E. 323. See Lancaster v. Lancaster, 209 N. C. 673, 184 S. E. 527.

It will be noted that the statute does not, either in its terms or purpose, profess or undertake to destroy the interest of the contingent remaindermen in the property, but only contemplates and provides for a change of investment and, subject to the right to use a reasonable portion of the amount for the improvement of remainder, when properly safeguarded, it impresses upon the fund the same contingencies and limitations as were imposed upon the original property. Dawson v. Wood, 177 N. C. 158, 163, 98 S. E. 459.

To prevent any possible doubt of the existence of the power of the Court, upon the application of all the parties in interest, the trustee representing contingent remaindermen, to provide for its exercise and protect the interest of all parties in remainder, whether in esse or not, the Act of 1903, now this section, was passed. McAfee v. Green, 143 N. C. 411, 417, 55 S. E. 828.

When Applicable.—This section and § 41-12 apply only to a sale of property in which there are or have been contingent interests. Waddell v. United Cigar Stores, 195 N. C. 434, 142 S. E. 585.

A lease authorized by the decree of a court of chancery may be binding upon beneficiaries not in esse, when their interests are same as those of persons in being who are subjected by due process to the jurisdiction of the court. Waddell v. United Cigar Stores, 195 N. C. 434, 142 S. E. 585, containing illustration of lease of trust property held valid over the objection that it may extend beyond the term of the trust.

In Stepp v. Stepp, 200 N. C. 237, 240, 156 S. E. 804, 806, 76 A. L. R. 536, Justice Clarkson said: "This amendment [Public Laws 1927, c. 124], where the land is unproductive, etc., extends the right of action to include life estates where there are vested remaindermen and reversioners without their joinder. The section 1744 [G. S. § 44-11] which is amended, theretofore had reference only to contingent remainders."

Mortgage for Permanent Improvements.—The locus in quo was devised to testator's daughter for life with limitation over to the daughter's children. The daughter and her husband expended large sums in making permanent improvements upon the property, and instituted this proceeding against their children, in esse or which might thereafter be born, seeking to have a mortgage in the sum of $20,900 placed on the property to refinance an existing mortgage on the property in the sum of $10,000, and also unsecured notes executed by the life tenant representing a part of the moneys used in making said improvements. It was held that since the remaindermen are in no way liable for any sums expended by the life tenant in making permanent improvements, the finding by the court that the execution of the mortgage to refinance the indebtedness would materially enhance the interest of the remaindermen was erroneous, and judgment directing the execution of the mortgage to refinance the indebtedness should be reversed. Hall v. Hall, 219 N. C. 805, 15 S. E. (2d) 273.

Foreclosure of Tax Lien.—Where land held by a life tenant with contingent limitation over, the persons entitled to the remainder not being determinable until the death of the life tenant, was mortgaged by the life tenant and the mortgage was foreclosed upon default, it was held that in an action to forclose the lien for taxes against the land under § 105-414, in which the purchaser at the foreclosure sale, the life tenant and the known contingent remaindermen were made parties, the minor contingent remaindermen and those not in esse, and the unknown contingent remaindermen were represented by guardian ad litem under this section, and when the provisions of both statutes have been fully and accurately followed the purchaser at the commissioner's sale acquired the fee simple title. Rodman v. Norman, 221 N. C. 320, 20 S. E. (2d) 294.

Status of Remainders.—"Contingent remainders are no longer considered mere possibilities which cannot be transferred, but a remainder-man whose estate is contingent may convey it." 2 N. C. Law Rev. 126; Beacon v. Amos, 161 N. C. 357, 77 S. E. 407.

Cited in Greene v. Stadiem, 198 N. C. 445, 448, 152 S. E. 398; Hines v. Williams, 198 N. C. 420, 152 S. E. 39.

II. ACTIONS IN SUPERIOR COURT FOR SALE.

General Requirements for Sale. — Lands devised for life with contingent limitations over may be sold for reinvestment under the provisions of this section, under the court's order, subject to its future approval of the sale, when it is made to appear that the best interest of all parties so require, those living and in present interest are represented in persons, and unborn children by guardian ad litem. McLean v. Caldwell, 178 N. C. 424, 100 S. E. 888.

Power of Court to Order Sale.—It is within the power of the court, having jurisdiction, to order the private sale of lands for the purpose of dividing the proceeds among tenants in common. Ryder v. Oates, 173 N. C. 569, 92 S. E. 508.

While the courts of this State do not have inherent power to decree a sale and pass title to the purchaser of lands, with remainder limited upon a contingency that would prevent the ascertainment of the ultimate takers, or any of them, till the death of the life tenant, this power is now conferred by the express terms of our statute in all cases where there was "a vested interest in real estate, with a contingent interest over to persons not in being, or when the contingency has not happened which shall determine whom the remaindermen are," under the procedure therein laid down. Dawson v. Wood, 177 N. C. 158, 98 S. E. 459.

The court, without regard to the Act of 1903, has the power to order the sale of real estate limited to a tenant for life, with remainder to children or issue, upon failure thereof, over to persons, all or some of whom are not in esse, when one of the class being first in remainder after the expiration of the life estate is in esse and a party to the proceeding to represent the class, and that, upon decree passed, and sale and title made pursuant thereto, the purchaser acquires a perfect title as against all persons in esse or in posse. Springs v. Scott, 132 N. C. 548, 44 S. E. 116.

The court has the power to order the private sale of lands affected with contingent interests under the provisions of this section under a proper finding that it would be to the best interests of all concerned, without submitting this issue to the jury, and where the proceedings are properly had and all parties are before the court, the objection is untenable that the sale was made under the decision of the court, and the parties had not agreed thereto. DeLaney v. Clark, 196 N. C. 282, 145 S. E. 398.

Failure to Serve Summons on Infant—Setting Aside Sale.—Where in proceedings to sell lands affected with contingent interests the provisions of § 41-11, have been observed, and the clerk has appointed a guardian ad litem for contingent interests and for infant parties, the failure to serve summons on a minor is to be regarded as an irregularity that will not render the sale void and a nullity. However, on a proper showing, the sale may be set aside as to all the parties except an innocent purchaser without notice of the irregularity; and on appeal to the Supreme Court, when this fact is not apparent, the case will be remanded for its ascertainment. Welch v. Welch, 194 N. C. 633, 140 S. E. 436.

Appeal from Proceedings Improperly Brought before Clerk. — Lands subject to contingent limitations may be sold by order of the judge of the superior court in term, on appeal in proceedings in partition improperly brought before the clerk, by retaining jurisdiction for the purpose of settling the controversy. Ryder v. Oates, 173 N. C. 569, 92 S. E. 508.

Where an action is wrongfully brought before the clerk of the superior court and is taken to the superior court by appeal, the superior court having original jurisdiction, it will be retained for hearing. Springs v. Scott, 132 N. C. 548, 44 S. E. 116.

When No Appeal Taken Parties Estopped. — Where an executor under a will with power to sell the lands of his testate and reinvest the proceeds, etc., has died, and all persons in present and contingent interest have been made parties to an action wherein the court has substituted another as trustee, upon like trusts in every respect, and the decree was not appealed from, all the privies and parties are estopped as to all issuable matters therein, and may not deny the power of the substituted trustee to make sale of the lands as fully as the executor under the will was therein authorized to make. Hayden v. Hayden, 178 N. C. 259, 100 S. E. 515.

Same—Payment of Betterments. — Where a preliminary judgment in proceedings to sell lands with contingent interests provides for the payment of betterments to the life tenant, and in this respect the judgment is not excepted to or appealed from, it is conclusive upon the parties as an estoppel. Pendleton v. Williams, 175 N. C. 248, 95 S. E. 500.

Who May Institute Suit. — Proceedings to have lands sold that are subject to a life estate, with limitation over, upon contingencies which will prevent the ascertainment of the remaindermen during the life of the first taker, etc., may be instituted by any person having a present vested interest in the lands. Dawson v. Wood, 177 N. C. 158, 98 S. E. 459.

Where one who had no vested estate in land brought action in superior court against contingent remaindermen to sell land, the court lacked jurisdiction of the action, and hence the judgment ordering sale of the land was void and could be collaterally attacked. Watson v. United States, 34 F. Supp. 777.

Necessary Parties.—Where timber growing upon lands is devised to testator's daughter for her life, and at her death to such of her children and grandchildren then living as she may have appointed in her will, or, upon her failure to exercise the power of appointment, to her children and grandchildren then living, objection to proceedings brought by the devisee and her children and grandchildren then living on the ground that no one having a vested interest in the land had been made a party cannot be sustained. Midyette v. Lycoming Timber, etc., Co., 185 N. C. 423, 117 S. E. 386; Thompson v. Humphrey, 179 N. C. 44, 101 S. E. 738.

In proceedings under the section certain contingent interest in land held in trust were sold and reinvested in other lands in accordance with the terms of the trust in the original deed conveying them. The title acquired, under the original deed in trust, by the trustee had become passive in him, and it is held that as, under the statute of uses, the legal and equitable title had merged in the same person neither the trustee nor his heirs were necessary parties to the owner's action against a purchaser to enforce his contract of purchase, and especially so when all vested and contingent interests were represented by some of the parties to the suit. Lee v. Oates, 171 N. C. 717, 718, 88 S. E. 889.

Same—Defendants.—Construing the statute, as amended, in the carefully considered case of Hodges v. Lipscomb, 133 N. C. 199, 45 S. E. 556, the court held that it was only necessary to make parties defendant those of the contingent remaindermen who, on the happening of the contingency, would presently have an estate in the property at the time of action commenced, and as to others more remotely interested they could have their interest represented and protected by a guardian ad litem as the statute provides. Dawson v. Wood, 177 N. C. 158, 163, 98 S. E. 459; Hodges v. Lipscomb, 133 N. C. 199, 45 S. E. 556.

Jurisdiction Cannot Be Conferred by Consent.—Jurisdiction of the superior court of an action by owner of a vested estate against contingent remaindermen to sell land cannot be conferred by consent and this section authorizing such an action must be strictly complied with. Watson v. United States, 34 F. Supp. 777.

Judgment under Former Law Does Not Work an Estoppel.—A former action determined before the enactment on the subject by the Legislature, holding that contingent remainders in lands, etc., cannot be sold unless all persons who may by any possibility be interested, united in such decree, cannot estop the parties to proceedings thereafter brought under the provisions of the section authorizing the judicial sale of property, or portions thereof, when there is a vested interest with remainder over to persons not in being, or when the contingency has not yet happened, etc. Pendleton v. Williams, 175 N. C. 248, 95 S. E. 500.

When Action Abates.—An action against a contingent remainderman to sell the lands under this section, abates upon the death of the remainderman prior to the termination of the life estate when his limitation over is made to depend upon his surviving the life tenant. Redden v. Toms, 211 N. C. 312, 190 S. E. 490.

III. SALE AND REINVESTMENT.

A. General Rules and Incidents Governing.

Effect of Invalid Decree for Sale and Reinvestment.—In an action brought under the provisions of the section, to sell certain lands devised to E. for life and a contingent remainder to her children, it appeared that to further a scheme to erect a hotel on one of the city lots, the court had decreed the sale of certain other of the lands and had appointed a commissioner to act in furtherance of its object. The lands were sold and the proceeds applied to the building of the hotel, but only having funds sufficient to erect the skeleton work of the hotel, other of the lands were decreed by the court to be sold, and their proceeds to be likewise applied; these would not be sufficient for the purpose, and when erected the hotel would not be a desirable investment, especially in the unfurnished condition in which it then would be left. It was held, (1) the decree for the further sale and reinvestment was void, not meeting the statutory requirement that the interest involved should be properly safeguarded; (2) that the court was without authority to order an investment or reinvestment of funds not then available, but depending upon the outcome of future sales of the land, and of this, notice was implied to third persons; (3) that the purchasers at the sale of the land derived to a clear title thereto; (4) that the commissioner came under no personal liability to the contractor or material men of the hotel building; (5) that endorsers of a note made to procure money for building the hotel had no claim on the hotel lot; (6) that the commissioner sell the hotel lot and report to the court, and that the proceeds be held for the benefit of the devisees to the extent of the value of the lots and the costs of improvements thereon free from the claims of material men, etc. Smith v. Miller, 151 N. C. 620, 66 S. E. 671.

Effect of Omitting Bond.—In all cases where property affected with unascertainable contingent remainders is ordered sold under the provisions of this section, it is now required by the amendatory act of 1919, chapters 17 and 259, that a bond be given to assure the safety of the funds arising from the sale; but where this is omitted from a judgment otherwise regular, it will not affect the title conveyed, though the decree should be modified in that respect by proper steps taken in the superior court. Poole v. Thompson, 183 N. C. 588, 112 S. E. 323.

Where Commissioner's Authority Was Limited to Sale of Property and Distribution of Proceeds.—Where a commissioner was authorized by the court to sell part of the lands of an estate for reinvestment under the provisions of this section, and there were no restrictions in regard to the use of the property of the estate, and in the commissioner's report and recommendation of the offer to purchase no authority to restrict the use of the property was asked, and none granted in the order of the court, it was held that the commissioner was without authority to insert restrictions in the deed to the purchaser, his authority being limited under the order of the court to the sale of the property and the distribution of the proceeds of sale. Southern Real Estate Loan, etc., Co. v. Atlantic Refining Co., 208 N. C. 501, 181 S. E. 633.

Public or Private Sale Permissible.—The sale of estates affected, with contingent interests, made under the provision of this section, may, in the sound discretion of the trial judge, and subject to his approval, be sold either at public auction or by private negotiation, as the best interests of the parties may require. Middleton v. Rigsbee, 179 N. C. 437, 102 S. E. 780; McAfee v. Green, 143 N. C. 411, 55 S. E. 828.

Where the sale of land affected with remote contingent interests not ascertainable at the time, comes within the provisions of this section, the court having jurisdiction may order the property disposed of either at a public or private sale, when it is shown that, as to the one or the other, the best interests of the parties will be promoted, subject always to the approval of the court. Poole v. Thompson, 183 N. C. 588, 112 S. E. 323.

Where the provisions of this section, have been observed in the sale of lands affected with contingent interests, the commissioner appointed to make the sale may effect the same by private negotiations, subject to the approval of the court, when it is properly made to appear that the best interests of the parties so require. Midyette v. Lycoming Timber, etc., Co., 185 N. C. 423, 117 S. E. 386.

Decree Must Provide for Reinvestment. — Where real estate is sold under order of the court, the decree must provide for investment of the fund in such way as the court may deem best for the protection of all persons who have or may have remote or contingent interests. Springs v. Scott, 132 N. C. 548, 44 S. E. 116.

Discretion of Court and Clerk in Reinvestment. — The preservation of the proceeds of the sale of lands, affected with contingent interests, under this section is referred to the sound discretion of the trial judge and in this case no error is found to the order requiring the funds to be paid into the office of the clerk of the superior court, to be loaned out by him or otherwise invested as required by law until the happening of the contingency, except that it should be so modified as to require that interest on these loans be allowed the owners of the particular estate, whether the estate, under correct interpretation of the deed, be one for life to be enlarged into a fee, or a fee simple, determinable on their death without issue, it appearing that they were given the usufruct of the land. Pendleton v. Williams, 175 N. C. 248, 249, 95 S. E. 500. It would seem that by amendment of 1923, the question of reinvestment rests within the discretion of the clerk.

Same—Time of Reinvestment. — In Laws of 1905, ch. 548, this reinvestment in realty was required to be within two years, but such requirement was removed by the later Acts of 1907, chs. 956 and 980, leaving the matter of reinvestment somewhat in the discretion of the court, but with clear intimation that the fund should be reinvested in realty when an advantageous opportunity should be offered. Dawson v. Wood, 177 N. C. 158, 163, 98 S. E. 459.

Applied to Charitable and Other Trusts.—Courts, in the exercise of general equitable jurisdiction, may, in proper instances, decree a sale of estate in remainder and affected by contingent interests, for reinvestment, or a portion thereof, when it is shown that it is necessary for the preservation of the estate and the protection of its owners; and this principle is not infrequently applied in the proper administration of charitable and other trusts, notwithstanding limitations in instruments creating them that apparently impose restrictions on the powers of the trustee in this respect, when it is properly established that the sale is required by the necessities of the case and the successful carrying out of the dominant purposes of the trust. Middleton v. Rigsbee, 179 N. C. 437, 441, 102 S. E. 780.

The sale of an estate in remainder affected under the terms of a will with certain ultimate and contingent interests in trust will not be affected by a clause in the will requiring that the principal of the trust fund shall not be used or diminished during the period of thirty years, with a certain exception, the limitation applying only to the administration of the trust estate, and not preventing the court from ordering a sale when required by the necessities of the estate for its preservation. Middleton v. Rigsbee, 179 N. C. 437, 441, 102 S. E. 780.

Applied to Sale of Growing Timber.—The timber growing upon lands devised to the testator's named daughter for her sole and separate use during her life only, and at her death to such of her children and grandchildren then living as she may have appointed in her will, and upon her failure to have done so, to her children and grandchildren then living, during the life of the daughter, is affected by the contingencies contemplated by this section. Midyette v. Lycoming Timber, etc., Co., 185 N. C. 423, 117 S. E. 386.

Same—Supplementary Decree. — Where an order has been made for the sale of timber growing upon lands affected with contingent interests, the court should also require its commissioner appointed for the sale to give bond for the preservation and proper application of the proceeds of sale, etc. (Laws 1919, ch. 259); but this provision does not affect the title of the purchaser, who is not required to see to the application of the funds, and the proper order in this respect may be supplied by amendment or supplementary decree. Midyette v. Lycoming Timber, etc., Co., 185 N. C. 423, 117 S. E. 386.

Purchaser's Liability Ends When Money Paid into Court.—A purchaser of devised lands affected with a life estate and contingent limitation over, sold for reinvestment under the provisions of this section, is not ordinarily charged with the duty of looking after the proper disposition of the purchase money, and upon paying it into court, under its order, he is quit of further obligation concerning it. McLean v. Caldwell, 178 N. C. 424, 100 S. E. 888.

Where the purchaser at a sale of lands for reinvestment pays his money into the court or to the person authorized by order of court to receive it, ordinarily he is not required to see to the proper application of the funds, its safety being taken care of by the court in its final decree. DeLaney v. Clark, 196 N. C. 282, 145 S. E. 398.

Same—Takes Fee Simple Title.—A purchaser at a sale of land with contingent interests allowed under the provisions of the section acquires a fee simple title, upon payment of purchase price to the court or person authorized to receive it, without being required to see to the application of the funds, and on such payment made is quit of all obligations concerning it. Pendleton v. Williams, 175 N. C. 248, 95 S. E. 550.

Sale for Reinvestment.—A tenant for life in lands may not by adversary proceedings against the remaindermen compel the sale of lands for partition of the proceeds under § 46-24, but upon a proper showing the sale for reinvestment may be ordered in equitable proceedings under the provisions of this section. Smith v. Suitt, 199 N. C. 5, 153 S. E. 602.

B. Powers of Clerk of Superior Court.

Authority of Clerk.—It was not contemplated by this section that the rights of parties should be entrusted to the clerks of the superior court in ordinary special proceedings without approval or confirmation by a judge of the superior court. The section prescribes the method in which there shall be a sale decreed when there is a contingent remainder and requires a decree for proper investment of the funds of remaindermen. Ray v. Poole, 187 N. C. 749, 751, 123 S. E. 5.

Sales of Contingent Interests of Persons Non Sui Juris.—The clerks of courts do not have jurisdiction to order the sale of contingent interests of persons not sui juris in lands, and suits to sell such interest, when the circumstances of the ward require it, should be determined in the Superior Court, in its equitable jurisdiction, which is required to order an investment of the funds in proper instances in accordance with the terms and conditions imposed by the conveyance, in order that the lawful intent of the donor may not be defeated. Smith v. Witter, 174 N. C. 616, 94 S. E. 402.

The order of sale by the clerk of the court of the contingent interest of a lunatic in lands approved by the judge, in proceedings brought for the purpose, is void for the lack of jurisdiction, and deed thereto of the guardian conveys nothing to his grantee. Smith v. Witter, 174 N. C. 616, 94 S. E. 402. It would seem that the amendment of 1923 extended the jurisdiction of the clerk to cover this situation. It will be noted that this case was decided in the Fall Term, 1917.

Proceedings Brought Under Section 46-3.—A tenant for life may not, directly or indirectly, affect the title of those in remainder, whether having a vested or contingent interest in the lands, by joining them in their proceedings for a division or sale for that purpose, brought before the clerk of the court under the provisions of § 46-3, and these proceedings so brought cannot be validated by derivative jurisdiction in the superior court, on appeal, under the provisions of this section, it being required that the proceedings be originally brought in the latter jurisdiction, with certain requirements for the protection of contingent remaindermen, which must be strictly followed; and, though under §§ 46-23, 46-24 a sale is provided when the land is affected with contingent interest in remainder, not presently determinable, the proceedings are therein required to be brought upon petition of such remaindermen, and not upon that of the life tenants. Ray v. Poole, 187 N. C. 749, 123 S. E. 5.

C. Application.

General Illustrations.—Where lands are affected with a contingent interest in remainder, not determinable during the life of the tenant for life, the holder of the vested interest and those in immediate remainder may proceed to have the lands sold under the provisions of this section, and have those remotely interested represented by guardian ad litem for the protection of their interests; and where it is made to appear that the interest of all parties require, or will be materially enhanced by it, the court may order a sale of the property, or any part thereof, for reinvestment, either in purchasing or improving real estate, etc., or invested temporarily to be held under the same contingencies in like manner as the property ordered to be sold. Poole v. Thompson, 183 N. C. 588, 112 S. E. 323.

A testator devised his improved and unimproved lands, in the corporate limits of a town, to his daughter for life with remainder to her children living at her death, with ulterior limitations over to trustees on certain contingencies, and the life tenant brought proceedings for sale and reinvestment of the proceeds under the provisions of this section, having made parties of the persons interested in accordance with the statute, and alleged that by the sale the income would be largely increased, that the sale of the contemplated part to a purchaser she had secured for a certain price would enable her to make improvements on the land then without income, to make houses on other parts of the land more profitable for rental purpose, etc., that the property as it stood was rapidly depreciating, and there were no available funds, otherwise, to meet the necessary and insistent demands. Held, a demurrer was bad, and properly overruled. Middleton v. Rigsbee, 179 N. C. 437, 102 S. E. 780.

Where the grantors in a deed have erroneously assumed that they had title to the lands they conveyed in fee, but which was affected by future contingent interest not at present ascertainable, and thereafter bring action to make title under the provisions of this section, which authorizes the sale of land affected by such contingencies, and in these proceedings have protected the interest of the remote remainderman by the appointment for them of a guardian ad litem, and have fully set forth the facts and circumstances of the former sale, and bring in the proceeds and submit them to the jurisdiction and orders of the court, the final judgment properly authorizing and confirming the sale, and being had in conformity with the provisions of the statute, perfects the title and same will inure to the benefit of the covenantee in the former deed, and for a breach of this covenant only nominal damages are recoverable. Myer v. Thompson, 183 N. C. 543, 112 S. E. 328.

This proceeding in which the order for the sale of the said lot has been made was not instituted and has not been conducted in accordance with this section. The power of sale has not been exercised by virtue of the statute. The proceeding was brought before the clerk, and not in term. The minors are not represented by guardian ad litem appointed by the judge, but by a next friend appointed by the clerk. The order of sale was signed, not during the term of the superior court in Haywood county, but by the judge holding the courts of the twentieth district (which includes Haywood county) at Sylva, in Jackson county, in said district. The order of sale cannot therefore be held valid. Lide v. Wells, 190 N. C. 37, 128 S. E. 477, 480.

Where the complaint of a life tenant alleges that the land is unproductive and income therefrom is insufficient to pay the taxes and reasonable upkeep, and prays that the land be sold in accordance with this section, the demurrer of the vested remaindermen is improperly sustained, the complaint alleging at least one good cause for action. Stepp v. Stepp, 200 N. C. 237, 156 S. E. 804.

In a suit regarding the management of the trust estate where the trustee and the testator's wife and children are parties and the one living grandchild is made a party defendant and is represented by a guardian ad litem, who also represents as a class the other grandchildren not in esse, all parties having an interest in the estate are properly represented, and the judgment of the court is binding as to all interests. Spencer v. McCleneghan, 202 N. C. 662, 163 S. E. 753.

§ 41-12. Sales or mortgages of contingent remainders validated.—In all cases where property has been conveyed by deed, or devised by will, upon contingent remainder, executory devise, or other limitations, where a judgment of a superior court has been rendered authorizing the sale or mortgaging, including execution of deeds of trust, of such property discharged of such contingent remainder, executory devise, or other limitations in actions or special proceedings where all persons in being who would have taken such property if the contingency had then happened were parties, such judgment shall be valid and binding upon the parties thereto and upon all other persons not then in being or whose estates had not then vested: Provided, that nothing herein contained shall be construed to impair or destroy any vested right or estate. (Rev., s. 1591; 1905, c. 93; 1923, c. 64; 1935, c. 36; C. S. 1745.)

Cross Reference.—As to revocation of deeds of future interests made to persons not in esse, see § 39-6.

Editor's Note.—By the amendment of 1935 this section was made to apply to mortgages and deeds of trust. The amendment also added the clause just preceding the proviso reading "or whose estates had not then vested."

Constitutionality and Validity.—The section is a valid exercise of legislative power. Anderson v. Wilkins, 142 N. C. 154, 55 S. E. 272.

The section, rendering valid judgments authorizing the sale of lands wherein there are contingent remainders, is constitutional and valid. Bullock v. Planters Cotton-Seed Oil, 165 N. C. 63, 80 S. E. 972.

"So long as the interest remains contingent only, the Legislature may act, for a bare expectancy or any estate depending for its existence on the happening of an uncertain event is within its control, not being a vested right which is protected by constitutional guaranties." Anderson v. Wilkins, 142 N. C. 154, 158, 55 S. E. 272.

Partition Sale Not Authorized.—The section does not authorize or validate a partition sale at the instance of a life tenant against vested remaindermen, who are not infrequently children. Ray v. Poole, 187 N. C. 749, 751, 123 S. E. 5.

Application. — A testator devised certain lands to his wife during her widowhood or life, which, at her death, were to be equally divided between the children or "their heirs." The lands were sold in partition in 1904, during the lifetime of the widow, and the children were made parties. One of these children died in 1906, before the death of her mother (1909) and her children, the grandchildren of the testator, brought suit to recover their interests in the land devised, claiming they had a vested interest therein in 1904, and not being parties to the proceedings, were not estopped by the judgment in partition: It was held, that the plaintiffs had a contingent interest in the lands at the time of the sale, and were concluded from claiming the lands under the validating act of 1905 (Revisal, sec. 1591, now this section.) Bullock v. Planters Cotton-Seed Oil Co., 165 N. C. 63, 80 S. E. 972.

Same—Extended to 1923.—"C. 64 Laws 1923 re-enacts section 1745 [of the Consolidated Statutes], validating sales of property under a judgment of the superior court, where the property has been conveyed by deed or devised by will, upon contingent remainder, executory devise, or other limitation, and the judgment has authorized a sale of the property discharged of the contingent remainder or other limitation. This section was enacted in 1905, validating such sales made before that date, and the present statute extends to such sales made since 1905 and up to March 6, 1923." I N. C. Law Rev. 285.

§ 41-13. Freeholders in petition for special taxes defined.—In all cases where a petition by a specific number of freeholders is required as a condition precedent to ordering an election to provide for the assessment or levy of taxes upon realty, all residents of legal age owning realty for life or longer term, irrespective of sex, shall be deemed freeholders within the meaning of such requirement. (1915, c. 22; C. S. 1746.)

Former Law.—The word "freeholders," used in chapter 135, sec. 1, Public Laws of 1911, amending Revisal, sec. 4115, as to who are required to sign the petition for the laying off special school districts and levying a tax therein, did not include females. Gill v. Board, 160 N. C. 176, 76 S. E. 203.

Women Now Included. — In ascertaining the necessary number of resident freeholders for a petition in a proposed new school district, women freeholders must be counted, under the provisions of this section. Chitty v. Parker, 172 N. C. 126, 90 S. E. 17.

Chapter 42. Landlord and Tenant.

Art. 1. General Provisions.

§ 42-1. Lessor and lessee not partners. — No lessor of property, merely by reason that he is to receive as rent or compensation for its use a share of the proceeds or net profits of the business in which it is employed, or any other uncertain consideration, shall be held a partner of the lessee. (Rev., s. 1982; Code, s. 1744; 1868-9, c. 156, s. 3; C. S. 2341.)

In General.—The lessor and lessee are not partners. State v. Keith, 126 N. C. 1114, 1115, 36 S. E. 169. Thus, where B. was to furnish land, farming implements, feed and team and W. was to do the work, and the crops were to be equally divided, it was held that this was not an agricultural partnership. Lawrence v. Week, 107 N. C. 119, 12 S. E. 120. See also Day v. Stevens, 88 N. C. 83, explaining and correcting Curtis v. Cash, 84 N. C. 41.

Duration.—A demise may be for a day as well as for a year, and may be terminable at the will of the lessor. It is not ended until the property is returned to the owner. United States v. Shea, 152 U. S. 178, 189, 190, 14 S. Ct. 519, 38 L. Ed. 403.

The legal understanding of a lease for years is a contract for the possession and profits of land, for a determinate period, with the compensation of rent. Thomas v. Railroad Co., 101 U. S. 71, 78, 25 L. Ed. 950.

Effect of Words "Grant" and "Demise."—In a United State's Supreme Court case it was held that the words "grant" and "demise" in a lease for years create an implied warranty of title and a covenant of quiet enjoyment. See Scott v. Rutherford, 92 U. S. 107, 23 L. Ed. 486.

§ 42-2. Attornment unnecessary on conveyance of reversions, etc.—Every conveyance of any rent, reversion, or remainder in lands, tenements or hereditaments, otherwise sufficient, shall be deemed complete without attornment by the holders of particular estates in said lands: Provided, no holder of a particular estate shall be prejudiced by any act done by him as holding under his grantor, without notice of such conveyance. (Rev., s. 947; Code, s. 1764; 4 Anne, c. 16, s. 9; 1868-9, c. 156, s. 17; C. S. 2342.)

§ 42-3. Term forfeited for nonpayment of rent. —In all verbal or written leases of real property of any kind in which is fixed a definite time for the payment of the rent reserved therein, there shall be implied a forfeiture of the term upon failure to pay the rent within ten days after a demand is made by the lessor or his agent on said lessee for all past-due rent, and the lessor may forthwith enter and dispossess the tenant without having declared such forfeiture or reserved the right of reëntry in the lease. (1919, c. 34; C. S. 2343.)

Purpose of Section.—This section was passed to protect landlords who made verbal or written leases and omitted in their contracts to make provision for reentry on nonpayment of rent when due. The consequence was that often an insolvent lessee would avoid payment of rent, refuse to vacate and stay on until his term expired. Ryan v. Reynolds, 190 N. C. 563, 565, 130 S. E. 156.

Lease or Contract of Rental.—No technical words are necessary to create a demise. It is enough that the language used shows an intent to transfer the possession, command and control. United States v. Shea, 152 U. S. 178, 189, 14 S. Ct. 519, 38 L. Ed. 403.

Written into Leases.—The section writes into a contract of a lease of lands, when the lease is silent thereon, a forfeiture of the terms of the lease upon failure of the lessee to pay the rent within ten days after a demand is made by the lessor or his agent for all past due rent, with right of the lessor to enter and dispossess the lessee. Ryan v. Reynolds, 190 N. C. 563, 130 S. E. 156.

Forfeiture for Benefit of Lessor.—The forfeiture implied by this section is for the benefit of the lessor, and to be declared only at his application. Monger v. Lutterloh, 195 N. C. 274, 142 S. E. 12, holding section not applicable to facts of the case.

Forfeiture Denied upon Tender of Rent and Costs.—Where, during the hearing and before judgment on a petition for forfeiture of a lease under this section, all rents and costs lawfully incurred are tendered to the petitioner, the petition is properly denied. Coleman v. Carolina Theatres, 195 N. C. 687, 143 S. E. 7.

Reentry after Forfeiture.—It was held in the Supreme Court of the United States in Ewell v. Daggs, 108 U. S. 143, 149, 2 S. Ct. 408, 27 L. Ed. 682, that leases which contain a forfeiture of lessee's estate for nonpayment of rent, or breach of other conditions, declare that on the happening of the contingency the demise shall thereupon become null and void, meaning that the forfeiture may be enforced by reentry at the option of the lessor.

Construed with Section 42-33.—This section and section 42-33 are in pari materia, and should be construed together. Ryan v. Reynolds, 190 N. C. 563, 130 S. E. 156.

Section Not Applicable Where in the Lease the Lessee Waives All Notice to Vacate.—Tucker v. Arrowood, 211 N. C. 118, 119, 189 S. E. 180.

§ 42-4. Recovery for use and occupation. — When any person occupies land of another by the permission of such other, without any express agreement for rent, or upon a parol lease which is void, the landlord may recover a reasonable compensation for such occupation, and if by such parol lease a certain rent was reserved, such reservation may be received as evidence of the value of the occupation (Rev., s. 1986; Code, s. 1746; 1868-9, c. 156, s. 5; C. S. 2344.)

Cross Reference.—As to contracts requiring writing, see § 22-2.

Where Lease Void under Statute of Frauds.—Where a lease was void under the statute of frauds, the lessors could only recover for the time the premises were occupied. Harty v. Harris, 120 N. C. 408, 411, 27 S. E. 90.

§ 42-5. Rent apportioned, where lease terminated by death.—If a lease of land, in which rent is reserved, payable at the end of the year or other certain period of time, is determined by the death of any person during one of the periods in which the rent was growing due, the lessor or his personal representative may recover a part of the rent which becomes due after the death, proportionate to the part of the period elapsed before the death, subject to all just allowances; and if any security was given for such rent it shall be apportioned in like manner. (Rev., s. 1987; Code, s. 1747; 1868-9, c. 156, s. 6; C. S. 2345.)

§ 42-6. Rents apportioned, where right to payment terminated by death.—In all cases where rents, rent charges, annuities, pensions, dividends, or any other payments of any description, are made payable at fixed periods to successive owners under any instrument, or by any will, and where the right of any owner to receive payment is terminable by a death or other uncertain event, and where such right so terminates during a period in which a payment is growing due, the payment becoming due next after such terminating event, shall be apportioned among the successive owners according to the parts of such periods elapsing before and after the terminating event. (Rev., s. 1988; Code, s. 1748; 1868-9, c. 156, s. 7; C. S. 2346.)

Not Applicable to Certain Annuities.—This section providing that annuities shall be apportionable in certain instances, has no application to disability benefits payable annually under the terms of an insurance policy, since there is no provision for successive owners, but the right to payment terminates upon the death of insured. Wells v. Guardian Life Ins. Co., 213 N. C. 178, 195 S. E. 394, 116 A. L. R. 130.

§ 42-7. In lieu of emblements, farm lessee holds out year, with rents apportioned.—When any lease for years of any land let for farming on which a rent is reserved determines during a current year of the tenancy, by the happening of any uncertain event determining the estate of the lessor, or by a sale of said land under any mortgage or deed of trust, the tenant in lieu of emblements shall continue his occupation to the end of such current year, and shall then give up such possession to the succeeding owner of the land, and shall pay to such succeeding owner a part of the rent accrued since the last payment became due, proportionate to the part of the period of payment elapsing after the termination of the estate of the lessor to the giving up such possession; and the tenant in such case shall be entitled to a reasonable compensation for the tillage and seed of any crop not gathered at the expiration of such current year from the person succeeding to the possession. (Rev., s. 1990; Code, s. 1749; 1868-9, 156, s. 8; 1931, c. 173, s. 1; C. S. 2347.)

Editor's Note.—Under the common law a tenant for an uncertain time was entitled to the annual production of his annual labor although his tenancy was terminated by the happening of some contingent event, and the remainderman might be deprived of his rent for a part of the current year. This section was passed to protect the right of the remainderman and to secure for him his rent for the part of the year which had not elapsed at the time his title vested. See Hayes v. Wrenn, 167 N. C. 229, 231, 83 S. E. 356.

The Act of 1931, which amended this section to permit an agricultural tenant for years, in case the tenancy is terminated by the sale of the land under any mortgage or deed of trust, to continue his occupation to the end of the current year and to apportion the rent, excepted pending litigation. The act became effective March 23, 1931. See 9 N. C. Law Rev. 379.

Section Reasonable and Constitutional.—This section is but a reasonable legislative regulation of the method and means whereby the remainderman, or succeeding owner, comes into possession and complete enjoyment of his estate and is constitutional. King v. Foscue, 91 N. C. 116, 120.

When No Limitation Exists.—Wherever the relation of landlord and tenant exists, without any limitation as to time, such tenancy shall be from year to year, nor shall either party be at liberty to put an end to it unless by a regular notice. Stedman v. McIntosh, 26 N. C. 291.

Lease Continued.—A lease of land made by a tenant for life terminates at his death, but by this section the lease is continued to the end of the current lease-year so that the tenant's representatives may gather his crop. King v. Foscue, 91 N. C. 116.

Amount Remainderman Entitled to.—The common law being in force in this jurisdiction and the representatives of the life tenant upon his uncertain tenure from death being entitled to the emblements, this section was passed. This was done to protect the right of the remainderman and to secure for him his rent for the part of the year which had not elapsed at the time his title vested. Under the statute the remainderman is entitled to a part of the rent proportionate to the part of the year elapsing after the termination of the life estate and before the surrendering of possession to the remainderman. See King v. Foscue, 91 N. C. 116; Collins v. Bass, 198 N. C. 99, 102, 150 S. E. 706; Hayes v. Wrenn, 167 N. C. 229, 83 S. E. 356.

Lease for One Year Included.—The phrase employed in this section, "a lease for years," is used in a technical sense, like the similar phrase, "an estate for years," by which is meant, an estate for a definite period of time, and it embraces a lease for a single year. King v. Foscue, 91 N. C. 116, 119.

§ 42-8. Grantees of reversion and assigns of lease have reciprocal rights under covenants.—The grantee in every conveyance of reversion in lands, tenements or hereditaments has the like advantages and remedies by action or entry against the holders of particular estates in such real property, and their assigns, for nonpayment of rent, and for the nonperformance of other conditions and agreements contained in the instruments by the tenants of such particular estates, as the grantor or lessor or his heirs might have; and the holders of such particular estates, and their assigns, have the like advantages and remedies against the grantee of the reversion, or any part thereof, for any conditions and agreements contained in such instruments, as they might have had against the grantor or his lessors or his heirs. (Rev., s. 1989; Code, s. 1765; 32 Hen. VIII, c. 34; 1868-9, c. 156, s. 18; C. S. 2348.)

§ 42-9. Agreement to rebuild, how construed in case of fire.—An agreement in a lease to repair a demised house shall not be construed to bind the contracting party to rebuild or repair in case the house shall be destroyed or damaged to more than one-half of its value, by accidental fire not occurring from the want of ordinary diligence on his part. (Rev., s. 1985; Code, s. 1752; 1868-9, c. 156, s. 11; C. S. 2349.)

Common Law Rule.—In 24 Cyc., 1089 the common law rule is stated as follows: "According to the common law rule, which has been followed generally in this country, a covenant on the part of the lessee to repair or keep in good repair imposes on him an obligation to rebuild the demised premises if they are destroyed during the term by fire or other casualty, even where he is without fault," citing a large number of cases. Chambers v. North River Line, 179 N. C. 199, 202, 102 S. E. 198.

Same—Examples.—"In Pasteur v. Jones, 1 N. C., 393, the court held that where a tenant covenanted to build and leave in repair, and did build, but the houses were destroyed by fire the court of equity would compel him either to rebuild or pay the value of the buildings." Chambers v. North River Line, 179 N. C. 199, 202, 102 S. E. 198.

The lessee's covenant to maintain the leased premises in its present condition is equivalent to a general covenant to repair and leave in repair under the common law, and unless otherwise stated in the lease or provided by statute this duty is not affected by the lessee's negligence or the fact that the property had been destroyed during the continuance of the lease by the act of God or the public enemy. Chambers v. North River Line, 179 N. C. 199, 102 S. E. 198.

Changes Made by Section.—This section was enacted to change the rule, formerly existing, but limits its application to the destruction of a house by accidental fire, and only then where it is damaged to more than half its value. It does not apply to a case where the destruction is not by fire, but by ice and flood. Chambers v. North River Line, 179 N. C. 199, 202, 102 S. E. 198.

The word "maintain" is practically the same thing as repair, which means to restore to a sound or good state, after decay, injury, dilapidation, or partial destruction. Chambers v. North River Line, 179 N. C. 199, 102 S. E. 198.

§ 42-10. Tenant not liable for accidental damage.—A tenant for life, or years, or for a less term, shall not be liable for damage occurring on the demised premises accidentally, and notwithstanding reasonable diligence on his part, unless he so contract. (Rev., s. 1991; Code, s. 1751; 1868-9, C. 156, s. 10; C. S. 2350.)

Duty of Landlord and Tenant Distinguished.—I Jaggard Torts, 223, thus sums up the law: "Normally, the occupant and not the owner or landlord is liable to third persons for injuries caused by the failure to keep the premises in repair. The liability may, however, be extended to the landlord or owner; (a) when he contracts to repair; (b) where he knowingly demises the premises in a ruinous condition or in a state of nuisance; (c) where he authorizes a wrong." Knight v. Foster, 163 N. C. 329, 330, 79 S. E. 614.

Covenant against Accident from External Causes.—It was held in the United States Supreme Court that the law does not imply a warranty that no accident shall befall the tenant from external forces, such as storms, tornadoes, earthquakes or snowslides. Doyle v. Union Pac. R. Co., 147 U. S. 413, 423, 13 S. Ct. 333, 37 L. Ed. 223.

When Lessor Liable for Injuries.—While ordinarily the tenant and not the landlord is liable to third persons for injuries caused to them by the failure to keep the premises in repair, the liability may be extended to the owner, where the condition existed at the time the premises were leased, and for months and years, and the owner knew of it and had promised to rectify it at the solicitation of the tenant. Knight v. Foster, 163 N. C. 329, 79 S. E. 614.

No Implied Obligation on Lessor to Make Repairs.—It was held in the United States Supreme Court that a covenant is never implied that the lessor will make any repairs. Sheets v. Selden, 7 Wall. 416, 423, 19 L. Ed. 166.

Lessor and Lessee Both Liable.—Where a landlord has leased the lower floor of his building as a store and has rented an office above, which has defective plumbing, to a dentist, in an action by the lessee of the store for water damages to his stock of goods, evidence that the lessor had contracted to repair, but for years had failed to inspect or repair the plumbing, and that the dentist had approved an insufficient outlet for the water flowing from his cuspidor and had negligently left his cuspidor turned on during the night, is sufficient, if believed by the jury, to sustain a verdict against the landlord and the dentist jointly, the negligence of each being the proximate cause of the injury. Rucker, etc., Co. v. Willey, 174 N. C. 42, 93 S. E. 379.

Lessee's Duty to Repair or Rebuild.—It was held in a United States Supreme Court case that in the absence of an express covenant to repair, a tenant is not answerable for accidental damages, nor is he bound to rebuild, if the buildings are accidentally destroyed by fire or otherwise. United States v. Bostwick, 94 U. S. 53, 24 L. Ed. 65.

Mismanagement of Ferry.—Where the owner of land, to which a ferry is annexed as a franchise, leases the land together with the ferry, he is not responsible for any damage sustained by a third person, from the mismanagement of the ferry while in possession of the lessee. Biggs v. Ferrell, 34 N. C. 1.

§ 42-11. Willful destruction by tenant misdemeanor.—If any tenant shall, during his term or after its expiration, wilfully and unlawfully demolish, destroy, deface, injure or damage any tenement house, uninhabited house or other outhouse, belonging to his landlord or upon his premises by removing parts thereof or by burning, or in any other manner, or shall unlawfully and willfully burn, destroy, pull down, injure or remove any fence, wall or other inclosure or any part thereof, built or standing upon the premises of such landlord, or shall wilfully and unlawfully cut down or destroy any timber, fruit, shade or ornamental tree belonging to said landlord, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Rev., s. 3686; Code, s. 1761; 1883, c. 224; C. S. 2351.)

Cross References.—As to burning or destroying crops, see § 14-141. As to larceny of ungathered fruit and crops, see § 14-78. As to other regulations of landlord and tenant, see §§ 14-358, 14-359.

Meaning of "Willfull."—The word willful as used in this section means something more than an intention to do a thing. It implies the doing of the act purposely and deliberately, indicating a purpose to do it, without authority—careless whether he has the right or not—in violation of law, and it is this which makes the criminal intent, without which one cannot be brought within the meaning of a criminal statute. State v. Whitener, 93 N. C. 590, 592.

Same—Where Acts Bona Fide.—If the defendants reasonably and bona fide believe that they have the right to remove the buildings, etc., they are not guilty of removing them "willfully" so as to bring their act within the meaning of this section. State v. Rowland Lumber Co., 153 N. C. 610, 614, 69 S. E. 58.

Right to Remove Certain Fixtures.—It is intimated that an away-going tenant has the right to remove fixtures put on the premises by himself for his own convenience. State v. Whitener, 93 N. C. 950. Approved in State v. Morgan, 136 N. C. 628, 630, 48 S. E. 670.

Houses Covered by Section.—For meaning of "tenement house," "uninhabited house" and "outhouse" as used in this section, see State v. Rowland Lumber Co., 153 N. C. 610, 612, 613, 69 S. E. 58.

Corporation Liable.—A corporation is indictable for the acts of its officers and agents under this section. State v. Rowland Lumber Co., 153 N. C. 610, 69 S. E. 58.

The Indictment.—An indictment charging the defendant with burning a dwelling house occupied by him "as lessee" falls within this section. State v. Graham, 121 N. C. 623, 28 S. E. 409.

Burden of Proof.—In an indictment under this section the burden of proof is upon the State to establish, first, that the relation of landlord and tenant existed, and, second, that during the tenant's term or after its expiration he did willfully and unlawfully injure the tenement-house. State v. Godwin, 138 N. C. 582, 50 S. E. 277.

Evidence.—In the trial of an indictment for burning a dwelling house occupied by the defendant as lessee, evidence that the defendant at a prior time was guilty of a similar offence is inadmissible. State v. Graham, 121 N. C. 623, 28 S. E. 409.

§ 42-12. Lessee may surrender, where building destroyed or damaged.—If a demised house, or other building, is destroyed during the term, or so much damaged that it cannot be made reasonably fit for the purpose for which it was hired, except at an expense exceeding one year's rent of the premises, and the damage or destruction occur without negligence on the part of the lessee or his agents or servants, and there is no agreement in the lease respecting repairs, or providing for such a case, and the use of the house damaged or destroyed was the main inducement to the hiring, the lessee may surrender his estate in the demised premises by a writing to that effect delivered or tendered to the landlord within ten days from the damage or destruction, and by paying or tendering at the same time all rent in arrear, and a part of the rent growing due at the time of the damage or destruction, proportionate to the time between the last period of payment and the occurrence of the damage or destruction, and the lessee shall be thenceforth discharged from all rent accruing afterwards; but not from any other agreement in the lease. This section shall not apply if a contrary intention appear from the lease. (Rev., s. 1992; Code, s. 1753; 1868-9, c. 156, s. 12; C. S. 2352.)

In General.—An inspection of this section will show that not only is it in terms confined to a demised house or other building but that it expressly excepts from its provisions those leases in which there is an "agreement respecting repairs." Also by its express terms it requires, as a condition precedent to its application, that a lessee "surrender his estate in the demised premises by a writing to that effect, delivered or tendered to the landlord within ten days from the damages." Chambers v. North River Line, 179 N. C. 199, 202, 102 S. E. 198.

The modification of the common law liability of the lessee of a building, etc., to pay the rent, when the building was accidentally destroyed, etc., during the term of his lease, by this section, under certain conditions, is to some extent a legislative recognition that, without its provisions, the principles of the common law would prevail; and neither the statute, being for the benefit of the lessee, nor the common law principle, has application, when the lessee is insisting on certain rights arising to him under the provisions of the lease. Miles v. Walker, 179 N. C. 479, 102 S. E. 884.

When Landlord Restores Building.—Though the landlord may be under no implied obligation to restore or repair a building which had been destroyed, etc., if he does enter and make the required repairs without further agreement on the subject, the building so rebuilt or restored will come under the provisions of the lease as far as the same may be applied, and for a breach the landlord may be held responsible. Miles v. Walker, 179 N. C. 479, 102 S. E. 884.

Crack in Swimming Pool.—Where a swimming pool is leased for a year, under a written contract that the lease would terminate upon the pool becoming unfit for use, it was held, that a crack in the walls thereof by which the pool was drained of water, and repaired by the lessor at an inappreciable sum, is not sufficient to give the lessee the right to cancel the lease when repair was made under a parol agreement within a reasonable time. Archibald v. Swaringen, 192 N. C. 756, 135 S. E. 849.

Time Allowed for Repairs.—Where a monthly rental to be paid by the lessee of a building, and an obligation to make certain repairs by him, are specified as the consideration for the lease, with forfeiture of the lease upon the non-payment of the rent at stated times, the lessee's liability to repair and to pay rent are, as a rule, distinct and independent obligations, and the law will imply that the lessee be given a reasonable time in which to make the repairs if no time is stated in the lease. Miles v. Walker, 179 N. C. 497, 102 S. E. 884.

Reasonable Time.—Where the controversy is made to depend upon whether the damage to the leased premises had been repaired by the lessor within a reasonable time when the extent of the damage is insufficient to terminate the lease under its written terms, evidence that three days had elapsed between the time the lessor and lessee had agreed upon the repairs necessary and the time the repairs were made, is sufficient to sustain an affirmative verdict that they were made in a reasonable time. Archibald v. Swaringen, 192 N. C. 756, 135 S. E. 849.

Where the terms of a lease fully provide for the rights of the parties upon destruction of the property by fire such rights will be determined in accordance with the written agreement, without reference to this section, or the common law. Grant v. Borden, 204 N. C. 415, 168 S. E. 492.

Damage Insufficient to Enable Lessee to Surrender Premises.—Carolina Mtg. Co. v. Massie, 209 N. C. 146, 183 S. E. 425.

§ 42-13. Wrongful surrender to other than landlord misdemeanor.—Any tenant or lessee of lands who shall willfully, wrongfully and with intent to defraud the landlord or lessor, give up the possession of the rented or leased premises to any person other than his landlord or lessor, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Rev., s. 3682; Code, s. 1760; 1883, c. 138; C. S. 2353.)

§ 42-14. Notice to quit in certain tenancies.—A tenancy from year to year may be terminated by a notice to quit given one month or more before the end of the current year of the tenancy; a tenancy from month to month by a like notice of seven days; a tenancy from week to week, of two days. (Rev., s. 1984; Code, s. 1750; 1891, c. 227; 1868-9, c. 156, s. 9; C. S. 2354.)

Local Modification.—Forsyth: 1935, c. 119; Halifax: 1935, c. 22; Hertford: 1939, c. 367; Montgomery: 1925, c. 196, s. 2; Perquimans: 1935, c. 472; Pitt: 1925, c. 196, s. 2; Randolph: 1925, c. 196, s. 2; Wake: 1931, c. 20.

Notice Must Be Given.—A tenant from year to year is entitled to a written or verbal notice to quit, and a mere demand for possession is insufficient. Vincent v. Corbin, 85 N. C. 108, cited in note in 25 L. R. A., N. S., 103.

A landlord has no right to dispossess his tenant from year to year, without first giving the statutory notice, where the tenant acknowledges the tenancy, sets up no adverse claim or other defense, and relies upon the want of legal notice. Fayetteville Waterworks Co. v. Tillinghast, 119 N. C. 343, 348, 25 S. E. 960.

Effect of Notice.—On May 18, 1897, a landlord gave a tenant from month to month notice "to get out within 30 days." The landlord had received the rent for May. It was held, that such notice was invalid as to May, as the rent had been paid, and as to June, because not ending with the month. Simmons v. Jarman, 122 N. C. 195, 29 S. E. 332, cited in notes in 25 L. R. A., N. S., 857, 858.

Verbal Notice Sufficient.—A verbal notice by landlord to tenant is sufficient. Section 1-585 applies to a different class of notices. Poindexter v. Call, 182 N. C. 366, 109 S. E. 26.

Tenancies at Will.—Where a person is put in possession of land by the owner, without any agreement for rent, and with an express provision that he shall leave it whenever the owner may require him to do so, he is not a tenant from year to year, but strictly a tenant at will, and is not entitled to notice to quit as provided in this section. Humphries v. Humphries, 25 N. C. 362, cited in notes in 35 L. R. A., N. S., 708; 41 L. R. A., N. S, 405.

Where a tenancy is from year to year, and, after the commencement of a year, there is an express lease for a certain time and an agreement to quit at the end of that time, no notice is necessary in order to terminate the tenancy after such time. Williams v. Bennett, 26 N. C. 122.

Where one occupied land claiming it as his own, and when possession was demanded refused to deliver it up, it was held that he could not afterwards insist upon the statutory notice. Head v. Head, 52 N. C. 620, cited in note in 25 L. R. A., N. S., 105.

Effect of Holding Over.—When a tenant for a year or longer time holds over and is recognized by the landlord without further agreement or other qualifying facts or circumstances, he becomes tenant from year to year, and is subject to the payment of the rent and other stipulations of the lease as far as the same may be applied to existing conditions. Murrill v. Palmer, 164 N. C. 50, 80 S. E. 55; Holton v. Andrews, 151 N. C. 340, 66 S. E. 212; Harty v. Harris, 120 N. C. 408, 27 S. E. 90; Scheelky v. Koch, 119 N. C. 80, 25 S. E. 713; Stedman v. McIntosh, 26 N. C. 291. But it is competent to rebut the presumption that he is a tenant from year to year by proof of a special agreement. Harty v. Harris, 120 N. C. 408, 27 S. E. 90.

Same Tenant Entitled to Notice. — It was not error to charge the jury that, if the tenant leased the premises at five dollars per month and had held over several months, paying the same rent without any new agreement, he was a tenant from month to month, and entitled to fourteen days' (now seven days') notice to quit. Branton v. O'-Briant, 93 N. C. 99.

But the fact that a tenant, who entered into the occupation of premises under an express lease from month to month, continued the occupation for more than two years, is no reason why he should be considered a tenant from year to year, and entitled to the one month's notice to quit. Jones v. Willis, 53 N. C. 430.

Effect of Leaving Premises after Waiver of Notice.—A tenant from year to year, who waives his right to notice to quit, and goes out of possession, has no right to go back on the premises. Torrans v. Stricklin, 52 N. C. 50.

Different Agreement Not Prohibited.—This section does not preclude the parties from making a different agreement as to notice of intention to terminate tenancy. Cherry v. Whitehurst, 216 N. C. 340, 4 S. E. (2d) 900.

Art. 2. Agricultural Tenancies.

§ 42-15. Landlord's lien on crops for rents, advances, etc., enforcement. — When lands are rented or leased by agreement, written or oral, for agricultural purposes, or are cultivated by a cropper, unless otherwise agreed between the parties to the lease or agreement, any and all crops raised on said lands shall be deemed and held to be vested in possession of the lessor or his assigns at all times, until the rents for said lands are paid and until all the stipulations contained in the lease or agreement are performed, or damages in lieu thereof paid to the lessor or his assigns, and until said party or his assigns is paid for all advancements made and expenses incurred in making and saving said crops. A landlord, to entitle himself to the benefit of the lien herein provided for, must conform as to the prices charged for the advance to the provisions of the article Agricultural Liens, in the chapter Liens.

This lien shall be preferred to all other liens, and the lessor or his assigns is entitled, against the lessee or cropper, or the assigns of either, who removes the crop or any part thereof from the lands without the consent of the lessor or his assigns, or against any other person who may get possession of said crop or any part thereof, to the remedies given in an action upon a claim for the delivery of personal property.

Provided, that when advances have been made by the federal government or any of its agencies, to any tenant or tenants on lands under the control of any guardian, executor and/or administrator for the purpose of enabling said tenant or tenants to plant, cultivate and harvest crops grown on said land, the said guardian, executor and/or administrator may waive the above lien in favor of the federal government, or any of its agencies, making said advances. (Rev., s. 1993; Code, s. 1754; 1876-7, c. 283; 1917, c. 134; 1933, c. 219; C. S. 2355.)

I. IN GENERAL.

Editor's Note.—Public Laws 1933, c. 219, added the proviso now appearing at the end of this section. For a summary of the 1933 amendment, see 11 N. C. L. Rev., 265.

A Statutory Remedy.—In Howland v. Forlaw, 108 N. C. 567, 13 S. E. 173, the court held that the common-law remedy of lessors by distress does not obtain in this State; and that, except as specifically given by statute, a landlord has no lien on the product of the leased property for rent. Reynolds v. Taylor, 144 N. C. 165, 167, 56 S. E. 871.

Applies Only to Agriculture.—This statutory lien is only given when lands are rented or leased for agricultural purposes. Reynolds v. Taylor, 144 N. C. 165, 167, 56 S. E. 871.

What "Crops" Include.—The words "crop raised" mean simply the crop grown or gathered during the year. The word "raised" appears nowhere else in the section, nor in succeeding sections, only the word "crops" is used. The Legislature had in mind no distinction between fructus industriales (products obtained by labor and cultivation) and fructus naturales (products which emanate from the power of nature alone), and there was no need of any. State v. Crook, 132 N. C. 1053, 1056, 44 S. E. 32.

The section gives the landlord a lien for his rent "on any and all crops," that is, on all that is "cropped, cut or gathered" in that season from his land. State v. Crook, 132 N. C. 1053, 1057, 44 S. E. 32.

The operation of a mortgage or agricultural lien in respect to crops is confined to crops then or about to be planted, and will not be extended further than those planted next after the execution of the instrument. Wooten v. Hill, 98 N. C. 49, 3 S. E. 846.

Same—Hay.—Hay is ordinarily embraced in the word "crop" as used in this section. But not, it seems, when it is merely a spontaneous growth, as crab-grass, which sprung up after another crop is housed. State v. Crook, 132 N. C. 1053, 44 S. E. 32.

What Constitutes One a Cropper.—An agreement by him who cultivates land that the owner who advances "guano, seed-wheat," etc., shall out of the crop be repaid in wheat for such advancements, constitutes the former a cropper, and not a tenant. State v. Burwell, 63 N. C. 661.

Cropper Has No Estate.—A cropper has no estate in the land, and his possession is that of the landlord. State v. Austin, 123 N. C. 749, 31 S. E. 731.

When Lessee Has Lien.—When a lessee sublets a part of the farm he becomes lessor to his sublessee and is entitled to the same lien on his crop which the statute gives a lessor. Moore v. Faison, 97 N. C. 322, 2 S. E. 169; Perry v. Perry, 127 N. C. 23, 37 S. E. 71; and therefore holds a prior lien to a mortgagor of the crops. Perry v. Perry, 127 N. C. 23, 37 S. E. 71. The lien of the original landlord is not, however, impaired. See note under the succeeding analysis line, catchline "Effect of Subrenting."

Agreements between Tenants.—Where A and B, tenants in common, agreed to make partition of lands and fix the boundaries, and A agreed that B should occupy the whole and pay to him a portion of the crop raised thereon, it was held, that although this was valid as an agreement for a year, it did not constitute a lease, so as to create the relation of landlord and tenant between the parties. Medlin v. Steele, 75 N. C. 154.

II. LIEN OF LESSOR.

Landlord's Lien Superior.—The landlord's lien, where the same attaches, by the express terms of the statute is made superior to all other liens. Reynolds v. Taylor, 144 N. C. 165, 167, 56 S. E. 871; Wooten v. Hill, 98 N. C. 49, 3 S. E. 846; Ledbetter v. Quick, 90 N. C. 276; Brewer v. Chappell, 101 N. C. 251, 7 S. E. 670; Rhodes v. Smith-Douglass Fertilizer Co., 220 N. C. 21, 16 S. E. (2d) 408. Including the right of the purchaser of a crop. Burwell v. Coopers Co-op. Warehouse Co., 172 N. C. 79, 89 S. E. 1064.

The lien of a landlord takes precedence to that of a third party for advances, notwithstanding the priority of the latter in time. Spruill v. Arrington, 109 N. C. 192, 13 S. E. 779; Crinkley v. Egerton, 113 N. C. 444, 18 S. E. 669. And this precedence is to the extent of the advances made. Wooten v. Hill, 98 N. C. 49, 3 S. E. 846. See Wise Supply Co. v. Davis, 194 N. C. 328, 139 S. E. 599.

A contract expressed and purporting to be a lease of lands for agricultural purposes, does not change the relationship of landlord and tenant between the parties upon the ground that if the amount of stipulated rent should be paid at a certain time it should be regarded as a credit upon the purchase of the land at a stated price, it not appearing that the transaction of the contemplated purchase had been made under option given; and the landlord or one to whom the contract has been validly assigned may enforce his lien under this section in priority to the lien, under § 44-52, of one furnishing advancements for the cultivation of the crop. Wise Supply Co. v. Davis, 194 N. C. 328, 139 S. E. 599.

The landlord's lien under this section does not attach to a crop made entirely in a year subsequent to that in which the advancements are furnshed to the tenant. Brooks v. Garrett, 195 N. C. 452, 142 S. E. 486.

The statutory landlord's lien under this section is superior to that of one furnishing supplies to the cropper under § 44-52, but where the cropper under a separate contract with the landlord raises a certain crop, the lien for advancements attaches to such crop, and where the landlord has received the payment for the entire crop including the special crop under separate contract with the cropper and pays himself the amount due as rent, the lien for advancements attaches to the surplus and the holder of the lien may recover thereon from the landlord. Glover v. Dail, 199 N. C. 659, 155 S. E. 575.

Third Person Charged with Notice. — Every person who makes advancements to a tenant or cropper of another does so with notice of the rights of the landlord, and that any lien that he may have on the tenant's crop is preferred to all others, and the risk is his if the tenant does not satisfy the preferred lien by complying with the contract and all stipulations in regard thereto. Thigpen v. Leigh, 93 N. C. 47. Thigpen v. Maget, 107 N. C. 39, 46, 12 S. E. 272.

Same—Caveat Emptor.—This section gives a landlord the title to the crop until the rent is actually paid (whether the claim be reduced to a judgment or not), and such title is not impaired by the fact that the tenant conveys the crop to a third person, who takes without notice of the landlord's claim. The rule caveat emptor applies. Belcher v. Grimsley, 83 N. C. 88.

Liability to Other Lienholders.—A landlord is liable to account to persons who have a lien for supplies furnished for the value of the crops in excess of his lien. Crinkley v. Egerton, 113 N. C. 142, 146, 18 S. E. 341.

Liability of Landlord for Marketing of Tenant's Tobacco. —The landlord and tenant act (this section) gives the landlord only a preferred lien on his tenant's crop on his rented lands for the payment of the rent; and unless and until the landlord has acquired a part of his tenant's crop for the rent, he has acquired no tobacco from his tenant that comes within the provisions of his membership contract in the Tobacco Growers Co-operative Association, and is not liable for the penalty therein contained for failure to market the tobacco raised by his tenant. Tobacco Growers Co-op. Ass'n v. Bissett, 187 N. C. 180, 121 S. E. 446. For an article discussing the effect of the landlord's lien upon cooperative marketing in North Carolina and citing the above case, see 2 N. C. Law Rev. 188.

Effect of Subrenting.—The landlord's right to the crop to secure payment of rent is not impaired by the sub-letting of his tenant. The sub-tenant's crop may thereby be subjected to a double lien, that of the landlord and that of his immediate lessor, but the lien of the landlord is paramount. Montague v. Mial, 89 N. C. 137. Moore v. Faison, 97 N. C. 322, 324, 2 S. E. 169; State v. Crook, 132 N. C. 1053, 1054, 44 S. E. 32.

Antecedent Debts Not Included.—It was not intended to confer a lien upon the landlord for antecedent debts which the lessee might stipulate to pay, and give them a preference over the agricultural lienee, whose money and supplies materially assisted in the production of the crops. This view is assumed to be correct in Thigpen v. Maget, 107 N. C. 39, 12 S. E. 272, and is undoubtedly in harmony with the policy of the law in securing the landlord his rent, and at the same time enabling the tenant to obtain advances from third parties. Ballard Co. v. Johnson, 114 N. C. 141, 144, 19 S. E. 98.

Although under this section and sections 44-52 and 44-60 the lien of a landlord for rent and advances is superior to that of a third party making advances to the tenant, yet such priority exists only for rent accruing or advances made during the year in which the crops are grown, and not for a balance due for an antecedent year. Ballard v. Johnson, 114 N. C. 141, 19 S. E. 98.

Assignee of Tenant's Rent Note.—The assignee of a note, given by a tenant for rent, has a landlord's lien on the crop. Avera v. McNeill, 77 N. C. 50, 52.

Where a landlord furnishes advancements for the making of crops, the lien for the rent and for advancements are in equal degree, and now attach, since the amendment of § 44-52, by chapter 302, Public Laws 1925, to the crops raised by the tenant on the same lands, planted during one calendar year and harvested in the next. Brooks v. Garrett, 195 N. C. 452, 142 S. E. 486.

Conferred Upon Mortgagee.—An agreement after default, between mortgagor and mortgagee, that the mortgagor was to remain in possession as tenant, would confer a landlord's lien upon the mortgagee. Cooper v. Kimbell, 123 N. C. 120, 31 S. E. 346.

Vendor after Default.—After default by a vendee of land to pay the purchase money, the vendor may by contract become landlord of the vendee so as to avail himself of the landlord's lien given by this section. Jones v. Jones, 117 N. C. 254, 23 S. E. 214; Ford v. Green, 121 N. C. 70, 73, 28 S. E. 132.

Certain Costs Included.—The landlord's lien extends to and includes the costs of such legal proceedings as are necessary to recover his rents; and, as all the crops are his until such lien is duly discharged, the tenant has no property therein which he can claim as his constitutional exemption as against such costs. Slaughter v. Winfrey, 85 N. C. 159.

Judgment for Rent.—This section makes a judgment for rent a lien on the crop. Hargrove v. Harris, 116 N. C. 418, 21 S. E. 916.

III. POSSESSION AND TITLE TO CROP.

Common Law Provision.—Before this section was passed, the title to the whole of the crop was, in contemplation of law, vested in the tenant (even where the parties had agreed upon the payment as rent of a certain portion of the crop) until a division had been made and the share of the landlord had been set apart to him in severalty. Deaver v. Rice, 20 N. C. 567; Gordon v. Armstrong, 27 N. C. 409; Biggs v. Ferrell, 34 N. C. 1; Ross v. Swaringer, 31 N. C. 481. Howland v. Forlaw, 108 N. C. 567, 569, 13 S. E. 173.

Section Applies Only to Landlord and Tenant.—Except in the case of landlord and tenant provided for specifically by this section, the lessor has no lien upon the product of the leased property as rent; it is for all purposes, until division, deemed vested in the tenant, and his sale to third persons before the rent is ascertained and set apart conveys a good title. Howland v. Forlaw, 108 N. C. 567, 13 S. E. 173.

Where the occupant of land is a vendee or mortgagor in default, although he may for some purposes be considered a tenant at will, he is not a lessee whose crop, under the provisions of this section, is vested in the landlord. Taylor v. Taylor, 112 N. C. 27, 16 S. E. 924.

Vested in Lessor.—All crops raised on the land, whether by tenant or cropper, are by this section deemed to be vested in the landlord, in the absence of an agreement to the contrary, until the rents and advancements are paid. State v. Austin, 123 N. C. 749, 31 S. E. 731; State v. Keith, 126 N. C. 1114, 1115, 36 S. E. 169; Durham v. Speeke, 82 N. C. 87; Smith v. Tindall, 107 N. C. 88, 12 S. E. 121; Batts v. Sullivan, 182 N. C. 129, 108 S. E. 511; Rhodes v. Smith-Douglass Fertilizer Co., 220 N. C. 21, 16 S. E. (2d) 408.

Assignee of landlord's lien for rent is the owner of the crops raised to the extent of cash rent due and is entitled thereto as against tenant and third party holder of note for rent. Rhodes v. Smith-Douglass Fertilizer Co., 220 N. C. 21, 16 S. E. (2d) 408.

Same—For His Protection.—For the lessor's protection, as between him and the tenant, the possession of the crop is deemed vested in the lessor. State v. Higgins, 126 N. C. 1112, 36 S. E. 113.

Lessor May Use Force.—An attempt to appropriate and carry off the crop may be repelled by the landlord by force, provided no more force is used than is necessary to protect his possession. State v. Austin, 123 N. C. 749, 31 S. E. 731.

Actual Possession in Tenant.—Though the constructive possession of the crop is vested by statute in the landlord, yet, during the cultivation, and for all purposes of making and gathering the crop, the actual possession is in the tenant until the rent and advances become due, or a division can be had. Jordan v. Bryant, 103 N. C. 59, 9 S. E. 135.

The whole tenor of this and the following sections contemplates the right of the lessee or cropper to hold the actual possession, until such time as a division shall be made. State v. Copeland, 86 N. C. 692, 694.

Same—May Maintain Action.—As against third parties the tenant is entitled to the possession both of the land and crop while it is being cultivated, and he may maintain an action in his own name for any injury thereto. Bridgers v. Dill, 97 N. C. 222, 1 S. E. 767. And the ownership of the crop is well charged as his in the indictment. State v. Higgins, 126 N. C. 1112, 36 S. E. 113.

But in Desert Salt Co. v. Tarpey, 142 U. S. 241, 245, 12 S. Ct. 158, 35 L. Ed. 999, it was stated, as follows: "The lessee can of course, as against strangers, have no greater right of possession than his lessor."

Tenant Has Insurable Interest.—That the possession and title to the crop are deemed vested in the landlord does not divest the tenant of an insurable interest in the crops before division. "It is well settled that any person has an insurable interest in property by the existence of which he will gain an advantage, or by the destruction of which he will suffer a loss, whether he has or has not any title in, or lien upon, or possession of, the property itself." Harrison v. Fortlage, 161 U. S. 57, 16 S. Ct. 488, 40 L. Ed. 616; Batts v. Sullivan, 182 N. C. 129, 131, 108 S. E. 511.

When Crop Divided.—Unless otherwise provided by an agreement, the crop should be divided from time to time, as considerable parts thereof shall be gathered, especially where the gathering of the whole is delayed for a considerable length of time. Smith v. Tindall, 107 N. C. 88, 91, 12 S. E. 121.

Crop Left in Field.—A crop cultivated by a tenant and left standing in the field after the expiration of this term, becomes the property of the landlord. And this is so, whether or not the tenant has assigned the crop. Sanders v. Ellington, 77 N. C. 255.

IV. ADVANCEMENTS.

Purchaser Takes with Knowledge.—A purchaser or mortgagee of a crop takes with a full knowledge that if advances shall be necessary to enable the cultivator to make the crop, and without which there would perhaps be no crop, such advances shall be a preferred lien upon the crop, made by reason of such advances, and that this preference shall extend to "existing" liens. Wooten v. Hill, 98 N. C. 49, 53, 3 S. E. 846.

What Included.—The "advancements" referred to in this section embrace anything of value supplied by the landlord to the tenant, or cropper, in good faith, directly or indirectly, for the purpose of making and saving the crop. Brown v. Brown, 109 N. C. 124, 13 S. E. 797.

Where a landlord either pays or becomes responsible for supplies to enable the tenant to make a crop, such supplies are advances. Powell v. Perry, 127 N. C. 22, 37 S. E 276.

Supplies necessary to make and save a crop are such articles as are in good faith furnished to and received by the tenant for that purpose. Ledbetter v. Quick, 90 N. C. 176.

Where a landlord advanced certain cotton-seed, etc., to his tenant in 1884, and in 1885 and 1886 allowed his tenant to retain parts of the undivided cotton-seed and crops by way of advancement, it was held that the plaintiff had a landlord's lien on such seed and crops. Thigpen v. Maget, 107 N. C. 39, 12 S. E. 272.

Same—Board.—Where the landlord supplied the tenant and his family with board, to the end that he might make and save the crop, nothing to the contrary appearing, the reasonable value of such board would constitute an advancement within the meaning of this section. Brown v. Brown, 109 N. C. 124, 13 S. E. 797.

Same—Presumption.—When advancements are of such things as in their nature are appropriate and necessary to the cultivation of the crop, e. g. farming implements and work animals, they will be presumed to create the lien; but where they are of articles not in themselves so appropriate and necessary—e. g., dry goods and groceries—whether they will constitute a lien depends upon the purpose for which they were furnished, and it must affirmatively appear that they were made in aid of the crop. Brown v. Brown, 109 N. C. 124, 13 S. E. 797.

Same—Question for Jury. — It was proper in the court to leave it to the jury to find whether upon the evidence a mule and wagon, etc., were treated as advancements. Ledbetter v. Quick, 90 N. C. 276.

Where Diverted.—That the lessee diverts the advancements from the purpose contemplated cannot change their nature and the purpose of them. Womble v. Leach, 83 N. C. 84; Ledbetter v. Quick, 90 N. C. 276; Brown v. Brown, 109 N. C. 124, 127, 13 S. E. 797.

Collusion and Fraud.—Where landlord and tenants undertake by collusion and fraud to create an indebtedness to the former, under color of "advancements," to the prejudice of creditors of the tenant, such a transaction will not be sustained. Ledbetter, v. Quick, 90 N. C. 276.

Crop of Sublessee.—The original lessor, after his lessee has paid him in full, has no lien under the statute on the crop of the sublessee for advances made by him to the sublessee. Moore v. Faison, 97 N. C. 322, 2 S. E. 169.

V. REMEDY OF LESSOR TO ENFORCE LIEN.

In General.—The landlord may bring claim and delivery to recover possession of crops raised by the tenant or cropper, where his right of possession under this section is denied, or he may resort to any other appropriate remedy to enforce his lien for the rent due and the advances made. Livingston v. Farish, 89 N. C. 140.

Tenant's Liability.—If the tenant, at any time before satisfying the landlord's liens for rent and advances, removes the crop, or any part of it, he becomes liable civilly and criminally. Jordan v. Bryan, 103 N. C. 59, 9 S. E. 135.

When Action Lies.—The action will lie, not only where the crops are removed from the land leased, but also in a case where the tenant or cropper, or any other person, takes the crops into his absolute possession and denies the right of the landlord thereto. Livingston v. Farish, 89 N. C. 140.

The remedy of claim and delivery was designated for the landlord's protection, and it cannot, either by the terms of the statute or by any fair construction, be resorted to before the time fixed for division, unless the tenant is about to remove or dispose of the crop, or abandon a growing crop; otherwise, the tenant might be sued for parcel of the crop as it was gathered. Neither the language nor the spirit of the statute will permit this. Jordan v. Bryan, 103 N. C. 59, 65, 9 S. E. 135.

Same—When No Time for Division Fixed.—Where, in a contract between the landlord and tenant, no time was fixed for the division of the crop, the landlord was not obliged to wait until the whole crop had been gathered, but had a right to bring his action for the possession of the crop before it was fully harvested. Rich v. Hobson, 112 N. C. 79, 16 S. E. 931; Smith v. Tindall, 107 N. C. 88, 12 S. E. 121.

Action for Undivided Portion.—The lessor can maintain an action for recovery of an undivided portion of a crop, and it is not necessary that he shall specifically designate in his complaint or, affidavit in claim and delivery, such undivided part. Boone v. Darden, 109 N. C. 74, 13 S. E. 728.

Denial of Landlord's Title.—Where in his answer in an action of claim and delivery, the defendant tenant denies that the crop, for the possession of which the action is brought, is vested in the plaintiff landlord, such denial avoids the necessity of proving a demand before the commencement of the action. Rich v. Hobson, 112 N. C. 79, 16 S. E. 931.

Not a Personal Property Exemption.—The right to enforce the landlord's lien cannot be defeated by the lessee's claiming the crop as a part of his personal property exemption. Durham v. Speeke, 82 N. C. 87.

Action against Tenant by Third Party.—In an action against a tenant to recover damages for his failure to deliver a crop under his contract of sale, the defense that the tenant had not settled with his landlord, and that the contract was therefore illegal, is not available, when it is shown that the landlord had consented to the sale and had thereafter taken possession of the crop at the tenant's request. Lee v. Melton, 173 N. C. 704, 91 S. E. 697.

§ 42-16. Rights of tenant. — When the lessor or his assigns gets the actual possession of the crop or any part thereof otherwise than by the mode prescribed in § 42-15, and refuses or neglects, upon a notice, written or oral, of five days, given by the lessee or cropper or the assigns of either, to make a fair division of said crop, or to pay over to such lessee or cropper or the assigns of either, such part thereof as he may be entitled to under the lease or agreement, then and in that case the lessee or cropper or the assigns of either is entitled to the remedies against the lessor or his assigns given in an action upon a claim for the delivery of personal property to recover such part of the crop as he, in law and according to the lease or agreement, may be entitled to. The amount or quantity of such crop claimed by said lessee or cropper or the assigns of either, together with a statement of the grounds upon which it is claimed, shall be fully set forth in an affidavit at the beginning of the action. (Rev., s. 1994; Code, s. 1755; 1876-7, c. 283, s. 2; C. S. 2356.)

In General.—The action allowed to a cropper by this section is given against the lessor or employer, and, also, against any person to whom he may assign, or sell, the crop, or any interest therein as, for example, the person who might have an "agricultural lien" upon it, acquired subsequently to the making of the contract with the cropper. Rouse v. Wooten, 104 N. C. 229, 232, 10 S. E. 190.

Purpose.—This section intends to encourage and favor the laborer as to those matters and things upon which his labor has been bestowed, and that he shall certainly reap the just benefit of his toil. Rouse v. Wooten, 104 N. C. 229, 233, 10 S. E. 190.

Same—Creates a Lien.—While one who labors in the cultivation of a crop, under a contract that he shall receive his compensation from the crops when matured and gathered, has no estate or interest in the land, but is simply a laborer—at most, a cropper—his right to receive his share is protected by this section, which for certain purposes creates a lien in his favor, and which will be enforced against the employer or landlord, or his assigns, and which has precedence over agricultural liens made subsequent to his contract, but before the crop is harvested. Rouse v. Wooten, 104 N. C. 229, 10 S. E. 190.

Lessor Cannot Seize Crop.—The lessor has no right, when there is no agreement to that effect, to take the actual possession from the lessee or cropper, and can never do so, except when he obtains the same by an action of claim and delivery, upon the removal of the crop by the lessee or cropper. State v. Copeland, 86 N. C. 692, 694.

Lessee Left to Civil Remedy.—When the lessee is wrongfully deprived of the actual possession of his crop by the lessor, he is left to his civil remedy, under this section for the breach of trust, should the lessor refuse to account. State v. Keith, 126 N. C. 1114, 36 S. E. 169.

Same—Claim and Delivery.—Where a lessor gets possession of the crop by his own act, the remedy of the lessee to recover his part thereof is by claim and delivery. Wilson v. Respass, 86 N. C. 112.

Same—Trover Not Proper.—Where a landlord took the crop into his sole possession, and refused to divide when it was demanded, on the ground that the crop was not then in condition for a division, but he did not deny the tenant's right to a division, and while in his possession the crop was destroyed by fire; it was held, that this did not amount to a conversion, and an action in the nature of trover could not be maintained. Shearin v. Riggsbee, 97 N. C. 216, 1 S. E. 770.

Lessee's Right to Bring Trespass.—In the U. S. Supreme Court, Van Allen v. Assessors, 3 Wall. 573, 598, 18 L. Ed. 229, it was held, that a man who has leased a farm has no right to possession or control during the lease, and if he wrongfully enters upon the building, or land, and retains wrongful possession of it, he may be liable to the tenant in an action of trespass quare clausum fregit.

Where Lessor Seizes Too Much.—If a lessor seizes more than enough to satisfy his lien, and refuses "to make a fair division of the crop," the defendant can compel him to do so in the manner prescribed in this section. Boone v. Darden, 109 N. C. 74, 78, 13 S. E. 728.

When Cropper Dies.—Where a cropper dies before harvesting his crop, his personal representatives are entitled to recover his share of the crop. Parker v. Brown, 136 N. C. 280, 48 S. E. 657.

§ 42-17. Action to settle disputes between parties.—When any controversy arises between the parties, and neither party avails himself of the provisions of this chapter, it is competent for either party to proceed at once to have the matter determined in the court of a justice of the peace, if the amount claimed is two hundred dollars or less, or in the superior court of the county where the property is situate if the amount so claimed is more than two hundred dollars. (Rev., s. 1995; Code, s. 1756; 1876-7, c. 283, s. 3; C. S. 2357.)

Editor's Note.—This and the following section were formerly part of the same section and should be read together. This should be noted in considering the following annotations.

In General.—It is quite apparent that this and the following section contemplate an action to determine a dispute growing out of the agreement, and the relative rights and obligations created by its stipulations, without disturbing the possession of the lessee, cropper or assignee of either, and this intent is very clearly expressed in the terms used in the enactment. It is a method of settling a controversy without resort to the possessory actions authorized in the antecedent sections. Wilson v. Respass, 86 N. C. 112, 115.

Purpose.—The purpose of the section is to provide a summary mode for ascertaining a disputed liability, and, in case of delay, to secure the fruits of the judgment by requiring of the lessee, as a condition of his remaining in possession of the property, an adequate undertaking for the payment of what may be recovered. Deloatch v. Coman, 90 N. C. 186, 188.

No Application to Vendee.—This and the following section, like section 42-15, are plainly inapplicable where the occupant of land is a vendee or mortgagor. Taylor v. Taylor, 112 N. C. 27, 31, 16 S. E. 924.

Jurisdiction of Justice.—An action by a landlord against a tenant for the recovery of rent, the sum demanded not exceeding two hundred dollars, is an action upon the contract of lease and cognizable in the court of a justice of the peace. Deloatch v. Coman, 90 N. C. 186.

In an action by a landlord to recover the rent, when neither the sum demanded nor the amount ascertained to be due exceeds two hundred dollars, it was held that the superior court has no jurisdiction. Foster v. Penny, 76 N. C. 131.

Same—Tort Actions.—The special jurisdiction of justices of the peace under this section does not extend to torts, but is confined to actions for enforcing contracts. Montague v. Mial, 89 N. C. 137.

Action by Tenant's Widow.—The widow of a tenant cultivating land on shares, after the crop is allotted to her in her year's support, may maintain an action for conversion against the landlord. Parker v. Brown, 136 N. C. 280, 48 S. E. 657.

Same—Recovery.—And she was not compelled to resort to the remedy prescribed by this section. She may pursue her remedy by a civil action to recover the value of the crops, subject to such deductions as the lessor was entitled to by reason of advancements, costs of housing, and such damage as he may have sustained by reason of the inability of the lessee to perform his contract. Parker v. Brown, 136 N. C. 280, 287, 48 S. E. 657.

§ 42-18. Tenant's undertaking on continuance or appeal.—In case there is a continuance or an appeal from the justice's decision to the superior court, the lessee or cropper, or the assigns of either, shall be allowed to retain possession of said property upon his giving an undertaking to the lessor or his assigns, or the adverse party, in a sum double the amount of the claim, if such claim does not amount to more than the value of such property, otherwise to double the value of such property, with good and sufficient surety, to be approved by the justice of the peace or the clerk of the superior court, conditioned for the faithful payment to the adverse party of such damages as he shall recover in said action. (Rev., s. 1995; Code, s. 1756; 1876-7, c. 283, s. 3; C. S. 2358.)

§ 42-19. Crops delivered to landlord on his undertaking. — In case the lessee or cropper, or the assigns of either, at the time of the appeal or continuance mentioned in § 42-18, fails to give the undertaking therein required, then the constable or other lawful officer shall deliver the property into the actual possession of the lessor or his assigns, upon the lessor or his assigns giving to the adverse party an undertaking in double the amount of said property, to be justified as required in § 42-18, conditioned for the forthcoming of such property, or the value thereof, in case judgment is pronounced against him. (Rev., s. 1996; Code, s. 1757; 1876-7, c. 283, s. 4; C. S. 2359.)

Court Will Not Restrain Lessor.—Where the lessor has taken possession of the crop, and is solvent and has been required to give the bond of indemnity, the court will not restrain him from selling the crop. Wilson v. Respass, 86 N. C. 112. In such a case it seems that the tenant cannot regain possession of the crop under the provisions of section 42-18 since that section contemplates non-intervention on the part of the court and not a removal of possession from one party to another. Id.

§ 42-20. Crops sold, if neither party gives undertaking.—If neither party gives the undertaking described in § 42-18 and § 42-19, it is the duty of the justice of the peace or the clerk of the superior court to issue an order to the constable or sheriff, or other lawful officer, directing him to take into his possession all of said property, or so much thereof as may be necessary to satisfy the claimant's demand and costs, and to sell the same under the rules and regulations prescribed by law for the sale of personal property under execution, and to hold the proceeds thereof subject to the decision of the court upon the issue or issues pending between the parties. (Rev., s. 1997; Code, s. 1758; 1876-7, c. 283, s. 5; C. S. 2360.)

§ 42-21. Tenant's crop not subject to execution against landlord.—Whenever servants and laborers in agriculture shall by their contracts, oral or written, be entitled, for wages, to a part of the crops cultivated by them, such part shall not be subject to sale under executions against their employers, or the owners of the land cultivated. (Rev., s. 1998; Code, s. 1796; C. S. 2361.)

§ 42-22. Unlawful seizure by landlord or removal by tenant misdemeanor.—If any landlord shall unlawfully, willfully, knowingly and without process of law, and unjustly seize the crop of his tenant when there is nothing due him, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. If any lessee or cropper, or the assigns of either, or any other person, shall remove a crop, or any part thereof, from land without the consent of the lessor or his assigns, and without giving him or his agent five days notice of such intended removal, and before satisfying all the liens held by the lessor or his assigns, on said crop, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Rev., ss. 3664, 3665; Code, s. 1759; 1876-7, c. 283, s. 6; 1883, c. 83; C. S. 2362.)

I. IN GENERAL.

Purpose of Section.—The leading and material part of the purpose is to keep the crops on the land, so that they may be easily seen, known, identified and protected, and to prevent fraud and fraudulent practices that would be greatly facilitated by removing them from the land to any distance. State v. Williams, 106 N. C. 646, 648, 10 S. E. 901.

The purpose of this section is to render the statutory provisions and regulations of the preceding sections more effective, and this penal provision must be interpreted in that light and in that view. It embraces both the landlord and the tenant, and intends the more effectually to secure their respective rights as prescribed. State v. Ewing, 108 N. C. 755, 757, 13 S. E. 10.

Applies Only to Specified Liens.—It will be observed that the section does not extend to, and embrace, all liens the lessor may have on any property of the tenants, but only "all the liens held by the lessor or his assigns on the crop." State v. Turner, 106 N. C. 691, 693, 19 S. E. 1026.

Extends to Receivers.—This section extends to and protects receivers charged with the management of lands. State v. Turner, 106 N. C. 691, 693, 10 S. E. 1026.

The lessor's rights cannot be abridged by any subordinate contracts of the lessee. Montague v. Mial, 89 N. C. 137, 139.

Cited in Never Fail Land Co. v. Cole, 197 N. C. 452, 457, 149 S. E. 585.

II. THE WRONGFUL ACT.

A Misdemeanor Only.—The offense of removing crops, without payment, or giving notice of such removal, although it may have been committed secretly, or at night, is a simple misdemeanor, and cannot be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary. State v. Powell, 94 N. C. 921.

Actual Seizure Unnecessary.—To constitute the offense of an unlawful seizure of crops by the landlord, under this section, it is not essential that the landlord should take forcible or even manual possession of them; the offense will be complete if he exercises that possession or control which prevents the tenant from gathering and removing his crop in a peaceable manner. State v. Ewing, 108 N. C. 755, 13 S. E. 10.

Possession Important.—An indictment for larceny will not lie against a lessee or cropper for secretly appropriating the crop, to his own use, even if done with a felonious intent, where he is in the actual possession of the same. State v. Copeland, 86 N. C. 692.

An indictment for larceny will lie against a lessee or cropper for secretly appropriating the crop to his own use, where his actual possession thereof has terminated by a delivery to the landlord. State v. Webb, 87 N. C. 558.

If the crop is in the actual possession of the landlord, though undivided, the tenant may be convicted of larceny for feloniously taking and carrying it away; and the ownership of the property will be laid properly in the name of the landlord. State v. King, 98 N. C. 648, 4 S. E. 44.

Gathering the Crop.—How far the tenant might be justified under the statute in severing the crops from the land and storing them on it simply for the purpose of protection to them has been doubtful, but it has been held that he may do so in good faith for such purpose; he may not go beyond that. Varner v. Spencer, 72 N. C. 381; State v. Williams, 106 N. C. 646, 648, 10 S. E. 901.

The gathering and preservation of crops was not the evil intended to be remedied by this section, but the wrongful appropriation, whether by carrying them off the premises or consuming them on the premises, was the evil. Varner v. Spencer, 72 N. C. 381, 383.

Feeding Crop to Stock.—Where a lessee after putting a crop in the crib converted a portion thereof to his own use by feeding it to his stock without the consent of the landlord, this was a removal within the meaning of this section and indictable. Varner v. Spencer, 72 N. C. 381.

Removal from Premises.—Where a tenant without the consent of, or notice to, his landlord, and before satisfying the latter's lien, removed a portion of the crop from the land upon which it was produced and stored it in a building upon his (the tenant's) own land; it was held that he was guilty of unlawfully removing crops, notwithstanding he made the removal for the purpose of sheltering the crop, and kept it separate from others. State v. Williams, 106 N. C. 646, 10 S. E. 901.

Where Tenant Aids Subtenant.—If a tenant aids and abets a subtenant in removing a crop, before paying the lien of the landlord, he is guilty of a misdemeanor. State v. Crook, 132 N. C. 1053, 44 S. E. 32.

Damages by Landlord No Defense.—A tenant indicted for removal of crops without giving the landlord five days' notice cannot show in defense that he had sustained damage by the failure of the landlord to comply with the contract to the amount of the rents due. State v. Bell, 136 N. C. 674, 49 S. E. 163; State v. Neal, 129 N. C. 692, 40 S. E. 205, overruled.

III. THE INTENT.

Need Not Be Shown.—While the obvious purpose of this section is the protection of the lessor's interest against a fraudulent disposition or appropriation of the property, inconsistent with his right and tending to defeat the lien for rent, the wrongful intent is not a constituent of the criminal act described, and the offense is sufficiently charged in the substantial words of the act. State v. Pender, 83 N. C. 651, 653.

The intent in making the removal is immaterial. State v. Williams, 106 N. C. 646, 10 S. E. 901; State v. Crook, 132 N. C. 1053, 1055, 44 S. E. 32.

Implied from the Act.—The statute broadly forbids the removal of the crops, or any part of them, from the land, except in the case and in the way prescribed, and that without regard to the actual intent. The removal implies the intent to commit the offense. State v. Williams, 106 N. C. 646, 649, 10 S. E. 901.

IV. NOTICE.

Removal of Crops.—If it shall be necessary, in possible cases, to remove crops from the land for their protection, this should be done on notice, or legal steps taken as contemplated and allowed by the statute. State v. Williams, 106 N. C. 646, 649, 10 S. E. 901.

A Part of the Offense.—The offense of removing a crop by a tenant before paying the rent and discharging all liens of the landlord on it is not complete unless the crop is removed without giving the five days' notice, for if the notice is given, removing the crop is not an offense. State v. Crowder, 97 N. C. 432, 1 S. E. 690.

"Without Any Notice" Sufficient in Indictment. — An averment in an indictment for removing a crop, "without having given any notice of such intended removal" is equivalent to the averment that the removal was made without giving "five days' notice." State v. Powell, 94 N. C. 921.

Burden of Proof.—In order to convict the defendant of the offense of removing a crop without the consent of the landlord, the burden is on the State to show that the defendant had not given his landlord the statutory five days' previous notice before the crop had been removed. State v. Harris, 161 N. C. 267, 76 S. E. 683.

How Proven.—The want of such notice may be proved by any competent evidence, and it is not necessary that it should be proved by the landlord or his agent or assignee. State v. Crowder, 97 N. C. 432, 1 S. E. 690.

V. THE INDICTMENT.

Statute Must Be Followed.—An indictment under this section charging the defendant with removing the crop "without satisfying all liens on said crop," is defective. The words of the statute, "before satisfying all liens held by the lessor or his assigns on said crop," should have been followed. State v. Merritt, 89 N. C. 506; State v. Rose, 90 N. C. 712.

Sufficient Averment.—In an indictment under this section, it is sufficient to aver, in the words of the statute, that the act was done, "willfully and unlawfully," leaving it to the defendant to show in excuse, if he can, that such removal was made in good faith and for the preservation of the crop. State v. Pender, 83 N. C. 651.

Where an indictment for removing a crop alleged that the defendant did "rent from B," and subsequently, that he did "remove the crop without satisfying all liens held by said B"; it was held that this, in effect, sufficiently charged the relation of landlord and tenant, and that the "liens held by the lessor" were unpaid at the time of the alleged unlawful removal. State v. Turner, 106 N. C. 691, 10 S. E. 1026.

In this section the word "crop" includes those ungathered as well as those gathered, and an indictment that the landlord seized the "crop growing and unmatured in the field," etc., charges an indictable offense, when it is otherwise sufficient. State v. Townsend, 170 N. C. 696, 86 S. E. 718.

Lien Implied.—It is not necessary to allege, in an indictment under this section, that the lessor or landlord had a lien on the crop, where the bill contains an averment of the lease and of the relation of landlord and tenant, or cropper. By virtue of the statute the law implies a lien, and of this the courts will take notice. State v. Rose, 90 N. C. 712; State v. Merritt, 89 N. C. 506, distinguished. State v. Smith, 106 N. C. 653, 11 S. E. 166.

In an indictment for removing a crop, it is not necessary to negative the fact that, by agreement between the parties, it was stipulated that the crops should not be subjected to the statutory liens. State v. Turner, 106 N. C. 691, 10 S. E. 1026.

Variance.—Where an indictment for removal of crops without notice to the landlord charged an agreement by the defendant to raise a crop on the land of G., and on the trial the proof showed the title to be in another, who rented the land to G; it was held that there was no variance. State v. Foushee, 117 N. C. 766, 767, 23 S. E. 247.

Judgment Arrested.—When on the trial it was proved that the defendants had a license from the tenant, and such fact is not charged in the indictment, the judgment will be arrested. State v. Sears, 71 N. C. 295.

§ 42-23. Terms of agricultural tenancies in certain counties.—All agricultural leases and contracts hereafter made between landlord and tenant for a period of one year or from year to year, whether such tenant pay a specified rental or share in the crops grown, such year shall be from December first to December first, and such period of time shall constitute a year for agricultural tenancies in lieu of the law and custom heretofore prevailing, namely from January first to January first. In all cases of such tenancies a notice to quit of one month as provided in § 42-14 shall be applicable. If on account of illness or any other good cause, the tenant is unable to harvest all the crops grown on lands leased by him for any year prior to the termination of his lease contract on December first, he shall have a right to return to the premises vacated by him at any time prior to December thirty-first of said year, for the purpose only of harvesting and dividing the remaining crops so ungathered. But he shall have no right to use the houses or outbuildings or that part of the lands from which the crops have been harvested prior to the termination of the tenant year, as defined in this section.

This section shall only apply to the counties of Anson, Ashe, Bladen, Brunswick, Columbus, Cumberland, Duplin, Gaston, Hoke, Lincoln, Pender, Robeson, Sampson, and Yadkin. (Pub. Loc. 1929, c. 40; Pub. Loc. 1935, c. 288; Pub. Loc. 1937, cc. 96, 600; Pub. Loc. 1941, c. 41; 1943, c. 68.)

§ 42-24. Turpentine and lightwood leases.—This chapter shall apply to all leases or contracts to lease turpentine trees, or use lightwood for purposes of making tar, and the parties thereto shall be fully subject to the provisions and penalties of this chapter. (Rev., s. 1999; Code, s. 1762; 1893, c. 517; 1876-7, c. 283, s. 7; C. S. 2363.)

Extension of Section 42-22.—This section extends section 42-22 to "all leases or contracts to lease turpentine trees," and thus it is made a misdemeanor for the lessee of turpentine trees to remove any part of the turpentine crop in the like case as when the removal of the crop by an agricultural tenant is made such offense. State v. Turner, 106 N. C. 691, 692, 10 S. E. 1026.

Cited in Farmville Oil, etc., Co. v. Bourne, 205 N. C. 337, 339, 171 S. E. 368.

§ 42-25. Mining and timber land leases. — If in a lease of land for mining, or of timbered land for the purpose of manufacturing the timber into goods, rent is reserved, and if it is agreed in the lease that the minerals, timber or goods, or any portion thereof, shall not be removed until the payment of the rent, in such case the lessor shall have the rights and be entitled to the remedy given by this chapter. (Rev., s. 2000; Code, s. 1763; 1868-9, c. 156, s. 16; C. S. 2364.)

Not a Lease.—Where the owner of lands conveys the timber standing and growing thereon, with provision that the time for cutting and removing it will be extended upon payment of a certain sum, this is not a leasehold interest but an estate in fee. Carolina Timber Co. v. Wells, 171 N. C. 262, 88 S. E. 327.

Art. 3. Summary Ejectment.

§ 42-26. Tenant holding over may be dispossessed in certain cases.—Any tenant or lessee of any house or land, and the assigns under the tenant or legal representatives of such tenant or lessee, who holds over and continues in the possession of the demised premises, or any part thereof, without the permission of the landlord, and after demand made for its surrender, may be removed from such premises in the manner hereinafter prescribed in any of the following cases:

1. When a tenant in possession of real estate holds over after his term has expired.

2. When the tenant or lessee, or other person under him, has done or omitted any act by which, according to the stipulations of the lease, his estate has ceased.

3. When any tenant or lessee of lands or tenements, who is in arrear for rent or has agreed to cultivate the demised premises and to pay a a part of the crop to be made thereon as rent, or who has given to the lessor a lien on such crop as a security for the rent, deserts the demised premises, and leaves them unoccupied and uncultivated. (Rev., s. 2001; Code, ss. 1766, 1777; 4 Geo. II, c. 28; 1868-9, c. 156, s. 19; 1905, cc. 297, 299, 820; C. S. 2365.)

V. The Action.

I. APPLICATION AND SCOPE.

The basis and scope of summary ejectment in actions between landlord and tenant are established by this section. Warren v. Breedlove, 219 N. C. 383, 387, 14 S. E. (2d) 43.

Relation of Landlord and Tenant Necessary.—The summary remedy in ejectment provided by this section for the ousting of tenants who hold over after the expiration of the term is restricted to cases where the relation between the parties is that of landlord and tenant. Hauser v. Morrison, 146 N. C. 248, 59 S. E. 693; McCombs v. Wallace, 66 N. C. 481; Hughes v. Mason, 84 N. C. 473; McIver v Seaboard Airline R. Co., 163 N. C. 544, 545, 79 S. E. 1107.

This section applies only where the conventional relationship of landlord and tenant exists, and when title to the property is in issue, the jurisdiction of the justice of the peace is ousted, and the proceeding is properly dismissed as in case of nonsuit upon appeal to the Superior Court. Prudential Ins. Co. v. Totten, 203 N. C. 431, 166 S. E. 316.

Summary ejectment will lie only where the relationship of landlord and tenant existed between the parties under a lease contract, express or implied, and the tenant has held over after the expiration of the term, and while it is necessary that the tenant's entry should have been under a demise, it need not be for a definite term, a tenancy at will being sufficient. Simons v. Lebrun, 219 N. C. 42, 12 S. E. (2d) 644.

Not Coextensive with Doctrine of Estoppel.—The remedy by summary proceedings in ejectment given by this section, is not coextensive with the doctrine of estoppel arising where one enters and holds land under another, but is restricted to the case where the relation between the parties is simply that of landlord and tenant. McLaurin v. McIntyre, 167 N. C. 350, 352, 83 S. E. 627; Hauser v. Morrison, 146 N. C. 248, 249, 59 S. E. 693.

Some Contract or Lease Required.—This section was only intended to apply to a case in which the tenant entered into possession under some contract or lease, either actual or implied, with the supposed landlord, or with some person under whom the landlord claimed in privity, or where the tenant himself is in privity with some person who had so entered. McCombs v. Wallace, 66 N. C. 481.

Where Purchase Changed to Lease.—Where one unconditionally surrenders his rights under the contract of purchase, and enters into a contract of lease, he may be evicted by summary proceeding under this section; and it is not necessary that he should actually surrender the possession of the land and receive it again at the hands of the lessor. Riley v. Jordan, 75 N. C. 180.

Two Classes Excluded.—The construction of this section excludes from the operation of the act two classes, viz.: vendees in possession under a contract for title and vendors retaining possession after a sale, though such persons are certainly tenants at will or sufferance for some purposes, and frequently so styled. McCombs v. Wallace, 66 N. C. 481.

When Section Does Not Apply. — The remedy by summary ejectment before a justice of the peace, under this section et seq., is not available when there is a relation of mortgagor and mortgagee, or vendor and vendee. McLaurin v. McIntyre, 167 N. C. 350, 83 S. E. 627.

Where a controversy involved the disputed title to real property, out of which certain equities arose, this section does not apply. McLaurin v. McIntyre, 167 N. C. 350, 83 S. E. 627.

Where the adverse contentions of the parties, supported by evidence, put the title to the property in issue, the jurisdiction of the justice of the peace is ousted, and on appeal in the Superior Court the action is properly dismissed. Home Bldg., etc., Ass'n v. Moore, 207 N. C. 515, 177 S. E. 633.

Same—Bargainor in Deed of Trust.—A bargainor in a deed of trust containing a stipulation for the retention of the possession of the land conveyed until sold under the terms of the trust, and who holds possession after a sale of the premises by a trustee, is not such a tenant as comes within the purview of this section, and hence proceedings cannot be taken under that act to evict him. McCombs v. Wallace, 66 N. C. 481.

Same—Entry as Vendee.—Where a party entered land under a contract of purchase, while so possessed a justice of the peace has no jurisdiction to oust him under this section. McCombs v. Wallace, 66 N. C. 481; McMillan v. Love, 72 N. C. 18; Riley v. Jordan, 75 N. C. 180, 183.

Consideration of Equitable Defenses. — A justice of the peace has jurisdiction of a summary action in ejectment, and may determine the questions of tenancy and holding over, and while he has no equitable jurisdiction, he may consider equitable defenses set up in summary ejectment in so far as they relate to the issue of tenancy. Farmville Oil, etc., Co. v. Bowen, 204 N. C. 375, 168 S. E. 211.

Applied in Lassiter v. Stell, 214 N. C. 391, 199 S. E. 409.

II. HOLDING OVER.

Constitutional.—Paragraph one of this section, as to a tenant holding over was declared constitutional in Credle v. Gibbs, 65 N. C. 192, 193.

In General.—It is a principle fully recognized in this State, that when a tenant for a year or a longer time holds over and is recognized as tenant by the landlord, without further agreement or other qualifying facts or circumstances, he becomes tenant from year to year, and subject to the payment of the rent and other stipulations of the lease as far as the same may be applied to existent conditions. Holton v. Andrews, 151 N. C. 340, 66 S. E. 212; Harty v. Harris, 120 N. C. 408, 27 S. E. 90; Scheelky v. Koch, 119 N. C. 80, 25 S. E. 713; Stedman v. McIntosh, 26 N. C. 191; Murrill v. Palmer, 164 N. C. 50, 53, 80 S. E. 55.

But a mere acceptance of the rents by the landlord does not create a tenancy from year to year nor preclude the landlord from recovery of possession. In an action to recover the possession, as the plaintiff is entitled to damages for the occupation of the premises, the plaintiff can accept voluntary payments without thereby ratifying the tenant's possession. Mauney v. Norvell, 179 N. C. 628, 630, 103 S. E. 372; Vanderford v. Foreman, 129 N. C. 217, 39 S. E. 839.

Effect of Recognition.—The landlord may treat his tenant, who holds over, as a trespasser and eject him, or he may recognize him as tenant; but when such recognition has been made, a presumption arises of a tenancy from year to year, and as stated, under the terms and stipulations of the lease as far as the same may apply. Murrill v. Palmer, 164 N. C. 50, 54, 80 S. E. 55.

When Holding Over Allowed.—It seems that it is not a wrongful holding over when the tenant has been compelled to continue his occupation of necessity; for instance, when he has remained in possession solely by reason of the sickness of the tenant or some member of his family, and of such a character that removal could not be presently made without serious danger to the patient. Murrill v. Palmer, 164 N. C. 50, 54, 80 S. E. 55.

Issue as to Holding Over.—The only question the court can try under paragraph one in this proceeding is, "Was the defendant the tenant of the plaintiff, and does he hold over after the expiration of the tenancy?" McIver v. Seaboard Airline R. Co., 163 N. C. 544, 545, 79 S. E. 1107; McDonald v. Ingram, 124 N. C. 272, 274, 32 S. E. 677.

Applied in Stadiem v. Harvell, 208 N. C. 103, 179 S. E. 448.

Cited in Texas Co. v. Beaufort Oil & Fuel Co., 199 N. C. 492, 494, 154 S. E. 829.

III. BREACH OF A PROVISION OF LEASE.

Condition Must Be in Lease.—A summary proceeding in ejectment under the landlord and tenant act begun during the lessee's term can not be maintained where the contract of lease contained no condition, the breach of which would authorize a re-entry by the lessor. The mere failure to pay rent upon "a lease at ..... dollars a year, payable monthly," does not warrant such re-entry. Meroney v. Wright, 81 N. C. 390.

Suit for Rescission Cannot Be Substituted on Appeal. — Where a verbal lease does not provide for its termination or reserve the right of re-entry for breach by the tenant of stipulated conditions in regard to maintenance and operation of the property, breach of such conditions cannot be made the basis for summary ejectment, and issues of fraud in procuring the lease and wilful breach of the conditions are erroneously submitted in the Superior Court upon appeal in such action, it not being permissible for a party to substitute on appeal a suit for rescission. Dees v. Apple, 207 N. C. 763, 178 S. E. 557.

When Breach Waived.—After the breach of the tenant of his contract, acceptance of rent by the landlord which has accrued thereafter, will prevent the landlord from insisting on the forfeiture. Winder v. Martin, 183 N. C. 410, 111 S. E. 708.

Defense of Partial Eviction.—Where a defendant has been partially evicted in order for him, in a summary action of ejectment, to retain possession of the leased premises by paying relatively a reduction in the rental price fixed by his contract, he must prove that such eviction was caused by the plaintiff, or one acting under his authority, or one paramount in title, and upon failure of evidence of this character, his claim therefor is properly denied as a matter of law. Blomberg v. Evans, 194 N. C. 113, 138 S. E. 593.

IV. RIGHTS OF THE PARTIES.

Tenant May Dispute Assignment.—A tenant cannot dispute the title of his landlord but where an action of ejectment is brought by one claiming to be an assignee of the landlord, the tenant may dispute the assignment. Steadman v. Jones, 65 N. C. 388, 391.

Not Entitled to Renewal.—Tenant, in the absence of an agreement, has neither a legal nor an equitable right to a renewal of the lease. Barnes v. Saleeby, 177 N. C. 256, 98 S. E. 708.

Same—Consideration.—An option in the original lease to renew would not be without consideration, but landlord's agreement during the lease, and not constituting part of the lease, not to lease the property without first giving the tenant an opportunity to renew the lease was unenforcible, being without consideration. Barnes v. Saleeby, 177 N. C. 256, 98 S. E. 708.

Estoppel to Deny Landlord's Title.—It is an undoubted principle of law, fully recognized by the Federal Supreme Court, that a tenant cannot dispute the title of his landlord, either by setting up a title, in himself, or a third person, during the existence of the lease or tenancy. Rector v. Gibbon, 111 U. S. 276, 284, 4 S. Ct. 605, 28 L. Ed. 427. And the same rule is applied by the North Carolina courts. Lawrence v. Eller, 169 N. C. 211, 85 S. E. 291.

Neither the tenant of land nor any person claiming title by or through him can dispute the right of the landlord to recover the premises in ejectment, after the expiration of the lease, upon the ground of a defect of title in the landlord. Callender v. Sherman, 27 N. C. 711.

Where the relation of landlord and tenant is established, and the latter is in possession, the tenant will not be permitted to dispute the title of the landlord during the continuance of the lease. Hobby v. Freeman, 183 N. C. 240, 111 S. E. 1. Before disputing his landlord's title, the tenant must restore possession. Buckhorne Land, etc., Co. v. Yarbrough, 179 N. C. 335, 102 S. E. 630.

Same—Slave at Time of Entry.—See Wilson v. James, 79 N. C. 349, cited in notes in 7 L. R. A., N. S., 222, 52 L. R. A., N. S., 976, 977, 978.

Subtenant.—Not only the tenant but his sublessee is estopped to deny the title of his immediate landlord. Bonds v. Smith, 106 N. C. 553, 11 S. E. 322, cited in note in 7 L. R. A., N. S., 931.

V. THE ACTION.

Landlord Proper Party to Bring.—The landlord under whom a tenant has entered into the possession of the leased premises is the proper one to bring his summary action of ejectment (authorized by this section) to dispossess the tenant holding over after the expiration of his lease, upon proper notice to vacate, and the objection of the tenant that the landlord has again leased the premises to another to begin immediately upon the expiration of his term, and that the second lessee is the only one who can maintain the proceedings in ejectment, is untenable. Shelton v. Clinard, 187 N. C. 664, 122 S. E. 477.

A landlord may institute suit in the Superior Court to eject his tenant, the remedy of summary ejectment before a justice of the peace not being exclusive, and in such action the Superior Court acquires jurisdiction where the defendant denies plaintiff's title, controverts the allegations of tenancy, and pleads betterments. Bryan v. Street, 209 N. C. 284, 183 S. E. 366.

Third Party Let in.—When, in an action for the recovery of real estate, both the plaintiff and a third party claim to be the landlord of the defendant, the latter has a right, upon affidavit, to be let in as a party defendant to the action. Rollins v. Rollins, 76 N. C. 264.

Estoppel.—In a proceeding before a justice of the peace under this section, a defendant who does not deny having entered as the tenant of the plaintiff is estopped from setting up a superior title existing at the date of the lease or subsequently acquired from a third person. Heyer v. Beatty, 76 N. C. 28.

A suit to restrain execution on a judgment in summary ejectment by a justice of the peace, on the ground that the justice had no jurisdiction, is properly dismissed where it appears that plaintiff, formerly the mortgagor of the property, had leased the property and was estopped from attacking the foreclosure and setting up the relation of mortgagor and mortgagee. Shuford v. Greensboro Joint-Stock Land Bank, 207 N. C. 428, 177 S. E. 408.

Provision for Renewal as Defense.—While a provision of renewal of a lease is not itself a renewal so as to vest an estate, yet it gives an equity which may be set up as a defense in a summary proceeding in ejectment. While the court allows this equitable defense to the summary proceedings, the defendants must pay the accrued rent. McAdoo v. Callum Bro. & Co., 86 N. C. 419.

Burden of Proof.—In an action of ejectment, the burden of proving that the tenancy has terminated is on the plaintiff. Poindexter v. Call, 182 N. C. 366, 109 S. E. 26.

Evidence.—See Hargrove v. Cox, 180 N. C. 360, 104 S. E. 757.

§ 42-27. Local: Refusal to perform contract ground for dispossession.—When any tenant or cropper who enters into a contract for the rental of land for the current or ensuing year willfully neglects or refuses to perform the terms of his contract without just cause, he shall forfeit his right of possession to the premises. This section applies only to the following counties: Alleghany, Anson, Beaufort, Bertie, Bladen, Brunswick, Burke, Cabarrus, Camden, Carteret, Caswell, Chatham, Chowan, Cleveland, Columbus, Craven, Cumberland, Currituck, Davidson, Duplin, Edgecombe, Franklin, Gaston, Gates, Greene, Guilford, Halifax, Harnett, Hertford, Hoke, Hyde, Jackson, Johnston, Jones, Lenoir, Martin, Mecklenburg, Montgomery, Nash, Northampton, Onslow, Pasquotank, Pender, Perquimans, Pitt, Polk, Randolph, Robeson, Rockingham, Rowan, Rutherford, Sampson, Swain, Tyrrell, Union, Wake, Wayne, Washington, Wilson, Yadkin, Moore, Surry and Stokes. (Rev., s. 2001, subsec. 4; Code, ss. 1766, 1777; 4 Geo. II, c. 28; 1868-9, c. 156, s. 19; 1905, cc. 297, 299, 820; 1907, cc. 43, 153; 1909, cc. 40, 550; Pub. Loc. Ex. Sess. 1924, c. 66; 1931, cc. 50, 194, 446; 1933, cc. 86, 485; 1935, c. 39; 1943, cc. 69, 115, 459; C. S. 2366.)

Editor's Note.—The Acts of 1931 added Moore, Rutherford, Stokes and Surry Counties to this section.

Public Laws 1933, cc. 86, 485, added Pasquotank and Polk counties to this section, although Pasquotank had already been added by chapter 66 of the Public-Local Laws of the 1924 Extra Session.

Public Laws 1935, chapter 39 added Guilford to the list of counties to which the section is applicable.

The 1943 amendments made this section applicable to Hoke, Brunswick and Davidson counties.

§ 42-28. Summons issued by justice on verified complaint.—When the lessor or his assigns, or his or their agent or attorney, makes oath in writing, before any justice of the peace of the county in which the demised premises are situated, stating such facts as constitute one of the cases described in § 42-26 and § 42-27, and describing the premises and asking to be put in possession thereof, the justice shall issue a summons reciting the substance of the oath, and requiring the defendant to appear before him or some other justice of the county, at a certain place and time (not to exceed five days from the issuing of the summons, without the consent of the plaintiff or his agent or attorney), to answer the complaint. The plaintiff or his agent or attorney may in his oath claim rent in arrear, and damage for the occupation of the premises since the cessation of the estate of the lessee: Provided, the sum claimed shall not exceed two hundred dollars; but if he omits to make such claim, he shall not be thereby prejudiced in any other action for their recovery. (Rev., s. 2002; Code, s. 1767; 1868-9, c. 156, s. 20; 1869-70, c. 212; C. S. 2367.)

When Defendant Denies Tenancy.—In a proceeding before a justice of the peace under this section, where the defendant denies the alleged tenancy, it is the duty of the justice to proceed and try the issue of tenancy. Foster v. Penry, 77 N. C. 160.

Question of Jurisdiction.—The question of jurisdiction is not to be determined by matter set up in the answer, but the court should hear the evidence as to the issue of tenancy, and if the same be found for the landlord, an estoppel operates upon the tenant, and the title to the land is not drawn in controversy. Hahn v. Latham, 87 N. C. 172.

If the defense involved the title to real estate, a justice of the peace has no jurisdiction thereof, and should dismiss the proceeding. Forsythe v. Bullock, 74 N. C. 135.

Defense.—The tenant may set up in his answer any equitable defense which he may have to his landlord's claim. Forsythe v. Bullock, 74 N. C. 135.

Same—Effect of Failure to Set up Defense.—Where a defendant failed to set up the defense that he was not a tenant, but held under an agreement to purchase, and it was decided that he was a tenant he cannot be heard to question the validity of the judgment nor can he restrain its execution except in a direct proceeding to set it aside for fraud, etc. Isler v. Hart, 161 N. C. 499, 500, 77 S. E. 681.

Effect of Provision for Renewal.—A provision for renewal in a lease is not itself a renewal so as to vest an estate, yet it gives an equity which may be set up as a defense in a summary proceeding in ejectment. McAdoo v. Callum Bros. & Co., 86 N. C. 419.

Section Is Not an Exception to Requirement of § 1-57.—While this section clearly provides that the agent or attorney of the lessor may make the oath in writing required in actions in summary ejectment, it does not provide an exception to the requirement of § 1-57, that "every action must be prosecuted in the name of the real party in interest." Choate Rental Co. v. Justice, 211 N. C. 54, 55, 188 S. E. 609.

And the same applies to suits for the collection of rents. Home Real Estate, etc., Co. v. Locker, 214 N. C. 1, 2, 197 S. E. 555.

§ 42-29. Service of summons.—The officer receiving such summons shall immediately serve it by the delivery of a copy to the defendant or by leaving a copy at his usual or last place of residence, with some adult person, if any such be found there; or, if the defendant has no usual place of residence in the county and cannot be found therein, by fixing a copy on some conspicuous part of the premises claimed. (Rev., s. 2003; Code, s. 1768; 1868-9, c. 156, s. 21; C. S. 2368.)

§ 42-30. Judgment by default or confession.—The summons shall be returned according to its tenor, and if on its return it appears to have been duly served, and if the defendant fails to appear, or admits the allegations of the complaint, the justice shall give judgment that the defendant be removed from, and the plaintiff be put in possession of, the demised premises; and if any rent or damages for the occupation of the premises after the cessation of the estate of the lessee, not exceeding two hundred dollars, be claimed in the oath of the plaintiff as due and unpaid, the justice shall inquire thereof, and give judgment as he may find the fact to be. (Rev., s. 2004; Code, s. 1769; 1868-9, c. 156, s. 22; C. S. 2369.)

Tenant May Hold after Adverse Judgment.—Where both plaintiff and an interpleading third party claim to be landlords of the defendant, if a judgment by default is taken against the tenant, no writ of possession can issue until the determination of the controversy between the plaintiff and the interpleading defendant. Rollins v. Rollins, 76 N. C. 264.

Same—When Evicted.—If in an action for the recovery of real estate in which a third person claiming as landlord of the defendant has been made a party defendant, judgment is taken against the tenant defendant and he is evicted, he is entitled to be restored to possession until the determination of the controversy between the plaintiff and the interpleading defendant. Rollins v. Bishop, 76 N. C. 268.

Same—Appeal.—Upon an appeal when the appeal is dismissed as to the tenant defendant, no writ of possession can issue from the justice's court until the determination of the controversy between the plaintiff and interpleading defendant. Rollins v. Henry, 76 N. C. 269.

§ 42-31. Trial by justice; jury trial; judgment; execution.—If the defendant by his answer denies any material allegation in the oath of the plaintiff, the justice shall hear the evidence and give judgment as he shall find the facts to be. If either party demands a trial by jury, it shall be granted under the rules prescribed by law for other trials by jury before a justice; and if the jury finds that the allegation in the plaintiff's oath, which entitles him to be put in possession, is true, the justice shall give judgment that the defendant be removed from and the plaintiff put in possession of the demised premises, and also for such rent and damages as shall have been assessed by the jury, and for costs; and shall issue his execution to carry the judgment into effect. (Rev., s. 2005; Code, s. 1770; 1868-9, c. 156, s. 23; C. S. 2370.)

Cross Reference.—As to jury trial in the court of a justice of the peace, see § 7-150 et seq.

Where Injunction Issues.—Where a person has been enjoined from bringing actions on each installment of rent as vexatious, such person is not precluded by such injunction from issuing execution on a judgment taken in a summary action in ejectment for the recovery of the property after the expiration of the lease. Featherstone v. Carr, 134 N. C. 66, 46 S. E. 15.

Effect of Judgment.—A judgment for a tenant in summary proceedings is not an estoppel on the landlord to the extent of precluding him from showing in a subsequent action advancements made prior to eviction to which he was entitled. Burwell v. Brodie, 134 N. C. 540, 47 S. E. 47.

Same—Matter Is Res Judicata as to Tenancy.—Where in proceedings in summary ejectment on final judgment entered in the superior court it has been adjudicated that A was the tenant of B, which judgment was not appealed from, the matter is res judicata, and A cannot maintain a suit for an injunction to restrain the execution of the judgment in the former action, or that he be kept in possession, or for an accounting, his remedy being to vacate the judgment for recognized equitable reasons in direct proceedings. Isler v. Hart, 161 N. C. 499, 77 S. E. 681.

§ 42-32. Damages assessed to trial.—On appeal to the superior court, the jury trying the issue joined shall assess the damages of the plaintiff for the detention of his possession to the time of the trial in that court, and judgment for the rent in arrear and for the damages assessed may, on motion, be rendered against the sureties to the appeal. (Rev., s. 2006; Code, s. 1775; 1868-9, c. 156, s. 28; C. S. 2371.)

Damages upon Appeal.—Where there is an appeal from the justice of the peace in ejectment, the jury shall assess all damages of the plaintiff which he is entitled thereto from the time of the unlawful detention to the time of the trial in the superior court, and upon the defendant's tendering the amount sued for and the costs to the time, a judgment as of nonsuit is properly allowed. Ryan v. Reynolds, 190 N. C. 563, 130 S. E. 156.

Same—Surety Liable.—The surety on a bond to stay execution on appeal from judgment of a justice of the peace rendered in summary proceedings in ejectment is liable for such rents and profits to the plaintiff as may accrue to the date of the trial in the superior court. Dunn v. Patrick, 156 N. C. 248, 72 S. E. 220.

§ 42-33. Rent and costs tendered by tenant.—If, in any action brought to recover the possession of demised premises upon a forfeiture for the nonpayment of rent, the tenant, before judgment given in such action, pays or tenders the rent due and the costs of the action, all further proceedings in such action shall cease. If the plaintiff further prosecutes his action, and the defendant pays into court for the use of the plaintiff a sum equal to that which shall be found to be due, and the costs, to the time of such payment, or to the time of a tender and refusal, if one has occurred, the defendant shall recover from the plaintiff all subsequent costs; the plaintiff shall be allowed to receive the sum paid into court for his use, and the proceedings shall be stayed. (Rev., s. 2007; Code, s. 1773; 4 Geo. II, c. 28, s. 4; 1868-9, c. 156, s. 26; C. S. 2372.)

To Protect Tenant.—This section was passed in the interest of the tenant. A landlord could bring an action after demand as required by the statute, when each installment of rent was due. The tenant had to pay the rent and cost before judgment or get out. This section was to protect the tenant from hasty eviction, at the same time the landlord obtained his rent and costs. Ryan v. Reynolds, 190 N. C. 563, 566, 130 S. E. 156.

Only Rents Due Included.—Under the provisions of this section the lessee in summary ejectment is given the right to tender or pay into court the amount of rent due under the lease to the time of the beginning of the action, with interest and costs, and upon his so doing, the proceedings will be stayed; and the exception of the lessor that all rents, whether due under the terms of the contract or not, should be included to the time of the dismissal of the action, is untenable. Ryan v. Reynolds, 190 N. C. 563, 130 S. E. 156.

Same—Cannot Demand Other Debts.—Where a contract for the lease of land at a specified rent contains a provision giving to the lessee the right to take sand therefrom at a stated price, the lessor in ejectment cannot maintain the position that the lessee should tender or pay for the sand he may thus have used, under the provision of this section, as a part of the rental due by him, the contract being construed separately as to the two provisions. Ryan v. Reynolds, 190 N. C. 563, 130 S. E. 156.

Effect of Tender by Tenant.—A tender by the tenant of rent accrued after termination of the lease does not preclude the landlord from recovering possession. Vanderford v. Foreman, 129 N. C. 217, 39 S. E. 839.

Effect of Tender upon Proceedings for Forfeiture.—Where during the hearing and before judgment on a petition under § 42-3 for the forfeiture of a lease held by an insolvent corporation in the hands of a receiver, the receiver tendered to the petitioner all rents due, together with all costs lawfully incurred, as provided in this section, it was held that petition was properly denied. Coleman v. Carolina Theatres, 195 N. C. 607, 143 S. E. 7.

Effect of Acceptance of Rent.—Acceptance by the landlord of rent accruing after termination of lease, after suit for possession, does not create a tenancy from year to year, and does not preclude the landlord from recovery. Vanderford v. Foreman, 129 N. C. 217, 39 S. E. 839.

Where Tender of Rents Does Not Prevent Forfeiture.—Where the lease provides that the landlord shall have the option to declare the lease void upon failure of lessee to pay rent when due, and waives notice to vacate, lessee may not prevent forfeiture by tendering rents due upon the trial. Tucker v. Arrowood, 211 N. C. 118, 189 S. E. 180.

§ 42-34. Undertaking on appeal; when to be increased.—Either party may appeal from the judgment of the justice, as is prescribed in other cases of appeal from the judgment of a justice; upon appeal to the superior court either plaintiff or defendant may demand that the same shall be tried at the first term of said court after said appeal is docketed in said court, and said trial shall have precedence in the trial of all other cases, except the cases of exceptions to homesteads: Provided, that said appeal shall have been docketed at least ten days prior to the convening of said court: Provided, further, that the presiding judge, in his discretion, may take up for trial in advance any pending case in which the rights of the parties or the public require it; but no execution commanding the removal of a defendant from the possession of the demised premises shall be suspended until the defendant gives an undertaking in an amount not less than one year's rent of the premises, with sufficient surety, who shall justify and be approved by the justice, to be void if the defendant pays any judgment which in that or any other action the plaintiff may recover for rent, and for damages for the detention of the land. At any term of the superior court of the county in which such appeal is docketed after the lapse of one year from the date of the filing of the undertaking above mentioned, the tenant, after legal notice to that end has been duly executed on him, may be required to show cause why said undertaking should not be increased to an amount sufficient to cover rents and damages for such period as to the court may seem proper, and if such tenant fails to show proper cause and does not file such bond for rents and damages as the court may direct, or make affidavit that he is unable so to do and show merits, his appeal shall be dismissed and the judgment of the justice of the peace shall be affirmed. (Rev., s. 2008; Code, s. 1772; 1868-9, c. 156, s. 25; 1883, c. 316; 1921, c. 90; Ex. Sess., 1921, c. 17; 1933, c. 154; 1937, c. 294; C. S. 2373.)

Local Modification.—Burke: Pub. Loc. 1927, c. 57, Davie, Granville, Iredell, Mecklenburg, Swain, Watauga: C. S. 2373.

Justice Has Discretion as to Surety.—On an application to a justice of the peace for a suspension of execution after a recovery by a landlord against his tenant, the justice has a discretion as to the sufficiency of the surety, which a judge will not review, in the absence of any suggestion that the justice acted dishonestly or capriciously. Steadman v. Jones, 65 N. C. 388.

Power to Increase Bond.—If the bonds should become impaired or if the litigation should become protracted to such an extent as to require additional security to protect the plaintiffs in their rents, then under this section the superior court can require additional security. Featherstone v. Carr, 132 N. C. 800, 802, 44 S. E. 592.

Not only is it within the jurisdiction and power of the superior courts to have the bonds increased or strengthened, but under their general powers in equity, outside of that statute or any other statute, they would have the right to take such action. Featherstone v. Carr, 132 N. C. 800, 802, 44 S. E. 592.

Judgment Prior to Action on Bond.—A bond, with sureties, conditioned upon the payment of any judgment given in summary proceedings in ejectment, makes the obtaining of the judgment a condition precedent to a recovery thereon against the sureties; and the obtaining of such a judgment must be shown by proper averment and proof, or an action against the sureties willl be premature. Blackmore v. Winders, 144 N. C. 212, 56 S. E. 874.

Precedence in Trial.—An appeal from the judgment of a justice of the peace in a summary ejectment has precedence over all other cases except those involving exceptions to homesteads, and is properly called upon demand at the beginning of the term of the superior court commencing next after the docketing of the appeal. Roediger v. Sapos, 217 N. C. 95, 6 S. E. (2d) 801.

§ 42-35. Restitution of tenant, if case quashed, etc., on appeal.—If the proceedings before the justice are brought before a superior court and quashed, or judgment is given against the plaintiff, the superior or other court in which final judgment is given shall, if necessary, restore the defendant to the possession, and issue such writs as are proper for that purpose. (Rev., s. 2009; Code, s. 1774; 1868-9, c. 156, s. 27; C. S. 2374.)

In General.—The writ of restitution lies to restore a party to the possession of property of which he has been deprived by some erroneous process; but it will not be employed to put one in possession where he has not been ousted by the court, nor to take possession from one who has acquired it pending litigation, but not by virtue of any order, judgment or process therein. Durham, etc., R. Co. v. North Carolina R. C., 108 N. C. 304, 12 S. E. 983.

When Writ Given.—When a party is put out of possession of land, or compelled to pay money, under a judgment which is afterwards reversed or set aside, the court will restore the party to the possession of the land, and give him a remedy for the money thus paid. Lytle v. Lytle, 94 N. C. 522.

A Part of the Judgment.—Whenever a party is put out of possession by process of law, and the proceedings are adjudged void, an order for a writ of restitution is a part of the judgment. Perry v. Tupper, 70 N. C. 538; Meroney v. Wright, 84 N. C. 336, 339.

Where on trial of summary ejectment before a justice of peace, judgment was rendered for the plaintiff, who was put into possession and on appeal, the superior court decided against the plaintiff, upon the ground that the lease had not terminated, the defendant is entitled to a writ of restitution as a part of the judgment in his favor. Meroney v. Wright, 84 N. C. 336.

§ 42-36. Damages to tenant for dispossession, if proceedings quashed, etc.—If, by order of the justice, the plaintiff is put in possession, and the proceedings shall afterwards be quashed or reversed, the defendant may recover damages of the plaintiff for his removal. (Rev., s. 2010; Code, s. 1776; 1868-9, c. 156, s. 30; C. S. 2375.)

Sufficient Allegation.—A complaint in an action by a tenant for wrongful eviction by summary proceedings, alleging that by reason thereof the plaintiff was deprived of his house and garden for shelter and support of his family, and was distressed in body and mind and put to great mortification and shame and loss of employment, sufficiently alleges damages other than the loss of crops. Burwell v. Brodie, 134 N. C. 540, 47 S. E. 47.

Assessment of Damages.—Under this section a tenant who secures the reversal of summary proceedings against him may have damages for eviction assessed in the original or in a separate action. Burwell v. Brodie, 134 N. C. 540, 47 S. E. 47.

Recovery by Landlord.—Where a landlord wrongfully evicts a tenant he can recover for advancements to the tenant before the eviction but not for labor performed by himself after the eviction. Burwell v. Brodie, 134 N. C. 540, 47 S. E. 47.

Therefore, I adjudge, etc. (as in form No. 5, from asterisk (*).

Chapter 43. Land Registration.

Art. 1. Nature of Proceeding.

§ 43-1. Jurisdiction in superior court.—For the purpose of enabling all persons owning real estate within this state to have the title thereto settled and registered, as prescribed by the provisions of this chapter, the superior court of the county in which the land lies in the state shall have exclusive original jurisdiction of all petitions and proceedings had thereupon, under the rules of practice and procedure prescribed for special proceedings except as herein otherwise provided. (1913, c. 90, s. 1; C. S. 2377.)

Editor's Note.—This chapter is known generally as the Torren's Law. The principle of the "Torrens System" is conveyance by registration and certificate instead of by deed, and assimilates the transfer of land to the transfer of stocks in corporations. For a discussion of the history and development of the Torrens system, see Cape Lookout Co. v. Gold, 167 N. C. 63, 83 S. E. 3 and "The Torrens System—After Thirty-Five Years," 10 N. C. L. Rev. 329.

Chapter to Be Liberally Construed.—This statute is not in derogation of common right, but is of a remedial character, and should be liberally construed according to its intent. Cape Lookout Co. v. Gold, 167 N. C. 63, 83 S. E. 3; Dillon v. Brocker, 178 N. C. 65, 100 S. E. 191; Perry v. Morgan, 219 N. C 377, 14 S. E. (2d) 46.

Amendment of Pleadings and Parties.—Under the provisions of this section, the judge of the superior court is given authority over the whole proceedings before the clerk, and may require reformation of the process, pleadings or decrees or entries, and therefore he has authority to allow parties defendant to be made and enlarge the time within which to file answers. Empire Mfg. Co. v. Spruill, 169 N. C. 618, 86 S. E. 522.

§ 43-2. Proceedings in rem; vests title. — The proceedings under any petition for the registration of land, and all proceedings in the court in relation to registered land, shall be proceedings in rem against the land, and the decrees of the court shall operate directly on the land, and vest and establish title thereto in accordance with the provisions of this chapter. (1913, c. 90, s. 2; C. S. 2378.)

See note under § 43-50.

Consolidation of Proceedings.—A proceeding for the purpose of registering title and an injunction to prevent trespass, involving the same land and the same parties may be consolidated. Blount v. Sawyer, 189 N. C. 210, 126 S. E. 512.

Cited in Brinson v. Lacy, 195 N. C. 394, 396, 142 S. E. 317.

§ 43-3. Rules of practice prescribed by attorney-general. — The attorney-general, with the approval of the supreme court, shall from time to time make, change, revise and revoke rules of practice in the superior court for the administration of this chapter. He shall in like manner prescribe forms for use in such court, and in the notation of the registry of titles of memorials, claims, liens, lis pendens, and all other involuntary charges upon and to such registered lands. Whenever a question shall arise in the administration of this chapter as to the proper method of protecting or asserting any right or interest under the law, and the method of procedure is in doubt, it shall be the duty of the clerk or register of deeds to notify the attorney-general, who, with the approval of the supreme court, shall prescribe a rule covering such case. (1913, c. 90, s. 31; C. S. 2379.)

Art. 2. Officers and Fees.

§ 43-4. Examiners appointed by clerk. — The clerk of the superior court of each county shall appoint three or more examiners of titles, who shall be licensed attorneys at law, residing in the state of North Carolina. They shall qualify by taking oath before the clerk to faithfully discharge the duties of such office, which oath shall be filed in the office of the clerk. The term of office shall be two years. Examiners of titles shall have and exercise the jurisdiction and perform the duties hereinafter prescribed, and receive the fees herein provided. They shall not appear in or have any connection with any proceeding instituted under the provisions of this chapter, and they shall be subject to removal at will by such clerk or judge of the superior court. (1913, c. 90, s. 3; 1917, c. 63; C. S. 2380.)

§ 43-5. Fees of officers.—The fees to be allowed the clerks and sheriffs in this proceeding shall be the same as now allowed by law to clerks and sheriffs in other special proceedings. The examiner hereinbefore provided for shall receive, as may be allowed by the clerk, a minimum fee of five dollars for such examination of each title of property assessed upon the tax books at the amount of five thousand dollars or less; for each additional thousand dollars of assessed value of property so examined he shall receive fifty cents; for examination outside of the county he shall receive a reasonable allowance. There shall be allowed to the register of deeds for copying the plot upon registration of titles book one dollar; for issuing the certificate and new certificates under this chapter, fifty cents for each; for noting the entries or memorandum required and for the entries noting the cancellation of mortgages and all other entries, if any, herein provided for, a total of twenty-five cents for the entry or entries connected with one transaction. The county or other surveyor employed under the provisions of this chapter shall not be allowed to charge more than forty cents per hour for his time actually employed in making the survey and the map, except by agreement with the petitioner: Provided, however, that a minimum fee of two dollars in any case may be allowed.

There shall be no other fees allowed of any nature except as herein provided, and the bond of the register, clerk and sheriff shall be liable in case of any mistake, malfeasance, or misfeasance as to the duties imposed upon them by this chapter in as full a manner as such bond is now liable by law. (1913, c. 90, s. 30; C. S. 2381.)

Art. 3. Procedure for Registration.

§ 43-6. Who may institute proceedings.—Any person, being in the peaceable possession of land within the state and claiming an estate of inheritance therein, may prosecute a special proceeding in rem against all the world in the superior court for the county in which such land is situate, to establish his title thereto, to determine all adverse claims and have the title registered. Any number of the separate parcels of land claimed by the petitioner may be included in the same proceeding, and any one parcel may be established in several parts, each of which shall be clearly and accurately described and registered separately, and the decree therein shall operate directly upon the land and establish and vest an indefeasible title thereto. Any person in like possession of lands within the state, claiming an interest or estate less than the fee therein, may have his title thereto established under the provisions of this chapter, without the registration and transfer features herein provided. (1913, c. 90, s. 4; C. S. 2382.)

See note under § 43-50.

Cited in Brinson v. Lacy, 195 N. C. 394, 396, 142 S. E. 317.

§ 43-7. Land lying in two or more counties. —In every proceeding to register title, in which it is alleged in the petition or made to appear that the land therein described, whether in one or more parcels, is situated partly in one county and partly in another, or is situated in two or more counties, that is to say, when an entire tract, or two or more entire tracts, are situated in two or more counties (but not separate or several tracts situated in different counties) it shall be competent to institute the proceedings before the clerk of the superior court of any county in which any part of such tract lying in two or more counties is situated, and said clerk shall have jurisdiction both of the parties and of the subject-matter as fully as if said land was situated wholly in his county; but upon the entry of a final decree of registration of title, the clerk by or before whom the same was rendered shall certify a copy thereof to the register of deeds of every county in which said land or any part thereof is situated, and the same shall be there filed and recorded; and every such register of deeds, upon demand of the person entitled and payment of requisite fees therefor, shall issue and deliver a certificate of title for that part of said land situated in his county. This section shall apply and become effective in all cases or proceedings heretofore conducted before any clerk of the superior court of this state for registration of title, as in this chapter authorized, when the land described in the petition as an entire tract was situated in two or more counties, as aforesaid; and upon the filing and recording of a certified copy of the final decree or decree of registration therein, the register of deeds shall issue and deliver a certificate of title to the present owner or person entitled to the same, for that part of the land situated in his county, as aforesaid, upon payment or tender of proper fees therefor. (1919, c. 82, s. 1; C. S. 2383.)

§ 43-8. Petition filed; contents.—Suit for registration of title shall be begun by a petition to the court by the persons claiming, singly or collectively, to own or have the power of appointing or disposing of an estate in fee simple in any land, whether subject to liens or not. Infants and other persons under disability may sue by guardian or trustee, as the case may be, and corporations as in other cases now provided by law; but the person in whose behalf the petition is made shall always be named as petitioner The petition shall be signed and sworn to by each petitioner, and shall contain a full description of the land to be registered as hereinafter provided, together with a plot of same by metes and bounds, corners to be marked by permanent markers of iron, stone or cement; it shall show when, how and from whom it was acquired, and whether or not it is now occupied, and if so, by whom; and it shall give an account of all known liens, interests, equities and claims, adverse or otherwise, vested or contingent, upon such land. Full names and addresses, if known, of all persons who may be interested by marriage or otherwise, including adjoining owners and occupants, shall be given. If any person shall be unable to state the metes and bounds, the clerk may order a preliminary survey. (1913, c. 90, s. 5; C. S. 2384.)

See note under § 43-50.

Attaching Proceedings under Torrens Act Because Clerk Did Not Sign Jurat.—Where the petitioner, to have his title to land registered under the provisions of the Torrens Act has signed an oath reciting that he has been duly sworn, he may not contend that the oath lacked validity under the requirement of this section upon the ground that the clerk of the court had not signed the jurat, and that in consequence the proceedings which followed were absolutely void, and thereafter, upon his own motion have them set aside. Morgan v. Beaufort, etc., R. Co., 197 N. C. 568, 150 S. E. 30.

Cited in Brinson v. Lacy, 195 N. C. 394, 396, 142 S. E. 317.

§ 43-9. Summons issued and served; disclaimer.—The clerk of the court shall issue a summons directed to the sheriff of every county in which persons named as interested may reside, such persons being made defendants, and the summons shall be returnable as in other cases of special proceedings, except that the return shall be at least sixty days from the date of the summons. The summons shall be served at least ten days before the return thereof and the return recorded in the same manner as in other special proceedings; and all parties under disabilities shall be represented by guardian, either general or ad litem. If the persons named as interested are not residents of the state of North Carolina, and their residence is known, which must appear by affidavit, the summons must be served on such nonresidents as is now prescribed by law for service of summons on nonresidents.

Any party defendant to such proceeding may file a disclaimer of any claim or interest in the land described in the petition, which shall be deemed an admission of the allegations of the petition, and the decree shall bar such party and all persons thereafter claiming under him, and such party shall not be liable for any costs or expenses of the proceeding except such as may have been incurred by reason of his delay in pleading. (1913, c. 90, s. 6; C. S. 2385.)

Cited in Cape Lookout Co. v. Gold, 167 N. C. 63, 83 S. E. 3.

§ 43-10. Notice of petition published.—In addition to the summons issued, prescribed in the foregoing section, the clerk of the court shall, at the time of issuing such summons, publish a notice of the filing thereof containing the names of the petitioners, the names of all persons named in the petition, together with a short but accurate description of the land and the relief demanded, in some secular newspaper published in the county wherein the land is situate, and having general circulation in the county; and if there be no such paper, then in a newspaper in the county nearest thereto and having general circulation in the county wherein the land lies, once a week for eight issues of such paper. The notice shall set forth the title of the cause and in legible or conspicuous type the words "To whom it may concern," and shall give notice to all persons of the relief demanded and the return day of the summons: Provided, that no final order or judgment shall be entered in the cause until there is proof and adjudication of publication as in other cases of publication of notice of summons. The provisions of this section, in respect to the issuing and service of summons and the publication of the notice, shall be mandatory and essential to the jurisdiction of the court to proceed in the cause: Provided, that the recital of the service of summons and publication in the decree or in the final judgment in the cause, and in the certificate issued to the petitioner as hereinafter provided, shall be conclusive evidence thereof. The clerk of the court shall also record a copy of said notice in the lis pendens docket of his office and cross-index same as other notices of lis pendens and shall also certify a copy thereof to the Superior Court of each county in which any part of said land lies, and the clerk thereof shall record and cross index same in the lis pendens records of his office as other notices of lis pendens are recorded and cross-indexed. (1913, c. 90, s. 7; 1915, c. 128, s. 1; 1919, c. 82, s. 2; 1925, c. 287; C. S. 2386.)

See note under § 43-50.

Editor's Note.—The last sentence of the section was added by the Public Laws of 1925, ch. 287.

Sufficiency of Publication.—Where the summons in proceedings to register lands has been issued and served under the provisions of section 43-9, it is not requisite to the validity of the proceedings that the publication of notice of filing should have been made on exactly the day the summons was issued, if the publication has been made in the designated paper once a week for four successive weeks, as directed by this section. Cape Lookout Co. v. Gold, 167 N. C. 63, 83 S. E. 3.

Waiver of Objection to Publication. — In proceedings to register a title to lands, a party claiming an interest in the lands waives his rights to object on the grounds of the irregularity in the publication of notice by appearing and answering the petition. Cape Lookout Co. v. Gold, 167 N. C. 63, 83 S. E. 3.

Cited in Brinson v. Lacy, 195 N. C. 394, 396, 142 S. E. 317.

§ 43-11. Hearing and decree.—1. Referred to Examiner.—Upon the return day of the summons the petition shall be set down for hearing upon the pleadings and exhibits filed. If any person claiming an interest in the land described in the petition, or any lien thereon, shall file an answer, the petition and answer, together with all exhibits filed, shall be referred to the examiner of titles, who shall proceed, after notice to the petitioner and the persons who have filed answer or answered, to hear the cause upon such parol or documentary evidence as may be offered or called for and taken by him, and in addition thereto make such independent examination of the title as may be necessary. Upon his request the clerk shall issue a commission under the seal of the court for taking such testimony as shall be beyond the jurisdiction of such examiner.

2. Examiner's Report.—The examiner shall, within thirty days after such hearing, unless for good cause the time shall be extended, file with the clerk a report of his conclusions of law and fact, setting forth the state of such title, any liens or encumbrances thereon, by whom held, amount due thereon, together with an abstract of title to the lands and any other information in regard thereto affecting its validity.

3. Exceptions to Report.—Any of the parties to the proceeding may, within twenty days after such report is filed, file exceptions, either to the conclusions of law or fact. Whereupon the clerk shall transmit the record to the judge of the superior court for his determination thereof; such judge may on his own motion certify any issue of fact arising upon any such exceptions to the superior court of the county in which the proceeding is pending, for a trial of such issue by jury, and he shall so certify such issue of fact for trial by jury upon the demand of any party to the proceeding. If, upon consideration of such record, or the record and verdict of issues to be certified and tried by jury, the title be found in the petitioner, the judge shall enter a decree to that effect, ascertaining all limitations, liens, etc., declaring the land entitled to registration accordingly, and the same, together with the record, shall be docketed by the clerk of the court as in other cases, and a copy of the decree certified to the register of deeds of the county for registration as hereinafter provided. Any of the parties may appeal from such judgment to the supreme court, as in other special proceedings.

4. No Judgment by Default.—No judgment in any proceeding under this chapter shall be given by default, but the court must require an examination of the title in every instance except as respects the rights of parties who, by proper pleadings, admit the petitioner's claim. If, upon the return day of the summons and the day upon which the petition is set down for hearing, no answer be filed, the clerk shall refer the same to the examiner of titles, who shall, after notice to the petitioner, proceed to examine the title, together with all liens or encumbrances set forth or referred to in the petition and exhibits, and shall examine the registry of deeds, mortgages, wills, judgments, mechanic liens and other records of the county, and upon such examination he shall, as hereinbefore provided, report to the clerk the condition of the title, with a notice of liens or encumbrances thereon. The examiner shall have power to take and call for evidence in such case as fully as if the application were being contested. If the title shall be found to be in the petitioner, the clerk shall enter a decree to that effect and declaring the land entitled to registration, with entry of any limitations, liens, etc., and shall certify the same for registration, as hereinbefore provided, after approval by the judge of the superior court. (1913, c. 90, s. 8; C. S. 2387.)

Evidence Sufficient for Jury.—Defendant's evidence of claim under a prior state grant and parol evidence in explanation of a latent ambiguity as to the location of the land embraced in the grant, was sufficient to raise an issue of fact as to the location of the land claimed by defendants for the determination of the jury, and defendants' exception to the refusal of the court to submit an issue to the jury as to whether petitioners were the owners of the land and entitled to have title thereto registered was properly sustained. Perry v. Morgan, 219 N. C. 377, 14 S. E. (2d) 46.

§ 43-12. Effect of decree; approval of judge.—Every decree rendered as hereinbefore provided shall bind the land and bar all persons and corporations claiming title thereto or interest therein; quiet the title thereto, and shall be forever binding and conclusive upon and against all persons and corporations, whether mentioned by name in the order of publication, or included under the general description, "to whom it may concern"; and every such decree so rendered, or a duly certified copy thereof, as also the certificate of title issued thereon to the person or corporation therein named as owner, or to any subsequent transferee or purchaser, shall be conclusive evidence that such person or corporation is the owner of the land therein described, and no other evidence shall be required in any court of this state of his or its right or title thereto. It shall not be an exception to such conclusiveness that the person is an infant, lunatic or is under any disability, but such person may have recourse upon the indemnity fund hereinafter provided for, for any loss he may suffer by reason of being so concluded. Such decrees shall not be binding on and include the State of North Carolina or the State Board of Education unless notice of said proceeding and copy of petition, etc., as provided in this chapter, are served on the Governor and on the State Board of Education severally and personally. Such decree shall, in addition to being signed by the clerk of the court, be approved by the judge of the superior court, who shall review the whole proceeding and have power to require any reformation of the process, pleading, decrees or entries. (1913, c. 90, s. 9; 1919, c. 82, s. 3; 1925, c. 263; C. S. 2388.)

See note under § 43-50.

Art. 4. Registration and Effect.

§ 43-13. Manner of registration.—The county commissioners of each county shall provide for the register of deeds in the county a book, to be called Registration of Titles, in which the register shall enroll, register and index, as hereinafter provided, the decree of title before mentioned and the copy of the plot contained in the petition, and all subsequent transfers of title, and note all voluntary and involuntary transactions in any wise affecting the title to the land, authorized to be entered thereon. If the title be subject to trust, condition, encumbrance or the like, the words "in trust," "upon condition," "subject to encumbrance," or like appropriate insertion shall indicate the fact and fix any person dealing with such certificate with notice of the particulars of such limitations upon the title as appears upon the registry. No erasure, alteration, or amendment shall be made upon the registry after entry and issuance of a certificate of title except by order of a court of competent jurisdiction. (1913, c. 90, s. 10; 1919, c. 236, s. 1; C. S. 2389.)

§ 43-14. Cross-indexing of lands by registers of deeds. — Where any land is brought into the Torrens' System and under said system is registered in the public records of the register's office, said register shall cross-index the registration in the general cross-index for deeds in his office. (1931, c. 286, s. 2.)

§ 43-15. Certificate issued. — Upon the registration of such decree the register of deeds shall issue an owner's certificate of title, under the seal of his office, which shall be delivered to the owner or his agent duly authorized, and shall be substantially as follows:

State of North Carolina—County of .....

The certificate of .....

I hereby certify that the title is registered in the name of ..... to and situate in said county and state, described as follows: (Here describe land as in decree.)

Under decree of the land court of ..... county, entitled .....

Registered No. ...., Book No. ....., page .....

Witness my hand and seal, at office at ....., this ..... day of ....., A. D. 19..... (Seal) ..... Register of Deeds. (1913, c. 90, s. 10; C. S. 2390.)

§ 43-16. Certificates numbered; entries thereon.—All certificates of title to land in the county shall be numbered consecutively, which number shall be retained as long as the boundaries of the land remain unchanged, and a separate page or more, with appropriate space for subsequent entries, shall be devoted to each title in the registration of titles book for the county. Every entry made upon any certificate of title in such book or upon the owner's certificate, under any of the provisions of this chapter, shall be signed by the register of deeds and minutely dated in conformity with the dates shown by the entry book. (1913, c. 90, s. 11; C. S. 2391.)

§ 43-17. New certificate issued, if original lost. —Whenever an owner's certificate of title is lost or destroyed, the owner or his personal representative may petition the court for the issuance of a new certificate. Notice of such petition shall be published once a week for four successive weeks, under the direction of the court, in some convenient newspaper, and noted upon the registry of titles, and upon satisfactory proof having been exhibited before it that the certificate has been lost or destroyed the court may direct the issuance of a new certificate, which shall be appropriately designated and take the place of the original, but at least thirty full days shall elapse between the filing of the petition and making the decree for such new certificate. (1913, c. 90, s. 24; C. S. 2392.)

§ 43-17.1. Issuance of certificate upon death of registered owner; petition and contents.—Upon the death of any person who is the registered owner of any estate or interest in land which has been brought under this chapter, a petition may be filed with the clerk of the superior court of the county in which the title to such land is registered by anyone having any estate or interest in the land, or any part thereof, the title to which has been registered under the terms of this chapter, attaching thereto the registered certificate of title issued to the deceased holder and setting forth the nature and character of the interest or estate of such petitioner in said land, the manner in which such interest or estate was acquired by the petitioner from the deceased person —whether by descent, by will, or otherwise, and setting forth the names and addresses of any and all other persons, firms or corporations which may have any interest or estate therein, or any part thereof, and the names and addresses of all persons known to have any claims or liens against the said land; and setting forth the changes which are necessary to be made in the registered certificate of title to land in order to show the true owner or owners thereof occasioned by the death of the registered owner of said certificate. Such petition shall contain all such other information as is necessary to fully inform the court as to the status of the title and the condition as to all liens and encumbrances against said land existing at the time the petition is filed, and shall contain a prayer for such relief as the petitioner may be entitled to under the provisions hereof. Such petition shall be duly verified. (1943, c. 466, s. 1.)

§ 43-17.2. Publication of notice; service of process.—Upon the filing of such duly verified petition, the petitioner shall cause to be published once a week for four weeks, in some newspaper having a general circulation in the county in which the land is situated, a notice signed by the clerk of the superior court, setting forth in substance the nature of the petition, a description of the land affected thereby, and the relief therein prayed for, and notifying all persons having or claiming any interest or estate in the land to appear at a time therein specified, which shall be at least thirty days after the first publication of said notice, to show cause, if any exists, why the relief prayed for in the petition should not be granted. An affidavit shall be filed by the publisher with the clerk of the court, showing a full compliance of this requirement. Upon a filing of said petition, the petitioner shall cause the summons, with a copy of the petition, to be served upon all persons, firms or corporations known to have any interest or estate in the lands referred to in the petition, and the personal representative, the devisees, if any, and all heirs at law of the deceased registered owner of said land. In the event any of the persons upon whom service of summons is to be made are nonresidents of the state of North Carolina, service may be made by publication in the manner prescribed by law for the service of summons in special proceedings. (1943, c. 466, s. 1.)

§ 43-17.3. Answer by person claiming interest. —Any person asserting a claim or any interest in such registered land may, at any time prior to the hearing provided for in section 43-17.4, file such answer or other pleadings as may be proper, asserting his rights or claims to the property referred to in the petition. (1943, c. 466, s. 1.)

§ 43-17.4. Hearing by clerk of superior court; orders and decrees; cancellation of old certificate and issuance of new certificate.—The clerk of the superior court shall hear and determine all matters presented upon the petition and such pleadings as may be filed in this proceeding, and shall make such orders and decrees therein as may be found to be proper from the facts as ascertained and determined by the court. The court is authorized and empowered to order and direct that the outstanding registered certificate of title to the land shall be surrendered and cancelled in the office of the register of deeds, and that a new certificate of title shall be issued, showing therein the owner or owners of the land described in the original certificate and the nature and character of such ownership: Provided, the clerk of the superior court shall not authorize the issuance of the new certificate of title until the fees provided in § 43-49 have been paid. Upon the surrender and cancellation by the register of deeds of the outstanding certificate of title, the new certificate of title shall be registered and cross indexed in the same manner provided for the registration of the original certificate, and the register of deeds shall issue a new certificate of title in the same manner and form as provided for the original certificate. The said new certificate shall have the same force and effect as the original certificate of title and shall be subject to the same provisions of law with reference thereto. (1943, c. 466, s. 1.)

§ 43-17.5. Issuance of new certificate validated.—Whenever heretofore any registered certificate of title has been surrendered by the heirs or devisees of any deceased registered owner of any registered title and the registered certificate of title of such deceased owner has been surrendered and cancelled and a new certificate of title issued to a purchaser or to such heirs or devisees, the same is hereby validated and confirmed and made effectual to the same extent as though such new certificate had been issued in compliance with the provisions of this chapter. (1943, c. 466, s. 1.)

§ 43-18. Registered owner's estate free from adverse claims; exceptions.—Every registered owner of any estate or interest in land bought under this chapter shall, except in cases of fraud to which he is a party or in which he is a privy, without valuable consideration paid in good faith, and except when any registration has been procured through forgery, hold the land free from any and all adverse claims, rights or encumbrances not noted on the certificate of title, except (1) liens, claims or rights arising or existing under the laws or constitution of the United States which the statutes of this state cannot require to appear of record under registry laws; (2) taxes and assessments thereon due the state or any county, city or town therein, but not delinquent; (3) any lease for a term not exceeding three years, under which the land is actually occupied. (1913, c. 90, s. 25; C. S. 2393.)

§ 43-19. Adverse claims existing at initial registry; affidavit; limitation of action.—Any person making any claim to or asserting any lien or charge upon registered land, existing at the initial registry of the same and not shown upon the register or adverse to the title of the registered owner, and for which no other provision is herein made for asserting the same in the registry of titles, may make an affidavit thereof setting forth his interest, right, title, lien or demand, and how and under whom derived, and the character and nature thereof. The affidavit shall state his place of residence and designate a place at which all notices relating thereto may be served. Upon the filing of such affidavit in the office of the clerk of the superior court, the clerk shall order a note thereof as in the case of charges or encumbrances, and the same shall be entered by the register of deeds. Action shall be brought upon such claim within six months after the entry of such note, unless for cause shown the clerk shall extend the time. Upon failure to commence such action within the time prescribed therefor, the clerk shall order a cancellation of such note. If any person shall wantonly or maliciously or without reasonable cause procure such notation to be entered upon the registry of titles, having the effect of a cloud upon the registered owner's title, he shall be liable for all damages the owner may suffer thereby. (1913, c. 90, s. 25; C. S. 2394.)

§ 43-20. Decree and registration run with the land.—The obtaining of a decree of registration and the entry of a certificate of title shall be construed as an agreement running with the land, and the same shall ever remain registered land, subject to the provisions of this chapter and all amendments thereof. (1913, c. 90, s. 26; C. S. 2395.)

§ 43-21. No right by adverse possession.—No title to nor right or interest in registered land in derogation of that of the registered owner shall be acquired by prescription or adverse possession. (1913, c. 90, s. 27; C. S. 2396.)

§ 43-22. Jurisdiction of courts; registered land affected only by registration.—Except as otherwise specially provided by this chapter, registered land and ownership therein shall be subject to the jurisdiction of the courts in the same manner as if it had not been registered; but the registration shall be the only operative act to transfer or affect the title to registered land, and shall date from the time the writing, instrument or record to be registered is duly filed in the office of the register of deeds, subject to the provisions of this chapter; no voluntary or involuntary transaction shall affect the title to registered lands until registered in accordance with the provisions of this chapter: Provided, that all mortgages, deeds, surrendered and canceled certificates, when new certificates are issued for the land so deeded, the other paper-writings, if any, pertaining to and affecting the registered estate or estates herein referred to, shall be filed by the register of deeds for reference and information, but the registration of titles book shall be and constitute sole and conclusive legal evidence of title, except in cases of mistake and fraud, which shall be corrected in the methods now provided for the correction of papers authorized to be registered. (1913, c. 90, s. 28; C. S. 2397.)

No Distinction between Original Parties and Purchasers.—The statute draws no distinction between the original parties to deeds or contracts affecting title of lands registered under its provisions and creditors or purchasers, and in respect to such registration they stand upon the same footing. Dillon v. Brooker, 178 N. C. 65, 100 S. E. 191.

§ 43-23. Priority of right.—In case of conflicting claims between the registered owners the right, title or estate derived from or held under the older certificate of title shall prevail. (1913, c. 90, s. 29; C. S. 2398.)

§ 43-24. Compliance with this chapter due registration. — When the provisions of this chapter have been complied with, all conveyances, deeds, contracts to convey or leases shall be considered duly registered, as against creditors and purchasers, in the same manner and as fully as if the same had been registered in the manner heretofore provided by law for the registration of conveyances. (1913, c. 90, s. 32; C. S. 2399.)

§ 43-25. Release from registration.—Whenever the record owner of any estate in lands, the title to which has been registered or attempted to be registered in accordance with the provisions of this chapter, desires to have such estate released from the provisions of said chapter in so far as said chapter relates to the form of conveyance, so that such estate may ever thereafter be conveyed, either absolutely or upon condition or trust, by the use of any desired form of conveyance other than the certificate of title prescribed by said chapter, such owner may present his owner's certificate of title to such registered estate to the register of deeds of the county wherein such land lies, with a memorandum or statement written by him on the margin thereof in the words following, or words of similar import, to wit: "I (or we), ..., being the owner (or owners) of the registered estate evidenced by this certificate of title, do hereby release said estate from the provisions of chapter forty-three of the General Statutes of North Carolina in so far as said chapter relates to the form of conveyance, so that hereafter the said estate may, and shall be forever until again hereafter registered in accordance with the provisions of said chapter and acts amendatory thereof, conveyed, either absolutely or upon condition or trust, by any form of conveyance other than the certificate of title prescribed by said chapter, and in the same manner as if said estate had never been registered." Which said memorandum or statement shall further state that it is made pursuant to the provisions of this section, and shall be signed by such record owner and attested by the register of deeds under his hand and official seal, and a like memorandum or statement so entered, signed and attested upon the margin of the record of the said owner's certificate of title in the registration of titles book in said register's office, with the further notation made and signed by the register of deeds on the margin of the certificate of title in the registration of titles book showing that such entry has been made upon the owner's certificate of title; and thereafter any conveyance of such registered estate, or any part thereof, by such owner, his heirs or assigns, by means of any desired form of conveyance other than such certificate of title shall be as valid and effectual to pass such estate of the owner according to the tenor and purport of such conveyance in the same manner and to the same extent as if such estate had never been so registered. (Ex. Sess. 1924, c. 40.)

Editor's Note.—The effect of this section is summarized in 3 N. C. Law Rev. 19.

Art. 5. Adverse Claims and Corrections after Registration.

§ 43-26. Limitations. — No decree of registration heretofore entered, and no certificate of title heretofore issued pursuant thereto, shall be adjudged invalid, revoked, or set aside, unless the action or proceeding in which the validity of such decree of registration or certificate of title issued pursuant thereto is attacked or called in question be commenced or the defense alleging the invalidity thereof be interposed within twelve months from March 10, 1919.

No decree of registration hereafter entered and no certificate of title hereafter issued pursuant thereto shall be adjudged invalid or revoked or set aside, unless the action or proceeding in which the validity of such decree or of the certificate of title issued pursuant thereto is attacked or called in question be commenced or the defense alleging the invalidity thereof be interposed within twelve months from the date of such decree.

No action or proceeding for the recovery of any right, title, interest, or estate in registered land adverse to the title established and adjudicated by any decree of registration heretofore entered shall be maintained unless such action or proceeding be commenced within twelve months from the date last mentioned; and no action or proceeding for the recovery of any right, title, interest, estate in registered land, adverse to the right established by any decree of registration hereafter shall be maintained unless such action or proceeding be commenced within twelve months from the date of such decree.

No action or proceeding for the enforcement or foreclosure of any lien upon or charge against registered land which existed at the date when any decree of registration was heretofore entered, and which was not recognized or established by such decree, shall be maintained, unless such action or proceeding be commenced within twelve months from the date above mentioned; and no action or proceeding for the enforcement or foreclosure of any lien upon or charge against registered land in existence at the date of any decree of registration hereafter entered, and which is not recognized and established by such decree, shall be maintained, unless such action or proceeding be commenced within twelve months from the date of such decree. (1919, c. 236, s. 1; C. S. 2400.)

§ 43-27. Adverse claim subsequent to registry; affidavit of claim prerequisite to enforcement; limitation. — Any person claiming any right, title, or interest in registered land adverse to the registered owner thereof, arising subsequent to the date of the original decree of registration, may, if no other provision is made for registering the same, file with the register of deeds of the county in which such decree was rendered or certificate of title thereon was issued, a verified statement in writing, setting forth fully the right, title, or interest so claimed, how or from whom it was acquired, and a reference to the number, book, and page of the certificate of title of the registered owner, together with a description of the land by metes and bounds, the adverse claimant's place of residence and his post-office address, and, if a nonresident, he shall designate or appoint the said register of deeds to receive all notices directed to or to be served upon such adverse claimant in connection with the claim by him made, and such statement shall be noted and filed by said register of deeds as an adverse claim; but no action or proceeding to enforce such adverse claim shall be maintained unless the same be commenced within six months of the filing of the statement thereof. (1919, c. 236, s. 1; C. S. 2401.)

§ 43-28. Suit to enforce adverse claim; summons and notice necessary. — Upon the institution of any action or proceeding to enforce such adverse claim, notice thereof shall be served upon the register of deeds, who shall enter upon the registry a memorandum that suit has been brought or proceeding instituted to determine the validity of such adverse claim; and summons or notice shall be served upon the holder or claimant of the registered title or certificate or other person against whom such adverse claim is alleged, as provided by law for the institution of suits or proceedings in the courts of this state.

If no notice of the institution of an action or proceeding to enforce an adverse claim be served upon the register of deeds and upon the holder of the registered title or certificate, or other person, as aforesaid, within seven months from the date of filing the statement of adverse claim, the register of deeds shall cancel upon the registry the adverse claim so filed and make a memorandum setting out that no notice of suit or proceeding to enforce the same had been served upon him within seven months as herein required, and that such adverse claim was therefore canceled; and thereafter no action or proceeding shall be begun or maintained to enforce such adverse claim in any of the courts of this state. (1919, c. 236, s. 1; C. S. 2402.)

§ 43-29. Judgment in suit to enforce adverse claim; register to file. — The court shall certify its judgment to the register of deeds; if such adverse claim be held valid, the register of deeds shall make such entry upon the registry and upon the owner's certificate of title as may be directed by the court, or he may file and record a certified copy of the judgment or order of the court thereon; if such adverse claim be held invalid the register of deeds shall cancel such adverse claim upon the registry, noting thereon that the same was done by order or judgment of the court, or he may file and record a certified copy of the judgment or order of the court thereon. (1919, c. 236, s. 1; C. S. 2403.)

§ 43-30. Correction of registered title; limitation of adverse claims. — Any registered owner or other claimant under the registered title may at any time apply to the court in which the original decree was entered, by petition, setting out that registered interests of any description, whether vested, contingent, expectant or inchoate, have terminated and ceased, or that new interests have arisen or been created which do not appear upon the certificate, or that any error or omission was made in entering or issuing the certificate or any duplicate thereof, or that the name of any person on the certificate has been changed, or that the registered owner had married or, if registered as married, that the marriage has been terminated, or that a corporation which owned registered lands has been dissolved, without conveying the same or transferring its certificate within three years after the dissolution, or any other reasonable and proper ground of correction or relief; and such court may hear and determine the petition after notice to all parties in interest, and may make such order or decree as may be appropriate and lawful in the premises; but nothing in this section shall be construed to authorize any such court to open any original decree of registration which was entered more than twelve months prior to the filing of such petition, and nothing shall be done or ordered by the court to divest or impair the title or other interest of a purchaser who holds a transfer or certificate of title for value and in good faith. No action or proceeding shall be commenced or maintained to set up or establish any right, claim, interest or estate adverse to the order or decree or certificate of title issued thereon made or entered upon any petition or other proceeding authorized by this section, unless the same shall be brought and instituted within six months from the date of such order or decree authorized by this section. (1919, c. 236, s. 1; C. S. 2404.)

Art. 6. Method of Transfer.

§ 43-31. When whole of land conveyed.—Whenever the whole of any registered estate is transferred or conveyed the same shall be done by a transfer or conveyance upon or attached to the certificate substantially as follows:

A B and wife (giving the names of the parties owning land described in the certificate and their wives) hereby, in consideration of ..... dollars, sell and convey to C D (giving name of purchaser) the lot or tract of land, as the case may be, described in the certificate of title hereto attached.

The same shall be signed and properly acknowledged by the parties and their wives and shall have the full force and effect of a deed in fee simple: Provided, that if the sale shall be in trust, upon condition, with power to sell or other unusual form of conveyance, the same shall be set out in the deed, and shall be entered upon the registration of titles book as hereinafter provided; that upon presentation of the transfer, together with the certificate of title, to the register of deeds, the transaction shall be duly noted and registered in accordance with the provisions of this chapter, and certificate of title so presented shall be cancelled and a new certificate with the same number issued to the purchaser thereof, which new certificate shall fully refer by number and also by name of holder to former certificate just canceled. (1913, c. 90, s. 12; C. S. 2405.)

Necessity of Affidavit and Notation.—A contract to convey lands where the owner has registered it, under the Torrens Law, cannot be specifically enforced until the complainant has filed an affidavit and had notation made on the books as required by this section. Dillon v. Broeker, 178 N. C. 65, 100 S. E. 191.

§ 43-32. Conveyance of part of registered land. —The transfer of any part of a registered estate, either of an undivided interest therein or of a separate lot or parcel thereof, shall be made by an instrument of the transfer or conveyance similar in form to that herein provided for the transfer of the whole of any registered estate, to which shall be attached the certificate of title of such registered estate. In case of the transfer of an undivided interest in a registered estate, such instrument or transfer or conveyance shall accurately specify and describe the extent and amount of the interest transferred and of the interest retained, respectively. In case of a transfer of a separate lot or parcel of a registered estate, such instrument of transfer or conveyance shall describe the lot or parcel transferred either by metes and bounds or by reference to the map or plat attached thereto, and shall in every case be accompanied by a map or plat having clearly indicated thereon the boundaries of the whole of the registered estate and of the lot or parcel to be transferred. (1919, c. 82, s. 4; C. S. 2406.)

§ 43-33. Duty of register of deeds upon part conveyance. — Upon presentation to the register of deeds of an instrument of transfer or conveyance of an undivided interest in a registered estate, in proper form as above prescribed, it shall be his duty to cancel the certificate of title attached thereto and to issue to each owner a new certificate of title, each bearing the same number as the original certificate of title and accurately specifying and describing the extent and the amount of the interest retained or of the interest transferred, as the case may be. Upon presentation to the register of deeds of an instrument of transfer or conveyance of a separate lot or parcel of a registered estate, in proper form as above prescribed, it shall be his duty to cancel the certificate of the title attached thereto and to issue to each owner a new certificate of title bearing a new number and describing the separate lot or parcel retained or transferred, as the case may be, either by metes and bounds or by reference to a map or plat thereto attached. (1919, c. 82, s. 4; C. S. 2407.)

§ 43-34. Subdivision of registered estate.—Any owner of a registered estate who may desire to subdivide the same may make application in writing to the register of deeds for the issuance of a new certificate of title for each subdivision, to which application shall be attached a map or plat having clearly indicated thereon the boundaries of the whole of the registered estate in question and of each lot or parcel for which he desires a new certificate of title. Thereupon it shall be the duty of the register of deeds, upon payment by such applicant of necessary surveyor's fees, if any are required, and of the amount herein provided for issuing the certificates of title and recording the map, to cancel the certificate of title attached to said application and to issue to such owner new certificates of title, each bearing a new number, for each lot or parcel shown upon the said map, describing such lot or parcel in such certificates either by metes and bounds or by reference to a map or plat attached thereto. (1919, c. 82, s. 4; C. S. 2408.)

§ 43-35. References and cross-references entered on register. — In all cases the register of deeds shall place upon the registry of title books and upon the certificate of title of such registered estate therein, references and cross-references to the new certificates issued as above provided, in accordance with the provisions of this article, and the new certificates issued shall fully refer by number and by name of the holder to the canceled certificate in place of which they are issued. (1919, c. 82, s. 4; C. S. 2409.)

§ 43-36. When land conveyed as security. — 1. Whole land conveyed. Whenever the owner of any registered estate shall desire to convey same as security for debt, it may be done in the following manner, by a short form of transfer, substantially as follows, to wit:

A B and wife (giving names of all owners or holders of certificates and their wives) hereby transfer to C. D. the tract or lot of land described as No. ..... in registration of titles book for ..... county, a certificate for the title for same being hereto attached, to secure a debt of ..... dollars, due to ....., of ..... county and state, on the .... day of ....., 19...., evidenced by bond (or otherwise as the case may be) dated the .... day of ....., 19..... In case of default in payment of said debt with accrued interest, ... days notice of sale required.

The same shall be signed and properly acknowledged by the parties making same, and shall be presented, together with the owner's certificate, to the register of deeds, whose duty it shall be to note upon the owner's certificate and upon the certificate of title in the registration of titles book the name of the trustee, the amount of debt, and the date of maturity of same.

2. Part of land conveyed. When a part of the registered estate shall be so conveyed, the register of deeds shall note upon the book and owner's certificate the part so conveyed, and if the same be required and the proper fee paid by the trustee, shall issue what shall be known as a partial certificate, over his hand and seal, setting out the portion so conveyed.

3. Effect of transfer. All transfers by such short form shall convey the power of sale upon due advertisement at the county courthouse and in some newspaper published in the county, or adjourning county, in the same manner and as fully as is now provided by law in the case of mortgages and deeds of trust and default therein.

4. Other encumbrances noted. All registered encumbrances, rights or adverse claims affecting the estate represented thereby shall continue to be noted, not only upon the certificate of title in the registration book, but also upon the owner's certificate, until same shall have been released or discharged. And in the event of second or other subsequent voluntary encumbrances the holder of the certificate may be required to produce such certificate for the entry thereon or attachment thereto of the note of such subsequent charge or encumbrance as provided in this article.

5. Other forms of conveyance may be used. Nothing in this section nor this chapter shall be construed to prevent the owner from conveying such land, or any part of the same, as security for a debt by deed of trust or mortgage in any form which may be agreed upon between the parties thereto, and having such deed of trust or mortgage recorded in the office of the register of deeds as other deeds of trust and mortgages are recorded: Provided, that the book and page of the record at which such deed of trust or mortgage is recorded shall be entered by the register of deeds upon the owner's certificate and also on the registration of titles book.

6. Sale under lien; new certification. Upon foreclosure of such deed of trust or mortgage, or sale under execution for taxes or other lien on the land, the fact of such foreclosure or sale shall be reported by the trustee, mortgagee or other person authorized to make the same, to the register of deeds of the county in which the land lies, and, upon satisfactory evidence thereof, it shall be his duty to call in and cancel the outstanding certificate of title for the land so sold, and to issue a new certificate in its place to the purchaser or other person entitled thereto; and the production of such outstanding certificate and its surrender by the holder thereof may be compelled, upon notice to him, by motion before and order of the clerk of the superior court in the original proceeding or the clerk of the superior court of the county in which the land lies; but the right of appeal from such order may be exercised and shall be allowed as in other special proceedings, and pending any such appeal the rights of all parties shall be preserved. (1913, c. 90, s. 14; 1915, c. 245; 1919, c. 82, s. 5; C. S. 2410.)

§ 43-37. Owner's certificate presented with transfer. — In voluntary transactions the owner's certificate of title must be presented along with the writing or instrument conveying or effecting the sale, and thereupon and not otherwise the register shall be authorized to register the conveyance or other transaction upon proof of payment of all delinquent taxes or liens, if any, or if such payment be not shown the entry and new certificate shall note such taxes or liens as having priority thereto. (1913, c. 90, s. 15; C. S. 2411.)

§ 43-38. Transfers probated; partitions; contracts. — All transfers of registered land shall be duly executed and probated as required by law upon like conveyances of other lands, and in all cases of change in boundary by partition, subtraction or addition of land there shall be an accurate survey and permanent marking of boundaries and accurate plots, showing the courses, distances and markings of every portion thereof, which shall be duly proved and registered as upon the initial registration. Such transfers shall be presented to the register of deeds for entry upon the registration of titles book and upon the owner's certificate within thirty days from the date thereof, or become subject to any rights which may accrue to any other person by a prior registration. All leases or contracts affecting land for a period exceeding three years shall be in writing, duly proved before the clerk of the superior court, recorded in the register's office, and noted upon the registry and upon the owner's certificate. (1913, c. 90, ss. 15, 32; C. S. 2412.)

§ 43-39. Certified copy of order of court noted. —In voluntary transactions a certificate from the proper state, county or court officer, or certified copy of the order, decree or judgment of any court of competent jurisdiction shall be authority for him to order a proper notation thereof upon the registration of titles book, and for the register of deeds to note the transaction under the direction of the court. (1913, c. 90, s. 16; C. S. 2413.)

§ 43-40. Production of owner's certificate required. — Whenever owner's certificate is not presented to the register along with any writing, instrument or record filed for registration under this chapter, he shall forthwith send notice by registered mail to the owner of such certificate, requesting him to produce the same in order that a memorial of the transaction may be made thereon; and such production may be required by subpœna duces tecum or by other process of the court, if necessary. (1913, c. 90, s. 17; C. S. 2414.)

§ 43-41. Registration notice to all persons. — Every voluntary or involuntary transaction, which if recorded, filed or entered in any clerk's office would affect unregistered land, shall, if duly registered in the office of the proper register as the case may be, and not otherwise, be notice to all persons from the time of such registration, and operate, in accordance with law and the provisions of this chapter, upon any registered land in the county of such registration. (1913, c. 90, s. 18; C. S. 2415.)

§ 43-42. Conveyance of registered land in trust. —Whenever a writing, instrument or record is filed for the purpose of transferring registered land in trust, or upon any equitable condition or limitation expressed therein, or for the purpose of creating or declaring a trust or other equitable interest in such land, the particulars of the trust, condition, limitation or other equitable interest shall not be entered on the certificate, but it shall be sufficient to enter in the book and upon the certificates a memorial thereof by the terms "in trust" or "upon condition" or in other apt words, and to refer by number to the writing, instrument or record authorizing or creating the same. And if express power is given to sell, encumber or deal with the land in any manner, such power shall be noted upon the certificates by the term "with power to sell" or "with power to encumber," or by other apt words. (1913, c. 90, s. 19; C. S. 2416.)

§ 43-43. Authorized transfer of equitable interests registered. — No writing or instrument for the purpose of transferring, encumbering or otherwise dealing with equitable interests in registered land shall be registered unless the power thereto enabling has been expressly conferred by or has been reserved in the writing or instrument creating such equitable instrument, or has been declared to exist by the decree of some court of competent jurisdiction, which decree must also be registered. (1913, c. 90, s. 20; C. S. 2417.)

§ 43-44. Validating conveyance by entry on margin of certificate. — In all cases where the owner of any estate in lands, the title to which has been registered or attempted to be registered in accordance with the provisions of this chapter, has before August 21, 1924, and subsequent to such registration made any conveyance of such estate, or any portion thereof, by any form of conveyance sufficient in law to pass the title thereto if the title to said lands had not been so registered, the record owner and holder of the certificate of title covering such registered estate may enter upon the margin of his certificate of title in the registration of titles book a memorandum showing that such registered estate, or a portion thereof, has been so conveyed, and further showing the name of the grantee or grantees and the number of the book and the page thereof where such conveyance is recorded in the office of the register of deeds, and make a like entry upon the owner's certificate of title held by him, both of such entries to be signed by him and witnessed by the register of deeds, and attested by the seal of office of the register of deeds upon said owner's certificate, with the further notation made and signed by the register of deeds on the margin of the certificate of title in the registration of titles book showing that such entry has been made upon the owner's certificate of title, and thereupon such conveyance shall become and be as valid and effectual to pass such estate of the owner according to the tenor and purport of such conveyance as if the title to said lands had never been so registered, whether such conveyance be in form absolute or upon condition of trust; and in all cases where such conveyance has been made before August 21, 1924, upon the making of the entries herein authorized by the record owner and holder of such owner's certificate of title, the grantee and his heirs and assigns shall thereafter have the same right to convey the said estate or any part of the same in all respects as if the title to said lands had never been so registered. (Ex. Sess. 1924, c. 41.)

Editor's Note.—The effect of this section is summarized in 3 N. C. Law Rev. 19.

Art. 7. Liens upon Registered Lands.

§ 43-45. Docketed judgments.—Whenever any judgment of the superior court of the county in which the registered estate is situated shall be duly docketed in the office of the clerk of the superior court, it shall be the duty of the clerk to certify the same to the register of deeds. The register of deeds shall thereupon enter the certificate of title, the date, and the amount of the judgment, and the same shall be a lien upon such land as fully as such docketed judgment would be a lien upon unregistered lands of the judgment debtor. (1913, c. 90, s. 22; C. S. 2418.)

Cited in In re Wallace, 212 N. C. 490, 193 S. E. 819.

§ 43-46. Notice of delinquent taxes filed. — It shall be the duty of the sheriff or other collector of taxes or assessments of each county and town, not later than the first day of March in each year, to file an exact memorandum of the delinquency, if any, of any registered land for the nonpayment of the taxes or assessments thereon, including the penalty therefor, in the office of the register of deeds for registration; and if such officer fails to perform such duty, and there shall be subsequent to such day a transfer of the land as hereinbefore provided, the grantee shall acquire a good title free from any lien for such taxes and assessments, and such sheriff or other collector of taxes and his sureties shall be liable for the payment of the taxes and assessments with the penalty and interest thereon. (1913, c. 90, s. 21; C. S. 2419.)

§ 43-47. Sale of land for taxes; redemption.— Whenever any sale of registered land is made for delinquent taxes or levies, it shall be the duty of the sheriff or other officer making such sale to file forthwith a memorandum thereof for registration in the office of the register of deeds; and thereupon the registered owner shall be required to produce his certificate for cancellation, and a new owner's certificate shall be issued in favor of the purchaser, and the land shall be transferred on the land books to the name of such purchaser, unless such delinquent charges and all penalties and interest thereon be paid in full within ninety days after date of such sale; but a note shall be entered upon the certificate of title and also upon any such new owner's certificate, reserving the privilege of redemption in accordance with the law. In case of any redemption under this section of land sold for taxes, a note of the fact shall be duly registered, and if an owner's certificate has been issued to any purchaser, the same shall be canceled and a new one shall be issued to the person who has redeemed. (1913, c. 90, ss. 22, 23; C. S. 2420.)

§ 43-48. Sale of unredeemed land; application of proceeds. — If there be no redemption of land under the preceding section, in accordance with the law, it shall be the duty of the sheriff or other collector of taxes in the county or town in which the land lies to sell the same at public auction for cash, first giving such notice of the time and place of sale as is prescribed for execution sales, and the proceeds of sale shall be applied, first, to the payment of all taxes and assessments then due to the state, county and town, with interest, penalty and costs; second, to the payment of all sums paid by any person who purchased at the former tax sale, with interest and the additional sum of five dollars; third, to the payment of a commission to the officer making the sale of five per centum on the first three hundred dollars and two per centum on the residue of the proceeds; fourth, to the satisfaction of any liens other than the taxes and assessments registered against the land in the order of their priorities; fifth, and the surplus, if any, to the person in whose name the land was previous to sale for taxes, subject to redemption as provided herein, his heirs, personal representatives or assigns. A note of the sale under this section shall be duly registered, and a certificate shall be entered and an owner's certificate issued in favor of the purchaser in whom title shall be thereby vested as registered owner, in accordance with the provisions of this chapter. Nothing in this section shall be so construed as to affect or divert the title of a tenant in reversion or remainder to any real estate which has been returned delinquent and sold on account of the default of the tenant for life in paying the taxes or assessments thereon. (1913, c. 90, s. 23; C. S. 2421.)

Art. 8. Assurance Fund.

§ 43-49. Assurance fund provided; investment. —Upon the original registration of land and also upon the entry of certificate showing the title as registered owners in heirs or devisees, there shall be paid to the clerk of the court one-tenth of one per cent of the assessed value of the land for taxes, as an assurance fund, which shall be paid over to the state treasurer, who shall be liable therefor upon his official bond as for other moneys received by him in his official capacity. He shall keep all the principal and interest of such fund invested, except as required for the payment of indemnities, in bonds and securities of the United States, of this state, or of counties and other municipalities within the state. Such investment shall be made upon the advice and concurrence of the governor and council of state, and he shall make report of such funds and the investment thereof to the general assembly biennially. (1913, c. 90, s. 33; C. S. 2422.)

Cross Reference.—As to investment by state treasurer in bonds issued or guaranteed by the United States, see § 53-44.

§ 43-50. Action for indemnity.—Any person who, without negligence on his part, sustains loss or damage or is deprived of land, or of any estate or interest therein, through fraud or negligence or in consequence of any error, omission, mistake, misfeasance, or misdescription in any certificate of title or in any entry or memorandum in the registration book, and who, by the provisions of this chapter, is barred or in any way precluded from bringing an action for the recovery of such land or interest or estate therein or claim upon same, may bring an action in the superior court of the county in which the land is situate for the recovery of compensation for such loss or damage from the assurance fund. Such action shall be against the state treasurer and all other persons who may be liable for the fraud, negligence, omission, mistake or misfeasance; but if such claimant has the right of action or other remedy for the recovery of the land, or of the estate or interest therein, or of the claim upon same, he shall exhaust such remedy before resorting to the assurance fund. (1913, c. 90, s. 34; C. S. 2423.)

Negligence of Plaintiff Barring Recovery.—A Torrens proceeding under this chapter duly commenced prior to the enactment of Public Laws 1919, c. 31 (§ 1-117 and § 1-118), constituted a "lis pendens." So such proceedings while pending was notice to a mortgagee of the land without the necessity of the filing of a formal lis pendens, and where the mortgagee failed to protect himself under the provisions of the statute, and the title to the land was assured by the State, and a holder thereof by proper transfer acquired the title, the negligence of the mortgagee was a complete defense in the mortgagee's action to recover damages against the State thereunder. Brinson v. Lacy, 195 N. C. 394, 142 S. E. 317.

§ 43-51. Satisfaction by third person or by treasurer.—If there are defendants other than the state treasurer, and judgment is rendered in favor of the plaintiff and against the treasurer and some or all of the other defendants, execution shall first be issued against the other defendants, and if such execution is returned unsatisfied in whole or in part, and the officer returning the same shall certify that it cannot be collected from the property and effects of the other defendants, or if the judgment be against the treasurer only, the clerk of the court shall certify the amount due on the execution to the state auditor, who shall issue his warrant therefor upon the state treasurer, and the same shall be paid. In all such cases the treasurer may employ counsel who shall receive reasonable compensation for his services from the assurance fund. (1913, c. 90, s. 35; C. S. 2424.)

§ 43-52. Payment by treasurer, if assurance fund insufficient.—If the assurance fund shall be insufficient at any time to meet the amount called for by any such certificate, the treasurer shall pay the same from any funds in the treasury not otherwise appropriated; and in such case any amount thereafter received by the treasurer on account of the assurance fund shall be transferred to the general funds of the treasury until the amount advanced shall have been paid. (1913, c. 90, s. 36; C. S. 2425.)

§ 43-53. Treasurer subrogated to right of claimant.—In every case of payment by the treasurer from the assurance funds under the provisions of this chapter the treasurer shall be subrogated to all the rights of the plaintiff against all and every other person or property or securities to a trustee, or by the improper exercise of any power of sale in benefit of the assurance fund. (1913, c. 90, s. 37; C. S. 2426.)

§ 43-54. Assurance fund not liable for breach of trust; limit of recovery.—The assurance fund shall not be liable to pay any loss, damage or deprivation occasioned by a breach of trust, whether expressed, constructive or implied, by any registered owner who is a trustee, or by the improper exercise of any power of sale in a mortgage or deed of trust. Nor shall any plaintiff recover as compensation under the provisions of this chapter more than the fair market value of the land at the time when he suffered the loss, damage or deprivation thereof. (1913, c. 90, s. 38; C. S. 2427.)

§ 43-55. Statute of limitation as to assurance fund.—Action for compensation from the assurance fund shall be begun within three years from the time the cause of action accrued. In cases of infancy or other disability now recognized by law, persons under such disability shall have one year after the removal of such disability within which to begin the action. (1913, c. 90, s. 39; C. S. 2428.)

Art. 9. Removal of Land from Operation of Torrens Law.

§ 43-56. Proceedings.—Any land brought under the provisions and operation of this chapter before April 16, 1931, may be removed and excluded therefrom by a motion in writing filed in the original cause wherein said land was brought under the provisions and operation of said chapter, and upon the filing of a petition therein showing the names of all persons owning an interest in said land and of all lien holders, mortgagees and trustees of record, and the description of said land. Upon the filing of said petition the Clerk of the Superior Court shall issue a citation to all parties interested and named in the petition, and upon the return date of said citation and upon the hearing of said motion, the said Clerk of the Superior Court may enter a decree in said cause removing and excluding said land from the provisions and operation of this chapter, and transfer and conveyance of said land may be made thereafter as other common law conveyances. (1931, c. 286, s. 1.)

Editor's Note.—No procedure is provided for in case the petition should be contested. And while the legislature rather loosely provides that the clerk, upon rendering his decree excluding the land, also may decree that subsequent transfers of said land may be made "as other common law conveyances," it obviously means that such transfers should be effectuated by deeds duly probated and registered under our present laws. The amendment makes no specific provision for the recordation of the Clerk's decree as notice that the particular tract of land is no longer registered under the Torrens Act.

The Torrens system of land registration, though highly desirable from many points of view, has never been extensively used in North Carolina. Since 1913, when the Act was passed, scarcely five hundred titles have been registered under it. The present amendment now makes possible the "unregistering" of these titles. 9 N. C. Law Rev. 392.

§ 43-57. Existing liens unaffected.—Nothing in § 43-56 shall be construed to impair or remove any lien or encumbrance existing against said land. (1931, c. 286, s. 3.)

Chapter 44. Liens.

Art. 1. Mechanics', Laborers' and Materialmen's Liens.

§ 44-1. On buildings and property, real and personal.—Every building built, rebuilt, repaired or improved, together with the necessary lots on which such building is situated, and every lot, farm or vessel, or any kind of property, real or personal, not herein enumerated, shall be subject to a lien for the payment of all debts contracted for work done on the same, or material furnished. (Rev., 2016; Code, s. 1781; 1901, c. 617; 1869-70, c. 206, s. 1; C. S. 2433.)

I. GENERAL CONSIDERATIONS.

In General.—The Constitution requires the General Assembly to "provide by proper legislation for giving to mechanics and laborers an adequate lien on the subject-matter of their labor." Art. 14, sec. 4. And the statute gives the lien "for the payment of all debts contracted for work done on the same or material furnished." In the construction of this section it is declared, in Wilkie v. Bray, 71 N. C. 205, that "in order to create the lien, the circumstances must be such as first to create the relation of debtor and creditor; and then it is for the debt that he has the lien." The effect of this ruling, which makes the statutory lien an incident to and the offspring of the contract out of which the indebtedness springs, and confines it to the party to the contract, was followed by the enactment of article 2 of this chapter which was not intended to supersede the lien of the contractor for it in direct terms gives the lien in favor of subcontractors, laborers and materialmen a preference over "the mechanics' lien now provided by law," and provides that when notice is given, the aggregate of such liens shall not exceed the amount then due the original contractor. Lester v. Houston, 101 N. C. 605, 609, 8 S. E. 366.

The debt contracted becomes a lien, a charge upon the land, and that land may, if need be, be sold, or in some appropriate way applied to the payment of the debt secured by and constituting the ground of the lien. It makes no difference as to the ownership of the land if the debt for such considerations was lawfully contracted, because the land is benefited by the labor so done on or about it, or by the materials furnished. The intention is that the land shall be charged by a lien with the costs of the benefits so extended to it, whether the benefits arise from labor done in building or repairing houses, in cultivating the land, building fences, ditching, felling trees, or the like, or from the erection of mills of any kind on it, or from supplying machinery, fixtures or any "material furnished" for such purpose. This is a just and reasonable interpretation of the statute. McNeal Pipe, etc., Co. v. Howland, etc., Water Co., 111 N. C. 615, 619, 16 S. E. 857.

This and the following sections under the topic of liens are remedial, and their clear purpose is to give contractors, subcontractors and laborers liens upon property as therein prescribed and provided, to secure the payment of money due for labor done or material supplied on or about the same. To that end its language, phraseology, and scope are broad and comprehensive. There are few, if any, express exceptive provisions in it, and, in the absence of them, exceptions and limitations affecting such liens cannot be allowed unless by necessary implication. The object is to give a lien on particular property deriving particular benefit in favor of classes of persons whose claims are supposed to have particular merit. Chadbourn v. Williams, 71 N. C. 444; Wooten v. Hill, 98 N. C. 48, 3 S. E. 846; Burr v. Maultsby, 99 N. C. 263, 6 S. E. 108; McNeal Pipe, etc., Co. v. Howland, etc., Co., 111 N. C. 615, 617, 16 S. E. 857.

A mechanic's lien may be defined to be a claim created by law for the purpose of securing a priority of payment of the price and value of work performed and materials furnished in erecting or repairing a building or other structure, and as such it attaches to the land as well as the buildings erected thereon. Van Stone v. Stillwell, etc., Mfg. Co., 142 U. S. 128, 136, 12 S. Ct. 181, 35 L. Ed. 961.

Origin of Lien.—Mechanics' liens were unknown in common law and equity jurisprudence both of England and of this country. They were clearly defined and regulated in the civil law. Where they exist in this country they are creatures of local legislation. Canal Co. v. Gordon, 6 Wall 561, 571, 18 L. Ed. 894.

Priority of the Lien.—The lien created by this section is preferred to every other lien or encumbrance, which attaches upon the property subsequent to the time at which the work was commenced, or the materials were furnished. Lookout Lumber Co. v. Mansion Hotel, etc., R. Co., 109 N. C. 658, 660, 14 S. E. 35.

"Mechanics'" and "Laborers'" Liens Distinguished.—When the contractor undertakes to put up a building and complete the same, the contract is indivisible and his "mechanic's lien" embraces the entire outlay, whether in labor or material, being for "work done on the premises," i. e., for betterments on it. The "laborer's lien" is solely for labor performed. The mechanic's lien is broader and includes the "work done," i. e., the "building built" or superstructure placed on the premises. Broyhill v. Gaither, 119 N. C. 443, 445, 26 S. E. 31.

Contractor Need Not Himself Perform the Labor.—The constitutional provision for giving to mechanics and laborers liens for their work, and the statutes enacted in pursuance thereof, and also giving liens for materials furnished, extend to and embrace contractors, who do not themselves perform the labor or furnish the materials used, but procure it to be done through the agency of others. Lester v. Houston, 101 N. C. 605, 8 S. E. 366.

Mere Knowledge Not Sufficient.—"Mere knowledge that work is being done or materials furnished on one's property does not enable the person furnishing the labor or materials to obtain a lien, since there is no privity between the owner and the person furnishing the labor or materials." 3 N. C. Law Rev. 65.

Property Subject to the Lien Must Be Sold First.—The property to which the lien attaches is specially devoted to the satisfaction of the plaintiff's claim, and hence it must be sold before other property may be resorted to. McNeal Pipe, etc., Co. v. Howland, etc., Water Co., 111 N. C. 615, 621, 16 S. E. 857.

When Itemized Statement Unnecessary.—Where a materialman's lien under this section, is for a complete contract for a gross sum, it is not necessary that the statement be itemized as required in the case of divisible contracts for goods or labor. King v. Elliott, 197 N. C. 93, 147 S. E. 701.

Sufficiency of Itemized Statement.—Where the claimant has attached and made a part of his lien an itemized statement of his account for labor and material which he has furnished the owner of the building upon which he claims his lien under this section, showing on several specific dates "money advanced for payroll," "furnace contract, etc.," each in stated amounts, it is held a sufficient itemization of his claims as required by the statute. King v. Elliott, 197 N. C. 93, 147 S. E. 701.

Statement Presumed Correct.—Where a lien filed under the provisions of this section gives the date to each item of labor or material furnished in relation to the building upon which the lien is sought, it will be presumed, nothing else appearing, that the dates given in the statement are correct. King v. Elliott, 197 N. C. 93, 147 S. E. 701.

Affidavit.—An affidavit to a lien filed under this section that the "foregoing statement of account showing the goods sold, delivered, installed, and work done," etc., for a "furnace contract": Held, sufficient to show a complete contract for the furnace at the price itemized in the statement. King v. Elliott, 197 N. C. 93, 147 S. E. 701.

Priority of the Lien.—The lien for labor and material furnished to the owner of a building under the provisions of this section and notice filed as required by § 44-38, and § 44-39, where furnished under an entire or complete contract for the various items as a whole, relates back to the time of the first delivery and work done under the contract, and is superior to a mortgage lien subsequently given and properly recorded. King v. Elliott, 197 N. C. 93, 147 S. E. 701.

Jurisdiction.—Where materials of a value in excess of two hundred dollars are furnished under an entire and indivisible contract, and the material furnisher institutes suit in a justice's court to recover for part of the materials furnished and also institutes suit in the superior court on the same cause of action, defendant's motion to dismiss the action instituted in the justice's court for want of jurisdiction should be allowed, since plaintiff may not split up his cause of action for jurisdictional purposes and try it piecemeal in both courts. Allison v. Steele, 220 N. C. 318, 17 S. E. (2d) 339.

Finding that Contract Entire.—Where it has been agreed by the parties that the trial judge find the facts upon the trial of the question of the sufficiency of a lien filed for material and labor furnished for a building his finding that the contract was "to do certain work and furnish certain materials for a stated amount" under the evidence in the case is interpreted to mean that the contract referred to was entire. King v. Elliott, 197 N. C. 93, 147 S. E. 701.

Estoppel.—By electing to assert a lien as a subcontractor under § 44-6, plaintiff is estopped from thereafter asserting a lien as a contractor or material furnisher under this section and plaintiff is entitled to recover of defendant only the amount due the contractor by the owner on the date notice was given as a subcontracter or material furnisher. Doggett Lbr. Co. v. Perry, 212 N. C. 713, 194 S. E. 475.

When plaintiff is estopped by its election in asserting a lien under § 44-6, from asserting a lien under this section, and its action brought solely under this section is dismissed as of nonsuit because of such election, plaintiff's remedy is by instituting another action to recover for materials furnished the contractor and used in the construction of the building under § 44-6. Doggett Lbr. Co. v. Perry, 213 N. C. 533, 196 S. E. 831.

Cited in Atlas Supply Co. v. McCurry, 199 N. C. 799, 156 S. E. 91; First, etc., Nat. Bank v. Sawyer, 218 N. C. 142, 10 S. E. (2d) 656.

II. MATERIALS AND SERVICES CONTRACTED.

Meaning of "Materials Furnished."—The lien arises in favor of and to secure the payment of "any and all debts contracted for work done on the same or materials furnished." By the term "materials furnished," is meant something furnished to be appropriated, used and pertinently applied on the land, devoted to some purpose no matter what, so that the purpose be lawful. The purpose is to secure the debt contracted for materials furnished on or about or connected with the land in connection with the purpose to which it is devoted in whole or in part. McNeal Pipe, etc., Co. v. Howland, etc., Water Co., 111 N. C. 615, 619, 16 S. E. 857.

Plans and specifications of the architect are not "material" within the meaning of this section. Stephens v. Hicks, 156 N. C. 239, 72 S. E. 313.

No Lien upon the Materials as Distinct from the Building.—Several of the states have lien laws very similar in phraseology to this section, and the construction put upon them has not been uniform. In some of them it has been held that there is a lien on the building, etc., for materials furnished for the purpose or with the understanding that they were to be used in the erection or repairing of a building, whether so used or not; in others, that the materialman had a lien for the materials furnished, with the understanding that they were to be used in the construction of a building, although they were not used for such a purpose; and in others, with lien laws more resembling our own, that no lien can be acquired upon materials furnished for a building, etc., as distinct from the building, but only upon the building, etc., in the construction or repairing of which they are used. The latter is the proper construction of this section. Lanier v. Bell, 81 N. C. 337, 338.

But in the case of construction of a municipal building, in order for the subcontractor or materialman to have a claim against the bond of the contractor, it is not necessary that the materials furnished should have been actually used in such building; it is sufficient if they were contracted for that purpose. See Annotations to sec. 44-14.

Under this section the "material furnished," must be such material as enters into and becomes a part of the property and adds to its value. Pocahontas Coal Co. v. Henderson Elect. Light, etc., Co., 118 N. C. 232, 235, 24 S. E. 22.

Service or Materials Must Have Bettered the Property.—This section is construed in Tedder v. Wilmington, etc., R. Co., 124 N. C. 342, 32 S. E. 714, as meaning that the "Legislature has provided a lien only when the service or labor is for the betterment of property on which it is bestowed, leaving the laborer in all other cases to secure himself as at common law"—i. e., by retaining in his possession any property on which he makes repairs until paid for the same. Glazener v. Gloucester Lumber Co., 167 N. C. 676, 679, 83 S. E. 696.

Meaning of Term "Contracted."—The lien is given for the amount due upon debts contracted. But in this connection it is permissible to give the term "contracted" the larger meaning—agreed to be paid—thereby giving a highly remedial statute an operation commensurate with its purpose. Ball v. Paquin, 140 N. C. 83, 95, 52 S. E. 410.

The existence of a debt arising out of contract, due by the owner of the property, is a necessary predicate to the existence of a lien for labor and materials. Brown v. Ward, 221 N. C. 344, 20 S. E. (2d) 324.

III. PERSONS ENTITLED TO LIEN.

Lien to "Laborers and Mechanics," Excusive.—In Whitaker v. Smith, 81 N. C. 340, it was held that this section gave a lien to "Mechanics and Laborers" exclusively, and that an "overseer" was not a laborer, and reference was made to 8 Pa. St. 168, where it is held that an engineer is not a laborer. Tommey v. Spartanburg, etc., R. Co., 7 Fed. 429, 433.

Whatever may be the law, as declared in other jurisdictions, it is the settled principal in this State, that a mechanic or laborer, within the meaning of the lien laws, is one who performs manual labor—one regularly employed at some hard work, or one who does work that requires little skill, as distinguished from an artisan. Whitaker v. Smith, 81 N. C. 340; Stephens v. Hicks, 156 N. C. 239, 240, 72 S. E. 313.

The provision of the Constitution requiring the General Assembly to provide liens for mechanics and laborers, and the acts passed to carry it into effect, were intended to give protection to that class of persons who were totally dependent upon their manual toil for subsistence. The law was designed exclusively for mechanics and laborers. Whitaker v. Smith, 81 N. C. 340, 341. See Lester v. Houston, 101 N. C. 605, 8 S. E. 366, where it is held that the contractor or materialmen need not themselves furnish the labor or the materials.

In Whitaker v. Smith, 81 N. C. 340, it was held that an overseer is not a mechanic or laborer under the lien law, and is not entitled to a lien on the building and premises, where his work is done or labor performed, for the price or value of his services. The case of Cook v. Ross, 117 N. C. 193, 23 S. E. 252, is also to the same effect. There it was held that one who, under a contract, assists the owner of a mill in purchasing machinery and superintends the installation of the same and the repairing of the mill, so as to put it in proper condition for the manufacture of yarns, was in no view justified by our statute, a mechanic or laborer. Stephens v. Hicks, 156 N. C. 239, 241, 72 S. E. 313.

Architect Not a Laborer or Mechanic.—An architect who furnishes plans and specifications for a building is not a mechanic or laborer within the meaning of this article and he has no lien thereon for the same. Stephens v. Hicks, 156 N. C. 239, 72 S. E. 313.

IV. PROPERTY COVERED.

Any Real Property.—The phraseology of this section and the purpose of it are comprehensive. The lien prescribed attaches, in the case provided for, to any real property, whether it be denominated "a lot or farm," or a storehouse site, a mill site, a water reservoir site, or the like. McNeal Pipe, etc., Co. v. Howland, etc., Water Co., 111 N. C. 615, 619, 16 S. E. 857.

House and Lot.—Where a house is built by a contractor for the owner upon an undivided tract of 80 acres in the country, the mechanic's lien attaches to the whole tract, especially where it appears that the house alone, apart from the tract of land, would be of comparatively little value. The fact that a house and improvements, built by a contractor upon a tract of 80 acres belonging to the owner, are enclosed by a fence including about three acres is not a segregation or division of the house from the tract so as to confine the mechanic's lien to the enclosure. In such case, though the lien is upon the whole tract, it should be divided, if practicable and desired by the defendant, in making the sale, and the parts sold in such order as he may elect, so that, if possible, the lien may be discharged without exhausting the entire tract. Broyhill v. Gaither, 119 N. C. 443, 26 S. E. 31.

Lien on Personalty Is Dependent upon Possession.—While this section provides for a lien not only upon buildings and lots, but also upon "any kind of property, real or personal," other sections of the lien law provide the conditions upon which the lien is to come into existence and continue; and in case of personal property the lien is dependent upon possession and cannot be obtained by the filing of notice. Elk Creek Lbr. Co. v. Hamby, 84 F. (2d) 144, 147.

V. APPLICATION TO PUBLIC CONSTRUCTIONS.

Not Applicable to Public Buildings, etc.—The lien laws were not intended to be so construed as to embarrass property devoted, by the very terms of the contract, to a public purpose, and to be used by the sovereign State of any public or quasi public corporation in the exercise of its delegated sovereign powers. McNeal Pipe, etc., Co. v. Howland, etc., Water Co., 111 N. C. 615, 627, 16 S. E. 857.

The rights of laborers and materialmen to acquire liens against the property of the owner for work done upon it and for material furnished to the contractor in the erection of his building, etc., do not rest by common law but strictly by statute, and the provisions of the statute must be followed for its enforcement; and where the property is not subject to this lien, such as public buildings, etc., no duty or obligation is imposed upon the owner in respect to such claimants. Noland Co. v. Board, 190 N. C. 250, 129 S. E. 577.

Same—Courthouse.—A courthouse cannot be made subject to any lien for labor materials. Snow v. Board, 112 N. C. 335, 17 S. E. 176; Pratt Lumber Co. v. Gill Co., 278 Fed. 783, 787.

Same—Schools.—A building used for graded school purposes is a public building upon which no lien can be acquired, except with legislative sanction. Gastonia v. McEntie-Peterson, etc., Co., 131 N. C. 363, 42 S. E. 858; Snow v. Board, 112 N. C. 335, 17 S. E. 176; Morgantown Hardware Co. v. Morgantown Graded Schools, 151 N. C. 507, 66 S. E. 583.

Same—Highways.—One contracting to construct a highway has, under this section, no lien on the highway; nor have the subcontractors, laborers or materialmen. Pratt Lumber Co. v. Gill Co., 278 Fed. 783.

Same—Reason of the Rule.—The reason upon which the courts hold that the statutory lien given contractors, subcontractors, materialmen, and laborers upon buildings or other improvements upon real property for work, material, and labor does not extend or apply to public buildings is that such buildings, being held for public governmental purposes, cannot be sold under execution or other final process, and this reason applies with peculiar force to materials furnished or labor performed in the construction or repair of Public highways. Pratt Lumber Co. v. Gill Co., 278 Fed. 783, 788.

VI. APPLICATION TO RAILROADS.

Not Applicable to Railroads.—This section does not apply to railroads. Tommey v. Spartanburg, etc., R. Co., 7 Fed. 429, 433. This conclusion is supported by the intimation of the Supreme Court in Whitaker v. Smith, 81 N. C. 340. Id. But see Dunavant v. Caldwell, etc., R. Co., 122 N. C. 999, 29 S. E. 837, where it was held that where a contractor, who does work or furnishes materials for the construction of a railroad, is entitled to file a lien on the property of the company. See also sec. 44-13 as to the remedy of a laborer for a railroad contractor.

The Supreme Court of Iowa in Nelson v. R. R. Co. * * * construing a statute which resembles this section held that a railway was not a building within the meaning of their mechanic's lien law. Tommey v. Spartanburg, etc., R. Co., 7 Fed. 429, 433.

VII. WAIVER OF LIEN, HOMESTEAD, AND MISCELLANEOUS MATTERS.

Waiver of the Lien.—In an action brought to subject a vessel to a lien for materials furnished in its construction, it was found that, at or before the filing of the notice of lien, the plaintiff assented to a sale which was made to third parties and agreed to accept three notes secured by a second mortgage on the vessel as security. It was held that such agreement was a waiver of the lien, and the lienor was estopped to enforce his demand against the purchaser. Kornegay v. Styron, 105 N. C. 14, 11 S. E. 153.

As to whether one furnishing coal to a corporation used in the manufacture of its cotton products can claim his lien on the facts of this case, under the provisions of this section is a quaere, But his failure to enforce his asserted lien under the provisions of sec. 44-43, deprives him of whatever right thereto he may have had. Norfleet v. Tarboro Cotton Factory, 172 N. C. 833, 89 S. E. 785.

The homestead right is not affected by a lien for materials furnished and used in improvements upon land covered by homestead, and a statute which gives such lien is unconstitutional. Cumming v. Bloodworth, 87 N. C. 83. See also, Broyhill v. Gaither, 119 N. C. 443, 26 S. E. 31.

Priority of Homestead over Material Lien.—The "material lien" is by virtue of the statute only, and does not come under the constitutional priority given to the "mechanic's lien for work done on the premises" over the homestead exemption. Cumming v. Bloodworth, 87 N. C. 83; Broyhill v. Gaither, 119 N. C. 443, 445, 26 S. E. 31.

Contractor Agent of Owner—Rights of Materialman.—Where one has furnished the owner at the request of the contractor materials to be used in his building, and by the terms of the written contract the contractor is the agent of the owner for that purpose, the one so furnishing the material may acquire and enforce his lien upon the building, under the provisions of this section and secs. 44-38 and 44-39. North Carolina Lumber Co. v. Spear Motor Co., 192 N. C. 377, 135 S. E. 115.

Supervision by an architect of work done upon a building is not the character of work which falls within the intent of this section. Stephens v. Hicks, 156 N. C. 239, 72 S. E. 313.

Work Done, Materials Furnished under the Same Contract.—Where the work done on a house and furnishing the material were all in the same contract, which was entire and indivisible, the contractor is entitled to a lien for the whole amount. Isler v. Dixon, 140 N. C. 529, 53 S. E. 348.

Claim of Contractor to Proceeds of Insurance Policy.—The holder of a mechanic's lien has no claim on the proceeds of insurance policies taken out by the owner and payable to himself or to a mortgagee. Healey Ice Mach. Co. v. Green, 181 Fed. 890.

Fraudulent Misrepresentation that All Bills Paid.—In a prosecution for obtaining a mortgage loan by misrepresenting that bills for all labor and materials for the renovation of the building on the premises had been paid, such misrepresentation is material in view of the statutory liens of laborers and materials furnishers, and the fact that the mortgagee had the property appraised and obtained an attorney's certificate of title does not show that the mortgagee did not rely upon the misrepresentation, there being no notice of any unpaid bills for labor and materials on file of public record and there being testimony of the president of the mortgagee that it relied upon the misrepresentation. State v. Hawley, 220 N. C. 113, 16 S. E. (2d) 705.

§ 44-2. On personal property repaired. — Any mechanic or artisan who makes, alters or repairs any article of personal property at the request of the owner or legal possessor of such property has a lien on such property so made, altered or repaired for his just and reasonable charge for his work done and material furnished, and may hold and retain possession of the same until such just and reasonable charges are paid; and if not paid for within thirty days, if it does not exceed fifty dollars, or within ninety days if over fifty dollars, after the work was done, such mechanic or artisan may proceed to sell the property so made, altered or repaired at public auction, by giving two weeks public notice of such sale by advertising in some newspaper in the county in which the work may have been done, or if there is no such newspaper, then by posting up notice of such sale in three of the most public places in the county, town or city in which the work was done, and the proceeds of the said sale shall be applied first to the discharge of the said lien and the expenses and costs of keeping and selling such property, and the remainder, if any, shall be paid over to the owner thereof. (Rev., s. 2017; Code, s. 1783; 1869-70, c. 206, s. 3; C. S. 2435.)

Cross Reference.—As to requirement that the Commissioner of revenue be given thirty days' notice of sale of a motor vehicle under a mechanic's or storage lien, see §§ 20-77, subsec. (c) and 20-114, subsec. (c).

In General.—This section is within the police power of the State and in addition to the common-law lien given artisans on personal property repaired by them, while in their possession, for the reasonable value of the repairs, provides for its enforcement by foreclosure in accordance with its stated terms. Johnson v. Yates, 183 N. C. 24, 110 S. E. 603.

To Whom Section Applies.—The requirement of this section, that the lien in favor of the artisan making repairs on personal property shall attach under the provisions of the statute, only where such repairs are made at the instance of the owner "or the legal possessor of the property," includes within its terms all persons whose authorized possession is of such character as to make reasonable repairs necessary to the proper use of the property, and which were evidently in the contemplation of the parties. Johnson v. Yates, 183 N. C. 24, 110 S. E. 603.

Same—Vendee of Car with Mortgage to Vendor.—Where the vendor of an automobile takes a purchase-money mortgage and transfers the possession to the vendee for an indefinite period, it is with the implied authority in the vendee that he may use the machine and keep it in such reasonable and just repair as the use will require; and where, at the vendee's instance, a mechanic has repaired the same, his reasonable charge for such repairs creates a lien on the automobile, retained in his possession, superior to that of the vendor's mortgage. Johnson v. Yates, 183 N. C. 24, 110 S. E. 630.

Retention of Possession Essential—At Common Law.—At common law where a laborer repaired a wagon and surrendered it to the owner before payment, the laborer has no lien. Possession is absolutely necessary to the existence of the lien. Tedder v. Wilmington, etc., R. Co., 124 N. C. 342, 32 S. E. 714; McDougall v. Crapon, 95 N. C. 292.

Same—Under this Section.—The lien on personal property given by this section applies when possession is retained by the mechanic. Glazener v. Gloucester Lumber Co., 167 N. C. 676, 83 S. E. 696. If the mechanic or artisan surrenders possession of the property, he loses his lien. Tedder v. Wilmington, etc., R. Co., 124 N. C. 342, 344, 32 S. E. 714; Block v. Dowd, 120 N. C. 402, 27 S. E. 129; McDougall v. Crapon, 95 N. C. 292. Glazener v. Gloucester Lumber Co., 167 N. C. 676, 678, 83 S. E. 696; Elk Creek Lbr. Co. v. Hamby, 84 F. (2d) 144, 147.

Thus where a wagon was repaired by a laborer, who surrendered it to the owner before payment was made, it was held that the laborer had no lien on the wagon, either at common law or under the statute for his work done and materials furnished in making the repairs. McDougall v. Crapon, 95 N. C. 292.

The mechanic or artisan may exercise his common law right to retain the property, and this section, recognizing the right, authorizes him to advertise and sell and pay himself, after the specified period of possession. It is a necessary consequence that the lien is lost when possession is given up to the owner, as well as the statutory method of enforcing it, since these rights are incident to and dependent on possession, both at common law and under the provisions of this section. "The pledgee," in the words of a recent author, "certainly loses the benefit of his security, whenever, by a complete out and out delivering back to the pledgor, he voluntarily places the property beyond his own reach." Schou. Pers. Prop., 515; McDougall v. Crapon, 95 N. C. 292, 296.

Where a mechanic repairs certain personal property at the request of the lessee, and without request or knowledge on the part of the owner, and the mechanic never has possession of the property, but possession is returned to the owner by the lessee upon the termination of the lease, the mechanic may not hold the owner liable for the reasonable value of the repairs, this section being applicable only where the mechanic retains possession of the property. Broadfoot Iron Works v. Bugg, 208 N. C. 284, 180 S. E. 62.

Where the purchaser of an automobile gives the seller a title-retaining contract to secure the balance of the purchase price, and thereafter gives a second lien on the car to another, and later the second lienor takes possession from the purchaser without legal process and has the car repaired, the second lienor is not the owner or legal possessor of the car within the intent and meaning of this section, and the one making the repairs obtains no lien therefor under the statute and is not entitled to possession as against the first lienor. Willis v. Taylor, 201 N. C. 467, 160 S. E. 487.

Possession of Automobile Obtained from Mechanic by Fraudulent Representations.—Under the common law and the provisions of this section, one who repairs personal property loses his lien thereon by voluntarily surrendering possession to the owner, but where an automobile has been repaired and the artisan or mechanic is induced to part with possession upon false and fraudulent representations made by the owner that his check for the payment of the repairs was good and that he had sufficient funds in the bank for its payment, and the mechanic relies thereon and surrenders possession of the car, he does not do so voluntarily and unconditionally within the intent and meaning of the statute, and the mechanic does not lose his lien for the value of the repairs done by him. Reich v. Triplett, 199 N. C. 678, 155 S. E. 573.

Filing Notice Not Required.—This section is a self-executing enactment, conferring upon the mechanic artisan the means of making his debt out of the property by his own act, in selling after thirty days' retention without the intervention of judicial proceeding, either in the superior court or that of a justice of the peace; and section 44-39, which, for the preservation of the lien, requires notice of it to be filed within six months after completing the labor, cannot have been intended for a case in which as under this section a resort to any court is unnecessary, and a complete and efficient measure of relief is committed to, and may be obtained by, the party's own act. McDougall v. Crapon, 95 N. C. 292, 295.

The enactments as to filing notice must have been intended for cases where possession is not in the mechanic or artisan, and where an action is necessary for his relief. Id.

Lien on Timber Manufactured into Lumber, etc.—Under this section, one who cuts timber and manufactures it into lumber for a corporation before a receiver is appointed therefor has the right to retain the possession of such lumber until his lien is discharged by payment. Huntsman Bros. & Co. v. Linville River Lumber Co., 122 N. C. 583, 29 S. E. 838. See next section.

One who enters into a contract to cut, haul and raft logs after the standing timber upon lands has been felled for the purpose, has, while the logs are in his possession, a lien thereon for the services thus performed, under the provisions of this section, the timber after its severance from the land being regarded as personalty. Thomas v. Merrill, 169 N. C. 623, 86 S. E. 593. See next section.

Sale Restrained Where Mechanic's Claim Controverted.—Where one, who has the right under this section to retain possession of and to sell personal property for the purpose of defraying his charges, is made a party to an action in the nature of a creditor's bill against the owner in which the nature and amount of claimant's debt are in dispute, he will be restrained from making a sale of the property until such contentions are settled. Huntsman Bros. & Co. v. Linville River Lumber Co., 122 N. C. 583, 29 S. E. 838.

Priority of Lien.—The lien created by this section is superior to a vendor's lien, or to a mortgage lien. Johnson v. Yates, 183 N. C. 24, 110 S. E. 603.

A mechanic's lien is given preference under this section to a mortgage lien though the latter be prior in point of time. Johnson v. Yates, 183 N. C. 24, 110 S. E. 603. For a note upon this case, see 1 N. C. Law Rev. 127 where the reasons of holding are discussed.

This conclusion arrived at by the court is analogous to liens in admiralty where every hypothecation of the vessel which is effected to preserve it from deterioration or loss is held to be superior to other liens prior in point of time, on the theory that except for such preservation the prior lien would be worthless. Ed. Note.

Cited in Goodrich Silvertown Stores v. Caesar, 214 N. C. 85, 197 S. E. 698.

§ 44-3. Laborer's lien on lumber and its products.—Every person doing the work of logging or of cutting or sawing logs into lumber, or of getting out wood pulp, acid wood or tan bark, has a lien upon the said logs or lumber for the amount of wages due him, and the said lien shall have priority over all other claims or liens upon said lumber, except as against a purchaser for full value and without notice thereof: Provided, any such laborer whose wages for thirty or less number of days performed are due and unpaid shall file notice of such claim before the nearest justice of the peace in the county in which said work has been done, stating the number of days of labor performed, the price per day, and the place where the lumber is situate, and the person for whom said labor was performed, which said statement shall be signed by the said laborer or his attorney and the said laborer shall also give to the owner thereof, within five days after the lien has been filed with the justice of the peace, as aforesaid, a copy of said notice as filed with the said justice of the peace. If the owner cannot be located, then notice shall be given by attaching said notice on the logs or lumber, wood pulp, acid wood or tan bark upon which the labor sued for was performed, and any person buying said lumber or logs, wood pulp, acid wood or tan bark after such notice has been filed with the nearest justice of the peace, shall be deemed to have bought the same with notice thereof, but no action shall be maintained against the owner of said logs or lumber, wood pulp, acid wood or tan bark or the purchaser thereof under the provisions of this section unless same is commenced within thirty days after notice is filed with the justice of the peace by such laborer, as above provided. (1913, c. 150, s. 6; 1929, c. 69; C. S. 2436.)

Local Modification.—Avery, Mitchell, Yancey: 1941, c. 129.

Editor's Note.—The Act of 1929 added the word "logging" in the second line and "logs" in the third line of this section.

Under the provision of this section, prior to the amendment of 1929, persons who cut and logged timber to a mill under a contract to do so at a fixed price were not entitled to a lien for such services, this interpretation of this section being strengthened by the fact that the amendment of 1929 included within the meaning of the statute those who were engaged in logging to the mill. Graves v. Dockery, 200 N. C. 317, 156 S. E. 506.

Reason for Enactment of Section.—It was because a lien could not be obtained for labor performed in the manufacture of lumber unless the party claiming it retained possession, that the Legislature enacted this section. Elk Creek Lbr. Co. v. Hamby, 84 F. (2d) 144, 147.

Work Done Directly by Claimant and in Betterment of Property.—Under this section the work must have been done directly by the claimant in betterment of the property upon which the lien is alleged to rest, thus one who aided in making the lumber by taking the boards from the saw as they were cut, is entitled to a lien, but one who is employed in the blacksmith shop as repairer of cars used as part of the plant, and one, who worked on the car track and repaired the bridges are not so entitled. Thomas v. Merrill, 169 N. C. 623, 627, 86 S. E. 593.

Compliance with Statutory Requirements Necessary. — In an action to establish a laborer's lien upon manufactured lumber, under the provisions of this section, the plaintiff must show compliance with the various statutory requisites; and a charge as to notice that the jury should return a verdict for the plaintiff should they find that he attached "the notice to the lumber" on the defendant's yard, is deficient and erroneous in leaving out the question as to whether the defendant had been served with a copy of the claim within five days after filing the lien with the justice of the peace, or that he could not be found. Bryson v. Gennett Lumber Co., 171 N. C. 700, 89 S. E. 26.

Laborer Has No Lien unless He Complies with Section or Retains Possession.—A laborer who engages in the manufacture of lumber has a lien thereon under section 44-2, for his just and reasonable charges so long as he retains possession of the lumber. A laborer, even though he does not retain possession, is entitled to a lien for wages for not exceeding thirty days if he gives the notice required by this section. But he obtains no lien unless he complies with this section or unless he retains possession so that he may assert a lien under § 44-2. Elk Creek Lbr. Co. v. Hamby, 84 F. (2d) 144, 147.

Preferred Lien Only When Section Strictly Complied with.—This section gives to laborers engaged in logging, sawing, etc., a lien on the lumber of their manufacture, which is superior to all other claims thereon, except that of a purchaser for value without notice. It gives this preferred lien, however, only for the wages of not exceeding thirty days labor, and only on condition that the provisions of this section be strictly complied with. Elk Creek Lbr. Co. v. Hamby, 84 F. (2d) 144, 146.

Right of Employee of Contractor against the Owner. — Where a laborer in the manufacture of lumber employs another laborer to assist him in his work, and the latter seeks to enforce the lien given by this section, for the value of the work he has done, it must be made to appear that the owner owed his own contractor, for the lien claimed can only be enforced to that extent, the object of the statute being to protect the laborer against any transfer of the lumber by the owner, who while indebted to his contractor, and insolvent, might otherwise pass the title to a bona fide purchaser for value, without notice of the lien. Bryson v. Gennett Lumber Co., 171 N. C. 700, 89 S. E. 26.

Repairing Railroad Track or Equipment. — Under contract, one of the defendants agreed to operate a large lumber plant, including a railroad equipment for handling the logs owned by the other defendant, and assumed the payment of all employees, several of whom filed liens against logs and lumber sawed, in a justice's court, for the nonpayment of wages. It was held that work done in repairing the track, equipment, etc., was not in contemplation of this section, so as to give those performing these services a lien on the logs and lumber used or manufactured by the plant; nor was a lien upon the plant held, for the material had not been used in its construction as betterments. Glazener v. Gloucester Lumber Co., 167 N. C. 676, 83 S. E. 696.

Priority of Lien.—The lien given to the person "doing the work of cutting or sawing logs into lumber," etc., by this section is superior to the lien given to the contractor therefor, or any other person. Glazener v. Gloucester Lumber Co., 167 N. C. 676, 83 S. E. 696.

§ 44-4. Lien for processing certain goods. — All persons, firms, partnerships and corporations engaged in the business of finishing, bleaching, mercerizing, manufacturing, dyeing, weighing and printing or otherwise processing cotton, wool, silk, artificial silk or goods of which cotton, wool, silk, or artificial silk forms a component part, shall be entitled to a lien upon the property and goods of others, which may come into their possession for work, labor, and materials furnished in any of said processing and said lien shall extend to any unpaid balance on account for work, labor and materials furnished in the course of any of said processing in respect to any of said goods of the same owner whereof the lienor's possession is terminated. The word "owner", as used in this and the following sections shall include a factor, consignee, or other agent entrusted with the possession of the goods held under said lien or with the bill of lading consigning the same to him with authority to sell the same or to deliver them to the lienor for the purpose of being processed. (1931, c. 48, s. 1.)

§ 44-5. Sale of goods at public auction. — If any part of the amount for which goods are held under said lien remains unpaid for a period of sixty days after the earliest item of said amount became due and payable the lienor may sell such goods at public auction first publishing a notice of the time and place of said sale once in each of two successive weeks in a newspaper published in the town, if any, otherwise in the county, in which the said goods are situated, or if no newspaper is published in said county, then in a newspaper published in an adjoining county and having general circulation in the county where the sale is to take place, and at the court house door, the last publication not to be less than five days prior to the sale, and also giving five days' notice of said sale by posting in five or more public places in said county, one whereof shall be in the town or city ward in which said goods are situated, and, if the residence or past address of owner of said goods is known or can be established, sending by registered mail a copy of said notice to said owner at said address at least five days before the date of sale: Provided, that if said goods are readily divisible no more thereof shall be so sold than is necessary to discharge the underlying indebtedness and to cover the expenses of the sale. The proceeds of sale shall be applied to payment of said indebtedness and said expenses, and the balance, if any, shall be paid to the owner or person entitled thereto. The remedy herein provided to enforce said lien shall be in addition to any other provided by law. (1931, c. 48, s. 2; 1943, c. 543.)

Cross Reference.—As to advertisement for judicial sale of personal property generally, see § 1-336.

Editor's Note.—The 1943 amendment inserted the provision as to a newspaper published in an adjoining county.

Art. 2. Subcontractors', etc., Liens and Rights against Owners.

§ 44-6. Lien given subcontractors, etc., on real estate.—All subcontractors and laborers who are employed to furnish or who do furnish labor or material for the building, repairing or altering any house or other improvement on real estate, have a lien on said house and real estate for the amount of such labor done or material furnished, which lien shall be preferred to the mechanics' lien now provided by law, when notice thereof shall be given as hereinafter provided, which may be enforced as other liens in this chapter, except where it is otherwise provided; but the sum total of all the liens due subcontractors and material men shall not exceed the amount due the original contractor at the time of notice given. (Rev., s. 2019; Code, ss. 1801, 1803; 1880, c. 44, ss. 1, 3; C. S. 2437.)

In General.—Soon after the enactment of section 44-1 et seq., it was held by the Supreme Court that no right to a lien was conferred by the statute unless there was a contract, express or implied, with the owner, creating the relation of creditor and debtor (Wilkie v. Bray, 71 N. C. 205), and as a result, subcontractors were excluded from its benefits, because they had no express contract with the owner, and none could be implied from the use of the materials as they were furnished to the contractor, and under the express contract between him and the owner. This led to the enactment of this and the following sections relative to the subcontractor's lien. Morganton Mfg. etc., Co. v. Andrews, 165 N. C. 285, 292, 81 S. E. 418.

The injustice of permitting the labor and material of one man to be used to enhance the value of the property of another without compensation, and also that the owner ought not to be required to pay the contractor and then have to pay for labor and material when he had not agreed to do so, led to the enactment of this and the following sections in an effort to adjust the rights of the parties along lines that would be just to both. Charlotte Pipe, etc., Co. v. Southern Aluminum Co., 172 N. C. 704, 706, 90 S. E. 923.

Definition of Subcontractor. — Mr. Phillips in his book on Mechanics' Liens, sec. 44, describes a subcontractor: "One who has entered into a contract, express or implied, for the performance of an act with the person who has already contracted for its performance." And Mr. Kalland in his book on the same subject, sec. 3, uses language of similar import, and says: "Although the original contractor may sublet his entire contract, and neither himself performs labor or furnishes materials in a literal sense, yet he will be entitled to a lien, for each subcontractor is an agent for the performance of a portion of the entire contract, and the act of the agent is in law the act of his principal." Lester v. Houston, 101 N. C. 605, 611, 8 S. E. 366.

Persons employed by an agent of the principal contractor to perform certain work on the premises may not under this section recover of the owner for the value of such labor merely upon a showing that they performed the work and that the owner received the benefit thereof. Price v. Asheville Gas Co., 207 N. C. 796, 178 S. E. 567.

Contractor's Lien Though Subordinated, Not Lost. — It is quite manifest that our statute gives to the contractor, under whom his employees and agents work, the lien provided in section 44-1 and though subordinated to the lien of the latter under this section, and only displaced when its enforcement would be prejudicial to them, when these are paid the contractor's lien becomes absolute and unconditional. Lester v. Houston, 101 N. C. 605, 610, 8 S. E. 366.

Contractor's Lien Not Superseded.—The lien given by this section was not intended to supersede the lien of the contractor, for it in direct terms gives the lien in favor of subcontractors, laborers, and materialmen a preference, "the mechanic's lien now provided by law," and provides that when notice is given, the aggregate of such liens shall not exceed the amount then due the original contractor. The legislation is intended to extend the remedy to those who work or furnish materials from which the owner derives a benefit in the improvement of his property, even where there are no contract relations between them and the owner, and enables them to secure the payment of what is due them, indebtedness due from the debtor to the contractor. Morganton Mfg., etc., Co. v. Andrews, 165 N. C. 285, 293, 81 S. E. 418; Lester v. Houston, 101 N. C. 605, 8 S. E. 366.

Relation of Debtor and Creditor between the Owner and the Subcontractor.—It is declared in many cases that the basis for mechanics' liens is the relation of creditor and debtor between the owner and sub-contractor and materialmen, Boone v. Chatfield, 118 N. C. 916, 24 S. E. 745; Weathers v. Borders, 124 N. C. 610, 32 S. E. 881; Charlotte Pipe, etc., Co. v. Southern Aluminum Co., 172 N. C. 704, 90 S. E. 923, and that the general principle of the lien laws is that the relation of debtor and creditor must exist and that there can be no lien without a debt.

It is evident that the statute does not in express terms create this relation between these parties and that such a relation must be inferred by implication. The basis of such implication may be traced to the fact that the contractor is obliged or intended to deal with the subcontractor and materialmen in doing work and securing materials, and that the principal contractor is an agent of the owner for the purpose of creating valid debts. 3 N. C. Law Rev. 64.

Whatever may be the basis of the inference that there exists the relation of debtor and creditor between the owner and the subcontractor, it is apparent that this section does not, even by implication, create a relationship of debtor and creditor except as to the extent of liens acquired in accordance with its provisions. Morganton Hdw. Co. v. Morganton Graded Schools, 151 N. C. 507, 66 S. E. 583. Ed. Note.

No privity of contract between the owner and the subcontractor is established by this section, so as to enable the former to sue the latter for a debt; but it merely confers upon the materialman a lien upon the property, if the property is subject to lien, but not if he fails to acquire a lien by the laches of himself or of the contractor, whose negligence will be imputed to him when he fails to protect his own interests in the way prescribed by the statute. Morganton Hdw. Co. v. Morganton Graded Schools, 151 N. C. 507, 511, 66 S. E. 583.

Statute Furnishes Double Security. — The statute (this section and section 44-11) furnishes a double security to those furnishing material, etc., to the contractor and who give the statutory notice to the owner in giving them a lien upon the property if enforced by suit within six months, and, also, an interest in the trust funds in the hands of the owner and due to the contractor, which funds are to be distributed pro rata among the claimants thereto entitled, the latter security not being in strictness a lien, but a right to have an accounting in an ordinary civil action and judgment for the amount due by the owner to the contractor. Charlotte Pipe, etc., Co. v. Southern Aluminum Co., 172 N. C. 704, 90 S. E. 923.

Subcontractor Substituted to the Rights of Contractor. — Where the lien arises under the provisions of this section, it does so by substituting the claimant to the rights of the contractor, enforcible against any and all sums which may be due from the owner at the time of notice given or which are subsequently earned under the terms and stipulations of the contract. In well-considered cases it is said to amount to an assignment pro tanto of the amount due or to become due from the owner to the principal contractor, and this regardless of the state of the account between the principal contractor and the subcontractor, who may be the debtor of the claimant. Atlas Powder Co. v. Denton, 176 N. C. 426, 432, 97 S. E. 372.

Lien Enforceable though Principal Contractors' Contract Not Completed.—A subcontractor may enforce his lien for labor or materials, as prescribed by this and the following sections, against the owner of the property though the contract with the principal contractor has not been completed, or even if it has been abandoned. Lookout Lumber Co. v. Mansion Hotel, etc., R. Co., 109 N. C. 658, 14 S. E. 35.

Where the furnisher of material to a subcontractor has notified the owner and perfected his lien as required by this section and section 44-7 and it appears by admission in the pleadings in an action to enforce the lien that the owner of the building is still indebted, to the principal contractor in a sufficient sum, this sum is applicable to the plaintiff's demand regardless of the state of accounts between the contractor and the subcontractor. Borden Brick, etc., Co. v. Pulley, 168 N. C. 371, 84 S. E. 513; Powell v. King Lumber Co., 168 N. C. 632, 84 S. E. 1032.

Time and How Subcontractors' Right Determined.—The right of one, who furnishes materials to a subcontractor, to a lien upon the building does not depend upon the state of the account between the contractor and the subcontractor, but upon the amount due the contractor by the owner at the time of the proper filing of the notice in the manner and form required. Atlas Powder Co. v. Denton, 176 N. C. 426, 97 S. E. 372.

Amount Due from Owner a Trust Fund for Subcontractor.—The amount due the contractor and subject to the claims of materialmen who have filed their statutory notice is not a debt due by the owner to the materialmen in the ordinary sense, but a fund held in trust for them strictly arising from the operation of the statute, in conformity with its terms; and the statute imposes no duty upon the owner when the materialmen have not filed the required notice or acquired their lien accordingly. Charlotte Pipe, etc., Co. v. Southern Aluminum Co., 172 N. C. 704, 90 S. E. 923.

Priority over Subsequent Liens.—The lien of the subcontractor, when duly filed, has precedence over all other liens attaching to the property subsequent to the time the work was commenced or the material furnished. Lookout Lumber Co. v. Mansion Hotel, etc., R. Co., 109 N. C. 658, 14 S. E. 35.

Elements Essential to Recovery.—To recover under this section, plaintiff must prove: (1) his subcontract; (2) work done and labor performed in fulfillment thereof; (3) a balance due; (4) notice to the owner as required by statute prior to payment of the contract price to the principal contractor; and (5) a balance due the contractor. Upon such showing the law requires the owner to apply the unexpended contract price due the contractor to the payment of amounts due subcontractors and materialmen of whose claims the owner has received notice, pro rata if necessary. Schnepp v. Richardson, 222 N. C. 228, 22 S. E. (2d) 555.

The principal contractor is a necessary party to an action to enforce the lien of a subcontractor, but a trustee in a conveyance subject to the lien is not an essential party. Lookout Lumber Co. v. Mansion Hotel, etc., R. Co., 109 N. C. 658, 14 S. E. 35.

No Lien on Public Buildings.—Neither by the enforcement of a lien, nor by anything in the nature of an equitable proceeding, nor directly by sale under execution, was it the intent of the Legislature to subject one of its public corporations, organized as necessary to the administration of its governmental affairs, to the privation or loss of its buildings for public school purposes. Morganton Hdw. Co. v. Morganton Graded Schools, 151 N. C. 507, 66 S. E. 583.

No Lien on Highway.—Under this section subcontractors and materialmen have no lien upon a highway they have constructed. Pratt Lumber Co. v. Gill Co., 278 Fed. 783.

Liability of Municipality—No Lien against It.—Though no lien can be filed against a municipality, yet it will be liable to laborers and materialmen, and for labor done and material furnished to the extent of any balance due the contractor and unpaid at the time of the notice. Scheflow v. Pierce, 176 N. C. 91, 93, 97 S. E. 167. See section 44-14.

Estoppel to Assert Lien under Section 44-1.—By electing to assert a lien as a subcontractor under this section, plaintiff is estopped from thereafter asserting a lien as a contractor or material furnisher under § 44-1, and plaintiff is entitled to recover of defendant only the amount due the contractor by the owner on the date notice was given as a subcontractor or material furnisher. Doggett Lbr. Co. v. Perry, 212 N. C. 713, 194 S. E. 475.

When plaintiff is estopped by its election in asserting a lien under this section, from asserting a lien under § 44-1, and its action brought solely under § 44-1 is dismissed as of nonsuit because of such election, plaintiff's remedy is by instituting another action to recover for materials furnished the contractor and used in the construction of the building under this section. Doggett Lbr. Co. v. Perry, 213 N. C. 533, 196 S. E. 831.

Editor's Note.—The provisions of this section are now included in § 44-9.

§ 44-8. Statement of contractor's indebtedness to be furnished to owner; effect. — When any contractor, architect or other person makes a contract for building, altering or repairing any building or vessel, or for the construction or repair of a railroad, with the owner thereof, it is his duty to furnish to the owner or his agent, before receiving any part of the contract price, as it may become due, an itemized statement of the amount owing to any laborer, mechanic or artisan employed by such contractor, architect or other person, or to any person for materials furnished, and upon delivery to the owner or his agent of the itemized statement aforesaid, it is the duty of the owner to retain from the money then due the contractor a sum not exceeding the price contracted for, which will be sufficient to pay such laborer, artisan or mechanic for labor done, or such person for material furnished, which said amount the owner shall pay directly to the laborer, mechanic, artisan or person furnishing materials. The owner may retain in his hands until the contract is completed such sum as may have been agreed on between him and the contractor, architect or other person employing laborers, as a guaranty for the faithful performance of the contract by such contractor. When such contract has been performed by the contractor such fund reserved as a guaranty shall be liable to the payment of the sum due the laborer, mechanic or artisan for labor done, or the person furnishing the materials as hereinbefore provided. (Rev., s. 2021; 1887, c. 67; 1891, c. 203; 1899, c. 335; 1903, c. 478; C. S. 2439.)

Purpose of Section—Owner Cannot Force Contractor to Supply Statement.—The purpose of the section is to compel the contractor to supply the itemized statement, so that the laborer may be benefited, have his right facilitated, and the owner of the property may be reasonably protected. There is no liability created on the part of the owner if the itemized statement is not supplied to him; he cannot compel the contractor to furnish him with it, nor is he presumed to know that he has not paid the laborer or mechanic, or that he owes him any particular sum. Pinkston v. Young, 104 N. C. 102, 106, 10 S. E. 133.

For Whose Benefit Section Enacted.—This section while enacted primarily for the benefit or protection of the workmen and materialmen, is also for the protection of the owner and the surety on the contractor's bond. Guilford Lumber Mfg. Co. v. Holladay, 178 N. C. 417, 100 S. E. 597.

Statement of Contractor Issues to Benefit of Materialmen, etc.—When the contractor furnishes the owner with statements of the amounts due the materialmen, according to this section, a direct obligation of the owner to the materialmen may be created, upon which the latter may sue in their own names. Perry v. Swanner, 150 N. C. 141, 63 S. E. 611. See annotations to § 44-9.

Owner Liable for Paying Contractor after Receipt of Latter's Statement.—Where the owner voluntarily pays to the contractor, after the completion and acceptance of his building, the full balance of the contract price, having received the contractor's statement of persons and materials still owed by him thereon, his conduct in so doing is wrongful to the materialmen, of which he will not be permitted to take advantage to the loss of the surety on the contractor's indemnifying bond, in his action to recover thereon. Guilford Lumber Mfg. Co. v. Holladay, 178 N. C. 417, 100 S. E. 597.

In order for a material furnisher to hold the owner liable he must show that the owner was notified by him or by the contractor of his claim before the owner completed payment to the contractor. Economy Pumps v. F. W. Woolworth Co., 220 N. C. 499, 17 S. E. (2d) 639.

Personal Action by Materialmen against Owner.—A personal action against the debtor for not retaining a sum to pay the subcontractor, when the contractor has furnished him a statement of indebtedness, can be maintained against the owner, where the lien acquired has been lost by delay to enforce it. Charlotte Pipe, etc., Co. v. Southern Aluminum Co., 172 N. C. 704, 707, 90 S. E. 923.

Duty of Owner to Reserve Funds to Pay Materialmen, etc.—The requirement of this section that the contractor furnish the owner of the building a statement of the persons and amounts he owes for materials, when complied with, makes it the duty of the owner to retain from the amount then due the contractor, so far as it extends, the amounts due by the latter to the materialmen, and pay it to them, and under section 44-9, no payment to the contractor after such notice shall be a credit on or discharge of the lien provided for the materialmen. Guilford Lumber Mfg. Co. v. Holladay, 178 N. C. 417, 100 S. E. 597.

Remedy of Subcontractors.—The subcontractor and material furnisher having given the owner an itemized statement of material furnished by them, acquire a lien for the payment of their claims and may maintain a civil action thereon against the owner under the provisions of this section and §§ 44-9 and 44-10 without being required to file their liens within six months, etc., under the provisions of § 44-39 or bring suit within six months thereafter, under those of § 44-43. Campbell v. Hall, 187 N. C. 464, 121 S. E. 761.

Section Not Repealed by Later Act Nor in Conflict with § 44-13.—This and the following two sections are not repealed by c. 150, Laws 1913, the later act expressly purporting to be an amendment, and there is no conflict between the two acts that will fall within the repealing clause of that act; nor is there conflict between this section, and section 44-13 as amended; it is the legislative intent to extend their provisions to those who furnish materials to the subcontractors of railroads, and, construing the above sections in connection with section 44-39 as amended, the furnisher of materials to the contractor on an entire contract may file his itemized statement with the railroad company within six months after its completion, and maintain his action to enforce his lien, when commenced within six months thereafter. Atlas Powder Co. v. Denton, 176 N. C. 426, 97 S. E. 372.

Effect of Mortgages Subsequent to Notice.—Where the owner has been given the statutory notice of the subcontractor's claim upon the building, or the contractor filed his lien in accordance with the statute before the justice of the peace or clerk, as the case may be, the right to the money still due by the owner to the contractor relates back to the time of the furnishing of the material and the work under his contract; and where he has established this right by his action, those who have acquired liens by mortgage, etc., subsequent to the time of the notice take cum onere, and subject to the contractor's or subcontractor's lien so acquired. Porter v. Case, 187 N. C. 629, 122 S. E. 483.

Cited in Piedmont Electric Co. v. Vance, etc., Electric Co., 197 N. C. 495, 149 S. E. 858; Schnepp v. Richardson, 222 N. C. 228, 22 S. E. (2d) 555.

§ 44-9. Subcontractors, laborers and materialmen may notify owner of claim; effect.—Any subcontractor, laborer, mechanic, artisan, or person furnishing materials, who claims the lien provided for in this article for labor on, or materials furnished for, any building, vessel, railroad, or real estate, may give notice to the owner, agent or lessee who makes the contract for the labor or materials, of the amount due by the contractor to such claimant. The notice shall be in the form of an itemized statement of the amount due, except where the contract is entire for a gross sum and cannot be itemized. Upon the delivery of the notice to the owner, agent, or lessee, the claimant is entitled to all the liens and benefits conferred by law in as full a manner as though the statement were furnished by the contractor. If the said owner, agent or lessee refuses or neglects to retain, out of the amount due the contractor under the contract, a sum not exceeding the price contracted for which will be sufficient to pay such claimant, then the claimant may proceed to enforce his lien, and after such notice is given no payment to the contractor shall be a credit on or a discharge of the lien herein provided for. (Rev., s. 2021; 1891, c. 203; 1899, c. 335; 1903, c. 478; 1913, c. 150, s. 4; 1943, c. 543; C. S. 2440.)

The 1943 amendment rewrote this section, incorporating in it the provisions formerly contained in § 44-7 (C. S. 2438), and made the section applicable to subcontractors.

The annotation "Notice to Be Given before Settlement with Contractor" and those following it formerly appeared under § 44-7, and should be read with that fact in mind.

Construction with Other Sections.—A letter to the owner setting forth the amount of the account for materials furnished the contractor and stating that other items were being purchased on the account, and offering to furnish an itemized statement upon request is not a sufficient notice upon which to base a materialman's lien. Such notice or itemized statement must show substantial compliance with the statute. However, if it is an entire contract for a gross sum the particularity otherwise required is not essential. Manifestly, § 44-7 through § 44-11 must be construed together. Huske Hardware House v. Percival, 203 N. C. 6, 164 S. E. 334. See Editor's Note, supra.

There is no lien until and unless the statutory notice either under this or under the preceding section has been given. Economy Pumps v. F. W. Woolworth Co., 220 N. C. 499, 17 S. E. (2d) 639.

Effect of Statement.—If the contractor shall furnish the itemized statement, the laborer's lien will arise and be effectual. If he fails to do so, then the laborer may give the owner of the property notice, and thus create the lien in his favor. Pinkston v. Young, 104 N. C. 102, 10 S. E. 133; Norfolk Bldg. Supplies Co. v. Elizabeth City Hospital Co., 176 N. C. 87, 97 S. E. 146.

For Whose Benefit Section Enacted.—This section while enacted primarily for the benefit or protection of the workmen and materialmen, is also for the protection of the owner and the surety on the contractor's bond. Guilford Lumber Mfg. Co. v. Holladay, 178 N. C. 417, 100 S. E. 597.

Assignment of Lien.—The statutory lien of a laborer or materialman under the provisions of this section, is assignable as in case of ordinary business contracts. Horne-Wilson v. Wiggins Bros., 203 N. C. 85, 164 S. E. 365.

Notice to Be Given before Settlement with Contractor.—It is necessary, to enforce a lien on a building for materials furnished the contractor, that the materialman file with the owner an itemized statement of the amounts due for materials, or that he give notice to the owner of the amount due him before the owner settles with the contractor, but the lien exists only to the extent of the amount then due. Orinoco Supply Co. v. Masonic, etc., Home, 163 N. C. 513, 79 S. E. 964; Schnepp v. Richardson, 222 N. C. 228, 22 S. E. (2d) 555.

Same—Rule Not Affected by § 44-8. — This rule is not affected by section 44-8. That section is directed against the contractor, and is intended to compel him to furnish to the owner of the premises the statement necessary to give notice of claims of subcontractors and others. But if the contractor shall furnish the itemized statement, the laborer's lien will arise and be effectual. Pinkston v. Young, 104 N. C. 102, 106, 10 S. E. 133.

Same—Otherwise No Lien Attaches.—When the required notice has not been given before the last payment has been made to the contractor, who fails to complete the building, and the owner in completing the building has paid out the balance of the contract price, no lien attaches. Orinoco Supply Co. v. Masonic, etc., Home, 163 N. C. 513, 79 S. E. 964. And the owner is justified in making payment to the contractor. Clark v. Edwards, 119 N. C. 115, 25 S. E. 794.

Same—Even Though Payment in Full Is Made in Advance.—In Rose v. Davis, 188 N. C. 355, 124 S. E. 576, it was held that a furnisher of material, used in the building by a contractor, acquired no lien on the building, under former § 44-7, by notice to the owner filed after the owner had paid to the contractor the full contract price; and that it was immaterial that payment in full had been made in advance, in accordance with the contract between the owner and contractor. North Carolina Lumber Co. v. Spear Motor Co., 192 N. C. 377, 383, 135 S. E. 115.

Same—Right Statutory and Dependent upon Notice. — To share in the fund due by the owner to the contractor and to have that fund distributed pro rata among the claimants is a statutory right, and is dependent upon acquiring a lien on the property by giving the notice to the owner. Charlotte Pipe, etc., Co. v. Southern Aluminum Co., 172 N. C. 704, 707, 90 S. E. 923.

The liens given the furnisher of material on the building of the owner to the contractor, etc., are strictly statutory and no lien can be acquired therefor unless notice has been given, nor is it contemplated or provided by the statute that this will be altered by reason of the owner paying the contractor by agreement in advance of his work. Rose v. Davis, 188 N. C. 355, 124 S. E. 576.

Purpose of Notice—Liability of Owner for Disregarding It.—The notice required by § 44-7 was intended to charge the owner or lessee of the land to withhold so much of the money due to the contractor as would pay the subcontractor's claim. If he failed to do so, he could not avoid his liability by paying the contractor. Lookout Lumber Co. v. Mansion Hotel, etc., R. Co., 109 N. C. 658, 661, 14 S. E. 35.

Where the owner of a building being erected pays according to the contract his contractor a sum of money in excess of the amount due a materialman after he has received notice, and later the contractor abandons his contract and the owner finishes the building at his loss, the materialman's lien attaches to the building as an obligation of the owner. Blue Pearl Granite Co. v. Merchants' Bank, 172 N. C. 354, 90 S. E. 312, cited and applied; Piedmont Electric Co. v. Vance, etc., Electric Co., 197 N. C. 495, 149 S. E. 858, cited and distinguished. Beeson Hardware Co. v. Burtner, 199 N. C. 743, 155 S. E. 733.

That Laborers Are Working on Building Is Not of Itself Notice.—The mere fact that laborers and subcontractors are working on a building is not notice to the owner not to pay out to the contractor until it is ascertained how much is due by the latter to each and every subcontractor, laborer, materialman, etc. Clark v. Edwards, 119 N. C. 115, 25 S. E. 794.

Mere knowledge of the owner that certain laborers are at work on his building, or that certain persons or firms have supplied materials, is insufficient as notice to him, under this section, of any claim of lien thereon. Norfolk Bldg., etc., Co. v. Elizabeth City Hospital Co., 176 N. C. 87, 97 S. E. 146.

Unpaid Balance at Time of Notice Subject to Lien.—Where the owner of the building has paid his contractor to the time of filing the statutory claim for material furnished, the moneys thereafter becoming due the contractor, under the same contract, are subject to the lien. Blue Pearl Granite Co. v. Merchants' Bank, 172 N. C. 354, 90 S. E. 312.

Lien Only to the Extent of Unpaid Balance at Date of Notice. — A subcontractor can enforce his right of lien against the owner of property only to the extent of any unpaid sums due the contractor at the date of giving notice to the owner of his, the subscontractor's, claim. Clark v. Edwards, 119 N. C. 115, 25 S. E. 794.

Notice of Lien to Justice or Clerk Not Necessary. — The lien of the subcontractor is acquired by notice to the owner, and a filing of the notice of the lien with a justice or a clerk is not necessary, this being expressly provided by section 44-10. Morganton Mfg., etc., Co. v. Andrews, 165 N. C. 285, 294, 81 S. E. 418; Porter v. Case, 187 N. C. 629, 639, 122 S. E. 483; Charlotte Pipe, etc., Co. v. Southern Aluminum Co., 172 N. C. 704, 706, 90 S. E. 823.

Notice to Owner's Architects Not Notice to the Owner.—The object of the notice required by the statute to be given the owner, and upon which the statutory lien for labor, material, etc., depends, is to apprize the owner of the amounts then due to those who have done labor upon or furnished materials for the building; and a statement of the materials used in the building, given by the contractor to the architect upon which the former is to be allowed a payment of a certain per cent. under the terms of the contract as the building progresses, does not meet the statutory requirements, and is insufficient to create the lien. Norfolk Bldg., etc., Co. v. Elizabeth City Hospital Co., 176 N. C. 87, 97 S. E. 146.

Cited in Dixon v. Ipock, 212 N. C. 363, 193 S. E. 392; Schnepp v. Richardson, 222 N. C. 228, 22 S. E. (2d) 555.

§ 44-10. Sums due by statement to constitute lien. — The sums due to the laborer, mechanic or artisan for labor done, or due the person furnishing materials, as shown in the itemized statement rendered to the owner, shall be a lien on the building, vessel or railroad built, altered or repaired, without any lien being filed before a justice of the peace or the superior court. (Rev., s. 2022; 1887, c. 67, s. 2; C. S. 2441.)

Acquisition of Lien without Filing Notice.—By virtue of section 44-39, the lien of a contractor must be filed in six months, but by this section, the lien of the laborer, mechanic or artisan can be acquired without filing if a statement of the amount due is rendered the owner. [See annotations to § 44-7.] However acquired, the lien is lost under section 44-43 if action thereon is not begun in six months. Hildebrand v. Vanderbilt, 147 N. C. 639, 641, 61 S. E. 620.

Same—Personal Action When Lien Lost.—But when the lien acquired is lost by not bringing suit within six months, an action can be maintained against the owner personally for his failure in his "duty to retain from the money due the contractor a sum not exceeding the price contracted for," etc. Hildebrand v. Vanderbilt, 147 N. C. 639, 61 S. E. 620.

Cited in Schnepp v. Richardson, 222 N. C. 228, 22 S. E. (2d) 555.

§ 44-11. Where sums due contractor from owner insufficient; payment pro rata. — If the amount due the contractor by the owner is insufficient to pay in full the laborer, mechanic or artisan, for his labor, and the person furnishing materials, for materials furnished, it is the duty of the owner to distribute the amount pro rata among the several claimants, as shown by the itemized statement furnished the owner, or of which notice has been given the owner by the claimant. (Rev., s. 2023; 1887, c. 67, s. 3; 1913, c. 150, s. 5; C. S. 2442.)

Provisions of Section 44-40 Do Not Affect Distribution under This Section.—Where the owner of a building erected under contract has not sufficient funds in his hands to pay all the lienors thereon for material furnished, the amount due the contractor, subject to the liens, shall be distributed by the owner among the several claimants under the provisions of this section; and construing this section with other relevant sections of the code, it is held that it does not conflict with section 44-40 requiring that liens shall be paid and settled according to priority of the notice of the lien filed with the justices or the clerk, for this latter section relates to liens filed with the proper officers, and does not affect the provisions as to subcontractors who acquire a lien by notice to the owner. Morganton Mfg., etc., Co. v. Andrews, 165 N. C. 285, 81 S. E. 418.

Remedy by Accounting.—A right to have an accounting in an ordinary civil action and judgment for the amount due by the owner to the contractor, are incidents of the rights given the subcontractor by the provisions of this section. Charlotte Pipe, etc., Co. v. Southern Aluminum Co., 172 N. C. 704, 90 S. E. 923.

Priority of Claims.—One who has furnished material to a contractor, and who, with others, has given the statutory notice to the owner by enforcing his lien by action within the six months, acquires no superior right in the pro rata distribution of the trust funds, but only the additional security of his lien. Charlotte Pipe, etc., Co. v. Southern Aluminum Co., 172 N. C. 704, 90 S. E. 923.

§ 44-12. Contractor failing to furnish statement, or not applying owner's payments to laborer's claims, misdemeanor. — If any contractor or architect shall fail to furnish to the owner an itemized statement of the sums due to every one of the laborers, mechanics or artisans employed by him, or the amount due for materials, before receiving any part of the contract price, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. If any contractor shall fail to apply the contract price paid him by the owner or his agent to the payment of bills for labor and material, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof shall be fined or imprisoned, or both, at the discretion of the court. (Rev., s. 3663; 1887, c. 67, s. 4; 1913, c. 150, s. 8; C. S. 2443.)

§ 44-13. Laborer for railroad contractor may sue company; conditions of action. — As often as any contractor for the construction of any part of a railroad which is in progress of construction is indebted to any laborer for thirty or less number of days labor performed in constructing said road, or is indebted for more than thirty days to any person furnishing material for the construction of said road, such laborer or material man may give notice of such indebtedness to said company in a manner herein provided, and said company shall thereupon become liable to pay such laborer or material man the amount so due for labor or material, and action may be maintained against said company therefor. Such notice shall be given by said laborer to said company within twenty days after the performance of the number of days labor for which the claim is made, and such notice shall be given by the material man to said company within thirty days after the materials have been furnished. Such notice to be given by the laborer shall be in writing and shall state the amount and the number of days labor and the time when the labor was performed for which the claim is made, and the name of the contractor from whom due, and shall be signed by such laborer or his attorney; and such notice of the material man shall be in writing and shall state the amount of material furnished and when furnished, and the name of the contractor to whom furnished and by whom due, and shall be signed by such material man or his attorney. The notice shall be served on an engineer, agent or superintendent employed by said company having charge of the section of road on which such labor was performed or material furnished, personally or by leaving the same at the office or usual place of business of said engineer, agent, or superintendent, with some person of suitable age. But no action shall be maintained against any company under the provisions of this section unless the same is commenced within ninety days after notice is given to the company by such laborer or material man as above provided. (Rev., s. 2018; Code, s. 1942; 1871-2, c. 138, s. 12; 1913, c. 150, s. 1; C. S. 2444.)

No Conflict betwetn This and Section 44-8.—There is no conflict between section 44-8 and this section as amended; it is the legislative intent to extend the provisions of law relative to materialmen and subcontractors of railroads. Atlas Powder Co. v. Denton, 176 N. C. 426, 97 S. E. 372.

Application to Laborers Constructing Railroads. — This section applies only to laborers "constructing railroads." Glazener v. Gloucester Lumber Co., 167 N. C. 676, 678, 83 S. E. 696.

A Logging Railroad within This Section.—A logging road operated by the use of steam is a railroad within the meaning of this section, and by following the requirements of the section a lien may be obtained for work done in its construction, though done under an independent contractor. Carter v. Coharie Lumber Co., 160 N. C. 8, 75 S. E. 1074.

Substantial Compliance with Statute Necessary. — The right to look beyond the contract of employment to an artificial responsibility that may be thrust upon the company under the provisions of this section is a creature of the statute, and one who claims the benefit of it must, like a mechanic seeking to enforce a lien, and upon the same principle, show a substantial compliance with the requirements of this section. Wray v. Harris, 77 N. C. 77; Cook v. Cobb, 101 N. C. 68, 7 S. E. 700; Moore v. Cape Fear, etc., R. Co., 112 N. C. 236, 17 S. E. 152.

Where, in an action by the assignee of a number of claims due laborers by the contractors, the complaint and exhibits failed to show affirmatively that each of the laborers not only claimed a specific sum, but had substantially complied with the statute in respect to notice, etc., previous to the assignment of his account, it was held that a demurrer to the complaint was properly sustained. Moore v. Cape Fear, etc., R. Co., 112 N. C. 236, 17 S. E. 152.

Assignment of Claim after Compliance with Statute. — After complying with the requirements of this section a laborer can assign his claim as a debt either against his employer or the railroad company dealing with him under a direct agreement or as subcontractor, and the assignee can sue upon such claim and other similar ones in one action, and recover the sum total of all such claims due for labor. Moore v. Cape Fear, etc., R. Co., 112 N. C. 236, 17 S. E. 152.

Time of Filing Lien and Its Precedence.—A contractor or subcontractor who does work or furnishes material for the construction of a railroad is entitled to file a lien on the property of the company within six months from the time of doing such work or furnishing materials, and when filed the lien has precedence over a mortgage registered after the work has been commenced. Dunavant v. Caldwell, etc., R. Co., 122 N. C. 999, 29 S. E. 837.

Misjoinder of Parties Not Fatal.—Where there were intermediate contractors for the construction of a railroad, and the assignee of claims due by the last of such contractors to laborers brought his action against the railroad company and the first contractor, it was held, that conceding that the plaintiff could in no event recover from any but the railroad company itself, under this section, yet the addition of the first contractor as a party would not be a fatal misjoinder. Moore v. Cape Fear, etc., R. Co., 112 N. C. 236, 17 S. E. 152.

§ 44-14. Contractor on municipal building to give bond; action on bond. — Every county, city, town or other municipal corporation which lets a contract for the building, repairing or altering any building, public road, or street, shall require the contractor for such work (when the contract price exceeds five hundred dollars) to execute bond with one or more solvent sureties before beginning any work under said contract, payable to said county, city, town or other municipal corporation, and conditioned for the payment of all labor done on and material and supplies furnished for the said work under a contract or agreement made directly with the principal contractor or subcontractor. The amount of the said bond to be given by said contractor shall be equal to the contract price up to two thousand dollars, and when the contract price is between two and ten thousand dollars the amount of said bond shall be two thousand dollars plus thirty-five per cent of the excess of the contract price over two thousand dollars and under ten thousand; when the contract is over ten thousand dollars, the amount of the said bond shall be two thousand dollars plus twenty-five per cent of the excess of the contract price over the sum of two thousand dollars. If the official of the said county, city, town or other municipal corporation, whose duty it is to take said bond, fails to require the said bond herein provided to be given, he is guilty of a misdemeanor. Any laborer doing work on said building and material man furnishing material therefor and used therein, under a contract or agreement between said laborer or material man and the principal contractor or subcontractor has the right to sue on said bond, the principal and sureties thereof, in the courts of this state having jurisdiction of the amount of said bond, and any number of laborers or material men whose claims are unpaid for work done and material furnished in said building have the right to join in one suit upon said bond for the recovery of the amounts due them respectively. Every bond given by any contractor to any county, city, town or other municipal corporation for the building, repairing or altering of any building, public road or street, as required by this section, shall be conclusively presumed to have been given in accordance therewith, whether such bond be so drawn as to conform to the statute or not, and this statute shall be conclusively presumed to have been written into every such bond so given. Only one action or suit may be brought upon such bond, which said suit or action shall be brought in the county in which the building, road, or street is located, and not elsewhere. In all suits instituted under the provisions of this statute, the plaintiff or plaintiffs shall give notice to all persons, informing them of the pendency of the suit, the name of the parties, with a brief recital of the purposes of the action, which said notice shall be published at least once a week for four successive weeks in some newspaper published and circulating in the county in which the action is brought, and if there be no newspaper, then by posting at the courthouse door and three other public places in such county for thirty days. Proof of such service shall be made by affidavit as provided in case of the service of summons by publication. All persons entitled to bring and prosecute an action on the bond shall have the right to intervene in said action, set up their respective claims, provided that such intervention shall be made within six months from the bringing of the action, and not later. If the recovery on the bond shall be inadequate to pay the amounts found due to all of the claimants, judgment shall be given to each claimant pro rata of the amount of the recovery. The surety on such bond may pay into court for distribution among the claimants the full amount of his liability, to wit, the penalty named in the bond, and upon so doing, such surety shall be relieved from further liability. (1913, c. 150, s 2; 1915, c. 191, s. 1; 1923, c. 100; 1927, c. 151; 1935, c. 55; C. S. 2445.)

See 13 N. C. Law Rev. 99, for relation of this section to the law of contracts.

See 13 N. C. Law Rev. 368, for an analysis of the 1935 amendment to this section.

Editor's Note.—The policy underlying this section is the manifestation of that settled principle of law which aims to protect governmental agencies from undue interferences which tend to mitigate the efficient operation of the governmental mechanism. Should such agencies be subject to the general provision of law relating to mechanics' liens, public purposes would be defeated for private claims. But as the remuneration of those who bestow their labor and money upon public buildings is also an important consideration, this section adopts a middle ground by requiring that a bond be taken of the contractor conditioned for the payment of subcontractors', materialmen's and laborers' claims.

Public Laws 1923, c. 100 added that portion of this section including and following the sentence beginning "Every bond given by any contractor," etc. As to the effect of this amendment, see 1 N. C. Law Rev. 270. Public Laws 1927, c. 151 inserted the phrase "under a contract or agreement made directly with the principal contractor or sub-contractor" at the end of the first sentence, and the phrase "under a contract or agreement between said laborer or materialman and the principal contractor or sub-contractor" near the middle of the fourth sentence. Public Laws 1935, c. 55 changed "twelve" in the third from the last sentence to "six".

No Lien on Public School—Bond in Lieu of Lien.—Laborers and material furnishers can acquire no liens upon a public school building erected by a municipal corporation, and the contractor's bond, given under the provisions of this section is given for their benefit in lieu of the right to acquire a lien thereon. Robinson Mfg. Co. v. Blaylock, 192 N. C. 407, 135 S. E. 136.

A material furnisher to a subcontractor, who has used the material in the construction of a public school building, can acquire no lien on the building, and where the contractor has been found by the verdict of the jury not to be liable, the materialman cannot recover the amount withheld by the schoolboard in settlement with the contractor on account of the pendency of the litigation, on the ground that the material was so used. Griffin Mfg. Co. v. Bray, 193 N. C. 350, 137 S. E. 151.

Not Applicable to Highway Commission.—This section does not apply to the State Highway Commission. John L. Roper Lumber Co. v. Lawson, 195 N. C. 840, 844, 143 S. E. 847.

Not Applicable to East Carolina Teachers' College. — While the board of trustees of the East Carolina Teachers' College is made a body corporate, it is not a municipal corporation within the meaning of this section. Hunt Mfg. Co. v. Hudson, 200 N. C. 541, 542, 157 S. E. 799.

Section Not Applicable to Bonds Given to State Highway Commission.—This section providing that only one action shall be brought on bonds required by said statute, and that such action shall be brought in the county in which the building, road or street is located and not elsewhere, does not apply to a bond given by a contractor to the State Highway Commission. It applies only to bonds given to a county, city, town or other municipal corporation, as required therein. Independence Trust Co. v. Porter, 190 N. C. 680, 683, 130 S. E. 547.

Purpose of 1923 Amendment.—The amendment of this section by the act of 1923 was enacted so as to protect laborers and materialmen, where the bond does not make provisions to pay them. Standard Supply Co. v. Vance Plumbing, etc., Co., 195 N. C. 629, 635, 143 S. E. 248.

Civil Liability of Municipal Officers. — No civil liability will attach to municipal and county officers in their official capacity for failure to take the bond required by this section. Warner v. Halyburton, 187 N. C. 414, 416, 121 S. E. 756.

Same—In Their Official or Individual Capacity.—A civil action for damages will not lie against special road supervisors of a county, either as an obligation of the county or against the supervisors individually, for failing to take the bond required for material furnishers or laborers under this section, the remedy prescribed being by indictment of the latter in their individual capacity. Hunter v. Allman, 192 N. C. 483, 135 S. E. 291; Noland Co. v. Board, 190 N. C. 250, 129 S. E. 577; Fore v. Feimster, 171 N. C. 551, 88 S. E. 977, L. R. A. 1916F, 481.

Whether Materials Were Actually Used or Not Immaterial.—The materialmen have a claim against the surety on the bond required by this section, whether the materials were actually used in the building or not; for otherwise the materialmen would be compelled to stand over and compel the contractor to incorporate them in the work, and the result of such a ruling would destroy business confidence and security. Standard Land, etc., Co. v. Fidelity, etc., Co., 191 N. C. 313, 131 S. E. 754. See Moore v. Builders Material Co., 192 N. C. 418, 420, 135 S. E. 113.

Municipality May Not Withhold Funds of Contractor.—Unlike the provisions of law governing the subcontractors' and materialmen's liens on private buildings, etc., this section, passed as a partial substitute for the lien statutes in an effort to place public construction somewhat on a parity with private work of a similar kind, does not contain any provision whereby the owner may withhold funds belonging to the contractor upon notice from a laborer or materialman that the work done or material furnished by him to the contractor has not been paid for; nor would the owner be justified in withholding funds due the contractor upon receipt of such notice. The contract of the laborer or materialman is with the contractor, and in the absence of agreement or statutory provision allowing it, the owner would not be relieved, even pro tanto, of its obligation to the contractor by paying one or more of those who work for or furnish materials to the contractor. An obiter suggestion to the contrary, made in Scheflow v. Pierce, 176 N. C. 91, 97 S. E. 167, was disapproved in Noland Co. v. Board, 190 N. C. 250, 253, 129 S. E. 577; Robinson Mfg. Co. v. Blaylock, 192 N. C 407, 412, 135 S. E. 136.

Bond Held Void.—In Maryland Casualty Co. v. Fowler, 31 Fed. (2d) 881, affirming 27 Fed. (2d) 421 it was held that under this section a school building contractor's bond, which provided that no right of action thereon should accrue to any person other than the obligee, was void in so far as it affected the claims of laborers and materialmen protected by the bond.

Liability of Sureties.—Under this section the sureties on a contractor's bond for the erection of a municipal building are liable for the payment of those who furnish material used in the construction, and those doing labor therein, irrespective of the terms of the contract of indemnity, except the surety is not liable for an amount in excess of the penalty of the bond, and a judgment against the surety for an amount in excess of the penalty of the bond given is erroneous, and the surety may relieve himself from liability by paying the amount for which he is legally liable into the court for distribution. Standard Supply Co. v. Vance Plumbing, etc., Co., 195 N. C. 629, 143 S. E. 248.

Money Loaned to Contractors.—A bank loaning money to a contractor to build a public highway may not recover against the surety on the contractor's bond on the ground that the money was used for the payment of laborers and materialmen furnishing labor and materials used upon the highway, without having thereupon procured assignments to it of their claims, nothing appearing in the note given the bank by the contractor showing that the loan was for this purpose. Snelson v. Hill, 196 N. C. 494, 146 S. E. 135.

And money advanced by a foreman to the "petty cash account" of the contractor to build a public highway, and used in making repairs to the machinery from time to time, purchasing materials, and paying freight thereon, where the foreman took no assignments for the purchase made from said account, were held not covered by the contractor's bond. Snelson v. Hill, 196 N. C. 494, 146 S. E. 135.

The compensation for the services of a foreman necessary to the construction of a county highway is recoverable by him against the surety of the contractor's bond where the bond is given in conformity with the statute. Snelton v. Hill, 196 N. C. 494, 146 S. E. 135.

Extent of Surety's Liability.—The surety on the contractor's bond for the erection of a public building is only liable for the amount of the penalty of the bond. Robinson Mfg. Co. v. Blaylock, 192 N. C. 407, 135 S. E. 136.

Same—Determined in the Light of Contract and Bond.—To determine the liability of the surety upon its bond given to a municipality for the contractor's performance of his contract to erect a public school building, the contract and the bond for which it is given must be construed together to effectuate its intent and purpose. Robinson Mfg. Co. v. Blaylock, 192 N. C. 407, 135 S. E. 136.

Bond Covers Claims of Materialmen under Subcontractor.—When according to the terms of its undertaking the surety on a contractor's bond for the erection of a municipal building is liable to those doing labor thereon or furnishing material therefor, this liability not only extends to such as may have furnished the material directly to the original contractor, but to those who have done so to his subcontractors. Standard Elect. Time Co. v. Fidelity, etc., Co., 191 N. C. 653, 132 S. E. 808.

Liability of Bond to Materialmen, etc., Conclusive Regardless of Its Express Conditions.—A surety bond given under this section since the amendment of 1923 is liable to those doing labor thereon or furnishing material therefor, whether such condition is written into the obligation of the bond itself or otherwise. Standard Elect. Time Co. v. Fidelity, etc., Co., 191 N. C. 653, 132 S. E. 808.

Same—Prior to the Amendment Contrary Rule Prevailed.—Where the contractor's bond for the erection of a public building does not create a liability on the surety to pay for the materials furnished for the erection of the building, but only imposes the duty to prevent loss to the municipality, there is no presumption that the bond which was executed prior to the amendment of this section by Acts of 1923, Chapter 100, incorporated this provision, and no liability to the surety will be thereunder created. Page Trust Co. v. Carolina Const. Co., 191 N. C. 664, 132 S. E. 804.

This section before its amendment by Laws of 1923, imposed no liability upon the surety in favor of those furnishing material, etc., unless that could be construed from the terms expressed in the bond, and in the building contract to which the bond referred. Ideal Brick Co. v. Gentry, 191 N. C. 636, 132 S. E. 800.

Conditions Taking Away Right of Indemnification Void as Contrary to Public Policy.—The policy of law with respect to mechanics' and laborers' liens, as evidenced by this section and decisions thereon, is to give protection to creditors of this class by expressly providing for laborers and materialmen a right of action against the surety on the contractor's bond for the erection of a municipal building; and hence any provision incorporated in bonds of this character that takes away this right is contrary to our public policy and the express provisions of this section and void. Ingold v. Hickory, 178 N. C. 614, 101 S. E. 525. "A person may lawfully waive by agreement the benefit of a statutory provision. But there is an imputed exception to this general rule in the case of a statutory provision, whose waiver would violate public policy expressed therein, or where rights of third parties, which the statute was intended to protect, are involved." 9 Cyc., 480, quoted with approval in Guilford Lumber Mfg. Co. v. Johnson, 177 N. C. 44, 49, 97 S. E. 732.

Application of Section to Existing Suits.—The provisions of this section that its requirements as to the liability of the contractor's bond for the construction of a county highway shall not affect existing suits, applies to the remedy, and does not relate to those who have furnished material for the constructing of the highway before the enactment of the statute but have no action pending at that time. Chappell v. National Surety Co., 191 N. C. 703, 133 S. E. 21.

Effect of Taking Note of Contractor.—The bond required by this section inures to the benefit of a materialman, even though he took the note of the contractor for the materials he furnished. Moore v. Builders Material Co., 192 N. C. 418, 135 S. E. 113; Standard Elec. Time Co. v. Fidelity, etc., Co., 191 N. C. 653, 132 S. E. 808.

Sureties Right of Subrogation to Moneys Reserved by Municipality.—Where the municipality has in hand a certain per cent. reserve of the cost of construction, and the surety bond, given in accordance with this section construed together with the contract, provides that the principal surety will be subrogated to the rights of the principal in the event of the contractor's default, the surety is entitled to the money thus reserved as against the laborers and materialmen, whose claims remain unpaid after the pro rata distribution of the money to the extent of the penalty of the bond which the surety has paid into court under the statutory provision. Robinson Mfg. Co. v. Blaylock, 192 N. C. 407, 135 S. E. 136.

Limitation of Action upon the Bond.—Under this section the legislative intent was not to bar the rights of materialmen after three years from the time the materials were furnished, but from the time of the completion of the entire contract, and the principle, that suit upon the surety bond (under seal) is limited as to its commencement by the limitation of the right of action against the principal, does not apply. Chappell v. National Surety Co., 191 N. C. 703, 133 S. E. 21.

Provision That Action Must Be within Reasonable Time.—Under this section the provision in a bond for public construction that action thereon should be brought within reasonable time is valid. Horne-Wilson v. National Surety Co., 202 N. C. 73, 161 S. E. 726.

Feed for Teams as Materials Furnished.—Feed for teams working on a public highway come within the contemplation of this section as material furnished, making a surety upon the contractor's bond for the building of a county highway liable. Chappell v. National Surety Co., 191 N. C. 703, 133 S. E. 21.

Payments for Machinery Parts Used to Replace Borrowed Parts.—Where certain parts of a steam shovel used in connection with the construction of a county highway are replaced by other parts borrowed for the purpose, and are necessary in the construction, the surety on the contractor's bond is not liable under the statute for the payment of other like parts purchased to replace the borrowed parts which have thus been paid for. Snelson v. Hill, 196 N. C. 494, 146 S. E. 135.

Misdemeanor Provision Still Applicable.—The provision of this section that any of the public agencies mentioned that fails to require the bond as fixed by the statute, is still applicable notwithstanding the amendment of 1923. Standard Supply Co. v. Vance Plumbing, etc., Co., 195 N. C. 629, 143 S. E. 248.

Local Law Requiring Provision of Section Be Read in Bonds.—A local statute providing that the provisions of this section should be read into private construction bonds is invalid. Plott Co. v. Ferguson Co., 202 N. C. 446, 163 S. E. 688.

Not Applicable When Surety Takes over Contract.—A surety company on a contractor's bond for the erection of municipal buildings in taking over for its own protection the completion thereof, and dealing directly with the materialmen upon its own credit changes its liability as a surety on the bond, and this section is not applicable. Hunt Mfg. Co. v. Hudson, 200 N. C. 541, 157 S. E. 799.

Art. 3. Liens on Vessels.

§ 44-15. For towage and for supplies at home port. — Every vessel, boat, scow, lighter, flat, raft or other water craft is subject to a lien for the payment of towage done by any steamboat or tugboat; and every vessel and boat is subject to a lien for debts due for materials and supplies furnished to such vessel or boat in her home port. These liens shall be filed and enforced as is provided for other liens. (Rev., s. 2040; 1893, c. 357; 1909, c. 147; C. S. 2446.)

Engine as "Material Furnished." — Under this section, which gives a lien on a vessel for all debts contracted for work done on the same or material furnished, one who furnished an engine to be installed in a gas boat, relying on the credit of the vessel, is entitled to a lien therefor as "material," on compliance with the statute as to recording; and it is immaterial that by the contract it reserved title to the engine until paid for. The Pearl, 189 Fed. 540.

§ 44-16. For labor in loading and unloading.— Every vessel, her tackle, apparel and furniture, is subject to a lien for all labor done by contractors or others in loading or discharging the cargo of such vessel, and also for all labor done by any subcontractor or laborer employed in discharging or loading any such vessel, when such labor is done under contract with a contractor or stevedore who may be employed by the master, agent or owner of such vessel. (Rev., s. 2041; Code, s. 1804; 1881, c. 356, s. 1; C. S. 2447.)

§ 44-17. Filing lien; laborer's notice to master.—The liens provided for in the preceding sections shall be filed as is provided for other liens.

The subcontractor or laborer may give notice to the master, agent or owner of such vessel, that the contractor or stevedore is or will become indebted to him. It shall then be the duty of such master, agent or owner of such vessel to retain out of the amount due to such contractor or stevedore under his contract as much as is due or claimed by the person giving the notice, and after such notice is given no payment to the contractor or stevedore shall be a credit on or a discharge of the lien herein provided. (Rev., s. 2042; Code, s. 1805; 1881, c. 356, s. 2; C. S. 2448.)

§ 44-18. Enforcement of lien. — The enforcement of such lien shall be by summons against the contractor or stevedore, and also against the master, agent or owner of such vessel, who made the contract with such contractor or stevedore, if over two hundred dollars, to be issued by the clerk of the superior court, and if under two hundred dollars, by a justice of the peace. (Rev., s. 2043; Code, s. 1806; 1881, c. 356, s. 3; C. S. 2449.)

Enforcement of Lien in Court of Admiralty.—A lien given by a state statute for materials or supplies furnished to a vessel in her home port in the state is enforceable by suit in rem in a court of admiralty. The Pearl, 189 Fed. 540.

§ 44-19. Judgment against contractor binds master and vessel. — The judgment against the contractor or stevedore shall also be a judgment against the master, agent or owner of such vessel, and also against such vessel itself, her tackle, apparel and furniture, which shall be seized, held and sold under execution for the satisfaction of such judgment. (Rev., s. 2044; Code, s. 1807; 1881, c. 356, s. 4; C. S. 2450.)

§ 44-20. Liens not to exceed amount due contractor. — The sum total of all the liens due to different subcontractors and laborers, performed for any contractor or stevedore under any contract with any master, agent or owner of any vessel, shall not exceed the amount due to the contractor or stevedore at the time of notice given to the owner, agent or master, or the amount due to the contractor or stevedore at the time of the service of summons upon the master, agent or owner, when no notice has been given. (Rev., s. 2045; Code, s. 1808; 1881, c. 356, s. 5; C. S. 2451.)

§ 44-21. Owner to see laborers paid. — In all cases where steamships or vessels of any kind are loaded or unloaded or where any work is done in or about the same by the contractors to do the same known as stevedores or "boss stevedores," who in doing the same employ laborers to assist or do the work by the hour, day, week or month, it is the duty of the owner or agent of the vessel to see that the laborers employed in or about the same by the stevedore, contractor or "boss stevedore" are fully paid the wages that may be due such laborer before he makes final settlement with the contractor, stevedore or "boss stevedore." (Rev., s. 2046; 1887, c. 145, s. 1; C. S. 2452.)

§ 44-22. Owner may refuse to settle with contractor till laborers paid.—Any owner or agent referred to in the preceding section may refuse final settlement with the "boss stevedore" or contractor until he or they satisfy the said owner or agent, by written oath if necessary, that the same has been done. (Rev., s. 2047; 1887, c. 145, s. 2; C. S. 2453.)

§ 44-23. Owner may pay orders for wages.—It is lawful for the owner or agent of such vessel to pay off from time to time such orders for wages as may be due and given therefor in favor of the laborers by the contractor or stevedore, which on final settlement may be deducted from the contract price. (Rev., s. 2048; 1887, c. 145, s. 3; C. S. 2454.)

§ 44-24. Laborer's right of action against owner. —Any owner or agent of such vessel who neglects or refuses to comply with the preceding provisions is liable to such laborer in a civil action for the amount of the wages so due him by the contractor, stevedore or "boss stevedore." (Rev., s. 2049; 1887, c. 145, s. 4; C. S. 2455.)

§ 44-25. Stevedore's false oath punishable as perjury.—If any contractor, stevedore or boss stevedore shall make any false oath or false representation with intent to wrong, cheat or defraud any laborer in violation of the four preceding sections, he shall be guilty of a felony and on conviction thereof shall be punished as is now prescribed by law for perjury. (Rev., s. 3613; 1887, c. 145, s. 5; 1943, c. 543; C. S. 2456.)

Cross Reference.—As to punishment for perjury, see § 14-209.

Editor's Note.—The 1943 amendment substituted the word "felony" for the word "misdemeanor" in line five.

§ 44-26. Stevedores to be licensed; omission misdemeanor.—No person shall engage in the business of loading or unloading vessels upon contract, nor shall any person solicit or make any contract for himself or for any other person to load or unload any vessel either by day's work or by the job, without having previously obtained a license therefor, in the manner provided by law for other licenses for trades and occupations. Any person violating the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be fined or imprisoned, or both, at the discretion of the court. (Rev., ss. 2050, 3791; 1891, c. 450; 1899, c. 595; C. S. 2457.)

§ 44-27. Tax and bond on procuring license.—Before the sheriff shall issue the said license the applicant shall pay to the sheriff an annual tax of fifty dollars, and shall execute a bond with two or more approved sureties in the sum of two thousand dollars, payable to the state of North Carolina, and conditioned for the faithful performance of his duties and the due and lawful payment of all sums due to laborers assisting in the work of loading or unloading any vessels upon which the applicant may be engaged. And every bond so taken shall be renewed annually, and shall be filed with and preserved by the register of deeds in trust for every person that shall be injured by the breach of his contracts, who may severally bring suit thereon for the damages by each one sustained. (Rev., s. 2051; 1891, c. 450; C. S. 2458.)

Art. 4. Warehouse Storage Liens.

§ 44-28. Liens on goods stored for charges.—Every person, firm or corporation who furnishes storage room for furniture, tobacco, goods, wares or merchandise and makes a charge for storing the same, has the right to retain possession of and a lien upon all furniture, tobacco, goods, wares or merchandise until such storage charges are paid. (1913, c. 192, s. 1; 1915, c. 190, s. 1; C. S. 2459.)

Cross Reference.—As to effective period for lien on leaf tobacco, see section 44-64.1.

Application of Section.—This section applies to such persons, firms or corporations as operate warehouses as a business for compensation, and not to an isolated instance in which goods or chattels are left in a store or building of the claimant. Champion Shoe Machinery Co. v. Sellers, 197 N. C. 30, 147 S. E. 674.

§ 44-29. Enforcement by public sale.—If such charges are not paid within ten days after they become due, then such person, firm or corporation is authorized to sell said furniture, tobacco, goods, wares or merchandise at the county courthouse door, after first advertising such sale for ten days at said courthouse door and three other public places in said county, or in some newspaper published in said county where the goods or tobacco are stored, and out of the proceeds of such sale to pay the costs and expenses of sale and all costs and charges due for storage, and the surplus, if any, pay to the owner of such furniture, tobacco, goods, wares or merchandise. (1913, c. 192, s. 2; 1915, c. 190, s. 2; C. S. 2460.)

Cross Reference.—As to requirement that the commissioner of revenue be given thirty days' notice of sale of a motor vehicle under a mechanic's or storage lien, see §§ 20-77, subsec. (c) and 20-114, subsec. (c).

Art. 5. Liens of Hotel, Boarding and Lodging-House Keeper.

§ 44-30. Lien on baggage.—Every hotel, boarding-house keeper and lodging-house keeper who furnishes board, bed or room to any person has the right to retain possession of and a lien upon all baggage or other property of such person that may have been brought to such hotel, boarding-house or lodging-house, until all reasonable charges for such room, bed and board are paid. (Rev., s. 2037; 1899, c. 645, s. 1; 1917, c. 26, s. 1; C. S. 2461.)

Cross Reference.—As to hotels, inns, etc., generally, see § 72-1 et seq.

Upon Property of a Third Party Stranger.—An innkeeper has a lien even upon the goods of a third person held by the guest and brought to the inn, with the qualification however, that if he knew that they belonged to such third person he has no lien upon them. Covington v. Newberger, 99 N. C. 523, 6 S. E. 205.

A hotel keeper's lien for charges, under this section, will not attach to a chattel belonging to a third person which is brought to the hotel by the guest under given circumstances. Pate Hotel Co. v. Blair, 207 N. C. 464, 177 S. E. 330.

Occasional Entertainment of Strangers Not Innkeeping.—One who entertains strangers only occasionally, although he receives compensation for it, is not an innkeeper. State v. Mathews, 19 N. C. 424.

The principles of the law of bailment, as they apply to an action for negligent breach of duty arising under the implied contract of bailment, are not affected by the statutory lien given by this section. Wells v. West, 212 N. C. 656, 194 S. E. 313.

A proprietor of a lodging house is not a bailee of personal property left in the room rented by the owner of the personalty, even though the proprietor has access to the room for janitor and maid service, there being no such delivery of possession of the personalty necessary to establish the relationship, and this result is not affected by the statutory lien given by this section. Id.

§ 44-31. Baggage may be sold.—If such charges are not paid within ten days after they become due, then the hotel, boarding-house or lodging-house keeper is authorized to sell said baggage or other property at the courthouse door, or in front of any public building in the town in which the lien attaches, after first advertising such sale for ten days at said courthouse door and three other public places in the county, and out of the proceeds of sale to pay the costs and expenses of sale and all costs and charges due for said board, bed or room, and the surplus, if any, pay to the owner of said baggage or other property. (Rev., s. 2038; 1899, c. 645, s. 2; 1917, c. 26, s. 2; 1935, c. 364; C. S. 2462.)

Editor's Note.—The amendment of 1935 adds the provision permitting sale in the front of any public building.

§ 44-32. Notice of sale.—Written notice of such sale shall be served on the owner of such baggage or other property ten days before such sale, if he is a resident of the state; but if he is a nonresident of the state, or if his residence is unknown, the publication of such notice for ten days at the courthouse door and three other public places in the county shall be sufficient service of the same. (Rev., s. 2039; 1887, c. 645, s. 3; C. S. 2463.)

Art. 6. Liens of Livery-Stable Keepers.

§ 44-33. Lien for ninety days keep on animals in possession. — Every keeper of livery, sale, or boarding stables has a lien upon and the right to retain the possession of every horse, mule, or other animal belonging to the owner or person contracting for the board and keep of any horse, mule, or other animal, for any and all unpaid amounts due for board of any horse, mule, or other animal. This lien shall not attach for amounts accruing for a longer period than ninety days from the reception of such property or from the last full settlement; nor does this lien apply if the property is removed from the possession of said keeper of said livery, sale, or boarding stable (1911, c. 141, s. 1; C. S. 2464.)

§ 44-34. Enforcement by public sale.—If such charges are not paid within fifteen days after they become due and demand is made for the same, then the keeper of such livery, sale or boarding stable is authorized to sell the property at the county courthouse door, after first advertising said sale for ten days at the county courthouse door and three other public places in said county, and out of the proceeds of such sale to pay the costs and charges due for the board and keep of said horse, mule, or other animal, including the charges for keeping said animal until said sale, and the surplus, if any, pay to the owner of said animal. (1911, c. 141, s. 2; C. S. 2465.)

§ 44-35. Notice of sale to owner.—Written notice of such sale shall be served on the owner of such horse, mule, or other animal ten days before such sale, if he is a resident of the state; but if he be a nonresident of the state, or if his residence is unknown, the publication of such notice for ten days at the county courthouse door and three other public places in the county shall be sufficient service of the same. (1911, c. 141, s. 3; C. S. 2466.)

Art. 7. Liens on Colts, Calves and Pigs.

§ 44-36. Season of sire a lien.—In all cases where the owner, or any agent for or employee of the owner, of any mare, jennet, cow or sow, turns the same to a studhorse, jack, bull, or boar, for the purpose of raising colts, calves, or pigs, the price charged for the season of the studhorse, jack, bull, or boar constitutes a lien on the colt, calf, or pigs until the price so charged for the season is paid. (Rev., s. 2024; Code, s. 1797; 1885, c. 72; 1887, c. 14; 1872-3, c. 94, s. 1; 1915, c. 18, s. 1; C. S. 2467.)

§ 44-37. Colts, etc., not exempt from execution for season price.—The colt, calf, or pigs shall not be exempt from execution for the payment of said season price by reason of the operation of the personal property exemption: Provided, the person claiming such lien institutes action to enforce the same within twelve months from the foaling of the colt, dropping the calf, or farrowing of the pigs. (Rev., s. 2025; Code, s. 1798; 1885, c. 72; 1872-3, c. 94, s. 2; 1879, c. 47; 1915, c. 18; 1917, c. 229; C. S. 2468.)

Cross Reference.—As to personal property exemption, appraisal, see § 1-378.

Art. 8. Perfecting, Enforcing and Discharging Liens.

§ 44-38. Claim of lien to be filed; place of filing.—All claims against personal property, of two hundred dollars and under, may be filed in the office of the nearest justice of the peace; if over two hundred dollars or against any real estate or interest therein, in the office of the superior court clerk in any county where the labor has been performed or the materials furnished; but all claims shall be filed in detail, specifying the materials furnished or labor performed, and the time thereof. If the parties interested make a special contract for such labor performed, or if such material and labor are specified in writing, in such cases it shall be decided agreeably to the terms of the contract, provided the terms of such contract do not affect the lien for such labor performed or materials furnished. (Rev., s. 2026; Code, s. 1784; 1869-70, c. 206, s. 4; 1876-7, c. 53, s. 1; C. S. 2469.)

Cross References.—As to duty of clerk to keep a lien docket, see § 2-42, paragraph 23.

As to when statement constitutes a lien without filing, see § 44-10.

See note under § 44-1.

The purpose of filing mechanics', etc., claims for liens, under this section, is to give public notice of the claims, the amount, the material supplied or the labor done, and when done, on what property, specified with such details as will give reasonable notice to all persons of the character of the claims and the property on which the lien attached. Fulp v. Kernersville Light, etc., Co., 157 N. C. 157, 72 S. E. 867.

Where to Be Filed.—The notice of a lien required to be filed, since the Act of 1869-70, chap. 206, sec. 4, should be filed in the office of the clerk of the superior court, although the materials began to be furnished before that Act went into effect when the law of 1868-69 was in force. Chadbourn v. Williams, 71 N. C. 444.

Same.—Prior to the Act of 1869-70, the notice required by this section was to be filed with the register of deeds. Chadbourn v. Williams, 71 N. C. 444, 448.

Particularity of Claim Filed.—A claim of lien, filed under the provisions of the section must comply with the requirements of the statute. Therefore, when the plaintiff's claim failed to specify in detail the material furnished and labor performed, or the time when the material was furnished and the labor performed, it was irregular and void. Wray v. Harris, 77 N. C. 77.

The obvious purpose of this requirement is to give public notice, in the offices designated, of the plaintiff's "claim," his debt, the amount of it, the materials supplied or the labor done, and when done, on what property, on what farm or crop, and when, specified with such detail and certainty as will give reasonable notice to all persons of the character of the "claim," and the property to which the lien, on account of the same, attaches, and of the lien thereby established. It is to give the laborer an important advantage as to his debt due on account of his labor done on the property to which the lien attaches over the ordinary creditor, but to obtain that advantage, he must comply strictly, certainly substantially, in all material respects, with the requirement of the statute, and it is but reasonable and just that he should do so. Cook v. Cobb, 101 N. C. 68, 70, 7 S. E. 700.

While a substantial compliance with this section is necessary to the validity of a lien filed for material, etc., furnished in the erection of a building, it is not required that the claimant file his itemized statement of the material used in a building which he had contracted to complete for the owner for one sum; but the time of the completion of the work must be stated. Jefferson & Bros. v. Bryant, 161 N. C. 404, 77 S. E. 341.

Where suit is brought by a contractor to enforce a lien on a building which was to have been paid for in a single sum, and when the claim as filed is defective, as filed with the clerk, in not stating the time the house was completed, as required by this section, it cannot be cured by amendment allowed in the superior court at the trial. Jefferson & Bros. v. Bryant, 161 N. C. 404, 77 S. E. 341.

Same—Instances of Sufficiency.—When a lienor's schedule for material contains a full itemized statement in detail of the material furnished, and the clerk has entered on his docket the names of the lienor and lienee, the amount claimed by each lienor, a description of the property by metes and bounds, the dates between which the materials were furnished, referring to the schedule of prices and materials attached to the notice, asking that it "be taken as a part of the notice of lien," it is a sufficient compliance with this section. Fulp v. Kernersville Light, etc., Co., 157 N. C. 157, 72 S. E. 867.

Under this section requiring the claim for a laborer's lien to be filed in detail, specifying the labor performed and the time thereof, the plaintiff filed his claim as follows before a justice of the peace: "J. S. C., owner and possessor, to D. A. C., 22 October, 1894. To 122½ days of labor as sawyer at his sawmill, on Jumping Run Creek, from 1 October, 1893, to 31 August, 1894, $127.24. (Signed) D. A. C., claimant," which was sworn to; it was held that the claim as filed was a reasonable and substantial compliance with the statute. Cameron v. Consolidated Lumber Co., 118 N. C. 266, 24 S. E. 7.

The lien of a plaintiff who furnished materials for a building is not avoided because in the notice thereof filed with the clerk it is made to attach on two distinct lots separated by a street. Chadbourn v. Williams, 71 N. C. 444.

In this case claim, or notice of lien, was not made out in sufficient detail, "specifying the . . . labor performed, and the time thereof," the wages he was to receive, how and when payable, etc. And further, it was not made to appear that said purported notice of claim was filed "in the office of the nearest justice of peace" as required by this section. Gainey v. Gainey, 203 N. C. 190, 191, 165 S. E. 547.

§ 44-39. Time of filing notice.—Notice of lien shall be filed as hereinbefore provided, except in those cases where a shorter time is prescribed, at any time within six months after the completion of the labor or the final furnishing of the materials, or the gathering of the crops. (Rev., s. 2028; Code, s. 1789; 1868-9, c. 117, s. 4; 1876-7, c. 53, s. 2; 1881, c. 65; 1883, c. 101; 1909, c. 32; 1913, c. 150, s. 7; C. S. 2470.)

Lien Relates Back.—When the notice is filed the lien is at once established, and relates back to and is effective from the time at which the work was commenced, or the materials were furnished. Lookout Lumber Co. v. Mansion Hotel, etc., R. Co., 109 N. C. 658, 661, 14 S. E. 35.

Where the material furnisher for a building files notice of claim under this section, the lien against the building of the owner relates back to the time the delivery was completed, and action must be commenced within six months after the filing of the above notice, and in that event the lien is preserved from the furnishing of the material and is superior to a deed of trust registered since that time, and where the evidence is conflicting the question is for the jury under proper instructions from the court. Atlas Supply Co. v. McCurry, 199 N. C. 799, 156 S. E. 91. See also note under § 44-1.

Same—Otherwise Statutes Would Be Defeated.—It must be clear that unless the claim when filed has relation back to the commencement of the furnishing of the materials, the object of the act would be liable to be defeated at the pleasure of the vendee of the materials, by his selling or mortgaging his estate. The act would be idle and inefficacious against the very mischief it was intended to cause [prevent]. By allowing the notice to be filed after the whole has been delivered, it has put on a purchaser while the delivery is in progress the duty of informing himself whether the materials have been delivered or not, and under what sort of contract. Chadbourn v. Williams, 71 N. C. 444, 449.

Same—But Lien Good Only for the Amount Due.—While, under this section, a mechanic's or laborer's lien, or lien for material, when filed, relates back and takes priority over all liens attaching, or purchases for value made subsequent to the beginning of the work or of furnishing the first material, yet it is good only for the amount due the contractor, laborer or materialman. Clark v. Edwards, 119 N. C. 115, 25 S. E. 794.

Lien Attaches from What Time.—A lien attaches from the time the materials began to be furnished, and the notice relates back to that time. Chadbourn v. Williams, 71 N. C. 444.

The certain purpose is to protect the subcontractor or laborer as to his claim against the owner of the property and all liens of whatever character that may attach to the property subsequently, not simply subsequently to the filing of the notice of claim in the office of the superior court clerk, but as well subsequently to the time when the work was commenced or the materials were furnished. Lookout Lumber Co. v. Mansion Hotel, etc., R. Co., 109 N. C. 658, 661, 14 S. E. 35.

And this is so, although the subsequent incumbrancer had no notice of the lien thus relating back. McNeal Pipe, etc., Co. v. Howland, etc., Co., 111 N. C. 615, 618, 16 S. E. 857.

Where the claim is filed within the time and in the manner prescribed the lien relates back to the time of the beginning of the work or furnishing of the materials, and is effective against any subsequent incumbrances or purchasers. Bankers' Trust Co. v. Gillespie Co., 181 Fed. 448.

Filing in Six Months after Moneys Are Due.—In Porter v. Case, 187 N. C. 629, 122 S. E. 483, it was held that the notice must be filed within six months from the time moneys are due the contractor, under the terms of the contract.

Question for Jury.—Whether the notice of claim of a lien was filed within the time prescribed by this section is a question for the jury where it appears from the evidence that later work was done under the original contract. Beaman v. Elizabeth City Hotel Corp., 202 N. C. 418, 163 S. E. 117.

Taking Note Not a Waiver.—One furnishing material used in the construction of a building does not waive his right of lien by accepting a note for the amount due him therefor, when the note matured before the expiration of the statutory time wherein he is required to file notice of his lien, and he has perfected his right as the statutes require. Raeford Lumber Co. v. Rockfish Trading Co., 163 N. C. 314, 79 N. C. 627.

The "shorter time" herein referred to evidently refers to the notice required to be given by section 44-13, was intended to provide for a longer time within which to give notice, that is, six months, where the transaction has been completed by the "final furnishing" of the materials. Atlas Powder Co. v. Denton, 176 N. C. 426, 431, 97 S. E. 372.

Filing of Claim against Railroad Company.—Under this section a contractor or subcontractor who does work on or furnishes material for the construction of a railroad, is entitled to file a lien on the property of the company within one year, (now six months) from the time of doing such work or furnishing such material and, when filed, the lien has precedence over a mortgage registered after the work has been commenced. Dunavant v. Caldwell, etc., R. Co., 122 N. C. 999, 29 S. E. 837.

Validity of Section.—In McNeal Pipe, etc., Co. v. Howland, etc., Co., 111 N. C. 615, 623, 16 S. E. 857, this section was held to be valid.

Cited in White v. Riddle, 198 N. C. 511, 152 S. E. 501; State v. Howley, 220 N. C. 113, 16 S. E. (2d) 705.

§ 44-40. Date of filing fixes priority.—The liens created and established by this chapter shall be paid and settled according to the priority of the notice of the lien filed with the justice or the clerk. (Rev., s. 2035; Code, s. 1792; 1868-9, c. 117, s. 11; C. S. 2471.)

In General.—Liens of materialmen and laborers are statutory, and by the clear provisions of this section and § 44-42 the liens of parties furnishing labor and material under direct contract with the owner have priority in accordance with the time of filing notice of lien with the justice of the peace or clerk. The right of pro rata payment on liens of subcontractors is distinguished on the basis of the statutory provisions, § 44-11, no notice of lien being required to be filed with the justice of the peace or clerk in the case of subcontractors, notice to the owner being sufficient under the statute. Boykin v. Logan, 203 N. C. 196, 165 S. E. 680.

Application of Section to Liens of Subcontractors, etc.—This section relates to the lien filed with the proper officers, and does not affect the provisions as to subcontractors who acquire a lien by notice to the owner. This is not only in accordance with law, but also with justice and equity, for when persons have put their money and labor in a building, and the balance due is insufficient to pay all, it is not right for one to have the whole fund, in the absence of negligence, because he gets to the clerk's office first. Morganton Mfg., etc., Co. v. Andrews, 165 N. C. 285, 295, 81 S. E. 418. See also White v. Riddle, 198 N. C. 511, 514, 152 S. E. 501.

§ 44-41. Laborer's crop lien dates from work begun.—The lien for work on crops given by this chapter shall be preferred to every other lien or encumbrance which attached to the crops subsequent to the time at which the work was commenced. (Rev., s. 2034; Code, s. 1782; 1869-70, c. 206, s. 2; C. S. 2472.)

Cross Reference.—As to landlord's lien on crops for rents, advances, etc., see § 42-15 et seq.

Lien Prior to Other Subsequent Lien.—The lien created by this section is preferred to every other lien or encumbrance, which attaches upon the property subsequent to the time at which the work was commenced, or the materials were furnished. Lookout Lumber Co. v. Mansion Hotel, etc., R. Co., 109 N. C. 658, 660, 14 S. E. 35.

Breach of Contract—Lien for Claim.—The liens provided for by this section arise out of the simple relation of debtor and creditor for labor done or materials furnished, and where there is no other security than the personal obligation of the debtor. Therefore, where the plaintiff, having abandoned a contract made with the defendant to cultivate a crop upon shares, upon the ground that the defendant had failed to furnish the necessary stock, etc., as agreed, and attempted to assert a lien for the labor he had bestowed upon the crop, it was held that the statute did not embrace his case. Grissom v. Pickett, 98 N. C. 54, 3 S. E. 921.

Cited in White v. Riddle, 198 N. C. 511, 152 S. E. 501.

§ 44-42. Duly filed claims of prior creditors not affected.—Nothing in this chapter shall be construed to affect the rights of any person to whom any debt may be due for any work done for which priority of claim is filed with the proper officer. (Rev., s. 2036; Code, s. 1786; 1869-70, c. 206, s. 6; C. S. 2473.)

Cross Reference.—As to priority of claims for labor over mortgages of a corporation, see § 55-44.

§ 44-43. Action to enforce lien.—Action to enforce the lien created must be commenced in the court of a justice of the peace, and in the superior court, according to the jurisdiction thereof, within six months from the date of filing the notice of the lien. But if the debt is not due within six months, but becomes due within twelve months, suit may be brought or other proceedings instituted to enforce the lien in thirty days after it is due. (Rev., s. 2027; Code, ss. 1785, 1790; 1868-9, c. 117, s. 7; 1869-70, c. 206, s. 5; 1876-7, c. 250; 1876-7, c. 251; C. S. 2474.)

When Section Not Applicable.—This section cannot have been intended for a case in which a resort to any court is unnecessary, and a complete and efficient measure of relief is committed to and may be obtained by the parties' own act. McDougall v. Crapon, 95 N. C. 292, 293, 295.

Jurisdiction of Circuit Court of U. S.—While this section gives a right of action at law, for the enforcement of a mechanic's lien, a circuit court of the United States sitting in equity has jurisdiction to entertain a bill for that purpose, especially where there are conflicting liens to be adjusted. Healey Ice Mach. Co. v. Green, 181 Fed. 890.

Jurisdiction of Justice—Jurisdictional Amounts.—A proceeding under this section to establish a claim against a feme covert, and to have a lien declared for materials furnished, and work and labor done, in erecting a house on her land, must be brought before a justice of the peace, if the amount claimed is under two hundred dollars. Smaw v. Cohen, 95 N. C. 85.

Same—Against Married Woman.—An action against a married woman for less than $200 for materials used in building a house must be brought before a justice of the peace. Finger v. Hunter, 130 N. C. 529, 41 S. E. 890.

Loss of Lien by Delay to Enforce—Personal Action under Section 44-9.—If the plaintiff does not begin his action within the time prescribed by this section after giving the statement of his claim to the owner, he loses his lien; but having acquired and lost the lien he can maintain an action against the owner, personally, under sec. 44-9, which makes it the "duty of the owner to retain from the money then due the contractor a sum not exceeding the price contracted for," to be paid to the laborer, mechanic, or materialman whenever an itemized statement of the amount due him is furnished by either of such parties or the contractor. Hildebrand v. Vanderbilt, 147 N. C. 639, 641, 61 S. E. 620; Charlotte Pipe, etc., Co. v. Southern Aluminum Co., 172 N. C. 704, 707, 90 S. E. 923.

Owners Liability Pro Rata to the Extent of Sum Due.—The laborer or matcrialman can only recover of the owner his pro rata part of that sum which the owner is required to "retain from the contractor then due." This pro rata share is to be determined after consideration by the court below of all the claims of laborers, etc., against the contractor—their priorities, validity, etc., and a judgment fixing the owner with a liability greater than that demanded for the satisfaction of the plaintiff's claim, without making the other like claimants parties, must be remanded and reformed. Hildebrand v. Vanderbilt, 147 N. C. 639, 61 S. E. 620.

Possession by Justice of the Notice of Lien.—It is not necessary that the justice before whom application is made to enforce the lien should be in possession of the original notice of the lien; a copy from the magistrate with whom it was filed must be sufficient. There can be no reason why a copy of a notice properly filed with the clerk will not also suffice. The only reason why the justice who is to enforce the lien must have a copy of the notice is because he is required to state in his judgment the date of the lien and also what property it binds. Boyle v. Robbins, 71 N. C. 130, 133.

Limitation of Actions Pleaded by Owner for Contractor.—When the owner is sued by a laborer or materialman in time, and subsequently, after the statute had run in favor of the contractor, he was made a party and filed no answer, the owner cannot plead the statute of limitation for the contractor in his own behalf, the plea being personal to the contractor. Hildebrand v. Vanderbilt, 147 N. C. 639, 61 S. E. 620.

Waiver of Lien by Failure to Enforce.—Failure to enforce the lien under this section within the time prescribed constitutes a waiver of the lien. Norfleet v. Tarboro Cotton Factory, 172 N. C. 833, 89 S. E. 785.

Defects in Claim Filed Not Cured by Pleading.—It is not sufficient to allege in the pleadings the time of the labor, and that it was done on a particular crop which the plaintiff seeks to charge with a lien. This must appear substantially in some way in the claim filed. Cook v. Cobb, 101 N. C. 68, 71, 7 S. E. 700.

Cited in Atlas Supply Co. v. McCurry, 199 N. C. 799, 800, 156 S. E. 91.

§ 44-44. When attachment available to plaintiff.—In all cases where the owner or employer attempts to remove the crop, houses or appurtenances from the premises, without the permission, or with the intent to defraud the lienor of his lien, the claimant may have a remedy by attachment. (Rev., s. 2031; Code, s. 1795; 1868-9, c. 117, s. 14; C. S. 2475.)

Sufficiency of Affidavit for Attachment.—Under this section, giving a remedy by attachment to enforce a laborer's lien, an affidavit that the defendant has removed and is removing and disposing of the cotton crop without regard to the lien, is insufficient to justify the issuing of the warrant, in the absence or allegation that the removal is with the intent to defraud the laborer. Brogden v. Privett, 67 N. C. 45. To this effect Mr. Justice Reade in the opinion of that case says: "The affidavit for the attachment in this case sets forth that the defendant 'has removed and is removing and disposing of the cotton crop,' etc., 'without regard to the lien,' etc. There is no allegation that the removal is 'with the intent to defraud the laborer,' and therefore, in view of the fact that the usual way for a farmer to raise money to pay for laborers is by selling his crop, it ought not to be presumed, but must be averred, that the removal is with a fraudulent intent. It is insisted, however, that the words of the statute are in the alternative, 'without his permission, or, with intent to defraud.' That is true, but still it is not necessary for us to decide whether 'or' ought not to be construed 'and,' because the affidavit does not use either alternative in the language of the statute, but substitutes his own language, 'without regard to the lien,' etc. We are not informed why the plaintiff evaded the language of the statute; and we are of opinion that to favor his experiment would be an inconvenient and dangerous construction of the statute."

Note that the syllabus of the case expresses a rule just the opposite of that established by the opinion of the case. Ed. Note.

§ 44-45. Defendant entitled to counterclaim.—The defendant in any suit to enforce the lien is entitled to any set off arising between the contractors during the performance of the contract, or counterclaim allowed by law. (Rev., s. 2032; Code, s. 1788; 1869-70, c. 206, s. 8; C. S. 2476.)

§ 44-46. Execution.—Upon judgment rendered in favor of the claimant, an execution for the collection and enforcement thereof shall issue in the same manner as upon other judgments in actions arising on contract for the recovery of money only, except that the execution shall direct the officer to sell the right, title and interest which the owner had in the premises or the crops thereon, at the time of filing notice of the lien, before such execution shall extend to the general property of the defendant. (Rev., s. 2029; Code, s. 1791; 1868-9, c. 117, s. 9; C. S. 2477.)

Descriptions in the Judgment.—In Boyle v. Robbins, 71 N. C. 130, 133, this section was construed to require, at least by implication, that the justice of the peace should set forth in the judgment the date of the lien, and that it should also embody a general description of the property which the plaintiff seeks to subject to primary liability under it. If only personal property be bound by the lien, the justice must insert in his execution a requirement that the specific property, subject to the lien, shall be first sold before seizing other goods or chattels, while, if the property described in the notice be land, the justice's judgment must be docketed in the superior court, and the clerk must incorporate in the execution similar direction as to the order of selling. So the judgment cannot be enforced in strict compliance with the law unless the officer, whose duty it is to issue execution, has gotten such information from the record in his court as will satisfy him that some property, described with reasonable certainty, is subject to the lien and consequently to a primary liability for the debt. The most convenient method of recording the date of the lien and the description of the property bound by it, is to embody it in the judgment, which will constitute a part of the record in either court, no matter which officer may find it necessary to insert the date and description in the execution. McMillan v. Williams, 109 N. C. 252, 255, 13 S. E. 764.

A judgment to enforce a mechanic's lien upon specific property for its satisfaction, must contain a general description of such property, and an execution thereon must direct that such property shall first be sold to satisfy the judgment. Id.

§ 44-47. No justice's execution against land.—No execution issued by a justice of the peace, under this chapter, shall be enforced against real estate or any interest therein, but justices' judgments may be docketed on the judgment docket of superior court for the purpose of selling such estate or any interest therein. (Rev., s. 2030; Code, s. 1794; 1868-9, c. 117, s. 13; C. S. 2478.)

§ 44-48. Discharge of liens.—All liens created by this chapter may be discharged as follows:

1. By filing with the justice or clerk a receipt or acknowledgment, signed by the claimant, that the lien has been paid or discharged.

2. By depositing with the justice or clerk money equal to the amount of the claim, which money shall be held by said officer for the benefit of the claimant.

3. By an entry in the lien docket that the action on the part of the claimant to enforce the lien has been dismissed, or a judgment rendered against the claimant in such action.

4. By a failure of the claimant to commence an action for the enforcement of the lien within six months from the notice of lien filed. (Rev., s. 2033; Code, s. 1793; 1868-9, c. 117, s. 12; C. S. 2479.)

Failure to Enforce as Discharge.—Failure of claimant to enforce his lien within six months as prescribed by section 44-43 operates as a discharge of the lien. Norfleet v. Tarboro Cotton Factory, 172 N. C. 833, 89 S. E. 785.

Art. 9. Liens upon Recoveries for Personal Injuries to Secure Sums Due for Medical Attention, etc.

§ 44-49. Lien created; applicable to persons non sui juris.—From and after March 26, 1935, there is hereby created a lien upon any sums recovered as damages for personal injury in any civil action in this State, the said lien in favor of any person or corporation to whom the person so recovering, or the person in whose behalf the recovery has been made, may be indebted for drugs, medical supplies, and medical services rendered by any physician, dentist, trained nurse, or hospitalization, or hospital attention and/or services rendered in connection with the injury in compensation for which the said damages have been recovered. Where damages are recovered for and in behalf of minors or persons non compos mentis, such liens shall attach to the sum recovered as fully and effectively as if the said person were sui juris. (1935, c. 121, s. 1.)

§ 44-50. Receiving person charged with duty of retaining funds for purpose stated; evidence; attorney's fees; charges.—A like lien shall attach to all funds paid to any person in compensation for or settlement of the said injuries, whether in litigation or otherwise; and it shall be the duty of any person receiving the same before disbursement thereof to retain out of any recovery or any compensation so received a sufficient amount to pay the just and bona fide claims for such drugs, medical supplies, and medical attention and/or hospital service, after having received and accepted notice thereof: Provided, that evidence as to the amount of such charges shall be competent in the trial of any such action: Provided further, that nothing herein contained shall be construed so as to interfere with any amount due for attorney's services: Provided, further, that the lien hereinbefore provided for shall in no case, exclusive of attorneys' fees, exceed fifty per cent of the amount of damages recovered. (1935, c. 121, s. 2.)

§ 44-51. Disputed claims to be settled before payments.—Whenever the sum or amount or amounts demanded for medical services or hospital fees shall be in dispute, nothing in this article shall have any effect of compelling payment thereof until the claim is fully established and determined, in the manner provided by law: Provided, however, that when any such sums are in dispute the amount of the lien shall in no case exceed the amount of the bills in dispute. (1935, c. 121, s. 3; 1943, c. 543.)

Editor's Note.—The 1943 amendment rewrote the proviso.

Art. 10. Agricultural Liens for Advances.

§ 44-52. Lien on crops for advances.—If any person makes any advance either in money or supplies to any person who is engaged in or about to engage in the cultivation of the soil, the person making the advances is entitled to a lien on the crops made within one year from the date of the agreement in writing herein required upon the land in the cultivation of which the advance has been expended, in preference to all other liens, except laborer's and landlord's liens, to the extent of such advances. Before any advance is made an agreement in writing for the advance shall be entered into, specifying the amount to be advanced, or fixing a limit beyond which the advance, if made from time to time during the year, shall not go; and this agreement shall be registered in the office of the register of the county or counties where the land is situated on which the crops of the person advanced are to be grown. Provided, that where a county line divides a farm the crop lien may be recorded in the county where the owner of said farm resides; Provided, he resides on said farm; Provided, that the lien shall continue to be good and effective as to any crop or crops which may be harvested after the end of the said year, and referred to in the said lien. (Rev., s. 2052; Code, s. 1799; 1893, c. 9; 1866-7, c. 1, s. 1; 1872-3, c. 133, s. 1; 1925, c. 302, s. 1; 1927, c. 22; 1935, c. 205; C. S. 2480.)

I. IN GENERAL.

Editor's Note.—This section was amended in 1925, whereby the phrase "within one year from the date of the agreement in writing herein required" was substituted for the phrase "during the year," and the proviso appearing at the end of the section was added. Prior to the amendment the registration of the writing was required to be effected within thirty days after date.

As to the effect of the amendment of 1925 upon this section, and upon the various aspects of its doctrine as interpreted by adjudicated cases, see 4 N. C. Law Rev. 4.

In lieu of the clause "where the person advanced resides" the amendment of 1935 inserts the clause "or counties where the land is situated on which the crops of the person advanced are to be grown" and the two provisos which immediately follow this clause.

For a discussion of liens given by members of the coöperative marketing association, see 2 N. C. Law Rev. 191.

Prerequisites of the Lien Enumerated.—From this section it is clear, (1) that the advances must be in money or supplies; (2) to the person engaged or about to engage in the cultivation of the soil; (3) after the agreement is made; (4) to be expended in the cultivation of the crop made during that year; (5) and the lien must be on the crop of that year, made by reason of the advances so made. Clark v. Farrar, 74 N. C. 686, 690.

Conditions to Render the Lien Effectual—Registration Unnecessary between Parties.—The prescribed conditions upon which the lien of this section becomes effectual are the previous reduction of the contract for it to writing, setting out its terms, and registration; these provisions are manifestly for the security of creditors and others who may have dealings with the debtor and otherwise might not know of the encumbrances upon the crop. And so it has been held that registration is not essential to the validity of the instrument as between the parties to it. Gay v. Nash, 78 N. C. 100; Reese & Co. v. Cole, 93 N. C. 87, 89.

Compliance with Requirements Prerequisite. — The lien can only be by force of the statute and by a compliance with its requirements. Where the section has not been followed, to sustain the agreement as an agricultural lien would utterly defeat the letter and the public policy embraced by the statute. Clark v. Farrar, 74 N. C. 686, 690.

Strict Construction—Lienor Not Bound to See Materials Are Used on the Land.—This section was not intended simply to permit a person to give a lien upon his crop for advances; but also to give such a lien a preference to all other liens existing or otherwise to the extent of such advance. Therefore, it should be strictly construed when the rights of other creditors intervene. Even where such claims do exist, it has been held that the lienee must determine his own needs in conducting his farm, and that his acceptance must be deemed conclusive between the parties, and not less so upon the claim of a subsequently derived title, and that the lienor was not bound to see that the property was used on the farm, his duty is discharged by furnishing it. Womble v. Leach, 83 N. C. 84; Nichols & Bros. v. Speller, 120 N. C. 75, 78, 26 S. E. 632; Collins v. Bass, 198 N. C. 99, 102, 150 S. E. 706.

An instrument which gives a lien on a crop for supplies to be furnished in making a crop and also conveys personal property as additional security, with the ordinary powers of sale, is valid both as a chattel mortgage and an agricultural lien, and, as between the parties, in the absence of fraud and compulsion, the lien attaches for dry goods, shoes, tobacco, powders, snuff and candy, without a showing that such articles were actually used in making the crop. Nichols & Bros. v. Speller, 120 N. C. 75, 26 S. E. 632.

Not Retroactive.—This section has no retroactive effect so as to impair laborers' liens under section 44-41. Warren v. Woodard, 70 N. C. 382.

Estopped to Deny Articles Received as "Supplies."—One who gives a lien on a crop to obtain supplies, under the provisions of this section, is estopped from asserting that articles which he receives as a compliance with the contract are not "supplies" within the meaning of the statute; and a second mortgagee, who acquires an interest in the crop after such advances are made, stands in no better plight, and is likewise bound by such admission. Womble v. Leach, 83 N. C. 84.

Crops Covered by Lien.—The operations of a mortgage or agricultural lien in respect to crops are confined to crops then or about to be planted, and will not be extended further than those planted next after the execution of the instrument. Wooten v. Hill, 98 N. C. 48, 3 S. E. 846.

Power of Sale in Instrument Does Not Invalidate It. — A power of sale upon default in paying advances, inserted in an instrument giving a lien upon crops, does not invalidate the instrument, though prescribing a different remedy from that allowed by the statute. Crinkley v. Egerton, 113 N. C. 142, 18 S. E. 341.

Mortgage on Crops as Agricultural Lien.—A mortgagee, under a mortgage on a crop not expressed to be for advances to be made and not recorded after its execution, has no rights as an agricultural lienor by virtue of this section. Cooper v. Kimball, 123 N. C. 120, 31 S. E. 346.

Cited in Brooks v. Garrett, 195 N. C. 452, 142 S. E. 486. White v. Riddle, 198 N. C. 511, 152 S. E. 501.

II. PRIORITY OF LIENS.

Lien Preferred to All Others Save the Executions Specified.—An agricultural lien, given by this section, for the purpose of enabling the cultivation of the soil to raise a crop, is preferred by this section to all others, the only exception being that in favor of the landlord or laborer contained in section 44-60, when it is in proper form and duly registered; and it is preferred to liens of other kinds existing by mortgage or deed of trust on the same crop, to the extent of the amount advanced thereunder. Williams v. Davis, 183 N. C. 90, 110 S. E. 577.

Same—Not Subordinate to Marketing Agreement.—In view of the policy of the State as manifested in the statutes to favor agricultural liens, such a lien for advances will not be held subordinate to a marketing agreement. Tobacco Growers' Co-Op. Ass'n v. Harvey & Son Co., 189 N. C. 494, 127 S. E. 545.

Precedence Over a Prior Mortgage Lien.—An agricultural lien duly executed and registered takes precedence over a mortgage of prior date and registration upon the "crops" therein subjected to the extent of the advances made. Wooten v. Hill, 98 N. C. 48, 3 S. E. 846. Killebrew v. Hines, 104 N. C. 182, 193, 10 S. E. 159, 251.

But see Brewer v. Chappell, 101 N. C. 251, 7 S. E. 670, where it was held that an agricultural lien, created to secure advances made to one who is in possession of the land as mortgagor, in the absence of any agreement to the contrary with the mortgagee, is subject to the mortgage, and the mortgagee who purchased the owner's equity of redemption and then leased the land to him, may take the crops to the exclusion of the holder of the lien.

A statutory agricultural lien for supplies and advancements during the current crop year, conforming to the requirements of this section both as to context and registration, is superior to a prior registered chattel mortgage given to secure an antecedent debt, the chattel mortgage not being in the required form to constitute a crop lien for supplies as contemplated by the section. Eastern Cotton Oil Co. v. Powell, 201 N. C. 351, 160 S. E. 292.

Priority of the Lien of Landlord.—The lien of the landlord for rents and advancements is the lien first preferred above all others. Brewer v. Chappell, 101 N. C. 251, 254, 7 S. E. 670.

Where a mortgagor has surrendered his land to the mortgagee, but continues thereon as tenant of the mortgagee in making the crop, and a third person makes advancements, holding a lien therefor, under this section, and the lienor knows of the surrender at the time he had made the advancements, his lien is secondary to that of the landlord's for rent, and a paperwriting of the agreement of surrender between the landlord and tenant was not necessary. Section 44-53 is not applicable to such case. Montague v. Thorpe, 196 N. C. 163, 144 S. E. 691. See note under § 42-15.

Same—Extent of Priority. — Although under this section the lien of a landlord for rent and advances is superior to that of a third party making advances to the tenant, yet such priority exists only for rent accruing or advances made during the year in which the crops are grown, and not for a balance due for an antecedent year. Ballard & Co. v. Johnson, 114 N. C. 141, 19 S. E. 98.

III. THE WRITTEN AGREEMENT.

A. Form and Execution.

No Particular Form of Agreement Required.—To create an agricultural lien under this section no particular form of agreement is required. If the requisites prescribed by the statutes are embodied in the agreement, and the intent of the parties to create the lien is apparent, the agreement will be upheld as a valid agricultural lien though it be in the form of a chattel mortgage. Meekins v. Walker, 119 N. C. 46, 25 S. E. 706.

Furnishing Supplies and Executing the Instruments Contemporaneously.—When furnishing the supplies and making the securing instruments are contemporaneous, constituting one transaction of which these acts are parts, it is not material which precedes in actual time, for in contemplation of law both are done at one and the same time. This view is suggested in the opinion in Womble v. Leach, 83 N. C. 84, as a reasonable construction which accomplishes the substantial purposes intended. Reese & Co. v. Cole, 93 N. C. 87, 91.

Same—It is Immaterial Which Act is Done First.—The agreement is a single transaction between the parties, executed by one in making the advances, and by the other in providing the statutory security for their payment. In such a case it is indifferent which act is first done, if both are done at the same time and in execution of their contract and understanding. The purpose is to enable the former to obtain the means of making his crop by creating a lien upon it when made, and the requirement for writing and registration is for the protection of others who may deal with him. Reese & Co. v. Cole, 93 N. C. 87, 90.

B. Registration.

Registration Not Necessary Inter Partes.—A crop lien to secure agricultural advances executed under this section is valid inter partes, although not registered within thirty days, as required by the section. Gay v. Nash, 78 N. C. 100.

Time of Registration Subsequent to Amendment—Effect.—In 4 N. C. Law Rev. 5, it is said: "The statute as amended fails to require registration within any specified time before the harvesting of the crop. What would be the effect of two persons making advances on the same crop, when the latter advance, in point of time, was the first registered? It has been held that a mortgage on a crop, not expressed to be for advances, and not registered within 30 days after execution, has no rights as an agricultural lien under sec.

44-52. Cooper v. Kimball, 123 N. C. 120, 31 S. E. 346. This would hardly give a basis for a decision in the case put above, as the thirty day provision is omitted by the present law, but the first lien registered should prevail. It would be a race for the register's office."

IV. DESCRIPTION OF LAND.

Identification of the Land by Sufficient Description.—The land on which the crops are to be grown must be sufficiently identified at the time the lien is executed. Within this ruling land is sufficiently identified when described as "a field or farm in possession of the mortgagor or seller." Weil v. Flowers, 109 N. C. 212, 13 S. E. 761; Gwathney v. Etheridge, 99 N. C. 571, 6 S. E. 411.

An instrument giving a lien upon crops raised "upon Opossum Quarter tract of land in Warren County, known as the tract M. W. is buying from Egerton, or any other lands he may cultivate during the present year," sufficiently described the lands upon which the crops were to be raised, and was effective as to the crops raised on the land described, but void as to those raised on "any other lands." Crinkley v. Egerton, 113 N. C. 142, 18 S. E. 341.

V. EVIDENCE.

Extraneous Evidence to Show Time of Furnishing Materials.—Where an instrument intended to operate as an agricultural lien contains, on its face, the statutory requisites, except that it does not show that the money or supplies were furnished after the agreement, it is competent to show, dehors such instrument, that the supplies were furnished after the making of the agreement. Meekins v. Walker, 119 N. C. 46, 25 S. E. 706. Such evidence would not contradict the written instrument. Id.

§ 44-53. Contract for advances to mortgagor in possession. — The preceding section shall apply to all contracts made for the advancement of money and supplies, or either, for the purposes herein specified by mortgagors or trustors, their tenants, lessees or croppers, who may be in possession of the lands mortgaged or conveyed in trust at the time of the making of the contract for such advancement of money or supplies, either in case the debts secured in said mortgage or deed of trust be due or not. (Rev., s. 2053; 1889, c. 476; 1931, c. 173, ss. 2, 3; C. S. 2481.)

See annotations to the preceding section.

Editor's Note.—This section, which gives a lien for advances to mortgagors or trustors in possession, was amended by Public Laws 1931, c. 173 so as to give a lien when advances are made to "their tenants, lessees or croppers." The 1931 act, which excepted pending litigation, became effective March 23, 1931.

Cited in Slade Rhodes & Co. v. James, 194 N. C. 240, 139 S. E. 240.

§ 44-54. Price to be charged for articles advanced limited. — In order to be entitled to the benefits of the lien on crops in favor of landlords and other persons advancing supplies under the article, Agricultural Tenancies, of the chapter, Landlord and Tenant, and under the present article, or on a chattel mortgage on crops, such landlord or person shall charge for such supplies a price or prices of not more than ten per cent over the retail cash price or prices of the article or articles advanced, and the said ten per cent shall be in lieu of interest on the debt for such advances: Provided, however, that coupon books and trade checks commonly used by time merchants shall be considered as supplies advanced, when sold by merchants to customers, and charged for in the same manner. If more than ten per cent over the retail cash price is charged on any advances made under the lien or mortgage given on the crop, then the lien or mortgage shall be null and void as to the article or articles upon which such overcharge is made. At the time of each sale there shall be delivered to the purchaser a memorandum showing the cash prices of the articles advanced. (1917, c. 134, s. 1; 1921, c. 89; C. S. 2482.)

Local Modification.—Columbus and Scotland: 1931, c. 95; Greene: 1941, c. 210; Lenoir: 1929, c. 262; Robeson: 1929, c. 20.

Editor's Note.—The proviso to the first sentence of this section was added by the amendment of 1921.

Evidence Insufficient to Sustain Finding as to Price Charged.—In an action to recover the balance due from a cropper for advancements made for the cultivation of the crop and to establish the lien provided by § 44-52, the referee found as a fact, that the advancements were in money, merchandise and fertilizer, that the plaintiffs had charged more than 10 per cent above the retail cash price for fertilizer of the same kind, and declared the statutory lien void under the provisions of this section: Held, the action of the trial judge in confirming the report of the referee was erroneous, in the absence of evidence that such advance price had been charged for the fertilizer, and that even if it were proved that an advance price was charged for the fertilizer, the lien would not be void as to the other merchandise sold. Slade Rhodes & Co. v. James, 194 N. C. 240, 139 S. E. 240.

§ 44-55. "Cash prices" defined and determined. —In the case of retail merchants, the retail cash price or prices shall be the regular cash price or prices charged by the same merchant to cash customers for the same article or articles in like quantities at the same time. In the case of advances of supplies by landlords or other persons not engaged in business as retail merchants, or by retail merchants who have no regular cash prices, if the prices charged are called into question by the purchaser the retail cash price or prices of the supplies advanced may be determined by taking the average between the cash price or prices for the same class or classes of goods of two neighboring merchants, one selected by the landlord or other person making the advance and the other by the one to whom the advance is made. (1917, c. 134, s. 2; C. S. 2483.)

Local Modification.—Columbus and Scotland: 1931, c. 95; Greene: 1941, c. 210; Lenoir: 1929, c. 262; Robeson: 1929, c. 20.

§ 44-56. Person advanced not estopped by agreement. — No agreement or understanding between the parties as to the price or prices to be charged shall work an estoppel against the person to whom supplies have been advanced from showing that the price or prices charged were in fact more than ten per cent over the average retail cash price or prices in that locality at the time the advance or advances were made. If the price or prices charged by the merchants or landlord were in fact more than ten per cent, then the lien shall be null and void as to the article or articles upon which such overcharge is made. (1917, c. 134, s. 2; C. S. 2484.)

Local Modification.—Columbus and Scotland 1931, c. 95; Greene: 1941, c. 210; Lenoir: 1929, c. 262; Robeson: 1929, c. 20.

§ 44-57. Commission in lieu of interest, where advance in money.—Any person, firm, or corporation, including any bank or credit union, making any advancement in money to any person for the purpose of enabling such person to cultivate a crop, and taking as sole security for the advance so made a lien or mortgage on the crops to be cultivated and the personal property of the person to whom the advances are made, may charge, in lieu of interest, a commission of not more than ten per cent of the amount of money actually advanced: Provided, that money advanced under the provisions of this section shall be advanced in installments agreed upon at the time of the contract, and the ten per cent commission herein allowed shall not be deducted, but shall be added to the amount of money agreed to be advanced. (1917, c. 134, s. 3; C. S. 2485.)

Local Modification.—Lenoir: 1929, c. 262; Robeson: 1929, c. 20.

Applied in Ransom v. Eastern Cotton Oil Co., 203 N. C. 193, 165 S. E. 350.

§ 44-58. Disposition of commission, where advanced by credit union.—In case the money is advanced by a credit union, the funds derived from the ten per cent commission allowed in the preceding section shall be used to pay such interest as the union may pay for the money borrowed by it for the benefit of its members, and to cover losses sustained by the union on account of loans made to members, and to further cover any reasonable expenses incurred by the union in connection with the loans made to members, and the balance of said fund shall be returned to the borrowers at the end of each year. (1917, c. 134, s. 4; C. S. 2486.)

Local Modification.—Lenoir: 1929, c. 262; Robeson: 1929, c. 20.

§ 44-59. Purchasers for value protected. — All liens or mortgages made under the provisions of this article shall be valid for their face value in the hands of purchasers for value and before maturity, even though the charges made are in excess of those allowed herein; but in such cases the party to whom the advances are made has the right to recover from the party making the advances any sum he may be compelled to pay a third party in excess of the charges allowed by this article. (1917, c. 134, ss. 5, 6; C. S. 2487.)

Local Modification.—Lenoir: 1929, c. 262; Robeson: 1929, c. 20.

§ 44-60. Crop seized and sold to preserve lien.—If the person making such advances makes an affidavit before the clerk of the superior court of the county in which such crops are, that the amount secured by said lien for such advances, or any part thereof, is due and unpaid, that the person to whom such advances have been made, or any other person having the said crop in his possession, is about to sell or dispose of his crop, or in any other way is about to defeat the lien hereinbefore provided for, accompanied with a statement of the amount then due, it is lawful for him to issue his warrant, directed to any of the sheriffs of this state, requiring them to seize the said crop, and, after due notice, sell the same for cash and pay over the net proceeds thereof, or so much thereof as may be necessary in the extinguishment of the amount then due. This proceeding shall not affect the rights of landlords or laborers. (Rev., s. 2054; Code, s. 1800; 1893, c. 9; 1866-7, c. 1, s. 2; 1872-3, c. 133, s. 2; 1883, c. 88; C. S. 2488.)

Purpose of Section—Remedy of Cultivator.—The purpose of the section is to give a summary remedy, where there is reason to believe that the cultivator is attempting to commit a fraud upon the lien of the party who has made the advances. It is clear from a perusal of the statute that in order to prevent an attempted fraud it was the intent of the law-making power to dispense with a summons to the next term of the superior court, and to allow the crop or so much thereof as was necessary to satisfy the debt, which is required to be set out in the affidavit, to be seized and sold by summary process, leaving the cultivator to his remedy by civil action in case he was not in default, and also by indictment against the party who makes the affidavit in case it be false in regard to the fraud charged or in regard to the amount alleged to be due. Thomas v. Campbell, 74 N. C. 787, 789.

Procedure in General.—The remedy given under this section is summary and prompt, and as a special proceeding has for its object the appropriation of the encumbered crops to the satisfaction of the debt created in making them. When this appropriation has been made the proceeding is exhausted and comes to an end. If the debt is disputed, and notice thereof given to the officer, accompanied with the defendant's affidavit denying the indebtedness claimed, he is required to hold the proceeds of sale until the issue of the controverted indebtedness can be tried in the superior court. If the warrant is revoked, the goods or the proceeds of sale must be returned, as must be the excess when they are more than sufficient to meet the plaintiff's demand and costs, as stated by himself, or as reduced by the verdict of the jury. The statute in direct terms makes no other provision for the intervention of the debtor to stop the progress of the proceeding. Gay v. Nash, 84 N. C. 334; Cottingham & Bros. v. McKay, 86 N. C. 241, 243.

No Summons to Defendant Is Necessary.—It is not necessary to the regularity of a summary proceeding for the enforcement of an agricultural lien under this section that a summons should be issued to the defendant. Thomas v. Campbell, 74 N. C. 787.

Effect of Verdict Failing to Assess Damages.—Where in a proceeding to enforce an agricultural lien under this section the crop was sold by the sheriff, and on trial before a jury the defendant admitted the execution of the lien, but denied that anything was due for advances thereunder, there was a general verdict for the plaintiff, and the court refused judgment because the jury failed to assess the damages. It was held error; the verdict established the "lien debt" in excess of the proceeds of sale, entitling the plaintiff to judgment. Gay v. Nash, 84 N. C. 334.

Return of Moneys in Court's Custody to Defendant.—Where in a proceeding under this section, the money arising from the sale of the crop has been paid into court and the proceeding dismissed, the court has the power to order a return of the money to the defendant, although the plaintiff has instituted another action and files an affidavit that the defendant is insolvent. Cottingham & Bro. v. McKay, 86 N. C. 241.

Revocation of Warrant by Clerk.—There can be no question of the reserved power in the clerk to revoke and supersede a warrant which he may have improvidently issued under this section. Cottingham & Bro. v. McKay, 86 N. C. 241, 243.

Priorities.—An agricultural lien for advances, when in writing, takes priority over all other liens except the laborer's and landlord's liens, to the extent of advances made thereunder. Rhodes v. Smith-Douglass Fertilizer Co., 220 N. C. 21, 16 S. E. (2d) 408.

Cited in White v. Riddle, 198 N. C. 511, 152 S. E. 501.

§ 44-61. Lienor's claim disputed; proceeds of sale held; issue made for trial. — If the person to whom the advances have been made, or who claims an interest in the crops, within thirty days after such sale has been made, gives notice in writing to the sheriff, accompanied with an affidavit, to the effect that the amount claimed is not justly due, it is the duty of the sheriff to hold the proceeds of such sale subject to the decision of the court upon an issue which shall be made up and set for trial at the next succeeding term of the superior court for the county in which the person to whom such advances have been made resides. (Rev., s. 2054; Code, s. 1800; 1866-7, c. 1, s. 2; 1872-3, c. 133, s. 2; 1883, c. 88; 1893, c. 9; C. S. 2489.)

§ 44-62. Local: Short form of liens.—For the purpose of creating a valid agricultural lien under the preceding sections for supplies to be advanced, and also to constitute a valid chattel mortgage as additional security thereto, and to secure a pre-existing debt, the following or a substantially similar form shall be deemed sufficient, and for those purposes legally effective, in the counties of Alamance, Alleghany, Anson,

Local Modification.—Beaufort: 1933, c. 101; Johnston: 1943, c. 653.

Editor's Note.—By the amendments of 1925 and 1931 Randolph and Franklin Counties were brought within the scope of this section.

No Particular Form Required.—This section requires no particular form for the written instrument creating a valid agricultural lien but that it be substantially according to that therein prescribed, and the courts in construing it will look to the substance rather than the form and regard the entire writing with the view of ascertaining and effectuating the intention of the parties; and an instrument expressing itself to be an agricultural lien, and given in consideration of money or goods to be advanced for the purpose of making crops on certain land for the current year, with certain other property pledged as additional security, is sufficient without further designation, it appearing that the parties intended it to be one. Jones-Phillips Co. v. McCormick, 174 N. C. 82, 93 S. E. 449.

§ 44-63. Local: Rights on lienee's failure to cultivate. — If any person in the counties mentioned in the preceding section, after executing a lien as aforesaid for advances, fails to cultivate the lands described therein, or does any other act calculated to impair the security therein given, then the person to whom the lien was executed is relieved from any further obligation to furnish supplies, and the debts and advances theretofore made become due and collectible at once, and the person to whom the instrument was executed may proceed to take possession of, cultivate and harvest said crops, and to sell the other property described therein. It is not necessary to incorporate such power in the instrument, but this section is sufficient authority for the same. The sale of any property described in any instrument executed under the provisions of this chapter may be made at any place in the county where such property is situated after ten days notice published at the courthouse door and three other public places in said county. (Rev., s. 2056; 1899, c. 17, s. 3; 1901, c. 329, s. 3; C. S. 2491.)

§ 44-64. Local: Commissioners to furnish blank records.—The board of commissioners of the said counties shall have record books made with the aforesaid forms printed therein, and the cost of said books and of the printing of said forms, and of such other said books as may be hereafter required, shall be paid by the respective counties, and furnished to the register of deeds. (Rev., s. 2057; 1899, c. 17, s. 4; 1901, c. 329, s. 4; C. S. 2492.)

Art. 11. Liens for Internal Revenue.

§ 44-65. Filing notice of lien.—Notices of liens for internal revenue taxes payable to the United States of America and certificates discharging such liens may be filed in the office of the register of deeds of the county or counties within which the property subject to such lien is situated. (Ex. Sess. 1924, c. 44, s. 1.)

§ 44-66. Duty of register of deeds.—When a notice of such tax lien is filed, the register of deeds shall forthwith enter the same in alphabetical Federal lien tax index to be provided by the board of county commissioners, showing on one line the name and residence of the taxpayer named in such notice, the collector's serial number of such notice, the date and hour of filing, and the amount of tax and penalty assessed. He shall file and keep all original notices so filed in numerical order in a file or files to be provided by the board of county commissioners and designated Federal tax lien notices. This service shall be performed without fee. (Ex. Sess. 1924, c. 44, s. 2.)

§ 44-67. Certificate of discharge.—When a certificate of discharge of any tax lien, issued by the collector of internal revenue or other proper officer, is filed in the office of the register of deeds where the original notice of lien is filed, said register of deeds shall enter the same with date of filing in said Federal tax lien index on the line where the notice of the lien so discharged is entered, and permanently attach the original certificate of discharge to the original notice of lien. This service shall be performed without fee. (Ex. Sess. 1924, c. 44, s. 3.)

§ 44-68. Purpose of article. — This article is passed for the purpose of authorizing the filing of notices of liens in accordance with the provisions of section three thousand one hundred eighty-six of the Revised Statutes of the United States, as amended by the act of March fourth, one thousand nine hundred thirteen, thirty-seven Statutes at Large, page one thousand sixteen. (Ex. Sess. 1924, c. 44, s. 4.)

Art. 12. Liens on Leaf Tobacco.

§ 44-69. Effective period for lien on leaf tobacco sold in auction warehouse.—No chattel mortgage, agricultural lien, or other lien of any nature upon leaf tobacco shall be effective for any purpose for a longer period than six months after the sale of such tobacco at a regular sale in an auction tobacco warehouse during the regular season for auction sales of tobacco in such warehouse. This section shall not absolve any person from prosecution and punishment for crime. (1943, c. 642, s. 1.)

Chapter 45. Mortgages and Deeds of Trust.

Art. 1. Chattel Mortgages: Form and Sufficiency.

Art. 2. Right to Foreclose or Sell under Power.

Art. 3. Mortgage Sales.

Art. 4. Discharge and Release.

Art. 1. Chattel Mortgages: Form and Sufficiency.

§ 45-1. Form of chattel mortgage.—Any person indebted to another in a sum to be secured may execute a chattel mortgage in form substantially as follows:

I, ..., of the county of ..... in the state of North Carolina, am indebted to ....., of ..... county, in said state, in the sum of ..... dollars, for which he holds my note to be due the .... of ....., A. D. 19...., and to secure the payment of the same, I do hereby convey to him these articles of personal property, to wit: ..... but on this special trust, that if I fail to pay said debt and interest on or before the .... day of ....., A. D. 19...., then he may sell said property, or so much thereof as may be necessary, by public auction for cash, first giving twenty days notice at three public places, and apply the proceeds of such sale to the discharge of said debt and interest on the same, and pay any surplus to me.

Given under my hand and seal this .... day of ....., A. D. 19.....

..... (Seal).

(Rev., s. 1039; Code, s. 1273; 1870-1, c. 277; 1911, c. 69, s. 1; C. S. 2575.)

Essential Elements.—No particular form is essential to the validity of a chattel mortgage; mere informality will not vitiate it. No seal is necessary. It is sufficient if the words employed express in terms or by just implication the purpose of the parties to transfer the property to the mortgagee, to be revested in the mortgagor upon the performance of the condition agreed upon, however informally expressed. A power of sale is not essential. Comron v. Standland, 103 N. C. 207, 9 S. E. 317.

While no particular form is necessary to constitute a mortgage, yet the words must "clearly indicate the creation of a lien, specify the debts to secure which it is given, and upon the satisfaction of which the lien is to be discharged and the property upon which it is to take effect." The statement that the creditor is to have a lien, and that on default he may take possession and sell, * * * sufficiently discloses the intent. Harris v. Jones, 83 N. C. 318; Britt v. Harrell, 105 N. C. 10, 12, 10 S. E. 902.

If a security for money is intended, that security is a mortgage though not having on its face the form of a mortgage. McCoy v. Lassiter, 95 N. C. 88, 92.

§ 45-2. Registration. — Chattel mortgages substantially in the form provided in § 45-1 are good to all intents and purposes when the same are duly registered according to law. (Rev., s. 1040; Code, ss. 1273, 1274; 1870-1, c. 277, ss. 1, 2; C. S. 2576.)

Cross References.—As to place of registration, see § 47-20. As to fee to register of deeds for registering chattel mortgage, etc., see § 161-10. As to offense of disposing of mortgaged or otherwise incumbered property and punishment therefor, see § 14-114.

In General.—The lien of the chattel mortgage is created by registering the original instrument, and such registration is notice to the world of the existence of the lien. It is not material to the public whether the debt and property were transferred by the mortgagee. The purpose of the Legislature in passing the statute in reference to registration was to prevent the creation of secret liens which embarrass trade and tend to encourage fraud. Hodges v. Wilkinson, 111 N. C. 56, 65, 15 S. E. 941.

Necessity of Registration Between the Parties.—Registration is not essential between the parties to the mortgage. Thomas v. Cooksey, 130 N. C. 148, 151, 41 S. E. 2; William v. Jones, 95 N. C. 504.

Registration Prior Attachment Gives Priority.—The registration of a mortgage prior to attachments issued by creditor makes it superior to the creditor's lien, but only on property situated in the county where the mortgage was registered. Williamson v. Bitting, 159 N. C. 321, 74 S. E. 808.

No Special Statutory Mode of Registration.—There is no special statutory mode presented for the registration of a chattel mortgage. If it is actually registered and indexed, that is sufficient. This section does not determine the mode. Williamson v. Bitting, 159 N. C. 321, 322, 74 S. E. 808.

Assignment of Mortgage Not Required to Be Registered.—There is no provision which requires assignments of chattel mortgages or the debts secured by them to be proven or registered; nor is there any good reason for enacting such a law, though it has been done in other states. The mortgage is declared "good to all intents and purposes" when registered according to law. No matter how often it be assigned, it is still good to protect the interest of the holder of the debt. Hodges v. Atkinson, 111 N. C. 56, 65, 15 S. E. 941.

Delivery to Register in His Office Necessary.—It is required for a valid filing of a mortgage that it be delivered at the office of the register of deeds, and until then it can acquire no priority over one theretofore executed; and where two mortgages given to different persons on the same subject-matter are delivered to the register of deeds out of his official office, carried by him to that place and marked by him filed at the same time, the filing and registration are regarded as being simultaneous, and the mortgage first executed will have priority of lien. McHan v. Dorsey, 173 N. C. 694, 92 S. E. 598.

Registry after Death of Mortgagor.—A mortgage both of land and personal property may be registered after the death of the mortgagor. William v. Jones, 95 N. C. 504.

§ 45-3. Mortgage of household and kitchen furniture. — All conveyances of household and kitchen furniture by a married man, made to secure the payment of money or other things of value, are void, unless the wife joins therein and her privy examination is taken in the manner prescribed by law in conveyances of real estate, except when said mortgage or conveyance is executed for the purchase money thereof. (Rev., s. 1041; 1891, c. 91; 1931, c. 211; C. S. 2577.)

Cross References.—As to conveyance of home site, see § 30-8. As to forms of acknowledgment, see §§ 47-38, 47-39, 47-40.

Editor's Note.—The Act of 1931 added the exception as to purchase money mortgage. The amendment does not contravene the policy of the law designed for the protection of the home. Kelly v. Fleming, 113 N. C. 133, 18 S. E. 81; Thomas v. Sanderlin, 173 N. C. 329, 91 S. E. 1028. It is also consistent with the law which permits the husband to execute a purchase money mortgage or deed of trust on his real estate that will be valid as against his wife without her joinder in the instrument. See § 39-13. 9 N. C. Law Rev. 392.

Provisions within Police Power of State.—The provisions of the section are in exercise of the police power of a State and promotive of its economic welfare and public convenience and comfor, and designed for the protection of the home, and is a constitutional and valid enactment. Thomas v. Sanderlin, 173 N. C. 329, 91 S. E. 1028.

Doctrine of Section Public Policy.—The requirements that the wife must join in the conveyance of the husband's realty, in the conveyance of his allotted homestead, and in a mortgage of his household and kitchen furniture, and that the husband must give his written assent to the conveyance by the wife of her realty, are all of a piece as a declaration of public policy. Thomas v. Sanderlin, 173 N. C. 329, 336, 91 S. E. 1028.

Section Applies to Liens Conferred by Writing—Property of Wife and Husband.—This section could not apply to those methods of conveyance of personal property by sale and delivery where no writing was used, for then the privy examination of the wife would have been impracticable. Nor to the sale by the husband of the personal property of which he was the sole owner, because, in this instance it was not necessary that the wife should join. But it was intended to prevent the conveyance by chattel mortgage, or in any other way by which a lien could be fixed thereon, of the property named, as by deed of trust or conditional sale, without a writing signed by husband and wife, and the privy examination of the wife, as in sale of real estate; and this may be applicable to such property whether it belong to the husband or to the wife. Kelly v. Fleming, 113 N. C. 133, 139, 18 S. E. 81.

The word "convey," in its broadest significance, might embrace any transmission of possession, but we are restrained to its legal meaning, which, ordinarily speaking, is the transfer of property from one person to another by means of a written instrument and other formalities. Rapalje & Lawrence Law Dict., "Convey, Conveyance." According to Webster a conveyance is "an instrument in writing by which property or the title to property is conveyed or transmitted from one person to another." The meaning of this word being well understood at common law, it must be understood in the same sense when used in a statute. Smithdeal v. Wilkerson, 100 N. C. 52, 6 S. E. 71; Kelly v. Fleming, 113 N. C. 133, 138, 18 S. E. 81.

Applies Only to Conveyances of Furniture by Husband—Privy Examination.—This section applies only to conveyances by the husband of the household and kitchen furniture, and the requirement of the privy examination of the wife in giving her assent thereto is within the power of the General Assembly and is in line with the same requirement in the Constitution, as to the joinder of the wife in the conveyance of the allotted homestead—the only instance in which the Constitution recognizes such a requirement. Thomas v. Sanderlin, 173 N. C. 329, 337, 91 S. E. 1028.

Mischief Sought to Be Overcome.—The evident mischief sought to be overcome by this section is the facility with which these necessary articles for the comfort and convenience of every household, however humble—the household and kitchen furniture—may be conveyed away, notwithstanding the protection which the law throws around them by the personal property exemption, at least, during the life of the husband, by the chattel mortgage, or other lien, now almost the only basis of credit for the poor man. Kelly v. Fleming, 113 N. C. 133, 139, 18 S. E. 81.

Liberal Construction—Goods for Sale in Shop Not Covered.—The words "household and kitchen furniture" may comprise not only that species of property which is in actual use, but also that which is on sale in shops, yet no one will contend that this statute should be construed so literally as to embrace articles of this kind of the latter class. Kelly v. Fleming, 113 N. C. 133, 138, 18 S. E. 81.

Distinguished from § 30-8—Constitutionality.—A distinction between this section and § 30-8 should be noted. In this section the conveyance without the joinder of the wife is declared to be void; while in the latter statute, such conveyance is declared to be invalid only for certain purposes. The owner of household and kitchen furniture is deprived absolutely of the right to convey said property by mortgage, without the consent of his wife, whereas the owner of a home site is deprived of such right only to a limited extent. If the former statute is constitutional, as held by this Court, it seems that there can be no question as to the constitutionality of § 30-8. Boyd v. Brooks, 197 N. C. 644, 652, 150 S. E. 178.

Husband's Own Property before Passage of Section.—Whether the provisions of the act could be made to apply in case of a chattel mortgage, etc., by a husband, of his own household and kitchen furniture, at any rate, of such as was owned by him before the passage of the act, quaere. Kelly v. Fleming, 113 N. C. 133, 18 S. E. 81.

Phrase "Household Furniture" Covers a Piano.—A piano owned by the husband and placed in his home for the use of his wife and daughters, and so used by them, is included under the statutory terms "Household and kitchen furniture" as used in this section, and a chattel mortgage thereof by the husband is invalid unless the wife signs as directed by the statute. Thomas v. Sanderlin, 173 N. C. 329, 91 S. E. 1028.

Application to Joint Note of H. and W. to Bind Separate Estate.—This section requiring a private examination of a married woman to a chattel mortgage on household and kitchen furniture, does not apply to a note signed by husband and wife binding her separate personal estate. Harvey v. Johnson, 133 N. C. 352, 45 S. E. 644.

Art. 2. Right to Foreclose or Sell under Power.

§ 45-4. Representative succeeds on death of mortgagee or trustee in deeds of trust; parties to action.—When the mortgagee in a mortgage, or the trustee in a deed in trust, executed for the purpose of securing a debt, containing a power of sale, dies before the payment of the debt secured in such mortgage or deed in trust, all the title, rights, powers and duties of such mortgagee or trustee pass to and devolve upon the executor or administrator or collector of such mortgagee or trustee, including the right to bring an action of foreclosure in any of the courts of this state as prescribed for trustees or mortgagees, and in such action it is unnecessary to make the heirs at law of such deceased mortgagee or trustee parties thereto. (Rev., s. 1031; 1901, c. 186; 1887, c. 147; 1895, c. 431; 1905, c. 425; 1933, c. 199; C. S. 2578.)

Editor's Note.—Public Laws of 1933, c. 199, inserted the words "or collector" following the words "executor or administrator."

Power of Sale Vests in Executor of Mortgagee.—When a power of sale in a mortgage is given to the mortgagee, "his executors," etc., upon default, and the mortgagee dies leaving a will under which his executors qualify, the power of sale vests in the executors by virtue of this section and the contract in the mortgage. Scott v. Blades Lumber Co., 144 N. C. 44, 56 S. E. 548.

Same—Even in the Absence of Stipulation to That Effect.—The executor of a mortgagee may exercise the power of sale contained in the mortgage, when the deed in terms confers such power upon the mortgagee and his executors. This section was intended to confer the power of sale upon executors and administrators when such power is not given in the deed. Yount v. Morrison, 109 N. C. 520, 13 S. E. 892.

§ 45-5. Foreclosures by representatives validated. — In all actions which were brought or prosecuted prior to the fourth day of March, one thousand nine hundred and five, for the foreclosure of any mortgage or deed in trust by any executor or administrator of any deceased mortgagee or trustee where the heirs of the mortgagee were duly made parties and regular and orderly decrees of foreclosure entered by the court and sale had by a commissioner appointed by the court for that purpose and deed made after confirmation, the title so conveyed to purchaser at such judicial sale shall be deemed and held to be vested in such purchaser, whether the heir of such deceased mortgagee or trustee was a party to such foreclosure proceeding or not, and such heir of any deceased mortgagee is estopped to bring or prosecute any further action against such purchaser for the recovery of such property or foreclosure of such mortgage or deed in trust. (Rev., s. 1032; 1905, c. 425, s. 2; C. S. 2579.)

§ 45-6. Renunciation by representative; clerk appoints trustee.—The executor or administrator of any deceased mortgagee or trustee in any mortgage or deed of trust heretofore or hereafter executed may renounce in writing, before the clerk of the superior court before whom he qualifies, the trust under the mortgage or deed of trust at the time he qualifies as executor or administrator, or at any time thereafter before he intermeddles with or exercises any of the duties under said mortgage or deed of trust, except to preserve the property until a trustee can be appointed. In every such case of renunciation the clerk of the superior court of any county wherein the said mortgage or deed of trust is registered has power and authority, upon proper proceedings instituted before him, as in other cases of special proceedings, to appoint some person to act as trustee and execute said mortgage or deed of trust. The clerk, in addition to recording his proceedings in his book of orders and decrees, shall enter the name of the substituted trustee or mortgagee on the margin of the deed in trust or the mortgage in the book of the office of the register of deeds of said county. (Rev., s. 1038; 1905, c. 128; C. S. 2580.)

§ 45-7. Agent to sell under power may be appointed by parol.—All sales of property, real or personal, under a power of sale contained in any mortgage or deed of trust to secure the payment of money, by any mortgagee or trustee, through an agent or attorney for that purpose, appointed orally or in writing by such mortgagee or trustee, whether such writing has been or shall be registered or not, shall be valid, whether or not such mortgagee or trustee was or shall be present at such sale. (Rev., s. 1035; 1895, c. 117; C. S. 2581.)

Recitals in Deed Prima Facie Correct.—Recitals in a trustee's deed that the trustee made the sale in pursuance of the power contained in the deed of trust are taken as prima facie correct. Hayes v. Ferguson, 206 N. C. 414, 174 S. E. 121.

§ 45-8. Survivorship among donees of power of sale.—In all mortgages and deeds of trust wherein two or more persons, as trustees or other wise, are given power to sell the property therein conveyed or embraced, and one or more of such persons dies, any one of the persons surviving having such power may make sale of such property in the manner directed in such deed, and execute such assurances of title as are proper and lawful under the power so given; and the act of such person, in pursuance of said power, shall be as valid and binding as if the same had been done by all the persons on whom the power was conferred. (Rev., s. 1033; 1885, c. 327, s. 2; C. S. 2582.)

Editor's Note.—See 13 N. C. Law Rev. 93.

Execution of Power by Survivor Trustee in Mortgage.—Where one of two trustees in a power of sale mortgage dies, the survivor may execute the trust, this being a trust coupled with an interest. Cawfield v. Owens, 129 N. C. 286, 40 S. E. 62.

§ 45-9. Clerk appoints successor to incompetent trustee.—When the sole or last surviving trustee named in a will or deed of trust dies, removes from the county where the will was probated or deed executed and/or recorded and from the state, or in any way becomes incompetent to execute the said trust, or is a nonresident of this state, or has disappeared from the community of his residence and his whereabouts remains unknown in such community for a period of three months and cannot, after diligent inquiry be ascertained, the clerk of the superior court of the county wherein the will was probated or deed of trust was executed and/or recorded is authorized and empowered, in proceedings to which all persons interested shall be made parties, to appoint some discreet and competent person to act as trustee and execute the trust according to its true intent and meaning, and as fully as if originally appointed: Provided, that in all actions or proceedings had under this section prior to January first, one thousand nine hundred, before the clerks of the superior court in which any trustee was appointed to execute a deed of trust where any trustee of a deed of trust has died, removed from the county where the deed was executed and from the state, or in any way become incompetent to execute the said trust, whether such appointment of such trustee by order or decree, or otherwise, was made upon the application or petition of any person or persons ex parte, or whether made in proceedings where all the proper parties were made, are in all things confirmed and made valid so far as regards the parties to said actions and proceedings to the same extent as if all proper parties had originally been made in such actions or proceedings (Rev., s. 1037; Code, s. 1276; 1869-70, c. 188; 1873-4, c. 126; 1901, c. 576; 1933, c. 493; C. S. 2583.)

Editor's Note. — Public Laws 1933, c. 493, inserted the words "and/or recorded" following the word "executed." It also inserted the clause relating to instances where the trustee has disappeared.

Appointment of New Trustee upon the Death of the Old.—Upon the death of a trustee, the clerk of the superior court may appoint another under this section who may proceed to execute the trust according to the terms of the deed. Wright v. Fort, 126 N. C. 615, 36 S. E. 113.

Appointment of Trustee upon the Death of the Last Survivor.—Upon the death of the last survivor of a board of trustees named in a deed for property to be used as a "Baptist church and for the education of the youths of the colored race," it was held that their successors will be appointed under this section, by the clerk of the court. Thornton v. Harris, 140 N. C. 498, 53 S. E. 341.

Appointment upon Appeal.—Where clerk of superior court, for want of jurisdiction, dismisses a proceeding for the appointment of a trustee, on appeal the judge of the superior court may make such appointment. Roseman v. Roseman, 127 N. C. 494, 37 S. E. 518.

Petition for Appointment of New Trustee—Title of New Trustee.—Under this section, when a trustee dies, all of the parties in interest may join in a petition to the superior court to have a new trustee appointed, and upon the passing of the decree the substituted trustee holds the legal title upon the same trusts as the original trustee, so far as it is competent for the court to confer them. McAfee v. Green, 143 N. C. 411, 55 S. E. 828.

Bond for Substituted Trustee Unnecessary.—It is not necessary in substituting one trustee for another in pursuance of this section, to require a bond of the substituted trustee. Strayhorn v. Green, 92 N. C. 119.

Personal Powers of Old Trustee Cannot Be Transferred upon the New.—Where the powers to be exercised by the original trustee are of a personal nature depending upon his discretion, such powers cannot be conferred upon the appointed trustee. See Young v. Young, 97 N. C. 132, 2 S. E. 78.

Administrator C. T. A. Taking Place of Executor Trustee.—Where an executor named in a will is thereby also appointed a trustee and renounces or dies, the administrator cum testamento annexo appointed in his stead succeeds to the trusteeship, and hence an appointment by the clerk of the court, under this section, of a trustee in place of the executor is void and clothes the appointee with no power. State v. Peebles, 120 N. C. 31, 26 S. E. 924.

All Persons Interested Must Be Made Parties.—The appointment of a trustee in cases where the former trustee has died, removed from the county, or become incompetent cannot be done on an ex parte motion or petition. The application for such appointment is in the nature of a civil action, and all persons interested must be made parties, and have full time and opportunity to set up their respective claims. Guion v. Melvin, 69 N. C. 242.

Section Not Applicable.—Where the terms as to foreclosure in a deed of trust on lands to secure borrowed money have been complied with as to the substitution of the trustee, the method expressed for this purpose is contractual and does not arise under this section requiring certain proceedings to be taken in the courts; and a deed made by a substituted trustee in accordance with the agreement passes the title to the purchaser at the foreclosure sale. Raleigh Real Estate, etc., Co. v. Padgett, 194 N. C. 727, 140 S. E. 714.

The provisions of this section may not be held applicable to an active express trust. Cheshire v. First Presbyterian Church, 221 N. C. 205, 19 S. E. (2d) 855.

Cited in New York Life Ins. Co. v. Lassiter, 209 N. C. 156, 183 S. E. 616; Nall v. McConnell, 211 N. C. 258, 190 S. E. 210; Cheshire v. First Presbyterian Church, 222 N. C. 280, 22 S. E. (2d) 566.

§ 45-10. Substitution of trustees in mortgages and deeds of trust.—In addition to the rights and remedies now provided by law, the holders or owners of a majority in amount of the indebtedness, notes, bonds, or other instruments evidencing a promise or promises to pay money and secured by mortgages, deeds of trust, or other instruments conveying real or personal property, or creating a lien thereon, may substitute a trustee whether the trustee then named in the instrument is the original or a substituted trustee, by the execution of a paper writing whenever it appears:

(1) In the case of individual trustees: That the trustee then named in such mortgage, deed of trust, or other instrument securing the payment of money, has died, or has removed from the state, or is not a resident of this state or cannot be found in this state, or has disappeared from the community of his residence so that his whereabouts remains unknown in such community for a period of three months or more; or that he has become incompetent to act mentally or physically, or has been committed to any institution, private or public, on account of inebriacy or conviction of a criminal offense; or that he has refused to accept such appointment as trustee or refuses to act or has been declared a bankrupt; or that a petition in involuntary bankruptcy has been filed against him, or that a suit has been instituted in any court of this state asking relief against him on account of insolvency; or that a cause of action has been asserted against him on account of fraud against his creditors.

(2) In the case of corporate trustees: That the trustee is a foreign corporation or has ceased to do business, or has ceased to exercise trust powers, or has excluded from its regular business the performance of such trusts; or that the corporation has been declared bankrupt, or has been placed in the hands of a receiver; or that insolvency proceedings have been instituted in any court of this state or in any court of the United States against it, or that any action has been instituted in either of said courts against it in which relief is asked on the ground of insolvency or fraud against its creditors; or that any officer or commission of this state, or any employee of such commission or officer, has taken charge of its affairs for the purpose of liquidation pursuant to any statute.

The powers recited in this section shall be cumulative and optional. (1931, c. 78, ss. 1, 2; 1935, c. 227; 1943, c. 543.)

Editor's Note.—The 1943 amendment rewrote this section. See 9 N. C. Law Rev. 402.

Section Becomes Part of Contract.—Where a deed of trust is executed after the effective date of this section the provisions of the section enter into and become a part of the contract, and a later statute providing a more economical and expeditious procedure for such substitution, so long as the rights of the parties, especially those of the cestui que trust, are not injuriously affected, does not violate the constitutional provisions. Bateman v. Sterrett, 201 N. C. 59, 159 S. E. 14.

A substituted trustee succeeds to all the rights, titles and duties of the original trustee, and has the power to foreclose the instrument according to its terms upon default. Pearce v. Watkins, 219 N. C. 636, 14 S. E. (2d) 653.

A sale of the property by the substituted trustee in accordance with the terms of the instrument is valid, the appointment of a substitute trustee not being a conveyance of any interest in land. North Carolina Mtg. Corp. v. Morgan, 208 N. C. 743, 182 S. E. 450.

Substitute Trustee May Execute Deed to Purchaser.—A trustee, duly substituted for the original trustee under the provisions of the deed of trust and the statute, may execute deed to the purchaser at a sale duly conducted by the original trustee. Pendergrast v. Home Mtg. Co., 211 N. C. 126, 189 S. E. 118; Pearce v. Watkins, 219 N. C. 636, 642, 14 S. E. (2d) 653.

§ 45-11. Appointment of substitute trustee upon application of subsequent or prior lienholders; effect of substitution.—When any person, firm, corporation, county, city or town holding a lien on real or personal property upon which there is a subsequent or prior lien created by a mortgage, deed of trust or other instrument, the mortgagee or trustee therein named being dead or having otherwise become incompetent to act, files a written application with the clerk of the superior court of the county in which said property is located, setting forth the facts showing that said mortgagee or trustee is then dead or has become incompetent to act, the said clerk of the superior court, upon a proper finding of fact that said mortgagee or trustee is dead or has become incompetent to act, shall enter an order appointing some suitable and competent person, firm or corporation as substitute trustee upon whom service of process may be made, and said substitute trustee shall thereupon be vested with full power and authority to defend any action instituted to foreclose said property as fully as if he had been the original mortgagee or trustee named; but the substitute trustee shall have no power to cancel said mortgage or deed of trust without the joinder of the holder of the notes secured thereby. Said application shall not be made prior to the expiration of thirty days from the date the original mortgagee or trustee becomes incompetent to act. (1941, c. 115, s. 1.)

Editor's Note.—For comment on the 1941 enactment, see 19 N. C. Law Rev. 507.

§ 45-12. Certificate by clerk of superior court.—Whenever the powers set out in § 45-10 shall be exercised the clerk of the superior court shall certify that the instrument has been executed by the owner or owners of a majority in amount of the indebtedness, notes, bonds or other instruments secured therein, have executed the same, and that it has been made to appear to him that the cause of substitution as set forth therein is true and that the substituted trustee is a fit and proper person or corporation to perform the duties of said trust, and unless such certificate is attached to said instrument before registration and registered therewith the same shall be invalid and of no effect. (1931, c. 78, s. 3.)

§ 45-13. Right of appeal by any person interested; judge to review findings of clerk de novo.—Whenever the power contained in § 45-10 or in § 45-11 is exercised in respect to any deed of trust, mortgage or other instrument creating the lien which was executed prior to March 4,

1931, then, at any time within twelve months from the registration of the instrument designating the new trustee but within thirty days from actual knowledge of the same, any person interested therein may appeal from the findings of the clerk of the superior court pursuant to § 45-12, and such appeal shall be duly constituted when a written notice signed by, or on behalf of such person, shall have been served in any of the methods of service of summons provided by law on all other parties interested therein, including the said substituted trustee. The notice shall state that a motion will be made before the judge of the superior court of the county of the clerk who made such certificate at the next regular term of such superior court beginning more than ten days after the service of said notice on all interested parties, and the docketing of such notices on the civil issue docket of said county. On the hearing of said motion it shall be open to all parties to contest and defend the findings of said clerk, and the judge shall review said findings de novo and make such findings in respect thereof as shall appear to him from the evidence to be true, and if the said substituted trustee shall be removed at said hearing another trustee shall be substituted in his stead by the court upon a finding that he or it is a proper person or corporation to perform the functions of said trusteeship, but only one such appeal shall be allowed as to each appointment. (1931, c. 78, s. 4; 1941, c. 115, s. 2.)

Editor's Note.—The 1941 amendment inserted the reference to § 45-11.

§ 45-14. Acts of trustee prior to removal not invalidated. — If any such trustee who has been substituted as provided in § 45-10 or in § 45-11 shall have performed any functions as such trustee and shall thereafter be removed as provided in §§ 45-10 to 45-17, such removal shall not invalidate or affect the validity of such acts in so far as any purchaser or third person shall be affected or interested, and any conveyances made by such trustee before removal if otherwise valid, shall be and remain valid and effectual to all intents and purposes, but if any trustee upon such hearing is declared to have been wrongfully removed, he shall have his right of action against the substituted trustee for any compensation that he would have received in case he had not been wrongfully removed from such trust. (1931, c. 78, s. 5; 1941, c. 115, s. 3.)

Editor's Note.—The 1941 amendment inserted the reference to § 45-11.

§ 45-15. Registration of substitution constructive notice.—The registration of such paper writing designating a new trustee under § 45-10 or under § 45-11 shall be from and after registration, constructive notice to all persons, and no appeal or other proceedings shall be instituted to contest the same after one year from and after such registration. (1931, c. 78, s. 6; 1941, c. 115, s. 4.)

Editor's Note.—The 1941 amendment inserted the reference to § 45-11.

§ 45-16. Register of deeds to make marginal entry of substituted trustee.—Whenever any substituted trustee shall be appointed as provided in §§ 45-10 to 45-17 and such designation of such substituted trustee shall have been registered, together with the certificates required in §§ 45-10 to 45-17, then it shall be the duty of the register of deeds to make an appropriate notation on the margin of the registration of the said mortgage, deed of trust, or other instrument securing the payment of money, indicating the place of registration of such appointment of a substituted trustee, and this shall be done as many times as a trustee may be substituted as provided for in §§ 45-10 to 45-17. It shall be competent for the holder of such deed of trust, or deeds of trust, mortgage or mortgages, wherein the same trustee is named, to execute one instrument applying to all such deeds of trust or mortgages, in the substitution of a trustee for any of the causes set forth in § 45-10, and in said instrument to recite and name the mortgages and/or deeds of trust affected by giving the names of the grantors, the trustee and, if registered, the book and page of such registration. This may be done as many times as a trustee may be substituted as provided for in §§ 45-10 to 45-17, and in which cases the register of deeds shall make, as to each recited instrument, mortgage or deed of trust, the notation provided for in this section. (1931, c. 78, s. 7.)

§ 45-17. Substitution made as often as justifiable.—The powers set out in § 45-10 and in § 45-11 may be exercised as often and as many times as the right to make such substitution may arise under the terms of such section, and all the privileges and requirements and rights to contest the same as set out in §§ 45-10 to 45-17 shall apply to each deed of trust or mortgage and to each substitution. (1931, c. 78, s. 8; 1941, c. 115, s. 5.)

Editor's Note.—The 1941 amendment inserted the reference to § 45-11.

§ 45-18. Validation of certain acts of substituted trustees.—Whenever before February 3, 1939, a trustee has been substituted in a deed of trust in the manner provided by §§ 45-10 to 45-17, but the instrument executed by the holder and/or owners of all or a majority in amount of the indebtedness, notes, bonds, or other instruments secured by said deed of trust, and the certificate of the clerk of the superior court executed in connec tion therewith under the provisions of § 45-12, have not been registered as provided by said sections until after the substituted trustee has exercised some or all of the powers conferred by said deed of trust upon the trustee therein, including the advertising of the property conveyed by said deed of trust for sale, the sale thereof, and the execution of a deed by such substituted trustee to the purchaser at such sale, all such acts of said substituted trustee shall be deemed valid and effective in the same manner and to the same extent as if said instrument substituting said trustee, and the clerk's certificate thereon had been registered prior to the performance by said substituted trustee of any one or more of said acts, or other acts authorized by such deed of trust. (1939, c. 13.)

Pending Litigation Not Affected.—This section shall not be construed to affect any litigation pending February 3, 1939, nor to divest vested rights. Public Laws, 1939, c. 13, s. 2.

§ 45-19. Mortgage to guardian; powers pass to succeeding guardian.—When a guardian to whom a mortgage has been executed dies or is removed or resigns before the payment of the debt secured in such mortgage, all the rights, powers and duties of such mortgagee shall devolve upon the succeeding guardian. (Rev., s. 1034; 1905, c. 433; C. S. 2584.)

§ 45-20. Sales by mortgagees and trustees confirmed.—All sales of real property made prior to February tenth, nineteen hundred and five, by mortgagees and trustees under powers of sale contained in any mortgage or deed of trust in compliance with the powers, terms, conditions and advertisement set forth and required in any such mortgage or deed of trust, are hereby in all respects ratified and confirmed. (Ex. Sess. 1920, c. 27; C. S. 2584(a).)

§ 45-20.1. Validation of trustees' deeds where seals omitted.—All deeds executed prior to the first day of January, one thousand nine hundred and forty, by any trustee in the exercise of the power of sale vested in him under any deed, deed of trust, mortgage, will, or other instrument in which the trustee has ommitted to affix his seal after his signature, shall be good and valid: Provided, however, that this section shall not apply to actions instituted and pending prior to the fifteenth day of May, one thousand nine hundred and forty-three. (1943, c. 171.)

§ 45-21. Validation of appointment of and conveyances to corporations as trustees.—In all deeds of trust made prior to March 15, 1941, wherein property has been conveyed to corporations as trustees to secure indebtedness, the appointment of said corporations as trustees, the conveyances to said corporate trustees, and the action taken under the powers of such deeds of trust by said corporate trustees are hereby confirmed and validated to the same extent as if such corporate trustees had been individual trustees. (1941, c. 245, s. 1.)

Editor's Note.—This section, which became effective March 15, 1941, did not apply to or affect pending litigation.

For comment on this enactment, see 19 N. C. Law Rev. 507.

Art. 3. Mortgage Sales.

§ 45-22. Limitation of time for attacking certain foreclosures on ground trustee was agent, etc., of owner of debt.—1. No action or proceeding shall be brought or defense or counterclaim pleaded later than one year after March 14, 1941 in which a foreclosure sale which occurred prior to January 1, 1941, under a deed of trust conveying real estate as security for a debt is attacked or otherwise questioned upon the ground that the trustee was an officer, director, attorney, agent or employee of the owner of the whole or any part of the debt secured thereby, or upon the ground that the trustee and the owner of the debt or any part thereof have common officers, directors, attorneys, agents or employees.

2. This section shall not be construed to give or create any cause of action where none existed before March 14, 1941, nor shall the limitation provided in subsection one hereof have the effect of barring any cause of action based upon grounds other than those mentioned in said section, unless the grounds set out in subsection one are an essential part thereof.

3. This section shall not be construed to enlarge the time in which to bring any action or proceeding or to plead any defense or counterclaim; and the limitation hereby created is in addition to all other limitations now existing. (1941, c. 202.)

§ 45-23. Personal property; notice and place of sale.—All personal property sold under the terms of any mortgage or other contract, expressed or implied, whether advertised in some newspaper or otherwise, shall be advertised by posting a notice at some conspicuous place at the courthouse door in the county where the property is situated, such notice to be posted for at least twenty days before the sale, unless a shorter time be expressed in the contract. (Rev., s. 1042; 1889, c. 70; 1909, c. 49, s. 1; C. S. 2585.)

Cross Reference.—As to advertisement for sale under execution of personal property, see § 1-336.

Strict Compliance with Statute.—In foreclosure proceedings under a power of sale contained in a mortgage, the requirements of the statute and the contract stipulations of the instrument, not inconsistent with the statute in respect to notice and other terms on which the power may be exercised, shall be strictly complied with; and when such has not been done, no title can pass under the sale in respect to the immediate parties thereto. Ferebee v. Sawyer, 167 N. C. 199, 83 S. E. 17.

Same—Notice of Postponement.—But this does not apply when a postponement is had by reason of the sale being enjoined or for other reasonable purposes, for in the absence of statutory or contract provisions to the contrary, a notice of postponement made in good faith, and reasonably calculated to give proper publicity of the time and place, is held sufficient. Ferebee v. Sawyer, 167 N. C. 199, 83 S. E. 17.

Place of Sale Not Affected by This Section.—The place of sale designated in the mortgage controls at what place the sale is to be effected. This rule is not affected by this section which merely provides for the place of notice, and makes no mention of the place of sale. Palmer v. Latham, 173 N. C. 60, 61, 91 S. E. 525.

Section 1-325 Does Not Affect Mortgages under This Section.—Section 1-325 requiring notice under mortgage, etc., for thirty days is, by express terms, prospective in effect and is amended by the Laws of 1909, ch. 705, prescribing publication in a newspaper "once a week for four weeks"; therefore it does not affect mortgages made prior thereto, coming under the provisions of this section requiring that whether advertised in a newspaper or otherwise, the sale "shall be advertised by posting a notice at some conspicuous place at the courthouse door," etc., for twenty days, etc. Jenkins v. Griffin, 175 N. C. 184, 95 S. E. 166.

Presumption of Regularity.—While powers of sale under mortgage are closely scrutinized by the courts and held to the letter of the contract, the law presumes the regularity of the sale in the execution of such powers and places the burden of proof on the party claiming a failure of proper notice or advertisement to show it. Jenkins v. Griffin, 175 N. C. 184, 95 S. E. 166; Cowfield v. Owens, 129 N. C. 286, 288, 40 S. E. 62.

§ 45-24. Foreclosure of conditional sales.—In all sales of personal property wherein the title is retained by the seller to secure the purchase money, or any part thereof, and no power of sale is conferred, and default is made in the payment of said obligation by the purchaser, then in all such cases it is lawful for the owner of such debt thereby secured, without an order of court, to sell such property, or so much thereof as may be necessary to pay off said indebtedness, at public auction for cash, after first giving twenty days notice at three or more public places in the county wherein the sale is to be made, and apply the proceeds of such sale to the discharge of said debt, interest on the same, and costs of foreclosure, and pay any surplus to the person legally entitled thereto. Before making any such sale, in addition to the advertisement above required, the owner of said debt shall, at least ten days before the day of sale, mail a copy of the notice of sale to the last known postoffice address of the original purchaser or his assigns. (1913, c. 60, s. 1; C. S. 2587.)

Cross References.—As to registration of conditional sales of personal property, see §§ 47-23, 47-24. As to conditional sales contracts of corporations, see § 55-43.

A contract for the sale of personal property, retaining title in the vendor until the purchase price has been paid, without express power of sale therein, comes under the provisions of this section, as if written in the contract, and gives to the vendor the right to sell the property in default of payment of the purchase price, or part thereof, without the consent of court, upon certain advertisement specified in the statute; and it is reversible error for the court to charge the jury that the vendor could not sell the property without the consent of the purchaser. House v. Parker, 181 N. C. 40, 106 S. E. 137.

§ 45-25. Real property; notice of sale must describe premises.—In sales of real estate under deeds of trust or mortgages it is the duty of the trustee or mortgagee making such sale to fully describe the premises in the notice required by law substantially as the same is described in the deed of authority under which said trustee or mortgagee makes such sale. (Rev., s. 1043; 1895, c. 294; C. S. 2588.)

Cross Reference.—As to requirements for advertisement in execution and judicial sales, see § 1-325 et seq.

The purpose and intent of this section was to give complete and full notice to the public of the land to be sold, so that the public generally would know and understand from the advertisement the exact property offered for sale. Douglas v. Rhodes, 188 N. C. 580, 583, 125 S. E. 261.

The Word "Substantially."—In Douglas v. Rhodes, 188 N. C. 580, 583, 125 S. E. 261, the court said: "If the Legislature had intended that the real estate (set forth by metes and bounds in the deed of trust in the present case) in a deed of trust or mortgage should be described by metes and bounds when advertised for sale under the terms of the deed of trust or mortgage, it could have easily said so in the statute, but on the contrary it used the word 'substantially.' The word 'substantially,' Webster defines to mean: 'In a substantial manner, in substance, essentially.' It does not mean an accurate or exact copy."

In notices for the sale of realty under mortgages or deeds of trust, the identical description of the land, as contained in the instrument, is not required by this section and a description "substantially" as in the conveyance is sufficient. Peedin v. Oliver, 222 N. C. 665, 24 S. E. (2d) 519.

Same—Sufficient Description. — Advertisements for the sale of land under foreclosure of mortgage or deed of trust are required by this section to describe the lands "substantially" as in the conveyance thereof; and while it may be more advisable to give the exact description, the deed made in pursuance thereof is not necessarily void for lack of such description, as where the land is designated as a well-known and certain tract, or place of business, or manufacturing plant, with reference to the book in the office of the register of deeds where the description is given, with number of page, etc., for a more particular description, it is a sufficient description of the land and will convey the title if the notice of such has been published in accordance with the terms of a mortgage or deed in trust. Douglas v. Rhodes, 188 N. C. 580, 125 S. E. 261. See Blount v. Basnight, 209 N. C. 268, 183 S. E. 405.

Applicable to Deed of Trust or Mortgage.—Under a fair construction of this section, it is applicable to a sale under the power in a deed of trust or mortgage. The notice required by law under the statute would be the notice in the deed of trust or mortgage. Douglas v. Rhodes, 188 N. C. 580, 582, 125 S. E. 261.

§ 45-26. Real property; power of sale barred when foreclosure barred.—The power of sale of real property contained in any mortgage or deed of trust for the benefit of creditors shall become inoperative, and no person shall execute any such power, when an action to foreclose such mortgage or deed of trust for the benefit of creditors would be barred by the statute of limitations: Provided, if a sale of real property is made under a power of sale in a deed of trust or mortgage within the time allowed by the statute of limitations for the commencement of an action to foreclose such mortgage or deed of trust, regardless of whether there is or is not a resale after the filing of a raised or increased bid or bids, this section shall not operate to prevent the execution and delivery of a deed in consummation of such sale pursuant to power of sale after the expiration of the time provided by said statute of limitations. (Rev., s. 1044; 1943, c. 16, s. 1; C. S. 2589.)

Cross Reference.—As to statute of limitations on foreclosure, see § 1-47, paragraph 3.

Editor's Note.—The 1943 amendment added the proviso.

This section is not a mere statute of limitation, and need not be pleaded by a party whose rights may be affected. It simply destroys, by direct prohibition, the authority of any power of sale made in the mortgage contract or conveyance. Spain v. Hines, 214 N. C. 432, 434, 200 S. E. 25. For note on this case, see 17 N. C. L. Rev. 448.

Construction.—This section must be construed in the light of its purpose, which appears to be to give as complete relief against foreclosure by power of sale as has been given against foreclosure by action, in § 1-47. Spain v. Hines, 214 N. C. 432, 435, 200 S. E. 25.

Where reasonable doubt exists as to the interpretation of this section, it should be strictly construed against the exercise of the power of foreclosure and the doubt resolved in favor of the holder of the equitable title. Id.

Applicable to Contracts in Existence at Enactment.—This section is applicable to those contracts which existed at the time of its becoming operative; but, as to those, it only affected an existing remedy, which does not impair the obligations of the contract, when a reasonable time has elapsed thereafter within which the action could have been instituted. Graves v. Howard, 159 N. C. 594, 75 S. E. 998.

Subject to Ten-Year Limitation.—While formerly there was no bar to the execution of a power of sale contained in a mortgage of lands, mortgages then executed are made subject to the ten-year statute, by this section. Jenkins v. Griffin, 175 N. C. 184, 95 S. E. 166.

The power of sale may be exercised at any time within ten years after maturity of any note secured. E. H. & J. A. Meadows Co. v. Bryan, 195 N. C. 398, 142 S. E. 487.

The provisions of § 1-47, par. 3, relating to the bar of actions to foreclose must be read into this section and it appears that a power of sale contained in a mortgage becomes inoperative and unenforceable when not exercised within ten years after the forfeiture of the mortgage, or after the power of sale became absolute, or within ten years after the last payment on the same "where the mortgagor or grantor has been in possession of the property." Ownbey v. Parkway Properties, 222 N. C. 54, 55, 21 S. E. (2d) 900.

Where notes secured by a mortgage are barred by the statute of limitations, and the power of sale contained in the instrument is barred by the lapse of over ten years from the date of the last payment on the notes, the trustee's contention that the mortgagor would have to pay the amount of the notes in order to be entitled to the equitable relief of restraining the foreclosure on the principle that he who seeks equity must do equity, is unavailing. Serls v. Gibbs, 205 N. C. 246, 171 S. E. 56.

Where notes are given in series, secured by a mortgage on lands providing that upon the nonpayment at maturity of each as they became due all of them were to become due and payable, it is at the option of the mortgagee to enforce the sale upon the happening of the event specified, and when the mortgagee has not exercised his option, the statute of limitations would apply as from the due date of each note in the series, as if the provision for the acceleration of the payment had not been incorporated in the mortgage. And where more than ten years had elapsed since the maturity of some of the notes recovery therein was barred under this section and § 1-47, subsection 3. E. H. & J. A. Meadows Co. v. Bryan, 195 N. C. 398, 142 S. E. 487.

When it does not appear that the mortgagee in a mortgage on lands securing the payment of notes in series has exercised his option to foreclose under a provision making all the notes payable upon the failure of the maker to pay any of them at maturity, the presumption is that he has waived his right to do so, but it will not be held, on that account, that his right to foreclose under the power of sale therein contained is barred. E. H. & J. A. Meadows Co. v. Bryan, 195 N. C. 398, 142 S. E. 487.

Running of Statute on Installment Debts.—Where a debt is made payable in two installments, maturing at different times, the creditor may elect to wait to sue till the second installment is due, and the statute of limitations will not begin to run until that time. Cone v. Hyatt, 132 N. C. 810, 44 S. E. 678.

Limitation When Power of Sale for Default of Interest Optional.—The statute of limitations does not begin to run upon default in payment of annual interest upon the principal, when the power of sale contained in the mortgage is optional with the mortgagee upon default of either interest or principal of the debt. Scott v. Blades Lumber Co., 144 N. C. 44, 56 S. E. 548.

Statute Does Not Commence Running until Debt Due.— The statute of limitations does not begin to run against the principal of a mortgage of lands until it is due, and the power of sale contained in the mortgage may be exercised within ten years after the maturity of the principal. Scott v. Blades Lumber Co., 144 N. C. 44, 56 S. E. 548.

Doctrine of Cone v. Hyatt, Changed by Section. — The holding in Cone v. Hyatt, 132 N. C. 810, 44 S. E. 678, that the power of sale in a deed of trust or mortgage is not barred by the statute of limitation, though an action for foreclosure thereon is barred, is changed by this secton. See also Lester Piano Co. v. Loven, 207 N. C. 96, 101, 176 S. E. 290.

Prohibition of Section Not Deferred by Partial Exercise. —The power of sale referred to in this section, and the power upon which the section operates, is not merely the power to effect the executory contract or sale by advertising and "selling" at public auction, but the power to transfer the property to the purchaser by observance of the legal steps provided by law, and the prohibition of the section is not deferred by its partial exercise. Spain v. Hines, 214 N. C. 432, 436, 200 S. E. 25. It should be noted that this case was decided before the 1943 amendment.

Forclosure Deed Is Voidable Merely.—A foreclosure deed executed pursuant to a sale held after the power of sale is barred by this section is voidable and not void. Edwards v. Hair, 215 N. C. 662, 2 S. E. (2d) 859.

Burden of Proof.—An instruction that the burden was on defendant, the purchaser at the sale, to prove that the power of sale was not barred at the time of foreclosure, is error, the burden being upon plaintiff to prove that the foreclosure deed, attacked by her, was inoperative. Edwards v. Hair, 215 N. C. 662, 2 S. E. (2d) 859.

Applied in In re Gibbs, 205 N. C. 312, 171 S. E. 55.

Stated in Demai v. Tart, 221 N. C. 106, 19 S. E. (2d) 130.

Cited in Ownbey v. Parkway Properties, 221 N. C. 27, 18 S. E. (2d) 710.

§ 45-26.1. Real property; validation of deeds made after expiration of statute of limitations where sales made prior thereto.—In all cases where sales of real property have been made under powers of sale contained in mortgages or deeds of trust and such sales have been made within the times which would have been allowed by the statute of limitations for the commencement of actions to foreclose such mortgages or deeds of trust, and the execution and delivery of deeds in consummation of such sales have been delayed until after the expiration of the period which would have been allowed by the statute of limitations for the commencement of actions to foreclose such mortgages or deeds of trust as a result of the filing of raised or increased bids, such deeds in the exercise of the power of sale are hereby validated and are declared to have the same effect as if they had been executed and delivered within the period allowed by the statute of limitations for the commencement of actions to foreclose such mortgages or deeds of trust. (1943, c. 16, s. 2.)

§ 45-27. Land lying in two or more counties; place of sale.—When a mortgage or deed in trust conveying lands lying partly in two or more counties confers upon the mortgagee or mortgagees, trustee or trustees, therein named, any power for the sale of such lands, without naming the place of sale, or conferring upon such mortgagee or mortgagees, trustee or trustees, the right to select the same, in the exercise of such power, any sale thereunder may be made at the courthouse door of any one of the counties in which such lands are situate, and at no other place except as hereinafter provided; but when such lands consist of two or more detached parcels, lying wholly within the limits of different counties, the sale of each and every one of such parcels shall be made at the courthouse door of the county in which the same is situate. (1911, c. 165, s. 1; C. S. 2590.)

§ 45-28. Reopening judicial sales, etc., on advanced bid.—In the foreclosure of mortgages or deeds of trust on real estate, or by order of court in foreclosure proceedings either in the superior court or in actions at law, or in the case of the public sale of real estate by an executor, administrator, or administrator with the will annexed, or by any person by virtue of the power contained in a will or sale under execution duly issued, the sale shall not be deemed to be closed under ten days. A report of such sale shall be filed in the office of the clerk of the superior court within five days from the date thereof: Provided, that failure to file such report prescribed shall not invalidate said sale. If in ten days from the date of the sale, the sale price is increased ten per cent where the price does not exceed five hundred dollars, and five per cent where the price exceeds five hundred dollars, and the same is paid to the clerk of the superior court, the mortgagee, trustee, executor, or person offering the real estate for sale shall reopen the sale of said property and advertise the same in the same manner as in the first instance. It shall only be necessary to give fifteen days' notice of a resale. The clerk may, in his discretion, require the person making such advance bid to execute a good and sufficient bond in a sufficient amount to guarantee compliance with the terms of sale should the person offering the advance bid be declared the purchaser at the resale. Where the bid or offer is raised as prescribed herein, and the amount paid to the clerk, he shall issue an order to the mortgagee or other person and require him to advertise and resell said real estate. Resales may be had as often as the bid may be raised in compliance with this section. Upon the final sale of the real estate, the clerk shall issue his order to the mortgagee or other person, and require him to make title to the purchaser. If upon any resale the person making an advance bid or his agent shall become the last and highest bidder at such resale and upon confirmation of his bid shall fail to comply therewith within ten days, the clerk shall order a resale of the property; and in such event the deposit made with the clerk of said court shall be forfeited as damages for failure to comply with the bid at such resale and shall be applied, under order of the clerk, first to the payment of all costs and expenses in advertising and conducting the resale, and the balance of said deposit, if any, shall be applied as a credit on the indebtedness on account of which the sale was authorized: Provided, however, that no such forfeiture shall be allowed if, at the resale ordered because of such failure to comply, the property shall sell for an amount equal to or more than said advance bid so offered but not complied with, plus the costs of such resale. The clerk shall make all such orders as may be just and necessary to safeguard the interest of all parties, and he shall keep a record which will show in detail the amount of each bid, the purchase price, and the final settlement between parties. This section shall not apply to the foreclosure of mortgages or deeds of trust executed prior to April first, nineteen hundred and fifteen. (1915, c. 146; 1917, c. 127, ss. 3, 4; 1919, c. 124; 1929, c. 16; 1931, c. 69; 1933, c. 482; 1939, cc. 36, 397; C. S. 2591.)

Cross Reference.—See §§ 28-92 and 28-93 for application of this section in sales of realty in connection with the administration of estates.

Editor's Note.—The meaning of the 1931 amendment is not entirely clear. The act of 1929 inserted the words "or by order of court in foreclosure proceedings in the Superior Court." The 1931 amendment repeals the former and inserts the words "or by order of court in foreclosure proceedings either in the Superior Court or in actions at law." While a proceeding for foreclosure must be in the Superior Court and is an equitable remedy under the former practice, the distinction between actions at law and suits in equity is abolished, and the remedy is by a civil action.

Until 1933, there was no provision in § 45-28 for the raising of a bid in an execution sale. The 1927 amendment to § 1-326, dealing with advertisement for resales, refers to sales under execution. However, the court apparently did not regard this reference as sufficient, in the absence of an express provision in § 45-28, to authorize raised bids in execution sales. See Weir v. Weir, 196 N. C. 268, 145 S. E. 281. By Public Laws 1933, c. 482, execution sales were expressly added to the classes of sales in which upset bids are authorized under § 45-28.

The first 1939 amendment inserted the second sentence. The second 1939 amendment inserted the ninth sentence.

See 13 N. C. Law Rev. 15, 300.

Liberal Construction—Time of Making Deposit on Advanced Bid.—While the clerk of the Superior Court is without authority to order a resale of lands foreclosed under mortgage without an increase bid filed with him under the provisions of this section, and the payment of the deposit required, the provisions of the statute relating thereto are to be liberally construed to effectuate its intent to protect the mortgagor, and when within the statutory time limit the offerer has communicated with the clerk of the court by phone and offered to come from an adjacent town and make a sufficient deposit, and is informed by the clerk that it would be sufficient to send a cashier's check by mail on that day, and a good cashier's check is accordingly mailed, a substantial compliance with the statute has been made, though the check was received by the clerk after the expiration of the time limit of the statute. Clayton Banking Co. v. Green, 197 N. C. 534, 149 S. E. 689.

Deposit to Secure Bid within Court's Discretion.—In a suit to foreclose a mortgage an order of the trial court that the bidder at the sale or resales be required to secure his bid before acceptance of the same, is within the sound discretion of the trial court, and is not affected by this section. Koonce v. Fort, 205 N. C. 413, 171 S. E. 367.

Purpose of Deposit on Advanced Bid.—The deposit required by this section is to guarantee against loss in a resale of land under foreclosure sale of a mortgage, and where the clerk of the Superior Court has required of a person placing an advance bid a deposit representing a five per cent increase bid, and in addition a deposit to guarantee compliance with the bid, under the statute, and the lands are resold and bought in by the one making the advance bid, and he refuses to pay the amount because of threatened litigation, and the lands are again resold and bring a surplus over that of the prior resale, there has been no loss occasioned by the first resale, and the person making the deposit therefor is entitled to receive it back as against the claim therefor of one holding a note secured by a junior mortgage on the same property. Harris v. American Bank & Trust Co., 198 N. C. 605, 152 S. E. 802.

Estoppel to Set up Irregularities in Foreclosure Proceedings.—Where the trustee in a deed of trust proceeds to advertise and foreclose the land under the terms of the instrument, and upon request of the trustor, continues the sale from day to day for about a month in order to give the trustor time in which to raise the money to pay off the lien, and the trustor is present at the time of the first continuance of the sale and at the time of the actual sale, and made no objection thereto, and failed to raise the bid within ten days, and thereafter the purchaser at the sale transfers to a bona fide purchaser without notice, the trustor is estopped as against the bona fide purchaser without notice to set up his claim to the land on the grounds of alleged irregularity in the foreclosure proceedings. Phipps v. Wyatt, 199 N. C. 727, 155 S. E. 721.

Confirmation of Sale Not Subject to Collateral Attack.—In an action to recover the balance due on mortgage notes after foreclosure, confirmation of the sale by the clerk, under this section, and application of the proceeds to the notes, cannot be collaterally attacked in plaintiff's action to recover the deficiency after foreclosure. First Carolina's Joint-Stock Land Bank v. Stewart, 208 N. C. 139, 179 S. E. 463.

Authority of Clerk—Exception to Distribution or Proceeds.—The only authority conferred by this section on the clerk is to order a resale of the property where the bid has been raised as therein prescribed, and where there are a first and second mortgage upon such lands, foreclosed under the second, an exception to the distribution of the proceeds is untenable, the remedy, if any, being by independent action. In re Bauguess, 196 N. C. 278, 145 S. E. 395.

Same—Amount of Commission Allowed.—Where lands have been sold under a power of sale in a deed of trust, and under this section the amount it brought at the sale has been raised, it is within the authority of the clerk of the court to allow the commission provided for in the deed to the extent of the advanced price, when reasonable, against the claim of subsequent lienors or claimants. In re Hollowell Land, 194 N. C. 222, 139 S. E. 769.

Power and Authority of Clerk.—This section does not require that the sale of land under mortgage or deed in trust be reported to the clerk of the court until an advanced bid has been properly made. Pringle v. Building, etc., Ass'n, 182 N. C. 316, 108 S. E. 914. See also In re Sermon's Land, 182 N. C. 122, 128, 108 S. E. 497; Dillingham v. Gardner, 219 N. C. 227, 13 S. E. (2d) 478; Peedin v. Oliver, 222 N. C. 665, 24 S. E. (2d) 519.

While under the provisions of this section, it is required that the clerk order title to be conveyed to the purchaser at the final resale, semble, this order is merely ministerial when the resale has been made in accordance with the statute in other respects, and the omission may be supplied by the clerk making the order nunc pro tunc, and the deed accordingly made will convey the title to the purchaser. Lawrence v. Beck, 185 N. C. 196, 116 S. E. 424.

The supervisory powers invested in the clerk of the court over sales under a mortgage, deed of trust, etc., are not those of general control as exercised by the courts in case of an ordinary judicial sale, but confined by the statute to sales, and resales under the power of sale contained in the instruments, and in accordance with the directions of the statute. Lawrence v. Beck, 185 N. C. 196, 116 S. E. 424.

The supervisory powers given the clerks of the Superior Courts by this section apply to sales and resales under the power of sale contained in mortgages and deeds of trust and not to ordinary judicial sales, and the statute must be strictly complied with. Redfern v. McGrady, 199 N. C. 128, 154 S. E. 3.

Notwithstanding ten days have elapsed from the date of the sale, at the time the increased bid was made, the clerk has the power, in his discretion, to order a resale, without waiting for the expiration of twenty days within which parties to the proceeding might file exceptions to the sale Vance v. Vance, 203 N. C. 667, 668, 166 S. E. 901.

The order of the clerk to deliver title required by this section is, however, merely ministerial in its nature, and its omission, when in fact the trustee has, after complying with all the terms of the power of sale contained in the deed of trust, made title to the purchaser, does not invalidate the foreclosure, or render the title acquired by the purchaser as grantee in the deed of the trustee void, solely, for that reason. Cheek v. Squires, 200 N. C. 661, 668, 158 S. E. 198.

By this section, the clerk has the power to make an allowance to the mortgagee or trustee for his services in making the sale, to be retained by him from the proceeds of the sale. From an order making such allowance, a party interested in the land or in the proceeds of the sale, may appeal to the judge, who upon such appeal may affirm, reverse or modify the order of the clerk; in the absence of such appeal, the order of the clerk is final and conclusive. Tidewater Brokerage Co. v. Southern Trust Co., 203 N. C. 182, 183, 165 S. E. 353.

Same—Effect of Cash Stipulated at First Sale.—Under the provisions of this section, the clerk of the court has no jurisdiction, except to order a resale of land sold under the power of sale of a mortgage, when, within the ten days required by the statute, the bid at the sale has been raised; and a mere statement made at the foreclosure sale that the purchase price be paid in cash upon confirmation, implies only that the cash would be required if the bid should not be raised in the amount and time prescribed by law. In re Mortgage Sale of Ware Property, 178 N. C. 693, 122 S. E. 660.

Same—Where Property Injured within Ten Day Period.—This section controls as to ordering a resale of lands sold under a power of sale contained in a mortgage or deed of trust, and confers no power on the clerk to make such order, unless within the ten days allowed there shall be an increased bid, etc., and does not extend to instances wherein a material loss has been sustained by destruction of a house on the lands, within the stated period. In re Sermon's Land, 182 N. C. 122, 108 S. E. 497.

Where the mortgaged premises has been materially diminished in value by the loss by fire of a house thereon, which has been sold under a power contained in the instrument, the bidder at such sale having no title or right of possession, or control over the property for its preservation or protection, within ten days provided by this section, the loss occurring within that time falls on the owner, and the preferred bidder is not chargeable therewith, or required by law to take the property at the price he had bid therefor. In re Sermon's Land, 182 N. C. 122, 108 S. E. 497.

Same—When Supervisory Power Begins. — The clerk of the court acquires supervisory power of the sale of land under power contained in a mortgage or deed of trust from the time of an advanced bid paid into his hands, under the provisions of this section, which continues until after the final sale under foreclosure. Lawrence v. Beck, 185 N. C. 196, 116 S. E. 424.

Same—Order Accepting Mortgagor's Deed.—Where a resale of lands under mortgage has been made under the provisions of this section, the clerk may enter an order accepting the mortgagor's deed nunc pro tunc as to the time it should have been tendered, when otherwise the observance of the statute had been made. Briggs v. Asheville Developers, 191 N. C. 784, 133 S. E. 3.

Section Incorporated in Mortgages and Deeds of Trust.—The provisions of this section, concerning the sale of land under a power thereof contained in a mortgage or deed of trust, enter into and control the sale under such instruments. In re Sermon's Land, 182 N. C. 122, 108 S. E. 497.

Status Under Section of Mortgage and Deeds of Trust Sales.—Under this section a sale of land under the power in a mortgage or deed of trust is given the same status as if made under a judgment or decree of court. Pringle v. Building, etc., Ass'n, 182 N. C. 316, 108 S. E. 914.

Purpose of Section as to Mortgagors.—This section was intended for the protection of mortgagors where sales are made under a power of sale without a decree of foreclosure by the court. In the latter cases there was always an equity to decree a resale when a substantial raise in the bid, usually 10 per cent., had been deposited in court. There being no such protection as to mortgages with power of sale, this statute was passed to extend to mortgagors, whose property had been sold under power of sale without a decree of foreclosure, the same opportunity of a resale when there has been an increased bill of 10 per cent. when the bid at the first sale did not exceed $500, and of 5 per cent. when the bid of the first sale was more than $500. Pringle v. Building, etc., Ass'n, 182 N. C. 316, 317, 108 S. E. 914.

Irregularity in Conveyance—Time to Keep Sale Open. — Where a trust deed to secure money loaned on lands has been foreclosed, this section requires the sale to be kept open for ten days for the tender of increased bids, etc., but where it appears that an irregularity in conveying the land before the expiration of the statutory time could not have prejudiced any of the parties, they are concluded by the judgment upholding the validity of the transaction. Wise v. Short, 181 N. C. 320, 107 S. E. 134.

No Specific Performance When Sale Reopened.—The principle upon which specific performance of a binding contract to convey lands is enforceable, has no application to the successful bidder at a sale under the power contained in a mortgage or deed of trust of lands, during the ten days allowed by this section, for, within that time, there is no binding contract of purchase, and the bargain is incomplete. In re Sermon's Land, 182 N. C. 122, 108 S. E. 497.

Title of the Bidder.—Under the provisions of this section, the bidder at the sale during the period of ten days acquires no interest in the property itself, but only a position similar to a bidder at a judicial sale, before confirmation. He is only considered as a preferred bidder, his right depending upon whether there is an increased bid and a resale of the land ordered under the provisions of the statute. In re Sermon's Land, 182 N. C. 122, 108 S. E. 497. See Richmond County v. Simmons, 209 N. C. 250, 183 S. E. 282.

When in special proceeding to sell real property to create assets with which to pay debts of a decedent an order for private sale is made by any superior court, whether the bid be raised under authority of this section as therein prescribed, or motion be made by party interested in the proceeds for an order of resale under § 28-93, it clearly appears that a private sale is open to either course for ten days from the date and report of sale. During that period the bidder acquires no right of possession or title. He is merely a preferred bidder. Howard v. Ray, 222 N. C. 710, 24 S. E. (2d) 529.

Sale Not Consummated until Expiration of Ten Days.—A last and highest bidder at a foreclosure sale is but a proposed purchaser or preferred bidder during the ten days allowed by statute for an increase in the bid, and the sale cannot be consummated until after the expiration of ten days after the public auction. Shelby Bldg., etc., Ass'n v. Black, 215 N. C. 400, 2 S. E. (2d) 6.

Rights of Highest Bidder—Payment of Mortgage within Ten Days Period.—The last highest bidder at a foreclosure sale of a mortgage on lands is but a proposed purchaser under this section acquiring no right until the statutory provision of ten days has expired, and the payment of the full mortgage indebtedness to the mortgagee within that time cancels the instrument and all rights arising thereunder. In such case no recovery of damages can be had by the bidder against the mortgagor or a purchase from him to whom the equity of redemption has been conveyed. Cherry v. Gilliam, 195 N. C. 233, 141 S. E. 594.

The one who is the last and highest bidder at the foreclosure of a mortgage or deed of trust on lands is but a proposed purchaser within the ten days before confirmation, and where the mortgagee has become such purchaser and within ten days allowed by statute for an increase bid a third person pays the mortgage debt and has the notes and mortgage assigned to him, such person has the right of lien and foreclosure under the terms of the mortgage securing the note. Davis v. Central Life Ins. Co., 197 N. C. 617, 150 S. E. 120.

Same—Revocation of Order for Deed.—Under this section it is the duty of the clerk of the Superior Court to readvertise and resell the mortgaged property as often as the statute is complied with, and the last and highest bidder at a prior sale acquires no rights in the property until his bid has finally been accepted and the order made for the deed to be made to him; and such order having been made by the clerk prematurely, it is proper for him to make an entry revoking it and order a resale, and an injunction will not lie to restrain the resale where the order has been thus revoked and the statute complied with. Hanna v. Carolina Mortgage Co., 197 N. C. 184, 148 S. E. 31.

Assignment of Bid.—While the last and highest bidder at a sale under a mortgage acquires no title until the expiration of the ten-day period, he is a preferred bidder and may assign his bid, but his assignee takes only such interest as he had. Creech v. Wilder, 212 N. C. 162, 193 S. E. 281.

Rights of Owner of Equity of Redemption.—Where lands have been many times resold under this section and the owner of the equity of redemption has not protected himself at the sales, he may not have the deed at the final foreclosure sale set aside for irregularity when the last purchaser is an innocent purchaser for value in good faith. Brown v. Sheets, 197 N. C. 268, 148 S. E. 233.

Deposit of Advanced Bid with Clerk.—Under the facts of this case presenting the question of a valid resale of mortgaged land under the provisions of this section, objection that only two per cent. of the proposed advanced bid was deposited with the clerk was untenable. Briggs v. Asheville Developers, 191 N. C. 784, 133 S. E. 3.

Keeping Open for Ten Days—Purchasers Title.—Under the provisions of this section as to resale of mortgaged lands upon a raised bid, it is required that the matter be kept open by the clerk for ten days thereafter, in order that the purchaser thereof may acquire title. Briggs v. Asheville Developers, 191 N. C. 784, 133 S. E. 3.

Recitals in Deed as to Compliance with Section Prima Facie.—Where the question in controversy in a suit for specific performance against the purchaser, is whether there has been a compliance with this section as to a resale under a mortgage upon the raise of a bid at a prior sale, the recitals relating thereto in the deed tendered by the mortgagor are only prima facie evidence of such facts, and alone are insufficient to sustain the judgment. Briggs v. Asheville Developers, 191 N. C. 784, 133 S. E. 3.

Where a resale is ordered the bidder at the first sale is released from any and all obligation by reason of his bid. Richmond County v. Simmons, 209 N. C. 250, 251, 183 S. E. 282.

Striking Out Order for Resale.—Where, on account of an upset bid, an order for a resale has been entered, it is error, eleven days thereafter to strike out such order and declare the sale final in prejudice of further rights of mortgagors. Va. Trust Co. v. Powell, 189 N. C. 372, 127 S. E. 242.

There is nothing in the statute which deprives the court of its power to prescribe the terms upon which land or other property shall be sold under its orders, judgments or decrees. Koonce v. Fort, 204 N. C. 426, 430, 168 S. E. 672.

Deposit When No Upset Bid Is Made.—Under the provisions of this section the last and highest bidder at a foreclosure sale obtains no interest in the land until the elapse of the ten-day period for the filing of an increased bid, and although the mortgagee or trustee may, in fixing the terms of the sale, require a reasonable cash deposit to cover the cost of the sale and insure completion of the sale by the purchaser if no upset bid is made, the reasonableness of such deposit may be determined by analogy to the deposit required for an upset bid, and a demand for a cash deposit at the sale amounting to twenty-five per cent of the bid is unreasonable. Alexander v. Boyd, 204 N. C. 103, 167 S. E. 462.

Recovery of Deposit.—Where the last and highest bidder at a sale of lands under decree of foreclosure has been required under order of court to deposit a certain per cent of his bid in cash to show his good faith, he is entitled to receive his deposit back upon the entering of an order of resale by the clerk under the provisions of this section, upon the placing of an advanced bid and cash deposit by another. Koonce v. Fort, 204 N. C. 426, 168 S. E. 672.

Commissions Allowed.—Upon the ordering by the clerk of a resale pursuant to this section, the original sale, under the power, becomes a nullity, and that part of the instrument providing a certain per cent as selling commission to the mortgagee or trustee is inoperative; and in lieu thereof he is entitled only to the costs and expenses of the sale and such sum to compensate him for his services actually rendered as may be approved by the clerk, subject to review on appeal, or by the court direct where a restraining order has issued. Pringle v. Building, etc., Ass'n, 182 N. C. 316, 108 S. E. 914.

Jurisdiction of Judge on Appeal.—The discretion vested in the superior court judge on appeal from the clerk, sec. 1-276, to hear and determine the matter in controversy, unless it appear to him that justice would be more cheaply or speedily administered by remanding it to the clerk, can not confer jurisdiction on the judge to pass upon the reasonableness of the price of land sold under the power of sale in a mortgage, wherein the clerk has no authority under this section, to further pass thereon in the absence of an increased bid. In re Mortgage Sale of Ware Property, 187 N. C. 693, 122 S. E. 660.

§ 45-29. Surplus after sale to be paid to clerk, in certain cases.—It is competent for any trustee or mortgagee who sells any real, personal or mixed property under the power of sale contained in any deed of trust or mortgage of any kind and who has in his hands any surplus money, after paying the debt or debts secured by such deed of trust or mortgage and costs and expenses of such sale, to pay into the office of the clerk of the superior court of the county where the sale was had, any surplus moneys in his hands as aforesaid in all cases where the grantor in such deed of trust or mortgage is dead and there is no executor or administrator of his estate, and in all other cases where such trustee or mortgage is, for any cause, in doubt as to who is the proper party or parties to whom to pay such surplus moneys. Such payment to the clerk shall have the effect to discharge such trustee or mortgagee from all liability to the extent of the amount so paid. The clerk shall receive such money from such trustee or mortgagee and execute a receipt for the same under the seal of his office. The failure of any clerk, however, to place his seal upon such receipt shall not invalidate the receipt if it bears the genuine signature of the clerk. The official bond of such clerk shall be responsible for the safe keeping of such moneys until the same shall be paid to the party or parties entitled thereto, or be paid out under the order of a court of competent jurisdiction. (1913, c. 15, ss. 1, 2; C. S. 2592.)

See note under § 45-28.

Alternatives of Mortgagee.—Where the owner of lands has mortgaged the same during his life as tracts numbered 1 and 2, and has later conveyed tract No. 2 to a purchaser in fee simple, and has devised tract No. 1 for life with remainder over, it was held, that the mortgagee should hold the proceeds of the sale after the satisfaction of his mortgage for the life tenant and remaindermen, who may determine whether the surplus be invested in accordance with their equities, or the interest of the life tenant be paid in cash under the provisions of sec. 8-47, or the mortgagee may relieve himself of liability by paying the fund into court pursuant to this section. Brown v. Jennings, 188 N. C. 155, 124 S. E. 150.

Statute of Limitations Need Not Be Pleaded.—Section 1-15 applies to actions wherein formal pleadings are required to be filed and not to proceedings in the nature of a controversy without action upon an agreed statement of facts for the distribution of funds arising from a foreclosure sale under this section and § 45-30, the rights of the parties being determined in accordance with the admitted facts. In re Gibbs, 205 N. C. 312, 171 S. E. 55.

§ 45-30. Special proceedings to determine ownership of surplus.—Special proceedings may be instituted before the clerk of the superior court to determine who is the rightful party to whom any fund paid into his office under § 45-29 shall be paid. All persons claiming an interest in such funds shall be made parties, and if an answer is filed raising issues as to the ownership of said moneys, the case shall be transferred to the civil issue docket of the superior court for trial. Any party in interest may appeal to the judge of the superior court from any order made by the clerk. The clerk may require bond of parties when action is transferred to civil issue docket, as in other civil actions. The court may, in its discretion, order the costs and a reasonable attorney's fee to be paid out of the funds in controversy. (1913, c. 15, s. 3; 1919, c. 111, ss. 1, 2; C. S. 2593.)

§ 45-31. Orders signed on days other than first and third Mondays validated; force and effect of deeds.—In all actions for the foreclosure of any mortgage or deed of trust which has heretofore been instituted and prosecuted before the clerk of the superior court of any county in North Carolina, wherein the judgment confirming the sale made by the commissioner appointed in said action, and ordering the said commissioner to execute a deed to the purchaser, was signed by such clerk on a day other than the first or third Monday of a month, such judgment of confirmation shall be and is hereby declared to be valid and of the same force and effect as though signed and docketed on the first or third Monday of any month, and any deed made by any commissioner or commissioners in any such action where the confirmation of sale was made on a day other than a first or third Monday of the month shall be and is hereby declared to have the same force and effect as if the same were executed and delivered pursuant to a judgment of confirmation properly signed and docketed by the clerk of the superior court on a first or third Monday of the month. (1923, c. 53, s. 1; C. S. 2593(a).)

§ 45-32. Injunction of mortgage sales on equitable grounds.—Any owner of real estate, or other person, firm or corporation having a legal or equitable interest therein, may apply to a judge of the superior court, prior to the confirmation of any sale of such real estate by a mortgagee, trustee, commissioner or other person authorized to sell the same, to enjoin such sale or the confirmation thereof, upon the ground that the amount bid or price offered therefor is inadequate and inequitable and will result in irreparable damage to the owner or other interested person, or upon any other legal or equitable ground which the court may deem sufficient: Provided, that the court or judge enjoining such sale or the confirmation thereof, whether by a temporary restraining order or injunction to the hearing, shall, as a condition precedent, require of the plaintiff or applicant such bond or deposit as may be necessary to indemnify and save harmless the mortgagee, trustee, cestui que trust, or other person enjoined and affected thereby against costs, depreciation, interest and other damages, if any, which may result from the granting of such order or injunction: Provided further, that in other respects the procedure shall be as is now prescribed by law in cases of injunction and receivership, with the right of appeal to the supreme court from any such order or injunction. (1933, c. 275, s. 1.)

Editor's Note.—See 11 N. C. Law Rev. 240, for review of this section.

Constitutionality.—This section does not violate any provision of the Constitution of the United States or of the State of North Carolina, by which limitations are imposed upon the legislative power of the General Assembly of this State. It does not impair the obligation of the contract entered into by and between the parties to a mortgage or deed of trust; it does not deprive either party of property without due process of law; nor does it confer upon mortgagors or grantors in deeds of trust any exclusive privilege. Woltz v. Asheville Safe Deposit Co., 206 N. C. 239, 242, 173 S. E. 587.

This section is constitutional and valid. Hopkins v. Swain, 206 N. C. 439, 174 S. E. 409.

This section is remedial only, and is valid for that purpose. Woltz v. Asheville Safe Deposit Co., 206 N. C. 239, 242, 173 S. E. 587.

Retroactive Effect.—This section is applicable to a sale made since its enactment, although the sale was made under the power of sale contained in a mortgage or deed of trust executed prior to its enactment. Woltz v. Asheville Safe Deposit Co., 206 N. C. 239, 242, 173 S. E. 587.

Requiring Bond within Court's Discretion.—The condition that plaintiff file bond to indemnify defendant against any loss by reason of the delay is within the court's discretionary equitable power, the provisions of this section being constitutional and valid. Whitaker v. Chase, 206 N. C. 335, 174 S. E. 225. Little v. Wachovia Bank, etc., Co., 208 N. C. 726, 182 S. E. 491.

Where the mortgagee or cestui que trust is not satisfied with the bond given by the mortgagor or trustor, as provided by this section, his remedy is by motion that plaintiffs be required to increase the penal sum of the bond and give additional sureties, and he may not attack the validity of the order restraining the consummation of the sale upon the ground that the bond is inadequate. Woltz v. Asheville Safe Deposit Co., 206 N. C. 239, 173 S. E. 587.

Where the parties expressly waive a jury trial, and the trial court finds that the amount bid at the sale represented the fair market value of the lands, and that there was no assurance that a larger sum would be offered if the lands were resold, the findings support his judgment dissolving the temporary order restraining the consummation of the sale. Barringer v. Wilmington Sav., etc., Co., 207 N. C. 505, 177 S. E. 795.

When Foreclosure May Not Be Restrained.—An executor may not restrain the foreclosure of a deed of trust executed by his testator prior to his death upon the executor's petition for sale of the lands to make assets, when by the terms of the deed of trust the trustee is authorized to advertise and sell the lands, the right of the trustee to sell the lands being contractual, and the sale by the trustee being subject to the provisions of this and the following sections. Miller v. Shore, 206 N. C. 732, 175 S. E. 133.

This and following sections have no application after a foreclosure sale under power contained in the instrument has been confirmed. Whitford v. North Carolina Joint-Stock Land Bank, 207 N. C. 229, 230, 176 S. E. 740.

Granting Resale after Action for Specific Performance.—Where the last and highest bidder at the sale instituted action for specific performance, and the personal representative of the deceased mortgagee gave notice in apt time that he would make application to the resident judge of the district out of term and out of the county for an order restraining the consummation of the sale made by him under the mortgage on the grounds of inadequacy of the bid, and for an order for a resale, the court had authority to hear the motion. Hopkins v. Swain, 206 N. C. 439, 440, 174 S. E. 409.

Where It Is Error for Court to Grant Motion to Nonsuit.—Where plaintiffs, trustors in a deed of trust, seek to enjoin the consummation of a foreclosure sale had under the power contained in the instrument, and alleged that the price bid at the sale was grossly inadequate, which allegation is denied in the answer, it is error for the court to grant defendants' motion to nonsuit, plaintiffs being entitled to a hearing and a determination of the issue under the provisions of this section. Smith v. Bryant, 209 N. C. 213, 183 S. E. 276.

Injunction Held to Be Properly Continued to Hearing upon Court's Finding.—Where a mortgagor or trustor institutes suit to enjoin the consummation of a foreclosure sale had under the terms of the instrument, and files bond to indemnify the mortgagee or cestui que trust against loss, the temporary injunction granted in the cause is properly continued to the hearing upon the court's finding that serious controversy exists between the parties and that plaintiff is entitled to a jury trial upon the issues of fact raised by the pleadings. Little v. Wachovia Bank, etc., Co., 208 N. C. 726, 182 S. E. 491.

Where Court Determines Whether Bid Was Grossly Inadequate.—Where, in a suit to enjoin the consummation of a foreclosure sale the issue of whether the bid at the sale was grossly inadequate is raised by the pleadings, the parties are not entitled as a matter of law to have the issue determined by a jury, but the court may hear evidence and determine the issue, and should dismiss the action if it finds that the amount of the bid is the fair value of the land, or should enjoin the consummation of the sale if it finds that the bid is grossly inadequate. Smith v. Bryant, 209 N. C. 213, 183 S. E. 276.

§ 45-33. Ordering resales before confirmation; receivers for property; tax payments.—The court or judge granting such order or injunction, or before whom the same is returnable, shall have the right before, but not after, any sale is confirmed to order a resale by the mortgagee, trustee, commissioner, or other person authorized to make the same in such manner and upon such terms as may be just and equitable: Provided, the rights of all parties in interest, or who may be affected thereby, shall be preserved and protected by bond or indemnity in such form and amount as the court may require, and the court or judge may also appoint a receiver of the property or the rents and proceeds thereof, pending any sale or resale, and may make such order for the payment of taxes or other prior lien as may be necessary, subject to the right of appeal to the supreme court in all cases. (1933, c. 275, s. 2.)

§ 45-34. Right of mortgagor to prove in deficiency suits reasonable value of property by way of defense.—When any sale of real estate or personal property has been made by a mortgagee, trustee, or other person authorized to make the same, at which the mortgagee, payee or other holder of the obligation thereby secured becomes the purchaser and takes title either directly or indirectly, and thereafter such mortgagee, payee or other holder of the secured obligation, as aforesaid, shall sue for and undertake to recover a deficiency judgment against the mortgagor, trustor or other maker of any such obligation whose property has been so purchased, it shall be competent and lawful for the defendant against whom such deficiency judgment is sought to allege and show as matter of defense and off-set, but not by way of counter-claim, that the property sold was fairly worth the amount of the debt secured by it at the time and place of sale or that the amount bid was substantially less than its true value, and, upon such showing, to defeat or off-set any deficiency judgment against him, either in whole or in part: Provided, this section shall not affect nor apply to the rights of other purchasers or of innocent third parties, nor shall it be held to affect or defeat the negotiability of any note, bond or other obligation secured by such mortgage, deed of trust or other instrument: Provided, further, this section shall not apply to foreclosure sales made pursuant to an order or decree of court nor to any judgment sought or rendered in any foreclosure suit nor to any sale made and confirmed prior to April 18, 1933. (1933, c. 275, s. 3.)

Editor's Note.—See 12 N. C. Law Rev. 366, for note on "Relief During the Depression."

This section is constitutional and valid. Richmond Mtg., etc., Corp. v. Wachovia Bank, etc., Co., 210 N. C. 29, 185 S. E. 482.

This section has merely restricted the exercise of the contractual remedy to provide a procedure which, to some extent, renders the remedy by a trustee's sale consistent with that in equity. This does not impair the obligation of the contract. Richmond Mtg., etc., Corp. v. Wachovia Bank, etc., Co., 300 U. S. 124, 131, 57 S. Ct. 338, 81 L. Ed. 552, 108 A. L. R. 886.

It applies only to foreclosure under powers of sale and not to actions to foreclose, and only to instances where the creditor bids in the property, directly or indirectly, and not to instances where the property is bid in by independent third persons. Richmond Mtg., etc., Corp. v. Wachovia Bank, etc., Co., 210 N. C. 29, 185 S. E. 482. See also, Richmond Mtg., etc., Corp. v. Wachovia Bank, etc., Co., 300 U. S. 124, 130, 57 S. Ct. 338, 81 L. Ed. 552, 108 A. L. R. 886.

It alters and modifies one of the existing remedies for realization of the value of the security, but cannot fairly be said to do more than restrict the mortgagee to that for which he contracted, namely, payment in full. It recognizes the obligation of his contract and his right to its full enforcement but limits that right so as to prevent his obtaining more than his due. Richmond Mtg., etc., Corp. v. Wachovia Bank, etc., Co., 300 U. S. 124, 130, 57 S. Ct. 338, 81 L. Ed. 552, 108 A. L. R. 886.

It is not "emergency legislation," nor is its purpose to provide a "moratorium" for debtors during a temporary period of depression. Richmond Mtg., etc., Corp. v. Wachovia Bank, etc., Co., 210 N. C. 29, 34, 185 S. E. 482.

Amount Bid Is Not Conclusive as to Value.—The amount bid by the creditor at the sale, and applied by him as a payment on the debt, is not conclusive as to the value of the property. Richmond Mtg., etc., Corp. v. Wachovia Bank, etc., Co., 210 N. C. 29, 34, 185 S. E. 482.

This section recognizes the obligation of a debtor who has secured the payment of his debt by a mortgage or deed of trust to pay his debt in accordance with his contract, and does not impair such obligation. Richmond Mtg., etc., Corp. v. Wachovia Bank, etc., Co., 210 N. C. 29, 34, 185 S. E. 482.

And it recognizes the validity of powers of sale contained in mortgages or deeds of trust, but regulates the exercise of such powers by the application of well settled principles of equity. It provides for judicial supervision of sales made and conducted by creditors whose debts are secured by mortgages or deeds of trust, and thereby provides protection for debtors whose property has been sold and purchased by their creditors for a sum which was not a fair value of the property at the time of the sale. Richmond Mtg., etc., Corp. v. Wachovia Bank, etc., Co., 210 N. C. 29, 35, 185 S. E. 482.

It is Not Applicable to Sales under Order of Court.—Where the maker of a note assigned a judgment in its favor to the payee as security and the judgment was sold under order of court and purchased by the payee who thereafter realized upon the judgment an amount in excess of the sale price, it was held that the note was properly credited with the sale price and not the amount realized by the payee upon the judgment, and that since the bidding at the sale was open to all and the sale was under order of court, the endorser on the note could not assert this section as a defense to his liability, the statute, by the express language of its proviso, not being applicable. Biggs v. Lassiter, 220 N. C. 761, 18 S. E. (2d) 419.

§ 45-35. Sections 45-32 to 45-35 not applicable to tax suits.—All laws and clauses of laws in conflict with §§ 45-32 to 45-35, to the extent of such conflict only, are hereby repealed, but said sections shall not apply to tax foreclosure suits or tax sales. (1933, c. 275, s. 4.)

§ 45-36. Deficiency judgments abolished where mortgage represents part of purchase price.—In all sales of real property by mortgagees and/or trustees under powers of sale contained in any mortgage or deed of trust executed after February 6, 1933, or where judgment or decree is given for the foreclosure of any mortgage executed after February 6, 1933, to secure payment of the balance of the purchase price of real property, the mortgagee or trustee or holder of the notes secured by such mortgage or deed of trust shall not be entitled to a deficiency judgment on account of such mortgage, deed of trust or obligation secured by the same: Provided, said evidence of indebtedness shows upon the face that it is for balance of purchase money for real estate: Provided, further, that when said note or notes are prepared under the direction and supervision of the seller or sellers, he, it, or they shall cause a provision to be inserted in said note disclosing that it is for purchase money of real estate; in default of which the seller or sellers shall be liable to purchaser for any loss which he might sustain by reason of the failure to insert said provision as herein set out. (1933, c. 36.)

Cross Reference.—As to provision that wife need not join in purchase-money mortgage, see § 39-13.

Editor's Note.—The effect of this section is to limit the creditor to the property conveyed, when the mortgage is for the purchase money, changing in that respect section 1-123. See 11 N. C. Law Rev. 219.

Foreign Executed Mortgage on Foreign Realty.—This section operates to deprive our courts of jurisdiction to enter the deficiency judgments proscribed, and the section applies to all such deficiency judgments, including those predicated upon notes secured by mortgages or deeds of trust executed in another state upon realty lying therein. Bullington v. Angel, 220 N. C. 18, 16 S. E. (2d) 411, 136 A. L. R. 1054.

Sale under First Mortgage.—This section is not available as a defense to an action on a purchase money note secured by a second mortgage when the land has been sold under the first mortgage for a sum sufficient to pay only the notes secured by the first mortgage, assumed by the purchaser as a part of the purchase price. Brown v. Kirkpatrick, 217 N. C. 486, 8 S. E. (2d) 601.

Art. 4. Discharge and Release.

§ 45-37. Discharge of record of mortgages and deeds of trust.—Any deed of trust or mortgage registered as required by law may be discharged and released in the following manner.

1. The trustee or mortgagee or his or her legal representative, or the duly authorized agent or attorney of such trustee, mortagee or legal representative, may, in the presence of the register of deeds or his deputy, acknowledge the satisfaction of the provisions of such deed of trust or mortgage, whereupon the register or his deputy shall forthwith make upon the margin of the record of such deed of trust or mortgage an entry of such acknowledgment of satisfaction, which shall be signed by the trustee, mortgagee, legal representative or attorney, and witnessed by the register or his deputy, who shall also affix his name thereto.

2. Upon the exhibition of any mortgage, deed of trust or other instrument intended to secure the payment of money, accompanied with the bond or note, to the register of deeds or his deputy, where the same is registered, with the endorsement of payment and satisfaction appearing thereon by the payee, mortgagee, trustee, or assignee of the same, or by any chartered active banking institution in the state of North Carolina, when so endorsed in the name of the bank by an officer thereof, the register or his deputy shall cancel the mortgage or other instrument by entry of "satisfaction" on the margin of the record; and the person so claiming to have satisfied the debt may retain possession of the bond or mortgage or other instrument: Provided, that if such mortgage or deed of trust provides in itself for the payment of money and does not call for or recite any note secured by it, then the exhibition of such mortgage or deed of trust alone to the register of deeds or his deputy, with endorsement of payment and satisfaction, shall be sufficient. But if the register or his deputy requires it, he shall file a receipt to him showing by whose authority the mortgage or other instrument was canceled.

3. Upon the exhibition of any mortgage, deed of trust, or other instrument intended to secure the payment of money by the grantor or mortgagor, his agent or attorney, together with the notes or bonds secured thereby, to the register of deeds or his deputy of the county where the same is registered, the deed of trust, mortgage, notes or bonds being at the time of said exhibition more than ten years old, counting from the date of maturity of the last note or bond, the register or his deputy shall make proper entry of cancellation and satisfaction of said instrument on the margin of the record where the same is recorded, whether there be any such entries on the original papers or not.

4. Upon the presentation of any deed of trust given to secure the bearer or holder of any negotiable instruments transferable by delivery, together with all the evidences of indebtedness secured thereby, marked paid and satisfied in full and signed by the bearer or holder thereof, to the register of deeds or his deputy of the county in which same is recorded, the said register or his deputy shall cancel such deed of trust by entry of satisfaction upon the record and such entry of satisfaction shall be valid and binding upon all persons: Provided that prior to such presentation and cancellation, any person rightfully entitled to any such deed of trust, or evidences of indebtedness, which have been lost or stolen, may notify the register of deeds, or his deputy, in writing of such loss or theft, and said register, or his deputy, shall make a marginal entry in writing thereof, together with the date such notice is given, upon the record of the deed of trust concerned, and thereafter same shall not be cancelled as above provided until the ownership of said instruments shall have been lawfully determined: Provided that nothing herein shall be construed so as to impair the negotiability of any instrument otherwise properly negotiable, nor to impair the rights of any innocent purchaser for value thereof.

5. The conditions of every mortgage, deed of trust, or other instrument securing the payment of money shall be conclusively presumed to have been complied with or the debts secured thereby paid as against creditors or purchasers for a valuable consideration from the trustor, mortgagor, or grantor, from and after the expiration of fifteen years from the date when the conditions of such instrument by the terms thereof are due to have been complied with, or the maturity of the last installment of debt or interest secured thereby, unless the holder of the indebtedness secured by such instrument or party secured by any provision thereof shall file an affidavit with the register of deeds of the county where such instrument is registered, in which shall be specifically stated the amount of debt unpaid, which is secured by said instrument, or in what respect any other condition thereof shall not have been complied with, whereupon the register of deeds shall record such affidavit and refer on the margin of the record of the instrument referred to therein the fact of the filing of such affidavit, and a reference to the book and page where it is recorded. Or in lieu of such affidavit the holder may enter on the margin of the record any payments that have been made on the indebtedness secured by such instrument, and shall in such entry state the amount still due thereunder. This entry must be signed by the holder and witnessed by the register of deeds. Provided, however, that this subsection shall not apply to any deed, mortgage, deed of trust or other instrument made or given by any railroad company, or to any agreement of conditional sale, equipment trust agreement, lease, chattel mortgage or other instrument relating to the sale, purchase or lease of railroad equipment on rolling stock, or of other personal property.

Every such entry thus made by the register of deeds or his deputy, and every such entry thus acknowledged and witnessed, shall operate and have the same effect to release and discharge all the interest of such trustee, mortgagee or representative in such deed or mortgage as if a deed of release or reconveyance thereof had been duly executed and recorded. (Rev., s. 1046; Code, s. 1271; 1870-1, c. 217; 1891, c. 180; 1893, c. 36; 1901, c. 46; 1917, c. 49, s. 1; 1917, c. 50, s. 1; 1923, c. 192, s. 1; 1923, c. 195; 1935, c. 47; C. S. 2594.)

Cross Reference.—As to requirement of registration for mortgages and deeds of trust, see § 47-20.

Editor's Note.—The proviso contained in the second clause of this section, and the entire fifth clause were added by the amendments of 1923.

Subsection 4 was added by the amendment of 1935.

Modes of Release.—A mortgage can only be released so as to affect purchasers at a sale under the mortgage by a cancellation on the margin of the registration thereof under this section, or by a reconveyance of the mortgaged property duly recorded. Barber v. Wadsworth, 115 N. C. 29, 32, 20 S. E. 178.

Construed as a Whole.—This section will be construed to effectuate the legislative intent as gathered from its language, and by harmonizing its various parts when this can reasonably be done. Richmond Guano Co. v. Walston, 187 N. C. 667, 122 S. E. 663.

Not Retroactive.—This section has no application to a mortgage given prior to the passage of the section nor does it wipe out a valid debt existing at the time the statute took effect. Dixie Grocery Co. v. Hoyle, 204 N. C. 109, 113, 167 S. E. 469. And it is not a ground for setting aside a foreclosure of a mortgage given before the passage of the act in an action by a subsequent mortgagee. Roberson v. Matthews, 200 N. C. 241, 156 S. E. 496.

Procedure of Cancellation and Effect.—Regularly, the mortgagee acknowledges the satisfaction and discharge of the mortgage in the presence of the register of deeds, and he enters satisfaction on the margin of the record of the mortgage, and this entry is signed by the mortgagee; and this, done as required by this section, will operate as a deed of release, or reconveyance of the land, embraced by the mortgage. Otherwise the mortgagee must reconvey the land by proper deed. Walker v. Mebane, 90 N. C. 259, 266.

Application Only to Deeds of Trust and Mortgages.—This section giving to the marginal entry of satisfaction the effect of reconveyance applies only to discharge of trust deeds and mortgages. Smith v. King, 107 N. C. 273, 277, 12 S. E. 57.

Subsection 2—Applies to Deeds of Trust.—Subsection 2, of this section does not exclude from the intent and meaning of the statute a deed of trust given for the purpose of securing a loan of money. Richmond Guano Co. v. Walston, 187 N. C. 667, 122 S. E. 663. It was contended in this case that the omission of words "deed of trust" from the provision near the end of the subsection, namely, "that the register or his deputy shall cancel the mortgage or other instrument," conclusively shows that a register is not given power to cancel a deed of trust. However, the court did not assent to this rather ingenious argument, the gist of their conclusions being as follows: Considering this section as a whole the natural and reasonable interpretation of the language must refer the words "mortgage or other instrument" in the clause quoted above to the words of the first line of the subsection "mortgage, deed of trust or other instrument."

Marginal Satisfaction Not Necessary as Between Parties.—When a mortgage debt has been discharged, the mortgage is no longer operative, between the parties, though not marked "satisfied of record." Blake v. Broughton, 107 N. C. 220, 12 S. E. 127.

Form and Validity of Cancellation.—This section must be strictly complied with in order to secure the grantee in a subsequent conveyance of the locus in quo against the prior encumbrance, and where this is done upon exhibit of the canceled conveyance and notes marked paid, the entry should recite correctly the name of the beneficiary and payment of the note, notes or bonds, as the case may be, by the payee thereof. Mills v. Kemp, 196 N. C. 309, 145 S. E. 577.

Same—Notice to Subsequent Mortgagee.—Where an entry of cancellation is made of record by the register of deeds in canceling a mortgage under this section reciting another name as mortgagee, trustee or cestui que trust than that appearing in the registration of the instrument, and that the "bond" was marked paid, when the instrument recited four bonds maturing in series, it is sufficient to set a later grantee or mortgagee upon inquiry as to whether the register of deeds has made a mistake in cancelling the mortgage, and fix him with notice of all facts a reasonable inquiry would have revealed. Mills v. Kemp, 196 N. C. 309, 145 S. E. 557.

Mortgagee Alone May Cancel.—Only the mortgagee, or his duly authorized agent or representative, is entitled to have his mortgage canceled on the book in the office of the register of deeds by subsection 1, of this section; and when the mortgagee cancels the instrument in person, under subsec. 1, it is a complete release and discharge of the mortgage, for in such case the statute does not require the exhibition of the mortgage and the note it secures. First Nat. Bank v. Sauls, 183 N. C. 165, 110 S. E. 865.

Where a note, secured by a mortgage, is assigned and pledged as collateral by the mortgagee to his own note, without an assignment of the mortgage conveying title for the purpose of the security, but only with the surrender of the instrument to the payee of his note, the legal title to the lands remains in the mortgagee, who alone is authorized to cancel the mortgage. First Nat. Bank v. Sauls, 183 N. C. 165, 110 S. E. 865.

Under this section, subsection 2, there is no authority given to the register of deeds to enter cancellation of record upon the cancellation thereof by the mortgagor. Faircloth v. Johnson, 198 N. C. 429, 127 S. E. 346.

Authority of Trustee.—Possession of the papers by the trustee raises a presumption of his authority to cancel the deed of trust of record. Williams v. Williams, 220 N. C. 806, 18 S. E. (2d) 364.

Effect of Forged Cancellation.—When the attorney for the owner of the land agreed to have a mortgage canceled of record, and thereafter surreptitiously obtained the cancellation stamp of the register of deeds and forged his signature so that apparently the mortgage was canceled under the provisions of this section, subsection 2, and relying thereon the proposed purchaser accepted the deed and paid the consideration: It was held that the supposed cancellation of the mortgage was void as against the mortgagee who had no notice thereof until immediately before bringing his action to have the supposed cancellation declared void. Union Central Life Ins. Co. v. Cates, 193 N. C. 456, 137 S. E. 324.

Same—Upon Rights of Third Mortgagee.—As against the mortgagee of a third mortgage given on the same lands, the wrongful cancellation by a forged entry on the margin in the registration book is a nullity, and the lien continues until the payment of the debt it secures, as prior to that of the third mortgage, when the second mortgage lien has lawfully been canceled of record. Swindell v. Stephens, 193 N. C. 474, 137 S. E. 420.

Effect of Prior Fraud.—Where the register of deeds has entered "satisfaction" of a deed of trust, and thereupon subsequent mortgagees, etc., have acted in good faith, the prior fraud or collusion of the parties to the canceled instrument will not affect their rights when they were unaware thereof or had not participated in the fraud. Richmond Guano Co. v. Walston, 187 N. C. 667, 122 S. E. 663.

Cancellation by Attorney—Ratification Thereof.—While an attorney at law has no power to cancel or discharge a deed of mortgage, without authority conferred by his client, yet where such attorney informs his client that he is unable to complete an arrangement agreed upon with the debtor for obtaining a new mortgage and the sale of a stock of goods, upon which the creditor has a lien, unless a cancellation of an old mortgage was made, and that he would cancel the old mortgage by a day named, unless directed not to do so, the attorney receiving no such direction, cancelled the old mortgage, and forwarded to his client the new mortgage and power of sale, and the new mortgage was returned without objection to be registered: It was held to be a ratification by the client of the act of cancellation of the old mortgage. Christian v. Yarborough, 124 N. C. 72, 32 S. E. 383.

Authority of Trustee to Release Part of Property without Satisfaction.—This section only empowers the trustee to "acknowledge satisfaction of the provisions of such trust, etc.," the entry operating as a reconveyance. As was said in Browne v. Davis, 109 N. C. 23, 13 S. E. 703: "It was never contemplated that the trustee could by this means release from an unsatisfied trust specified parts of the land." We do not mean to say however that the creditor might not be estopped, under certain circumstances, from enforcing his claim against that part of the land undertaken to be released by the trustee if done with the creditor's consent and authority properly shown. Woodcock v. Merrimon, 122 N. C. 731, 736, 30 S. E. 321.

Even if an attempted release is under seal it is ineffectual, as the statute authorizing such mode of release confers no power upon a trustee to release specific parts of the property conveyed, and especially where the secured debt remained unsatisfied. Browne v. Davis, 109 N. C. 23, 13 S. E. 703.

Effect of Cancellation by First Mortgagee.—The legal title to mortgaged lands is conveyed by the instrument to the mortgagee, and remains in him until transferred or assigned, for the purpose of the security or the cancellation of the instrument, under this section and where the mortgagor has afterwards conveyed the fee-simple title to another, and receives a mortgage back to secure a note for the balance of the purchase price of which the same mortgagee becomes the holder, his personal cancellation of the first mortgage, without producing it or the note it secures, is a complete discharge or release of the lien thereof, and where he borrows money after such cancellation, and hypothecates the note of the second mortgage as collateral to his own, the lender for the purposes of the security, acting in good faith, has a prior lien on the lands. First Nat. Bank v. Sauls, 183 N. C. 165, 110 S. E. 865.

Entry of "Satisfied" as Evidence of Payment of Debt.—It is competent to introduce as evidence of payment of an indebtedness secured by mortgage the entry of "satisfied" on the margin of the record signed by the mortgagee and witnessed by the register of deeds. Robinson v. Sampson, 121 N. C. 99, 100, 28 S. E. 189.

Not Retroactive in Effect.—Subsection five is not to be construed retroactively so as to effect those who became creditors prior to its passage. Hicks v. Kearney, 127 N. C. 35, 127 S. E. 205.

The conclusive presumption of payment of a note secured by mortgages or deeds of trust of land after fifteen years, etc., is prospective in effect, and inapplicable to such instruments theretofore executed. Const. of N. C., Art. 1, § 17; Humphrey v. Stephens, 191 N. C. 101, 131 S. E. 383; Hicks v. Kearney, 189 N. C. 316, 127 S. E. 205.

Compliance or Payment under Subsection 5.—A careful examiner, when he finds upon the registry an uncanceled mortgage or deed of trust, which still lacks the quality of presumptive compliance or payment arising from the expiration of fifteen years, is put on notice of whatever a reasonable inquiry would disclose. Massachusetts Bonding, etc., Co. v. Knox, 220 N. C. 725, 732, 18 S. E. (2d) 436, 138 A. L. R. 1438. (con. op.).

Payee or Mortgagee Must Be Sui Juris.—In order to constitute a valid cancellation under subsection 2, this section clearly contemplated a payee or mortgagee who is sui juris. Faircloth v. Johnson, 189 N. C. 429, 127 S. E. 346.

Cited in Ownbey v. Parkway Properties, 222 N. C. 54, 21 S. E. (2d) 900.

§ 45-38. Entry of foreclosure.—In case of foreclosure of any deed of trust, or mortgage, the trustee or mortgagee shall enter upon the margin of the record thereof the fact of such foreclosure and the date when, and the person to whom, a conveyance was made by reason thereof. (1923, c. 192, s. 2; C. S. 2594(a).)

Failure of Trustee to Comply Does Not Affect Purchaser.—The purchaser of lands at a foreclosure sale made in conformity with a deed of trust upon lands is not affected with constructive notice of fraud by the omission of the trustee to comply with the provisions of this or the following section. Cheek v. Squires, 200 N. C. 661, 662, 158 S. E. 198.

Cancellation without Knowledge of Cestui.—Where the trustor paid the trustee the amount of the mortgage debt and the trustee entered a cancellation of the deed of trust on the records under this section, without the knowledge of the cestui que trust, the cancellation was held valid. Parham v. Hinnant, 206 N. C. 200, 173 S. E. 26.

§ 45-39. Trustees or mortgagees making sales to file accounts.—It shall be the duty of any trustee or mortgagee making sale under the provisions of any power to file an account with the clerk of the superior court in the county where the land lies as is required by commissioners making sales for partition, and for the auditing and recording of said account the clerk shall be allowed the same fees as are provided for auditing accounts of such commissioners. (1923, c. 192, s. 3; C. S. 2594(b).)

Cross References.—As to procedure for filing, auditing and recording accounts of commissioners making sales for partition, see §§ 46-1 and 1-406. As to clerk's fees for auditing and recording accounts of commissioners making sales for partitions, see § 2-26, wherein is set forth fees of clerks for "auditing and recording the final account of commissioners appointed to sell real estate."

§ 45-40. Register to enter satisfaction on index.—When satisfaction of the provisions of any deed of trust or mortgage is acknowledged and entry of such acknowledgment of satisfaction is made upon the margin of the record of said deed of trust or mortgage, or when the register of deeds or his deputy shall cancel the mortgage or other instrument by entry of satisfaction, then the register of deeds or his deputy shall enter upon the alphabetical indexes kept by him, as required by law, and opposite the names of the grantor and grantee and on a line with the names of said grantor and grantee, the words "satisfied mortgage," if the instrument of which satisfaction has been acknowledged or entered is a mortgage, and the words "satisfied deed of trust," if the instrument of which satisfaction has been acknowledged or entered is a deed of trust. (1909, c. 658, s. 1; C. S. 2595.)

§ 45-41. Recorded deed of release of mortgagee's representative. — The personal representative of any mortgagee or trustee in any mortgage or deed of trust which has heretofore or which may hereafter be registered in the manner required by the laws of this state may discharge and release the same and all property thereby conveyed by deed of quit claim, release or conveyance executed, acknowledged and recorded as is now prescribed by law for the execution, acknowledgment and registration of deeds and mortgages in this state. (1909, c. 283, s. 1; C. S. 2596.)

Cross Reference.—As to provisions regarding probate and registration of deeds and mortgages, etc., see § 47-1 et seq.

§ 45-42. Release of corporate mortgages by corporate officers.—All mortgages and deeds in trust executed to a corporation may be satisfied and so marked of record, as by law provided for the satisfaction of mortgages and deeds in trust, by the president, any vice-president, cashier, assistant cashier, secretary, assistant secretary, treasurer, assistant treasurer, trust officer or assistant trust officer of such corporation signing the name of such corporation by him as such officer. Where mortgages or deeds in trust were marked "satisfied" on the records before the twenty-third day of February, nineteen hundred and nine, by any president, secretary, treasurer or cashier of any corporation by such officer writing his own name and affixing thereto the title of his office in such corporation, such satisfaction is validated, and is as effective to all intents and purposes as if a deed of release duly executed by such corporation had been made, acknowledged and recorded. (1909, c. 283, ss. 2, 3; 1935, c. 271; C. S. 2597.)

Editor's Note.—By the amendment of 1935, vice-president, assistant cashier, assistant secretary, assistant treasurer, trust officer and assistant trust officer, were added to the list of officers enumerated in the first sentence of the section.

Art. 5. Real Estate Mortgage Loans.

§ 45-43. Real estate mortgage loans; commissions.—Any individual or corporation authorized by law to do a real estate mortgage loan business may make or negotiate loans of money on notes secured by mortgages or deeds of trust on real estate bearing legal interest payable semi-annually at maturity or otherwise, and in addition thereto, may charge, collect and receive such commission or fee as may be agreed upon for making or negotiation of any such loan, not exceeding, however, an amount equal to one and one-half per cent of the principal amount of the loan for each year over which the repayment of the said loan is extended: Provided, however, the repayment of such loan shall be in annual installments extending over a period of not less than three nor more than fifteen years, and that no annual installment, other than the last, shall exceed thirty-three and one-third per cent of the principal amount of loans which are payable in installments extending over a period of as much as three years and less than four years, twenty-five per cent of the principal amount of loans which are payable in installments extending over a period of not less than four years nor more than five years, and fifteen per cent of the principal amount of loans which are payable in installments extending over a period of more than five years and not more than fifteen years. This section shall only apply to the counties of Ashe, Buncombe, Caldwell, Forsyth, Gaston, Henderson, McDowell, Madison, Rutherford, Watauga, and Yancey. (Ex. Sess. 1924, c. 35; 1925, cc. 28, 209; Pub. Loc. 1925, c. 592; modified by 1927, c. 5; Pub. Loc. 1927, c. 187.)

Chapter 46. Partition.

Art. 1. Partition of Real Property.

Art. 2. Partition Sales of Real Property.

Art. 3. Partition of Lands in Two States.

Art. 4. Partition of Personal Property.

Art. 1. Partition of Real Property.

§ 46-1. Partition is a special proceeding.—Partition under this chapter shall be by special proceeding, and the procedure shall be the same in all respects as prescribed by law in special proceedings, except as modified herein. (Rev., s. 2485; Code, s. 1923; 1868-9, c. 122, s. 33; C. S. 3213.)

Cross Reference.—As to special proceedings generally, see § 1-393 et seq.

Editor's Note.—At one time partition could be effected only by a suit in equity of which the several State courts possessing general equity or chancery jurisdiction had cognizance. This was changed in 1868 and the proceedings made special.

Tenant in Common Entitled to Partition.—Ordinarily, a tenant in common in realty or personalty is entitled to partition of the property. Chadwick v. Blades, 210 N. C. 609, 188 S. E. 198.

Chapter Does Not Apply to Partition by Agreement.—This chapter applies to compulsory or judicial partition. It does not apply to partition by agreement. Keener v. Den, 73 N. C. 132. As to the authority of the court in a partition by agreement, and the procedure therein, see Outlaw v. Outlaw, 184 N. C. 255, 114 S. E. 4; Newsome v. Harrell, 168 N. C. 295, 84 S. E. 337.

When the proceeding for partition becomes adverse to him the plaintiff is not allowed to take a voluntary nonsuit. Haddock v. Stocks, 167 N. C. 70, 83 S. E. 9.

Applied in Gibbs v. Higgins, 215 N. C. 201, 1 S. E. (2d) 554.

Cited in Skinner v. Carter, 108 N. C. 106, 12 S. E. 908.

§ 46-2. Venue in partition.—The proceeding for partition, actual or by sale, must be instituted in the county where the land or some part thereof lies. If the land to be partitioned consists of one tract lying in more than one county, or consists of several tracts lying in different counties, proceedings may be instituted in either of the counties in which a part of the land is situated, and the court of such county wherein the proceedings for partition are first brought shall have jurisdiction to proceed to a final disposition of said proceedings, to the same extent as if all of said land was situate in the county where the proceedings were instituted. (Rev., s. 2486; Code, s. 1898; 1868-9, c. 122, s. 7; Ex. Sess. 1924, c. 62, s. 1; C. S. 3214.)

Editor's Note.—The latter part of the section, stating the extent of the jurisdiction of the court, and the provision for partition of land consisting of several tracts, were added by the Public Laws of 1924, Extra Session.

Waiver of Venue.—Construing secs. 1-82, 1-83 and this section, in pari materia, venue cannot be jurisdictional, and it may always be waived. Pleading to the merits waives defective venue. Venue is a matter not to be determined by the common law, but by legislative regulation. Clark v. Carolina Homes, 189 N. C. 703, 128 S. E. 20, 25. For distinctions between venue and jurisdiction, see the Editor's Note to sec. 1-76.

§ 46-3. Petition by cotenant. — One or more persons claiming real estate as joint tenants or tenants in common may have partition by petition to the superior court. (Rev., s. 2487; Code, s. 1892; 1886-9, c. 122, s. 1; C. S. 3215.)

I. IN GENERAL.

Jurisdiction of Superior Court.—The superior court acquires jurisdiction over proceedings to partition lands upon their being transferred by the clerk thereto, in term, and may proceed therewith and fully determine all matters in controversy. In such case it is immaterial whether it was properly instituted before the clerk. Baggett v. Jackson, 160 N. C. 26, 76 S. E. 86.

Necessity of Possession.—Tenants in common who are not in possession can not procure an order for partition. Church v. Thornton, 158 N. C. 119, 73 S. E. 810; Wood v. Sugg, 91 N. C. 93, 49 Am. Rep. 639.

Tenants in common may make a valid agreement, either at the time of the creation of the tenancy or afterwards, whereby the right to partition is modified or limited, provided the waiver of the right to partition is not for an unreasonable length of time. Chadwick v. Blades, 210 N. C. 609, 188 S. E. 198. See also, 15 N. C. Law Rev. 279.

The Petition—Omission of Term of Court.—A petition entitled in the original cause, but addressed to the clerk, in special proceedings for partition is not demurrable because it does not give the term of court or any court in the caption. Hartsfield v. Bryan, 177 N. C. 166, 98 S. E. 379.

Same—Possession.—If the petition alleges that the petitioners are tenants in common in fee, it will not be dismissed for failure to allege that they are entitled to immediate possession. Epley v. Epley, 111 N. C. 505, 16 S. E. 321; Alexander v. Gibbon, 118 N. C. 796, 24 S. E. 748, 54 Am. St. Rep., 757.

Same—Leave to Amend.—On petition before the clerk for partition, permission to amend the petition is purely within the discretion of the clerk. Simmons v. Jones, 118 N. C. 472, 24 S. E. 114.

Lands Not Included in Petition.—The petitioners are not entitled as a matter of right to have a part only of the lands divided, and the defendants may have other land held in common included. Luther v. Luther, 157 N. C. 499, 73 S. E. 102. But see section 46-16 and note thereto as to partial partition.

Not Proper Remedy for Ouster.—Where a tenant in common has been actually ousted by his cotenant, his remedy is by ejectment, and not partition. Thomas v. Garvin, 15 N. C. 223, 25 Am. Dec. 708, cited in note in 20 L. R. A. 627.

Divorced Couple Entitled to Partition.—When marriage is dissolved by divorce, the husband and wife become tenants in common of property formerly held by the entirety, and are entitled to partition. McKinnon, etc., Co. v. Caulk, 167 N. C. 411, 83 S. E. 559, L. R. A. 1915C, 396.

Partition as to Churches. — Churches belonging to an association controlling a school are not entitled to partition. Church v. Thornton, 158 N. C. 119, 73 S. E. 810.

Question of Fact for Court.—Whether or not, in a proceeding instituted under this section, for partition of land, held by two or more persons as tenants in common, between or among such persons, there shall be an actual partition, or a sale for partition, as authorized by statute, involves a question of fact to be determined by the court. Talley v. Murchison, 212 N. C. 205, 206, 193 S. E. 148.

Applied in Gibbs v. Higgins, 215 N. C. 201, 1 S. E. (2d) 554.

II. PARTIES.

In General.—Parties claiming to hold in common may properly be brought in as defendants. McKeel v. Holloman, 163 N. C. 132, 79 S. E. 445. Partition can be made only by tenants in common who are seized of the freehold, and not by those in remainder or reversion. Ordinarily, partition lies only in favor of one who has a seizin and right of immediate possession. Osborne v. Mull, 91 N. C. 203.
